

BENEATH THE HILLS

NORTH GLENDALE DISTRICT IS FLOURISHING AND EX-TENDING STEADILY

Sir Walter Scott says in his "Fair Maid of Perth" that the most beautiful of all scenery is to be found where the hills begin to meet the plains; for there is blended the two kinds of scenery and the growth of the woods and the profusion of flowers add elements of artistic value to the landscape. All that is true of North Glendale.

After proceeding along North Central avenue as far as Arden avenue one leaves behind Glendale proper and enters on the district that is correctly spoken of as North Glendale. The inhabitants of this picturesque and charming section of the county of Los Angeles, which is so akin to Glendale that the people of both places are good neighbors and kindly friends to each other, are fortunate enough to have within their bounds all the conveniences which they need. The street car which terminates at the end of Brand boulevard on Mountain street, is ready to take them to Glendale or to Los Angeles and bring them back again. They have a fine automobile road that leads through the San Fernando valley or by which they can motor to town.

At the entrance to North Glendale is a large department store, run by O. C. Logan, which combines groceries, hardware, dry goods, butcher shop and post office. This establishment does a large business all through the valley. On the east side of Brand boulevard is situated a very fine restaurant-cafe, known as La Ramada. This stands in the midst of finely laid out grounds and is quite a show place. Its beautiful grounds are dotted here and there with pavilions where lunch can be served. This is a favorite picnic place and many of the aristocratic dinners, dancing parties and wedding parties of Glendale and North Glendale take place there.

On the other side of La Ramada, facing N. Maryland, is another famous cafe, the Casa Verdugo, which also stands in tasteful grounds and caters to an exclusive public.

On Central avenue and Dryden stands the Central avenue school, which, under the direction of Miss McIntyre, the accomplished principal, has acquired a reputation for progressiveness and thoroughness that is highly creditable to the district. The school is fortunate enough to enjoy the aid of a most efficient and active Parent-Teacher association. With the aid of these ladies the school grounds have been adorned with flowers and shrubs until they are quite attractive and beautiful.

Everybody in the school works at the garden. The children do their share; the janitor aids, Miss McIntyre takes a hand and now and then some of the patrons come in and lend a helping hand. The consequence is that there is a beautiful lawn. Dozens of assorted roses, Boston ivy climbing up the walls, the creeping figtree adorning them also with its delightful leaves; acacias of all kinds and the Melissa and Baileyana growing in friendly competition. The umbrella tree throwing its plumed head about in the gentle foothill breezes. There, too, is the oleander, the laurustinus, the privet, myrtle, spirea and the flowering maple, as well as others too numerous to mention. This is a veritable maze of flowers, shrubs and trees. Wild flowers, too, are here and many curious products of the world of California flora.

On every side are the residences of substantial citizens. Many of these have places of business in Los Angeles; others occupy themselves with their places of residence.

Daniel E. Fuller, who has a fine residence and property at the corner of Central and Kenneth road, bought 12 acres there some years ago when he came to the Coast from Boston, Mass. Mr. Fuller has seen the district develop all around him and has watched the value of property mount slowly till now it is held at $1000 a lot. From him Mr. Whitten of the Whitten poultry ranch bought his property, purchasing three acres. John Bliss, T. V. Vickers are other residents in this neighborhood. Here too is the famous Brockman place with its baronial entrance and avenues, its fine gardens and lawns.

Among the prominent members of the North Glendale community is Mr. David Black, who has his residence on Kenneth road. Mr. Black has taken a prominent part in the development of the district. He has a fine citrus ranch with bearing trees and is president of the North Glendale Reservoir and Pipe company.

PLANS FOR POLICE

FIFTEEN TELEPHONE CALL STATIONS ESTABLISHED IN CITY

Since the police force has come under the personal supervision of Mr. T. W. Watson, the city manager, various changes have been effected in its organization and various means have been taken to add to its efficiency and usefulness. Not the least valuable of those is the system of telephone calls that has been established. Formerly there were only four telephone stations where it was possible to notify the police that they were wanted or for the police to notify the office of what might be going on. Now there are fifteen such stations.

Some of the stations are located on Columbus near Sycamore, another on Pacific avenue near Vine. Two are on Verdugo road—one near Second avenue and the other near Colorado. The rest of the call stations are in the business district and easily reached. It is expected that this new arrangement will prove of great value, pending the establishment of a complete call system by means of lights. The patrolmen have been using four calls for some time and are now having the use of the 11 new phone stations.

There will be regular patrolling of the residence district from now on. The increase of the night squad to four men has made it possible to have this extension of the patrol service. The two men on during the day have been found sufficient to take care of the work up to this time. The patrolmen now cover more ground in their rounds and are also able to have some leisure to themselves.

The city is now patrolled as thoroughly as the limited numbers of the patrolmen will admit. As the men have also to answer messages sent in by citizens through the day it is necessary to have them within call of the telephone stations so as to get in touch with them immediately.

By and by the city manager hopes to have the police system brought to a point of perfection as far as the means at his command will allow

GLENDALE COMMERCIAL SCHOOL

Miss Veysey, who recently opened the Glendale Commercial school, on S. Brand boulevard, is being rewarded for her confidence in this city as a possible center for such a school by a small but steady increase in the number of her pupils. "I was urged," said Miss Veysey, "to establish my school in Los Angeles; but I like Glendale. I like its academic quiet; its freedom from many of the objectionable elements of the big city. I felt confident that here, though growth might be slow, I could not fail to establish a school that would repay me.

"I was fortunate enough to start in with a few pupils and one young lady who knew of my work in Los Angeles came out to reside in Glendale for the purpose of attending my classes. This week, too, I enrolled another pupil from Los Angeles and I consider myself fortunate to have been able to get along so well in so short a time.

"It usually takes some time to establish a new school in any neighborhood, but once established it should not be so difficult to keep it up. I hope to make my school one of the permanent establishments of Glendale."

LOCAL TALENT HONORED

Two of Glendale's younger singers, Gladys Sherman and Zetie Duncan, are appearing on a recital program, given by some of the advanced pupils of Mme. Norma Rockhold Robbins, at Chapel hall, University of Southern California. Many of Mrs. Robbins' pupils are doing semi-professional work, holding paid choir positions and giving recitals for clubs. Miss Hersey, a contralto, appeared before the Tuesday musical in Riverside with operatic selections and received very flattering notices from the Press there. Miss Atwater, who gave so much pleasure to her audience here in Glendale a month ago, sing before the Covina Woman's club Monday.

Mrs. Gladys Sherman was invited to sing some of Cadman's Indian songs at the Los Angeles High School commencement exercises three weeks ago and had a most enthusiastic reception. Miss Zetie Duncan, who has been holding a paid choir position in Los Angeles, was chosen out of many applicants to fill a difficult position in Sierra Madre, where she has a large choir under her direction.

DIPLOMATIC BREAK WITH GERMANY POSSIBLE

PRESIDENT WILSON IS EXPECTED TO APPEAR SHORTLY BEFORE CONGRESS TO EXPLAIN DISPUTE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 23.—Administration officials today stated that it was likely that President Wilson would appear before Congress shortly to express his desire to break off diplomatic relations with Germany. The president is represented as being deeply incensed at the manner in which the Germans have led this country along in futile negotiations on the subject of submarine warfare all the while carrying out their original policy of sinking ships without warning. The discussion of the president's alleged intention is evoking considerable difference of opinion here.

The Germans had been cleared completely out of these places, according to Premier Asquith and their other colonies, such as that in New Guinea and other Pacific Islands had been captured also. The Premier also announced that Lord Robert Cecil had been appointed minister of blockade and that he would prosecute the blockade with vigor, having complete charge of all that concerned it.

TEUTONS MAKE BIGGEST SMASH OF THE WAR SINCE LAST MAY NEAR VERDUN

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
BERLIN, Feb. 23.—In the greatest smash of the war since last May the German troops captured six miles of French trenches in the district around Verdun. They also took 3,000 prisoners and much booty in the way of machine guns and ammunition. French counter attacks to drive them out of the territory thus secured have been unavailing. In this region the French have a perfect labyrinth of wire entanglements and trenches defending the great fortress of Verdun.

WED FIFTY YEARS

G. A. R. POST AND CORPS HONOR MR. AND MRS. PRATT ON GOLDEN WEDDING

Club society is really the feature of Tropic social life, and among these activities this week none was more worthy of note than the golden wedding celebration given by N. P. Banks Corps and Post, in G. A. R. hall, Friday, the 18th inst., in honor of Comrade and Mrs. W. B. Pratt, who had on that date rounded out a half century of connubial bliss, and are now ascending with serene content the "Great Divide" which separates the "Known from the Unknown."

The hall for the occasion was most beautifully decorated with the golden fringed acacia and ropes of smilax, which colors accentuated the scheme of the dining room decorations. To the strains of Lohengrin, played by Mrs. Winona Crawford, at high noon, the bride and groom of fifty years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Pratt, marched into the hall, with their attendants, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Chandler, who New Year's day celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary; Mr. and Mrs. Jens Askeland, the latter a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pratt.

As this bridal party ascended the platform, amidst the applause and cheers from one hundred and fifty friends, they were met by Rev. J. H. Henry, who, in beautiful language, read the lines that cemented again the vows of love and protection, which they had chronicled to the world fifty years before, and which had been as faithfully kept. During the ceremony Mrs. Winona Henry Crawford sang very sweetly "O Promise Me," with Mrs. Gertrude Weller Griffin as accompanist. It is a beautiful sight to see the young maidens and youths stand before the world and pledge undying love and allegiance to each other—but there is always a fear in the hearts of friends that the untried life may, with its shoals and quicksands, prove too much for the untrodden feet, and that joy may be turned to sorrow, and love, faith and hope to gall and bitterness; but when those who have shared each other's joys and sorrows for fifty and sixty years, stand before the world as these two elderly couples did, faces radiant with God-given glory of love, faith, hope, joy and happiness, it is a sight to warm the hearts of all beholders, and preach a sermon of wisdom to the hearts of the young, not a sermon of words, but one of silence; one of actions; one that proves its message—that "Marriage is not a failure, when taken in the spirit of love and affection, with its hearth stone motto, "Love One Another."

After hearty congratulations were extended to the bride and groom, in which their attendants, Mr. and Mrs. Chandler, who had already added to their crown of glory, an extra ten years, equally shared, all marched into the banquet room and partook of a delicious feast, prepared and served by the Corps ladies.

After an hour of social converse a program of pleasing features was presented by the committee—Mrs. Gertrude Griffin and Mrs. Winona Crawford—which was as follows:

A piano solo by Mrs. Crawford, followed by an instrumental duet by Mrs. Griffin and niece, Miss Emma Lee Weller.

From a distance then came the various bugle calls of the army: Reveille, boots and saddles, water, stable, etc., given by Mr. J. J. Burke, and which took the old soldiers back to the 60s, when those calls were of daily occurrence—finding them always prepared to obey, and which one sees, by the sparkle of the eye and tenseness of body that, even now, a genuine call would find them ready.

In a short address Mrs. Myra C. K. Shuey presented to Mr. and Mrs. Pratt, in the name of N. P. Banks Corps and Post, a beautiful silver, gold-lined fruit dish; also a unique gold clock, from Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Chandler, which were heartily received, and elicited pleasing remarks from both bride and groom. A solo by Miss Elsie Anderson, "If I Were a Red Rose," was beautifully rendered.

A reading was given by Miss Emma Lee Weller, "That Old Sweetheart of Mine," which elicited much applause and was kindly responded to by Miss Weller, giving "Vas Marriage a Failure?" Miss Dorothy Hobbs sang very sweetly several Hawaiian songs, with ukelele accompaniment, which added to the enjoyment of the assemblage. Rev. Henry sang in his clear, sweet tones, "The Old Man Dreams," and in response to an encore gave "When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder."

Rev. C. H. Norton then addressed the newly re-wed in behalf of the Post, who had authorized him to place Comrade Pratt under bonds to show as good a record for faithful-

SCHOOL AND CAMPUS

TENNIS — DRAMATIC CLUB — WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY — BASEBALL — STYLUS — PRIZES

Last Saturday the Glendale tennis team took an easy victory from Redondo by the score of 16-3. Perhaps Pasadena High will score as heavily when we meet them next Saturday. The schools in the tennis league this year are Long Beach, Redondo, Pasadena, Santa Monica and Glendale. Glendale has a splendid tennis team this year. In fact, it is the best one that Glendale High has had for many years. "Bill" Balthis and Carleton West played on the team last year but they play better than ever this year. Lehman Crandall and Ed Heacock have come to the front this year. They both starred in the interclass matches. Glendale surely expects another victory next Saturday when the team will meet Pasadena on the Pasadena High courts.

Dramatic Club
"The Neighbors," "The Land of Heart's Desire" and "The Burglar" are the names of three plays which are now being rehearsed and which will be given before the dramatic club at a later date. All the skits are light and clever and are being worked up very nicely.

Washington's Birthday Exercises
School started at 8:30 yesterday morning and was dismissed at 1 o'clock. Patriotic exercises took place in the auditorium beginning at 8:30. The program consisted of three readings, which were given very well indeed. The reading of Helen Harden was on "The Flag." Mildred Wright's reading was entitled, "Lincoln, the Man of Sorrows," and Joseph Maier's was on "Washington." At the close of the program "America" was sung by the Student Body.

Baseball
Our first league game in baseball does not come off for some time, but a great many are showing up on the field every afternoon. The following will tryout for different positions on the team:

Very little material has been handed in so far. So get busy! You have a splendid chance for a prize.

Cafeteria
The cafeteria has been offering especially good things to eat during the warm weather. Yesterday's menu was: Cream Tomato Soup, 5c; Hot Hamburger Sandwich, 5c; Ham Sandwich, 5c; Beef Sandwich, 5c; Potato Salad, 5c; Apple Pie, 5c; Cake, 3c; Snow Pudding, Custard Sauce, 5c; Hot Chocolate, 5c; Orange and Vanilla Ice Cream, 5c. Glendale vs. Whittier
There will be a dual meet at Glendale next Saturday. Glendale vs. Whittier. Everybody come out!

ness, loyalty and love toward wife and home, at the close of the next fifty years, as now, which were promptly accepted by Comrade Pratt.

Mrs. Lillian Peckham sang a solo, "Because," in a sweet voice, with Mrs. Crawford at the piano. All joined in singing "America," when, with the pronouncing of the benediction by Rev. D. D. Cheney, the day of golden dreams, bright hopes and social converse was ended, and all dispersed with words of kindness for all, and the assurance that the day would ever stand in memory as a bright and shining monument to love and loyalty.

The committee who was responsible in a great measure for the success attained, was Mesdames Louise Purnell, Elizabeth Friedgen, Lillie Hartwig, Ella Watson, Mayme Pollock, Julia Saunders and Margaret Hibbert.

ONE POINT OF HONOR

There are curious anomalies in war. One would imagine that in a war where human lives are sacrificed every day in numbers that make it difficult for the countries engaged to keep the ranks of the opposing armies up to their natural strength, lives would not be wasted but husbanded, and carefully used. It looks, however, at times, as though French and German officials alike take Falstaff's view of their armies—"Food for powder; food for powder!" They sacrifice lives around the historical "Old Armand" hill, or as the Germans call it, "Hartmannswellerkopf," with a recklessness that is amazing, especially as no military advantage is to be gained by holding that worthless position.

Old Kaspar in Southey's poem in answer to the queries of the children about the battle of Blenheim, always answered fatuously, "It was a famous victory." That is about the rhyme and reason of the constant taking and retaking of Hartmannswellerkopf by the Germans and of "Old Armand" by the French. The fight for the possession of that worthless position has become an obsession with German and French alike. There are hundreds of other points in the fortified line on the western battle front that are of far more importance than this death trap, yet French and Germans fight for it with a pertinacity that is worthy of a better objective.

Every few days the newspaper dispatches mention that there has been fighting on Hartmannswellerkopf and one would almost think that the position is the key to Paris or to Berlin. French officers and German officers alike, however, confess that it is practically without any strategic significance. Now, however, it has become a point of honor with both armies to contend for the position, which just at present is in the hands of the French; but tomorrow may be in the hands of the Germans. The holding of "Old Armand" has degenerated into a personal quarrel between the French and German soldiers.

More than a year ago the dispute began when a small detachment of French chasseurs took possession of the hill. They were surprised by a larger force of Germans and driven out. That was on Jan. 15, 1915. Fortifying this position the Germans held it until the end of March, when they in turn were surprised by a larger force and turned out. Early in April the Germans charged again and recaptured part of the trenches they had lost; but the French again drove them out and took also another position closer to the German lines.

The Germans launched a counter attack April 26, taking back everything they had lost, including the summit of the hill. They then set to work to fortify their position and render it impregnable; but the French do not know the word "impregnable;" down on the devoted Germans came the "Blue Devils" as the Teuton calls the French Alpine chasseurs. They swarmed up the precipitous slope of Old Armand and in the face of a devastating fire from machine guns and rifle fire put the Germans to flight once more. The Germans tried to get it back again but failed; but they established trenches within seven yards of those of the French.

All through the summer this warfare went on and the Germans at last, on Sept. 9, retook the summit. The French came back the same night and drove home an attack, putting the Germans to flight. On Oct. 15 the Germans sent a strong mass of troops against the French and retook the hill. On Oct. 16 the French came tearing up the hill again and drove the Germans out. In December the deadly fight was renewed with varying fortunes and just before Christmas the French retook the hill and still hold it.

It is perhaps difficult to tell a non-fighter what is the meaning and use of all this. To the soldier it is a matter of national honor; to the layman it is foolishness; but as the French soldier says, "The man or the nation that will not fight is destined to be enslaved."
 "And how can man die better than facing fearful odds
 For the ashes of his fathers and the temples of his Gods?"

TUSKEEGEE JUBILEE SINGERS

Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, Tuskegee, Alabama, the famous negro training college founded by Booker T. Washington, has a choir of Jubilee singers, which is now traveling on the Coast. This choir consists of students from the Institute. They will be heard in Glendale, at the Presbyterian church, Thursday, Feb. 24, 8 p. m. The program will consist of old-fashioned plantation melodies, Negro spirituals, dialect readings. The story of the work done at the Institute will be told. The students are accompanied by Charles Winter Wood. No admission will be charged; but an offering will be asked for the purpose of furthering the work.

G. B. HOFFMAN, CANDIDATE FOR CITY TREASURER, MAKES DENIAL

To the Editor Glendale Daily News:
 Dear Sir—I beg for space in your paper to say to the voters of Glendale that all rumors spread recently of my intention to give up office as soon as elected are positively false. They can only be intended by certain interested persons to injure me in this campaign. A short time ago I was obliged to deny publicly a statement to the effect that I had no intention to be a candidate, that, too, having been circulated contrary to the truth. Fair opposition is welcome but it is despicable of any one to apply these foul means in opposing me.

I am a candidate for the office of City Treasurer, which I have held for the past five years, and, I believe, to the satisfaction of those who have elected me. I am in the race to win and to stay.

G. B. HOFFMAN.

IN CLUBDOM

The Political Science section of the Tuesday Afternoon club, of which Mrs. Mattison B. Jones is curator, will meet Thursday afternoon, February 24, at the home of Mrs. A. L. Weaver, 235 South Kenwood street, at 2:30 p. m. All members of the club are cordially invited.

Mrs. C. E. Harlan will speak on the Independence Union of self government of the colonies in general; Mrs. Harriet M. White will review the Union under the Continental Congress; Mrs. Williams is to tell of the Union under the Articles of Confederation, and Mrs. Mary C. Mandery will review Formation of State Government. There is to be no public meeting at the Intermediate school this month.

LECTURE ON "DANIEL" TONIGHT

The Rev. Leon Tucker, religious teacher of New York City, will lecture today in the Baptist church on the subjects of the books of "Daniel" and "Ruth." There will be two sessions, one at 3:00 p. m., the other at 7:45 p. m. All denominations are invited. This is a rare opportunity. Mr. Tucker is an expert on Daniel's prophecies and has given much time and study to mastering the difficulties of the book. No one should miss hearing these expositions.

The bright acacia blossoms about the rooms, with freesias, violets and fern fronds adorning the pretty dinner board of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Wilde, who on Tuesday bade for guests Mrs. E. W. McIntyre of San Francisco, Mrs. Jordan S. Neel of Glendale, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Curry and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pearson of Los Angeles, in their home at 238 North Louise street.

ON BALKAN NAMES

"The syllables 'cu' and 'escu,' which form the termination of the majority of Rumanian proper names," we read in W. V. Herbert's "By-Paths in the Balkans," "signify 'the son of,' and correspond to the 'off' of Bulgarian, 'vitch' of Servian, names. Thus a man Simonescu in Rumania would call himself, and would be called, Simonoff when in Bulgaria, Simonovitch when in Servia. The Slav custom of calling children after the Christian name of the father (without any other family name) is still extensively employed in Bulgaria and Servia; but . . . in Rumania, . . . family names after the European fashion are now in common use. The following is taken from a Bulgarian family of my acquaintance. The father was christened Peter, the son Dimitir; the latter's full name is, therefore, Dimitir Petroff; the son's son is christened George and lives in Servia where his name is George Dimitrovitch. The Turks use neither family names, nor father's names, but the latter are some-times employed for purpose of identification; the usual procedure is nick-name in addition to the baptismal name. Sometimes one finds the Slav and the Turk customs combined in one name, as in that of the present Servian King, Peter Kara-Georgevitch, Peter, the son of George the Black."

Elinor Glynn has written another story. Now, speaking of the necessity for censorship—

Gleason, at the Parliamentary section meeting of the Tuesday Afternoon club on the 22nd instant, and is to represent the Glendale club at the District Federation contest to be held at Hollywood during the month of March.

Samuel Parker is nearly as much at home at an Iowa picnic as Illinois, and hence had a good time at Eastlake Park yesterday, when Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Schroeder of Long Beach and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Ninno of Pomona, former residents of Osceola Co., Iowa (a part of the party with Illinois antecedents) made visiting a pleasure and dinner a delight. The Iowa picnic is a marvel of management in focusing all its energies on the one general gathering.

LECTURE ON "LOHENGRIN"

There was a large and gratifying attendance at the second lecture of the Wagner series given by Dr. Clement Burbank Shaw at the First Congregational church Monday night. The audience seemed to have more sympathetic comprehension of "Lohengrin" than of "Parsifal," which is very much longer and more complicated. The music of "Lohengrin" has been popularized to a much greater extent than that of "Parsifal." The lecture opened with a duet by Dr. Shaw and Mr. Thomas Askin. The duet was taken from the opera. Dr. Shaw interpreted the story of "Lohengrin" with lucidity and in language as beautiful as the music. Miss Mary Ashurst as pianist lent wonderful aid to the interpretation. The stereopticon views were appropriate and picturesque.

AN ANNUAL VISITOR

Mr. John W. Herwig of Price Hill, Cincinnati, Ohio, is on his annual trip to the Pacific coast, representing the H. Lieber company, an art firm of Indianapolis, Ind., and was a Sunday guest in the Philip Engelhorn home, 908 Lomita avenue. Mr. Herwig has been a regular, yearly, Southern California visitor for many years and never fails, when opportunity affords itself, in saying something good and true in favor of our "Land of Sunshine and Flowers." He says that he intends to end his earthly career in "God's Country" after his retirement from his strenuous business activities.

LUTHERAN CHOR TO MEET

Under the skilled direction of Prof. Laichinger the choir of the First English Lutheran church, corner Isabel and Third, has been recently making considerable progress. has a large property here also. Jack Kipper has a fine property in this neighborhood. Dan Campbell's beautiful home, Ard Eevin, is flanked by that of his brother, Arthur Campbell. George Mitchell is another of the substantial residents of the neighborhood, and Alex Mitchell of the United States Land office also has his residence here.

There are many others who as citizens and worthy residents help to make up a neighborhood community that in importance and intelligence ranks very high.

L. C. Brand, who has done so much for both Glendales, is also a resident of this neighborhood, as also is Mrs. Valentine, one of the old settlers in the region, who is still a resident of the region. The North Glendale or Casa Verdugo M. E. church, of which the Rev. Julius Soper is pastor, is an active element in the community.

That North Glendale is growing is not only attested by the residents but is evidenced by the erection of new residences and the comparison with statistics of other days. Such a region grows insensibly but none the less surely. It is bound to become more and more a high-class residence district. Mountain, Randolph, Fairview, Stocker, Loraine, Dryden, and the other residence streets of the neighborhood are studded with substantial residences and give room for the homes of the very best kind of citizenship. The future of North Glendale is in the hands of its own people and judging from their intelligence it could not be in safer hands.

The Foothill Club

At their attractive home, 925 Stocker street, Mrs. Andrew Robertson assisted by Mrs. G. K. Barnes entertained members of the Foothill club on Friday afternoon of last week.

The decorations were brilliant and beautiful, quantities of red and white carnations intermingled with ferns being the attractive combination about the rooms.

The annual election of officers was held. Mrs. W. S. Porter, Sr., was re-elected president and Mrs. M. Oliver secretary, taking office upon the retirement of Mrs. E. B. Wyman. The executive board is composed of Mesdames Chas. H. Toll, Alex Mitchell and N. C. Kelley.

An hour of amusement was afforded with a clever guessing contest. As bidden by the hostesses each guest brought a "babyhood" photo of themselves. Mrs. Chas. H. Toll was awarded the prize for guessing the greatest number correctly and was presented with a beautiful fern dish and plant.

The ices and individual cakes were decorated with miniature cherry trees and hatchets suggested the Washington birthday motif.

The next affair will take place March 17th, Saint Patrick's day, with Mrs. Joseph M. McMillan of 915 Mountain street, Casa Verdugo, as hostess. Other hostesses for this year are: Mrs. W. P. Thompson for the month of April, Mrs. Charles L. Richter, May; Mrs. Alfred Priest, June; Mrs. Julius Kranz, July; no meeting during August; Mrs. Alex Mitchell, September; Mrs. E. B. Wyman, October; Mrs. Richard L. Phister, November, and Mrs. Wm. S. Porter, Sr., for the month of December.

At the recent meeting of The New Thought Center, in the home of Mrs. J. C. Dennerler at No. 1304 North Central Avenue, about 25 persons listened to a splendid talk by Dr. Harold Palmer of Long Beach on "Self Expression." Announcement of next meeting made later.

An adjourned meeting of the W. C. T. U. under the directorship of the county organizer, Mrs. W. B. Gaylord, will be held and perfected on Wednesday afternoon, the 23rd instant, at the home of Mrs. Walridge, corner of Pioneer Drive and North Central avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford H. Cunningham of 1013 Fairview Avenue were recent host and hostess at a smart evening affair, entertaining about thirty guests in their attractive home.

Mrs. Georgia Mitchell of Yuma, Arizona, is leaving Thursday, and has for the past ten days been the guest of Miss Barbara Mitchell of Kenneth Road.

Mr. Nat B. Brown of 1620 Stocker street spent Sunday and Monday at Long Beach, taking part in the Tennis Tournament on the Hotel Virginia courts.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Mitchell of Kenneth road and party motored to Monrovia on Tuesday, where the hours were spent with friends.

SURPRISED BY FRIENDS

Mr. Earl Brown, son of the V. Price Browns, at 147 South Louise street, furnished the inspiration for a jolly party on the evening of Washington's birthday, when about 40 members of the younger set extended him a real surprise party at the parental home, in celebration of his natal day, also the 22nd of February. Games and music furnished pleasant diversions for the evening. At a late hour supper was served, the feature of the repast being a huge birthday cake prettily decorated in the national colors and bearing the name of the honoree.

BACK TO THE SOIL

MRS. NANNO WOODS TELLS OF THE IDEAL IN DIGGING AND PLANTING

In the midst of all the enthusiasm that prevails in Glendale over the work of planting the back yard and the family lot it is to be hoped that there is no one who is blind enough to overlook or to despise this work. That there should be those who consider digging and planting beneath them is not astonishing. The subject has been too often neglected and not properly presented; but where it has been brought in the proper manner before young people they have invariably turned to the work with a clear comprehension of its value.

There is not the slightest fear that the work of gardening or agriculture in general will ever be neglected by the educational leaders of the land. They are well aware of its importance and it would be well for every high school pupil and for every pupil of every public school to take up the subject of gardening and the production of vegetables for the household.

In this connection it is interesting to learn what men of wisdom and experience think and it is also interesting to learn what the leaders of the State think. The University of California deems the subject worthy of great attention. In circular No. 80, issued October, 1912, boys' and girls' agricultural clubs are extensively described and urged. It tells us that nearly all the great agricultural states of the Middle West have had successful experience with boys' and girls' agricultural clubs. Most states from Maine to Louisiana and from Florida to Oregon have had some of these clubs, and in some states many thousands of young people belong to them.

The University bulletin is issued in the hope that thousands of California boys and girls may join such clubs. The University furnishes the city and county superintendents of schools with special circulars on agricultural club contests; the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., will send, free of cost, valuable pamphlets, bulletins, etc., that will instruct the members on almost any line of study they may undertake.

Potatoes, wheat, corn, cotton, even sweet peas, trees, or poultry, are subjects deemed by the heads of our country to be worthy of the closest investigation and study. Lima beans, sugar beets, rose culture, chrysanthemum growing, all these departments are fostered and encouraged by such men as Benjamin Wheeler and Thomas F. Hunt, leaders of present-day thought.

In a recent number of the Outlook, than which there is no more serious or dignified magazine in the United States, several pages were devoted to the serious consideration of Hog Clubs for boys and girls. Thousands of boys and girls belong to these clubs back east; the first prize for last year, in competition with thousands of exhibitors, was won by a boy ten years old. His name and photograph were blazoned by the Outlook, that other boys and girls all over our country should admire and respect and emulate this manly little fellow.

Last Saturday morning Professor Schufeldt showed on the screen of the Palace Grand a picture of some twenty of the finest young men to be found anywhere; clear-eyed, straight-limbed, clean-cut young men, university students, their faces indicative of manliness, energy and brain power. They were all laughing, all holding grips in their hands, bound for the most delightful holiday they ever spent. They traveled from here to Washington, were met at every big city by municipal and university deputations, feted and treated and honored all the way from here to Washington and back again. What had they done to merit these great honors? What mighty things had they accomplished that cities and colleges should yield them homage and that Washington itself should receive them with acclamation? They had tilled the soil aside from their university courses; they had ploughed land, and made straight rows and dug trenches and sowed seed and planted—yes, potatoes. Hundreds of young men had worked hard, soiled their hands and bent their backs over cultivation of the earth.

These twenty, having wrested the greatest amount of product from the soil, had received their reward in the shape of this wonderful trip across the States; had been acclaimed by the highest in the land, and have had their photographs shown on screens in every part of our republic, that they may be known and recognized as the manliest type and most truly patriotic type of young man in California today.

"We're building mighty cities, and we're gaining lofty heights; We're winning lots of glory and we're setting things to rights; We're showing all creation how the world's affairs should run. And men will gaze with wonder at the things that we have done. But they'll overlook the fellow, just the same as we do now. Who's the whole concern's foundation—that the man behind the plough."

NANNO WOODS, President Glendale Garden Society.

TROPICO

Mr and Mrs Clarence C. Rittenhouse in company with Mrs. Enid Robinson picnicked in the Burbank hills, Sunday.

Mrs Estelle Lawton Lindsey, Los Angeles councilwoman, will address the Tropico Parent Teacher Association Friday evening, at the Cerritos street school, following the dinner which is to be served by the members of the P. T. A. It is desired there be a large attendance.

Mrs Eustace Benton Moore, president of the Tropico branch of Parent Teacher Association announces that the regular monthly meeting will be held Thursday afternoon, the 24th, in Cerritos school. Music will be furnished by the pupils of the school, under the direction of Miss Ruth Mitchell, supervisor of music, in the Tropico schools. Mrs H. V. Davis of Los Angeles will give a talk on "Practical Patriotism." As this is a most interesting topic for discussion and Mrs Davis is of pleasing personality the program gives promise of being a very interesting one.

Mr and Mrs A. L. Watson of Burbank, with Mrs. Myra C. K. Shirey and Mrs Augusta Haefke of Tropico, motored to Santa Monica, Sunday where they were the guests of Mr and Mrs L. E. Hoffman, former residents of Tropico.

Miss Nan Anderson and sister Miss Elsie Anderson of Virginia Place were the guests of the W. C. Flemings of Los Angeles over Sunday.

Baraca boys of the Tropico Methodist church entertained the Phila-thea girls with a moonlight picnic in Griffith Park Monday night. The trip was made in a hay rick and a delicious supper had been provided by the boys, which was augmented by roasted wieners and hot coffee, when they reached the picnic grounds. The young hosts were Messrs. Will Marple, E. McBride, Levert Goddard, Clyde Phillips, Will Hewitt, Pleas Spear, Harry Chandler, Robert Horn, Austin Edwards, Ray Goodsell and Leo Fillinger.

The White Sox ball team of Los Angeles crossed bats with the recently organized Tropico team and won by a score of 7 to 4.

Mrs. J. E. Bahrenberg entertained as her guests the past few days at her home, "Twin Pines," on West Park avenue, her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Bahrenberg, and daughter, Miss Rhea Bahrenberg, of Los Angeles.

Miss Emma Hagarty of Los Angeles, who has many friends in Tropico and Glendale and who but recently returned from a three months' visit in New York and Pennsylvania, was the week-end guest of Mrs. David H. Imler of West Park avenue.

Thursday afternoon, March 2, is the date arranged for the game of basketball, which will be played on the Tropico play-ground, between the basketball team of the Cerritos street school and the Glendale Intermediate school team. A lively game is predicted by those who are familiar with the work of these teams.

Mrs. Frank I. Marsh of N. Central avenue, Tropico, spent Tuesday, Feb. 22, at Griffith's Park picnicking with Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Wheelock and Miss Anna Graham of Hollywood.

A parliamentary drill will precede the regular monthly meeting of the Cerritos school Parent-Teacher association, to be held tomorrow afternoon. This drill is at 2:30 and will be given in one of the primary grade rooms, school having been closed for the afternoon, for the primary pupils. The P. T. A. meeting is called for 3:15 and it is desired that the patrons and friends attend the drill as well as the meeting of the P. T. A.

STUDENTS' MUSICAL RECITAL

Mrs. Laura Jones gave a musical recital at her home, 118 W. Third street, Tuesday night, with the assistance of her students, who presented a very fine program of vocal and instrumental music and readings. About fifty were present. The class, which consists of Gladys Jones, Pearl Jones, Frances Gilman, Mrs. J. M. Miles, Eva May, Lucille Negley, Mavis McNary, Elizabeth Cadd, Vivian Engel and Dorothy Cookson, showed evidence of very careful and accurate training. In such a difficult piece as Bach's Fifth Nocturne, Lucille Negley played with a certainty of touch and a complete understanding of the soul of the composition as was astonishing. In the "Soldier's March" from Gounod's "Faust" Elizabeth Cady and Mavis McNary gave the requisite martial expression and elicited great applause. In Wallace Smith's "Scene de Ballet" Vivian Engel displayed a knowledge of technique and a mastery of expression, that pleased the audience. Dorothy Cookson in Traux' "La Gondrina" merited the applause she earned. The progress made by all the pupils was most remarkable.

MILFORD 500 CLUB

Mrs. C. H. Thompson of 1448 Milford entertained with a most delightfully arranged 500 party on Tuesday afternoon of this week, when the guests were members of the Milford Street 500 club. In keeping with the day a clever decorative and service motif of red, white and blue was carried out. Club members received included Mrs. E. L. Young, whose high score captured first prize, Mrs. S. C. Leppleman being presented the consolation, and Mesdames H. B. Fletcher, Burris, Wm. E. Empey, Wm. M. Blakemore, Gled, Fred L. Miller, Dale O. Peet, C. D. Hellyer, L. H. Jenkins and H. V. Brummel.

COLUMBUS AVENUE P. T. A.

Seldom, if ever, has a great nation been called on to exercise more patience than the United States in the present crisis both in Mexico and in Europe. That the nation still restrains itself is a wonderful example of the confidence the country reposes in the President who has striven to keep the nation out of war.

The real patriotism of the country is not to be found in the minds of politicians eager for unripe measures and looking toward selfish ends; but in the great heart of the people that is ever ready to respond to the higher call of duty.

THE PLAYGROUND MOVEMENT IN THE UNITED STATES

By Pauline Thorpe

"Plenty of room for dives and dens (glitter and glare of sin); Plenty of room for prison pens (gather the criminals in); Plenty of room for jails or courts (willing enough to pay). But never a place for the lads to race, no, never a place to play!"

"Plenty of room for shops and stores (mammon must have the best); Plenty of room for the running sores that rot in the city's breast! Plenty of room for the lures that lead the hearts of our youth astray; But never a cent for playground spent, no, never a place to play."

"Plenty of room for schools and halls, plenty of room for art; Plenty of room for teas and balls, platforms, stage and mart; Proud is the city—she finds a place for many a fad today; But she's more than blind if she fails to find a place for the boys to play!"

"Give them a chance for innocent sport, give them a chance for fun, Better a playground plot than a court and a jail when the harm is done! Give them a chance, if you stint them now, tomorrow you'll have to pay A larger bill for darker ill, so give them a place to play!"
 —D. A. McCarthy.

The people of the United States are realizing more and more every day that there is more in the public playground idea than just play for the children, important as that conception is, and very likely always will be. They are coming to know that playgrounds and recreation facilities generally belong in the plans for civic government quite as much as schools and good roads and water supplies.

The interesting development of special importance for the future permanency of the movement on a sane basis is the tendency to create city departments to assume charge of all provision for recreation—not children only, but all inhabitants, young and old.

The current conception of public recreation service does not mean less attention to the children, but it does mean a more complete plan, which will provide for all ages according to their needs, and it means not only creation and development of playgrounds, but wiser use of other means for recreation—parks, rivers, lakes and harbors, school houses and other public buildings and lands.

With so many young men and women, from both foreign and native stock, who cannot or will not or do not know how to use their free hours properly, and who make such woeful blunders in trying to find out how to have "good times"—with these conditions so evident there is ample chance to show them. They are willing to look, listen and learn. An intelligent guidance of the observation of public holidays is almost reason enough for such recreation departments as are being developed in progressive cities of the United States.

Only within very recent years have the largest and most congested of our American cities come to realize that wholesome outdoor recreation is a valuable aid toward the making of good citizens. As long ago as 1860 school boys under sixteen were permitted to play baseball in Central park (New York), on a single diamond laid out specially for them, and about twenty years ago lawn tennis began to be played on the spacious meadows of that park. But it is only within the last decade that the old idea of a public park as simply an inclosed tree and shrubby garden, with handsome lawns protected by plenty of "keep off the grass" signs, has given place to the new idea that a great and crowded city's parks should be the playgrounds of its children of all ages; that to be enjoyed of the people the parks should be used by the people. Today there is scarcely any outdoor sport indulged in by Americans that is not encouraged in the parks of New York City. Baseball, football, basket ball, tennis, golf, cricket, croquet, archery, la crosse, polo, rowing, swimming, running, skating, driving, athletics, are all fostered in the larger parks and there can be no doubt that the good health of many thousands of the city's people is enhanced thereby.

But the children and youth, especially, most in need of fresh air and wholesome recreation are those who live in the crowded tenement districts, and who by reason of the distances and the cost of transportation cannot get to the larger parks, where this array of sports and games is provided for. Yet they rightfully have as much claim on the city as the children of the well to do. Even more remarkable than the growth of popular interest in sports in the larger parks has been the development in the last three or four years of scientifically arranged and conducted playgrounds for the poor children of the tenement house neighborhoods in certain of the smaller parks of the city. Here the municipality fosters games and sports of various kinds by providing not only the grounds with suitable fixture and equipment, but also the individual implements of all kinds, such as balls, bats, dumbbells, Indian clubs, and even tennis racquets, which are necessary, and furthermore, it employs a corps of instructors to teach the children now to play various games and how to get the most good out of their exercises. In each of these playgrounds parks there have been organized baseball teams, basketball teams, tennis teams and track teams, among them there is keen competition. Schedules are arranged and carried out regularly. The teams in one park challenge those of other parks, and the school and settlement house teams. The boys have organized clubs of their own, and the pride they take in them is surprising. They buy their own uniforms, and they take good care of the park property, too, realizing that if it stolen or damaged, they are injured just that much. The aim of the instructors is to devote as much time as possible to the general mass on the playground and yet develop teams and clubs. The enthusiasm among the boys for these clubs has grown rapidly, and there is now displayed a considerable park spirit.

These municipal playgrounds are of inestimable benefit to the girls of the poorer quarters also. A goodly space in the park is set apart for their use, and is equipped with courts for tennis, basketball, tetherball and volley ball, with swings of various sizes, and with the Maypole-like arrangement known as the giant stride. They receive instruction in light gymnastics, running, dumbbell exercises, dancing games, and many others, and through the summer in the hottest hours of the day kindergarten and social occupation work are taught to all girls from four to fifteen years of age. In each of the playgrounds there are sand houses, building blocks, and baby swings for the smallest children. In Hamilton Fish park there is a library and quiet hour room, where the girls spend many an enjoyable hour. Among the larger girls the playground is almost as popular in winter as in summer, especially in snow time, when there is all the fun of building toboggan-slides, snow men and snow houses. In winter, also, numerous entertainments and parties are given in the playgrounds, and these are so enjoyable that they are extremely popular.

"When the public school closes for the vacation my business begins to pick up." This statement was recently made at a playground meeting by the judge of the juvenile court in a leading western city. At a similar meeting in another city the following testimony was also given by a juvenile court judge: "About five months ago the physical director of our Y. M. C. A. undertook to provide organized games and athletics for the boys of my district. The gymnasium of a clubhouse in that neighborhood was secured for the certain afternoons and evenings, a vacant lot was fitted up as an athletic field and playground, and the boys were organized into teams and clubs. Meetings and practice hours were scheduled and tournaments arranged. During the five months that his work has been in progress the business of my court has decreased seventy-five per cent."

These accounts are given to illustrate the fact that the need of organized play is being recognized, and the remedy applied in the cities of the west as well as in the east. Cities are coming to realize that it does not pay to turn the boys and girls loose, not only for the summer, but even after school hours and on Saturdays, with no place for play except the streets, alleys, railroad yards, docks etc., places in which, in most cities, they are forbidden to play. Dr. Gulick stated the situation pretty fairly when he said "When a municipality makes it illegal to play in the streets, it should provide places where play will not only be lawful, but will be encouraged."

The average city child looks upon all out-of-doors as the enemy's country and therefore abuses the privileges and blessings that he has never been taught to use. When he learns that out-of-doors belongs to the crowd and to him as a member of that crowd, his attitude is likely to become a partner instead of a competitor. The boy who plays a game with the policeman by seeing how far he can get into mischief and not get caught is not likely to hesitate to play the same game on a larger scale with the officers of the law when he comes to be a man.

It is true that long ago a very wise man said "The play of the children has the mightiest influence on maintenance or non-maintenance of laws." But nobody pays much attention to Plato nowadays. The spirit of this modern awakening is more amply reflected in the words of one of its readers: "The boy without a playground is the father to the man without a job."

In 1897 the only public school playground in this city of New York was an abandoned cemetery. Now there are two hundred and sixty-one of these reservations, for the maintenance of which one hundred and twenty-three thousand dollars was spent in 1909. The total amount thus far expended for playgrounds in New York is fifteen million dollars. This is no more than a beginning, however, for during a recent year four hundred New York children were injured by passing vehicles while playing in the streets in front of their schoolhouses. In eleven years Chicago has spent eleven million dollars on a system of playgrounds and recreation centers, which former President Roosevelt calls the greatest civic betterment the world has ever seen.
 San Francisco, in the tremendous struggle to rebuild upon her ruins, set apart one million dollars for establishing playgrounds for her children. Berkeley, California, by no means a metropolitan city, has issued bonds for four hundred and fifty thousand dollars, to pay for playgrounds, while Portland, Oregon, has employed one of the most famous landscape architects to turn a large tract of land into the best playgrounds and athletics fields possible. Detroit had nine playgrounds in 1908 and their value was so impressively proved that the mayor persuaded eighty property owners to lend their vacant lots to the city. Cleveland had twenty-two public playgrounds in operation in 1909 and Dayton spent seventy-five thousand dollars to buy and equip the first of a series. In 1910 three hundred and thirty-six cities are maintaining public playgrounds. In one hundred and eighty-four cities the amount expended in 1909 was $1,153,114. Philadelphia has 73 of these recreation centers, Boston 77, Baltimore 50, Pittsburgh 28 and Washington 32.

Chicago is an example of what the playground movement is accomplishing. In its public parks there are ball fields, tennis courts, lagoons for rowing and skating, toboggan slides, bandstands, swimming pools, wading pools, sand courts, swings and teeters, outdoor gymnasiums, one for girls and women and one for boys and men. And inside the field houses are indoor gymnasiums, shower baths, plunge baths, locker rooms, lunch rooms, reading rooms, club rooms and huge assembly halls for musicales, lectures and dances. All except the lunch rooms are to be enjoyed without paying a cent, not as gifts from generous millionaires, but as public places belonging of right to the people.

The outdoor gymnasiums are open for the six warm months, the indoor gymnasiums for winter. All who use the indoor gymnasiums must register every year. In the winter of 1906 11,741 women and girls enrolled, 19,535 men and boys. The average for each park's indoor gymnasiums was 2,675 boys and girls under 16, and 1,951 from that age upwards. The total indoor gymnasium attendance for the year was 371,158. And in outdoor gymnasiums and playgrounds, not counting spectators, 2,278,847.

Here in charge are skilled specialists under the head athletic director, men and women trained to know the significance of the play instincts, their relation to the physical, mental and social development of young people. For the dominant interest in youth is not work, but play, and although, under the present system of things, most of our city children must go to the factories, mills and stores at from twelve to sixteen years of age, still there is here the chance to give them back at least part of what nature so plainly intended.

The interpark leagues have been formed for football, baseball and basketball teams of four weights, from the sturdy little "midgets" to the champions. On all teams are about five hundred men and boys, while in the league for track and field athletics last year over 900 entered the qualifying meet, two hundred surviving for the big final meet in September.

In the afternoons or at night under the glare of electric towers you may see the superbly equipped outdoor gymnasiums, crowded with men and boys of all ages and races—Irish, German, Swedish, Norwegian, Polish, Bohemian, Jew and Italian. On one basketball team a German, a Jew, a Swede and an Irishman fought side by side for months.

In the outdoor and indoor gymnasiums for women and girls, gymnastic dances and drills and games of all kinds are the general rule. Even the girls who work in the downtown department stores come night after night through the winter. At first they felt "too tired," but when a few began they found it such splendid fun after the nervous strain of the day, that now they come in crowds. Dozens of girls who slept poorly at night have come here and now have no trouble in sleeping.

The outdoor swimming pools range in size from about 60 feet long to the one in McKinley Park, set in a meadow and bordered with sandy, 365 feet long by 165 feet wide, the largest pool in America. The pools are all clean and allowing one hundred gallons of fresh water for each bather. When enough people have used the pool to equal its capacity the pool is emptied, thoroughly cleaned and refilled. The pools are open from June to October, from 10 in the morning until 10 at night. The time allowed for each crowd of bathers is 45 minutes.

There are other places besides the swimming pools to splash in. Every small park has a wading pool, from 50 to 100 feet indiameter, the depth from six inches to eighteen inches at the fountain in the middle. The water here is constantly changing, and besides contains a disinfecting solution to prevent any chance of contagion.

The luncheons supply food at cost. One lunch room served 3,500 people in one week, and in 1906 the attendance for all lunch rooms was 429,312.

The reading rooms, open till ten in the evening are splendid rest room places from the tenement noise. Many have wide arch windows overlooking lagoons and meadows. The club rooms are fast being filled not only by boys and girls, but also older people.

The present idea of playgrounds was introduced into America in 1886 by some ladies who had noticed the German children playing in sand heaps in the parks of Berlin. From these piles, playgrounds have developed and it remains with the American to show what this fertile idea may mean to thousands of children and grownups as well. Judge Lindsey says: "Playgrounds are an economy to the city, because they lessen crime." Roosevelt has said: "Public playgrounds are a necessary means for the development of wholesome citizenship in modern cities," voicing in other words the adage, "The child who plays hard is father to the man who 'works well.'" Because American needs men who "work well" she also needs playgrounds and is beginning to realize their possibilities.

A larger percentage of the younger generation which a playground serves can avail themselves of its opportunities only after working hours. Therefore, one of the most important phases of a playground's functions is that it be kept open in the evening and healthful exercises and wholesome amusements provided to boys and girls who would otherwise spend them on the streets. Notwithstanding the vast proportions assumed by the playground movement in the last two or three years, the problem of illumination has received scanty attention. Although many playgrounds remain open in the evening, the illumination is ordinarily accomplished by a few lamps scattered about the grounds in a more or less careless fashion, and in an absolutely unscientific manner.

The correct lighting of a playground will accomplish these results; it will attract more people; it will unconsciously impart to the people a spirit of cheerfulness; it will increase safety, and make the supervision of the playground easier. Light attracts, gloom repels. Cheerfulness is not merely desirable for a playground, it is a prime necessity; and there is nothing that can add so much to the cheerfulness of a playground in the evening as a wealth of illumination. The value of light in this connection is easily appreciated if we stop to consider the difference in our state of mind on a dark rainy day and on a bright and sunny day. Our largest industrial plants recognize the value of light in making the surroundings congenial and are brilliantly illuminating their shops and factories, with the result that the workmen are turning out more and better work.

It is highly important in handling such a large body of children as usually congregate in a playground at night that the supervisors be provided with every facility to assist them in their work. Illumination therefore is highly important in this connection and will prevent many accidents among the children.
