

F

587
W&E4

THE OLD WISCONSE

By WILLIAM ELLIS

THE PHILOSOPHER PRESS, WAUSAU,
WISCONSIN, JUNE, M D C C C X C I X

Class F587

Book W8 E4

THE OLD WISCONSE

By WILLIAM ELLIS

THE PHILOSOPHER PRESS, WAUSAU,
WISCONSIN, JUNE, M D C C C X C I X

P.
Publ.

- 1932

F587

W8E4

59
1882
1883
1884
1885
1886
1887
1888
1889
1890
1891
1892
1893
1894
1895
1896
1897
1898
1899
1900 1901
1902
1903
1904
1905
1906
1907
1908
1909
1910
1911
1912
1913
1914
1915
1916
1917
1918
1919
1920
1921
1922
1923
1924
1925
1926
1927
1928
1929
1930
1931
1932
1933
1934
1935
1936
1937
1938
1939
1940
1941
1942
1943
1944
1945 1946
1947
1948
1949
1950
1951 1952
1953
1954
1955
1956
1957
1958
1959
1960
1961
1962
1963
1964
1965
1966
1967
1968
1969
1970
1971
1972
1973
1974
1975
1976
1977
1978 1979
1980
1981
1982
1983
1984
1985
1986 1987
1988
1989
1990
1991
1992
1993
1994
1995
1996
1997
1998 1999
2000

This poem was written for, and originally published in, The Northwestern Lumberman, and to its publisher, Mr. W. B. Judson, acknowledgment for its use is made by The Philosopher Press.

THE OLD WISCONSE

The Old Wisconse

An' so ye think the Old Wisconse 's a mighty pretty stream?

A tumblin' 'round among the rocks, an'
sparklin' with the gleam

Of sunshine fallin' through the spray, like di'monds in the hair

Of women who seem bent to see what gewgaws they kin wear?

Well, yes, she is a pretty stream. leastwise she is to me—

But laws—I've seen the days when 'deed she was a stream to see.

She aint no-ways the crick she was way back in early days,

With lots of camps an' loggers all along her windin' ways.

The Old Wisconsin

The railroad seems to kind o' knock the beauty
from the scene,

The birds don't seem to harmonize with sizz'lin screechin' steam;

There aint no livin' railroad that can run a piece
o' wood,

An' do the sense of nature in a man a bit of good.

It kind o' takes the tuck clean out a quiet,
peaceful stream,

To see the world go rushin' by behind the push
of steam.

An' when it comes to foliage, bright with all its autumn shades,

You can't get that from wire-strung poles cut out from forest glades.

The Old Wisconse

You folks don't know the Old Wisconse,
a-ridin' by in cars;

A-leavin' Tomah when the sun's just kissin' out
the stars,

An' gett'n' up to Tomahawk along at sun-high noon—

That's goin' up the Old Wisconse a heap o' sight too soon.

You can't see where she glides out from the overhangin' trees—

That smile upon her as they bow beneath the gentle breeze:

You can't see where the waters dash up into angry foam

Against the rocks that seem to try to stop them as they roam.

The Old Wisconsin

I mind the time—it's years ago—I started from the P'int,

An' got along to Joe Dessert's to stay for overnight,

An' thanked my lucky stars an' all the gods I ever had,

That I had got a chance to sleep one more night
in a bed;

'Cause I was on my way clear up to seven-thirty-three,

An' I knew that was nigh the last of livin' I should see,

Yes, bless your soul, I looked the land all over this here stream

Long 'fore they ever had a mill that used a pound
of steam.

The Old Wisconse

An' when a feiler's got his house all strapped across his back,

An' starts out in the woods to tramp without a sign of track,

With heaven's great, broad, blue, deep sky the only roof he's got,

An' sweetly smellin' boughs of pine to be his only cot,

He somehow gets a long ways nearer to what God had ought to be,

Than you can get in any church that I have ever see :

An' I don't b'lieve you ever heerd such songs of music sweet

As comes from God's bright songsters in the wildest wood's retreat.

The Old Wisconsin

Somehow you get away from things that bother up the mind,

An' then you can't help thinkin' things a mighty different kind

Than when the rush of saw-mills an' the crash of railroad trains

Keep business deals and figgers hustlin', bustlin'
through yer brains :

An, somehow when ye get alone, away out in the pines,

Ye think of things ye would n't think at any other times.

An' on such trips as these, alone, in days long years ago,

The Old Wisconsin an' me was friends, as on her way she flowed.

The Old Wisconse

An' then she was a pretty stream—shy like a modest maid,

She'd peep out from a glassy pool beneath a forest glade,

Then coy she'd dance along awhile, as gay as any girl,

An' then she'd break out in the gayest, maddest,
merriest swirl,

An' dash down over rocks an' stones, as mad as any shrew,

An', 'shamed-like, on she'd float away in quiet, placid blue.

Oh, she was like a woman in them good old bygone days—

She had her failin's, true to tell, but she had her winnin' ways.

The Old Wisconse

But now her beauty's most all gone; she's broken down by work,

For, what with all her loveliness, the Wisconse
aint no shirk;

She's toted down the saw-logs that was once her life an' pride,

She's turned the wheels of saw-mills, that have sprung up by her side;

She's give her wealth of water to the clouds for gentle rain

That bathes the land in plenty so it brings forth fruit again;

She waits in prison-cage dams for the drive the saw-mills need,

While beauty fades and glory dies to satisfy man's greed.

The Old Wisconse

But then, she's still the Old Wisconse, an'
still she's dear to me ;

I love her for the long years past ; for what she used to be ;

An' now I s'pose she's worth the more, with all her towns an' mills ;

The whistles mean more business than the wild birds' sweetest trills.

But I can't help rememb'rin' how she looked long years ago ,

When through the untouched timber was the path
she used to flow ,

An' 't aint no use a talkin' , them there was the days for me—

The Old Wisconse wont never seem the crick she used to be.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

0 016 098 179 9

