Economic Purge (B)

Japan's recovery program is seriously impeded by a lack of talent the difficulty of finding suitable persons to fill vital posts in government as well as in business.

There are not a few men who possess long experience and proven ability in their respective fields, and whose services would be of an inestimable value to the country, but who have been excluded from public office on nominal grounds. I feel keenly the urgent need of having such men reinstated in positions of usefulness. I desire to appeal to you for special consideration concerning the five men, whose names are given separately together with brief sketches of their careers.

Detailed personal histories of these men are on file at your headquarters. I confine myself to a few remarks and the reasons why I ask for their release from purge.

Kimura was purged for his connections with the Butoku Kai. His position as head of the Fencing Division in that organization was an honorary one which was offered him because of his prominence as a citizen and his hobbies of fencing and sword collection, which of course have nothing to do with militarism and aggression. He headed the Setagaya branch of the Imperial Rule Assistance Association, which perhaps is the reason for his purge. But that was a post he was pursuaded to take by his fellow-wardmen in order to keep out a notorious ex-army man from it. Kimura is a first-rate lawyer, and I would like to see him serve as Attorney General, or the chief Judge of the Highest Court, in future.

Kobayashi is a business man, who achieved an outstanding success as promoter and operater of Suburban tramways in Osaka and Tokyo. He was ousted from the position of Minister of Commerce and Industry in the Konoe Cabinet by the military, who disliked his liberalism. His advisership to the Imperial Rule Assistance Association was an ex-officio post, which he assumed automatically as a cabinet member, as did all his colleagues. I can find no man better qualified for the presidency of the new National Railways Corporation of Japan.

Mukai, being a leader of a leading zaibatsu, his purge was inevitable. But he has a wide circle of friends among business men in America, England and elsewhere abroad, among whom he commands as always high esteem and absolute confidence. He is an indispensable man to Japan's foreign trade. He was compelled to resign by the pressure of the military from the presidency of the Mitsui Trading Co.

Nakabe devoted all his years from boyhood to fishery and other multiple enterprises of his family. His only fault was that the capital of his firm happened to exceed the figure of ¥ 100,000,000. We need his extensive knowledge and experience for the revival of our aquatic industry.

Obama was disqualified for having been a member of the Central Co-operative Council of the Imperial Rule Assistance Association. As an influencial newspaper man he could not help being drawn into it. No journalist in his position could have survived that Association's displeasure, which he would incur by refusing its invitation to join the Council. Obama is remembered for his crusade against bureaucracy. I prize his profound economic knowledge and insight as well as his forthright personality.

COPY

It is my earnest hope that the cases of these men will be reviewed not only according to their intrinsic merits but also in the light of our pressing need of men, which is even greater that of money and materials.

Central News Agency of China

TOKYO, April 8 (Central News): The reinstatement of certain individual economic purgees before the end of this year is a definite possibility, according to a high SCAP ESS official. The economic purge, unlike the political purge, was never intended to be a permanent state of affairs, this official pointed out. He admitted there was some ground to support the contention in some circles that the post-war economic field is conspicuously lacking in experienced and high caliber personnel.

From other sources, Central News learns that Prime Minister Yoshida is also optimistic regarding hopes of putting more business executives back into operation to assist in restoring Japan's shattered economy. It is revealed that Prime Minister Yoshida, in a meeting with General MacArthur shortly after leaving his sick-bed in Oiso recently, brought up the subject of reinstating economic purgees on a basis of careful examination of their individual records. On this occasion SCAP declined to make any committment and did not voice any objections.

A high government official admits that the reinstatement of top-bracket economic leaders will be much more remote possibility than the release of larger numbers of middle-brack executives. It is pointed out that Mr. Yoshida is interested in releasing the following top-bracket economic leaders:

IKEDA Seihin, ex-managing director of Mitsui Honsha and ex-Finance Minister and Commerce-Industry Minister. -no

KANO Kiura, ex-president of Yokohama Specie Bank. - no

SUZUKI Sachiye, ex-president of Tokyo Fire & Marine Insurance Co. - no

MURATA Shozo, ex-president of Osaka Shosen Kaisha. - yes but not enough

YAMAMURO Sobun, ex-managing director of Mitsubishi Trust Co. - no

TAKASAKI Tatsunosuke, ex-president of Manchurian Heavy Industries. - no

MUKAI Tadaharu, ex-managing director of Mitsui Honsha. - yes 6 mar 46

GOTO Keita, ex-president of Tokyo-Yokohama Electric Railways Co. - no

NISHIYAMA Ben, Financial Commissioner of Finance Ministry in USA at outbreak of Pacific War. - no

It is pointed out that each of the above named men is a specialist in some economic field, Ikeda on general policy, Kano on foreign exchange, Suzuki on insurance, Murata on shipping, Yamamuro on banking, Takasaki on heavy industry, Mukai on foreign trade, Goto on transportation and Nishiyama on foreign finance. It is also significant that all except Goto have studied or served abroad for long periods and are experienced in dealing with westerners. However, in view of the fact that most of them were top executives of zaibatsu companies, chances of their release is immeasurably difficult as they fall under permanent purge category.

(Embassy (Mr Auchincloss) to see Yoshida reported by reporter Mainichi (Mar 4) 1946 preceding)

Younger executives such as directors of companies during the war period have a much better chance of being cleared or having their purge terms shortened.

The fact that the economic purge was a sweeping decree which automatically disqualified thousands of promising young executives for holding responsible positions in certain types of firms during the war, allowed no ground or opportunity for discussion or appeal until comparatively recently.

Thus far Prime Minister Yoshida has not taken any action beyond mentioning to General MacArthur the desirability of making possible the freeing of certain categories of economic executives who were not engaged in activities beyond their normal duties during the war. Nothing has been done to even sound out SCAP's Government Section, which is directly concerned with the execution of the purge directive, on the subject of releasing economic purgees.

3 BUSINESS LEADERS SEEN
LIKELY TO BE DEPURGED

JIJI PRESS

Tokyo April 7. - Three business leaders, including two former Mitsui executives, will be among the first to be depurged if and when the Government finally decided on relaxing the present purge decree with respect to some economic leaders, according to certain influential financial sources.

Speculation is rife in business and other circles here after Premier Shigeru Yoshida indicated at a press conference this morning that the depurging of some economic leaders considered capable enough to contribute to national economic recovery was under contemplation (see pages 1 to 8 today's NOON EDITION).

These sources declared that for promotion of Japan's foreign trade the most useful purpose would be served if the Government released from the purge designation Tadaharu Mukai, former Mitsui Bussan executive in charge of shipping, Katsunosuke Shimada, also former Mitsui Bussan executive and ex-president of the Hokkaido Colliery Steamship[a/] Company, and Kanzo Tanaka, former board chairman of the Mitsubishi Trading Company.

These three persons mentioned, according to the same sources, are believed to be in close touch with Premier Yoshida.

Officials of the Attorney General's Office and the Purge Review Board said, however, that it would be difficult to relax the present purge decree ~~xxxxxxxx~~ as such generally with respect to purged economic leaders.

They added, however, that the Purge Review Board is in position to act on appeals filed by purgees, including economic leaders, for review of their purge designation with respect to individual cases.
