POTERY.

Lying Ill.

Love! kiss me, kiss me on the lips,
And kiss me on the cheek;
And I would that I could speak,
My heart, my heart so happy pants;
But I feel lost and weak.

Thes cup of pain so bitter is,
And I feel dull with woe,
And my tears are falling slow;
But I touch your neck, your rosy neck;
So am I blest, I know.

O Love, we wedded years ago;
A blessed bliss for me.
Love! let me, let me see
Your blest, soft eyes burn into mine:
Dear eyes, how kind the be!

I touch your neck; my tears flow down;
They soothe while I speak;
O Love, I feel so weak!
But, kiss me, kiss me on the lips,
And kiss me on the cheek.

An Hour of Peril.

A THRILLING SKETCH OF REAL LIFE.

BY MAURICE SILINGSBY.

Twenty years ago Gillian Giovanna was the belle of her native village. She was of Italian descent on the father's side, her grand-parents having crossed the Atlantic shortly after the close of the American Revolution, and settled in the town of B., where Gillian was born some twenty years after—her father being a mere child at the period of their emigration. As I have said, Gillian at the age of twenty was the belle of her native village. Her eyes were tender and dreamy when in repose, but when animated by feeling or sentiment they would flash forth such fire as betokened a superior soul, or higher order of intelligence than those by whom she was surrounded.

About this time she became the wife of Frederick Bront, to whom for a long time she had been fondly attached. He was by trade a carpenter, and one of the handsomest and most enterprising young fellows that the town afforded; but about a week subsequent to his marriage, he was called upon by the parish authorities to adjust the weather-vane of the village church which had been dislodged by lightning, and in the attempt was precipitated from the movable staging on which he had been raised by means of pulleys to the pinnacle of the spire, and was instantly dashed to pieces in the fall.—Poor Gillian fainted when the terrible news was brought her, and for many days afterwards her life was despaired of; but she recovered her health at last, though her old cheerfulness of look did not return to her till after the birth of a little son, who was called Freddy, after the poor father whose life had been so unceremoniously crushed out before he was born.

For months preceding this event, that is, the birth of little Freddy, the horrible recollection of that fearful hour which made the great world so dard and aimless to Gillian, was never absent a moment from her thoughts. Daily in imagination was the dreadful scene enacted before her eyes—the honest neighbor who first came with the sad intelligence, who hesitated and finally broke down with the weight of the terrible news—the four sober men who bore home the mangled form, once so beautiful, now so ghastly, so horribly disfigured, that even the loving wife would have failed to recognize him—and all the subsequent agony, sorrow, or even grief, are words too feeble to express it—which was crowded into the next few weeks that followed; such was the harrowing picture constantly before her eyes, both sleeping and waking, though doubly intensified by the light of dreams. In dreams she would see her husband ascending the village spire, see him far above the belfry, and the next moment, with a deadly shudder, she would behold him hurled down from the dizzy height he had attained. Then would she close her eyes to shut out the horrid spectacle, and in the agony of that dreadful moment she would awake, and during the rest of the long night that followed there was no more sleep—nought but the horrid remembrance of that awful dream left her—so late a painful reality.

But with the birth of little Freddy, these phantoms of the imagination vanished, and she grew gradually to be more like her former self. Little Freddy was a strange, unaccountable child, slightly deformed, his neck, shoulders and arms were extremely muscular, while his lower extremities seemed to have shrunk and shrivelled up in developing them; and yet this disproportion seemed rather to add to, than to diminish his strength and agility. Before he was five years old, he had ascended to the topmost branches of the stateliest trees that grew in the surrounding fields, and with reckless unconsciousness of danger that never failed to strike a chill to the heart of the beholder, he would swing out and drop from branch to branch, catching by the hands and shouting in a sort of insane glee, as though he drew inspiration from the danger which he dared. At such moments as these, he seemed wildly and gleefully happy, but when inactive or in repose there was ever an expression of pain lingering about his features, which was as much a part of him as the features themselves. It was observed by the nurse the first night he came into the world, and it never left him for a moment except when he hung from some perilous height or swung himself from limb to limb of the highest tree with the agility of an ape. It was evident that this strong infatuation was a constitutional weakness inherited from the mother at a time when her great sorrow was fresh upon her, enhanced and intensified by a morbid imagination. Often was the time that she shuddered and turned pale, or shrieked loudly on beholding the dizzy height he had attained, striving with all her might to persuade or coax him out of harm's way, while he only mocked at her fears, swinging from limb to limb, and chattering like a magpie.

Persuasion was of no avail. Little Freddy would climb the trees and there was no help for it; and, though his strange doings kept poor Gillian in constant apprehension, no harm had thus far come to the little gymnast.

One pleasant day in early autumn, when Freddy was about a dozen years old, a large concourse of people had gathered on the green in front of the church to witness the feats of Jack Marlin, the sailor, who was to ascend to the belfry by means of the lightning-rod. Freddy saw it, and heard the enthusiastic shouts of the people, but he only curled his lip in scorn, and remarked: "That is nothing!"

And even while the crowd were yet busy in admiring the bold daring of the sailor, the deformed child had found his way to the corner of the church where the rod descended, and before any one was aware of his intention, he had swung himself up, hand over hand, more than half-way to the belfry. Then for the first time the attention of the crowd was directed toward him, and some of the men, more thoughtful than the rest shouted to him to come down, but he paid no attention to their admonitions, except by a low, scornful laugh, as though he had fully measured his own power, and was determined to exert it to eclipse the effort of Jack Marlin the sailor.

Every one expected when the boy reached the belfry that he would stop by his own accord; but no, he merely waved his hand to the crowd steadily ascending all the while, while they, in turn, completely carried away, and forgetful for the moment of the lad's peril, shouted and cheered till they were hoarse. Then for the first time, it seemed as though the multitude was appalled by a sense of the boy's terrible danger, which, carried away by their blind enthusiasm, they had hitherto overlooked, in admiration, it may be presumed, of the wonderful daring the lad had evinced.

The next moment, instead of shouts and cheers, a death-like silence prevailed. Every one watched with breathless anxiety his steady progress, higher and higher with each succeeding pulsation of the heart; and so silent all, that each could distinctly hear the partially suppressed respiration of his neighbor. It was one of those unlanguage triumphs of suspense, not merely tragical, but terrible, where moments become as it were hours, and every nerve seems set on edge, and all a blinding whirl, save the one object that attracts all eyes, and thrills all hearts.

Up, still up, a tiny object, no larger to look at than Marlin's fist. He has reached the weather-vane, and one little arm is thrust up and clasps it firmly.—Then for a moment his body seems to swing in mid air, and the next he is above the vane, seated on the forked point of the spire, more than a hundred and thirty feet above the entranced crowd.—Then was the spell broken, and shout after shout went up, and the boy looks down, and crows a triumphant little crow, that comes down to them so far and so very faintly, and waves a tiny hand, and then the multitude responds with a second series of deafening shouts, which come booming up to him, ah! how distinctly. Mark now how he clings to the branching prongs of the spire. He does not offer to move; he is evidently dizzy and afraid. Jack Marlin the sailor, who understands such things from experience, observes it. The rest do not. They know nothing of the workings of fear under circumstances like these. Suddenly all hearts are appalled by the wild shrieks of a woman who comes flying across the common, towards the spot where the multitude were assembled.

I had arrived in B. that morning, and chanced to be one of the crowd present. I had witnessed grief and despair in various shapes, but I never saw so white a face before—one so blanched with the agony of fear. In accents of the wildest terror, she begged of the bystanders to save her boy.

"How could they save him now?" they answered her, pityingly. "He had brought it on himself in spite of all they could do. Persuasion and warnings were of no avail; and now, though their hearts bleeding for the distracted mother, what could they do but pity her?"

Not so with Marlin. The mother's wild plaint found a responsive echo in the heart of the brave sailor. He shouted to Freddy to come down, and in a few seconds the response came faintly back: "No, I'm afraid to!"

"Hang on to your moorings then, with all your might, and I'll be up presently and tow you down!"

He then turned to the crowd and said: "Bring me ropes, a plenty of them, and the stoutest you can find, and bear a hand lively."

The energetic orders of the sailor were instantly obeyed, and in five minutes, and perhaps less, for moments seem long under circumstances like these, a dozen strong bed-cords were procured and firmly spliced together. Uniting the two ends so as to bring the cord double, and then fastening them securely to the belt around his waist, Marlin commenced his ascent, cheered and stimulated by the excited crowd, who were now wrought up to the highest pitch of frenzy.

Up, over the same perilous track the daring boy had ascended, never once looking down, or seemingly conscious of any other object than the one he was on, Marlin worked his way up with the sublime determination of persevering the life of one upon whom the very existence of another seemed to depend. As he neared the dizzy point where Freddy still clung, the shouts of the anxious spectators ceased, and with strained eyes and suspended breath, they watched each movement, as though, instead of one, a hundred lives hung on his humane efforts. But when he had reached the weather-vane, and stood firmly up thereon, the enthusiasm of the crowd broke forth afresh, and shout after shout and cheer after cheer went up, till you would have thought the many, so strangely silent but a moment before, had suddenly gone crazed.

In the meantime, Marlin had not been idle. He had unfastened the rope from his belt, and passing it over between the branching prongs of the spire, so as to bring the ends on the opposite side from which he had ascended, he again adjusted it firmly around his waist, and shouted to the people below to keep a taut rope, and when he gave the word, to "lower away." He then drew the lad from the point to which he had clung from the moment that fear overpowered him, and winding his left arm firmly around him, and grasping the rope with his right hand as far up as he could reach, he next shouted to the crowd to bear a hand, and swung himself free from the spire.

The crowd below, faithful to their task, lowered away, and in thirty seconds from the time he swung himself clear, Jack Marlin and the lad were safely landed on terra firma.

A Thrilling Romance.

CHAPTER I.

She stood beside the altar, with a wreath of orange buds upon her head—upon her back the richest kind o' duds—her lover stood behind her with white kids and dicky clean—the last was twenty-one years old, the fust was seventeen. The parson's job was over—every one had kissed the bride, and wished the young folks happiness, and danced and laughed and cried. The last kiss had been given and the last word had been said, and the happy pair had shimmered down, and the last guest had fied.

CHAPTER II.

She stood beside the wash tub, with her red hands in the suds, and at her slipshod feet there laid a pile of dirty duds; her husband stood beside her—the crossst man alive—the last was twenty-nine years old, the fust was twenty-five.

The heavy wash was over, and the clothes hung out to dry—and Tom had stuck his finger in the dirty baby's eye. Tom had been spanked and supper made upon a crust of bread, and the bride and bridegroom went grumbling to bed.

IMPORTANT FACTS.—Never be influenced by external appearances in forming your judgment of a persons worth. This is an important rule, for many a noble spirit is covered by habiliments of poverty, while not unfrequently a showy exterior conceals a villain of the basest kind. Dean Swift said that nature had given every man a capacity of being agreeable, though not shining in company; and "there are a hundred men sufficiently qualified for both, who, by a very few faults that they may correct in half an hour, are not so much as tolerable." The world would be more happy if persons gave up more time to an intercourse of friendship.

A PRETTY girl and a wild horse are liable to do much mischief; for the one runs away with a fellows body, and the other runs away with his heart.

A DEAD THING ON A RACE TRACK.—The Virginia penchant for seeing blooded horses in motion, is well illustrated by an anecdote told recently at Petersburg.

Mr. Doswell, Sheriff of Hanover county seeing old Larkin White, an ex-member of the Jockey Club, but now a member of the Baptist Church, on the quarter stretch, during the recent races at Ashland, Va., jocosely remarked to him "Why, Colonel White, they'll turn you out of Church for being here."

"If they do," said Larkin, "they'll turn Tinsley, yonder, out of the Methodist Church. I'll go and see him."

Accordingly Larkin went over and stated the case to his neighbor Tinsley, who, by the way, stammers badly.

"Oh," replied Tinsley, "I've got a d-d-dead thing of it! I've counted-ten noses, and there's a ma-ma-majority of the Church on the track!"

Larkin turned away regretting that he had in the excitement of his feelings joined what he now considered to be the wrong church.

TO TAKE INK OUT OF LINEN.—Our readers will be interested to know that ink spots may be effectually removed from linen by a simple and ready process. Take a piece of tallow, melt it, and dip the spotted part of the linen into the tallow; the linen may then be washed, and the spot will disappear, the linen remaining uninjured.—Exchange.

"WHY are you like a crazy man, my dear?" asked a fond wife of her husband. "Give it up!" Then placing herself closer to him, and putting on one of her sweetest smiles, she said, "Because I am your other self, and you are now beside yourself."

"JOHN what is the past of see?"
"Seen, sir."

"Yes, sir; so if a sea-fish swims by me it becomes a saw-fish when it is past and can't be seen."

Teacher—"Hem! yes. Now, John you had better go home. Ask your mother to soak your feet in hot water to prevent a rush of brains to the head."

THE most amusing man in the world is a Frenchman in a passion. "By gar, you call my wife a woman two tree several times once more, an' I will call you the vach house, and blow out your brains like a candle."

I TELL you, Susan, that I will commit suicide if you won't have me."

"Well, Thomas, as soon as you have given me that proof of your affection, I will believe that you love me."

My name is Somerset. I am a miserable old bachelor. I cannot marry; for how could I hope to prevail on any young lady, possessed of the slightest delicacy, to turn a Somerset.

"PA," said a little fellow the other day, "was Job an editor?"
"Why, Sammy?"
"Because the Bible says he had much trouble, and was a man of sorrow all the days of his life."

A wag being told by an acquaintance that Miss Brown (who is rather a broad-featured young lady,) had a benign countenance, he replied, "Perhaps you mean seven-by-nine."

ALL NATURE.—An outside passenger on a coach had his hat blown over a bridge into the stream. "True to nature," said a gentleman who was seated beside him, "a beaver naturally takes to the water."

FOR accommodating the Empress of Russia and her suite in his hotel, for one night only, a landlord in Basle charged three thousand four hundred dollars.

"ARE you near sighted, Miss?" said an impertinent fellow to a young lady who did not choose to recognize him.

"Yes, at this distance I can hardly tell whether you are a pig or a puppy."

A FELLOW not on good terms with his boots, had the impudence to remark that he could sell them easily enough, because they had been half soled once.

A MASTER bade his servant go and see what time the sun-dial indicated. "Why, sir," expostulated the servant, "it is night."—"What does that matter?"—Take a candle.

WHEN Voltaire was told that a friend of his was studying to become a physician, he exclaimed: "Why will he be so mad? He will have to thrust drugs of which he knows little, into a body of which he knows less."

It is impossible to love where we cannot esteem; and no woman can be esteemed by a man who has sense, if she makes herself cheap in the eye of a fool.

PHILOSOPHERS say that shutting the eyes makes the sense of hearing more acute. Perhaps this accounts for the habit some people have of always closing their eyes during sermons-time.

THE KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS.

OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER.

SATURDAY, MARCH 17TH, 1860.

Town of Knight's Landing.

This town is situated on the west bank of the Sacramento river, in Yolo county, some 23 miles north of the city of Sacramento, on a direct line, surrounded on the Yolo side by some of the best arable land in the State.

The surrounding scenery is both grand and picturesque—beautiful and fanciful to the hearts content of the most fastidious critical and curious.

The great Sacramento river, running on the east side, upon whose placid and clear waters steamer after steamer are passing and repassing, constantly adding variety to the charm, presents majestically and grandly a prospect worthy the eye and reflection of the admirers and lovers of nature. Myriads of flowers that bedeck and adorn the borders of the town, present a view as magnificent as lovely; here, of every conceivable hue and shade, they luxuriate in the most extravagant profusion, bewitching and enchanting the beholder; inspiring him with thoughts both noble and innocent; imperceptibly leading his mind on to the contemplation of nature's god—surely flowers are minatures of angels (?)

The town has been improving gradually for the last six months. But since the San Francisco and Marysville Railroad has been located permanently (right through its center) a new impetus is given to improvements of every character.

In fact a real business-like and life-like spirit appears to be infused into our inhabitants.

The bustle and stir created by the hands at work on the railroad very forcibly reminds us of other days in another land. We opine the time is not very distant when Knight's Landing will be second to few cities in the State.

Meteorological.

It has been raining ever since Thursday evening and continues to rain, with a prospect of still more. What a cheering and spirit-buoying prospect for the farmers! All nature is now redolent with charms and extasies!! Birds of all plumages are making the groves vocal with their semi-celestial music. Vegetation is springing up and growing as by magic. The present crops indicate an abundant harvest. Everybody and everything appear to be in harmony and joint-concert to render all things agreeable and pleasant.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.—This is the anniversary of the nativity of Saint Patrick than whom few are more highly esteemed by "the sons of the Green Isle." He was born in Scotland, immigrated to Ireland and annihilated all reptiles of a poisonous or noxious nature many centuries ago (?) On this day it is the wont of Erin's people to congregate at early morn with all manner of musical instruments and have a general jubilee. The shamrock (trifolium repens) adorns each and every person throughout the entire day. In the evening they have a general ball. Thus they pass the day, semi-religiously and semi-mirthfully, ending with a grand spree (?)

THE POST-OFFICE DEFICIENCY.—The deficiency bill passed by Congress and approved by the President, appropriates $4,295,000 for the supply of the deficiency in the revenue, and paying the expenses of the department for the year ending in June last; $4,000,000 towards the support of the department for the year ending in June next, and the further sum of $2,400,000 in payment of the salaries of officers and clerks for transportation of the mails, wrapping paper, stamps, etc.

FAVORS.—We are again under obligations to C. Bowen, of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express, for late papers, and also to Captain Pierce, and officers of the steamer Sam Soule, for favors.

THE HESPERIAN for March has come to hand, and we think is the best number ever issued. Illustrated with the Spring Fashions and Veatch's Tree Primrose.

THE price of passage by the steamship Sonora, which leaves on the 20th instant is announced to be $200 00, $150 00 and $50 00.

Postmaster Weller has received a letter from Vanderbilt, authorising him to give the mails to the old Pacific Mail Steamship Line.

The San Francisco and Marysville Railroad.

Notwithstanding the many drawbacks and impediments that have been thrown in the way of, and have been incidental to this enterprise, yet, from its earliest commencement it has gradually and steadily progressed with as much celerity as is common to enterprises of similar magnitude and character.

Notwithstanding, one of the most important and popular presses of the State has seen fit to speak disparagingly and discouragingly of on all occasions, both seasonably and unseasonably, yet, it has been gaining perceptibly and continually more and more favor and prestige with the thinking portion of the community through which it passes.

It is a fixed fact, beyond question, that the Road will be built, "old croaker to the contrary, notwithstanding." Except 7 1/2 miles, the grading for the entire route has been let in several sub-contracts by the very efficient, clear-sighted and thorough-going contractor D. C. HASKINS, Esq., to whose enterprising zeal and untiring energy the CORPORATION are mainly indebted for the present advanced condition of the work. For the benefit of our readers we will insert a communication furnished by the urbanity and kindness of D. B. Scott, Chief Engineer of the San Francisco and Marysville Railroad, which clearly set forth the present condition of the work etc.

EDITOR KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS.

The distance from Marysville to tide-water by route of the San Francisco and Marysville Railroad is 67 1/2 miles, to wit:

Table with 2 columns: Miles, and list of routes including Marysville Depot to Yuba City, Yuba City to Knight's Landing, Knight's Landing to Putah Creek, Putah Creek to tide water, Suisun City.

The first work awarded by D. C. Haskins, Esq., Line Contractor, comprised the grading for a distance of 5 miles, commencing 1 1/2 miles from Yuba City and extending south. This sub-contract was taken by J. M. Reeves, and with the exception of trimming up one or two miles, was completed last summer.

Last fall Jno. H. Atchison completed 1 1/2 miles in the tule north of the Sacramento river, comprising some of the most expensive work on the line.

Adjoining Reeves' section and extending 5 miles. W. Bunting and W. O. Watson are the sub-contractors for grading, contract dated January 24, 1860; to be completed by 1st June next. They are at work and have already completed 2 miles, and there is no doubt but they will finish in the prescribed time.

Extending a distance of 3 miles from Bunting & Co.'s sections, T. L. Sherwood is Sub-contractor for grading. He was awarded his work January 11th, 1860; to be completed 1st June next. He has completed, ready for superstructure 1 1/2 miles and will finish by the time specified.

Adjoining Sherwood and extending to the work done by Atchison. Two miles, Nelson & Patterson are sub-contractors for grading, contract dated January 13th, 1860; to be completed 1st June next. They are at work—have about half a mile finished, and will perfect their contract by the time specified.

There yet remains 7 1/2 miles of grading between Feather River and the Sacramento, to be let out by Mr. Haskins, to-wit—1 1/2 miles, commencing at Feather River, and 6 1/2 miles extending from work done by Atchison to the Sacramento. In this distance about 2 1/2 miles comprises work in Tule.

The next work awarded by Mr. Haskins, was to Cole & Hickock. This embraces the entire grading in Solano county, from Putah Creek to Suisun City—23 miles, contract entered into about four weeks ago, to be perfected about 1st July next. They immediately commenced work in Suisun Valley with a good force, and I doubt not will comply with their contract.

Last week Mr. Haskins sub-contracted to O'Bryan & Co. the entire grading across Yolo county, extending from the Sacramento River to Putah Creek, 20 miles; to be completed 1st July next. Mr. O'Bryan is now gathering his forces, and contemplates commencing work this week, between the Landing and Cache Creek. He will also start other forces next week on the lower end of his work; and from his known ability and reputation as a contractor, he will doubtless complete his work in the required time.

D. B. SCOTT, Chief Eng. San F. & M. R. R. Knight's Landing, March 12th, 1860.

OVERLAND MAIL.—The stage for St. Louis, which left on Monday last, carried 5,332 letters. There was one passenger for St. Louis. Major Van Bokkelen, of El Paso Station, was among the passengers. The Company have placed Concord coaches on the line between San Jose and Los Angeles.

ONE R. W. Keltie, of Stockton, climbed the flag staff of Weber Engine Company, No. 1, one hundred and thirty feet high, and sawed off the fireman's cap on the top.

LATER FROM THE NORTH.

The steamer Columbia, from ports on the Northern Coast, arrived on Monday evening last, with papers from Crescent City to the 7th and Humboldt Bay to the 10th instant.

The Indian Troubles and Late Massacre.

The Humboldt Times states that the massacre of Indians on Indian Island was committed by an unknown party. At the same time the ranches on the Sorby Beach were attacked, and the entire population exterminated. A considerable number of Indians on Eel River were slaughtered at the same time. The killing appears to have been principally with knives and hatchets, or axes. The whole number killed at the different places on Saturday night, cannot fall below one hundred and fifty, including squaws, bucks and children.

These simultaneous attacks, at different points, show clearly that this new plan of operations against the Indians has been adopted by a large number of people in this county, and that the act in concert. It is generally supposed that the sufferers from Indian depredations in the Bald Hills, on Eel river, and the lower part of the county, are at the bottom of it.

The Times admits that there is considerable excitement regarding the massacre, but offers some excuse on the ground that the settlers who have suffered from Indian depredations have become perfectly desperate. "They have had friends and relatives cruelly and savagely butchered, their homes made desolate, and their hard-earned property destroyed by these sneaking, cowardly wretches; and when an attempt is made to hunt them from their hiding places in the mountains, to administer merited punishment upon them, they escape to the friendly ranches on the coast for protection.

Smarting under these great and grievous wrongs, we are prepared to overlook much that would otherwise be unjustifiable, but we cannot approve of the indiscriminate slaughter of helpless infants and defenceless squaws."

MORE INDIANS KILLED.—The same paper says: "A large ranch of Indians, above Eagle Prairie, on Eel river, was attacked on Wednesday morning, and twenty-six diggers, mostly bucks, were killed, and among them some that were known to be desperate villains. On Thursday night another ranch opposite the 'Slide,' was attacked, but we have not learned how many were killed or taken. Wash-ettes, a noted rascal, is, however, known to be killed."

INDIANS TO BE KILLED.—We learn from the Times, of the 10th instant, that the guns from the State Arsenal, intended for Capt. Wright's Volunteers, had arrived and would be sent out to Eel River. The citizens have furnished supplies for thirty days more, to the Volunteers, at the end of which time, if no aid or encouragement is received from the State, it is the intention of the company to assist the settlers in removing their families, and what stock they may have left, to some other quarter. The finest section of grazing country in California will then be abandoned to the Indians.

INDIAN DEPREDACTIONS.—The Times says: A. L. Pardee, who has a ranch on the Trinity trail, beyond Mad river, was waylaid near his house one day last week, and fired at him, the first one before he discovered his intended assassins. Less than two years ago the Indians drove Mr. Pardee from his place—compelled him to move his family into town—after which they burned his dwelling and out-houses, killed all his hogs and poultry, destroyed his entire crop and killed about fifty head of his cattle. Last spring he moved his family back to the ranch, willing to incur some danger in order to collect together the remnant of his hard earnings for ten years in California, upon which he hoped to feed and educate his children. What of his earthly goods he is possessed of now remains on the ranch, subject to the mercy of the poor innocent diggers, for which some of legislators and members of the press are shedding such floods of crocodile tears.

The Northern Californian says: Mr. B. Crogan, residing about three miles from Angel's ranch, informs us that on Wednesday last during his absence from home, a party of Indians plundered his house, breaking down the door and taking three suits of clothes, two guns, one pistol, blankets and flour. On the following morning he discovered five Indians at a distance, partly ambushed.—They were probably awaiting his departure to renew their depredations. He pursued them into the brush, but being alone and armed with a revolver only, did not attack them. John Stewart, residing in the same locality, had been previously robbed of blankets and other articles in a similar manner; Mr. Crogan saw the blankets in possession of some of the savages, but thought they were moving camp. On Thursday Mr. Crogan found one of his cattle lying dead near the house, pierced with arrows. Two men were badly wounded. Charles McLaughlin had two killed by the same scoundrels. They are supposed to be Upper Mad River Indians.

Crescent City News.

ANOTHER GOLD BEACH.—The Crescent City Herald says: We have been shown a sample of gold of the value of forty-seven cents, which, judging from its appearance, is as pure as any we have ever seen, and is said to have been obtained from seven buckets of the beach sand to the northward of our town, and of which sand the quantity can never be exhausted.

The gold was obtained with the aid of quicksilver. The miners are confident from the experiments made that the necessary works for washing from 3,000 to 4,000 buckets of sand per day, will not cost when complete and ready for use, over the sum of three hundred dollars. Should their expectations be realized, or even one-fourth of the quantity be able to be washed by the machinery per day, at the same yield, it would produce from $50 to $60 per day.

The fact of the sand being rich with gold for hundreds of miles, is known to every one who has visited the beach and used the pan; and all that is required and for which so much labor and means have already been expended by theoretical miners, is the proper machinery for separating gold from the sand, which up to the present time has not been produced.

THE SILVER MINES.—The same paper notices specimens of silver ore, said to contain a large proportion of the metal, which was taken out ten miles from town.

THE COPPER MINES.—A first rate copper lead has been struck near Crescent City. The specimens exhibited contain from 25 to 33 per cent. pure copper. A company has been formed, under D. C. Gibbs, geologists, to thoroughly prospect the mine, and 200 pounds of the ore sent to San Francisco for assay. The Times says that the existence of copper ore in this section has been known to many since 1853, but until recently no attempt has been made to find the vein or test the quality of the loose pieces which have been brought in from time to time since that year.

Heavy Defalcation and Ruin of a Rhode Island Bank.

On Friday forenoon, while the Rhode Island Senate was in session, Governor Turner was informed that a gentleman was outside the bar who was waiting to see him on business of the utmost importance. He at once left the chair, and invited the gentleman into his room, when his visitor announced himself to be Daniel C. Kenyon, cashier of the Rhode Island Exchange Bank at East Greenwich, and at once disclosed to him that he was a defaulter to a large amount, and that his defalcation had brought certain ruin upon the Bank.

Mr. Kenyon stated that he had used and lost of the Bank's money about seventy-two thousand dollars, being twelve thousand dollars more than the entire capital of the Bank. This large amount he has drawn in such sums as he has needed from time to time to enable him to speculate in stocks—every dollar of the entire amount having been drawn previous to June last—and at no time down to Thursday morning, has the slightest suspicion of his robberies, and that he is aware, been excited in the breast of the President or any Director of the institution.

How he has managed to keep his villainy a secret, will be a wonder to gentlemen connected with better managed institutions, but is fully explained by Mr. Kenyon, in his statement to the Governor. Of course he had to resort to false figures; and these he has been allowed, if his statement is true, to palm upon the President and Directors, to any extent he desired. As showing the implicit confidence that has been reposed in him, and the manner in which he has abused it, he states that he has represented the circulation of the Bank to be twenty-six thousand dollars less than it really is, the amount of deposits some seven thousand dollars more than the actual sum, and has played similar pranks with the figures relating to bills receivable and deposits in the Merchants' Bank of this city.

In addition to this sum of $72,000 taken from the moneys of the Rhode Island Exchange Bank, Mr. Kenyon says he is a defaulter to the East Greenwich Institution for Savings, of which he is Treasurer, to the sum of about thirty-six thousand dollars, making his robberies amount to a total of one hundred and eight thousand dollars. Every dollar of this large sum he has lost in stock speculations.—Providence Post.

The N. Y. Tribune, of Feb. 16th, says that Vanderbilt's proposition to the Pacific Mail Company is understood to include the sale of his Pacific steamers to the Mail Company for a specific sum, of which $600,000 was to be paid in Pacific Mail stock, which was to be retained by Mr. Vanderbilt, for two years the Commodore to do the Atlantic service in the line and the Pacific Mail Company the service of the Pacific at a pro rata agreed upon, the Pacific to be employed in running along the coast of South America.

The cause of the great rise in the Pacific Mail stock is generally spoken of as the division of the California trade and mails between the competing lines, on the basis of 70 per cent. for the Pacific service to the Pacific Mail Company, and 30 per cent. to the Atlantic service, the opposition to be managed by Mr. Marshall O. Roberts, a sufficient steam fleet to be furnished to both parties, for tri-weekly trips, each way; but the fact of such settlement, and even a concurrence in the preliminary overture of the kind was denied by Mr. Vanderbilt and his friends up to a late hour in the day.

THE steamer Flora Temple was launched from Steamboat Point on Sunday. It is reported that she will be placed on the Sacramento route.

THOMAS B. HENLEY, in a late card dated at Round Valley, Feb. 24th, gives out the following:

Whereas, Lieutenant Dillon, of the United States Army, has grossly and outrageously libeled me in an official report made by him; and whereas, I have called upon said Dillon to retract the false charge by him made, which he has refused to do; and whereas, upon such refusal I demanded of him that address which gentlemen never hesitate in giving, which again he was too contemptible to grant, I do hereby publicly post the said Dillon as a liar, scoundrel and poltroon, and a disgrace to the service of which he is a member.

A New Mode of Petition.
 The following notification was posted about the halls of the Capitol yesterday, which we copy from the Standard. It is rather a novel method of petitioning for the redress of a grievance:

NOTICE
 To both houses of the legislature: that we are determined to pay no taxes on real estate unless sales for taxes are made to convey a valid and good title, and the holders of large real estate are made to pay their taxes. We have paid our taxes every year in good faith, but find that the more wealthy do not pay, and that a large share of the money that we pay is foolishly squandered or stolen by the public officers. We therefore think it useless for us to try to support the government any longer without some reformation. We therefore recommend that laws be immediately passed to effectually remedy the above evils, and that it may be made a capital offense to all defaulting treasurers; and we also recommend that the State Constitution be so amended that the legislature shall meet only once in five years, by which the people will save annually about one million of dollars in the way of legislative expenses and thieving bills. Wishing the State to get out of debt, these are our views.
 MANY FARMERS AND CITIZENS.

ADVERTISING.—"I have always considered advertising, liberally and long, to be the great medium of success in business and the prelude to wealth. And I have made it an invariable rule, too, to advertise in the duller times, a long experience having taught me that money thus spent is well laid out—as my keeping my business continually before the public, has secured me many sales that I otherwise would have lost."—Stephen Girard.
 "Whatever success I have had in business I owe mainly to continuous advertising; and I deem it good policy to advertise long in the same papers. From a close observation, I am fully convinced that it is impossible to make much headway in any branch of commerce without the facilities which the press alone can give."—Jacob Ridgeway.

EXTINCTION OF MOUNT VESUVIUS.—Some of the German journals announce seriously that a company of English capitalists have made an application to the King of Naples for a concession of the extinction of Vesuvius. The principal seat of the fire of that volcano is situated several hundred feet below the level of the sea. By cutting a canal which would only cost 2,000,000f, would restore to cultivation lands of ten times that value.

It is in contemplation to have the wires from Fresno city extend to Visalia by the middle of April.
 The steamer Uncle Sam, advertised for the 20th, has been withdrawn.

THE KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS.

POETRY.

Resurgam.

Resurgam! what a sound he hear From out the wastes of death;

Resurgam! yes, the eye of blue, The love of coral red,

Resurgam write, where'er midst tears We dig a human grave,

Resurgam! aye, the hero's name, The martyr's faith and creed,

Man's temples fade—man grows forlorn, Life never leads to death;

To Make Farming Profitable.

Every beginner in farming, by securing the following essentials will succeed:

- 1. Buy no more land than there is capital enough to pay for, with one third more surplus—for a small farm, free from debt, with plenty of means to stock it, enrich it, and carry on its work, will yield more than a larger one, encumbered with debt, conducted feebly in every part, with bad fences, poor implements, bony animals, weedy fields, and slim crops.

"GOOD-MORNING, Pompey," said the lawyer. "Good-morning, Massa C——."

"What makes you carry your head down so, Pompey? Why don't you walk with your head up, like me?"

"Massa C——, you ever bin tro' a field of wheat when he ripe?"

"Yes, Pompey."

"Well, you take notice, som' of de head tan up, and some hang down; den tan up got no grain in 'em."

BOILING POTATOES.—The Irish method of boiling potatoes, for various reasons, ought to be as good as any. Here is the practice adopted by many of that ilk, and not a few besides: Clean wash the potatoes and leave the skin on; then bring the water to a boil and throw them in.

THE HAIR.—As to men, v e say, when the hair begins to fall out, the best plan is to have it cut short, give it a good brushing with a moderately hard brush while the hair is dry; then wash it well with warm soap-suds, and rub into the scalp, about the roots of the hair, a little bay rum, brandy, or camphor-water.
