CONDITIONS OF SALE

1. The highest Bidder to be the Buyer, and if any dispute arise between two or more Bidders, the Lot so in dispute shall be immediately put up again and re-sold.

2. The Auctioneer reserves the right to reject any bid which is merely a nominal or fractional advance, and therefore, in his judgment, likely to affect the Sale injuriously.

3. The Purchasers to give their names and addresses, and to pay down a cash deposit, or the whole of the Purchase-money, if required, in default of which the Lot or Lots so purchased to be immediately put up again and re-sold.

4. The Lots to be taken away at the Buyer's Expense and Risk within twenty-four hours from the conclusion of the Sale, and the remainder of the Purchase-money to be absolutely paid, or otherwise settled for to the satisfaction of the Auctioneer, on or before delivery; in default of which the undersigned will not hold themselves responsible if the lots be lost, stolen, damaged, or destroyed, but they will be left at the sole risk of the Purchaser.

5. While the undersigned will not hold themselves responsible for the correctness of the description, genuineness, or authenticity of, or any fault or defect in, any Lot, and make no Warranty whatever, they will, upon receiving previous to date of Sale trustworthy expert opinion in writing that any Painting or other Work of Art is not what it is represented to be, use every effort on their part to furnish proof to the contrary; failing in which, the object or objects in question will be sold subject to the declaration of the aforesaid expert, he being liable to the Owner or Owners thereof, for damage or injury occasioned thereby.

6. To prevent inaccuracy in delivery, and inconvenience in the settlement of the Purchases, no Lot can, on any account, be removed during the Sale.

7. Upon failure to comply with the above conditions, the money deposited in part payment shall be forfeited; all Lots uncleared within one day from conclusion of Sale shall be re-sold by public or private sale, without further notice, and the deficiency (if any) attending such re-sale shall be made good by the defaulter at this Sale, together with all charges attending the same. This Condition is without prejudice to the right of the Auctioneer to enforce the contract made at this Sale, without such re-sale, if he thinks fit.

8. The undersigned are in no manner connected with the business of the cartage or packing and shipping of purchases, and although they will afford to purchasers every facility for employing careful carriers and packers, they will not hold themselves responsible for the acts and charges of the parties engaged for such services.

IN THE SHADE

Height, 11 inches; length, 14½ inches

A QUIET shallow pond, in which grows reeds, rushes and water lilies, extends from the foreground to the middle distance, overhung on the right by an irregular clump of trees. On the rocky shore beyond the pool is a thatched shelter, nearby a swine-herd with various animals, and farther away a level road crossing a bridge near a whitewashed cottage. In the distance a bare sloping hillside rises above a leafy grove. The sky is covered with soft luminous gray clouds, and the light is vigorously reflected in the twinkling waters of the pool in the left foreground.

WINDSOR

Height, 8¼ inches; length, 11 inches

FROM the middle foreground a road winds across a pasture in which sheep are feeding under a grove of scattered trees in the middle distance and then disappears around a huge boulder. On a grassy bank under sturdy oaks in the right foreground sits a peasant with his dog, and on the left the vista extends across sunlit fields to a low hill in the distance. A few lofty cumuli float in the summer sky.

Height, 9 inches; length, 12½ inches

THIS is a view across a narrow river which flows between rough and rocky banks. A sandy roadway leads from the left foreground across a ford and mounts a gentle slope in the middle distance, and then winds away among the trees near a steep-roofed tiled cottage. On the right a great clump of trees rises out of the picture, and on the left, near the cottage, is a hillside covered with boulders and scattered trees. The landscape is in full sunlight and the sky is luminous but cloudless.

THE GLEANERS

Height, 18 inches; length, 22¼ inches

AN original study of the famous work of the artist in the Louvre. Three sturdy peasant girls, dressed in coarse garments of various colors, among which blue predominates, are gathering scattered straws from a broad, open, freshly-harvested wheat field. The one on the right kneels upon the stubble binding her gleanings into a small sheaf, and a short distance away her two companions stoop over to pick up the straws. The group is in full light from the sun, which is apparently near the zenith, and the shadows are filled with luminous reflections. Beyond the group the view extends across a wide open cultivated country to a simple horizon line broken here and there by low hills and clumps of trees under a sky completely covered by a stratum of thin sunlit vapor.

THE APPROACHING STORM

Height, 29 inches; length, 39½ inches

A SHEPHERD is urging his flock of sheep along a broad sandy road, assisted by his active dog, who vigorously barks at the heels of the laggards. Turbulent storm clouds, which nearly obscure the sky, indicate the speedy approach of a violent tempest, and a flash of vivid sunshine strikes upon the animals and the shepherd in the immediate foreground, and flecks the landscape here and there with spots of light. In the immediate foreground on the left a sturdy oak tree, with scarred trunk and broken branches, rises out of the picture, and on the right, across the road along which the sheep are hurrying, is a low bank with scattered boulders and a scattered clump of trees in dense summer foliage. A low line of wooded hills bounding a meadow toward which the shepherd is driving his flock forms the horizon.

VENICE

Height, 32 inches; width, 26 inches

THIS is a view from the middle of a broad canal where it joins another waterway flowing at right angles to it. From the right foreground the corner of a house rises out of the picture, and across the water is a small piazza with a church and another ecclesiastical edifice standing close beside it. A gondola has just landed at the riva, and the occupants, who are evidently citizens of the town, are about to enter the church door. The small area of the sky visible above the roofs of the buildings is covered with a stratum of gray clouds, and the rippling water is covered with multi-colored reflections.

PREMIERS BIJOUX

Height, 67 inches; width, 43 inches

A PAIR of young lovers who, in classic times, have been strolling through a forest in midsummer, pause for a while in an open glade under a lofty ilex tree. The young man, seated upon a boulder, clasps to his side the maiden, and, in his outstretched hand, holds ripe cherries, some of which she hangs over her ears, after the manner of children of to-day. The maiden wears a thin sleeveless tunic, twice girded, and her fair hair is closely bound to her head by a narrow fillet. The youth wears even a simpler costume, for it consists only of a skin thrown over his left shoulder and falling over his thighs. A gourd and a pouch are slung to his side by a leather strap. The sky is nearly obscured by masses of foliage flecked here and there by the sunlight.

THE BATTLE OF THE NILE AND BLOWING UP OF THE L'ORIENT

Height, 47½ inches; length, 72 inches

THIS composition represents the great naval conflict and bombardment, one of the prominent events in the history of the British Navy, seen from the station of the gunboats between the Battery and the Castle of Aboukir. The prominent object in the picture is a large English seventy-four, on the flank of a line of other vessels which have entered the harbor, destroyed the French fleet and set fire to the town. In the immediate foreground on the left is the shattered hulk of a large French vessel, the silent muzzles of the guns still pointing out of the portholes and the tricolored flag trailing in the water from a broken mast. In the right foreground an English boat, full of sailors, is proceeding toward the fleet at the moment when the magazine of the Orient is exploding and the dismasted vessel is enveloped in flames. In the distance a great conflagration lights the sky with a lurid glow and the massive castle of Aboukir is seen surrounded by smoke and fire.

The picture was painted in 1798 when the artist was twenty-four years of age and its exhibition in the Royal Academy in 1799 was the reason for his election as an associate of that body. It disappeared until 1886 when it was exhibited in the Nineteenth Century Art Galleries in London. The artist adapted to his subject the following lines from Book VI. of Milton's "Paradise Lost":

Principal

From collection of MR. PRIOR, ~~Member~~ of Trinity College, Cambridge.

“Immediate in a flame,
But soon obscured with smoke, all heaven
appear'd;
From these deep-throated engines belched,
whose roar
Embowell'd with outrageous noise the air
And all her entrails tore, disgorging foul
Their devilish glut, chain'd thunderbolts and hail

LANDSCAPE AND CATTLE

Height, 47½ inches; length, 58½ inches

IN the foreground stands a young girl looking out of the picture and carrying upon her head a milk pail. Behind her two companions, back to back, are half reclining and half sitting on the ground. Beyond the maidens, partly in the shadow of overhanging trees, is a herd of cattle, sheep and goats attended by a single peasant, and, farther away, the view extends through a tree-bordered glade to the remote distance in which is suggested a pleasant farming country. The season is early autumn and the sky glows with the warm tones of the sun which is rapidly nearing the horizon.

THE PATRIARCH

Height, 49 inches; width, 36½ inches

ST. JOHN

Height, 43½ inches; width, 27½ inches

THIS is the full-length figure of the young St. John, in vigorous action, both arms outstretched and the legs in the attitude of walking. The figure is partly draped in a loose green mantle which is thrown over the left shoulder and wound around the waist, and above the head, with its mass of curly auburn hair, is the slender circle of a halo.

ST. PETER

Height, 29 inches; width, 24 inches

THE head and shoulders, heroic size, of an old man with a full white beard, iron-gray moustache and hair, dressed in rough garments which, opened at the throat, expose his rugged neck and breast. Nearly in profile to the left, the eyes upturned in the same direction, his mouth opened as if listening, the whole attitude indicates suspense or expectation, with, perhaps, a slight tinge of fear.

ST. JOSEPH WITH THE CHRIST CHILD

Height, 27½ inches; width, 21 inches

SAINT JOSEPH, holding in his arms the figure of the Christ child, bends tenderly over him with an expression of devout admiration. In his left hand the Saint holds an olive branch in full blossom, and with his right he tenderly touches the outstretched hand of the infant. A faint luminosity surrounds the heads of both the infant and Saint, and above the latter floats the slender line of an oval halo. The figures are relieved against a simple sky covered with gray clouds; on the left of the scene is a slender tree, and on the right a suggestion of a mountainous landscape.

VIEW OF ANCIENT ROME

Height, 48½ inches; length, 68 inches

THIS is a view in the valley of the Tiber near Rome. In the foreground two men and a woman are resting under a clump of trees near the ruins of an old castle. The vista extends across a broad valley, where are dimly seen the straggling buildings of a large town, to mountains in the distance which, dimly outlined, form the horizon line. Groups of trees in heavy foliage form both the right and left sides of the composition and in the foreground on the right are the ruins of a great edifice. A few cirri float in the simple summer sky and the glow of the late afternoon sun is concentrated near the horizon behind the trees on the right.

TOILET OF VENUS

Height, 52 inches; length, 70½ inches

THE STAR

THE DUCHESS OF BUCKINGHAM

Height, 94 inches; width, 58 inches

THIS is the full-length figure of a young lady dressed in a white muslin gown of the Empire period, cut low at the neck and confined to her waist by a girdle of white silk. Standing in three-quarters view to the left, her dark hair bound with a yellow ribbon and dressed high upon her head, she gazes at the spectator, holding upon her right arm a black lace mantle and in her right hand a straw hat of the period. Her left arm, hanging by her side, is undraped to above the elbow, and upon the third finger of her left hand she wears a single ring. Immediately in front of her is a pet pug dog with uncurled tail, open mouth and protruding tongue. The lady is standing in a well kept park and dense masses of foliage overhang a low stone pier behind the figure. In the distance on the left are seen groves of trees, pleasant

lawns, and a pathway which extends away in perspective.
