WikiUral Competition is a global Wiki competition dedicated to Ural. The purpose of the contest is creation and improvement of articles that correspond to Wikipedia notability guidelines. We invite you to enrich Wikipedia with quality works about the Earth's nature phenomenon—Ural mountains, history of its discovery, exploration, economy and culture of the Ural region and other aspects of Uralic life.

The Competition is dedicated to the memory of Lev Vladimirovich Bankovsky, scientist and encyclopedist who lived in Ural region and worked for long time at Ural branch of Russian Academy of Sciences. During preparations for the contest many of the materials (classifiers, glossaries, dictionaries and encyclopaedias) were used which also were used by Bankovsky when he was working on Ural Encyclopaedia, Upper Kama Encyclopaedia and other works.

WIKIURAL

The 2nd round of the WikiUral Competition is being held from December 15, 2016 until July 1, 2017 (inclusively). The 1st round has ended on December 15, 2016. Articles that were created during the 1st round in the projects/editions of Wikipedia where the Competition was not announced completed, automatically go to the 2nd Round.

All of the participants in those Wikipedia editions, where the Competition was announced completed, can also participate in the 2nd round, but no more material prizes are planned there (this may be changed in the future though).

This is the English language page of the contest (WMRU version, see also Meta-Wiki version).

The definition of Ural is:

Ural (russian: Урал) — geographical region located in Russia and Kazakhstan, also Ural economic region and administrative division of Ural Federal District.
