AMERICANS ON BOARD BIG SHIP; 21 LOST IS FEAR

$1,000,000 in Securities from
J. P. Morgan Company
Lost, Is Belief

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—The 13,000-ton Cunard line steamer Laconia, sailing from New York for Liverpool, with more than 100 passengers on board of whom at least ten were Americans, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine off the Irish coast last night.

One person is known to have been killed and twenty-one are missing. The Laconia is the biggest passenger-carrying liner sunk since the Lusitania and carried beside passengers a crew of 216 men.

Among the passengers on the vessel were ten Americans, two Swiss subjects, one Ecuadorian and one man from Trinidad. All others were Canadian or British subjects.

WOMEN ON BOARD

There were a number of women on board. It is not known whether any women are among the lost.

The ship, according to the British Admiralty, was sunk without warning and under circumstances almost identical to the sinking of the Lusitania, also a Cunard, at almost the identical spot where the Lusitania went down.

The ship flew the British flag and carried one gun mounted on her stern for defensive purposes. The Laconia carried $1,000,000 in securities from J. P. Morgan and company and 8000 bags of mail, which are believed to have been lost.

SOME OF AMERICANS

Among the Americans known to have been on board were Dr. E. B. Harrison of San Francisco, on his way to engage in British Red Cross work; Mrs. F. G. Harris, the Rev. Joseph Waring, Miss Phyllis Barker of New York, Mrs. Albert Hoy and daughter, Elizabeth Hoy, wife and

Here Are Pleas of President

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—President Wilson went before a joint session of congress today and asked that full power be given him to cope with the German crisis in any eventuality short of actual war. Here are some of the points he made:

That diplomatic means have failed to safeguard American interests in the face of the German ruthless submarine war policy.

That the only course now left to the United States is to adopt "armed neutrality."

But the President again insisted that war with this nation can come "only through wilful acts and aggressions of others."

He specially asked the authority to arm American merchant vessels for their own protection.

He asked "sufficient credit" to insure adequate means of protection where they are now lacking.

He also asked funds to provide marine insurance that will guarantee indemnification against loss to American merchant ships braving the war zone dangers.

He gave Germany credit for as yet having committed no "overt act" to bring on war, but said the commerce tie-up had become intolerable.

As a result of his plea for "armed neutrality" it is expected big increases in both the navy and the army will result.

Manager Stovall Refuses Uniform to 'Chink' Mattick

George Stovall showed the iron hand under the velvet glove today.

When "Chink" Mattick appeared at the Vernon park and asked for a uniform, Stovall refused it to him. "My orders are that players who have not signed will not be given uniforms," stated Stovall.

It is understood that Mattick asked that he be traded to some other club and that Dallas is the club to which he hopes to be traded.

Darmody and Stovall both stated that Mattick was offered as much money as they can afford to give and that he will not be traded.

START PROBE OF LACONIA DISASTER

By International News Service
WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Official confirmation of the sinking of the Cunard liner Laconia by a German submarine reached the state department from Consul Frost at Queenstown. His message was:

"Cunard liner Laconia, torpedoed and sunk 10:50 p. m., Feb. 25, 150 miles west of Fastnet. Details unknown. Two hundred and seventy-eight survivors will land here today. Time uncertain. Known dead, one. Some missing."

News of the sinking of the Laconia created not a little concern in official circles, coming as they did just at the moment the President was asking congress for enlarged power to meet the submarine menace.

No official comment was forthcoming pending fuller official advice, but it was admitted that if the big liner was attacked without warning, even though none of the Americans perished, the incident might become the "overt act" Germany has been warned against.

GERMANS IN RAID ON BRITAIN

By International News Service
LONDON, Feb. 26.—Official announcement was made in the house of commons today that the British army in Mesopotamia had captured Kut-el-Amara from the Turks.

By International News Service
LONDON, Feb. 26.—The English port cities of Margate and Broadstairs were shelled by a German destroyer, with the loss of two lives, it was announced in the house of commons this afternoon by Sir Edward Carson, first lord of the admiralty. A woman and a child were killed and two children were wounded.

Announcement was also made later that part of the German destroyer fleet came out of the Kiel canal and gave battle to British destroyers in the channel. The amount of damage is not known.

It is supposed that part of this German squadron bombarded the British ports of Margate and Broadstairs.

CHARGING BRITISH MAKE NEW GAINS IN SOMME FRONT BATTLE

LONDON, Feb. 26.—Following the three-mile gain along the Ancre river, won by British guns and infantrymen in the last three days, a terrific infantry attack was launched against the Germans today four miles west of Bapaume.

The Germans are still retreating methodically, fighting the British strongly until heavy British artillery comes up and then retreating. From the nature of the retreat it is evident that the Germans have moved back their heavy artillery and are unable to combat the big guns of the British.

THREE CLUBS HOLD FIRST WORKOUTS

The winter lid of baseball was pried loose today.

Under clear skies the Chicago National leaguers and the Los Angeles and Vernon Coast league clubs started getting in shape for America's great national pastime.

Damp grounds caused the Coast leaguers to start their workouts late, but not so the easterners. Most of them were on hand long before 10 o'clock.

While one workout a day is the portion allotted to the Coasters, Manager Mitchell of the Cubs make his players workout twice.

All three managers—Chance, Mitchell and Stovall—are anxious for warmer weather and the weatherman has promised them that brand.

The first game of the season is only a few days away. It will be played Friday between the Angels and the Cubs.

Neither team has many players on its roster who have been playing winter ball so the clubs will start off even.

The game is to be played at Tournament park, Pasadena. The next two contests will be staged at Washington park.

'Nigger Alley' Must Stand, Says Council

The city council today discovered that it would be impossible for it to change the name of "Nigger Alley." Recently the council ordered the city engineer to change the name of the alley, as the present title was offensive to the negro residents of Los Angeles. Now the city engineer learned that the council long ago vacated the alley and has no jurisdiction over it.

Hi Jasper Starts to Weaken, Hints He Would Report

Hi Jasper, the eccentric twirler on the Angel reserve list who refused to report last year, is beginning to weaken. He telegraphed Chance, stating that he would take a certain salary for reporting this year and asking that he be given his unconditional release if the salary request was not met.

Chance answered saying that he would not give him the money demanded and advising the pitcher that he better report.

Errors Found in Flood Control Vote

Clerical errors and minor discrepancies were found in thirteen precincts by the board of supervisors today when the official canvass was begun of the vote on flood control bonds. The election officers in these precincts will be summoned to appear and explain the errors to the supervisors. There were no errors discovered up to late today that would tend to make any material change in the result, which gave a majority of 211 in favor of issuing the bonds.

Predict More Rain in Northern Cities

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—Unsettled weather, probably rain tonight and tomorrow, was the forecast tomorrow for San Francisco and vicinity. Elsewhere in the state improved conditions are predicted. In the San Jose district, where the storm caused three deaths, flood conditions were better today and danger was believed past. From Antioch today came word that the fruit crops had not been injured.

PUT CANNON ON MERCHANT SHIPS PRESIDENT URGES AS CONGRESS FACES CRISIS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Declaring that diplomatic means have failed to safeguard American interests in the face of Germany's ruthless submarine war proclamation, President Wilson went before a joint session of congress today and declared armed neutrality to be necessary.

He asked authority to arm American merchant ships for their own defense. He asked that congress provide funds for such armament and for insurance against losses to American ships which brave the war zone risks.

While insisting that "war can come to this nation only by the willful acts and aggressions of others," Mr. Wilson made it clear that in his opinion the only course left open to the United States is to arm for defense, and he asked full authority to act in any emergency short of actual war.

CAPITOL GUARDED

The galleries of the house, where the joint session was held, were packed. The capitol was under a strong guard of police.

The President began speaking at 1:02 and finished at 1:15 p. m. He spoke clearly and to the point, standing with his shoulders squared, as though the pathway was straight before him.

Only those persons having credentials were allowed to enter the building.

President Wilson showed every intention of being perfectly fair to Germany. He declared that no "overt act" that required war has as yet been committed, but called attention to the intolerable condition which is keeping American shipping bottled up in home ports. This, he said, demands immediate action and it was to this end that he asked the arming of merchant ships and national provision for American marine insurance.

ACT FOR DEFENSE

By "armed neutrality" the President is understood to mean the complete equipment of all branches of defense, the raising of the navy to full complement and a probable call for large army increase.

Mr. Wilson made no reference to Austria or to any other of Germany's allies during his address.

The President's address was as follows:

"Gentlemen of the congress: I have again asked the privilege of

CONGRESS CHEERS AS WILSON ASKS DEFENSE

BY JOHN EDWIN NEVIN
Staff Correspondent of International News Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The right to establish "armed neutrality" against German submarine aggression and a grant of sufficient funds to meet any emergency and to provide all lacking means of protection to American interest in every way was asked of congress by President Wilson today.

He frankly admitted that, diplomacy having failed, the United States must be ready to go further than it already has to protect its rights on the high seas.

He admitted that the overt act which was to call forth his next step, still is lacking, but he made it plain to congress that, so far as he was concerned, he believed that the time was ripe when we should be prepared to take every possible step to restore American commerce to the high seas.

Despite this single fact the President's address was met with a

KIDNEYS NEVER CAUSE BACKACHE

Don't Let Soap Spoil Your Hair

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mild coconut oil. For this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

SYRUP OF FIGS FOR CROSS, SICK, FEVERISH CHILD

Look, Mother! Is Tongue Coated, Breath Hot and Stomach Sour?

Harmless "Fruit Laxative" Best to Clean Tender Liver and Bowels

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered. When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

GET RESULTS IN CONSTIPATION BY LUBRICATION

New Paraffine Oil Treatment Proves Its Worth Even in Stubborn Cases

The simple principle of lubrication has been applied to the treatment of constipation with most remarkable results.

Amorol is being more and more widely used for constipation and various other disorders of the intestinal tract.

Its many advantages are winning more favorable recognition. It has been shown that Amorol does not in any way affect the digestive processes, that it does not absorb into the system, and that it has healing properties very valuable where irritation is present.

That this oil is purely mechanical in its action is shown by the fact that it simply passes through the body, oiling the intestinal channel as it goes, and softening the hardened masses which have caused the constipation.

Amorol is odorless, colorless and tasteless. This preparation is sold at all Owl Drug Stores at 50c per pint bottle.—Advertisement.

QUICK, W. L. ADAMS! FASHION SHOW BECKONS!

New Styles Kept Secret, but Will Rival Last Year's

An unusual amount of interest was manifested today in the announcement that the fourteenth annual spring fashion show of Los Angeles will be held on Thursday and Friday of this week.

The interest is inspired by the fact that not only has the public been in doubt as to whether there would be a spring show, but the new styles have been kept a secret. Even the most persistent and inquisitive shopper has but little idea of what truly constitutes the fashions of the coming spring season, and Milady will rush to the style exhibit with an unusually fresh eagerness.

There will be no window display or promenade on the evening before the fashion show, as the merchants believe the unveiling should take place at dawn on Thursday morning. Promenades will be held both on Thursday and Friday evenings.

NEW BARRETT CASE EVIDENCE IS PROBED

A probe of new evidence in the case of Benton L. Barrett, confessed slayer of his wife and stepson, was started by detectives of the district attorney's office today following the arrival in the city of J. M. Rodgers, half brother of the slain woman.

Rodgers gave to the district attorney a letter written by Mrs. Barrett a few days before she was killed in which she expressed fear of her life. In this letter Mrs. Barrett begged Rodgers to come to her at once because certain persons, whose names she mentioned, were trying to get her property from her.

Rodgers is here from his home in Huntington, Ind., and says that he would identify himself with the Barrett case to see that the guilty parties are brought to justice.

TRAIN RESERVES TO BE OFFICERS IS L. A. PLAN

Practical Preparedness Movement Is Taking Shape Rapidly in City

A "practical preparedness" movement has been launched in Los Angeles to organize the recruits who attended the Monterey training camp into a permanent military body.

The new organization, which will be named the "Los Angeles Officers Reserve Training Corps," is the idea of a number of the local men who attended the training camp.

Already several petitions have been circulated to obtain the signatures of those who indorse the idea and are ready to enlist at the organization meeting.

E. L. Doherty, Jr., H. S. McKee and Silsby Spaulding are among the well-known men of the city who are interested in the "practical preparedness" movement.

KEEP UP GOOD WORK

The object of the organization will be to train Los Angeles men for commissions in the United States army reserves, and also to continue the training received at the training camp throughout the year.

The new organization will be a battalion of four companies. It is planned that there will be an engineering company, a signal corps company, an infantry company and possibly a field artillery corps.

At least 400 men will be enlisted for the organization. The officers will be selected by examination by a board of regular army officers, thus giving every man a chance and doing away with any suggestion of favoritism.

FOSTER PATRIOTIC SPIRIT

The Los Angeles Officers Reserve Training Corps, it is planned, will work in conjunction with the Southern California Training Camp association to foster the spirit of patriotism, demonstrate advocacy of preparedness and practical military training.

Those who are behind the movement are planning the erection of an armory and drill grounds for their own use, and point out that the organization is in no way connected with the national guard.

"It is for those men who desire a military training, but who can't find time for the duties of the national guard," they say. "It will not be limited to men who attended the training camp, but will be open to all."

The ever-increasing high cost of living is gradually making the consumer poorer and the producer richer. The food buying power of the dollar is lessening every day. The man who produces his own fruit, vegetables, poultry, eggs, rabbits, milk, cream and butter, on his own one-acre, two-acre, or five-acre suburban farm—is today putting money in the bank.

One-acre, two-acre or five-acre farming at Mission Acres (a portion of the famous chosen lands of the Mission Fathers) is beating the high cost of living. This fertile acreage is watered by the famous $30,000,000 Los Angeles aqueduct water system. It is right in the heart of the San Fernando Valley's most progressive development. Over $1,000,000 worth of land in this section has been sold in the past two years.

Mission Acres is surrounded by the best towns in the San Fernando Valley. It is reached by the fast, luxurious cars of the San Fernando electric line of the Pacific Electric railway—and the beautiful Brand boulevard, a broad, asphalted automobile thoroughfare.

OSBORNE FAVORS MILITARY TRAINING

The committee appointed at the meeting in Shrine auditorium yesterday to draft resolutions was not put to a vote. The president of the senate, the speaker of the house and the California delegation in congress, was scheduled to meet today. This committee is composed of Max Socha, Judge White, J. E. Engeldrum, Adolph Danziger and Benno Brink.

Congressman-elect Capt. H. Z. Osborne presided at the meeting and declared that he was highly in favor of universal military training and military preparedness. He said that he was not for peace at any price and that he stood for upholding the national honor and integrity.

Mr. Engeldrum of Long Beach assailed President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing, and introduced a resolution calling on Lansing, Attorney General Gregory and Secretary of the Interior Lane to resign.

Through the insistence of Chairman Osborne the resolution was not put to a vote. Mr. Socha in a speech upheld the peace policy of William Jennings Bryan and appealed for Americans to keep out of the war zone.

Nazarene Pastor Now Without Flock

There was much speculation today as to future developments in the case of the congregation and pastor of the University Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene, Pasadena, which was yesterday declared disorganized by the Rev. Howard Eckels, superintendent of that district. Rev. Eckels, in his letter declaring the church disorganized, asserted that "intolerable conditions" within the church caused his action. The pastor, Rev. Seth G. Reno, is thus left without a congregation.

Is there an electric washer in your home? If not, why not?

An electric washer and wringer will positively do all the hard work.

The cost of operating them is so small that you will hardly notice any difference in your electric light bill.

Electric washers are past the experimental stage, and any of the well-known make of washers that are built especially to be operated by power today should last a lifetime.

A good electric washer not only saves your clothes, but saves time and eliminates all the hard work.

In the past eight years it has been my pleasure to put out hundreds of electric washers in Southern California, and every user is a satisfied customer. Many are so well pleased that they say they would not take several times what they paid for their washers if they could not get another.

Here we show you a few of our electric washers which we carry in stock at all times. You can have your choice of cylinder, vacuum, oscillator and dolly type, in wood, copper or galvanized tub. Every machine will wash and wring, either separately or both at the same time. Every wringer is reversible and is equipped with safety release. Many of our washers have the swinging wringer feature, which permits the wringer to operate in three different positions. Some of our machines have gas heaters underneath the tub, to heat the water, and quite a few have extension tables for extra tubs. In addition to the electric washers we carry a full line of ironing machines and power washers.

If you do not find it convenient to call at our store just write us and we will mail you special literature on any machine in our line.

'FEED CAL. FIRST' L. A. WOMEN'S PLEA TO GOV.

Housewives' League Protests Shipment of Supplies Until Local Needs Are Provided

Declaring that foodstuffs are being stored in Los Angeles in order to keep prices high, the Housewives' league today announced that a demonstration to compel immediate action by city officials is being considered. Mrs. S. B. T. Watson, president of the league, made the announcement.

In the meantime, adopting a slogan of "Feed California First," the league has telegraphed Governor Johnson making several demands.

MESSAGE TO GOVERNOR

The telegram reads: "The Los Angeles housewives insist that you prevent the transportation of foodstuffs until the local demand is supplied. Food riot threatened and imminent. Open the cold storage and warehouses and pull down prices. Feed California first." Charges that enormous supplies of food, and particularly of potatoes, are being hidden in Los Angeles were hurled by the Housewives' league today.

The league absolutely rejects the claim that there is a shortage of food, according to Mrs. Watson.

Today Mrs. Watson made the following statement: "The demand for a demonstration against the storing of foods will be made within a few days unless the city officials do something very promptly. The mayor has said he would act. No one has taken any action to help the women of Los Angeles are clamoring by the hundreds to be allowed to storm the city hall and demand action from those who govern the city."

PRINCIPAL DEMAND

"They will hold this demonstration within a few days, and among their demands will be that the food now stored in enormous quantities within our city be placed within the reach of the people. "Our members have been making more or less secret investigations of the food conditions here and, far from finding a shortage, they have discovered that there is plenty. "One of our workers has discovered a large quantity of potatoes hidden in a secret cellar that stretches for blocks underground. "I shall take but one more step to get Los Angeles to fight the high cost of living in a quiet method. That is to see if the district attorney will aid us if this step fails the women of the Housewives' league are going to make a demonstration and if one demonstration doesn't do the work we will storm the city hall every day till we get results."

NATION-WIDE FIGHT ON HIGH COST IS PLAN OF MAYOR

Circulation of an appeal to the mayors of all cities in the United States to inaugurate a fight against high food prices by planting vegetables in vacant lots may be started by Mayor Woodman. "Despite the deft of wholesale produce merchants, the people of Los Angeles must pay high prices or the foods will be shipped elsewhere," said the mayor. "I still declare that if the food situation becomes acute here I will order the police to confiscate stacks stores in warehouse. "I am today considering the issuance of an appeal to the mayors of all the cities in the country to call upon the people to plant vegetables in all vacant lots. In this manner, while we are trying to meet the present emergency, we will make ourselves independent in a few months of the produce barons. "Mayor Woodman said that if worst came he would start a movement to buy up potatoes for Los Angeles and have them shipped to this city. "Los Angeles, though," said the mayor, "is fortunately situated in this, that the prices here are really not so high as they are in New York or in many other cities and towns. But we are going to take measures so the prices will not go too high. "Councilman Roberts today said he would ask the public service commission for a statement of what lands owned by the city along the aqueduct could be made available for a municipal potato farm. "It also was rumored that Mayor Woodman would be asked to appeal to State Market Commissioner Harris Weinstein to confiscate the hoarded potato and onion crops if attempt is made to ship these foodstuffs out of the state."

Mr. McNally's friends feel that because of the training he had already received in legislative work, together with his business experience that he is especially fitted for the office of councilman. BUSINESS NOTICE

NERVOUS PERIODICAL HEADACHES

This trouble commonly called "sticking headache" is said to be due to the retention of urea in the system. Often it is stated that a poor condition of the blood is a cause of these headaches, or that it is a nervous condition; and in certain cases, no doubt, is true. Where treatment is demanded, it is more for the pain than anything else. Dr. A. F. Schelschmidt of Louisville, has found anti-kamina tablets to give prompt and satisfactory relief. "First should be insisted upon," he says, "and the patient should go to bed, darken the room, and all the attendants and food should be as quiet as possible. An emetic will some times shorten the attack. The bowels should be kept open and a hot bath the thorough rub-down with a coarse towel, often give grateful relief. Two anti-kamina tablets when the first signs appear, will usually prevent the attack. During an attack, one tablet every hour or two will shorten the attack and relieve the usual nausea and vomiting." These tablets may be obtained at all druggists. Ask for A-K Tablets. Also unexcelled for nervous headaches, neuralgia and all pains.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they had had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time. Note: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family."—Advertisement.

PRESIDENT APPEALS TO CONGRESS FOR FUNDS TO PURCHASE MERCANTILE WEAPONS TO MAINTAIN NATION'S HONOR SOUGHT

Addressing you as we are moving through critical times which it seems to me to be my duty to keep in close touch with the houses of congress upon so that neither counsel nor action shall run at cross purposes between us.

"On the third of February, I officially informed you of the sudden and unexpected action of the Imperial German government in declaring its intention to disregard the promises it had made to this government in April last and to undertake immediate submarine operations against all commerce, whether of belligerents or neutrals that should seek to approach Great Britain and Ireland, the Atlantic coasts of Europe or the harbors of the eastern Mediterranean or to conduct those operations regardless of restrictions of international law, practices without regard to any considerations of humanity, even, which might interfere with their object."

"That policy was forthwith put into effect. It has now become an active execution for nearly four weeks."

NO CO-OPERATION

"Its practical results are not yet fully disclosed. The commerce of the neutral nations is suffering severely, but not, perhaps, very much more severely than it was already suffering before the first of February, when the new policy of the Imperial government was put into operation."

CASE OF LAW

"The case of the Law, which was carrying lemon box staves to London from the east coast of America, has been sunk like the Housatonic and the Lyman M. Law. The case of the Housatonic, which was carrying foodstuffs considered to a London firm was essentially like the case of the Frye in which, it will be recalled, the German government admitted liability for damages and the lives of the crew."

SUFFICIENT CREDIT

"I request also that you will grant me at the same time with the powers I ask, a sufficient credit to enable me to provide adequate means of protection where they are lacking, including adequate insurance against the present war risks."

RIGHTS OF HUMANITY

"I am thinking of those rights of humanity without which there is no civilization, no progress, no peace, no rights of material interest, no rights of fundamental human rights, chief of all the right of life itself."

WANTS AUTHORITY

"I cannot in such circumstances be mindful of the fact that the expiration term of the present congress is immediately at hand by constitutional limitation and that it would in all likelihood require an unusual length of time to assemble and organize the congress which I have suggested. I feel that I ought in view of that fact to obtain from you full and immediate assurance of the authority which I may need at any moment to exercise."

BOND REJECTION NOT YET BEING CONSIDERED

Members of the Venice board of trustees and various creditors of the city, to whom about $50,000 is due, today considered the proposal of calling a bond issue at which bonds would be voted to liquidate the city's debts. The committee was named to consider the proposal made by the trustees that in the event of an election being called the creditors will pay 2 per cent of the expenses. It was estimated that the election would cost the beach city about $800.

Acts to Enlighten Congress

den said that it would be foolish to deny that the situation is fraught with the gravest possibilities and dangers.

DANGER IS GRAVE

"No thoughtful man can fail to see that the necessity for definite action may come at any time," he continued. He then referred to the fact that congress should not adjourn because of constitutional limitation and stated that he would take much time. It was because of this that the President stated that he desired to have all possible authority behind him, although, he explained, he believes he already enjoys all of the authority he asked under existing law.

An outburst of wild handclapping with cheers from the Democratic side greeted the executive as he shook hands with Speaker Clark and Vice President Marshall.

FRED MITCHELL BOOSTS LOCAL MANAGERS

Fred Mitchell, manager of the Chicago Cubs, is a great admirer of Frank Chance and George Stovall.

By FRED MITCHELL With the start of our spring training in Southern California I want to impress the fans with the fact that I would rather have my club here for its early work than any other place in the country.

There are three reasons for this. First, the grand Southern California climate; second, the most perfect field; and third, the same spring training work, and third, we will play teams handled by two men who still ought to be managing clubs in the majors—Frank Chance and George Stovall.

I doubt if the Southern California fans quite appreciate the class of the two men at the head of the Los Angeles and Vernon clubs. Certainly no two teams in any AA league ever were represented by two such men and their presence on the Pacific coast should go to the credit of the league.

San Pedro Retains Semi-Pro Honors

The San Pedro club are still the semi-pro baseball champions of Southern California. The harbor nine, aided by the pitching and hitting of Pete Schneider of the Cincinnati Reds, defeated the L. A. White Sox on a Vernon diamond by the count of 7 to 0.

All-Stars Defeat Uniteds at Soccer

The All-Star soccer team of Los Angeles has proved to be great mudders, for it defeated the champion United squad in an exhibition game on the Manual Arts field to the tune of 5 goals to 2.

Hillis Winner of Trophy at Vernon

Smashing 69 out of 80 targets, William Hillis captured the season's trophy shoot at the Vernon Gun club. Stanton A. Burner was second with a score of 58 out of 60.

TWO WORKOUTS ORDERED BY MITCHELL

By FANE NORTON Forty members of the Chicago Cub squad started work at Tournament park, Pasadena, this morning under the direction of Manager Fred Mitchell.

The players had no more than entered the field when Mitchell found it necessary to start warning the youngsters to take it easy. The old timers started work slowly and took no chances on developing lame muscles the first day out.

THOROUGH TRYOUTS

According to Mitchell, all the former Coasters will get a thorough tryout. Mitchell also put a damper on the report that "Rowdy" Elliott will be turned over to the Oakland club.

TIGER BUSHERS' SHOW REAL PEPPER

Players on the Vernon club went through two workouts this morning. The first workout was picking out and fitting their suits in the clubhouse, while the second consisted of batting and fielding practice.

Led by George Stovall, the former "firebrand of the Federal league," thirty players went through their first spring workout on the Vernon ball field. Stovall sent the athletes through batting and fielding practice that lasted for more than two hours and the men finished their work with a run around the park.

BUSSERS' AMBITIOUS

Ideal sunny training weather greeted the players and added snap to their workout. Several of the "bushers" attempted to stage sliding and base-running practice, but they were halted in the midst of their workout by the "firebrand," as he refused to take any chances getting "beaten" by wild throw.

The Men Who Know Most About
the Comedy of Life

THE probate judge, or surrogate, as he is called in some states, is a wise man. Wisdom is thrust upon him. He is a daily spectator to the comedy of life and death.

Before him is enacted a succession of plays—all deep tragedies to those who take part in them, but really humorous to the observing man.

Here is brought the great will contest of the man who denied himself throughout his life to amass a few million dollars. Perhaps he made his money by earnest effort. Perhaps he was an enlightened larcenist, who knew how to steal without getting caught at it. Perhaps it came to him by inheritance. But it is all one to the people who come to the surrogate's court to fight for it.

Suppose the man who has gone was a great captain of industry, whose word decided the destinies of thousands of men and hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Suppose he was a man who in his lifetime was what is called "a hard-headed business man," devoid of sentiment, flightiness or any tendency to eccentricity.

But now he is dead. And here come the heirs, or the pretending heirs, each with his corps of psychologists and alienists.

And they go to the witness stand, one by one, each swearing on his solemn word that the departed was full of foolishness of all sorts, that he had been acting queerly for many years and that he could not possibly have been in his right mind when he drew the will.

It is a queer picture that is presented to the probate judge.

He can see the man whose money he is now about to dispose of, see him toiling eighteen or twenty hours a day to pile up great sums of money when all he needs for his protection is a competence.

He can see him gradually grow weak under the struggle. Once he made his money serve him. Later his money made him serve it.

And through his long days and nights of labor he had a vision of doing good, of conferring vast benefits on those who were to come after him.

And here, before the court, are the children, or relatives or friends that the poor toiling rich man hoped to benefit, greedily fighting over his financial remains, as wolves fight over the carcass of one of their pack which has fallen in the hunt.

Naturally all men want to attain a competence. Only by that means can they enjoy anything like independence.

But the wise man spends his own money rather than leaving it to a surrogate's court to dispose of. He gives it in his lifetime to those whom he means to have it.

He uses the brains that have enabled him to get it to aid in its disposal. He can, while he is alive, see that it goes to schools and charities, to libraries, wherever he desires it to go.

And when he does this he knows that there will be no fighting over him after he is dead, no perjury about his mental condition, no relatives at each other's throats because a niece got a block of bank stock that a nephew felt should have been given to him by any uncle in his right mind.

Go to the probate court some time and listen to the testimony. It would be tragic if it were not amusing.

Listen to the arguments of the lawyers, to the evidence of the experts.

Here is a moving picture of life—all of its struggles and trials, and here you will learn just how much the mad struggle for wealth, simply for its own sake, amounts to.

Don't Let Your Health Follow
the Bankroll

SEVERAL years ago Soandso did you out of your share in a big business transaction. You lost heavily, and you have never forgiven him, nor forgotten the circumstances, even to the smallest detail.

Today you were feeling tiptop till his name was mentioned and now so far as you are concerned the sun has not shone since.

It is midwinter, but you say you are "hot under the collar" at the mention of that man's name, and so, ever since you were reminded this morning you have thundered your dictation at the poor little unoffending stenographer; you have pounded the desk with every command for your other subordinates and snapped at your own little girl over the phone.

Some day the doctor will look at you and shake his head and say, "high blood pressure—it must be a long rest." You shudder.

Do you want to acknowledge that that enemy of yours has ruined your health as well as taken your money?

Then you had better practice self-control. Do as the little boy did who ignored the mean taunts of an older child. "I am not big like papa," said he, "and papa isn't here so I'll have to let God take care of him."

Spend your time in forgetting the mean things, the annoying things and in gaining health for honest labor.

THE BIGGER THE MAN THE CLEANER THE DESK

The busy man, the man who really does things, always has time to see a worthy business caller. The little fussy fellow who runs around in circles and seldom does much never has time for anything. This fussy little man usually has a desk all littered up with junk. If he tries to locate any one paper on it he loses from three minutes to a half hour. The man who does things keeps his work up to the minute. Keep your desk and your brain free from litter.

HOW DO THEY DO IT?

Most Important Bills of 2500
Introduced in Legislature

BY HARRY A. CHAMBERLIN
State Senator and Well Known Attorney of Los Angeles

This is the ninth of a series of articles written exclusively for The Evening Herald by Harry A. Chamberlin, member of the state senate from Los Angeles, discussing and explaining the more important measures before the present session of the California legislature, making it possible for the general public readily to familiarize themselves with proposed legislation.

OF prime importance to the agriculturists of the state are the bills before the present legislature relating to the standardization of the quality and packing of fruits. The leading measures on this subject are the bills which emanated from the California Fruit Growers' convention, senate bill No. 1110 and assembly bill No. 212.

The most important change proposed in the present state fruit standardization law is to make it applicable to citrus fruits and to extend its jurisdiction to shipments within the state as well as outside the state. (The present law applies only to deciduous fruits shipped out of the state.)

Another bill would prohibit the use of any fruit box, crate or container a second time without its being first sterilized. It would not apply to boxes used in packing fruit from the fields to packing houses.

An appropriation of $250,000 is asked for the establishment of a branch experimental station for fruits and nuts, while another measure if passed would require the University of California to conduct experiments in drying, canning and preserving fruits and the handling, preparation and manufacture of fruit products and by-products.

Accurate weights and measures in the baling of hay are provided for in Senate bill No. 882, allowing a deficiency in marked weight of not more than five pounds a bale.

The Pure Milk act, passed at the session two years ago, regulating the sale of milk and manufacture of milk products, has evidently not worked out as well as it was thought it would, for a bill has been introduced seeking the repeal of the act. Another bill adds a number of amendments to the Pure Milk act, making the provisions of the law more certain and exact and imposing additional restrictions.

There are four bills relating to the egg industry, all of which seek to protect the public against the sale and use of cold-storage eggs. One bill is directed against eggs imported from China by classifying eggs that have been in transit thirty-one days or more as "storage" eggs and prohibiting their sale as "fresh" eggs.

Innumerable bills in both houses relate to livestock, hides and brands, and the slaughter of helters less than three years old. Senate bill No. 1205, known as the Leasing bill, would enable the surveyor general to lease approximately 650,000 acres of land now idle for grazing purposes. The leases would be limited to a period of ten years and the money derived from such leases would go into the state school fund.

Bills dealing with the subject of reclamation, flood control and drainage are numerous and uninteresting except to that part of the state to which each relates. The important bills on these subjects embody the recommendations of the Water Problems conference and deal principally with the Sacramento and San Joaquin Drainage districts. The creation of a State Board of Flood Control with state-wide jurisdiction to take over the present duties and powers of the present State Reclamation Board is one of the plans suggested.

Popping the Question
By S. LEE FRAZIER

NO young man ever asked the girl of his choice the vital question just as he figured he would. No sort of training will fit a man for that kind of a job. It is one of the undertakings that positively refuses to be worked out according to rule. It is a sad, sweet business that will not conform to regulations or systems.

The young man of today is the same silly guy he was a thousand years ago, and will be a thousand years hence.

In a general way a man can follow a mapped-out line of action, but no young fellow can face the girl he really loves when the fateful moment arrives and get away with what he had in mind.

Instead of the cool young man, debonair, self-possessed and business-like, he is instantly transformed into a blithering, blubbering idiot—a dithering, doddering, dough-faced dunce—a silly, sniping, simple Simon—a mumbling, muttering "mutt"—a batty, natty "nut."

The sweetest picture, we can imagine, is that of a young man of character and good intentions, hopelessly entangled in the mazes of love, paying court to a winsome, wholesome maid. When it comes to the question of all questions, it is "bashful boy and girl so coy."

Popping the question is no joke, believe me, but a very serious business, on which our future so much depends.

No man has a right to ask a girl to marry him unless he loves her and no girl has a right to say yes unless that love is reciprocated.

Marrying for money, position, convenience, or spite, is what is choking our divorce courts at the present time.

There can be no happiness in wedlock, without mutual love, and there can be no real home without mutual love, and a country to be worth-while must have homes, and lots of them. The divorce evil is a menace to the home.

What's the matter of folks anyway? Have we come to regard the marriage tie as a simple bow-knot with the contracting parties clutching wildly at the loose ends of the string that they may release the bonds, from which there should be no release, excepting for the gravest.

Evidently too many men are making a farce of marriage, and not only the men.

Divorces are sought for the most trivial things and no doubt our courts are altogether too lenient in granting separations.

If our young people married for love, divorces would be almost unheard of, and until hearts do the proposing and accepting, this miserable divorce business will continue to menace us with its nasty processes that are slowly but surely undermining the home.

Observation leads us to the conviction that men are more generally to blame for the disrupted home than women. Women are more trusting, more religious, more faithful, more forbearing, more forgiving.

However, women are not always blameless. Style, extravagance, affluence, neglect of home and "slopping-down," are some of their sins in this regard.

Love, mutual respect, family pride, the spirit of compromise, mutual concessions, fairness and fidelity will solve the problem of divorce.

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

By Adele Garrison

Why Dicky Said "You're the Original Kill-Joy" I HAVE never seen Dicky quite so taken aback as he was when the militant, middle-aged woman upon the Hudson River boat administered the rebuke to him about his impatience at the crowd before the dining room door. When we had come down from the upper deck to luncheon, only to find the dining room full, and a long line of impatient, jostling men and women extending down the corridor from the door, Dicky had told me that our delay in getting a seat was due to the 15 minutes I had spent in the dressing room; that if I had not gone there we would have been in plenty of time. He had spoken roughly, with the impatient rudeness which he so often uses when inconvenienced. And with withering emphasis in her tones the middle-aged woman standing near us had spoken directly at Dicky, and informed him that the same crowd he saw had been in front of the door for over half an hour. I could not help being amused at the woman's championship of me, but I was not particularly grateful for it. I have always had a distinct dislike for any comment on or interference in my affairs by anyone not directly concerned. But Dicky's face would have afforded amusement to the most confirmed misanthrope. Astonishment at the woman's words, indignation at evidently what he considered her effrontery, struggled in his face with the chagrin I knew he felt at having me find out that my stay in the dressing room was not responsible for our delay at luncheon. He turned his back squarely upon the woman, and with a muttered exclamation to me, moved away from her vicinity. Of course, I followed him, for there was nothing else to do, but as I went, I felt the keen eyes of my aggressive sympathizer fixed upon my retreating back. I knew that she pitied me as a poor-spirited creature. It seemed hours that we waited in the line, but, in reality, it was but 30 or 40 minutes before the crowd diminished so that we could see into the dining room. Every table was filled to its capacity, but at a corner table near the window we could see the people getting ready to depart. "I guess there's nothing for it but to cross that waiter's palm," said Dicky, grimly, putting his hand in his pocket and taking out a bill.

In the shifting of the crowd we had not noticed that our aggressive friend, with her companions, were right in front of us. I heard her high-pitched, rasping voice expostulating with the head waiter, standing near the door, whose roving eyes I knew had seen Dicky's hand go into his pocket. "I demand that you let me in this dining room," my militant defender said. "There must be tables waiting; there's one right over there now," as she saw the people at the farther table rise from their seats.

I think Dicky's natural eagerness to get a table was intensified by his desire to get even with the woman who had rebuked him. At any rate, at the first sound of her voice I saw him hastily substitute another bill for the one he had first drawn out. Then he held the second one, with just its denomination showing between his fingers, before the glistening eyes of the head waiter. That worthy did not hesitate a moment. He spoke peremptorily, finally, to the importuning woman.

"Excuse me, Missis, but I can't give you that table now; dat table is promised to dis gentleman right behind you. "Right this way, Mr. Jones, yohre table just ready for yoh." With a dexterous movement and without actually touching her the man cleared a passage for Dicky and me to pass into the dining room, and then, totally ignoring the woman's expostulation, he ushered Dicky and me to the table and bowed us into our seats. High and shrill above the babel in the dining room we heard the woman's voice: "I shall appeal to the management that man's name is no more Jones than mine is. He had not engaged that table at all. He simply bribed you to give it to him. Come back here, I tell you." But the waiter, not at all perturbed, was grinning broadly as he summoned another man to take our order. "Dat woman she jest natchally bust if she don't look out," he said to Dick as he sauntered back toward the woman. Dicky was in high good humor as he sank into his seat and began to study the menu card. "Just listen to the old dame row it," he said, gleefully. "But my conscience troubled me. After all, Dicky, you can't blame her," I said, timidly. "She was there before us and should have had the table." "Nonsense!" Dicky returned, "there is no question of precedence where a head waiter with a grin like that is concerned. The only rule he knows is the amount of the tip that he pushes down into his jeans. "Here, George, take care of this for me." He indicated as he spoke the unlucky bag which had been the innocent cause of his irritation with me over our delayed luncheon. The dusky waiter—Dicky always calls every waiter George—stooped for the bag, and I saw him thrust it carelessly under a serving table some distance away. "Are you sure that is safe, Dicky?" I protested. "He might easily get that bag mixed with some other one." "For heaven's sake, Madge!" the expletive was accompanied by one of Dicky's blackest frowns, "do quit worrying about everything and nothing. You are the original little kill-joy." Although I was distinctly worried over the bag, which was an expensive one and contained the little personal accessories of the toilet, many of them gifts which I cherished, I said nothing more. I told myself grimly that if I saw some one walk off with the bag I would not raise my voice in protest. And to this determination I adhered, even when a few minutes later I saw the dusky "George" place under the serving table by the side of our bag another very like it, belonging to the aggressive woman with whom Dicky had already clashed twice.

In Our Wonderful World

A medical authority states that the strength of the muscles, in common with all organs of the human body, have their periods of development and decline, our physical strength increasing up to a certain age and then decreasing. Tests of the strength of several thousand individuals have been made and the following figures are given as the averages derived from such tests—the lifting power of a youth aged 17 years is 280 pounds; in his twentieth year this increases to 320 pounds, and in the thirtieth and thirty-first year, respectively, it reaches its height,

265 pounds. At the expiration of the thirty-first year the strength begins to decline, very gradually at first. By the fortieth year it has decreased eight pounds, and such diminution continues at a slightly increasing rate until the fiftieth year is reached, when the figure is 230 pounds. Subsequent to this period the strength falls more and more rapidly, until the weakness of old age is reached. It is found impossible to obtain trustworthy statistics after the fiftieth year.

shape of long cylinders, which are cut open along one side and then placed on a stone in a hot furnace, where they gradually collapse and flatten out into a big sheet of glass. Often the glass breaks during this process, or even explodes, forming thousands of pieces. As a substitute for tin in the making of cans iron alloyed with gold is being introduced. The resulting product is said to be proof against corrosion of most kinds, but costs fifteen times as much as tin plate.

ARM U.S. WARNS WILSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—President Wilson went before congress at 1 o'clock this afternoon and outlined in detail the crisis with Germany and his plans for meeting it. He asked congress for authority to act in whatever emergency may arise. The President made it plain that his every hope and desire is for continued peace, but he did not disguise the fact that the situation is extremely critical and that he felt it to be the duty of the nation to be fully prepared to take quick action should such course become advisable.

Sink Liner Carrying Americans

HUGE SHIP IS TORPEDOED OFF IRISH COAST

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Unofficial advices received in New York late today say that 21 persons on the liner Laconia were unaccounted for of the 216 crew and 75 passengers. The survivors were said to number 270. There were 21 Americans in the Laconia's crew.
NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—The 18,000-ton Cunard Laconia, flying the British flag, bound from New York for Liverpool with passengers, including a number of Americans, has been torpedoed and sunk off the Irish coast, according to official reports reaching the Cunard line offices here this afternoon.
The Laconia carried fifty-three first cabin passengers, of which six were Americans. It also carried a number of second cabin passengers.
Announcement was made by the Cunard line that as far as known one life was lost.
Whether this was an American or not is not known.
The Americans aboard were Floyd P. Gibbons, Mrs. F. G. Harris, New York; A. G. Kirby, Bainbridge, N. Y.; Rev. Joseph Waring, New York; Miss Stella Parker, New York; Mrs. Mary E. and Elizabeth Coey, Chicago.
The total number of passengers carried on the giant liner was placed this afternoon at 75. The crew numbered 216.
The big liner was torpedoed last night at almost the same point where the Lusitania was sunk. Reports received here say the ship was sunk without warning.
RESCUE SURVIVORS
Immediately after the ship was torpedoed British patrol boats arrived and picked up the survivors who had taken to small boats.
The vessel went down about eighteen minutes after it was hit by the torpedo.
Apparently the first that was known of the vicinity of a submarine was a flash of white water as a torpedo shot toward the ship. There was

'CORNERS' OF VEGETABLES IN EAST BROKEN

By International News Service
NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Food prices went tumbling today when 281 carloads of foodstuffs arrived in New York and broke the "corners" which had been existing for weeks. Onions, selling at $14 to $15 a barrel a week ago, were today sold for $8 and $9. Potatoes last week demanded $10.50 and $11.50 a barrel, but today were obtainable as low as $7.50 a barrel. Florida potatoes arrived on the market today and sold for $3.50 a basket, a price lower than that at which old potatoes sold on Saturday.
By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service
WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—An unplanned but well enforced nationwide boycott by consumers already is reducing the prices of foodstuffs. This is in spite of the fact that no action has yet been taken against speculators by state or federal authorities.
Senator Borah of Idaho today introduced a resolution to appropriate $5,000,000 for sufferers from the high cost of food. The resolution went over until tomorrow at Senator Borah's request.
Reports reaching the department of agriculture today indicate that potatoes and onions, leaders in the "skyward movement," are quoted in the larger cities today at a lower figure than last Wednesday, when the situation became most acute.
It also is reported by the agents of the department that the market everywhere has absolutely fallen flat as a result of the general understanding by the consumers. In consequence many wholesalers, loaded to the guards with foodstuffs of all sorts which they have been hoarding for higher prices, are said to be anxious to unload before spring foodstuffs are in sight from the south and the Pacific coast.
It was stated, however, that the re-

Man Is Drowned In Pool of Water Two Inches Deep

Otto Carlson, 39, a longshoreman of San Pedro, was drowned in two inches of water at a ranch near the harbor city. His body was found by his employer. Carlson had been subject to illness which at times caused him to faint. Sunday afternoon he fell through the doorway of his room face downward in a pool of water not more than two inches in depth. He was dead when his employer found him. The police were notified and the body removed to a San Pedro undertaking establishment. Carlson had no known relatives in California.

Predict More Rain in Northern Cities

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—Unsettled weather, probably rain tonight and tomorrow, was the forecast tomorrow for San Francisco and vicinity. Elsewhere in the state improved conditions are predicted. In the San Jose district, where the storm caused three deaths, flood conditions were better today and danger was believed past. From Antioch today came word that the fruit crops had not been injured.
TO BE ARMY CHAPLAIN
CENTRALIA, Mo., Feb. 26.—Elder C. O. Purdy closed his pastorate here as pastor of the Christian church and leaves at once for San Antonio, Tex., where he assumes work as chaplain in the United States army.

What Wilson Said

President Wilson went before a joint session of congress today and asked that full power be given him to cope with the German crisis in any eventuality short of actual war. Here are some of the points he made:
That diplomatic means have failed to safeguard American interests in the face of the German ruthless submarine war policy.
That the only course now left to the United States is to adopt "armed neutrality."
But the President again insisted that war with this nation can come "only through willful acts and aggressions of others."
He specially asked the authority to arm American merchant vessels for their own protection.
He asked "sufficient credit" to insure adequate means of protection where they are now lacking.
He also asked funds to provide marine insurance that will guarantee indemnification against loss to American merchant ships braving the war zone dangers.
He gave Germany credit for as yet having committed no "overt act" to bring on war, but said the commerce tie-up had become intolerable.
As a result of his plea for "armed neutrality" it is expected big increases in both the navy and the army will result.

BRITISH MAKE NEW GAINS ON SOMME

By International News Service
LONDON, Feb. 26.—Official announcement was made in the house of commons today that the British army in Mesopotamia had captured Kut-el-Amara from the Turks.
LONDON, Feb. 26.—Following the three-mile gain along the Ancre river, won by British guns and infantrymen in the last three days, a terrific infantry attack was launched against the Germans today four miles west of Bapaume.
The Germans are still retreating methodically, fighting the British strongly until heavy British artillery comes up and then retreating.
From the nature of the retreat it is evident that the Germans have moved back their heavy artillery and are unable to combat the big guns of the British.
The fall of Bapaume, the keystone of the present German line on the Somme front, seems imminent. The town has been shelled by British guns until it is a mass of ruins.
TOWNS CRUSHED FLAT
Pett Miraumont, Pys and Serre, the towns taken by the British yesterday, had been crushed flat by the British cannonade. In Serre not a single house or a single tree was left standing. The German troops that remained in the town to the end had lived in caves and some of those captured seemed half crazed by their desperate plight.
German prisoners taken around Ires say the German forces believe that the British and French plan to renew the Somme offensive at the same point where it was left off in December, when storms put an end to heavy fighting. They say that the Germans expect to retreat to a new

GEMS CLUE IN AUTO DEATH INQUEST

Diamonds and other jewels given to Elbert de Marcus by a wealthy society woman are expected to lead to the arrest of de Marcus' slayer.
De Marcus, a Glendale jitney bus driver, was found dead in his machine last Tuesday. The slayer was the husband of a woman of social prominence, in the opinion of deputy sheriffs today.
A coroner's jury, at the inquest over the body today in Glendale, returned a verdict that de Marcus had been slain by an unidentified person.
Deputy Sheriffs Fox and Nolan claimed they have information that de Marcus and the wife of a wealthy Glendale resident were intimately acquainted.
DEAD IN AUTO
"De Marcus was found dead in his automobile in the heart of an exclusive residential district," said the officers.
"We are convinced that the man who killed De Marcus lived in this district and that his wife knew De Marcus very well."
"It was this wealthy woman who gave De Marcus the diamonds which he exhibited about Christmas time. Every clew that we have uncovered so far leads us to believe that this wealthy man discovered that his wife and De Marcus had a secret love and then tricked De Marcus into starting for the woman's house and on the way there shot him."
WOMAN SI SILENT
This new theory contradicts the theory first advanced by the officers that the woman in the case was a waitress in a Glendale restaurant.
The officers claimed that a woman looted De Marcus' room after the murder and that she is possessed of the clew that will solve the mystery.

PRESIDENT ASKS CONGRESS FOR AUTHORITY AND FUNDS TO DEFEND YANKEE SHIPS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Declaring that diplomatic means have failed to safeguard American interests in the face of Germany's ruthless submarine war proclamation, President Wilson went before a joint session of congress today and declared armed neutrality to be necessary. He asked authority to arm American merchant ships for their own defense. He asked that congress provide funds for such armament and for insurance against losses to American ships which brave the war zone risks.
While insisting that "war can come to this nation only by the willful acts and aggressions of others," Mr. Wilson made it clear that in his opinion the only course left open to the United States is to arm for defense, and he asked full authority to act in any emergency short of actual war.

CAPITOL GUARDED

The galleries of the house, where the joint session was held, were packed. The capitol was under a strong guard of police.
The President began speaking at 1:02 and finished at 1:15 p. m. He spoke clearly and to the point, standing with his shoulders squared, as though the pathway was straight before him.
Only those persons having credentials were allowed to enter the building.
President Wilson showed every intention of being perfectly fair to Germany. He declared that no "overt act" that required war has as yet been committed, but called attention to the intolerable condition which is keeping American shipping bottled up in home ports. This, he said, demands immediate action and it was to this end that he asked the arming of merchant ships and national provision for American marine insurance.

ACT FOR DEFENSE

By "armed neutrality" the President is understood to mean the complete equipment of all branches of defense, the raising of the navy to full complement and a probable call for large army increase.
Mr. Wilson made no reference to Austria or to any other of Germany's allies during his address.
The President's address was as follows:
"Gentlemen of the congress: I have again asked the privilege of addressing you as we are moving through critical times which it seems to me to be my duty to keep in close

PRESIDENT BARES PLANS FOR MEETING U-CRISIS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—After a lengthy conference with Senator Stone, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, President Wilson went before congress this afternoon and outlined his policy in the German submarine war crisis.
It is known that Mr. Wilson had not intended to take this step until later in the week, but Senator Stone told him that congress was desirous of being "fully informed" of the exact situation and that it was not considered to the best interests for "groping in the dark" to continue.
This caused President Wilson to alter his plans, and he decided to call a joint session of congress today.
KEEN EXCITEMENT
When the news of the call reached the capitol there was keen excitement. Not an inkling of the full purport of the President's message was allowed to gain publicity in advance of his address.
Senator Stone, who knew what Mr.

GERMANS SHELL TWO BRITISH PORTS
LONDON, Feb. 26.—The English port cities of Margate and Broadstairs were shelled by a German destroyer with the loss of two lives. A woman and a child were killed and two children were wounded. Announcement was also made later that part of the German destroyer fleet came out of the Kiel canal and gave battle to British destroyers in the channel. The amount of damage is not known. It is supposed that part of this German squadron, bombarded the British ports of Margate and Broadstairs.

PRESIDENT APPEALS FOR CREDIT TO DEFEND SHIPS

Touch with the hopes of congress upon so that neither counsel nor action shall run at cross purposes between us.

"On the third of February, I officially informed you of the sudden and unexpected action of the Imperial German government in declaring its intention to disregard the promises it had made to this government in April last and to undertake immediate submarine operations against all commerce, whether of belligerents or neutrals that should seek to approach Great Britain and Ireland, the Atlantic coast of Europe or the harbors of the eastern Mediterranean or to conduct those operations regardless of restrictions of international law practice with regard to any considerations of humanity, even which might interfere with their object."

"That policy was forthwith put into practice. It has now been in active execution for nearly four weeks."

NO CO-OPERATION

"Its practical results are not yet fully disclosed. The commerce of other neutral nations is suffering severely, but not, perhaps, very much more severely than it was already suffering before the first of February, when the new policy of the Imperial government was put into operation."

"We have asked the co-operation of the neutral governments to prevent these depredations, but so far none of them has thought it wise to join in any common course of action."

"Our own commerce has suffered, is suffering, rather in apprehension than in fact, rather because so many of our ships are timidly keeping to their home ports than because American ships have been sunk like the Housatonic and the Lyman M. Law. The case of the Housatonic, which was carrying foodstuffs consigned to a London firm was essentially like the case of the Frye in which, it will be recalled, the German government admitted liability for damages and the lives of the crew."

CASE OF LAW

"The case of the Law, which was carrying lemon box staves to Palermo, disclosed a ruthlessness of method which deserves grave condemnation."

Acts to Enlighten Congress

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Before announcement was made that he would address congress today, President Wilson discussed the entire legislative situation with Senator Stone of Missouri, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations. Senator Stone told the President that both houses of congress felt that the members should be taken fully into the confidence of the administration. They were "tired of groping in the dark," the senator said, and the President at once decided to take action to clear up all matters in doubt and not wait until later in the week, as he previously had planned.

behind me in whatever it may become necessary for me to do. We are jointly the servants of the people and must act together, and in their spirit, so far as we can divine and interpret it.

"No one doubts that it is our duty to do so. We must defend our commerce and the lives of the people in the most trying circumstances with discretion and with clear and steadfast purpose. Only the method and the extent remains to be chosen upon the occasion, if occasion should indeed arise.

"Since it has unhappily proved impossible to safeguard our neutral rights by diplomatic means which are suffering at the hands of Germany, there may be no recourse but armed neutrality, which we shall know how to maintain and for which there is abundant American precedent.

"It is devoutly to be hoped that it will not be necessary to put armed forces anywhere into action. The American people do not desire it, and our desire is not different from theirs. I am sure that they will understand the spirit in which I am now acting, the purpose I hold nearest my heart, and would wish to exhibit in anything I do.

"I am anxious that the peoples of the nations at war also should understand and not mistrust us.

HOW WAR MAY COME

"I hope that I need give no further proofs and assurances than I have already given throughout nearly three years of anxious patience, that I am the friend of peace and mean to preserve it for America so long as I am able.

"I am not proposing or contemplating war or any steps that may lead to it. I merely request that you will accord me by your own vote and definite bestowal the means and authority to safeguard in practice the right of a great people who are at peace and who are desirous of exercising none but the rights of peace to follow the pursuits of peace in quietness and good will—rights recognized time out of mind by all the civilized nations of the world. No course of my choosing or of theirs

"No doubt I already possess that authority without special warrant of law, by the plain implication of my constitutional duties and powers, but I prefer in the present circumstances not to act upon general implication."

"I wish to feel that the authority and the power of the congress are

TAKE GOULD'S BODY TO N. Y. ON YACHT

Victim of Fatal Accident Would Have Inherited Fortune of $30,000,000

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Feb. 26.—Aboard the Gould private car Dixie the body of Edwin J. Gould, Jr., 22-year-old son of Edwin Gould, president of the St. Louis & Southwestern railroad, who was killed accidentally near Jekyll Island, is being taken to New York today for burial. His father, who was at St. Augustine at the time of the accident, joined the body on route.

The death of the young scion of wealth brought grief to the millionaire colony at Jekyll Island.

Young Gould, with a companion, was on a coon hunting trip. While punching at a coon with his gun, held by the muzzle, the weapon was accidentally discharged and Gould was shot. Death followed in ten minutes. Had he lived Gould would have eventually fallen heir to the $30,000,000 fortune of his father.

The dead youth was a member of the New York Athletic, Fencers and Jekyll Island clubs. He was interested in aviation.

Railway Organizer to Join Pasadena Millionaire Colony

Francis T. A. Junkin, multimillionaire head of numerous railway organizations, will come to Pasadena March 10 in his private car "Elysian." He will be accompanied by his wife, who was Mrs. Emily Sprague Crane of Chicago, one of the wealthiest women in the United States.

Junkin belongs to the nobility and is a direct descendant of Sir Thomas West. He was admitted to the New York bar in 1887 and practiced in New York city until 1898, later becoming general attorney for the Santa Fe railway system. He was identified with the reorganization of many railway systems, notably the Union Pacific, Erie and Central, Union Pacific and Chicago and Northern Pacific railways.

TRAIN RESERVES TO BE OFFICERS IS. A. PLAN

Practical Preparedness Movement Is Taking Shape Rapidly in City

A "practical preparedness" movement has been launched in Los Angeles to organize the recruits who attended the Monterey training camp into a permanent military body.

The new organization, which will be named the "Los Angeles Officers Reserve Training corps," is the idea of a number of the local men who attended the training camp.

Already several petitions have been circulated to obtain the signatures of those who indorse the idea and are ready to enlist at the organization meeting.

E. L. Doheny, Jr., H. S. McKee and Sillsby Spaulding are among the well-known men of the city who are interested in the "practical preparedness" movement.

KEEP UP GOOD WORK

The object of the organization will be to train Los Angeles men for commissions in the United States army reserve, and also to continue the training received at the training camp throughout the year.

The new organization will be a battalion of four companies. It is planned that there will be an engineering company, a signal corps company, an infantry company and possibly a field artillery corps.

At least 400 men will be enlisted for the organization. The officers will be selected by examination by a board of regular army officers, thus giving every man a chance and doing away with any suggestion of favoritism.

FOSTER PATRIOTIC SPIRIT

The Los Angeles Officers Reserve Training corps, it is planned, will work in conjunction with the Southern California Training Camp association to foster the spirit of patriotism, demonstrate advocacy of preparedness and practical military training.

Those who are behind the movement are planning the erection of an armory and drill grounds for their own use, and point out that the organization is in no way connected with the national guard.

"It is for those men who desire a military training, but who can't find time for the duties of the national guard," they say. "It will not be limited to men who attended the training camp, but will be open to all."

L. A. BUSINESS MAN GOES TO NEW FIELD

J. M. Kemp, advertising and sales manager of Jacoby's and one of the best known dry goods men in the city, leaves Los Angeles on the Lark this evening for San Francisco, whence he will go to Portland to take over a new position with one of the largest dry goods firms on the coast.

The new position is that of advertising and sales manager of the Lipman & Wolfe company, Portland, Ore. While Mr. Kemp expressed keen regret at leaving Los Angeles, where he has made his home for ten years, the new work embraces unusually large opportunities.

Mrs. Kemp and the three small daughters of the family will accompany him to Portland and the family will make its home there.

Mr. Kemp has been connected with Jacoby Brothers for four years and has become known as a leading spirit among the most enterprising younger men of the city.

OSBORNE FAVORS MILITARY TRAINING

The committee appointed at the meeting in Shrine auditorium yesterday to draft resolutions to be sent to the President, the president of the senate, the speaker of the house and the California delegation in congress, was scheduled to meet today. This committee is composed of Max Socha, Judge White, J. E. Engeldrum, Adolph Danziger and Benito Brink.

Congressman-elect Capt. H. Z. Osborne presided at the meeting and declared that he was highly in favor of universal military training and military preparedness. He said that he was not for peace at any price and that he stood for upholding the national honor and integrity. Mr. Engeldrum of Long Beach assailed President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing, and introduced a resolution calling on Lansing, Attorney General Gregory and Secretary of the Interior Lane to resign.

Through the insistence of Chairman Osborne the resolution was not put to a vote. Mr. Socha in a speech upheld the peace policy of William Jennings Bryan and appealed for Americans to keep out of the war zone.

Nazarene Pastor Now Without Flock

There was much speculation today as to future developments in the case of the congregation and pastor of the University Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene, Pasadena, which was yesterday declared disorganized by the Rev. Howard Eckels, superintendent of that district. Rev. Eckels, in his letter declaring the church disorganized, asserted that "intolerable conditions" within the church caused his action. The pastor, Rev. Seth G. Rees, is thus left without a pastorate.

TODAY IS Wash Day

Is there an electric washer in your home? If not, why not?

An electric washer and wringer will positively do all the hard work.

The cost of operating them is so small that you will hardly notice any difference in your electric light bill.

Electric washers are past the experimental stage, and any of the well-known make of washers that are built especially to be operated by power today should last a lifetime.

A good electric washer not only saves your clothes, but saves time and eliminates all the hard work.

In the past eight years it has been my pleasure to put out hundreds of electric washers in Southern California, and every user is a satisfied customer. Many are so well pleased that they say they would not take several times what they paid for their washers if they could not get another.

Here we show you a few of our electric washers which we carry in stock at all times. You can have your choice of cylinder, vacuum, oscillator and dolly type, in wood, copper or galvanized tub. Every machine will wash and wring, either separately or both at the same time. Every wringer is reversible and is equipped with safety release. Many of our washers have the swinging wringer feature, which permits the wringer to operate in three different positions. Some of our machines have gas heaters underneath the tub, to heat the water, and quite a few have extension tables for extra tubs. In addition to the electric washers we carry a full line of ironing machines and power washers.

If you do not find it convenient to call at our store just write us and we will mail you special literature on any machine in our line.

'FEED CAL. FIRST' L. A. WOMEN'S PLEA TO GOV.

Housewives' League Protests Shipment of Supplies Until Local Needs Are Provided

Declaring that foodstuffs are being stored in Los Angeles in order to keep prices high, the Housewives' league today announced that a demonstration to compel immediate action by city officials is being considered. Mrs. S. B. T. Watson, president of the league, made the announcement.

In the meantime, adopting a slogan of "Feed California First," the league has telegraphed Governor Johnson making several demands.

MESSAGE TO GOVERNOR

The telegram reads: "The Los Angeles housewives insist that you prevent the transportation to New York or any other point of foodstuffs until the local demand is supplied. Food riot threatened and imminent. Open the cold storage and warehouses and pull down your prices. Feed California first."

Charges that enormous supplies of food, and particularly of potatoes, are being hidden in Los Angeles were hurled by the Housewives' league today. The league absolutely rejects the claims that there is a shortage of food, according to Mrs. Watson.

Today Mrs. Watson made the following statement: "The demand for a demonstration against the storing of food will be made within a few days unless the city officials do something very promptly. The mayor has said he would act. No one has taken any action to help us and the women of Los Angeles are clamoring by the hundreds to be allowed to storm the city hall and demand action from those who govern the city."

PRINCIPAL DEMAND

"They will hold this demonstration within a few days, and among their demands will be that all food now stored in enormous quantities within our city be placed within the reach of the people.

"Our members have been making more or less secret investigations of the food conditions here and, far from finding a shortage, they have discovered that there is plenty.

"One of our workers has discovered a large quantity of oranges hidden in a secret cellar that stretches for blocks underground.

"I shall take but one more step to get Los Angeles to fight the high cost of living in a quiet method. This is to see if the district attorney will aid us. If this step fails the women of the Housewives' league are going to make a demonstration and if one demonstration doesn't do the work we will storm the city hall every day till we get results."

INSANITY CHARGE AGAINST MRS. AITKEN

Charging his beautiful young wife with having a violent obsession for Gregory Comes, a young Greek bus boy at a big hotel, Spottiswoode Aitken, motion picture actor, today swore to an insanity complaint against Mrs. Aitken.

With this step he automatically stopped the divorce proceedings which he instituted last week through his attorneys, Jones and Lucie.

Mrs. Aitken is in a state of collapse and is in the care of doctors, stated Byron Fitts, her attorney, today, that he will fight the insanity charge with every power in his means. He will immediately start legal proceedings to prove that his client is sane and to clear her from the charge of insanity and the implications of being other than a dutiful wife.

The husband, in the meantime, is overcome with grief over the affair, Attorney Griffith Jones stated today. Both his actions—first to get a divorce and then to have his wife arrested for insanity and placed where she will receive medical care—have been taken for the sake of his two little children, Mr. Jones said.

McNally Enters Race for Council

Many voters have signed the petition of Thomas Jefferson McNally, Jr., prominent business man and member of the undertaking firm of McNally & Boyle, one of the latest candidates to take out a nomination petition for city councilman. Mr. McNally's friends feel that because of the training he had already received in legislative work, together with his business experience that he is especially fitted for the office of councilman. His campaign slogan will be "a business man for the city's business." Mr. McNally was born and reared in Chicago, where he resided until coming to Los Angeles about ten years ago.

NERVOUS PERIODICAL HEADACHES

This trouble commonly called "sick-headache," is said to be due to the retention of urea in the system. Often it is stated that a poor condition of the blood is a cause of these headaches, or that it is a nervous condition; and in certain cases, no doubt, this is true.

Where treatment is demanded, it is more for the pain than anything else, and Dr. A. F. Schellschmidt, Louisville, has found anti-kamina tablets to give prompt and satisfactory relief. "Rest should be insisted upon," he says, "and the patient should go to bed, darken the room, and all the attendants and family should be as quiet as possible. An emetic will some times abort the attack. The bowels should be kept open and a hot bath and a thorough rub-down with a coarse towel, often give grateful relief. Two anti-kamina tablets when the first signs appear, will usually prevent the attack. During an attack, one tablet should be taken every 15 minutes until the attack and relieve the usual nausea and vomiting." These tablets may be obtained at all druggists. Ask for A-K Tablets. Also unexcelled for nervous headaches, neuralgia and all pains.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they had had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they rest fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family."—Advertisement.

JOHNSON WILL STICK AS GOV. TO FIGHT FOR NEW LAWS

To Remain as California Executive Until December, Legislators Are Told

IMPORTANT BILLS PENDING Floods Delay Many Solons on Way to Resumption of Session

By C. E. KUNZE
Staff Correspondent Pacific News Service

STATE CAPITOL, SACRAMENTO, Feb. 25.—Governor Hiram W. Johnson, United States senator-elect, will not resign this week to relinquish the helm of the state to Lieut.-Gov. William D. Stephens.

On the contrary, he will remain on the jump here until December, when congress meets and will himself pass on all legislation enacted at this session of the legislature.

The governor has made no announcement to this effect, but a report which came from no one knows where gained such general circulation here that the leading legislators talked about little else.

SESSION RESUMED
The second half of the bifurcated fifty-second session began at 12 o'clock today. Last night more than half of the members, however, had reached Sacramento and the early morning trains were loaded with the returning solons. Floods and washouts along the various routes over which they came helped to delay many and some fear was expressed this morning that the opening of the session at 12 o'clock might have to be postponed a short time.

The determination of Gov. Johnson to stay on the job until December is believed to have been brought about by two main reasons.

The first of these is the bitter fight which is expected to develop during the session among the administration men over some very vital administrative matters.

'TROUBLE MAKERS'
The Brown-Weinstock feud and the attack upon the reclamation and flood control measures are among the trouble makers which the administration is facing.

Then also the governor has some important measure of his own which he wants to legislate into law, and there is a bitter fight ahead on labor and anti-labor bills, as well as on the liquor problem.

The second reason is purely political, also a sort of family matter, revolving about certain Los Angeles men responsible for the appointment of Lieutenant Governor Stephens, who are said to have a deep desire to become the powers behind the governor's chair when Johnson leaves. Johnson, it is believed is loath to give these men this opportunity when so much remains to be done by legislative measures to make the Johnson works of the last six years enduring after the main builder leaves the job.

2500 MEASURES

The legislature faces an enormous task which must be disposed of within sixty days. There are over 2500 measures before the two houses and while a big majority of these will never see the light of day, enough important ones remain to keep the law making mill running full speed and full time for the next two months.

Senator Joseph A. Rominger of Los Angeles, author of the Rominger liquor bill, brought with him a number of amendments to his own measure which will greatly change the original text of it.

One of these amendments will abolish the saloon and the roadhouses entirely by January 1, 1918.

Another amendment will change the alcoholic content of the bill from 10 to 14 per cent, permitting the manufacture and sale of a dry wine in the state.

With these changes Senator Rominger feels that his bill will become a law.

"The extreme radicals on both ends are opposed to my measure," he said, "but the less radical dries and all between these and the less radical wets, including practically all the wine men

DRIVER KILLED AS AUTO HITS OWL TRAIN AT CROSSING

Machine Crashes Head-On Into Engine: Other Occupant of Car Escapes

HURLED CLEAR OF WRECK

Motor Is Crushed to Bits by Force of Collision

Driving his automobile head on into the engine of the Los Angeles bound Owl train at the Southern Pacific crossing at Pacoima, near San Fernando, E. A. Miller, 65 years old, was almost instantly killed and his nephew, J. Fordyce Miller, 42 years old, who was seated beside the driver, escaped with only bruises and scratches.

The couple had just left the Miller home at Fourth and Carl streets in Pacoima for a drive to Wilmington. As they neared the crossing a view of the track was obscured by a big packing house. Miller did not slow down his machine and drove on past the packing house. As they shot past the edge of the building they were almost to the railroad tracks.

GROUND TO PIECES
Those who saw the accident declared that the automobile crashed directly into the engine on the track. The force of the impact was so great that the automobile was ground to pieces.

The elder Miller received fatal injuries. His head was crushed and numerous bones were broken. His nephew, J. Fordyce Miller, was hurled clear of the wreckage and escaped with only bruises and scratches.

NOTIFY CORONER
E. A. Miller was a resident of Shields, Kansas, and was visiting his nephew at Pacoima. Coroner Hartwell was notified of the fatal accident and plans were made for an immediate investigation. Residents of the San Fernando valley condemned the Pacoima crossing as one of the most dangerous in Southern California. Several months ago an aged man and a small boy were killed there when the automobile, driven by the man, was struck by a Los Angeles bound train. The crossing was condemned as dangerous because a view of the track is totally obscured by the packing house, which is built directly at the side of the track.

Mrs. Amy Douglas, who escaped from a sanitarium at Compton and walked miles in the drenching rain early yesterday is being detained at the county hospital. She is said to be in a serious condition. The woman was found by Conductor Carl Bowers of a Newport car. She was wandering along the Pacific Electric tracks near Nadeau.

L. A. COUNTY HOG PENS TO RIVAL PARLORS

The Los Angeles hog is coming into its own. Sterilized food, sanitary dining tables and other features of an ordinance reported on favorably to the board of supervisors today, bids fair to make the Los Angeles county hog pens as sweet and clean as the most exclusive dining rooms.

The measure designed to forcibly civilize swine represents the combined efforts of Dr. J. L. Pomeroy, county health officer, and Robert B. Murphy, deputy county counsel.

The basis for enforcement of the proposed ordinance is a clause providing that all hog ranchers in the county must obtain a license from the county government. This feature was expected to give the county officials an effective weapon in the regulation of hog raising as it provides for revocation of the license for violations in addition to a fine of $500 and six months' imprisonment.

The measure provides that all food fed to hogs—except the garbage from the proprietor's own household—must be sterilized by being heated to 212 degrees and cooked for thirty minutes.

Feeding tables to be cleaned at least once a day and kept in a sanitary condition, also were required by the proposed law.

It further forbids the keeping of more than fifty hogs on any ranch within one mile of any community where there are more than twenty houses within a radius of a quarter of a mile.

Following the announcement by a local grocer that onions would be accepted as legal tender, a Pacific Electric conductor on the Pasadena line experienced the shock of his life today.

"Against the rules," the conductor remarked, "to accept jewelry or other valuables." Whereupon the rancher pocketed the onion and produced the necessary coin.

Boys Suspected of Looting Grave Are Hunted by Police

Youngsters who are suspected of looting an old Serbian cemetery in Belvedere and robbing a grave of a man buried in 1911, were sought today by deputy sheriffs and Constable Balingier of Belvedere.

The opened grave was discovered yesterday by the constable, who reported the affair to the sheriff's office. It was found by an examination of the grave that the casket containing the body had been broken open and that the skull had been taken. Boys named by the constable were suspected of looting the grave.

85 Join Minister in Quitting Church

Followed by eighty-five members of his congregation, Rev. Scott Anderson, the storm center of a legal fight in the South Park Christian church, withdrew from the church at a meeting held in the Temple auditorium. Rev. Anderson criticized ministers and particularly those of the Christian faith. In resigning from the church, he and his followers agreed to give up all claim to the church property at 4315 South Park avenue. Dr. Anderson claimed that he was persecuted because he is a follower of Pastor Russell.

WOMEN'S NAVY LEAGUE OF L. A. TO MOBILIZE

A call for the mobilization of the work. They will be mobilized so that at a moment's notice from the government they could swing into the ranks of the men who might march away to war, and do for this country what the women of European nations are doing for theirs.

Mrs. Miner and Mrs. Alice Van Kaathoven, secretary, hastened arrangements for tomorrow's meeting and today announced the following speakers: Mrs. George Denis, Mrs. A. S. C. Forbes, Mrs. Van Kaathoven, Mrs. Miner and Commander Ward Winchell, U. S. N.

Blanks for a national service register are now being rushed to Los Angeles by the national headquarters in Washington and these will be filled out and returned to the east so that the general officers of the Woman's Navy league will have statistics on how many and what women will put their hands to the plow, will nurse, cook and conduct the country's business in case of war.

The Medium

Much has been written about the virtues of advertising, the power of persistence, etc., but it is vitally essential to know the medium which you select to carry your advertising. The importance of a newspaper is gauged by the number of its readers. In this respect The Evening Herald stands foremost in Los Angeles newspaperdom.

The Men Who Know Most About the Comedy of Life

THE probate judge, or surrogate, as he is called in some states, is a wise man. Wisdom is thrust upon him. He is a daily spectator to the comedy of life and death.

Before him is enacted a succession of plays—all deep tragedies to those who take part in them, but really humorous to the observing man.

Here is brought the great will contest of the man who denied himself throughout his life to amass a few million dollars. Perhaps he made his money by earnest effort. Perhaps he was an enlightened larcenist, who knew how to steal without getting caught at it. Perhaps it came to him by inheritance. But it is all one to the people who come to the surrogate's court to fight for it.

Suppose the man who has gone was a great captain of industry, whose word decided the destinies of thousands of men and hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Suppose he was a man who in his lifetime was what is called "a hard-headed business man," devoid of sentiment, flightiness or any tendency to eccentricity.

But now he is dead. And here come the heirs, or the pretending heirs, each with his corps of psychologists and alienists.

And they go to the witness stand, one by one, each swearing on his solemn word that the departed was full of foolishness of all sorts, that he had been acting queerly for many years and that he could not possibly have been in his right mind when he drew the will.

It is a queer picture that is presented to the probate judge.

He can see the man whose money he is now about to dispose of, see him toiling eighteen or twenty hours a day to pile up great sums of money when all he needs for his protection is a competence.

He can see him gradually grow weak under the struggle. Once he made his money serve him. Later his money made him serve it.

And through his long days and nights of labor he had a vision of doing good, of conferring vast benefits on those who were to come after him.

And here, before the court, are the children, or relatives or friends that the poor toiling rich man hoped to benefit, greedily fighting over his financial remains, as wolves fight over the carcass of one of their pack which has fallen in the hunt.

Naturally all men want to attain a competence. Only by that means can they enjoy anything like independence.

But the wise man spends his own money rather than leaving it to a surrogate's court to dispose of. He gives it in his lifetime to those whom he means to have it.

He uses the brains that have enabled him to get it to aid in its disposal. He can, while he is alive, see that it goes to schools and charities, to libraries, wherever he desires it to go.

And when he does this he knows that there will be no fighting over him after he is dead, no perjury about his mental condition, no relatives at each other's throats because a niece got a block of bank stock that a nephew felt should have been given to him by any uncle in his right mind.

Go to the probate court some time and listen to the testimony. It would be tragic if it were not amusing.

Listen to the arguments of the lawyers, to the evidence of the experts.

Here is a moving picture of life—all of its struggles and trials, and here you will learn just how much the mad struggle for wealth, simply for its own sake, amounts to.

Don't Let Your Health Follow the Bankroll

SEVERAL years ago Soandso did you out of your share in a big business transaction. You lost heavily, and you have never forgiven him, nor forgotten the circumstances, even to the smallest detail.

Today you were feeling tiptop till his name was mentioned and now so far as you are concerned the sun has not shone since.

It is midwinter, but you say you are "hot under the collar" at the mention of that man's name, and so, ever since you were reminded this morning you have thundered your dictation at the poor little unoffending stenographer; you have pounded the desk with every command for your other subordinates and snapped at your own little girl over the phone.

Some day the doctor will look at you and shake his head and say, "high blood pressure—it must be a long rest." You shudder.

Do you want to acknowledge that that enemy of yours has ruined your health as well as taken your money?

Then you had better practice self-control. Do as the little boy did who ignored the mean taunts of an older child. "I am not big like papa," said he, "and papa isn't here so I'll have to let God take care of him."

Spend your time in forgetting the mean things, the annoying things and in gaining health for honest labor.

THE BIGGER THE MAN THE CLEANER THE DESK

The busy man, the man who really does things, always has time to see a worthy business caller. The little fussy fellow who runs around in circles and seldom does much never has time for anything. This fussy little man usually has a desk all littered up with junk. If he tries to locate any one paper on it he loses from three minutes to a half hour. The man who does things keeps his work up to the minute. Keep your desk and your brain free from litter.

HOW DO THEY DO IT?

Most Important Bills of 2500 Introduced in Legislature

BY HARRY A. CHAMBERLIN State Senator and Well Known Attorney of Los Angeles

This is the ninth of a series of articles written exclusively for The Evening Herald by Harry A. Chamberlin, member of the state senate from Los Angeles, discussing and explaining the more important measures before the present session of the California legislature, making it possible for the general public readily to familiarize themselves with proposed legislation.

OF prime importance to the agriculturists of the state are the bills before the present legislature relating to the standardization of the quality and packing of fruits. The leading measures on this subject are the bills which emanated from the California Fruit Growers' convention, senate bill No. 1110 and assembly bill No. 212.

The most important change proposed in the present state fruit standardization law is to make it applicable to citrus fruits and to extend its jurisdiction to shipments within the state as well as outside the state. (The present law applies only to deciduous fruits shipped out of the state.)

Another bill would prohibit the use of any fruit box, crate or container a second time without its being first sterilized. It would not apply to boxes used in packing fruit from the fields to packing houses.

An appropriation of $250,000 is asked for the establishment of a branch experimental station for fruits and nuts, while another measure if passed would require the University of California to conduct experiments in drying, canning and preserving fruits and the handling, preparation and manufacture of fruit products and by-products.

Accurate weights and measures in the baling of hay are provided for in Senate bill No. 882, allowing a deficiency in marked weight of not more than five pounds a bale.

The Pure Milk act, passed at the session two years ago, regulating the sale of milk and manufacture of milk products, has evidently not worked out as well as it was thought it would, for a bill has been introduced seeking the repeal of the act. Another bill adds a number of amendments to the Pure Milk act, making the provisions of the law more certain and exact and imposing additional restrictions.

There are four bills relating to the egg industry, all of which seek to protect the public against the sale and use of cold-storage eggs. One bill is directed against eggs imported from China by classifying eggs that have been in transit thirty-one days or more as "storage" eggs and prohibiting their sale as "fresh" eggs.

Innumerable bills in both houses relate to livestock, hides and brands, and the slaughter of heifers less than three years old. Senate bill No. 1205, known as the Leasing bill, would enable the surveyor general to lease approximately 650,000 acres of land now idle for grazing purposes. The leases would be limited to a period of ten years and the money derived from such leases would go into the state school fund.

Bills dealing with the subject of reclamation, flood control and drainage are numerous and uninteresting except to that part of the state to which each relates. The important bills on these subjects embody the recommendations of the Water Problems conference and deal principally with the Sacramento and San Joaquin Drainage districts. The creation of a State Board of Flood Control with state-wide jurisdiction to take over the present duties and powers of the present State Reclamation Board is one of the plans suggested.

Popping the Question

By S. LEE FRAZIER

NO young man ever asked the girl of his choice the vital question just as he figured he would. No sort of training will fit a man for that kind of a job.

It is one of the undertakings that positively refuses to be worked out according to rule. It is a sad, sweet business that will not conform to regulations or systems.

The young man of today is the same silly guy he was a thousand years ago, and will be a thousand years hence. In a general way a man can follow a mapped-out line of action, but no young fellow can face the girl he really loves when the fateful moment arrives and get away with what he had in mind.

Instead of the cool young man, debonaire, self-possessed and business-like, he is instantly transformed into a blithering, blubbering idiot—a dithering, doddering, dough-faced duncie—a silly, simpering, simple Simon—a mumbly, muttering "mutt"—a batty, natty "nut."

The sweetest picture, we can imagine, is that of a young man of character and good intentions, hopelessly entangled in the mazes of love, paying court to a winsome, wholesome maid. When it comes to the question of all questions, it is "bashful boy and girl so coy."

Popping the question is no joke, believe me, but a very serious business, on which our future so much depends.

No man has a right to ask a girl to marry him unless he loves her and no girl has a right to say yes unless that love is reciprocated.

Marrying for money, position, convenience, or spite, is what is choking our divorce courts at the present time.

There can be no happiness in wedlock, without mutual love, and there can be no real home without mutual love, and a country to be worth-while must have homes, and lots of them. The divorce evil is a menace to the home.

What's the matter of folks anyway? Have we come to regard the marriage tie as a simple bow-knot with the contracting parties clutching wildly at the loose ends of the string that they may release the bonds, from which there should be no release, excepting for the gravest.

Evidently too many men are making a farce of marriage, and not only the men. Divorces are sought for the most trivial things and no doubt our courts are altogether too lenient in granting separations.

If our young people married for love, divorces would be almost unheard of, and until hearts do the proposing and accepting, this miserable divorce business will continue to menace us with its nasty processes that are slowly but surely undermining the home.

Observation leads us to the conviction that men are more generally to blame for the disrupted home than women. Women are more trusting, more religious, more faithful, more forbearing, more forgiving. However, women are not always blameless. Style, extravagance, affinites, neglect of home and "stopping-down," are some of their sins in this regard. Love, mutual respect, family pride, the spirit of compromise, mutual concessions, fairness and fidelity will solve the problem of divorce.

The most valuable corner lot—a lot of potatoes.

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

Why Dicky Said "You're the Original Kill-Joy"

I HAVE never seen Dicky quite so taken aback as he was when the militant, middle-aged woman upon the Hudson river boat administered the rebuke to him about his impatience at the crowd before the dining room door.

affairs by anyone not directly concerned. But Dicky's face would have afforded amusement to the most confirmed misanthrope. Astonishment at the woman's words, indignation at evidently what he considered her impertinence, and the crowd with the charin I knew he felt at having me find out that my stay in the dressing room was not responsible for our delay at luncheon.

In the shifting of the crowd we had not noticed that our aggressive friend, with her companions, were right in front of us. I heard her high-pitched, rasping voice exulting with the head waiter, standing near the door, whose roving eyes I knew had seen Dicky's hand go into his pocket.

I think Dicky's natural eagerness to get a table was intensified by his desire to get even with the woman who had rebuked him. At any rate, at the first sound of her voice I saw him hastily substitute another bill for the one he had first drawn out. Then he held the second one, with just its denomination showing between his fingers, before the glistening eyes of the head waiter.

"Excuse me, Missis, but I can't give you that table now; dat table is promised to dis gentleman right behind you." "Right this way, Mr. Jones, your table just ready for you."

the unlucky bag which had been the innocent cause of his irritation with me over our delayed luncheon. The dusky waiter—Dicky always calls every waiter George—stopped for the bag, and I saw him thrust it carelessly under a serving table some distance away.

In Our Wonderful World

A medical authority states that the muscles, in common with all organs of the human body, have their periods of development and decline, our physical strength increasing up to a certain age and then decreasing. Tests of the strength of several thousand individuals have been made and the following figures are given as the averages derived from such tests—the lifting power of a youth aged 17 years is 280 pounds; in his twentieth year this increases to 320 pounds, and in the thirtieth and thirty-first years, respectively, it reaches its height, 365 pounds.

"PAIR OF QUEENS" HILARIOUS FARCE "HELLO HAWAII" IN ITS THIRD WEEK GOOD BILLS AT SUPERBA, ALHAMBRA

By GUY PRICE

ORDINARILY a pair of queens isn't any hand to go around bragging about; that I learned to my great financial discomfiture long ago; but there would be quite some personal satisfaction to hold the hands of "A Pair of Queens" at the Morosco theater this week.

Annette Kellermann in "A Daughter of the Gods" at Clune's Auditorium

Lewis and Otto Hauerback are given the credit on the program) could make it. Its situations remind one of a crazy-quilt, the characters bobbing up everywhere at the same time, but this only adds to the amusement. The appearance of every player is the signal for a burst of applause. As far as the story goes, it is a case of fooling the audience until the final few minutes of play, the real secret of the uproar then being cleared up and the curtain permitted to drop with everybody "wise" and happy.

CASTORIA For Infants and Children In Use For Over 30 Years Always bears the Signature of J. C. Watson used largely in the plot, the part is nothing more than a "bit," but Miss McNamara makes it so artistic and interprets it so cleverly that it is lifted into almost stellar ranks. Another instance is the boob detective, played by Richard Dix. No one ever suspected that Mr. Dix could play a character with so much polish and with so much naturalness until yesterday afternoon; then all were convinced. His Steve Haines is one of the finest characterizations I have ever seen at the Morosco, or anywhere, for that matter. The lead are well taken care of by Ramsey Wallace, Warner Baxter and Sue MacManamy. James Corrigan's interpretation of a minion of the law is keenly characteristic and Lola May as the female sleuth in disguise, Audell Higgins as the "girl with a Bertillon record and Joseph Eggerton as a sergeant are convincing.

ALHAMBRA A "good little devil" in the form of a sprite of a girl romps away with your heart at Miller's Alhambra this week. And where there is a "wild woman" there always is a man who has the taming art down to a science. In this instance, June Caprice, the vivacious Fox screen star, is the "wild woman" and Frank Morgan, good-looking leading man of the same film brand, is the male "tamer." The story—it is titled "A Child of the Wild"—has to do with a young man, nameless, shoeless, tattered and untamed girl who keeps the mountain community in which she lives on edge from noon till night; it isn't so much what she does that continually has the natives in boiling water as it is what she might do and is expected to do. A typical child of the outdoors, June says and does things that shock and horrify the neighbors into a fit of frenzy and she continues her troublous ways until a young school teacher in the person of Mr. Morgan enters upon the scene and his calm and soothing influence stretches out and overcomes her. Until this juncture in the plot is reached June is a regular tornado, but now she is a balmy spring breeze, lovable, refreshing and easily controlled. The contrast is delightful and Miss Caprice goes from the one to the other quite naturally and executes the change in a most fascinating manner. The picture is interesting and entertaining to a very high degree; you cannot help but like it. There are moments when the dramatic tenacity is overpowering and again there are comedy situations that wring hearty laughs from the audience. "Kidding Sisters" is a comedy masterpiece from the studios of Al Christie. Billie Rhodes is the star. If you fall to enjoy this mirth-provoker, there is work for the doctor and you are the prospective victim.

ing at the Superba, is one of the best picture features selected by Manager Collier since he took hold of that popular screen. It was shown for the first time in Los Angeles yesterday. Dealing with a vital subject—prison reform—the film propounds a query and then, as though to safeguard against any doubt in the minds of the patrons, answers it. The scenes in the film are tensely dramatic, powerfully executed and staged with stage detail that is bound to win admiration. Eddie portrays the leading feminine role and after witnessing her work one is stumped to find a flagrant flaw. She has your sympathy and respect at all times. The photodrama is one of the most human and vital efforts that has come from the studios in many months. Added features are the International master serial "Paris in the Spring" in which Mrs. Vernon Castle continues to thrill and entertain, and delightfully interesting educational news weekly of the Hearst-Pathé company.

Other Reviews CLUNE'S BROADWAY Probably most writers dealing with the theme of a stage-struck girl cruelly victimized by a fake employment agency would have treated it seriously. In "Stage Struck," which opened yesterday at Clune's Broadway, its author, Roy Somerville, has not neglected its dramatic and pathetic aspects, but has cleverly garbed them in the dress of broad comedy. Much of this comedy—and some of it is highly amusing—is introduced by means of sub-titles that are really gems of spicy word picturing, and in themselves tell a clever story. On its serious side "Stage Struck" is a telling expose of the crooked game played by so-called schools of acting that are utterly heartless in their quest of the dollar at the expense of the credulous. The play is not put forward as a preaching, but no one can escape its lesson if it is realized that the typical conditions that are based on actual conditions that are pitifully true to life. Every day, and right here, young girls are being exploited just as Ruth Colby is in "Stage Struck." Dorothy Gish, who plays the part of this victimized girl, is admirably fitted for it. Spottiswoode Aitken makes the most of a large latitude given by the author in the part of an eccentric judge of dubious bent, who injects many hearty laughs into the action. Jennie Lee, a character actress who never fails to make a notable contribution to a cast, is another principal. Fred Warren, admirable as leading man, and Kate Toncray is a convincing matron.

GARRICK William S. Hart, House Peters and Enid Markey, three of the most popular screen stars before the public, are seen in "Between Men," the remarkable drama of the east and west, which is being shown at Clune's this week. For complexity of plot, thrilling situations and novel developments, "Between Men" has seldom been equaled. It is the old story of two men in love with the same girl, and the determined attempts of each to win her afford Hart and House Peters opportunity for some splendid acting. There are some "right scenes" in the play, which, for genuine hair-raising realism, "Kidding Sisters" has heretofore seen on the screen. In addition to the main attraction at the Garrick, there is being shown one of those inimitable Mutt and Jeff cartoons and a sparkling Christie comedy.

SYMPHONY Frances Nelson, the dazzling young Metro star, has the leading role in "One of Many," the gripping personal drama at the Symphony this week. The other attraction on the bill is "The Dragon's Den," the sixth episode of "The Great Secret," in which Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne are co-starred. "One of Many" is a powerful modern drama, written and directed by William Christy Cabanne, in which the pitfalls that beset the path of young girls who are thrown on their own resources to make a living are tellingly depicted. In the role of a little maidservant girl who sacrifices herself in order to provide a living for herself and her mother, Miss Nelson does some really splendid acting, ably supported by Niles Welch, one of the most popular young leading men of the screen. In "The Dragon's Den," Bushman and Miss Bayne have all sorts of exciting adventures.

Facts and Fables of the Foyer—By Guy Price

Jean Hayes, who is a song writer, Friar and only recently left the local scenario colony, tells this one: Old Confederate colonel came into coach at Memphis, and was immediately accosted by a pretty girl in the front seat. "How do, Uncle John?" chirped the young lady. "How do? And how is Aunt Mary?" The colonel toyed with his whiskers contemptuously for a moment, and then replied: "Ah ain't feelin' a per' mahself" but 'th' last time Ah see Aunt Mary she was complainin' of feelin' some bettah."

Charles Alvin, author of "Hello Hawaii" is to write a musical war play—whatever that is. Katherine Melville, the Hollywood girl who was at the Pantages last week, and is a very keen student of all that goes to make up the work of the stage. She is so interested in her new life that she even reads the serials by renowned actresses on how to be a beautiful, cook, etc.

THE CHILD'S APPEAL every year from pneumonia, gripple, consumption, kidney, liver, heart trouble, etc. The real and true cause which started their disease was nothing more nor less than the weakened condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood. On account of the peculiar nature of iron, which is the most essential element in the body, she requires iron much more than man to help make up for the loss. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much of what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength, endurance, and direct serious blood with iron before he went into the affray; while many another has gone down in the iron-deficient struggle for the lack of iron.

Theater Notes "A Daughter of the Gods," which will be shown today for the first time in this part of the country at Clune's Auditorium, is the William Fox million-dollar picture beautiful. It is reported to be the most costly film ever produced, and in one scene employed more than 21,000 persons. With one exception, a complete new bill will be seen at the Orpheum, beginning this afternoon. The new headliners are George Nash, Julia Hay and company, in a clever sketch, "The Unexpected," and Mme. Chilson-Ohrman, the noted prima donna, in a new one.

German Destroyers Battle British in North Sea

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—If the wishes of President Wilson are granted, congress will at once give him full authority to act in any event short of actual war, will arrange funds and guns to arm American merchant ships, will provide money for national insurance of United States vessels that enter the Ger-

It is expected the army and navy will be greatly increased as result of President's new message today.

Carlson had been subject to illness which at times caused him to faint. Sunday afternoon he fell through the doorway of his room face downward in a pool of water not more than two inches in depth. He was dead when his employer found him. The police were notified and the body removed to a San Pedro undertaking establishment. Carlson had no known relatives in California.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—The 18,000-ton Cunard Laconia, flying the British flag, bound from New York for Liverpool with passengers, including a number of Americans, has been torpedoed and sunk off the Irish coast, according to official reports reaching the Cunard line offices here this afternoon.

By International News Service LONDON, Feb. 26.—The English port cities of Margate and Broadstairs were shelled by a German destroyer, with the loss of two lives, it was announced in the house of commons this afternoon by Sir Edward Carson, first lord of the admiralty. A woman and a child were killed and two children were wounded.

The Laconia carried fifty-three first cabin passengers, of which six were Americans. It also carried a number of second cabin passengers.

Announcement was also made later that part of the German destroyer fleet came out of the Kiel canal and gave battle to British destroyers in the channel. The amount of damage is not known.

Diamonds and other jewels given to Elbert de Marcus by a wealthy society woman are expected to lead to the arrest of de Marcus's slayer. De Marcus, a Glendale jitney bus driver, was found dead in his machine last Tuesday. The slayer was the husband of a woman of social prominence, in the opinion of deputy sheriffs today.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—An unplanned but well enforced nationwide boycott by consumers already is reducing the prices of foodstuffs. This is in spite of the fact that no action has yet been taken against speculators by state or federal authorities. Senator Borah of Idaho today introduced a resolution to appropriate $5,000,000 for sufferers from the high cost of food. The resolution went over until tomorrow at Senator Borah's request.

Whether this was an American or not is not known.

It is supposed that part of this German squadron bombarded the British ports of Margate and Broadstairs.

Reports reaching the department of agriculture today indicate that potatoes and onions, leaders in the "skyward movement," are quoted in the larger cities today at a lower figure than last Wednesday, when the situation became most acute.

The Americans aboard were Floyd P. Gibbons, Mrs. F. G. Harris, New York; A. G. Kirby, Bainbridge, N. Y.; Rev. Joseph Waring, New York; Miss Phyllis Barker, New York; Mrs. Mary E. and Elizabeth Coey, Chicago.

The total number of passengers carried on the giant liner was placed this afternoon at 75. The crew numbered 216.

It also is reported by the agents of the department that the market everywhere has absolutely fallen flat as a result of the general understanding by the consumers. In consequence many wholesalers, loaded to the guards with foodstuffs of all sorts which they have been hoarding for higher prices, are said to be anxious to unload before spring foodstuffs are in sight from the south and the Pacific coast.

The big liner was torpedoed last night at almost the same point where the Lusitania was sunk. Reports received here say the ship was sunk without warning.

The Germans are still retreating methodically, fighting the British strongly until heavy British artillery comes up and then retreating.

It was stated, however, that the relief was not of a permanent nature and that it will in no way check the operations of the department of justice.

Rescue survivors immediately after the ship was torpedoed British patrol boats arrived and picked up the survivors who had taken to small boats.

From the nature of the retreat it is evident that the Germans have moved back their heavy artillery and are unable to combat the big guns of the British.

It was stated, however, that the relief was not of a permanent nature and that it will in no way check the operations of the department of justice.

The vessel went down about eight minutes after it was hit by the torpedo.

The fall of Bapaume, the keystone of the present German line on the Somme front, seems imminent. The town has been shelled by British guns until it is a mass of ruins.

It was stated, however, that the relief was not of a permanent nature and that it will in no way check the operations of the department of justice.

Apparently the first that was known of the vicinity of a submarine was a flash of white water as a torpedo shot toward the ship. There was no panic aboard as every preparation had been made for the emergency and every passenger had been assigned to a place in the small boats.

Petit Miramont, Pys and Serre, the towns taken by the British yesterday, had been crushed flat by the British cannonade. In Serre not a single house or a single tree was left standing. The German troops that remained in the town to the end had lived in caves and some of those captured.

It was stated, however, that the relief was not of a permanent nature and that it will in no way check the operations of the department of justice.

With G. A. Reimers, escrow officer for the Title Guarantee and Trust company, as the first witness, the county grand jury began today the probe of the charges of misconduct in office made against Martin Betkouski, president of the city council, in connection with the Los Angeles Union Terminal company deal.

Betskouski was declared to have made a profit of $50,000 by obtaining options on property which afterward was sold to the terminal company. The terminal deal was made possible because of the vacation by the council of three streets in the district affected.

It was alleged that Betkouski had advanced information of the plans of the terminal company, and that he profited by reason of the vacation of the streets in question.

Reimers was supposed to have testified relative to the real estate transaction which was handled through his firm.

The next witness called was Paul Shoup, president of the Pacific Electric. The Pacific Electric was believed to be back of the terminal project and Shoup was said to have some knowledge of the manner in which the property was acquired and streets vacated.

Other witnesses waiting to be called were Charles L. Wilde, city clerk, who brought with him the council minutes showing the record of the street vacations; Gerald Fitzgerald, secretary of the Union Terminal company; Ben Johnson, president of the same concern, and G. A. Lawrence of the Western Union Telegraph company.

Lawrence was expected to testify relative to telegrams which passed between the terminal officials and city officials during the negotiations for the property.

Members of the council, including Wright and Betkouski and former Councilman Topham, were subpoenaed, but will be notified to appear when needed.

What Wilson Said

President Wilson went before a joint session of congress today and asked that full power be given him to cope with the German crisis in any eventuality short of actual war. Here are some of the points he made: That diplomatic means have failed to safeguard American interests in the face of the German ruthless submarine war policy. That the only course now left to the United States is to adopt "armed neutrality." But the President again insisted that war with this nation can come "only through wilful acts and aggressions of others." He specially asked the authority to arm American merchant vessels for their own protection. He asked "sufficient credit" to insure adequate means of pro-

WILSON TELLS PLANS TO DEFEND U. S. HONOR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—After a lengthy conference with Senator Stone, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, President Wilson went before congress this afternoon and outlined his policy in the German submarine war crisis. It is known that Mr. Wilson had not intended to take this step until later in the week, but Senator Stone told him that congress was desirous of being "fully informed" of the exact situation and that it was not considered to the best interests for "groping in the dark" to continue. This caused President Wilson to alter his plans, and he decided to call a joint session of congress today. When the news of the call reached the capitol there was an excitement. Not an inkling of the full purport of the President's message was allowed to gain publicity in advance of his address. Senator Stone, who knew what Mr. Wilson was to say, put off all inquiries with this statement: "The President will be here in a little while and will say it himself." Mr. Wilson left the White House at 12:47 and reached the capitol at 12:54. News of the President's visit was received gravely but calmly at the capitol after the first flash of excitement. It had been expected, and although senators and representatives realized its momentous meaning, the LEGISLATORS ASK FOR FOOD PROBE SACRAMENTO, Feb. 26.—The state legislature was asked today to immediately bring about an investigation of the food conditions in the state and to incorse President Wilson's action in severing diplomatic relations with Germany and pledging the support of the state in any action which he may pursue to uphold the rights and dignity of the nation. In both houses of the legislature shortly after they had convened at 12 o'clock resolutions were introduced on these two subjects which today are uppermost in the affairs of the nation. NEW PETITION IN 5 CENT FARE CASE SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—The city of Los Angeles has filed with the railroad commission a petition for a rehearing of the commission's decision of January 29 last, dismissing the requests of the city for a five cent fare within the municipal limits.

...of the eastern Mediterranean or to conduct those operations regarding restrictions of international law practice without regard to any considerations of humanity, even, which might interfere with their object.

GIVES WARNING

"This in itself might accomplish, in effect, what the new German submarine orders were meant to accomplish, so far as we are concerned. We can only say, therefore, that the overt act which I have ventured to hope the German commanders would in fact avoid, has not occurred.

HOW WAR MAY COME

"I hope that I need give no further proofs and assurances than I have already given throughout nearly three years of anxious patience, that I am the friend of peace and mean to preserve it for America so long as I am able.

WANTS AUTHORITY

"I cannot in such circumstances be unmindful of the fact that the expiration of the present congress is immediately at hand by constitutional limitation and that it would in all likelihood require an unusual length of time to assemble and organize the congress which is to succeed it. I feel that I ought in view of that fact to obtain from you full and immediate assurance of the authority which I may need at any moment to exercise.

CASE OF LAW

"The case of the Law, which was carrying lemon box staves to Palermo, disclosed a ruthlessness of method which deserves grave condemnation, but was accompanied by no circumstances which might not have been expected at any time in connection with the use of the submarine against the merchantmen, as the German government has used it.

Acts to Enlighten Congress

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Before announcement was made that he would address congress today, President Wilson discussed the entire legislative situation with Senator Stone of Missouri, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations.

Senator Stone told the President that both houses of congress felt that the members should be taken fully into the confidence of the administration. They were "tired of groping in the dark," the senator said, and the President at once decided to take action to clear up all matters in doubt and not wait until later in the week, as he previously had planned.

the unwarranted infringements they are suffering at the hands of Germany, there may be no recourse but armed neutrality, which we shall know how to maintain and for which there is abundant American precedent.

"It is devoutly to be hoped that it will not be necessary to put armed forces anywhere into action. The American people do not desire it, and our desire is not different from theirs. I am sure that they will understand the spirit in which I am now acting, the purpose I hold nearest my heart, and would wish to exhibit in anything I do.

RIGHTS OF HUMANITY

"I am thinking of those rights of humanity without which there is no civilization. My theme is of those great principles of compassion and protection which mankind has sought to throw about human lives, the lives of non-combatants, the lives of men who are peacefully at work keeping the industrial processes of the world quick and vital, the lives of women and children and of those who supply the labor which ministers to their sustenance.

TRAIN RESERVES TO BE OFFICERS IS L. A. PLAN

Practical Preparedness Movement Is Taking Shape Rapidly in City

A "practical preparedness" movement has been launched in Los Angeles to organize the recruits who attended the Monterey training camp into a permanent military body.

The new organization, which will be named the "Los Angeles Officers Reserve Training Corps," is the idea of a number of the local men who attended the training camp.

Already several petitions have been circulated to obtain the signatures of those who endorse the idea and are ready to enlist at the organization meeting.

E. L. Doherty, Jr., H. S. McKee and Shirley Spaulding are among the well-known men of the city who are interested in the "practical preparedness" movement.

KEEP UP GOOD WORK

The object of the organization will be to train Los Angeles men for commissions in the United States army reserves, and also to continue the training received at the training camp throughout the year.

The new organization will be a battalion of four companies. It is planned that there will be an engineering company, a signal corps company, an infantry company and possibly a field artillery corps.

At least 400 men will be enlisted for the organization. The officers will be selected by examination by a board of regular army officers, thus giving every man a chance and doing away with any suggestion of favoritism.

FOSTER PATRIOTIC SPIRIT

The Los Angeles Officers Reserve Training Corps, it is planned, will work in conjunction with the Southern California Training Camp association to foster the spirit of patriotism, demonstrate advocacy of preparedness and practical military training.

Those who are behind the movement are planning the erection of an armory and drill grounds for their own use, and point out that the organization is in no way connected with the national guard.

"It is for those men who desire a military training, but who can't find time for the duties of the national guard," they say. "It will not be limited to men who attended the training camp, but will be open to all."

L. A. BUSINESS MAN GOES TO NEW FIELD

J. M. Kemp, advertising and sales manager of Jacoby's and one of the best known dry goods men in the city, leaves Los Angeles on the Lark this evening for San Francisco, whence he will go to Portland to take over a new position with one of the largest dry goods firms on the coast.

The new position is that of advertising and sales manager of the Lipman & Wolfe company, Portland, Ore. While Mr. Kemp expressed keen regret at leaving Los Angeles, where he has made his home for ten years, the new work embraces unusually large opportunities.

Mrs. Kemp and the three small daughters of the family will accompany him to Portland and the family will make its home there.

Mr. Kemp has been connected with Jacoby Brothers for four years and has become known as a leading spirit among the most enterprising younger men of the city.

OSBORNE FAVORS MILITARY TRAINING

The committee appointed at the meeting in Shrine auditorium yesterday to draft resolutions to be sent to the President, the president of the senate, the speaker of the house and the California delegation in congress, was scheduled to meet today. This committee is composed of Max Socha, Judge White, J. E. Engeldrum, Adolph Danziger and Benno Brink.

Congressman-elect Capt. H. Z. Osborne presided at the meeting and declared that he was highly in favor of universal military training and military preparedness. He said that he was not for peace at any price and that he stood for upholding the national honor and integrity. Mr. Engeldrum of Long Beach assailed President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing, and introduced a resolution calling on Lansing, Attorney General Gregory and Secretary of the Interior Lane to resign.

Through the insistence of Chairman Osborne the resolution was not put to a vote. Mr. Socha in a speech upheld the peace policy of William Jennings Bryan and appealed for Americans to keep out of the war zone.

Nazarene Pastor Now Without Flock

There was much speculation today as to future developments in the case of the congregation and pastor of the University Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene, Pasadena, which was yesterday declared disorganized by the Rev. Howard Eckels, superintendent of that district. Rev. Eckels, in his letter declaring the church disorganized, asserted that "intolerable conditions" within the church caused his action. The pastor, Rev. Seth G. Rees, is thus left without a pastorate.

New Styles Kept Secret, but Will Rival Last Year's

An unusual amount of interest was manifested today in the announcement that the fourteenth annual spring fashion show at Los Angeles will be held on Thursday and Friday of this week.

The interest is inspired by the fact that not only has the public been in doubt as to whether there would be a spring show, but the new styles have been kept a secret. Even the most persistent and inquisitive shopper has but little idea of what truly constitutes the fashions of the coming spring season, and Milady will rush to the style exhibit with an unusually fresh eagerness.

There will be no window display or promenade on the evening before the fashion show as the merchants believe the unveiling should take place at the stores this morning.

The Men Who Know Most About the Comedy of Life

THE probate judge, or surrogate, as he is called in some states, is a wise man. Wisdom is thrust upon him. He is a daily spectator to the comedy of life and death.

Before him is enacted a succession of plays—all deep tragedies to those who take part in them, but really humorous to the observing man.

Here is brought the great will contest of the man who denied himself throughout his life to amass a few million dollars. Perhaps he made his money by earnest effort. Perhaps he was an enlightened larcenist, who knew how to steal without getting caught at it. Perhaps it came to him by inheritance. But it is all one to the people who come to the surrogate's court to fight for it.

Suppose the man who has gone was a great captain of industry, whose word decided the destinies of thousands of men and hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Suppose he was a man who in his lifetime was what is called "a hard-headed business man," devoid of sentiment, flightiness or any tendency to eccentricity.

But now he is dead. And here come the heirs, or the pretending heirs, each with his corps of psychologists and alienists.

And they go to the witness stand, one by one, each swearing on his solemn word that the departed was full of foolishness of all sorts, that he had been acting queerly for many years and that he could not possibly have been in his right mind when he drew the will.

It is a queer picture that is presented to the probate judge.

He can see the man whose money he is now about to dispose of, see him toiling eighteen or twenty hours a day to pile up great sums of money when all he needs for his protection is a competence.

He can see him gradually grow weak under the struggle. Once he made his money serve him. Later his money made him serve it.

And through his long days and nights of labor he had a vision of doing good, of conferring vast benefits on those who were to come after him.

And here, before the court, are the children, or relatives or friends that the poor toiling rich man hoped to benefit, greedily fighting over his financial remains, as wolves fight over the carcass of one of their pack which has fallen in the hunt.

Naturally all men want to attain a competence. Only by that means can they enjoy anything like independence.

But the wise man spends his own money rather than leaving it to a surrogate's court to dispose of. He gives it in his lifetime to those whom he means to have it.

He uses the brains that have enabled him to get it to aid in its disposal. He can, while he is alive, see that it goes to schools and charities, to libraries, wherever he desires it to go.

And when he does this he knows that there will be no fighting over him after he is dead, no perjury about his mental condition, no relatives at each other's throats because a niece got a block of bank stock that a nephew felt should have been given to him by any uncle in his right mind.

Go to the probate court some time and listen to the testimony. It would be tragic if it were not amusing.

Listen to the arguments of the lawyers, to the evidence of the experts.

Here is a moving picture of life—all of its struggles and trials, and here you will learn just how much the mad struggle for wealth, simply for its own sake, amounts to.

Don't Let Your Health Follow the Bankroll

SEVERAL years ago Soandso did you out of your share in a big business transaction. You lost heavily, and you have never forgiven him, nor forgotten the circumstances, even to the smallest detail.

Today you were feeling tiptop till his name was mentioned and now so far as you are concerned the sun has not shone since.

It is midwinter, but you say you are "hot under the collar" at the mention of that man's name, and so, ever since you were reminded this morning you have thundered your dictation at the poor little unoffending stenographer; you have pounded the desk with every command for your other subordinates and snapped at your own little girl over the phone.

Some day the doctor will look at you and shake his head and say, "high blood pressure—it must be a long rest." You shudder.

Do you want to acknowledge that that enemy of yours has ruined your health as well as taken your money?

Then you had better practice self-control. Do as the little boy did who ignored the mean taunts of an older child. "I am not big like papa," said he, "and papa isn't here so I'll have to let God take care of him."

Spend your time in forgetting the mean things, the annoying things and in gaining health for honest labor.

THE BIGGER THE MAN THE CLEANER THE DESK

The busy man, the man who really does things, always has time to see a worthy business caller. The little fussy fellow who runs around in circles and seldom does much never has time for anything. This fussy little man usually has a desk all littered up with junk. If he tries to locate any one paper on it he loses from three minutes to a half hour. The man who does things keeps his work up to the minute. Keep your desk and your brain free from litter.

HOW DO THEY DO IT?

Most Important Bills of 2500 Introduced in Legislature

BY HARRY A. CHAMBERLIN State Senator and Well Known Attorney of Los Angeles

This is the ninth of a series of articles written exclusively for The Evening Herald by Harry A. Chamberlin, member of the state senate from Los Angeles, discussing and explaining the more important measures before the present session of the California legislature, making it possible for the general public readily to familiarize themselves with proposed legislation.

OF prime importance to the agriculturists of the state are the bills before the present legislature relating to the standardization of the quality and packing of fruits. The leading measures on this subject are the bills which emanated from the California Fruit Growers' convention, senate bill No. 1110 and assembly bill No. 212.

The most important change proposed in the present state fruit standardization law is to make it applicable to citrus fruits and to extend its jurisdiction to shipments within the state as well as outside the state. (The present law applies only to deciduous fruits shipped out of the state.)

Another bill would prohibit the use of any fruit box, crate or container a second time without its being first sterilized. It would not apply to boxes used in packing fruit from the fields to packing houses.

An appropriation of $250,000 is asked for the establishment of a branch experimental station for fruits and nuts, while another measure if passed would require the University of California to conduct experiments in drying, canning and preserving fruits and the handling, preparation and manufacture of fruit products and by-products.

Accurate weights and measures in the baling of hay are provided for in Senate bill No. 882, allowing a deficiency in marked weight of not more than five pounds a bale.

The Pure Milk act, passed at the session two years ago, regulating the sale of milk and manufacture of milk products, has evidently not worked out as well as it was thought it would, for a bill has been introduced seeking the repeal of the act. Another bill adds a number of amendments to the Pure Milk act, making the provisions of the law more certain and exact and imposing additional restrictions.

There are four bills relating to the egg industry, all of which seek to protect the public against the sale and use of cold-storage eggs. One bill is directed against eggs imported from China by classifying eggs that have been in transit thirty-one days or more as "storage" eggs and prohibiting their sale as "fresh" eggs.

Innumerable bills in both houses relate to livestock, hides and brands, and the slaughter of heifers less than three years old.

Senate bill No. 1265, known as the Leasing bill, would enable the surveyor general to lease approximately 650,000 acres of land now idle for grazing purposes. The leases would be limited to a period of ten years and the money derived from such leases would go into the state school fund.

Bills dealing with the subject of reclamation, flood control and drainage are numerous and uninteresting except to that part of the state to which each relates. The important bills on these subjects embody the recommendations of the Water Problems conference and deal principally with the Sacramento and San Joaquin Drainage districts. The creation of a State Board of Flood Control with state-wide jurisdiction to take over the present duties and powers of the present State Reclamation Board is one of the plans suggested.

Popping the Question

By S. LEE FRAZIER

NO young man ever asked the girl of his choice the vital question just as he figured he would. No sort of training will fit a man for that kind of a job. It is one of the undertakings that positively refuses to be worked out according to rule. It is a sad, sweet business that will not conform to regulations or systems.

The young man of today is the same silly guy he was a thousand years ago, and will be a thousand years hence.

In a general way a man can follow a mapped-out line of action, but no young fellow can face the girl he really loves when the fateful moment arrives and get away with what he had in mind.

Instead of the cool young man, debonaire, self-possessed and business-like, he is instantly transformed into a blithering, blubbering idiot—a dithering, doddering, dough-faced dunce—a silly, simpering, simple Simon—a mumbling, muttering "nut"—a batty, natty "nut."

The sweetest picture, we can imagine, is that of a young man of character and good intentions, hopelessly entangled in the messes of love, paying court to a winsome, wholesome maid. When it comes to the question of all questions, it is "bashful boy and girl so coy."

Popping the question is no joke, believe me, but a very serious business, on which our future so much depends.

No man has a right to ask a girl to marry him unless he loves her and no girl has a right to say yes unless that love is reciprocated.

Marrying for money, position, convenience, or spite, is what is choking our divorce courts at the present time.

There can be no happiness in wedlock, without mutual love, and there can be no real home without mutual love, and a country that positively refuses to be worked out according to rule. It is a sad, sweet business that will not conform to regulations or systems.

What's the matter of folks anyway? Have we come to regard the marriage tie as a simple bow-knot with the contracting parties clutching wildly at the loose ends of the string that they may release the bonds, from which there should be no release, excepting for the gravest.

Evidently too many men are making a farce of marriage, and not only the men.

Divorces are sought for the most trivial things and no doubt our courts are altogether too lenient in granting separations.

If our young people married for love, divorces would be almost unheard of, and until hearts do the proposing and accepting, this miserable divorce business will continue to menace us with its nasty processes that are slowly but surely undermining the home.

Observation leads us to the conviction that men are more generally to blame for the disrupted home than women. Women are more trusting, more religious, more faithful, more forbearing, more forgiving.

However, women are not always blameless. Style, extravagance, affluence, neglect of home and "slopping-down," are some of their sins in this regard.

Love, mutual respect, family pride, the spirit of compromise, mutual concessions, fairness and fidelity will solve the problem of divorce.

Shafts of Sunshine

When written covenants are only so many "scraps of paper," a personal word of honor may be only a drift of fog.

Buy your wife a necklace of onions for her birthday.

Los Angeles manufacturer says he wishes he had a machine to blow up shells. He runs a peanut butter factory.

Probably Satan could have found some girl willing to marry to reform him if he had tried.

Unnatural history—The shad casts no shadow.

Will some one please write us to inquire what is the Mexican national flower, so that we answer: Bullrushes.

Next to having a question asked you that you cannot answer, the toughest thing in life is knowing the answer to a perfectly good question that nobody asks.

The most valuable corner lot—a lot of potatoes.

Do You Know That

Among the creatures that weep the most easily are the ruminants. All hunters know that the stag weeps, and it is asserted that the bear weeps when severely wounded. The giraffe is not less sensitive and regards with tearful eyes the hunter who has wounded it.

Why Dicky Said "You're the Original Kill-Joy"

I HAVE never seen Dicky quite so taken aback as he was when the militant, middle-aged woman upon the Hudson river boat administered the rebuke to him about his impatience at the crowd before the dining room door.

affairs by anyone not directly concerned. But Dicky's face would have afforded amusement to the most confirmed misanthrope. Astonishment at the wayward words, indignation at evidently what he considered her effrontery, struggled in his face with the chagrin I knew he felt at having me find out that my stay in the dressing room was not responsible for our delay at luncheon.

In the shifting of the crowd we had not noticed that our aggressive friend, with her companions, were right in front of us. I heard her high-pitched, rasping voice exhorting with the head waiter, standing near the door, whose roving eyes I knew had seen Dicky's hand go into his pocket.

I think Dicky's natural eagerness to get a table was intensified by his desire to get even with the woman who had rebuked him. At any rate, at the first sound of her voice I saw him hastily substitute another bill for the one he had first drawn out. Then he held the second one, with just its denomination showing between his fingers, before the glistening eyes of the head waiter.

"Scuse me, Missis, but I can't give you that table now; dat table is promised to dis gentleman right behind you." "Right this way, Mr. Jones, you're table just ready for you."

the unlucky bag which had been the innocent cause of his irritation with me over our delayed luncheon. "The dusky waiter—Dicky always calls every waiter George—stooped for the bag, and I saw him thrust it carelessly under a serving table some distance away.

And to this determination I adhered, even when a few minutes later I saw the dusky "George" place under the serving table by the side of our bag another very like it, belonging to the aggressive woman with whom Dicky had already clashed twice.

In Our Wonderful World

A medical authority states that the muscles, in common with all organs of the human body, have their periods of development and decline, our physical strength increasing up to a certain age and then decreasing. Tests of the strength of several thousand individuals have been made and the following figures are given as the averages derived from such tests

265 pounds. At the expiration of the thirty-first year the strength begins to decline, very gradually at first. By the fortieth year it has decreased eight pounds, and such diminution continues at a slightly increasing rate until the fiftieth year is reached, when the figure is 330 pounds. Subsequent to this period the strength falls more and more rapidly, until the weakness of old age is reached. It is found impossible to obtain trustworthy statistics after the fiftieth year.

JOHNSON TO HOLD ON AS GOV., BELIEF IRE AROUSED BY CONDEMNATION OF REPUBLICAN LEGISLATORS AT BANQUET

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 26.—Speculation as to when Governor Johnson will resign is being generally indulged in here and the opinion prevails that the governor will hold his place indefinitely, possibly until the calling of the next session of congress, when he moves to Washington to begin his senatorial duties.

FACTS FABLES FOYER

Jean Havez, who is a song writer, Friar and only recently left the local scenario colony, tells this one: An old Confederate colonel came into a coach at Memphis, and was immediately accosted by a pretty girl in the front seat.

W. White, veteran drama critic of Denver, the theatrical profession lost one of its trust and staunchest friends. F. W. W. had devoted his pen to writing about the theater for many years and was one of the best known reviewers west of Chicago.

Louis Bennison, who deserted the coast guards for the other Broadway, seems to have captured it by his work in "Johnny Get Your Gun." If newspaper reports are to be believed, the colonel toyed with his whiskers contemptively for a moment, and then replied: "Ah ain't feelin' so pert mah-seh, but th' las' time Ah see Aunt Mary she was complainin' of feelin' some bettah."

Charles Alphin, author of "Hello Hawaii," is to write a musical war play—whatever that is. Katherine Melville, the Hollywood girl, was at the Pantages last week, and is a very keen student of all that goes to make up the work of the stage.

A message from Roscoe Arbuckle came today. It was dated Salt Lake and read: "Big reception at depot. Hundreds of Mormon ladies turned out to greet Charlie Pike, who spoke to each in tender tones and called them by their first names."

It has been "Papa" Yost since yesterday, when a 10-pound baby boy arrived at the Glendale home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Jr. Mr. Yost had planned to christen the new arrival "Robert Majestic Morosco Burbank M. Yost," but the maternal side of the family protested vigorously and finally succeeded in having the name deleted all theatrical reference.

FRED MITCHELL

OFFICIAL PACIFIC COAST LEAGUE PLAYING SCHEDULE FOR THE SEASON OF 1917

BOOSTS LOCAL MANAGERS

Fred Mitchell, manager of the Chicago Cubs, is a great admirer of Frank Chance and George Stovall.

By FRED MITCHELL. With the start of our spring training in Southern California I want to impress the fans with the fact that I would rather have my club here for its early work than any other place in the country.

There are three reasons for this. First, the grand Southern California climate; second, the most perfect field I ever saw for spring training work, and third, we will play teams handled by two men who still ought to be managing clubs in the majors—Frank Chance and George Stovall.

I doubt if the Southern California fans quite appreciate the class of the two men at the head of the Los Angeles and Vernon clubs. Certainly no two teams in any AA league ever were represented by two such men and their presence on the Pacific coast should do wonders to place the league on the highest plane it is possible for a AA league to attain.

By sending my men against the Angels I will know that they will be meeting a club that will use regular big league stuff against us. Chance's club is made up of men who are far superior to the average run of minor league players. We will get the same kind of high competition we would receive if we were playing any major league club.

The same holds true when we go against Stovall's club. He will have them playing big league baseball against us and my first squad will certainly get big benefits from their stay in Southern California.

I doubt if the Los Angeles and Vernon fans realize just how much attention their clubs will attract in the east. Any club led by Chance or Stovall is bound to have a lot of personality, and fans in all parts of the country are going to be interested in Frank Chance and George Stovall and their ball clubs.

Southern California fans can consider themselves fortunate to have these two managers representing them.

There is only one reason that big league managers are glad to see Chance and Stovall in the Pacific league and that is the fact that they don't have them to back in the majors.

They're both scrappers and they will make the Coast league hum.

Watch them go to it.

The Men Who Know Most About
the Comedy of Life

THE probate judge, or surrogate, as he is called in some states, is a wise man. Wisdom is thrust upon him. He is a daily spectator to the comedy of life and death.

Before him is enacted a succession of plays—all deep tragedies to those who take part in them, but really humorous to the observing man.

Here is brought the great will contest of the man who denied himself throughout his life to amass a few million dollars. Perhaps he made his money by earnest effort. Perhaps he was an enlightened larcenist, who knew how to steal without getting caught at it. Perhaps it came to him by inheritance. But it is all one to the people who come to the surrogate's court to fight for it.

Suppose the man who has gone was a great captain of industry, whose word decided the destinies of thousands of men and hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Suppose he was a man who in his lifetime was what is called "a hard-headed business man," devoid of sentiment, flightiness or any tendency to eccentricity.

But now he is dead. And here come the heirs, or the pretending heirs, each with his corps of psychologists and alienists.

And they go to the witness stand, one by one, each swearing on his solemn word that the departed was full of foolishness of all sorts, that he had been acting queerly for many years and that he could not possibly have been in his right mind when he drew the will.

It is a queer picture that is presented to the probate judge.

He can see the man whose money he is now about to dispose of, see him toiling eighteen or twenty hours a day to pile up great sums of money when all he needs for his protection is a competence.

He can see him gradually grow weak under the struggle. Once he made his money serve him. Later his money made him serve it.

And through his long days and nights of labor he had a vision of doing good, of conferring vast benefits on those who were to come after him.

And here, before the court, are the children, or relatives or friends that the poor toiling rich man hoped to benefit, greedily fighting over his financial remains, as wolves fight over the carcass of one of their pack which has fallen in the hunt.

Naturally all men want to attain a competence. Only by that means can they enjoy anything like independence.

But the wise man spends his own money rather than leaving it to a surrogate's court to dispose of. He gives it in his lifetime to those whom he means to have it.

He uses the brains that have enabled him to get it to aid in its disposal. He can, while he is alive, see that it goes to schools and charities, to libraries, wherever he desires it to go.

And when he does this he knows that there will be no fighting over him after he is dead, no perjury about his mental condition, no relatives at each other's throats because a niece got a block of bank stock that a nephew felt should have been given to him by any uncle in his right mind.

Go to the probate court some time and listen to the testimony. It would be tragic if it were not amusing.

Listen to the arguments of the lawyers, to the evidence of the experts.

Here is a moving picture of life—all of its struggles and trials, and here you will learn just how much the mad struggle for wealth, simply for its own sake, amounts to.

Don't Let Your Health Follow
the Bankroll

SEVERAL years ago Soandso did you out of your share in a big business transaction. You lost heavily, and you have never forgiven him, nor forgotten the circumstances, even to the smallest detail.

Today you were feeling tiptop till his name was mentioned and now so far as you are concerned the sun has not shone since.

It is midwinter, but you say you are "hot under the collar" at the mention of that man's name, and so, ever since you were reminded this morning you have thundered your dictation at the poor little unoffending stenographer; you have pounded the desk with every command for your other subordinates and snapped at your own little girl over the phone.

Some day the doctor will look at you and shake his head and say, "high blood pressure—it must be a long rest." You shudder.

Do you want to acknowledge that that enemy of yours has ruined your health as well as taken your money?

Then you had better practice self-control. Do as the little boy did who ignored the mean taunts of an older child. "I am not big like papa," said he, "and papa isn't here so I'll have to let God take care of him."

Spend your time in forgetting the mean things, the annoying things and in gaining health for honest labor.

The busy man, the man who really does things, always has time to see a worthy business caller. The little fussy fellow who runs around in circles and seldom does much never has time for anything. This fussy little man usually has a desk all littered up with junk. If he tries to locate any one paper on it he loses from three minutes to a half hour. The man who does things keeps his work up to the minute. Keep your desk and your brain free from litter.

HOW DO THEY DO IT?

This is the ninth of a series of articles written exclusively for The Evening Herald by Harry A. Chamberlin, member of the state senate from Los Angeles, discussing and explaining the more important measures before the present session of the California legislature, making it possible for the general public readily to familiarize themselves with proposed legislation.

Of prime importance to the agriculturists of the state are the bills before the present legislature relating to the standardization of the quality and packing of fruits. The leading measures on this subject are the bills which emanated from the California Fruit Growers' convention, senate bill No. 1110 and assembly bill No. 212.

The most important change proposed in the present state fruit standardization law is to make it applicable to citrus fruits and to extend its jurisdiction to shipments within the state as well as outside the state. (The present law applies only to deciduous fruits shipped out of the state.)

Another bill would prohibit the use of any fruit box, crate or container a second time without its being first sterilized. It would not apply to boxes used in packing fruit from the fields to packing houses.

An appropriation of $250,000 is asked for the establishment of a branch experimental station for fruits and nuts, while another measure if passed would require the University of California to conduct experiments in drying, canning and preserving fruits and the handling, preparation and manufacture of fruit products and by-products.

Accurate weights and measures in the baling of hay are provided for in Senate bill No. 882, allowing a deficiency in marked weight of not more than five pounds a bale.

The Pure Milk act, passed at the session two years ago, regulating the sale of milk and manufacture of milk products, has evidently not worked out as well as it was thought it would, for a bill has been introduced seeking the repeal of the act. Another bill adds a number of amendments to the Pure Milk act, making the provisions of the law more certain and exact and imposing additional restrictions.

There are four bills relating to the egg industry, all of which seek to protect the public against the sale and use of cold-storage eggs. One bill is directed against eggs imported from China by classifying eggs that have been in transit thirty-one days or more as "storage" eggs and prohibiting their sale as "fresh" eggs.

Innumerable bills in both houses relate to livestock, hides and brands, and the slaughter of heifers less than three years old.

Senate bill No. 1205, known as the Leasing bill, would enable the surveyor general to lease approximately 650,000 acres of land now idle for grazing purposes. The leases would be limited to a period of ten years and the money derived from such leases would go into the state school fund.

Bills dealing with the subject of reclamation, flood control and drainage are numerous and uninteresting except to that part of the state to which each relates. The important bills on these subjects embody the recommendations of the Water Problems conference and deal principally with the Sacramento and San Joaquin Drainage districts. The creation of a State Board of Flood Control with state-wide jurisdiction to take over the present duties and powers of the present State Reclamation Board is one of the plans suggested.

Popping the Question
By S. LEE FRAZIER

NO young man ever asked the girl of his choice the vital question just as he figured he would. No sort of training will fit a man for that kind of a job.

It is one of the undertakings that positively refuses to be worked out according to rule. It is a sad, sweet business that will not conform to regulations or systems.

The young man of today is the same silly guy he was a thousand years ago, and will be a thousand years hence.

In a general way a man can follow a mapped-out line of action, but no young fellow can face the girl he really loves when the fateful moment arrives and get away with what he had in mind.

Instead of the cool young man, debonaire, self-possessed and business-like, he is instantly transformed into a blithering, blubbering idiot—a diddling, doddering, dough-faced dunc— a silly, simpering, simple Simon—a mumbling, muttering "mutt"—a batty, natty "nut."

The sweetest picture, we can imagine, is that of a young man of character and good intentions, hopelessly entangled in the messes of love, paying court to a winsome, wholesome maid. When it comes to the question of all questions, it is "bashful boy and girl so coy."

Popping the question is no joke, believe me, but a very serious business, on which our future so much depends.

No man has a right to ask a girl to marry him unless he loves her and no girl has a right to say yes unless that love is reciprocated.

Marrying for money, position, convenience, or spite, is what is choking our divorce courts at the present time.

There can be no happiness in wedlock, without mutual love, and there can be no real home without mutual love, and a country to be worth-while must have homes, and lots of them. The divorce evil is a menace to the home.

What's the matter of folks anyway? Have we come to regard the marriage tie as a simple bow-knot with the contracting parties clutching wildly at the loose ends of the string that they may release the bonds, from which there should be no release, excepting for the gravest.

Evidently too many men are making a game of marriage, and not only the men.

Divorces are sought for the most trivial things and no doubt our courts are altogether too lenient in granting separations.

If our young people married for love, divorces would be almost unheard of, and until hearts do the proposing and accepting, this miserable divorce business will continue to menace us with its nasty processes that are slowly but surely undermining the home.

Observation leads us to the conviction that men are more generally to blame for the disrupted home than women. Women are more trusting, more religious, more faithful, more forbearing, more forgiving.

However, women are not always blameless. Style, extravagance, affinities, neglect of home and "slopping-down," are some of their sins in this regard.

Love, mutual respect, family pride, the spirit of compromise, mutual concessions, fairness and fidelity will solve the problem of divorce.

Shafts of Sunshine

When written covenants are only so many "scraps of paper," a personal word of honor may be only a drift of fog.

Buy your wife a necklace of onions for her birthday.

Los Angeles manufacturer says he wishes he had a machine to blow up shells. He runs a peanut butter factory.

Probably Satan could have found some girl willing to marry to reform him if he had tried.

Unnatural history—The shad casts no shadow.

Will some one please write us to inquire what is the Mexican national flower, so that we answer: Bullrushes.

Next to having a question asked you that you cannot answer, the toughest thing in life is knowing the answer to a perfectly good question that nobody asks.

ON THE ITALIAN FRONT

Some of the soldiering devices in the Alps are among the wonders of the present war. The Italians have been very ingenious in their operations in this mountain country. This picture is by an International camera man.

The Secret Kingdom

A Greater Vitagraph Master Romance

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE and BASIL DICKEY

(Copyright, 1917, by Star Co. All Foreign Rights Reserved.)

THE SECRET KINGDOM Introduction In Alania, King Simon the Usurper, scheming to be succeeded only by his daughter, Julie, orders spies to catch him proofs of the death of "Lost Prince Philip," Alania's rightful King.

There is no sorrow, however great, that obliterates all else from the mourner's consciousness.

Of a sudden there crept to the surface of his thoughts that half-forgotten conversation which he had held with his father a month since in which Peter Barr, perhaps influenced by premonition, had spoken of the possibility of his death and had advised Philip that, in such event, he must leave Red Wing ranch and journey to Paris to deliver a certain sealed letter into the hands of one Juan Lopez.

Then this must be that same man! Involuntarily Philip lifted his face from his hands and looked across the bed.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX LET HIM CALL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I am 23 and employed in a brokerage house as telephone operator. Through business over the phone I got acquainted with a young man in another firm of the same kind.

Much as I object to cheap flirtations and the scraping of acquaintance between people who just chance to meet and pass, I feel that there is nothing in any way undignified about your affair.

"Going up on High?" Better try the low gear first. The human engine must have the right kind of fuel-food.

Purifying the water on your own premises is the safest plan, but avoid "filters" containing only a handful of charcoal tied up in a bag, which soon becomes a reeking mass of filth.

The Good Night Story

THE FAIRY KEEPER I DON'T suppose there was a thinking cap anywhere but in the fairy forest, and there any time you could find one under a thorn bush.

gnomes and goblins, and dear knows what "The thinking cap! The thinking cap!" screamed the keeper. "They've used up every thought."

up, staring. The fairy keeper shook the thinking cap and danced about in anger. "Let them fill the cap again with thoughts!" cried an elf. "It's the only way."

Household Hints

ONE pint of milk, two eggs, a quarter of a pound of lard, six ounces of powdered sugar, half an ounce of cream of tartar or cream powder, a quarter of an ounce of bicarbonate of soda, one pound and a quarter of flour, essence of lemon or vanilla. Sift the powders into the flour, beat up the eggs, add them to the milk, then add the essence and the sugar, stir it up, let it stand a little for the sugar to dissolve, then add the melted lard, also stir the flour in to make a nice smooth batter, spoon out into a greased frying pan and cook either on the fire or gas stove.

flour, whisk up the eggs and the sugar, add the milk and the melted fat, then add the flour, beat up well, and cook in the usual way. If the eggs are left out this will make a first-class powder or soda pikelet, a delicacy for afternoon teas all the winter through.

The Feagans and Co. Standard in Diamonds. In the selection of diamonds, Feagans and Co. are guided by only one standard—absolute perfection. This has always been the Feagans and Co. standard—and ever will be. When you come to this store to choose a diamond—you will be shown nothing but perfect gems—an assurance which is most vital and of exceeding importance. While Feagans and Co. show very extensive selections in fine gems—the major advantages of purchasing here are "assurance of perfection"—"superiority of quality"—"individuality of mountings" and "fairness of prices."

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

Why Dicky Said "You're the Original Kill-Joy"

I HAVE never seen Dicky quite so taken aback as he was when the militant, middle-aged woman upon the Hudson river boat administered the rebuke to him about his impatience at the crowd before the dining room door.

affairs by anyone not directly concerned. But Dicky's face would have afforded amusement to the most confirmed misanthrope. Astonishment at the woman's words, indignation at evidently what he considered her effrontery, struggled in his face with the chagrin I knew he felt at having me find out that my stay in the dressing room was not responsible for our delay at luncheon.

In the shifting of the crowd we had not noticed that our aggressive friend, with her companions, were right in front of us. I heard her high-pitched, rasping voice expostulating with the head waiter, standing near the door whose roving eyes I knew had seen Dicky's hand go into his pocket.

I think Dicky's natural eagerness to get a table was intensified by his desire to get even with the woman who had rebuked him. At any rate, at the first sound of her voice I saw him hastily substitute another bill for the one he had first drawn out.

"Sense me, Missis, but I can't give you that table nohow; dat table is promised to dis gentleman right behind you." "Right this way, Mr. Jones, yohre table just ready for yoh."

the unlucky bag which had been the innocent cause of his irritation with me over our delayed luncheon. "The dusky waiter—Dicky always calls every waiter George—stooped for the bag, and I saw him thrust it carelessly under a serving table some distance away.

And to this determination I adhered, even when a few minutes later I saw the dusky "George" place under the serving table by the side of our bag another very like it, belonging to the aggressive woman with whom Dicky had already clashed twice.

In Our Wonderful World

A medical authority states that the muscles, in common with all organs of the human body, have their periods of development and decline, our physical strength increasing up to a certain age and then decreasing.

365 pounds. At the expiration of the thirty-first year the strength begins to decline, very gradually at first. By the fortieth year it has decreased eight pounds, and such diminution continues at a slightly increasing rate until the fiftieth year is reached, when the figure is 330 pounds.

shape of long cylinders, which are cut open along one side and then placed on a stone in a hot furnace, where they gradually collapse and flatten out into a big sheet of glass.

As a substitute for tin in the making of cans iron alloyed with gold is being introduced. The resulting product is said to be proof against corrosion of most kinds, but costs fifteen times as much as tin plate.
