affair

Kofu city, 29 May 6 June
Yamanashi

No. 34

26 May 1950

Surveillance of Japanese election.

Liaison arranged orientation conference. Maps and materials were in readiness - complete information about headquarters of political parties and sample posters of prefectural candidates were not available.

No member of the Ken Committee attended the orientation conference. KCAR asked to see committees the following AM - Committee consists of 6 members plus 55 clerks and has no headquarters this year!

KCAR unable to get much data on election committees as outlined by Ken ordnances. (#14. 5 June 1947). In no location did the election committee maintain any semblance of a headquarters, independent of government offices. In all places, government clerks assumed responsibility for election administration. In one place on election day, the voting station knew nothing of the committees whereabouts.

In many places, on election day, the committees of four persons, assigned themselves one to a voting station as voting overseer, leaving the overall supervision on election day to the local police.

In most places the ballots remained uncounted and unprotected by police, from 6 PM until the following day.

A few voting places were almost impossible for the voters to reach because of mud - On the whole the voting procedure seemed orderly.
