

No. 443-Vor. XVIII] NFW XORK, MARCH 26, 1864.

Barnum's American Museum.

FOUR ENORMOUS GL. YTP TM. Tre men

Oscanyan's Oriental Album,

 Conslitting of 23 Photogryphic Fortratt of oricnta, frank leslue's LLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.

$\qquad$

NEW YORE, MARCH 26 , 1804 ,

TERMS FOR THIS PAPER.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISING.

75 eents a line on the outtide or last page

Tae Publisher of Frank Leslif's IllusTATEED PAPER inviter his present contrlautors and othera to Rend in hefore May Iet tories and poeme

Our New Volume.

The present number commences the 18th Volume of Frank Leslé's Iflustrated Newspaper, the leading journal of its kind in the world, no other, here or in Europe, having ever approached us in the number of our Special Artists, or the widespread and active efforts made to give the contemporaneous history of the world in graphic and lifelike llustrations. Endorsements of these from every source pour in upon us, in every form: but the pubicic do not reouire any landation from us on a point in which their ever Our illustrations are a complete history of the great Civil War, and of the events of the day at home and abroad.
Frank Leslef's Illustrated Paper is moreover an admírable Family Paper, with brilliant and original works of fiction, poetry, forelgn intelligence, domestic news, including the amusements of the day and other interesting reading matter. Our illustrated andother stories, hy some of the most talented writers in the country, are especially fitted for family reading, heing of a high and elevated character, and of acknowledged beauty, grace and power.

The Volume will concinde Mrs. Stephens's admirable novel, "The Guff Between Them," to be followed by a work of extraordinary power and interest.

Summary of the Week.

virgntas.
The gallant young Col. Ulile Dahlgren, reports of whose safety at frst reached us, was really kilied while cutting his way through the enemy. The rehels, with that brutality in the treatment of the dead which makes the storles of ghouls credible, stripped his body, storles of ghouls creaible, stripped his body, mangled it, and, to nse their own expresslon, mangled it the burial of a dog.
The miscarriage of the expedition is aue entirely to the War Department, which negeert with Gen. Butler, so that he might move simaltaneously.

Our forces took possession of Suffolk on the 10 th, after a short skirmish with the enemy.
western virginta.
Lieut. Col. Root, of the 15th New York cavalry, on the 6th returned from au expedition to Hardy and Pendleton counties, where they destroyed effectaally all the saltpetre they destroyed effectaally all the saltpetre Major-Gen. Sigel has assumed command of the departinent of W est Virginfa, and has ixed his headqnarters at Cumberland.
Averill captured two sples who were endeavoring to pass southward through his lines.

A skirmish is sald to have taken place near ral of the 21 st New York cavalry were killed.
north carolina.
Dayis is filling the State with troops to overawe the Couvention and keep North Carolita in the Confederacy. Twenty-thre North Carolina Union soldiers were hung in the event created a serious riot, which it took a considerable armed force to put down. The manifested, and the Stars and Stripes were mation or the loyal people was violently manifested, and the Stars and Stripes wer conspicuously displayed on the occasion.
Poor North Carolina has thus the luxury of being ground down by Virgintans and South Carolina cavallers

Farragut was continuing, Feb. 25 , the bombardment of Fort Grant or Powell with the ships Calhoun, Jackson, Octarora and Sebago. Morgan. Even when he has subdued Fort Powell he will have 30 miles to proceed hefore he can arrive at Mobile, nine of which are through a narrow clannel, with its banks tortifled the whole distance. Obstructions are again placed entirely across the channel three miles from the city, in such a way that of two ironclad forts and a battery from the shore.

florma.

Gen. Seymour was, on the 2 d , in a fortffled position eight miles from Jacksonville, await ing a rebel attack. The rebels refused to ex change the wounded soldiers. Gen. Finnegan is encamped between Ten Mile run and Baldwin. The rebel army is meanwhile gathering and driving off eattle.

MISSISSIPPI.
Our authentic reports from Grant's department show that Sherman's expedition penetrated 35 miles beyond Meridian, destroying all the railroads in the vicinity, 32 locomono more fighting after leavient foaton, where Wirt Adams's rebel cavairy wes nes copantered missing is 500 . A large number of planta tions were destroyed.

tennessex.

The rebels are pressing our lines near Chattanooga, and our advance has been with drawn from Tunnel bill to Ringgold. It is reported that the rebel furnaces at Ringgold have stopped running for want of coal. Onr udvance in East fenncasee is at Morristown, while on the 5th Longstreet was still reported as holding Bull's gap, with his headquarters at Greenville. Gen, Schofleld has returned to Knoxville. The Federal forces were at Morristown, 42 miles from Knoxville. The rebels were at Greenville, about 74 miles from Knoxville. The rebel cavalry were at Bull's gap, 56 miles from Knoxville. There is a tremendous rise in the Tennessee river. The pontoon bridge was carried away at Chattanooga.
Sixty rebels were captured at Chikawee mountain by the 4th Indiana cavairy, and the enemy were repulsed in an attempt to dash into our lines at Mossy creek on the 6th. On the 5th a large force of rebel cavalry attacked a detachment of the 3d Tennessee at Panther springs, but met with a loss of 30 killed and wounded. Our loss, two killed, eight wounded and 22 missing.
Our position at Chattanooga. is conslderably in advance of the one held during the winter. Gen. Palmer's line, embracing the Chicamauga hattlefleld, Ringgold, Taylor's and White Oak ridges to Cleveland gap, is 29,000 strong at Dalton and Tunnel hill. aval.
On Saturday, March 5, a rehel party under Lieuts. Maxwell and Fitzhugh of the Canfederate navy captured the tug Iolas, in the employ of Government as a dispatch-boat, and the sidewheel steamar Titan, loaded with commissary storcs, both lying in Cherrystone inlet, Chesapeake bay. The rebels destroyed the telegraph station and the submarine cable.
The English Government has ordered the release of the pirate Tuscaloosa at the Cape of Good Hope; and the English Judges in the Provinces release the pirates of the Chesapeake. The grounds of the latter decision are curious. 1. The Government of the United States has not demandel the pirates; 2 . She would have no right to them if she did; 3. They have not been inlicted for piracy.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, on the 7 th March, after Foote, of Vormont, prenented a pettion frem E11
Thayer, praying that the conAcatiti landa of the $\left\lvert\, \begin{aligned} & \text { rebela he given to the frecimen; referred to the Com- } \\ & \text { mittec on Siavery and Freedmen. The Minnesota }\end{aligned}\right.$ mittec on Slavery and Freed ralirond was then discossed.
In the House, the reeointion ordering 1,500 copies of Lanman's Directory of Congress at $$ 2$ a copy was reecinded, and the prico altered to $$ 1$.
In the Scnste, on the 8th, the procsedinge were entirely rou discussed.
In the House, resolntions of the Iows Leginiature were pree soldiera to fill situations under Government is they are competent for The Defleigoy bil was taken ap, anc peariy for the plus Government gold was, after considershic dia
ouscion pmesed In much amended sid considerably weakcied state. The bill Feakened state. The bill, as passed, merely uuthorise the Socretary of the Treasury to antcipatet the pay ment of intereat on the puhbic debt from time

 General ; and providing that army Chaplains, whe shenen to leave or as prinonera, Bhal! not suffr ming minntion of pay, were pubned.
In the Senate, on the 9 th, the resolntion calling en
the Secretary of Far for the mloutes and repon of the Military Commiesion, of whith Gen. MeDowell

 Offlec

 the Senate adjourned.
In the House, the whole time was taken up in speches of littie puhlic interest. The Senste, on the 11th, took up the House Joint resolution in referenee to the surplus goll in the Treapury, withe theeretary to diepose of the ssma to anthoriking toe
the higheat hidder at niny tume he may eee propar.
Other

In the House, the hill for the hetter regriation of trade Filth tho Indian country and the Executlive Lepishative and Jodicary Appropristion bili wer pased. Bill for cartain amendment of the Pengion

BOOK NOTICES

La Gaviota. By Fernan Caballero J. Bradhum has just issued an Engligh rianslation Spain, a lady whose noma de plame ia Fernan Cahallero La Gaviotap is a work of real power and intereat, It cannot fanl to win its way
ong since appeared.
nomp ue, Rad lead to an acquaintance with her other works:
The traniation ls falr, not always idiomatic or graeful, but will compnee favorably with most
,

TOWN TOPICS.

Tar spring is opening, and the pavements of the oity as ponitively sbow the genial effects of the ways of the country. With it tifst glad approach art touches them with a skill thit most make nature tremble with sheer envy. The shops put forth their gayest tints, like hedgerows of unfading towers, and the hutterflies of fuebion wiog their way id, from point to point, Aipping hore or flitting there, until the time shall come when they will antil the time shall come when they will dirt away to Saratoga and Newport, or ruralise in some yet unexplored country nook.
Broadway is heginning to anoume a summery look,
and the time-honored firt is fnat disupparing Brosdway aquad is losing ite occupation, or the larger part of it, in escorting fair ones from corb to ourh turongh the mud and siush, and is occosionaliy obliged to fill its time with gaziag on fallen horsesohliged to fill ite time with gazing on fallen horseb-not aseistiag them to ribe-and vlewing the pageant not aseistiog them to ribe-and vlewing the that pasbes hourly hefore their criticsi eyer.
And thles reminds us that the dially preces hse daring
the last few weeks devoted muoh attontion to the the last few weeks devoted muoh attention to the subject of street obstructions, and how to remove them, Now, where can you have a better spot npon which to descant, or to reform, than this #ama Broad wo $/$ From, the Battery to Fourteenth stree:
It fe nothing It le nothing hat ohstruotions, and those of a nature that conid readlly he removed hy the Brondway aquad. No person should be allowed to sets hox or package upon the sildewalk, No persone should be allowed-even though they be the protticat nad beit dreseed of the fair promenaders- to gather and talk where the stream goes, without heing lmperativoly ordered to move on. $A$ knot of goesiper will ordered to move on. A knot of gossiper will throw the whole street into confasion, aEmpch aE will a countryman forcing bla way nas on the inner ibide of the pave or down on tha outer. We have neen a the pave or down on tha outer. We have neen a pertar or a hoy from a store come deliberataly out pertar or a hoy from a store come deliberathly out npon Broadway at the cromied honrs of the day and ahoso is doormnt, or empty an nathox, thercby covering a hundred people with dast or ashes, and go unpunte hed, a thing that would bardly be belleved in \& European city. in $\Omega$ Enropean city.
The absorbing to
The ohsorbing tople of the week, and perhape will he for many ycurs to come, if the Sonitary Frif. An army of haliders and carpanters make Fourteenth atrect vocal with clang of hammars, and the ver:
bullaings that are to contain the contriber astion are fiet approaching completion. They open apon the $28 t \mathrm{~s}$ inst, , and untII that time thare is only monotony of recelving and receipting for the atream of goods that in nowing in from every part of the werld. While apon this subject lct na enter ciry

from
from or tent
cau

 \begin{tabular}{c} appe
tht
intig  ent
\hline

11
To
he
\hline
\end{tabular}

 they are eliaringly right', The theatres are goingover sound of routine, Wialiack's only verying it with routh, which, in the olden timo woult

 our thoroughares, and the oongequent finding out of the omonthus all thit relates to them for on ontereat,
We heard a few days fince of a lady who entered at car or ornibus to unex themselvee and study to see how rade and nnandyyike they can sppesr. Alady can crowd in, no matter ninder what inconvenience talke heware how be moves too near ber to giake rcom for an in-comer, Her manner of drawing he her offended rohes will he a warning for him through sh time

epttome of the week.

- Gold has ranged from 162 to 108,

 city was bicoo durictiong the past ye

 my degecndant
tion of the $3,000,000$ solene,
 quisntly, very dimicult to hiree

 Were 831 and the the previoudly, $13,722$.
The Sophomore Closs of the Fres Aeademy will hold an exhibitionon on the 2 ath Murch, at the Cocper Union; the procoeds of which will be for the nid of the Ssintary Commispolon. The studente of the onld clas have nsed their utmost exertion the sald class have nsed their utmost exertions to scoomplihh their design of necuring the interest of the publl to this worthy canse, and they look forwat to the forward to the pnillo's hearty support. There will be nome very interetting Felections from the most noted anthore, and will , io doubt, aford a

Mrmgh Chotamit hars called a ounventon to

 A gent unimeng them.
Bouthora- The orntulty or the rethel if in almot

Mrilitary.- Gen. Wool has writen o, letter to Potemaen Grant pata A vilat to to the $A$ Arry of the

Porssonal- Samue Comemll

 for the Preetidency Chase has deolined heing a condiddote

$\left\lvert\, \begin{aligned} & \text { ments concerning Dahigr } \\ & \text { treatment of his remaing, }\end{aligned}\right.$

Obituary.-Robert Grigroa persbed ina anmw

 forturbyite the venior or penchls, wha mado

 Atrantive vecmo munaician formeriy one of the mots

 mpoten

 nat thoser, of persenay frice that, will be with the Geweril
in his painfull and budden hereavement

 Durned si to cause her death
Was 870,000 ,

 pargued hy Cralg, who managed to get in advance of the steamyhipiowhich Young had gaited. At Liverpool, Craig. being overcome by for copturing the robber, and recovered his valise and $30 in gold.
Strange, howerer, to evd, as the street, Providence, R, I. on the 9 h March, a young fellow, who had eeneaped from an omicer, eame ddabung up s side atreet, with the officer in olose parsult. The up side street, with the officer in olose parsult. The Governor eng ht the culprit as he was rniling pabt, hut the flippery chap squirmed nway and started oit sucr, and, joat ne the fellow wain scalng a fonder, the Governor tuid hands upon him, took him hadk to the overnor had hands upon him, took him hack to the officer, and then proceded to the State House, to se.

sume his datles as preelding officer of the Senate, Chattanooge wai a fatal coillition on the Nashyille and Chatanooga rairoad, et Anderson, Tcon., on the 5th March. Two fretght trank, with one pabeenger car enach, were foing north, when the engineer of the last the other wheldin wase not in motion, The passenger. car troek was hroken up and set on ire trom lts lhmps and &tove. Four ladies were hurned to death and other persons were injured. The engineer would other persons were injured. The engineer have hean lynched on the epot had he not fled.
Jobn Bell, who was shot in a danoe. house on the 2rth Feh, hy an unknown pereon, died on the 11th March. The hrutality of corner grocery olerks le proverbina. On the Poth Mrich a poor woman, named Benson, entered a atore on the corner of Lewn Benson, entered a atore on the corrmer of Leurena and Grand etrcets, and having provoked the storeman, the laiter Grand etrcets, and having provoked the storeman,
the litter sized a meat axe and inaicted buch severe wounde npon her head that her life in despired of wounds npon her hend that her life i, Fioreign.-The handaome villa helonging to the Countese Blovle, on the banke of the Como, lately with a magnificent dinner were, given to the flihes. o tannel. The cost will be ahout half a million sterling. Ata recent hall in Rome the Princess Massimo lost a diamond breelet worth 100,000 .
kzown and wealtriy eccleallantic is "fortun at winder." er the thantic is sutunapected thie, as the the
he made a present of tome jewels to his mititrees a he made a present of some gewels to his miltritess few days after. The result has been hushed up. - A letter from Rome of a late date, says there are hut fetem Americang in that eity at present, owlng to the high rate of exchange. Let Ar A peper his jnst appeared in Paris esslled year. feet of the puhlle hnll given by the wife of the Pre-one of whom wore erinolinere. 2,000 ladies present, not recelved no enstenenec nuring that time, and her breathlig was diatinelly audible all the tiane.
Art, Scionce and Iiterature

 more, the quentlon seem to be now, What is to become of the "bachelors" who have not &s a day

 The Richimond Dispattch contains an sdvertise ment of the Danville F-male Colleze, annourclog that the price of board for 20 weeks is $$ 600$, or five barrela of floar. Englah and arapaph has been going the rounds of the
 Mr. R. B. Knowles,
-who is stull iviog.
 crosied in satety by foot prabengers from Conaregio to Mestre, and from Murano to Fandumente Nuova. pnstic The native harbers of Bombay have held a shoving of his head a Hincoo should bs charged two present, and the locel paper sseribes the combination to the preaent dearcess af the necessaries of life.

GEN. CUSTER.

Brig.-Gen. George A. Custer is a native of Ohio, aud is one of the Weat Point graduates of the class of 1881 . He is, therefore, a very young mac. He entered the United Statos army as a Brevet scoond Leutenant of osvalry, and was sppointed Second Lieuteanant of the 5 th U . S. cavalry on onne 24 , 1861 . He was ittached to the Army of the Potomisc, and distinguished himself in distliguuished wervices he was on that day nominated Brevet of Captsin, to date irom ISay 20,18102 for On July 17, 1862, he was promoted First Lieute-nont of Compay M, ot the sth U. S. cavalry, having been previously appointed an Alde on Gen, from June 5 , 1862 . In this cepacity he gained great credit,
He was promoted to the rank of commander of origade of capary, in the vielaity of Wabington ander Gen. Stahel, andon June 20, 11803, was appointed oy the President Brigadier Graeral of volunteers.
Ho commanded the peoond brigade of Iivielon during the adyance upon Gettyshurg the battle et that pisce, tund the purfuit of the rehele from He took aa active part in the ervairy fights npon the Rospidan during the fali of 1883, , and wis at one

 Coster was placed tn harge of the eavairy division Jomerly under the oharge of the late gallant Gen. At the recent hattle of Stannardsville he well maintained the honored name won hy thife commad under their late nohde leader.
Gen. Cuater has hut recolly returned from his wedding tour, having heen married only abont month aince. wedding tour month
inince.

JOHN N. PATTISON.

The unequivocal suceess which the young American planist, Mr. J. N, Pattison, has achieved in tilus eity during the few past months juatly entitice him to a place nmong the celebrities whose portraite from time to time find a place in our oolumng. He has rigen hy rapld strides into publlo favor, and has won his place among the first hy the aheer force of his renius, and by that deterrained pergeverance by which eminence, in any art, alone is $\qquad$
of October, 1830 , and is, consequently, now a 14 ttle over 2t years of ape. His early youth was passed aimost within aight of that woderfil work of nature whose grandenr, with poetic minds, increases the more familiarly it is contemplated; and it is pooblble that its infuenee may have heen felt, unconseiously, that its influenee may have heen felt, unconseiously, by the hoy, and have done much towards expandlag and etrengthening the poetice sentiment in his mind.
He received his esrly education at a 5 chool in Lock port, and here it was that his passion for musio wes first developed. His studies were pursued in the room next to the musie-room, and though not sprang up in hif mind to hecome master of the art. He eommenced to tcaoh himself, and his endeavors were kindly assiated hy Mesars, O. C. and E. C. Wright, proprietors of a muaic wareroom, who afforded him opportanities to practise on their planos. Although unaesisted, he mude rapid pro. planos. A Athough unafisted, he mide rapid pro greas, and the study beeame to him an nbsorhing passion, so much so that it interfered greatly witit, his advancement in other hranches of education
Then The kaowledgene of this fort indaces his father to rumovehum from Loekport and place him at a 3 short diatnuce from that place, where there was no plano. The young musiclan was wretehed under this restriction, and consequentiy ran away, wandering from one place to another, until his desires wer ing from one place to noother, matil his desires were asquiesced in, and he once more returned to lookport.
He pursned He pursned, his muaieal studies with more avidily sented to study medicine, But though one mnn may lend a horse to the water a hundred men ennuct enough of minic in Newark, N. J. He taught merely etudy. The nmbition of his He wne to go to Germany, to ktuay mate lo ith blghest hranchee hut eomething wal wanted to induce him to pat his hiewe nito a practical sbape Daring his vislts to New York he core, and at the fourth conecrt played Bsch's dim cilt and manteriy Fague In cielon and

 Derformance has strengthened and deepcned, until mnw, is man he side, writhout fant of contradiction thet no pianist is more cordlally weleomed pubho, and no one recelves at its hand a larger ahare of apptouse and adiration than John N. Pattieon Thip career of suceess by his performnnee at his own concert ot frving Hail
on the

 of the New York Tribune sald: "Mr. Patthon played stupe
sot melodioua, varied, brilliant and passionate. Mir. Pat titoon neverep piaged so wel. He weat thrcugh his in menso tusk with danntless force and and was rowirded withe estorm of apple use, ", "T
The nble cricic ot the New Ynrk Times sidd : ienturu of the conrort was Henelt's famou Co Concerto apianist. It has not been attempted for many yeare.
Tha difficultien or execotlo aro of the higheys clisas.
and the delleavies concealod beneath then

 on the great merrit or its performance.
The critio of Frank Leslies Nhustrated Newspaper closed alengthened avalysie of the worke and thitir exceat tual
meob
 acmiration for bis devotion to big art, sund our uiprethe momentary mlory of the popuar applause, won
hy tha ecomplishment of easy, meritoriouil diff tilties, me mist culties, we mist add the just prisise that he was fuly equat to the task he undertook. Mr Pattioon has, by among the planis te of his age, and his country chould

he proud of buch o contrilution to the iamily of art?

 the more dimincait the obstaceses that were to be over come. While epeakitio of tbe artist it would bu unfair to omit mention of the means by which the dhaplay of his fine or the ina powers was somaterially aded. We ailud o the enle on which Mr. Pratiison pefformen It Fas in ever way a grand piano, and air. Pattison developed it excelience of tone and power in a manterly maner

Mr. Oscanyan, the celebrated Oriental lecturer and scholar, has recentiy been creating quite furore in the New England Statee, where he hee been engaged to deliver 15 of his illustrated lecturen for seems to have met with fattering receptions everywhere. and in Boston alone the "rneh " from the Transcript, exceeded &ny thing that has bce sen for some time, ano thekets were sola at a dolis
A.piece. Mr. Oscanyan is entitled to the honor of havig invented a perfent novelty in the way or lec taring. His lecture, indeed, are more of a spectacio of tiring his hcarers by a long description or the women of Turkey, he brimge the women themsulves before you, a t they appear in the harem and in the streeto, and forma pictaresque tohieaux of Esstern IIfe and manners

 ably intereeted in the gorgeous dressea worn by the alater in the Oricat; the youthtul mind is more in

 In one of our Sunday schools, recently the pator asied the puplla whet they would rathe the pastor asked the puple whet they would rather have, if they could have whatever they withed
The answers were various, sad moatly of the ex.

the marguerite.

Ere the swallow's homeward wing To its native hower hath flown, or the genisl airs of spring Prompt the cuekoo's monotone;
When an unseen presence fills Every pulse with fresher life, And the warm, moist air distils Dews with honied fragranee rife;
Hldden from the garish sun,
In some nook of tender green, Waiting to hc sought, ere won, Peeps the violet from her sereen;

Coy as matden modesty, Bowed the common gaze heneath; Blue as falr Floranthe's eye;
Fragrant as her odorous hreath;
Redolent of pleasures pastHopes that no fruition knew; Bliss, too hitter-sweet to last;
Falth, no vows can now renew;
Romemhyaneer of love and spring, Of days that long have taken fight Thy simple perinme seems to hring Sweet dreams of vanished years to light!

And she hath gathered violets blueTo mingle flowers might break the spell: Aud fain would try the test anew That may her saddest doubt dispel!

Sueh ordeals now are idle all; If needed, love is love no more and tests that wishes vain reeall But tell us what we knew hefore
He loves me not!" "He loves me still!" Oh that such faith were yet my lot! Or that this leaf might work my will,
That says, alas! "He loves me not!"

"He loves me not!" It cannot he, Till honor, faith itself he dead, Ill not aceept the sad deeree Till every leaf I hold he shed.
Of man's deceit, or wild eaprice, What recks it to the hroken heart? How vain the breath that whispers peaee, When love and hope for aye depart!

The Prophecy Fulfilled: A TALE OF LOUISIANA.

Hy A. M. Ashloy. part i.
"You wish to marry her; you say you love her, and she returns your love; very well. I do not approve of it. Sbe can do as she likes; but remember what I tell you, Albert Brano. If you are kind to her she will raake you a good wife; but ir you are not, sbe will prove a sword to pierce you So
So eaid Mira. James, in answer to the young man marriage. Aphia, tbe young girl whohad betrotbed herself without her mother's consent, was one of three daughters of this the most wealthy and aristocratic family in the neighborhood. Her two sisters were married to rieb planters, who made them good husbands, and were already at the head of luxurious homes, where the elite of the country were dail received and entertained as familiar friends. Mrs. James's plantation bordered on the river, in that richly cultivated district where the waving cane and the snowy fields of cotion yield abundant wealth to their possessor. Thirty years ago the wealthy gentlemen of that part of the country were all hunters. They loved the cbase as as their chiet amusement, and many a feast was mande more merry by the recital of some of the in the puasuit of game they deligore daring spirite, in the pursuit of game they deligbted to bring back and jokes passed round, and glassen were filled and emptied, with toasta and songz, in honor of him who was acknowledged to be the boldest hunter of the Red river.

join ni. pattison, the youno american planist.-prom a hhot. by brady.-beb page 3.
"So Bruno has earried off the lest of the sisters, | ride fast to overtake her, for no one knows better ch r" $^{\prime \prime}$ exclaimed Col. Hunter, an old planter, better how to sit a horse. I tell you, boys, Bruno won't known in the neighborhood as Unele Hunter. "Boys, you were not sharp to let such a fine deer "вcape you,"
"Whet would you have us do, uncle Ben ?" repliced his nephew. "She's a fine jewel, surely, but ont as strange as she is rare.
"Brunohas won, but he will not wear her long, mark my words," replied the old planter. "He's not the man for that girl: he's too cold a nature for that highospirited, noble creature. Why, Ive seen many a fine fellow ride an hour on a full gallop to eatch up to her, just to have a talk-snd he had to

The nuined Gambler threatens his Wifc with the Loss of her Boy.
"No; tell us ?" oried out the young men at onoe "No; tell un ?" oried out the young men at onoe
"Why, I've often heard her father say that she the Eneyolopedia. 'Hunter,' my old friend would say, telling me of it, and looking at me, with his head on both his hands, elbows resting on the table and e twinkle of delight in his round blue eyes, 'that giri's a perfect wonder! She never heares, Word or a name that isnew to her but she searches for it in that valusble work,' Think, boyE, of manrying e girl who is a wolking encyolondin marrying e girl who is a wulking encyoloprodia? it," replied hiseon. "But I hope she will be bappy," he added, "for she deserves to be."
And truly Apbia James was a worthy favorite of the country round. Witb her pelite, deliente figure, large, luatrous dark cyes, and silken black hair tbat could completely envelope her like a oloud, she possessed a mind richly storcd with varied information, derived from a widely extended courae of miscellaneous reeding. For, so wedded cell aneous reeding. For, so wadded was abe to her home end Southern life, she could never be prevailed home ond Southern life, she could never be prevailed upon to enter a echool for those accomplishments whioh could beat be obtained in our Northern cities. We will pess over the great wedding et the bos. pitable mansion of the widow. Mrs. James overeame her prejudices (or rather, laid tbem nside) agsingt the favored bridegroom, who had secured first her daugbter's love, and then the elase of the estate, whicb, by her husband's will, came to each child on her marriage, leavigg the widow still e most luxurious bome and ample support. The most luxurious bome and ample support. The family mansion was crowded with visitors, who, witb their servante and attendants, es is the custom at the South, had eollected to witness the marriage and onjoy the festivities. The negrocs, dreased in their best suita, gatbered round the dwelling, sbowing, by the roling of their eyes and a fine display of ivory teeth, their high appreciation of an cvent that secured to them a glorious holiday. Each held in hand something, some little gift for the young missus that whe nbout leaving them. missus that was about leaving tbem.
"God bless you, Miss

The Threal fuffiled.
who had been nurse to the sistera, "God bless my darlin' chile, and make her happy !"
The young bride shook the old women's heuds an kissed her ebony check, for the ohildren of the planters who are brought up among thesc simple, kindhearted natives of Africa love them with tonderness, and look upon their nurse as a valued member of the family
Mrs. James looked long and lingeringly on tho carriage as it drove along the winding avenue, tak hig from hor the last of her three children. Then by: "Julia," be sid, "it will not be very long be fere she returns to me; but she would go and drink the bitter cup I would have kept from her." So the wedding was over, and the happy couple went to New Orleans, which was to be their future home, the bride full of confidence in the cholce of her young and trusting heart.
Why is it that the soul is not Why is it that the soul is not endowed with perthat we 50 love darkness that we dread not the that we so love darkness that we dread not the shadows which ooming evi casts before it? life, does hope, that will-othe. wige of our inner life, does hope, that will-o the whag of our inner life, bewilder us with its fitful light, till it leads into tbose depths of sorrow and despondency which 50 often prove our ruin ? I would ratber believe thet each heart receives the discipline it requires, and whicb alone could have the power to cleanse and purify it, even as fire tries gold, and removes from it sll that is impure.
Thres years have pessed, for time is no laggard;
and whether its path lies among thorns or flowera ard whether its path lies among thorns or nowera
it has ever a sure, steady pace, marked by events and experiences, or heartbeate, more than the dull, leaden sound of elocks and bells.
To the young bride the first year of wedded life was one of sunshine and fowers; her husband loved her-or seemed to do so-and anticipated every wish. But soon a change came over their home. Her evenings were spent by her alone, or in the company of friends who visited her. He, in the company of riends who viaited her. He, for whom she had left mother, sisters, and the home of her happy childhood, sought other companionsbip, other pleasures. Sbe reproached not; but an rumore reached her of his habits, and the haunts he frequented, resson told her that her hopes of happizess wcre gone-like withered flowers they lay seattered, troppiog one by one from that consecrated vasc-her luving heart-ibat had treasured them, and would have kept them fresh and sweet. But no one is ever wbolly berefs of all

Something tangible or intangible, somethng to lore in form or in the ideal, is ever left as a gleam of in form or in the ideal, is ever left as a gleam of ligbt to cheer the sorrowing heart, even ns a single stor is seen sbining in the thick duvkneas as a lamp stor is seen sbining in the thding gloom.
The young wife became a mother, and that new born lite brought with it a damining hopo-Albert Brano would love his child - the boy who was to bear his name and inherit the tinets whib he lenew hs possessed (for the father felt be was wast ng the gifte with which God bad ondowed $\mathrm{h}^{\prime} \mathrm{m}$ ) ng the gifte with which God bad ondowed hin he would turn now from those why which 1 .d ruin; that yonng child wo.
his pathway to a new life.
But he was now a noted gambler; play was his profession, his lift; the gaming table supplicd him with food, employment-all he desired. To it to oatisf, its inatiable demands. To drown his disappointment at cnormouns lonses, tha eup was disappointment at enormoun losses, that eup was reosorted to as a Lethean draught, nid the poor wifs sw the gradual advances of want and mber With courage-for she had & bran
"I mut have money", he would exclaim to hif vife, "or I am a ruined man. My honor is at wife, "or I am a ruined man. My honor is at stake; your motber has plenty, and you muot get At." Alas! for the honor of a gambler 1 But the world acknowledges and provides for it in ita De alogue.
Tben
went forth anotber heartrending appeal that mother on whose bosom the goung wife lone in chilidhood's days. But these requests be onmn no frequent that Mrs. James could no longer rant them. grant them.
lauphter, "come, my child," she would wriu to hare daughter, "c come back to cheer my heart and share all I possess. I amm alone, nnd you are suffering in want of tbe comforts which I eannot secure for in want of tbe comforts which I eannot secure for ou while you are from me. Brthg the boy with you, perhaps he will miss you both and follow. I om ready to forgive and receive him too, if he wil and that two beings he should cherish into disgrace and misery".
One morning the geene of sad desolation- -desperate and infuriated
 which lay his wife and the young child who ha
but just learned to coll him father. She pled wit! him to fly from the scene of his dingrace, and hower, him the last leuiver res and readiness to teceive him with herself and child.
oh, Albert |" she exclaimed, "let me make one more appeal to the love wbich you so earnestly pled, and to which 1 listened with joy 1 Come Fith me to a home, happy and pure, where we shal agsin find pence and love, where our boy will be as a bird among flowers, joyous and free. This is ma a bird nmong flowers, joyous and frec. This is no place for him, tbat tender bud of innocences, he annot bloom in this barren spot."
Many such appeale, tender and pathetic, had heen made and rejected before but the poor wife cen made and rejected before; but the poor wife ilternative offered, and he would be forced to lis ten and comply. Vain hope! idile dream! When is it so daris with evil that it cannot be darker, for ise tendency is cerer downarard into & deperer, gulf! Never: replied the besotted man,保 laim the fulfilment of that vow. The child is "And have I not fulfilled my promise ?" she
" and with me it the asked. "Wbat do I offer you but aid in a desperate condition ? Tbere is nothing else left for us, even though $I$ did not wish to join my mother."
"Your mother is meen and intriguing, or sbe "Your mother io meon and intriguing, or sbe you from yout home and me.
Aphia's frnee fushed with wounded feeling at this anjust attack upnn her noble-hearted, generoua mother, the insult.
"But has she not again and agnin sent means, to pomerty? Will nothing else satisty us?" sha then replied, tears forcing themselves into her eyes. "I wish no seene!" he replied, brutally grasplook you, woman, if you take away that boy, or go courself, $I$ will follow you, and wherever you hide yourself, I will follow you, and wherever you hide tbere will I seek you, and dray him from you-not from love - but to strike you in the tenderest part,", and the unhappy man went forth to hia daily work of ruin.
The poor wife looked after him as he lef the from her eyes as over a dew-made grave-for ther he buried for ever the decp and devoted love she had given to the husband of her youthrul heart.
From that mound of aehes of the Past she rose, From thast mound of aehes of the Past she rose, the strong, oourageouas, davoted mother, resdy to battle for the sake of her darling boy.
clnimed, "shall now be my only care; to keep bim rith me, my only desire."
The preparationa for her departure were soon her on board the ste camboat, on hor way to the hom of her happy days.

Mps. Jamps received her daughter with openarms and heart-but the child, the boy who was hence-- forth to be the object of their constant watchfulnoms, forth to be the object of their oonstant watchrulnnss, engrosed her tendereat lore. He was to bear the famlly name, and by him the honor of the house was to be surtained.
A dirorce for her daughter mas soon procured,
and Albert Bruno's name

But was it forgotten & Ask the slight needle if it forgsts ever to turn to the North Star os its true atOrgsts ever to turn 0 the North star as is true at lat look to the God of Day ? and they Fill answer:
" The law that governs ns is Supreme So is it "The law that governas ns is Supreme sacrificed herself to the one affection. It mas be buried deep in the memory and hid from outward sight, but the hesst trarels to it (the love, we mean, sight, but the hesrt travels to it (tbe love, we mean, not perbaps the objeot of it) through the distance not perbaps tbe objeot of it through toe distuace of years, pex as me journey far to visit the green spot where we bare laid away the forma of tbose
The boy grew and was lovely, In appearance he reesmbled his mother, whise bright intellect looked resembled dis mother, whise bright intellect looked out in him from the same lustrous eges. He was out in him from the same lustrons eyes. He was allowed to roam at large on the plantation with the oung negroes, hif playmates, who loved him and wuld hare died to protect him.
"f his mote Young mase late one aftarnoon, as she sat on the piarza, reading. "Did mistaus give'm leare to "No, Elifie. I have scarcely seen him to-day Kou, bit he was with you", thhe replied.
"Misasus forget," answered the woman
"Miasus forget," ans wered the woman. "You ell Cato him and massa Albert could go pick beries in de glen by de brook -but dey not yot eum back agn, an de night one like dat boy way dis time o day.
"You need not be alarmed," replied the mother. "Cato is very careful of him, and always bring inued, taking up her book.
But evening came on and brought no sign of the missing child. Twilight deepened. Several of the nen were sent out in search of the boy and the young negro who aecompanida him. Their torenes gleamed fitfully in the adjoining woods as they orned to the housc bringing mith them the negro boy, who was found lying in a by-path, some dieance off, apparently stunned by a blow he had re eived. He soon recovered under kind care and proper remediet, and was able to give the following
The child and himself had picked berries for some ime by the pleasant brook, and then wandere levely till they renched a footpath among the eeda roods, quite remote from tbe road, when they anw genteman advancing towards them on horseback he drew

What is your name, little fellow?" "Now, tell me yours, if you please, for I like to know who I talk to. Mamma tells me never to talk to strangers."
"Your mother is quite right; but $I$ am not a anner stranger-I know her well. You are far frow home; jump up with me and I will talke you there." "No, no, sar, massan Albert ean't do dat," ex alaimed Cato, cattehing up the ohild dand beginning do rum, but the stranger gave the bon the blow that stumned him-and this was all the poor negro could tell, adding, "I dunno what for I was feared av de gemmin- him didn't look good.
"God help my darling boy!" exclaimed the frantic mother. "But which way did he go, Cato ?
Speak! quick 1 must follow1" "I dunno, missus," replited the boy, weeping nd wringing his hands. "He knock me down and wringing his hands. "He knock me down fuss - Ino oee deu nufin. I go wid you artar massa Albert. Oh, Lor, Lor, what'll poor Cato
The night was now far advanced, but no ray 0
The night was now far advancea, but ight yet heralded tbe approach of morm.
"Suddte me the
"Suddle me the swiftest horse !" exclaimed the unhappy mother. "Quick, boys; y you love me, I know. Some of you come with me." "What would you do, my daughter $?$ " asked Mrs. James. "Yo.
where to seek him.
"himed. "His words a do that deed" she ex dras him from worda ring in my eara-I will drag him from you, to wound you in the tenderest part.' 0 God! $I$ could not believe he would so cruelly redeem them. TIll seareh the woods-the hamiliar to me. I will track him like a bloodhound and find my boy.
Mra. James saw that all remonstrance would be vain; so she desisted from making any.
The horse was soon at the door, and the men The horse was soon at the door, and the men mounted were ready to accompany their joung mistress.
Hours passed, of reary watohing to Mra. Jamea To her daughter, of hard riding and deep, varied motions of anxiety for her child of sorrow and deep revenge towards the father who could so tor ture his boy, to annoy and wound her whose life he had turned to bitterness. For truly ehe could say with her of old-"Call me Mara, for I have drank of with her of old-" Call m the bitter waters of life."
The next evening, as the eun was dipping behind of promisc for the morrow's light-the dull, ditant ound of hoofs was heard drawing nearer and nearar, till the young mother drew rein in front of tbe door, and gave tie tired child to the arms of her nother.
"I found him, mother, dear!" ahe cxolnimed, jumping from the back of the jaled animal. "I said I would ferret him out though he burrowed in and the earth, and take my child away from him; and, that if ever he again stole him from me I would kill him! Oh!" added the weary, heartweck woman, sinking down cshausted by hor mother's alde-
"this is the man I once loved! this the state to Mru. James comported her afflicted child and woothed the boy, wbo was weeping with fatigue and His father had taken him fur into the dense woode rected a log hut, in which he had lived for monthe asionally the bope that the opportunity would occur of carrying into effect bis wicked design of robbing the mother of her obild Tbey had spent the whole day in their seareb, when, all at once, the keretyed column of smoke thin and searcely perceptible thin and searcely perceptible column of smoke ising from a distant part of the dense woods that skired the horsepatb. Dashing into its thick undergrowth, which barely allowed a passage, they reached a spot where a fow trees had been felled, ffording an open apace to build a log eabin searcely hrge enough for the abode of man. The boy, who sat alone and crjing at the door, ran at tha sight of is mother and the fithfol negroes, and threw him elf on her neck. Aphia James kissed her child wildy, passionately for she inherited the Southern nature fostered under a bot sun) und sdvanced to wards the prostrate form of a man who was sleeping on a straw bed within.
"Albert Bruno," she cried, wildy, her face lighted ap with an unearthly light, "yon stole my child from me. God has led me to your lurking-place, and given him backto me. You may go this time but if you toueh him again, as sure as there God in Heaven, I will take your life," and she held loaded pistol over him.
The man, half awakened from a deep sleep after the day's hunt, stared at the flgure bending over him, and before ha recovered himself the young him, and before ha recovered himself the young hother was riding with her boy and the woods, on her way home.
Nearly a year had passed since the event we hava ndeavored to relate. Mrs. James and her daughter emember it as a horrid drenm, not likely to be repeated. Albert is now nearly six years old, and peated. Albert is now nearly six years old, and bsorbs their whole care and affection. His mother charges herself with bis instruction, for on him are centred all her hopes, tbs remaining few joye of her withered life. She is courted and agnin sought in marringe by many a noble heart, who would gladly rekindle the light of love in her darkened pathway. But that noble womnnis true to the idol f her youth; it was not realised, but another can ot occupy its niche. She begine now to feel the oothing effect of rest and returning peace apon "er health and spirite.
Aphia, sitting down at the breather, dear," said morning of that interesting anniversary. "Shall we not give the people a holiday, and help them to be happy ? See what a lovely morning it is! Tbey ards, and then amuse themselves as they wish in "Surn quarters.
"Surely", replied Mrs. James; "and they wil learn to love the boy all tbe more for the
he gives them, it will be so unexpecte.
So the large plantation bell was sounded loud and long, and the hands came back from their fieldabor to receive the glad news from the young ord of their earthly destiny
The dance had begun, the old fiddler, uncle Joes, had scraped his bow till it drew forth an uncertain ound, not musieal, but sure to excite the dancing propensities of that easily impressed race; the ver on the ground, while thatr elders chattered, danced and aped the manners of the "biz folks." All was going on as merry as the marriage bells, When a scream, a child's cry of terror and agony rose shrill and loud ebove ths fiddler's efforts, above the laugh and the chattering of the happy negroes "Albert!" "Where is Albert?" exelaimed Mrs. ames and her daughter at the same time, running in the midst of the negroes from different directions, those tones of terror and distress, and their pale faces told the truth that flashed like lightning upon

But
But no one cowld answer their question, uttered aecents of fear and frantic emotion. Some had thers but just befors at play in tbeir midst, ter the wathed him a moment since rumning The gentlemen of the neighborhood, who wer ining that day with the family, were soon in the adile, ready to scour the country in searoh of the missing child, but the mother would not be pre ented from aecompany ing them. Mounted on her avorite, the same animal that had borne her on her former searoh, and whose mettie she had often tried, she rode forth, foremost in the band, urging them on and of, led rather by that ancural instino that leads the dam to its young than the knowledge of the rosd to the spot she bought. She renobe it at last, the log cabin in the dark cedarn whare she had found him lying beforc. But "Oh, God!" whe exelaims, "it is empty. Long eince he has deserted it, for no sign o life is here. Where shall I eeek him next?
In despair, she yields the reins to the noble animal that bears her onward. Her friends follow, wondering where this wild chase will end. But night comes on, and the party return to the bouse dejected, bafled, and impatient for returing daylight tion.
Three days were thus spent; three terrible days of suspense and agony to the poor mother 1 On mall house by the waybide, to rest their horse and refresh them with water. While waiting to mount again, a child's voice is heard from an inner room, begging in tender accents to be released. The mother starts-she listens-her cheek fueh. "Come," she says, in 2 husbed tone, "he in ere! I know hin roice. I heard it from that room. I cannot mistake it.
Her friends obey without apeaking. There is something in her eye that compels obedienee they force the door; she stands one moment on the threshold; looks at him who is holding her child, to keep him fram her arms; rushes forward, and plunges something that glittered in her hand dieep into his breast.
I warned you, Albert Brunol" exclaimed the poor, frantic woman, in a subdued but terribly audible voice, "but you would not heed ny warning. I have killed him," she connued. "God hs
It was all tbe work of a moment; and she atood with her hands clasped around the neck of the child, who hadrun to her as soon as relnased by his wounded father, who had tallen, bleeding, on tha floor.
All atood for a moment as if transfixed to the spot. The mother, paln as death, and looking escaped from her riding-hat, floving almost to her cet, led her boy from the room, passing slowly through the crowd, that had now pathered, renounted her horse, and placing thn child bifore her, retraced har way back to har home.
"I have-lilled
"I have-killed-him-mother !" were the first ords she uttered, slowly and solemnly, as she phecy is fulfilled; he made me ths sword to pierce im with; but I have again brought the boy.". For weeks Alphin James laid at the eatb, the few words ahe uttered at intervals only proving that reason had deserted its throne, and if $h_{\text {in }}$ such a state would be valueless. But radually the recovered, and demanded a trial by an laws of her country, which she had broken in her state of frantic exeitement, caused by the dread of losing her child. She rode daily, in her read of stasing to the courfhouse, aceompaniled by her judge and lawyers, and listened calmly to the able arguments and eloquent pleadings for and against wished. Sbe attempted no palliation of her orime; opinion was in her favor; her family was loved by reh and poor in the neighborhood; she, herself, a avorite, and deservedty so; her sufferings were nown to have been great, and nobly borne; the ase was one of aggravated provocations ; and, as the wound proved not fatal, and the event occurred were in xception, she mas sentenced to ase, and not the ment, which was made light by the companionship of the child for whom she had endured so much Albert Bruno was never seen in that section he country. It was rumored that he began a new life in some distant land, which rumors of his disgraceful condnct never reached; and where he ried to retrieve his character, and redecm the

talents he had so shamefully wasted.

WALKS IN PARADISE. By Ernast Trevor.  \section*{Aast night we paced beneath an avenue}

of ancient trees, whose withered leaves had past Which of ever in the wintry blast, wisible demos throughInvisible demons with discordsant wings! Starless and chill, with just enough of light To ses tha branches toss, like guilty thing beir arms above ut-for awhile we rest Neath the bare choir, where a wild requiem ringa While thu winde, as for a soul unblest! While thas,we stood, with brooding hearts all muto,

Better Late than Mever."

By F. Brook.

ALest for womanhood
These words, with a deep sigh, welled up from hought of har own desolate condition. She whas till romantic, still efferveacing with sympathetie affection (to use her oun language), though she days. But what mattered that ? Her hesrt, she patiently, for patience is no longer a virtue when one is waiting fer a husband at bo advanced an age. On one circumstance were all her hopes placed: The village in which she lived was ailuated near he beautiful and well-known Lake George, and ho would presume to say that among tha summer would be amitten with her charms? In fset, our heroine bad already had her lorers among them, and there had been a time when she believed herelf the principal attraction of the place. She and made by these summer trips tran in any other way; and she said, with a knowing amile, that she new nothing alse induced young men to visit the ountry except a dediro to load over heels in love before they knew what they were about. They said they came to fish, but she could not be blinded as to what they came to fish

Her old bacbelor uncle, for whom she had kept House ever sinoe the death of her parents, had often twitted her about her ilirtatione, and asked ould like to know that herself," A kindnearted Cllor was nncle Ben, and one mech thougbt of in the village, and when he took his accustomed sent an the church steps during the hour between morning and afternoon servioe (for it was a good, old-fashioned Presbyterian church, and moat of the people took their lunch in their pockets snd staid till their church affairs for the weak were concluded), many frimnds gathered around to hear him tell his any frisnds gathered around to hear him tell his orite atory, too, and his jolly sides would shake nn told of the summer morning when he alily took a helsdder from below the talltree in which the scboolmaster was parched, eating spples, and absorbed in resding hia favorite, "Pope'e Essay on Mnn."
And then how he wstched till the mnster, looking And then how he watched till the mnster, looking achooltime and for the frost time discovered that the ladder was missing. But fesrs were excited lest he should never recover bis gravity, when he described the many ways in which the betricked pedagogue andenvored to rescb terra firma.
But enongh of nncle Ben. You know now whst a protector Miss Clementins hrd, and can judge But you should have secn tbe eorners of his mouth twiteh with the ill-repressed smile when he spied his niece sitting by the open window, in the plensant aummer tailight, warbling (as she said) "Ever of Thee!" and "Would I wre with Thee." She heeded him not, for in bright fancy-land she was dresming of enehanting some wandering swmin, who wss living in ambush smong the trees, and who would, when he could no longer would, when he could no longer restrain his feel-inge, rush to her side and beg to be sllowed to mite ings, rush to her side and begg to be sllowed to mske her sequaintance without the formslity of an introher sequaintance without the formslity of an introductlon. But it was sll in vain. No one eame to sdmire the sweet singer, though she doaned the and exhansted time and patience in arran ringlets to fall so as to eover the neek, wbing the fer jears will lesve their mark, less bewitehing, well knew. She met good-l loking gentlemen in her daily waiks, and wondered thst they could not se in her face what a fond and loving wife she would make. However, all things have an ond, and did the single life of Mise Clementina Smith. uncle Ben burst into her room, claiming;

Here, Jinny, where are you?"
horror, for he said he could not bother to say her real nime, for he averred thst it was a good mouthful for any one.)
She answered company with him.
"Here, Jinny," said he, "let me introduce Major Winslow and his cousin, Miss-Miss- Well, now, it is too bad, but I've clean forgotten your name. "Miss Lacy Norrie," said the young lady smiling.
h, yes. Well, I declare I don't see how I for-
It puts me in mind of the time when I was young and bashful and forgot my omn name. I "Well, one Sunday-
"Well, never mind now, uncle," interrupted Miss Smith; "you are keeping the gentleman and lady waiting, and it is not likely that they will fancy your "Thanes as well as your village chume.
"That's soid uncle Ben ; "forg lsdy. And now to the point, Jinny. The young ledy. And now to the point, Jinny. The hotels down to the depot, told the major that perhaps could accommodate thom until they could find rooms "Well," ssid Miss Clementins, whose heart beat wild at at the thought of having a major staying in wildy at the thought of having a major staying in pose any obstacle in the way of their mee to interand sweet Lucy Norris felt completely at major with the hearty joker and his romantic niece. To be eure Lucy often felt like laughing when Misu Clementine and her cousin wandered off together, eemed to care for nothing better than to say or do things to make the merry laugh ring out, and the right eyes sparkle with delight.
A bright sunny creature was Aeased her better than to mount on and nothing pleased her better than to mount on the hay by the side of uncle Bon, and ride tbrough village or ather preferred to go where she thought there was chance of meeting the couple who had become very well acquainted with each other, and seemed owish now to explore every lonely place in the vicinity. The way in which Luc witb her cousin was simply this :
Her parents lived in Burlington, Vermont, and sbe had never been to New York, s circumatance thet she very much regretted, for ohe wisbed to isit her uncle (the major's father), who was very Fas no one who wanted to take her. But at lest en opportunity came in the shepe of the major, re his departure for the seat of war, and volunceered to eseort Lucy to tbe city, and also aaid that he rould like to hava her go with him to the pretty place in which we now find them. Lucy, nothing loth, agreed, and here they are. But the major loth, agreed, and here they are. But the major is fairly entrapped. Bright eyea are dangerous things for epaulets, and vice versa. things for epaulets, and vice versa.
The major was not very young, but then how infinitcly better is a man who knows the was of the nitcly better is a man who knows the waye of the who has all these things yet to gain. Sh thought Clementina, and she etrove hard to bring the major with bis fifty years and his shoulder-straps to her foet. She shrank a little from Lucy'a roguisheyea, feet. She shrank a little from Lucy'a roguisheyes, yet with true Spartan will she never swerved from It purpose. And so she won him.
it proved to be. The moon, was shining brightly, 0 lamp opposed its rude glare to the mild moon henms. The major was otanding by the open wisdow, thinking probably of the fature, when, crowned with bright laurels, he should return to his home. A light hand touched his arm, and he turned to nee "Ah!" puoth
"Ah!" quoth she, "s beautiful evening, and I aee you enjoy it. It is with those who love the basaties of Nature that I ever wish to afilite, I amm rejoiced to ace that yon are one of those. I hsve ever been searching for compaoionship which may bring sympathy to my soul. My nucle is a understand the cravings of a romantic female hearth, It he ie one tormake my home congeninl?
"Indeed Mise

 "No, not so very; yet hatf so very old either. me a long period, tbough in some persions years sdd diggity, without detracting any other merit.
it not so ?" "Yes, my derr miss, and I fondly hope that rge will not stand in my was when I my bome a companion for whe
"Oht my dear major, how could you think for a moment that I-that she-I mean that any one could so far overlook your worth, ns to think of those yeers which haste elevated you to a position those yeers which hase clevated you to a position from wich you ean look domn on tha common herd st your feet. No, sir, youn need bave no feare on that that seore, but march boidly up to dem and the sur idity than you would feel in bette, for I koss tim bravery, and feel that you are s lion in war, though gentle is pesce. $\Delta \mathrm{m}$ I not right, major ?"
Her companion was overwhelmed by her oratory and for a few minutes remained speechless and motionless, till at last he ventured to take the lidy's hand (which wis still resting on hise cost knew it should, where in remained passive,
"Then I may," he said, "hope the nover. verse to my suit. Spare me further persuasions and tell me if you will indeed be mine ?" What should she do ? She had heard uinting when they recelved a proposal of lodie was so troublesome, she concluded not to do it; s the moved towarads him send rested her head confidingly on his shoulder.
After s fow minutes' silence, she said, "Perhaps it is hardly maidenly in me to be oo lightly won but $m y$ heart is untutored Way. However, I mutured, and wefer you to to unele Ben, The compact was The compact was sealed by a kins, which wa and was heard by uncle Ben, who was standing at the garden gate, telling storian to Lucy.
"Well, now, did you ever"" enid he Mry and dimity ain't kissing esch other! " Would ou believe it, little Lacy, nobody ever kissed me but my mother," but my mother."
" You shan't
"You khant say that any more, unde Ben, for "In kiss you myself."
And she did, too, and ran away before he oould half realise what she had donc. Poor fellow, that kiss on his rough-bearded cheek traversed every part of his body, and he felt like seizing his finger ends to keep tho delightful sensation from leaving him. He realised how blessed he would be had he such a ona to lise him always, and a tear rose to his eye as he felt how hopelese was such a future for him. He eoon recovered himeelf and with a low laugb, murmured
"Pbhawl I shall make myself as ridiculous as the major. That happy creature could never content herself with me, even it she could love me, which is very unlike to happen, and oouldn't be But Ben could not deny to himself that he loved the winsome Lucy, though he tried to lsugh at his folishness. But be mind nd talked less. He gave his consent to tbe ject. Sometimes, too, a doy would pone on the subone of his stories, and Lucy, who would realit liked him very much, bogan to fear that he was the matter. Looking her fall in the face to see if she suspected his secret, he asked it she really wished to know.
"Indeed, indeed I do," she said, manifesting her ignorance by her very eagerness.
"Well, then, listen, snd you ehail hear. Inm now nigh onto fify yeare old, and sincer. my dear old mother died 1 have lived almost alone, except since my niece has been with me, a matter of nine gear or so. And I're had no my good dog, Jeck, that used to follow me everyvhere.
Hero his eyes brightened, but they soon dimmed gain, and he continued:
"But neer
But never mind Jack'a story now. I am aling you one that is sudder than any I ever told before, Lucy. Well, at I say, I have has no one to love; but this oummer a dear little girl has crept right inside of my tongh old heart, and, she don't care a cent rbout staying, Don't lough at me, Lice, I Alall get over there. haps, and some of these daya Irl come and see you when you are married, and if you'll only think onee in awhile of poor uncle Ben-""
Here he atopped and bruated his rough hand uge sob the soling to guped down Luge sob that was struggling for mastery.
ms around uncle Ben's neck, and whio put her "Why, don't you keap the little girl), uncle ?" He looked up and asid, sorrowfully
"Beesuace she would not stay."

"I I haven't, I do now; will you, little daring, will you come to the home of one nearly three times as old as you, but who would like to moke you as happy as a bird ?
" 1 ITmy ( my parenta ame willing, so am I and here's Now uncle Ben', the nearly E o, for Ben't happincas was complete, or parents, which, I many waited the eanction of Luey's wo may leave the trro couples. Brave major and romantic Clementina, doar pacle Ben and charmromantie ing Lueg.

My readcre may disdsin the idea of these old bachelore sod this old maid why should they not? Marriage is on institution extainsed bod, Gind, I ney, let erery one enter into the holy state, eren though they may be on the the wrong side of forty, for the doing of a good work io "Better Late than Nerer,"

WASHING TON'S BIRTHDAY IN NEW

 ORLEANS.Tue 22d day of Feb., says the New Orleans
 ers in ity blstory, and will he slwaye remembered hy
thos #bo possed through the vuried excitements thosn mbo passed through the viried excitementa with musani pleasure. The day was one of the fineat hatt
 an early hoour the peopla were astir to to withese th parde oud bear tbe gronard were ascert to withese the come of Long bo Canal street.
the wide etreet wo hour sat for them in the prograamme the Levee. Tha Cuatom.hoone and avery other arall shle space were literally covered over with spects Core, including larese aumbers of ladtes.
Jutt Ebove the Jtnd, on whileh were stationed was erected a large erril of our best military bands, formed for the mo. Ament In an immensc orchestra or instrumentyl muelo

 tery that they could he Ared ne the boss soteso of the rolliog music. The first piece was appropritely rolliog muaic. The first piece was approprintely
"Hail, Columbla," und we never heard it given with more effect. As one note after another of that swell encrs, the crowd gradualy ns the enthusiastio liv The ledles convulsively kept taue with their hinnds, the gentlemenis eyes glisteoed and tbe bronzed. the gentlemen's eyes glisteoed and tbe bronzed veterans prosent of the Departmeut of the Gut wore a more flerce and martial aspect. Amid this proround moment of Intcrent, 58 the speakigg harmooy sweled and rewrberated aven acrose the glorious

 Thapid discbarge of artillory.
Thrs novel o oncert and most an denartinent, as well influential eltizens.

The Matquerade Ball gik

 affir, the gentlemen foitionuily the novaltant of thom the nour oficially vnounced Free State victory.
Enterig the

mense throng present.
Tbe entire amir wis a most briiliant siocess, The boxes were erowded with eleg antly-drebsed speetstors.

THE FETE TO THE 20TH U. S. COLORED INFANTRY

The 20th regiment United States colored troopa left Riker's island st nine o'clock on the 5th of March, on borrd the ateamer John Romer were conveyed to the foot of 20th atreet, Enatt river where they were disembarked and formed in regi mental line, und marched to Unlon Square, arriving in front of the Union League Clib House at on orelock.
A vast orowd of ditivens of overy shate of color, and every phsse of soeial and political life, flled the square, and streeta, and every door, window, verand the scee and housetop that commanded a viow of the senas feopled with spectatora Over the en trance of the Club House wis a trance of the Club House was a large platform ornk-mented with figge and filled with ladies. In the street waa anotber platform tsatetaily decorated and ocenpied coloras wara prasented by President Fing, of Colum.
bis College, who addressed them with wirmth and At tbe cloee of his epeech Frealdeot Wing read an addresa whleh bad seen prepured by H. T. Tucker.

 Affer inncbeon march was resumed in tha follow-

Police Superinteadeat Kennedy.
One Huarred Poiticemen.

Than 20th regiment Uoiled Bind Band
Than 20th regiment United Bittee Colored Troops.
Tue tine of marcb was down Proat

the dannewerk.

We give in this paper an illustration by which our readers can form some Ides of this great Tive Dinnewerkrk is it itunte at the part of the duohy or Scbles mig, and ts now now zun enor tire coantry. The length of the pentheula of sebibe Wig- Holigtefin to the end of Jutland is sald to be be 300 millee. The breadth. however, 15 but one third of its leagth, and the Dannewerk leagth, and the Dannewerk le is fortification that rechese very nearly seross the land from the Germet reseces very nearly scross the land from the German Oecas to the Bartic. Thlis border wan la suld to heve been crected in the ninth contary, wand, uccording to tbe accounts given of it in Olua Tryggveson's sara, it was bullt of wood, stonc and earth. In the year e3\%

 barrows or earth mounds in thn immediate neighborbood, and whith resemble sbolutely those found in thia country, uad whioh the Indians ured at tbe period

 ments notice.
yront

Kilpatrick's raid.

THe recital of the sufferings of ourprisoners at Rioxmood had exolted thronghout the land the deeppest fintereat in them. The refuand of the rebel anthor anthorities to exechangeo them, and the unf fir ndvan.
tages which they take on emery tages Fhioct they take on every orccasion, compelling no to forego the superiority of oumberon on our eldie en order to order to relense any, made their relesse almost hope.
tess ens.
lest
jected.

THE OPERA IN THE 2D CORPS.
Wx must not suppose that balls and operas The arnay bise both; Bnd we five e couple of illue trations' to-day of the Opera House erected hy the 24 Bzigide, 15t Dlvision, 1st Army Corpe, com. 2 L Bzzide, 1 st Dlvisil minded by Gen. Rice.

A Case of Curiosity. - Some people have er

Mo
$\qquad$

(3040 SHP 아영 (arnte

the poet and the leaves.

ny rev. T. s. honoson.

Hz stood benenth an arbor's pleasant shade, Crushing the joice from sweet Pomona's fruit, When lot a bunch of leaves with yellow suit Dasbed in his face, and rested where lenves To brownest rottenness. He thought it sala, "Marlt where Ilie, and let thy penote, Embalm my hal $\mathrm{Oblivion's}$ grave bs laid; And so in flitting lave I wakened thee To lie on enth, a dead but famous thing. "Oh, thus will I, when swept by Death's decre Along that sea which knows no fathoming, Naught left bahind whose worth men long will prize,
Just touch one plume of Time's all-sweeping

The Gulf Between Them

ofapter xys.

As they mere eitting at dellen inquired about Fuller.
"I have quite forgotten to ask you about Tom,
he said; "he was in town when you last wrote to me."
"He has not come yet," Elizabeth replied; "the house in which ne was at time; in his last letter he wrote that be might be gona another year.
"Poor old Tom," Elsie said, laughingly.
Elisabeth's brows contracted a little; she had never bean abla entiruly to forget the suffering this giri had eaused the young man. Wheneve way it jarred upon her feelings and ifritated her greatly

Bessia doesn't like any one to laugh at Tom said Mellen, noticing the axpression of her face.
"I confess $I$ do not," the replied ; "he iesuah noble fellow at the bottom, with an honest, kindly heart, and it eeeras to me that no one really sequainted with Tom oan help respecting him, in spite of his eccentricitiea of manner.
"But you need not be so heroic, Bessie," returned Elsie; "Yom alwaya nillowed me to laugh at him as much as I mean to be ill-natured. $"$

mean to be ill-naturea.

"No one wold ever kuspect you Bidie,", added Mellen, with a fond glance.

Ellzabeth ssid nothing more, and the con

tion changed.

We shall have the house orowaded with vikior I suppoose", Eldie said; "Mary Harrington told me tion-"
"I hope ehe won't come to stay any time junt
"I hope 50 , too," added Mellen ; "I should like a Litthe enjoyment of my home, if poseible, for a
"But people will come," said Elsie; " "you mus expect it. They yook for all sorts of invitations, and you muet give them or mortally offend everybod ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ " ody."
Perhaps the idea of the gaiety that would ensue ras not unpleasant to Elisie, in spite of her joy at Mellen's return; it wes quite natural at her age, like a flower deprixed of the sun.
"Oh," anid Mellen, "we will give them as many "Oh", anid Mellen, "we will give them as many dinners and parties as they like, provided they wont domicile themselves with us; is not that so, Elizabeth ${ }^{\text {P" }}$ " I des't mind that so much."
"
"Shanl you take a house in town, Grant aked Elisie.
a Do you p
"Do you particularly wish it""
Oh, it would be pleasant, of course.,
Juat as you and Blizabeth choose"
Just us you and Blizabeth choose," he said. "For my part
"And so would I," said Mellen.
Elsia looked a littic disappointed, but she coneealed the fealing with her usual quickness. "I have not told you what. Dr. Peters said," she continued.
"What"
"What?" her brother akked, anxious at once.
"He thinks the air too strong for me in the winter; but, 1 dare say, in mould not have on $m y$ acocount.
"My dear child," eried Mellen, "that settlea the matter at once, we will certainly go away where you like; will we not, Beesie ?
"Certainly," she ans wered, quietly.
Elsie looked triumphant; she was always elated at having her own way, whether the thing was of importance or not.
"We need not
demurely; "it will be warm and plenesant for saveral weeks yet.
"But you muat be careful," returned Mellen, see your health give way.
"Oh, nonsense, Grant, don't begin to figget I am perfectly well; make, him believer it, Bessije.
"I think so," bhe replied; "you are ftronger "I think so," she replied; "you are stronger than you lookk,"
"Elaie requires great care," said Mellen, deeideclly.
Elsie did not look dirplensed; she tiled bein Elsie did not look dirpieased; she liked being petted and at liberty to induige her numberles whims and capricea
The family head that evening entirely to themselves, and it passed off very pleasantly. Elizsselves, and it paseed off very pleasantly. ELizs beth and Rusie sang the old songs Mellen loved, and hey all talked and laughed gaily, forgetful for the time of any cloud
the minds of either.
Tha next morning when they met in the break fast-room the post had arrived, and 'Dolph pre sented Klasie and Elizabeth with neveral letters; these were only eaid, laughingly

aid, laughingly

"The division is not just; Bessie having two tters; yon might give me one."
"I am too selifish," sha ansmered.
"Mine is from Mary Hantington," observed Elaie. "Bess, you shall not read yours till you have given ua our coffe. IT1 just see #hat the have given us our coffee. I'll juat see what the Elizabeth poured out the coffee while Elnie opened her note.
$a$ Sbe is comin
"Sbe is coming to-day", ehe exclaimed; "I old you so. She sends all sorts of messages creature, and is dying to see you."

Oh, of course," said Mellen.
"She naka after Mr. Rhodes, Bessie-poor old

"What is that ?" asked Mellen.
So Elsie expluined how the widow delighted in worrying Miss Jemima, and making desperate love to the stout man on every oocasaion; and in sugghing at her quaint speeches Elizsbeth quite forgot her own epistle

Why, wbere are sour letters ${ }^{\text {" }}$ " auked Elisie. "I forgot them," returned Elizabeth, drawing them from under her plate, and adding as ah zlaneed at the superscipition of the apper one, " 1 . is only from the dressmaker Elsie snatched the other, and cried out:
hom from Filer; on, of what
"From Tom? oh, I am so glad; I have been expecting a letter for a week past."
Elizabeth took the letter, and her fuce lighted up quite jogously as she broke the aeal and began to quite jo read.
"Well,

Vell," said Etere, impatiently, "what does ay ? read it out."
Elizabeth uttered an exclamation of delight.
"Oh, you provoking creature," cried Elsie, "
"tll us what it is ?"
"Tom must have found a diamond mine," ssid Mellen.
"He has," returned Elizabeth, "as good"
"Bless me," snid Elsie, "will he go
"Bless me," snid Elsie, "will he go abo
"His old uncle bas left him a fortune," exnincd Elizabeth.
Elsie fairly screenmed.
"Who would have thought it! Only fancy Tom Fuller rich! Why he'll be robbed every day of "Hise."
How much is it t " asked Mellen. "II am very glad. Tom is a good fellow and deserves it."
He had entirely got over any auspicion He lud entirely got over any auspicion that was prepured to rejoice in his good fortune.
was prepared to rejoice in his good iortune.
"But how large an amount is it $?$ " questioned
Elaie "Thirty thousand a year," replied Blizabeth;
"Tom is in a stote of bewilderment that makees his letter sadly incobierent; he never expected a penny; his uncle changed his will at the laat pensy;
moment."
"But wasn't he your uncle, too ?" asked Elisie.
"No; he was aunt Fuller's brother.
.
Elizabeth gave it to her, but between excitement nd his usual odd penmanship Tom's epists was into shrieks over $i$ ts appearance.
"He promised to bring me a bracelet," "naid she it he doesn't Thl send him straight back."
But when is he coming "" Mellen asked.
"I can't make out", said Elsie; " here is something at the end about $I$ ahall burn

"Scarcely, I should think," said the the

"Cearcely, I should ingly.
"Try and make it out, Bess," said Elsie, giving her the letter.
Elizabeth took it, looked at the lines to whic he pointed, and after a moment's study read correctly.
"I shall raturn by the Hammonia."
"Why that's due now," said Elsi Blisabeth glanced at the date.
"The letter haa been delayed," ehe eried; "he may be hert aiready.
She was in a state
She was in a state of great delight, and her companions fully sympathised with her eagerness. panions fully sympathised with her eagerness. "why, he will give, all he is worth to tha person that aska first. Won't it be fun!"
"You shall not tease him, Elsie, as you formerly did," said Elizabeth; "I will not have it." "But I will," ssid Elsie. "Thirty thousand a year! Good gracioua, he will act as if he had year! Good gracious, fallen from the moon."
About midday Mrs. Harrington arrived with a little party of friends; ehe would not allow Mellen to ceoape her till she had overwhelmed him with compliments and congratulations, all of which he received with becoming resignation. When they went upstaira she said to Elsia :
"I haven't seen anything of that mysterious creature, North, in an age; what can have become ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{him}$ ?"
"Horrid creature," eried Elsie, "don't mention for name! Now, Mary Harrington, don't forget for once in your life! If Grant knew we had had even one visit from a stranger he would be furious if you let it out neither Blizabeth or I will eve speak to you agzin." "My dear, I won't
"en with you, as aumats all; if you do, YII b
"You need not be se my name is Elsie.
"Oh, I hate to be ferociouk.
dreadfully angry I I promisad Basaie I would

TII swear it it you like.
"Bless me, don't be tragic! The matter is of consequence to me, only Bess makes suoh a point of it; besides that, I dresd to see Grant angry." "Hs never could be with you," ssid Mirs. Ha ington.
"Well, it would be just as bad if he scolded

"How good you are!" cried the wid

just the dearest thing in the world.
"Of course I am; but there's no use in standing here to say pretty things to each other, for there in one to hear."
"Oh, you odd cresture?" laughed Mrs. Harringon. "But, really, th
"There you go!" interrupted Elsie, angrily. My dear, there is no one in the room but our

"I don't esse if there is not; I don't want to

 "ar his name."I can't see why you disliks him so," pursued tbe widow. "It slways seemed to Elizabeth treated esch other oddly-" lizzebeth treated esch othor oddly-" Elsie interrupted her, quits pale with anger.
"Mary Harrington," ssid she, "if you and $I$ ars Mary farings, stop this instant. I won't hear onother word, nor must the subject come up gain."
rs. Harrington was quite subdued by her friend's vehemence, and droppad the matter without nother sllusion.
When they went downatairs after the rest of the party were assembled, Mellen began laughing at Mr. Rhodes.
"Isn't it delicious?" she cried. "I just want
"Isn't it delicious?" she cried. "I just "F jou to see us together-it is better than a play."
"And Jemima's spite is something to witness," dded Elsie. "I know she will poison you yet, Mary Harrington."
"I am on the watch constantly," raplied tha widow. "I don't even engage a strange servan now for fear it should be one of the old maid's seere emissaries,"
"You are as badly off as the Dukn of Bucking ham," said Mellan, laughing at her pretende ham," said Mellan, laughing at her pretended distress. her plumage; "but it is very amusing, neverher plumn theless."
"Of 0 .
"O1 course, if you can annoy somebody," an-awered Mellen; "that is the very acme of female happiness.
"Oh, you barbarous creature!" shricked tha vidow. "Ain't you ashamed to utter such atrocious sentiments! Mrs. Mellen, your husband has cious sentiments! Mrs. Mellen, your husband has Everybody laughad-it naver occurred to the she was too theroughly eatisfeed with her own powers of fascination to euppose it possible, even for an instant.
"After all, it is tiresome toinspire a grande past-
"" anid she, with a theatrical drawl.
"No woman ought to be better able to decide," cried Elsie; "you have made enough in all conscience."

Oh, dear, no!" atid the widow.
"Don't deny it," said Elsie, who never scruplad to make sport of her most intimate friendis, and with all her fondness for Mrs. Harrington was alwith all her fondness for lisa. Harring moat abourd things.
Elaie was in the most extravagant spirits, ae ahe had been ever since her brother's return. She flitted about the house like a beautiful elf, and Elizabeth could see how Mellen watched her aver nt, while bls face kindled with affection an pride.
"He has not changed," she thought, sady; "all his tender words were only the first ple "e inding himself at homa."
Then she began to shudder, as she eften did now when the iey wind of aome stern thought crept over her.
"Better so," ahe muttered; "what ehould I do with love and affection-what right have I to xpect them ${ }^{\prime \prime}$
But she banished these refe termined to have at least a few days of perfect and rest in which her tired eoul might restore ite and rest in which her tired eoul might reatore its strength, like a seabird reposing on the sunlit boaom of some inland lake after the exhaustion of a long and perilous flight amid storms and tempests.
Mellen, too, had laid by the suspicious feelings which the etranga circumstances connected with his return had caused, and appeared, as ha could when disposed, the most charming host possible. Elizabeth sunned her heart in the smile which lighted up his face whenever their eyes met, and kept th mind.
${ }^{\text {"Pence and rest?" she murmured. "I need }}$ them so much. I will have them at any cost.", tha The dis passed as such days usualy do, thas versation might not have bean such as altogether suited the intellectual tastes of Mellen and his wife, they were too well-bred for any expression of such feelings, and Elsie made even the nonsense cha. ing by her brilliant sallies and buoyant spirits.
The widow had not forgotton her old desire The widow had not forgotten wer olingly amufascinate Mellen, and her efforts were highly ammsing to the lcokers-on. She was in doubt whether he preferred the queenly manner and repose of Elizabeth or the areh grace and exuberant gaiety of his sister, and attempted aira which she consldered to a happy medium batween ths two. Her efforts to aupport the double character delighted Elsie immensely, who, with the usual good-natura of inimate friends, made as very face as ahe dared.
Thay were all assembled in tha llbrary bafora dinner, tired with laughing and romming about, tired of rowing over ths sunny waters, and glad to hould commence.
Suddenly there was a bustle in the hall, and a oud, goodnstured Foioe that made Elizs beth start to her feet.
"It's Tom," she cried. "Grantley, Tom has She rushed into the hall, and sure enough there atooa Tom, sunburned, a little thin from seasickarss, but the same droll old Torn as ever.
He caught Elizabeth in his arms and uttered his He caught Elizabeth in his armo and uttered his came up, and Tom eommenced shaking his two hands with immense energy, as if they had been pump handles and nothing but the greatest exertion on his part could save the ship.
"I'm so glad to see you!" be cried. "I'm so glad to get back. I declare I can't say a word."
"And I'm glad; very, very glad," replied Elizabeth.
"And we congratulate you heartily on your new cortuns," said Mellen.
"Oh, don't spesk of it," cried Tom; "it's no end of a bother to me alresdy. God bless you, I nd of a bother to me alresdy. God bless you, I don't know what to do with it! How-how ia your "ster ?" he stammered.
"She is quite well," Mellen answered, "and will "charmed to see you; we were expecting you." "That's niee of you. So you've only just got ack! Well, it's good to get home, imn't it t that is, if I had any b chsp like me."
"This house will always seem like home to you, hope," said Mellen, kindly.
"Alwas," added Elizaly
"don't forget that,
"You're too good to ma," eried the grotesque Cellow; " you always were!"
"Of course they were," said a laughing voice, that made Tom atart, and appeared to take every Flsie of strength out of his limbs.
Elsie had followed them into the hall and suddenly appeared before Tom in her brilliant aveniug dress and weird lovaliness, reducing pltiable state st once.
"Don't you mean to Blsie.
"Of-of course!" said Tom. "I'm so glad to see you-will you shake hands-will you-be-be
"There is my hand," replied Flsie; "my pleas ure depends on how agreble you wake yoursel. Isuppose you have con will hardly ign msnners that you will hardiy deign to notice us poor plain untravelled people
"Oh, you don't think that ""
Oh, you don't think that!" said Tom. "You are laughing at me just as you always did."
"Did you bring me miy bracelet?" demanded
"Indeed I did; I'd have brought all Paris if I had thought it would please you.
Elizabeth now plainly thought poor Tom hod rearned no wiser than when he went sway; but Mellen, man-like, never perceived the state in fellow, and would not hava thought seriously of the matter if ha had.
"Of course you epeak Franch like a nat
"Just about," replied Tom, as rendy as ever to
"So you did not forget the braoelet?" urged
"Indeed I did not; it's in my carpst-bag"
"Then I will be goodsatured to you all tha vening," said she, "and won't tease you tha lasst tite."
Tom was quite in ecstacies at the proepect; but
"She can't keep her promine ne matter how hard she tries-don't trust her, Fuller.
Elsie made a gesture of playful menace and carried Tom off into the drawing-room, quite regard-of a stiletto, or ruin it in some other way, just to gratify her caprice and alt odd love of destruction gratify her capriee and alt odd love of destruction which was in her nature Tom Fuller spent the first happy eroning he had deliciously goodnatured and noisy in his pleasure that he wonld have supplied any lack of merriment on the part of the other guests if it had been ne cessary. But it was not.

oHApten xtit.

No man with any wisdom whatever thinks of re turning from a journey without gladdening all th feminine hearts in his sphere with goodly presents, and Mellen had by no menns forgotten his duty. There were all sorts of curious Chizese orpamentn, wonderful pagodas for glove boxes, seented sanda wood repositories for haces, exquisitely oarted ivory perfect ahrieks of delfght during the first glow of possension. He had hrought stores of valuahle ornaments which had once helonged to wealthy Mexican families, their value incressed hy the quaint, old tirae setting, and the romanoe connect ed with them; and Elsie oonsumed hours in ornamenting herself with them, laughing at her own apptarance, and dancing about like a regular apptarance, Queen Mab.
Among these presents were a pair of very valnSpain two hundride after a fashion prevalent in things even now preserved amnng the old Castilian grandees, to he kept through all changes of time and fortune, and aired on feetive occasions only. When Louis XIV. Was a youth and in love with Marie Mencini, he once offended her mortelly hy bestowing a similar bracelet upon a young stranger of jewels to put the haughty Marie in goodhumor and eatis's her Italian cupidity.
These bracelets Mellen brought with him and gave one to his wife and the other to Elsie. They were made of a gauntlet-shaped piece of gold, widenlag at the back of the wrist, and covered with delicote chasing; the gold was so fine and thin that they were supple as a bit of kid. A double row of pearis and emeralds ran about the edge, and the olasps were of diamonds, arranged in the shape of olasps wer
The jewels were exceedingly valuahle, though to anyhody poskessing the least fancy that made the chey owned a history, and one might have woven a thousand romances concerning the lives of those who had onec worn them-that is, anybody who is not ashamed of heing a dreamer in thie rushing, practical age.
These were
Thes certninly made a very aplendid displayed, and costly exhibition.
As I said, the firat fortnight passed off delight fally, then the visitore departed and there wore a few days of quiet. The Mellens renewed the gaieties then hy gi-ing a dinner-party to severa! families in the neighborhood to whom they owed ilies in the neighborhoo oivility, and as Elsie said
"They are atupid people to be sure, hut then it" little change from our oun special dullness, and "Yon are euch a foolizh puss"," returned Mel-
"Oh, that's all very well," laughed Elsie; "but I don't wish to make a femele Rohinson Crusoe of myself, 1 do sssure you. Beesie, old Mre myself, 1 do sasure you. Bessie, old Mrs. Thompson will wear that wonderful new hcad-dress, and son will wear that wonderful new hoad-dress, and her son will ask me to sing and he oo ecarlet and her son will ask me to sing a fuuttered when I look at him."
She mimicked the expected gueets in turn, and did it so cleverly that her companions were both obliged to laugh, so everyhody prepared for the inflietion of a country dinner in the apirits. It was rather etupid to be sure, hut Elsie so lighted up the room with her radiance, and Elizabeth wa so pleaeant a hostess in her stately beauty, that everything passed off quite tolerably, and even the mout commenplace of the party warmed up a little under the influence of their The ladies had risen from the table, giving the men an opportunity to enjoy their eigars in comthe drawing-room.
The moon shone broad and full through the windows of the hall, and som windows of the hall, and somebody remarked on the heauty of the night. Elsie darted away and fiung open the hall door. fung open the hall door." Blizabeth said; " don't "You will get cold," otand there."
Elsie danced out on to portico in playful defiance of her eister, and they wont after her, everybody $A_{B}$ Flisie ran amay to the othergernesk. anda something fell upon the stones of the vering noise, followed by a little shriek which she ing noibe, folawed bay n.
"What is the matter ?" called out several voices but hefore they reached her Elaie stooped, pieked "omething up snd ran to warde them.
"I dropped my.brooch," she said; "eome in, I am chilled through and through.
She drove them playfully before her, and they all entered the pariors laughing grily-all but and her nerves must have been in a strange ntate from constant watchfulvess when this little event eould have moved her so greatly. She leaned agninat the door-frame quite cold and chill. As Blsie passed her the girl slipped something in her Elizabeth atood motionless Elienbeth atood motionless until thoy had all ing breath and moved towards the hanging therShe opened her hand and looked downging lamp. paper carefully folded about a broken hlt of fron, as if to Eive it wright eneugh to he thrown with are aim. She shut her hand quickly oun if the sight of the hammless paper filled her with loathing, conquared the convulaion which shook her from

Then it contained.

Thon with spasmodic hante she tore the paper fire, watching till even the asbes were gone, fearful that sny trace should he left.
"I muat!" she muttered, "I must go-I dare not wait!" She looked eagerly about; the gay laughter of the men rang up from the dining-room she could distinguish her husband's voice; throng he closed doors of the parlors came the sound of rith which Elsie was amusing the ladlos.
Elizabeth flung her armas aloft with oudden
"Laughing, singing," ehe moaned, "and I here with this horrible euffering! I must go-I mus go!"
She
She caught up a shawl which lay on a cheir opened the outer door softly, hurried oteps and dibappeared among the trees
Mr . Mellen did not give his trees.
lengthy opportunity to enjoy their claret and aigary he had no interest in their talk sbout the political affairs of the country, a recent bankraptey, the price of corn, or any of the topics which came up, and some time hefore it might have been expected he rose, anxious to counteract the dulness by the presence of his wife and sister, hoth of whom he presence of his wife and sister, hoth of whom he had regarded all the evening with new tenderness had regarded all the evening with new tenderness among all those fusay, ill-dressed women hirds wan still at the piano when the sentlemen enterid Mr. Mellen looked about for Elizabeth, hut sh was not there.
"She had not come in yet," said old Mre, Thompson, in answer to his inquiry.
Elsie heard the words-she had cars like a little heast of prey.
"One of th
"One of che servante atopped her," she called will be hetter regulated Come hing hemine and help me in this old eong you like Grantley, "In a moment, dear," he replied.
He left the room, fearing that Bli be drawn away by a headache. He had never felt so tenderly eolloitons ahout her. These last weel of sunshine had made his proud nature kindly genisl. He was anxious to atone for all his old genial. He was anxious to atone for all h suspicions and little neglects of her comfort,
He was crossing the hall, when the outor doo opened and Elizabeth entered. She did not ohserre him, and he saw her in all her unrestrained emoseeking escape from eome danger.
"Elizabeth!" he called out.
She started as if he had etruck her, but she wae ccustomed now to controlling herself, and after that first trembling threw off her shawl and foreed "Where face into composure.
Where have you been ?" he asked.
"Only on wo the veranda, she said, a little too hurriedly; "I was eo tired and my head ached-
He looked
"Youki at her dissatified and suspicious.
" "onder at you,"
"It was foolish," she returned, trying to laugh, "but the dinner was so long. Come into the draw-ing-room."
She made
She made an effort to epeak playfully, as Elaie might have done, but it was a failure
"Your ahoes are damp," he crelae
"You have been on the grass-pray whatenly "eke you there?"
"I-I just ron down the steps-I won't do вo "gain."
"ing-and opened the door
"Come in here, you naughty people," she cried haghing and epeaking lightly, though there was a gleam in her eyes. "Oh! Mrs. Thompson, the husbands and wives who have been separated are worse than lovers."
She forced them
way, and meking everybody, talking in her wild neither the frown on Mellen'e brow nor his wife's paleness were ohserved.
"You have been out," she found an opportunity "I ehall bel" groaned the moman mad!" "I "I ${ }^{\text {he }}$ "
Elsie Elrie gave an impatient gesture and ran awa from her. The very sight of her carelessness and to he composed; her husband was watehing was still. They asked her to play the hang her the piano and played one of her most brilliant pieces-to sing, and her rich contralto voice rang out with new passion and power. I tell you even women can only marvel at the power many of the aex presarve over themsclvea when playing for a great stike, and the least hetrayal of look or movement might he full of danger.
The evening pased onf without further incident ception, thinking what agreeshle people the relena were, and how happy they must he in Mel beautiful home.
"Oh $\rightarrow$ oh - oh "" eried Elsle, with a yawn that distorted her pretty month out of all prop "Therd her pretty month out of all proportion "Thank heaven, they are gone! I am eure another "Your would have killed me who had nearly recovered his shaid her krother, heard you tell poor young Thompson that you had never enjoyed yoursels so thoroughly."
"Of oourse I did; What else conld I say,"
Mr. Mellen I dat what olse could I say Elsie was standing by the fire, of the room. complaining of cold, and Elizabeth walled towarda her as the door slosed.
"k=don't?"
Elisabeth dropped into a seut with a wearied look, of it!"
ruch ss a person wears after hours of self-restraint.
"It's no une to talk", she said.
"It's no ure to talls," she said.
"You ought not to have gone ont-"
"I know; hut I dared not wait. Oh, Elsie!
"Be still!" exclaimed Elsie, with the old passion which seemed no foreign to her natur cant hear-1 wont? Grantey sam you replied, in the same dreary way. "I know, I feel "thamething will happen at last."
"There must not-there shall not!" broke in "Such
"Such madness-suoh greedy selfishness--" "Don't tell me," shivered Elsicic " "please don't!" gesture full of wearineese and desolation; as they fell apart she uttered a low cry.

My hracelet "" moaned Elizabeth. "My mol "
"Yon have lont it?"
Gone, I tell you! He would have mones-I was nearly mad-I pulled it off to pacify him.
"Which bracelet-not the new one?"
"Yes; the one Grantley brought me
"Yes; the one Grantley brought me. Oh, what hall I do ?" "He won't notiee it," eaid Elsie; "you can we
"He will notice it," returned Elizabeth. " may be pawned-he may find it."
"You can any that you lost it."
"You can say that you lost it.
"Bat he is so suspicious.
aid Elsie, fretfully. lsie, fretfully
"If you had heen in my place exclaimed Elizabeth.
"threets hod heen in my place, listening to those
"Stop, stop!" Elaie almoet ahrieked, hlding her face in her hands. "I am going into apasment shall choke!"
"But a erisis is near!" exclaimed Elizabet "You don't know all that a bad, desperate creatur "I capable of to accomplish his ends.
"I can't do anything," moaned Elsie. "What am I in all this? You promised to leare me in "So I will, Blaie-I will. God knows I am ready to hear my hurthen alone; but sometimes I must speak,"
" Pd does no good," said Eleie, beginning to cry. "Yd rather he dead than live in this way "
"Be a women!" cried Elizabeth, roused into "Be a women!" cried Elizabeth, roused into "It's all very well for you to talk, you are a grea strong thing; I don't mean that you are big, but Grautley says he believers the least thing would kill Ger
me."
Passionate indignation lighted up Elizabeth's hat with which sut it softened into pity, like animal whimpering under a hurt.
"Be good to me," said Filsie. "I can't help you. I don't mean to be selfish, but I must have my ounahioo. I don't dare cven to talk about it at all. If Grant ever should find out anything, even "And what moublat would enrage him so!" Elizabeth. "Do you never think of what would happen to me?"
"Oh, but he won't find out anything," urged Elsie, ohanging her tone at once. "Juat let things 2est. That wretch will be quiet for a time." "No, no; I tell you money must be raised." "More money?"
"I promised it; there was no other way. But heaven knows where I shall get it" heaven knows where I shall get it."
"Well, tell Grant about some
"Lies !" interrapted Elizebeth
Sinking deeper into the mire every; "always lies this conatant deceit makes mo hate myself " $^{\prime \prime}$
"Now you are going off again! Oh, my head
"Hush, I say! You are safe."
"Hush, I say! You are aife."
"Whatever comes I shall not be dragged into
?" pleaded Elsie.
"No, no; have Inot promised "" returned Elizabeth, in her anguish and her bitterness hardly Elsie threw both arms about h
"You are oo good"" she geid "Oh I wit wasn't such a weak little thing! Don't despise me Bebsie?" don't-I don't. Your arm hurts me ?" and Blizabeth pushed her away, etruggling hard to be " " II I

"If I had never known-"

But Elizabeth checked the selfish wail.
"It is too late now to think of that. I tell you I When the paper anll mon the

I was so frightened."

Elizabeth gasped for breath at the very thought
"But I managed oleverly. I am very weak an crvous, but I have my wits about me sometimes. Elizaheth was ahivering from head to foot whether with remorse at the knowledge of evi which this young girl had gained through her, or which this young girl had gained t some sudden fear, no one could tell.
"I must go to town," no could tell.
an I make ?"
"Oh, anything! Tell Grant we want to purchases. I'll do it. But why must you go ? ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ "The money, I tell you the money! I have Mrose stocks; if I could sell them. I might tell Mr. Hinchley I was in deht and feared to have my "Oh," groaned Anothar lio-another lie!"

You don't know the worst. If you had to face him! Oh, Elaie, the shame, the remorse !"
She wrung her hands again with the same pas. sionate fury she had displayed after reading the note, till Elsie begal to grow hynterical and ory
"You must stop! you must stop!"
Elizabeth made an effort to control her own oufiering and soothe the girl's nervons paroxysm, to By the time they were hoth quieted Mr. Mellen returned to the room, and by one of those eril the very sabject that had roused their speaking of the very snhject that had roused their tears.
"Those bracelets are the admiration of everyody," he said.
Was to hide her handa, Elaie. Her first impulse forced herself to utter, hat she checked that and remark.
"I Isie gave another long yawn.
"I am going to bed," she exclaimed; "I advise jou both to do the same" "I wish I understood Let me see your briod tet meaning of the device. " he oontinued, his sister. Just let me look Elaic thrust out her arm.
"Look at mine," she ssid.
"No, no; Bessie's has a difforent design. I went to see something. Show me yours, Eliza.
Elizabeth did not etir. Whiter she could not grow, hut a hopeless despair zettled over her face pitiful to witness pitiful to witness.
her huabband, with his natural bracelet?" demanded "I haven't it," nhe faltered.
"Why, I saw it on your arm at dinner!"
"Oh, don't hothex, Grant," interposed Elsie; talking about devices when one in half a sleep."
"Elizabeth, where is your hrecelet ?" demand "Elizabeth, whare is your brecelet?" demande The exigency of the ing.
"I have lost it," she said, her courage. fairly indifferent from the effoct she voice sounding porure.
"While I was out-"" "How ? Where ?"
"e in," interrapted Elsie. "We me when you came in," interrupted Elsie. "We are both frightened to death, so don't scold."
"Such unperdonable oarelessnese," continue Mr. Mellen. "At least, Blizabeth, you need not appear so indiferent." "Ipear so indiferent."

Oh, if I had lost mine I coldly.
cried Elifie, kissing hers. "You doar wratohed," Elizebeth shot one terrible look at her, but waa silent.
"I am glad that you at least prize my gift," naid
Mr. Mellen. "I suppose you have not Mr. Mellen. "I suppose you have not token the rouble to search, Elizibeth "" rouble to search, Elizabeth ?"
"I hove had no time-"
"Theve had no time-"
"There are lenterns, I suppose."
went out and searched for the missing olantern, while Elsie cowered over the hall fire and Emamont stood, cold and white, in the wray.
Clorinda Clorinda came out of her domains whil Mellen and 'Dolph were acarching the hall
"L.
"Lost sometin", marster ${ }^{3}$ " she demanded,
the cooiness peculiar to her race.
Dolph. Dolph
rese on the verandarinda, not perceiving her mietings so; 'taint a month since she lost a di' lose ring, and all she said, when her maid missed it Thie was an belped.'
heard the words plainly, 'Dolph, but Mr. Mellen "IIl bet yer don't find it," Elizaheth.
IIl bet yer don't find it," pursued Clorinda.
thongh missis called me a foolioth inknown I did, thongh missis called me a foolish cullud pusson onee when I told her of hearing 'em. Dar's tieves once when I told her of hearing 'e ahout, now; 'member I telle yer!"
"Clorind "
"Clorinda," called Elizabeth, "gointo the yer The next time you venture any remark on me you Will leeve my service."

COL ulloto dahlaren, v. s, a.-5Rom a photograph by brady.
 The brutal circumstances attending the tiaguiahed services, have exoited throughont the lend a feeling aklin to that kinded hy the tall of the earlice martyrs of the etruggle, hefore the myriad-hinded

Col, Uliric Dashigren What the eon of Admiral Dahl gren, and at the opening of the whr hia prectilectlone fere for sct
 that ldea to estilit hil fither in the Nivy Ordnanc Departmeat. At the time Gen, Saxton Wwa fa com mend at Harperie Ferry, and that place wis fire

: gin. george a. custer, v. s. A.-prom a photograph by brady.-page 7.

 hatori Gen, Barabile expreesed his thanks for the

 When Gene Hookss took comm land Copt. Detheren

 he ortackod and coptured the whore party, inclowding To tind his why to Gen. Mesde'a hendquarters was the connch of War wars heing hetd which yns to de.

 Dayit to Gen Lee, the moands. Returning with hisi ion men, he asalk ted maternhly und suthecking thom at erery point.

 hrought to Washir ton, where Damputation was perset in the operatiton wes a viry eriticu one, end it the wound wonli hea, Hif Hife wai deapired of th throngh the trilil.
His
 resume notive eerreree and at hils newn wrgent request took part lu the rad in which he fell.

WHAT'S TEE DHFFRRENCK?

 mantrol 7 Ons is 8 moth and the other is s mother.
 In coal and tha difference between the effee of catch-

 A schoolm ATsER in one of the neighbor-

 and am making preparations
IF a pretty woman asks you what you will net, answer that you will lay your head to hers, The evils from which a morbid ypan suffers A sDNGLE woman has generally but a slingle purpoos, and we ail kaow what that tie.
tare best capital to begin life on is a capiBourcicaurr's Notion of Copyright-The Right to Copy.

Ten years in the Business. Patrons counted by thousands in every State of the Union. A Preminm jor all! Evans' Ne Enterprise, 1864, $bin. 000 worth of Riew Goods, consisting of Gold und Silver Watches, Jowelry, Vest and Guard Chains, Gold Pens, Pencils, Lockets, Medallions, Setts of Jewelvy, &ce., &xe., together with a large line of goods esperiully adapted to the wants of our Soldiers, Army and Navy, to be sold in lots at Orse Dollar Each, and not to be paid for until you know what you are to receive. Premium Orders for above goods, sent to any address, on receipt of 10 cents. send your orders to
G. G. EVA NS, Publisher, 630 Chestnut Street,

Philadelphia, Pa. N. B. A classified Catalogue of Boolss with Price Lists of Photogrceph Card Pictures and Albums, dress,
G. G. Evans,

Philadelphia, Pa.

Fine Gold Plsto, 8150 ,

Solid Suver, ô1.
 I have Jost issacd a New. Battle Fin with a likeness of either Gencral in ths Army and the princips or siso, for , It, will send a Solid Silver Shield or elther Army Corps, Divislon or Co, Pin, with your Name, Regiment and Co, hand domely engraved the reon, Circulir to Agents. of Jeweiry, Studs and Buttone, and everythlng in the Jewelry Linc Ons Certic, itate telling you what you
S. MM. WARD & CO., MKanufacturing Jewellers, 208 BROADWAY, N. Y.

Wa are now offering our GOLD PENS

EXTENSION SILVER-PLATED

HOLDERS
the following low
No. 1. Magle Gold Pens and Holders per dozen,

 A dednction of nice Fanney Coses co
prepald, Adaress
se
SALISBURY, BROS. & OO.,

Latest Invention IN GOID PIEINS Atar yearaor potiten reearcht has bean damoni

Trade Pricos, per Dozen.

HOSTETTPER'S cemmbratap

STOMLACH BITTPERS

WHAT THE ILLUSTRIOUS ABERNETHY nethy, the freet Engligh burgcon, to a eadeverong: nothing betrious," wos the reply "my stomich and air, that when those two organs are ont of order an you eail it, there is not suaure inch of the hody thot you eail it, there is not B square inch or the hody thot 18 not more or tess disessed ,or a drop of hlood In it it that is in a heanthfal condition." Nothling can he more true, and therefore it is or he very higbein in-portunce to kecp the stomach and ilver ln plyorone condition. If the one is weak and the other irrerular in ita sction, tone and control them with HositeT, TER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BI TKERS, the most ten al ve etabie rtetorstive and aiterative that has ever heen adminiberco as a cure for Dyspepia
it is recommended hy dis

 the aume time powerful, invigorant snd alterative, sold hy ail Druggiste and Family Groceri.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,

10,000 AGPNTHg WANTRD for the Good Stationery, and a Picturo in Oil Colora, En cloce etamp for Circular. Snaple so cents
J. L. G PIERPONT, 422-5
Baker's Rheumatic Balm, BAEER'S FEVER COOLER, BAKERS COUNH MIXTURE
BAKERS CROUP ALEEVIATOR Bí BAKERTS KIDNEX AND GRAVEL REMMEDIBS, Prinelpa Depol-No. Wish TENTHE STREET, nenr
Fourth overue. Remedive Bent to any addres on Just What इuery Eamily Wants !

No. 1. Medinm Pen........................83 ${ }^{3} 85$
No. 2. Medum Engroeng........43
No. 3. Lerge Engrossing..........i4. 50
 A discount of 10 per cent. on all ordsre of anpwan and 1 discount of 10 per cent. on all npwards.
Sample Pens.

We warran EARPuste
We warrant Every Pen for ons year, and to bo Solid (old, Genuine Irodion or Diamond-pointed, and to OResess huilthe Elasticity of the most Expenslys Gold Pan madie
We wil send thess Pons to any sddresa in the GEORGE A. MLY & CO.

Champagno Wine at 10 ets: a bottle,

$$ 75$ A moNTHIt-I want to hire Agent in evary

| Straight Eair MIado Wavy. Withont heating it, hy neing IVIN'S PATEAT HALE CRIMPERS. For कूale at Yarlaty Btores. |
| :---: |

The Great Mroney-Malring Article.

$$ 10$ AGENTS $$ 10$

 And Daalers. Something New I BurglanProo

FOR THE ARMY ANI
Merchants, Bankers, Teasher
Amateurn, ete, ete.
And warranted to print tut the heet manner. Send for Circular
J. G. COOLEEX,
N. FORSYTH & CO.

WATCHES, CHAINS, JEWELRY, ETC.

 Valued at $$ 300,000$ !

 WIOn; over 100,000 soples airendy sold, Add
"ITonstaches and Whiskors in 42 Dave"
Dont he hamhugged with ONGUENTS. ThA GBEAT

50 FIRST PRTIMIUUNES in 1863

GROVER & BATKPR'S oelerrated elastio stitch

Sevring MLaclaines

 Were swarded the Higheat Premiums over all com. petitora at the state Fars 111 Nols, Kentucky, Psonaylvania, Ohio and Oregon, and at every reespectahleInstitate and County Fatr held in 1803.
Salesrooms, 495 Broadway, N. Y.
Eportsmon, Tonrists, and Army and INavy Officors.
Powerfal and Brilliant Donble Glaeses.
Portahility combined with thont the dietrenning ren and mpprove gnmamons. Ocalints-Opticiang.

J. FI, Winslow & Co.

100,000

Watohes, Chaina, Sets or Jewrellery, Gold
Peni, Eracelota, Lockets, Fingi, and Mat, sleiro Butcoa, stude, &e., tc.,

VOrth $500,000:

 J. H. WINSLOW 208 Broadwiy, Kew Yort

The "Star" No Chimney Burner
$\qquad$

The World's Conqueror !

J. a. scioll

MERCHANT TAILIOR
32 Ann street, Now York,
Hat on hand a splendid abortment of frenob, Enag

Do Zon Want Iuxuriant Whiskers or MMonstaches ?

S60 4 yosTH I wat Agrats it eos month, Sulto
GOLD! GOLD! GOLD 30,000 WATCHES, CHAINS, &o. WORTH $$ 150,000$, 437-49

Mratrimonv- Why every man thould marty

Philadelphia Package stationery.

False Whiskors and Moustachss, $$ 250$

[^0]

Headquarters for Officers' and Soldiers' Pins of Every Description!
20-Agente 81 , Aliso, a Ke.rney Cross in Fine Gola Plate for $$ 1$, or a New Style Solld Sliver Civalry Pin, Fingraved as above, for apon it, on tha recelpt o wigente pending for 10 or more at one time will be allowed 15 eente on each, Style Solfd Sliver Covalry Pin, Engraved as above, for 8160 ,

ALSO, THE EMPORIUM FOR WATCHES AND JEWELRY.

Veit, Gunrd and NGok Chatns, Cnatelains Chains and Pins, Engraved Bracilets, Kingraved Spring Loelkets, Soal Stone Ringo Ear Dropis, Beautiral Sets of Jowelry, New Stylen Stadis and Buttons, ete., eto., ete

WVOFMIFI $400,OOO:

To be mold for ONE DOLLAR eacb, witbont regard to valne, and not to be pald for till yon know what you are to aet
Certiscoter naming eseb article aro put into Eavelopes, Seated and Mixed, and sent withont regard to eholce
In all transsetions hy mall we shall eharge for doing tha businese 25 esnte each, which muat he enclosed whe 解
Box 4876, N. Y.
Box 4876, N. Y
S. M. WARD & CO., 208 Broadway, New York.

Hoyt's Biawatha Hair Restorativo-Spernor to powery otber preparation for the hair in

Swords, Sashes, Belts.
 Ea! [ Fa! ! Yankees Outwitted.

Do You Want to got Married

Dens Sle-Tho Leavenworth, Oet. 12, 1852.

M. S. GRANT, Cols

| Tn Ma |
| :---: |
| 433.4 |

Corns and Bunyons.

Maled everywhere for 25 gats Ad Adrees
"Album Coms."-Something Now, Gay and

Dxcelsior Music-Booke-For Violto, Frute

The Confessions and Experience of an Invalid.

MOSKWA!

For Chronle and Iniammatory Rheumntiem, Hip
Complant, Par

Watches FOR THE ARMY "Particularly valuahin for oothere in the armin and travilten, ", Frank Lealies, Feb, 21 .

MAGIC TIME DBSERVERE !

> THE PERFECTION OF MECHANISM

A MOST PLEASING NOVELTY, One of the prettiept, most conventent, and deeldedly
the heet and obeapeet fimppleo for general and re liatle nee overofered wahe nse overoficered. It has withinit, and conneste

Silver Watches ! FIRST-OLASS HONTLNG TMEPIEOK UNIVERSAI APPROBATION I

 be recongizod ly entting or herman silver, it eannot
it not only in It not ouly in oppearance, hnt in durghlity, the beat reeemblanco, of SOLID STERLING SILVVRR in Tho enle nf
The enle nf thone Watohee in the array If a wource
of enormane pront, rotalifing, As they very readily do

Mrunro's Pen Cent Publications.

 Soldiers and Evervbody!

Royal Eavana 工ottery. 30 par seat. premum pald for prizes, Ynformation surnlobed, Hg heet price pald for Donhloona and all inde of Oold and Siver.

$47 AMIERICAN $47 LEVERS.

Trade Mark, P. S. Bartlett, Waltham, Maee., Full Jewelled, WARRANTED, in 4 oz . coin eilver hunting case, gold jointe, fancy pueh pin, for $$ 47$.

METALLIC AMERICAIN

The only enmelied "Tarn-over" Collar moe in "Choker", to C. H. WELLIN
A Beautiful Microecope for 30 Cts.

Great Chance to Mrake Mroney ! $$ 650,000$ of Watches, Jewelry, &c Glven away with onf STATHONEBY PBIZE

 We alo puliba ghkin yold g50 Agents can

Norvons Diseasen and Physical Dobld-

Use of Tobacco, in all formb, cured and

To Consumptives !

 Trie Aaverther, nuving vee reotored to herith in
 To Hl who deaire et, he wit bend a topy of thi pre

 Patties whith the presirption will pieage addre BEV, EDW $A R D$ 0000

BRIDCEWATER PAINT

25 Cent Legal Tender Circular.
$15 A DAY AND A WATCH FREE!
Beader, delay not; , eend at onee for our New Free
Cirenlar whetiver poin want it or not, nau we wil re turn to you the poetage on your letter or its equive, lont, as we want every person to have a Ciroular.
It astonishos everybody; defies competition, and Jntitrips competitore.

GOID PmNS AND GASms.

The Celebrated CRAIG MICROSCOPE,
 besatiful Monn
Objecta, 85 , by 335 HENRY CRAIG,

FRTMNTDS OF sOLDXIES!

 A WL Articles for Soldier8 at Baitimore, ho cont it He siten, Hy HAZNDNN
J. W. EVERETT & CO.

PHo formand to any midrese on reealpt of order miuent $\quad$ OFTCEBS OF THE $\triangle R M Y$ AND NAPY, ACTOROM CELEBRTTIES, EATI, eto

American, Swiss and $\mathrm{Tn}_{\mathrm{n}} \mathrm{lish}$ Watchos

Ingenions contrivance for raising the lintel of doontays, to avoid crushing the precty high hats and

FINE WATCH FREE! And $$ 15$ Per Day MKade Easy, ban any buit dozen othor packagen ever mold Each

```
c
```

 hem. Agentery wolder and every famy wante

 OBIGINAL BICKARDS PRIZE PACKAGEE Each of whicb we bave oopyr ithted sccordics to law.
None others arc genvine. For na expoes of the Oripinal, Lat

tbe World.

The Miasma and Foul Vapors Oenerated by the hot gun will be far more doadly to our Volunteere then the enemy'r bayouets; Inthe Indar and Crimeau campalgan HoLLOWAY' PTLLS were nied in enormous quantitlen. They kept the per box or pot. Boldiers, supply youreelvea.

Wells & Waller Manfacturere of Artificial Limbe Worn and approve
D. E. SICKLES. Aleo, Artifcial Hande,
Send for Circular.

For Vetoran, Army Corps; Cavalry and Battle Pins, send to H
S. M. WARD & CO. 208 Broadway,

INFANTRY PIN FOR THE SOLDIER
 ne Pin, Caralry and Artillery Pln, Monltor, Engt 44250

TOMES, SON & MELVALN

Dealere In "Fire Armi," "Catlery," "Eporting Artielee," "Funoz Goode, Perfimery, soap, Brua en, Heerachaum Pipes, eto, eto. Mriltracy and N Napy E, Equipment, in every varioty.
A large aceortment of HICH PRESHETNATION SWORDS.S

Millinery & Dreesmaking Announcement MADAME BENEDICT invites tho LADIES of New f Snroh, to inepect her NOOVBL NERY and DRESSM AKING. M4LLLINEBS NOT ADMITTED 12 WAVERELEACE. THE BEST LITERATURE 13P By the Best, American Writers 50 to tound enct montu in the

Atlantic Monthly

LONGFELIOW, LOWELL, HAWTHORNE, EMEB SON, HOLAES, AGASAB, Bnd others of the leading Lox, HoLMES, AGAs31Z, Bnd others of writere of the country contribute repularly. writere of the country contribute regularly.
Terme sa a year, postage pald 25 canta a numher
Liberal reduction to Cluhbs. Send 25 oents for cideral reduction to Cluhs, Send 25 oenta apectmen number to TICKNOR $\frac{1}{}$ FIELDS, Publiahers,
E & H. T. ANTHONY, Tanufacturers of Photographio Mater 501 日ROADWAY, N. Y.
CARD PHOTOGRAPHS
FOUR THOUSAND diffrent anbiecta (to which additions are continasily belmg made) of Portraita of Eminent Americand, becog viz:
12 Major-Generals, 625 Statesmen, 190 Brigadier-Genorals, 127 Divines, 147 Prominent Foroign Portraits, 2,500 COPIES OF WORKS OF ART, Incinding reproduotione of the most celchrated Fa arrcataloguen sent on recipt of atamp. Nor-Cataloguen eent on receipt of atamp.

An order for One Dozen PICTURES from our Cata. An order for One Dozen PlCTURES from our Cata. logue will by filled on reeelpt of $\% 1$ 80, and eent by Photographic Albums
 Our ALBUMS have the reputation of bsing emperior in Deauty and durahlility to eny others.

We also kecp a lurge nasortraent of Stereoecopes and Stereoscopic Views. Our Catalogue of theese fill be nent to eny sddress
E, & H. T. ANTHONY,

Manafacturers of Photograph Masarials, 501 Brosdway, New York. Ifr Friends or relatives of prominent millitary men Congregations to present to their Pasior, or for othe 250 Rare Roceipts.

fothotype enoratisob, Tella What to Do, And Hownto Do
The beat Family Beseipt Book ever pabliahed.

97 Army $$ 7$

 $$ 15$ European Timekeeper $$ 15$ OR COMTPSS Watch.
A SUPEBB "EXTRA DOUBLE GOLD-PLATED" eggraved or engline-turned Hinting Caso watch-Selit- Bulance-rid has a NEAT MinLuTURE COMPASS
 he Soldier or TYaveller-n perfeot TMmencoper-"Farranted one year," will stand aeld, and le an Exact Imitation of a $$ 100$ Gold Watch ueed by the British Army Oflicers.
Sent free, by mail, in Regegant Morocco Case, for onily $$ 15$. Ekolisi Sterinso Stiver Lever Watohes, mograved Hutiog Cabe, fall jewelied movemente, $$ 30$ American $$ 30$ Levers.
In 4 oz. Coin Sliver Hunting Canes Full Rnby Jewel. In 4 oz. Co led, old
only $$ 30$.
Real English Duplex Stop Watoh, In Mabenve Silver Hunting Capes, Full Jewelled, SWERP SkOonds, for Artalerista or Timing Hortes, Fuil Gurantee, $$ 30$.
 Watchee. Catalogne of trade prices maded freo, 20 hero, no an imitation of the clelerated timeckeeper oo mauch $\ln$ ues among tho Blitinh army omeern, the field," $\Gamma$ thatrated Netres anys, "Correct time.
pleces, and for benaty and fine fumbh they are equal

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE byMAILor EXPRESS

Ready-Mude or to Mesaure, at 233, , 39 , $46 per doz SFLL F-GFASURFWGENT FOR BHITRTS. Pr'ntad dircotiona for nelf-mengarement, Hat of prices and drawings of diffecent kityles of Bhirla end collizs and freo everywhere.
FRENCH FLANNEI, OVERSHIRTS, nd 8t 50 orwh-ail cut one yard long, A aingle postage for eselh ehirt. Neck ateo.
eend the elze of your No

STHDHCOKLARS

Having the appaarnisee sun comfort of hinen have in one munuto with a popnge.
To Mrilitary thina and Travele are invalunsle, Price 75 centa eech; Bent hy po Union on the reecipt of 90 cents.

WhOLEEALE AND RETALL.
S. Wr. H. W. ARD,

IVory Jewelry: Fhin Tror Rroobec...........4150
Tvory mitua sieer Bationes 75

STAMMERING

 Applances.
leta and Drawings, , addreese,
H. C. L. MEABA, 277 Weat 23a St., N. Y.
Agonts W anted (Male or Female). Addrean
HALE $&$ CO., Newburyport, Mass.

BALLOU's Ratented́ FrenchYoke
sHIRTS.
Warrsanted to sad to he OHEAPEE
or the enme quab
nthis city
ingreularontain
lag drawning and
grioes sent free.
Sor anle by all the prinoipal dealers shronghout tha qaLlot broteigrs, 403 Broadway, Kow York

Bhalts' Ongnent,-Wartinted to prodace s fall

FRANK LESLIE'S HETUSMNAMYED

 athennern
Eatered aceanding to Act of Congress In the year 1864, by Frank Lessiff, in the Clerk'e Omee of the District Conrt for the Southern District of NeviYYork
No. 44--Vok. XVIII]

THE SIEGE OF MOBILE.

Mobile, for a place of its size, has been freqnently the ecene of military operatione. One of the earliest etatione of French power on the sonthwest, it was menceed hy the Spanlarde, and at a later tuto in tho hande of the latter, exposed to English attack. During the present war it has been blockadei by a Union fleet and commanded hy Fort Pickens, Whaleh the rebels vinily endeavored to take. When Sherman and Smith recently advenced, and Farragut began to thunder at Fort Powell, all expeotheea doomed to dienppointment. The capture of Moblie was not the object of Sherman's expedition, and Farraguls hombardment of Fort Powell proved ineffective, his vessels not being ahle to approach nearer thin two miles, too far to inflict any serious injary, Revent Sonthern news explains Farragute attack as an attempt to co-opersate with a revolt of the garrison of Fort Morgan. This was, however, dieand 30 of the mntineers bhot, of the rehel ram Baitio, Admiral Buchanan, Commander, one of the majn defences of the place, as seen from Farmgnt'e fleet on the 29th of February, the last day of active operations; and the explosion of a last day of active operations; and the explosion of a rilled gan on the J. P. Jackeon. Thls steamer, whieh hne heen in very aective engagemente during the war, was thlis time moet onforimante. In the firet attank her rifle gum hurst, and on the 29th she went into action with a new one, hnt this ton burst after two action with a new one, hnt this ton burst after two hours' service, wounding several and iojuring the $=$ Ordnanec Dopartment that requiree remedy. in th Our view of Fort Powell showe its present condition. It hins heen greatly etrenithened by the dition. It has heen, greatly etrengthened by the =

THE BLOCKADE OF CAPE FEAR RIVER

 North Carolina.In our last we gave a sketch of the mouth of the Cape Fear River. The new inlet, whinh will he found in our present iesne, is a much more interesting vlew, The rehels to grand it have not intereating view. The rehels to guard it have not only Fort Fleher, a weil oonstrncted fortifatlon hut an artifichal mound with a beavy rife gan on it Thls was erected in order to rive a eufficient plunge to the balle to finjure monitors. It controls the Sheep Heid and Sort Fisher, on the. one side, and The view of Foily inlet, whioh is five miles eouth of Fort Caswell, show, the viglianoe of our hlockaders and their đuring. In this single gketolat may be been the ruins of the Bendigo, Ranger and Lily, as well as of the U. S. steamer Iron $\Lambda$ ge, lost in pursuing too closely one of the hlockade-runners.

HON. MICHAEL HAHN,

 Governor of Loutelana.The Hon. Michael Hahn, to the imposing ecremontes of whose Inanguration as Governor of

 to Neew Orlens. Here yonng Mlabivi grow np, Hegnn crratian Rosifue, and be ore Be was of hge for ward an a Union man On the Bth of May, ismo,

Barnum's American Mureum.

 FOUR ENORMOUS GIANTS-Three men

Oscanyau's Oriental Album,

 $\xrightarrow{\text { C. OSCANYAN, }}$
frank leslie's
LLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER
EW YORK, APRIL 2,1

TERMS FOR THIS PAPER.

|   00  ungazine and papor one yar  Paper, if weeks |
| :---: |
|  |  |
|  |  |

TERMS FOR ADVERTISING.

The Pablisher of Frank Leshif's Illussulted to its columns, nu well ss ideas for comito eketehee on subjecta of tbo dny.

Suimary of the Week.

wasatigeton.

The President, by an order of Mareh 10, appoints Gen. Grant to the eommand of the armies of the United States; and by the armles of the United States; and by another order retirus Major-Gen. Halleek, with thanks.
The President ealls also for 200,000 men, to be raised before April 15 th , or then to be rated.
drafted
virgnts.
On the 11th a detaehment of 100 men from Gen. Custer's eavalry command started on a county, Va., whieh is a well-known rehel guerilia resort. Some time during the night they made a dash futo a guerilia eamp on the stream known as Conway river, just drove about 50 of the guerillas aeross the river, and captured 20 others, together with their horses, before they eould get away. They also captured 10 negroes and brought them in. The commnnd returnod to their camp yesterday morning in good ordor, not bavin In the reeent attaek upon Suffoik the 2 d colored cavalry, under Col. Cole, behaved with great bravery in a fight of an hour's duration. They had a largely superior foree, liqnors, coffee and hoxes of goods. On the to contend against, hut eut their way
29 th the same vessel captured the schooner through with a loss of 20 klll ed, wounded and missing. One of onr lientenants was kllled.
Gen.

Fortress Wadsworth left Washington for from the War Depart ounday, with orders exhange of prisoners upon the basis reeently aeted on hy the rebels, by whieh 100 of ours in possession of the rebel authorities. Gen. Wadsworth has heen instrueted to tate that no more prisoners will be exehanged exeept upon the prinelple of man | or ma |
| :--- |
| eolor. |

The army of the Potomae on the 18th wa preparing for an advance of the enemy. westrin varginla.
On the 19th a detachment of Gllmore's rebels made a raid into Bath, Morgan county, and earried off Hon. Mr. Beehtel, of the W. V. Senate, and Hon. Mr. Wheat, or W. V. House of Delegates. The guerill were pursued by eavalry, and some of then eaptured.

tennesser.

Guerillns attaeked a freight trinin from Nashville, near Estell springs, on the night of the 10th inst., after displacing a rail, by The train was hurved
Capt. Beardsiley,
Capt. Beardsley, of the 123d New York, nnd seven men, arrived at Deeherd, Tenn. on a handear, having been paroled, after being stripped of their elothing being stripped of thelr elothing, money watehes and jewellery. The rebels kille three of the negroes on the train. Two of the guerilins were killed. There were no other losses.
By the new arrangement Major-Gen. W. T Sherman is to command the department of the Mississippi, whieh is to embraee the departments of Ohio, Cumberland, Tennes see and Arkansas. Major-Gen. MePherson is plueed in command of the army of the Tennessee On the 19th the enemy were in strong foree in our front, but no movoment was visible.

Gen. Price had resumed eommand in this Gen. Price had resumed eommand in cotrsuna.
Admiral Porter, with the gunbosts Fort Hinman river a few days sinee, and opened on Trinity. The Osage passed the fort, but the Hinman was disahled. The Ouieheta then sileneed the fort. The enemy were driven from Harrisonburg and the plaee barned. The Conestoga was run into by the Gen. Price on the loth and sunk. The feet is to co-operate with Gen. Hurlbut in an advanee attack from Arkansas.
The rehels have reappeared at Lake Pro videnee and are committing shoekling barbarities on the negroes.
mississiper
A portion of the marine brigade, under Capt. Crandell, reeently surprised a rebel camp east of Port Gibson, Miss., eapturing 7 prisoners and releasmg tive Union soldiers taken at the Big Blaek.
norte camolina.
Gen. Peek thus sums up the result of reent operations in North Carolina: "Besides the repulse of Gen. Picket's army at Newberne, the following have been eaptured: 6 offleers, 281 prisoners and dangerous rebels, 500 contrabands, 250 arms and aceoutrements, 138 horses and mules, 11 bales of cotton, 1 pleee of artillery, 11 bales of cotton, 1 pleee of artillery, caisson complete, 1 flag, many saddes, harnesses and wagons. Much property of the rebel government has been destroyed crom inability to remove it, as appears by a partial list: 250,000 pounds of pork, 80 barels of lard, 75 barrels of meat, 20,000 ushels of eorn, 32 barrels of beef, 5 hogsleads of sugar, 5,000 empty sacks, 1 eornmill, 10 wagons, 1 ton of tobaeeo, 18 raules, mauufactories."

The Navy Department has reeeived meial information of the following cap captured in Indian river; ahreast of Fort Capron, the British sloop boat Two Brothers, from Nassan, bound to Dixie and laden with four bags of salt, one keg of liquor, four hoxes of goods and one keg of the same place, the Britioh sloop Nina Nassau, bound to Sand Point, laden with cotton, &e. On Mareh 1 the Roebuek also eaptured the British sehooner Lauretta, laden with 52 bags of salt; two miles from were all sent to Key West for adjudieation.

Rebel, same vessel captured the schooner

congress.

In the Senate, on the 14th, the bill defining the rank, pay and emoluments of Chaplains and other officers was passed. The Weat Point Academy ment, fixing the pay at $$ 10$ per month, the same naval maldehipmen.
In the Houre, varlous important matters were the report of the Confereaca Committee on the De Aclency bill. A resolution to print 10,000 copiee of sceompanying documents, was referred to tbe Print. ing Committee. Mr, Washburne offered a resolntion astrnetling the Ways and Means Commiltte to report bill taxing iqquor on hand 40 and 50 cents per gallon, lald. The resolntion iles over, The Gold bill then arme up, and eilcited a long diecusbion, but without eoncluding its aotion the House adjourned.
In tho Sennte, on the 15tb, a petition was presented from 1,000 colored eltizeas of Louleluns, and reprefrom 1,00 equal to $$ 15,000,000$ of property, that their rights may be a allowed to vote.
In the Hoose thre bill giving fall franking privilege o the President and Vice-Preaident was passcd. nd Oregon. A resolation to pay John S. Sleeper 3750, for coming to Washington to contest the sieeper Ir. Riee of Mansachusetts, wes lald on the table, 10,000 coples of Gen. Roacerans's report ; also, 10,000 of Hoade's report of the hattle of Gettyshurg. In the Senate, on the $16 \mathrm{th}, \mathrm{Mr}$. Wiison introdaced s dilit odisurlify for votigi or holding ofllee ali de States, but oirects the Prealdent to IEsne a Procis mation of amanest dependent upon thelr retury to hile हerviee, with no punishment but losi of pay du. ring their absence or their re-enliatment in new regi.

In the House, Mr. Farnsworth introduced a bilt to increake the efficlency of the United $\boldsymbol{E}$ ates artill which was referred. The House coneurred in the Senater amendment to the Poatt-0.five Approprlintio:
 is pased, providea that the Seccetary of the Trecsany may antlelpate the parvment of interept on the pnblic mpy antolphte the parment of interest on the pnblice
deht ty a arodiod not oxeeeding one year, from time to time, either with or without a to time, either with or without a rebate of interest ond he may atippose of any goid in the Treasury of the United States not neeebery for the payment of interest, provided that the ojigation to create the

In the Sennte, on the 17th, the proceedings were uttie publlo intereat,
In the House the bHll to make the Delaware and Raritan Bay and Camden and Atlantic rnilroads mill
tary and pont routea, and to elie then hary and poen routea, and to give them other rights and privilegoe, was taken up, ang, after dibcubhion.
pootponed tor thre din postponed for three day The Committee on For:
Ign Affira reported a bil to appoint a Cozmilasioner Ign Afalra reported a bill to appoint a Commiasioner
to bettle the olainn of the Revacorian Gooverument, The loope then proceeded to the conalderation of passed to provido a Territory of №ntana.
In the Senate, on the 16th, after mueb disoneeton on the MIall hill, Mr. Whison eqiled up the Conness, wilkinson and others participatted, Tbe oill was inally postyoned. After Executive eesion, the Senate sdjourned

The Seante did not nit on the 19/th and the time o
the House was entrity oceupied lun ubtening Beveral bpeeches on the wer und slavery.

FOREIGN NEWS.

By the arrival of the Arlel we have dates from Panama to March 7.
Foh 2 , dechared Seinor Murill States of Colombla, on tonally Elected Prenident of the Bepubille.
The Cangreess of Salyador has pulalon of ex-President Barrion.
In Chist the invitation for a ganoral Congress of the States of Latin Amerioa hate been received witb unIn Nicurngua the
In Nicurigua the Central American Transit Com. and was slgned by the Presldent on Fob. 18; on Feb. 20 the irat payment, in compliance with the stipula thons of the contract, or 100,000 in American goha, was Engilshman, Capt Pim, was before Congreas, asking for iargo grants of land to enable him to organize s Company in London for building a railrond through the Repablic from the Carithean Sea to the Paclice the Repablic from the Carithean Sea to the Phelific, On Foh, 2 F Frealdent Martinez sent in his realgwation, On Foh, 24 Preaddent Martinez sentin hia
but it woild probably not he necepted.

The Howard Money Belt is at onee the eatest, safent and most elegrant repository for money vor prosented to the pubile. It fin made of the beat

TOWN TOPICS.
The calm that preeedes the storm has just保 leser things, bat being in embryo it makes only the great caim. Next week the storm will hor great caim. Next week the storm will herst, and we shali he Sanitury Falred at breakfist, diuner and wip shesl he Sanitury Falred at breakfist, diuner and supper, in our sloping nad in our waking, in church and ont of cburch. It wili/ meet us at every corper, and fill pynn us from the honsetoys, and for teveral weeks we shall know nothiog butits sounding echocs.
All placess of publlo amurement will rcap harveste nf the bread they flosted out upon the watern in the ahape of beneatin to the Fnir, ten tiven over, and all
Now York will he lull of the country until the air will be redolont witb greenneas.
The vust area of buildinge on 14 th ettoet are noariy inisbed, and anotber of a aemleireular form, enough to hold a dozen houses, ia rapldiy rising on the npper evd of Union square, as na ofrahoot, to belp hold the anperahuadanco of wealth that ls flowing to the ooffers of the Coramittee. As an instanco of thil stream, we will oniy mention that, up ta this date, the drygoods merchanta alone have contrilhuted over 1250,000. Sbould other brinches of trade equal tbis, the grand reeult will awell into millions
This week we have heen looking among
We have neen Bisratadt's "Rocky Mount pias"

 in no art. It in a inet, and we are but looking out of awindow upon thet verlabie ncene. There are the far hiiis, tipped with everianiling know, the never. frillug siroam tumbilng down he rooks nud hreaking, with nolay foam, withu a few minutee walk. There with nolay foam, within a few minates' walk. There le a sbet of glasey water too woond eriuliy reni to he hay anything butnature, and in the forecround the groups
of Shosione Indians, engaged in their halfexclting, grorpiks is Moantitory, Lander. the priuclpul peak of the gewgaws of the race, are ocoupied tbout the teats in seores of ompioymunte, only wanting movement io

 We would we couid eay as mnch for the "Lake George, bat coming from the wrin richuesa of Bieretadt to the cold chilit

 apon sh we Hat and gazed out upon the rich, shaminer.
ing tints of the "Rocky Mountainn."

 gome End so gentiemanly, hatd his such a bexutiful way ot siretobing out his white hand towards the oon-

 Wbutwiw

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.

T-Tbere Fenian Brotberbood of Pbilatcliphin bave

 ntiment,

 mueb for the dend body Canrieston.
Naval -The Nayy Dipariment han recelved the

 The dispartebes say there Wes unusual activity in the Union fleet on the 6thof 3 farch. mander of Loniev bes be.

 tbe trina were kmed by the grenias.
 was pioketed
largs force.
Col. Woife has arrived at Nashevlle, having been reliseed from arreas, vad is ordared to report in perion to Línt.-Gen. Grant.

Peproment.
Petsonal.-Gen. Nell Dow, and Capta. Flynn
nd Sawer havo been excbanged, and bave arrived at Fortreas Monroe.
aptined in matrimontal inteligence offloe has teen ehoice. Tbackeray's daughters recelved a Lind ani handeomen letter from Lord Prumerston, offerin to recommend them for penslons on tbe Britik to recommend them for penslons on tbe Britik Literary Fund. The ohildren of tbe man who ba constanty exhorted his litrary bretbren to rely tbemselvec, and to discord any notion of Stat
 o, their opinion. that tbelr acceptam.
bave been approved by their fatber.
Gen, Sberman is described as belog an innh lese than ilx feet higb, and anout ts ycirsold. Hia framele of good sizo, but a moderate development of hat, , tanding as it does in marked contrest witb his bair end eyes it is hle prominent feature Hi beeke sre marked witb deep line beeke are marked witb deep lines, wbile agere cro bus made a very palpable track it tbe corner.
ither Tiber eye a benevolent counteonnce, together Fitb a kind und gexial manner, make blm look more like a ministcr tban tbe war-dog be is.

 of tbeir nature which eatahisishoe ace
between tbat anlmal and bis rider,", creeted in the market-place of Puebla, Mexion.
lecture J. B, Gongh have refased 900 fnvitations examine the mines of Nevadia,
A few weeke ago (says the Hartford Poat) $w, ~$
made mention of tbe marriage of the armleah colo

 betrotbed, whicb wai rendly aceepted. Her sinter was eo indlggant at tbin tbat bbe sald sie woold marry the brave man bereef fif was agreeable, and agreeable be wes; and tbey married. Tbanko to the

Obituary.-WHiam B, Cozzens, widely known in this country, for many ycars, a botel-kepper in tble ity, and proprietor or Cozzens's botel st West Point died at hie realdence at tbat place, of beart diseace, on Che 12 th lapt, Samee B. Haletead, of the 102d regiment or New York Voluateers, died in thie city on the lapt.
inat, aged so years, of bemorrbage of toe lungs. Capt.
Haletead bad served over two years in toe Army o
 o the West wben prostrnted by dibenee eontracted in the ervice of bie country. His remains were taken to Pitteton, Pa, for interment.
 Mr. Eben Merriam, the well-known meteorolo-glat, died at Brooklyn, on Saturday. Marcb 10, of HropBy of the hiver. He was born

Accidonts and Offoucos. Irra, Culery, the

 in the bullding.

A married womn in Saliabury, Eng., Agod 27 er examinstion ehs pleaded colity, aud bued for e entenced Toreign,-Kate Bateman recently met witb a cecident whils takiog horse exercise in London. A male eoatume, A gallant gentleman came to tbe gaunted and rode of none none to worat for the contre temps.

A week or two since the Lord Chencellor give deeibion lin a ease wbich bad been pending for 200 ears. The party litere ted was a blorer at Kem recived a letter informing him t,
to the siog little sum of $\mathrm{E} 30,000$.

 - From a book lately pabllagited on tulipmanda wo wbo had prided bimself oa to rarity of bis tulipg weived a valuable cargo of merchandise from the evaiat, Intelligence or ite srrival was brought to him by a ssilor, and the mercbant to reward him for oe tidim

 19 rumble Sempar Augustus, wortb 3cco torins. A Trauthess bearoh was made for the precolous root, and teng

 be polloy of tob goveriment, bab been condemned ty
he coundi of tbe empret to five Yeare nt tye galeyb, ind to spend the remainder of his life in siberla.

 his letter. Every Eng Kishman conslders it a great imapertinence to writo to the Qucen at all. Verorla Wrott an autograph letter to Presildent Bucbanan, but fint was on her family matteri-namely, about her

Art, Science and Ziterature.-Two rival

 while in the otber the feroeious brates nrer gnawing the left "You pays your mone takes your cholce," as the Bbowman seld.
The Prine of Wales, in sending to the laboratory of Cambridge Univeralty Masg, a copy of tbe photograpt of the Samaritan Pentateneb, taiken dur-

 - Tba Scientific American etates tbat in England
 We observe in an Irish paper a very complimentary notice of Mr. Stopford. ope of tho moat pop and Britibb artiats in water eolors of the day. It

Paolo Franchi, to writo for her haged an Italian noet, to be enfitied

 -Tbe New York Herrld says: "Tbe arrival of

 - It bas been deciled tbat a lover cannot leggally
rosver gifts made to alady while courting her.

INAUGURATION OF GOV. HAHN, OF LOUISIANA,
At Now Orleane, Marel 4, 1804 .
Ther place selected for the inauguration
 eniously worked in as decor ations.
Iatiorm, 50 feet in diameter, which served as a bie a tail lagsstaif, bearing aloft, above all rivals, the natlonal etendard. From this polint as a centre, In weep of a half mile, towered an amphitbentre or de wae never before erected on this contiuent. On bese ranges of seata were eomfortably acoommodiate 10,000 chhidren, togetber with rople room for $\overline{0}, 004$ pecdsily invited guests. At the base of this immense ampbitheatre was a piatform for Glumore"s 800 muea of the ampbltheatre 34 upright columns, ench eur In this way every Stato of the Union was represented. Behiad of this was etationed, by Gen. Arnold, 6 be festoons of evergreens and gay sigual flags of al nottoen.
 witb this pealed fortb merry chimes from all the bell of the city. $\Delta t$ an early bour ladieg, gectlenien and chllidren commenced wending thelr way towarda the centre of attractlon, aud before ten otclock the side

 Ilotted seata, wben the reteran soldiders, two reg

 ci

 Judge of the Sixd
sneemblige to order, and linvited the Rer, F. E., Chanb desfening obeers, stepped up to tba table nad, amid a profound silence, listened to the worde of the ooth as tbey were repented by Jndge Durell. The Governor-elect tben kibed tee Bibie and wai sworn into kite not only tbe drat loynal Governor of a state once ldentifled with the Bo-culled Confederacy, but also tbi firgt Free State Governor of the Soutb-Western

 Jugge Howell now introduced the ne wity-jnstalled Goveroor of the State, wbo, fin a clear volee, read bis

 prise, ta thelr playdits. Meantimee a beautifily yonng tire tu
lay, a teacber in the one of tho

attermpted in thieet antatre

THE VIADUCT ON THE CHATTANOOGA and Whiteside.
and Whelimon
The difficulties to be encountered by our roops, in the long wished for nd vance on Dalton, may be concelved by the eketeh of a portion of the railiroad near Chattanooga. No army ever had o more difficult field to operate in, nor one in which a maroin la atteuded with greater riaks of being out of from all supplies. At sll times the rear of our line has bech

 forms a atr
on shore.

THE VALPARAISO AND SANTIAGO RAILWAY
Was opened by tbe President of Chill upon the 14th Sept. last with great eeremony. Its longth is the 1tth Sept. last withgreat oercmony. Its longth is somewhat over 114 miles, and, an lits course lien works of this nature, F pon it gre inve tonnels, Beve cline of 12 milles in length; rising 125 feet per mile, attaining an altitude of 2,010 feet ibove the levol of the Pacific Ocean. It is, therefore, one of tho highest railways in the world ralways in the world at present in use; and, with one exception-that of the Copiapo Extenslon, also in Chill, whieh is 4,400 feet in helght-lt crosses the loftiet kummit yet pubsed by the locomotive in elther

A SONG FOR THE LOYAL

by axanda t. Jonks.

Beloved Cotumbla, peerless one Through glory's gates exalting enter! For thon art Freedom's morning sun, Of all her stars the shining centre The King of kings, whom worlds revere, Bent down and from the darkness won thee Placed thee in thine effialgent sphere, And set his radiant seal npon thee.

Ah, well we know Jehovah's love, When all European flowers did wither, Bade the swift breezes westward move, To waft the seed of Freedom hither. Wy roared the blast, the hardy germ Soft sang the wind; erect and firm,
It rose and by the waters flourished.
Eden of earthl thy generous clime Gave Freedom's plant sun, wind and It hloomed-the hrightest rose of time; And on our hearts we wear the flower. With loyal blood in every vein, In spirit freo, though hond in letter, We clasp our golden Union chain, And bless the Power that forged the fetter.
Quecn of the seas; when, o'er the flood, Came armies, mad with thirst for slanghter, Upon thy hills our fathers' hlood, For love of thee, ran down like water. And when the hlatant cannon stormed, By 'Treason's dastard hand drected,
At once thy patriot legions swarmed, At once thy patriot legions swarmed,
And every stream their swords reflect
And every stream their swords re
When all that seek thy hurt have perished! By Freemen won, hy Freemen saved, By Freemen won, hy Freemen saved,
And hy the God of Freemen cherished. Heaven's crystal gates, thou peeriess one, Heaven's crystal gates, thou peerless on Uplift their heads to hid thee enter;Uplift their heads to hid thee enter;
For thou art Freedom's morning sun, And all her stars around thee centre.

A WOMAN'S EARR.

By Laey A. Randall.

Ir was the afternoon of, a clear February day, blue sky above, capital sleighing benesth, and Moentaguis auperb chestmut-eoltred, when Silas cheeked in front of the plategliss hinses were fashionable coifferu's establishment, wuts ort the whirl and tumult of Broadway, and a young lady of about seventeen alighted from the ehocolatesolored coupt, to enter the dominion of pomatum and frisettes.
Thie kilght of the comb and aciasore adranced bribkly from behind the counter to greet his pretty customer, who was dressed in relvet and sables, tortune might have, and probably did, cont a smal fortune.
"Don't let me interrupt you, Mr. Macassar," eaímson hrocutelle sota, and glancing towards two women with whom the coiffeur had been in dee conversation at the moment of her entrance, "I ean wait a few minutes porfeetly weli," "Yau are very kind, Miss sonte
"You are very kind, Miss Montagn, but our businese is completed." He added, in a lower tone hair. You sec they have stepped inside their hair: You sec they have stepped inside for our outter to take it of "To toll their hai
"Certainly, maizam. Tepas rery comontagu Inssure you, more particularly since it has thecom, ussial to wear the hair short. And the n , hard times,
"ou know-" "Bu" surcly it
"But surcly it is imposible to gaiu enough to he any conupensation for the loss of a fine head of hair ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{h}$, yid the young ledy, earniestly.
hnir, of a gou are mistaken. For cor long, luxurisut yours, Miss Montagu-we give as much ma three dollars"
"Three dollars!" repeated the gird, ncornfully. "Hair will soon grow ngnio, Mise Montygu," said the hairdresser, shrugging his shoulders." "In what ean I serve you to day in what ean I serve you to day ?"

"I came in to request you to send som arrange my hair for to-morrow erening." arrange my hair for to-morrow evenng."
the man, who appeared to be aus fait in fashionsti hitelligence. "Certainly ma'am, to be sure. I in will send Francois. What jewels do you wear ?" "Only a small wreath of netted psarls round the britds."
And Mr. Montagu bowed his fair young patroness out of the store with smiling complaieance. She stood a moment on the step as if thinking, then "poke to the liveried servant on the box: you any more to-day," she said, quietly. John tonched firat his gold-banded hat and then his horses, and in a few moments was out of sight, very glad to be relieved.
Then, and not till then; Miss Montagu walked

Miss Montagus sells her Golden Locks for Three Dollars 1 interview with yon. So I sent John home, and " 1 nmo.
"But, Flora, what would my uncle any ?"
"He will never know it," asid Flora, demurely "And, besides, Linzy, my conscience does not con demn me for this visit. Papa's conduot has been so unkind, so actually inhuman to warde you. Think of it, dearest. After giving you a luxurione home until now, to turn you out of doors just for marrying a poor artist-and you his own sister' duaghter, too?"
"True P " sighed the delioate joung oreature whom Flora addrested as Lkzy "Yet if it whom Flora addreswed as Llizy, "Yet if it wire not for Clement's continued illness and our poyerty The door was a momant regret that puahed open at thla mo ment without even the triffing formality of a warn ing knock, and a wiry head, with sharp terrior eye to match, was thruat unceremonlously in.
"I say, missus, is that ere money ready ?"
Lizzy had turned very pale and olasped her wan ingers tightly together.
"I am sorry," she stammered; "but-" The head and eyes now advanced entirely int the room with the short, thickset figure to whioh they belonged.
i" Look here
"This in the third marm!" said the man, harohly coms, and not a red cent of rent have I set eye on. Needn't tell me your husband'r siok; thera' enough tenanta I can get without, sick hushands Idon't want to hear no excuses-they don't amoun o nothin'. I jest want you to understand thi nuch-if them three dollars ain't paid down efor ha clock strikes five, out you go, bag and baggage un the pavemen long enough!"
He disappe
He disappeared, closing the door behind him with a bang that made the walls rattle. Flora had which grew still whiter as Lizzy buret isto paroxysm of bitter tears, hiding her face in her aands. Flora rose and bent over the bowed forta xith caressing touch.
"Dearest, are things really as bad as this ?"
Lizzy replied only by her sobs.
"Can't you contrive to raise the money to pay " How
"How can I I" moaned Lizzy. "Everything we or pawned. I am faint from laok of bread; and it is impossible to get even the most poorly pald Work."
Flora's lip quivered; she had never seen poverty in this ghastly guise before.

The Tenement-house Landlord demarding his
"Oh, if I could only help youl", she sighed. "But papa never gives me money; he peys my bille eheerfully, but everything passes through his own hende."
" "It would kill Clement to be maved," sobbed Lizay. "If I could but obtain the three dollars I would not care for nught else?
As Flora bent over her cousin one shining breid o glossy golden hair hecume detached from She put up ing and fell from beneath her bonnet. She her hand mechanically to replace it, and at that moment nhe remembered Mr. Macasaar's words. "Lizzy," ehe exclaimed, impetuousty, "wait few misutes and you shall have the monog. I will he back in half an: houre"
And she hurried awny with crimson cheoke and sparkling eyes.
Mr. Macassar was lounging over a newspape when Miss Montagn entered bis luxurious ruom a second time.
"Sir," she said, advancing closo to the counter, and speaking in a tremulous tone, "I have con oluded to have my $h$ three dollars for it?"
The spruce coiffeur stared Was Misa Mortagu in earnest or was this only a jest?
"Why do you not answer ma?" she asked sharply.
"Certa
"Certainly, Miss Montagu," stammered the hair dresser, recovering his tongue, "I shall be most happy, ifyou .wish it. Please to step into the bacc," room, and Frand Never had her golden waves of hai seemed half so lovely and lustrous ns they did at the moment that the deft fingers of Francois unhraided them and passed the eruel, gleaming sclasors among the bright strands. And when a length Mr. Macaesar, with polite alacrity, presented have been an Egyptian heiroglyphio for all that her tear-swimming eyes conld decipher it.
She carried the money to Lizzy, and then, womsn.
sRANK LESLIE'S ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPEIL:

ike, went homs, looked in tho glass, and eried eartily.

Yor the had been pnasing prond of throee pale own tremzee, thrested with gold and blending ato anburn lights at every turn of her dxinty head. And now they are gone-all gone
"Who ine that prettr girl jist coming in the oor, in ${ }^{\text {n }}$The white erape, with blue forget-me-nots hio bair, and the little, ,hort, dancing bits of oilied eunshine round her head ?

The spenker wai nn elaborately-dressed young man, who stood, with gold-mounted poera-phise at bis ejes, in Mrs. Warrener's brilliantly-Highted alons. At his side stood a tall, foreign-looking gentleman, with large black ceyes and a somewhitat haughty, although handsome, face. He had bent agerly formard at his companion's words.
Jet-it is it-Mins Montangn!" "Faith, Giliroy, you're right!" cjaculated young Mnnvore. "Florn Montngu, and none eine! But hat on earth hase the bewitching cuttie niry dons he fashion, rill bs bound!
"I do not think," esid Giliroy, oontraeting his grave eyebrows, "thnt Mins Montagu is one eto en.
lave herself to all the idle freake of the reigning uode"
"I lenow you're a sworn ndmirer of the young "by, Gilroy," returned his
" at all momen are alike"
but all women are alike!", The worde fell Hike
"All women are slike!
ult molten iron on Clarence Giliroy's heart. Was inded so? Had the idle dream that Flora mas better and nobler than the rest of her sex proved but a yaniohing delusion after all? He remem. bared the words ho had heard her speak but an rening or two before Nothing shall ever induoe me to have my hni cut of in the abeurd way that people oall fashion abble"
l! She had not sorupled to perjure herself, then butterily that ever fluttered around the flower gardens of society! He turned awny, sllently, gardens on Flora Montagu's innocent, violet the be eyes wero raised emilingijis towards his face, they entirely to oomprehead. The apray of blue forget-mo-nots had tallen trom Mies Montagu'a hair, and she had gone into Yrom Misas Montagu's hair, and she had gone int
the oomparative soiltude of the conservatory, with cacias and tea roses, from shadns of orimsontinted glass, and the two girls stood directly beneath ita pink glow, all unconscious that Clarence Gilroy leaned against the farther door, a lew steps beyond, in the shadow of a blossomiog ropioal vine, whose fiery soarlet uchod his forehead.
"Do you know, Flora,", snid Nelly, as she adjuted the truant flowers, and stepped backrard to observe the general effeet, "that every body io wondering what in the world posuessed rou cut off that splendid golden hair of yourn ome lany it to the score of ranity-others to that 1 caprice, and -"
 with a tremulous falter in its aocents, "I never meant to revnal
sene seoret to any iiving soul, but I connot bear that you, deareest, should imagine me capsble of such frivolous folly. I will tell you

Claronece Gilroy moved unessily amid the moving leevees and fiery drooping stars of his frognant sereen. But he could not well retreat tragrant sereen. But he could not well retreat now; and berides, $u$ is not a very dignificd charaoristie to reoord of suoh a stately preux chevalier as Mr. Clirence Gilroy, but there certainly was keen impulee of curiosity stirring the depths of bis heart, to learn why Flora Montagu had ceut off bis heart, to learn why the lovely amber tresses of which she has
And so, not vilthout a secret misgiving, h played the part of listener.
"You पaow," resumed Flora, "sill about my "Coor oousin Lizzy's unfortunate marriage vith And the went on to tell the eimple story of her adventure the day before with euch innocent pathos that Nelly Hyde was in tears ere the recital was hat Nelly Hyde was in tears ere the recital was very far off slig goty dimmed also.
"ery far off sligoty dimmed niso.
"I had no mones," pursued Flora. "I felt tbat papa had given me, knowing his feelinga on the ubject, and so- Was it very wrong, Nelly, to ell my hair? If you could only have seen how reicome the money was to poor Lizzy!
When at length the consecrvatory's perfumed aisles were vacant and Clasence Gilroy left his nook among the rines, he felt that that.one ellimpse into Flora Montagu's heart was worth haif the into Flora Montagu's heart wns worth hair the fortune that made him the idoi of mancourring Yortune that made him the idoit or manneuving mammas and marringeable daughtera. The ecllpse upon his sun had passed away.
The next day Clement Perey was astonished ver apreenbly by the receipt of on anonymous letter, containing a bankenote for fltay dollars. And the next dny after that Flora stole round to tell her couasin that the was engaged to Clarence Gilroy. "And when I have a home of my own, dearest," ahe Ead, you and Clement shail share ence says. Cos."
Mra. Gilroy kept the word that Flora Montagu had pledged.

A FARMER, who could not get rid of his Tirroin.- Being kept outt of a fortune by a prolonged ebsincery wiut,

AN AUTIUMN DIAY.

by julie lmonasad.
Sortiv and atill the rainin Sofly and still Softly, and still
The distant hill;
Stand on the height;
shadows over moor and foll
Obscoure the light.
Heary and low droop down the hanging elonds, Heary and low;
Find
aigha through lofy trees, Swept to and fro.
The single Rings sweet and dears,
The low, decp undertone of earth Chimes on tha ear.
ar, far amay the rettees,
Far, far away,
Tar, far arey,
Th stern unres, in eeaselese strong ofmmotion, Its bullowt piay
While the fierce enst wind recklesesly is flinging The blinding apray, In Casco bay.
Insufficionoy By Cntharine Earnshaw.

Thas brown muirland answers sombrely; 1 offers only the utter coldness of its bosom, and 1 ave within myseif too much of gloom and of cold, nave within myseif too much of gloom snd or cola, $\mathrm{y}, \mathrm{my}$ lips pant for the breath of the sonth win hat never shall blow again. Down by the stream hat used to purl through the moor, I find that the and never will blossom. The bed of the stream is dry, and the pebblea that shone, diamondilike, to my childish eyee, are orusted and black with earth. went down there the other day and came baed with my sorrow renewed-came back to find, in th dusty old roome of this house, a vire that spok pulseant and sad of the nevermore that the neglecte onidore have hitherto enid in the muffled tones of It was only mure little town in that I came from that de brought with me its plaxid goodhumor, its poetized hhlegm, but I could not absorb them, beeause the were not oongenial. Instead, I came home wit the spirit I carricd out, the same that nurse ts soreness on the plains by the Bohmerwald, nnd refused to be comforted among the viney valless of Gaul. Since I have been in this house, in Scotland which I call my home, 1 havro walked back over the years to he day when the sun rone to gia $m y$ elf that morning that to-day, when I looked in the lass, I almost expected to, see a head crowned with crimson autumn roses, as when, trelve yoar ago this day, I had surveyed myseif in the mirror of my sister's dressing-room. My sister wove the Freath, and pressed it down on hair that was then pure bonnie brown. She said, as she turned then pure b me round:

"Ine round:

"It's a pity, Psyche, that these,
; I wonder if it'a bad omen."
My father tood at the open door. In the fon neas of his pride for his firsthorn daughter he ha named her Payche, and now, with pride no whit bated, he asid:
Rather eay the crimson of their petale is type royal of my Psyche's heart. Your soul shal fur-niah fragrance, sad these blossoms shall be per

umeleas no longer

He fondled my crowned head with hie hand eado your eyes, my darling, forget not that your ather transilates the ehara cunt pone can love that hat dewy bue, and kno
My soul was tbiekly crossed and velled with the golden imagery of my father's nature.' Iloved his owing sentences better than the sharp cut ones that stang my ear from others. Pleasure made my bheek its own ruady hue, as, tuming to my father, hid my face in bis tavny beard, and eried like "Foolishothing else he eaid. "But I liko you better for shedding them; they keep your eyes all better for shedding them; they keep your eyes all the brighter for the mirth that will come to sit in hem when the tenantry come to celebrate your birthdsy in danees on the lawn.

What a queen you are making of that girl," yy sister pettishly said, with the vexation coming n her brunette face. "Many's the time our mother han said that Your dawding and petting will do the child no good in the end. It's not
"Then wemaun be ailly thegither,"" he sald, with laugh; "and you,
"I did not mean
I did not mean that, you know," Hester enid,
"It's not that $I$ don't love Payche as well as anybody, but it's you who are putting highfown notions in her head. But we will not hahdow her exodus from teendom. So, Payche, daring, this ia from me; a present after sour own heart, $\mathrm{I}^{\prime \prime m}$ think ing.
She elasped round my wris.
She elasped round my wrist a golden serpent, alth eyes of rubies, red as fire "You are such a child for tbe horrid, and admíre the ainuosities of smakedom "o mueh, that I got

"You do not wish such a hideoun image from " do you ?" my nather asked.
"I is beautiful" I askl.
"Then shall I give you a miniature shark for a in? Do you enche erert thing thatis not venompin ?
ous ${ }^{\text {in }}$
"N
ake fr you.
"Dear fatterer! Well, here-" he steppec
We worthy of yon.
With futtering fingers I uncorered the box and lifted the satin foldings - A halferiled, gleamine gare ; at last the wrappings were ore Heathendom ? It is exquisite!" I held the pure Parisn thing in my hands. Fixs quirer was almost rastling with arrows, his wings feathery by the pried.
$\triangle$ smile grear on my father's fuce.
"Now I have Cupid and Pasche in my house"Id," he snid; "was evtr man so blest?
"I ne ver thought of the" I "I never thought of that," I said, rene wing my Oor him ? And no one can animate this marble ?" "No, ynu will not die," "Ms his answer. "Yon will be made immortal, even as in days of old." May I be fitted for the gift," I set my Lore on the window-ledge, and the rose here languidly gare their pink tinges to his white "See "See !" I enid, running my Anger over his neck 'You rem

Ane feathers on them seemed to stir and live,
1 had my god by the mirror where I etood every morning to bind up my hair. I put him there tbat rom on my head, and there he etood, faintly glow ing with borrowed blushes.
Came nightrall of that same day, I galloped alone cross the heath, leaping the atreans, and nway on othe Farther Copse. Whistling my lithe gray noonlioht as youthell maiden on. Liehtome nd free, mo breathing was elixir and my motion nastree, my breething was elixir and my motion lastice muscle, drinking thus the winey flow of youthfal iffe, I rode on, nor stopped till I drow rein by a allen horse and rider. Pushing back my drooping plume, I leaned over my horse's neck and saw tha the prostrate horse man was inanimate and fastene down by his staed. Swirty my gaiety flowed baok in heary tuen that slackened my puase beatiag While 1 drew my akirt from the pommel, my grayhound came ap and sum. as then; one forepar lifted, as though the aristocratic creature fexred contamination by some thing plebeian. I remember I spoke sharply to him an jumped to the ground, and he elunk behind me and stood trending and puling on my long skiit as 1 atooped to the fallen man. His horse was dead, Ridden to desth, it seemed tome. The mann's haed was bleeding ngainst a eornered stone; tha dropa oozed blackly out, and the sight raised a glamour say, did he know $I$ was out in the night with a sight like this? Inhumanly I half wished fhat I had not seen the man. Why did he come with hie gar ness, like an ill-omen on my birthday night? And I mnst atop and help him, if help could avail him now. I drew his crumpled hat from his head, and ong, girlish ourls fell on the heath plants.
"The lad is n fop,' I muttered, grimly. . "The lad is n fop," I muttered, grimly. "Mayhap ong and lite will she wait his coming
I remembered the stagnant pool elose by in the copse, and I parted the bougha and pushid my kerchief in the black water; then I dipped in hin hat, and running back fast, with now and then a slop of the darksome atuff as I etumbled over the ridges and against the limbs, I sat down and washed away the stains from his forehead and off his atill, shut eyelids. I eprinkled the water in quick jeta on his temples, and bathed and chased his wher 1 hob silly fear of neeing his eyes open. They yin open, though, and looked up to the sky Fonderment. I stood banek and spose:
"The gentleman will remember th
The words swakened him thoroughly.
The acros the moor and his hors fll
"And my brave hunter is dead," he said, turn" " I g eyes to his horse' face.
my my voice had asperity in it ; 1 loved my horse, and that love widened to his kindred.
"I was in great need," the stranger snid; the suddenly and writh vivacity, "but pray eome into aight, my hel ping genius
I came forward,
"Direct me and I will hele to the mooniligh at;"I dropped it at his hands.
With amothered groans and many twistings a length he writhed his foot from under hin horse. He lay still a few moments after that. I thought be was faint, for his faoe grayed again and his ayen drooped. I came nearer.
"No, only wait" he said,
"No, only wait," he said, with a little motion of \section*{| his mand to |

| :--- |} feet. The moonllght was falling on me and bim and it seemed a different thing from the light a an hour ago. I thought I was brave witha courage that trembies not, but $I$ hated to be there alone with tbia wounded mana, so the moon sheen had changed to ghastiness and the fresh night ain Was nickening, My horse nurred his neek right proudy and dlated his egee at the night of his fallen fellow-creature. I hugged his fane between my hands, and furtively kised the star on his my hands, and furtively kissed the star on his mn the moor with blood at my feet, and an unknown man whose hands I was going to clasp, and whose pains I was bound to sonthe.

"Now, lady, give me your hand, if yon please;
ust stand as firmly as possible, and I think I can
He pulled hard, but finally he stood and held to "Yrm, to steady himself.
Yon will mount my horse, and I will oonduct ou to my home; that is, if you are able to ride."
He was looking ot me sharply, and I met his "lance to eee if he were strong enough.
"Who ever thought thot I should be succored ya Scottish fairy," he cried, letting go my arm to "That will do"I
"That will do," I said, drily, "you can mount now." I ${ }_{\text {im }} \mathrm{I}$ on.
I ought to bind up your head," I said, but loth
do it. "Sit dopn, it shall be done in minute."
I twisted my handkerchief on, and bade him get
n. "He is from south of the Tweed, I know by "I hhy logue, Ithought.
"I shall not get on and you go afoot," he eaid, hat he lenned againat ny horse, and was walk. To cut short our worde I Bild:
". Walk, To cut short our word, I siid:
"Then I shall mount and away, snd you may go where you please, with no care of ming."
Then he labored up in the saddle, and $I$ and $m y$ Hound walked by his side, back orer heath and long-ago blossomed broom; back through the heeny yellow of moon and the ateady sifting down of the atars; baok through the night that came down on my trentieth year, and that never ifted o the perfoct sweetness of light again. In the poplar-lined carriage drive we met my ither. I new he was watching and coming, for he nlway net me nen I came back from the heahoug, We entered the gato with funereal slowness, and I pulled the rein by my father's side and said:
"Extend our hospitality to this unfortunate tranger. I found him on the heath beyond the Farther Copse. Idon't know anything ahout him. I went into the house and left them as the man Was beginning a sentence and trying to digmount my new found god, fhose benty nom fhone noon-lighted perfectness. I fastened my hair, for the riding and the breeze had flowed it out on my shoulders. I was looking stondrastly at myself in the dim mfrror, when my sitter came up behind me. Her face was aglow aud her eyes alight.
What is it ${ }^{2} 1$ I asked.
" A satirical laugh rippled out of her lips.
"It's a braw birthday present you have found on the moors. Did you bring it hero to eet the jevel in our own home easinga? Did you fear it Fould tyne, left out in the night ? ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ I did not answer her, but my

the words I wanted to asy.

She laughed again.
A futing companion for your Cupid here. We may now havy love both in festh and marble." She played with the roses about my statue
"You may atop your talk.
"You may stop your talk, Heater!" I hurnt out, "Ir I cannot help a poor man becauce he is young ". he the mositable. I tro name; he who was e nothing what you mean.
I looked fiercely at her, and swallowed down my tears, though it was hard to keep the rexing dropa from flowing.
"Go down and hear the eurly-haired lad talik, and see his eyes shine when he cells our father the kind fairy he met on the heath. Sooth to eay, he is doad in love with you now, and my father "Are you all daft together?" I cried, with blushing cheeke. "I thought you had a little sense in your head, Hester.'
"And it's because I have that I think it oo strange that this stranger should allow bimesif
He is rery grateful. There south, turret ; I hear their steps on the staircase. Tow come down and see father.
I followed her down, and walked up to my tather, asking:
"Who is th
Hester has been as und as theugh I rode out to Hester hat beem."
I said this in anger, and repented as Boon, for ny sister's face ahowed distress and reddening. "A little sisterly envy, perhaps. The youth is impulsive and lacks the discretion that marks later years," my father replied, "but I believe he is leal-hearted. He has a winsome face; did you not think to, Hester ?
"Yes; he's pretts enough, but over bold for my idea."

And hie name and home " I ssid.

My father carefolly inquired ofter his health and eated him at his right hand at where he sat throughout the meal，neither eationg nor drinking，only harely touching his lips to the gash，and his eyes had no aim or hrightness in hem．He stood hy the brealfast－room door，and thanked my father and his danghtere for their kindness to him，and said he must heg the ase of a Wre to the nearent station－then he fainted dead who went to him nith the theshold．It Was not out of the room and left my father and $\mathbf{H}$ water to do ay they plensed．Let the man stay as long as he liked，I would have no more to do with him；so through the weeke that came I ouly heard his moans and callinga from the hall outside his mosns and callings from the hall outside his room，or sometimes when they came shill and room，or nometimes when the eatting even down to the parlor
Henter tended him，Hester out off his long curls They called me unkind that I Heuld moved him． They ealled me unkind that I would not share the when I had deolared，with a pout and a shrug，that I knew nothing about illmess and should as soon as not pois on the man with his medicines．Tempted to retaliste upon my sister for the blushes she had made color ryy cheeks，I was satirieal and uncon－ genial，and she told me nothing of her patient．I geninal，and she told me nothing of her patient．I asked not if he were better or worke，hut I lintened asked not if he were better or worke，hat for her answer when my father asked．
One day yhe said his fever was gone and he would get well．Conld he read the letter that had come for him in his delirium？My from his desk and gave it absently to me．I dropped it on the tsble hy Hester＇s hand，and turned away．
I have some accounts to discuss with Hester， and you will plense carry that up and present my congratulations，Poyche．It would be very lady－ ike to give him your own，also；＂my father like to
said．
I curtly thanked him for the suggestion，and by him，snd she opened the door to my knock．I Walked stealthily in．I had not toen mimock．I since ha lay on the floor of the breakfast－room． He did not turn his face，so Effie whispered： ＂He doss na ken it is ye，miss；he thinks it ＂Diss Hester．＂
＂Dinna ye speak，＂I said，almost savagely，but very lowly．I stepped to him and spoke：
＂My father wishes me to expresp ＂My father wishes me to express his plensure behind me and watched him slowly heo letter he could see me．
＂It is not Hester；it is Poyche－the moorland Psyche．
He do
rally large eyes，my face with his sunken，unnatu－ tensity of his gaze．As for me，I repeated in． my father had said，and after a moment＇s thought sdded：
beter．
＂I a am，＂he replied；then irascibly－＂for I can leave this house all the sooner．＇Oh，the cursed woods of Sussex！where the hunter＇s arrow found me！＇I wonder why that runs over and over in my ＂Because you are weak and have been ill．You will be ahle to go in a week or two，I should think，＂ ＂Never you fert，＂ energy．＂Tll keep fe said，with feeble－sounding there＇s little danger of my having to do it for yours I＇m hardly more than a hoy yet，or I might do ${ }^{\text {something I }}$ I wished．I＇m always foiled． Derwent．＂I put it on his pillow and turned to go．
His voice arrested me． sted me
by a sight of your face！＂
＂Was not needed．＂ ＂May yon so．＂
I went out at that and My face was masked and met Hester in the hall． and I said

I simost decide to he ill myself，Hester，so that The day came when he could get downstairs， and all the hours of the ehortening fall daylight he at by a window in the drawing－room，paying little heed to Hester or my father．I did not stay there－ How could I have the lad and my father there to see？ with Hester，and he and he left no troth－pledga anr，and she net and he whisper do no love－word in her I stood at the door on my father him again． the Englishmnn may hand with my farewell．He Waited till the adieux with the rest were over，the he bowed low hefore me and went over ther nith never a lait word for me to remember ＂The bonnie Englisher will ne＇er be a ad，＂Effie said to me when I colled her up to my ＂And ＂Inen hy the glint of his e＇e；it＇a na like other ＂So much the better，if he＇s good，＂I said；＂the Lord will give him good cheer if the world doe cast him out．＇
Hester kept her own sorrow，and we never talked had forgotten that wa had seen hime could tell，we As the winter came on，and the snow killed the foles and lay over the heath，I sat－oftener and hitterness that I mad no flowers with knew with reathe him－that the air had no sofmess in which to bathe him． four months eince I bince he had atood there－ with monthther and tister．The glimpae of outer
I world light left glooniners at tha country house， The winds went roughing and hent down the pop inn at the hottom of the garg and choked up the in at the hottom of the garden－the place which， in childhood，I had feigred to be the Dead Sea，for Has deatalike in its hlackness，deadly in its

I tho
Ithought often and long of the gloom and the when the snow thwed，and say the inky wher ucking in the white flecoe and lying dormant and Iled after its feast．My heart caught at the plece Is fitting for its resort，and through the dark monthas horror，till，well nigh crazed with the solithde and the thought，I begged to go to my cousins in Che thought，I begged to go to my Glagow，to etay till the warm months．
Hester stopped at home in ataid endurance．I she would rather stay with her past，she might，and hear no remons＇rance of mine；but for me，the house was a lazar－house of infant joys，and I would have no more loneliness．
Itook the hurrying，trading Glasgow snthuaias tically to my heart．My gay young cousins could not usher me to too many partiea；I could not re－ ceive too many callera；I could not tamper fool－ ＂You hare many young men．
Finning Scoteh ways and your bonnid with yeur Spare our hearts！＂laughed cousin Katy，one Spare our hearts！＂laughed morning，as I braided her hair．
＂Hare you not Scotch ways yourself？＂I asked． jou have the countryside hloom and frugrance you are as fresh as a flower from the braes．You know not how ＂You ahould know that you can pile up too much and hreak a the ser；youll extract all the perfume ＂Ye len weel that T ＇I fear，＂I anid． it ill becomes a truthful lassie．＂ Katy laughed，amused，I my rezation．I would be no swe not willing to own I must be a city blossom or none．Silly ambition． which I could not have aeted upon，try hard an ＂Don＇t pull my hair so，if you are vexed，＂Katy implored．＂I did not mean to offend you＇ mplored．＂I did not mean to offend you；indeed， that you lay the braids smooth，for we bave a new risitor to－day＂
＂Who is co

A young Sunderland with restored goodhumor． the wharf．So lace your hadice right givartne riumph right proudly
＂Miss Ainslie is a cousin of mine from the noors at the source of the Ayr，＂Katy somemhat maiiciously explained when she presented Sunder－ land．
I fushed and grew proud on the justant，for he was the man whom I had found on the heath，and from the time I first heard and saw．
I had good need to draw pride，ae a veil，nbout out the asking ． o his face wis inne had and the to to grow old on the day we parted．He did not paseak much； but he promised so pladly to came apain much， all I could do，my heart would he glad with him． I wish I had written all this in the days gone away，when the grass was green for me，and the gowans hloomed sweet with the daisien．I wish 1 had written when the glow of my love went burning and dancing though the hours，and made my bresthinga like draughts of the red wine．Now time to cool in these long years，had plenty of caunot be lim these long years，and even those meaning－by the hearts that folded them warm within their heatings．We two young things open－ ed the enchanted book of love and read its pages with clasped hands and eyes that melted in their mecting．
I wanted my father to know my tremulous happi－ ness，but wished it might he hidden for ever from Hester．I had heard of immolations and sacri－ fices，but the wiful Psyche Ainslie could never ciation of mutual love would ever bring renon－ Hester，whom my lover could not love？ unfeeling reason would not prompt the deed，and no voice urged me to it．
My father came up to Glasgow after my first note had reached him．Now the hackness which had awnited me at my birth began to lower around me．Happy to be with my father once more， He seid：＂So Pay why he came． He her poer $f$ Pothertse hinds her real Cupid here and her poor father＇s gift is only a faint type him．Tell me the story with incarnadined cheeks；＂only，I I whispered， other than you；but oh，hellieve me，loving you no thought the less all the while． ＂And will the bairn leave me lone in the bitter this lad of her heart i＇

My eyes filled．

＂Dinna ye call the saut tears to darken this Hour，I kaid．＂You cannot help loving him． all on the moor，only his name is more than ba ld us－ it is John Derwent Sunderland．＂
My father＇s arm alackaned round me，and hls face grewd
at his fect．
＂I want
＂I want no Ainelie blood mingling with that tream，＂he said，nnd walked away from me．Pre atream，＂he said，and walked away from me．Pre－
ently he turned his bead here he stood，and anked：

Do you know his father＇s name ？＂
A piercing sitenee fell upon us．At last he enid：
＂Go away，my ehild ；yon have hart a wound you knew not of．Lat your prayera be heartfalt

It was a teary face that pressed ny pillow through my father tell me？He would not ban my happi－ ness without good cause．I knew his true soul eo ell that I believed that．Bur some terror was Next day I sxpected with shivering draad my father＇s coming．I sat in the parlor alone，and his footfalls blanched my face when I heard them com． ing up the walk．
，you ever know why my brother Alexander who loved me $?^{"}$ he asked ＂No；but I often wondered．＂ ＂We are a proud race，and he thonorable lies in hls throast．＂
An angry coruseance danced in my father＇s eyes． I clung close ＂Tell me．
＂Your uncle Alexander died a transported con－ viet，only saved from the gallowa by the brihed lindness of the jury．I know this well，for it was
I who hriked them．We uke our Scottish blood to He absently smooth
He absently smoothed my hair，hut his brow was not unbent or his mouth unmoved from its stern not unbs curves．
un
＂Wha he innocent？＂ pure of the crime as $\mathbf{I}$ ；and he who prooured the mial，who piled up circumstantial evidence from own min of hired witnesses，he who whielded his Psyche，he at the expense of ionocence－my poor gance caros little for Scotch integrity．By the honor of my name，dear bairn，by my love for you， I know this to be truth．I am not so old but I re＊ member what true love is，so you know what I feel now to tell you－you cannot marry the son of one who ruined an Ainslie．＂
I sat still in my father＇s arms，clone to the grand to save ma from the horror mhe．I alling for him I felt like the o ild in Goethe＇s File－king but my demon was not death．The furies of despais mould have re if my father did not hold me fast．I know that I kissed his sheeka，and implored him to grasp me tight－to strain me close．Did I faint？I do not believe I did．I was only drowned for awhile in the grief that had heoome mine．I was in my in the grief that had heoome mine．I was in my chamber when I woke from my s illness；my father was kneeling by my hed with his head on my mil ow．Next day I went down to the drawing－room． knowing what I knew．I told him．I rememher no words of that tirue．Many a time have I ater the seashore and seen the tempest clouds come up with the red lightning in them，but I could not draw with pencil minuteness the edges of the cloud， or tell the volume of the thunder；but oh，I kuew so well that the thunder shook my heart，and the lightning soathed it so that it heat red and glowing no more．He begged for one last interview，any－ here that I might name．It was not wrong t grant it．Would he eome to the little bower we alled our own on the banks of the Clyde，two mile when the sun se med most as if it would some no bring the summer．I told my father I was going to see Derwent there；that the time nover wa coming when I should see him again．I rode out orseback and alone，save my gray hound who would the last of my loviagow，nad now would fain sce a a boat，and rowed up to the place of mesting． I am going over to France，Psyche，hat said， and I want you to promise me never to let me know if you marry another．Keep it from me for my love＇s sake．＂ kissed his long curla that fell on my cheek．
＂My love，＂I said，＂dlnna ye ken that you have Besidea your own，lover＇s lowe I shall not know， Have you not come to me as the one out of the world for me？Though I never look in your ejes again，do I not know that only there can I read that which my heart prizes best of all？Gin I walk through this heart prizes best of all？Gin I walk John，you know full well how length of years，oh， me na mair；is it not ssir enough thall be．Doubt a lifetime？So you maunna gang away frae me with mistrust in your heart．＂
A laverock started from the hank by us and car－ ried its melody far up in the hlue lift．Our eyes way out of sight its way merged in the traok of its mate，and together in rising cuives they passed he－ fond our vision． hall fine，intangihle，hut ever minging，our souls swall finally resch the great white throne．John， stain shall be on the wear to he good，ao that no Loof in loof we the your life mise that the man I love shall be worthy of God great love！＂
＂Oh，Pkyche！I hold my heaven in my arms， asking．＂ And now go， We＂${ }^{2}$ ，I ssid，hut without loosening my Does Paradise furnish recompense for the tormenta of moments like these？
At last he went．I stood by the bank，and he stepped into his bost．My noul withed in torture atill and rigid－if I moved I should lane self－con－ rol．He stood upright－he raised an oar－dropped it，and cried：
＂Oh，let me come back－for one moment！Death I hidore me－I cannot go yet
I did not ayy yes，I did not speak，but he leaped intensity that seara like lightning．Then I saw and tipped，than，for the firat time，I knew that a fiarea wind was hlowing in guita．The frall thing careered over the bubhling water．With nargnet－ tream．His foce was towards ma，and he orndled the oars without skill or forcs．Ones his hoat tipped more feerfully；he suddenly bent himself with a will to his work；hut，my God！he did not work right；the craft turnod on her side and Sun－ derland went down in the water．He could not wim；he rose to thn top，and I shouted with an energy that thrilted and awakened me ： ＂Will you oling to the hoat ？ 1 will
I mounted my horse and scoured over feld p．＂ rond to the nearest housc－it was not far．I came hack with a man who wasa swimmer，bearing ropes with him．Was I accursed of hearen？The hoat was there，but Derwent Sunderland had gone down to the river＇s hottom end drowned my heart wilh him．The men brought him horae to my oousins， still with the guir nce，and asw that his faoe was were wet with the river of his cyer－that his curls drown hecause he river of his death．He did not hrave for life or death．There are no wouls far heartbeats，there la no sound in sorrow．With the silver cord loosed and the golden howl broken，I lived and carried my life back to my home．Heater lived and carried my life back to my home．Heator return，she channeled another course for it to run， she gava her hand to a kinaman and 啇ent her wayn without my father or $\mathbf{I}$ ．The years went hy．There came a day when my father fell siek and died heart was tender and true for him，and died．My and sorely；but where is the need of thed long and sorely； tell ao little？ Twelve years since the day I was twenty．I hava gathered rue for silvering hairs $;$ will the daj ever dawn when I may weare hairs；will the dhy over of hope，and see the sun shimmer gaily in the long summer days ？I am in the houne where I first me．He brealh that is now such a weary thing to one．this lather＇s bairns went ranting in glee－ with blooms．Bitter that I go pll lif each other day．The sun rises and he seta and to nec abia over the same unsatisfied thing．I go up and down hungry for that which I have not，thirrty for tho jears in cannot reach．My life is a want－my have not yet found that which is sufficient unto

BRIG．－GEN．JOHN A．RAWLINGS

To be Chief of Staff of the Lieutenan Genth his headquartera in the fies of tho United State may well he envied．This rank，has heen gained hy
Gen．Rawlings in a steady line of promotion， arver．modest and elfidont，like those of his gre chlef．He has hesn attached to the ataff eineo tho Wak at first volunteer Alds，and then long hiro．Asxis

 roriking，ohery，hearty ofticer，zealous only to do his fity Atar the glorioue captare of Vlekshurg，Adjutant． Gemeral Rawlliga，to thir great satisfaction of the

4．Yankee Fiotel in Dizie，

When Gen．Banks＇s army moved on up the Sorgeant Beulen W．Oliver，of Cochran＇p New York hattery，bad to he temporarily lete in a wan on a count of injuries he had received．Soon after our de parture he made spplieation at the lady＇s houne
adjoinigg for hoard，hut ho was informed，in urue Virginian atyle，that she did not hoard＂Yankeo harhasians，＂ ＂Very well，＂repilied Olivir，＂if you wont hoard
ms，shall keep a hotel in your harn，hut ahall proha hiy call upon yon oceallonaliy for vupplites；＂an＇ho hiy call upon yon oceasion hohhied bsck to the harn．

Oliver was avery lich

work at onee．Taking a revolver，he hot went to dreased．His ahle asesstant next went to the apling and＂took up＂a bive of hees，and trans erred the honeg to the harn；he then went to the lot and tin tmulked a peli of milk from her ladyship＇s cown；then going to her servaut／＇house，he made a＂requfalion＂

 ます waw $=$ $=-2=2=5$ $=32=25=5$ 2 am $23=4=5=2$ $\pm 5=5: 5$

IEE RESTORATTON OF TBE UNLON-INAUGURATON OF HON. MCHAEL HAHN, GOVERNOR OF LOUSSAANA, ON LA

SWEETNESSES.

How much is in a kiss Only thin-only this !

 Unto loving hearts and true, Unto nouls of royal bue, 'Tis a bliss-'tis a blies Tis a bliss-tis a bliss,品eaking at the soul'a request All that lay so unexprest In the deepest deep of all the soul's unfathomeO learn it of the foncrs They nrs ourz-Ioverand ours, Ench ugiinst the other's oheek, Thies are Rissing as thes speak;
Thus in tones of ofilver BhoweriRsiny tones of siver showers, They ye bididiag us, ike them, Vear Love's lucent diadem, And for $\begin{gathered}\text { er in our beings to enshrine the princely }\end{gathered}$ gem.

They are kissing in the hreeze And the tender words they say Flast away-float away, Telling mortals that to love With their brows enstemped with Right, With their brows ensteupes
With their purity so white, Is to mrap around $\begin{aligned} & \text { perfect light. }\end{aligned}$

Hear the molten plash of streams!
They are kissing ${ }^{\text {n mid their gleame, }}$ They are kissing ${ }^{\text {r mid their glea }}$ And they spenk to every heart, Do, oh do, the nobler pert! Do in Love the nobier partMake it gentle as the streams, Make it gentle as the stream-
So it tow to truth and good -
So it go where angels would, There to ripple in the atmosphere of Beauty understood. See the liquid, diamond rills,
How they kiss amid their trills How they kiss amid their trils! And they whirt from oind deeps, Down within tbe pearly deeps,
Where the twilight ever sleps,
Saying, "M Mortal, love thy brother Saying, "Mortal, love thy brother"-
Then shall damond hues like mine Then shall damond hues like All your onward life entwine,
And that life will be a glory, girt with harmony
divise.

Oh, uplifting Beauty-Truth!
Oh, immortal child of Youth!
Thee I worship ae the eun,
And I feel thy kisses run
Through my heart so purple-spun ! Far within thy golden fire Snowy winglets beckon higher, Liquid voices mingling say, As they wave away-away, Oh, come, hither, hither, hither! come and drink

The Gulf Between Them.

by Mra, Ann S. Stophens. irs there was an unusual commotion in the lower regions, effected by the machinatione and deceptions of that arch-flirt, 'Dolph. He had succeeded in accomplishing what no sable gallant had ever hoast, and made her think it possible that at some fnture time ehe might be persuaded to place her fair self, and what

But the worst of it was, 'Dolph's eusceptible fancy led him strongly in another direction, even while his discretion wase with the enlinary nymph euccess he had achieved, hith the enlinary nymph Victorin was a styish, handsome young mulatto and Clorinda was, undoubtedly, pure African to the rery end, I cannot say point, of her flat nose. Indeed, it is quite ponsible that 'Dolph's yellow skin went for something in her admiration; hat skin went for something in her admiration; hut unfortanately 'Dolph preferred the lightening up of complexion also, and had a masculine weaknes in favor of youth and good looks.
Poor Clorinda certainly did Poor Clorinda certainly did present & rathe dry and withered arpect; her hands more resemble lawa than was satisfactory to a man whose claws than Was satisfactory to a man whose firtations had hitherto been with ladies'-malde, and she was sedly deetitute of the aire and graces with which Victoria fascinated the grand. sex so been nome profit to her had shs been, a shecp, hut as it was ahe could only hide it under gorgeous bandunas, nud gaze enviously at Vietoria's long curls, feeling her fingers quiver to give them a pull curls, feeling her fingers quiver to give them a pull when that damsel finttsred them too jauntily in her eves.
the two, but after 'Doen trouble enongh between department grew very hot and uncomfortable, and even the wary 'Dolph himsell, skilled as he was in Lotharian practices, frequently had great difficulty in ateering clear of both Scylla and Charybdis. atd went to meeting on every possible oceasion; atd went to mecting on every possible occasion;
while Victorin, with the flightiness of her yeara, while Victoria, whits thed at Clo's psalm-singing, and finterrapted her prayers in the most fervid part by polkn steps and profane redowas. In ordor to propitiate

Clorinda, 'Dolph hed accompanied her to meeting much oftener than his inclinations prompted, much oftener than his inclinations prompted, expressing the utmost desire to be remembered in her prayers, all the while deasaving.
But good women with a weakness for helping sinners are alike in one thing, no matter what their color may be-wickedness has a strangs attraetion for them. It was the peril in which she considered'Dolph that made Clo so lenient towards him ; it would be such a triumph to win him from his wicked ways, and lead him up to a height where he would bs secure from the crafs of th evil one, and what was more important, beyond ths wiles of Vietoria, who was regarded by her fellow-servant as a direct emissary of the prince of fellow-servant as a direct emissary of the priae of darkness. She labored faithfully with 'Dolph, though it structions to be diversified with a little more lovemaking than was prudent, and for the first time in her Iffe became extravagant in the matter of dress, wearing the most gorgeous bandannas every day, and even adopting a hoop, whily bringing her into badly that it was constantly bringing her into Of course they never quarrelled openly about Dolph, but they found endiess eabjects of dispute to improve npon, and sometimes that adroit fellow got into serious difficulty with both by attempting to mediate between them.
Then on occasions the sable rivals would hide their bitterness under smiles and goodnature, and their bitterness under smiles and goodnature, and appear almost affectionate in their sudden truce;
but 'Dolph learned to dread those seasons of but 'Dolph learned to dread those seasons of deceitfus calm, for they were These three restless persons went out one evening to pay a visit to some eable friends in the neighborhood, where the colored gentry often met and had choice little entertaioments; where the eatables came from perhaps it would not have been wise for their employers to inquire.
Old Mrs. Hopkins and her fascinating daughter, Miss Dinah, were the possessors of thie abode, and Clo and Victoria had for some time been promising 'Dolph a visit there. That night seemad a favor-and Dolph a visit there. That night seemad a favorabie occasion for the expedin, alded by Clo', pumpkin-pies had that day been mould own expert hands, and half a jelly cake set aside in the closet.
aid Clo ; "it's walgar."
"In course it is,", returned 'Dolph; "I'se sure othing would orritate master more Vic did not attempt any deceptions on her conherseif about the manner in which it wns obtained herseif about the manner in which stolen delicacies such ae her palate oraved had never given her a moment's indigestion, or the least approach to moral nightmare.
They went over to visit Mrs. Hopkine and Mise Dinah, and the evening was a very festive one, what with Clo's pies and the hard cider which Grs. Hopkins provided.
But as ilinck would have it, two or thres other of their friends strayed in, and among them was a oung woman as much grven while 'Dolph's love of flirtation got the better of his prudenes, a plentiful doses of the hard cider rendered him reckless. In epite of the indignation which both Clo and Victoria displayed, he was exertingall his fsacinations on thenew-comer, while her neglected bean sat looking like a modern Othello, with beau sat looking like a modern Otheilo, with every glance expressive of bowic-knives at least. every glance expressive of bowic-knives a insh.
When the damsel went out with Miss Dinsh, Whontra bench from the wash-house, 'Dolph an extra bench and before long the company beard bursts of laughter and doleful ehrieks.
Clo fiew to the door and opened it; Victoria peeped over her ehoulder; there was that per-fidious 'Dolph encireling the stranger damsel with his right arm, and making bold efforts to lay hold of Miss Dinah with his left.
'Dolph looked up and anviClo; he was not so much under the excitement of the risk he ran.
could not understand the
"Dere is pretty conducte!" exclaimed Clo
"I shud tink so," chimed in Victeria.
I shud tink so, chimed in Victoria. "I home; I sin't accustomed to sich goings on my self; dey isn't de fashion in de Piney Cove base
The outrnged damsela would hear no persuacions and 'Dolph was forced to accompany them hack Fir a First they abused the impudent young pusson they had left behind, and nearly annitilated ${ }^{\text {Dolph }}$. when he attempted a word in the young woman when faror.
"I declar," cried Clo at last; "Mr. 'Dolph, yer matter i"
'Dolph only gave a racy chuckle.
"I guess goin' into the wash-room turned his head," said Vic.
"De siety I'
"De siety I'se enjoyin' at dis minit," said deecitful Do
"Oh, we know sll 'bont dat," said Vic. "In course you does," returned 'Dolph, forgetting Clorinda, and trying to seize Vic'e hand, looked as if he were trying to strike he Clorinda saw it all; it wae fuel to tha fiame which consumed her
"Miss Victory," said she, "yer needn't push me into de brool
: Who's a
'Who's a pushin' of yer ?" retorted Victoria,
rith equal acidity.
"Yer was, yer owa self."
"I didn't-so dar! Guess somethin' aile head too, de way yer go on-pushin' indeed."
"I scorns yer insinivations," sald Clorind
"and "and desplees ysr actuatlone!"
"Jis' don't go pitohin' into ms and callin' m
"Mes," retorted Vic ; "'canse I won't stand it." "Ladies, ladies?" interposed 'Dolph. "Dor' "Ladies, ladies!" interposed Dolph. "Don on leasant words."
"I ain't a sayin' nothin'" said Vic. Clo , "and I "You're said mors'n I," retarned Clo, " and I in't gwi
She was natarally more irriteted than Vic, besuse 'Dolph had tried no hsnd-seixing in ber
"Nobody wants ter pueh yer," keid Vio.
"I don' know 'bout dat," naid Clo, solsmoly; "I blieve if I was murdered in m "Sich subjects, Miss Clorinda, is not fit for jer ubly lips," said, 'Dolph; "don't give 'em houseom, I begs."
"Mr. 'Dolph," returned Clorinda, with a severity that piereed like a warning through the elation of nesses wid me; I ain't one ob that sort."
"What sort ?" asked Victoria.
"Neber yer mind," said Clo, with majesty; neber yer mind, miss; childen don't comprehen"neber yer like."
"I onderstands Miss Clorinda, and I vsnerates her sentimens," obeerred 'Dolph; "but when a gemman finds hisself in sich siety as dis, de anguage of compliments fows as na
This well-rounded period softened both the omsels somewhat; 'Dolph got Clo on his righ rm and Vic on his left; the eupport wae nol unwelcome to himself just then; and he manaped to keep them both in tolerable humor antil they early reached the house.
Whether 'Dolph stumbled, or V woriggare a ly, vicious puah, it was diffeult to tolin the oly, vicious push, it was diffieult to $1+1$ in the lengness, but Clorinda went suddenily down fath. Victoria gave a laugh of derision, and ratification of her malicious feelings in the mie fortune of her rival put her in high goodhumor. 'Dolph haatened to help Clorinda up, but his movements were a little uncertain, and the fist thing he dld was to set his foot through the erown of her bonnet, whioh had fallen back from her "I'se killed," shrieked Clo.
"Do screem low, like a 'speotable ole woman!" cried the unsymp," whole house out." "I hole house out."
."
Why dont yer git up?" demanded Victoria. "I'll 'eist yer, I'l'sist yer, Clorinda endeavored to help herself, but the effort wae a failure, and there she lay covered with confusion, for the could not think of giving the real cause of her continued prostration. The truth was she had caught one foot in her hoopWhat a situntion for find her in, late at night too, a a d darkey to find hers.
her lover lookwine to lay dar all night!" asked
"Be yer
"I kin't get up, I tell yer," aaid Clo.
"Is yer bones hroke?
"They must half of 'em be smashed," ssid Clo, thinking of the anatomy of her hoop, not b:r corporeal frame.
"No, no; Miss Clory, not as bad as dat," said Dolph; "don't petrificate us wid sich a idee. Jis Dolph; "don't petrificate us wid sich a idee. Jig let me "sist yer now.
"No, no," eried
oot-my foot !
"Her yer hurt it?" demanded Vic.
"No, no! What a fool yer be! Can't yer onder"No, I kin't oinderstend nothin' 'bout it, ont er makin' a outrageous ole fool $o^{\prime}$ yerself, an freezin' us to death. Mr. 'Dolph, I move we g "Yer wouldn't desart a sister in disiress, exil Dolph, dencing about the prostrate form, unable assint her; while she huddled herself in a heap making frantic efforts to extricate her foot, and in rue spinster fear of showing her ankles in th struggle.
"Now,
"Now, Clo," eried Victoria, "
"n't stand dis fooling no longer."
"Help me," said Clo; "do help me
"Help me," said Clo; "do help me."
"Hein't Mr. Dolph ben a trgin' dese te "Hein't Mr. Dolph ben a trgin' dese ten minits!"
"No, nol Bend down here, Vic. Mr. "Dolph,
"yer's a gemman I ax yer to shut yer eyes."
"My duty is to sarve de fair," seid 'Dolph, turning his back and peeping over his shoulder, vary eurious to know What could be the din agonised harpnese,
"My toot's run into my hood clean up to de A stone might have sympathised with hsr maidenly distress, but that whe
into absolute shrieks of laughter
"Oh, oh, oh!" yer ole fool!" she oried, between her shouts of merriment. "Yer too ole for new hashions-telled y ou so!
Clorinda's outraged modesty wae forgotten in the fury which Victorin's lack of sympathy eaused. "Jis let me git up!" crled she, "I'llfix yer; I'll frixzle dem long beaucatohers? All the while Clorinda kept making insane most dreadful way in her desperation.
"What am it ?" demanded 'Doiph.
As well as she could spsak for laughing, Victoria began :
"She's cotched-"" if yer don't thut yer impudent month." "Cotched her foot in hor noop," shrieked Vic.

Kil ki! kl! oh, laws, I shall die! Ole folks , Clo, fifty times."
Dolph snickered-yes, Clorinde heard him acanlly snicker as she lay there, like a seoond Msden, deprived of her strength. Another struggle, a more furious pull, something broke with a loud nore furious pull, something broke wik a loud f triumph and rage.
She made a dart at Vietorin, esught that ysllow maiden by her much-prixed tresses, and for a few moments the battle between the rivals raged furiously. 'Dolph tried to separats them, and came in for a goodly share of blows in the madness of he onset.
Clo quits forgot her relligion in the excitement, nd her langusge might have shocked the elders hind her in the nse cither of tongue or fists.
hind her in the nge cither of tongue or asts. with a brillinnt thought; "I do believe it's marster

The battle ceased. 'Dolph ran towards the house and the combatants after him, but 'Dolph never stopped till he wes safe in his own dormitory, not caring to trust himself in the presence of cither the infuriated damsels.
Indeed, the next morning it required the special matter, and sereral days passed before parfeot harmony was restored in the lowsr regions at Piney mony

ohapter kix.

Tre next afternoon Tom Filler came down to that spot to make his absence of long duration. Elizabeth and Elsie were quite alone, for Mellen had driven over to the rillage on some matter of uainess; but the sisters were not taking advantage of their solitude to indulge in one of those long, cozy, confidentlal chate which had been their habit cozy, confidenti
Elsie was in the upper part of the house amusing the little morning-room which had become her the little morning-room
It was a small room in the old part of the honse, day relieved by the becutiful vien on a bright which was afforded from the French window, the only modern feature which Mellen had added to it.
On a dark morning the apartment was gloomy enough; the ceilinga were low, erossed with heavy carved beams that made their want of height still more spparent; the upper portion of the walls were hung with dark crimson cloth, met there by were humg wing oating of unpolished oak, dark and steined with age.
The furniture had been in the house since the Wavolution; the messive chairs, ench one of which to match the hangings. The whole room had a quaint aspect, and was filled with a store of relice and curionitice which would have delighted a lovar of the antique.
Elisie detosted the apartment and never would from choice; the drearier and darker the day the rom choice; the drearier clung to the die day of more pertinaciously she the shadows lay heary and grim, and e
But this day was hright and benutiful an summe itself. The apartment looked cheerful and picturesque, and Elizabeth made a pretty picture, seated by one of the open windows, with her light seated by one of the open windows, winh her dress forming an agrecable contrast to the sombre dress forming an ag
She had a workhasket on the little spider-leggsd table by her side and a mass of embroidery on her lap, but the file had fallen from her hold, her looking out over the bright waters with a dreamy, wistful gaze, which had become habitual with her whenever the necessity for eeil-restraint was re moved and ehe was frse to relinquish herseif to gathering anxieties.
Tom entered the room in his usual haste, and fonnd her sitting in this dreamy attitude; she saution the wae daily acquiring changed her listcaus position, and drew the mask over her face which it was so dangerous to lift sven for an instent.
"Here I am," eried Tom; "back agsin, Hike a had penny. I hope you are not sick of the sight of my ugly face.
He ruohed
He ruehed towards her, upset the spider-legged
table that was simays ready to topple over on the table that was giways ready to topple over on the least provocation, made a hopeliss of greeting, and hurried on with numberless questions, just as if he were in the greatest possibie hurry, and it was a necessity of life and death that he should blurt out
he had be
Many times she said to herself:
" Hz would love me, whatever came-I could wayn depend on him.
She was tbinking something of tbe kind, just tben, while she began assorting her silke; and Tom atocd meekly by, longing to repair the mischisf he had oceasioned, but perfectly certain that he ehould only do a good deal more harm if he attempted it. Beeides thst, something clae was in his mind-thers always was before he had been five minutes thers always was before he had been five minutes Hs house if Elsie did not make ber appearance tions haltingly, and at last burst out: "ions haltingly, and at last burat out:
"on ?"
"Elsie, do you mean ?"
'Who else, of course! Where is she?
"Up in her room, I faney," replied Elizabeth. "I don't nee how you can bear her out of your sigbt for an instant," eried Tom; "I am sure I sigbt for an instant," cried Tom; "I am sure I "Nonsense, Tom!"
"Thare is no nonsense about it," thundered he "it's just the trutb."
Several times Elizabeth bad attempted to point out to him the folly of going on in his old ineme way, but either he would not listen or something interrupted their conversation. Now she deternined to take advantage of the present opportunity "Ind speak seriously with him.
"I have brought her a paper of Maillard's He darted towrids the door as he epoke, but Elixabeth atopped him.
Wait a moment, Tom," she stid; "come back "Yea, of course; IU be back in a flash-I'll just end her these traps," and he pulled a couple of tempting packages from his pocket, nattily tied with pink rihbons and got up generally in the exquisite taste which distinguighes everything from
"No," urged Elizabeth, "come here first; I have something to say to you, Tom-Elsie can ent ber bonhons after.
Tom came back, rather unwillingly though, and ood leaning against th window like a criminal. "Sit down," said Eliznbeth.
"No, no; I like to atand! Well, what is it Bessic " ${ }^{\text {Tom," }}$
"Tom," othe aaid, seriously, "I am afraid you have forgotten the experiznce which cost you so are making other and deeper trouble for I fear you Oh, no, Beasie-lit's of no consequence way,", returned Tom, turning fifty different shades of red at onee. "What a pretty green that silk
"It is bright blue, but no matter! So your listen to ms, Tom?" continued Rlizabeth.
ten to ms, Tom?" continued Elizabeth. "My dear girl, did I ever refuse to listen in all life!" cried Tom, "But you ace, you're a little my life!" cried Tom, "But you ace, you're a little mistaken, Bessie; I'm not suoh a goney as I used mistaken, Bestie; I'm not suoh a goney as to be."
"That has nothing to do with the matter.
"That has nothing to do with the matter."
"Oh, yes, it has; I mean, I don't allowv to he such a dunce, even in my own thoughts. I nerer even think about-about-you know what I Tom broke down and made a somewhat lame "Ob, Tom, Tom!" Rlixaheth said.
"Well, there!" cried he, with sudden energy; "there is no use in standing here and telling you fibs! I do love her-I must lovs h shall love her-bang me If I shan't!"
He was in a state of great agitation now, and trembled all over as if he had heen addrceseing herself.
"Ilixaheth sigbed wearily.
Itbought 80 ," she said; "I feared so." How could the dear girl will never care for me. tisn't in reason."
"Then, Tom, she certainly onght not to treat "She doesn't lend me on."
She doesn't lend me on
"Bnt her manner does not forbid your attentions, and you are too worthy, dear cousin, for anything ut honest dealing.
Elizabeth ehook her head.
"You have the best heart and the worst head in
"Yorld," said the. the world," said she.
"Yon mustn't blame her," continued Tom; "I can't stand that! Pitch into me as often and hard as you like, you never me as often and as don't blame her.
of the question," continued Elizabeth. "If you of the question," continued Elizabeth. "If You believe uhat you say, is it wise to run into danger "There's $n$
There's no hslp for it, Bessie ; I should die if I think what I suffered while I was gone-I didn't talk about it-I don't even want to think of it; but, Bessie, dear, sometimes I ussd to think I should oo out of my senses.
He was speaking seriously now; his face was absolutely paic with emotion, and his eyee-the one fine feature of his face-were misty with a remembrance of old pain.
"Poor Tom," murr
ing way, always full of sympathabeth, in her pitying way, always ful of sympathy for others' trouble, whatever her own might be; "poor, dear Tom, I koow how hard it was."
the least idea! You don't know what enn't have something to hide-to go about with a secret gnaw. ing at your heart-never ahle to optn your $\mathrm{Ips}-$ suffering night and day. Hic Jupped suddenly and looked at his cousln her fuce wis
dreary slgh.
Tom drew close to her chair and bent over her, with a look of anxious surprise on his disturhed features. features.
"Are you sick, Bessis ?" he asked.
"No, no," ehe answered, controlling harself. vividly before her that for an instant she had been dresdfully shaken by the keen pang at her heart. "You look so pale; I'm afraid you are going to "Yil."
"Indeed, I am not," she answered
Tom knelt down by her on both knees, pisyed with her embroidery silka, and finslly said: "Bessie, aince we're talking plainly, may I say some thing ?"
"Yes, Tom."
"Somehow, since I cams back from Europe," pursued he, "You don't seem so happy as you used -mayhs it's oniy one of my blunders-hut I have thought you looked troubled-like a person that was always expecting something dreadful to happhen." forced a smile upon her lips as she forced tbem to answer
"Oh, you foolish Tom! "
"Then it is not so!" he urged. "You are not uhappy ?"
"How
nt, prosperous beyond anything I could ever "It neems 50 .
"It seems so; that made, me think it must be "Nothing more, Tom""
"Mollen's more, Tom." pursued he; "and you couldn't well the world," that little darling about you."
Elizabeth took up her silice again.
"Dismiss all such thoughte from your mind,
"I shall be only too glad. But tell me onoe more that I am an over-anxious husybody, minding everybody's concerns but my own. You see body's concerns but my own. You ste, Bersie, I love you like a siater, and will stand hy you, by Jupiter, always. But these stupid ideas of mine, there's no foundation for them?"
"How could there be?"
"Tbat's what I sny to myaelf always," cried Tom. "Well, dear, I won't think suoh nonsenss
"Do not, I beg; and never mention it to anybody."
"There's no danger of that," aad Tom "But "There's no danger of that," said Tom. "But ou know, if you should get unhnppy or in trouhle, here is always one shambling old chap yọu could ean on."
II helieve that, Tom; I do indeed."
"And you would come to mes
"If you could help me, yes. But tro come to all, Tom; and, generally, we must muat bear our burthens alone."
"How sad your voice sounds, Bessie,"
"You are an effort to speak playfully
You sere getting all sorts of ridiculons fancies
your hesd; don't be so foolish.
laugh at his own ridiculor manner, and began to his knees and brushing the dust awny with his handkerchief.
"My head is a poor old trap," he said. well, I am glad you are happy-very glad. "And I want you to be happy, Tom." "I am, upon my word, I ami' I don't allow my self to think any more or to look forward, hut just live on, glad to be in the sunshine. 'Tisn't live on, glad to be in the sunshine. 'Tisn't a bad world, after all, Bess; thinge usually coms right in Forld, afte the main."
If ehe
the main.
ecept his cheerfol phy helieve it-if she could but trust; but, slas! the sleepless dread at her heang prevented that.
"And about my stupid solf," Bessie, added Tom. Elizabeth, glad to remove the subject from any cod " And mection her secret dread.
"And my useless hits of affairs," purnued Tom "I let things rest as they are, it's the best way. I erson ; and yould to rery well I am the last
"Oh, don't talk like that, or I re offended.'
"Not in the least Tom; I onty mat
Wat it was my regurd for your happiness that made
"I know-I feel that, Bessie ; but just let things go on! Perhaps I am asleep and dreaming, but the slnmber isply kindness, dear."
Elizabeth said
pursue the subje nothing more; it was useless to pursue the suhject; where Tom was concerned sha saw plainly that it could do no good, his heart wae

Just as she was thinking that, and giving nnotber little nigh for Tom and what she faared for him, a blithe young voice rang in the hall, earolling like
"There she is!" exclaimed Tom.
Hiaface lighted up, his whole frame seemed to expand with delight. Elizabeth watched him. Sbe wined about that young creature, that bis were oul had gone out in worship at her feet his very "And where are you hidden, Lady Be Elinie, gaily.
Tom ruehed to the door and flung it opsn, upsetting tbe table agnin, and this timeleaving Elirs"Hers she is, herself.
"Hers she is, my fairy princass!" he called, standing in the doorway and looking up at her as she paused on the stairs.
"In that dismal den
cried Eleie, peeping at him thiough the dragon," mischievously. "Pray where did you come from Cour de Lion?
"If you knew what I had brought. for may lady-give me your best welcome," said Tom.
"It a benhons?" cried Elsie with a shriek of delight. "Ths ogre means pralines and caramels and marons glacéa!
Elsis denced downstairs and entered ths rome Elsis denced downstairs and entered tha room " Ugh, the ngly me shiver!"
"Better come into the den than lose the swects," sadd Tom, opening the papere and pretending to est greedily.
"He won't
"pon him.
Tom prolonged the playful etruggle artfally only on condition that he was the sugarplums, and as he did not satisfy her greediness fant enough there was a great dsal of port and laughter between ths pair.
Elizaheth sat in the window and watched them, sighing sometimes and regarding Elsie witb, a atrange pain in hereyes, as if annoyed and troubled that this happy creature could not leavs her the "I want to this one heart.
"Will you take mo ont, you ugly water," sald Elsis. "Won't It"" maid, Tom. "I'd take
"oon if you liked."
"But I don't wiah to try the moon, thank ron niee long row will entisfy me. Come along Beesie!"
"Not to-day," answered Elizabeth coldly.
"You"re a
"You're a poky thing!" cried Elsie. "Well, "III"rum down to the cady," said Tom, extaticolly. and get the boat He daried away, and Elsie ments crushing the and Elsies betweed for a fow moand looking at Elizabeth, half frightened, half definnt.
"You are yery busy," snid she.
"One can't he idle"
"One can't he idle," replied Elizabeth.
"Oh, ean't one? It just suits me, tbank you."
"Flaie," said her sister, suddenly, "I want t
"If it is any
"If ing."
"If it is anything unpleasant, I won't hear. "It hear. I wabout yourself; don't he alarmed," Well, say it; but jou are going to mething else dreadful, I know hy your voice." Don't be euch a baby," said Elizabeth, im
"There!
"There! I knew you were cross! How can help being a baby? I like it, and I will bs one."
"Do you think you "Do you think you are acting bonestly with Tom?" said Elizabeth.
"I'm not acting at a
"I'm not acting at all," replied Elsis fretfully "I can't help his coming here constantly. Xo "You know what Imean. He loves you, in of your conduct before he went ahroad-",
"I ean't help it," Elsie broke in again. "I people will fall in love with me it's their own fault
I don't ask them."
" don't ask them.
"But you can help encouraging him and leading Elsie pouted.
"How do you
"How do you know I shall ?"
"You would not
You would not marry him," exelaimed Eliznth, suddenly. "You-you-sou-" "You don't know anything about it. Let Tom and me alone. I think you are growing a erosa old thing.
"Oh, Elsie, do be serious for one moment."
"Let me alone!"
"Let me alone!" ohe repeated. "You are always spoiling my sunahine. I halleve you hate
"Don't talk so wildy, Elsie. But you cannot
"And, pray, should I male hom's happiness." "And, pray, should I make him wretched if I "You won't do that. You defiantly.
"III do wbat I please; and don't you meddle
The voice was sharp and unlike Elsie's usual one, but she quickly resumed her childish manner and added:
"Y'll be good-don't ecold. There, I'm going Sbe danced out of the room und tbrough the alling to Tom, to know if the voice on the la Eliraheth kept hor seat, the boat was rend he water. Presently she saw the little skiff shoo out from the shore, under the impetus of Thom muscular arms, while Eleie leaned back in the stern, wrapped in a white shawl, and rominding Elizabet of the old German legend of the Lurlet.
She sat there a long time, with her former mourn solated nest all trooping back, like ravens to a de deeper, and the chill that had hegun during the past days to ercep like a ring about her hear ightened and grew cold, as if it were her hear an icy band, whioh would freeze her pulsesing in it tightening elasp. She looked out through the sunahine, watching the light boat till it became $n$ mere peck in the distance and finally disappeared among he windinga of the long curve of land which Thinking into the ocean
Thinking, thinking, always the same dreary anxiety, the constant no weary with tbe ceaseles the need of reflection, even, in the slis and plans, and, worse tban all, the sleepless fear of discover whioh hovsred near her, asleep or swake, that it seemed to her sometimes she could no longer uphold the burthen, but must allow it to fall and crush her.
The afternoon was pasing, but the littlo hoat had not yet nppeared in tight again. There was no danger that Tom would think of fatigue whils he could sit looking in the face of his syren and listening ponalility of her ever remembering that the strongest muscles mast at last feel a little need o relaxation, just as long as it plessed her to float or talking gns nonsense to Tom, and blinding him atterly with the wioked Hightning of her eyes. At last Mr. Mellen's step sounded in the hall. Hizabeth heard it, and she immediately gathered up ber embroidery silks, making up ber embroidery silkn, making a great pretence

of bsing busy, lest he should enter and her in the betrayal of that abstraction, and pierce her with ons of his dark, suepicious glances, whice mads her heart setually atond still with apprehsn| sion. |
| :--- |
| He |

door and ene on towards ths room, looked in at the comforaw his wife sitting there apparently quiet, eomfortable and wholly occupied with her pretty tank.
she glaneed up and nodded a welcome.
"So you have come hack,"
"So you have come hack," she said; "I have been wishing for you." been wishing for you."
He amiled at her wo
by her, saying: "I thought you
" Tou neem very busy.
"This tirceome emhroidery has been lying about olong that I am working on it for very shame, sbe replied. "Elsis began it and was delighted with it for three days, but ahe has not touched it aincs." "Vince.
to firy," he said, with a amile to bis lip.
Elizabeth did not wiah to talk, it was difficult for her to hide the real feelings that oppressed if r
under a playful garh, 60 she said:
hers and rend to me. There would sit down
"I will, with pleasure; hut where is Elale?"
"Oh, Tom Fuller came, nnd she made him take her out for a row; so I bave been alone in my den, as she oslls it." "The child shadow," be said; "she must have her mean to a andow, be said; "she must have her sunshiue
He drew an Clizatheth sat, took up the norel the window whe
to read, and began the fascinating story.
He read beautifully, and Elizathetb
He read beautifully, and Elizahetb was glad to forget ber unquitet reflections in the melody of him voice and the rare interest of the tale. Mallen voice and the rare interest of the tale. Mallen himself waa in a mood to be comfortable and at rest.
The brightness of the sunset was flooding the
The brightness of the aunset was flooding the waters before either of them looked up again. Then Mellsn Eaid:
"Those careless creatures ought to come hack
it grows chilly on the water as evening comes on,
and the least thing givea Elsic cold."
Elizabeth shaded ber eyes with
"Thed over the bay.
"They are coming," she said " "I can see the Mellen looked in the direction to whicb she pointed, and asw the boat rounding a polint of hand nd making swittly up the hay.
" Tom is as etrong as said, watching the little skiff as itfairly Hew th," he the water under the impulee of his arm, and side the in ward rush of the tide. They remnined watchingittil nougb for them to distinguieb itsie's aphed nest pings. Suddenly Mellen said:
"She is rocking the boat dreadfully! She i Elizabeth looked crazy to run such riaks! !" Elizabeth looked and sswElnie erect in the skiff, her shawl floating out around her, rocking the boat to and fro with reckless foree, while she could see to and fro with reckless foree, while she could see hy Tom's gestures that he was vainly expostulating hy Tom's gestures that he was y witb her upon her imprudence.
Mellen went into pre.
Mellen went into the hall and out on the veranda, with some yague ide of toring imprudent girl's attention by signals; but the the was far off, and abe too much ocgupied to obkiff Whem.
Eliza
Elizabeth threw down her work and followed him out, standing by his side in silent apprebension. "Shs is mad!" exclaimed Mellen, "ahsolutely brta.etex. J. A. rawlines, v. s. A.-see page 23.

GEN. GEORGE SYKES, U. S. A. In the list of officers of the regular army few numes will be more tooorably mentioned than his name is noc enoircled with the factitions halo of momentary popalarity. He is every fach $e$ eoldier, an officer thorouphly versed in the ecience of war; brsve, encrgetic erd capable. He was horn in Mary land in 1 R23, graテ̃uated ot Weat Point in 1842 , and whe there appolnted Brevet 2d Lteutenant in the 3 d infontry. He waa made 1 is Ilisutena-t jn' Sept. 18t 6 , Daring the wer be was Ashistant Commiseary of Twiggs. In sept.
commencement oftilitie by bye the new Confedersey
he wes commissioned Maior of the $14 t$ infantry,

 Whioh wan snoh hifh renown. He inally succeeded to the command of the corps, enjoying the confidenco nf all. of all.
-
THE SINKING OF THE CELEBRATED STEAMER PETERHOFF.
Thes Peterhoff was a blockade-runner, the capture of whioh enabled our trenantlagtie colssins to give ags a charming reprctentation or till examinatiou of her cargo and proceed-

RLG. -GEN GEORCE SYCTO, D, A A mge in the Englisb Bankruptsy Courts Ieft uot a par tlole of doabt on the subject. Aflor her condemnation the Peterhoff was purchased by Government, but Wse run into and bunk by the U. S. steamer Miton-tieello of WFimington, N. C., on the morning of the ticello of Wilmington, N. C, on the morning of the Eth inst., at 5 A , M. The Monticello left the nonth enpietance, there were no livee loet. It was juat bu fora daybrikin hind hizy on the water, so that it was bard to tell what dietance the two vebeele were spart hard to thel what dietance the two veb when last keen.

THE MUSIC-STAND IN THE BALL OF THE 2D ARMY CORPS.
The Army Artists, even with poor material, can produce flie effcete, ne all will admitt who examine the elketoh sent by our Artiet of tho manalestand ot the ball recently given in the $2 d$ Army Korse. The filge, end oanoon oveo, here play their Cort in decoration, se et New Orlcana the litter

ester inte the elans of manaleal instramonts, but mike hin headgarters at the Aryy of the Potomac, bbe bail and the dance will give placo to the Elcran reitities of war.

A nsoibctrd wife declares that she and her busband rro like two miles tomes, becabee suy that he sod flie uro never toce together.
Wesbould like to hear the sentiments of of the shnolmaster's wife on band being 50 offen sbroud.
Wrich side of a horse inveriahly has the moat halr any The outence.
Waved to know the exact losth of a rope ubed when $n$ man is " thed to time.,

Carriages.

Apprentices Wanted TOLEARN ENGLIAVING An opportunity yo ffored for a lumtred nnmber of

Inatest Invention

 IN GOTM FPHNS JUST OUT, After years of patient research ft his been demon.strated now, for tac first time, that a genuine Gold strate with Irodium or Diationd point; and poesesenging

 ing them Gold, We know that ouri is the only Solid Oold and Occuine Diamondidounted Elastio Pcn in One Ood and
tbe marke
pricen.

Trade Prices, ver Dozen. No. 2 Medlum Pun....
No. 3.
Nertre Pen.....
 Eample Pens. No. 2 Medlam Pen...

 Pea made Wo wil send theno Peas to any addrens in the
 our rlak. GEORGE A. ELY & CO. GEORGE A. ALDTRers, Sole Man, M. M.
No. 181 Broadwh, N. Y.
 438-4

Zaker's Bheumatic Salm,
BAKER'S FEVRR COOLER, BAKERNS COUGH MIXTURE,
BAKERS CROUP ALLEYLATO BAKER'S CROUP ALYEVVATOR, BAEER/ Whit Price g1 per bottie each Also Fourth avene.
recelpt of price.

Stereoscopic Views and Cartes de Visite

Whiskers! Whiskers! MY ONGUENT will foree them to grow on the money refunded. Priee 25 cents, or six paekafes for

Crays Patont  Molded Oollars

Suvo Low been before the publio for noarly a year.
Thy ore univereally pronounced the neatest nud best filting eullire extant.
Thw upper edge po
 The ervat causee un puckers on the finsido of the turn-dow nolle-they sre $A S$ MoomH INSIDE
AS OUTSIDE-add therefore perfectiy rree and caky the Grotic sollar has a emooth and evenly tuluhed

 avilog loo culh; aizo in smanler ones of 10 oask- tho Inter a wry hatoy packago ior trave Novy criveru
NFP EVERY COLLAR is stamped

Grny* Patent Molded Collar. 1 old by alldelere in Men's Furnishing Good.j. T Trude eupphed by
HATCH, TOHNSON & CO

FURNTTURE,

 WHOLISALE AND RETAIL, BY ## DEGBAAF  &

(EORMERLY H. P. DEGRAAF)

No 37 Bowery, New York.
This estahlishn" ut is six storeys in height, and extends 242 feet throngh to No. 60 Crystie Sire-luaking it one of the largest Furniture Hoases in the United States. They are F- cpared to offer great indncements to the Wholesale Trade for Time or Cash.

Their stock consists, in part, of SOSYWOOD BARKOR AND CEAMEBR FURNHTURM; Mahogany and Walnut Parior and Chambsr Furniturs;
Also, CANE and WOOD SEAT work, all qualities; HALR, HUSK and SPRING MATTRESSES, a large stock; in Sets, from $$ 22$ to 8100 .
TU'CKER'S NEW STYLE PATENT SPRING BED The best as well as the cheapest of any in use. Retall price, 82 each. Thefr facilities for manufacturing defy competition. All work guaranteed as represented.

OVER ALL COMPETITORS.

OFIIOIREIRING dC SOINS,

Grand, Square and Upright Pianofortes.

Warer ooms, 6 Broadway, N. צ.,
246 Washington Street, Boston

25 Cent Lsgal Tender Carcular. $$ 15$ A DAY AND A WATCH FREE!
 ent, ns we waint every pertaoe to have es circulve. it astonifhes everybody; defios compettion, and utetripp compctitors. WEIR & U.., 505 Chensat St., Phila.

HOSTETTTER'S Cywiagrayzid Stomach bituers

Is HEAI/RH WORTH HAVINO \% If it is, pro teet it. It is a jewel at easily lost as virtue, ad in and ome onty. This po aerfui prevontive ic HOS TETTER'S CELEBRATED SUMACH BITTERS compoupd of tbe purist stimaniant ever mam heturid with the mont eefiective tonics, atterntive rauted from the botanical kingdom. Convalescenth. ungoid and fecble from reccot sickness, will find tb to the taste and eminently invilgorating. No other t does not excite or fatter the nerve日, or occasion ny undue arterina setion; but at onco sootbes an afrengthens the nervous bystem and ${ }^{+}$the anime Sold by all Druggista and Fumily Grocera. Hostetter's Stomaoh Bitters, Derot kos New York, 476 Broadway.

S75. WONTHI:- 1 want to hire Agente in every

Whe Groat Mioney-Malting article:

ARMY. The maderagned has AND OUT The exolualio tright of manuatacture, and the invontor or Eake and record of gallant acte. Also,
Ca
Cavalry and artillery Pins!
 Tbe above cuta repreoent perfectly the Cavalry and Artiliery Pins
we hare beon getting airy and Artaliery Ping
we have beon getting up in Silver to answer the nrgent inquiries from day to day, from from dmportant hrancl of the serviece so appropri Airy and Artillery Prime are Enamelled for the Divisions in

and slue,

Flauro will be charged,
AGENTS will be furashed at Six Dollars per dozen. Mbe Emblemens are rateed, and the Fur abo tho thiokness of a two ehilling plece.

UNITED STATES NAVY

Monitor Pinse
Tbe cut is a correct
copy of the Monitor
Plie got ap in Slver.

$$ 10$ AGRNTS $$ 10$ Ald Dalere Bomethig, Nuw, Burgiar Proot

W. FORSYTH & CO.,

 WATCHES, CHAINS, JEWELRY, ETC Valued at $$ 300,000$ !

 The artioles in thio stock of Jewelry aro of the neat.

 Corressondene promptly answered, AGENTS Fented in every town and regiment. We allow them ten ecnto on every Certilesto provided cular. Addreas

${ }^{\text {- }}$ Psychomancy."-How eitber borr may fasdiate and gain the love, conildonce, anfeetlon and goo will of any person they choove, inetantly. This smplo mental ncquirement an can posseas, securing certatn snecess in love, marrinyc, eto, fren by mail for 25 ctr.,
 - in extriordinary book, of grest Interest; Adird edt tion; over 100, ,000 coples siready sold. Adid "NGonstachos and Whiskers in 42. Davs" " Dont ber fumbexglained in the BOOKK of WONDERR

Ten years in the Business. Patrons counted by thousands in every State of the Union.

A Premium for all! Evans' Ne't Enterprise, 1864, $500,000 worth of Kiew Goods, ## consisting or

Gola and Silver Watches, Jevielry, Vest and Guard Chains, Gold Pens, Pencils, Lockets, Medallions, Setts of Jewelry, &ze., sce., together with a large line of goods esperiudly adapted to the wants of oner Soldiers, Army and Navy, so be sold in lots at One Dollar Each, and not to be paid for until you know what you are to receive. Premium Orders for above goods, sent to any address, on receipt of 10 cents.
send your orders to
G. G. E VANS, Publisher, 630 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. of Books with Price Eists of Photograph Card Pictures and Albums,

Address,
G. G. EVANS,

Philadelphia, Pa.
Straight Eair MKade Wavy.

J. E. Winslow & Co.

 The Greatent Opportunity Bliver Orfered teSooure Good Jewellery at Low Prices. 100,000 Watches, Ohains, Bets of Jewrellory, Gole Gents' Pine, Sleere Buttone getnds, &ieq, Ecy
VOOrth $500,000: To be oui tor OYE DoLLAR accit titiout reard

VETERAN:

Vyrzran

 SOTDIERSWe aro row propured to

 DROWNE & Moore
Manuficturting Jeweilers Manuftecturing Jeweilers, 2008 Brondmay N.Y.
soid

Solld 18 k.Gold, 30 o0.
Oonjuring MIade Fusy.-Containfing fould dir

Broler's Stock of uaredoemed goode for sale nd viunhe good worth from seent to so eaeh, Mivance what artite the wili recelve, giving ade-

ne: One of the NTKost Interesting Rebel

Beantr--HUNTS WHITE LIQUID ENAAA. EL, prepared hy Madame Raohel Levecroon, Me eelee and imparta a frechipeas mad transparenoy to the con

J. G. sorivis.

MEROHANT TAILOR Has on hand a splendid asbortment of French, Eng. Whioh he is prepared to make np in the most foshion

Bo Fou Want Kuxuriant Whiskers or MKoustaches? MY OXGUENT Wil fore them to grow hayly

S60 $A$ MONTBI 1 , mant Agento at aso month,

GOLD! GOLD! GOLD
30,000 WATCHES, CHAINS, &e. WORTH $$ 150,000$,
To be soid for Ono Dolar eeah, without regara to value, and not to be pald for unti, pou know what you arse to get. Send 20 oentit fur a Certinleato what whill inform yon what in everv Regiment nand Tow in the Coontry: Six Cortilicates can he ordered for 91 43744

Philadelphia Package stationery.
ABMSTRONG s SHEPERD having hooght out No. 34 South Third Street, offer to Traveling ${ }^{\text {and }}$ aid

sir. B. C. Perry,
DERMATOLOGIST,
No. 40 BOND STREET NEW YORK, (Eormely of No. 29 WInter Treats succeessfully ail Dtsenpes or the Bealp, Loos or Hair and injurp to the texture or Color of the 8ition. ea-no oharge for consuliatioin, qa For partloulars address, buclosing $\begin{gathered}\text { Dramp. C. PERR } \\ \text { D. }\end{gathered}$

Hoyt's Eiawatha Eair Restorative.
 oior and natara appeannoco, to prevent it from foll invilusite dressing for whifers HOYTS MINEHAHA GATR GLOSS,

 Jorywher

Swords, Sashes, Belts.
 Do You Want to get MKarried?

4
 State or Kentuelcy.............1,368 Genernl Ripley... 1,368
760
150 220 Capt. Buck's Co., Chilitioche, $0^{220}$ Capt. Child ${ }^{\text {C }}$ " Athens, m . Capt. Whybaokta Oge, Rolla, Ma. Capt. MeGeets
Capt. Hunter'a
"s Lexington,
Sedelin, Mo. Capt. Oldst " Perryuvilie, Ind. DRAR SIR-The Rinces (33) were put to a savere INFANTRY COMPANIES. They were to gre in Noor it the command "Fire, Wo were our. antry, Distance 300 yardd we hit the target 45 fimes out of $\mathbf{1 0 0}$ shots. The greite at number of hits
 M. s. GRANT, To M
$433-41$

Mxcelsior Music-Book.-For Violim, Flutc

The Confessions and Bxperience of an Invalid.

GREAT TRIUMPH, WYing

Fhae Gold Plete, 1150,

Solid Silver, ta.

 of Je wer, stud And Bnttons, and ecreythinf in the Joweiry He. One Certifo
S. IVI Waxd & CO., MKanufacturing Jewellers,

AMERICAN CARD COMPANY'S NEW UNION PLAYING CARDS. National zmblems.

Colonel of Eagles. The outta are EAGLEs, Shirlos, STARs and PLugs, Tunen; Major for Jack. Cards aro the frat and only gennin $\Delta$ merlican Cards ever produced, and ais thy tueme the Leuding Card in the Amcrican market

 Two Sumple Packs, in Card Cases, sezt, posttpaid an recoiptof 81. Adarees AMICAN CARD COMPANY, AMERICAN BILLIARD TABLE

 $434-7$ PHELAN $&$ COLLENDER,

Matrimonve-Why overy man shoulà merry Medical Adviner, by WM. EARL, M. D, 200 pages: Malled In benled envelopo on recoul drees 88 White 8 trreet, New York.
Wheslsr & Wilson's Highest Prsmium

flock

Sowina MLachiness $538-470$ No. 605 BROADWAY, N. Y.

 Watches for the ARMY.  Leatich, Foh, 21 ,

WAGIC THME OBSERVERS ! THE PERFECTION OF MECHANTSMI

A MOST PLEASING NOVELTY One of theprotilest, mosit convenient, and deaddecaly the beat and oheapest tume pleoe for yeneral and res Hahle nese erer offored. It base withtrit it, and donnoectod with its mumhinery, itt own windrig, guttachment

Silver WVatches TIRST-OVASS HUNTLNG TLWEFIROE

UNIVERSAL APPROBATIONI Au Imitation so faditless that It ona hardy he detetead of two motala, the onter one irrat qnality Ster IIIng SII:

 | resembunanc |
| :--- |
| existcnoe | Itho gele of these Watches in the army is a soorree hnefnces tset.

 duost prompt and falthral attentlon.

Soldiers and Mivervbody: A great Book for youl Over 2,000 Things. Worth curc Packegen.

Royal Eavana Lottery.
30 par cent. Premumm pald for prizes. Mrornmeso

THE BEST LITERATURE IFP By the Best American Writera 50 Is found each menth in the

Atlantic Monthly

$47 AMIERICAN $$ 47$ IEVERS.

Trade Mark, P. S. Bartlett, Waltham, Mass., Frull Jewelled, WARRANTED, in 4 oz . coin silver hunting case, gold joints, fancy push pin, for $$ 47 \%$.

METALLIC AMERICANINITIT COLLAB

A Reantirul Hicroscop for 30 Gts.

GOLD PENS AND GASES.

 Tha Celecrated RRAIG MICROSCOPE,

250 Raro Receipts. elle whint to Do, And Howsto Do

 J. W. GVERETF & CO. MHI ferward to any edieg on reelpt of order,

STATESMEN, DIVTNES, ACTORS
ARTIETS,
FOTRORS
 J. W. LVERETMT
Bend fer dirouliar.

Amorican, Emiss and Hingligh Watches

Great Chance to ivale Mroney I $$ 650,000$ of Watches, Jewelyy, &c. Glven anny with our STATIONERY PRIZE Every AGENT purchaviar 100 PACKETS will $r$.

Wervors Diseases and Phyalcal Dobilt   N. Howit Ab

To Conswaptives!

 Trie Advertieer, beving veen reeterea to ne thin

BRIDCEWATER PAND

Greund in on in six drah shados for ViEas, Cot

Agonts Wanted (Male or Female). Addrew

Mra. Porpra's Cuarrix (te Subseription Committee of Sanitary Fair)-' Yes. ladies, 1 have suc-

FINE WATCH FREE! Soldier's Money Belts!

And $$ 15$ Per Day MIade Zlasy,

 WBe are the mole mandfaturer of the GREA Sach of whith we have ceppy. Fer Aaseruing to haw

 origthal Las

Use of Tobacco, in all forme, corky and

For Veteran, Army Corps, Cavalry and Battle Pins,
Send to Headquartere,

INFANTRY PIN FOR THE SOLDIER
In eofn silver, for si 50, necinulug the Engraving ef

 -70 Constandly on hana.
Munro's 10 Cenṫ Publications. novel No. 9 .
THE TURTLE CATCHER THE TIGER OF THE OCEAN.

By mion Conatollano

gEND YOR

Oscanyan's Oriental Album,
 Beanter Cutto omiy 93 . scant free, by mall, on re ceipt of price, by | Beipt of price, by |

| :--- |
| cent |

THE HOWARD MONEY BELT,

HOWARD BELT CO., ${ }_{43 \sigma}$ Bronway,
O. 甘V. FiFRTMNOEI,

607 Broadway, N. ¥. GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHING GOODS.

Corns and Bunyons.

 Yotid. Mailed everywher for 25 conts. Addree applea or other fruit, in 12 heura, The Recipe enat

Manro's Ten Cent Publications.

Nevel Ne. ©-THE INDIAN SLAYER. Nething

DISTITHED DYW  SKIN AND CONIPEIXION.

 Pilnalpal Depot, 779 Breedway, N. Y.
60 FIRST PRJMKIUNTS in 1863

crover a baxines

 CELEn官ATED ELASTLC ATTICH Sevring Miachines Were awarded the Highest Promiume over all compotizors ad Indinn, Michigan, Iilinols, Kentucky, Peuneylvanin, Ohio and Oregon, and in overy reapectangInstitute and Connty Fair held in 1803 .
tastiute and Connty Fur held inodway, N. Y.
Salesrocms, 495 Broadw

©F7 ARMI whator. $$ 7$

 $$ 15$ Europeah Timekeeper $$ 15$ A BUPERB "ExTRA DOUBLE GOLD-PLATED Agraved or engine:turned Honting Case Wateh-

Exact Imitation of a $$ 100$ Gold Watch used by the British Army Officers. Dent free, hy mad, in Elegact Merocco Case, tor oniy $$ 15$,

warrantod, 918.  $\$ 30$  ${ }_{\substack{\text { American } \\ \text { torext }}} \mathbf{3 0}$

 In 4 ez. Celm Silver Fontiog Cases, Full Ruhy Jewel-let. Goid Johits, Mnglo Epring, wilh Frill Guaranke lefl, goind
only 830
Roal
Real English Duplex Stop Watch,

Good Watche , fer Army nse, of ell deeariptions.
We are oole unperters of the abemy etple ef Furepeail

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE BYMAIL or EXPRESS

Ready-Mrade or to Meseure, at $$ 33, $ 39, $ 45$ por doz
 Printed dirsatiens fer self wegarement, Wit tof orkea FRENCH FLANNAEL OVERSHIRTS, ©3, 38 Fic nid of 60 enoh-ail sut one yard long. A single Shirt sent hy mail on recelpt of the capli ind es eente pootnge for each shirt. Neek also.
Send the Blize of y eur Ne.

STHFWCOLLARS

Having tae ap arince and comiort of Hon, have
 In one minnte with a spenge,
 Price 76 centa erch; pent hy port
Union on the recelpt of 0 oenth.
WHOLESALE AND EETAIL. WHOLESALE AND BETAIL. S. Wa ETM TVAR1B,

No. 387 Broadway, New York.
IVOFY Jevelwy:

 Peirl mital Buttons.......81 ien vilety ou

EMIINDS OF SOLDIERSI

A LL Articlos for Soldiers at Baitimere,

AMPS PARRISH, 323 Cinal Btreot, New Yort.
Shalte, Onguento-quarnuita to procalate e fa
 Truy, $\mathrm{F}, \frac{\mathrm{Y}}{}$

FRANK LESLIE'S HHIUSTMRAMYD

Barnum's Amarioan Museum.

Oscanyan's Oriental Album,

FRask LESLIE's
LLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.

terms for this paper.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISING.

Tae Pablikher of Flane Lealin's IllusTiATED PARKn invitur hie preecnt oontributore sid oulted to tit columner, ase will so iddens for comio evectahss on anbjects of the day.

Summary of the Week.

 viranas.Gen. Grant has assumed command of the Army of the Potomac, and the first step of to three corps, the 2 d , 5 th and 6 th. The 3 d corps is transferred to the 2 d . The 1st is consolidated with the 5 th. This throws out the 1st corps, and Gens. Freneb, Pleasanof the 1st corps, and Gens. Mreneb, Pleasaeton, Kenly, Spinola and Mereditb. Sykes, ton, Kenly, spmola the Potomac so long, is sent West; Pleassanton goes to Missouri.
On the 21st 13 gnerillas were taken and on expedition recently into Matthews an expedition recently into Matinews county, and returned safely, bringing in orses, cattle, mules and contraband A whole company of the 3d Virginla cavalry were captured at Wingdeld, on the Kanawha, by the rebels, who nearly took the steamer Victress, having on board Major Rucksr, with Important dlspatcbes.

missieatrpi.

Ths recent ifght at Yazoo clty, was one of the best contested and most desperate of tbe hlinois, 'Col. Schofeld, Col. Costes's 8 tb Louisiana (colored), and 200 of the 1st (colored). The enemy had eight regiments under Cols. Ross and Richardson. The fight commenced at eight A. M., and lasted nearly 11th Illinois were surrounded in a small fort hot and shell was poured npon them all day, when a summons was sent to them to surrender. They replied they didn't know the Union force was in town, where they were met by the enemy, who bad gained cover of some of the buildings. The contest raged for three hours, when the enemy retired. Two gumboats wers in the river, but could render little assistance.

tennessses.

The rebel Gens. Hughes, Ferguson and Short are nortb of the Cumberland, and on the 16th attacked one of Hobson's camp near Bennett's ferry, but were repulsed.
Some skirmishing partiss of the 91st
Indiana eaptured a number of rehel pickets Indiana eaptured a number of rehel pickets on tbe Virginia road, including the notorious on tbe Virginia road, includi guerillas, Green and Esther.
On tbe 16 th an engagement took place near Fort Pillow, in which 600 of our troops were attaeked by 1,000 rebels, whom they repulsed with loss. with loss.
Grlerson is hunting up the rebsis near Memphis.

Four handred of the 7 th Tsnnessee cavalry wers captured by 2,000 rebels at Union

bouth onrolina.

The enemy have mounted six rifle gans on the casemates of Fort Sumter, bearing on the cbannel.
On the 18th the rebels made an attack on Seabrook, but were successfolly repulsed, their only triumph being the capture of a picket-boat.
kentucey.
The rebel Gen. W. E. Jones has entered Kentucky by Fulkerson's gap, wlth 1,800 men.
On the 25 th March Gen. Forrest, whose movements wsre long threatening, attacked Paducah, and captured t . The U. S. troops under Col. Hicks, 800 strong, held a fort below the city, and repulsed the rebels, with loss. The inhabitants fied, aud tbe rebels bsgan to burn and destroy the clty. Much is ruined, Jncluding the natine railway and the wharf-boat Arizona. Two Union gunboats came up and drove the rebels out wilh loss. We bad 12 killed, 40 wounded; the rebels, 150 to 300 killed, includiag Gen.
Thompson. The rebel wounded amount Thompson. The rebel wounded amount to over 1,000 . At the last accounts Forrest over 1,000 . At the last accounts Forre was near Mayfleld, marching on Clinton.
The rebels have also visited Hickman, whence they fired on a steamer.
louishana.
An expedition starting from Vicksburg on the sth, under Brig.-Gen. Andrew Jackson Smith, outgeneraled Gen. Diek Taylor, and assault, capturing 325 prisoners and a number assanit, capturing 325 prisoners and a number of exeellent cannon. This opens thes river of exeellent can to Shreveport
Union the capture of Fort de Russy the Union foree on the Teche advanced and occupied Alexandria and New Theria on the 15 th. Gen. Lee, Chief of Cavalry, holds the latter place, having driven the rebels across Vermillion Bayou.
The Nyanza, Lleat. Washburn, went up to Butte La Rose and dispersed a guerilla band, capturing and destroying their camp. pexas.
Two tbousand refugees and deserters have come into Brownsville. A party of 150 rebel soldiers deserted, and 300 were sent in kept on for Brownsville.
indlun affairs.
Major H. D. Wallsm, 7 tb U. S. infantry, has racently defeated the Navajoes in two successive engagements, kiling capturing 30 , in one of the actions.

The San Jacinto, recently captured blockade-runner with 132 beles of cotton.

CONGRESS.

IN the Senate, on ths 21st March, the day wis coneamed by deau1tory dehating on mportant eubjects of a routlue obarnatar.
In the Houee, the amendment of the Senate, in creaslog the aflowance to West Point eadets to 840 ourred In. Mr. Kerman and M(r. Stevens bad e spirited debete on tbe subject of paying the expenses of troope to tbeir varlons States to vote for Rcpubllean candi-

In tbe Seaste, on the 22d, Mrr. Mark enlled ap tbe bill anscuding the act relating to forelgn coins and coinage reightof the cent sball be 48 gralng , und tbat it thall be composed of ss per oent of copper and o per cent. of zipe or tin. It niso providee for the colusge of two ont pieces of the eame composition. Mr. Wiuly then procceded to eddiress the Senate Et leigth on the hlil to promote enistmeate and children of thave recruits, freeing in in oppoeitlon to Mr. Sumnerr' hill to repest the Fagitive Slave law, In the Houne, Mr. Henry Winter Devis called up the bilil, reported by the Soleot Committec on the Re-

 In relathon to descrters whe woo takoup und wormly diacused without nay ressilt. After some unim. portont busineos the senate adjourned.
In the House, Mr. Kernan sered
In the House, Mr. Kernan niked leave to futrodnce

- rasolution for a
a

tben ronat
nid Barit
bil.
no necer.
The 460 .
Que uroustion war terminated hyy the explration of

 In the Hobsc, ibe bil providing for the in atruotion

 Polat rendering eny fricrease of tho uumber ino omib.
ibbe. The Hone then Went tno Commattee of tbe Whole on the bll amendatory of the Nollonal Bunk

 In the Senzte on the 25th, the Viec. President mub mittod a oommuntortion from the President, nelonin a report from the e eoretary of State, in relation to th
cetablinbmeat of emonaronial govermeutin Centri

 Academy bill, and then Bdjouraed nntll Mondisy,
In the House, Mr. Wakhbure, foom tbe Coomitt bhangray of names et vessels. The Honse puesel Tbere wan no sealon in the Scnats on tbe $20 t \mathrm{~b}$, aud In the Honse the time whe consumed by several eper che on the rebellion.

BOOK NOTICES.

Grn. Grant and his Campaygns. By Julian E. Larke, Mlueiratad by a portralt on Bteel and four hattle vlewe. Now York: Darhy

 roceivo, wide droulation, THM N ORTHERN MONTHLX. A Magazine of Litaritare, Civil and Miltary Aifars, March, Litariture, Civill oud Milltary Affuirs. March, 1SCA
 tion of & State wbich produced A Longferl shall elways aee the numbers with pleasure.

TOWN TOPIOS.

The sensation of the wesk has been ths opaning," openles of sensation striling home o? wonder. For the benefit of ouoh we explain that Tbursdey, the 2tth et Marob, wos "opening day," and that mpon that date the long nursed tres sures or fachionshlicmodistes were exposed to the gaze and com-petillon of ouruelves tbe people, and tbe laden-blese
'em-know what they are to be allowed to wear the next reason.
In company with a pair of the fair, we andertook all cash opane baif a follar for emnilone tire, and econdly, by ontering o nolemn protest against delag auything more than look at boanets. How etrioti, euce in tbe memory of a prir of eyes that "opened pon ue at tbe very ongiring braln, thet we moon found chat lece aud tolle, flowers, silks and ribbons, hright oubly mixed, tbat to this moment wo have boen un-
 each, and that something is very lovoly, wbether
ethe Dounete or not, wo ore unsble to Ey.
Oht Modame Fellere of boumete.
From the cloud we oome down by a rapld run
o tho stern solldities of earth, and diseuss a mattor to eto etern soilitice of earth, and digeubs a matter that it apenting o on with a fearful earneatnees whether they bo rloh or poor. We mear our daily

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.

Domestic- In oonequense of the saarcity of alceis new ing is to be hanued or the valac of wo oenta, It will be composed of copper, sino and tlin. - There were 3,617 emit grmente lauded at thle por Tbere ie $\begin{aligned} & \text { con } \\ & \text { of } $ 53,58886 .\end{aligned}$ readway and run a line or Green to the Central Part.
Gov. Erank, of Colorad, has ispued a procia.
nation ouling a Constitational Convention for the dret Mondoy in May,

 nemination by the republicnn Convention of The Ualon Stete Courention of New York, to seleet delegaten to the Natlonal Convention, ito bo helo on the 25 th of of May. Ench Aubembly district will be entlled to threo delegates.

 devourlig sttentions of B Bton. Among the remark=ecke ago the tenor was aflictud, socoriing to New York erfies, with a general breaklog down -

 "To THE FIRst MEN OF Boston:
"Goutu-Three weoke ago I wai
 of the hesd, weokuess in the knecs, cold peraspirotion ind lous of reputatlon In New York. I resolved to bat time found myself fu the full poseenslicn of ing ffot, my B ant, my B nitaral and my ut de poitrine rpsrienced no dizzteded reputation ara a magolicent rapidy My onee extended renor. My ent wind of your noble Commen. Belleve me, strs, P. Briesoly,",
ours gretefully,

 2bbut will be a marked event.
Ne स York ls to baye twis

f

$\qquad$

 writen by the fiowery cil
 submitted to boing piaces lifbect hy Gen. Carfeto.

 Prebident ficcl
Gen, Fremonts.

 Cormantal

Theh The Mocesa. Monitore have heee launched it Botton

that Jefiecent priviste letters from Ricbmond heport

heincidont\% and offonces. $A n$ inguest win

 mituence of 119 l vardict of $t 100$.

 been oug out.
 haro beren burreed, and the rallroud depot and odjoin
ing buildinen set on fire.

 -Tbe Autro. Pruasisu troopa havo advanced

 Inst. Ane offociol notification etates that from tbo 115b, the Dinee.

 anve mede.
Th Princearritening of the linfot gon of the Prinne

 air wearcre of crinonive now dylido tbeir eusceptibl Washingosidoratalo merriment hos been created the thino

THE BRIDAL MORN

by ade vroomas.
Lo! in the East the redinat mom And down among the golden oonn

The larke wake one by one.
Sweet twitterisgs hreak the misty oalm, And fairer far than desert palm.

To Arab's eager view,
Upepring the liliee, tall and pole,
To hlush at sight of fovera' eyce And nmorous trills from yonder rale Stall laud them to the nkle I watch thy dawning haze Sweet day! I watch thy dawning haze
With rapture's sweet prophetia zest Oh! goiden eun, thy dying rays Will see rue doully hiest.

My lily waits, vith bluohing oheek,
For her dear lover's ardent eyes; For her dear lover's ardent cy6s
And fairer far thap Hily meek, She etands in hridal guise. She comes, with gll her hopes and fe And hrings her wealth of smiles and tear
To dower the faithfol wile.

Sweet dawn and dsy! Sweet noon and night Sweet tars that deck the bridel tiky That waity on constancy.

For us no more shall love's olarms Ruise tumults in each happy hreast,
But havened in each other We find our perfect rest.

HON. E. W. GANTT, Lately a mrigndier-Goueral in the Rebel

Hon. E. W. Gantt was born in Hickman county, Tean., on the 17 th March, 1832 . His ancestors were from England, and settled in Priuce Georgets county, Maryland, heing amoug tbe firs ettlers in that State. His fnther wne en oficer in the ginerally employed, and oren thit it treonentis searaliy cmploged, and oren this tia frequnaty But, in spite of the well-known and terrible cbo irs plenty of than dreaded king of the water, ther who not heeltate to moet and encountor him in his own element. Thone engaging in it are weil awse of tbe contert in which oue of naman ensmy tarns hia heck to deo, that moment iv bie last.

About
 lanoro, or inbibltant of the plais. When a dosan Wise of our comrende enstion, word the poinched na that that the truck our wecrled borseato a rapid haste. We at onco hich it was nece the bankik of a atresmo of farge bize Serryman Was at a conasidernble Unfortunately, thi "I w1ll not wait for him M he wald n ges in reaching nc, whlie my poor wife la dylng.
will swim torona, WIA swim sorona.

He did not reply, bnt remored montr. I promieed to tatke them with me, and be ioated bebind him. Havigg prepared hia animal for the waist, after which he placed hin degger betwoon his teeth, and plunged into the river. His fuithful beaet instantly followed, and the two :wam to he Lhanero keeping elightly in advanice, no that. ble arooodlle knows fall well whicb is the dointle man, stiacking the horse cuily when makes for th iffered.
IThe Llanero certainly wes not more than courth the diatance across tbe river when wo both sw the moniter come to tbe urface, near the oentro, The Llsnero onught sight of the erocodile at the ami moment that we did, and witt hile daggor nill the twn oombatants awiftily appronched, wa watched them with psinful aud bresthless interet, The man fally eware that he could siay the monster onily by atabing him benoath tbe armplt, and kracwing to tbat this could not be soocomplifhed unless he mad compel tho orocodillo to do thle. We ow tho Llouero, when of fev ysrde distant t npon the saddie, at the same time taklug hile dagge in Dle right hand; When six feet or so digtant, and on de into the air, no thut it bid falr to fall directly npouthe head of the ose ilant. Supponing it some covete norael, the orooodite mado e lesp fir out of tho water, and caught it in ble extanded jawn. Thie wis be critical moment; quick ss lightning, the Llanero A eparmodio grunt, a lond splank, o few stranglee, and the crocodile ank to the hottom of the river and the crocodile ever to riee again
Filled with odmiration at thiu achievement, th forryman Insited upon the Llancro entering him arryman insiated upon the Llanero entering hi anoo, and atasing to dinner with bima; but tho brav fillow refused all aeedetazoe, and npon reaching the opposite olde, mounted his boree, sad bastene onword, 1 will oniy oud, thut the wifo of the gallant man wae found much better than he had reason to ex. peot, mad eventuaily recovered from her illnesis.
ancrent Estates.-We find the following facts in a recent =umber of an engilith periodienl. Th interenting and ofteo-quoted statemento made som time sinoe hy Lord Puimerston, respeoting the unil an Eccentric Physician.--A friend re latee for the Agriculturist the fotlowing aneodota of In Rhodo Irland. Ho had A Tray of doing thingo ail his own, and nn ono could tell heforehand 4 whiro $h$ vould come out." On one ocesslon be was colled t

Sundry people gain a livelihood by writing on gleap. Truly they must indulge in a very poliehe:
etye writing We wonder whether they evor
make a olip of the pon?
Gentle Reider.-If you have a remarkably atrong conatitalion, yon moy thoread following:
"You're always trying to make game of oople, suds sin't ahla to co it," as the sparrow said w poople, and ain ${ }^{n t}$ ahla to the cockney sporteman.

FIGHT WITH A CROCODILE.

I NEED scarcely tell my readers that the near dreaded inhabitant of tho water is is in cocodile atthack. In he stoopa to sil a dipper, the buhbling cound is sure to draw balf a dozen arooodiles at once to his. To osospe the dapger tous incurred, calabseh hnwl, with a handfe aix feot in laogth, is

Two.

by etta w. prercr.

Mellow and faint the lamplight fails Across the pllows of misty lace, And, cleaving the curtain's snow-white fold, Lazily droop the tassels of gold
Over Mand's siecplng face. Over Mand's siecplng face.
Here is a raby, as red as hood, Flung from her tresses an hour ago; And her lilles crusbed on the tufted floor, With the spice of the tropics runningro'er Their heautifal cups of snow.

Hist! and the ballroom odors fall From ber satios there in still repose And the slumherous air is haunted yet By a tender scent of mignonette And the musk of a dying rose.

The wind goes sobbing across the pane, The dead vines rattle upon the wall; Do you hear it, as you lie here, sweet, Stllly and white from head to feet, Dreaming ahout the ball?
Oh, the grand saloon, with its thousaud ligits, The sweeping of silk through the open doors:
And the dancers' feet, as they flashed along, Tinkling to measures of mystic song, Over the marbie floors.
That subtie perfume of gorgeous flowers, Stirring the warm air, faint and slow; And the lustres that burned through the purpie dusk Ot the dim recesscs, o'errun with musk From the Indian urns helow.

The soft, clear call of the dreamy lutes, And oh, a voice that was sweeter sillit Filuing her ear, and the face bent near, With the tropical dark of the eyes so dear; In a pause of the gay quadrílc.

And the bold lips, redder than Southern wine Dropping their lovewords downlike pearls And the heautifal shame, the sweet surprise In the glow of her cheek, in the dusk of ber Througb her r falls of yellow curls.
Ob , what a night of nights for you, Dainty Maud, 'mid the laces fine 1 Sleep, and dream of that splendid room, and life kissed into its Maytime bloom By the lips like Southern wine!

Sieep, and dream of that spiendid room, Not of this dark, or its cold, sad tears; For an hour ago you won, my sweet, The crown of your womanhood all complete Beneath tbose chandeliers.

The curtain is down across the way, But a face at tbe lattice, still and white, Is looking abroad on the steady heat of wind and rain up the lonesome street: She will not sleep to-night.

But, by the goid in her half-ioosed hair, She has danced at the revel, too, I trow; Lips so pallid they cannot pray,
And the wraith of a hroken vow.
What1 a watcher bere in the dark and cold,
Waiting so still for,the mild gray east To glow with the dawn? Ah, Maud, did you know,
In the grand saloon, but an bour ago, That a skeleton sat at the feast?
And dld you know how the violets grew In the meadows only the last, last June; And the words they heard when your lover pressed Those half-loosed tresses against bis breast, Under the wild, white moon?

how. e. W. ganty, hatbly briondier-genbral in the rrbet army.-ste page 35.
letter, a ring, and a leaf once hid 'Twixt the leaves of an old romauce: they lay
There on the sill, pretty tritles and vain. Oh, the hungry pain, oh, the passionate pain, |That could not be danced away 1
Husb! The haggard stars are plunging deep In the watery ciouds, and the moon is down, and the wizard sleet is stabhing the night Through and throngh, with its spears so white,
Out in the dismal town.
Let those weep who have need of tears, The happy may rest, for the world is wise But, heautiful Maud, when you meet his kiss, Take heed that you see no ghost of thi
In the dark of your lover's eyes
In the dark of your lover's eyes

PAUL REVERE.

By Miriam Ear

"I am sorry this Philip Gordon is coming here, Madeline; all our comfort will be spoiled.
Our morning readings, our evening music, our afternoon rambles our pleasant moments will all an art eonnoissear-Madeline's open plano and music-stand, the easy-ohairs and velvet lounge, draped like the window in gold and crimson, all day day.
Madeline was an orphan. orh parents had died
When sbe was quite young, and she had been left to the eare of a maiden aunt, her father's only sister, and almost his only relative. The elder Miss Berford was somewhat aristocratic in her tastes and prejudices, and the Reveres were the only family in the neighborhood with whom she So Paul and his sister, now married and living in $\begin{gathered}\text { e }\end{gathered}$ So Paul and his aister, now marriod and living in e distant State, had been almost her only companions. They had grown up together, played the same plays, shared the same joya and sorrows, been taught by the same governess, and finished by the tame tutor, for Mr. Berford had specially provided that Madeling's education shouid be conducted at home, and Paul could never be induced to leave home long enough to go to college. And in this society the gentle boy had grown atill more gentle, diadrining any pleasures the girls coold not shate, and so their days passed on in a quiot round of amusements and vague castle-building, with many thoughts but few deeds towards the higber purpose of life.
After Paul's atater married snd removed from home, he and Madeline were more inseparable than before, and a day that did not find him at Berfori Hall would have been a strange event. Her firmnees, quet perseverance and calmness of oharacter nature, and as she always gave him the fullest sympathy in all his plans and vague speculations, he had grown to look up to her with a feeling that almost amounted to reverence. She was his Hertha his Psyche; to him she was all that was beautiful, holy ard noble.
Not that Madeline was satisfied with the Ufe she led; she tired of it every day. There was that restless longing that all true natures must feel to do something, to do some one good, to put this existence to some use other than the selfish one of ministering to one's own pleasure alone; to know they were not like the helpless reed, borne along by the current, of no account there and never misbed when gone. But what should she do ? Her own home was as happy and pleasant as could be, and needed no more care of hers than ahe now gave it, There wereno ragged children to be gst thered together out of her hands; there were no erring Magdelines, no wretched outcast within her range of knowledge whom she could take by the hand and bring up from this dark standing to the light and air tha purified the plane of their fellow-beings. No, they day evils, entrenched behind the broad mantle of common usage, that she was powerless to attack them; and what was to be done? Could she onl have gone out into the great world and turned out an Ellizabeth Fry or a Florence Nightingale, she would willingly have endured all their hardships, made just as many sacrifices, If she gave utterance to her deaires, from her aunt she received a long lecture on the sin of discontent, and Pau Fould go off into such a burst of enthusiasm as the great things they weuld acoomplish, tbat his very extravaganee silenced her more effectually than all the obstacles that could have been placed before her. And yet she was very happy. How could it be otherwise, surrounded by beauty and luxury, all that a refined taste could demand, a loving heart ask, even to that which should be the crowning blessing of a life-the entire love and consecration of one worthy heart.

A year before, when the atarry clusters of violeta were looking up from their low beds, and the warm spoke, Paul told her of his love. He pictured his arid, desolate life if they were separated; and then in glowing words told of the great deeds he could perform if she would be his inspiration-of the beautiful future he would create if she were by his side, and she, not at all moved by his eloquence, but knowing no deeper sentiment than her affection for him, never drcaming there could be a more said calmly, "I love you, Paul, I will be your said calmly, "I love you, Paul, I will be your-wife." And so they were betrothed, and everywife. And so they were betrothed, and everything went on just the amme. Indeed it would have been impossible for him to have spent much more time with her, to have been muob more attentive and lover-like than before, Her property had been left in eare of this Philip Gordon, the son of her fucher's dearast friend, heen just commeneing the profesolon that had since brought him wealeh and fams. She was to eome into full ponsescion at twenty, and an that fime had nearly arrived, he had written that he fould be there at that time, prepared to setule mad way, he would probabiy stay a fow daya in the neighborhood, and hoped to hecomn hetter nequainted with his ward. Of course ho had heen invited to make her home his home during his stay, and after a llttle deliberation he had accepted tie invitation, setting the lant weck of May as the time he might be expected. Madeline had nim vaguely him but once, and only remembered an conneoted with her father's death and funcral, and thongh she had, of courss, a little curiosity about him. Paul, never thinking of him 18 a rival, ten years, yet had a vague feleling that in some may prompted his remark as they stood by the window, not watehing for him, it was too carly for that by an hour and a half, but idy speculaing nubjects. She answered him dreamily.
nubjects, Shik ansered He has business, you know, that will occupy part of his time, and then Aunt Inabel will probably be more company for him than yon or $\mathrm{L}^{\text {. }}$ Her thoughts were evidentif wandering. He renched up and taking her hand that lay on his ohoulder, emoothing the slender fingers with his ewn, said tenderly
"What is 1 t mar-belle-can I help you Y"
She turned round facing him, her ejes flashing She tur enrnestly.
Mnestly.
"I mas thinking of him-of thin man-of what ancess n suceession of sti iggles and vietories his life has been. He commenced with nothing buta a pair of stout hands, a brave heart and a frm will, and now he etands among the hesde of his protession. Ho was admitted to to the bar a hoy of twenty-one, and that is the way my father found bim-for he had boon after he died, and his leaving my property in his cars was almoot his; fixing his eyes stesalily on grand Ufo hax been his; fixing his eyeer stesaliy fol of the roughness at his feet, tul ha has renched our lives, Paul, in compatison, spending in careles pleasure the momenta that should be filled with aotion, wastiog the golden opportunities for goond that thould be gathered oo carefully. Do you not

He onught the enthuulasm from her Eparking face. eaid, eagerly. "I am a man; I will work for hoth of us; ;ou hanall be proud of me, Madeline; I will go out into the great world, and it shall yield go bentiful thing to me from itt mnay otores, and when $I$ have earned a name, $I$ ahail come back to chaim you, Madeline, for you will be my inspiently:
"There is much we might do if ws would; but, lan, we are mere day-dreamerss,"
"Day. draumers, Madeline, that ts the word, you have giren to me; ; it thall be the title of my book, and that will be wid, Utopian, bringing fame, doing good from its very originality. But 1 rexd hesantiful thought me read it to you."
He took upa book on tha windor-sear.
"I bronght it on purpose to ehow you; let mee place your ohair hert where tha light mil right on the page ; there that will do now."
So his high rasolntions al ways ended in 2 now dream. Sha at down, and he, draming a cuhhion to her feet, ourled upon it like the petted child hawab, and oommenced his book. Ha mas still rasding When Mr. Gordon came. In tha intereat of the story his existence had been forgolome. A tall, well-made man, with high fentures, raven hair wereeping squarely across a broad forehe ad, a pnir of darik, iridescent eyes, chin and mouth will set of with beard and moutanhe, and $a$ manly, seif control air, bnt neithar handaoma or graceful, stood before Madeline as she hurritd out to that parior door. He came forward se he enterad, and withont wilting for the introdactlon her sunn
"And this in my little friend, Madeline,
"And this, in my litule friend, Madeline, that was," suid he warmily " "y yunare grown some, hut, thermise, not ebanged enou, Somehow the clear ring of his deep roice smote
pontrinty on Pauls eari, but it might have bees pauned by hin astonishment at the sight of him, for forgetting if Madeline had been his ward ten yeur he was only a little over thirty, himaelf a man grown gray with se, but thin inpreaslon was lost in the eonversusas , and saidowed, for Mr. Gordon had zo much to well, that he, with his socilility, could not help being ment tims had nerer pised plesazanter at Berford Hall than during the succeeding fow weeks, for Mr. Gordon proved himuelf a wostagres ahle eompanion.
Each day, three houra of the earliest morning were spent with his business, hut that past, he Tan ready to join them in all their amusement, he sxid to commemorate his holldayz. Ha mas he sull-informed, knowing thoroughly many suhjesta of whieh Paul had never thought, for never idle, his lxisura momsnts had hen apent in etudy and nilteulture. His rasding hours acquired a doable sall-eulture. His rading hours acquired a dooblle intorett when has was tha raxdor, and in mutie he more then aurpaused thair axpectationn. His roh lessne.
rest."
she
contralto than Paul's light tenor, ao he took his place, becoming in that as everything elec ths leading spirit. But in hin superiority there wss ne pride, no huaghtinest, that could wound Paul'n sensitite heart, and so the time passed on only seeming to hring a planananter change, though, also, for poor Panl, hops of happineess.
hops of happiness.
One day they had oontemplated golng to Medosy Pond, a ministure like ahout a mils dintant, for a boat-ride and lishing-party, but at the last mome for him) attend to some business, and not to oose the iny's pleasnre, Madeline and Mr. Gordon went day's pleasnre, Madeline and Mr. Gordon went alone. That day Philif learanad more of than in all their preceding intercourse. They had sailed and fibhed to no purpose till weary, and mere at the handing-phoeth surface. With his lamreating tact he drewher on to speak of hereelf, and the suhjeot once started, the talked freely and openlyhighor dereer aspirations, and her desire highar derelopment et mina and nont then odge of the sessed. She had bean leaning over the the boat, dipping har hand slowly up and domn in the elear woters, but suddeuly ohe raissd hervelf up and elear waters, but suda went on impetuounly:
ent on impetuounly: " You cannot think how I deppise myselif-how I pity and sorrow for every one whote existance is pity and sorrow for every like mine ; who pass idly on lift's pathray, only taking care that their own puth is bordered with fowes, tiving no heed to the thorns that may be fowers, giving no heed to the the sharp stones over set another, no thought to the which they may stumble if their own feet find a smooth resting-place, and using the talents given them only for their own gratification. I have heen them only for their own gratification. I hane hroen ow, comething to do that will require selif-denia and sacrifice, that will remove this felling of use-

She stretched out her hands as if to grasp a ilisios He had bern gathering some of the water and he placed them in her band, saying, as his figgers elosed ovar the etems round you a conastant beauts and fragrancsthough nil, on eartb." Sbe shook her hend slowily. "But I am not;
nd if I was, I hardly think I should be content; I runt-but look there." pointed to the West She stopped abruptly, and pointed to the Wes
It had grown dark while they were spaking. heavy aloud was coming up, betokening one or hose sudden storms common to June. He caught up his ours, and a few stroikes brought them to th shore. They sprang out, and only stopping long enough to drag the bait upon the whice, and they had necure it, hurried on. It was a walked-for Madeline was a famous pedestrianand it was pieassater than xiding. They had gone about half the distonce, when a sharp fash of lightning broke tarough the darkncas, followed in a moment by a lor heary peal of thunder. He pased his arma around her, neurly lifting her from the eground, and increaved hin pace almont toa run.
"Don't," said ehe, breathlealy. "You will tire out; I can keep np." But he paid no attention to her wordh, btht hastened on at the same speed tie hat has fullen off; herfiel giowed witilexatement; them up.
"See!" ehe enid, "some of them are cruthed; but how exquidite it has rendered their perfume." "Yes, they are sweeter now, die, and it will be lost for ever."
Half may down the avenue they met Paul.
"You are safe, then, ma-belle e" said he glodly. "I have just this moment come, and finding you we sum you coming.
Something in Paul's tone sounded disagreeahle to Philip. "Was the only eafe with him?" He to Philip. Was it all then; that look and tone revealed all Paul's love to him plainer than any words, and Madeline-what of her? There had been no answering light in her eyes to his joy, enily 2 calm greeting. But hoo would it be? Would not the impulsive eagerase heart? He had waiked waiting for him in the porch.
"Oh, what splendid lilles!" ha heard Paul say I know.
"Don't think me aelfah, Paul," she answered,
ith a hright amile; "but I want to put them in whe library where we can all enjoy them," and ahe ran out in the great drops just beginning to fall, and laid them on tha grasa that they might be fresher for the morram.
Somahow this incident, trifing as it was, dia Puilip Gordon's haart a grast deal of good. The the most. Is there any truth in the theory of transmigration of souls in the idea that we have lived, realized, loved and suffered an axintence before this renized, loved and suriered an axiatence beflore that
In whence eome those dim pereeptions that ametimes float before our our inner vision, in distinct, without tangible form, and yet for the moment to real ? From जhence comes that lightning ment to real ? From whence comes that inghting fash that for a breath will thrill our being with an aoute sense of knowisdge, and then raniah, lessing only a vague sense of loss bebind? The veriest trife will do this, the opeting or shuting of a door, a gesture, a strange face or socene, will nometimes open a paseage far, far down to a receas of the soul, and giviog a momantary glimpse of a of the soul, and giviog a momentary glimpse of a fragment imbeddad thera. Do imprassions ever frugrent imbeddad therr. Do imprassione die do thay ever even fade? If the sciance of phren phronology is trub, mind, that parst of ut capathas

ment of mind. And why should it not bs oested there? But mind is not ideas, though it in thickiy covered with them; hut the soul-pen that wrote oovered with them; thet the divine for our weak eyex to read its tracingr. But can such mitingg be erased? We all kno how a oircumatance, leng forgotten, oovered over many layers deep hy the rubbish that etoren the garrets of our memory, may be hronght to light, revived ln all ita pristine apienbe hronght to light, revived indl. ise prisuls appriveail changos, and may they not have hrought these thingo $\rightarrow$ mall in themuelrea, to be sure, but pros
bably connected with some important event that bably connected with some impornate onoe thrilled our onoe thriled our exn- fithem and oxistence, and reunite them on our life'f first paget, that may tometimes hreak forth from the coverings of long years, burning with a sudden light, that It had grown duask, and a lamp hurned on the oentre tahle. The rain fell in torrents, often cut hy a sharp gleam of lightning, followed hy a deatening roll of thundor. Madeline stood in the centrs of the room, after a shildiah fashion of hera when there was a thunderstorm, gaxing, as well as the darkness asrmitted, out on ths granduer of the tempest. Once there came a fiery blaze of lightteing, covering her figure mith a brillinat light, at she stood with clasped hands, parted lips and hend tharown back, every feature radiant with excitement.
Prilip Gorion wan not a man given to ideality, hut Philip Goridon was not a $\operatorname{man}$ given to ideality, hut that moment a flash brightus that other glare passed through his soul, Miluminating for a moment a reeses, seemed to have heenformed ages ago. She reess, seemed to have heenarmed age abo filed every part of it. She had alwass bonged to lis ons. him, said the intuition; ahe was his, his ory now.
Tbey had been growng up for ench other, but the Tbey has deen growng ap for enchim her, when he could elasp her to his heart and say: "Minel only minel"
He started from his chair with the only mine $I^{\prime \prime}$ He started from his chair with he purpose raguely in his mind, but Paul stood betreen them. The electric chain, that by reason of tween them. The electric chanin, that by that same this love found tha thres together, at astant touched Paul's heart with a sonse of pain acuto as the joy that thilled Phinp $k$, and ina, Mudelns, do not unk on your face, ilke a goddecss oontrolling fate. Come away from that dreadful glass, that for a moment bsemed to carry you so far from me, that pineed bstreen us an unfathomable gulf, which no efforts of mine could enable me to cross. Come and nit down that you were near me."
She sat down in the chair he brought, a soft smile curving her lips at the renotion his mords hrought, wile he drew a stool, and siting uown a her fet In his favorite position, looking up tenderly in hee he other wandered dreanily through his wary hair. The next woek was Madeline's birthday, and with her girlish love of gaiety, she thad resolved manner poesible. There was a pienic in the woods around hiedney anke, a boak ride, and the hall in the evening. Madeline looked beautiful at the pienic in her white mualin, and in the evening in a whito silk, with white lilies, that Philip had gathered for her, in her hair. Tbe alternoon passed well enough, butin the evening a new trouble arose, Mr . Gordon did not dance-this was one of the few thingt and kept Madeline for his partner as constantly as he and kept Madeline for his partner as conetanuly atilip talked to one after the other, but they severally made their exouses and left him, but they severally made their sit and talk, and at last he seatod himself upona sofa, where he could look through the open door to the dancers in the room beyond. There is an undercurrent of sadness in ersry sarneat nature, and as welled Philip Gordon's heart, as he watched Madeline Philip Gordon's heart, as he watched wa walts, flouting through the graceful abandon of the wals her waist encil by faly and she looking up to whispered to her joyousy, ande on her face at his words. Was it an evil omen that he had come between them as in that very moment, when she seemed so entirely his own, and drew her thoughts, at onoe from everything else, to him so completely
Would not Paul's handsome face, winning mauners, and eager, bogish love, fill a closer place in her heart, than he whe not, in his far-reaching hope to occupy ? Had he not, in his far-reaching whition, neglected that wham? So the man greater happines with vain quentionings, and for the time really regretted the manner in which his music, and he arosa and went to the door, meeting Madeline just coming in. She took her arm from Paul's and slipped it through his in her pretty amiliar way,
"Where have you kept yourself oo long ?" sh
"id gaily; "I have hardly seen you to-night". aid gaily; "I have hardly seen you to-nignt,
"No wonder you've not," he answered, writh a bright momile, for her words and action 'set him a bright smighe, at once. "I could not get a chance
"There are a good many here," said ahe, naivaly; "but let us sit down, I am tired of danaing, and
They went hack to the nofa he had juast quitted, and sat down.

What ahall I talk to you ahout?" questioned he, as ahe drew a crimson acarf around har shoulders to protect them from the cool night air eoming in from the opan windows. "Shall I ask coming in from the opan windows. "imed you how many times you danced, who your you how many times you dance.

She laughed merrily.

No, indeed, I want somethlug new, something onn think abont aftar to-nigha." polk, but tha excusad herself. Mr . Fordon," she She "had an engagement with ald, gravely, and there she chatted gaty on, unti ompletely dispelled.
At the conclusion of that set supper was anounced, and she took his effered arm, Just as Paul made his appearance to offer his services, hio secret exultation, while Paul hurried off gaily of fid some elve.
Aher unpper Madeline danoed again, and Phillp, yeary of the noise and glare, passed through the crowded rooms and the lighted library to the win-dow-sest, drawing the curtsins close behind him.
He was looking eut en the calm beauty of the He was looking eut on the calm benuwy orm night, vaguely trying to solve the dark problem on existence and look into the misty future, when a oouple entered the library. There was a man-ha know by the firm step and tone, nad a moman by attention to them as they walked back and forth till his ear oxught the words:
"I co not think wo. I know Paul in handrome nd attractive, bnt he la keks than depth nad atrength "You gentlemen are all jealous of him," was "awered in a light, gay tone ; "but it is certain e almost idolizes her, and she-moll, her ways are o different, you tnow; ane in mod
"Everybody may be misteken then. Did yon cec her when she was tuking wither. Gordon? but light, a glow never there before; his face was not so easy rend as hers, but be assured if either " in the favored one.
idea her gaardian, that homely man! what "Not eo atrange after all, considering"
The rest of the sentence was lost as they passed ut, lenving Philip Gardon wrapped in a reverie by the curthins being suddenly swept aside, letting in a strong fiood of light. At firat he ouly saw Madelino's face
Paul behind ber
"So this is your hiding place," sald she, gally Wo have been looking for yon ever so long. want you to come and dance with me once-this is garty of all hirthday partios. I know you have not anced with ony one yet, but rou will with me this danced with any one yet, but rou will time, won't you ?" said she, conxingly.
He came out of his retreat, solling at the absur
"What a request, Madeline. I am sorry to re. use you, but it is impossible. I never danoed a tep in my life."
"Oh, that will make no difference," she an swered, eagerly; "just cannot fail to go right",
"Do try, Mr." Gordon; yon cannot think bow elightful It in," pleaded
"He thook his head. I cannot think of it. I abould he entirely out of "I cannot think of it. 1 thould he entirely out of me, and you would evsn be ashnmied of my awlerardoens."
She was a little diaappointed. He saw it in her race, and hastened to make atonement.
"Ask anything else of me, Madeline, and $I$ will to to gratify you. What onn $I$ do to atone for $m y$ try to gratity you., What onn $I$ do to atone for my lack of gallatry ?", She hesitated, looking up in his faoe, archiy. At
"We are tired of dancing and are gaing to have nome music; you may play aind sing that Swedioh song you sang last night, it io so beautiful, I bong think.
"W
"Willingly. Anything else ${ }^{\text {P/" }}$
Yes, you are or sing the ballad 'The Gonde-
"I would rather you would take her place."
".
"I shall not indulge you, sir; besides she dmires you very muoh."
"As I do not return it in the least, that makes dififerenoe to me, hnt 1 ma ready to obsy your Madeline would not dance that last net with ny one, even Panl. She was too bnay to atop, nough what she did, exoept open the piano tond arrange the lampa, no ene knam. They had and marches, quadrilles, plees, reels, and all kinds of rocal and instrumental musle. Philip sang the Nilad with Miss Ormes, a short comic piece with Paul, and then his Swedtha song. ment of a mother for heauty of the worde, or the mournful wall of the uasic, and he rendered it perfectly. Every nound was hushed, every heart was stil. As tha last chorda monned into perfect alience lasith praise around hira, wh warm all, alm ost impatiently, but he turned fing for Madeline. She ast in the further coraer of the room; her dark eyos suffused fith tears; her hands clasped in her lap, and her face still turned towards the instrument, as if it still gave forth that wondrous harmony. He croased the room and stood by her sids. Sbe Yaile eyea to his; saying, in a low, hushed than lovely."
"It is more than beautiful, more And these few words were more to him than all the eloquent adulations the rest had showerad around him, and them over, and brought befor him again her look and tong, he resolved tha when his trust was given up, when wen he could longer her guardian and thwyelim on her respect or bere save what his own manhood gava then he would tell her what she was to him, and ask her if she woald be still more. Ha did no ron er Pal loved her, could not hlame biu for trving to win her in returd; that is, if he did difarent matter. The naxt day all mare dall and aloepy, and Panl did not make his appearance at all; hnt the next day just after dinner, when Pbilip had gove to his room to look over some pspors preparatory to settling his scounts with Madeline, and she had settling his accounts with Madeline, and she had oovered a tsble with papera, brushes, bottler, and oovered a tsble with papers, brushes, bottlen, and leaves snd grasses, he came bright and joyous as ever. He gaily offered his services, drew a ehair ever. He gaily, offered his services, drem a chair up to the tahle, and commenced arranging the ap to the tahle, and commenced arranging the ready for her to besutily. It was gettiog late, and her hanket was nearly finished. He held up a tiny her hanket was nearly finished. He held up a tiny eluster of pale green sea-grases and bright crimison leares.

Are they not beantiful ma belleq"
"Oh, they ere splendid,", nhe naid, eamently; "Oh, they ere splendid," she naid, eamestly;
"if we only had somesmall, dark feros to put in, the apray would he perfect."
He jumped up, exclaiming:
"I will get you some. A fer dayo ago I saw a large cluster of them down in the woods by the spring, and they were just about the right sise; you may clenr oway here, only lerving this for me to may clear away here, only leaving this for me to He tock his oap and went out humming a gay air, meeting Philip juet ooning in with of formidable arrey of paperi.
"Will you be at leisure to look these over this vening?" said he, as he noticed her employment evening?" said he, at he noticed her employment. the sonner it is begun the quieker it will be ended, I euppose."
She cleare her hair, and sat dom. There was not thanshed to her hnir, and sat down. There was not much to do, the sccount had been strictly settled each year, and they were only to be compared, and a statement of her property looked over. It was ill done ment of her properr, but she looked up with a nigh of relief, ae she signed her name for the last time. He handed her another paper.
" This requires the attestation
"This requires the attestation of a disinterented attorney to make it velid; to-dey to Thurelay; attorney to make it velid; to-dey io Thursday; I will hring Mr. Blake from the village to-morrow or will hring Mr. Blake from the village to-morrow or Saturdny, if you are friling, for I must go hack home the first of the weck."
he thought her voice trembled as she answered. he "Why need you go so soon? We hoped ypn
"onld make ne a longer visit." wonld make ue a longer vieit.",
"My husiness will suffer if I prolong my days of idleness; end henides Train and Klton, a large idleness; ond hesides Train and Elton, a large mercantlie firm, hed made me an offer to go to Europe to take oharge of a law-suit there, end if I acoept it I must he ready to leave the first of next acoept it I must he ready to leave the first of next month." now.
"Going to Europe, Philip! you eunnet mean it ", Going to Europe, Philip! you ennnetmean it ? adhered to his resolutions, hut her words sent a tlde of rapture rushing through his veins, he did not attempt to control. He came eloser to her, looking steadily in her free, speaking low, eteady tones.:
" Mn

Madeline ! I am obliged to go sway next week, bent have a few words to say to you, whit
"I love you with my whole strength, my whole soul, you re to me what no other woman ever has soul; you are to me what no other woman ever has been, ever oan be; will you be my wife ?" There Was no aupprise, no astonishment at his words. It seemed so genial and natural that he should love her and tell her so, and there wss no pride or coquetry in her heart towards one she loved, oo she raised her face, not blushing, but luminous with light end love, to his, and eaid, solemnity:
"I will, Philip. I ean ask no happler fate than that." He drew her to him till ber hesd rested on his shoulder. A delielous cslm filled har whole being, but it was broken hy a sudden recollection, end she atruggled to an erect position, a look of dismay oovering her face, a moment before so radiant. oovering her face, a moment before so radiant.
"Whst hive I done? What will Paul ssy? will break his heart; and how can I do that, or wrong you either ? Philip, you must tell me what to do, for I do not know," she excleimed, wildly. to do, for I do not know"," she excleimed, wildly.
A sudden pang struck him, but outwsrdly he was "eelm. "What is it, Madeline ${ }^{\text {" }}$ he anked, tenderly. "I do not understand you: you must tell me plainer; but ait down first. You do not look able to stand-youtrembleall over. There no "There is not mach to tell. We have al myys been together; he wes almost my only playmate. my oniy companion, and when he told me he loved me, I liked him so well you know-I did not know there was any differance-I thonght I returned it."
"And you aro then engaged to Paul Revere?"
"Yes, Philip, I suppose I am. Doin't look so "Yes, Philip, I suppose I amn. Dun't look so starn, but tell ne what to do-what I oughtt to do to wrong no one."
Kow his tonet, and lips quivered. His dark eyes, hurning with s fiereo light, had been fastened on huraing with s herco light, had been fastened on her, but now they were veiled in ahadow as he torned eway and slowly paced beck and forth acroe fhe room. She watehed him anxiously, but his oalm, impassable face told her nothlog. Finslly oalm, impasabble face told her nothlog. Finslly he cama back to her, hending hia face close down to her white atill one.
"Madeline," and his voice was full of unsperikit all was. It waa a and miatake, but I eannot it al was. It was a rad miatake, but I cannot daoide it ; your own heart muat do that. Paullove you, I know; but it onnnot he with e more fervent, ing your declalon, that you would do greater injuetice to the one you scoepted, if jou loved him least, than even to yournalf or the one you rejceted. am going o way now nnd will come haek theday atce to-morrow to hesr your decifion. Think of it calmiy, und make it Good-hye, Madeline.
Ho kiased her pale forehead, than went clowly out, down the arenue and up the rond, paat har line of vision.

Where was Paul? As he eame up the porch with the foms hs heard thera atill ialking over their sccounts, so he pasced on to the little sittingroom adjoining, and flung himself carelessly domn on a sifa by the epen door. The doore of both oooms opened on the porch, and, without intending Indeed it would have heen impossible not to have heard.
There
There are ehocks so great that they do not otun an or teke away our hreath, but calm us down to a tate of eomplete self-possessed despuir. So it was with Paul. The greatent woe that can denolate a life, the lonowledge that all our faith and love have been for naught, came upon him without waming, but he did not ory ont or even atir, but liny quietly till he asw Mr. Gordon go out and heerd Madeline go hy, upstairs to her orma reom. Then he arose and rent out. He met Mias Berford in the outer hall nd Manded her the ferns, asking her to give then eturn home immediately. Out in the open sir he hurried on, regardless where his steps were tending, before he hed gone so glsdly for her. He flung imself down on the mossy ground, giving way te his wild grief:

She lovel another; she had never loved him!" tinctly from out the dreadful mate crer eame dis sation, end as they freshiy occurred to him he wept and mozned like a child. But through his bitter thought of self-sicrifice.
"If he must auffor, she need not. By his enduring a little more her happineso would be entire. At firut the thought wes too bitter, but it grew up, their'soft light falling on him like a benedietion, during, beceuse oreated and perfected in angnimh, to give happiness, even though it was denied him.
The next morning, be Madeline wes studying on her positlon, trying to decide callyly, she wein her position, trying to decide calmly, she whe informed that Mr. Revere wished to see her. With an unconquerabie dread at the thought of meeting him she went down. He stood at the foot of the stairs, and without walting for any salutation, seid stairs, and brokonly:
o'Excuse
"Excuse mo for disturbing you, Madeline, I have something to say of importance to us both. Will you hear it now ?

All you wish to say," she answered with dreary calmness. "Come in here."
She tumed towrds the lighted parlors, but grasped her hand, draving her the other way. grasped her hand, drawing her the other wiy.
"Not in there! not in there! Not in there! not in there! Come out down to tho grepe arbor-and I will tell you."
She followed him urresistingly down the sidepath that led to the arbor. He stopped her in the door, faced her, and oommeneed ahruptly:
"Would it grieve you very miuch, Madeline, if
"e were to be separated ?"
"Scparated, Paul! Wh
"Separated, Paul! What do you mean ?"
There wss a ring of giadness in cut deeply, and he went on hsatily
"I have heen afreid sometimes that we are not suited to each other; that the time would come ore know there are othere more worthy of you; so I thought, perhaps, it would be best for me to release

He atopped abruptiy, then added, tremulously "You do not think I blamo you, do you? You He stopped again.
"sdeline ?" ho plended. friende, shall we not, It was well the grisy twilight hid the pallor of hin face, and the was too much excited to notice the it all, for Paul was bit a poor actor at the best. She esme closer to him:
"Always friends, true friends, Paul. I ara very gisd you told me this, it has made me very happy. I will not tell you now, but come over next week and yon shall know why.
He wns inexpressihly grateful that she opared him then, but he only said: him then, but he only said:
"I will eome.
And these few words separated the two who once thought nothing could ever come between them. When Philip came the next morning Madoline net him, her face radisnt with happinees.
"You hare good newe for me, darling, I know by your look
She rehearaed the ncene of the evening before. "I sma very thankful for this," he eaid, when she finished her recital. "Hsd you decided against of wrongdoing towards him in your heart, whioh now will never exist; and as he has made meso happy I can never blame him, as otherwise I migh have been inelined to, for his ficklonees.
Thst was all. Puul's sacrifice, like thousands of othere, wis never appreciated, nover even known They were married in the autumn. Paul wat in Surope. He had made her happineee hio firsi the wedding day eame he ahed many bitter ter but never regretting ho had taken from her all caune for aelf-re proeeph. There were long yeare of calm and atrong enough to enduro it. Aos wife and mothar, Madeline'e life io rounding into perfeetion, and writh her hnsband'e loving tuition ehe fection, and with her husband'e loving taition the opportunitles into a web of happinere lasting a eloquently of a great pieture he will yet paint, of a life itsil. grest poem ha is to write, but neither are commenead, and Madeline knowa he will accompliah nothing.
the sanitary commission. In tbe history of the great American Crompted hy divine Charity, guided hy Provideuco, promplethout a paralili in human annula. England and with slow to give America credit for sught, admits the slow to give America credit for sught, sdmits the great ary Commiesion, an institution which aprang up froma meeting of a few New York ladies and the Guldance of one celear-hewded, great-h arted may.
What it hus done may he inferred from these What it hus done mas he inferred from these facts:
The essh which has nctually remched tho Treasury The essh which hss nctual)/y renched tho Treasury
t the United States Sanitary Commisslon, Werhing ton, hus in three yenre amounted to ahont $$ 1,000,000$, of which the Pscilic conent has kiven threc-quarters.
It wonld he well for those on the Atinntic oofat, who It would he well for those on the Atiantic oonst, who ometimer question our eoconomy, to consider this fact. Fifteen-Eixtcenthr of thie amount is expended cor appplies and trausportation; the other aixteenth goee late the sopport of its homes, Ite lodges, its hoepital and camp inspection, Snppplics parchased Condenied mills, by the ton.

 Cargoes of ice, potatses, onlone, plelded cebbage, sourlcrut, iemoh, oragen, vegetables by carlonis:
 iog Committoe, give their fervices and time gratui-

per cent.
The httie scrvico of the Commisnion requires inrge
funds and Eupplies. At Murfreebboro', Autietam, aver, qu per man. Are thenc expenses extravagant, hung oonidering the hiessiugs dlapensed by the variety

 CAPTURE OF FORT DE RUSSEY, LA BY GEN. A. J. SMITH
THis fort was captured Marcb 15, by tbe United States forces under Gcn. A. J. Stuith. The expedition left Viekeburg on the 10th inst., Iended at Summersport, LA., on the 13tt, and marched to Beyon Glince, where Gen. Sourri's rebel brigede had heen enoomped, whioh liod on the approach of our tranepport, | lenvil |

| :--- |
| store |
| Ge | stores.

Gen. Smith poshed forward to Yellow Bayon, where atroog fortificatlosi havo been ereoted; hot the rebelf atroog fortilicatloni harvo been ereoted; bot the rebels ngain fled. As he eaman np the exemy was presned ngain Iled. As he eaman np the enemy was presed and aome skirmikhing ooccurred, resuiting in the aspture of several prisonera and a small wigon trsin.
At dayilght the

THE MONSTER RODMAN GUN

 Cat at the Nort Fit Moinary. With a vie enabicd to present our reader er ceannow of the Rodman pattern, Junt oust it theRort Pitt foundry, Pitubborg. Then Fort Pitt foundry, Pittaborg. Theengraviog chowa it sa it in in tho ronga, and itaimmenee size may bencen was appoioted to tho arm in which he thowi, suct silontichality Ho wan apointed Captain in 1855 ,

the army blacksmith.

NoT like the country biacksmitb, by the hlghroad en the akotot of the vilige, with ofildren peering around, and all men, from the squira to the poorly-pald minaster, stopping to get his servioss or with his tolis arnd riake, he lis better off thin the tolling craftiman fo the close lanes of the olly, with fith and misery arannd, e tavern vialhle wherveror hetarne ht eye. The army blaoksmith emscke of the army, it not a soldier, the emroke of eamps and batlee, not a eoldier, ho emacke of campe and battlen, and thoogh he tees the battle generally from aftr, and doce his needed lithor nader the shady tree or leai yearg, recount to hle wondering groodehidren the atory of the greent hattes in Virginla, if he does not The regular atrmy forge is a foar-

THE CIVIL WAR AT MATAMORAS.
We Rival Governori, Cortina nnd Ruix, Wr give to-day portralts of the two MexIcan leadera at Muthmoras in the reoent atroggle in that elty, drawn from life by eur Specha Arthst, and of interest to oor readere, who have long heard of tham and their doinge.
Manael Ruiz, the defented Governor, was horn in Oaxsson, Mexico, June 30,1820 , his futher Oaxso, Mexico, June 10, 1820, his father heing in Lieutenant-Colonel in the army. He wha edncated in the College of Oaxsos, and then atudied law with Don Bealte Juarez, the present Rrenldont. Ha was admitted to prsetice in 1818. He Also held a coun-misalon fin the army, having bcen Coptain in the Cor misnion in the nrmy, having bcen Captain in the Cevalry of Oaxisas in 1842, and by his survieell in averal ary or Oaxsos in 1842, and by his survicen in soveral buttles, espeolalily at Puehla, adranced to LileutenatColoncl. He wss made Colonel in $1859 \circ$ nd BrigudierGenerat in 1869 . He whe appointed Governor of Oaxaca in 1859, hnt his appointment wzs irregalar. He was a memher of the Moxlcan Congreas in t8s8 and 1857 . Comonfert made him Minister of Justlce oapscity he advoonted the scizare of all ecolesisstical property, Eoppression of rellgloas ordern, the exclu-ston of olerios ministry in marriuges, and the other ateps of the io-ealled Litheral party.
Jusroz appolnted hend the other Jurroz appolnted himen Governor or Tamanilpas, hut his olnim wai tgnored hy Cortina, who, in January,

 25

 Uur Artint giver E Epirited. view of ooe of the fighta
at the harricien in Manora, doring the etruggle heetween the rival Governors.

BEACHING A MONITOR IN PORT ROYAL HARBOR, S. C.

Tere beaching of the monftors for the purpoie of olesnsing and repalifing in not a task deroid of risk or manttended with dimicolties. At Charleston it has been dono ellefly, if not entirely, under the euperintendenco of Gapt. Theodore E. Baldwin, whose euccass has Juatifled hieo sppointront, Bald After the monitor to moored inhmarine divera, class with whom oar rendors aro elready fumpliter

GOVERNMENT BAKERIES, FOLLY ISLAND. One of the great economies in the departnent of the Sonth fa tho range of hakeries ereeted in tho tall of 1863 on Folly inland, in the wooda to the

PRECIOUSNESS OF SECRET LOVE.

Lisr me in secret come to thee,
Let me in aceret from thee go;
Let me in secret from thee go
Were all the world our joys to know.
Wher
And let no glance of thine dieclose The tinand of our blisa areec From out the ses it towers abore.
of Eden is true love the fruit, Tf it a serpent's eje pollute, If it a serpent's eye pollute,
Its emreetness is for ever gone.

Needs any soul to know or asre
How once, by ardent love inflamed, How once, by ardent love inflam
Two tender mortuls happy were, Two tender mortals happy were,
Tho' colder heorts thelr pastion Tho' colder heorts thelr passion blamed

The Gulf Between Them.

(1)

Mellea sprang down the steps and ruabed aerosa the lamn, vith some mad idea of trying to reseus her; and foliowing an well as her trembling limbs would permit, 叉linobeth saw cont and apring into the woter.
her P' Mellen only answered by a groan; he was lookiug wildy about for a boat, but there was none in sight; he wae powerlest to aid his darling-he kight; to rescue her from that death peril. They anw an object $t$ ise above the wavee-saw Tom swim toward it-seize it-he had cuaght the girl in his ocrong grasp. They could neither move or cry out; they stood strsing out in breathiean expectation, and watchad him support his ourchen wards the skiff while wich the max bearing in tewards the shore Fhich the tide was bece could see that ha began to It was a long pull; they cund faltor after his long exertlons in rowing; a denthly faar erept affeeh over both those heorts, but they did not speak-scarcely breathed.
Suddeuly a higher wave washed the helpless girl from tom's grapp, Grantley Mellen's courage gave may then ; he somk on the ground, oovering his face with his bands. White and cold, Elizabeth watched, saw Tom graap the girl's dres in the grap of his strong arm.
in the
"He has cought her!" she gsped. "He has Hrantley! Grantley! "lmost reà"
Still half crouched upon the ground, Mellen
he ioal Dooked up. Tom had just put his hand on the side of the ekifif, and was lifting Elaie in it. It waseridently the last effort of his mighty strength, for he foated on for some distance, holiang ou to the boat before he had power to get in. The hushand and wife watched him while he got into the bon himenelf, ,lifted Elsie's head on bis knee, sand allowed the tide almont entircly to wash them towards the the tide
At they approached the bank Elsie began to recover conseiousseess,-and as Tom took her in his armo and sprang with a staggering bound on shore heth.
"T'm affo," she naid, fuintly, "quite a afe. Don't be afraid," It wis not be was not a moment for many worda. With a
It wroken ery of thankfulness, Mellen snatched Elsie broken ery of thankfulness, Nellen snatcched Elisie from Tom's arms and carried her into the house. In a few moments their thin to hereelf. She looked tup redd saw the anxicus faces bent over her. "Don't soold," she cried, "Tom saved me, Grant, Tom saved me! ${ }^{\text {p }}$ Mellen grasped Fuller's hands.
"I can't thank you, I can't", he said. "God
blens you, my friend." bless you, my friend."
Tom was ehaking for Tom was ehaking from head to foot, his drenched garments dipping like a river god's, and he answered as well as his ehattering teeth would perswere
"Don't Eay a word. I'd have drowned myself if Elizabeth innistad upon Elsie's being carried up. staire to her room, and sent Tom off to change his dress ; luokily, in his frequent visits, he had al ways forgotten some portion of hls baggoge, to he found dry clothes in his room.
Before Mellen had recovered from the shook sufficiently to be at all somposed Elsie had been dressed and was lying on the Eota in her own room, quite restored, with the exception of her unusual pallor. She had been wrapped. in a rose-colored morning robe, trimmed with 1 manedown, and lay Me ellen was bendiing over her and holding her hands, a if he feared to lat her free for an instant; while Blizabeth atood near, finding time, now that her labore were over, to watch her husbend and wonder if danger to her would have brought any pang like this to hia heart.
"I am quite well now," said Flese, " and I don"t facl much frightenod.
"Oh, child!" said her brother, "promise me nevar to run auch a risk again.
"But you muatan't scold," ahe plended, "think of the danger I was In! Ob, It mak horrible to feel of the danger I was In! Ob, lt was horrible to fecl the watera olosing over my head-to go downdown! "
"Don't think of It," anid Elizateth, making a sudden efort to change the converation, from nat sudden effort to ehange the conversation, from $n$ fear that dwelling upon the danger which she had incurrsd might tring on one of tha nervons attacks to which Elsie was so liable undar any atrong agitation.

"No," added Mellen; " it is al

"Yon look pals, Grant."

She looked at him with one of her wilful smiles. "Perhaps I tried the experiment to sse how much on loved me ?
Mellen lifted her in his arms and rested her head upon his shoum his faeo.
nerosi
"C
corose hies raeo.
"Child l" he suid, in a tremulous voiee, " you knew before--ou have always known. My mother'
There Elizabeth atood, forgotten, disergardedor so it neemed to her; but sha made no eign which Fhere came a bnock the bittor anguish at her heart.
There came a knook at the door.
"That's Tom Fulier," enid Eleio
"That's Tone Fuller," enid Elcio ; "tell him to Mellen stanted
Mellen started np and opened the door himself
There stood Tom, olad in dry garmenta, but atill greatly agiated."
"How io she?" be asked. "Io she botter ",
"You have saved her lift !" exolaimed Mollen, rasping his two hands; "you have saved her
"But is she botter?" ho rspeated, quite too axious for any thought of the oredit due him, and 200 unsel bered.
"Come Come in and see," called Elaie, in a tendar om her soto
Tom bruabed by Mallen with a cry, and down he
"She looks all right now. Oh, thank God!"
Mellen had been too profoundly disturbed himsel or conjecture regarding thin feeling on Tom's part, o him it seemed natural that every one ahould be gitated, and Elaite soon brought hem back to safer pril from which she had been so recently rescued could entirely subdue.
"I doclare Tom," onid ehe, "you are as useful an houshold locoted near the water an a Newcoundland dog."
"Oh, I can't laugh,", oried Tom.
"But you must 1 " said the milfol creature, "Yon will not put on long faess bscesuse I am savtd, $I$

"Elatio," soid her brother, "you ought to aleep for awhile; Tom and I שill go out."
" No O , no," she poriistod, "I am not in the least leepy-you must not go away - 1 shall only get nervous if you leave me alune; 1 shall be quite well hy dinnee-time. Tom Fuller, don't go! They did not oppose, her, every one there knew that it waa of no use, for in the end they would sureiy yield to her caprices.
"I haven't thanked you y.
"I haven't thanked you yet, Tom," she said. "I don't know what there is to thank me for, cried he.
"Indeed!" anid Eleie; "so you don't think my ife of enough importance to matter of any consequence?
matter of any consequence ?"
"Yor know chat wasnt what I meant," stid Tom, rubbing his damp har with one hand. bad, Eisie.
"Indeed, $I$ ahall tease him more than ever," re plied Elisie; "he will grow conceited it I don"t. Tell him how much you like me to tease you, old Tom."
"Well
 always done it, and 1 suppose you aimys mill-shouldn't think it was you if you etopped now." shouldn't think it was you if you otopped now."
Even Elizabeth laughed at his earnest manner, Evven Eliese suid:
"There, thore, old Tom, don't get aentimental Perhape Tll be goodnatured for turree daye by way Perhapa of reword for pe pulling me out of the water."
"T'd like to save your life every day in the week that ratse", cried Tom in extasy.
"No, nol" added Mellen; "I
"No, no!" added Mellen; "I think one such xploit is quite enough."
Elsie seized Tom's hand, and said with real feeb ing:
"Tom, I do thank yon- $\mathbf{I}$ con't tell you how
"Don't, don't1" he pleaded. "If you eay another word IIl run of and never ohow my face again". Elsie began to laugh once more, and the linger ing trace of eriousness dised quite out of her foce.
"Tom is good at a eatastrophe," "asid the, "but he can't earry on the blank verse proper to the atter "Blank Bank enough it would be," rejoined Tom, an mude a sort of joke that the idea covered him with meenh confuation.
Elaie''disaster passed off without any dan gerous onsequencee to the recklens girl, and she hat hall orgoten the occurrence long before Mellen re orered composure enough to thank, with feling oovered gratefuln
her iffe.
From
her life.
From that day Tom Fuiler took a place in Melen's esteem which he had never held before; his gratitude wat unbounded, and as he learned to annd nohle qualities to admire under that rugged exterior. And as Elie eoftoned into gentle ear eet-nets, and drew closer to him day by day, Tom be nens, and drew closer to him day by day, Tom be cume so completely engrossed in hia happy loveInean that he had not a nigle thought heyond In her loneininess and her anxieties which apdatate her so completely from thoee three hearts, Elizaberself:
"She has taken evon Tom from ime. I have nothing lef-husband-relative-all, all abandon me for har."
chapter xx.
ELsis was nearly twenty now, but looking younger from her fragile form and the extreme dellenoy of her oomplexion. The rader knows hom winsome and playfiul har manners were; how the

Was lored and cherished by her brother, and it , could see that seemed hard that a e ereature like this shonld have, and painful
a knowledge of this secret which oppressed Blixs-beth's life ; and it spoke more for the depth of he character than one would have expected, that she character than one would have ex was in any way able or willing to in-law to bear her secret burthen.
The vague thoughts which had tronbled Grantley Mellen's mind on the night of his arrival had died out. On calm reflection he could understand that it was quite in keeping with the restrained intensity of Elizabeth's nature, that the very violence of the storm should have forced her out into it. It waa natural, too, that, when her mind wae so ex cited, the audden sound of his voiee and step should have brought on the n she so seldom gave way.
Then Elsie cthe back oo blithe and blooming, rought so much sunshine into the honse, and that hem both 50 much into her amusements, that indeed.
The weather had been delightfol; they had enjoyed rides and drives, moanlight excursions upon joyed rides and drives, moanlight exeursions upon the water; tbere had been visits to receive and re turn among neighbors and friends; people had heard of his return, and came uninvited from New York, bringing all that festal bustle and ohange hich puts holidays every now and then into the nd etill the sky was unelouded. Grantley Mellen began to think that he was at lat to be happy, and grew cheerfol with the thought. So for a time ecast out all fear.
There had been no further return of that inexpienble nervousnees in Elizabeth; the strained, anxious look almoet'entively left her face; she wa aven wore lively than wae customary with her
It was not the fenr and dread had left her wind, but the fas on her guard, and there was a mind, but she was on her guard, and thcre was hose who knew her beat did not fully understand. But it wonld keep her through her course, whataver might lie behind.
During those happy days there had been no more confidences between her and Elsie; indeed it seemed aimost as if Elizabeth avoided her-not in a way to was so, Elaie on her side did not attempt to breal hrough these little restraints. It was natural that she should be glad to escape from the gloom which urrounded Elizabecth, and in this reapect the for her acss of her charativeness, ahe was ahle to throw of any trouble the moment its aetual danger was removed from her path.
Thus the first daye had passed, allowing them to ettle down into tolerahle quiet, hut not too much of it, for Elaie could not endure that. Sociefy wha tural nourikhment, and she drooped so quickly if compelled to eeclusion, that, with his usual weaknees where she was concerned, Mellen his own desires to gratify her caprices.
You may think this not in keeping with his chaacterand ho pactly natural. The yow he had that 1 made forgot his fears for Elsie's health; she was more ine a daughter than a sister to him, ahd her very childishnesa wae her greatest chamm. The very childishness wae her greatest on her, end her re-servants delighted in waiting on quirements were numeroue; but they did it all wil ingly, and put a great deal more heart into the servioes sine required than they and reasonable reobeying Eliabetistok her quiet manners for pride, quest held her in alight favor in consequence; so and held by Elsio's manner that when she gave them a cast-off garment, or a worthless ornament, it seemed a much greater boon than the real kindneat Elizabeth invariably displayed when they were in sickness or trouble. Elizabeth humored her Loo, but there was a sorenese at her heart all the while; for sometimes when she eaw this young creature clinging ahout her husband, her face wore the strange expression it had done While she watched their meeting after his return. The domestic life at Piney-Cove was almost happiness. But for Elizabeth's hidden anxieties, Mellen's return would have made that old house almost like heaven. As it was, this haunted woman would sometimes forget her causee of dread, and hreak out into gleams of loving cheerfulness in spite of them.
Aftar the night on which the bracelet was lost the ounehine which had brightened the little household at Piney Cove wos dimmed by a thousand intangible shadown. In epite of all his efforts, the suspicion of the alert, searching for food to nourish ind kept on toe

You would not  from jealousy; there eaid that he was auffering

 mind eettled ittelf which gave rise to that feeling, but he fretted absolutely because he had no power to discover every thought of Blizabeth's aoul during his absence. Then as he reflected upon themystery conneoted with his arrival came up afresh mystery conneoted with his arrival came up afres self in appearance of the hravelet, are, of which his fine judgment grew ashamed in cooler moments. Elizubeth had worn her old proud look for seve ral dayb after the night of the dinner-party. Grantley felt that the ice of the pant was freezing between them once more, and the idea oaused him acute

He sat watohing her one day for some time a ahe bent over her needlework, talking a little a intervals, listening occasionally to parasages from his book; oftener sitting there with her fingers moving hurriediy, as if ahe were pressed for rime, but her anxious face proving how far from her oocupation her thoughts had wandsred.
More than once M ellep eat
Hore lhan onee Mellen saw the dark brows contract as if under aotual pain, and as ha reased to speak, and seemad wholly aboorbed is his boek, he "Eliznbeth!" he said suddenly.
She atarted; in her absorption shs had forgotten that he was in the room-forgotten that she was not alone with those dark refectiona which cast not alone with those dace.
their ehadow over he. face.
"Did you epenk, Grantley ?
"Did I start?" she asked, trying to langh. "I "n't know how it is that I grow zu nervous
"Yon never were so afflicted formerly.
"No; I don"t remember," the replied quickly.
But you know I had a god deal of care and res. But you know I had a good deal of care and reswhioh has shaken me a little," "Do you beliere it" be

She shot ore glance of indignant pride at him; or an instant she looked inclined to leave the room, as had frequently been her habit during the first months of their marri
But if Elizabeth had the inolination she conrolled it. After a moment's silence she laid down ing
ing. Don't with a degree of humility she had not poesessed in the paet; "my head achee drearily II don't think 1 am well."
His feelinga changed no he looked at her; she wao not well; he could see the traces of pain in the anguid eyes and the contrncted forehead, but hethar the ouffering waa mental or phytionl even pbyiognomist conld not have told.
He reached out his hand and drew her towards gainst his eulder with a little sigh of wearihim; sh against nees.
"1
can rest here," she whispered; "it is my ace, isn't it, Grantley P" There wae an almost childlah pleading in her oice, and ne he lifted her face and looked into he yes he saw teare there.
" Have I hur
The recollection of all the douhts and auspidous thoughts which had been in his mind for day ame back, and forgetful of his in an manner, he entroached himbelf with having brought a cloud eproached himseif when hy his ows actions.
"Have I pained you, Beasie $?$ " he repeated.
"I feared the old trouble was coming back," sb "hispered.
"No, no; it must not, it ehall not, Bessie! I im to blame-but if you knew what this wretched lisposition makes me suffer! Every heare only you in my early life deceiv, Perhaps it was natur
Perle wifaly jealonay at having the ahould feel a ren to their closeat confidence; her fane was over clouded for an instant, but she subdued the feeling ind said, kindly
"I know what you have suffered, dear; I can underatand the effect it has had upon your chara ter-but you may truet me-indeed you may"
He drew her oloser to him; for a few moments he sat with her hand among the short, dark eurls of his hair, then she ssid, abruptly

of his hair, then "Grantley ?"

"What io it, dear?
"I want to ask you something.
"It can't be anything very terrible; you naed not henitate so."
"Nothing ever can seem foalish from yourlips," "Nothing ever can seem foolish from yourlips," he said, eoftly; and she blushed like a girl at his praise.
"That woman you-you loved once," she suid;

"was she dearer to you than I am r"  "Was she dearer Mellen's face darkened.

"Let me hlot out all thought of the time," he exelaimed, passionatsly; "I would like to burn out of my soul every trace of those years in whioh cold against her in a may which volumen of prolestationse could not counteract.
"There is no "uch clond between us $P$ " he anid ${ }^{\text {again. }}$ Sbo, Grantiley, nol" Sbe spoke almont sharply.
oD Don't be angty
with me, Elizabeth."
"I am not, indeed I am not!"
She was rpakking girmly now-her voice was a little hard, like tbat of a pertoon malding an effort to little hard, like t.
appear natural.
" I am not angry, hut I ank you to reason-to reffect. What eecret could I have-what mys tery
"N
"
"
"None, wife, none; I know that!"
"Ind am-I will be."
For a few momente they sat together in eilence, thon Mellen anid:
"Eren in your
"ceretl"' in your past, Betsie, you have no "None," she answered, and her voice was perfectly open and sincere now. "There in not in all my girlbood the least thing that I could wish to my girlbood the least thing that I could winh to conceal from you; it passed very quietly, it was conceal from you; it passed very growing very dreary and cold when you came with your love and earried me away to a brighter sun"It is so sweet to hear such words, Bessie !" he rhispered, as hia face grew gentle with the tids of tenderness which warmed his heart. "Wo have heen separated so much, had so little time to realise our happiness, that neither of us have quitt eanmed deat ohild ?"
"It may be," she exclaimed, and her roice deepened with nudden intensity. "Oonly trust me my husband; truat and love me alvaye.
"Always, Bessie, always! My darling, I hav only you in the wbole world-all my hopes, my love, centre upon you-I am like a miscr with one treasure which he tears to lose."
"Only a treasure to you," sbe said, phyfully you would be astonisher soeve" what a common place pebble it is to other people",
"That is not so: you know it, Be
"Never mind how it may be; if I am preciou in your ejes it ie all I ask."
So they talked one nather into serenity for the time. Tbeir married life had been so atronge that it was natural enough much of the entbusiasm of overs should revsin-even in their old difficultien tbere had been none of the commonplace quarrels uickiy than a trouble which atrikes deeper ever quicki
"Sinee I oume back," Grantley said, "I have somotimes thought it might be a little feeling tomards Blaie which made you to strange.
"What feeling hut kindness could I have?" ohe "True; ; twould not be like you, Bessie., You love her, don't you it mae through her we knew each other-remember that."
eneh ondortin
"I do, and very pleasantly; hut I have no need to think of that to be kind and getle with herwhen have you seen me other wine
"Never; I I can honestly fay never!"
"Never; I I can honestiy हa
"No,
"When I married you, Grantley, your aister became mine-I could not he more anxioun for her more willing to guard and cherish her, if she had been a legacy from my own dead mother than I been a legacy from my own dead mother than I "I am certain of that, and I love and honor you for it. But in yonr place 1 should perhaps be annoyed even to hare a sister share affection with "ano." is not like gour love for me-", "No, no; no love could be like that! But Eleie buch a child, sueh a happy, innocent ereature, and I never look at her without rememhering my dying mother's inat words. If any hazm came to dying mother'g inst words. If any hasm came to her, Beesie, $I$ think $I$ conld not even venture to eet that lost mother in beaven.
"No harm will come to her, Grantley-none
"I think she is one of those creatures horn to be happy; I trust sbe may never have a great trial in be would fade like a flower.,
"It is in possible to tell how any one would re. eive suffering," Elizaheth replied; "sometimen and find an elasticity whioh prevents sorrow taking deep root
"It may be so; but I could not bear to have any pain oome ne nern own heart.
"Could any one be more lighthented and careless than she is ?"
"Oh, the is happy as a bird-only let us keep her so." into the utmost sacredneas of their affee-Even fon that sinter's image must be hrought-it did cause Elizabeth pain in spite of all her deniabher face. But the foeling passed-the fwoe cleared again, and while it brightered under his loving mords the sitength of a great resolution settled words the strength of a great resolution settled Jown upon it.
They ant there talking for a long time, and it was the happiest, most peaceful day thay had spent sine Mellen's return.
After a time Mstlee proposed that they should oout to ride, for the affernoon Was sunny and go out to delightrul.
"A long gallop over the hills will do you good," he said; " the thono."
While he ordered the horace Elizabeth ment up to her dreasing-room to put on her habit,
She dreased herself without ansistance, and with and the light of excitemeat to her ayse.
"I will he happy", she muttered; "I mon't thiok! I can't look back now; it is too late; only let me keep the door of the past shat and go on tomards the futare."
As she stood before the glass, gaxing ahently nt the reflection of her own face and repeating those calling her from the hall below.
loor."
She
She broke away from her reverie and harrieù ownstrire, where he met hcr with a fond smile and a ner pride in her unue cal benuty.
good," he said.
"It is not that, Grantley-not that.
He looked at her tenderly, underatanding all that " Ber wordn meant.
"Because we are happy" he whispered.
"With sour love and
With your love and oonfidenoe to bless $m y$ life I hnve earneetly.
He led her down the atepp, seated her upon her orsee and tbey rode amay down the hill to the gato of the road.
"W
"We will go over the hille," Grantley said; "the ir is so delighttal there, and one has such $=$

"I believe you would be wretched away from your darling nea," anid Eliza beth, laughing.
II do love it, when I was a boy I do love it, when 1 was a boy my one desire wha to be a sailor. Some time, Besrie, we will bave a yacht and go cruising about to our heart'" content; after Elsie la marrisd, for she suffero so ireadfolly from fright and iline ss.
"It would be very pleasant, Grantleg."
"Would it not? Just you and I alone; it would he like having a little world all to ourselves, Allons, Besse; here is a nice level place for sallop; wake Gipay up.
They rode on swiftly, growing so light-hearted and joyous that they were laugbing and talking reach of all the fbadows which had darkened their hearts during the past days.
chaptrr xxi.
Wrise Mellen and Elizabeth rode off through he husband and wife galloping down the avenue and as they entered the hall, Elsic said:
"They have left us to amuse ourselves the hest
"ay we can ; mbat sball we do, Tom Fuller ?"
"Ym rendy for anytbing,
"We might tgo out rowing.
"Oh, Elisie"
"Only Grant would be angry, and you have grown as much a rraid.
old "Thomas the aat."
"No wonder, whera you are concerned," cried Tom, "I can't think of that dreadfal day without "I don't allow myoulf to think of it at all," naid Elaie.
She led the way into the library and sat down in a low chnir, throwing off her garden-hat, and be gioning to arrange the flowers which she held in hee hands.
"What color is this, Tom ?" she asked, holding up a delioate purple blossom that as if frint with ite own perfume.
Tom's want of eye for color was a never-failing ource of amunement to her, and now Tom looked very serious and wise; then strer an instant's reflection he eaid, in tbe tone of a man who #as reffection he eaid, in tbe tone of a man who was "Thnt's blue, of courrse; I am not quite hlind
and hatever you may think.
Eloies somed wima diight.
"Oh, sou delicious old goose! I suppose you "Yes," pink ?
Tight this time "I , confident that he must be pere on would have to call that pink."
"It's the most delicate lavender," cried Eleie in freeh sbrieks of extasy at Tom's bliodness. Oh, I never samw such a stupid in all $m y$ life."
Tom rubbed his forchead for an instant, gave his tawny locks a reproachfol pull, then Elsieie's laughter proved so contagious nerriment an hearty na her own.
"I don't euppone," said Tom,
idiot on the fape of the earth as 1 mm ."
"I really don"t kuppose there is," replied Elsie, andidly.
"It is absolutely beyond beliet," asid Tom
"It is," ano mered Elsie.
And I aball never be any hetter," oricd Tom.
"I have told you so a thousand times," rejoined Eirie, humming a tune and inclined to perfect ruthfulneas.
Tom's face lengthoned for an instant, he gave hin hair another unmerciful twitch, then he said:
"And you think there's not the least heip for
"Not the very least in the world, Tom, not a glsam of bope! But don't feel had about it; I am firted of brilliant men; everybody is something wonderful now-a-days; it' realy ratiguing" ${ }^{\text {Do you think no }} \mathrm{F}$ " demanded he; "do you
"Upon my honor."
Ym glad I am a donkey," asid Tom energetleally.
" $\Delta$ nd
vo
how pretty my Howers look.
She held up wers look." dolicious fragrance.
"You take the oolor quite out of them, holding ham near your chesks," said Tom, with a glanoe o admiration.
I declaro you are getting complimentary
Yon shall havis a rooebud for your buttonhole in Yon shall have a rosebud for your buttonhole peyment; kneel down hars, while I put it in."

Tom dropped on his knees while Elsie lelsurely aelected the flower; the was talking all the while, prolong the operation indefinitely, for the pleasure of baving her fittle face so olose to his, and her hands flirtiag the blossoms about his lips.
"No," pursued she, "I am tired of hriliant men; they almays make my head ache with their men; they always make my head aohe with their grand talk. You know I'm a childish little thing grard talk. You know I'm a childish little thi Tom, and leurned diseussiono don't suit me." "You're a fairy, a witch, an enchanted $p$ "Ss 1" oried Tom.
"And everghody must obey me," replied Elsis.
" Perhaps a verbena would look hetter than a reneud, Tom."
Tom cared very little what she put in his buttonhole; a thistle, thome and all, Fould have been precious to hira if her hands had touched it, and rith an exquisite sense of enjogment. "No, the rose is the prettiest," said Elise, and the threw the verbena away, and begnn her task she thr
"Are yon tired; do you want to get up, Tom ?"
" You know I'd rather be here than in hasven !" exelaimed.
Elisie gave him ons of her bewildering glances.
You don't mean that," said she; "you know "I do Io I

I do, I do! Oh, Elsie!
"Keep still, keep etill,' she interrupted. "You "'ve lost the pin; no, here it is." ve lost the pin; no, here it is,"
She was so
ent quite close to his, her falr ow that her fae heeks, her breath stirred the'hnir on his templee, and the intoxication of the moment carried Tom He all power of self-restraint.
He snatched Elsie's two hands and cried out "I muat speak; I shall die if I don't! I haven" aid a word since I oame back; Iknow it'e useless She I love you, Elsie, I do love you.
She struggled faintly for nn instant, then allowed into his fuce through her drooping lashes till Tom, hsad fairly reeled.
"Don't be angry with me," he pleaded; "don't drive me away! 「'll never open my lipr; just let me speak now! You can't think how much I love you, Elsis. I'd cut myeelf into inch piecss if it would do you any good. Id die for you."
"I would rather yon lived," whispered El
"I would rather yon lived," whispered Elisie. Tom caught the words; a mad hope eprang up in his honest heart; he
"If you could only learn to love me" he went n, hurriedly; " I'd be a alave to you, Glsie! I am rich now; I could give you everything your heart desired; if you could only eare for me; such lote of candies and pretty things.
"You sared my life, Tom," ahe returned, in that ame tbrilling whisper which shook hie every serve.
"Oh, don't hring that np an a clnim," he naid What was I born for except to he useful to you But I love you so; if you could only make up your mind to endure my ugliness and my awkward waye." "Xou are too great a big fellow to be ugly," said Elsie; "and I don't care if you are awk ward. I am sick of men that walk about like ballet"You only say that out of goodnature," said "om; "you are afraid of hurting my feelings."
"Don't I alwsye eay what I think ?" rejoine ou couldn't fove
"Xou have toid me so three times already." "Of course I'm making a fool of myself," "Of course," हaid Elsie.
But all the while there wan something in her face nd voice which made him persevere. He had ever thougbt to speak such words to her again his was the last, last time ; but he would open hi
In his great love and excitement Tom forgot his hashfolness, his awkward tricks; he did not halt in rords, that must have awekened at least a feeling of respect in any woman's bosom.
"I tried to cure myself," continued Tom. "I hought ahsence-entire change-might make a inerence in my feelings. But whe my love grown ecper from the lapse of time, with every feeling
"Good old Tom I" murmured Elsie; "honest and "Girmly centre"
"Goo
true ${ }^{\text {" }}$ "
"You speak kindly," he said. "You pity meah, that is pity mel But you couldn't love me oh, that is impossihle! Let me get up-1 mustn' talk any more-let me go!"
But Elsie's hand still rasted upon his shoulder,

and she did not atir

"You could not love me," repeated Tom; "never, "I was silly and vike no ever so many times." wiscr now.
Her Fords lifted Tom into the seventh heaven He cried out:
"Don't trifie with me now, Elsie-not just now
-I "oulan't tatand it!"
"You don't mean that you care for me? No, me, Elsie ?
His voice was broken and low. He waited for her to puilh him away, to hreak the spell rudely, but to rest there with a eareasing promsure, as a bird settles on a fondling hand, and still the fair curls rept his cheek.
"Elvie! Elcio
mingled emotiona.
"Good old Tom," she murmured ngsin, "honest "Ob, that you are in oarneot1 May 1 hope ?" he "most nobbed. "Could you take me, Elifie? Let most nobbed. "Could you take me, Etrie? Let "You mould groon tired of potekng me."
"Nerer, never! You kno it it"
 ture; you would never have a mill of of jour in my.
"I woult want it 1 wouldn't ask it!"
"I should twat it "I should firt and drive yon wild."
I would never (ry to stop joul."
"I Fould never try to stop gout."
"I hooud tease you incesssantly:

"Only try me and see."

She give s wicked laugh at his distress
"So you really were in anmest"," he di, dmanded
"Ab, now you are angry-now you hagin to hat
"Never, Blnie! If you tore my heart and atamped on it I could not bate you." "tamped on it, I could not bate youi"
"But,, ou are angry; and you said you could he patent. "Iould, it you cared for me only the least hitp,
"Oh, you selfish monster! There, Tom, kneel
"On, On, you selfish monater! There, Tom, kneel down again; jou have ehaken my flower out or your coant, wid Tom, passionately; "I oan't ploy now! No, Thin is dreadulearnest to me, Elsie, however reeat sport tit may be to you."
"Then your efuse my gift $\}$ ".
"I can tif

I can't trifte now- ion't ask it.",

hellere 1 bbail go crazy.
Very well. If yourefuss memy one little wish!",
Th stay if you want me to,", cribe Tom, Till

 he interrupted.
TOm fairy groaned.
"I
Tom fniriy groaned.
"Ido helicye you are a witoh, Elsie; one of those mow women in the old Gerrana stories.", or thos. lossome about bis head and crowning him wit
Their brightnesss Tom doshed of the flowers in a hlind deppair ever come when you will be sorfy, Einie,",
He was so pale and trembled so violently as ha trove to rine from his knees that she was abso-
"utely territied, "rook so!" she exolaimed. "I only Wanted to tease jou. I wouldn't have, you teave ne for the world ; T thould be wretehed 1,

"Tom, orurre a gope-what you onll a goney!"
"I know it, dear!"
"I Enow it, dear!" "
"And you are just as blind na a bat."
"I suppose I am," he repied, dejected
 golng into a great excitement." "Don"t you know

"Great Mr. Windom!", snid she mockingly "Then oan't you understand don"t you see ?""
He looked at her in bevidered surprise. Sbe was similing tenderly in "Elie!
be cried
"Elaie! be cried.
Sele let her.fand fall in hin.
"I don't want you to go," she "never love me-you will marry me ?"
She did not apeak; but she made no reenitance
Then Tom cuught her to his heart and rained kissee Midered to undertitud anything except that happi-
 and said, with her old wickedness,
"Tlltease youto death, Tom:"
"I
co-say 'I lore you!'"
"I do Iove you, TTom-there !"
In an in intant she flasbed up again, while he was

"No more sentiment," enid she. "Let's be ceasonabee, Tom ; the eatastrophe has reshed a
But it was a iong time before Tom Fuller conl regain compooure enough to taik at all Fubler could or in whity, or in What eleie termed a sensible manner.
"It's so nudden," he said. "And to have so "It's so audden," he said. "And to have so much happiness just when 1 thought the last rope much happiness just when 1 thought the last rope was going out of my hand! Why I feel like the fellow who olung all night to the side of a preci-pioe, expecting overy moment to be dabhed down a pioe, expecting svery moment to be dashed down a tbousand feet, and when dayllight came found he had hung within a foot of the ground all the while?" "The comparison is apt and delicious,", suid Elsie, laughing.
"And fou love me! Only zay it again, Elsiejust onee ?
I won't " ssid she. "But Ill box your eara if Tom gave one of his burnta of haughter that fairly shook the room, caught Elaie up in his arme nnd sin twice with her scross the floor, paying no more ran twice with her scrose the floor, paying no more attention to her cries and atruggies than if she had been a baby.
"That's for punishment!" snid Tom. "Let me down! Plene let me down!" pleaded Elie. "I know you'll drop me! Oh, you hurt me, Tom!
But Tom took emple revenge in the way of kisses hefore ha releasem her, then he placsd har on the sofs and saated himself by her side. But she atarted away and ran upatairs, sending baok a laugh of ass

THE DANISH WAR.
mig.
The war which the German States began sgatnat Denmark, oatenuilhty to support the claims of ed even with that mask. The Tbe movement is controlled, not by Germanic Confederation which Eindled the fire, hut by Prussia and Austria. Prukeja fights for conquest. Alrendy Hoistein is conquest. Alrendy Holatein is spoken of as ahout to he annexed to her present dominions. SchiesWif may ultimateiy be ieft to Denmark. In this duchy the Dauiah eiement is strong. As might be expetted in so mixed a popuit tion, expested in Danioh spmpathisers in tbe southera portions of the country and men of German 4 proelivitry and men of German " proeivi-ties in the northern; Dut, manene.
ral terma, the dyigions of the peo. sulterme the dyvisions of the peo.
dese we have stated. Stil pie are nearly ommixed DaneE.
Our iliasiration this week in good Evecth of the Saxon army rood ayeteh of the saxon army rain entering Rendiburg, a town in the Germaic portion of the terin the ritory. $\qquad$
Ir is a gross error to sup pose that sou ryd yourseif of an rouhtesome acqusiutance hy iend nod, hy Jovel gentlo reader, it only enconruged his visite all the morei

v, g. steamer acagia and steamtug iris mataing theis, marci $\theta$ making reconno.saano of the setion Alhown in our aketels, the engaging of the rehel hatteries by tive $U$. eketels, the engaging of the rcael hat Irfe. The expe-

 the merriment conuted smoen nives men by a view in enother fournal men by a view in sonther pournal of the "Hoiniting of the Starn and Stripes at Sonrise." Stripes at Sunribe. "We were not awure," suye he uof any change in existing regula of any crange in existing regulaione atering the time for toititigg
the enal gn from the uaual hour sinter) to annriae, The caremony superintended by an omicer (by

 has ${ }^{\text {nt }}$ his eword on the wrong
ide. No wonder। who ever inw Licut-Commander on deek at an-rise
We reffrin
from speakin of the remarkiti, gun-cariage, or of the joily tar sithing on the rall of the quarter-deck."

BEAUFORT, N. C
Brausort is an important piace in North Carolina, periodfret nnd fume over our poasession of their fen const. Our aketch ives of their sen conat, Our aketch gives a yew of Besufort, from Morelvead eity. Beanfort was, in other days, a port nand is dedended by Fort galiantiy taken hy our forces. The the Highthe ase en Cope Lee Kontin fortunotely etill atandthate. Ittomer huilding aro fem churchse and nominailes.

FURNITURE,
FURNITURE,

DEGRAAF

WHoLTBALE AND RETAIL,  BY

$\operatorname{mish}_{\text {pisying }}^{\text {pin }}$

W Antri, a strong adhestve plaster, to make Why is a sheep like a new dress? BeWHut simillarity is there between a nose "PaPA, do people buy snuff?"

Pnblishsd this Day.
VIOMOIRIA, the heiress of castle cliffe. by coubin may carleton. illostratrd by Darley.
Price 50 cents, paper covera; 75 ota, honnd in cloth.
 writirgz aways art, we fanoy niber mbieved by yarimicea

Cnuelin May Carleton's Novels.
SYBLL CAMPBELL; Pr, THE QUEEN OF THE SILVER STAR; or THEE MYGERE OF FON

Latest Invention

 IN GOIN IPINES JUST OUT.After yearaof putbent resarch th hus been demon-prices.

 Eamole Psns.

 Pointess all thio Elasticity of the most Exppanive Grild

Now Cataloguo of Jowelry sont froen Hos.
Addrest
Providence
Baker's Rheumatic Balm,
 ure four remedeg which no family should be ever WRthout Prtco si per bottle esch. BAKER'S KIDNEX AND AGAVEL REMEDIES, storooscopic Viows and Cartos ds Visits.

"Diphtheria."

Popular Glee Books.

$$ 10$ AGENTS

& TAYLOR
formerly h. P. degraaf),
No. 87 Bowery, New York.
This entabishment is six storeys in height, and extends 242 feet through to No. 65 They

Their stock consists, in part, of

KOSEWOOD, PAREOR AND CHANKBER FURNHMURJ

Mahogany anu Walnut Parlor and Chamber Furniture;
Also, CANE and WOOD SEAT work, all quallites; HAIR, HUSK and SPRTNG MACTRESSED, a large 6tock; KNAME 822 to $$ 100$.
TUCKER'S NEW STYLE PATENT SPRING BED The best as well as the cheapest of any in nse. Retail price, $$ 2$ each. Their facilities for manufacturing defy competition. All work guaranteed as represented.

25 Csnt Lsgal Tendsr Circular.
$15 A DAY AND A WATCH FREE !

 ontstrips oompetitors.

1,000 Aganta wantcd. Samples 50 cts. Address WEIR & C..., 505 Cherant St., Fhilla S75 A MoNTH :I went to hire Agent in every

The Great Mansy-Making Articlo.
 mind for

EOSTHTYTER"E celimbratyp

STOMACH BIMIPRS

REINFORCE NATURE.-After hiving hlundered in the dark for sges the world at hest he gine to unthrow off tho attaecks of dipease through the agenoy

 great Tonle ppon which experlence has taught the pahilo to rely, ge omens of hovizorating, reguluting nd protectinE Rll the fronortant organs of the body 亚 Bold by all Draygita and Family Grocer
world

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, PREPARED AFO SOLD BY HOSTETTER & BMITH, PITFBBUBG, PA,

Attention, Company !

 free without stian or wury to the skin. Any person
neing this onguent ond inding it not oi repreatited (hy informing me of the fuct), can huve their money roturned to them ot any time within three months from divy of purchise. Price 81. sent besled and

Army Badges !

MADAMI BENEDICT's

Millinsry & Drsssmaking Establishment Is now replete with Eivery Impirted Novelty of the Seasou. Gold! Gold!
Full instruetions in Ventrilogniem, sna how to win
the tundying lone of the oppositisex, sent hy mall to

GOLD! GOLD! GOLD!
100,000 WATCHES, CHAINS, &c.
WORTH $$ 500,000$,
Te he seld far One Dellor eaoh, without regari to vatne, and not to be paid for until yon lrew what you ree to get. Send 20 oconto for 9 Crrtincate, which will infer tin evarr Hogriont and Town in the Country. Wan

The World's Conqueror !
 nothe of this medietne iereft, Send fur iirculiar and you whil he oonvined. It has no eqaal. Priee $$ 1$.

"Album Gems." Something New, Gay and
 ing the $20 ;$; etto., eto. Price only 8 cente eacb, or $$ 1$
Prict ing the $200 ;$

W21 Washlagton St,, Boston, Mes

MOSKWA!

For Cironio and R nammatory Rheumplikn, Hip

 | hothes |
| :---: |
| coo |

Tountain Pon-No inkand required One

A Now Book.

Shults' Onguont.-War fanted to produce afill

 | $\begin{array}{l}\text { sent, postp } \\ \text { rroy, }, \mathbf{Y}\end{array}$ |
| :--- |

Soldiers Robbed !

 tograpast Sumple Belt sent free by return mail o

Sensible Present

F'or a Soldier.
One of Howards Pat. Money Bolty witer and weet prool with compirtrineats for Lettert, Green hack und Photographs. They are Light, Darahle hand Elegunt. sent to ony part of the country free,

FMLPLOEMENT

THOUSANDS CAN REALSTSA A HONDRED

 Btampe for refurn postage Adire ene
BROWN, No. 74 Bleceker Street, N. X
Boautiful False Moustaches 60 osnts

 Dow to nake 8300 in avery short timo. No owneial required.

W. FORSYTH & CO.
 WATCHES, CHAINS, JEWELRY, ETG.

Valued at $$ 300,000$ !

Arucin ore Dollar, and mot

The artales in this atook of Jowely ars of the neat.

 dueomente to these who buy largely. Bi colar. Addrets
W, roBsyin

 Will if any parson they cheose, instantly. This atmple

Ten years in the Business. Patrons counted by thousands in every State of the Union. A Preminm for all! Lwans' Ne'se Enterprise, 1864, $500.000 worth of New Goods, conststing of

Golu und Silver
Watches, Jew;elry, Vest and Guard Chains, Gold

Pens, Pencils, Lpekets, Medallions, Setts of Jewehry, &e., &e., together with a large line of goods especially adapted to the wants of our Soldiers, Army and Navy, to be sold in Lots at One Dollar Kaoh, and not to be paid for until you lanow what you are to receive. Premium Orders for above goods, sent to any address, on reesipt of 10 cents.
send your oraera to G. G. ETANS, Publisher, 630 Chestnut Street, Pa, Philaidelphia, Pa. of Bo A passine witi Price Alstsor or Photograiph Card Pletures and Albums,

sent

G. G. DVANS, Philadelphia, Pa.

| Straight IMair IMade Wavy.      For Sale st Varlety Storea, |
| :---: |
|  |  |
|  |  |

Sevino Machines

CHLOASMA, OR MOTH PATCHES !
Blemishes on the fice, called Moth, are every snoy ing, particularly to Hiseoiered spoto on the akin show more etrongly on hlondes thmin on hrunottec, mat they contribute greatly in marring the heanty on eltherf, mnd anything that will remove moth patchea, without injurlag the ekin in texture or coolor, would no dount hy conting the exed a guarantee to remove Moth Patches, Freekle, wad
 this an in otber hranches of his specialty-DisEAsBs
OF THE SOATP And Coss or HAIE-will warrant him

Sterooscopic Views, Cartea de Visites-New,
Bjoks, send for Cataloguc, C. B. HARRISON, Bo. Oisex 2,11, Botton, 13asa,

The Old Dstabliehod and only rellahlo Purdeairlog niything they see adve rtioed or any laform | colar |
| :--- |
| $453-8$ |

I. W. BINICEEE

PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY,
No. I Naw Chambert Street,

 All othor Photographe np to lite sizo colored in out or water at the mott rensonsble prices.
Are Purticular attention given to Copying Carde ar Abotypen into Large Photegraphe. The bmalle it Every attention palu 10 vialtor" ul

S. M. WVARD do CO.

Manufacturing Jewellers, 208 Broadway, New York.

The ehove ents are dentgne of New Army Pins which we have introduced. They are all made in fine Gold Plate, und will he sent for 8180 . We have niso a new tyle of Cavairy Pin, made of Solld Bilvar, pare coln, with your Name, Regiment and Co, handeomely cugraved thereon, for 41 so. Aleo, Solid Siliver Stiolis, or oither Army, Corph, Diviaion or Co. Pia, ongevin as implar powart to reitore yaded and pray hatr to fto harig innt ing ont, no overcome effecta, of provelous nes of pr
ing parations containing sulphar, magar of lead, &c, snd to remove the lmpuritles and humore of the scolp. Invaluable dreening for whikkarg:
HOYTS MINAEHAHA HIR GLOSS,

 mpprtt heanty to the complexion, amootsmess to the kifin , and preserves yonthfulneas of appearance. Sold

Swords, Sashes, Belts.
Wholceale and rotati. Ateo, Brasentation Suords.
$431-65$
B. KITTRDGE & OO, OInctimati, 0 .
Do Yoin Want to get Married ?
"Coortehip Mrede Eafy." A Book of 100 plages ninntratad. Treeting on " Puychomancy" Plaini showtring how eilthur sex onn fsseltante, win the un dyini dyling Cove, and marry whoever they wigh, irre

 state or Kentuolky.............1,366
State or Kadiana.............. 760 General Ripleg................... 150 Colonel Collina............... 280
 Capt. Whybaok' Co., Rolla, Mo. Capt. MoGee's "4 Loxington, $\begin{array}{ll}\text { Oaph. Huater', } & \text { "t Sedalla, Mo. } \\ \text { Capt. Olds' }\end{array}$ LLavxirworit, Oct, 12, 1852.
 STA ND OF COLLORS, in $n$ content agalnet THRE Shoot ot tho command "Five, We were OUT-NUMBERED TWO HONDRRD whots by the in. ankes ont of 100 nhots. The grestas number or hin hy suy infantry company was 13. Thns eatahiphin the euperiority of the KTTTREDGE (Wenaon) Gum To MAJOR BEAW, St. Lools, Molo, 1et KABsas Cav. 433-44
The Confessions and Experienoe of an Invalid.
 bility Promsturng Deeay, etc.; Bupplying at the sum

Whas wion wiskiovc WEDDINE CARDS.

000

Tho suita are Engles. Shuelps, Stars end Frase Colonol in place of King; Goddeas of Liberty for Quren ; Major for Juek,
The
Col The Union Plasing Cards are the first and only are entcred acoordiog to Act of Congrees, they oan b asnufactured only hy the Amerieas Csrde Company.

 ${ }^{\text {krsde, }} \mathrm{T}$ wo Snmplo Pucks, in Card Osees, Eeat, posttpald Ihatrimonv:-Why every man ahould mart

 Street, New Yor

Gray's Patent Molded Collars

Have now been hefore the puhlic for nearly s year
They are nniversuily pronouneed the neategt and best Thting oolinat extant. the nagles noticed prosenta a perfect onrvo, free from The oravatemanes no puckere on tho inside of the turn-down oullur-they sre $A 8$ BMOOTH tarn-down oollur-they are A8 8MOOTH INSIDE
As OUTBIDND-and therofore perfeotly free and essy
to the neck. to the neck,
the Garotte
odge on pootte collar has a emooth and evenly fula hed ont hese CoHiara are not elmply fat pleces of paper ont the form of a collar, but are MOLDED AKD eHapen To vit que NECK, They aremade in "Novelty" (or turn-down style), in every half kize from 18 to 17 inches and in

Sold hy all dealers In Men's Farniehing Goods, The Bold hy all dealers $\operatorname{lo}$ Mrea's Farniohing Goods, T rrade sapplud by

Do Eou Want Fuxuriant Whisters or Moustaches?
MY ONGUEFT Wil forse them to Grow henvly

WATCEES.

$$ 14$ 4 ter mand has of the pperemernece of $$ 1$

$15

The Great Now Ary Woth

A Ladytrery elegnt Enilith

Ambers, Watob-Extra Hewy
 Wm. Eluery.
Duivery hiondome Douk Time $$ 35$

perfoart wunting orrider taut in

Conotanty on thour hill

Morse  G피․ A. BLI & co.

10,000 ACENTS WANTED for tio

New York IKonthly.
Get Up Clubs: Get Up Cluba
 ay retur mult NEW YORK Movthir,

Royal ERavana Eottery.

THE BEST LITERATURE IfPBy the Best American Writeracl In found each month in the

Atlantic Monthly

$47 AMERICAN $47 TEVERS.

Trade Mark, P. S. Bartlett, Waltham, Mass, Full Jewelled, WARRANTED 4 , oints, fancy push pin, for $$ 47$.

(4) $A$

AMERICAN
METALLIC Ms COLLA Tbe only suam Hed "Turnor rn Conar mayo in

Great Chance to Mrake MKoney ! $$ 650,000$ of Watches, Jewelry, &c. GIven away witb oar STATIONEBY PBIZE
Every AGENT prrchning 100 PAt PERTS will re
 INGS, 1010 inveated will yield 850 A Agento can

Norrous Diseasea and Physical Dobilt

 roN, Howard Ass

To Consumptives!

 Tno Adverther, iavileg been reetored to heatith in md thit dread dieasis, prepo eare for Coss maprios, ABrime ' in senting the

BRIDCEWATER PANTT

O. VV, RPRTEHNGIEI GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHING GOODS.

 arge rook of Engitib Underclothing, werm Gloved

American, Ewiss and Diglish Watchos

FRANK LESLIE'S RLLOSTRATED NEWSPAPER.

FINE WATCH FREE! And $$ 15$ Pes Day NIade Fasy, orin worla.

Uso of Tobacco, in all forms, curid and

INFANTRY PIN FOR THE SOLDIER

 4250
A Socret Forth Znowing, -How to make

IVOPY Jevielpy:

 Sent free, on reeelpt of price. A great variety on Sent free ontecint.
hand, at 0

ERTMNDS OX SOTDIEES!
A ${ }^{\text {LL }}$ Warticlos for Soidiers at Baltimere,

Wives, mathers and Sisters,

 hanth yen wander thc expourra of a 25 cte, 88 then nand $$ 140$ per box or 8 ot.
" BIG THING?"
 Sirport, N. Y.

STAMMERING

And Stattering permnsuently oured by Bateogs of Pamphete and Drswinga desoriblag the game, ${ }_{0}^{\text {address }}$ H. C. L, MEARS, 277 Weet 234 St., N. Y.

10,000 Agents Wanted.

TEIr attention of our renders is respectfolly invitod Thich will be fouod in suotber part of tbis peper
when We are persoonally acqoainted with tor membirs of

 rity and thair fuil abitity to meet ali obligationa.
ATmy and Navy Gosedte.

Ask Your sutiex HOWARD'S PAT, MONEY BELTS, Tbey will not swent or wet through under any oirt caraetancee. Are Light, Doreble and Elegont, and armetade witb compartments for Letters, Greenbacks and Photographs. If your Suticr has not got tbem yoo can have ond sent to you in any part of the army by return mail (poetpaid) by nemdiog prloe (\%2), to the HO WARD BELT CO. 436 Brondway, N. Y.
Suthern. Agenta and Pedier wanted in evory Camp, Sutlera, A Aents Hoepital and City,

50 THRSM PRTMATUNES in 2863

GROVER & BAEMR'S Citibrated elabtio stitor

Semving Machine

Were awarded the Higbeat Premiams over all con petitors at the State Fairs of New York, Vermont Iowa, Yndiana, Midehlgan, Iulinois, Kentuaky, Pennsy lvania, Ohio and Oregon, and at ovey Invtitute and County Fuir held in 1883.

Salesrooms, 495 Broadway, N. Y.
250 Rare Receipts Tolls What to Do, And Howito Do Tbe bent Fardily Receipt Book ever pubilibed

Eruman Eraces

AND "SIGNS OF CHARACTEB," Hinatrated Loor Newe from Dreamland. Mind aod Body,
Our Socisi Relatona. AMapy Womnt. Six Gene

 Eaetiborn. All this and much more given In to APRIL No. HiLUETRATED PRRENOLOGIVAK JOUR Addreas 20
FOWLKB & WELLS,
NA

87 army  watcris $$ 7$

A Beant fol Fingraved Gold-Plated Watch, Donble
 $$ 15$ European Timekeeper $$ 15$ OR COMrAss wachin

 et in the movemente-making it a eorrset Guide
he Soldier or Traveller $\rightarrow$ perfeot TImekeeper the Soldier or Traveller -B perfeot Mmerepper
" Farranted one year," will stad aeta, and io in Exact Imitation of a $$ 107$ Gold Watch used by the British Army Offlcers. sent free, by maib, in Elegant Moroceo Cuse, for only $$ 15$. Esairsh Stering Silver Leveg Watches,

$$ 30 \mathrm{~A}_{\substack{\text { mevirians } \\ \text { Levers }}} \mathbf{S 3 0}$

In $40 z$, Coin Sliver Hunting Cases, Foll Raby Jowel-led, Gold Joints, Magic Spring, wilh Full Guarantec, only ${ }^{3} 30$, Real English Duplex Stop Watch, In Massive Silver Hanting Case日, Fnit Jewalled, Fuil Guarantee, Good Watcines, for Army nee, of gll descriptions. Wettbes. Catsorgae of tride prices mailed frce.

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE BYMAILOREXPRESS  Beady-Made or to Mensure, at $$ 33, $ 39, $ 45$ por do

 SELLEW- AHABUR WMEATE BOR SHIRTS. Pr'ted dire tiono for relf-measurement, fiet of pricos and $$ 150$ erch-all cot one yard long. A poetargo for each shirt.
Seod tbe Size of your Neck sleo.

STEWH.COKLARS

 ference to any other collar,
in one minato witb a apoge
To Military Men and Travelers they are invaitablo. Prico 70 eents cacb; sent by poe Union on the recelptot 90 centis. WHOLESALE AND BETAIL.
s Warred in every Town in the Unlon.
S. TV F. TTART,
J. W. EVERETT & CO. Whil formard to any sdiress, on receipt of order, PHOTOQBAPHS FBOM LIFE of any of the pro. uninent OFFCERS OF THE ARMY AND NAVY,
DIVINES

STHTEERSMEN, DIVINES,
 IT W, GVEBET
Bend for elroular.

FRENCH FLANMEL ARMY SHIRTS

FRANK LESLIE'S HLUSTRAMED

   }
3) 4 .
 リg qu Sp: pr ${ }^{2}$

[^1]
son formed of hooks and ladder, Lic, surmounta the front Modele of enginea of old and new styles,

 Next to the if the Rommo Departroeot, with the

In the apmece hetween theere, rsdlating nround the

 Fara; No. 33, to Drygoode; No. 3, Porcolata and has fo wast for the next mall for a letter.

Barnum's , American Museum.  $\mathrm{F}^{\text {OUR ENORMOUS GIANTS-Three Men }}$

Oscanyan's Oriental Album,

 of it Oneanyant Loetures
It the moet popuiur Alhum; should he seep on

 No. 37 L. OSACANETE Plwe, N. Y. frank Leslers
LLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.
NEW YORK, APRIL 10, 1884

terms for this paper.

terms for advertising.

Thas Puhiisher of Frank Leshit's IllussTRATED PAFER invites His preeat contrinutors and othera to sond in hefore May lat stories and poeme

Summary of the Week.

south carbolins
The hospital at Beaufort was burned on the 22d March. On the 19th the rehels made a weak attempt on Port Royal ferry. On the 20th an attack was made on Jenkins is land. kentucky.
Gen. Buckner is concentrating at Pound gap, his troops carrying five days' forage. Farrently undisturbed, and Gen. McCullogh is parently undisturbed, and Gen. Mo join him.
on his way North with 2,000 men to The rebels occupy Hickman.

GEORGA.
lines at Ringgold, Georgia,
The rehcl picket lines at Ringgold, Georgia, no desire to molcst each other is manifested by either party. The rebels are encamped from Tunnel hill to Varncss station, with from Tunnel hill about 35,000 men.
temnesseb.
A party of rebel guerillas, on the 28 th March, captured and burned a trading boat 70 milcs below Memphis.
The rebcils have made a raid on Magnolia. A naval expeditionup the St. John's captured, at Lake George, the rebel steamer Hattie Brock; with 100 halcs of cotton. Gen. Seymonr has heen relieved by Gen. Hatch, ILLNOIS.

The Secession sympathisers in Charleston made an attack on the Union men on the 28 th; seven persons were killed and several wounded. A large force has heen sent to the wounded. A arge forst accounts they were in force at Copairn's mills.

Gen. Pillow has hcen placed in command of the rebel cavalry in Northern Alabama. arkansas.
Gen. Stcele is moving South with 30,000 men. Cabel is at Washington with seven rebel regiments.
loushana.
Alexandria was occupled by our troops on the 16 th , the rehcl Gen. Taylor crossing the the rebels are concentrating.

On the 21 st Gen. Mower advanced to Na were in force and gave hattle, bat Mower flanked them and drove them off, taking 200 prisoners and four cannon.
On the 21st a hrigade of Union cavalry repulsed a body of the encmy beyond Alexandria. Gen. Steele.
Gen. Gano has some 7,000 or 8,000 Texans Semmesport.

virginta.

On the 29th a party from the Minnesota, under Capt; J. M. Williams, went up Chuckatuck creek, and captured a signat station, with a lieutenant and 20 men.
The rebels are digging riflepits on the Rapldan, near Raccoon ford, and tearing up the railroad from Fricdericksburg to Hanover Junction.

The Florida has left Funchal, pursued by the sloop-of-war St. Louis.
The rebel commissariat barquc Minedora has been detained at British Honduras.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, on the 29th of March, the
In the senate, logleing the lato Owen Levejoy.
Io the House, the Currency Act was debated, out no definite action was taken. In the Seante, on the 30th, Mr. Davin, of Kentucky, made a speech osocerning Slavery, aid after wome routme hullocss of little importance the Senaie日øjourned.
In the House, after some nulmportaot matters, , The House refolved itself into a committer on the bill House refolved thself into a committes on the bind amendatory of the IVatiooal Bink Aet. Mr. Ashley amendazory of the Natiooal Bink Aet. Mr. Abhley rehellicesis Stutes, sod the House adjouroed. In the Senate, on the 3 tat, the House bill orginising Territorial Government for Montaun wis tiken np ETerritoriad Government for Montana was taken np.
The ameodment offered hy Mr, Wilsiuson, of MinThe ameodment offered hy Mr, Wis siuson, in tho
necota, io effeet allowing osgroes to vote in tho Territory, was adopted by is vote of 22 against 17 , Territory, Whas adopted by os vote of 22 agninst 17 , nod the htd passed. Meesrs. Sauishury and Clark then made apeebes on the propoacd prohitition of then made apecobes on the propoacd prohivition of eiavery by an amendment of the Constitution, and the Semate adjuaraed.
In the House, Mr. Garfield, of Ohio, theo made astroog speech in fuvor of the bill making the Raritan and Deiamare Bay Railrond a mulitary and post rond expresing tho hope that Coogress would crukh out the Canden and Amboy mouopoly. The House thea weot Camden and Amboy mouopoly. The House then weot into Committee of the Whole oo the bill ameudatoryof into Committee of the Whole oo the bill ameudatoryof the Natloosl Bank Act. On Wedneaday the Coumittec agreed upon fixing the rute of interest for loass, so, at eix per cent.; on the, 30th this was reversed, and at eix per cent.; on the, 30th this was reversed, and the rate of eeven per cent. was adopte. St. Souis, Louis Bille, Chicago, Buffile, New Orleans, Ciocin

 In the Seanato, on the 1at of April, Mr. Powell endeavored to obtain the foor to Eret up his rewolution calling on the Secretary of War for informa.

 Exzecutlve
nuyb, 10 .
In the Hoase, Mr. Blaine introduced a hill to pro vide for refunding to logal States certain aumi

 conined to tide- Water or within oertata hounds. Mr.
Ward reported a olut renolution to give notice of thetermination ofthe Reolprocity Treaty with Canda

TOWN TOPICS

WE are well advanced into the spring, and yet inhe epring orope of Naw York, hy which we mean filagree bounety, gauzy fhawla, and tissue dresees, have not yyt fairly hegun to appear.
Whether thits in attrihatabla to the hackwerd seacon Whether thils in atcrilatabin to the hack hlow luto fall or to the litention of oor hellee to nower daring the Sanitary Fair week, it is impoenlile flower daring the Sanitary Fair week, tt is impoenhlile to way, hat eo far nothing hae agitated Broxdway of a ortiling style Words apoan they upon our pen we would say a few It thorougsiare, for the reseon that it ls mora used for the arst purpope. the irst purpoge.
Why is it that,
 slghts and oounds offenalva to tone eyes and ears of even the most hardened or caralosa are continnaly allowed to ogcur? During a walk from Cuusl atreet to allowed to ogcur? During a walk from Caush atreet to Foorteeoth atrect, one doy this week, we ware witacess to these pleasant ltems. A saw-fler, who hnd eatablished hls machine npon the curh, sal regaled the paseers-by with his digatatal murio. A pair of dronsen phir of dronken rowdies, ooc oearing an Americas figg, sud the other with un lindecent jabel on his hack, eihowing the promenadere, and treating their eara to hapdcuffed together, , ith h a tlirid, who wes poealbly policeman one of ukiform, walking hehind with policeman ont or ukiform, waking hethind with a revolver in his hand. Wa do not know what tbese men had heen doing, men had heth sumg, and it matters little in a dis.

cuation of the subject, hut we do knove ther were other streeta and other way to take them to thbir deatination than on for and discuating every one whoph Brosdway, offending In theatricals and opsra, the promises for the week are "Lucis," a Bobart le Dlable", and more week are "Lucls," "Robart le Dlable," and more Jolin Brougham, in the play of the " Trieh Emigrant" at Mra, Garden
We We notice that huge poatere are ovor the olty announcing the sppenrance of the so-calied Flli Zoyara at some of the hores theatres. We truat that the opportunity will not be lost hy the puhte of frowning down the disgusting deoeption that has for years heen earricd on hy this man. There is eomething es. manhood dominige the habilliments of a woman, hat when the net is occompanied by a wilful and stadled desire to decelve, lt deserves the most deonden Nrodame Methenencobeller th Winter cascleo. The Indy is no begiuncr, having only tranilatod hereelf from the German to the Figlligh stage, In persoo she in
of the Teutonio ty tye, light in comploxioo sed harma less in mauner. She bia muoh of the sceont and thiet of her audience rnther calculated to pletes. Ead "Loriter Wedding," and rechived tha support of company afkuming to support her

 the want of matneets or eftornoon entertainments.
Thert are thousand of lidise sul ohildrao , tho
who
 noon periormance if they hind rellianos on ite perfeot order and rempeotshillty. Thase are confined to the Why some of our firt-class theatre日 phould oot give an oceaflonal mantined ## do oot know. Catranly there can he no hetter tima for the oxpertment than there can hc no hetter tima for the oxperlment than (uring the Eanitryry Fait, when the olty will ho fulior trangere ooly in for the day, or cltezne oot for a

 the awan-ike motion that a hould be the prido or evsry womnn.
It may he intereating to our fashionahle miodistes
and dancizettes to know that Worth haa failed; not gave gre

For
of
of
toac

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.
Domostic. -A mestily Mus hald at he Chamber

 lint tinattaluona

 | $\substack{\text { that taino } \\ \text { Seward }}$ |
| :---: |

 tenoon.
 Shin ought to he wa poptad mithout dity

Elon hive bese ill the the ge duriog the pait

 Cannan Brothros" ounnot march in proeteilan with further spprebension 18 folt from Forrsat' force.

 coarse prepo
ncocted to.

 Gen. MeClermurd han gone oown the oile vilit to Arknonse Paes and Brownsile.
Military- The Newherre Tines of the 23d says:

Wo The Preddent has ommoted the eoterenco or his preseantation to queen Victoria $m$

 mont, Fax a gatier of Hon. Edward Evereth, and wos

 - Ir Friths platare of the Royn Marizge

 ever part of

SPRING-TIME VOICES.

by hanay c. watson.
How long the dreary Winter
Bxtends ita ehilling reign;
The snow-robed earth, so coldiy pare,
Will't e'er be green aghin? Will't e'er be green again?
We watch the fitful sunbeams,
For omens glad they bring;
The bluebirds twitter on the bough,
Sweet voices of the Spring.
The noise of rushing waters
The busy insects' ham,
The lengthened morn, the Ehortened night, Proclaim that Spring hes come
We hail these pleasant omene;
We iove the song they sing;
Sweet voices of the Spring!

A Night in a Strange Inn.

Hy F, E. Hxock.

Thes night was closing in, dark and gloomy; the sky looked threatening, and every hing betokened the near approach Misissipp were foaming, while the tall cliffs on its bank eemed to be holding communion with the demoni-acal-looking clouds. We knew it would be impossible to remain out in such a storm, so our little party of two determined to find shelter for ourselves and our horses at the neareat inn. I myself am of a nervous, excitable temperament, urged our beats onward to their utmost speed, though our hands trembled nervously as we clutehed the reins. Not a dwelling came in view for some time, but at last we caught sight of the Napoleon. Encouraged by this, our boldness returned to u8, and as if we had been men of nerve, and had never known fear, we walked our horses slowly to wards the village. We stopped at the first inn we reacher, not caring whether it were the Before we entered the rain was coming down in large dropu, and we thanked our luoky stars that we had resched a haven. We had been travelling for a firm in New York, who were in the habit trading with the Wearern merchante, and at the trading wime had been sent to collect their dues; consequently, we had considerable money with us. After haviog seen that our horses were well care for, we walked into tbe bar-room of the little inn. Here we first saw the landlord, and $Y$ was imme diately impressed with his strange appearance. could not obtain a full view of his face, because of head on one side whenever he looked towards me but I eaught a glimpse of a dark patch on that side of the face which he seemed so anxioue to hide. There were several men in the bar-room, some of them drinking very heavily, and convereing loud, bointerous tones; but the landlord extremely taciturn, never saying a word unless actually obliged to. I did not at all faney my host, and tbough I, etruggled very much against the in little out of the-way inns rushed to my mind His wife also was formidatle-looking. She was tal aud Amazonian in figure, white her face was one of which Shakd, cruel, though rather handsome one eye when he wrote of Lady Macbeth. In one corner of the room sat two men, who were playing be constantly losing, yet he showed no vexation, but laughed gaily, and nodded oceasionally to the All the with myself whether I atould supper I was debating panion to seelser I should propose to my com $\operatorname{ma}$ in where we were. I had come to the conclusion that the landlord, his wife and the man who was losing tis money at cards were joined in league against the winner, who appeared to be a drover witb plenty of money, and would, no doubt, rob or perhaps murder him in his sleop. Therefore I concluded that, although I hisd rather we had chosen some other sheiter, I woula not go wat bef leare I the I wold that before 1 elept 1 would bee that my pistols and I also resolved that I mould not alarm the latter by elling him of my fears, which might perhaps be groundless.
By this tim
By thig time the atorm had become almost a hur ricane. The wind howled around the house, an the heavy rain pattered againes the windowa an down npon the tin roofe of the outhouses. Then would come the deafening crashes of tuunder, one following the other in rapid succeceion. Amidnt our room in the upper storey. One solitary candle glimmered amid the gloom of the emall apartment, and this. I noticed, wae already more than three parts oonoumed. The ceiling waa very low, and part of the room wae heaped an imanenes pile of tween this pile and the door; and the one amall Findow in the room looked as ir it had not bee iking, and I made up my mind that I would not go to sleep that night, whatever my compsnion might do, eo 1 ordered the landlady to aupply me with and at firat demurred, but seeing that I was resolute che at last coneented, and agreed to send me one. Thie ehe soon did; but when I saw that it was a piece only about ae large"as the first I sent it hack, saying that I wanted a whole one. "Why, Frank, what do you want of it ?"" said my friend. I metely answered that I wanted to read a paper for awhile, and did not wish to have the light fail be ore I had finished. The mave, howerer, did not my demand, deseended the stairs to procure it When I renched the bsr-zoom the landlord, his wife and the man whom I suspested as an accomplice were wbispering together, but they stopped plice were wbiapering together, but they stopped when I entered, and the man walked oft to the ther end of the soom. The landlady declared that had had not o whole candle in the houce, and the best tbe had, adding, "if it doe had not suit you, you must go uneuited." I felt certain now that something was wrong, and hastened upataire sgain, minus the candle, intending to tell my friend all I had noticed, and with his assie.
find the drover, and together leave the house.
The storm was now abating, and I knew we could find our way to the next inn. But when I again resched and though not asleen, yet in such a somaiolent state as to heed little of what I said, and after meroly laughing at my vagarien (al he colled my fenrs), he covered his head in the sheet and wa eoon lost in elumber. I was astonished st his disregard of danger, but lost none of my own timidity in consequence.
I closed the door, but when I went to lock it found no fastening of any kind upon it, except to thic little reketty buresu. I pulled out a drawer, split of a piece of wood with my knute, and insert ed it over the lateh in such a way tbat no one could lift it.
The The littie room soon became intolerably warm, orced open the window, and split ofr another I then sat drom the drawer to prop up tho bask and the bugs of to read my paper; in the wind to visit my can the tion upor it.
In a ahort time the candle went out, and I was pose of watebing Stlll I did not give up my purthe open window trying to peer into the darkness. All sounde in the house gradually ceased, and Arthur's heavy breathing alone brose the efilness, rubbish at the end of the room. I throw away my cigar, and seized my pistols. Oh! bow I wishe tbat Arthur would stop his loud breathing just for some time, and then lit a mateh and held it to $m y$ watch, to see how late it was. It was half-pabt Jnst at that moment I heard footsteps outsid my door, and a light shone through the cracks. stepped softiy to the door and histened. Ther were more than one there, I could heer, but I ha At pill hazerds I w ould protect my-sleeping friend. I heard a whisper. It whe the woman'e yoice. did not let him have it
"Hueh!" said one whom I imagined to be the Then the foolsteps moved on a little way, and 1 cautioualy removed the stick I had placed over the latch, and opening the door a htue, looked out. But what was my horror at seeing on the opposite wall, in the dim lignt of the landlord's eandic, smull spot of blood.
The guilty couple had gene into the room next o ours and had left the door open. My blood thought, and perhaps it will he our turn nex Even now, perhaps, the drover lies weltering in hy blood in the adjoining room.
I could stand tbe horrid thought no longer. Betder, than be trapped in our fittle dungeon by some machinery contrived by this vile landiord. I atole towardar "Thise
"Iandlord has been a hard night's work," said the "But suppose any one had seen us $i$ " rejoined the roman.
"Ah?" said I to myself. "They little think that the avenger is at hand!
"Still," said the landlord, "our work is not yet finished. We must get rid of all of them."
On hearing him utter these words I rughed into "Aha! wretches, you are fonnd out. Yield no or I fire." But the next moment my hands dropped at my side, for I saw wbut a cowardly fool I had been. The landlord and his wife, giving me credit for being a maniac, were standing terined belor me in their night attire. I saw at a glance that they had merely been silling mosquitoes sad roaches, and the stealthy oteps and whispering ight the flannel petticoat, short gomm and ruffled sight tbe flomnel pethightesp of my landlady. After thia diseovery I apologised to the couple, muttering something apout bad dreame and nightmare, and then went to my room, undreseed and laid myeelf down at Arthur'a oide. As soon as my nerves became a little quieted I went off to sleep, and dre being hung for the murder of the drover.

[^2]

THE LAST SUPPER.

by J. Warrean newcomb, je THerk ta astory of a eliob of 12 friend, wbo Mrreed together to sap annuaily on a certain day, mantur how frat apart thay might be crattored; the survilyor to sit at the last sapper alione. The survivor to sit at the last sapper sione. The compoct was kept to tha letter, and the lost mana was found dand in his chair.

SAD at heart he sat, and lonely In the gally Ighted hall,
With the sllence braken only
By the clock upon the wall, Saying with its dreary tickiug
Time must come to ollt

Sad he filled the humper glowing Wlth the rahy-flashing wine, Drank, hut felt no rapture fowing Fram the spirit of the vine: Only Death spake from the goble

Vacant chairs around the table Standing stiffly in the gloora, And the tapers are not ahle So to light the empty room That the shadows in the corners shall not Speak of death and doom.

Where are they, the gay eleven Who once sat here at his side? Some in Hades, some in Heavenhave left the old man Innely; greater IIl can se urce hetlde.

Mtdnight, stepping throughthe portal Of the open hanquet door,
Flnds withln the weary mortal
Sudly wniting for the hour
When the compact shall he ended, and The Twelve shall be no move.

Waiting-Stay, what is it passes Gllding to each vacant ohair,
Filling high the empty glasses, Pouring on the mlanight air Scraps of anclent song and stnry? Lo The last, the dead are there!

And they drank, and toasted gally
Many a loved one in the tomb, Many a heauty they'd mourned daily, Cut ofr long since in her hlooin, and the ringing tnasts and langlater filled With joy the banquet-room.

When the servants came to tell him That the night was nearly fled, Lhlic dreaming what herell him, And how fast his time had sped, There they fount his hody only, for his soul Was with the dead.

The Inast Fiazard.

By Mrs, A. A. Ballife, aithor on "the'serpent woman," bte

chapter 1.
"All's up wllit me ${ }^{\text {" }}$ Sucb was the caolamation of despsir uttered by Cbatles Haverliog, a haydsome, dashing young geut comapanions appsrently in the most buoyant spirits. They knew he lad tort henilly at the gamiog.table that night, and adaised the air of perfect equanimity witb whioh he seemed to sustain lis run of Ill-luek, but they had little idea that he not only staked his last dollar but the last he could borrow, including all bis widowed mother'a little property, with which she, in perfect reliance upor Despair had now full possession of his aoul and left no room for hope. As he looked round, on every hand, throughout the eutire range of possi-, his sister's and little hrother's perfect bero, and bilities, he sisw not so muoh as a straw that pro- he had been jealous of their high regard; how could mised to aid him to escape the pit of infamy that yawned before him. The shame and disgrace tbat dwaited him were more than he oould bear the knew all, how could he meet his mother's look of thought of, and to face them he had neither the agony? hehold his beloved and heautiful sister's oouraga nor the hardihood. Ha was sensitive and specelless woe? his little orphan brother'e tears proud; his character had almays stood high with and flush of shame for the fall of one he had always higrelatives snd friends; ha was his mother's idol worshipped? How could he stand before tbem with the consciousness that they falt that he tbeir pride, their sole stiy, had betrayed and beggared them? And for what?

The twould-be Swielde saves the Mrxchant's Life in Greenvood Cemetery.
Oh, he could no linger keep the truth from forciag itself upou him, bitter and humiliating as it was, He aecuaed himself of having squandered his rather' Wheral bequest in hi and of having in the rain hope of retriering his fortune, been false to the most snored trust in hazarding and for ever losing bie mother's and her children's only support. He walked across the Washington Parade Ground with an unsteady atep, and talked incoherently to himself, at one moment olenching his hands, setting bis teeth and bracing himeelf up with desperation, and soon atter relaxing and reeling along loosaly, with all the helplessnass of olaimed, energetieslly
"Ob, for a few of the
the emptiest and vilest plensureds I wasted on
With the next, whining forth:
"Would I had dled ara I was horn!"
The ereditors who had hean dunning hia motber ba had contrived to put off from time to time, but he had promised to settle with them, without fail, on the morrow, His mother had heard him make this agreement, and oonfidently relied on its fulfilment. His fallure to perform it would, he knew, betray his fnsolvency, ruin his credit, and deprive his mother and her children of house, home and means of subsistence. He bent his steps towards home, for where else could ha go? He had, too, a vague idea that in his chsmber he euld better deoida on the course he ought to pursme. It was, however, more an instinctive proceeding than a deliberate one; for his head was tarniog g day, his heart sinking like a stone, support. Ile let bimself into the honse with a Iatchkey, erept up the stalrs into his room, lit tbe gas, threw himself upon his bed and gave way to his sorrow, remorse and despair, After writhing awbile in prostrate anguish, be suddenly started up and paced the floor with frenzied swiftuess, baating his breast and forehead and calling himself "fool," "idiot," "villain" and "wreteh" in every variety of was as ingenious as frantic in torturing and cureing himself till near daybreak, when heo became wholly exhauated and lay in a painful stupor on the hed, till he fell at last into a brief and troubled slumber.
chapter il.
Cnauise Hambring gained little refreshment from his sleep, for it was very short, ment from his sleep, for it was very short, and lasd, if purse, its terrible awakening. He Whas 1,94 : di bl $^{\text {b }}$ a persevering and continuous strained to its height.

"Cbarlie! det up! past nine o'tock!" it cried.
"Yes, yes! I'm coming !"
"Bakiast ready-un detting told."
"All right! Tell 'em not to wait for me."
As Mr. Haverling had not undressed himself, he had but to wash his face and hands and pass the comb little frnily oircle. He paused a moment in deliberation, and then muttered:
"I will have one more ebeerful breakfast with them before I leave them and this world for ever," Round the brankfast table he found threa happy, loving faces, that sent a psing, like the piercing of an arrow, to his henrt. There, in her uisual place, sat his mother, a handsome, portly lady, with a face heaming wh bencer inten, ber daugbter, with a blooming giri of seve tictle dimples nud amiles playing over her beautiful countenanoe. Feciul her, and close to her mother, in his highohair, was seated "little Ned," a rosy-cheekod, golden-baired little boy, fall of life, activity and ebildish ireakiah. ness. He began to chatter tn his brctber aia soon as he entered, and teased him witb a hundred questione, which were answered with languid goodnature.
"Are
"Are gou going to take me to the Priace'o Ball,
Charrie ?" demanded Miss Cstberine, the sister "bruptly. "I will do the best I can for you, Kate," responded the brother, mechanleally.
He was at the time thinkiog whetber be should

If ho is allowed an opportonity to to do donce?" I am sure he will."

Thank you, Cbsrric. A compliment from one's own hrother is worth having, for it is generally sincere."
 had junt at that moment decided that he would hlow his hrains out with his pintol, Compared to hlow hif hrains out with his piatol. Compared to hers, what a ghastly contrast bis mind aforded! What a shook she was spared hy her ignorance of his dreadful thoughts! It it indeed a merey that we cannot see what in passing in one another's minds.
Little was generally ealled, yow wanted to tinow whe the was generally cilled, now wranted to know whether ha, too, could not see the prince; whether he wore a orown of Mrs. Haneerling, rather ixrelevanatl
Not hetter 'an Charlie," exclaimed little Ned. "No, indeed; that oould not be," replied the partial mother.
Charlie groaned.
"You are not at all well this morning, my son,", said the mother, anxiously. "You look rale and sald the mother, anxiously. "You look rale and don't eat. You study too hard ond eitup too late. I heard you stirring in your room last night, long pate midnight, 1 am sure.
Little Ned declared, in his broken way, that he wouldn't ed a lawerer in they had to sit tup late till they made themselves "tick,", and wanted to know they made themselves "tick", and wanted to know why they could not go to bed early like other folks. why they could not go to bed early like other folks.
The unfortunate objeet of maternal solicitudé ssThe unfortunate objeet of maternal solicitude asair and to goag
go. Yill "colock, to settie with the landlord and the others yon have promised to-day ?
NNo, mother; I will not xtraordinary should happen, nunless something had better tell them to coll in the the evening, when I shall of course be at home. I shall, howerer, keep
"Do, my son, for the in
"Do, my yon, for the importunity of these people nns growi rather annoying. The landiord has behns growi rather annoping. The landiord bas become very impatient, for you know we owe him three months' rent. The grocer's bill now amounts to thirty odd dollars, and the butcher's to forty. You "Largest of all. I know all about my little hills payable, dear mother, and ive to see the day through."
"It will take a great weight off my mind Charies, for though I doubt not your assursnoce that you have invested my litue hoard safely, tradeapeople in these times and impatient at a little delay.
Charles Haverling hissed his mother affeetionately; his sister threw her arms around hie neck and kissed him, hidding him remember the Prince's Ball, and little Ned insisted upon being taken up and saluted like the rest. Tears gashed taken up and saluted like the rest. Toars gushed to the goung mannss ejes, and he hurried from his home, now too painful for him to endure.

снafmer min.

Chapues Huveruive felt a moment's relie when he got into the open air. He took, from way, before he thought of the direction in which he was going. The thronging prosperiy and happiness, for such by contrast the human tide appeare to him, that overflowed the great thoroughare, clied him with frebh remorse. Once among the happiest of the gay crowd, he now stalked through it, like a ghost caught nt midday. The surroundings seemed at once familiar and strange, dings semed at once removed and near to himar and strange the brilliant and laughing life, that overran the street. He was a general favorite, and in spite of nod of recognition, many of them, and the shallo $\begin{aligned} & \text { rest, insisted upon atopping him, phaking } \\ & \text { him hy the hand, making excruciating puns for }\end{aligned}$ im to laugh at, and plaguing him with numerons ind inquiries.
He fled from Brondway towarda the North River snd walked along West street to the Battery. It haunt of fashion and heauty, was comparatively deserted and somewhat in keeping with his feelreated elf and examined his pistol, the ex him that be would visit his father's envecth, hefere he killed himself. He contain two dimes and a three cent piace, nnd the tarted upon his little journey.
Within an hour he was wandering through the semetery that eontsined his father's remaina. The place was in diemmal harmony with his writethed nees. The emhlems of death surrounded dim, and housandn of the silent kingdom were sleeping their long, last sleep heneath him. Few visitoras were on the ground, and he could ramble ahout, ide of the Styx. He was most wretched, but there was nothing here to mock his misery. He onme at last to a monument eracted by a aea oaptain, yet living, to hin omn memory. Gazing at the soculpturad imase of the old fellow, he muttered "Hom
How successful and expeditious thia odd mure hare been in the discharge of hit dut., since he can afford onntiopate those that hi $c$ io $I$ present -1 who forestal death beenuse havi crantonly herefl myself of all power to fulfil my anmoneat obligationa 1 11s father's grave, which was near hy, was now uiusly reached, and he threw himself upon it cold, henving turf, and wept and sobbed mos hitterly. His deceased parent's nobleness of heart, his manly truth and fatherly eare and provision, were now vividy rememhered by the proninqu, were now viridy rememaered dilinuent son, and served to intensify his remorse. His deathbed, his great sufferiog, but still greater Christian fortitude, were still more distinotly recalled ; and lastly, his dying charge to his eldest recalled; and lasty, his dying charge to his horn-the rery words now rang in hil ears
"Charles, supply my place to your hrother and sister; be of father to them, and continue to he, as you have been, the hest of sons to your mother.
Perform your duties manfully and well, to man and your Maker, fear death less than dishonor and you will be happy, and we shall meet again my yon. God bleas you, as in my heart Ido, and keep yon from evil!,
Charles Havel
andexclaimed:
But nothing could keep me from eril; 1 loved C. For what debasing and vile gratifications did I not break my father's trust, Baored as it was; roh his widow and orphans of all, and betray tham to his widow and orphans of all, and betray tham to $\otimes$ life of misery I shudder to think of! $I$ loved vies better than them-aye, better than myself My father would curse me now. They, too, migh $H_{c}$ drew a pistol, cocked it, placed its muzzle close to his he hat, and his finger had harely touched the trigger when it was arrested hy a groan which, to his eur, seemed to come from his father's tomb.
The pistol fell from his hand, and he dropped pon his knees, exclaiming in a voiee of terror:
"God forgive me! the dead is opeaking to me

сhatter iv.

Is that fearfal moment Charles Haverling offered up a prayer for pardon, and vowed big Maker a life of repentance and amendment heard another groan soon after the first, which seemed to issue from a different grave. He rose to his feet, and, approsching the spot from which somely dressed, ying on the ground, neara a tomb stone. Upon a closer inspection, he found him to be in a fit, apparently dying. He took off his cravat, which was choking him, opened his shirt bosom, and sat him up againut a gravestone, so that the wind blew in his face. After looking that the wind blew in his face. After looking enmeatly in every direction, Haverling espied workman at some distance, and as noon as he had by shouting, succeeded in attracting his attention and bringing him to the spot, hriefly explained the case to him, and dispatched him for assiitance The man, after an absence, whioh hrisf as it was seemed intolerbly long to his sender, returne with a doctor and a carringe. Haverling agsin made hi:
replied:
replied:
could not have done hetter myself. Do you
"His face is so distorted now, that I am not gure do inut if $I$ am correct in presuming thin to ha his wife's grave, he is Mr. Jaoob Moutford, and ives in Lexingto, he Avenue, Brooklyn.
"You are tight vin"
"You are right sir,", said the busy little physiinn, who, henides doing what he could profes sionally for his patient, had taken out and opened his pockethook; "here is his name, but not his his pockethook; heme nitrer his number?
"I do not, but I know the house.
"Well, then, perhaps you will be so obliging a
"o go with us and direct the driver." ${ }^{\text {Th }}$, as Bubby
The little doctor, who gave his name as Busby nd who has doubtleas talked many of hio patiento and who has doubtless talked many of his patient to death, did not allow his new acquaintunce moment's interval for thought, and chatted incen-antly till the carringe, in accordance with Haversantly till the carringe, in necordance with Haverlinge's direction, was stopped in front of a very legant manasion in Lexington Avenue. Th ling to bear the sick man into the house, while the little doctor, who had popped into the hall as soon as the door had opened, was husy quieting the feara of Miss Agnes Mountford, his patient's only daughter. She had her father taken upstairs into his room, put to hed, and seat for the family hhysicina. He soon arrived, and held a hrie consultation with Dr. Busby, when the latter lefts having first taken the pains to explain to Miss Mountford that she owed her father's life to the resence of mihd evinced by Mr. Charles Haver ag, whose name he had ascertanimed in aireo ot the young iady. She thanked Haverling more with her eyes than her lipa, and begged that he would, ir he had no pressing business, remain ie the parior awhile till she could hetter express he sratitude
"I must confess," he replied, "that I am someWhat fatigued, and sbould like to reat myself for half an hour or so, when I trust you will lring me sood news of the patient." ". Haverling was ahown which hand been diverted from bi ins nff iire, reverted to them, and made hira again the moast diserable of men.
After the rebuke his attempt at seil-destruction had received, he could not renew it. He thought of fight, but diacarled the idea the next moment of too datardly. No; he meat face his domentiny and help endye the disgrace and calamity he had and what a wretch
share of suffering!
Long and desperate was the struggle going on in his mind, and during ita continuance he forgot entirely where he was. He had deided that he was about to rise from the sof upon phick he was sitting, with the view of oarrying out his resolution, when a door opened and a young lady entecred and stood before him. Her demeanor was that of a of her figure and the cordiality of her manner bereft her of everry trace of formality. Her face weas ejes soft, dark and languishing ; her lips exquisitely shap d, and her smile sweet as an angel' "You muat forgive me for detaining you " hut I could not leare pa till I felt assured of hi recovery. He is doing very well now
I need not tell yon, Miss Mountiord, how glad I sm, for hin sake and your own, to hear this; but I hope yeu will allow me to stats that I am so well contented with the coneciousness of having hren of fome service to you, that I trust $I$ shall he perof some service to you, that I trust $I$ shall he permitted to enjoy this satisfaction as my only and would foin cheat me out of my acknomeds ments. Well, I submit; but you will not surely carry your shmegation so far as to refuse to stay and dine with me."
"Pardon me, Mins Mountford, but fimportant business will demand my presence at home this eening, and I must therefore tak ay home th
' You will oall again soon ?"
To-morrow, perhaps; hut certainly soon."
Charles Haverling rose to go, hut his physical aross the floor and stagger into a chair. He huro into tears.
"You are ill," eaid Miss Mountford, in a tone of gentle aympathy. "Thise excitement has been too much for you. You, perhaps, like my father, have much for you. You, perhaps, ike nyy father, have heen lamenting over the grave of some dear one or ever lost to you."
Over my father's grave-hut it is not my gries, morse that overwhelms me, ${ }^{\text {, }}$
"It is just so with pa. He thinks that he treated my poor, dear ma harshly, and that his severity won't you take a glass of wine? ${ }^{\prime \prime}$
"Thank you; I will."
She rang the bell, and, as soon an angmered the summons, ordered wine.
" I have the summons, ordered wine.
"I have no wish, Mr. Haverling," she observed, as soon as the servant had diasappeared, "to pry into the sorrous of your heart, for if they nre secret they should be held sacred; but if there is any way in which I can alleviste them or be of nny serrice to you, I hope you feel that I should be only to happy to avail myself of it."
Haverling looked up through his tears in to her mild, sweet face, and the renolution to make her his confidante was suddenly formed in his mind his confdante was suddenly formed in his mind Wine was hrought in, and after drinking ofra glas hi haid

I have a sad story to tell you, Miss Mountord, one never told hefore, if you have the patience to listen to it, hut before I have finished your will leam to despise me as heartily as I despise myself "I can despise no siniers penitent, Mr. Haver ling, much less one whose remorse is 50 profound as yours. Speak freely, then, and rely confidenti) It my вecrecy and sympatay, It afforded Haverling infioite relief to unburiden hir mind of his secret sorrows to an auditor si lame to utter and tera of pity to bestow. Whe lame to utter and tears of pity to bestow. Whe ment upon it, hat put sereresl questons to him of homely, husiness character, and left the room, iidding him waita few minutes till she returned She came buck very quickly, and holding out to im s well-filled envelope said, quietly
"Here are five hundred dollirs
"Here are five hundred dollars, svery cent which 1 intended to spend in dreas for the Prince and so you see I shall neither nsed or miass the ant yo yo ${ }^{t}$, if you like ; but if you never do , I shall be the hetter pleased."
Haverling took the gift, and covered the hand that hestowed it with his kiissea and his tearre.
"Go," whe cried; "those who lore roil

rom your delay,"

Charles Haverling thought that the railen progressed like anail; that the ferryhont etemmed he tide as if it were propelled by horses instead of team; and, as for the lumbering omnibuas, he lost All patiene with that, and no sooner reache 111 the way home. His sing at the doorbell waid nswered instantly, and his family of three showed themselves as he entered the house.
We were getting so frightened ahout you,'
"Well, your fears
you I should he back at balf at pat three, unleso something very extraordinary happened to me; but something very extraordinary has happened to me, nd that ia why I have not made my appearance before. Get me something to eat, for $I$ am as hun sry as Ruseian woir in the winter season,"
"The landord and the man with your tailor bill re in the parlor," said Mra. Haverling, anxiously Hungry for money, 1 suppose. Well, you gel my supper and IN give them fheirs ",
The elated young man hounced into the parlor pologised to bis oreditors for keepint them waiting and pulling out an imposing roll of hills paid them their dues and took their receipts. At supper he was the Chariie of old, merry as a grig, and parried all attempta to get at hiv secret with the oddes humor. By-and-hye the grocer's and the butcher' hills were brought in and paid. Chrriie handed a aty dollar bill to his mother, and told her to keeep chair, anlled for his slippers, lit his oigar, and proeeded to relate his adventures in Greenwood mother's looks ex of has the pride she felt in his ood fortune, and his readiness in preventing ol Mr. Jacoh Mountlord from dying in a fit, and her graticiation at the evidence of filial piety niforde by his vist to his father's grsve. Miss Kate had many questions to ask concerning M M isa M ountrord's dress and personan appearsonce, and was surprissed at the unvesual minuteoess of her brother's memory. Litts Ned was deligited with the meiriment and liberality that characterised the evening. and re olved to profit by it. When the time for the repelition of his prayers and retirement drew nigh be lennt his liftle person upen his mother's knee, and iookiog up into her face, asked her whether she did not think it micked for a parent to deceive her child ?
hus. Haverling, who was off her guard, reptied in the affirmative.
"Then why, ma," he promptly, demanded, cver so long ado?" ace tates you promited me aver so long ado?"
hout of laugtiter. Charlie wns walighted with the reasoning, and pledged his word to the jurenile logician that the promised skstes should he forth coming as soon as the ponds in the Central Park-were frozen orer were frozen over.
Oughero was almost happy again, but still very anxious. He called upon Mise Mountord the next day, and we called upon tindy received Her fathort day, and was most kindly received. Her fathar's condition was improving, and she voluntarily conditen was improving, and she voluntari, parent would, as soon as his health wassufficiently restored, be most happy to exert his influence to obtain a lucrative situation for one who had been instrumental in asving his life. The hope she inspired was realised, for Mr. Jacob Mountford, a spired was realised, for Mr. Jacob Mountford, a rich merchant and prompt man in his dealings, was rich merchant and prompt man in his dealings, was received Haverling into his warehouse and allowed him a handsome sulv, at fict dieproportionate to the ralue of his eervices, hut which the Joung man resolved to earn soon hy his application and enerey tis progress in mastering the essentisls and deteils of the business in which he was engaged was rapid, and his emploger soon diseovered that he poossessed, "makings of a thorough merchant." Rapidly as he grew in favor with Mr. Mountord, hts Ativsncement in his daughter's regard was not only faster hut her rendered him somewhat diffident, and althount he was not unconecions of her liking for him, he had not the presumption to magnify it into anything more thas friendship.
He cslled upon her on New Year's day, juet as party of three had left her presence. She gave him a herty welcome, and said merrily Mhave been wished a happy New Yenr about hundred times to-day. Can't you, Mr. Hnverling equally desirable?

I wish you an excellent husband."

"That's a good wiab. Couldn't you go one atep ariher, and help me to one ?"
Ineed not go far to find a husband for you the better.
"A very sad dog-at least he has been suchand utterly unworthy of you.
"I don't eare what ho

he reformed?

"Most thoroughly, to the heart's oore, and he "ves you better thsn iff."
Then will I not search any further; rll have in ,or he is just the man $I$ want-one who know vill take him ifor better for worte,' and there's $m$ y hand upon the burgain. Where is he ?
Charles Haverling pressed the sof white hand he held in his to his lipe, and then atood ersect, an "Pardon me-he stands before you.
Miss Agnees affected a little start, bnt did not withdraw her hand.
"I see you had little idea you were making so buad bargan, and 'secede from it at once."
"Not 1 , sir. I Im
like to the Pontic and keep duu on.' The bargain may bea had done, zs yousay, but I. prefer it to any other that can be made for
me,"
"Do you mean it ?"
"Wer lover eaught the blushing beauty to his heart in rapture, and kissed her aweet lipg with the very ryor of his soul have not denervid this.
Parhaps not, Charlie ; but I hate your deserving men who aceept every favor as a tributs to their aerita. I prefer a good-for-nothing, like yourself, "I angel to me , and have saved me from tar, been an ban denth But your fither, who far, far woen no generous to me, what will he think?
"Tbink no sucrifice tho great to secure his nughter's happiness. Besides, he likes you. Of haghert 's haplinese. Besides, he likes his consent t have no doubt, but only
"What ${ }^{2}$ "
"So tondly do I Iove you, Agnes, that terrihle as "So fondly do I love you, Agnes, that terrinhe as was the ordeal I wasenuring when fritat metyou,
I feel that I conld willingly pase through ten such or your sake. I need but remember what a hopeless wretch I was, when you, by an aot of tranacendent generosity-I I even now can hardly comprehend -saved me from a doom that would have grennd me into the duust as a worm is crushed heeath my heel. I need but remember thia to lore "ubertand better for ever."
the sowing of the ages.
8tradiux the Agen pow-
Ever living geedsEver living seeds-
$M$ any germed soeds And the flowers come and go,
Though the blinded generations Scorn them as the weeds.
Seede of ruth and seeds of rightStrong peremnial see
Ever growing seede, And the broventes ripat n bright, Though the generations count them ey are benten down in wrathMadly beaten downad they epring up in the path, And they epring up in the path
Pricldy, of the generations
That their growth disown. Sharper leaves from tougher roots, Growing bloomlens fost-
Growing eareless fast; Till a crop of steel upahoots, pearing through the generations Prone upon it east.

And thí last crop of the seeds Surely must be good-
Must be wondroua good; Precious crop for sorest neede, For the prostrate generatio Water it with blood.

A Winter's Tale.

Our village, in winter, presented an as peet that can anruly be termed imposing; and yet ndeed.
It consisted of about twenty houses, ench of them pome sixteen feet square, and madc of thick pine planks, tongued and grooved, and fitting together s accurately as a ship's timberss Each of them had but one door, and none of them had nny windows. There were no fencees about them, no outbuilding of fayy kind annexed, nor was there any it a certain hour of the day and night from the hatlike piece of storepipe that protruded from the oof of each.
There was not a tree near them, nor any vege. tation, nor any ground from which any vegetation of any kind could possibly grow. They stood at frregular spacas fromen rregular spaces from each other, and yet so widely aeparated thast the nearest house of the rillage wa distant fully a mile from the one further away. There were no wells in our village, nor any pumpe nor any stores or tradespeople of any kind; no hhurch spired up anywhere out of the barren lots; there mere no hotels, courthouse or jail to announce ho presence of wickedness and civilization; and no for police, you might as well look for policemen in the outside wards of $a$ big city when there is a prizefight going on as in our village, hy dey or by night.
There
erst mas of life about it, I said ju now, exceept wreatha of smoke; but I had forgotton, were usually the first thing to arrest the attention uddenly into our village, would bave argued from hese footsteps-not one of which was less than yard long-that the inhabitants were lirge in proportion to their houses, and yet the tallest man mong us was under six feet high.
Our villhge wase built, in fact, upon the iee that sweeping from the margin of the mighty St. Lawhours of the day and night, which by a particular phenomenon; and our oceupation during these hours was estching the emall, ugly and not very, well.farored fish known as the from the sea into the bay during the winter months Each of the houses was a joint-stock concern, be low ging to I little cluh. There was a amall stove in the centre of it; a table composed of a plank laid across a coupte of flour barrele; a dresser con looker for liguor- which caiveo idered neese and in such cold elimates for the maintenance of sufficient quastity of carbon in tha blood. A long form was ranged argainst one wall of the shanty, was a movahle plank in the flooring, upon liftin whioh up by an iroo ring at the end of it, you were placed in immedisto pommunication with myrind of tommy-code, waiting tumultuously to be token nd snowsthoes hung upon the walle, giving coat aboriginal aspect to the apstrment-the perfumes aboriginal chare eter, heing usually produced by the mixture of tohaceo smoke with the savory oteam whose release from the hook and promotion to the fryingpan there wan generally but a brief interval. With us tommy-0od nishing was not a commercia, aimon-finhers and deer-stalkers would be seen codville, where they would sit for hours st a stretch over the trench in the ice, pulling up wretched little fishikinn with hook and line. At night the parties were apt to be convivial, and the weir ound of anacreontic songo from the seattered hanties had as singular effect as you traversed the illage in the clear, cold nir of the zero night. There was a man who had lately come to mingl in our society, but to which he wss by no meana a welcome additlon, from the circumstance, of his being an unmitigated hore. Puckeridge, for thnt was his name, was a very fat man, a loud and incesmant talker, and the question of his nstirity could ant talker, and the question of his nstirity could have been no problem to those who observed his misuse of the letter $h$. There was nothing ever sttributed to anybody in fenta of skill or strength that Puckerigge could not best. So he said, at weighed thirty pounds, Puckeridge had landed two in one day, one weighing forty, the other forty- eigh pounds. The moosehorne, of which Brown wa ustly proud as bis finest trophy, measured aix feet from tip to tip; Puckeridge depreciated them Puckeridge owned a pair which now 'ung in hie fother's 'all, in Hengland, and measured nine. He Ther's all, in Hengland, and measured nine. He and put down very fat, Ior a at man. One, when to a little strall of forty miles taken by him a day or two before, Puckeridge despised him. Puckeridge had onee waiked forty-five miles in twelve hours when he was only nine years old
"Are you not mistaken as to the figures ?" aaked
"Give 'em hexact," replied Puckeridge; "eure
"Perbaps gous.
"Perhape you hsve reversed them, though," consinued the great pedentrian. "Didn't you mean to hours, when you were forty-five years old ?"
But even this, which was a wet blanket for the moment on Puck, as we colled him, who promiscuoualy etated his age at from thirty to thirty-five friled to effectually suppress him.
It soon be came neceesarary to do something for the abatement of Puckeridge, and ere long the opportunity was afforded by himself. He wove his o At a emall but convivisl party, one evening, At a amall but convivise party, one evening, in plessant "bochelor's hall," up in the town, we wcre debating as to what ought to he done for the deportation of Puckeridge from the community, when that person mode his appearance. He osme without invitation, according to a familiar but objeetionthle way of his, though we had hitherto excluded converaation ran upon the noble spori of tommy od fishing, and one of our party, aceording to preconcerted plan, made some remarkable state so to speak, of that persecuted visitor to our in so to speak, of that persecuted visitor to hospitable shores. He had once esught two hundred of them, he said, at one sitting of four houre. This, of course, was nothing to what Puckeridge ven in the tropies, of which the tommy-cod is not generally recognised as an inhsbitant. He began y betting a hundred dollars on his catch, if the mould give him the run of one of the fishing- shanties, and he ended by dwindling his wager down to wenty-ave ceats hundred tome had-that he hours by the watch
The stakes were deposited with due solemnity, and it was urranged that Mr. Puckeridge was to commence fishing at nine o'clock the following aight, in the ohants nearest the town.
At nine o'clock the following night the seonces were lit up in that pleasant retrest, a brisk fire wa piled up in the stove, for there wrs an "eager and nipping air" upon the bay, snd the stout, obnoxand commenced fishing precisely at the appointed hour, having been hoapitably provided by his encortainers with any number of hooks and lines, and ahout four pounds of raw liver with which to hait them.
Ther
visit some oft him to his work, and proceeded to fom which of the shantiea further down tbe hay, fonolly return to heve a look ot Puckeriage and eport. Tbey found him excited and still very 5 an hour he had not eought a single fish. He had experienced several hites, however, he aaid, and be expressed his fears that the liver was of an inferio quality, upon which we furnished him with a fresh aupply, withi
At eleren $0^{\prime}$ clock two of the scouts of our purty heard him swearing, and on entering the shant water lim in wish a dimity win a sometimes, though rarely, hauled up by the tommy od fishers of these bavs. The lisard, as it peram bulated the floar with that ungainly waddle pecuisr to fishy-fleehy thin-s, had complicated the isching-line into a hopeleas tangle, and it bit Puckaridge's thumh nearly off, and succeeded in getting empting to extricate himself from his difficulties. His visitora kindly aided him, however; he baitel his hooks afreeh, fisbing once more.
And now twelve o'clock approached, and Loula, the half-breed boy who had charge of our ebanty tion, wbich, it was supposed, migh bout then be interesting to that person.
Seating himaelf upon the plank that served for table, Louis kieked his moccanined feet to and fro, and fixing his black, beadlike eycs upon the fat sherman, gave utterance laugh peculiar to his kind.
roared Puckeridge, sa he looked you sooundrel ? saw that hin time was nearly up.
"I laugh at you!" replied Louts, with marked "Ophasis. "Make dog laugh way you finh!
Oid your jaw, sir, or I'll throw the 'atchet at oul that hung upon the wall.
Got something tell you like know, maybe," "tome thing 'hout way you fixh." "Som

About way yon fish two, tree hours nn ary come cod. Make dog lough see way you finh two, tree Not another word was spol Not another word was spoken now. There were a dozen of na round the sbanty listoning: we heard man getting into a tight blanket cost, and in a woment Puikeridge emerged from the ehanty, widdled rapidly away into the gloom without his wedded rapidy away into the gloom without his nd dissppsared from our view for ever
And amid the laugh that greeted his ungraceful exit no voice rung out so clear and silvery ne that ther mercy gival, who has the discomiture of the coxcomb hy whom she had been persecuted for some time paet. Some of the girls had tbeir brothers with them, of course, else they could never have trusted themselves within the precincts of our Hlage st midnight. It was all right. At leaet Belin Percival seemed to think so, as Clar enee Willoughby daintily baited a hook for her and perwaded her to stay and try a little lishing, now tunt The porter at the up.
The porter at taying used frequently to declare on oath, tha he never bad such trouble packing off s man, bag and baggage, as he had next morning wben that anplensant person took his depsrture by tbe mail leigh for some distant unknown land.

REV. HENRY W. BELLOWS, O.O

Dr. Bellows, who has been from the firsi Dentified with the great Sanitary Commiosion, is a eil-kuown Uuitariau ciergyman of New York. He tha born in Boston, Junc 11, 1814, and aftes puraning preliminary etudtes it Round-Hill school under Geo After tonching for 3 time, kubsequent to his graduaing, he etudled divinity, nud in 1838 was ordained partor of the Firsic Cougregatiounallet church in New York, wid has fince made thint clty the field of his He originated and for a time edited the Christion
 s to what his reai viewi arid. In fact, his seramon are part of the history of his thonghts, and he eecme
a

THE OPERA OF "FAUST

Few operas have created a greater furore Gounauds "Faust." The muileis rieh, varied, never ame, aud, though at times almost monotonous, foll of charming poriious, which will fong he favorites.
All know the fegend of Faust-who Alf know the fegend of Faust-who know anything of tbe nationil aud popular poeiry of Germany-how or we nationul aud popular poeiry of Germany-ho
he mastered secret sciences, became dianatisfied with makind, conjured tho Rvii One, with whom he mace contrast, ilgned with his own blood, to ferve him for a toug period, at the explration of which the soul of the maglelan wae to be delivered to sternal damaa ton. In pursuance of this compuct, siswe all re nember, thers cume to Faust " "fomiliar spirit," inm through ali kiudte of indeseribshle exceitimenta Fauat in, in faet, a German traditon, a cemblination o fables, to tilustrate the attempt of men to rias to onperhoman mentai and physical powar hy a compnct with Sotan. We have thla dies alan in the "Wandering Jew," and in the remarkble poem oulled dering Jew
"Festus"
"ethe"
Goethe' fromortal posticai version ittempta to thow
that man' ionglag after knowledce cannot deatroy
his better noter

A backward cowrioe.

DURING the Revolutionary war, when corps of the American army was encamped near the horough of Elishhethtown, New Jcreey, an offlicer, Tho, by the way, was more of a devotee of Vean than of waica, pald his addressee to o lidy of dis. na disoovery of the repeated absence of the omecr and of the place where Interviewa with his Duletinc ere had, some waggish friende reoolved to play of him from a repectition of his visitu.
The oflicar, it apperra, rode a very amoil norse of ths pony kind, which he left untied with the or idte ths pony kind, which he left uatied with the oridle without delay, when the basinese of courting and kisaing was over, and the horse always remuined, tili bucked by the owner, wlthout aftempting to ohange his position.
On a certaln dark

the elephantine mouse; or, the rat with a trunk.
A great French natural historian, one of the leading members nf the Zouliogicol society of Trance, wan lintaiy toking a tour in Algeris, and had here, ioin was dramn to two Zonaves who were playing eet no yelty. Ho stood and atarid-lt evidently be onged to the group of Todentin-hut to wbat elase was noither the Muasrattur-for it had ao tailruteanar osww in te specimen hefore bim. He utke the Zounve, " ani inteliligent eoider,', as he afterwarde
"' What

 Roare of hanghtor followed thle confeesioi; ; ynd it same out thant the $Z$ nuvver had loarned from the na

Blondin Outdone.-One, and perhaps not

Origin of the Symbols of Numbrrs and

stwo, when esph
thands can extatho
hatend.
Lorteries.-The earilest lottery on record

the twelfth comes back to-day.
To-DAy, up yonder turapike roud,
Past elover waiting to be mowed, Past fielde of growing grain, With bauners waring proud and high, And muxic singing to the aky,
The twelfth comes hack

It oomes with all its record clear
To write its history on the year, To write its history on the year,
Each man himself a brave. And we, forgetting in our joy, How many a mother'n darling hoy Han found a Southern grave.
Tio years ago, in springtime bloom,
From out the shadow of this room From out the shadow of this room
My tear-dimmed eyes were bent. The twelfth went marching down that road, Each casting forth his own heart-load,
And singing as he went.
That day, amid the wild hurrah, And in came one alone. He looked so handsome in his blue, And in his eyes, so soft and true,
A light unusual shone.

He spoke as though he had heen sent With tidings of some good intent
And thus the messuge ran: Agie, I held against my heart Till now a false and eelfish part, And failed me as a man.
"This morning in the ringing shout, a every blast the bend senda out, In evegy tap of drum, I hesr the volces of the dead,
The echoes of their ghostly tread, Persueding me tọ oome.
"And so F 've donned this glorious blue, The last one in this town. Maggie! with all my heart and soul e you-Maggie, hear the whole,
My own! before you frown.
"Since those bright days when we forsook The eunyyroad for some lone nook, I've loved you, Maggie, true and long, But-be it right or be it wrong-
My heart has worn a mask.

I knew how good and pure you were, I ean do neught deserving ber, My faltering heart-words said.
as I loved years sped away, And as I loved years aped away, While I, to see thee day by day, My faltering heart obeyed.
"But Maggie, with this morning's light, There oame a glorious second sight, It said, 'Your heart's delusion quan, And win the one you love so well.
Hark! to your country's ery ! "My plece is vacant in the lise, it but for a single sign,
To know if this be true
To know if this emotion etirred Ia shared, my own, by you."
A moment more, and on his breast And sped him on his way. Sinee then that one that came alone Has made me feel his deeds my own, I that now must doubtar be, Until I know he still loves me Since he has grown so great.
Whose praise is full in every mouth, Is he for whom I wait.

The Gulf Between Them sy Mra, Ann s. stephons.

GILAPTER $x$ xu.
WhEN Elsie entered her boudoir, flushed with laughter and herelf on the azore couch, and gathering her ringleta in a mass between her hand and the warm cheek ander whioh it was thruat, fell into a deaper trsin of thought than was usun! to her. " It's done, snd I don't care. He loves me, and I must be loved. He's rich, generoue, devoted, worships me and always will, that's one comfort. Thore'li be no one to halve his devotion or his money with me, no one to look glum if I want to be a little bit extrayagant. Grant never refuned mo anything to his Jifo, but T'm always arraid to ask half that 1 want. But with Tom everything will be my own. He won't ask a question. Snch laces as I will have! As for cashmere shawle and sllks, he shall get them for me by the dozens. Elisubeth won't say that sueh things are out of place then, for I shall be a married woman, frse of her and this for I shall be a married woman, frse of her and this old house too, free of everything, hnt-but-" Elisie started up, hrea thought with the action
thought with the action.
"I wish ahe'd stop to hear about it. Why won't to me ; I don't want alone, if ehe will make trouble ahout what isn't to hs helped? I'll have no moreconfidences with hor, that's certain. It is like hreaking one's hast up in little pieces. I don't want to keep aecrets, but orpet them; and I will, too, in apite of her. She and ramorse." Elnie pansed befere a mirror as these thoughts
ose in her mind and half hroke from aer lipes. rose in her mind and half hroke from aer lipa.
She was threading out her curls and trying the She was threading out her curls and trying the effect as they floated, like golden thistlidown, over effect as they floated, like golden thistlindown, over the roses of her oheek. All at onse shs atarted, the roses of her oheek. All at onse pale horror stole to her face; the and a look of pale horror stole to her face; the dropped ts her sido, turning coldly white, like marble; the lips, which had been just parted with an admiring smile at her own beanty, lost every traoe of eoler. She still gazed intently into the glass, but not at herself. Weyond her pratty image, reflected from the distanee, sat n mnn with a pen in reflected from the distanee, ost a mnn with a pen in his hand, an if just arrested in the act of writing. his hand, an if just arrested in the act of vriting.
Rich ehedows of crimson drapery lay around him, Rich a gleams of pure light from a half-cloted upper and a gleam of pure light from a half-closed upper blind fell acrose his head, lighting it up grandly. It was a megnificent piotare that Elvie gazed upon, far beyond her own image in the glass. But she only saw the man, without regard to his surroundonly saw the man, without regard to his surroundings, and the vory haart
with loathing or vith faar
with loathing or vith faar.
It was North, looking at her through the opan door, with a sneering smile on his lip-North in the very, chamber of her brother's wife, quietly Fer a fnll minuty Blsie steod, forming a double picture in the glass with that bold, bad man, then her color came hotly baok, and she turned upon him, brave with indignation.
"You here!" sho said, advanoing into the room till its crimson haze overwhelmed her. "You here, and in this chamber! Get up at onoc and begone. If my brother finds you under his roof he will shont you on the spot."
"Never fear, pretty one," sald North, with an evil gleam on his face." "Two can play at a evil gleam on his face. "Two can play at a game of that sort. If he mads the first asaault game of that sort. If he mada the first asanult nothing would give me mora pleasure. Self uothing would give me more pleasure. Self-defence is juatifiable in law, and his will is, mede." Elsie was trembling from head to foot, but she leaned one hand heavily on the table that he might not see her agitation.
"Man, man, you would not-you dare not mse my brother. You that heve wronged him so!"
"Bxcuse me," said North, biting the featker of his pen and looking down on a sheet of note-peper on which he had becn about to write ; "I do not sse thit wrong'so clearly. If a woman'a heart will wander away from its legitimate object, am I te blame bocause it flutters into my bosom? And if other hearts follow after-"Stop!" crind Elsia, stamping her little foot panrionately on the carpet. "How dare yon spenk of a fraud ao blask, of treason so detsatable! I am his sister, sir, and havesomsthing of his courage frivolous as people think me. Perseouta provoke me toa far and I will till him all."
"Indeed you would not," answerad North, quietly.
" Wha
"The will. You dare not break a selemn promise to her."
"I dare"" she almost ahrieked, elenching her little hand in a paroxysm of rago. "I will, if ever little hand in a paroxysin
you come here agin
you come here again."
"No; I think not. Women are weak oreaturss, but they generally find streng th to keep secrets that but they gencrally find strength to keep secrets that bring ruin in the telling. You cannot he over bring ruin in the telling. You cannot he over anxious to see this proud hrother of youra commit murder on-"
"On a villain-a household traitor-a-
"Be quiet," ssid North, rising aternly and towaring over her. "I have no dealinga with yon One might as well reason with weed thrown upon the wind
"eed thrown upon the wind."
"But I will have something to say- everythin o say. You have pursued her, plundered her, tortured her long enough. More than once she has been on the brink of discovery by your persibtence to conoeal your rapacious extortions. All thi must end."
"With sll may heart; l let tho lady accede to my terms and I disappear" cerms and I disappear."
"I will writs them, and your own fair hands
"I Ill give her the note"."
Eltie did not answer, but her white lips closed armly and her blue eyes glittered like steel in thely slow of a hot fire, as he dipped hia pen deliberately in the bronze inkstand and began to write.
"There," he said, folding the nots and presenting it to her with a princely air, as if her oourage had Impressed him with respect; "place this in her hands and she will know how to carry it out." Elsie took the note and hid it away in the folds of her dress. "Do not fail,"
"Dress.

trom the table. "I will not,"

"I will not," answered Elaie. "But these cruel viato mnst cease now and note only on this condition.
"Her answer will decide that. Now, good-bye." He reached forth his hand, amiling pleasantly apon her; but she clenched hers, as if tempted to arike him for the
The hand, rejected with such disdsin, fell towards the hat which North placed lig' tly on his head, onating oue glance in the opposite mirror as he did so. Then, with the elastle atep of a man retiring from a festival, ho left the chapoer, while Elsic looked after him تith wondering eyes and parted lips, astonished hy an audacity which was ahsolutely astonished by an audacity which wan ahsolutely sublime.
The young creature stood with bated breath till She listened anxiously, hut heard no door olose or furthor movement of any kind. Hia exit was aoiseless air his entranco had been.
When Elsie was leff alone she sat down in that dim light of Blizsbeth'a room, puahad the hair baol
from her forehead and pressed both paims on he Smples, whoae pain was throhder and cried out under sudden an guish, for resistance to suffering of any kind wr illing to this young creaturs, and the reactio which followed that passion Dufing her helpless as a child.
During fifteen or twenty minutes Elsie ant prenswith tears and her lips quivered like those of ai infant grieved by some hurt it cannot understano A voice from the outer passege aroused her. I was that of Tom Fuller, who had worked himsel into a state of intense excitement from fear tha hia rough tenderness had mortally offended it: " C Miss Miss Mellen-Elsie, do come down and speal to a fellow. I'm sorry as can be that I made suol a donkey of myself and frightened you awhy. Jus donkey of myself and frightened you awhy. Jusi give one peep out of the door, darling, to say tha give one peep out of the door, darling, to say tha ou will forgive me by-ond-byc, and I never wil kiss you aggin so long-tbat is if it's very diskias you a
The door of Elsie's chamber opened and a facr all flushed with tears, thuough which a smil reaking, looked out on the repentant Tom. "Oh, Elsie, darling, I didn't mean it, and you've ne out and lynch me I'd be obliged to would take me out and lynch my soul I would."
"Never mind, Tom. I'm not angry-only sucb fright, with crying," said Elsie, reaching her hand through the opening, which he forthwith fel to derouring "th kisses. "It's only a headache." "A headache! dear me, what a brute 1 am. But wait a minute. I'll send right to the city for a Wait a minute. I'll send right to the city for a dozsn bottles of bay rum, or schnapps, or something dozsn bottle of that sort.
"No, no," answered Elsle, laughing herself into
"Natt." emi-hysterics, "I shall be better in a minute." "And come downstairs-will you come down "And staire"
"Yes, yes;
ut of my hair." Tom retreated to the staircese and waited witl his eyes fastened on Elsie's door like those of n goodnatured watchdog. As for the girl herself goodnatured watchdog. As for the girl herself she bathed her face in cold weter, chilling the pain away, straightened out her curls, twisted all hes wair in a great lront back of the hend, and came out softly, like a dear little forgiving nun, filed witb compassion for other people's sing.
Tom followed her into the little morning-room where his confessaion had been made, and sat own on the sofa to which she retreated with grea oaution, as if she were afraid of breaking it.
"Won't Besaie and Mellen be aetonished," he nsinunted; "I do wonder how they will look hen we tell 'em how it is."
"You won't have en opportunity of judging jus "present," replied Elsie.
"Why won't I ?"
"Why won't I
Boce the don't choose you to say one word fou permission"" to any human baing until I give "Now, what i grant.
"But I want the whole world to know how
"appy I am," said he.
"Tom Fuller""
Tom Fuller," cried Blsic, menacingly; "are you going to begin already to disput after what I've just wuffered too ?"
"Lord bless you, no! I am
"Then do exactly as I tell you," oontinued ahe "and promise me not to mention what has hap "and promise me ne pened till you leave."
"It's a little hard,
"It's a little hard," said Tom, "not to oe able to show how happy a fellow-why, I shall tell in spite of myself.
"If you don't promise In take back every word "Tee said-" "I will I w!" he interrupted, terrified at the bare threat. "Don't be angry, pet; III do just as you вay.
"That's a nice old Tom; now you are good and I love you"" "That's a
"But you won't keep it long, Elasie?"
"No, no ; but just at present I choose; I told you what a tenible tyrant I should be."
"I like it," said Tom, with the thorough enjoyment of her mastery, which only an immense creature like him can feel in a pretty woman' sraceful tyranny
"So much the better for you," said Blsie.
"Oh, littli-girl, we will be as happy as the day is long " cried he.

"Never!" "And I

and matl have my own way more and more "Wery day?"
how you could Xom, thoughtfully; "I don't ae Elaie laughed; his oddity amused her.
"You are a perfect ogro of a lover," cried she.
"It never mill hair !"
"It never will keep in ordor," said Tom, press ing down the shaggy looks with both hands.
"Let them alone," said Elsio; "you lool tike a lion that way; I liko it,"
She was gracious and playfil as possible, hut Tom's happiness was disturbed all too quickly by the entrance of Vietoria, crying:
"Misses' horse runned off "arnt hurt; she's a comin' off wid hor; but sho And out they both rushed to see what her word And out meant.

chaptar xxill.

 TBE husband and wife galloped joyously on formiles and miles in the sof light of that deliciousafternoon; with every atsp the gloom and the shadows seemed to lift themselves from each heart, till they wero jeating and gay almoet as Elaie as herself.

A rew happy hours which must soon be louded, bnt which were so bright and sweet that, ven in the midst of after trouble, their memory would come up like fragments of exquisite melody haunting the jarring clouds of every day life.
Whatever the secret wan whioh oppressed Elizabeth's lips, its recollection was put aside for Klizabeth's lips, its recollection was put aside for the time, and Melleo gave himself up to the enjoythe time, and Melleo gave himself up to the enjoynent of the hour with all the intensity of a nature which enjoys and suffers no keenly, that eren trifles can make for it a keene- excitement than trifies can make for it a keene excitement than even a greast happiness or act bring to more placid characters.
bring to more placid characters.
"You are not tired, Bessic ?"
"Tired, no! I conld ride on for ever!"
"See how the Waters shine in the sun; they eem eo full of joyous, huoyant life that it gives ne strength to watch them." Elizabeth could fully sha and she allowed her poetical hil enthusiasm, indulging in sll sorts of beautifal comparisons and earnest talk, which revealed a phase of her nature seldom revealed except to those who knew her well.
"I never heard a woman talk as you can," said Mellen, admiringly; "we shall have you writing Elizabeth laughed gaily
"You need not be afraid
"You need not be afraid; I know you would not "Indeed I should not; it springs from my sel-shness I know, but I like to keep your roal self fishness I know, but I like to keep your roal solf ontirely for my own life.
The afternoon was
The afternoon was wearing away when they urned homewards, but it atill retained its brightness and beauty, as their hearts kept the new glow They galloped dow
They galloped down the long hills and tbrough The nunlight fill they were nearly home. The nunlight faded-a chill breeze swept up from ne of those abrupt changes so common in autumn fell upon the sea, robbing the day of its loveliness, and making it so cold and gray that it was more han dreary from the contrast.
They were neer the gates which led into their wn domain, "hen a man came running swiftly toards them, and as he pessed looked up in Blizabeth's free.
Whether her horse was frightened at the stranger rushing so abruptiy by, or whether she gave somo nervous jerk to the reins, was not apparent; but a sharp cry rang from her lips, the horse mude a sharp cry rang from her lipg, the horse made a simultancoun apring, and thoigh a good rider, she was quickly unseated and thrown from her ssdale. Mellen aprang from his horse with a cry and bent "I am nife.
"I am not hurt," she aid faintly; "not hurt." entrance of the gxounds which they had transformed into a lodge came out at that moment, and being Yankee woman of energy and resources, caugh Elizabeth's horse, came up and wae ready to lend a helping hand wherever else it might be required. While the woman led the two horses within the grtee and fastened them, Mellen raised his wife and carried her into the lodge. She was deathly pale and trembling violently, though in reply to his anxand trembling violendy, though in reply to his anx "Iour inquiries, she repeated the sam hurt-not at all hurt."
She drank a glass of water, lay down for a few moments on a wooden settee which the room boasted ae its principal elegance, then insisted upon boasted rising.
Melle
Mellen had sent the woman on to the house, with orders for the people to send down the cerriage, a he would not have permiled more equal to the ever tion than was the oase.
"Did that man frighten the horse?" he ssked, when she appeared composed enough to talk. "The whole thing was over before I knew it-even before I saw him clearly he was gone-you cried out and the horse started-
"Nol" she interrupted with feverish earnest ness, "the horse started first-I should not hav "The scoundrel must hel id you reconite him ?"
did you recognise him ?"
"He waa running so
"to tho woods so suddenly," you know, and darted
"I should llke" to heve lain hands on him?"
"He meant no harm. Gipey has growa shy of ate. Don't think about the matter-there is no mischief done.
"But there might have been; I cannot bear even he thought of danger where you are conoerned. Elizabeth close her eyes wearily; her recent pale and ill that Mellen could not feel satisfied that she had suffered no injury.
"You are sure that the fall has not hurt yon, Bessie?
"Du you remember") quantioned Mellen.
 posible
Me melen eolored and bit his lip at the arceam in her voies, but he naw the womnn laoking currioults "I Tinh, Mra no groene. Twinh, Mrata Green," he sid, "you mould take enough here, dem
unher
"Lant, ar, werre jant an arefful can be. There intt anight we tont that sud laik the gatee woman and Jem's a cripple. It would be hard on us."
Mellen tried to stop her flood of protentations and app als, but sbe in sisted on telling the whole story of every mitery she bad endured during her ilie before she would atop, and by that time the carriage fortunately arrived and they beyond the reach of her tongue
The huaband and wife drove
The husband and wife drove somewhat silently home. Mellen mas very anxious about Elizaboth, and she had reoovered her usual ecrenity of temper, and could do her beat to resssure him, though the color could do her beat to reassure him, though the color startled look die out of her eyes.
Wben they reached the house, Elaie was standing on the steps, and ran down to the carriage full or alarmed questions, having just learned that Elizabeth bad met with some sort of aceident, wh
Tom danced about in a frenzy of excitement.
"Are you hurt? are you hurt ?" she demanded. Elizabeth assured her that she was not in the least injured, tried to laugh at but looked very nervous still.
"Yon are sure yau are not hurt?" wrged Tom. "Yon are $\left.\begin{array}{l}\text { Pure y } \\ \text { "Perfectly surn." }\end{array}\right]$
"
"Perfectly sura." "Nonsense, Tom,", sha said, a little impatiently, "hen Itell jou I am not hurt in the least," Tom and Elsie eried out together to know how the accident had happened, but Mellen gave a very briaf explanation, while Elizabeth entered the hall briaf explanation, while Elizab and sat down in a chair to reet.
Tom ran to bring her a glass
Tom ran to bring her a glass of wine, which she -did not want, and they all worried her with their solicitude, till it required all her stock of patience solicitude, thit required all her stook of patience to restrain herself from breaking sway from them rudely and rushing into the solicitude she needed ${ }^{80}$ much.
"If I had hold of the creature that seared the horse, X 'd mill him," cried Tom, irstely horae, Pd mill him," cried Tom, irstely.

I don't suppose he mas to blame," said Elsie.
"Of course not," added Elizabeth; " of course

not."

Mellen made no remark; he was watching Elizath, who atill looked pale and oppressed, flling mith anxiety.
"Much, I assure you; don't be frightened any more."
"Bessi
"Bessie is such a heroine!" cried Elsic. Elizabeth gave her one of the irritated looks with which she had sometimes regarded her of late, but made no remark.
"She's a trump" "She's a trump?" "Why don't you say a re, ular brick ?" laughed Elsis.
"I shall go np to my room and lic down," Elias. beth said; "an hour's rest will restore me completely."
Mellen Mellen assisted her apatairs and Elsie accompanied them, quite ready to accept Elizabeth's assurance that she was not injured and doing her beat to make them bote laugh. beat to makke them bote laugh.
"Aacidents asem the order of the day," she said; soue one near to help us."
"Yes," she replied, wearily.
"Do you think you could go to sleep now?" Mellen asked,
"Perhaps 50 ," she said; "I will try, at all
"The best thing for you," said Elsie. "Ill sit with you a little while and be still as a mouse." unpleasant oceurrences of any nort, and would be of no more use in tronble than a aunary-bird ar a hothouse blossom. But just now she had an object in remnining.
The moment Mellen had withdrawn ahe taok North's letter from ind hiding.place, and thruat it into Elizabeth's hand.
"Thank heaven $\mathrm{I}^{\prime}$ ve got rid of it at last," she exclaimed, shaking the flounees of her drass the note had lift you get it?" faltered Elizabeth, ing nt the folded paper with atrained eyes, as if it had been an asp which ahe held by the aeck.
"Oh, Elizabeth, he was in this very roam."
"Here! here! Great heavens! wby will no one "oot this man ?" exclaimed the tortured moman. "I thought of it, uponmy word I did," anid Elsic.
But, then, I don't know how to fire off a pistol " "How madly we are tulking I" asiid Elizabeth, pressing one hand to her throbbing forehead. hand, striving to soothe the evident pain. But Elizabeth shrunk awny from the haif oaresk, and sald, in a low, huaky roice:
"Leava me, Elsie,
"Leava me, Elsie, leave me; I will deal with this alone."
Tbe
The young girl want away with a sensa of relief. Then Elirabeth started $n p$ in bed, tore open the hateful note, and read it through.
ohapter xxiv.
Elsis went off to find Tom; he was walking up and down the veranda, looking anxious still, hnt his face claared when he saw Elaie, like a granit rock lighted up by a audden f
"How is ahe?" he askad.
"Oh, a great dnal better; she is going to aleap;
that in, if Grant will be sensible enough to leave her alone; yon men are dreadfally stupid creaher
ture
"Yes, dear," repilied Tom, mookly.
Well" said Elsie; "you might show a little " spint st least"
There in nothing I hate so much; if yon don't "ntradiet me, I shall die certaidy."
"Then, since you want the truth, I must say I think you are a little hard on men in general" "And you in particular, perhapa?"
"Sometimeo you aro."
"Sometimeo you aro.
"Indeed!" said she, tossing her curls. "Very well, Mr. Fuller, if you have such a dreadfal opinion of me you had better to do with me; 「'll go away."
"Oh, don't ; I didn't mean it," cried Tom, in a Elsie laughed at his penitence and tessed him worse thing ever, but Tom could bear it now with undisturbed equanimity. She had given him his happiness, lifted his soul in to nuch a flood of light as he had never thought to reach in this world, and as he had never thought to reach in this world, and he was in a atate of rapturous content tbat utterly he was in $\AA$ atate defied description.
They walked up and down the long colonnade jesting and merry, Tom unable to think or talk of nything long except his new bliss, and doing all orts of abaurd things in spite of Elsie's expostula"I shsll go in and leave if you don't bebave more sensibly," she ssid, snatching her hand from him, ns he tried to kiss it. "What "
think if he happened to come down."
"Oh, dear," sighed Tom; "how long before you vill let me tell him; this having to steal one's happiness is drendful.
"Oh, you. selfish, insstinble monster! not an hour ago you said you should be perfectly content if I would only say I might care for you sometimes,
and there now you go!"
"I nm a selfish wretoh
remorse.
And selfishness is such a drendful failing," joined Elsie.
"It is, is it not ?"
"Yes-in a man"
"Oes-in a man,"
close of her santenoe
"Yes," continued
"Yes,", continued Elaie; "It's a womaq's privilege,"
"It
"It seoms to me," said Tom, engerly, "that women clnim a great many privileges, and very odd ones, sometimes."
"Isn't it our privilege!" demanded Elaie, belligerently. "Do you mean to deny that that we haven't a right to be just as selfish and whimsical as we please, sad that it's your duty to submit?"
"If you"ll letme kiss your hand Ill acknowledge anything you see fit," said artful Tom the slightest degree $I$ should advise your peace in the slightest degree I with roore decorum.

Elaje drew herself  little Quakerese, who had never indulged in a

 Horldy y thought in all her dayt."I wish you would come into the music-room and sing to me," said Tom, struck with a bright idea.
"Indeed I you don't care about music ?".
"Indeed I do; your voice is like an angel's." You couldn't tell whether I was singing something Tom rubbed, his forehead again, fairly oormered but whether he knemead again, fairly oornered, science or not, he listened to Elsie's singing with his heart, and very sweet music it was,
"You shall tench me" he said
"A perfectly hopeless task, Tom! And you really have aome voice if you had any esr."
"Oh," said Tom, putting his hands on his "Oh," said Tom, putting his hands on his auricular appendages, as if taking her words literally.
"Oh," 50
"Oh," said Blsie, with a shriek, "they prove your race beyond a doubt; don't have any fear, Tora laughed with her, goodnatured us ever. "But come in," he urged; "you will get cold with nothing on your head.
"Iou are not to become a Molly," said Elsie. other atrocity; only just come in, inse a duck." "Elaia allo wed herself to be persuaded for onoe, and they went into the house, seating themaelves at the plano in the solitary music-room, enjoying apparent perception own fashion, and witb no the hearts of the husband and wife in that darkened home.
Their naturea wore so essentially different from those of Elizabeth and Mellen, that they might go through a whole life without one such dark hour through a whole life witho as daily nocurred in theirs.
is daily nocurred in theirs. Some time after Elije had gone Mellen returned p ritilly over her faee, but was watching him all p rially over her faee, but was watching him all the while; there was mi eager expression in her eyes, as if she longed to have him go away, but was afraid to express the wish.

Do you feel aleepy, Bessie?" he asked.
"Ithink so," she replied; "don'tremain shat up Elsie."
"You will come down ufter your nap ?"
"Oh, certainly; I will be down to tea"
He kissed her and turned to leave the room
"What arn you going to do $?^{\text {" }}$ ahe asked,
"orme huskily.
"I have nome lettera to writa; I shalt" go down into the library in order to do it in peace-Elsie is ertain not to come thera."
"Good-bye," anid Elizabeth, laughing with byaterical sharpness, but the merriment old not sound natural-it jarred a little on Mellen's quick

He was gone and the door elosed; Elizabeth raised herself on her elbow and remained listening raised herself on her elbow and remained listening till the sound of his step died npon the stairs, then till the sound of his step died npon the stairs, then she threw impatiently saide the ebonis he hadflung over her and sprang to her feet.
"Not a day"a rest," she axclaimed, "not an hout's-not one! I must go out and answer the demands of this villain If Grantley should mact demands of this villain If Grantley should mact me-oh, I don't care-I must havs it out! I shall 5o mad in tha end- $\left[\right.$ shall go mad ${ }^{\prime \prime}$
She wrung her hanḑs in a sort of fury and paeed ip and down the room with quick, impatient "I Im
"I might co now," she said at length; he is in he library-it is growing dark, too.
She stopped before one of the windowa and looked out; the afternoon was darkening under the clouds and a heavy mist that had swept up from "Coming
"Coming nearer and nearer," muttered Elizaoeth, pointing to the waving eolumns of fog ${ }^{n 5}$ if o the danger and the darkness gsther closer and loser about my life! "
She turned
She turned a mey with a bout her and left the room.
She ran through the hall to o back ataircase seldom used and which led into an entry, from whence she could pass at once into the thickest phence she could pass
At the foot of the
At the foot of the stairs she paused an instant, lintened cageriy, then with a quick, Seated in his library, Mellen found it impossible ofulfil his task of letter writing. He could not ceount for the feelinga which crept over him. The quiet and content of the afternoon were all gone and in their place came, not only the unxiety for his sife, but a host of wild suspicions so vague and absurd that he was angry with the folly which corced him to insult his reason by dwelling upon them.
The confinement of the house becsme absolutely hateful to him. He opened one of tbe French hateful to him. He opened one of tbe French windows and stepped out upon the veranda, watching up and down in the gathering gloom, looking acrosa the waters where the fog shifted to and fro like restless sails.
He passed down the steps and entered the when he heard a sound like a person moauing aloud in distress.
He looked about-the mist and the coming night made it impossibla to distinpuish objects with any istinctness-but he saw fluttering among the trees.
He dorted forward, with wiat impulse he could hardly have told, but the woman had disappeared, ment or urged forward by some other motiva he ment or urged could not tell.
"The thought in his m Thep the folly of the thing struok him; not an hour bifore he had-left her almost asleep in hor room, how conld he hava scen her wandering ab tike a demented creature in the misty triligat ?
"I will go up to her room," then he tbought
He
He entered the house and ran upstairs quickly, in. She was standing before the fire-at the noise of the opening door she seemed to thrust something into her bosom-n paper it looked like to Mellenthen she turned and stood ailently regarding him.
"You are up," he said.
"Yes," she replied, a little coldly. "Did you want anything :"
"Only to see if you slept-if you were coming "I shan."
"I shall be down directly,"
He hesitated an instant, then he said:
Elizabeth did not answer; she had let her hair down and was beginning to arrange it, shading her pale face with the floating tresses.
"Were you?" he inquired again.
"Were you?" he inquired again.
" What did you ask ?" she demande
He repeated the question.
"It does not seem quite probable," she said, walking awny towards the mirror.
"I thought that I saw you there only a few min-ites since," he said. Elizabet he said.
Elizabeth was busy lighting a candle; after she had suoceeded, she replind: suoceeded, she repiind:
If you had seen me in the grounds I don't know "No; only aa I left you lying down-
She interrupted him with on impatient geature.
"I am tired of this," she said passionately. "I am tired of this," she said passionstely.
"What is it you wish to know-what do you suspact?
"Nothing, Elizabeth; I only thought it was He Wish of you to go out on such a night
He was ashamed of himeelf now, but He was ashamed of himself now, but she did not offer to help him in his dilemma. She stood still, ar if waiting for him to leave the room.
"We will wait ten for you," he aaid.
"Very well."
As he paseed near the sofo his foot got entangled in a shawl which lay on the floor; he picked it up"And quite Jamp.
"And you said you had not beeb out," ha exFor an inntant
For an inatan, angrily:
"Well, kir, I wns out-now are you satiafled ?"
"Of courne," sbe oxclinimed, "in the same pansionate tonie; "you make it necesasry. I mat out becuuse thase hervous attacka make me feel as if I was chokirg-you are so suapicious that you nea something to auspect in the moat trivial action."
"Told you a He," she added, when he hevitated
"Are you through with this examination-have you any more quentions to ask?
"That tone
And no wonder-blame yourself for it. I cannot and will not endure this aystern of espionageWill have my liberty-that yon may understand!" Mellen'e passionata temper flamed up in his face, but he controlled it ind did not apeak. "Be good cnough to say all you wish and have irritating tone utterly she continued in the same meritating tone, utticri) mis evil words.
"I have nothing to ask," he said; "you ara nervous nnd excited -we won't quarrel to-night." He went out of the room, and Elizabeth grpaned aloud.
"Oh! I am no longer mysel!" she monned.
What wonder! what wonder!" What wonder! whst wonder!"
She drew a letter from her
She drew a letter from her bosom and began to read it, monning and crying as she read; then she threw it in the fire and atood watching till tho last fragments were consumed. She bank into a chair, buried her face in her hands, and remnined for a long time in that despondent attitude, ber whole frame shaking at intervals with nervous tremors, and her breath struggling upwards in shuddering gasps, There was a knook at the door at length.
"Who is there?" sheealled sharply; "what do you wan
"Miss Elsie wiahed to know if yon were ooming to tea," said a servsnt's voice. "There is a genma'am." She started up and went on dressing; as was usual with hor after one of those strange excitements, a eudden fever crimsoned har cheekn and Srightened her eyes.
She went downstairs and received her gueat with sffable grace, which contrasted painfully with.her late excitement, and befora the evening was ovar late exciternent, and befort the evening was ovar seemed to have forgotten the hasty words she had spoken to Mellen, and was like her old self.

THE "BLIND MEN" OF THE LONDON

 POST OFFICE.From an English publication-the Leisure Hour-we obtain the following interesting description of the peculiar duties of the "blind men" in the General Post Ofite London:
The table of the "blind men" is tbe oalmest spot in the onlding. Thelis is no work of mere meehat in the onllding. Theirs is no work of mere mechand oul dexterity, that ean be brought by constant practice to a dazzling rapidity of exceution. It requires much searching in directorice, much gaeasing, muoh men tal effort, to solve moat of the nddles in writing and upelling tbat come apon the table. The frregular oombinatlons of the alphaset ilone present a bound less feld of variety to the ignorant and the persever. lig; and when the cembinations of Cluristian name and surnames, names of towas and names of countie se well as the forms of letters, and the parts of a let ter'h proper superneription, come to bo added, arith metio ons hardly convey the result. It is to this table that all those riddle letters find addressed, long after his denth, as the "Duke bor wellenten, Ip ark cornar London englent, or hal swear, decipher buek directions sa the following, eonveyed In tha most undcuipherable hand writings: "To Mrs.
Slaver to tbe Prince of wales in fits Roy, place Km .
Ste

FUN FOR THE FAMILY.
Caws and Effect, - $A$ row in a rookery. Whes does a goodnatured man resemble Golliter on paradef
When be stande a tense.
The churchwarden who took up a collec
on hise lajd it down again, Why Way is a widower like a house in dilapi-
He wants to he repaired,
The young lady with "speaking eyes" has so moch,
THE Borough Market intelligence says, "Hope are golvg ap." Wre are gled to he thls fis deeldedly a at "p in the right direotion. THE contradictions of pronunciation in the ternination "ong be folowing innes:
wite

Wife, make mee coms dumpliegs of dough,
Tb $y$ 're bettr than meit for my congh;

Bnt not till tboy Tre beevy or tough,
Now Imat be orto the Dlongb,
And tbe boyn (when the

Tue lady whose sleep was broken has had
t rended.
When is rent like a land tax? When it's ground rent, ground rent,
To Armisys,-To find the carnation's tints in a mulberry complexlon. Why is yeast in WAY is yeast in bread like electric fluid?
Because ite ligbt(e)ning. WIr is Hamburg beef like oriminal? Because it'e well bnng.
Wur is a high-complexioned girl like an Wuy is a high-complexioned hooest many Because she's very fuir.
WHy are lawyers like profersors of the small-aword Becaute tbey're in tbe bablt of feocing. epigram.
 Why in the glow-worm does her pewer produce

Leap Year.-This is "Bissextile, or Leap Cesp" tbe hounde uanally presaribed in tbeir inter.
ourbe with toe terner bex, and pop the queution to whomeoever they fancy.

ELLIPTIC SEWING MACHINES.
See them before purchasing.
Offee, 537 Broadwny.
8 Card Phetographs Only $$ 1$.-All differ

Carriages.

Tbe subeeriber bsi now on hand a SPLENDID SSORTMENT OF CARRIAGRS of tions, warranted perfeet both an to atole, msterinin and

Latest Invention

 IN GOID PIENS Wy warrant Every Pen for one year, and to be Solld Gold, Qenuine Irodtun or Dimmond-pointed, and to Pen madel ese eample Peos to any addrene in the United will tens, postage paid, on recelift of price.
 GEORGE A. RLY & CO.,
Sole Manufacturers, Sole $\frac{\text { Manutacturers, }}{\text { No. }} 181$ Broadwn, N. Y.

[^3]TURNITURE, wholisale and rytain, BY

DEGRAAF & TAYLOR

(FORMERLY H. P. DEGRAAF),

No. 87 Bowery, New York.
This estsblishment is six storeys in height, ard extends 242 feet through to No They are prepared to offer great inducements to the Wholesale Trade for Time or Cash: Their stock consists, in part, of GOSEWOOD PAREOR AND CEANEBER FUTKITIOREB; Mahogany and Walnut Parlor and Chamber Furniture;
Also, CANE and WOOD SEAT work, all qualities; HATR, HUSK and SPRING MAPTRESSES, a large stock; ENAMELLED CHAMBER FURNITURE,
TUCKER'S NEW STYLE PATENT SPRING BED
The best as well as the cheapest of any in nse. Retail price, $$ 2$ each. Their faclities for manufacturing defy competition. All work guaranteed as represented.

25 Cent Legal Tender Circular.
$$ 15$ A DAY AND A WATCH FREE !
 turn to you tbe poetage on your ceter or its equiva lent, As we want every person to have a Ciroular It antonjfhes everybody; deiles competition, and ontetrips competiore. 0atstrips competitore.
1,000 Agents wanted.

WEIR & U.O, 505 Cbeennt St., Phila
$$ 75$ A MONPH :-I want to hire Agenta in every ny new obesp Fumlly Soming Mifehinep, Address
S. MADISON, Alfred, Maino.
S30.61

ROSTETTHENS calisbelatid STOMLACH BITTPER
$A$ Ponys on which afl pryscans

Hostetter's Stomaoh Bitters,
 Defot ror New Yore, 476 Broadmat

Attention, Company!

 kers or monstation in lijury to the Bkin. Any person

madamis benadictis
Millinery & Dressmaking Establishment, Ia now repleto with Every Imported Novelty of the Season.
12 Waverley PLACE, NEw Yobk

Balrer's Rheumatic Balm

 aro four remedic waeb no fumily should bo ever BAKER'S KIDNEX AND GRAVEL RKMREDIES,

|GOLD! GOLD! GOLD! 100,000 WATCHES, CHALNS, &c. WORTH $$ 500,000$,

The World's Conqueror !

 ${ }^{000}$

DR. CLINTON KUYPERS.
Office, 30 Beekman street, $\mathrm{N}, \mathrm{Y}$.
"Album Gomse"-Something New, Gay and

 ब. W. Tren wainision, Pobliber,

MOSKWA!

Boanty--HUNTMS WHITE LIQUID ENAM, KL propared by Madame Rachel Leverion, the oele

3. 6. BCEUTL

MERCHANT TATLOR 39 Ann Street, Now York, phiob be is preparce to make ap in the moont foehion
anle style and on tbe most reasonable tarma for oasb.

If vou want to K now

A uttle of everything relating to the haman system diet, nli, marriage, eto nto, read reviscd and enlarged diet, nlr, marriage, eto,, eto, read edition of Mredical Common Sense. Among the rany aubjecta treested in this work are the foliowiog: Conemption, Bronchitis, Aethma Catarrh, Sefofuls, Rheumantism, Dyspepsils, Pites,

 Philosephy of Childmarking, a Caapter for tbe Mrarried, and a tbonsand thinge of value to the married and singlo never written before, maldag, altowether, a curlous book for ourtons people, and a a goed book

The " star" No Chimney Burner
 or
ney. We are now prepared to appoly to supply the increning de mand for this superier Bern-Er, whet ene Er, whith everywharn give gantiataction,
goetpald. for ss conis.

W. FORSYTH & CO., 42 and 44 Nasesn Street (adjolning the post Omce), effer for ealo tho following Magnificent List of WATCHES, CHAINS, JEWELRY, ETC. Valued at $$ 300,000$ !
inch Artiele One Dollar, and not to be pald for antl you know what The articles in thile etock of Jewelry are of tbe neat ant and most fashionahile styles. Certincates of al the various articles are pat in Sealed Envelopes an eleven, 52 thirty, 5 ; alxty. five, s10; ono bundred

St5; Cetilicate money to be enclosed witb order Correspondence promptly answered, AGENTS waited in evers yown and regment. We allow tbem ten cente on every Certflente, provided their remittance amountit to try , and more lifheral lin.
ducoments to tbose who buy largaly. Send for Ciro oular. Address

"Psychemancy."-How eitber sex may fise inate
 mental sequirement all can possens, eecuring certinin soceese in love, marriage, eto., free by mail, for 23 ottry,
 - in extraordinnry bookt, of great interest; Third edi. riam a Co., rabubbers, rimadelpha
" MIonstaches and Whiokers in 42 Dave"
Dont be humbugged witb ONGUENTS. Tbe GREAT

Ten years in the Business. Patrons counted by thousands in every State of the Union. A Premilum for all! Evans' Nenk Enterprise, 1864, $500,000 worth of tivew Goods, consinting of Gold and Silver Watehes, Jww, elry, Vest and Guard Chains, Gold Pens, Pencils, Lockets, Medallions, Setts of Jewelry, &ce., &ze., together with a large line of goods especiudly adapted to the wants of our Soldiers, Army and Navy, to be sold in lots at One Dollar Each, and not to be paid for untril you know what you are to receive. Premium Orders for above goods, sent to any address, on receipt of 10 oonts. send your ordors to
G. G. EVA NS, Publisher, 630 Chestnut Street,

Philadetphia, Pa. of. B. A clansilied Eatalogue, Photograph Card Plctures and Albums,
sent on recelpt of 5 cents.
addresu, c. a. evans,
Philadelphia, Pa.
A Now Book.
Clotb; gilt edgos. sent by

J. H. Winslow & Co.

 The Greateat Opportanity Envsx Ofrered to 100,000Watchea, Chntin, Gets of Jewellery, Gold Pens, Braceleta, Lockets, Ringa, Stade, &ce., &e., Worth $500,000: To be sold for ONE DOLL $1 R$ euch wiftont regard no value and not to be paid for until jout knowo what anme time got our Creclar eontainting full liat and particulars, aleo terme to A gente, filch we want in percry Reginent and Town inthe country.
J. H. WINSLOW & CO.,

IVETERAN

vetaran Soldiers !
 Woun iow ixpued

"Diphtheria."

 Sols.
$10 AGENTS $$ 10$

Wheeler & Wilson's Highest Premium

sievina Machines 438476 No, SOL BROADWAY, IX, Y.

Dr. B. C. Perry,
DERMATOLOGIST,
No. 40 BOND STREET, NEW YoRE, Treata necoensfolly all
Dteones of the Scalp, Loos of Hatr and rem. Removen MoTt, RPECKLES, and otbsr DISingary to thas texture or Color of this Sclic hano charge for constltation. da

Storooscopic Viows, Cartes de Vliteo-Now

The Old Dsta blished and onity reliable Pur-

E. W. BENTCZETY,

PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY,

 Card Pricturces 81 so per doz-s for 81 .
All other Photeraths in thers, 2 for $$ 1$,解 or most deffced pleturce can bo , by the ald of hia ex. Every attentlon pald to visitiora wishhng to examine

Swords, Sashes, Belts.

Something New in Playing Cards. Love scenes DESIGNS FROM FRENCHE SOENES. Tbe bove new Cord hase bew brantiful pletures.

OVER ALL COMPETITORS.
OIEIICIKIEIRING SOINS, MANUFACTURERS OF
Grand, Square and Upright Pianofortes.
THALEERO'S OERTIFIOATE
"Since my arrival in Amerioa I bsve oonatnatly nsed tho Phanon of Me asra. Chiekering & Sona, mad Warerooms, 694 Broadway, T. X., 246 Washington Street, Boston

Ace of Eagles. The saits ara EAGLES, SHunLDS, STARs and FLAGs.
Colonet in place of Kingi, Godidess of Liberiy for Quee ; Mrajor for Juok, Carda ase tbe first and only Tbe Uajon Playing genuine American Cards ever prodecen, they can be minnfuctared only bo the A meerican Card Company.
These Cards are rapizly taking the place of Cards

 bocome the Lesding Card in the $A$ mericesn matket
In playing with thase Carde, they are to be oalled
by tbe nampa tbe emblemarepreaent, and ab the emby be name tbe emblema repreant, and at the om blems are as familuar ns hoesehold wordis everywbere blems are as fautuar ns hoesehold words everywbere nimong tbe people of the Ameriean Repablic, they enn be nued ne reqilly the firet occas lo as Cards bearing be used ne revilly the iret occas loe as Cards bearing Forcign emblema
The Unlon Carrs are tbe most plessing and attruat-ive Cad ever mide, Tbey are prodecad in the Hibbve Card ever mande, Tbey are prodecad in the Higb est style of tbe art, and eacb piek ta est style of tbe art, and eacb pret ta put op in an olegant Cord Cobe, sultable to Fecp them in whee not in use, nad then in bandsome dozen boxes for the In use, nad then in bandsome dozen boxes for the trade.
Two Sample Packa, in Card Casee, sent, posttpald,

Bend 25 Cents to C. W. Philo, Brooklyn, N Y., सnd reedve the CLRCOLAR OF W. taining SECRETS worth $$ 50$ to.any one.

Grays Patent Molded Collars

Have now been before tba publle for nearly a year.
They ara univerailly pronounced tbe neateat and beat itting collara extant.
The uper edge proaenta s perfect oerve, free from the angles notlced in all other collars,
The cravat eausen no peakers on the inside of tbe to the nack. The Garone collar has a amooth and evenly Antahed These Colliars are, not dimply fat plecon of paper Tht in tbe form of a collar, but are moLDED AND GHAPED TO FIT THE NECK:
They are mide in "Nevelty" (or turn-down atyle) pucked in " solid alze ${ }^{3}$ in in net brue cartong, con latter avery handy package for Trevellere, Army and Navy Offcers har EVERY COLLAR la stamped Sold by all dealers in M'a Furnishing Goods, T Trade aeppled by

 Do Xou Want Inxuriant Whiskers or MKoustaches?
MY ONG UENT will foros them to grow beavily

WATCHES.

Mograt nath Am Wath
And
and ain wiwaz

an $16

Omacrs Wath K trin Hew

Ayputy indion poub Time
Sin
$ 35

Al our wimancrb.
putiour waice iex iout oot in Curafy aemention:

Fotass on wabes by ine
GED. A. zLY & co.
181 (late 209) Biortiza, Mhatrimonv.-Why evary man abonld marry Why every woman sbould marry, All may marry to

10,000 AGENTS WANTED tor the Sin

Whiskers! Whiskers!

 M. A. JAGGERS, Calhoun, II.

Poor MIan's Socret, with which any one (either male or female) can mate $$ 10$ per day cany Sent everywhere for 25 ota, Adrese
W. FRIZZELL, Baltimore, Md,
"Finigan's Waker"-" Why I Loved Her, he
"My Love is on tbe Battleffeld," "Kind Frlende nit

Ton Thousand Wondorful Things ! In anding everything Marv llouk nad Rare oad, Curl

New Army Watches.

ARRANDALE & CO, Importers, 212 Brondway, N. Y, Waet Agents in every Countand every RcM:
Y.
 for clircular.
Sterooscopic Views and Cartes do Visito.

Royal Eavana Lottery.

THE BEST LITERATURE To By the Best American Writerse found each month in the

Atlantic Monthly

 apecimen nquber to TICKNOR & FIELDS, Furlehery, $135 \%$ Fishiggion street, Boet

S47 AMERICAN $47 LEVERS

Trads Mark, P. S. Bartlstt, Waltham, Mass, Full Jswellsd, Warranted, in 402 , coin silvsr hunting case, gold joints, fancy push pin, for $$ 47$.

Mrunco's $\mathbf{1 0}$ Cent Publications

 The Funter's Triumph; THE WARRIORS OF THE SWAMP, $A$ Sequal to the Incian Staser, is forest talc of manrcil Novel No, - -THR PATRIOT HIGHGAYMAN,

To Conswunptives!

 The Adertiser, i=vig tean retored wo he that cpea ver qufterer will try ho remedy, is,

BRIDCEWATER PAINT

A Beantiful Mieroscope for 30 Stsey AGNIFYING 500times, moiled on receic

GOKD PINTS AND GAGTBS

METALLIC AMERICAN   Great Chance to Make Money! $$ 650,000$ of Watches, Jewely y, &c.  Orivina, L the World.

 Given sway with our STATIONERY PRIZEEvery AGENT purchanag 100 PACKETS will reeiv FREE, 名 a SILVER
WAht We alao puhlish gpLegil STEEL RNGRAV-INGS. $$ 10$ inveated will yield $\% 50$. Agents ean INGS. orore money ly congaing in the siant of our

Norvona Disoanes and Physical Deblit-ot charge Adad

ThN He Hera
phen

The Celebrater ORAIG MICROSCOPE,  hcantifal Mount Ohjeote,  ${ }_{3}{ }^{2} 5 \mathrm{HENRY}$ Brosdway, NēI York Aleo, he will maid, wrepald, tie Belle. siding Foens sal Fleld-Ficee, accommo

GOLD WATCH FREE

$15 Per Day Fasy $15

 thet every one will buy. Our Paekagea etand ben heen adknowledged nis the leading und only real vinubhe and standard arficleo of the kind ever manufalured. Wa present each person who betan an Agent for ue with a Beautifut Gow or SILVER HUNTMG for ue with a Beautifut GowD or silver HuNTING CAsE LEYER WATCH, Genuime Engilsh Movemente, Cfill Jewelled, Werranted ome year. All Goodachar niteed as Represented or mimity refuniled, A Aingle one of Lur Large Paekngen containg more real valuable articles than any haif dozeno other Packages ever bold or they would not he ivithted, Call and cexamino or eend for our Great Now CIrealar for 1806 , continin

Soldier's MIoney Belt howands
Thin Belt is designed ceppechlly for foldiere, It

[^4]

A delicate question-the mara and Thy Bidyy.

A WATCH FOR ALL! M. WARD & CO. Mastracturumg , NTew York.

100,000

Whtches, Lockete, Chains, GoId Pens an Tohs eold for $1 each, snd not to he patd for until Tohs eold for $1 esch, byd not to he puld for unti
pon know what you are to get, and not to he kep anlegs you arg peffect y natignied.

 One order will he gent for
for $$ 2 ; 30$ for $85 ; 100$ for $$ 15$.
Alo, we have just fisuued soveral new doalgne, mong which is the ncw Bottle Pin with the Likeners taken from lifo) of either Genersle Grant, Fieade, or Nayy whobe likenessam De ontsined. Also, a ne Artilery and Battery Pin. Also, a new Enginee Artillery and Battery Pin. Also, a new Einginee

Naval and Pontcooier P Pin. The abovo are all mad in Fine Gold Plate, and will he sent for 8150 esei Also, anew Cavalry Pin in Soll Silver (oure coin) for 11 So. Also, either Army Corpar Divition or Compuniny Pis, Sollid silver, with Your Name, Re meot nuy Compung handeromety your Nimede, Reren Yessel and Hospital. Send for wholesals Hluarroted o deseriptive circular.

(new style)............... $810{ }^{75}$

STAMMERING

And Stuttering permanently cured hy Batesin Pa,
Pat of Pamphets and Drawinga describling the eame

97 armx WATCH. $$ 7$

 $$ 15$ European Timekeeper $$ 15$ A JUPERB "BXTRA DOUBLE GOLD-DLA EDD"

 Wxact Imitation of a 10 Gold Watch used by th British Army Officers. Bery free, hy mal, in Elegent Morecco Case, is

$$ 30 \underset{\text { Levers. }}{\text { American }} $ 30$

 Real English Duplex Stop Watch, In Trasefve Silver Hnatigg Caben, Fail Jewelled, Swere Beconds, fir $A$ rtilerists or Timing Horses, FuEli Guntart $e, ~ 330$.
Gond Wat hes, for A.mr nse, of ell d-periptions.

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE BYMAILor EXPRESS

 Resiy-Made or to Mensaye, at $$ 33$, $830, $ 45$ per do FRENCH FLANAEL OVERSHIRTS, $63,{ }^{2} 7$

THDHCOKLARS

 Heving $t$ - appravaco wd comfort of yner, have rence to any orner cular, as Union on the rocelpt os is exnta.

> WHOLESALE AND RETALL.
S. W. H. WARD,

J. W. EVERETT & CO

 OFFTCERS OF THE ARMY AND NAVY, STATESMEN, DNYNES
 J. W. ETERET
Senc for criour

Dyspepsia Tablets.

 seeond fioor.
 TOMES, SON & MLELVATN

 Alarge

Fictandos of gotidazes!

A $\frac{\text { TL }}{\text { Ur }}$ Articlos for Solliors at at Baltimore,

A Socret Worth Knowing, -How to make

FRANK LESLIE'S HHIUSMMRAMED

No. 447-Vol. XVIII.]
NEW YORK, APRIL 23, 1864.
[Terns: $3 50 Yearly, 14 Weeks $$ 100$.
THE GREAT METROPOLITAN SANITARY FAIR.
Of all the attempts made during the war to raine means hy the voluatary contribution of he more warmly taken ap or more enthueiastically earrled to tho mountain height of complete suecess than the Mork andertake a great work they do It greatly, nnd

|  | 㫙 |
| :---: | :---: |
| , The huildinge where the wealth and beauty of | purchasers. To let all far and near see what |
| city gathered to net day hy day the part of ealee | Fair really la, we lay a serice of plotures before them, |
| may aoon pace sway, hut the memory of the | which cannot fail to Interest. They may arouse fome |
| eat Fair willendure, and, we truet, at hre been wisely | of the tardy to make thelr offeringe. Let eath nek |
| ggested, in the form of a permanent Soldiers ${ }^{\text {b }}$ | himself what have I yet done f |
| ome, where, half a ceatury hence, the veteran, atili | Our readere are already familiar with |
|  |  |
| wounds in the great war for hie country'e exintence, | ha |
|  |  |

The Department of Arma and Trophieq. The Department of Arme and Trophlea ie a military mueeum of great intercat, embracing Revolntionary relios, the uniform, nwords, camp-chest, etc., of Waohington; srme and equipments of Contluental oficers and men; flage borno in the Rovolutlon, the war of 1812 , the war with Mexiec, the torn and tattered bamners which our volunteers have cartid through banners whlch our volunteers have carried through tields of hlood. RattleIngs wrested from tho rebeis, arme of other days and the newly-invented cantion and miasies line ths walls of thle room. In the oentra crowds gather around two splendid and awords, preseated by Tiffany, mander, the other for G Ganeral.

 sworda tbe competitors are almost exclusively Gen. MeCleilan and Gan. Grant, tha former leading; for is moat readily entered after passing from the Depart. ment of Arme and Trphen, and never, here, has not

 lethers aregrouped npon the
a vie of of this department.

 The Union square Building.
 servatory in front, and entering, we find the Iaternationad Departunit, which ope show foujy, givigan fepar te oiew of the Fountain in the centre, and the Ko let all sppprestate, giviag a sepsrate sketch of nuer tolireplee.
Tbe Cbildren's D purtment, alw kys well attended,

Barnum's American Mueeum

 $\mathrm{F}^{\text {OUR }}$ ENORMOUS Gemoman, enohiover citht feet hight two

Oscanyan's Oriental Album,

FRANK LesLeses LLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.

TERMS FOR THIS PAPER.

terms for advertising.

One Dollar a line on the untaide or lant page.
Sixty Cente a line on the 14th and 15th pagee,
The Publisher of Frani Lestie's Lulusckated Paper invites hls present contribntors and thera to send in befors May 1st atories and poems sultod to ita colluman, as well as idena for comlo siketchen on suljeots of the day.

Summary of the Week.

THE GENERAL-LN-CEuET,
Gen. Grant, having visited-Forcrèss Monroe and the Peninsula, returned to Washington on the 3d April, and on the 5th proeeeded to his headquarters in the teld. He has since reconnoitred, in person, Lee's works on the Rapidan, and a movement may he looked for Rapidan, and a movement may he looked roon as the roads arcpracticahle. The re$\mathrm{e}=\mathrm{n}^{+}$storm bass eptaway many of the bridges ini the Orangc and Alexandria railroad, and doge other damage.
Commissioner Ouid visitcd Gcn. Butler to wonicr on the matter of prisoners on the 2 d , and retursed to Richmond. The roads in Virginia are in such a condition as to prevent opcrations. Lee's fortifications at Mitehell's station, Clark's mountain, can he seen from or lines.

The transport Fairhsven, with several hundred soldiers of the 79th, 88th and 90th New York voluntcers, was driven ashore on the 1st, near Cape Henry, hat the troops erc fortunately all saved.
A gunhoat expedition to the Chiekshominy eturned safely with 40 negroes.

ennesseze.

Col. Marsh, with 600 of the 6 th Union Tennessee cavalry, engaged a rehel force of and was driven haek, losing 75 men and three officers. Tte wonnded and prisoners were pparently butehered

All the veterans of the army of the Cumerland and the army of Tennessee are ordered to the front.

alabara

The rcbel ram Tennessee, lying near the fort at Grant's pass, was struck hy a squall on the 1st, and, keeling over, sank. Only ber smokestacks ean now he seen. This formidable antagonist, with her six 100 -pound rifle Parrotts and as many small pieces, is thus disposed of.
Gen. Franklin, witb the main body of his army, has rcached Alexandria. On the 29th of Marel Gen. A. J. Smith pushed on, folAlexanoria came up with Gen. Dick Taylor Gen. Mower, with 8,000 men, led tbe Ameriean Gen. Mowcr, with 8,000 men, ledibe Ameriean army, and after thrce hours' fight drove Tayarmy, and atter thrce hours aght drove TayOnr loss, 18 killed, 60 wounded; the rehels Onr loss, 18 kiled, 60 wounded; the reheis Dudley's hrigade distinguished itself grcatly. Dudley's hrigade distinguished it Naehitoehes is in our possession.
The steamer La Crosse was captured hy guerillas and burned on the 25 th, below her way to New Orleans, was burned at Plaquemine.
Col. Powell Clayton destroyed tbe rehel ponton hridge at Fairview, and hurned a train of 35 wagons, loaded with eamp and garrison equipments, ammunition, ctc., and captured, hy a stratagem, 370 prisoners. Our captured, hy a stratagem, 370 prisoners. Our men pretcnded to belong to Shelhy's command, his troops being dressed in U. S. nuion them. A number crossed the bridge and were disarmed at onee.

hentucky

Forrest, whose hloody system of war, filling his prisoners in cold blood, is praiscd Richmoud papers, has found tbat bis course may he requited. Champe Fcrguson, one Manchester, and pursucd by Col. Stokes. He waschester, and pursucd by Col. Stokes. He in a house near Short mountain and dispatehed. The recently published work and dispatched. The recently published work of Col. Fremantle admits that it was a rehel English readers some diverting stories on the snbject.
After his repulse at Padueah, Forrest re tired on Mayfield, and having repulsed Grieron, in Tennessee, is dispersing, to retir more easily. some or his men we Shelyyvile, hut were resca Tbe gunhoats had a fight at Hiekman, with guerillas, on the 5th.

nussissippl.

On the 8th the rebels, 1,500 strong, attacked Rook's plantation, near Snydersville, and de stroyed the machinery and huildings, bnt were at last driven off by the 1st Massaehusetts (colored) eavalry.

north carolina.

On the 9th 40 rehels laaded on Cape Look out, seenred the lighthouse keepers, and ex ploted a keg of powder in the lighthouse injuring it greatly.
florida
Gen. John P. Hatch has sneeeeded Gen Seymour in eommand in this State.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, on the 4th of April, the Nentrullity laws were diacuseed, und a bill wis reported appropriatiog $$ 5,000$, con for the autiafaction of olama Appropriatiog 05,000, con for the antianaction of olaims for anollations evmmitted hy the French prior to July 31, 1801, and EDpolatsig a Commisalon to adjndente asid ohaima. The Hous hill authoriadag enlietreetta in Sh Trambul made apecohes against it, while Mresers.
Shana and Wison apoke in 1avor of the hill. Mr. Howe, of Wisconala, then mnde a apeceb in favor of proninutivg alavery by an amendment of the Coantitu-

In the Hoyes, reeolutiona calling for informationas number of permona arreated for polititeal offences, were faid oul the tihle. The Secrotary of Wer exiled an for a at: rement of the nnmber of men who bave entored the army since March, 1881 , and the
 In the House, a hill was reperted anthoriatag the consiruetion ol two bridgas seros sthe ohlo, to entible the railronis of Indiant and filinois to connent witb siroads on the opposito bask of the river tn Kith. rairoad The rullroud companuea are ready to halld hurzy bridgoe without coat to the Goverament.
the motion to ley the bill on the table wis aegatived hy motion to ley the till on the table was aegatived hy four majority, and it was then recommitred to the Commiltee on Roada ana Carale. Tbe Committeo of Ways sod Mear were masruacted to inguire end re.
Wert it the expedieccy of iner asing the duty on fter some diseusalon yit was ind on the toble. In on Mr. Stevens offered a substitate, helare sinhtan-tiaily the hili as sgraed to by too Committee of the

In the Seart
public interest.
In the House, Mr. Peadleton, of Ohio, reporte a a bill prevlaing thist the heads of the departments shall be eotited to occapy seats on the dioor of the House, with the right to particelpate in dobate upon matters relating to their respecifive departments. It Wa oritered to he printed. Tbe National Bank hill was then tike

Just beginning to silver tell now of tha terrors of #t great fire of thirty years ago, or the festivities of that Croton colebration.
When duty and piessure go hand in hand in accom hers in a moral subimity in it that chat ergen the dmiration of natione, and does morís in estahilshlug peniog of the twar. All politice, ereedel, retlyione and whether are forgotten, and tha great poople, not, ver, in tbeir efforts to give that whidh will amelio rats the horroxs and soffering of the ocension, and stamp our ety ond our country as tho most eallght. Eyed, fibsral and humane of say of whith we havere-on that wi:h distdvantares, which are beling rectifich
every day. The siles have not se yot furly com mene dit the

 2 ceats, Indian room, 25, cents; Kolckerbccker exporiment, tho late a two-not too sainute-minute exsmine, in which chase we shouid be willing to difp Dise with the mereeope. This larter sum for in lees tban a month and during that tims all will have a ehance not only witboutherigu ureomfortybly crowded hut at moderate prices, bven withia rsach of the peoreas peraon.

Tho icading item

ing the largest namber of vole to the General recciv-

 ing the lurgest namber or volen, and the other to thenaval oikerer who is the rectplent of the sume. These votea are registered in a book, and esch voter oun of aeven por centura interest on 1ose so, so, and Thla was apreed to. Mr. Stevens thereupon moved to lay the bill on the tahle, which was carried oy a rote of 89 sginst 44. In the Senate, on the 7 th, after several unimportant matterd were disposed of, he debate was renewed ou he joint resolution to amend the Constutaton bo as to prohiblt slayery. Mr. Hendriohs, of Mndiana, prohibit ungulag spal
inits iavor.
In the House, the Secretary of War was directed to eeport the number, names and rank of oflivers dis.
 dismisasis have heen revoked during the wh,
In the Senato, on the 8th, the debate on tha amend ment to the Conettitution, whereby slavery is to be Oor ever prohibited thronghout twe hand, was eoncluded, and after some futlie eforts on the pari of it thride vote wae neeess ry to secure the gae
the messure, but the record stand as foliows:

he measure, buoment.... For the ndmeno

 (opp),

 rebel Confe deracy. Gen, Gariot with mach patriote warmith and el
On the oth the Sconte did not sit.

TOWN GOSSIP.

THE great and ahsorbing talk of the week is, of courss, the Fair-not the fair we are accustomed to meeting in our dally ramblea npon Broadway, in the pariors and drawling-rooms of our frieods, or ha the qaict of our homas-hnt the Cisisilty Fuir, sa our cousin, Jerushn Peabody, who haia como alit the way from We Wherallil, Comiectlont, for the double purposis of looklog into the matter und eelling outa purpuar ole of onlona, culls it.
It han taken this seek fully
It han taken this seek fully to get the Fulrin fall
blant, and aven with the rolng down of the ani on siturday night there were atlll vacincles to he alled plated fmprovementana and pleamareo that wlil mako the grant enteroriec one long apring A Ay'a song, to ha remembered an a great eveet in the hlatory of New York, and anomethog to he rechetei toour" chlilifen and the duty of moking people move on who woull of ohicr

peranco before aritital andelence in tito of the indy

 Cond

 On

epitome of the week.

 Emma Webh gavo a very epirited fecture at theCooper Institute on the 5th of April, in reply to Mifan Dickenton's
on the Demo.
Reputichan.
The content hetween the admirers of Gea.
MoCli an and those of Gea. Grant it the Sanitaly air air promiers to he a very lake far greater intarcet in thin the mea. ApriI Count de Johannea gavo Ahecture Napoleon and ham Lincolo, and Ande hed the everiph's entortivin by feoting Gen. MeClelln as next Preeident.

 - An election in Mary find Yor delegates to a con-
 The State election in Rbode Ialand on the 5 th
rezulted in the euceese of the Repuobicans. - At the meeting of the Board of Education, ommiseloner Hitchminy prenentd a communtestion from A the ppointment of a midctatipman to the Naval Aead emy from the Nith Congrebsional diatriet. The an
of

 ndjour ned,
tinnes to Tb

 at and general fevers, 2 from anknown canses 16 of feasen of the urinary organa and 14 from violence.
 - The nev stener St. John made the trip from New Yort to Albay the other night in 8 hoors and

 An ousleught was mede the otber day on the

 rder to save their property, mide promises to clen hem oif. Tby were then given apperived time to o so, sind if not dote the poles certainly will be Western--Sliver has been dineovered in th pinerice in Barnett county, Wisconein. A fetter to the Wisconsin State Journal any hatrthere are $40,000{ }^{\circ}$ Bohemiaus ${ }^{n}$ io that $S$ State.
 There bas been a general rise in the prrce of the Cinclanatl newspaperk,
an had before been the cate Cinclanatl newspapers,
at Cbicasgo and St, Loulb.
The Keatnoky Union State Conventlonat Loutiville in to meot on Mray 25 to appolnt delegatoa to he National Union Convention. Min. A party of coni workers havo left St, Paut, A man bun been arreated in Clineinuati on the
and of being a reaur ctiouin, he taving a body Th The town of soion, Miloh., polled just 57 voton ind ;
Southern-A bandsome octoroon girl on a 3MiEE.

 Goerge, the hubband, aftrwards obsaped, and ouc.- ceeted in getting to Europ on hoard an Eugifin families, and a short time since retur Neat Cleve-
iad. Meanwhif, on the capture of Nerlens

IVilitary. The following offeers are offichaty Dnounced as of the staft of Lieat. Gea. Grant, in General Orders No. 120, from the Wiap Depriment:

 Hotch The rehel eommitucd to thioner Coin. Ould and Capt.
 - Several offiocrs of the "extinguished corpa" Personal,-Andrew Jarkenon Smith is the Gene-railwho captured Fort de Rus

 $17,186 e$. Hie reccrd ie filled with honorable serviee.
AR there are five Goen. Smithy in the ormy, this explanation may he timety.
 hrotho
mind.
Senntor Hiek has so far recovered from the amputnilionuf his ankle, as to ho taken to his home it Camorioge, Maryland Dpril, to Bucceed the Rev. Starr King.

Obituar y. Frank Wood, $n$ very pleasing author, died tately at

 several of our yonog wido

portruitg of twelve Amertien Indies; "Personnal Memolrs of George Washington" (TASs); "An Ebany on the Life and W

 A well-known Auwyer of New Yorkr, Sud Srily fetil

 Lord An oborton ded recently in London, He He the son of the diplomatsat who arrarged tho reaty with Wehnter. - Lord Aberdeen, fon of the Fremier who wss in power when the war with Ruissi-cmmmenced, comnonly ouled the Crimeau was, thed fately fa Engiand.

and, for marrying five Lu nubandeo. When wifformed Eng
 she had no fear of nut getting nuother hazband or two decortad went beek tacre to reand, nave bera tarre
and feathered by the demale inlobitinn, of the town
 A firm of recruiticg brokers, Damed Mrinh and Bates, of Troy, formerly of Allisy, N. Y., liave, afte Troy.

 to toke care of the baby, failed to keep it quiet, ind hitt mother eume in junt demona from death.

 $H_{\text {a }}$ - Werc hitown up on the sth of April, silling a men.

Art, Literature and *3cience, - A lester
From home states that a very inter anting diecovery

 hand of the saviour le piaced acoording tout the Greek form, viz, the thumb and the third digit unitec. The century.

 great activity. When completed India will be unitted to Eiurop. Hopce arcentertulned that thfo Important menot of pommuiection may be opened to toe publio mentus of communiention may atiout the monith of May next, Whagner, the fomous composer of "Tannhaver, 16 about to fitit Loudon, in order to dircet ind $\frac{\text { Davidy " "Lalls Rookh" has been rovived in }}{\text { Parha }}$

 it eesma to me Hat Ms
litile men to Congices,

DEAD.
BY THEO. P. OOOK.
Have you seen the long proceasion Marching to the silent grave? Moving slowly-moving slowly, All the wicked, all the holy Jofulng in the grim procession Marching to the gloomy grave?

Did you see the pale, sad angel(Death the name of that dread angel) Write her name in the EvangelDoom her to the silent grave? He would take no flerce denial Scarce my heart could bear Scarce my heart could bear the trial Join the concoursc of the dencourse, Joil the concoursc of the dead. all the pale stars overhead From their far-oft hitying faces From their far-off hiding-place In the bosom of the night.

But my heart gave back no answer To the pale stars ovcrhead, For she took it in her keeping, Bore it to the haunted grave. So I groped about in darkness Other men for grief were weeping, But I wept not through the night (With my soul 'twes constant pight And the memories of her prescnce Were the stars above my head).

Oat I pray you, holy apgel, Write my name in the Evangel Let me join the long procession Marching to the peaceful grave. Let me,seek my heart and lover; Into Morning Land pass over, With the solema, sad procession Through the portals of the grave.

MARETANA.

By Lizate Camplod.
I hav come up to town from a remote corner in the country, to spenid the Christmas holidays with a rich city uncle. It was my first visit, and everything was new and brilliant to my ignorant young eyes. The bright lights of the streets at night, the gay shop windows, the gorgeous preparations in pestry and confectionery stores for the approsehing featival, the oceasional bands of music and the marching through the streets of various and the marching through the streets of various ordera-even the Italisn organ-grinders-all seemed ordera-even the Italisn organ-grinders-all seemed to me delaghtfol and brilia.
fairyland I had dropped into.
"Surely," I thought occasionally, "they only It seemed impossible to my inexperieneed mind that such a magnificent display could be got up once every twelve months. On Christmas Eve, after dinner, my uncle, who was kind and goodnatured, and seomed to enjoy my wonder and de hight at everything, said.
"Ceorgio, how would you like to go to the cireus oonigat ?
My heart jumped at the thought. The circons! Ever sinco I was seven years old it had been the dream of my lifo to go to a circus. I expressedmy joy at the prospect now before me in no measured terms. But suddenly a cold chill rsh over me. "Uncle," I said, with a horriblo misgivi
"haven't you made a mistake? Thero's no ciroue in the winter time:"
"Oh, yes, my boy, there is; don't you be alamea on that point. They've juat opened a grand new building a few streets ap town. This is the first good seat get on your overcoat, for It is litul this is your first circus.
It is little exaggeration to suy that I "flew " up. stairs. In less thmn a minnte I was down again and equipped for the atreet.

The Anzouncement of the Marriage.
places. I sat down almost breathless with exoito ment, and at first searcely dared to look areund me. When at last $I$ summoned up courage to take notes of my surroundinge, I found the place to be What seemed a perfecty whandelier glittering with light. It made my eyes ache to look at it. Gaslights in a circle all round the front tizr of seats completed the lighting of the room. The floor of the ring was covered with fresh aswdust, and everything had a new, fresh smell, and a clean, new look. Presenty the performanie began. I was spellbound
At first I suffered agony at beholding two tall, ngile fellows spinning round on the backs of horses, and performing extraordinary upwards, on one hand, juraping over each other's heads, and half a hundred other feats of the kind, which I can't begin to enumerate. But after a while I gained more oonfidence in.them, as they neither broke their necke nor drove the harses frantic, and If fully enjoyed the novel sight. How 1 langhed at the clown's jokes-what an embodiment of foun he sud how my hands aohed with the plaudita I so plentifally bestowed. After the clown'e jokes were duly laughed at, and the two brown horees with their riders led off, the arens was cleared. I thought the performanes had concluded, and rese to ge.
"Are you tired, Georgle ?" asked my unole.
"Ohb, no sit !" $I$ sidid and I wondered tow Oh, no sir! ! 1 said, and I wondered how he ould otk me, and why be looked so calm and unould ank me, and why be looked so calm and un aterested. Tben sit down again. There's something
"Ob!
lse to come.", glad en ough to hnow my nights en-
I sat downa
joymetit was not jet orer. In $s$ few minutes $a$ lasce caparisoned. A cusbioned spadde, covered with white velvet, snd embroidered dit white velvet, and embroiderd in briliant und a bride of white riblon set off his and a briale of white ribbon set of his gloses biac? thurmur sembily.
A ioud
 seen to spiing on the horse's hack at a single bound; sud tbere, prised on one foot, the silken uride held between her teetb, and her two arm extended to dy with tbe filing borse round and round the ring s dozen of time before sho paused, people. I Fas shankfol to see her for one minute in repos. All had pased so quich thy I was in in reposs. All had passed so quickjy that I was in a whirl of delight, astonisbment and enthusiastio dmiration.
I would have anked my unole whether thie.lovely viston was a fairy, but then I might be nistaken, nnd boys don's like to be laughed at. How beantiof white gauze, spanoled with goid snd embroidered ritb crimson, resched half way beiow her kneo nud crimson sanddels on her dainty feet were surapped with narrow ribbon over the instep and ted around the delicate ankle. $A$ crimson bodiee embroidered in gold and white, enclosed her obiid-isb wait, leving to view the whitest neok and isb maist, levving to wiew the whitest neek and magine. Her face was oo lovely that any man faigit have wisbed for a daughter or a little tistér roignt have wisbed for a daughter or a little tistér like ber, and childike and innocent as it was beanitul. No rouge coneealed tbe beantlful glow on 0 drophng lides and hases with byy conifidene, and ber waist.
eautiful ?" ${ }^{\text {" }}$ "rin " "Poor little girl!" sind my uncle, in a low, sod tone, oooking at the child with moist eyes, "unorund tunately for herrelf, Georgie, she is very beauti-
I would hare asked for some explanation of a re-nark which sounded to me inexplicable, hut again he black horse went fying round the ring, and all my atten tion was given to the lovely rider. I shall never forzet the eenation of terror tbat omept over never forg zet the eensation of terror toat me when $I$ saw ber jump the okipping-hoop with a and then go flying through a haif dozen paperpected to see her go vere the bors''s hesd and lie trawimpied beneasth his hoofs. Wben the trying performance was over I could not applaud; my hear Imost stopped besting; my hands were cold and numbed, and beadn of perspiration stood on my hrow. I was conscious of an overwbelming feeling gratitude to Hearen that the bsautiful child was nhurt, and was seated there easy and gracefyl unhurt, and was seated there easy and graceful on her embroidered sadde. In a few moments sb sprang down, sent a quick how and smils, as seemed to me, to every part of the house at once, nd disappeared. Her horise was led off after her. The rest of the performanee had no attraction for me. I summoned up courage to askk my uncle if he would appaar apgin that night, and on heing go home.
I could not forget her. I described the sight of her-her grace, besuty and cleverness to my little her. In my visions of the night $I$ sat her finy times, al ways lovely, entranaing, bewitching; and ne, dimmed by the const tant thought of her.
On the night after Christmas X hegged my uncle to take me to the circus again, and he humored me. I bere the firts series of the performance with the patience of a martyr. It had no pleasure for me now. How stale the clowna s jokes had become, though I had herd them only though I had heard them only once before. satcty than $I$ had heen on the firrat gight, and $I$ adsulcty than 1 had hecon on the first night, and $I$ admired and enjoyed her performance more. Again I left the house when she retired fromet the arena, and my heart heat with a wild end feverish desire to know her, to speak with her, to call her hy her onme. Her sweet name-fhe must have a smeet name. Her sweet name-fore must have a sweet hen have shrined il for ever in the heart whereon firat dream, my hoyish love, my darling Maritanal Msritana was her name, I learned it aftermards. aeosme hetter acqusinted with the city day by of amusement in the evening.
Every other night I was to he found at the cireus during the second part of the performance; and every time I lef it, my heort thriled with desice to know and speak with Maritana.
device to know and kpeak with Maritana.
From fearing that she might come to harm in Jumping the skiping -hoop, or fying through the hoop povered with parer, Ialmost rrayed that some light accident might haypen which would give me an opportunity to do something that would make The last week of my holiday was drawing to close, and with a sud heart I refiected that I had not yet gained the arquaintance for which $\mathbf{I}$ so longed. I reaolved to visit the circus for tho last longed. I resolved to visit the circus for tho last time on Thurday night-on Saturdy I was to leave the olty.
ow, though the half hour bofore per appearanco had become an intolerahle bore to me. ButI must $/$ one crer took me home in a carriage hefore. Are At leat she appeared.
At leat she appeared.
Greedily I feanted m )
Greeduly I feasted my eyes on her besuty, the how wben she turned to the house ; and wretched解 Suddenly, as she was fying through one of the nopps, a stupid fellow turew a booquet towards hes It strack tbe horse between the eyes-he was ${ }^{3}$ fire, and the throwing of bouquets not being among wild pacifed. But I ouly sow the gitrl. She had fallen of course, and being strnek by the horse's hoof as he leaped formards, Isy $\begin{aligned} & \text { bbite and motionless on tho }\end{aligned}$ he leaped forwardy, ,sy Fbite and motionless on tho floor. $A$ sudden punic seemed for a moment to possess crery one. I wse in the front row, but a CW fet above the arena-to opring fronit my se it raise tbe insensible child, and hold that lovely m my otrong arms, olose to my beating hentt my first thought, and quiek as thought it was done "Where ehall $I$ cirry her $i$ " I asked bre athless. Somebody-I think it was the clown motioned to presently I found myself in the little girl's dressing room-a place ahout three feet square in eize, coid, comfortless, repulsive. By singular good lucck there chanced to be a broken pitcher contining chere ehanced to be a broken pitcher containing nome water, and with that I bathed her forehead and head, and laved her dear little pallid hands. She was not severely hurt, and soon revi nough to open her eyes and speak, faintly.
" Oh , sir), she said, a you were very. thow the flowers. I love flowers, hut I m soorry they started Dobbie. He has sorme spirit, Dobbic

She spoke quite distinctly, in a very aweet tone, and with an enchanting fortign aceent. I made hever seen them till $I$ sum them strike her horse. The clown pereeiving she was not dangerousiy hurt, now returned to his post, and wa were left hurt, alone.
" So
ame you down throw the fown, ed Ana $M_{\text {I }}$ jumped down the moment you fell, and if you will forgive me for saying it, I am very glad the nacident oceurred, since you are not greatly How I ever ssid it I can't tell, but all I said to her came as naturally as speaking. "Why "" she akked, opening b because it has given me the pleasure of speskirst time I saw you.
Sbe tossed her little head coquettishly. Evidantly Wis not the first compliment she had received, youn, for she pnt, up her hand to her head the next moment, and a groun escaped her.
"Oh, forgive my forgetfulpess," I said, "keeping you speaking must go home.
"I should," she said, "hut I feel too ill to go alone, and I must wait till some one oan take me
" If you will allow mee- I will be so glad-
"To go home with me? You're too kind, sir thank you. If you will step ont one moment I will he ready," I left the little place, snd stood outside maiting apparentiy, thrown a dark skirt overe her cirous copstume, and enveloped herself in a voluminoús waterproof cloak, the hood of which was drawn up Fiterproof cloak over her head.
She looked older than when I had first seen her on horseback, but her pale, pained little face, as it looked out from the hood, was the loveliest bed of lilies and roses.
From her appearance n
hout fourtee years old.
"Do you know angthing
ked as she came out, and waited by my side a "It was
"It was no doubt trampled under the horse's feet," I said, and I sighed and returned

I'm sorry ; I so lore flowers, and itisn't so otten I get any:".
I mentall
mentally resolved to spend all my next day's "Woiket morey in floral purchanes.
"Waid the little maiden go," and slipping her hand through my arm, she ied me through many devious passage-ways, till at last "What is your name ".
long through the darkness "ske asked, as we wen that I may know rhat to eall you in my thoughts When I think of your kindness."
"George Alcroft."
Don't you think Maritana Desirse a pretty name? Almost as pretty as she to whom it belongs." "Theme, (I was torn peth jerle a rench boy $I$ once now," she went on, with a slight sigh, "and I often miss my dear little companion. I liked him so much-may I like you ?"
"II you only will," It seld with a futtering heart.
We were at the corner of the stret not and We were at the corner of the street now, and 1 ny last allowance of pocket-money to hire a carMaritana excluimed nazuinst it, but I felt like Maritann excluimed against it, but I felt like a ord, ond ilited her in without deigning a word of reply to ber remonatrance. Then seatiog mysel he driver, and off we rattled.
"Why, how nice this is $\mid$ "
the put hor hagd to her head once or twica.

Sbe evidently thonght I was, and I had not the courage to deprive myself of the importance, I supposed, my fancied wealth gave me in her eyes.
It seemed to me but a fer brief minuter-ths burried drive, bu ot prolong it,
I helped her
"It is too late to ted her up to the door.
"It is too late to ask you in," she said, "my mother has gone to bed or the would thank you. So good bye.
soe hela out her little hand-I seized it, and mever nee her my despair when I thought I migh then, srightened st myself, dropped it. She smiled and I thought the lmpplight from the sidewali. ohowed me a faint color flush orex her thee; the I experienced a feeling of loneliness I had never known hefore. There was no need to look at the I had hequa her sweet voieo give to the carriagedriver, were graven on my niemory for ever!
The next day I purchased the handsome., houqnet $I$ could find in the city; it was really houqnet I could find in the city; it was really beautiful collection of flowers. How well I remem beautiful collection of flowers. How well 1 remember the snow-white tuberoses composing the centro the sweet violets, the blushing mossroses, the rich carnations that made up the rest of $i t$, and then the ilver paper with a white silken fringe that hemmed sends a tremor through me. I leave it to youthral hearts-I was sixteen then-to imugine the joy with which I wended my way that afternoon to the mith which 1 yended my way that atternoon to the of silver tissue, held jealously in my hand Maritana was at home, but confined to her room, with a slight fever and a bad pain in the head. heart I confded to her care the bouquet, to which was attacbed my name, for $I$ had the possibility of not seeing her.
Madime Desirée, who had hut a limited stock ol English, could ouly find worde to thank me, and to say she would earry the pretty flowers to ma fine tonee-immediate.
She did so, leaving me unesrtsin whe ther $I$ ahould go or wait for her return. While I thought of it rapturous delightow sweet! the de
How beautiful! how locely!

Iove chem

I was repaid even for my disanppointment.
co card und then she raised hee voice to call from he otber room:
"Oh, thank you-thank, gyu", Eir-I shall keep hem and love them for ever.
Madame Desirée returned, and ahe tried to give stemmering efforts to make me comprehend he after hearing the expression of Maritann's deligh The next day $I$ left the city.
I was too young to comprehend the ohange tha had taken ploce within mé; but $I$ reslised in some confused manner that $I$ was leaving a place $I$ had confused manner that I was learing a place $I$ ha ntered as a boy witb the feelings of a $m$ a How tame, dreary, heart-sickening I quiet country home $I$ need not stop to exploin.
soon asoured myself that I was not intended for the life of a farmer, and my father declared 1 moped, while my good mother worried about my failing health. But at length they were hoth persuaded that I pined for a life of more stirring activity, and at my own earnest desire $I$ was entered The same triin of cars that a few weeks hefore had taken my hreath away on my first visit to ry necle. But my heart hounded like a ball that had been kept under pressure and suddenly remored when I recogniesd the dark brick walls and the interminable streets that told $m e I$ was again in the great city.
Idid not dare go to a place of amusement on the ight of my arrival; neither did I go for two or hree nights after, for $I$ was anxious not to give my uncle the impression hy the gaietioe of a city yire. But at hast Iound my heart while I waited for her to come, and a last the black horse was led out. Oh, moment of intoxieating anticipation-two men moved asside and out stepped a tal the saddle before any one could offer her assistance.
A feeling of sickness oppressed me. My heid "rew dizzy, and 1 closed my eyes.
"Perraps," I thought, "the programme has been changed, and marituna comes later in the the tall woman in a riding-habit came an infant prodigy, in tbe shape of a very small hoy, who dia greal many things 1 knowr notis for the swee young girl whose imzge was graven upon it. All through the dreary hour that foilowed I waited and through the dreary hour that followed a waited and vatched for her, but the peopie rose, and the lights
 It was a bitter disappointment; and I wearied myself on my way home with conjectures as eause of her absence from the cireus troupe. Fool that 1 mas not to think of it cooncr. She was, doubtless, ill, and it was too late to go then nd inquire for her. But on the morron, betore ny hour for entering the counting-room, I sought the dweling of Maritana, trembling hetween the hope of secing her and the fear of finding her ill, or - I dared not think the wortit, thougg deterAlan! it couid scarecty have been rorse thnu her apartments-Maritano bad been taken iu with some terrible disorder, just then she seemed to be entirely recovered from the fall from her horse, and the doctor had taid sbe would die. Madsme Deeil. rée, at the risk of ber ohild's life, had removed her the roman from whom they hisd rented the rooms tould tell me no more; where they had gone she could aot even guess st; madame had acted like crozy momin-refusing to let anybody see her danghter or to tell what her illness ws, or, in short, anything coneerning her; nud as for the short, angthing coneerning her; and as for tob poor chiidh - she wres doubthess casd by tbat time
I could laten to I could listen to no mores I don't know how I found my way to tbe counting-house; and I hope no one will laugh at me when I say that my unole ound me at my deck, weeping bitterly, when he " came in y, George, my dear boy ! what bas hap-
"Oh, uncle, you reme mber thast lovely little girl we gow at the eircus ?-she is dend!" and I oould "Dend! Well, poor obild, I don't know thot any one should grieve to hear it. She was young and innocent-she has probsbly escaped a muoh orse
This was philosophy, perhaps; hut I only tel that Maritasa was dead, and my heast- acbed with A provident natu
A provident nature hat, decreed that youth re more keenly. The first few months, after the sal tidings I had heard of Maitana, were dreary and sad to me; but after awhile that little episode, growing out of my first visit to a circus, was re membered KE a kad but besutiful picture that could not forget, but must not brood over; an nee or twice a hright thought illumined it like sunlight. sunlight.

Attsr all-who knows-Maritana might not he hat; and some time in the far future I might see loss, for she had ssid she would like me, and I had oved her dearly."
Six jears had paseed away. I had become quite , ind being fond of me, 种d taken me as partue into his business.
People epoke of Peopg man, and sometimes wondery and rising young man, and sometimes wondered tbat I shouac be so quiet and studious-never caring for bsils, or billinds, or suppers, or tbe dozen other specialties supposed to be spen.
Strange to say my earlier taste for the amuse nente of a city ilife had died a audeden deatb; and I arely spent an eveming even at che best of the head to do ordinary evening entertainments of a city, I will oot venture to gueses, but it is certoin that habit bad at length made it a part of me.
One evening my eldest cousin, a very pretty girl, "just out," declared her intention of going to the heatre, and I must gu-no one could please mamma 0 well, and no one else suited counin Carrie as a avalier.
entered a feehle protest.
"Nonsense, George," returned Corrie, with an overwhelming look. "I am determined to see this play, and besides, there's a new dancer-Mademoi don't helieve you ever baw a genuine French dan-daving about her. M. So it will be a treat for yon.

Mademoiselle Maritana! Should I blush to con fess it? At first I could not account for the faments before I could connect it, with a faint mo t my heart, with the little girl I had ween in the circus more than six years before, It was as omantic tribute to the park of the old sentiment glimmered forth throug he cloud of years, that I consented to act as $m$ It $w$ and cousin's escort.
It was so long since 1 had been in a theatre. There Was something almost exhilarating in the brigh fume women. I occupied myself much more in studying the various faces than in watching th acting or the development of the plot, and I wa rather glad when the curtsin fell, and the orchestra played some fine selections from a favorite opera. Presently up rolled the curtain again, and "Here comes the danseuse $l$ " said my cousin, with a little rustling of silk, sud bending forward see better.
Yes: there was the dancer. I could scarcely heliese my eyes-it was Maritana, indeed-my Maritana! the lovely girl of the circus, with every all the glory of regal, porgeous womanhood. The old tide of feeling swept over me, drowning the lapse of years in a moment: and again I bent forward, as on that firat pight, and watehed her. forward, as on that firat night, and watehed her.
Spell-bound, entranced-her wavy grace, her trans-Spell-bound, entranced-her wavy gracs, her transcendent beauty, the soft light of her voiled eyes, cendent beauty, the soft inght of her voiled eyes, the rich color of her rounded cheeks-where could it be equalled? There was not another such lovely roman in the world! These and a hondred ocher minute; and I searcely breathed till the curtain fell, and she was lost to me.
I rose, and with a hasty apology to my companions, left the box. In another minute I was asking permision to go hebind the seenes. It was with some difficulty that I got it; but at last, when I assured the doorkeeper I was an old friend of mademoiselle's, and kuew her mother, I was admitted. This showed that she rarely permilted visitors behind the sceces. I was very gisd of it. I was obliged to wait in the greenroom for some minwas obliged to wait in the greenroom for some She came at last, and 1 thought her more heanhisck velvet, and a hat with a drooping brim, which shaded the exquisite beauty of her face, bat left to full view the rich abund ance of her waying hair. Ifear you don't remember me, Miss Desirée ?" Mospeur ta mght $; "$ and sne spoke with the

ame forelgn accent, rather otronger than when ang her last.

"Perhape yon have forgotten my name, too," aid, with a feeling of mortification at not being ecognized.
"If monsieur vill spaak it I can tell bettor," with a bswitching smile.
"George Alcroft
"Is't possible? I am so glad," and the caught my band in both of hers, and and bright color that made my face elso her cheek and brom.
"Ah, now that I look at you elosely,", she went on, "I do see my little friend. But you are chnoged-you are-wel, never mind! and she lauthed gaily; "men are so do to topy them compliments."
How charming she was-so beautiful, so arch and winting, so perfectly ladylike, too. I felt too muoh to asy muob, but I tbought wre it possible, to myse if I bad almost ceased to re
It was e question I conld not answer.
Sbe spoke ngain before I bad well recovered from he bevilderment of meeting her.
"Well, I mast say good-night, mother is waiting."
"And many I not call on you "
"Certuinly," and she pencilled her addreas on a oard, "we will always be glad to see you; nnd I have yet to thank you for those lovely flowers. Au revoir?
She maved her hand and was gone.
I was satagee wiln myself for my stapidity. She had gone to her carriage, and I had not even accompanied harto it. All my customary ease seemed to have forsaken me.
Tur stupid afterpioce was hulf over when returned to my aunt's box, where I got a scolding trom my cousin for my abience.
My attendance at tbe tbeatre hat it soon became as great a masrel as my avoid ance had hitherto been.
I did not call on $M$
I did not call on Mademoiselle Martiana, ns had at first thought of doing the very next day after prescience of what would happen if I did. But I wnt nightly to see her dance, knd yet I dared not aok myeelf why I went, or why I refrained from One evening I was passing through the hall and I heard my name spoken by my uncle and sunt their voices came from the parlor opposite where their voices came from the parlor opposite where stod, brushing my hat, and I Liotened withour stood, brushing my hat, ang.
"Nonsense, Mary, it will do him good. $\mathbf{I}_{\text {am }}$ no anything that any one else does.'
"But, my dear, he goes to the theatre every iso much the better; he has discovered in him-
 "Oh, nonsense, Aleroft! He only goes to one theatre; and if he wase not such a very exemplary young aman, I should think that French dancer had youg man,
"Stuff What creatures you women are. There You may tuke my word for it, George is an exem plary young man, and he has too much good sense to be really in love with a danoer." I crushad my hat on to my head and hurried out That scrap of conversation had given me a deeper ineight to my own feelings than I had dared to take for myself.
I did love Maritana, and I trembled to think how meet from my uncle, but it matterednot; I mas my own mister, and eas such $I$ determined to act. $I$ continu ed on my way, and reached the theatre juet as the curtain rolled up for Maritana's appearance. The frenzy of jealousy possessed me when heard on every side the admirrtion that was lavished apon her-addairation justly due, which could not and jealousy. I determined to stop this exhibition soription, gracefful beyond compare, but no one

Miss Frances Osgood is the author of a poem called "Fanny Ellisler." If you would have my ides of the living embodiment of loveliness and grace presenterd hy Maritana, rend that little poem end apply every line of it to her. 1 weit hehind the scenes whan she had retired me, I thought with a shade of coldness; $I$ could Might $I$ have the pleasure piqne or indifference to her earringe? Yes; mamma was ill and unahle to accompuny her this evening.
She emiled whes ehe gave the sked leave to call the neazt day when I took her hand at parting Why need Y have leave when $I$ did not araiil myself of it, and again the shade of coldress in self of it, and agsin the ehnde of coldness in her manner. It was pique then. A thrill of pleasure mutckened the pulse of my heart. I apologised, got leare to call and parted from her.
Early the next day $I$ ealled at the hotel where the was ataylog. What a controst from the abode mhero I had first found her. She wae not abone Where I had first found her. She wae not alone, and again 1 fired with jealonsy when bet introduced he opera troupe, and a very hatdsome ond fascl natiug perron. I bad eften looked at him and listemed to bim with delight, for I ween to the opera frequently thut the sight of him, under present cir-cumetanets, froze me. Maritona I thought, jea.
 cashmere morriog-robs, trimmed with swanadown, and her fair hair gathered up with a coral comb The attenti ns of the signor did not dirplease her she even seemed to encourage him. I took my leave aiter a hurried coll, rosolvigg, as 1 walked with angry haste, tomards my office, never to see her szin. But yet I conld not forget the faid her sgin. But yet I conld not forget the fain glow upon her cheek, the tender light in her efes, and the lingering pressure of her fingers when sho and hade ure good.bbe, and said:
"Yeu are in great baste
agnia when you can spare me a litile more of your Tbat night found me a looker-on while she danced, and on the next day $I$ called agsin. This time she Was slone; and 1 was in elysium whit $\Gamma$ listene be could be sharp on accasion, and her low, debiciout laughter.
Wrid little, quite plensed to listen.
While I nat, leaniog my arm on a little table be side me, I chanced to move suddenly, and overthrew a little cuaket beside me Maritana started up with a supprensed cry.
"I swwys keep that caiketlocked," she muttared, fluah overepreading her face. "How could it he
And she skiffully threw herself between her tree. oure and me, and harried tbe contents book agaí lowers, I had caught the gleam of silver paper and the faded yellow of what had once been silk fringe.
I caug
and
O cagat her two handx end drew her sway. A moment looked into her blushing face, and tried to see the light in her downosst eyes.
"Maritana "" I said, in a tone that love and joy made to sound as a harse whisper.
"Well, sir"" khe said, throwing "Well, sir ${ }^{\text {P }}$ "he said, throwing

folmers all this time?

"Why not " she retorted, sharply, and then,
with a demure smile: "Monsieur knows I levs with a flowers
a

Ah, Maritana! And may not monsieur know ant you love him too
A rigid look came over her face; she grew very pale, but answered nothing pale, but answered nothing.
With all the elo
poured out my he urt before her passionste love poured out my he urt before her, crushing the little himds within mine while I spoke, bat no answering ove came into her white face, she only grew more cold and rigid at every word I said.
Speak to me! Speak to me, my lovel Mari tana, my darling! Say that I have not mistaken you! You will not break my heart, sweetest ? One word-I will wait-any conditions you pleaseonily pr omise that you will be my wife."
A rich wurm color, like the beart of a dened all her face, then faded out, learing her quite pale again, as she said, with a smothered gasp:
"You-you don't mean that gou want to marry
"e, George?
"Cortininy
"But men like you, George Alciof, don't marry women like me-dancers ${ }^{\text {P" }}$ bhe said, with a mingyomea like me-dancers ${ }^{\text {p, }}$, she said, led socent of contempt and sadness

I beg your pardon, mademoiselio; mealike ways marry the woman they love.
She wrenched her hands from my grap, and covering her face with them, hurat into a p paeaion of tears. Then, catobing hoth my hands in hers he covered them with a shower of warm and tears before I knew what ehe was doing. "Do I love you?" she said. "Do I love you Look into my face-see thess tass--see-oh, jou Look into my face-see thess tass-see-ob, you are not hlind, George, and you do see how I love ou!"
I drew her olose within my arms and held her gainot my happpy heart-m.
for weremy hetrothed wife.
for ever-my hetrothed wifc
When at length we oould
what mundane it was decided that Muritana shoula fulfil her engagement, which lasted three weeks longer, as ahc declared she could not brenk her word, even to he mayried; and with that I was obliged to be to be severe.
I almaye w
I alwaye went with her to the theatre now. never went in front, for it maddened me to hear the comments passed upon her by vulgar loungers. hen accompanied her home. Two of tbree weeks were gone; and with what joy I thought that only six nights more must pass before $I$ could for ever withdraw my derling from the rulgar gaze of the the atre-going publie. Y ealled for her one night, as usual, cariier than wns necessary, to take her to the theatre, as I alwaya did, for it was my only in teview with her during the twive hoors she called day. Her maid told me that mademoiselle wns too day. Her maid told me that mademoisele was nce that night.
irw 25 shooked at the intelligence; hut certain the girl had not named me, I sant her hack again with my card. She returned with the message that see Mr. Aloroft.
Twenty different emotions possessed me as I left the hotel, in which amaze ment, grief and jealouss predominated; amazemeut at her sudden illness grief for it, and jealouny that I was not admitted What reason could there be that her husband who was to be, the mam who in a single week wao to claim her ae his wife, should not see ber, however il she might be
As $I$ anked myself thene duestions, walking alon blindly, I atumbled agninst Signor Bratelli.
I watched him ; he entered the bell Itung to the hery; core of my meart, though I scarcely of the why; but I resolved to await the appearance or the tenor. I paced to and fro in froat of the out aguin, aniul Itarned fomay, and he dif not come and a bitter rmile. It was all too plain; the illiess Fas a protext; she had donied me for the sake or Signor Brateili, and doubtless thought I would no rage sad jealousy te in took my seat there with ait through the whole pertormance for the sake of her ownlie. Bnt the eurtain fell, and before it went ap ag zin the manager oppeared with an apology yo the hasence of Msdemoiselle Maritana, who had un expectedly taken ill a fer houra before. A sudden revuleion of feeling took my breath a way; I gasped to have thought of that before? Sipnor Bratell bad rooms in the same hotel in mhich Maritan Lived! I scemed to walk on air as 1 returned to my uncle's. Surely nerer before had the certhinty of a beloved one's illness brought such comfort to the beart of a lover.
I was taking a hasty glance at the morning peper nest das, as I made e harried breakf(ast tefore going nest day, as I made e harrice breakfast before going to inquire after Maritana. Sbe would be better, I thought-I was mare she would be better, for I wa in buognnt spirits; and as thougbt of my own approsching marriage I involuntarily clanced over he list of the happy couples. Suddeoiy the room semed to spin around, the floor to open beneath $m y$ feet; I had a sennatoon as of falling, falling down through immeasurable npace, but still Clung to that through immeasurable apace, but still I clung to that fatel paper, and with staving eyes read again and

gain bat borrible paragraph

"Married, at twelve o'clock hast nipht, Made moselle Maritana Desiree, that well-known and deservedly- addired danseuse, to Signor Antoni their ordinary avecations. The name of Made. moieelle Maritians is on the bille for to-night, and Signor Bratelli pursues the even tenor of his way."

A mist came betwean me and the papar, and a thick darknees fell down upon me. When I resovered it was like returning to life from the gate of death, and I wished, with a wild yearning, that I bad passed through those gates, to return to tbie

But I thought again, was it not tome horrible de.
Iusion-some foarful trance which had overtaken me, and not a real misery? But there it was atill gain and agnio 1 read. it, and it was always the triends, some one who had heard and disapproved of my intended marriage? My uncle, perbaps A ray of hope lighted up the darkness of my heart.
It was a jent-a eruel, cruel jest, but get a jest. Maritana was atill my own.
Le the hotel my untasted breakfast, I set off to wall way thither.
The maid, whem I knew very well, sdmitted me to Maritana's parior. She was pale, and her eyes were red, I thought, as Ilooked at her, but X didn't atop to think why.
"Where is your mistress?" I asked.
"Madame hass gone out," she faltered.
Modare? Y ( Wak lor Mra. Desiríe; ; 1 - my wifo ? You know who I meanit girln, my wife -my wlfo? You know who I mean, girl!"
She was I don't think she would see youn, and "Is it true, then, that which I thought a "orrible lie?" I asked between my teeth, graspin "It is true, sobbed the giri, harsting into tears, It
I etaggered out of the room without a word was heside me agnin:
"There is something madame wished me to give
It was a
It was a litlle rose oovered book, marked
"Diary," which I had often aportively oo steal. I had not sufficient life left to reftuse It now, jealousy, rage, disappointment, all had given place to pverwhelming grief. I took the hook, and with a shiver and a groen. I toold not suppress thrust it into my hreast-pocket. Mechanically went to my ofice and busied myselr with my ordianry dutices. I saw that $m y$ uncle Iooked at me comp assionately, but I made no sign that could in duce him to put his sympathy into words. All that day I moved and acted like an automaton, and Then the evening theatre as of old.
She was there; wan and ghostilike, her face deedly pala, her hollow eyes ringed about with dark circles pale and lustreless, and ner form, oven, ghrunk nd beeft of its willowy grace, itslithe suppleneas, ince I had seen her last
It was a pale apectre of Maritana. Whatever and that thought was something like comfort to my ore heart as I took my dreary way homenurds.
Alone in my onn room, as I threw off my over coast the little roses-colored b hook tumbled out of my pocket. I took it up with sad curionity. Parhapn it contained some solution of the canse of $m y$ rudan misery.
I turned over the firat pages, on which were Inten the joyous ontpourings of en innocen heart, all hreathing of love for me, from that first night when I bad renewed my acquaintance with her so happy and conident in her love. Teare wet came to ss 1 read and turned them over. Then The Aate was written in her own frank, free hand vriting, and then came writing on paper blistered with tears-witing that, though cramped, and evi-dentity mitten with stiffe ned, pulseless fingers, I till recog

"Geor

nuch plead uncle called to see me to day. I Was elt hurt and sorry, but not offended-what right had I to be offended t-that none of his relativee had me. Buny disposition to become acquainted with me. But I was acarcely prepared for the revelation had not spoken to them at all about his intended marriage with mysalf.
"After saluting me and taking the seat I offered, Mr. Alcroft broke the awkward silence by saying: "' Tr it true, yonng lady, as I I have heard it rumored, that my nephew, Mrr. George Alcroft, proposes
I toupposes George's ancle did not intend to oon
 I answired, with n haught, manner:
ifi beliere that monsicur's nephaw intends me that honor,
Mise Then $I$ an very glad hat $I$ bave called on on ou, Mestré ; for tbe sooner you know that George can never marry you the better it will be for all

 Tnil prot gsy tbat you haye inveivid my nephem
 You-you do not took like an intriguing and heartlesmoman of the world, such as 1 Nas prepsred mond you. Innooenoee and candor are expressed upoo your face, and $I$ am sure that you truy love Goorge:
George. I t thank you, sirin' $I$ interrupted him with ars for thet oonfidence in me. ' I do indeed love on know bim to be a gentleman, and 1 nexer knem or thought of hin being we Mithy or ever likely to "ecome sol

 "' Y h, Heaven forbid ${ }^{\circ}$
"I' You are a good girl, and you will nerve your-elf to beor the truth when I tell you that George is a ruined man the day that makes you his witie. of those dreadfuly 1 mordsered and my biars roce, whom the seemmed to be the voice of Fate pronouncing a terrible doon upon me. The room grem dark, and sonnd was in my hem, s. if nil the blood in my body throbed in my temples. Almost ns sudder oponen to me as if in another worla, and coming from far, far amay,

"Something there was about mis inability to Change the coustomise of the about his ind inability th of going againat ail the laws of Society -the nece sitg for my present saftering for Georgg a sake, and much more that tacareely beard, and didn' understand, and then Georgat uncid rose and took my

 the sonad of my own voice, it was no change
 sid, 'you are a good and lovely giri, and you have my 'respect'.
"His respect! At what a price; oh, my poor hroken heart Elise came in noon utter and had to carry me to bed.
me
Was
ind, George, when you camo, and ill or

 oou again, and knew you wolld find the mean one me, felt asured I would forfeit my word t our Jour uncle, and bring, upon you all, the ruin and diagrace that I , slas! had not foreeen when 1
 had refused him, hat I waived all hant, and too
meane to let him know that I had changed $m$ own for the sake of a cruel world that cares nothing sboute ther of sis? Did you indeed love me trult and for ever as $I$ love you i would you bave met any fate along with me? formy qake would you have faved aughed Iat Societer' frown Alas! alas I know not what I have done I. But men are not ik woold ourse me in your hearr

looke I had brought upon you.
II
Iosnnot ansawel

 me, sometimes, dearrest, Jout poor Maritanas."
It Tt is twenty years since 1 closed the hutule rose colored diary on tant sad night on whioh 1 fira pened it, and lald it apon my heant ejeened it, and lald it upon my heast. I eursed Society then, nad my uncie, tite moutapiece, und ull ita whima and ife
ife denolate Maritand

my vacoe, atd taxe all the consequencess upan my sives me a feeling I dare not stop to analyse. My ittie boy, who ia juat a the sge to appre clat: tum:-

 "Com,

[^5]
THE MAIDEN'S PROPHECY.

bX bemer C. Watson. There mas a vilage fectual, And one, the fireest of them all, Did Fate" beheat deolare.
"Hero is $m y$ hand, joung Sibyl fair" Spoke out a stranger youtb, My doom for joy or ruth."

She looked into his loving eye,
But quick her glances fell; But quiok her glancess fell;
Her fuir hand trembied at luis to Her fuir hand trembied at his touch, But why zhe could not tell.
I read," abe gaid, " oi noble deed O! danserer overoome : But soon a oaptive thou wilt fall, Sir Knight, thy time bath eqme!
There was a village festival, And brigbt.eyed gitis wero there, And she, tbe fairest of them And by uer side the stranger you Stood fortbill manly pride, The Sibyl was his bride !

The Gulf Between Them

by Mra. Ann s. Stephens.

chapter xxy
IT was a small room, in one of thone mysteriou hotels in the narrow streets near the Battery, whic appear to be aually appropriated to foreigners, and about which dark-whitkered, sallow-facesd indiiduals may be seen lingering at all houra of the day, their very faded, seedy appearnnce oulling us petty orils.
The ehambar was small, but not uncomfortably farriated, though the articles had originally been of that tawdy nortwhich such places affeet, and had probably not been established there.
Tbe remaios of a fire smouldered in the little grate,
 whole apartmont was in
added to its discomfort.
In the centre of the room was a small table oovred with empty champagne bottles and glasses, ogether in repulsive uotidiness, and giving evience of a long night of diseppation.
The low bedstead had its moth-eaten, mise rable attempt at a canopy swept back and hoaped oarelessly on the dirty counterpane by a man in a rest-保 the broken shuttere.
His appearanco was in keeping with the room; oiled, torn drassing-gown, that bad once been very legant, was wrapt oarelessly shout him; his black hair streamed over the pillow, and gave an almost ghastly effect to his faoe, as he lay in that troubled dream, already paie and worn from many sleepless nights. nights.
It was hysiognomist would have shrunk, bad be seen physiognomist would have shrunk, in its hard truthfulneas, without a gleam of the fagcination which it was capable of expressing in guarded moments and under more fortunate circumstances.
The sleeper was on the sumny side of mid-age still, hnt his countenance was one of those which never earries an idea of youth with it, which even in early boyhood is so marked by craft and reeklessness is visible therein.
 opened his eyes; once or twice the dilapidate ohambermaid, who performed a slatternly duty in that part of the building, opened the door and peeped in, but her entrance had not served to arouse him, and she knew better than to venture upon any further attempt.
upon any further attempt.
Suldenly he woke from a troubled dream and looked about him with a atart
I dheamed they werenailing me up in a coffin," he muttered; "ailis!" He turned upon his pillow with a shudder, but in an instact there came a knook at the door, this time quick and impatient-it was the first summons which had oaused him that unquiet vision. locked. He raised himself indolently on the bed and woman entered the room.
Her face was concealed under a heavy veil, but the man seemed to recognise her at once, for he started up end gave a muttered exceration as he oaught aight of his untidy appeirance in the littie mirror.
Then he hurried towards his visitor, who had Then he hurried towards his visitor, who elosed the door and stood leaning against it closed the door and stood leaning against it,

You have oome," he excluimed; "so kind of

ras so late."

He held out hin hand with a smile, but she no effect upon him, nave that it deepined the smile an ugly sneer.
She throw back the long veil and displayed her
"-the viiutor was. Elizabeth Mellen.
"Pray be seated," he went on, placing a chair ear the hearts was very wakeful all night and overslept myneeliisit, I should have been prepared."
She glanced at the table, which bore evidence of the msaner in wifch the night had been passed,
and said aruptly pointing towards the cards:
"Did those things keep yon wakeful? Were "Did those He omiled complacently. "Nothing ever escanpes your eye, dear lady," he
sid. "Well, I won't deny the faet-we were play saia. "Well, I won't deny the fact-we were playing cards a little." "I aske.
"Not absolutely uafortunate," he retorned, with notber disagreable smile; "but you know the old proverb-' Lucky in love, unlacky at cards,' no never expect much from the mischierous pasteboarde."
Her face flushed psinfully to the very waves of Her hair, then grew whiter than bofore; whe into the chair from positive inatility to stomd. "Why did you do me the favor to be interested "my fortunes?" he asked. "Because I have brought you no money," she said, abrupuy, looking in his face with sudden deinnce.
His brows contracted in an ugly form, though is lip atill retained its smile-he looked danger "That i "That is bad, very," he said; "I wonder you ould have come all the way here to bring these npleasant tiding a P" Elizabeth did not angwer; she had drawn towards the hearth and was pushing the ashes with the point of her shoc, gasing drearily into tbe dying the poin embers.

You received my letter?" be asked.
Yeo-don't send in that way again, or let yourelf be seen. You frightened me so that $I$ fell from ny horse."
"How sad! I should never have forgiven myelf had any harm resulted from it", he said, so elf had any harm rewulted from it," he said, so gravely, that one could not tell whether he was in arnest or mocking her. You were not harting you in the grounds after that, and so went whe ttemetarted up in sudden passion, goaded by his dence or self-control.
"I wish I had been hurt," she exelaimed. could have borne bsing maimed for life had I
the brute's hoofs trampling you down as I fell.
He had seated himself opposite her and loking earnestly in her face. These bitter wards atill, and his face worn a look of admiration which still, and his face word a look of admiration
"You sre so beautifyl in one of these moods, he eaid; "don't restrain yourself. What a Meden She looked at him with a glance which had th menace of a hunted animal brought suddenly to bay and ready from very desprir to defend itself -in moments like that many a desperate woman had stained har soul with dark
"Xou don't like me to eay complimentury thing "o you," he stid; "it is unkind to deprive me even "o you," he suid;
of that plessure."
"I have no time to waste," she said, oontrolling herself by a etrong effort, and speaking in a cold, measured tone. "I came to tell you that you muat wait-I can't give you the money to-day-if you wore success bo patient."
"patient." "My dear friend," returned he, "you lenoy how anxious I am-how I desire to put between me and this accursed country."
"You will not go when you get the money," she sald; "you will drink, gamble-leave yourelf "So harsh always in your judgroents," he refurned, deprecatingly
"I have no hope of being rid of you," she went on; "but I have one consolation-you are ruining me, and that will be your ruin! My husband sus.
peets me-watchee me-the day he discovers a shadow the truth there is an end to these
"Don't epeak so angrily-pray don't! I hardly - your proud mien will do a great deal to procure silence where a lady is concerned."
"You know that he would not! With his home once broken up, hit peace destroyed, he would be utterly careless of the world's knowledge-his wrongs and his revenge would lead him to desperate masasures.
Well, well, we mile What an unpleasant character ! Well, well, we must take pains that he is not en-lightened-th simple it is."
"I warn you now, this is the last money I sball bs able to give you for years," she said; "it in only from haviog those stocks to my hands that am able to do it now.
"My dear frisend, you farget that your husband may give yon mora atocks, he ret.
laugh which made her shudder anew.
"Mr. Forbes has promised me the money by the ast of this week-that will be in time for tha
"How
"How coldly yon betray your anxiety to have
"I have ne said; "it is really cruel.
"you, will spend the money-you will demand more-my husond will discover it. But at least Shail have the astiffaotion of knowing that thera is po place secret enough, no land distant enough to guard jour life ssifely after that."
He only received her pasaionate words with thrug of the aboulders and a deprecatory wave
"But it is eo sad to go into exila alone," he said if I eould take with me-
"Oht you are such a base, miserable coward!" Don't frown at ree-I have never been afraid to appak my mind-I am not now 1 I tel hour of retribution will come-berare l" hour of retribulion will come-beraare l"
His face never changed, bors and said pleasantly: "You are inclined
You are inclined to do the prophetess beg."
She rose from her chair and folded her tit twl bout her.
"I noed stay here no longer," ahe said, "I I ave old you what I came to sagy,"
"Don't be so eruel a to leaded; " give my poor ruin away so soon, ' he pleaded; "give my poor room the glory of your
"I shall be here on Monday," she contin ed; "I shall have tbe money ready for you, but I will not bring it-this time those lettsre must be fir not bring it-this timo those lettare must be first placed in my hands.".
"Ah you are going to drive a hard bargoia, I
"You haveं evaded sooften, cheated meso oiten "You have evaded so often, cheated me so oicen; last-tale it-cnough to make you comfortabl - for my possession first, and that paper too."
"You really mean to have your freedom, dr yon aot ?" he aaked, jeatingly; "to sweep me out of your life for ever."
"Don't think to cheat me any more; $\overrightarrow{\mathrm{ne}}$.her your forged writing or any pretenoe will anower here. I tell you I am desp,

You are a magnificent woman ${ }^{1 "}$ he exolained "a wonderful woman! I

She turned away

Now you are angry. Bnt let it pass." beth. "I tell you I am desperate now! At lear I sball. have placed it out of your power to injur any one but me. Thave reached that point when will have freedom from your persecntions or drag the ruin you."

She was in terrible earnest-he was a suffi ient judge of character to see that. It was in hernu:ure to grow so utterly desperate that, whatever her shiek it in her husband's ears, and madly $p$ efer moeting the crieis of hor fate in all ite blaek resa and horror, to enduring any longer the alavery and suspense in which she had lived.
"Thore will be no need of all this," he esid.
"Flace in my hands the sum you have pron sed "Flace in my hands the sum you have pron ised harm you or yours. After all", he continued, rith another sneering laugh, "I am selling my c im nother sneering laugh, ism seling my c at pitifnl little sum."
"You can get no more-you cannot frighten ae: If you betrayed everything you would rain ? jur hopes of a single penny. I tell you my hush nd would not buy your silence. I know him-hem ght would not buy your silence. I knowhim-he m ght choot you down like a dog, but would never pay sold to bind your tongue,"

Dear friend, I perfer transacting this little busi. ness with you," he sald, laughing again.
shall not quarrel; for your sake I will content self with the twenty-five thousand dollars, but warn you I cennot wait after Monday.
"I tell you it
"I tell you it will be ready on that day."
"The letters and that troublesome littio do:u-
$\qquad$
There is nothing you conld swear by that wo.ld make the oath worth hearing," she interrup'c contemptuously
He bowed as
Ho was so utterly hardened that even her burnio scorn could not affect him.
"Don't write to me, don't send to me," sbe said; "it will only be dangerous-more so for you than
"I can trust you; I have the utmost faith in your word.
She gathered her shanl about her again an moved towald the door,
"Are you going already?" "That bracelet" she said, with a sudderi thought. "You parted with it of course-could you get it "You
haok ${ }^{\text {" }}$
He sh
He shrugged his shoulders.
see-very doubtful I fear. But when I am onoc gone-even if your husband does discover it-there Fill be no trouble.
She turned her back on bim. He atarted forward to open the door for her, hie hand touched hers on the knob, she started as if a acorpion bad atung her, but he out.
"A wonderful woman!" he asid to himself, after she had disappeared. "What a pity she hates me eo; the om
He went to the table, searched among ths bottles till he found one that still contained liquor, poured the contents into a glaes and drank with feverish eagerness.

Tbat'll put a littie life in me," he muttered. "Well, there is nothing for it but to wait. I must keep myself very quiet. I think I'll hava nome den."

He pulled out a pooket-book with a laugh, glanced "It will do," ha puttered, "it will do."
tha contents and put it ary.
He threw of his dressing-gown, batbed his face in cold water, tidied his drese a little and went down airs in search of his morning mesal.
Elizzeth Mellen hurried through the narrow street in which tbe hotel atood, as if trying herielf-into calmnesh, Once sbe murmured
"Five days more-five! If I can live through Ican! Such & dyead at my heart-wrorie as the time sbortent-if diseovery should come now wis Then she walled her desperate exertiona she could not but with all terrible thoughts which purened her like avenging fiends hungry for their prey.

CHAPTER XXYI

THE weeks had glided along. It was now late utumn; the gorgeous lesves lay strewn along the ground, and the wiad sigbed up from the oceal anch gust. Wich that githg thoughta of decay wit coldneas and the shadowa had crept deeper and deeper into Grantley Mellen's life.
He had accompanied Elizabeth to the sity, one of these chilly autumn days, and put her infa carriage and calls which made her ostensible errand to town, while he went about the business on hand, witb th understanding that they were to meet in time for he afternoon boat.
Elsie had chosen to pass the day at home; when the girl could poseribly avoid it- she seemed determined to keep aloof from the myatery of the unhappy woman's life, leet its gloominees should cast nome ahsdow over the brightness of her own path!
While Elizabeth was absent on her mysterious vinit Mellen occupied himeeif with a matter which, had she been aware of it, would have added another thouble to the anxiety of toat bitter day. From the first he had deterained that the dissp explained, if it lay in human power to discover the mystery. What his precise motive was he could bardly have told. The trinket might have been picked up by some vagabond who had wandere into the grounds; if no there was little hope of ever gnining any tidings concerning it, but Mellen could not astiefy himself that such was the case.
There was some mystery in Elizabeth'ellfe-0 that irksome suspicion he could not divest himself Twenty times each day he went over in his from the moment when he cume since his return, ing so wildly about in the stomeny night
Twenty times each day he convinced Twenty times each day he convinced himeelf that there was nothing in the whole catalogue to awaken the slightest doubt in any mind except one so given to self-torture and jealousy as bis; yet, argue as he would, bring conviction as closely home to his soul as he might, the doubts rose up again and haunted like ghosts that had no power tospeak, but pointed always towards trouble and blackness wbich lay always beyond.
If the bracelet had been giren to any needs person for any reason, it would undoubtedly find its way to the hands of some pawnbroker-that was his thoakht. He reproached himeelf for indulging it-he called himself unworthy the love of any it-he called himself unworthy the love of any woman when he could harbor such suspicions, bat they would not pass out of his mind-tbe treachery which had wrecked his youth had sown the seeds of suspicion too deeply in his soul to be eacily eradieated.
Then he compounded with his conscience, and decided that it was right he shouid take decided that it was right he should take every step possible to solve these doubts, if only to prove the possible to solve these doubts, if only to prove the innocence of his wife. He kept repeating to himaelf that this was the resaon which urged him on "I want to be convinced," he said to himeelf agnin and again, "of my own "injustice-it is right I should endure the self-abasement as a punishment for this constant doubt.
Solacing his self-reproaches a little by auch argumente and reflections, he had gome to work to see if any discoveries could be made which shonld Amang ther effort Among other effortn, he had confid to a lead. ing pawnbroker the details of the affill, and it was ing him that his hopes principally lay. If tbe bracein him that his hopes principally lay. If tbe bracelet was not brought to this man's arop he had means of diseovering if it was carrifed elsewhere.
Tbat day Mr. Hollywell had news for him; a Tbat day Mr. Hollywell had news for him; a racelet similar to the one he had described was in the possession of an old Jew in Chatham street, and they went together to the place.
hime olf into difficulty in some way, but Mr. Hollyhimself into difficulty in some way, but Mr. Holly-well satiafied his fears in regard to that, and assured him that the gentleman would reward him liberally or any disclosures that he might make.
Then it eame out that the bracelet had been disposed for a considerable eum-it was a sale rather than a deposit. The man who brought it there had than a deposit. The man who brought it there had several times had dealings at the shop-sometimes he would diaplaj plenty of money the old Jav he would diaplay plenty of money the old Jaw averred, and again he was very poor, and in snoh casee alwaye pledged valuable ornamants or sold them recklesely for Mr. Mellen grew more interested when he described the man'c appearance; the keen eyes of ## them.

"Din in his writin" " he sald, in his guttur
"Dis Whisper. "T'm taking great trouhle, great trpuble,", he whined; "the good gentleman ought to remember that.
"You thall be well remarded," aaid Mr. Melles mpntiently, nnatehing the paper from hin hand. He glaneed at the writing-the paleness of hi his gyes rivetted upon che page, while the two men regarded him in silence.
The writing wises so peculiar that a person at all amiliar with it could never have been miatakenn individuality so marked and so fincreased b praotice, that one who had seen a page of the delioate characters could among whole volumes.
After a time Ms. Mellen looked up-the aeto Ater a time M. Mellen looked up-the an
"That is what I wanted," he said.
"I hopen it ith all right"" urged th good gentleman is sutighted with me!"
"Perfectly, porfectiy! Now I want the bracelet How much did you receive on it ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ "
The old Jew's face changed at once,
"And I won't get my reward ?" he faltered Who talks of choating son" well.
"I am ready to pay you," puraued Mr. Mellen; "I would rather pay doublo the price of the brace. let than not get it .
Mr. Hollywell made a sign of caution; such words would incerease the old rasoal's cupidity to a height money cuuld hardly satioff, but they were interrupted by a groann from the $J_{e w}$.
psid-so leetle pride." The good gentieman would ave given more."
"Gone!" repea

Why didpeated Mr, Mellen. Why dida't you say so ?" akked Mr. Hollywell nad ity."
"Yes, yoes, I knows, and to I had."
There is it, then?
"The man came for it-he has brought hia ticket, puid bis money and took the hracelet; I was out-my boy did let him have it out-my boy my reward!"
"Shat yo
Hollywell. Jew sank into a chair, atill groaning
The old Jend
and lamenting, while the money-lender turned to and llamentin
"What will you do
"Nothing-nothing."
He looked so despondent now, though the fieree anger teat had blazed in his face at the frat sight of the writiog lighted it up still. of the writiog lighted it up still.
"I am perfectly satisfed, mnch ohliged to you for your troubte"" "I ann "I am very sorry," Mr. Hollywell "ham very
"It is just as well-don't he troubled." He took out his pocketbook, haid down a bank note whose value made the old Jer's eyous aparkls with aridity, and hurricd out of the dark little shop.

ohapter xxyin.

Als the next day the house nt Piney Cove wa; in confusion with guests, and the husband anc Mrif. Here not once left alone.
Mra. Harrington had come up to spend the day, and go out with them in the evening, and Ton Fuller wat at his post as unual, tho peared with a very hiank face indeed.
"You look more like Don Quixote was Elsie's salutution, as he entered the room, where she at with Elizsheth and their guent.
"How de you do, Mr. Fuller ?" cried the widom I wonder you have any patience at all with that little witch; she teascs yon constantly; I am sure "ou must be amisbility itsel.
She wont have the chance for some time to come, more's the pity," returned Tom, discon"And wity.

And why not, pray ?" demanded Elsie. "Because T 've got to to go Pitsbburg, and founder about all
".
"Have you busmess there ?" aaked Elizabeth. "Yea, to be sure! Bless me, I was better off hen, and didn't have to go about braking $m$ y neek in pits, and hothering over all sorts of ouniness that I underatand no more than the man "P moon."
Poor, unfortunate victim "', mocked Elsie.
n. "But think of the good they hring torring. self and all sbout you, Mr. Fuller."
"Yes, I know," returned he ; "Tm an ungrateful brute; it's in my nature; I need to have my head punched doubt of that."
They all laughed at his energy; even Elizsbeth ied to come out of her mizerahly anxious thoughts, and confine her wandering faucies to the
"When are
"When are you going, Tom $?^{\prime \prime}$ she asked. "He speake as if it was the Day of Judgment," said Elsie.
"And I may be gone /a whole week or more," pursued he.
"A smal.
dear me, how we all pity you," Eleic. "Dear me, "I don't helieve you care dimally; "you won't misa me a bit."," eaid Tom,
He wanta to be flattered," oried Blifie. Fuller,' anid the widow; "you wrong your friends.
oy a suspicion to the contracy,"
"I hope so, $\mathrm{I}^{\prime}$ maura," retumed Tom, glaneing at Elsie; bnt she was in one of her mischievons moods, and would not give him a gleam of connolation. "Don't spoil him, Mary Harrington," said she ;
"the creature's vanity is hecoming lnordinate the creature's vanity alrendy; isn't it, Beasic ?
"You can ill-treat him ouff ciently without $m$ saistance," snid she, amiling; "I shall not help rou," you,"
"That
"That is right, Bess," cried Tom; "atand hy allow a little, do; she hasn't a spark of pity" "Take carn, sir !" asid El rie, Hifting her embroi cissors. "Don't try to win my Hatural allies over - Your side hy an underhnad porsuasion."
"I am sure you don't need allies or assistane, of any sort to "Another of my womanly prerogatives," replied
"laie.
"Well," eald Tom, "there aeems to he nn end
o them."
Every
near Elsie, tumbling her work, and making sign to her to go out of the room, no that he might secure a few moments alone with her, hut the ittle witch pretended not to understand his aignal "You the
"You ruin my work!" eried she. "What on arth are jou making such faces for, and winking nd blinking like an owl in the sun ? in a distressed way.
"Dazzled by ynur presence, Elsie," aried the widow, sseing that Tom had not presence of mind Eliough for the eompliment.
Elizaheth began to get restless again; it was perfectly imposiable for her to keep quiet any length or time tart day, snd sha made some excuse for
"Let me go with you," said Mrs. Harrington; Ike to get a peep aing to order luncheon, and Flemish pieture."
"Particularly the crowd of dusky foces," "Isie; "you're a humbug, Mary Harrington. I am sure she is quite right," said Tom, itchen one day and it looked quite picturesque." Elsie perfectly understood the motive which led in to speak, and she hastened to rejoin :
"If you think it so pretty you had better acoom-pany them, and get another peep."
"No," said Tom; "I might disturb the colored persona; I'II stay where I am." "Bersons; I'll stay where I am.
You will he bursting into untrat conslderation! You will he bursting into unpremeditated poetry "Oh, Elsie," said Mrs. Harrington, provoking creature you are!"
prokng creature you are!
She followed Elizabeth out
was alone at last with his ido.
was alone at last with his idol.
"Are you sorry I am going ?" he asked.
"Do I look so?" she aaked.
"No, you don't."
"Well, looks can't tell fibs," said ahe, pro-
"Oh, E
"Oh, Elsie, bo good to me now; junt think; I "It gone a whole week!" he cried. "It'a a calamity I dare not contemplate," rephied ehe. "Now, whatever you do, don't break four neok in thoee horrid coal mines, or come hack amelling of hrimstone like a theatrical fiend."
"I believe you would jest during an earth
"If it would attract attention I might," she answere
Tom." Tom."
She threw down her work, and with one of her quick changes of manner petted him back to
"If you
"," he said, getting cours do ene thing before kindness to propose an idea that hod heen in his mind ever since he arrived.
"What in it, Monsieur Exigeant f"
"Just let me tell Grant of our-our-"
Our what, stammerer ?
Of the happineas you have promised me," ani om, changing the original word from fear of rexing her
"You w going to ary engngement; don't "And
And aren't we engaged ?" he plended.
"Not a hit of it, Mr. Tom Fuller; I em justas
"Oh, Elisie! 4
"And Elsie oh!" eried she. "But it's true! I let you talk, hut what right have to say we are ngaged ?"
She mad

She
atil.
"Ob,
"Oh, Elsle, Elaie, how can you ?" he plesded. "Now, aren't you deliciously miserahle," saía "I wouldn't think you could be so cruel at suoh time."
"Oh, wouldn't you? And pray what right have you to think at all; no man has a right; that's nother female privilege.
"You are worae than
"You are," eald he.
"Now you are
indignantly. "I won't akay with you another moment."
She half rose, hut Tom caught her dress.
"Oh, don't go, don't1"
"Go on your knees then, and beg my pardon,"

"No,"

"Ah; do now "jom, "Pll do no auoh thing."
Down went Tom in dumh obedienca. Aft enjoying his distress snd penitence for a fer
"I am 7ery aorry you are going I

Tom
He strnined
Erateful delight.
"And may I tell Grant $i$ " he pleaded.
"Not yet," she naid; "wait till you come bsek not a word till then.
"But as noonas I come?"
"Yes; if you are good. But not a look till I say
She tried
Ste tried to escape from him, but he would no
"Yen muit he had ext" He one other pledge.
Now, Tom I to me," he said rite even to Grant, when I oan possibly help it." "But just arfew worda-"
"If you will get up and hehave yourself properiy,
"Every day"
 gossip."
"Promise then!"
"Yes-yes-anything; oh, get away!"
She atruggled from him, and Tom had just tims to resume his seat and look as decoroualy grave as perfeet happiness could permit when the door opened, and Mrs. Harrington entered, with her "Elsie, Elaie! Mr.
Elsie, Elnie! Mr. Thodes and the fascinating Jemima are driving up the avenue; the old maid is rushing on destruction again without the is rushing on alightest warning.
"It's delightfulp" said Elsie. "I shall tell her how r.
wife."

Don't set the old dragon at me," said Tom. "Yes, I will! Mary, you must firt desperately with the dear old man; hetween her desire to wateh you and be agreeable to Tom, the apinster wateh you and be agreeable to Tom, the spinster "T'll dron to the verge of distraction.
"and appear after the old mald geta nicely
She darted away through the hall, and just made er escape as 'Dolph opened the halldoor to admit the guests.
Tbe father and daughter were ushered into the room where Elsie and Tom sat, looking demure as room where two kittens.
"Here we man; "no one can Elsie",
" $\mathrm{Pa}_{\mathrm{a}}$ would stop," said Miss Jemirua, "though I told him it wisa a shame to come so often."
The truth was the spinster's appetite had recolleeting the hounteous repancheon time, and at Mellen's hoard, she had rendily consented to her parent's proposal that they should call.
"I am delighted to see you," said Elsip, shaking hands as if they were her dearest friends; "my hands as if they were her dearest friends; "my brother snd sister will he down in a moment; you brother snd sister will he down in must stay to lunoheon, of course."
"No, oh, no;" said Miss Jemima, glaneling a Tom through ber scant eyelashes, "W think of it:"
"But you must, you' shall !" said Elsie.
me present my sister's couain, Mais Fulle"
The spinater curtseyed and looked grimly pro pitious, and Tom was nearly out of his wits, especially as while Mr. Rhodes talked to him he saw Elsie whisper to Mias Jemima, and felt perfectly certain that she had given the theatened information about his being a rioh hachelor in information about his being a rioh hachelor in search of a wife.
"And when did you see your chsrming friend,
"The oddest this t" and Elaie "Why ere now; hadn't you a , suepicion of she it Rhodes ?"
Miss Jemima's face changed so suddenly that Tom made a great effort to kcep from laughing outright.
"Oh, Mr. Rhodes," continued Elsie; "I am afraid the attractions of this house are only borrowed onea."
The good man was in a state of bluahing and pleasent confusion, hut the spinater out of it without mercy. "If there's company

But Elaie would not permit her to 50 , she whispered again ahout Tom, and between her desire to atop long cnough to fascinate him and her fear of exposing her father to the wiles of the In the midst of it Elizabeth entered, and welmed her neighbors; Mellen followed; and after a few moments in awept the widow, whn swooped down on the unfortunate Mr. Rhodes in spite of down on the unfortunate Mr. Rhodes in spite of the dragon, as a well-praotised hawk pounces on a plump chicken.
"Ah, Mr. Rhodes, this is such s surprise," she cried, futtering up to him with a simper on hor face which of late years had done the duty of a "Ingh.

I dare any a great surprise," snapped in Jemima, siding up to her father.
This was great sport to Eloie
This was great aport to Elaje and Mrs. Harringapinater had not heset him as much as her divided apinater had not heset him as much as her divided-attention would permit, and Elizaheth and Mellen bore the infliotion patientiy, as people must endure all things that come to an isue in their own house, smiling and polite, however much they may winh smiling and polite, however much they may wiah While they were at luncheon-table Elizabeth's dog ran into the room with a papor in its mouth.
It was tha most intelligent little eresture in the Torld, a cross between & hlack and tant terrier and an Italian greyhound, and had heen educated to carry in a surprining manner.
Thia pretty ereature, which asemed almost human in her intelligence, ran towards her miotrases, but another dog followed, 2 pew pet of Elcio's, a froliesome, wioked animal that hsd quite worried poor Fonny's life out ever since her intrusion in the bouse.

Plecolomini sprang at the paper in Fan 's mouth, and a contention ensued hetween them which "Fanny'e got a paper," cried Elinie, pointing
"It may be a letter,"'said Mellen; "Dolph often eends them in by her; call off, Piok, Elsie; she'II tear it."
But Pick rou'd not be called off, and Fanny paper was rapidy her hold; hetwenn them the dismally all the time at not being able to howling errand in her usual trusty manner.
Mellen went towards them; as he did so Fanny eprang towards Elizabeth; she stooped, eaught sight of the paper, and grew pale. She fairly pushed Mellen aside, and sastehed the papgr from pushed Mellen aside, and sastehed the papsr from the animal's mouth. "It's only an and "rusting it hurriedly in her pocket. The reat were too in her pocket.
attention, but Mellen sam how pale to pary much attention, but Mellen saw how pale hia wife had turned; he notioed her alarm; he remembered, too, seeing Fanny running about the ahrubbery Just before he came in.
It Was another phase of the myatery, he was orrtain of that; the uttle creature was carrying a note to his wife. He sented himself at the table again, and appeared to forget the circumstanec, but again, and appeared to forget the circumstanec, hut
Elizabeth hardly looked like herssif during the entire meal
It wss late before the visitors departed, then nther callers made peir appearance, and after that Tom Fuller was compelled to take his lenve, a heartrending performance as far sa he was eoncerned; and so the day drew to a close, leaving the husband and wife each more preoccupied and anxious than the dreary morning had found them.

FOREIGN NEWS

Trak Germans had abandoned the slege of Fredorleta. They alao evacuated thelr poaltient in front of the town. $A$ portlon of the clty fire during the bombardment. The allied commander then demanded $n$ sirrender, hut the Dinish offloer re. fased. Duppel was cannonaded at intervula.
Austris and Prusgle, it is sald, have conso oonforence un the Danleh question. The Gerruan Diet was invited to bende a delegnte. It was reported that the Conference would aoon ateemble. The Polizh insurgents were Fery uotivo, Russian troopa were employed in barrieading the railrosd between Wilas and the Pruasinn frontier. It ie sald that the Rusiina Cabinatace of enconraging trouble In Earopean Turkey, and that the feeling towards the court of France was very cool Maximilian wi Mexioo on Easter Sunday, the title of Emporor of of the empire early in April. He wll open diplo. matio relations with the United Statce, and observe a strict ueutrality towards the ereb. Confederncy. Gen.
Woll wak appdited obief alde-de-ening to the new Empcror. The Freach steumm frigate Dryade left

CHARLES THE BOLD.

Charlis's marriage with Isabella of Bour bon took plsce in 1454. Though a reluctant bridegroom, he became atrongly attsched to his wife; and groon, he became atrongly attiched to his wife; and hia trentment of her daring their unlon, which lasted elcven years, was suoh sa gave no enuse for complajnt. In a disaolute nge, and at a court where the soverelgn himself get an example of open whentious ncss, the Count of Charoluz (Charles's youthful title) ncss, the Count of Charolum (Charlew' a youthful title) pranented what wan certaiuly a rare, if not the only instanee of instanee of marltal adelity. Hla a faulte, indeed, were not auch in not nuch as arise from an inordinate live of pleanare.
He ate sparingly, end of the simpleat food, He ate sparingly, end of the simpleat food, and seldom tasted wine unlens dlut tod with a much casted wine unless dlluted with a muoh harger proportion of water. "His pleateure waa not fa luxury and

THE METROPOLITAN SANITARY FALR-SCENES LN THE REFECIORY-THE ARMY AND NAVY GWORDS CONTEST-JACOB'S WELL-IHE HALRY EAGLE.

the metropohitan ganitary fair--view showing fas new jersey depabtient-The tavina sumgerhoubd and the turnvzabin table,

FUN FOR THE FAMILY. A very talkative little girl used often to ventremmo twe expetad whote nose hand heen heet
 "I Horsgou will be able to support me"

> THE OLD maid's lument.

Ohi fll, tit puast whero it ebe gone
I chiot mint In mato lond,

Ob, yes, I Iee har kulled and haked,

Woman's substitute for fat-Crino-lean.
The heautiful tresses of young ladies are bann- stringe,
"Tinigan's Wake""-"Why I Loved Her,",

A. TEREATHEE

MILITARY SURVEYING THEORETICAL AND PRACTICAL, including
A Dsscription of Surveying Instrumente,
BY G. H. MENDELL, 0 apt, of Engineer. This day publihind hino., doth. Price $$ 2$.

Artillery Balges.

 SuLL RUNY ettile Co. Pinn nad Corpe Budge worn int the Army c. 2. BALCE & CO... 308 BROADWAY, N, Y.
8 Card Photographs only $$ 1$-All differ

Carriages.

The uhherthor be now on hand of eplendip

HRBX CUEAEIG胃

WINDOW SHADES

 Photograph Cards for Gentiomon.- semplen ind
 NVew York Monthly.

 Wheeler & Wileon'e Higheet Premium Promsingiver
Eevolus Maclainees

[^6]FURNITURE, wholisaly and ratiail, BY

DEGRAAF

 8FURNTTURE,
& TAYLOR
(FORMERLY H. P. DEGRAAF),
No. 87. Bowery, New York.
This estahlishment is six storeys in helght, and extends 242 feet throngh to No. 65 They are prepared to offer great inducements to the Wholesale Trade for Time or Cash.
heir stock consists, in part, of

ROGUWOOD PARIOR AND CEANLBER FURNHWURT;

Mahogany and Wainut Parlor and Chamber Furniture;
Also, CANE and WOOD SEAT Fork, all qualities; HATR, HUSK and SPRING MAT TRESSES, a large stock; Sets, from $$ 22$ to $$ 100$, TUCKER'S NEW STYLE PATENT SPRING BED The hest as well as' the cheapest of any in nse, Retail price, 2 ench. Their faclitities for manufacturing defy competition. All work guaranteed as represented.

25 Cent Legal Tender Circular.
$15 A DAY AND A WATCH FREE!

 Jntstripg competitore.
1,000 Agvnte warted. WE1R & Cuv, 505 Chespnt St., Pule
$$ 75$ A MONTH1-I want to hirse Agentalinevery

The Creat Money-Making Articlo.

EOSTMETYYR"

 CILIDBEATEDSHOMACF BITPIERS

 Iomach whloh eabivit it to digect, imthout pain or

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,

 Defot for New Yoak, 476 Brondway.

New Army Watches.

 for Circular.

Gold Gold :

A RARE BOOK!
The Veritable Joo Minler ontidone by the Wentorn Rall-5pittor.
OLD ABEIS JOKHES
Frseh from Abraham's Bosom.

GOLD! GOLD! GOLD!
100,000 WATCHES, CHAINS, &c. WORTH $$ 500,000$,
To be ald for One Dollar each, withont regurd to valle, and not to be pud for until you know what yon

 In viror Reymenten and To wh Am the Country.

$\mathrm{Pa}^{\text {Poutain }}$ Pen-No

Jovery Family Wants

For Beantifying and Improring the plexion,
Gold
Dy
Drukgita
publiehed this day.
Brady's "NLercury" stories.
SHRA DRRTEMF;
The Wreckere of the Channel.
by macolst J. Errys.
hlluminated covers-illuetrated.
Pricce $\overline{20}$ Conto.

5,000

AGENTS W ANTED

o introduce ous
NEW GOLD PEN.

 year, snd to be geovine Difmondpointed, and to poan
 mail on recelpt of the follow ing prrien:
WITHOUT HOLDERS.

[^7]
W. FORSYTH & CO.,

 ${ }^{22}$ and 4 N Nassin Street (aydoning the Foat ommee), WATCHES, CHAINS, JEWELRY, ETC. Valued at $$ 300,000$ ! Fach Artiole One Dollar, and not to thopald for untll you know what

 YuCH
0.100
$\cdots .835$
. .916
 The artioles in thif niock of Joweiry are of the peat the various artioles yre put in Sealed Envelopes and mised, thns giving alls fair ohnnce, thd pcotby mall heir remittanoes amounts to til, and more iheral in uleements to those who bay largely. Gand for Cir

"Peychomancv."-How elther ber may fae mental ace viremement of ean pospess, necuring certain

Matrimonvi-Why evory man. vhould mirry Why every woma ahould marry, All may marry to Ten years in the Business. Patrons countred by thousands in every State of the Union.

A Preminam for all!
Evans' Nie' Enterprise, 1864, $50C. 000 worth of Kein Goods, oonstating of Gold and Silver
Watches, Jew elry, Vest and Guard Chains, Gold Pens, Pencils, Lockets, Medallions, Setts of Jewelvy, &ze., &ze., together with a large line of goods especically adapted to the wants of our Soldiers, Army and Navy, so be sold in lots at One Dollar Each, and not to be paid for until you know what you are to receive. Premium Orders for above goods, sent to any address, on receipt of 10 cents. send your order: to
G. G. E VA NS, Publisher

630 Chestnut Street,
Philadelphia, Pa.
N. B. A classifed Catalogne
N. B. A classined Cataiog

Photograph Card Pictures and Albums,
sent on recelpt of 6 cents.
Address,
G. G. Evans,

Philadelphla, Pa

J. K. Winslow & Co. This Greateat Opportunity Hiver Ofered to 100,000
Watches, Chatna, Sets of Jewollery, Gold Pena, Braceleta, Locketa, Ringe Gents' Pinn, Sleove Buttone Stude, &e., &e., Worth $500,000:

 Perry Regiment mad Tow in the cowity J. H. Wiss Brow ec co.,

VETERAN
 varyeran Soldiers :

 Solid 18 k .Goid, 86 bo. s Sterooscopic Views, Crate de Vlitito-New

TThe Old Dstablishod zad only rolihili Pur-

 | andar to |
| :---: |
| $415-8$ |

I. W. beniczily

PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY,

Amorotyleular atention giten to Copying Cordid ort

 Every steation puid to yiifitors mile

swords, Sashes, Belts. Wholeale and renail Ateo Preentation Siordd  Something New in Playing Cards. Love scenes.  Destans LOVE SCENES. LOVE SOMNES

"Diphtheria."

Ameartaio preverutive, nid dure, eve and simple

$10 AGENTS $10

 Magio Tohsco, Box, and 20 more, Novel and Ueefal 8. W, RICE & CO, 83 Niseean $8 t_{n}$ N. Y.
$$ 60$ A sonTH! 1 waut Agent, at woo month,

J. G. sotruzs.

MEROHANT TAILOR
32 Ann street, New Yoric,
Has on hand a oplendid aneortment of Frenoch. Kng. yhuch he if prepared to make ap tn the most fashion ible etyle and on the most ressonsble torros for coekh

Mëdical Common Sonse.

Among the masy sablecte treated in thls work ari

MOTMI PRIZ

OVER ALL OOMPETITORS.
OEIIOIEIEIRING de SOINS maNUFACTURERS OF
Grand, Square and Upright Pianofortes.
THALBERO'S OERTIFIOATE

Warerooms, 652, Broadway, N. X., 246 Washington Street, Boston
ERemington's
N(A,

Army and Navy RJTVITET Approvod by the Gevornment.
Warranted superior to nyy other Pletol of the kind,
Also Pooket and Belt Recolvere. Sold hy the Trade ally. REMENGFON & soNF, Blion, N.
I.

Storooscopic Pictures and Cartos de VISITE,

Do Fou Want to get MMarried ?

 "Courtehip Medi Easy", A Book of 100 pageeninetratedt Treating on "Peychomnney," Plunily
ehowing howi either sex cin fakelnite, win the undying love, and marry whoever they wiph, irre

Eoyt's Eliawatha Elair Eestorative.
Superior to overy other preparation for the hair in power to reatore faded and pray halr to ite original power to reatore raded and pray halr to ite origini color and natural sppearance, to prevent it from foll.
ing out, to overcome effecte of previous nee of pre Ing ont, to overeome effecte, of previous nee of preparations containing sulphur, eugar of lead, to, and parations containing sulphur, eugar of lead to ${ }^{2}$, and to remove the fapuritee and hamora of the ecalp invaluable dreesing for whiflcere HOYTS MINNEHAHA HAIR GLOSS,
 Ong and red hair to g heantifal brown or hick.
HOXTS EXCELSIOR TOILET POWDER
 N.B.-LLdien French Halrdresser in atteadance to

The Confessions and Jsperience of an Invalid.
Publiehed for the heaeft and ar 4 warning and cantion to young men who enfer from Nervone De hillty Premature Deesy etc.; eapplying at the sume ility, Premnture Deesy, ete.: enpplying at the sum imo the meana of Self. $\begin{aligned} & \text { are. } \\ & \text { By one who hat cured }\end{aligned}$ himseif, after betog put to great expense throngh
nedical impoeftion and quackery
By nucioeding

$\square$ Wig

Attention, Company!

 CLARK'S ONGUENT. - A Powerful Stimnlant. ueine this Onguent and titding it not as representeted by informin me of the fact) can lave their mone by fnforming me of the fict), can haye their mone returned to them at any tlme within thrce monthin from diy of purshotee. Price ons. Sent eecled. and portpald to any sddreas on receipt of the money.

MAADATKD BYNEDECT'S
Millinsry & Dressmaking Establishmsnt, Ie now replete with Eivery Imported Novelty of the

- 12 Wayerley Place, New Yore 000

Baker's Rheumatic Balm,

WATCFIES.

Cased Silver Composite Honting
 $$ 14$
 $$ 14$

$15

$$ 15$

Courchy very vegant Eaylual

$\xrightarrow{\text { Omacri, Wutah-Extra }}$ Heary $\$ 35$
 5 $$ 35$ $$ 35$

Poetoge on Watohee, hy the caee, 3238 Regnatering 20 centa.
Sample Watehce sent free.
GMD. A. دLY & CO.

| 181 (late 208) Rrondwey, N. X |
| :--- |

The muita are EAGLES, Shieldg, STARe and Flages, Coiouel in place of King; Goddees of Llberty for Queen; Mrjor for Jack. Carde are the firat and ond genume minericen Cards ever proterd nocorditg to Act of Congress, they can be mannfactared only by the American Card Company.
These Cards are rapialy y taking the place of Cards hearing Forel gne emsleme. The dermand for them 18
noproedented fin the Card Trade and they will eoon hocome the Leadity Card in the Americen mark el bicome the Leadity Card in the Amerricen market.
In playing with theee Cardd, they are to he celled by the namee the emblems represent, and se the em
hiems are as familier as honeehold worde everywher Forcien emblems
The Union Card
ve Card erer made. They more plodeatag and attraet eet atyle of the art, snd ench peok is pnt ne in an eleg unt Card Ceese, siltshle to keep them in Whea not in use, and then in thend Two Sample Packs, In Card Cseea, seest, poettpoid, 105 Wiming Sircet, or 14 Chambera Strcet, N,

Gray's Patent Molded Collars

The Garotto collar hae a amooth and evenly finished Thoe Collars are not elmply fist plecee of paper ont in the form of collar, but are MoLDED AND ThAPED TO FIT THE NECK, Soked in "eolid dizee", from in ncat ho hue cartomp, con
 NOT EVERY COLLAR la etamped Gray/a Patent Mrolded Collar." Trude eupplied by HATCH Murniehing Goode. 1 The

D. Zou Want Juxurant Whiskers or MToustaches?
 or injury to the arid. Pxice o1- sent hy mall, poe

Storeoscopic Fiows and Cartos do Fisite

NEW UNIOM PLAYING CARDS

Latest Invention IN GOID PIEINS UST OUT Atter years of potient reverchll he he hem demon ren with Irodlan or Dlamod point, and porsecein
Ail the elestlocty and durability of the higheet-price Pen mer Pen made ean be praduced at pricese far below any hing of the kind herctofore offere buen opent In ktrying to prodece an Elapto arbd hive mond-poimted Peng a low figure, and until now all mond-pointed Pen it a low figure, and until now ail tittmpta hive been futlle. We have nothlng to ee ano mark Genuine Dlamond polnted Elastic. Pen in the mit ean be afforded at anywhere near our

We warrant Every Pen for one year, and to he Boll OF:ees nil the Eleetility of the moat Expenalve Gol We wii eend sample Peas to any addrese in the United statee, posturye padd, on recelpt of price.
Moneey properly-Regietcred and Senled comes at $\frac{\text { No. }}{\text { No. } 181 \text { Brondw }} \mathrm{F}$, N. Y.

10,000 ACFINTS WAN NEPD for the $446-9$

Royal ERavana Lottery,

\＄47 AMIERICAN \＄47 IEVERS．

Trade Mark，P．S．Bartlett，Waltham， Mass，Full Jswelled，WARRANPED， in 4 oz ．coin silver hunting case，gold joints，fancy push pin，for $$ 47$ ．

 THE BEST LITERATURE 15 By the Best American WritersEI Tef found enoh month in the

Atlantic Monthly

 443－550 TXCKNOR \＆FIELDS，Rublehers，
135 Wakhington Etreet，Boaton

BRIDCEWATER PAINT
Ground in oll in eix dral shedes for vilise，Cot

GOTH PBNS AND CASES．

Creat Chance to Mrake Mroney！ $$ 650,000$ of Watches，Jewelry，\＆c． Given away with our STATIONERY PRIZE
PACEETS． Every AGENT Mrehasing 100 PACKETS Will re
OVE

The Celeerrator GRAEG MICROSCOPE
 onjuecta，$$ 5$ ， ky
on ${ }_{235}$ HENRY CRAIG，
 datiog sil eve，frorsi with i2 omomm．

Amorican，Swiss and Engliah Watches

 One of Tobacco， In al famme，curris $\operatorname{snd}$ 2．0．7\％CEAS，H．DAY．N．－ev．v．

METALLIC AMERACA N COLLARS

Nervone Digeaso yud Physicul Dobill－ TY，ariflig from specific caubes，in both Sexen－new

What an amount of Suffsring and Dis－
 ment is forrtaln urre，and for Bowel Complaints

Great Chance to Make Money！

 Prize Packin

The Beand．yc．

 vigorove growth．The higtory of th．．Baban，with sotura poatage $\mathbf{J O L}$ whins， 815 Broadway，N．Y．

Colvamia－＂My delar Miss Jorsey！I an delighted to see you－I trust you have come to stay．＂

GOLD WATCH FREE ！

\＄15 Per Day Easy \＄15

 Engravings，Ladlee New Fashion Platee，Deilgha for Nerdls Work，Beatiful Emhlema，Cottags Keep Newls Work，Beatiful Emhlema，Cottsge Keep sakes，Houbehold Companiona，Parlor，Toilot，Kitoben ond Garden Golde，Evening Amuement Wh Garden Galde，Evenlin Amusemente，Letter
 paulons，with Pag，Aounties，Rations，Allownicces，

 Paokagea in a FYy Hours．Our Pnckngee atrnd Bam
gB ever，alone and abonealisompetitlon，and have ion beco neckowledged an the leading and oniy real valu
hil and standard articles of the kind ever manu

 of the nge．Send for Donr Great New Circular for 1854，noutsining

Soldier＇s Money Belt！ （HOWARD＇S PAT．）
Thia Beit is denjoned especially for Soldicre．It Will not sweat or wet through under any circum－ ptancee．Has three compartments－one for Letters， one for Greenbackn，and one for Card Pbotorraphs or postpaid，on receipt of prioe．$$ 2$, by the HOWARD BELI $C O$

436 Brondway，

Shults＇Onguent．－Warrainted to prodace a fall 国忩禾 GREAT
 STEINWAY \＆SONS，Nob，82 and RA Walker
Street，N．Y，were awarded a FIRST PRIZE MEDAL
 There were two bundired and pixty－ntno planoz from mphatic，and atronger and ${ }^{\text {m }}$ ，

that of ans kirooow maker，

To Learn Piano Playing Elasily，

Now is the time for A Agnta to manke money，
The beat chamce ever ofrersd．
Good relliable Ageut Fanted everywhere，Extra liberal inducements of fired．
Agente．Addrean
J．G．WELLLS， 105 Willam St．，N．X．

Enox has Done It．－If you question the truth Enox has Done It，－If you question the trut of this aspertion，look et his SPRINO Hat，after look－ ing，try it on，after the trial，purchase and pay for it， and you will then conncide with uat in the opinfont that he has prodnced the handaomest，moet comfortahl and thorougbly entilefectory hot of the senson． onree this simpls announcement wili indncs you to

A WATCH FOR ALL！
M．WARD \＆CO JEWELLERS
208 Broadway，刃New York． 100,000
Watches，Lockets，Chains，Gold Pens and Cases，Ringu，Phe，ete．，etc．
To he sold for s1 ench，wad not to he paid for unti you know wiat you nre to get，und not to he kept unle
 Enelopses and Sealed，aud bent without regard to chole． Une order will he sent for 25 cents；flive for 81 ； 11
for $$ 2 ; 30$ for $$ 5 ; 100$ for $$ 15$ ．

 Yensel and Hospital．
deacriptive circuiar．

STAMMERING

 tent Prize Scientific Appliances．For（New Edition of Pamphleta and Drawinge deecrihing the same addresa u H，C．L．MEARS， 277 Went 28 d St，N．Y．

Dyspepsia Tablets． For INDIGRSMION，HEARTREURN，etce，manu factured only hy S ． G ．WELLING，and gold D

TOMES，SON \＆WLELVALN
o Maldea Lane，New York，

 Mi Keirschaum Pipes，eta，sta，
M tity sid Nev Equapments in every varisty． HICH PRDSEATPATION SWORDS． 71
34 3 onataritly on h．ind．
A Bocret Worth Knowing－－How to make aples or other frilt，in 22 hours，The Recips sed everywhere for 25 eents．Address $\begin{array}{ll}\text { F．B．BOW }\end{array}$

s7 anmx watch．${ }^{7}$

 $$ 15$ European Timekeeper $$ 15$ A SUPERB＂FXTRA DOUBLE GOLD．FLATEED

 －${ }^{2}$ it acreet Timersec

Exsect Imitation of a c10n Gold Watch nsed by tha British Army Officsrs． Junt fres，by mall，in Flegant Moroceo Case，fint
only 415 ．

$$ 30$ American $$ 30$ Levers．

In 4 oz．Coin Siver Hunting Crsee，Full Ruhy Jewel led，Gold Joints，Maglo Spring，with Full Guarantee，
Real English Duplex Stop Watch Iv Me日e＇ve Silver Hunting Caseb，Fill Jewelied，
SwEP SECOND，for Artilerists or Timing Horsee，
SWLP Fuli Guirant se，sso，
Gove Watines，
Gooe Watibes，for Army nss，of all desoriptions，
Wiad sole crportez of te nizovantyles of European

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE MAIL orEXPRESS    ent free every where． FRENCH FLANNALL OVERSHRTS，＊3，©s 70 And $8+50$ ezob－ill ant are yard long．A ing Send the Sizs al yuur Neek also．  STEWHCOLARS  ERAMEXIED WHITE

> Wholesalk and rexath

S．WT．ER．WiAR Whted

PRITNTDS OE SOLDIERS！

All articiee for Soldiers at Baltimore，Waehtngton， Fortrees Monroe，Harper＇s Ferry，Newberne，Port
 athers charged low rates．

Ivoiy Jevielxy：    （newi seme）．．．．．．．．．．．．．．．．． 8100   Sign Welle Golden Elephait．

Eave you seen the American Card Compangh New union Playing cards，NA． TIONAL EMBLEMS．They are not only the pret－ tient Cards made，but they sult the popular iden．The salte are EAGLES，SHIELDS，STARS \＆FLAGS． colonnl in place ot King，GODDESS OF LIB． ERTY for Queen，MAJOR for Jack．All the gamee can he played as readily aa with earda hearing Forelgn Emhlemes．Two packe，In clegant card cases，aent poetpald，on recelpt of $$ 1$. Addrese American CARD COMPANY，Na． 105

J．W．EVERETT \＆CO．

mine
OFICERSS OF SHE ARMY AND NAVY
BTATESIEN，
ACTORS，

FRANK LESLIE'S HTUSTRMENED

Eatered ascordigg to Aot of Congress in the y ar 18ct, by Fansk Leghie, in tho Clerk's Omice of the District Conit for the Sonthera Distriet of Now York.

Abstract

No. 448-VoL. XVIIL.] NEW YORK, APRIL 30, 1864. [Terms: $3 50 Yrarly, 14 Weeks $$ 100$.

THE METROPOLITAN SANITARY FAIR. The Tattoo. The Fair closes each night with bugle hlast and tittoo. Our Artint hns skotohed the latter with grace und spirit, Our ladien will heome solo era with all this drill sid pomp and atroumstance of war. The Boat Enilders' Departinent. Among tho curioun and attraotiva departments of the Metropolitan Fair is the Boathullders' Depart the eentre is a model of the Lasso Newton; models of Meboats and or yachts are to he found on every eide, attrseting conalcerahle attention when any yooliter attrseting conalcerahle attention when any youlter soon gsthers the heautiful lines, the graceful curve, the advantage for speed.

The Ourtonity Shop Mra. Gihhas Curiosity Etop is one of the greatent atrations of the Fair. Here are gathared relies of hygone daye, tepestry from Spsin, oheirs from pilaces In France, Boheminn glase from Italy, wator from in France, Bohemlan glase from Italy, wator from The Dead See, Court dresses, Japanese robee, honncts of other days, curlosities of every form and shape

Here stands a hronze vase that belonged to Pitt the grest Earl of Clastham, whose memory our city has grest Earl of Clantham, whose memory our city has gratefully preserved in the names of two etreeta, al though his marhle effigy is no longer eroct, Here looks down in sternest hronze the death-set face of the great Napaleon. Here is a mamumoth angget from our E1 Dorado, astimated to he worth the niee plum our Fl Dorido, estimated to he worth the mee pla in of $$ 40,000$. An the crowd sways along we pass in turn by all these, throwi together in atrange jaxtaposition.

Anthony's Pearl Album. Among the flie objecte of the Fair wae a Peurl Pho- tograph Alhum, got np hy Mesars, E, and H. T anthony & Co., of New York, nud presented to the Sanitary Fair hy thelr employbe. Our illastration It was sold on the very first disy for 9150 . The repntation of the honse of Anthony gnarantoe  thin country, thoy have ever stood at the hoad, an the taste and enterprise of the firm are equalled onl hy the splendid workmavehtp of those whom they hav

They have loon bege the leaunn boone for tho ripp.

 command the bustiness.
Our readers, who have coen bow constuntly we ex pross our indebtedness to to them for portraits of cole-rities, may form some liden of the vast number of hrities, may form some ldea of the vast namher of eartes in vilite of distlogulised persons on tbelr cateTheir It excrede 8,000 .
Their sapply of stercoscople views in aiso very fine
 Att Gallo y cannot fall to examine and apprecisto the apenimese givea there.

Bernum's American Museum.

 FOUR ENORMOUS GIANTS-Three men

Oscanyan's Oriental Album, Convilitivg of 23 Pboto grspblo Fortrulta of Orilental

 No. 87 Lafayette Place, N. Y.
frank leslies LLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.

TERMS FOR THIS PAPER

TERMS FOR ADVERTISING.
One Dollar a line on the ontaldio or last page,
Sixty Cents e line on the lith nad loch pagea, Tae Publisher of Frank Lestines Lluusquited to its columns, Eb well

TO CORRESPONDENTS

 Decunnsp. - Mary-Afloat-Gentian-The Accerpred.A Riag to Wear-The Highwayman A fow very enporior talee eulted to our columnawill bo cbeerfuliy received Dy the Editor. Con. will bo ebeerfuliy recaived by the Editor. Con. ouly, and give tbir address distinotly.
Minumeripts will be exmmined promptly, and if not ecopted retarned without delay.

Summary of the Week.
Gen. Steele in anid to have ren ched Arks delphis on the $28 t \mathrm{M}$ Maroh, constantiy bkirmighing with the on the 2
A body of Texan oavalry, numbering 400, attacked - Union camp at Reeerille, on the Arkanges river, men killed.
xвatucky.
Forrost utill besieges Columbus, now rainforcee by 2,000 veterans, and parties of hia men are ravaging to mithin 10 milea of Cairo, burning house The robel Gen. Buford demsided the surrender attackod Padueah. On the 15 th the rebelin again demanded the aurrender of Padocen, and Col. were marching out to attrock the enemy.

TERNRSSES.

Fort Pillow Was finally surrendered to the rebelo on the $12:$ h, Mujor Booth, the commander, with several of his offeers beigg killed. Porrest then carried ont his throath, and the negro ooldiera, to the number of 200 , wilh their white offcers, were thei pnt to the amord. Some ot the wonnded negroes wore s ctunally buried alive!
it in ruins.
The guerilla Rejnolds and his command were surprised near Knoxvill on the 15 .h; 10 of his men killed, and he, witb 15 more, captured.

On March 30 a band of guerillas dashed into Natehez, but mero repulsed, and an offieer and Natehez, but mere three men oappured.
Our cavalry have oceoupied. Eagle pass, 400 milss bore Brownspille, driviing out the rebeli, and thus coutting off the cotton trude, which, atter the ocouCorpus Chrititi hau beon recocupted troopa, trom Callfornia, who captared 800 men.

The robel Gen. Diek Taylor yecontily surprian

The rebols are sald to have blown up theis raz areereport and Misoouri on tbe 26 tha Merch. Nlexandria is put in a stato of defence 2 galinst rebal attaoks. Gen. Baniks had reached Grand Soore, but the stenmer tacked on the retura trip.

Jorida.
On the 2d, Capt, 8 mith, with 32 men of the 14th New Yorls, had a sharp oction, near Burrancan, rith thę Tih Alabama ouvalry, in which the enemy lost heavily.

The storm not only swept awny the railrond bridgos but swelled the Rappahannock, so that the pon up.
Capt. MeKee, 2d U. S. Infantry, was killed by uerillae, neer Nokesvilio, on the lither uerillan, neer Nokesville, on tho 14 th. Longatreet has follen buck to Virginin with all his ston.
Mosing, with 500 oavalry, made an attack on the patrol, near Bratoe station, on the 14th, and capboard, had pessed hut $n$ few minutes before Mosby's attack.
He made another attack on the 16 th, nesr Pairfax atation, espturigg a train, burning 20 wagone and anrying of the horses.
An expedition sent up the propller aselup the Nanecmond in ser roh of the propeller used against the Minnesots, returned witbout finding it. It effected, however, considersble deatruction. Lieut. E. P. Wilder, of the Minnesota, was killed.
The 1at Colorado eavalry had an engagoment with the Cbeyernea, at Fremont's orchard, 85 miles from Denver, on tbe 12th.

A desperate attempt was made by the rebels, on the 9 th , to blow up Admiral Lee's fagehip, the Minnesota, off Newport New, with a torpedo.
Tbe explocion was tremendous, but did not materinly injure the frigate.
Tbey were more succeseful in Florida, having blown up with a torpedo the tran sport Maple Leaf, returning from Pile tka to dacksonville. The entire almost impedistely.
The rebeis are said, indeed, to have a regularly organised torpedo oorps, which expecta, even by the orgaised torpedio orpa, whisers in the North, to be able to deatroy vessels, by concealing emall torpedoes among the ooal furniehed to steamers. As though the effeet of oueh a deviee, tbe U.S. gunboat Chenango effeet of sueh a deviee, the U.S. gunboat Chenango exploded in New York harbor on tbe 16th, killing exploded in New York harbor on tbe loth, kill and wounding a number of officera and men. Ihe report of

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, on the 11 th April, after Ideration of the Houna Naval Appropriation bill for
It the year ending June, 1800 , af reported from the Finance Commitese with suendmenta, the most important of which atrikes out an appropiation of 8550,000 for the purpose of building fioating dry. locks for monitore at the New York and Phuladelphith Navy Yarde. The amnndmente were all coneurred in, with tbe above exceptlon. Mr. Hale olf red In, wlitb the above exception. Mr. Hale olfered varloua amendments, proposed by the Naval Comvarioua amendmente mittee, which wore the Semate adjourned. Tbe House proeeculd to the conalderation of the preamhle and resoiution offered by Mr. Finok condemaning tbe war. Mr. Ashloy unoved to lay the the resolution on tae table Curried by yena 81 , nuyi
44. Tho House reamed tbe conalderetion of the fol owing reeolatlon offered by Mr.Colfix: "T Tast Alex owing reeolintion offered by Iir. Colfux: "Mbat Alex. of Ohlo, haviag, on the 5 the of. Aprll, 18ed, deols red himself in favor of reoogutrilig tbe independence and nationsilty of tho so-0alled Confederack, now in arme ggalnet the Union, and therehy giving zid, coantenance and encouragement to pertons engaged in armed hostlity to the United Btates, is bereby axpellod." A long and excited debate eneued, tbe Wood tin favor of enbmiseion to the South, nad the patriotio reply of Gen. Bohenck to the Nerl York Copperbend. Witbout coming to o vote tbe Houee djourned.
In the Senate, on the $12 t b$, tbere wrae little bralinee of nubile importance. When the Naval Appropriathe Nuyal Scbool from Nemport to Amapolis, after 1805 .
In tbe Honee, Mr, gtevenis introdneed a bull in.
tended to prevent a depreeietion of tbe currecay by Impoaing at tax of one-fourtb of one per cout, upon Mro Lang wuat then takemplution for the expulilon of Congreea dld not eft on tbe 13th, having adjoum over thist day to attend Mr. Rives's funeraL.
In the Senate, on tbe 14th, aftir a vartety of rontin aod local buininer, Mr. Bbermin Introduced deolaring bit

 tban 11,000, or Imprisooment for not leas than three montheor moro than one year, or botb, at the dizore
tion of the Court.

FOREIGN NEWS

The news thls, week from Europe is not mportant. The Fronoh fonrnals assert that the difftonitles between the Emperor of Anstria and Muxdillian bave been armanged, and that bo will soon emhark for his Mexican emplre. Tbe loan has bees tiken hy Freneh und Englleh houses, sind ahout $85,000,000$ are to he pald to France for war expenseb, It would seem as tbongh France had resolved to take up the role ablch Englan, had abardoned, and huild rame for the rebele, all under the stale device of beling for the Chinese trade. Tbe priviteer Gcorzla is liveior the Clunese trade. Tbe wise belog roftted in Frange.
In Eng land great preparations are belng mnde to recidre Garibaldi. A Confereneco on Danisb and GerThe wafinat le to be beld in Londionn.
Thed in Denmark
Cess. The Dazes had ropalsed the Prasklanh et Duppel. Rumors of dialifeotion among tbe Hungarion regiments in the Anstrian servioe were rife, The
The Britiab Cbunnel fieet had reselved orders Tbe Qucen wan to retarn to priblic life ont the हith of prll, wben whe would hold a leveo at Bnoking brm Palace,
Tbe
apoleon, by celebratiog at St. Petorssurg the entry of the allied armios fato Paris in 1814 .

NOTES AND TOPICS

 The Hebrewa.We find in the statements of a late writer pon tbe Hebrewn, that tbe Unitted Statce beve ove wo bundred thonsand of tbem, whille Engimnd hus bcem a str ange dieproportion, but to qbose who have made themsivee famlilar witb the history of the rafe it ts only sia argument to sbow how tbe tite of com merse and prosperity has net towards this conntry As a poaitive evidence of onr well-doligg, noihing ollowe upon comm Rnitle diapoted to indnatry and commerco, and immedirtely constitate tbemsoifco tb small dealera, expectally In money und preclona goods. They beve always been the precursora of oommercla rentness, ned no nutlon that bas driven tbene away they make this prorperity, but tbelr almont fnatino for gain han made them to see it in advance, Tbey allor or furmer beligg a raity, thongh we bolleve tbat a great many of the rioe bave become soldiers Tbougb the Chrittlan world has been espeolally bar npon the Hebrow, they bave found it dimenit to de Witbout bim, and #berever luxary relgns tbere is he moost in his clement, Tberefore, as a 51 gn of proiperity, we onnot regret tbat there is almost e quarter perity, we onnoot regret tbat ther of a million of Jewe in tbe land.

Strikes in a Nutahell.
It ocems stringe that tbe notelli genco tbat really does exlet among American meehanies and working does exlet among Amertican meohanies and working. men ehould not be brought morelnto play when thel own interents are concerned. At this moineat lahor le upon what is termed " $n$ strike, $n$ all over the conniry. They sre pesing throngb thot traosition state whilob hes to oceur at stated intervele to keep enpltal and labor balanood. Allthingn myst bo regulited b
the prioo of lnbor, and thas moment tbat artlecs

the valne of the ispor that prodnced them has risen, and as a consequence other lohor matit rise with it. This is the case jnat now with all articios of food, in consequence of the higb vaine of agticiltural lahor, cansrd by cullistmant, and an of result all branches of lannairy mnot rise proportiountely. The grait mil capitol. Tbere ls realiy no antag onism betwe on labor and capltal. Tbey are botb equally workexy, capital tharor maob as dend letter-if it in inde-10 the would be in the same condition. If rich lonee. He may sppear to be tdite, but be mnat think aways, and an he thinka so doea his monny work, and hy working keep libor goikg. She capital sots would otberwise hese linborer, saviog bim tbe time be ing bim with machinery to leesen toil, bullding bettor worksbope, and doing a tbounand things thate s ainglo workman oould not do. In foct, onpltal represente n bnndred laborera eombined, End hy that combina tion ohleren what the slagle man never could. Cenpltal ta governed by tbe rame lewa es iahor, and mast have ta own strikes. That is, when there is a surplan of capital in any partionlar locaitity or durness it mnest efther fall to the velue that is plicod upon it or stike for something bigber. This strike le genemily so compliebed by removing to some other locality, or omberking in anotber huitness. This, also, is the only way in whilob labor can regalate itself. All the only way in whiob labor can regolate itself, All the atrrikee in thn world will bave no effeet if tbere is a surplus of labor fin any branch. If that is so, the lehorer mnst remove to another loenality or anotber anploymont. Thia is the ouly way that a atrike can become effectaal.

Unele Sam.

Durligg the existence of the war of 1812 a New York coitraotor, wbo will still be remembered our old oftizene, named Elbert Ander son, viated Troy for the parpose of baying provilolons for the army Tbe inapectors of beef and pork at Troy were two brothers, Mosura. Ejenezer and Samut Willuon; th last, always knownunder tbe toubriquet of Uncle Gam Wse the nnpertntendent of tbe workmen employed to bandie and sblp tbe cabks boug bt hy Mr, Auderton, These caakt wwre al ways marked E. A.-U. g Thi marking was done by one or Unale gam Wusonna employéa, who wan olther stupld or witty, and on heing asked by the other workmen the meaning of tbese letters anewered tbut they stood for Elbert Andereo and Uncle Sim. The thing took among tbe workman and ifter twe jose wan disosvered the cognomen atil bung amorg them, In duo time agreat many of thes bung amokg te found thelr way Into the army, to bel eat the beef und protk they brd aoeisted to pack. Witi tbem went tbolr ofd joker, nad this one preeminen wapellition of the nation. I bave never seen this print, nor do I belleve it has boen, but there are, witb ont doabt, many now living who know ith trath.

BOOK NOTICES.

A Youtife Hibtory of the Rebielaion, from

TOWN GOSSIP.

Samang the fate of all other sublunary thiuge, the Sanitary Fatr is beginning to nagi in intorest, and, ases to be a nine days' wonder.
By this wo do not meen to assert that tbe orowde are dropplog off, or tbat the exhibition is any less are artreotive, but imply tbat the local population bave been and gone and done it, and that tbe hundreds of frir hadies and clever men wbo threw their time and talents tinto the baulinoss et lte atart begin now to anirfit of the dally rontine of a mateur sbopkeeplog and dlakering, end feel somembat like resigning tbelf antiordinates.
But stlll the stremm pours ir, ond so far no timo baa But stil the sirenm pours iy, ond so far no time baa heen mentioned for olcurin. In aome rebpecta the not been mot, and soin a r.ons errors bave been made tbat mulltate fearfelly gainat a suctece. Tbe made tbat multate fearfelly gainat a sucecee. Tbe moet importmat of these are fininnctel. Firsily, in necoessry thot neesrly *s shouid bo spent hy the vilitor to poing throogh all. We belleva tbat if the uniform In golag throogh all. Wre belleva tbat if the uniform price onl tho first few days had been prlce on the first few days had beon 2, wail we rutb was orer, and tban kept it 1 , with no forthe obarge for viewing all the alghta, advertiling oech obarge for viewing all the alghta, advertiling ouch diy wbat exhibitions would be glven, the amount of money talken wonld have heen greater Azother error is in esking exorbitant prisen for coods. Tboussads bive gone thero with an intention to bny, provided pricee ruled the nime as in atores, but bive come a way with tbeir money neepent on the shove scocoust, The contributors, wbo, for the purpose of cnbaneligg the supposed value of thelr goods, beve marled them Fith exorbltant prices, leaving them thorehy unsold and making it imperative the So far the greatest bargula we bave heard of oo So frred et a jewellery stand, the lady attendant of whioh, baving to be a baent a few minintes, left a yourge miad in obarge. Durligg thls time a lady made be min ast of car-rings and pila. The prico wae seled, th ahel reierred to, nod as and the moneed and departed On the retarn of the prinelpal of the stall, the yonnge $1=1 / 2 y$, proud of her retarn of galee, and in an matant was horriffed by th discovery that, hy a miatake in reading the inbel, nbe had sold an aleennt ds amond set, valacd at $$ 250$, while she bad read as 8350 . Without an instant ha conilder the.pnrohaner, and, mont singuiar of all, did so, re covering the gems, thepurchueer being as inmooent of thatr valne ae wss tbe nelfer.
The Eword content

 $\square \mathrm{FW}=$ $5+5=$ TM $=2=$ $=5=5$ $2 \mathrm{zx}=\mathrm{za}=$ proved no pirie, for the old man was hediy wounded, Hrifle that is being tboronghiy made up to him by Honization.

 hazard nothilg lo maying, with the mont feshionable
large ndilentee that hae been galhered in New York ln many yeari.

 Tno tenatition or the day y iee

 Hims

Tus flve hundred Universal Wringing Ma chinen presented hy the praprictora to the Sunitury Commisilon are nearly diaposed of, and will net $$ 3$,

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.

 the low eatimule of 16 centa a pound, nearly $$ 4,000,000$.

 arronged apo stando in g.opps ard win
of the mote sheorbing ett actions of the Fair.

 noney market.

The Reason commenced on the trotuing courn on the 1th ApH. The nuperorable state of the wentber prevenied a Yery large attendenoc, but the weatber prevenied a very large attondenoe, but the ace were eoduoted wita great appint, although here was ittle betting. Were was ittle betting.

 Southern-- Even in North Cirolina, where corm-pirative plenty ibund, tbe price nf food ore enor

 Opinion deciares, toe work bas been reanmed, and tow of tho veesela are now ready to be naised over to the rethel

 ortict, in neutite Etrality.

 hestitand arimation upon ill the world.

 Celonel who eaptured Oaeawatamie Brown, at Harpertorfy, and harded him over to tho VIrghis Stato eutiortice. Mr. Chanf, of the Treessury, arrived in Nevp York on the 1fth, and returned on the 10.ch to Wash tngton. Obituary.-G. T. Tloknor, the well-known Boeton puifishor, dted ouddeoly at the Continental Sorton philibher, dted tuddeoly at the Hotel, Phindelpilio, on the 10 ch of April.
 intere ate of the country, and durity his uer uul career
had endecared himnelf to o large oirole of friende.

 Administration Je, wilh Frivik B
the Globe of wbich ho had been so.
three years at the time of his death.

 In the crie of Jumes N/xon, the hme solider, tried for the murder of Wm. N. Brown, keeper of the Penter Mug, the jury nid a verdlet of manalenghtor in the third degree. Foroign, -In the sonthern provinoen of Rns large dincovertes nave bean made of petroleum.
 pita have heen This war hatcoete. Thitios of fints.
quant

 patrio
pon wh.
don it.
 welghtag 1smo pound.

 Ther the ferib.

 to me mataiding repanilio.

 decharos that he his agatn found on the bedies of perrors who hud ded of typhojid fever fintusoria of the genua Bacterlum,
 - Rebel two cent postage stamps ire selling in London bt two ahilings esch.
 illing hed turned hin bratn,
 prices on
stad a way.
Four militions and a half pounds sterling worth of cathe die EiD Eiond by cimense-plearo-pnen-monia the maledy generally.

 Royal Highneas hing caused the ball to her drawitg-room at the Poted me Palace.

 "Onr Mutual Friend", la to he the tille of Mr.
Cbarles Dickeng'e new serial novel. The first number Charles Diokeng'B ne will appear $18 t$ May.
Mr. Sothern, the Dundreary of the play, ia about to appear tis Devld Garrici, in a play of that name, writea for him vy Tom Taylar.

 - Dr. Mes nthel

 binesutifil plolet, bley vioict, or rod wiolet. The her lover, Hel Oakford. Scarcaly has she dlscevered ibe deception played upon her, hhen the wster-real water-rueiea in apon the seare, and there 5 eems no

The Spriggaeld Union tolir the following atory: The other erenig, whill watrigg for the trs in, Hery Ward Beebor le tired nome newsboys

THE STRASBURG CLOCK.
The priests and milutary bave retired, and 1 am now sitting in a cheir facing the glgantic clock, from the hottom to the top not less than 100 fect, and about 30 feet wide and 15 fect decp. Around me are many strangers wilting to tee the worklog of thls elork as it strikes the hour of neon. Every cye ls upon the clock, It now wants flvemiantes tn twelvo. The clock has atruck aud the people are gone, except Afew whom the sexton or head man, with a wand and Eword, is conduoting ronud the huilding.
The elock has struck in thia way: The dina is some 20 feet from the noor, on each side of whitelt is a oberuh or little hoy, with a mailet, and over the disi is a mmall bell; the cheruh on the left etrikes the firat quarter, that on the right the accond quarter Some 50 fast vhave the dial, in it large nicho; is a huge agure or Time, a bell is in his left, a scythe in hia right hund. In front stands a figure of a young inan with a mailet, who strikes the third quarter on the bell in the hand of 'Kime, and thes turne, and then glides, with a slow atep, reund behind Time; then comss with a slow atep, reund behind Time; then comse out an nld man with a mallet and places bimaelf in ront.

- As the hour of twelve comes the $0, \mathrm{~d}$ man raises his mallet end dellherately strites twelve times on the bell, that echioes throngh the hullding, and is heurd all round the region of the chareh. The old man glldes alo wly hehlind Father Time, and the young mai comen on resdy to jerform his part as the timo cornea round agaiu. Soon as the old man has struck twelre and dilanppeared, another set of machinery is put in motion, some 20 feet higher still.
It is thus: Thero is a high ersas with the image or Chisist ou it. The inatant twelve is struck one of the facing the crnas, hows and walke on around to his place. Ae he docs so another comes out in front, tarns, hows and paeses in. Sotwelve apostles, figures 58 large as life, walk roand, how and passon. As the nacle of the clock, slowly flape hers wingu, strstches forth its neak and arows thres times, so loud as to he heard outsids the ohurch to soms distance, and no anturally has to be mietaked for a real coes. Then al No wouder this elo
Was mpde in 15St, and han pcrformed thenc meoropant. cal wonders sver since, except ahont so years, when It etood out for repsitr. cal wouders sver since,
it etood out for repair.

A Letrar from Paris to the Manchester $E x$ ominer tnlls of a viait psid to Medome Grisl, who, with her humband, Mario, is now residing in the with her humband, Mario, is now restiding in the magnifisent manion thas have recently hult and and furnishad in the Champs Elybees, at a cost of something like $2,000,000$ franch. The great artist, Wo are told, pass to bs seen "wandering about th 'Lienderezla Borgia, looking the very pertonflication 'Lacrezin Borgla, looking the very perzonthleation of royalty-the furniture of the salo pent, all after the old fashion, with onk esrvy old fashion, with oak esrriags, somhre tapestries Aud massive fild ings assebting to complete fhe a long and ardnnus carecr has seoured. Grivi still aighe for the explement of publio life. Her voice is wonderfaly fresk, und in persomil appenrarce Ehs is eenally remarkghe, "Mla, roglio canytare" is that as eoon an the time expires under the arrangoment made with Gyt, ty whlch ahe houn heralif not to made with Gyt, iy whech ahe houn hersilf not to eling in London, thic voice of " Norman shall agoli he eing in London, the voicc of "Norman shall anging he heard in the grest city. Thite will he at the.ond of 16650.
Dk. Whoweell, walking in Hamilton's gakden at Colham, expressed his eurpzise at the pro"My dear $\begin{aligned} & \text { bir ", reoled Hamilton, "remember they } \\ & \text { havo nothing elpe to do." }\end{aligned}$

The Crow a Pine Tree Planter.-J Thomson, of Leeas, says, in the Gardener'n Chronicle, or Scotland I have frequently sesn great numbers of crows pass over my hend, carryling in their bills to nelechhoring bill something like a pota: 0 . If firs thought that they did actunily carry polatocs ther oriseryatlos I saw them dig a hole in the gronnd wit their hoaks and then deposit what appeared to be potato, hut which, ou ex mination, proved to ho cone rom fir trees. For what purpose they planted the fow years young fire begne to aprine nR in all dire tions heglauing thus maic, the hill was pranted and inelosed, and is nov covered with a hesntiful sud nd inclosed, and is now con turiving plantatior of firs,
At a recent ball in Paris the Marquis de Bolssy, who married the Couptesa Guiccioll, appeared in his grandfatier's coat. The Emperor sald, "Mar quis, that coat makes yon very conspicuous p" "YeB, Bire," returnsd the crazy old aristocrat, "and if your Majeaty were to appear in vour grandmather', coa Fou would he as conmpicnous as I am" This alluilo

THE NEW SONG.

by whliam ross wallace
We must have a new song ; but of what shall it be?
Of the plighted at twilight beside the lone tree?
Pressing hands, hreathing vows, sheening all thling with gold,
Dolng just as the world did in ages of old?
We must have a new song: shall it ring with the fight-
Bounding on, burning on for the wrong and the right,
Whille the Earth shudders wid at their terrible tread,
And the prond sun, unearing, looks down on the dead?
We must have a new song: slanll it bubble with mirth,
Like a tountain's coil leaping to sualight from | Earth?
Or with sorrow shall all its long measures be breathed,
Like a lone, rayless river through caves darkly wreathed?

We mast have a new song: yet, oh, try as we will,
The themes will but bear the same old burdens stili-
Troth, battle, amhition, star-hreathed or elond-huried, Sinee the Deril and Michael fougbt for the world.
We must have a new song: tben, a theme give in this-
Bnt one moment of love o'er the whole of Earth's sod:
Oh, then may you hear a New Song of such hliss
That its' stream might have burst from the moustain of God?

Oh, Vision of Glory !-Beam, Spirit of Love, With the red sabre broken, Heaven's how ronnd thee curled, Looking np, without tears; to the Whmes Home ahove,
From the rose-wreathing homes of a warwearled world!

Rudolph Bosler's Pipe.; OR, THE  MYSTERY OF THE BLACK BOAR.

Thrre were assemhled one evening at the Black Boar Tavern, at Heidelberg, some halr dozen cattie drovers, who had just profitably disposed of their stack, and had come to the usual resort-to count their proceeds.
They were all acquaintancesi, although thsy did busineas separately. The room they sat in was a sort of private apartment; not atriolly so, hat to which no stranger had access, espeoially during the meetings of the drovers.
On the evening mentioned only one other person beside themselves was present a a sleepy-looking beside themselves was present; a sleepy-looking fellow, named Rudolph Bosler. He was about forty yearl of age, and known to the inhahitants of forty years of age, and known to the iahahitants of Heidelberg. Rudolph was a constunt visitor at the Black Boar, and, consequently, was well known to all who resorted there. He was an especial favorite with the cstlle drovers, to whom ent he uaunlly related talse and legonds of the Black Forest und Harta Mountalns.
Boslis wan never seen witholat his pipe, a longstemmed and hroad-howled one. He usually ent at oce end of the table smoling, while the drovers us thay heaped their coins of gold in piles of equal amounts on the table hefore them, and occasionally he wonld take the pipe froo his month, he wonld take the pipe froar his mouth, and touch one of tho pilss of gold with the howl, nnd say:
"There are hut sleven on that pile." "There are hut sleven on that pile" dozen, and to prove hia worde he would count photograpi albuy prpsented by the employes of hessey e $k$ in i. anthony to the metropolitan sanitary falz-sek page 81.

them, and the result was always in Rudolph's favor. He then gavs a quiet chuokle at Che perplexity of the man, and replacing his pipe-the stem in his mouth, and the hroai, heary bowl in his right hand for support, he would reaume his smoking and watching, efer and anon correcting the counters, always indicating the deficient pile the counters, always indicating the deficient pile by touching it with the howl of his pipe. He wae hy touching it with the howl of his pipe. He wae of the stem. He could not have reached the money with his hand from where he sat. He bad always maintsined a respectahle diatance from the piles of coin while the drovers were engaged in counting it. After that whe over they, alwaye had a merry time over come Rhine wine with Herr Rudolph, who always patid his way with the reet, and reg Rudolph Bosler was the life of the Black Rd an ever welcome companion to all who knew him. He wae a bachelor, and might have rsmained one to his dying day had not the black eyee of the daughter of mine host of the Black Bour played the deuce with his heart and taken it captivs. Mina Casper सas a pretty hrunette of twenty summere, and secretly loved a young man of her neighhorhood, who waited till he could call neighhorhood, who waited till he could call E Minn's hand from ber father.
Heinrich Casper, her father, knew nothing of her attaohment to the handsome Fritz Wolff, and when Rudolph Bosler asked to pay his court to ths pretty Mine he received the full consent of her father, to the overwhelming grief of the daughter. marrying a minn old enough to be my father. He

"m," enough, $I$ don't douht, but I ean't love

 ie goodhim."
"So "So you think now," her father would reply, "but once his wife you will soon learn' to know vour duty". your duty."
But Mina was as firmly resolved not to marry Herr Bosler as her father was that ahe shoutd Herr Bosler as her father was that she should. She at once wrote a letter to her lover, who served in a town some two days' travel from Hsidelherg in a town some two days travel from Hsidelherg.
She stated how matters stood, and urged him to come to her aid, if he could do so without incurring the loes of his place.
Fritz needed no second hidding, hut at once resigned his situation, and returned to his native place.
He a
He and Mina met, and held a serioue consultaHen, which ended in Fritz obtaining a situation in the house of Heinrich Casper, who did not know that he had voluntarily admittsd an enemy into tho camp. Ths young folke had kept their lovee a profound secret from all, and now being inmates of the same house, thsy took care not to arouse the suapicions of ths landlord, whioh might mar all their plans for ths fnturs and hanten the catastheir plans for ths faturs and hasten trophe they eo earnestly strove to avert.
"Resiet all his advances," Fritz wo his sweetheart, "and if it comes to tha worst, and the old fellow is dstermined to marry you, III manags to serve hima trick which will at lesst delay his wedding-day.
Fritz had heen a eervant at the Black Boar about two months when our story opens. The drovers had nsarly completed their eounting on the eveniog in question when one of them "Rudolp

Arrest of the Thief and his mysterians Pipe.
leot miscounts well. I should liks to have him tel us now how he doss it , hy tha sire of the pile or by seeing us count wrong "" Then addressing the man directly, he exid, "Tell us, Rudolph, how it it ?"
"I have nothing to do hit watch you cover thie mistake," Was the quiet reply,
"Could you detect one among a dozen or more placed in a row, if all had an equal number save that one ?" wns the next queation.
"Yes," replled Boaler.
"From where you ait?"
"Yes,"
"Yes." drover arranged some fifteen piles of gold in rows, and asked Rudolph to point out the one that had eleven. The smoker touched six of them hefore he bit on the pile containing ths ofd number. His gusases were at an interval of a minute or ad. After placing his pipe on one, and a shake of the head from the drover would indlcate that it was the wrong onef Rndolph would place the stem in hif mouth and the bowl in his right hand-as was hin cuatom-and giving a few whiffe, he would repert the operation until the right pils had heen touched. to the landlord of the Black Boar, and made the following myaterious inquiries:
"Have you any suspicious persons attached to your tavern $?^{n}$
"Explain youreelf," was the response.
"I have lost nearly one hundred guilders since I atopped at your house last, and I can't for my ife eee how it ceuld have happened. I muat have been rohbed in your honne."
"Such a grave chargs is hard to bear," remarked the landlord; "wsrs it known that a rohber visited my tavern I should lose all my custom. Let me place under my roof." "I had twenty pack taining twslve pieces, eavs one. When I oams to pay them away for cattls yeuterday five of the roll. contained but eleven pieces $!^{n}$
"And are you certain you counted thom right?" asked Casper.
"Quite certain, for Rudolph Bosler was pressnt, and nothing.escapes his quick eys," Waie the reply "You alept in your old room "" queried Casper "Yeen
"And holted your door, inside?"

The Droters robbed of anothor Guilder.

[^8]sooked and mstobed as unual, accasionauly indloan
tong a boort pile, end rever making a mituke. ing a sbort pille, and never making a miatare.
One of the men was an expert fellow, and prided blmnelf on bis accurracy in ecounting. One pile toucbed by Rndolph ss short of the required number the man incisted on conteinieg twelvo. "Count tbem," ssid Rudolpb, quielly replacing tbe atem of his pipe in his mouth.
The pile was oounted, and there were but eleven! The man looked perplexed; he wss positive be bid counted twelve bowerer, bere were only eleven, and no ode bad touobed them to remove any; in and no one bad touobed them to remove ing seen by all around the table.
The drover grew ruapioioue of some trick abon the teble, snd proceeded to examine it thoroughly but the innocent pieoe of farniture was only an ordinary table, asd contrined no seoret riteosse or sping.trapa. Rudolph laugbed mbe drover had conoluded his searcob, and said: drover had conoluded his search, and said:
"No, no, Herr Klein, it is no fault of that

"I nuwally count rigbt," reflied Kicin, "That no one gainsays," and Rudolph, "but the best of nue orr sometimes.
Klein finibhed the counting of his meney, packedilt up and leff the room, bestowing a ourinut palanee on the emoker and his pipe. Calling the landard whith him for soms ter minutes, the landlori tion whating his head as is incredulous at what Klein shaking his heal. The drover went out into the hard, and enoountering Frits drem him into yard, and enoountering Tris the young man oonveration. The eye of the sparkled as tbe drover appeared to explain something to him, and finnlly they parted, shaking thing to him, and finilly they parted, shaking hands on some bssruin they had evidently made. That eveniog Fitz was unusually animated and meeting Mina he announced to her that had a fir prospect soon to claim her haid.
eyee, "for my futher eaid this morning that her eyes, "Yor my fusher eald this morning that Radolph was getting impatient of deliy, and demanded my hand within two weocks."
"Put It off that logg," said her lover, " and one two thinga Tul promise you; either Rudolph of two thioga rul promise you; either Rudolph will give up his pretensione to your hand or 1 sball run amay yith you, and marry you ia apite of sball run amay with y.
him and jour father."
him nind your father. the sam nothing short of a miriccle that would save she san noting smpert of a misery her father had planned for her.
planed irut in Providenee," "was the parting salutation of her lover, as he left her in teare.
It was the night before the wedding between Rudolph and Mina was to take place Rudolph and Mina was to take place. The drovers, ten in number, arrived at the Bleck Boar.
Rudolph was in a merry mood this evening; he Rudolph was in a merry mood this evening; he had eridently been drinking freely duriog the day. had eridently been drinkiag
The drovers had all learned of the contemplated Tedding, and they congratalated him, wishing him many happy yeara and a numerous familly. Klein in insted on drinking a bottle of wine wí him, and Rudolph, nothing loth, consented.
After the bottle was fluibbed the ringing of gold in the table.
Rudolph, ss usual, pointed out ehort piles, and amid many laughs at tbeir orm stupitity, the merry drovers packed up their gold, and stowed it persons.
Klein was the liast one to remove his moner; he had ten piles, and putting them in a circle, he he had ten pies, and pu fe point out the ahort one.
anked Rudolph conld hed
The moker touehed fight of the tea before ho The smoker touthed guessed the odd one. guessed the odd ose.
"Now 1 shall count them over sgain," Klein, "in order to make sure of being right."
The drover did so, and found seren of the piles Tith only eleven pieces! and the short one had but ten instend of eleven pieces; the two piles that thad
not been touched by Rudolph's pipe had twelve

Klefin looked at his eorypssions, who in turn looked st him, while Rudolph Boser sat smoking his pipe, regarding all wrha quiet demeavor. Klein caat an anxious glanes at the door leading into the bar-room, as if he expected the entrance of some one. Prosently the door opened, and Frits entered, followed by two policemen. Bo fore the party could recover from their surprise the officers hasd eeized Rudolph Boaler, and taking his officers had eeized Rudolph Bosler, and tating his pipe from him placed a pair of handouffio on his pipe fros.

wriats. can you mean to offer me methis violenoe $?$

 "Yoill find out presently," was the reply. They took him be fore a magistrate, where hisperton was searched and some two dozen pieoes person was searched and some two dozen pieoes of gold found on him. The pipe was handed to or gol found on mim. The pipe was handed to the mitrate, who, atter exnining it, gave his hend a solemn ahake, and darted a furious glance at tha prinoner.
Rudolph

$\xrightarrow{\text { prison, }}$

Now to exploins the mytery of Bosleris arrest. The drover Klein felt a mort of dallike to drovers would have objected to his presenoe during the eounting and paeking of their money. Finally, it entered his head that it was a strange occurrenoe that he and hiin companions ahould make so many by Rudolph Bonler.
Tbe more he thought of it the stranger it appeared. Resolving not to say anything to bis comrades, he closely watehed the sleepy araoker one evening, and altbough he could detect tbe mode adopted hy the thief, he eonld not positively awear that Rudolph took tbs money.
However, he saw enough to eonvince him that Rudolph Boaler had made it a practioe to pilfer from them at every meeting, and he vowed to lay a

To do this effeotixily he mide a confidante of tbe lsndlord, and bad great difficulty in convinoing that person of Rudol pb's guilt.
"I oan soarcely believe it"
"but if you sue sure of what you trill ma I per "but if you are sure of wbat you tell me 1 shal $\begin{aligned} & \text { sfford y } \\ & \text { rogue." } \\ & \text { "Havo }\end{aligned}$

"Have you saked Kiein.

"N War, but any reth Casper. "I am all alons in th
"Have you sny one about the honse tbate" I could ely en to take the past of a spy on bim ?
"I have," wss the reply. "Fritz Wolf, my man-servant, al pose, X 'm sure."
Klein sought tha lover of Mina, and during tbe interview learned how matters stood between Mina and him. Klein obtained Frita's promise to sil him in ostohing Bosler in the ret, tben gave him a promiee to effect a compromise with Casper, by Mina Casper, with the full consent of her father. Thin io what caused the young $m$ m to he in suth good sp.
after.
On
On the ovening of Botler'c arrest Fritz took a poaition behind a covered chair, from where he and this is what he saw Rudolph'e pipe-as we have stated-was brond in the bowl, and on the bottom of the bowl he had When he placed his pipe on a pile of gold one of placiog the pipe in his mouth, and dropping the heary bowl in hie right hand, he was enabled to remove the ooin and steslthily drop it into hi breeches' pocket, after which the pipe was in order again for another journey to the money beaps,
When the harvest of gold was over for the time Rudolph would fasten a false bottom on the bow f the pipe, effectually concealing the trap. Frits Wolff afra all tbis plainly. Klein had oni When Klemething of the kind.
he gave a preconcerted signal, which, being thef stood by Fritz, that perion quietly erawled from his place of enncealment and left the room by door near him, leading into another apartment. Two polisemen ontaide were ready to do their part in the play, and Fritz soon joined them an announced everything ready. They room, and the reader knowe the result.
The eight pieces of gold Bosler stole from Klein had all been marked underneath by the drover. Tbe marks he exhibited to the two office presence of Frity Wolf and the landlord.
Those pieeee were subsequently found on the person of the adroit thief.
Rudolph Bosler was imprisoned for Hife. He had, previous to his incarceration, made a fuil confes ion of hie guil. He had carried on this netarious the meantime had-accumulated five thousand guilders, all of which he returned to such as he had at different times robbed.
Through the intercession of Herr Klein, Casper gave the pretty Nins to him who had so nobly won her, and Fritt beoame a partner in the businees in The Black
The Black Boar became famoue after that; many came there out of sheer eurionity, ater the myalery of the Blaok Boar had been unravelled. The plpt of Rudolph Boaler was placed behin the bar, and many a customer examined the in genious artiole with admiration.

"AT THE LAST,"  Man goeth forth uoto his worki And to his lahor, until the evening." The stream is enimeet when it nears the tide, The flowera are sweetest at eventide, The birds are most musioal at close of day, And sainte divinest when they pass away.  Moining is lovely, but a holier charia Lies folded close in Evening's robe of halm And weary man mutt everl love her beat, For morning calle to toll, but night to rest. She oomes from heaven, and on her wings doti Footateps of ane, like the breath of pray Footateps of angels follow in her trace, To ehut the weary eges of day in peane.  All thinge are huahed before her, as she throws O'er earth and sky her mantle of repos  That morning knows not in the evening hnur.  "Until this evening" we must weep and toil, Plough life's atern furrow, dig the weedy soll, And bear the heat and harden of the day.  On, when our oun is setting, may we giide, Llke summer evening, down the golden And leave bebind us, as we pass amang, Sweet, starry twilight round our sleeping ciay

A LITTLE FLIRLATION  How it Began and How it Ended.

To. miont I have been agoin to the opera. The musio has pulaed an benutifully as of old through the wide nualloriam of the great thentre. Beauty has shone to-night benesth the gleaming groves of chandellera, as brllisutly, as thrillingly. I have seen the bouquets showerigg from falr hands at Tbere was a time when this gay scene was full I attraction for me. Wby whs it different toight? I looked for ber fsoe.

beautiful, my bird!
Ten years ago my heart lesped into the life of iove hene ath the starry gaze of Berthene Brougbton. It was at Saratoga I met her; the reigning belle the season; tbe queen of ball sud promenude. One day I was walking arm-in arm with my riend Joe Beecher, amoking a frigrant cigar, when we were passed by a carringe, in whiob were seet two ladies and two gentlemen. Tba puir thet two lsdies and two gentiemen. The prir that occupied the bsok seated I did not see, 位 ledy coes were hidden ss they swept by. But the hady on the front seat turned upon me, I thougbt, a peculiarly ardent glance from her deep brown eyen-a glance that seemed to take in my whole yen-a glance that seemed to take in my whole being with its fiery sweep, and to read my heart to the cors. Her enmpanion I recognised as a member of the last Legielsture at Albany; ;aman with whom I had some dealings during the late her turn to him, and from the look he inetently bent apon me I knew she had asked him who 1 was. I did ao mueh for her.
Who's that, Joe ?" I asked my eompanion.
"What? Who ?" ssid Joe, who was looking nother way.
"In that cau
"In that carrisge with the Honorable Snod"se. Who is she?"
"Is't posnible, now, you don't know the Brough"he "ourr." "oulle this sesson ?" with an emphasis on "Your belle ?" said I, inquiringly, for I was hut day or two arrived.
"Wby, ecrtainly, our belle. There's two parties you must know, as usual-with a blonde and a runette-blue-eyed and dark-eyed. I go the bunotte every time. I've a passion for brown "Have you ?" ssid I; "well, now, my favorite olor is blne. Violet eyes and all that, you know. Highly postical. Did you ever hear of a darkyed angel, my boy? It's incongruous. Azure jkies, blue eyee, and angels, always go together, on know.
" $\mathrm{Oh}, \mathrm{I}$ suppose it's all right. Tastea differ. I on't go poetiy very strong, you're aware; and as cor angels, why, so long as fm in toe ferh I prefer a woman to an angel any day. But if you TIl take pleasure in introducing you."
Ill take pleasure in introducing you.
belle with my eyes.
"To-night, at the Congress bop. You'll find her a lovely creature, I confess. Ido justice to the "nemy. I expect you to fall in love with her. "I am erazy to know her," eaid $I$, enthusiastlcolly, my gaze atill bent on the reecding carriage of the brunette.
"The brunette.
"Tbey say she's quite a teste for your style of "Tlow, too- fond of talking att and poctry, and all sellow, too-fond of talking art and poctry, and an that. Swillis is very sweet on her, they asy.
( (Swillis was a poet.)
"Ah, a blup-stocking? Would that I were by arriage and the brown eyee were out of sight.
That night Joe was as good as his word. I danced with the blue-eyed. Her name wa Belle Smith. She evidently thought me a rather shallow oung man, for I was distroit, and talleed out-andyoung man, for I was diatroik, and the least idea what Isaid. The fact is, I was lnoking for the brawn-
I found her at last, surrounded by a circle of admirers, Snodgrass.
Snodgrass.
Joe led her on for the quadrille, presently When he had seated her again, I rushed to him. "Introduce mo!" I whispered, eagerly.
"Why, I thought I had
is blsok eyes. his blaok eyes. introdnced to the enemy
"Oh! oertainly," and we walked that way "Walt until that oonfounded Srodgrass to out of "Ob," I whispered. "Whe way," I whispered.
"Oh, don't mind. Come on! Miss Bronghton, Mr. White."
She raised her queenly eyes and gava me a thrilling look.
"I warn
"I warn you!" said Joe to the lsdy; "White" spy in our camp. He's a believer in blue oyes, a spy is our camp.
angels and poetry.
The impudent scampl I pinched his arm fisroely; and then tried to rally, my wita for a oounter-stroke to this ugly hit. But before I had opened my lips her voice fell on my ear, sweet as a hell, soothing and low. .. hell, soothing and low. .t. White. Wo shall agree
"So am I, Mr. Win capitally."
Thought I, that's done better than I oould have done for myaelf; and I held my penoe accordingly, Sba turned away from me almost at the instant, to listen to Snodgrass. Hang the fellow I I found before the weck had ended that Miss Broughtoa had seleoted me for a firtee. I was not vain onough to ascribe this honer to any other onuse than the peculisr manner of my introduo tion; for $I$ knew what trifles will often give direo tion to the feminine fanoy.
I led a happy life.
"By. George, Ned," said Beeoher one moraing,
" youre a deserter, I leave you eafe in the blue camp, asd the next I know you are one of the most fothful of the browna. . How's this? Angela are suecmmbing to flech and blood-sh ?"
"Pshaw, Joe," I replied to this sally;
"Pshaw, Joe," I replied to this sully; "don't ou plaoe too you plsoe too muoh faith $\ln$ my loyalty to your quees. I am a student of human. nature, you quees. I am a student of human nature, you don't wonder if I takee a notion to look inte the earth-earthy' a little. Have you a cigar ""
"Beware lest you become a oonvert to tha faith, tben," esia J Jon
a ligbt, will yon $\mathrm{r}^{\prime \prime}$ One evening, at twilight, we sat-the browneyed and I-by one of the windows of ber privat parlor, holding delicious chas. This mas early in our soquaintanos. Presently is dark sbsdow our soquaintanos. Presenty side voico of Snodgrass broke the ssered quiet.
"Chawming evening, Mirs Broughton! How re you, White ?"

I nodded to him

"How you startled ua, Mr. Snodgrass!" said the "lio. (You startled ua, Mr. Snodgrass!" ssid the beile suid "ns.") "Won't yon be "Num,
"Naw, thank you," said he; "been taking a usp ; dawn't feel very tired; stretch my loga."
Tben be began a dawding conversatlon on Then be began a dawdilng conversation on one and Miss Brougbton talked to him without ad dreesing a syllable to me.
Tbere was something in the fellow'e air whioh arred harshly on my nerves-a sort of an indoande assumption of authority there, as if he had right to mpion of authority thers, as wersation hile ehe, on her part, actually seemed to be quitily reognising his right, and doing her best to please recogni htm.
Finding that I was being quietly Ignored, I was about to withdraw, when I felt a gentle tep on my band, which rented on the window ledge. The lady wse elipping her elosed fan to and fro botween her fingers, and every time it fell it touched my The twilight deepened. Snodgrass suggested
"Oh, nol Pray, don't,", eaid Miss Broughton. "Ido ove the twilgat, 00
"Butt'a aetually getting dark."
"Ob, it's no matter. Let us enjoy it a Hutle "Ob, it"
And as ahe asid it I felt her little hand oreep long the window-ledge, till its sed side reated gainst my own, while she tapped away idly with her fan.
Misehievous little hand, how its sof touch Itilled me! Remember, I was alresady adoring thrilled me! Remember, I was alresdy adoring hex. Already her warm eyes bad built a fire in my heart; and now to have this velvety bit of her heart; and now to have this velvety bit of her touching my fingera! Fiesh and blood! Oh, Joe, touchin Joe!
Of oo

Of course she was utterly unaware that her hand ras against mine. Or did sha do it purposely, to hold ma by her side-st her feet, as lt Fare- while she chatted eharmingly to wretched little coquette," I murmured to myself, "is that it ?"
I resolved to
I resolved to test the matter. Emboldesed by the darknees I raised my hand an inch or sod, and rested the nide of my hand upon the baok of hers.
Sho instently moved it nearer, and nestled the bit of warm flesh under my eager palm, at the same ime apreading her fan 0 as to hide the performance. I gave one gentle downward pressure of my palm-upon my lifo I could not help it!-and then rose abruptly.
"Going out, White ?" said Snodgrass, taking my scant ehair.
I stammered something about an appointmenty Ind left the rnnm.
"Good evening, Mr. White," in her sweet voioe, ame through the npen door as I dfappeared. "Confound the arrant flirt!" I muttered to my seif, and strat thing I did was to get a position wbere
I eould see that window. "Snodgrass's hand eomes next, I suppose," thought I.
But I found that my departure was the aignal for ghts. They had withdrawn from the window.
Our firtation got on awimingly. It was not ong before I had reached tbe point whioh allowed me to take that fairest of, hands in my own and press it to my lips.
Did you ever flirt at the Springe with the reigning Did you ever firt at the reader? Well, then, you know. As for tbose who have not, I despair of oonveying any adequate oneeption of the fascinations of the amuaement.
All things have an end, and the time came at lant for departure from the Springs. How well I remember that last evening with her Iloved! Yes, I did love her; and she professed to love me , too, though not with the deep enthusiasm of my own hough not with the deep enchusiam of ny own tormy nacurc, 1 hed Wer on a thlo-detted in shadow, but not to-night before on a titc-ditet
"Eddie," she exid, "we muat part now, and I cannot see yos alone again. Othere will be here this evening, and to-morrow morning yon know I take the early train for Aloany." ozarten If .
elapsed when
Two weeks had elspsed when I visited Londale, hooked mynelf it the hotel, and strolled otreet leading to the Broughton revidenoe.
In a few miouten I ant in an elegant parlor by my Berdle'r side, with her kise warm noon my lips.

Half an hour later, as I held her hand in mine and lookod into those deep brown eyet, I said to her:
"Berdle, I have oeen you in your bome. That ondition is falfilled. Now will you tell me-will condition is fulfile you be my wife ?"
She bowed her besutiful head upon my shoulder, bot wes ailent.
"Tell me, my own," I whispered, with an axpectant thrill, "doee this mean yes "
Sbe raised ber hend quickiy, and dre
Sbe raised ber hend quiekiy, and drew a way from me with a atrange, frighteoed look in her syat. "Ob, why do yoie
"Tell me? What?" I whispered.
"I am to be married next mooth," she exolnimed, with an effort.
I started to my fect.
"To wbom ?" I anked.
To Mr. Snodgrass," she answerad, her syes upon the floor.

I stood gasing oo her, astouoded.
Sbe glanoed up timidly at me, and smiled, ss if It turned to go.
She sprang forward and threw her arma abont my neck.
"Eddie," she cried, "I annnot help it-indeed I oannot. Do not be angry witb me. Xou will bresk my heart if you leave me ao, for $I$ can nover bresk my heart" ee you again."
"And why bh
"And why should you care whether yoo see me agalin or not ?" I amked, in a chllling tone. mnat not go away and be angry with ma. For pity's enket Havt you no forgiveness ?"
"What need 1 forgive?"
"My decelt! I have deceived you, Edile. I commenced a nirtedion with you becausa at the Springs everybody flirts; and when I found out that I loved you I could not let you go till I was compolied to. I deceived you, for I was engaged to Mr . Srodgrass all the time. Oh, how wioked, how Mieked I heve beeo l" Sbe aank upon the sofa and burst into an agony I stood silent, shaken by a tumult of contending pasions. I could oot at that momeot bestowiympathy upon the woman who had so blterly wrooged "No! Don't go away angry," sha pleaded, raising her head and showing her brown eyes full of aparking teers. Eddia. I know I am aelish to ask it of yeu, you whose rioh love I have fanulted; but you are good, yon are generous, promise that yon will not not be my enamy, not hate me. Oh, forgive me, for I am sinoerely repantant; and belleve me, in spite of an that seems, tbst you are dear to ms, and always will be dear to ms.".
I could not but pily her-that queaply woman, bowed before me in teare, supplleatiog for the poor bowed before me in tears, aupplleatiog for the poor booo of ray friend ahip. I gave it. "Yes, I will be yaur friend," I sidd, "and I will think of you kindly. My loss I will bury deep down in my heart and try to bear the sorrow from which my lifa has been hitherto frse. My frieod, I forgive you all."
"Cold, cold word ${ }^{\text {" }}$ " ohe murmured, drazmily, with olssped hande, and tben she Hifted her head and antd: "I thank you-oh, how I thank yon You ara good and true."
"And now good-bye," spesk sloud. esid, in a low tone :
esid, in a low tone:
"Eddie, will you teke this ring and give me that upon your finger ?"
It was a plain gold oirclet that I wore, and I looked at her heiltatingly. looked at her healtatingly.
"Please do" she added
"Please do", "he added; " and let this be a sign of our friendehip. I may never see you on earth eannot exchange worde. If much a meeting ehould occur look at my hand, and if you see your ring slipped half-way off my finger anewer that mnte aiga of my contlinuad regard for you by alipping the diamond partly off, as I do your ring. By that sign, whelever our oirombtancos, I ahall know that you are my frlend.
I acqulenced, and we.parted so Xears fied:
And no man ara boalmp V Time did the work of healling upon my wounded marry I was at last able to remomber her callmly

```
hafter ini
```

IT was eight years before I eaw Berthene Brough ton egain.
to the died in midwinter from a long, long rambla forgotten that eariy of the world. I had elmoot Snodgrass was now no more to me than any other woman of my past ecquaintaice.
Ooe night $I$ went to the Ooe night I went to the opera-slone. The thestre wan gay with fathion and beauty. Every color of the rainbow shone in the brilliant cloake color of the rainbow ahone in the brillant cloaky witb a thousand perfumes. I looked listlensly atrangers to me; elgbt years produce great ohanges In the aspect of tbe fashionable world.
In tbe box oppesite me I noticed a partloulayly brlliant party, upon whom many a lorgnette was turned admiringly. Yleldiug to the prevalling turned admiringly. Yleldiug to the prevalling sentiment, I ralied my gless to scrutiala the party sentiment, I ralied my glass to scrutinian the party more closely. Thare was one woman who seemed to be the ceotre of attraction in the little groap, and who wore s queenly beanty. Tbere was something familiar obont her manner which eaused me to look at her still more closely; but I did not re cognise the face. My gaze wandersd over her cauttleas contume and graceful figure, and reated apon a hand from which the was withdrawing apotless glove. Tbe kid removed, a finger ralsed and s ring aïpped nlowly half-way offl ralsed and s ring aiipped nlowly half-way off Instantly the link was supplled. I looked faco ugain. Yes, it was ler.
She raised har hand to ber looee ring upon the finger, and anir, with the still reply. I anewored the algnal with the diamond wore. Then she faintly beekoned to me, and witl hor' cyes the sald oven more distinctly
"Come to man
"Come to min ${ }^{\text {P }}$
As soco as the act drop fell I left my aeat, and, crosing the theatre, I antered crobsing the theatre, I entered tbe box. Tbey were all atrangers tome in the box except herelf. She said a quiet word of fintroduction to her friends, and offered me a sent that was reoant at her side. There was no exhibition on sitber her part or mine of any other feeling than a commonplace friendsblp. We spoke on all the mont ordinary topica of the seasoo ; I do not remember oow exaotly what they were; they were of no consequence. We oalled ench other simply "Mrs. Soodgracs" and oalled ench other simply "Mre. Soodgrao
"Mr. White," juet an any one would do. "Mr. White," juet as any one would do
"Is Mr. Soodgress well ?" I asked.
"Quite well, tbank jon. He will be here before the open is through toattend me home. He oould not stay; he has such a press of busines. not stay; he has such a press of "Tben it is his seat I occopy ?
"Yes, sir",
In & fow minutes I bade her good evening, to return to my seat.
"Good evening, sir," she replied. "I should be happy to have you csll and sea us. I will give rou my address. Why, I have no carde with me! What a blunder! I will wite an addruss on tbe corner of the playbill; that will anawer for sll praotical needs."
Sbe acribbled with her pencil a moment and thrust the playbill into my hand. When I had re turned to my former test I readit. She had written at a furious paee in that hasty "If there till erlare
"If tbere still exlats sny bitternesi in your heart Ia aveoged. Outwardly I am gay, but my luugh mooks the puin of my bureifing beart. Oh, I would glve world could Ilay my head oo your true breat glve works could Ilay my head oo your true breast and cry my self asloep like F litte shild. I cannot see you-dare not have you call. But if you fee.
any kinduens for me, do me this favor: come ofteo
to the opers, and let me look not your to the opert, and let me look upoo your otill dea form. Tbis lo all the happiness that remaine for form. This ls all the happiness that re me on eartb. Can you dony me, Eddie ?"
I raieed my eyes ad glanced towards her. She wheel iceoe-the opera was Flotow's "Marths. But she glanced towarde me,sind raised my ring to her llpe, then let the falr hond flutter down upan I made no sose her throbbing heart.
I made no answering aignal, but the romainder The opera fell unheeded on my ear.
Waa this coquetry ? I querici of my Waa this coquetry ? Iqueried of myeolf. Or did an hourly mask?
I was an idler, and every pight found me st the opera. Each day I thought I rbould not go again; alwaye previed my ring to her lips as if to sxpres her gratitude.
Was sbe only
Was sbe only a ooquetto? How I revolved this question in my mind, and oould not solve it. At last the eeason ended, and I eaw her no more, and was forgetting her again.
One day I received the follo
"EDDR- $I$ am free! Come and aee me to-night, and $I$ will return your ring, for whicb $I$ soon shall and I will return your ring, for whicb I soon shal

Her card was enclosed.
So Snodgrass was doed, was he? And now this woman, sbout to enter society in the role of a fas cinating young widow, wished to divest herself of my friendehip and give me baok my ring and take her own. Did ohe think ahe conid call me atraight to her, as a masterwhistlen to his dog ? I resolved to walt a week or two before puyling my reapeets. But when night came and I atrolled out upon the tepa of my hotel, and presoing on my kids, debated where best to kill the time, a Fifth avenue bus drew up to the curb, and while a passanger ontered the driver lifed bis inger to me. Such idler, and I entered the otage, and left it again at her door.
The servant informed me Mra. Snodgrans was at home to no one, but wben he looked at my card hi manner changed, and he anid
"Ohl would you be kind enough to wait a moHe and a hered me noto a drawing-room. He returned in a minute, and akked me to fol doir, he retired. doir, he retired.
gan to feel something very like chioguat for the boid ness of tbe woman,
The light was dim, and I did not at inrat diacen ojects clearly, for the chamber wes a spacious one. Preaenky I became consclous of the gaze of pair of eloquent eyes from a queenly head whieh rested on a pillow

Sbe ratied her

hesting heart, whlapery arma and folded me to her Eddie! I koew you would camel No, you oball not bresk away. I oan tell you my love now.
Huah! I ean apesk now, for I am dying. Your Huah! I esn apesk now, for I am dying. Your hesd is on my hreast, your heart beate with mine. I am ao happy-so happy I
"Dying ${ }^{\text {I }}$

Wring I could find voice to any 1.sppy!

Her atrength whe gone, and Ifelensly apon the white aheet. I was drawing away, bnt she grasped my hand, od clinging to it, "hispered-oh! how cameatlyDo not leare me!
Ah! blinffal hour of thrilling pain! I ean toll Before.
Before midnight her soul passed to the God who gave lt. Not once had ohe relaxed her hold upon Aod that nigbt I know how mnoh of Bartheos roughton was coquette-how moeh pure woman I ball never forget you, lost Berdile!

EXEMPT.

BY JOMn w. WATeon.
Gran'zather! gran'fathor, hear the good newa ; Papo is exempt from the dreft! They gave him a peper to sbow it
And a mao in o uniform lang Now, gran'fathar, why did the officer lough, And why did papa look so and?
Ho has proren thet he is a month too old,
And it ought to bave made him feel glad.
Why gran'fatherl why do you knit up your brow, Hed his name gene into the drs wing wheel You wouldo't have father to lose ! There's motber, and you, and Nell, and me, We ought to be glad that the low
Has aidg that Han neid that pape is too old to fight, And will let him atay homa from the war."
My boy, wben the shout of the millions arone, To answer the tap of the drum,
And tbe boom of the parricide canoon was heard
To echo the entreaty-'Come l'
here now would we be had the strangth of the laod Unhlus
Unhlushingly gathered aloof?
Our hearths would be drabbled in finnocent hlood,
Where oow wonld the twenty score thousand Who camp on victorioue fielis.
And whers would hava trodden the merciles
Of the traitoroua foeman who yields?
The firat would have bent to tbe stroke of the lash,
解 the but slaves to the slax
And tbe last would have stood with his foot on our necke, Or spurned un
unvept, to the grave.
My boy, whan our homes are in peril aod feor,
And our hearthstones are thratened And our hearthstones are threatened Fith blight,
Fhen Freedom, endangered, is oulling her soon, No man is too old for the fight!
No man is too old for the fight! sod weak,
Hsd God not required their life,
Would have granped the old aword in the glori And been frat battled at Erie, and.Chippewa field,
By the side of a bandful of desth-desling braves, Who followed the footeteps of Scott. We stopped not to think of exemptlon nod home, We knew the invader was nigh,
And every man who went ont to the fight
Wse determined to conquer or dio.

There were many amoog us, my boy, on that day,
That were yeare upon yearn too old, That were years upon years too old, And many exempta by the hand of death,
Who wore left there atark and cold. Who wore left there atark and oold. It was half a century aince, my boy,
And I had juet turned twenty-one;
But the three-ecore years end ten of my raca, But the three-score years ond ten
And battle of life is done.

Exempt! if this crnteh were a musket or sword,
And this armas it was yeafe agone,
By the Lord, but I thiok that some traitorons
Would wish they had never been horn! Exempt! why the thougbt hae put strength in my beart,
My yeare seem a nummer day oong,
Too old who eaye that a man is too ol
As long ss he's willing-and atrong?'

FORT DE RUSSY, LA.

We give a sketch of Fort de Russy, on the Tho gainboate had acoended the river and opened e Ar apon the fort, whloh was heard $10 r$ miles. The lot irlgade (88th and 199th Huinols, soch Todiana and 27 th lowa), $2 d$ hrlgude (14th and $32 d$ Iowa and 24 h Mis lowa), 2 d hrigude ( 11 th and 32d Iowa and 24 h Mige Eourl), then caums np, and at ouco formed fo
 he sothoo beceame severe, the rightug boling manny on tho left and front. The regimente, although on tho left and front. The regimente, although fatigued with a 30 mitlev' mareh, and but two houru' reat, preat reat, preeeed for ward burrledty for the conteet. The rebel force, 3 co strong, after an hour's flgbt, aurren-dered.
Had the fort heen fall? mannod it wonld have boen

LAIRD'S SHIP YARD, LIVERPOOL E.ialish Members of Parllament in our good frith. Ono has jout hoen proved to hare made Bie honse a rendeavone for conspirstori agaluat the Hfe of the Emperor of the Freach, another is no letes nise of the rebele. Who are evdeavoring to overthrow the Governmeat of the United Statef. Our paper to. day contins a skoteb of Mr. Jobo Latrda ahipyard, st Liverpool.

THE WAR IN LOUISIANA.  Battle at Crump's Hum.

On the 2d of April our cavairy, advancing on Shrevopoft, oume npon the rebele, in force, at rosds to Manny and Pleasant hill briocb off, Mefor Buspford, helng lo the sdranve of Lucas'a hrlg vide, skirminhed with the rebetr, who made skirmlohed with the rebete, who made a stand elght timee, hut could oothold thelr gronud. The drat una timee, hut could oot hold their gronad. The Arat Una of our ulirmiahere was dismounted and the socorit mounted. After their repales here the rebaln rettred np tha Manny roud, parkued by Major Bisuford. The mide a

The occupation of alexandria, la Tws capture of the rebel stronghold on the hed its centre of eupplies and rescourceasat Shraveport, Le, and this la now as sulled. Our Artlat, accom: panylog the Red river expedition, tends a sketch of Ale xadria, with Admfral Porter's fleet lyling before it oo the 2rth of March. oo the arth of March.

the first charity fair.

Althojari it is not exactly necessary, in the explanatlon of the N. Y. Anditary Falr, to follow and go haset to the oreation and iovestlgate the aneorice of the chactlo period, still it mas en Cheories of the chasethe period, still it may he interant-tag to this conneston to know who cooceived the igg in this connestion to know who cooceived the Idea of the frot falr menttoned in history for heucrolent parpones. The story resde almost llke s romentic fiotion, hat it it noverthelesas true. It in as follows:
In 1797 the Marquis de Avaza, manager of the Academy of Muatio in Paris-then known an the Commlisnloner of the three mannftecturing ontrablinhmenta carried ou hy the old Government, krowa sa the Gobelta tapesiry, the Serrea ohins and the the Gobelia tapesiry, the Sevrea ohins and the savoulenne carpete. Upon goling to look after his savoulenne carpete. Upon golng to look after bis adistional obarge he found the workahops vicant, and that the workmen had been for two years almout, in a atste of ataryation, whilat the warerooms were foll of rich oarpets, exquile fill of rich oarpete, exquieite painted ohlua and the fineet epecimens of Gohelin tspeetry. Greatly moved at the soene of mi Greanted as th wan with the besutfful prodnothoos, ocotraited
the result of the togenlona and patient the reault of the tagenlosa and patient lasor of the oow atarving operatives, a "luminous ldea," as be oow atarving oporatives, a "luiminous ldea," as be aftervards asid, "burst upon bis mind," thathe would get the conoent of the Minlater of the Interfor to mnike a dlaplay of that rleh and hrilisant collection of ourpats, tapestry and obtnas, to one of the large palnces, whlab all the inanhiltants of Paris should he invited to ceme and taspect, sin speotmens of the
ind eaffilent of thcae costly artloles conld he sold to relifeve the preasing wanti of thosa whoso slifflirelieve the preasing want bends had wrongto them.
Lends had wrongto them,
The coupent of the ministor was obtained, and the humane and enthnaisotic marquife ect to work and humecourent of the ministor whe obtained, and the humane andhaisotic marquils eot to work and got upe moat attractive exhibitioo st St. Chond; hut on the very day it was opened the deopee of the oo the very day it was opened the deopee of the Dlrectory weat forth haniehligg all the nobillty from

he War in loulsiana-commodoris porters fleet before alexandria, m

COTTON IN TEXAS.
Tres occupation of Brownsville by our forces has only silghtily ohecked, not etopped, the rebel trade through Mexco. An arrangement has becu belonged to the rebel government or oniciale, and the reet to private individuala, some 2,000 boles more were on the road from San Antonia, Taxas, nad stril more would be on the wiy were more would be on the way were , it not for the fsat thast sumpient grass oannot he found on the premiges

for oxen, to the hanling
done with male teame
The contribonnde at Matarmarae estimate thast not less than 30,000 halee of cottona will he got out of Texise, through Nrexico (that ist

Negrus, Guerroro, Mier, interasediate pointa on the B hefore the trude is hroken eni only be done elfeetraa vance of oor Ban Antonis.
In
In the meantime, large trai
In with merchandise for the reb pecting to return liden with continually learing Matam
polte continualiy learing Mintam
polnts desiguated on the Grande, and eapecilly for Gruas. The trade thas far ha diverted, not stoppad, diverted, not stoppod, hy the operation ${ }^{n \prime}$-if they can wit operations"- if thoy can wit he sotermed -of the Departs Gulf. The only cautes oper stranatn it are the distarbed Meadeo, and the appreliens? Mexico, and the apprellens there may be a genpral whif
whioh will eange it falligg whice of cotton. it is to he not f few merohants who $w$ for loyal oltizene of the Un
have been, are, and expeot have been, are, and expeot
to be engugod in this trad
and rebels untili it is linully $3 r$ close. After that, and not elt alose. Afer that, and not caloniste on taking the ber Presidenty nmnesty, deemed neceessary,
The piantere in Texis hav the half of their wagons sefzed hy order of Magru were pald for in Gonfedera noch a rate as woold not snoh a rate as woald not 5
the fron uaed to their co They have been mneh diat thls and other matters, sequence have planted no sequence have planted no only carn enongh to prodic themselves, their families Confeder ate paper, whend it Ia Texse, and It has loug. current in the valieg of the gues at three eenta per folla
The rebcls are istd to he depnt for Gonfederate est Antonlo, with the design o wilh permits to export it ons as wili take the rikk through Mexico. They ha through Mexico. Thoy hav ugene eatabilished a enston have Laredin, Mr. Xuthum, late Laredin, Mr. Kathum, late alnce C. Soliector at belog their colloctor at that

Gneprero, Mier, and other late pointion on the Rto Grande), ante pointa on the Rto Grandes), e trade is hroken up, suá that be dons effectandy hy an ni, our forete from Indianola to our forets from Indianola to acantime, large trains freighted chandiss for the rehela, and ex-0 return toden wthe cotton, are uy leaving Motamorns for the endganted on the Upper Rto nd seppenally for Plodras Ne. ner

the harp and the poet.

my manget trevol.

Try mind, before it woon the harp, But an it passee through the strings, Thrills into music there.
E'en to the poet'm sonl converts The conmon thlugs that round us lie Into a glorious world Divinest harmony!
Smeet harp and poet! frawed alike
By God an His interpreters,
To bresthe alond the silent thought of everything that atire.
Of everything that atirs.

The Gulf Between Them.

ofaptra $\mathbf{x x y m f}$.

Trgy were all going ont to dine that day, and when Elirateeth oxme dominno the Burary, aressed, she fonnd her husbind sitting mooilly over whe fire. He looked up as she entered, and it seemed to him that he had ievor olie ver with falle of delicate hnoe drees was plot, reile ned arms look still whiter; her that mair mes decorated with jewels, and her brilizant dreas and lorelinesss seemed to light the dull room as she entered. The constant excitement which the was undergoing during thore days leat a rioh orimson to her oheeke and a strange lustre to her ejes: ahe looked restless. Tbis eplendid beauty eyes: , whe looked restless. This oplendid beauty Was vey unike the oaim lovespened as he watched her approasch.
her appromed. It him that her first impnles was to flae wben she saw him sitting there, but it so the denie was quiokky controlled, and she osme no to the hearth, atanding to near him that the folds of her dreess brubhed his arm
"You are rendy too," she ssid. "Goodnens knows how long we hhall have to walt for Rysie end knows how long we Mrs. Harriugton ! $!$

 Tast lasbee.
ose
arb

"Are you unwell, Grantligy" she aaked

 length."Oh! no; quite well"", "You aro so silen", and you sit there in such a dreary way, I feared womething was the matter." Ho made an eff in in thith the heavy, heavy the oppression had lain there all day.
"I am only stupid," he replied, with an attempt at playffalnees. "I have heen forced to talk so inoesanntly to those people that I have no ideas left."
"I am sura oonversation with people in general doeen't consume one's idear," she said, with a lightness rhich-oppeared slmost as forced as his.
"How long does Mrs. Harrington atay ?
"How long does Mra. Harrington stay"" he anked.
"Only till to-morrow. You don't like her, I fanco ?"
"There to too much of her in every way," he asid, peevishity; "she dresses too mueb, taiks too maid, peevibhiy; "she" mueh
she tires one."
"That in very oruel and ungrateful; the lidy confided to me only a littls while ago that the had s profound admiration for yon, and was dying get up a firtation with you il $I$ did not mind." "Don't repeat such nonsense," he siad, almont rudely, "you krow how 1 hate it. 1 think either the married man or woman who firts deserves to the maverely punished ss it he or she had committed an actmal crime.
"I am afrid you would condemn the grenter part of our sequaintance," ehe said. "After all, with most women it arises only from thoughtle with most women it arises only from thoughtlessness, nine times out of ten."
"Thonghtlessaness "" he repeatod satirically. "I can only say that the woman who endungers her can only say that the woman who endangers her husband's peace from want of thought la more oulpable in my mive than a perzoon tho does wrong
 "I have never thought about it," ihs sald; "it may be so."
She was playing with her braceleta agiin; the action reminded him of the loatt trinket. He did not, speake, but a restrained pansion broke overt his herolving in her mind had tho seen or undertood

It was too lato!
At that moment Flisie came danolng into the iike a dolond, her hair hair wreathed with flowers, and everything about her so pure and ethereal that it neemed almost as if the must breatho somo more joyous ait than the pain-freighted atmosphore which weighed so heavily on otherc. She was holdin her childith way, oxolaiming :
"I have found something I Whoill give a re"t is!"
Mellen's face had brightened a little at ter enrrance, but as she spoke a sudden thought Ehook is aoul like a tempesi.
Oh, guess, guess ${ }^{\text {! }}$
"Oh, guess, guess""
"Bute I never onn guess,", she replled, zeeming enter into the eport of the thing "You try, Grant. Come, do oredit to your Yankee descent $1^{\prime \prime}$
He rose suddenly and stood looking foll in his wife's face, fixiug her glanoe with a qulck thrill of terror, which the least thing unurual in his manne Enused her now.
Eluit was not notcing them; she was daneing
ap and do ma before the henrth, exclaimiug: up and down before the hearth, exclaimuiug:
"Oh1 yon provoking thing

Now do gues
have found."
have found "
Mellen'
face. "Have yon found Rlisabeth's brocelet ?" he asked in a tone which made the anhappy woman sbiver from head to foot, and startled Blaie out of her playfalness.
"Why, how did you think of that t" demanded Eluse; "did she tell you f Have you - Sno " stopped short, the words frosen on her 1 i Sne stopped short, the words frosen on her lipo by the look which Grantley Mellen still fixed upon by the look whitch Grantey Mellen still dixed upo his wife. Without ohanging that stoady gaze he his wize. Without ohanging the extended his hand towarda Elsie.
"Give me the braeelet!" he sald, in the cold, hard tone which with him was the euro forerunner Elempest of pasion.
Elole heelitated; she had grown nearly an pale a Elizabeth hereelf, but ehe looked only liko a tright ened ohild. Elisibeth did not spenk or move, but ened ohild. Elixabeth did not epenk or move, buu though her face wis aboolutely deathitike her oyes though her face wis absolutely deathike her met her husband's wifh unfinobing frrmness.
"Give me the bracelet ${ }^{1}$ " Eepstited Mellen.
"Here it is 1 " exelaimed Elsise, nervounly, putting the trinket in hial hand. . whike a fass shout. I found the bracelet amiong a lot of rubbish in ono of Beassie's dramers-I sup. pose she forgot it was there.
Grantley
Mellen turned furi
Grantley Mellen turned furiously tomerds her.
"Are yon learning to cheat and tio aloo?" "Are cried.
Elisie
Blicic burst into a pasmionste flood of tears. the moaned. "You ought to be ashamed to talk eo to me! I hoven't done anything; I thought you would be bo pleased at my haring found the brace let, and here you behave in this way. You needn' blame me, Grant-I don't know what it all meenns I am sure your dear mamman never thought you would epeak to net like that! $\mathbf{I}$ wish $I$ was dead would eppeak to nee like that! I wish I was des and buried ho her-then you'd be eorry "

"I am not angry with you, esild," interrupted Mellen, aoftened at oace by thast childiahh appeal Galeehood and the thro. God! at least my own hood has not turned traltor Elizabeth sank Elowly in a chair; Etsle atole on rightened look towards her, then the woman in her confusion and dizrinees anw her float out of the room, and she was slone with her husbund. Ho shaking so that the jewela fiushed halefully in the | shaking |
| :--- |
| u Y |
| ligh |

Your plan was oarried out too late; you should anve had it found before?" he eaid, effort at vel-control was smpt tway.
She must हpeak-must try to to tem the tide, keep back a little longer the exposure and ruin Which for days hack tome mysterious warning ha made her feel was surely approachíng.
"I don't know what you mean," she said. "You heard Elesie cas that mhe found the bracelet-
"Where you put it?" interupted Mellen. "Why should I have hidden it? What
-hy, should I have hidden it? What rea
"stop ", he broke in. "Not another word-no et bigle fasechood more1 You brought thie trace let hack with you from the city- jon't speak-went to the pswbroker's-it had just been taken amay."
In the
In the whirl of that unhappy woman's senses the words seemed to come from afar off; the lighta were danoing before her cyes; the flashing gems bilinded her with their rays, but ehe still oontrolled horself
She mnat make one last effort-she must discover how much of the truth he knew-there might this time be some loophole for esoape - some effort by which ehe could avert a little longer the coming Which ehe could avert a little longer the coming eaxthquake.
"Why don"t you speakt" he cried. "Say anything another lie if you will thing -another lie it you will-anythiug rathe than thie black truth! That man; you know than thie bl ack truth him! Spenk, I sny 1 "
"What man " "the faltered.
let, he got it from you! . He bad the brace let; he got it from youl Explain, I say-ex "I never geve the bracelet nway," she esid, desperately. "I have no explanation to make. I desperately. "I have no explanation to make.
will never open my lps while you tand over $m o l$ in that threatening wiy",
"Will you defy me to the laat?" he exclesimed.
You oan only kill me," she moaned; "do and let me have peace!"
crying out:
"I have loved you so-that I should find you calse!"
"What do you eurpeot?" she demanded. What do you know?"
The momentary weal
The momentary weakness passed; he atood np "I ain cold and stern.
"he hands of a bad, "that this bracelet was in the hands of a bad, wicked man; that only yesI find it in your possenilon."
There was a hope; only by nnother deoeption another lie; hut she must save herself; while there wae a thread to grasp, at she could not allow herself to be awept dowu the gatherieg atorm. And is there no possiblity thas I may be an anonymous letter, telling me I an find bracelet by payiog a oertain remard, is it not natural that I should go? Knowing your strange lisposition, is it not equally natural that I should keep the whole thing a eecret, and try to make very one believe that the bracelet had been every on "Io this true ?" he cried. "Can you prove to ne that you epeak the truth?"
Sho whe not looking at him; the apathy of desalr whioh eame over her looked only like sullen bastinnoy.
"I oan prove nothing," she sald; "if it were posslble I would not try. Do what yon whes believe longer."
Mellen turned away, and walked up and down the room in silence. There was a fearful struggle in his mind; the love he still felt for his wife wis. ontending against the horrible doubta in his sou and al mont threatening his reason with thei

He could not tell what to think or how to aot For the moment of least he was glad to grasp at any pretext whioh might prove a sort of eettlement t he que on fler refeotion He looked agein at Etixn he iofitated him almost to a th; her stony oslm muoh excited to peroeive that her very quie Fus the apathy of despsir; it ceemed to him that he was only trying her power over him to ite full xtent; if her story was true she would die rathe han humble her pride by protestation or proof; il was fuise! There wae deoeit somewhere, he fell chat; Elizeveth had hsen guilty of anything that affected his honor; that wae a black thought which had not reached him yet.
-"Are
claimed.
Sisery ad both hends with strange gesture of nd could hnmiliation which he did not notloe, nd could not have undran
"What have I done ?" she oried. "What have "anid?"
"Nothing
"ot speak."
"It is useless to say anything," she returned;

"quite useless."

"And you expect me to leave this matter here;

endure this raystery patiently "I expect nothing--nothiug"

The same dreary, desperate wail pervaded her oice, hut was not ar or indifference; mistook her intensity of the sgony she was enduring made he appear thus.
"You won't explain-you Fon't-
She drooped her head wearily.
"I have no explanation to make; there is the
He caught up the bracelet, snatehed her arm so rudely, and fastened the braoelet on it with auch reckless haste, that she uttered a faint cry of pain.
"You hurt mo," she exclaimed; " this is cruel, ummanly." "mo," che cachimen; "this lo crue "Wear look at it he cried; "wear it, and when you between my heart and yours! Wear it, and senember how yon have perjured yourself; how your whole oonduct aince my retorn has been a lio, and if you have any shame or pover of re.
pentanco left the gems will burn into your very Eoul when yon look at them.
He rushed out of the room. She wand white. He rushed out of the room. She was not conshe sat there clasping her forehead between hor hands, and seeming to see the whole world reel into darkness before her gaze.
"Has he gone ; where lis he?"
"Has he gone; where is he?"
It was Elsie's voice; she had atalen into th
coom to learn how the matter had ended.
"Can't you speak, Beasie; what did he say ?"
Elizabeth dropped the bands from hor face, and

rose from her seat. . No matter what

I told yon it would; the end ls coming!"
told yon to wouid; the end ls coming!"
"Don't look sol" oried Bleie, "you trighten
"Frighten!" she repeated in a bitter tone.
"You haven't soul enough in your bosom to be frightened."
"Oh, you cruel, wicked creature!" sobbed Enie. "Oh, oh! I'll kill myself if yon talk so to me; I'li go to Grant; I'll-" will say no more! I don't blame you-remember that! Whatever comes, I won't blame you for this new danger."
" Oh , you good darling!" eried Eleie, drying her teare at once.
She made a step forward as if to throw her arm about her sister, but Rllysbeth retrested
"Don't touoh ine," she eald, frintly; "don't tonch mel"
" tonch mel I
"Shonld I poinon you ?" oried Elsie, angrily
"No, no; don't bo some dreadful reptile."
"No, no; don't bo angry! I need all my atrength! Let me alone, Elsie; don't speak to " The oarriage is at the door," gaid Elsie, "an Mrs. Harrinon is waiting; for merey'o sake don't let her think anything is wrong. I am going to let her think anything is wrong. I am going to find Grant; wait here."
She ran of the
She ran out of the thinking of her words.
Very soon perhaps the whole world would know that she was a loat, ruined woman, without a home a friend, or even a name.
Could she bear np; could ahe find strength to go on to the end ?
The hardnes
The hardness and desperation died out of hes face; she sank on her kneess, and a prayer for help rose to her lips; low and faint, but bearing th intenslty of her innermosts soul. - She heard steps in the hall; they were ooming for her. She sprang to her feet, moved toward the door and opened it; her hubband, Elsle anartheir guest were there. She anawered Mra. Harrison's gay words; passed on with them through the hall, and took her misery out into the world as we all do so often, hidden oarefally from every
ege. At diuner that day Elizabeth met two or three superior people from the eity, men and women of note, whose presenoe at the board was like meteor note, Fhose pling everything wlth brillianoy, hut fashes kindling
amot among the most oheorfal and most witty she shone forth prominent. Evary word she spoke earried eleotrio fire with li. Her oheeks were searlet; hor eges were rsdiant. The lips that had been so pals in wer hneband's presence a fer houre hefore in her hneband's presence a few houre hefore glowed like ripe cherrios with the sunghing apon them. In her desperation she wne inapired.

chapton rixx.

Imargontely after bieakfast the next morning heir vialtor retarned to the oity, perhapes glad to the house, oertsinly mnoh to the relief of all the inmates of the dwelling. Grantley Mellen drove silway train, and an soon as they had departed Rlizabeth and Elsie, as if by a oommon impulse, atorted in a different direotiou, apparently anxious not to be left alone with each other.
Ahout an hour after Elsie was passing through the hall when her brother drove up to the door. She stopped him after he got out of the carriage for a few moments' trifing conversation, then allor a few moments' trifiling conversation, lowed hinu to piss on towarde the library.
She danced baok towards the verandah, saw old Jarvis Benson approaching the house, and hurried out, orying:
"Oh, Jarvis, I wanted to see yon."
Jsrvis took the pipe out of his mouth, regarded her complacently and answered
"Then thar's & pair on yon, Mise Mellen."
"I want to have a pair of very light oars made

pursued Elsie.

"That's oasy done," asid Jarvis. "I guess I've got a pair that'll answer. Only don't drown your-
"I'll take eare of that," she replied, Inughing
"Bnt who else wante you, Jarris ?"
"Your hother told me to oome up, and-oh, "Your hrother told me to oome up, and-oh, there he is."
Mr. Mellen
Mr. Mellen had heard their voioes, and oume through the hall out on the verandah.
"Good-morning, Javis l" he sald, in his quist
"Gy. Good.morning, sir! You don't look very wall, think," ohserved the keen-sighted old man. Etsie glanced at her brother; he was very pals, nd hia heavy eyes told a long, eleeplessnight.
Mr. Mellen frowned allghtly; it dlspleased him o have his personal appearance commented upon, wounded his pride to know thst he had not suffihe anxiety and trouble he wat endurlng
"Be you well ?" continued the pertinaclous old man, who had a hablt of expreasing his opinion with the utmost froedom to people of every degreo.
"Perfectly well," replied Mr. Mellen. "You "Perfectly well," replied Mr. Mellen.
"asve come up ahont that tree, have you i"
"Wal, yes," said Jarvis. "I hadn't muoh to do "Wal, yes," said Jarvis. "I hadn't muoh to do this morning, eo I thought Id come np. Yon this morning, eo I thought
"No; I have sent to town for one. You have ufficieut knowledge, so I want you to keep tha greenhouse in order uatil one is found."
"Just as you say, sir; I'll do my best."
The gardener had seen ft to leave the place a falw daya before without the elightest warning, vith the ruo, recikless indopendence of the Hiberaian race. When a dilemma of this kind arose the people of the neighborhood were in the habit of sending for to hene acquized smattering of knowledge shout to have acquired a smattering of knowiedge about everything that oould make him generally ueful about a house.
Elaio did not feel partionalaily intereated in the akject of conversation, and was floating away in search of other amurement, when she heard old Jarvis any: big cypiess yonder, in the thioket,
"It's the big an't She stopped short in the hall, and stood leaning againgt the door with her back towards them. dyiny. I want you to diz about the roota and soo if you oan find out the oause."
"Loosening the earth a hit' 'll maybs do a worl o good," said Jarvis; "I've seen it 'liven a tree ight up."
"We will try, at all svents," observed Mr. Mellen.

Afur a time Elizabeth shook hersilf free from Elrie't grspe and rose ; the power to think and act Elinie' grasp and rose;
"Yon heard them syy this"" she akked.
"Yea, yes" "ried Elaie. "Grant eent for old Jarvis to come up and dig round the tree ; he think it is dying," Eliszbeth threw up her arms with a more expressive of agony than a hriek
more expressive of ngony than a shriek.
"It bas come at hat!" broke from ber
"t bas come at hast"" broke from ber white lipe Slait comered down Elait cowered down apon the sofa and buried he nora from bead to foot, and nittoring repressed nobs.
"Exposure-ruin-diggrace 1 " moaned Rlizsbetb is if repeating worda that some secret voice whis pered in ber ear. "It bas come at last1 It hat come at hast!
"I shall di
"!hall die!" shrieked Blaie. "I shall go mod!"
She beat the conoth wildy witb her clenohed bnt this time Elizabeth made no effort to soquar ber; ehe stood there, cold and whito, repeating a intervala, In that dismal mhisper
It bss come at last! It bas come at last!" "Do something," moaned Elaie, between be sobs. "Don't stand tbere an if you were turriang to stome. Think of eome way to stop them." "What can I do F " rêturned Elizabetb. "I to ou it bae come! I knew it would Eisie gave anothet shriek and eprang off the sofs, threw berself at her sieter's fetst, olutching be Iress with her hands, and orying, brokenly: "Do Eometbing-anytbing! I ehall go crazyny brain is burning! I mon't live 1 tell you I ont ive if yon don't stop this.'
Bliz beth sbook off ber grasp, not nngrily, not prestion, as if Elsie's despair bad brought back ome halffargotton resolntion and given ber ort of atrengtb once more.

"You will not Enffer," ehe enid, drearily. "You | resasfe." |
| :--- |
| "But $y$ |

he girl. "Let go my dress-get up, Elslet See, I am
alm. I tell you, no harm mill come to you-get Blste ataggered to her feet, and sat down on the ofa mith a burat of tears
"I'd ratber kill myself than gee you tormented ar ahe cried. II bave the poison yet in $m y$ oom-lve always kept in if they don't stop, lizazbeth, they Eball fand us dead and cold-"," ficked wordsin is mine-all mine ; but I don't talk of kill ing myeelf."
Y poor, 0 brave, moaned Elisie, "and I am acb a poor, weak thing. Oh, oh! This will hill "I know what will bappl eth, in a voice of unnatural to me," said Elisare gone I shail bay driven out of this hewo houra rained roman."
"No, not Grant will forgive yon-he loves you
"Does a man ever forgive ?"
But yon will say you don't know-I will. Are you a baby? Don't you know there will to give evidence."

We will say anythiog-anything !" oried Blsie. Wo cannot satisfy Grantley Melien. I tell yon, in his house."
Elssie fung herself down in renewed spasmas, thrieking and sobbing so violently tbat nothing could be done or thought of till she had been restored to compoaure by the strong remediee Elizaeth administered.
"Promise not to tell that I ever knew of it," she apped. "S Frear! IU kill myelf it you don't" hollow voice. "I will bear whatever comes-ruin, death-and bear it alone.
Those words so solemnly spoken appeared to "ive the girl new lifo and energy.
"Go downataira," she naid; "
"Go downstirra", she naid; "stop them. You
"How stom yet.
How-what oan I eay" H "
of till spring-bribe old Jervid the tree must be hing, anything; only try, Elizabeth. Save youreiff if possible.
The woman walked to the Findow and peered ut between the curtains.
"Tbey are there," she sald; they are going."
"Go down P" blrieked Elsie. "Go down, ay!" Elizaheth took a few steps towards the dooraught sight of her face in the mirror, and stopped "Look at me," she axid; "my face tellis the "hole story
"There is some rouge in that drawer," sald
Elgie. "Mrs, Harrington loft it. I'll pat it on four cbeeks."
She could think now that Elizabeth abowed herelf ready to bear her danger alone. She got out the rouge, rabbed it on
"Now you look like yourself-nobody would otice. Go qulok-stop them-top them!
Blizabeth dared not pause an iostant for reflection the opened the door, walked downstairs, threugh he liurary, and joioed ler busband on the lawn. He turned at her approsob. Sbe folt a mad sort courage nerve her-the could speak now. preas ? ${ }^{n}$ ahe asked, and even in that moment of sopreme agony and fear sbe was consoiones of a "ague wonder ht the composure of her volce.
going to
roota." cth; "it is suo tante in the season.
"I did not know that you were a gardener," be aid, co:dy.
He looked at her ntanding there with that unnatural brigbtnens on ber cbeeke, that wild gliter ome out in her beauty and unconcerm to mock bim after the long night of wild tronble whicb he had Epent.
He tho wat io what Jones ssid," sbe went on Kine, hut not now
He was turning away-that antion deprived her of all self-control-she cangbt his arm, crying
He stopped and loned don't go near lt.
nent; she asw the danger in whioh ber impetuosity had plsced her-dropped his arm and tried to sppear composed again.
"What is the matter witb yon?" he seked.
"Tbe tree is not a human beling tbat $I \mathrm{am}$ going a sasassinato."
Sbe forced her
Sbe forced herself to laugh; even then the woman's self-msatery was nomething- astounding.
"I was a little theatriosl," she said "b "I was a little tbeatrion," she said
"Why, marm, it'll die if it aint," put in Jarris, who considered that he had been eilent quite long nough.
"You don't know anything about the matter!" cried Rlinabeth, sbarply.
The old man drewhimaclf up, and looked so in jgnant that the felt sure he would oppose ber ow with might and main.
"I mean," abe added,
"I mean, obe added, "you don"t know bow
Tbe old man relinquisbed his croct attitude. looked somewhat mollifed.
"If it'e yer whim, mar'm, tbat's another thing but I thought I'd lived too long in this neighborhood for anybody to necuse me of not knowing a hing when I pretended to, eapecially about trees."
"Ob, no, no" interrupted ehe; "I sl "Ob, no, no," interrupted ehe; I slwaye eay "bat you are a universal geni"
"Wul, I do' know about that," said Jarvis, his race beaming all over with eatiefsction, for remark. ble as he was, the old man wis peculiarly suseaptuble to flattocry.
"Then you won't touoh the trea ?" oried Elizabeth, turning again towards ber hus band. Mr. Mellen had been watehing her while she he thought that abe only wished to interfire un warrantably with his lesat plan or wieh.
wisught that
"Yon will leave the tree till spring i" sbe con-
"I sball bave the earth loosened," he answered, I don't chcose to sarifice the tree to a mere "It is
"It is not a caprice," she exclaimed, forgetting erself once more in ber excitement. "I ask you "to touch "it-I beg you not to."
"Might I ayk the reason of your extraordinary "onduct 7" he began; then remembering old Benson's presenee, ohecked himself quickly, "I think it the best thing for the

ded.

"Bnt. Jones said not ; he ougbt to know."
"I fancy be said tbat to arold the work."
"I fancy be said that to avold the work."
"No, no! In the spring you oan do it -not now
"By spring it will be too late; the earth must be

ug away now.

Sbe olasped her hands under her shawl-she re-Shd-for a day, at least.
She looked out towards the tree-the lower part of it was hidden, where they stood, by a thicket of arubs and bushea, bnt the stately top towered up ark and eoiemn, Waving in the morning breeze and seeming to whisp
"Not to-day,"
His suspicious mind, so wildly on the alert since aroused by the singular carnestness and trouble of her manner.
There was another secret1 It was no desire to ontradict him which acturod her-there was and-a hand-a new phase of the miystery with whioh be arrival, and which during the paet went of had gathered and darkened so rapidly.
"Leare the tree at lesat to-day," repeated Elisabeth.
"I can't kend for Jarvis to do work and put him off withoint a reason," he sald; "he has plenty of "rik on his hands."
Id man joined in. "'tain't no Misa Mollen," the old man joined $\ln$; "'tain't no une to put it off-anyhow I oouldn't come agin till the lant of the
"Let it go till then," she sald, eagerly; and a new life stole over her face at the bare hope of ob-
"This is sheer
"This is sheer folly," anid her hnsband. "Go in-go in. Yon will catoh cold-the grase is damp. Come, Jarvis, get your apside."
"It won't hart the tree a sald he; "don't feel oneasy abont Miss Mellen," He mored if it was a baby.
He moved away as he apoke, and left the hue and and wife togetber. Eilzabeth was pale even tarough her artificial bloom-no matter what he chought she must ebtein some delay.
"Grantley," she cried "

Grantley," she cried, "don't touch the tree-I ank it as a havor-you will not refuse-let it go.
He gave one look at her face and turned his head away to hide the expreaslon of anger and doubt which he felt was in his own.
"Can you ive sur real it-let the tree alone for a day or two A ficree pastion shook Mellen like a sndden tempest. His firat impnlee was to drag ber into the bouse and foroe from ber lipa the searet and the bouze and foroe from ber lipa tbe serret and the myatery #hieb surrounded ber, but he contho nyetery mhile surround the impulte and said:
troll
"As yon plesse. and will leave it for the present."
He walked yway from her, and Blisabetsent back into the honse. Sbe had to rest a feem momente in the library; ber limbs were ahaling so that the conld not stand. Sbe was roused by the old Benson-be might oome in and find her there. old Benson-bo might oome in and find her there.
She started np like a woonded animal that conSene started np like a wornded animal that concentates its dying strength in one wild effort for caspe-burried from the room and up the stairs.
Klaie was atill lying on the eofa in the ohamber ; "Will he leave it?" she oried. "will he leave
"Yes, he has promised."
Elicsbeth sank in a chait, regardless of the questions she pourred out, so pitiable an object in herart of thent it might evea havc noftened the "Sared again "" cried Btrie "Don"
Beusie-it will all end dibbi"
"Saved!" repeatod Elisrbeth, in a tone of mantal terror. "Have you thought what mnast be dono bir very nightir Blaie gare a-ry and hid her faco.
"Be still"" suid Elizaboth "I will do it-be "Be still""
"Do
"Don't let me know-don't tell me-1 sbould die of frightl"
"Think of night-alone with that", where can "In the
it Elie interrupted ber with another cry and her old appealing wail.
"You are killligg me! You are killing me!"
"Be still," repsated Elizabetb, in the eame "Be still"," repented Elizabeth, awful volee." "I will do i -be atill !"

hyter xxx

Mrlezv set old Benson about some other duties and went into the library. While be stood at one of the widodowe, looking gloomily out on the attumn handanp, he heatd the volees of Door and bl splaster mamoratain the area below.
Clo asked " atkod.
He's afeared tte deceasin',', replied 'Dolt, pompously, "and he wishes to. pervent."
"Don't come none o' yer furrin lingo over me,", said Clorinds, angrily. "Can't yer say what he" grine to do in good, decent Englisb, widont ang dem dern outlandish Spaniah 'preesions."
"Twarn't Spanisb, lubly one," "asid 'Dolf, greatly delighted at we eifeot bis grandino quenti nguago had produced. "Sometimes I I do 'duge in far amay tongues jist from habit; it's trabeling to away tongues ji .
much, you know.
"Don't kno mothin' aboutit and don't interrupted Clorinda. "Ef yer can't answer a olvil question as it ontar to be, ger nesdn't stay
"Don't be raragerous," returted Dolf. "Any question ob yours it is $m y$ deligbt to answer, only propose it."
"I does, plainly enougb. What's marster gwine "Hane to a iser to a more simple deming it 'feared it'" dying."
Mellen was juat goling to order them away from tbat part of the house-the veriest trife irritated Him now-when Clorindn's next words made him
"I wikh he'd her lt dug up by de roo
enid "I do 'lieve dat ar tree is hauntod"
"Hid; "I do 'lieve dat ar tree is hauntod"" "Haunted!" screamed 'Dolf, who poseesed a What doees yer mean, Miss Clorindy ${ }^{7}$
"Jhat "Jea' what I say," replied she sharply; "I aln't one ob de kind dat tittervates up my woris till they haint got no sense lef."
"But I never heerd of a haunted tree,", said Dolf, gainingnew courage an heremembered that it wat broad dayllght. "Haunted houses I've heerd on in plenty; bat a tree.

Oh, mebby yer don't know eberyting yet 1 " said Clo, ${ }^{\text {vaiounily. }}$ had been Clo' had been rather rhort with her lover of into, toris, whioh she had interrupted.
"Do tell me what yer mean, Clorindy," ploaded Dolf, his eyes fairly starting out of hit heed with euriosity.
"Oh, mebby you'd bettergo to Vic," she retorttd, eho't a heap outer dan what I be. I ain't coffee colored, Tise oniy a nigger.
"Now, Mles Clorindy!
"Now, Mles Clorindy !" oried 'Dolph, recing that thie was an occasion when that thie was an occation when fintery and no jer's de mout charming ob yer aex
"Don" know nothin' ob de sort," said Clo'. "I kint fility and filghty abont like some folke; bat, any how, I ain't fool enongh to put all my wages on my back. I guess marster oud tell what Irve got in Tbat allusion to her golden charmamado 'Dol quito forget the youthfol graces of Victoria; he "Yer's de pearl ob de creation l" he orled tbusiaationlly.

Mellon stamped bis foot paesionatoly, furiona with their nonsense, aphralding hiroself that he revelation ซbich Clorinda ovidently had to make. After a little more persuasive eloquencetd re "But de tall mor completely, 'Dolph said: "No," enid Clorinda, myitariously; " It'z one ob dem tinga as ia best not talked about. I don't rum and tell all I sees and hears",
"Jis' confide in my buzzom," exid 'Dolt, ter derly.

Men is so duberouz," simpered Clorindh.
"Yer known Pre de most faithfal and conatanc ob my sect," oried 'Dolf. "Yer may speak fresly to me." " F ."

I'spose yer'd eay de sme to Vic."
"Neber, Mies
gling girl-don't tink it!"! What, dat silly, gigHis persuations mat with their reward at leat, and when he pleaded again:
baunted "ell me what yer means 'bout de tree beip'

She

she yiilded to his flattery and her feminine desire to tell all that she bad seen or imagiced, em in her kind. "Mek the snid, in the tone of a person trying to be oes," in ber recolleotion of events.
" Wbat was ?" aried 'Doll, fmpotiently, "de hauntin'?
"Ef Im gwine to tell you my atory PII do it lin my own way," exidd Clorinda, majestioanly. "I begs pardon for do 'xuption. Jis' go on, eveetois Mies clop."
"I telle yer dar's been somethin' agoing on in dis house," purbued Clorinds. "Dat ar braetet losing was all of a pioce wid what went afore Miosus was and Missus mas arfful mad at me for baying so, but I don't care. She's very queer-stuok up liks Tbere's Miss Elisie, eweet allera a a young kitten thing in order to "Afore eten tat ting we heart or her mystery. bouse in de dead ob de night man and manl"
"God be gracious I" cried 'Dolf.
fire a sad de toothache, and ben downto de kitoher me. I was gwine up the beck awful siok it made stepa in de hall. I Iooked backotsire, when I beerc voman plain. I had de candle in my band. sar ceobed right out, and ahut my eyes, and let d candlo fall. When I opened 'em ant and come out of her room, wid a ahavi over her and Iamp in ber hand.

Marcb hare.

and lilled her 'bout the man and moman, Whar be do y y ace

bot un.' " ${ }^{2}$ Tw

"'Twan't no nae to asy nothin', abe flew off into one ${ }^{\circ}$ her tantrums, and scolded me bike all pos "But io dat all Y" qnestioned 'Dolf, in a disap. " No, it aln't all; jia'" wait and don't go off handle sfore you knows whioh end you've got hold on "But de tree, Clorindy," sald 'Dolt; "tell me "I'se comi.
again. "I'd ben down to tee Domine growing eager meetin' and I kindas forgot my ; welf in do sefrceshin' - "Yes," sald 'Dolf fearful sbe would go of in :
long digression and lose sigbt of the allimimortant topic, "dey is reffreshin'; as preserves is tode tast "0 is meetin"s to de spirit-soothin', yer know"

 o to take de path trough de Clorinda broke off abruptyy to recovers hee breath and to allow her narrative to have its full effeot

THE PHOTOGRAPHER OF LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN. Nor long after the battle of Lookout Mrountaln one of oor srtite, not preent at the buthe, srtuete, net vieited the spot, on his way from viek Misatueippi, aud ascondllag to rube the apot micre the rebetap of long ma their Hag maving and their cannon thundering at Chantanoogn,

EXPLOSION OF MERRICK and sons' iron foundRY, Philadelphia. Never periaps have fires sud explotions come more rapialy than within the laft few wonthr. The detraction of Colty frectory, the fire at Glowcenter, and otherti the fire at Gllaceenter, and otherd
to othar parta, have crowded fast

 Frderal hatreat on the south, send power, at the wettern end of the deata of mr wa. p. poetse, ter phonograpler.GEETCH BY A. HGOWSEX, MOPCORAPHOAL ENGDEER

 Betmoun wivituin

HEAD WATERS OF THE TECHE:
The Teche, one of the most beautifil of the Louistan hayons, commedere in St. Landry and flows through a rich and remantlo country, now onnhappily into Achafalaya Boyon, rear Lithe Chetimaches. Our Artist, while proceedshg from one memorethle point to unother, Ene iketohed the polnt to another, Eyo aketohed the hend watart of the Teehe for ell their charming heanty. charming heanty.

Grranima Leavrs.-It is not generally known that the leavee of geraniumn are an excel lent opplucation for cute, wher lent epplication for euta, wnere
the &kin in ribibe off, and othor wound of that Kind. One or twa Found of that Kidd. One or twa Yonver onuat he hruspe and ap.
pled on lnam to the part, and the wound will hecon
very ehort time.

PM LDVE'S TINY Child to-day.
-
Harm! the bellis of joy are ringing, Hope once more illumei my way, Smeety sad my heart is singing, Sunbe moms yow more brizht to-doy; Nsture moves to groceful musie, Zephrs
Eport
with feathery spras Zephyrs sport with feathery sproy,
Oh, my heot is eflly breatbing, I'm love's tiny child to-doy;
$\mathrm{Ha}_{\mathrm{a}}^{\mathrm{h}} \mathrm{h}$, ha, he, ha, Im love's ing child to-day.
Freedom fingn itt rooy banner Oer my heart eo light and gay, Bound no longer. free and dill
Thro' the wrodrand I will efry; That! the birdingss ao they worble, Thro' the branches lightly play, Oh, my heart to ooftly brenthing, I'm love's tiny child to day ;
$\mathrm{Ha}, \mathrm{ha}, \mathrm{ha}, \mathrm{ha}, \mathrm{ha}$, $\mathrm{r} m$ love's tiny child to-dsy.
Rippling streams, and flowers blooming
Fling their fragrance fir and near, And they win us to their wooing, With a welcome rich and clear;
Heed the joys they eatiter o'er us,
As they greet the rooy day,
Oh, my heart ie sottly breathing,
Im love's tiny ohild to. day;
I'm love's tiny ohila to.das ${ }_{H a}$, ha, ha, ha, ha, Ha, ha, ha, ha, has I'milove's tiny child to.day.
$A$ BATCE OF wHats.
What word may be pronouhoced quicker by uddiog

 froce that le forbladeng.
What wood make me wood wit hird le the greatest friend to ngricultariste 1

tree, What day $\operatorname{in}$ the month of the year la a cemmand to go ghead preverts the rumning river from : anoing away Why ivs tied ap hest motive for traveling what the tooritet ring. What

Company. tbat whlch belonge to yourself, yet Ls uece

 on reecelot of fremp FREDERICK BLUME, 205 Bowery, N. x.
The Most Popular Tales Published ! Brady's " MEercury" stories.

THE ROUND PACE:
By De, J. H. Robisoos. 1 Hurtrated by Daruey. Illuminuted Cover, 1 Price 25 Cente
Malled, free of p patage, on recelpt of pilce.

Whickors producod in Threo Weeks by Artillery Balges.

 Co. and Regrimed
handsomely
ed theroon

 Atso Co. Plus Hid Corps Bodges worm the Army
O. 2. BALCE & 00 ..

208 BROADWAY, N. Y.
Carriages.

FURNIMURB, FURNIHURF, WHocingaxi AND merail,

BY  DEGRAAF & TAYLOR,

(FORMERLY H. P. DEGRAAF),
No. 87 Bowery, .New York.
This establishment is alx storeys in holght, and extends 242 feet throngh to No. 65 Chrystle Street-making it one of the largest Furuiture Houses in the United States. They are prepared to offer great inducements to the Wholesale Trade for Time or Cash. Their stock consists, in part, of

Mahogany and Walnut Parlor and Chambsr Furniture;
Also, CANE and WOOD SEAT work, all quallities; HATR, HUSK and SPRING MAT
TRESSES, a large atock; ENAMELLED CHAMBER FURNITURE,
TUCKER'S NEW STYLE PATENT SPRING BED

Their faclitites for manufacturing defy competition. All work guaranteed as represented

能OSTETMTER' cymbiratid STOMACE BTHTERS
THE DEAD TRAT MGGHT BE LTYNGGTH

 ond

Hostetter's Stomaoh Bitters,

GOLD! GOTD! GOLDI
100,000 WATCHES, CHANS, &c. WORTH $$ 500,000$,
To be evil for One Dolter anob, withont regard to vilue, and not to

The "Star" No Chimrey Burner

DISTILLED DEW]

Erench Fialse MKoustachos.

 D. C. SPAREOW, Now York P.O.

Coninring:-Contalning fall direotione for per

[^9]W. FORSYTH & CO., WATCHES, CHAINS, JEWELRY, ETC. Valued at $$ 300,000$ ! pach Artele One Doltar, nind not to pald for until you know what oular. Addreas

"Psychomance, ${ }^{n-H \text { How elther sex may ma }}$

 Hon over 100, ,000 .oplet gready soid. Addre Instrimonv- Why veriy man should marry

 ross 12 Whito street. New York.
Drunkards, Stopl-s eod for slivelkr, Ahow:

Albums for the Army. Our New Pocket Album, holding olixteen plcturees, and sold at Soventy-five Oente 10 the olespent and heet Pooket Album, nver offired SAMUEL BOWLES & COMPANX, Photograph Alhum Manffactureot, Msss.
Know Thyself! Know shy Eriends!

Pbysiolowy of Looki. Cloth; gitt edges. Sent by

Loyal Exavana Lottery.

J. H. Winslow & Oo.
 100,000
Watokee, Chains, Beta of Jewsllery, Gol Pens, Bracelots, Looketu, RTige
Gente' Pints, Sleeve Buttons, Worth $500,000:

 J. H, WINELOW & 206 Brondway, New Yo VETERAN vityran Soldiers !

Th Howath COUB.
3. N.Y,

 DHOWNE & MOORE,

Etereoseopic Viewe, Cartea de Filites-New Buoke. Bend for Catalogo.
P. O. Box 2,11, Boaton, Mase.

The Old Distablighod and only reilable Pur-

I. W. ByNICzEX,

PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY,

o. A Now Ohamberv Street,

 Card Pitturce 18180 per doz -8 for 81 .
All other Photographe up to Ilto elze colored in oll $A$ Amprationlar sttention given to Copytng Carda or or most detaced ploture can be bry the ald of haf ex perienoed Every attention pald to vieitora wising to examine

Swords, sashes, Belts.

Tient.Gen. U. S. Grant Package.

A gortatin preventive, whd sure, exfo sod slmpl

 bo hat by idr entas (encomng oiamp for reply)
$$ 10$ AGENTS $$ 10$

Mredical Common Sense.

"Album Goms" - Somethog New, Gay and

 G. W. Thichlinson, Puhleher,

Whiskers! Whiskers!

OVER ALL COMPETITORS.

 anduacturers ofGrand, Square and Upright Pianofortes.

THALBERQ'S OERTIFIOATE

Warerooms, 652 Broadway, NT. X., 246 Washington street, Boston

.
Remington's
(1) Army and Navy RETOTEER!
Approved by the Govornment.

Do Xou Want to got Married?

 ${ }^{46248} \mathrm{E}$ D
Hoyt' Hiawatha Hair Restorative-

 spply the Wiawatha
JOEEPE
HUYT CO., 10 Univeraty Plaoe.

The Confessions and Experience of an Invalid.
Pabileben - the beneift and efs warning ande

\section*{| 5 Sa |
| :---: |
| veruas: |  Mssiciove  WEDDINE GARDS Frod hav p}

Attention, Company!

MADAME BMNEDICTMS Millinery & Dressmaking Establishment Tonow replete with Every Imported Novolty of the Soason.
12 Wavealay Place, New Yobk
Baker's Zheumatic Balm, BAKER' FEVER COOLER,
BAKERS COVGE MITVRE,

WATCHES.

Ceece hyditoome Heory Hiviting

$$ 14$

 and cunality of eiliver end will $$ 14$Th The great Englibu Army Witch

$$ 16$

$$ 15$

The Great New Army Wetel

Omoot' Watoh-Exitrg Heary

$$ 35$

All our Wabronce are

G3D. A. BLY & CO., IMPORTRRS,
181 (Iato 208) Brondway, N. Y

Gray's Patent  Molded Collars

Have now becn before the publio for neariy in year
They are nnlversaly pronouneed the neatest and ber filtigg oollers extint.
 taru-down collar-thiny are As AB OUTBIDK-and therefore perfectly free and easy
o the Leck. to the Leck.

"Grny's Patent Molded Collar," Sold by all doalers in Men's Furntehiag Goode. The HATCH JOHNSON & CO.,

U. S. 10-40 BONDS

Thene Bonde se leured nndcr the Act of Congres of March 8th, 18et, which provicee that in Heu of eo much of the loan authorized by the Aet of March 3 c, IEOS, to which this la enpplementury, the Secretary the Tressury is authorized to borrow from time to

Wwo Exundred Mrilion Dollars during the carreatena year, and to preparexnd iesue therelor Coupena and Regliterad Bonde of the United - 3xempt from Trazation by or under any State or munlelpal authority. Sub ecriptions to thene Bonds are recelved in United

To be Redeemed in Coin,

at the plesare or tbo Goveramont, at any period not tan forly yeam from the

Tive per Cent. Interest will be paid in Coin, on Bonde of not over one hundréd dollarn annually, and on all other Bonds semi-amually
The interent in payable on the arat dsya of March and September in each year, The semi-aunnal Conpona are payable at those dotea, and the nmmual Couthe firat of March Snbecribers will recelve either Begletered or Cou are recorded an they may prefer. Fegintered Bond can be tranefirred only on the owner'e order. Coupon Bonds are payable to bearer, and are more eonventent or commerolal neea.
Reglatered Bonds will be leenod of the denomt nationa of Fifty Dollare ( ( $$ 100$ ), Five Hundred Dollate Hundred Dollar Doilars ( 81 , 009 ), Fywe Dhoue ( 800 ), One Thousan Ten Thoueand Doilara ( 810,000 ) ) ond Coup ( of the denominations of Fifty Doilara (450) One EI dred Doilkra ( $$ 100$ ), Five Hundred Dollare ( $$ 500$ ), an One Thousand Dollare ( 81,000 , Subecribere to this loan will have the option of having their Bonds draw interest from Merob .1st, by paylag the aecrued interest in colifi- (or in United ifty per aest for prevee of Netlonel Banks, addia interen from. the datinm, or rective them drawin te the $B$. taxation, their valne is increased from one or State per cont ner annum, secording to the rato of ev les in varlous parts of t'e country At the present rate of preatu on ver elght per cent. foterest in currency, and pey qual conventence ae e permanent or temporary investment.
It is telleved that no securitiee offer oo great inducentente to lendera as the varloue deacriptione of U. S, Bonds. In all other forme of indebtedness, the fatit or abillty of private partles or stock companiea or eparate communitiles only te pledged for peyment aeparate communitles only te pledged for peyment, while for the debte of the United Stateo the whole while for the debte of the United Ststee the whole property of the country ia hoiden to secure the payproperty of the country is hoiden to eecur ment of botb principal and intereat in coin.
Theee Bonde may be eubsaribed for in eams of g50 up to eny magnitude, on this eeme terme, and are thne mude oqually evallable to the smailent lender and the an any moment, and the holder will bave the beneat of the interest.
The raet that all duties, on imports are payable in spe de furnalahee a fund for like payment of intereat on II Government Bonds Iargely in excens of the wants f tbe Trensury for thie purpose.
Upon the recelpt ol subacriptions a cortillcate of deponit therefor, in dupilsate, will be lanned, the original of wbich will be forwurded by the enbecrlber to the of wbich wil be forwwrded by the enbecriber to the Secretary of the Tresuary, at Wabhington, with & let. ler ataling the kind (regiatered or connon) and the denominatlo 8 of oonds required.
Upon the receipt of the ongtnal cortilicaten at the Tressury Dep artment, the bonde subscribed for will transmitted to the eubacrlbeta reapectively.
Snhecriptiona will be reeclved by the Treasurer
the United States at Waehington, and the Assist. at Treasurers at New York, Boetol and Philsnt TYeasurers at clphin, and by the First National bank of Now Yo-k, No. 4 Wall St.
scond
$\begin{array}{lllll}\text { SECOND } & \text { " } & \text { u } & \text { " } \\ \text { FOURTH } & \text { u } & \text { u } & \text { " } & \text { u3d St. } a l \text { Bd } d^{\prime} y \text {, }\end{array}$

SLENT " " " " $\quad$ "th Av.a Brondway, Iew York Exomanoe bink 184 Greenwiob St.
Fecond National Bank of Boeton, Mace.
Firat National Bank of Providence, B. I.
First National Bank of Hartford, Coun,
Firat Natlonal Bank of Albany, N. Y.
Firet National Bank of Burfalo, N, Y.
First Nattonal Rank of Baltimore, Md.
Firet Netlonal Bank of Weehington, D. C.
Firat Natlonal Bunk of Cinelunatt, O.
Firat Nattonal Bank ot Chloggo, ill,
First National Bank of Muwaukle, Wis. Firat National Baral Brok of Net, Loule, Mo.
And by all Nuttonal Bankes whleh are depositaries of pubilo money. All respectable badke and bankere formation va applitettion, and afford every fuellity to subsaribers.

THE BEST LITERATURE 03 By the Best Americon Writers 110 Is found eaoh month in the

Atlantic Monthly

Loxamulow, Lowkil thers of teeding

LIFE OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN
Is publiehed snd for sale thle day hy T. B. PETERSON & BROTHER he Life, Speeches, Proclamations, Lette abraham lincoln Sistocnth Preeldent of the Ualted Statea, With an full history of his Life; his onreor at a Lawyor with Ihls Speeohes, Procin matlons, Letterk, Messages, Aots and services ne Prealdent of tho United State and Commander-in-Chter of tho Army present time.
Completo in one large volume of 200 pagee, with portratt of Presdidont tivecoln. Price in paper or 75 eents Gsn. MicClellan's Lifs and Reports. The Life, Campatgna, Bnttles, Reports and pnbile services or Mnfor-Gen. Georgo $\mathbf{B}$. MoClellan, the Hero or Western Virwith n full history of nil his Campaigus and Batties, as well hs his ReDepartment and the Prenident, in relation to them, from the time he firnt tot, the fied ln his wor until ho was fandly relieved from oom BPREECEES
prescat timo.
New and Ealarged Ydition. Complete in one large volume of 200 pagez, with a Portraitor Price E0 cente in paper, or 75 centa in cloth. Copies sent everywhere ffree of pootage, on cecelpt of price.
 who will he sappurd with town the 50 cont editione adozen, or $$ 25$ a hundred; or with the coth editions with ensh encloed, et once, for whintever quantity
you may jish, ot these rates, sdireesed to T. B. PETERSON & BBOTHERS And they will be cmant to you stret. Philadin one bour after and recipt of the order.

$50 AMERICAN $$ 50$

 LEVERS.Prade Mark, P. S. Bartlett, Waltham, Mass., Irall Jswslled, WAREANTED, in 4 oz . coin silvsr hunting cass, gold joints, fancy push pin, for $$ 50$.
Also, every variety of good Wetehes at equally 1ow
Aut orders from the Army must hut prepaid ate Ah orders from the Army must he prepald, lection on toldilere:
J. L. FEBGUSON, Importer of Watohes, 208 Brosdway, N. Y.

BRIDGEWATER PAINT

American, Swiss and Xinglieh Watches
 fantully ettended to. EN hh Lebed 20 yearo.
f. B. BYNNER, 176 Broxdwu, N, Y.

 "Choker," to C. H. WELL.
Norvoun Digeascie and Pnysical Dobilh - A8sociation-sent in eniledituer envelopen. fre of rharge, Address. DR, J. SKILLIN HOUGH TON, Howard Asociotion, No. 2 South-Ninth Street, Philldelphia, Pa.

Great Chance to Make Money!

ay eullung our eele

157 Aamy
A-1

 $\$ 15$ European Timekeeper $\$ 15$ $\triangle$ SUPERB "EXERA DOUBLE GOKD.pLATEED

 mol otond aced, scid to fo
Wxact Imitation of a 102 Gold Watch ussd by the British Army Officers. Gest free, by mall, in Elegnot Morocoo Case, tor Ekolier Stspleng Silvir Lever watches,

$$ 30$ American $$ 30$ Hevers.

In 4 oz. Coin Siver Hontthis Cusen, Full Rahy Jewelled. Govd Joints, Magle 今pring, wilh Full Guarantes, Real English Duplex Stop Watch, In Msesive Sliver Hanting Cases, Fall Jewelled,

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE byMAILor EXPRESS  39, 245 per do

 SLELF-MEASURRMIENT FOR SHIRTS. Printed direetlong for ecir-mesauremant, List of prices, FRENCH FLANNIGL OVERBHIRT8, *3, 8378 and ef 60 ovob-all ent onc yard long, A single poatagh for cach shirt,Sena the Size of your Neok leo.

STHDUCOLLARS

ENAMELED WHITPE,
 ference to nuy ocher coilir,

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { WHOLESALE AND RETACL. } \\ & \text { WANTRD it Every Town in the Unl } \end{aligned}
$$

Eealth for the Soldier : For one who die日 from the elfects of the hullot, ten ooge of HOLLOWAY'8 PILLS, tiken every other stght, whil purify the halood and motre sound health tomach,
to every man. 35 centa, 88 conta, ond 8140 per hox to every man.
or pot.

CRITNDS OF SOLDITRS:

 Al articles for Soldiers et Baltimore, Woehington,Fortrees Monroe, Harpert Fery, Nowberne, Port Hot
 ste, hy HARNDEN'S EX
Butlers charged low rstes.

Iroxy Jewelxy:  Fire Eyor Brobches.......... 8160   Eent free on reecipt of price $A$ great variety 0 hand, at WELLINGE,

J. W. EVERETT & CO.
 mines, OFFCERS OF THE AZMY AXD NAVY, OFFICERS OF THE AZMY AND NA STATESMEN, D1VINES,
ARTISTS, ACORSS FOREIGN CELEBRITIES, ARTO, ets,
 See for einu

Munro's 10 Cent Publications.
THE OCEAN ROVERS;
Or, ths Frsebooters of ths Islss.
A thriling romance of tand and sea. For sale hy

Boantiful Falee Mroustachoe, 60 Cents nod si a, patr, sent free hy mall. Send stamp for Ciroular. Address
C. W. PRLLO, Brookly, I. Y.

FRANK LESLIE'S HTMUS TRAMMG   正

   正}

| No. 449-VoI.. XVIII] | NEW YORK, MAY 7, 1864. |  |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |

Barnum's Americen Museum.

 FOUR ENORMOUS GLANTS-Three men Ances daly tan 3

Oscanyan's Oriental Albam.

 oscanyan, New York.

War Items.

We have enconryging reporta from the army of the ain Killer. One writre: "My litife hottle of Paln Kliter was worth more to week's masch and exposure, whleh pat io many of our ooble fotlows on the slck list, thnnks to that littlo lef home. It tn n few hours.

hLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.

NEW FORK, MAY 7,1854

TERMS FOR THIS PAPER.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISING. One Doilar a tine on the ontalde or last page

Tak Publisher of Frank Leslutis IllusYRAEED PAPRE invites his present contrilintora ond others to sund in hufore May yet storices nid poems sultaibit to tte colimunes as well an theas for comilo sketchees on sublecta of the dsp.

Summary of the Week.

Ting guerilas, the vermin that inmarm in advanoe of the movements of the rebel anpieE, are now very eotive in Virgiaio. A body appsarad on the 17 th at 8 nlphur Springs.

The feeling of opposition to the Davis tyrmany in ofillers in the western part of the State have been hang by the people Hol nor serms almost certain
To sustain lta falling power, the rebel GovernUnion forces, if not to drive them from the State. Union forees, if not to drive them from the State.
On the 17 th , with a force numbering from 5,000 to 10,000 , they made a sudden attack on Plymouth. the rebel horse. Gen. Wessels is prepared to defend Plymouth to the last.
Fort Gray, two miles from Plymouth, on the Roanoke, was firrt attacked, but it was resolutely defended by Capt. Brown, 85th N. Y., and the defended by Capt. Brows, 85 th N. Y., and the Miami, Capt. Fluseer, with the Eutaw, Whitehead, Minmi, Capt. Fluseer, with the Eutaw, Whitehesd, shot aud shell into the rebel ranks. The eneray sfter being drew off.
After the attack on Fort Gray wae repuleed the gunboat Bombehell ran up Roanoke river, tolook out fonboat Bombahell ran up Roanoke river, tolook ou On the 18 th, about 3 р. и., the ram came down, paseed the Union batteries, ran into and sank th gunboot Southfield. Tho gunboat Miami fired at her, but the ahell rebounded, killing Captsin Flusser. The rama bolds the river. Pymouth is cut hy storm on the 20 th. Brigadier-General A. F. Hoke, the reber commander, is aald to have taken 1,600 prisoners and 25 pieces of artillery, besiden immense storce. Enntucky.
Gea. Shackleford and several citisens were captured by Bennet's gue nubsequently released.
From Eastern Kentucky we leara that the rebels have been defeated in two fights on the Licking Paintvilie on the 12 th and were repulsed, after which the Unioniate pursued the eneray, and on the 14th surprised their oamp at Half monntain. The result of the movemeat was the killing and wounding or 85 rebels and the eapture of of arms, eamp equipage, etc. Col. Chy is among the prisA party of rehela attempted to enter Kentueky at Pound gap on Tuesday, but were driven beok by the 45th Keatucky mounted infantry.

After the affair at Crump'e hill, Gen. Banke advanced ou the cnemy's poaltion at Pleasant hill.
On the 8 th he came up with them at Sabine orosst roades where the enomy, undor Kirby Smith, Magruder, Holmes and Taylor were defated with a grudér, Holm Joss of 1,500 ,

Being short of rations Banke recalled the fleet, which was nearing Shreveport. On its way down Gen. Green, and 600 men. Gresn's head was caried of by a shell.
Meanwhile Ban
Meanwhile Banks advanced to Pleasant bill, Gon. A. J. Smith finally ronted the enemy, who loat veis heavily, Gens. Monton and Parsona being mong the killed.
A fight took place at Gov. Johnson's plentation ecently, in which the rebels were repulned, losing amuggled goods.

Capt. Phelpe, of the guiboat No. 26, on the 4th of Aprll, captured a rebel mail carrier near Crook tt't Bluff, Arkensag, with 500 letters and 60,000 ett's Bluff, Arkensos, wit

The blockade-runner Allianoe was recently etp ured on the Savannsh river

CONGRESS.

Thes Senate, on the 18 th , was engaged nearly all day on (hs Minosilaneous Approprilation hlil. The had heeu rednced 850,000 hy the Finance Committec, were reatored $t$ t the Honas figores. There was quite Ifvely dehats between Mir. Feesecnden, the chanirman of the Finance Comm tiee, and Mr, Sherm sn, chairthese appropritions. Mr. Fessenden leotured Mr. Sherman and the Senate generalif for thwarting the effort of the Fluance Commitice to reduce the efforts of the Flasoce Commitice to reduce the approprietlons. The nalary of the Vafted Ststes Tteasurer, Mr. Spinner, wss iocreased to $$ 0,000$, and other salnies in his hureau to the extent heretofore other bainries ing.
Io the House, tbe National B nk blif was possei, hy a vote of 78 againet 63 . The Ioteraal Tix bill was wae made the apecinal order for todey. Resolutione in favor of increasing the daties on articles of iuxury imported lrom ebrond ond of domestio mannue-threa nt'empts to ohtaie a maspenslon of the rales in order that a joint resolution incrensiog immedietely order that a joiat resoluter centum for 00 daye might the duty on importa 50 per he conkidered; hut the opposition stobhornly

ho oppoedd the motion, and the requisite two third opposed the motion, sand the requiste two obthled. This vote consequently oouid not be oble proposita walang the country of goid by large purchsses are drale ahrosd in antcipation
In the Semiste, on the 19th, several animportan mesaurea wore discnssed The hill repeallag eli liwe mesaures wore discnesed rine relating to the rendition of fugitive Elaveg to thetr ownere Whas then taken up snd pussed to a third reading. When, however, the vote on the final reading. Whea, however, hoe vot he taken, Mr.
paseage of the hill was nhont to Sherman moved to except the leat of 1793 , and after Sherman moved to except the lew of 1793, and after conalderalito debate the motlon was agreed to hy a hill on nay b.
In the Hoase, there was no bnaliness of $a m y \mathrm{hn}$ - Ierest tras bsicted.
In the Senats, on the 20th, a joint renolntion Wai introduced hy Mr. Hatrili, poriding for tha taking of introduced hy Mr. Harria, providing for tha taking of an onduetriay cennua in 1885 Dy the Stateb. hie question of $p$ ppolinilag a Committee of Conferenee

In the House, the day eraslon was occupied in constaerlog the Tax hill. No speebhee were mnee, und 52 renolutions were consididerea and neened npon.
During the erenicg sestion the blil for Anew coligge of one und two cent pleces were paheed. The bill for

In the spante, on the 2 itht, the Hones hill for the rellef of poatmanters rohhed hy rebei troops or

In the Seonate, on thin 22 d , in momorial from wool growers of Addinon ouunty
Vermont, wie pree ented

 Tren phased

The senste, on the 23 rd , was not in scession,
In the Honse, bill was pussed creating

FOREIGN NEWS.

In the English House of Lords the Marquis Clspricarde moved for the correapondepce with the Confederate States in refersinee to the removal of the British Consola from Southarn ports and thy enilist Russell egreed to the motion, the words "so-called" helng inserted hefore Confedcrate Statee e, lest it hhould he imagined that Parilament had rcogghed tha Con
The Hoonse of Lords had dechded agalast the Crown
tured to her owners.
The Earl of Dononghmore enlled atteation to the Rase of the Kearsigo eninatments, and nated Ear Robseli if he had communicated with tho Amarion Ooverument on the enbject. Earl Rafseli thonght he word of en officer of the United Stater navy, as th man haviog come on hoard the vessel without hir knowiedge, ought to he taken. He hud, however, called the atteation of the Amerione Minlater to the crititition of bis complicliy witi Mazzini sed Grece

 na wounded; that the town, whitoh wos deserted, and that 50 honenes had heonkurned. Thie Elego ines galanet Duppelhad heen prizermg plepided gailty to the English indiotmen arieligg out of the fete prizelght hetween Heenan ase

TOWN GOSSIP.

AATER three weeks of a brilliant life the great event of the senson settled lat, a thing of the past on last Saturday eve. It weat out, not quileliy hut honored by orowds, ond Inlled hy the sonnd of soft mualo, oronds who dragged not listiess feet through the vast bulldings, hut who weress ute step and se greedy of alght-bcelag as erer. We csinot asy that the brilliancy and earnestneas of the affir Was anatained to wards the last, and perhaps may tha making an uncharitahice remarle when we say that making an uncharitabic remark when we say that from the ingtant the 25 cent paying orowd wae admitied, the interent and atiendnnoe of the aristo-upon empty stads or ntgleoted ones. We thlak this ahould not have been, when it li conaidered that the atock of goode still remainiog on hand amounts to a quarter of a mililon, and that our city has thousnnds of beautiful momen who wonid giadly have taken thc placen of those reaigning, and kept np the interch and proit to the very fotest moment. We will however, drop all oillclsma and condemnalion, end he diaposed to regard the entire matter as a success, even thonga it is pretty gencrally admitted that 1 ts with ell the enthualasm and chnnces of the hegtinning, tbs pross amonnt netled ahould have heen mocressed by at fenst 50 per cent.

One of the Curionifies
Is the Poilce Department and lita mansgement, which is nuder the ohargo of Inapeotor Leonard. To the hedquarters of thie department, a room atthehed to from an odd glove op to a camels hair shawi valucd at $$ 750$, and we helieve unciaimed ap to the closing of the Falr. A farge asfe contuined conniderahie parse eols, vells, booke, lurs and Jo wellery. To show that the fairer gex are not the only oarelese and that the fairer aex are not the ondy oarelese and forgetfoi ones, snother part of the room la the reeeptacle for euch odde and ends as overcoata, canse, handkorchleft, giovee Lnd mattora appertaling to handkorchlef, giovee tud mattors app manly wear. Among the Inoldents Of the wesk was the vis $t$ of Mrs, Grant, the wife of the Oeneral, who quiltiy took a fook through the the Oeneral, who quletiy took a Iook through the hulldinge, regitered a vote for MoCleblan on the aword qacation, ana melted awny
As a balance to thts emin, who loudly announce his name an Mocleilan, on Wedneadsy orening, voted two houro from 10 upwzrda, untion
by whioh time posiliy it bolled A rather dronl thing occorres et one of tho stand the refreehmet-room on Tuuseday eve i,g.

oifor teonap Bnt Ball pall put unt

patt tom pie
pinth he phd
her dariog,

Travity, thepprehaser conld not bolp to he astinsel

The votivg anou the , wors went pready on

 Nowhot wot titmy ming it

 Hiramjortit Roig giso.

 Every oan man at the highet pith or agout, mad

 Trean andicicement rrount fortham milaged food of

 ond

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.

 spone

A. G. JENK INS, BIt.E.En Comg .

 Absereve otited, judg ment

bil. Fov, Seymour has algned the Soldiere Voting

 soldera for attempting to enforce the conecription federate asye that ita result depends altogether npon fhe fncees of the rebel armites in the appronohing ommpicn. Which Ah an widenoe of the ohango in pabllo opinion Whougt, wo need only refer to

 The Prealdent has commuted the eanticace of deethh recently pabsed upon eeveral deeertere, int mprieonoent on tbe Dry Tortugas durling the war.
Gen. Grent has been very huar inepesting the varione corpg of the Potomne army during tborpan week He wae blghly plesed wath their appearince and digopllae.
Personal-A Northern man, who has jnetereanee
Frim Winmington, givea to the editor nf the Nes

 Heury Ward Beecher has purchined of Mr. J,
S. Abott,of South Regalaton, Vt., E fine palr of bay Morgen horeco for $$ 000$. 22d Apris. Gen. Grant vieited the Sanitary Fatr on the conted for Gea. MeClellan in the oword Mre. Douglas, tbe Seanator's widow, hes eent a Witten derial htast ebe la enguged se clerk in tho
Treasury Department. the Sanitary Hoey
Mra. Jeesle Fremont senf the following tale gram ton gentemn m Smn Frncteco on bearing or hha denth of tbe Rev. Sturr King : Pnt violete for Fustrated Londo Fizetelly, the correspondendent of the $n$

Obituary, - Mrs. Harriet D. Field, wife of David called npon to announco the death of Mra, Kirklan from A Amilar cauce.

 at Rome, Italy, Wae a m ton, S. .., ,ndocoo the
of the tast hati centary.

 Accidents and Offonceg.-Hon. A. T. Galt,
 The Clnclnnati papery revort gréat excltoment
there In coneequence of the diknopenaranoe, hetwee woo daye, of Measci, Bodwell on Co their opportunitiee by forgecting to paye thmorove
They are supposed to have gone to Canlad. Was Rerevtid. At. Jonifon, Canada, laet Junuary upon a charge of try ing to ind vee negroce to eniliat, hing Juat heen released, for the very nimple reapon that no one appeared to prefer chargen ngainat him.
There wan a large fire in Lowell, Mnes, on the 20ih, In the Wamlect, Steam Moll, need for verious kinde of wood worz. - On Wednpegdny nigbt, the 204 A April, a pasaenbey were nelosp, or nnder the tinfuence of fliquor.

Foreign.- The lest forelign mall settlee the qneetion of tbe eafety of Dr. Xivingetone, the African explorer, who wan reported th bave heen kulled by th natlves on tho $Z$ smbet, The Britigh war oloop hapl
hat

leave the country, ni it appeared an unsultable fleld, nnd would return to England by theCaper The Blahop and nle clergymen, bowever, were to vielt the Govand nle clergymen, bo ernor of Mozampliqne.

 Tmen, In whild he exoneratee Mr. Stang reld, Member f Parlinment, from any coneetion with the recent ottempta np on Nepoleon's lite.
 ient. Hutchineon ID etaloned in Waebington, and E few opye eince wis on duty ne Omicer of be Dey ot ow daye eince wse on duty ne Omacer of tbe Dey tha War Department. An order was in forew Whit orbade smozing in the building, and the sentric

 his depar ohre ax ardons weed awoy and weat iown from Gen. Halleck reacinatgy the order ebout smoking, bo fur as it affectad army omcera
In The George Freucle Truin canked quite a futter contempt for coppright, and whim be went into the the drawing-room ho took ilttle girl whem he fond itatement to the Mrancheater Dnily Union, aes warn ing to thoue who migto wiah their pieturee taken.

 three niggta we ehant have no darknees, burin bathed Inthe brillisit light of the blazing train. In one Rbode island regiment are 14 brothere named Poatly. Four of them are twing.
 etory of one of the farmers In tbo vicinity of cupeper, whoee poeaceeclone lay tn a diarict where botil rames have fors ied. Tbe old chap one day, whil hain't took no sides in thie yer rebelllon, dog gorned if both Eides hnlm't took me."

Tbe eunual report of the Department for Re-- gitetriton for Birtha, Deathan snd Marragen mentiona Fo ceees where purtlen were married hetwen 70 and

THE MASSACRE AT FORT PILLOW.
A massacre, savage in conception, savage In exeoution, and asvage in ita hold endorsement ty the rebele st the Sonth and their minulone at the North, bia borrilled the land, Gen. Sherman telcer
Gen. Sherman telegrapha that after the capture laet week of Fort PHINow, near Columbue, by Forrent's ralding rebel force, 300 of our colored noldiers, whom tbelr commander had aurrendered as prisonera o war, focluding thoge who had been wounded in the defence, were butchered in cold blood by their captors.
The
adde tha adds that Ave of them were burled alive. Four of thene were amung the wounded; whill the fith wat compelled to heip dig the pite, and tben tombled in and covered up. The correspondent adds that Gea. to be given to "homemation Yankees-lhat te, to Southern Ualoniets, whito or black. The correspopdent of the St. Louls Union tole.
graphe thint of 350 colored Aoldiers who were engaged in the defenco bnt 55 arsteffallve, and thatevery one of

 cer observed that our white troops would have bee protoved from butcolery if they hid not been found

荡

The Muskox or Monarces. - The Em. peror Hypoien MII. bno eatablibded at the Lourre mueano of moanar be. Hote will be beoleated dill hic

 Sir Walier Scots, on lending a book to $a$

 And now my loter 1 depiore,

For, ohl they curcd me of my Borne,
And caned my Areaside.
" Bat nll I thinki I eball not any,

Conrectivg his Orthograpry.-In a com-Vontsa with two $n$ s, than $n$ " 7 onnce. ${ }^{\prime}$. The exami-ternly inquired:
Veno ₹on not know, elr, that thore is bot nne hen in Ver

THE SOUTH WIND.
BY AMANDAT. JONES OH, the light south wind! It bronght us the odor of orange bowers, As we sat by our doors in summery hours, Did the light sonth wind.

Oh, the sweet south wind!
It hrought us the oriole's love-hreathing note, The paroquet's praise of his pretty green coat, carols that rush from the mockinghird's hroat,
Did the sweet south wind.
Oh, the loud south wind!
It hrought the rude song and the Afriean's jest,
It hrought us-oh, shame! -his deep sighs of unrest,
When the foot of his master bore hard on his hreast,
Did the loud south wind.
Oh , the wild sonth windl It hrought us the murmurs of hitterness first, Then threats of the traitor (for ever accurst), And the hum of a tempest just ready to burst, Did the wild south wind.
Oh, the mad south wind!
It brought us the surge of a battle maelstroim, The eracking of rifles, the cannon's deep hoom,
The crashing of mortars, the thunders of doom,
Did the mad south wind.
Oh, the sad south wind 1
It told us anew the dark story of Caid Rehearsing, to grieve us, again and again, The groans of the dying, the dirge for the slain,

Did the sad south wind.
Oh, the glad south wind! It hrings the sweet hugle-note, piercing and strong, Proclainning the triumphof Rightover Wrong And we lift up our voiecs to join in the song Of the glad south wiad

Married Four Days without Knowing it ! Married four days without knowing it Was auch a thing ever heard of? I fancy not; it wouldn't agree with the etarnal fitness of toinge Nsvertheless, I waa married in broad daylight, io full ponabesion of my senaea, and was not aware ot did happy fact until four daye afterwards! How did happen? Ah, dear resder, it in just my purpose to relate that:

My father's patronymic was Dimple, and I was the only little Dimple that he and my mother conld boast of. My father died four years hefore I attsined my majority, and I fell heir to The Willows, a goodly fortune and large share of inherent hash-fuineas; inherent, I say, hecause often told me that my father was the most hashfol young man that she evermet with. From the time of my father's death my mother lived very retired; indeed, so seclnded was I from the outside world, that when manhood's years were upon me, and eircumatances threw me into society, I found myself incapable of assuming the position due to me. I was possessed of talonts, had an excellent grent reader-my hooks had been for I had been a panions-yet with all my studying and reading had neglected the great book of society, that hook of so many types.
To be aure, I had some acquaintances-even a hermit knows somebody-yet theae were made by hermit knows somebody-yet theae were made by no exertions on my part. I had no young lady no exertions on my part. I had no young lady friends; I belonged to no " set;" I knew no " jolly Iriends; I belonged to no "set; " knew no "joly fellowa;" and if I mention our minister and a few worthy church membera, my teachers, peraona with whom I had husinesa transaetions, and some crated all who were honored hy haviog me notice them, In my usual intercourse with men I could proceed without embarrassment, hut when "out," when in company-as I found $\mathbf{I}$ had to he after I had taken upon myself the ownership and msnagement of our home-1 was ill at ease; ny conversational powers were of the pooreat description; I wan not affable, even at commonplaoe; and, knowing my failings, I strove to he as retiring and unassuming as possible. My hlushing, stammering and confusion in the presenee of ladies made me a butt for their sly ridicule, and my impressions of them were not flattering; I conceived them to be a firting, affected set, who thought it womanly to measure their abilities by their conquests and apply the term "soft" to goodnatured gentlemen of modest dispositions, Alas, the string attached to dear hoy!
not to he neglected; my wibgs wore well featiered, and the people knsw it. In my walks, bowa fomm obsequious individuals were plenty; professional men were "happy to mest" me; elderly gentlemen shook my hand in a fatherly manner, asking me to call and see them at their houses: "And you know, call and see them at their houses: "And you know, my dear Dimple, if I should not be home, why, the my dear Dimple, if I should not be home, why, the ladiss will he only too glad to receive you." Enterprising mammas, prospesting for gold, thought me as rich a spot as they could strike on, and although their daughters were hsppy in ridieulin! my failings, they would have heen much hoppior had I paid court to them. Did I ever think of marrying ? Oh, yes; butI had never seen a reality that would approach my ideal of a wife, and sometimes I blamed myself for looking for too much partiea were alite neglected, although my mothar atrove to persusde me to accept some of them, that I might rub off aome of the rust of disuse; and I hecame more of a hookworm than ever, wishing for no other world than The Willows, no other society than that of the speakera of the cilent anguage-my hooka.
At last, however, a circumstance transpired which materially altered the monotony of my lite. A scrious trespass on my property gava me occasion to consult Judge Walker, of Salem sion to consult Judge Walker, of Salem, who had been one of the executors of my father's will, and 俍 been one of the executors of my father's will, and who had alwaya been his legaladviser. On crlling at his office one afternoon, I found that he was at court, presiding at a murder trial. My business was urgent, it would be imprudent to delay the matter too long, and as it waa impossible to confer with the Judge then, I concluded to wait and see him at his house during the evening. The Willows was a mile out of town, and the judge's residenoe just hair-way between. Eight o'clock found me at the wicket-gate toat opened into the judge's garden, and there I atopped and shuddered-the judge had a daughter! I had forgotten that. What would I do i "Oh, never mind, my hoy," said X , to mysclf; "ask for the judge, transact your business, and deport with a clear conscience." Certainly, just the idea, the idea.

Through the wicket-gate, up the gravel-walk, under the grapevine, and I was on the stoop. This the darkneas of the night and the want of a light in the hall, I tad trouble in finding the knocker, A hard rap at this was soon answered by a pattering of feet and a voiee singing, "Charley is my darling!" The door was hurriedly opened, and before I could speak a pair of arms were thrown ahout my neck, and a girlish roice said: my neek, and a girlish roice said :

"That littic Affair of the Trespass."
What detained you so long, father ?" And a plump, warm cheek was preascd agninat mine, an if the own paternal kis末 Thia was a
had never kissed a young lady in myslife man. had never kissed a young lady in my life, and now to have a handaome girl'e arma nobout my neek and a pair of lips ao close to mine was rather-well, it was more than I had bargained for. I wss embarrassed, yet I admit that I actually thought of giving her a loving hug and a kiss, and then heg her pardon and tell her that I miatook her for my not until the arms were taken from my neok, my fair emhracer saying, "Why, father, what is the matter $i^{\prime \prime}$ that I found words to explain myaelf. " My dear young lady-a-that ia, Misa Walke your father is not me; you must-a-or at least 1 must-"
At this juncture the appeazancs of a servant with a light put an ond to my elaborate apology, and discovered me with hat in hand trying of aruculatel something, and icture of confusion. She had retrented a $f$ picture of confusion. She had retreaited; her stepa, but had neither screamed nor fainted curls were slightly disordered; her cheeks were covered with womanly hlushen; and a atartled exprension was on her face, which relazed into a smile as she recognised me, and broke the awkward silence:
"Why, Mr. Dimple! Dear me, what a mistake I have made! I was sure you were father; you must excuse me, sir." Excuse her! certainly I would. Such mia-takes I thought very excuasble, eopecially with such a fair offender. My embarrasemert over, I stated my husiness, and knowing, of course, tha the judge was not at home, I was tuking my leave, hegging a world of pardons, when a very pressing invitation to stay and await the judge's comning brought me to a halt me to deeline, hut Miss Walker's conduct after me to deeline, hut Miss Walker conduct after her litte, and, to me, pleasing mistaks; her unher litte, and, to me, pleasing mistaks; her un-affectedness and charming nonchalance had awakened my dormant admiration-I liked the girl. I sacrificed my distrust, entered the parior, considering myself a doomed man, and was seated in an armchair before one of those grate firen that I loved ao much.

She busied herseif a few moments putting awny ome seming, and as she fitted hers and there Ihad a chance to obscrve her. She was of medium height, nding dress resching the neek, and relieved by auty linen collar and brooch, while linen cuffs ter minated the sleeves. Her face had that quirt pouting, and her chin well ror eyes large and bluc, and her well-shaped hesd adorned with a profusion of chestant curls. She kept ehatting all the time, endeavoring to keep me at eare; but the little contretemps on my arrival, and her ple had stolen away half my diffidence.
At length the clearing-up was finsthed, and sh eated herectf in a roeking-chnir heside me
"You know, Mr. Dimple," said she, as she "Yook hsck her curle, displaying a heautifully formed neck, "father is awsy usually most of the day, and I am always happy to meet him on his return and receive his kiss. Since dear mother alwaye fcel sorry to pait with him and almays glad to welcome him home-that will aceount for my to welcome him hecetion affectionate
she smiled pleasantly
I stammerd out something ahout her having no ooession to excuse berself at all; then I coughed, me. A volume of his poe
The page hefore me hore the title of the second Peri," and in pancil on the margin was written: "Tbis poem contains the hest sentiment of Lslla Rookh" - my own opinion exactly, and I mustered courage enough to express that opinion to Miss Waurage
From this remark sprung a conversstion that lanted during a good part of my stay. I found lanted during a good part of my stay. I found that she was well read in hoth prose and poetry, and they had heen my life study-Eaglish literamuch, and grew eloquent on my favorite theme. much, and grewelo the poets from old Chaucen to Tennyeon, not forgettiog our own children of the Lyre; I snnbhed the classics and pitted Milton against them; I reperted Shakespenre's "Seven Ages," and even geatured in doing so $;$ I gave Ben Joneon the cold shoulder; I prsised Goidsmith for his truth and simplicity, and lamented poor Cbatterton; I defended Byron, and challenged any poet to equal Moore for melody and sentiment. Then I equal Moore for melody and senliment. Then glanced at the prose writers, winding up Fith
Irving, and giving as a sample of his beautiful etyle bis description of the Alhambra hy moonlight. Here I dropped authors, hut fearing that I would lose vantage if I quitted books altogether, I ran the risk of heing considered a bibliomaniac, and took np biggraphy and history; and found that Miss Walker was almost ns well informed on the lives of eminent personages, snd as well acquainted with historical fiscte, as myself. Mind you, I did with historical fscte, as myself. Mind you, I did not do all the talking myself; oh, no; my fair oom-panion gave her opinions and expressed her vieys panion gave her op:nons freely; and when we came down to gmmonplace (and I let myself down slowly, for I aseaded what was to me shaky ground, versing as it I had known her for years. I was astonished at myself; I found that I had conversational powers that I had never dreamt of. And sational powere that I had never dreamt of. And what had brought them to Hight? That is easy answered-I had found what I had long sought for a person whose taetes sympathised with my own, person whose taties sympathsed wentiments, who coutd converse on other subjects than the, usual mall talk of society. I need not bay that she was my admiration, hut it was not her intellectual noquirements alone thut pleased me-her whole manher was pheasing; as she looked in my face while talking, her eyes had tbe open, honeet look of the true woman; there was no affectedness in voice or uction; and her smilea were much different from the quizzing ones I had been used to. I wae and the spell was not hroken until a footstep sound ed on the gravel walk-Mies Walker started-then a heavy foot on the stoop. "Oh, It's father, I'm sure," and she hurried to the hall, and I could hear the door open hefore the knocker sounded; then kiss and tender inquiries from daughter to fathe ns to what detained him; then a whisper about "the gentleman in the parlor" - which caused "the yentleman io the parlor" a furry of the heark velf entered, followed hy his dhughter. I arose and instantly oommenced a huriied, stammering apology for intruding; but the grasped my hand warmly :
"Why, my dear hoy, this needs no apology happy to kee you, sir-consider youraelf at home.
Where have you kept yourself? I believe I have not seen yon since the settliog-up cf your father's will; snug property that of The Willowe, sir. Sit down, sir; sit down. Sorry that I wao not here ato jury. Threatened to look them up until toato jury. Threatened morrow, and-no, Lizie, thank you, I have had eome supper-and as I was saying, Mr. Dimple, eome supper-and as I was saying, that made them act like censihie men.
Here I managed to state the eause of my vialt, hut thought that the muat the weary of law for one hut thought that the muat be weary of law for one day at least, and that the aff air of the trespaee day at least, and that the aff air of might lie over until some other time.
might ihe over until some other time. aftair; hut we esn easily settle it some other time. I have to sentence the oulprit to-morzow afternoon-sorry to have to do lt , sir; clever, manly young fellow-did it all in a momeat of passinnhut the law mnst he aatisfed, and I will be at leisure in the evening; suppose you call in the evening ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ ing ${ }^{\prime \prime \prime}$ Dld I like the idea of having to call on the next emendin? I think I did -I am very gure I did. On evening? I think I did-I am very sure I did. On my maly home that night I refleoted on the ohange that had come over me within a few hours. Charles Dimple, Esq., of The Willows, had hecome an altered Dimple. Certainly Lizzie Walker was no perfection's seir, hut antire perfection would no longer he one of my imentire perfection would no longer he one of my me: perfections. Fancy was husy. in Now that you have hroken the iee, your hashfulness will amount to nothing ; you donot know your own worth; why, your money is all-powerful; and all you will hare to do is to propose, and she will aceept you without a demur. But my better judgment said: "If ohe's the girl you tuke ber the yourself, my hoy," suid I ; and battoning my cont yoursel, my to the obin, I faced a penctrating nor'easter, and my sitting up for me.
"Why, Charles," said ahe, in a troubled tone, "Where have you heen? Did you see the judge ?
"Oh, yss, mother. Saw her as eoon as I called "Oh, yss, mother. Saw her as and it is all right. She says-"

nd it is all right. She says- "She ssys! Who ?"

"She ssyst Who ?"
"Why, the judge, to he sure; he thinks tit's lear case, and she'll take hedge and ditch ; give wer fair play, and I'll back her against the field!" "Why, Cbaries, are you crazy? What are yo King ahout?" Why, Miso Waiker, to he sure. .She is as fine

"Why, young lady as-eh! oh! ${ }^{n}$
Here I came to my
Here I came to my senses, and related my évening's experience. I found in my mothex a sympa thetic listener. She thought, since she was getting thetic listener. She thought, since she was getting well on in years, that a ne mistress would be a well on in yequisition to The Wilows. She would have hrosched the subject before, were it not for my an estimable young lady as Miss Walker, she advised me to keep up the acquaintanceship. Believing that my mother spoke fike a sensihle woman, I then snd there resolved that, if my spirits would I then snd there resolved that, if my spirits would keep me up, I would keep up the nequaintanceship. sleep wai long in paying her visit that night; my Suain wss too busy, and when at last I was under her infuence dream followed dream; and when I arose in the morning I could have sang "Her hright smiles haunt me still." I was impatient until evening oame, and when at last the curtains of night were fairly drawa I donned my sprucent attire, and with cane in hand took my way to the home of my legal adviser-of course only on hus ness, just to setre the the wicket-gate, up the gravelyouknow. under the grapevine, and I was sgain at the walk, under the grapevine, and I was bginit hut knocker. I eonfess my heart was futtering, but wasn't 1 on husiness? Cortainly I was. I was ushered iots the parlor, the judge met me at the door with outstretched hand, and ahook mine warmly. Lizzie received my proffered hand with a pleasant emile, end placed a chnir for me between herseif and father. That evening I shall ever remomber as among the pleasantest of my life. I did not allow myeel to heome embarrassed during the whole of my stay; hut perhaps I was just a little whole of my stay; hut perhaps I was just a hit absent-minde日, for several times I ought myseif looking at Lizzie when talking earnestly to the judge; and $I$ also rememher that I forgot "that little matter of the trespass" entirely. Ah! yea; there had been a trespass committed on my property, but Lizzie had committed a greater trespass on my heart.
After thin I ofter paid an evening vist to the judge's, and he soon gaw the way matters were judge's, and he soon 6 aw the way matters were drifting. He would sit chatting awhile alwaya after lifting. He would sit chatting awhile alwaya after steal off to his library or bed, and laave Lizzie and I to ourselves.
That was a pleasant time, that sourtahip of mine.
It lasted a year, and seemed like a long dream. It lasted a year, and seemed like a long dream, not passed in her company seemed like a blank in my existenee. I loved her with all tae devotion of my aldant nature, and well I knew that she returned it "measure for messure." Ours was not like the love of two heings who meet by accident, hecome mutually affected, and from which springe a spontansous love at first sight. No, it way deeper, holier; it was the love of two natures well met. When I proposed marriage I was not accepted on account of wealth; it was out of pure love, and way that I pressed her to my heart, and-well, hardly remember how many times I kissed her. Of eourse I was aware that the judge would offer no objection to our union, nevertheless it wan hothered me not a little. Many an off-hande fellow would have settled such a simple affair in trice, and took it all ae a matter of bueiness; hut
I-ah, well, I had some of my baokwardness left. I shall never forget the humorous scene that onsued when I tried to unhosom myself to the judge. Lizsie was in the parlor on my arrival, hut away. My legal adviser was in one of his hest humors, and $I$ immediately went to husiness.
you that I have, or at least I would like toknow if there could hy any posibility he a fiaw in the lease you had drawn up for my tenant yestorday ?"
"Oh
"Oh, oertainly not, eir ; oertainly not. One of my best myself."
"Well, there is another matter I wish to spenk a-how do you find legal husiness, now, sir? But-a-an I was saying- you know, sir, the courne of human events it of necessary for a man to-to-of course you under stand me?
" Perfect
"Perfectly, my dear hoy, perfeetily
But that "perfectly"
But that "perfectly" seemed to me as a matter of counte, for in place of naying "God hiess you, my hoy," and auking whloh was tha happy day, he hopt slience, and I was just a little confueac. "Well, sir, you know that aff to our let. You underatand-"
"Oh, yes, perfectly. You otjeot to a fair heing eld in your lot, and you desire me to-" "No, no, sir; I was going to ask you for
"You
" You ซere ahout to remarik
"I चas going to say-s
"Yes, Mr. Dimple-be ## going to say-a-" "Yes, I was going to remark that-" "That you were about to - to

"Eh? yes, that's it-or I mean-a-Ah, my dear frienth, that is it exsotly. I have
I
aid hate in his chair and Inughed loudly; and when he recovered himaself and tried to speak he relspred into another fit, and laughed louder and longer, while I sat looking very sheepish. But the longer, while I sat looking very the dear old fellow came to my rescue.
"Not over your hack wardness yot, Charley? thought you had aequired a good deal of assurance by this time, still I suppose you only acted as a perhaps, mand very like human nature. You wis my consent; you have it, my hoy, and always hsi it. Nay, it gives me pleseare to know that I am oonsigning Lizzie to your care, and I feel a les bifted off my heart; for my years are beginning to weigh me do an any moment. Yet I will find it hard t part with her who has heen the light of my horae so long, hut an old man must not be selfiah. No know that you are getting one who has never been opoiled by the affectations of knows how to make home happy.
The day we appointed for the wedding 600 drew near, and as we were sitting chatting in th the day, the judge proposed that, as I might get the day, the judge proposed that, as I might get oonfused during the performance of the ceremony, he would put us through the marriage form, so 20 to give me a slight idea as to how I should act To this we agreed; a servant was called as witness, the various questions put and answered, oertificat signed, &e., and the judge pronounced me perfec The day following I went to New York on busines and returned in three days, bringing with me handsome plece of wbitesatin for Lizzie's wing gaze "hen the judge came in.
"This is for the dress, sir," said I.
"What dress do you refer to, Charley ?"
"Why, for the wedding when we get maried, cou know."
"No man shall ever marry you to $m y$ disughter
The judge was looking "awfally severe," but ought I sama merry twinkle in his eye.
"I am in eamest. You are a married man!" Oh, the horror of that moment! My dresm of happiness eo rudely broken! I was almont " $W$ hat is the necessity of an explanation, my dear, when you know that you are a married woman!
Then there was a mingling of masculine groans and femining screams, and I forgot my disporition," and grew indignant.
"How dare you, presume,
"How dare you, presume, sir," said I, " to
"There, Charley, my hoy," interrupted the udge, his frown giving way to smiles, "pray do not get into a passion. Every word that I baid was truc. You are both married-to each other.
I amatice of the peace, you know, and ean take -in the matrimonial way-upon myself. Excuse a practical joke, my
A light hroke over me.

And that mock oeremony was- It was a real ceremony. You both gave four onsent to everything, and committed matrimony unwittingly
Lizzie and I looked at eash other; to be married four days and know nothing ahout it was-mell, it Was too han; the joke was altogether too practical
But after all I considsred myself a lucky dog.
保 But after all I considsred myself a lucky dog.
Had it not heen for " that little affair of the tres sas3" I should never have found my treaoure; an the judge's way of marrying ue anved me, very hlundero. So I took Lizzie home, and soon after that the judge sold his property, and then he and mother and Lizzie and I all lived together at Th mother a Willow.

NATCHITOCHES.

NATCHITOCHEs takes its name from an Indian

 Our Ar int, who entered with Bankels
the failhal eketch whied wepresent, Croestag Cane Fuver.

THE VIOLETS.

BY JULIE LEONAED.
Down where the river and little brook mee Under a tuft of hright green grass, Hidden away from the wandering feet Of any who ohinced to pass, Nestled a kniot of violets blue, Thst hathed in the sun and drank in the dow, and suw in the river their own rare hue

They hloomed in the sunlight, 80 warm avd gay,
And suilingiy welcomed each passing shower They lsughed at the brook as it ran arway And past their little hower.
They loved the eoft hreath of the balmy air, and breathed out a fragranse rich and rare, In the heart of each swest fows.

No rude hand pluoked them from out their place,
Away from that eool and shady Epot,
But the soft wind kissed them with soft embrace,
To show they were not forgot;
And day after day the a weet song of the bird And the cry of the chirruping oricket were hsard, And blessed its quiet lot.

Which was the Cruilty Consin?

A Mongreur de Bougantyille, who committed snicide at the Pulais Royal, in August, 1789, in consequence of ruinous losees at play, lef ittle removed from destitution. The young lidy little removed from destitution. The young had Fas in her seventeenth year; not at all attraotlve in person; and the only resource left her was to mhrace the profession of a nun. Though piousl enough disposed, ehat resigne harselir wocation; but ultimately, yielding to neoessity, she entered an Urauline convent, near Paris, the regular confesso Lafont, an venerable priest, who had from his youth officiated at the church of Nótre Dame. Julie de Bougsinvile believed herseif to have relative nearer than a far-off cousin, M. Dupié, notary in extensive practice, through whos influenoe she obtained admittanoe amongat, the Unuline sisterhood. Her father's only brother
Alexis de Bougainvile, had emigrated when qulte Alexis de Bougainvile, had emigrated when quer roung man, though a widower, to the Brazile, where young man, though a widower, to remarried ; but full ten ysars having elepsed since he was last heard from, he was concluded to he dead. His first wifs had a boy-child when he in the her-Alphonse Bertin, whowase Bertin' in the notere Le Gros, the only son of the fir Madame Alexis Bougainville's sister, had reached the grads of lieutenant in the 2 d of the line. He had served with some distinction, in Amerion, under Lafayetto. To esoh of these young men 2 , Alexis de Bougainville had frequently bent pre sents, though never such oostly ones as Les Gros were hoth on very friendly terme with Mademoiselle de Bougainville, whom they had accusmoiselle themselves to address as "Ma Cousine." The young Bertin ras held in high enteem by
M. Dupré; and an acquaintance whoh he had formed with a very pretty, very elever, very designing modiste, and daughter of a madisto, Josephins Ramon, gave the notary muoh uneasiness. He had often, and warmly, expostulated with the had often, lover, but upon that point with the infatuated lover, but upon that point Alphonse was obstinate, inflexible, and there apparared in doubt that appparedmato his folly by marrisge. Eugène Le consumma Gros was also an admirer of the fasoinating modiste, though not to the extent of desiring to modiste, though not to the extent of dasining to share with her and atarve upon his lieutenant'e pay. M. Dupre had always manifested what Alphonse Bertin deemed an unreasonahle antiputhy towards Le Gros. The notar Such was the state of things in general, when one twelve months after June and, of conree many more hef Jre it would have heen possihle for her to take the irrevocable vow, a leter reaohed $M$. Dupré, from Brasil, which at onve entirely changed the aspect of affairs. It was a eommulle lean, Irom a Brazilian lawyer, announcing the death. ainville. He had died wifeless-childless. Madame Bougainville and their offapring, two girls, had been orrried off hy fever within a few days of esoh other. The euddenness of the stroke oompeeteiy hroke down the aiready farvived the calamity a few weeks only. He had some time before realised his propery, with a vewtis, all of wich French or rather European securities, all or which, ( $$ 120,000$ ), was devised by hia latent testamentary disposition to Julie de Bougainville, his niece, with the exception of twenty thousnad hich wived alphons Bertin and Eugene Le Cros. Should, however, bequest to her, whioh must be permanently invested in the Frenoh funds, would go to Alphonse Bertin-minus thirty thousand francs to e paid to Eugene Le Gros. And in case of Bertin tered legatee. The Brazilian lawyer coneluded hy requesting instructions as to the ehannel hy whlo the legacy should he transmitted to Parla, &o.
Over thia letter M. Dupré must have pondere long and anxiouely; since, aocording to his own sworn testlmony, it was not till a weels after receiving it that he disciosed the important intelli-Le Gros did he let fall a hint of the matter.

The notary, as alresdy stated, felt a strong affeotion for Alphoose-could zearcely have loved him better had he been bis own son; and he flally determined upon a achome for breaking off the young man's connection with Josephine Ramon, and manrying him to Mademoisell- de Bougainville. long eonference with his protegé renulted in a promiss on the part of Alphonse to give up the madiste nind marry Julie de Bougainville, who was to be kept io ignorance of the bequest till some time after wedlock. At first it was settled that, as Julie Dupre should take the necestary steps for withdrawing her from the convent, and she conseotiog, of whioh no douht seems to have been eotertaincd, celebrate the marriage cpeoly. Two or three hours afterwards Alphonse Berth, who, meanwhile, hsd seen Jorephine, objected to such haty proceed-inga. He himself required time for reflection-say a fortulgbs. Finding the young man had taken his resolution, the notary yielded, and advinced him a considerable eum of money; soon after receiving whioh, Bertin, "twho was much flurried and excited," quitted the house. A few lioes, traced in peonde coon a scrap of paper and left upon a table in his bedroom, apprised M. Dupré that he should not return till the fortnight's grace agreed upon bsid expired.
Two days after that period hadelapsed Alphonse relurned to the notary's late at night, on foot, and in a very strange condition; his clothes were torn and soiled, his face soratehed and hloody. He was mucb egitated-said, in a confused, inceherent manner, that he had heen ssaaulted and robbed by a wornan and a man. He could dencribe neither of them; and upon heing aaked where, or near where, the assault and robhery had taken plaoe, replied, "Nes, itating pasee from a cabaret oalled Le Lion d'Or, where I passed the evening Tbe next
Tbe next morniog he informed the notary that he had finally decided upon marrying Mademoiselle he had finally decided upon marrying Mademoiselle de Bougainville, and it would be well that the affair should be put in train at once, lest he might change his mind. M. Dupte, much pleased, deolared he his mind. M. Dupte, much pleased, declared he bour at latest. When the notary was about to depart the vacillating young man solicited a short delay, and being refused, for M . Dupré would be trifed witb no longer, he turned pale as paper (pale comme du papier), and hut for a glass of brandy given bum by the coneiirgs, wonld, the conoierge thought, have fainted outright. I should young man of an unusually sensitive, exelts ble young man of temperament.
M. Duprés
im to the Ursubiolet was not long in conveyin hira to the Ursuline Convent. The porter at the tache that had once belonged to a regiment recruited exclusively from the ranks of the ruffianry of Paris, received him with an impudent grin, and the remark, in an undertone, ae M. Dupré passed on, that the mother superior would bear her stray lamh sooner than sbe expected.
Utterly confounding news greeted M. Dupréfrom the aevere lips of the mother eupenior. Mademoi-selie Julie de Bougainville-Sister Marie Agneshad surreptitiounly left the convent the previous eveniog, and had not since been heard of. A messenger way at that moment on the way to inform senger wat at his ward's inexplicable, disgraceful light.
Those
Those words were scarcely uttered when a com the apartment.
"Our seareh," said he, in a sad, feeling tone, "hae been successful-too successtul. We found a wet diteh, about a mile away. She has been cruelly murdered. Upon the unfortunate'e peron," continued the officer, consternation and hor for holding his audiors dumb-"upon the unforspotet this newly-torn-off fragment of cloth. They added the offieer, addressing M. Dupré, "is men tiooed in the paper.
"My namel"

Your name. I may not part with the note for on instant; but I will reed it to you. The hand is vidently a diaguised one
"Maderoleevle DE Bovgargyille-You are intended to he the vietim of an in amous plot, arintended to he the vietim of an infamous plot, ar ranged and the ohirf parts filied up, by the mother superter, the notar Dupre, and his favorite, Al superior, the notar, Dupté, and bes favorite, Al phonse Bertin. The objectis to secure end divid smongut them an inmonse fortune begueathed to mongut them an immense fortune bequeathed to you by M. Alexu do B angainvill, your not long ince deceased unole Acordiog to the terms o since deceaned unoie Accordiog to tbe terms of the will, you will forfeit the beque should you ever become a protesed nun-your unce, thongh
you may not be aware of it, hs ving a rooted aver.
 agree to divide if equally with the mether superic (who througb some iodiseretion, pot neent of th secret) and the iotary Dupit. It has been only b secret) and ihe notary Dupit. It has been only by a providential cosnce that I have discovered it.
you know, was a friend of your father, and I will see jusice done to his daugliter. Come to evening. You know the way to the Chatean d Aix
It in long aod solitiry, but you pill see a man in green bloune, and wearing a glazed round hat, bore you have come far He will safely escort, you Say not one word to a living noul; I will acqualn you witb oogent reasons wby you must not, tul you sire kafe wib me ; act openly. "Maris Cotilanese." "Tbe infamous calumniatorl the vile assassin tbe lyiog impoator!" exclaimed the mother supe re or. "Madame Coulanges died more than a moot since, and the CLatean d'Air is untenanted. That, however, was not likely to be known here." however, was not likely to be known here."
"True," said the commirssary; "and the hand writing, though, as I have said, disguised, is evidently that of a man. Don't you think so, M. dentry fon
"Gre at God!" exclaimed the notary with a shud
"Alphoose Bertin is the marderer!"
The commissary and his aids did not fiod Alphoose Bertin at the notary'. He want out, the conceierge anid, noon aftor M. Dupré, and had not sinec returned. But they found the young man' sinee returned. But they found the young man's soiled and torn coat, from which the piece of eloth found near the corpse had unquentionshly heen rent. This proof of Bertin's guilt seemed conclusive, irrefragable.

A few hours later he was diseovered in a state of semi- io toxication, at a low cabaret in the Faubourg Thiot Maroel, zeized and presently lodged in prison.
The trial wai a mere formality. The accused, The trial was a mere formality. The accused, tories of the judgees, that he had not mentioned M. one, subsequently declased that or legacien to aoy Ramon, to whom he was madiy attached, in the hope that the would consent to share the wealth as his mistiess, which he could only obtain by espousing Mademoiselle de Bougainville. He aleo etoutly averred that it was in compliance with a measage delivered by a person unknown to him, and eaid by that person to he from Mademoliselle Bamon that perison to he from Mademoiselle Ramon, that he had gone to the place where he was assaulted and robbed expecting to find her there. He also strenuously deoied all knowledge of the letter found upon the murdered girl's person, or that he was the person who hiribed Jules Bart, the porter at the convent, to deliver any letter or message to Mademoiselle de B ng inville. All these assertiona were flatly contraticted. Josephine Ramon swore that he had never spoken to her or M. de Bougarnvile' per overtares, which had led to a violent quarrel between them. As to her having sent him a mesange to mett her on the evening the murder was committed, that was a pure invention. Not only tbe experts but M Dupre himself, reluctantly gave the experts, but M Dupre himself, reluctantly gave his opinion that the note purporliog to be tigned hy Marie Coulsoges wae in the handwriting, anxiously disguissd, of the aceused, and Jules Bart rovndy swore that he was the man calling himself Monsieur Maillard, who gave him tuo louis.d'or Monticur Mailard, who gave him two louis-dor privately to place a note in Mademoliselle de Bougainville's kand. He had once before seen the prisoner, and heard his name mentioned, and consequently knew, though the accused suspected it not, that M. Maillord was M. Bertin. Finally, the prisoner was convicted of homieide with premeditation, aod centenced to be guilletined.
Father Elienne Lafont, confessor of the Ursuline He had been heard to express a very decided opinion that the handwriting of the letter subscribsd
Marie Coulanges was nnt the handwriting of Alphoose Bertio, hut a clumsy imitation of it. Not, however, being an expert, he was not allowed to also deciared (hautemont) that he did oot altach the sli, htest value to the evidenee of either Josephioe Ramon or Jules Bart-knowing hoth of them phioe Ramon or Jules Bart-knowing hoth of them as he did well. After the condemnation of the plisoner, he, at his own in of priest, with Bertin, which strengthened his convietion of the unfortunate man's innocence. Lafont bad intimate relations witb several highly iofluential personages, sentence wae at length obtainedthe galleys for life being eubstituted for death on to have heen absent at Amiens at the time of the murder-reported only to have heen there-eagerly supported, as did M. Dapıé, M. Lafont's efforts to save his cousin's life. This did not involve any great sacrifiee on his part; the eivil death of Bertin sufficed to entitle the lieutenant to M. Alexis Bougninville's wealth.
The Bertin-Bougsinville sffair was fast dying out of public memory when it was revived by the marriage of Eugèse Le Gros with Josephine Ramon. So strange a union excited much remark, and enpecially gave color and consisteace to the vague suspicions whioh, since the Irial, had haunted Lafont. He was hold enough, impruden snough if you will, to endeavor to induce the public prosecutor to resift the whole of the circumatances This, however, was $r \in f u s e d$, hut tbe attempt, and upported, must have grefatly cxanperated Eugène Le Gros and his wife. Father Lafont was quite wware that he had made a mortal enemy of tha Warvenut modiste and her uxorious husband, and ne several times remarked to his friends that be church, especially when on his way to or from tbe Ureuline Convent, where, strange to aay, at hi porter. The man was dyiog by inchea of rome nternal complaint which of late had rapudly ight of tim, is the hope that the close approsech f deatb might terrify him into making a reveistion bat would be serviceable to Alphonse Bertin. much longer than bad been declared pos ible by be medical attendant. At last the summons ame, and Jules Bart was told that, internal mortification having taken place, he had but a few hours at the most to live. The.terifind viretch and Jules Bend forther Lofont. This was doos, having made his confsesicn. Lafont, who ap peared to be stranjely agita'ed wben leaviog to mother superior, the purport of which was, that the depurted inner had mide iwpertant dis. closures-not under the seal of oonfeasion, whicb in fulfilment (f the morlbuod A own request, h should communloate without delay to the crimioal auchorities. Bart had also warned him that he

Which they soon would, that he had baen with him (Burt) in his last moments, the prieat's life would be in imminent danger. Father Lafont sard he believed that to he true, and be would therefore hasten at once hack to Paris, so as to reath it before evening had quite closed in. The good father then leff, walking at his fastest pace. may here add, th was discovered that Jules Bart, felon-tbe letters T. F. beiog hranded on his shoulder. The fact was known hy the surgeon before Lafont wae sent for, and Bart, perceiving his secret was discovered, muttered a malediction upon Eugène somebody-the surname was not caught hy the hearer-who knew that too, and ong ago.
Father
Notre Lafont never returned to the eathedral Noire Dame. Rigorous inquiries mere insticoted, hut without nny result: no trise of him could be found. The Revolution wne fast leehiog itself into frenzy of rage, especially agarnst prients, and it wrs thought probable that he had been massacred in the streets, as on the asme eveniog two other persons were. The objection to that surmise was that the body could not be found. Apother year rolled a anay; the population of Paris was drunk with hlood, snd amidet those who, from some cause or no caune at all, wera ${ }^{\text {trinung up }}$ ì la lanterne, was M. Eugène Le Gros. His wife was seized at the enme moment, a would have ehared his fate, but that she was recogoised by an infuential ruffian, and declared by him to be, iostead of a bloated aristocrate, a hard-working modistc, one of themseivee. Sbe was released, and reached bome in safety, but never recovered the shock sustained by her nervous system-never afterwarda left tbe house. Sbe survived the fall of Robespierre a few months, hut for long previous to deatb her mind was completely sleeping snd waking dreams she often gave sbrieking atterance. Those diatempered ravings were who knew nothing of her antecedents, solely to the effect (f extreme nervous terror; her talk-demons, possensing her at such times that sbe was alill struggliog with the sanguinary ruffians from whom he had once so narrowly escaped.
Shortly before her deatb, and when it was rident to Dr. Petit that the end was very clone a hand, that gentleman bethought him that the ministrations of a priest, tacitly permitted by the rulern who had succeeded Bobesplerre, mig" halp Dr. Petit, "askad my frieod the Abbé Delmar, who, as it chanced, had once lodged at Madame Ramon'u for a short time. He perfectiy remembered the handsome, sprightly Joseppine, hut, having been several years absent from Parla, had never heard of her marriage. He was consequently much surprised to find that the mistress of the mansion to wbicb I conducted

"Madame Ramon's daughter

Madame Le Gros was dozing," said Dr. Petit, where she lay reclined upon a luxurious conch The ahbé was not in clerical costume, in order that she might be informed I had taken the liherty to bring a priest to apeak with her gontly, tenderiy
It was not long hefore she opened her eyes, It was not long hefors she opened her eyes, awaking in much calmer mood than uaual. Her glanoe firat rested upon me, and a faint, sad amile sently she noticed the abhé, and a slight scream eacaped hor ; and helf risiog from the eouch, she gazed with inteose sarnestuess in his face, whilst mutteriog to herself, 'I know-I rememher-the Abbé Belmar-the good $\Delta b b$ Delmar. That was Hark!' she suddendly exclaimed, breakiog of abruptly, 'Hark! he is coming upstairs. You anr a hris atealthy etep. Save me, save me! Youn fling hack, shaking in every limb witb terror, of some one ascending the stairs to drag her a way was a frequent one, and when I happened to be door, and peremptorily forbiddiog the intruder' approach. I did so upon the present occakion.
Merci! Merci!" gasped the wretehed woman. He is going back. But he will come again when fild eagerness, 'you, the good abbes tre a pricst, and could spriokle ths dark, damp greve with holy water, ao that he could never come out of it again. $\mathrm{Go}, \mathrm{go}$, at once! Not jou-only the priest; yon stay with me. Go-the cellar, that fartheat off Ah, the dnor is strongly barred; yet he can pass through; nad why not you ? Go, go, go
"The abbé at a sigo from me left the room, as if to comply with her behest. She sat listening intenty for a while; but before he returned dozed off again, and, summoning her attendant, we left. Tbat night sbe died
"Tbe strange faney which so coostantly haunted out of the cellar, to drag her awny, slruck, me as so very odd that I at once asked the servant if there was a strongly-secured barred-up cellar. Sbe snid there was I mentioned the reply to the abbe, aod he, who had quickly ferreted out all about tbe D of police, that fuoctionary to the officer of gendalmea who discovered the corpse of the murdered Ju'ie, and who of course koew all about the whose opiaion of AI. and Mma. Le Gros he was moreover well acquainted. Tbe zenlous officer broke his why into the cellar, found it empty, and vet his men to work digging up the floor. Agrave was found in which a human beiog, an aged man, had been buried, Quicklime had beent thrown upon tate, and ouly a few bonas ware left as well as the husband, and threatened with the peoasties of the law any and evary ons who ahould dars question the perfeet innoeence of their decensed relatives. An to Alphonse Bertin, to convioce the Directory or the Conaula that the conviction in his case was wrong proved to be impossible. Probnhly neither of thene exalted pertonsges ever took the trouble of giring the memorials upon the subjeot forwarded to their migbtinesses a conscientious, careful psrusal Alpboose Bertin Altimately from Frinee, during the Bagne, and Consulnte, and, I suppose, sought refuge and Consulnte, and, I suppon peace in the New World."

GOLD IN NEW YORK

The rise and fall of gold during the war has bein 3 problem, and to ensble aome foture favestigalor to study the ressoos and canef, an anterpris. tigalor to study tbe ressoos and canaes, an antergris. taile, showing its variatioos. $\Delta$ table cloesly ruled under the influsoce of aobriety $\rightarrow$ making a quaer z/g. zgg sorosa, is not a very atractive pioture. Ws ohronicle the gold fevar in our way, by giviog diuntratioos of sceoen on the afreet this week. Never had epeco Intion run rist an it bse lately dene.
Gold had been for ced up, up up. But tbere came a orahh. The prectoun metal whilob bad reached the or abilons beigbt of 189 , orme down to 171 , and on its dismay if Wall strect bud filling it witb lame ducka.

 brokers wbo attended regularly for the purp se. TTE urdor witb which the fair wives hod daughters of ruln ig known.
In the meanwhle a new fever arose among mer-secure su early place. Others s soght to buy jomme who bid beares places for the purpose sold out, whe Our sketobes sbow not only the building and thase noeoes, but the coosequencts. The mibor, the gold

WEIGHING ARMY RATIONS.
ARMY rations! In all the reports of armies, eampaige, , marobes and alicget, cto our realers often refect on the hard fare to whileb, for three years ofnd more over a million of min have been reand dadeed : the hard bisouit, the sslt meat, weigbed out with scrupulous fidelity, as though too preolous to be

Broons's Pitent Writing, Work and

 Once upon a tine there dwelt in the village of L no fillow who was koown as old Pele. He Was notd for knowing everything tbat happsied be-

An Irishman, who had horrowed some

"A Frog," says Professor Bump, "is an anh how wis foresor Bupp, is

[^10]"OUT OF THE DEPTHS."
Mesavirng time by agony! Quisering, pierced humanity! None to soothe me when I weep, Nor one hour of vigit keep;

Measuring time by agony 1 Cbeasiling looks are east on me;
None to touoh my aching brow, Noving words to whisper low;
No, not ons : Measuring time by agonyl Agony for harmony! N grisve, Nors the ligbt with dark to wase;
No, not one No, not one
and
Measuring timan by agony!
Why unfold my misery None but strangers pass this wny, None burstrang
None who care with me to stay;
No, not one!

Measuring timo hy sgony! Day is turned to night for me Day is turned to night for me, Sun, nor moon, nor star see ;

The Gulf Between Them.

by mat, Anns. Stephens.
Tue pair of subls retainers went on with their conversation, totally unconscious of the listener they bad hid, and when the interest oonnected with that eubject bad culmianted divergiog to themes that oubjeet bad culminated diverpiog to themes more intimately sonneettsd with their own affiris. more intimataly sonnectsa
One of ths cbief desirec of 'Dolph ${ }^{\text {'s }}$, soul wss to find out exaotly he bed never besn able, with all hit arts, to bring her to that point of oonidence when she would make him a partner in that deurest secret of her life.
The other servants and her friends in the neigh horthood gave very contradictory aecounts concerning the amount, and Victoria openiy avowed her belief tbat"De whole ting was junt gammon-dian' Wileve
he had no money no thar-she know'd she was she had no money her only obance of ketehin' beau, so she tried it on."
But 'Dolph was too wise to be influenced hy Vle-- torin's toria's sneers, and he had lately become convinced that the sum was a larger one tban he had at first that the sum was a larger one than he hat at irst folly of allowing his faney to stand in the way of his interest. Aiready he had incurred diloriqdo serious displeasure by kis behavior on difierent occasions; it hed required a vast amount of eloquenee casions;
to reconcile
matters ster his ind strange young woman at old Mother Hopking's, and his firtations with Victoria were a oonstant hone of contention betwsen them.
'Dolph felt certain that if he only came directly to the point and made Clorinda a bona-fide offer of his hand with his beart in it, she would melt like honey osndy in the enn, but it required a good de of resolntion to make up his mind to tbat atep. Clorinda was not prepossescing in her appsa Ciorinda was not prepil fiesids would have been forced to admit; probably even in her youth she forced to admit; probil as ugty a young darkey as might have pased for ar
could easily have been found, and now that years could easily have been found, and now that years and avarice and a not very patient temper had worn their furrows in her face, it reilly required all the glitter of her reported wealth to able in 'Dolph's mercenary eyes.
able in 'Dolph's mereenary eyes.
Then her oolor and her frized locks at which Then her oolor and her frizzed locks at whick Victoria aneered so opuly-bat was a tender Voctoria eneered so opse the tre contempt for point with Dolph he had the jettr hue thich one is certain to find among the jetty hue which one is certain
'Dolph stood there looking at Clorinda and revolving all those things in his mind, while she washed away at her vegetables and made harseir husy as pousible at the kitchen dressers. husy as pousible at the kitchen drebsers.
"Dis life is full of mysteriousneas, "Dis life in full of mysteriousne.
rindy, he sind snipped off the tops from the
Was preparing for her soup and assented.
Was prepa
"Dar
sloomily,
gloomily. into one of her dasp ponding humors she became very relisious without delay; anless be couid get her off that tack he would most certsily be cot temned to Me
"Don't say dat, fair Miss Clorindy, now don't t" he exclinimed. pathectionly. "Yous de dishois thoo mat lights der hearta as do sun does de aky at noondat ligh
day."
Clor
Clorinds simpered; with all her firmness and numerous other grim virtues, she was a thorough roman at heart, and neved.
"Go long with your pooty nonsense," said she iving a coquettish loas to her head that made the little frizzed knobs below her gorgeous handsnna flutter ahout as if auddenly electribod. " $G 0$ ' $w a$ vid sich, I anay."
"Don't call it nonsense, sweet Mias Olorindy," urged 'Dolph, in a more insinuatiog tone; "when gemman disposes the tenderent fesiin
To he called hy auoh endearing epi
To he called hy nuoh endearing epithots in two this tipe something uncommon muot he comingDoiph certainily was in earnest.
"I don't see nothin' at my feet," said ske, with Hittle e iggle.
"Yes, yer d Yes, yer does, Miss Clorindy," plesded 'Dolph "Lal" ssid Clorinds, with another gigglo foll o delighttul flurry, "You men is so oonfusin. "I dn't mean to bo confusin', Miss Clorindy," said Dolph; "it's far from my wishes-ient way wid you.
There wns a tonder emphasis on the concluding pronoun which quite upsst Clorinda. Sbe allowed the oarrots to fail back in the pan of water, and seated harseif on a stool naar by-if anything serious wan coming she would receis it with the dig. nity sbe oonaidersd befitiog tha oconsion. Artful 'Dolpb, profound in his knowledge of the sex, rasd her thoughts without the slightsast difitoulty, and his vanity chuckled in wardly to 88 how impossibls it waif for any female heart to rexir his perplexity; he had no intention of committing himself untill he had learned the exact price Clorioda could pay for the sacrifice he was prepared to make of his youth and good-looks. On the other band, he was aorely puszled how to acquire the informa tion he desired without layiog his hasit at her feet; he had tried various plans and they had all signally failed; in that respeot to be fully his match.
But he must say something; in a moment morc Clorinda might flo unce off in one of her tempors, and 'Dolph could not afford to lobe tims in misunderatandings, particularly as be had lately discovered tbat the sable parson whose meetings she attended was becoming quits devoted in his attentions.
"Ab! Mins Clorindy," said he," de sect is al resemblous in one leetio particiar." Clo , in a lan-
"What do yer mean ?" inquired vishing way, wbich she thougbt becoming in re"In to the tenderness of his voics Miss Clorindy."
"Lawn, nobody ebber said I was oruel," returned the matter-of-fact Clo. "I wrings de necks 0 de ehickens and skins de eels alive, 'cause it's a ook's lookout, but I hain't got a speck of cruelty 'Dolph shook his head, then dropped it on one ide with an air which he had found very killing in ormer flirtations, and replied:
"In course ye"ll
"I don" know what yer mean," said Clorind beginning to resume a little of her usual rigidity 'If yer ain't a talkin' Spanish now, it's jist a " bad " allude indulge." "I " "I don't," said Clo; "I leaves all sich foolish patience wid'em,"
"Oh! Miss Clorindy, Miss Clorindy!"

Dat's my name, fast 'nuff; yer needn't go shouting it out dat awsys."
"When I'se seed wid Dolph. bestin' round de hush."
"lo began to hush."
"I Clo began to simper agsin; she really helleved her witb a delicious thrill-triumphs of that sort were sufficiently rare in her experience to be oxceedingly precious.
"But I don' know what yer mean," shewent on,
no more'n de man in de monn."
"Dar it ist" sald 'Dolpb. "Why, I h'lieves dat ar's de only reason de sect looks at de moon, cause dar's a man in it,"
"Ob, he's too far off" "Ob, he's too far off," returned Clo, with a pro
 "Bery good," said ${ }^{\text {Bolph }}$, "bery good, Here he sighed dolefully
"Wal," said Clo, "if I be, "taint no reason for ou to be gwaning like a steam engine.
"Oh, yes it is," repied 'Dolph.
"Oh, yes it is," replied 'Dolpb.
He oertainly was in earnest this
He oertainly was in earnest this time-Clo felt assured of that. Sbe forgot the half-washed vegetables, the unseasoned soup, and still tried to look more hewftching in his eyes.
"I don' see why," she said, in sweet confusion. "But any how yer didn't prove nothin' 'bout my bain' coquettious.
bain coquitious.
"Dnr it is 1 " cried 'Dolph. "It all goes to"geder." laws," oried Clo, lightly, "an of dat ar would set you a sighin'; I knows a heap hettes'n dat, Mister 'Dolph.' Tolph, seriously, putting on an injured loak "olph, eeriously, putting on a
" yer neber has done ree justice."
"yer neber has done ne justice." "Why, what have I done now demanded Clo, heginning to play with her apron string.
"Yer knowz," said 'Dolph, prolonging the ituation as much as possible, in the hope that situation as much as possible, in the hope that some bright thought would strike him hy which the conversation might be led round to tha auhject uppermost in his worldly raind; "yer knows very well" Why,
said Clo.
"No, Miss Clorindy, no ; don't say dam keerlens "ngo-don't! I ain't a makin' you nothin', onil If Clo did not blush it was only because nature had deprived her of the dangerons privilega, but ahe fell into a state of
"Dar ye go azin,
me cruel, or else say why
"Diph.
Dolph. noursa ye did; ws was to Mra. Hopkina'a
"In
arter de mextin"."
arter de mentin'"
"And wannt Eldes spote dar, too $F$ "
"In oourae he was; yer known it well enoutio."
"I knows it too well," said Dolph, in a tragic "Law sakss, what has he done to you, Mr. "'ph ${ }^{\text {L" }}$ "Dar's whar de coqusttations comes in," eonnued 'Dolph; "' dat's jis' de subjeo' I'm 'prosehin' "Me!" cried Clo, in delightfal innocences "Laws, ye was fascinated wid dat Vic."
"I'ne neber too busy to reservs you, hies Clorindy," said Dolph; "wherever I may be, whatever my ockipation, I'se eyce fur you."
"Oh, laws!" sighed Clo. "Ob, lawsy me!" "And I seed you," pursued 'Dolph; "I seed de Ider a bending over ye, a whisperin' in yer ear."
"Oh, git out!" cried Clo. "He didn't do no sich." "Oh, git out!" cried Clo." He didn't do no sich."
"Ob, yes, he did, Miss Clorindy; dese eyes sten "Ob,
it."
"Wal
"Wal, he was a axin' me if I was gwine to orme "msatin' more reg'lar dan I had ob late"" "It took him a great while to ax," said 'Duiph, the sams gloomy tone.
"He's a bery pleasant man, de

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { He's a bery pleas" } \\ & \text {; "bery pleasant." } \end{aligned}
$$

Dey say he wants a wife," obser red 'Dolph. "Do dey ! Mebby he do ; $I$ ain't in his secrets," But yer will be, Clorindy, yer will bs."
"Mel Tain't no ways likely; don' 'spect I hall."
"Ob,
Ob , yes, yer will," iusisted 'Dolph.
He was serious, and Clo began to grow dizzy at
"I jis' b'lieve he's a sarpint in disguise," said Dolph, with grent energy; "one ob de wast kind ' 'Laws, Mr. 'Dolpb, don't say sich tbings; he's quite a shinin
"It's a light 1 'd like to squineh," erisd ' $D$, lph "It's a light I'd like to squinch," erisd 'D Iph, and if he pokes himasel 0 it." Clo gave a shrill squeal, and csught his arm, as earch of the elder, and put his menace into ins ant execution.
"Don't kick up a muse wid him," she pleaded:
why should yer ?"
"It 'pends on yer, Miss Clorindy."
"Lsws, how?"
"Yer know; ds 'eouragement yer'va ben a givin' him is 'nuff to drive yer admirers out $0^{\prime}$ der senses."
" Ob ,
"Ob, de
"It's true," answered 'Dolph, "an' yer knows it But ye're received in dat man, Misa Clorindy. yer is! He's got both eyes fixcd on de gilterin druss. 've heerd him talk bout de fortin yar had, an' how it rud set a pusson up, an'
might do wid it 'mong de heathan."
Clo gave another acream,
cry of indignation and wrath.
ry of indignation and wrath.
"Spend my money 'mong de henthen!" the cried. "Ird pull his old wool fur him, I will."
'Doiph smiled at the success of his falsehood, and made ready to clinch the nail after driving it
"Dst's what he tinks anyhow. Why, Mis Clorindy, he was a tryin' to find out jist how muob yer was wath."
Clo, angrily, "folks needn't be a pumpin' me Clo, angrily, taint no uss.
"Jis' what I've alleris said," remarked 'Dolph, with great eurnestness; "sich seorets, says $I$, is
"Yes, dey be," said Clo, holding on to the sides of her stool as tughtly as if it had heen the box which contained her treasures.
"I've said sometimes," continued 'Dolph, "dat if de day shud eber come when dat parathon ob her sex made up her mind to gib her lubly hand to some true bussom dat lobed her, she'd probably whisper musical in his ear de secret sbe has kent from all de wuld.
Clo was divided hetween the tenderness awakened by his words and the vigilance with which sbe aimays guarded the cutposts leading to her che rished necret.

"Ain't manded.

"I hain't said It warn't,
"Din wuld is fuil of mercenary men," 'Dolph went en, "searohin' for de filty lucre; I'se glad I nebber was one ob dem. I allers has apised de dross; gib me lohe, I says, and peace, Clo played with her apron string again, and looked modestly down; he was going to spenk
now.
But 'Dolph did not know exactiy what to say next without committing himself more deeply than slderably farther than he could wish, hut that was unavoidshle.
"Not hut what fortins is desirous," he eaid,
"oause in dis world people must lib."
Clo assented geatly to that self-evident pro
"Do yer know what I'se often tought, Mi
"lorindy "" said 'Dolph, seizin
" don't," sald Clo.
"'Speat I don't," sald Clo.
to, dat I could take some fair cretur I lobed to my heart, an' dat 'tween us we had money 'nuff to start a restauration or sometin' of dat nort."
Clo sniffed a little.
"In dem places de wuk all oomes on de woman." said sha.
'Dolph was quite aware of that fact; it was the one thing which mede bim oontomplate the idea one thling w with fevor.
"Oh, not at all", he said, "do oookin's a trile "Doy kind o' puzzles me," Clo confided to him sofly. "Taint 'spected in de indies," said 'Dolph; "dey nebher tera."
Tben
Tben 'Dolph sizbed.
"Yer monders what's dz matter," he said; "I was jis lamentin' dat I hadn't ben able to save as much as I could wish, so dat I tould realise my dream." "Lawr," oried Clo, so sgitated and oonfused to hear was about to speak the words he so longed to hear; "how much wud it take? Doss yer tink "I say yer had-Tbe interruption was a crusl one to both the darkeys, though from different reasons; the voioe was Victoria's, and proceeded from the kitohen. "Clo!" she called again, in considerable wrath,
"jis' you answer now, else I'll tell miasus of yor "Clo!
" Cis ! you tricks."
Clo sprang up and flew at her veget ables with great energy, and 'Dolph mounted a couple of steps and appeared to be dilligently searching for something in a closet. Vomething in a closet.
er head angrily when she gaw the pair.
"I 'spose I migbt a split my tbroat callin', and yer souldn't a answered," she crisd.
"I'ge "bout my husiness," said Clo, grimly "jis' mind yours."
"Oh, laws! I'spose Mr. 'Dolph's 'bout his husi'Dolph, rel Vi
"Did yer speak to me , Miss Vlotory ?
"No, I didn't," said she; "but marater whe askin' for ye, and he'll raise hot if yer stays here a gossipin'1

Who's a gossipin' ?" cried Clo; "if ho wants "ometin' in the cappard, mustn't he look to find "Don't be snappin' my hasd off as if yer was an "d turtle," oried Vie, helligerently, "cause wont stan it! he wants lunch."
"Wal, it's your place to get de lunch," said
"'Taint," eried Vic; "it's Mr. 'Dolph's."
" I 'se comin', ladies," he exelaimed; " I 'se at yer acrvice."
He winked at Clo, out of one eye, smiled at Via ut of the other corner of his mouth, and did his "I want to know whar dem cold ducks is," said Vic.
"Look whar dey be and ye'll find'em," replied Clo, splashing her carrots about in the pan. "Ef tbey hain't gone down dat ol" preacher's thront it's lucky," oried Vio; "but ys"1 ketoh it it throat it's lucky," oried Vio; "but yod ketoh it bey have."
"Don't'cuse me of none o' yer own tricks," re
"Jis' find 'em, den," said Vio, " or I'll go up to "issuas."
You may go to old seratoh, for sll I care," sald cheated out of enraged to think of to be csreful of language o consequences.
"Dat's pooty talk for a meetin'-goor,", cried
vic. "Ill see what de elder tinks of sich," Vic. "Ill see what de elder tinks of sich." Cle turned furiously upon her, but a violent ringing of the librall that Mr. Mellen wa growing impatient, and did not venture on another growing impalay moment'a delay

OEAPTER XXXI.
Trs day was wearing slowly away; a day more errible in its moral darknesa and suspense than perlase. Mr. Mellen waa ongaged with a suocesaion of up in tha library; Elsie took refuge at first in her own chamher, but eithsr nervousness or a desire to talk drove her again to Elizabeth' aroom. Their dressing-rooms were separated by Elizabeth's chamber, so Elsie flung tbe door open and ran into her aister's room, exclaiming

You must let me stay; 1 oan't be alene."
Eilanbeth only replied hy a geature; ahe was walkiagalowly up and down the floor as sbe had been during ail the morning; it was entirely out of her during ail the moraing; ant of physical rest. She left pow door open and extended herpromenade tbrough the scoond chamber into Elsie'a, and then hack, pacing to and fro till she looked absolue.
ed, hut never once pausing for repose.
They were undisturbed, except when one of the servants knocked at the door for ordera, and at eagh request for nervous little cry.
"Tell them not to oome any more," said she.
"Ther must have their orders," Blizabeth re"lied; "come what may, everything muat go on as Elsit shivared down among her cushions and was silent. She had pulled the sofa close to the hearth, gathered a pile of novels about her and sat there trying her best to be oomiortable in her feehle way. length.
"I cannot," replied Elisaheth; and resumed her dreary wilk.
Then there came more intarruptlons, and Vic-

Yon may bring the lunchenn np here," Elisabuth asid to the girl.
"I believe they would coane if we wero dying to Noris wed and know if we would stop to eat,"" cried Risie. "Everytbing must go on as naual," Fas Blizabeth'a answer.
"How'can you stand there and talk no calmily to theml" cried Elsio. "It's enough to drive one frantic."
"It is
"It is too late now to be anything but quiet," Elile hogan some shuddering complaints, but Elixabeth did not wait to heur them; she had reof eager haste, with her cyea seeming to look afar off and unable to fix themselves upon any object in the rooms.
There is anothcr knock," oried Elirie. "Oh,
they'll drive me mad!" they'll drive me mad!"

Come in, ${ }^{v}$ Elis sbetb said.
It was Viotoria with the lunchoon tray, and it to her aatisfaction.
"I brung you some apricot jelly, Miss Elaie,"
he said; "I knowed you had ons of yer headchee."
But Elsie only moaned-perhaps at the mis-Beres fortune of posicens
"Dar's only cold chicken and dat ment pie,"
"There is quite enough," suid Elizabeth; " needn't wait."
"Yes, mise," returned Vio. "I hain't had no time yet to eweep de room Mios Harrison hadClo's, nhe's ugly ns Cain, to day."
Elsie threw dowa ber book in foverish Elith, while Elsie threw dowa ber book in foverish impatience,
"Yes, miss, but 'tnint pleasant" returned Vio, "Yes, miss, but 'tnint pleasant," returned Vio, with her most elegant eurtsev. "I likes to do my when reg'lar and in time, miarus knows dat, bete obryting topay-turvy.
"Then keep out of the kitchen," cried Elaie " don't be quarreling."
"Laws, Miss Elisie," ald Victoria, with all the njured reeignation of euffering innocence; aeber quarr'ls wid nobody, but I defy an angel to git along wid Clo! She's jest de most aggra-vatio' piece daceber wore ahoe leather! She'e so atio 'oause she's gettin' ole dat she hates a young girl wuss nor pison, so she does.
Vic was now fairly started on the subject of her wrongs, and hurried on before Elsie could stop her with all the energy of a belated steam engine. Elizabeth had walked into tho other room, and Victorie, etanding much lese in awe of Elsie than her, took that opportunity to pour out her corrowo with the utmost freedom.
" Miss Elsie, sometimes I tinke I can't atand it I woulda't, nohow, if twarn't fur my affection fur you-yon and mise," Victoris hastened to add within hearing and that the omiesion would be turned to her dinadvantege. "Clo, she gits ag-gravatiner ebery day, gravatiner ebery day, and sence 'Do the's wura'n e bear चid a sore head.'
"Oh, you make mine nehe," cried Elifie.
"Laws, miss, I wouldn't for de worl'."
"Then go along, and let me elecp, ir I ean."
"Sartin, mlas; hut let me do somethin" for y bead." asid Vietoris, out of the goodnees of her
"No, no; I only want to be let alone."
"If yer'd let me bathe it wid cologny," persistod $v_{i=1}$
"I don't want it hathed," fretted Elaie.
Lawn, misa, it doen a heap $0^{\prime}$ good! Pennyryal tea' good-

In eourne I will, misa; but I'd like to do some-
"Then just go away, and don't come up agoin for the next two hours."
"Yes, mine, $\mathbf{T}$ 'll jest-"
"Go out!" ehricked Elase.
I'se only fain' yer cnshins," said Vic. "Dcar me, Niss Elsie, yer allore say I'm real handy when yer hat dem headaehes.
"Oh, I can't bear anybody to-dny."
"Dear me, ain't it a pity! Now, what 'ud be good for yer-" What "Elisabeth," groaned Elsie, this dreadful ereature away l" This time Victoria deemed it most prudent to make where her mistress waa eoncerned. She went out, reiterating her deaire to be useful, and roally very full of sympathy, for the wat kindhearted as posesible, except where her enemy, Clorinda, was in the question.
"Tbey'll kill me, I know they will!" moaned Elaie.
But as Elizabeth did not pay the alightest attention to her complainto, ohe relapsed into silence. Finally, her eye was eaught hy the luneheon-tray; the aprioot jelly looked like a great oval-ahaped Fsdge of amher, the cold chicken was arranged in the dainti-st of sliees, a Elale's apecial favorite.
Elale's apecial favorite.
the hare sight of food, and turned amay her head but lt was only to eneounter the fragrant odor from the teapot, whieh Victoria bad sct upon the hearth. "Could you eat anything, Elizabeth?" ahe said, dejectedly.

No, no; I am not kungry."

But yon never touched a morsel of breakfast, and you ate nothing all yenterday."
"I can't eat now-indeed I ean't," whe Elizabeth's reply.
"Oh, nor II" moaned Elate. "I feel as if a single mouthful would eboks me."
She glanced again towaris the tray, and began to moan and weep.
"On, doar mol

Oh, I wish I were dosd, II do thing, Bentie; don't act so."
But Blizabeth only kept np her nd Blisie was forced to quiet herelif. ow a few moments, but rome magnetion the winear the lunoheon-tray again. She took up a $a$ poon "I terted the aprioot jelly.
I wait things to look as if we had eaten nomsing," she sald, as Elisabeth entered again.
"One ought, I euppose," observed Blaie. thisk I will try and drink a cup of tea-won't you hiok 1 will tr
Elizabeth shook her head, and with renewed righa Elaie poured hersolf out a dioh of tea and eat "On the teble.
"Oh, this wretched day! I'd rather be dead and In an abourd war oh, dear!
In an abourd way she thrust her spoon into the pricot jelly again and etopped her mo eoond with tbe translncent compound.
"I wiah I oould eat; but I can't 1 "
She put a fragmont of ohicken on her plate, made atrong effort and aotually sucoeeded in eating it, while Elianbeth was walkiag through the other ? "I've tried to eat," ehe eeid, when her nlater ap She drank her tea greedily,
She drank her ten greedily.
"I am so thirety; I believe I've got a fever." But Elizsbeth was gone again, and Elaie sat ntaring at the psté-a magnificent affair, she knew is was-one of Moillard's best, full of trufflee av d all sorts of delicious thingas. Sbe feltsomething in her throat, which might have been hunger or might have the latter.
"I feel so
"I feel to weak," the naid, when Elizabeth rethe put her hand in the region where her heal migbt he suppooed to lie.
"You had better lie down," her sister said, absently.
That was not tbe advice Elsie manted or expected, and she oried out, eppamodically
"How oan I kep still
"How oan I kcepstill! Oh, I wish I had some drops or something to take"" drops or something to take?
Sbe moaned eo loudly that Sbe
beth.
"D
"D
Drink yonr tea," she Raid, "and eat something Wannot go without food." " you'd ccme and eit down and have a cup; maybe I could eat then.
"Not now," replied Elizabeth.
The very slight of food was loathsome to he
She had hardly touched a morsel for two days, She had hardly touched a morsel for two days. Elsie attacked the paté, and the jelly, and the picklea, and the custard-oake, and nome crisp little wafers, und, finally, made on excellent meal; all the while declaring that she oould not eat, that every mouthful choked her, that she believed she was dying. To all these complainte Eiizabeth pald as little attention as she did to the meal ahe was making. Elaio went hack to her sofa, feeling somewhat oomforted, and prepared to take a brighter view of thinga. It appeared ponsible now for her to live an thinga. It appeared pornible now for her to live an hour or two longer-a ititle while before the had deelnred that her death might be expected any mo-

Elizabetheme and sit down, Bersie," for abe naid, a
"I'II give you the oofa; you must be tired out."
"No; I amnot tired-I like to walk."
"But I ameure you have heen for three hours
Elizabeth only turned away in silence, but Elale felt so much relieved after her ereature oomforts, that ahe eould not forbear attemptling to in aplre her oister witb a little of the hope whioh had hegun to spring up in her own narrow, little heart
"Oh, Bestie," the eried, "I feel as if this would get over tomehow, I do indeed.'
"But how ?" sbe asked.
" $\mathrm{Oh}, \mathrm{I}$ ean't tell; but there'll be some way, there al waya is; nothing ever does happen, you know."
Elizabeth did not reply. She was thinking of the Elizabeth did not reply. She was thinking of the books whe had read, in whe were depieted; of the acoounte in almost every day'e paper of families broken uo, their every daye paper of secrets made a public jent; of terrible discoveries which had been made, shaking a whole oommunity with the commotion, and dragging all coneerned befor
"Nothing ever does happen!"
Sbe was thinking that perhaps in a few houre that terious and full of shame es any of the ooeurrenees in the novels sh: was recalling; only a fow houre and ehe might be driven fortb to a fate terrible as that of the unbappy women whose names ahe had shuddered even to hoar mentloned.
Not for one instant did she delude herself with hope. Sbe knew that the erisia was at hand nom hope. Sbe krew that the erisia was at hand now, for weekn. This time there would he no loopbole of escape-this laot resplte was all that would be granted her; and even now that tho had gained tbat much, there seemed every hour leas probability of her being able to turn it to advantage.
Then the task before her, the thing she had to do, a work at which the stoutent man'o beart might have quailed, alone lo the dead of nlght, with the farr of diteovery oonatantly upon her,
an a wful task frenaying her mind.
She elutohed at her dreso frantically as the soene presented ltallf, in all its danger, to her exelted fancy. She anw the night atill and dark, herself stealing like a criminal from the house; she sam the old oyprens risiog up weifd and aolemn, she the old oypress risiog up neird and aolemn, she heard the low shiver of its hranobsin ae they awayed to and fto; she asw the earth laid hare, saw.
Tha plestue beocume too twerible, ohe coceld ondure
no more, and with a shuddering cry
her knees in the centre of the room:
"God help mel God help mel" Elaie aprang of the oouch and ran towards her ith a succession of strangled sbrieks. "What is the matter? What ails yon? Oh, oh! Yon frighten me to Are you siok-did h! Yon frighten me so, Are you siok-did yon Bumething? Is he going that way ?" aere fixed upon vecancy, an appalling look on her haggard faoe, which might well have startled stronger nerves than those of the girl by her aide.
"Elizabeth! Elis sheth"" shrieked Elsie, in "Elizabeth! Elis sbeth "" shrieked Elsie, genuine terror wbich there wae no mistaking. genuine terror wbich there wae no mistaking: I muat do it," muttered the woman; "I m "I must do it," muttered the woman; "I must do it! Aloze-I mast go al no une-I tell you, no use?"
"Oh, Beasie, doar Beasie! Get up 1 Don't look 1 Oh, for haveri's sakel Bessic, Beasie?" Elsie threw hernelf npon the floor henide her iding her face in her dress, as if fearful that some carrible object would atart up before her gase. Her gitation and wild terror recalled Elizabeth to her enses. She diengeged hinell from Nlido arn "and ataggered to her feet.
"ess of a person exhausted by some violent exer "ess of a person exhausted by ion; "I am better-better now."

I won't again. Don't ery; I am strong now." "What was the matter? Did you see anyatng ?"
"No,
$=0$ No

No, no. I was only thinking; it all oame up real before me-so borrible.
"But it may be made all safe yet," urged Elaie Il you can escape this time-only this once,"
She did not connect herself with the trouble which anguioh her craf! and her relfishneas mado hor re member to keep preeent in Elizabeth'o mind the promise she had made.
"Only this once", she repeated.
"It in too late," returned Elizab
"Be day would come-it ie here?" "I told
"But he oan't discover anything, Besie, when
"Have you thou
"Have you thought what I muat do ?" ehe broke ponure and ruin would be.
"Don't give way wor long; don't give way when a little oourage ma sare everything.
"I shall not give way; I shall go through with it, But, Elie, it will all be useless; ; the end has come. "No, it hannt1 1 'm sure it hasatl Thiok how many secrete arre kept for ever. It needs so little now to make uis secure; only don't give way, Beesie now to make us

"Be quiet, child; I shall not fail!"

Elizabeth Falked away and left her cronohed upon the floor, went to the glaus and looked at herburned there like two hectio spote, mer cheeks deathify pallor of her face still more gbootiy; her eyes were aunken and gleamed out so full of agony and foar that she turned away with a halr had fallen loose, and streamed wildly about hor shoulders. Sbe bound it up again, arran her dress and recommeneed her restleas walk. "Get up, Elsie," she said; "some one may
in."
Elsie took refuge on her sofa, and nobbed hersel into a sound slumber, while Elizabeth, in her haggard anxiety, moved up and down, horrifed by terrlblo refleotlons, whieh wrung her soul and lef it dumb, with a passive submission, born rather of denperation than enduranee.
At last she onught aight of Eleie lying asleep upon the sofa. She approached and bent over her.
The girl had brushed her long fair eurls back from her faee, and they fell over the eushions in rich her faee, and they fell over the cuskions in rich luxuriance, a feverith eolor wai on her eheeks, lighting up her loveliness, and her whole appearance was so pretty, so singularly childilike, as she lay there, that it seemed impossible, even then, tbat the oould have anything in oommon with the Elizsbeth that oppressed Blirsbeth.
Elizabeth stood for a long time regarding her, and many ohanges passed over her faee as she did so, hut they all settled into a look of settled determination, and ahe turned amay. Whatever was to be borne she would endure alone; the would keep her promise to the very letter. If ruin and disgraee eame they should fall on her alone. Why attempt to involve that fair young ereature in it ?
Sbe went to a cabinet in the eorner of the room, opened a little drawer and took out a paokage of letters. They were those her huaband had written to her during his long aboenee.
Sbe draw an eany-ehair near to the sofa and sat down, with her face turned to one or two of the epistlee and read pansages from them. One of the pagee she read ran thue:
"Whatever may happen, no matter how long my absence may be protraeted, I know that you win if denth ehould surprise me in this far-off land, 1 know that you will fulil for me the vow I made my dying mother and be a parent to that desolate giri. "Forgive me if I pain you by writing 50 asdly. I do not believe that any miefortune will happen to me; something tella me that I ahall reach home in safety, and find love and happinese onee more awaiting me there.
"But the eharge I have in Elolo's future is always present to my mind. Inever can forget the word that my dying mother spoke; tbey are with me nlgbt and day, and have been ainoe the
they were whispered from her pallid lips.
they were whispered from her pallid lips.
"It rejoices my heart to think bow different from mont girle our little Eloie in. If any harm were to come to her I think I should go mad; disgrace to one whose hiood was kindrod to that in any ringe Would lall me. You may think this prida a week-nets, but it is too dseply rootod in my nature ever to be erndicated. When I look about the world to be erndicated. When I look about the world ind see girls diagracing themoelves by improper marriages, elopementa, often worse shames, which must blight their liver and thone of all oonneoted with them, I think what I should do under such ircumetances.
"Elixsbeth,
"Elisabeth, I could not endure it. You are my wife; I love yon more deeply than you are awhre; came to me through my wife than through the Feakness or dishonor of one who claimed my name by right of birth. It is an inherited pride, whioh han, I know, come down from tathor to o0n, and will go with me through life.
rest upon that thought. Iremember her enfo. I rest upon that thought. I remember her lovelinoms, her innzeence, har Eweet childish ways, and I am at peace again."
That was the letter Grantley Mellen had written during his long exile, and there hia wife nat reading ence of that alesping giri) them paseionately, and laid them away
"Perhap" it is the last time," she murmared.
"The last time! I won't think-I won't think! The lant time !
Sbe began wilking up and down the roomeagain, reading tordy that ahe might not disturb Elsia' umber, and trying to build up a hope in her desethe black waves of her agony and her fear.
"He will not feol it to very much when it is only me on whom disgrace fallis," the thought, with mournfol tatisfacloci. "For her at least I thall mournful *atisfactlon. "For her at least I vha. keep the fair oreature hs lovee so much from harm When 1 am awopt from hir peth, like a hlalk cloud What had no silver lioing for him, he will be happy with her. I ought to be comforted by this. Yet, oh, my God 1 my God this thought alone make the worot of my misery. They will hs कo happy and without me!"

BOOK NOTICES.

Life of President Lincoln. Philadelphia J. B. Peternal & Brothara

Gen. McClellan's Life and Reports. Phil atelpala: J. B Peternon & Brotbers.
Tbie enterprieing house glves, in a popular and ohenp Spm, the "Lite of Preaident Lincoln; embracing bbic formicg a large volumo of 200 pagez, extremely usefal for referenee, and at a remarkably low prioe.
A"Life of Gen. MeClelian," with a fuil history of ls oampaigus and all his reporta, in the same etyle is alao offered, and cannot fail to meot an extended sale, although it has many competitors.
 11. By Mre.
Scrihoer $&$ Co.
 Pris the second part of her "Schoolg girle Gorland,

Tae Chaplains and Cletgy of tifa Revo-

 and

Mr Cive Lurw D. Apptan $k$.as. 10pop, umo ise

NEGRO RECRUITS.
The sketch of negro recruits taking the cars to Murfrectboro' comes in add contrast with the seenea at Fert Pillow. Tbe negroes enter the serseenen at Fort Pillow. Tbe negroes enter the ser-viee of the Government, under nu irmplied promise of protection. But in spite of tbeir voluntary enlistment, in Epite of tbeir beroismat Millilseund bend and Fort Wagncr, tbey are butchered in cold blood, and Bcarcely a word of indignation or sympathy is Bearcely a word of indignation or sympathy is expreseed, and Goverument is as inert to retallate as though it were of no importance.

BRIG.-GEN. J. G. TOTTEN, U. S. A. Brig.-Gen. Jobeph Grlbert Totten was augh branoh of the eervice, to which onty the mont necompllsbed gradustes of the millitary are sselgned. He was a veteran and a man of higb attanments,
He was born in Connecticent in 1788 , and entered the He was born in Connecticnt, in 1788 , and entered the Mrilitury Academy on the 4th November, 1802 , rseeiv. ing his first commiksion, that of 2 d Lleutenant of Eagineers, on tha 1at July, 1805 , nearly 60 years ago.
 Captain in 1812 , was Chief Engineer in tbe campalga gallantry at Fort George, and of Lieutennint Colonel for bis condnet at the battle of Plattaburg, in 1814, for he was berc, too, Cblef Engineer. He reeelved a Mrajor's commlesion in 1818, a Lientenant-Colonol1's in 1884. Teu years after he was made Colonel and Prin184. Tcu years after he was made Colonel and Principal Engineer, During tbe Mexlean war his services were called into requikition; bs was Scott's Chief Enginaer at Vera Cruz, whera be won the prevet of Brigadier-General, and in the third war of the een-tury stood at the head or his faportant department, tury stood at the head of his important department, having becu comanalsioned a Brigadier-Generat, Mareh 30,1863, He died at We shington on Saturday, the 23d of April, 18 cif.
The War Department has ordered appropriste honors to oe paid to his memory. Dariag the 20 to oe paid to his memory. During the 26 years that adminiatered with untiring devotion, spotlesa integrity and sigual ability the varied duties, the flanncial responsibnities and profcasional labors of that arm of fences are enduring monuments to his memory,

THE CAVES AT VICKSBURG.
Our readers will recollect the caves in Which the fnhabituats of Vickaburg took retage daring this eiegs, which we 50 grephically fllustrated. A Southern lady has just pnbligheds work e
"My Cave Life at Vleksburg" (Appieton, New York) which gives a thrllung account of tbem and life in tbem.
anys:
is.
anys: Some of the gentiomen
ut
 siated on my going, if alone. While I héeitated, fearing to remain, Jet wisbing still to witncess the termingtion of this engagement, stilietio witncess the near the foot, und cestaing to bcairater, I gew eowe.

huf silling and runniug. liefors I hud reached the month of the care two more exploded on the side of the linin near me. Breathess and terrified, $I$ found the cotrance and ran in, having left one ofomy slippers on the hilidide
# Our diding, hreakfanting and nupper honrs wore would fal ulowiy, with ths rppe of many minute8, replenibh Tbpugh most of us uved on corn breat

and bseon, served three timean a day the only luxury of the meai consistiog in ita warmer I had some of the meal consistiog in its wermeh; I had sore
flour and frequently bad some bard, tougb biscuft made from lt there

 camp hed, a nurrow spring mattress, whlch fitted Wlitin the contracted cove verg comfortably; anotbr bad his tent
 recipuat of many favors, and under obllgations to many pentiemen of the Army for dellente and kInd attentions, and in looking back to my trials at that

hi late brig.o6en, fosepil g. totien, d. s. a

Lime, I shall ever remember with gratitude the kind ness with which they strove to ward off every depr vation. And so 1 went regularly to work, keepp house

 In onc of the winge my bed Hitted; the other used as a kind of draensing roomj in this the earth had been eat down a foot or two below the floor of the been eat down a foot or two below the floor of the mein cave I ouvid atand ereet here, and whea tred
of sitting in other portion of my residence Ilowored ant "iffe, Caves were the fashlon, the retil shell expect "Cavee were tbe fashlon, the rage over benieged Vickaburg. Negroes, whonounderstood their buniness bired themsel lees ont to bired theme elver ont todig thim at from $$ 30$ to 0.50, ac cording to the elze. Many persona considsring differen heen less fortunate or loss provident, and so great wis
the demand for cave worrmen that nawbranch o

Mrs, Pry on Umbrellas.

"AH?" sald Mrs. Pry, "umbrellas have a good deal of oharaoter, after all. They exprea lhemel 1 , of a cloudy day, just where every passing umbrilla comee from. People can deceive you by assuming false expreasions, but umbrellas can't.
"That thin, black, genteel, silk umbrella, coming p the street, can't be more than a month old. It' young umbrella, bought in a dry season, and only sed out for the first time. If it was older, or ha been scen by many friends, it wouldn't look as it oes now; it would have bean borrowed an mashed.
"That blue thing, now, with a hole in the top and stray bones sticking out of it, is the nmbrelan a friend lent you. It has the look; I'd know it anywhere. You were enught thare in the rain, and she said: 'It'e a shame to spoil that sweet bonnet; I'll try to find an umbrella!' and you know of two back siiks, a gingham and an alpaca, und hope for one. But zo; has cing wha tor for seearches. It is a That is bad enough Borse. Only two of the poin umbrclia is aiway whalebone; the top has been fastened on with a piece of old wire. The string, of course, is off; and when the sun comes shining out, and yon want to hut it down, it forms a bulgy bag, nt which people tare and grin. And no wonder-it is full of holen! The handle is brokan short in the maid and ave had one that has ant me by my landlady, Jeweas.
"The umbrella that has besn stolen might as well have pickpooket placarded upon it. It is alwyy habby-genteel. People watch their umbrellas well in the first gloss of newnesa, and stolen umbrellins are not cared for as they have been, because they cost their ownera nothing but a prick of conscience,

It generally has o white ivory handle-perhape the handle le the temptstion-and the present poseessor in alwayn very careful to put it in dark corners, or alt before it, lest, unawares, the owner ehould snter. Somatimes the stolon umbrella has a silver plate on the handle, from which the name has been cerefally scre ped with o penknife.
"Some people never lose their umhrellas, hecause they alwayi carry them rain or ahine, and hecause they always carry them rain or ahine, and choose such odd ones that they could be sworn to anywhere after a passing glance. Your Quaker aunt, from Philidelphin, has a end-colored one, theped like the half of a cantelope, with a large whito ring instead of a hook. She has had it twenty years, and is never seen without it. The umbrelle is as much a Quaker ne your respeoted aunt.
"Then thers is an old bachelor umbrella-umhrellas which never could stand aide by side with feminine umbrelles, with ornamental bandles, Where hachelors find them we don't know; no man ver has one hefore he in fifty. These umbrellae ever has one herore he in they. They are of olive-green vilk, thick to riohness; they have a ribhed horder ahout them, and a large ehony crook and a sharp metal ferule. The elatic confining them when in repose has in polisbed tag an large sia pea, and the wner's name is stamped in white on the black handle. It never lesves the old bachelor's hand. cme eay he puts it under the pillow when he retires to rest, and one of my sacquaintancer does hook his on the beck of hin chair at hreakfast os hook his on the beck of hin chair at hreakfast as a regular thing.
s. It is only equalled by the travelling missionary's umbrella in tenucity of life ; but thst, poor thing, is a brown cotten, with a handle like a broomatick, hutton insteed of a ferule, and hig white blotchet where it has heen darned on. "Oh, don't tell me," conlinued Mrs. Pry, "I know the oharacter of an umhrella wherever I kaow the oharacter of is well as Mr. Fowler knows on man's disporiticn by hin humps-and a great deal hetter." GOURAUD'S
Italian Medicated Soap
 Govanudy Poudre Subtile uproots

 orles, found at the old ettebilibhed Depoot of
DR. FELIX GOURAUD, Also of BATEs, Boaton; UPHAM, Phindelphit
KEYsER, Pitthurg, and druggiste geoernily.

BROOKS'S PATENT WRTTUG Work and Toilet Case Combined

Completely farniebcd with Writing, Work FOR MILITART, NAVAL & TRAVELLERS USE Llght, eompact and elegant; ensily carried in the cost pocket; rain or dampness does not affect th. From Senator vFlison, Chairman Military Com"It given me plessure to hear testimony to the ingemitsor tst construetion. I should be glad to see it ngeneral use."
Fron Gov. Pierpont, of West Virginia: "I constder It an excelilint fivention fîdeed. I do not sce how na omicer or noldier caa have & complete outfl: without it.
om Brig. Gen. Hayes, of Arow of Potomac "It Is the most convenient and portab

Excelsior MMusic Bools, No. 4, for Vio-

Artillery Badges.

 Co, sud Reglament.
hand nomely Eagrav.
ed theroon. Sobld Siliver (with.

 C. I. BALCE & CO. 200 BROADWAY, N. Y. Carriages.

DISTILIED DEW]

For Beantifying and Improving the 8 l plexion. 8old by Draggiotagenerally.

[^11]FURNITURE, WHOLESALE AND RETAKL. BT DEGRAAF & TAYLOR

(FORMERLY H. P. DEGRAAF),

No. 87 Bowery, New York.
This estabushment is six storeys in helght, and extends 242 feet throngh to No. 60 Chrystie Street-maklig it one of the largest Furniture Houses in the United States. They are prepared to offer great indncements to the Wholesale Trade for Time or Cash. Their stock con

ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND CEANEBIR FURNTHURH;

 Mahogany and Walnut Parlor and Chambsr Furniturs;Also, CANE and WOOD SEAT work, all qualitles; HAIR, HUSK and SPRING MATTRESSES, a large stock; ENAMELLED CHAMBER FURNITURE, TUCKER'S NEW STYLE PATENT SPRING BED The hest as well as the cheapest of any in use. Retail price, 82 each. Their faclitites for manufacturing defy competition. All work guaranteed as represented.

madamy binudictis
Millinery & Dressmaking Establishmsnt, In now replete wit
Every Imported Novilty of the Season. 12 Waverley Place, new York

5,000

AGENTS WANTED NEW GOLD PEN.

 Great inducements to Agente and the Mrade. Send

Fountain Pen--No Inketand Roouirod. One nilige will writo 22 hourf. Also, all other btyle

$75 A MONTH $1 /$ I want to hlre A gents in ever

The Great MHoney-Makiag Article.

New Army Watches. ARRANDALE & Co, Importers, 212 Brondway
N. X, want Agent lo very County gid every Reg
 Sterooscopic Viows and Cartes de Visite

AMERICAN BILLIARD TABLE

AND COMDINATION CUSHIONS, Approved and adopted hy the Billigd Congress or 103 The infictured. Ballif, Cues, and avery article reluting to 434-7 Corner of Crofly and Spring Sten,

TOMES, SON & MELVATN

 Altarge and vavey of RIOE PREBENTATION awoEDS. 34-70 Constantly on hand.
Logal Wender, Stationery, Music and

HOSTHTMER'S chlobrated STOMACH BITMERS

A TIMELY WARMiNG TO THE SICK-It

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,
 Dhpot for new Yors, 476 broadway.

 uod everytuing order. Adres.

c. ㅍ. PHILO, Brooklyn, N. Y.

New York Monthly.

J. W. EVERETT & CO. WHi forward to any ndare ot reotpt of order, minent 0 FICERS OF 'THE ARMY AND NAVY
STAFESMEN, DIVTNES,

$$ 10$ A DAY.-GOLDI GOLD THE GREAT

 | truatons bow to |
| :--- |
| 25 centa. Addresp |

C. FEETER, Bremen, omo.

The Most Attractive Collection Pianoforte Songs, Ballads, Dusts, The झilver Ohoral.
 Photograph Cards for Contliemon.- Whiskers! Whiskers MY ONGUENT will foree tham to grow on the French False IKoustaches.

GOLD! GOLD! GOLD! 100,000 WATCHES, CHANNS, &o. WORTH $$ 500,000$, To bo aid for oone poitareat, withont regad to

The Elarly Physical Degeneracy of AMERICAN PEOPLE, ATry Luigg and Hygienio intitute

DR. ANDREW STONE,

Ging In TRIUMPH. II If sTernway a sons, Not. se and ey Walker

Tieut.-Gen. ס. S. Grant Package. Copyright sceured. AGENTS Send Orders otd for J. L. G. PIERPONT, 37 and 30 Nassan St., N. Y.
"Puchomancv,"-How eltber nex may foe meotal agulirement at can poeses, tcearing certain

Ma atrimony. - Why every man thoold marry

60 FIRSI PRTMMIUNAS in 1863

GROVDR * BAFER's oblybratza elastio otitch

Sovring Machines

 Were uwarided the Higbeet Premiums over all com. patiors at the Retate Faira of New Yori, Vermont,own, Indiana, MIchigan, nulnole, Kentuoky, Penn astitato and County Fantr held in 1883 .
Salssrooms, 495 Broadway, N. Y.

Know Thyselt! Know thy Friends

 will recoive In rotori ${ }^{2}$ oorrect dell Ine thon of thet

A Now Boote. Cloth; gut eages. Sent by hy fiology of Lope,

J. . $\mathbf{H}$. \&inslow \& Co. Wha Greatest Oppertunty Eivor Orrerad to Seours Good Jowallary at how Pricelt.

100,000

Watohes, Chatns, Sets of Jewrellery, Gol
Pens, Bracelets, Lockets, Ringt, Gents, Pins, Steave Buttoma, gtads,

Voreth $\ddagger 500,000$

 J. H. WINSLOW & CO.,

DROWNS & MOORE, Manfetp Jewellorf. 208 Broadway, N . Solld 18 k .Gold, *6 50 . Solid Silver, $$ 1$, 60 .

E. W. BENTCEEY.

PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY,
. a New Chamber

 Divery ottention padd to vilitors wibhing to exnming

Swords, Sashes, Belts.

 Arcularr givine luil partucul rf sent to sin edoreso

"Diphtheria."

$10 AGENTS $$ 10$

If von want to Inow
 NKedical Common Iense,

 Med, sdid thousand thing of opue to the Mertar

[^12]

OVER AL工 OOMPETITTORS.

OIEIOIEIRIING de $5 O$ ENS, MANUFACTURERS OF Grand, Square and Upright Pianofortes.
thalbera's oertificate

Untted Staten, knd will compare favorably with any 1 have ever known. $\quad 246$ Washington $\$$ Street, Boston

Do Xon Want to get Marriod?

Hoyt's Hiawatha Hair Rostorativosopentor to every other preparation for the butr in uneeclod In keeple the bair in euri

The Confessions and Experience of an Invalid.

 Bedford, Kinge county, N. Y.

3nceas 12

Attention, Company!

Do Fou Want busuriant Whiskers or MKonstaches?

Baker's Rhenmatic Balm, BAKER'S FEVER OOOLER

and on all other Roodes empa-amunally.
The taterest is paymble on tbe firrat dxys of Maroh and Septemier in each year, The semt-ammnal Conpone aro paynble at those dates, and the annual Coupona on the 50 and 100 dollar Bonds are payshle on the firat of Mareh, Bubscribors will receive either Registered or Coupon Bonda, Es they may prefer. Registered Bonds are recorded on the books of the U. S. Treasurer, and can be traneferred only on the owner's order, Coupon Bonde are payabls to hearer, and are more converlent for commerchal nees, Regiats red Bonds will he issued of the denomi nattons of Fifty Dollare (s50), One Hundred Dolisrs ( 81000 ), Five Handred Dollary ( $$ 500$ ), One Thousand Dollark ( 81,000 ), Five Tbouand Dollare ( $$ 5,000$ ), and Dollare (81,000), Five Tbouand Dollare ( 80,000 ), and Ten Tbonasnd Dollers ( 910,000 ); and Conpon Bonds Ten Tbonssnd Dollers ( $$ 10,000$ ); and Conpon Bonds of tbe denominatlons of Fifty Dollare ( 860 ), One Hun. dred Dollare ( $$ 100$ ), Five Hundred Dollars ( $(9500)$ ) and and One Thonesnd Dollars ( $$ 1,000$.)
Subscribere to this loan will have the option of baving their Bonds drew interest from March 1et, by paying the scarued latercat in coin-(or in United Sceter notes, or the notes of Natis nal Banke, addlag ofty per ceot, for premium, ) or receive them drawing intorest from the date of eubecription and deposit, AB these Bonde ars exempt from mumleipal or State taxation, their valine if increaned from one to three per cent, per annam, hecording to the rate of tax levies in, various parts of the country, dies in various parte of the couniry.
At the present rate of premium on gold they pay over elgbt per cent, finterest in earrency, and are of equai convenlence an a permanent or tomporary equai conve tnvestment.
It is telieved that no socuritles olfer so great indeceBonds. In all otber forms of indebtedness, the filth or ahlilty of private parties or stock companies or separste communities only is pledged for payment, while for the delite of the United States the whole property of the country is holden to secure the paymeat of both prinoipal and intoreet in coin.
Theese Bonda may he aubecrihed for in sams of 850 up to niny magnaltude, on the some terms, and are thus up to any magnaltude, on the same terms, and are thus made equally avainble to the umalleat lender and the hargeat eapitallas. They enn be converted intomoney at any moment, and the bolder will bave the beneflt of the interest.
Tbe fret that all dutles on importa are payahle in speste furalehes s fund for like payment of taterest on ail Governmeat Bonds largely in
of the Trensury for this purpose.
Upon the recespt or subscriptions a certilicate of deponit therefor, in duplicate, will be ise eed, the original of whech will be forwarded by the 0 becriber to the Secretary or the Tressury, al wan icon, wis a letier stanigg lone ol honds required.
Upon the recelpt of the origia certifientes at the Treasury Department, the hoods rubrerihed for Subseriptions will he recetecd by the $T$, Subsecriptions wilh he received by tbe Treasurer of the United States at Wralington, and the Assistant TYeasurers at New York, Boston and Philla. delphia, and hy the $\begin{array}{llll}\operatorname{SIxTH} \\ \text { TENTH } & \text { u } & \text { u } & \text { u } \\ \text { u } \\ \text { uth Av.\& Bd'y }\end{array}$

Tenta
First Nationil Bapk of Portland, Me,
Seooud National Bank of Bos ton, Masa.
Firbt Nationai Bank of Provldence, R. I.
First National Bank of Hartford, Coun.
First Natlonial Bank of Albany, N. Y.
First National Bank of Buffaio, N. Y.
First National Bank of Philedelphls, Pa
Firtt Nattonel Rank of Baltimore, Md.
Firt Nationsi Mank of Baltumore, Ma.
Firet Nutlonal Bank of Wafligiton, D. C.
First Netlonsl Bank of Cifelonati, O.
Firet Nutional Bank of Catcago, III.
First Natioual Bank of Milwankie, Wis.
Firret Natioual Bank of St, Louik, Mo,
First metional Bank of Nem Orieane, La publio money. All fespectehle banks and banker formaition on application, and afford overy factity to suhborlbera.

Do you want a good Magazine? If to, enbecribe to the

Atlantic Monthly

 Earope b the beet $\Delta$ mertcan Mritazilue ever pubijithed arneter in thie highest pobal

 135 Wapbington Street, Fosion, Mina

Is it possible that any soldier Can be bo folift han to leave the city witbont b pupply 140 per box or pot.

$50 AMERICAN $50

 IEVERS.Trade Mark, P. S. Bartlett, Waltham, Mass., Full Jewelled, WARhaNTED, n 4 oz coin eilver hantibg caee, gold joints, fancy push pis, for $$ 50$.

 - J. L. FERGUSON, Importer of Watobes, 208

BRIDCEWATER PAWT

The Celebrated GRATG MTCROS COPE, ombining intruct on wit Amucem nt  Objoctu, &5, by

Amorican fowiss and Yingiigh Watcties

The only euamelled "T Turn-over" Collar made in and recerive $i t$ ty return mail, Norvous Disoaco and Phymicil Deblit-

Great Chance to Make

 Money!Agents can make 910 to $$ 20$ a day ellling our cole.
brated Razz STATIONEKY PACEETS. W6 bave

Agents rTanted To sell our new pirture of GEN. GRANT, $5 per Uso of Tobacco, in all ws foms, OURD and Buckley's MIelodist.

 Home, "Rreak itgenty tomy yrother;" Resd mei

STAMMERING

 of Pamphitets and Drawings deberibiug the amme

THL UNPROTECTED OLD FEMALS IN A DHEEMASA.
Mrs, Vic-" Oh, goodness gracious me, was there ercr a poor old lady in swoh a quandary? I really don't knowo which stage to get into. Oh, dear!

GOLD WATCH FREE !
$15 Per Day Easy $15

 ASi Lhever Waita, guuine Rnglieh Movement,

Shults' Onguont-Warranted to produce a fall

 | sent, poatpal |
| :--- |
| xroy, |

Veneration.

 Sunduy Dinaero-ventiliating Olurebese-Duty or the

The Bowen MKicroscope, Magnifying 500 timee, matled to any address for 35

Ivoxy Jewolxy:

. 75

Dyspepsia Tablets.

 INFANTRY PIN FOR THE SOLDIER COIN SILVER Including the Eogrryy. ing oit the Name, Co.  THE NATIONAL, BATME PIN, OAVALRY, aND AMLHLLERY AND NGER ENGI- AGNAL  LOUIS PHILIP \& $\mathrm{CO}_{\mathrm{i}}, 2$ Murray St, N. Y.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE ARMY! Hercefter we will and, postpoid, sny of our PHO-TOGRAPHIO ALBUMS themfelves or frlenids, givlag sin Album of the fail

Card Photographs

 Statemmeo, Actora, coplea of Stereoscopee and Stereoscopic Views.
 Logue sent on receipt of baimp. E, & H, T. ANTHONY & CO., of Pbotog, in

A Socret Worth Enowing, -How to make spplen or other fruit, in 12 hourb. The Recipe bent

USE
NGSMB
rech
$3 R 081$ It Will Make Your Hais GROW THICK AND LONG.

Who Shall it Be?
gen. gran
banks,
sherman,
fremont,
meade
OR WHO

Sead for wboleeale illustrated Circular.

S. IM. WARD & CO., manufactúring Jewbllebs, 208 Broadway, New York.

The Euman Eind.

$$ 7$ wamicti

 Heeper, nent iree, by mail, in neat eave, only $$ 7$. A SILYER W AHCH, Eame 88 above, elogle one $$ 15$ Eur pean Timekeeper $$ 15$ A JUPERB "EXNRA DOUBLE GOLD MACEDD

 Shlif. Bill og it sorreet Gade for the Solditir or Traveller a 100 Gold Watch aeed by th British Army Officers.
get fret, by min, fo Elegent Moruceo Cane, for Frond Leilies Iluwstroted Neusporer of Foh. 20 bere, und an imitation of the cele orsted timekecper so much in nee among tbe Britith army oliticers

MLarked Characters. See Portraita, with descriptions, of Gen, B, F. But or and Hon $O$ wen Lavey His Ma withg article enta to Interfere $A$ Word to Len Folik, and How TRATED PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL, Only ${ }^{15 \text { epnts. }} 449.500$ Iddreas FOWLER \& WELLS, Broadway, $\mathrm{N}, \mathrm{Y}$.

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE bYMAIL or EXPRESS

 Printed direetlons for aelf-menaurement, list of prices, and drewliggs of dificerent Etyles of ahard and coller bout free everywbere. FRENCH TLANNEL OVERSHIRTS, 83,0 , 8978

STHWHCOLLARS

NAMELED WHITE

ธ. W. H . WAR

ERIENDS OE SOLDIFRS!

FRANK LESHIE'S illustrated

The War in Virginia-The Prospect a Short and Decisive Campaign.
Wre are on the verge of the most momentons atruggle of the war. Before this articie shal have passed lnto the handa of our readers the chosen hatuleground of old Virginia, if not preclpitately evacuated hy the enemy, may he haptised anew in a deluge of blood, and her anclent hills may be shaken as hy the throes of an earthcuske. We helleve that from the amoke of the conflict the flag of the Union will he advanced to the high places of the rehel capital that the armies which Gen Grant has, summoned ann Gram sisted, thet his plensiand com sistod; hinatiopa are adapted to mee all poasihle emergencies; that he has the enemy within his powerfal grasp; that the campaign will he "short, sharp and decisive," and that the fatal hour to the rebellion is near at hand.

We have not forgotten onr disappointments resulting from each or the Virginia campaigns of 1861, '62 and 68. But all hose reverses may he traced to that one grand mistake of scattering instesd of concentrating our forces, asd if the dearly purchased victories of our Poomac Army have heen without suhstantial fruits, it has heen in consequence of waating delays in following up the cnemy. This wes the Austrian system of warfare against the little Corsican. The opposite or Napoleonic system of concenration and activity, which has reclaimed an Empire in the West, has, witb Gen, Grant, been introduced into tbe East, and with sucb advantagos for aggressive operatlons against sncb draw backs and embarrassments to the enemy, as the Army of the Potomac has hever hefore commanded.

Through the year 1861 the armies and the people of the so-called Southern Confederacy were bountifally subsisted from the fruitfal grain, cattle and swine-produclng States of Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, At the end of possessed of Keutucky and Missouri, West ern Tennessee and a part of Louisiana, their lines of commonication from Texas to Rich mond were still uninterruptẹ. But what is the presentsiltuation of their "Confederacy ? With the trans-Misslssippi States completely cnt off, it is now practicably reduced to Soutbern Virginia, North and South Caris sippi, excepting those parts of eacb of these States occupled hy the Union forces. This restrictad and beleaguered Confederacy by land and sea, comprising some $4,000,000$ of inhahitants (one-half African slaves), is now practically all tbat is left of a rebellious Con federation, originally comprebending 11,000 000 of souls.
The armies of Davis witbin this diminisbe empire, drawn from all the slave States, and variously represented as making a sum total of from 200,000 to 300,000 men-tbese armies are now mainly suhsisted from the last year's Indtan corn crop of Georgla, Alabama and Mississippl. And here lles the fatal weakness of Jeff Davis in undertaling, against ail the adverse circumstances suggested, sti Richmond. For 100 miles around tbat city the country is exhansted, and North Carolina has been so impoverished hy Confederate her planters are hardly equal to the extrcmest necessities of her destitute people. The armies of Davis in Virgicia draw their supplles of food mainly from Georgia; and the capaclties of tbeir two life-sustaining lines of rickety rallroads are taxed to the utterand Gen. Lee from day to day.

Under sneb a state of things the elaborate entrenchments which enclose the army of Davis on the Rapldan, and the formidahle capital are literally no defences at all. The capital are interally no derences at all. The Rapidan and Richmond, and thence to Atlanta Rapidan and Richmond, and thence to Atlanta, of Davis and Lee in Virginia. Heace the mnstering of all their avallable forces for the mnstering of alt their available forces for the inevitable work of open field figbting; but the danger at Atlanta is also imminent. The army of Gen. Tbomas, at Cbattanooga is a army of Gen. Tbomas, at Cbattanooga is a powerfal army, and with Longstreet removed from East Tennessee, Gen. Joe Johnston must be strengthened as well as Gen. Lee, or tbe evacuation of Richmond may be enforced upon Davis by the loss of Atlants.
From the relative situation of the opposing forces in Virginia; from the decided superiority in numbers, equipment and efflciency of the leglons of Gen, Grant, as compared with the highest estimates ( 90,000 men) of the enemy's strength; from the necessities which will compel Gen. Leeto abandon bis entrenchments, to protect his lines of suhsistence; from every point of view in whicb we have considered the suhject, we are conformed in our opinion that in the Virginin campaign of 1864 all the misfortunes of ' 61 ,'62 and ' 63 will be repalred, nd that the grand object of a crushing hlow to the rebellion will he filly crushing hlow to the rebellion will he folly achieved. Tbe wisest combinations of war, we know, are frequently overthrown by tbe most trivial accidents or mistakes; hut still, ia this iastance, we have no fear that our oresbadowings as a propbet will he marred by the facts of the historian. We anticlpate an unexampled and exulting celebration of an unexampled and exu

Bobton, Nety York akd Newport Stichm-

 Hunson Rivir Navigation.-Trips up the tiver have heun risumed by ibe fovorite stcamer in ary

The Natronal Loan,-Seldom has any loan beta to wetcomed by the moofed world se the United

Barn'm"s American Museum.

Oscanyan's Oriental Album

 c. OSCANYAN, Now York.

fRank LesLie's  LLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.

JEW YORK, MA Y Y4, 18E. $\substack{\text { bell } \\ \text { york. }}$

TERMS FOR THIS PAPER.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISING. One Dollar a line on the outalde or last page. Sixiy Cents a line on the 14th and 15th pagen

INOIPIOEA.

ThE Office of tbis Paper is removed to No. 537 Pearl Street, a few doors from Brondway.

To Correspondent.
Decrisen - Patrick Mraglone-OId AgC-Some Noing Now-Tine Fibentrinan.

Summary of the Week.

A cavairy ukirmish oecurred recently near Stras.
urg, Ve, between 100 of the list New York and 300 rebels.
Seren of Mosoby's men were captared on the 29th by a scouting pasty from Fsirfax Court House.
The
The Union troops recently entered, and, it is , burned Mudison Court House.
oriti carolina.
A fag of trusewas sent to Plymouth, but wao not Gen. W
Gen. Wessells and his hittle band of 1,500 fought ke heroes for four admit a loss of 1,700 .
A Union or "Buffalo" eamp near Windsor wes attacked and captured by the 62d Georgia, about the middle of April, and Capt. Hoggard, the com mander, killed.
The Fort Jackson, Capt. B. F. Sands, with the Niphon, on the 2 lat, went up to Masonboro', nes Wilmington, and destroy valuable saltworks b longing to the rebl Go ennent.
ion of hostilities here has been fol-
The suapension withdrawal of troopa. Beauregard has procee through Wilroington on the ylars ago The sheiling of the city is kept up at intexyal and a broadside given to Fort Sumter.
loutitiana.
Our army is at Grand Ecore, fortifying. The harge boats are aboro, but the smaller ones are below. Several of the boats have been hotly attacked by guerilles and troops on the bank, The Bleckhawk had quite an adrenture with them. Gen. Steele is Eaid to have captured Shreveport, and Banks has advanoed on the 22d to meet the eneray.
Gen. Stone has been superseded by Gen. Dvight, A small Union force had gone up the Wachita river, and a cavalry expedition had been sent out inver, und a cavalry expedition had been sent out on the north bank of Red river, near Alexendria, on the north bank by Gen. Grover.
The rebels, under Jumel, have made a raid on tennesasi.
Our pickets near Nickajack gap were attacked
n the 23d, and five kilied, zeven wounded and 19 tiken by the rebeis.

Gen. Thayer joined Gen. Steele at Elkin's Ferry, on the Little Missouri river, where the rebels then modo a atond at Pruirie de Annn, fortified by nilepite and epiulementr, but Stecle flanked their Stecle then danhed on Coded towards Waghiogton. deavored in vain to reach before him. From Camden Steele moved on Shreveport.
Forreat is retreating towards Alabama, follower

2lst near Hudsonville, Mias., and eaptured kansas

Quantrell is reported to have orossed the Arcansas and Verdigris 1 iveri, on his way to Kansas.

 Gen. Blunt has been ordered to Kanalal foryissathy.
A detachment of Rogers's Union troops at Charleston had a fight with guerilles, on the 19th and 20 th Inst., in which they killed 12 of them xENTDOKY.
A detachment of the 45 th Kentucky, under Capt. Adams, attacked the rebels in Brent Hill county, killing and capturing 20; he then pursued ing two officers and taking 35 men.
trospla.
A pirty of refugees ascended Wetappoe river ome 20 mal it hite blufis, and destroyed 2,000 bushels of salt. They captured a valuable barge. Government saltwork on Esst bay.

nayal.

Commander Fox, of the Potomac flotills, reently ran up the Rappahannock and deetroyed boats, 22 large skiffs, white oalk teady to build a sloop of war, 22 large boats.
The blockade-runner Msry Sorley, from Galves-
on, wes ceptured on the 3d of April.
The rebela eontinue their torpedo attacks. The Wabash in Charieston harbor was recently atWabash in Charicst
Admiral Duhlgren has gone back to the command Charleston harbor.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, on the 26th of April, a bill In the Senate, on the 26th or April, a bill norne upon the navy regibter 45 yeara ather the agee of 16 , wat referred to tho Naval Committe. Tbe reat of In tbe House, the oonsidcration of the Iax hill was resomed in Commiltec of the Wbole, Anumendment that inoomes derived from the interest of notes, bonde or other securities of the United States shall ha in. huded in the estimste of incomen wis udoptid. An.
otber amendmeat, providing that on thcomen exceeding $$ 800$ and not more than 810,000 , a tox of 5 per cen. tum shaill be limposed; on licomos of $$ 10,000$ and not exeecding 825,000 , a tax of 71 per ocntuna shall be im. posed; and on incomes of over $$ 25,000$, a $t a x$ of 10 per posed; and on incomes of over $$ 25,000$, a tax of 10 per contam shall he impoesed, was agreed to hy a voto of 73 ageinst 35 . A proposition to tax tha salisien of Memhers of Congress 10 per cont. was voted dommby by a large majority. At the evening sesslon a numher a large majority. At the evening seaslon a nemher of bllis glving away a large quantity of the publio laods for Weatera railronda and other purposen wero laods fo pussed.
In the Senate, on tho 27thl, tho National Carrenoy uil wus ander conslderation at length, but no couoln ion, was rescbed, Severil hille of commercial inticest were psssed, and petitions presented from the wivee an incresse of the solaier's pay.
In the House, the Tax b.ll was taken ap and oon-aldered vigorously, pragress belag made to the 119t2 aldered vigorously, pragress boing made to the 119th section. The joint revolution from the Senate apro aection, The Joint revolution from the Senate ippro pristing $$ 25,000,000$ to pay the expenses of the 100 duy prlsting $825,600,000$ troops was pusacd.
1n the Senate, on the 2sth, ufter the trangsotion of some unimportant husiniese, M. Fesinden reported after conslderabie maswaureing th

finaily pissed without aitiruation hy wbereupon the Seaate sojur ned.

 hurze moved, si a substitute, to tix domeatuo Hiquori
on band 50 cents a gallon, wlikh mome restricuon

 The Honse senalons, hoth day and evenfag, where ne-uplece mannly wlith the Tax bull, and cooaiderabie progres was made. In the Sensto, on the 30th of April, Mrr. Somner of.
ferod a reeolntlon requeting the Preadont to com.
monit
 In the House, a resolution for Apeotul Committe
 partment was adopted, and Messrs. Gardeld, Wuron, Davie, Fenton and Jenekes, Bepubilcaps, and Brooka,

FOREIGN NEWS.

Maximizan accepted the crown from the Mexican depntation at Mirnimar on the 10th of Aprill now Emperor made a speech ta reply to the dopatation, atatiog that be was convineed that the thronWus voted hy a great majority of the Mextcon peoplo Wis voted hy a grest majority of the Mextcan people dnctues as Emprens. Tho Mexilena ang wits hoisled at the constle of stiramar and asluted with 21 guns. Tho Emperor commiasloned minfatera to the courta of Rome VIecona and Parle, and made quite a namber

11th of April Maximltion was seized with a low fover so that his departuze Waa sgain deitryed. It Wus thougbt he would set ont on the 14th instant for Rome, wbire be goea to receive the heredjection of the Pope, of which he, as he sistes himeclf, stands in great nsed. Tbe Archachess, bis wife, after some rery dificait negotiation in Vlenas, and after renownelng her right to the throne of Austris and her ineome fiom the Stite, Liought the Emperor Franels Joseph to Mifamar to elign the great Imperinl Stat paper of MExieo.
by the Germang. Its fortilied works were almos wilheed; bat stid. the gartilaon defended the raing Wirh vigor. Tbe Danes madea vigoroun uortio on the Prnsainas, but were repulaed. The Conter ace hisd not yet aseembled in Loncon. Tbe Ergilah Hoone of Commons expre:sed some donbts of the prudence of prmitting the Erglish Delegste in the Conference to Daso-Ger man quation without tho covsent of the Parllament.
Garlhaldi hsd entered London. He bud a popular reception of the ment enthussasto deceription The rowd in the strects was sout equil to thet. The reeelved the Prince and Princess of Walts. Muzxini Wes endorsed hy tho woricing men in their address to Garibalifi. The General hisd private andlences with Lord Pa'merston and Earl Roseell. Ho wan afterDuchoss of Butherlaod. The elty fites in bia honor were to continue some dayb.
Lord Clareadon had gone on a private mission to
It is is aid that ho wate to endeavor to allay an aris. It is said that ho wat to endeavor to allny an
"irritution" which had sprang in in irritution" which had sprang up in Nepoleon's mind
Owisds England since the Mzzaind-stanseld expost. Twelyo vessels, from Mstamoras, Nasanan nand Bernuda, laden for the mont part with cotton from the The City of New York remulned fast on Daunvs

TOWN GOSSIP

bout May

Prry the sorrows of a poor"-landlord"Pden city.
In no other part of this weeith-bestridden land does onting and leasing terminate on a certala day, aod hat day the moas nncertain of the year, To Now York olty alone helongs the insane cuatom, that could ork city alone holongs theingone oustom, that could only have jeen i erived from the King of Duhomey, of pariding the honediold sppurtenanicas and goods of mankind throogb tbe streets upon a set dsy, and invitigg all the world to look upon his poverty or hig wealth. We are, perthape, doing the hefore-mentioned monaroh an injuastice Inatirlhuting to bim so diegustlag a fashion, when we remember thast bis colebrateu "custom," as it Is calfed, or hollday of "Parading the King'a Wealth," is confined to his own property, Which, upon the $25 t h$ of misy, 1 s taken from the paloce and borne hy an army of hata alaves through the entreets of the city of Ahomey, sud then returned to its oid uarters. In this "custom" the King merely parades ia hounehold utensilis, but, wiser than barbarian whites, does not sttempt to obsoge their phace of de posit. His civilizstion extands fanther then trat of Now York landiords, and does not foreo ppop hls oviog subjects a following of bis " oustom."
While in tbe country the day is nshered in

In the oity, as though intended to illustrste the oid town, it comes :

Our bounebold goda they're finging,

The onormons rise in rents, 50 ntterly at varlance with the amall ribe in the value of labbor, , driven sn immenso pér centugo of New Yorkers to bange of domiove. Tbobe who have he n accuatomed to pay $\$ 12$ per montb for rooms, tlod themaelve obarged $\ell 20$, and have, consequentiy, sought lee s com 1ortalie quirters, where they een llve it Ike old prico ortalie quirters, whero they esn live nt ike old prico or momewhere near it. The same rule applites sul the way up in tae kcale, and ailf elasses suller alike. There is ole ining in conuention with this mattir it whilel we nover firi to wonder, and that $i=$ wby capitilista do not eatecm it wortb while to enter n ot esteem wortb whue to enter nyon nuhurhan men of small meuns and mocbasica to the in tho infimous tenan
we fel une thit no
bers ever lavest.

Country Houses.
$\qquad$ Within haif an hour'e travel of tbe city hy rail and ateambunt upon Loog lisaud, the Ebazuce river, the

With the woing down of the suin ou the third woek of extateneco tho sonitary Fair weat ;ut, and the

 byth

Tho Laet Come Down

The Events of the Week

BOOK NOTICES.

Life of Edward Livingaton. By Chariss

 Wne at . .deleodive, sbone a warrant to anreet Dr.

 If a man has nothing to say, he is sure wo thee mueh time and nee many werof in anglug the

JESSAMINE LEAVES.
 it yoi ille to pay 50 cents s dozen for them, and other deileadee Intoneed ovidently other for Lilitontian up be oulled Excollior! The millinere doclare they are not to high as they were last joar, mimt the tioc and roses and Afrrean graes, and tideeerrbabbe oroaments ananets. I I dodged oue may, ond my gaze wne bnified

Congress Ie consldering the proprity of giving uiv wo cent pleces. The deeneription is glowing. They ther, the words, 'God to our truat?")
 rillanant dream oo lesne any ourrency tin thene myb-seme the "gold-rebecmblling" tropeanny plecee will the etage, with an ollve branoh fin one hand and a bag of gold and allver to the other.

Peeple who are wise in such matters prediot tn

 chtion and and make brooms for a living. Merchan attion
and prins and sheostrings in banketa from door to doong Pirrone now reeiding in Firth Avenne will wandes
ver the world with hurdygurdes and hand-organs will hig gitd of thecr servante' coast-off oallicoes. A A to ent and to wear as they ever had belore; conso quently we do not belliove tin the appronch of fimmine and dagk, and dexpeot that eilk dreasee will sweop thi kidowalk for years to come, and that jowellery will Ildowalks for years to come, and that jowellery will gltter, whi palatal realdences will eontinue to grow, oven In the midat of the impendilog criate, Broadway Polloemen.

Brondway pollicemen are not impartial; wo regren in say fete that if they nee a gentleman with his hand tn
 bo. We merely nllude to the acte of omidial courrory performed by the uulformed guardinua of the 1 lam

 Wildijy into the middile of the: road, and reeonea be women ecom to waw
look out, eld lady ${ }^{2}$ matrone gather on the opponte cornaer. He sean them ertitieally: very recpeotatile, kood eort of folk

 could poenibly bave managed to get into withont hif aeesitanoe, and paying no heed to the omall alirleka and © Juculatione of those hehind him.
Agaiu, after a partirg nip of the Agalu, after a partirg nif of the young lady's urm, moneieur reposet himelfa in Napoleon the Grentand hehold a matron - portly and tall-compereant to the donbls qualck-eharging on veliclea an that they retrent in turn. Aht tit is grand-we don't know who will ho Com. mander--15-Chief of the Uulon army by the time thrs

 - with heo and velvet tacked on overy whero with ebised at the bairdreeser's) will eseape-and whth a purisol which turns into a gunoteerve lier-ibe puace-tid but a moment-he of the brase battone ales to her roecue- ho embraces her with one arm-

ho ahakes is furions ait at presuming dirvert-ho sulling down tato her oyees, places her eurfly on tho Jemimas and graidimi Smithe viluly beeeech bio escort-they oxnnot win fivor in bye ight.
ucemen are pertial, there's no deaylig tuat.

EPITOME OF THE WEEK

 pay the thare morking on cnastom work are Hable to Fair race net proceede of the Cincinnant Sanitiry are shirt collart of lineen, octlon, paper and eteel, ded shirt oollaro Mrd fo from vilcenized TudA rubber.

 vor of Me. Luacofiona nomination.

The anual meethg of the Relighous Society of Pro
Tre

Mingtig Myor Henty of Pulladolphis, has ordared the Reveralof hie tending editors evidentiv having hid

Mrilitary.-Adjt, Gon, Soloonter, of Meaewho

 ag apring wis leceted Chiefor Polioe for throe yerrs.

 Conftree reportod denth of Col. Lewis Benedut is name, , hut belonging $t=$ ber hine

to nuve gone to $\mathrm{Ne}=\mathrm{O}$ Oriean

 predicts wou for Purkey

 the great ligglibh-speaking roce, nod he great poet. Tet we may look in vain for nny teettmounil that gives evt. dence of tuls feeling.
The tercentenary of Stazespeasers

 ereetion of $a$ statue in the Central Park wns soon nugbeted, and Batur Park wnil
 Shatespeare Thir Clab, which intitated the movement, yied dea thet drretion

 Fetber Heoker, Judge Dily, Bilaratad,

 No anthor, Managere Wheatley of

Had I hut known that the little hands Held fateful dower of gold and lands, I conld have worshipped and walked aside, Content in loving, my love to hideFor their palms had touched me, and ever-

Life would have hrimmed with the extacy As the Nile's love-valleys, caressed from sleep, With tropical fervors the memory keep. As star answers star in the twillght of earth, So a love in her hosom like my love had hirth. I kneel to recall it, the love of that girlFor the gift was an ominous, sad sea-pearl All of the wealth of her womanly soul, Of her tenderness all, of her life the whole; For how could they give her to snch as I? So my darling is dead, and that is why.

 By Misa L. M. Alcott.I bovent my roll that day of the qulet woman who kept the bakeshop near my poor lodging. I liked her ways; she always folded my pur-ohase in a tidy paper, received my three cente with a little how and a es fly-spoken "Thank you," which dignified the paltry transaction and cost my pride no pang. At the corner I paused to decide where I should dine. A slmple proceas, one would fancy, for the bread cumposed my meal. But, not heing a Franklin, I ohjected to consuming the roll in puhlie, and had two free dining-rooma to choose from-the Park in fine weather, a crtain readingroom in atormy. A drop of rain decided me, and I etrolled leisurely away to the latter refnge, for bunger had not yet reached its unendurable stage. Tbe room was deserted hy all oecupants hut the ibrarisn and one old gentieman, consulting a file of foreign ne wepapers. I slipped into as alcove devoured my dianer hehind a book, and toben fell to breeding meodity over the duspernte state of my to breeding meodily over the despernte state of my finances and prospecte, the first consisting of a open hook I had been reading, dashed of my single dollar, the last of slow atur ation or manual clamation from the old gentleman reuned me, for it had a hopeful sound.
"Page, who cupied tbis? I'd like to secure such a penman."
"Don't know, I'm sure, sir," responded Page. "Among so many olerks H's impossible to tell. 'Ill inquire if you like."
"No; I couldn't have him, if you did. But it you happen to hear of any good copyist who, for a moderate eum, would do a joh for me, let me know, Page."
"I will, sir."
The old gentleman put down the list of newlyarrived hooks which he had heen examining, and drew on his gloves. As he approsched my aleove a sudden impulse prompted me to step ont and address him.
"Pardon me, siy, hut necessarily overhearing your request, I ventare to offer myself for trial,"
" Have you any references or recommendation ooffer, eh?' akked the old gentleman, pausing. I had an excellent one which I had vainly offered o many perions for the last month. He read the very fratuering letter from a well known sohols whom I had served as zeeretary for a year, and seemed inolined to try me.
${ }^{\circ}$ Hum-quite correct-very antinfactory. Give paper." paper."
1 obe
I obeyed, and lasing a shect of paper upon the him, though copying deeds was not exoiting. He seemed to take a fancy to me, engaged me for a week, kept me huay till Saturday evening, and then week, kept me husy till Saturday evening, and teot service I was next intended.

As the clock struok five Mr. North wiped his pen wheeled ahout in his chair, and sat waiting till I finished my last page.
"Mr. Clyde, I have a proposition to make," he Copying the Work on Italian History and Politics. began, as I looked up. "It will surprise you, but I have no explanation to give, and you oan easily refuse. I have not intended keeping yon from the first, but desired to tent your capabilities before offaring you a better sit uation. $\mathbf{A}$ certain persited wishes an amanuensis; I think you eminenaty for the post. Yon wish independence, agreesble for the post. Yon wish independence, agreesble duties and the surroundings of a gentlemun. Thia duties and the surroundinge of a gentleman. Shes is lib-place will give you all of theese, for the salary is place will give you all of these, eral, the labor light, the society ex cellent. One condition, however, is annexed to your accuptence. If you will pledge me your word te keep that oondition tion it."

"I do, sir."
"I For reasons, the justice and importance of which you would acknowledge if I were at liberty to divulge them, I desire a rellable report of what passes in this person's house. I think you are fitted for that post also. A week ngo you told me you were ready to do anythinz for your hread which was not a crime; this is none. Do you acoept the place and the condition."
"I am to play the spy, am I, sir ?"
"Exaotly, to kny extent that your interect, ingenuity and courage prompt you. It is nececsary that I ohould have a daily witness of the events that occur in thas ramily for whe task I offer at least, perhapa longer. I and somewhat difficult one, but if you will rely upon the word of an old man who has little more to expect of life, I assure you that no wrong is meditated, and that you will never have cause to regret your compliance. Lit me add that at the end of your rervice, he it short or long, you will receive avo ho no detention, no be subjected to no questions, danger or euspicion of any kind."
"But, siir, am I to work utterly in the dark?"
" Utteriy."
"Am I naver to kno w what mysterious purpose I am forwarding ?"
"Never"
"Can I, ought I to pledge myself to snoh hilid obedienco?"
"I tolieve
"I tulieve you can and ought; it is for yon to "ecide whether you will."
Net a feature of the old man'n fece had varied (rom its unual colorless immobility; his keen eye searehed me while be spoke, and when he paused he sat motionless, with no sign of trapatienes, as I rapidly considered the strange oompaot ofiered me. I rebelled a little at the dishonorable part of int, yent the myaterioun mission. The place seemed a tempting one, the bribe a fortune, the security relisble, for Mr. North was as much in my power as I in his. As if cognizant of the doubt and desire between which I was wavering, he said, desire bctly abruptly
"You
"You are well-born, well-bred, comely, discreet and ecute. Too proud to bear poverty, too poor to be over nice. A man exactly fitted to the place, be over nice. A mas be found as competent, less though othern may scrupulons and more eager for both the enterprise serupulons and mp and the reward."
"Hardly, sir. I socept."
The only sign of aatiafaction white he gave was a closer pressure of the loug thin hands loosely a closer pressure of felded on his knee.
carefully in mind. This place is ten miles out of carefully in mind. the city; here is the address. On Monday evening the city; here inere, ask for Mr. Bernard Noel, and present your letter of reoommendation. On no account mention my name or ever betray that you have any mention my name or ever betray that you have any knowiedge of me. Another thing remember, use knowledge of me. Another thing remember, use your Italian as far as the comprehending of it When spoken by others, bnt deny that you poseess Fhen spoken by othere, bit deny that accomplishment if asked."
" Am I sure of being accepted, sir "
" Yei, I think bo. You have only
"Yes, I think so. You have only to eay that you eaw and have answered an advertisemant in inst week's Tines. Suoh a one appeared-stay, pnt it in your letter. Now look at thits and give me your attention."
He turned to his table, produoed a small looked portfolio and exphined its phrpose as I staod beeide him. Several quiree of peculiarly thin smooth paper lay rithin, a paokage of envelopes directed paper lay within, a paokage of envelopes directed in a etrange hand to $A$. $Z$. Clyde, a beal with a Kull for its devies, and a stick of iron-gray sealing wax cempleted the contents of the portfolio.
"You will record upon thts paper the principel evente, impressions or discoveries of enoh day, beginning with your first interriew on Monday.
Every Saturday you will eend me your weokly Every Saturday you will eend me your weokly report in one of the envelopes directed to an report imagary relative of your own. Seoure each eare-fally with this wax and seal, and poat them an fully with this wax and seal, and poat then privately os possition."
too muoh precantion.
"I shall remember,
"I shall remember, slr."
"You are to ask no queations, show ne egpecial Interest in what pasees sbout you, asd on no account betray that yon keep this private record. account betray that yon keep this private record, Yon have wit, oonrage, great command of countenance, and will soon disoover hothing surprise, alarm or bsffin you, and keep faith with me unless you dssire ruin instead of reward. Now go, and let me hear from yon on Saturday."
He rose, offered me a check, the portfolio and his hond. I aocepted all three, and with our his hond. I aocepted all three, and with our nsual brief but conrteous edienx we parted, the old young one to hope that in the unknown family he ebouid find some solution of thie first enigma. sbould find some solution of thie first enigma

JUns 1st.-Haring received no directions as to ohoone the simple one of the diary as the easiest to myself, perbaps the most interesting to the eyes for which these pages are written. oyes for which these pages are written.
According to agreement I caina hither to-night at nine o'clock, being belated by an acofdent on the way. A grave, soldierly servant uehered nie the way. A grave, soldierly servant ubhered nis into a eharming room, airy, eoflty-lighted and exquisitcly farnikhed, yet somerhat foreign in ita elegant simplicity. It was empty, and wanin an adjoining room. As the seemed unconecious of my preeence, I began my surveillanee by taking eareful survey. Leaning in a deep chair, I only a careful survey. Leaning in a deep chair, 1 only caught the ontline of her figure; for over her gray dreas she wore a large white cashmere, as in the mild night air. Gray hair waved awny on either eide her pale checka, under a delleate lace cap, whioh fall in a point upon her forehesd. A deep green sbade conceoled her eyee, leaving visible only the contonr of a rounded chin and feminine moutb the contonr of a rounded chin and feminine moutb. were covered nearly to the finger-tips with quain blaok silk mits, such as ancient ladies wore. There wae eomething melancholy yet attractive abont thi figure, so delicate, co womanly, so sally afflicted, figure, 60 delicate, Aboorbed in watching ber, I was rather etsrtled by a ruetling among the shiube thet grew about by a ruetling among the shiubr that grew about the open Frenoh window behind me, and turned to eee a young man entering from the garden Somewhat embarrased at being discovered peep ing, I heatily inferred that the new-oomer was a son of Mr. Bermard Noel, and introduced myself rather awk wardly.
"I came in answer to sn advertisement in the late ; your father, perhaps, is not disenguged r dark ares that were nerutinising my face, and dark eyes that were acrutinising my face, and what a singular smile accompunied the words: "I am Bernard Noel.
I murmured an apology, 'presented my letter, and while he read it sot examining my future patron, wondering the while that suoa a lad should need an amanuenvis. I eoy lad, for at the firet glance he looked eighteen; a seoond caused me to anspect that he was some yeara older. Erery in inch o gentleman, for high-breediug makes itaeif and boyish in figure, yet with no boyish awkward-ness
 in that momentary panse ing hair framed a bsosd, harmoniously roubded

Southern eyes of his, now veiled by sweeping lasben; the nose was spirited and haughty; the, monku grave and strong, perhaps rendered more by a slight moustacbe that shaded it. Even his drese interested me, as if I were a woman, thongh nothing could have been eimpler or more becom ing. A black relvet paletot, dark trousera, collar turned over a ribbon; an aristocratieally small foot, perfectly shod, and a single ring on a hand foot, perfectly shod, and a single ring on a hand nome hand that held the letter. An almost inetantaneous impresion took possession of me that his youth was both older than he looked and wiser than his years. Whether some deep experience had matured him, genius ther decide, but felt instinctively attracted and in, terested in the unoonscious perion whom I hod beented in the watch.
Presently hs looked, up, saying in a peculiarly olear and penetrating volce:
"This is entirely satisfactory, Mr. Clyde ; let me hope that the situation maky prove so to yourseli for Mr. Lord hae conferred honor in allowing me sccomplished gentleman.'
He bowed with a glanos that turned the quotation to a compliment, then continued with a gration to a compliment, then continued with a gracious gravity that was /very charming, from the coun gravity that was /very charming, from the contraat of youth with the native dignity which ant no gracefally apon this boyish maeter of o house"It is too late for the return train; you will remain to-night, and perhaps send for your luggage to-mornow. I am impatient to see my work begun, for time presses."
"I am entirely at your nervice, Mr. Noel.
"Thanks. You will find us a quiet family; valld, and my present pursuite require solltude. hoped to have finished my task myself, but my health will not permit of suoh cloee oonkinemen therefore I thall leave the pen to you, and take holiday."
Ant the to discover what my duties we
I put the question in the form of a eurmiee.
"I ehall be doubly glad to take it up if, se I inf it is to be used for the transorlbing of come maiden work, perhaps."
A alight fush rose to the young man's cheelk, colorless before; his eyes fell like a shy girl's, and his ups broke into a sudden smile, seemingly hif lps broke into a sudden smile, seemingly agaiost his will, for he checked it with a frown, and anawered, with a curious blending of pleasure, pride and reserve
"Yes, it is my maiden work, but as we shall both be heartily tired of the thing before we are done with it, let us drop that aubject for the preaent, if you please.
"Sensitive and ehy, like moat young suthors," thought I, apologising, with an air of contrition, Setting the topic aside with a litule wave of the Setting the topic aside with a little hand, Mr. Noel said, more cordially :

Your rooms are in the east wing, and I hope and my own rayward hables prevent much reguand my own rayward habits prevent much regularity in our daily life, but this need not iliturb
you. We breakfast in our own rooms, lunch when you. We breakfast in our own rooms, lunch when we plesse, and dine at five. You will oblige me by ordering the two first meals at whatever hours best suit your appetite and convenience, and by joining us at dinner; for in so small a family oeremony is unnecessary, and social intercourse better for ut $\begin{aligned} & \text { unnece } \\ & \text { all. } \\ & \text { " } \\ & \text { w }\end{aligned}$
"What hours do you prifer to have devoted to uttering the respectful monosyllable, for my aix and twents years seemed to glve me no superiority over this stripling not yet out of his teens, perhaps. "I am in my study early these summer mornings, finding an hour or the lat us say from eight to four, or half after, The garden end west wing are and reireshment. The garden end west wing are sacred to medame, but the reat of the house and sacred grounds are open to you, and the eveninge at your disposes, unless you prefer to wite. When net disposel, unless you prefer to wite. When not otherwise engaged, we are usually in the drawingotherwise engaged, we are usually in the room after dinner, if you care to join us."
Another singular expression puesed over his face ust then, reluetance and regret, audacity and pain, all seemed to meet and mingle in it, but it was gone before 1 could define the predominant emogone before tion, and hls
I expressed my aatisfection at these arrangements, and while I spoke he watched me intently, so intently that I felt my eolor rising, a most un-wonted manifestation, and doubly anoying just then; for, consoioue of my seoret mission, a sense of guilt haunted me which was anything but tran of guilt haunted me which was anything but tranquillizing, with those searohing eyes full upon me, quillizing, with those searohing eyes full upon me,
I think the blueh did me good servioe, however, for as if eome doubt had disturbed his mind, my apparent bashfulness seemed to reassure him. Hz gaid nothing, but a slight fold in his forehead mmoothed Staclf away, and an aspect of relief overspread his features so visibly that I made a mental nute of the fact, and resolved to support the charaeter of a simple-minded, diffident meholar, ratber than a mat of the world, as by so doing I thould doubtless aecure many opportunities which might otberwise be denled me.
Here madame called "Bernardl" and he went in to har. Without lenvidg my aeat I naw him bend over her more like a son than a coueln, heard bend over her more like a son than a cousin, heard answers to which she reeeived with a silvery litule fng aloud in a olow, mild voice, with a pleasant accent in it:
Take me io, cheric, and present mourieur, then Drawing her arm though hers, Mr. Noel led her to the larger romm , eotabished her in an armohair, and preeented me, with the anxious look again ap. parant. Madame was very Freneh, penslvely courteous, and so gracefully helplass that I sosi found myeelf waitiog upon her almost as asealously as her consin, who watched my companaiouste attentions with that inscrutable smile of his. The soldierly scrvant handed coffee, and the slight constraint which unavoidably exists at the beginning of an acquaintance was faft wearing of When an incident oocurred which effeotually broke I was interview.
I was approaching madame with her ball, which and rolled from her lap, when Mr. Noel, who etood ind roled from her lap, when Mr. Noel, who etoo beside her, snddenly bent forward, as if attracted by something that alarmed him; for, dropping hit oup, he whispered a single word and thiew ber thanl acrose her face. It eounded like "paid" or cry, more exprsseive of alarm than pain, madame fell into his arms, and without a word he oarried her away, lenving me transfixedo with astonishher away, ment.
He wa
He was back sgain directly, looking quite composed, and with the brief explanation that madame I would like to writo the order for min luggage, that it might be dispatched early in the morning. Aooepting the hint, I bade him good-night, and wai soon inetalled by the old servant in two charming cooms of the gronnd floor of the west wing, wher Inow sit, ooncluding first report.
Juns 2d.-Breakfasted in my room, and ppnotrally at eight $0^{\prime}$ clock tapped at me dointed out the belonging to "master's etuidy." Mr. Noel bade mé enter, and obeying, I found him busied in a deep recess, divided from tbe room by damank curtains. These being partially undrawn, diacovered a wide window, lookpartially undramn, dincovered a wide window, look ing on the garden, a writing-chair and table, a tall ing on the garden, a writing-chair and table, a tall cabinet and couoh, and a literary atrew of books, MSS., ponderous dictionaries end portfolios. The room itself was plainly furnibeded, qule, rind while the some atmosphere of reinement and repose pervaded it that had impressed me elsewhere, and which seemed rather aome peoulia ebarm of its possessor than the result of taete or time. Mr. Noel bade me good-morning with a chilly oourteey, which would have instantly recalled the relations between us had I been inclined to forget them. Pointing to a second writing-tablo, whereon all necessary appliances were laid ready, whereon all necesasy appliances were laid ready he handed me a pile of MS ., saying, as he hall eluotantly loosed his hold upon it:

Many freaks and whims are permitted to young authors, you know, Mr. Clyde. One of mine is to leave my book uncbristened till it in ready to be dressed in type. I will not impose the first chaptera upon you, but yon may begin where my patienoe gave ont. Copy a few pages as come and look at them presently."
He returned to his nook, and employed himsel eo noiscleealy that I soon forgot his preeence. The instant hie back was turned my cye ran down the instant hie back was what I read confir ned my page before mre, Noel was o genius. That one cheet amazed me, far it gave evinidence of a power, insight and culture hardly credible in one oo young. The and colves no romance; poem, satire or essay, but e most remarkable work upon Itallan history and most remarkable work upon Itallan history and pond still more marvellous was his treatment of it.
and I was fairly staggered as $I$ read on at the learning, reeearch and eloquence enoh fine paragraph ditplayed. No wonder his checks ara colorless, his played. No wonder his cheeks afs colonlans, eyes full of fire, his air both lofy and lang when that young brain of his hae wrought such sentenoes. No wonder he is proud, knowing himgelf endowed with suoh a git and the power to use it. This explains the fascinotion of his preeence, the cbarm of his manner, the indefinoble eomethe cbarm of his manner, the indefinoble eomething which attracts one's eye, arrests one's interest, yet restralns one's curioslty by an involuntary reappect for that attribute which is "divine when young." miration and incredality, hed not the recollection of his requeat set me writing with my utmoat oelerity and elegance. Soon I bseame absorbed ond forgot everything but the smoothly.flowing worde, that seemed to glide from my pen ae if to music, for the theme was liberty, and the writer
Was a poet as well as patriot and philosopber. Was a poet as well as patriot and philosopber, Pausing to toke a long breath, I became aware that Mr. Noel was at my side. He saw my equited face, my evident do iese hima, for he came nearer, as xing, wistfully yet ehily:
"Do yon like it?" ${ }^{\text {I }}$ " have no worde to express how much, It is well that you laid an embargo on my tongua othervise I fhould never be done praieing." othervise I should never be done praieing.
His face glowed, his eye stione, and he
His face glowed, his eye shone, and he offer me his hand with that enchanting smile of his.
"I thank you, I sholl remember this." Then, as if to cheok me and himself he copy of his own haatily written Ms.
oopy of his own hatily written Ms.
"This is beautifally done. I hardly know my pages when freed from the blote and blemikhes pages gromn so some ?"
"
"On the oontrary, most delightfol yet most tantolizing, for I long to read when I should be writing. Mr. Noel, I am ntterly amazed that such book should be produced by ao young a man." "I might sny I did not write it, for my fatber bequeathod eloquenee or beauty, the praise belonge to him, eloquen ma.
Softly, aimost solemnly he spoke, withont confusion or conoeit ; pride unmarred by any tinge of vanity he probably ahowed, but seemed as in he would occopt no commendatinn but through that, silent, my cyea fixed on the ebapely hand reating agoinst the table as he atood. I was not thinking petalant geeture, he flang down the pagen he had bild, thrust both bands deep into the pockots of hte paletot, turned sharply on his heel and went into his aleore. I heard him atirring there for several minutes, ae if putting his papers under lock and key, then reappearing, he said gravely
"You will find lunoh in the dining-room when-ver you like it. I must take madame for her drive ever you like it. I must take m now; Wb ehall moet at dinner."
He went, and soon after I saw a pony oarriage ing hnngry $I$ set off on an explorimg expedition, as Mr. Nosl had forgotten to mention where the dining room was, and I did not oars to ring ur a ser-pant. $A$ wide hall ran the whole length of the house, opening apon the garden in the ress. Four doors appeared; ths two opposite were opmin and belonged to the drawiog-rooms ; I was standlag on the threenold of thog third, and the fourth ovidently led to the dining room, I chose to ignore that faot and satisfy my curiosity by prowling elsshere. I might nsver hava so good an opportuaity would euspent a atranger, and If I met the servante gnorance would be a fair exousc. Having assumed forbart of apy, I wished to play ust gin informs tion from inanimate things, $f$ posaible. Two cross passages led from the main hall, one to my rooms, the other to the weet wing. This, of oourse, I took, woftly opening the firet door that appoarid; madame'e apartment, for the gray silk dress and white shawl ley across a chair. A rapid survey satinied me, and I pessed to the next; Mr. Nonl'e, though I should soarcely have gueseed it but for the hat apon the lounge, the pistola beside the bed, and the gentleman's dreasing-caes on the toilette. The windowe were heavily curtained, the furniture luxarious, and an sir of almost feminine elegance pervaded it. Two things struck me; the firat was s dninty work-baeket in a lounglog chair, so neas me that I could see the exquisitely fine stitching on the wistband that lay in it. Jracams was blind no other woman appeared-who dilit Tbe second discovery was more important. Opposito the doo a fight of thiokly earpeted ataire winding npward. $\Delta$ blaze of June sunshine streamed down them, the odor of flowere enme to me with a balmy gust, and in the aot of stealing forward to see what was shove, I Itallan:
"Ah, I am so tired of this; derise some new "usernent, or I shall dle of weariness."
"My darling, Bo am I," replied o, deeper voioe
" but remembering our reward, I ean have patience "but remembering our talk of our next letter Come to me dne to day."
"No; it makes me sad to think of that unless must, and Heaven knowe I need all the cheerfulness and courage I possess.
"Poor little heart, you do. Sing to me while I work, and so forgel imprisonment and tronbla." "That is my only pleasure now. Bnt I am thirsty, I want a draught of wine, and Pierre has orgotten me," murmured the femsle voice.
"No, love, he never will do that. I was ebliged oo sead him to the St. Mfichaels, that they might be told of this man'e arry vel and oondaot ma with double discretion," anawered the man.
with double discretion," anawered the man.
"Yoor Pierre! ha bas to serve ue now as bntler, gardener, errand-boy and santinel. Hia lifs must be almost as wearisome as mino," slghed the be zlm
other.
"No
otaer.
"Now you ars growing sorrowfil again. Kiss
ms , Clarlee, and lot me fiod a happler face when I return; I am going for the wine.
There wae a rustle, a murmar and a panas, but I heard no more for gllding like a ehadow down the he ard no more; for glaig lice a ehadow down the hall, I bolted into the dining-room and bogan to devour the first viand that came to hand. Here was discoveryl the deeper voles I heard was Mr. Nosl's, and ths softer one not mademe's. Hers was sweet and slow, this youthful and virscious, plaintive and petulant by turns. Noel'e was unmistakable, thongh now it varied from passiosate melancholy to an infinite tenderness, a oaressing tone thot would have cooched and tor any wown by its magio. I had barely time to compoee myeelf nod explained.
"Pardon! I have lived eo much alone that I had forgotten the addition to my honsehold for the forgotten the adm fill your glass.
I had opened my lips to reply when a strain of musie floated past the wiodow, and involuntarily I paused to listen.
"Ah! Casta Diva, and exquisitely given." As I spoke I sow Mr. Noel's hand tighten ronnd the decanter he held, and a lashed upon me as be eaid:
"You nnderstand Itolian,
"Yes," wae on my lips, bot the reoolleotion of my promise ohecked it, and I aocent of regret, "I wish I did."
Mr. Noel ruised his glase to his lips, as If to oonceal the smile that parted them, a amile which donbtless algnified, "So do not I," but hosaid sloud:

fancy. " X

"Yee, madame possenees a wonderful voice."
With which unsatiffactory reply he strolled tó With which unsatisfact, and stood there listening. I ste in sllence, but watched him oovertly, recalling what I lad lately beard, and finding in his appearance farther confirmation of the supploion whioh had eome to me. His eyea had met mina but onoe; on his cheek burned a celor not mina but onee; on hif cheek burned a chlor not born of the nummer heat; his grave mouth was soft and smiling, as if the kiss he asked for still remained npon his lipa, and the music of thet eweeter language seemed to linger in his voice. He looked a lover, and I felt that be was one, far genina rapidiy matures both head and heart, unhampered by reelrainte of custom, age or race. How clss explaie the presence of the uninown elager, upon whom I. the presence of the nningown einger, upon whom I.
had heard him lavish fueh tender names with more than brotherly affectian? I confees the fency charms me, for my own loveless life has been so bare of remance I am ready to find interent and pleanure in another man's experience, whilethe myitery which nurrounds thin ptrange Jouth and my relations with him make it doubly allurioge roune him; approsching the tahie he carefully aclected a cake and fruit, filled a glank mith icd claret, and arranging ihem on e silver silvor, added a hindudto of llowern from a vane nesr hy, and carried it a way, nyying with a half- asd, hall-mirthful ried it look:
"Madome likes me to mait on her, and io as fond of delio ote aftentions as a girl."
Till ne arly five I $\approx$ rote, then Tiu nearly five 1 rrote, then dressed for diuner, and when eummoned found my hool and hootes waiting for me. A well appointed table, well naiting for me. $A$ well appointed anden one ocurrence at ith close are all that is neceessry to record of this epitode.
Nool sat hesido his cousin, maiting on her with a Nool sat hesion his cousin, miking on her with a quilet derotion besutiful to zee. Pierre horered nhout both ritb a reapeolfolly protective air, whích became the renerable servant who seemed to eye me ratber jealouely, as if he feered a rival in hia young matter's consdence. It wasa a thlent meal, for Noel was not loquacions, and madene semed sad. I did ryy best, bnt the rolle I had taken was not one to allow of much converestion, and long pauses followed short dialogues.
We were just rising wben Pierre entered, bringing in busket of hotwouse flowere, which he delivered to bis manict, with the mestage livered to bis masicr, wilh the mertage
"For madime, wilh Mre. St. Nichat ments.
Mad
Mal
Madame uttered no thanks, made no gesture of pleasure, but every particle of color faded from her face as the feemed to isten for Noel's answer. He too was paler, and the hend extended for the baske1 animation
"Sbe in very kird; cousin, 1 will take them to your room for you. Mr. Clyde, 1 have on engagement for this erening: but drawing-room, libryy ment for this erening; but dr and lawn are at jour eerrice."
"The lest shall be frrtt, thank you, and I will enjoy the sumset out of diors."
With thet I Itook myself faya; Pierre cloeed the door hehind me, and as I turned into the passage to my rooman f fancied $\mathbf{I}$ heard the click of a key turing in the lock. I got my bat, passed out at turning in the lock. 1 got my bat, passed out at one of the long windows of my little parior, and strolled towarde the lawn elong the ferrace which lay olose hefore the house. My stepe wore noise-- less on the turf, and as I passed the windown of the dining. room I snatched a hasty look, which ehowed me the baiket overturned upon the floor, madame with her shade at her feet and her face bidden in her hands, Mr. Noel reading a letter aloud, and Pierre listening intently, with a napkin still over his arm,
They did not aee me, all being absorbed, and with my curiosity still further piqued, I weeried myself with conjeoturen an I eurveged the exterior myself with conjeoturen as I surveyed the exterior of the honse, the occupants of which slresdy of the honse, the occupants inipired me with such interest.
A rambling. English cottsge in a nert of verdure. A lawn elopen to the road in front, a garden lies behind; a lane runs perallel with the garden-waly on the right, and a grove of pines rines roberly againat the sky upon the left. Curious to locate the room of the unknomn, I struck into the lane, scrutinising the left wing as 1 malked. To my snrprise, no upper windowa eppeared. An ancient grape vine eovered the western wall, trained away the epace above and mandering over half the roof. Looking eloner, I soon disoovered a lirge aperiure ie the root, half hidden by the leaves; the sash evidently lowered from within, and this explains the flood of aunshine and the odorous gust that fioet-d down the etairway which I now long to mount. Having looked till my eyee ached, I roamed away inio the fields which lie between the soliary eoftage and the town.
Ae I came up the evenue on my return Mr
Neel paeed mie, driving rapidly; he did not see me, for his hat wae pulled down low upon his forehead, hul his month looked grim, his whole figure erect and reeolute. I waiched him out of eighi, went in and read for an hour, then to my room and secret diary. It is past midnight now, bui Mr. Juse 3n - Fouod the young gentleman in his alcove, and my work laid ready when I went to the study ibis moraing. He looked up and answered my enlutation as I entered, then eealed himself behind bis curtnin, and I nawno more of him for an hour. At the end of that time the perfect ailenee that reigned in the reese arreeted my attention, and cimased me to suspeci that he had elipped eway through the window. I was juet a genuine excure. A little gust of air hiew in from the garden, rustling the paperi on hia table; one Was wafted hey ond the curtain, and almont to my feet. I waited a moment for him to reclaim it, ut nothing sfirred, and quite sure that he was gone, I examined it. A olosely covared sheet written in Italian it proved to he, and a moment inspection sbowed me that it wae a pari of the inspection I was eopying, though in a different and holder hand. Stepping to the receee io restore it, I was startled hy disooveriag Mr. Noel esleup in hie chair. Very worn and tired he looked, thougb upon bis deek liy drops that looked like tesru. Seejigg that his slomber was deep, I ventored to ook well ahout me. The half-written ehect on which his pen otill lay, as it dropped from hin held. Othere lay on the table, and in the canine held. Ochere lay on the table, and in the cahine Whioh antood open I spied three pilee af M8
A hasty glance showed me the misting ohapter A hasty glance showed me the missing ohaptera copied in his greceful hand, a heap of hlurred he sama hold writiog, the same fanguago as the crumat leaf. Farther I dared not look, hat crep onk wrote in Italian, and nuffered no one to transahould suapect bim of a literary theft or some doahle dealing with another's work. But Bernar Noel seems inespable of deceit, snd bis look, his manaer when epeaking of it assure me thai it is rightfully his own, whatever his reasons may be suddenly interrupted by hearing him rouse, and eceiog bim pull aside the curtain to asentain if I Wha there. He looked half be wildered by sleep, hui began to collect the papers, carefully arranged them in the cabinet, locked it, and atepped out into the garden, where I asw him pacing thought liset of him for to day, for he and medame dined a the St. Miehaelr, as Pierre informed me when ino oclock found me tho sole partaker of an xcellent dinner. They returned at nine, and the visihle musician has been singing for a hour.
JuNE 6rI.- For four days nothing has occurred worth recording, as I have heen almost sntirely alone. Mr. Noel hands me e chapter or two eaoh morning, receivee my copy at night, and only the dame has not heen visible, ill I am told, yet her oousin looks tranquil, and no nuree or phybicisn has been summoned to my knowledge. Very hrief and silent are our interviews at dinner, and not once have I found the drawing room occupied of an evening. No one calls, bui Mr. Noel drive out often and returns late. My daye have heen out often and returni late. My daye have heen epent at the writing-tsble, my eveningu in my own spent at the writing-tsble, my evenings in my own room or solisery walke about the country. Returning from one of theae, I saw the window under eatisfy my curionily the first moonless night, sstinfaciory, and that out of my own darkness I have given light.
June 7 TH .-To Noel, when I meday, being Sunday, I asksd Mr. three churches, over the hill, I shonld find his
"In nane; 1 go nowhore just now. My consin cannot, and, 1 join her in a little service here at cannot," and, suid sow her in a little service here at adding instantly, as if afrait home," I should expect to be inoluded in that domestic service: "My friend, Mrs. St. Michael, will be happy to do the honors of her husband's ch I have spoken to her, and she expects you." I thanked him, went to church, found the pastor a duli preacher, though apparently an excellent lady, who reccived me his wife a grave, molherl) wifh intercet, and me how I liked her neighhors.

Mr. Noel neems an eocentric hut most charm ing young man, and ma.
ful enfferer," I replicd.
"Genius has many privilegen, ;and cooentricity is one, you know," rep ied the lafy, adding, rather guardedly: "Madame Estavai is yonnger tban ahe seeras, and manifold aff etions ennot wholly darken her hright spirit. Msy I trouble yon ta give my regards to her, and tell Mr. Noel I will see hịm toAt dinner I delivered the messages; Mr. Noel tarned graver than hefore on receiving hil, and madame tarned gay. I was glad to sne her so, and did my hest to interest her, observing that her couvin often took the word from her lips, and that Pierre's usually expressionless face wore an aspect of uneaniness. In drawing out her handkerohlef madame dropped an ehony rosary. No one heard It fall, for it slipped noiselessiy through the folde of her drees, and no one saw it but myself. Pierre was buey at the sidebeard, and, slooping, I lifted exelemstion :
"Cid! How earelese I am grown! I thought I put it by afier mase.'
"Ms deme is a Catholic, one reet.
The words slipped from me involuntarlly, her anower seemed to do the same,
"Oh, yes; in truth I am, and so is A heary silver fork olamged down into Mr . Noel's plate, and madame started at the clatter, leaving her sentence unfinisbed.
"Pardon, oousin; if you are forgetful, I em owlNoel epoke qnite naturally, but I suapees ierra.' caught some warning from his tone, for the color mounted to her forehead as ahe eagerly asnented.
"Surely, yes. Whom else oould I mean ? Not "Surely, yes. Whom else could I mean?
you, my too Protestant and English Bernard."
you, my too Protestant and Engliah Bernard.
Poor lady, she overdid the maiter eadly, and the Poor lady, she overdid the maiter eadly, and that anxious emphasis upon the worda "Protestant" and "English" convinoed me thet Noel was suspected it. As if anxious to hanimh it from my mind, he led the way to the drawing-roon, and, as all madarae's epirits had departed, exerted himself vitty eriain us both. In converaation I found him mated deeoription of foreign life he checked himself, and going to the grand pisno gave us fragments from and brillinnusic of the great maeters, with on ease enjoying this trent when, scence, madame suddenly gave a loud ory and darted out upon the lawn, exolaiming:
"He has come! Mon pire / Mon
For an instant Noel stared aghast, then sprang fier her, looking ae wild as ahe. I followed to the stillnta counin obiding. twillght, madame sohbing and her He spoke Italian, bnt low and rapid as were his wordu, I caught them brokenly. face, voica, mind or manner. You knew it wai imponible-he cannot eome for weeks yob-I will "Forgive me. It is this lifs which destroys my nerves; it is unnatural. I ond for me," sohbed madame.
"It hall," "nlmost siernly answered he." "Rent ontent, I will ask no more of you; it is nelisht, nwire.
enough."
" It
is not that $;$ it is the snepense, the deceit, end mer tbat dismaya me. I can aet no part send me away for a little; you will
"I shall, and so will yon. To-morrow St. fiohael will receive you, and a fow weeks will end fiohael will rective you, and a few weeks will end
il. Now sompose yourself, go to your room, and leave me to explain your flight to Clyde,"
I slipped ronnd to the hall door and met him here with, 1 flatter myelf, well-acted concern. Madame passed me wilb a murmured:
"Monsieur, I have known loss, it haunte ms; "rgive the malady of a broken beart.
Noel gave ber into the oharge of a crave, elderly woman, whom I now saw for the first time, and who came hurrying up with Pierce. As ahe dewho came hurrying up with Pierce. As the departed the old servant hastily explained th he who had peeped and atartled madame.
"Then madame is not wholly hlind?" I asked, quickly, far there ho paused and lookeri confueed Noel answered, tranquilly
"It is only a partial loss. You may go, Pierre; you are forgiven. But let us have nomore of thin, or medame's sske.
The old man gladly withdrew and his master added, as I bade him good night: added, as I bade him good night:
umy courin needs change. I shall fake her to state demande betier care than I osin give har. We bball leave early, but I willprepare matters for you, I shill not return till late.
A long sigb of relief broke from him at he turne way, and on my soul I pitied him; for it is my belief that madame io not ouly a litile mad, but some relugec whom he is berriending, and who, in pite of gratitude, finds it hard to lead a life of concealment under the same raol with some fair, frail

GEN. BANKS AND STAFF

Writ the present interest attending the novement; of Gen, Binks, our readers will vien witb pleasare the groonp of the General and bia staff, from s etrikingly good photograph of Juoobs, of New Oricans. of Gen, Natbanlel P. Banks, the Gcuerni commandling the deparment of the Gulf Hittle need he sald. The hobbin boy who stendlly rose hy his own elforin to the lighest rank in Congrese, wbo, as a General, hat diaplayed many high qaultilea and deeerved succesk, is too well known to necd a mketcb old army oficer, a native of manasohosette, wh entered Weat Point in 1841, and sfter aecting aa proat Motho del Bey and Chapoitepeo. He is in tbe regulnr service Colonel of the 14tb infantry, and thl recently was Brigadier. General, baving been ap pointed May 17 , 186 , aldiougb recently matered He conumanded at Bally hluff, and was then conFort Lafyyctre for many weary montha, to to at last dlecharged, untried, unheard and nncen-demned.
Brig-Gen. A, S, Lee the Chlef of Cavalry, led the van fin the irstiof the thre day' fightt.
Brig. Gen. Riohard Amold, Banky's ery, wae a cudet in 1846 , and in 1850 entered thi nervice se Brevet Second Lienteoant in the 1 1t artilery, and beenme a Firit Mientemant in 1884. He dating from $M$ My 14,1861
 tana in the 6ib cavalry, and holds the position of Inpepeeor-Geneal, witn the rank of Lieutenant.
Colonel
Col D . G. Beclkwitb, the Chilel

 Mor Rlibard H . Alexander, the Medical Direc. tor jor en oxperienced rmy eargen, whone com.
mieecion dates onck over a decade.

PLYMOUTH, NORTH CAROLINA.

our renders an atew of Plymonth, N. $\mathrm{C}_{1}$, made hy an officer during a stay of more than a yenr at tbat poest, whith bas now Whito bas now heen, in a manner so disgracefal to our arme, wreifed from us.
Plymonth fo Plymonth to elght miles
and ls conneoted with Albemartic of Boanoko river, in trade, The Loss of the Southfield.

brig.-GEN. T. E. RANSOM.

Grs. Rassom, recently wounded in the Ind who bed, in the milltary wechool, trained many to Abe cureer of irmis.

After complefing bif edncution, young Ransom removed to Pern, III, in 1855, and began Heas moved to Pern, III, In 1851 , and began Hfe on nn en. gineer, bnt gradnally beaame an aperator in en eataste. When the wor broke ont be raitacd a company in Fayette county, where be renlded, and on lie in. Tbe regliment into toe 1lith Illinols wae elected Major. Tbe reglment dnring lta tbree monthys zervice wsis stationed neur Cairo and at Bitde polst Wben II Wäa reargnized fror three ycara R Rusom was medo Licatenunt-Colonel, and sa the Coloni, the late Gen. Licatenant-Colonel, and as tbe Colonet, the hate Gen.
W. H. . Wallise, was gencrally acting to Brigadter, W. H. L. Wallace, was generally activg af Brigadter, the command of the regment devolved on R Rins m,
On the 23d of Augoil he defeated a rebel foree under Tyjor Hunter, at Chariceston, Mo., recelving a severe und ied hie regiment into action snd was again wounded. he conld accomppany his men only in so Ambulanec, hut he would not leave them.
 ie gallantry recelved thi bigbeat eommenendetion.
Gen. Grant and Gen. Moclernand recommended ble
 Gen. MoClernand nid linepector. Gineral of the Army of the Teonesbee, and next in command of the dif.
trict of Cairo

 rehel army.
He has ai

COL. JOSEPH J. MORRISON, 16TH NEW

 YORK ARTILLERY.Col. Morrison, now at the head of a fine artiliery reglment, for whilit he rooruited so sucoese-

THE SPELLING OF THE ENGLISH

LANGUAGE.

Various attempts have been made from dime to Ume to reduce the borribly eonfused artho Orpin, anthor of a metrioal parapbrase of the New Teiament, wbo lived in the 13th century, wrote : Work on a almple bnt most admitruble pbonetio system of hisa omm , the prinotpal featare of whloh in that tho of has o wn, the prinolpal feature of which in thal tho consonant after a ehort vowel is invari hly doubled. No writer was noied aftor Ormin antll the mildde of the 16th oentary, wheo aeveral arose to draw attention to the great and growing evil of a corrupt ortho graphy.
Sir John Cbeoke, " wbo firat tanght Cumbrldge, and King Eiwward, Greek," and Bir Tbomee Smith were the two Arst to attempt a reform; lint tbe latter far ouletripped the former fa hia work De recta et emen. data Lingue Anglico Soriptione Dialogus, pab-

 $=5=5=$ $3=2$

he " $\overline{\text { " for " } ~} y$ " tn all adjectivee.

Wrien we hear a novice playing the organ,
wis thlok the inetrumant has one atep too few.

the war in lousiana-the batile of pleasant hill, beiween general banis and the

the war in louistana-batile of wilson's plantation, betyeen gen. leg and the bebel gen. green, aprle f.-see pag hj.

peane

4nower

Shen
the rebel genffal dick taytor, april 9.-From a Sketer by our Specha Artist, C. E. H. Bonwhl- - fee Paor 1 :

at last.

So I mile proudiy, do I? Well, what then? Swect eanss I have for amiling, sinee my cro
My rigb fal crown of love-tbe flower of men Has plaect uponmy brow-ablessing rhaken down From that bright tree which ever bloomed so fair (But not for ms); content I stood aside, Nor thought ef hate, that otber brows rhould wear
Its starry blooms that erowned them wife or bride

For what was I tbat be shonld strive to win For whe wear me ou his breast? A wayside
No more; but still a weed unsoiled by sin Of any worldly thought or selfish deed.
Perbspe tbat won him; no, it cannot be,
Nor good nor worth had $\mathbf{I}$; $\mathbf{I}$ cannot tell, only know he bent and said to me
Tbose precions words my heart knows now so
Am I not right to smile, the happy queen Of one true heart the dear and chosen on Is proud ? my woman's life is just begun.

The Gulf Between Them.

Chafter xxxit.

The day was passiog-that long, terrible day in Which tbe momente seemed to lengthen themelves into hours, while with every one the gloom about the old heavily down.
heavily down.
Grantle $y$ Mellen was in his library atill; it had been a busy day with him; it appeared as if every. creature within reach who could invent a plea He was alone at last, and it was well; he literally incnpable of endnring any farther eelfrestraiut.
He rang the bell and gave strict orders to Dolph:
4 Let no one else in to-day; I have letters to "Let no one else in to-day; I have lett wrile; $\mathbf{I}$ will not see another human being." 'Doiph bowed himself out, and took his Way to tbe lower regions, to communicate to Cio and Vietoria the commands his master had given. Those thres servants kept themselves aloof from the fow others employed for tasks which they considered too menial for the dignity of their position, aid the se faping youths and girls were strictly forbidden to enter the apartment in which Clo had installed herself.
Tbey were perfe etly will aware, those three sable emissanies, that sometbing was wrongin the honse; ervante always do know when anything out of the comesion routine happens; and no pretence can comes on routine happens, blind their watenful eyes,
"Marster kaye be won't see nobody more," observed 'Dolph, as he ontered the room where Clo Was rolling out her piecrust, and Victoria busily Der's znissus a walkin' up an' down like a acrazy "Anm=" sbe didn't eat no breakfast," interrupted Dolph, " $3 \mathrm{n}^{\prime}$, she never toched a thing yesterday
"An' Miss Elnie a retched out on de sofa, lookin' as if she'd cried her pretty eyes out," went on Vietoria. "Says she's got a hedacbe-go 'long; ell dat to blind folks! It's my 'pinion der's more heartache under dem looks den anythin' else.
"Dat' $;$ jis' what $I$ tink," assented 'Dolph.
Clorinds, from her atation at tbe pastryboard, gave anifiof doubtful meaning to attract their attention, tossed her he ad till her frizzed locké shook as if in a high nind, brought her rolinggin down on the board with great energy, and remuined silent for the express purpose of being quetioned. express purpose of being quedioned. What does yer tink 'bout it, Miss Clorindy ? sked 'Dolph. "Yer sentiments is allera so conapicerous " Vis pict." looked a little spiteful at hearing such cloquence wasted on Clo, but she was eo anxious for any body's opinion that for once she forgot to
"I tinks what I tink," asid Clo, with another ogs of her head and an extra flourish of the rolling piu. "Ob!"' said 'Dolph, quite discomfited.

Jis' so," ssid Clorinda.
"Any pusson coutd have guessed dat ar," pnt
n Viotoria, in an irritated way; "yer needn't maketicha, in an insteriousness jis' saying that." "I shall make a mysteriousnesses or shall luff it needn t go a meddlin' wid my dumplin', Miss Vle ceause yer'll git yer fingere burot if yer does.
quarrel, since there, ju nping at the prospect of a quarrel, since there, as notbing to be gained by too high acented for oy taste."
"Jis' give me any of yer sarse," said Clo, "and III mark yer face smast/4 wid dis cre dough, now I tells ye!"
" Doa't it," shrieked Vic; " yer a crosis old cantamount dits "Go long 'bout jer buainess," shouted Clo shaking h-r rillingpin in a threstening rags. "Dis 'ere's de housckeeper's room, an' yer hain't no business here.
"Much business as you, I guens; yer ain't hounekeeper as I housckeeper as I knows on; yer only potwasher "nylow." "Misus telled me to use dis room for mukin' rien and cakes in till ahe got anoder houselseeper, an' I'se gwine ter."

"I don't keer if she did, dat don't make yer

 jackda $\overline{\text { an }}$ aghe.""Now, ladies, ladies!" pleaded 'Dolpb, fearf. of the extent to whicb the tam pest might reach if not obecked in thme. "Don't let ns comflusticate deas little sensens of union by savagerousnessen dons d Ithes.
old catamount leave me alone, Eniffed Vic.
nLarn dat gal to keep a eivil tongue in her galler head if yer want peace an' composion" yaller Clo.
"Dat ar's religion wid a vengeanee," cried
Vic; "a callin' names is pretty piety, ain't it! Vic; "a callin' names ls pretty piety, ain't it!
I'll jis' see what Elder Brown sayato dat ar de bery next time I sess him."
"Ob, yes " said Clo.
allers glad of a 'canion to gabble to mounly; "yer a purson gwine to hab religion when dey's perse cuted by sieb a born devil ; wurs'n dem in tle serip. cured as was druv into de swine.
ture at
"Laws"
 yer roun' wid dat drove 'bout dat time.
"I'll drove yer," eried Clo; "I"ll fa
"I'll drove yer," eried Clo; "I'll fix yer "
But 'Dolpb interposed again, and luck Cly Clo's nostri s detected the nostri a deteeted tbe odor of burniog piecrust, and she rushed into the kitehen allowed her psstry to burn.
allowed 'Dolph tonk that opportunity to roothe the angry Vietorin, and succeeded oo well that by the time Clorinda returned she looker quite umiable, only tbere was a broad wet spot on ber cheek, and a corresponding rumple in her ourls, which might have excited Clorinaa's suspicions had she ob. served it.
"Now,
"Now, Miss Clorindy," said 'Dolph, when she had relieved her feelings of abusing Solly for her cerelessness about the pies, and was once more cerelessness about the pies, and was onee more tranquilly occupied with her work; "now, Miss tranqualy occupled Clorindy, jis glorify us wid yer 'pinion 'bout de
'fuis ob dis dwellin' which we has all noticed is 'fuirs of dis dwellin' which we has all noticed is more mystériouser dan is pleasant.'
"I sin't g orine to talk, jii' to be snapped up like beetle by 2 Sbanghai rooster," said Clo " "shan't a bectle by 2 do it, nnhow.
'Dolph winked at Victoria, and that artfulmaiden ondescended topattempt to mollify her for a little "Now don"t be cross, Clo," said she, "it's bad enough to
"Dem's my stntiments," cried 'Dolph, ${ }^{\prime}$ and I nows foir Miss Clorinda'grees wid dem-she coinidates, if yer'll 'scuse the leetle bit $o^{\prime}$ diotionary." Vietoria made a grimaee behind Clo's back, but "Id, graciously "I'se g wine to give yer dat ar blue handkercher Miss Elsie guv me, Clo," she suid, "so now let'a make up and be comloble."

I don't want ter fight," replied Clo; "taint my "reated 'cording."
Tbe handkerchief was something Clo had eoveted for a long time, and the gift quite restored her goodhumor.
"Dat's as it ortor be," suid 'Dolph. "Peace and harmony once more prewaila, ann we'a here lise-added, finding a comparison at lengtb, and uneonscious of its slngular appropriateneas.
"I'se gwine to mend dis tablecloth," said Vie and Inl set here to do it-when I go upstairn IIl git yer the hankercher, Clo.
git yer the hankercher, Clo.
"Oh! laws," said Clo, "Jer want it jersel-don't a givin' away yer truck."
"I'd ruther yer had it," observed Vio, "blue's
"lers becoming to yer, ain't it, Mr. 'Dolph $?$ " llers becoming to yer, ain't it, Mr. 'Dolph ?"
She made another grimace, unseen by Clorinda whieh nearly sent Dolph into fits, but he restrained which nearly sent Dolph into fits, but he restrained his merrlment, and anawered with the gravity of a his merriment, and anawered with the gravity of judge:
"Miss Clorindy overeomes whatever she puts on
"Miss Clorindy overeomes whatever she puts on I tink blue's about de proper touch fur her." Clo grew quite radiant with delight, but she worked away resolutely, only saying
"Viety, dar's a leetle cramberiy tart I jis' tuk nt oh de oben-it's on de kitchen table- I 'epect ont oh de oben-it's on de kitchen table-- I 'epeet we might as well eat it, 'cause 'taint big enough to go on de table."
" I"ll fotch it,"
"I'll fotch it," cried 'Dolph; "to sarve de fair is "y priv'lege.
Ho darted into the kitehen, bore off the tart from so that shas could not he regaled even with a scent of the delioncy.
"I're jis' done now," said Clo, "so Fll rest a leetle afore I 'gina dinner. Ill jis' taste de tast to see of it's good-it kinder eases my mind like" "In courss it does," said Dolph, and he cut the
"It tart into four pieces, having an ldea that the la ice would revert to him in the end.
They ate the ple and talked amieably over it wille in the end 'Dolph received the extra pisce by carnestly pressing it on his companion turn insiated upon his eating it himself irn insiisted upon his eating it himseli.
"Mebby Sally'd like a taste," he said, virtuoukly
"Sally, 'deed!" cried Clo. "It'a nuff for hor te see such tinga widout eatin' 'em-a lazy, good-fur notin' piece."
"Denter' 'Mige yer I'll dispose of it," said 'Dolph, and he did so in juit three muthfuls. and he did so in just three mouthfals.
"If yer wants my 'pinion 'bout what's gwine on," said Clo, suddenly, as she rose to pile up the diahes she had been using preparatiry to making poor Sally wash them ln the kitchen; "it's jis' dif poor Sally wash them in the pit yerl Dis trouble's all missuil'
"Missus!" repeated Vic.
"Now what does yer mean ?" eried 'Dolph with great gravity and precision.
"Yes, missus," she repeated, with the fime of a person who meant what she asid, and was fully prepared to defend he'r opiblon.
"What's come over her ?" as
"Dat'e jis' it," returnad Clo; "now.
it prezact-yer might tall
eam into de pint
Vietoria looked at 'Dolph, and he looked at her, but, however convincing her words might have seemed to Clorind s, tbere was nothing to throw any ligbt upon tbeir minds.
'Dolph, softy, " wid yer usual knowledge," said
 "Mr. ${ }^{\text {'D }}$ Dolph," snid Clorinda, rolling up her eyes a house de seorets ob dat house is locked in my bunsom-"
"But to feller domestica," put in artful 'Dolph. "Jis" 'mong us," said Vie.
"I know, I feels dat, and so I speak," replied Clo. "I ain'tg wine ter say Miss Mellen is a favoright uv mine, 'cause she ain't-bnt she's may missus. Her ways isn't my ways, dut's all I missus. Her ways isn't my wayb, dat's all I says, roun' de corners as is her way to do."
un' de corners an if her way to do."
"Mebby 'tis and mebby'tisn't,", returned Clorinday "I ${ }^{\circ}$ only says I ain't recustomed to it, dat's
"But what do yer tinks happened to her to "m all in sicb a to-do?" questioned Vietoria. "I ain't prepared to eay ezzactly", replled Clo, dat lubly angel, Mine Elsio. Dar's a syrup fur yel She nebber gubs a pusson erders widout even lookin' at 'em she ain't so high and mighty dat de ground ain't good 'nuff for ber to waik on 1 Not but what misas a mighty fine woman-she steps off like a queen, and I tell yer when sbe'n dresired off like a queen, and I tell yer when sbe's dresied dar ain't many kin hold a candle ter ber, and as fur dar ain't many kin hold a candle ter ber, and as fur takin' de shine.off, wal, I'd jib' like to see anybody dar ain' takin' d
do dat."
"1t's
" 1 t's all true," said 'Dolph, "as true as preachi "Mr. 'Dolph," ssid Clo, gravely, "don't take dem seriousnesses so lighteome on your lips." "I won't," exid 'Dolph, humbly, "I begs to polegise-yer see in gazing 'bout de world a gem-man'quires some parts of speech as seems keerleas, buires dey don't come from de heart."
"T'se glad dey don't," observed Clorinda, "bery "But what do
"But what do you think missus has done?" demanded Victotia.
Such a straightfo
Such a straightforward question wail rather a puzzler to Clorinds, so she said with a stately alr: "Der's questions I couldr't snswer even to my most intemancies-don't press it, Viety.'
Victoria's big eyes began to roll wildly in their sockets; she wan astonisbed to find that Clo had for some time seen tbat thinga had for some time seen tbat tbings were going wrong, when the fact had ercaped hei own observn-tion, and, for the first time in the course of their tion, and, for the first time in the course of their acquaintance, she felt a sort of respect for her acquaintance, spe feit a sort of respect for her usual foe but temporary ally.
"Does yer think dey's quarr'ling ?" she asked.
"Wben I hears tbnnder," sald Clo, sententiously, "I allers takes it for granted there's a Vic looked more puzsled than ever, and 'Dolph Waa act mich better off, tbough he tried to app full to the brim with wisdom ind sagacity.
"Yer 'members the night missus loat her bracelet, Mr. 'Dolph P" asked Clo. Let, Mr. 'Dolph ${ }^{3}$ a akked Clo.,
"I does bery well indeed."
"When missus bemeaned herself to shout out "When missus bemeaned herself to shout out "Wal, if ever I see tbunder I sced it in marster's face dat ar nizht!"
"Oh!" exelaimod Victoria, bundling up her work, if you and Mr. Dolph has got secrets to talk "Who's a deatryin' the Who's a deatryin' tbe harmony now ?" shouted Clo. "It's raal sinful, Vietory, to give way to temper like you docs." "Oh, dat's all fine 'nuff! But I don't wish to upstairs."
"Set still, set still, Miss Victory." urged 'Dolph.
"Der's no secret. We shall havs de uttermost pleasureableness in making you 'quainted wid de int in question.
Clorinda did not look altogether plessed at his eagerness to explain; she ratber liked Victoria to suppose there was a secret between Dolph and herself; it seemed like paying off old acores, and though in a frisadly mood, Clorinda was a woimin still.
"til. 'Splain or not, jis' as yer please," said Vio, cossing her head, rioiously, " it'squite 'inaterial to me" But 'Dolph gave a voluble account of what his master and mistress had said and done the night the braculet was lost, and ornamented the conversaif he erred, and the points where Clo most loudly
tion beautiuly, calling on Clorinda to himht expressed her approval as being the exact words spoken ware the places where 'Dolph embroidered most highly.
"Why, dar goes marster now," exolaimed Viotoria, suddenly. "He's gwine out to walk." They all rushed to the window to look, as if there had been something wonderful to the sight, and just then Sally rushed in with a cry, ust then Sally rushed in with s cry
"The soup's bilin' over, Clo; com
The siance broke up in disorder, and Clo was soon engaged in pulling Sally'a wool, too common au occurrence to create any surprise in the house.

OHAPTER XXXIIT.

Tre confinement of the house became so irksome
The confinement of the house became so lrksome He oould not have talked even to Elsie just then, so Upon one point his mind was fully madeds up Uut Ths clue to the mystery appsared to be in his handa;
he would follow it ont to the end now-be would know the wornt. He had atrength enough left to bear anothar great trouble. He felt that if thit bear anothar great trouble. He felt that if this woman had wranged him he oould aweephar ont of his life, even as he had done that false ons in yoar gone by.
That tb the re thought drove bim nearly mad, it reoalled the same! If this man brid ang. Sould it prove into his life to blacken it with his tresobery and hi hate! Terrible words died, halif nttered on Mellen' lips, his face was fairiy convalsed witb passion, a loatbing and a hatred which this time oniy blood loatbing and a h oould wipe out.
Below the house the lawn and gardens led away into a grove, and towards its gloom Mellen mechanically directed his steps gioom Mellen mesky. $\Delta$ chill wind was blowing up from the water, but he did not observe it; in the fever which cen sumed him the air seemed absolutsly stfling, an he hurried on, increasing its excess by his rapid movements.
He was in
He was in the grove, rushing wildy up and down, with no settled purpose in view, striving only to escape tho him still.
The win
The wind was shaking the few remaining leava from the trees and blowing them sbout in rustling dreariness, tbe froste had aiready touched the grass and ferns, and though the place on a bright day would still have biea lovely, it looked bare and melancholy enough under tbat frowning sky.
"It is like my life," muttered Mellen, looking gloomily; "like my life, with an sdded blacknsss coming up beyond."
Then his mood ehanged; ngatin toat fieroe passion swept over his face, leaving it dangerous and terrible.
"If the
"If that woman has deceived me," he cried aloud, "this time I will have no merey! sbe aloud, "this time I will have no merey! Sbe sball taste her degradation to the very dregs taste her degradation to the very dregs; there is no depth of shame through which $I$ will not depth of shame through which I will not dragg her, though I tuin my own name in doing It! But it can't bel it can't be! It were death to belleve it ! Oh, Elizabeth, Elizabeth!" Bvery tender feeling of his nature went out in that last agonizing cry. For the first time he realised all that this monuan had been to him, ised all that this woman had been to him, how corppletely shs had united herself with his life, and what a terrible blank it would become if he cre forced to tear ber from wis hearh
He tried to check thote black tboug hts, to invent exouses; he was almost inclined to rush into the house, beg for the truth and promise pardon in house, beg for the truth and promike pardon in advance. Tben he called himself a weak fool for the idea, as if any excuse were possible.
"More lies, only more lies!" be esid. "I will wait-I have the clue-it will sll be made clesr soon."
He elenched his hands with a groan that was half anguich, half rage, and hurried more swifly
He came out upon a little eminence, from whenoe he could look down on the paths leading towards the house, though the dwei by the thick growth of trees.
He saw some object creeping throngh the bnshes, moving carefully, as if to elude tbe possibility of obserration. He vas always keen-slghted enongh, bat just then tbe thoughts in his mind made hif bnt just then the thoughts in his vislon still quicker and more clear.
rislon still quicker and more clear. .
He looked again-it was a man, runing very He looked again-it was a man, running very fant and croucbing among the bushen at each sound.
Without pausing for an instent's reflection he darted down the hill-an he approacbed the figure It disappeared. On into the thicket Mellen rusbed -grasped the intruder in a olutch so firm that there was no shaking it off, and dragged him into the light.
"Rascal!" he cried, "what are you doing here?
Answer me, or I'll shaks you to pieces!" Answer me, or I'll shaks you to pieees!"'
The man struggled violently, but Mellen was fro as if he had been a child.
"Let me alone!". cried the man. "I ain't a "Let me alone doing no harm!"
"What are you prowling about my house for,
then? Do youknow that I am mastor hers? then? Do you know that I am mastor hers i I shall take you indoora, and keep you till I can send for a constille.
or I
"I wasn't prowling round," plended the man, gasping for breath in Melien's hard

Then you shall be taught. But it's a lis! You had some errand here-speak out, or by the Lord I'I kill you!" Inl kill you!"
"Don't-don'tl Yon're choking me!" groaned the wretch.
"Then sp
do you want to see ?") What are you doing here-who do you want to see ?"
Just let me go and Ill tell yon," plased his prisoner. "I ean't apeak while you're throtuling prisoner
me."
Mell Mellen loosened his grasp on the man's throast, ful one-ths man wan wis hold had been a rearhad almost murdered him in hin paseion.
"Will you speak now?" he demanded, with a The man began to hreathe moré freely; 'hut, Thible man "I hain't got nothin' to tell; I waa going to the village and took a short cut through here.
Mellen eaught him agaln by the throat.
Mellen eaught him again by the throat.
"Tell me another lie," he hifsed, "and I1 "hoke tha breath out of your hody.
The man oould both see and feel that he was in horrible earnest; he might easily have supposed himself in the power of an insane man-and for

Mellen rose, and palled him rolently on hit gronnd whicb had fallen from the man's pocke grond which hat falien from the man's pockee during their struggle. He loosed his hold of the fellon, and atooped for the letter; ; be man took advantage of his freedom, darted away like an arow, and was eut of sigbt before Mellen could reorer bimself.
"No matter,
"No matter," he muttered, "he hl tbink twic efore be comes again-I have the letter.
he tore it open without a moment's hesitation. Even as he unfoldsd the sbeet his bund falteredin the very height of his rage he could not think of the woe lts contents migbt bring to his heart without a ebarp pang.
He opened the
He opened the epiatle and glanoed at the writing -it was the same peculiar hand he had seen at the pawnbroker's.
"It la his,"
"It havis," he He rend tbe letter
very word seemed to burn and sorng through, though ballo-standing there motionless, umable, at first, to take in tbe full extent of his crushing anguish.
These were the contents of tbe letter:
"I expected you to-day-you were wrong not te
ome. I know it is difficult for you to elude the igilance of your Cerberus, but this matter will advigilance of your Cerberus, but this matter will admit of no delay. I have information that the stoeks are disposed of-look sharp that the broker is not phaying a double game.
"The litters are rendy-bri ore, be it so, hate does not kill, and love cauno I must have the moneg. I can submit to no furshall come to the house in tbe night-so be prepared."
There was nosignature-it needed none. Mellen knew only too well who the writer knew only too well who the writer was, lonew it a thorougbly na be did the name of the woman for thorougbly is be did the wbom it was intended.
For a full b ll hour Grantley Mellen wan a madman; it vat imercy that, during his paroxyem, woman who had so wronged him.. The fever an the insanity passed at length; he lay upon tbe ground, staring up at the cold sky, the letter still ground, staring up at the cold sky, the letter atill arth, in a wid conach parion boat shook him it seemed ns if be had been suffering in a mad dream-he glaneed down at the letter-that brough conviotion baok.
He sat there for a long time revolving vazue plans in his mind, and deciding upon the couree he sould pursue.
"Meet craft with oraft," he muttered; " to will."
He read the letter again.
"If he doen not hear from her he will come to morrow
come!
There
There was a horrible emphasis in his voice which There was a horrible emphasig in his voice which ground, arranged his dress, and walked towards ground, ase
"Not a sign, not a word which can betray," he eaid aloud. "I will meet her with a duplicity equal to her own-wait-a little longer-only a little longer."
He wal
He walked towards the house, and agsoin Vio
toria called out to her companiona:
oria called out to her companions:
But Clorindo's tboughte were now centred upon her dinner, and she had no time even for gossip. "Got away from dat window and go " bout yer work," hev yer gat to do wid de marater's outgoin's or in comin'e? Beat dese eggs into a foum rite off, fo I'se in a hurry. Mr. Dolph puts one beck in, 'se in a hurry. Mr. 'Dolph puts one back so." dow, for the wild agony on her master's face rather slarmed her. But Clorinda called out in a voice so shill that it was not to be disregarded, and she was conatrwined to undertake the task assigued her without more delag. er without more delay.

ThE OpERA nN I680. - An ides of the splenen soine of "Berentes," first brought out on the etage at Padua tn 1650 . It had three choruacs. The firat third of 100 knolghta on horschack. In the trine, the cortige were 40 hantamen with horms, 60 trumpeter on foot, ,ix tambonrs, topether with 24 other mualmen, grooms, eto., twa Hor Hoe with Turkinh and two mephants with Mooriah grooms. elephants with Mooriah groomp. Bereniee's trinm

Currants.-Dried carrants of commerce aathey are miscatled, are in realtty a grape, and free from etones or ptts; they eome from the linthmus of Coristh

[^13]THE OLD BEGGAR.

y zoweat trayol.

Tyere was an old aud erippled man Who ant a begging, mbere
It was my wont ench morn to It was my wont each morn to pase In weather foul or fair. Ie scomed so stesped in whe and want, I thought, as I passed hy,
That it would be a happy thi
For auoh a man to dian!
or in the scorohing sun or rain, When wintry hlasta are keen, n sonanty garb and tattered boote This wretehed man was seen. Ot that whene'er I passed the apot And saw thin baggar nigh, inily said, "A happy thing

Whas upon the Sabbath morn
When church beils cheeriy ri o anmmon all, both old ind young, To praise our Heavenly King, hat ns with contrito ateps and sa To prayer I slowly trod, Tbis poot old man was also bent Bnt what a change! bis face was hright And he was cleaner dreessed; His sten had thankful life in itHia apirit seemed at rest. and 'twas my ohanoe that morn to slt Near to him in the Eisle; And now and then I eaw his face, And osught his kindlligg smile. Praise came with every breath, And in hia look I saw the ho That triumphs over death. nd thus rebuked, with wiser thought I oald, half audibly, Graat Futher 1 what.a happy thing
For auch a men to die!"

The Fate of Duke Alberto.

Some two centarles ago there lived in Milan, in Italy, a certain Duke Alberto. Hin palace was in the oity, almost within the shadow palace was in the oity, almoet within the shadow of the far-famed cithedral, while his enormous pos of the far- famed cathedra, while his enormous pos-sessione covered leagues of land in every direction. In peraon he war remarkably handsome, a giant in trengih; in mind he was cunning, shrewd, sum morals he was unsorupulous, wicked and revenge castles, in order to have her out of the way of his daring and licentious pleasures. In fact, it was rumored throughout the city that he had murdered her; but, owiag to bis wealth and power, the au thoritiea never instituted an investigation. His days and nighte were passed in revelling with lewd days and nighte were passed in rever and parasite courtiers. His amoura seemed to be the turning point of his existence, the whole and and sim of his ambition.
Such, in brief, was the oharacter of the duke. With his tananta he was careiess and liberal, caring but wattle about the amount or his to support an gratify his three great passions of wine, women and play. His principal arsociate and companion wa ofe Guido The firter. Whenever the duke proposed of the first water. Whenever the duke proposed and adventure, with him. If a lady was to be ab unted, a nunnery broken into, or a chatle ancked, he was ever willing to obey the behests of bis mas ter. In age be was about fifty years, while the duke ceareely numberad thirty. He was wealthy and powerful, and was even more drended tban Alberto. Tbe gray hairs that plentifully sprinkled his hair and beard brought with them no wisdom his long experience brought with it nn disoretion
Perhaps it was to his fatal influence that the dule seended the ladder of crime and wickedness. He had been married, but his wife had long been dead, nd from the moment of her death he abandoned himself to the world, the fleelh and the devil. Such are the two principal pereonagee with whom we have to deal in the following narrative. A more charming pair of Don Juans cannot be found in all bistory.
Returning home late one night they had to pase he oathedral. It was lighted, and from its vae quiem mass.
"By my soul, Guido," sald the duke, "this is strange! What noble lord or lady has departed this life and now invokes the aid of the chureh in behalf of the repose of his or her soul? Corpo d behalf of the repose of his or her soul? Corpo baceo! Let us enter. We may, perchance, light pon some fair vestal offering up her vowe for th tanees are propitious for another journey to my walled chatesu at Aventino."
The pliant Tomaselli assented, and they entered the esthedral. The church was draped in blaok, the prieato were livid heneath the yellow light of the sa cred candles, and tha organ filled every aisla and nas a splen meld cat a filque, riohly draped vith heavy alsck. A few mourners knelt beside it, while her visible in the semi-daricness, were a few of tha dovout and faithful. The duke and Guldo, a weatruck at the acene, preased forward towarda the altar, when the former, in a whisper, inquired of a verger in attendance as co tha uame of tha deceased in whot hebalf these solemn ritee were administered. In a ghostly voice, and with a pallid face and dernonico ghostly voice, and with a palnd face and dernonice expreation, he was ansered:
i'Tia for the aonl of the wicked Dnke Alherte, f Muan."

With an expreasion of horror the duke gazed upon the catalalque, and the with all the gilded trappings of prinoely rank, he beheld himeelf. With a ory of diamay he eank senselens upon the pavement. Guido raised him and guided him to the onter nir-both conscions. and guided him to the onter air-both conscionsatricken at the terrible ceremnnial in which tber had been participants. When they regained their senses they found themselves seated npon the stone steps of the entranoe, and the gray dawn begianing to develope itself in the far East.
Both agreed in the same story, although the catbedral was closed, its lights had fed, and its organ was silent. $\mathrm{How}_{0}$ and when tbe epectral propast their comprebension. Moodily and gloomily they enteréd the dasal palics.
Alberto looked narrowly at his companion, who was dejected and stupibed.
"Wine. my dear fellow, will dispel thene Musions of the brain," exclaimed he, as he filled a pair of goblets to the brim with the ruddy liguor. They quaffed and quaffed until the morning enn entered the apartment with ita golden efruigence. "And now to bed for a few hours, and to-night, my good guids, with your assiatanoe, I shall clasp in these arms the hsautiful Donga Isabella, the fairest and lovslient flower in all Itnily. She will return from veapers shosely after dark, and generally unattended. You shall disguise youreulf ns a coechman, and drive me to the corner opposite the great square, around which sbe must necessarily pabs in Guldo Tomerelli shuddered.
"Don't eay that jou deoline
"Dorprise," said the duks. "It is full of love and danger, two oondimenta that give a spice to every adventure of the heart. Besides, remember that I acted as your coachman in your last little affair, besides neting as your second in your duel with the besides neting as your second in your duel with the is It is true, A
"It is true, Alberto," enid Guido, " but would to God these adventures as you call them were abandoned. My nerves have notyetreoovered from tbat horrible dream of last and then let, us to bed."
Darkness was just beginning to cover the city with its sable pall on that quiet, holy Sabbath even. ing when a carrisge hastily emerged from the dncal palace, and took the direction indicated by Alberto, Scaroely half an hour had elapsed when a female figure dressed in black was seen slowly wending her way from the eathedral. Tbe duke stepped passed, and the horses bounded on a full gallop in the direotion of A ventino. The Douna Isabella was a enptive, and Tomaselli wan the conchman. As soon as Guido reached the castle with the duke and lady, he immediately returned to the city, delivered the carriage to an attendant in waiting, and forthwith proceeded in the direction of the residence of his only daughter, Lucia, a young and existence of tbis child he had alwayo kept a pro found recret for two reasons. One was that be eared the duke and his rapacious desires, and the other was his ssase of duty in preserving her from tbe contomination of the outer world, among whose wieked onea he modeatly acknowledged himself chief. In her society he passed many pure and happy hours, gazing with parental pride upon and happy hours, gazing with parental pride upon the golden innocence that Providence had entrusted the golden inn Bold and bad as fhis man was, he nevertheless had a corner in hie heart unspotted by crime, but others he grasped in hls net as the fowler does his prey. As he passed beneath the shadow of the great eathedral, he fancied he heard again the great eathedral, he fancied he heard again the solemin notes of its mikhty organ pealing forth equiem ranss. This time he scemed to see his own corpse lyligg in state upon a costly bier. Shuddering he entered the $d$ welling of his daughter.
But no lithesome step was heard coming to meet him, no merry voice uttering a silvery welcome as of yore. A dread misgiving overcame him, and he sank upon the pavement at the base of the stairs leading to bis child's apartmente. Again did the orgen waft its apectral muaic across toe square.
Pbantoms, livid and deathly, jeeringly pointed their Pbantoms, livid and deathly, jeeringly pointed their skeletan fingers and glared from their cavernous skeletan fingers and glared from their cavernous eyes at the wreteh as he lay prostrate. They thnneyes at the wretel dered in his ears:
Thou art the man! Await
In this condition ha wan found by one of his daughter's servante, who gave the alarm and procured the neoessary sesintance to remove him to his couoh. Bewildered and crazed, he grouned in spirit, and it was eome time hefore he could be spirit, and it was some time hefore he could be made to underatand that Lucia had not returned from vespere, and that already her attendants hai obtaln some clue to her whereabouts, but all bad returned without sueceas..
"It is no use," he exclaimed, "I know There troyer." In his then condition he was nbliged to keep his hed for the following day, for his mind was in a state of frenzy, hordering on ahsolute madnete. state of frenzy, hordering on ahsolute madnete.
Towards evening he recovered himself somewhat Towards evening he recovered himself somewhat and ordered a coach and horaes to bear him to the and ordered a coach and horses to bear him to the eastle of Arentioo. We will now return to the duke and the poor girl whom he had abduoted and imprisoned.
He had long watohed her, knowing only that her name was anld to he Iaabellh, hoping for some farorable opportunity of seizing her and bearing her to bie fastness in the mountalne, where he conld defy an army in ease of eiege or assault. Nor did des he dream for a moment that she was the dsuggter of his friend Guido. Had be known that fact it might have otayed his impleus hand, hut an it was ehe deed wan done. After thrustisg her into his oarriage, he threatesed her with instant dnath if she cried out or made the least renistance. OverTas in this state of insensibility that sbe at lengt reachsd Alberto's castle. Wben she recovered she young and bandsome carnlier gaxing at her with loung and bandsome cavalier of pasion and admiration.
"O God!" abe excluimed, "There am I ? Noble sir, release me, and heavas will smile upon you. ask this hoon on bended kneea.
"Heaven, it appears, has smiled upon mo this "fing to my fair lady," seid the duke, "in vonebbeautiful a flower as yourself. Believe me tbat I love-aye, have longed loved you-and that I sbal devoto the balanee of my life in endeavoring to nake you happy
Her great grief at length gave way to a flood of cearn, when Alberto peroeiving leara, wben Abserto peroeiving her condition left assuaged her sorrow. 8be found hereclf in a man's apartment. From the window she could perceive tbat the oastle Was eituasted upon the top of a lofty mountein, and only sccessible by a bridle patbway.
Tbe winds awept through the dsrls forest with a Tbe winds swept through the dsrlk forest with a melonoholy sound, bearing to her ears the presag-ing notes of death-for to die she was deternined, rather than be dishonored by a villsin. She det, amined the room and found in one of the cloct attaohed tbereto a stiletto. This she ooncealed in her bosom, with a feeling of security sueh se the fieroe pride of an Italian nature oaly can bestow. Late in the afternoon Alberto again made ber a visit, but findiag her obstinate, he again left, promisiog to see ber on the following moraing. He trusted th t time at 1 patience would worka cherge trusted th $t$ time
She hal now had ample time for refinction as to the bee, dode of eacape. The bolts and bara abe intricacies of the castle. 'Sill sbe did not despsir Hope at length pointed out a gleam of light is obe conld disguise herself in one of the duku's contumes-of which there were many in the roomshe might pase the sentries after nigbtrall witbout notice. Once having reached the bridlepath she plete her preperations. It she shastened to coman attendent apened. It was about bis hour that an attendant opened the door to bring her au life if necessary with her dagger, in order to secure her escape. At length steps were heurd approacb. ing, the door opened and the ettendant entered. Sbe had previously lowered the heavy damask curtains by the windows, so tbat a quict gloom or semidarkness pervaded the apartment.
"My lord duke," anid the servant, "I did not expect to see you here. Thave brought the evening meal for the lady, a zeording to your instructlons.".
"Tis well," ssid the mock duke reposing and must not be disturbed. "Remain here until I return."
Saying whioh Lacy boldly gained the hall. Frolength reaobed one of the ramparts, where she pansed a moment to nurvey the ground. The portcullis was lowered, and several peranons attacbed to the duke were seen passing to and fro. Night wae ranidly settiog in, and now was the moment or ever to carry ber plans into execution. She reacbed the bridge without interruption, and in operas in fushion at that day. And now she is on operas in fashion at that day. And now ehe is on the bridlepath, and in half an hour more she will be in aafety. She had nearly reached the bottom of tbe hill, when a tall, armed figure eprang out of the bushes and plunged his dagger to her heart. She fell and died without a groan.
"Thus perish;"
"Thus perish,", said the figure, "tbou wretch and miscreant. Little didst thou kno and miscreant. Little didst thou know that it was Saying this be pulled the body into the forest and proceeded on bis way to the castlo to enforee, if need be, a return of his daugbter.
As he was well known to all of the duke's retainers, he was gladly weleomed by them. To avert suspiowon, be carefully asked wbere Alberto Was ? Some suid he had not long before descended just mountain, wbile anotber averred that he had apartment. Guido the grand hall leading to bis but first stepped apon the ramparts to cool his fevered brow. At this instanr, to his grat horror and astonishm towards him.
"Ha! Gric
"Ha! Guid, mv pretty hird has fown; and of if to, within an hour," said he. "Juat think passed my guards without detection. But I will passed my guards without detection. But I will have her yet, for I have out parties to scour the "Scoundr
"Scoundrel! She is my daughter, and I am, unvittingly, her murderer " exolaimed Guido.
"The issue is now hotween you and me, and one or hoth must fall."
So anying he made a furious ondlaught upon the madman, began to call for time defending himeelf with hin sword. As thin rencontre took place at a remote part of the castle, his cries were not heard. At length Guido olosed with him and pressed him to the edge of the parapet, which overhang a depth of nearly five hundred feet. The bottom and nidee of this ahywe were brio-agy. t. e. ransom, u. e. v.-bes phoz 119.

col. hoskpe J. moraisos, 16th N. y. heavy artillary.-sed paon 119

 reneweu isertlonk. We give in the iesue of this week

FURNITURE, FURNITURE, WHOLESALE AND RETATL.

DEGRAAF ${ }^{\text {wr }}$

(formerliy H. p. degraaf),

No. 87 Bowery, New York.
This estsbllshment is six storeys in height, and extends 242 feet through to No. 05 This establlshment is six storeys in height, and extense in the United States. They are prepared to offer great inducements to the Wholesale Trade for Time or Cash.

Mahogany and Walnut Parlor and Ohamber Furnitnrs; Also, CANE and WOOD SEAT work, all qualities; HATR, HUSK and SPRIN TRESSES, a large stock; ENAMEL in Sets, from $$ 22$ to $$ 100$.
TUCKER'S NEW STYLE PATENT SPRING BED
The best as well as the cheapest of any in use, Retall price, 82 each,
Their faclities for manufacturing defy competition. AII work guaranteed as represented.

The Early Physical Degeneracy of AMERICAN PEDPLE, And tho early meleneboly Gechion of Cbildhood ond Yonth, jnit publibed Dy $D \mathrm{DR}$ STON, Phyeldan to

DR, ANDREW STONE,

Lieut.-Gon. U. S. Grant Package.

"Psychomanov,"-How elther vex may fue.

Mratrimonvi-Why every man ahould marry

Phyylolowy book Love, Clotb; gilt edgee. Sent by AMERICAN CARD COMPANY'S NEW UNION PLAYING GARDS: nrational Imblems.

Ace of Eagles.
 Thi Uupo Priyllig Cardo pre tha first and only

New Armay Watches.
 ment, for Tination ill
for Circular.

U. $5.10-40$ BONDS.

These Bonds are leened nuder the Act of Congress of March sth, 1864 , whieh providea that all Bonds issued TION hy or ander any State or Munlelpal authority. Stateanotes or notes of Notionsl Banks. They are TO BR REDEEMED IN COIN, st the plecanre of the Governmunt, st any period not less thas ten nor more than forty yearn from their dete, and antil their redemntion FIVE PER CENT. INTEREST WILL BE PAID IN COIS on Bonds of not over one BE PAID IN COIN, on Bonds of not over one hundred dollty.
Inetrutions tn the Nattonal Banke setligg as loan sory untll Maroh 26, bat in the frat three tweeks of April tho enbecriptions averaged more than TEN MILLIONS A WEEE.
Subseriptlous will be recelved by all NATIONAT BANKS which aro deponitarles of Puhlle money, and all RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS toroughnat the constry (sotlog as agente of the National Depoeltary Banks AFFORD EVEAY FACLLITY TO SUBSCRIBERS.

GOLDI GOLD! GOLD!

100,000 WATCHES, CHANS, &c. WORTH $$ 500,000$,

㫦

Who Makes the Best  ARTIFICIAI LEGS?  The follo whing correspondence will explinin lteelf:

E. Guenther Jr., Esq., Peru, La Salls Co., ill. Dear Sir-I am in want of an artilicial leg, but do not know what thid to get. and have decided to writo to eoveral perties wearing aifiereat logg, and get their sdvleo, KB I have not the meane to experimet myy.

 tre atranger, yet 1 feel olilge a follow zufferer,
$\qquad$
James E. Paintre,
$\overline{\text { REpLx: }}$
James E. Paintikr, Paru, LA SALL:

 djuatugy . No peed of coming to Xew York to be atted.

 xprovi way par of tho coone

Tountain Pon-NV Inlstand Roouirod.

The Graat Monoy-Mrating Articlo.

J. E. Winslow & Co.

 100,000
Watches, Ohnine, Bets or Jewsiliry, Gold sna, Braceletg, Lockets, Ringe Genty Pins, Sleove Buts
Btuds, Eer, to.s
WOPrta $5OO,OOO: To be sold for ONXE DOLLLAR each without regard partieulare, nino tormno to Agents, which J. H. WINSLOW & CO.

VETERAN virmman Soldiers !
TAHOWARD
Co, B.
3.N.Y.V cuall. Send fort ${ }^{\text {a }}$ Addres eula

I. W. BENICEEY.

PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY,

vo. O New Chamberb street,

 Card Pleturcs 1150 per doz., 8 for 81 .
Card Plecturcs $\mathrm{E}_{1} 150$ per doz, Ca for 81 .

mor Putloular sttcotion given to Copyring Cards or Amorotyper into Largo Pholographe Tre smailest Svery attention puid to plisitiora wilhing to examipe

Swords, Sashes, Belts.

If You want to Know

Mredical Common Sense

 Among the many sobjuct treated tn this Work are, upture, SNI Rheum, Cancer, Parstyats, Disenees of Millo of the World, Pbllosophs of Eliopements,

J. W. EVERETT & CO

75,000 Watches, Chains, &c., &c. WORTE $400,000:

 TOMES, SON & WELVALN

[^14]

OVER ALL OOMPETITORS.
OFIIOIETEIEIING & $&$ mandracturers of
Grand, Square and Upright Pianofortes.

THALBERO'S CERTIFIOATE

Warerooms, 652 Broadway, ㅍ. צ., 246 Washington Street, Boston

Approved by the Govornmont.

Do You Want to got Married?

 E. D. LOCEE & CO CO BOK 1525 , Portiand, Me

耳oyvg Hiawa the Hair Rostorativo-- Buperfor to Suporo to every other prepartion for the basr to

 HOYT'S EXCELSIOR TOILET POWDER
 N.B.ELadies Freneh Heirdresser in attondameo to

The Confessions and Ixperience of an Invalid.

Attention, Company!
 Are without stain or injury to the akin.

Do You Want Juxuriant Whiskers or Monstaches?
ITY ONQURYT will foreo them to grow hearly

Baker's Rhoumatic Ealm,

Boantv--HUNTM WHITE LIQUID ENAN.

TOSTMETHPR'S

 cingbratyinSTOLIACN BLTMPERS
A BROKEN DOWN SYSTEM--Ther sis a difeano hreskiag down or the vitol forcect. Whatever its

 Tonilo log required in sulf ouscor bothat the dying fime

Hostettor's Stomach Bitters,
 Depor for new Yore, 476 broadwat.

Send 15 oconts and get the Crat Seeret how to catch oill indin of $F$ abh ill linds of Fish. harry gray, Bomers, Coun. Cooley's Cabinet Printing Offico FOR THE ARMY AND Merchuntia, Bentere, And warrinted to pflte in the J. G. COOLEY,

Gray's Patent

 Molded Collars

 Nayy omorray
EO WVERY COLLAR is stampad
"Gray's Patent Moldod Collar."

A New Romance by Dumas.

published this day.
OLYMPIA OF CLEVES;
Or, The Ioves of a 3 Eing. tensslatem froie the fresch of ALEXAN. 1. DUMAS. mastrated Corer 1

 Coples mulled free

EMPTOXMIFNT

THOUSAND AOMr own Homes
THOUBANDS CAN REALIBE A HUNDRED

$$ 10$ AGEINTS $$ 10$

 And Deaicrs. Somethling New' Union Burner

 use. Light, Compact and Eye; gant, ind eaily carried in the eoatpoeket; rain or dinapnees doos not affect Brig-Gen, Hayen, of Army of Potomat, writs:
"Itione mont coavenent and portablo artiole for

The Exquiolte Tollet Arlleles of the SOCIETE itYGIENIQUS OF N. $\mathbf{Y}$.

?
Eierobiv Important to Wounded Sol

 JOSARH E, DEVITT & CO.
AGENTG WANTED, to Bill the largent
 stamp tor Carculisr.
JOHN G1BSN, No. 32 Beek man 8t, N. $\mathbf{x}$.

Great TMonoy-Making Siccrots,-Gont

If If TRIUMPH. है if

Stereoecopic Views. Cartes de Vlaitea-New

Royal Hzavana Eottery.
30 per ecnt. premiam pald for prlace. Information

Atlantic Monthly

 bat price, It contuins esee montb
the best literature
By the best aUthors.

2Measies are prostrating the Vol-

$50 AMERICAN $$ 50$ IEVERS.
Trade Mark, P. S. Bartlett, Waitham, Mass., Full Jewelled, Warranted in 4 oz , coin silver hunting case, gold joints, fancy push pin, for $$ 50$.

BRIDGEWATER PAINT

Gronod in ofs in stry drab shades for Viliss, C 0000

Marked Characters.

EO FIRST PRTMIUUNS in 1863

GROVEA BAEBE's okikbhated kiastic eticch Sevring MLachines Were ww. rded the Higheet Premloms over sil come.
petitora at the Stote Wiro of New Yorz, Vermont,

Salesrooms, 495 Broadway, N. Y.
ERIMNDS OF sOLDIERS! All artclen for solifier et Bullimore, Wuhhington, rute by HARNDEN' EX

Corns and Bunyons.
Their Cane, Mreventinan and Core. Fill oxplatned boy lost on siulen-$100 beward. A noy named Robert Struck, seven years old; full, rosy face, curly brown hait and

GOLD W

GOLD WATCH FREE!

and
$$ 15$ Per Day Easy $$ 15$
Mrade by aoting os our Agent for the Enico of the

 Notions, Likeneerees of Miltary Heroes, Cimp Com
panlons, with Pa, Bountien,

Shults' Onguent, -Warrantod to prodace a foll Seat, pastpgla

Veneration.

Ita loation, fonetlon and oultivation. By Rev. H. W, BELCHBR. Reverene for Ago. for Persons And

The Bowen MKicroscope,

 Magnifying 500 utmes, matited to ony yddres for 30

Agents wanted cererywbere. Take your coblee mind with the Likeness of eltber Geamul lin be suly. Alto, for 81 ,we will send yon a Soll silver chlald

 a new Cavary, Artile ery, or Butiery, or Poutoulura Pin , engraved an nbove.
Ako, Headganrcura for Watobers, , noketh, Clains Gola Peens and Penclis, Ringa, Pins, ele, etci Send fer wholenale thustrated Cireul $r$.

s. IN. WTARD & Co.

manupacturing jeffellehe,
208 Broadway, NTew York. Uno of Tobacco, in all ths forms, OURED An

250 Rare Receipts,

 17 Supcrb Eleotrotype Engravinge,TELIS WHAT TO DO, AND HOW TO DO IT A B ook that shoutd be in every fumlly.
Sent frea, by masi, for 25 cante.
HUTCEINSON & CO., Pablishers, 6000 NEWS FOR THE ARMY!

Card Photographs

Now emahraces about 5,000 Omicers Army and Novy, Statcemen, Aetors, coples of Warks of Art, $80 Con

 Cstalogue sent on receipt of stamp.Stereoscopes and Stereoscopic Views. Our aseortmont of these le verg extanaive, fyolnding arreat varloty of views of tbe present war. Cateo $\ln$ gue arnt on recelpt of etamp.
R. & H. T. ANTHONY & CO., ers of Thotographio Matericie
A Secrot Worth Knowing. -How to mak A Socrot Worth Knowing, -HON witbou
CELSBRATED WESTMRN

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE byMAIL or EXPRESS

SELF-MEASUREMENT FOR SHIRTS. Printed directions for self-mensurement, list of prices, and drawings ol difrent stylea of ebirts and collais STMHICOUWARS
ENAMELED WHITE

WHOLKSALE AND BWIALL
S. YV: En. TV A.RTD,

The Eiuman ERand

 TRATED PlRENOLOOLCSL
4150 Ayear. Addres
$410-500$ FOWLER & WELLS, Broadway, N. Y.

$$ 7$ wamictis

 $$ 15$ European Timekeeper $15 or compass wator A SUPERRB ORXPBA DODBLE GOLDPLATRED

 wil henó seld, sidils
Perfect Imitation of a $10^{\circ}$ Gold Watch used by the British Army Officers. Ony freo, by maid, in Eleguict Moroceo Cnes, tor

We reapectfuly invtto atiention to and conslder ation of the justly celcebrated and relisble remedy for Drspergit, HeArtbura, DEhicity and Prostra.
 NOM

We risk nothing wben we term them a valuable

 aneir merits by any one wbo has tried them, is a mililon of purchased bogus teitimonjals.
For Creating a Healthy Appotite they are invaluable, and are unequelled os siromico Tbeyy are mild in tbeir action, and operato hy gring rigor and strength to tbe system-not by agy change wigor and strength to toe system-not by ay change tbey produe in the ooldd, but through tbe medium of the of the pliviag principle.

They are Purely Vegetable, being composed of Gentinn Boot, Calamue Sossatras nad many otber $F$ medial 4 yents of tbe Vegetable sad many oter r medial yents of world, ali preaterved iu Jamelica Bum.
hey are the mest wholezome, inriforating and palat abe stlmulaut ever ofered to toe purile, And tere
foct of their beligg trepsed chernically sid selen

 or aspe. We
and particalarly to those हulie:ling from Deblity, Weakwess and Prastration. found wantiog. Tbey are pat up in our own Piknt quart bottles, and for sale by Drogisist, Gfocere, ete. througboun he woild innel bottic beara simite of the signature of $\mathrm{Hnbbel} \& \mathrm{Co}$

GNO. C. HUBEREL & CO., CENTqRaL DEPOT, American Expreea Eutling New York.

Dyspepsia Tablets.
FOR INDIGESTION, HEARTBURN, so. Don't fail to iry thetn. Minufastured only by For aale by all Druggieta. Priee, 50 ots. pir box-
For gale by $\mathrm{msin}, 66 \mathrm{eti}$
Lae Seasd. of.
IN thos, o. ees of senty, retarded gowtb, whe relump porthgeiwhins, 815 Broadway, N. Y.

American, Swiss and Bnglish Watchas In aupe.ior styles unc qualty of cares. Cromerty amd

FRANK LESLIE'S MITUSTRAMED

No. 451-Vol. XVIII.]

NEW YORK, MAY 21, 1864.

The War-The Beginning of the End. The results which have attended the opening of tbe grand campaign in Virginia indicate that our anticipations of last wcek are in rapid ginia and in Georgia, the armies and the combinations of Gen. Grant are moving with irresistible forco upon the last remaining armies and strongholds of the rebellion.
Tho defcat of Lee and tbe capture of Richmond, or the overthrow of Joe Johnson and tbe capture of Atlanta, will be fatal to Jcff Duvis and his Confederacy. In striking at Richmond we strike at the bend of tbe rebelhon, and in striking into Atlinntis we reacb the beart of it. The moral effect of the loss of Ricbmond among the armies and the people of the rehelious States mnst inevitably, we think, precipitate tho fimal demoralization of their Donfederate Utopia and hring it to a speedy dissolation. Their inflated financial buhble collapses at once, and witb the military bar ricrs of the James river hroken down, the wbole intervening country to Georgia is laid open to our victorions army of the Potomac. There will be no place of refuge for Davis and his Cabinet and Congress, wbere tbey can feel secure to the end of the summer, and no protecting line of defences which cannot ensily be turned. In a word, ejected from Richmond andjVirginia, Davis, his governmental establish meut, his armies and his exhaustod people, are all thrown into confusion and are all adrift.
Thus the overthrow of Lee's army and the fall of Richmond will, even thougb Gen. Sherman were standing still On the other band, if Geu. Grant's armies in Virginia were to do nothing more than to bold at bay tbe rehel forces enclosed within his converging lines, while Geu. Sherman's columns in the West are moving upon Atlanta, the rebel capital itself, and the States of Virginia and North Carolima, would in a very short time he come untenahio to the onemy, in heing cut of rom his suppuies of subsist the, whin are now matily furnished from the last year' todian corn crops of Georgia What possihle and from the calcle of Forsia. What possini Tsolution of the so- colled Soutbern Con ederacy, when the Union armies, moving npon ooth Richmond and Atlanta, are too powerful o he sucessfolly resisted or evaded?
We are writing in advance of any reported positive Union viotory in Virginia, heyond tbe conpation of last week's battlefield of toe We accept thase great initisi advantrges, howver, asclearly determining tbe final issue of the arnpaign. We believe tbat Lee has so far exbausted his strength in his desporate efforts to reak tbe lines of Gen. Meade, tbat his ouly Iternative is a basty retrent to Richmond nd tbat should he repch tho eity withoul further interruption, his next step must be to sbandon it, in order to recover his vital comnuxientions with the South. The campaign above and below Richmond opens auspicionsly all tbe adrantages of the situstion are with ns, while the disadvantages entailed upon the enemy hy three yeara of exbanstod war are tonfold greater than in any provions campor to the campaign in weorgie fichmond and Athanta will surely be gained, and with the dis persion of the rebel armies defending these two vital pointe, the war wil he suhstantialy at an ond. We believe that the dying etrugglee of the rebellion cannot he protracted beyond the montb of July, and we are not withont the hope thet they will cense, or be reduced to a petty and short-lived guerilla warfare, hefor May.

Barnum's American Maseum.

Ivery Soldier should supply himsolf with a remedy to countaract all the Mlle, Disaearee, hin tireaome marchen, and unhealthy licealtites, DAVIB'S PALN KILEER is the remody, eold by sil

Oscanyan's Oriental Album.

osoanyan, Now York.
frant lesless
ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER,
ar Poanl strakt, Now York:
NHW YORK, $1 / 4 Y$ 21, 1864.

T103RMS:

Paper, quarterily
One oxtra copy to
TERMS FOR ADVERTIBINC.

NOTMOE.

The Oftoo of this Paper is remored to No, 637 Poarl Street, a fow doora from Brosdway

8torios of thigh ohurncter, poems, and eketetbec for be turen to mitith logibly,
aly wilt all diattinctiones.

Our New Type,

Wz need scarcely call the attention of our enders to our new and trim dress. The paper this weels is printed entirely from new type, and oannot fail to please hy its general beanty and interest, independent of ite eur passing pictorial illustrations.
It is but another proof that the proprietor whil spare no expense to retain the positio which his ${ }^{\text {anstly }}$ held.

Frank Leslie's Artists in the War
The Executive Committee of the New Yorik Historical Seciety, in a recent Report, employ ex-War" are concocrned, groendy yujust. "Itiot true," say the gentlemenof of tho Historieol Society, "that the illastrated newspapers are full of sketches purporting to bo picturesers of important soenes, but the testimony of partics engaged shows that these representations, whon they are not photographs, are not always reliable."
 have incuaced oher papers to do, Fnaxk Lesures ons Artisto in the field. A selection of 200 of their akeoteses, mule often amid the rattling tiot and boll of tho battlefield, were enent to the recent Hetropolitan Fair, and if the New York Historical tociety fuiled to Becure thewit committed an over sight. Private collectore readily purchased them, happy to be able to add to their albums suoh retics of the war. These skocthcs were nado hy Artiste well hnown in tho army, and thongh not sent to us or contributed by us to the Fair as flishied works of art, are ofteco of great merit even in this point ottested hy Generals in the highest command, as our readers are avare. Nor have our Artieta, performed their dutics snd won this approval withoul Pikk, Those who foumht at Roanoke island recol ribk. Those who fought at Roanoke iiland recal lect the Artist sketching in the forefront of the battlo ; the eoldiero who fonght at Chicamouga and Chattanooga remember the Artist who, mith a party, was captured, and escaped by eending thei captera down the recky heights ; the papers of a week back tell hew anether, st Plessant hill, loat ell his ake tobes of the line of march and ineidente ell his shetobes
The skotches contributed to the Fair are but feve emid a host. If the Executive Cemmittee of the Historical Seclety did not eee those when open o all, we shall be heppy to show the remeinder to them, to convince them or their injnstice to us a Lealie's Wiatary of the WVar" every sketch of which was not only real bnt accurate and well stadied. The Repart closes with a blenk form of bequeet, but it inserts the werd dollers. We shall hear it in mind, however, end if other counsela do no prevail, er some more upright Historical society tempt uf, make use of the clause one of these day And hequenth some of the venerable Society.
But be that as it may, and laying sll jokin sqide, we assure our readers thet our past enterprise has not exhausted er discouraged us. Other great army movemente are at hand, and we have not heen idle. Our Artists are with every impertan army; snd not a movement of consequence mill take place without our receiving from our cerps of Artists full, accurete and vigorous sketches, which we shall, es far as our limits allow, present to our reeders, engraved in our best style. Our only anculy will be to make the best solechon, the shetches will bo too mameroao and valuello to us even a temptation to invent.
In the cempaign of 1864 as in
In the cempaign of 1864, as in those of the three preceding years, Frank Lesisis LILBATRATED NEwsPaper will contain the most prompt, truthful graphie illustrations of the war, from the velley of Vraphie inustrations the Peninsula, from Tennessee, from Charleston, frem North Carolina, the Mississippi, Leuigiana or Texas,

Summary of the Week.

The fourth ennuel edvance of the Army of the Potomac hes been made. Three times has it recoiled in disester from the rebel army; three times have the hopes of the country been hlasted. The grend Army of the Petomac cressed the Rapiden on Wednesdey, May 4th. The 2d corpe moved on Truesduy to the Mills, opposite Ely's ford. On Wedvesday morning, at 4 o'eleek, the ford. On Wednesday morning, at 4 o'eleek, the esvalry erobsed and drove the Rehel pickets from esvairy crobsed and drove the hebel picsition.
opposite heighte, meeting with no oppesit. A pesitien was gained, and the corps moved on which place Gen. Haneock would establish his headquarters.
The 5th and 6th corps orossed at Germania ford in the eourse of the day, taking the road to the Wilderness.
On Wedneeday night Gen. Warren's headquaright, snd the general heedqnarters at Germania right, ford.
On Thursday morning the rebels pressed omr picksts, and appeered to he in strong force on our right. The 5 th New York cavalry, Bkirminhing on the Orange Court Honse road, near Perkins's tavern, were driven in with a severe lose, leaning many wounded on the field. Gen, Griffthora division was marched forward on our right about 11 o'clock to feel the enemy'e pesition, and were 11 o'clock to feel the enemy'e pesition, and were met by the rebel Gen. A. P. Hin, supported by met by the Gen. Ewell,
A severe action took place, in which we captured about 300 prisoners, thongh it is reported that we about 300 prisoners, thongh it is reported that we lesit two guns, Meantime, Gen. Hanceck marched his corps to the right to connect wish Whrren, and had hardly got into pesition, his left resting on o near Chancenorsvile, when ho wes attacked by Ewell's.
Gen. Hencook, with the assistance of Getty' division of the 6 th corpe, held his position under nusketed fire of two-nnd-s-balf-hours duration, in which his command suffered aoverely, inflicting mueh injury upon the rebels.
Other developmente sh hole force in our front It not being the purpose of Gen. Meade to adyanoe upon the enemy, he ordered the line of battle to he held till morning.
The position of our troops on Thursday nigh was parallel with and a littlein advance of the rose from Germania ford to Chancelloraville, the two quarters at the Wilderness,
Meanwhile, in the afternoon the advance of the 3th corps crossed Germania ford, takipg position on our right flank.
Gereral Burnside drove the rehels through Thoronghfare gsp, and came up in Mende's re by forced marehes from Warrenton Junction.
On Friday morning the batile opened with On Friday morning the batile opened with our line nearly parallel to the rond between Germania ford and Chancellorsville. The battle continued all day, with hut hittle intermission. The enomy failed in every attempt to brenk oar ranks, and at night were driven behind their lines of intrenehnight were driven behind their lines of intrenehment. Our losses during the two days engagemente are estimated at not less than 6,000 killed and wounded, and may probahly reach 8,000 . The wounded were sent to the rear as promptly as posThe enemy did not renew the attack on Saturday morning, and at noon were reported in fall retreat, with our army pursuing. We have lost General Hays, of Pitteburg, General A J, Webh, of New Hays, of Pitteburg, General A. J. Weblh, of New York, and General Wadsworth, killed; Cenerals York, and General Wadsworth, killed; Cenerals Hancock, Getty, Gregg, Owens, Bertlett and CarHancock, Getty, roll, wounded.
Oontemporaneous with the adrance of the Army Peninsula, Gen. Butier ran up to Wegt Point end Gotine the operans White House, and by landing troope and oommencing operationa drew the rebels to that point, merciy to re-embark, steam liack and np James river. Here the troops under Gen. Smith and Gen.
Gillmero landed ot Gity Point, and deetroyed the Gillmoro landed at City Point, and deetroyed the semthside railroad between Peteraburg and Richmond.
A sharp bettle came eft here, in which the rebels lost Genurels Jone Tiokett wemnded.
The rebels sncceeded, however, in blowing up y a torpedo the gunber urkey Bend.
olored cevairy, under Col. Weat, made a deah acrose the Cbickahominy river, and two compenies diemounted and charged inte the camp of the 66th Va. oavelry, killing 30 men and capturing 3 horaos. The herses were immediately meanted by eur troope, who pursued the rebels to within y eur troops, who pur

west vibonks.

A party of 70 mennted men, under MoNeil, made rsid en the Baltimore and Ohio railroed et Pied ment, 28 miles west of Charlestown, and cspture aree trains, doing great damag
NORTE OABOLINA
norta oasolin.
Little Washington, being no lenger deemed tenable after the lose of Plymouth, was evacuate hy our hroeps and set on fire by some of thil on the Union inhehitants, whe can of conrse expect oo sympathy or even meroy from the rehels.
General Pelmer has succeoded General Peck thie State.
The rebel General Hoke has been mede a Major-Generel, snd with Bcauregard is preparing te Generel, snd wit sodth oarolixa.
Gen, Gillmore has been relieved of the cemmand of the Department of the Seuth, and succeeded by Brigadien-Geueral John P. Hatch. The latter is relieved in Flerida by Brigadier-General Wm. Birney of the colered troops. In the northern ral Terry The diastrous system of chenge is ral Terry. The diasistron consequently in full force.

ововоиа.
General Sherman is pressing closer upon Dalton, and Tunnel Hill is elready in the hands of Thomas. Therr Dalton.

kemtucky.

Brigadier-General Prinoo has succeeded Genoral
Brigadier-General Prineo has succecded Ceiro.
The rehels agein threeten Paducah, and the nfortuante inhabitante are chiefly eneamped heyond the river.

The gunboat Petrel wes ettecked by Wirt dams'e cavelry on April 23a, two miles above Yazoo city. Adems had sbout 200 men and two pieces of artillery. He sent a ball through the hofler after a hrigk fight, and many of her hrave hofler after a hriak fight, and many of her hrave defenders were killed. A few escaped, others fell defenders were kulled. A few escaped, others Col.
into the hands of the enemy, who hung Wo the hands of the enemy, who hung negro Wooeter, the commander of one of the nego regiments.

houthana.

General Banks had fallen back to Alexandria fter having a sharp engagement vith the enemy ane river.
Admiral Porter got all his gunboats down except the Eastport, which he endeavored to save by taking off her armament. This failing, he blew her up. Two transports were also destroyed, to prevent their capture by the rebels. In all, 19 irsasports and gunhoats, it is stated, were blown up, to prevent them from falling into the hands of the encmy. Gen. Kirby Smith, in his official report of the Red river hattles, claims to have woundea, 8,000 stand of armes, 2,000 and oda mules, 250 wagons, 900 harrels of flour end 55 ieces of cannon.

ARKANSAB.

A skirmish took place recently botween our nemy and guena near Duvbis blun. The enemy
It is reported from Memphis that Gen. Steele's army has returned to Little Rock, He was fol At Sabine fork the rebels were tumed upon and repuised after a severe battle, in which the loss was ahout equal on both sides.

The Kearsage is ashore off the port of Ostend The Kearsage is ashore off the having been ruu eathore by & pilot.
A blochade-runner, the schooner India, from Nassau, loaded with palm oil and eigars, and honnd for Wilmington, was captured by the gun hoat Vicksburg on the soth April.

CONCRESS.

Is the Senate, on the 2 d May, after multiarlous bueineess, the Joint resolution of the Houne, ap-- proprinting $$ 25,000,000$ for the payment of the 100 days' volumteere, recently called for by the Western Governors, was agreed to by 22 to 13 .
In the House, the resolntion calling on the Secretary at the Treasury for information as to the amount of ing the robeolion, and declaring that tuch in inebteiness should be then emed by the National Governmant, was pefarred to the Military Committho. A resolution oftered in Decumber last by Mr. Harding, of Eentuokg, declaror thas, whenovar any retellious stote shall be eubducd he restored te all ite original righta undar tho Consthhation of the Onitod States and ite own constitution, including the right to regulate its domestio instifutions, Wra taken up, disounsed and laid on the tsble hy 67 yean
o 56 nays. The Secretury of the Nery was called on by resolation, for information relative to the building by the xobels in Morth Carolina of the ironciad ram Hbomarie, and us to why it wae not provented. A Mes. sage from the President, giving the information called gige from the President, giving the information called for relative to the andgrment of Mr. Frank Blair, jun. to the command of the 17th Army Oorpe, wes received, ond referred to the Committee on Flections.
In the Senate, on the 3d, the proceodinga wore of uttle In the House, & bill wae introduced to Increase the
 In the Senate, on the eth, the r recolations of Mr. Sher. man come upae the epecial orrer, that a qnoram of the Senate connists of the majority of the Senators duly upon the House of Bepresentatives, and the votes of at majority of the Statey repreeated in the Houne bo cast for one pereon, be in the President. Adopted, 26 to 11.

pard by the newly urpeated powas State speches, the Houso adjourned.

wais disconsesed, sevoral amendmented of the Senste Come mittee on Poot Oflices adopted

aid

In the House, the eesalion was mainly devoted to the conkidersition of the Miabouri contested elcollon casee. The Committee on Rleotions reported twor resolutiones, which Die over for the

FOREICN NEWS.

Garibaldi left London on April 22d, for the arat of the Downer Co April 26 th. On April 3 lat the wit entertinined hy 200 members of the Heform Club. April 22 a he breatrasted with s party of American oif in emphatic terme expreaned his regard for the United Statols, and his readinees to offer his servicus to Presi. dent Lincoln agsingt the Slave Power. Muoh diasatio faction continued to be expressed at his sudden do pasturer, und poditital me expresesscd wer generally impute to Gariboldire ndvisers. In the House of Common

Genoral to leave, bocausec the tour throngh Englanp
unt ot affect hla health, and heeuree "the mangilicent uational roception which baid been given to him in Lon

The Prince of Wales trarelited from sandringhan

 House, and remsincod with bitw, lt tis sald, for upward. | If an hour |
| :--- |
| Thie King |

The King of Prupris hbs gone the the eseat of war
 Sil Holktelin communos to Join them, Aecording to a Hamburg diepateh, the ofject of the King of Prusia's vieit to Schicewig is to meand the stated that the goat of war.

Town cossip

sroadwny

Pakis is France, sadd Napoleon, and Broad water with delight. Travelled men have pronounce Wroodway the most brillinat Etreet in the world, fan in principal oitioe of this country fided into utter in temific canco hefore it, and the humblest denizen of the milesaremoved, hee heard of ith fame, and dwellis upon

It as a child would upon some marellous fuiry tals, national care, in this it it leff to secident, or retarided

 tho Bronaway aquad, stund blindly by, whillo a jagged nail or au iron hoop, protrudiug from a box thet has ther damege that cannot bo repoirod, to say nothing or tibo dibconifort 10 occastions.
poration cart of the fathionable promeneide hour covering 200 peoplo with dust, ana doring more demage to clothes thon would poy for the horse and exrt, to eny nothing of the Caltic drivor, and no intorírencen from the euardianan of tho law. Wo hovo scen an anclant Tenton, with hook hnd bag, allowed to gerratoh an motested in nn athbox until ho hed oovered over pedeetrians, through fasa of coming in contoct with time, without eveuu a word of remonontrance from the eyrnce and well-arevsed Brovidway saquaiman, wilo tem in the case of our tatrota, or wase wiu our poophe think tit may be worth teir while to copy nter the thas wo Love?

Dirty officer

If then is anything the world haa coute to congrathat

 The Theatreo.

A NEW LUNATIC ASYLUM

Shail we call the salesroon of Messrs.
 Autiquarians have Enown for 5

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.

 work stopped.

 brated byiph muse.

 the tho hien price of liee during the heetod terno of Mrilitary.-Gen. Hurlbut, in his farewel adareses hot when bitrongthemed they will heve a rcckoning with Oommin tho Honse of Representatives the Militory

 -
 oruered to report at Forragse Xrontoe, with the Army or the Potomnc under Gon. Smith have Thrve hundred ond Elisty-four Union ediares so many of our outiours eiscaped in February last, he hoving been yecaptorod.

 Naval. Tho piruto Franids nad the slooporwar old

     contrict Govemment of Nyaragas has concluaded $a$. ronid.

lowing apprapritut dodgo: They chartered a goodsizei

 A A curious hno of oration was nald to Blondin st

 Chit-Chat. Mre Jape G. Swleahelm, a clerk in $\rightarrow$ A arik ietar enys thet agentemum callod letaly

 Atene a London Tbeatro litely, during a "pheast"

 Hio wife mand was mothery trind in France for maxiderin

 this guilioleses detencc, and found the nema gavily.

with Mrara. Lincoin, iuring her recent visisto this city

THE POET TO THE WORLD.

The world's cold malice-Mammon's bitter smile, nd Sleap's undreaming hrother, stone-oy Desth,
Den west Wage ceaseless way upon the poet'
And atrive his holy mission to beguile With fondish mockories 1 Poets, heed thom not, But with Thy Pather's holiest muric fraught, Waste not ono grain of God's Immortal Thought Waste not ono grain of God's Immortal Thought
On such ebortions-Nature's foulest blot ! Then to your radiant harps, for had death scele, rilton's grand lipe How had upon his dying moments pre The unhorn music stified in his hreast, And all that weight of glory unrevealed!

CURIOSITIES OF COLORADO.

In an interesting article in the Atlantic Monh

 y. Fitzhugh Ludiow gives a most entertaining accoun are tho fantistio crections of tho wind, especialiy of certain gigantic otetue fashioned by the mobile sir: Wind Casvnsa,-This novel statue (if lits builk forbianot the name) was carved out of a coaree millstone-grit y the chael of the wind, with but alight asistanc Clorudo 1 first began to percecive how vait an omisslon Wind aplace in the dyyamicn of their zicience. Depend-Ding for a yeur sta a time, an that country fometimea does the conglomerate croph out rarity the superincumbicnt

air stratum to nucha d degree that the intemsely chilled of the canon. Evory Bithe cold Eust that I obsurved in he Colorulo county had this corkscrevt chaructor

Woman must rememher that she brought noro sin and misory into the world hy her sutiog thand moro sin and mlaory into the world by her satiog thax evor man lue hy his drining.
Some rich men keep cross dogs around thei Soms rich men keep cross dogs around thei, houses, eo that the hungry poor who etop to "got spick
may get jt outskie the doos.

two huddred pound rifled cannon at mim nayy yard, mbookify betwenn the city in 1895 nad 186t. In our hast we gave, a viow of the interior of the Fuir which hee juet cleced, after a most eucceesfal course. We alao gave eview in the city, taken from loudenklager hiis, stin whowing the worke thrown IcHenry in the distance, could he seen ns yout tooked oror Canton. To-day wo give a niew of the harbor, showing Locuut point, and the milroad whari, as it was oen on an occaelon of interouf hist drew numbars of

THE REBEL RAM TENNESSEE,

AN officer in the blockading fleet oll Mobile oende ve an aceurate allectio or the rebel ram Tonnensee, huilt to dofend Mobile, and a most formianale amant Our realesc wing the following paragrsph, which, unfor tunately, proved to bo merely a poissond d Avril. "The rebel ram Tenneesce was otruck by s equall on the let instant, whilo lying pear Granc's pass, caumikeher to keel over and isible. Her armament will prove i

Ter hungry month no more rendily finds od than the hungry mind finde trath

ARREST OF VAGRANT NECROES IN

 NEW ORLEANS.Tre Federal oceupation of New Orleans produced, as in other parts, a decided efleet on the lave population. The bonas of too patriachat inkitiof freedons hed not imbibod the ides of labor, and wero in a stato of perfoct bewildorment. Mayy wandered roumd tho strects, so many in mach ai become a growing evil co bet, and tbe etragglors were regolarly taron up by the autlionitice, wad employed on Government works at a fait rate of remuneration, wuless they preferred to onlist in tho negro regmeerss our Artis erapheally yorne on the ehilearen of Africa, dazzied by the afrat $g^{1} \mathrm{l}$ sisus of tho sum of freedon.
some countenamcc: botolen tear, othern amazomont, othara that hudieroue expreseton of fras
beara up tho negro in the trials of life

TWO HUNDRED POUND RIFLED

GANNON.

The recent arbcles given in our colums on the Roduan guns diepenso with any elluborate deecription of the 200 pound nitted cannon whith wo deleat st Plymouth. At the last ncconuts the ram Albemarle, alresdy enfflciently formidable, wan taling on hoord a large rifled canion of this othmp coptureal from ve.

BALTMORE UAEDOR, YROM FRL

ON BROADWAY.

by bita w. pierok.
A wave of streamere - stifled hum, Then the ringing of cheers through the welkin high,
And the sound of bugle and fife and drum, As proudly the troops came marching hy.

Marching hy witb their meaeured tread All bronzed hy the sun of the Southern land, Aayonets gleaming and hanners spreadBuyonets gleaming and hanners spread-
The dauntless of heart aud the strong or hand. Ob , the old day, And the tena
proud could see the street or the crowd, As home came the regiment up Broadway.

For you ree it was two long years heforeAh me! they had seemed so many moreWben the leaves were green on the tender thorn,
And the limets were singing anid the corn, With the gallant hundred of Company A. He was young of mien-he was alender and fair,
With his langhing eyes and his yellow hair But dauntless as any, as loyal and true, The lad of my heart in his soldier blue? Twas a dark and dreadfal day, you know, And what could I do hnt to bid him go, And pray that God would take care of the - rest?

Thongh he was my all, and 'twas hard at hest.
Alh, there was never a doubt or a pause When he pledged his fresh young lifo to the cause-
Twas a heart's free gift, but I lnew, at last, The pain was over-the waiting past, And that was why I was glad that day, When I heard the sound of bngle aud drum When I saw them coming so gallantly bom
My hrave hoy's regiment np Broadway!

Steadily-ateadily, ah, what a eight For my old dim eyes, when the noonday Fell on them
Fell on them close in the crowded wayI looked for the bauner of Company A. It was there-high-waving, I saw it again,
From the hattle's baptian of purple rain,

Piorced with the bullet, and reut with the hall;
And the faces heneath it-I looked at them all-
I looked at them all, hat the sumny hair And the eyes of my darling, they wcre not
They were n .
They were not thero with their sparlle and shine,
Nor anywhere gleaming aloug the line, And reeling backward to and fro
The atreet and the crowd they seemed to ga. I preseed through the ranks eo hrown and tall, I asked where my gallant lad might he"Killed in the trenches!" they answered me killed in.
all.
Under the light of that noonday slyy,
Where the cheers of the crowd rang long and high,
To the eound of the mueic, so galleut and
On went the regiment up Broadway.
I never ehall look on my darling again When the linnets are singing amid the grain. Oh gallant head, oh ringlets of gold, Oh hlue eyes hid in the trenches' mould, All that the wide world had for me I have laid at the shrine of Liherty nd for ber a weet eake to-day I stand By the loneliest hearthstone in all the land, Listeming to hear his voice through the rain-
His voice that never will come again. And I wait in patience for what is hest And the white stars look on me as I pray That unto my heart one hoon he givenSome happy morning to meet in heaven My gallant soldier of Company A.

포 IN I by Miss L. M. ALCOTt. (Concluded from No. 450. )
JUNE 8TR.-Found the house silent as a tomb, and fancy the sound of carringe wheels whieh hal woke me at dawn was the only farewell I shall reWoise me at dawn was the only farewell ceive firman poor madame, Along, quiet day. Noe returned at duak, and went straight to his room. I seized my hat, concealed myself in the lane and watched the leafy window, Presently it hlazed with light, and bnt for the appearance of Pierre in the garden I sbould have been tempted to exeonte my resolve al once. Hea, I sprang into the the chain that bolds tho gate, footpath which turns into the lane from the fields, Pierre showed small surprise at meeting me, as Pierre showed smail surprise at meetng me, a these mendows are my favorite walk, and my assumption of simplicity liss quite blindfolded this old watchdog. Anxious to see how he would explain it, I asked, as if just discovering the window: "What is that higbt among the leaves, does the roof hurn ?"

"Oh, no, monsieux, it is my msater's stndio He paints as he does cverything elsc-divinoly For that room he took the cottage; an arnst buat , and thougb The answer came so readily, and scemed so natural an explanation I conld not but believe it, and snying I shonld go in and read, I left him. From my window I waiched him far along the avenue, he aud the maids chatting in the grove, knew that mademe's narse had gone with her from a word mademe's narse had gone with her from a word Picrre dropped at dinner, and felt tbat my timo had come. It was a moonless evening, fest doepening into might; a light wind was blowing that filled the air with rnstling sounds, and the house was quite desorted for the time. I had no fearexcitement is my element, daring my delight, and I desired to earn my liberal reward for this disbonorahle but alluring service.

The Spy's Reward.
Leaving my hat hehind me, I crept to the western I ascend, but by a slender Norway pine, whose stem, being branchless for many feet above the gronnd, scemed to for bid approach hy that means. Practice made me agile, and I was soon upon the first bough wbich tonched the roof With catlike ateps I picked my way, croncining low and making no sonnd louder than the whispers of the wind.
The window was closed, and all I heard was a The window was closed, and all I heard was a mumuru of voices, hnt parang lee leaver at A long, lofty room was below, full of bgle colons, lovely shapes, but how furnielied 1 emmot tell, for its occupants absorbed me instantly. Stretched his fall length on a couch lay Noel, looking like a luxuriously indolont yoeng sultan, in crimson dreseing-gown and Tudrishs slippers. He-was laughing, and till then I had never seen thewas laughing, and till then I had never seen the-real beauty of his face; some cloud of rcserve, diss-trust or melancholy bad veiled it from me, bate at last I saw the hoy's true solf, and felt that nothing. was impossible to such as he. His white throat was hare, his black curls tumbled, his hanils. clasped shove his head, and as he laughed be bammed a sprightly air, in which a sotter voice ioined fitfully. joined fittuly.
long room came a woman dancing like an elf. Great henvens! how beautifol she waa! She wore some foreign'dress, hrilliant and piquante, a lovely neck and aims shone white againat the gold and scarlet of her bodice, and hare roey feet scarcely seemed to tonch the carpet. Dark eyes glittered throngh a stream of rippling gold hair, a sweet, red month was smiling, and as she danced the bloom no art can give deopened beantifully on her

With a deep obeiaspee and a ringing langh she ended hor pretty part of Bayadere, and dropping on a custion beeide the couoh, talked vivacioung while gathering ap her hair. Noel careased the bright head which presentit leane bright head which presently leaned against his pillow, eobering plowily as the thonghtrfol look stolo bhek-seemed to chider him, to try and win thio gay she-seemed to chide him, to try and win on ois el-mood baek again, but vainly; for rising on low he began to speak earneetly, so earneetly that mow he begas to speakk earneetly, so earneetly that his companion soon grew as intent as he. I would bave given worlds to bave eanght a word, bnt not one reachind me, and bnt for the emphatic geeturos of the pair slonla have gathered nothing of their of the pair sloould have gathered something from meaning. He evident urged ano acceded to with which sho shrank, yet in matisfied, snd with tho fondest. gestures dried the tcars, cousolod the grief, and ondearored to make light of it. $\Delta$ deep lounging-chair stood before an pasel, on which shone the image of this sweetveiced girl. A dainty little supper was apread beeido the chair, and drawing his model-for snch I eido the chair, and drawing his model-for snch I now subpect Clarice to be-jnto the velvet nest benow subpect Clarice to be-jnto the velvet nest beside hinn, Noel mado merry over it like one content, aud yet not heartily at ease.
It wes a prettier pioture than any he will ever paint; hoth so young, so hlithe and beautiful, so loving and beloved, so free and rioh in all that makes life pleasant. Ifelt like ons shnt out from some sweet Paradise ae I lay dimnese of the night upon this hapy pair, while dimnese of the night upon this happy pair, while they nestled there together, drinking from the they nestlod there togetaer, dame plate, sorving same glass, eating from the same ting all thinge but themselves.
Uttorly oblisions of the outer world, Pierre's voieo nenrly cansed me to ctaly dkd it break the bush.
"nly Whd it break the bush.
"Oetherine, , ises Monsieur Clyde como in?"
"Yes, long No; his light is ont" "Yes, long ago ; his light is ont",
The speakers were in the garden, and waiting The speakers were in the garden, and waiting till the doer cloeed upon thom I crept to the pine, balf elid, helif fell in my haste, and safely regained half elid,
my reom. my reom.
JUNE DTH interview with Mr. Noel on the lawn, which was prudont hat unsatisfactory to me, for I learned aothing frem it. Ssw no more of him till dinner, when lie told mo he ehould pass the evening ont, At eight he drove away, and curious to know when he returncd, I amued myself with a book till nearly midnight, then wearying of it, put ont my ight and sat musing in the derk. The night wae londy, close and warm, and finding all still I presently went out into the lane, wendering if Clerico, too, watched and waited for his return. The window was dark, but just as I turned from it I was alarmed by the sonnd of wheels close yy. I recognised the light roll of the peny carriage, though it was deadened by the turf, for to my diemay it was evidently coming not up the avenue but along the lane. Fearing to he seen if I attempted to get in, I aprang behind the hedge, end holding my breath, anw the carriage pause before the doo in the garden wall. A man leaped out, seemed to listen, then admitted himself hoth to the gardifted window snggested. Quite breathlees with interest I waited, and sooner than, I expected the man reappeered, not alone now, for a slender female figure clung to him. I coald just see the ontline of their figures, the white gleam of the faoee, hut I herw them ot on rapidy exchanged in Italian.
"How still it is; bave yon no fear?"
And I with captivity, thank God!"
I shall miss you sadiy, deas:"
"Not for long, your wife will comfort you." A bttle laugh accompanied the words, and like spectres of the ahadowy hour, house, carriage, man and woman vanished in the gloom, Here is a clue at lest; Nool will marry, and for thise purpose clears his house of all encumbrances; vior madame and the lovely model must give r.as-it his faec and maoner ere to he relied on, Why he doee so is a will yot fathom both.
JUNF 10 rit .-It is well that I was prepared beforehisnd, else the announcement made to me this aurprise. Mr. Noel wrote steadily all day, wee at the piano till twilight fell. I bad been pacing up and down the hall enjoying his musio, when it ceseed abruptly, and coming ont he joincd me in cesed abruptly, and coming ont he joincd me in my promenade. The hall was not bighted, except lyy the aoftened gleam of sbsded lampe in the drawing-roem. I instantly observed the anxious look I have learned to know, and hy the elight ferred that be hoth wished and fearod to speak Presently fixing his oyes full upon me, he eaid alowly, as if weighing overy word, and marking thent
"Mr. Clyde, as an inmato of my house, I feel thes it is bnt right for me to tell you of an apally change my mode of life nor your own-I am about to marry,
He eo evidently expected me to be surprieed that I instantly feigned what I should yesterdey have really felt. Stopping in my walk, I exclaimed:

Married! yon are very young for that experi ence;" there I checked myself and began the proper congratulatione. He cut them short hy selkper co
ing:
"

How old do you believe me to be?"
You look eighteen, your book aays forty," anawered, laughing.
"I am of sge, ho marry, have neither parer, and though young to bid "It will bey would.
"It will be toon I infer, se you do me the honor of announcing it
"You maturday."
change in my present mode of life-I am then to "I shail be abeent bnt a day. It will be a ver mivate anfe."
A lithl pause fell hetween ns, I wes contrast expreasion, quiet manner now with the loverin an fell more than ever convinced that for come weighty reaeon ho was doing violence to heart. He eeemed conocions that, having anji so mnch, he should eny more, and still in the same measured tone:
"Madame's departare leavee me lonely. Mr attense from her balyhhood. 'She, too, is an orphan, and both being solitary, we see no wiedom in de laying to secure our happinebe. Mrs. St. Michael is a mutual friend, and at her house we sball be is a mutual friend, and at her house we sball bs married in the quiotent maduer, for the few relatives we poescess are far distant, and Hortense Ireads strangers."
Hero Pierre came in, hringing a dainty little now, which he delivered with a emile. Noel toek whieh he delivered with a emile. Noel toek it to the west wing. I wish that $I$, too, were a lover $t$ June 12TE, - Since our conversation in the hall I bave scarcely sean Mr. Noel, and therefore bave little to record. For an hour or two he hae sat in his alcove, then dreesed and driven away to the St. Michaele, where I suspect the bride elect the St . Michaele, where 1 wuspect the bride elect has already errived. To-day was the wedding-day, has aiready arrived. To-diy was the wedding-day, and I waited with intenso impatience for the coming of the young pair. Not that I expected to be invited to join them so soon, if ever, but becanse I vited to join them so soon, if ever, but becanse I was harning with ouriosity to see the woman for was harning with ouriosity to see the woman for whom he had discarded poor Clarice, and had no whom he had discarded poor Clarice, and had no scruples about-gratifying myself in any way that scruples.
offered.
offered.
$\Delta t$ five I went to my dinner, found Pierre polishing the plate, hat no appearnnce of food. "Mapter, will dine at seven to-day, and hopeb
monsieur will not be incominoded ly the change," monsiow
he said.
"Am I to join them as nsual, then ?" I asked, "Oh, yes; the arxival of young madame will alter lieve,
At $h$
At half-pat six o'elock a carriage rolled up the avenne, snd from behind a gronp of larchee on the hawn I wetched the arrival. Pierre came amiling to the door as Noel led a lady up the stepe. A siender, dainty little lady she seemed, but her froe was dainty little lady she seemed, but her troe was hidden by the white veil which covered ber blonde bonnet, and all I could diseover of her flgure, under a flowing white hurnoue, was that it was slight and graceful. She was evidently very young; for as ohs entored the honse ehe clapped her hande ana danced down the long hall, as if overjoyed to be at servant, and I canght a glimpse of his face, and yery bttlo like the countenance of a bridegroom very btit did it leok.
As both. went in I returned to my room, and hale Twilight had come on and lamps were lit. The table shone with damask, glase and silver, flower glowed everywhere, and the lustres filed the room with a featal brendth of bght. But none of these things canght my oye on entaring, for atanding in the deep window were Noel and his hride. Hia arm was aboat her, and leaning there es if content, he oeked down at her as she held out an almost childthe wedding-ring upon it, Both turned as I came in, and, with the color mounting to his very fore head, Noel said wife."
Well
Well for me that a how was all sufficient, and that my eommand of countenanen wes great, or I Mrs. Noel wes Clarice! Thare could ho no doubt of it. The face was peculiar even in its beanty, and not casily forgotten. There was the rippling, golden hair, dark eyes, sweet red mouth and blooming eheel--even the smile was tho samo, brillient and brief, the voice unchanged, vivacions, yet musically soft. The dress wae simple white, yet musically soft. The dress wae simple white, yet above the flowers in the losom shone the fair shonldera I hed sean, and the round arm that ley on Noel'e wore the very bracolet that hed flashed upon Clarice's hat a little while ago. Nocl eyed me narrowly, hut I lelliove my faco was impenetrable, as I uttered my congratulationa aft surprise of that first glimpee had passed. surprise of that first glimpee had passed.
Half shily, half daringly, Mra. Noel glanced at me, and as I paueed she drew her husbend towerds thes table lika an impatient child.
"Come, Bernard, Pierre is waiting, and $\mathbf{I}$ am eo luongry. That ie a sadly nuromentio admiseion for a bride to make, batit is true. Besidee, I want to play mistresa, and hegin to realige thast I am free from all restraints hut yours, mon am
We eat down, and a moet charming mistrese did he prove hereelf. So gay, so gracefnl, so frankly fond of her hushand, so courteons to me, and now and then, as if the novelty of har poas, that before the meal was over I found myself forgetting all the past and full of admiration for this most captivating little creature. Noel eeemed to own the obarm as well. The clond lifted, and agsin I ide obe in hie yonng wife, drank her heslth more than once, and was more cordinl to me than I believed it possible for him to be. Both scemed to forget who freely to ahed the light of their new happines apon the lonely etranger. My heart reproached me for my treachery, yot Strange su all has hoen here, I am fast learning to respeot and love this gifted hoy, to look leniently upon his peculisrities, and even commend this has act, whatever ite causes and consaquencee mey ho

It is evident that hs loves his wife pessionstely

 which will not be concealed. I felt like one in room longed to follow, yet dared not, till Mra, Noel, loolding backward, beckoned me with an im perions bittle geeture that was irresistible. "There is no need of your dessrting your old aunts becaase I have come, Mr. Clyde," she eaid, deaine I felt. "Bernard and I have kown eaoh other for so many years, have been togather so that the putting on of this ring neems to make no change in ns. We eare nothing for the worla'eways, and rule this little kingdom as wo will. You are a gentleman, you like my-" ohe parased, laughed dolightsomely, and added, "my hueband" fore yon are our friend, as such yon mnst live with wisdom.
This friendy specch, so warmly, gracefuily deivered, quite touched and won my heart, and I at once accepted hoth the offer and the hand ont were anolen, bittle madame denced away to the pisno and hroke into a song. If anything were needed to convince me of her identity with Clarice this would have done it, for the marrellone voice ceald not he feigned. With a malicious fancy to see how Noel would bear an allusion to hood he once told me, I faid, carelessly

Althongh t heard lint indiatimetly at the time Althongh I heard hut indistimetly at the time, Eatavan's wben she sang 'Casta Diva,' smiling the smile that makes his faee so young he enswered, with a mirthful look at the goldenhaired, white-rohed figure at the instrument:
"Well it may, for madame is a nerr relation or y little wife"s, whese voice was trained by her,
my little wife's, whese voice was trained by her, Hortense, come out npon the lnwn, I want to abow Hortense, come out npon the
you your nest by moonlight."
you your nest by moonlight."
she came to him with the
She came to him with the eiry motion which seems habitual to her, and, hanging on lis arm, went ont, along the terrace, looling a fit inmate of this enchanting and enchanted place.
Juna 14TR.-I take the liherty of noting ouly such events as seem important or myeterions, and therefore when my daye are solitary lesve them blank. Yesterday the young conple fully proved blank. Yesterday the young cenple fully proved themaelves " 2 pair of children," for they denced and sang all throngh the house, haunted garden, grove and lawn, drove, walked and rested, always together and always happy. Mre, Noel seemed like a hird let loese, her husband enjoyed her joy and gave himself a bolidny, for mind as well ae and gave himself a boliday, for mind as well heart; for he never came into the study, but leened in at the window, giving his directione while his yes looked wistful; I suspect they did, for suddenly the atepped in and came to me, saying, as ahe puta again
an y
"You, teo, ahall have one, hecause yon are the wise and busy mah. See, I give you this fully opened rose; it suite you best. Bernard must have opened rose ; it sutes youbest, ther are like me." As I waited thoir coming in the dining-Nrs. St. Michael's servant come up the svenne and hand a packet to Noel, who was loitering there while madame dreesed. The msn went hack. Noel rend a briel note, haebily unfolded the nowapaper which compoeed the packet, and seemed I saw him etand mosome particular paesago. I saw intese and intent a moment, then drop the paper turn as Darting out, I raised his hesd to my knee, loesen-
d his collar, and while wondering at the smile etil ed his collar, and while wondering at the smile etili lingering on his pale lips, I snatched a glance at the note, for the paper was etill crushed in his hand. Only three lines:
"I go ot once to London. Be prepared at ell time. Another wcalk and your long task in over,
It was Mrs. St. Michael's, hand. Ihad seen it on might have found hy eearching the paper wer losi, for Noel opened his eyen the instant I tonched his clenched hand. To my utter amazement his face grew elmost fia thrust me off.
"Have you read it? What have I dona? How He you here?
He spoke as if hardly conaeious of what he said yet, through all the agitation of his manner end the incoherency of his speech, some strange happiness was plainly visible.
"My dear air, I have reed nothing. See, the note lies under your feet and the pepar is in your hand. I saw you fall and ran to helpyou. Should I have left you here to etartle Dirs. Noal?" The composure of my manner reassured him, his hands before his face, and great tears fell between his slender fingore as he wept tike a womsn for a moment. I involuntarily pnt my arm ahont him, for he trembled, and, as if the ect were comforting, he leaned against me till the paroxysm jea up half gratoful, half nikhamed. Hia eyes fell before mine; he eaw the note at his feet, and, as if self were forgotten in eome returning thought,
 caet eyca:
"Forgive my folly and my harahness; I am not strong, and sudden tidinge overcome me. Let me strong, and audden tidinge on explain, for I hate myetery."
explain, for 1 hate myetery."
So, eager to learn, I did not refuse, and he added, alter. reading prise:
prise: "Thie ie from my kind neighlior; she goee to London ahout my hook. I am to be prepared to deliver it at any moment, and that is the, long taak that will bo ended in another week.
Nothing eonld he aimpler, and yet Idid not b 俍
learned to kow this joung man's face so well that its expressions are familiar now, and not once did his eyes meet mine whils apeaking, nor did he once allnde to the paper still crumpled in the hand hehind him. I could not hnt accept it, however, and as Mrs. Nobl was seen coming ont to na, her huaband atarted, thrust both note and newopsper into hia is forshead and and his disorderad locks upon hia forchead, and "Oblige mo hy easing nothing of this to my wife at present. I vill tell her later. Givs ma your arm, please, and bo so kind as to attract her attontion from me for s little.
I obeyed in ail things, bnt Mre. Noel waa net doeived; her firat glance at her hushand caused hor perceived by me restrained her, and she endeavored to appear uncouseions of anything amiks, Pierre atro looked expectant, was nnnsually awleward in his duties, and evidently eager to get me away. The instant dinner was over all three vanished, yet not together, and with overy appearance ished, yet not together, and with overy sppearance of anxiety to be unobserved.
Jure 17 Tre --But one thing has absorbed the houseliold for the last three days, and that ha heen the book. Snch genxine intereat and hat caunot he feigned, and I must believe that Nocl caunot he for not only has he written steadily himself, him merry little madame lahors aliso, staining her pretty Angers with ink, lushing her awieet face with energetic struggles to keep up with our awift energetic struggles to keep up with our bwiter pens, and ma

It must he done before the week is ont, if wo give our nights as well sa our days to it. Holp n through this task, Clyde, and sek any recompens when it is done.
Never had Noel spelsen to me with suoh energy, ench familiarity; his eagernese seemed to put ench familiarity; his eagerness seemed to put new strength into my liands, his confidence to warn my heart with an almost brotherly affeetion for my heart with an almost brotherly affeetion for him. We did work, eilently for tho most part, lut how rapidly yon may understand when I asy thnt to-might the heok is done. I have just left the study very weary, yet heartily eorry that my share of the work is over, for Mr. Noel telle me bo may not need me but a little longer. This unexpected note of Mrs. St. Michael's seems to have precipi-teted matters, and my task ends before the month is out, Jone 15 Tr . - The clue ie found, and the mystery somnd, but wole suddeuly, sure that some one called me. The moon had set, a light shower pattered on the leavee, and a freali wind blew in. While drowsily thinking that I muatrise and close Wyile crowsily thiming that I mastrise and close my window, there oame a light tap on the glass of the one nearest me, whioh wea alreedy ehut the one nearest me, whioh wes alreedy shut. sat up and listened; cautions feotetepa hruehed ncrese the turf, and as if my movements had neaured some one of my presence, a voice hreathed Boftly
"Pi

Pierre! Clarice I Bernara!"
"Who's there ?" I cried, but nothing answered, and sagain the stealthy footstepe caught my ear. I sprang to the window, strained oye and ear, ound reached me, and I relnctantly compelled myeelf to think it all a delueion, for these names bad heen sounding through my dreems.
This morning I stepped out upon the terrece early, as I often do, hat took only a single step, for there in the black monld under my clesed windows were footprinte not my own. Peculiar footprints were they; one large, bnt ome way. Long I looked at them, bnt could find no solution of tho matter, , strolled on looking for more. None appeared, and I was just turning hack to ring for braakfast, when Mrs. Noel came Aying down the hall, her hair leo日e upon he inoulders, her musinn wrepper hal in her face, Sceing me, ehe cried:
"Where is he? Bernard? Have you seen him?
He is gone t"
"Gonet How? When? What bas happened Mrs. Noal ?"
"I what Pierre," she oried, heating her hands distractedly together. "He too is gone, the maide tell me. What shall I do ? Help me, Mr. Clyde I Look for them; oh, look for them!
"there till I look? Tell me more; I cannot
"It was so warm lest nigh and went to madame's room. I heard nothing, knew nothing till I awoko and found him gonc. looked and called, I aent for Pierre, but he too had deserted me, and now I have no hope bnt in you. Her white face dropped npon my arm as tha past words left her lipa, and ehe clung to mo, sellast words left her lipas, and ing like a frightened child.
Let ua go to his room, lie may have left aeme paper, some trace that will serve us. Be of good heart, dear Mrs. Noel ; I will help jou with all my wit, etrength and eoul.
"You are so kind! Come, then-stay, I must go first-the room ie in end dieorder.
Hurrying before me, she razinto th Hurrying betore me, she raninto the west wing, followed when abe called me, and lookod vainly for some trace to explain Noel's ahsence.
" ${ }^{\text {He }}$, never walke eo early, never till now hes "He never walke eo early, never till now has
"Home without telling me, Why gona evan to the grove without tolling me, Why did I leave him? Oh, my darling, whut has happenod to take you from-There ahe paused abruptly, for I beckoned. The long window wae open, and glancing out, I had aeen npon the newly gravellod walk footprinte like aeen upon the nad acen before. Others were beside them now, alender and amall. Mrs. Noel looked, ramed out regardleas of her diearray, dropped on her knees and scrutinieed the prints, then rose, und carefully compared the smaller one with her and carefully compared the amaller one with her own pretty foot thrust stockingless into an om-broidered alipper. It sacmed to satisfy her; ; long aigh of relief followed, yet ahe began to tremhla as har eye wandered far heyond the gartrembla as har eye wandered ar heyond the garden walls. I said nothing of my nooturnal visitur, and waited for her to speal. In a moment ahe recovered her self-posseвsion, brushed away ths larger footprinte with a rapid geeturo, sna graed to ing her wrapper clesor nbout her, ahe torne me with a gentle dignity I had never seen in ber till now.
"I hase no longer any fear for him," she said These tracks nhow that Pierre is with him. They plan seme surprise for me. Thank yon, Mr, Olyde, and let me apologise for my foolish frigbtw, Hore myatified than ever, I was turning awry, when Noel sprang in at the window, reey, radiant and wonderfully altered. Wberein tbo cbaly that I stood staring dumbly, while his wife explained my tomewhat embarressing ritantion, and chid him for hin fligbt. for his fligbt.
"My dearee "My dearest, I ouly wont to the 8 t . Michaols.
The good gentlemm had, one of his axden attacks near morning, and sent for me ; Pierre would not let me go alone; I feared to distress you, so we alippod sway, hoping to be back hefore you, so we lil Yon awoke,
This statement, life several others, seunded probable, yet I doubted it, and ohserved thet while he spoke be looked steadily at his wife, who looked ns atendily at hini. Of course I retired atter that, as atend and noth
nasual.
An day I wrote, copying several fine poems, which I suspect have been lately written, ws they re of lowe. Al . Noel has seemed more unlike his former self even than ho dud st dawn, and his wife has been in a state of joyful restlesances which hadected us all. Something wonderfolly exciling desired was evidently to take place at night; for as I left the drawing-room this evening I hesrd Nocl whisper, as if to check some impatient glance or gesture of his wife's :
"Wait a few hours
"Wait a few hours more, darling. It will not be afe for him to come till twelve." afe for him to come till twelve."
That was enough for me ; out went my light, That was enough for me; out went mg light, and having carefully tumblod my bed that it might appear to have been occnpied, I sat down by my window, waiting till the house was quiet. At halfpasit eleven I crept out, snd looked to see what windows were still lighted. None but the stadio whindows were stiu Thghe, then, thig joyful meeting showed a ray. Thero was prolabbly to take place. Up I crept, hut was prohnbly to take place. Up I crept, hut hrought me the sound of steps coming to the gnte.
Motionless I sat, hidden in the semhre verdnre of the pine, as two tall figurea entered, crept to the Fas Pierre I knew, hy a auppressed hem; the other was slmost gigantic, , scen through the pale miat that rolled ap from the river. An unequal motion in the gait auggeated a limp, and as they notion in the gait euggeated e limp, and as they Fearing that Pierre might stand guard, I remained where I was for bome time, then crept to nyy former loophole, and looked down.
A magnificent old man was sitting in the easy-chair with Clarice upon his knee, both her chair with Clarice upon his knse, both her arme were abont hie neck, and tesrs of joy were streaming, for she smiled as they fell, and seemed to ing, for she smiled as they fell, and se Another woman knelt beaide the chair, hor fac uplifted, tearless, but how nobly beautiful! As I oxcitement slmost uncoutrollable, for with a shool of recognition I knew that this was Noel, snd that Noel wbs a woman. The black locks were parted on the forehead now, the darlk monatache was gone, the loose paletot was replaced by some flowing drees, from whosa deop purple eleeves came armb whose white grace w had the face been hidden.
Dizzy with bewilderment and a strange satisfac tion which I could not snalyse, I stared down upon the three, seeing, hearing, yet ecarcely comprehending for a time. This stately man wea their father; it needel no words to tell me that, for Clarice's eyes were dark snd lustrous as his; Noel's-I can call her by no other name-Noel's grave, sweet mouth wea a perfect miniature of his, and the features of beth haves strong though softoned resemblance to those finer ones whose reposefol strength was beantifully tonched by tonderness. An Italisn evidently, for though his figure far exceeded the lithe slenderness which liguro har exceeded tho this characterizes this there was the olive hee, the southern eye, tho fire, the grace which colder elimates beldom produce. Crayhaired, worn and old he looked; yet auffering thought and care scemed to have sged him more than years, for hia voice had a youthful ring, his than years, for hia voice had a youthful ring, his The right foet wis smsller tban the loft, and of the danghtess had laid a cushion for this weak ond weary foot, the sight of which conffreed my anspleion that I Bany the midnight viritor whoos auspicion that I вnw the midnight vieit
The first words that reached me after a panse were Noel's, and I held my breath to hear, for the fintelike tenor I had learned to lovo was sortened with a womauly tone, and now I was sore th with a womauly tone, and now 1 knew why the seeming boy had been ao silent when I was by. Ae if continuing somo snbject dropped fer a momentary overflow of omotion :
us simee they drove no from your prison doors Good old Annnuciats took nis home, but remembering my promise to you to fly at once to your old comrado Pierre in Paris, we went. He wasell you helieved he would be, father, friend, counsellor and guard. He fearod to keep us there, begged us to come to Englend, and in some safe disguiae wait here till you could join us, if your captivity dia not ond in desth.
"As we planned what would be the easiest,
anfeat diaguiso for esch to asaume, I bethonght me that if we were searched, for when it wns die covered that the proscribed book had dis with na wo ahoonld be deaoribed as two tralion girls ; if we separeted each might be found, and apart, our apprehensions for esch other would be unbearable. Now, if we could lose our identity altogather, and sppear in a new land oxactly opposite to wbat we had been in tbe old, we opposite to wbat we had beon in tbe old, we sbould be doubly bafe, and could help you withont sbould be doubly safe, and could help you withont fes. I recalled our wandering life before yon knew Clarice's mother, when you and I roamed over Italy and France as a pensant and hise little part so well, you lnow, I cried when forced to give it up; lint in my strait I remembered it, and resolved to be, not a little lad, but a half-grown youth, and train myeelf to dare all thinge for your sake. Clarice conld not if she would, having neither courage, atature nor voice, poor, timid darling as she is! therefore she shonld personste daring as ahe is! therefore ant tomila per aunt Clotilde, whom she nsed to mock, French accent would serve her well. Sbow papa how perfectly you looked it, nsughty girl Up aprang Clarice, rau below, snd in a moment Madame Estavan appeared. Great heavens, how hlind I have been 1 No matter, that is over now, and a light I never dreamed of has dawned for nut. Let me finish specdily. The three bappy sonls within laughed gsily as the mock invalid repeated her graceful helplensuess, and deplored her sufferings with the pensive sirs with which madsme had won my sympsthy. Soon Noel, or Monica as I should now call her-ab, the sweet Italian name!-continned her narration, leaning on the high hack of her father's chair, oaing on the high hack of her father's chair, oswas beautiful to bee.
"Pierre was unknown, oircumspeet, and the denr soul insisted upon coming with ns. He know the St. Michaele, and had done them a service when they wore in Paria years ago; he mrote to them, for they wers trae as gold; they prepared all thinge for us, and in this quiet nook we pared all thinge for us, sud in this quiuet have lived through these weary months." sve lived through these weary month "But this young man, to whom I nearly behe here? You woald ouly hasr my ntory then, now finibli yours, my man-hearted girl, How her face, glowed at thes, half with pride at the praise, half with elame at the part she had played so well, as if with her woman'e garb she played so well, , is with her wo.

Papa, see what we have done while waiting for Hore, translated, fairly cepied and ready you Hore, translated, fairly cepied and ready for your last touches, is the dear book, writton with such enthusiasm, lived for, sufferod for, nud now to be enjoycd in this free land when all denger has gone by,
be reaped at leat."
What pussed helow for a few minutes I ehal never know, for uy own eyce graw too dim for so much laid her glft in her fisther'A hands, and hor head upon her father's knee. When next I looked the precious gift was at his feet, the hsloved giver in his arme, and with the two fsir faces looking up into his own, the happy mau was listening to that chapter of the romance in which ${ }^{5}$ playis dear Monies nearly kill rinis arrived Mra. St, Michael and myself began to pray and urge and work upon her to consent that we ahould either put the copying out or have some person here. At langth we prevailed; she would no part wita her oharge evsn then for a time, but go out much, be cling for seeiety ; we darsd not go out much, be blunders by forgetting that I was blind and ill. She might have gone auywhere in this duil place, for uone Fould guess her, but she would not do that for foar of mishaps. Both longed for som change, and whon wo Who would come. Mhis clyde appeared; Monic pecting and sincere. In time we found him accomplished, assidnous and a most egreeable immato. Was it not no, cara sposa?
Infinitely mischisvous and merry looked Mre Noel, as the glanced up at her bluahing sistor who half avarted har face, and answered with "Yes, too sotnces in her tene:
"Yes, too agreesble for our pesce of mind, per-laps. Now let me finish, for I have ill things to haps. Now let me finish, for I have ill things to toli of you end of myself. Papa, Clarice forgot her part continually ; she never would he careful, came a lock of hor hright hair neerly betrayed her, another time sha dropped her robary, and calmly owned that we were Catholics. I took refuge be owned that we were Catholica. I took refuge behind her, for in a Frenchwomen it wes nothing hind her, for in a Frenchwomen it was nothing Gingligh youth it wes not to be allowed. Mrre. St sent your lotters in all manner of strange ways, till I bid her do it simply, for Clarice was always in & tremor when anything arrivedfrom tbem, lea a lettor ahould appear when least expectod. too was more than once on the point of telling all, papa, I longed so for a wiser, stronger friend than my good Pierre or the St. Michasla. When those who enuffered for Italy, and your name wa among them, I could not bear it. Clyde helped tender that it broke my heart to tell another of those folschoods. But till I knew how free, how Bafe you we tho truth."
a burden for it was too hera a lask, too heav rewarded for yqur loving heart. Yon shall be father can do it, and in the next where you mother waits to receive you into Paradiae." mother waits to roceive you into Paradiae.", little pause, then the proud father asked with amile so hike his daughter'a I reemed to ace an elder Noel, "Tell me why this mock marriage it never woul soon you would arrive. But Clarice endangered all things; I could not send Clyde away when that part of my venture failed, for tbe hook wes not part of my venture failed, for the hook wBs not done; she wonla not leave me, yet pined here in confinement after madame's shasdow departed.
Nor could she sppear as my sistor, for I had asid to various persons when I came that I had no amily. Neither could she stay openily with me soandal or the faintest blemish on her maiden fame. We were in despair, when it occurred to me, that, as I sesumed the role of a wayward genius-that I was forced to do, owing to the book and the secluded life Iled-I might marry an play a hittle game of love and matrimony, It wa it, snd brought my wife home, ns happy as a a it, snd brought my wife home, as happy as a
When the cage is open and the sky cloudless." "Lean nearer, my daughter, and answer truly. your own heart for the bubatance? Have not theee quist aummer days, passed in the nociety of this young man, been bazardons to sometbing more valnable than my safety? Will you not find the same longing to loan upon, to confide in the new friend lingering under tbe woman's robe a warmily, ss strongly, as when this gentle bosom hid itself bohind a man's vest? Toll me, Monica, do you love this Clyde?"
There was no answer, but her face was hidden, sud before the mute confession could be acoeptex she sprang up, es it pride struggled with maiden love and aheme, and came towards me. Then I eaw her face, and knew that the strange. sontimen of affoction, reverenes and admiration I had felt for her whan I believed her to be a singulari, gifted and noble boy was unsuapected love gifted and noble boy was unsuapected love;
that the blushes, the reserve, the suriety which I fancied arose from other caunes, in truth progrowing passion, whose chief charm lay in its growing passion, whose chief charm lay in ity blindness. These thoughte whirled through my brain ss I listened, and when I вaw that familiar yet arreetly aitered countenance uneonaciously betraying to me what it struggled to conceal from those nearer yet not dearer I could ecarcely centain myself, and some half audibleoxclamatiou centain myself, and some half audible exclamatiou hroke from me, She caught it, looked up, sesmed to aee my face ra it vanished. No sonnd betrayed that ahe had recognised me, and so brief was the glimpse that I flattered myself she could scarcely think she asw a human viesge through the thickest growing leaves. Like a grilly yet mest happy ghost, I ewiftly, silently regained my room, and ghost, I ewiftly, silontly rogained my room, and dashed into bed. Not a moment too soon, for dsshed into bed. Not a moment too soon, for is if would betray me, when the door opened, and the invisible being evidently pansed upon the threshold listexing. I bore the surpense till I could bear it no longer, and stirred noisuy in my bed. Then quietiy as ithad. Mr. North, I am your epy record which I now dispatch is the late yon will aver receive from me, for I ouresk

Those last words were written in the huah of ager to be done with my now insupportablo tesk and as Monica had ssid that her father was peat all danger, 1 feared no herm would follow the deavery of that finsl record, I had waited impatienily for the first ray of light that I might make it, and when it was writion paused for the page to gry. hat pause was fatal, for worm out whe a aleep hours, my eyes closed, my head foll on my arms, and lest I all conscionsmess in a desp slomber which must have lasted for au hour, aa when I awoke the sun shone in upon me, Intent on peating my letter unobserved as neual, I looked wakonod. There it lay with its infamous purpose cloarly note, a slip of paper, all thres stabbod through by the tiny dagger that pinned them to their place. I fenew the dagger, had seen it on Monick'e place. I knew the dagger, had seen it on Monica'e Atudy-table, and admired its dainty workmanship; I knew the sharp Itaison writing on the paper, for I had seen it day after day; I knew whese eyea had read my words, whose hand had stabbed the treacherous sheot, whose contompt had epared me for a remorse eherper than pang of death. The alip hald these words:
"We are gone for ever, leaving despair for the over, wsges for the tool, e friend for the traitor."
How long I ast there I cannot tell. The aun cams up, the world woke, and life wont nn sbou me, but mine seemed to have ended. A duil hope woke at last within me, and I went which I bhall never find. Every room wis deserted, but that of the grim mald, Catherise; and from her I got no holp, but a curt request to brealslast and go, as sbe had onders to close the house, and return to her former miatrese, Mra, St, Wielael, "Were they there?" I alked. No, they wero miles awoy now, and she would have no questions put to her. My one refuge was Mr, North, and to him I huried. His office Wes closed. I knew his house, and ran to it Crape I knew his house, and ran to it. Crape it was to find him dead. The day before a atrange gentlemant hed called, nad s long interview, and his hen went Mr. Nortin as dawn. Hie secret had died with him, and through of it; never aeen Monica; Hever regained my peace of mind, nor found rest from $p$ miserably over thees unnolved Enigmas.

If men will hut amnse the world, it will treely forgive them for chenting it. When men are lng indifferent towards us, wo grow indifferent to their indifferenco.

THINKINC.

Throver the clouds of gold and purple
Slow the sun is rinking;
Fetloek deep within tbe river
Stand the cattle drinking ;
On the bridge above the milstrea
Resta tbe maiden-thinking.
Nntbrown hair that mocks the ennget
With its golden glsaming, With its golden glsaming, With the graceful sseming Of an antique-sculptured Nereid, By a fountain dresming,
As a tender thought had swayed her, O'er the stream she's leaning,
While her red lips curve and $q$ With a sudden meaning, And a quiok nod sbaking ber ringlete,
All her features sereening All her features screening.
For tbere comes a sound of laughter,
And a merry ehoering : And the cattle turn their To a step tbat's nearingAnd sho waits for words low spoken
In & tone endearing. In s tone endearing.
Low behind the weetern
Now the enn is sinking.
Towards the hridge the weary cattle Turn themselvee from drinkingAnd they never guesaed, se I did
What the maid was thinking.

CAPTURE OF GEN. LEE'S WACON TRAIN, AT MANSFIELD, LA
In the late reverses in louisiana one of the most diagracefal pointe wae the loes of the wagoul trifin of Gen. Iee's cavalry, which had heen ment wo forward that it hecame impossible for tho defeated cas alry to retreat. This lad not only to the disornofl the men but also the eapture of the truinin. "Our forcee" " nyys our Artsot, "Fero driven in con.
fusion domit he hill, through the clearing nad into the woods. The ont

 io morely necesiany to kin the fromt horeee or malen or a few whoona at the heod of the line, sind tho wholo aro talien.

CHASING A BLOCKADE-RUNNER.

"Weat is our Navy doing? Why is not ed Mobile." Such are commenta wo often bear we not unjust? The hlockaders are known, their post. tona cortain: the hlookade-runnere uncertain and overywhore, with friends asthoro to guide and Elignal them. hilockade-runner, orvifes ats chance to purrue a than tho factin made knawn, snd in tho darkness the hlockrade-runner creepa in with Ughte extinguthhod, that two hlockado-rumnors have heem lenown, when fainy

SECESSIONVILLE, JAMES ISLAND SOUTH CAROLINA.
Seozsitonvilue, as its name implies, is a plaof which has roccived itts name sliono the war hegan, nnd if our preent military operatione do not mis-cerry, may ooon adopt some othar appellition, and ita carry, may noon adopt nome othar appollation, and presont name never be enmhrined in a gazetteer.

 trowning bastories of robrlilion.
In the foroground is a redoubt for infantry with a ary ditch.

WESTOVER WELI

The advance of Gen. Butlerup the York and James rivers hrings our troops hack to the spot whic dil never be forgothen in the Amatican armies-Weat Point, the White House, Fort Powhation, City Point, Harrison's Landing, the Cbicahominy. Few of the ${ }^{\text {co }}$

BOOK NOTICES.

Franis Liestife'a Ladi's Maoazine and Gazette of Fasmon for May, 1864.
This univeraal favorite comen this month with some.
thing whieh dropa out and proves to bo foll-sized patterne for a new Ccinture Pariblemue, a Low Bodico for Ivening Dreatean and a Little Girl's Dress, suffictont and varied enougb to grotify myy layy: while the plato of

HER SONS TO VIOTORI,

SLEEP AND DEATH．

Ssr，when the infant sleeps its wakeless alcep， Its lite blood cold－its heart can beat no Its littlo eyes，erat bright，with hazy film

Say，is this death ？

$$
{ }^{?} \text { No, it is only sleep. }
$$

Say，wben the warrior sinks upon the filla，
The luardought battlo oer，his duty done， Suy，when the what battho o＇er，his duty done，
The last wifld ely that strikes npon his ear－ The last wild ery that strikes npon hig ear＂
＂The fight is won！＂

Say，if this death？No！it is only sleep．
Say，when the old man haring run his race， Aud acen Lis friendships fade and lores de Life＇s evening cloges，and in heasen araits Life＇s evening closee，and in hegyen awats Say，is this death？No！it is only sleep． Say，when the Togethor hinds two hearta，two souls，two lives， The loved one perishes，ons memory lives，

Say，what is this？
Ah？this is truly deeth！
The Gulf Between Them． By Mrs．ANN s．sTEPHENs．

ой
Waice Mellen stood on the veranids at the front of the heuse Mr．Rhodes came up the avenue． There was no hope of escanpo for him；he had not percived the visitor treat，and $&$ voice ealled out after al．You seo I walked over to nyy farm on the beock road，＂he explnined，＂intending to take tho halt－psest three trainto New York，hut $I$ minged it．So I sidid to myself，＇Tll cent acrooss the feldds， down the hill，and atop at Mellen＇s，beg a dimner， oclock train＂wad idea，on the contrary，＂Mellen ＂A very good idea，on the contrary，＂Mellen answered，strugg ing to toeem hespitible while the visiton wring hia hand agsin and burst into the visiton wrung hia hand ngsin and burst into perfeot thouta or laughter，un if there was some perfeot thouts or haughter，ur ir there＂And hem ie ironderfally good joke in the affair．＂A ronderfaly good goke in the arfair．hand hew lit， your good lad？＂he asked．＂And the pretty lit your goor quite well，eh？＂ the sistor－1

＂tolernhly so＂Mellen ＂Tolerably so，＂Mellen answered；＂ of beaduche and that sort of thing．＂ of beaduche and that sort of thing＂he lihrary，and He conducted his guest into the He conducted his guest into the lihrary，and meeting＇Dolph in tlis hall，directed him to inform meeting＇Dolph in thas hall， his mikitress ore ane effrort to be civil as possible at Mellon made an so short a notice ；sad though the men was tire－ so omo in the extreme，perhops it was better to ondure his moeiety than to mert his wiin
the restraint of a etranger＇s presences．
the restraint of a etranger＇s pressonce．
Indeed，without some of those gocial restraints Indeed，without some of those social rBetraints to which all men are more or less siayes，it ta to which all men are more or less siaves，it is doubtful if Mellen conld have appearad so per－ doubtful it Mellen cond have appers． foetly calm．As it was，the fire that consumed him footly calm．Asit wash carried hit message up－ reged unseen stairs，where waph received with a grosen from when Elaiel，end blank dismay on the part of Llizzboth． ＂I can＇t go downu＂，ghe said；＂Elsie，you must take my place at the table．say that I qum quite take my plece at the table． unwell，fainting，nithing，＂
＂Indeed Fl do nothing ＂Indoed Pul do nothing of the eort，＂returned Blekie；＂if you don＇t go down I shail stay with you．I am norrous as I can be，and if you are you．I Im norrous as I The girl was fall of glifishness to the very lagt－ not willing to yield her comfort in the 日ilghtest partiendir，but Elizabeth ont observed it，and said，quietly

After all，it is just as well－change your dress，
Glate＂，＂
These two women commcnced the duties of a what they put on．
But when the dinner－hour spproached the two But wnen the duncer－Low spictore Elsie looking pretty a a ever in her lark blue eills，with those bright ringlett floating about her shouldcres，and her volatile apinta alrsady riesing at the idea of an escape from that bhadawy chamierwhere they had dragged throngh the day．
Elizzbeth was calm and solf－pooseesed as ever．
To a casual observer fhe looked pale，but her heavy blaek dress might account for that，and moreover，the delicsto contrast it gave to her plexion made amends for any lack of bloom．$M$ Molen sat watchiog her whine ghe groted M ． Rhodes，a pliments．
＂Is she stone－ice ？＂he thought．＂Is there no calm ？${ }^{\circ}$ he conld have read her mind he might have pitied her even in tho midast of hie onger and foar－ ful donhts．What she esffered in putting that re－ struint upon herreir was eimoed having formed her of belief；but woman－ike，hat resolution，not all the torturse of the reck could have shaken her．
Elsie had seated Lierself on 8 low otool at her brother＇feet，and he sat abeently playing with her curls，and looking moodidy into tho tire，though he had been so silent and sullen by thmes duning the phis manner to be at all perceptible．
Sometimes Klizsbeth glanced over at the pair， and then aome aharp pain contraoted her brows， but there was no other appearanoe of emotion dhe would control even uhat instantly，and bend her head onco mone
geoutor＇a verbiage． ＇Dolph sunnounced dinnor，and the party pasese
into the dining－room，Mrr，Rhodes honoring the tent．
hostess with his arm，Mellen and his sistor fol－

＂Grant，deant，yon are not crooss with me ？＂ In the midst of Mir．Rhode＇s aproarious laugh a Toe ef his own jokes，she eanght Mellor＇s anawer ＂Never，darling，neve
With her hesd more prondly erect，a faint crim－ son beginning to burn on her cheeks，Elizabeth Mellen skept on and took her seat at the table， appearing focompletely engrosedin Mr．Rhedes＇ appearing so completely engroosce moet her hue bandrs eye．
To ali but one the dinner seemed interminsble， but jir．Rhodes was so busy with ths delicacie of himeoly thit he was had prepared，and so foll

The lighta danced befors Elizabbeth＇s 日yes，cvery was like a bitter drug on ber lips，yet there she sat in pationt endurance．
Occasionally Mellen glanoed towards her，and her composure sent snch a thrill of rags through his soul that it was with dufficnty he could help from springing up and overwhelming discovery he had made，on the eppot． discovery he had made，on the Epot．
The dinner was over at hast，bnt long as it had longed it：anything to lengtben the houra；to longed it；anytuing tiness of the night，when she muat undertake that dreaded tnak．
But sho would not think of that；she dared not ； madness lay so near the dirmal must be ewept from her mind．
They dragged through the eveuing ；Elizsheth They dragged through the evening；Euzsheth natches of desultery music at the piano；every time her fresh young voices rang ont in joyous time her freah young voics rang ont in joyous song Elizabeth started as if sn nnsenn dagger had stabbed her very heart． ＂You will all come and pass a day with us be－ Tore long，I hope，＂Mr．Rhodes sbid，when the time came depprame．
diture
Eilizabeth only answered with a wan smile．She could hardly stand．Mellen accompanicd his visitor through the hall，and the instant they disuppoared Lizabets startod for the do
＂Where are yon goin ？＂aeled Elifie．
＂Where aro yon going？＂aalled Elaia
＂To my roo
＂Nu go－＂no，not yet ；atay awhile，for heaven＇s sake ＂No，no，not yet；atay awhile，for heaven＇s sake set me reat alone one moment．She staggered through the dining－room and was gone ；when Mellen entersd the library again Elsio sat alone by the fire，teesing the eld cat，and looking as protty and childliko as ever．

ciapter mxav．

The clock in Elizabeth＇s dresing－room had struck elevon，but there she set desolately look ing into the fire，just ns ahe had chair on first entering the chambe She had heard hor husband and Elsie nscen the stairs a full hour before，bnt gir，yeten went straight on towards his own apartments ；he had not entered hers since the day the bracclet wa found；gle knew well that lic wonld not intrude upon her then．
For two long hours she had been alone with her dismal thoughta，no हound broke the stillness， save the monotonous ticking of the clock or an There was too much anxiety and ngony in her mind for any of the nervous terrors which had mind for any of hurg the day．Then，as she hannted her during hanuted her thought what the coming of the night would hring her todo，the heart in ber bosom shuddered． Now it stond still and seemed hardoning into iron． If oome apirit had appeared with in articulate Tarning she could not have heen more eonvin her that exposure and ruin were approsehing that exposure and ruin wers approseching her with rapid strides．She would do her bost，hut with rapid strides．she woum sonl would lead to destruction．She looked baek on the past weoks， and tried to remember it hor plans had raited through her own weakness．Bcfore Mollen＇s cturn it had seemed possible to carry them out， oo bury the past utterly and buila a new palace we not her fuut，she had borme up as bravely es any voman could have done under the circumstancee， had been as circumspoct and guarded as it was possible to be，bat from the moment of his inop－ portane arrival Bome untoward event had ocour red to thwa carry out．
＂It is
If
＂it it fate，＂she mnttered，in a cold whisper it is fate
have yet a right to pray
But even the consolation of prayer was denied her；the words seemed to freeze upon her lips she couid only moan in that bro＂
＂My God，help me，help mel＂
As sho ant thare，the door opened and Elsio Boftly entered the apastment．sho had takeo oin her evening－dress，and put on a loose white wrap her evening－dreess，ana put an a which made the pallor that had come over herficoe still more eppareat．
There was no light in the chamber except that given by the fire． Elizaheth had extinguifhed the lampa ；the gloom and the shadowe befitted ber mournfind gloom and thoughta．
＂Been Beesie，Bessie？？culled Elisie，unable at first to Hisere＂
there

＂I Was ao afraid to be alone with Grant，＂con－ tinned Elkio moment．＂
＂What
di he asy to you；what did my hus－ Oh，nothing in partieniar；he seid very little； did not even ask where you were．I tola him
yon had gnne to bed with a headache，bat he did not seem to hear．He sat andlooked in the fire，asi． he were reading something in the red hot coall； Atter a long time he asked me if It and lissed my forehead．That was all． Elizabsth struck her hands hard together，choked back the greas which rose to her lips，and sat gazing strilible in the scarlet caverns into which it was breaking． ＂Im so cold，＂ahivered Thaie ；＂thera isn＇t half onongh cosl in the grate． Colat The clill had crept into Elizabeth＇s vary sool which no power conld ever warm，and close to her was that weak cres nosaing ont her petty complinints moaning ont her petty complnints1
Even then，up to the last，while the glittering hands of the elock were seen in the firslight， creeping awitty over the dial，and its solemn tick neasured off the awful minute on which Eliza beth had agreed with her own sool to go forth on that torrible errand，the wretched woman was conpediod to panse in that dim cbamber，wors han dead herseir，to comdad fakn on the heartb． ＂What time is it，Bessie？＂
She ruised herself and looked at the clock．
＂Half－pasteleven，＂answered Elizabeth，solemn ＂My hour has come．＂ ＂I thought it was later，＂groaned Elais．＂Will never be morning＂ never be morning？
Soon enough，＂whispered Elizabeth；＂вoon
＂II．＂
＂I wonder if Grant has gone to bed；I akked him if he was sleepy，snd he－

Oh，be only gave a queer sort oflangh，and asiid Sensible people always are sleepy whan it come bedtime．
Elizaboth had said truly her hour had come，but shs conld net go yet；she mngt wait until all danger porary peceo．They were both silent for a timo， then Elsio began to shiver again，like some young bird lost from its nest in a storm．

Oh ，if it would only ho morning ${ }^{1}$
Soon Enongh，Boon snough，＂repeated Dlizar Leth，as bofore．
＂Do talk to me；I Ehall dio if you don＂t1＂ ＂Whet oun I say，ohild？I cen only wait－ waith＂
＂Wait1 What do you mean？ob，I know－I
The girl broke off with a more violent shudder and buried her face in her hands． ＂What made you remind mo r＂al shall go crazy now．Bessie！Beskie＂
But thia time，whe she clang to But this time，when she clang to her，Elizabeth removed har hands，not impatiently，but with quiet firmnees． ＂You must control yourself，＂she eaid．＂I have ＂I will，I will＂she sobbed．＂＂Oh，wouldn＇t it be better to be deed？ ＂Better！Yes，a thousand times；bnt it is not ＂Be．＂． asy to die．
Elkic checked her solhs again，and caught st the bope with which bhe lad buoyed herself np all hope with which ehe had buoyod herseff np a．
day．
＂This is the last of it，＂she said；＂this night once Bafoly over and there is an end．＂＂
＂One way or the othcr，＂muttered Elizabeth．

What did you bay？
＂Nothing－nothing．＂ It was worse than useless to agitate the girl＇s
It was worse than useless to agitate the girl＇s weakness afress wiha toung the end came Elsie shut her ayes and leaned more elosely against her aister？ ＂Yes，it will be all anfe then，＂sle went on ＂The money is paid；we shall Elizabctl did not answir，she ollowet her Elizaboth did not answur，she nllowed her to hink that the who do no good to fill her with added fears．＂There is the wind againl＂cried Elsie．＂ Ob ， if it would only atop？
The somnd recalled the horror which ley in the coming hours，and the wes unnerved again．

aktod．

＂I suppose not ；there is nothing to fear，＂
＂But to do that in the dark－alonc
At that inte hour nome remorse wolse in her mind
for her unsisterly selfiehness，but Elizabeth said： ＂Yon will atay here ；you couid do no good．
＂But 1 ghall go mad whils you are gone．
＂You nuust get into bed egain．＂，
＂How long shally you be awny？
＂I can＇t tell．Stop－don＇t tulc abont it．I shal ＂o through with it ali；let me alons tin then．＂
Elaie writhed to and fro in hysterical wealmess
＂You mnst stop，＂Elizabeth said．＂Suppose he Hould hoar yon？＂
＂Grant？ Oh ＂ TI
＂Wrant On，rill be still－ru be etill＂
＂What timo is it $P$＂Elsio asked again．
＂Almost twolve ；the clock will atrike in a mo－
＂Hont
＂How much longer shall yon wait？＂asked the ＂irl in a whisper．I don＇t know；I must discovor if he is asleep．＂ ＂Grantley？
＂Yes，＂
What was that noise ？＂Elizabeth exclaimea soddenly．
eard nothing，＂Blsie answered，lifting her head and allowing it to fall again on her bistor knee．＂It eounded lize a step in the hall，＂enid Eliza－
＂It was only your fancy，＂returned Elsie．＂This Louns is as still as death，＂
Elizeboth rose from her chair and walked to the ＂Yon are not gning？＂eried Elsie． draper down． eyond．
＂No；I muly want to look．Bestill Elaie cowered domn on the rug and moftled ber－ elf more closely in har shuwl，lying quite still， with a sort of comiort in the whicl began to creep over her． hiclh began to creep over her． Elizabeth puabed back the heary curtains and Elizabeth puahed back thas haravy curtains and noked out into the night．A stream of dim silvers rudiance shet into the room and played like rip－ ling water over the fleor． Elisie half started to her foet with ＂What is tbat？What is that ？＂ ＂The moon is np，＂вaid Elizabeth，simply． Elsie laid hor head down again，Elizabsth stood aning her bands on the window－ill，looking raight before her．
Tho moonilight was peculiarly cloar，and mil－较 of stars shene forth with tha diamond rua－ anco seen only in a frosty night．Every object was risp grass of the lavn，and long black abadows ere enst downward by the trees，shaken up ike

From where Elizabeth atood shb could look ont ver the withered flowarlieds and into the thicket
Snddenly her eye caught fight of the cypreas tree，rising up gloomy and dark，its branches wav－ ing slowly to and fra，looking，to her excited fancy， ike spectral hands that beokoned her forth to her cask， stterea a faint sound and strinined her eye
Sbe nttered a dimi sfeeling of horror．Elsio was roused again by the noise，snd asked，quicldy． ＂What is the matter？
Nothing，nothing．
＂What made you groan，then？＂
＂I am looking out，＂returned Lizahacth，in a for support．
＂Comere awny，coms awayl＂cried Elsie，mnffin her face more closely in her alhawh，as if to shu out some dreadful object．＂Come back to the fire， ＂Sizabeth，do！＂

Surely，if I can go ont there，＂shs said，＂I have courage enongh to look at the old tree．，＂
Elicio only groaned anew．She est apright and ＂How doen it look，Beasie？＂she asked，in a low， scared tons．
＂The moonlight is so ghostly，＂ratarnod Ehiza－ heth；＂it loaks frightened．No wonder－no won－ ${ }_{\text {claie }}{ }^{10}$ trembled more violently，bnt it acemed as if some power atronger than he her to contimue those questions．
＂And the eypress，Bessie，how does it look ？＂
＂Stern and darkk，＂cried Elizab beth．＂It heckons to me ；the branchee look like giant arms becton－ ing me out．I mant go -1 must gol ${ }^{17}$
Her voice was little mors than a whisper，hut it counded painfully sharp and distinct．Elsie buried her fhce in both handa，once more to ebat oul the mugges it conjured up． muges it conjured up． ＂Come backl＂Abe
Come backl＂she moaned；＂Elizabeth，come
＂I must go．It is time．＂
＂Wait－wait－just a moment1 Don＇t go yat－ Ont lisave me－hanself slong the floor to whare Elied here Exlizabeth atood and canght her drass in a convul－ dive grapp． ＂Waita．
Her very wealmess a seemed to give Elizabsth a Her very wealmess вeen．
ort of insane composure．
＂Lst go my dress，＂＂he sald；＂I mnst be gans，＂ ＂I can＇t gy may here－I can＇t1 ＂Be still you mel＂
＂Be still－you muat！＂
Bie threnched her germente from Elsie＇s hands， and the girl fall helplesely on the floor
＂Let me crsep into bed first，＂shas moaned；＂I I ought to gol What an onnatural orature I am ${ }^{1}$ Mu gol＂
＂Hish！You must stay ；yon would only hin－ der me．＂
＂But it＇s so wicks of me－＂＂
＂Don＇t talk－don＇t think－it is too late，＂，whis－ pered Elizabeth．＂If you can pray，do it．＂， I can＇t－1 dar help me up，＂ Bnt there
possible to divine, Perhaps there were lettera hidden there-some condemning evidence agsinst her which she had fonnd no opportunity since his return to make awny with. Whatover it was, ht wonld iliseovor it, drag it out, and with this fresh proof of hor treschery in his hands, ruah in to proof of hor treschery in his hands, ruah in to Ho, too, sat watching the clock, counting the Ho Hol, too, sat wars sounded, hat to him the timb, appointed did not arrive quickly. It seemed us if the hands scarcely moved, in his mad impationce he thought the appointed inetant never would approach.
It was a terrible vigil that he kept; the strongeet man could not for many hours have endured that wild surpense, while tortured hy such fiendish hispars ae moaned in his ear.
Tbe time cemo at last ; the moonlight streamed pale and uncertain through the casoment; ound hroke the stillnees, even the wind had ceased its moaning. He could go forth now without fear
He could go forth, but to what?
His very inability to form the leaet idea of what His very inability to form the leset and the fover of his impatience, he could not wait longer-not a noment-not a eecond.
He opened the door and crept cautionsly through tho gallery, down stairs into the lower hall, undid
the fastenings of the outer door and paesed on to the fastening
The garden tools were some of them in a closet in the aroa ; he wont down the steps, opened the door, took out a spade and hwried towards the cypross tree.
Thero he Thero he was, standing under the moaning hranches, his head haro, digging wildiy and aim lessly ahout the roots, pecring at cvery hamp o arch with ha.s ineane gate, for which ho sought And while he dng furioully into the earth Eliza Aeth Mellen knelt by the winlow-ecat watohing him, and Elsie lay upon the floor, too utterly prostrated to alo more than cry out to Elizahoth at intrated to alo more than cry out to Lliz
"Ie ho there yet-ie he there?"
"Still there," she answored
What is he doing
"Digging, digging! He is on the wrong sid

Etxio gave a cry of relief.

"No, no," continued Elizabeth; "he stops to hrow the earth baok-he is going farther round." "Has he found the place-hae he?"
"Not yot."
Elsio could not even groan; her breath ceme in quick grepo; her hands tore madiy at the carpet, dow-sill, watohing always with her strained gaze. "Where ie he now, Beesie?
"He has not reeched it-he is near! No! ho is "igging agsin-he has not found the place." "If we eould only stop bim," cried Elaie, roused to new courage
"Too late, too late l "
"Bat he will find it-he will find it" "Then God help me, I can do no more" Elsie sprang np with auother shriek. Elsie sprang np with avother shriek. "You'll tell-you'll tell! I know yon will givo way-and Crant will murder you-murder ne all." way-and Grant will murder you-murder ne all." Etizahath caugh hack on the floor.
"Let me go, I say-let me go! I want to dieI won't hive after he finde you ont. I'll kill you, Elizabeth, if you don't let me go."
Bnt Elizaheth held her firmiy in spite of her in"Itruggles, crying ont
'It is nothing to you-you have no cause to fear. You are mad, mad! I tell you the trouble is mine; whatever comes falls on my head; he is mine; whe still, Elsie.
"Yon promiee. Swear it-swear not to bring my name in."
name in.
"I have sworn and I will keep my oath," returned Eliznheth. "Diagrace, infamy, death-I turned Elizaheth. "Diggrace, infany, death-I will bear thom all alone. What should $\mathbf{I}$ gain hy will bear thom all alone. What should I gain hy Sbe fell away from the girl as ehe spoke, hut Elsie did not attempt to rise; she lay still now, exhausted hy her recent violence, snal reaesured hy Elizabeth's words.
Again the woman lepned against the windowsill and looked ont towards the trce. Mellen was at work still, more furionsly than ever, throwing up great slovelfula of earth and daehing them "Io he there yet?' called Elsie.
"Yes, yest How he worke-dig-dig-dig!" Sho stopped suddenly, the silence raised wilder terror in Elase'a mind.

Has he found the place?
"Not yet. He is standing still now, he is throw"ng the earth hack."
paused.
"He is looling about-he is puzzied. There is only that place left lie bleckest there."
Another instant of intent watehing, then a low cry.
"He is thero-he is there""
"Stop him !" shrieked Nasie, "Shout to him "Stop him!" shrieked Xlaie, "Sho Too latot too late ${ }^{1 n}$
"Is ho digging ?"
She clutchell the wimlow-sill until her nails bent and broke in the woodwork.
"Firat on one side then
"Firat on one side, then the other," alle whispered. "Ho doesm't touch the right spot-I kmo it so well-night and day I have seen it -" it so well-night and day I
She never heeded the muad cry, clinging eloner and cloeer to the window-frame, staring ont as if very enexgy of her nature was centred in that ${ }_{\text {"He }}^{\text {Haze. }}$

throws down the apade ! ground. OhI once morel

Then another panse, and at last Elizabeth cried " He same eharp whisper :
" He isowing ths
"Hy "
"Save
"Saved! saved"" shrieked Elsie.
Elizaheth wstehed his every movement still. He stood for some moments in quiet, then walked bont the tree; she conld feel the haffell rage hat shook him.
He turned away
He turned away at last, dissppeared round the cornor of the house. Then Elizabeth har feet.
"Where are yon going p" cried Elsie.
Sho ran to the door and lockell it, then threw "Hereclf down hy the fire.
"He might come in and find us," she whippered, Eleic crept acroee the floor sgain, seeling protection at her eide. There they wsited, huehing tection at her eide. There they wsited, huehing their hreathe, listening for the echo of hia step on the staire. It came at last, muffled and cautions, hut terribly distinet to their strained senses, He half paused at the room where they werc, peeeed "He has gone in", esid Flizened and shut He has gone in," eaid Elizabeth.
"Saved! saved!" hroke agein from Elsie'e lips, hy her eide.
For a time they sat motionless, whether monente or hours neither of them ever could have nold
At
At last Elizaheth roee, movod noiselesaly aeross
he chamber, while Elsie raised ber head to look. the chamber, while Fhsie raised ber head to look
"What are you going to do?" she seked.
"What are you going to do?" she seked.
"You know," Elizebeth snswered,
"You won't-you can't1 Oh, wait-wait!"
while the work is done," the woman anewered. "Is there no other way"
"None. Thie is the last hope ; I shall try it," There was no elation in her voice at the danger she had escaped, no hope rising up now that she might go through her task in ssfety, no droad ation, the chill of utter despair, ready to atruggle hut not to hope. She wrapped a shawl ahoit her without the stightest appearance of haste, and iood still a litte longer. She was more like a marble statue endowed with the spower of motion than a breathing, living cresturc.
"Are you going ?" celled Elsie.
"Are you going " cililed Elsie,
But Elsie rushed after her and caught her in her "ros, and eried
"Stay here ; I must go with you."
stay here, I tell you. Will you lose our lae
"I can't-I daren't! I should go mad!"
"Every moment is worth a whole life," cried Elizaheth. "Let me gol"
She forced the girl to relesse her hold, and with "ne feeble wail Elisie foll senselese to the floor. Better so," muttered the woman. "When she The excitement ghe was laboring under gave her new etrength. She raised the ineensilile gari, caried her through the vacant ehamher, and laid her on the bed in her own room. For sn inetant ahe stood rogarding her, then drew the bed her inanimate form and turned awny.
her inanimate form and twrned away,
"I heve kept my faith," wae all she said.
She ill kep it to the end-the bitter, hitter end." " is ehe passed, then, without further deley, paseed down the private atairease which led to the little ontry off the library.
Once on the stairs she paneed to lieten, but ther spirit. One of the shutters was ajjar, admitting a few gleame of hight, by which she could see to unhar the door.
She wae out in the air at lest; the first step waa taken in safety. She found the spude which Mellen had flung down in his angry disappointment, and ho in turn flow towards the cyprees tree. She was ander its shadow, ho hranchee writhed and mosngathering clouds, casting a flickering out the ight ahout that waemore terrible than the deepeet gioom.
She had no need to search, only too well sho lmew weeks the dread spot had heen with her, in every dream she had heen digging, ae she was now-digging-digging with frantic haste; and, as in her reams, her strength seemed to feil, and somo unul reality, her arme foll half paralyzed anl the cruetonl eacth rceieted her efforts.
To anllfo the hranches sweyed above herhesd, beating themeelves about, moaning like evil voices The winl swept np chill and warningly, but ahe Suiled on.
Such e terrible face it wae that bent over the vork, guch a pale, terrified fuce, lighted up with work, such a pale, terrified face, lighted up with those sgonised eyes! She worked with a strength those sgonised eyes! She worked with a strength that all her toil made no progrees
The cold nights had frozen the earth. She remembered, too, how carefully it had heen packed membéred, too, how carefully it had heen packed down over the epot. For nighta efter the hollow down over the spot. For nighta efter the hollow sound of the spade had rung in her oars, and nosound of the eppade had run thing could drown its echo.
Still she toiled on, ahe wonld not give np. horrible fear was coming over her, a supernatural hair rine ouhertemples, but ahe nover relinquished her efforts.
Spadefull
Spadefull after spadefoll of earth wae thrown out, bnt still tho hottom not thought it deep-ao doep, If it ahould be empty-if there was nothing there!
That thought paralyzed her arm an if it had been struck ky a hand of iron. If the place had heen that terrihlo evidence was gone beyond her powart
The idea wae too maddening. Sbe elooolf off the nightmarelike oppreskion which had been upon her, canght up the spade again, and resumed her her, canght up the epade again, and resumed her task. Suddenly the ahovel struck some suhatance harkar than the earth, and rang out with a dull, heavy sound. For one instant ehe started back. She was alone in the night, alono with that hefore her. She dared not even peer into the cavity. It was choked npwith sha ed to warn her off.
The miehty oft forward till nowength that had carried this woman through and through; hut ehe must not pause there, her horrible task was but jnat cominenced She took np the spade again, dropped it into the impolpeble alarknees of the hole, and preesed it impolpeble ilarknese of the hole, and preesed it down, leaning her whole weight upon it. $\Delta$ sharp pain shot throngh her chest, and she stood up struggling for breath. Shadows from the disturhed cyprese houghe were falling all about her, hreakin and fom ments. Bnt age shatow, durk, solid and still, fell across a gleam of moonlight at her feet, freezing her to the heart.
her hnsband.

apter xxxvil.

Fon several ceconds the hushand and wife remsined looking st each other in utter silence louder and more weird; through the whirl of her sensee Elizaheth heard it still.
"Come forward," sbe heard her husband's voice say at length, in the hard, icy tones of concentrated paesion. "Come forward, woman, that I may see your face,"
The words seemed to come from a great distance; looking over at him, it secmell es if that ahallow trench between them was a bottomless gulf whiel no power could hridge over. The gulf hetween them for ever and ever.
"Come forward, I sey.
She staggered elowly into the moonlight; the warning wae fulfilled; ruin, diagrace hell como; yet there ehe stood spcechlese, motionless, unable For a livtie time Mellen moen.
For a bitile time Mellen stooll almost as still and sounded scarcely human, he enatched the spale, planged it into the grave, aml pressel all his porce upon it. Slowly the edge of a hox appeared. Mellen placed one foot on the handle of thit spalle to hold it firmily, bent down and dragged the hox into the moonlight. Pulling the spade up from the crumhling earth, he raied it on high, and wae about to daeh the box open. Elizabeth lifted her soiled hands in mute appeal.
She hoped nothing from hie forbearance. The action was only an instinct of her whirling senses, suoh as makee a drowning man clutch at straws, but with it her limhe gave way, and she fell upon but with it her limhs gave way, and she fell upon her knees by the hox, atill lifting her white face to bnt wit her kn
hie,
"Do
"Do yon think to stop me oven now ?" he ex-
"Iaimed. "I wonder I do not kill you; I wonder I don't dig this pit, which has concealed your infany, deeper, and hury yon there stive, "If, you only would kill me," she monned;
" only kill me." "Stand np," he oried again ; stend up, I say." Bnt ehe stretched out her hands over the hox; "I rushed across her mind.
touche insane ides of still "I will open it ; I will look with my own eyes."
"Don't open it; don't open it! Let us paes away from your sight for cver.
He caught ber arm and pulled her roughly "Yway.
She atruggled on to her kneee and wound her her off with a loathing geeture, as if a heisonou reptile had brnshed his garmente.
He raised the spade
He raised the spade again, and while a last deepairing cry died on her lips dashed it heavily down upon the cover; again and agsin; till the frail bosrd spint, reveating a gleam of white underneeth.
Elizab
Rible; no was lying on the gronnd; not insenincapable of a movemont; watching him alwaye with those insane syee.
His paeeion had exhausted itself in this sucrilegious violence, and he stocd over the shattered legious violence, and he stood over the shattered box, etruck with remorseful awe. But the wind box, etruck with remorseluil awe, But the wind mept over it, hifting some folde of transparent night and dey in her thoughts anil her dreama since the dreadfur night when that grave was dug under the cypress tree.
She sew tho faco; sew her hushand looking down upon it; saw all the shuldering horror in
down upon it; saw all the shuldering horror in
"The eyes. Still she could not move.
"This has been a murder!" he hissed threugh shall be hrought to judgment."
"No, [no," sho moaned; "notmurder; not that."
He caught hor arm again and dreggod her up.
"Tell tho truth," he criod; "I will hear it p"
she could only atare at him with that affrighted gaze.
e went on; "I will drag neighhorhood to look,"
the fince of tay if yon 10 not speak! I will give you no time; no chance of escape ; spenk, or I will rautse the whole house, and let them cee you
"Wait," she shivered; "wait !
Do yon know what this is ?" he cried. "The marder of a chinl Do you know that to-morrow may find yon a criminal in the hamla of justiceyon, my wife ! You in whose care I entrusted not only my honor hat the most iunocent anonl that sver lived. Speak then! Expect no mexoy from me; not to anve my own honor; not to keep my own aoul woull I lift one tinger to help you I Think of it I Picture it to yourself! The eager crowd gatbering abont this apot; the hootings and execrations that will follow yon forth to the prison 1 Think of the days and nighte in your lonely cell ; rememhor the not escape ; yon shall not escape ${ }^{\text {Pr }}$
"Grantley! Grantley ! "Not content with one crime, yon have addell murder ; tried to hide your guilt with a deeper sinl" "Thie child was dead," she moaned; "it was
"You will spesk then, and tell the whole truth. Do it. But have no thought that even confession can save yon; never hope for mercy from ny prove so rolentleee as I will; if there was a hope of your escape I mooth hunt you downt"

It is only to die," she mutiered; "only to

"Will you speak; will you confess? Tell me
"W you murdered it p" "There was no murder.
"But you huried it; you and thoae who slared your guilt? Who were they; Speak that man' hame; I will have it, anil from your lips. But, oh, if you have let my sister share this secret; you houre built-"
" "er innocence with a knowledg "Stop," she Even in that moment some recallections cmm hack. She had borne on to the end; her worl must not fail at the last moment.
"Elsie knowe nothing," sho ssid; "for her beke "If youre.
"If you wish to escape having your shamo dragged befors the whole world, tell me the "For her eake, for Elsie's, have mercy I I don' expect it-hat, remember, diegrace to me rellects not only on you hut her 1 Think of that-don't hlight hor whole faturo in erushing me !"
"And I left her in your hande-she hae been living in daily intercoureo with you-you have stained her lipp with your lieeee-degraded her hy stained her lipe.
your affection."
"I have not hurt her," she cried; "I tell you
she never received harm from me" Thore was only harm from me."
reserve min one thought in her mind now, to preserve Elsie from his anger-nothing could come to her now. Her present agony was too grest for dread-the shame of the world-the most loatheome prison-nothing conhl bring such most loatheome prison-nothing conhl bring such pangs as this wrenehing away of hope and happi-

She sat upright on the ground, folding her fainted, perhins Weaker women woull havo dizzy whirl hatl left her eenses she coulhl sce and think elearly.
"And you
"And you huried thie crill P" he said. "Will you own it, or shall I charge the servants as your accomplice-mill yon carry out your guilt to the luat, and let others suffer that you may eecape?" "No, nol I do not straggle. See, I do not defend myself. Let it shl fall on met But no murdor, do not charge me with murder. Oh, I am not so bad as that-I could not harm any of Golls creatares," "Is not your sin
Is not your sin woree than murder? Why, the haekest eriminal has white hauds compared to yours 1 You that I loved aml trusted-you that have draggell a prowi man's soul through the depthe of your cin."
"I have not, I havo not 1 " she broke in.
Ho pointell to the hox-what could she say-how "Oh, my God, have meroy ?" she groaned.
Oh, my God, have meroy I" she groaned.
Don't take his name on your lips-don't curee She crouched lower on the ground, her wild eyes were raised to heaven, but there wha no help - no were raised to heaven, but there was no help-no
"That name," criel Mellen; "I will hear it from your ovn lips-speak."
She was silent
"I know it-I
"I know it-I have been on your track for days. It was not enough that you deetroyed my life, trampled on my honor, hat you must choose for trampled on my honor, hat you must choose for the partner of your guilt the man who hall most the partner of your guin the man who hall most cruelly wronged me-the one fos I had on earth,"
"No, nol I never saw that man-never P"
"Pesce, women I I tell you I mtercepted yos-"arday a letter he sent you-I could not mistake terday a letter he sent William Ford's writing."

CRAND ECQRE, LA.
This is the spot to which Gen. Banks fell of Pleasont hill. It ia just ahove Natchitochea, on the /which the 1st Miesouri hattery, Lieit, Callahan comof Pleaunt nill. Itises its name from the great hlurf on Red river, and derivanding, protecting the road to Natchitoches, our mand Red iver, and which it stands. During his ocompancy of the point $\begin{aligned} & \text { Artist represents in his sketoh. } \\ & \text { wcre nashe of loce and sandbags. }\end{aligned}$ back after tbo defeat of the Union forces and the battil Gen . Bauks threw up extansive fortiacaind, apart of

The house on the hluff in the view of Grand Ecore Itsalf is the reekidence of Col. De Russy, Chief Engineer of the Trans-Missiesippi Department in the Confedsrate or service.

MINNTE CREY.

 BY J. H. WEBB.A very strange little being was Minnie, Parson Grey'a duughter. So benutiful, yet so h bitually sed. I see her now, in imagination, with hor large, lustrous block eyes, shining ringlote and delicate little form, and I sec, too, that espression of settled melencholy that always appeared upon her faco. . Minnie and I had heen frionids, companions,
, our famiachoolmates, almost from infanoy, hies were close noighhors, and as Minnio had no hrother to guard her from harm during the school terme, I was only too happy to supply a hrothor's place. And I romomher, too, as I now look back through the many years that have passed, how through the many years that have passed, how envious my male schoolmates wore at my guardianship, and how often I receivod a bruiged head for defending myself and my littlo lady from the taunts, tho anoers and the jihoo of larger hoys. Was it strange, then, that our friendship should grow with our youth, and strengthen with our strength? And was it strange that when youth ripeued into matarity the friendship of schooldays ripeued into matarity the friendship of achooldays should transform itself into a warmor passion-a more than fraternal foeling ?

well of the westoyer mansiox, near hatrison's mandio, on jamis miver, visoisia.

When I lefi the little country town, the home of my yonth, to accopt a sitantion in the metropolis, She would pationtly wait a few years for the realization of my dreams of worldly prosperity, nd then-
But enough of that. Life in the city was any bing but plessant to me at first. My busines seemed irkBome and dull; everyting war new and strange to me, and I heartily wished mysolr back in the Little village 1 strugeled hard to dispel these melancholy feolings, remembering the stake for which I was to play in tho gamo of lifs-and conquered.
Those precious little missives which I weekly recoived from Mipnie. What a comfort thoy were to me in my lonclinoss, and how they nerved me on to nso every onorgy for advancoment and ultimato succoss. And that tender, loving, yot half-lettors-how it romindod mo of the little darkoyed beauty's mature-a pen picturo of hor inner boing.
But timo passed on-one, two, throe years, and with it my notions of city ife undorwent a gradual though material change. Tho strange scenes ha hecome familiar ; the bustlo and confusion of city fife hed lost their torrors; I had formed nev requnintances and pleasant associstions, and ha bocome, indoed, a thorongh metroponitas at the another ohans samo timo. While heing habifures, my yearning for tho littio country homo of my youth graduall ceased. My mind bocame estrangod from tho scenes of yonthful enjoyments, and in tho mental comparieons which 1 life tho latter wes suro to buftor

And tho memory of Minnie Grey-that, too sufforod by the change. True, our correspondonc was continuod; the old love-story wes rotold on the occasion of my somi-yoorly visits homo. But to my eye Minnie had lost muoh of her attractive nces. She was so difierent from my city lay were all so odd and so plain ; and thon her igno ranco of fubhionsble lifo was so glering. Indeed, my attontiona to Winnie became solely meohanical I talked gaily to her because I hed always done of habit.
Anothor year wont hy, and one dny I rocelived a letter from my old home, telling nue of tho serions illness of Minnie, sndrequesting mee, if possible, to visit hor. I felt sorry that she should be ill, that sho should suffor pain, nothing moro. The image of the gay, tho brilliant, the wealthy and the beantiful Flora Montague, by whom I had becomo intatnated, interposed between myself and duty, and the next mail told Minnie the lie that my buinees could not poe singlo dey.
singlo dey.
A fer weeks more and anothor letter ceme, informing me that Minnic had recoverod from her illness, but was blind, hopelessly, irrecoversbly hlind. The disease, i forget the nature of it now, had settled in her eyss and rendered her sightless.

I was glad, Yee-hrute that I wasi-I was ahsolutely glnd that poor littlo Minnio, she for whom I wonld hnve at one timo laid down my life, was I woald have at one timo leid down my bie, was blindt Why? Bccauso it would sbeolve mo from blind Why? Becauso it woukd $I$ could now offor tho obligation to marry her, and tho oligelf at the shrine of the adorahle Flora. I wrote a long letter to Minnio, hypocritically sorrowful and full of protestations of regard, hut informing her that ${ }^{\text {a }}$ in consequenee of tho sad forming her that $"$ in consequenee of tho sad calamity whioh had bofallon hor, it wonld not, of calamity whioh had bofallon hor, it wous to longer course, ho oxpediant or proper for ws the reply which I recoived to this eruel missive- But have it hero in my deak, witten a quarter of a century ago: "Dean Aarrus-The postman delivered your ottior to mo this cvening as I sat npon the veranans quite right in what you say respecting our ongegement our yonthful dreams can novcr be gegement -our youthru dreamse cantiction upon realiged. God has seen fit to scnd and upon me for some good purpose, I min sure. Prar apon me for sowe good purpose, I sin suree. Par-hape, der Anthr, it may be fer your food; if so, I will glady bearit. Tho world to yon looks choex-
 You will remcmber me in your thoughts with a long life of happincess may he yours is the gincoro preyor of your true friend, MINNLE GaEX." The letter was written in a strange hand, but that dvery word was dictated by hinnio there could he no question. Not one word of consure for $m y$ oruelty, no uphraiding, no repining, but thet same melancholy resignation which alwuys charaeterise her, together with prayers for my happiness. To a moment my infidelity and perfidy appeared to me in their true eolors, dispelled them. The blind infatuation which poewhich would enable me to inske Flora my own. A few weeks more and I wne the happiest of mortale. Flora Montagne had promised to be my wife. I was congratulated by my young friends, even hy those whom I had considered es rivule, and who had fruitlesely hovored around the objece of my adoration. True, is few had whispered of my edoration. True, is few had whisperec werds of warning in my car, spolse of fieklenesa and the liko, but I paid no attention to the suspicions of discomited suitors.
A short time after our engagemont a certain Count somohody-I have forgotton the name-appeared in the city, and soon created a sensation in the fashiounble world. He wes so noble, so dis-tingui-and then ho was a titled noble, so the ladies said. This foreigner, whoever he was, procured ssid. This foreigncr, whoever he was, procured an introduction to Flora-my Flora-and, to the tho result in & few words, he visited hor at home, he went often, Flora bocame cold towards me, end, findly, our engagement censed. The sequel to all this I rend one morning in the Herald, among the marringe notices-the hody to Miss Flora Montague, etc
To say that this termination to all my hright freams was a very scocre how to me would hut was completely ummanned, eruabhed, end wae 日o ineapacitated for husiness that I determined to take a vacation and visit the littlo villego of my nativity, with the hope that in ite quietude $I$ might nativity, with the hope that in ite quietude I might porget tho
It was
It was a warm summer day, and as I welled from tho depot to the home of my parents in the pinegs as they pilage, I envied the hirds their hapnature scemed smilipg, as if in moekery of tho chaos which soemed to dwell in my own heart. A I drew near tho humble residence of Person Grey, I perceived tho rfed mimister standing apon veranda, with his face lruried in a handlerchief as it weeping. He recogniscd mo es I approached him, and exclaimed:
"Arthrr, I am very glad you have come-she has hoen asking for you.
"Why, Mr. Grey, whet "Why, Mr. Grey, what is the matter? Is Minnie ill?" I oxelaimed, suddenly comprohonding hi meaning.
"Dying!" to go within.

Hastily I sntersed tha honse. In her own room, had surely marlscd her for his victim. Bnt ehe wss moro benatifol than svor before. Her nsar ness to the colsstial homs had given her a pure, holy and angelio besnty, which is not of this world. Ths fanning hy an attendsnt cansed the jetty curl thad implanted so many tokeus of affection. Hsr pure soul was perhape sven then entering the portals of heaven, while I , elff-convictod of cruel y, witnessed the transition from lifs to desth Noed I suy that in that moment all the old love for Minnie returned, oven with tenfold power. Noed I tell of the agony whioh filled my heart a che thought of parting with my litto danli-eyed schoolmate, ny youthful companion, and once schoolmate, my promised inide?
"Minnie ! daar Minnie !" I exclnimed in frenzied accente, "you mnst not die. Live for me. Oh1 my God! how oruslly I have wronged yon," and

OVER ALL COMPETETORS.
OHICIXERING do sONS Grand, Square and Upright Pianofortes. THALBERG'S CHRTIEICATE:
 Warerooms, 652 Broadway, Tr. z COTD! COTD!! GOTD!!! 100,000 WATCHES, CHALNS, &c.

VOIRTIEX $500,000:

To ho nold for One Dollir ech, withont regard to value, nna not to be palifor until you know what yon
 every Repiment and Town in tho Conantry Six certificates can he ordered for 81. thirtoen for 2 ;

Fountain Pen-No Inkstand Required

Magic Cards, which, npon holding five of them in your hand, you can change color and wum without detection. Price 50 cento. Adares FOX $&$ CO., Lockport, N. X.

Brady's "Mercury" Stories. NOW READY-COMPLETE.

THE VENDETITA
A LESSON OF LIFE. by septimus R. urban.

Theominiona my Dasley. Fhics 25 OLatra.

Tho striking peculiarity of Mrr. Urban's etories is, hat he nucceasfuliy santains the mystery of denoue conjectures of evon determined novel reador, who and familiar with the umravelment of ordmary plots; and famikar with the umravelment or ordinary though thero is a cotralo depare of mystory
thero aever is tie shightest improbulility.

Mrailed, free of postage, on reendpt of price. FREDERTO A. BRADY, Publiher,
No. 22 Ann Street,

TAKE A CHANCE
Great Gift Distribution ! of Gold Watchos, Diamond Rings, and Ilegant Jowellery
WOOD, HOYT & CO, Jowellers, 197 Broad'y, N.Y. CERTIFIOATES, naning each autlclo and its value, no ot thesce envelopes wil be dolivored at our oficce, or sont by mail to any uddress, without regord to choices,
 the parchaver may yal, to

INO DBINANTEES:

 651.

Ths sightless syes opened, this thin lips moved, and in a voice sweet even in the portals of death "Doar A ould like to reed otherviso you onee more, the dark ralley of the shadow of death, and shail soon bs in that and where the blind shall see theHor voics falterod, her hand clagped mine, a he was gone,

A quarter of a century has passed, and gray hirs now cover my head, but the memory of overy year I visit the little village where we lived, and out in the chnrehyard I go to weep over the ittle green mound, and to view the plain marthle siah bearing the simple in,
the Memory of Jiinnie Grey,

246 Washington Street, Boston

U. S. 10-40 BONDS.

Theso Bonds are lesued under the Aot of Congress of Xarch 8 th, 184 , which provides that all Bonda issuod aer thia Act aball be Exempr From taxamo by or weider any stato or Mrunicipal suthority. sub notes or to these Bonds aro roccived in United Sinb Irenen IN' at any period not les than ten ror more than forty year隹 OENT. INTEREST WHLL BE PAD IN COIN, O Bonds of not over one hundred dollars annulally and on tl other Bondis smmi-annually.

Inetractions to the National Banka seting as loan gents wero not issued from the Unitod Stites Treasury until March 26, bnt in the first three woeke of $\Delta$ pril the Suberiptions avoraged more than TEN mulLIONS A weke.

NATKONAL BANFS
Wich aro depositaries of Public monor, and all RESPLCOTABLE BANES AND BANKERS tional Depositary Bankel, will furnish further information on application, and

AFPORD EVERY FACLLTTY TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Who IMakes the Best  ARTIFICIAL LEGS?

Onsondsinh, Marah 0,1864 .
E. Guenther Jr., Esq., Peru, Da Salle Con, 1 . Dear Bir-I am in want of an artigclaI log, but do not lonow what kind to get, and lave decticd to writo

 SeasideSummerResort

 Pe taken on fonorable tatms.
0.
P. D. CABrique.

Soldiers' Badges.

s

Litorary A gency, Is tabliched in 1842

Window shades,

por dwzulvas, sionzs, ko,

 N. B.- Lase curtans hlatese withor the uso of Hich only deetroy and roo the ourthiline

DURYEA'S MAIZENA

 Reobivad Two prize medals. IMTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION,

 Higheat Prize Medilior its Great

$\stackrel{\text { Rangx }}{\text { Raxit }}$

Adunages tho Motaile cre has over ail others: 2. No noed of coming to Xow Yorix to bo ittond,

I have nuch smulit condanoo in my Improwed

D. Barenvints

for aill sewng anacitines.

 lich sicis

Photograph Cards for Gentlemon-

$10 AGMNTE $10

Corns and Bunyons

J. H. WINSLOW & CO. TEL GREATEST OPORTUNTTY EEER OFFERED

100,000

WAYCHES, GRANY, KETS OF JEWLLLERY, GOLD PENS, BRACELETS, LOCEETS, RINGA,

WOPth $500,000:

 Com in tho country.
J. H. Winsiow * CO.

veteran
Soldiers !

DHOWNE & HOORE, Mannfocturing Jemulcre Solla 182. Goid, so bo. solia saiver, 811
Attention, Company !

Storeoscopic Pictures and Cartes de Visire, hitoet importatona. Alo, Now Books and

Do You Want to get Married ?
 ing how either gex can faseinate, win the nindying love,
and marry whoover they wish, hrrespective of age or personal appearance. Sent hy mall for 80 cente and
 The Confessions and Experience of an Invalid.

 author, NATMANELL MATYFAik, Esq, Dediordi $\frac{\text { King }}{000}$ Count, N. Y.
If your want to ISnown

MEDICAL COMMON SENSE.

[DISTILIED DEW

For Beantifing and Improving the Skin and Com plexion. Sold Ly Druggata genaraly.
Hoyt'e Hinwatha Hair Reetorative-

 apply the Hiswethan joss & CO ., 10 University Place.
Benoty-Munte White Xiquid Ennm-

Grent Monem-MInling Secrets.-Gent

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL,  DEGRAAF & TAYLOR

(FORMIERLY E. P. DEGRAAF),
NO. 87 BOWVPBET, NMEV YORES.
This cstallummant is six etoryys in height, and extends 222 feet throngh to No. of Girystio Stroet-maling it one of the larget Furrifure Honases in tho Unitod 8Stass,
They aro proparced to offor great inducements to the Whalesalo Trade for Time or Cand

ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND CHAMBER FURNITURE;

Mahogany and Walnut, Parlor and Chamber Furniture;
 ENAMTLITED CHAMTBER FURNITURE, in Sets, from 823 to 8100 .
Tucker's New Style Patent Spring Bed, The hest as well na the chcopent of any in uso. Betail prico, 82 each
Their facilltice for manuficturing defy competition. Ail work gaurantsed as repreeentea.

5. Ramineton se sons, Tlion, N. I.
1,000 MTore $A$ gents Whnted in $n$ Now, Wigat nind Gentocl butances, raying slo a day, cicar, 451-4
Do You Want Zuxuriant Whiskers or Thoustaches?

Gray's Patent Molded Collars

Have now been heforo the pablio for nearly a yeart
They are univeranily pronounced the ncatcet and hes. Tha upper eage prosntt a parfoct The cravat canses no puckers on the fintife of the ovis neck
The Gardo the collar has a mmoth and erenly fimlibed

"Gray's Putent MTolded Collinre" Sold by ull dealere in Micn's Furniehing Goods. Tho

GOURAUD's
Italian Medicated Soap,

HOSTETTER'S calebrated STOMACH BITTERS.
Hostrerter's brriers on rim butilifilid

taxod frame
Sold hy all Drugbists and Family Groceres.
Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,

Baker's Rheumatic Balm,

 ver with

 Cooley's Cabinet Printing Office A A Mrerchants, Donkjer, Teachers, And warranted to print $t$ in the beatmanner. Sean for Cirvular. . COLLEX, 5. W. IBTINTOZEX,

PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY,

 No. 2 New Chambers Street,

 Nll other Photographs up to hife stizo colorod ECS Particul A Eje Particular ontention given to Copying Cards or Every attontion poid to visittore wibbing to examine the

 Imployment for All!-How to Make 75,000 Watches, Chains, &c. VOOFTPEI $100,000.

 150-62
The Tarly Physical Degeneracy of American People,

 DR. ANDREW STONE,
 Send for a box or two of the Celebrated

 We WeDing CARDS,
Highly Important to Wounded Sol-

 JOSEPR E. DEVITT & Co.
Agonte Whnted to eell the Enrgent nnd
 JOHN GIBson, 32 Beekraan St., N. Y. Swords, sashes, Belts

Lieut.-Gen. U. S. Grant Package. Copyright seurrek. $\triangle$ GENTS, send ordera sind for OirJ. L. G. PTERPONAT, FTT and to Natsou St, N. Y.
"Psychomancy"-How eithor sox may Mooinato and wain the loro, contadenco, ancction nuad

Matrimony.-Why every man ehould maxty. why cvery woman
blouid marry.
All may

NEW ARMY WATCHES.

 ARRANDARE & Ca, Importare, 212 Broadray, New Unuganaly 11.
for Cireviar.
madamea byindicts Millinery & Dressmaking Establishment EVERY inportze novility ov the season. 12 Waveruer Placos, New Yobix.
The Great Mioney-Mraking Article.

Stereoscopic Viewe and Cartes do Visitc.
 $75 A MTonth:-A gents wanted to eoll

 Legal Tender, Stationery, MKusic and Jowelry Cnsket. New Series.
 $75 A MTonth! I I want to hiro Agente

The Ravagee of a Carpet:
Home-Keeping ur. House-Keeping,
What in a Home, nad How to Ke The Economy of the Beautifal Rnking up the Firet The bove are the tillen of the new scries of popera
Which Mes. Hanuer Bzeakn Stowk la writing for tho

Atlantic Monthly

 They are called "Honne and Home Repers," and areA. Exajply Exomae Each number of the ATuusyryc contains one of these ber, or 83 a yesr, postage paid. Olinbe at a liberal discoant. Addross TICKNOR & FIELDE, Boatcn, Mass.

Attention, Soldiers!

 Protect your Health1 No eensiblo man will leave thecite witbout a nupply of HOLIOWYA'S PIIS AND city witbout a nuply of HoLLises, sorce, Fevere and
 and 5140 per hox or pot.

$50 AMEERICAN $50

LEVEERS.

Trade Mark, P. S. Bartlett, Waltham, Mass, Full Jswelled, warranted, in 4 oz. Coin Silver Hunting Case, Gold Joints, Fancy Push Pin, for $$ 50$.
Altao , evory varity of good wathene at opuny low the Kx recess Companies will not fatio bills for collection on soldiers

5.

For Hardening & Invigorating the Gums,
 ventent ompcctous and beneficial article for the Teeth tho world hass ever seen.
Sold by Drumgites and Fency Goods dcalere every-

FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS!

 byarged low rates
GOOD NEWS FOR THE ARMY:

CARD PHOTOGRAPHS

Stereoscopes and Stereoscopic Views.

 48.510 Manutactarors of Pbotographile Matcorimle

A Eecret Worth Knowing.-How to TOMES, SON & MELVAIN, 6 Maiden Lane, Now York.

Dealers in "Fira Arme", "Cutery" " Sporting Articles," "Fancy Goodin," Perfumory, Soan, Brusbee ${ }_{2}$ Teernchinum Pipee, etc, etc.
Miltary and Naval equlpmenta in overy viriety.
A large aseortment of fioh presentation swonds, Conslantly on band.

Ground in Oll in eix drab elhedea for vilins, cottagen, O I R REYNOLDS, Agent, 74 Malden L
 osuitult Moun $\underset{180 \text { Centre Strect, } \mathrm{N}, \mathrm{Y} .}{\text { HeNRy }}$ Also, he will mail, prepatd, the Eelle

Nervons Diseases and Physical Debit ty, arieling from Specino cenane, in both ocxee-new Hovsmanap-" Drat the bothering Ohina oupes and emfect

COLD WATCH FREE,

$15 Per Day Easy $15
 naxation Prize PackaoEe Each of those Wonderflt, Large and Usful Packages contains Iarge guantities

 sirce, with preeents of Jewelry and gift of a siperb
Watch, sbov bilk, and sole right for a town oc connty Bent snwhere on receipt of sib. SMART AGENTB ient anywhere on receipt of eell 100 Prackgen in $A$ yEw youn

 Warrances one yars.
Sera for our Great New Circular for 1865, containing York, Orisianal.
in the World.

Tho only enamolled "Turn-over", collar made in

DYSPEPSIA TABLETS,
For Indigestion, Heartburn, Bke. Dont fall to try them. Manufactured only by
S. G. WELLING, 207 Centre Strect. For sale by anl Druggisto. Price, fo cents por box-

American, Ewrigs and Dinglish Watches

GROVIR & BAKIGRES HIOHEST PREMIUM ELASTIO STTTCH
 Salesrooms, 495 Broadway, New York

The Bowen Microscope
Magniffing 500 mpes, madied to any address for 35 cts
Foun or diturent powers for $$ 1$. Address 0500

GRTAAT CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY

Shults' Onguont-Warranted to pro-

CREAT

STUINWAY & SONS, Noe 82 and 84 Walker Streot,
N. Y. were awarded an ymus pruze zerpal at the lote . Yat Interrational Exhbrition, London. There wore Gwo hundrea nnd elxty-nine planoefrom all parts of the tro hundred and eixty-nine plan world entered for compectition
The Spccial Correeqoadent of The Spccial Correepondent of the N. Y. Times eays:
 emphatio, and etronger and moro to the point than than
of viny Europen muker.
0000

Use of Tobacco, in all its forms, Cured and Preventen Particulare free. Addrene, Conn.
419.610 JAS. DAY & SON, New Haven, Conn.

STAMMERING

And stutioring permanently cured by Baten'e Patent Prize scientific Applisncee. For ©Now Edition of Agents wanted everywber. Take your ehoice and gend us $$ 1$, nid we wil send you a New Bitle Pin

 Caviely, Artilicry, or Battery, or Emgincer, or Pon toniere Pin, entraved as alove Alvo, Headquarters for Watchoe, Jockete, Gold Pent and Tcmiln Rings, Pine , elo, ete.
S. JR. WARD & CO
3. MI. WIARD & CO.,

$$ 7$

ARMY
$$ 7$
A Aeautifur Engraved Gold-Plated Watoh, Double

 $$ 15$ European Timekeeper $15 or conrass watel
A SUPERB "EXTRA DOUBLE GOLD.PLATED" eaEraved or catine Eurnied Jewelled or Nicket shoncmentr"nd hae a NEAT MTRAIMTUAE COMPASS Eunkik in the cen feet imitiolion of

A. $$ 100$ Fiold Wratch nsed by the British Army Officers.
sent free, by mail, in Elogant Morocoo Caca, for
only $$ 15$.
 and an mitation of the colebratod timekeeper to mach
in ube namong the Britioh army omiters, and to cal.
 Rusutated News ayse: "Correet trimopleces, and for beauty and and finisl they are equal in sppearance to $$ 100$ watchen." $$ 100$ watches.
vorton & co., Importars,
38 and 40 Anin Street, N. Y.

GOID:

Going! Going!! Gone !!! $200,000 WORTH OF RICH JEWELLERY, Selling st an immenee Encridice oor method of ocll-ing will at onco plieere and pront the parchibser. Wo

 All orders attended with promptyess and dispatch.
$451-20 \quad$ Adarese L. L. $\$ T O N E$, Albony, N. Y

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE BYMALLor EXPRESS  Self-NTMeasurement for shirts.

STHDHCOKLARS

ENAMELDD WHTTE,
Having the appearance and comfort of linen, have been woxnin in Emgand for the liee two yours in Freforence to any other collar, an they tre readily cleanod in one Price 75 centa eacb; cent by pooet to any part of tho
Union on tho rececipt of 90 conta WHOLESALE AND RETALI NTED in every Town in the Unlon. S. W. TI. W&RD,

W EVERETT & CO
WII forward to any hadreee, on receint of ordor,
PHOTOGRAPHS FROM LIFE of any of the prominent OFFICRRS OF THE ARMY AND NAVY, SIATESMEN,
DIVINES,
ACTORS, TOREIGN CELEBRTHIES, eto., etor,
 send for Circular

FRANK LESLIE'S

 HTIUS MRENED\author{

  | No. 452-VoL. XVIII.] | NEW | YORK, | MAY | 28 | 1864. | [Price 10 Cents. |  |
| :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: |  The Clouds Lifting-The Day Breaking. tending them, will admit of but one interpre-| xehellion The clouds are litting, the day ie of almoet impenetrabie jangle, south of the laet two weeks in Virginia and Georgia, and Grant, which, under his skilful and energetic The dielodgement of the main rebel army a fatal dieaster. That difficult field to an inthe great and eignificant Union successed at-| direction, must speedily put an end to the under Gen Lee from that extensive district vader, of bills and hollowe, thick woode and mderbrush grown $n p$ over old exhansted and abandoned tobaceo plantations, Gen. Lee had deliberately chosen for a ornshing eurpuise to he was in oavalry and artillery to Gen. Meade, this "Wilderness," inaccessible to artillery or cavalry, was ehrewdly selected. In thus restrioting the late bettle there to infantry, the rebel army, behind its lines of battis and earthworks, and familiar with al the inequalitiee of the ground, posseesed advantages for defence and attack which it can never command again. Strategically turnad out of that strong position, the last ohance of suocees to the rebel obieftain wes lost, his army was adrift, and the fortunes of the cam paign were in the hands of Gen. Grank.

}

For weeks and months the deeply desiguing For weeks and months the deeply desiguing enemy hed ostentationsly paraded their plans, enemy hed ostentationsly paraded their planm involving a resistless advence into the loyal involving a resistless adver, Enst and West. They had Longatreet mounting an immense force for a deetruetive foray into Ohio, and while a mere dotochmen would be employed to draw the army of Gen oreads beyond the Rapidan, the main body Meoda beyond the 100,000 strong, having Lee日st around the Shenandoah valley and sweps the Potomes, wonld be thundering at the back door of Weshington. To give colo the back door or Weskington. To give colle hovered along the Beltimora and Ohio reil road , frep of freebooters for a short time road, gangs of freebooters Eactern Kentueky, while the savngo Gen. Forreet and hie 5,000 ssvage rougbridere, with fire and elaughter in his traek, lorded it over Weatern Kentuoky and Tenneseee. All these tbreatenings and demonstrations were simply intended to diver large bodies of Federal troope to the frontiere of the loyal border States, while the rebel chief were concentreting all their accessible forces into the army of Gen. Lee.
Tbese impotent devicee, however, were only amusing scarecrows to him from his ow plans and combinations. He baw that the otrength of the rebellion was in Lee's army and that its citadel was Riehmond; and so, from the day of his first arrival in Washington ae General-in-Chief, Grant's energies were directed to the overthrow of Lee and the capture of Richmond. Now what are the plans of Gen. Grant for compassing theee great objects? Comprehending the real designs of the snemy he first proceeds to strengthen immensely the Army of the Potomec-horse, foot and artil lery. Next, to cnt off Lee's reinforcements and supplies from the South, a formidable move ment, army and navy, is organised for active work at the James iver. Next, to detach Lee' army and Riehmond from the supplies Lynelburg and the neighboring country, etaong cavalry column under Sigel ie detailed up the sbenandoak valley. Leetly, to give employment to Gen. Joe Johnston in Georgia, terrible Sherman, in overwhelming strangth, with his face towards Atlanta, sweeps down upon the plains from the mountains of Chet tanooga.
Thie is, indeed, a formidable military oordon, but it may all be broken np if our Army of the Potomac can be inveigled into a snare and out to pieces, for then, yet once more, the danger The battle of the "Wilderness" has settled The battle of the "Wriderness has settled nations remsin intact and are enccessful on every sido, those of the enemy are thrown into confusion, East and West. Onr momentous and inspiriug successee which have followed the unearthing of Gon. Lee are too deeply impreeeed npon the public mind to need a recapitulatiou here. Let it suffice that his sliattered army in between two firee; that his communications and eeanty suppliee are cut off on every side ; that while Richmond muet apeedily fall unlees he fliss to the rescue, inevitable capture or starvation awaits him in aecking a refuge within that city's defences. Flying westward, from sheer exhaustion aud destitution, his disheartened and despairing army will soon be diesolved, and in pausing to fight again he covets immediate destruction.
The final catastrophe to that gigantic imposture, the "Sonthern Confederacy," approachee. Its huge enormities, its monstrons pretensions, its reckless, ,ell-eacrifing, savago and eanguinary resistance, its torrible pnisiswill eoon be among the records of past eventa The historian, in defining it, will aay that, among all the revolutionary conspiracies on record, this Sonthern rebelion stands in ita revolting audacity withont a parailel in the ricissitudes of any mation of a parn or the face times; that there never has been upon the faoe of the ewth a than this, and that in its bloody overthrow, hon this; and that ind down to its rill stend as a wnening or as pailing to the ruling clasees of every land under the $\operatorname{snn}$ till time aball be no more.

More law-suits than love-suits are hrough

Barnam's American Maseum.

Oscanyan'a Oriental Albam.

O. ogoanyav,
Fcoond Avenue, ad door from seth 8t., N. प.

TRANK LESLIE'G

Llustrated newspaper

 sey Pearl street, New York.

THPRDM:

TERMS FOR ADVERTISINC. One Dolliar a line on the outaide or last page.
Sixity Oenta a line on the 1 tha sid 18 th pageas. NOTMOTE.
Tras ofice of thin Paper is removed to No. 637 Pearl street, A fow doore from Broodway.

To Correspondenta.

The Pablisher will receive a few first-Inss Trics, which will bo reaid promptly, and if founc Tbe manueeripip thhould be legiblo, on one wide of the hap writer. Pooms of a very high order and moderat hongh will moet with attention.

Decurved. - Beseie Gray-First and Last offer-Bline Blouse-Minini Ape aginat Poor Relations.

Summary of the Week.

We aro now witneeses of a decisive battle, perhape of the culminating etruggle of the war Atter "rree yeers of conteet, with engagemente in almo.. every State, both parties seemed to have gathcred up all available resouroee, called in all minor armioes, and reeolved to make one tremen dons effort on the Rapidan. Fixoept the muttering of war in Louisinnu, all operations seem The etagt is a wide one indeed, as the operation extend from Dalton in Ceorgia to the benke of Jemee river; but the movements are all guide by one mind

nbenta.

In our laet week's eummary we followed the geld substantially the eame line as on Thurs Iay On Saturday, the 7 th , he drew beolk and istrength ened his rigbt, and began with ehot and shell. By noon it was ovident that Lee was retrenting 4 spotteylvania Court Houee, abandoning Mine rui for North Amna. Grent purvened, and a cavalry battle ensued on the Cross ronds near Todas taveru, in which Torbett and Oregg repulsed the taveru, in which Torbett nud enemy. Lee, with hie infantry, faced from time to timo to fight, anied
On Sunday, On sunany, the 8th, Hancock and Bruneide led , pursul. Warren took the Brook road, an a eevere action took place, in which the enomy were again driven bsck. We, however, Casit division, being severely wounded in the lnee. Towzras evening Grant pushed the 5th and 6th corps forward again.
On Mondny, the 9th, there was caunonading and akrirmishing, during whioh Oen, Sedg wick wae killed by a sharpsbootor. Towards duast Grant kiled by a sharpsbootor. Towards duskt Grant ugain advanced, Warren's 5 th corpe in the agsin advanced, Warren's 5th corpe in the ceutre, Hancock's 2 d on the right, and the 6th (now Wrigbtia), on the left; a eevere battio with artillery and musketry took place at the Po , whicb Hancock croeeed, but treeroeed at night.
On Tueeday, the efth, our line wae in a crescent on the north bank of the Po, with Burnside'e 9th Spottsylvania Court House, with his left on Glady run, and his right on the Ny. Between the two was a dense foreet with underbrush.
Graint sttacked the rebel centre, driving the enemy to his xillepitu, but anftering eeverely and In to take them. Here Gen. Rice was killed. In tho evening a eecond atteck wre made ond 1,000 pprisoners and seyerul guns.
1,000 prisoners and severul guns. On Wednesday, the 11th, tbero was heary cannonading, hut no engagement.
On Thurradyo thg 12th, Gen. Barlow, of Mnjor-
Gen. Haucock'e corpa, carried the rebel rinjorGen. Hancook'e corph, carried the rebel rillopitt, cepturing a whole division of the enemy, with Gen.
Edward Jolhnon, Brig.-Gen. Otorge Stuart and Robert Johnson.
On Friday, the 13th, Grant adranced, and cupiod the creeta of the hilla over the Ny, riven.
At 7 P, M, on Saturday, the 14 th, the 5th oor had a brisk engagemont with tbe enemy, bat no general battle took place, Meanwhile Gen. Sheriden turned the enemy'e depot at Beaver dam, with locomotivet, trains, 200,000 poundis of bacon, cut eight to ten miles of the Orange railroad, besides recepturing 500 Union prisoners.
On the 11th he destroyed a locomotive and and six milea of risilroad, culverts, bridges and and six milea of railiroad, culvart, briages and telegraph. He met Stuari at Yellow tavern, and after a etubborn fight routed him, Josing his life. Sheridun thon advanced on tbe Brock roed, and took the first line of the enemy'e works around Richmond. He then croeed the Chicahominy, fought an, Sigal is advancing along ths Shenandoah, road between Chariotteeville and Lynchittrg. Gen. Batler meanwhile holds Beamregard Petersburg, having cut of his communieation by the Petereburg and Richmond railroad. He bae blockaded the rebel ironclads in James river by sinking vensels in the channel at Turkey bend. On the 29 tb ult. $22,000 \mathrm{meu}$, consisting of infoutry, mounted infantry and cavalry, witb artilery, left Charlestown under Gen. Crooke, to eut tbe Virginite end Eaet Teunceeee railioad. At Princetou hey captured a rebel camp.
'Gen

oenola.

Sberman'e move on Dalton wae perfectly succesoful. McPhereon out the railroad ot Resaca; Thomue advenced on Johnston'e front, and Schoield on his flank, After three daye fight the reboie thie Johnston evscuated thoee posta and Dalton. We have taken 5,000 prisonere and 10 or 12 cannon.

Marmaduke, on May 1st, had got so near to Little Rook that he throw shells into tbe city, but he wes driven of by Oart's cavelry.
loustana.
At the latest eccounts Gen. Banke had abenaned the Red river and was folling back to rnnklin across the Tecke country, end Porter is lamming the Red Tecke country, end Porter ie be falls.

illonids.

At the latest dstce, May 2d, Gen. Birney hed gone on an expedition into the interior.
mayal.
The Navy Department hase information of the eapture, by the gunboat Oweeoo, of the Kinglish ecbooners Lily, Fanme and Latra, of Velasco, Texse, the prisonere stating that they did not know the ebarecter of their cergoee. On the Famie, however, were found eigbt cases of riflcs Famie, however, were founa for the rebel Gen. Magruder Official information had boen received by Mr. Mallory, the Secretary of the rebel navy, from Fort Fisher, that the pirate Floridn had attacked and the Eret Guil equadron in the West Indiee, to gether with another vessel. It is also reporte that the Florids recently burned the Boeton ship
Avon, bound trom China to the United States. The bound from Ca North the United Statee four wooden veosels, made an attack on the Nansemond on the 6tb inst., in the New Inlet, N, O. but Wes repulsed.
The United States gunboat Grand Gulf captured the Britisb stonmer Young Republic, of Nassau, loaded with cotton and tobacoo, from Wilmington, N. C., on the 8 th inst., in latitude 32,58 , longitude 77.26. Sbe had a erew of 40 men on board, and Was commanded by

CONGRESS.

Iv the Senate, on the 9 th of May, an adverse report wes made on the expeciency of ehanging th outhera front or the Treasury Dejartment. The bin pasecd. Mr. Howard reportod a substitute for the bill at length, but Hutte or no progress wias made. An amendruent by Mr. Doolitile, to keep the circulution of the banke within certain bounds, wae voted down. Mr. Wede, of Ohio, from tho Comauittee on the Conduet o the WWe prisoners at Baittmore and Apmapolis. On his motio 26,000 copies were ordered to be printed for the nso o the gensto. Mr. Collamer then read a dippatoh from the the genste. Mr. Collamer then read a dispatoh from tho Secretary of War, announcing a vetory by Gen. Grunt, whon the Senate majourned.
In the ETouse, on motion of Mrr. Rogers, of Now Jersey, a resointion was adopted, instructing the Committec on Naval Affira to examine into the expediency of locuting the proposed Nary Yard on tho west wide of the Hadson river, neanly opposito Yonkere. The Minsouri contceto alection case of Bruco ng ainst Loan came up, but, after diseoussion, whe postponed, without any conclusion on In the genste, on the 10th, the bim to adjuet the Claim ing of tbe dcors adjourred.

 the genate with a list of all general omimeere is commits.
cion ot or zince the boginning of the present war. Thi
 In too Hounse the Moaduations of the New York Cham-Iet of

EUROPEAN NEWS

The Opposition in both Houses of Parliament mbde their long threatened atteck on Lord Pal-merston's Adminitration on the 285 b of April, and were sigmally defeated, in the Commons by 3t, whill in the Peors they did not venture apons division. The dod grounds of attsek were subservience to the Uni-todes in the matter of the rebal nums and on the Danish question. In the former, Far! Russell very planly told the Peers that the conduct of tho Lairds Fan seandalous, for they has, merely for the wake or purauing their own profit, very nearily involved England in a war with the Unitod Ststes. Lord Grey and Lord Detby had very little onswer toniake to this, but harped upon Mrr. Sewatd's famous dispatch to Mr. Adams, who had the good sense not to deliver it.
Garibaldi had eafled for Coprero
Garibaldi had ealled for Caprora in the Duke of Eutber-land's yacht; he was accorapanicd by the Duke aud Duchess. It was generally conceded that the meeting of the Dsulfh Coavontion would have been scriously interfered wifh had his receptionecontinned. The etory Wat be wee driven out by forelgn influcnco is bat he wase driven out by forefign influence is abuurd, The Danes had abandoned Fredericla, end had rofired into the filland of Alsen. It was openly stated hat an armistice would soon be coneladed between the belligerente. In the mean time popular feeling ran rery strongly in favor of the Danel, both in Prance and Fery ytrong England.
The Shakespeare Tercentenary feetival had been celebrated in England, Germany end Russia, with great clat. At the Frankfert celebration there had been condermane ill-fceling diaplayed hetween tbe Englifh and The Emperor Maximilion had tatice leave of the Pope und wan onpected to sail for Hexieo in the course of ho ensuing woek. Ho agreee to pay France an indemnity of about $$ 26,000,000$ for their expenees-rather a oxpedition. France would evaccuate the country an одpediticn. Eran нooa ns posalible.

BOOK NOTICES.

Poems. By Wherthan Aryinohial. Bobton Tioknor and Fielas.

 snd muscol, snd cartches a sympathetic vein of
by the folicity with which it guidea its utternce.

TOWN cossip.

Somswhear-in some quaint old volume, studed full with aneient lores, have we met a pleasan legendy we resd it, pondering on its hidaen store, thie trougbt struck us, struck us equarnly, and kecp tritiong ut still mere. Thorefore will we teli the triking us still mere. Thorefono will plication after $\ddagger$ To have told the legend.
lication after ino have told the legend.
There was cace a hing, payk the sto
There was once a king, nye the story, who was ex cessively fond of having stories told him. To cater for tluis tonte all the ingenuity of the lingdom was it worls, and many of the meet marrellous storich ven surpseding these of Cobb, were poured into his ars, untilat lengtal the that ahould last for ever, pro-
and wished for mising the fortunate relator of euch an article to mising the fortunate relator of auch an article to ophare

papera To please the kang in this matter there came gilb tongued penny- L-linars from every corner of his do niniens, who ware ounning in spinning out nothing to niniens, who ware ounning in spinning out nothing au inite anito leagth bat thelr stories, no matter how many columns long they were, alwayn carno to en end, even though thoy lasted for years.
Finally, there carce s wretched peraon-no doubt an Irlimman, for wince the year ono they have been the very deuce at storytelling-who proposed to gratify the ling 's wieh.
"Do you know the forfelt"", quoth his majesty,
"Nol an plaze Jer workhip," retwrined the

Then，＂thundered the ling，＂it in thast be who ileth alnill be hurried to the eeepoest dungeon be－ geath our castie＇n most，thore to rot in ch ＂I accent the aintince，yer riverence 1 ＂ ＂I accept the atnininco，yer riverencel＂ejacolitid
the native of the gem of the sea，ns prink as poesble． ＂Begin then，＂mnitered the king，doegedyy，eettling himmeif on his thro Celtic relator began： ＂Once npon a time there was a king who had a
Ho called ogether all his wifo men，and the result of thoir de iberation war that A famine woula beset tho innin of the yoare，and that be stored af a provilion．Then the ho grain of thooe years，the people in the meantimb ubeistiog entirely on peanula，roul candy．
＂At th

 2＂M wixazion

 まuwawawiowiaw

A taurer nectugs

 まuew wividizuz

 yumazuwazuw wivi

 Wiまwizwazewitu

by Pultaitelite saies chis seazon

How the city is Ammang iteels

EPITOME OF THE WEEK．

Dometio－Therore mas moetng of tor Mericia

 ，mount ind

 tity

 Porgonal，Kra turpincotit bettor koom wo

 arnead in goo set terme

ton sice unveringlys cautiguted＂the ball men or the Accidents and ofocicg－ani Barneum of Forelgn－The mumber of polttal Journad in in Itargon

 anded

CHIT－CHAT FOR THE LADIES．

Whes we sit down togethor to talls or write

 eald to be \＆fortano；or the wecther，or the Central verso；of that tall which eldimmed from one thing to is it not sad that，instead of theee，tha firet worda upon our lips are of the war？＂Have you heard that wilie
Blatr was mortally wounded in the last battle？＂or thast Lieutenant $B . '$＇ 6 wife $\mathrm{ls} a$ widow，or that that hardeome fellow with whom ell tho girls fell in love last yoar al Sarstogs heen been eo his would not recognive him？And then we wonder when this will end，and how，and apeak of dear onon far awns，and of friende from whom wo may be called to part，and grow asd and siok at heart I did not mean to write a word of wer or of wer＇ Lorrore when I opened my portrollo，and I think whould not bat for the thoughts bat would all my mind of the sad fate of Anns Pickene，and whtoh would be written down．
Hove yon w
Have yon wept ae I have over the aad fate of that beanaiful girl？Have you forgotten in your womanly bematiful girl？Have you forgotten in your womanty eympathy that ahe was＂a Rebal $?^{\prime \prime}$ I think eo； I am eure you have．I know that any one of you would have done much to stay that Union shell had tuch a thisg been polved in this eod occurregco－human love biighted－ and hope and beanty done to denth．We were lese than women fif we did not grieve．Oh，cruel War，scourge of women if we did not grieve．Oh，cruel War，हcourge of our once happy country，God bandieh thce，and read us， | instend of thee，Peace，with her groca |

| :--- |
| Time For when $\begin{array}{l}\text { re read euch tales in old romunces，}\end{array}$ | or heard thom from the lipe of the aged，who，in their young，and ecarcoly eredited them，or，ir we belsyed

such things conld thappen，thought of themn as wo such thinge conld happon，thought of themn as whe might of the crualtes of N Noro，or the tortaron of the Toqualifition，hortora belonging to an age gonohy，which We could never nee repested in our own．
Wo know a great deal about war now；but，dear

We don＇t Ilse to mals too many favore，hut we wonder whethor the members induced by their gollanitry to ladies eipociaily short onec，to keep otep－laddera in the veetibule for thair conveniencer that，in case（oud things happon
now and then，you know） now and then，you kno of the Hanging Committee，ehe not pintod by one might hire one，sud with a iantern investignto the high pignes and anatik corner woald be appreciated．

Abseut but not Forgoteut．
Is oloth getting dear，or has a particular tax been lede upon coastails？or for what reason have the gentle upon coastails？or for what rensol have the gentle－ man discarded them for their litte brothera＇jeckete？

Wile the toiles of our basques have been growing ooger und longer，theire bave been shortening onti othing is left of thinm． Whesed slanderers dec In the fear of on invasien by the southerners，in which case the＂Stay－at－Eiome Ouand＂determined to leave athing for the nnemy to catoh them by se they wway，hut we don＇t believe a word of it．Do you？

slauder．

And talking of alonder，I wender why We ehoutd bave
he blame lata npon our ehoulders．We do not indulge in halt the scandal men circulate through the medinum of the press．Our falnee witness of our neighborn is generally whispered in corners，not printed in blaek and white；but theirs，hory it flees and how it blaek Don＇t they love to cuteh a woman in nuughty triche？ ighted to write neat little pararaph other her？And are they not elwaya acianored ont by And if the foir culpritt is the wifs or cister of some polltical enemy，or of some one on the opposito side of then after dilating and improving on the stiory，and rounding the enatonces，and putting in the full names of unhappy relistona，and doing all they can to make the minerable ntair more misersble still，theso goo sonta elt down and write a homily on ecandal－lovic Women，end cenoure ton－tsble goesip end eowing， circle calumny，uxtil to hear them one woald say， Lidten to thope wao couldint one if they were pald for it（in gold） Women elandeet－omongers－
he handed over to the men
The Last New Chambermatd． ＂Biday，＂said a lady friend of ours to an Hiberniuu
msal recently engaged，＂whozo have you been oc ＂In your bedreom，mum，＂replited middy，＂arther
＂In the lopze uv it，only a bit more huglea an＇lace ； allerar talcee pattherna from the miscue if cho＇s taets， an＇I tried the beequa above on me yeatheriay，an＇it
At like mo klin；wouldan＇t you be tellin＇me ya buyed the eillk？
The end of tha enocdote we forgot to askt，but probs－ bly the lady fainted，and Bridget reeaved a month＇s． wagee in lieu of a werning that very day．＂The girl，＂
juet now an frrepreegible individual．We hear of vorn them beth three timee aiready，and was not nsed to doing with so mall a number，Poor thing 1 she eutlorad probably s much se the lady who weat to Saratoga with only 50 dreesea lact eummer，and was obliged to ity thence in tro weeks on socount of her

Headsohe io as common to moet of our cox xs eloep， und when we think of the tifo most women lead we nnot wonder at it－from morning uatt night every possible cifort teeema to be pal forta to proaluce the unhapyy reault， The finnt perfermance is to equenze the waiat and the feet；the next to braid snd twist and hairpin the hair to the leat point of humen anduranco ；the next to hunt one＇s a eif up in a room with Avee or nive child wren （ine beating a drum，tho other ahaking a rattle，a third tooting＂throagh s trumpet，and the rent crying alkernately），and work scallopa on cambric mualin for nducee noontide atarnation，a lunch of the most in slways－piquanto thongh it may look－ettrif and bristly with ite buds and floweri，and Ince，and orowa lining and the ears gaffer，end the neck，and the poor，poo head．Air might prove of some svall，but the lacs that Very fow ever sttempt to walk，but are ahut np in on dengrecabie ornaibus anter an．untll they reacl
beir place of destinntion． If they make calls the paitiore，from whick dust and flee are ahat out by hesyy ourtains，and whon they return home every room is in bitehen and the nureery．Yet home is the only plac bitchen and the nureery．Yot home is the only place where a woman can lay saido that torturing bounst At chareh，atall places of amusemant－cave the opent at all times and eeaeons when men can romove their hath we muet keep our hondgoar on and raffer Nether hath，we muet keep our hondgoar on snd suffer．Nethe
doee night brigg relief ；what writh hairwuves and eurl papert，and hasiroll，and a niebteap，torture only com mencoe with that hour to vary many，And the fask teli a didel pets and nightcapa and carl papere and tight＇lacing and to compiete，the piano and the latont novel unimi and the wonder if，not that the fashionable woman ha ane．

Shall Have a sword
It appearr that Mcolellan＇s lindy friends are deter mined that he enanl luive $\mathbf{a}$ Eword，if ho could not have the one fought for by his partieans at the Sonitary Fsir All over the country they are maling contributions of amall eume for the pury of a zcolelinn aword．We for the ladiea are all on hia side．Even Mry．Orant they eay，voted for him，and if it hed not been for ma． ovilne politiciane the sword would have beenn hia，yo choer up，Hitle Mne，you shall have a eword，to yon thall，if we are ahopping moaey．

We live in the days of＂manifcotations，＂thet is eer－
ain．Witel－burniag being no longer prnethed，a goo many maids and matrons bave profoased themselvest be what the old Puritans would bave called＂danghters of Beekebub．＂Every fourth lady of one＇s scquaint some have the power of producing raps：others can give you odvice from your departed ancestor as to the cultivation of rulimhen，and a host read sealed lottere ＂Orociane＂end waturfalia，As for the gentlemen， ways pructical，they turn their endowmento intomoney， oharge inveatigators four dhillings a hend，and une cweh

GRANT AND MEADE IN THE WILDERNESS.

A comitespondent of one of the dailies, Mr. James C. Fitzpatrick, whoose sketches our resders will during the battle of the Wilderness, which is a hetter deecription than we can give of the illuatriations for waried by our Artiste:
Gen. Grant'e hesaquartere were located in a fieto hetwean the plank rond and a amall road leading to a little hamlet lomown as Parkor's atore. During the fight, bowover, he was principally with Ger. Mesde, whoee hesdquartera were on a piney knoll in the rear of Warren's corpe. I had eeen Grant ot Vickelurg and in Tennessee, and his sppearanco Was familisr hut ser 1 stroiled tarongh the gronp of ofticers reclining under the trees at headquartera Flooked for him nome time in vain, such was his insignificant, unprotending pepect and conduet while the hattle pas raging in all its farg. A stranger to the incignis of military rank would have little areamed that the plain, quiet man Who tat with lia hack against a tree, epparently heedleas and unmoved, was the one upon vhom the fortunee of the day, if not of the age and country, wore hinging.
It was only when come alde or orderly rode up in hot hasto with a communication from some partion of the battlofield that hive eyen upturned to eenk in those of the meeedager the purport of the meessgo. The con sultation with Gen. Meade or the direet suggention or commana-all took place with that same imper turbubility of countennice for which he has alway heen remariable. No movement of the enemy zeetmed to pazzle or cuikconcert him. Fertile in roeources, the petition for reinforcement was speedily nnawered. And while all this tranepired he atood calmly in the group, ot timee emoling lis favorite cigar-a mon vigoroas or a more frequent pafing only findicating the in ward working of the mind. If comothing trawe pired whick he doemed needed bis perround atthe ton, eway he darted on horscheck to the immedinte scene, the one or two of hie sidee and ordoriy exerting ccene, the one or two of hie sidee and ordoriy exerting their utmont to keep up with him. Arrived on the epot, he calmily conofderod the matter requiring hie ettention, with ready judgment communicoted the neceesary orders, and thon galloped oway to snother neceesary orders, and thon galloped oway to another part of the diela, or to hii geat haneath the pine tree part of the deld, or to hie eeat haneath the pine tree, there to enter on the order-hook poone record of the hattlo's progrese. It wee amusing aggin at timee to see him-the Comanander-in-Chief-whitting awny with his knifo npon the hark of a tree, pansing now and his gnifo npon the hark of a tree, panaing n now an then to throw in a word or sentence in the conver

Hon of thope grouped about, end then going to work goin with renewed vigor upon the inciaion of the pine.
The contamplation of thie hy thoae who wore with him at Vickisturg will recall an incident of a similar harsector in that memorable elege. When the colum hiads were mounted in front of Logan'e line Gen, Grant was desiroue of ruperintanding the operations. During the preliminarry work of cutting the eminrasurea he mounted the epaulmont, and while the rohel hullet truck all around him, dellherstoly whitted a reil until the gums wero placed in poeition.

BATTLE OF THE WILDERNESS,

 MAY 6-6.OUR sketch of the first of the great battles of Gen. Grant in Virginia will give a striking idea of Manassas, Getty yhurg, Pittehurg handing or Fair Oake The oye can take in the five mile line-of-hastle, which or two dayd adranced and met hostile advencee, gain to their line till the furious robol charge on the ath corps ewept sway Seymour's and shaler's hrigade the 3d division, and had well nigh wou the day.

Sedgwick, soon to fall, suyed the right, hut our loss nourned Generral Eass not far from 1 Wadoworth. On the left is the Wilderness house, one of the few the centre is Warren'A headquarters.

Manhaptan Life Ingurance Companx.-At a meeting of the hoara of directors of thie company, held recently, the following important rosolution was sdopted aifter maturo connideration: "Thero ehall he added to each policy
issued, or hereatier to each policy issued, or horeafter to he issued, the follow. ing wordas. 'Thise policy fe incoutestihle after five yeurs ing wordst Thie policy ie incoutestihle after five years from its date, for or on account of errore, omissiona and miestatemants in the application, excopt as to age, ". No other Amoriean company, wo hellevee, offers this important advantage to insurers. An pollicies in foroe tive years at once become incontestible, under the oree Eve years at ones become incontestikle, under the opestione of this rule, grestly onhaneing their value to familiee and creditora. This liberal and juat mearmure ehould secure to thii company fncresesed fover and patronoge, as it exhibita the etrong desire of the directors to throw every proper and nafe advantage around tors to throw the policies.

hay's grand opira of notre dame de paris, ar the acadzay of nusic, philadzapha, way 4.-ser phob 151

MY RINC.
by matd an chrasor.

Massrve, golden,  Worn and olden; But I love it

 For the giver. He so giadsome, Madsome for their thriliwg quiver, Madsome for their melancholy $\mathrm{H}_{\mathrm{c}}$ the giver !On his hrow whits Shone the starijght On his dew down Soft as lip dents Dropped his acco Dropped his accents ; So he phaced it on my finge Hot, hot kisses, One long drinkingHeart to henrt seeme Melting, sinking Onf long swectuess, Then the starlight Chased his shadow With its fleetness; Onward, onward, Through steep gladeland, Westward, starward, Into shadsland.

Oh, that last long swestruess! Clinging lips Rich with love's completeness-
And now ss then the dizzy mon And now as then the dizzy moon Swings and dips

Oh, houndless Heaven!
Oh, trailing stara!
Drawing dark Even ${ }_{\text {Con I }}$ In ever note you spave me,

The Mad Soulptor,
Is a link betwean us,
Is a hond hetween us,
And Ill never cease loving him, never, Not e'en on the strand of the angel land-
Of the angel land- On tho strand of thelaud callsd For Ever
The Serpent-W̌oman.

BE z . w .

CIAPTER I
Ho fa detormed, crooked, old aná áree,
Comedy of ETrorst, $A$ Ed $I V, S G, 2$
Thou hast entartaine
$\triangle$ fos, to be tho shouphera or thy lamb. Ox a eunny afternoon in Mny, about twentyin tho city of New York, whoso pectiliar appearance facoinated the gazo of almost every person he met. Ho whs aimply and neatly clad; painfully sensible of the curiosity, mingled with repulion which he provoked, and encoanterod the impudent stare with which the handsome fopa regarded him with in glare of defiance. Bnt he did not only with a glare of dofiance. Bul ae dad not on he pased; their tongues, busy with him ere they were ant of his hearing, wounded him with wanton ruthlessness,
"Did you ever see suoh a fright?"
"I couldn't believe my own eyes 1 "
"Why wasn't he emothered in his infanoy?"
 And oo on. The sniject of this exclamstory and
And unning cemmentary, supposed by those who kept it ap th he given beevond his earshot, hat the sease of hooring almoot preternaturally neate, und was
and
 exterior yore, lowever, mande inexcuaably lond,
and the moching luaght that followed them Fere forid young tohnceenist, who had the pobitences to guze ni him noither more nor loss than he woudd have lonked atit nyy othir ordinary cuetomer. Two dasking young fellowe, dreeeed din the extreme of tho morte, having just bought and lightod their cigars, woro, howver, presont, and did their heest exenay ef thecir whu. Thoy werv handly out of the hepp ero they began the follewing conrse and romoraseleas dialogue. Ite aubject themi, and beard evory word of it

"Charlie, that old fellow's m mat
and
"And she never forgot him-how conla she wilh such a vivid romembrancor in the shape of a
What would you woar, through life, suoh ug as his for ? "Why, Ned, I woolan't change my phiz for his muet have had countensncos like this fellow'h.
Why is ouch a human hlight allowed at all? If we subject the infected with peotilencee toa quaraninc, why shonid those aflicted with frightffil he permitted free range in civilised society?" "His parents noglected their duty, and he ough "His pa, o fulifliti",
" How ?"
By hanging himsolf"
Genuine sympsthy is costly, for it shares and relieves the paine of others; but, without it, nuo one can be a true gentleman. To feel and ant towardis others ne we would liave them feel and act ownris otherz ae we would have them tel and act cowards onrselves is the ensence of real politenees and the etiquette of heaven, Have youn never antiered wift the mis-shapen and hideonsman, as sulfiered with the mis-ahapen and hideonsm man, ns yon saw how continunlly he was reminded of his deffrimity by the wounding etare of adulte and chiliren?
 bclicve be does among the batharians of civiliza tion? If you have considered his cosse fuirly your mind ie prepared to make allowance for the bittorness of spinit which impelled Mr. Gregory Grimgrip to mutter, ae he crossed Broadway and hurned into Anthony street
"Why am I , who have done no mnrder, branded worre than Coin? God mede me as $I$ am, and worse than Cosin? God mede me as I am, and have me destroy it. Would I had the power, as have the will, to annililitate every man not ughier thai myselft Wo would havee e new standard of masculiue beauty, and I-ha, be, ha l-I would be cable! Not the humdsomest and grandest fop on Broadway attraets bali so much attention as I do, yot am I not vain, not even flittored. I am stared and mouth wivo apen, and then ecampers away man wants to stigmatize another he doteste, what does he do? Growing hyperbolical, he declaree his encmy to be 'Ae orgly as old Grimgrip.' That enps the cliuna. I am looked upon as a moneter, enpe the climax. I am looked upon as a moneter, and it is thousht monstrous that I should lay chaim to the commoun joys and consoinions of humanit Nhlich minhe lifo endarahle. It is regarded as docree of fute that there ia no amenity, no jnstice no redrces for me. I mmst te denised, wretched and content I mint beer contumply and the torand cootent I manst beer contumely and the torture of the mind, peacefully and pationtly, to the ond. Whero the peacefuly and pstiontigty, to the oftection and the picasures of beeuty pienanrees of beauty are concerned 1 I am amays omitted and forgotion, and ouly remembered as the ughest of, men. Shall I snbmit to theee privan tious, and, ike a worm, crawl that I may be tram pled on? Not I . I will revel in all that the beat, phed oraccst and the handsomest enjoy. I hase tealtb -plonty of it. I once bought beanty -surpassing beauty-it cosi me dear, almost my life-but it was mine awizie, and for amhile E enjoyed it, triumphantly. Tll have it agsiin, with love, too, ns sure as 1 have mioro weatun than youth, more brains than heauty, more cunning than honeety, ond more love for myeelf than for all mankind." Gregory Grimgrip'e green eyee gleamed with paesion and oxcitement. Even in ths rile neighporhod through whioh he was walking the budeost poople moved out of his way, as soon as rudest poople moved out or has wan, as eon ass they cuught sight of the inteuse expreesion of his face and heard the tone of hio wild muttoringe:

Thoso who did not know lim, observing that his Thoso who did not linow him, observing that his carriage was too firm and eqnal for a drunken carriage was too firm and equal for and ind ind mand and others who recognised him knew how dangerous be was in hie anc"y mood, and gave him "numple room and veisenough " as he presed them.
Mr. Grimgrip was collecting his own rents that day, and he proved a harder landlord than usual, day, and he proved a harder landlord than usuak), which was noedlese. Bitter, eliarp and menacing which was neederese Bitter, eliarp and menacing were his rosponses to the ozouseo of delinqnent tenants, and his harohnees made many a heart nche, for the year of 1837 wae dibastrous to the poor. He was tramplag his way upwards in as dingy house in Malbery street and nad rsachad the second Hoor when he met a handsome, whiteaired, old doctor.
Wow is your patient, doctor?" he inguired.
Worse ebe will die befere morning, I foas."
"Have you prooured a nurse for her ?"
"Yes; she will be with the invalid in a few "Rutes"
"Have
child?"
"I "I have, and shs is as henlthy as ehe is beanti-

Mr. Grimgrip bade the doctor good evening, the narrow stairs, and, atter knocking on to -pen door and receiving a dorble invitanother olear and childlike, entered a miserable garret, containing a rickety bed, two broken hairs and a fow other valucless articles of foriture. Upon the bed lny a dying woman, ghastly of original besuty, as the storm-beat, war-rent, tattcred fing its insignis of nationality. She wae beanty in ite last living stage, as her littlo daughtor, sitting by her side, was loveliness in all its or, sitting by her side, Wze
"Ma, Dimdip's tum I" exclaimed the hittle one, sbout two years of age, alipping off the bed and running up to: the old follow, who caught her up in his arms, kissed her, sat down near the bedside, with the child on his lnee, and gave her the cakee nd candy she had learned to expect from him. fter making a few abortive efforts to cheer the sick woman, Grimgrip observed:
"Let us hope all will be well; but it is ever beet to be prepered for the worst, Now, you owe me ome montbs' rent and for money advanced. I some months' rent and for money advanced. I hill and other expeases, and see no prospect of a return for tais past and prospective outhay, unless on are willing to be vill you do for me?
"Anything I can. I have nothing. What can "Anything I oan. I have nothing. W do ${ }^{\text {" replied the dying woman, faintly. }}$.
"I am alone," aaid Grimgrip, with emotion; "I as has beon your relatives' negleot of you, the condnct of mine towards me has been incomparably me, and gave me poison for food. I am ricb, and me, and gave me posson or food, Ne m love. Give would bequeth my property to one shall be my me your kittle daughter, and she shat me you
The deadly pallor of the mother's oountonance oy. She murmured her thankfulness to Henven and then to her benefactor.
"I am content to die now," she said. "It wae ouly for my child that I wished to live. Heaven reward you, sir, for your kindness to the poor orphan, and may yon live long to enjoy the blessorphan, and may yon live long ings of her affection and duty
"It is a lovely child," observed Grimgrip, stroking the little one 'oon goffectiong ; but pis soon in this bud hae blossomed her relatives will, I fear, lay claim to my treasare. I wish to bave a legal right to the child, that I mny, without etint or ap right to the child, thet I mny, without etint or ap prehension, love and cousider her wy own daugh
The mother intimated her willingness to eign upon the child, snd ns Grimgrip had his legal papers in readinees, the nurse had no sooner arrived and another witness been procured than "the uglieet man alive," ae he was called, became ver uehered finto this world of sin and anares, and hed fortificed his elaime upon her apprenticed to him till her majority.
Grimgrip gave the nurse money, and told her to procure everything her patient required. He then took his lesve of the lstter, kissed his little ward, and departed.
He reached his home in high spirits, and suris doaf and dumb housekeeper with a amil of geninl grimness. She was seriously alarmed had condescended to indul ge her with a long digital explanation, which he afterwarda elucidated by neaus of a slate and pencil, that abe became a all reasured. Grimgrip rose very early tbe next morning and visited his dying tenant before he ly all save the mother, and she lay apparently lifflese. He tbought she was dead, for death never showed more pure ghastiness than she did, awakening in the mind of the solitary gazar reeollections and feelinge that thrilled .and harrowed life eonl to its very cors.
"How like and yet how unilike her corpse to Mathis eo pure and hers so like-so like-like her crime. Shalli fever look in the tace of beanty again witbout suspicion of dendly trenchery? Never. Yei was this departed spuit tra.. anten se her infant danghter's, for which I did this gaieless creature divine the life. I intend for her innocent, or she would rather have had her heart torn from its seat or her babe elain before her eyes than have signed it awny to me. But treachery for kind but ha
without etin without etint or mercy. I will pity none-spare none ${ }^{\text {P }}$
As he uttered these last rathices syllablee he looked down upon the face of the corpse, and was horrifiod to peroeive its eyes wide open and staring at him with an expression that froze his soal. He conld not move or speak, he was petrified with horror.
The nurse entered the room with the child, the her erms towards hor, soreaming wildy, with voice of terrible agony
"My child my child! Give me my ehild"
The narse rushed forward and pleced the little one in the arms or the mothor, who foll back the noxt instant, turning to the hue of ashee, i gurgling sound roeofrom her throat, her stedfast eyes, lixed to the last on her child, glazed, a faint conrixed to the last on her chald, glazed, a faint rulsion sheok her frame, and she wae dead.
 Oat of my sight, thou serpent! That name best Betads thee.
Padise Lost Book $X$. A max named Mordaunt Elfstone, who had a remarkable "method in his madnese" was confined in a maison de santé near Paris for many years. He hed long enjoyed an ample fortune, when he met with an accident which deprived him of self-control. Having previonsly, from long study and love of the subbime art, become a profl-cient in sculptare, he continued to exercise his cient in sculptare, he continued to axercise his plastic skill after his misfortune, and being supplied with materials by his rich Engligh relanives, wronght meny beautiful worka in marble. Most wronght many beautitul works in marble. Morta of them were, howover, lost for ever to the world, or hemgh were, however, lost perversity of their mad author, who had no sooner brought them near completion than, in some wild hour, he would imngine them to be possessed with the spirit of his deadliest enemy, and, in a paroxym of fury, shatter them to atoms. Some fow fine productions of his chisel vere, in apite of him, Bnatched from destruction ere, in 日pite of him, 昭tchod from destruction with the Iconoclsat of his own crestions plunged him into the deopest melancboly and deepair. It was most difficult on suoh occasions to prevent him from committing enicido, which be resolutely attempted, whenever thus cheated ef his idol rictims, Mordeunt Eifstone, deepite his demonted ondition, was a grand sight to contemplats.
Athongh not very old, his hair and heard had turned white as anow, and the latter flowed down to his waist. His figure wes tall and graceful, and his features were inexpreeeibly noble and atriking, impressing the beholder with awe and admiration, It was only in the occasional glitter and glemming of his eyes, unnaturally brilliant, that his madness vinning tonderness in his voice that melted the hesrer's heart with leve and pity for him, and excited more melancholy wonder in the mind than cotild the moest magnificent ruin of art the world ever ARTI.
When his friend Julien St. Croir introduced a very handsome young. Englishman, named Bertram Hapswell to him, the haughty islander was tram Hapswell to him, the haughty islander wae for the first time awed by mortal presence, snd thought that the august madman would have looked more at home among the gods of the ancient Grecian Olympus than even among the images of them eonttered sbout his studio. The images of them ecattered about his studio. Thif pleasare, and eee "I heard youty I heard you were melancholy, Mr. Elfatone, said Julien St. Croix, "and brought this blooming countryman of yours, in the hope that to pleasant face would cheor you,"
"I thank you, for he doee me good," replied the aculptor. "He doee me good, and yet he makee me sad. Young man, I was ae blooming and fresh as yourself not many years ago, yet that reflection yourself not many years ago, yet that reflection does not meke me sigh, for my good looks were does not make me sigh, for my good looks wer my ourse, snd brought me to what and where you see me. No; it is not that. It ie because my art fails me. I revel in all color, but it is not given If yonr oheetnut hair, but not ita hue, nor the happy blending of white and red in your transparent complexion. But even of these prettineeses the need I could well endure, but the eye, the glorious, life-illumined, so Bertram Hapswell answered not a word, but his frank, blue eye expressed sympathy with the " Which in your art ?" demended the latter.
"I have no art," said the young Englishman, aimply, " but sculptare is my sadoration; for, ae fa jg, aesuming so vast a province,
The sculptor's eycs gleamed like burning atara upon the speak ". ", samined him again from the full bloom of Luith, evidently possessed very delicate organization, and his countenance sometimes evinced a degree of nervous sensibility it was aimost painful to observe. He was one of those beligs who can stand unmoved amidst a orashing world, and yet at another time be overwhimed by what many would consider a trifle. "You shall see my loet love," eaid Elistonc.
He drow a curtain and displayed a magnificen piece of unfinished soulpture, representing emale of ineffable beauty, upon whose exquisitely delicate face the expression of longing for some one lost and dear was portrayed with touohing tenderneas and fidelity. The sweetness of melancholy and an atmosphere of gentle sighs seemed to oncompass the figure, and the perfection of the proportions were unheeded and forgo.
"Who is this ?" asked Bertram Hapswell. "The marble is the seeming, for she lives and $I$ leve her
What is her name? tell me, for $I$ will wed no

olicers.

St, Oreix looked at the erient Englishman with surprise and wonder, and regretted that he had brought such a mental incendiary neer the mad-
"Muta is aid the senlptor, and when she lion's creation she sball be affianced to you."
"She is lovehior now ; I cannot wait," said Berself beeide the otatne and clasping its beantiful hand. "Betroth ue new!
"I dol" exclaimed the artist, carried away by henceforth, for I will have no other Bon."
Julien St. Croix thought be beheld two madmen thusiaem passed like a dream. Bertram kiesed his marble fiancée; the curtain that ebrouded it from the gaze of the profane was drawn together, and rational converastion resumed with the most and rational conversation resumed with the mos Elistone talked with unusual brilliancy, and St Croix congratuiated
"You bronght them on with excell Julien, in the shape of your friend. I was fast sinking into the depthe of despair, for my Serpent has deeertod me. I have not seen her for seven weeks, and I fesr she is gone for ever.
It was now Bertram
It was now Bertram Hapewell's turn to look puzzled and dnbious. St. Croix replied calmly:
"She hao been to Rome, I believe, but I think I sam her in the cathedral this merning. She will doubtless visit you to day."
"She cares for me no longor, the ingrate," rejoined the artist, in sudden wrath. "Look at this beantiful Virgin and Child I carved for her Since she does not think it worth a visit, thus I dash-" Hold! I am here!" shouted a voice bchind Turning round they all beheld the "Serpent" standing near thsm, tall, slender, graceful as the seemed neither of earth nor heaven. Remarkable ss was her appeerance in every respect, it was impossible to sce her for the first time and think of anything but her eyee. They ressmbled the scuinanything but her eyee. They resembled the scuiptor's, bnt thongh not more penetrating, were softer, darker, and more alluring and faccinating in their gaze. They had not the hard, gloasy brightness of the serpent's little orbs, but a lustre so warm and melting that thoy seemed intended merely to look love into the heart and dissolve it with their tender ardency. Bertram Hapawell, whose sensibilities were so acute as to emlasass him continually, felt the power of their glance and him continually, felt the power of their glance and of the stratge beauty's presence and he no longer marvelled at her inflnence over Mordaunt Elistone. Her brow was low, brood, foir and indioative of great perception; her eyebrows strongly pencilnd by Nature's gracefal hand; her nose small and by Nature's gracefal hand; her nose small and saucily chiseled; her month; though not diminusaucily chiseled; her month; though not diminutive, very beautiful; and her hair black se nigbt like neek, her slender form, lithe as a make's, and her exquisitoly rounded arms, tapering to hande of almost infantile size ; and still more, the sinuosity of her addreee, so subdolous and ingratiating, that had suggeated to the mad somiptor the iden that had auggeated to the mad scniptor the iden of calling her his Serpent.
She burst into a low musical laugh at the start of surprise her effective entrance had caused, disof surprise her effective ontrance had caused, displaying two shining rows of small poarly teeth beplaying two lusious lips, while hor oyos danced with wild electricity.
"Come, thou truant Serpent of my bosom I" exclaimed the oid artist, stretching forth his long arms to her. "Coil thyself about me, for my heart has grown cold from long want of thy young life.
She unduleted into his arms, twined herself about him witb fawning tendernese, murmurisg Theoir man kiasing him with fillal likgt, and for awhile thsy were so abeorbed with each other as to seem wholly unconscioue of other presenoe. The young men had witharawn to the furticer side of the studio, and pretended to be examining and discueeing the merits of an ancient toreo, of recalled them to him and introdveed Bertram to bie Serpent, as he called his benuteons protebie Serpent, as he called hia beateous protegée. She greeted st. Oroix, witb whom she wae glready aequainted, with winning graoe, and boved to Hapawell, to whom she was a stranger, witb the

- elegance of the most refined lady. The Engliebelegance of the most refined lady. The Englieb-man, who at first hardly knew whether tho paeman, who at first hardly knsw whether tho pae ionate feeling she excited in wim was averbion or of yagus terror that she would compel him to love her in spite of his own will and conviction.
He wralked resolntely away from her several timee, but soon found himself again by her side, ustening to her hal-murn thed magio effect of he sidelong glances.
"Am I permitted to know your real name?" he
"Are you not satiefled with the Serpent?" she "plied. "Do you think I am tike one?"
"I should oertainly prefer another name for ou,", replied Happswell, evasively:
"Bnt you think it only too a ppropriate," seid she, withdrawing herself, while a shedow
" Heavens |" muttered Bertram to himaslf, "she "Heavens" muttered Bertram to himasil, "she
"Hid not have looked nore like the creature alhe is named after if she had coiled herself np for a spring.
But
But she came back to him the next momen with a amile of quintesesntial ewestnee extending har little velvet-like hand, scid:
"I forgive you for not telling me the falsehood a asked of you, My name is Call me Marina, if you ploase."
Call me Marina, if you ploase.,
As Hapewell raised her hand to hips
a strange life thrill through him, and seid:

Why?

"Because you are able to swaken feelings in me that hed better elumber for ever."
"You are too young fer snch cold cauticm. Why should you deny yourself any great senes At these remarke Hapswell opened his oyts ratber wide, and the Serpent, thinking she had betrayed too mnoh of herseli, would "You are right, Marina I sappose I onght to run the gaun. bet I in to are het that I with the reet, but I begin to this regard an errant coward."
"You are, if you are afraid of ma. cowards in one sense or another. I have too muoh parception not to be apprehensive of you;
but if you vill do mo a favor-I dare yon to do itI will fear you ne mere."

"If it be honest, I will."

"Be yourseif the jndgo. Look me troly and | fairly in |
| :---: |
| ous |
| In |
| In |

In a moment the Serpent lifted her black orbs to comply, met the clear, frank, fearless blue ofes of the Engbishman, and dropped her glance oges of the Eng Bishman, and dropped her glance as quickly. Thas directly had ibe never tatared ot cny one, except in hate or triumpli. It was to her like outglaring the san. What the had intended to utter was, toe, ahe knew, a lie, which ahe could easily have spoken while glancing aakiance, hut which ehe found very hard to tell while oncouz.
manty gaze.
"IT
"Try gagain," said he, tauntingly.
It ho not like to look into any man's face so holliy. If I were the Serpent I sm called, I

Not I. I will do it, wound my modesty as it may."
she lifted her oyeas flashing through their teare, So his, and enid, stoonily:
"I wim tale yon at your word, Marima; at lenst, if $I$ cannot help deubting, $I$ will net as if I trusted yen implieitly:"
"Youn breali
and
"Youn break your bargain witheme at onee, hut cour comntrymen are proverbial with ns or peryour countrymen are proverbial with ns for per-- fidy ; why sbould I look for an exception in yon ?" fidy; why sbould I look for an exception in yon ?"
St, Oroix had been showing a book on gothic St, Croix hnd been showing a book on gothic and emblematic architecture to Elfstene, and ex-

 attention, wes in pregress, and the old man collod out: "What! my sen, are you flirting with my Serpent? Bewarel she will coil abeut yeur heart, entwine with your affictions, nnd make you her entwime slave for life,"
"I have juet been telling her that I fo
"And I had just convinced him how harmuless I am when your broke in, and with a word undia the good work.
"so mnch the hetter. "He is hetrothed to Muta. An act of infldolity on has part would not only hreals her heart hnt shatter her to atoms, only hreak her heart hnt shatcr her to atoms, and the next time he came hither he would find her remains swept from my stado,"
"Well," retorted lto
"Well," retortod Marina, as she turned with a mischicrous smile to Hupewell, "I consent at your father's intorceosion to ppare you, for fear of hreaking the stony heart of your fyono hreaking the atony heart of your flanote.
"Allow me, "she contimied in a tone of noock solemnity, talang one of his hands in heth of hors, which sent her olectricity quivering to his heart;
"ullow me to congratolate you on your narrow escape; for I now ingenionsly conneces thant, ille a siren, $I$ did intend to lull you into the ellumber of is only the lowest hase of my. nature; $I$ sm a roynl Bengal tigress also ; in fact, a menagerie. I royal Bengal tigress siso ofin fact, a menagerie.
am a crocolie in decocit, a fox in cmuniug, monlioy in mischicf and a panther in stealth. rengeful as an elephant, insatiable as a shark, rend fatal as a cebra de oapello.
A truee to irony," said the demented hat eunning scolptor. "You would have done all you say if I lied not forhidden it. Why dont you try your arts on this yonng eaint here? The capture of the soul of st. Croix would he a victory apon which Setan might plume himself, hut such prone simner as we are fall, like over-ripe fruit, on the slighteet provocation." tighteet prorocation

autes im.

Ob, what a nohle mind in here oterthrown $\begin{aligned} & \text { Hamlet, Act ITL, SC. } 1 .\end{aligned}$ Ture two young men took their leave of the aeulptor and Merina Nitouche, and roturncd to Paris together.
were fairly on their way, "I promised to introdey were fairly on their way, "I promised to introduce yon to a remarkahle man, and I think you will you to a remarkahle man, and admit that I have kept my word.
"Yo
"You have, Julich. Elfstone is a marvol. I neyer taw a hoing who looked so capalle of re. ceiving the e highest degree of inspiration."
"He was very quiet and rational to. day. I cannot any ne much for one or hios gueste, who pases not thy na much for one of his gueste, who pasees for a sane permon." for n sane person.
"Your humhle can nomoret tann yourrant? I a ascount for you theimpulse I upon which I acted eo wildy. Ihvee, however as little of the phlegm and atolidity of my countrymen as Elfstone ; and an inteuse nuture like hig, in ite momente of exalted enthusiasm and frenzy, in ite moments of exalted enthusiaem and frenzy, sweeps mine a way with it liko tha flood of a catarct." catarsct."
"You informed me, prior to our visit, that yon are Ine partially acquaintsd with delastone' histor, outline of thn incidente supposed to have caused his insanity. Ho was so unfortumste as to fall in love with the fiencéo of lie elder hrother Alfred,
 India, and upon the repert of Alfrod's denth, married the not inconsohhhie fair, who is suid by some to have hocen the moest heautifinu woman in Engiand The elder hrother was, however, alive, and returned snidenty to hear Mordannt's conduot mouse of his suecebesful rival, gained accese, and enconatcred our frican on the stairs, whin gazed npon his hrother like a man paralysued with horroc Aifred miston rage huricd him to the leotom of the that, and in his He secms to have made no effort to save himself, and foll upon his heed, bustanining the injury which has eo tamentally nffocted his reeson. The young wifa, hearing the poise of a tall, ran out of her room, beheld her former hetrothed lover, as shs fancied at the moment, risen from lig grave, and wooned away. Imaginiog that he lind killed his brother and perliapa frightened his sistor-in-law out of her mind, Alifed Eifstone rushed out of the onse as athruptly and madhy as he had entered it Some say be committod enicide, but I heliove hile fate lies neser heen ascortained with dertainty Mordannt attempted to trace bim, bnt whe himell Mordaunt nitempted to trace bim, bnt was himsel feund wandering among tho Alpa, ns crazy and feund wandering among the Alps, ns crazy and remorreful as Byron's Manfrod, and wwas finaliy placed in the maison de sande in which we have unst visited him. His wifo was dispatohed by some ontercsted and mercacuary relatives nfter him in heavon only knemay how or whero. Sich it the sum of my information concorning my father inaw elect.
"My kn.
"My knowledgo of his antocedents amounted next to nothing; but I have recently visitod him ulmost delly, on ucceunt of a medical predietion of almost daily, on ucceunt of a medical predietion or which I am told he was the subject in 1938 now ten years ago, secerding to which he will be perfeetion of his rational faculty within a few wceks of the present time. I need not tell you how of the present time. I need not fell you how cagerly It bope that this seientific propheoy will be cagerly I bope that this seientific propheoy will be verified, or that I would not omit witneesing se great and glorious a phenemenon for the worla""
"I never heard of this before, but I will watch the event with you, with an interest ae decp and a hope as fervent es your own. But $I$ heve thig day curiosity and intereat ereon more than Exlfitone."
"Yon mean Marina Nitonche."
"I do, Ihave read mneh in poetry andromance of the Snake. Woman, but shes in the firb specimon of the species I ever heheld."
"You do not overrate this singldalar creatura Her mobitity it marvellous, and I think it would he hard to toll what form sho has not assnmed.
nte she has been haunting old casthedrals, ancient altars, घecred plecees, and has just returred froim Rome and an interview with the Holy Pather of Rome and an interview with the Holy Father of the Church, and pzasee for a saint with some of the Church, and pesses for a saint with some of the most devont. ${ }^{\text {When }}$ in the presence of Cli stone, however, she keepe her piety in the hack ground, for any undue exthibition of it is certainto which hime well may mhrink
"Her intimacy with Elfatone is a strange one."
"Not at al. In anothor it might appear out of "Not st all. In anothor it might appear out of in the world. Slie his many frionde by whom ehe is cqually heloved. The Countes of Viandismalics an idol of her. That she has good caube I can Whicmen aud some of yonr Oxouisn echolars, with hy way of New Haven and Diepppe, when I first enaw Marina. She was phainly dressed sud thiebly velled, and would have cecaped my notice hut for relled, and would have ciscaped my notice hat for her oyee, the remarlable fascination of which 1 need not desorihe toyon. The Counterss or Viandis in the arma of her nurse, a lively girl, wio, by wey of amasing the clild, had engaged in a little game with a handsome lerge dog that happened to he on board. The dog was a goodnatured hut rough where it raised iteelf on its hind legs, and with its forepaws and opened mouth threw itself upon the hreant of the now terron-stricken girl, who leant her rudely her struggle to extricat of her little chartive, and dropped the innecent into the Englieh Chamnel. The nuraés screnms the next mioment rosched the ears of the countess who rumhed to the spot, fearing that the dog was cearing her cliild. When she beoame aware of the leaped after her infant into the sea, and have been leaped atter her infant into the sea, and have beee drowned. The count, who was no hettor ewinner than his wife, rushcd to the captain snd implored him to reverae the cagines and save his daughter. The captain promptly adopted overy measure calculated to effeot any goed, without entortaining the slightest hope that they would he of ony avail. Bhen elhe let the little one drop into the waves, onapped the striugs that supported ber akinte, and leaped into the sca. I rughed to the sido of the veveel, and sav the heantiful woman riee to the eurface with the bahe in her arms. Her long hair was streaming down ber ehoulders, her hlack eyes streaming down her shoulders, her black eyee hurning with exeitement, as sho swam with the 祭 arm she held the child and with the other made the wavee eurtain her, gliding through them as if they were her native olement. A boot wan lowercd, and, efter a delay that, enoumbered as abe was would have exhausted almost any other swimmer she was picked up and taken on heard. The countes cruught the bhbe from her arms and covered it with kisses and teare. Poor Marina ing to her heele, etreaming with salt water, her tight velvet hodice saturated and dripping, and her chemise clinging to her limbs in a manner more suggeative of their perfect symmetry than condueive to har comfort; and tho count, tnking
the infant from its mother, lade the latter show he infant from ite mother, hade the latter show some regard for ite preerver. In a moment the countegss eprang towarde Merina, pressed her, reet and lipe with a great and sudden affection, that, strange to say, eeems never to bave abatod Marina was led hlushing into the oabiu, and soon reappeared in dry attire, appurently, wad, I really done, than any of tho epcectatort. Tho coontoss allow her out of hor Eight for a minute, and io now as enthusiastio about her ns ever, maintaining streuvoualy that dhe has the loftioet soul and the strenuonaly that ohe has the loftiost soul and the temileeset beant of auy of her sex."
"Are yon of the arme opinion ?" groas womsn alive, She is a sad cequette, if not Worse. She is in league with socret and shhversive societies, and in as treache."
after which Ahe is ehristened."

"She is, then, in your opin

serpent t?"

she is a woman anpable of all good and all evil,
"She is indeed & terrific. beauty, and I trust I shall have the prudence to thun her ewreet seciety." "Yen approhend thet you might fall in love with
"I did but jest; I fear nething, for I have a aliaman that will protect me agoinst the fascina "I of the basilisk.
"I wish I was as well provided. I helieve, howver, that her fickleness and indifiterence are our best and only sectual safeguardie after all. For who oeuld resist Marjins, if to his subjugation ?"

BREASTWORKS OF THE FIFTH CORPS.
14th Wow York awating Attack
The hattles have not heen in open fisld, as ur readere know. The armies fought in dense woods, and used them for defence. Atnight trees woro folled. time permitted a donble line was made, as chown in the cone illustrated in our engraving. Here ourmen would

BATTLE OF SPOTTSYLVANIA

 COURT-HOUSE, MAY 10.On Tuesday the incessent storm of battle onlminated in the most terrilio battlo of the campaign of this our Artints have sent ne extanded views. The ourt-houpe cannot be Becn, but it lies abons the centr of the view behind the woods. Hancoci's 2 d . orpps roops colla be seen but in glimpsese except whon they plunged into the woods, or meoting too lierce an oppo ition, recoiled. Our ackeled Ehoms Hartrant' 1 st brigade 3d divieton (Wilcox't) gta corps going into nction ou the left, and

GEN. BUTLER'S FORCES LANDING AT FORT POWHATAN.
Simultaniousix with Grant's advance Gon. Buther, the men of all othersmost hated by tho rebels, add falee uhow. He eeizon Wilson's wharf linding and dobarked a briggide of Wila' A colored troops there. Ou Artiet ahows the linding of two regtrments of the same 亚

FRY'S CRAND OPERA OF NOTRE DAME DE PARIS,

LOVE'S FIRST KISS.

by jean maetiow.

Wareing apart ghe thinke none listed, And now she oarols, and now she stops
While the evening star hegins to glisten Between the lines of bloseoming hope.
Sweetest Mercy! your mothôr tanght you Apt scholar to read and to sew, she thought you, $t$ tender song 1 Arash of heughs-one throngh them hreaking 1 Morcy is startled, and fain would fly. Horcy is startied, and fain would fly; He pleads with hor-" Merey, it is hat IU"
"Mercy " he tonches hor hand unbiddon-
The air is balmy, I pray you stay-
"Mereg 1" Her downosst eyes ars hidden,
And
Till cloeer drawn, her prisoned fingers He tases to his lips with a yearuing etrong, Her mother will want her, and holing her long.
Goed mother í elhe, then honor duly But there is a hend yet deurer truly, And there is a love which paseeth hers."
"Mercy, Mercy l" Her heart attendeth,
And the hlush en her meiden hrow io And the hlush en her maiden hrow is swe And the lips of the yonth and the maiden mect.

An Amorons Aeronant.

A late French journal relates the following tory, which, it will he seen, is French all over:
While Monsisur Gadard was flling en immense halleon in the Champ de Mars he amuséd the spectators hy sending no the small flgare of a man, the perfect semhlance of M. Thiers with man, the perfect somhlance of M. Thiers withont spectacles. The little man heing flled with gas spectacles. The little man heing filled with gas rose majestieally into the air and was soon lost to view among the clouds. His adventures, which hecame known the next day, were curious. Thanks to a strong and favorahle gale, which impelled him on his course, the little helloon man arrived the same afternoen in sight of a fine country house in the afternoen in sighorheod of Bienroo.
It was near the hour of dinner of the me met of the manaion, who naturally, thought harself perfectly safo, wasocupied in the mybteries of the toilet. It was wwnm perfectly safe, was occupied in the myeteries of tho toilet. It was warm dny, and she had openod one of the sindows which looked and thought sbe was safe fromo any prying eyee. Whilo tranquilly encaged, by the angeivi-ance of corset-lncing, in reducing her wnitt to ance of corset-lncing, in redncing her waint to size and shape that' would reflect credit on her huehands tatete, hhe wes suddenly startied hy on immodiately the casement was thrown open and our little halloon man entered her chamber unaunounced. The ledy utters a cory of terror and throws a shawl over her shoulders. The littlo man, driven hy the wind, tlirows himself upon tha unbappy womsn, who, threemoming londer upon than ever, pushes him of, and he conceale himself
 or run
no
no
th
 "Iy, fy, mousieur, and save me the sight of
"dreadful tragedy ?" a dreadful tragedy
The hushand arrives, armed to the teeth, followed hy the whole household, who beek to mollity his ane wer. While two of his fronds hold
the
 forth from his concealment, when, lo 1 Monsieur Ballon Balloon, no longer held down hy the hedstead, raisen himbelf erect,
tically to the cells ont and rises majestically to the ceiling, to the immense amusement
of the spectatores while the peor jealous huphand
and of the epectators, while the peor jealous hushand slinke away Bword and all, heartily ashamed of his canseless wrath.
A Wirit Arcibishop. - "Young Yorick" contribntes to Nater ard Queries some of the witty sey.
Inge for which Archbighop Whateley war ompous in Dublin:
"What io the difference" he

| ta Lord Lieuten usual length. |
| :---: |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |

Tha Pbaniss of A Jacinaw. - The visitors to nikley Wrills have boon mnob amnoed of lite by the areaks of a tome jackdaw. Not a conveyunce travels to the village but "Jack" is eure to be there to roccive the vistorn, seting, in fact, as is he wore the master of the ceremonies for the pince. "Jeke" in a frequint Flisitor at the parinh charch, but hio vaparies in thas sacred edifice were so extroordinary as to lead to en edict

 Hix
 (and

A weddinc sona.

py ada vioomas.

On, Love, thongh life's secluded wa Allure us on with many a smile,
With many a sweet and tender wilo, We may not waste our precions dayb.

As sealighto on e rocky ehore Mlumine all the gloom around, And guide the eallor homeward hound,
When dark end engry tempests lower,
So we, from our sweet height of bliss, May bo the blessed light which saves Some toilvorn battler with the

Swest faith and trust shall be the crown That brightens both our happy brow, And faith in love end wedded vowe

Add Love when envious etdrms assail, Oar hearts made by escb other strong, Shall do brave thatthe hitter gale.
and turn to love the
Our two souls, blendod into one, Shall walk in humble trust in God, The way our blessed savione.

Yon have the means of subsietence, ${ }^{"}$ he went chamber, threw off his clothee and flung himse "Yon have the means of subsietence," he wont
;; "tbe stocks I settled npon you will be euffeient for your support." eient for your support." I am deod yon will perdon
"Only that wben me-only gay tbet, Grantley great need of one kind word.
"Xou will be careful that your name never resobes my ear," he went on, regardless of her appeal. "Hide yourself in some strange land, where no tidings of yon insy ever com home. I warn you, for your own bake."
"Give me your forgiveness in my dying hour," was all she moaned have loved yon so have "I will not. This mockery is worse than your sin!" he exclaimed. "If it was to keep your soul from eternel torture I could not speak & pardoning from ete word."
She fell forward npon the gronnd, moaning atill:
"Only for She fell forward npon the gromed, moaning or my
"Only for my deethbed-your pardon for mon desthbed $?^{"}$
The voice rang ont olesr ond sharp, ae steel atriking steel. It was Fike the sound of prieon doors ahntting ont tho last gin
"Don't be fouspd here," he said; "don't ever he heard of ngain. We are parting now for ever. ou forth in derkness-go, but we minet no more t' He turned and walked awey, she ley there and atohed him threeding his path emong the gravce, He had reached the palings, he wes pasying through. She raised hereelf, hor energy went out in one agonized cry:
"Your perdon-for my deathbed-Grantley-Youband"
He never turned, never paused-perhape he did Ho never turned, never paused-pat walking steadily and frmly on, dis apperred down the hill.
Elizabeth looked up at the cold sky ; the moon was partially hidden, the down was struggling up grey and ohliled in the east, the wind moane fantly among the greves, and rustled her garment she sat among the greves of her world, as utterly she sat anand lost as if eternity swept between her helper minutes thet lengthened out like years, with the wind moaning around her and dend leaves crack ling ander her foet. Slus cond see her oull amoke through the naked trees, with the duil smoke curling in elouas ebove lhe hranchee over it. Ob, trees swe ping their nok towards it, how wistfully hicr eyes watched all those signs of her foriated life through tha leafless grove and the drifting leaves!
Grentley Mellon torned back to the misershe grandeur of his home. The prond heert eched in his bosom. Bnt what if, frem feer or wellines, she did not return to the cold greves or wandered mained tbere among off in terror of his wrath?
The gravayard was full helf a mile from tha spot where this thought etruok hin. He tursed at once and went back, feeling how ummanly it was to leave the miserahle oreature alone, stricken with such enguish. He remembered how her uneofered head had drooped under his denunciations in the moonlight, that the cold the dead marble of a face in whioh all hope was quenched. Notwithttanding his wrongs, notwithstanding the eche at he heart, he would go beck ond take her home for hat one night-only for that one night.
nightonlked rapialy towards the graveyaud, more eager now to find Elizapeth than he had besn lo se pareta from her only a brief time beiore. Ho looked to the right and left in eearch of her, bat the a fog was ohscure from the ocean was fast oblterating the crowd of golden stars that had been sohrilliant when he went forth.
Helian walked on, growing more and more anxions, till ha oame in aight of the graveyard, then he paused under a clump of cedars ; for he sav hie unhappy wife foroing her wey, ine fence, with her face turned homewards. The gray woollsn shaw wee floating loosely around her, giving a weird ghostliness to har appearance.
Mallen turned and wont back, sheltering himseif under the erdar trees. When he enw thatshe wia safe a revulsion came upon his feelings, aseuse of the vrong she had done him returned wha hittirts foroe, and when she passed along the stskirts of the cedars, meking her woy down the hill, he of the cedars, making her woy retreated deeper into the shadows, recouing from retreated deeper contact with her.
"She will go home," he said, gloomily, "no one is more familiar with the pothe throngh tie woods. Thank hoaven she does not know that ham weak enough to eare tor her safety!
With thees thonghte in his mind he lngered
With thees thonghte in his mint of sibht. The the cedors wind was dying away ingh which he coull hear ths moaning of the ccean affer off.
Mallenleft tha shelter of the woods ant made the best of his way home, believing that hs wifo had already found a ehelter thore.
The house was dark and still as the prave when he entered it gain. Inds and crept etalthily npcaution olong the halls and crept etallaily to oonceal Elizahoth's movements thatnight from tho eervante, and, sbove all, from Elsi. He pauesd and listensd s moment in the equare passuge that led to her roome, hoping to hearsome move mant by whiob ho could be cortin hat and he coma in earely. Bing, for compaesion and the tonder pity whioh every generous man fels for e fallder pity whan whom had once lovec was turning the hitturnses of his raga into intenes pain. Hearing notbing, and with vague ncerteinty his heart, the unhappy man entered his own dark into bed, wre Bnt he conld not sleep, conld not even rest, the Bnt he conld not sleep, conld not even rest, the very effort at rope drove him wild. He got up very infort at repoes drove him dowa by the open window, looking ont into tbe darknces, All et once be started and leaned far out of the window. Wes it funcy, or bed some wailing voice pronounced bis name? Something gray and weird seemed floating name? Something gray and weird seemed footing from his sight through the gathering fog. At first from his sight through the gathering fog. At first it had the form of a human being, then it seemed os if a pair of wings unfurled and swallowed it up. Wes it his wife? Coald that winglike envelopment be her gray woollen showl, tossed by the wind? Had her voico heen engulphed in the farwind? Had her voice heen engulphed in the far-off monn of the ocean? In this dreary stato the unhappy and most wronged man sat all the reet of that gloomy night.

CHAFTER EXIVIU.

The day began; the sun was up;
Sitting in his cbamber, Grentley Mellen heard the femiliar sounds below; ha knew that life must sweep in again, that he must rise once more and go forth among his fellow-men, biding his mieery as best he might, taking his place in the world and beering the secret burden of his diehongred life. He went to the window, swept bsck the cortains which he had drawn over it, and looked at himself in the glass. If he had wished to know how his the glass. disease, he could have learned in that prolonged
It was aboolutoly the face of a dead man; even the eyee looked lifelees-there was only a heovy, bumanity in it.
It was late in the morning when Elsie awoke It was late in the morning when Elsie awoke from the heavy slumber which had sucoeeded her woon. For e few moments she lay still, beliering that the ovente of the peas night had beell only a dream. Suddenly she raised herself with a cryshe had canght eight of the shawl which Elizabeth had wrapped about her-she knew that it was all real.
She sprang out of hed, opened the door, ran hrough the empty
"Elizaheth 1 Eliznbeth !"
There was no answer-she looked ebout-th fire had died down in the grete, the room wi stie apd desolate as a grave.
She harried through into the sleeping apart ment, calling still in a voice whin self:
The hedchamher was empty too-the bed unThe hed touchod.
"Gonel" aried the wretched girl. "Gone Where is she? What hae hecome of her? Fitiza heth, Blizabeth !"
She shrieled frightfully in her anguiah-oried out in such terrible enxiety that the soun.
He weut out into the hall and approached the
He weut out into the hall and approached the firat impulse was to tlee, hat her limbs refased to arat imp.

She he

"Elgiel Elaiel"
She must mect him-there was no escape.
Again the mperatively.
"Elsie, open the door-quiek, I bny"
She got to the door, che turned the key; her she got to the door, ane there they stood, in Elizahath's deEolete room.
"Where is EEIizabeth p" she cried. "I can't find
"
her-I want Elizebeth.
Mellen felt a Hiellen felt a shiver of dread pass through his frems. He puashed the chamber-door open and looked in, pale with enxiaty. and gla amed upon him the bed was untouehed, and glamed upon him through the crimson light that filled the room like a crusted enowbank. Thore was none of that luxurious confasion whioh usunlly marks the apertment of a sleeping lady. The rich toilet servics wee in complete order. Thers was no Jewellery fleng down with half sleepy indiffercnce, no garmente inying readior window curtains were drown close. The carpet looked like mose in the deep shadows of an sutumnal forest.
"Cone, gone! Oh, my God, what has hecome of her " ${ }^{\prime}$ " he exclaimed.
"Where-what has hoppened? Ie she dsed?
Oh, I shall go mad-I sball go med now," cried
She fell into opasma, bnt still preserved her seases sumiciently not to speak again-sha dered knowledge of Elizebeth's sorrow.
Mellen carriad her to the sofo and leid her down apon it, wrapped shawls and eider down quilt over her, holding her handa, which hram to soothe frightened birde, striving in svery way to soothe her, as Elizabeth had eo often dona in the time her, as by for ever.
Sha lay
hansted.
"Where is Eliznbeth?" she moaned. "What has happened ?"
"Never teks that name on your lipe agein," he Eaid; "let Even her memory he desd between us, That woman is no longer my wife--yon will never That woman is no longer my wife-you will never eeo her again. She shall not auffer; I will deal gently with her; but to you, my deareot sister, ehe s dsad."
"You have Kilied her !" shrieked Elsis. "Elizseth II Elizabeth ${ }^{\text {P }}$
"She leaves this house of her free will, Eleisthe only condition I have made is that ehs takes har neme far out of our hivoe, Have you
"No, nol I don't know anything but whet is good of her-I don't believe anything 1 Shs is her nway-ehe shall come to me now 1 My dear Flizabeth-I love hert Yon Bhall not do this-yon Ylizabeth-I love hert Yon shall not do this-yon are mad, madt Sbe is the best woman thet ever lived! -Let me go to her-I will gol" She was writhing again in bysterical epaems, but Hellen forced her bege when she tried to rise. Be still, Elaie-tay to understand met I can't 11 you the whole atory-but we are parted, Do "But, Grantley, Grantley !" Bnt, Grantley, Grantley!"
No more, I say-not E word."
"She is innocent," moaned the girl; "she is nocent."
"I know whet you suffer-think of all that I ndur-let that give yon strength."
"I tell you sho is an fingel-she
"I had no $\mathbf{n}$ her own lipe-I tell you I which separetes us from any other testimony. Don't struggle so, Elaie-he still."
But ehe fonght with him like an insane creature she had no control or resson-it was only her anbility to speak which kept her from shriekin ont in Elizabeth's defence. Sbe could only geap for hreath, and when words did come it wss only for hresth, and wh that broken cry :

"Elizaheth! Elizabeth $1^{"}$

You must try to understand me, Elaie I You are ell I have left in the world-oh, Elsie, Elsie She has gone for ever, and I loved ber so-I loved her so. You and I must live on ae best only for you, child, that I live of all."
"Only bring her back-clear it all up-the truth "Only bring har back-clear it all up-
Her words were so indistinet that he conld not Her words were so ind sther was struggling more tiercely than ever, and it requircd all his strength to hold her.
"If yon love me, Elsie, strive to bo colm! Oh, think of my tronhle, my anguish-my sister, my istor ${ }^{\text {" }}$
"Only
"Only send for her-oall her here 4 "
"Be quiet aud $I$ will sceroh, but ehe went of "Be quiet and I will sceroh, b Eleie gave one frightful ery and sask back in his arme insenaihle again, a swoou eo deothlike thet it seemed ae if life had gone out for ever.
Juat as Elizabeth had raised her and carried her into her own room, so did Grantley Mollen oart er now, stricken by a tear so horrible that his pest agony paled under it-if ehe and allfrom the ovil infiuence of that woman.
He called no assistance ; he wetched over har in that lonely chamber, trying every remedy he couid find, hut for a long time his efforts were anavailing; she lay there, white and cold, ne if the snowy coumterpeno had been her winding heet, Jnet as ho was calling her name in a last frenzied harst of grief she opened her eyee. She was to cull for speech, bue she remor to riee.
"You must not talk, Elsie; don't atir-you will hurt yourseif!"
He seerched on the toilet tahle, found a bottle of hudanum, nad administered as large a dose as dangerous as her that euffering.

dangerous as her present eufiering. He sat down hy the hed, folding

He dat an her he curs endeaving nerm the his her, calling her by every endearing neme that his tondernces and fear could suggest, etriving to soothe her into slumber.
Elsie wonld lie quict for a few moments, then she wonld begin to struggle and cry out in that dreadful way, till it seemed to Mellen that The potion worled at length; she lay hack ou drearily ahout the chanmber once more and then closed-she hod fallen into s heary slsep. For a long hour Grantley Mollen remained on His knees by her bedside, where he had fallen. He rose at length. Victoria was knoeking et the door, and warning her Mellon went to the door and opencd it, ehecked he girl'e ery of astonishment with a gesture, and the girl said:
" Mies
"Mies Elsie is very ill-go downstairs at once, She erept awoy in frightened silence; he folowed her down into the hall, gave orders to one of the men servants to get a horse ready, went into the Bbrary and wrote a dispatch to his phyjician in the city, and came out again.
By the time the man was etarting off to the By the time the man was etarting off to the whom Viotoris had communicated her tidings, were aseembled in the hall.
In their consultation they forgot their owe of thcir master, and asked a thousand eager qnes "Go back to your places, all of you," he said "Go back to your places, all of you," he said
"Misa Elsie is ssleep, and mnat not be dieturbed "thl the dector arrives."
"Is miesus wid her?" demanded Clo.
Ha turned upon her with a frown whieh made her spring back as if she had received an electric shock, and entirely ehecked any further desite question him where his wife was concerned. He torned towards the stairs again, bat interposed with ona of his profound hown.
"souse me, sar, but de hrekfus is on de table. The ssli-restraint must be kept op; whatever suspicions might arise when the fact of Elizabe th' disappearance hecame known in tho honss, ho must not exposo himself to the curious eyes those manials. He went into the hreakfast-room, drank the coflee 'Dolph poured ont with a ehilful hsnd, pretended to cat i few moreels, then shoved his cbnir back and hurried np to Elisie's ohamber-he couid not trast himself yet in the presonce of his ser-
venta Bolow etsirs all sorte of storiee wers rife. Victoris peepsd into Elsie's with tha information that that-do bekieve that 1 I ask nothing more-I have no right even to ask am dasd, helleve that showid one day heer that I am I have now told you the truth."
"She lay dar like a heantimul "orpua!" Everyhody groaned in concut, hat she added new astonisbment to their fealinge hy saying : "And miasus ain't nowhars nhont. Stes ain' in Miss Elisio's room, snd she ain't in her own, and Clorinda hagan to nod her turla rith a sapient "What ded I tel
fin tell yor. "Bat whar cen she he?" wondored 'Dolph. "What do yor 'eppose has happened, Mise Clorinde ?" "Nurf's happened," retarned Clof, "and more'n it has."
They urged and entrested her to speak; hnt it as difficult to apoak when she literally knew nothing, so she contented herself with going shout her work with nusual snergy, whilg the $\mathbf{c}_{\text {"Kellowed her very quiet," ho said to Mellen, who }}$ attack, hat she can endure nothing more. Don't |drove over there in the carriage which had brongh let her get np-FII come hack to-morrow. Where him from the station. As he was standing on the is Mrs. Mellen? she is so good a nurse I shotild like to give her my directions." like to give ber my directions,"

"She-she is not here" "She-she is not here," Mollen answered.
"In town, I suppose? You had hetter sead for her, or give me her address and I will call and toll her how much ahe is wanted the moment I reach town. To-might I stey in the village."
"Thank yon, I won't tronhle you," replied Mellon. "You will he lue to-marrow "Oh, "You will he here to-morrow moning ? "Ob, certainly 1 Don't be at all alarnod-Mise Elsie is subjeot to these nervons attacks. Elsie is subjeot to these nervons attacks. So I ahan't call on your wife ?n "No, sir, no;" ho answ must return to my sieter," He howed the doctor downstairs and disappeared,
of strange idsas in hie hsed.
him hy the hnttonhole and hegan a long atory, to which the physioian listened with such pationo as he could find.

COMMENCEMENT OF CRANT'S

 CREAT VIRCINIA CAMPAICN.OUR eeries of war pioturee would scareely be complete without giving the initiatory movements of hems great campaign, os well as its batles in goneral Rapidan, a crossing thenoe we give the crossing of the atiefaction may not we look on thio pasange of owe well disciplined ormy, fulls equipped, fall of courere. truast in themsolves, their commander, thele cause and

MAP OF GEN. GRANT'8 SEVEN DAYS' BiLILES:

MESSRS. STEINWAY & SONS' NEW BUILDINC.
$I_{T}$ is only a year or two since we illustrated the magnificent new pianoforte manafactory erectod by ing from Fifty-becond atreet to Fifty-third etreet, and now we are called upon to record the extemetion of that great building snd the erection of anotber eplendid structure on East Fourteonth Rtrcet, near Fourth nge as a warsbouse for their pinnofortes. This building is in a commanding estaution, and is of nach ample difneasione, and ie eo beantifful architecturally, that it is an ornament to our city, whicb can now boast of horing the in The front on Fonrteenth etrost is of white marble, nd if 50 feet wide, with a depth of 85 feet, It bas four storeye ahove the hasement. The first stores in in the Corintblink etyle, with $s$ portico in the centro 17 feest wide, and projecting five feet from the fece of wide, and projecting five feet from the fecs of the huilding. The portico in constructed with futed columna ma pilastere, with full Corinthian cape, reeting on moulded and peneled pedestals. These columns upport rich Corn chan entablatures with carved mo-dilliong. The part of tbe cornice over ths portico te in tho form of a segment. From the top of tbe cornice to the under elde of the main cornice the front is in the Re asieannce style, and is divided into thres compartmenta y two rowe of rustic blocke, extending from the top oo he firnt etorey to tbe main cornice. The width of the centre compastment comperes with the width of the portico, and contains one large window in esch floor, which are rather more orammented than the eide win dowe. All the windows are obmamented with dowe. Al the windows are ornamentod with attacbed columns sapporting rich segment-formed oorniced columns supporting 'rich segment-formed oornicea.
The main top cornce is enpported by handeome col
modinion hloczo and carved truesee, with a banisome petiment over the centre part of the boilding. Over the cornico there io bandiome balustrade witb a vae the cornice the on each end.
Tha four windowe in the front etorey have in eacb ane aingle pane of plate glass, The interior finiab is of the such as doore hest kind; all the prinoipal woodwork, from the etore, are Eolld black walnut, oiled athe olfiee wainecote the buildagg is throngb a havdeome ventibule, If of totalion and trimmed with biack walnut, The floor is the large maroroom, exclusively fort the eale of the left plamos; to the rigbt is located a Emantler ono for uprigbt pianoe; and on the recond floor is located the large room containing the gright room containing tbe grand pionor is located the large bolgbt of the celling from the floor is 151 feat in the low celling from the floor is $151 /$ feet in the lower tores
${ }^{2} 2$ friste feet from eider, The whole height of the kullding : igg a plot of erround to roof. In the rear of this build Steinway, 100 feet wide by 125 feat deep, withe Mfroentage of 100 feet on Fifteenth etreet, which is reserved for tbo The of a large concert hall.
the builaing was designed and built under tho superthe flnest huilding in the Tolthen, architect, It is cortainly for the purpone for whiclatit is deeliges of its ciase and If there ie a pianoforte storo fo din any of tbe large doub filh it.
Tbe Stcinwaye' new etore was offlctally and soctall opened on Tuenday, tbe loth inst, ซben a large party of distinguisbedtlarary und eminent muaicel gonflemen aseembled at noon to inepect the building and visit the factory. Carriages drove up to the door at one o'elock

Mruine The frotory figa nobio pile and ite an ornament

TRIADS.
bx zoli bentos.
Fate.
For Godib event in patience wait, Though bald and poor our beot catate, Uatill wo cha Zephyr.
Sreet spirit of the halcyon Weet, To cheek and hoart a welcomo guoet-
Thine are the isles of balm and rest.

Dird.
Bithe voice of arrectest interludee, Oatjot of desert eolitudee, Beelaven of the fields and woolil, slences.
When wo the doepest truthe would teocb,
Which words no plummet have to reach, Thon, silence, art the lipg of speech. Truth
How vin ere Falaghood's vggariesIY there be ons tbing eare, tis thins Vict'ry attends the thing that is,

Avarice.
If Love ts chested, bartered, soldThongh piles of wealth $I$ hesp untola, To haeest drose turns all my gold, The Rose.
Becasse no fairer Hossom grows, Whereon the day his redisnoe throw Iam the flower they call the Roge.

OREADFUL ENCOUNTERS WITH bears.
The following is from "British Columbia rouved a grizzly. The bear chargod nyon the party. Two of tho mon were targe and powerfil. Yostena of using thoir cunn, however, on tho onoms, thoy bou pat to his forocity. Tzie enow botog deep the man was ooon turica in it with the monter, turious and opac ooon buricd in int with thith great rrewnce of mind se moathed abov his. ed his tougue, holding it with the determination of despir while he unsiccathed hile kulfo with hier ight

 and bloedthe Ho than thought that the ouly bopo lay in counterteting death, whieh ho did, and for

   etranger mineri who prod omo to theso lando so ree cently in tho fuinero of hopo and jos.

FUN FOR THE FAMILY.

A asmurusun in Ohicago had occasion to Buthio coin Cuicargoinn mercly ejaculited

Worms keep a seeret, but it generally takee
a goou many of them to do it Tam prper containing many fine points-a A arean man grudges a cesnary his angar, and counts outt grains of barioy to hiel horse hy tetio O whast use is it that a woman can prate ahout Bacon if the cannot took porks There is a man out West so forgetful of faces other taditeo, but this

what If gowb.

"Whastin Gola $\gamma$ " I Raked a chillas;
In itio ignoranco it aniled "Mret in Gold
"What to Gotar" I Reked of man;
"What ia Gola" H giked old so:

"What tutald Onited g tateop"
RHymes that satisfy the eye but not the ear Wito, make me aomo dumplings of dongh:

Threr are, or were recently, two fsmilies

OVER ALL COMPEMITTORS.
OIIIOIEIERING dC $B$ OINE, anduracturens or
Grand, Square and Upright Pianofortes.

THALBERGS CERTIFICATE:

Warerooms, 652 Broadway, N. צ., 246 Washington Street, Boston.
NTOVN EREADY.

THE RECORD
PARIS, LONDON
NEW YORK FASHIONS.
spranee No., 1864.
WITH THE LARGEST COLORED PLATE
Ever given in any Piblicution.
Price 25 Conta.
Tandow, Drearnakere te., ean oblal

Seaside Summer Resort

Advantage Cards, *3 a Packe For

Norvons Dobility, Socrot Inflrmitios of

U. S. 10-40 BONDS.

Abstract

Thone Bords are issued ander the Aet of Congrets of Yarch 8th, 1664 , which provides chat all Bonds tessued by or under any State or Municipal autharits Subscriptlons to thesa Bonds are rocoived in Tuittod Stato notoe or noten of Nutioual Banks. They are to ho BE DEEMED IN COIN, at the pleasuro of the Governmant tany peried not less daan ten nor more than forty years rom thoir dato, and until their redempton FIVE PER OENT. INXEREST WHLL EE PAID IN COIN, on Bonds of not over ono hundred dollare annuully and on all other Bande semi-snnunlly. Tnstructions to the Nutional Banks seting as loai gentw were not ispued from the Dinted 8tates Tressary untll March 26 , but in tho first three weekn of April the WERK.

Suhsoriptions will he recolved hy all

NATKONAK BANKS

RESPEOTABLE BANES AND BANEERS thronghont the country (footing as sgenta of the Ns . ation on uppplication, and AFFORD EVEBY FACLITIY TG RUBSCRIBERG,
DURYEA'S MAIZENA
ECEAVED TWG PRLZE anedal
(From Jurien 8 and 4) at the wTernational exhibition, At the Great Intornational Exhlbition at Hamburg, July 1863, rocolved the Highest Prize Medal for Its Great
Highest Prize Medal for its Great
Dollcacy as an Article of Food.
Can be oerved up in an inflinte variety of dellefoun dialies. Sold by all Grocers, with diroctlona Pamphiet, lottor or otherwiee to
T.M. DCRYA, Agent, 160 Fulton St, N. Y.

TAKE A CHANCE Great Giff Distribution! of Gold Watchog, Diamond Ringa, and Blogant Jowollory,

WOOD, HOYT & CO, Jemeliers, 197 Broad'y, N.X. CERTIFTOATRS naming each ortclo and the whet

 the purchniser moy craw, enchango for any other arli.
value bs the articto drawn.

MTO TBTAATVEES:

 $451-3$

Iiterary Agency, Istablighod in 1842

GOLD! GOLD!! GOHD!!! 100,000 WATCRES, CHAINS, &o.
WOPRTEI $800,000:

 Will yon have Frandsome Whiskers have Eanasome or IKoustaches?
ARE YOU BALDHEADED?

J. H. WINSLOW & CO. FURINITMERE, F'URINITURE
 100,000

Woxth $500,000:

 . H . wiss

BATTLE PINS stent dr mall

ARMY BADGES
 sond for Circular, Address DROWAE \& MOORE, Manufacturing Jewellers, 208 Droadway, N. $\mathbf{y}$.
Attention, Company!

 465 P. 4.

Do You Want to get Mrarried?

 The Confessions and Experience of an Invalid.

If Youz want to TEnOw

MEDICAL COMMON SENSE.

 E. B. P. Foccose 1130 Broadwas, N. y.
 Beauty-Hynt's White Liquid Znam-

[DISTILLED DEW]

 000 Dopot, Tis Broadway.

Fountain Pen- No Inkstand Required. Gold Pen!

DEGRAAF & TAYLOR,

INO. B7 BOVVMHEY, NNEW YORES.
This establisbmont io els otoreys in helgbt, and extendo 229 feet thirough to No, of Theg are prepared to offer great ind incergentat to to turo Howecs in the United stotion

ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND CHAMBER FURNITURE;

Mahogany and Walnut, Parlor and Chamber Farniture; ENAMESLLED CHATBEER YURNTYURE, in Sete, from 822 to s100.
Tucker's New Style Patent Sprin

5,000 AGENTS WANTED

 to inerodute outrNEW GOLD PIEN.

GEORGE A.
ULY

REMMINGTNON9S

approved hy the Government.

ב. REMIINGTON \& sONV, Ilion, NN. $\mathrm{\Sigma}$.

Do Eou W\%ant Zuxuriant Whiskers or TKOustaches?
MY ONaUENT will farco them to grow bearlily in

Grays Patent

 Molded Collars

"Gray'e Patont ITolded Collar""

GOURAUD'S
Italian Medicated Soap,

HOSTETTER'S chlithratid
STOMACH BITTERS.

 Culurated by the action of an unwboleeome atmospphor upon an overtatad frumed Sold by all Drugicier and Pamily Grocerss.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,

MATRIMONIAL FAVORS
 At Tuckin's, 759 Broadway.
Ex. WV. BIENTOEXET, PHOTOCRAPH GALLERY,
No. 2 New Chambers Btreet,

 Card Pictures 81 so por dox- 8 tor 81 .

Large size Piotograpbs, 2 for 81 all other Photograpbs up to uto aize colorwad in oill or

 Erary attention pald to visitora wishing to examinno the

PA WMUNMS (16) SERSSEWER  SERFSEWER FORAHSENN WACHINES

Proserves the Eyes, wvoids bending. No baitiog

75,000 Watches, Chains, &c. WORETHEI $400,000

 450-2 P. Q. Drawer IIB, Alsany, N. X. X .
The Farly Physical Degeneracy of American People,

DRR. ANDIREW STONE,
 Bend for a hox or two of the Celebrated Herizan Condition Pounder for Horses, Catle, etse Ex.
 ${ }^{\text {THELE }}$ Wen

Swords, Sashes, Belts,

Lieut.-Gen. U. S. Grant Package. Copyright seckred. AGENTs, Good Orlera and for Cis
 "Psychomancy" -

 Matrimony.-Why every man should madamid bentidzexs Millinery & Dressmaking Establishment Is now reploto with every tarorted novelity of the season, 12 Wavencer Plaoe, New Yónk.

The Great MToney-MITaking Articlo-
 000 E. H. Martin, Hinsdala, N. H. itoreoscopio Viewe and Cartos do Visito
 $$ 75$ A ITouth:-A Agents wanted to sol

 Zogal Fender, Stationory, MKusic and Jowolry Caskot. Now Series.
 \$75 $\Delta$ ITonth !-I want to hire Agent:

NEW ARMY WATCHES.

Photograph Cards for Centlomen--

Whast is moro to be deefred than
A pmsasaxry EiOMts? Whoerer would hrow the aecrots of making home Zouse and Fome Papera,

Atlantic Monthly

and havo attracted attontion overywhora. Thoy are fulf of interest and heneft to every househola. They fill bo intereminimed throught the year. subseribe to tho Arusrio st once, and eecure the recading of these in

$55 ANIERICAN $55

 LEVERS. Also, every varlety of good Watohos ot eqnally 1 low

For Hardening & Invigorating the Gums.

FRIENDS OF SOLDIERSI

 All artielee for soldiefy at Batimore, Washington,Fortreas Monroe, Horper's Ferry, Nowberno charged low rates.
The Exquisito Tollet Articles of the SOCHETE EYCHINTEDE OF N. E.

DYSPEPSIA TABLETS,

For Indigestion, Eeartburn, &e. Dont fall to try them. Manufactured only by 8. G. WELLING, 207 Centre Btreet. For aste hy all Drugbieta. Price, 60 centa per box-by msil, 65 centa.
TOMES, SON & MELVAIN, 6 Maidon Tane, New Fork

 Meerschasum Pipcs, Ata, ete.
Matitary and Aovai Equlpmenta in every varioty. targo anortment of BiOH PRESENTATION SWORDS, Constantiy on hand.

BRIDCEWATER PAINT

 Ground in Oil in Aix drab obades for villan, Cottages,fooff, ot.. ste
o. R. REYNOLDS, Agent, 74 Maiden Lane, N. x. The Calchzated CRATG MIGROSCOPE, combining Instruction whith Amueament objecter, $5, by HENRY CRAIG,
Bo Centre Street,

Nervous Diseasos and Physical Dobili-ty, arising from Speclic caunee, in both soxez-ne

 -

CREAT

S. STEINWAY & EONS, Noa, in & 73 Fourteenth St,

 "Myears. Steinway'A endoreoment by tho Jorore is emphatic, snd stronger and moce to tho polnt then that

THE LONE CESAE, OE THE BEVOLN OR THE HAREM, 1GT Soterimsa" Now, Sultan Greenback, if you don't bowstring the Congressional Gutbres for ohein相

COLD WATCH FREE,

$15 PER DAY $$ 15$
GUARikTEED TO ALL Agente who gell our great Ne

 $S$ marn men wanted to eatoilinh an agency in every town axd vilage, Town or county righta given frce. A who wets as Agent,
Soñ for orat Great Now Circuitara for 1884, containing Munro's Ten Cent Publications. These works bave received a larger circulation than thy oluers havo over done in tho egme space of timo any others have over done in tho eamie Epace of timo.

They oro booke thint every ono shoold read and recoms. mond to his neighbor.
The Books are

HOWARD'S SWEAT PROOF

Soldiers' Money Belts, WITH COMPARTMEATS FOR photographe, Crecenbacia and Lettora. Evary moldior con bave one sent to bim by relarn mail (Dpostage paid), Honpital, nad Oity.
N. B. The Trade liberally deall wilh.

Whiskers! Whiskers !

NY ONGUENT wil force them to grow on th mail. Addrean M, A. JAGGERB, Callonn, ill.

GRyAT CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY!

 Prize Package end En Praving Whatchouse, 80 und 38 Boekman Strect, N. Y.

Shultty Onguent,-Warranted to pro-

Tge of Tobaceo, in all its forme, Curod

Oompletoly fornifhod with Writing, Work and Toilet Articles. For Military, Noval and Trevele
 Bric. Gme Hayee, of Army of Potomac, writ Drig. Gom, Hayeo, of Army of Polomac, writes:
"1t is the most convanient and pattoble article for 180 in the teld whit

WHO SHALL IT BE?

GEN. GRANT, MOCLELLAN, BANES, FOSTE sherman, meade, fremont, buraside, OIF WHO?
Agento santed everywbero. Toko your choiee and eeud us $$ 1$, sud wo will oend you a Now Bdtlo Pin Pin

 with your Name, Regiment aid Co, handeomely on:
fraved therean, And or si 50 we will send yon a now
Cavalry, Artillery, or Battery, or Eugieer, or Pon-

8. M. WARD & CO

208 Broadway, N. F.

A Foeret Worth Enowing--EDow to

$7 ARMY  $$ 7$

 $$ 15$ Euxopean Timekeeper $$ 15$ os cosperss water.
A EUPERB " BXTRA DOURLE GOLD.PLATED" en spring-Genuine Englisa Jemetted or Nickel Movementa

A. $$ 100$ Gold Watch used by the British Army Officers.
Sont freo, by mail, in Elegant Morocoo Case, for onily $$ 16$. Frank Lerlit's Mlustrated Neospager of Feb. 20 sags or the "European Thmekeeper:
and an imitution of novelty haro. in vaie among thin British army oflicere, and fo call.
culated to meet the wante of our soldters in the tala."

GOI.D:

Going! Going!! Gone !!!

$$ 200,000$

WORTH OF RICH JEWELLERY, Solling st an ir monse alacrifoc. Our method of nell.
ing will at once pienoe and prodt tho purchasor. Wo.

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE BYMAIL or EXPRESS  Gelf-WTeasurement for Bhirtg

cot tro  STHDHCOLIARS

ENAMETED WHITE, Having the appearance and comfort of linon, have been worn in Pailand for tho lakt two years in worn in Zngland for tho last two yearss in proferonco to ony other collar, as thay are reailly cloaned in one Onion on this rceefipt of 90 cents.
AOENTS WANIED in every Tomm in tho Thion
S. TV. 35. DARD,
J. W. EVERETT & CO.
 OFFICERS OF THE ARMI AND NAVY, STATESMER, DVIESS,
ARTORS
AOREIGN CKLEBRITIES, etc., ARTIST,

GROVER & BAKER"S HIGHRST PREMOM ELASTIC STHTCH
 Salearooms, 495 Eroadway, New York. The Bowen Micicroscope, Mragniffing 500 mnme, mailed to any adrena for 36 cta ,
 0000 Corns and Bunyons
 Mailed ovorywhere for 25 conta Addrenq
P. B BOWEN, Boi 220, Boston, Masa,
American, Fwiss and 3ngligh Whatchos

FRANK LESLIESS

 HTIUS TRAMED

though our armies in the field bie broken ap into guerilun bands?-we shall he stroug cnonglh to wear ont the armed leginns of our Northern enemies, and reduce thom to the recognition dolnsion, howevcr, is at length diepelled. The Richmond Examiner, in a Iate commentary apon the present grand camprign of Gen.
Grant, is constrained to the confession that "if ho wins in Virginin he wins everything."
The impressive lessons of this destructive war to Sccession theories aud anticipations, aud to the Southern people concerned, hnve satisied them that, with e decisive defeat Southern Confederass is at an end their Southern Confedoracy is at an end. As one by one the false lights by which they have been led astray have been extinguished, their eyes havo boon gradually opeuing to their real situation, until they have discovered that there is a point, even in Southern endurance, heyond which further resistance is certain destruction. Honce this frank, though reluctant confession of the most prominent, the most nunrgans of the rebellion, that if Grant "wins in Virginia he wins everything." The veil is lifted; further disguises are nseless ; the army nf Gcn. Leo is the lnst hope of Jeff Davis. The prestige of invincihility which has hitherto beon accorded to Gen. Lee, notwithstanding his past defents aud narrow escapes, is at leugth destroyed. His situation is admitted to be eritical, and yet, as success on his pert would repair nil other misfortanes, we see that all the available forcos and resourcos of the so-called Confederacy are being concenthe so-called Conf trated in his army.
What is the prospect? We have heard mucl of the triple lines nf fortifications which on oirole the rebel citadel; much of the chaius of formidahle defensive positious which will enchle Gen. Lee to overmstch a vastly superior opposing army, in leisurely falling hacels to Riehmond; hut the developinonts of the comprign have already slown that, against th ombinations of Gen. Grant, no line of retreat, however advantageons to Lee, and uo system if fortifications at Richmoud will avail to aver Gen. Grant has shown in to the rehel cause perations that, whow in his rectut flanking his front is hlockaded hy lines of destractive military defences, they may not only be avoided, hat that the enemy may bo dislodged hy sim ply turning to tho right hand or the left. Thns the elehorately strengthened position of Geu. Lee at Spottsylvania Court-House is rendered antonable, aud so it must he with any other position commanded by an open country on either sido. In fact, as was aptly said hy the late rcbol Gen. Sidney Johnston, when turned out of Bowing Greon, Kentacky, hy the capture of Fort Keaney, many leagues to the in the Confederate States a derensive position orn border and the Gulf nf Mexico that may not he turned."
In the next place, Richmond is but a culd de act to the defensive army in ocoupation, unless ecured from a siege by an abundant eapply of provisions. Is Richmond thns provided for a siege? The testimony to the contrary from all sides, and in every shape, is overwhelming. It is doubtful whether the city's eupplies would be sufficient, under a cloes investment, to suhsist garrison of 50,000 men for a single month and yet throngh the channels which foed the Gen. Lee'e army is itself aubsisted. If defeated, hen, in the npen field, Gen. Lee will he ntterly acompetent to defend Richmond within its sacireling fortifications. Tho city, should he seek it ee a plece of refugo, will he to him what Vioksburg was to Pemherton-a trap, from Profting from the experience ee is evidently ramme. We conjursuing a different pro riven into the Peninsuls, thereforo, that, is city to its fate, and fall back with his army iuto North Carolina rather then North Carolna, rather than run tho douhle gethor. But the Federal occapation of Richmond, in connection with Geu. Sherman's lescent into the heart of Georcin, will he none the less approprintely interproted by the rohel confession we have made the text of this article that if "Gon. Grant wins in Virginia he wins verythiug." That ho will win in Virginia is as evident as it was that ho would win at Vicksburg, wheu his liues were drawn noumd the city, and its otherwise impregnablo defences wero xeudered untemule in being cut off from all hopee of reinforcoments and subsisteuce.

Imixin Sras ann Brme.-The ahsenco of indlau seas; scarcely a H1Ving thiug sppeare in the elky The Huasar Machinaty. - Man has in man

Barnum's American IKuseum.

Oscanyan's Oriental Arbum.

socond Avenae, 21
c. osoanyas

Perry Davis's Pain Killor.

Thit gras pybbicio benasacton, wo ere happy to learn, many of tha thonenand 1 lis that toosh tof bosid to. The to.

 kipt toin hand andid used ans occaston many rompirm, will
 the expensee for Weekly $T$ tira.
pranik lesties
ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER,
G37 Peaxi stroet, Now Yoxk.
NEWY YORK, JUNE 4,1804

TPERTMS:

TERMS FOR ADVERTISING.

Ono Dollar a lune en the catelda or last page.
sixty Coate in tho on tho 1 Ath and 15th poges

NOTICTE.

Tras offce of thas Paper lis removed to Na . be7 Pear

Summary of the Week,

virarnil-anhmis $\Delta$ Rary.
The movemonts which we opitomizod in our tast wero all, in fact, not wifhstanding their bloody chawhich have not brought our mornyy nearer to Richond. As Orent moved, so Lee moved confronting hin. Grant now lies with one wiug rooting on Frcderickshurg, whilo Lee lies before Spottsyivania Court-honso, the pivot of his yarions positions. On the 19th considerablo elhapmians phing took place hetween the Sth corpe end the enemy's entrench firet line of worke. Our loss in these operatione was 800 , cliodiy in Burnsiados corps. Gainese tation, on tho Vrginin railroad, was ocoupied hy station, on tho Vurginis railroad, was ocoupied hy Our sconte on tho 19th.
On tho 20th Grant began a euocossfal movemont to compol Lee to ebandon his position. Longfreot's corps moved et one $A$. .u. on the 21 at , fol lowed by Ewell, but Gen. Hencock had moved before him. Our-troops ocoupied Guiness station, pony.

Gen. Butlor Bumbe's Amary.
the Biego of Fort Darling, and fall hnok to his enOn the 14th
On the 14th Gen. Burnham'e hrigede carried the ad the rebele fell heck to works behind Kingman's ereek, near the fort, acarcely answering the heavy oannonade which followed.
On Monday, the 16 th, the enemy, in force, under Over of a thick fog, made an attack on the line of heary loss. When the fog cloored eonfusion, with in driving back tho enemy. An-nttick wes made on the right of Gen. Sunith's line betweon two squadrone of colored cavalry, on the bank of the James, and Heckruan's brigade, Boizing the piakets and becuring a splendid porition, which had been steadily driven hack ; ho fonght woll, hat was teken. Our lose was heary, and two 20 pound Parrotte foll into tho enemy's hand. Wistar, who received the attack after Heckman fall back, held his own for a timo, hat a grand relel chargo comAt oloven o'clock Gen. Smith.
covored his formor position driving thand reinto his ontrenchmonts. A forcoo of 5,000 , nnder Gen. Ransom, from Petorsburg, at the onmo time Batler, howorer, deomed it prudent to retire to his former linoe, ae we heve etated, and wee all day on tho 18ih resisting tbe attacks of tho enemy.
burg and Riclmond, nnd Gon. Kantz has eueoeeded in cotting tho Dayville road, destroying tho iron pridgo norobe the Appomattox.
On Sundey, the 15tb, Gen. Sigel was defeated at under the command of Maj+-Oon. Breckenridge, ex-V.P. of tho United Statos. Sigol loet fivo gans, 600 killed and wounded, nud 50 prisonore. Ho anicceedod in croseing the Sliened
ing Strasbarg with the remuant of his six regiHe has been removed from the command, sni Maj.-Oen. Hunter assignod to tho department.
Gen. Crook was more succesafol in his near Nembernt, having fought three battlee with the foress under Gens. Morgan, Jonce and $A, C$. Jenking completely defoating them, killing wounding and talcing nearly 1,000 . His loss wa 00 killed snd wounded.
Oen. Jenkins fell into our hands mortally woandWorke in Tazevell county on tho 7th where ho encountered a fores of the enciny undor Morgan and Jones, driving them on to the main body noar tho Salt Works. On the 10th Gen. Averill roached tho Selt Works, On the 10th Gen, Avcrill roached point within four miles of Wythovile, whero he noountered the enemy, 4,000 strong, under Gon am Jones. He fougbt them for fonr hours, driv aptaring some prisonots. Under cover of darle ness the onomy retrcated. Our lose was 120 lilled and woundod, nono mieeing. Near Blacksburg, Fhioh was oommenced doetroying the railroad, whioh was most offectually dono to a point four amall forco of the chinaburg. At the latter place -inch gume, which fell into our hands. Oen Averill has fully accomplishod tho work sseignei him hy Gen. Orook.
nomph onmoliva.
Almost nil the rehel forces havo been withdrawn rom Eastorn North Caroline. The army inveeting Nowberne reecived orders on Saturday, the 14th, to march North, and withdrow tho noxt day.
sonti Darotina.

An exteneive ealt cotabliehment helonging to heen destroyed.

Lomida.
An expedition up tbe St. John's under Gen. Birney brought in 1,000 hood of cattle, besides horsee and other property.

Sherman, efter two days hard fighting, oomon Sumday, the 15 th of Mey. He hate midnight prisoners and 10 gung.
Our cavahy, under Stoneman, defeatod Roddy destroyed a trmin nud took two guns. Our loss at Resaca was sbout 3,000 .
On the Rome snd Atlenta, oocupying the former with day Sberman advanced, the enomy retiring. He found supplies snd valuable mschinery works st Rome.
Advices from Little Rock to the 10th report
Gmn. Price retreating to Camden. He loet-by the Ggn. Price retresting to Camden. He loet-by the with Stocle ou tho Sabine river Dock. Kirly smith is said to he threstoning Little ook in strong force.

Lourstixs.
Banks was at Alexandria on the dth, ind eftorts as to get the gunhosts down.
Gen. Canky is maling his way to the army, to ssume command.

ZASYAL
Another American ship, the Avon, from Boston, was dcstroyed on the 29 th of March by the rehel privetoor Elonida.

CONGRESS.

Is the Senato, mn the 16th Mey, the resoluIs the Senato, nn the 16 th Miey, the resolu-
Hon of Mr. Duvth, of Keatuolk, condenning the Precidnat's proccedinge fu connaction with the comrriesions beatowsd on Gang, Blair and Schanck, was referred to a substrute for thia reaolutian of Mr. Davis, a preamblo and resalution which, atter reciting all the eircumitancen of appofntment and rouignation, cleim that Gen. Blair ia not antitasd to his preoemt rank and pokition. Bils wars pakeed for tho rellef of tha wildowa of Gens. Edward $D$. the eatoblilhmonto o a a Hne of steamers between this country and Brazil wan connidered for some time and country and Brazil wan considered for some time, and then laid over. Tbs bail to equnilies the pay of soldiern was talien np, and some nmendmants to it were adoptod, but the Senate adjourned without final action on it. In the Howne, resolntions, tutrodnced by an oppoition member, declaring that ofitara of pence should be tenmember, declaring that oifirs of pesce should be tendercd to the rebels, and that the Prealdont be required to makse a prociamation of amnesty to any State which should ley down its arme and withdruw from the Hion, with a guarantce that nuel Stute ulooutd be left to reorganias and determino its own institutions withont intarforence from the Goverument of the Uulted Statos Intirforence from thic Goverument of the Uuited Statea, Frero ladia on the table- 76 to 53 . Resountlons calling for the proveedingn on the triale of Roivert Taylor, of Tan. tion roquastlag the Searctary of Wer to in form tha Houso by whet anthority Brig.-Gen. J. M. Hubbel, Military Commandant of the city of Natcher Hell Commandant of the city of Natchez, lested an order
Fitch forbid contrabands remaining in the city of Natchex, unlose employed by tomam reeponailiblo whito persoon, and forbldading any contraband drom biribg or occuppyting any houve in that elty, ander which rengulation handreds of the wiven and children of noldiers in the field bad

 journed until Monday

FOREICN NEWS.

Mr, Oxrus W. Field, who returned to this country Irom Engiand by the Persia, reporta moat faver-ably of the Atlantio tolegreph cable. Tha Great Eastcra

 moming, althongh the town is over 6,600 milea.
The war feeding againat Germang was rising rapidly in Franeo and England, eapecially the letter, where the Mamn'e German preclirties wero freety and severely conderoned.
Thero wao
There wao no nerw movament st the eent of war in benmart. The Danish Government reflused to raise the tortasined of any important roealt from the London Conference. The British Cabinet refueed to give Parllamont any information as to the progros made by the Plenipo.

Sir Ieopold MoClintook, R.N., had tiken the Brltan Ohannel fleet to the north, with tbe evowed object of prenerving tho Danes from bilig overpowered in the Bultic by the Anstrian fleet. There bad bean a naval engagemont between the Danigh and German feets, whioh, although a drawn bottle, had reanlted in cousidemble loes of Hfe to the bottle, hed reaulted in cousidemble loes of Hfe to the Gormang, their killad and woundad beiag 170, waile the Danes only lost 60 .
It was raid that Ruotio bad concentrsted an anmy of 60,000 men ot the month of tha Danabe, that Auntria hud sent 25,000 men to tho frontioe of Servia, and that the Turkish army in the Roumclia was to ba increaned the Turkinh te 100,000 .

TOWN GOSSIP.
Last week we made mention of a ladies' meeting, to bo held at the Coopor Inatlitute, to create a torriga luxury. The meetiug did come off, and that rethar demoeratic etronghold, thas lecture-room of the mostitute, wna sromied to rapletlon witha hoot of ladies who ralled thither in gorgeona carringes, with liveried lootukn, bnt themselves rather subdued in drese. Wa in the danty preas do not aitmit the foct-the meoting, from tha very beginnling, ahowcd fincongruous ole showed a division then really adve sucess, endiog finally, in whst would hava been tormed, had it been in gathering of men a breating up tin a row, aud a cleargathering of mea, a brenting-up in a row, and a claar-ance of the room by tho police I A terrible et ory to to Ladies but the truth - poeitively this trath.
A pledge was offered and a fow bundrexls rignod it, bu pledge has ramained at the rooms of the Sanitary Coll miasion for siguerse ever since, it han becn ooveroly 1 .
alone by tho mass of the fady population leas than a convalation of nature can andect it. Drea wid men, and le equail comol
This has been eomewhat n week of ecnentions in the

epitome of the week.

 and Noll
Obituary-Adyuant Henry w. Bond, of the 20te

 $\frac{1}{4}$ A Dex theatre, for comedy and opara, is tabe buill in Mif ithe Mayor of 5 iverppol, Eng, thad all the thentreas

Mmelte in Dake of Sutherlund, one of the heavient
 ing with the devouring element.

 styled Count," and ridiculing the perfornance.

 On o tonbetone in in eliurchyard taro thes, Ire ory of Joun Philispt, alfection by lif broter.
A A Poughteepsio (N. Y.) buntincas man, it it a

Ho had handy recchod Hise conoting-house whan a esuaf her attuchmeat to or oup.

Who Ln oblo paper telie of one capt. 8 tanton sholes
 -T. Buchnan Read
 and E. Henderrenc, ciltorat of the Commerciah

 -The Lendon critco do not neem to relieh Hadie

CHIT-CHAT WITH THE LADIES.

Matrebs are coming to a climax. Soon a that will be loff for un poor weareres of arinolino will be to rsturn to the long forgoten enetom of sedan chalre ond, ubat up in one of these, ourrounded by a body.
gaiard, proces in atato to Stowari'm, Ball & Bleck' B , suewhere, to do our ohopping.
Time wha when a ludy might ride in a publie conveyanco without further inconvenienco than the probability of being erunhed between two stout neighbors, of R gallant ond under the pretonco of polito ansistance. Bnt now the dongera thicken dally; armed policemsn in of proviking their writh; several solatom with lavia mukets and glitering bayovota; an incipient riot ot overy other atreet corner, duripg which brickbato and the discovery that aome miscroant has placed an olisiru tion on the ruile, throwing the care off the track, lamin the horsea and forcing the passengere to descend in the mud and complete the journey on fook and Mrs. Hanford by name, have been working the gane, before which certelin rebel sceuta and plackotaretreath, in the neighborbood of May river.
Aa there oppoare to have been no necessity for their no doling, sud there were plenty of men snd aoldarn in the neighborbcod, we presume the performanoe wee winh to "drive just a littie way," or to "row olitth," or to ses if she "conidn't catoh a Aahh," in gratisidid by a pollto genileman. It eema an odd anort of racration hittling geouth, is a novel menthod of pisising thme for a lidy. But, we prosume, It will become quite fanhlonabia affer this, and Gen, Bangemot will taze his had, Mre.
 the rebela who have been shot by her, as abo mighto of her Now Year'a Day cullors or tior parthera at a bill And Now Year'a Day callors or har parthera at a ball. And Than yon inquire ibout Col, A prasiater, you will henr with her brother to shoot at tho rebela"" and will be maked, "OMn yon manngo s gamr" as people now in. aaked, "Ona yon man quire, "Do you olkate?

Dangorons Voyago.

Gofing to Brooklyn is, it appeara, ationded with nearly and an much danger aa an Aretbo voyuge or the rounding of the Cape. To croons from our city to Hamilten aronne ia to dare the fire of all goubonta or vessele, fill of arreed mon, yligg at Governar'a idiand, and run tae riak of rueady pereona who had undertiken the perilous xpedition were warned of their folly by the rutue of mus. kotry and the fall of one of thoir numher, ahot thronga the leg, and will proliahly be deterred from egain at ompting the expedition until the possibility of being picked off tize no many robina is at an end. Wo under picked off lize no many robina in at an end. Wo under stand that thisit time the yolley eame from the atoemtug stand Stevanes.

The Children,
The ebildron in the public schools in the 23 a Ward ave their orlitition, in aid of the soldiers, at the Ace domy of Muate, on Tuenily evening. It was a prety aight to neas, and strange enough it was to hear thoan plping baby volco where the clear tones of so many wain a tablean from Loun her Jowele" which Locked Queen of scote dintributtog hel euriously like Minnde Warran alupensing toys sud trinkets to tho fairies. The larger boys, of counn, wera "After the Buthe," in two tablesux, which brought down tho honse, and drove the diatrectod with admiation.

Ont of Town.
"Whan are you going out of town ?" We begin to ask thlk question of each other as aoon as the opposito shorem begin to show a fringe of tendor grem, and Wechawiken

readers? Half of fon will suswar with a list of fishion able numaner reeorts, of course, and only one or the will say, "Ah, we phall find some cony, quite furmhoue and enjoy freedom for a little while." To these we son, good-you aro wise. Bnt for the others, what & fit iwnits theml Not only the cuntomary molothecting in emali, eloge bedrooms, and all the miecrien of con tnual) to; bat, ont, horror 1 our belice and their mamath down no nothize of the worst of the lot, the youthfic manculin Aclone of the House of shoddy.
At Newport you will find them walkeng on the bearl in hate like Farmingpsns of the olden time, aud traimi nobes mad giltering bracalest, and all eoris of futteris: odde and ands, as though cach had bean dipped in somi. adheelve saberace, and pausen rapialy widiom At Baratoga yen will eee them opposite yon it Nidiow. At Baratoga ycu will Bee them opposite you it broakfist, and Mra Shoduy will jingle hie masslve chaiu and senle, and roar to black John the writur "Here, yon mmony racal, fetch me them ther eggs, wil yon, and ho quick about ft? Who d'yer thlols am, I wonder ${ }^{\prime \prime}$

Ar-ringe, will exclato

an to send It up rdd givo her forming." + if my collt And Mias Shoddy, gorgcous te behold, will moke will declare ber "a diee girl for aili," in hif yoathitu unceptibility ; and young ghodidy will stare you out il ountennice by way of experening bis ining forn; am. ery bright-over sherry cobblere in the my meteriou pincon Whither gentiemon retifro to "kmoke eigar, ev varge of desperation
You need not suy yon will not mix with sueh peop that the efite can frown them down and banl-h th rom their old secustomed hananta Nouecifel val hard and brazen, ned having down, Its quality is th money, do youl mey Shoddy has not the key to the beat roome in thic nd walters are mioney-maling poople, and shodaty #i pay anyluing juel now for adun Oppertendom,
If yon ackire
If you dcese to eacope ghoddy (and who woutd not?
you mast make ap your mind to farmhousca and rusic hotals, and shjure, for this eacacon at leact, garatog", Nowport, Trenten Fall,, Lake Georgo, kc., and making t merit of necennity, evjoy tha "real country" for once in our He. Yon whll not losa by it Thay asy, who ponow, that tha insignin of dar Ladic Loongl Leargue is to bea a black bea worn in the beanet hisi. Why, we wonder hee tt anything to do with th "little buky bee," kpoken of by Dr. Watta? Woes it Ignify luduatry or honoylike sweeincen? Why in th mblem of the Loyal League ocenomy to be bee? one thing we are cortrin; n nomely, that the inecel, withe ls to be mede of Indla-rabber, comen of of 11 lega, or zeparatea fto winges from ito backe, or tit bea from ito body, se eanlly ys all the black pies and oroe ments hitherto manufoctured of the panie materin conomy, though it may homen manufecture. W coow of two or the matea know of two or throe laden who intond joining the LLesgue therty, who aro purchacing ailika, velvets provionely purchoved. It is a "cuto" iden, onabilin oxtremely patriotic ; and, becides, they osen enter hen and aoul into a plan for checling the purchase of in for thiluk of the joy which muat be experienced by Mi i augurto when she known that ber doar friend, ser: phina, cannot plurchase & fachimile of her pot arese, al The bet-lot us aec-you lenow bees lay in a store molate gainter, and, as the Loyal Loague hadess accirevaning of the omblom

OUR SUMMER RESORTS.

bs Futeld Honse, Falvficla, Conn: Fararisid, with its fine sea air and its beav the fow spota in America which pootry lins embatione in lengthenod doecription, Arecniteld HiM, sung by Dwight, being in ite neighborhood. The village han charming frentneak, being all recently built, ito dosof New York, haring owept away all rellice of the post. To this charming apot many of our citizena have airoady beou in tbe hablt of reaorting during the snltry beats of summer, and they ail atteat the great advanheste of summer, and they all attest the greast savan tagea which it exploys. Wo give among our illuatreHona to-day a vew of the Fairneld Houne, a fine hotil, now under tho direetion of Mr. P. D. Carrique, a agenti:- man of great experienco in catering to the puble man of great experienco in catering to the public.
The house la beautifully nituited about $\Delta$ quarter of a The house la beautifully nituated about a quiarter of a mile from the beach, in the contro of one of the mont agreeahlo vilinges in Counecticut, and will socommewill be well kopt, the table well amppitiod, and good whes and all attsinable luxuries provided, wo may, in, too, within casy alsatanco of New York, us $1 t$ can to reached in two bours by the New Haven cars, and io but three quartorn of an hour's ride from Now Haven. fyment of bothing and hooting ; while the drives in Joll airectione, atter phoning through the village, are of purpanang boanty.
Any undeclded as to a locality for the warm weaticer SINGOLAB DISCOPERY-A curious and in-Rimbin church plate at the time of the gex cat French Revolntion. The eocret which wae carefuly kept for co have Inve to teve you," Whez that the sald, they are mhost women crackere on the tha of Joly.

THE CHRISTENINC ny amanda t. Jones The moonlight eilvered all the balmy air, The wind sang in the woodhino by the door, And the young mothci, swaying in hor chair,
"Sleep, my henutiful, sleep! Evening shadows are deep; Closo in my arms I fold you, Softly praying, with teare, That the Father of souls may bold you Through aill life's dangerous yeare, Lovingly fold and keepSleep, my beautiful, sleep!
"Sleep, my beautiful, aleep! Nono but a motber would weep O'er a hahe as yot unchristened, O'er a hud se yot unblown; Ere baptism rains have ghistened, Like pearl-showers over it thrown; For tbe worm in tho heart I Sleep, my beartiful, sleep!"

Tho moonlight darkencd in the draperied night, And through the woodbine wailed the wind's low cry;
While ly a marble face, Berene and wbite, The mother sang her tremulone lullaby "Sleop, my heautiful, eleep! The shadowe of Death are deep Out of my arms they take you, Grad you in linens clean,
And naver disturb or awake y And never disturb or awake you; What can this slumher mean Sleop, my besutiful, sleap
"Sleop, my beartiful, sleep! Angels your christening keep, And the worm can never hasm you, That lice in the budding heart. But what to my arme can charm you, When Denth hae drawn ue apart? They have oponed the grave so stoepSleep, my hoautiful, sleep!"
canse ho had recently been cngaged in an afrair which hazarded his personal liberty in England. He was gifted, versetile, and condd do almoet any-thing-from tho dohvery of a scrmon tout of trouon the high seas-but heep quiet and out hle, or pursue a constant and consistent course in any undostaking. Ho had boen almost everywhere; had attemptod almost everything, but re whained tas clevorly foolish and as abortivuly cap:

Parisian Revolutionists.
blo as he had heen when comparatively devoid of knowledgo and oxperieace.
Ho accomprnied his brothcr oa his accond visit to the mad aculptor's stradio, and quito won the artist's heart by his dieplay of counoisseurship. Ho had seen almost everg great work of art in tho world, and fiattered the old man with discriminating praiso. Whilo vowing the statue Bertram: "TTie the image of his decensed wife. I saw her orten when a hoy, and have ever cince formed my ideae of an angol from her."
As the triaturned from the statue, the presence of Marina Nitonche was percived. Aceustomel as he was to her sudden and singular eppearances, she now startled even kifstoae with the odaty ol her costume. Sbe was dreesed in a short bluo her costume, she or blouse, worn over a red petticoat, and tamic or blouse, worn over a hlack loathor belt. She had a searlst Phrygian or Liberty cap on heip hadd, and carried a gilt etaff, bearing a tricolor flag, in her hand.
"What docs this mean ${ }^{\text {P }}$ " demanded the sculptor. "Y
"Yon will know to morrow," she answered, cignificantly. "Do I not look dangorous now, Mr. Hapswell?"
"The eaugninary spirit of revolution conld not be more heantifully personified. What do you represent?"
"A danghter of the people. Father I never knew, and mother I have noac; who has more need or right thent her gaze fastcnod on Vietor Kingaland.
"Hal a son of the people a a brother!" sho cried, "Hal a son of the people a brother! sho cried, almost throwing harsolf into his arws and half emhlnoing him, Bortram Hapswell's brow clouded as he gazed on the pair, and ho said
"I infer from this the Paris, and yon, Yie., avo, of course, in the thick o Pari
"Hets jcalons-never mind him," "sid Morins, surling her beantifol lip with disdain. "Ho has a Marble mistreas, nd nis he Elfetono was now gazing at Marina with a trance it ow wilaness. He seemod to have forgotion, for hio time, sbe wan not what eho represented ha exeitement incrensed, hie tall form dillt lis fingers twitched nervoully. Suaddenly, .th a motion quick as light, he snatched the cap I Marins'e head, and tha little flagstafir ont of t hand. Tbe profues black hair which had remeeful armus dropped and hung listlessly, mnerablo scuiptor in mute amazement and avro.
te had subeided in a moment into the mero luxatue had sabeided in a momont into the more luxtiant benaty, who had, from motives of vanity,

EIfetono held the eap in one hand and the fiag $4zing earneatly at them,
rapidity and vehemence :
"Have they rieon from tho deep again, those roblems of wiorly ne and of tha ideal soveroignty
 moro delapire than the orown and the eceptre-mill
 d contrnued with onhanood enorgy
"Vain! vain the strugglo! vain the viotory! Trance attompte to leap at once to heaven, only to f.ll ae low as hell. Sho must liave perfeot iberity of the infuite futuro, tumbles blindly into the chasm of samerchy, and stunned by the fill, ie loound hy her tyrants ero ohe recovera her sensee
To-morrow anotber earthquake of kiberty will hee Lound Tomorron anotber earthquake of kiberty will he-tin to ramo, to shake the thrones and oonvulse the pin to rago, to ehakke the thrones and oonvulse the mintions of Europe. The people will roar like the to their thrones, and rule tho groaning millions with a rod of iron, ellarp and hesry ae evor." Horo the old man began to ${ }^{\text {'meep, }}$, and his tono Co soften and melt with sorrow.
"After all," he anid, " "ull the agonizing, hateling, 1.leeding and dying for liberty, is such tho miseralle couclusion? Are tuns ofblood and hecatombe alile couclusion? Are tuns of blood and dhecatombe il hives squandered for a few days' saturnalia? of hives squandored for a fom days' saturnaia?
1'oor, heguiled, bosotted humanity1
Only bold in loor, hegailed, besotted humanity enenaning thyeell, only acuto in sufforing, ouly corElant in omplaining, and in worshipping frcah d. magogues, thy worst and dendiest enomies1 1 Oi-wifildy nionster that thou artI I 1 ehould deepies, did I not pity thec- despair of thee, did I not hope Tir thee with all the strongth of love. Thy capat city for euffering is infinite, and thy liberty cannot lio bonght of thyself withsut more blood and agony than wonld ranaem another universe."
The rapt aculptor sank back upon a seat, and gave way to an exoess of morbid sentimentality. and kissing him tonderly. Suddeuly she atarted up, oxclaining:
"St. Croix is coming1 1 Ho must not flid me thue. Weep not, fother; France will bo hervelf thue. Weep not, father; France will bo hereedf to-morrow. We whall meot in the streots of Parie ungin, hrother. You will find mo whero tha etrife is fiocecet. Ju revoirl Adien, Monsiour Timid. Take coumel of cold prudence, and hide in aome oolllar. Who would have so fair a fece with a white heart? Bahl" Marina caught up her red onp and flag and dartod out of the room.
Julieu St. Croix Julieu St. Croix arrived aoon after. He wae minh struck with Elvstone'g appearance, and "The crisiehas comf. Ifhe he oarefully watched and tonded now he may rccover, hut if not his reason is lost for over. I devote nysself to hise curce", ${ }^{\text {Bertramp promised hie asesistance, but his hrother, }}$ nder tho plea of urgent buiness, took hio departure at ond relative.
"What are yon alout, Victor? Having just our hesd into nothers'? Mhere was somo excuse ior your intormoddling with English troubles, but there is noue whatevor for your entanglement in there is nour whato Frenoh conspiracios,' Frenoh conspiracioio," "Iertram, though not your I can save you the troublo of interfering in my affiairs by managing thom myeeif."
Bortram Hapesolil elunigged his shouldors. "You might, I think, loavo yourelf oue seylum Europe. Your answor, Victor, is uot what I de in Europe. Your answor, victor, ise uot mhat I deserve; but, I suppose, all $I$ have any reasoon to valight lim by the afroctionnto tone:
" 1 know $I$ am an angratotul dog, Bertram, and von are the boot follow in tho word you are the boat follow in tho world, but whon $I$ toll you thero io no danger threatening me, and thant 1 am in honor and you will ho antisfocd."
"Silinonod, if not eutistid, Yictor. All I aok of you is tho oxcreciso of caution and forbearanco, for our mother's sake. Sho lise sacrificed much for you, and merite a gratofull axd considerato re uurn, which you can lest make by keeping out or turn, which you can hest make by keeping out of troullo., At this the hrouhere parted, Bertram returning Marina, chapten v.
So swcet was uoer so satal-ourclo, Ad. V., Sc. 2
Ficron Kixaslasn ovortook Marina ou his way othe railwsy atation. She bad altered her app pearance ss mnch that bnt for her glorious hightning oyees he nould hat fave fuild to rocognine her.
"Sister," he anid, "may I not accompany ysu ?" "Have we not the tome deetimation "" she "I have not seon yon at the Oourt, and yst were " With ens complote."
"With an important oxception."
"The Queen ?"
"Yee"
I am the Qneen of the true Bohemians."
"Accept my homage, beauttons sovereign"
"Yon ars a now socession to our numbers, rother. A trne Bohemian io a strange prodnet for aristooratio Englami."
"Wy
"My mother is French, and my fathor was as
And Mr. Bertram Hapswell-is he not your bro-
"My mothart's son, bat not my father'. My father was Vietor Kingoland, who died during my chlldhood, leaving a widow, who married Bir Edmund Hapswell, Bertram's father.
"Your bourother have any designs hanasong him forego them Yon but wasto your labor.

Th he such a miracle of virtue?"
Of indifferonce, rather. Ho worelipe only the Ideal. He may adore thiss prima donna's voice, the poetio graee of that danseuee, or sombs other moman's bouty; but he is protty sure to doepies Toman's beouty; but he is protty sure to doespies thom all pereonolly, ne heartily se the Oemanali Who believee thom to De withsut immortal soule. Old Morduunt Bilatone's anggestion in marlile, which ho enlls 'Lost Love,' has supplued Bertram with an ideal, and ho will hnnt the world through with an ideal, and ho will hnnt the world through in vain to find an actual woman rosembling it. in Yain to find an actual woman rosembling it.
The original wna EIfatone's wifo, dead and gone, The original long ago."
"t
"ture."
" would be a triumph to suldue aueh a an-
and have such a ono as it would be to soften atool, paine,"
When Vietor and Marina arrived in Parie they took a earringe, and instruoted the ooachman to drive to a certain houes in the Latin Ouarter, then the headquarters of the true Botheminne. As the were pascing near tho Morgne the drivor stoppod his horrees of hise own accord, and pering in at his "faree," afked them whether they rould not like to goo the corpse of the man who had thrown him self from tho top of Column Yendome on the day provious. The exprceesion on the driver's faco was that of a man propoeing a gront treat, whieh he thought no mind not doed to euriosity coold
"Have you a tasto for horrors?" inquired Vic
"A
"A most ho
"You have a fanoous opportunity to indulge now, and $I$ don't tnow but that it may he se weil to harden one's feelinge anainat the prolnhle altiee of to-morrow. Why could not tho fellow wait a dey or two longer, and die in our glorious struggle for liberty ${ }^{\text {? }}$ "
Victor and Marina
Victor and Marina entered the Morgue a fow minute after tho wido of the deceased had re cognised the bedy. She was, in apite of the true tal attompts mado to eilence her, lamenting wilday vor the mutilatod corpse, of which Marina no as palo ns the dend, staggorod, ruid would have "Mllanhad not Vietor eaught her in his arms.
"Marinal" he exclaimed, with some deribion, Mand man can thns overcome you.
Marina, after making a
her spirita, replied folnty:
"You misiudge me altogether I baby. But I behold in the mangled remaine hefore me the corpee of a friend I parted with ou Sor ace last, affer paseing through a econe with Simd of the most painful nature. From tho hour him him of the most painful nature. From tho hour Ifirst met him be continued to profegs an absorhing love for me, and although I depreented hi munifcence, loaded mo with the costliest gifts h could procure, Discorering aceidentally that ho was not ouly comparatively poor but had a wife and children dopendent apon him, I returned his proecuts, and uxided upon tho disoontimuance or is idto and hopeloes anit. My coldneess and do do his idto and hopeloess emit. Mry coldaness aud dotormination excitod him to frenzy. He tramplod on his own gitte, aud raged till I wes compellod to drive him from mo by assu ming a violenco greator than his own. He left me vowing eell-deatruetion. I regarded his threat merely as the chullition of disappointed vauity, and was glad to be rid of hium in any way. Little did filment of lie worde."
"I do not see that you aro at all to bleme in the
"Would Y could think with yon. But nas it was, I, who idy entangled his affections in the first place, am, I fear, mocountahle for the consoplace, am, quencees,
"Do

Do you onjoy thí sort of thing?"
God forbidi I F wilh I could baniol
"Goa forbidil 1 wigh I could baniah it from my memory for ever, but I fear I nevor shanl." "Your rumores is vain for it is tho 10 te idlo to indulgo it now. What is ono manto, lifo to ${ }^{\text {As }}$ s they wore quitting the dead-house they "Are yon leote tod woman.
"Are yon loff poor, madamo $?$ " neked Mariua,
with a half-chokod uttorancer "With a hail-chokod uttorance.
"Withont moans to bury the dend."
How comee that ?"
"How comee thant ?"
arthul, heartleas woman, who no booner fonnd that he bad no more than, sho drove him from her, and he committod dutioido in deeppair."
"Do you know this woman?
"No; and hope I never shall. Ir I 1 saw her I feel thas I should lith hor. She ihow no pity de-

France, and that she has deceived many more Yonng Moneieur Derayure drowned himseir in the by hor cruolty, and is now in the maison de sante, old Piorro Ragot poionond himeoli beeaung ohe diacarded lim, and yet loft all his property to her diaclarded him, and Jule Oabron hnng
Jule E Abron hnng-"
"Enongh, good woman! Spare your enumeration, for I am satiafled you are apeaking of no homan croature, but a demon. Yon must not boligeve much monstrons storiee. The devil is not so black as he is painted, and the nnfortnnate yon acconse so hitterly may be no worse than I am. Hore is a purse for you. It contains euough to pay your hnsband'e funeral expenees and tomething over. Yon are weloome to it all, ouly don't thauk me." Marina rughed out of the Norguo to avoid the Woman's thanks, which would have hart her like stabs, leaped into the carriage, followed hy Victor, and was driven off rupidy to her destination, "For ally your tailk," obbecrved Victor, as soon as he was eostod, "I little dreamod you were such as benutons monster." "Nor I. That my hare in the doath of this woman's luuband, I admit ; Lut young Dérayure was drowned simply heeauso he coold not aro he would hase committed auicide on my account; old Ragot dahled in chemistry and coont; old Ragot dahluled in chemistry and poisonod himself accidentaly, nud moreover never loft mits a oun; ; Buche was alwayy ineane, and never ought to havo heen out of tho ineilhonio ought thave heen out or tho newhouna; aud tha other party slie mentione I never saw or even heard of hofore. I stallun soon be holl reaporseible for every suicide committed in Parie, and they ars for erer s not fown."
"You
Yon havo a dreadful charncter, Marina; but nnfortanatoly have no bottor, so that it would no become me to take you to task slout it,"
"I have differgnt
clignes and classees, bnt I know of none that estim ate me truly-if indeed I ean do as mnch myeelf I sometines wondor whether I am worse ar het-ter than I seom, limt wh, ef course, apt to decido ter than I seom, in my own favor."
"I Buppose you have many auoh adrouturee as
"Tos many, but few of mo must seo this widow sgain, and do what I can for her." "Are you not nfraid eho will find you out and kill you "
"Not .
"Not $\mathbf{Y}$. $\mathbf{I}$ m n fraid of no man or moman, and ean ensily control a spirit be the best of friends yot."
Upon the arrival of Marina and Viotor anoug delight from all. Their Oined wita a shout or and gazed round upon her sulujects with pride Tbey were uot gipeios or nativce or goographica Bohemia, but men and nomen of overy nature and clime, who had either acquired or assumed and clime, who had either acquired or assame the appollation of Boheminns from their love of an eavy, wnadoring and irresponsilie life. Soano of them wrore rich, sonte poor, but they were, almost trithout expeption, intollifgent, intelleetual and advanoed in tbeir lious of art and mature.
They were in the habit of makisg themselvee at They were in the habit of makisg themselvee at home in all placces nnd with all linds of people, and of adapting themselves to cvery condition with the plianey of alr and water. In Paris thoy associatod for the purpoee of mutual onjoyment nud adzuycoment in freedom of tbougbit and action, hut without any binding organization; and as overy truo Bohcmian is witty, mest of them as overy truo Boacmian is witty, most or them possensed of talent, aud not a fow of them were possensed of talent, aud not a fow or hem were gifted with a epark of true Prometien fire, the gifted with a opark of ruut Prometien ine the seciety wae ono of the most brillinat and agreeable tant over enjoyed ediluer a dinraillo existence.
Quce into of thought, and the vivacity auld morriment of the mootiug soon rose to the litghest pitch.
Signor Seoda, Prime Minister to Mariua, was in his glory. Hit remarkahle viasge, so ugly in repose, grew quite hanasome as tho from the human fancy. His examplo proved contagious, and tho most Leicicions repartee was eustained, as rpplote with bormonots nas tho heenvon with stara on a clear and moonless mida-ight. Little would an uninitiated lookleran divined that beneath this hooyant and glittering aurfaco lurked imminent danger and fierco menace to the pence of the world. Many presint were membera of a terrible conspiracy agaiust the Government, and the appeorance at the door the Government, and the appearaneo at the door of the ball of ten gendarnuee turned a score of of the ball of ten gendarnuee turned at scoro of facce pale and quenched the gaiety of tho ovening facce palo and quenched the gaiety of tho ovening as suddenly as if death himself had stalked into tho midot of tho company.
tho mid ot of the company.
One of the oficere gunrled the door, whilo tho other advaneed towards Marina and Sceda, and invitod them to a consultation with the Prefact of invitod them to a consultation with the Prefact of Police. Tho prisouers soemed to take their arrest Police. Tho prisouers soomed to take their arrest in good part, and Marina emiled on Yictor with in good part, and Maring emiled on Victor with diradfol meauling, us che left the soene of recent diradauk meanig, us ehe of her steru captors.
hilnrity undor tho escort of "Their lives aro not worth a con," muttered Piorre Mabsue to Jacquee Renvi, na loth rose to follow the munioipal guards.

as ho and bie follow darted out of tho "asid Maesue,

Whata ate of tarror now their turbuloocy telle-Pxe.
BEarnuxt HurawzLL watched all nigbt with the bud croix st the bedside of the old sauptor, woras that hia deash ssemed imminent. He improved towards the the ensuing seemod to bs exocosively weak. On Tho projectod reform banget, enmich from Pario, ment had forbiddon, was relingich the Governdisappointod populnece had begquansa, bot the volution, and needed but some fatal nignal to were ereeting barrinese in earnest. The people get their hands in, but the troope were allowed to however, heand from time to mnsketry was, roar of cannon. St. Antoine and tho Merais, to warde nightiall, bsgan to bito as well as hark, and at the Barriers seversl of the bureans of the Oetroi were illuminated by the inoondiary's torch. an the mond the hesyane with, and the heavens eocmed to hovernment; but bing part $o^{\circ}$ clock tbe olouds were rolled out of sight beyond the horizon, and the smn flooded Paright beyond gs if smiling on the turbulenee of itn oitizens EIftone was so much better during the da that Bertram, impelled by tho anxiety of his brother, viiited the metropolis late in the afternoon, pacifio. Ho supposed the emetre had quiet aud and was now only anxious to ascertoin hower far Vietor had committed himself againgt the govornment. Ho had not shown himself in hie apartand his and his brothor could ascortain nothing of hie nxioty and norroun ol quart. Bertram' bearahlo, nad he wandered about Parie with vaguo and ardont hope of for tunately encountering tho objcot of his seareh. Ho now met poople running in every direotion in a state of tho wildeal oxcitonent, crying: "The troops aro

rms I to arme l"

He was just tarning sut of Rue Lepelletier into dismnl procession Capucines when he heleld a throng of fiorce "blouses," dragging a eart, and inging Mourir pour la Palrie I In the cart wors anged, eo that the full glara of the torches fell corpees, viotims of the rash and and half-naked sacre which had juet been perpetrated oppesite Gnizot's hotel. Bertram thought ho recognieed in one of them the bedy of hie lirother Victor, and tho eight filled bim with the frenzy to which, in epite of his habitual calmness, ha wae occeasioually subeet. He clovo his way tbrougl the jeet. He clovo his way tbrough the denso erowd to the dadad-laden car, throw himeelf apon tho corpees, smbracing and kissing it, and then standing ereot in the vehiclo, with a voico of terribls grief and pssalon, in his mother's native ongue, cried ont:
"Ils
The effect was never surpaesed by tho most heart in that vaet throng with the thrill which naturo'r intenseet tone alone oan give, and wakened finming life. The err of "Vens to sudden, fall and p on every side, and roared from a thouband doas of compromise with thought of now, all hoss of compromise with the government had takon, sud a hated and mardoronge rule be hroken and aholiehed for over. That night tho etreete of Parie were plunged in darknees, and tha sun rose Wha a oity of harricadce.
When Bortram disoovered the fatal mistake he had made (the reeemhlanco of the corpee to his brother was surprising, and deceived him for sevcral minutes, ) he elunk sway from the proceswas too late to attempt to mend it, sud he folt that ho had, without intending it, done more in ono momont for the revolutionory cause than his radical hrother would probahly be able to effeet iu his lifetime. Tho conviction was a painfulono to him, ifetime. Tho conviction was a painful ono to him, for the consequence of a lrencla revolution were for tho consequencee of a lrench revolution were to his mind an iudefinito and incelculable calannity He relinguished his ill-omened search for hia brother, got back, aftor oncomentoring many difficultice and daugers, to his own room, and romained there all night, uuchle to sloop or find any source of Tho longed-for and dreadod morrow came at laet. Bertram's temperameat was such that it was impossible for him to remana within doors, and he sought the seono of conflict, in tho deeperate hope away from his brother there, and of dragging him thiok about the Pelais Royal and the Chateau dWau. He found Paris in the wildest commotion, ite exoitable pepulace horno slong hy the torreut of revolution, sud hunting down tho hloodhounds of government with the vindictivoncss of long-harborod hate aud revenge. Among the fiencost of the armed rablile in conllict with the 14th rogiment of tbe lino hcesw Marins, her dilated black eyes linaling madness from under horred cap, her long, heantiful arms and ehrill voice inciting their long, heantiful arms and shrill voice inciting their boldeat to ronowed exertion and redouhled anboldest dacity.
Bertrani remuined a few minutos a fascinatod spectator of the scone. Suddooly a troop of cuiraseiere appearod and charged upon the peoplo, who gavo way aud fled in overy direction tram kas way aud fled in overy direction. Ber ing throng, and was nas suddenly left aimost alone, facing the military. The cuirnasiors, whose employwent it afterwards wae to eycort the Neyilly, galloped on, heedlees of tho people, and were speodily out of sight. No sooner had they dashed by thau Bertram hohold Harina lying in the stireet whore they had juet passed, and ran to her assistance. She was in the act of viioing hersolf from thic pavement wheu a Munioipal Guard, who upou tho flight of tho populace soddenly beonoted her to the hert had not rould have bay upon him, wrceted his matest from his graop, and felled him to the earth witb tbe hatt end of his weapon. Tha close, craekling report of musketry, the wibiz of bullete past Bertram'e bead, the rally, rewbiz of bullete past Bertram'e bead, the rally, return and fieree cbargo of tho moh quiekly followed and Bertram and Marinn were carried along witb the torrent. Tho bandsome Amazon and her preserver were placed in front of tbe fight, both wraponlese, for ho bad dropped his musket, and were precipitated upon a platoon of weatber-beatith soldiers of the line. They could only grapple with them for the possossion of their firearms, which were resigned hy the vetorans witb bittle affectawere resigned hy the vesistance, and the people, wbo were but half-armed, delighted with thoir complaisnnee, at once supplied themeelves witb woapous by disarming their sbam enemies. Elatod with this aehievement and eager for more decirive business, tbe moh harried away in the diroction of tbe Tuileries, moh hurried away in the diroction of tbe Tuilerie revelled awhile liko madmen at A carnival.
Mariua, who was as mad as the worst, was borne awnay by the dietracted multibude, but Bertram extricatod bimself from sueb ungeninl comprany, thre w down his musket and returned to his reoms, Here be wilted till midnigbt in a stato of agitation.
Wearied at lnat with long watehing end mental Wearied athotion, he bed fust thrown bimself npon a perkurbation, he bad just thrown ander, whisposed be was arouned by a knoeking at his door.
" Wbo are you?" be demandel.
"Wbo nre you?" be demandel,
Marina," answered a low, rweet
Bortram staried, a sbudder ewept throutside. frame, and he tarned the loy and opened tho doo with a trembliug hand, and a heart chilled with prophetic horror.
eyes dim and Mand, bat not and wearicd, ber harge eyes dim and sad, bat not alone. With his arm thrown round ber shoulder, and held up by her elasp, stoed, or rather drooped, Vietor Kingslond, gbattly and bloody.
goabty and bloody.
Bertram sprang towards hind, engbt him ton-deriy in his arms, bore bin to his bet, liaid him derly in his arms, bore bun to his bed, laid him genily do woumde.

Wboro is he burt?
"In the loft side, dangeronsly. He bas also a fleh wound in the rigbt arm, ani see, has beeu grazed by a shot."
"Phongh for one day's work, I see his wounds lave been aliendy eared for; what says the smrgeen "He bas had no anrgeon but mysself. I found him lying on a barrionde, carried him to my lodgfor him in my own room, lat he tuesisted npon being brought bithor, and hitber bave I brought bim,"
"You aro a nohle gifi, Marinn, after nll, and I thank you with all my heart," Tears started to the eyes of the fair Sorpent, hat her heart was too fall for specelh. Sbe kissed her heart was too full for spech, Bertram's band and walked to the further exBerram's band and walked to the furtber oxscemed to be gazing juto tho dark street; hnt she was only looking into ber own agitated soul, tbe tumalt of whicb preveuted hor from seeing anything distinctly even there.
Bertroun carefully divestod his brother of his wloody poosible in the bed, nud sat down by his side. Wietor pressed hie band, and nurmured, feebly :
"Thanks, brotbor, thanks. If I bve I sball be a hettor man; if I die tell mothor I loved her and you to the last, and bad ber name and youre Iast on my lips."
Victor remained trsuquil, his hand elssped in his brother'e, and after awhile eank into the sieep his brother't, and after awhile eank iuto the sleep his exhaustad unture needed so mucb, Bertram etole quietly to Merina, who was now eitting in a lauguid attitude, her eyes downenet, and her mind loet in thougbt.
"Are you hari-are you wounded, Marina?" No, I am not hurt. I dia not know enough to run wben the troopers showed themselves, fancying that the people would stand their charge, and ing tbat the people would stand their charge, and fell at the uistont thoy were upon uis, ns I was attompting to get out of their wey. My cap was only marvel is that I was not trampled to dentb. enough hut for your hreve and unexpeeted rescne, whicb even now appears supcratural to me. At the momont the glittering bayonet was almost at my heart, thirsting for my bife, that you, of all men, slonuld so suddenly stand between me and deatb, acems to me a miracle elmost as great as ment whe this for tho worde of ecorn I flung at you on Mondey! Even my thenka, my gratitude, burning in my heart of liearts, soeme worso than idio, for what can "You have done enough already in your
"You have done enough already in your eervieo my brotier." to my brotiec.
Ho is a brollie
Ho is a brother Bohemian, and I did no more

- for him than I wae bouud to do for eny of tbe fraternity." "You think too much of an act any man worthy of tbe unme wonld have performed for one of your Bex. If, however, yoa persist ineonsidering yourser. If, however, yoa persist in eonsidering yournelf eo much in debt to me, rely upon it I elanit exact payment in full."
"Abl what you will,
"paid." life.' There are eome thinga moro hard to give than "Whatever they be I will give them-whetever you bid me do I will do it-so live my hopes of henven." "I shall put you to the proof eome day, but now sill only entrest yon to wrap this cloak about you, and seek deop on this lounge ewhile, for you look pale and exbnusted."
"May I not share your watch ?" sloep of late."
"Hardly eny since Monday."
"Sleep, then, and when my to fail I will
my stead,
Marina
Marina wne campall ment, snd alept till long part midnigbt, when aho nwoke from drenming that the soldier had bis bayonet again at ber beart. She spiang to her feat with a ery, rousing the droway Bartram, foot with a ery, roising the drowsy Bartram, whose plnce she now insisted upon supplying. Fif whnse plnce she now insisted upon supplying. HC bad beld out as long as he was ahle, and now, in his turn, resigned himeelf to the restorative obbivion of slumber. The sorpent looked from one to the other of the ancenseions brothers, witl 0 the other of the uncensoions brothers, wit "I bave known the prediesment.
"I bave known these brotbers but a few days," enid sbe te berself, "yet within ibat brief space they beve hecome-no, one of them bas grownmore tban sll tbe world heeides to me. This Vicmone tor is wild and beedleess as myself, and I love him as tbougb be were inileed my brother; hat Ber-tram-tbero is music in his name, his voice, his toucb, and I think tbat his sotl, if it wore vieille, would outsbine the sun. I love him with all the passion of my beart, hut he will never love ms tor he is not like other mon, whose love is weskness, and he knows tbat my sont is dark and fort witb erime. How emine it so? I nlways loved tbe mind's beauty moro than the body's. This they say I have, nud that have lost; but not for ever no, not for over. God surely can purify it and make it evon as bright an Bertram's." At this moment the aligbtest of su wan beard, bat low as it was it turned Marina yer pale. She rose in au instant and opened the door, facing two tall, gigantie men, whose countonances facing two tall, gigantie men, whose countonancess were expressive of tho most sinistor aud danger-

Are thay asleep?" whiepered one
"It matters not," sbe replied, in a tone of deed cannot be dono. These men fought yesterday for freedom and Franco as bravely as the foremost of bor sons; one lies bere helpless, snd perliaps dying from wounds roecived in her oanse, and neither of them sball sufter harm in the sleep l struggles,
struggles," Whist'o t
the fools?" have yon gone mad with tho rest
"Fools! 'tis promoting you to call you such;
"Stand aside, then, and let us do our brutal "Sork". "Stand hack! or I'LI wake Bertram Hapswell, whose pistols will send you into a sleep from whicb you sball only a walce in etcrnity!
"We Til make you pay for tbia,"
"I will pay for it, nud will pay yon, and if you do not go this instent I will pay you nowy I
"Marinn, it is of no nse, These Ing have twonty tbousand franes in their trunke, and "I tell you once for all, Jacques and Pierro, tbat Bertram Hapswell saved my life moro than once yesteriay, when you fled witb the rest from the troopers, and if you advence ons step, my hody or yours shali lie dead neross the thresbold."
"Ob, bo's the fellow, then that Ob, be's the fellow, then, tbat brained tbe gendarme for you. There's some sense in that, and I Bite yon the better for it. I wonld do the same nyself. Life for life is fair play. Where and when will yon meet ns to-morrow? "At tbe Hotel de Ville, at noon."
The ruffine dieappeered, grumbling:
FEARFUL PERFORMANGE BY A FEMALE.
The most curious exhibition at the great Perie circuas is what the programmo callo the "exercisees of distocation." The jourualiets try to initnte it by twisting the French longuage Into alt sorto of compli. twisting the French language :
mentary hhopes in dcacribing it.

 medor the tont or in the pagoda. Sho comen dancligg of loating in oloose robe wisc red stripes. She throws or floating in o loose robe wibl rea atripes. She throws herself down on a carpet sprod out in the coutro of the circus
 pessen her leg, like a shoulder-belt, over her nech-she uudoes, Mze hooks, the colthr houe of her elondetere, and throwis belta her throwe behnd her back her ermbs, hent hetward.
The etrangest of all is tho haggard look inspired; plmoet. prophotichl, with which ohe accompllakee this frelghtfal puntomine. It is not a raonutobank at work it is the convulalve devotio of somse extravagant relligion cellelratiligg the rites of some crita poia, who delighto in the dopthe of the Nitcor by a finlorman, bencoth the eyce of Harounal al faschad aud in which the Caliph per.

colved with hortor the body of a young woman cut in

MAY MOONLICHT.

by henay c witow

Husse, sister, bastel
The moon is shining bright nd by ita mystio ligbt The night is warm and calm, The air is hresthing balm, From odors of the May,
Haste, Eister, brate 1
Companions young and fair,
With Mnybnds in their bair,
Are dsncing on the green;
Lst's join the happy group, The merry, langbing troop,
And swell the festive seene.
Dance, dance, dance!
Lat's tread a merry round,
On green enamelled gronni, To mnsic'e glensomo tune ; We'll heve no more sueb nights, Sneb moonlight deep delights,
Till the leafy month of June.
Hark, sister, bark Along tbe quiet dell,
The solemn, tolling bell Proclaime 'tis deep midnigbt; To rest lot all begone,
Good-nigbt to overy one, Good-nigbt! good-might1 good-migbt

CRANT'S BATTLES IN VIRCINIA.

 We continue in our present issue our seriee dan, whicli, in their sangulanry charnctor, are almoent uncqnalled. The mind elindders to hanhold sich efaarful and, to all eppearonco, unavalling offuaion of humanhlood. For ncarly two weeks two milghty armies haye hurled at ench other slmost without intermtesion the deadivet mulsalee which modera ingenuity snd selienco supply, and ntlll no adv nelther army defeated.
Our aketches aro- fino view of the hattho of the WU-dernees on تriday May 6 th, sletehed from tho head quartera of the हth nemy corpe. In tho contre encariy may bo seen Gon. Granit and hle staff, the sifnnal corp
Lear

 awniting the enemy's attack
Thce Akotrees, vith the atriling incluent on our Arst pago of negro cavalry carrying two robel Geuerala to the renri, aro tmade on the spot, amid $n$ thoneabid dengcres ani privation

 a month. Still, enoura reach na to tive
all times proinpt authentic enketches of the

THE WAR IN DENMARK. Battle around Duppol, April 18, 1864.  Thes war waged on the petty lingdom of Demuark by Prussio and Anstrio hes cxclied the utmost sympouthy for that unfortunatoto redim, which, under ito gallant Fing, has eteadily battled againat the inved host with ith petty army, conteeting almoet masdly cach line of detencs.  To Dife Daminewerk wnel lost, and the allee thrn lald stege to Ditppel, or Dyibri. Strong ae thia place was, it could not hold out ngalutt overvariming numbers. Dlippel   lons amounted to two Gemerala, bo offeoru auz 000 prib vate killed nid wounded. The Gerroan troops wer ordored to occupy tho whole province of Jntiand end to lay slege to Fredericin iniwe fintoty. A conference called previously may savo the Deuta         over the water. The enstlo and church are on th nnid tho fank buttiry on the right. On tho fico lill the Pruswins and Dance are scen engoged.

AN HOUR WITH A SNAKE CHARMER

"and if any oncie ancioning, thano so says tho proverh, enbject, no proceee wil he found so effectuol ae that of caronal ocular denonethation, imore eeppeciaily when that eviacnco 19 seoptically texsminca in my life, I was hitofy introduced to on Indian amako
During a professtonas ride through the stition in which of the enn, whion wae juot then $n$ excososive, and vanturad to call on a to call on a friend for a nhort cheltor, desptev the full conviction that I chould find him indulging in that mildconviction thant I ehooul find him induiging in that mid day sicsta no cominon s luxary to the Europesno living

I wne not nimbthicct. "Never midu me; conve in, old perion by entoring hio bedidion, waich 1
 Ing in the corner of the room. Inaivanced tomarids them, performed by my Hriend and mynalf, and the native ser Vants woro simewhat atartled hy ahifeks of: "A snakel & Analee Get a gas 1" and, I noed not say, soma distanco from the door. Various rosuits warco arrived at the rort, proposed thint the euake should be canght nad then deetroged.

 "Why, he'e gione!"
"Look in tho bed, capbonti, Arowere, ncoke and cos-

"Phew1"
"Don't Epeak, we Ehall lose him1"
"Hore's tho charmer "

 dothing wass roduced to ite minimum, and ho ouly carried #hort iron rod.
He

 and hill him. He accounted for hue easy eapture by suy-ling that this wase great holiday for the eunkes, and they

> WISHINQ.
> Or all amusements for the mind,
From logic down to fishing, From logic down to firhing, So very cheap as ""wishing!" A very ehoice diversion, too If we hnt rightly use it, And not, as we are apt to do,
Pervert it and abuso it.

> I wish-a common wisb, indeedMyy purse was something fatter, And not my pride to fiatter And not my pride to flatter As ouly gold ean make it, And hreak the tyrant's rod of ateel, As only gold can break it 1
> I wish-thet Sympathy and Love That has its origin above, Would come and leeep in fashion; That Scorn, and Jenlouay, and Hate And every hase emotion, Were baried fifty fathoms deep > wish-that friends were always true, And motives nlways pure; I wish the good were not no fev,
I wish the bad were fewer; I wish the bad were fewer; wish that parsons ue er forgot I wish that practising was net So different from preaching
> I wish-that modest worth might be wish that innocence were freo Frem treaehery and slander; wish thet meu thoir vowe would mind That womon ne'er were rovers; I wish that wives were always kind,
And hnsbands alwayg lovers !

> I wish-in fine-that joy nud mirth, And every good iden
Moy come, erewhile, tiroughout the earth To he the glotious resl;
Till God shall every ereature hlese Mill God shall every ereature
Withl his supremest hlessing, And bope ho lost in happiness,
And wishing he posscessing

The Gulf Between Them. by arrs. any s. strzpirins.

ofapten xxxix.

When Elizabeth Mellen quitted the graveyard she was fer the moment insane. He had left her terly. He had forsaken her tbere in that cold, desolate night, regartdess that she had once been his wifs, scorning to remenuber her even as a Woman. This thought stuug her proud soul through sll ite anguish. She would not return heme; not a single hour would she rest under the roof which loomed up so gray nud ghostly behind thoos weird trees. Bnt where could she go? in those weird trees. Bnt where could she go? in all the hendlonds that spread awey from the const there was no shelter for her. Degraded, brokenthere was no shelter for her. Degraded, hearted, abnadonod to her fate, like a wild animal, She stood alone among the graves of those who blow, long as it had heen dreaded, came upon her suddenly at last, At the bottom of her heart there had heen all tbe while a desperate hopo of eseape. But it was over now. The worst had come, and that was almost annibilation. She come, and that wss almost ammibiation. She looked up to the sky. The stars were all out. Thas soft gray clouds whieh had flosted over them heary, so hesvy that thes ocean wes one mass o hlaekness, as if the mighty deep had yeilod itsel with mourning, whide the throes of a coming tempest heaved its inner depths.
Never in this worla had a human heing been osst forth to such uttor desolation. She looked down on the torn earth at her feet, and her poor heart ached to lic down with that other woman, She thought of that woman with struuge envy, remembering that the ocean hed enst hor forth when it monned and hesved as she could hear it now. The grand, henonceut ocena, that could give death bent her head and listened to that far-off voice that held her with a sort of fuscination. "I will go," she said, "I will go. It calls me with ten thousand vaices, it calle me." with ten thousand voices, it calls mc.
She startod away from the tombet which she hadleaned, and swiftly threading a paesage through the graves, forced her way out by he coder grove and saw her pass. Hoil he com forth nll might have hoon well, lut ficree pride rushed in and checked the nohle impulse that had brought him hack so tar. She ewept ewittly hy him and was loat in the fog. Some etrong im pulse of love broke up through the insane fascination which drove her towards the ocoan, end in pite of herself she drifted homewards. Once a hreak in the clouds eent down wild gleams o ight, throwing ap black vietae of sloom threug every broah in the woods, and revealing dense gray came darloness again, snd che wandered on Without knowing how, Elizabeth Lound herself on leares and liste autumn bloseoms rose up from th aoil, and cuveloped bor with siokening reinomhratces. All at onco the woman rocognised the place. That hugo pile with its gabloo and towere had been her home ouly a few eiort hows hefore. Why had she turnce that way? What moeking fiend had driven her back againet her will? Th thonght maddened her, but she could not move,
The passionate love in her heart anehorod thoee weary foet. She flung op her arms towards window through which a hight shone dimly, window through which a hight shone dimly, the window of his room, and nn agonising cry of farewell broke from her. It was his name that fled from her lips fike a living arrow, and renehed her husland in the gloomy stiliness of his chamber. The window opened. She tore her fhet from the earth and fled. Her husband, of all others, should not know that she way there, prowl ing abont the home from which he had driven her That cry ef agony coming from her Eperirightened back her pride. She darted away acroes that flowerbeds, threugb thickets snd ever the lawn, which lay moist and heavy under the fog. Her wet feet got entangled among elusters of dead wet feet got entangled among elusters of docin hebotrope ond erysanthemumg, still blooming hebotrope and ergasnthemums, stail shawl blew loose from her hands, whieh rosebushes. Fragments of her dreas were lefi behind. She plunged into a swampy hollow where elnsters of tall catstail, wweet fing and scdsy rushes grew around a little pond, swarming with trout and wold fish. Her feet sank into the maret trout and gold firh. Her feot sank into the maroh till the water gurgled over her geiters, She stood a moment, looling ent upon the hlnek pool, tempted to throw horsolf in ; but some water-rat or frog, frightened by her approach, made a great lenp, frightenod by her approach, made a great leap, snd plunged into the hlack deptbe, giving thus a snd plunged into the haek deptbs, siving thus a a horrible idea of reptile life. a horrible idea of reptile life.
Not thero, not there;
Not thero, not there; no oue shonld find her after elie was dead. The oceen, the great hearafter ehe was dend. The oceen, the great hoav-ing ocean had called her; why was she lingeriog ing ocean had called her; why was she lingering hy that mistorable pool of hlack water, full of living things? Again she plunged forwsrd, hroke through the tangled sedges, and trampled down the spicy peppormint, till she reached firm land again. Then or-on-on till she stood zudor the again. Then oh-on-on till she stood ruudor the beeting eliff whieh frowned ever the elhore tevern. It was the dark hour now which comes just before daykight. The gleam of a eandle shone through one of the tavern windows, and this faint idea of warmoth drew her that way. She erept up close to the building, and threngh the little panes of glass saw Benson with his daughter and her childreu at lirealfast together. When the days grew ahort it had always hoen the old man's habit to ent his breakfast by candlelight. It was a pleneant, homely pieturo that the wreteined woman looked upon. Her haggard oyes grew wild at the sight of so much werman, while hor teeth chattered with cold, and terrible clinls shook her from head to foot. A noble wood fire blazed on the heairth, filling the small white washed room with its golden glow. The soft steam from the teakettle cauled up the chimuey, odor through the ill-fitted &nsh.
Eliznbeth had eaten nothing for the past two days, and with the sight of this comfortable hrealfast an aching desire for food soized on her. Food and warmith; let her hnve them and she was roady to die. This animal want drew bor was roady to die. This animal want drew bor elose to the window. A child at the table saw that white face with its wild burning eyes, and pointod its finger, ntteriag frightened shriekis.
Elizabeth darted awny, crying out to the storm, Elizabeth darted awny,-crying out to the storm,
"They will not have me ; even his menials drive "They will
The beach was not far off, and from it rose a of mur hashing wis of mustering storms, Afnr off the monn of the deep had sonnded lite an entreaty, but now it crme full and strong, commanding hor to approach. Sbe cheyed these oceau voices like a bittle child; all her powers of reasoning were ittle child; all her powers of reasoning were gone; all conscioueness of pain or danger begone; all consciousmess of pain or danger be-nambed; everything elso had rejected her, bat the grent oeenn was strong, houndless. With one hesye of its mighty bosom it would sweep her sway for ever.
She walked steadily on to the heach, forcing her way to the sands; through drifts of soaweed and slippery stones, ou, on she walked, elowly, and slippery stones, ou, on she walked, flowly, hut with horrible firmaness, through great feathers of foam that carled upon the sands; on and on through whirlvinds of spray, till a great wave seized her in its hlaek undertow and she was gone.
apmen xi.
ALs that day Elsie romained in bed, sleeping a rould not permit single instant. Her hrother's presonce seemod to fill her with dread, and she shrank with a strange sort of timidity from overy tender word or soothing caress; atill she was wretched if he left her hed Evening eame, and he wes compalled to go through the pretenco of another meal; indeed he forcod himseif to eat, for he hegan to grow angry with his own weaknces.
He had thought wben the first struggle was over to feol ouly an iey, implacahlo resentmeat over to feel ouly an iey, implacaldo resentmeat against the woman who had wrouged him; he was against the woman who had wrougci him; he was atronger than his rage, more powerful than the he love he had believed rootcd auddenly from hi heart, ns a strong tree is torn up hy a toruado.
Yce, he regretted her! It was not only that Yes, he regretted herl It was not only that his her prest be a desolate blank, he so pined for have rashed out in search of her, nad taken her her sin.
He roused bimself from wbat appearce to lim auch degrading wealmess by ono thonght; tbe night tbe partner in hor guilt would visit the house he and hisold enemy would etand face to faec, onco of them only to cqit the ecene of meeting alive. Sbe could not reach the villain in time to warn him, even if sbe had left ha the light for that parpose.
That thought hrought all the hordnees hackc to his face, all the insene passion to his soul, hut centred now upon the man,

Alone in his hihrary, Grantley Mrellen wrote eevoral lettera; it was impossible to tell how sevoral letters; it was impossible to tell how that meeting would end, and he must mskita that meeting would ond, and he must mas preparations for the worst. When all was done he rose to go npstairs agnin ; a sudaten resointion more, and wrote these lines
"Elizaboth-I said that even in your dying hour I would never forgive you; I retraet, I my pardon can console your last momenta, romember tobet it is yours. I have made no alteration in my vill wat it is yours. I have made no alteratior in my will; if yeu can aceept the benefite whieh may acerne to you by my desth, take them; but so corely as yon over attempt to approach the innoavrely as yon ever attempt to approsch the inno-eont girl who has been solong endengered by your compan companionship my enrse shall follow you, even from the grave to which you will have consigned
me."

He put the note in an envelope, seale

fully, and addressed it- "For Elizabeth."
He laid it inside the letter he had written Elsie, put the papers all away in the desk, and left the Tho
Those were only necessary preesutions to maks
Grantloy Mellen's mind was so fiercely wrough apon that enly his desth or that of the man who had twice wronged him must pay tho forfeit.
He found Elsie sitting wp in He found Elsie sitting up in bed. She ahrsak away among the pillowa when he entered; he san away among the pillows when he entered; he sam the movemeut, and it shook lida heart with a new pang. This artful yoman had drawn the spell of her fascinations as elosely about tbat puro girl as she had around him. Elsio shrank from the brother who had deprived her of tho leve en whiel ther who had deprived her of tho leve ou whioh she had leaned. Flizabeth had left him nothing she had leaned.
"Are you feeling better?" he asked, sitting "Are you feeli down hy the bed.
"Oh, I never shall be any better," ahe mumund; "I shall die, and then, porhaps, you vill be Ho could not he angry with her; it ouly wounded aud stuug him to hear her spealt thus, hut h anaswered, pationtly
"When yeu are able to reflect, Elsie, you will see that I could not have aeted differently. Few men that I could not have aeted differently. Few men would heve slewn as much lenioncy as I bave doue; regardless of the eonsequences to themeelves, they wonld have made that woman's conduct public, and wonld hape made that woman's conduct public, and wronched from her tho Inst hope",
"She wasn't bad," cried Elsie;
She wasu't bad," cried elsie; "you are crazy to think so. She was the hest woman in the world. think so. She was the hest woman in the world.
"Have you forgoticn wbat I told you th is morn ing-whst I was forced to tell you or submit to your hatred? From yon window you conld look out on the spot where she had huriod-" "Be still" interrupted Eltie, with a slujek,
"I won't stay in the house if you go on so-bo "I won't sta still, I sny"
It required all his efforts to soothe the excited girl. He longed to questiou her, to lnow if she to understand how she could have becu so persist ently deceived, but she was in no state to cudur such inquiries then.
Elsie lay hack among her pillowe, refusing to bo comforted, saying only: comforted, saying only
"If you want to cure me send for Bescie-my dear, dear Bessie! Search for her-send the people out!" "Elsie, she has gone to him; I esunot follow her thero."
"No, no; she is waudering chout in tho coll. Go, seareb for horl" "Anything bat that, Elsie-ask anything clse "I the world"
" $\Delta$ s soon ta ta you aro better we will go away from here, " he continued; to Europe, if you like," "But how will she live?" persisted Elsie, "What will heeome of her? No money-no friends. Oh, Bessie, Bessie
"She has enough to hive on," he replied. "There are stocks enough dincome" "But tbey are gone," cried Elsic. Then, renuembering the danger to herself in that avowal, she stopped suddenly
"Gouel" he re
"Goue 1 " he repeated. "How do you know?
Oh, Elsie, do you know more then you own Oh, Elsie, do you know more then you own--do-""
"Stop, stop1" she seresmed. "You hevo driven Bessie away, and uow you want to killinel I don't Bessie away, and uow you want anything-you know I don't. Juet the other day Bessio spoke something abont the stoeks; I thought from whet she ssid that you had taken them baek for some purpose.
He was perfectly satisfied with her explanation, hnt the distrese aud frightinto which she had falle hnt the distress aud frightinto which she had fallen nearly brought on anothor nervons crisis, Great arops of perspuration stood on her forehesd, and the elender fingers he held worked nervonsly in his grasp.
"Don't talls any mord dear child," he aaid "Iry to go to slcep again".
"I can't slep- I never shall rest again--neve Ifeel so wicked--I hato mysolf"
"Child, what do you mean ?"
She must restroin herseif, no danger muat come near her. Even her sorrow for Elizaheth, he stinging remorso could not make her unselifish enough to run any personal risk of his displeasture. I don't know whet I mean-nothing at all1 But it drivcs me wild to think of Besses. Where eau she be-where could ehe go? Suppose she has lilled-hereolf! Oh, she may be drowned in the hay- drowned-drownedu" Sle went noarly mad with tbe ideos which her fancy conjured up, but it was perfectly in Eecping with her eharacter that in the very extremity of with her eharacter that in the very extremity oi her suffering no word for Elizabeth ehonld be poken that would implicate hersolf. Melleu must "You will have her ararehed for," sho cricd "promise me that, if you don't want to kill me outright, promise me that."
It could do no good, Elsie, none whatever. "It might, it would I If she has no money what will become of her?"
"I mill ingatis to-morrour," he replicad "I will Mrite to Mndaon. It she has dieposed of the stoelis w will bee that bibe has means to bivo upon; 1 promieo yon flite Aftor this night sho will need it:"
"Really, truly Cl "
"Did Iever lireak my mord, Elsiop
"No, no; but you are so hard aud etern."
"Nover with you, darling-never with you.
She groaned nload, but hastered to "My poor little Elsie, my eister, my
"Do you leve me so mueh, Grant?
"Bettor than ever; you are all I have now! Oh Elsie, den't ahnt your heart against me, I ean't bear that. Try to believe that I have acted as justly as a man conld. To tho astly as a man conld. To the whole world I can Ioved that woman so, my heart is breaslang nnder this grief. Bear patiently with me, child,"
"Oh, if yoll saffer so send for her back," eriod Blicie. "Let her explain: you gave her no "Hnsi"

Hnsb, hash! Have I not said all those thing This man
This meu's pride was 50 uttorly erushed that he this frail girl, scarcely earing to conceal from her how keenly he suffored.
"But try," pleaded Elisie; " only try."
"It is imposaille; leter, you will sco that plainly as I do. Don't you see what a sin I should commit in taking a false, dishonored woman back to my heart ; what a wrong to my sister in exposing to my heart; what a wrong to my sistor in exposing her to the socioty of a creature so lost and falten?" "Sho is good!" cried Elsio. "Beasie was an angel! Oh, I wish I was dead-dead-deadl I exn't hear this; it is too much-too mueb $1^{\text {n }}$ Elsie rubbed hor hands and sobbed piteously;
she bad wept until she had no tears left, and tbat she bad wept until she had no tears left, and tbat choked anguish was more painful to witness than the most violont onthurst of tears. "She loved her so"
"as twined round that girles beart as sho en thralled mino; she has broken botb."
"What are you ayying, Grant?"
"Nothing, dear ; I only pitied you and myeelf for loving her so," "I " loving her so ."
"I will always lo
Inill always love her," cried Elsie ; "you nover shall change me ; nothing slall do that. She ie innoeent; I bolieve it ; I would sey so before the whole world."
"Elsio," hs said, "if anything sbould happen She ; if I should dic-
She esught his hands and begsu to tremblo.
"What do you mean?
"What do you mean? Die-die I"
"Nothing, dear; don't be frightou Nothing, dear; don't be frightoued. But life is unoertain; what I mean is this-if you should ontlive me promise uever to seek that woman outbve me promise uever to seek that woman
"I esn't promise thast; I can't be so wicked."
You must, Elsie."
"I ean't; I woa't1 No, no; III nover be bad enough for that ${ }^{\text {" }}$ "
"If you rofase me this, Elsie, you will sink a "nlf between us which ean never be filled up,
"Don't talk so; remember how siek $I$ am."
"I do ; I won't agitate you, but we must have
"I do ; I won't agitate you, bat we mu su end of tbis subject. If I shonld die-""
"I won't hear you talk sbout dying;" sho broke "Yon frightou me; yeu'll kill me."
But he went on resolutely
"Promise never to see er henr from her."
" Not that ; it is too wicked"
"Not that; it is too wicked-too horriblo",
"Else," he eried in stern passion, "promi "Elsie," he eried in stern passion, "promise, or I will go out of this room, and though we live or 1 wine go it spall be as strangers."
He rose as if to fulfil his threst; she sprang up in hod; her cowardice, ber selfishness mastered every other feeling.
"I promise. Co
"I promise. Come hnek, Grant, come back;
dol" oll, do!"
Ho seat
Ho seated limself agoin, soothed and caressed
We wou't talk any more," ho said, kinaly. "Heneeforth let overything conneetod with this subject be dead botweon ns ; that womau's name must uever be mentioned here ; her very memory must uever be mentioned here; her very memory must he swept out of the dweling she has dishonored. You and I will bury the past, Eleie, and honored. You and I will bury the past, Elesie, and plaee a heavy stone over the toinb; will you replaee a heary stone nember that, ehild?"
"Yes, yee ; anything! Do what you please ; I "Inderggle any longer; it is not my faut," giving as an angoll! Oh, Elsie, in all the world yours is the only true heart I have found." She lay there aud allowed him to speak those words; sho suffered torribly, hut she condd uot forco her soul to be courn geous cyon then. In time her volatile mature wonld turn determinedly from that dark tragedy; she would convince herself that she was ntterly powerless ; that, since it conld do she was ntterly powericss ; that, since it could do no good to grieve over Elizabetb and her mournful fate, it was hetler that she should dismise all reeollection of that scason from her mind, drown and the past.
But ns yet
But as yet ahe could not do that; she was completoly unnerved and ineapable of sach resolutions. So she writhed there in her pitiablo pain and caught at every strow for comiort.
"You won't forget your promise, Grant p"
"What, dear $?^{\prime \prime}$ "
"To send money-that che may live, you know." II will not forget, rest satisfied. I will atteud more", "How can I help thinking? You might as well
" tell me not to breathe; I mnst think 1"
"The end has come ; it can do no good to look beck $1^{1 "}$ Almost tbe very words Elizalieth had so many Aimost toe very woras thosabe last turrillo dayy
the recolleatedion duent hike a dagger to Flsie's very times
the ree
soul.
It wa
wae a long time before she conld bs restored

to anything like compesare; then Mellon forbade her to talk any more, fesring the conseqnences of anch eontinned exoitement.

 "Yon can sloep, now, darling; you will be better " the morning."And will ke me away from here, Grant?
"I don't care about the place-the ferther the better! I oannot stay in this house-I should di here. Bnt not to Europe-oh, you won't take m - Europe ?"

He only thought the sndden terror in her voiee rose from a fear of the voyage or some similar weakness. Yon shall choose, Elnie ; just where you plesse.
We will go to the West Indios-sa yon say, the arther the better."
"Yes, Grant, yes
Now shut your eyes and go to aleep."
Yon won't loave me," nho plended.
Yon won't lisave me," nhe pleaded
No ; I eiall stay here all night."
"It; is on dreadful to be alone," she went on, inncing wildey sbont the roem; "I should go mad to walke up and find myeelf alone.
"Yon shall not, dear; indeed yon shall not," She grew quiet then; aftor a little time he seard Victerin in the hall, and went ont to speak with her.
"You will bio down on the hed in the room next Miss Elsie"s," he said, "and be noar her if she wants anything.
Ho had not forgotten that he must be ahsont a portion of the night, end wus carcfal te guard the cherished girl oga fright or agitation.
He epent the evening in Elaio's siok chamber as he had passed the day. Elaie did uot sleop, but ahe was gisd to lie quict and keep her eyes closed, ahutting out tho ohjocts around hor. Som to bear sho would start up, catelh his hands and shriel lis name Towardia midnight she fell into a heavy slumber. More than an honr before he heard Victoria enter the naxt room and knew that he could leave Elede in safety,
He bent orer the bed, kissed her white forehead, nd stole soitly out of the room.
He went down into the library snd sat there Faiting, starting at the loast soond, in the helief hat the wished-for moment had arrived-that he nemy. The hours passed, hat there was no step from without, no sign of approach anywhere ebont the house.
Ho went to the window, pushed hack the curlains and looked out-the first thing he saw was tho oypress treo waving its branches as they had done the night hefore when nartieulato efforts to speak.
The moon wss up now, streaming down with a rodiance of the previous night. How the reeolleetions of those fearful hours, came hack as he stoed therel He lived over every pang, felt evcry ing on the dead ohject which had shut out all happiness from him for ever.
Suddenly he sam the figure of a man stenling open the window and dashod out in pursuit. He was too lato-tho intrudor disappeared, and though he made a long and diligent seareh his efforts were futile.
He retiumed to the house, livid with the now ge, whieh had come over him.
"I will find him," he muttered; "there is no spot so distant, no place so seeret, that ny ven-
geence shall not hunt him down
So the night passed, end when the dawn again
atruggled into the sky Grandley Mellenreturnca te his sister's chember, and sat down te watch onee more that deep, painftul slumher.
No slcep appronched his eyelids-it seemed to hin that he should never lose conseiousness again-that never even for an iustant would thast crushing sorrow and that mad craving for revenge loave him at rest. lenve him at rest.

NICHT AND DEATH  nY Jos, hLANCO WBTTE

Myetratous Night! when our frot paront knew Thee, frem report divine, and heard thy name This glorious canopy of tight and bine?
Yet 'neaith a eurtain of tranalneent dev,
Bathed in the rays of the great setting flame,
Hesperus, with the host of Heaven came, And, lot Oreation widened in man's viey. Who could bave thonght sueh derkme

Within thy beams, o San 1 or who could fina, Thist flower, and leaf, and inseet stood reveale Why to we then countless or bs thou mad'st us blind Why do we then ahum Death with anxions strife?
IS Light ean thus dcceive, wherefore not Life?

Circumstantial Zuidence.

AN INOIDENT PROM REAL LIFE by f. e. brock.
How often I have heen led to reflect on the probable number of innocent persons who are hung or otherwise punished. Cennected as I have boen trith one of the criminal courts of England, I have had many oppertunities of witnessing on how slight an evilonce a man may lose his life. At that dark period in my cenntry's histery when death by hangugy was the penalty for forger when deaid by hanghy was the penalty for forgery, sheopstesling and other minor offences, many sheopstesting and othier minor offences, may men must have lost their lives merely through a curious chain of circumstanees, through thoir own limprudence, or, sometimes, I am sorry to say, through tho maliee, envy or solfishness of others, When I wis a young man-for now I am fast hurrying to an old man's gravehurrying to an old man's grave-a ease eame under my own obsorvation for tho truth of whioh I der my own obsorvation for tho truth of which I can voueh, and which will show how easy it is for mankind to be misled, prono as they are to jump it eonclusions.
In the weste
rge fortane end landed property, which was on tailed, that is, secured to a certain snccession of heirs. The present heir to the property at the time of whinh I write wss a young man of abeut twents-two years of age. I shall net give his correct name, but will call him Edward Langsdou. He had a cousin, Arthur Langdon, who, in the event of the former dying without an heir, would succeed to the property. These two young men were extremely fond of oach other, and had heen constant companions since their childhood heen constant companions since their childhood.
They had always been as brothers to each other, and were never contented when apart.
Arthur had of late controcted debts of which he has, with his nsual gencresity, liguidnted. The latter was extremely fond of roming over the eountry, with his cousin as his only companion, and at the time of the ovents which I am ahout to relate had etarted on one of thesse excursions, an were intending to stop a while on the hanks of the pretty river Tamar.
hack Edward wae attaeked hy a sudden dizzinees and violent headnehe, for whioh he thought hlood letting would be the only reunedy. He, therefore, callod upon Arthur to pertorm that, Bervice for him, who demurred, fearing lest, in hisignorance, him, nho demurred, fearing lest, in hisignorance, he might do moro harm than goed. But hisconsin he might do moro harm than goed. But his cousin was resolute, and at last he consented, sad nfter opening the vein with his knife and allowing the wound with an extre handkerchief of his own Edward then feeling better, they rode on till they came to an inn on the bonk of the xiver. Here they stopped, srowing their intention of remnin-
When night
chamhen, nud came they retired to the same in bed, and quiekly dropped off into a aound slumber. He did not awake until afer daylight, and on opening his cyos found himsell alonge snd the hed eovered with hlood. Aimost st the same moment that he made this discovery, snd while he was trying to eolleet his sesttered idcas, the doe opened aud a servant thrust in his head, He sohtary oeeupent and thon retrested, hut soon returned with the landlord and a gaping crowid who immediatoly made Arthur their prisoner.
The servant had found spots of hlood at the river The servant had found spots of hlood at the rive youpg men's apartment, where ho had entered as I he evidence of a foul murder, Arthur was kept hy the landlord until the arrival of the proper anthortties, when he was delivered into their keeping, and thing was aganingt poor Arthur, who, amidst hi own grief at the lose of his heloved consin, for he at being suspocted es his nurderar, hes horro whelming At the trina the proofs were overohief with Arthur's uamo upon it, the knifo whith wha foumd in his pocket with the same stains o rant openod the door, all these seemed to poin the fiot that he was in debt to Edward, and more his ₹ast properiy, worked againet him ; the hlood. letting in the wood, offiered as an explanation o trived plea to ahiold the eriminal from his juas tring dored Edward in the etillness of night, nad havns carried the body down to the river had enst it no trace of the hody could he found. Not mueh time wes nllowed to sllp hy in tho trial, for it was tought te he such an inhmman aliair that retribution should imunediatoly follow. Not one of tho whole family of Langdons would visit Arthar in except his poor mothor, who, in spite of all the convicting evidence, msintained her firm faith in convicting evid his innocence.
At last the sentence came; the terrible sentence, solemoly and with awful distinetness, prononnee the adict that on Ench a dny (naning ono not far distant) Arthor Langdon was to be pubhely gibbeted for the wifful murder of his cousin, Edward Laugdon.
This severeat penalty of the law had not been inflieted on a criminal for many years, yet all felt that it was none too serere fer the snormity of the crime.
The dreedfal day drew near. Arthur, lonowing himself to be innocent, felt that semething would oceur to procure his release. Perhaps oven Edoceur to procure his release. Perhaps oven Edward, alive aud well, would make his appoarance, ward anve aud well, would make his appoarance, and acount for all the strsnge curcumstances, He could not think that he would lose his life for an uncommitted crime. His hopes were vain.
tion. Evon then he dia not despair. He still de clared his innocence, but, notwithatanding his assertions, he was gibbeted in chains, thore te remain a subject fer the revilings of an indignant main a subbect fer the revilings of an indignant populsee, until death should rekeve hig sufferinge But he was net ro to die.
At this time the preap
ing mon for the presigange were at work collee ing mon for the navy, and hoaring of a man being and aceordingly tait here was a chance for them, they overpowered the to the pluee at midnight, carried him and the guard, cut Archar dowa an pected thad become of them, though meny sus pected the true reason of their disappearance. Ae eim in life, he did his appointed work on slipiboard in moody silence; but when the vessel was eugaged in bettle he was the braveet of the hrave, and won for himself great honors. He often wondered why ous of life struck down at his side men so desi At last the reacl wa ment that ehe was obliged to put into anomga for repairs, and the eommander concluded that he would return to England. But the pressed men hnit not all served out their appointed time ; so, after waiting for enother British yessol to come in sight, he hailed it, aud pat these men on board. Amon dejected mawner he slowly walled from aecustome to the other. But ecareely hed he stepped on board the intter when he heard the glad ery of "Arthur I Arthur 1" tourning his head in the direction of the voice, ne beheld his consin Edward, for whom he lad so nif 1 . Both these strong men wept heare children.
The oxplnation, followed: Edward had gone t elhort time, found that the bandage on his arm hat hecome loosened hy his change of posture, aud his arm was bleeding freely. After trying for some time to staunch the wioed, he had tied his own handtoo muoh asturated), and having dressed, he had Fater down to the river, to try the efticet of col but a fow momente when a hout landed, and som men jumping out came towards him. He discovered too hate that it was a presggang, and was canried sway hy thein. He sasd he had oiton wonlut that they ehould conclude he hed been murdered seemed to him very strange, and he was indignant that the crime shonld have been charged upon Arthur, railing bitterly against allhis countryOn the the or the execution.
upon almost ns men ariean from the were looked irrcumstanee confirmed in me a strong prejadice ngainst capital punishment. I maintain the doe caseas except where a confesaion is made, and in many instances an exocution has amounted to nothing less than murder.

Depti op thr Sea.-Capt. Sir John Ross

 ag watora ware increased only by oze-fourth, they would diown the oarth, with the exception of some hifigh mour tinis.

Frenor Methon of Preserving Grapes, -

wator to remove the dime.
SIARISTics or INFANIBY, - A young offeer

FUN - OR THE FAMILY.
WirTx MI wCerre. -The Duke of Gram-

 WIIT is a lo ly young lady like a hinge? Marnixvo a dieagreenble woman for the salke A woxns is no fit to have a haby who doosnt haow how to hold it; end tuis is as true of a tongue os of o onby. If this world is a free ehow, what's the price nd a good deal of thadow.

 and relows ond" (have ond
 Ax acidulou

 tho ground of inubility to endure long marches ana' thic hardships of camp IIfol A omiraxv editor gives his opinion in :
ent tumbber of hio journal it tho following torme:

Op all the dust thrown in men's oyes, gola dost is the most blinethng. Or all the Peroy family Percy to pree.
"Asyrupse ta please the child, "as the nurso whit whea she let the baby omwl out of tho nureery Tompriws coneiders that a brielleee barrister ought never to be blamed; "or onatane a man wibuota ocone.
 Most men espouse a party as an Indian es.
pomece a wife-not to trrve it hat to make it orve A cook should havs an eys to her pots; a Younc loverss should reviember that the moet neercels-burning trechrands are those lindled st Hoe altar. To defend a poitical editor against ahube ia ihe boiding an umprelli over a dick in a chower. NEw Xonk millkmen have the consciancee to all water at jut as high prices in wot weather au in AN old augler rays that no oue by merely coaversing wifla a fish over succecodod in drawina Lonses are soldom troubled with the dumh ague, pat are very subjeed to the kind thint malkes the ngue, nata tere

A Drficuir Questron. - Are the minutee re-titog to an ulfair of honor alwayo drawn up hy the

duat his neud was going roumal.
 TME following certificate of marriage was

 F" Now, then, Thomas, what are you harning of my writhgetabio? eald in anthor to hio e erramit.
 As Irigh had complained the other day of tho

SPANISH OUTRACE IN PERU.
rebollion, a peries of aggreanive acte copmilted by Euro pean Governments againat the Statea of the American pean Governmenta aguinst the Statear of the America Coutincnt. Among these the Moxlcan Expeditlon and Coutincht. Among these the Mfoxican Exppaition and the subsequent proclamation of the Mexican Empire;
the sibivgation the subsequant proclamation of the Mexican Emprie;

174

 The conminttee then withdirew,
 ando thorfi,
The Oomittec on Recolution repported the following,
Which were ananimoualy & dopted seriditin:

 and ebsorption of the Areerican reppublice Reseolved, Thst pant paressiona ond impending dan gers

 silyned hy the officorrat thoereof, and a cops nont to th Presidents of Pern und the Unilod Btace, and that the EDME. W. Sampart, Secretar

 Wh whal give furthur ilingtratogut, show wing the mind
nor werking and trangorting the guluo.

The Paris Monde sayo: "The Duke of

 The commerce of the world requives
s.joo,

OVER ALL COMPNTMTORS.
 mANJFACTURERS OS

Grand, Square and Upright Pianofortes.

THACDERG'B OMRTHICATY:

 Warerooms, 652 Broadway, 玉. X., 246 Washington Street, Boston.

Seaside Summer Resort

000 Nervous Dobllity, Eecret Infirmitien of

EMMPLOYMERTT AT YOUR OWN HOMES.

Whiskers! Whiskers!

Personal Identities.

 $\Delta$ Phat Without Hoed Hor Animata are Mado- Terrce

Now Ready

Henpecked Husband!

A. NOTVPI.

BY GIE AUTHOR OF "THE FLIRT," phice firty cents.

 ank in modery isteratizi

Ereads of the Ieadera.

 16 canto, hy FOWLER \& WELLS, 889 Broadway, $\mathrm{N}, \mathrm{y}$. | LADIES OR | MARRMFD OR GINGLE, whabing |
| :---: | :---: |
| GENTLEMEN | Beauty, Health and Happioces, ehoule |

 Tew Torls Monthy

5,000

AGENTS WANTED a co inthoduce our
NEW GOLD PEN.

 Nato 2 Nedium Pan nod Foiact,

FRANK LESLIE'S LADY'S MAGAZINE

GAZETTE OF FASHION FOR JUND, 2864.

NOW FETADY,
Thise firet of Lady's Magestnow, with auperior attractions.
A Mammoth Colored Fashion-Plate. Four-Page Cut of Fashions
 sor Chiliarea, eto, etco., ote

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE, BY miss braddon, Ks continned in this number, which containe many admirabie siorles, illuetrated with other interoting mat tor; smong the rout, full desoription and illuatratious New New Iawn Crames of Croquet and Troco.
PREOE 2S CENTES.
For asle st all Nowidealers.

Dreams,

MANHATTAN

 Life Insurance CompanyNo, 31 Nespana Street, Neve York Opposite the Past ameo
Cash Capital and Accumulation over $$ 1,500,000$.
The triennital dirilead ef pronts of this company hes 50 per cent, on thas or wholst promfom palch of morn than The dividendes are pald in the lify.time of thus alding them to pas future premiums POLiomes are made lycontastable after Avo yours from date, for or on sccount of errore, ominsions end mifastamenivir the sppliestion, oxcopt as to oga
ANNUTIES are granted on favorabie termin

ETMNET कTOE:

Self-Cfovernment.

 Conquast-Undisctplined Intolisects-Our Appertern-Narrow Mews-Seri-

 or 15 coata by FOWLERR & WELIS, 389 Brondmay, N. y..

DURYEA'S MAIZENA beoenved two prize medals. INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION,

 At the Great Internutional Fxhibition atHamburg, Jaly 1 son, xeoelved the Highest Prize Medall for its Great Delloaoy as an Article or Food, Can bo enerved up in an infolite variety of deltolonss dinhes. Sold hy all Grocors, with directious. Pamphict, Fith 60 Recotpto, will be furnishod on spplication by letter or otherwise to S51-89 WMK DURYEA, Agent, 200 Fultan 8L., N. X.

TAKE A CHEANOE
Great Giff Distribution !
Of Gold Watches, Dlamond Ringe nd Mlegant Jewollory,
Worth $$ 300,000$.
WOOD, HOYT & CO., Jewellert, 197 Broad'y, N.Y.

 tho purchaster nuy ar artict ezchange for any other Taline se tho artiole drawn.

> INO PBT, ATNTEES!
> $\begin{aligned} & \text { Yon MAY got A WATCH Or DIANOND RING, } \\ & \text { Yon } \text { MUST got the VALUE of your money. }\end{aligned}$

Physiognomy,

will yon have Erandsome whiskers or MMoustachos?
ARE YOU BALDHEADED?
DR, BRIGGB's OOlebrated Golden OngDent bss proved to give ataidaction. $1 t$ will foros the Whiakers

NEW SONC BOOKS.

 are not to bo tound in any eliser colijeodial poetpald by OLIVER DITBON & CO., Pabidhers, Bonton.
Get the bett-DEAEERS, Send Oriters or 3 elt. for

J. H. WINSLOW & CO.

THE OREATEST oppontonty Ever offteed $1 \overline{100,000}$

Woxtin $500,000:

J. H. WHNsLOW, $&$ CO.

BATTLE PINS bemt by mail

 ARMY BADGES by the otpglo ona 100 or 1,000 Bond for Addrent

Attention, Company!

 4 16.57 P. 0. Drawer iis, Albñy, X . z

Do Zon Wrant to get IGarriod?

 The Confessions and Experience of an Invalid.

If Youn woant to Xinnow A Hithe of eversyhng reletatnge to the bumnn sustemu
MEDICAL COMMON SENSE.

Beauty- - Inutye White Ziquld Mnam-

[DISTILED DEW]

 $\xrightarrow{\text { And Dealor sonmethingTs Nowl Union Burner for }}$ Soldiers' Badges.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL,  DEGRAAF & TAYLOR, (FORMDRLE E. P. DEGRAAF),

NTO. 37 BODVEFEX, INEVE YORKS. Thew are prepared to offar one of the largent Furniture Housee in the Unitod Stotes.

ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND CHAMBER FURNITURE; Mahogany and Walnut, Parlor and Chamber Furniture; ALEQ, OANE and VOOD GEAT work, all qnalition; HATR, HOBT and SPRING MATTRESSES, D Lerge atock ENAMELLED CHAMBER FURNITURE, in Seta, from $$ 22$ to $$ 100$
Tucker's New Style Patent Spring Bed, Thi beat ea well no thio chenpest of any in ura. notar prico, $\mathbf{7 2}$ eacc,

Soldiers ${ }^{3}$ Money Belts,

REEMINGTEON'S

Warrantad superior to any othor Piotol of the lind.
Also Poctrot and Bolt Rovolvers. Sold hy the Trud
g. RMMENGTON be BONs,

1,000 NIT Oro A Aents Wanted in a Now, ond requiring no capitai. For particulass, address
s51-4

Do Xou Want Iuxuriant Whiskers or 3 NToustaches ?

 B. O. ORAHAM, 100 Niessua St, X. Y.

Gray's Patent Molded Collars

Havs now hean haforo tha puhho for nearly a year
Ther aso univernaliy pronounood tho neateat and bee They ing colilary oxtanit,
The uppor oige prosenta & porfact carve, free from OUTBIDE-and thorefore perfoctly free and easy to The Garotto colliar bas a amooth and ovonly fintehod
odge on Bort
Thiege ooll
 Thay wru mado in "Novelty" (or torn-down btyle)
in ovory half iliz from 12 to 17 Inchew, azd in "Eureka" (or Garotte), from 13 to 17 inches; and packed in $"$ nolld in amailer ones of 10 each conthe lining 100 sach; aiso

"Gray"e Patont Molded Collar:" Sold by an dealera in Mon'a Furndeling Ooods, Tha Trude aupplided by

Gouravis

 cories, found at the old eatibllahta Depot of
DR. FELII GOURAUD,

HOSTETTER'S caximbratud STOMACH BITTERS.
THE YALUE OF HEALTH IS NEVER REALISEN

亚

Hosteiter's Stomach Bitters,
 Cooley's Cabinet Printing Offico

 Sorchanth Bavzer, Touscora, na marratod top pritit in tio
J. O. COOLRX,
Spruco St, X. Y

MATRIMONIAL FAVORS
 At Tucrimg, 759 Eroadway.
 45 на тzLL_xsoms

PHOTOGRAPH CALLERY,

No. 2 New Chambers Etreet, tanding tho inereaso in $n$ ricice of difirerent mintarian, the chargos aro the same and the quality the beath Card Pyctures $\$ 150$ por $\mathrm{daz}^{2},-8$ for g 1.
 All other Photographa up to life size colored in oll or Witer at the moat tewonthis prices.

 Every atteation pala to visitora wialing to examine tho
spocimens,

GELSESEVMES

. Ninhasting.

75,000 Watches, Chains, &c. VOPRTEI $400,000.

 450-62 P. o. Dramer 118, Allany, X. X.

The Farly Physical Degeneracy of American People,

DRE, ANDREW STONE

swords, &ashos, Belts,
 "Psychomancy" ${ }^{\text {"How oither sor may }}$

 Mratrimony,-Why overy man should

madamiz binimictis
Millinery & Dressmaking Establishment Io now repleto with eyeby maported novelut of the senson. 13 Watrauzr Prace, Nex Yonr.

 Sterooscopic Viows and Cartes do Visite.
i,, ooo
 Sogal Tonder, Stationcry, Musio aud Jowolry Caskot. Now Soxios.
 $\$ 75 \mathrm{~A}$ Mronth $\boldsymbol{l}-\mathrm{I}$ want to hire A gents

NEW ARMY WATCHES.

$$ 60$ A MONTHY-I wrat Agemto at sooa monit,

J. W. EVERETT & CO.,

 "Album Gems,"-Gomothing Now, Gay

Photograph Cards for Gontiomon

\＄55 AMERICAN \＄55 LEVERS．
Trude Mark，P．8．Barclett，Walthum，Moes．，Full coese，oold joints，Parioy，Push Phi，for $$ 55$ ．

वृत⿱⿱亠䒑十纟 302 MDN

For Hardoning \＆Invigorating the Gums， Cleanoing，Bantifying and Proserring the Teoth， Purifying und swootening the Brathy venient，empaccocout and bencfictal article for tho Teeth

FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS！

DYSPEPSIA TABLETS，
Tor Indig astion，Hoartburn，\＆k
Dont fail to try them．Mrenufuctared only by For aile by all Drugits．Price， 69 cente per boz

TOMES，SON \＆．MELVAIN， 6 Maiden Tane，Now Yorko

 Areoricham Pipes，etc．，itc． yructary and Noran Equipmenta in avery varlety．
4 lerge anortmont of Rici paes

BRIDGEWATER PANT

Ground in Oll in six drab absidea for villas，Oottegen，

Norrous Diseases and Physical Dobili－

 Hootord
delpusin， Pa ．

STAMMERING  GOOD NEWS FOR THE ARMY！ Hereafter wo wil send，patpaid，say of our photo－ ILAPHIO ALBUMS ordereal hy sotilers for themeelvea or fricnis，Eivilug on Album of the flll vaium of the   CARD PHOTOCRAPHS  gue sent ou rece．pt of etamp  Stereoscopes and Stereoscopic Views． Oar nanortment of these fo very extenalye，including e arcat varicty of vioize of the present War．Catalogue sent on receipt of etamp．T．T．ANTHONY \＆OO， 48s－8．70 Manufuctureris of Photographic Moterial  Agonts Wanted to sell a Now and Correct Portraft of LIEUT．GEN．GRANT．Send  The Celcbrated CRAIG MICROSCOPE， combining Instruction with Amueoment，   Aluo，he will mall，propald，the Belle－ Maye or Parfected STEREOCOPE，with Nill

Ccidumbth－＂Go aray，d＇ye hear？I want none of your fripperies while my dear boys are fi ghtine

gteel Shirt Collars，Iinen Finished， $\circ$
A．
0
COLD WATCH FREE，
$$ 15$ PER DAY
\＄15

 Yoris，Original，
in the world．

BALLOU＇S

patenfed
FRENCH yoke shirts Warratad to FIT CHEAPER

or sale by all tho principal dealor
the United Sitas．
BALLOU BROTHERS， 408 Broadway，N．X．
IVOW FRTADE： THE RECORD

PAREIS，IUNDON
NEW YORK FASHIONS．

SPRING No．， 1864.

WITH THE LARGEST COLORED PLATE Ever given in any Publication．

Price 25 Conts．

Latlea，Dreasmaters，tc．，onn obtain this invalauble
Foahion Record of any Newishater

Notice to Agents．

New Prize Package Btationery Circular 0000 WEIR \＆CO．， 48 Sonth da St，Phils．
 STEINWAX \＆SONS， Nos． 71 and 73 Fourtoonth 8t．，N．Y．， Were awarded a Firot Prize Medal at the late Groat International Exhibition，London．There ware two buadred entered for compotition．
The Spechal Corrsepondcoat of the N．Y．Times aoya： ＂Mesars，Bteinway＇s endorvament by the Jurore te empbitic，and stronger end more to the point thon that of eny Europana maker．＂ 0000

GRTAT CTEATME

 TO MAKE MONEY！ Agente esn make 110 to szo day melling our cote－

 Prize Package and Engrving Warehouse，
Si and 38 Eocknan Street，N． $\mathbf{Y}$.

Shults＇Ongrenta－Warranted to pro－ duce full

Uso of Tobecco，in all its forms，Cured

WHO SHALL IT BE？
GEN．GRANT，MCCLELLAN，BANES，FOST SHERMAN，MRADE，FREDONT，BURNSIDE

 groved thereon，And for 5160 wo will end you a and Covalry，Artilery，or Batiory，or Engineer，or Pon

S．ML．WFARD \＆CO．， 208 Eroadway， $2 \mathrm{~N} . \mathrm{Y}$.

 ＂Chakor，＂to C．A WELTM

A Slocret Worth Knowing－－How to upple or other frait，in 12 bours．Tho hectpo eent everywhere for 25 conte Addrows

THETS BOWDAN IATCROBCOPI，

$$ 7$ WARMY $$ 7$

Donble Can，Lover Cap Emall Size．Exiamelled Dinl，Cut

 $$ 15$ European Timekeeper $$ 15$ OR COMPARS WATOH．
A SUPERB＂ExTRA DOUBLE GOLD．PLATED＂en－ graved or engine－turned Hunting Caeo Wouch－Magio and has zomze＂－Independent action－Seli－Balance－ T＂Warranted one year，＂will etwnid ecida，and lo a por A \＄100 Gold Watch used by the British Army Officers Sent free，by mail，in Elegant Moroceo Case，for only $$ 15$ ． only $$ 15$.
Frank Letie＇s Illustrated Necsapaper of Fob． 20 any In uee omong the Britibl army benty and Newe asye：＂Corrnot timopleces，and for $\$ 100$ watohes．＂ －Addrees CHAS．P．NORTON \＆${ }_{38}$ and 40 Am ．Inportera， Streat，N．＇ $\mathbb{Y}$ ，

GOID：

Going ！Going！！Gone ！！！ \＄200，000
WORTH OF RICH JEWELLERY， Solling at on fmmenee eacrince our method of anl．
ing will ot onco plento and profit the purchaer Wa

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE BYMAILOREXPRESS  anamanyd waxym，

 Hoving tha apparrance and comfort of linen，buve beenWorn In Tailand for the lage two yeare in preference to any otaer cellor，as they are readily clianed in ono
 Union on the recelpt of 00 cente．
WHOLESALE AND RETAE．

```
0 No, S67 Broadway, Now York.
```

GROVER \＆BAKER＇S highest premtum blastic ettuch sHWING MAACEINTSS！ Salesrooms， 495 Broadway，New York．

Amorican，Swiss ond English Watches In superior stylee and quanity or chace．Ordere from \title{

FRANK LESLIE'S MTMUS RRAMMED    Entered acoording to the Act of Congress in the year 18C4, by Fs.ang Leasme. in the Clerk's Office of the District Court for the Southern Diktrict of New York.

Mind

 -

Barnum's American MKuseum.

Oscanyan's Oriental Album,

 seccond Avenuo, 24 dooor from sth st, N. Y.

mank leslie's
ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER, 537 Punrl Strest, New Yorl
NETV YORK, JUNE 11, 1884,

THaxivis :

|  |
| :---: |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |

TERMS FOR ADVERTISING.

INOTHOES.

Stroet, a fico dow dors triom broadway.

To Corrospondents.

Tan Publisher will receive a few first-class storiee, which will be read promptly, and worthy of aeceptance, enitibly compenasted

 the writer. Poume of a vory hid lensth will meot with attuation.
"On to Richmond"-Gen, Grant and his Flanking Operations.
The successful battles and flanking eperations whioh have corried the Army of trome under Potomac, under Gei. Grant, rom Courthouse down into Richmond peninsule, Court-house will, to the future historian, form the most interesting and important onapter of all the records of this gigantic civil war. We heileve, and consistent, but erroneous calccilations of Gen. Lee, in reference to Gen. Grant's bsse of supplies, all these late successful movements of onr and First, over the utterly exhansted country of 70 miles, hetween Washington and the Repidan river, our army, say, of 100,000 men witb its thoussinds of horses, could be supphed with its subsistence only by tbe Orange and Alexandria railrosd. This was evidently Lee's estimate of Gen. Grant's situation when he moved forward to the Rapidan-
Gen. Grant would still need his railroad; but to securs it, the strongly fortified position of Gen. Lee at Mine run would first have to be carried. That this calculstion was a mistake was proved by Gen. Grant's abandonment of was proved by Gen. Grant's abandonment of the Orange road in the act of crossing the river. "Never mind," said Gen. Lee, "we will entangle this rssh intruder in the Wilderness; and then by working round so as to threaten his rears, we will drive him beck over threaten his rear, we will drive him bsck over the river to sscure his hase of supplies." The the river to sscure his hase of supplies." The experiment was "wildernees" of jungle was Grantinly turned ; but instend of repairing the partialy turnue; ; but instead of repairing the an entire army corps from his rigbt under cover of the darkness, and moved it round to his left, which was equivalent to saying, "Gen. Lee desires to pass in between me and Washiington. Tbe way is open. Let him pass in, But with the morning adawn, Lee that in this accommodating movement our army was getting in hetween himself and Richmond, and so he lost no time in falling back to Spotssyivanis Oourt-honse, tbough compelled to fight over every foot of the grownd.
What next? Gen. Graut had moved the line of his offiensive opperations from the Omage to the Fredericksbarg nud Richmond railroed, and in anticipation of thin possihle change of hase, Gen. Lee had provided himself a strongly intrenched poeition, whicb, aceording to the old orthodox asstem of warfare, his adversary would be compelled to carry hefore he could advance anotber mile. This fortified position advance ano trier by Gen. Grant ns to sastiafy him that it was not an improvised, hut an ela borate and carefolly constructod system of de fences, which would require too great an ex- Left on the fleld; 268 were intsrred hy our forces, penditure of men and time to carry from the front. To ahandon the roads bebind him to Fredericksburg be mnst abandon that point as bis base of supplies, It was done, avement on aneonsly his army, Spottsylvanis, end compelled him to vacate them precipitately, and to pusb forward, nigbt and day, with his whole army, to escape the and day, with his whole army, to escape danger of heing ent off from Richmond.
And what tben? Gen. Lee hed provided nother strongly fortified intrenched defensive position commanding the junction of the Gordonsville and Fredericksburg railroads, he Ween and noar the coniluence of the North and South Anna rivers, which form the Pamunky. At this poiut be no donht was satis. fied that Gen, Grant would have no alternative hut a destrnotive effort to the Federal army to clear away these new obstructions. How else could be maintain his communications even with his new bsse of supplies on the Rappa bannock?
Tbe problem was solved by another flank tomac eround agrin to the leff, and over the tomac eround agsin to the left, and over the Pamunky river, to a point within 15 miles of Pamunky river, to a poizt within 15 miles
Richmond, and conveniently near the White Honse water hase of supplies, which, by way Honse water hase of supplies, wher or estuary, of the brosd navigable York river gives Gen. Grant ali the facilities of the hes Wosshinington, the James river and Gen. Butler.
Tbus, the old orthodox military idee tbat, in moving a grest army overland to Richmond
Gen. Grant would find the difficulties ohstruct ing his "dvance incresse as be progressed, from the incrensiug emberrassments in his rear, is proved a fallncy. The strategist of vicksburg has, shown that, for a march of two or three daya, & base of supplies mayhe dispensed with, even in traversing an exhausted conutry, hy simply resolving that a certain point wuith reached in a given time. This is the "Little reached in a given time. This is the Corporals" idea of a forward movement re vived; and we see that with a Goneral who has thoroughly tested the streugth of the enemy, and who has tbus proved lis own superio strength, the dangers of a flank movement on his part are purely imaginsry, and that its ad-vantagee at every step are equal to a great vietory.
Having estahishied himsolf in front of Richmond, with a secure base of his supplies at his back, and baving brought his main army into close rappost with the powerful co-operating army column of Gen. Butler and our hesvy army column of Gen. Butier a and our hespy squadron of ironclads, gunhiouts and the additional on the James river, and having the adventage over the enemy of an immensely superior body of cavalry, the reduction of Rich mond, and the expulsion or the anm force of the reberion fromitsirgimia assume me pal mond and Virginia have hecome untenable to the rebellion will soon he made manifest; and, we still helieve, witbout imposing upon Gen. Grant the labors and tedious delays of a regular siege. The hour of the nation's delivery lar siege. Tbe hour of thell of the rehellion will araws near, and the lous soou be sounided.

Summary of the Week.

The ndvance of Gen. Grant'e army, led by the second corps, under Gen. Hancock, drove the Bowling Green, where he wrs et 10 oclock p.ant on the 22 May, and occupied the bridge over the the 22 d May, and occupied the bridge over the Mattapeny. Hancook moved npon Bowling Green oun stturday by a forced march. The rebel cavalry and a bsttory of artillery spposed hie pasenge at Grineesstation, but they were dispersed and pursuived hy our eavalry. He drove a force of 13,000 rebrila clear through the town of Milford and soms dietances beyond. An attsck upon our hendquartere train, near Guiness atation, was made hy the rebels (9th Virginia cavalry), but they wree gallintly repuleed by tbe 11thand 68 th Pennsylvanin lantly repule volunteers.
The 5ith and 6th corpe marohed by way of Harritburg to Jericho ford, and the 5th corps succeeded in effecting a crossing of the North Anna and getting a poeition without muah opposition. Shortly after thoy were violently attacked, but handsomely repulsed the eseault without much loss. We cap(ured in ell about 1,000 prisonere, in great part poition between the North and South A Anna. During the niight of the 26th Grant recroeesed the North Anna, and marching with unexamplad celerity, crosed the Pamunky at Honovertown.
Sheridan took posesesen of the town on Fritay Sheridan took posesesion of the town on Friady morning. The list division, Gth corpe, arrived at ton A .s., foliowed during the day by the other corps, Lee, thus outflanked, has falien basok agaza on Grant 1

Our wounded have beon removed from Federicka-

 burg.MLoehy Moohy ie, ee usual, prowling in the rear, nud has beon deetroying the bridgee and blockhousas from Union milla to the Rapidan.
nutlen's AByy.
On the night of the 22d the rebsls made an assauit on Gen. Amee's line, driving in the pickets,
The fight lasted about 35 minntes, and as soon as it wis over our men proceeded to bury the rebel killind

Our lose will not be more than abont 10 lilled and 50 woanded, as we had all the advantage on our side-constantly on tho defensive and the enemy marching boldy up to our entrenchments.
The ganhosts on the Jomes and Appomattox vers nided by shelling the woods and dispersing he rebel ree.rves.
An attack on Fort Porbatan the same evening was also repulsed with loee.
Gen. Kautz, in his eecond Gepared for inm and rearly rail, found the rehels fight his way pretty much all the way through. He vieited Powhstan station, Matteox bridge, Chula, Wellilile and eeveral other points, destroyng large amounts of military stores, mills, locomotivee, bridgee, etc.
Tho torpedo division
Tho torpedo division and gunbosts have been orpodoes,
On the 2
On the 24 the, in the morning, Gen. Gillmore went on a reconnoisanco, met the enemy, snd, after a ght of an hour and a hall, defested them, with very slight loee on our side. The rebels mede nine acb time repulecd.
On the 25th Fitzbugh Lee made, with eavalry, infantry and artillery, an attack upon our poet at Wilson's wharf, north aide of James river, below Wilson's wharf, north side of James river, below Fort Powhatan, garrisoued by two regiments of ort Powhatan, garrisoued by two regiments of s handsomely repulsed.

> westera viroina.

Maj.-Gen. Hunter took command of this depart-sint, Mey 25 , relieving Gen. Sigel. asnt, 前y 25 , relieving Gen. Sigel.
yORTR CADOLINA.

The rebels in Washington, N. C., set fire to the town on tbe 11th of May, destroying all but about 20 housee, and robbed all tho women avd children in Ghe place.
Gen. Her
the sub-distriet been aseigned to tbe command The poor Union refageos from Washington, wboso houece were hurned over thsir heada, are at Newberne in great numbers, in a very destituto condition.
south carohima.
A constant bomberdment of Obarleeton and of Fort Sumtor is kept up, but no other movement in taking place.

ововGI:
Gen. Sherman flanked Gen. Jolnston's position
t Altoona, on tbe Eitowal. river. On the at Altoons, on the Eitowah river. On the 24th Johnston sdvanced to meet him at Dallas, and the armies met near Pumpkinvine Creek. Johnston wes driven back to tbe forks of the Atlante and Maristta roads, where he ie throwing up defensive works.

Loursiana.
Our gunboats bavo escapod from thetr position
heve the falls at Alexsndria. Admiral Porter, in dispatca to Secretary Welles, givee great credi o Col. Bailey, of the 19 th army corps, who built ham of 60 leel across the rivor at the lower ralls obstructions.
Admiral Porter had arrived with his fleet of gunboats and army transporte at Simmsport, near the mouth of the Red river, and the army had reached mouth of the Red river, and the army had reached Bayou Rouge on the $14 t \mathrm{th}$ May. The army marched Bayou Rouge on the 14th May. The army marche by the old roed, and renched ite preaout peeition by the old roed, and renched ite preeout pcimion port.
Geu.
Geu. Oanby had arrived at Simmsport, and as No oppoeition wae made to the exodus of either be arny or navy from the Red river country by rebel army.
The rout
The route pureued by the arnyy from Alexandrin eme 15 or 16 miles, and thence to Simmerport. It wae delayed by the rieing of tbo Atchafalaya, but wae delayed by the rieing of tho At NAVAL

The rehel steamer Florida was at Bermuda on the 14 th, snd had burned a New York ehip from Oalleo three weeke previoualy.
The U. S. gunboate Granite City and Weve have

CONGRESS.

In tbe Senate, on the 23d May, there was no public bueineess of gonecal ouseod being catireoly local.
In tho Hoonse, the subject of dehato wae the suppres.
aion of tho Joerratal of Comerce nid the WVord of Govirnment. This illegal set was fervely denouncrid by ono side and defonded by tho other, on the plea
twat the public exigencies pnat overrule all fegal

In the Scanste, on the 24th, the Brazil Mall Stesmuhip bill was pesech, by Yeas, 21; Naym 14. The Houne bin to appointase edditional supervising and theo local in-

 hw. The emendimente of the Finance Committee,
In the Hoase, the Reciprocity Treaty was debated, but In In the Sonate, on the 25 th , Mar. Mayan reported a bius to prevent the curchiarge of drasted persone by the payment of communtation, with an amendment which enacts that the provicions of the bill shall not prevent the that the provieions of the will shall not provent the actual furvishigg of substituten. Boards or errollment nust make dradts of the requirod number and 50 per cent. ina adition. The Tax hill was tukenup. cont. in a divition. The Tax hill was tikou up. An amend. ment to the Scante. Finaxion Comoitteot

 Oommitter woro agroed to, so far as the reading of the bilh had progreased in tho Committec of tho Whole. Mr.
Hale introdnced a bill to promote the efliciency of the Hale introdnced a bila to pp navy, which wns referred.
In the Houes, the speakor latd the reply of Preeldent
Lincoln to the resolution adopthe yeeterdsy lneloting

In the Ennate, on tho 2sth, Nr. Jounnon ontered a ro

In the Sonate, on the e2fth, there wae no busiluoss or

 In the Houes, the Sonto bill was passed, providing

 | The |
| :---: |
| tho |
| void |

\section*{| aram |
| :---: |
| tron |
| Pree |
| Pa |  | $\substack{\text { for } \\ \text { Pred } \\ \text { Pral } \\ \text { nimin } \\ \text { vine }}$ |
| :--- |}

| con |
| :---: |
| and |
| Fin |

town cossip.

Owos upon a time the annual showing of the Works of artitat constiuting the Nattonnl Academy or Dexitign wass an ovent of the yeur. Then-end uot so

 "do" the Sonitury Fail. Atss! how havo the mighty fallen? Now, the doors are opened, ond hamners hung upon the outer wall, bat tho cry fil uot, "atill they We." grieve to nay it but the traph is that the annual xhibition of the National Academy of Detich has be-butahle to outwide caupee, auch oe the fact that the publle can look at better picturee wothout paying for the fed on hath made them too great. Prousperity, porcomally as well as a body, bas so aifected the ho force in-that it cliooses to nieer at publle taste, and fore forior food upon palatee educated to the finent art
Year by year the show of pictures has been growing
 ble blecsed year of our Lord,
In a weary walle from ond to end of a imited spsca wo look in vaim for a grest picture, or for an idea. The wails remind us of the columne of the co.termed great literary newapapere. A littlo tradaing ntory of eom forlorn makion, who aat alghing undor a malberry tree. untal a youth rode by on a black claryer, and with a Etart of pingled love awd Eurprise, barn of tho inotant, cast himeolf and his large bank account at her feet, an dellightiul agge of 17 , that the world is oll a blank, and that of thean ie May's picture of " Coinum-Nill 1 has Greadth and bolliness

EPITOME OF THE WEEK

 Amen tordar has bxa issued roun the War Depart.

Jajlitary- We are glad to eee thut the Govern-

 -

 Richmond

 or Manyunel s. Hanth hate Comptroller of the Treasury

 136 montia.

FOREICN NEWS

IN England the chief topic was the ultra-from the popular odium, ubder which ho now habors for hich had so deoply roused puble indignation an to bice. Worsing Men's Aspociation, The interviow was elifelly remarlchitio for thon etrido it evidecceen in Minite. Wral dependency apon the people, which ncconsitsted ach a stop, Giadfione's oxplamation. The Danisb Confreenco wai sochioved boing on armietice for one month, from tho 12th of May, between the belligcrenta. The naval eggapement hotrcen the Gormans and the Danee o the oth May, proved to be more trumilistimg for the thmerstan mizet adopt a more vigorour polley.

 The Kuradan oflicial pgper statos that Enghand and Ras. quention - the intercity of that linimdom will be preFreach and Rustan Courth, on ecconnt of tho vory aitontitione mavner rin which the owoupation of Parta by tho national fecling, if cannot trke eflect w Exeentive, which at present will do nothing.

BOOK NOTICES.

The Lafe and Thies of Benjantin Franitins.

 By Javia Platoss.Mason, Brothers, 1864.
Literary men have long boen aware that Mr. Parton, the most thorongb and aceomplished writer in toe field o iograpby in our day, was consecientionsly libioring on lifo of Frumlin. A real blograplyy of one who occupicd 50 prominent a position kias lone been needed, the

 in tio conatity.
He Liftice Resbet. Boston : Tilton, A1 our new jnveniles, juveniles that scom to cateh the

 ing one to the young.
Ha Wowan In Brack. By the Author of thie
"Man in Gray," Pbiludelphia: T. B. Pcterion aud Bro, 1864.
Tati is a popular novel, highily endorsed. The plot is well concuived, and the chio character very well drown.
There are dofecta to style und treattanent, but it will be

Tme Portratt Montrixy, containing Sketches of Departed Heroen and Prominsut Pereonapoo of tho Biography always interests, and this work, whlo not preteming to ho elaborate or exhinutive, is a clepap and

The Water of the Dend Sea.-A French

TWIN VISIONS. BY A. F. BANKS.
THE YOUNO WIFE's DREMM.
A nosx, girl-woman, $n$ flower of the West, Had a rapt, hlissful visiou of one far awey, (Sho dreamt it from midnight till dayus of the day) the day),
Aud it all was about the yonng soldier she'd hlest.

She dreamt ho was near her, his dark eye hoamed o'er her,
She felt his warm broath 'mid her tresses of The spoll of her slamhers alone seemed to thrall her
From clasping her first, only lovo, as of old, THE DOSTMAN's sontion.
And her drosm was a true one; with cheel Joy aglow,
She read how her dear one, on that very night
(While on Death-dealing picket till morn's graying light), Hid a sweet Waking Dream-not of ficree No of deadly assau
No of deadly assault, not of mangled and slain-
Twas his Mary's neat chamher the Patriot Dream-trod,
His Foo was the Slumher he would not profano, his God.

Wrecked and Rescued. by chane crofton. chapten I.

Ir was a wild, wet, dreary and altogether dieagreeable November morning that I rose from the breakfast table, and turning to the window, looked forth rather anxionsly to see if the weather showed any signs of improvemont. The appearshowed any eigns of improvemont. The appeer-ance of the dripping eaves and leaden-hned shy wha not enoouraging. Mother Earth wis taking hic ${ }^{\text {r }}$ amual antumnal showerheth, and all her pleasant colors had beon pretty much washed ont under the operation. I turned awny and commonce making preparations for my long walk in tho rainfor a schoolteacher's duties must he performed whether the aky amiles or frowns,
"Is it absolutely ncceasary that
"Is it absolutely nccessary that you should go to the village this morning, Lillian?" inquired ny to the village this morning, Lillian ?" inquired ny mother. "Surely Mr. Myers might dispenso with your services while this storm continues,"
"Onite impossiblo, mame. He has his hands "Quite impossiblo, mama. He has his hands foll as it is, for the school is large, and to be foll as it is, for the school is large, nind to dismissal. Bnt don't fret ahout me, ma chere mire I don't mind abont the welk at all, end with my oversboes, waterproof cloak and an umbella shall be quito dry and comfortsble.
"You always look at the bright side, Lillian," said my mother, with a sigh, as she passed her hand caressingly over the thick braide of my hlonde hair. "What would your poor father have said could hohave forescen the life of hardship and privation that his darling must ondure ?" privation that his darling must ondure ?" his danghter had snfficient prido and emargy to earn her own living, and not be dependent on others"
"Ah, child, had you possessed less pride, and more smlition, you might now havo been placed far abovo tho neccssity of such drudgery" I arar abovo tho neccssity of such drudgery." I colored doeply at my mothor's yomarls, but pretended to be too husy clasping my cloak to notice it. "Yon are vely like ycur futher, Lilliau," :he continued, "and you inherit all his heauty; the pure Saxon type for which the whole family of Moores are distinguished. You have the daz-xlingly fair complexion, the violet-blue eyea and the lustrous hair, wavering betwixt gold and "Oh-" allow me to listen to any more, " mou will make me allow me to listen to any more; "you will make me insufferably vain at this reto ", and lissing her oheek and bidding her good-bye, I ran off gaily, oxchanging the innor warmth and comfort for tho Thamp atmosphere of the onter world
There were no repining thoughts in my beart a I wended my way through the mist and mire to mother's regrets it our altered fortunes, orthought it hard that, like the great mass of my fellowheings, I was condemned to earn my deily hread hy my daily toil. I had youth, health and enorgy, and gloried in my power to halp myself and others sfter the bankruptey and sudden death of my rathor some years before, his brother, my uncle Joln Moore, offered to provide for me so far at giving me an edncetion was concerned,
My mother gladly accepted this of three years I attended the hest seminary that the country afforded, at my wealthy mncle's oxpense. When I graduated he offered to reccive meinto his tamily as his daughter, hut I promptly, though gratefully, declined a home that my mother coald situation as assistant teacher in the high school of the village.

I Hked the profossion I had ohosen, for it insared me independence, was attached to my pupils, and, as I eaid before, indulged in no vain regrets for the loss of the luxurious home of my childhood. I reached tbe foot of the long lane, where a gate opcned on a nicoly gravelled path leading through private grounds to the high road of tho village Hore I paused and hesitated. All summer I had lore I paused and hesitated, All summer 1 had penst three or four weeks I had svolded it. Should por I avail myseif of it now, and thus cat ehort my two miles walk by nearly one-half? I would gledly do so wero I suro that I should not encounter the Eilershis House.

proprotor of tho place. Not that the owner of Ellerslie (so tho estate was colled) objected to the use of this privateroed es a thoronghtare; he was liberal in tho extrome, and tho right of way through his grounds was open to all in the neigbborkood who chose to avail themselvos of the priviege, Ent hamg to avoid a collision with him. A glance at the heavg-folded clonds, threatening a deluge of rain, decided me to run the risks, and pushing open the gato I entered tho oncloaure and took the well-hnown path I bad advanced but a few roda when the sonnd of hoofatrokes in the distanco warned me that I was prohably ahout to meet the very personage I had been anxious to avoid. I hit my lips with vexation, hut it was too late to retreat, The next moment the steed and his ridex were in sight.
The animal was as splendid a specimen of the genus horso as ever gladdoned the heart of a lover of the equine race, Coalblack in hne, with of the equine race. Coalblack in hue, with a white star blazing in the centro of his forehead; his glosey cont shone like satin, and his flowing mane almost swept the ground, which he trod daintily, arching his graceful neck as thongh prond of the burden that he hore. Of the rider 1 will only eny that he was worthy of his steed, of whom he seemod part and parcel, so perfect was his reat in the sadale dred times, and he Rols Ralph, tho horse, a hunand the tone of my voice, as well as he did those or hia master, but I felt no inclimation to gratify him by my notice at that time, As they neared me I stepped aside to let them pass, and in doing so involuntarily bifted my eyes.
The rider doffed his cap and howed low; hat na mile $\mathrm{Kg}^{\prime}$ ited up his dark, hangbty, bandsome eyes, tbat mere fixed full on mo with estcrn, repellent look that roused all the resentful pride in my natare. I inclined my hoad elightly, in answer to his calutation, and passod on at a quickened pace, my eheeks burning so hotly that not even the chill, sendding mist, beating full in my face, eonld cool their feverish glow.
A turn in the path gave to view the mansionbouse of Ellerskie, crowning the summit of a gentle eminence, a quarter of a mile distant. I ould see the broad, sweeping carriage drives that led away to the stehles, the etately elm-bordered avenne, and the parklike expanse of ground, dotted here and there with forest treee, that swept way on either hand.
The honse itself
the quaint ehimneys, and bay windows, snd ahounding in porticoess and piazzas. I amn no stadent of art, and lonow not to what order of arehitecturo it belongs, Gothic, Ionio or Compoite: hat it was an imposing pde of masonry, sud accorded well with the grand and picturesque eharaoter of the scenery by which it was surrounded, Soen beneath B summer sky, with the golden sunlight flickering througb tbose denso masses of fohiage, with smeh wondrous eftects of hight and chade; or wben september had flung out her trees, and crimsoned the vines that draperied the east end of the building, till their long tendrils looked bike blood-red streamers waving in the breeze, the whole place bore an aspect of onchantment that reminded ons of fairyland. But now, with a leaden sky overbead, a hrown and barren earth below, and the leafless boughs of giant trees, looking so like the gaunt arme of mighty skeletons flumg up in terror or supplicention towards tbe acene affected my imagination painfully. Something, it mitght bave heon conseience, whispered in my ear, a fitting type of its owner's fate, is it not? and a pang of self-reproach amote my bapter II
OLD Squire MacAlpine, the former owner of El-lerslie, bad died suddenly, while his nepbew and heir, Hugh MacAlpine, wasabroad, mating the tour of Europe. Aftar the old man's decanse the mansion, in which "frec-hearted hospitality" used to preside, was elosed up and left to sdenee and soli-tnde for two years. At the end of that time the young heir returned from forelgn parts, hringing home with him his beautiful Italian bride. A gay hridal party aceompanied the newly-wedded paif, and once more the bells of Eilierslio rang to the mansic of young and joyous voices, A sucesssion of fetes followed. There were pienics in the grand old wools that hordered the estato, honting parties on the beautiful nountain lake, and equestrian exeursions to the many eharming and pieturesque locnlities in the vicinity of Millbanls. So passed the summer months in mirth and feetivity, and with the first frosts of eyitumn the visitors departed. But ere the maple ind east her crimson parted. the beech doffed Its golden coronet, sin, leat, or
and shame, and sorrow haid taken up their abode and shame,
The fair but frail wife of Hugh MaeAlpine fled, in the silence and dartenese of night, from the in the silence and dartness of night, from the dishonored. The companion of her flight was a young neval ofticer who had been a Eammer gueat at Ellerahie. The outraged husband pursued the guilty pair, bnt be reached tbe diatant city whither they had fied only to learn that they had esceped they had fied only to learn that they had esceped his vengeance hy embarking the previous day for Europe. But the ill-fated steamer in which they took passage never reached her destined port. She was thes vietim of one of those fearful colligions at sea which chill the heaner's hlood witb horror, at sea which chill the hearers hlood witb horror, going down with her helpless freight of buman beinga amid the thick darkness of midnight, while the fearful howling of the storm drowned the shrielks of despair that rose from ber decks. A few floating fragments of the wreck, a bout overturned, with the word "Albion" paintedon her stera, were all that was left when morning broke 0 toll the melsneholy tale.
Hugh MincAlpine returned to his desolate bome, avoiding as much as possible the aoelety of his ellow-men, and leaving his retirement only when cstate rendered the absolutely neceasary for him to do so. But in the seeond year of his soclusion a fatal epidemic broke out in the village of Millhank, stal epidemic broke out in the viltage of Wilhank, sweeping off scoree of te inhalitante. So many vere prostrated by dizease, that there were not ere prostrated by disease, that there were not enough left in healith to tend the sick and hury tho
 nee more, and forgot his own sorrows in his eflorts inlleviate tho sufferings of others. Day and igght he watched by the bedside of the aick and night he watched by the bedside of the aick and (ying, ministering to their wentand relieving the Mecessitiee of their families, Time, money and personal offort were lavished freely, and he well amned the title of "Good Samatitan" which ras bestowed upon bim. When the pestilence hated and men lireathed freely once moro he did uot return to his former soititary life, hut throw of the gloom that had so long oppressed
He was univeraslly holoved and esteemed, tesy of his manere-the NaeAlpines were always or the "the Lord of Eluerahe" hy his more demoaratic neighhora, Tho most of the Tho most of these events occmured during my three years ahsemce from homo, hree yearb ahsemce from homo, and were reato tive mon tale. I had heen at home scarcely a weck when we were surprised hy a call from Mr. MacAlpine. He was our landlord, the pretiy, vine-eovered cottage in whicb we lived being his property, and be called on the ontbuilainge. I whs present at the interview, but did not open my lips after the first fow words of grecting ; for I felt gomething Fike awe in words of grecting; for I felt something like awe in the presenee of this grave, stately, mristoeraticlooking looking man, whose searching glances scemed to he conversed. More than once, on looking np from my Bewing, I encomtered those dark, unfathommy sewing, I encoumtered those dark, onfathomable cyes fixed full on my faee, and felt my color rise beneath that earnest gaze.
My mother noticed his glances and my confuhis many noble and generons qualities, with guarded sllusions to his great wealth. I think she had already begun to huild chateciuct en Rs pagne in my hehalf. Somehow our landlord found it necessery to call on us a great many times in the course of tho summer. At first some bitde the course of the summer. At first some betle rieite, but at length he ceased to ofior any pretest hit his own inclination, and carne and went at pieasure.
Having diseovered my fondness for tlowers, raroly a day passed withont a choiee bouquet from the gardens or conservatory of Fllenalie reaching the garciens or conserva by onr cottage. Then he began to join me in my bomeward walk from the village after achool-bours were over. Dismounting from his horse, he would Walk by my side, with the bridle thrown over hiss arm, begailing the distance by pleasent talk, arm, begailing tbe distance by pleasent talk, atopping cecasionslly to gather wild flowers, which atopping occasionally to gather Black Ralph's glossy
I would playfully twine in Blnet mnne. Sly aud reaerved at first in his society, I mane. Shy and reserved at firet in his rociety, I tion of his manners and conversation, and learned to be natural and unrestrained in his presence.
My heart bad already learned to boat quicher at his approach, and it migbt have pessed into his keeping altogether had not in unfortunate migunderstanding occured hetween us, which reunderstanding ocourred hotween us, sulted in our eomplete estrangement.
It happened at a nutting-party, held oue sumny
Oetoher attermoon,
Oetoher atternoon, in those glorious old woods which I bve Before mentioned. Nearly all of the more youthfal portion of Millbath were present on the occasiou, and the hours sped by with song and latighter, and unrestrained enjoyment. But it chanced, in the courge of the day, that the Lord of Ellerslie chose to talke offence st the way in which I condueted myself with Frank Wollaetougay, galliant Frank Wollnston, the pet and plague good-for-nothing that ever exiated. We were second eousins, and had been Hike. brother and sister to each other from childhood. But of course my lord was not aware of this.
On this particular ocoesion, Frank, actuated, I think, by a spirit of mirthfol maice towsris my think, by a spirit of mirthtu makee towards my ofived in the moet quiet, metter-of-course way, coived in the moet quiet, mstter-ot-course way, little thinling of the tempest they were raising in the breast of Sir Hugh, until, on lifting my head, which had been hent to receive the protty, trailing wreath Frank had finsiated on festening in my heir, Ireath Frank had insiated on festeming in my hair, my face with a stern, reproachful look, and saw, storm was gatherin in that quarter. There was something so absurd in the idsa of his jealonsy of cousin Frauk, that I felt even more amused than annoyed at his unguarded display of the passion, annoyed at his unguarded display of the passion, and eertainly took no pains to reassure him on the subject. To cap the climex of his audacity, Frank subject. To eap the climex of his audacity, Franu raised my hand to his lips with an exaggereted affectation of derotion as he assisted me into the carriage whicb was to convey me home, I bore
this intliction with equanimity, and did not box hia eara, ss I might have done under other circumstances, for I saw that the action had been obevery movement.
Very movement. MreAlpine called that evening, and rather a
Mr. by demanding an explanation of conduct that day in so haughty and offiensive a tone that my pride was up in arms at once. Now a woman doee prote was up in armas at once. Now a womandoee amount of authority on the part of a lover. In fict, it is felt to be rather agreenble than other-wise; our sex are submissivo vy nature, and prefer arrogance, shell pressume to push authority to the verge of tyranny. On this occasion I coolly hut emphatioally denied Sir Hugh's right to call me omphatioally demied Sir Hugh's right to cail me sa asked for. His anger blaged ont then in fierce, sareastic words. He accused me of the most shameless coquetry, but added that in that respect my sex; they were all alike beartless, and he was a brainless dolt and self-convieted idiot, that after having been once so tatally deeeived he could bave having been once so tatally deeeived he could bave he deserved all that he might suffer, punishincent for such stupendous folly.
I lonow it was tbe memory of the bittor wrong he hua so unjust to all others, and I beard his acensationis in silence, attempting no defence of myself or nly sos, confident that, in a crlmer momeut, his or nuy eos, confident that, in a calmer mome ut, his conscience would present the trutb beforo him more etfectually than I conkd do it. He mistook my silence for rallcuness, and left me in the same me ofterthat. Black Rolph at our gate while his master lingered within, and I had no companion now in my bouneward welks from the village.
Peoplo gaid th
Pcoplo eaid that Squire MacAlpine was groving gloomy and unsoelal onoe more, and spienred like as he did in those two yenrs following his wife's ment. I helieve she had set her heart on seeing met he mistreas of EHerslie, but its master avoided me, ze I did him, until our necidental meeting that Novemher morning.

Chapter mi.
I neAckED school in dne season, bnt my on-counter with the Lord of Ellerslie had not tended to tranquillise my feelings, and I was far from being In a oomfortable frame of mind throngh the day
I did not love Hugh McAlpine, at least I was no I did not love Hugh McAlpine, at least I was no him, but I was by no means satisfled either with myself or my treatment of him. I might, had I chosen, have soofted and soitened that haughty but noble nature; I might heve drawn the poison-ons arrow of distrast from the heart iu whicb it had so long rankled, and taught him anew th I might have charmed into oblivion tbe bitter momories of the past, and made his life a blessing to himsell, as it wass to others; I might have done all this, but the work I had accomplisbed was of a very divierent naturo.
In a thonghtlees hour I had given him reason to dowht my towthfoling an douht my truthfulness, and then, in a moment o I had eonfirmed all his unfavorshle impreasions with regard to womankind. In short, I had done him evil instosd of goed. These reflections were not consolatory, and my pupils must have found me a very siapid and uneompanionable teacher me a very that day.
The storm continued unahated a greater part of the day, but it ceased raining just bofore sehool was diamissed, and I hurricd on my way, hoping was dismissed, and I hurricd on my way, hoping to rench home before the clouds sbouid pour down again. The storm had been of sovoral days dura tion, and great quantities of rain had fallen. I had beard the farmers talking of frealiets in dif ferent places, and expressing spprehensions of a similar visitation. As I neared the river on my homeward walk, I perceived that their fears wer and just below the bridge it bad overflowed a large tract of meadow land, thus forming a miniature lake. Through the centre of thia flowed the turhid torrent, bearing ofl on its bosom great messes of looaened soil, dead boughs of trees, floating islands of sawiust and all manner of de hris, I paused and gazed on the scene for a few moments with a real sense of enjoyment, for ther is Bomething in on exbibition of the untamed forces of nature thet always awalsons a kindred ehord in my own bosom.
A eotton factory and two or three sawmills were situated on the stream at some distance above the bridge. As I glanced that way, I porcoived thet the water was rushing over the dam with a force and rolume that I had nover seen equalled. $A$ crowd of men and boys were gathered on the bank, near the mills, running to and fro, seemingly muoh exeited, while, from their lond tones and eager gestares as they pointed towards the dam, I eoncluded thet something was wrong iu that direction, After wstehing tbem a fow moments I turned to cross tho bridge, and as I did so I saw that it shook and trembled in every timber, and seemed to bend and sway to the rushing current that threatened every moment to overwhelm it. It was a slight orne mental structure, intended only for foot passengere and had been built hy tbe owner at Ellerslie for the aceommodation of himself and such of his noighbors as chose to avail themselves of a nearer route to the villago than that hy the pulic road I hesitated a momont whether I shasula trust myself to this frail causeway or turn back and tal the last I must go helf a mile ont of my way, and I decided to risk crobsing where I was. Smiling a little at my momentary cowardice, Istepped boldly on to the bridge, which seemed aetualy to roek on to the bridge, which seemed aetually to roek benentb my feet. I had nesriy gained the centre when lond ahouts sud cries in the vicinity of the when lond shouts sad cries in the vicinity of the mills drow my eyes in that direction, and I baw that which blanched my cheek and chained me to the spot, my limbs so paralyzed by terror that I conld neither advance nor reeede.
The dam hed given way, and the whole body of water, thus suddonly let loose, was hearing down water, thus suddonly let loose, was hearing down towards the bridge with such tremendous forco that the grest logs and beams of the dam earried and whirled about like so many nutshells. There Was no timo for aetion, scarcely even for thonght, had I been capable of either. With a rnah and a roar like that of a wild benst darting on ite prey, the vast volume of water and tho struggling mase of timber were hurled against the bridge, whieh alirank an.
Then eame a terrific eresb; tbe heams and girders of the bridge smapped bike dried twigs;
the structure parted midway, swayed to and fro for a mement, then swung heevily round into the orreut, and flonted off, a mass of rains. Instinctivoly tearing ofir my cloak to free my limbs, at the moment of collision, I grasped tho railing of the moment and cllingion, to it for life. Blinded by the spray, deafened by the por. the spray, deafened by the roar, geoping for breath, submerged alinost to the waist in the io cold water, I was borne along in tho swiring ilood, onily half conscious, for some minntes, of tbe fall terror of my situstion. When I conld see tbe full terror of my siluation. When I conid see and breathe a little more freely, I looked engerly around, and my heart bank within me at the prospect. I was in tbe midst of a wild, surging trophies it had guthered in its way. Drifting plics of hoards, huge loge and heams, young trees, torn up hy the roots, fences swept sway, and I lonow not what besides. I glanoed anxiously towards the shore to eee if thero was hope of rescue in that quarter, hint I conld diecern no oue. I tried to cry ont, hit my feehle voice was drowned ha the mingled roar of wind and wave. I snatched the seart from my neck, and waved it ahove my head ne a signal of distrease, Apparently it ettracted attontion, for I distreas, Appurently it attracted attontion, for I heerd auswering ehoute, and presently saw several men running along the hank. They waved their hands and gesticuinted to me, hnt the distance was too great for me to estch their worde, and I

Whs borne along witb a velocity that soon swept me from their sight.
The wreck to whieh I clung rolled and pitebed so baily that every moment threatened to hury me beneath the waves. Ocensionally a $\log$ worl plunge against its eidee with auch violenoo that it seemed impossible to escspe going down at once and I beld my breath with terror untu the dangor was past. Still on and on I floated. How long could this continue? Bvery wavo lifted my feet rom the planks beneath them, but my desperat were growing bompmher elased. Bnt my hand power to rotain my hold mucb longer.
Snddenly a torrible thonght fashed Snddenly a torrible thonght fiashed tbroogh my brain. The Rapida! I was nearing them fast; only a mile or two below, in a bend of the river, and at wis rate of speed a fow minutes would place me tbougbt how my lifeless form would be torn anid mangled on those orvel rocks, ond then I prayed, The fervont, agonising supplication that tho human soul sends up in extremity, when the frail barriers tbat divide it from the unsecn world aro lipe, "Be meroiful to me 0 God "" I from my after that, and tried to socept my fanto with resignation. It were useless to tell what I thought and felt in tbat fearfal hour. The safferings of a ifetime may be crowded into a few momente, but My strange nor pen enn depict them faithfally. My straining gaze conld already diacern in the the fatal spot. I closed my eyes with a mivited and axvaited passively the coming doom. I opened them again the nest moment, for the wreek of plank and timber to whieb I clung had strnck tull agamst some opposing obstaclo, and after careering for a minnte or two in a irigbtina manner it became stationary. The sudden slock and jar became stationary. The sudden shock and jar teok away my broeth, and almost wrenched mie trom myy hold, brotth, and recovoring a littio I foumd that the barrier that opposed my progrees was brink of the river, and the bank having caved in The frant ailong with it this lord of the forest. The great size of the tree and the mass of earth clinging to ite roots had prevonted if from being swept off by the curront. One end of my raft hed caught between its thiek branebes, and was thre hela fast. I breathed agsin; my fate seemed once more turned shoreward for the hoped-fohelp. Minutes that seamed like hours went by appeared again in sight. They shonted bhe they saw my sitnation, bnt appenred incapnble of doing anything to aseist me. From their eage and uncertain movements I was convincod that they were at a loss wbat to do, and had no leader eapsibie of giving aneotions. Ifelt an emotion of angry impatience at thoir imbecinty, and then guossed and there was no means of beening mep My heart sank like lead, and with a groun abandoned myself to tho fate which, for a few moments, I had hoped to escape.
My raft was working itaelf loose again ; tbe tide Ifrung it back and forth, and it was ovident thet Woud soon break from ita bond.
Hark! what sound is that? Had my poril shated ened my senses, or diat I head mith poril sharprather than the outward ear? I know not, bnt above sll the roar and rush of waters, sbove the groaning and grinding of the timbers, above the tumult or voica on the bank, clear and distine to my ear came the sbarp cliok of a horse's boof deshing along the gravelled path that wound around the hase of tbe inill.
old thorse or horsomaa were in sight my hoa as hyme of Black Rualph's hoofa
I cuild have wept for joy as I saw Hugh Mo
Alpine rein in hia ateed on the bank, and fling up his hand in token of enconragement. The men gathered around him, bnt he waved them off im petiently, while his eagle eye 日e emed to take in every detall of the scone at a single glance. There was not a moment to be lost. The wreck, impelled by the merciless force of the waves, was crashing and tearing its way througb tho stont limbe of would set it ferm minutes-scconds perhapsthat hoadlong current no buman aid could avail mo. He evidently comprehended all this inatinetively, but what would he do to aid me? what conld be done under the eircumatances? saw him rise in his stirrups and fling ofl his coat whispered in his ear. The next moment witb ringing shont he leosened the rein, and the noblo ateed sprang forward with a bound, and plunge boldy into the swelling flood. How gallantly he breasted the waves; tossing them asile ns if in breasted the waves; tonsing them aside ns if in Bcorn, yet obedient to the lightest touch of the roin, the slighteat tone of his master's vilce. Onward, strsight as an voice. Onward, strcight an an arrow; they wer nearing me fast, but would they reach me still elntched convulaivoly the railing, hut there Wes a strange darkuess belore my eyes, my head drooped, aud my heant meemed to censo ite heating. voice at my side eent the sluggish blood ooursing through my veins once more.
The mist vaniohed from my eyes; I could not apeak, hut I looked np and answered the apeaker with a smite. The sight of lis face, the sonnd of Loose your hold," be said, ar Loose your hold," be said, as he stretched out his arms to raceive me, hut I whe powericse to obey. The atrained musoles refuaed to relax their tension, He eaw my helplessness, and slipping from the saddle, stepped cantiously on to the wreek, and with somo difticalty unclasped my wreck, and with, somo difticalty unclan ened my hends; tben he took me in hif arms and lifted
"Black Ralph camnot bear the weight of both,
at I will ewim by your side," he eaid. "Can yon

1 Binook my hoad, and motioned to the sart

 trung his heod with d jopons modigh, The men when an houry plunk came wirinisy nna ppinniug

 $\substack{\text { mont, } \\ \text { guikh, } \\ \text { suight. }}$ atien m.
WHES I atrugglod psinfully latek to consciousness I was being borne in men's erms to my mother's door. It was Frank Wollaston on whose mhonlder my head rested. I raised it feebly, and looked engerly around. The question that trembled on my lips was answered the next moment, Several men passod me benring a rude litter, on Several men passod me bearing a rude litter, on whinh lay extended the form of my preserver, I whioh lay extended the form of my preserver, eanght one glance of tho deathly faee, and tha crimsou stream oozing slewly from the white lipa, | and then |

| :---: |
| my |
| retiof |

Days and woeks of illne日s followed. I think I was delirious a part of the time, but at leagth I hegan slowly te recever, My first question, when I could underatand what was passing around mo, was of Hugh MaeAlpine, and my mot.
to relievo my anxiety regarding him.
Ho was henoath the same roof with me, having nearest place at which medical assistance could he procured, and then my mother had insisted on his remaining that she might herself nurse him baek to health. He had been severely-it was thonght at first fatally-injared in the ehest, but was now pronouneed by the physician to les out of danger, and my mother added in conclusion that he wae reeovering ao rapidly ho bid fair to be oble to leave How fervontly I thanked God for the mercy that brd spared me the intolerable anguish his death would have occasioned me. In that hour of fearful peril I had learaed the seceret of my heart, nud to be permitted to devoto to hia happiness the life that he had pueserved. Despite my mothe predietion, I was first ahle toleave my room. One morning sbe dreesed me with moro than usual care, and having arranged my hair to her aatis-faction, declared, well pleased, that in spite of my paleness I was prettier than ever, Then she assisted me down staire and to the door of the litile parlor that her guest oeeupied. But her next movemeut was one for which I was not prepared. Having led me into the room, aho retroated, and closing the door, left me alone with Hugh MaeAlpine.
He sat in an easy chair, onvoloped in the folds ofa crimson dreesing-jown. How pale ind ehanged of a crimson dressing-gown. How pale and ehanged he was! The jetty massos of hair swept back from bis broad, white forehead, and the darl, eloselycurling heard increasing his palior ly their contrast. A glad light brole over his rase as he saw who was his vigitor, und rising hastily, hefore I could prevent him, he took uny hand and leeding me to the sefa seated himself beside me, still rotaining my hand in his. I am not much given to to he very colm, expressing my gratitude in the the betrayal of any warmer sontiment. But I was weaker than I thought, and the warm chasp of his hand, the softened look in lis proud eyes, and the hand, the softened look in his proud eyes, and the much for my composure. I attempted to speak, bnt choked, broke down entirely, and then, womanlike, burst into tears. I shall not toll with what gentle and loving words he aoothed me, hut I had grown very humhlo and ehildake in my illness; aud when he asked me to hestow on him for life the haud that he held in his own I enswered frankly that, as my heart already helonged to him, my band might as well accompany it; only, I promise nover to give wey to jenlouny agein; and he assured me thint tbat demon was effeetually xorcised from his bosom.
I am the mistress of Elleralie now, and my hna-band's brow never wears its olden band's brow never wears its olden gloom in thees dayy, I will only add that never was horse so days, I will only add that never was horse so petted and eareased as is Black Ralph by both matter and mistress.

GREAT NAVAL ENCACEMENT IN ALBEMARLE SOUND, N. C. The rehal ram, accompaniod by the Cottonplant and Bombshell, made its appearance at the month of the Roonole on Thurndy, Mey 5 , at two o ocloelk $\nabla, a$,
" down the sound 12 miles, until the arrival of the gun

 a hoie throngb her hoiler, minde by the 100 -pounder tbo Tram. The rem finnily eceoped in the dakineess the Roanoke river, the Whitobed pntin in the in

THE BATTLE OF SPOTTSYLVANIA COURT-HOUSE.
The spot seen in our engraving is one on the right nad centre of Grent's Hine, hercefter to he fimous, baving beeu repeetedey the becue of fierce strife, na the battle amayed to end fro. Hero we give it, es ekectohed hy our Artist, at o moment whea our men were lying down, with elrimighera in the ad
rance tating cover, while the enemy is frimg from hia

 weylhid hy gucrillse, and leit out em
withont food or meane of sivanclig.

HANCOCK'S CHARCE.
THe most brilliant operation in Grant's campaign is, beyond nil disputi, the charge of Hancocki on courthoness, Maty 12 . The night previous Gen. Han-cook moved part of hili corpe to the leat of the 6 h , where. cock moved part of hisia corpe to thio leat of the $6 t h$, wherre
the eaceny had a strong position, and the guns from which amnoged our battcries exceodingly, and which it wise detornined to take, if possible At dayli hht the ebarge was madel and, although our men were mot with the ghoet destructive fire, yet they guined the frot of thoir worke before the rahele could get out and rum.

 came impetiousty changing towarde in hat they were rcoelved with tremendoos volleye und hurled back in grest dioerder.
We showsalo the captured camnon an they wero brought in, Never before has the army of the Potomac mede anch s captare.

BRIC.-CEN. ALEX. HAYS, U. Ggn. Hars was the son of Gen. Samuel Hayg, of Verango, Peon., and wae born in Franklin, in 1520 .
He gradueted at Weet. Polnt, in 1844 , in the cinse with Gen. Grant. Ho wne appointed to a Lieutenaney in the fth Intantry, and was dietinguinhed at Palo Alto and Recrese de sh Palinn, cyptiaring the firat gun takon from the enemy. Retarning home, he cnlisted 200 men, and He left tio. army antor the wer, but in 1891 agein offered hia wilifary expertence and alcill to hie country. On the bung be commananded a duvisidon with such skill ne to elicit univernal

 cunt grove and finaly fell in thi bettle of the Wilderuess, juat ath histided for a moment in front or hin old regi-
meat during the herceet of Longetrect'e attack.

BRIC.-CEN. ALEX. S. WEBB, U. S. A. Bric.-Gen. Anexander S. Wrbb, geverely son of Cen, Jemen Wateon Webb. He kruduated at of Mrethematick in 185t, o poisition whicn he retainud np to the onttrealk of the robellon. He fought et Bull run Brituder-Genern, fought with dirtinguishoo powinntry
it tettybirarg, at the heed of e command in the 2 A Army corp

THE REBEL RAIDER'S LAST FICHT
Ws give a aketch which our readers cannot fail to addire of the battle of the Yellow Tavern, May 11, fait to achire of the battle of the Yollow Tavern, May 11 , where Gen J. E. Btuart, whooe fame begun by a bice ceasful faid eround Mcollehw, fell mortally wounded. ceusful Faid around Mcollikan, fell mortally wo Mx. Bulkley, the Herald carreepoudent, saya:

A noble eoul to liberty borp-11
A noble eoul for liberty died1

MOUTON'S PLANTATION, VER

 MILION BAYOU, LA.THe devestation of Sonthern agricultural dretricto may be apprecintod in the eheteh of Gov. Mouton's place, on the Vermilion hyyou. Hie oon lately fell in action, fichting anint the Notionl

BROWNSVILLE, TEXAS

Brownsvinis took its name from the gallant oflicer who commanded the fort thrown up oppesite Ma-tamoman by orice of Gen. Tuylos. 1t wea, lafors the pre dent wes, one of the most attractive placee in Texps, as our rendera musy judye by thin doscription, takcen from the Nem Orle

PORTO CABALLO, TEXAS

The spot where our Rio Grande army landed, Portoc Caliallo, on Matagordo bey, it a point of historical from him. The trielic listory of hin settlement io well kmown A Spanish expedition eent to oxpel the Frenc

FORT MONTCOMERY, TEXAS,

 Ons of the defences on the Rio Grande willaleo be remerked. It stands on the bank of the Rio

CHIT-CHAT WITH THE LADIES.

Op course this column is inteuded for the eyes of hady rendors only, otherwfee 1 alonlid never dare, oh1 dear, no, to write nsi am abont to write, to tonch upou tic subjest, whicb
But the caree of my sex I have alwnye strives to all viote, and et any rink I munt twhisper thas socret,
You must have noticed, my dear, that sour (hido thile paper bcfore he returns, I beezeech yon) ie re. that he faila to aympatbiee pecuniarily with your a and does not evea seem to take an interest in the fact that "boby hae cut two teeth." Perlupe you cannot account for the phenomenon? But listen to me a mo mont and you dhall learn the truth.
The
The cance lico betwean two B'u-Beof and Brandy-and-water. Iaft week beef wna eold at higher pricee-we quiote now-"sthn were ever known before in this market." And os for hio fevorite beverge ther this taxatton, whist muat it not cont him to do by Smith and Jonee as be wonld that Smith and Jooce would do by himp No wonder that the goutlemen are out of bumor.
Beel end lon Beel ead brandy-and-witer are ae neceskiry to their happincas as fceeream and spongecolke are to ours We noed not expect mmilles again untll the tux is taixam Our Head-dresees.
Ouquor ahd the merke fill.
What are we coming to? Where will the hairdresser's art pauee in thle time of fearful and morvellous inventions in the ehape of rofla and pufire? What altitade will our trceece attain? How many looks of borrowed hair will it be neceessary for a lsdy to ead to her own braids and ringleta before her coifure is connldered brinds and completed?
The appean crinoline on full drees occasione jes omothing terrible to contemplinte. Tbey ero brelled, and frizzed, and wered and powdered, ona put over rolls and cunhions, and bolitered np and combed, nad hairpinned, untal the bolstared np and combed, nad hairpinaed, untal the niman head divine is o thing of bumpo and lumps and oxerescences, and that of the buffilo prouente a mone soriptions of the coiffures in the Spechrtor, of the trighfula travde in onr ohluhhood, of the horn worn by the Druee vomen, sbout which their hair was bound in aucb a hairdroveding operotion, and aleep boit upright for weeke togetber. Shail we come to this in 1814 ? it

A very mpitafil Nanghty Story.
A wery npiteful ohd bacholor (of corrse) tella a atory whine we don't belleve. He decolires that on the ossslon of the mevectug at the Cooper Institute be hasd the pleasure of walling behtod a very elegant lady, who hid appeared prominontly us an sydvocste of calico and bomeepun, as she raturned to her carriage, and that on the way she dropped a folded puper from her poeket Which be pickea up jnst too tifte to return hefore the carrikge drove off. Eramining this paper, with some douz addrensed to bimsolf, he foomd it to be a frygoode of incipal item Ljons velvot. We don't believe a wort We Ont of Date tamer eer in regard to the condact of ladice in publl oavoynnces wero at an end. Perliops they nued to giv ot tredtion kayn, but they certhinly do not do eo new. In tagges und cars men loungo with hande in their pock-ots and boots outstrotcbod, or eit aidewiys to read the otanna up,
on the re,
orinotio
 of the armhote, trying to hand the fere to the in. pattent ariver; and to alight, one mnet clumber over maze of nnuddy boots, the ownere of which never think of moving, but rather eajoy the diecomfort occenfoned ledy has frecily powitien, which io only altered when cossary to thruet thembelves out of the windowe, ln ordor by watching her progrees over a eea of mand to the elve walls, Yen, complaints on the score of women's rude ont of diste. The fect, if foct it ever wore, is buried is bilvion; thing of the past never to be brought to mam, who, knowing what used to bo in his yonth, occofomally pene o paragraph upon the enbject to the ae toniehment of hia youuger readers, who never eave any thing of the kind.

Postmistresecs.
It appeara that Gorerameat has appointed a lang ployed oe peetunastire. We are very mach plensed to hear it, became we ere alwaye plecsed to bcer of nay rben the custom hecomer genomal wo shall have moro sce, throulgh tbe peet Imagine an army of poetmistreases, assistante, mall.
carriers, kc. ; do you azpposo a suaplotons.leoldin document, oireted document, airected in a dolliante ferminine hand to Jolan and eesled with a motto "forget me not" or "ever of thee," wound reach ite dostination withont being eab-jected to the moat rigia invertigation? Conda any fiving postmigiresa peslet the temptetion of that and snowy cuvelope? or refrain from finding out "whet that gitil wheped to say to John Smith?"
And after the secret wes dizcowerced, conld And after the secret wes dibcovercd, could it within the bosom of tbe traitreea? No indeed.
The fect thet Sally Brown lind rair and e velentine, and saia to the culprit, "Johno farewell for ever," would be known all ovor those dil. Jnited Ststee; and, for "follow-feeling mekes us wondrous hind," no one would ever difcover the guilty party. Postmistress A wouki he posifilve thent nono of ber nselethats coald or would do eucbe mest thing es to opea a letter, and Poitmistrese B would have tha greoteat condence in Poebmietrens o, and the tha grestent conflence in Poetmietress 0 , and the calprit weuld be ocanre from detection, while et the esarets committed to paper wo.
tho moet myaterioue manneer.

> Those Droadifal Cows.

Tho plesaures of a wells uptown are at the best rathe doubtful. What with new buildings, with outworke of alay-pita and mortar beds, and new streets from whic st the slones, gunpowder, kce, fily up from come rosk which they have beoch blapting ; and the dopa, wbo regard all pedeatriana as tbetr natural enemica-a promenad noar the Ooatrul Porit in fruaghit with dxnger. But these grterances are to Euerded againgt and escaped, whilio the worst nuieance preaonto itsol? in form terrifying to tho unleppy wearere of crinoling, who are enticed into the so-celled ktreete by the desixe Who are entced into the so-celled etreete by the donix quietly, ex yahip--yo," soc; and, looking up, belold a drove of what eppaceo to bo mod bungs, being driven elangbterheadgcor and flaunel shirts, with inesprccasibles trocked into thoir boets, ere uhouting, chncing, wiving aticker, vomaining senses; and the herd, with gleaming of then and taurn to tho right, binch havil of mapienasant counternnce faces you; to the left, a red animal, like that in The Houne that Jack Buith, witb e crumpled homm, advances croas the strect, and a third, with dingy motted hifeo of sttack from on enemy; while the rest in a body das around the corner, intent npoa goring you, on eccomn of the exasperating bue of a beae in y your bonnet, Fos sofety jou trigbt ae well be a Mrataior at a Spaniah and no wary pernon would lay a large wager thing, you do elude the horne, and guin nothing more than a sovere fripht mand a pair of mudyd gaitere, bnt now exd it lanot plesanant to preseant gouraeif on thin donbt qulck in the parlor of हoman itranger, or to bounco into the Intorior of eome kuburban Duto grocery, where cue.

 The Stayvesant Pear Tree.

a $m-1 \rightarrow 2+2$

解
 Chene $1 \times 1$ (t)

4. 1 而
4. 4 ,
Naten
Than 促 四

TO ONE AWAY.

ny me Z

Tve heen ramhling on the hank of the river, Then rested beneath the old trees; While throngh my dark ringlets came stenling The hreath of the oweet Spring brin
I heard it, up-up-in their tope, tling a favorite song I save it noon the hright water,
As it danced the waven along. And I knew hy the heantifinl elhadowe Thast played on the opposite side That played on the opposite side,
It was teaching the nolding dasipies It The game of seek--nnd-go-bido ! It fhook the deticato hloesoms $o rudely, they fled with aifright; Then amay to the wallzing Mny hlooms,
It oareesed them with wild dflight. It euffed the yonthifal pincol That were hending far over the streem, Tyying to catch between the ripples
A gimpes of their coste of green. A glimpse of their costs of green.
Axound me the landscope was glowing, Around mo tbe landscope was glowing,
Tinged ly the auri's golden hoam, Tinged hy the aun's golden heam,
With beauty
like this lavished round me, $I$ ceuld do naught lut drem.
The birds thoy were searing above me The wild hee hummed lazily hyYet alast in midst of the hoautifal,
My heart found time to gigh ; My henert found time to sigl For earth scemed sll too fair ; But oht I missed tho footatops
That so oft had loitered there.

With natare's carpet heneath me, Aueh roshing memories eameo ocer me, Sueh rassing memories earae
The tears eprang all uobidden,
The sigh lyaped from the hear The sigh lasped from the heart ; Ah1 thou art not forgotten,
Of our lifo thou form'st a pitan

When twilight despens around thee, And the stare are gleaning bright, To aur Father whayor twrought the gloamiug will in light To wateh $\sigma$ er and protect thee Wherregr thy feet may stray, And remenher warm hearts await thee In thy home, far away, far away.

The Culf Between Them.

ann b. steprerns.

 chupter xin.Exses was better that morning. When the phyfician arrivod he pronounced hatr much improveed, ond eonfessed to Mellen that he had st first foared an sttuek pon the hrain, hit he blieved now it was only the reasult of a severe nervous paroxysm. ing his wifo the monoer in whid the that hee ing his wire the manner in which thoy had heen newal of the suljeet.
Elsie was crazy to got np, after her usual habit, the moment ehe hegan to toel hettar; hut the doctor orderod her to lis in hed, at leest for that day. "But I want to get up so hadyl"," she said; when tired of lying here."
"Just have patience for to-d 0 ; the doetorwould not allow of your making the least exsrtion."
"He's a cross old thing $"$ "pauted Elsis, with a "He's a crose old thing "" peuted Elsis, with a faint return to her old hoth sigh and smile.
"You will soon be shle to put him at defience. "You will soen be shle to put him at defience,
But, indeed, you are so weak now you could not wails."
"Oh, tbat's nousense! I don'thelieve anything "one kept prisoner I will hold you fest too" I have "There is no fear of my attempting to lesve the room," he replied.
Elsie feit mnch
Elsie felit mnch improved. Sho sat up in hed, made her brother play at various gamos of car with her, talked and leoked more like herself. Bnt into the conversation, in whieh Mellen dia his hest to hold a share, there crept soms chance mention of that name which those walle must no onger hear. It fell from Elsie's lipe thoughtlessly, nod at once dispelled her faint attempt at oheeralness, throwing her hack on the gloom whieh "Did you write that letter, Grant?" she asked, quickly.
"To Mr. Hudson?"
Elsie howed her hesd.
"Yes; I sent It down to the village, to go hy the morning's heat,"
She tried to coneole hereelf with had done something in Elizaboth's hehalf, hut when hor conscience compared it with all that ahe ught to do hor coward heart shrank hack at the "I am tired of carde," she said, sweeping the hits of pastchoard off the hed with one of her in another, hat secmed greceful and childiah sa she did them, "Cards are stupid things at the host!"
Mellon pationtly eollocted tho seattered pack and aid it away, trying to think of some other meane "Shall I read to yo 位 to yon "T he asked.

"I don't helieve I could listen," she eaid, tossing her head wearily ahout. "I don't know-just her he try."
Ther

Thero was a pile of new novels and nagazinee on the tahlo in the eentre of tho room, fir Elsio atwaye kopt herself liberally supplied with these that sho had always carried the recrestion to an extreme, reading her romances to the exchasion of more solid etadies, just as sha preferred nihbling more eolid stadies, just es shas prelfe at swseta to eating snbstantial food.
"There certainly is opportunity for a cloice" Mellen esid, glancing at the pile. "What boo will yon choose ?"
"Oh, hring a magazine; read me some short story."
Mellie Mellen sosted himsolf, opened tha periodical and Commenced resaing the first tale he lighted upon. It whs a story by a popnar suthor, haginning in a light, pleasant way, sad promising the ammsement his listener needed. But ss the little romenco wont on it deepsned into a pathetio tragedy. It was an account of a nohle-horn Sicilisn woman Was an account of a nohle-horn Sicilisa woman who, during the Revolutiou, codured, silently, Who, during the Rovolutiou, ondured, silently, overy speeies of suffering, at last denth itself, rather than hetray lier huthand to and yot the hushand had hitterly wronged her and haff-hroken her heart during their married life. Elais did not listsn at first, hut at length har thonghts became thonghts became so painful that she tricd to fasten her attention upon the reading. Whon she hegan to take notice Mellen was just in the midat of the to take notice Melen was just in tbe midst of tho account of her martyrdom in prison, bearing up with such earge pationes fithful to firm in berdetene patience, faithfal to her vow injured her.
"Donsie feirly snatehed the volume from hie hand "Don't read it!" she exolaimed. "What made yon choose anch a dolefal thing; it makee my flesh eryep."
He sa
He saw the change which had eome over her in having chosen so and e tale; hat the truth was, in his absorption, he hed not had the slightest idse of what he was reading, his voice soounded in hie own ears mechanical, and as if it did not in the least helong to him.
He went to the tal
He went to the tahle to make a more fortnaste
seleetion. "Heleetion.
Itry thoes a v"
"Anything ; I don't care."
He commenced a mischievout traventio of a poem, hut thongh it was wittily donk, its lightness arred bo terrinly on hoth reader and listaner that it was apeedily thrown aside. For some time they remained in gloomy silence, hut whon Elsie bagav to sigh and move restlessly nbout Mallon triod to Touse himself and he cbeerful again.
The afternoon passed very much in the sams way, till at last Etitie deelared that sha would sleep wwhile.
"Anything to wear away the tims $1^{1 "}$ she said, Mellen wondersd if hs should ever find hslp to horten the hours to him, hut he held his pespe "I have such an odd, horrihle feoling," said "hie; "just af if I ware waiting anxiously for
"That is huoauss you are nectrous,"
"Perhaps so," she said, frotfolly.
He was waiting. Hanceforth life would he hut one long wait, just for his revengs, then to be free from the dull presenre of this existence "How white you are!" Elsie eaid
"How dull presurs of enis en
How white you are !" Elsie said
I don't believe you have slept at ail"
It was true. For two nights Mellen had no elosed his eyes, hut he felt no approach towards trowsinass even now.
"You will fall siek !" eriod Elsie." What shal do then?" "Do then?"
"Don't he afraid; I am well and strong."
He said the words with a loathing bittorness of The more powerture.
the more powertul his plysical organization, lae more years of loneliness and pain would his laft for him to bsar. His mind flew on to the hature; he pictured the long, long course towards old ago; the dreary lapes of time which would aring only a cold exterior over his sufferings, like a crust of hensath.
"Don't sit so, looking at nothing," cried Elsie. "Yes, dsar. There, do you think you can go to
"I won't try, unless yon go to slesp teo. Draw
o sofa up hy the hed and He oheyed her command, willing to gratify her threw a part of the counterpane over him, and made him ho there, holding fast to his hand, afreid to bo alone, oven in hor dreams.
"Do you feel sleepy, Grant?" ahe asked, after
"paus. "Perhaps so; $\mathbf{I}$ am resting, at all events."
"Dou't you rememher when I was siek once, yars ago, I never would aleep unless I held your ysars ago, I a hand
" Y
How far hack the time lookgd-he had heen mare youth then-what a fearful waste lay hobween that bseson and the present
Suddenly Elsie started up again.
Suddenly Elsie started up again.
"You sent the letter, Grant $?$ "
"You sent the letter, Grant
"Yos, yee; he content")
"Yos, yee; he content."
She was eo much afraid even to go to eloop, that turn npon some littlo good she was doing Elizaturn nip heth.
"Go "Good-night, now," she said; "I cen go to sleep. Kise my hand, Grant. Xou love me, don't " ${ }^{\text {? }}$ "
"Alwayo, darling, always ; nothing can part you She fell sway into a tranquil sinmher, and MelIen lay for s long time watching her reposo ; it was a hriof season of posee to her, for her harning thoughts had not followed hor into her dreama, Thoughts had not followed hor into her dreams, Toothed him imperceptihly soothed him imperceptihily. A dreary woaknese oxcitement. At length the lids drooped over his ojes, and he slept almost an profonndly as Elsie hersalf. For a long time there was no sound in the chamher; the hrother and siater lay there in profound slumbor, whilo the day wore on and the twilgit orept alowly around.
But when Elsie did wake it was to rouse him with the cry which had heen so often on her lips daring the previous daydraing the previous da
"Bessie, Bessie
"
He started np, spoke to her, and his voice hronght her hack, to the reality,
"I was eo happy," Bhe moaned; "I dreamed Bessie and I were gathering pond liliso-she we treatbing tham abont my head-then jast os woke I saw a make sting her-hefore that it wa all hright. Oh, dear, if I never neel all hright. Oh, dear, if I never need wake never ${ }^{\mathrm{II}}$

ceapter xum.

The next day Elsie was still stronger and better. she consented to lie in hed all the morning, mol carried downstairs to she might get np and be That is the dreariest time," she

passer 80 Blowly.

Mellen promised her, and ehs was childishly happy.
"Yon
"Yon shall have an early dinner, Grant, and and jam just an we did when I wes a child."
"Yes, that will he very comfortahle."
He had tried to any plessant, hint he could not speak the word. The day was so warm and hright bat a little aftar noon he took her ont for a short bive, then she lay down to rest again, resolved to be strong and pass the evening helow. The least idea of change was plaasant to her-she The least elated, se she always was in health, at the idea of ampsement.
They got through the dny mnch hettar than not have a single relapse of hor neryous tremor and agitation.
woke from her afternoen nap it ws groving dusk. She erisd out quite jogfully when "It is almost evening at lnst $p$ "
"Irantley oitting hy the he
At that moment Victeria appeared at the door
"Come in," Melleh said; "what do you want?" Vietoris entered on tiptoe, though sho knew plainly enough that her young mistresa was awake, for called rooms:
"If yon please, Mister Fuller'e just arriv, and e's a asking after all of you in a hreath.
Elsia started up on her pillows, and the hrothe: and sister atared at each other in hank horror when they thonght of ths hlow that must be infietad upon the warm, honest heart of Elizabeth'
"Goa
Go and ssy that ws will he down," said Elsie, covsring her presence of mind before Mellen. Victoria depurted, and Grantlsy cried out: "How can I tell him? Poor Tom, he will nearly
"You must not tell him yet," said Elsis, "not " word-just eay Bessie is ahsent."
"Such prevarieation is useless,
"Such prevarieation is useless, Elaie, he must Eieie hegan to groan
"There, yon are eontradicting me already. won't go down-I shall he siek again-my head "ims now."
"Don't distress yourself so, dear', don't."
"Than let me have my own way," she pleaded "What do you wish ? Anything to content you." and merely tell Tom I heve heen very siek, and Hiat Bespio liss gone to New York-anywhere not a word more."
"But ho will wonder at her absence during yonr illness."
"No,
"No, he never wonders; it doesn't make any liffereuce." "ifferruce."
" I detasist
"I detasst these white lioes, Xleio."
"Oh, well, if you want to kill me with a seens go and tell Tom," she exclaimsd, throwing hersaif Lack on her pillows; "I shall be killed et lest."
Mallen was too anxious to soothe her not uhmit.
"TII go, darring; IUI go.
me; I will he all dressed whon Sond Victoria Mellen want out and called the come bsck. passed downstairs, and in the hall mat Tom, who rushed wildly towards him, exclaiming : "The woman says Elsio is vary sick; is she hettor ; what-is it ?
"She is much hetter; don't be frightened ; she "Thank God," muttered Tinutes.
white with fear Victoria's words had faes still Mollen was too mueh prooccupied to notiee his extreme agitation, or speculate upon its osuse if he had ohserved it.
"I only got heck this afternoon," pursued Tom, Bessie?"
"She-sha is not at home," faltered Mellen.
She-she is not at home," faltered Mellen.
"Not at home and Elsie sicle ?n
"Sho wae gone," eaid Mellon, "and I did not end for her."
Tom was too mueh tronhled ahout Elsie to reflect long upon anything else, and direetly Nellen hroke from his eagor questions, anying:
"Go into the lilirary, Tom; Fll hring Elsie
He went upstaire and lnocked at his sister's
"You may come in," Elsie oalled out ; "I am ready."
When he entored ehe was sitting ap in an easy chair, wrapped in a pretty dressing-gown of fanciful holits, a gay shawl thrown over he shonldora, her long ringlets ehading her face, and looking altogether quite another creature,
For the first time in all thoee daye a feeling Folief loosened the "Yon look so well agein; God hless you, der ling " " sm ing to herself in tho plase. "I shall mako a nice bittle visitor"
"You will

She ahivered a little bit his words, hat sha wonld not think, she would have hor old carclesaneso, her old pesce back if sle could grasp it.
"How is Tom ?" she asked.
"How is Tom?" she saled.
"Dreadfully mnione about yon, poor fellow."
"Did he ask for Bossie ?"
"Y.
"Did he ask
"Yes-yes,"
"Yes-yes."
"But you said nothing ?"
"No, Elsie ; he knowa nothing."
"Th, Elase ; he knowa nothing."
"That is right," she said. "I can tall him better then yon. Be kind to him, Grant."
bettor then yon. Be kinat to him, Grant."
"Yes, dear; he saved your lifo ; Tom is very dear to me ; poer Tom" "Yea, dear ; he saved
"I am to he a viaitor, rememher,", she said childishly; "you miret not forget that",
"I will for
"I will ; forget mothing thint caul give
"I forget

"Now yon shail lesd mie downstairs,", slue said.
"You must not well. I
"You must not walk; I I will earry you."
"No, no ; I am so heary."
"No, no ; I am so heary.
But he took her in his
But he took her in his arme and earried her ish days, while Victorie followed with cusbions and siawls to make her perfeetly comfortahla. "I am your hahy aguin, Grant! Dou't you "Indsed Iow you used to emry me ahout."
"Indsed I do; you are not mach harger now,"
"You sancy thing I I would pull your hisir only I am afraid you would let me fall."
He earried her into the lihrary sad bid her on the sofa. Tom sprang forward with a ery of terror at the change his ahsence had made in her appsaranco, hut a gesture from Mellen warned him that he must coutrol his feelings lest his anxiety ahould agitats her. nxiety should agitats her
"I sm so glad to see 3. Tom, so very glad," hands, and so filling him with delight hy har look and worda that be conld not even rememher to he anxious.
"It
"It lins ssemed an age to mo since I went away," pursued Tom. "And you have been so sick, little princess, and Bessie gono! that ia "trange," " "There, there," cried Elsie; "you must not slae! Juat tell me how pretty I loolk, and do nothing hut amuss m8.
"You look like an angel of Bght," cried Tom, looling wistfuly at her little land, as ir he longed loling wistfuly at her little hand to hide it away in his hroad palm.
The fire lurned elheerfully in the grate, the chandeliers were lighted, the teantahle spread, and everything donc to make the room pleasant which could suggeat iteelf to 'Dolph and Victoria Which could suggest iteelf' to 'Dolph and Victoria in their anxiety to please tho yonng favorite. "It is so plensant,"" sha said, with a sigh of
"In and relief; "so pleasant."
Then Victoria lrought her a bunch of flowers Doiph had out in the greenhouse, and she strewed the fragrant hlossoms over her dress and wreethed them in ber hair till shs made a heautiful pieture, with liser rich wrappinga and deliente loveliness,
"Now we will bave tes very soon," the enid,
"and hring all sorts of nico things, Viety."
"Yes, गdeod, dear "rise "Yes, 'deed, dsar Miss Eleio! Clo she's ben a "fixin" fur ye, purty hurd As the girl left the room Mellon sis.
"How she loves you I Everyhody does, dear." "They mast," she answored; "I should die
if I wse not petted. Oh, Grant, it's so nice here; if I was not petted. Oh, Grant, it's so nice here;
don't you like it?" "Yes, indeed; you mako the old room hright again.

Hsr spirits had risen, she was really quite like Her old self, and that without effort or pretance.
Than the tea was hronght in, and she insisted on at least tasting of everything. Clo was well requainted with hor love for swcets, and the out from ber stores whas maryellous to bobold
Elsie fed Tom with hits of toast, made him gat Elsie fed Tom with hits of toast, made him est evergthing he did not want and beg for all thast hs did, and was ao bright and peeceful that Mellen himself grew quiet from her inflinence.
While the
While the evening was passing so pleasantly with them, the principal perona with them, the prineipal personagee belows stairs room.

Wal, " sidi Clo, "arter all it needs trabbel
the world to doerelop a man proper." nd the world to dorelop a man proper."
He gave her a very tender glance, and Clo giggled in dekightfryl conforion. Bnt I tell yon, Mr. Othello mnetn't lose his
 " Tll f foll it an honor," "aid Cl .
"Yer doee me prond," returned Doik with a profornd bow, while Dingh sat qumito aghast at their statolineess and high broeding, and sally Liegan to think Clo must aponk Spariah es mell a Dolph.

Io moves we hns our tan now," enid 'Dolph to eat when Ahe does, and lator in de ebenin' arter Mr. Othello eomes we might malto a hrice ob clieken in de oloset-marater don't eat nothin' and T'se afeared itll be weoted.' Clo was complaisanee itself, and went to By the time Yietoria came downotairs the tanbl Bys the time vietoria with good things, and in order to carry out Dolph's oxtraordinary idea of complimenting Xise Elbie, there wore ewfeetmeats and cakee of $n$ sorte, hot muffins, cold tongue, and sto nibees that mide Doph
Dol
The moal began with the greateet harmony, Mise Dinnh was very affable Vic really wna the she was pertectly happy from secing her beloved young mistreess hetter; 'Dolph was so circumspoet high goodnumior beflting the glory of her new turban, and the first brightneass of the change then ond which had come.
The trath wir
The trnth what the day before, while she was peeling onions, Dopph grew eontimenth, and was led on to the point beyond which there was no turning back. Clo had grown tender sud conidential--he learned the amount of her fortuneve hundred hard dollars in the bank. After thin the happiness of that esblo pair was supreme. Fo the moment the really looked beantiful in his eves che moment she really looked beantifu in his eyee and with tears in their deppths-the resalt of affec tion, not of the onione he assured dhcr-he implored her to make him the happiest of men. Ho did it all in the moet grandiloguent style, dropping o ono knoe as he had seen lovers do from the upper lof of the Bowery Theatre, and holding her hauds loft of the Bowery Theatre, and holding her hauds fast, one of which grasped a huife and the other an Thast, one onion.
ind
Betore they were disturbed matters wero comongagement heing kept eecret a little whill.
"I jis' want to see what dot ole parzon 'll ary," so indisacreet in hiie protestations to Victoria that hc was sittle fearful of conseqnences if that high spuited dameel learned the news vithout a bittl sppritea dam.
proparation.
"Nebbcr you mind de parson," "sudd Clo; " lawe biolity to de hull compeny dis obening." ply with his wibhes.

CONFIDENCE.

Aut is eilent, louely, free,
Pertumed winds alone dsolose Where the startled haro, retroeting, Daeh'd aside the drooping rooe.
Rest we on this fragrant bank, Harebells in the grass hulf seen, Wide dark woode around us meeting,
And a clear stream rolled between Happy soone! more lovely face Leosed near minc, whove the streeam.
Livent means thy heart's quick henting, Sighs more fit a troubled drcenm?
"Fall of happinees with thee, Yet $I$ bigh'd to think how fleoting May be the paseiou so divine."
Looke, not hearte, may have a ohange, Yet the sume tranaliucent current Tranquil ever flowe below.

The Serpent-Woman.

By z. w.

 But Francog got drunk with biood to vomit crime,
And futal have her Suturnalia been And ftat haye her Sat Childe Harold's Pulgrimage, Canto IV. Dursso the stormiest days of the year 1848, in the focus from which revolution radiated over Europe, Julion St. Crois and Bertram Hapesmell had th hasy and anxions time with the perir potientes, Both were in $a$ most precarious stane, roquiring great attention and care, and the tremendons excitementa of the period were celloulated to retard and loazard their recovering, espeeilily in the caso of the uecalptor, whose mind was of the most in-flammablo nature. To kecp him ne ecrene end equable an possible was St. Croix'c main object and he had to guard his pationt on every haud whole Continent.
Etistone's memory returned, and with it the painful consciouaneas of tho myeterious disappear-ence of his belored wift and ohild, who, na lio had beon givan to underatand, had followed him, and perished, it waa thought, mosat probubly in nome remote part of the Continent. His whole mind was now bent upon asoertsining where they died, if dead they were, and he would finin have wat dered over Earope to leasm tbeir lete. The witutod stato of the Continentul naliots and the onninement to witch he was sabjected renderoa the gratificution of his longing an impossibility at the time ; end st. Croix conald only endear $t$. the time ; and St. Croix cobld only endeavor to quot bim with promisog, from.
may be drawn upon to infinity.
Marina was a constant visitor and assistant nurse to Difstone; and, etrongly as he had been prejudiced agninat her, she extorted the umbounded diced ganint her, ghe extorted the unbounded admiration of St. Croix. Hor gentle pationce, her admirable management, consummate addrese, th inexhaustilility of her reeourrees, won his higheat esteem, andrenderedher, in hii opinion, superior to any woman he hnd ever known. The variety of her charms, the tender aoftreas and detioate voluptn-ousmess of her tones and greces were intoxicating ousnoss of her tones and grecees were intoxicating.
to onll, and it was no wonder he was faccinatch. Ho had been designod by his parenie and was himzelf disposed for the Clurci, and Morina'o magi influence raised him from a dream of placidity int the lindiling, trembling, melting and buming vioions of love. Yt life to St, Oroix.
When Clpatone first opened his heart to Marina nd gave free vent to his chonghts and feelinge finst tuncasy, thon pale, and at last almoot fainted He attributed the emotion she manifeeted to sympathy, and for a whilie forbore to renew the aub-ject, When, however, he did recur to it, she was ject. When, however, he did recur to it, ehe wat much less affected than boforc, but sumficiently to nduee him to say
"What is the

"I do.  $\qquad$  wila?

Do you fear
"If I only lunew how and where elhe died could visit her grave, I could rest content till guake is convulsing Europe, and I em confined in quake is convulsing Europe, and I am contined in this saylum. What can I do? I am not lunatio indeed, but I am sure I ahall go mad if I am not Ma
Marina coiled hor serpont armo about the ol oeulptor, and lissed him with great affection. "Father, Ill toll you whint to do ; imitato ma Be na 1 am-cuuning, very, very cunning; seem your dootors, without letting them detect your reoover your cestato and fortume, and when you have money you can do anything. Money and cunning can exhume the dead," and all but bring "Ihem to life again!"
"But do not let your cunning betruy itseit Seem blunt and honeet as the broad and staring summer's day, end keep your cumning busy at the bottom of your heart. If you feel a undinees, hide it, and promise it iudulgence in the fature when you are free. Talk in a strain of free impartibity, calm ingenuousness and mauly remonstranoe, ; aud by the conesistont rationality of your conduct and skilfal flattery of your ceptors, comconduct and skilfill lintery of your captors, compel them, for shamed's anke, to reetore you to freedom. Take the edvice of your serpent and nome dd the wisdon of the serpent to the harmlesmes of the dove."
Elistono promised complianoe with his fair counsellor's advice, and the next duy St. Croix was counsellor's advice, and the next day St. Croix was truck with the rational demeanor of his patient. struck with the rational demeanor of his patient.
After the continananee for several days of this After the contimanane for several diys of thion gratitying semhlanco, he concluded dis restoration was complete. Bilistone seemed fully aware of his position and of the various difificulties in the way of his reloese, and conversed about then with so 4 who heard him with the conviction of his perfeet eanity. The medical faculty exposed him to many tests, hut his equanimity withstood the hearts of all who conversed with him. It had been made the interest of his custodinums to retain bim in the asylum, and it required all St. Croir's sagacity, means and managemont to influenco them to fuvor his vicws sud lend him their sid. them to fryor his vicws and lend him their aid, But St. Croix hhd determined to try all risk an, rather thon tuil add rather than tuil, and suooeess promisc inevitable reward of his perseeveronce.
Bertrem Hapewell had not oo tractable natter was clafed hy his dmance, and graw rest lees and prone to desire the very thinge which quentiy long delayed, and it was May hefore Bertram, who had been reballed hy inperative busincese to Englend, could sot out on his jounery He left Victor in st, Clond, in the eare of Madame Dégaine, an excellent lady and an old friend of his mother'a. During his bries stisy in England he received the following letter, dated Paris, June he 17th
"Dran Bentras-Our brother Viotor returned oparis a weelf ago and has bean guilty of im

 reving here to which the one you witnosesed in rebruanty will be no more comparable than

 Upon the receipt of this communiestion Bertram mmediately prepered to return to Prance. Before mmediatcty prepered to return to France. Before it was poosible for him to start terrille enews ame trom Parim, his purpoce. He arrived in the French capital his lato on Saturdey, the 24 th of June, while the altra-repulican insurrection the height of ita fury. Not doulting thant kia brother had occapied his favorito apg thentel broher hac occapied his favorito apartmento in the Quarticr Latin, he made odesperate efort to teach them ; but atter receiving o sllght wound in the leg and a couple of bulkets through his hat
he relinquished the attempt as impracticalde
The loculity was ineld The locality was held by the enemies of the gorrnment, and he was compelled to wait till one or tha other party proved vietorionss. On Sunday troope of the linin had so far preveriled over the turco ouvriers as to afford him an opportunity to into the honse in the most informal manner, and after a diligent search foond ite occupants in the cellar. From them he learned that Victor had cellar. From them he learned that Victor had ain in the house siek of a fever for more than a lain in the house alek of a fever for more than a tram's visit, while a fight was razing in the atreet close by, beoome excited by the faill close by, beoome excitted by tbe fuaillade and shouting, sprung fromi his hed, hail-dressect himself, and grasping his sword, rushed forth and oined in the confiot. The Montagnardas were giving way, when he dashed among them, rallying Hem with his voico and exanyple. Heedless of ought lite a madimen, which he was at the time nd oarried all before him, inspiring others of his party with superrhuman conrage and strength that slanghter. Victor's narse had witaessed the conteet from the window, but upon the return of the Nitional Guard io overwhelming numbers had rotreated with the reat of the household the the cellar, where she rematued till summoned hy Bertram from her hiding-place.
Bertram's diemay at this news was so great ss to paralyee him for some time. He felt himself powerless, and gave way to utter despair. How guinary fray? What chance was there thet he would ever see him ulive agnin'? When he went forth, for he found it imposesile to sit inert and passive, it was with a feeling of dismal hopelessness, and he scrutinized many a corpae with ness, and he scrutinizod many a corpse with apprehensive curiouty, lest he should pass his apprehensive curiosity, lest he should pass his brother unheeded. The sites of captured barricondes sere heepped with slition, and many of those till defended were fortified by the dend stnoted apou them. As Bertrum was appronching the Faulhourg St. Antoine, the lite and centre of the lusurreotion, and to which the fighting was gradudly being confined, he came unexpoctedy upon formidalise barricade, eurmounted by two flaga, ne of them blaek and bearing the motto in wiute, "Bread or Death" (dux pain ou $7 a$ mort), and the painted upon it, "Rapo and Pillage."
The struggle for this position had been most desperate, and the bodice of the dend and wounded desperate, and the bodice of the dend and wounded were there strewn and piled about in auful ploniwere there strewn and piled about in awful ploni-tude. The defenders had dvindled to a dozen, hree of whom, strange to a ay, were women. A ifteen to eighteen years of age now preparing to assault the ouvriers, enddenly furrounded Ber-
"This man is English," aziod one, seizing him by the arm; "he is a stanmeh friend to the governmeut." Then in a lower tone, he demanded, onmeut." Then in a lower tone,
"How did you find your brothor ?i
"I have not found him yet ; he has joined the
"Grand Di
sul hope ; tif I find him INl bring him to yout, dead "Yaive, as he may chanoe to bo."
"You may fill yourself," enid Bertrum, gazing onderingly at the handsome young soldier, and "There will be none to e had met him betore. ife is worthless and may be well spared for my country. Adieu!
"En avant, mes enfans s" shouted the captain of the kitle bend. In momoment the guatd formed nud dathed at the barrioade.
Bertram saw his moknown he egility of a cat on thown friend climb it with ars had fired, anatoh the instant atter its defoudather roll down to tho foot of the defence The asailants met with the most desperate resistanios from the stzurdy owoviers, or Montagnards, who areastwork; but they remounted it, and with others swarmed upon the "blouses" во simultaneously as to overpower and elaughter every one of them within a epaee of time fearfolly brief, Bertram approaehed the barricade in the hope of seisting the guard he had conversed with, but ound him on he toet nmong his fellows and active as ever. Of the femele combatents two had the eaptain of the guared, whom she stabbed to he heart with a livifc. The third woman, closoly black flag ahe carried into, a housed, from the mindowe of which vitriol and sealding oil were thrown upon her pursuers. The exaeperated soldiery burst into the building, bayoneted its inmates, or threw them from the apper etoreys mates, or threw them headlong into the street.
Bertrem left this seene of butchery in horror fisited his old lodginga ngain, and egain sallied forth. In his wanderings he met Juiien &t, Croir who had hastoned to Paris met suiien st, Croix, ho hesrd that its beloved archbiehop had been fatally wounded, He had paid the vEnerable martyr his last visit, and was overcome with sorrow, The minds of the two young men were eo much in eympathy, that thoy found it impossible to separate and they spent the ensuing night at the house of St. Croix'a mother. On Monday, about noon, Bertrum returned to the apartments Vietor hed trum returned to the apartments Vietor had laft eo ahruptly, and was dehightfully aurprised to find his brother lying on the bed esteep. It eeemed to Bertrom that he must have been drenming of his slecper appear. Tha myetery wae, however, inthe young Garde Mobile who had promised to bring him back also lying asleep on approsched him to examine his which had puzzled him uver aince hat as he drew hig feet and eric
"
Ousic nize
" "Irtram langhed, and extended his hand
"I have kept wy word hetter than I coula havo hoped wo do, smd the yonng buard, recovering fomd your brother in Peree la Chaise, where the moost obstinate of the Children of tho Mounthin most obstinate of the Chilirex of tho Mountain took refuge when their game wre up. Ho was much exhanswhed end quite out of his heou, and I had to get a cabriolet before I could bring him hither; bat his ntter proatration fortinately rendered him ns submissive as he was hantplely Ho seems hittle hurt, and is ouly in danger from the government. I bed some dififealty this morning in proventing his summary exeention by my fellows."
Notwithatanding the brasqneness with which the soldier affected to recognise the richnese spal, Bertram began to snd eatohing the foll lustre of his blsek oyes, ex, claimed:

Heavensh Marina, "
A low mnsionl laugh reeponded, ayonching the truth of his discovery, and before he knew what he did he canght the nilitary benuty in his armas and kissed her with a fervor that his gratitude served to palliate but not wholly to excuse.
"Marina, $I$ ann hardly believe yon seem cspable of anything. Angel you cannot be for I have just seen you fightimg like a fury."
"I am much obliged to you for the "I am much obliged to you for the inovitable infercnoe. If, however, yout take ne for the devil, thet, I suppose, accounts for your sudden outyour family treo estend aubt not that the roots of your family lingdom."
"Forgive me, Marina. Your rohako is as de served as it is sovere. You are a mystery beyond my eomprehension. I cau only edmire you, aud, for your friendship to Victor, love you. Beheve me, my gratitude is snch that you oan ask nothing "I ask nothing but your tove.
it upon a piece of raerble, you must haven waste dance to apare."
"You have no brother, I no sister; I will bo a brother to you-a true and affectionete one you will be my sister?

A genuine bit of Platonism, I declare 1 What "You, Bertram, are one in ton thouand sarina. and aincere, and I accopt your offer in the apirit it ta made."
She gave him her little hand, while sweetly murmuring the last words, looked inte his oyes with muring the last words, looked inte his eyes with the deep witchoraft of hor glance, and he drew her near to him near to him, so near indeed that their lips met in a ness oould he. The eoils of the Serpent were wound round their victim, and hissonl was yielding to their soft pressure, when their kiss was ochoed hy a profound sigh. They tarned, and beheld Victor's keen gray eyes wide open and fixed upon them. The rich blood was inetantly mantling in the cheeks and foreheads of the detcected ones, the sudden dawn of shame before the rising of the sun of love. Marina, however, quickly recoverod "How dnist yon awrakes eontrary to my prescription? You will never get well if-" "My brother takea my medicine ; certalaly not,"
"Mnered Victox, siliy. "Do you accuse him?"
Doyou aso wim with to
"I saw him with it to his hips even now." danger that he will repent the experiment ; he "hinles me poison."
"You must be a powerfal poison to diasolve his "He is only hardened hy the warmth of affeotion, like cley in the sun. He has just given me true as steel." ${ }^{\text {¹ }}$
"Love is mutual ruin, you know ; and friondship mutual nid."
Oh, we speak as we feel. I am a woman ; love is my clement, and I perish, like a mortal in the alone wise ; but yonr frigid island are no doubt culsting philosoplyy are death to me. I cannot seep the flame of my life alive in an iceherg. I must breathe in a warmer clime, though the earth burn heneath my feet. I must go whero the sun has strength cuough to reach the hearts of men." flag, which Bertram the sofa a hlaok and a red liag, which Bertram remembered to have seen waving over the berrieade she helped to capture fiaunted them proudly before his eyeas, and cried: "Adieu!"
But Marina was gona and would not be reealled.

Power of A Horse.--One horse can raise

A LIFE PICTURE.

Loors on that bitle hend,
Pilluw'd on oofteet down; Cambrio and dainty lice Shadow that tabhy face, Safe from Lifo's frown.
Hush overy waking somud, sonly tread, whispor low Seo, eweet babe, how sho elecpss, Torth one dimpled arm peeph, Al in a roeeste glow.
arth one dimpled Here hiee an infout form,
Rage are ite only bod; Rage are itto oniy bod;
Dirty and doant its gear, Dirty and eount its gear,
Dabled with many a tear, Dabled with man anpuim dread.
Hark! that curae, hush1 a shriokTTie but tits lullaby; Cradled 'mid odiors foul, Rock'd hy a man's demon howh, Rock'd hy a man'
Thero let it lie.

See gon frolicsomo elt, Axuro-eyed, golden-hair'd; siix bright cummors have ehone, Six of God'e yeare have flown, Sinco tho Lifo ehnred.

Groping middet gutters foul, Dirt-begrimed see her ther Look at her tangled locke, Ejo that youth'e gladneee mocke Eso that youth' gia Dull y vacant eture.

Gay oarol the joy-bolles,
ATis a brianl te-day: This a bridal to day And the golden-hairda maiden, Witb Lovo's hlossings saden, Why halte the procession?Why hate the prove A vile pauper ecul Borne forth to ita goal Without hearse or pall,

Famino-bred viee bath đone Thore alhe gooe all uumourn'd, Both in life and death acorn'd, On her rude bier.
Chilldren of Eve, by $P_{\text {ate }}$ Sever'd how fer;
The eame hour gave ye birth,
Both eholl moulder to earthSistera ye are.
Listan, ye highborn dames, Have ye no miselion?
Can ye no little one, Born 'neath the blesed eun, Saatoh from perdition?
Hear it, my countrymon, Tondor it curefully, Wisofully and prayorfully Augole belora.
Yo have a etern duty,
Reluse it who will; Each wunst bis burcon bear, Cluriste loving work must ahare, Ere Lifo be still.

THE MOORISH SRIDE'S RESCUE. Soon after the accession of the present Emperer to tho turqno of Morewa as oficor in com of plot ong against the new Sultas, or heing too xich.
Fither crime was enough to warcunt his deuruction. As be was deemed rather popular, it wus thougbt uns fo to spare his Hfe. A mespenger from the Suitan stoci hefore of life, and asouring him that liis prosperity was the delight of the Faitirul, and that the meoseuger wes lead than tho duat before hin grasteres, ho went on to say the mest just and clement Sultun had resolved te dimmies lim to Puradise, to recolve the reward of hls good works. "God is great," jowandited tho officer, gnd, withont calmly submitted his neck to the Eowetring.
In countries whico life is under the guardiamblp of ilied lave a man regard It #s a viluable cappital, which he mannges at hreo own diecretton, nand feolis that wo has the most direct intercst in proserving. In despotio countrice no ove thinks hio Wife fis Mio ownproperty. Ho countsice it by the caprictous, ancestrin ts nure of nnother'e will, und learns not ta calcuinte or value it The mere inetinctive fear of death is nearly all bo has to contend with, und that their doep undoubting faith half disarms. the fain of bis famlly vas utter-complota,
One of bie wives fled with her children to a hulous tribe of Berbers near the Spunivh fortress of Ceata tribe of Berbers near the Spunish tortress of Ceuts;
another retired with ber son, Achmed, to a smal boane another retired with ber son, Achmed, to a smail house colon to the elty wails, trusting Calca, the nuceosor of ber hushand, and the Bualia would forget their outhitenco Sbo was mikhaken in her hopcas Caled Boy declured he had tho Sultan's order to convey the son of the hite officer to Fez, whers the impertal court was theu beld. The samectury of the haremp could not he vollatsd, hut a to intercept tho Eon when he leff tho bowas, The olid laty tooks such cars to apresid a report that ber sen had cienpod from the city, that it came ts be goneraly

IOIERI PRIZ

OVER ALE COMPNTITORS.
OFITOEXTEIRING de SOINS,

Grand, Square and Upright Pianofortes.

THACEDRG日 CERTMFICATII:

Wrarerooms, 652 Broadway, N. $\mathbf{x}$., on recaiptor of 311

nave a copy.
Ad

Seaside SummerReson

 Partion on fivarulilo torms.
he pooo
p. D. Carricue.

WONDERFUL RELIC !!    Whiskers! Whiskers! MY ONGUENT WII forco thom to Grow on the   INOVV IEEAADY:  The new numbor of tho great Comio and Satirical Papor  FRANK LESLIEMS  BUDGET OF FUN!  Containing a grand Mixitary ond Huniorous Cartoon or the War, beling the Bouthern Orookhack and his six Rithemonde-tin Fight for the Culte-and Uncle Eank and Emperor Max -becides numerous othor nativisal and humorous uagravings by the most popular living artists-Lecel, Teanle, Mollena, Newman, Fikle, Mclonan, Rosenherg, sc. Tbe Literstaro is also all origtoul, and by the buat writers of tho thas. Prico ouly 10 cenis, 246 Washington Street, Boston. Self. Government.

 Great Gift Distribution ! of Gold watches, Diamond Einge and Eilegant Jowellory, son
GOODWIN, HUNT & CO. Jewrellers, 107 Hroadway, N.Y.
OERTHIOATES, naming each article ond its waiue, are placed im EEALED ENTELOPES, and woll mixed. are paced in SEALED EANELOPES, and wol mixed.
Ono of theos envelope will be dellvech at our ofico,
or sent by malt any uddrees, without regard to choice,
on rece on receipt or 25 cent.
Wro mill sud by mail the article named on the cortil artiolo drawn
INO BI, ANTESE: Yon MAY get $B$ WTTOH O DNANOND RING.
Yon MUBT get tho VALUE of your money. Entire satiffraction guaranteed in all caseet
To tho3e acting as A Aenta the price of certiocaten wh

 offics, Now York
$10 AGENTS $10

IMPORTANT TO SOLDIERS

 I. W. BENICEIET, Photographer No. 2 Now Chanmeass St, N. $\mathbf{~}$.

HOSTETTER'S celimbatiad STOMACH BITTERS.

reater doy you luow wint nimotenths of the Bitter could

 Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,
 A A The Arm Totcraraph But medhod

DURYMA'S MAATZIENA
recerved two prize medals (From Jories 3 and 4 a at the

Lonbon, 1952;

At the Giroat International Exhitition at Hamburg, July, 1863, Recelved tho Highent Prize Areanal for itn Grisat
 FOR A PAMPHLET, wiTHH 50 RECRIPB, Whieh will WM. DURYEA, Agont, 166 Fulton St, N. X. Wanted in Each Rogiment an Agent

Personal Identities.

 for- Xon- Reaisknec- - In Antwer to Correspopidecti-Wo

FRANK LESLEES
Unrivalled Publications
Tranlr Leelio'o Lady'e Magazine and publibece. The reading portion is the cratm of conemporasy English likiratare. The Illustrations aro In FABHIONS it has no eqnal or com

Frank Loolie's Ten Cent Mionthly, he Ledger of the Magninee, full of briliment storie and - —

Prank Leslie's Klinstrirte Zoitung, -the only German Illustrated puper in the country. 983 so per annum
Trank Lesliv'e Lady'e Ilustratod At25 conta
Will you have Eandsome Whisters or MISoustaches?
ARE YOU BALDHEADED?

J. H. WINSLOW & CO.
 $10 \overline{00,000}$
WAYOBES, GHADNS, GETS OF JEWELLERY, GOI

WVorth $500,000:

 - BATTLE PINS

 ARMY BADGES by thio single ono, 100 of 1,000 Send for Circontror. Adarees DROWNE & MOORE, Mranufactaring Jewwiers 20 Broadway, N. y .

NEW SONG BOOKS.

Physiognomy,

Attention, Company!

 The Confessions and Bxperience of an Invalid.

If Yous woanat to FEinows

MEDICAL OOMMON SENSE.

Beanty- - Inunt's White Liqnid Enam-

DSTM品DDED

Toontain Pon- No Inlsstand Requirod.

 Advantago Cards, $3 a Packo For

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL, DEGRAAF & TAYLOR,  GORTIGRLE E. P. DEGRAAF),

 NO. 37 IBOVUPEET, NTWW TOFES.

ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND CHAMBER FURNITURE;

Mahogany and Walnut, Parlor and Chamber Furnitare; Tuclzer

New no rom
Wheners New style Patent spring Bed,

Soldiers" Money Belts, Writ conpartuents for

Do Fon Want Iuxuriant Whiskers or Moustaches?
Mr oxabsi wil fore them to grow healy in
 R. G. ©RGHAT, 109 T

FRANK LESLIE'S LadY'S magazine

GAZETTE OF FASHION FOR JUNE, 1864.
nNOW FRTADY,
Thite fint of Lady'n Mogazines, with superior attractions.
A Mammoth Colored Fashion-Plate.
Four-Page Cut of Fashions

New Summor Montles, Angela Jacket, Hats, Caps, Fichue, Waiets, Sleeven, Cuarming Toilettee for Children,

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE,

 BY MISS BRADDON,Is continned in this number, which contains many admirable stories, illnatrated with other intiresting matter; among the Yest, full description and illustration of the

New Lawn Crames of Croquet and Froco.

PRECE 2S CENTE.
For bale at all Newndealors.
Dreams,
Theis Significance Premonitions of Death-Forctell.
ing the Ekrent Talinig in sleep-A Confemilon-Suvci

GOURAUD'S

Italian Medicated Soap,

${ }^{15}$ canto, by KOWLER & WELLS, sso Broadray, X. Y.     EMMPLOXMEENT  AT YOUR OWN HOMES.

Thiousands can rellise s100 weedily, No utenalir re

Zhiterary Agency, Ystablighod in $\mathbf{1 8 4 2}$.

Do You Want to got Married?

MATRUMONIAL FAVORS
 At TUCHER'g, 759 Broadway.
IX. WV. mignviolaxiz,

PHOTOGRAPH CALLERY,
No. 2 Now Chamhers $troet,

 All other Photozarathe ap ap thit lite eize colorad in oll or AT- Partioular atsution given to Copying cardia or

No 1

75,000 Watches, Chains, & 20 WOERTEI $100,000.

The Zarly Physical Degeneracy of American People,

 DR. ANDREW STONE,
 Saz

- Swords, Sashes, Belts,

"Psychomancy," How oither sex may

 Exes-in oxtroordilnary book, of great intorcet. Thuri

Matrimony.-Why every man should marry. Why every woman

madaing aingidictis

Millinery & Dressmaking Establishment EVERX Importad Novelit of the season. 12 Wavzaley Plaoz, Nzw Yoril.
Tho Groat Mioney-Making Article. Evcrybody needa it Agouts or Soldieit cen make sio 20 conts Adarcen E. H. Martin, Hinedalo, N. H.

Storeoscopic Viows and Cartes do Visito.
 Logal Tendor, Stationery, Music and Jewolry Caskot. New Sorieso
 \$75 $\Delta$ MITonth !-I want to hiro $\Delta$ gents

NEV ARMY WATCHES.

 $452 \cdot 44$. JOHN P. LORD, Bladolorrd, Me.
J. W. EVERETT & CO.,

"Alhum Coms," Somothing Now, Gay

Photograph Cards for Centiomeno-

Royal Eavana Lottery.

GOOD STORLES isays form a part of the contents of the

Atlantic Monthly

 . T. Trowbridge, Carolline Cheesebro, Bayard Taylor, noun Turry,
Some of the

THE BEST STORIES

 in tho Ateanguange Monertirace Subterintiona may begia wioh any number. Tenws: $3 a year, 26 cents a numher, postage pulaTICEKNOB & FIELDS, BOston.
$55 AMERICAN LEVERS. $$ 55$ Trede Mark, $P$, & Bartlett, Wiltham, Maso, Fall Hewelied, WARRANYED, in 4 oz. Coin Siver Hunting be Exprcos Companies will not take bits for collection

C OFAR Racker  Hos DOM

For Hardsning & Invigorating the Gums, Clasnaing, Beeutifying and Preserring the Teeth, purifying end Swetening the DJeatbi thin ouent concurifying encicadolone tand benoficial article for the Teoth the world ina over secen, Fancy Goods dealore every-whore-7t cents per hottle.
BALL $&$ ROKEI, Proprietors,
218 Greenwich St, N. Y.

Eteel Ehirt Collars, Linen Finishod

DYSPEPSIA TABLETS, For Indigestion, Eeartburn, &c. Dont fall to try thom. Manafactured only by For vale by all Druggiats. Price, 80 centa per box TOMES, SON & MELVAIN, 6 IItaidon Iane, New Zork.

 Mreorechaum Pipes, etc, oto.
MMiltary and Napal penipments in every varioty.
A large ausortiont of A RICH PBESENTATION SWORDS, conetantly on hand.

BRIDCEWATER PANTT

Ground in out in six drab ahnden for Villas, Cottagen,

Norvons Disoasoo and Physical Debility, arining from Specino eanaea, in both nexee-new ona rolinote trentment In Reportn of the HOWARD ASSOOIATION-
 of ebarge. Addrees DR. J. SKWLIN HOCGTroN, Howerd Acmoelation, No. 2 Sonth Ninth Strect, Phili:
delphia, Pa
GOOD NEWS FOR THE ARMY! Hercastar Fo will nond, postpaid, nay of our PRoTO-ORAPHIO AYBUMS orderca by milderofor themaelvec or friends, giving an Album of the foll value of the

CARD PHOTOCRAPHS

 gue sent on recespt of Etamp; Stereoscopes and Stereoscopic Views. Our assortment of thewe in very oxtonsive, inctuding a great nricty of river of the procent Wor. Ontalogue pent on recelpt of stamp. E. $&$ H. T. ANTHONY $&$
E. & H, T. ANTHONY & CO, 453-50 Manufacturers of Pbotograpbic Moterisiate
The Celcbrated CRAIG MICROSCOPE, combining inatraction wilh Amuaement,

COLD WATCH FREE,
$$ 15$ PER DAY $$ 15$

 Yorl, Orfiginal.
in the world.

BALLOU'S
PATENTED FOKE SHIRT Farranted to FIT,
and to bo chyaryin for tbe eeme oUAL.
ITHVS end MAAKE
than those of any other Shirt Ho House in thle city. Circonlar contain-ind dravinge and
prices eent free. ing driwinge
pricece eent trea. the princlpal deale
the United Stetos
BALLOU BROTHERS, 403 Broadway, N. Y.

NOV FRGADE.

 THE RECORDPATRS, IONDON
NEW YORK FASHIONS.
E GPRING Non, 1864.
WITH THE LARGEST COLORED PLATE Ever given in any Publication.

Price 25 Conto

Ledies, Dresemakere, ke, esn obtain tbts invaluable
Fenbion Record of any Newndealer.
Whesisr & Wilson's Highest Premium

( cocculub

EOVVIng MTachit

Notice to Agentou for our
Now Prize Packago Stationory Circulax 0000 STEINWAY & SONS, Nos. 71 and 73 Fourtoenth St., IV. Y., Were awarded a Firat Prize Medal at the late Great International Exhibition, Lonion. all parta of the wrorld entered for competition.
The spectlal Correspondent of the N. Y. Timer Buye: "Mensen, Stoinway's endornement by the Jurora ls "phatic, and strongar and more to the point than that cooo

Grtat chavce TO MAKE MONEY!

Shalts, Onguent,-Warranted to prou dnce full net of Whimera in six Wecka or moncy re-

Use of Tobacco, in all its forms, Cured
WHO SHALLIT BE?
GEN. GRANT, MOCLELLAN, BANES, FOETER SHERMAN, MEADE, FREMONT, BUBNSDE, OR WHO?
Agente Wanted everymhere. Thke your choice and send us $$ 11$, and we will mend jou A New Bathe Pix

E. MI. WIARD & CO. - 208 Broadway, N

The only enamelied "Turs•over", collar made in metala Send $$ 1$ for a "Turn-over," or 75 centat for and "Choker," to o. H. WELINNG, po Pine street, N. Y., ena recelve it by return mail.

A Socrot Worth Knowing -EFow to

TE: BOW BN: MITCROBCOPR,

$$ 7$ ARMCHE $$ 7$

 or complibs wator.
$\triangle$ SUPERB "EXTRA DOUBLE GOLD-PLATED" en groved or angine-turned Hunting Oaso Watci-Nasio

 A $$ 100$ Gold Watch used by the British Army Officsrs.
Scnt froe, by mail, in Mlogant Morrecco Cane, for oniy si6. nly $$ 16$.
Frank Lellie's Iluytrated Nempaper of Yeb, 20 maye That "European Tymoliceppar:" "it te a noveity here, 100 watobee." Addres. CHAS. P. NOBTON & 00 ., Importera,

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE BYMAIL or EXPRESS

Solf-ITeasurement for shirte

STWHICOMWARS

Having the apparance and comfort of lincen, baro boen worn in Exglend tor tie lost two jears in procerance to any otber minuth wit To Miltary Monged Travoltors thoy are invalanble
Price 75 cente eacb; pent by poat to any part of the Union on the recelpt of 90 conts.
WHOL Tr Wurm in sery Tom in S. V. FI. W.ART,

GROVER & BAKER'S HIGHEST PBEMUN ELASTIO STTTOH SEWTINC MACEIRNPS! Salesrooms, 495 Broadway, New York.

American, Ewiss and Binglieh Watchea in बuperior stylea wnd quallty of ciacen Orders from

FRIENDS OF SOLDIERSI
All artiolet for soluiers at Balkmore, Werhington, Fortress Monroe, Herper' Ferry, Nowberne Port
 hargod low retea

STONE'S ONGUENT.

C. W. FRENCH, 607 Broadway, N. $\mathbf{z}$. GENTLEMEN'S FURNISH'G ROODS of knglieb Underclothng, Glown, Carriage Blantete , Cill and examize our stack

Agonte Wanted to gell a Now and Correct Portralt of LIEUT.GEN. GRANT. Send Etamp for letter of Agcncy. $\mathrm{JONES} \&$ OLARK, 83 Nacasu Sk, N. $\mathbf{y}$ 0

FRANK LESLIE'S

Abstract

The Campaign - Grant and Sherman Richmond and Atlanta.

Anotren week of signal and uninterrupted accesses wan of ouradvancing armies, East and West. Grant thundering at the gates of Richmond, and thundering at the gates of Richmond, and Sherman sweeping down with his irresistilie olumns pon Atinu the front of the presence of Gen Grant in facts of the day. The heart of overy Unionist $\left\lvert\, \begin{aligned} & \text { Atlanta. And why? Because the popular }\end{aligned}\right.$ rejoices, while the chiefs, organs and oracles of $[$ credulity of the South had been flattered with $\mid$ appear that Lee and Johnston are doing wonthe rebellion are amazed and confounded. the promises of a crushing campaign through ders towards the achievement of Southern in These treacherows guides of a deluded people Maryland and Pennsylvania by Gen, Lee, and dependence. Nhus, when a few weeks ago the有 0 hint at their hopeless situation. Their ston with an army of veterans 100,000 strong ry pred the , rentive forlties of the rebel leaders to matre But they have, nevertheless, tried, by the boldest inrepressntations and effrontery, to maks it stead of moving across the Potomac, was on upon his flanks, they were answered that Gen. Lee is drawing the Yankees away from Washingtou. He will still entice them on to Riohmond with a small force, bo disposed as to

Price 10 Cents. ${ }^{18}$ Werte sion of his troope, he pushes around into Maryland, enptures Washington, liheraten Baltimore, and next proceeds to levy hiemilitary contrihntions next proceeds to levy hie military contrihntions upon abolition Qnakers of Pennsylvania. Sp in the West, as the famons retreater, Jo. Johnin the West, as the famons retreater, Jo. Johnston, with the advance of Sherman npon hoin, was dielodged and fell hack from point to point, was dielodged and fell hack from point to point, it was procinimed that his plan was to lure the it was procinimed that his plan was to lure tha, Yankee army down into ths heart of Georgia, Yankee army down into ths heart of Georgia, that it might be the more effectnally destroyed. that it might be the more effectnaly destroyed

But these shallow prevarications and excuees But these shallow, prevarications andia to Mohile are now an end, and from Virgina are now at an end, and from Vinginia the organs of Jeff Davia are begiuning broadly to hint the trath that can no longer be con-eealed-that Richmond is in danger; that Jo. of the Yankee, even at Atlinnts, and that ths "Oonfedernoy" cannot surviva the fall of Richmond or the loss of Georgia.
With snch admiseions as these from Riehmond and Georgia, we ennnot donht that with the fall of the rehel capitel the whole eeteblishment of the eo-called "Confederate Statee," ately collapse. With the fall of Richmoud the prestige and the credit of Jeff Davis abroad will quickly disappear. He will get no more "finaucial and material aid" from English capitalists aud speculators, ironclad shiphuildere, cotton loan takers or hlocknde-rumners.
From England to China Davie and his ConFrom England to China Davie and his Confederacy will he regarded as exploded and exfederacy will he regarded as exploded and extinet with the fall of Richmond. Nor will the tinct with the fall of Richmond. Nor will the immedinte coneequences amoug the people of immedinte coneequences amoug the pcople of the rebellious States he different. With their the rebellious States he different. With their general Goveramont exper is it to find a place of refnge? It becomes a where vagrant, ' withont a locnl hal ital or aname, and it thnn appears to its dupes in its true deepotism and au intolerable nuisa deepotism and har effect at home and ahroad of mis capital will of itself he fatal to Devis and his capital will ginia and the conuon foundries, the factoriee for small-arms, the maohine shops, the flour, cotton and woollen mills, the clothing manufactories, the sources of subsistence, and factories, the sources of etc., that will he loet to the Confederacy with the capture of Richmond, will, at thie desperate crisis in the bring their usurpations, their lahore, their fears, and their hopes at once to an end. They know it, they feel it, and they are at length constrained to confess it, that their length constrained to confess it, that their model of a Southern Confederacy, founded npon the corner-stone of slavery, and set np in the name of King Cotton, has proved a deception, a delnsion and a snare, and is vaniehing like a castls in the clonds. The profound like a castls in the clonds. The profound sagacity of Gen. Grant in making the rehel sagacity of Gen. Grant in making the rehel capital the principal ohject of all the comhinations of this grand campaign, will eoon be made apparent with the eapture of Richmond, and the genuine collapee of the rehellion that will instantly follow, in every quarter, in that will instantly follow, in every quarter, in every shape, and in everything, from Virginia every shap to Texas,

Barnum's American Ninseum.

Oscanyan's Oriental Album. The gift of a copy of the above to neweyspord adrer-tuing tue same has hcen withdrawn, $\Delta s$ already ad.

to the VVoxlel:"

 PIRRE DAVIS'G PATN ETEXTR the suffortng bumanity of thin age, has rellevedmore pain and causod moro real jos thas any other one tbing that ean be named.
BALM FOR EVERY WOUND: an frot phyalcilas ne and reommead ita une, hesiligg article of his trade. Au the dealers in mededicine appak nilke in 1 ts favor; and its repptation as a medicine of Ereat mert
A. N. Wrazusa, Farkereburg, Va., one of the oldest nd moast reeppectable and rellablo druggiste of Westorn Virginis, writea:
I I con sny of Porry Davie's Pain Kilier what I oould not say of many of the medicince of the day. In my not nay of many of the medicince of the day. In my trade it in a leading artioto. I seli hargely of it, and it give entire estifefaction to all. I woolid on no account be without it" be witbout it," place, and it is well uliked and highly commended by the mhabilants of our town, and is much oxtolied.
think it tbo beat modioino $I$ bave for tha usor for whic Mhnk it tbo best mod

Whmar ordering the arrangements in fron of our bense, bear to mind that a man is often jadged of your begnt

ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER

 ${ }_{537}$ Rearl street, New York.

THERMS:

TERMS FOR ADVERTISINO.

Tre Publisher will recoive a few fret-claes thories, whith will ba read prompthy, and is found worthy of coceptace, evitably compenestonis ohutron to comrespondents. publlocton to the form of a book sione le lioble to letter postage. Whare too bulky munt be eent by exproes, propala,

Sunimary of the Week.

tibonas.
Te make the eituation of affaire more clear to eur readere, and enable them to follew the epera-tions of the armies, we have treatcd of Grant's and tions of the armies, we have treatcd of Gr ant's and Butlor's armice eeparately. But Grant, inexorable ao death or fate, has preesed on till the army On the 29th Grant's cavalry crossed the Pamunly at Hanoveriown, routing the enemy in a spirited engagement eonth of Hawe's stere. apirited engagconent eonth of Hawe's store. his army in line, oxtending from Shady Grove Chnreh, where Warren took poet in sight of Richmond, to begond the head of Tolopatomoy Richm croek.
Lee'e

Lee'e position wae behind the Chicahominy.

On Mondsy evening the rehele, apparently crowded it back, hut Warren hrought up his whole force, and easily repulecd them. On Tueeday Gen. Slecd them.
the line, routod the forees of Fitzhugh Lee and Clingman at Coal Harbor, taking many efficers. The next day Orant made sn attack with hie left, consisting of the 6th cerps and Smith's troope, and finally, after fark carried the onemy's work in front; Smith'e proved to he untenahle however. The enemy, to divert attention, attacked other On Saturday night were repulsed.
On Saturday night the enemy sttacked Hancock, Wright and Smith, hit were everywhere reworks, and Lee fe throwing np entrenchmenta on the muddy hanks of the Chicahominy. Grant has indeed failed to force the paesage of the river, hnt his generalehip is not exhsueted Ont his generalship is not exhsusted and Beauregard, finding the offensive shandoned, hae sent off much of hie force to swell the ranke, and reotore the spirits of Lee and Johnston.
The two grest armiee now confront each other definitely in the strip of country, some 10 miles definitely in the stritp of country, some 10 mileB wide, that lies between the Pammuky and the upper wators of the Cliscahominy. Grant'e line, from Cold Harbor to Atlee's, on tbe Central railroad, is fully eoven miles in length; while Lee is somewhat more contracted.
On Fridey, the Srd of June, Orant's firet batthe beforo Richmond wae fought, and the people of the rehcl capital, se two years ago, heard the thunder of artillery snd heheld the smoke of battle curling sbove the woods thast ekirt the city. There was lees canue for oanguine hope eity. Thare was less canye for eangrine hope now. It wae not a Confederato attack on an now. It wse not a Conedersto attack on an isolated corpe of the Americsn army, hut on attack by Grant on the entrenchments, to which tack by Grant on the entrenchments, to wh
Lee had been forced hack from the Rapidan.
The attack begsn st half-past four A. M., and Barlow'e division of Hancock'e corpe drove the Barlow'e division of Hancock'e corpe drove the enemy within his entrenchmonts at all pointe, bnt onemy within his entrenchmonts at ail pointe, but without gaining any deoisive sdyantsge heyond the capture of 300 prieoners, chiefly from Breolinridge, and gaining points hearer the enemy'e line.
In the evening about $70^{\prime}$ clock the enemy made a sudden sttsck on Smith's brigade of Gibbons's division, hut were repulped after a sharp fight of division, hut
About the same time Wilson, with his esvalry, fell on the rear of a brigade of Heth'e relel divieion, and drove thop in confueion.
sonte canolina.
A terrible catastropho, hy which 40 New York eoldicre, were kill cd, occurred nenr Newbern, N. O., on tho 26th ult. Four torpedoes were acci-dently exploded se the train containing them wached tho etation. The signal towor, near hy, eet into the air.
south oanolina.
The robely announce an advance of our troops now slmost stripped of eoldiers. - ozonars.
An engsgement took place on the 28th between rebelswero driven back, with a loss to them of 2,500 killed and wonnded left in our hands, snd abont $$ 00$ prisoners. Gen. MoPhereon'e loes not boing 300 prisoners. Gen. MoPhereon'e loes not being over 300 in all.
The yobely made an attack op Dherman on the 31st alt, but wore repulised after a eharp snd hrilliant engagement. Gen. Thomas bad reached Mrilliant engagement. Gen. Thomas lad reached Mariettn, sud Gen. MoPherson was within 12 milee of Atlanta. Gen. Johnston is falling back with his demoralised army to Athene, anid Gen. Polk is retreating towards Macen.

On June 2d Gen. Stonemnn, by a slilful move-- ment, get peesesaion of Allatoona gap, a position of ment, get peesesaion of Allatoona gap, a position of great importance. Col, Long, commanding tho army corps, commanding tho cavairy of the 17th army corps, recently defoated Moiten, a divisien of Reddy's horse, undor Col. Johnson, killing the latter and scroral of his officers.

> niseissippi.

Forreat is ssid to be at Tupelo, with 1,500 men, and predatory partieare hovering around yarious and predatory partieeare hovering parts of Temneseee and Keatucky.

the misarssippt.

The failure of Banks'e operatione in Louisiann has emboldeued the guerillas, who, finding great has emboldeued the guerillas, who, finding great numbers of troope withdrawn, have begun their depredstiens depredatiens again
The gunbeat Curlew Wae attacked hy a rehel hattery at Gaines's landing on the 25 th, ; hat after returning the fire for an hour and a half the ger returaing the fire for an hour and a half the gun-boat drove the rebols off. Rebel hatteries on the Red river are giving much annoyance.
Adviees fron Memphis to the SIst ult., state thast the tinclads Marmen, Juliet and Privie Bird recently drove away the rebel batterioe at Guines landing. The marine brigade hoat Delta had he donkey-engine shot overbeard and her engineer killed. The rebels are eaid to have had 12 piecee of artillery. They eaptared and burned the steamer Lebanon, taking the crew and passongere off as prisonors. The English Oevernment had off as prisoners, The English Oevernment had, on the ncws of Grant's victorics, bought Laird's rams, and the rebele sold the Oeergia. The Queen's Bench discharged the Gerety pirates. Queen's Bench discharged the Gerety pirates.
On Menday last tho rebel-Gen. Shelly captured Dardanellos, and took bomo 200 priboners. Jack oompert and Batcsvillc have been evacuated hy our oonport forces.
Loursuss.
A great fire at New Orlesnd, evidently the work of rehel incendinry, destroyed, on tho May, the steamor Black Hawk, and with it the Impire Parish, Meteor, Fawn, Time and Tide Bell Los, New Orleane and Bell Creole, with twe schoonere, all owned or employed by Government.
arkangas.
Diepatehee from St. Leuis report the burning of a train and brutal maeasere of some 80 men and women-Union refugees from Jackeonville-at Salem, Ark, by a band of 300 guerillae.
avain.
The rehel privateer Fleride entered the port of Hamilton, Bermuda, on the 12 th of IIay, on a "flying visit" to obtain American newspapers and as hurned hy her commander.

CONARESS

In the Senate, May 30th, the proceedings wero of no publlo intorest, being chiefly confned to sligbt modincations in the Tax bill. In the Honse, Mr, Schanck moved to bring in a bill for the Eummary puniehment of guerillhe. Mrr. Yea man was aleo deelided to be entitied to the vicant sest for Kentucky by 94 to 26 . Mr. Layear offered a Peace resolution, which was objected to Aftor some other renolution, which unimportant bn sing
bouse adjioumen
In tbe Senata, May 31st, Mr. Davie submitted reeoly tione to invertigats the cboractor of General Butler. No voto wes tiken, and the re to the Intorzal Revenuo bu.

 stitution, nameiy: "Neithor elavary nor involuntary
oorvitude excoptin tho punikhment of erime, of wirch tho party oboll be duly convictod, oboll ovist within the East and Went, to roilcem their cen York. The report wae agreed to.

 In the Senate, on the 2a, the buatinese was connin to the consideration of the Internal Revanue bill. In the Houvo, the Tarif bill wan discusocd, snd the amandmente prop
no pnbblic intareot.
 In the Seante, on the 4th, tha only subject dobeted was the Internal Revcruee or hax bill; littlo progrees waa made.

$\qquad$

TOWN cossip.

Crrizs are great soree npen the face of the earth. Tbey are evidences of the strugglo of mN agathet the Alimigbty. Ho gives nsthe green Aedes, the muring treés, tha rippling, murmuring treame, and wo blot them out. We kill the groen griss, and put in it down the glorious troes, and build up tail, smoking fan-torise nud brown ctons palaces, and the pure, sweot is typical ar man'a mind.
spring in the city-in our climon-is not provocativo of a longing for the conntry. It requiree a month or of a longing for the conntry. It requiree a month or twe to arnhee the sluggish blood of tbosa who bove beon so loug caged within orrioks nnd mortar, living an oun antural life, and doing their bet to mion hao done for them, chag their beet to undo what natury for o rolf apon the grass, or a fice romp winder tho brond grevens, whers Mrs. Grandy cannot see, wad where the ewior member of the flrm of Dilidrum, Doldrum & Oo, wiom we aro dependent for "little nccommoda-trons," or " goods st six monthe," doen not come.
Now Yorz is going Now York is going out of town! We meas the sonal-going in the country, the thing in pro-posituroun as to iret doy of summer bas come, and carriages rumbla
ent from up-town atreets liden with woinen who bavo not yet reacbed the nga to eligh afte saratoga and Newport, but who bevo nome glorioue dens about eatehing and kiliug fiah on a pin hook, ,nad gothering all kinde of florul etafis from all yinds of ablo band-boxes, and topped off with laby's ohair, end poedibly a emal aeeortment of yonthrul wbeclbarrowa and zorden fraploments, adaptoa la siza for iufantila Olit for the early days when thero whe a real country about the city. Wben overy farm-boise wes not tocect. eeper, who Iica in wuit with promilen of "planty of regetshce, fruit, nilk and egge", to attract verdnat city folke wo wrouid rueticate, und atter eliarging thon

 まv=v= $=$

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.
Domestic, Thio irst Normal Scobolin our country and embers

 into Thiou Universalise Church in stowe, Vh, in exvidecd

Mrilitary- It in a very romarkable foet that while of Coman. Shermann having akeod tho sapprintendent

M- Mrat. Gon. Carr 8 schurz thes ben placed in com-

Mat. Mew. Yramont has roigned hils comminionion

 ing an anto bitobographaty.
Montreall, Canadde the fumous rebel apy, has arrived in ana Major Puline Cuabman, the fomale patriot spy House and d ary Gerbrich whion Do has not teen or heard from Prase Dr. Robe sheilon Mrokenzle of the Philadelphnn in Harribuarg on the Trish Poeta.

Obituary,-Schneider, the renownod organtit of Wase wounded

aged 35 yenra.

 drovest a mest reckies spea, wau arreted, and corm

 Gorernor thersapon
wounded hima everery.

 Tin whio trial of PAmura Hunter for the murdier

Thank The sumketack of the D.s.stean reenena ente

Foreign- Tho peror Napoloon III, Lase ctab

 It It suscrted on grod suthonity that there aro in

 Tna revie Paria Nation noticey a rumor that tha Rop

 -Tho Tiverpool Allibin gives st forma in which tho

 oxchnoged walctugs-stificts with hithe Pe thank them.
 Anew tenor has been ninging at arihn, in oper too, who oloca not undertand a word of maito and has

 Teta The Venothnc Chumber of Notarico has juet re

YMr. G. W. Carletom hae in propanition a volime

 meak well or yt Mhe journy., on foot, trom thit ex

 mai found to be muoh too

CEORGE H. ELLIS'S MUSIC ROOM STATE STREET, ROCHESTER. Presentation to Ges, Tom Thumblo and Lady,
A very plensing incident occurred at tho
 in that delighifful city, wand the Gencral bsing a member of the Order of Knight Tomplans, it wes ateormined 1

 Gexoral, and by him waso deyuted to with upon thic famous Queen of Boauty, and to invito ber to me

[^15]

 arth's tomperature, ss we descend holow the surface, is a Ebbject waich possensen great ecientife interent, and at whith it would he possibible to pursue the working of coal and other minerals. Tho deopest coal-mine in theworld is the Monlwearmonth Coliery in Fngland, which reachen a depth of 1,800 feet belowithe kurface of dopth. Assuming the temperature of subterranean fuaion to he 3,000 deg, and that the increase of hest at greator depths continues uniform (whleh, however, ts by no means cortain), the thicknces of the film which soparatos 34 miles.
Oricin of the Grane in Weroet.-The grein Which is common to the troy and avoirdapois welghte bus come down to uafrom olden timee, ned lis manticned in the "Magnu Charta". It is deserfbed ns "n grain of wheat gathered from tho midade of the carr." Thats, of in heat gathered from the middle of the cas." This, of coursc, was oxceedingly vasue aud arbitrary, but eufticed for the eimplo wants of our ancestor, and atico then its eppecito weight has hean fixed on a firmer and nore satisfactory hastis.
A oentruesan who had beon sponding the evening with a fow friende, looling at his watch foc after mudinght, naid: "It is to-morrow morning after mainight, naid: "It is to-mori"

[^16]

THE BRIDAL AND THE BURIAL.

ny henky c. watson.

From the steeple of our village church a joyous peal ringe out,
And past the grayold headstones, what a gay crowd threads its way!
and foremost 'mongot the
And foremost 'mongot the merry girls wat pretty gentle Ruth,
And at her side, ber true, true-love, wbom ehe will wed tbis day.

She wae not dressed in cootly silks, no bridal veil was there,
A simple whits rose hid itself smidst her curling bair
A modest drees of flowing white, a sash of orange bue, nd Ruth stood forth as faix a bride as mortal eyes could view.

She was tho village pride, the pet, the darling of us all,
Her smile was love and charity, her voice a pleasant tune, ad she a simple orphan, poor, and in the Vas welcome to surny do our hearts and homee, as sumny days in June !

The story of her life was one we often read in books-
The rich equire's son would seek our Rath in nll the quiet nooks.
Bnt how he won thst gentle beart, whicb bent for love alone,
Must still romain only known.

The village goesip, ever rife, waecarried to the And bere npon thie sunny day, before th Fall,
And fiercely raged tbe puree-proud man, nor The orpban weds the riob man'e eon, and wsited be a day,
The ourse and disinheritance, the bsa from home and heart,
Were placed against tbat one great love, in stern and harsb array.

Yet he wonld brave them all for her, and gave hack scorn for scorn-
But sacrifice and wisdom dwelt with her, the lowly horn.
He shoud not lose on him should lie.
The love that hlossomed 'neatb a curse would wither up and die !

And so they parted. Yeare rolled on, but their fath wavered not Tiil Time's great retribution came, and set love's prieoners free proud of ber ie be

Ah me! It was a blessed sigbt to see tbat youthful psir,
So trustful in their conetant bearts, eo bumbly kneeling there ;
To know bow they had otruggled, waited, hoped, and not in vain
For now tbeir hands are joined, and none can sever them sgain.

The closing henediction given, they take their bomeward way,
The sunshine, glowing on their path, in golde gladness lay
They lmew not that it sbone oo bright, sa the walked side by side,
The sumshine in their bearts eolipsed all tbougbt of aught beeide.

Blanche surprises Madame Euphrosine.

The Aboule of the Witch of Fontasebleau.
And as we reaobed the grand old Hall, no longer grim, though gray, ach window eeemed a friendly eye tbat bado ne welcome there ;
nd soon a merry
feetive board,
feetive board, ancb a lordly fare.
Tbe langb and jest wont round and ronnd, and no one felt the thrill-
The ehudder-the foreboding-tbe presentiment of ill.
With glasses filled up to tbe brim, with one ${ }^{\text {accord we cried }}$ bealth! a health! and three times three, to bridegroom and to bridel $l^{\prime \prime}$ Up roae the hridegrocom fall of joy-bat eadily, dendly pale-a slowly spoke, and painfally - "I know not what to say-thank you all-my wife-my beart-my beart is all too full is all too full-"
e paused-and in that colemn pause, his life bad passed awny
From the steeple of our village cbureh the tolling bell doth tell,
Tbst be who three days eince was wed now sleepeth passing well.
God help the widowed orpban, and soothe her beart's great pain-lone once more-we take ber to our hearta and homes again.

THE WITCH OF FONTAINEBLEAU,

BY MrRs, M. A. Denison.

In a miserahle honee that seemed every moment ready to totter to the ground, in an obscure treet in Fantainebleas, lived during the Reign of Terror in France one Madame Enphroeine. The tants, that all pereons passed it with trembling and a look of abhorrence, quickoning their footetepe and almost bolding their breath. In the etepe and almoot biaing cheir breath.
nigbl-purtionlarly when there yas a moon-the mantion, once tho ahode of wealth and heant noro an ominons naspect which wonla beem to repel the very hatas, ot that it it is doubttol if they nested in iny of ite nooks. On one side it was stone and iron - a very fortrees; on the other, the wind owe were shat tered the hricka had fallen ont; there were unseemly patches cansed by the atrasing of time. Blinds hung by a sointary hinge-orrtains tbere were none. The diemal grandeur that baunte nobility none. The diemal l rrandeur that basunter nobility in decony feemed not to reign over tbeee wrotched in deocay seomed not to reign over tbese wratched premise ; overything repeleded and mores than ell, the vicions, toothless hag that, doomed by hee rather dragged cxistence out in the frig tfful house. Not far from this place rose that splendid atruc ture, the bunting-beetat of the hings of France, at whieb, early every morning, ahe who had once whieh, early every morning, ahe who had onee heen the most beantiful ornament of a frivolous ourt, stood at her window and shoolk her shrive court, stood elled hands.
At the time when the guillotine was doing its strceta of Paris, a French nobleman latd dying The einking sen shone faintly in upon the eqplondori of au almost roysl chamber, where, heneath coverbde of crimson and white eatin, the Duke of Deliese qniverod and gaspod. On her knees, at wbose eyes were filled with tears. The small crucifix hela tightly in ber slender fingere hlazed with diamonds ; the long furir curls that streamed hack diamonds; the long fuir corrls tbat streemed hack, leaving her white brow and colorless cheoks unleaving her white brow and colorless checks unsludownci, neemed fin themselven almost a wealth Binadowid, of gold.
"Obl my darring I" quivered the dying hips, is bettor. They will soon come for me when tbey enr thave returned-they would even drag me And you, my tender littlo Blanche, what oun I leave yout? Not enfety-they hate our bounse ; nor richees-they will sack this beatiful homo w, now, alas lit is out of my power to give yon."
"Panp, never think of po," "hispered the young guri, talling on her father's neck ang ehe aroee from her kneee, "God will rememher me
"Yee, Yee, it socmas so; you are young, beautifull innocent, yet neither of thooee wil protect my darling, for alas ! you are nolle, There is only one thing I can think of, my chila. In Eontaineieau hess a woinau whe she is old and unhappy, profeseed to love not lost all the goomess of her heart. Here is ring which sbe will remember ; ehe promised when she gave it me to do me a service if ever I shonld tequire it. I should d dvise you, after I am goneor you will be alone then, my darling-Antoine has heon oblged to fiee for his lifo-to adopt a servant's costume, dieguise your hands in thick servant' costume, dieguius your hande in thick glover, wear a cap, and conceul a little money.
Find your way to Tontainehlean, and in the honee number fourteen, that 日tands alone in the midst of a garden quite neglectod in the Rue De scek for one IItadame Eaphroeinee. Do not tremscek for one Hadame Eaphrooine o Do not trem.
hie if ber tongue io malevolent at first, ghe will not dare, fallen an she is, to forget her promise, and even her ill-nature and possille contempt will he better than the guillotine. Ah! you shudder, my poor darling. Thenk heaven with me that you are spared that horror, that, your old father is merofiluly relensed hy death."
The litle clock, a trifle of exquisite workmanahip on the mantell, struck six. Blanche looked ship on the mantel, struck six. Blanche looked pitifuly np, with ite last troke had departed the soul of her fother. The poor child -she was only sixteen-uttered a wild, despairing ory, and gazed sixteen-uttered a mida, cespairing ory, and gazed around the room in terror. At that momont a mute pity, then turned and beckoned. To the consternstion of Blanche, a man entered roughly dreesed; a workmar's paper onp npon hio head, long, coal-lhack beard hanging from lips and long, ooal-black beard hanging from hips, und Ace. Blanche thonght herself hetrayed, and pity me, my father in deed P" But in an instant the paper eap was dashed to the ground, the lieasty beard followed, and a handrome, higlb-lred youug inan stood beforo her with arms open and outtretched.
"My darling IP" he whispered, "ece what Y havo "Oh1 Antoine, and your name is on the lite the proscribech" "
"I know it, my darling, hat I felt thet I must anke one more desperate effort if 1 died for it , ,o procured this hlouso and have digurised myelf procured this hlouso and have digguised mynself, ay poor hitte dove!" and he careseed the foir 1y poor little dove!" and he careseed the foir row that laid so helpicesly againat hie shoulder. row that laid so helplcesly againat his shoulder.
"Antoine, $I$ tremble while you are here ; the asy come in, thomese cruile mon men ate here; they any moment.
iee you not that my poor fatleer has escapcid "Me"
"What I deadt-the duke doad?" he cried, nearing the eplendidicouch. "I thought he eslicpt.
Iy poor bittle Blandle with no protector, what eand
 "Hneh1 there is noise-they are in the street, The young man had hurriedy thrown on his papar cap and hoard. The girl who bad admitted him now flew iuto the chamber, aeized Blanche, ybo was nearly fuinting, and dragged her from Just time to outerating the ehamher whare haid the orons. They tound the girl weeping, and the unan in a carpentor's dreess standing hy. Fortun-faling. Antoines hands were stained ingeniously, nad looked like thosa of a coarse, lard-worling and loloked mielliania.
"So the dukg is dsad ?" eried ons of ths fellows, glanoing suapioiously upou Antoine.
"The girl wan erying at the atreat door, and I came up hrre," said Antoine; "is this truth ?" he aiked awkardy innocently. "Aye, and just eecaped juetice," cried saother of the soldiers with an onth, droeived hy his had French. "But there are more of his family. Girl on your life deceive usl" hs turned threateningly on your ife deceive usi" hs turned threateningly.
"Nore of his family, indeed," cried the girl, loolding up in apparent fright, "theree's oniy the daughtor that' in acbool in Valonce, poor doar diera scanned will this newt honly, and ovidently thongh ehe epoke the truth.
Meanwhile Antoine was examining the picture and beantiful trifles, sa if he had never been ench hinge before in his ire. Thoy then went out cabting geowing glances cowara tuo bes whers he white, stern face gave hack no response. Antoine made sure they were in the atreet, then exchanged few low rapid words with the girl, who left the room. Presently she came down again and handed him \& olip of paper, on which was written the $\operatorname{him}_{\text {words }}^{\text {s. }}$, Rue De
Rue De - No. 14, Fontainchlean.
human tigreess," lie muttered; "well, well, in these times we will trust all to God," he added, roverently. "Now I muet go, good-hye, Amnette.
Be aesured if I hive $\mathbf{I}$ will remember you. $\bar{F}$ ever I recover my fortune, or even a part of it, you ahall Bee tbat X am grateful. Only do the boet you ean hy your mistrese. Poor dovel albe goes the sole of her foot
"I promise you I will do what I can," whisp
the girl, tears filling her honeat eyes agail.
nill be true to vill be true to Mires Blanche, whe like an angel to me and mine. Ah 1 I wiibl the red repuhblecnas were only half as good $n$. drepuhbenns mere only half as good."
"Hnsb! cried Antoina, "Now I must ill not truat myself to soe the poor girl againI will find her and you."
At tbat moment the place in which the gaillotiue stood was rumning rivers of blood. Deserted thongh it was, one old crona dabbled in the crimon stroam, langhing hideously to herself.
"off wifl thoir heads," she
Of with thoir heade", sle muttered; "the I conld dance alout this monnment of death, it only they would decapitite the Count D'Artois." Preesenty the moon came up esining calmly on this ghastly epectacle. It ehone aliso on two forms this ghastly epectacle. It ehone also on two form8 clad in the garments of servitude, quietly toling clad in the garments of servitude, quietly toiling ithout molestatio
"Courage," murmured Annette; "it will not take us so many houra.
"But I am so tired,
But 1 am so tired, and my heart is so heary, " I know it, mademoiselle- I am nased to walking and you aro not-tbere, hang on my arm as hearily as you can-it will not tronble me. See heasily as you can-it will not tronble me. See how heautiful the light shince-and the waters re so clear and still"
"Oh! Anette, I wish I could look- I wiah I Sadowa of these trees, these fences, there may somehody come who will listen. Though the prosit God hae kept us so far and not even a goull hise met us. You must try to thiniko of the good dule us away -he was so charitabie and so virtnous. Alas that I daro not have masses said for the ropose of his sou!!"

"Oh! Annette-and he is lying there where fiends may pall him from his hed and insult his fonds may pall him from his hed and insult his gray hairs ; it is like desth to think of it. Alse!
howlonely $I$ am! fatherless, motherlegan have hoen better to stay-to die and go to heaven."
"Not in that horrid, horrid was, mademoielle ; don't talk of it-it makee my hlood run chill even to hear thant torrible name. No, no-plense heaven the young count may eseape; and you, after a hetle confinenrent, can come out agnin-and at least-if there is nothing olse left-rement there is Anmatte who would die for you.
Ohl my good girl," cried Blanche, weeping-what should I do imdeed without you? If you could only atay with me. Someway X am very mich frightened at the prospects before me. I am going to Madame Kuphrosine.
Annette, with au effort, sepressed a shudderthut crone's name was lcownn all over Paris. Thero was no danger there, to to sure, unless the woman was no dnnger there, to Le sure, unless the woman herself should be revengoful-for her very baeonees protected her. Nobody would think of searching that Bnatilo for porisbed hanuty-child and manu alike feared its very shadow. No officer of justice was dauntless enough to exigt for 3 mor ment within its poisonous stmoephere.
"And how did your good father know so had a "Ahl it was when sbe Mama told we about it. Sbe yonng and beautiful. splendid woman in Finuce. King we the to moat levees-and even worahipped her. All the great men of the timoo xan after ber. Papa was then men of the timo ran after ber. Papa was then young and a poet, and she liscinated him. But young and a poet, and she hascinated him. But he was too good ever to ho rained by her. I bee hieve he once did a good deed for her that made her grateful. But, alanal perhapa alhe has forgotton in these torrible times. No doubt thie nobility, ar and such persong profess to do now.
And if ihe ref And if she refasees me, where eball I go
"We will wait and ace"
 safc. If you turn back, then we will wank further and further. I do not fear. IDave little mouct and bo have yon, and I will work for yon; beop up your heart, mande moisellc."
A heary yigh and ${ }_{\text {reply. }}^{\text {Heav }}$
Heaveus ${ }^{1 "}$ oxcisimed Annette, in a low roice. $\Delta$ man stoed beforo thom atrang sly halited, a blouso tharown over whant nppegred to be of frock $\left\lvert\, \begin{aligned} & \text { coat. His face was dark and forlidding, and } \\ & \text { looked worse to them in their terror tban it really }\end{aligned}\right.$ wes. "Who ars these ?" he alked, gruffly, planting a ${ }^{\text {sigantic iggure in the was }}$ "Two
"Two poor girle," rephied Annette, who kept her wite about her, "who are going to mee their sick mother. Word was sont this evening we must walk because we have no money." "Where is the mother?" questioned the still with his eye fixed upon Blanche, whoee face was quite hidden.
nin Fontuimebian, on tho outskirta," was the oor worm "Oh 1 monsieur, don't detain us -for the "Poor sonll" cried the man, with ironical emphaeis; " and this is your vistor. No douht your Woras are true-hut everybody is at biberty to question in these times. Let me see your fice, mademoiselle ?" Theese dreadrul words proved that he suspeetad. Annette lost her strongtb. Blanche lifted her young lute.
"Ha
"Ha
"Ha! no Ulikeness-I ehourd thinks," be muttered, sarcenstically.
Blancho drew off the thiolk, coarse gloves, and displayed tro small hande so anowy whito and tupering, that the man evicenily looked at them "Humph 1 my dainty lany
"Humph! my dainty lady, I don't think your mama will he bleased with a vision of your pretty face to-night-youll have to come with me; yon aro an ariitocrati.
Amnotte fill on her knees, dumh with terror, holding up her elasped hands besecechingly-hut
Blanche towered-the color came into her fice. "Very well," she saide ; "it is hisst. My father dead-he is now walting for me there," and hior man stood irresolnte.
"Woll, well, mademoiselle," he said again, "we won't be rude erene with the pretty dayighters of our nobles. Here, give me that ring on your our nobles. Here, give me that ring on your Blanche tremblingly remioved the ring, and the two girls went on, scarreely able to hreathe through ${ }^{\text {foar. }} \mathrm{A}$

Alas! I am worse ofit than before," murmured not dare "that ring was my Footstops were heard
"The horrid fellow has repented,", gasped Annette; "he if ooming hack atter us." fight have been in that place--two feeble women against a tiong-limbed, coarse ruftian.
The man came up holding something between his thumh and forefinger.
"Take it," he eaid; "Keep your banhle, stopped near a light- $I$ read the initials $-I$ saw the crest- $I$ would not curse myeeff with leeping it, It belouge, or did helong to Madame En-
"Alas P " said Blanche, mournfully, after he had gone again-" even he rejects such a tolien-how can I enter her portals? how can I accept charity from her?"
"CourageP" cried Annette; stay there only during these terrors are not to -morrow it may all be ended. Bear up with patience-we are now far on our way. Only to oroas this wood-it is surely de serted at this hour. to the tender meroies of tbe old witch of Fontainehiean than of the guilotine. Ahl mademoiselle, yon have not seen it, else you would say so too. -"thers is a man following ns. See, that is him crouching near the tall post behind. Oh! how shall we dare to croas the wood. Arinette, I he lieve I am a coward-I shall sink upon the groun with fear."
"Let us get into the wood and hide suddenly in one of ite paths," whispered Annette. "I know we are two poor women, hut I know also Blanche darted forward. Sle had never hee oo nervous, so mach excited in her life. The peril- of her dead father at home-of Antomie peni-of the rude man who let them off, only pertrition, deeponed them after a momentary conmoon wae atill bright as they etole into the wood, whose long arches looked solemn in the distance and through whoae treotops could be seen the advery lustra of the moonlit sky. Still the stranger went on. He manas evidently follo til them. Arrived at the entrance of the wood he took tbe sume path they hed taken, but his consternation wes great when he no longer saw the floating dreeses. He pecred cautionsly aroundhe stood still-then stopping again he cried, loud whisper:
"Blanehe-Annette-do not fear-it is L." from their place of concoalment Harls bad omerged with joy, Banche recogmised the voice of antoine. Oh, whet pleasure to he folded for a moment in "It will never do" spaid her name!
bettc, fearful of listeners, of followere with An
"Other inteations have rcconnoitred tho gronnd; for an hour I hav watched and listened; I think there ia no danger here, and this poor girl must have reat," be said, half hearing Blancle on his strong arm. "I know little spot, thas has sarved for my own hidings-place. There we will atay until my poor darling feels stepnger, for whe leand as if all hor atrength Annstte did not oppose, fearful though she was. She lad great confidence in Antoine's good judgment. So ane come ined where he led, to a rough seat, usder somo interlaced trees, in the thiclsaat part of the wood. Here Blanche restod at Inst, only couscious of one happiness, thant of heing near Antoine. He sought among the rubhish ander the seat and hronght out a small tim hox and a flask. From the hox he prodnced some hiscnit, very aweet and dskicate, and insibted that both alionld est. Then he made thens swallow a "Thero will he worso work to-morrow than there has becn to-day," he said, when they prepared again to depart; "and I am glad that por will bs Mased even in so revolang s place as hast of end of beantiful things in the old place, no ond of silver and gold, which the old crenture has hoardad for yesra." for years,"
"Every
distraction," murmured Annetto here fills mo with "Wait till the moon goes down"
"then I shall not fear to be your gaide. Every ineh of this forest is familiar to me."
"But will Madame Euphrosine let mo in so late?" queried Blancho.
Io her, such prosple that will make any differencs to her, such people are light sleepers," said Antoine. "At all events, I'm determined to sea yon to the end of yonr journey."
In the oourso of en hour the three set out again, and it was not long before they gained Fontsinshleal. Then Blancho's heart hegan to fail her. She was to take leave of the two beat friends who remained to her on earth, one of them her lover and affinneed hnshand. Sho retroined from weer ing, thongh her heart wae full. "Annette, yon will go back to
?" sbe said, I "Yes, I shall return to protect the property, if again to Paris, I have huried money and silver under a plank in the collar. They may not sesrel the place, but if they do, that at lenst will he spared
"And now, farewell, Blancle," seld Antoino teartully. "It is already two in the morning. Keep up your heart, nuy darling. Madame hare. phrosine cannot hut be tender townrds yon, Bo young, so beautiful?
He embraced her as they came in view of the building, which, in the gloom, looked like some fortress. There was no bght to he eeen.
"Gop" whispered Antoine, as he stool gently held her from him.
"Oh, I cannot-I caunot!" cried the poor child. it will he light, and it has heen difficult already for "No-go-gol" eried Bla with reeolute steps. "Farewell, Annettel onl stay till I enter.
Sho crossed the gloony courtyard, guided by Antoine, and raising the antique knocker, gave three reeounding blows on the oaken door. For three resounding blows on the oaken door, For prolonged echo of the noise the had made. again Antoine applied hife strength to the knocker Presently stepe were heard inside, a great clatter, as if pans, hoards and furniture were being overthrown. Blanche slarank hack when the rattlo of chains and hoits struok her ear. Ono aftex tho other air ohsiruclione wero removed, and the doo than a square inch of light. Moast hideones was the face that looked forth, the tangled locks of hair fulling over shrivelled eheeks and hare vein-knotted neck.
"What do you want? Away witb yont" oried a "My father

If father sent me here," whispered Blanchs, "And who is your father, hussey, hach, that disturh my slumbers ?"
He bade me give you this ring and remind you "I prom very forgetful," oroaked the old creature, scepting the ring, nevertheless, starting ss sh ook it.
"Ah1 Yes, yes 1 I remember him-the Duke has done for him. It was a charming executio yesterdey; I was there all day."
Blanche shuddered with horror.
" Whet
"What did your father ask for you?" cried the witch. witch,
"Proteotion," faltered Blanche - "abelter till tho
trouble is over." "Protection
Tho child of sn aristoorst comes to the other witeb of Fontaineblean; the aristocrats, whom I hate with a mortal hatred, send their precious things to me I Well, girl, yon shall hsve shelter. nis man, your fatber, was a fool ; hut still ho ones did met good turn, and I'll not turn my heck on my promise, even if 'tis a had one, Come in." So saying she held the door open. Blanohe esse one lools behind her, almost ready to bravo the wrath of the avenging popnlace, ratber then faco his terrihle virago; hut Antoine, unseen by all hut her, heokoned ber to go forward. She stepped into the great gulf of darkness, hardly brightened a foot onoither side by the miserable candle. The hroken, horrille voice bade hor follow.
"Yon"ll not find luxuriea in this house, not to your mind at least, my fino lady. There's a coueh that the poor ond long has laid on for many a nette has honored with her feet, far a piliew Antoior a nightdress, I've nothing very nice; hut yon can wrap yourself in this, 'twill kcep you warm. I can't aftord bedclothes.
conch, and oatehing Bomething thassook on the flung it at Blanche, and hurricd awny to repeat ever it was, mas Blanoke felt tbe dress, whator. She was weariod and hearthroken, and yet Throwing the garment, which was thiok and warm, The light of dey never fully penetrated of Madame Enphrooine, becanse of the hangings hefore the windowe, or boards, or broken blinds atanding against them. But Blanche wes awakened by tbe familiar somnd of the milk hells that penetrated even these thick walls. Ah, she had waked from a dream of heaven to find herselif Fhere ? All night ehe had been heppy, shariog his amiles, his kisses ; now this dark confasion of splendor, this squalor of sordid woalth greeted her eyes. For some mements she could not make out where ehe was. The room was immense, monch larger than any in hor fether'g palece, and covered with the rieheatand mostbeantifulcarpeta, covered with the riehestand mostbeantifulcarpeta, atoed in one corncr, heaps of laces in anether, and piled sgainete ench other, the most lovely piotures, in costly frames, lcaned, covered with dost and aegleot.
From these strange things her glance wandered to tha lounges, of whien there were six of the mosit reaherche snd elegant patterns conceivshie. son satin and hreeaded with gold, so wae the hassoek, on whose sof velvet were worked the inelessly of royalty. The wrap which she had so care threwn over her was ef quilted white satin, among the folds; the laces around the sleeves were worth a amall fortune, and the work nponits gleaming front must have cost many weary hours of lahor. In one elbow, and hegan to inapect these strang premises. There was neither method nor cleanilness. The splendid colors in the chnhassen at her feet seemed coated hore and there with filt, in other plaeee cut and she so defaced in some part frohe. The pictures were that the mutilation seemed intentional. The Venotian mirrore, of which there were three, framed in ivory, inlaid with gold, alone had esoeped the defecing hand of crnelty or time.
Atter a fow momente Blanche Bfted herself from the lounge, and moved around to inspeot these beantiful thinge. Behind her dragged the ricl trail of her strango night-dress. Wiping the dust from one picture and another; marvelling at their morning had advanced, fer through the ohscurit morning had adla dim, creanuy light that much the sun gave only dense of her security, while it enhanced the senge playcadfalse with her reason. Net untill the began it might he past brealdinst hour, and then eume to her a vision of that home in which hor father lay; had they lett him there? Did she dare to hope they had given him a Chriatian lurial? Ah! no ; that hlessing was denied null the aristocrate, as they were oalled. Throwing herse down in the midst of that rotting and fading splendor, she wept and moaned unreetrainedly. No one heard her; no one eame near her; the silence of the great house at last grew eomething frightfu. Not even a monse was to be heard; not conscious of a coming terror that was even woree than the oriee of the exited people for hlood. Wrim creature given her the refuge she sought, grim creature given her the and then left her to etarve ? The thought wa not a welcome one, though she wished so ardently to die; the pangs of hanger must he even more dreadful than the sharp pains of the gaillotine She made her way to the door by which she en tered; it was locked, hut the whe ano loer doo directly opposite, and down the great longth ohe travelled in the midst of eplendid hut faded chair sill hangings, throwninto heaps, until she reached it in terror, for foar it, too, should bs harred against leer. But no; though it reaisted her strength for a long time it gave way at last, and she etepped into a long dreary eatry, from which the monidering paper was literally dropping, hut which, like the roem, had long lengtha of Aubuseen which, like the roem, had ong leng tha of aubusee seemed to open, hut, one after another as she tried them, Ble found them securely fastened, all but one; this ehe entered and stood aghaet on the threshold. It was a kitchen with a emoky, yawning fireplace, and was literally heaped witt magnineent rollhish. Beantiful fromee that had held masterpieces hy the greateet painters were broken in aplinters, and laid piled upon the hearth ready fer firewood. A oplendid panel of Watteau's laid across two hroken chairs, and two or thrce siliced onions disfigured the rare coloring and outlines. Several porcelain vases that had been and etill were worth, hundreds of pounde contained the refuse or the talle, or dirty water. Aoross the window was euspended a rare piece of Gohelin tapestry, and immediately under it etood a grand Ererd pianoforte, the keys hrown with dirt, and the rich fronze work disfigued hy dirt, and the rich hronze work disfigured eorepe of mouldy hread and meatlees lone. On the walls, over and hetween the pietures, hung dreessee which had, no doult, griced the forma of reynl pereonages; brocades, satine, silks, crapss, laces from the meet renowned artiste, Kingly fur; golden speons, on which were stamp-
edt the erests of great hut fallen honsee; ailiver plete, tamished, hent, put to the mest degraded uses; here plettere of weod; there splendid pitchere of eut glasa; here goblets with pieturee of princea engraved thereon, haxur, equount.
and filth, though the letter reigned poramout.
Wass the alone in this feerful house? Thera the crnste of mouldy hresd-asve the slicee of raw onion, whose flavor ing away the ruhlingh she touched tha keys of the splendid instrument hefore har; a flood of harmony rolled round the narrow, , high-ceiled apartmoek frighteusd hor, and she racoiled, expecting moet Irightensathfru vieago of tho ownor of all to see the wrat
thie hlended wasalth and misery. A heap of hooks next attracted her attention. They were thrown indings. Lifting them ehe found bere ulso a collection for which some would willingly have spent a fortune. They appeared to have been and had been handied with no tenderness. Seleetig one from the number, Blanche crawled back to the room in whicle elle had passed the night, and the ondeavored to read. Wearily the hours passed on. The light grew deeper, then fainter, and on. The light grew deeper, then fainter, and finally, faded out. Blanchi was very hungry; he could even disgnise the faet from herself; would even he willing to eat the onion raw, disgusting thongh it was to her delicate teate.
At jast there was a clanking se of ehaine, a sho trembled violently from fcar and weakness from dread to sco again the woman who had proved herself so utterly heartless. She needed not; the etepe did not ceme near her, hut were coon heard reeeding in this distanoe; Madame Euphrosine had gone to snother part of the housn with more apoils, the fruits of her horrid day'e

How to pase nnother night without feod Blanche carcely knew. She who had always her daintiest wants supplied would scarcely have refused uroken erust. All the day hefore she had Bcarcely tasted food; that whieh Antoine had given her was the first that touehed her lips. In thie dark ness she shivered and wept. If Antoine hat knew powerless? Terrible fanciee crowded to her view at last she thought that this wae Sundey. It geve her new hope. Perhaps the old madante lad after all a piety of some sort, and ehe had sence ; she might think of her, inqnire after her yet. But no; the wesry hours of another night succeeded, and sleep fled from her pdlow. She avecceded, and sleep fed from her palow. She phantoms; that now and then $\dot{\alpha}$ eteru voice cried: "This was my picture; it was stolen from the royal saloon." At last the dusk morning uroke agoin, and Blanche, nearly delirioue with he yome litchen. On her wey she passed an open nd there saw Madame Luphrosine diving dee into an old chest. At the same time she thonght she lieard the clink of coin. Hearing a footstep the crene looked up; her face wes instantly suffued with anger. She lifted herself; shut the trunk angrily, and turned with a menacing ges trunk angrily, ture to Blanche.
"What do you here-impertinent ?" she cried, rith a terrible oatil

I am hungry," Blanche reckless. "I am hungry," alie cried, pitifully; "I am "Well, I did not tell you I would feed yon," ried the old woman, still angry. "I heve give "Then yon wish me to etarve," cried Blanche, the'tears running over her cheeks. "Very well had jas lief die lyy one way as another, now."
"Food cesta money," growled the old women, "Will you give me eome food if I pay you? aried Blanche, hope reviving.
"Perhapse eo. Bnt hah!
unate if they have a few pence in theee times." "TVell, I have more than a fory pence. I have one eagle which 1 will give you to huy foed for a few days, if you will not let me starve."
"Ah! that is talking eemething like it. What "Anything that will appease my hunger," said Blanche.
"Then
Then perhape milk will do, and a amall haker'
"Oh! yee; that will be all I wish," oried prospect of simple food seemed oo delicious.
"Then come into my litchen, and perhap while I am getting then you will pley me a tuno, asid the old weman, loaving the room, that is the masic-stool of Marie Antoin it at the saching of the pace ohinette. I got hrave day. I gaid once, long ago, thet I woul see-I have the cup she drank from, the dreesee she wore, the carpets ehe trod upon-ah1 I love to grind my heel in them," and ehe suited the actien to the word.

See, here is some milk-it is in my Antoinette-Blanehe shivered from head to foot, hant
Blanehe sinvered from head to foot, hat the dored so, with a sigh for the unfertumate queen, and a tear that fell within the watery heverage, she dranle Thite the haggieh eyes wore faetened upon her azything ehe had ever

"A rite

ppetites," cried the old wo all, mice with deliest are satisficd, let me tell you come news. What pity I had not done so hefore, it would have given such zest to your pleaeure. Ah; yeeterday was grand day, tha grandest day I have ever eeen." grand day, the grandest day I
"Yone grem pale and silent.
"You see they racked some of tha moet heanti-
"On the Sablath!" eried Blanche.
ter the deed. I wae privileged, I any man splendors; I posse日sed myeelf with a few-anch not as etrong as they were. Howover I offeredmy gold, and some fellowe remained who will sell mo whatevar I want. I axpect them to lring it to.

Blenchn sat like a etatua. Har lipt wera dry and parted, h ses nothing.
"In one house I met a very pretty proces:
Several men bringing ont the corpae of ar
"Oh " shrieked Blanche, "what were they going to do with it? frighiffol old woman. "It was such anold man too, with long white curling bsir.

The wretches," eacaped frombetween Bisnchs's
"There, there-that will do for an aristocrat," Blonehe whas wiltht. She farions herself in this she n's power.
"Ah! yes, a white-hended old man, with a high his hed."
"My peor father!" eohhed Blanche
"Is it so, indeed? Very well, he escaped the gullotine.
"Yoe, oh, yes I am thankful for thot at least have that consolation.
"T "Tot at least have that consolation. the growl of a tiger." "And, my dear, I went and over the houso-ah! indeed, it was benutiful. I heve several little mementoes-among them this, Which luckily n
the hodelotheB
"Ah! it is my crose;" and Blanche stretched forth
me."
"T
"Too fast my little aristocrat-did I not eay that theee thinge are spoile for the people? How that theee things are spoils for the people? How do I know it is yours. Would you tum thief toe as well as fine lady ?
Blanche blirank haek whide the dianonds were "Ah! that was a very fint tripped. Ite carpets went one wey and its hooks another. There may he daintier smusements, hut for the pretty excitement give me the sacking of a house. The silver makes such a fline ellow in the house. The silver makes such a fine slow in the hands of a tattercd wretch, who in it sees lirend for his children-the rich carpete will look so well on the mud fleor of the porter's apartments. Oh tis heautiful. And then the hrave work it did yesterdsy. Going, going, chick, dick, steadily-and young girls, stately women, there they were as good as it was heautiful, heautiful 1 "

Blanche grew eiek with horror.

"And did yon hear any namea?" she asked, emhling from head to foot.
"Of course-angust names-names that have made all Paris tremble. Ah 1 hut that fine young man! it was almoet a pity. If he had not heen an aristeerat I ehould have cried myself, I am cararisteerat I eh tain I should,
Here sle east a sinister glance at her visitor, " He wask upon thesplendid heep of finery. stood there with such grace. I was near enough to lieten, and I heard him say only one word hefere the knife came down. That word was the name of his aweetheart, perhape-perhaps of his wife. Ah 1 Blanche !" elhe whiepered "Yon ars his wife. Ah 1 faint, child."
hetter. And murmured Blanche; "there, I am was the color of his cyes, tell ma ${ }^{\prime \prime}$
"A dark hlue-a very sweet dark blue eyerich head of suburn hair, spproaching golden.
His name-let me see-I have a ring of his hair." She took from the folds of her kerchief a heautiful

ntoine, and he was a nohloman."  A half-stifled sluriek; Blanche

up with a geature of agony.
witch. You are a devil; for all this thene youknew that I was desolate. Inhuman creature--kill me you will, deneunce me to the authorities. I will there, fiend and murderer."
Mademe Enphrosine staggered forward as if to etrike the young girl. She foamed at the mouth Blanche threw hereelf out of the rooim, and returned to her prison chamhor. There her torture flying from picture to picture, singing, daneing, houting in the hot fever nd a the Day through her brain; ghe toek no nourishment, and at last ele fell eenseless on that hesutiful couch, emhroidered with the royal arme. Sbe did not hear the shoute of rejoieing, the ringing of bells, the caunon that proclaimed tbet the terrible reign of the msesacre was over. She did not hear the he knew nothing until ten days afterward, she opened her eyea feehly and smiled on Annettes whom ehe recognised.
"Docs sho renlly know you "" esked a voice that thrilled the girl from head to foot thilled the girl from head to foot.
"ill not he hest to try her too mnoh.," Perhaps it "Wil not he hest to try her too mnoh." Blanohe tried to lift her poor wasted arms. She gusped as a light like a greitit glory hroke over her
"My. father 1 Antoins 1 Then I am in heaven." Yes, it was indced her fought them to her hedside -whose reperted death had heen a cruel fiction But her father-how was this doulle hlessing to ha desd, during that terrihle Sundey they had dragged him to the river, and after eome indignity thrown him violently in. In some almoet minacn-lous manner, the hody was canght anidst the found hy aome kind pessant woman. During hif transit his hesd had struck soma sharp projection
-tha hlood triekled forth-lo was partially revived
peasants did all the rost.
Blanehis lind pansod through a frightful o hnt she soon forgot it in her cupreme happiness of poesession, where sha thought all wrecked-all lost.
Madams Enphroeins, was found where sha had fallen, dead-and as recorded by the historin I have limned no ereatare of the fancy in this noman-with her hand clasping a volume of Voltsire. She was not allowed Christian hurial.

THE DIABOLICAL BARBARITIES OF THE REBELS

In the Trentm

As irrofragahle proof of all thnt has heen be seen on our firit pago in the portraita of eight prizonera returned to ne by oxchange. They are from photographs, and withont exaggeration. It in not is coss Where sny is needed. Tho London Mluatrated Nelos Yecently gave from nkotahce by its own arlista viowe of the priscoers on Belle tale, and tho pleture, drewn by one who sympethices with the robeta, confrma corn-pietely tho accounts of tho prieoners themedves. The Joint Corminittee on the Conduot of the War proceeded to Annsspolis and Baillinore, and took War toetimony of returned eoidiers. In their report they

Rro
otho onlo
the

in 觬

obstructions and the torpedo brigade at work.-From a sketor wadh by ong of Gen. Buthar's Ecocts.

S ONITJAMES RIVERA
bunva, on Drury's Buava, on Drury's line of spiles, has been sidico the ropulise eurn wive there, under tho ferot
pers, on the 15 th of May, ero thon stight, and harc
andy strengthenea, and setod hy Gon. Butler.
sest
stion and ation and puhlic bope
a to its $\begin{aligned} & \text { epeedy capture, } \\ & \text { ande one of the sitrong }\end{aligned}$ ands one of tho strongrebelilon, guariing the ecepital of Richmond. e eupital of Richmond. s, Tho went up and raw ntiag their torpedoes to unboats reaching the line
$=$ cloud moving into 8 atran is, py whioh its partoles
1, and run into drops too in the atruopphore. snow tail ts coupsod hy tho froeg.
opa inter they hegin to fall
ont the folling of fte yi fouting on teve euntrice of of a cloud le in fog floaking bere - have you know that quality,
asid a marquia quaity, nad a marquia
"nad $I^{\prime \prime}$ ropliod the a man of quantity."

SUNLICht AT EVENINC.

 Wesur and worn, and old and gray,The light of my young life passod away,
But a trace of its radiance lingeretb yet, But a thace of its radiance ing grett ye,
Lile the westen sky wben the sun beace set
Wit Witb the ebrado tar alling tbe demy eronni Yeal d'en on tbe verge of the lonely tomb, Yoe vision cunlls hack yonth's rosy b One memorr still make lifo divine, The dream of the love tbat once was mine 1 Star of my lifel yet lead me on, Till the twiligbt of sonrow is past and gone, And the morning of joy and bope shall bre
On the night of waiting, for thy dear sako. Tbe undying love in my heart tbat dwells, Wae realed for thine own by our last farewell And etill shall tho name at morn and oven prayer to Heaven. Go up on the wings of prayer to Heaven.
Then, o'en if wo meet on this eartb no more,
I shall wait for thee on the denthleas sbore.

The Serpent-Woman.

By z . w

hapter vm.

Tuinge out of hepo are compasedef with ventriug.

To preserve his hrotber from tho consequances of hisi last outbreak, Burtran Hppevclu was obliged to oxert all tho policy and induunce ho conld command. To iuduoe the authorities to tolerate his stay in Paris, under strict survoillance, till hia recovery, witb tbe underotanding that be obould as covery, witb be understan, soon as was able to truvel, receive bie paesports and quit France andxingye, he no sooner became do for him. Accorvingly, he no sooner bocame convaleseent than be was funisbed with ample

He nurived iu New Yorts in safoty, and was agree-- ably dianpointed in that magnificent metropolis. ably dianppointed in that mannificent motropolis.
Hcre he formed associations of the worot deecrip. tion, indurlged in the wildest diasipstion, gam bled and loct bis money, and in a few months was in and for his board and a destitute wandorer in th abtreet. While banging about the Poost Office one morning after baving inquired in veiin for his exmorring, after baving inquired in vain for his expeted letters from Europe, homet an old decquaintpecea, wbom he han hot ecen since boyhoed, but ancer
wbom, wbom, after having once bad a fair view of his re-marrable pbysiogonomy, it was imposeoble to mie markabie ppysiogonam, Mr. Gregory Grimgrip.
take for auy other tban Morser recall himself to the old fellow'e memory, which proved inconvemiently ohinious stances related for this purpoos. Victor's perreeveraceo was and macte after the young mant condescended to inquire after the young mani father and Mordaunt Eliftonen, in wbose fato be seemed interested. Niotro to the ouly person from hom he hoped for immediate aid, prr. G., wbo, aftor condoling with bim his own poverty and utter inability to ronder him the elightest and wisted was convinced that Mr. Grimgrip de-Victor was coived him, and conld by cursing his parsimony. Heppening, howcover, a fow minutes afterwards, to drop into an excbange office, in Wall street, to nsoertain to what extent it would avail bim to draw for money upon hiss mot the counter, oxchanging a thielk noll of unanee at the counter, oxchanging a thiek roil of uncarronk later looked up and caught Victor's eye, he smiled grimily, observing quietly, as he passed out of the offee: "I am a collector, Mr. Kingsland, and theee funds belong to them hy whom I am employed Io a portion of the money, ouly too happy to aid yon. ziortined as he wne for tbe moment hy this circumstance, Victor thought kittlo of it till a few cumstance, Nctor, whon he elhuced to sce Grmmgrip enter a drinking-sadoon, soveral eotata were lounging.
"Inn't he an ugly cuss?" abked one.
"Yee, but as rich ae Craians," anewivered enother.
"And as harias granite", contimued a third. speaker.
${ }^{\text {speakzer. }}$ "He owns more rum-holee than any other man in Now York, "naid the theond.
Victor walked on without ovorhearing any more of these duhious compiiments to the niggard wlo of these duhious compiiments to the niggard whio had treated him witb supertiuoue olocencese and "TWeub it bo impossililo to get blood out of stone, it thall go hard hut 1 will get gold out of a miber. Why Biond the oud andink ino god for ton times the sum I aek. By sove, rll ring Bomething out of the moneygrubver, into the lending vein. TII beard the hion in his den."
Victor stood on the cormer of the street till $h 0$ sam Grimgrip come forth, and thon diligently followed him from place to place till he saw him ontor a dingy house in Mulberry etroect, whicb, npon inquiry ho ascertained to be his residence. He ran quiry ho ascertianed to be bis rosidence. He ran nip ite dirty doorsteps and tugged lustily at the bollpull. He had to repent the latter effiort more tban oneco ere the door was opened. It was slightly unclosed at lest hy a darivelled old woman, with oold inexpressive foce, who shoolk ber thin, , wizizizy lock a t Victors. Sbo hind not heard the bell and did not hear him, now he apoke to her. Inceused hy ber mide condnct, he thrnst himself into tb pasesgg. Seeing he was not to be got rid of with passage. seeing he was not to be got rid of with-- out explanation, sbe banded him a little slate which bring against the wall, and at tbe top of which was wniten:
"Writs your basiness."
He wrote on the slate:
She read wost he bad written, scribbled, witb
tremolons hand, and returned him the elate, uppon whicb be fonnd these words:
Write your nams,",
Ho complied with this injunotion, and away the crone it witb this additional sentonce upon it :
witb
" 3 Hr. Grimgrip's complimenta to Mr . Kingeland and regrete that be is so mnch ongsged that he cannot poosibly see bim."
Victor, determined not instantly yrote in reply
"IIr. Kingaland will not lewve this house till ho has eeen Mr. Grimgrip.
pen to induce and fecilit heen bolding tbe door ceived the elato book with a bad grace, perused the added writing with a frown, bung np tbe slate, pointed to the open doorway, and oven mado an attempt to put bim out. en convinee ber of th ntter fallacy of ony sueb endenvor, Victor tbut the door, thrust tbe wrinlded dame aside, and walked into the bouse till be came near the feot of th etairs, wbere be stood looking up tbem, as if diopesed to ascend to tbe storey above.
The old woman flew past him with apeed surprising in such a oripple, disappeared through loft him, mucb amueed by ber impotent depplay of temper,
Ho mi

Hop wbietled a tnne, hummed an opera air, walked up and down the passange, ecrutinized its dinginest, unrelieved by a single article of furniture, looke/ up the narrow etairs, bit by a dirty little rom window, and saw, peeping down from over the balusters, on the second fligbt of stops, a face that sent a clill through his heart, like tbe apparition sent a chill through his heart, ile.
of a countenance from the grave.
It was a very whit face, witb lirge, pure, blue lato anow, snirounded hy waring auburn bair, ba fenturcs matchlcss in their claseic porfection, and the month, balf open, beautifully formed, showed the month, balf open, beautifully formed, showe rows of teeth that glittored lilio wbite jewels. Tbe lost, forlorn look of tbe couutennnce toncbed his It reart, and he heckoncd to it, emiling pleasantly hittle wider and tho blue eyce distending. sid denly it disappeered, and be thought be bad frigbtened it away. Butitreturned, silily peeping, curions and smiling, and again he beokoned it. At this moment tbe sound of approaching footstep was heard, the beautiuu hoed was thruat forwari and then wae jerked hack and out of eigbt in an instant.
So absorbed was Victor witb this appayition, tba
he bardyly noticed the he haraly noticed tbe approach of Grimgrip t the latter addrcesed him in his barehest tones.
"And pray, eir, what do you menn by invaing "And pray, eir, what do yon menn by in my bouse in tbis wuwartantable manner $₹$ " Fictor, without replying, examined Grimgrip from heed to foet, to him to make a study or he person, and tuen looked into bis eycs with a keen, penctuting

"Weill, sir "" exclatimed Grimgrip.

Alr. Grimgrip, I wait to borzow money of yon, ${ }^{\text {pay." }}$
"I know no aucb thing."
"You do ; and you know that you bave aiready refuacd me under tbe falese protence tbat you are poor. Yo my need.'
"Granting I am, do you thifils Iam going to award a premium to your insolence hy londing yo
"I want money and will havo it Fill bave it-will you? It ia just as I supposed; ;if. I don't give it to you, yont from mee."
" No I will compel yon to give it to me
"No. I will compel yon to give it to me"
hrimgnep poeket, sad said, quictly
"An ingerious way of anying you will roh me I have had to deal with stronger and braver men tit easy to quiee the holdeest. Quit my promises this instant, or Tll end for an offeer and have yon put out.
"Send for
"Send for one, Mr. Grimgrip ; Tll wait till he arrivee. I an content to go to prizon, if tbat ho the penalty I must pay for my in trution, for it is worth it, I bave gainoda aseret worth thousands. I am maetor of the position."
It is more tban you are of yourself. You are
"Ity mind is Ipoid, and eo can I make my meaning. What faco wae that wbieb peered over the baluasters at mee juet now
At this inerrugation, tho eountenance of tb of maich Madnme Tussaud's famoue room of hor rore nover contained. Ugly ae he wae by nature, tbe green pallor that now orerspread Grimgrip'e face made bim loak ten timea more alhorrent nnd fuce, made him look ten timea more alhorrent and devililik, and tho #rithing of hia festuree in iti effort to maintain composiuro, rendered them as horific es the enakes in tho lair of the Furries. "What business hane you to pry into my family he.said.
"ith have basinceas, Gregory", ropilied Victorn struch the rigbt voin at last, "nnd authority, to if Ithink propor to use it. I will, if you are at leisure enter into full particulurs ; if not, I will leisure, entar into full particuhrs; if not, I ${ }^{\text {mil }}$ recur to the buxiness that hronght mo here," "What, wbat is it?"
"The want of twenty pennds-I mean a hundred dollore,"
"Won let me and my affairs alone bence"Win yon let me and forth, if I give it to you "
"Of cin
"Of courre; ; I sball sfterwards have nothing to do hut to call and repay yon the loan.
"Save yourself the trouble. I am not sucb an ool as to lend, withont ecourity, to spendllurifta. I give-pay yon tbe money a e tbe price of a fuil xemption from all remark or interference from yon with reference to my affairs hereafter. Do yon anderstand?"
"Perfectly"
"Perfectly.
"That yon are not to breathe a word about my one thing gor tbe other."
"Exitlo"
"Exaetly."
"Good."
"Here'e the money," snid Grimgrip, handing him two fifty dollar bills from his portly poclet-Thank you, Gregory. Good-liye I" "Good-day to you," anid Grimgrip, ahntting the door after him, and muttering as he returned to "IIII be the of tho sorapegrace if be ever
"TII hloed the old miserly maid victor King into the street.

chatter in

Jouns Sx. Onorx bad succeeded beyond his Elistone rene extabiahed in his fitting position in socioty. The old eoulptor himeolf, by bie apparent elearness of tbought and calmpess of action, cou-tributed principelly to tbis bappy reeult, and hit celatives, much as tbey secretty wiahed to preven his reetoration to his former dignity and freedom were confounded in tbeir machinations by a quiet discretion and locid foreeigbt wbicb put theit discretion and lncid foreeigbt wbicb put theit wu rationality and wiodom to Gbame . It wa vain for any of tbem to deny hie elaima to perfoct dict (and oven wisht, alae1) the return of hif madnesa. Bt. croix rejoiced greaty in the tri mpb of wis old friend, for whom he enterrained longed to get back to France (for he bad kept his family manaion in Worceaterchire), be de-ned his return till Bertram Hapewell joined tbem.
Bertram had, to gratify Elfatone, been following up eome imngined clue to the fate of the loe wifo and child of the lotere, hut in spite of the moet diligent and cloee reecarchee, returned un failure. Merina was in France on a like miesion, and Eirstone himseli would bave started on a imilar journey but for the entreaties of bis friende and tho pictures tbey drewor tbe disturbed state woild contrive agninst him and attempt to carry out during hia abboncee abrood.
Julian St. Croix took an affectionate farewoll of the man be loved as be did his own father, and tomard him be had bbown a filial regard and duty and commended him to the friendy offices of Bertram Hapawel. St. Croix was not long in Franco ere be had ascertaincd the whoroahoutso Marina and paid ber a visit. Ho found ber in an obecure village in the Cotas du Nord, reiliding with Madame Nitouche; a tall, dark and fairy eyed lady of a malignant temper and pious turn wbo expected, by cbaritablo purcbase, prayere way into beaven. Her religion wae superatition, her superstition groess and groveling, and he scuro toan brighton her intelleet, and to narrow ratber tban to enlurge ber eympathice for her fellow-beings. Marina was ber dangbtar, but she fellom-beings. Marina was ber dangbur, becine bad never aclinowledzed ber, and sellom received her, unless the latter bought her favor with conadernbe prosenta. Avarico and superatitiou piey were now the ruling passions with Madame Nitonche, and poor Mariag befieged her heart in vinin for the smalleat share of maternai love. The mother bad already warned her daughtor toat the Julian St. Croix arrived and effectod an entire change of manner in the former toward the almos Marina with apparent kindnese, and made herrall seem to St. Cmix a person. She had heard muek of St. Crois before sboeam him-of his eloquent defenco of tho churcb, and his many acte of daring goodness; had perutsed some of his writings, and looked upon him as a holy youth deatinged to canonization. Ma rina fae dolighted to porceive that his influenee over her mother wris very great, and hoped to rofit by it.
Sho know the strugglo that was going on in the mind or st. Croix. she knevt that he loved ber therefore the more deeply and ardently. His realistace to tor overwbe ming pussion that abing it the more intense nad ecll-devouring. His dream of posesessing her, was, he folt, to him worth il the world beaides. It was intoxicating to de lirium to think of ber as one who was to hecome Lis own, but often ne bowsould drive the delicions deluaion from hire mind, it eame bachi to him a and ngain, more entraneing at each return.
on one occasion he had sceompnid but to the ruins of tho Oaetlo Presomptueux, and wbile
hey were wandering abont the crumbling walls and towere, ber fuseinating power almoet dreer and towers, ber fuseinating power almost dreir the sooll ont of him. Ho trembled, and his voice betrayed in every tone the barning agitation of love tbat throbbed in his heart so tumultuoully. Marina eavi that her witcbery had done ite work, nd that ber victiul was in ber power.
They entared the ruined cbapel of the castle. sky and its infliences. Its walls were crumbling io tbe eartb, and tbe grase grvw in ite aiskles. Oppoeite tbe remains of tbe altar, upon a sunken monument, balf covered with verdure, they 5 sat down and gazed uponthe relic hefore tbome. They ragment beforo them, for their tboughta were wo busy with encb other, and both folt that the moment of mutaal reventing had arrived. Mrarina Was neither aggitated nor embarraseed, but Julien was hotb, indeed so powerfully wrongbt upon by his pasaion ae to be lost to everything but one absorbing emotion. Marina had turned her mag nificent gaze upon her lover, wben be yentured to glance at her, and their eyes met. Tbe tender lustre of hare drow bim tike a spell, and, with a sigb, the last sign of a struggle, he surrendered himeelf wbolly to the o'ermastering weaknees, Hie trembling and venturesome arm etole round her waist, and his burning and liquid soul roee to

is very lips.

"uien, anid ebo, archly aud tenderly, "are
"I bave no resolution at all, now, Marina. I once appired to be the glorious instrument of restoring the true church to ite pristine puity and perfection, which the wic". ances of designing and evil meu bas obscurcd sud impaired, hut my enthnaiasm has abatcd much or late, Can you ot gueea wby, Marina ?
Sbe leaned bcr hoautiful arm on Julien's sbould-
r, looked closer into hit oyes, and answered vith $r$, looked closer into his eyes, and answered with " You can ontrust my friend, for I am very fond of you. What hee cbanged your mind, Julien."
"My love for you, Marina."
"I love you, too, Julien."
"I love you, too, Julien."
Marina felt the armi tighton tbat elasped her waist, and his frame slaake witb tho violence of hia feelings. His lips quivered, his eyes filled, felings. His lips quivered, his eyes filled, and, pressing her to his bosom, bo exclaimed impetvonaly:
"Marine, you are dearer to me tban lifo, than beaven itsolf, and that is wby I no longer wisb to he a pricst."
Marine was reared in the school of deceit, and Was, both by nature and edncation, a SnalicToman. Sbe bad much bympathy and esteem for Julien, hut ehe did not love him. When hie lipe net hers sbe was conscious of repugnance, but bbe did not ahow it, for sbe bad an oljject to gain. "Julien, you know not who or what I am. You are aware that I am ignorant of my father, and are aware that I am ignorant of my father, and that my mother has never yet acknowledged me.
I bave been an ontcast from my hirtb, and havo led an outcast's Wfe. Your declaration has takon me by surprise, but I lovo you too woll to ruin or diehonor you; and herc, before this ancient boly altar, do I hneel and ewear tbat no promise plodge, or bond of love sball he exchanged atween us, till an bonorable

Is not Madnme Nitoncbe your mother? ${ }^{?}$
"Sbe does not actnowledge me, yet I believe I am ber daughter. Sbe bas my aecret, and niore han mine, hot leeepe tbem liko the grave. If you ove me, if you love Bertram, it yon love Dlestene, mike bor your friend, for sbe knows all we mos wisb to learn. You bave aiready great influence over ber, for she doome you a young baint, ani hopes tbat in you, for ebe is vary superstitioun, the will obtain an interceeeor, who will persuade the recording angel to hlot out her meny sina and write ber name in tbo book of eterani hife. If eho viewed you in any other light, you would have no more weigbt tban I, who havo to pay gold for the more weigbt tban I, who have to pay gold for the privilege of erosting her threehold."
"This is all involution, perplexity and mystery
"To be plain, tben, I sm eure that my mother mows where Eliftone's wife dicd, and wbere hi child is living."
"Why did y

Why did yon not tell of tbis beforo ?"
Because I was not certain of ber knowledge a I ain now, and becaukc thr least inmavertence " I am now, and becaute thr might seal up her lips for ever."
"As they are for ever sealed 1 " exelaimed a voice ncar them.
They started to tbeir feet, and from hehivd tho ruined altar glided Madame Nitouche berself, her hlach eyes glcaming terribly, and her tall threatening them bike a towering anneonda.
"Wretch 1" she cricd; "is it not enough that you have offended cvery human law and plotted agaunt all earthly peace, hut you must lay soheme 5 abuse religion, to violete the sanctities of oburch, and coil into hesven to pollute it? oburch, and coil into hesven to pollute it?
always euspeeted yon to be either a heretic or always euspeeted yon to bo eith loth Yon are no hypocrite, and ohild of mino, hut the daughter of an idiotio man I ever beheld. I bate you, and never do you dave to croes my thiresbold agnin, for the vilest wanton ehall be welcomcd to my bome hefore suel "anton chall be weic."
Marina throw heraelf imploringly at the feet o the fierce apesker, who epuuned ber with her toot, and etnalked out of the ruin with the aij of tho eternest of the Parce.

A LOVE SONC
by zaxest trevos.
My darling is tha gentlest thing
That breathes the hlessed dir, That breathes the hlessed sir,
Her emile is like a gleam of epring When the young days are fair.
And then har voice is swester far Than masic in ths night, Her lóve is now the guiding star
That fills my soul with light. And when her leving glonee is thrown Upon my heart te shine,
I joy to think she is my o
Mine only-only mino!
The Gulf Between Them.

by miss, anes s. steprexens.

chapten xhi.-contenoze.
Vicronts had hoenso mnch occupied ahove etairs that the found no opportunity for observation, othorwise Dolpb's manner and the mysteriozs air of importance which Clo assumed would have warned Clo made Solly wait on her more than ever, hoxed thin girl's eerra for heor own midatakee, tried on new turbana, surveyed horself in the glaes, snd strutted turbuans, surreyed Loraelf in the glase, and strutted ahoont in the highest stato of fominine triumph. ahoont in the highest stato of hminine triumph, Dolph tried his hest to be happy, hut it required a virid recolleetion of the money he hould a oquire to make him at all comportable,
ing to himeeff
"Five hundred dollsrs! one-two-tlireo-four-fivel",
Then ho would remember Vietoria's youth and yellow heenty, his own delioiour freedom, and groan hewily. But he was sure to hrin spirite again ly muttering, vigorouly: spirite again hy muttering, vigoroualy:
"Fivg hundred dollara!
Ono-two Tive hin
four-fivel"
Ret
Butit was a season of holiday delight to Clorindis, The highines aspirition of ber spinstor soid was noon to he gratificd-she wonld have $a$ huiband 1 soon to he gratified-she wond have a hasband 1
No long ongagement for her; she-made up her No long ongagement for her; she made up her mind to that on the moment. With the hird oneo mind to that on the moment. With the hird onoo in the cage, she was not going to lose time in closin the cage, she was not ing the doer-not shol
She fed her sahli intended to repletion with shere dointios, and it speke mnrrels for his digestion that after all the dimner he had eaten he could make such havoc among the cuke and preserves, and still look complacently forward to the pros. peot of hroiled ehicken, Crisp crullets dis-appeored like frostwork in his nimble jawe he appearod liko frotwork in his nimble jawe, he lefia in a very unuecessery steck of tongue considering his natural dvvantages that way, made a dismal ovvern of an immense fruitcake, and soitened the effiect with a whole mould of apricot olly.
Dinah and Vie eertainly hept him in counten. ance, fint Clorinda arther tritled with the sweets, ance, hat Clorinda rather trited with the sweets, drinking so much strong teainher pleasareabil agg.
tation, that to an ohserver giventold oldicrous ideas her jotty fuee would bave suggosted the idos of an ord fakhioned blaek teapot, with ber pug noso fer the chaihy spout, Sally witnessed this dashing festival from hehind the door, , crapad the jelly left in the glasees, stole bitto of tonst and mufing left in the glasses, stole bite od ohoc dor appetite on varions fragments, till at last, groving so bold ond getting oo hungry, that she crept to the hud disappeared, like a train down a tunncl, sho never rememberod that Clo was sure to miss it in never rememberod that clo was sure to miss it in the morning, hatt sbo reflecotod, in her fright, that the morning, hat sbo reficoted, in her fright, that it was posibile to shut the oat up in the closet at it was posible to shut the oat up hedtime, and so escupe detection.
After tea 'Dolph hrought ont a pack of eardsa park which had nyyzteriousily disappeared from the library talle some time hefore- und inducted tho hadies into tho yyyateries of sundry little ganies, winning their pennies easily and chenting them without the olightest geruple.
That was a point beyond clo, she could not lose her mences pould only play for pins.
wind
would only play for pines "Gamblimis wioked," be said, rixtuously.
So they played for pins, and Dolph allowed her to he the gainer, When she lost, Clo gave up orooked ones in payment, and thns her high epirits wero preserved unturniohed.
At last Othello arrived and plete. A greast, shiny creature notier thanPlete. A great, shiny creature, uglier than a mortal eoaily can hoo at whom Mriss Dinali cast languishing glances and dif the fascinsting in a way whieh clo copied on the instant.
Dolph reminded her of the cincken, Dolph reminded her of the cilicken, and proposed making s howl of lip vibilo she cooked the fowl, an ides which was received with unanimous ${ }^{\text {approval. }}$ Thoy were gathered about the supper-table,
-Dolph was carver, and managod to secoure an nuDair portion of the delicosto hits, propocing all arorts of pritises to oruit Othello's palate, and then deovour
ing them heore the unfortunate creature could get more than n look st the daintics.
Otbollo wes Otbollo was giving an account of his lhhors during tho cvening, and roum his slory 1 was quite evident that he had been the most important personage in the aeemhly, and Dinah elione like a sonago in the aeeemmy, thind triumph slio had in his sncceses
"Oh, lams
B " ssid he, suldenly; "I quito forgot "What, what?" they asked.
"Why, what Mr. Moeehy aa
"What, what?" they asked.
"Myy, what Mr. Mesehy anid. 'Spee it don't nesra nobody here ; only, as Mise olorindy's a conssara nobody bere, only, as Mises Olorindd's a lady of property, ohe natoraly feels interestod in whant happens ta.oder folke mid fortins," what happens ta oder folks wid fortins," Clo hrilled, and 'Dolph said majeetieally Clo hrialed, and 'Dolph ssid majeetieally, feeling that he had alrendy s sharo in ber wealth: that the had alrendy a sharo in ber wealth:
"In opurse, in couree ; perceed, Mr. Othello.

Pete Hopkins, let de puach glasses fall, and I was a fixin' him." it break 'em ?" crisd Dinah, feling in inturoat in the details not ehared in by the others. "Only two "Wal, "bont do hank,", suild Dolph, impatiently. he said-5ou know him- dat tall man - " "Ln we, we know him well 'uuff," said Vio." "Go on it yonre grine to," Dinah loeksd reproechfully at her, and Othello contimned:
"Mr. Mlosehy-he said de Trador's Bank bad A sarcam from Clorinda hrought them all to oneir their foot.
"Mrosay sakes" cried Vic ; "wbat is it t"
"Have yer got fite?" demanded Dinah.
"Hnye yer got fite ?" demanded Dinah.
"Miss Clorindy, dear Miiss Clorindy, whist am heart,
Ol lady as it was she gave two or three yelle fine lady, as it wis she gave two or three yelles fiekod the tahle, pulled her frizzed hasir, and houted, smid her tears:
"Yon Sally
net
Shon sally, gat my bonnit-quick p"
"he rose, and they erowded abont her.
She rose, and they erowded abont her.
"Whar he eon ginine? What's up ?"
"Git ny bomnit!" 'ine ropeated. "Ine gwine to York, Tis."
"To York,
"Yes I i, his time o' night?" cried Vie.
"Yes, I i i - lot me go."
"Doph laid hand on her arm.
"Only
"Ise gwine to git at dem rasools, I want my
"IIe gwine to git at dem rasolls, I wat my Dolph dropped speechloss in a chair, while the rest poured out floods of questiona, which Clorinda was in no state to answer. ${ }^{\text {"Was yer money in dat hamk? }}$
"Tes gwine to York; get my homit I"
"The gwine to tork, get my hannit
 "Youy in de hank ?". Oh 1 oh! Five hundred
"Yis ; bery red cent.
 TH hov itl IIl her bonnit. Ohl ou!"
They made har
They made her sit dorn, they explained to her that no wing could be done nntil the next day, nad finally she sulbided into silent tenus Ali this finally she sulasided into silent tence All this while 'Dolph sat without offering one word of consolation; now he said:
"Mehhy dar's some
"Mrehhy dar"s some mistake, Othello."
"No, dar ain't", persisted the namesatio of Shakespearee's Moor. "Mr. Nosehy's loat ten thousand dollars; he'd ortor. to know, Do bank's Clo hurst into an new paroxysm of distress, and Dolph, after a hrief struggle with his own diseppointment, tarned on her:
"Yor necdn'trouse de honse wid yer hurlyburly," suid he, savagoly. "Better 'member Miss Elsie's sick."
Crio stared nt him in tearloss horror ; & new fear struck her; he was going to prove false.
"Dontit talkico," heo aide; "tink of yeaterday,
"Dolph" Dolph '"
Dolph drew himself up, and looked firot at her nd thicu at the courpany with an air of proteund and thon at the courpany with an air of profound

"I tink her

"I tink her hrain is tarned," said ho.
"Taint" ronsed clo. "OL, Dolphy, yer ssid yer loved mo ; yer lhows yer did; dat yer diun't "Ware our or
"
"Wal, 1 do declar!" eried Vic.
Doiph flew into a grent rage.
"Miss Clorinay, yer sorrow makes yer forget Clo drelif; yor' her appon from here Clo drew ber apron from her eyes and looked at him; hightuing was gathernge thero wid "Dees yor mean that?" sle dempnded, sternly "Sartin, 1 does."
 "Wasn't do onions made yer cry; a ploadin' and "oonxin' till I 'sented to manry yer."
"In courso I does," repented 'Doph, doggelly. "Take care! Jis' tink!"
"Take carel Jis "tink'" "Miss Olo, dis cre ain't decorons; Tse 'stonished at yer ${ }^{1 "}$
With one
Wrth one yell and a bound like an unchained tigrose Clo sprayg at lim. 'Dolph dodged, ran hebind tho startled group, in and out among the hais heels. Slie had canght up a hroom; once or twice she hed managed to hit him, and her yells of rago oningled with Dolph's erios were hidoous.
"Toke hee off", he alrielood ; "ketoch a hold of "ert" kill him," houted Clo. "Irl break every hone in his finiken hody! Oh, yer varmint, yer oettle $\mathrm{l}^{\text {" }}$ They lifid hands on Clorinda at length, thongh it was a dififiult operation; and 'Dolph took rofage hechind a groat ohais, poping throngh the lata at the hack, with hie eyco rolling and his elats at the hack wis hie oyges roming end his teeth elatiering liko some frightencel monkey in $a$ aage.
Tbe
Tie divided betweon consoling and hlumion and anger, Yie divided betweon conviotion and anger, and Othello, ilite a sensille man, ididing neither way. Suddenly they were roused hy a prolonged cry from tho toor blore, from tho thoor alowe, a cry so ehrill and uncearthly that it froze the hlood in their veina. In an in stant thero folowed a lond knookling st the onter door, and forgetful of their own troublees they erowded together like a llook of frightened crowi erowded together like a driven from a cornifild.

Tue ovening had pnised very pieasently to Eloie ; Mellon had humored her moed at wbatever oost to bimsoll, and kept her thonghte ne muah niloof na posillo from the events of the paet daye.

It was growing lato, and he had sereral times reminded her that it was time she wist to rest. rominded her that it was time she wsent to rest.
Tom Foller had token the firrat hint and rstired.
 "I am not in the least ileepy; it is so nico to get "Bnt I am efraid yon will tire yourself so completely that to-morrow you cannot come down at "Thare is not the slightest danger of that; 1 $m$ stronger than you think. When this little iizziness in my heod leaves $m e ~$
$I$ shall he quite

They talked a few momentg longer, then she

 hegan turning over the papers on a stand near her gofa. Suadenly she took up a lotter, andglancing at the writing, excluined:
"This is from Mr. Hndson! Yon did not tell that yon had heara?"
What does he say? -Does you wers ssteep." Will you send him money for herl"
"There is no necoesaity,
"But she must have it ; she can't live."
"My dear, he hss her money in his hands. He writea me that semetime since he sold out the stoeks hy her ordora, and that he has heon extoeks hy her ordors, and that he has heon ex peeting her for several days to oull on him for the pecting her for severab days to call on him for the money. She was doubtless proparing to leave the country with was that mens." Elsie foll hack ou the gof overvhelmed hy the now frar which came over her. The money had not heeu paid; there wss no safety, for Elizaheth's sacrifice had heen in vain! What to do how to aet! Beforo the whirl bed left her brain thero was o sound st the door of the littls pasMase sirusdy youscribed.
"What tis thet?" oxolaimed Mollen. "Seme one trying that dook." "Cos is "No, no," she eried. "Come thing; Tm atratid; coms haek ${ }^{\text {P }}$
He gave no attention to her cry, hut hurried towards the door, while elie was attempting to rise from the sofa ; he had it open, sle had hoord a from the eofa; he hed it open, sle had hoard a multtared eurse, an anasoring mprecention from muttered ceirse, an ans woring mprecation from another voice, looked out, saw the outer door ajar another voice, looked out, sto phsago witb whon and a man juat ontering the Mellen closed inatantly in a foarful strugglo.
That one glance hed been enough; aho know the house.
Molien foreed the man into the room, Alang him against the wall,
in a torrible voico
as $\Delta$ bell was rang at the front entrance, hut no one in that room heeded it.
Mellen sprangy towards the man agsia, batt he ed aspagoly:
"Keep oif" if
"Keep oir, if you value your life, keep off," "One of us dies herel" criod amm Ford, one of ns dies hore ?"
After that long sariok Elsie had follen back leptic rigor loeited her limhs ; there she lay and could not stir, listeniag to their words.
"I did not expect to moet you here," saia Ford, ealling tip a ${ }^{\text {and }}$ I dia nut wibh.
"I
"I n kot wibl." who yon expected to see; hut the din Foman is gone; you must seek her elsewhere !"'
"
Ford, or North, glanoed towards the sofur ; oognisod Elsie lying there, and turned again towards Mellen.
"Twice you have broken up ny life," cricd Mel-解, "hut this time you shall not esoappel Here your finte. Burglar, villhin.'
The other laughed sneeringly
"So tithars struck homed home, has it? Ah, hal You are wounded, my fricud."
Mellen remember
Mellen remembered Elsid's presence.
"No," he cried, pointing to her, "that woman only had my heart; my blood did not run in her veins ; ff yon had etruck me there the blow would veins ; if yon had have heon lieener."
The man langhed again; Elsie heard hoth words and langb, lut sho oould not move; if she had heen lisid out shronded f not have heen more helpless.
not have heen more helpless,
"So you drove your wife away; out of the "So you drove your wife away out of the honse?" cried the man. "I greseed sa much." "Sie is gone for ever, hint you shall not live to "in her."
"Bofor
"Bofore now slue is deadl Listen to what you She is deand, and I can toll you so, Enowing how it honor in loving mo it belonged to thut protty heap of deoeption on the sofs. Hear that, and let your of decoption on the sofs. Hear thant, and let your soul writhe under it, for your hlooil does run in soul writhe, her vins."
"Linil
ri' Traitor !" eried Mellon.
Again came a violent ringing of the door-hell teps in the hall; this time the two men lieard the "Iord. "I pmisned," muttered Ford; "they've cornered mo."
"I will give you ap if theso are enemies," eric rellen, thero no escape.
cailed out:
"You aro giving np your eister'e hushand; re member the wholo worla shall know it.
Thore was bitter truth in the tone, but hefore Mellen could move or epenk the door opened and wo ofticora entered the room.
"You have him safo," aaid one of the intrudere is he paseed Mellen,. "Caught at last, wy fine is he paseed Mellen, "Cought at last, wy fini Ford started bock-put his hand to hie hroastthero waea tasil- -s stumning report- he estaggered lick againat the wall, shot throngh the chest.

GHit-chat with the ladies.
ARs you afruid of worms? If yon are, don't to to Brooklin for the next two monthe That city and call itacis the "Caty of Worme" Moxtal ejes nover witheased sach a spectaccle us the good, eleanty nud wired atrecth. Rows of ladifos in the intest Parikinu batt bave-porbapa Buifion and 1 migbt difior-buethinga at sppear to have trio hoad, one coaple of talls joliued in the middto.
On this
On this luld'a binck lice bonnet, with corn-colored dispocition. When the reverond gecticman arisee thia rrise also, it looka about, it abalkes its hend at the congrogution: it nods to a triendly worm percled ou the Slue hloomer of an infint nearat athand, then it lics down
 it, with both its heada erect An over the church yon may ree them: on the fioor of the nilles, ou skirts of dresees and backs of hymn-bonke nifles, ou skirts of thivgs even climb the pulpit and talios 8 peek inito the grcot gilt Bille, in detiance aliko of the acxion and the ministor.
Vislt a Brooldiyn friend-and in thin goueral exodun of New Yorkers mest of your friento of New Yorkers mesi of your fricnds will be foumn onowdays in Brocilyy-and tho beet part of tho day will he ad evon then, whou jou retire, you will and a worm in vicry gither of your drens, oue in each gaiter, and sovera done up in the wateriall on which you pride oursolf. Your visit will bo a succe ssion of wmall shiricke, ncanny thing , with two beade, who go about seekiog whom they may devour.
People esy that if the city fathers of the worm-plaguon notdolt. Probably they relish worms in the ir turtle-soun better than otber Brooklynites do su their tea, wheru they are frequenty dincovered, dreadmaly scended, but bey are frequently discovered, dreadrally sealdod, but no das dot kuch worms never in ine. What could be don bean drivon nway by enorgetic measoures. Couldn' Sr. Heary Ward Beccher prench to them aud repreneat. to charch. Conldn't s worm pienio po of them come very Brooklynite to turn out pionlo be brought about, worma from dama to sunset, the one pliking the moes receive A gold medal? Can io one suggeot anything

Sceond Husbandis.
Why is it, wo wonder, that secoud huabende alwayy turn out po baily? It is tho most mysteriona ching is the world that a widow of mature years and expericac ivaya makes a worse choice when she ant than the youngest boarding-school mises who ever cloped with thic object of her affections, with whom nhe hid beo cequninted but s foringhht. No onc ever foels surprike to Lear of the most heandalous condact on the part o her band and fortune upen inim the moost singulaz meta inorpinis takes place. From a gallant and odoring woee Le becomes a frocioua and brutar Lustand; his wife days are epont in anncimting theise; her nighte in Eitting up to ace that he le asfely encorted upethiry and doeano retire in his boots; be turua her cldest son ont of doorn insults her diatant relutiven from whom sho has expeca pew ta churcb or a visit to the opera; maties away with her money in the most mywterious maner'; anki copis the chamax by eloptug with the walting-uadd and an the bue clumax by elophag with the waiting-wadd and and the deluded widow' portable proporty, leaving her to earn ber own lívelihood, of csat herself upon the charity of her relations. For our port, we wouder how nay widow her in the face ou all sides, snd cannot tunruyel the my tery tribe oufolda the remarkable fact that stepmothers, miniter's children and Eecoud husbunde never turn out woll.

FOREICN NEWS.

Tuere is little newe of interest from the old World. The armistico still continues between the Gormans and the Danee, but would expire on the 12 h mans and this Danok, but would expire on the 12th Junc. The Conference had met three times, bat thera and both the French med English proess asserted that Austrid and Prusis were pursung a treacherous pohet. The popular feoling in England in fivor of the Danei The popular feoling in England in tivor of the Dane Lord Palmortion into a vigorous policy ugsinet tho Germank. On the othor hand Qucen Victoria remaina Germans. On the othor hand Qucen Victoria remaina averse to taking any stop against the native land of her late husband and mother, ind the adopted country of her two oldent daughtern, more especially ss one of them wilh, in all human probabllity, be Queen of Prus-Fil. Thin had doabtlesa atrengthuned the obstinary of Fin. This had doubtless atrengthaned the obstinacy of the King of Prussia, wbo, if he to not the Eing of Prussia, wbo, if he wo not durrect, nay yot procipitsto matters so for as to force the British Mrinitere into Mot procipise into war, in winchch cane they would very pre-Mably purchase thal allance of Franco by permitting of tho pet wishes of hia pcople.
In England there is a lull, both secial and polition, the chisef sabject being Gladstano's nltra-kiberal apeech on the Manbood Suffrago queation. Knowing the on the Manbood suifrsgo queetion. Knowing this mean and josuitical clureciers of the man, many thinl meat he has mercedy appeared bo hend the advanced euarad that ho may betray it, or hend it of. It mas be, however, that being a plebian, be masy have tbat fnetinctive nocret, hatred of aviitocrucy, which so many of his claes cherialh rius IX, wan in a vory precarious condition, and Fope
hia dath may be expected at any hour. Theere with bo eiforta were being madeln Vienna to recruit the aconnugnt for Mexica II was oottonalby to 10,000 men, but the chancos are it would reach troble that namber.
The Cumeac Imperialists had suffered a defeat, and tho Engligh commander of the Anglo-Chinese conith-

BATTLE OF JERICHO MILLS, Mny as:
Wren Grant compelled Lee to leave his etrong ground at Spottsylvania Court-housh and fall back behind the North Annu, he pushed on to cross thist etroanz and engugo him. Gen. Werren, on reaching Carmel Church, turned into $\left|\begin{array}{l}\text { the Spottsylvanis and Henorsz junction tarapike and } \\ \text { procecdoi to Jericho milla, or the ford of that namee, on } \\ \text { the Sonth Anni. No snemy was found thare to oppose }\end{array}\right|$ the Sonth Anni. No Ensmy was found thare to oppose tham and Griffn's division crossed, tha water not boing deep, thongh the botton if rocky oud monsen and th current swift. ourrent swift, Abont four Abont four y. M. the eatire corps had crossed the tiver, excopt the batteries, exd was placed fin position.
 sion graw that the snemy was in no forco in our frout, ond that he had calculted on our crossing further down than river, where tha second corps wat then hoving ite tha rivar, where the second corps was thon hoving ite paasage dasputed, us we knw from the henary cannonading heard in that direction. Our men were taking wers cooking thetr coffec. The sixth corps were coming ap behind us. Before pnehing farthor it was deemod prudnat to awalt their arrival. suddenly a thundorbolt Was nevor more nidden-the enomy neeanted our line. The fourth division for a moment gove way under the andden shock, but it mos only for a moment.
Theog quiclay ralliea, end were unahatea aftor-

COL. L. C. BAKER,

Speolal Agent of the War Department.
Trie likenesg on page 183 reprezents ons of Thrie likenesz on page 188 repperents ons of developed by tho wart snd though wo are plowed at having en opportundty of prosentios it in in our pugees wo doubt the poulog of giving the refurah contractors and tetudjing with advontasio the linesments of tho man
 other celeuritlan of hivitory.
old Rovoputhtonary tock ond

 noc committe of San Pri
Col. Boker the Arst opportunity to exthibit thoes peoullar officicant mombers of that remorikotio organizstion, end muct were mio wervices, that when the committe dia handod, nftur having purined Callfornian society of the efill olemonts, tho leading mombiors of the body unito toil domand that Col. Bather stoould to body unttod them into theo reguiur Police Department of the city.

 to wuch good zcount that h h parted drom "tho preenceo betoro ain, soont a completo map or tho detencos in in eervice of biat departusot ever filice. To mentoriso the

 It is not only Agsinst robebels in anmis, confoderocte apies but cormupt omcinla, dinhononeut quartermasters, pilfering sto numbers wio aro nom erpiatisg througt Lio dovelop

AFFAIRS ON RED RIVER  The Fleet

Ther retreat of Banks from before Shreveport
 the operatione of Gone Grank, Butier and shiorman tie U inion fiet above the talla mas one of great danger and wo trectch It tse it appeared before tho gentus ${ }^{\text {Gent. Baslioy. }}$ The banke raily prodncing cotton. The dem wan made fuat abore Ale ranaris. Thres falls bore interrupt navigation for three quar-

 morsing and continned incessanuly throngbent tho did

all along the Hina

 Fus mown the hat o bittory in pan eartworik and piocas, thoush Anialy compelied to and rotra to anobier ine of worta.

As Adventisino Puzzue. -The following ed-

A counzoz student being exemmined in Locke,

POTETI MEDATS

OVEAR ALL COMPETITORS.
OFIIOEIEIRIING de 3 OINE, wanuFaturuers or
Grand, Square and Upright Pianofortes.
TFALEMRG: OMRTIFICATE :

Warerooms, 652 Broadway, $\mathbf{2}$. Y., 246 Washington Street, Boston. Mrg. Arsio, of Warehouee Point, Conn., wto kas heen ruiforing with a cancorouns affection foi
 ment or this case reficcots greas creeut apon the Doctars ctmanotono charucter at their residence, 27 Bond atrect.
Agente Wanted to sell the National

Seaside Summer Resort

$$ 10$ AcranTs $$ 10$
And Dealera, Somothing New, Unlon Burner for Keroseno Lampa, Indebiblo Pencl, EIfyptan Ooment
St

IMPORTANT TO SOLDIERS

H. W. Binicziry. Photographer

Vo. 2 Nem Chainbers St, N. Y.

Graat Gifit Distriburuion! Gold Watches, Dismend Ring
and Filegant Jowrollory, GOODWIN, HUNT & CO. Jewollers, 197 Brodiway, N.

 any other arricte on our luth, of tha same value as article dravu.

NTO IEIMAINEES:

Yon MAY frot a WATCH or DIAMOND RDNG.
You MUSTR got tho VALUE of your money.

NOVV IFPADY.

The now number of the great Comio and Satirical Pape
ERANK LESLIE:S
BUDGET OF FUN:

|  |
| :---: |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  | Richmond- the Iigbt for the Cak-and Unclo Bam

and Emperor Mox-bealdea numerocs other satirical original, and only 10 cente

Life Insurance Company
No. 31 Nasence Strent, New York, Opposite the Poat OMce.

Cash Capital and Accumulation ove

 §1,500,000.Tha trienninal dividend of preits of thits company han resuited in a bonns or addition to a polloy of more than 50 per cent. on the wbola premium patd. The dividenda are pold in the iffo-time thus alding them to pay fature premiums.
PoLicIES aro made incontectahle sifter ive veen from date, for or on aecount of errors, omfenione en d mie date, for or on account of errors, omifemions end miaANNOITTES sre granted on fisorobie tirm HyNEI ETOBMS, Preeident. oce 8. N. कTRBbiss, acturg.

 No

 GOURAUD'S Italian Medicated Soap,

登

DURYZA'S MAATKINA

 aEOEIVED TWO PBIZE MEDALBINTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION,

> Hambarg, Jnly, 1863, Recolved the at Higheat Prizo Medal for Ite Great
WM. DURYEA, Agent, 166 Fulton St, N. Y. Boautiful Faloo Whigkers and ITous

WONDERFUL RELIC!! 464
 Whiskers! Whiskers! Mry ONaUENT wil force them to grow on the

FRANK LESLIETS Unrivalled Publications

Trank Ieelio's Lady'e ITagazine and aAZETTE OF FASHION. The best Family sManaios pLbliehed. The reding portion io the crema of con pnblished. The resding portion io the cremm of con-temperary Eng Esh iterature. The Illuntratione are unsurpassed in namber and oxecution.

Trank Lesliey Tren Cont Irenthy, the Ledger of the Magazfine, full of briliant ntoricy tho Ledger of the Magazlines, full of brilliant thtories and other Ilusirated matter. $$ 1$ per annum; 10 oth. 4 No

Trantr Ieeslie'e Mlostrirto Zoitung, the onis German Illustrated paper in the country, $$3 so onty Germs per annom.
Trank Leslio's Zady's Ilustrated Ai25 cents.
Will you have Eandsome whiskers or Moustaches? ARE YOU BALDHEADED?

J. H. WINSLOW & C0. tEE GRPATEST OPPontuntit Ever ofrtaed

100,000

Worth $500,000:
 out what you can have tor ris, and ot thic emme time get Komi in tile country.

Soldiers !
We are now propared
to furninh all kinde of to furninh all kinds of Veteran Pins for all the Veteran Pins for all the Regiments and Corps now in the felas at $$ 150$
each; also, all the vanowh; also, all the vs.
each;
rioua Army Badges worn by the different armelet, by the single one, 100 or 1000 to ony part of the country by mail. gind for Gola, ,85 oneb.
 COUNT DE MAILLY. SEQUEL AKD OONCLDSTON OF OLYMEIA OF CLBVES.
Tranulated from the French of Ales. Dumas. Prios 50 Oustre.
OEYMPIA OF CLEVES; Or, the Loves of a King-
BY ALEXANDRE DUMAS. Payces 50 cmma
Mailed five of pootage on roeelpt of price.

Attention, Company!

 414.57 p. o. Drawer 118, Alhany, 立. x.

Storooscopic Pictures and Cartos de vistre, hitet importutions Also, New Boosi and
 The Confessions and Experience of an Invalid.

 MEDICAL COMMON SENSE.

Beanty,-Eunt's White Liqnid Mnamoisin permanunntly, Eiving it a roif, satin-iko texture, Rervition, on roculpt of price, so pontit, madream ob

[DISTILED DEW]

 Tountain Pon--No Inkestond required.
One enhing will writ 12 hours. Alo, all other tivle of

Advantago Cards, *3 a Pack, For

 WHOLESALE AND RETAIL,
DEGRAAF & TAYLOR

The
They are prepants ond nee of tho lasgent Parrifure Houses in tho Daited States, in pert, of

ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND CHAMBER FURNITURE;

Mahogany and Walnut, Parlor and Chamber Furniture;
Alno, OANE and WOOD SEAT worlk, all qualkes; HATR, HUSK and GPRING MATTRESSES, a large atock
ENAMTELEED OHAMBER FURNITURE, in Scte, from $$ 22$ to $$ 100$. ENAMFELLED OHAMBER FURNITURE, in Seta, from $$ 22$ to $$ 100$.
Tucker's New Style Patent Spring Bed, The best as well as the ohcepest of ony in uns. Retail price, $$ 2$ esch.

Do Yon Want Zururiant Whiskers or MMoustaches?
HY OMGDENT will force them to grow heally in six weeka (Apon the Emoothast fraed wilhout tutur or

FRANK LESLIE'S LadY'S Magazine GAZETTE OF FASHION POR JUNE, 1864.

NOV REMADY,
This firat of Lady'e Magazinees, with euperior attractiona,

A Mammoth Colored Fashion-Plate,
Four-Page Cut of Fashions
New Eummer Mastles, Angota Jacket, Hsta, Csps, Flohus, Weiloto, Eleeves, Oharming Toilothes cor Obilidren, etco, etco, etc

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE, BX MESS GRADDON,
Is contliued in thin number, which contains many sdmirable Etaries, illnstratad wilh other intereating matmirable हtarles, illnstratod with other intereating mot.
tor; among the rest, full deuription and flluatastious or the New Iawn Games of Croquet and Troco.

PRICE 25 CEANTS.

HOSTETTER'S Cmmmaratap
STOMACH BITTERS.
THE HORRORS OF NDIGESTION- Ton compinin
of four tommeh, unfortunnto dsepeptict but ought not

 : $\frac{y}{y}$

may engender dineabes which defy wil rcetarati.
Eodi hy All Drugeista and Family Grocera.
Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,
paxpazd and ford by

75,000 Watches, Chains, &c. WOPRTI $$ 400,000$.

 450-62 p. o. Dramer 18 As, Albany, A. X. Y.

The Barly Physical Degeneracy of American People,

 DR. ANDEEW STONE,

|  | Shation | WEDDINQ CARDS |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |
|  |  | hes, Belts, Presentation Stworde. & CO., Cheolmanati, 0 |

"Pyychomancy" Hyow oithor eox may

Matrimony--Why overy man ehould

MADAMI BENEDTETE Millinery & Dressmaking Establishment Ia now replete with every mported novility of thie geason. 12 Watrauxx Phes, New Yóric.
The Great Money-Misoling Articleo
 ${ }^{25}$ cono

 $$ 75^{\circ}$ A Mronth 1 I want to hire Acents

New Sheet Music for the Pianoforte.

J. W. EVERETT & CO., Will forwerd to ning adiress, on rocitipt or order,

"Album Goms"- Zomothing New, Gay end Fancy The moet desirnhile Carde over paulibed

GOOD ETORRIES alimys form a part of the contenta of wo

Atlantic Monthly

They are supplied by such writers as Hamilet Prescot 3. T. Trowbrlage, Carolline Ohesebro, Bejurd Taylor, Eose Terry, and other contributera of eminent ability, same of the

THE BEST BTORIES in the languago have been written for and pabliohod in tho Athastio Mosties.
tarr Subseriptione may begin with any number. Trasa: 53 a year, 25 conts a numher, postoge pald Clube at a Weral rean TIOENOR & FIELDS, Boaton.

80\%atyan

For Hardsning & Invigorating ths Gams. Oheaning, Beantirying and Preserving the Teeth, Purifying end Swectening tho Bresth; the mont con-.
 tho worid has ever eeen.
sold by Draggita nund Funey Goodr dealers every-

DYSPEPSIA TABLETS,
For Indigestion, Eieartburn, sec. Dont fall to try thom Manufthctured unly ty For ealo by all Drugglata. Price, 50 centas per box-

TOMES, SON & MELVAIN,

 6 Mraiden Lane, Now York.

 Milltary and Natal eqnipmonta in every vari
A large misortment of BIOH PRERRTATION SWORDS, Conttanthy on hand.

BRIDGEWATER PAINT

Ground in Olt in oix drab ahnden for Tillos, Cottage Boots, oth., etc. B . BEYNOLDS, Agent, 74 Maiden Lane, N. Y.
Norvous Diseases and Physical Dobili-

 Holphis, Pa.

STAMMERING

INOVF TRTADE: THE RECORD

PARIS, LONDDOIN

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

 BPRING Non, 186\%.WITH THE LARGEST COLORED PLATE Ever given in any Pabliention. Price 25 Cente:
Isdiea, Droesmakers, do, can obtain this invaluable faehion Record of any Nowidealer. NLDTONFS ONGUEN : An Orjental proparation, warranted to force the hair on the smoothert
foce
on the rice mone

Ese Crant's Curliquo for Ourling Eair.

Fxice 81 por hottle. Address | Price 81 por hotule. Address |
| :---: |
| 0 |
| 0. B. GRANI, Abbany, N. X. | The Celebrated CRAIC MIICROSCOPE, combining Instruction with Amusement,

 4 Objects, $$ 500$, by jpecto for $$ 3$ 25; witb HRENRY CRATG, 280 Centre Street $N, ~ Y . ~$

orand scent ynom tie list fance perfonmed at aldany.
SEryoun-" Suppressed the Press? Seize him, guards-bear him to the deepest dungeon beneah the
COLD WATCH FREE,
$15 PER DAY $15

 Whach (mamranted), presentod muze to ewah permo Send for onr Oreat Now Circolara for 1804, containing Extra Promium inducomenta free,

 FIVE ANATGMICAL EMGRAVINGB. Has information nover beloro pobliabed.
Seut free, in a sealod onveloper, for 10 centa, addrose

BALLOU'S
FRENCH
YOKE SHIRTS
Warrantod to FTT

CHyAPDR

for the same QUAL other thoer
in thist Elity. Clircular contain inf crawnge and priese sent free. prifect sent free. For sate by all the prinolpal dealer BALLOU BROTHRES, 403 Broadway, N. X.

"Finamolled Snow White" and Linen

 Wheeler & Wilson's Higheat Prsminm

(facce

EOvणing Machines

 454.90 Ea5 BROADWAY, N. Y. THET BOWZN IHICROBOOPY,

Notice to Agents.
Now Prizo Pacheage Ftationery Circular 0000 WEIR Whr a CO, 43 sonth 3d St, Puila.

 GTEINWAY & SONS, Fos, 71 and 78 Fourteonth St, N. Y., Wore amarded a Firat Prize Medal at the late arcot Interrantional Exchibition, London. Thero were two bundred and nixxy-pino pianos from all parts of the world entered for competition.
The Epectal Corroupondent of the N. X.TTinet soys: "Moesra, Stelnwa's endorvement by the Jurors ta omphatic, and atronger and more to the potnt than that of any European maker." 0000

GRTAT1 CHANCT

 TO MAKE MONEY! every variaty, to suilt Lhe thetee of all; retail for 25 ota, each. A pplendid CoLD OR BLIVRR WATCH pro-

Bhulte, Onguont.-Warranted to pro-dace a full net of whakera in six Weeka or money re-

Wse of Tobacco, in all ito forme, Cured

WHO SHALL IT BE?
GEN. GRANT, Mcolbusan, banis, faster, BHERMAN, MEADE, FBEMONT, BURNSIDE, OR WHO Agente finted everywhere. Take your cholce and gend un fil, and wa will nead you A New Battle Pin

S. MR. WARD & CO.

HANUFACTURLN JEWEULEPS, 200 Broadway, N. Y.

 "Choker" to o. HF. WRLLINNG, oo Pine strect, N. Y. Y., and recelve it by rotarn masi. A Gecrot Worth Hnowingo-EYow to $1,500 per Zear!

Wo sond Hood's mreat DOOK OF SECRETS, or How to Make $$ 5$ a day withoat capital, and a Dinmond Point

456.80

$$ 7 \underset{\text { ARMY }}{ } $ 77$

A Beantiful Mngraved Gold-Plated Wistoh, Doublo
 gent free, by mall, in neat case, "wiri a Blautivul Crary, ony 58 .
 $$ 15$ Europesn Timskeeper $$ 15$ on comples watcr.
$\triangle$ SUPRRB "EXTRA DOUBLE GOLD.PLATED" en graved or empane-turred Hunting Case Wateh-Magio

 A. $100 Fold Watch used by the British Army Officers.
Sent froe, by mall, in Elogont Morococo Case, for only ${ }^{$ 15}$. Fronk Letic's Intustrated Newropaper of Feb. 20 aaya of the "Europeen Timekeopery" It is a novelty here and an imitation of the colfernited timeseeper to murch in uso among thie British array omicers, and le cal culated to moct tho want of our voldiers in tho field."

Address CHAS. P. NORTON ${ }^{38}$ end 60 Cmin ., Importern,

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE ByMAILor EXPRESS

Solf-Moasurement for Bhirta. Printod direction for sele-mensuremont, Hst of price
and
and framininge of fifforonit utjles of alirte and collore

STHMGCOMARS

ENAMEEDD WHETE,
Having tho appearunco snd comfort of linen, have been worn in Eugand for to that twoy yearr in preferenco to worn in Eneland for the lant two years in preterence to any other collar, ase they ofo readily cleaned in one minnte with a opongh. Mravelionn thoy aro invatuable.
To Military Mon ond The

S. W. FI. W.ARD,

- No. 397 Brondway, New

GROVER & BAKER'S HIGHRST PREMTDM ELASTIO STITOH
SHVTIMC MACTMNFS ! Salesrooms, 495 Broadway, New York

Amorican, fwiss and Inglish Watchee in auperior strles and quality of ciees. Orders from the Tride or Army, (arge or emall) promptly and fath-

FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS!

 An articled for Boidiers ot Baltimoro, Feahington argo

TheBeard.qc.

$\mathrm{I}^{\mathrm{N}}$ those casco of cantr, , rotardod growtb, where the

 he eont realed ou recelpt of roturn posinge.
joIN AAMLINB, 816 Browimi, N. Y.
C. W. FIEENOH, 607 Broadway, N. $\mathbf{x}$. GENTLEMEN'S FUFNISH'R COODS $\Delta$ large and conplete stock ormens Furnids.
moer nud dall wear, oom.
bining all the noveltie
of the seneon as they aypur in Paris end
London
FLNE SMDPTS
MADE COLLARS
 of Englith Underclothing, Gloves, Carrisgo Blankotes,

FRANK UESLIE'S ILIUSTRATED

| No. 456-VoL. XVIII.] | NEW YORK, | JUNE 25, 1864. |  |
| :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: |
| Richmond-Gen. Grant & Progress-Patience and Confidence.  As atteutive listener among the busy gamhlere of Wall street any dsy during the week past, will hear witness that all of tbat clsse of operators concerned in "bulling" gold and stocks are making the most tbey can of Gen. Grant'e detention at the northern ontworks of ichmond. What dowe hear from these birds | of evil omen? Such croalangs as these:  "Graut is fading ont ;" "awfully cnt up;"  "nothing done;" "just where McClellan wae  wben Stonewsll Jackson pounced on him ;"  "Riohmond is not Vickshurg, and Lee ie not  Pemherton," and uumeroue other flippant, im-  pertinent and suspicious remarks of similar  import. Unfortunately too, there are "on  'Change" many ignorant, timid and creduloue  men, or "lame ducks," as we may technically | define them, wbo are ready to listen to these croaking owls and ravens. Thus "one fool makes many," and the infectione elements of douht and distrust are diffueed from the heart througb all the arteries and ramifications of our financial and political system.  There is not the sligbteet occasion, however, for any spprehension or doubt as to the result of the preeent struggle for Richmond. The inevitable issue of the campaign-and it ie not | far off-will he the oconpation of tbe city by the Union army, and tbe diseolntion, cspture or disappearance of Jeff Davie to parts unknown. Had tbe co-operative detachments of Union troops in the Shenandoah valley succeeded in the outset in the part assigned them, and had the बames river expedition made thorongh work-as wss generally expeoted it would do-in ontting the soutb side railway counections with tbe city, we bsve no douht | that Lee would have been oompelled to evacuate the place without a strnggle, if possible, army. But Gen. Grant, on reaching the suburbs of Riohmond, found that the chapter of delays and accideuts elsewhere had left Lee's commanications still open and intact, with his depots of euppliee West and Sonth, and that thns he might, at least for a short time, chal lenge the Union army to the trials of a eiege. lenge the Union army to the trials of a reguced Accordingly, Gen. Grant has heen reduced, lar approaches against Richmond. Fecent events, however, we think, will justify the opinion that the city will yet he captared without the tedious lahors of a loug investment, and withont reducing the army of Lee, we apprehend, to the extremity of a surrender or starvation. Gen. Hunter, the new commander of the Department of the Shenandoah Valley, has recently gained a valuahle victory over the eneny, and a very important point of occupation, in the captuze of Staunton. He has gained the additional advantage there of a junction with the previonely deteched commands of Gens. Crooss and Averin. We the jnnction of theee officers and their troops, after the defeat and dispersion of the opposing forces of the ensmy, Gen. Huuter will maquestionahy suplies of complish the task of cutting on the supples of from Gou. Lee, and the conuectitng cennil and from Gon. Lee, and thertanay

This expedition will thns diepose of the sources of suhsistence west and northwest of Richmond, upon which Lee's army and the city lnrgely depend, and will render utteriy impracticable another Northern raid hy Gen. Lees should Geu. another Northern raid hy Gel. Lee, mont, which would place the rehel army between himseif and etripped the country hetween Richmond and the Shenaudosh valley, and thence to the Maryland horder, of its suppliee, Gen. Grant North or Sonth Carolina withont putting Weshington in jeopardy from another incursion hy Lee. It would he idle to conjecture what Gen . Grant intends to do, aithough wo may safely say that he does not intend deliherately to sit down for a regular siege until he has clearly has discovered the atrength or weakness of the eity's defences on every side, east, weet, north and south.
The Richmond journals do not helieve the report which was circulated some days ago, in that very eredulons community, that Grantwas withdrawing to the White Honse. They rememher that when he withdrew from Jackeon, Miss., laat May, it was only to fall upon the rear of time that, if he is withdrawing from the Chicahominy, it is only to descend upou the city with crushing force in some other quarter. Such is the strength of his army that be may move hy the enemy's flank with impunity, as he has repeatedly proved, is adversary and hring him to the test of his adversary, and hring him to the test of a lisastrons evacuation of Richmond, under cover of the night. The alternative even now presented to Jeff. Davis is, shall Lee's army he presented to eul. Daffort to hold Richmond, or shall the city aud Virginis hs abandoned to gave Lec'e army ?
We undertake to eay that certsin movements will aoon be accomplished hy Gen. Grant, which, if they do not compel Geu. Lee stoathly alteruative hut to fight his way out, in order to ohtain suhsistence for hia troope. The late hattles, which have disclosed among his lilled, wounded and prisoners, the soldier of Breckenridge from West Virginia, of Beaure gard from Charleston, of Hoke and Pickett trom North Carolina, of Finnegan from Elorida, and some from Joe Johnston in Georgia, hetray the exhaustion of the reserves of the rehellion. Consequently, with the fall of Richmond, which is inevitable, as anything in the future depending npon human action can be, the Davis Confederacy muet collapse, and the war will speedily come to an end.

Barmum's American Museum.

Oscanyan's Oriental Album,

 Consisting of 23 Photographiso Portrsita of Oricntal Mfouand Women, then iroin lis in both idoloer and outdoor meenes from domestic lifo, illmstrative or air. Oicasyan's Iecture.
It is tho moet popular Albam; thould be neen on

ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER, ${ }_{537}$ Pearl street, New York.

NEW YORK, JUNE 25, 18C4,

THPETVS:

Tvo ooples   750 1500 500  Oue extra copy to each clab of four copie. 1  TERMS FOR ADVERTISINC.

Oue Dollire a line on the outalde or hat pagi sixty Ceute a line on the 14th and liti p puges.
To Corxerpondenta.
First-class etories will he read promptly, and Iound worthy of acceptance, suitubby compensited. The manuncript thowld be eqible, on one side of the paper onls, and be accompanied with the uideress of the writer. Poems of a high order and moderate By the decision of the suthoritces nt Wantingtou, mail, letter postage numst be puid. Packiges over four Wuen should be sent by exyress, Wien parties wifh Mrss. reaurned by mand, poethgs tors of mbort artioloses, poeme, ete, will do moll to key cory, 38 tho cheaspest courso.
Dracuas.-The Worme apon the Trees
Onnerved-Ponite ut

Summary of the Week.

itronsta
The seooud siege of Richmond now begun by fimportance.
On tho night of the 6th the rebols made an ssaalt on Gen. Burnside's corpe, but were epulsed Bowling Groen, the county sont of Carolins county, has beon hurned, in punishment for the fing on a train from the houses. iring on a train from the houses.
On tho 7th two divisions of th
On tho 7th two divisions of the 5th corps atChicahominy, but found the onemy poeted thero in groat strength.
Gen. Butler made a demonstration on Peterehurg on the 10th. Gou. Kautz, with hie cavalry, sctually entered the city, but Gon. Gillmore found the onemy prepared, and the strong works too well defended to carry at a rush. Butler'e plans well defended to carry at a rush. Butler two days had been commumicated to Beauregard two had beon commumicated it would be well if in these attacke our commanders would take a lesson from Wayne's attack on Stony point. He took preaay, provent any dobirer reaching the enemy, On the 9 th the gunboate silenced Fort Clifton, near Petersburg.
On the 10th the rebels shelled Butler'e signalthemselvee at Turkey Bend.
The rebels made as daeh into Wilson'o lines, near the Lemay Honso, on the 9th, and Wilson sent out part of McIntosh's brigede, which can pon Field'e division, near Bethesda Church.
Both Leo and Grant are busily engaged in ontrenching. It is rumored that Hancock carried Bothom, westean viroinla.
The defeat of Sigel has been redeemed hy Gen. Hunter, who euoceeding to the come np with Gon. W. E. Jonee at Mount Crawford, 12 miles from Stanuton, and utterly defeated him.
Jonce wae loft dead ou the field, and his snceeseor arew off his army to Waynesnoro. Hunter then occupisd Staunton. The fruite of his victory were 20 caunon, many prisouers and tores to an immense amount. Ho hae penetrated so far into the enemy's country that oommurication with him is difficult, guerillas swerming in his rear.
kentuoky.
The greerilla war, renewed by the rebols, begime teamelop in ite usual forme. The attacho Kentuck. Mount Starling wae taken on tho $8 t h$ Jnse, by Gen. Morgau, Cols. Alston and Smith, railroad between Oynthiana and Paris and out the telegraph. A train on tho Lonisville and Lexing ton railrosd was
They entered the State at Pound gap, and ceem charged to destroy as many railrouds as possiblo, Cen. Burbridge has pursued thom, and on the atk came up with thom at Mount Sterling, and defeated them. They, however, entered Lexington ou the 10th, and robbed many stores, after burn ing the Contral Railrond Depot.
On the 11th, Logan, with 9,000 rebels, attacked Gea. Hobeon at Oynthiann, and compelled him to eurrendor, with the 168th and 171st Ohio- 1,200 men. Ou the 12 th Gen. Barbridgo came up with killing, wounding and taking 1,000 men. Morgaa's force then ecnttered.
The rebels besioged Franlfort, hat it held ou and they al
the 11th.

TEE MISSISSIPPI.
The atteeks, by Marmaduke, ou the Misaisalpp steamers have become at last a regular blockad at Greenville. Hs has dostroyed three traneporte ces capturing the cargoee of two, and has cripplec
throe gumboate, at least, so the Richmond papers say. Acconnta from Now Orleans state that our runboats have failed to dialodge the rebels.

south cabonisa.

The firing ou Fort Sumter and ou Charleaton has been increased hy Gen. Footer, who is busily engaged in reorganising his department Admiral Deh working order.
The rebele on the S1st May attempted to curprise our pickets a short distance a bove Morgonlaya, hut Gon, Emory drove them hack.
On the 9th Sherman'e cavalry came up with Sonnethe 9th Sherman'e cavairy came up and Loot moumtain.

The gunhoat Water Witoh was captured on the rabel boste, which appronched in the dark with muffled oars, and surprised the veseel completoly. One nogro excapod hy swimming a mile, all the reet on board were captured

concress.

Is the Senate, on the 6th June, after several masters of local intorest had been transsocted, the In edopted approtionitug naseasore and collectore ecoording to representaition in Congress instad of by distrista, ot the discretion of the Presideut, and taxing incomes between $$ 600$ end $$ 5,000$ ave per cant, imposing is tax of seven and a half por ceat. on all excess over $$ 5,000$ ap to $$ 16,000$, and of ten per couth, ou all axcess over the latter amount. Severral othor amediments of lers fireportance were sdopted, when all the wections of the bill having beon acted upan, it was resd the third timis nad passed, there being only three votes against it to 23 in fovor. The bill will now return to the Honie tor and pass. The bill will now return in fivor ou the Senate's amendmeuta.
action
In the Honne, there was much discussion ou neveral subjects of no publio intoreat, An attempt to censure the Goverament tor delivering up Arguelles to the Spaniah ruthoritios ended in thematter being reterred to the Judiciary Committee.
In the Senate, on the $7 \mathrm{th}, \mathrm{Mr}$. Sumnar prenented from the Foroign Afratra Committee a report on the enbject of amending the neutruity lhwe ond asking to be discharged from the further consderstion, whath agreed to. Ho also roported favorably from the gyme committee on the will rolativo to consular furisdiction ovar the crotse of foreign Yeesots in American porta. A number of potitions abking for the ubolitiou of alsver were presented. The quepton of agrecing with the House in defling the soth tult, un the time when the resolution for the te mporary increses of the tarifit too effect was brought up ; bat no vote on the mastler wain renched.
In the House, a bill rathorising an odditioual loan or $$ 400,000,000$ tor the sapport of the Governmeut wan presented from the Waye and Means Commilttee and, ufter some discussion, was recommended to be roperted complete. A resolution wat udopted reqneating the Preddent to farnlsh the defence and papere of Gen. Gurtia before the military commiasion in the inguiry Curtia before the military commiasion in the inquiry The bill to proveut specculation in gold was taken up, discuased for come time, and fanally tabled, by againet f7. A motion wat mule
Es reconsider the vote

In the Senste, on the 8th, Mr. Duvig urged the adop-Geb. Bntler, but inuiliy refrimed from pressing tho subject, oud it was passed over. A cemmunication whas recolved from the Prevident, onclaning letters from the Secretary of the War ind the Provoob-Marthal-Geucril

 mittoe
this polint.

this point. Interest.

In the Senste, ou the 9 th, Mr. Davin offered a joint resolution to restore pace omang the people of the Unitud Strite.

 cided that frr. Blair
Was, antiled to a nest.
 intercest, the moss
Ststo of Arlininess

| $w$ |
| :--- |
| 9 |
| $t$ |
| $t$ |

TOWN COSSIP

It is a hard thing to say of our own people, ont we believe it to true, thit within the last three jears wo are becomfag so familiarised to death in awfol and suddeu forms, that our heasts are haritencd, anil w This thoupht came to us whillo reading the report of the Berkshire disaster, the burning of which bost o the ©frdson hurried half a hundred people inte eternity, Several 'years eternity. Several 'ycars ago the oecurrcnce would havi beon town taik for a week, and one could bcarcely beve gone a block without hearing something abont the torrible affatr. To-dsy the matter is chrouicied in the presil wilk a feri dozen lines, and the enger public turns away from its hali pertused roctsal to comething moro pinand from its hali pertused recital to somothing more pignon on the wext page, where the clawh of arma is recorded ond 10,000 mou aro hurried finto etarulty or lef maimed and deformed for Mife. Beside thiseo gignuntio ales of ulanghter, into what atter insignitcanco does the borning, kealdang end drowning of half a hundred the barning, coaldang en wretohed humang tade.
The week has been particularly rife, in this olty, with spectee of crime not espeectat ot this locality, but werthy of notice as ollering bere tho beat jindrationt Werthy of notice as olfering bere tho beat ilinstrations. otubbing end goweral knockdowns, and aramging ont The pross dially chrouldeer fuch offrira, end the pnblic an do wothing less thon accept the story $\mathrm{a}^{5}$ given, on dangathiss with the guardians of the haw npou their dangere and hairbreadth escapas, without looking despor into the mettez:
The truth is tbat in four casee ont of nve where sncil hinge occur they ero brought on by the arroganoe sil volded if they would exercise a mmall grali of firmiens or common sense. Policomen are but men, end have hose of evory citizen, especially large employers from outrsetor or msmufacturer haviug hundrodh, perhapy secesaary to go ormed wer his clange does not find it mplogede at covery provocation, The same rule applics and the polico, and any departare from it ouly ergaca
that the man is unat for his portiou untess be can thow positively that the pletoled or clubbed party wes a known dangerous charector, or too muoh for tum physically.
There is no room in this column to disecuss a sublect vital to every ellizen, but wo can only say that we hove had so many tingraut cases brought to our knowledge that we think it full time that revolvers were theren out of the bat of pobice equipmonts, uuless upoin pecial cesses of danger, ond that overy clabbling and special cassis of danger, ond that overy ciabbling and beatiug afnuir in which a policemat is concerned abould be msade the nubject of an especial inquiry before the Commisatoucs. Conidence ahould be inutulud in tha ninds of the peoplo thet these men are to protect ua, cation, or noine.
This weel gold has touched 200 . Amid the clusb of work chan

from

1

 " $=\mathrm{F}=\mathrm{F}=\mathrm{F}$
"

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.

 - Tho Britith hteanship pirginit, Capt arsec, from Lesaue sabecquentry wited on Hisis.

 Tuct The slaves in the countles of Davises. Hendergon

 - Major Gen. $G$. W, .suith bas bexn elected to the

 This wretelbed specimen of a French nobleman zame who marrled in courtuzan some 13 years ago,

 the most extravagant
out the cstablichment.
nuvieff सas suricos froms St. Peterchurg stite Gurg lutely, hee roturned to Warsum.

 Ambasudor it Romzers.

 It is a notaworthy fect that an unnually large number or wounde recelved in thelste baities in Georgis wounds in the rccumbeat postur

thir arms to loond thic piecee slight wounds is large tbroughont.

 The Committee had destggna to call the locallity sboked Thalian shiditionil perticulare of tho recent voyago of the Galantacmo ecrowe tho Atlantic show

 - Belle Boyd, the eccentric and over-logal femald,

CHIT-CHAT WITH THE LADIES.
Why do these terrible railroad accidents occur? We suppose every one mast nak that question evven times a weok, for it is imposiihls to open a dally

Pesple
it ts not very terribla, they slidm over the paragraph a they do the merket prices, and forget it much sooner.
But now and then painfal circumetancees aro forced But non the ettention, and as the thonght this might here been myself or one dear to mo rince in the mind evon tho most indiferent begin to wonder whether some thing conld not he doase whether skill and cantion might not utterly prevent these fearful accidanta, Th lats oxploelon near Syracuso is calculated to make one of explooion near syracubo is calaunsed to make one ever. Only four milen from ite destination, with no sensible reason to bo given for any cotwatrophe, moment finds the great throboing ongline in fraemunts, the englineer and fireman in shapelese masese under the wreck, and the pesengeers more or loes injured, some fatally, A young conple married that morning, botb in fatally. A young conple married that morning, botb in all probability moimed for life, and the nir tilled witt groans ond elirieks of agony from lips tanghing an inetant bifore. Mr, Nobody.
We sppeal to those who underatand the mysteries of the 1 ame way by which the eafoty of an engine may b tested, and whether such examinatious should not b muade before eseh trip, whon lives and himber of han dredis of human beings ere in the balanee.
If this cannot he, and steam is indeed o
If this cansolve, it would he wiec to disernal hime, an atead or our scrvant, it would he wise to disenard him, am go buek to the slower end enfer travelling libite ot our foron forofuthers.

Mothere' Boys.

Mothers havo caaso to wntch their boys in there divys truly. Imagine a youth of $15-16$, when, though a firl may be a soung haiy, her brother is cartainity only a bay-s youth, too, of respectiblo percnts, and $\mathbf{v v i n g}$ with them, who could in the muct artal mannor rob his emplogers of $\$ 5,000$ and a certified cbeck for $\$ 1,085$, put a portion of it in the bank, furvish a club-housc, give a champagne mappur, bet np bousekeeping with a member of tho sofler sex, and lead a lifo which might astonish mawy an older, kinnerl Almost finerediblo. Yet anch an indivldual was arreeted tist week, aceording to tho papera.
Taxing Drensmalions an Manufacturera. High time indeed that there ahoold be a protective union for working-women, when our sapient taweiven telie to taxing arensmakeoran na manufacturera! If ever there was an act calculated to make ono woman's blood boil, it is that othere should be eo shamefolly used by the lords of creation. Drebsmakere, manufucturers Absurd in the first instance, though aceorifing to Yivaley Murray or Wobster, auy one who makes anythis by hand nught Eo stylod omanu vchuroe. Accerving to the lhy sapports such o tax wo do not underetand.
But if the law doee support it, it still remains one of sarly in infe, nometimes late. In the first instance, nhe and after toiling for nothing for is year or two, hreenk Doone from the bondage, pnts out a tin ricm,

A waits for cuitomera One and enother darp in; she OI tolls from morning until night,'hearas stproschas from oumd-sbouldered Miss A beconse, her dreween

 sunday bounet are both deferred indefnitoly ; and far the wear and tear of temper, strengeth and eyeslghth carns at bant the plain

your rhamefal, unjust tax, Nith o weight Hike lead, mob dozen chilitron at her kouec, and your tax wakee tho bread trom their mith an Look you, mow who oppend your mooney so freedy who tookk forward to suoh in long life of caronenal, thar 1ook lorward to suoh in long hife of carounal, hare onco wero man triumpbont in strength and wealth a You ate, who lie dead now, and whone wives are drens you are, who lic dead now, and whose wives are drea mallore Dressmaliere, taxed down to boggery. nalore Dresmatieres taxed down to boggery.
Often, of course by induatry, or friendily finfinen "good luck," the dresmalter has, in the course of and even elegant surtoundinge, and ie on the higb to a competence for hor old age. and these hopen, your inhuman tax, and hrive brow, yon rob hex of with which may he better iming aned than described Tox dresamakers dresamakers I The Arech-lend, with his friends gaunt Averico and yollow Mammon, were at your elbows when that thoukht first gained entrance into your minde,

The relen of st sherddy.

The relgn of Stooddy has done eome good to forcign dealere in mother's jewels even hera but shodiy felk obiliged to buy nerr atock, the pewter rings end the piochbeck pine buy nerr ntock, the pewter ringa en, the pinchbeck pine of ith old life not acconding witb ito presont grandeur. Accorilindly, foretgn journula toll as that over $$ 2,000$, . 000 worth of damonds wero imported into tho Unlted State』 Staleal last year, and that demands still increase.
No wonder shoady gittere in the sumbight of the Central precioue gema; while the soldier's feet bebter in his papersoled abioos, and his baro elbours emerge from his prayera end many execrationil.

The Pxosent Coiffare

If Nuture had intended girls to bave horna as well us
cowe and shcop, it is our bebef elo would have bestowed thom. But it la pthin the hairdressure do not think bo, for the tatest wrincle is neither moro nor-kess than an oxect imitation of a ram's horn, crooked and narrow, wake an uninitiated stranger flee in terror, with visions
o Old Nick before his oyas,
We, who know that the effect is prodnced by "rolls" and "topecys," are not so ourly alarmed, but whoever invanted the inahion muit decidedly hove beon insune. Wo always oxpect the wearer of this adornment to low and rugh at ax if wo provoke her; and thongh thore are cemo who cannot took ugly in anything others, eppoclally cemo who cannot look ugly in anyimang, thers, eppecillily mbide-aged ladies of fyare countenances, loce not only alf protennionsto good looke but all elegnaco and dignity. Harroiled back is hecoming to most foces, bat hair rolled up over a horn wee never intanded to edorn the haman ace drina

Late in Life.

Some peoptle continuo to sow their wild osit until they have bittle time to reap the herveent. Isset meelk Hey have bitle time to reap the herreek. Laset week we are tola the Circuit Court of Albany gave a verdict of $$ 1,000$ in damagra to a young lady of eightoen, who ate-cused a veaersble genteman, nomed Thomas Reed, of brusho of promise of marriage The gay decoiver is father of the brolien-hearted damael ; probably the one thousand greanbacks will compensate for his muture hearth though it may not for mis property

False Hair.

A grest deal of filko hair is worn now-h-deys. Every cary any of courso, and the fumient thinge happen, cajecislly at dancingryarties and on windy dayo ot the searide "It to no uncommon thing." ofriend writes from a bathing-ptace, "to fond $n$ 'grcelan,' or a ' wator-
Jul' on the eana, and to miga a bello from tablo at dinnor the Eame day, while a moseenger is ditpotehod post The other day, A——, who bas beeu endeuvoring to ingratlato himeelf with the rother midaleaged heiress, Mhis B-_, sow her pursuing some dark objeot along garden path, and hastening to the rescac, picked up round hut, lace veil, not and all those profuse ringleto which adorn Mise $\mathrm{B}, \mathrm{B}$ classic brow. Abluhthed scarlet Mise B - wondered at hith impor tivenco, and the two have not even opoken to esch hisoneq, and othor yot."
Por the mattor of futse hadr wo hold a. peeculiar opinou; the fotly is not in weariag it, but in being ashaned cap because her hair was him. And if sho desires to lok well, or to be in the faching look well, or to be in the fahiton, and her treases are insulicient, let her npply to the hairidrecsor by all meane, and say boildy, if quistioned, "Yes ; my corts re fulse, and soare soark," Only a horso's mane could produco hurr enougo to drees unassistod in the haight of the pronent fanshion. Andevery women hnows and inating man also. And when you declare hick hair is four weeke no one will beliove you. Own p therefore, and ssy outright, "I buy my hair of -," yon do "I bay my gloves of Stewartn" spelling.
Tho sohooimaster in sbroad and has not yet nignined him ot ention of returning to those beniggted heatheos on the "Oother aile of the Bowery," Shopping invectlgotione in that neighborhood bring queer things in the Oy of spelling and gramimary to trght. One buileess street where the counkenanees of the merchants are of a decideccly fobrow cast, is full of the Floo tounding phearas, Bebold ofew of them: on the meacheen ruminalul." Don't anke no more trant
"J. Smith, zabinet maler, ete, etc.

A WOMAN'S RESOLVE.
by ADA vRoomiak.
Last night my darling raid to me, With flushing cheek and downcast eye, You men are always gay, while we Can only sit and sigh.
Wo laugh and jest, and lure you on
To say 'I love, with many a wile, To say 'I love,' with many a wile, Bnt oh! heneath the jesting tone, Bnt oh! heneath the jesting tone,
The glances and the smile,
"Our hearts are sad-a vague unrest Fills all the pauses of our lifeNot always can a faithful hreast, And saored name of wife,
"Bring peace and joy; a greater good Slines ont nfir on dizzy heights
A hitter longing stirs our hlood, Through all the days and nights.
"As oue withiu a prisou chained, Who sees his comrades fight and fall, And wecps to see his share unelaimed Of that which is for all -

The right to do, the right to he, A nobler thing than toy or slave, A something great and good and free, Whose rest is not the grave.
"E'eu so we yearn-ah! me, you smile, And $I$ have showa iny heart in vain; But them, Tve learnt this truth the while-
You care not for our pain.

Tis wiser far by storn controlBy hitter, rigid discipline, To hopes and thoughts divine.
" TTis hetter, nobler, to forego
Ahride's delight, that sweet, vague dream,
Than waken np to married woe, Than waken np to married woe,

I stretched to her nyy loving arms-I gave a pleading look and sighed, "Come to your home!". She sank therein, My own, my plighted bride!

Broisson virtue may flourish hest, hut th at is no reason why wo ehonlal bruife it.

Fíre and Water.

[^17]Marina rescues Muta from Grimgrip's Cave,

Mokill dogged his man for several dayy, snd "earthed" him st last in a cellar kept by the bloodhnund'a brother-in-law, the resort of characters of the Victor was drawn into the place by ths aound of a violin snd harp, and the shafliling and strmp ing of duncers' feet. The apsriment was filte. with rongh men and cosrse women, dressed in tawdry finory, and the young man, mneb smased, looked ahout him for soms minntes ere hs perceived a person preeent that inspired him with any feeling eave disgust. At last he diacovered sirl who had retired into the corner of the room and seemed to shrink from participating in the vulgar orgies of her compsnions. A burly, brutallooking fellow was attompting to drag her to the midate of tho floor
"Come, Moll," said he, "you're mad becaurs you'ro tho lest rum-blorron tbat's loft, and I'm heand to have a polker if I havo to dance with the hound to have a palker if devil under the gallows."
"Let me go, sir; I bave been daneing oll dey and night, and am tired to death."
"The poor girl looks tired," asid Victor, compassionnte
The fellow turned fiercely upon the speaker and xclsimcd, with an osth your own game, if you don't want to pnt your bowsprit in parenthesis."
"Every man's game," answered Victor, "is to see that no womanis forced to do anything agains hor right and inclination. If I wero the girl I rou are at suy prico."
The rufian oursed Viotor's impudence, and
The and wore that hs would not be cheated out of his partner by a "Joikin."
Victor, who had been drinking and was ripe for mischief, told the fellow to take his hands of the girlif he did not want to be sent to a plase somewhat warmer tbsn a "ballum-rancum," for a partner.
There
pistol, in Fictor's dene that cravened the bully and made him release the "slamkin," as he called the wearicd dancer, with an oath to the effect that she war not worth nghting for. He went to the har, where he remaining with Mckill. The girl thanked Vietor drinking with Mokill, The girl thate and assured him, apologetically, that had sbe not bsen so exnot have refused to dance.
"You have a perfect right to refuse when yon plesse," repbed Vietor, "and I am only sorry there are brates ao urfoeling as to deny you tho privilege, I am
"Life!" exclaimed the girl." "Do yon call this ite I lead? My companions seem to think it life but it is so mayu times worse than death I do not know what to call it.

Why do you not quibit, tben?"
"Because I know no way to get out of it, unlesa Victor, who was familiar witb this kind of talk from women of her cless, and attached no iming girl when Jack Mozill approached her, and mommanded, rather than aaked, her to dance with him. The poor creatare trembled ae the ruftion addressed her, for she knew, him too well as the in cruelty and desperation. Before she could reply in cruelty an
"This lady is too tired to dance at present, bat rested heraelf."
This ledy," said MoKill, mimicking Victor, whe employed an Americanism he knew to be so generaliy in use, "this lady has a standing en "And I," replied Victor, with a aneer, "have a standing engagement his nose in my way,
The blurting of a volley of vielent and indecen epithets at Victor followed this provocation, but n the midet of hiescurrility tbe utterer received the contente of the other's glass in his eyes. Ho the contente of the other's glass in his eyee. Ho wiped his face debherately, and then rushed upen Victor, who was ready for him, and with & blow, skiffully planted, knocked him flat upon the floor skilfully planted, knocked him flat upon the floor, body present began to balloo or talk at once, and connequently nebody was heard. Mo Kill gained connequently nobody was heard. Mokill gained hade anotber dash at his enomy, dodged hie Wlow, and closed with him. Victor was a mestorly wreetler, and could bave easily thrown his man, wut eatching the gleam of a knifo in tbe comard'g hand, grappled for tho possession of the weapon, and both fell togother. Mokill's brother-in-lew and others attempted to interfere, and a deeperate shruggle ensued. When Victor rose from the floor and etood on his feet he had only received a elight out in the hand, but Mckill remsined prostrato, to the heart and in the last agonies of death At this conjuncture the pobioe, attracted by the clumor, descended into the cellar, and Victor was arrested on the apot. Mary Lce, as the girl wes called whom he hid so fatally defended, $83 w$ him taken of to the Tomhs with heartielt corrow. H for many a day, and the last she ever experienced in this world. She took refuge in a bittle back room, where she remained awhile weeping, but this molaneholy indnigence was zoon denied her. this molaneholy indulgence was soon denied her.
Mokills sister found her there, and flew at her like Mokill's aister found her there, and flew at her like sn exasperated tigress. Heedlcss of her pitiful bair, heat her till her face was covered witb blood, threw her upon the floor and stamped npon her and lastly, late and bitterly cold as it was, thrust her, half naked, into the street, and loeked her out.

The homeless wretch eonght an ssylum in several places, but withont avail. Few places wsre open at thast hour of the night, and from those that were she was ruthlesaly driven by their proprietore, who supposed her to he a drunken, dangorous person. Turning desperate at lsst, she went down o the river, harried as fast as her trembling limin ould carry her to the end of a long pier, looked up nd n ttering something between a pmyer and a hittermurmur of complaint, the very dregs of despair, with eyes shut, for she darst not look st the dark water, she threw herself into the deep tide and quickly sank out of sight, Victore awakening in the Tombe on the mornThe acquaintance he had made in Now York forune acquaintance lora and for him he sent at once. His friend responded to his aummons without delay, and as soon as he had heard his etatement informed him, frankly, of the danger in which he stood, and the slender he danger in which he stood, and the slender ohances of his escape, proe bisig cause snd to do the best for him he could under the circumstances. "What, do y
"There ia Bitile danger of that; but it will be "I to save you from imprisorment in Sing Sing." "I would rather die than live the life of a felon. The fellow firt insulted shd sasaulted me, and hen fell upon his own lonife. Shall I suffer eternal diagrace on e villain ${ }^{\text {? }}$
"I hope not. But that depends not so much can prove."
About an hour after his lawyer was gone Victor whe surprised by a visit from Gregory Grimgnip, who bad thus commented npon the account or the omioide, in whieb he was on much concerne fter he had read it st his brealfast table, in the morning paper:
"The devil takes care of his own; the fellow has more lives than a cat. Neither poison nor steel will work upon him. Since the blunderer failed, 1 m glad he made sure work of MoKill, for now we shall have no blabbing. If they would ony hang my pest, now, 1 shona be chenply in of bortiot but the jary will dieagree or bring in a verdit gaingt him of murder in the second or third degree, and the court award him the briefest legal Cerm in the State Prison. Even that will be great revenge ; bnt it would not prevent him from raising a hue and ery that will set the Elfstones and Hapshue and ery that will set the Elifstones and Hapswells on my track. I mnat double in the courso and throw them out, but first will $\begin{aligned} & \text { see if } \text { I cannot }\end{aligned}$ gang this good-for-nothing gag this good-for-nothing.
Vietor was inditing s lettor as Gringrip entered, and merely nodded to him without ceasing to write.
So you are bound for Sing Sing, my young "Verily, triend Gregory."
Well, sir, you seem to feel little regret
"I beg you pardon, Gregory, I feel much regret
r your sake." for your sake
"What ?"
"That yon do not boar me compnny. It is unnetural to part us; for the fool and the knave heve " inherent attraction for one anothor."
"It is impossible for mo to see bow they can be uparated in you at all, Mr. Kinguland.
"'Tis hard; bnt you see your face makes knavery cook so perfectly hideo," s green eyes flashed, rom replying, thinking to himgelf: keen as a surgeon³ lnite Vien as a surgeon's frife. Asar a thoughtful panse, observed quietly
"Thourh I pause, observed quietly.
"Though I am net sorry for you at all, I am for I suppese, large demands upon their eympsthy
"No, Gregory ; you are my banker at preeent, "nd in, the dary of adversity I zcorn to desert you." "You will nevor get another cont from mo,
" You ehow mo wat you have writtelu.
"You speak as if I could pobsibly heve any obRection to gratify your very netural ourionity.
friend Gregory, for the matter does indeed concern you nearly," Grimgrip proceeded to read the letter handed to addressed to Bertram Hapswchl, containing a brief cocount of the dealings of ite writer with its oader, since his firat viait to the latter $\mathrm{I}_{\mathrm{g}}$ residence, with Mokill. Grimgrip tore the letter upin e rage and exclaimed:
"Sir, you have cheated me!
How so, Gregory ?
You have alenady
You have alcony written to your brother, $d i$ vulging the secret I paid yon to licep."
"I never promised I would not tell it to my bro-
"What, then, did you take my money for ?"
"For smashes, toddies, and othor like compounds wherowith to drink your health. I beg of yon, Gregory, not to torment yourself with the idea that your money hae joyed it vastly,"
"You promised me egain and again that yon "Breathe a Breathe a syllable touching your secret to nman creature, and I haven't, but have written a few, contained in a ebort letter to Bortram, dsscrihing my first visit to your hospiteble domi-
cilo, and in the epistle you heve just destroyedculo, and in the epistle you heve just dest that is all, on my word and sacred bonor."
"Y
"You bave denlt unfairly with me."
On the contrary ; I heve pblebotomised you, because you were dying of the plethora of wealth you as I would a lomon, and made whikkey akins out of yeu. You aro not a very festive person yourself, Greg, bnt have anpplied the means the have made many a poor
"Yon are fecetions,"

I am desperato, and

ms merry." California instead of Sing Sing.
California? Yon heve me there Ihars the fover in its most exasperated form."
Yon may find eome of the precions metal in granite yon will hava to cut in the Stat Prison."

I shall find pity seoner in your harder heart. Did yon come here to tamit me? Yo godsal muat I be mured np in a coll while such glorious fan going on ontside
"Unless you find
"Is't possible? I tell yon, Greg, if yon" me ont of this scrape, and pay my voyage to California, TIL bind myself by bonds ten timeastronger than B Freemason's, never to meddle with or spea of your concerns again,

And all those awearinge keep on true in coul, An doth that orbed continent the fire Truat eevera day from night."

Yon must do more than this ; you mast undo I mean written-to your brother,"

Tul not eat my own words to please yon."

"To please yourself, you mean. I alone can anve you. But if you profer Sing sing to CalifforI pity your taste, tbat's all.
lawyer ?"
"Alawyer can't arve yon. Mckille brother-in
"Let tbem swear to the truth-all I aaks."
"The last thing they would think of doing onless
"ompelle " will thi
"I whil think over your proposal."
When I quit this cell, I quit it for ever.
"You are not out of my power yet"
I am ready to defy you snd yours to do your worst, and to give you all tho slip. I wish to avoid, the sacrifice of forced sales, hat cm prepared to make them. It is you who are in my power, for I alone can save you from a felon'e
"TIl send you your answer to-morrow," ner's inquest will be commenced in an hour, and it would be childish to pelter witb you s moment longer.
Grimgrip looked Victor steadily in the fass,
with a determined and savage expression, and then said, sharply
You decline my proposel, eh ? Then shall a long and pleasant eojours in Sing Sing." Grimgrip was going, hut Vietor, seeing that h was in earnest, recalled him, and suoeumbed to his terms.

Th make my heaven in a lady's lap,
And deok my hody in gay ornamenta,
Oh, miecrahio thoghtt
Oh, you panderly
 On Bertram's arrival in Londen be found let ters of importance for him whicb had long required answers, among them severs from his oxcept the last, far the most important, which contained an account of his visit to Grimgrip’s residence. Singular as the conduot of the old residence. Singular as the conduot of the old miser appeared, and strange as was theapparition miser appeared, and strange as was the apparition Victor had beheld in his honse, they formed too slight a foundation npon which to build confidin hope, and Bertram found Elfstone in a state or mind bo agitated and dubions that he deemed it beat to withhold from him the atartling intellsgence be had received, till his brother's impressions wore confirmed by more reliable evidence,
He waitod long for further communieations on the He waitod long for further commonieations on the Babject. He would have folt more annoyed and impatient at the delay had he not been used to his brotber's habits of negligenice, which, so long pleasure, were indulged with utter reckleseness. But thero was a limit even to Bertram's patience, America and ascertain the trath himself. H framed an stone would not admit it.
"Lesve mo now," he said, "and I rm lost. soon receive my 'Lost Love' from Irance. It wil throw me into a great excitement I know, and i yon are not by to anstain the balance of my mind."
As Bertram believed in the old sculptor's appre hension, he could think of nothing better than to secret, Jnd to st. Croix a fall confention of hi he made his meditated voyage to New York, and oleared up the mybtery ocunected with his brother' letter. St. Croix answered Bertram's proposal promptly, and met his viewe with ready sail promptly, and met bis view. wis ready com they found a world of conjectural wisdom to waste npon Fictor's letter and certain mysterious hinta dropped by Hadame Nitonche. Bat Bertram's determinstion to visit America was not altered by emphatio approval of St. Croix.
Bertram consognently started at onoe for Liverpool, to take his pasage in the stenmer first Liverpool he pnt up at the Waterloo, and was ahout to leave the hotel to ongage his berth in the stramer, when be recoived a telographic despatch to the elfeot that a letter addressed to him, hearing to the etfect that a letter addresed to him, hearing en American poetmark, hadreached Ellingtord, and had slready been mailed to him. Bertram received this latter on ths enewing day, whieh, as he suticipated, was from his hrothar Victor, bnt brief and pater the the nusatisfactory, dissipating in a few seconda all the hopes the former had entertained of obtaining rrom Amenca a solntion of ths mystery he had pledged his word to Elfstone to solve, if it were hassinhe to human reabrch. Votar mormed him hat he Was on the Evs of starting for Californin, repessesshimself of the paternalestate hs had forfeited by his extravagance, and to diseharge all his other pecuniary ohligations. In a postscript he hopes as to the discovery of Elfston's's lost daugbor, for, upon a closer inspeetion of the person he had mistaken for her, he was, he said, compeiled diвappeared.
This communication gave Berram deep dissppointment, whieh he tried to work ofr by wandering over the dismal town of Liverpool, with which he soon beosme disgusted, as indeed he was fast growing with evorything. While roturning through Lord areet he passed a man be a anilor exclaim to his fellow:
"Ben, did you ever ase a worse flgurehend than that ? I wouid rather asil with Jonah than in a hip with anch a mng on board. It would bring foul woather from any quarter it Was turned to,
I don't believo a shark would swallow sxech a devil's lonot as his face is tied into." " Why, he came over with us.
Grimgrip. He is such e fright that he scared away all the headwinds, and we mado abont the eliortest passage on record. Barber, the second mate, used to swesr that old Grimgrip'e face rond turn a caunolien it? ho hash of lightning, yet, would you believe it? he has the prottiest deughter tbat ever a father was prond on. He calls her Mnta, because sho speaks so bittlo; hat she'd talk fast enongh if he'd let hor, for the old fellow ie as joalons of her as a Turk."
Bertrsm heard no mere, for he hsd already turned sbont and wes in pursuit of the aubject of the sailors remafks. He failed to overtako Liverpool in the hope of again meeting him. Hir sudden return to England, the name of Muta with his, Votor's unac eountable pecuniary independence and dubious retraction, awakened Bertram's suspiciona, and rendered him more dornined than ever to aift the mystery thoroughly tul not a grain of uncer tainty remained. One evening he had was retracing his stepe in blind alley, througb which he had attempted to pase, when he came face to face witb the ohject of his searcb, and sanv him entor an ola, dingy, dilapidated and forsaken house hard by, a reeidence most appropriato for so hideous and mis-anthropical 4 heing as Grimgrip. Bertram watchod the houso into which Grimgrip had disappeared for hours. To avoid observation, he retired into the perch of an apparently d building oppesite, and kept his eyes fixed upon the windowe at whioh he hoped to behold the victim of the ogre be had huntod to behold the vietim of the ogre be had hurtod to his dismal den. At last a light gleamed through his dismal den. At last & light gleamed through a face appeared close to one of the aashes. I was not Grimgrip's, though almoet ae ugly, being old, thin, white and ghastly. This, thougb Bertram, is the deaf and damb honnekeepe whom Victor described. The old woman looked up and down the alley, and seeing nothing atirring, retired, and
"Now," said the watcher to himaelf, "if the girl would but try the same experiment, my time and vigilanee would net be thrown away, For this sdvantage ho waited in vain. Pre sently twe rough-looking mon came up the alley, and excited his curiosity by pausing opposite Grimgrip's hoose, and gazing with an intereat eqnal to his own.
with an intereat eqnal
$*$ "Tout that cssal" said one in a loud tone, " Scavey where the frumper hange out."
"A proper ken for such a foxy fogram !" replied his companion. "He's doused the glim, and plied his companion. "He"
"The first jigger at the top of the dunan is where be lips, and stubbles his swag like a spung He's a occum cull sud ay, but on him, and 'Il lite his ken and suck his honey-for he's as fall as a jng-while he's Sniveling Jimmy

Why, does tho bloke want to leep the book ?"
*"Look at the hoose, and note where the sturdy old mill livea." fellow liver," reidence for such a aly old rogue. He has

how the old acrub had half a centary mors stretchers than the bloss, and wouldn't noose 'em withont a tickram. My jamer was to ha' been bridesmaid, and she put Jim np to the lay. So the old gooeecap padded the hoof to the kirkbnzzer. Jim, yon know, is a a grooner and swad-dler, and has been japanned, and he's to switcb der, and has been ja the darkman's."

the mooee face ?

"Dimber as a white ewe, bnt a chin and cranky. She wae mandling half the lightman's, and coaxing no hienty for a eart of beng-up toge-squeeze cable, claret danbe, jam, milky famblee, peak nnd crabehells. SheIl flahi her wallfowere, and if she don't make a Jew's eye I wish I may dance at she don't mn my death 1"
"What a bracket mng the old Poger has I Did yon twig his oven, tomhatonee and boko ? Ha, couple with a such a bleak mort."
"Oh, it's all Plumhy. Rengling Ned is hie rum prigotar, who brealre s leg once a month, will soon be for pulling in with the ladybird."
Bertram now thanked his stars, that he had been tanght slang hy his brother. Mnch of thi dialogue would otherwiee have been unintelligihl to him, but he conld "patter-flash" well enongh to havo passed for a "croesman," and under stood every word the burglars had spoken. They continned to hold a whippered conraltation about the situations of the varions rooms in the house the likeliest places to ransack for plunder, the time of meeting, and the plan of procedure ; and before they left their poeition neer the porch before they left their poeition neer the porch Bertram was completely master of the details of their intended burglary. As eoon ae they were gone he hurried out of the allsy, and found his way back to his hotel abont one o'cloek in the morning.
The next day wae a busy one with Bertram. He to deviso, and to him, the diffienlt tasik to porform of ascertaining the exact locality of the alley in which Grimgrip's abode wae eituated. In the evsning, however, Bertram was at his poet opposite Grimgrip'e houas, now feebly illuminated, and making an ahortive attempt at checrinumese, ehou ss hopeless as the jeet of the condemned on the seaffold. Still wae it evident that the effort wa not withont sufficiont occenion, and that come thing unusual was ahout to happen in ite interior When Bertram eaw soverel men and women gatha about Grimgrip's door, one of them knooking a it luatily, he etolo over to them and contrived to ho admitted into the houeo at the eame time they wore. The greste were reecived hy the old doef and dumb housekecper, who bockoned to the company to follow her, and uehere front room on the eecond floor.
The marriaga gueets had not long to wait for the bridegroom. He entered, gorgeonaly attire in a blise eoat with braee buttone, a white veet and dark pentaloons, His collar wae rigidly in the aseendant, and neokcloth voluminous. His wetoh chain wae glaring and meseive ; his white heir tortuouely dreeed, and his whito kid glovee and Tho old houeekeeper regraded him with looks and geatures of admiration, and endeavorod to direct the ettention of the young girl who accompenied him, to the unwonted splendors of his parson. This girl wae the briae, and wae absorbed in th contempletion of her own costame. She looked down upon her pink silk drees with greet com placency, and examined the gold ehain euspende gloved hends with still pronder satisfaction. Orimgrip'e face, rendered the more hideous hy his gay apparel, wore an uneasy and anxious look, and tbe hride's was now bright with gratified childieh vanity, and now blank with an inanity, sad and and arme were feullees in their anowy whitenee and entrancing eymmotry; and at the firet glance mentally prononnced vietor' last letter to be than the danghtor of tho original of Elfatone'e "Lost Love." His heart beat high, and it wae ing hor from the ogre eo bent upon wedding her loveliness and youth to his frightful senility. He thought ho never had behold so monetrons and insnpportable a sight, and slipped ont of the room mobeerved, lest he elowald betray his rising indgonation, After descending the stairs and openwatching outside, he returned to the second foo and listened at the front room door to the man riage eervice which Sniveling Jimmy was intoning with extre solomnity. He heard footstepe approaehing the door, and had barely time to otep and enftly shant in the cham parson's sonorous " Who was that cove that leept so shady end "One of the ald one of them.
has hopped the trig for fear he ehoald hasb,","
"And no wonder, for 'tio like ephicing old Grim to a pap-lep, end enough to histo any kid's middlo piece." "Al'e bob. FU bruih in, while call'e figgar, and touch his ewag." Bertram, who wae cronched down upon the eecoud fight of atairs, pecped over the balusteres, as soon as he hearu one of the men re-enter the as soon as he heard one of the men re-enter the front room, and the other tempering with a door at the end of tho passage ; and after watching that had streamed through the keyhole of the
*"I Who. wah that fcllow who seemed no shy and junt apartment in which the grim, faroe was being played. The extingaishment of the wight was quickly followed hy screams and the noise of etragonnd the room in darknese and blind confusion. " "Faggot tbe cull!" cried one.

"Screw up the bloke, snd srubhle his red rag from chaunting beef 1 " said anothar fiereely. The neat moment a female, rushing towards the door, wae canght in Bertram'e arms and clasped there, while he, with the moet renssuring gentleaess, said:
"Fear nothing, little one, I will protect yon from all harm."
The polic
The pollice now horst into the room and turned the light of their dark lantorns npon the ecens, disclosing to viow old Grimgrip lying on bis back, overwhelming odds to prevent the gyving of bis lege. The old housekeeper had fainted from fright, and was lying like a withered corpee upon the lars ceased from their efforte to ofecure Crimgrip nd made $s$ bold dash for the door; hut the oppos ing force wae too strong for them, and they were perate fellow, who made bia escape hy leaping on of the window into the street.
Bertram's fair captive, eftor gazing into his handsome and benevolent face, inetend of making nu effort to eecape, clung to him, which encour " I hittl to add in hie most eednetive tones: Little one, if you wish to be free, this ie, perhape, your only chance. One moment'e delay may make it too late. It you want to cecape tbat hosriblo old man, and be with your own father-if yon want to ho happy end marry one you love, come with me. Come, Jittle Muta, your father ie dying to see you."
Tho girl'
Tho girl's hoantiful hlue eyee hrightened snd "I will follow yon anywhere, es bittle Flo me hefore ehe died." Bertram spoke a few words to the captain of the police, and dissppeared with hie cbarming and innocent prizo, jnst as the officere were proeeeding to ungag and unbind the much abvesed and exosperated Grimgrip.

INAUCURATION OF THE CENTRAL SANITARY FAIR, PHILADELPHIA.
Tmpricien hy the noble exertions of New York, Cincinnatt, 8t. Lonis, Brooklyn, Boston and ochez siliter cittes, in aid of the highly benevolent and churitble labors of the sanitary Commiason, Philadelpht on the bat of eilies whoss hoest will be their charity. A muggificent etructure on Logun qquare has been fitted up for tho Frir, and on our front pege will be found to viev of the inauguration ceremony, on the

 coug a maire
douncof piatrorm.
After the fring of entute,
 the oxdeative coramittee and duly necopted.
The dares of Bishop simpson wain maxked by hin The adarese of Bishop simpson wan pasked by hin poarcd upon willing ears and hearts by the
of Dolawise, New Jcrove sid Penteylvanta.
 colore, the anthusiaem was intenee and the acene in spiring.
The contribntions to the Fair ure rioh and varied, the people of the city of frotherlyL Love anxious to be worthy of their name and foll of trae zeal, zo that every mea.
sure of euccese may be apticipated.

The Buildinga on Logan Square.

 Hiquore, ,25 fant, tolococo, sio feet Ah these departmante han same nizze, and in couvected with 8 ditchnn and other necessast outbuilding. At the dintanco o

very

 ferent parts of the country are in course of prepartation, the priandipal one of whith openced in Plilididphis on Jome

DESTRUCTIVE GONFLACRATION  Or Stemmbonta at New Orleans,

The rebel emissaries are constantly in the midast of the prople who are loyal to Government, and territory to carry havec and destruction by everyquery art of hand me mocunaiary. The gresteant lons indil been in the recent fre at New Orleans.
On the alphit of May 27 th a fire was discoversed in Mr indeer' cabin of tho ateamer Black Hawi. Lient.
Mounsier, in command, asw a man run from it, but was unable to overtake him.
By the time Tienhim. Monsefer reached tie cabin, the whole of the after part of the bast, so fer as the wheel-flames spread with suab unanaid raplaidy and hammed
with such fury that tim few momente te Btach Hnuk, Meleor, Time and Tide, Bello Oreole, Belio Lee, Fawn

 pele took planice to to tovold their fall.
Two schooners moored at the Picayune tier took Are The secne aisorded by the firo was en blime. The lurid gleare of tein famea lighting up the horizon and roddenEpectaclec As tho burning gteamern let their moorings $300,000.

THE BATTLE OF RESACA.

Wr continue thie week our series of sketches hattle of Resescos, by our spectal Artist.
The battlenteld, which ly 15 miles from Dilton, was deneely wooded, and simost inpervion to the eye or hed prepared formuldablo breastworks, with artillery
plunted on the eommanding peotions, A conautatiou
Wpa held in the morning by the leading Generulk, Hooker Sarsugng the plin of bottle.
soon the columna of the 20 corpe were in motion,

 ur seriously.
Direcill bohind it withtn 50 praeee, wras a rifepit, on a Night elevation, which completoly covered the guns and gunners. To capture this battery wha very deeirable, mand the tusk wan umdertaken itternstely ty the man of both divisions. The conteat wie ding partien inaccesseibet to elther without aimost certenin ondertake to approsech.

Our forcen jutit under and around the fort were comp-munded by Col. Cobbham, of Gearg'e division, sa breve

KINCSTON, CA.

Afras the battle of Resace, Sherman, with his whole forec, followed in pursuit, penetrating into his whole forec, follo wed in pursuit, penetrating into for of the wiser remnined tom manat ub, and anailed our ta, vance with joy. Fine farma and plantationn grected

BATTLE OF BUZZARD'S ROOST, May B , Anong the strongholds seleeted by the rehels for the defance of Athants against the Americun army was Buzarde Rooat, curried in apite of all their endeavore on the 8th of Muy, by the indomitable courage of Sheruman' min , fall of the consciounaces of a juit cause, It is a high, rocky elovatioa, on MMn creek, a hranch of tho Oootamanto botween Binggold nad Dalion.
Our advanos engaged in oome very heavy Alirmihing,

Abstract

  harge was unally ordered and thnn ensued one of thos urious oncounters thet can only occur in a hand-to

THE BATTLE OF GOAL HARBOR, Junc 1st, 1864.
Conr Harboa, the seene of a recent hattle in the campagn of Geoeral Grant, in already famillaot those who have followed the operstiona of tho war as the point where Stonewall Jackeon first atruck in hill Daya Fight. Virginia names are ofeca delanive, sand thin this one is no exoeption. Coal Harbor presenva to th quated rastio bamlet, comprising two or three houscon, With barns, orthonhas, ke.
On the 1at of June the enemy were in heevy foree
hotween Coal Herbor and Gafines'a mill, in a strong poel

 Ranecli'g brikado alng gall 600 prisoners pert of the exemy' forke, and held them Cor Men, Meado eent Gon. Blckett an order thanking bin for his gallantry.
The 5 bth corpe
neverely enganeed at the oame

BATTLE OF BETHESDA GHURCH

 May 30th.Enray on the morning of the 30th the 5th and marshy borders. Col. Harding, of Crawford's divi ville road, but meeting s large cavalry force fell back At two R.M the enemy attacked Cruwford, and he, ino wan formed, Grilth on the right, Cutior to the cantr right of Warren's. At six B.M. the eneomy buefantot tho Simuitaneoun with their opening vollegy of muriketry casice motd shot snd shell from tha angry mouths of Fimm nad unkenhiken ee a wannon of brase stood our men Fn their hnete tho rebel weeailhnte eviot too high, and

 Was won by the men meeting and expelling the ene ussatul nres time under fire. Thoy behaved llke vetecmus. The poitor danger nand havoo whas theirs, and they held it with unfinching tenacity.
 effort wso made by the enemy to sdience lit.
The rebel dhaspohootera ensajed to pick of the cav
noglers

HAWE'S STORE, VA.

Hendquartern of Lient.-Gen, Grant.
The war has hronght into prominence end exhanited Firginils, places moheard of by the country at alatorla the ansit fardifes of the Old Dominion

 pleturesqua view of the etcopt throwing mente eit the epot on Gonday, May 2oth.

How A Sootch Sebvany Labge keciace

grants campagan in virginia-the battle at coal harb

STANZAS WRITTEN IN DEJECTION. my the oreat cmazes poet, hetat-pg.
The sun of yenterday which leaves me,
No arrthy skill can woo to stsy,
To-dy'a pale gloom which chills and grisves me,
No human arm ean hoid away The birds of passage, ever flying past, The courntleas flockeks treeam down the antumn blast, 1 mount my tower to gaze far off, and fast
Fill winoeupe from the waning jar.
The mighty bardes, long dend, seem rising Aroumd me in this lonely place,
I marmur through the old angs, I marmur through the old songs, priving
Their matchlees I too feel powera that will not be conitrolled, But cemonot rival here the great of old, Till to pure akiee apeasing, I behola, Mrore closely, eadh unclonded star.

Vainly onr swords would cloave the river : It keeps its over-living flow; We strive to drown tho souss of woeMan, in this life, ,hen stormy fate grows dark, Must let her billows rock his wandering bark, Givo the wild waves their will, nor pause to mark Too keonly how they foum afar.

The Gulf Between Them.

bX ANN S. stephens.

chapter wimb-contrnued.
For a fow instanta there was wild confurion; tho sirrants rnated in, tho wounded eriminal was fircad up, but during all that time Elsie lay on the solit gnite unnoticed not insonsilile yet, , tht helpand body secmed witbering under it
Ford atit on the floor in Ford sat on the floor in gloomy silence. In spite of his refuasals they made an effort to tateunch spite of his refuasals they made an effort tostaupeh thie blood which was triokling down his shirt thie blood which was triokling down losom, bnt he said T in a low, quiet troice :
 am a dyng man. It wan The chuage in his faco proved the truth of his words ; even the officers, inured to scenes of sulfwords ; evon the officers, inured to seenes of surf-Yeriug aud pain, reeoiled before his stony hardiOne of them spoke in explanation to Meillen.
" WVe than't snow what he wanted here ; wo have "We don't know what he wanted here ; we have been on his track for days ; he has committed forgery, and was trying to get of to to Europe."
 not stop now," said Ford. "Mcllen, $T$ have something to ayy to you-better send these meu away uulcess you waut our seoreta discussed bofore Atcer a few momente the men went out and left Hellcu nlone with the exuicide-in his madnees Mollun had not yet heeded Eliee's presence, or the druadthe state she was in.
"I unt dying,".
nightout dying,", said Pord; "I matter Y You are flive the the my blood run-that's uataral onought Mran, man, the tormont I go to isn't so bad an that I sbail the tormont $I$ go to leave behind for yon."
"Say quickly what you wikh," exclaimod Mel-les, forgetting even hiis hatred in the dreadiful popectacle tho man made, his garnents red with bloed, lis faco pale with the death agony, digtortbloed, his face pale with the death agony, digtort-ed with baffled rage and hate. "Ibelieve nothing you say-you cannot move me."
tied my hands-put yonrs in my coat pockettied my hands put yonrs in my cond yourl find three lettoro and a paper."
arulen obeged, ibuddering to Mrosen obeyed, ihuddering to fool tho hiocu drypa warm on his tingere ae he drow forth the drypp wa patiage.
ind

Read them," naid Ford, briefly.
Mellen opened one after another of the epistles and road-they were in Elsie's writing-they proved the truth of the viliain's words. The proved the truth of the vilain's word smiller paper was a marringe eertificeate. Mollen staggered baok with one heartbroken ${ }^{\text {ory. }} \mathrm{I}$
ory. "I have touched you", excloimed the man;
"you believel There lice your precious sieter in
, " you believel There lies yourr precious sieter in your hrother-in-law none, the I want to whisper something." Manto whisper his Melle wan dying. married man all the time.'
As Ford whisperod these words a fiendiah smile cosered the lips on whieh death was seattering ashes Mellen started forward with a wild impulse to choke the ebbin Pcred hoursant dight a dying man-you'll only put mo out of this corsed pain if yon oboke me., mo ont of this corsed pain Mellen titod trauafixed.
"III tell you the stary," continued Ford; "novels alwaye have dying conite esious in them-hear mine. It tell yon because it is too late to hear mina.
remedy what you have done-your wife is gone-1
beliere dead."
Mellen eould not speak; he felt about blindly for ${ }^{\text {suppert and eank into a clair. }}$ "I always hated you"
"I always hated you," Ford went on, and the hitrod of a lifo burned in his voice and convulsod hitrod of a lifo burned in his voice and convulsed Tis face. "When we were boya together I Iwore to pay you off for your westh, and your insolent finduces, your infernal condescending generoity. I took away the woman yon loved-1 1 cheated yon out of money - that was something, bnt not out of money-that was momething, bnt not onoughi I came beck to thim country just after. yuna sailed from Lurope, and even before I ever suw the woman who became your wite suw the woman who became your wife, or your sistor, I had formed my plan-it suceeded. I mot that girl-I made her love me-made her mad for me-thant makes you winoe. But mind me, I wonld not bave married her after all but that $I$ thonght sbe had inherited halr her old uncle's property. It wonld not have heen worth whiles. property. It wonld not have heen worth whilk, Thon came your torn to hangh if yon had bnt known it. I was anken in nhon care. your tarn to hngh if yon had bur known it I was taken in-eold. The creature not care for the pretty fool after the Epecalation failed, and what's hetter, sho soon got ovar caring for me, juet as tha other did, and wanted to be off my way of life. That did not frighten her, but the poverty did. This Bitte sister of yours hot the poverty dia. This ittle sister of yours has luxurious tastes, and understands the valne of wealth uncosmmonly well. Bnt Ahs had told me Just how far yon had made your wifa independent in meaus It was a pretty sum, and 1 asaw a way of getting it. Rlsio had told me a grent deal about your wife, and I had made iny own ohaservationa, to say nothing of certsin wires that I had hid in to say nothing of certain wires that I had haid in the basement region of your house. The little cooso yonder really believed that yon had margooso yonder really believed that yon had married that glorious woman only as a companion for her-that yon did not love her in the least. I knew better; , she was a woman to adore, worahip for ever and ever: and yon are no fool in sueh matever and ever: and yon are no fool in suoh mat, terg, I know that of ola. Your wife adored yout I can say this now thast you have killed her, but that little witch had convinced her of the stary she told me, and it was breaking her heart, for that woman had a heart. To savo you from that woman had a heart. To savo you from trouble and the creazture that you worshipped even in her presences from diagrace, I mowew that she would give np everyithing even her iffe, whict Bho would give np everyything, even her Bfo, which you have taken at last. I told Ellsie the truth, that $I$ had $a$ wife living in Europe, thongh it was impossible for any ono to prove it agningt my will. conves some of her letters to me-fond, silly things they were, into your wife's room. Then "The home an iusane effort to kill herrellt took poison made heaven knows what else in tbe presence of your wife-I knew dhe would, and sot her loose for that purpose. These tragedies were kept np till yout wifo took a vow never to betray Elsie's searet, and to slield her from all harm with har own life it to shiueld her from all harm with her own life if needful. I heard this and kave that my monos was anfe. Your wife eame to me, for 1 was no permitted to entor the house. There was woman! I swear tho only creature of the sex that I ever respected. She was ifm but grand in her genorosity, ready to sacrifice eversthing 日o long as it took Elsio out of my power. I gave up more of it took Elsio out of my power. I gave up more of the letters, reserving these throe for use, milnown the letters, reserving these throo for use, ulnewn to her. She riused all the money in her power at to her. sur riiged air the money in her power at the time, bnt 1 Kept the certificate, resolved not to sell that without demmanding the lest cent sho posseessed. In telling my grand secret, I had been cautious to keep all paseibility of proof to myelf
They knew that , my first wife, your old lady love wus living, but had no means of proving the fact or oven that I had evor been married to her otherwise my position might have been danger ous ; as it was

"Our child, your nephew, was born, and died, me a little thea. Your wife summoned me to the house, for she was afrrid to olaim help from any other human being-I went, and with my own hands buried it under a eypreses tree in your grounds. That heroic woman stood by and grounds. That heroic woman stood by and watched. Sho would not trust me out of her gight, fearing that I might attempt to see Eliaie, are near. Noble soul. It was all useless ; I had no wish to see her, and as for her,, I dare say she was glad to get rid of me even at the bitter cost ghe was paying.
"Well, $2 f$
this I got a little money from your wifo now and hem, under tareate of claiming my day a new idea came into my head ; I found out That your whill had been made, leaving all you had to be
mand gually divided between your wift and siter. It equanly divided between your wiff and sister. If gou shonld nerer reach shore Flisie would be worth you should never reach shore Elste would be worth Olaiming in curneet, But with that newa eame olsiming in carnest, But with that news eame a letter from my wifo ; againgt my commands she was following me to this country, just when her presence was certain ruin."
The man broke off in his narration here, specke of foam flew to his lips, great drops o agony stood on his forehead.
"Brandy; ;give me some brandy!" he cried out huakill. "somo brandy, I bay.
Miluen poured some brandy into a glass and held to the tloor acain He drank eagerly and sank back
"Whate the u
would have saved her at the last and tried hard enongh, bnt the storm was too much for me After all that, you baftled me and got on sbore ; the flends must have guided that pilot boat. I got frightened toa. It was not a part ofmy programme frightened toa 1 th was." not a part ofmy programm to go down with you." "Wretch 1 " asid Mellen, struck with a eudden iden, " "on were the person who nearly lost mo among the breakers." "Yes," auswered Ford. "We both had a nerrow chance, but the riek wna warth runnige-that is, if your will really was made-bat when you once tooched shore all hope for mo was over. I muat leave America; I pent word to your wife that must have twenty-five thousand dollars or dalim my wife.
usho
Who was trying to get it; she gave me the bracelet as o brive for delay, one nieht when oame. Now yon have the whole story. I came here to-night because I had not heard from Ybelieve she's dead. I thonght $I$ would see that butidified? You have driven your wife away, you Bater eould believe her guilty, and pet that frivolous thing! Tell me if my revenge is not complete !

Mellen ran to the door and opened it.
"Come in," he cried to the "come in," he cried to the officors, "Carry hat man amay! Take him to the lodge; he shall not sven die hers."
"As you will," cried Ford. "Good-bys, Mellen. Take care of your sister, and if yon can, forget your murdercal our murdered wifo.
He could not will
He could not malk, so thay carried him down to the lodge, and there, whils waiting for a doctan to the logge, and there, whibs waiting for a doctor to desperato bravado that had marked his conduct all the night.

ceapter xax.

Shares after shriek from Elais roused Mellen. Shas was raving in horrible delirium, and when aswinh brain fever, of her recovery Standing there by her bed, this thought must have been a relief to Mrellen; bnt he did not fordo cast hime pride was ut The next mown by her ride and rrived, Mollen left the house. Ho was going out on an aimesess searoh for his lost wife-the woman who had given up her last hope for him and his
He learned ot the lodge thot the prisoner had been carried to the vill command; that he was slive still, brit could not last more than another day; that his name wre North, and he waa well-known among the sporting gontry who came to tho shore tavern.
Mellen hurried to tho city and commenced his task. He eought for Elizabeth in every place where there wet a possibily of her having taking refuge, but without arail. He used every means in his power to make some diseovery, bnt they were ineffictual.
When night came he roturned home, only to hear to desolato house, to poss the night with thous ounde ringing in his earg, and that terrible reTorso tugging at hie heart.
Ho was told in the village that the man was dead. The story had gone abroud that it was a darnng burglar, and that the oficera had aurprised him broaking into Mollen'e house. Ho had found no broaking into Mollen's house. Ho had found no streagth to tell his etory, so fear of open diggrace erisbed with him.
In the madness of his grief Mellen had forgotten hat Tom Fullor was his gneest. The young man'e he heard nothing of tho wild turmoil that distracted the family. Tom was not a very early riber, and when he came down in the morning, sauntering zeiily into the broalfast-room, expecting to :ee Elsie there in her pretty blue morning-dross and Elsie there in her protty blue morning-dross and foses curls, he found the room empty, no table foosyy curls, he found he room empty,
"Well, this is strange," said Tom; "but when Beesio is avay things will go to aixes and sevens,
I dare be sworn, And Flie inn'twoll tallo! there goes Mellon, riding life at trooper What on earth does all this mean? I um getting hungry, end loneerome, and Here Tomm gave a jerk self into an ensy-ohair
'Dolph presonted his woo-begono face at the "Whit's the matter, 'Dolph? Ien' it brcakfast-
". time? Whero is your master going-and-and-Well, 'Dolph, can't you tell me why Mises Eleie imn't
"Mises Elsié, oh, sab, ahe am sick."
"Sick, 'Dolph1 You don't say that?" oried Tom, "Yee, I meang just dat, and nothing olle." "No, no; not very sick, 'Dolph," cried Tom, trembing through all his, groait frame "only a litte nervous, a headache, om momething of that
"'She's just ravin'-crazy-alk Vio if yon don't believe me. The doctors come in before daylight;
wwent after em myself. Robbers broke into de went ant nicht, sah, and trightened our do joung lady slmost to death.

"Robbers, 'Dolph 1"

"Yeas ah. Agemman, too, as has been avisitor anis tentieal house. Marater catched him in de der in tmean efelt oo diver, and de gemman-robber, I mean-fiet oo eharned ob himself dat he ap and banged a bulet, straight frough his own busom, afor Misas Elsie, tool Poor thing; precions little darling," cried Tom ; "Mellen'e left her all slone, and Elizabeth "way; dear mel 'Dolph, 'Dolph, what was that ?" "It's her a acrenming."
"What, Elsie, my Elsie?
"Yees, sah; dat am her."
"'Dolph, I say, oried Tom, in breathless anxiety, thrusting a ten dollar gold piece into the negro's thrusting a ten dollar gold piece into the negro's hand; "Dolph, would it be very mnoh amiss, yon know, if $I$ was to take off my boots and just "Well,
"Well, I doesn't 'zaetly know; de fair sex am so eaptious hout ns gemmen; ; bit Vic is inp dar, and youn oan aak her, she know null bont de prieties, Smart gal, dat Mises Elsie, too, like fifty"
"De
"Dees she?" biid Tom; "here's another gold
"ice, give it to her, with my best regards, Dolph"
iDolph poclected the gold piece, and that wa the last time it anw the light for many a dasy. som took off hie boots and crept npetairs in his Vic oame ont of the sidk room, and the young him to steal into Rlsie's bondoir, where he sat all che morning histening to the poor girl's muttored fanciose, ffter heepping Vic with gold pieces to leave nd then of the beloved face, finahed and wild an was. Generous, noble-hearted Tom Fuller; he had been really hungry when he come from his own room, but nill that wai forgotten now, and own room, but nill that was forgotten now, and there he ast fasting till the elhadows Alanted eastward. Then ha sow Mellen riding towands th depression.
Tom arose sid went downstarrs, nreed to meet his friend by the lindest heart that ever beat in a haman bosom.
"She's better,
"She'r better, $I$ am quite sure ; she alept two " inree minutes ; so don't look so downhearted," he cried," seizing Mellen's hand as ha diamounted,
"But wheréa Elizabeth $?$ Ithought yon had gone "But here his hagkard "Elizea wifo," answered Mellon, lifting his haggard eyes to Tom's eager foce, "She is gone-lost-dead. My triend, my friend, I have murdered your ceusin." Murderad hor ; now I like that,", suid Fuller; Wasn't the girl to do that eny way; but as for murd right to harow. Come ont into the grounds, the air of the house would stifle me.
They sat down together on a garden chair "I have been a pround man. y have been a procud man, Fuller, sensitive never knowingly have $I$ allowed this feeling to stand between my soul and justioe. Your oousin has heen terribly wronged since she came under my roof. It is now too late for reparation, but to yon, her only relative, the truth must be known.
I will not even amk you to keep the facte seeret. I have no right."
"Look here, old fellow," said Tom, wringing quarrel beterder hand in his; "if this is a lover's another weord. Lord bles: youl I can perenada hor into anything, ehe lowows me of ola. Besides, Y am glad there is something that $I$ can do to make yon both goodnatured just not, I shall be aeking a tremendous favor of you before long, and this will pave the way; tell me Where your wife is, ril take eare of the rest."
"Tom, I believe-I fear that the is dead."

Tho solemn

"Dealled Tom,

faded from his facenented, "De and the ruddy oolor "Liston patiently to me if you can," said Mellen, ,ataly. "This must be tola, but the effort is Tom folded his arms and leant his now grave face to listen. Then Mellen told him all ; the pagee have recorded ao imperfleetly. There was pagee have recordid ao impertieety. Mhere was these things in a dull, dreary voice that bespoks utter hopelesences. Ho was so lost in his own misery that the sigms of anguigh in Tom'y fuce never disturbed his narrative. When he had Whe done Tom Fuller arose, and stood hefore him, "Mellen, sive mo your hand, for you nand I $t$ the two most wretched dogs in Ameries thia minute. I loved her, Mellen, $\theta$ God help mel I love her as you did the other ono. Great heaveus, what can we do ${ }^{7 \prime}$
"Nothing," anawerod Mellen; "I did not thinlk another pang could be added, and my aonl recoife from this. Could she prove so base to you alo ?" "Baae ; look here, Mellem, you don't take this in the true light. It was all my fault. Iforeed myself upon her ; I-I-"
The peor fellow broke down, a convulaion of grief twwopt his face, and he walked away. Directly he oame back, halding out his hand.
"Come, now let us search for Flizabetb," he

It is useless ; $\mathbf{Y}$ have searohed.

 "But come with me-it was not in town youshould have looked ; Elizabetb wonld not go there," Melling aroose and walked towards the bay. In passing a clump of roebushess Tom stoppe.
extricate a fragment of filk from the thorna. "What dreag did she wear that night?" he quired, examining the aired in his hand.
"I remember well, it was purple,", auswered
Mollen, sithont lifting his weary eyes from the Mollen, withont lifting his weary eyes from tho groumd.
Tom. " This way, for she has been here," said Tom. "This path leadis to the fighpond.
They walked on, Tom Bearching in the thiokets him in terror leat the dead body of his wife should appear and crush his last hope for ever.
"She has been this way," anid Tom, when they regched the pond. "Soe, that tuft of cat-taila has been broken. No, no, don't be afraid to took; been broken. No, no, don't be arraid to took;
aee yonder where the bushes are awrept down ; sho see yonder where the bushes are awe she went awwy tomards the shore."

she went awnay towarduc Mellen grouned aloud. This was his most terri-

 be fear. They walked on, taling a path that tavern on the right, went down to the beach. It was now sunget, and a golden glow haynpon the waters till they broke along the beach like great waves of pearla and opals drifting over tho Bound together, and metting as they fill Near the two men wai a winrow of black beasweed, on which great drops- of spray were qnivering. Something in the appearance of this dark mase arrested Toun's attention. Ho went ap to the pile of weeds and liokedt them apart with his foot something compact and heary lay underneath Ho took it in his hand, gave the weeds that olung He took it in his hand, gave the weds hatolung to it a shake, and held it no. Mellen came forWard, his white hps parted, his breath came with pain He reached torth his hand, bnt uttered no pard.
It was the woollen shawl that Elizabeth had marn tbat night.
Sbe was deadt That Hiendigh man had spoken the truth Mellon leBeieved it now Elizabeth waa the truth-melon beeieved it now, Elizsbeth was dead, and ho had killed her-that noble, grand woman, so reealute in her accrifice, so determined to save that girl, to praserve him from the hardest elf np to death, body and soul.
Those few momente of eonviction ehanged him more than many years would have done. The more than many yeans would have dond and and which had hel to aid him that first grief weregone now - he wasthe wronger -searching for the wife he had driven perimh. And she was dead.
No clne-no hopel
He did not tonch
Fullor, went back and sat down in Eleieces room, with the sick girl's delirious cries smiting his ear, and terrible images rising before his oyes of Eliza-beth-dying, doad-drowned snd dashed upon some lonely heach, with her cold, deadeyes staring Hankly in his fhe0.
tom dropped the shawl in a wet mases at hat and walkod away without attempting to detain or comfort the stricken hashand. He too believod Elizabeth deai, and had not heart to offer cousolation. Indeed, the peng of borrow that this conviction brought took sway his strength. He walked on, over the wet sonds of the sudden ready to cry ont with the anguish of ready to cry ont with the figure of old Caleh Beuson cost ite long shadow on the sand.
"Is that you, Mr. Fuller, snd alono? I'm mighty pleased to find any one from the Covemost of all you."
"Do yon want me for anything particular ?
aked Tom in a hnsky voice; "if not I-Im ensaked just now," gaged just tell yon," said the old man. "Well, yee; $I$ must tell yon," sain to your house twice-onee in the nightIthonght mebby rd see the young gal."
"What is it ?" asked Tom, in the impotence of his grisf.
"She made me promise not to toll-but what over's wrong', you're her coun
Tom caught his arm:
"My cousin-are you tallding of my cousin, Mrs. Mellen ?"
"Why yes, sure enongh, thongh she never wil "Brgive me for telling you."
"Bnt where is she? Where is she ?" shouted Tom. "How did you find her? Who got her ont of the water? Grent houvens, old man, ean't yon speak ₹",
" Well,
ell, this is the way it was," answered the old man. "T"other night, or morning, for it was nigh on to daylight, I was easting lureakfast with the oung uns, when one on 'em got ecared by a face et the windor looling in on us as we eat, I jist got it. So np I jumps, and on with my great coast, and out into the fog. Something gray went on sfore me, and I follered, for sometimes it looked like a woman, and sometimes not. Down it went, making a beeline for the beach, and I arter it full split, for it traveled fest, I cen tell you. The night had heen linder rough, and the waves doehed up much to eppeek on. But the woman, for I could ee that it wae a women now, went right straigh on,
on as if ehe'd made np hor mind to pitch head forred into the sea and drown herself tho finst thing: "This riled me np, and I went on arter her like a tornado, now I tell you. But jist es I was reaching out both hands to drag her hack from a wave thet eame roaring along it broke, and the undertow sucked her in right afore my face, Now some folks might a pitched in arter her, bni I knew hetter'n that. We ahould hoth on as have gone to lingdom come and no mistake if I had. Not a bit of it ; I planted myself firm and waited. Sure nough the second wave arter that came tesring wisp of seaweed, and pitched her ashore right in my tracks. In course the next wave would have dragged her out to eeca agin, but I got hold of her shawl ond tried to hanl ber hock, hut the tarnal thing gave way, and I hed just time to drop it and ing over us agin, But I held on, and planted myeelf firm, so it only dragged us both a foot or two and went roaring off. Then I got a fair hold of the lsdy and dregged her up the bench out of harm's way. But I reaily thonght that she was desd, che daylight lroke while she lay on the sand, and face drove mewild. I took her up in my arma and carried her home. Thete was a good fire hurning, and my darter is used to taking oare of sieh esses. So she wrapped her in hot blankete, and worked over her till the life oame back."
"And she's alive-doing well," oried Tom, "at your honse; old Benson, you're-a-a-trump. If I hadn't given away every gold piece I had in my pocket, yon should heve a double handful-hy pocket, yon shoul heve a double handful-hy Jove, yon ahould But never mind, just come along, I mast have one pplendid hug, and then for the Cove. No, no, that won't be feir after all," thought the generous fellow, "Grant mnst have the first kiss, he mast tell her-
The thought of what must be
The thought of what must be told her went through the poor follow's brain like a arrow of fire
Bnt he dashed into the path which led to Pines Cove, calling back to BeuBon, "Don't tell her anything $\mathrm{P}^{\prime}$ and strode away.
Breathless, sager, forgetful of his own great sorrow, Tom cloared the distance botween the sorrow, Tom cloared the distance bstween the shore and Piney Cove with enormons stridos He orteps two at a time, and found Mellen lying upon a sofa in the balcony, with his face to the wall. "Get np, old fellow, get up and shake yourself", he eried, seizing npon Mellen and turning him over as if he had been a Nowfoundland dog in the wrong place; "Ive found her-hy Jove, I have ! she's at old Benson's. Isn't he a brick ? She ' well-no, she inn't quite that according to the latoat accounts, but by all that's sacred, your wif Mellen started to his feet, bewildered, wild. "Thomas Fuller, is this true?

"Do I look like a mon who tells liee for fun?" said Tom, drawing himself np.
"Have you seen her-is my w

Havs you ceen her-is my wife truly alive ?" great a hurry for that. But she's there at Bonson's tavsin, just as sure-as sure-as a gun."

Mellen brushed past the kind fellow while he was heeitating for a comporison. His sedde horse stood at the door-for he had been too exits back and dashed acroea the lawn, throngh the grove and ont of aight, quickly as a fast horso conld clear ths ground. He drew up in front of old Benson's house, lenped off end rubhed in. "Where is she ?" he cried, to the frightened woman who met him. "My wifo-where is she ?" A cry from the upperroom answered his words hs dashed into the apartment. There, on the hamhle hed, lay Elizabeth, pele end chsnged, hut alive-saved1"
She was cowering baek in deally affright-put"T'm her hands in wild eppesi.
"I'm going away," ahe moaned; "don't kill He fell on his knees hy the hed, he w the truth in wild, hroken words,
"Only forgive me, Elizabeth; only forgive me ! She could not oomprehend what he was saying was of thement ; when she -his sieter.

Elsio! Elsie!"
"She is ill-dying perheps. Oh, my wifel She was too greatly say yon forgive me."
ehe put ont her hands with a gesture he understood. He lifted her in his arms and folded her close to his heart. Sine lay in t.
clesp with a long sigh of content.
"lesp with is long sigh or content. Hife has come."
There, in' that lowly room, Grantley Mellenheld
The comer his wife to his heart, and the last fire of his old wrong, impetuons natue thenkfulnees and teare.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT ON THE HUDSON.

The Burning of the Stemmer Borkahire

 As the Berkshire, a new and fine hoat of the Hodson Steambast Company, wat on her way down the river, and near Hydo Park, on the evening of June $g$,abont balf-pust ten, an alhrm of fire was mised. The abont bal-pust hn, an ainmm of aro was risec., The scone that followed deies desciption. The passengers, who hid retired to their cobins, rumhed out in torror, who hud retired to their cobins, ruhhed out in torror, sene lamp had oxplodod and sprcsad ito liquid Are over a bale of bay In a fow momente the maseses of byy which coverod the deck were fin tlamea, aud thongh the

 in thelr panic jumpod into dcep wrtc r and weredrowned,

An unkuown passenger, whose namo did not trangpire thates that he left catolilil in company with ofriend, ond

 to get out of the eabin or be sullocatod, ho made anothor attempt to rench the deck and succeded tuis time in getting one foot tout, when ho observed a buge will of Hatonizn Hzarrs. By the Anthor of "The Lampligiten" Boaton : J, E. Tilton & Co. Mins Cammina won an cavieble repulation by bor pre-- vious works of fiction, and in triss suatuins it.

 appointed who take up "Haunted Hearts," Stumbung Brocgs. By Gaxc Hinmion. Bos-

 Wax Flowerg and How to Mase They. Boston : J. E. Tilton & Co. ton: J. E. T1iton & Co.
 tratod, and its eltar and simple directiona wili eusble peraoos of common ingcnaity to master the precees
without adiditional nid.
Moore's Intsh Melonieg, as arranged by Sir

Photographs. - The photographs of the fa

 prcesnt tho iffiliko lootk wit aimost invariably poseos.

ohoind plan of the samitany farr huilimos, logan squarb, pithanelphita.

FOREICN NEWS.

The Conference now sitting in London to arrunge tha Danish dimenity hase come to tho conclusion

 dom of Hantits bot will much troduco the anclent hing. obserres, all that Enchnd wants in that the entrynce to the Batic shall remann in her hands, Both partica tue Betic shail roman in hor hands. Both parties are dissutifaced with this declivion, but Donmark in too weak to continue the unequal struggio, whilo the Gernaa Powors bave been forcodinto acquicsconco by the threat held out by Palmerston, that if they do not ugree Fang held out by Palmorston, that if they do not ngree Engwe her boundary.
vieft to Enangland was cnt thort by thenen that Garibald!'s land, who having concolvod an orermuatering pasilon
for the heroif widower, wanted to marry him. Tho

 - Wam =ive
 $=2 \mathrm{Zvaz}$ $=2$ Gruece romains in its urual discontented stato. Tho ostanible prierance being that their new king per-

 Thalinst the entobilishicd dynasty The Japanege anthorities have come to an amicahle

SOMETHINC ABOUT BANKNOTES.

In a recent number of art Engligh paper wo and some interesting fuets reepecting the notee of the Bank of Enaland. The papor on which tho notes ure printed is all male from the best rags hy a ainglo tirm. anch of which two notes ere to bo printec. Tho sheeto acesen ent in two, when each noto has thrie rongh algeser has becn found the beat protection quality of the terfelting. The eugraving of the notes Las biven imitate-1, buttho paper never. Evon the paper that was stolen in work was so badly done that the by the thieves, snd tho distinguished from the gunume by this defect solane. A quantity of paper, enough for making 990,000 notes, in forwarled to Loodon once a month: it is delivered to he banknote paper office, where it is counted, and thes it siguatares, it it returned to the paper ofice In thin transition atato itis kept in store. As notea are requireel it is again pased throngan a manchine for completion

 ba presented at the bank corery payment ipsued. Every note ledgern on the day fallowing, the dis marked off theee ledgorn on the day fallowing, the date of payment being stanped on the note and in theledger. stould torged noto ellannee to be pasocd it would be detected the next burat Bankenoters are sabject to many miabapa; thoy are burted. burnee, drowned, watied to piecos and eaten.

 Bas, eto.
Notor
song has it

An Abtificill Tonger.-A French surgeon

 on being ${ }^{\text {Ro }}$ ustural sizo.

THE GUERILLAS ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

The defeat of the ill-advised expedition of Gen Banks up the Bed rivor has dot loone the largo rebeiforce which the dunger hed euobled the Confidergte rebciforce which the dunger had euobled the Conftiderote autioritles to collect, and the predstory movemants of sutiorittes to collect, and the predstory movemants of the Southern Arabs on the fouting caravans of the Wben aiditg as conroge, The Miserourl, though ac

 en on every hand, can etlli be angmentcd by tha horrore of wers.

FUN FOR THE FAMILY. TBE following piece of elegant poetry, written what be thinke of the inatitition:
 And twist the col's tall as ahe jumps on ber hince. Paentrice says there is something inexpres-enbly ymeet about littlo giris, and at growe on thern tioe rubly myet about unger they get Prewrrce says: "Men talt, fluently about reasting fortifications, wbo couldn't scale anything more reallng fortifcattous, who important than a big fikh."
"You alwways lose your temper in my company", maid an findividual of doubtral reputation to a gantoman. gondeman.
"Thicu, sirf and I obould not wonder if I lost every. thing I bave about mo." Some of our friends in the army write us rather tougb storics, For instance, wo are assured that be docolved by the first icading:

I love wild oll my beatt
 Thost bye enurty do uppear Hanoverian part
And for the oettement
MJ consclence givest cons.

attle sono for the "exiesper brionde"
I tunks you, Fathor Abr'am, mutch

 Itiniks moin bior, , eastan mein larant, turna mein "bouest penny."
IHkes a ball at Jones'e Wood,
Mit Liederloranzz und tangen;

For ven dey tallrs of blut, and wounde
My blut turns to zure.
In de "Home-Guard,", "er ish no fichta IIIkes it beet to stay,
ist

Lazneses kills, and drugs seldom ours. Many dio from doing nothing, fow from toking nothing. die from doing nothing, fow from tokiang nothing.
WIINN Sir David Baird was taken prisoner

 Urusss military officers are accomplished, their work will not be. We should not cell a man a liar because he has toid one He, bnt he imat a man of truth. IF we are always looking back, we shail be sure to go as we icok. He who could kill a tiger in combat may be bitton to dasth by flase. A Wrstras paper bayg: "It's only 21 Years ainco the first fog cabin was erected in Burlineton,

The man who was lately "struck with a new tbrugbt," hass recolved to overiook the eset, it being tho inrat inme, and here is little danger of a repetition of the offonca.
A presson fond of the marvellous told an im-probabie etory, and oded, oa was hia wont, "Did you
 "Mama, can a door speal? ${ }^{\text {Co }}$
"Cortaniy not mis love."
"Then why did yout tell Anna to annwer the deor?"
"It ta time for youn to go to achool, dear."
 " "A shailin said the astonished suditor; " $\mathrm{H}_{\mathrm{a}}$ eball?
 There is a gentleman in New York who is unusually acrupulous in regard to having his doorplat

Where a woman," saya Mre. Partington, "has once marriod with a congeniling beart, and ene that tento responding to her omn, bho will never wan to unter tho manifitme tate agin"

EOITTT PRIZE 5 (x) MHDAIS

OVER AKL COMPETITORS.
OHIOTEERING sons, Grand, Square and Upright Pianofortes.

TEAEBHRGS CBRTIFICATE:

 Warerooms, 652 Broadway, N. T., $246 \mathrm{~W} /$ ashington Street, Boston.

Seaside Summer Resort
FATaFieid HoUse, Fatrifield, CONN. Thin

 Parties maskog carly arrangemants for tha beason wil bo taken on fovoruble torma.
( D. D. OARBMQU.

$$ 10$ AGENTS $$ 10$

 And Dealera, Someihing Now, Union Burner for

IMPORTANT TO SOLDIERS

I. W. BENICKIEZ. Photographer No. 2 New Chambers St, N. $\mathbf{X}$, Payd partloular attention to copying amall Mclonotysos or Ambrotpes finto Carde and Largo Pbotographas

The Illustrated Phrenological Journal.

TAKE A CHANCE

 Gold Watches, Diamond Rings, Dlegant Worrth sBOO,OOO:WOOD, HOYT & CO., Jewellers, 195 Broadw OERTHIOATES, naming each article and its velue, on rociptof 20 centa.
We will sand by mail, to any address, the article that
and

NOO PTRAMNESE:
You MAY get a FATOH or DIAMKOND RING,
You MIUST
cet the VALOE of your money.

NOWV स्थाADI.
THE RECORD
PARIS, LONDOIN
NEW YORK FASHIONS.
grring No., 1864.
WITH THE LARGEST COLORED PLATE Ever given in any Pubication. Price 25 Conts.
Tuadtos, Dresmateres, ke, can obt
R. R.R. R. Ri-Rub Rate end Rev Rawing: Freo
"The Sweetest Music Ever Written."

A Story of the Yazoo Valley.
BARNABY, THE SANDHILLER ;

TEE PLANTYRY RUGD.

BY DR. J. H. ROBINSON. HLUSTRATIONS BY DARLEY, Pracz 25 Czats.

Dr. Briggs's Colden Onguent.

Sportemmen, Mourieste, AND ARMIY AND NAVY OFFICERS,

WESTWARD HO!
a Home and independence REOR ONTLY $$ 50$

EEWANTED:WANTEDEET

Will you have Fiandsome Whiskers or Moustaches?
ARE YOU BALDHEADED?

TNOVV ERTADY.

The now number of the grast Comic and Sutirical Paper

ERANK CESLIEM:

BUDGET OF FUN!
of the Far, being the Southern Creokbeck and his six Of Bichmondu-the Figbt for the Colie-and Unclo Sam and Limperor Max-hesides numerous other satirical and bumorous ancravinge by the moet pepular living
 and original, and by the beat writers of the time. Prico only 10 cents.

S76 A Month I-I want to hire ABetat
in evary county at 75 a month, orpenees pala, to eall
m now
i $39-11$

Now .siano Mrngic,-"Soldiens Happy Re-

 complacti mosicians omnibDS.-A Library of 1,500 pleces of musio for Vioin, Finte, Clarionet or Fifo NEW CONOERTINA BOOK.-Ful instructions and Over 200 piece of momic, 50 cants.

 | Rrice List Bent on rucelpt of stamp, |
| :--- |
| 000 |
| FREDERIOK BLUANE, |

1,000 2Hore Agents Wanted in a Now,
Lght and Gonteel buaniese, paying sio a day, clear, and requiring po capital. For panticulare, a doracesear.
J. W. STEPBENs, Verona, N. J.

"Whe soul"-Is it Immortal?

 Preservee tho Eyen, avotale bending. No benting.

Italian Medicated Soap,

DURYヨA'S MMATKINNA RECEIVED TWO PRIZE MEDALS (From Jurien 3 and 4) at the ITTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, At the Great International Exhibition at Hamburg, Jaly, 1863, Reeeived the Highest Prize Medal for ita Great Highost Prize Medal for it Great Delieacy as an Article or Food.
 WM. DURYEA, Agent, 166 Fulton St., N. Y.

Notice-Those wishing to become rich, tave done so nand now rojoloe. They coit but hitle and do macb pood. For furthor porticulars sand etamp,

Whiskers! Whiskers!
MI ONGUENT will force them to grow on tho
anootheat faoe in 21 daya satiefiction civen or money

FRANK LGSLIEPG

Unrivalled Publications

Trank Ieslio's Sady'e Mragazine and GAZETTE OF FABHON. The pablished. The reading. portion to the crym ingarine tomporary Raplah interature. Tho Illunurations ara In FABHONSA it has no equal or compeltor-no tady

Frank Leslie's Ten Cent Monthly,other Iluatrated matics. $$ 1$ per annum; 10 ctas a No.

Mrank Zeslie's IHustrirte Xoitung, the only German Illuatrated paper in the country, $$ 8850$ por annum.
Mrank Ieelie's Zady's Mlustrated Al25 conts.

J. H. WINSLOW & CO. THE GREATEST OPPORTUNTTY EVER OFFERED PROES. 100,000

VForth $$ 500,000$ : To be rold for ong DoLLAR enct, without regird do goe sead 25 conatar tor Certincolete whicb will inform termat to Agenta, which

The 10th Army Corps Badge,

Great MKen, Iiving and Dead.

Attention, Company!

 P. 0. Drower 118, Albagy, $\mathrm{ik}, \mathrm{y}$

The Confossions and Experience of an Invalid.

II Your wrant to Kinow Altutlo of overything reteting to the humen eystom MEDICAL COMMON SENSE. Among tio many mubjocturn trented in this work are anrd herofub, Rheumstum, Dyyneqeit, Filea, Liser spectaces, ,hay Curlous Marriago oratorus of tho Wornd

[^18][DISTIILED DEW]

Tountain Pen.-No Inkstand Required. One nilleg will mrita 12 hourt. Aliso, all other stylee Goid Peus. Sond tanp for Circelian.

Advantago Cards, $3 a Packe For samplos, with inatructions, nnclose 50 ceats, Address
G. DALEX, Nashville, Tenn.

Do Zou Want Inxuriant Whiskers or MMoustaches?
MY ONGUENT will forco them to grow hearlly in

 WHOLESALE AND RETAIL,
DEGRAAF & TAYLOR, GORNIDRLX F. P. DIGRAAF,
NO. 37 IBOVVPHET, NNVV YOFRE.
This entablimbment is eix storeys in helght, and oxtonda 242 feat hirough to No. 65 Ohrystio Street-making it one of the largest Furniture Houses in the United Ststes, 俍
ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND CHAMBER FURNITURE;

Mahogany and Walnut, Parlor and Chamber Furniture:

Aloo, OANE sEd wood sEAT worl, all qnalitien; HATR, HUSK and SPRRNG MATTRESSES, a large atock; ENAMELLED CHANBER FURNITURE, in Scts, from $$ 22$ to $$ 100$.
Tucker's New Style Patent Spring Bed,

natriage-Woman Culture

 Infuenco Economy Coracto, etce, in July Doublo No PHRENOLOG1OAL JOURNAL. Bent by first pont for

FRANK LESLIE'S
LADY'S MAGAZINE
GAZETTE OF FASHION FOR JUN2, 1864.

NOW TEPADT,

This Arrto of Lady'm Magazines, with muperior atractions,

A Mammoth Colored Fashion-Plate,
Four-Page Cut of Fashions
Now Sammor Mantlef, Angolia Jacket, Hate, Oaps, Walsts, steoves, Charning To
for Childran, eto, oto., eto.
THE DOCTOR'S WIFE, BY miss bradddon,
Is continned in this number, whioh contains meany adter; among the rest, full dececription and muatrations New Thawn Cames of Croquet and Eroco.

PRICE PS CENTIS For sale at all Nowsdealera:

HOSTETTER'S cymbriaytyo
STOMACH BITTERS.
THED COMPLANN2s OF THE SEASON, - " Tato care of tho Pounds and dho Shuiligs will take care of them-

 Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, PREpAnED Ano Sold ar

EMPLOYMENT AT YOUR OWN HOMES.

Iiterary Agoncy, Istablished in 1842 .

Do Yon Want to got Mrarried ?

 0.000 IEX,
Spruco St, N.
N.
"Instinct and Reason,"

 men have It FowLer & WrLLs, 399 Brondway, v. y.
MATRIMONIAL FAVORS

At TTCKIEPRs, 759 Broadway.
5K. WV. Einnviamicy, PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY,

No. 2 New Chamhere Street, Huo now finceased foilitica to tatio Cartes do Visitio, as

All othor Photographas ap to lifo alza collored in oll or water at tho most reasoublo prices.

 Svery attention paid to vieltora withing to examine the

Sutlers, Storekeepers, &c.

How Eie Lived 120 Years

 lual Nate, 30 Broadway, N. Y. enlars fre

75,000 W7atches, Chains, &&c. VOORHIEI $100,000.

 450-2

The Jarly Physical Degeneracy of American People,
And the oarly molancholy declino of Chlihood and Troy Lumi and Hybieaic Intitute, pitotion, Timpired suatition and Digestion otain thit DF. ANDIREW STONE,

TIuman Skulls-.-TEthnology,

[^19]
"Psychomaney,"-How either ex may

Mratrimony.-Why every man ehould marry. Why evory womi khowa marry. su may Qnestions Answered.

madami benadicys

Millinery & Dressmaking Establishment Is now reploto with every mported novelity or the season. 12 Watzurez Plues, Kkw Yons

The Great Mroney-MTalting Article.
 ${ }^{25 \text { centh. Adaroem }}$ e. H. Martins, Hindalale, N. H. stereoscopic Views and Cartos do Visito.

Photograph Cards for Gontlomen--
Samples amicictalogues sent tor 25 centz Fmeluse nn

The Greatest Thing of the Times.
 fowlygry at ower prioces than have ever yot becin eiterad

 ${ }_{230}$ Deaters in fin ficily
American Gold Pen Co.
 sole manuifacturers of tho celebrated Avguiar niibbed A genata wanted throughont the Country. Fixtra in. ducemcante ofrect made to tho Trades AMEBTCAN Gold pen oo.,

GOOD STROREES

Atlaitic Monthy

They aro rappliod by auch writera an Harriot Irescoth, J. T. Trowbridge, Caroline Cheeobro, Bayazd Taylor, Rose Terry, a
Some of tho

THE BEST STORIES

 in the ATLantio MoxtiLy40-Subseriptions may begis wih any number. Tznse: $\frac{83}{}$ a year, 25 cents a namber, postage paidi Claba at a llberal reduction. Addrose the pablibiers,

For Hardening & Invigarating the Gums.

"Mnamelled Snow White", and Einon

BRIDCEWATERPATIT

Ground in oll in six drab ethades for villae, Cottoges - R. ReYNoubs, Agent, 75 Maiden Lonc, N. Y.

Noryons Diseasos and Physical Debility, arining from Specito eauses in both soxen-new and reliabto tratent in Reports of the HOWARB Associatio -sme in ecaled reter envelopes, free
 an,

 on the recelpt of 50 cents sid $$ 1$. Adareess
L. L. STONE, Albany, N. Y.

Uso Grant's Curliqns for Curling #air${ }_{0}$. 1 per botho. Addrcka GRANT, Albany, 3. &.

 Objects, 85 60, hy HENRY CRATG, 160 Centre Streot, N. Y.

GOOT MEMS FOR THE ARMY!
 or friends, fiving an album of the fall value of the monog scnt.
our Alume have the reputation of being ruperior to oll oferz th bavit and furability, and ravgo in price from 50 conte to 850 Our Catalogue of

CARD PHOTOCRAPHS

Stereascopes and Stereascopic Views. Our assortment of these is very extansire, including a grent varlety of viewn of the prescat War. Catalogue ivent on receipt of stamp. $E$. T. ANTBONY & CO., 153.5.70

Agents Wanted to sell the National

 Lave a cepy. Addre $G E 0$. w. CHmDS, Publikhor, 028 Chestnet $8 t$, Phin

[^20]

COLD WATCH FREE,

$$ 15$ PER DAY $$ 15$ GUasantexd 20 all Aonvre who sen our great New and Wonderful Extra Large Site Stationery Prize

 Ray, Jeweliery, &e., &o., niltogethor worth many Dol

 York, Original,
in the World.

BALLOU'S

patented FRENCH YOKE SHCRTS Warranted to FIT, and to be
chyapma for the emo OUAT ITIES and MAKE: than thone of any ofher shirt House
in this clity.
ing drawinga an

Por salo by all the principal da3
pricoo abit free.
BALLot BROTHERS, 408 Broadway, N. Y.
Wheeler & Wilson's Highest Premium

Sevving Machines 456.20 625 BROADWAY, N. X.

TyIn BOWHN MMCROSCOPZ, Magnifying 500 zurss, malled to any addrees for 35 cts
Foun of diivirent powers for $\$ 1$. $\Lambda d$ dress

WHO SHALLIT BE?
gen. grant, mcolellan, baniss, foster, SHERMAN, MEADE, FRRMONT, BURNSDE, OR WHO?
Agents wanted everywbre. Take your choice and ith tho Likeness of elthar Gameral in the army.

 Also, Hesdquarters for Watches, Loekets, Chasins, latrated circular.
S. M. WARD & CO.
maNuFacturng Jewellers,

Books for the Season

beadie's dime gume to swhiming. beadle's dine baseball player for 180 BEADLE'S DIIE BOOK OF CRICEEX

MEAN OF THE TIME No. s. LYVES OF GRANT, HOOKER, de.

Beadle's D patriotio, comic, sentmiental, Contuins a very intorosting and popular liet $\alpha$ song.
An the new and good thinge are in it eopeted fromn tic copyrights on the prindijil monsto pabishers, by exels
ent

All Xail to Tiysses.

 And 40 moro of the moet Do Woplar. Songs of the day. Ton Centa esoh. For atale by all Booknellers and News-dealurnt sant positpaid, on rcecipt of price. Liberal
. deashern. Sont postpaid, on rcecipt of price. Liber
redinetion to Acente. BEADLE \& CO., Pnblishers 118 Winam Street, $\mathrm{N} . \mathrm{Y}$.
Notice to Agsntge Send for our Nsw Prizs Packags Stationsry Circular 0000

CREAT

STEINWAX & SONS,

Nos. 71 and 73 Fourteenth St, $\mathrm{N}, \mathbf{Y}_{1}$, Were awarded a Firat Prize Medal at tho Iate Grest International Exhibition, London. There were two bundred and elxty-nine pianosfrom all parts of the world entered for competition.
The special Correspondent of the N. Y. Times essa:
"Mensra Stoinway's andortement by the Jurors is cmptatic, and stronger and no oro to the point than tha.

 TO MAKE MONEY A eenta can make s10 to $20 a day selliog our cele-brated PRZZE 8 SATIONERX PACKETB. We have

 SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS
yield $$ 60$. Send for Grcuiare. Maited free
G. S. HASKINS

Shults' Onguont--Warranted to pro-
dacen foll pet of whiskers in six Weekn or money ro

Use of Tobacco, in all its forms, Curod
 $2,500 per Kear! We sond Hood'a great BOOK OP SEORERS, or How to Mike 850 alay writout cortal, and a Blamond Point 455-80

$${ }^{\text {AY }} \underset{\text { WRMY }}{\text { WRE. }} $ 7$

$\triangle$ Bentifol Engrived Cold-Plated Wstrhb, Boublo CEAKE, only si $\$ 15$ Eur $\$ 15$
a suprrb "extra bouble gold-plated" ca

 Gulde for the soldicr or Traveller-a perfect Timekcop
-" Warranted ene year," wil etand acha, and ta a $p$ a
A. $$ 100$ Gold Watch used by th British Army Officers Sent free, by man, in Elogant Morocco Case, F
onily $$ 15$. only $$ 15$.
FYank Letti's Iltustrated Newpaper of Feb, 20 nas of the "European Thickeeper"" It is a novelty berc in usc among the Briteoh armay officereger and ls cal culated to meot the wrants of our eopliciera in tho Accld.
 1100 wathes
Aadres

38 and 40 Ann Street. N . $\mathbf{Y}$

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE BYMAIL or EXPRESS

Solf-Mtoasurement for shirtg Printed directions tor self-mensarement Unt of prices, and frawings of diferent etylea of furth and collaris sent free everywher

STHMWCOLCARS

2NAMELDD WHITD

 minnte with a mponge. To Mdilitary Meen and Travellers they aro invaluable, Price 75 conts each; sent by post to any part of the Trion on the recelph tof go conth?

WHOLESALE AND RETAII.

FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS!
Al articlen for Eoldiers at Bantimore, Waohington, Fortrebs Mouroe, Burper's Ferry, Newberne Port Royal, and oll other phaceb, ehould be sent at half rotes y HARNDEN'S EXPRESS, No. 74 Broadway. Sutler charged low rates.

Gray's

Patent
Molded
Collars
Gray's Patont MToldsa Ghated to nt tho only Collarn perfecteurve free from angle a anving the patentod gpaco for moothonnd freo from those PAYENT MOLDED COLARAR," Etamped "GRAY's erg in Men's Furnabing Goods. The trade retail deal. HATCH, JOHNSON & CO, Si Devonslitre Street, Douton. J. S. LOWREY $k$ CO., 37 Warren St, A. Y.
 HODGES, BROS., 23 Hanover St., Baltimore.
WALI, STEPEENS & CO., 322 Pringivania Av, Waehington LEAVITT & BEVIS, cor. Firth and Vine Sla, Cinn. A. FRANKENTHAL de BRO, No. 6 Main St, St. Louls. BRABFOAB, BROS., Milwaultee.
WEEB, WITTERS $\& \mathrm{CO}_{4}, 7$ to 13 Tchoupltonlas St., N. O

GRANT.

 and

Hurra for Gen. Grant.

George B. McClellan  \section*{SWORD AND}

GFINEIEAL FUND. The undersigned has been sollcited by many in tb army and ciltzena of this city to be the rectpiont of

 of GRAITIUDE for the ervioce of that abte Commander.
LOVIS PHIIIP, No. 2 miarray $\mathrm{St}, \mathrm{N} . \mathrm{X}$.

J. W. EVERETT & CO.,

WH formard to any address, on recelpt of order,
PHOTOGRAPHS YROM IIEE of ony of tho preminent
OFFICERS OF THE ARMI AND NAVY
BTATESMEN,
DIVINE
DIVINES,
ACTORS,
FOREIGN CELEBRTIES, etc., etc.,
20 cents ench, 8180 per doz, Frce by mail. Address $J$.
W, RYERETT & COO, Box 161, New York city. Scnad for CIrcular.

FRANK LESLIE'S HTIUSTYAMED

-

No. 457-VoL, XVIII.]
J NEW YORK, JULY 2, 1864.

Gen. Grant on the South

 Side of Richmond. In the transfer of the Army of the Potomac from the pestilential swamps of the Chicahominy on the north to the oouth eide of Richmond, Gen. Grant has execnted another of those masterly flank movements for which he has hecome so pre-eminentlydistinguished, The immense lahors required, the difficulties overcome, andthe dangers avoided in carrying ont this enterprise, may he inferred from Gen. Grant's brief hut comprehensive report of the movement. He saye: "Our forces drew out from within 50 yards of the enemy's entrenchments at Cold Harhor (north side of the Chicahominy), made a flank movement of about 55 miles movement of about 55 miles march (a vast army, with all itsa artillery and trains), crobs ing (by pontoon hridges) the Chicahominy and James river -the latter 2,000 feet wide and 84 feet deep at the point of crossing, and surprised the enemy's rear at Petershurg. This was done without the loee of a wagon or piece of artillery, and only ahout 150 strigglers were picked up hy the enemy.

This is, indeed, a difficult, delicate and hazardous flank movement, most admirahly ac complisked. Had not Gen Lee, from his rongh experience in this campaign from "the Wildernese" to the defences of Richmond, heentooseverely crippled to justify the venture, he would surely have seized the opportunity for harassin at every etep, front, flank and rear, this side movement of his fearlees adversary; for we

'Ont jump the fellows from the rillepite, and putting down their guns atretch their cramped forms upon the grass, Sharpshootera covertly shide domn from thoir percher in the treil snd loll

mow, from the Richmond jonrnals, that attbongh Lee, in the ontset, was completely oatwitted, he yet iocovered from his immediate front in season to march out, intercept thsm, and bring them to a battle, or another series of hattles, had he In fict, as a graphic war correspondent . In anaying our grest Western army in nccompanying our grest Georgia snys of Gén. Sherman, Fe may say of Georgia siys of Gen. Sherman, We may ssy of his adversary to the present dsy "he has played ad still tightening his coils around him with every blow.
But the exacting reader will natarally iuquire what hss Gen. Grant gained by this last brilliant operation? Is he not further from Richmond at Petershurg, on the sonth side of the city and the James river, than he was at Cobe Harhor, on the north side? Is not the rebel capital, with the broad river in front, hetter defonded on the south than on the north side? Is it not possible, too, that, situsted as Gen. Lee now is, between our army and Washington, he may repent his aggressive programme of ure, or absolntely abandoning it to secure the prize of our national capital?
We answer: First, Gen. Grant, in moving his army to the sonth side of Riehmond, has ransferred it from the devdly malaria of the Chicahominy - a great point gained - to a nd navigable Jomes river as his hese of supplies; he has secured the junction of Gen. Meade's grand army with the fine army of Gen. Bnter; he has secured the netive co-operation of Admiral Lee's powerful squadron of ironolads and gunboate; and, above all, he hss oend effectnally cat off the rohel capital from very artery of subsistence through which he city is fed from North Carolina and Georgia. this movomes that splendid dash of last momer down the Mississimpi, and around from the south to the rear of Vicksburg; and it cover the same design and the same certain advantages of cutting off the city from its remsining ources of reinforcements and subsistence. Gen. Grant is now between Lee and Jo. John and Johnston; and now, as then, he has esch oo completely tied up that neither cen attempt to relieve the other witbont hazarding the ruin of both.
Such are the positive advantages gained hy oomprehensive that the defences of Riehmond, on every side, may be omitted from the estimate, innsmnch us those defences will amount to notbing tbe moment the city, with its derensive army, is cut off from its sources of subsistencs. Dependent apon the sesnty stores within the city's encircling earthworks, Richmond, with ite population of say 20,000 souls, Lee's effective army of 75,000 men, and his aicl and wounded solders to the number of perhaps 25,000 more, have to be fed. We think it will soon he made manitest that herein lies the fatal weakness of has rehel capital, and than Gen. Grant has thoroughly comprehended it rom the keginning or this conk apaign As for any apprehensions of another Northern venture hy Gen. Lee, we think they will he dismissed by the intelligent resder upon the simple statement of the fscts, that the rail roads between Richmond and Wasinington have been so thoronghly hroken up that it wiin requirc months of lahor to repair them; that the pletely eaten out by the two grest opposing plies of the Sbengnd Lee, valley, left behind hy plies of tbe Sbensndosh valley, left behind hy Maryland haye been disposed of from Martins hurg to Staunton, 150 miles, by Gep Huntss Furg to Staunton, 10 俍 popo and Sheridan, the remion between Cher lottesville snd Lynchburg hes now little o nothing to spare for the army of Lee.
To sum up the military situntion at Rich mond in the country north and west of the cit of its army sapplies, having cat off its commanications, it only remains for him to cnt off aud occupy the roads which ran sonthward from the city, in order to bring ont Lee into tb open field, in which he will be heaten, or to compel him to abandon the city, snd by stenlth, in order to save his army. Rememberin Vicksburg, we still look towards Richmond fo Fonrth of July

Tre travelling public need ecarcely he reminded of the greet ndvantages of the People's Line or Stemmhoats betweon Neir York and Albany. To those with whom speed, with tes disoomforts, ts not so vitn lly importhant, the sall up or down the Hudson on the St Importune, the sain up or down whe Hudson on the St.
Sohn or Hendrick Hudson has attraetione that outweigh the Eliort additional period of tine required. It itio one

Barnum's American Museum.

Oscanyan's Oriental Abbum, Consisting of 23 Photographic Portraits of Oriental Men and Womun, taken from ilfo in both indooor and outdoor Lectures.
It it ine most popular athum; ahould he seen on
and Second $\Delta$ venue, $2 d$ door from four difforent lenga Greol and Faglikh.

PERRY DAVIS'S
चucmrabm pain kinminl
tor dithanal and extebral coniphatntel
At bis period there are bnt fow of the buman race minogunintod with the merits of the Fain Filler; bnt while others use it internaly with great Euccesa, but are oqually ignorant of ito bealing virtues when applied oz ternally. We thersfore wibh to nay to all that it is equali 5 otands alone, unrivalled by an the great catalogue of Familly Medidinen, snd itssale is noiveral ond immense. Tre demand for it from India end other torelgn courtries fi equal to the demand athome, mad it has become koown in those for-off piacess hy its merita-the proprictors have never advertised it or hees at any expense in its introduetion into forelgn londs. In its introduetion into forelgen lands.

FRANK LRSLIE'S
LLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER, 537 Pearl Street, New York.

NEW TORK, JULF 2 , 1EG4.

TDMEMES:

|  |  |  |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |
|  |  |  |
|  |  |  |
|  |  |  |
|  |  |  |
|  |  |  |

TERMS FOR ADVERTISINC.

One Doltar a line on the outside or laat page.
Bixty Cents a line on the 1tth and 15th pagee,

To Correspondents.

First-class stories will he read promptly, and If found worthy of acocptance, suitahys compensted. The manuacript ehonld he legible, on one eide of the paper only, end he scoompanied with the eddrces of will $m$
By
win By the dectaion of the antharitica a Washington,
By
 ouncee : Whea purtios wigh MSS, returnod by mail, postage tora of macrt articles, poems, ete., will do well to keep s losk of short articloa, pooms, cops, as the cheapeat course

Summary of the Week.

Gen. Orant, after attempting to Yorce the pasase of the Chionbominy on the Sxd, and testing the strength of Lee's works, was not a man to eit down and attempt a siege with the peatilential wamp of the Chicabominy beside him. He at onco moved to compel Lee to come out and fight. On Sunday, the 12th, the 18th army eorps, undor Gen. Smith, marched to White Houso and the Chicahominy at Jones's bridge, and marched the James river by Charles city, Hancook'e marched to Wileox's. The whole ermy was thus with great celerity transferred from the York to tho James, and thrown over at Powhatan point. tho James, and thrown over at Powhatan point.
The onemy bad not anticipated the movemant, and were mifeld by a recomoissanoe ot Malvern hill on the 15ith, and made no effiort to molest. On the 15th Smith pushed on, and Hinks's negro brigade 'carried the first rebcl works, at Peterkhng without witing for Brooks's division. Petorshurg without waiting for Brooks's avision On Thursdsy, the 16th, Barlow's division of Hanoock's 2d corps and pert of Burnside's 9th moved to attonct the rehel lines, hut Burnside was himeell assaultod, and Berlow lost several bundred of hife men, who wore inside the rehel worles, Grifin's brigede of tho 9th corps, however, carGritin's brigade of tho 9th corpos, however, carried the lines before thom, and in the morning
Lealie's inrigade carried otber works. Barlow'd colors wore retaken and Potter's rehel brigad captared, with nine plecess of artillery. and among our serious losses wes Major formerly Brig.-Gen. Morton, Chief Eagineer to Gen. Burn
On the 17 th tho rebels made a farione attack on the works held by the 1st Michigan sharpahooters, in which, though we took 210 prisoners, the enemy finslly got within the works, whioh they held til On the 18th the 5th corps gained the railroad to Norfolk, but Griffin and Crawford failed to carry On the 19th, a
On the 19th, at 4 s.u., Burnside carried the works before him on tbo left, talcing 500 prieoner and six pieces of cannon.

WESTERS MRMONLA.
Gen. Hunter dectroyed over $$ 3,000,000$ morth of Gen. Hunter deetroyed over $$ 3,000,000$ worth rebel property at Staunton, two large cloth tories, a boot snd ehoe fuctory and foundries An expedition to Wayneehoro destroyed several railroed bridges and tore up the track.

hestucky.

On the 13th Newoastls was oconpied at sunsot
by a force of 200 rebels, under George Jessie. they were desperste charicters, hastily colleoted, They were desperate charmcters, hastily colleoted, and began at once to plander. The same band and began at once to plander.
captured Bardstown on the 1sth.
On the 10 th a band of 80 mado a raid into Princeton in Caldwell county, but wers aitacked by 12 voldiers of the 35th Kentuoky, and after losing two killed and several wonnded fled.
The defont of Morgan by Oen. Burbridge st Cynthisna on the 12th was abolute; his force Cynthisns on the 12 th Was absolute; his force was completely broken np. Morgan, with a small party, pusbed with all speed for Pound gap. ozorota.
The rebel Wheeler, with luis cavalry, hss been they eeizod eix cars of grain on ths 10 th, bat fille, conld come up. Trey placed, bowever, torpedo on the track towards Resuca, whioh exploded nuder the trsin, burling the looomotive six feot from tho track, and tearing four cars into six feot from tho track, and tearing four cars into eplintera, At nigbt Wheeler returned and tore eplintera, At nigbt up part of tbe track.
on the 14th Gen. Polk was hillod.
On the 15th Blair's corps atormed tho enemy's Johns, and drove him back, and on tbe 18 t . his works in front of Kenesaw mountsin, boldin that mountain as the apox of his position, with bis flanks behind Noonday and Moses creeks,

The rebel Oen. Samuel Jones, commanding a Charleston, has placed fivo general officors, pr soners of war in Cbarleston, so as to be under ou fire. The War Department has transilired taced. sussubsimpl.
Oen. Sturgis recently set out on an expedition with two brigndes of cavalry under Gen. Orierson, two brigedes of infantry, one company of artillery and two colored regiments, but was attacked s Guntown on the 10th by Kirhy Smitb, Forreet and othere, snd totally dofented, losing 14 pieees of artillery and 100 wagons.

Gen. Steele is at Little Roolk, which $\frac{10}{5}$ fortified
Gen. Steele is at Little Roock, which is fortified
Col. Clayton bolds Pine bluff with 7,000 mon wel entrenched. Thore is also a forco at Duvall's enluif. Tho rehels under Pagan are at Princeton, 45 miles froun Pine bluff; anotber force is at Camden, and 3,000 at Washington. Marmaduke is on tho Mississippi at Colambin, sttacking the steamers. 1Gth army corps, landed near Columbia, and Mermaduloo retired.

CONARESS

In the Sonate, on the 13th Juue, the greate part of the day was taken up in disenusing the new logal Stato Goverament of Arkinanas, Tho Connulnt bill wan greed to. Mr. Wrison proposed certain altorations in the Earollment bill, which were laid ovar.
In the House, Mr. Stevena made a report from the Committee of Conference on the disagreelng amendmeats to the Minitary Appropriation bill ; earried hy 70 to 69 . The Enrollment hill was then taken up, and Nis. Mr. Schenek introduced a hill repealing the s3 clause, and previding thot hereaftor no payment money thall he ucceptod as a rolesse from the per. formance of militory dnty. Mr. Garlild introduced a formance of militory dnty. Ar. Garnela in troduced a joint resolution, that no stote dealared to be in rehellion hy the President is entitled to appoint electors of President and Viee-President, and no electoral voto from say aneh stato ehall ho received or conumaded until hoth Houses of Congress, by concurrent action, alinl hoth Houseen of Congreas, by concurrent action, shall have reoogised a Stato Qovernment in Euch Stote.
Jaid on the toable-yeas, 104; nays, 33. The House

 In the Senate, on the 1 th, Mr. McDougall proposed a resolution denoumcing the ereation of monarchics on this Oontinent, but objection being made to ite present consfideration it wat ilid over. The Tarifi hill was ordered to be printed. consideration it was ordered to be primbed.
 In the Senste, on the 15 th , Mr. Powelre bill to prevent milititry interterence in electiona wre defeated by 26 to . The reat of tae proceedinge were of no public

In the Senate, on the 17 th, the hill for the mpeedy punishment of guerillas was takey up hy Mr. Wileon.

In the House, there was no hasineas of importance

 Westorn cominumincation hetween the Eastorn was talcen up and vigoroukly
and coseed duning the remainder of the session. No conclusion was reached, howevor. In the House, a hill was reportad hy Mr. Ahey eftub.

TOWN COSSIP.

Strawbearies! The glorious, golden, royalpurple fruit is with us. Strawierries, the first field of rom the monotony of winter's food. Struwherrics, the very epitome of pocny, nud yet so scldom tho theme of veiled in its sengreen lcovea, ao quietly awalting to ho piucked and herne, hursting with the very juices of ita jife, to the eager Lipa of a thoussnd lovers? Strawherrieu! but wo will come down from the stats and discase the theme senshly. Thene an something in the advent of the flrawherry to eity people that those of tha conntry can hardly recaiiec. It is the Arat real pedatahale promise they bave of the coming summer. The dweller in the conatry, whote mind is danly pro-pared for this fact hy the epringing of the grasse and soyside Bowers, end the humsiting buds of the trees, is not no martiod into a new Hife hy the ripening of the littlo berry. They hall it only at the firat fruit of pring, and, if tiveir patoh he large, aro more or loss interested in the yield, and the epecalation an to what he coming fruit will folch when mado up into homeo. market. For the hanent of these we offor the opinion, or rather the fect, that thie season the covetod irult is both poor and deaf. The supply teems plenty, hut for thoose wretched littlo haskets, rarels holding over a gill, nine cents if tho common aking, bringing the luxury the modest price of ahout 75 centa a quart. So fir the seacon hass been againat them, the woather lectring the scanon has been tyinat them, the woather Liching beat and hestowiag upon them too mueli wator, A fetw hot, easalhing days will not only doulhte the eupply, but Will wo much improve the lavor thin tho strewberry Iover's mouru antíspotion.
While upou
While upou ecrawberrics we muat toil thant every year, and caitivatore their elecicent variettiea, As the gettert.
up of this dibplay do not toike much trouble to advertien p of chis dibplay to not lise much troable to advertie it, nor do thoy, as ar as our peraonal expericeco gees, invito the cuitorial corpn to cat of the gorgeeas shamdatco end speatit in ito praise, it follows that only kun. dreds know of the onnalal rhow, where thonsand might. It is pastfor this year, and the few who wero famight, It is paitwor suw there strawberrics that wontd have vored sith a viow sum made the falided fest of making two hifos of a eherry hinash for shame. We maw there, not one, two or threc, hat platesfall of the fruit, the emallest of which was harger thah a pigeon's cgga and the largent, harger than a on'c. We are bad at names, but the "Triomphe du Gna" impresese itself as the largeat of the whole, und a plate uppon which restod three of the monsters, each measuring sbout elght inches in oircumterence. Wha.
point out ous heing tho prize trio. With this dechris
tion wo ore done, not expectiog it to he holleved.

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.

 then torn mout
 weri

 phay any time in Sept omber nexit, thata ewillable hall can he providod.

Military-The Army Appropriation bill, which is now a law, equallisee the pay, rittona, etc, of all troopn whethar colord or whit, except in the mattor of or

 - The 10 M

 Porsonal. -The Rev. Sella Mnrtin, a colored per non, and tormorly a salve, zave an interesting secoun

 convurker, and his discourso wsi Hutened to hy a lirgo audience with marked attention.

 fender of Mexican Independones againat Hernand Cortace. Eimond About, the well.known French writor

 Major Wilson Hubbolt, 62 I regimant, N. Y. V of 1812. In 1817 Mir. Ley mensure to tif Muntiring en:

and it wab owing in a great ment

 for the derolopmant of american industry and gexias, Thomme Buthr of the atrong men of Sccoesis is dead.

 between 1830 and 1840.

 csuse. In Pitubury, the other asy, s butle boy, sbout wos dellberately proceeding to put out tha othar eye, when tho littl victin's screang lirought assistance. warrant was hasurd for the arr has paratas pirited him or te omicers had time to teeure him.
 lor three yeara.

Foreigno - The Ind phendence Belge, Bjeculatint on the chancers of Napoticon'e son, now nine years of age,

 Gn Mondny, May 30 , Lonis Philippo Albert
dOrleant, Comate de Party, tho eldesth hope of the Orleane family, was masried to his birst confin, the

 Chartres wuas masried lant yeas:
on tho lat Jan., 1804 , whth very taw oxceptions they rereall of the indigent chaens.
 The voluntecr force of Great Bettain now num-hers 16,3000 offective men. It it tha intention of the Covernment to incraaso it to 250,000 . -The Snoniande nre contemplating the cntising of ## meat dacorurer an tranilition: he New Worlid.

The Masonio boidy of Paria wne informed, at ite
nst meoting, that tbs Emp

 Mas Mr. Bright, in s recant speech, eaid that Ingiand

 The people of Naples have he en suadingaddreseen and gsing

> ch dindiness. therotedy yo therlan.

Art, Science and Litorature.-The expense.

 The additions of books during the pset year nnmbered 30,000 , nud the average namber of rcaders is 372 a day

 wero who bated mo; bat they a.
witha pretty clear conscionec, H
ittle tho worse for thear enmity.
Archbiatop of Dubithn," Mow in the prees, will, it is safial hat atore of ana which ho hud secampinted in a long life dovoted to religion and literature.
 Yolame of poomin sytated. in Hitorary circiee that ncw vis. Tennyson may bo expected
-

- Ar inyentor luas ancceeded in chemically treating into a model of cleanimess, mntend of what it if now

It will aluo enable the pressman to print from a coatina-ued the aleohol was neariy two ave the lime of recovery double.

ditand

 ywis ind

 John Mrilten'e honas, situated near the Barhlesn, London, , tro to demolifhod, to make room for city im-prevamante. previmentes.

The New Yorkers have quith in zoolorioal collec-- tion in the Centrul Park. Among the opecimans are followint quecr paraugruphic; B, Q, Qwo flay 2thth, has th

 - Trdiurnbber collhine, ehirt wriethande and cufl-ate now quite ibo rage in Londen.

Gold hao benn diecovered in New Calecontis, on

 -They aro maling etzaw hate in Paris withont an,orown, ing too hain.

FOREICN NEWS.
The news received from Europe during th: Inot week is both ecanty and unimportant. The armit for quother fortuight, and the probsblitice are thit th quertion may be bo patched up as to avold a generharrassing sE atmost to paralyze her action, and findee:
 loss of the Rbine, and Austria with that of Vonetio. In The health of the Dritish nation is
The health of the Dope remaina in a very critical cos artion, although mach rolianeo cannot be phaced upeltho newepaper accounts, ns all converiant with Vatican politica understand.
The Frcnch papers have on roport that Mr., Scwar end cavored to influenco the Papal Goverumentio chooe Biehop Timon as Archlhishop Hughes'e succeesor, instee: of Bishop McCloskey.
Garibaldi has had a warning from some of his friend:
that Caprora is too exponced a rerideneo for hime, ans: hat the might be carried of by Grcak prates employeci.
by Lonis Napoleon or the Emporor of Austrin. Th.

 kidered rs the foreboding

Mesbra. Hazl, & Rucisa, Wholesale Drug-

shemunés campage ix georain-

CHARCE OF THE CASH BRICADE At the Brooklyn Fair by de romache. Mnise commo re rit Moilire, Toulatant lis sumss faira
'Cnoss the river, 'cross the river, Up into Montague street Marched the eight hundred. "Forward! the Cash Brignde? Go straight ahead!" he said. Into the Academy Marched the eight hundred. In marched the Cash Brigade ; Think you they were afraid That hy Eome artless maid
They would he plunder'd? Theirs, but to go and view, Theirs, not a thing to do, Theirs, not to spend a son, Thue through the Academy Strode the eight handred.

Ladies to right of them, adies to left of them, Ladies in front of them, Looked np and wonder'd ; Seeing they did not huy, None of the chances try; Nothing would take their eye-
For nil admizari or sil admirari Thought the eight hundred Thinles to right of them, Tubles to left of them, Tahles in front of them, Piled up nad lnmber'd; Taking no littlo epruce, Tended with charming grace, By the crime of tho phice;
Of none of which the Of none of which the face Struck the eight hundred.
Peoplo to right of thein,
Peopie to furt ef thictu,
Weary and hunger'd;

Pushing with all their might Seemingly out of spite, As if twere their delight To cause at once the flight he eght hunure
"Anything here to eat?" "Something, 1 entreat " "Anything for a eeat)" "I can"t stand on my feet ${ }^{1}$ " Each of them thunder'd; No reeource hut to pace, This done with charming grace By ev'ry one, until Into a quiet plsce One of them hlunder'd Then sat they down-hut not All the eight hundred.
Seats all could not heget, 'Gainst resting some were eet, Much marching there was yet Othere protended; Thanks to all who then aid, Thanks to all who then made That these fende atill That The good entente render'd

For it was their intent,
The next hours should he spent In peaceful merriment, And thus, in order, went Went the eight hundred
What was there else to see? What should their next move he? Asked, when the gallery Left, tbrongh the dense crowd, they slowly meandered; Hungry as they were all, Passed hy tahle and stall, Passed hy talle and stall"," Through Kitohen, stage and Hall, Each of them wander'd; But nought found they for allAll the eight hundred.
People to right of them, People to left of them, People in front of them,
Serambled and thunder'd Scrambled and thunder'd Hungry ones everywher Pushed the ladiee there, They that had etood eo well,
Back, from this spleniulul Fair, In contentment rare,
Once more in open air,

Dr. Kent's Offer of Marriage.
March'd forth, in grim despair, All the eight hundred.

When can their mem'ry fade? At the wild trip they made, They themselves wonder'd Forget the worde they said, Honor the trip they made Honor the Cash Brigade Happy eight hundred

A Visit to a Fortuneteller

 by lillie devereux omsted.Rosa Templefion bat alone in her room, he ace buried in her hands, ater heart lost in a melancholy revorie. She was a young woman-only twenty-throe-fair to look upon teo, and yet she had alrealy endured such suffering as does no ofton afliet one person in tho course of a whole ife. Thice yeara ago she had been as happy a oreature as ever lived; the idolised darling of a ome whcro her lightest will was law, with two Cond parenis, a stalwart hrotherand a asweet youn dister to meke up the happy family; surrounded hy luxury, knowing that ell hclonging to her were respectod and eateemed, hersolf the reigning belle ond adored by the young men, hor position was indced an envisble one, and sho had enjoyed it to the full; naturally of a hright ind cheerful dis perition, the present had heen sil sunshine, and the futuro had scemed all promise. The first shadow came in the failure of her mother' health, hut just as this trial hegan a new delight arose that made evon this throntened sorrow for the that made evon this seem impossilio-Rosa fell in love. She had had a score of suitora with whom sholuad langhed and perhaps aemetimea flisted, hut not one had touched her heart, until ahe met Robert Marchmont. From the moment when she first saw hi handsome, manly faec, and looked into his earnest eyos, up to the time when he whispered to fol dream, and life was such a golden aspect that sorrow and death seemed the greatest unrealitica But almost immediately after her happy engagement a new trouhle came in the parting with her lover. Rohert was junior partner in a large merdon necessity for one of this firm to go out to wath America, tn sttend to the affairs of a branch ahlisbment, thes involved in nnexpected en gloment owing to the very suaden destho of its ief. Fabert waasclected for thii dnty, and very Inctantly feand hime lf compelled to to tatart on ang and distant roysge, with no certainty of the fiod when he might return.
1 now Roãa's errovow wers fasiny hogan ; her gone, and the shaserbing pleasure ef his com-1,78 of what the had lost, to a roalization of how inul life was aitor the removal of this last exoiteinl lifo war aftor the removal of this last exaite A sperately il her mother wae. It was even bo; . Temple ton, while yet appearing thout her 3 lettor Rosas wept on her mothar') deathhed. After this the olacr troun from the evil to come Tenplitan wae bat Hicr husband, all unausupected hy any one, had han wen for oome time on the eve of ruin, and hefore monthas had paet the crash came. . The weatithy Huse of Adolphus Templeton & Co. Went to irtrievande whew that the ras will nith the proud cona eew that she was well nigh a heggar, eaw that e papera were daily filed with denumciutions one name whispare wis the darkee whor former companious, and knew herseift to he 17 ohjeet of disilike or of pity to those who onee loved and cetcemed der. The Pempletons neir elegant house, and for a while lived in ormp lodgings, where, of courrs, none of their Roasa struggled on, teaching her little sistort, try ing to makke thasir poor apartemente comfortalile, nid doway what sho coula to cheer and encourage Iiv. Templeton foll intos more ond more desponJout state, until his mind at last fairly gerv way unization of a long haunting dread when ho was discovered one morning dead in his hed, and by lisis own hand.
a
Let wa hurry over this darkt period Poor Rosa as indeod strieken on every eide, heroaved of al moest everything that could make life desirnble, and yot her eorrows were not over. Hor hoother und yot her sorrowe who where have oben the Bupporter Adiphne und stay of the fhmily in this proved bimelf whill unequal to tho task, and sank down utterly under his hurdens, For two weary yoars Roos clung to him and tried to reweary yoars Roes clung to him and tried to restrain him, to keep him bsek from the heedlong path of vioe into which she knew he was einking, firl aat up to watch for his return from some dranken orgy, and day aftor day ahe tried to etimnlato him to reformation, It was all of no aval, ho fell deceper and deeper, nutil his death in the ngronies of mania-u-potu was but hise poor desolate sister.
So the three yeara wore on, Rosa and her little eistor Liks were alone in the world, and almoet paunileas.
The remnants of her mother's fortane pounileas. The remanants of her mother, wortane hade duras ined them in this past time of darkmess, had all hoen abeorbod in the laet two dreadful vocra, and when the funeral expenses for poor
A.lolphus were paid Rosa had ouly two handred A.jolphus were paid Rosa had only two handred dollara in the world with which to fece the future. Mad not her borrowe, indeed, been almoot unparalleled? Mother, father aud hrother all dead, two oft them hy auch horrible deaths; wealth, poeiHion, honor, all lost; ;urely she had wivedth, through already trouble enough for a lifetime. Yet ehe kia
till young, and as I have eaid, atill handLome. Her fice, it is trne, had loot the girligh rounduessit otinretained a, and there ware faint lind died ont of her ey ee mouthe the told of sufring; but what her face had lost in eofthese it Ind gained in experionce, there was something of ithe noble look of the faithful martyr now in her lirge esd eyee, and on her hrow was the t'iose who ean "suffre and ho strong."
Roas's first aot after her brother's death was to vmove to other lodginge, where two very emall were retired and out of the way, hut twey were cheap and they were clean, and had a pleosint choap and they were clean, and hadd a plowsant Look-out. Onco settled here, her next atcep wae to look-out. Onco setaled here, her next step was soels employment. She had already earned nome addition to their elender mesns hy turning one of addition to their elender means hy tarning one of photographs, and ele now made this her regular her own and Lily's amall wanta, and leave their ${ }_{t}$ two hundred dollars for the present untonehed. And all this time where was Robert Marchmont? question lay tha last drop of hitterneese in Roes's already ovorflowing cip. She had heard from lim ragulariy during the first year, but atter that etrange silence had coma, and for sighteen him. Sha lmow that he was atill away, , has hed navyr returned to the coity, but gradually, as thst weeks passed awray without sny reppy to her last thatier-that Jettor in which ehs had told him of her tather's death and diahonor, and offered to rolease him from his engagement--the conviotion came nim from his engagement-the conviotion came slowly home to her heart that hs loveg her no nowger, he had forgotton the olovedream that had the irkeome tues that hound him to the hanlirupt' danghter. Here was the gorrow that had tald more than any othar on kose'e hrave heart, for in deprived tho future of all hopar. often and often deprived tho future of all hopa. Often and ofteer when sho lay awalk at night, depressed with earn to dic, hasd not the quiet hrasthing of her siepping sietsr relininded hor of one great duty in life. And some times, despits all her sorrow, faint hopo would spring np, when she would think tbat neme day Robert Marchment mnst retura, ond at last ahe might hope to leok upon his fuce ond at last the might hope to leok upon his face again, that face one sight of which shie ao o onged sgain, that tice one sight of which she so $10 n g e d$ fer, thast fice withent whiob all scenes of gaiety ar, hlank.
But recently a new elemont had appeared in Roan's life ; the physician, Dr. Kont, who had atRoan's ifio ; tho physician, Dr. Kont, who had atended Adolphus in his last illnees, was a middleaged man, reierved and cold in manner, hat whin a good, trae heurt. He had watconed Ross in her untiring attendance on her wretehed hrother, her moternal lindnese to her lithlo sieter. He knew all her past history, and at last there eprang up In his mind a doeire to have her for his wifo. Ho in his mind a doiriro to have her for his wifi. had long looked for such a compunion as might be fit to elhare hís wealth and his high poeition, and here at hast he fancied he had found one, so when Roba and Lily had been a ahort time sectled in their new quartors, be called one avoning, and requesting an interviow with Roas alone, atctand her ly tis formal propoeal. Rose was taken ad her by his formal completoly hy gurprise.
ompletoly hy eurprise
"This is ao unexpee
"This ia вo unoxpeeted," ehe faltered; "I know "Misiss Temple
"Marits empleton," replied Dr. Kent, with some arcrity, for he had suppoeed that of courso she vould eageryy nccopt his proposal, "I am norry if I have startled you. But, remember, this is a very grave enhject. I will take yon and your sister to and Lily shal he my yistor ase exclaimod, touched
"You are very kind," Rose hy his offer to her aistor an well as herrelf. "But indeed you mnat allow me time to consider the matter.'

Tho doctor rose, a good deal offended at this

Want of alacritt.
"Very well",
ays; hnt rem ho acia. "I will give you thro dayy; hat, remomher, if you rashly reject mys nuit "Cartainly not", replied Roas, rather haughtily, "I am no girlish coquette, Dr. Kent, to triflo with proposition so complimentary ; I aseure yon my decision aloo will be final.
So the dootor went awwy, and Roas dropped her head down on her hande and indulged in head down on her hands and indulged in a hoarty hurst of toars. How this wooing, cold as it wae, reealled Robert Marohmont's impetuous court
Hhip; how it hrought hack again that ecene ehe had so often tried to hanish, where, almost without words, tbat firts pareionate lovo was avowed Bnt now, how was eha to answer this queetion What reply ghould she make to the tiorn p physician
This was the question that atill remained unanwered on the eccond morning at the period when my atory opens. She did not love him, nol tha she was sure of, end she dia ove Robert Marcin his neglect, his cruelts, for aught the knew hie in fidelity; her heart atill longed unutterahly for one Kind word from him, and ahe folt that no other image could ever take the place of that one indelihisy impreesed on her memory. Ent, then, Dr. Kent would bevery kind, and h bis righ Co refues? She wee not alone; had the hoen by Shersif ahe would have infinity preferred he present life, hard as it was, to marringe with a man phe did not love, hat for LLilis's sale was not this hor duty? He would he kind to Lily as well as to her, he would give her the advantages she ough to heve on entering life. Was it not manifestly her duty to sacrifioo her own wishee for the salk of that darling child? Theso were the question perpetually presenting themselves. she woul think of Lily and then she would half decide the afifrmative, yet the moment ehe contemplatei the ides of heing that man's wife ehe could no reprees an involuntary ecomed to hadder, whie ase in ain sho seomed to hear, as in a dream, hobert March montes wordi of loye. So Roas eat for neerly an hoor, loat in aud how it eeomed to he as if she oould not do nnything while this question remained undectided, and yet how ihould ahe decide it? How chooese between duty andinclination? This was the dehate ropeating iteelf in her poor heed until it scemed as is sha thoula go mod.
It was still ranning on when eha at last ronsea herself, and dotermining that at least present labors on the photographe. She had hrought e lahors on from the store the morning hefore ; they atill remained wrapped up in a piecs of nowspaper as he had hrought them. She took them up to nutie the string, and in doing so her eye foll on a untie the string, and in doing so her eys, ial on a portion of the paper around them. It was one of those advertibements of astrology which deily prove to the world how much of superstition as lingers in the nineteenth century. It was as Rosa read it as if faselinted, langhod at hor ann folly in tha impreesion it mado upon ber, ana, put on har hat and shawl, and went out with the advertisemont in her hand. It was a damp, disa agreeable March day, the streets were very wot, agreeable March day, the streets were very wet the air heavy, the heavens eomhre, as blee hurricd on, with her veil down, through the long stroets hat led trom her own home to the diotant then st her own folly in what she was alout to do.
Bat it neemed to her as if axything, any advice, Lonaver humble, would be a relief in this orisie of her fate. Shas did not helieve in this dusard hum-hag, of course ; Blan hod no reliance whatever upon hag, of course ; Ban hod no reianco whatever apos Twonty-iva oente was not mueh, end, perclanave some ray of light might coma to her thint would enabla har to eno her way in thie hour of indadieion.
Rofece
Rofecting somowhat in this wiac, Rota roschad at last the common-looking door, which bore upon It the name of "Madsme Besm." Drawing her vel closer, Rosa rang the bell, and stepped ingide ; slatternily servant-girl answered the summons b "Do youn from the top of the stalra
"Do you want Madame Benm heart heating
"Yes," answered Ross, her hear

te of herself.

Reesen walk np here. hack parlor, where eha was told to wait a fem momenta. This was anything hut imposing thore auraly were no myeterions adjnncts to wor upon the feelings, and the wretched room, served certaiuly rather to inapire contempt than awe. On the walls were eundry certificatee in various handwritinge, setting forth that Madame Beam had foretold varions matters of life and death, which had afterwards turned out in exao writing of most of these was decidedly mean, the writing of most of these was decidedly mean, the compoeition vulgar, and Ross turned away with another smile at her own folly.
Jnst at this moment the dirty sorvant-girl again ppeared, and ushered Roan into Madame Beam office. It was a amall dark roorn, containing couch, covered with a dark calico quilt, two chairs and a tahle, on whioh lay a gresey pack of cards, in one of the ohsirs sat the mystarions clairvoyant, dreased in a forlorn cabico drese, an old atraw hat and a green veil the dispenser of life and death, the gifted heing who couid reveal the past and predict the futare. "Sit down," she exclaimed to Roen, pointing to the vacant chair. "Sit right down. Now, I tell fortanes two waya--twenty-five cent way yon can aek ouly two questione ; doller, and you oan ask anything you like, and I'II tell your life, pset and to come; which way
eent way or dollar way hreath nearly taken waway by the woman'e rapidity. "I'm alwaye paid in advance," continued "Therest the
"Now cut these cards, if you please ?"
Now out the cards, langhing the while behind
Rosa her veil, and then Madame Beam hegan as ahe picked up the pastehoards to run of the fortune any adequate iden.
"You've out very good cerds, mum; you've had great deal of troable in your past life, ngreat deal, hut you are going to have a great deal of success; your future life will he full of good luek. There's no sickness nor death threatening any one that's near to you: and thero's a gentleman coming to see you from over the water.
At this Rossa's heart beat, and her ettention to the woman's rapid utterance wes redouhled.
"Cut the cards again, mum," said the clairoyant, "and Ill tell you ahout him.
Roba cut them, ende he went on:
"Hese a fair gentleman, and his hast is very much inclined towarias you, he is ooming e great way from o three days."

"Cut again, mum."

Rosa oheyed, and she hegen again
"There's another gontleman, 4 dark man, of it jealons diaposition, who slso thinks very mueh of your you vill see him to-morrow, but I advise you to beware of him. Now, mum, let me look at your left hand."
Rosa held out her palm as request
this text Madame Beam went on gíhbly
"You've had very much trouhle I see here, succe日日, and prosperity in the future. You'll be married onee, mum, and yon'll have five children you wor for for many years to come. Now, mum, yon may aak me two questions.'
Then as Roas hesitated she wont on "Perheps you'd like to know ahout that feir young man, mum. IH tell you anything about him you wieh to know. Perhaps yon'd like to ann you wieh to know, fernaps know loves you, would you?
"Yes," faltered Roba,
"Well, then, mum, he
"Well, then, mum, he good enough to fix your mind upon him, and cut the cardh, fix your mind mind upon him, and, mum.
Rosa did so, har heart was foll of one thought"Rohert, Rohert, Rohert," in a wild, yoamin ery, as she cnt those absurd pastehourds. The fortaneteller ran them over.
"Yees, mum, he loves you very much, and you will know it in a week and a half from this time Any other queotion, mum ""
"shall made to No or Yes asked Ross, with s amile a her own credulity.
"Say No, mum, or yon'll have a grast deal of tromble," reapponded the oracle, and Roos left the room to make way for Once out in the street Roas foand her hend fairly in a whirl; the woman had epokan so rapidly, eha hud hit so near the truth, that spite of her own good senae tha words had made an impression upon her. She lnew to be sure that the atory of some one coming over the water was stereotyped, and the dark man and tha fair man pretty eure to he right if a lady had any admirere at all, since they would all range themselvee under the denomination of dark that it was all humhug, Roes wes aufficiently impressed to come to one decision -she would not sccept Dr. Kent. Perhaps the walk in the freeh air and the stimolant to her mind of her recent interview had halped her to viotion camo upon her with perfoct clearness that it was not har duty ond many a man so abo all earthly comfort, she felt sure thast the God who made her and that he wonld surcly otill sustain her as He had in the psst.
So Roas had deoided, and she drew a leng rresth of relief as she entored once more her rooms and turned with new energy to her tash. Nor could ehe halp cherishing the hope that the fortuneteller's werds inspired, and while ohe worked away at her monotenous luhers her hoart could not help rejoicing as if it had indeed seme hope.
The
The nest day, when Dr. Kant eame for his answer, Rosa made it a very deeided though courteous refusal. He was astonished, incredulous, and finally vary angry; so that poor Roea, while regretting the mortification he enffored, could not help feeling that she had done well in not trusting herself to this man, who, if he could show so mnch temper to her now, would soarcely have mnch temper to her now, heen a very amiahle husband.
So the two sieters went on together as neasl the days slipped hy, even the third day that the young men, and no erent accmred to prove to Roas that she had done well. She even begani sometimes to fear that she had made a foolish miatake when the realised what she could not hu admit, that she had beon largely infuenced hy what that foolish woman had eaid. Yet, atill firm in that reliance on a higher power that had never deserted her, she tricd to etruggle bravely on.
It wae Sunday, a mild, pleaeant apring dey Madame from the qniet chureh which they were in the habit of attending. Their way lay for a short dis ing slong the Fisth avenue, and they were hurrying along the crowded thoroughfare whieh was now anything hat the favorite promenade it had now anything hat the favorite promenade it ha once heen to Rosi. She had her veil down, the once heen to Rosa. She had hor vell down, the orape veil she still wore for her brother's death, hut it was not so thiok hut that her handsome features could be seen through it clearly enough to elicit some adumiring glances from the gay loungers. But this was a mort of homage no longer pleasing, and Rosa hurried on and had almost resohed the oross sureet leading to her home when the caught an instont held her spellbound where she stood. Yes, there was Rohert Marchmont Shs knew him at once, though ; he looked older, and he was hronzed and hearded-ho was coming directly towards her, and on his arm leaned banutiful and elegantly dressed woman.
Poor Rooa, to eave her life she could not atir for ne wild moment, while all the hlood in her hody ne wild moment, while all the hlood in her hody Whers was her pride and her dignity? Gon hopelesely gone for those fevy seconde. She could not do anything but look at him, her long lost one, with wide staring eyes, and he came on laughing gaily until he was close heside her, then his eyea met hers, and he grem almoat as dead white as she was. Yee, undor the hrown slin the atrong man grew fearfully of uncontrollahle emotion.
"My God! Mise Templeton!" he exclaimed, and with a rapia motion, dropping the arm of "Roese1 Miss Templeton!" he faltered, voice hnsly with agitation, "Whers do you live?
May I come and gee you?" May I come and Bee you'?
Hose answered
Rose answered as well as ahe was ahls, giving the number of her house and an assent she could not help making glad.
not help making glad.
"This evening, then," he murmured, and raising his hat he wns gone, and hosa had walked on again.
Yeel it was indeed no dream, that was Robert Marchmont, true as ever, and Rosa went hack therly baffles deacription. How long the time seemed to evening, and yot how soon evening cams, when once again Rohert and Ross wera alone together.
He sprang up the stairs to her room, and then as the rose to greet him he met her with outtrotched armu. retched arma.
"My love! my darling! my own Roos!" and "You love me still ?" he aaked, after the first rild moment was over.
"Yce, Rohort, alwaya. And you?
"You know I have always becn true?"
"And why have you not written lo me interior end then my long illuess, did yor not? And I never received your dreadful letter offering to rele home."
"And

And the lady who was with you this morning ?"
My new eister-\{n-law, Jolu's wife; only think John should have grown old enongh to get narried vhile I wae away."
"Wher, lid you return ?"
"Werrly a week ago, and I have tried evor oince ofind you in vain." So it was all explained, and they wero wher visit to fully happy, and when Ross told ahont her the Clairvoyant, although Robert laughod at her, how thanifal ha was for her decision.
After this I don't thaink there is muoh more to tsll; Rohert was rich, and Lily would have ae hsppy a homo with him and wart ot least of the forand he were marrica, and part at lesst of the tansteller's predictious were verined, as to the amnot quite cortain if tas etatoment as to no bulletin from the family in the last two years.

PICTURES.

PTwux wirx hies.
Taking a lithle Row on the River. A mazzez ameeps lightly scroas tha Zoe, Houghing the watera beneath the moon, Rloughing the watera beneath the
And rooking my boat, while laxily
I dip ths oare to a whistled tune.
The Town olook in the Ohurch steeple. Yonder gray turret againet the alk Stande lilse a towar of olden time Standa liks a towar of oldon time:
I rost min my oare, and there flocte me by I rest nn my oare, and thare floote me by The mpsion ring of ita sweet ball chima. $\stackrel{\text { III }}{\text { to }}$
I haed the warning, and row for the shadta Of the woody hills, that in beak,
Just as tbey stood in olien daysa And my boat-prow enta in the yialding sand.

Through the Woods in the Dark. I fastion my bost to a moangrown hoam,
To part from the river my spirit grisves; To part from the river my apirit Erisvos;
Bnt a ooft rill, undor the monon' whito gleem, Ligbta me along through a land of leares.

The Gulf Between Them

 by mbs. ANN S. stepiens.ginatten xums.
Euzabeth Mriser was home again-home under ber husbande roof, for over at home in his beart. She sat in her dressing-room. The sutamnal suushine came through its windows, with a rich, goldon warmeb. A hickory wood firo filled tho room with additional cheerfulinoes, which was tho room with additional cheerfuunoes, whitel was searcely needed, for that awful chill had loft her

 ment, all tho gouerous impulees of her character romo and ewellcd in her hosom, tiil ohe longed to sharo her heaven with saything thas was east down or unhapyy. The door between her room down or unhappy. The diens boudoir was open, and through it the could hear $a$ Boft, pleading yoice amida a atruggle of owbeand enara, Prompted by tender sympatby, Elizaboth balf ross from her eesy-chair, hut fell brok again, nurmuring:
"No, no, sho will best find her way to hie heart alone. God help her to bo frauk and truthfulu". Still sho bistened, and her beautiful face grow in answer to thoee feoble plninte, gave little hopes nf foonciliationo. Dircetly Mrellen camo throngh the nf ooncliation. Directiy boudoir and eat down on a conch near hia tife, slasding his face mith ono hand, not wishing her to seo how much he was dieturbed. Elizabeth aroee then, hent over h the band from his eyou,
"For my sake, Grantley," sho said, "for my Generous teare filled har oyee, pleading tenderness apoko in her voice. Her bipe, tremulous with feeling, tenchcd his forenean
"For my eako, Grantley."
Kollen lifted his oyea to hers-a mist, such as aprings from the nughod tears of a strong man, muve reeisted.
Mellon folded her close, and toiched his lips to heer forohend with tonder reverence Ler torohend with toxd
"For your soke, my beloved; what is there that would not do for your ealke p" I would not do tor your eatee tioned.
"Tbe
wife." ${ }^{\text {The }}$ fanlit from this nour ieforgotten, sweet
"It wan terrible-more terrible than yon dream of When I tall you that the had engaged herseif eecretly to Thomase Fuller, even your meroy may bo qualifiod." bo qualifitod."
Elizabeth withdrevs from her husbond'a arms and bowed hor lovely fluco for a moment in sad and bowed hor lovely faco for a moment in sad thoughttfuness. Then she looked np, emoling faintly.
"EKlisio ie eo thoughtles-she doeenot meen the wrong hhe does poor Tom-atill we mnst not be wrong ehe does poor Tom-still we mnst not be unnerciful, eo onco more lot us forgive her wholly -without reeervation."
A knock st the door disturbed them. It was Yictoria, who came mas close hehind her.
"Elizabefth, Tree come bsck. It was no use trying to athy in that confounded eity; to enve my lifo I couldn't do it," ho suid, pusbing by the pretty mulatto and cloeing the door apon her.
"Con I soe her now only for ouce, you linow ?" "Con I see her now-only for Slizabeth hlushed orimson.

"Oh, Tom, you d."
And still wish to soe her ? ${ }^{\text {m }}$
Why not? of course I do ; bocenas one-infernol villain-oxcuse mo, I won't talls. Whera ie ehe?
ehe?
Elizabeth, a little shocked and quito takon hy surpriso, glanced towards the blate hondoir. In him.
Lying upon a couch, over which that pale mar-hle eitant was bending with its coldallics in mookHle etatite was a beocding with wits ocld lilies in mooking purity, lay a pale little creature, oovered with ing parity, lay a pale little creature, oovered with a pink eider-down quilt, which hnt hall covered a morning dress of finit azure; quantitice of delioate Valonciennes lace fluttered, like snowntakes, around her wrints and bosom, and formed the proun her materisal of a daing littlo cappu under prinich her goldep twoesos were gathered. She looked like a girl of twelve protending momanbood. When Tom came in shs uttored a sudden cry snd flung ap her hande and dropped tham in ${ }^{\text {and }}$, tham like a rose.
Tom walksd struight to the coneh, drew one of "Don't-don't-go amay. It's cmel I I shall faint with shmme," ebts cried, trembling all over. faint with shmme," abs cried, trembling all over,"
"Not till yon have answerd me afowquestions," "Not tulyon have snswersd me a Iow questiong, said Tom, firmy. "Qmastions that I have a right or agk and you $m$ "apuwer."
Elicie drew the lititlo hands slowly from her facs from illnesso opened wide, her lipa parted. That wns not the lover ahe bad trifted with ond dominaersd over. She was afroid of him, and ehruuk "Elowe, to the wall
"Eluie, one word", ania Tom, presesing a hand
Armily on each knes and hending towards bor. Armly on each knes and ng towards bor with the glance of a frigbtened hird when a cat looks in at the doar of its cage
You havs come to torment me," she faltured.
Torment you II It ien't in me to do that. Tormont! I do not haow what it is."
"Woll, wbat do yon want of me then ๆ" Nothing but Gode truth, und tbat I will have ?"? Nothing bat Godet truth, und that 1 will have Elsiof e eyes grew larger, and the fush of abamo left her face.
I ean't I can't tell yon the tratb, Tom Fullor, now. Elizabeth, shat can any enough to make youn resdy to kill me, hut I wonld ratber die than tollt resty."
"I know all that Elizaboth can tell ms," saic "What did you
"To ask this one question: Did you love tha
A shiver of dieguat ran through her and broke ont in her voice:
"Love him! No! At first it ecemed sa if I iid; hut after I aaw what he was and how he lived, "Bnt how came you married to
"Int how't lonowe ; I never could toll. It" we went on tbat picnic. He adied me to walk with him. It was good fun to set you all wondering and I went. He took me down the hill and towards ing heach, closo by the tavern. Wo had bcen flirt ing for wseks then in New York and bere, for ho elwaya mot mo when I went out to walk or rido, or anything; hnt I never thought of marrying him in earnect, upon my eacred word. Well, hat day, stop a moment and get married; thers is a clergyman in hore.
"I didn't

I didn't holievs him, and said so. 'Come i and aec for yoursell, laugbing. A gontleman sat in one of ths rooms, Ing nbout the door wben we oame up, followed ne for the minute I wort possessed ze. Perhap I must stand mp whed thim ; it seemed trango man aroes. H only eaid a few words, and boforo I renlly behisve it was a true ceromony the man said I was Mr. ped, thinking that I ahould be reslly married if I ped, thinking that I should be resly married if took it, but whicl Mr. North pieked up, saying did not know its value".
"The scoundrel! Ths conndral!" cried Tom. "But yon didn't lovs him you didn't love him ?"
"No," seid ElsiL, shaling her hesd, "I triec
my best to get away from it all, bnt it wse of no my best to get away from it all, bnt it wse of no ase, Then he petted me so, and beautifully we would live somervere in Europe and I thought him so riob. Bnt it was my money he mernt to use. He thought that haif of uncle' property was mine, and wben I told him how wae, oh, I won't tell you horr rude he hecame Juat after he told me ahont that other porson." Else broke off here, and coverad her face with both hands again. Tom saw the scarlet glow where it ehot np to her temples and bathed her white throat, and gave his hands one hard grip in a wild desire to atrike eomething.
"There comes a qucstion," he said, hoarsely did yon leave him ?"
"Yea, yea ; that very hour."
Yea, yee ; that very hour."
"And never caw him again?"
"Never bnt once; and then I ordered him out the house.
Tom aeized both her hands as he aeked this question, and wrung them till she could ecarcely keep from orying ont with the pain.
"Oh, how I did bete him F . 日he exclaimed, shuddering.
"Elsio," said Tom, "look into my foce, atraigh

nto the eyes." She obeyed

"Did yon ever love nith a look of piteous appeal. Her hands were locked together, ehe lifted thom p with mors of energy than be had ever witnessc "D her before.
"Did you?" repeated Tom, and a glow oame into his face.
"Yea,"
The word had scarcely left her lipe whon Tom fluog the gildod chair back and fell on his knees, gatharing her up in his arms with a wild onthuret of fociing
"Then IIl be d-hung and choked to death it anything on God's heantiful earth leeppa me from marrying yon!? to him, she lifted her quivering lipe to "Sny it again, junt nnce, darrling 1" crimd Tom, thaking baok his tawny looks with energy. "IE this love downright, houed, whole-hearted love?"
"Yes, yes 1"
"God hleas you, darling 1 And when was it? She answered him honestly, hnt with a faltering

Oh, Tom, T'm afraid it wasn't till after yon got thich. Don't think hard of it; I do lors beantifou thinga no mnch-bnt indsed, indeed I love yon more,
"Than I'm glad the old covey left me all hi love me, only I must bs surs that it's, a fixed fact. Now IIl go straight ont and tell Bessie."

Elais turned cold.

"Oh, Tom, ehe'll never cousent to it,"
"Won't mel Trd juat hire to know
"And my brothar, he ieso cold, so unforgiving.
"Is he? then I'Il taks yon awsy to a warmer "mate, Bnt don't bolievo it; he's prond as a race "Don't yon'll find him a trufteid they will"No, thay mont," eried Tom, and sway he went into Rlizaboth'e sitting-room, with teara sparkling "Mollen" a gener
I Mellen," he eaid, wringing Grantloy'e hand,
I want to he married to-morrow, and carry her "Fulle
anded Mollen, pained and angrised, whit manded Mrilen, pained and aurprised, while Elizebeth stood pp aghaet at this sudden out"It me

It means just this, Msllen, I don't eare a tin onough to take care of anything that may come after. Your sister loves me, and I love her, that's enough. I em antisfied, and-there-that'e enongb. The wholo thing is a family seoret, and who is going to be tho wiser. I only hope they bave dug the fellow's grave dssp anougb, that'e

But, Fuller, have yon refleeted?
Renec is just what it hise brought me to. 8o give ua your hand."
Elizabetheame up to Tom, pnt har arms around "Theck, and burst into tears.
"That's the time o day," dhonted Tom. "Silence gives consent; now just give us a good brotherly gr$3 of the hand, Mellen, snd it's all ight," Tom folded one arm around his cousin, and his, wromg it warnly, snd left the room.
"Just go in and comfort her a little, Be poor darling, she'e afraid you wont concont."
"Generous, noble fellow," baid Elizabeth, Liesir ing him with warmth; " bnt where will you go? "Dhat will you do? It is all so very sudden. "Dol what on earth can I do but love her like iistraotion? Gol any place whore she can find nice eort of place for pretty things? I think we'll go to Paris first. But, I forgot, Rhodoa's daughtar, the old maid, is waiting for you downataire. Vietoria wonld have told you if I hadn't hnt her out."
Ehzabcth went down, leaving Tom in the only epot he cared to occupy on earth. She found Jise Jemima in a titate of commotion, with her riding-drees bnttoned awry, and one
"Did you know it had yon any suepicion?" she demanded, confronting Elizabeth like a yon-you-"
"What in

I I know nothing." answered
"Thoy are marricd, abeolutely married; my par and tbst peinted lay figur
"What, your fether marrie lizabeth; "you surpriso mo."
"It's a solsmn truth, though a diagraceful trith, bnt she shall never come into the house that ahelters me. Ill buun it down first. Where's your sister ?"
"She is ill in her room,"
"Yes, I dare asy. But ahe's had a hand in tbia, and $\mathbf{I n}$ pay her for it , or my name inn't Jemima Rhodob. Till With this abrapt adieu tbe spinstor took herself off, tugging away at her gauntel, or what was left of it, and diversifying the movement with a icious crack of her whip now and then. Elizabeth emilsd and went npettirs sgain. Thus the grost events of tho dey onded In lesa than a weol Tom Fuller married, and took hie wife at once on hoard a teamer hound for Furope, sbe had come forth from her eick room greatly subdned and changed in many respecte, hit abla, from her peculiar character, to put a veil between her and the character, to put a veil between her and the past, which would have been imposeible to a past, which would hat woman like Elizabetb.
I ea happy to otate that 'Dolph's treachery in eaving her moncy, and ehe married the parson, leaving 'Dolph to his shame and remorse. Victoria gave bim the cold ehoulder, and made herself so intimate with's new male Adonis, whr onme to tho house se domestic, that 'Dolpb'e day were full of misury and his nights made restlese with legiout of nightmares.
The house hy the aen shore atande np in its old pietureaque atatolineas, snd within the eunshine disturhed; through dark wateri and terriblo tempecte they have the promised dand.

TEE END.

THE SHARPSHOOTERS BEFORE RICHMOND.
Tare lines of Grant's advanca on Richmond and been pnesued so close to those of Lee thant a story and loet six of his zeen, hat hrought in four of the The shy, who kad hlundored into his hands.
pits not heing more than 100 yarda apart, and in zome cases oven loses. Ne part of the hody could he exposed for a moment. Gradnally, however, the fime elophen

 andion hegin to swap.
Richmond pspari and tobseco are exchanged for vorth
 gain their posts, and the Aring he and ovidanty with no intention ex
the atern reailty relgna once moro.

RINGCOLD, GEORCIA.
There is no mors atriking proof of tha powce of the Government utimately to nuppross the re-hellion thas to vew the preseat field of operation. Wa Five a akiteh in thls poper of Ringigad, o pont vilango in Walker counts, Georyta and station on the $7 \bar{y}$. Walkentre Railmoad Yet

LEE'S NICHT ATTACK ON SMITH'S

 BRICADE, JUNE 3AFTEn ths fesrful battla of Friday, whan Grant EO gainandy otlempled to force the psnesge of the a tell ensued, and night was fast coming on in a unl versalstilneses, Buteaddenly, whennenrly eighto'olock, and ae twillght waa juat vanishing, Hancock's corpa heerd in the rebel worksinst by thim the words of command. At once all was in mootion, every men at hid poot, the artillery ready to opan on the pasalling col. crest, cloasly definct in the pathering derlenves, eam poured in o voliey which pierced the darkmese Hive

 with terrilize loas, but mo depporataly dia the rehel chargo that some were killed to our cutrechmenla an

HE LAST OF THE REVOLU

 TIONARY SOLDIERS.Axrone ths acts of the present Congress was a rosolation tendering to the sarviving soldiers of the Rovo. Intion the thanks of the country for their serveces in this war hy which our Indepondence was echieved and our War hy which our indepandence was ochieved aid our Hheoty obtained, as null an Eincerrely refolcteg that their Ivea have hoen protracted heyond the period uranly ivee have hoen protracted heyond the period uranally allotied to man. A minall oddtional penslon was also jiven

 Eo far as wre can learn ell aro dend except theno seven,
end of those ome may yave oloeed their pllirimagi

RATED NEWSPAPER.

促

to the swallow.

y joha
SwaLlow, cruel swallow 1 wberofors doet tbon come Glancing in tbe gunlight, by the gleaming river,
Year after year, nnto tby noribera home Year after year, nnto tby noribern home, While yontb and love are lcaving ns for

Cruel arallow, calling ap tbe memories
Of happy yoara, of wist cun never be,
of friends departed, gons beyond the eeae
Of fribnds departed, gons beyond the eeae,
And facery
seol
And bogheod's happy houre, all hright and golden, And love's young droam in halcyon days of yore, Becide a gleaming river, in oummer dayo of olden,
Like a hand of oarly bloseems, gone for evermore 1

Glancing in tho eunlight, every apringtimz coming, Thoon mnst ho
aome apirit tet for ever free Thon mnet ho some apirit set for ever free,
When the yellow hee are in the meadows humWhen the yollow heee are in the meadows humming
And the goiden sunlight foods the carth snd sea. Oh, Joyone emallow 1 gliding on careless wing, Happy ne the eummer hours gone for sver hy, Happy ne the eummer hours gone for sver hy,
Come not, come not back again with tbe gentlo Spring;
within thy Stay within thy sonthefrn home, benenth thy sonthern llyy. For yonth and friends can never come again; And love, if gone, 'tis gone, nlae! for ever! to esleep, Gliding in the sunlight by the gleaming river.

The Serpent-Woman.

By z. w.

ตнигтед xㅍ.

These mothere are too atrenfilu,

Manaxs wandered ahout Brittany tike one flecin rom the ever haunt ting preaence of a epectro. Hor mother'a cruelty drove her to despair, and while at the height of her wild and reckleas mood, Jac${ }^{\text {at }}$ ques Renvi croesed her path and employcd evory ques Renio crossed her path and employcd ovory her constant reply was,
"No your wickedpeess onee seemed to posaese novelty stale to me now and pallis upon my appotite." "You look as meloncholy as a eick brigand, and Twould fain do something to ronse you, for yon lnow I lose you hetter than suy other heing in the world"
"You have a very Aattoring and terrihle regard for me, Jacquee, eomothing like that entertaincd hy $n$ hion or tiger for the bespangled girl that enters his cage and dieplaye his points to the epectatora his cage and diaplaye his points to the eppectators, zn
offection wihich,generally ends in devouring its ohject. Even nowt yon are mueh concerned lest I should becomo the prey of en Jacques layshed and suid:
"Your remind mo of the mothers I have hoard in their gushee of fondneseg for their d darlinge declare thet thoy could eat them; $n$ proof of affection your mother nerer ehowed for you."
"And sou are kind te
"And you are kind te taunt mo with hor coldsion. Sbe not only refucce to aclow it is aver.
 "She reffuse to acknowledge you or to let you "She doea, end drives me from her with re prooches so hitter and unmerited as to make lifo "And why do yon put up with suol Why don't you revenge youraelf?"
"Upon my mothcr? If forgot yon were not hncoive me, I eould forgive all and love her more devotedy than ever."
She shall doit. I can do any thing with her, for che's in my porrer. I cen makse her acknowledge What will you do ofr me, if 1 eet you square, bith her? Won't yon marry me for
"Yout rd rather die irst!
"Yon are complinentart
"Yon are complimentary. But 1 ehall find a way to tame your ohstinney yet, if yon love your "I will rivar you a thousand france for your
" "Aasa",
"Aro yon so rich 9 "
"Tiven
apon you If yon succoed." min eheorfuly hestor it The bargain wes strucke between the strange pirr, and Marime recturned to the reeidence of Medam. Nitanche in the company of Jscques Renvi. Marina wao received hy her mother with e look of look of angor.
"Marina ret
 ho glad to see an hith.
Mademe Nitomcho nese, and Mitoncho answered with forced pobitcever, very ill at ease, ond hoth momen were, howharrasament, eeid:
"Madsme, Ihare
"Madsmo, I hare some business with you, and honl/ like e litte tall hy oureelvee."
"Certainly," replied the bootoses, and ehe would hasc enid "witt pleneure," hat the words died on her lipi have enid "with pleazare," hat the her rips, and sbe tumed very pale.
No oooner were Madame Nitone alone than the latter broke out wiche and Jaeqnee "I will not stand your treatment to Yon know that I love the girl, and the Marina. yon abnse hor. Bat that's not my preeent busineses; I havor come for money."
"I have already given yon twice as mach as I everowed you.
"All yon ow
"All yon owe me? All yon poesees wonla not repay me for all have done for yon. Haven't 1 lost my immortal soul in your service? the doeds I havs done at your serviding, of which yon have respe
"No, no!" intorrupted Medame Nitonche. "Wby Why do yon porsont 1 know too well sirendy? Why do yon porseouto your fellow in crime? ing to death a lone and dofoncelless woman like "If I do wrong you set the example. See how yon per childa"
"S.

She is no child of mine
"Are you hlind, woman? Why, she io as like Yon ea your own girlhoed; and when a mo re pe culiar woman in appearance thna yourself exhihition I will pay to eee the ehow, whatever th price. Keep this story for simpletona, for you know that $I$ know you hotter. You are jealone of the girr, no doubt, hut do her jnatice, end $\mathbf{F I I}$ "Wheral and talke her off your hands."
"What do yon mean ?"

That you shall own
That you shall own her to be your danghter, riage."

"Do you love her?" "Better than  Better than hooty or than life itsale,"

"Does &he love you ?"
"Well - no not to diet
"Not at all, you mean."
Her wonted frint color
Her wonted frint color returmed to the checks of Medeme Nitonche, sarcaetio emile percoptilily curted her lip sad a continued:
I cannot censont to soll my daughtor, for suoh you will have her to he, for nothing, She was educated at great exponso and ought to have edicated at great oxponse, and ought to have a rich hubhand. On other terms than maxriege I conld get e fortmne for her
"I bave nothing now; hut you ehell have haif the plunder of Ubertos care when I sack it" "He plunder of Uberto's cave when
"Have yon visited the epot?"
${ }^{-1}$ I have, and doabt not to find all Marina told You about the old hermit's concenled treasures to roputation of being a holy man, and looked to the oo like the pictures I havy man, and looked to me esinte that $I$ put of the plundering of his hoarc till surer of its worth til surere of its worth. Hit munifcent charitics have eince proved to me its richnees, and I have now no ecruples,
"An arch-herotio fo bel" exclaimed Hadame a hetter deed than a forty days' penance and $p$ pil grimage."
"Enough
Enough; rIU do it. Whet say you to my mar-
"Tilth Marina on these terms?
"TII do my hest to forward it. I pity the girl, bo t er, for the first time, when I think of her with you. Iknow whatit io to he manried hody, deeth in the heart, and hell in the mind. The plain rack is a recreation to it. But thisi is your affair and hers. I will do what I can to ohlige
"Sny yes or no ifi the right place, that is all I Marina found hereelf suddenly established in her mother'e house on a fair footing, wee ealled consideration, if not affection. The grateful girl took the first opportanity to thank Jooquee for his intercesesion and to beg his acceptance of one "I neithance.
"I neither want nor will accopt any money from "un, Marina; I want yourolf","
"You want an tmposeiliity,
"There is no impesilidity, Jacques."
"There is no impossihility to a man ilike me, Marins, who dares overything and hesitates at at my word ehe mother is whouly in my power, and of a criminal. I ean ohtain pardon end rich re ward-both have heen offired-hy hetraying her, and nothing hut my love for yon, for I have not the slighteet regard for her, has prevented me from giving her ap to juatice. Ask your motber, Pierre Massue, or auyhody who knows me right well, if I over hroke an onth tolacen upon this dom over hroke an oath taken upon this dagger. Long ago I evrore upen it to have you for $m y$ ago I twore upen it to have you for my wifo, end 1 mil eacrifice madme's Iife, youra, and perimh myeelf, rather than fail to kcep my word. By marying ma you zave your mother's life; by refusing me, you aign her death-warrant. Agein upon this hilt and this hade, too often crimsoncd with her vietim'e hlood, I swearto beve you for my brit victin' b hlood, I &wear to beve you for my bride or your mother executed for murder It wes with the bittareet murder.
the villinin sathtet his dagger, end repliod:
"I do not halieve one word yon hape
bry ayltwora yon have said."
Whon did $I$ over hie to yon? You donhted $m y$. power over madame, bave I not proved it? Ast her if her life is not in my benden "I will this instant, willnini".
Marina darted ont of the ing through the house, found her mother kearching hefore a orucifix. Her daughter weited till ing heond her mother hael ${ }^{\text {elhe roee. }}$ "That w
"That wrotok, Jacquee Renvi, enys your life is in his hands.

Ho speaks the truth."
"Mol" shrielied Madame Nitoucho, turning deatb's bne, and so nearly falling that abe wase only saved by her dongbter'e support. "Oh, motherl motherl is it true? ahall I do ?"
"Did he eevear nnconditionally that he wonld give me ap q".
give me onp ?"
" No ; bnt

Madame revived a little

"And what did yon repply?"
"I refusad to oredit a word he said, end oame
at once to yon."
Madame Nitonchs looked anxionats at her danghter; her hreathing grww quick, her eager aycs began to glare, and sho demanded in tremh ling accento:
ing aecento:
And now
atughter ?" yon know all, what do you intend,
"In there no eafety hat in this-this marriage, mother ?"
"None, danghter. I have long heen in fear of this man and hie fatal knowledge. He hes already sitorted much money storted much money from me, and mill now take and making our intereate almoot identical", him
"He, it seoms, io impliented in the
which he accusce yon, and I cannot think be wil endanger himeelf hy hetraying yon."
"I linow him too well to
"I know him too well to doult him. He ig an ohstinate villoin, fearless of desth, ohstinate villnin, fearlees of desth, and the oathe
hs ewears npon his dagger's bilt are the only vowr be never breaks., Boesides, he can hetray me and be never braaks.
egcape himbelf."
"Mother, I love you so much; only love mea
bitle in roturn, and I will sacrifice myelt cme fally for your eake."
MIademe Nitouche
maguanimity, caught her danghter in her girme
nd kiesed her fondly.
"Yon are e nohle girl, Marina; my heart can resiat youno longer, for yon are a far hetter dauishreer than I I deserve, and I mant he a wretch indsed not to love you."
Marins wept for joy and sorrow, end returned her mother's careesees with fervent affection.
"Now mnat I encounter this villhin whiom benc "orth I shall ahhor worse than over."
"Do not eee Renri again torday, daughter; let me meet him. Weit till your preeent horror has passcd him."
Marina retired to her chamber the hitterneas of spirit with which her heary wa to bursting. Her agony mas intense and profourd and mich eggravated by her remorse. It wis a keen retaliation, and she felt it to the heart's core, that she who had played the jilt so often with the he emared like a hird by a common ruoed, should tonch to her eeemed like leprocoo contaminntion, Marriage with him wao too hoorrible to thinte of,
and death itsclf seemed preferahle. hereelf upon the floor, preferahle. She threw to ecald her, beat her wreasi and lomented till morning. The love ehe hore Bertram stinl lownacd in her sonl-a puro and holy paesion-and had promised to redcem her from the evilg of life ehe and contracted, hut now wao she plunged again into the abyee of inf amy and loge toon day hroke, she excloimed
" $\mathrm{Oh}, \mathrm{God}$ of $\mathrm{bight!} \mathrm{Gd}$ of love! souzce of infinite mercy, ease finite mercy, eave mo from the emhrace nf thie murderer, end I will be thine, wbolly, holif murderer, ond I will be thine, wbolly, holily and for ever."
for ever."
The mor
The morrow came, end with it the ruflian, infexible end impatient, and thirsting to enjog the his priest and preparations, and when hery witb how near the hour of self-immolation had ap. proanch, she threw herself et his feet.
"Jacques, hare mercy on met Why force me to marry yon agniinst my will? How can I to marry yon agniost my wills How can I love you if yon forco me? If you persintoI you if yon forco mo? If you persidet, I danall hato your, but if yon allow me to con so gratefal that I may finally love you, and consent freely to our anion. By ell your bopee of

I bave not one."

"By your dread of eternel panisbment-"
"I laugh at the idoa,"
"By your fothor's memory,"
"He was hung for murder."
"By your mother's honor-",
"She was e wanton and troded in love."
"By France, the land wre love-"
"I hate it, for 'tis ite law that will judge a condemn me,"
"By the God
"By the God who made you-
"He made a wretch, why chould $I$ thank him "Still you would rather have lore thana hate You would not wed the woman who must ever "Lhhor yon?": "Love is a stupid fiction, hut hate io livin reality. Give me hut heauty enongh, and I prcfer Murina, morerperigunt, Marina, overpewcred hy the intensity of her last reply, for her oonseas faited heer, and Madame Nitonche, who entered of thlis conjuncture, found
"Jacques Reuri, whet have yon heen doing to your victim ?
in
I have ove
come to better tempeded her a little, hat ehe will performed, I suppered. Thesescones must be performed, 1 suppose, and the soonor we get throagb them tbe better. Attor the coremony io over she will be quict enough.
"What do you know obont woman, Jacqucs? You understand how to torture and dispectob them, end that is alout sll Yon are too violent nd hasty to "in their atfoetion, ond without that you might safer wod a deadly eerpeut tbon Merina.
Besidoe, your harry is unreseonallic. $I$ wonld not bave my daughter wed a heggar, ond yon heve not a son. Where is the mealth yon smoro to heve toin from Uberto's cave and divide with mo, ere "I coco yon inted hand?
"I eece yon intend to halk me."
your promte and yon ahall bave Marina withnuy Inot alwnysa whided by my magroement? Yon bave hardly over kept yours, bnt 1 Ill make you stand by your last at the hazard of my life her mother's restorative treatment, canvivbt unonch of the interrocutorotive meaning to to nanugbt enongh the secret of thertand that Jhe secreet of Uberto"e cave had been betrayed to Jacquaes and that her marriags was delayed till the robhery of her friend was consummated. the rothery of her friend was consummated.
The lmorledge of this treechery renewed Martung sitation, and her mother, fancying that the press sent Jocques away, enjoining him not to moturn Tithont the booty he had promised her.
Ths thonghte of those conspiring against were more raptd sud piercing than theirs. With-an bour after the close of her sxciting intervier with her betrothed, she had recovered oumeiently to procure and dispatch a messenger to her venerahls friend Uberto, in Savoy, with a missive for "D, containing these lines:
"Drak and Venerated Fathea-Yon are he-trayed to a robher who geeke your hermitage to deppoil, and if yon resist, to murrler you. You will know him to Will know him by resist, to murder you. You eunken eyee, the sear of a sabre glare of his deep head and on hie forehead and hia gigantic proportions. If you become his victim, I shall be his uast, for he hae dcetined
to a werse fate than death han death,
Your dev
devoted danghter,
Marina waited the return of her measenger, to with feverigh promised a munificent reward, jonrney with almost unexampled speed, bnt yet to his expectent the few days of his ehasnce appeared as intolerehle as a weary age. At last his return, with on anower from the hormit, relieved her suspense. She tore opon the note with the quieknecs of bght, and read
"Thanks to your warning, daughter. Corne and Marina set out for Savor
he arrived et Therto's at once. In a few daye setting. She entered the rocky babitation in greet anxiety and fear. All was eilent nd void within her. At length sho mustered courage to with the A etrange echo repled like a response from when a door at the extremity of tho for lost, opened, and she beheld the hermit, pale, awful "nd majeentic.
"Father " "ehe oried, rushing towarde him.
"Stop! he shouted, pointing to a narrow ahyss that suddenly opened hetween tbem, sdding in hat suddenly opened hetween tbem, sdding in thriling tones, "Beware of the murderer's fate ?" She gazed down the murmuring chasm, and aaw the light of a torch the hermit held an object She failed to recognise it at first, hut as her sight gretw cloarer it aesumed to bor the eppcarance of e mutilatcd corpse. A scarlet vest and a long red benrd afforded her a che which enabled her to "It is Jneques Ren ied; "Ged hav
"Amen!" responde
anger did not reach ma the hermit. "Your meeter, for this villain risited mo the eame eveniug tbat I received your warning. A etarm was coming on, and he hegged for sheltor and food. I gove him hoth, and be pretended to sleep, hut upon me end threstenad instant death, rulced upon me and threstened instant death, unless gave him the key of this door, whicb he unlocke and opened, haholding an array of riches which Felid havo etartled even an old Buccaneer. He fel. heck a otep, and I sprang thio trap, which fell he clutched at the jagged protrubeath. As he rock, and etruck finalify upon the ahaberances of th whicb be uow hange, and the aharp point frem hie hack. I let down a rope to bim, hut he had neithor the sense or etrength left to grasp at it I tried to lower myeelf to him, hut found thet I was too feeble to offcet my puppose, and in the attempt narrowly escaped aharing his fate. Tn a attempt narrowly escaped sharing his fate. In a few honrs his moans enhsided, soon all was "It was a horrible deathl"
"Why did you not keep my secret, Marine Behold the conseqnences of your hetrayal

CHAPTER ITII.

In the enlence of the night, How we elaiver with affright.-Poe
Pather let mo nee
Death, all, than such s being.
Sardavapution, dus Eirstones heautiful atatne, his "L had, after a long deley, heen bronght from Frence Ellinglord Hall, England, and wae taken to the cnlptor'e etndia, where it was unpucked end fterwards raised hy the artist ond his friends. the latter, espscially St. Croix, feared that his rial wonld, in the frame of mind in which he was at the timen, furtber nnsettle his reason and endanger his banity. These apprebenaione proved to be only too well-founded, for he had gazed long on thoetatue ere his mind hegan to and sentient being "Daughter"" eni sad, like my own. We are hoth deeerted. In stead of the love for which our sonls are thirsting Wo aro compelled to drink the waters of hitternese til our hearls petriy. Where's Bertram, your uncontrollhnle mood, mas erly at a loes what to do. While he was tryis dangemure chaver his friend'e mind from dangerous chananel into which it was thrown, ${ }^{\text {and }}$ hunding his hesd he heheld Bertram Hapewell, turring smiling and happy.
und
smiling and happy.
"He if going to destroy the statae," said $s$ Croix. "I care not ; I have found the original."
"See how hia Eys is lindling with his old madncsal What a fatal fire is heginning to hurn in his sooll Is it not a shame to truction of so notile a work of art ? ${ }^{\text {? }}$
"Nasture excels it; bnt foar nothing."
While EUfatone was looking round the room for some implemente,
the statue, clesping it ahout the waist, and affecting to treat it with tho tenderness of a helo humnn heiog
"Is that Foman alive ?" demanded thickly veiled, etanding neur St. Croix.
He amiled at the simplicity of the question, hut dià not reply, as Eilstone wes at the moment appronching the statue with an ancient partiinan in his hand, and the gazers were held tn trenthlese eneponse., Bertrnm, without apparently heoding the eculptor, asid:

The 'Lost Love' is found, and hor lover will shield hor with his life,
The solemn earnestness of Bertram's tone, credihle us the heatiog of the heart of eincerity, so wronght npon the destrnetive artist, that he ao wronght npon the destruetivetant, and ruehed threw awny his weapon in an inntan into the arme of the spenter.
"I have done yon injustice, forgive me"
"Willingiy, hut never douht me again."
"Never P " " paroxyem, lod him from the apartment, and after of s errant, aecuatomed to tend and control him studio. Ho found Bt. Croir gazing at the veiled lndy, and the lady with her eyes fixod upon the statue.
"Mata," he said, "you need conceal your face no longer. Thia is an old friend of your father's no longer. Thie is an old driegnd of your who will he delighted to recognise you." The young lady sulhmissively lifted her veil, as 8t. Croix wae preaented to her. He was startled at the eight of the lovely countenance it revedled to him.
"What
claimed.
"TI it
clamed. "Is it not perfect? Ah, Julien, I have heard you expatiate eloquently upon the recorded wontranscended in strangeness the story of this little trangcended in trangeness the story of hesene from the frightful ogre who held her in coptivts. Even you at frrat mocked the in.
spiration thet impelled me to undertalke her recovery, hut yet $I$ asoure you $I$ was not an hiour, not t minute, too soonether sure her fom a fate infinitely worse than deanth. Your own eyes afford tinitly worre sufficient evidence to convince you that ahe is Muta Elifatone, our old friend's only dangliter, which can donthlees he legally proved, hat it appears to me that her father hane heen too much exoited to-day to endure with afoty so thrilling revtion so this will prove to him
"You are right, Bertram. Is this young lady's "From what $I$ oen gather $I$ infor that she died "Thay took her away from me when I wze very little," siaid a eveet and almost childlike voice,
"hnt she often comee to me at night, when every. "hnt she often con
The young man smiled upon the innocent, and exchanged gances.
"Let ns ocover np this Lost Love," said Bertram, "and adjounn with the Found one to the draving-room, where you shall hear her story from her ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{mma}$ hipe.
Muta watched Bertram narrowly as he carefully Rhroudd the exquisite statue, end started as she sur him kiss ite heentififl khoulder, bittle weening saw him kiss gte hesntiful shoulder, bittle weening that its resemhlance to hers provozed the sulute. The three young friends spont the evening together, Huta recounting in her simple way the could, the dreary years she had spent in the eodiety of Gregory Grimgrip and Espeth, his deaf nd dumh housekeeper. When her tale was told and sufficiently com-
"How old is this Gregory Grimstrip?"
"There is no telling," maid Bertram; "he is so ugly that his age docs not show:"
"He mast he more than fifty:"
"Or than вiaxty, perlhapa; hut he appenre to ho full of life and energy, and had not the burghars taksn bim hy surprise, he would have rendered al most brought his pistol to bear on me, and proved sould managee The disappenirance of has intended brido must perplox him sady
"It he hacks youth and beanty, he does not
"You might well say bo, if you could conceive What a bideous old cresture it is. In aspiring to the hand of the hoirees of Elingtord, he has evinced an audacity truly Satanic
"Do you think he would have advanced her chaim to the estate ?"
"Douhtleces; after Elistone's desth. He is very rieh himsili, and poseessed of domioniacni cunning sa well as effrontery. He was hovever rening es well as efrrontery. He was, however, recently preporing to makio a veymo to Anstralis or amis other distant lind, where he would probahly have remained in ohsourity till he recoived the newe of Eliatone's decense, when he would haro neve of to England and come holdid forward with ruarnd
Mis his mio and the heirces of Ellingford. Mata as hie wifo and the heiress of Ellingford.
Commend me to Mnster Gregors Grimgrip for is Commend me to Mnster Gregory Grimsxip for deop, dariog and unconscionable ecchemser.

Yoa excite in me a curiosity to behold the mon- ster.

 I wil ehow bim to yon, if you will accompany him to render the Conrt dine explanation relative to tho part I have taken in this husioess,". "He"Don't go neer him!" heoought Muta." "He will pay somehody to kill yon.

正" " "Don't you rememher I told yon that, affer the
"Done hat and young man yon tell me was your hrother saw me on the stairs, I heard Gregory-he always made me call bim so-I heard Gregory promise a thousand dollars to a hig, rongh fellow, if Mr. Kings land happened to die within the next fortnight. could not make ont what he meant ior a long ime, hut since I have learn afraid of bim than ever."
"His experience with Victor is not celculated to wsre a conitry renew snch attempts, even if this were a conntry affording impunity to ansassina and their suhornera. I heve not the slightest apprehension of personal violence from Mr. Grimgrip He will seek revenge of me hy other means, and is, no douht, already concoeting plots ageinet my

Bertra

Bertram was now sent for hy Mordanat Elfotone, ivered three riends separated, Mute heing de who nearly fainted at the Eight of her.

What's the matter, Mrs. Barton?" demanded Bertram.
"Oh,
lady?" Mr. Hapswell! who is this-this young
"W? lady?"
"Who She frightened she is thought first she was my miseia come to life agaio, hut if her danghter he living, this is she.
"You have guessed aright, Mrs. Burton, hut you must keep our secret till yet ripe for disclosure."
The old ledy was now diesolved in tears of joy, and in her transports unahle to restrain her impulse to emhruce snd kiss her young mistress, whom she had nursed when on infant. Muta, whoeo nature seemed full of affection, returned her oaresses with warmth, and wept with her, she knew not whaj.
Bertram left Bertram left them together and sought the presence of his afflicted and venerated friend. H found him comparatively colm and apparently sane in every point seve Bertram's marriage with his daughter, as he now oalled his statue, which would, he said, if it took place on the morrow, would, ae sadi, if it took place on the morrow, his mind. Bertram could not refuse compliance conscquences, and resolved to keep the romantic muminery so close that none of Elistone's vigilsnt relatious should ever hear of it. He left his prospsetivo father-in-law in a state of high contentment, and retired himself to dream of Muta and alive, and at others that both were marhle. At laet he thonght that hoth were threatened wit Astruetion by the demented anthor of their heing long rusty partisan, he felt himself turning into stone and unable to stir to the rescuc. A terrible hlow was descending upon the hrow of Mata when hlow was descending up his agony awoke him.
Ho had not heen awake but a fow seconds ere Elfetone's heary fall and crash oher his head in his bed, thrust himself into his dressing-gowz and slippers, and rus up into the room from which the sounds proceeded. All seemed quiet therein, apd the ghostly light of the moon elcpt tranquilly on the floor. The old sculptor was not in the upart appesred not to have heen diaturhed. Our hero about to descend the stairs when he peused for moment and pondered on the strangeness and đistinctuess of the sounde he had heard, and turned haok to matie assurance douhly sure. Suddenly haok to mate assurance dounly sure. Suadealy and noiseleasly he reentered the stadio, and saw, or thought he esw, hy the light of the moon which fell upon it, the marhle head of the stetue thrin out from hetween the curteins and gazing at bim with a frightened and fascinated lools. There was no mistaking the heauty of that marhle fece, and atreage thoughts ohased one another like Ight. ning through his breia as he stood there spellbound An awful sense of the supernaturai froze his hlood and chilled his heart, and as the apparition gradually withdrew, and the eurtains fell, the floor. When couscionenese came hack to bim he found himaelir lying in his hicd, end after some minutes' wonderment conclnded that he had had a very vivid, strange and painful dream, and lay awalke nearly on hour thinking about it. At last awake nearly on hour thinking about it. At losit he sank again into a sleep, from which he did not awalke till lete the next morning.

POINT BLANK

Yov complain that I am narrow, Going etraightly to my sim:
Will you quarrel with the arrow Wor the same?

Many a hitter word hast thon "Pedant," higot." Keep thy blame While that smons.

I would cleave my world-path cleanly With an are', a razor' oäge; Drive my trath throngh, not moro measly
Than a wedge. Than a wedge
Far is wide, though force is narrow Look siraight to thy sim I Are the eame.

CHIT-CHAT WITH THE LADIES.

When feminine human nature wants to beItw s gift, snd is une retain an to what its nature should hs, it always pitchase upon a pincuabion. When it in alked suddenly what it will contribate to any benevoent object, it at once eays: "A dozen pincualiona" When it hase nothing to do sith its Angers, it makea piocantlon. Mrilions of those cushiona have been young ministers about to to dibpotehed on missones, The cuahions manuffactured for The cuabions manuffectured for their good would, sitched together, make comfortable mattresecs for the hitched together, make comfortable mattreseca for the Persons go to Fsire, gaze aboat then, remmober with a groan the olosete full of plicuilitous at home, and go groan the olosete full of plincuetious at home, and go away withoat investing. Young men are etaffed, so to epeats, with pincurbions-mamas, stiters, matiden noukt and young hady friends bestow them in showors, ond gentleman are in the esme condition-flae haics Ofd gentlemnn are in the esme condition-fue hailes can make them for themeiven-snd we would rcopecttuly suggect to the managers of the noxi fancoy Firi, that with an eye to foir returne they publish this announce ment: "All contributions thanlifully received, except piecaEhiona

Girls' Fxiendship-
It io all vary well, very charning, very touching, very vorything superiativis for a long, long while, pecthupg raminta and Angelina are vary like "twin cherrice." They ait upon one culbhion, and work one flower upon blocks apart, they keep menuengers goiog to snd tro with lithe seonted bilets al day long, oxehonge rings, love until nome day, or evening, they dlsoover a clond upon the horizon in the abspe of an admirer. From that moment rain is threatened-prety soon it storms That young gendeman waltzea with Araminta, and Angelinu pouta. Ho niogs duets with Anglina, and Anaminta wonders at it Next dny Araminta- eands for "the pattern of the petsant's bodice," and Angetina, "with her complimentes, " would hite that hook re wrned." Jealouny bus entered in. Rival aspicre ono rose, ons cuibion, etc. At the end of three montho the once boastod friendupitip is A drumm, and Miks Angeling once boasted friendugip is s drum, and Miss Angelina has only "山 bowing acquaintance with Mis Anuminta." Run-Over.
Pray, can any one tell us what the policemen utand at ho cornete of Broadway for? There ara anough of Sho cornere of Broadway for? Thers ara anough or thim, ono would think, if they are ptreed thens for the purpose of protecting persoous who orone thes otroet ond hoofs, from boing rua ovot, to effect their object. Yet despite their pretence, accid
A few weeks since, the young mother of three emall children was silled almoet under the oyes of one of theee miltary-looicing ientincia, who probubly coasdere masy meet the eame fate any day, for all the care that taken of us, it aete us thinling. If the first policeman who allowed any one run-over on his corner were ennt (well, say to tho sest of wart, in company with thi ariver who wai looking over his slowlder when he arushed his rictim, os arivera generally are, we fancy fewer accidouto would occur; nod meanmbile, give thi piece of advice to ladies, young and old-put no fasth in

The Children in the Country.

Chilarea at least enjog the country thoroughly. Paps may ind it too far from tho grand emporium o

cigari and exhilirsting bevernges-the cinh, th heatre, ke. Mams may miss hor milliner, hor shop excureions down broadway, and har dearcest friend, who knows all the econdal, Mise Roasbela may eigt Who knows all the ecundal, Mios Rosbella may eigh for ceciety, and wonder how any one can like the country. But the chilidren have no each doubte, no country. But the chlldren have no each doubto, n such regrets. They laugh in very glee at evory win Hise;
day."
Out
Out in the moald pioking " suck
dendelione and dataies, probshly
Digring with tor
Digring with toy spaden fittle owwrs, without roote, aro planted, mating rivera ani calule, sailling boats on sminl1 poolh, enthuriasticall ning litile miee," or "darling squirrela," laying plot and plang to entrap an the binds, nnd the the and pinns to entrap all the birds, and talo them in cageo to the ecty; Geting all eorte of berried without beovg poisoned: chewing sour sorrell; losing them selvee, ndd beiog found asteep, and not the lous frightened ; coming in at meal timen to eat ruch pilet of bread of bread and butter and fruit, whitch the good farmer" wife asierts to be "tho way of growing young uns, and you, re memberiag the elckly city appotites of the aursory ot home, qualify with "in the countes," An"
 mams to planning a hou
The country, the real gannine country, in the ptace
for childran ull summer.
Lackadaision!.
Why an odd word that is to look at, and how well it oxprosses ite meaning, queer old-fosinoned thing1

a good alinking by the ahouldera, nothing ellas; she in trequantly get ap in buasiness on very smill stock. some young man, for who whe usrer carcd, havin

BOOK NOTICES

The Phreaological Journal, we perceive, begins

 summary of na ful information as svery one noedo foer referecce. It neems to be prepared with judgmant anit ncounacy

 full and eompleto hiatorical
with the war for the Union.
Nyombor Jackwood. By the Anthor of "CadJo's Care," Beston: TiIten.
Mr. Trowbirdge has won an close

The Pokiratr Monthlis. Vol. II., No. 1. New Yorkt T. B. Leggett tica con to this work and ite
We hnve ou rocontity callod attention to merit that we need not here enlurge. We can ouly ex-

THE VALLEY OF DEATH IN JAVA.

 Tre destructive agency of carbonic acid gas on animal life is wellexeng from the earth The where large quantubed are evolvod inom the earth. The meetotridng instance, howerer, is tho eclebrated valley of Jovis, whlech, if an animal enters ha nover leaven. Jova, which, if, an animal entere ha nover learen,
The following interosting account is given by the cyo

withees: We took

Werimants in this prisoner's hollow. On omantiving to thy cxfoot of the mountain we dismounted and ecraniblod up the side abont a quarter of a mile, holiang on by the branches of the trues. When within a few yards of the valley we sxperienced a strong nausoona, vuffoenting eme#t, tut on ooming close to the edgo thata dungreeaile odor left us, The valley appdired to be abouttheifta milo in circumferenco; the dopth from 20 to 35 foet

Houskerow Kwowtepar. - Windows are kept free from lee by painting the glaes with alcohol with a oruah or spenge.
Odors from hoiling ham, cobbage, ete, are provinted
by throwing red pepper-pode or a feve picece of charcoal A eement, which to s good protection against weother, Fater and tre to a oertion extent, 15 mado by mixivg a COLD HARBOR. $\quad \begin{aligned} & \text { plantation once owned by Caeear Dabnoy, who gave it } \\ & \text { the name. An Englishman, or one of our moxb }\end{aligned}$ Cold Haknor, called in many of our paper Cool Harbor, has come into conelderable prominenoe, and will live hercenfer in Tirginia annals with ite and will live bercafter in Virginia annals with its countless other bathenelds, the name Coam Harbor simply a sad pervereion. Ita real nume is Cold Arbor and the bamlet derivee that nane from a nelghboring $\left\lvert\, \begin{aligned} & \text { our } \\ & \text { fideli }\end{aligned}\right.$

Northera friends, would have called it Cool Arbor, bat hesr the word towd Everything is cald or how. They go to oxtremes, to oxtremes, and do not halt at intorvening etages,
What cold Harbor sctually is the graphic sketcl of oar Artiet at the froat portrays with characteristic delity.

PICNIC AT SCHACH'S PARK,

 BROOKLYN,German Hospital Fund.
Nor content with their contributions to the Nor content with their contributions to the Sanitary Faira and stmilar inetitutions or organizations, came off at Schach'e Park, Eaet Brooldyn, whith muet $\left.\right|_{\text {pienic. }}$ have been highly succeeaful. A proceesion of Turaor and of tive or six miltary companics marched to the apot in tho morning and great numbers of men, women apot in tho morning, and great numbers of men, women and clildren, in nitting garb arrayed, flockod thither and childaren, in litting garb arrayed, flocked thither

during the oany, on charitable qeeds intent, onjoying

 early as poesible, a deanitio etatoment of the amount reasued for the benorolent chject in view by this monster pienic.

 'S3WVR 3H1 JO
HLNOS S3NIT S.LNVAD

FUN FOR THE FAMMLY.

 Ment, however, the princoraleg bid not arrived. losh-colored tight garmont to dumaly woru by pater on

 Act II he saw the tirdy tatior with his black breeches, put them on, nnd appeared-changing to the eye tiko a chariotite, my darlenc.

Charlotte, my darlingl the dinner to waiting,
The vicco of tho wather thatern bo the tivir ; The guente on their boosome thair nappins are pinning-Carilothe, my darling! why linger there? O, hest thou forgootten How early was brealchat?
Or haet thou forgotten bow lato thall be taa?

A critzen of New Hartford tells that the first timo ho atten ded ohurch ho, a little four yoar old, was reated in a pow. Opon hia coming home he was astod Prantrens' Mistares.-During the Mexican ow and 37 of hia men had heen 10et in a hotlle (battle).
Iome other paper informed the patile, not long aga

 gentleman Wis recontly brought up to unswor the charge of having eaten (beateol) A Elago-driver for demanding of having eaten (be more than hise farce.
A posmoal genius was hauled up before one of the pohico magintrates for hieaing a handsome young Eri aud kickitg up a dust, And the following oxamina-tho aliarm ?"

prisoner: "Yes, your honor; bat 1 thought it waeno harmi"
 make raymes,
priconet: "No, yous honor; but it wil happas oome
tinos."

 tho Iiquor to be genuino whickey.
"Thank you , loctor,", sid thio Irinbman; "Hand it The dootor again please," dis he was directed, and aeked wrote domn the questions whioh he would put to them on examintion day. The caly arrivod and eo diac the hopefuli all but one. The papils took their places ue asled :

"In whom do yon belleve?
"In Nspoleon Bonaparto 1 "
the answar quickly araic alie Church, do yo
 THe otber evening a gentleman's button
andit hold of the fringe of a atadys dawl. ing, while he wes indurtriously tho gentleman, Jangh to got looca ing, whilo he mes industriously trying to got 1ooco replye attichment is mataul," was the good humored rem
A Norsy SET,-An old londy reading an ac-

TO PATENTEES.

$$ 100$ por 2honth. Active and reliable

[^21]$t$
FOITMT
PRIZE $\sqrt{3810}$ MIEDATS

OVER ALY COMPETITORS.

 MANUKACTURERS OFGrand, Square and Upright Pianofortes,

THEAKBERGY CERTLETCATE

 Ststos, wand will compure , orahly with any 1 bin Warerooms, 652 Broadway, Tr. Y.,

Seaside SummerResori

 throughout The Brach for Bathing in the in thot of the goind. There io good tishing ana elegant driven Partice mailing early arrangements for the evaoon wil

000
$10 AGENTS $$ 10$

IMPORTANT TO SOLDIERS

I. W. BㅍNICEEY. Fhotographer

Paye partioular attention to copying small Melanotyyes or Ambrotypes into Cardis mad Large Photograplia. Molanotyeocan ho sent by mal.
Ietery inquiring obout prices or other informetion t5t-5

The Illustrated Phrenological Journal.
A new rol-40-begine with tho July Donble No. now ready, containing Fortrite, Clasnctere and Blogranhies

HOSTETTER'S cinebratyd
STOMACH BITTERS,
WHEAT THE HLDSTTRYOUS ABERNETHY SAD.

 Hastetter's Stomach Bitters, mepanzo and gold mix

Whiskers! Whiskers!

 MIT OXavxxT will fore them to Erow on ble

NOW zemady.
The new namber of the great Comic and Satirical Paper f the times, No. 76 of FRANK LESLIEPS BUDGET OF FUN Containing a grand Miiltary and Humorour Carteon of the War, boing the Southern Crooliback and his siliz Richmonds the Fight for the Caze-znd Unole San and Emperor Max-bensaca numerous other satirica and buniorous, epprawiga, by the nost popmas Misk artists-Lceob, Tennich, Mwlens, Nerman, Fisk MoLennm, Rosenberg, do. Tho Literature is also all original, and by only 10 centh.

MANHATTAN Life Insurance Company

No. 31 Nassan Street, New York,
Opposite the Poet Office

Cash Capital and Aceumulation ovex $1, 500,000 .
The triennial dividend of proate of this company ha rosuted in a bonus or odation to a poilo, co por cont, on the whole premfum pala. The dividands nre paid in the life-time or thus alding thera to pay future premiume
POLICIES are made incontestable aftar fivo yeare from date, for or ou account of errore, omistione and mil ANSUTTIES are grainted on favorob ble torme.

ETHNRE sMoKEf, Fresidont.

g. N. STERBINS, autuary.

NOVV ERIATY. THE RECORD

PATEIS, LONDON NEW YORK FASHIONS.

SERING Noug 1864
WITH THE LARGEST COLORED PLATE
Ever given in any Publication. Price 25 Conts.

Yadtes, Droermakare se., can of Fubhion Record of any Nowidealer.

The Goverrment Loan  $$ 200,000,000$.

Whis Loan is anthorized by Act af Congrees HoN in Oirs, which prowis or mor than forty yeary from ite date, at the pleasure of the Governmant.
Until its Redemption, are per cent interesi is to be paid samp-arnually IN coin.
Subseriptions to the Lomn aro rocelved by the Notional Banka in Unitod Statea notes or in such ourrenog or othar fonde as are taken by them on deposit at par,
Its Exemption froma State or Local Trix ation adds from one to three per cent. per annam to its value.
The Finte of Interent an this loan, allhough hut nvo per cent. in coln is as muoh greator in corrroncy a and gold.
As a Rnle, tho Ave por cent apecin securities of all solvent governments are slways par or above, and worth ts facs in gold, besides paying a megler and iberal percentage to the bolder.

Whe authorized Amount of this loan is Two Hundred Million Dollare. The amount of euhscription

$$ 70,000,000$.

Snbscriptions, will be received by tha Marsscuazs of Tine United Srates at Washingtom ad the Ashosians Trenaunens at Mew York, Boaton and Philadolphia, and by the Fixat Netionat Bunk of Now York, No. 4 Wall Streeh. Second National Bank of N. Y., 28d St, and Broadway. Third National Bank of N. Y., 5 Natsau St Fourth National Bank of N. X., 27 and 20 Pine St. IFifth Notional Bank of N. X., 388 Third Ave. Sixih Netional Bank of N. X., 0th Ay, and Broadway. Rinth Notional Bank of N. X., Bes Broddway. Tonth National Bank of N. X., 240 Broadway. Centeal National Bank of N. X., 71 Dumne St. Nattonal Exchange Banls of N. X., 184 Groenwioh St.

AND BY ALL NATIONAL BANKS
hich are depositaries of Publio money, and all EESPRCTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS
througbout tbe eountry (acting as agento of the Notoonal Deparitary Banks), will furniah further informe. tion on application, and AFFORD EVERY FACHITY TO SUBGORIBERS.

\section*{"rye $oul"-Is, it Immortal

  FOWLER & WELLS, No. 380 Rroadway, N. Y.

GOURAUD'S
Italian Medicated Soap,
It it well kmown-courea Tan, Freeldes Pimples.

 Almo of Bates, 129 Weshington gtreet, Boston; UPEA, 6
 antivmber, Philadeiphing and Druggista generaily.

Ventriloquism.

Sit a Gift or an Art? Fortunc-Telling-how it ta dono.

 Beautiful Artificial Mronstaches 50 ctse and $$ 1$ ech; fye for $$ 2$. Whalkers $$ 3$ Send stamp for circulus. Adareen

\section*{CDARNUM'S

CDARNUM'S  SERESEWER  SERESEWER  FORAL SENHO MACHINE  FORAL SENHO MACHINE  Pronerves the Eyer, avoids bending. No bnsting.

c. w. PHILO, Brooldyu, N. X.
J. H. WINSLOW & CO. THE GBEATEGT OPPORTUNTTY ETVR OFFRRED 100,000

Woxth $500,000:

The 10th Army Corps Eadge,

Creat IKen, Iiving and Dead. Haneock, sodgwiak, Wudeworth, Hawthorne, Murillo

Attention, Company!

 The Confessir ns and Experience of an Invalid.
 Silty, Premmt aro Docay, cta, Bupplying at tho aime

Tif Youn want to REnow A Iltho of verysthing relating to the human evitam MEDICAL COMMON SENSE. Amonich emany yubectot troted in thin work are of value to tho merried and eingle nemors unithen be

[DISTILLED DEW]

Tountain Pen- No Inkstand Requirod-Ono filing will writo 12 Lours. Alco, all othcr ktylos of 44-gT G. F. HAWKES, Solo Mimpufacturer,

Do Yon Want Iuxuriant Whiskers or Moustaches?

MY ONOUENT will force them to grow heavity in Rix weeks (upon the smootheot faco) without otain or

[^22]
ETERINIMTIERT, INTERNTMITEXI WHOLESALE AND RETAIL,  DEGRAAF & TAYLOR,

 (FORMISREX F. P. DEGRAAF),NO. 37 IEOWVHET, NMWV TOIRIE. They are propared to one of the largest Farnituro Housen in the Dnited Statee

in part, of

ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND CHAMEER FURNITURE;

 Mahogany and Walnut, Parlor and Chamber Furniture;Lso, OANE and WOOD SEAT WOTk, all qualitiog HALR, HUSK and SPRING MATTRES
ENAMELLED OEAMBBER FORNITURE, in Seta, fomm $$ 22$ to $$ 100$,
Tucker's New Style Patent Spring Bed,

Marriage-Woman Culture.

 (69T to 18e4, Self-Control, Thou Maet Loved MY Mo, HRENOLOGIOAL JOURNAL. &ont by jrat poot for it couls or a year for $$ 2$. AA new vol. Yownmen hive

FRANK L-ESLIE'S

 LADY'S MAGAZINE
GAZETTE OF FASHION

FOR JUND, 1864.
NOVV RTFADY,
This first of Lady's Maguzinee, with superior
A Mammoth Colored Fashion-Plate. Four-Page Cut of Fashions

Wr children, eten etce, ote.

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE,

 BX MISS BRADDON, Ta ecntinued in thie number, which containa mang adkri; among the reet, full description and WuatrationeNew Iawn Games of Croquet and Troco.

PRIOE 25 CIENTS For sala a at all Nevorocelesera

Gray's Patent MLolded

PATENT MIOLDED OOLLRR i" Etamped "GRMYS ers in Ifon't Furnishing Goods The trade ruppdied by HATCH, JOHNSON & CO., S1
Devonshire Streot, Boston. J. S. LOWREY \& CO., 37 Warron St., N. I AN DEUSEN, HOEHMER \& CO., 527 Obcafnut streat, Philidelphis. HODOES, HROS, 23 Hanover St, Beltimors. WATL, STEFHENS \& OO. haped to fo the neck witb a ving the patented space for the cruvat, rondering the sur-fice next the nock- perfectiy enooth and free from thooe puckera whiob in all other tarn EAVITT $\&$ HEVIS, cor. Fifth and Vine Sta, Cinn. J. VON BORRIES \& Co., 434 Madn St, , Ioulsville. A. FRANEENTEAL \& HBO., No. 6 Main St., St. Louis WERD, WICTERS \& $\mathrm{CO} ., 7$ to 13 T

HOWARD'S SWEAT PROOF

Soldiers' Money Belts, Phot WITH COMPARTMENTS FOR Photograpbe, Greenbhoks and Letters, Every soldier can have one cont to him by retarn mail (postage paid), by hall
 Entlors, Agents and Pedlars wantod in Houndith and City,
N. B. The Irade likerally dealt woita.

EMPLOYMENT AT YOUR OWN HORES.

Citerary Agency, Istablished in 1842

Cooley's Cabinet Printing Office

"Instinct and Reason."

 MATRIMONIAL FAVORS
 At TUCKERIB, 759 groadwey.
 PHOTOCRAPH GALLERY, No. 2 Now Chambers Street, danaing the increase in price of dificreat mithrials, tio Carl whother Phetograp be up to life nite

 Evory attention pasd to vialtora wishing to owamino the opecimens.

Hiow 표 Iived 120 Years

Lifo of an old man How ho ato and drank: Sleep, Marriage, Eyes, TEeth; How to Died Aopuese to

 $$ 600^{\text {A MONTH: }}-1$ mant $A$ Agents at scoa monts
 DURYEA'S MLATZENA recerved two prize medals
INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, LONDON, 185\%;
At the Great Internailonax Exhibition Hamburg, July, 1863, Reecived tho Deleacy as an Articlo of Food. Con bo servod up in an linnaite raicte of deliciove furvinibed on appitation by letter or othervise to 75,000 Watches, Chains, &c. VVOEMTII $400,000.

 450-6a R. o. Drawor 118, Albany, N. Y.

The Jarly Physical Degeneracy of American People,
 roy tuang mand Hygienio instritute.

 DR. ANDREW STONE,

Fixman Skulls-..3thnology,

"Peychomancy""- How eithor soz may

Matrimonyo- Why evory man should Qnestions Answored.

madamy benedicta
Millinery & Dressmaking Establishment Is now roplete with zvery mported noveity of the beason. 12 Wanzaury panos, new Yorr.
The Groat Mronoy-Mratring Article-
 000 L. E. MARTIN, Hingalde, X. H.

FRANK LESLIEPS

Univalled Publications

Trante Zoslioo Lady'e Magazino ant
 publiched The reading portion th thix cream of col
Comporary Englith likerture The muatrations arc uneurpased in number and execution.
In FABBHONS it has no oqual or comppetior-no lady can HIpeneo with it Tormu, 8 per annum
Frank Leelio's Ten Cont Mronthy,

Trank Leslioo Illustrirte Zoitung, -the only German Hiluastratcd paper in tho country. $$ 830$ per annum Trank Leslie'e Lady's Ilustrated AlMaNAO, a very valusble ma attrective wori. Prico 25 cente:

GOOD STORIES

Atantic Month]

They are suppilled by mebo watters as Harriet Presooth, J. T. Trowitriago, Carolino Oheselver, Dayard Taylon, Rone Terry, and other contribnters of eninant ability THE BEST STORIES in the languago have been written for and pnblizhed in tho AtLastio Monthis.
ect Subreriptions may begis with any number Trras: $$ 3$ a jear, 25 conte a number, pantago pald TICENOR & FTELDS, Boston.

वनल 50:

For Hardening & Invigorating the Gums,
 vonient, efficactones nad benefiefina asticle for the Teeth the worid hive over meen.
gold by Druglita and Fancy Goode dentern every-where-75 cents pre bottle American Gold Pen Co Mannfacturem of GOLD PENS and PLNCLL CASES of cery deseription.
sele manan the colebeatod ANGULAB NIBEED PEN. NIBBED PEN.
AGENTE WNTED througloat tho Country. Extrc Indacmente offered

ambrican gold pen co., 200 broadway, 3.

BRIDCEWATER RAITI

Nervous Diseases and Physical Debili-

CENTONES ONGUENT 绿

 An Oriental proparation, warrunted to force the bair onthe emooetheet Face or money refunded sent postpald
 The Clebirsted GRAIG MICROSCOPE, combining Inetruction with Amuscment,
 24 objecte, $$ 500, \mathrm{by}$ IENRY CRAIG,
B0 Contre Street, N . $\mathbf{y}$.

Agente Wanted to sell the National ALMANAC AND ANNUAL RECORD for 18MA An indispensable work for every one. 10,000 eold the first veck. Price 81 so. Specimon copiea sent free by mail

The only enamelled "Turn-over" Collar made in and recelve it by retarn mail.

American, Swiss ard Snglish Watchos
 $\begin{array}{ll}\text { and } \\ 0.0 & \text { T. B. BYNNER, } 178 \text { Breadway, N. I }\end{array}$
WM. KNABLE & CO. MANOFACTURERS OF GOLD MEDAL

Certificaten of Excel-
 G. Gatew, ama other leasing atriste Exery
Intrument warranted
Intrum fior Ave yerse
Price Lith WM. ENABE & $& 0$.

nent on application. 457.6.0.0

Metallic Arrificial Legs

Jan 6 , 1813 , TME LIGHTEST, CHEAPEST,

- Oflce end Salesroom, W51 Bro

COLD WATCH FREE,
$15 PER DAY $15

BALLOU'S

patented FRENCH YOKE SHIRTS and to be CH2APER Tor the same ODAT-ITIES and aLAKE Ciroular cointin-ing drawings and pricee tent free. pricee sent free. For ealo by all the prinetpal dealer

> dway, N. Y.

BALLOU BROTHERS, 403 Broadway, N. Y.

Wheeler & Wilson's Highest Premiom

Sowving MLachames $45+90 \quad 625$ BROADWAY, N. Y.

THE Bow Pn surczoscorz,

Sintlors and Agonts can make $$ 5$ per ut Strect, Philadelphis.

Wanted Jverywhere, good reliable
 Catalogue, With full particulari, ent frce on applicotion.
Adares
BENJ. W. HITCHCOCK
1i Chambers St, N, y.

Stammering

Border & Revolutionary Story BEADLE'S DAME TALES, Nos. 1 to 10.
EDWARD S. ELLIE, Editor.
Tho Illustrated orticles thus fer are an follows: No. 1.- Kenton's Torturo-Ride. Mra, Austin and the Bear. Brunt and Young Mr'Eown. Murphy Saring
the Fort. No. 2, Johnson Boys Kiming their Captors. Joc Legton' Fight with an Indian. Gea. Morgan' Prayer
No. No. 2 . - Sweathand's Hunting Adventare. Horry of Marion' Brigale. Elergon'e Twenty-ive Mile Race.
Molle Per tMTommouth. Marion'ब Moil Pitch
No.
 No. S.- Captivity of Jonathan Alaer. Moody the Refugeo. Women Defending the Wagon. Leap for Lhfo No. $5 .-$ The Chieftain'E Appesa. The Impincable
Governor. Mra, Slecumb ot Moore's Creel. Brad's soving the Life of Booac.
 No. 9.- Francisco, tbe Fircinia Simson, Howerd
Saved by the Indian Girl Hughes killizy the 'Iurkey. Saved by the Indian Girl.
Hamitoon Saving liil Cloth.
No. 10.-Mramanimity of Rob-5ca-noese, Woman Capturing the Heetian, Batho of Bloedy Brook. Heroin Deq.
New Ten Cents oach number. For ealo by ry Book
 beadle & CO., Publislexe, 118 Willima Street, N.

CREAT
SLECINWAY & SONS,
Nos. 71 and 73 Fourteenth St., N. Y., Weve awarded a First Frize Medal at tho late Grcat Internntional Erhibition, Londen. There were two hundred and eixty-nine pianor from all purts of the Ther Cort
The Special Corrospondent of the N. X. Times says: "Mesars. Stolinwa's exdorsement by the Jurora emphatic, and stronger and more to the poiat than that of any European nualice." 0000

TO MAKE MONEY!
 and

Shults ${ }^{\text {On }}$ Onguent-Warranted to produce n foll

Uee of Tobacco, in all its forms, Cured
 $1,500 per Year!
We eend Hoode ereat BOOK of SBCRETS, or How to Malke $$ 5$ a day withont capital, and a Dinmond Peint ( $55-80$

$$ 7$ fravict $$ 7$

Beantifol Engraved Gold-Yiated Watch, Yenbte
 CHANY, oniy ${ }^{58}$, siLE $$ 15$ European Timekeeper $15 A SUPERB "EXTRA DOUBLE GOLD.PLATED" en-

A $100 Gold Watch used by the British Army Officers Sent free, by mall, in Megant Morocco Case, for onls si5.
 in me minn or he celceraich himelicequer so mu

WARDS SHIRTS SEVT EVERYWHERE BrMALLor EXPRESS

Self-Mieasurement for shirto

STHFCGOMARS

 Having the appearance and comfort of linen, have been worn in England for the lact two yeara in nefere any other collar, as they aro readily cleaned in ouo minuto with 3 spenge. minuto with s spenge Mravellors theg are invarnati)
To Mritary Mend
Prico 76 cents each; pont by post to ary part of the Prico 7o cents each; pent by post to ally
Onion on tho receipt of 90 cente. WHOLESALE AND RETALI, S. W. HI. WARD,

FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS :

George B. McClellan

 SWITORD AITDGENEREAI, FUND. The undervigued han bcen sollected by many in the army and citzons of tilin city to be the recipent of rumi as above sot forth, Al moncye ecnt te me for mact DE for the service of that able Conmander.
LOUIS PHIT, No. 2 Murnay 8 , N. X.
J. W. EVERETT & CO.,

ACTOASY, CRLEDRITIES, ote., AM

TRIUMPH OF MECHANISM.

72

"इnamelled Snow White" and Iinen Faisice, The utility of theso noveh, , ndispensabl

FRANK LESLIE'S HTIUS TRAMED

NINAPHPBA

No. 458-Vol. XVIII.]
NEW YORK, JULY 9, 1864.

Richmond-What Progress and What is the Prospect.

Snace our hast review of the mintary situation in Virginia, another momorahle and important ehapter of sanguinary hattles, heroic achievements and mastorly strategy has heen added to the glorious history of our veteran Army of the Potemac. The practical questions, howover, which we are required te answer are, what actual progross has hoen made towaras the redrection of the hore ns? Sancuinary hattles involve a great waste of human hife, heroic $\left\lvert\, \begin{aligned} & \text { Weldon, Wilmington and Charleston railroad, } \\ & \text { and }\end{aligned}\right.$ achievcments signify nothing, and mastcrly strategy is foolishness without suhstantial results. What, thcrefore, has Gen. Grant gained from his last acven day what are the advantages conoperations? and what is the prospect from his last hold movement hy the left flank? Let us briefly endeavor to answer
First, towards the reduction of Tichmond First, towards the reduction of Richmond and the rehel army defending it, an important and the rehel army dofending it, an importnut point has geancd hy Gen. Grant in the draws its supplies and Lee his reinforceents. The only romaining lime of communieyond Virginia supporting it is the interior Danville road, which, if not occupied by our forces, soon will ho, and in the meantime has heen seriounly interrupted hy our cavalry cxpeditious in that direction. It must not he orgotten that Gen Grant, from the heginning of this Virginia campaign, has heen, and is now, acting under the conviction that Richmond and the rcbel army defending it may be more readily and cheapily overcome hy outting off their lines of supphes than by storming or laying siege to the city's oxtonsive and formiaable chain of defences, He helieves, as we helievo, that Gen. Lcc, if reduced to the suh sistence stores of Richmond, will soon he conpelled to ahandon the city, or to make a sortio from his entrenchments to reopen his communications, and that, in either cnse, the city army and his cause are lost.
In this view, Gen. Grant's operations in Virginia of the last seven doys, and espectally the extension of his left wing around the sonth side of Petershurg, so as to cover the Weldon railroad, will be properly appreciated. From the road, will be properly appreeiated. From the crossing of the Rapidan on the 4th of May last, to the present time, the grest object and fhe great difficalty of the distinguisbed leadsr of great difficality of the distinguished leadsr of Virginin adversary to the issue of an opsn fisld engagement. Thus far, however, the enemy havo avoided this danger, and from ${ }^{\text {cthe }}$ Rapidan to the Appomaitox have compelled Gen. Grant to accept battle under heavy disadvant ges in every instance, or from point to point to an inferior army onder an ordinary leader, would have beon certain deetruction.

The battlefield of the Wildernces was a snare
our invading forces, as was that gloomy forest defils in which the army of Gen. Braddock was eut to pieces a hundred years ago. The natarally strong and skilfally fortified position next aeenmod by the susmy at Spottsylvania Court House, nud the next hstweou the North and South Anma rivers, were not less formidable ohstructions in tho lino of maxeb chosen by Geu. Grant for Rielhhond. Having suceess fully turned them all, ho reachod the dreadod Chicalominy, only to find that hits eseape from a long eiege, in which his army would probahly bo destroyed by pastilence, muet be by dous flank the Yorls river, or in a moro hazaras was proved by the terrible seven days battles of 1862 from Cold Harbor to Malvara Hill. This perilous movemont, however, was this time aceomplished, without the loss of a gun or a baggage wagon, and from still another advanoe hy the left flank, tho Army of the Potomae has heeu moved to the south side of Petersharg, 25 miles helow Richmond. We are told, too, and we balieve, that the south eido of the James river was the destination of Gen. Graut, from his erossing of the Rapidan, Why, thsu, did he not move his army down to Aquia creek, put it on board transports, and by way of the Jamea river, land his Chesapeake bay and the Jamea river, land his troops a few Because, furst in thus leaving Lee's army near the Rapidnn, Weshington would he left at his sary to exhaust the intervening country and render another Northern diversion by Gen Lee, under any circumstances, utterly im prsotieable. All this has been done, and which Gen. Grant has placed Richmond, the James river and the veteran rebel army of Forty thousand men, lilled, wounded and missing, have been lost by him in this overland march from Culpeper to Peteraburg. Heie farther from Richmond than he was a fortnigh ago; he has fonght many bloody battles, eap he has gained no decisive victory. What, then, is the prospect? We answer, that from the losses intlicted upon the enemy, from the extremities to which he is rsdnoed in the mattor of his supplies, and.from the near approach of and form day is new south, the prospeet is that the Lee's army routed and dispersed, and the re bsllion extinguished.

Roxal Patent to Wrak a Nrohroap, Aguca

 hinn leevo to wear, one but two nuiphtcapg, if be peressed Hto patent for this privilege te perhupe, unique in rogal annile:

 to "this Eingular grant,

Barnum's American Ninseum.

Oscanyau's Oriental Album,

 Second Avouluo, 20 door from 56 th St, N. Y. $\underset{y y y}{*}=2=$

ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER 537 Pearl Street, New York.

NEW YORK, JULY 2 , IBGL.

TMERMES:

Ono copy
Two coples
Fout
pupatine quarterly

8400 750 1500 600 100

TERMS FOR ADVERTISING. One Dollar a line on the ontside or hast page Sixty Cente a line on the 14th and 16 th pages.

> To Correspondents.

First-class stories will he read promptly, and The masuscript ebould be legible, on one side of the papor only, and be occompanied with the address of the writor. Poems of a bigb order and moderate nugritor. Poems of a bigb
By whe decet with oftention.

 naill, lettor postage muat be paid ounce sbould be eent by exprees.
Whon parties wieb Mss, returned by manil, pootage thanpe muat bo enclooed for thio full amonnt. Contribuanmpe must bo enclooed for tho full amonnht. Cpntributons of obort articles, pooms, eto, will do well to kecp

Summary of the Week,

The bold and sudden movemont of Gen. Grant, aot oss tho James, after failing to brsak Lse's linee, illsd all with hops, but it hae thus far proved delu-
ive. Petersburg sesmed doomed to fall an easy prey. Tho first and seoond lines of the enamy the principal lino Grant was repulsed. He now found thit the worke wers of the moat laborata kind, apd held by Bsauregard alons. He could not koop hie whole army thors, and allow Lse to form new plans unmoleeted. On the 17th Gen. IR. S. Foetor'e division, 10th corps, whoEo right ristsd on Ware Bottom Ohureh, nour James river, extonding towards ths Appomattox, and Gens. Amee and Turner on his leff, wers attacked hy Piekett's and Field'e diviFistons of Longetreet'a corpe, and a part of the ins was momentarily lost, but aé quiok and held in spite of deeperats attacks. Gutche Dutch gap, hut wereasttacked sorose a wooded ncek, and retircd.
Gn the 20 th Gen. Aberorombie was attacksd at the Whits Houss by Fitz Hugh Lee and Wade Hampton, who hopsd to oapturs Shsridan's train. The infentry and boate kept them at bay, and having exploded a caiseon, arove them off. Sheri dan eame ap in ain nacrnoon, and with his im mense wag Powhatan.
An oxpedition, undor Aoting-Brig.-Gsn. Draper, set out from Point Lookout on the 11th, and land ing in Westmoreland county procesdsd to ths Rappahennock, dsstroying over $$ 300,000$ of rebsi property.
Gn tho 22d Grant esst the 18th corps from Berand tho 2 d and 6 th eorps wers thrown to the left Daring this movement fill advanoed and pushed through a gapin the 2d eorps, taking Barlow's and Gibbona's divisions in flank, capturing 2,000 men, with several cannon, ind fiflicting heavy loss in cilled and wounded.
Gn ths 29d the 6th and $2 d$ corpe again udvanced, Wsra attacksd hy Anderson and Wilicox and force haok.
 hoary oannone he, ehatging undsr cover of Gen. Hunter, puahing on with Crooks. Avsrill, after sffseting a junction, flankisd snd Lexington on the North rivsr, a branoh of the Jamee. He then sent out minor expoditions, which did grest damage to the railroads. Hunt Lee, meanyhils to Lynchburg on the 18th Lee, meanwhils rbluvsd in a manner by Grant' move, sc Hunter.
Sharp work has aocordingly been going on before Lyychburg, of which we know only throngh rebol chaunele. The action on the 18 th ie claime ae a rsbsl victory Sherman has cloned in on Johneton at the Ksnssav mountain, 8 naturally strong poeition, Which ths latter holds tenscioualy. and 17 th corpa, drove the ensmy from 15th, 16 th eapturing, nntirs, the 31et and 40th Alabama. The other corps then advanced on ths Kenesa mountain, and Hooker attaoked thsir position on Lost mountain, taking and holding some of thair works, He also oaptured many rshels, And on thes 10th an entire company, with ite officera, cam into our lines.
Gan, Polk wes killed at Pine mountain on the 14th, while making teloecopie obsarvations of our lincs, with Johnston and Hardee, A battary of tho tth corps oheerving the party, fred, and ono of the projectilos struck tho Gensral on the left arm, passsd through his hody and carriod off his right Moreau, etruok while standing with the Emper of Russia and King of Prussis.
A new distriet has been orented smbracing

Shorman's recent conquests, and atyled the Dis triet of the Etowah. It has besn placed under the command of Major-Gen. Steadman. It compribs the country from Briagsport to Allatoona, inoluding Clsveland, Rqme, snd the country on ths esst us far as the flag gose.
Gn the 21at Howard gained an important point, and, in order to regain it, the snsmy mads eoven succeeenve hut unsuccessful asgandts on Whitaksr' brigade, of StanTey's division, in which thas log brigade, of Stanley's division, in which thay lost nearly 800 men, 200 daad being loft on the field. nearly $800 \mathrm{men}, 200$ dasd being loft on the field.
Both Noonday and Moeea cresks have been

On the 18th the rebel Gsn. Wharton succeedsa in captaxing five freight trains loaded with sup trains wers loet on the 20th.

(Gn the 19th three companiss of the 54th Va. (G. S. A.), oams into our linee, and on the 2tth came in.

Lousstana.
The steamars Chillicoths, Neopho and Fort Hindman euptured recently a rebel battery on the Achafulaya, near Sommssport, consisting of two 30 pound Parrote.
south oarohina,
Ths firing on Gharlsston ssems to have been susponded. An sxpedition was racently sant up Stono river, and the rehel worke on John's island damolishsd. damol

TEXAS.
Brig.-Gen. Fitz Henry Warren hes besn ordered to Brownsvills, to take command of the forces in that part of Texab.

naval.

Ths U. S. gunboat EUK has mads an sxpedition throngh Mieeisaippi eound, breaking up a rebel camp on Bz Folfe rivor.

CONGRESS

Is the Senate, on the 20th of June, the bill duty by resson of the payment of mosoy wio calle $A$ ap by Mr. Wilson, the quaction boing oa his disamondmonts that overy person who ahall bo drafted and eerve honorably for tho period of one yeaz, thall receive a bonnly of $$ 100$ and an honorable diectarge, and a simiInr bounts pyoportlouate to his torm of sorvice for al period. No vote on the main question wes takon. period. No vote on the main question wes takes.
In tbo Honse, thero wus no business of any publio wrust.
In the $S$
In the Senate, on the 21ot of June, Mr. Sumuer moved thise up the bill to repeal the Fugitive slave Law,
This lod to 0 very animited dobete. Ths motion was carriod.
In tbo House, Mr. Kellogg mado an advorse report on le renolution instructing thom to inquiro wbat further legialntiou is nocoesary to provent subatitute brokera from purchasing sabstitutos, Mrr. Eellogg roportod a binf for the rilief of Mras. Gan. Lander. Mgr. Beparuck ro-ported s bill with referince to the draxt, whech be ox. ported s bill with refornnco to the drust, which be oxplatned. Aftar debato the House yoted on the motion plannod. Afar debate the Houss voted on the motion to etrike out the first section of tbo bill, repealing the commutation clsuse. comumutation chuse. Tbo queetion wes docided in the ollirmative, by yese 100 , naye 60 . Tho second eection was also stricken ont. The farther discussion was torevening eension the Houme resamed the consideration of the bill to amond the Pacifo rallirond act.
In the Senate, on the 22d of June, the bill to provont military intercerence was paesid, with an simportant amendmont to the effect thut military may be enpoploycd

 bull to repeai the Fugritive slive law was tiven up, nidd
After vuroua dititory motionh had been made to nd-

 substitutes #rero offered, but without com
alusion on the bul the House aljourned.
In the sennte, on the 23d of June, the House bill to repeas thise Funtive siave hyw came up na the oppecial

 The Howeo pussed the Senste bill amen datory of the aw of Nrarch, $186 s$, whitiob extendis the timpo within whicb jatontoer wbo have neglectod it may pay the fina bal.
 Sitev
Si. pl.
proe
nitte
fused secon
pasan
pel

 In the House, a bin wat passed to carry into effect the treaty betveen the Uivited state aud Her Britinnic Tivesty for the final ectlemant of the tive Concornin

TOWN cossip.

TyONS of it; oh, inhabitants of the woods and greon fellan; ye dwollors beelac the razahigg river or on the monntain top, thet millous of your fellowe-for no crime committedi-sre prisoned in brick walls, with motal roose glowing above thif beads, and seorching conchens hundrod in tho alhade!
Think of it, that while the cof!
Think of it, that while tbe coft son thern breezee come over your mountain tope sad down your rusbing river suden with tho perfumio of ten thousand flowert, mitLons of your followe are eliaing in murrow otrents, in cage-liko houses, inboling only the edore cage-Hito bouses, inbaling only the edore gonerstod from unvelesnly streets and erowded domiclles What a privilege it to to bo domiclles And yot how fow who bave thio privilecge offer it appreciatoon. We have ofton thougbt thiot in all tho dog-in- the one dooerning of the nom andure, this point is the the evifehness and the joalousy of ccuntry. Weoplo mean it is marked in this fuet. A farge mito "An in antanen of ple aro berd laborors esi tho week, and of city no peo upon when they can sundsy, sad yot it to this very doy the und feldas but country peoplo kbnts away from them, by deprivin country peoplo there wonld not be est Wero it left to of care leave the clty for any point on the sabmeth Inotead of encoursiging the pleasures of their followmen by making obcap excuralous, and giving the pant ap and otitited eitizeess a chance to worshitp God in the cajoyment of natare, thoy tabor to manko lawo thet thel shut them away, fearnil that tbe little onos might pluck a wild fower, or press down o few biades of grass with tbeir tiny foet
By-the-bye, in connestion with that, why it it that some popular prescher, who, during the summor bexis, some popular prescher, who, during the summor besis, finds it difincult to Ill a town churob, will not try tho country? Let bim advertioe to bolid forth neaz the eits. boot to talte his improvieed congrogatlon to the eqpet for dreds, and would be better orprectated and moro pleas.
antly hiteved to than in thi bot, cloes, city chach andy hatened to than in the bot, cloos, city oknich.
How strange it neems , with the thorming

䢒

 and

 Andin

epitome of the week.

 231. Tvo silew were, howpory, minity ge.

 foumd in Towas
the Chlt has been reoolved to potsono the weethng of of Auguet. Convention from the etth of July to the arth

 quastion till after the chicaso

Mrilitary,- Five rebela found guity of robbery

 ornminal tor rearesen to bime

 - Mre sterimian

- Mrrn stophen A. Doughan was in Harriahurg on

 Obituary - - sabiella Cubus, the celebrated dancer,

 - Myjor Hedges, of tho 1 the $N$. Z. heavy ntillery,

 Europeanas wbo might deeire to embark,

 Paria, A trinined monkey in all tobe rago at Tranoont
 Manle Marreiles san become agrcat ootton merket. T2

Att, Bcience and Xitoratare- - M, Avard,

Ot Odds and Enden-During the meant inmatation

 of The The Owen ooonty Journal, Thad, oeye: "inness

grapp, And enother Indurng puper bay this Hivaly para, hair of the rimki.hire
curnot bo parted otull

- A Aerrant glil, baring the indy of tho Lous atak be come home to dimner, thatd tuble for the suppoced vidura.
 ime man and horse hari travelled oe, 160 miles, which - Tho Pnoumatho Pasateger Roalky Company bave
 In Lut torilid warfere of lettere is fyet now going on the pealk of Tenarifie, off the wishern coant of Africa

To Tho thanid of orcen of aid are annuanly platod

 of horticuluture

 comeo riced bl
cutematicals.
Which Thi loast namber of the Poterbung Exprese
 The Jupeneese Ambasasolora st Pario Fireregratsy

CHIT-CHAT WITH THE LADIES.
Evary one is in the country; houses are ehat up or left te the care of a ningle eervant; the chandetiere dono up in papare; the parior chairs in brown defiers dono up in papers; the parior chairs in brown holland; thocta thrown over tho sofas; end silence even In the nursery and my lady's chamber tell the alingy.
Nies, oomfortable homes are denorted for cloecto and n chance of dinner of Saratogs, Newport, eta, beoouse it ie "the fishion," or becouse, in tome cases (let us hisper), it is boped that elig

Blddy enterthins her coasin Pot in tho dining-room,
 The courtyard flowors wither or grow rank; the grees the areas and ho there; enterpprining sagents leavo eir cularg, and good colporteura tracta by the hundrede, so culars, and good colporteura tracta by the hundreds, so thet thetredgea ntink from beneath the dooni continn. nlly. Beys dram carlcotares with chall on the browni
no
 dong the street-Noa. two, four an.
out of town.
Economy.
Whint do econcomical people do now-s-dayn, euppoting
there ere eny left? $\Delta$ lady of that oid stock muast live in agony just now. How can she ecozomise? Time Wodoy, and have boofoteak and rice pnddung. ".
Now eny housclicoper luows wbst a good rico pnd ding with eanco coose now-a-days, nud thot beopiteak at onco not to be counted as oxpenses, the cont was to mark in the "Hithe bilis" of grocer and butchone Poor ond sneored at now protty minch an eome belle of pust mophint of that indilenant femaic, who, wo precume ad him bound over to keep the lund. She need not are been aiarued; be might have left liis hat on the Nithr's brink and rum wway to Cultornias hemidght even romal matter, and bowover mueb malned et home darmed ber the dingt, eaten her dinuorion alt sure tuat the was sot fretting about tina, hut rathe rejoicing in the promisod opportuitity of trying tickod.

No. 2 in the marribe loters, bo would havo roturned.
 ploying at eulctide.
Wo believe that do it in the beller that they will be roectived, and only to rightion some unstind wifo or swethearh

What Cnliforniann are Dofng.
The Culiforiana aro doing oome ching tor tho souithry pienio to oid therroof, fare given by tho riilroud company

 plendid box of mammoth stramberrios to tho picsich had aguin, like the hare, untill thronght tha Corimmlytion whan to raise monoy for tho Commiesion, and wo mue way the Californalase appocar to have workod for tha of our suffering noidiera, we muat all rejoleen.

 hy his minner wbat the gentemen of

 The men of to-dy-whose fault is it, we wonder p ns, judging from old portraite, they ere to good lookn . paid ettentlon principle of tho old Quaker led's's ecrmon; that if tia young men would etog at home, LDe young womin woul and dimples, doing their beet to entertuin mell-drenene piecee of mascuiline concoits, wro lowigo on Eofin, twial ayllatle or two.
Tho hostass makeo Immernso exertiono to coox hir bearish partaers and esoorto. The lact of the motter is, it it tho wonen' fornil. would be turread, und wo mboula soon wive in umes lilo

LIEUTENANT-CENERAL JAMES LONCSTREET, C. S. A
In spite of the assertion so confidently mind at the beginniog of the wer by Northern servants that all the militury talent in tha
United Stater army was in the southern ollicere, it is remarklable foot that the Soathorn states, properly to callod, si produced no rendly greut fonoral.
Longetreet, of south Carolina, is the oniy one who sppronches the lirst runkl, and he does to from his pos cession of the Norther anco and obstinacy rother thitice of stabbcra porvion rerging to gray; his keon, penotrating eye, a cold, bani, bluedili gray

Our portrait le takon from a fine recent Blohmond

BOOK NOTICES.
SEuF-Sucriricz. By the Anthor of "Margaret Msilland." Pbiladelphas: J. D. Peterson & Brom.

HIERONYMUM

ny patling.

Tue gold sun smiles a sad adieu On flowers and streams and woods to-night, And long hills doff their dreamy hlue To wear his crown of parting light At this sweet time fair Memory hringa Her garlands from the withered Past, And sheds a radiance from her wings On joys that were too hright to last.

Oh! still the echo of thy words Rings through my heart in ling'ring climes, Like mnsic of rich summer hirds That trill in air their rippling rhymes And still my spint hows to thoe, As rome sent messenger from Heaven, To whom the tido of harmony In all its glorious strength is given,

Around my life a richer hne
Thy warm soul-atmosphere has thrown-Liko flowers that drink the sunlight through, Deep in that winelike lifo I've grown.
On tho hright day our eyes first met,
On tho hright day our eyes first met,
(I feel the sweetness of it yet) (I feel the sweetness of it yet), Brimmed with the poot's high desires, Tho humming solitudes are thino, Where Nature in haptismal fires Lifts to her child her hright propine : And glitt'ring down the ocean walls Her mystio meaning pales nnd hurns, And through the sweot oarth's cmerald halls "Tis writ with mosses and with ferns.

An elfin world of gracions gleams Thy pure tones fling nthwart my soul, And evermore in sliding drearns
I hoar immortal rivers roll.
I drink the glorious light of Love, I freshen in tho heavenly dew, Aud feel the Spirit-ocean movo
Tho grent pulsations of the True

And horn within that nohle land Are Thoughte and Feelings white alway; They wall upon the starry strand
I hless thee! yes! that thou const hring I hless thee! yes! that thou const hri
A reaim like this within my ken, Thus-all its milly glories fling $\Delta$ lustre on the hrows of men.

Perhaps, whinin the Futuro's muzo Together we shail rove the plains, Where light supernal 'round us playe, And Trath falls down in golden rains. Our sonls may pierce all mystio stste,
Au glades of hlue-all symhols deep, Au glades of hlue-all symbols deep, And take from off the eyes of Fate The lids of their unstirring sleep

Oh! joy to wander thus with thee! To feel thee with me high aud stroug, To live within thy melody,
There, dragrance horne from of thy song! There, down the wide columnar sisles, Perchance we'll walk Love's shining miles, And kneel hefore the lucont Oross,

Night from her ehou halls on high Comes down the world with darkened sweep, Her trailing skirts tonch earth und sky, And stare among her tresses sloep;
I knool in worslip nnto her,
As slow she treads the hlno, hlue sea, And listen to the downy whirr That dijps her murn'ring minstrelsy.
Oh! love that all my heing fills! Oh! passion of the pulsing heart! Oh! flowor that hlood-red dew distils! Its heat through all my senses dart As tropic growths in tropio seas, So, thongh wooing aire cach plnme, So, thangh hast hesen the sunht hreeze
That my soul-life into hloom.

And I, through all the yeare that roll In freighted wavelets over me, That dipt my life in melody. And I shall hleas thee evermore, For the dear light that sonl has given, Till life shall hreak on Lethe's shore, And swell within the chimes of Heaven.

O통ㅈIIE  Or

THE YOUNG PORTRAIT PAINTER.

oHapter i.

Is the Rne Platrière, in the same house which, somo years later, hecame the home of Joan J Rousseau, and near the same window rondered fumous hy those delicious little breakfaste which he there onjoyed with his poor Therèso, a young he there onjoyed with his poor Thereso, a young man, apparently a visitor, wes working silently on a large portrait of a man in a military dress. By bis eide etood a young girl in morning toilotte, attentively ohserving the corrections homade, and expressing from time to time her appreciation of his kindagese hy worde of grateful acknowledg ment.
piece," she said, with charming grace, ne the yonng man turned to her with a look that implied "Is it improved ? - will it do ?"
"It is far too well done-too beautiful, Robert," she replied, answering his glance. "I shall, he airaid in fature to ask your assistance or advico and yet what conld I do without you, who lend me your talent eo generously?"
The young man took her hand and pressed it in silence. There was something in his look which mplied a hidden sorrow, a suppressod thonght. The young girl continued, smiling :
" What shall I do if tho Marquis d

What shall I do if tho Marquis de Mancomhle hevtenast-genzahl longspabet, o. s. A.-see paok 243.

charmed with his portrait, which ho holieves wholly my own work, should succeed in calling mo to ersailles? You could not follow mo there, asaist sceretly my blundors. I would lose at once hoth my undeserved venopmede and my hopes of ox"onded patronage," sou work for monoy," ing towards her.

The Insane Painter
"Not for myself," murmured the young giri. "I know not for whom then," Rohert replicd in a carcless tone. "True, I've no right to qnestion "You cannot intoud to be so harsh," Cécile replied, twrning away hor head to hide tho pain plied, tarning away cansed hy his worda.
"No, indeca, Cecilo," exclaimed tho impetuous young mon. "But this mystcry with which you surround yourself, why can it not be rempoved? And these nightly visits, on which I warn you cvery ono is commenting -"
"Whiat is that to mo, so long as you truet mo?" the young girl roplied, timidty.
tioning, and would not now inflict upon yon tho ronewed avowal of my love, hat for this portritthis odions portrait !-which, for your eake, I tonech-up pationtly, with rosignation and perfect miraclo you have contrived to reproduce so faithfully upon your canvsa \& countenance eo insipid, so devoid of exprossion Cécile, you love the Marquis do Mancomhlol Farewell ${ }^{\text {M }}$ be added, with a strange, forced langh. "For if the marquis .
comes here to-dny I cannot come to-morrow. We part now and for ever."
Cicile checked him," bnt expressed neither foer nor surprise.
cotten our your promise to me? Have you forwith perfect oslmness,
"I would break it-I would be free to destroy Jou choose."
"You speak like a shild, my poor Robert," said Oexioue, in a tender, carceas.ag tone
"I havo been ono till no.
Ih havo been ono till now" "
"And are you now Jeslovs"" "Yes, madly so!" exolaimed robert, kneoung down ot hor aide. "Céde, I can endure this no longer ""
"Oh, how blind, how deluded !" murmared the young girl, hiding her face, suffneed with blasbes, in her handi, ,ss the truth forced itself apon her mind that, through her foass for the marquis, she had uneonsciously eucouraged the love of the had uneon ohevaiter,
"Forgive me, "Cecile," said the young man, in a osimer tone, "I now fear nothing. I will re$\cdots$ turn." "And the Marqnis de Mancomble, too?" Cecide aeldly anked. "I wish it so," she added, seeing Robert atart; "this duel sball not toke place." Robert shook his head,
"A gontleman," he said, "never refuses satiofaetion to his enemy. I have insultod the marquis to-nirgbt." to-nigbt."
"I linow it."

I know it., How?

"I know it-that is enough."
You have seen the marquis?"
He is antinfied, and has forgotten your reokless"He ness," "You have seen him, then, and have perhap offered an apology in my name. Céplo, Cécle! voman who loves would uot thus have degraded wous the object of her love. You spele falsely jubt now-you deceived mel ${ }^{\text {b }}$, he cried, and seving a brusb full of paint, with two strokes he destroyed brusb fortrait eud ruabed from the room, exchaiming, "Ungratoful girll I will day on yon and the marquis ${ }^{\text {" }}$ Cécile, overeome with satonishment, had renained motionless and unable to speak. When npon the defnoed portrait, the innocent oanee of the scene fust acted out, and murmured, whde npon the defaced portrait, and mu
the scene jut acted out, and med
the tense rolled down hor cheeks:
"My poor, dear father, for your enke I would endure much moro

chapter 4 .

Young Dambecurt wae droaming of his delightul adventuree of the at the Preeident's honse, whenhe was awakened ing, at the Preerdent'shonse, when ing roem and exelsimby ing:
"Go
"Got up, get up, my friond1 Itiepast mid-day and I want 5our advice on various matters." nd I want your advice on various matters, "The deuco take you, marquis 1 What bring: "The deuce tale you, marquas a man who is you here at this hour to disturb a man lramming of Eden ?" Dameoourt said, rubbing his yes and looking ap at his friend.
"Why should you, young, rich and full of life, as you aro, seek happiness in dreams "One.woukd suppooe you were old, ruined and lone with this world, from the expreseion of your fece." "There in perhaps, more trath in your words "There in perhaps, more truth in your words thas you think. Butcome, get up I have a duel on hand, and want yon to be my second,"
"Another folly, eh?" asked Damecourt, putting on his robe
"Certainly; for yon see this is nt common effair," the marquis said, seating himself on the an aceepted rivel; the lady in quoetion having desiared to me poeitively thst I chall be.no farthor advanced in hor favor whe ther $I$ kill or am killed."
"Who was the aggreeeor; you or your rival"
"Zounds 1 my rival; $;$ fool who views everything in a talse light, even to love and women-sdreamer, -and who, though a Frenchmen, knowa nothing of French gallsitry.
"I het I have guessed the parties! That fande Saintonge. That boy belongs to another age. But come, I will undertake to convince him it is not worth while to get his thro girl who is not even $\dot{d}$ la mode."
girl who is not even a fast,my dear Cicacro; many thanks for your eloquence, but keep it for another occasion, Now, I need only your wit. You have yet to see the Marquia de Meacomble, Colonel of Light Guards, wudecided or iresole the tapis."
"What wonld yon have me do? Explain your"ell, then." "Listen," the marquis asid, quietly taking a only be wounded, but I would turn the matter to good acoount. You know how with the idea of fool, Rioux, has possessed mo win of perfection. You also know how far I have ancceeded, aided by the plan of sitting for my portruit, for which, by-the-lye, I am to pay somewhat dear. This portrait was to have beon fnishod, deliverod snd paid for to-day, and npon the pleasure which this soemed to givo her I had placed the euccess of my anit.
If I shonld he woundod, go to C6cle, and after laIf I should he woundod, go to Cecie, and after laof her wish-for ahe made me promise I would not fight this dnel-aek; in the name of my afficted, puying the price agreed upon. Yon will notico the effeet of the intelligence you bring, if ahe displayk nny emotion. Be watehful, my friend, for ahe is dingerent, resarved, and has lesrned to hide the socrets of her hosit. Then spesk of my virtues my ci astancy in love, my oapshility of loving. If she is moved, bring me back to lifo gradnally; tell her there are etill hopes of my recovery, and obt in from her fal interview with me at my little vilis des fossis du Temple.
"And, if in place of being yourself wounded, you ehonld wound or kill the Chevalier Robert, the favored rival ?

Fayored 1 pshaw -the idea is but a phanton "But still, what if you thonld wound him ?" "In that case, my dear friend, I will plead my
All rightl But, if you sbould be killed ?"
If I am killed, did you any? If I am killed, bequeath to yon Ofede and my portrait."
"Be it eo; thongh yon know well I need neither the one nor the otber to keep you in remembrance, or make me mourn your loss."
The marquis's carriage waited at the door. The two young men were scon in it, snd on their rosc to the Bois de Vinceunes.

chapten mil.

"Wens!" asia Damécourt, "ne your second, I have the right, I pr, this lova adventare."
"You are rigbt," the marquis rephed, "the reeital will servo two purposes; it will add to your own experience and help to shorten the distance My friend Rieux, who, you know, is a perfect original in all his whye, has huilt a house behind the Invalides, at the oxtremity of the Rue Babythe Invalides, at the oxtremity of the Rue Baby-loumo. Hie only noighbor in this quiet neighbo hoed was a certain Dr. Gounsot, whose housc, sarzounded by a wall ten feet high, and with ounterfeit doers and windows, looked kittle like the house of in respectable oitizen. An air of desolation hung hike a pall over this house, standing alone between a court on ono side and a garden on the other. Viaitors were rarely admitted on on the other. Viaitors were rarely admitled on the premiees, and theee few entered secretly, ne if the premioes, and theee few entered secretly, as if afraid of being seen or reoognised by a ohance observer who might be near. One evening Rieus was returniug home somewhat later than usual, Then his phaeton came very near running over a lady, who appeared lees frightened than annoyed lady, who appaared lees frightened than annoyed at being detected on some secret errand. She at being detectedest her face as much as possible, but did not suceeed sufficiently to provent Rieux from seeing that she was young and very beantiful. He pretonded not to notice her; but, beantiful, He pretended not to notice her; but, seerctly following at a diatance, saw her enter Dr. aeerctly following at a dietance, saw her enter Dr.
Geuseet's house, A few eveniugs after, ho met Gouseet's houpe, A few evenugs and this oceurred so frequently and at hor again; and regular intervals, tbat he determined to find out something about the doctor and his night visitor. For this purpose ho mado inquiries of the coantry people around, who all declared the dootor to be a pearl of the faculty, occupying himdootor to be a pearl of the faculty, occupying himself much leas with pretty ogea than with the virself much less with pretty ojes tue of the drugs he preserihed.
"Nothing daunted, he waited one evening till he beautiful incognita eame out of tho doetor's houso. He joined her, accompanied her home, and learned that she lived in the Rue Platriere, that she was a portrait painter, and that her name was Céode. Another man would have pureued the adenture ; but sho was only a peor 'artiste,' and to him te jeu ne valait pas te elanson. yo he gave it up, The romance of the anair inteposted to follow it up. But Cfede cessed visiting the doctor; and ss I fonnd no and muking her acquaintanice, I alllod boldy upon her at her own honse. You know the rest-the protext thit object-the jealonay of the Cheraiker de Saintonge, too often admitted during these sittings, and finally the duel in which I am now embroded. But what you ean never fully understand, bination of timidity and self-reliance, simplicity and tact-the whole pervaded by the spirit of "Angels are blondes, my friend, and you've tol "Angels are blondes, my friend, an ne this Cécio of yours is a brunette."
"Yes, she is truly a brunotte," the marquis continued, "but with large hlue eyee; a eornplexion fair and fresh as a Hebe's, a profile that statuary: and a form and carriage which Diana, Vonus and all the otber goddeesea of Olympus might have envicd. To say nothing of her pride might have onvica. To surity, which would bo sans reproche were it not now directed to the doctor's house, are, how ever, not less frequent or mysterions. True, I have been an enamored fool for the last eight days; but this hittle coquette, whom I believe Rieux judged too harshly, has found a more devoted lover, it seems. Consequontly I tried to moderate my love and cool the enthasisam ahe would no donbt long sinco have succeeded in turning my attention to other interesto, and dismiseing portruit and painter from my mind, if my self-love or vani"
been in danger."
"I confese it is cruel to raise the siege of a oitadel defonded hy the Chovalier do Saintonge, man so littlo known in the beau monde.
"I swear, my would-be Ciecro, yon tallk like a fool, for you are at fanit on a very important poink. Tbe place io not only defended bnt besieged by the Chevaiier de Saintonge. Your metaphor, my the Chevs退 de Saintonge.
friond, whs mal d propos."
"Thon why not make your cause a common one, like bravo and loynl victore."
"This in exaotly what I propoced yesterday, and or this proposition I am involved in this cuel. This clievalier, my rival-painter, poet, musician, a periect Leonardo da Finci, is a real Jansocist in love. He would allow no trifling in the matter So when I ssw he took the affair so seriously, and that we shonld be obliged to figlit, I played the wholo game. I went to Cécle, with the determination of eonqnering at leastin this firet encounter. return sako."
" "Wiol

Wonld yon believe it? I was repalsed with great loss, and, in despair of my oanse, I told her of the meesing on hand I druw a pietare of myseli pierced to the heart by my adversary's sword, and implored her to grant me one aigh, one tear in retarn for the lifo 1 was abont to sscrifice for her

"Well?"

"Welll I expected of conrse a aceno-sa sxhigreatest tranquillity, soeming to doubt peither my own courago nor that of the ohevalier, and listening to our haling ourselves with such composure, that yon wonld have thought it was sn inovitable event she was wait at the same time," womediately to the list of her
"Yure a long life."
"Yon need not take that tronble, for it will be of no uss. She lovee-I sm sure of it-and with her whole heart-but whether it is myself or the chevalier, I cannot tell, for ehe is impenetrable chevalior, I cannot tell, for ehe is inpo persnade me to arrange this sffair
The marquis wae here interrupted by a violent collieion with another carriage.
exclaimed, furiously ooking out of the carringe window, At the sam ime another head was seen iesuing from the other carriage, oalling out:
"By Jove I why 'tis Rioux ${ }^{\text {" }}$
"Bleseme, Maucomble, this is a pleasant and unexpected meeting.
"A most happy accidont!" exclaimod tho other and the next moment Hieux's earriage was return ing empty to Paris, and tincennes with himeelf and hie tro frieuds, Rieux and Damécourt.
"You will stand by me-'tis agreed"-said the "arquis to Ricux.
"Willingly 1 " he rephed; "hat against whom? Oh, by-the-bye, I have again discovered tho ohject of your C'ede's evening walks-do not be obstiof your Cécde's evening walks-do not be obstinate, my friend; that girl is not worth the love of a brave man."

hapten tv.

Whiss the marquis and his two friende, an Robert with his, are on their way to the place of rendezvous, we will leok at what is talking place of the village of Vincennee, and on the border of the forest. This house rceenibled very much the one oceupied by Dr. Goteeet, having the same outward signs of precaution, with tho exception thet the windows were not so well secured.
Before one of these; on the very day on which the events we rolate took place, sat an old man, seemingly enjoying the charming weather and the heantiful viow of greenfields, undulating meadowe and dark forest stretching out before him as far as the oye could reach. All nature slept, as if oppreessed by the extrome heat of a July mid-day sun. The old man auddenly left his seat at the window, wiping the drops from his forehoad, and threw himeelf upon his bed. He was nearly bala, but this face was marked by many and deep forrows. Still he appeared in the full vigor of life. Mental suffering, more than physical ailments, had rounded his broad shoulders, and bowed his etately form. His features were flnely chiselled; his countenance noble and frank; and he poesessed that ense of maumer and are of position. After lying some moments with closed oyes, he raised himself partly from the bed and leant his head on one hand, remaining immovable, as if listening to the recital of an interesting story.

- Gradually his brow darkened, and his eyee
"ixed upon an eesel placed opposite the bed.
if to drive away s sad thonght; "work away, it you would finiah hefore C6́cde comes to-night, to take the pioture to that man who is a stranger to the sentiment of noblo hospitality, and laughs when I do him the honor of showing him this wonderful portrait."
As he spoke, the old man's agitation inoreased when he, sudadenly sprang towards the eavel, drow cauvas prepared for painting, hat as yet untonch ed by brush or paint. He stood some moments in deep thought; then taking up a olean pallet and a handful of equally clean brushes, he began to work on the canvss (upon whioh, of course, he left no impression), stopping now and then and left no impression), etopping now and then and looking sdmiringly upon the effeot he imagined looking admiringl
"since cecile can paint," he said, "why camo should be even more gifted. And then, she, poor child, painta for the firat purchasor-and for money-fie 1 that it stonla ho sio. dowure I Love, anger, shame shall group my Ho cessed speating, moved alowly away; then stood looking down upon the floor as in a dream, marmuring:

Clair, my own but unworthy Clair I I wil transmit to poaterity tho memory of your error and the revenge I havo taken! Noble revenge end the rovenge I havo taken him now pierced by Sainval, ray my aword.
A nervous smide now contracted his lipe ; his look hecame fixed and stern, and he began to talk look hecame fixed an with great rapidity.
"Yees, Sainval 1 yei, I killed you, my old friend but you deprived me of my wife 1 Oh! I wonl haved my wife, the mother of my Cécile-my wife, my poor, unhappy wiel
And so he oontinned his expressions of grief, and hie lame exolaimin
"Clair

He baried his face in his hinds, end wept.
More than an hour elapsod before this paroxysm onded. Ho then rose and aud humblo, picked up the pallot sid brashes that had and wiped the cauvas, saying :
floor, and "What I have done to-day Wiil begin again to-morrow,"
Then ho covered the whole with the green Then ho covered the whole with the cloth, and again took his seat at the window. "Two oclock!" he exclaimed, looking at the undial on the wall opposite, and tarning as if ddressing some persone preeent. "Doho not is mpatient, gentlomen, mo. Let us wait is littlo longer," and he crossed his arnis upon his breast, and stood looking towards Parie.
Every day at the same hoar, for ten long yeare, had the old man fought over in imagination the tatal dnel in which he had taken the bie of the deatroyer of his hapiness deatroyer of his happiness.
And now euddenly his
And now sut his eyes are attracted to an open space at the entronce of the forest, where ix men are visible. Two of them tato off their oats and face each other. The old man shadders, for ho sees the glitter of atevl.
Stop, atop, he cries, beside himbelf; " do not The weat with The weapons are lowered;
batants seem to be dispnting.
" Ob , them to be dispating. )
Ob, the coward, the cowardl" the old man They have robbed; him of his wife, and he rofuses to avenge himself! Yes ! yee," ho oontinued, clasping his hands, "tbeir swords sro oro-'tin again; the taller is the decoived husband-tio myselt! the otber is the lover-tis Sainvalt Goodl he is wounded! stop, stop, go themen, do not end the affair till I join yon! I whe ! I come ${ }^{p}$ he exclaimed, and sprimging forward be cleared the window-sil, and fell into the cont below.
When
When he wae taken up all consciousnees wae gone-tho old man was dying.
Ceone had soon required her composure after the violent exit of Rohert de Saintonge. She the aheorhing thought of the danger incurred by wo men in whom she wae most interosted. On she loved well, though seoretly; and for the other, she folt a deep and sincere affection. But other, she felt a deep and sincere affection, But how could she provent the by the chalier's impetuosity? To whom shonld she apply? Where should she rum to place herself betwoen the two rivala? He inability to act overwhelmed her with gricf, and incressed her anxiety. She thought of hor fatherof that unfortunate portrait-on which sho ha founded hopes even for this very day.
which Robert had made in his anger prineipally upon the face, which, having been painte pally upon the face, was, well dried at the time Perhaps sho could find the means of romoving the new colore, without disturbing tho old. She made the experiment, and sucoeeded-and on What joy to think the portreit might still be dolivered, paid for to-day; and this evening, whe condeort hiul, gratify his fancies, and give him a few moments of enjoyment and peace.
This point settled, her thougbts retarned to the duel, and her agony inereased. On sending to the marquis and the chevaher' , she learned that both had been abeent since morning, and it wan both had been abent since morning, and it wal not known where they had gone. This was what not known where thoy had gone. This was what she might have expeoted, but reason's voice is she might have oxpeoted, but reasond the blood only heard when the mind is culu, and young girl, flows qnietly on ite way. The poor young elasping her hands in quiet enbmission, wopt bitterly at the sad remembrance that an imprubitterly at the sad remembrance that an imprudent act in the life of her mother had caused tha death of anothor brave man, and deprived her father of his reason-thus clouding for evor his whole life. Had she, too, erred? In vain she Whole hife. Had she, too, erred dicover a jast reviewed her whole course to dien oause for sell-accuasation. But she stood aequitted before the tribunal of ber own conseience. Satisfied on this important point, she workcareselutoly on the portrait; succeeded in restoring it to its on the portrait; succeeded in restoring it to its proper condition; and towards ovening it wus finished. Was it the joy for her suecees, or a secret glad pressitiment that now removed the herself that the dnel had not taken place, and listened to catch in the sdence that reigued around the sorud of the clanhing seading for a measenger, C6ode gave him the portrait, saying:
"Take this to the Marquis de Maueomble, end bring me an unswer.
The effort made, and the canvas gone, before which she had shed so many tears, and dreamed away ao many hours, ahe was agsin asbailed by fears and snieties. "How long the meesenger tarrien! The mar-
"Ho among the living ?
Slow is tho light of time when momenta are reckoned by the throbbinga of an anxious heart1 The messonger rotnrued at last, bringing a note and little box carcfully wrapped up. Cecile, tremand littlo box carcfully wrapped up. Cecile, trembling with emotion, smatehod the note forom his bling with emotion, snatehed the note from hin hand, tetting drop the box, which, broken by the fall, displayed the gold which it contain price of the pictare. The note ran thus:
"Be happy ! my rival is well. I bave kopt my onise. This evening, with your permisaion, 1 promise. This evening, with your permianon, that he had been so fortunste os to procare infor－｜but the latter was already at the door，and had mation concerning tbe romentic journeys of the ＂She is a ＂Sbe is a strange ereaturo，＂he esid，＂for I am certain that ebe hase now chosen as her speoialty
the taek of comforting and administering to per－ sons of advanced age ；and the objeot of her speeial oare and otteation is now an old man who is ob－ liged to live in perfect neclusion，and who，from the manner－so I am told－in which he speaks of women in getieral，of his own wifo，and of Cécile too，probahiy eannot be a person of any refinement treme to offor a true devotion to a woman with such taetees，anin euch a cause，${ }^{\text {p }}$
euch a cause．＂
So thongbt the young man，who spoke from his Worldly oetimation of tbe young girl＇s eharacter． take up his aword as Cécile＇s champion，but only to avenge the insult bo had received from the rived at the forost while still dispnting the necee－ sity of the encounter．But Roport de Saintonge had been muchleas commnnicative
＂I am challenged to fight－will you stand by mb ？But first，promise not to seek to arrange metters amicably，and ahove all，ssk me no quas－ tions．＂
The marquis had waited leng when the cheve－ her＇s carriage mede its appererance，and Damé court hastened to errange preliminaries．After a the particulars which Rienx had just communi－ girl，he succeoded so far in prejudicing Robert＇e mind tbat the two combatants decided to with－ draw after the first wound，and the marquis hav－ diaw after the first wound，and the marquis hav－ fied frienda instead of snemies．It was then de－ ond that the marquis ebould eall for Robert in his carriago． ＂I will not soe ber again except in your pres－ snco，cbevalier，＂the marquis said，＂unless，＂he added，＂Óeile sends me my portrait，tben，you know，the honor of a gentleman demands I should noknowledgo its reception． ＂Your portrait！＂repeated Robert，almoat
sshamed at the recollection of the violent act of which be bad been guilty，＂I advise you，marquis， not to expect it，for I waity．before you in taking my revenge ${ }_{4}^{\text {＂}}$ he added，pointing to his wounded arm． ＂Ah，very well，chaqu＇un ds son tour，＂tbe mar－
qnis replied gaily，＂aud may you bo as free from quis repbed gaily，aud may you bo as free from tains for you．Adieu till to－morrow． ＂Till to－morrow，＂Robert answer． rill to－morrow，＂Robert answered sadly．

CEAPTER YK．

Tar marquis now began to regret his promise， deolared ho had destroyed by his raahneses，he felt less surprised at what he considered a foul decep． tion on the part of the chevalier，than aatisfaction at the excuse now offered him for brealing that promise．He tberefore did not hokitate to reqnest an intervicw with cecile in the note he sent．with the box centaining the price of bis pertrait．The poor girl was too anxious to send an answer，and construing ber silence in his favor，the marquis made his appearance the samo evening in the Rue made his Platrière．

You bere，marquis！＂exclaimed Robert，who Was already on the spot，and gazing up at the house which hold her be bad that very day almost renouneed as unworthy of his love，but who，never－ thelese，absorbed his tboughta． ＂By my honor，chovaber，I find you have had as atrong an attraction here as myself，＂the marquis replicd，hlding his annoyance beneath $a$ calm ex－ terior． terior．
＂You
over again to eee Cécile，＂ guilty of the remember rigbtly，were yon not worde？But come，cheys－ guily of the same rach worda？．But come，chevg－ ber，be frank with，mo，were yon not watohing the exit of my unlucky portrait，so as to commit eome outrage npon it，But you are too late；the pic－ outrage apon it，But you are too late；the pic－ ture is perfectly sestored，aud hae been two hours in my poesession．I do not complain of this little I do of the want of frankness you a rival，but Only this morning you declared Céile was not necessary to your happinees，tbat the was unwor－ thy of your love．＂
＂But she bae

But she bae been tradnced．＂
Indeed！You bebeve ehe is trie to you？＂
I bavo no claim upon her ${ }^{\text {n }}$
＂I bavo no claim upon her．＂ ＂Xou havo thon never avowed your lovo？＂
＂You have discovorod，then，that your love is returned？ Has sbe told you so ？＂
No ；hut，my poor friend，these etrange visits ebo make hours．＂
＂It in false ！＂
＂But you have proved this yourself，and ac－ kuowledged it many timee，＂
＂I knew not thon what I said；fool that I am1＂ he exclaimed in broken accents．＂Y love her，and you，marquie，you who love her not，eho loves！＂ out，maxquie，you who love her not，sho loves！＂
The Marquis de Maucomblo，though a gay man much importance to and hes affires of coetr， tonehed by tbe sincere grief of bis companion． ＂Come，my friend，＂he said sently，＂ealm not willingly caueo the unhappiness of a ${ }^{\circ}$ man whe has so latoly doelared his frioudship for me．Ire－ hor happiness．On tho honer of a gentleman I withdraw from tbe pureuit，fully persuaded tbat your great derotion entitles you to sunccess＂，and rung the bell． quired tbé portress．
＂Yos，＂Hobert replied，pale with emotion．
＂She Es not at home，sis＂
＂Are yon sure ahe is not in？＂Robert again ＂She went ont at dark，＂the portrees replied， I think has gone some distence，for she ordered a carn to－night．＂
Robert looked sad and dis sppointed．The mar－ quis with difficulty restrained a smile．
Well，my friend，＂bo eaid，drawing away the go call on Dumecourt？＂ De Saintonge made no reply，but a deep sigb told the anguish he endured．

My Aunt Mary．

My Annt Mary！Thonghts of her fin $m$ mind to fix my mind npon this dow forl lesson，end ascend atep by step to the crowning glory of his fincomparable logic．Even Enclid has no charms for me；for the greet God of reason and all good－giver has spreed a richer feast and all good－giver has spreed a richer fesst．
Glorions morning 1 indescribable beanty！Poets may write and rhynne of thee；but who can ness，the all－pervading glory，resting upon and banging over all the halo of beanty
It seems a fitting time to write Aunt Mary＇s history．I have long contemplated this pleasant task，and have several timee commenced，but have as often lieen interrupted，and obbged to lay it aside．
There
There at the foot of yonder blossom－laden tree will resume the work，My Aunt Mary was the daughter of a wealthy farmer；at tho same time the youngest，handsomeet snd the most vivacions of a family of six．She was petted and indulged indeed surprising that it did not prove her utter indeed aurprising that it did not prove her utter ruin．Everybody said that she would be some． thing or nothing；not because she manifested any extraordinary talent，but because she threw ber whole being into whatever she attompted to do She grew up proud，imperious and vain．Her wealtb，beauty and unfailing vivacity atiracted to wealtb，beauty and unfailing vivacity attracted to her sido many admirots，and，strange to say，one triel prisisiug that lover－bites Aspy noble qualities of mind and heart should have besn so entirely fascinated by a coqnette．
But
But so it was；wben he could not get near，on account of the multiplicity of her flirtations，he account of the multipbocity of her fiirtations，he worahipped afar off．At length importunity and perseverance prevailed．She condescended to pledge to hind her hesirt and hand，and it became Thornloy were engaged．Two yeare were to elapee betweon the promise and its fulfilment．In tho meantime war was deelared hetween the United States and Mexico．Being naturally fond of adven－ ture， ture，and too young to consider the hatrasips privations and dangers of a soldiel＇s life，he and a year，and left thoir homes in the month of June， 1846．I lnow the very oak in whoso solemn shadow they bade adien to tbo fair young creature Had they have realised what sonld be
Had they have realised what would be tbo an－ guish of that moment，neither the pomp nor glory of war，nor thclove of adventure，would have indaced them to part oven for eo short n time from those dearer than life；but the sorrow of eeparation wee mitigated hy the mutual promise that they would mitigated hy the mutual promise that they woul
write often．During their bifief sbsence many love．freigbted missives passed back aud forth． The year，like all other years，fled like a dream．
June has agsin returned．The twilight of a lovely day is mentling the earth witb eombro ehadows， Mary Horuloy and Julia Handford etand by the old onk conversing deeply of the absent loved ones，
They cast their eyes towarde the east，and eec two travellers deeconding the hill olose by．Botb are lomes，and both carry a staff．They scom very much fatigued．Now they havo come to the old
It ie Ernest－It ie Etbbert．Julia received Eth－ kert with tbe beautiful simplicity of undiggused trayed hoth disappointment end mortification． Certainly she wes polite to her returned lover，but the warmiti of true and uncbangeable love was the warmith of true and uncbangeable love was wanting in ber greoting． wanting in ber greoting
She elept but little that of nnsubdued pride was etirrod from ite deptbs Shall Mary Thornley，the besuty and belle of Filton， wed ber maimed and unfortunate lover？Never
The noxt day she eent him a very politoly worded The noxt day she eent him a vory politoly worded
note，dosiring to be released from the eugage－ ment，
Not loug after she was walking out witb her friond Julia；for thongh tho bond which had drawn them ao olosely together wae now eovored， they were atill friends－whon they heard s sharp rattle，but before they conld jump back to avoid rattle，but before they conld jump back to avoid the deadly serpont，a craeh，n tenible blow crushed the deadly serpont，
it into the earth．
They looked up，Enneet Asbley etood before penred not as when they net them at the old oalk． The bloom of youth and health was etill npon their choeks；their limbe were ae strong and flex－ their choeks；their bmbe were ae strong and flex－
iblo as ovor；they etood erect in manly beanty． ＂Mary Thornley＂，snid Ernest，in a voico never are relongoedten，＂I have received your note．Yon over against your name upon the page of memory， ＇tried in tho balance and found wanting．＇I stay not here amid brokon idois and crushed hopee．I could uot breathe tho same air with you．Fare－
woll，fricndel yea，more than friends，my aistor Jolin Julia nad brother Eithbort．Bear noy sdienx and beet wishes to those st home．＂So saying he toolk

hill oodson which he was diasppeared over than eame

 Mary．Though gossip glatted iteelf by Julin and bappy soparation and its canse Mary this an－ still mored in the circles of $f \%$ ，She recked not that ahe bad pressed npon be uru－beartsbrow a wreath of moarnful cypress；she sull wore the myrtle and went forth＂conqnering and to conquer．＂To the great delight of those who en－ conquer．＂To the great delight of those who en－ vied and thoes who hated her，she was at last canght in her own net，
It was in the summor of 1856 that Henrique society．He wae a lawyer atnnding high in his profession snd in the litersry world；but like too meny of earth＇s gifted onee，self was the great centre towards which all his thoughte and uspi－ centre towards which all his thoughte and uspi－ rations tended．Brillient in wit aid benuty，his principles were Elee a spider＇s wob．But oh what fascination was there in his dark hazel eye wbat power in his rich munical voice to stir the deptbs of the heart，and lead it to pour out it richness and sweetness npon this unworthy Mary Thoruley thougbt that at lest she had found her equal，and not doubting an easy con－ itement of tbe chase．
The eilite of Elton hnd plenned a Leap year pic－ ric，and were determined，if possible，to outdo in gallantry the loras of creation．Mary wa among the leading epirita，and the offered and ao－
cepted escort of the briliant lawyor，Henrigne Wepted escor
The aummer swiftly sped with this gay circle， with Mary and Henrique．They rode，they con－ ersed，they walked together．His name becam interwoven witb all her anticipations of tbe future and eweet thougbts of him mingled witb all her tbongbtt． Hor ola
melt to the god to whime has man before her hopelessly to bow．Sho seems not to beve entertained a doubt that this loving devptiou mas matual．One evening sbe suggested，hair in jee nalf in earncst，that they humilisting reepone whick sbo repired wes no less cutting because it was witty and polished orended，mortified，she awoke as from a dream． Her pride had received a mortal wound；Love lay cruabed and bleeding，and for the first time she realised the angrish of seeing the heart＇s hest and realised the angrush of seeng the hearty hest an She determined to forate tor the the upon in which ahe had so long been the bright particn－ lar star．
Mr．Woodworth left Elton soon after．He hoasted that he had conquered the coquetto and tamed the boness of Elton．
As for Aunt Ma
As for Aunt Mary，it aeemed for a while as if th Iron fingers of Despondency were fecling for the very springs of life．Bnt aftiction begat reflection， very springs of life．Bnt aftiction begat reliection， high parpose，＂she sat at the feet of Jeaua，＂and earned of Him who was＂meek and lowly of heart，＂and went about Life＇s great work，so long neglected．She found this work so great，so all abeoroing，that che had no time for siolly senti－ mentality，no time to resign hergelf to the woes of opeless love，so ehe wes heppy－happy in doing her duty，happy in making others happy，the higheat kind of happiness． Gently and lovingly she supported tbe steps of her invalid parents down the declivity of life of hor invalid parents down the declivity of life， cyes in the sweet sleep of doath．They did not forget to make full provision for her before they diod．It was arranged that sibo ehould hav my father＇e door．Tbitber ehe removed when thirty years of age，hringing with her an orphan
nioce and adopted nephow，whoee mother had died noce and adopted nephew，whoee mother had dicd two years before and whose fatber had long eince beon numbered witb the dead．It is five years ince Roso Cottage firet resounded with thoir eong of joy and gladneee．But como with me and I will introduee you to my Aunt Mary．
This，＂the mionth of roses，＂，ie just the time ore more appropriate nsme．Twenty varietiee of the iteelf is nearly covered with running roses，the and debicate pink，Aunt Mary etands at the door emiling a weloome．
You would like a picture of her？I can deeoribe wer featuree，ber complexion，but what are the witbout tbe expreseion，the true－soul boauty，the lovolit oyoe，the atter absence of all affeotation？ She ie a Suxon boauty；hor hair ie a delicato flaxen， still eurbigy in merry ringlets about her neek；her forehend broad and of medium height；eyes ＂hiue as the summer henvens；＂fenturce，if any－ tbing，too emall and regular；oomplexion，like the thing，too emall and regular；oomp rosce upon her own cottage roof．
Bat let as enter and glence at the intorior．Th quisite bouguet of violete ins whitoporcclain vase upon the contre table．Tbe rich orange and black gold papers upon tho wall and the snowy lace our－ taing， Annio
minute and Angusins have gone out for a fer admirably，and Annie＇s guitar stauding in thie connee，Aunt Mary hae givon mo tho range of the was doing．I find the litchen，the pantry，tbe
cupboarde，as neat ne the parlor；the walls，clean and white，and the floore innocention of gresee epot．She doce not truet altogether to plan and labor to make home cbecrful，comfort－ able and unecrnpnlously neat．Annie＇e apartment is called the blue room，and ie elegaitly furniehed with delieate bluo and wilite hanginge，oarpet and furniture to matoh；but here is Aunt Mary＇ temptation is too great ；the door is already open．
What means this bridal vell with its wreath of white mpeblin and emerula leaves？thins anowy white musin，and all the elegant parapuerualia of mridal costame？This is to be Aunt Mary＇s room no longer． Come to the window ！Yonder Ashley Hall rears its grand proportions whero those aged To－morrow Annt Mary will awsko in a grander but not a lovelier home．Six monthe ago Ernest Ashley returned，and in that sbort time we have proved to him an oxcellent teachor．Adversity back with higher and nobler purposes，to spend the remninder of his life in doing geed around the home of his childhood．He had loug since aban＊ home of his childhood．He had lous since abans doned the iden of marrying ；but，finding the heartless a meek and truc－heartsd womau，he was so weak as to fall more deeply in love with her than before， But I must resolution and all．
But I must hasten home，for consin Auguatur and I are cboecn to stand beilde tbo happy ones， the etar of love set，and the shadows of night fell upon our patbway，it may arise in tenfold brightnees and glory．

SIECE OF PETERSBURC

Storming of the firathine at Bayloris Farm

 $\Delta T$ one o＇clook of the morning of the 15th fune the colnmn of Maj－Gen．Smith－only nrrived atBormuea the previous night－met out for Poterihurg． Sautz＇s eavalry divaion took the locd，and before day－ Hoge the ontire command had eroceod thoponton bridse In full march tor the rebel city，Kautz pushing raydily ahead，drove the robel pleteota hiefore bim uninil he enivived at their fist line，when ho turned to the loft and moved to the forthacations on the other eide of the city． （Cen．Smith had under hie command two divilitona of hie own corpa and Ginke＇s division of nçroee，boeddel hie own corpa and Einks＇s dyvidon of ncgroee，boelded tho cavaliy divition of Kautz，Following aftor the cavalry，the negroes arrived second on the batlefeld and were eoon hefore the first line of rebel work，along the front of which the covalry had passed home time he． Gen．Hinke formed hifie command in line of battle，and divenced rpon the rebels，with Duncan commanading
hie right and Eolman hisleft．The rountit of this ohargo wo woited for with great anziety．The majority of the Whites expected that the colored troope would run，bu monte．With a will yell that musteortaninly havo etruck colored reationearts of their foet，the 22 d and 0 th U ．8． Connor，oharged，under a hot fre of mueketry sud artilory，over the rebel ditch ama parapot，und drove the and taking entire poseceation of thelre works，its defendere，
Forryyboos stit North Carouna Cavary ond Gralum＇s Peteraburg hattery，

 manivasted to get uhcad sand change ofome naxiety waih $=\mathrm{F}$ Ev＝2 シージロvav まaw wawtusu
 $5=5$ $=5=5=5$ Wawatat＝ 2twa－m $=2=$＝utaw まロ～＝－5－5 $-2=2=5$ まホ＝＝iviv $= \pm= \pm=5 \mathrm{E}$ $=5$
 $5=5=5$ $5=2=2$ $\pm= \pm= \pm=5$ $\pm 5 \mathrm{~m}=\mathrm{m}$ $3+2=5$ $=2=5=2$ ま＝＝＝＝wa まvavaveviv
 まivazaws

IHE WAR IN FIRGINIA-1HL $A K M Y$ UF THE POTOMAO CROSSING THE JAMES SIVER, NEA]

WORK AWAY.
Wonk awayl
For the master'e eye is on
Never off us, still npon us, Ns, stili npon un day
Work away! Keep the busy flingers plying ; Keep the conselese shuttlos fiying Let not clasb or clatter 'round us, Sound of whizzing wheele confonnd us Steady hand! let woof be strong And firm, that has to last so long Work awayl
Keep npon the anvil ringing Stroke of hammer: On the gloom Sot 'twixt ersallo and 'twixt tomb Showor of flery sparldes flinging;
Keep the mighty furnance glowing ; Keep the mighty furnance glowing Keep the red ore hieeing, nould; Swift within the roady monid, Sill be fitter, still be fairer For the servant's use, and rarer For the master to hehold
Work away Work away
For tbe Leader's eye is on $u$ us, still npon nig, Night and day I
Wide the trackless prairies round ns, Dark nnd unsumned woods surround us Far away Smile the soft Savannahs green, Work away 1
Bring your axees, woodmen true mite the forest till the hlue of Heavon's sunny eyo looks through Every wild and tengled glade ;
Jungle, awamp and thioket shade Give to-day
O'er the torrents fling your bridgas, Pioneere! Upon the ridges Widen, smooth, tho rocky etair. Widen, smooth, tho rocky et, Coming after us, will find Heart to heart, and hand with hand From the damn to dnak of day, Work away !
Scoute upon the mountains peal
Ye that see the Promised Land, Ye that see the Promised Land Of the oountry ye have soauned, Far awey 1
Work away 1
For the Father's eye is on $\mathfrak{u f}$ Night and day! Work and prayl Pray! and work will be completer ;
Work 1 and prayer will be the sweeter Lovel and prayer and work the fleeter

Fear not lest the busy finger
Weave a net the anul to etay Weave a net the soul to etay ;
Give her winge-ahe will not linger ; Soaring to the source of day; Olearing elouds that etill divide u From tbe azure dopths of rest,
She will come againl beside ns She will come againl beside
With the sunshime on hor hreast; Sit and oing to ne, while qniokeet On their taske their fingers move, Whilo tho outward din was thickeet, Songe that ale hetb learned above.
Live in Future se in Present; Work for hotb while yet tbe day Is our own for lord and peasant, Cometh, yet more eure, more pleasani Cometb soon our holiday

The Serpent-Woman.

hapter xiv If you can behola it
 Sn. Cnorr had reecived a long letter from Marina Thich the evente of the day had provented him from more than glancing at, andhe waswelipleased 6 retire for the night to the room Elstone had assigned him, and enjoy a thorough and lisuroly lis heart's idol had fevored him.
The apartment he occupied had been fitted np to suit the taste of a wealthy female member oi tbe Elfstons fa mily, an entbusiastie Romanist, at ariance with all her relativcsinherreligious riews, and was in the most elaborate Gothic style. If tatue of the Virgin Mary, by an Italian eculptor of celebrity, and many other little evidences of the pionlum.
The mi
The mind of Julien St, Croix was replete witb devotion now, hat to a very terres of his deity, and ings, ho seated himself in a richly-carved oaken elanir aud luggan the reading which he hed for hour longod to devour to the last gyllahle.
The greater part of the letter comsisted of the narrative of ovenis alveady recarded in a preceding ehapter, and ite diecursive conolusion, all that ing ehapter, and ite diceursive
"And now, my dear friend, I know what your true heart is thinling: ' She han eecaped a life of rue heart is thinling: 'She has escaped a life of horror, is she any better for it Io she a incor-rigihle seever? Julien, Iam changed-a different being. 'Yee,' you eay, 'hnt yon are contimally that.' The changee of whieh yon are thinking were on the surface, but this is radical. Whether lam bether or worse it docs no heomee me to decide; bnt as so many long ago pronounoed it an muast he improved. I am afraid I shall loae the love of all my male frienda in conseqnence. Poor Jacques-where is his dreadfalsoul now ? -thought bete more piquant than love, and I suspect your bete more piquant than love, and Inesp to virtue for the eamereeson. Am I not right? Fish up en auswer from the deep well of your hesrt and tell me traly. Your dove of virtue is gentle, placid me truly. Yoar dove of virtue is gentle, placia and kinily enough, but sailly wante (what it can never bave) the sancy sparklo, laughing misehief eweet temptation, and eoul-inflaming pnwer of wickednese. Pray for me, dear Julien, pray for me, for I am beginning to baekslide at the bar thongbt of darling deviltry to my mother, whose schepenes I had so I returns to my mother, whose schemee I had so completel frustrated, She Beemed, however, to he more afraid of me tban I was of her, bnt when Ihad told my story, whieh concluded with the death of Jacques Renvi, she ceught me in her arms, kisso me a hundred times, and wept for joy, as ahe or olaimed:
'Marina, you have saved mel For the firet man lived my lifo wae that of a criminal eondomned to die, and only reepited from time to time to prolong his euspense and euffring.
"I had spent some weeks happlly witb my mother, when the Conntess of Viandie called upon ue, and insisted upon taking me with her to Lonue, and insisted upon taking me with her to London. I am half-inolined to euepect that she wae don. I am halk-inoinned to crose the Chanel without me. Here I am, therefore, in the full current of fashioneble life in London. I need not tell you how sbsurd it is, for you kisow all about it, I dare say. I mot Lady Hapswell at a party laet night, and flatter myself I was auccessful in my endenvors to please hor, She ie French, you know, and full of esprit. BerShe ie French, you know, sus her vivacity. Victor bas her wit. Sir Edmund Hapswell is a very handsome old gentleman. I think I have made a friend of him, and Bertram is a second edition of the baronet. His health is failing, a nd he leavea to $n \mathrm{n}$ in a fow daye for wilborne Hall, his conntry seet. I am invited to spend the summer there. be ocenpant to visit Ellingford. I ehould like able occnpant to visit elluggor and Elfone to meet. The hermit is a grand old man-I have a passion for grand old men-and almost as inspired as the sonlptor. He deelined to quit hie wild hermitage ; but it contain now that will surely drive him out of it
"I shall run down to Ellingford as soon as the Bertram actually gone to Ameriea in eanreh of hie gay brother and the ghost of the statue? He will find one at the sntipodes and the other in the moon. Tell father that his Serpent is eoiling up for a epring into his studio, and that he will be locked in her folds when he loast expecta it

Julien, love mo, pray for me, and believe me Maniva."
your affectionate
It was long past midnight when Julien St. Croix, has kneeling in the little oratory engaged in prayer not immediately reply to the summons, and the next moment the door was opened. He turned and beheld a figure he at first doemed a spirit, as white and heavenly did it look, advancing towarda him.
"Comel come quick!" it cried. "BertramioI don't hnow-I fear I bave lilled him !"

Notwitbstanding the euccession, of oxcitement he was np betimee, and had boen in the library half an bour wben Mrre. Barton ushered Muta into the room. The old lady had no sooner left tl " Have you seen Bortram this morning ?
"I stole into his room a while sgo, and found him eleeping pleaeently, as though he had never been nearly frightened to death by the terrible semblanee of tife in a marble statue. Had I not beon in a most spiritual frame of mind when you found me, I should have heen no better abue, sustain the ehock you gave me than Bertram. thought you an angel bearing an audible respons to my prayer. You must not indulge in many of these freake, Miss Elistone, or you will surely bave to answer for tho denth of some of us,"
"I will never do so agein; for when I found Bertrum lying so helpless, cold and still, I thought I should die myeoll. When I raised bim and tried to bring him to, he fell from my trembling arms so heavily that my brain began to turn with horror. I ran out to ind some one, and if I had not scen the light in your room and found yon there, I the light in your room and found yon t should have filled the bouse with shrieks."
"And driven your father raving mad. What is tered to atome, I have puzzled my brain in vain to terca to
"I will tako ite place."
"Why not? Am I not better for a bride than cold stone?"
"Infinitely. The only difficulty is that yon canot make yourself look sufficiently like it to deceive not make y the sight."
"Was it not like me? Did not Bertram misteke me for the atatue? All I have to do is to make myself very pele, dress in white, look down, and hold myself immovalhy in one position.
Muta struck an attitude and looked Muts struck St . Croix was taken with her idea Its novelty and boldness captivated him, and he counented tu act as ber accomplice in carrying nut the innocent bnt impudent deception. The humorous effronters of the echenie would, be hoped, divert the dangerous tenor of Eifstone's mind into new and eafer channel, and turn a mad farce into genial and lasting reality.
The conspirstors were
The conspirstors were impressed with the neces-ity of immediate aetion, and eoon busy with thair ity of immatar petired to her chamber before Bertram onme down to breakfast, and sent her excuses to him, made under the pretence of fatigue, fornotappearing. St. Croixand Bertram werigo inedatthe breakiashable y their hoet and a young clergyman. The latter, ho had come in reaponse looked rather mystified, but the old onlptor was in high epirite and talked with epparking finency. Bertram wes silent and nervous. St. Croix was anxions and watchful, and arailed himself of his frat opportunity to engage in a frary. From him he went straight to Bertram, nd eaid, bluntly :
"The sooner this idie ceremony is performed covery till it ia ov
"Yee; let us have done with this fantastic nummery at ance, for I am beginning to feel more and more uneces about it, I hod dreams lasi nomanish as you may think me, I confess that I sm na nervons and full of superstitious spprehonsman nervous and the veriest vietim of the fortunoteller." "Well, Bertram, if you have a presentiment of " of

Of noneeneel Like Hamlet, I defy augury Ko, Julien, when I foel a weaknees, inotead of yielding to it or rumning awa
i. En avant ! marchons !"

Elistone's studio was darkened, and, when the curtains concealing the statue were drawn asid it was lound to be gracefully draped in tiseue, wresthed about the brow with orenge ionatiful veil. Elfatone, whosseyes were beginning to barn, was in the mood to be surprised at nothing, and woul have taken the descent or a choir or angols haroug with the propriety of the change, and felt happier than he had been for many a long year. Bertram waseurprised, received s vague impreseion that the statue was marvellonsly got up, but was so bewildered and nervous, and in such agiteted hat to get through with the coremony and ittle of ten tion to the marble and ite attiring.
The young clergyman, with some adroitness, adapted the serviee to the requirements of the was Bertram's, not the statue's, hand that trem hled when the bridegroom put the ring upon the fourth finger of the bride'e left hand. Still more agitated he grew when, at the minister"s injunction of "Let us pray ?" the statue knelt beside bim. "Let us pray" the conclusion of the prayer, when the prieet joined their right hands together, he felt the preseure of his own clesp returned, and all the horror of his dream oame back upon him. The enme lightning tboughte flashed, wild and dreadful, lightning tboughte
"What had he married? Not a woman, What hen ? A fiend. Wholad tempted bin Every man has some latent superstition in his Every man in the hour of his wealcnese and pervons debasement his reason may he surprised and paralyeed, and his sel-possession lost, as were Bertram's, when ho lifted the bride'e ved to swam, and his brain reeled; but wben bis lipe oyer of gloaming blue, his senses failed him; he peither saw, felt, heard nor knew anything more. It was surprising how quickly Eliftone's affectionate distrese for Bertram, whom he had loved as if he had been his own son, restored the old man to himself. He assisted St. Croix, who game conetantly to the aid of his iriend, with promptihimelt, and, looking about bim, demanded information as to what had happened to him, Elistone could only reply
"What has befallen you I cannot explain. If be not miraculous my reason wanders, and hope eomehody will St. Croix looked round the room, and perceive that the bride had vaniahed. Having firet aaked pardon of Elfatone, he withdrew Bertram, whispered in his ear a few words that brought radianoe to his eye and the emile to his lip
"I will fetch her back and introduoe her now, "Whed Bertram, rushing out of the shailo, b ildered seulptor.
" What your heart most wishes-no more, no leas," responded St. Croix. Mita, confused, blash-Bertram re-entered with Mit ing, and more heantiful than ever, and he led her to her father.
"Fnther," sald he, "the Lost Love is gono for ever, and the Found Love has takea ber plue The Mnta yon made of marble is no more, but your Muta, made of your lives and etands hefore you."
"If time could go backward or stand still for twelve yeare and more, I should call this lady m y wife, but as it cannot, she must be my daughter.
"I need proof 1 ."
y own depor tho shall teaoh me to kno world, if not my own heart and eyes. Muta, my darling ohild

Muta rushed into his arme, and the long-severe father and ehild ypre locked in the en parental and fillal love, the holieet of all.

Besats provokath thieves eooner than gold, d# You $L$ tie $t h$ ded $I$., Se. 3 .

MUTA, ons besutifill May morning, whe wandor ing down a obady lane, placking wild flowers and self the bappieat of mortale, when shs was euddenly confronted mankind, she dreeded most, Gregory Grimgrip. His look paralyeed and fascinsted her in an instant, and she stood and gazed at him till hor face assumed the vaennt and half idiotio expre sion of ber lonely childhood. Grimgrip saw hin adrantage in a moment, end was as quiekly reeolved to profit by it. Ho menacod her with reeolved to proflit by it. He menaced her with denth on the spot if ahe did not licop silent, death on the spot if ahe did not krop seized ber hand in his, and led hor away.
Jruta felt powerlese, ns we somotimee do in a er edressession entiroly foreook her. It wa not till she found hereolf shut in a close earriage and driven rapidly she knew not whither, that the pell whieb had fallen npon her, benumbing all ing hame to her a full sense of her calamity, and plunging her into a paroxysm of inconsolahile grief and deepair.
Muta was soon miesed at Ellingford Hall, and diligent senrch immedietoly made for her. Nohing was, however, ascertained that threw any hat an extromely ugly men had, on the evening previons, been seen prowling about the premiees. This was, neverthelese, enough to convince Bortram (who had just made a second visit to Liverpool, necessitated by his firet adventure in hat town), that the anthor of Muta's alhauchon was Grimgrip himselu. Wcels lapsed before any was nearly frantio, and Elfatone's great pity for him alone preserved the old man from relapsing into hie former lamentable condition. Bertram, after having bardly eaten or slept at all for a weok nd more, hed just returnad from a long and bootfass journey, ratigued and despairing, and had slumber in the library, whon Marina arrived a Elliugfora. She ent hy his Bide, and wept to view the sad siteration his bereavemont and sorron had made in hie appearance. At one time h seemed to be drcaming, and she heard her nwn her pulse, and without thinking of what ehe wa doing, she stooped down and kisecd pallid but still beantifal mouth. He woke at the gentle touch.
"Marinn," he oselaimed, with pleasure beaming in his eyes, "how I bave longed to ese you! "I bave longed to eee yon, Bertram, but from a aifferent motive. You necd me, I suppoee, for different motive. You necd me, I suppoee, something you cannot accomplish youreelf," "Ye, Marina, I do, but not for mysolf,"
"Would you dia! but your father-in-law hae told me all. I am as ignorant es yourself of Mata's mbereaboute.
"Bay not ti
"Bay not that, Marina! You are my last and only hope. Whero's Grimgrip? You surely lenow only hope, Where wbere he le to he found ?" "All I know of Mrr, Grin
"nden."
Bertram looked incredulous, and Marina hure to teare
I see you still think me eapable of deoeiving
"Pardon me, Marina. My mind is disordered and I know not what I do, and bsrdly what I would I ohall go mad if' I do not find Muta soon. that demo give hair my fortune only to kolen her. "I would accept no reward from Bertram Hap well though he had a realm to offor, but ir Mata's aptor be in England Inps in a few hours," Bertram caught the feir Frenchwoman in rme, kissed her, and vowed that she was the noblest of her eex, and the loveliest, except his darling lost Muta, Marina wes absent from the ball abont three houra. When Bertram eepied her coming np "Have you succeedod?"
"Have you succeedod
have seen me again if I had "Marina handed Bertram a direction, written with's pencil on the lack of an onvelop
"Thie man," she continued," "is t "Thie man," she continued," "is too ugly to ind a hiding-plaee in any inbubited region. I had no sooner offered my frienda, the gipsies-to whom I alwaye apply first for information-a suines to tell me who and where the ugliest man in England was, than thrce of them at once shoutcd Orimgrip, and gave me his address,
They give a very bad scoonnt of the old fellow, They give a very bad scconnt of the old flliow alleging that he is not He has bought or leased an old house by the seaside, in which he sseludes himselir with no other company than that of his deaf and dumb old housekeoper, and takes great delight in ahnsing charity.
" in urina, you are infelitible. I never knew yon been man, what a politician yon wonld have a murprise，thair sage consultations served better to kill time than to benefit them in any other and ons who was now always on his grard．Their sapient messares and deoidsd sction proved therefore of no avail，and after ransacking Grim－ grip＇s residence from collar to roof，and thorongh－ If searching the nsighborhood withont discovering a trace of peor Mnta，of whom he denied all knowlodge whatever，they were obliged to relin－ quish their efiorta，in spite of Bertram＇s longing quish theirevere．
When the last hope war gons Bertram walked up to Grimgrip，and said
＂I do not beliere that you think yon do or can dsceive me．I know that yon have etolsn my wife， and hove her concealed in some durance here about．Yon aro guilty of this crimes，but not oon－
vieted of it，and therefore I eannot kill you．Bnt， murk me well，if I find that you have eo mnch as i jurked ono hair of her head，or even threatened her with wrong，during your imprieonment of her， Ill have your heart ont，thongh I have to tear it from your bedy with my neked han．
＂I know nething of your wife．＂
＂I know nothing of your wie．＂ of eternal despar．Rememhier－for every pang that Muta Hapswell suffers，yon shall endure a thonsand ；so，the shorter you make her captivity， the bettar for your wretched self．＂ ＂Mr．Hapswoll，you talk to me as if you were diressing eomo wild caunihal．Your suspicion howe a guilty mind；your insulte，a debased one； and your thren your worst loum looked at the fearloes，infurinted old man，his faco inflamed and distorted with paeelon， and but for his ＂You aro playing a dangerous game，old man，＂ aid he，matering hia wrath；＂but boldly and freely as yon venture yon will lose，as surely as Whon lo on your for When the they met Marina st some distance from the hall，and stopped their postchaise to take har up． Thare＇s Mata ？＂said she，looking into the
＂You have not left hor with old Grim－ grip，have you ？＂
＂We turned his
＂We turned his house and grounds upeide down， Elfatone． Elfstone．
moment a $\begin{aligned} & \text { neer curved her most beantiful }\end{aligned}$ month．She said，coldly ＂Tho old follow was too keen for yout，eh？I laared as mneh．Drive on ；I esmo out for a walk vith Flora，who expected you to reatore her mis tress to her．＂
Flora was Flora was a pet spaniel of Mutn＇e，a present ram leaped out of the earriage and told the driver to proceed，ss he intended to wall tho rest of the ＂And so yon think that Muta
rimgrip＇s house，after all．＂ rimgrip＇
＂I do．＂
＂But y
＂But you have uo idea how suddeuly wo pounced upon the old wretch，and to what a close acrating ＂I kjected him and his belonginga．＂ tram，＂

Then why do you ancer at our failure ？＂ one，and have therefore some right to yeur con－ done，and hive therefore some rignt to yeur con－ rithout affording me the opportumity of edvieing with you．How long had you heen endeavoring to find Grimgrip，when，in despair，yon resorted to me for aid and guidance？I succeeded in thres to me for ＂Well？＂
＂Well＂＂
＂What ehall I do ？＂
＂When next you visit Mr．Grimgrip＇s castle taka somsbedy ＂Yourself ＂
＂I make no pretension to the charncter＂ Marina called t Marina called to the little dog that followed her， whioh immediately leaped into bor arms．She presented the little orenture to Bertram． ＂Take Flora＂ ＂Take Floral＂
＂By Jove，you are right，girl！Mora would you hit npon the only an army．How inevitably you hit npon tbe only right idea．You malee me ashismed of myself，and respect your sex more and more every timo I moet you．What a hroin you have for a general，a primo minister or an em－ preeal Reinforced with Flora，I will return to the ghoul＇s don to－morrow，and reacue Mata．She hall learn to love you as well as I do．＂
＂Botter，if you please．＂

Botter，if you please．＂
Ahtina ；I am myself afraid to thinle how much，＂ When Bertram reaohed the hall，he fonnd letter awaiting bim of a most ominous exterior． The sddress was in his mother＇e handwriting，
and Bertram，whoso presolent nervousness at timee proved to him more overwhelming than the saddest reality，let the letter fall in his tremulort attempts to hreak its seal．
She complied，and read these words，all the note contained： ＂My dear eon，your father ie dying．Come without a momente dolay，or you may he too
Bertram＇e color now fled from his cheeke and lips as if he had received at deatbstroke，and from falling．Hie grief and dietrese were extreme， onbled by each counter and imperious eummone， duty asd death．He wae bowildered，confounded，
and torn by terrible and conflicting emotiona，
＂Imnst go，＂he muttered，olmost inartion－ lately．
＂Yes yon matat retarn to your parenta withont delay Why do yon pause？＂
＂I go，Marinn；lint what may not hnppen to Mnts while I am watohing by the bedside of my dying father？Is it not by the bedside of my no effises ahould both occurat this moment？I no efiort to be made for her recovery from ths ＂Dear Bertram－
＂I baved yon from death once．Save me－ rescue Muta now，and your debt shall be cancelle and my life for ever after at your servioe．＂
＂You do but exect the fulfilment of a promise， Bertram formed．

Do you think you will succeed？＂
I am not apt to fail，Bertram，and in this un－ dortaking death only shnill halk me of snceess． You littlo gucss what a sacrifice I must make to obey you，but were it a thousand times greater， for your bake it flould be offered ne freoly as $m$ orisons to heaven．Hasten to your father，and rest ascured that when you retum bither，if Ma－ rina does not give your darling to your arms，she rina does not give your darling to your arms，she will herself have doparted wbithor your father is going．Goed－bye，Bertraml＂

onuptran xvi．

eoon as tarime wes fuirly started on rney，she said to herself： ＂Now，shall I see this pretity baby face of which Bertram is so much enamored．According to his own glowing statoment she is half s natural，but he doee not love her a whit the less on that ac－ count．Unless a man hove tbe mind of a boy on archangol，he prefers a pretty nonontity for a wife，and women of soul have to put up with imbecilos．Bertram is a nohle fellow，too deli－ cately nervons and $\begin{aligned} & \text { 日ensitive，hat true } \\ & \text { and lirave ae a lion in the hoar of peril，end－and }\end{aligned}$ －I love him－how mnoth he will never know，un－ lises he himsais should need the sachice of my ouly where I most deaire to win－where I love． With Bertram I am powerless，for when with him psesion melts my streagth into wenknoss．Yet it may be beet so，and eomething whiepers，＇Hope ！ may be best so，and eomething，Whiepers，＇hopest Marina was not boru to fail．＇What she most longs for is only withheld a while that it may be the more wolcome and the more onjoye Towarda the evening of that day Mr，Grimgrip was aurprised by a vieit from an elegant lady， whose voiled countenance he failed to recognise， but whicb hrought recollections to his mind that made him shnidder

＂Mr．Grimgrip， ＂Yes madame＂，

＂My nameio．
＂My name ie Marina Nitouche．＂ ＂rimgrip otarted．She lifted her veil． I am the dauchter of Madamo Nitouche who you knew so well．Do I not reesmble her？＂ Too mnch－too mach ？
I am satisfied．Sbe has done me great wrofig in denying me．＂
＂But whom do
＂But whom do you call Madame Niteuohe？＂ demanded Grimgrip，turning pale．＂Mathilde Nitouohe I knew too well，but she was married， and died many yeare sgo，＂
＂I know you believe wb
＂I know you believe wbat you say，hat she you speak of is living．You shall see her，＂ Grimgrip sank beatk into his chair，like Grimgrip sank beols into his chair，like ＂Do you wish me to bring madame here？＂ ＂Ged forbid！is she eo near？
＂She is still in France，＂
＂Did she send you to me？＂
＂I come with he
＂Her deaghter
＂Her duughter？Why，you just told me you ＂So I beliovo I am，but I mean her daughter ＂Muta，her daughter？＂ ＂Certainly．Would she were not sol
Grimgrip langhed，and the devil himself could ＂I see it all＂＂
＂I see it all，＂said he．＂You are a spy in the Marina rose from her seat，and，towering，walked towards tho old man，her eyes darting light at him like flashee frome gun．
＂What am
＂What am Ir＂
The daughter of Mathilde，and as fierco a fond as your mother．But she is mad，and so are you，to tall of Muta＇s being a daughter of hers or mine．Sho may be a relative of yonra，but as I have retused her to her own father，it is not likely that I will give her up to yon． Grimgrip，in the excitement and bewilderment of the moment，had lost his wonted seli－pesses－ Bion，and Berved it．
＂I assurs yon I am not partioularly anxious that you shonld reetore hor，for she is my success－
fuil rival with more than one，and I am right glud to find that you have got her safe．I heve die－ charged my duty in demanding her，and for your refusal you must nocount to my mother．She wil not hrook your retention of this pretty faco，I ean tell you．I wonder what on earth you are going consider your reply．I will etop with you till to－ morrow and take hack your auswer．＂
＂The drugiter of sueh a dewn
＂The drughter of sueh a demon sleeps not un－ der the sume roof with me．＂ ＂Juts as yon plesee，Mr． no particnlar favor to aek－－uee more courtesy in your address to me，for it ie not worth your wbile to make me your enemy．As yet，I assure yon，I am your triend．In that charaeter allow me to in－ am your triend，
quire what madneas impela yon to conoeal Mnta？

Whose deughter is she but Elistons＇s？And what claim have yon upon his flesh and blood？＂ ＂An andeniable one npon his heart＇s blood．Yon are the right one to p ．
Who is your father？＂

＂You，logally．

＂Aye，bni not traly．Yon are the daughter of attempted my murier；you are the fruit of my disgrice，and the sight of you whets my revenge to a sharpn all hope．＂

I am ногry I have put yon in eo unenviable a rame of mina，Mr．Grimgrip，bnt hope yon will pardon me for observing thast much as you may be dsserving of sympathy on account of the wrongs yon have sustained，your metbod of revenge is truly despicable．Jpon whom do you wreak your matice？Upon me，a poor outoast，uncared even by her fathor and mother，and left to the merey of meroilese world．Upon this innocont and ill－ fly．Ont upor you fora glad yon refuse to own mo－I should scorn such a rather．Why don＇t you face your setunl injurers and avenge yourself upon them？ ＂Did I not faco EUUAtone when he came bither backed by the police？He will not care to repeat to yon what $I$ said to him．As for Mnta，ahe is my ward．Her mother made me hor guardian，and ward．Her mother made me hor guaruan，and apprenticed hor to me till ahe becomes elgbteen years of ago．I paid Mrs．Elfatono handoomely not going to be oheated out of them．The mother was periectly sane at the time the agreemont was made，and the father as mad aes Mareb hare，and of course no fitting party to sny compsct．I beve tho documente in my posession and will show bem to you，＂ ＂save yonrself the trouble，sir．This matter minor be asserted and proved in open court．You ndmit your possession of the unhappy cause of dispute．＂ ＂I deny it．＂ hall have to awear to what you firat told mo．But this is all beside the question，IEm epenking of the sheer madnees of your conduct in hiding Eli－ stone＇s danghter and Hapswell＇e wife in some dun－ stone＇s danghter and Hapawell＇e wife in some dun geon or other．Do younot perceive the barharous monstrosity of the deed？What will my mother say to your illicit coneenlment and detention of anybody else who should shut up an son ehild in a den to deprive it of a parent＇e love？Yon have as much right in this matter as you have to ateal the first young bride you meet－no more． Talk not of justiee and retaliation－this is simply brutal violation．If Muta were oingle and you a widower，I might，by a wrench of imagiuation， snemy＇s only danghter，the heiress of Ellingford， young onough to be your grendchild，to marry your wife，my mother，is alive，in health，and not at all likely to pat up with this outrage quietly， Yon must not，therefore，wonder at people for at tribatiag to you the most diabolical intentions to wards your poor littlo captive，rendoredhalf idiotic by your neglect，end too innocent to underotand what you are about．Really，MIr．Grimgrip，Ithink it were a charity to suppeee you mad，ae you вay Mordaunt Fifstone was，for even madnees ie pre－ ferable to baseneas so vile and dotectahle．Do you not eee this matter in a
you did，Mr．Grimgrip？

I cannot bslieve my wife ie living．
＂I saw her alive recently，and make no doubt ais is eo now，for I received a letter from her but she is 80 no yesterday．＂

Show me tbat letter．＂
＂I don＇t know whothor I can or not，I may havo burned it and it may be still in my reticule．
Yes，here it is，sir．＂
Grimgrip took the letter，examined the address， postmark，seal and envolope；took out the con－ tents，scrutinised the ponmanship，and rftep task－ ing and obtaining pormission，read every line of it．＂It is hers，indeed；no other woman conid write a communication betraying in every sentence so much utter healtlessness．，Mr．Grimgrip，you will eave a world that door．＂
Marina pointed to what appeared to be a dead wall，but at which Muta＇s pet apaniel had been sniffing and scratching during twsen Grimgrip and Marins． ＂Keen as＇your mother，＂ plating Mariua with extorted admiration，＂Feeen ae she，and atill more besutiful．Take your aigter， for ebe is balf that at least．My game is ap．
He rose from his seat sluggiehly，lit a lamp， preesed hard upen a spring which caused the con－ preesed hard upen a spring which cansed the con－
cealod door to fly open，revealing another bolted and locked，which，when opened inward，disoov－ of vault or cave．Grimgrip and Merina，followed hy the spaviel，descended．Helod tho way through a low narrow passage，and emerged into a brond and higher part of the eavorn，dimly lighted throngh crevices in the rock，end by a fire amoni－ dering in the centre of the apartment．The dea of conceaiment，but its mouth towards the ses had been long oloeed up，end its connection with the house never known save to a few，forgotten，or rather the eccret had died with them that know it．Opon a rude couch near the fre lay a female the sleeper．Tho leaped apon the bed，and cormmenced to lick her hand．Muta，for it wae ebe，opened ber large lue eges，and her geze encountored that of Marina，who was bending over her．Mut was fasoinated by the black，dazzling orhe that seemed to be searehing her soul，and she foit saemed to alarmod．
＂Don＇t be afraid，Mnta，＂selid a swestly reassur－ ing voice．＂I am Marina；I have come to take yon voice．＂I am Marina ；I have come to take The tone and smile of the speaker oarrisd ecs tasy to the eaptive＇s heart，and Mnta threw her－ self into the arms of her hair roscner and wept and sobbed for joy．Poor Flora，who wae doing her sest to for joy．Poor Flora，who wae doing her mistress＇s attention，now barked to attract it and vent her feelings．Her ma mozavrea in for a full shave with sucoese，and she camo turous moment to hoth，but when Muta perceiveck Grimgrip，she trembled with fear，and her glad－ ＂Why，littlo one，do you form． ＂Why，littlo one，do yon fear him $\mathrm{P}^{2}$ said Merina， ntemptuouely．＂Teli me but that he has ahused you，and YII etab him whero he standal＂ ＂He hasn＇t been unkind to me，except in keop－ ing me so much in this dark plaeo，and in threat－ oing never to let me ont till I consentod to marry bina，But I love Bertram eo dearly that I would rather die than have another hualgnd＂ The pang of beari Marina felt，and felt，and Muta＇s sim－ plicity，broaght a strange smile to her kipe
＂You are a grest baby，Mata．Whist do you think your teeth pails，impse and hink your teeth，nails，limbs and lmngs were given you for，if you conld not use them in proventing a you for，if you conld not use them in proventing a feeble old man from tearing you awry from tho leeble old man from tearing you nwuy from tho hearta and home you lovod？ the man I did not love running awny with aud playing the tyrant over mel＂ tigr would rather slope with a royal Bengal tigress，＂ropliod Grimgrip，litterly．＂You have all your mother＇s fatal fierceness，end the soonor you，your silly protegéa and her cur quit my house， the sooner I ahall be xid of an intolerablo nui the soo sanco．
Grim Grimgrip wae not long encumlierod with each preeence，but when Muta and Marina wore gono， cesolation，dofeat and diacriee fell uponse of him witb ruehing weight，as if it had only beon suspended till they were out of sigbt．The wreteh he was hs
now felt himeelf to he，and it is a wonder he did not commit suricide under the oppression of his deapair．

the crossing of the james．

 THE orossing of a large river like the James， is the face of s large hostile army on each bank，to one probsbly without a parallel in history．In bis dispatch Those who witnessed the eceree ropresent it as one ofanuanul gramicur，and our Artiat，citching the spirit of nuaunul grandeur，and our Artiat catching the spirit of the oceanlor，bus transforred it to papers

FOREICN NEWS
The nows is very unimportant．There liad boen a dobate in the Hoves of Lorde on Federal Enliat ments of Britiah subjects，which had chitiod very cardo and Broutham．Lord Russell complained of th compation of the Foderna Goverament to Lord Lyan complaint，but edded that the Sonthern Confederney muthorities at Weshingtion． Docn extended a fortiitht．
In France the Moxich quetion had become apitited gain，sid Louis Nafoloon hadiongrested to kngland the

UNION HALL, SARATOCA

Wm. W. Leland, Proprietor

Descreby Saratogal. Who will attompt it? The theme han hocn sasayed by so many: yet Arnerican life in so volatiles so evancs.
oent, eo fall of etrange changes and stranger contrasts, that the well studied desoription of one beshon by tho next oxcitse the morriment of oll, and whon five yeare old has all cho exquasite oroma of anaqu, with ith comoworld knows Saratsgn, ond whourar hne eajoyed saratssa, wian ith conchow long ago did you know Union Hall? Aomewhere dowit in the year 1802 , hapi this, and do you know that it lo kopt ty w. W. Leland, Fiq, one of that wonderfuid farally who have aobieved the greatest of modern expermeed we say more - pees we toll jou that jt is the largest botel in Earatoga Springe-that the front is so long that whon you liave twice walked it to and mo sou have nearly ncoompindied a milo? Look at the exterico, what can he more ottiraotive? Do not suppose that you have hers the oldtonhloned four hy nine roome. These are build for comfort. Entar the fanhlonod four hy nine rover and hallge thoumand more ore sented hero;

 through the midde no less thas ten feet.
hreahfist, dine and sap at ense, without fiear of to ench one, so that yon glass of wine, or, what may he worse, sending your coting your neighhor's along the costly, elidito of the lady heside you Not for the wine's anke do we say this, for oholee sa good wine is in these glorlous duys of texes, Mr. Lolnnd e wine-room reproctonts a valne of $$ 50,030$.
Then think of the erbbetantia food proviled here, and of the delicacies of every ahape and lind that a finished eaterer can rupply, or the keenest gournaand can devire, In anything lueking? Are not the tablos losided to approach it us a hahitual thing A A handred waiters nerve gon. Is no their astecadance sppirilitike, constant y yot mufeolt?

Leland, the untiring, the flecplese, ever to be found, call when you will from six in the mosung till twelve at $t$ ight, is the mininpring of the grest mechine, and it moves not thee a machino after all, but rother liko the teiograph or eomuthing impelled hy some new and imperceptiblo power.
You run from the citice for air, Union Hall wilcomea you. Eight me You run from the citice for alr, Union Hall welcomes you. Eight men over ethand at the door ts receave your baggage and condact you to jour veren or your cothage.
our sumase hegorts-ushon hati, baratoon, whuan lehand, Eaq., proprietor.
There you find comfort, and without its many acrod lawn, with ith There you find comfort, and without its many acrod lawn, with its sccular treos, thouelit of it, and pack off for the spot, having atrendy in imseinution dimed there. The sacmo from the plazza of Union Hall is most atiractive Being opposita Congress Springs you eee all Saratogat there. From the hotel itpolf come forth the most distingutehed of men, the most worlafarued of women, from ite porch dashl off equipagee that have no matcb, Tor a aplonald turn out, Enion Holl has grcat atractions. Your car For a aplondid turn out, Union Hall has grcet attractions, Your car, fingo and pair are well takeñ oars of four cochman has a room in riago and pair sire woil taken oars of, in in good order. Your carriagn rolls to the door in good trim when yon need it to rids to the lake, the anttio-ground, or where you will.
The Lolanas are well.known, having conducted clinton Hotel, and anhisquently tha Matropolitan, with a aloll whioh tho diecorning pablio suhscquently tho Metropolitan, repaid by the hoon of successe Willinm, who now alone assumes the management of Union Hall, and whoee portrait we give, wise at one timo an immense etselk raiter fin Toxak, where hin realm was counted not by acras but by milloe, He if hero North : a Union man, csritain tho man for ding thented torm will attest. Caply eaouitut, who lacw and appreciated Mesmrs. Putnam and Payn need fear no change that will dieturh their consarvative motions, Dr Pagn will remain thano ts welcome them warmily, and point ont apPayn wil remain coseronts in 1894 .
provingly thichprovem. D . Harmon, who han had eifht yeare experienco
In tho omle, Mr. Whe in tho house, will ofaciato as room clerk i Mr. James R. Marvin ae bill coerk, oesisted by W. G. A. Drake, as enshter, who aspeaks Fronch ond Spunish fluendy. The bar will be nnder the charge of Montgomery Avery, asisieted by N. S. May and otbers. B. P. Waling, tbe copable and wivry, wide-jwhese stoward, will he assinted hy J. f. Chnpman. Mise Gilgore, tho popalar houselkeeper for thirteer sessons, will continue to ill that pool-tion. Hans shedd, the capable hend waiter, who has besn connected with Mronsileur Victor Comée, chief cook of wi'l Anthony Baden an confectionar.

THE HARP.
Amono the Hehrews the harp served as an acoompaniment to songe of pratse and gladnees, and wha never need in times of aflictlon. They hanged
 In Hike mannur Job'e harp to changed suto mourning Whilet thi hand of eriet proesed hasvily apon him. Turione mpirit of Eaul; axd ino gitt of prophecy appears nlso to have becen oxclted by lin use. It ta reasoneblo to suppose that the Biblical harpe were of vurion rizes, suppose that the Bibisoal harpe were of vurion sixess, a,
they were phyed whille sittiog, walking and diving lova, and resched its hilcheat polnt of perfoction in the tinoo of Davil. Tbe number of ths etringe have varled Lino of Davil. The number of lts stringe have varled from tour to 47. In the Taluad ts presorved s carious trailition to the tiflot that over ino bed of Davia, factigg
the north, a liserp was ruapended milnigbt, the north rind toucthed the chorda, they otbore toat tion Athenisish conslidered the intrument an exotio refinemanty nud the Rbodian women, who their axtraordinaly identity. TVey believe that li woin in Hor to the harp.

The celte bards held the harp in the tighe bortio lund considered lt almost thatise

tion of ine sacriaco of to maes.
Tho hietory of the

 vorges coraposed by thenaelves or otberis. Tliseir edill

 Tboee duty lt wae to preservo suthantio recorala, and vorious kinda of knowleaco, in the national momory

 clualing inem,
and roguts.

OLD ADVERTISEMENTS.

Someropy who has heen overhauling the nud elsembero, claluas to havo discovered Le ot the earlicot edvartisemant published in tho Engiag linguage wns
ine offer of a veward for fine recovery of a "piebald

 linga pre bottle.
contriderine the art of nemempper parfing wae
ine

A Wabmegron paper, in alluding to the re

FUN FOR THE FAMILY.

A nuby, paying a visit to her daughter, who was a young widow, asked hor why she wore the widor's gari) so long ${ }^{\text {Den }}$,

the stodite widow'a cament,

Affection's cord, thongh now in train
 Oh, bla me not control my grief,
Nor keep my fealingo ing Nor tell mop, now, to colm my woes,
For 1 have gol-Wis "tim," That fuce of bie f oheridiod deaz $\mathbf{I t}$ ming no more, yon know;
 The ulght winds moan eround his cravo, And, whilo he's held in pesceful aleop.
Til catch another-lind.
Thon let my teare flow on in pesoe,
And as tboy geutly tow And bear to to goonaty in maw manly breast-Tbu burden of my woo.

Ob, for the fors of vanlghed youth, which With him did ebare Would that I had inem beck again
To give eomo-othar dear.

The birds are atoning fint to reet,
The kitions ceok the rugk; Oh, lot muens weep, for throrgh nyy teara
Ith nee some one-to hug 1 Al dark, all darkt, the pust appeari
Bine9 him 1 loved in deudi

 For him, doar noul, can bant weep,
And find-lis counterparth

Thea tell me uot to check my grieff

Thes Shylock who, with head erect, with honestit popple minglea, bbould case to shove his follow man, and go to phaving giningice.

AT a meoting for "mntani improvement"
 would be & moeting in that houno "everery Wednesdiny ovening annualy and aiternitey," And it wre it one of fino

 been recelved
"Wrire We were foraging in Sequachie, Which ended with the battlo of chlcnunugys, our boys nod to get up cotilion partiee, eto, in the country

 $\Delta \mathrm{N}$ individual, having heen to chnoroh, tournod hompe earlior than usiul, end wha cuiked:

In one of lifs plays Addison makes an undertaker thue upbraid a mute, who had haphedat anderal "Yon rateni, youl I have boen ralsing your wazea for sorrownit and the higher waged yourective the happte Fou look ${ }^{\text {" }}$ Dar. Bours, who was very angry when any jote wat parsed on lis profoasion, once enide

Women are said to have stronger attachments then men. It it not go. $A$ man la oiten attached to o old hat; but did you ovar kuow of B woman boring an Mrs. Macaular having pnhlished her "Looe

\%  FOTRTI  PRIZE MEDALS

OVER ALE COMPIETETORS.
OFIIXIX EIETING dc SOINE, Grand, Square and Upright Pianofortes.

TEALBHRG'S ODRTIFICATM Stateo, and will comnvare favorably with my I huve over Imown.
Warerooms, 652 3roadway, N. F., 246 W/ashington Street, Boston Seaside Summer Resort FATBHIELD HOUSE, FATPFISID, coNN, This favorite add bplendid summer kesort wes opecued for isitora

Bportemaon, Mourists AND ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERE, portability comblned with cransparent power to sirenenth-

an sud improvo tho sifht

WESTWARD FIO!

 a Home and independence FOR ONTEX $5O THi dimsoin diry hisociniox

HOSTETTER'S celezeratid STOMACH BITTERS.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,

The Government Loan $$ 200,000,000$.

Thin Loan if authorized by Att of Congreas of March 8th, 185s, which providos for lis ReDEMP. TON IN COIN, at any period not less than ten or more han forty ycars from lta date, at the pleanure of the overnment.

Until its Redemption, five per cent. fatorast to bo pald sombernuanty IN COIN.
Subscriptionis to tho Loan aro recelved by the Netlozal Bnnks in United 8titos notes or ir such our-ronoy or othur funds as are tatien by them on deposit et por.

Ite exompuion from state or Loeal Taxation sdae from one to three por oent. per annum to its valua.
The Rate of Interest on thin lomn, allhough but
 and gold.
As a renie, the five per cons apoclo seourities of Alsolvant governmanto aro elwayo par or cabove, and worth its face in gold, beridos paylug o regular ond iberal percentage to the holdon

The ruthorizeal Amonat of thls lown io Two Hundred 1 mion Dollana No mation

$$ 70,000,000$

Bnbsortptions will be recolved by the
 and the Ansurusr Truenove

First National Bank of Now York, No. 4 Wall Btreet. Second National Bank of N. Y., 马ad Bt and Broudway. Third Nattonal Bank of $\mathrm{N}, \mathbf{Y}$., 6 Nasami gi Fourth National Bank of N. X., 27 nad 29 Pine 8t. Fiohb National Bank of N, $\mathbf{Y}$., 338 Third Ave. saxth Notional Bank of N, X., tith $\Delta v$. and Broadway, Ninth National Benti of N. $\mathbf{Y}$., 365 Brondway. Tonth Notlonal Bentic of N, X., 240 Broadway Netloual Exehengo Benk of N., Y., 184 Greonwleh SL.
AND BY ALL NATIONAL BANKS
che dopositarten of Pubilo monoy, and all regieotable banks and bankers farooghout the conntry (acting as agenta of tho National Dopositary Banka), will farniah forther information on appllestion, and AFFORD EVERY FAOUITY TO BUBBOBIBERS.

DSARNUMS

Ereserves tho Eyes, ovolde bending. No barting.

GOURAUD's Italian Medicated Soap,

 Caryesper, Philadelphla; H. D. Roansbos, Portiand, and Druggithe generilly.
C. S. Sea, In. D., Baltimore, 36 yeara Important Cardis Froen

TOVF REMAMIX
THE RECORD
PARIS, LONDON
NEW YORK FASHIONS.
GPRING NO., 1864.
WITH THE LARGEST COLORSD PLATE
Ever given in any fublication.
Price 25 Cente.

J. H. WINSLOW & CO.
 100,000
 Wowth $500,000:

 Tho 10th Army fin solua siviver, 5150

The Confessions and Bxperience of an Invalid.

IT your want to EEnOW

MEDICAL COMMON SENSE.

[DISTILEDDEW]

Do Yon Want Luxuriant Whisiers or IMKoustaches?

Shotogyaph Cards for Gortlomono-

Wantod Bvorywhore, good reliable

Attention, Company!

 66970 P. O. Drawer Ais, Albany, X. y.
 tor Crovilss. Adidress 0. w. PHHO, Brooklgn, N. Y.
Beauty- Erunt'o Whito Yiquid Enam-

 If you want a First Rete Glee Book Obthin "THE 3USECAL LYRA," oontatuing Now end

FUTEINIMTERE, FMEINIMUERE: WHOLESALE AND RETAIL,  DEGRAAF & TAYLOR, (EORMERLY F. P. DHGRAAF),

NO. a7 BOWVBHT, NTEVV YOFRE.
 one of the larget Furriture Hounes in the United Blatera

ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND CHAMBER FURNITURE;

Mahogany and WaInut, Parlor and Chamber Furniture;
 ENAMELLED OHAMBER FURATIUBE, in Beta, from $$ 22$ to $$ 100$,
Tucker's New Style Patent Spring Bed,

Brokev30 Stock of Unredeomed Goods           FRANK LESLIE'S  LADY'S MAGAZINE

GAZETTE OF FASHION FOR JUND, 1864.

NOV memady,

This firt of Lodraa Magrifiee, with suparior sttractions.
A Mammoth Colored Fashion-Plato. Four-Page Cut of Fashions
 tor Chilidren, eta, eto, otc.

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE,

 by miss bradddon,Ie continned in this numhors, whith contains many adt. tor; among the reet, full deecription and illuastration
of tha

New Tawn Crames of Croquet and Troco.

PRECE PS CENTE.
For ssle at all Newredealerg,

Soldiers' MLoney Belts, WITH COMPARTMENTS FOR Photographs, Greenbueks and Lettors., Evory eoldier can hive cooc scat to him hy rolutr mail (postage pail).
 Hozpital and Citre
$\mathrm{N}_{1}, \mathrm{~B}$, The Trade liberally deall with

EMPLOYMENT

 AT YOUR OWN HOMES.

 The subserimer continuen to reoeive and resa mann.
acripts thin emaze manner, giving lis candid opinion oncerning them, and arranging tor thoir printing end
oubhcaton, when desirod to do go Ho mikes bhat

Ad and honefit anthors,
In ald coses lettery of odvos should be forwardod by maib,

Cooley's Cabinet Frinting Office

 FOR THE ARNY ANDMorchants, Dankerse, Teachere Amateure,
And warrsintod to print in the bent mauner. Bend for ofrcoular. J. a. OOOLEX, Sprnce St, N. Y
MATRIMONIAL FAVORS
BRIDAL GETS, BRIDAL GARNITURES, BRIDES-
At TUCOEFR's, 759 Broadway. Fi. WV. झTINIOETEX, PHOTOGRAPH CALLERY, No. 2 Now Chamhers Etroet, Hon now increased feouitios to take Cartes de Yiste, in woll as othar Pbotographs, in the beot style. Notwith Oard Pictures $$ 150$ per doz. -8 tor $$ 1$.
Card Vignottes $$ 3$ per ard vignottes $\% 3$ por doz.
Largo sizo Photographa, 2 for $$ 1$. sll other Photographs up to liffe elze coilored in oll or wator tet the moet reafonbible prices, 45T Partlcular athantion given to Copying Cards or Ambrotypes in to Large Photograpbs. Tive nmalieato most dofteed pichuro can ob , wy tho ald of his ex enced arthits, copied into a handsome photograph. Every attontion paid to viditors widhing to examine the spociment.

860 A MONTH: I want Agenta at $$ 60$ month

DURYTA'S MEATKTHA

agCerved two prize medais
(From Juriee 3 and 4) at tho INTERNATIONAL EXYIBITION,
at the Great International Exhibition a Highet Prize Itedal for tit Great Delicacy as an Article of Fod.

 WM. DURYEA, Agent, 166 Fuiton St, N. Y NOW RERADY.

The new namber of tbe great Comlo and Batirical Paper of tho times, No .70 of FKANK LESLIEMS
BUDGET OF FUN
Containing a grand Mriltary and Humorons Cartoon of the War, heing the Eouthern Crookback and his sior the Wart, hoing the southern Crookback and his six Richmondhetbo Figbt for tho Caho-and Uncela Sam and Kaperor Max-hesiden numerons other astiriea and Kapperor Max-hesiden numeroas other astirieal and huiborous engravings hy the moot popular lving

75,000 Watches, Chains, &c. VODIMHEX $$ 400,000$.
To bo sold for Ons Dollar each, withont regand to value,

 450-62 P. O. Drewer 119, Albany, N. $\mathbf{A}$.

The Barly Physical Degeneracy of American People,

 pitation, mpaired sutrition and Digestion.
Diot rall not to end two red shamps and obtain thia book Addreza DR. ANDIREW STONE,

"Poychomancye"-FIow oither sex may

Matrimony, -Why overy man ehould
 Mailed in sesiod envelope
12 White Street, New York.
$$ 100$ per MKonth, Active and reliahle
Agente in tho Amy and averywhero elige in tho monl 4 AT-G7 $\quad$ T.

madanty mancidicir

Millinery & Dressmaking Establishment Is now roplete with hyEat miported novelit of the geabos. 12 Wavenuik Praoz, New Your
The Creat Thonoy-inaling Articlon greerybady needs it. Agants or Soldion can mako $$ 10$
 $\int_{000}^{25 \text { eanta. Addreas }}$ E. H. MARTIN, Hinadaie, M. H.

New Eorls MKonthly.
Oet it and read Lincedn and Johneon's padigroe, and learn how Grant's gotog to unto the North and Bouth

$10 AGEINTS $$ 10$

FRAANK LIESLMEPS

Unrivalled Publications

Tranit Loslie'e Tady'e Magazine nnd
OAZETTE OF FASHON The best Fanily Mand Gazerte or Fasmion The best Family Magazing puhlished. The reading portion is the oream of contemporary Engilikh literature. The Huatrations uri unsurpsseed in number and execntion.

Erank Eoolio"e Ton Cent Monthly, the Ledger of tho Mragazinee, full of hriliant starien and other Illustrated mettur. 81 per annum; 10 ata. a No.

Frank Eeslie's Illustrirte Zeitung, the only Gerrann Illastrated paper in the country. $$ $ 8$ s0

Frank Ieolie"e Eady"o Ilustrated AlMANAO, a Tery valanble and attractive woric. Prico 25 cents.

60 per ceant, premium pald for prizes. Information fornibbei. H ghast price pald tor Douhloons aid all finds of Gold and Silicr.

A NEW NOVEL
By Mrs. ANIN S. STEPHENS,
THE INDIAN QUEEN.

 HEADLE & CO., Publifhern,

For Hardening & Invigorating ths Gams

 HALL & DUOKEL, Propriotors,

American Gold Pen Co.

 Manufincturera of GOLD PENS and PENCLL OASES AGRNTS WANTED threugbant the Conntry. Extra amerioan gold pen co.,

BRIDCEWATER PAINT

Nervoue Diseaees and Physical Debility, ariflog fonn Spechico coneeo, in both scxen-now and relibio treatment in Reports of tho HOWARD Howsrd Aeso

WM. KNABE & OO. GRAND AND SQUARE PIANOS,

BALTMOR

 Intrument
for five juars.
Prlco Price litst promptly
WM. $\mathbb{E N A B E} \& 00$.

COOD NEWS FOR THE ARMY!

Hercofter wo wil rend, potpaid, any of onr pHoTO-GRAPIIC ALBUMS ordered by soldters for themselves or friencis, हiving an Album of tho rill value of the

CARD PHOTOCRAPHS

Stereoscopes and Stereoscopic Visws. Our assortment of these in very extenvive, including a graat variety of viewz of the prsient War. Catalogna bant on receipt of etamp.
 *5s-60-2-40 Manufnetaraire of Pbotographle Marterial

The Cilebrated CRAIO MICROSCOPE,
 IEO Centro Strect, N. Y

C. W. IHENCHI, 607 Broadway, N. $\mathbf{x}$.
GENTLEMEN'S FURNISH'G GOODS

 bining all ther neveltites
of tuos scauon an they apper in Paris and

and London. FINE SHITTS | CONLARS |
| :--- |
| ADE ORDER, |
| TO |

Autlors and Agonte can mako $$ 5$ per

Pamionta Youna Lapy-" Neqer mind your ankles, Jennie; we had better go with short skirts than our brave soldiers want bandages.
$$ 15$ PER DAY
$\stackrel{a}{a n}$

 B. 0 . RTCEARDS $& 00$., 102 Nanoan Strect, Now
int

裸絙 BALLOU'S

 patented FRENCH YOKE SHIRTS Warranted to FIT, CHEAPER Oircuias contain inf drawiogit and
prices sent fres, princlps1 deale BALLOU BROTHERS, 403 B

Broadway, N. Y
BALLOU BROTHERS, 403 Broadway, N. Y.

Wheeler & Wilson's Highest Premium

80GK

Eevving Machines 464.90 625 BROADWAY, N. Y.

TED BOW HN MIICROSCOPD, Magpifying 500 mnres, maned to any eddress for 36 et Fown of diferent powers for $$ 1$. Addre

Stammerina

EDGE'S FIREWORKS !
Wholesals and Retail.
DEPOT, No. 424 BROADWAY.
FIRE CRACEEESS, ROMAN CANDLEQ,

CHINA FLYERS, PIN WHEELS, DENGOLAS, TRLNGLES,
FLYNX PIGEONS, SHNE OURBILLONS, OR TABLE ROCEETS, SOROTES, WFRTCAL WHEES, SAAL EXHBITHON PIECES
DLUE LIGHT8, SERPENTS, GRASS HOPPEES, BALLOONS, LANTERES, JOSTIOK, ete., ATFRED WOODFAME, 424 Broadway.

CAMPAIGN MEDAL    Paglo Medal.. 50 cta Par Doz...... 84.50 50  Munro's 10 Cent Novels !      - GLORGL MunRo, 137 willam St., N. Y.  A GPNTS, call or Band 30 conts for Spacimen of  459.1  American, Ewise and Finglish Watchee  | T. B. DXNNEL, 178 Drond way, N. Y |
| :--- |
| 0000 |  CREAT

STEINWAX & SONS,
Nos, 71 and 73 Fourteonth St., N. $\mathbf{Y}_{\text {, }}$
Were amarded a First Prize Medal at the loto Great International Exhbition, London. There wer wo bundred and aixtr-nine planoe from all parta of th world entured for competition.
The Spectal Correcopondent of the N. X. Times aays: "Mresmms. Steinway's endorsement by tbe Jurora is of any Earopean malker."

GREATM CKANCE

TO MAKE MONEY! Agents can make sio to $$ 20$ a day eelling our cole
brated PRIZE SLATIONERY PACKFTS

Send for Circulars. Maled freo. G. B. HASKINB $\&$ CO., Prize Packago and Enfruving Warehowes. 50 and 38 Bockman Strect, X. $\mathbf{Y}$

Tee of Tobacco, in all its forms, Cured

 $1,500 per Year!
Wo gend Hood's prent DOOR OF EECRETS, or How to Jrake sna day withont capital, and a Diariond Point Golu Pen and Síver Extenston Case, all for 81.

$$ 7$ WARCHIS $$ 7$

A Beantroul Engraved Gold-Flatod Witche, Doublo
 Curyy ony $\frac{8 R}{}$, is Deat case, "wria a Biauturi A Bilver watca, eame as abo \$18 ALGEIRINE \$18 on ormicmas WAROL A SUPERA "EXTRA DOUBLE GOLD-PLATED" ED.

 ad is a perfect imitation of
A. $100 Grold Wratch used by the British Army Officers
Sent freo, by mall, in Elegant Moroceo Caso, for Frank Leate's Illustrated Nempapaper of Fub. 20 eays

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE BYMALLOREXPRESS  Solf-Messuremont for chirts.

STHMH GOGLARS

INAMESEDD WEITE,
Having the appcaramen and comfort or Unan, bave besm
Yorn in Eng land for the lant two years in proference to any other collar, as they are readily elcaned in one Union on the reesipt of 90 ecnta.
WHOLSALE

S. WF. ET. WARD,

- No. 387 Brondway, Now Yorlic.

FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS!

George B. McClellan

 SWORD ANDGENEERAL FUNND.
The andersigued ban been sollcited by many in the army and citizens of thia eity to bo the reciplint of nund ns above et forth.
pupposen mill be applied as por request. it it ie desirable

WANTHD

Shults, Onguent--Warranted to proanco full set of whiaker in Bix Weeks or money re

TRIUMPH OF MECHANISM.

"Enamolled Snow White" and Zinen Cirilions. Avoid "sparious imitotions." None reliable nniess patented as "above." Haled on recelpt of $1. Sultaide Tio &1. "EERET, Asent for Patentece,

FRANK EESLIE'S TKIUSTRAMED

The Resignation of Mr. Secretary ChaseOur Financial Difficulties.
Tre starthing -hecause wholly unexpectedmouncoment from Washington on Thursday last, of tho resignation of Mr. Ohaso, as Secof Ex-Govornor David Tod, of Ohio, to fill his phee, iustantly created a more painful and rofoand sensation in Now York than any idings for a long time of any disaster to the national causo. Mou of all parties, and all olasses, hegan instinotively to inquire of cach

Tod of Ohio? Ts he recognised anywhere as |hand from any quarton. There was nothing critical perate he ohandoned the heavy task imposed npon at this crisis the management of the National him of sustaining the nationsl credit aud curreney in despsir? Or have political difficul. ties among tho memhers of the Cahinet, which Fe had supposed were rajusted, hroken ont so, may we not anticipato a gsneral hrealing up and reconstruction of the Cabinct, with every prohahility of more ssrious emharisssents than ever in the working of ths Government machinery? And who is this Mr
a statesman of ths requisite ahilities to nssums at this crisis the management of the National treasury? fhat does all thas mesn? With ward tendency of our paper currency, are wE not hastening to a sweeping finanoial collapss and revulsion?
These were among tho many difficult qucs tions suggested hy this startling nows of the official retirement of Mr. Chase, snd tho ap pointment of Mr. Tod, of Ohio, in his placs
Nor wers thars any encouraging answers a onsoling in the statement that Mr. Chaso had resigned, hocsuse Oongress and tho Presidout had failed to support him; nor in the alleginon that Mr. Chase did not oxpoct histrust aut to the necepted. Dounc, that invisibl tandancy prevailed, and gocr, the haker nud he hutchsr make their advances, from day to day, wont up with a new momeutum that was positivoly appalling. Mr. Tod's declination of the Tressury, and tho appointment of Hou.
William Pitt Fessenden, Senator of Maino, to great as mace Hesconlon's admitt-I abilities for the Treasury, es 1 Foved in his servicee as Sonate Oluirman on Finance the tuak wbich Scnate Ohairmun on Finance, the task wbich he huss assumed will tox his utmost streng th. What is he called upon to do?

All the manifold aud mnltifarious dificulties hefore lim may be snmmed up inte oneexcessive issuus of "gree nhacks," and paper money, in every shape and form. In the money, in every shape and torm. returns on the subject, and other reliahle statements, the paper currency in circulation in the loyal States wras as follows:

Eight hundred and seventy-six millions of paper money as the circuiating medium of the loyel States and the Statos and parts of States poyel States and the Statos and parts of States cecose spproximation to the first French Republio, with its excessive issues of assignats? In all the United States and Territories in 1860 the paper money in circulation (Stato hankss) wes less than $$ 200,000,000$. Now, jucluding the logal and rehellious States, we have, in stead of $$ 200,000,000, $ 1,400,000,000$ of paper monoy afloot. Jeff Davis last year had ahout $8800,000,000$ in eirculation, when, findinc his $$ 800,000,000$ in circulation, when, finding his paper dollar reduced in value to cight conts, paper dollar reducod in value to cight conts, and that the more he issued the nearer he was and that the more he issred tho heirenfedernto Congress, cut off $$ 300,000,000$ at a single stroke hy the simple process of repudiatiou. stroke hy the simple process of repudiatiou.
Wo oannot do this ; hut to ceccipe repudiation, this last alternative of humkruptcy, these exoessive paper money issues mustbse cut down to the extent of $$ 300,000,000$, or at least $$ 200,-$ 000,000 , aud Mr. Fessenden mist fall hack upon loans and taxes to keep his $8500,000,000$ demption. Loans and taxes are the remcdies which Congress, in pursunuce of the plans of Mr. Chase, bas holday adopted. There is, however, one important remedial measure of Mr. Ohnse which has heen defeated in Congress, to wit, his sensihle proposition for a tomporary war tax upon the circollation of our State hanks, equivalent, if you please, to a prohihitory tax upon thenr issnes heyond a certain amount. We suspeet that $$ 173,500,000$ does not cover the paper of our State hnaks now afloat; hut more advantageously to all concerned, those local hanks which flourish only to th extent of their hrredeemahle circuiation.
We bope, thirorofore, thant Mr. Fessenden will promptly recall the attention of Congreas to this reieving measure of a tax upon the circulation of the Stante banka. We are aware that every memher of hoth bouses is interested directly or indirectly, in some loeal bank; but diret the Socretary of the Treasury mako the direct issue with hoth Houses, whether the vational currency slall be resened from the road to ruin hy a tax upon these local institutions, expense of the uational currency and the people, and we behere the uatioual canse will provail. We shall look into this subject again.

Barnum's American INLuseum.

Oscanyan's Oriental Album,

Sickness on the Peninsula.

 Our sury before Riohmond hare eafacered Areathy from queut uee during the hot hariouse sficeta from that too fre

LLUSTRATED NEWSPAPEF, 537 Pearl strech, New York.

NEW YORK, JULY 16, 1864:

All Communicutiona, Bootm for Reviow, cto. must be daressed to Franic Lecux, 537 Pearl utreel, New Yort.

TYBETMES:

TERMS FOR ADVERTISIAC.

To Correspondents.
First-class stories will he read promptly, and

 will meot with attention.

 ounces should be sent by oxprees.
When partiee wish Miss. retarned by mail, poatige

Acowrmp.- The Kobolaz of Vleightsturg-Bessie?
ºrtunes-A Stery of Two Liven. Drouncid. Oilve Vruin-Hospita IIfo by a SoldierThe Mystery of Mimsuato-Geiseral Lex-The Dring

Summary of the Week.

viborina.
The campaign has now, from the very necessity parial essanits on eacb other's works, and fruitloss bomberdmonte.
Gient presses steadily in on Petershurg, gaining slowly but surely, and the enemy ondeavors, by sallies, to disconcert him.
On the 25th June tbey attucked the 9th and 5th corps, uat retired, leaving their dond hefore our On tho 28th Gen. Ledlie, 9th corps, threw up a fieldworkforsiegr guns, on which the onemy opened tremendoua fire. They subsequently attacked him, but were repulsed.
On the 30th Gen. Smith sttempted to take the seriously.
Gen Wilson hassueceededin destroying 60 mile of the Danville railroed complotely, but on bia return was met at Ream's atation by tbe cnemy in force. He fought them all tho night of the 27 th, and was at last robeved by the 6 tb and 2 d corps and cut his way through. His command was, Kosby's guerillas havo hegun their raids, dashing into and plundering Duffield's station, noar Harper's ferry, and menacing Martinsburg. Gon. Huntor, having seoompbished tbe object of his noovement, and running out of ammunition, fll back to Moadow blaft, boing unable to hold ont His total loss in killed, woundod and missing did not exceed 600, and he brougbt with him 100 puisoners, 7 cemnon and 600 horres, and destroyen cannon in a defile by a sudden dash of guerillas. afraxisas.
Gen. Cart, on Juno 27, dofented tho rebels under Sbellyy, botween Sheadon and St. Charles, tahin 200 prisonerl asd tho gund of the Queen City Marmaduke came up to aid 8helby, but tbey hot retired. atire
loutsiana.
A largo deponit of rebel archives has been found buried in the eartb at Baton Rouge by O'Comnor, Eaq., Recorder of tbo parisb. Gen. Banks l=as sent ail bis wounded Col. Slomm $a$ attacked oar troups on the 21st, but was repulead, and found hus own camp captared and deptroyed by the 7th camp captared and deatroyed by the 7tb Dissouri cavalry. On tbe 19th the 8th Minsouri was attacked at Brownsville by Shellyy,. but they repulsed tbeeir absailants.
A cavalry foree from Fort Smith, on tho 26 th, met a rebel eavalry force of 800 , and killed or took the wbolo.
georgal.
On the 24 th Sherman mado a diversion on ench Pherson attacked Keneaaw mountain, but, after sustaining heavy loss, including Gen. Harker, Col. Dan. McCook sad others, gavenp the attemptIn an attack on Schofield and Fooker tho enemy On June 24 Gem a loss of 300 kulled
On June 24 Gen. Pillow, witli $3,000 \mathrm{men}$, dewho had hut 400 , refused, and held out till Col. Oroston, 4tb Kentucky, camo up, when Pillow retreated, leaving 100 dead and wounded on the twated, field.
Johu
Johuston hes four corps, Hardee's, composed of Cheatham's, Cleburn's, Wallser'B and Bates's Chen tharm's, Cleburn's, Walker's and Bates's divisiona; Hoods corps, comprising Stewart's, SitevenLoring's and 'Tcncle's divisions; besides Wheeler's cavalry corps and the independent commands of Roddy and Lee. On the 27th the 4th, 14th and Logan's corps attacked Keneasw in three columer tacked Keneaaw in three columus, but ware repulace. Johneton Was, howtili, so straitoned that on the 3d he vacuated Keanasw and Marietta Tobanas ot once marched on the Chattahooelhie, and McPberson on tbe mouth of Nienjuck ereek. bouth carolisya.
Gcn. Fostor has sbelled Secessionvilte from Morris islanil, and on June 16th the rebela frum Jumos' snil Sullivan's is ands openedon Cumming ' point.

On the 19th Jnne the U. S. war ahip Koarange engared the Alabama, of Cherbourg, and, after a engaged the Alabama, of Cherbourg, and, after at deaperate action of over an hour, Bo disabled her deaperate nction of over an hour, Bo disuble her that she annk. The Engbish eteam yacht Deertthat she annk. The Eng haud, whioh witnessed the engagcment, took up Kearsage captured 68 of the Alabama's mon.

CONCRESS.

In the Senste, on the 27 th June, there was nuveh routine buriness of littio publio in tercest, the prinipal smbject being tho Frectuna's butau bia
In he House, the Forcign Afinire Conmittes reported reafiation, the coumiderntion of which was postponed, in deciaring the forelign policy of the governmant. This 1s designed as a rebuko to the Preaident and Mr. Sowssd for the explanatery diplomatie note of the lattor to the fution condemaing the French tarasion of Moxico. A renolation in favor of giving to disbled soldiers such appointinents as are in the gifts of oficcers of iho Houee appointunents sa are in the gifis of officers of lhe House was noioptod. A resalution authorising the extension of was naophed. A resaution authorising the extension of the Navy Departasul builining mas reported. The Sonaios a large numher of them adoptod, the remaludes and bewg leaf for the aijurtment of a coosfereace committco. The hill to cirry inte effect the treaty with Columbia was peuted. The Senate's nmentments to the bitu ex emptarg from duties goods simported for the lite Chicago emptagg from dutes goods imported for bie tate Chicseo Sanitary Fair were coucurred in. The bill amendatery of the Knrollment set wus agnin tho subjecl of a prolonged debate, the minin point of divcussion being, en on ongod debute, the man point of diwcussion being, as on previous days, the propo 1 tion to ropest the $$ 300$ dratt commutation, which, on beimg putt to a vote, was agnin defeated, hat this time by only tro majority, sbowing thet the cppoaltion to ite zepeal la locing atreagth. thet the oppoaltion to ite repeal la losing atrength.
Different umeadmente nad subititutes were offered; but Different nmendmente nad subintitutes wh
In the Senta, on the 28 th , the House Furolmont bill repealing the coummutation clanse was received and rodmiaisation. Finally thie bill wos panoch

 On the 29th, the Tariff bMI pagsed both Houses, Mr .
Yorril skid that he reckoned il would yield $\$ 100$,Morrcill $823 d$ th $000,000 \mathrm{~s}$ yeir.
 fuppressing the Cincinanti $B$ nquirce wna rejected by 28

In the House, the resoiution declaring that Gen.
Selonck was qualified for E soat nad Gen. Binir was not,
 ots or 80 to 47 .
In the Soust.
 Fulson calied up the bill for the more spcoay puntah-
ment of guerilias,
 selicel Committe the Mive charee of immorality were nol

 dechincd the apyointruent.
In the senste, on the 19t of July, the Hon. Wiiliam of the Treasury, in place ol Salmon P. Chase restgnech.
Both Housco of Congreasa nioptod a resolution repeal.
ing the act prolibiting speculation in goid and forevign

 valley to Enet Tennecate was brielty debated, and eome time wne devoted to discansilon on the Houoc bill pro. viding tor the recouetruction of the rebel State Govern-
menta. mesta,
In the Hoose, the Senate reoliation requectiag the President to nupoint a day of humilation and prayer

 Fedocrai courta wn Pucino railroadl.

TOWN COSSIP.

Lass week we grumbled and chattered ahou this weelk we ure faclined to do the rereree, becauso the samis raarvo degres lesa,
Within
change was 40 degroes, an inconstaerable malkr when degrees in that city it kills sion people 1 We thinks there come to or 50 deaths are announced ns proceeding, from sumelroke, to say wothing of all those unan. from Lounce

bri.

 changes, as mang deathe will occur from il in this clity
as in London. Underitand un ; we ao uot mean to anay ing will receive tho health, or who havo btrucu sufferWitt the ittio excitemients of really bot weather comes all the quitecs, for instance, thoso wrotched mule crealures on ona nee into the wiedom of and things clvo thel the Almighty har crested, but he hesmot ece inte the nuos-quiteen. We think the oity is partinly oxempt from

 The moituil le too terrible to contemplate, and we murt

 ca down ngatn marched up Brondway, aid then macel.
Vody onjoody wad patriotic, and crery minate muuketa out of all kinds of places, end growing exelted ovor all hinds of things.
Ye venture to

 Which puts ue in mind that just now a fcarful oxcltc.
ment exits in roferoces te greenback, or rathec in conssquence of the scarcity of tabor created by ita ai-somption in the anmy.

To ilep into more Berious subjecta; it in announced

|  |
| :---: |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |

EPITOME OF THE WEEK

 New Bedford Mercury, soundy Eleoping underono of th traes, nemy the depot in Tounton, with hin cap for Several of his sons have alrendy attrined considerable reputaticn na public men. Wiliam Pitt was bora it demeancr, posseress talenta of the hirhest or der, and Ih nendoubtedy wellitted for the pobition to which he hne beus called.

 tromity ondinary men would bave becan very apt to forgot poistenese. These httle thiags tell, an much ess any, of the heroism of tbe army.

FRANK LESLIE'S ILLUSTRATED NEWSP IPER.

 Atthis ratin ho conla give two dinnere an Nour,
 - Tise ceiact givan in Eopland to tine marringo of the
 - Tho recent crisis in Oanodn polltice, which in.

 Trand The ancteat regime of Trance aro tery mue

Art, Soience and Iiterature- Forele river. It was built in the yelur 1904, by Mr. John Steveng. The boat in an open one bout, etght feet bam, and 50 feet long. The angine and the boilors plishment. Woalso observe the boilers motive in $18 i 0^{\circ}$ by the bame gentleman.

 Zoological Gardens. Though the spocies was known to exis in the lost century, bat one specimen had becn oftine
 ordinssy eot, with a triengular visege and the pecu-Hanty fit in fot combining the charnetere of rodents and quadrumana.
 ahoggy as a bear, and not biggor than a Nemfounaling dog-ja fast diasppeaning. Bo bay the Enghish sporting jolurnuls.
Ono of oar most eminend publidiers ie
traing a volume of pocme by $0 . G$. Rosenberg.

 met with a sad feburf it Fort Kearney. The Iicutenant with "Halt1 wio comes there pi The heatenant, win conlempt in every linemant of his face, exclaimed in-potch: The Rochester Demacrat quotes a thegraph dias him ${ }^{\prime \prime \prime}$ Another repllee thatit it dil dependa on the ling of ageza sclectod. Thoose from 18 to 26 it puth down as oxira hazariota.

Boston $150,000,000$. The London Times sayn there has nevar heen nuch thiting in the hitatory of the yorld os that which has latoly talisan phace in virginia wetwecn Grant and Tho Meritical Reporter nass that a conournptive patisnt, now undor treatment, is taling eroam with

 Many wires are miberoblo, not nom thanting the otfections of ther hurhhinde, but from we absence, in that affiction, of the quality of tondernees.

FOREICN NEWS.

Ir is said that the Alabama left Cherbourg in order seek a nght with the Keareize, end that hisary cannonading bad bern henra in the direction of Elushing ronds soon artorwurds. Galhmuani's Messeygor, of Faris, soys that tho Kearsage came into Cherbourg ravis, to watch the Alakeman going out, and Ighit ber if aho aforded on epportunity. aho afiorded on opportunity.
Tbe Paris Monilear anno Tbe Paris Monictear announcen a soriee of Freach suc-cessen in Moxico, and anticipntcs an eary rale for the new Emperor.
The Danlat The Danlah qucation, of peace or a ramowal of the diplomatists in the conaideration and trentument of the Donish dimicnity, and that the Polish cooms in the ond

the Houas of Commons by bile narrow majority of

CREAT BARBERS

The hairdresser, or barber, in France, as in tikee the tono and color of bise epoch to wucb an extent boyt, could wo rosucitats the professor of these liciodred arto in tha past, we migbe reconstract the history Teach pariod from the airs or the sounemirs of ite "caLeonardi, the hairdresser of Mevio Antoinetto, wroto the mermoire of hie nnfortunate Queen ; Plaisir, the barber of Charles X ., was the favorito eosstp aud anec-lote-monger of the court. Mariton, who bad the honor A eombing and ahaving the "Citizen King," Mas stria. practical and commerchnly minded, lika aia royal patron. Hoy, (the Kingl, while the Emperor's rejotces to the ame of Majesté (Majesty). The Mnstor of Drance han batrdresser since her elevation to the throue until a few months ago, wben bo lost hie post throuyh having Woakly ytelded to tho seduotion of en enormous bribe, Lody in quention vowed, by ali the saints in tho eadco-

 Place nnd the handeono empluments attachod to it,

 Plonilido overshart of point de Veniso ," delgned to say

 Crsoles. A wreath or promogronato blosu oma woum be-como you admirably,
"Nevertholeesa, Moneleur Fcilx," marmured the lady
"If sou bave not confldence in me, mudame, cali in nother rittel I man reponnible for the good oooks of ony mikente," roturned the urtist, veachtily, drawing

 "Justmel" pustit the duchess, oddreestog her matd.
Jhe aw y these ornamento end bring tho box of pomewhite harr was the rage in the theo of Lnule XV, and

|  |
| :---: |

THE BALLAD OF THE SOUTH AND

 NORTH.DY AMANDA 2 , TONES.
Orf, once the Sonthron's talk was hold; Ho vaonted well his fair estate,
His faithfol siaves, his mansion old, His faithfnl siaves, his mansion old,
Tis heart that burned for love or hate "But spare our rights?" the North replied, "With equal worth ye have to deal!" "Up! fire the Sonthern heart!" he cried, " "We'Il teach theso Yankees how to kneel. The Southern heart hegins to heat. Wo'll drop the whip, we'll grasp the steel, We'll take no rest till 'neath our feet These coward Ysukees kneel!"
Thon hrought he forth hits stolen guns, With hoastful speech and daring oath He langhed to scorn our hrawny sons-
"So prone to toil-to fight so loth!" Our Northmen laid their tools aside, Our Northmen laid their tools aside "Come on, oh, if ye dare !" he cried, "Bume on, ohow, if ye dare!" hlades are sure to linrt. Tho Sonthern heart hegins to hurn; Our lordly nature we'll assert ; Come, Ysnkees, one and sll, hut learn Our hlades are sure to hurt!'

0 hraggart Sonthron, wail the dsy Whon Treason thus in arms did start! For flames that roared o'er Charleston liay Swept on, and fired-the Northern hear Then flashed the sun on sorried steel, Then Northorn words were prond to hear ; "Who dares to hid our Freemen kneel Shnll meet n foe who cannot fenr!" Slinll meet a foe who eannot fenr!"

Tho Northern heart hegan to hent,
The Northern voice rang far and clear:
"Who hids our Freemen kneel shall meet
A foe who ennnot fear! ${ }^{\text {² }}$
Oprose our glorions Yankee lads Our craft the rolling billow eleft ; Lond roared the grand Columhiads; The rifles ratiled right and left. The slave went free ; the fair estate In gore was drenched, with fire was girt ; The yanquished Southron learned too late, That Yankec blades were sure to hurt. The Northern heart with courage hurned-
Our freehorn rights we dared nasert;
Too late the venquished Sonthron learned: Our hlades were sure to hurt.

OEOITME

THE YOUNG PORTRAIT PAINTER.

charter vil.

Haprx in tho belief that tho duel had not taken place, and still more happy in hoing alle to talio to her father a minch larger snm of moncy than nenal, which would hetter aalisty the wants of the Tho way had nover secmed so pleaenant to ther, and, dressed with more than ordinary tasto, as if or refleot the ray of sunshine within, she had hever lookod so lovely. It was the first time sinoo her bappy chilithood that the poor young girl had been carncd hy her own labor made it of much more valne thi her eyes. Yo who toil for thant which harily satisfies the daily wants of Ufc will suroly sympathise with our youmg heroine, and will oxcesse the teans that fell over the gold coius as sho countod thent over aud over, thinking low ench will gratify some desine of her now ohildidal but tetill helovood father.
Smiling and bappy ahe fathiver scareely chservod the look of restraint and ombarrassment on the face of the attendant who amitted her.
Theo old mon's fall had not, after tho effects of hut it was followed by alarming symptomes, among Fonotuts Batters.

 WAS THERE-FROM A SEETCH DY OUR SPEGILL AETIST, E. F. MULLEN.- YEE PAOE $2 A 7$.

The Deauthed of Ceerile's Father. which, as ubual in such en
was the moet significant.
"My daughtorl my de mared, cootinnily my dear danghter 1 " he marknow of this," he said, to his atterdant, "TTo morrow she will come, and I ghall be well." "Then looking towards the window he akked: "Is it known who fonght the dnel to-day near the forest, and what is the result ?"
"Nothing very serious, sir count," the man replied. "Some of our peoplo who heard the gentiomen talking asy it was une affaire de tbese things are of everyday occurrehoe."
Those careless words tonehed a chord in the old man's hoart, and reminded him of the causo of all his sufferings. He made no reply; but tears, hig drops of agony, wereseenalowly and ailently chasing one another down his pallid cheeks for the rest of tbe day. As night drew near his fever returned, nod he tallced incoherently and withont coasing.
His whole life passod in panoramic review beforo him-his experionces, his love snd jealousy, the duel which cansed the loss of his friend ; then the doath of bis young, heautifu; gay but simless wife; the ruin or his fortune, and the nolle heroism of his idobised ehild-all were pictured in glowing colors to his fervid imagination, till exgradually closed, and he seemed to sleep. gradually olosed, snd he seemed to sloep.
"He is very ill", the doetor whispere "His danghter should be sent for."
"Yes! I shall be very glad to se0 my danghter," ho said, starting np suddonly; "bnt yon need not send; for she is even now coming-she is here $]^{3}$ He had not ceased speaking when a knock wats hoard at the onter door, and Céeilo entered the house.
young girl on hearing of the fatal aeeldont to ther father. But tbo hahit of self-control, learnod in the school of adversity, soon ooahled her to calnt her emotion; and in a few moments she was alono with hor father, sitting hy his pillow, with a awoet, hopefal smilo upon har lovely faco, while his oyos derness.
"God" will saroly hless my child and make her happy!" ho said, laying his hand upon her head;
"for hss she not been to me sn sngel of hight and "for hss she not been to me sn sngel of hight and love? Would that I could have left her in the love? Would that I could have left her in the keeping of some noble hesrt that wonld havo treeping of some noble hesxt cherished hor as she descryes."
Her father's words took Cécile in imagioation back to Paris; and she thought firat of the marquis, then of Rohert de Saintonge. Singular coinoidenee 1 the dread of $a$ duel had, during the whole of that day, agonised her heart, while the sight of ono had nearly cansed her fatber's denth. Conld this he a presontiment of further trouhle ?
What if the marquis had decelved her, and failed in his promise not to meet Robert? This thought seemed like an illumination. Tbey have fought ! Robert has been wounded, perhaps killod-poor Rolert, who loft her in anger-whom she loves as a brothen-to whom she owes the few comforte and pleasures sho has heen able to give her father -whose love she could not return, as it deserved to he-Robort has heen killed, and by the marquis 1 Did the marquis then really love her, that he conld thus forieit his word to rid himself of a rival? If 80, can she ever acknowledge her love for him, and generous benofuctor?

Dr. Gousset giving Advice.
Tho greater part of the day was passed in these sad meditatioos.
"Speals to mo, Ceoile," sad her father, when they were again alooe. "Is there no one to whom your heart turus for sympathy in this soason of troulle and sorrow?
Céeile trambled violently, and lenclt beside her fathor:
"My dear father," she sohbed, "of you alone I sim now occupied; from you I desire aympathy;
to yon look for comfort. I have but yon in thia wido world
"But, my cill, I is calling me away from earth, and I thall vory soon join her whose name yon have so jealously soon join her whose name yon have guarded during my mental aberratioos-my ioganity. That has passed away, as the light of anether world dawns npon my mind; and memory now hringe back the form of one who, in the midet of all your sufferings, and during your hours of devated labor, stood by yon with unfailing devodevoted labor, stood by yon with and confidence in tion, ever ready to inspire hope and tion, ever ready the future-ever near to cheer snd comfort. Tomorrow I will send for the Chovalier do Saintonge -ior Rohert, as ho would have yon call him-and, having placed my
will die in peace.
 Cecile, recognieing the handwriting of the chevaLier, exclaimed with joy, "Safa! he is safol I was not dee ived 1 " "Who is safe
at her cmetion.
But the young girl, who had continned reading the lotter, becams pale sa a statue-she shaddered fainting on the floor.

anater tx.

Tre marquis, ooonpied by many ofher objecte
 naturo's aweet restorer,", and renews onr wasted strength after heth mental and thoddy fatigue; strength after heth mental and hody fatigue;
luit it enanot rcmove the heant socret toorov., departure. He pueoed the whole night in writing to Her. He doternined to seo her no more. He topartur. He doternined to seo her no more. He to houd visit Paris, France, Europe, and fy to the ond of the worla; hut firet he would let her know that honeforth the was to the marquie and limsclf an ohjeot of pity, of contempt I Theso were torrihle worde to writo, and he hcsitsted to put terrihle words to writo, and he hcsitated to put ago and resolntion to do se, he ropeated thom again and again.
$\Delta t$ tho first appearance of daylight he sought tho marquis and rushed into his room, puehing tho marquis and rushed into his room, puching aside tho valet, who raflused to admit him. aside tho valet, who raflused to admit him "I have come to heg a last favor of yon," he ssid, throwing himeelf into a chair and holding ont sid, throwing himeir into a chair and holding ont the lotter in lis hand. "I ehall not go this even-in to Vincounes; I will not accept the eacrifice ing to Vincounes; I will not accept the ascrifice you have offored me; I give up Cécie, and with you have offored me; I give up Ceede, and with her nill hopes of fatare happiness; I am going awny-where I know not, hut go written to Cecde to that effect.,
"Well, throw your letter into the post, my dear fellow," the usarquie rephed, getting up in ill humor.
"I have just come from the Rue Platrière,", Rohert continned. "Cficdo has not yet returned; it Robert continned. "Ctcdlo has not yet returned; it seems ale finds much to amnee hor at Vinceenes. Yomr friend Rienx knows the house she visits there; portinps he will do me the favor to write the address on this letter, which, no donht, will give her much pleasure and sda greatly to the en-joymont of which sho went in pureuit." "That requires a little refleotion," the marquis aid, turning over the package placed in his hand. said, turning over the package placed in his hand. which will interfara with the amnaoment which you and Fieux anticipate this evening. I leave you to tho enjoyment of it, for I ain going. Adien!" "Stop ! What tho dence are you nbout p" ox-toimod the marquis, jumping ont of hed and plaimed the marquis, jumping ont trindy a strange hoing !
"You aro right," Rol eadness; " "and yot I a.m far moro wrotched than eadness;
strange."
The marquis looked esrnestly at his friend, and wne now surprieed and pained to ses tho change which one uight of intonse suffering had wrought upoan him. The two men, oncerivale, now sincere frienda, talked long and earnesky together, and pare for his dopartare.
The eruel letter was, however, sent, and we hsvo seen its effect npon the unheppy girl, who, thongh woundod in overy feeling moet sacred to her, yet yielded but a fow moments to the emotions of her yielded but a fow momenta to the emotions of her tender, loving heart. She seon recovered, and her force of charaeter bustained her.
" Wiu Robert oome ?" aeloed har father, who, in inis enveety for his child, ebout to be left alone and threnilless, chasrished tha hope of placing her under the protectiou of one who wo rudo contact with the world, rudo contact with the world, not coino alent. He will hring then Jaucomblo, hia friend and mine."
"Mancomblo!" tho old mau repeated, as if the me was faniliar to him, "I once had a friend of that name, hat it wae a long time ago-long ago," he contintiod to murmur, looking at his chad as ehe loant lovingly over him. Then miling upon her, he drew hor to him, kiased earnestly her brow, her lipe, then looking ap to heaven, his her brow, her lips, then looking ap to heaven, has hand graduall relessed her, his eyes cloed, a sweet emilo aettled upon his whole face, and the old sweet enilo settled upon his whole face, and the old man slopt tho calm long sleep of desth. man slopt tho calm long sleep of death.
The young girl stoed and watched her f
The young girl stoed and watched her father for some tima, hut, overwhelmed by the sad reality some tima, hut, overwhelmed by the sad reality of her position, and unaccuatomed to eucb scenes, she observed net the change that had come over him. Scarcely conecious what sho did, she sat down and wrote three notes. The firet, to the maryuis, rau thus "Mronsigur-Tha Count do Mamers begs the Marquis do Mancomble to eall this ovening, that he may thank him for the interest he lase shown he may thank him for the interest in hiis doughtor, Ceeao do Mamers.
"TThe Harquis de Maneomble

In a poatoript was addsc :

"Do not refuse my poor father thia proof of your frieudslip. He is oxtrendy in at Viuceunee, (CECLE DE MAOERES." Tho other notes w occupiod less time: "Chevalier-My father, who is dying, would himeol reply to your lettor with his last hreath.
Come this evouing, without foil. To-morrow, Come this evouing without fail 'To-morrow, perkope, will bo too lete.

to or rel.A. You, who have been so lind to us
bot will not refaso my request.
"Dr. Gousset, Rene do Babylons, Having dispatched her notos, ehe again took her ance by her fatherts side. How pencefully he place by her fatherts side. How peacefully he eleeps 1 She caunot hearhim lireathe. She leans eleeps 1 She caunot hearhim hreathe. She leans over him ond gazes earnestly into his fice; she talies his hand within her own, it ehills her by it touch; calls npon him hy the most eccild, she had climhed upon his knce, and by her sweot emilee and innecent prattling had chased away the clonds gathering over his path, hereeff all une conscions of the storm 00 noon to break over her young life. But the old man can no longer hear the voica of his sorfored and quickoned intellect, in the fall light of tho higher Uife.

chafter x.

Tre marquie, impationt of the many incidents ounected with an affaix in which he no longer took sympathy for Do Seintange, at sceing Céciéss sif aature, read the nete over carelessky, ouying: "I am reslly glad it whe to see her father ovening walks. She now stands acquitted, and will again he relinstated in the most eacred nicinc of the preux Chovaliior de Saintonge's heart, a the pure and saintly lady of his worship. But a the pure and saintly lady of his worship. But ae to Monsicur do Mumere, he will have to wait for mo this evening, for I shall he forced to deny myself the time."
The
The name, however, eounded famdiar to him, and hy degrees awreroued old remembranees. "Strange," he oald, "if this Count de Mamere
shouid be of tho same family as my late uncle's ahouid be of tho same family as my late uncle's old friend and companion of whom he has so ofen epoken to me. He was nohlchenrted, geminl end truly mbgnanimoue, and it was through him that my goed unele obtnined the hand of iny dear aunt who was as n mother to me. Truly, if cecile's father is a relative of his, or if it shotdd prove to be himself, I should he grieved end mortified, for the nees and frieudslupp shown to hio uncle. This is worth following up."
We will now retur
We will now return to Robert, who had paesed tho whole day in making proparations for his de parture, and at night found himself as little prepared as in tho morning. Unwilling to go, every bittle obstacle was mando a grent cauee tor delay.
Never had he loved Céode so truly, zodevotedy, ae now; and never had his love causod him so much suffering. It was no louger Cécie with whom he was annoyed; lie was angry with him. whom he was annoyed; le wes angry with him-solf; of his own conluct loo was ashamed, and he would glaully have recallod thst letter, every werd of which he now felt was a orwol insuit to her he professed to love, hed not mazevaise honte, and a profossed to love, hed not mazevaise honic, and a bittle lurking feeling of jenlousy reatrisined him.
Just then Cocilo's noto, se explicit and yet so laconic, wae hrought to him. Hia letter had been received, and oh 1 at a time when she was in sorrow, keoping wateh hy hor dying father. It was for that fathor she had lahored, and deeired woslth; it was with him she had passed the night, trying to soothe and comfort his laot momente ; to him were mado those mysterious visits; and ha, Robert de Ssintonge, who chouid have under-stoed and appreciated her charactor, had heen stoed and nppreciated her chara the firet to doubt and nccuee her.
"How like a menn, cowardly wroteh I have with bightning speed into bis troukled mind: "Cécode, dear, injured girl, can you torget my hlind, unpardonahle jealousy? But I must and vill obtain your forgivenesa!"
Doctor Gousset, notwithstanding his great dietance from Vincennes, Wee tho first to obey Cécie's call; hut not in time to find the Count do Mécde's cail, Mamers alive.
The poor girl cold not he perousded at first to leave the chamher of desth, wishing to romain lone with lim who had heen her only tie on sarth. But she yielded at length to the good doctor's eolicitutions, and with great effort resumed, in appearance at least, her nanal calmdochame
ness.
"Doc
"Doctor," said the young gili, looking np into oo besutiful friend with that afectiounte triser years; "will you let me uow look to you as unto a second fathar, for the Bdvice I so mnch need in this trying moment? I am resigned, hut my Leart is very sad.'
The doctor
The doctor, moved hy this tonching appeal from under his protection; snd having drawn from her the whole story of her life (her devotion to her father he already knew, having witneseed it), she proeeeded with all the cloquance of griof to spenk of her gratitude to tha Chovalier de Saintongs, it, she felt for the graceful and gailant margquia. Her old friand belioving himeoif at once initated into the myatories of tha young girl's heart, exlaimed:

Woll 1 my chdd, I understand it all; you love wore than yon sre willing to more then you think; more.
self."
un
"Not 60, my friend," Cécile replised, while the color mo taken."
"But
"But I aho snue of it," he replied. "Bolieve ne, I am a very it io na I aay."
CEcie made no raply, hat with avorted eyes and eions of sincere sympath
"And now, my true friend," ahe anid, when ho flowed my cup of aftiotion. It hes diepollicd the howed my cup of aftiotion. It has dispalided the teomed, respected at leaet, by Monsieur de Sointonge ; bnt read," she said, giving him the chevalier's ernol letter, and no longer ahle to restrain her teare.
The doct
Thie doctor read the letter twice, slowly, and as if taking in the implied meaning of every word ;
then suddenly and withont apeaking, tore it into hen suddenly and withont epeaking, tore it inds Cecde meanwhile staring at him in mute astonishment.
"Nothing is now left of that document," he said, when his work of deetruction was finiahcd.
"Oh wes, his work of destruction was finiahcd.
Oh yos, my friond, for every word is writtan "ere, she replied, plaoing fer tromhing hand apon her heart, "and nothing cane fince the impree sion. Monsieur de Maueomble will perhape he here econ; and it may be Robert, too, will come. Receive them for me, in my father's room; may they both regrot their unworthy enapicions, hnt tell them, my friend, that to them hoth I am as one dead. They have dared dispute my love ; hoy have even appropriated mo as a picee of property to he hought and sold; and Robert, to whom I confided every sorrow hut that which concerned my father, ho has wounded my bonse of dolicacoy, my refinement, my lovo of all which I have been taught intuitivcly to revere and cherish most. Perhepe in the futare, I mayy rise hefore most. Perhepe in the futare, I masy rise hefore him as a momory of the past; somethiug that has heen, and is no moro; or a strain of music bord in departed yeare. But jonsieur de Mautune, "no rememhrancs of me will liuger in lie heart; and as the light antumu leaf is wafted by the breeze, leaving no trace behind, so sladl the the breeze, leaving no trace behind, so slaill the memory of Cecie pass away, whilo she, having momory of Cécie pass away, whilo she, having hid farevell to the outer world, soels peace withthe consecrated valls of the cloister.
"My dear child," interrupted the good dootor Ifeten to eneh a sud detorminstion. Xou have asked my proteclion, and I thoreforo cl right to adviso-to ehange your purpese."
ight to adviso-to ehange your purpese."
"Oh! my doar old fricnd, my nother'
"Oh! my doar old friend, my mother's image is indelihly impreesed upen my heart. She loved-even as I have-and, how ornelly she suffered? Nol no," she continued, as if communing with her own heart; "I was loved as s young, namulecee, unknown and unprotected girl, but as Cicue de Mamers I shall perkaps he shanned. No, no, God will soon reunite me to the loved onee who ## have gone hefore."

Yow aro my yeara and yet I feel The world was ne er desigred for me.- Byron.

Lionteen months have paseed sinco tho day When the geod doctor, over the remains of his doparted friend relatod to the marquis and tho chevatior tho nehle conduct of his devoted daugh ter. It required no great oratorical effort to in tereat his two suditors, It was enough to apeal fiftoon, had seen her mothor die of grief, and her fathor suddenly hecomo a confirmed lunetio. In his capacity of physician, ho had watchsd the young girl in all her offorte to provido for her father; and he had, himself, advieed the mysterg with which sho had surrounded herself, so ae to with which sho had surrounded herself, so as to elude the demands of tho law against duolling. elude the demanuas of tho why against dad been He ended by explaining why cecae had bunse obliged to visit hor father only at night, becunse thas wue the only timo when he snioved lncid thst wae the only timo when he snjoyed lncid intarvals. This rocital made a great impreeeion on his two listenera; one a paseionste lover ; the onther, nohla-hourted and genorous, notwithstanding the gay life he led. Tho marquis, from accounte given by tho dector, of the Count de Mamere early life, had no longer any douht that ho heheld the remains of his uncle's beloved friend.
"Since Madomoieclle de Mamere willnot eoe me," he said to the doctor, "do me the favor to sey to her that I claim, in my uncle's name and my friondship would suggest for her."
"MrdemoisellodoMamorthaedecided toforsalte plied with esdnoee.
"Nol" the ohevalior exclaimed, rousing himself from the stapor into which he bad relapeed self from the stupor into which he had relapsed.
"It cannot bol this muet not tako place, by all "It esannot bol t that is sacred 1"
"But sho is

But sho is inexorahle, ny friends; sbe has Cécide, proteoted, though agninet her wiah, hy the family of tho marquis, had eozdy gained Val de Grice. she rofued to see both the olieva lier and the marquis.
penstrate the secrets of that young heart. Ho still bolieved her wholly occupied by the chevatior whoee letter, cruel and unltind as it was, had, fox a time, placed a barrior hetween them. Sanguine himself, he stilf encouraged Robert to hope, snd the marquis, who now aincerely dasired the succees of his formor rival, and had not tho least suspicion that ho held any place in Cécale's heart, or influenced her determination, did oll in hia power to inspire tha ohevalier with conifios the ultimate acoomplishment of has wishes. the impsesioned lover. Oh I Cecile, think of my long devotion-forgot wherein I have erred-and ahove all, remomber the double hleesing thast swaits the mereiful. Believe me, tho day on which I lose the hope that now euetains me will he the inst of my lifo."
"God has deoi
"God has decidod for me," the young girl asià ter. "I mast fulfil my vow. In eight days the ancritice will ha necomplishad. Let the ohevalier remain ignorant of the fact ns long as possihle. I shall pray for his happinese- ae for me, I sceep suffering ae my lot. Tell him," she added, with look, the full meaning of whiols the dootor could Marqnie de Manoomhla how to forget."

Dr. Gousset, etill atrongly convinced that Cécas loved the chevalier, divised him to wait pationtly, and even snoceedcd in perauading him to leave Paris for a short time, and find reliof in change of sceno. The doctor thon had nu interviow with Crecie's confessor, and obtained from him the promise that the ceremony of taling the ved mennwhile he would try to discover whother sha really felt called to tho vocation eho wns ehont to enter, or whether it was a more passing fanoy of a yonthful imagination, Tho good fathar confessor fallilled his promise, and reported to tha doctor that the young girl when asked again doctor that the young girl when asked again if any foeling lingored in her heart, which might cause her at some future time to regret the irrevocahle step she waa ahout to take, had appeared troubled, and astred if she could not at tho laet moment, without giving canse for acandal, renounct if she choee, the soeomplushmont of an act whioh sho then felt fully disposed to ratify. "Oh 1 woman, woman," eoliloquied the ratify. while waiting in the parlor of the eonvont, on the eve of the day appointed for tho grand oeremony.
"Who can fathom the ruysterica of a woman's. Who can fathom the mysterica of a woman's heprt $7^{\prime \prime}$ and the good old nian walkod the room in a state of excitement, mutturing: "We shall see that Miademoiselle de Mamers wrill wait till ehe is cevered to-morrow with the symholic poll, hefera sho returns to the world end accepte the love of He fouval C6́cile rette
He found C6́ile reetless and unlhappy, and wae simost tempted to make a lat appenl in favor of Robert, hat controlled himself, fearing to excite the spirit of opposition, whioh, scoording to one of us pet theories, formed tho bavis of tho femsio magine why Cocile had dostred to sen him, when the called him hack, and enid in a voico ecarcely "I am told Monsionr do Mancemble is to he "I have not
I have not heard of it ; and certainly if it were The young girl howed hor hoad low, trying to conceel tho joy that lit up hor pale faoe, as we conceel tho joy that lit up hor pale fooe, as we Bee tho higheet snow-capped mountains in Alpine eoc tho higheet snow-capped mountains in Alpine regione euddonly illuminated hy tho first rays of rcgione
the sun.

"Wil ho be saked, timialy.

 "Not he feared his presenco might cause un-ploasant remsite-might not he expected-I mean," contunued the old gontleman, emharraesed and ecarcely knowing how to shape his reply, "I confess I requested him not to come. But his mother, his sisters and the wholo famdy will bs thers."
"It is my wish ho should be prosent," Ccode reticd, with more excitement in her tona thain ohe intended to express; then eagerly aeked: " rio You aure Mfonsieur do Sointonge has quitt -1
"Very sure I" replled the doetor, who now resince on the way to Lyons."
"I thank you l" murnured Céeilo, and holding out her hand to her old friend, "adien P" she out her hand to her old frion auid, "to-morrow-to-morrow!"
Returning to hor cell, the young girl sank on her knees in prayer :
"O Gedl let mo r pity, of tenderness in his eyes, and I would im. pity, or thee to reetore me to happinees and life !" And now the eventfuld dey haa come at laet. The bells of the royal ahbey gaily announce the mystio marriage of Christ's new hride. The large outer curt of the cenvont of Val de Cratco is filled with foung and houstiful: the offieloting priey who young and hosutiful; the offielating priest who will address her and offer the coneolatious of tho charch is noted for his thrilling eloquence, end the Mencomble tamily has left nothing undone to ender themble tamily has left nothing unaone to mid-winter, and tho snow is falling thick and fest, travoller, wrappodin a large mantle, weo walling with difficuity up tho Rue St. Jaequea. He etopped near tho ahhey, and hastened to the solemn knell which mingled with the festal chiming of the bolls.
"I have kept my promico," ho said, epeaking
o himeelt, "nnd have now bat ono regrat-which himelli, " and have now bat ono regrat-which that I have deceived tho good dector in making him think I had faith in his friendly profesions. Ono more effort and I will have forgotten natiguo, and all my troubles will ho ended. The church of Val de Grace- Which now leoks a gay and brilliant crowd. The narrow encloeare of the outer choir was occupied hy the Marquis de Faucemhic and the members of his family, who, selle de Mamers, Swoet, eilemn musio was heard at intervals from hehaud the silken ourtain hang over the gaded rading, which, even in our time, separatoe the outer from the inner choir. T ahook the snow from his ample clonk. Moanwhde carriage was rupidly advancing towards the ing; when it stopped, a young man in a completo anit of hlack jumpped out, and wae mot hy our traveller, who stopped him at the door, and whispered:
"Many thanks, Monsieur Damécourt ; you ees I sm punctanal."
"No nonsene
lier," tho yonng man replicd. "I would not for pity you have it hnown that I was fool enough to pity youl, or enoouraga this romentic Sacomhlo would never forgive me."
"You need not fear," the chevalier replied how far a wome hit sse and bear for myacl "Vary well. Now yon are a reabonnhle man. ohevalier, I know it from good anthority that this affioir will end in a scene. Mademoisello de Mumere sime at prodncing an effect. When sha is ex-pectorl to ansmer 'yes', ahe will be sure to say
'ne.' Only two or thrie of vs are in the secrot of this ooup de theatre. De Ssintonge presed the hand of the youns Dexquisite, and eech then glided nnpereceived to diftoront parts of tho navo of the church. The chevalicr lisaning againet a pillar, and nearly hid hy the crowd in the ionor choir, wateching tho curtain which concoalcd the the nesembled multitinde.
The mysitorious curtsin is now slowly remored, The mystarious curtsin is now slowily removod, and a yongg kiri, enpperted on each side hy a nun, sdvances to the last stop of the altar, whiore ehe kncla at tho foct of tho archhishop and receives his hlossing. Ever eye in that vast crowd is boont his hlossing. Every eese in that vast crowd if bont npon hor. The deupest silence reigne threnghout the enperb ealifee. andemosiovidod hy her noble laid aside the rieh drese provide patronces for the august occesion, and appenrs in painter. she looka pale and changed, hut knoeling thero, hor lovely hoad howed how, atd, graceril inds one of a heanntifili frail lily bonding beneath summer shower. She has caught a glimpes of the marquis, calm, pale and zeli-posscesed, his a deep, haif-supprossed sigh, and knowe it conces from a devoted heost, for now tho lest faint tingo from a devoted heort, for now tho lest faint tinco forsakes her cheok, and when the venerahlo arch-bisiolop, in a voice clenr and dinitinetly audible, bielopp, in a vice clenr ual forno of the coremony: "Mrario Oecilo Enathiter de Mamors, do you promise to answer trons put to you ?
Some momonts of decp silence ensne hofore the words-

I do promise, holy father," are fioard tilee the faint dying ochoes of a voice far oll.
"Is it of your own free will and unhised judry ment that you are now here?
Another interval of hushed expeetation. Geod Dr. Oonsset, almeat ns muoh agitated as Cecile's eres seek thoso of the marquia, then They become fixed on the eltar, nend ilie repicica in broken acoente:

inces, my father, of my own denive and free | will |
| :---: |
| The |
| The |

The arelhiahop now prococis to the third and last interrogation.
"Maric Cecile do Mamers, do yon promiae henceforth throngh porerty nad nonder all tield him eheerfil obedienco ?"
The doctor eees her cast a hurried glance Thenud, booking famit, and eeemingly ready to tall He is ahout to rush forward to Her absistance, when suddouly she recov
"Yee, holy father, I do promiso 1 "
"Yes, holy father, I to promino Scarcely had the words been spoken whon a dcep groan is heerd from the entrancee of the chepir. The people apring to their feet, and erowd around a young man who has planged dagger in his hrenst
The young girl
The young girl turns-ahe has seen all, and "Oh God I have cilled him " ohe exclaims falling haek into the doctor's arma. "Why, ob
 The noxt day the remains of the Chevalier d Saintonge were remored to Paris; and on the fol lowing day the good doctor received the hast sighl

of eieile do Mamers, the young and heantiful por| or trait painter. |
| :--- |
| trent |

```
                                    TTIE RND.
IEN. CRANT IN A COUNCIL OF WAR
```

Threse have heen fow mere groupings in the

 mountod officors, glass in band, orerioks, from a raline ground tho work of death below. Even Meisonics free hy hiter reputation to carve out nuw poth durat derart from tho old ides in hie Battlo or Solterino.

 det which We

THREE SONNETS
ser has gone down! They elhout it from afar, Kings, Nohles, Priests-sil men of every race, Whoso hingering cloge Time's swift relentleas prec.
She has gone down! Our evil-hoding atar! narchy, dons to death hy SlaveryOf Ancient Right, arrogant enomy, Beneath a hideens cloud of civil war strife snch ns hesthen slanghterers had ab horr'd, Spurning oll whales, who would call no man lord, sparning all whelesome ewrh, and dr
Her rabble ruio'e licentiens tyranny, In the fierco splendor of her inselent taorm, She has goae down-the world's eternal scorn!

She has gone downt Woe for the world! and ol Its weary workers loeking from afor Star of redemption to each weeping thrall Of Pow'r decropit, and of Rulo outworn Boautiful dnwning of that blessed morn, Which was to hring leave for the peor to hive To work and eat, to lahor and to thrive, She has gone down! Woe for the panting worl Back on its path of progrces sternly hurl'd. Land of sufficient harvests for all dearth, Home of all highest hopee-Time'e richest birth;
Woe for thes promised land of the whole Earth!

III.

riumph not fools, and weep not, ye faint-1
Havo yc bolieved that the divine decree
Of Henven had giv'n this people o'er to parish
Have ye helieved that Ged would cense to oherish
This great New World of Chrietion liherty? nd that our light for ever had dopartsd?
Nay - hy the precouns hleed shed to redeem
Nay-hy the prceious hleod shed to redeem
The nation from its selfizhness nad sin, By eech true heart that haret in hely etrifo Leaving its kindred hearts to hreelk throngh lifo
By all the teare that will net ocase to atreal
For evar, every deaolate home within, We will return to our appointed place, Wirst in the venguard of the humanar race.

Tsove's MMEntyin

On the baika of the Loire stood a hittle cottage, half hidden in leafy vines and hrillint Minwhite doves nestled under its decp thatches and restlcss hirds flashed their hright plumage in and out amoug the tangled vines. Fromits square little windowa could he eeen the tranquil river, rippling on throngh emerald-green meadows andstretohes of shadowy woodland; hat in all the fair country through which it wandered there was not so dainty a cottage as this one. It was spring, and all the ploasant fielde of Fance were capeted with flowers. Yet the hearts of the people were sad, it was the hegioning of Napoleon's war with Rusin? and already a presentiment of that mnfortmoste cxpedition had stolen into the puhlie mind.

Onie bright day in carly April the conecription commienced, and no sadder herrt could beat tlann commenced, and no sadder henrt could beat than that of Clarice Fontenoy, in her cottage by the Loire. All that woofal meniing she sat hy the Loire. All that woofal menull she sht hy the open window, ide, for the could not work, gazing, with wistrul eyes, down the road, hy which those who sheuld he conscripted were to como. What if her betrothed slould ho among them?
Sho was not alene, opposite her, with a hrow almosit as sorrowfil as her own, sat Annette, the lighthearted village beauty, not gay to-lay, eince seripts were regarded as men condemned to eertain death, and very few were those who returned from Napoleen's campnigns, In allence they waited, qufetly, sorrowful Clarice and weepthey waited, quietly, sorrowful Clarico ing Annette.
At last the shrill tenes of the fife and the monoAt last the shrill tanes of the fife and the mono-tonons heating of the drum announced that tho villagers were roturning, nono of them tec happy, since, if they thomselves were free, theircomindes gentle eyes of Clarice as shc rose snd followed Annette to the doer. Even before she ceuld disunguish one form frou another in tho procession right. Among the little hand of conscripts walked opened his arms smilingly to receive her from among those who were saved.
Not so Jeoques. With melancholy atepe ho entored the cottage, to hidfaresvell to the kittle onc entored the cottage, to hid farevvoll to the littlo onc who was to have been his wifc. Despite his firmwho was to have been his wifc. Despite his firmness, hie voice trembled as he pressed her to his heart, and said:
"I leave you ever. If I do return, I am yours ; If I fall, I am still yours, for love like ours can never facle. I uave neither father nor mother to think of when awny; you alone shall fill my heart. I feel a hope springing up in my love-that I shall return in Poor and that we ehall yet be happy.
silence, little Clarice conld ouly embrace him in himself away she went to her little hodreom, and, lonecting at ber lisdeide, looking up to the hino lonecling at her bsdeide, leoking up to the hine oky, whicre the hlcsecd eninte ore ever waiting to hear tho pioos, sho commendcd ter lover to thei day after that did sbo pray for her alsent lower, every morning when sherose, and evers night ere every morning whon she rose, and every might cr
she laid down to toke her rest.
As for Annette, thant miechievous one was haypy for only a few days after the departure of the conscripte the villare wes resoundiog with musioning.

Farly in the morning the villsgers, old wnd youns assembled on the green to oscort the young cony
to the to the ivy-covered church, whoro they were marric Among tho hridesmaids stood a yonng girl, t but whose heart wee net thero, lint far nway, wi her Jacques, on the herlers of tho Rhine, the sbont to redden with the hlood of angry armies.

It is May, and even in the oities all is sweet and fresh, whilo in villages and mesdows the scent of newmown hay fills the air, and villago maidera bind a favorite lad er lass and pile a littla mountaiu of tho fragrant hay upon their hesde, then rmm away to proveke the other to chaso them for tho a ako of a lises.
One sad, swent voice is alone heard; it comes from the littlo cottage, and it anys:
"The swallows have comergain
"Thair nestaplows have comengsin; I see mine in no wo have heen; they fly down to take their feod from my hand. Their glosgy nocks havo still the ribhons that Jacques tied round them at my luat hirthdny. They loved Jacques, and are now looking for him Jaceques isnot hono ; you may theter round his chair, but he is far away. I weep for him his chair, but he is far armay. I weep for ham alone, fer frieudship fiee from toare. But etny with me, little birds, my room is sunny, and hore none can harm you. Stay, and I can talls to yon him ; ho also loved you, for yeu were my pots." Thas the lonely orphan morumed, and in spite of kind old uncle, who loved hor tenderly, having brought her up from infancy as his own child, still the despondoney undermined her henlth. Sho felt nasured, she snid to her uncle, that Jaeques felt nasured, she snid to her uncle, that Jaeques wes dead, for he had not written to her but onco wes dead, for he had not written to her but onco since his departure, and that was on the rood. "Alna ! ny lover is dead," she cried, "for he would never le of he were net.
At last she grew so ill that the geod priest snid the next Sunday from the sltar: "Death is hovering over a young sufferer. Goed sonis, pray for the departing Clarice
And the villagers, old and young, prayed and wept, for Clarice was to the old as a daughter, and wept, for Clarice was to the old as a danghter, and to the young as a aister. She had always a tear or 3 smile for these who needed either. But she was not doomed to die then, fer the next morning her nncle entered har cottage, and henaing over hcr, whispored a few words to the oinisat dying ginl d, and her pallid check finshed; day by day she shout. She did not even feol sad as she looked in the glase and saw a face that she conld scarcely helieve her own, so pale and thin it was. In anether week she was quite well; all ahout her anothcr week sine was quite well; all nhout he wondered at hermagic ouvo ; but a etranger thing wondered at her magic ouro; but a etranger thing than this has bappened-another passion has taken poesession of her heart; the love of money, her only thought; all day she sits hy the little window, knitting and sewing, and ae the neighbora passandsee harprotty fing erafly soswiftly, they say
"Clarice will he rich some day if she gees on "Clerice will he rich eome day if ane geee on flowers ; what is happening?
They are right. She is making money fats, and every day ehe counta her store, and is bappy. A year paseses, and still she toils on; at timee ser eges grow dim, and her peor hanas dor wheel stauds still ; bnt a thought rovives hor-it is, that sho is working for Jaeques, Sbe is again strong, and worke withrenewed evergy, Sha hed alrendy saved a grest deal of money when one day her uncle was brought home by two men, very ill. It is his last sicleness, and Clarice puta her wheel away and thinks only of her doar uncle, for besides Jacques, she has no one else io the world. She sat hy him, readto him, prayed for him, aud, though her heart now whe douhly afmict ed, miniled and chatted gnily; and wheu he felt a Litthe better she would sing his favorite eonge angel than ever, But one night he felt that his time was come, and sent for the goed priest.
When he came he commended Clarice to tis When he came he commended Clarice to his care, and then with a last, loving glance up into hertear and then with a last, loving glance up into her tear-fuleycs, hedied. Whenthof funeral wasover Clarice sold everything shehad, even the cottago where sh was horn, that dear cottage in which her mother died, and where ahe had just closed her nncle' kind eyes, It caused hor heart a great pang, hut she sold all, oxcept a pretty green silk gown, in which Jacgues loved to tle gold erosa which her mother hed round her neck when the died.
Then alhe collects all her gold together, and takes it to the enré, saying:
heg the release of my na lhave; now write and know who hase or my hetrothed. Do net let him will tell him. As for me, I uhall work now with for meart, and earn more money, se do not fear and ouly love.
The priest was mnch teuched-he hlessed Olsrice for her goodisess, and wrote to Paris, to get Jecques reatored to liberty, eonding the moncy to the profect to pay for his rclenso.
Clarice tripped back to the little hired, and having prayed, dreamt that etanding at the altar with her Jacquen Another six monthe pasied. Clarice had worked and saved enough to furmish a. littlo cottagethough not ever hifere.
Still her hoart at times grow very sad; and ono duy when aho was in her little bedroonn it grew so heavy that she wept, and tnecling down, praycd, "Holy Sants, grant me to eee my Jequuos once more before I die, for I now long onnnot die uutil have secu him."
At she reso from hor hives sho hastening to her oottoge, his face rudiant with joy, As he came nearioosoid:
"My disnghter, the "My danghter, the day of your roward ap-proaches-prepare your heart to rccoive it:
Jacqucs is free, and is now on bis way to the vilWhen he hatar that yon have resened him from his elavery, be will know what it is to be loved by a eaint like you.
Clarice knclt down at the good priest's knees and thanked God with all her sonl, the tears and thanked God with all her soul, the tears ramning from her beaming cyes, and hathing hor ace in the sunuight is thengh it were a slory from heaven,
The morrow comes-the villagers, rejoioing with ber, aro in their best. They are all assemhlod st tho little triangular green whioh intersect Tho rod that Jocque must come by.
Thay way tenderly Clarice, who who way tenderty and respectfully for Clarice, who approaches, sttenited by the curb, to welcomo hor lover homo. Sho is drensed in the green gown ho loved ao well to sec her in; nald although silent, sho is yory happy-her lips move for eho is praying. The villagons closo around her-noon is sanounced ty the village clock-hat upon the road. Suddenly a blect in the distanco-it oemes a a brer-it is a horsem there are two-it is Jacques 1 Bint who is she? Po it is a woman I They ride up to where tho privst and Clarice stand surrounded ly the villngerm. Jacques is etrangely confused and avolds meetim o eyoe the Then the pricat afk in $a$ etorn voice?
And the soldier replied in a low tom
"II is my wifo, holy father. I amm married to Wretohed man," said the priest, "better thon hadet not been born; for uever aggin will yon bin wappy; thou art cursca of God and mBn-firr it who sold all that ehe had-and it was Clarico who bought thy release."
At this moment he was interrupted by $n$ wild, shrieking luagh; it was fom Clerice. Her cason had fled for ever. That joctud langh was the epitaph of ber Silontly the priest tools her hand and led hor away to hie ewn home, while the rillatere follo nfolly on the seldierant his bride, whom they lefi standing alone on the

SIGNAL STATION ON BUTLER'S ADVANCED LINE.
Our Artist eends a sketch of a signal station in the adraneo of Gen. Buter's lines, proteeted by Follet's battery, bnt so expossd thit Gen. Butler, recentity, whalo maliner his observatione hore attructed thant the elight but toworing thick and fant, strilding at hast the elfght but tow oring structure, and bringing down oomo of it: moot neeesary supports,

THE SIECE OF PETERSBURC.
The suddonnees and celerity of Grant's or a madruan ? Fertile in rosourcese a gritring General or a madruan? Fertile in rosources, untiring, peratit.
ont to obastincy, his movemente are eelcom antfernated or met. Yet here in tho atruggto at Pelerabourg he lound no loophole. His splondid tranafer of his army to tho onth of the James eenmed to lin Peterburg at his feet, but he found limself met hy all tha eclention resourcen of modem engincering. The firet line of rebel works on the right ghown in our the Anet line on page 200 were carried by Burutidet

BUZZARD'S ROOST-ROCKY FACE RIDCE-MOVEY'S CAP.
There nover was prohahly since the worlh on by shermon in hie udvance on Atlante. Wow carried the dificultion of the Aeld of Chattonoors, mith it Lookout mountain, its Minefion ridge, bot sberman, an Lookout mounthin, its Mineion ridge, bat be divanced, found still greater dificulkicer.

TAE WAR ON THE RED RIVER-ADMIRAL PORTER'S FLEET PASSING throvgh col. bailey's dam above aliexandria, may, 1864,

srapedien $-7=$

Lines written on seeina the hotographn or the Rtchmond Pritoner Frank Lelicis's Ithutratad Nemewpaper, No. 455, "Tongeanco io mine, I will repas mith the Lord" Thro' the wido world, the sun's hright eye Sees many a deed of sinand and shame,
But there are erimes, ao black in dye, But there are erimes,
One shuddors at their name. Crimes, that tbe strickon sool appal That freeze the brood and hanph the cheel, On which the searching sumrays fall, And eondemnation speatc.
I wonder how Gods ann conld shine, Waa set to do, ns sach drend line Was printed in this sight. Oh, was the starring many a acore Of unoffending, helpless mee The act of human boings?
Devised by Satan's brain?
Starvation to the point of denth! The herror oonjurad hy the thought, As home to me 'twes brought. I Baw the wssted forms lidid bare, Thu faces of wan migory; No talse oxngeration there Oh, whast B aight for Cluristian eyes, Thoso poor, pole skelctona! And oh, The fospoll lood of guilt that lies On meu who made them sol Orict, pity, engor, ell will swell Within our heastre at this groat wrong And who the ond onn dare foretoll?
We ask Thee, Lord, how long? Into Thy hands, greet Jndgo of nill, Our righteons vengewer we enll, Jpon Thy mighty power wid
This shammefal sin to end. carocly can wre endure the etting Of lnowing wees we do not thare; Then what must he thoir silfering,
Who the fall sharpnees bear?

How can wo ohedk these ernolties
At which humsnity grows pale ? When Christ's law fails to christianize, Can Goveruments prevail?
Wo eamnot of our rulers ask Thant they rour rulers ask To work ont such a devils task, No instrument they'd find.
What can wo do? must we aubmit Destroy our men as shey gee fis Woak, powerless to fold our Lands And wait in shooked and dumb despair,
Tin God enlorce His own commands, In anawer to our prayer
Nay, la this ull that we can do,
God holps them who themselv - in His Our part, nor be afraid.
Pasih on onr armiea, and suatain Our glorious loaders, Meade and Grant and give them of sapplics and men All, all thoy aak or want.
While we, saso in our guarded homes, To erown our nurms -for Pesoo, that comics Tiro' viotories God can bless. Lot us strain every nervo to win
Their strongholds from our cruel foes; Leavo it to God to purish sin,

He will, by our brave soldiers' hands, Unilock the prison doors. His care
Will eall to life and hope the landis Will cell the ade eaptives there.
Of the
But for the Past, the agony, Tho measure metod -ahall not we

Oh, no! oh, no! "Yengeance is mine Wisdom it needs, and power Divine, To cary Judgment's sword. Lot us forgive them ; oven pray That true repentance they may learn; And from the suare of Satan, may
To righteous patha return.
Within our hearts let us uot dare Harbor revenge and angry hate,
But loy our wrongs and sorroves whe But lay our wronge sad sorrove whe tive we our Whese aufferings we may allay, Lonving ill veageance on
To Hima who will repay.

The Serpent-Woman.

Tus influence Marins suddenly gained over Mnta was complete, The lster appeared to be mouldod hy her into whatever form sho chose to mulke her nssumo. Marins preferred to infuase some of her own anduunted astrongth inio her bome of her own andaunted atrongth into her mind, and to render her as free-tiloughted and in-dependont as it was pessible for her to become. She did mnchi towards mating the girl and to fit ber to fulfil the daties of a wife.
 "Not at al," anowered Myutu, langling. "You ave tanghe meto be hrave and to use my hand nough to rum away with so oldo a mann in spite 0 crough to run away with so old a man, in apite of Limselk, instoad of allowing him to taptore me."
 you. It is jnat as casy to Arightea dnnger as it is to allow danger to frighten us. Rnn from it in wild fear, and it swells to the size of a monntsin; hat it dwindies to a linbhle and hurats, It is cowardice, not wenkness, that in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred provekes injustioe and oppression."
Some we
Some weeks elapsed ere Bortram Hepswell returned to Ellingford Hall. He appeared suddonly in the library, dressod in hlack. Marinn and Muta wcre siltting in the cornor oit the eportment, the latter listening to the other's eloquant reading. So absorbed was Muta hy her friend's elocntion, that she did not hear Bertram's approach till he almost touched her, when she turned and saw him. Forgotting, losing all dimidence and reserve and received end retarned lisis caresses with all the innoceuce and cagerness of childhoed.
So ohlivionsly in paradiso wore the lovers in one another's srms, that they did not at the time notioe either the presence or the ahsonce of Marina. $A$ while aflerwards, however, Bertram reolleeted her to whom hoth were indobted for their felicity, and songht her in loft the mansion, never to return.
A month passod away and Julion St. Croix paid Stunglord a visit, tho main purpose of which wni to soo Marinn. Duriag his stay Muts recolved a letter from her, containlag, to her friends, the later from her, coatamiag, to her friends, the Gregory Grimgrip (oi whom she gpolee with affection), and that death alone should part them The known villaing of this man, the disgnating hideousness of his person and character, werc hideousness of his person snd charactor, werc qualitices that even st, Croix could not asseciate he pure-hearted young Frenchman roturned to his native land, disgusted with life, penitent and ascoticil ; ontered the Roman Catholic priesthood and bade carmal love and joy farewell for ever. During the cholera ssesson that followed the or-imation of St. Groir he was the most feanless and ndefatigetlo of oll in visiting the sick and sd indefatigahlo of all in visiting the sick and sdministering to theirhodily nad spiritoal wants, and among others to whom he readered sueh invalnallo nid was Madame Nitoucho herself. A penio had seizod those alout her sud they had fledfrom her side, lasving her to the merey of the fell dis case that has at one time end another made so many millions ita prey. She deapoired of herself and was eager to make her peace with heaven. To St. Croix she confessed the secrets of he dreadfal life, in order to reseive absolution, and he lesrned from her what great injustice ho had heen doing Marina in his heart ; for her mothe hnd, it seemed, upon receiving a letter from h coneerning Orimgrip, solemnly assured her that was a akilful physicisn for the body and for th soul, not only saved the life of Medeme Nitonche but convinced her of the error and wiokedness she committed in refusing to acknowledge Marina to ho her daughter, and of the stomement sho owe her hashand for attempting to take his life hy polson, for this crime was one of the terrible item of her confession His eloqueut exhortation wrought powerfully noon her mind in her aubdued aud penitent condition, and he was cnabled to exert sufficient influonce over her to induce her to risit England and seek a reconcilistion with Grim grip, still her legal hushand. Their meeting wa
e strange one, oonstrained, conflicting and dubions estrange one, oonstrained, conficting and dubione, admirahle address of Marina, have terminated in ronewed hoatlity and hitterer hate than ever. But she pleaded with one and exteruated the conduct of the other alternately-imploring with tears, caressing and controlling both with the unvearie temptor, so that their evil passions, it was no wonder she gained

At this psinful meeting the mystery that hed so long perploxed Marine was dissipated, and the re maining obscnnity afferwards removed from hact mind by hor mother, and all douht on the subject mind by her mothe for ever set et reat.
She learned that her putative fether, Gregory Grimgrip, had, many yeara hefore, carried on trade betwoen Eagland and Franco, pulying halfally, and had met her mother, Mrathilde Nitouche in Norfoandy, of whioh province ahe was a notive She was very hesutiful and very poor, an orplian, and earned her acanty suhsistence with her ncedle. of his rich presents and the dezzling illusions of wenth overcame her repagnance to his nginess, and married her. Disparity of age, of looks, of tastes and feeling, rendered the match a very tastes and feeling, rendered the match a very unequal, and, evontually, a very unhappy one.
Mathilde endearored to congole herself for gal deficiencica hy dreasing splendiduy and sur ronnding herself with handsomo young gallants, to whom she was suspected of granting favors ineonsistent with her marriage vows Among her favorites were Mordant Elfistone and Vietor Kingalond, senior, the formor apparently enjoying her tenderest regard. To removo has wifo from her tenderest regarc. To removo his wie from Franoe, hat his ferequent and necessary ahsonce from home at once exposed his fair partner to temptatiou end aggravated his own jenlousy. His temptatiou and ageravated his own jenlousy. His tomper grew intolerably sour, and his moraseness and sharp uphraidings rendered his presence to his wife a eonatsnt source of urhappinesb, and mude her nt hast wish for nothin an eternal soparation from him. Her al path him. liest hate, and his susplecions of her tertured hin worso than a perpetual inenbna. She discovered at length that dho was hanntad hy his apiea durin bis ahsence, and grew desperate. Jore that once in his rage be threstened her life on acooun of her suspected infidelity, and she finally detershe to foreatsll him in tha work of death. She procured from her most favorod lover the potion which was to dispatch her has band on the with the coffee in hienp Littl dideles drean that she had been watchod and disoovered by n spy in the pay of Grimgrip, who, hidden in the guilt took place, overheard ouongh of it to put his employer on his guard. At the hrealfas person was waiting ou the hall unxions to eppcali With her, and her hushand emptied his cup of coffce into th ooffee-pot. He had the revengoful satisfuetion, Aew minutes aftorwarda, of seving her pour ont fewr minutes aftorwarde, of seoing her poux out and drinlt a cup of the heverage she had been tampering with. She was, soon after, overpowered with drowsinoss, and retired to hor chanber. Grimgrip soon followed her, and found hor lying apparently litoless on her bed, and her maid, in a fea to rouse her
"Monsieur, what is the matter with madame?" ssked the girl. "Shesaid, 'My husband poisoned me, and then gank
"Let her elone; she has been drinking too much, aud will sleep affected indifference.
But But ho saw danger in remaining, more than he Tarina, his only child with him Tarina, his only child with him, At Dieppe he fit ber with Madame Poupre, the. widow of an old sea captain, who had long been in lis employ. To avoid suspicion and inquiry, he at once told he widow that the child was his natural daugh. tho old pas a girl jass aeceased, and offered take cbarge of the bittle one. Madame Pourpre take cbarge of the bittle one. Madame Pourpre was too poor to refuse his offer, had she been disosed to do so, which she was uot, and accopted ha trust and the money.
Grimgrip went from Dieppe-to England, hastily settled his aftairs, and sailod for New York, in Bettled his affairs, and sailod for New York, in which city he lived for many years, and acquired reas wealth and infuence Mathilde, whose lover had given her a powerfiul the offects of the dose, and after much cogitation was ensblod to give a near guess at the manner in and rom leer lover, uphraiding hor with her intended murder, and bidding her farewell for ever. As meens her husband had left, she removed from Amiens into Britteny, and bonght a small property in Lannion, Cotes du Nord, upon which sle resided until provilied upou by Julien Si. Crois Little Marina to visit England.
Little Marina remained in Dieppe till she was mocidentally discovered by Mordaunt cifstone in Widow Pourpre's alhop, in which he was purchasing ivory trinkets, for which the town is eelobrated. He was struck with the child's resemblanoe to his once loved Mathilde, and, upon inquiring into its is history, was satisfied that it was her daughtor. He felt a most paterzal regard for Marins, and eated at his own expense. Her mother, at Elfatone's iustance, viaitod Madrme Pourpre a short time before the latter's decease, heard her story, and persistod iu believing that Grimgrip had told her the truth, and taken her own child with him to his place of exlle. Poor Marine was, refused to acknowledge her, and left her in a who of painfal doulht as to her parontsge
But suoh mitagivings no longer existed in the mind of the nother, who now treated her devoted daughter with affeetion and tenderness, Even owd ahe appeared determinod to compel her inelinations to submit to her aense of her dutles, Grimgrip, albeit without reason, douhthal of hy her attachment and gontle ohedienco, and behaved towards her with great generosity.
Marina, who was anxious for her own and ber Marina, who was anxions for her own and her and to hegin afresh, prevailed npon her parents homs in it. In disposing of their property shed in converting it into money for the purpose of removal, Marina was grieved to observe the keen suapicion with which the huahand and the wife regarded each other, and eonld not but feel that regarded each other, and eonld not but feel thnt hatred was still lurking in the depths of their hatred was still lurking in the depths of their hearts, which she could only provent from hreaking out openly, and sumdering them wider apar - A voyuge to America was e trest to Marina Her free soul wes charmed with the idea of vor bherty, and the sea had been her playfellov in dolphin. To her expanded in its billowa liko the ocear, bounded but hy the blending eliy that only stooped to kies its imaginary hrim, was a sight that dilated ker thoughts into bublimity, and inade her heart atroll with the loftiest poet: her lonely soul, ond the wide wasta of waters sympathetically relieved her intense spirit, snd lulled it into gratend reposo.
Bold and strunch as wus
Bold and stauncin whe her heart, it was Battered tike a birds one night when ahe wes awakened by a fearful cry that soumded lika the soream of deapair and death. Thoy know hitls of not, in such a time and place, heard suoh n sound She leaped ont of her berth, dreased herself scantily and in hasts, and hurried npon deck.
She saw smolse and flames issuing from tho she sow smoke and flames issuing from tho sieerage hatchway, and eomprehended in moment the awnulmess of her sitmation. Bnt her corrage rose with the oconsion, and ohe folt superior to its horrors, saperior to its hourors. Grimsing came on dock, and, hardy as he was, quailed it he contomplated whelmed by it. Her eoricy. His wiro was over death, in the terrific form it now approached her, appoared to her bike divine jndgment and retrihution. Marina believel that her last hour had arrived, but even in that time of wildnasa and terror her thoughta waudercd far amas to another "Bertram are you now? Sleoping caltuly and baspily by nre you now? Sleoping calmly and bappity by Muta, while Death wxaps me in his flery agovies Sleep on and wake only to joy. I, who am consumed with a more bmming passion, faar not these devouring flames. Amang these hondreds I alone am ready and right willing to die. Why should so many eowering wretches be Bent shrioking into oternity? Would I might suffer and dio for all" The flames mocked all attempts to dio for all! ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ end spread with the rapidity of E winged demon. Death never looked more ravenonaor roared moro terribly for his prey than did they. Two boat wore swampod in launching. As arina wab ahon ao desoend into the one in whicu her mother wa alrendy seated, Grimgrip hung about her neel to hold the contents next to her own lifo the mos precions of all things. Tho boat, howover, dia not live long in the ses, being quieldy filled an suak. Karins, who hosated that she could danco rasped a floating, fustained her mother til sh other parent. The shstiered planks were ind ciont to support both, and the husbend and wife, in that dreadiful moment between time and oternity, suddenly glsred upon ench other with th unquenchable hate of many years, for a whil suppressed, but now hrebining forth with fetal Marina, who beheld, with borrible away from the foarful pair strugeling for the posiegsion of the little raft, each trying to throw off the other, and both ancoseding; for in the desperation of their endeavore they allowed their support to slip away from them and both went down, never to rise gail in life, clasped in one another's armes, not in the cm hate.

Marina atruck out for them, but she could no rech thein hefore they disappeared. She neve saw them afterwards. This was to her, althoug the had that night witpessed so much that wa frightful, the crowning horror. She folt almos long hait. ang rose, as if he had hurried up to witncse thi aun rose, as if he had hurried up to witncss thi final catastrophe. Marina, who had availed her self of the support afforded hy a larga oar which had drifted towards her, beheld the awful cata trophe with emotion no words esn descrihe, with something of the feeling which perhaps the aston of its eternal home. She sustaincd herself for sbout an hour in the water, till she was picked up hy a bost from a hrig, which had borne down npon the seene of the dissastor, and wea instri mental in saving two boaklonds of human being and some few awimmers, who had msiriaged, like The aurna, to keep afloat so long Thera from the Boston, Massa, to which port the hrig was bound hat as 'Mr. Grimgrip's agent lived in New Yor Marina hastened thither, and obtained the bees legal advice in relation to her affairs. The documents entrustod to her hy the decansed included, among other valuahle deeds, a will which made her his exclusive heiresa Her thers age supplied her with all tho money slie required, and after visiting some of the principal cities and liona of tha conetry, and settling her businega aatidfactorily, sho recoived a letter from Mordsunt Elizboe, wh canced her to return ho Lurope. Frior to her departure from New York, while y an ugly old man, who cried: "Oh, Cielo! Marina ${ }^{\text {" }}$
She gazed at the shahhy litilo fellow in muto
"Don't yon know me? I am Sceda."
Marina's kind heart was instautly overflowing ahe could not help being, in spite of herseli, much ahe could not help being, in spite of hereelf, much his employment, which consisted in roasting and vending chestruts.
decleimed. "I thought you had a sonl above "Bo I ha
So I have, Marina; hut I find I need not pnt is very fortunate, as I left both on the other wide of the ocean. But yon must not laugh at me. What think you that your idol, Garibaldi, is doing for a living ?

"On my life, nothing unworthy of himaelf"

"Tis fitting ; for he is a lright and shining light masif. I ahall patronige you hoth
"Anothor of your old friends is here, worse off than either
"Who?"
"Victor Kingsland."
"T have long been hunting for him, for I heard that he had returned from Collifornila. Where is signor Sceda pointed to a rongh stone huilding,
"Thle delirium creneena". "Take mo to him instantly. Oh, never mind your chestimit purmae st your own prie -hamess, goodwill, fixtares, ani all, with the conident expectation of soon remlling a forture and winning fame ae tho mysterions chestnut seller. Come 1 I Tarina would never Marina would never have reeognised in tho Hoated and raving idiot that Seeda pointed ont to bloated and raving idiot that Beeda pointed ont to her tho onee handsomo end dashing Victor Kingo. soreamed at the sight of hor, calling her a red sorpent with hlazing oyee, and mistook Seeda for the deril himself.
Sarins left nothing undone that medioal akill in his last momonts. Beforo he cied, during a lucid interval, he recognied her, nud charged hor lucid interval, he recognised her, nnd chargod her with n nesnes to his mother and brother. Marina had him huried in Groentread cocrutery at her owns exponse, and in a manner heitting the position he oxponse, and in a manner hetetting the posii.
had and onght still to have hold in Bociety.
She returved soon afterwards to England with hitle Soedn, who, like his heroic eeantryman, Garibaldi, has sinee risen from the depthas of ad versity and talien part in the glorious self assertion of hiss beloved nad heautifui Ittaly.

онартеn xym.

Yot not anwayn on the gultt hood
 most reuiaing his ideal of happiness, and serving afterward
incoe him of its poseilility. Ber tmam enjoyed his fleoting paradise, this onsis in tho desert of torrestrial existenee with Muuta, and the desser of tornestrial existenee with wother so hapy that they did not, conld beth wore think they coul say manch, and that little was as simple as it was come illumined with lovely expression, and her augeicic saile wus often tho most eharming reply that could have boou made to her lover's hurning ologuence. Bertrim mas her tutor, and fonmd oloquence. Bertram was her tutor, and fonnd muich of her mind a blank page which received his mmch of her mind d blank page which rececved his impressiona reasily and retained them indelibly. Hor progress was aimost mirrculous, and the young meater was proader of his pupil's rapid advincement than he would have been of her erudition had sho heon, when he first know her, a profound scholar. His task wes a labor of love, profound siholar. His tnak was a lab and ono in which ho teok grost dolight.
But upon krowledge for its own Eut upon knowledge for its own sake ahe did not seem to set a high value. As far as her acqusition of it mabled her to gratify yerram, was unspoakabiy precions to her. Her task, too, was a lator of love, for love was her incitement, her light, her guide, her haven and reward: So ahsorhed was her whole seul by Bertram, that she filt as though the loss of him or of his affection Tilt as though the loss of him or or his anecaion rant as ever.
When Mutas's educetien was deemed sufficiontly complote to Justify her introduction into sooioty her marriage with Berrtrum was repeated with due forra aud propriety, and ehe assumed the dutioe borvo Hill the hereditary manailon of the Haps. wells. Lady Addole Hapsswell, a very noble woman, vinced of the cordial innocence and truthfulness of her disposition than she took her to her heart and loved her as if she had heent her own dangh-or Bertram Hapswell, Bart.-for such was now with Muts, all thant Elistone conld hestow, for the old sculptor, divining that his dass woro few, and that her olaime to Eilingford would be contasted, provided her in advance with amplo meanstomainprovided her in advance with amplo meanstomin.
tain them. After Bertram and Muta had left tivin them, Alter Bertram and Minta had cist late, and ho wrote to Haring, entreating ber, if sho was at null dibsstisfied with her position iu Am erick, to return to England and livo with him. He wont back to his stidio, in which he spont the greator part of his days, sud mronght sedulonaly on a statue reqresenting the fuir one he was so anxionasly especting to hear from and again wel his last work, seemed liscly to prove his greatest masterpioce, for it was not only vory heautiful, hat replete with wonderfnl energy, euggestive grace and intousa expression. It advanced rapidy, for he gave all his time and strengti to it, and whon sto and drank very lithe, overtaxced his powere and evidently needed some one capable of exoroising a wholesomo control over him.
$\Delta$ venerahle old gentlicman who enlled to see him ons day was told that he was engagee in his tudio and would not he viibibe till five oclock in stadio and would not he virible tan tee ochock
the afternoon, his inner hour, and that it would and ho actunlly dangerous to disturb him betore. The visitor saidd he had como some hundred miles to see him, and would wait his appearance.
Mordnant Eifstons had worked unnsually hard and sat down on a bench at some distanco from the statue to rest himsolf, and contemplate his Work et the ampe time. The sky had hecome over clouded and the room looked very gloomy. Atter the sculptor had gazed for sooune time at his mar the oration, he sav, or thought he saw, a pal figuro appear hesido it, wreath its arms around fraco of thes apeparititan tisusite cold towards. When the hist and white as it was, he reco gnised it to be oryutide, and its penaivo smile and look of heavenly nffoc-tion for himim sent a thriul of atrauge awe through his haort. As it direppeorrod it beckoned to him with gracefal wavingz of the bands, imparting to the gezor that unearthly senaation which can only had vanished he gazed in every direction, surprised to find al wearing ito woited stococt, and exclaimed fearfoully
" I am going mad ngain 1" divert hia mind from tho eomposo himsoll, and just bebeld; tried to read the newspaparer he had hrought with him from tho hreakrast-talle, hnt noglected till now, For some time, however, tho lottera amam before him, and the sweet and hoding selemnity of bis apiritual visitant filled his sight
but as his vision grew clearer it was preesnted with somet hing morew fearfulf far, large, mourning, horrihle type, announcing the less at sea of the steamer in which Marins had taken her passage for America, and the perishing of every creetare on hoard, with the exception of seven of the crew. Ellfstone sprang to hig feet like one woundod wihto sitting, and strragring to overmnaster his fato totiored towardo his statuc and foll lifoloes at itt hase.
At abont forar ocleck the patient vieitor awniting tho advent into the kbrauy of yr . Eifatone wes tho advent into the Bbra joined hy Jullen St. Croix.
"Where is he? have youn not soen him yet? demanded the latter.
" Ho is in his studio,
tell me it is duangerons to disturíh him befere hi nsaul hour of ceming forth, and 1 have therefore been construined to wait here since $110^{\prime}$ clook." "They had iuttlo iden who you are, and doubtthe stadio would have irriinted their masto besond endurance, or they would have treated you with more courtasy. I stand upon no cere youy hore, however, end will take you up at
As Julien and his venerahhle friend were nsoend ing to the sculptor's sanchum, the former ob-

I thiuk it is woll yon were not admitted before I arrived, for there is no telling what effect a sud den diaclo Littlo did they divine with what imposeihility covery they conld make to him, and little wer they prepared for the eilent and awfill reception he gave thom. For the first fow scocond atter they had entered the stuatio, thoy thought that the old artist had left the room, and sight of the statue, excleimed:
sight of the statue, excleimed:
"Heavena! Mariua in living marble"
"My dangiter hersoif, andid as ilife ao life"
Your daughter ? ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ Hoved hen as such. This is the beanty that was wont to illumine my oave in Savoy, and give me now ife, zizo the visite of spring. She is no engel, hut the Queen of Women, sho is indeed Nature's mastorpioce, as thia Arta. Greal Goa. Lore ib indowe, yying on the "My brother dend"" cried the old My brother dead" ${ }^{1}$ eried the old man falling and insonsiihlo na his own works. "1]s it huws wo moet at lest ? Ho looked pale as this when we parted, but, oh, how difforent! I thought I had parted, but, oh, how difforent! 1 thought I hid murdered him in his orime, end I lisve felt tike Cain ever since. Brother, you were alvays before grave? Ho muat have died whilo $I$ was waiting below? it in a cruel thought that $I$ ahowid ting 11 is aruel tho have rendered him no aic in his last moments."
"Ho dooblesss died very suddenly," said Julien, who had talen the newspaper that the dead man graspod out of his hand, "Here is the false in. tolligenee of Mrinna's desth, and I believe that the always hiis chief solnce, and latteriy his only stronghold in life.

On the day on which these events transpired Bartram and Muta rode ou horsehack, through canmming scenery drased in the fuill luxuriano of Angust, to the half ruined chapel of St. Wime frad, about five milee irore wilboine. Theer had harily reached the ehapel, which was undergoug pardy reached the ehapel, which was undergoing audden thnuderstorm. Muta, who had contractod from Grimgrip's housekeeper a habit of tacit piety, mingled with saperstition, no sooner heard piety, mingled with snperstition, no Booner heard the thunder be the thunder begin to mutter, roil and erssh shie ran to the altar, witich wes of heantitul marHe, end in strange contrast with the rest or the had some troulle with the horses, and had just secured them against the consequences of their restiveness when he was well nigh sturned hy ad thunderclap that scemed to shake the earth and almost hrought limu to his knces. So violent wras he concoussion that he was denfened oud paralysed for sonie seconds, and fall a minute clapsed lefore ho recovared his selif posesession. Fo entered the chapel, congratulating himsolf that ho had tied up the horses in time so frmily for they had just struggled most frantically to hreak away.
As he walled up the aible his nostrils wero salhted with a salphuroous smell, and he rushiod forward to hehold at tho foot of the shattered and smoking altar tho prostrate form of Mnta. He ridinf hat had fallen off; her hair had hecomedis. hevelled and tell over her fuce, her habit, down to ho marhho sters in golden luxurience, like rays of the lightning that hind struck her. He pushed her hair aside, gazed into her frece of pura, deadyy whiteness, its epees in their wido huue stare, and and shining pearlis behind them. He chafed hor hands, culled her hy overy nume of eadioarmont.
and wheu he had triod every expedient he conld think of to revive hor and found that she maa young and linoceant wifa.

THE ARTIST'S LOVE.

DY WM. जmer smes.

Trus apake to me a dreamer, some years gone,
Wha hore the name of being lovelces, sad, Nnd Wedded only to his Art-az man Before his ensol. Warm of heart, and true, Bnt shunning women, courteonsly bat still Persiatently. Thus onco he apake to me,
In onswor to a question I had put :
"In all my lifo, I nover buew what 'twas
To sigh for love in vein-to feel my heart Grow dead within me, and the springs of life Grown dind withit mo, and the springs of life Youth's early green for ever hlooming hors.
"Thucro's allver hair npon my head, for grief
And oare have touchod me, as they tonch us all But if $\mathrm{I}^{\prime} \mathrm{m}$ aad, Tro hnt to cose my eyes Upon a weary world, and turn aside
Into my other world, my world of arroams.
"There I find love that changes hot, nor pales Its tires bor vever- love thast turns 4 That feeds me kiseces from sweet vìggin lips bleomThat colla me tendor names no othor ear has nd sings me into aloep with songa more heauThan any earthly siron ever eang her love.
"Loveloss? Here"' love to make a jealous worla And other lovers know how mach of pain Thoir love doth bring them. Oh , a wondrous 1 love 1 Thant never wearies, never pales, and yielis Kisses that never cloy, foys that do grow As this with lovs ?"

None hut the dreumer, sooth

HINTS TO SOLDIERS FOR EMERCENCIES IN MARCH AND CAMP.

THB facilty with which the American, above othera, adapts himeelf to any porition and finde recil others, adipts bimeelf to any position and inds resourcee for any omergeney fo urqueetionahle, and the jeneral fomilharity with foreet lifo gives himan an ex perience not ueuol in Euroge still a few hinta of moden of improvini matters may not he amisa, and wo give thon with illustrations that may beneant not nly solidiors in camp and Wator suyply io one of the great aimculties which solaiefs and traveliecs have to contend with. The wre soldiers and traveliers pave to coatena with. The we of the shio or pronest of an animal properily clenmici ind driod will frequently he found of ereat acrice. Fig. 1 showe the mode of carrying it. Thia kind of reael, commons in ull scathern Europe and Asia for sme and water, fit that referred to in the Bihle, whero Figs 2 ohowe a mothod of signalling hy mean rround. Another plen is to unharness the lcaders and faeten the collur of the front horge to tho bock of tho across.

In seepling in the opon air the need in not 10 much 2 cover as a sheiter againat the wind, for want of o wall

 veseol set there

HOW THE RED RIVER FLEET

 WAS SAVED.ADminst David D. Poerren's official repor to tha Navy Department, dated at the mouth of the Red rivar, May 10, givoe a vivid account of the inge niour devicus hy which tha Tho following the the maturia part of the roport:

I
$\qquad$

 | $\substack{\text { nte } \\ \text { ro } \\ \text { row } \\ \text { rout }}$ |
| :---: |

 $\underset{\substack{\text { sta } \\ \text { he } \\ \text { he }}}{\substack{\text { and }}}$ hed mor
mater
hoter
hand
nud

 four vesson thritor he had sein
The notle hearted solwiers, ecoing their lahor of the personily to nee that allthe roquifera.

wcre couplied with on tho inotant.

 him due pruise for hio caizeet and inteliigont eforts in their benif
"Major Gon, Bumk, prompty fesued all nceeesary

2 sionaliza with a piece of mokivo-olass.

3. cutiza coarge yorage inio caafy.

i. efreotive hode of seourino a prisoska,

5. anthod of making mesi-hotoomed cuati

$$
1+4
$$

6. dridarga auboss a dap.

9. agtiods of desorndina a steer mul

i. aethod or diyma dane oloties,

10. framework for byalih tens.

12. section of test miti fireplices.

13. SIKD MADF OUT OF A BOLOR

14. ambites hoainst a dayino wisd.

15. mod or mistuluno sea watra

16. safe mode of alkeptno with a yonded gets.

whlifam hufohevos, of the revonthonail army, now of penobscon, hainl.
1764. THE LAST OF THE HEROES OF THE REVOLUTION.

the one ton dria vihon, oapz, donovan, now on her way adooss the athanilo.

dinas gates, of the revolutionaby armx, died januany 1864.

TWO CENTENARIAN HEROES OF THE REVOLUTION.

 1764-1770-1864.As an apposite illustration for a papor issued so near the anniserasry of the birthilpy of American froedoms, we give portraits of two of tue last earvivors froedom, we give portratts of two of the hast Earvivors and by whose biood and tont the Deolaration of Indepondence, now on tho kips of grateful milions, becam a reality and the corneritono of a great republic. Willimn Hutchungh, one of theee, was born in York, in the county of the same name, in what or was then called the Dintriet of Maino, sulject to the rule of Mas-of the lhes straggle betweon the Engliah end the Fronch colonies, in which the last wore anbdued. colonien, in which the last wore anbdued.

 for the short time allowed him to display it, Aftor the elooe of the war be eftlod in his mative diantiet and has scon it hocoone o thiving sinto. Ho has yoted for country was milinowledged.

Whou war was nenin declared aetainat Encland Mr

THE BRIC VISION.

Vision is not a bad name for one of the most vislouary attenppts ever mado. A brlg of one ton register wha more of a vision than a reality, but most visionary of all eubluwary thinga is a voyago acresa the ary of all eubluwary thinga is a voyago acress tho Athantio in sueh a eocklenboll. Yet Capt. DonovanAthntio in sueh a eocklenbell. Yet Capt. Donovan-Donovau sounds Irish-may be a lineal dercendapiof thoso mad Irich ses rovers who in the carly agealaughed at Neptume and EoluF, and made long voyiges from their ifland in oorrich or willow boats, eovered with hides. Thoy thus reached Iocland ander good st.
Brundan, plundored the eoauts of Seothand, Fingland and Franee, atad carriod cu a pleasant trade with their Mulealan eousine in spain, Bon voyage, Viking Donovan, thlo, taldng all favorablo omens, made anil on Sunday aftornoon, June 26, amid ho greetings of thousands of spectators who lioke the Babbuth stilliness by thoir expre easions of satisfiction. The Viaton is hat15 feet in length, 4 feet 6 inelese beam, and 2 foet 10 inches depth of holl. Sho is rigged te a canvas. Her tonnago is about a ton and thisoo quartors. Sle wae lamneled at the foot of Grand stroot E. R., on the 17th. Juno, and sailed with Capt, J. C ns Cuptain a nd crow. A lively dog Toby ropresenta the passengers. The only provision for cooking is a lomp. the voyagere trusting mnininy to corned meats for the fire and carryin n coffico Wzen foretopsaill ond masius capt, Donovan eot his forosail and standing olose in, ho then "thekod ship" and ressched over to Whitalall, when bo again tacked, heading for Bectoo's Inland, and muling one more tack, ho atood down the lay with a niee broeze, malking at fceset eight Capt. Douovan intonds to mako thie coust of Enylan

FUN FOR THE FAMILY. A Yaxker dootor has contrived to extract
 Ratuen Hexproxzo.-Fancy a man nibhling an aplo en the guny yide of a hiard, for fas ans Tres following dialogue is said to have taken

 "Cullo nuro, iove", "Thien, merrain, donering, This eliango places with you." Tup following lately appeared in the Oospe

 Poor Garihaldi must have hnd a hard time

Szativa at Hase Prose--A hlopkeeper, in

 A yNAAL officer heing at sea in a dreadful
 "iry dact, ure you not hatar How is it possibl
 Arod on antap
Sho mimediateis a
"NiNo"" $"$ "his

 "Why", foid white Grace Greswrood said, in a late lecture in Philadeiphirr, LLat aho believod in Honry Warr Becchior ad Sumner are heliovers in Graces.
 ton and prayer. Tue rebrils haro prithably yery tev We presume that Gen. Grant avoids sendhilua navico trom it in returna Turs cruel war will not he over till this cruel
As rishman was employed to trim some frat treeg. Mie went in the morning, and, on roturnihe
 The South should remember that, in Solo clilla divided.
A mintrany leader shouldn't be all head o
The last joke at the expenso of tho Froncl society for the Protection or sumulo is to the foliowin

 gendemam ateended, and woula indit upon matisig a dono rexty nuai, consquently permit mo to nuswer yon,

Tup Nowbaryport Herold proposes to change
 thina to suit the timees

LITERARY ECOTISM.

M. Jouvs JNMR tola us recently an interest-Thay tili ploy ono of tis comedutes: 'Les Fsumes Con giensea. Ho man ot trend of tho poct Dorat. Thit

$\qquad$
Trib Frast Stritinga Croox. - In the time of

OVIGR ALI COMPETETOR:
 anourres or
Grand, Square and Upright Piancfortes,

thazbarge cirturicaty:

WFarerooms, 652 Broadway, IN. Y., 246 WFashington Street, Boston
SasididSUummerResort

WTETTVATD TO!

 A HOME AND INDEPEENDENCE FיOFR ONTIT 350 To CTTXZNS, Fonetaners enterativa west

 MANHATTAN Life Insurance Company

No. 31 Na

 opposito the poot Olfice.Cash Capital and Accumulation over $$ 1,300,000$.
Tha trinnntal divideend of proitto of this company has

Tho dividendo aro patd pin thio iifo time of tbo wesured, thus siding tbom to pay future prewiume.
 ANMUTYTES are granted on tavorabie termm.

H2w F $TOKTM, Presidont-
 - Alhum Gems."-Somothing New, Gay and Yaney, Toe moot desirable Cartion vor pun sped

The Createst Thing of the Times.
sand for one of E J. Boarbeole $&$ Ca.

HOSTETTER'S cmbrbrampad
STOMACH BITTERS,
REDVORCE NATURE.-Afthr having hionacrod in

 Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,

 ミr. Brigss's Colden Onguent.

WHY? BECAUSE TT Lha proved to givo natiffoction

Matrimony--Why every man should

 12 Wilits streces, Navel Yorki.
$$ 100$ per Kizonth. Active and roliable

The Government Loen $$ 200,000,000$.

This Loan is amthorized hy Act of congres of March 8th, 18es, which provifen for its REDEMPTION IN COIN, nt any period not less than ten or moro tban forts youre from ito date, at the ploware of tho dov arnmeat.

Until its Redemption, five por cent. interess is to be paid remilamunlly IN COIN, Subaeriptiona to the Leanare roctived by the ronog or other fundis as ore talien by them on depes it par.
Its Exemption from State or hochi Tax ation adda from one to three per cant, per aminum to

The Rante of Intereat on this loan, althoogh by Ave per cont. in coin in as muoh greater in cursonuy ang the diforence botween the market vilus of curreacy nod gold,
As a Rnile, the five per oent. specto securities of wrorth tha fuce in gold, hesides paying is reguhr and Bheral purceatage to the holker.

The nathorized Amonnt of this lona is Tro Hundrod then Dollars, The nmount of eubsoription

$70,000,000.

Snbseriptions will be recetved hy the
 and Philadelphls, and hy the Firot National Bank of Now York, No, 4 Wall Streat. Second National Bank of N. Y., 23 d Et, and Broadway. Third National Bank of N. Y., 5 Nasmua 8 . Fourth National Bank of N. Y., 27 and 29 Pino St. Pifth Natlonk Bank of N. X. Y., 938 Third Ave. Sixth National Bark of $\mathrm{N}, \mathbf{Y}$., 6 h Av, and Broadway. Ninth National Bank of N. X., 263 Broulway Tenth National Bank of N. $\mathbf{Y}$., 240 Broadway Central National Bank of N. Y., 71 Duano St. Noticnal Ixchange Bant of N. Y., 134 Greenwieh 5t.
AND BY ALL NATIONAL BANKS respretable banis anb bankers throughout the country (Moting as ageota of the Nia. tional Doposifary Baukte), will farnish further inform. stlon on application, and 457-8

GOURAUD's
Italian Medicated Soap,

 eoriea, found at the old eatahlished Depot ot
DR. IELIX GOURA, andit Druget pats generalys. C. E. Eiea, IM. D., Baltimore, 35 years Professor of Pemale Therapeutic.
$450-63$

NTOVN IRTADTE.
THE RECORD
PARIS, LONDON
new Yonk fashions.
sPRING No., 1864.
WITH THE LARGEST COLORED PLATE Ever given in any Pubication,

Price 25 Cents.
Isdies, Drenmantere, ce., ena ohtaie thise invalualio Reslion Ree of any Newsdeaier.
J. H. WINSLOW & CO.

$10 \overline{00,000}$

WATCHPG, CHADNS, SETS OF JEWELEERY, GOLD

W0ieth $300,000:
 you wbat yon can hrve for si, and at tbe eame tive ge Town in tho Country.

The IOth Army Corpe Badge, in Solla shvar, $$ 150$
 1,000. Sond for a CIr cular. AAdres
BROWXE Moone Manufac

The Confessions and Ixperience of an Invalid.
Publimhed for the benoft and es a warning, and coution to young mon who nuffer from Nervous Be

If Fous want to IEmovo

MEDICAL COMMON SENSE Aunong the many suhjects treatod in thie work ar
the following: Oomanumption, Bronclitie, Anthma, C

 4pplicanta, or the book forwarded by mail, postage paid, in reeniyt of $$ 1$ go. Adrresd
E. B. FOOTE, 1130 Broadway, N. X.

DISTITTD DEN

Do Xou Want Iuxuriant Whiskers or IVoustaches?
MY ONGUENT wiin force them to grow beovity in R. G. GliAhAM, 109 Namenu St, N, Y.

Photograph Cards for Contlemon-

Wanted इverywhere, good reliablo Canicht emplogment, and extra liberal inducemints

Attention, Company !

 puidress on recelipt of the money. Address

 0 Q, W. PHILO, Broohlya, N. Y.
Boauty- IIont's White Iiquid Znam-

[^23]
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL,  DEGRAAF & TAYLOR,

 (FORTMEIE II. P. DEGRAAF,
$\qquad$ aresn in be one of tho largeest Furriture Houres in the Unitod Ststos $\qquad$ inducemente to the Wholecale
in part, of

ROSEVOOD, PARLOR AND CHAMBER FURNITURE;

Mahogany abd Walnut, Parlor asd Chamber Furniture
 Tucker's New Style Patent Spring Bed,

30 not Fail to Cret, ony our way to the Boat or Car,
FRANK LESLIE'S
LADY'S MAGAZINE FOR JUEY, 1864.
Sach an array of Fasbionn and Fauhion intoligenco was The Colored Steel Double Page of Fashlous la unequalled.

a four.pace fabhion plate,

otc. Culfs, Skirts, Waitst, Cuilliren's Coiffuree, Eathing Dressea in FULL SIZED PATTERN OF A JACKET
FOR HOME WEAR. CONTENTS :
The Doctor's Wiffe.-By ailies 3r, E. Braddon. The story of tho Olown's Daugbtar, The story of tho Red nnd White.
The Two Fingers.
Circuunstantial Evidenez
With a uelection of Fine Art Pieturen, Soclal Sisetchee, Comic llustrations, etc., ete.

Trank Leslie's Lady's Magazine the fremihest, moot racy and charming of the montilice, and in point of illoetration has nover been arproached, Suy a Number and be Convinced FRANK LESLIE, 537 Pearl strcet, N. Y.

Cerajis Moldéa  Collars

 Gray*s Patent Mroldedlonthrs, The only Coblar

PATENT MOLDEB COLLAR," Eolam Ey all "GEALAY' HATCH, JOHNSON & CO., 81 Bevonshire Etrect, Boitan.
 VAN BEUSEN, BORHMER & CO.', 627 Chestruit Stroet, Pbiladelphi HODGES BROS, 23 Hanover St, Batimore.

 A. FRANKENTHAL & BRO., No, 0 Main St, 8t. Loul BRABFORD, DHOS, Milwaukce.
WED, WITTERS $&$ CO., 7 to 13 Tchoupitoulas St, N. O
$45 C 0$

DURYEAS MAATEENA

reoeived two prize mebals
INTERMATIONAL EXMISITION,
LONDON, 1862;
At the Grent International Exhibition Hamburg, Juty, 1863, Received the Mighest Prize Mechal fow It Ged th
Mighest Prize Ahedalifor its Great Delleacy an an Articte or Food.

furuished on application by letce or $\rho$ therwase to
WM. DURYEA, Agent, 108 Fuiton St, F. Y
Broker'e Stocit of Unredemed Goods

EMDPLOMMENT AT YOUR OWN HOMES.

Litorary Agency, Estahlished in 1842.
The eubscriver bea, for more that 20 ycare pust been concorning them, and arrangiag for their printing an pablucstion, mhen desired to do so. Ho makes bi atd and benefit authors.

In all cateo lutterg of

Cooley's Cabinet Printing Ofice

 And warrnnted to print in tho beatmanner, Soud or Corcular. G. COOLEY, Spruce Et., N,

MATRIMONIAL FAVORS BRTDAL SETS BRDAL GARNITURES, BRIDES
MAWS SETS, OSTMCH YEATHERS ANB PARIS FLOWEIS, PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY, No. 2 Now Chambers इtreet,

 Card Plctures $$ 1$ sit per dox. -8 for gl, Card Vignetcos s3 per Large Size Photographe, 2

$$
2
$$

Emp Partioular attention givan to Copsing Cards or

 HOWARD'S SWEAT PROOF

Soldiers' NLoney Belts, WITH COMPARTMENTS FOR

 Sntiera, Aconte and Pedlars wantod Hopitiland city.
N. B. - The Trade liberatly dealt woth.
MHADAMIA BENEDICTG

Millinery & Dressmakibg Establishment In now repleto with EVEAY imported noveliy of the geason 12 Waveruey Plaós New Yonr.
The Great IVoney-TIaking Article.

860 A movetill want Agenta at 500 m month,

55,000 Watches, Chains, Stc. VVOFTMEE $ $100,000$.
To bo nold for One Bollar each, without regarit to vilan, Reriment and Townin the the ounlr
Six Cort

The Barly Physical Degeneracy of American People
And the early melanololy deolino of Chulhood and Youth, junt publinhed by DR. GForE, Pbysician to tio $A$ Treative on the obore oubiect the

 DFE. ANDTZEW ETONE,

"Psychomaney ${ }^{\text {" }}$ - EIow either sex may fesomnto and giin the lova, conidence, nffection and

THE COMIC PAPER OF RARERICA
FRANK LESLTH:
BUDCTT OF 玉 FOR AUCUS:
IE NNOV OUN,
contaning tele great caitoons or the day.
THE WAR OF THE GIANTS ;

THE TENDER-HEARTED BUTCNERA
The Fair Girl of Washington
 Prico only 20 Cents.
$10 AGEMTM $$ 10$

FREANK LTESLIEMS
Unrivalled Publications
Franlt Leslio'e Lady'e Magazino and published. The reading portion is the crean of con-unsarpased in number and oxecution.

In FASHIONS it han no equal or compotion can diaposeo with it. Termes, &3 per sinuum.
Frank Ieslie's Ten Cont NTonthly, the Ledger of the Magaziuct, full of brillant otorts aud other nlustrated matlor, $$ 1$ per aunua; 10 ets, 4 Nie,

Frank Loslio's Illustrirte Zoitnng, -tho
only German Ilustrabod paper in the connitry, $$ $ 300$ only German Illustratod paper in the connitry. $$ $ 3.00$

Frank Leslie's Iady e Tlustrated AlIfanac, 3 very valuablo aud ottructive work. 1rice Tixron.

A NEW NOVEL

 By Mrn. ANN S. sTRPHENS, THE INDIAN QUEEN.
 BEADLE & CO., Pablishert cevernar
For Hardening & Invigorating the Gums.

 whero- 75 couth Bre boitid

American Gold Pen Co  Manufneturorn of COLD PENS and PENCLL OASES of overy deecription sole manufoturem of tho celebrated ANGULAR MIBBED PEN.   AMERIOAN GOLD PEN OO.,  BRIDCEWATER PANTIT

Nervous Diseases and Physical Dobili-

The only enamiellod "Turn-ovor": Coilar mude in metale. 8 and s1 for a " 2urn-over," or 75 eents for a "Chokor, to o. HE WeLLINO, 06 Ping Strect N. Y.

WIM. KNATE & CO.
RAND AND SQUARE PIANOS
 Cartincaton of Ercel
lence from Thalberg, Cottucholly, Strakorcik

aent on application.
GOOD NEWS FOR THE ARMY!
 or frienda, giving an Album of the fall veluo of tho
money cont
Our Album have the repatation of heing auperior to all outers in boauty and durability, an from 50 conto to $$ 50$. Our cotalogito or

CARD PHOTOGRAPHS
 Coguo esnt on receipt of etamp.
Stereoscopes and Stereoscopic Views, Our anoortment of theee le very extonsive, Incluaing a great variety of viowe of the preteat Wer. Catalogue great variety of riows of the prestant Wer. Coniog ent on rocelpt of atanip.
E, & H. T, ANTHONY & 00 .

WHAT TO DO

HOW TCO DO IT
Take an Agency for our Popular Bookn-huy at Whole-Eate, sell at Retail, and eave the pronits. Frill particulare eent on recesipt of etomp, lyy EOWLER \& wecis, 450.620 FOWLER \& WELLS, 3B9 Broadway, $\mathrm{N} . \mathrm{y}$.

PRESIDENTIRAX

CAMPAIGN MEDALS
Trede orrdera solicited and promptly filled at Faotory

STAMMERING

tane for once.

$$ 15$ PER DAY $15
 Ander ind

BALLOU'S

pateatiod
FRENCH YOKE SHIRTS Warnatod ${ }^{\text {to }}$ FIT CHIAPRR for tho namo oviry otbor Bhirt Houso in this oity. circular contanin.
ing arawing and pricoe bont froo. United Statos.
BALLOU BROTHRRS, 403 Broadway, X. Y.
Wheeler & Wilson's Highest Premium

fock smigh

Soving MLachines

$\qquad$ 625 BROADWAY, N. Y.
THE BOWEN MICROSCOPE,

EDGE'S FIREWORKS !

Wholesale and Retail.
DEPOT, YO. 434 BROADWAY.

BENGOLAS, TRELANGLES, FLYIN PlGEDNS, HICNES,
 GRASS HODDERS, BATLOONS, LANTERNS, JOSTICE, etc., AEFRID WOODEAM, 424 Broadway.
Uss of Tobacco, in all its forms, Cured

$7 Arator  $$ 7$

ABenatifol Engrayed Gold-Plated Witch, Donhlo

 &18 ATGRRINE &18 A GUPERB "EXTRA nouble gold.platep er. graved or engine-turned Hunting Cane Watch-Magio
 A corroct Guide for the boddicr or Traveller-a perfect, Timeteoper- Warranted one year,:" will staud aclid,
and ta a perfoct imitation of
A. $$ 100$ Gold watch used by tho British Army Officers, sent, free, hy mail, in Eleguat hrorccoo Caso, for
only $$ 18$.

WARDS SMIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE BYMAIL OREXPRESS

Belf-ME easurement for ghirts. Printod directions for self.measurement, Wat of pricea, mad dramings of diferct wtyle of nhirta and collurs

STWHWCOKLARS

ENAMELTD WHITE,

 Onion on the recoipt of 90 conte.
Aganta W
S. FT. IT. WVARD,
 $0000 \quad$ S. 2M. WM RD \& CO.

FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS!

George B. McClellan STORD ATD

GTENERATATEND. The undercigned has heen tollcited hy many in the arma and citzens of tis oify to bo tho Fecipiont of a find as aliove rund as hiove eset forth, All moneys bont to mo for moch of GRATITUBE for the tervicas of that abte Commander.
LOULS PHILT, No, 2 hurray SK, N, X.

TNANTED

10,000 AGENTS to sell our Now Plicturo of GPN GRANT. 810 por day an he mado. It in tho largect nad oniy correct ono pablibook. sind for lettor of Shults' Onquent. - Warranted to produce a full ect of Whlakicn in Six Wock or monvy re-

Brooxtexmona, Tourists, and araiy and navy offictis, Zowerful and Erilliant Double Classeg.

FRANK LESLIE'S ILLUSTRATED

No. $460-$ Vol. XVIII.]
The Late Rebel Raid into Maryland, Tre authoritiee and people of the Maryland nd Pennaylvania horder, Baltimore and Washington, have just heen favored with n sarprise party, which will not soon he forcotten. Had tho daring rebsl invading column, whieh so unexpectedly strenmed over the Potomnct the other day, and over nil the roads leading to Frederiek eity, eoms np out of the ground, or dropped down from the clouds, it ould hardly have created more astonishment, confusion and alarm. There had heen ahundantaud timely warning given of its approaeh, its streugth and its purposes; hat the faets were so intermixed with conflicting rumor and wild inventions, that nutil the sanguinary hattle with and defeat of Gen. Wallnce on th Monocaey river, it was impoesihle to tell whether the invading forees of the enenyy fell hort of 1,500 mon, or exeeed twiea 15, 00 . it is it that neither the Wermers of nor oar severan Potomic, know anything definite of this daring and dangerons forey of the enemy nutil they etartled Gen. Sigel from his faneicd ecenrity at Martinsbarg, and drove him down the river to Harper's Ferry, and thence neross to the Maryland Heights for safety? Let us hriefly answer these questions It was as but a few days ago that we were rejoieing over the capture of Staunton, 140 or 150 miles np the great valley of Vixginia, from Martinshurg. Hunter had cleared the valley of the enemy to,the verysourees of the Shenandoab river, and wae still pursuing them, seattering them from Staunton right and left, hapneheei on, withont a provision train and without depot or hase of supplies, to Lynchhurg There he was repulsed; and from ths hanay ocnverging detaohments of the enemy eent forward from Richmond to deetroy him, he nexi diseovered that his line of return, down the Shenandoah valley, was cut off, and that a rereat westward, to ths Great Kenowha rive and thence to the Ohio, was his only chanee of escape. Aceordingly he passed over the wostsru mountain houndary of ths great valley, and so to the rehel forcee sent against him that valley was left completely open from Staunton down to the Potomne. The opportanity thus offered for a dashing eurprise to the Mnrylandlere and Father Ahraham was tootempting to hereeistsd. Betweon Staunton and Martins hurg not a man, as it appeare, had been left of our forces to witeh report the cncray' movements. And yet, from varions sourees fiven to our Federal anthorities at Wnshington iven oar loyal hardor States dircetly coneerned man tions for a deeisive settlement with Eirly and company, with their landing on the Maryland side of the Potomae. Why this was not done it is needlees now to explain. Nor would il it is needlees now to explain. Nor would the responeihility of Gen. Hunter, the Wat Offiee, or Gen. Grant, or anybody elss.

We turn, therefore, to the inquirice. Doen We turn, therefore, to the inquirice Does not ths Northern diversion of a largo force from Lee's army afford a splendid opportnnity to Gsn. Grant to move upon Petersbrug, or to Gsn. Grant to move upon Petersburg, or t he not act necordingly? Will onr military anthoritiea at Wanhington, aud of Maryland and Pennsylvania, meantine, pormit even a baok to them of their herds of cattle and horses, and We answer, first, that we expect noon to bear thant Gon. Grant that we expect noon etermining the issue of this campaign and of the war; and secondly, we entertain tho hope into the every heart of Maryland, will not only be deapoiled of its plunder, but broken ap and dispersed in its retreat for Richmond. In brief, we are inclined, with one of onr daily cotemporaries of thiacity, tio tho opimion that, this Maryland strategic diversion and foruging adventure, Gen. Leas bos committed a grayd miatake, wbich Gea. Grant will turn to tha  \section*{Barnum's American MLuseum.  \section*{Barnum's American MLuseum.  }

Oscanyan's Oriental Album

frank Leshes
ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER,
7 Pcarl Street, New York

THERNS:

| One copy one year | F................. 8400 |
| :---: | :---: |
| Two copicas -1 |  |
| Four ${ }^{\text {a }}$ | 1506 |
| agatine | one year............ 600 |
| Puper, quarterly. |  |
| extra copy to | ab omour |
| S | A |

Firat-elass atoriea will be read promptly, and paper only, aud be accompuyied with the dadirese of the writer. Poome er a linenth mill meet rith atteotion.

 scat by mull at the rates of printed mattor. If enent by mall, better poctoge manit be puid. Peckerges ever four manl, letter pootage eant bexproes.

 tors of short articks, poenin,

Summary of the Week

vieamas.
Xothing new comees from Grant's arny. Hie gots on at times.
on tine 7 th and sth the eneny made demonstrations against the position of the 9th corps. On Tumer's division, and on the sth another was mado on Stanarard's and Mrartindale's divisions of the 1tth corys, but they were driven hack with heevy 1 sth coryse , but the loes in hoth cases.
some onrolesa.
Two expeditions, wnder Col . Clanssen and CoL Jourdan, which lert Nemberne on the state, with Ahout six miles frum Kinston CoL. Chassen surprised a rebel force, and took brig. Gen. Foulk prised a other oficers priboners.
and some
An especitition under Gen. Vodges also lett Ports-Ouny, towethe
othor stores.

The ussul summer raid has conve of: Grant's oprations having hecome a sioge, Lee was en-shled to detach a force to ecour the Sbenandoanh valley, just as the crops were heing barvested.
As usual, we woro unpreppred. Half a dozen Generalle, with as many dithio passing all, btriko sonttered ahout, and the rebulk, passing ail, striso througid Marrland to Greoneastle, Peun, Moanstabli bestir themsolves.
Gen. Mulligan on July 3 engaged the rehheli at land heighte.
Detachments of the onemy pushod on, plunder ing se th $y$ weat, and rapis.
boreees,
ded wagons, eto.

Hagerstown was evacnsted on the 6th, our troope
省 The rebels have dostroyed all the roilroad proBaltimore and Ohio railrosi.
On
On the cth thee were driven ont of Midaletown Ey the 7hi Hlinows and Cole's Maryland cavalry. Ewed's corpa, two migades of Hulh corps, and Leo and are operating in the valley.
Aven, with two mane in the gap of tho Catuotin ralley, with two gunge, in the gap of the Catuotin mountoing, and at the same time the rehal Gen. MeCanaland'e hrigede was at Williamsport, hut Gey cracnated Harperts ferry the bame day.
Gon. Sigol has leen superecded hy Gen. Avin How.
The
The rebels in this invasion are supposed to numonidge. 2 E, Droo monent under Gens. Early andibreckferry snd operated west of south mountain. Earily, ntiter oxpeoting to take our forees in ine reur, croesed at Edward'a ferty nud joined Breelsuridge near Frederick Gon. Lewis Walisco, findiug a superior foree in his froat, fell hack on Monocacy bnidge. On the Oth, at seven A.Mr, two Olio regiments, thromn out as elirimishocre, were driven across the briage, hut there held the assailants is check till three oclock, When four reiel regiments, who had d crossed helow
Wock thiom in tlank, and they foll hanck, having lost took thom in dank, and they foll hack, karing lost 1,000 men in killed, wounded and miseing. Brig. ,ooo mon in Kyler is among the missing.
The rohol cavaly garo menenwihle operating in on the Northern Central and Priladelphia and Wilmington roads, eapturing two trains and taling Gen Frandin, prisonor. They next burued Gov, Bradords honeo near. Baltimore, and slod Gen. Cadwallador's.
Gon. Diok Taylor has rosigned commond and gone to Ridimond. His succoessor, Gen. Wint and Gen. Kirly Smith are consecripting without and Gen. Kirhy smith are chone annpaign.
massisatpl.
The gnerillas are very activo, and are scouring the country between vichts.
sides attacking steamers.

The privateer Fhorids wesepoken off Cape Henry nn the $\Longrightarrow$

CONCRESS.

Tar Senate met at 9 o'clock on the 4th of Thy, and aescinted to the Special Income Tax Bill, hy 9 to 7 .
The bill trom the House for the relicf of the publichre of the Glove was then conddered and paseed-yeas, 27; nays, 8 .
Pri. Wilon called up the bill to increase the compenastion to Matrens of Hoqyitals. Prosed.
At 11\% the Senate went into Wiscutive Eocson, and At 11 , the Sonate the doore were aggin thrown open at 20 minute past 12 , whica it whe kearned that a postponement to 123 had whica if wree korned that a postponement to 12$\}_{\text {h }}$ had beeu made in the hour of aijournment, is which the beeu made in the House concurrct
 dent pro tent, said:
szanzons: Tuc time axed by the coacurrent voteo of the two Housca of coneross for the acjowamment hise
 phasant retora' to your homen and flumilics, und os

The House met at 10 o'clock, when Mr. Wabliwun

 prosent etruggle for the euppretiou of the rebelion

 nud thear triumithe turnination thic
nul purbuits of life.
nul parsurts of Hife, Weehburne, of Mlinols, asd Dnwnons Aleskrs. Stovens,

 crense the pay of to o doume char cmployes 20 pic
cenam, which wes agreod to.
 The yeas
tuad tume wis
nad

As old Indian, who had witnessed the effeet

FOREICN NEWS
The London Confermee for the aettlement f the Danist quertion tha broken up without haviae rraoged auything. The peoplo of England somem hirongly inclined to take niden with tho Dapus, bat the Quece and Gorman pirty are reyy trong, and would pparar to havo porsuadod Palmorston to retmin neutral
The Darby party were on the point of teating the questhon in the Honse of Commons, oud monald they curry it the minititern would be obliged cither to resign or oppeal to the country for a new Parhanent, It wasi however, oxpected that the miniocurtwoums of the peo-majorlty. Deepito the warise euthuasm ple, and the desire of the Tories to emburrsis Lord Pilmercton, tt wso not thou hht that Enthand would go to war with Qermany, which las been for centarie her tradikoual Illy ngainet Frunce. SLiould, bowerer, each a continguncy liappen, st must iworitalily lead to a gane-ral war, since Englond would, with her usual nascrupuloumeses, aroutue Peland, Hungary und Vesectio. She the revoliutionary elcment, which would compel Loulk in Rypland The war between the Danes and tho Germane wie to recompuence oa the 7 tha of Juue. Both partios were

 Patmerston prosonted the protorole reciating to the pro ceewinge of tho Connerence, and recouted tho eircum elances which led to the war. The qivestion of the policy purived towards canadd wha discuusd at con

TOWN cossip

Nev Yori city is but a resction of the ma

Whatover enititee the country io felt for moro forcilily in New York thann in any other purf. She is the pulse o to wisch all the uperutort, from tho Prestient and the Secrecary of the Treas ory, doonn to the niallest lobby tfrcet slakise its head onsinousk, down go our national eccuritios, and the wire-pullers at Waskington and elac-where tremble in their ehioes. If there is commotion where tremble in their phooss. Ir there is comin unil among the politicfans, all the country etande stal util mong the poitictins, all the conne what New York is going to do Ard yet
 atd trampled on in a way parfectly marvellous to be.
woth. In the distribution of farors from Wsiaington she is ulways overlooked nod nnulbicd. Disbelievere on this point have only to look about them at the number lese placee of howor and protis within the gite of the people and the Governnent, and see how seldom the name of a New Yorkcr fills one of them. Erun in our Lacal patronage, atrangera are tiruat upon apon un, and tibe chances are very emall that if there is an oimeo of then exceeding goodnose to be given an man or New Eagland man gets it.
man or New Eogland man gets il
With our Stote Govornment thin rule applice atyll morn Thith our slote Govcrament ibirvie the Sluta, we are fordhly. In all our conncetione vith the positivels embibed and brombeston, unt1 the muttar tho Wenteru and Northera parts in the State Legstic us a pig haws about a hoopakirt, and who have never been to the city cxcept upon tieir yearly sproe, when tricte are too hot- to us. Wo belleve that, left Teve York world to thot woral popultiou hee of the carth. She is too buey to bo wheked.

 ninivo

 and ano

为

 and Nom
 and and

 and

 dind

 and

 and

 and

olevor, produces " The Ses of LCo," a coolung aciatr for

EPITOME OF THE WEEK

 borte

 warde contraction will Le bo eonn
madio kzourna to ail at the same time.
 the dectit of slavery.

Naval-A pery dirtuand haurtoonespadiuon,

\section*{| nis |
| :---: |
| 1 |
| mid |
| joun |
| joun |  $\substack{1238 \\ \text { and } \\ \text { and } \\ \text { ant } \\ \text { pertin }}$}

 and

 Nind

 and

 ime a Brigadier-General in the Ne? York State Milition
For many years ho resided at Underclif, a country
eet on the Budt Kan King Withem $I_{\text {. }}$ of Wurtemberg, wboce death

 Tore rceentiy bin Government galnod some populnrity its attitude in the question of a reconstruction of Mn Rnco Cuarice Frederic Alexander, who is mimried to peror of Ruasta

 chlise. He lont 7,000 cattlo lant winter tirough wait of food.

 of Gbout $$ 1,000$ worth of property. Foreign-There aro 188 polliceal journath in 8wit.

 iig The female operstives of the Waltham Wateh

 petert to be biseartily redimiot

CHIT-CHAT WITH THE LADIES

 Wy have been wishing for rain for a goo oud orcbardo in case the drought should continue have been nitered-and people fnnaod themaelvas and nhooktheir heade, and signified hy warions wise hinta and glanocas their opiulon that we werionz nover to have and fimize upon the lond.
Now se I write the clouda gather and a shower acems close at band, and tow many are thanififif for it I Ehould like to lenow? There will be pheaty of frowne and "Just to-day,
mur hall-a-dozen.

mur hil-a-dozca, of all othere, when I intended to call nThis morving, of an

 0 good aunt Mary, "jnat ao the rasb was hung on the lines."Rashing, when I charch. When Tompkine and bis party are out with their yacht. When the Suudhy School are laving their Erery oat wanted rafu. But not to-day-no one over doce. It's a fixed fact that huotan beingo are pever contented with the weather. Rain or shine, cold or heat,

calma or gulces, some one almaya grumbles. Traveliting Companinns.

Newspapers arc jost now boesting of the fuct that the colored kdice and gentlemen are admitted to colorcd ladice and gentlomen are admitted to all the pablic conveyances. We suppooe we ought to rejoice slo. But oomehow we never could bring oursives to niter those care of the Sixth Aycnue kive which the phacard-last weck buuthed for ever-"Colored pervons ollowed in thio car," and our projudloes will persons ollowed in thio car," and our prejudloes will pot vanish at any one's blading. There are whist folke we admit, who are not moro ngrocable fellow-traveller than the negro, and unlest you know exactly whom you are seatod ond are certain ho has not jue como from a dwelling aftlicted with the smanlipox, yellow fever or hoopingcough, it 4 not pleasant to be crowded lever or hoopingcough it is not pleasant to be crowded ap ertainst him as the victims of atsge aud railroad
If we had a volo wo mhould say-admit the masa and brother by all meanh-but for thie sake of humanity, atterwarde rofrain from jomming pansengera togethe like pign in a box. We cannot all keep our own car rigges, and there and theretore, if the negro fa "allowed" in any car, we pe tition the stage companies to divide the seats an they are divided in places of amoeonient-no mach room for eoch person-and no one sawitted after the vebicicle bolits the allotted number; otherwion, wo fear that if the colored population focreases we muthe walk or hav

The Sang-Writer of Amoxica.
Gcneral Morriu has gone-be will write no more-hili hat veree io penned, unlees, finded, the spirituallata are right, and that which we lovod and did in this woric How fast they fall, thaee who fulled the pagee of the periodicals which were new wheu the old men of the day w ay were young-one aitter the other-grcater or leeserlights on the literary borizon. This ycar hies sen very many pasw oway. Ere it to over, how many more shall many pass oway. Ere go? Who can answer?

Pretty Wimen.
Beauty lo a matter of tante. or all thingain the world is moat dificuilt to difcover whethera womian yon hive never ecen le pretty or the reverie. You may ank difrernent repliea from ench one as will only werre to puzzle you the more. Your friend Brown will go into eactacies over her, and pronownee her "Charming." liser sios, zol who ever thought of calling Kitty Jonea pretty ! 1 , othes
rith variotions
Tompkine will think her "pusabile," and collectirg ithe evidence, yon wil fiod tho name girl celled lovely

 avorable verdiet on your orth countenamce, remencaber hail your world will not agree will you, and though you om you have at least one adimiser. Besuty after all par of eyer ngree pertectly. Ginllintry
Do you know what wo snw a gonllorana do in a Firth Svenne onalbuas the other day? Youll harily believe fica we tell you. But ou the word of a ecribbler lt is
It was a somby day, juet at the hour when the Bur's cuys ase atrongent, and the thady nlde of the " bus" vas fill while the opposite was orupty, A londy "topped Le atoge, and approactred, nad a gentleman, abbohutely, ponitively in those degcierate dnys, left his shady cat, and beatowed himeelf in tho suin that the new. omer might be comifortable, Did it before abe nterod too, in the quletest aud mont woobtroive W, wo that we fancy she never acticed It
We have ridden in omnibusce ofen, but we sever ww auch a thing done before, and nover ain. fhela, and ought to be put in Baruum's Moractuia os Muste at the Park.
 hould bave written, tor Eo clnmot buve a nioon fote of thanks. Mnaic in the afternoon in very well, bat to enjog it you must daro tho beains of the broilling wanm nay. In the eveminy it is pure pleasequent on utn tonelh of pain, the fope wilthout a tborn. And musie and moonleght niways oceord with enct otber, and you cas indulgo fin ull norts of dreasise and anclee as you listen
The ntarch of dee ightit ie required uo lon ger fin the eveceoury ly daylook us you fool; stand or olt as you choore. No one nece you. in the myaterious shailoir you are only one of o crowd, and no one can tell wbether your bounet io We wirh there couta be mualc io the Central Derk every ovening.
One thing we are debigbted to hear, tbes have taxed Hiquors so that "drinks" cose more than they ever cost bcfor. We hope they will continue to do the same, until no one but a millionaire can afford to imbibe. so that pat, the carpioater, cannot awallow of sufkrieut quanility of the nquid fire to legd bim to beat out Bdddy's brainan nill Smith may not be ohinged who now sit up all might for 8nuth unlock the nightatch with his hesit poucil. Tox oway,

AMERICAN VS. FEDERAL AND

UNION.

Ir was, we think, a sad mistake in our press tu tive mame, sa the appellation of the layal people of it Uniled States. For a century we bad heca known ar umerican, our government no the American Govern m. At, our iug ao the Amerrican iag. Only thin loat han ve.tured to call the Stars uod Stripes the Unionist o Eeleral fagg; but if it in the American thag, the Govroment which use it $u$ the Ancrican Corenwanst, acmy that aghta and hieeds and conquora under it fol ta the American army. To throw this noble title ostile and take up a party namo is to degrode our galant aen from patriots to more tools of a faction. Let eur cloualy ciling to the old
T.ue weight of thio wull be seen in the Englisla artcloa and the Confederntos. Dy thic tho whole graestion Ie ting down a givantic rebellion, but aimply oue of tro Twe nue of thepe fermas mialeasta, A conteot. ederans aud Confesierateo inaplion that oute is contending for the Fedcral form of goverament, the ollice for by oar llag.

$\underline{\square}$

The Howard Soldier's Money Belt is now so

 Pros IX., now 72, is the youngest surviving made any sdartion to the fortunes of hind bomily,

APRIL DAYS.

Brear the sensoris cryatal chnim, April days, April days ; Bid ite snowclonds melt in rain, Deek with verdure wood and plain, April days, April daye.

Years are loan-tho years are thyce, Apzil doys, April dayr, Since my love went frth from me, Craving ueither gold nor praise, But free seope for valor free,
April days, April dnys.
Sunbright flags for marrahulled men, April days, April days, Swung from heaven o' or hill and glen, All your minds saug hnttle-lays,
Sonthward soared your eades thon, Sonthward soared your eages th
April days, Ayzil thys.

Fluunt your smabright fings once more, April days, April days, For the ship is near tho shore, And he comes whom all must praiseNorthward doth my eagle soar,

April days, April days.
Gaily shine, oh, hrightly, shine, April days, April days! Wounded in the veuward uns, Vietor of a hundred fraveWelcome homs this love of mine, April days, April daya!

THE BYYTERY OF "THE PLACE:" a story in thaze parts.
part i-chayter 1.
Is was a warm aud delightful day in April, especially detightfal because it whe the first of the spring weather that bad siffered wiudows to be spring weather that bad suffered wiudows to be opened and sunshine formally to declare itseli, whicb it did by glancing gallantly througb tbo nhite muslin curtaine of the Brown Cottage, and lighting up pleasantly a simg pnilor, in whicb ceveral ladies were pleasautly busied at what is termed "setimg to rights," which is eupposed to mean paiting away all thooe little nothings that mean paiting array all thooe little nothings that so tbat it sball stand at tho stificst inind of angles, and dueting each piece so that not au atom shall ppear onthe polisied surrace. Thongb this migbt not bave boous exactly tbe manner in wbiob our group achisved thsir eetting to rigbts, yet it was whe in bonor of some oceation of more than ordiuary import.
An elaerly lady was one of tbe party, who did not seem to be an aetive participant in the labor, Int sut upon a sofa watching them, as the younger evidently pluoked from a conservitory gift of the elder lady, who held tbemi in ber lap. "Indeed, you have shown great tuste and bave alcceeded in making our cober old room look quite gay. Bnt you will make me jenlous to think that you sbould take so mach more trouble in your decoration to-day than you have ever donc hefore". "Oh, mama, you must not eay that I Yon coneequenco to prepars for," wee the quiels answe of ono who was busiest among the bnsy baads.
"Upon my word, Marion, you are not enying mach to dispel my jealousy. Do yon mema to eay hat Fatoo is of no consequenec $\%$ m "No, indeod! I think ho is of great conse"quenes ; but, then, you see, mame, he is only our "Aud so, darbigg, you tbink my uncle is of consequenco, oven though yon have never seen him? I cannot sce bow I can tako thia as anything leas tbon a pure compliment to mysolf. Is not tbat tban a pure compliment to mysalf. Is not tbat
so ?
And the speaker, a beantiful girl of ninetesn, eamo aeross tho room and laugbingly toot the face hesd.

 fradit - SEZ PAGE 279.
nnw I will give you anothex on hebaif of my nncle, D.: "Duncen."
"You are so good, Isabslle, that one cannot belp bking in advance everyhody and everyibing in sparkled withy the pleasone ebe fclt in ber spoech. Irabelle Daucau was tall and dark, a clear and heautifal brunctie, wbose dazzbing hrown eyes would have spoken to the cbance reader of them a etory of etrong will sud intexsity of parpose ;
but to those who looked far into thoin dep ths the but to those wbo looked far into tboir depths there was a yielding, womenly dosire to bo led, a mins was a yielding, womenly dosire to be led, a ming of soft, coufiding affection that utiery deatroyed the theory of passion and will. Perhapss, bad Ieabello Duncan pasoed a different life, these unamiahle traits may bave come forth, hnt under the quist rsfinemeut of the bome wbere she now was, and where ebo bad boen fortenyenrs, elhe badgrown into a simple, loveable girl, not without the highest into a simple, loveable girl, not without the highest dogree of polieh, and yet ae innocent as a child. The Browu Cotiage, so called fromits color, wa the residence of Mrs. Wilton Poyton, tbe widow of a pbyeician, who had stidied himedr into his grave at an age wben his life elould really havs heca just opening to him, and left, hesido her, three just opening to him, and lefit, hesido her, three young cbidreu, n son ead two danghtore, with an incoune barely enough to support themin decency. Mra. Wilton Poston waenot a womna to einl under snch elremmetauces snd yegetnte oa from yoar to year in her Maryland cottage, letting her chiudree grow into man's and womnn's estate with only such celuentiou as conld be afforded tham ly the neigbborhood in which they dweit, Sbe eaw that a bold pueh muet he made for thom, and shie made a bod pueh muse he made for thom, and sie made it hy en efiort to cniarge her famdy to the capacity of ber house, and wes so far smecesedul na to obtain four young hadies to educate, by wbich meane ahs wes enablod to add snch assiotance to ber own accoraplishments as to give them benefita they could bave had uowhere but with the earneet, kind friend.
Upon tbie day there was a cortain excitement in the bittle bousehold, for notiee bad been received that Dr. Alexander Duncan, who was Tenbelle'e uncle and guserdian, would he with tbem before night. To Isabelle especially this was indecd exciting newe, for nearly five years had elapsod eince
she lad ecen har uncle Alexander, and her knowledgs of him was made up wbolly of the remembrance of that timo, as a tall, dark man, with a somewbet pleneent way, who invariahly petted her, and by so doing led the kitlo Ieebello to belicre tbat he must be looked apon entirely in tbe plnce tbat he must be looked apon entirely in tbe plnce of both that fatber and mother wbom sbe could not remember.
All that Mrs. Wiltou Pegton knew of Dr. Alex andor was that he was the agent to whom ehe looked for tbe yearly payment of the sum that covered Ienbelle's expenees, and from hie yearly lotter to her, in few words, responding to tbe husi-neee report of hie niece's welfare snd progrees neee report of hie niece's welfare snd progrees.
Ienbells had e few thoueand dollars of bor own, an Inkeritance from ber mother, onongh, invosted ai
it was, to pay for ber scbooling, bnt beyond this sha was sutirely in the hands of Dr. Alexander n lar sy regayticd her future.
It was some bours yet to evenng, and the doctor wasnot expected until nightfoll, and, consequently, the "eething to rigbte" went on. Within a few minutes after the preceding eonversation Wilton

Peyton eutered the room, H5 was a fine-looking with a quiet nesurance of manner that twanty-five, have come to him throagb travel and eontact with the world. He spoke first to Isibelle:
"What faith yon have, Issbelle, in promises
Now, Til be honnd, yon really belisve this nucte Now, FII be honnd, yon really bebisve this uncle will be with yon punotanlly st tho hour sst down."
"Certainly I do," was the rosponse,

Certainly I do," was the rosponse.
"The watched pot never hoils. Do yon remsm-bsr that, Ieabello?" "Now, I declari" are seelcing to discourage too bsd, Witon! You yomsalf. Yon aball forkoit for it, sir; and the forfit shall be en onforced attendance on ms. Come you sball walk na far us the landing with ms, that we may meet unclo Aluxander and welcome him to Brown Cottage." Brown Cottage."
othor crime, lady fair," enemered Waton, hanghiagly and opening thes door for the sxit of his fair

companion.

The landing at whicb the atoamhont tonchad expected to briug Dr. Alaxander Duncan from Baltitwore was of full mile awey, and almost before half the diatance tres traversed they saw her round tho point and drop alomgride the wharf, and from her gangway cmerged three passengere. Ieahslle strained ber cyos over the diftance that sho migbt reoognise her mincle anong tbe trio, but there was Two of them went the opposite way and her faco, a tall man, in a loose eack and trayelling cap, came towards tiem.
"It cannot be possible that uncle intends to disoppoint me," she lirolke ont, in a voice of resl roxation. "I shall begin to tbink, Wilton, that you bave indeed heen a bird of ill-omen
"Wait a moment, Ieebelle, you havo not given time to know whether this may not be him "How
"How can yon heso ahourd, Wilton, or do yon magine I eannot ses? Why that is a great, lants man, dreeoed in a sack cont, and uncle alwaye hated thoss coata.
Thay stood, nevertheless, straining their oyee towards the sobitary treveller, who was coming up them, when Wilton spoke again.
"Are yon sure, Isrhelle, that this is not your nele? Remember, it is five yeare eince yon have sean him, and your remsmbrnnco may not he perfect."
Istbelle wos stariug hy tbia tiins with all her syes full in the stranger's faco, who was retarning the stare heartdy. He was a man of nearly sixty the stare heartdy. He was a man of nearly sixty, one who had been well kept up to witbm a few years, ond then, possibly, juet diecovering that ha was growing old, dropped of tho care, and grew snddenly from youth to age Fle had harsh gray hair and mustrche, both looking ae if they had once been thmiliar with the dye bottle, and hnd not yet bsen able to shake off the rusty grsen left hebind by that article when oses it is discarded, and cold gray eyes that almost nutebed his hair and colia g Ferhnps something came to Issbelle'e memory as the etranger got within a lew feet of her, for, without moving a step fron her place, eho suid, "moet se if asking n question

The Solution of the Mystery.

The man came instantly to her ride, and esid: "What is your namo
" Ah , Trahelle, Tm gind to see you," and ho stretoched out hhislored hand, shakking herre coldity, and then contimed : "This is p plagney long walk np to y ur honse, It would have been a plessant sttentit in on the part of your Mre. Whate-hornamo, nain.
man
greeting to the resoue with :
"Oh, indeed, unote, 1 know that Mra, Peyton would have sent a carriago for you in a moment, if ahe had thought you eared for the dintanca. IPe ehe had thought you sncha littlo stop."
snch a ittle otep 1 . Um 1 shonld esy it was a mile," And then, suddenly dropping his volce and making Witon, who had fallen a littlo helind, to give the "Whele and niece an unrestruizd inurvern, did yon piek that chop up, Iealhello ?" Where dia yon piek that chop up, Ynahelle?
Why, that is Wilton Poston, anclo-Mrs. P toris son," " Um! What's he doing here?
"Oh, is it thought ho ived at Battimore ?

So he does, unole, hit he's here now on a visit,", Fiait, olh' He'd hetter be attending to his profension. He's a lawyer, , in't he ?
"Oh, well, no matter. I hate lawyers, they're a had set $\mathrm{r}^{1 /}$,
And Dr. Dunoan turned his head, and took a qnick inqquiring look at the yonng man lingering behind, and then again at hisis miece. handsome
"Ry-tbcolyy, Belte, you'vo grown sinco 1
child
?
 not come hero to a poor country girl, trying to turn her bitdo fookish bead with your city comphi mente. Ainy complain to her."
Thes hnd reached the house, and Dr. Duncan hid been introduced and hidden weloome, but hnd been introduced ond hisdon weloome, but there wza an uneney look about thee sce of I sshelle, there whas an uneneag look abount the eycs of I Ishelle, und a nervoas ailenoo. It was plain to be seen that the unhole of thro prosent, to the refined dand acoounplished girl, was not the mele of the past as ho wns trcasurod in the memory of the child, as ho was treastrod an the memary of the chlili, every word that fell from his lipe, lest somothing rould come ont in his harsh way that would tonch
the hearts of thooe whom she accounted se her Kou hearte of those wham
the hat friends in all the world.
hhe
hest friends in inl the worla.
There wos a prescience on the mind of tasberlo of eome coming evil, a prcescienco for the reanization of emo coming evil, aproscience for the reaidastion had not been an hour at the Arown Cottage befor ho amounced that the object of his mission was to earry away his niece, home in New Yorls.
"Yon hnow, my olild," he said that evening, when they were alone, "I must do my duty hy
you, and 1 alouldn't be doing right toleleave you to that lawyor coming down whenever he pleased from Balthnore to malo love to you. "Oh, macle, hoor can you talle so. Why, Wilton is one of the hest fellows in the world, and he never dreams of making love to me, never "'"
"And I don't intend he evor shall then," said to think of getting a hushand, and one that amounte to something at that, Tve got my eye amounte to something at that, Tre got my eye on the one that lin sit ye, IIl bet a trifle, A fline fellow, Isebelle, a fine follow with plenty of money, " and fling ruh.
frabeche e Srabelle cost one quick glance into his face, and the tenre started to her eyem. "Oh, melel I never can leava Mre. Peyton sol She has ailways heen so good to me, ${ }^{n}$
"Sol sol what do you mean hy you can't leave her so? Haven't you got to leave her at some her so? Haren't you got to leave her at some time, and iun't now az good ay auly other time? time, and inn't now as good ast any other time?
You don't expect to stay with her for ever, and You don't expect to stay with her for ever, and live an old maid, do you?
that what penniless, Baltimore lanyer. Norse, manry test pennilises, Baltimore lanyer. Nol nol I underatund myeelf too well for that. I don't intend that you blall ever have a poor hnathand. Im getting old myselk, Bell, and I hope that when I see you feirly eottled in life, yon will rowhen I yee you feirly wottled in life, yon will ro-memicr the care I have always hestowed on you, and unlie me some return for it. Hem l" and the doctor oougbed sharply hehind his hand.
Issbelle had no anawer for this affiecting apeech, for her mind was running back tirough all the past to alight upon somet hing wheroin Dr. Alexauddor Duncan had over dhown any of that care of whioh he had spoken. Of eertain child petting ehe had some memory, hut that wae all, and to ehe had some memory, hut that wae nill, and to halance this sho could recall oolly how he had haviess upon that of her nurse, or attendont of the time, and how, for the last five years, this was the time, and how, for the last five years, this was the only visil he had-made to look personnlly iuto her only visit he hide-made to look personally into her wellare.
 mandiy in three days loshollo to flud a new hompe amongst those who were to her perfoct strangores, while ehe bad left hehind hor all her little world.
I do not know where to toll yon to write to mar, or to come and see me," she whispored to Witon, ess they were laving. "Uucle hase not told me, yet, where he is going to take me, lint I forget mef
On the second dhy Ieahelie was inatailed in her nem house, fashionable boarding chovze, looking nerr house, a fashionable boarding-house, looking uut upon & fachionable squarc, and in & fashionuut upon a fahohionablo nquaro, and in a fashionahle neightorhood. She could rememher euough of ber uncle to know that this was not his neual styie of fiving. That when as a child ahe used to risit him at his owna rooms, they wera durk and ding ones in the lower part of the cily, and dingy ones in the lowor part of the cily, ond nothing thont them to show either taste or a der of : society. It was, thorefore, undonlitedils for er nse that Dr. Alexnder had secured these rumptuons apartmentes and Ishbelle had a shodow aumptuons apart mante, and I Inhellile had a shad of thonght that it was not withont a purpose. Dr. Dn. can was a widownr. Ten yeara he had Dind ived mirried, and twenty, *aince, alone. There mere airays whisprra 1lionting concerring his to the fact that the dootor had heen anything hnt goed hukhand. One thing was certain, which was that, without being what is commonly known spendthritt, Dr. Duncan was slways poor, and a spendthrift, Dr. Duncan was slways poor, and in difitiouly finsoneially. This arosc porthally from idloness in his profeesiou, and partinlly from grasping deseiro to rush into overy ephemeral thing offered to his notice as money-moking, snd na a consequence, pattiog him prominently up wo mark for swinderes.
Yee, there was certainty something on the mind of the dootor now, and Ieabelle was the power with his poraonal appesrance than ever hefore with his porsonas appesrance than ever hefore, and had donned an entire nem warrohe. With tho cultivation of the peranal, the doetor was tho cultivation of the permonal, the doetor whis alioo eultivasting the mental, hy improving his courteny, and seelking soolity, not such soeiety a ${ }^{25}$ Dr, Alexander chose for her.
as Dr. Alexander chose for hor.
Her correspondence with her old friends of the Brown Cottage was to Lasbelle a great comfort, and atill a greater one when a letter eoming from and atill a greater one when a letter eoming from Wilton announced tbat he was about to change Witun announced tbst he was about to change his residence to New Yori, that ho might accept an opening there of great profit. The fer woekh intervening between the announcement of this event and his srrival flow rapiay, and waton Pegton was a vieitor at the apartments of Dr. Alexander.
 citt, and after onc of his daily visits to Isarbelle that Dr. Duncan osme into her rooms. There wab somothing the mattor with him, a fidgety, nervoue manner, that at last indnced Isshelle to $"$ What is the matter, uncle, you seem dias "Disbed
"Disturhed1 yes, I showld think so, and quite nough to disturh me too. Sce now, the idea o this Peytou coming all the way to New York just to disturb everything and ruin your happineen diaturb everything, and ruin your happiness1"
"Ruin my happineas l" oxchimed Iasbelle, in a oice of astonishment.
"Certainly I Isn't he coming here to do jubt what he did in Maryland, make a fool of yon, and the next thing well know, is, that he'll Le wanting to marry you " ${ }^{\text {" }}$ " Harry me ${ }^{10}$ "
Mary me $1^{\text {" }}$ cried Iaabolle, with a llaugh hreaking out all over her faco. "Witon Peyton manry buel why, muele, how ean yon be so ahsurd. We've bicen acquanted ever since we were ohildren I
"And is that going to provent you from liking hina enough to marry him, eh?"
"Nol not-that,", ans werod Iakhelle, slowly heen engaged for a year, and is to be married this summer.,"
"Hem " "asid the doctor, drawing a long "Sure of it, uncle I why it'e & well-known thing, and even ir it were not so, there's no fear of Wilton ever thinking of me for a wife, and if he did it would be nseless, I like him very mucb, did it would be nselean hut uot for a hubband.
Tho dootor "hemmed"" again into his handkerchief, and then abruptly asked:
"Has he got anything?"
"Oot angthing?"
"Yes 1 yes! you know what I mean. Io ho
"Oh1 yes I believe he has Deen fortunate in some huviness operatione besides his profession, and hopes to he more fortun
the same kind in New York."
The doctor's eyes twinklied, and immediatoly visione of how he could make this hucky speculator of use to him, flopted through hio brain. At nll events the conversation had dotermined him not to nttempt the dismissal of the young man, a ourre that he had fully resolved on when he came into the room. There was nor a new point to iscuas with Isabhole, and it oanue out in this "Wey, Well, Isahelle, the sooner it's off my mina the hotter, I have had an offer for yours and have accepted." ${ }^{\text {n }}$ iffer 1 Accepted $l^{n}$ exclaimed Isahelle, "Yosia a most excellent offer. A man of position and wealth. A man who oan do all for yon hat oan he wiehed, Col., swinton,
"Bnt-hut-uncle, 1 have ouly
But-hut-unde, I have ouly seen him three ar four times. He surely cant want to marry
" Why, we don't know each other 1"
"Ha! ha! ha! Well you are an innocent little country girll What difirence does that make, child, as long as he likes yon, even theugh he hes seen you only onos ?
not indeed, uncle
Oh indeed, uncle, I cannot marry him. He wowd he aimas like a tranger to me."
"Oan't marry lim ! Can't" oxolaimed the doctor, with a vehemuent ruh of the bands; "oh, you'll ecoon get over that idea. Merry him frath you'll econ get over that idea. Merry him frast and get acquainted with him afterwards. That' and get acquainted with him afterwards. Tbat's what I bay. Tve taken good care to arrange 85,000 a year for spending money ! What do you hink of that? eh $1^{1 "}$ Ierhelle did not say what eine thought of that, nor oonld ehe urge any farther oibjection, simply. hecouso ahe did not know what to eay, and from that momant, therefore, she wao provively in heer uncle's hands, and upon the next coming of Will Waltou the engagoment wne announced to him hy the doctor.
"Why, what's the mattor ?" was the gentleman's queotion to Witon, " you look satonikhed.
"I shonld think I might well be astonished," the man three wookss."
"Well, what of that? Wui that hinder him on rom malhing a good hushand? The fact is Peyton yon don"t "iks Swinton."
"Perhaps oo," drily anssured witon.
"I dont know what the deace ts the matter with lisa," sumpled the doctor. "He's rich, inn't
he?
Hoe' not youns to be sure, hut I I lon't see that he's too old for Irahelle. Moreover he'o had wis experience in the world, eppeeinay with- Why
"Women yon were going to sey, doctor. Why not ont with it "And tbat don't hurt him as 1 bee," returned the doctor." "Reformad rakes make the best of hashands." And the doctor wallied up and domi the roonn with his hands in his poekets, aud whistled, then euddenly stopping betione witon, he esid: he gidd:
© Now
sake say here comes Bellee. Don't for hearem's that will discoursgo her. It will we of no ung any how, heoenus. Iro madd up my mind for tho match, aud it has got to ocour, if my mind for the mateh, aud it has got to ocony, if all the world opposes," snd with that parting nul the world oppoees," snd with that parting injunction the doctor ran out the room just as Isabelle entered.
"This smnonncoment astounds me, Irabelle," eyton said, rising, and taking her hand as sho ontered; "is it hy your owa will?"
Oh indesd, Witon, yon must not question me. I hardly know anything. Uucle says it muet he so, and I cannot oppese him."

But do you like Swinton
I must learn to like him. I see more of him now evary day, and he does seem to like mo very mach. Indeed, he does everything that uncle

ggesta.

Witon closed lis tecth with something of a spasm over this artless contession, and then esid: pasm over this artless contession, and $\because$ And when is the wedding to be?"
And when is the wedding to be?
They are hurrying up my wardrobe now. We go mmediately to Niagara, and from there on a westward tour. That's what uncle нay
"And does the doctor accompuny you, Isa"Ohen
Oh, no! the arrangemont is that we go alone." "Led to slsughter," was Wilton's thought, as he pressod the hand of tive fair, young girl, aud rose, in spite of her persuasion, to go, As ho left the room, another entered, it was Col. Swinton, a large, florid-faced man, exquisitoly dressed, and smiling-faced, but with somothing in the sunile no: calculated to win. The gentlemen bowod as they psssed, though without speaking, and Cal Bwil ontstrotehed, sad mith an sir of great joy, whillo ontatrotched, and with an sir of great joy, whito Isabelle returned it with a smile of welcome, that did not etrike Wilton, as his glence met them
It wes the lisal interview he had with Isabello It was the list interview he had with Sowill or within two weeks she was married, and aite at the house of Colonel Swinton, the pair departed on their tour,

enaizan in

Wz must, at one jump, take ourvelves over the piet hotel, so called by courtesy, in a certain quief country town, or rather village, ahout one hundred miles from Philadeliphia. The spot was henutiful, and to one who would retire from all the hustle and noine of life, nothing conld be found to equal it. In the parlor of this hostelry s disoneson was going on hetween the laudady, on the one sido, aud a gentleman and ledy, whoes carriage was at the door, upou the other.
"I am very sorry indced, sir, hut you see we can't kallilate on any gitch chanoo as thit. A Nes York lady has taken the best part of the house, or ayther hor husband did for her, until the midde her to give up any of it.
"Perhapes she would allow us to have one room for to-night ouly 1" was tho gentlemnn's pressing request, "You see wo onnot go on in such a storm. I don't know the ro would he simply impossille."
"I ean aulc the lady," was the hoetess's rather anwilling assont, "hat I do declare to ye that I en't h'beve thero'e any chance, nene whatoomever," and the landsdy went away to return in a ow minutes with a spartly-dressed, Hippant Irenohwowan, who talted very loud hefore she ontero, and ssid :
"I am astovish, Madame Snyder, dat 20 n eo request such ting from de lady. What for shall she give up her room to strange peoples. Nont for do pay zou for de houee, what for sho give it up ? ${ }^{\prime \prime}$.
"Yut, madcmoiselle, it's only for one night, and you just enw the pretty little, delicate oreetur if you just eaw the pretty littla, delicate oreetur inside, I dar tay yond give op your own room to inside, I dar bay yond give op your own er, you're so goed-hearted, you know" hel hel you choak, madame ; dat is s httla funny my room to none personne," and the pair came into the room where stood the lady ond gentieman, the Frenohwoman, with a glance of contempt to wards to slight, pale hat heaukinul figure hefore gret on her face, said:
"I am sorry to say, six, that I cannot he succoseful for you. Id give ye up my bed in his wife, who wae over visiting to stageville und sein't git home to-night. I don't know what I in do for ye!"
"Did you go
casting a rather deprecating glance at the French-
"De lady is out," aniswered that person, re"De taring
bead.
bead.

Was heard, and a light pony chnise drow np to the door. The mindows of tho room did nut command the road, and the landlady and the Frenchivoninn st once hurried out of the room.
Yes, indeed, I have been very fortunato in elscaping tho etorm,"" ssid a soft, momanly voice, it the evitry. "I have driven quite fast, Mrs. Suy. der, and the horses should tho blauketid stireetly. sponse; but hofore anothor word conld pays lBipe the door of the parlor was thruwn oppen min the gentlemion emerted hastily, with the word the gentlemisn emerted hastily, with the wotc
"Isabelle "on his hpo. "Oh, Witton, how ple.
As yon just now came, her the coming storm, and hegging for shelter, whinch "Rofused 1"
Indeed, my lady, Madame Snyder did not fuow st dey was friond of yours."
"Oh, got ont. Guees you need'nt lay the blime on Nfrs. Suyder, any how l" was the landlady' rojoinder.
"Well, well I" Baid Isaholle, scoing through the whole thing at a glance, "you msy go, Puuline and now, Wilton, aro yon alone - Ho took ber by the liand
into the parlor.
"There is my companion
And, oh ! so you ave matried 1" and Ial, 11 . eaught the young wife in her arms and kwaed her warmly.
"And she is twioe prettier than when aie way only Nelly Clsrit, is she not, Filton ?" only Nelly Clsrit, is she not, Wilton?
"In my cyes," was the response,
In my cyes," was the response, "and I am Isabello, hhowing her delight at Isabello, ahowing hor debight at meeting them "You shall shere my rooma,"
How long are you going to stay?" aaia, "and You muat not appropriate un in belle," said Fillon, this way, 1 sa are only storm-bound for the night, and arc going ou in the morning."
"Indeed you shall do no such thing. Yoz shal stay with me it it is only for a week. Indeed y 11 muas, Wilton, for I am so lonely here."
"Why I" exclaimed Wilton, in surprise, "is not "Why ${ }^{1 "}$ oxch Swinton here ?
"He has not heon here in a month," was the reply of Isabelle, with her eyes turned sway then ehe spoke.
"Where is he?" wes Wilton's next queation.

In New York."
"In New York, and yon alone hore at this country iun. Why, whet does this mean, Ian-belle?" "Oh, dou't ask me any questions to-night, wi ton. Ceme, sheston and claeping it in her own, "lot n leave this man and you go with me into my own room," and so she hurried the wifo away, loaving room," and so she hurried the wife away, leaving the hushand alone in her own sitting-ioom. Her the hushand alone in her own sitting-room. Her she hovered about her guest, attending her as though the were a clud, unshawling and untying though the were a chuid, unshawhing and untying her honnet, broshing and smoothing her hair, and holding tho towel for ber until she had washed her hande. At last slie hroke ont with
"But you must not go awey to-morrov, will yon? You must plead with Wilton to utay hero wwhile with mes. Indeed I shall dic of loneliness if yon do not. The place will seem more dreary "I will ask Wiilton to stay, Mre. Svinton. It seems so hind of you to desire
"I knew you would say so," *he anewered, in a grateful tone, "hat yoa mnstn't eall me Mrs, Swinton. You must call me Irabelle. The nams of Swinton scems so strange to me." "Strange to you l" said Mirs. Peyton, leoking up at her in some don't let us talle about that. You love your huaband, do you not ?"
Another satonifhed look greeted Isahelle'a acstion.
"Of coureo you do, and you aro happy. Wilton is so good. I knew him when he was almosi a hoy, indeed, quite a hoy, nnd I was a grent favorite of his.
Mrs. Peyton looked inquiringly, as though she would kow some bidden meaning to Esahello'a words, hut still Mrs. Swinton went absently.
"It is so good to have some one to really lowe, Ncly, some one in whom yon have real conlidence "cly, some one in whom yon have ?
that caunot he shaken. Is it not?"
Mra. Poyton was hefore the glase, and maile a Yegponso to the quaction by a ned.
deed hope you are ae goed as you are pretty. Indeed you must he good to Witon, for he is so good he is not ho would break my heart to kwor th me. Come now, Nelly, you see I call you Nelly, let us go into supper."
And so they did, Ieahello talleing in the same nhsent way all the time, sometimes of matter that wae vital, and sometimes bightly of euch viands Whas vital, and sumetimes lightly of euch viands su the cuisue of Mrs. Snyder had afforded them upon the snpper tahie.
The story oi Isahellc to Wilton wae very simple.
When she had etarted upon her wedding tour fon When she had atarted upon her wedding toar fon monillis bofore, it was with the helief that a fel montlis bofore, it was whth the helief that a fe weeke wouid end it. They had gone to St . Louie and from thore eastward again hy easy travel, until they got into this Pennsylrazia vallage, to which they had come oftensily that Colonel Swinwhich they had come oetensshly that Colonel Swinton might enjoy some trout fishing. The trout finhiog pallod in a week, hat stul they staid, and Isabelle ploaded to he talken hack to New York: she was wearied of the dull monotony of the place.
At last vand day the colonel received lettera that seemed un agitate him greatly, and he ahruptly aunouncod that he must leave instantly for New York, and that Inshelle mast await his return thore. Entreatics, tears or argumont wore usolecs thore. Enail, and at last, almoot in anger, he went to preval
until hie return, or antil be sent for her. He had written short nind cold lettera, esch promising menth had passed, and still he wae away. menth had passed, and still he was awas" I atay "I declare to yon, Witon, I sball die is I stac city alone, ond I received for a reply a commenand, absoalone, ond command, to stay here, withont assigning any reneen for it wbatever."
It was impossible for Wilton to asy anything in defence of Colonel Swinton. There was eomething defence of Colonel Swinton. Thore was eomething tion than that he was tired of his fair young wits, and was only anxious to escape from her, perheps, to renew the life fer which be had once horno on to renew the life fer whi not envinble repntation.
An honr later than this conversation, a messenger rode over from the poit-afice with letere, Brabelle. Thore were hint fow werds, It was anether apology for not coming to her, fnd an cxhice in a few dhys unlees he became worse.
"Witan, have you determined to go "Wilton, have you determined to go to New Yelt tomerrow?
"Tuleed, I mit, "Indeed, I minst, I Iesbelle, Yeu know I told yen conntry, and how necessary it is for me to be hack in Now York." "That is enengh. If yen go on to-morrew, I will go with you. Yen will certainly not refuse me your pretection on the road, even though I am rebelling. It you do, I shall ge anybow, nnpreher intention, and order her to commence packing "I hope yeu think woll of what yeu are doing, Isubelle," was all Wilton asid.
" fead that letter, and tell me whetbor a wife's place is not with her husbend when he ie ill. I do not care what epinion any ene has of it, I shall join him, The unatter may as well he breught to an uaderatanding uew as at any time,n and Isnan uaderatanding uew as at any and and down belle rose frem ber zeat and pacod up the reon bastily, and then suddenly stopping ot The reoum bastily, and tben suddenly stopping at tbo window and leoking out in the old absent way, tho window and looking out in the old a bibent way, she weut on na though talking to hereoif. "Uncle tolle me that I mnat bear everything, thet a wife's hrat duty is obedionco to her haraband, bat he dee not any anything of the better sense of the wife when she is neglected and trosted with so mich contumely that tbe world seea it and remarks en in. Is not the wife's pluce awaya with the bua hand, nniess there can ha some very geod reasen shown for their heng acparate?" And thena he eaid these worde, she started hack quickly he anid these words, sheur some repulsive thing bere upon the sill. Witou stepped ferward qniekly to see a frighitened look npen her ince.
n What las happened, Isabelle?" be asked. What lias happened, "asobelle?" be asked.
"Leek 1" sho eaid; "do you not know that man?"
Wilten leolted to recognise a Mr. Gordon Ward, once an intimasto the same line in whifel Svinteu bad borne honers. Freme the recognition he looked to Mrs. Swinton's face for on explana tion.
"That man has followed us like a sleuth-hound, "That man has followed us like a sleuth-hound.
He has taken every opportunity in Swinton's absonce to hronthe his peison in my ears, and to thruat himeself on myy notice. Since my mashand has been away frem here, he has heen an intimate of this honso three-fourths of the time. Last week he left, as I thought, not to retmin, but he is here again, pested, as yon see directly in front of these winoowa. Is not this enough, Wilton, to drivo me away ?"
to prevent your reing argument from me, Isahelle, to prevent your going. If yon can get really by to-merrow you ahall go with me, if net, I will wait for yon; and as to Ward, as long si I am here, he ton, your duty will bis to tell bim what yon have olresdy told me,
"Get reads
swer, as theugb the heard only this part of his swer, as thougb the heard only this part of hie words, "Indeed I could get ready to-night and start aven in thia coming atorm. Anything ! any thing! to get away from this dreadful place."
The next morning Wilton, welking out to amoke hia cigar in frout of the inn, met Sir, Gordon Ward, and wonld have paesed him with enly a how, hut that gentleman would not permit it, boiled Peyton with an intimacy not warranted by their past, and anid:
tieir past, nind anid: ye, hew are ye? How do ye
"Ah! how spe in this eut of the way part of the ceuntry?"
hapen in "Travelling for pleanure, and sceking the mos retired spots," was Wilton'e short answer.
"By-thc-hye, do yen know that our old "By-thc-hye, do yen know that our old fri Mrs. Swinton is here. An elegant wemsn ${ }^{\text {" }}$
"I sm aware of it," Wilton anewered, looking Ward full in the face, " and reeeived frem her the aame intelugenee as regards yeurself.
"Blese me, you dor't say bol Why it's exces sively kind is hor to remember me to you. I ap preciate it highly. Where's Swinton?
"In Nere York, where lis wife will "In New York, where lus wi, join Ah, Peyton, yen're a hacky dog Ching woman, Mra, Swinton. Too good for that follow Nwinton, 'pon my werd,"
A voice came at that mement frem ene of the inn windows
"Ah, mensiear, Monsibur Poytone, Madame Swintone do wish to epeak wis yeu ono moment.
And Wilten left. Mr. Gerdon Ward to his mele tiens, while hewent to join Isabelle. "I am all ready, ns you see, Now ahall the carringea be ondered out?" And then secing a look of astomahment on Wilton's fisee, gle weat on. " don't want to hurry you away, Wilton, hut I do so loeg to he on my way from this place, sud to hase logg to he on my way from this place, aud to hive for my misdeeda, let mo die at once, net ho tortured by inchee nuder the eyee of all the werld." An henr afterwards the canriages were in the rood in front, and the packing was done. Mndemoienlle Paoline had completed her edien with

Mrs. Snyder, and everything whs ready for a start.
Mr. Gordon Ward walled reatlesely op and down the piazza, and Wilton stood ly tbe carriage door waiting for liie wife and Isabelle. They camo, pasing quickly from the door to the carriageloor was elammeiled. Peyton jumped in, the don Werd making, and alsay they went, Mr. Gortirely loat on the departing gronp, except Madmoisclle Panlinn, whe, riding alens with tbe hase gage in the second carriage, returned it hy an mapressive kies of her hand and wavs of her handkerchiof.
Two da
Two days after tbey were in New York, and drove directly to Dr. Duncan's roome, according to $\begin{aligned} & \text { isa } \\ & \text { belle's oriers, Tha doctor had been talegraphed }\end{aligned}$ ennd was on the spot His face did not wear yery plessnnt uxpreseien, it was fushed, and his ayes wore excited. His first greetiog was:
"What tho dence deea all this mean? In henven's name Peyton, can't you lenve ether men's wives alone. Hoin't you got bnsiness nongh on your lanis to manage of yenr own onongh on your hanils to manage of yenr own witbout medding with what don't concern you?
"Dector, yen are surpassing your houndary of addressing a gentleman"," was Witon's answer,
'You would not dare to nddress ine se, sir, if it "Wore in your niece's presence
"Well, well!" respended the doctor, dropping do you interfere in famibica fer? This is my niece, do you interfere in fomitics fer? This is my niece, and if it was necessary tbat she should fly in the face of her hubband, $I \mathrm{sm}$ the ene to sesist her in oing it."
"Mra.
"Mra. Swinton will upheld me in saying that I did notbing mere than accompeny her to the city. If sho has really dene whet is wrong-whieh I do ion in any way. She certainly has the pewer to ion in any way, she cortninly has the pewa or "nterference." "The devil abe has ${ }^{\text {" b broke ent the dector, }}$ with a tromendeus swagger. "I tbink beth yeu and she will find out your mistakes if you try it, See here, Peyton, T'd advise yen net to eross Swinton : he'll break every bene in yonr bedy if he comes to know thest yen are niding his wife in eppeeition."
"See bere, Dr. Duncan, you knew me to he n quiet main, but if Col. Swinton were to say one halt quiet man, but if Col. Swinton were to say one hali been in this reom, Id break every bone in his whom yen have not yet selen fis to netice, for tbe nse of sueh language, hut she sees that I am nse of such driven to it."
" .ncle ,
"Uncle, yon shame me indeed, wben yeu talk to Mr. Peytan in this manner. I have only to repeat mis worda to you, that he he
"Well, why in henven's
"Were "whined the doctor " "$me did yon come here p "whined the doctor; "yeu scem to he bent on getting mo into treahle with Swinton. Why "dra't you go to a hotel?
"Becanse $I$ as
"Because I baw fit to liring Mra. Swinton to the protection of her only relative, rather than leave her in a hotel," was Wilton's anewer. "Now then, unclo, listen to me," aatd Isahelle, clt, and alvancing towarda the had ecated hergeroua llasb in ber eyoa, "you bardly know me, hat I think Wiiton will tell you that what I am hat I think wiiton will tell you that what I am sbont to say I will do. You and ny huslond have bitled with me long enough. There is something hidden in all thit, of which I have no knewledge. we will separate, hut I will no longer live a hua-- handlese, unpretected wife. Now then, where is handless, unprotected wile. "I den't knew ; I won't tell yeu," Enarled the decter. "Very well, tben. To-men or him in the puhlic printe."
"Good heavena, Belle, yeu certainly wouldn't do such a monstrous thing an that ?"
${ }^{\circ}$ I will, as truly aa I am an injured woman, unless yeu instantly tell me where he ib.
The docter whiked gloemily about the room for "Peyten, can't you do anything with thus girl? I tell youten, canct cannot go to her husband now. Sbe acema to lieten to you".
"I liave aready told you, Dectar Dnnean, that I will not attempt to influence Mrs, Swinton. But If thore is any renson of reality that alie ahouic municate it to her, tell me, and I will advise Mra Swinton to the best of my ahility
"Renaon, reasen!" muttered the docter. "Why the devil ahould there be ressons. Ien't it enongh "Unat it is swinton'a wish.
"Uncle, am I alwaya to he treated na a child, end told blinily to abey, whe tells me thet am wronged ?
tells mo thet I am wronged ?"
" Wrengrd 1 how the dence
Is it hecanse Sminton wanta naw yen he wrouged, back to bis young daye and be free? Is that any reasen that you slionld make all this fuas, and come rushing after, perbapa to find him among a lot of hacbe" age Buh!"
age ? Buh!"
"He has no right to forget his londage, as you "Belle, yon are perfectly crazy ; you den't know when you are well off. You have overything that a womsn can wish for in the werld."
"But beppineas!"
"But beppineas!"
"And you don't have
"And you don't have that, oll ?" be aaid, eneer-
"Nol" hroke forth Ianbelle with more vehemneo than hefore, and draving the ahanv1 tbat had Then off elose abont her shoulders as she stepped towards the door. "Now uncle, listen to me once more, We have left Mre. Peyton in the cantiage the deor, and it is not conrtesy, to any nothiong thee, that 1 ehonld wait here. Therefore, ance more I ask, will yon give me my hneland's addreas?"
"Oh, lo
" how lord oh, lord!" groaned the dector, is np at the place. And: wr I bave only to wama yia not to go there, and i ir the Lord' sake don't tell him I told yoo where he wasa"
"The place, the place I" said Isabelle, thenghtfolly, " what place

Heavena! bew stupid yen are, Why, his place Stanfield. Ther now, at Stanfich. There now, for graclous sake, go away from hore, I weuldu't hase anybedy see yon here that would tell 8 winton for the world, And so they wont out and jeined Mra. Peyton gain in tbe carriage Isshello had entirely forgotten the place at Stonfeld. She had never been there, and bad only beard her huaband spenk of it casually, more se an old rained hounentead that he had inherited from his grandmother, than as a Epet that be Sha bad alweys understoed that the house wa niteanated, and now to hesr that her busband had gone down there to stay for any times, there the diamtance to the hetel at whieb Peyton had inthis, antil at last, ne it were breaking forth from her own thonghts, she exelnimed:
"I shall go to stanfield to-morrow merning nit all rieks,"
"I am sorry to hear yell вay so," was Wilton"
"I appreciate your advice, hut camnet talke it, goed, but I must ge."
"Then you will not stay with us and write to Swinton?"
"No!"
"r

And then she turnod to Mrs. Peyten, and said I am now aeting. Woald yon not, if placed in the Iame circumastances, go to your hueband? 'Yee, indeed ${ }^{\text {" }}$ 'returucal Mre. Peyton, "and nothing tbat auybody wonld sny conld keep me Wilton langhed a small constrained laugb, and then there was entire vilonce for the rest of the ride, nad quiet, sad facesover all the esening talk And the next morning, without a word of remonstrance, Iesbelle went away, not weven accompanied by Mademoiselle Pauline, to Stanfield, toat let that he told beresfer.

THE FOURTH OF JULY.

DATE of my country's glerieus hirth, In leaming arma the lirain of Jov, A form to workhip and to love!

Dato of a loftier age fer man,
From h, From land to land the tidings ran

We hail the day; bnt vain oux mirth Unless we knov the joy it gave To those who felt that God's hright earth High were the hopes that warmed eur sires, Through serrow's ehill and danger's gloom, Unlos our boema feel tbeir firee,
In vain our sculptaros deck their temh

Theirs were tbe triumpha of the fieldGn ua a milder charge is laid; Truth be our sword, and leve onr shield,
Freedom eur caube, and Hesven cur

WILLIAM PITT FESSENDEN.

Wilhum Prti Fessenden, who has just hee confirmed as Mr. Chane's succenone as Secreetary of the Treseury, wan born ot Roscowen, N . H., on the 1eth of October, 180E. He groduated at Bowdoin college in 1883, and wae admitted to the har in 1827. In 1889 he 1883, and wae armitted to the har in 1827. In 1889 he removed to Fortland, Maine, and in 1831 was deced to the state Leridature. The youngest member of thet the state Lertisatario. The youngest member of that body, he grestly distingulabed himeolf in a debate on the United States Bank. He roso rupidy in his profeesion, and in 1e10, as Whig candilito for Conereen
as ston, and in 1810, as Whig cendidisto for Conereea, outrun the atreugth of his purty. In 1843 he wae no-Wae again clected to Congrece, Int through an error in the returas, his eeat who given to his competitor. He the returns, his ceat whe given to his competios. He was in membor of the National Convention which nominatod Gen

TIME-RECKONING.
Tws sundial seems to have heen the earliest expedinat for rockoring time known to the historicol antiquary. Holy writ mentiona ita use in the boolk of Iselah. By the oncients it wan caliled Seiftherieum, being ranriked hy a sbedow. Amon the Romano it wizit gelucral request, and an account in given of one being pheca to the Court of the Temple of Quirinns. nie

 Greeklin horrow Pabyionann.

FUN FOR THE FAMILY

In Paris, lately, a duel was nenily the con-

 "Prav, my lerd," Baid a gentleman to a late reapected nid rathor wbimelcal jadee, ", what is tho

 his man, Denny Garry, wo whom ho mot on the ataire with a can in wis hand. "Oh, yee" replied Denny: "they have agrade to eind ont for anotber hall galion:
 preached $\%$ " I held the cundie for a man who ata."
"No, sir the court underetoon you "ufferently.
"Ah,

A Maitrase offered his services to a dragn
 Av old woman in Yorkabire crossed a bridge

As unsuccesafnl lever was asked hy what mean he lost his diwinity ?"
proAld to to crienk to to me "I" Hattered her ontl she got too -ARE you the fellow what's going West?
 A coracapondmar says: "I was net a little

(
night in ter trencees before peiersburg.-From a

FRANK LESLIE'S ILLISTRATED NEWSPAPER.
Lhuty 23,186 t.
$2 \times 2$

LONG EXPECTED.

oxpectation, all the yoar,
I watch and wait, I watch and wait

or who can tall the very day
When he aboll sail love's tropic alma When he oball sail love tropic Borne ou by sweetcat tantasice To golden regions far away?
ho opring. time comen, and bope is high,
For winter's enowe are past and gonc, For winter's snowe are past and g, The summor scoms to call mio on,
eet summer cometh, crownod with flowers, und then my heart of beorts is gay, 'or to myeelf I ofton say, t rummer fades to sutumn's gold, tot etill I wathoh and still I wait;
ithink-" My love, sho cometh inte, think- "My love, sho cometh inte, days are short, the nigbte are celd."

Then winter follows, dark and scre, And then I trim my heseon-light, , inght, To gnide hor through the year. In thas the rolling years pass bv:
At times I think "Sbe will not come,
Iocllanco tho way is wearieome 1onclanco tho way ia wearienme
nol darlt, honenth a wintry
nt yet I lunow she comea from f As surely as the silver light, Foshing for ages throngh tho night, Frashing for ages throng yome undiscoved atar.
nil no I keep my conrt of etate, With nll my hoart in solenn drese
With overything in readiness,
vatoh and wait, I watch and wait ;
faing towarde the enstorn uly, Mriting the coming of the morn,
Tie first faint flusking of the dawn, Wiiting and watching-till I dio

The Serpent-Woman.
BY z. w.

She tig wiee, if 1 can judge of her:

V: intea returnod to England, to find her father Fint inil ber sither dead and buriod, and Bortram siukins: rapidly into the grave beneath a luad of gricf to good tidings from America, Victor's death, chis had to he told, must, anten his relatives, and piovo another dreadrum how the fell npon the hearts of Bertram and hit Corinn's grief, flowing with theirs, afforde Anin some relicf. Har dovotion to the moth thens som; the soothing and magic influenees of wind
har inse powerful ndeare, and protenn flexibility with whieh she thom unconsciovsly hack to hite and conterl Laily wielded to tho fascinstiona of the "Serpent" hoforo her son smhmitted to her gentle hut a year afer Marina's return, firet rendered in a year after Marima's return, inet depth of his 1 an smerible of the nature and depth or his for Mordannt Lifstone's nature to her kon one day, the strangreet poople I ever knew, Conld the strangee emarkahle than tbe conduct of Fiftemore, who has, atter an unacountable of so mauy years, returned to England omed possession of 工llingsord, as if he amed possession an ordinary tour ? Morwas still moro eccentrio than his brother, hen young, made sad havoe with the hearte fair. Dearly ho paid for his triumpha, poor
If the temporary lose of reason, ten or 1 If the temporary loss of reason, ten or years imprieonment in a mudhonse, the perishing of her he most loved, a life of e perishing of her he most loved, a we of ae, and a death exused hy excesse of loving uivient oxpiation for the oflence isels but too many, he oertainly atonod for hut lecks his hrother's hrillianoy. You hi have seen Mordaunt in hie prime-ho was uparahle. What a splendid fame he might nchieved hed not his pereon, In wasionste uature ruined him.
in magnificent wreck.
An mate a magnimcent wreck. Hie wreck, it was, you know, the misfortune of Inathers to be onamored of the bame lady, a cy that proved dinastrous to the three. . on to hn the groatest heanty in England, Juust confess I did not admire her. Her was like hor daughtor Muts's, all softneas playfid inuooence, und lacked expression and Marina is in my atyle. There is, to my more heanty in one of ber impassioned 1. Ah, more heanty in one of the bland amiles la.iscs, han in ten thonsand of of rere prettineas, I wouder how long she intende aremainl witb him? I miea her very mnoh. Sho ainip supplies the charns, when I was a girl, could No prety. fellow, whimed re of my heart in a more delightful have rohbed mo hade him Marina. glance t
Muts.
uanncr than ahe has atolen mine now, I am positively in love with her-sin't you?", tively in love with her-ain't you?"
"I loze her I Why, jea, as a siater, certainly, How canid I help doing lesa? Doing more, yon mean. Iksow she is actnally 5our deceascd wife's ninter, but not in the view of the law, civil or occleciaetical, so that makes little the law, civil or oecleriastical, so that makes litde differcnce. ants was a lovely creatare, bit differe elild, and incapsble of becoming mnch more. Mesrins is smperior to any womat I know in leanty und intellieet, in tendernces and constancy of feeling. She in very rich, but noither of us is, I trust, likely to be infucnced hy that circomstance. You do not, however, know, ns I do, that abo has wany weslithy, noble and eligihle suitors. Now abe is at Ellinglord, where she is mistress, manay more, and if one of them should prove successitul (end why not?) I shall never Porgive $y$ No, I don't exactly mean that; hat the truth is, ber kindness to Victor and others has endesred licr so moneh to me, that I nove feel I shali never know another woman I could tolernto an my know another woman I could tolerato an my daughter-in-law. She is wortby of s king, and I ancys noble lord who ie smitten with her. What know a noble lord who ie smitten with her. What certnim young baronet I am hound to favor doos not win her hand, I hope she will he a duchese not win her hand, I hope she will he a duchese yet." Bertram looked thoughtful, hnt did not reply.
Presently ho arose from his seat, kiesed Lady Presently ho arose from his seat, Adclo, and left the spartment withont saying. Adclo, The next morning, however, ho informed word. mother that he was going to Exlingford. She hailed, and, taking a eaperb bracelet of her arm,

Boriram reached Ellingford about two hours hefore sundown, and found harina in the summerhonee, in the garden. He thanked Fortane for the honee, in the garien. Ho the shomed to afford him. Marjna opportunity she seomed to anord him.
had, howover, a littlo Fronch boy and girl with her who were buy, helping her to decoreto with flower a monded statac, which Bertram recognised at a Muts.
"Iow is it," ssid he to himself, as he watched her prococdings, "how is it I liavo been so little her prococdings, "how ia it I lavvo boen so hith sensible of the incomparahle superiority of thi enchonting beauty? What an exquisite, wavin grace is duplayed in hor every motion! How fu of tender hite and love her whole boing seoms to hel How thoee little ones rejoice in the atmos hel How thoee little ones rejoice in the atmoe phere with which it surronnas her sonl as hers he finity of delight must such a soll as hers capable of imparting I Surely a apell is on me, or
I a havable heen hlind till nowl"
The adorning of tho atatue heing comploted, Marina kissed it, and her littlo companions followed her example. As Bertram presentod himsoif the eolor deepened in Marina's cheeke, but she received him with the frauk cordiality and she received him with the frauk cordiality and affection of a sister, for with such heon schooling hereelf to regard him. They ceon schooling heratelf to regard him. orica ot last Bertram abruptly demanded :
"Who mended this statao?"
"I, Bertram. Muta was my only sister, and her momory in dear to mo. Slo was an angel ovon on carth, and must now be one of the vory briblutesi carth, and must now be one of the vory hryblase of tho beavenly ehoir. Sho was very differont of tho beavenly ehoir. sho was vory wan, was from mo; for what in me wie not wome Worse. There was none of the angel in me, hint I ou are not afraid of me now."
"Ycs I am, more than ever. Whose children

") 3ne."

"Thurs have no father, no mother hnt Marina Their father tarew himself from the column VerTheir father tarew himself from the column Yen-dome, in Paris, end their mother died of th cholera. I hava adopted them, and feel infinitely happier now I have something of my own to lovo and protect. Bnt, pray,

"I will, sa soon as I have sent your little famity

 "I wim, as sor awhile."Bortram gave the children hall-n-crown a-pieee and told them to return for moro when that wae spont. As soon as they were gone he seated hin gelf close to Marina, produced his mother'e mag nificent hracelet, and clasped it round the heautifu arm of his friond.
"It becomes you heyond expreesion," he asid;
"it is my mother"s free gifí. She sends her ma"it is my mother's free gifi. She sends her mapraise as quite to diahearten me."
praise as quite to diahearten me." The hody, so "I have coveted this hracelet. "I have covetod this hracelet. The odiamond eyes, glitter and seem to move, giving the little serpent the semhlance of actual aninnation. I am vory thaulfol for so splendid a gift; hat why did She send this to me? Sball
"I
"I hope not; for the brazen serpent Moses lifteu up in the wilderuces had not a Marina, who had heen gazing npon the hrs
here suddenly tarned hor eyes to Bertrams.
"What a world of thought and feeling look from her deep, dark eyos," ssid the haronot to himesif, slimost shrinking from the glory of he glanec. Again sha looked down; his arm so around her elender and flexile waist; ho olasped around her elender and fexile waint; ho oma, in one of her hands in his, and tone of irrepressible tmotion
"Marina, I feel that yonr nature, moro poten: than mino, is alhorbing me, hut whila get I may straggle with ite magic inflienoe-white yet I an free-
me ?"
"
"How osn yon ank that question so late of one everything for your snke?"
" Friendabip makee great ascrifices, Marina, but "Bertrem, long sgo, yon hoard my confostion husband.
larunce ? "aid:
"Ber
dropped an icicls upon my beart. What fresh humitity have yon inatore for me:"
"The hnmiliation of accepting me for your "The hnmiliation of accepting me for your husband. Will that be too grcat for your en-

The ralisnee of joy fiashed from Marina's erey, and the triumph of her life Ulomined her tace Teara followed, and fell hright and fast as she
"Bertram, I was always yours, snd sbould have "I fear I I fors your snke,"
"I fear I sm unworthy of yon, Marina," exdoimed Bertram, as he emhruced hor and kiesed away her tears; "hnt your love will exalt me, and ite ingnyor, I cannot mise for whyre ean they nd ite infinity of beatitndes, for where eas hele a naturo as yours ?"
nstare as yours?
Bertraul was not Dertruu wis not mistaken or disappointed. A mperiol woman slways transeende our idesl sulbeit she may differ from it, for God cen mnks a hetter woman than can any poet, howover sinblime, in the higheet flight of his imagiuation. If man stadied rather to call forth the sctual, though offen latent, virtues of woman, instead of fretting over the ahsence in her of tho particular fenture $t$ distinguish hie fancy pieture, she wonld not dieappoint him, nor he her; hoth would he hetter and happier, and maremitted hlise.
Our heroine as a wife realised her lover's fondest hopes, and, as Lady Marina Hapswell, the most rank sits on her like a perfeetly fitting rohe grecing, and graeed by, the wearer. Tbe eaec and dignity of manner, the elegances proper to and dignity of manner, the elegances proper the the time, places and circumetance, wham example and tuition, sre intuitive to innate neblity as Finglish titled lady, she is as self-possessed as she Was when enaeting the genial rolo of Qneen of the trme Bohemians, and it wore hard to tell for whion part she is best fitted. Sho now soombs es fuin of sparkling lifo as ever, and her husband's love for her continues unabated, because she clacs allow it to perish by aying out horsill, fresh t the wonders of existence, and itg exhaustlcs.

tue enn.

LOST.
by sulte leonard.
r haunts me even yct, the sud, ead look
of hor I loved and inet.
The treos are tempost wet, the foaming hrook Over tho rocks is tost.
All gnarled and hent,
Her eyces sweet hastre sh
And then-she went.
Oh what eare I for rain or rushing storm The hopes I nurst, Thicir sweet, aweet promise, never oan perform
Let my heart burst. Toru from my clingin
Was she I loved,
Even the momory of that dear, pele fince My torment proved.
Let the storm rage, ita fiercest wrath
Is nought to me,
She that I loved sits by another's hearth She that I loved
The fading uplondor
Never more hear
Her voice's music, in low-bmert replies 8ound iu mine ear.
sound in mine ear
Cold strike this hreaking heart, oh, chilling wind
So I may co,
And in the deep grave, I that rest may find
I long for so,
Thst I may stand, waiting her aoul to greet
In Paradise
That the first amile of welcome she will meet Will he my ayes.

HITHER AND THITHER.
Joma Gramert and William Eaton wera close frienila from early ohilahood; in tact, so encened their affootion for each othar that the seem seemed were almoat generally called Damon and Pythia None wondered that William Rston was loved, fo he was of a genial disposition, winning his way $t$ all hoarts, hat John was cold and tocitunn to on siders, turning alike from the proters of trien ahip and the smin that William's good diapoeition was the bond tha heid them, thongh he himseif deolared that it wa John's nohility and excellence of charaoter, an that he never hoped to resch the standard of pe fection thich his iriend had arrived ak.
This, howorer, was supposed to he the partiahit, a attection, ane. Ae time wore on their reger the forgiving one. Ae time wore on their rogaia for esch other seemed to increase, and the socia fircle neser mbt without either, hoth or naither o them being present, for none dared invite on withont the other, and thongh John seemed to stern for sach
It wns in a guthering of thiskind that they firei met Emma Wiby. Swest and loveable, Emmi won the hearte of hoth friends. William purho his suit with impetunus eageineas, and John soon discovering, so he thought, the hopslessness of hik own wibhes, stood aside in gloomy nileuce. For the first tims a foeling of estrangemon orept hetweon th thy tho object of his passion, he hasd no opportunty of noticing the many pange Juan no opportanity endeavoring to hido in his owa boeom, and a Lerminatinn of his snit, he poured ont his donhts to John; wheu receiving, instead of the symursihy be had expected, a cold tone asd an avertell louk, he had expected, a cold tone asd ato averturt int future to kecp his troubles to himself.
It was at this perind that Willism was colllod on Was necessary to reach it, th. rnsd wes a lnaily trip. A few hourn before startiug John expressed deternination to sccompany him, saying, that in dwose loncly passen two was bettor than une, and Wulliam jogftlly accepted his company.
Calling first upou Bome: to Lid are furewoll, they started, expecting to be goor a nonth.
During the first day'a travel bitli. A said by ither, Wiliam regratting hia sbsme farin ta pressing it to (ns he suppeaed) hie unsymipathieing friend, while John, in generons edence, harv the deeper pangs of his disappointed love. With his nstural lightness of heart, hovever, deeply erijoyed the wild recovered his gaiety, and deeply onjoy"d the wild senery through which men it during the day, and lsughing heartily st the meagro and awkward and lsughing heartily stane mastions they were forcel to put up with at ni anhlime and the ridicalons hand in dint again, John," he auid, the night berore renching smid that spiendid forest, we were indilding our aircastlea so high, that to-night we would have deigned to he happy and eontented iu a garrot, with hat one hed for both of ns ty, Wha wither ling enough or wide enongh for oue. What a diferine difference, Will, is between the worka of of the Creator and those of the creature. As to the aircastles, I think the hed, amall as it is, will do ns more good to-night than they.
" Well, let us hie away to it. And now I thitid of it, all the castle-huilding was done by me, thia aerisl arehitecture uot sooming to come within your line. But, soriously, John, you nsver spoal nay more of your plans for the faturo, yon rememher a few yeare ago, how eager you were to memher a fow yeare ago, how eager you wow try your fortune in Americs. I am glad you gave try your fortune in Americs. I am glad youl gase up that iden, my boy; for, of coarse, Ishoula hinve up that iden, my boy; for, of course, shoul gone with yon, and never have met Emma.
John turned hastily away end walking to tho vinilow gazod intently from it, while Willinm, still window gazod intently from it, while Willinm, etill rattling on carelcssly, got into bedundwas boranas asleop. Aseoo of the latter froot, John toole a poncil from his pooket, and writing a few lines on a pices of papor, placed it on the table in fuil riow, and Boftly opening the door went down to thn landardy and settled for their entertainmeut, asynag thoning he wes going to leave vory oarly the nest mornis he wes going to ieave vory oarly ge ne. Retuing to his he would not disturh the houed his olothee, and was scon anleep.
his olothee, and was scon asleep.
Morn wss jnst lifting the voil of ught rhwn ho Jorn wss jnst irning the voil of angh, get ting his William turned in his bed and first dieccuve whd the ahsenee of his friend. Jumping up hastily hn sew ahsenee of his friend. tahlo, and eagerly read it to tho note lying on signaturc, and then hatring hie the line and sit the iast line and signatlowed the tears to all unfaco in his hands he all

John, if yon had only told mon "he gronnect, "what would I not have sacrificed for your sake" Did yon think I could not ho as generouls self? But, perhaps, "tis not yet too iste." his departure, and in half an hour was riding sway his departure, and an speed.
from the house at full
The month apecified for the absence of John and William passed away, and thoy liad not re-- torned. Another, and another, tnd then alarmed turned. Another, and another, thd then alarmed at the continued silence, Wiliam etartsd on the search. At every plice the tidingo etartsd on the search. At every plice the thang was straightforward end olear. They had remainwas straightorward ented away together the next ed all night and starte ed all might and an arrived at M-. Thero it morning until they
was discovered that John had leit boftice daybght mas discovered that John had leit befire daybght and William had not gone for hours efter. On he went to C- and found that Williem liad been ohserved on the beach in this horeo had Jit left at heen seen sinco, though his the inn. Of John there was no tidings Perplexed and worried, Georga Eaton as cluo to his hrother, hnt without sucoest, and was at last ohliged to return homee with tbe ovil tidinga. There wera sad hearts in the vilege kiw the friends some hitter ones. Tbose who knew the fiell assured tbat whatever miafortane had wefallen one had heon shared by the other. Thoso of the gossips who were not woll acquainted with the eharacters of the two young men were free in their remarks, some asying that "it was very strango Jnhn should have disappeared ao mintrinly, and they did not believe the sory owsy farly, and no dullitian and going away and going away eariy, and no exvitement was would ensily be found nfter the over." Others, "John wonld not hnve gonu eway over. "Others, motive being to waying Wiw
self of a rival to Emma's favo
But weeks and monthe tlew on and wethor Bnt reeks and monks dow on and weiluce mtumed. The eircumatace had heeme on old turned. forgotten almoet by all saye the relotives story, and intimate frienila, when one day a letter cam:
$0^{++-}$rge immedistoly opened itin the bope of thread hy which to traee his hrother, whicen what was his amezement to find it to be from Johin Gill Was hia hom sll thought dend. From thic tone of ths letter it was ovident hs kneve notling of the mysterious disappearance of bis $f^{\prime} 3 \mathrm{~m}_{\mathrm{d}}$, os he mysterious disappearanee of bis te' 3nd, as he hegged an immediate raply, saying none imew the hegged an immedute raply, saying none lepth of his loneliness and misery on that morn-log, whem, giving a hat look to his sloeping companiun, ho had hastened on his journey to he in timic for the steemer which whe to start et noon that day. His friend wes the only one who would inecerely moun his sbence, for his uncle, with incerely mourn his sbsence, for his uncle, with whom he resided, was too mnch immersed in hosinese to miss him, ond the note which he lad lef ould explain all. He could never have remoined in England to eee Emma the wife of another thongh the other was William. Then he closed ther hy hoping that his friend hod hoen with the ohject of his clovico ; for himeelf, happy with the ohjeet of he thould never marry.
An answer wae diroctly eent to Jolin, tolling him thet William had never heen heard from since hie thet walliam had never heen heard from since hie leporture, though search had been mado for him, an eath.
Grief wore the mail hrought a lettor from John tho writer's detcrmination to find the missing one f posaible.
Remomhering to have seen in the harhor on the day of his depirture a veessel, which from it sname day of his depirture a veasel, which frorn its name (Tho Emma) had sttmacted his attontion, he had inquired whitber it wiad hound, and discovered thet it was akeo going to America, but while the daye at Halifax the otlier was only going to touch for passengers.
Thinling now that perhaps the impotnous William might have attompted to follow, in hopes of sgain Beeing him at that port and inducing bin to return, Johu made diligent inquiries, and aftor much trouhlo found that a gentleman had got aloard at C - , hut that in violent etorm hind arisen in whioh the vossol had heen so badly injured as to make it necceasy to put back for reveseel three men were washed overhoard, among them tho etranger. Two of them were picked up by the Martha, hound for China, snd there the thread was lost, The Martha had returned aince, hut no buch person was on her.
Weary and disheartoned, John now hegan to eertain. Plowged into gloom which seemed to become hesvier and blacker es the thought grev.
upon him, that he was the occesion of Will upon him, that he was the occasion of William'e commiasion to France from tho firm he wee with New scenes he hoped wonld lighten the load from his heari and teach him partinlly to forget.
With haste he prepared for his departuro, and was soon again on tho hroad deep. The paseage was a stormy one, hut a stranger in a &trange land enrnest attontion to tho husiness which hed collea occupied, and these he employed viewing whatevor was worthy of his ettention. Eaching what found womething. Once a thonght struck him. Ho ner in which triela were conducted, and noto the differenee hotweon the Diench and American methods. Passing with a mechods. Passing with a quick step iuto the huilding, he took a seat just as a canse wna heing inieled. The crew of a Bmall Fronch yessol had aukned, and the stringent arm of the low had Johin? Seet he is pale os death, and lergo drops of poropiration stand like hends upon his forehend. Three timee he ottempts to rise ; et last witb a desperate eflort he gains his feet, and then with renewed strenght pushes his way to the passage through which the prisoners are heing led, and clrspe one in his arms.
"of of the long-severed friendeson singulaty $r$ in united. The judge seeing the commotion inquirei as much as he know, and to him, John explnined ond wavo of the hand, told limg hie fricnd was free, the comt having juet decided thet he was hoy procceded to John's lodgings, And then-arm the explsnation. He had heen one of the fortunChina. Arriving theirveyed hy tho Martba to China. Ariving their, he hed token the firat reMartha. Whon a short time out, a portion of the crew, heedod hy the second mate, had connived together and mutined. Some of these heing overso to cold-blooded marder, they had, upon conquering, placed the captain, first mate, and two of the crew in the long hoat and ect thent edrift, and had cruised ahont, going in ono direction one, they and the reverse the uext. William, for some unknown cause, they had kept with them, refusing he hnd urged, and keeping him in clese eustody. The captoin having hy chence fallen in with e man-ol-war, stated wis ease, wheh they immedisiderable troulle found the veseel, soized the mntinoue crew and hrought them prisoners to France. There he had boon deteined, awaiting trial up to the present time. Long the friends they aeperated for the night, williem loughingly ing. Aotb dayo after, Wiliam returned to Eagiand, loato tosve John, bat eager once more to eec home. Brown with exposure, and trevel-slained, he again enterod the villago. Many Bud hearty were tho welcomes ho received; hant his first tplossure was in sunding olettor to Joln, begging him alea to veturn, "Por," said he, "I find it was not that Fmme loved, But do not be unhappy for me on that acconnt, for I am not inconsolalile. I have offective es Rmma's hitue ones-that is to mo-snd I hope eoon to have the pleasure of introducing you to them. So como homo immediately, if not for mine, for Emma's sake.

THE SIECE OF PETERSBURC The interest still centres at Petersharg, where Grant io panining bin miego lines forward whin the the dogred ohntinacy of his charicter, bombardiny the fated aity and the robel position with incessant and fintal renearer viow of tho gall nt chingge of the isth, corps on Arat lie of rebel work, which they took nplewajuly

NAVAL VICTORY OFF CHERBOURC

The hat steamer from Europe brought the weleome tidings of tho summary defeat and destruction of the Alabania, off Cherbourg, and nens flo bistorio Oupe La Hogue, on the 19th of June.
 sot be ont of place to recapitutate the facte. annd, by Meessm. Luirch, undor a cantract tuade by Capt Bulloch, and said to be in behalf of the rethl Govern.
mont. Sho coet, wben complete fer sen, 5255,000 . She was haunched in April, wse2. She was nitted with shot left Liverpool. Sho sailed from Liverpeot ou the 2sth (July, baving goone down the rivor on her trial tripof July, baving gome down the rivor on her trial trip-the Rnglish Government makiog a felgned cflort to Elop the Rnghish Government making a felgmed cffort to Elop hior-but in ton daye thereafter tbe arrived at tho Azores. Hire ibe took on bourd hicr arnament, wbich was firr-nimbed by tho Euglita honse of Fawcett, Frcticn & Co, Fram the time of her departuro from Liverpool ebo
Fremol cunard sestice. The rest of ber oflicare were an followsi Chief Oficers, Join Low, Eaglapd; Secand Oflicer, C. &, Tullani, Hull, Eng: Surgeon, D. H. Lewollyn, Easton, Tuilim, Hull, Eng. 1 Surgeon, D. H. Lewo lbyn, Easton, Witta, Eng.: Pasmer, mea and boge, two thirls being Znghifb.
On the 2 thth of August (Bunday) Capt Rapbael Sermmen took command of the veseel, snd in a formal mameer Wook command of the reseel, and in a formal manner hoisted tho rebel flag at the pealk and the Eactiah ileg at the fore, and Ared a gun.

 snd which in due time Ler Majestry' Government will Sommes, whory.

Sola
 he was conscious that the muge nid hearier metal. Bnt

 Sre-I havn the honor to inform the department that the dry subseatent to the arrivil of the Keurange of this port on the lith inn
 According to this notice the Alabame left the port of

 As wa approuched ber within about $1,2 n 0$ yarde she opeud dire wo rocolving two or turee bronaifieas beforo pentrona with her.

It ationdo moat grasincation to announco to the department that every olicer and mon dia his duty, ex Hon, Giomeor Wraxiln, secretary of the Xars. ARMAMENT OF THE VRSSELS-TGE FIRNO AND CASUALIIES ON BOARD THE BEABSARGL.

 Capt. Winalow doen not mestion the lato of Somince,Whim ho struck his ing end sent hie boat to surrender

 stecred to southumpton, whicre semmes and hi officers were at owa feta.
such 1e the close of the poltroan'n career with the Hishamm.

JEATHITUM,

AT HOME AND IN HARNESS.

 mind as this curlosity whicb prompta us to inquiry and how Diokens rite, or bow te holis his pen with areating Doubeys snd Slimpelce, are nubjects of the doepert intereat with an editor
Isibly hinto bomal priviloge that allows us to walk in hodily unaes, we are abeut to acize rocily upon a mana whose name at thia moment, we vili venture to usert, is better known over the ontire civil ved world than may other Amorican, and serve np that ized inner life for the benest of the pubilic.
The muna to whom wo alinde is Pt ane whose name for quarter of a century bas been more specimen of himis motart before the peopie than any living

 Barnum the publle wait to hoow.
There are somie men who do not aiopt a calline or don chairk,

If we writing a etotech of fection, nothing toat imagination ceuld supply would equal the toie we uro

ago
$e l y g$ $l$

 antey * CO., philadelphia

Lump of chy as taten from the river. 2. Lump opened ehowing cyat. $3 & 4$. Lump opened ahowing mould the teridoctren anmectans, - 8 en fage 285.

THE TESTIMONIAL SWORD THIs elegant presentation sword was mannfactured and donnted to tho ladics of the arwat Oentrul Fair, Philhdelpha, by Moeere. Evans and Haseall, Fair, Phildelpha, by Hooese. Evans and Haseall, monachurere and mikiary furnikibers, 418 Arch utreet, Philadelphla. The swond ie without doubt one of the mogt alegant and expensive ones yet produed to thit most olegant and expensivo onos yet produced in this conatry. It is a etraight Damaseus blade arthatically conntry, it is a etraight Damaseus blade artistically etehed, but no lettering appears. .xept the eimple nithele ethed, but no lettering appears, oxcept the eimple nithals J .8 . The grip is struight, and carred ont of solid silver, with helmet hewd in gola. In the grip $\left\lvert\, \begin{aligned} & \text { belt fo of the finest quaity of Ruasian leather, cmi- }\end{aligned}\right.$ Mamonds to the vaine of 81,000 are set. The guard ie katicd with gems. There arso, two scabbarde ome of IIver, hesrily plated with gold, nnd the othar of oxide ; hery are hoth elaborstely sculptured with appropriato the arme of the Corited States, richly enamelll od in pord, hroilered riohly with gollt, which unt the chas, nad

THE UNION VASE.
Thie remarkable work of art was donuted by Balloy & Co. io the great Contsal Fair of Phuladel phin, for the sanitary Comminsion, with the undarorganization recsiving the groatoot number of yotes at $$ 1$ each, the party becomiday a canilidate to be put in nomination by paying a fee of $$ 22$ for that purpose. The yasse is sold eiviver, and 40 inchese in height, the base, five picce of verd antique marblo, triangular in shape

10 roumountod with a tiripod atand, esch leg of whloh is ofnamented wilh centptarod armorial embleme nal doarnamented will eculptarod armorial cmblems and dovices, ono each reprementing the anclent, miadio and yresent ages. The various advanceraents in the construction of the lamicmente and trappinge of the perloide
 the upper tibe of each columan are matiterly deetigned end rizecutod winged fomale Aguree, representing resonce, and han en eliborately wrought border, roppesesent og a wrecth of vinea with large ciuathrs of grapes hanging down from the hundea, which are thrce in namhas. Betyout the colnmins, eentell on a pedeatol, is on eacel lent alstnetto of Liberty with indifgia On one anglo to tho Inveription: "Proonted to the Central Banitiry Fuir hy Balley & Co, 1504," On the angles of the mans blo base ars richly wrought noedallions in eliver, one belug the arnul of the Unitod states, another the arme of the sito of Pconoglvinia, and the other A deaige of the eagle stranging a eorpont. Execepting this lower base, heme mholo anirir la of nolld steraing ellver over oo pounds welpht of which was used in lis construction-the whole vano welghing 160 pounds. It it without the whole vaine welghing 160 pounds. It is, without doubt, ono of the mont mastive and beratifal, ce well ae the largeet ploces of eiliver waro evor producod in thio country, renoctivg tho bighest credt on this donors, and oviry way worthy of the remerkable event it is inteaded to perpetuato.
Althonjla a nombor of distingutahed nameswere early ontercel jor the contcit, it wer by no meane a sptrited ne unall near the eloso or the Fair, three daye ptevioum to Fitich conniderably less than 2,000 votee lind bcen pollcod, lesing tlio Unioun Lasuno of Philadetplise and has follow-men.

THE STEAMSHIP WASHINCTON.
The new Freach steamship Washington, TypL. Duchesne, the firat of a line desigued to run bo-tweon this port and Hivre, France, arrived st this port Sune 29, after a passige of 14 days nad a half.
 tocly pasesacg.
On her trini trip tho Waabilipton ran 10 statato milles

 $=5$ HGivisw wimix

THE LEPIDOSIREN ANNECTANS.

The animal shown in our illustration on it is a retrastable creature from thio of is a retasskiable creature from tho poeltion which it bitrachians and tith, the purcat type of an amplitbioue aulturd, posseaning botb lungs and gilk, and breathing boili oir and witer. It resembles in form, as will be porting it on tho botions. and ahting it in its motions. It has on the hosd a nees or intelleot, wivited with great amiablaness of tounper, in midotion to her personal perfectious.

$\qquad$
The Famova Tunevorse Mines of Persia. - gubut Eafarani is the neareet shye to throagh tho mountains four milon north of Rubat, and the wiole distauce to be travelled shout ois furakikhe lo
 the Naiahapur, supporing thie travollice to be golng to Mrethed. Theso mineer ubed to be tixod it 1,000 tuwane is year. Bat the Covernmeut now roooves more from them, bonldes the contract money, which it more from thom, benldes the contract money, which th included to the penseal farring Heence for all the

HOSTETTER'S celdbrated STOMACH BITTERS. THE WEAK ALWAY8 nN JEOPARDY, -Mark this 1
When opideman provail ho fobble fall firie, It requikes

 Intermilitoot Fovor, Diarrhcea, Dyeentery sud all the itadalios which proval nuore or less everywhere in tho Bold by all dotaggitto and Family Grooers.

Hostetter's Stomaoh Bitters,

WIonderful! Strange

$\qquad$ the siamp,
Box 100.

Huangut, Mininesonta.
Grand, Square and Upright Pianofortes.

THALBHRGS CMRTIFTCATD:

Wharerooms, 652 Broadway, 玉N. Y., 246 Washington Street, Boston.
WTESTW ARD HO! Seaside Summer Resort
Brolter's Stock of Unrodeomed Goods,

 $400-9$ 108 Audbury Bt., Bocton, , Mnes.
$$ 100$ per TKonth. Active and reliablo Agentom thic Army and everywhere oles th the most

GOJARNUMS  SERFSEWER

reserves the Ey or, avolde becaing. No banting.

GOURAUD's
Italian Medicated Soap,
 Oobmid's Poudar sodilie uproots hair from low and Drusgista generally.

TNOVE REIDDY.
THE RECORD

PARIS, LONDCN
NEW YORK FASHIONS.
EPRING Noc, 1864.
WITH THE LARGEST COLORED PLATE
Ever given in any Pablication Prico 28 Cente.

J. H. WINSLOW & CO.

100,000

Vorth $500,000: To bo pold fir one poLLAR end, withour epard to

. H. WINsIOW \& $\mathrm{CO}_{2}{ }_{2}$
Stereoscopic Picturgs and Cartos de

The Confessions and Izperience of an Invalid.
Publuthed for the benoft and 8 a $a$ wanning, and suiton to young nien who puffer from Norocus De

If your want to TEnow

MEDICAL COMMON SENSE.
Amonic thio many nubjecto trested tn this work ero

[DISTIILED DEW]

Do Yon Want Iuxuriant Whiskers
or IVLoustaches?
Ary oxauer will froco tiem to grow hevily in

Photograph Cards for Gentlemon.

Wanted Iverywhore, good reliable

Attention, Company !

 $\begin{array}{ll}558.70 & \text { P. O. Drawer ine, Allonsy, } \mathrm{N} \text {. }\end{array}$
Boautiful Artificial MIoustaches 50 cts . and sir wach: Avo for 82 Whaskers zal. send timup

Bgauty- Hunt's White Liquid Eaamar preppred hy Mindate Rachel

 ,

GREAT PRIZE DISTRIBUTION Gold Watches, Diamond Rings, Mlegant VVOwth $500,000: T. BENTON & CO., Jowellors, 199 Broodmay, N. Y. CERTFICATRS, naming cesch articio of our rtock

Sil Cortinetat for 8 it thiricen for s2.
I. BLaxion & Co, Bos Soof, P. O, New York.
 WHOLESALE AND RETAIL,
DEGRAAF & TAYLOR, (FORMMRLE B. P. DEGRAAF),

NO. 37 BOWVEME, INHOV TOXEXC.
mament is six storosn in hoight, and extends 242 feet through to No. 65
ono of the largest Furniture Honnce in the Unitect States
the Wholesslo Trado for Tinin or Cshb. Their itock conalita,
ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND CHAMBER FURNITURE;
Mahogany mad Walnut, Parlor and Chamber Furniture
 enamelled chamber furniture, in Sots, from 322 to 9100.
Tucker's New style Patent Spring Bed, Tbo beot sa well no the eluageat of any in wro. Retril prifoo, 53 ench

Do not Eail to Cret, on your way to the Joat or Car,
FRANK LESLIE'S
Lady's magazine FOR JULE, 1864.
Such an array of Fachiona nnd Fanlion in nevor given in summer.
The Colored Steel Double Page
A FOUR-PAGE FASHON PLATE, Cuif, Skirts, Waiat, Chilaran's Drestes, Coimures, Fhthing Diesser in groat variety.
FULL SZZED PATTERN OF A JACKET
FOR HOME WEAR. CONTENTS:
The Doctor's Wifo.-By Mis M. E. Bradion. Cousin Dora.
The Story of the Olown'e Daughter.
Brack ca Hollow.
Red and White.
The Two Fingers
Thio Pool undur tho Bocchen.
Circumetantia! Dvidence.
With a molection of Fino Art Pictures, Soclal Sketobes, Comic Diluatrations, ctc., ete.
Frank Leslie's Lady's'Magazine Is the frellect, moet racy and clamming of the has nevor heen approselied.

Suy a Number and bo Convinced frank leslie, 537 Peaxi Strect, N. y.

Grays  Batent  Moldeá  Collars

Cray's Patont Mzolded

HATCH, JOHNSON & CO., J. S. LOWTEX & CO., 37 Warren St, N. Y.
VAN DEUSEN, BOEHMER & CO., VAN DEUSEN, BOEHMIER & CO.', 627 Chesthut Streot, Puiladelphis HODGES, BROS, 23 Hanoter St, Dallimore WALL, STEPHENS & CO., 322 Peinaylvania Ar., Washingto LEAVITT $&$ BEVIS, eor. Fifth and Vine Sts., Clinn.
J. YON BORMIES & CO., 134 Main St, Louiaville. A. FRANKFNTHAL & $&$ BRO., No. 6 Mail St, St. Louig RRADFORD, BROS, Milwatike
WEED, WITIERS $& C 0,7$ to 13 Tchoupitoulae St., N. O
SSCo

DURYEA'S MAIZBNA

hecerved two prize medals (From Juries a and f) at the INTERHATIONAL EXHBITION,
At the Grout International Exhibition
Humburg, July, 1863, Recelved the Higheat Rxize Medal foy its Great

 WM. DURYEA, Agent, 166 Fulton St $_{n}$ N. Y.

A Sure Fortune

 at free everywb re upon receint ef r turap poantuge Addres FRANE V. MERTON, New Yoris City.

Whiskers! Whiskers!

Mry OXGERT winl forg them to grow on aby

ENDPLOYNIENT AT YOUR OWN HOMES.

Litgrary $A_{\text {Gency, }}$ Sistablishod in 1842

Cooley's Cabinet Frinting Office

Amotouns, cce, Tece.,

$\mathrm{Sp}_{\text {Spruco St, }}$ N. Y
MATRIMONIAL FAVORS

At TUCIER'E, 759 Broadway.
IE. W. BEINIOERET, PHOTOCRAPH CALLERY,
No. 2 Now Chambers Street,
Hno now increased ficlitios to take Cartes de Vatto sin

 Every attention paid to veibitimo withing to exminio tho

HOWARD'S SWEAT PROOF

Soldiers' Money Belts, with compartments roi

Ths Great Monsy-MIaking Articlo.
 con
$$ 60$ A MoNTH:-I want A gentw at swa month

C. S. Sea, MI. D., Baltimore, 35 yeare
Protesoro or Female Tverapeutces. Butty Caris Free.

Starsoscopic Viows and Cartes de $\boldsymbol{\nabla}$ isite

75,000 Watches, Chains, © WOERTIE $400,000.

The Early Physical Degeneracy of American People,

 pitaton, Impairce Sutrition and Didigotion book. Adarros wad two red Elawa and outain ti. DR. AND

"Psychomancy,"-How sither sex rary

 ountomene
cution ov

THE COMIC PAPER OF AMERICA

TRANK LESLTE
BUDGFT OF FTN, FOR AUCUST IS INOW OUTP, CONTARNING THE GREAT CARTOONS OF TIE DAY
THE WAR OF THE GIANTS;
THE PIGMIES OR EURORI:
THE TENDER-HEARTED BUTCHERS
The Fair Girl of Washington
 TERN PAGES of the finct Humoroum writing of Prics only 10 Conts.

$10 AGEATTS $10

FRANK LGELEE:
Univilled Publicaions
Frank Leslio's Lady'e Magazine ant GAZETTE OD PASFBION. TLu beet Fumily Suman

Frank Leslif's Illustrirte Zeitung, tho

Frank Isslis'e Iady's Inlustrated A1
maNAC, a very vilanio and afractio wor 2ban

Royal EZavana 工otrery.
 No, 10 Woull stech N. Y .

A NEV NOVET
By Mrs. ANN S, stephens, THE INDIAN QUEEN.

Egeaw

For Hardening & Invigorating the Gums.

Norvous Disoasos and Phy yical Debili-

WM. KNATE & CO., manuracturens of gols medat
GRAND AND SQUARE PIANOS, GRLND BaLmitore, ach

WHAT TO DO

 FOW THO DO IT Tako an a oney for our Popular Bookir-bay at Whote-palle, all at Ret kil, and sove the pronto. Full particulare

Agents Wantedn- $$ 60$ per MIonth guar

STAMMERING

New Music Book for Sabbath Schools. THE GABBATH 8 CHool Triuncer. A colicetion

Dr. Boowolls Vegetable Preparation

Tre Beasa.qe.

 -most repiaty looded and Arve Their aurnensement is eutirely Devel, asad aocs sury with the oumbers 6 eme and the british-nuilt pinate semaies and motame brifanah.

 1

 journale.
$15

BALLOU'S FRENCH YOKE SHIRTS  cemaper  othor in this city. Circular contain. ing dramings and

For eale by all tho prinoipal deele
BALLOU BROTHERS, 403 Brosdway, N. Y.
Wheeler & Wilson's Highest Premium

Sovving Mrachines 454.90 6a5 3ROADWAY, N. x.

THI BOWZN THCROSCOFE,

The only cammolied "Turbover", Collur mads in

TRIUMPH OF MECHANISM.

"Snow Whito," Zinen Finished, ZIn

FRTRTONTI

 CAMPAIGN MEDAL! thrue and bead
 dil supporiers of yor presidzat Sond in your ander Sond in your ordere Single Modal. 50 octa,

PRエEIDE2NTRAT CAMPAICN MEDALS
 pricers. Wholeatio Bepot
A GMNTS, call or reand 36 conta for Sonsimen of Amorican, Swiss and English Watchhs

eqersa CREAT

STEINWAX & EONS,
Nos. 71 and 73 Fourteenth St., N. $\mathbf{Y}_{1}$
Were awarded a First Prize Mednl at the lato Grent International Exhibition, London. Thare with two handred and eixty-nine pianos from all parta of the world antered for competition.
The Special Corrempondent of the N. Y. Times esys: "Mreears. Bteinayy's endoreement by the Jurors in of any European maker."

GRTAF CSEANGD

TO MAKE MONEY!

Ground in Oil in several drab shodes for Villas, Cot

 An Elegut SMEEER WATCH, same Ms obova, zingle oae, bs mail, $\$ 7$. Specinly edapted to the Arary. \&18 ALGERENE \$18 $\triangle$ SUPRRB "RXTRA BOUBLE GOLBPDLATRD "nn. spring-Geninine Enditio Jeloedted or Nickel Motemembls-.

A. $$ 100$ Gold Watch used by the British Army Officers. Elnt
only $$ 18$.

RTON & co., Importcrs,
38 and 40 Anin 8 street, N. Y.

WARDS STIITS SENT EVERY WHERE BYMAMLOREXPRESS  Self-MIeasuroment for Shists

 sint fren evorywheare.

STHMCOMWARS

HiNALEELDD WHITPI,

 Prico 75 cente eacb; sent hy post to miy part of th
Union on Whon the receipt of so cants.
WHELESALE ANB RETAII.
Cosmis Wantisd in orery Town in the Unton. 5. W. EI. WFARD,

George B. McClellan SWORD ANTD

GEINETRAT FUND. Yhe undersigued bas been solieited by many in tho amy and citizens of this city to bo the reciplent of a

IADEES' LTHTPER.

gIVE ANATOMICAI TNGRAVINGE
Has informotion never before pabliehod. Scent free, o Aduresa Box 4652 , Now York Foot Office.

Epoxtronaon, Tourister, AND ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERS, Poworful and Brilliant Donble Classes.

Hehont the distreesing senalt of frequent ehangecs, sघxemino se, Oculists-Opticians,

FRANK BESMIESS TITUSMRAMED

No. 461-VoL, XVIII.]
NEW YORK, JULY 30, 1864.

The Late Rebel Raid-What it Was-|dust, the clamor and confosion, attending the $\mid$ gee wbat it was, what it came for, whant it ae-- parsued to this end was well considered and The Late Rebel Raid-What it Was - last, daring destructive and dangerons rebel complished, and in wbat it finied. What it Came For-and the Results. $\mid$ raid into Maryland baving subsided, we are $\begin{gathered}\text { Its main object was the sarpriec and cap- } \\ \text { rese anath aide of James river, coula be hela } \\ \text { res }\end{gathered}$ Tax surprise, the panic, the amoke and |enabled to scan the field of its operations, to $\mid$ ture of Washington, and the plan of operations $\mid$ in check before the fortifications of Peters-

oki. franklin's eecerpios by maryland fabmers.
 Pecins abtist.-bre phoe 295.
burg, hy holf the army of Lee, during the time required for this expedition; or if Gen. Grant should ewing round again to the north Eide of Richmond, he conid ho held there for several weeks before the foris encircing the city Union forces of Gen. Hunter, driven west waidfrom the Shemandoah valley, had leftitopen down to the Maryland border, and likewise the country caetor the Binoriage, hetw nemy were well informed of ths comparatively mproee were thinly oceupicd by troops, and detencee were thinly occupied hy troops, and hat theee were moetly inexperionced awitia, inviting facte together, a lese vigilant, elcilfol and dering soldier than Gen. Lce would have and dering soldier than Gen. Lce would have novement against our national capital. There was eome riek; hut there was a fine opening the rehellion the intervention of Frence and Enpland.
The occasion and all the advautagee suggeeted were not loet upon Gen. Lee. The forces of all told, mainly detailed from Richmond to hend off and copture or disperse the army of Gen. Hunter, after hie retirement from Lynch burg, were already well on their journey to wards Washington, when they had driven him awsy. Hunter's army, meantime, moving off for the Ohio river, had hecome ne aseleee to ns in thie emergency as if it had been renoved to Oregon. There appeared to be every pospect of enccess to thie daring.rebel enter priae. The only ohance of a failure was in the probability of relief to Washington from Grant's rmy, bnt there wae also the prohability that rent. it would give at least a temporary relie to Riehmond.
The grand design against Washington was promptly put into execution. Breckinridge 20,000 strong, wbolly unobetructed, ewept rapidly down the Shenendoalh valley to the Potomae, driving Sigel from Martineharg to Ferry, aud eweering hroadeast into Merylond Ferry, aud eweopung hroadcast into Meryland noved ecroce the country, eeet of the Blne idge, and crossing the fords of the Upper Potomac, some 25 or 30 miles above Waehing iggton, was, with at least a portion of his forcee, advancing upon the city, while Gen Wallace was engaged with Breckionidge on the Monocacy. Wellace, borne down hy overetired upon Baltimore taiked on hie left body of troops were detached from the defence of Washington. This was on Saturday evening, tho 9 th instant, 40 miles north of the sity ; and yet, ou Monday evening, it appears Breckinridge, with hiemain column, had joined Early in front of the eity'e northern defences. Thie was rapid merching, after a day'e fighting, or infantry that had been making euch forced marches for many days. It appears, further hat Gen. Early was urged hy eome of his into the city on Monday evening, and thet, from ailing or declining to do so, he was conotrained to confees the nest morning that he had ost hie golden opportunity.
The events which have followed we need no here repeat. It will suffice that, in feeling the pulse oft he Washington defencee, Early, Breckaridge and company were convinced that in tho moin ohject of their mission they had failed, to mather up oneir ateruative left them wae to gather up their scettered marauding doplunder. By a lucky succeseion of with their plunder. By a lucky sucoesing in, they were advantages heart of Marylend without reeistonce + and but for the cheok they euffered on the Monococy, they might have eucceeded, ne a eurprise party, in getting into Washington. In that hattle on the Monocecy, though defented, Gen. Wallace o the country judgment, incalculable service enemy'e advance upon Washington a whole day, and gained such conclnsive informetion of the enemy's strength and designs, as to he eunbled to give to the War Office a seasonahle at disaster; bnt neither the Government nor the Border Statee of Mery land and Peunsylvania can pnt in evena plangible excuso for neglecting those precautions whereby thie destrnctive foray might have heen crashed on the henks of the Potomac. We crashed on the henks of the Potomac. We and tuke the linerhar or the Nat the Admin istration and of the Statee directly concerned that this late disgraceful rebel invasion shal he the last adventure of the lind in the history of the war.

Barnum's American Museum

 Reomance daily at and 11.2 o clock P , $\frac{\mathrm{M}}{}$

Oscanyan's Oriental Album

Consistiag of 2 Phntotgraphic Portryts of Oriental Men

O. OSOANYAN,

PERRY DAVIS'S

VEGTMABE2 PAIN ETHEER

Tsken internally, euren sudden Colda, Cougha, ete., Weak Stomach, Gonoral Debilly, Nuraing Sore Month, Oanker, Liver Complaint, Dygpopeill or Indigeetion, cramp or Pein in the Stomnch, Bowel Complnint, Paj ere' Collc, Aniatic Cboolern, Diarrboces and Dyentery. Applied externally, eures Fulone, Bolih and Old Sorrse, Severe Burns and Scalds, Cate, Bruifes and Spralne Sovere Burns and Scalds, Cute, Brainee and Sprafise, Sweling of the Joints, Ringworm and Tetter, Brotan in the Faco, Nearalgia and Rheamotico.

frank lescie's

LLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER

NEW YORK, JULT 30, 18M.

Al Communications, Boolis for Review, eto, must be addressod to Frasis Lessty, 637 Pearl etreet, New Yorli.

THERTMS:

TERMS FOR ADVERTISINC

One Doilar a line on the ontaide or last page.
Blxty Cents a line on the 1tth and 15 th pagee.

First-clase etoriee will he read promptly, and found worthy of nexplance, suittily componeated. paper only, and he macompponited with the aditress of By met with attontion.
nutouss for Newspires anhorites es Wanhington, ent hy mail at the roteso of printided matter. If eont by unces shound be sent by bexpreas,
When partios with
When partiea winh MSS. returned by mail, poatage tors of sbort articies, poems, otc, will do wall to beribu copy, as the sheopest coumse.

Dxcuncen.-One Enough; or, Two Lovera Too Many Changes-The White Lady of Hohenzoliera-Ralph Maylund ${ }^{\text {t }}$ Ohristicn.

Summary of the Week.

THE INvaston
The invaeion of Muryland was really an attempt on Waehington. It wae mede by a column 30,000 etrong, under Gen. Early. Breckinridge commanded the infantry and Ransom the cavalry.
Tbey wars to concentrate at Frederick and moyo buy wara to concentrate at Frederick and movo Washington. Wallace'e defance of tbe Monacy destroyed their hopee of carrging Washing The deotruction of tho reeidencee of somo doetroy men nenr Baltimoro and Washington will be fonnd to have heon the work of reeident rebels, who onbtlees nided in the deetruction of the railroad The greateet did three yeare ago. The greateet point was tbeir oepture of Gens, ranklin and Tyler, who hoth escaped. Thoy carried off 10,000 cattle and 5,000 horece, On tho 12th they were atitecked the 6th corpa, and retired, leaving their coade b wounded in front of Fort Stevens, which they had threatened.
On the 1
On the 15th our troope croseed the Potomac at edward'e ferry in pursuit
onv
Grant is pneling his works etendily befor Sheridang
Sheridan bas eet ont on a new expedition.
t U. S. voluntecers, started from Portsmont and drove the rebel guerillas from the Nansemond On tho 12th the Blackwater.
On tho 12th tbe 2d corps moved to the front to On the 14th a rebel wae not found anding fired on the eteamers Gattery at Wilson Jnited Statee, injuring both ecriouel The rebel raiders have mado good tbeir cecape witb alf their plander, no part having beon reand Baltimere in restored around Washington genars.
After dielodging Johnston from the Kencesw,

Sherman made a flank movement, by which ha prisoners of no avail, fell back on Atlanta. On the 5th Staniey's divizion, 4th corpe, an King'e 14th corpe carriod a rebel poeition, Iosin bont 800 men.
Sherman hae
Sherman hae since driven the enemy into his expedtion umsisirppr.
An expedition, under Cen. Dennie left Black pion hills by Gen. Slocum, moved on Jackaon On the 5th the whols force, numhoring leee tban of a creek, three milce from Jackeon. Col. Coates, 11th Illinoia, flanked their poeition, and they retired. Our troope cecaped Jackion, and re pulsed the enemy in an attuck made the next day The rebels made another aittempt on our reas guard near Clinton, but were repulsed.

zotisiaras.

An oxpedition atarted from New Orleane north ard abont the 9th.
north carolana.
An expedition, undor Col, Wirk, on June 27tb entered Margantown from Teuneesee, captured rebel camp, a train of cars and drew on the hanl south onbolina
An expedition eterted from Hilton Heed, July 1 and landed on Sbahrook igiand. They then ran np the North Edieto, and had on the 2 d a sbarp action with a rebol hattery, whiob, however, they oould not tele.
On the eame day, Gen. Schemmelpfonnig, with the 39d U. S. (blaek), 103 N. Y. and 55 th Mase landed on Jemoe ieland, and carried rebel battery at the point of the bayonct In the evening the 127th N. Y. and 55th Penn. croeeed from Morrie island and eurprised battery Simplins, but failed to carry Fort Johnson, losing
On tho 4th a eharp artillery flght took place
hetween Fort Pringle and onr ganhonts Pawnee, MeDonongh, Lehigh and Montank.

The Florida continnes ber depredatione, hat doubt ee usual limited as to the extent of their pursuit.
A blockedc-runner worth 870,000 was captured on the 2 d by the Keyetone
the 2 d by the Keyetone State.

FOREICN NEWS.

Hosimirites between the Denee and the Ger min Powors wero reopened on the 26th of Jnne. On the 29th the Prussiana succecded in capturing the hlond of Aisen, witan nearly s,000 prisonesm. Two Amall Danisb veesels were blown np to provent eapture, and the ironchd Rolf Krake injn red. Austrin and Prumaio the ironcha Relr Krake iningred. Austrin and Prumia bsve come to $\begin{aligned} & \text { full underatnading about tbe conduct }\end{aligned}$ the war. Thoy will propose oonjointly to tho Federal Diet to declaru likowise war against Deumarlc Th Germans, it ta eald, wil ocoupy tho ซholo of Jutand a o pledge, will colleot the taxes, "and omploy tho pro opledgo, will colleot the taxes, "and omploy tho pro ceeds to meet the military expense," It an etated, more over, that Bchleswig and Holateln united would b pisced undar the udministration of the great Germp:n Powers-that is, Anstrie ond Prussta-untlit the Federal burg and tho oldenbnrg dynasty.
Tro hoarding-honse keopers-ono rodiding in Liver for trial on obargee of having viofave yean committed ilitment Act, hy cagaging man for prisoners have been udmsttod to hail.
MII. Deyton had givon a grand dinner to Oapt. Winslow of tho Komirarge and all the officera thist could be apared from duty+

 Ebo firod upop tes Britioh prog. Tho Freach und British Governments huve, during the prescat troubles

TOWN cossip

Ir we were hnt gifted with second aight! If we could bat lio out in somo far country apot and cul our gosidp of the to wn , xpon Brondway while were

Clasing tho wida doer and following the roe" pound trout that perpetunlly do inhabit the Some Brown'e track ourenves, and the Arst am angenenent and a city to and the touns will be that upon the let of Jons it simill ite. thut up, and all the jopalation retire to moft, secluder peots, whare Neurports and Serategas meiga for eve: Wood, nad trout and picaterel ary aloud to he raught Cold, and fil be no nowepapera publiabed and no new. be oblivian to business and the outar world. Any person wiabing to join a eo ity of this lind can Brondway bas loet it of July lookr only like o flowerhed parched under a pave, and if ne uppor jopouica-dom.ten hen desertoit the aseumio tho fact by elyutting tho front blinds and liviog. in the back of the honse, while the holipail and door. nob are guferod to go anoleased, and the front etoo so scumblate duet.
How strange it to
"Can't get awwy clah,", does not do semething for itsell Why not plenices, numbering not over 40, and organized mong frionds, on there are soctal an phamio cilnbe mustcal mectangs of a scoro of acquaintances, and yor We will And that every onv of these danoling and musical assoolster whan opjoy a din' & plecicing heyond anythiae thrown upou the neceninity of getting up auch an afinir.
ther "for thastoccasion only," at great trouble and oxpenpe, or are foreod pienica at all.
Another point at which we wonder fs the want of meana to reech e night sail upon the water ifred citizen deeire to talre hide wifo or obildran for a reath of air off the beautiful bay whea the day's labor not one wbone ownera have numpicient cuterprise te nnounce thet for one month they well that ero cotillion excurstions, etarting about carrl and only lawless, drunken epreep, gathering the vors rifral

of the town, and carying through their rowdyiun with.
out

 , man of quipr, and quifbles, until ot last,

EPITOME OF THE WEEK

 Domestic-A Borle counts, Ky, furmer recontly
 we thinlt, mava, yon onght to nght.
The atonmer Pacific, from Oregon and Britteb

The torribicict of thifond coroneris jory in the matter

 nech neglect; the condnotor for not having anothet oreakeaman on the trais in quention; suad timaly, they

 - A recent emiedon of epurioue 50 cont note itho

 ontince, is dariter than the origuza
 feto or more in heigitl No
lowed in tho Broudeny gquad.

 ond

 proine.
 rangement, way reolected to the colonin Parrioment form south Oxford, on the 11 th of July, without oppooltion.

 Who wero
there
chusetth.

 is the largest in the world.
 Ooundere, 60 -peundors, and fourrificd 8 -inch Lovitures.

 deace under nay excitament or struin upon thear intel lectual powers aftor a nuil mena. Brsin ani otomach

 mize Poper hase beon eueconafolly roanufnetured fromi mieavea at tho Schagelmitbl manuffetery is covered and ligbt from magnenimm wire han been diebrillancy. Marotzath hea engraged his chorna for next sez oon from the Incen Opera Howse, Havana. Prench Aenderay of Belenoee, gives unumecount of experiand requeted to nee lier stuilio. The artat at onee ac celded to her Thajesty whites, nad khowed her tho dif. fercint paintinge on which shie in at prosent encrged, on well es miny ine atudico of animale. A paint ing repre

 Odds and Znds. An old Mndy requents us to ur fortere of them to put on their beda in the coll weather.
Tbey should be made up in layere of ten or more, thelked ashion. A committec from Utoh had becn eent to in-vetigate his conduct, bat be told them to clear out, on pein of being hychehell - Nine monthe ago a San Francisco man bet an

 The tatho las now reached 250 apples.
in the Mr. Ipyson, and havede, who has been sovasul ycers

 The felling fin luvor of more ceouomy gating ground.

 in prop
inin.
punthon
On the sth of July a party of young ladiea and ganthomen had a pienic near Falls Church, Ya., and in

Mr. Prameaton, of Albany, suffered with Journal.
Grized jars are unfit for the keeping of

How To Ger Eabix Tomaxogs.-Mrs. E. D.

 fully. A dozan trumps tomatoized wila aliord an abun dast euyply or early tomsiots for an orxifary tannily." An Inclidevx. An Affecting scene is de-

BOOK NOTICES.

 1230.

隹

ANECDOTE OF THE DUKE OF

 BUCCLEUCHTrie Duke of Buceleugh, in one of his walks, purclased a cow from a person in the noighiorliood of Dalkeith, and left orders to eond it to his place the fotlowing morning. According to agreement the cover was walktog in the avonue, spid a nitle follow inefioctually httompting to drive tho animal forverd to its destine-
ion. The boy not knowing the duke, bambed out to "Heh, mun, come hero and give's a han' wi' the The duko esw the mistake ond detornined on heving虽 anderetand him, the dube welked on tlowly, the boy ttill erving his asstotanee ; at last he cries, in tonee of apparent distreese:

 Tho boy cone aentad; luncc they wute the dule rap "Now" soatd the dukk to the boy, "point out the porion want have clun there wi' the white apron" ing to the zutlor.
ibe dolinquent
 roign fortbwith, and quit his ocorvies instanily. tho cove ordered him to be ent to $\begin{aligned} & \text { en } \\ & \text { vided for at hic own experee. }\end{aligned}$.

A FOP OF FIFTY YEARS ACO.

I was then taken to the celebrated Lord Vis count Poternham'e spartmento, where we foumd biy lordship - one of the chief dandiee of the day- emploged in moking a partic olnr sort of blacking, which, he nald, would oventually superseie overy other. The reom in which we wore tubered wse moro Dhe a chop than o
 ing Congou, Pokot, Souchoog, Bohca, ganpewder, Ru aian and many other teas, all the best of the kind ;

 arion of a delightfol old lightilue sevres box ho

 TV. of Franeu, and irequently wore a aress not un-libe that of the enjebrate French monart. His car Hagen

[^24]

SPRINC SONHETS.

by pare menjamis.

The birds sing merrily; the streamiets shout With gleeful voices; tones aro all around The air is flled with a pervading sound Shight spears of emeraid glitter on the ground,
And mnny flewera, the stars of earth, are found :

And from the invisible axxay of fair thing Flows a murmur, like a far-off sea; Marelasa their husy ceherts on thgs Life universal ; 'tis all music-all, Fyom the rejoicing cry of childxen free To the swift dabh of waters, as they fall, Released by Spring to perfect liherty

The virgin, May, young, coy and blushing, trips
Along the fields with downeast, medest And, lookes,
, looking reund her with a sweet surprise,
8miles to hehold the delicate, green tips
Of tender leaves, and hnds that ope their lips Whese rival is the of the amorous air, Whese rival is the bee Oh , false and fnirThe elly is angry with nomgratefol Moy The sley is angry with ungratefal May And so sharp dirts from wisstows, throws, darts from misty quiver And the Spri apricions nympl! at eve no more she sighe nd the hright sunset flabhes from hor e yeB,

FITRIR SHERORTMI

 by ELIZabetil campbell"WHy, Grace, you sly hittle puss! I protest I shall keep a leekeut for your doings efter thie Oh, you neend't leok np eo innocent, iknow yeu; trissed her eheek.
Graeo gavo a little sorenm at the pinch, and then asked with a puzzled leok:
" What in the world do yeu mi
"What in the world do yeu mean, Mary?" "Oh, very well, my dear-that's right; put en your little airs of myetory, hut you can't help my your little airs of myetory, hut you cant help in knowing that yeu're going to be married." "Oh 1" esid Graco, with a laugh and a blumh.
'Den't deny it, Gracie.,
"I den't mean te ; furthormore, if yeu pnt me in the confeecional I'I acknowledge to being wifeelect of Alhert Edmonds, the hest, dearest, hand"Huml.
Huml internupted Mary, prolonging that anbious remark to indefinite lengths, "Yeu vain little pues. I smppeeso she thinks she has sccured tho pearl of men. Therel Don't ty inte a fit of indigratien-ho'e all your fancy painted him-I am rendy te acknowiedge it; and, jeking aside, I congratalato you with all ny heart, and wish yen every joy in the werld. I declare she's crying !
Grace, my dear ${ }^{13}$ "Hush, Sfary; I'm just so happy that if I'm not laughing I must be crying. Alhert's ceming tonight ; wen't yeu stay and see him?"
"I hepe I have a littlo more commen charity and understand the otiquette of levers a little better. No, thank yeu; happy to epend the evening with you any time after the honeymoon." "You and Alhert alwaye were such good frionds, yen know," pursued Graee, pretending net te un"en know," pursued Grace, prstending not te un"Yes.
"Yes; and that wo may remain se Yll net hore wants to eay pretty things to the girl of his heart. Geed-hyo"
Alhart paid tho promisod visit to his pretty betrothed that ovening; and thongh perhape it required the oye of love to ses all the perfections heasted of hy Grace, it wae plain to any disincomesly looke; that has curling hair was black and slosey; thet his steol-gray eyes were frank and bright, and that hie whele appearance was caleuiated to awakon enthusiasm in the heart of an admiring maiden
The young lovers passed the evening as that clase of the community generally do, and talked evcr their hittle plane for the futurotill a iato hour snd whon at laei they soparated Gruee found that sho was toe full of projects, to be executed wher

"Our Engagement is at an End."
ale became Mirs. Eumends, te think ef retiring juat then. So she pulled up her windowblinds and sat dems to look out on the quiet etrect and the hright eold etars in the dark blue sky. She had a faint hepe that she might eatch anothor glimpes of walked past their miotreeees' windowis juat to catch the glimmer of light through the ehutters, and why ehouldn't Albert? He was cartuinly as much in love as tho mestremantic hero cenld bo; hut after leoking eut on the still night, and himhing how very quiet the streot wne, for seluethiug mere than hatif an heur, she was geing to pull the curtnin down and go to hed when-

Alberis Double at the Depor.
Heaven and earth! Yee, that was ecitainily Albert. She never could he mistaken in that rico and tigure, and the wall she knew eo well, But, slas! though ehe had hoped withs as wam and beating heart that he might pa:4 up or dowa tho beating heart that he might pasi4 up or down tho street just for the pleaeure of leuking acroes at tha window, new when she eaw him her hearl turncil icy eold and stood etill within her. Yet elis eeuld net take her oyes from that sight. It whe Albert; that ehe cenld net deubt; but he never leoled near the windew, and on hie arm a woman was leaning whe was looking up in his fuce and listening eagerly to what he said. Grace had just atrength enough leit to draw the hilind and leave a emall locophole to leok tirrongh. She had no wish to he esen then, hint the would watch then. Her falso lever and his companien etapped right oppoeite her window, and then glancing up and hiddon in the shadow. With strained and amonizod gaze Grace follewed them, hut could not see them. Presently she saw a third party come eleng the street, and at the moment wh it he wait opposite the gatowny Allert dorted out-her head s.vam, and millions of stars seemed theaming bo-forch her eyes, but still sho heleld with feuful disforo her eyes, but stur sho heweld wion with a groan tinctuess all that follewed; and then, wither of anguish, ehe fell fainting on the floor. When Gruce recovered frem that prinful swoon her first thought was that she had died and awak.
oned in Hades. Surely, oh, God this could not bs the happy world in which she had seen not one clood buta few short hours before. She rose the long weary hours hefore tha dawn, oold, heart sore and elleplese
And this was the rosese to her andShe darod not think of the rest; her brain whirled, and she felt tiks maneeo wben thet whirled, and she felt hiks madnees wben that nceno returned to her. Vainly she tried to think it wzs all a hifdeouz nightmaro. Sbs wonld have it was all a hideous nightmaro. sbe wond have givon worlds to have proved-to have even be liercad it so. Impossible I It wase a crushing regivon worlds to have proved-lo have even be lierod it so Imposeible It was a cruhhing re-dity. The gas still hurned, nerer hrving been nlity. The gas still hurned, never having been turrued down since the cotored her room; and bhe lay, dreased ss she had been all that happy even ing before-the rono-ocolored dress he had admired ald crushed, and the proty head-dreas ho had hat himself brought her crumplad and spoilci. But all-nover, mever could it come baek to herhirotecu, liceding, dying it hyy in her hoary hosom, and abe felt as though it had been exchangrad for
But the morming came. Tbe bright suashine tireamed into the room, and ahamed the gas igbt; and Grace rose from tho bed whare ehe had never boforo pasecd an unquiet night. Something must he done ; ehe hed loved this man, thing must ho done; ehe had loved this man, and she dars not betray him ; she muast keep that anfol socrot vithin her own breast, and none musi graese that it was hidden there. She hathed her pallid face and awollon eyelida in cologne, and xehningod her last night'e attire for a pretty morning toilette; but all her efforts could not ooneeal the ravagee of that one ni hht of sle opleses paif. She had been too blooming and roey to pain. She had been too blooming and roey to paee unquestioned when slle presented herself at be breaiifnast table, listless, pale and haggard. " Why, Graee, dear, are you ill ${ }^{\prime}$ " was the fire "Noetion that groeted her.
"Something ails yon, child. You look drasd Cully.
relling.'
Graoe gasped, and thought she would choke in speaking tbe next words. With all hione she etrove to be ealm and emotioulese.
"Indoed, no mama. We partod the hest of nud you know I can't hive withont sleep."
"And why should you sleep hadly, Graee?
You have no eril eonecionee to keep you awake ?" Grace tried to laugh, hut eault yonto a elhair with a ghastly espresesion.
Won't yon please givo me strong, marna Wor't yon please givo me a oupmunute. Ithink it will do me good."
Mrs. Farnham passed the oup of coffee withont Farther remark, and Graee gulped it down at the riak of eculding and choking hereelf.
Unahle to appear like her natural self, Grace at wast adtrowledged that she was not well, and on that plea spent tho greater past of the day in her nxious friends, although the task the gaze of herself wae a hard one. Bat it was impoasihle after what ehe had seen that ever she o ould he the wife of Edmonds, so with a dreary hoort elhe seleoted all the little gifta-the pratty bittle seleoted all the litte gittt-the pratty hittlo trinkets ho had given her, and lie e enddered as都 At last the long day drew to a close; and in the her lover. She went down, carrying in her hand a bittle casket containing every gift ehe had recuived from him. Her father was in the room, and ehe wasochiged to mnet Edmonds with an affectation of wasohliged to mnet Edmonds with an affiectation of her ueval manner; bat she was a poor hand at her ueual manner; bst she was a poor hand at diessimalation, and he saw at onoe that socmething na the trouble.
"Why, Mry. Farrbam,'" he said, " yon diann't eay hat Grace was ill. Poor hitlle girl: What is the Grace could not command her vocies suffciently to answer, and fortunately her father came to her assistanne.
"Grace was ill in the morning, hut I think she feels better now. I meant to have told you so, ond that reminds me I called at your roome, hut vas tola yon hadan't been home lnst night at all." Oruee gave a wild look at tha faco ehe had so oved to gaze npon, and eaw that Edmonde heoveged avident confusion, though be rullied immediately.
nd he enid noplied "I didn't go home hat night;" To Graee this was ouly further proof, had any ben needdd, of the scene ehe night before.
Mr. Farnhan
Grace allowed the door just timime to antor; anter himi when she aroee, and with a firm manner, aithough an unstendy voice, seiid ivo you for the pain you have canped ino, and oow we will part for sver. Harre is the lithe ansket oontaining all your gifte. I return theme with all tho vows of love you have made to me, and I pray God to forgive you as I do."
Sho held the Sho hell the caskect tomards him with averted He did not tako it nor for son men.
mako any roply; ;at last he spoke in a low snp"Giraee, I have heard you without interruption, hocanso I was so completely thunderatruck thal
I eovidn't command mpy voice, and uow will you oliligo nic hy como explonation of his scene,

He laid his haude nyon her shouldere, and

foll from her hands
way to her sorrow.
way to her sorrow,
ohb, Albert-Albert-yon have hroken my
 "deceive me.
"Grace, this language is insulting."
"Ah, mel It is true, and that's worse,
What does this mean? You shall explain
"I will exphain nothing-you finsult me hy this innoeenee ; 1 am too gantle, hut night have gueseed it would be dai: evrous to stop spposita my window," she added with a tonch of "Grace
"Gracs, have loot your senees ?" said Albert, what you mean, Gruce lookod at him with an oxprosesion of hor-
or. Snch brazen effroutery appalled her; it aleo disgueted her
"Dear heav
"Dear heaven! And this is the man 1 loved" no said. "Go away-" o away, sir ; leave me P"
"I will leave you, Grace, and you may thank yourself for it. It isn't in human patience to bear what I have received from yon to-night. In never will enter this house ngain till yon send for mee and so, good-hyo ;" and with a the rocom with a haughty step.
It soon hecame known in the family-though Grace only told her mother-that all was over hewreen her and Albert; and it was pretty generally oujeeturpd amous friends and acquanletees, na came over the once blooming, roee--heeked and hright-eyed Grace Farmham, Sho grew paler day hy day, and waeted to a shadow, and all the day hy day, and waeted to a shadow, and all the nedical aid procured hy fonà paronts was useloes. medical aid procured hy fond paronts was usclicee.
An ontire change of ecene wae at last preseribed as ontire change of ecene waly thing likely to reetors her ; and after much persuasion, Grace coneonted to pay a vieit
a cousin Kiving among the New Hampshire to a thils.
It wa
It wae now ibree months since that last interviow with Albert, and though she had seen bim once or twiee simee, they had exchanged neither Word nor saintation einoo that night. It was now the first day of Spring, and the beauty of the country throngh whieh sbo was whirled along, the nd os she approached Littleton, the view of the hills in the distance filled her with admiration, that for a time made her forget all else. Her father, who was familiar with the eountry, pointed fother, who was familiar with the eountry, pointed out all its heanties, and seeing with pleasure the out all its heauties, and seeing with pleasure the effect it had upon her, he ueed all his information offect it had upon her, he eees all his information to entertain his pale litte girl, and make the journey pleasent. At the station Mr. Farmham found his hrother and a carriage wisiting for tbem; and as they were driven towards his house, some miles in the oountry, the gentle April hreezzes, and the dolicious odor of the grass did more to restore the roses to Grace's cheeks, inr. Farmam dechared, than all the the doctor's etuff sbe had takeu. He than all the the doctor's eturf sbe had takeu. He congratulated himmell, however, that she had not made the eame discovery at the etation that ha had, for atter arranging her comfortaluly in the carriage, he stepped baek into the waiting-room for a heary shawl that had been left tbere, and felt certain that he savy Albert Edmonds leaving by the opposite door, in company witb a hand| some, |

| :--- |
| $\substack{\text { some, } \\ \text { arm. } \\ \text { Mr. }}$ |

Mr. Parnham remained hut a few days with his dnughter, and then left her under the new regi-
Grace had not been in New Hampsbibe more than a month before the desirad effect began $w$ how itsolt ; either the voleco der corrow wa pation had tended to obliterate it, for ahe heeame merry, rosy and almost happy again. Still she was not altogeiher eured; the wound atill pained her, and now and then when sho came across some mention of her it hied afreel.
One evening early in May, after reading tho last lottor recsived from home; she was sitting glone
in her rocm, endly musing. she had rotired for the night, and when ehe found herself by the window thinting of Abert, she was irresiatibly reminded of another sed venening when she had heen co enploped. It was a mila, aweet night; ahe had co enploged. It was a mld, sweet night; ahe had no lamp, brit the moonlight streaming in throngh the halt-open window made the room light as day. Tbers is 8 ecriain melancholy plensure in living parted, and Grace made no effort to control her thoughts, letting them wander al will over the memory of jogous meetings and interviews witb the lover loet to her for ever. Suddenly the murmur of vciees interrupted her reverie, and with feeling of ouriosity sbe leaned out of the windowr, Her uncle's house was in 9 quiet and lonely part Ker uncle's house was in a quiet and lonety parly of the comitry, ond she felt eertain all the family had retired. Who could it be, then, that was abroan at that hour? At tirst sho onw nothing but the moonlit raad, the shadow of the fencees, and the roeee not yet in bloom. Bnt presently ont of the shadow of the house two puople emiont of the slundow of the erged into the moonlight.
Those figares! Coald sho over forget citber? and sheme. Yes, it wae Albert, and with him leaning on his armas as hhe hadi scon her four months before, the eanno handsome, bolddlooking woman. Xow, as then, the was istaning eagerly to somothing ho was eaying, end with a pang of jealousyfining ho wase eaying, and with a pang of jeatousyfor aho loved hime etill-- Graeo eavw how his head was beat towards her; how eagerly and ten then the could well gueas the expreesion of it ; and how well the knew that stately, well-knit figure. She coverod her faca with her hauds, and then waddealy springing up with a wild exclamation, wondor, hope and diamay hlended in her tons, ehe dartod over to bor writiug-doek, dresw forth a letter, and keoping it clntehed in her hand, with tha other lighted her lamp, and then wiihh trembling other lighted her lamp, and then wiih trembling fingers unfolded the paper and looked over it. It was from her hrother, and on the second paga wss a eentence which she read over and over, as thongh fiecinated by ths words, yet they were simpla enough:
-the-way, Grace," it rend, "I ealled to-day on Abert Edmonde- 1 have alwayy remaine friendo with him, you know, notwithstanding youi fellow has had a ald neeidstrt-he foll througha faty trapdoor in the store, that some unlucky chance left open, and has broken his leg. The doetor eays be won't he able to move for six weelks. He geems in very lows to tita, nnd do yon krow, yo hoartless bittle connette, I think hoc's grieving about yon."
she pansed tima that Grace read tbis paragrap
"IP Albert is lying ill at home, unahle to mowe how have I eeen bim to-night, in company with that woman, under my window
At hasta sndden efrulgezce of light gpresa over her fooc. radiating it like the eastern sky wheu the sun have rison, and again and again she kivee
the letter in her hand as a motbor might kika loet child restored to her after hope was gone. "Oh, what a fool I have been "" were her worda, when at laot ohe could epeat. "What a orazy fool
I have mads myself. Shall I ever he forgiven? can I ever forgive myseif? How dared I refue eelfosuffieient pridet I mo pmished for it and deserve it. But hell forgive him. Oo, hon aebamed I am. Ill nevor dare to tell him the in justice I have done him-the cruel inealt of my wicked thoughte, and I who loved him so-and ye it seemed the evidance of my eyeo-it was so And ill tho
And all the time that theoo diseomnested word Farrham, slop waa huetling eboutt the room, eol lecting etray articies of drose, folding them and pucking tbem moto her trank which stood rendy to receive them. But how gay and sparkling ghe felt ail the time; and it secmod a plensur heraeli the most odions reproaches.
At last cierything was packed, and the truni to soo if all wee ready for departure in the mom ing, for she had instantly determined to leave for home in the first train of next morning. No furthe need for New Hampahire ocenery and eookery, anc At firat she couldn't ompeetey cured.
At firt she couldnt t ileep with joy; hut at last towards morning, she foll into a doep, delightfun aginablo hridecakee and white fayore
If Albert would only lorgive her eha would let no further time go by-abe mould not leave oppor Tbere was oonsternation in the family when Grace announced her intention of losvng then that maning But entreaties fell on denf earthat moming. But entreaties go she would, and go she did. And tbat garmo gat evening thers was surpriee at Mir. Farmhan's a Ho unexpected return of Graee; hat nlso delight trouhle-that no mysterious sadness any longer

George, "nid Grace, drawing her brother aside hefore she had been home an hour, "you must take me to Alberte room instantly. Tve made such a dreadful mistake-" But, Gracie dear-"
"Ther's no ase in refusing mo, George. Pul go alone if you do ; hut I muet and elall sea Ahert befiore another duy.
"Vory well, you Bitile whirlwind, sinee there's o stemming you, I suppose I must go along with Grace thanked him with kieses, and a declaration that he was her dearest hest of brothera!
A ebort time later the hrother and sister found hemselvee in tho sickroom of young Edmonds He didn't evince surprise at seeing Grace, but took her hand with a quiet and friendly graep. "I knew you would eome some time, Grace," he said.
"Pargive me, dear Abert," eaid Grace, trembing and with tears. "I have been oruely wrong, don't lenve us; I want you to hour me alea." Sbe paueed, searcely knowing how to proeed, then burst forth:
and love I made what I thought a horrible discovery that would for ever eeparate ns, sitting at my window about half an hour after you wore gone, I euw a man and woman pass up tha etreet, gone, $I$ enw a man and woman pass up tha etreet, nud then acrete themselvee in a gateway oppoeito and then sacrete themselvee in a gateway oppoeite our house. I could have made outh that the man was yon, Albert; almost immedintely a third party jump ont, assandt him, overocme and roh him, and "Una, in oompany with tho womana, disappear,"
"Tpon my word Fm mnoh obliged, Grace," terrupted Abert, turning ecarlet, "and so yo "Don't he eo angry, Albert. It whe the most I don't heiieva I would be ahle to tell yon apart at

"Most uupleasant thinge these donhles," eaid George, who could not ece the whola thing in any but a humoroua bight. "I dcclara I wouldn't iiko to have one adicieted to gach hitile yreake as ap propriating otber people' evaluablese and oo forth.
" papa that you hadn't been home all that nigbt and you seemed confussed too-and-and-iI see. And that beema to give a deepe coloring to my supposed guilh. I wess a little eon-fused. I hed spent that night with a lagal friand, fubed. Thed spent that night with a lagal friand, wbo was also antend of your fatheress in in draming senting you on your wedding day. I had s momentary ouspicion that mir. arnham had ascou"Ohise, oo-" Albert
"Yon're a sweot girl, Grace", oxelaimed George, at this point; "if this is what they eall woumaris love I hops, I may never havs nny closer experisuce Poor F
Poor Grace was already overcome with grief and mortidication, and answered hetween sobss
"Don't you be eo hand on me, Georrs isn't your affiair, and $\Gamma$ ve suffered onongb, $\bar{m}$ Albert was melted in a moment.
"Keep quiet, you George-you don't understand "Thasthing abont girle"; Heaven
"

-

"Never mind him, Cracis ; Im mnch too happs co crre for what the says. And now fust toll mo how you satiefied youreelf as to my iacontity. I own to be a little eurious on that point."
Grace related what the
"I wonder whit it "I wonder who it can be p" mused Albert, when ne had concluded; "and where he'll tum up
That haet "wouder" was answered thus:
A weck lator Mrr. Farmbam reecived a letter frow his brother, concratulating himeelf that Grace his brother, congratulating himeely that Grace had left them in time to avoid being frightonea hy most daring nttempt to rob the house on the very night after her departure. The thief bad beci asught in the act, and mas nowin the county jail:
and the lotter eonelnded: "the raecal beara tlo: most astonishing resemblanee to the young fellow met at your house last winter."
When young Farnham read this he ingisted on aking a run down to Littleton just to soe tbus st first sight was so great that George was pertirat sight was so great that George was perfeotly contounded, and no longer wondered at his ister's mistake.
But on cloeor examination Mr. Joe Perkina hail mown, and one of them had a shight equint , in height, bearing and general appoarance, the George returned in time to wedding: and eongratulated hie trat bis sister's Hho was still ohiliged to movo on erutchece, " "that, he other fellow had been sentenced to Stat: Prison; and I advine you, Albert," he added, "t well; for youle will your leg ineiste on gotting quitu: figurement to kieep that follow from geiting you rer he gets ont Albert's leg did insiat on being quite reeovered; but "that fellow," poor wrotch1 never got him into any trouble, as le died in prison long hefac is terni had expired.

TRAITS IN THE CHARACTER OF

 THE ELEPHANT.Enizenasts not only ohey their keeper wher

 mited their ofrorta, using their trunks in a very edic.
tivo way, which wore protected from injury by tisck instant gajanet the etrongcst part or the wall producing violent sud roitoroted abocks, whule they carcfuly walenhed the eifectsteo of thocir blowe. As soon an it wais ovident that the wail was in a falling condition they ovident that the wail was in a falling condition thry male together ono powarful afort, gad in an matait ooth drew back thiat they might not be infured, when, both drew backl that they might not be indurod, when,

mmedistely after, the whole wall carno thualoring to the grouna,
To the honor of the esgecious enimals, we may añd that they are vory grateful for tindinces ehown to the lil. hat they are vary gratitul for kindnees ehown to theill. A eoldiar portion of hie rum to ono of them every pas,-

READY FOR DUTY.

ny niss wansen.
Dafrr-powr-nnuz came np in the cold,
Throngh the brown mould, Athongh the March brecezees blow ween on her face,
Atthough the white snow liy on many a place.
Dafiy-down-dilly had heard underground
Daily-down- The eweet rushing sound
Of the streams, as they hurst off their whito winter of the whiains-
the whiatling spring winds and the pattering rains.
"Now then," thought Daffy, doep down in her "It's timo I ebould etart "" So she pushed hor sor frozen ground, Suite ap to the enurface, and thon she looked round.
Thero was snow All abont her, gray olonds orer${ }^{3 d_{,}}{ }_{\text {Th }}$
Thon how do you think Daffy-down-dilly felt, When the eman would not shine and the ice would

Cold weather!" thought Daffy, still workivg away; "The earth's hard to day 1
'Tbero's hat a half farch of my lowere to be ecen,
And two-thirds of that is mors yellow than green! "I can't do menel yet ; but PII do what I can. For unlose I Its woun I mage to lifl up my heed, Tbo poopo will think that the spring hereelfs doad.
So, littlo by littlo, ehe brought her leavee out, nd then her brigbtered about;
And then her brigbt flowers began to unfold,
Till Daffy stood robed in her epring grocen and goi
O Dafly-down-dilly 1 so brave snd so true
Wish si were hke yon!
And holding forth courage and besuty togethor

THE LESSON OF AN EVENING.

BY arrs. syges.

Lous Lassing stood beforo a tall mirror in her bouddoir, one winter evening, adjusting a roee in her haix. She was a maiden of rere charma ; and as she stood there in bor henutiful garto of whits and pink, delicately and ulmoet imperceptilly whits and pink, delicately and ulmoet impereeptihly spanglod with eilvery threads among the wavy folde; with her soft cheek glowing in damaesk oveliness, her hright eye beaming with heallh and happiness ; her bttlo hand, sot of at the wriet mith a goiden bracelet, delicately intortwining tho rose'e estem amid the sunny currs of her huirnow inserting the tip of a dainty fiuger beneath the surface, now gantly patting the flower witb
the soff, white palm-her lovely nook, turned to the moet unorring ehade of perfoction, hent a little on one side; hor coral lipe a breath apart, reveal porial; shie eeemed a model for a painter to look upon, and, looking, feast his artist soul, Near her was a maidon whose plainer garb and lees polifhed air bespoke the domostic, yot, in whoee faco oue could not fail to note an oxpression of gentle goodnese such as one seldom meets, even among tho ehoiocst of the sex. She stood gazing with affeotionsto admirntion upon her little mistrees, awaitiog any motion hy which the maiden trees, awaing any motion hy which thi night exprees a wiah for hor assistance.
The room was one that denoted it the
The room was one that denoted it ths abode of wealth and elegsnce, Nothing wae wanting in the wealth and elegsnce, Nothing wae wanting in the apartmont that oould give comfort, luxury and ture that hung in framo of maseive gold, to the rateful drone, upon the rolvet rug hefore the blazing grate, all denoted tho presence of the master weslth, and the mistress elegonce,
"There, Mary," ealid the fair girl, as ehe turned from the mirror to her companion, "can it he bottered ${ }^{\text {No, }}$ Nul could he sweetor than your appeaty; "nothing you sought it, I am sure yon conpearnace bring aill Boston to your icot, to sue for your amiles. But your glory, I know-and I am tbankful to know it-ie not to win the applanse and admiration of the genoral cye. Your object has a nobleneee in it, in scoking to ouly glacden tho eyes of Preston such good and gontle eyos as his, How I rejoice in the chance that hroyght him to your s suit I It It gives mo a gratefnlpride to feel that Lnls is sought hy one ao noible.
The hlush that companion thus praised Preston Lowville, madotho madeu appoar still more lovely; and as ahe gazed into the blasing fire, and murnured: "He is truky noblet" her eye was lit by that pocaliar gleam which oxqnisite happiness and content hetrayeth. Lula Lawsing, reader, was not s heroine of such remarkabls traits that she nover yielded to the influenoce of disappointment, or aught elee, suffering them to ruflle the tranquility of her mind. Keenly the lows of being to say that she was not elated by pralae and affection, and cast down hy diasappointment or roproot, in an equally sensitive degrec. This, all said, was Lulan's g . toest fanlt if feult it juatly misht he deomed if frul it justly might he deomed, he was to ever, of hor educatiou; and few would have passed throngh tho course of edneation she passod thirough, and graduated as pure. The only child rom her infancy to her maidenhood-was it not ndeed atrange that her vanity, eaprice and selfighDees were not her leadiug attribntes? Seldom is the flower nounshed in suoh a hoibed, ne pure, ae hoalthy-hearted and we uweet, as Lnia Lansing
was.
Bnt who whe Preaton Lowville? Start not, reader, when I say-a mecbanic. I know that me talo hy this shocking revelation-yet Preeton
Lowville, the fispored lover of the peerlcss Lüla Lowville, the favored lover of the peerlces Lula
Lansing-the admired of all who admire talent, Lansing-the admired of all who admire talent grace, courteey, kindness, honesty sind philen-thropy-the friend of the oppreseed and the enemy of evil doers, wse a mechanic, wbo trimmed volumes and ruled paper in a bookbindery ten hours of each day in which he was not otherwies employed.
It may, however, redeem my narrative in ths estimation of Sir Soft Codfish, from the odor of estimation of Sir Soft Codish, from the odor of to know that Preston's father had heen a professional man. And while his health had permitted him to do eo paetor Lowville had read from the Book of Life to as contented and respectahle a eongregation as any village of the size of A-would afford. Bnt, As his frame began to weate would aftord. But, as his frame began to waste away, and his voice to give forth the hollow sound of the sepulchre, in his sermons, parson Lowvilte twrned from his flock, gave hie Bible into more youthful hands, and weut, as did his father Adam, to till the soil, until it should bo his time to pass to till $t$ a wray.
Shortly after this, Preeton, having finiehed his academie course, yielled to his father'e mavics and hecome intereeted in the details of his trade, and worked as ono who loved lahor.
Lula and Mary sat awhile, talking hy the light of the blaze in the grate, that shed a eheert of the blaze in the grate, thst shed a eheertul glimmer upon the luxurious furniture of tos glimmer upon the luxurious furniture of the ohamber, and eoon the former dcscended to the drawing-room to avait her gueste.
drawing-room to await her gueste.
They came with happy faces with loud convereation and merry langhter, for they were all young, intimately soquainted and thoroughly imbued with thst free-hcartedness that ehove gentility of a pure quality. The more polished the society is, the less formabity there is polished the society is, the less formabity there is in it. This has sver heen found true, where in it. This has sver heen found true, where observstion has sought for ita confirmstion or demal
It is not my purpose to describe the manner in which the ovening wis passed by the party pre-eent. The description of one suoh soene will meet the wante of a acore. But as ths evening wore sway one or two of the guests noticed a shede of displeasure resting upon the gentle Lulas counIt vanighed quich they were at a cuests peeeed jest or a plossaut remark with her; but it as quiekly returned a moment after.
We poseess the power to explain away the mystery, See where, leaning upon a marhlo etatue yonder, the fair Lula holds converse with her mald companion, Mary dhat can he the reason of Preston's aheence? impaticnce olouded her lirow. "Can it he possihle that he ehrinks from mingling with my associstes? Truly ho is most unressonablo to allow such focish modeety to causo me so much pain. Soe how unhappy I am, how uncourteonsto my guests, how rude in spite of myself, when, truth knowe, I am most anxions to make those around me happy It is now nearly ten o'olook, and his tsrdy footsteps arc not yet hoard. I am ready to blame him for "Luls," uttered Mary, respectiolly yet sarneetly, reply "I Istress paused, thus eevaing to invil reply, "I sm sorry to eeo you eo unhspppy to-night Truat ms, my lady, there ie some good reaeon for Trust ms, my lady, there is some good reaeon for know, evsr since his father found me, a hittle girl, weeping heeide my desd mother's couch, and tools me to his home; snd I spesk confidently, Lula, whsn I say that Iknow his absence hae eome other osuse than that false modesty you would impute cause than that false modesty you would impute to him- not one shade of which ever psssed over hienoble nature. No, Lula, Preetonis notabaehed in any $p$ know. $p$
To hor maid's enthueiastic speech Lula made no reply. She wandered off among her guests, her heart ill at esso the while, and her eye turning often towards the door, in the hope that it migh be greeted wit hut in yain.
It was not long ere the awhappy Lula found herself again petulanty pouring her in mar into the ever gentle Mary'e ear
"It is provoking!" wee her almost angry ex preesion as she turned awry and pessed to window. She disappearcd within the folds of the heavy curtain, and pressed her he the cool panes of polished glass, Bonghed through the streeta, A biting wind and rattling at aashes, while tho olear, hright ing the atreet almost as light ns day. Snddeniy Lula's gaze was rivetted hy heholding, stretobed at length in the pathwny helow her, the form of a who she might he, when her eve ohaneed to be caught hy a manly form which came rapidly down the street, on the opposite side. In the shade she conld not distinguish who it was, yet something in the gait arreated her attention. In a moment it the gait arreated her attention. In a moment it had resched a point directly opposito, and paused then came swiftly forward, as if bent for the pros trate elilld.
Lola's eye hrightened, and her hoart best quicker, as ehe recognieed Preaton Lowville! The youth oame up to the little giri, raised her in his arma, and, without a word, passed rapialy up It slide from the fork of a moment for Lula to ook where Mary sat, to the curtann, 20 seek the her quickiy away, without disturhing the morriArrived in a room adjowing the hall, Lula sald:
"Mary, put on your hood and cloak; quick and come with me. I have Been him! !" and come with me. I have seen him!"
"Who " ${ }^{\text {" }}$ aid Msry, qnietly, procsedin eame t hsetdy arrayed hereelf in garmente befittin she wintry night, and sallicd forth, followed hy Mary, "It is rash, Mary, I know," said she, as they me that into the etreet; "bnt something telle that which will be for my own good."
silently, hat mach surprised and Silently, hut much snrprised and wondoring, Mary hastened after her mistress, who sped over the pavement as if gifted with tha winge of the wind, until, as they tarued a corner, Lula alackan ed her paee, turned to her companiou, and eaid: "Do yon see him?
"Whers ?"
"Yonder; that dueky shadow is his; he hes a They had not long to follow him. Preston soon the meinto short alley which branebed off from and as the two maidens also turned tho corner, moment after, they beheld him entor a hovel at the roadside, and elooo the door after him. "I have hardly the courage to go farther Lula," said Mary, with a sabdned and tremulon roice, "Had we not hettor return?"
"Return" "
glesmed in her blue ege; "roturn? fire Where Preston Lowville leads on, Lula Lensing is not sfraid to follow $l^{\prime \prime}$ and the excited lass advancing, tapped at the door whioh had closed upon Preeton.

A weak female v

And almost in the samo hreath Preston's mandy roies said:
And Lula lifted the lateh and entered.
Preston aroeo in astoniebment 1 Lula pansed, eqnally astonished, to view the scene before her,
whilo Mary closed the door and stood in the

Before

Before a dilapidatod fireplace, in whieh now burned a ruddy fame, lay the burdsa walter had evidently just deposited thore; and in a corne near, on a low hed, reclined tho corpse of a nian whose earthly light had ovidontly just turned out, with a smilo upon hie iostures, and an open Biblo lying on the hicd by his end. A stool, constitus hed, a tshlo, oom,
"Can it he possible," eaid the astonished young
"Can that I hebold Lula Lansing ?"
"But wbat hronght you bere, Lula ?" asked Preston, stepping forward, and sesting her in a a chair. "I am surprisod beyond measura." "And well, in truth, you mey be, Proston," baid the maiden, now for the first time seomingly appreciating the strangenese of her position. can hardly myeelf tell what Providence led me to boer a child from before my father's door, I was moved to follow you; and I find you acting tho ing, in my eomfortahle parlors, of your neglect How ahashod am I to find that in neglocting me you were ministering to the wanta of thoose whe selfishness. Had I known your presence in this me a vord of complisint ?" A tear etood in the tested the sincerity of her words. She had leamed a lesson, And hy-and-hye, when they wallsed home together, Lula hegged her her ; and he anawered :
"Yes, Lula, as my wife, you are forgiven."
Luls'a hosom for the rest of that blissful evening hut the leseon was not forgotton.

ACTION AT PINE KNOB, CA.

Death of the Rebel Gen. Poll.

Hookor advanced the 2d division of the $20 t h$ corp under Gen. Goary, to a positlon oppoatto to that ocoupicd bythe rebele, nnder Tibut. Gen. Pollt, who bnt Anding it almont imponalble to dislodge them by an infantry a wanult, Knapp's Veteran Poaneylvanto bittery wan browhtor

 below fred at the group hut miseed. Kmappt bationy
then fred, and, from the confuilion, evindunty sonts

THE INVASION OF MARYLAND IN

Wr give in this isane sketches of the invasion of Maryiand in 1865 . This brief campasien is in enme respects one of the moot remarkable moverimants of the war, from its beldness, the force omployed, the slid with which it drove bucic or avolded our miseribly wcatered troopn in the Shemandozh mad bore steadily down on Waehington, till Wallace, with his hanifulu, gave them sech a lessom on the banks of the Monocacy that they recolled, balted, pansed and loet all their edvaniage.
 aiph equal in numbers to that of Besuregard at Boil
Bun, ond fare cuparior to hir is materiec, hed by experi:

 and 等

 mind

JOSEPH LESURQUES

Tre case of this unfortanste man has onco wore been before the French Chambert, and allhough $t$ in 60 ycars oid, has excled much pubile attention.
it to the it fe the mort remarkabile case of mlataken identity upou record, and eome notice of it may prose intaresting to cur readera. Ho was oxecuted in $172+$ for the anle ged cimee of robbing the Lyons mall and murdering the courier, bnt under elrcumstances of donbt and dimculty which would have rindered he conviction at the present time tropeeselble. The esec has becs mado sub. sent time trapoesable. The wace has beca mado pre crrient to the purposes of the novellst and the dramatht both in France and England : but eveu thelr nention could add notbing to the borriblo intarect of stanco soon told. In 1791 the Lyons mall mae robbed of 64,000 franes ( $(22,160)$ and tho courter hrutally mur

 perilhed in the enowe in Kusish One of hite dauphtiters

 The claim of reetitution has not boen permitted to sleep Something hid been doup by provoup Govero-menta, by paying small portion of the indemanity

 aw in Europe wouid now pass the hentence of doath, sind ceataninly tach bantonce would not bo tarned into

THE CONTRAST.

WE sit st heme, nor feel that they
Who fight upon tho distant plain Are falling faster doy by day,

We lightly walk the buay street Where rade and gain roul swiftly o And die ss it is woo.
The trampet calle them in the night To dio for Freedom ; and the boom Ot eannon frem the fortrexsed height still ealls them to their doom.

Unmoved wo read of how they foll To ehield the starry liag from shamo; ; Dauntlose through starma of
In the red battle's flumel

Brave hanrts are beeting for us thero, Amid tho contice't feverish breuth; Is asid for you, in death.
They Ke upen the lonely hill Or blackenod plain in dreamlese sleep, Their reast etornal Never
They wake, like us, to weep.
 Their blood will consecrsto
Their lives so nohly won.

THE MYSTERY OF "THE PLACE:" a story in thriee parts.
bY J. w. WATSON.
part in-chapten im.
If was midd.day, and not one apeck of sunshining whon the train fumed up to the Stanfisld station nd dropped Isabelle. It was cold and raw, a tepped from the cars the probpect was anything but oheering. There was the wretched passengers room oi the depot, fireless, and simelling fearfily of tobncee, two or three aury, two or three gaping rustics ; whlle one stupid-leoking station-keeper was paying particular ittontion wa pair of English-whiekered youthe, who, hy tho array of gune, flehing-rods and small waree they akd in possession, had evidently come down to ale all the feathered end finny tribes hy storm
Until the station-keeper had got tlurough his adUntil the station-keeper had got through his ad niration of these fellows, aud gone with them to netghboring tavern, from whence he eame hack viping his mouth and looking more flushed in the iooe, Isabelle oould expect no attention nor yo xpeet to move. Then she ssked that gontleman
"Do sou know where Colonel Swinton's
"Be you a new gel oomin' np thar ?" was the Isahelle was forcod to smile, in spite of her an
"No; but I am anxions to get up there."
The station-keeper eyed her all over with a sort of doteetiv
"Can yon tell me how I can get up to the place?
"Can yon tell me how I can get up to the place?
"Wall I karkilato yon kin walk np "bout a good as any way."
"Is there no carriage to be had?
"Wal, thar's Jim Homes is got a kerridge, but then he ain't around, and won't be till to-morrow night. He was drunk np to Davis's last night, and tif there's no way toride, can you ger one to earry this carpethag, then?
"What do yon karkilato to give for kerrying it? was the station-master's inquiry, looking at the bag as thongh he was counting ite about to offer for the job himself.
"Whatover you think is right," wias Isabelle's
"Wall if yon want to Wall if yon want to give half a dollsr, I karAnd so the mattor wase it up for ye ?"
startod with a crippled negro for her guide, the bag elung npon his beck, and three miles of dreary, muddy road to traverse on foot to join her husband.
For a mile the negro trndged on withont a word, but then, perhaps the whiakey-for which he had Lipnlated before starting-begioning to act, he companied with haugha, to express the goodness f his feelings; and then, finding that these domonstrations had no offect on Isahelle, he stopped "Yttle in his pace, and said, in a solemn voices -might, miegis, is yor
At first Isabelle was not disposed to indulge black Jim in an auswer, and by not doing so at once shnt off all chance of his entering upon any conversation; but a glanoe at the negroa harmense face removed what fear she might feel in being lone with him on an onfregnented road, and abe anawered :

Yes, I shall stay thare to-night.
All mght, miesis ?"
Yea.
The negro's eyes dilated to an extraordinary ire, and with a look st Iaahelle, as though gazing his last on a doomed one, he said: "Dem yar ghoeta ketoh jer, sartia, miseis. Dey'a werry had up dar Irabollo could not helpemiling at the earneetnese of black Jim, and asked him:

How do you know about these ghosts ? ${ }^{\text {p }}$ anybody know 'hout ghoeta? I saw'd'em, missia
"Did nnybody soe them heside yourself?" Is2-belle said, withont ahsolutely wiehing to call the voracity of black Jim into qucstion.
"Oh, jimka! jus hear dat 1 Anybody seed 'em "Oh, jinks! jus hear dat 1 Anybody seed 'em sides nyeclf! Gness eherybody sed em a aidos
me. Why, mibens, dem yar ghosts trabols all ober one ob, 'em. De one I seed got a yeller dress on and run like finn, Elierylody knows dat Kernel and run like finn, Eleerylod Swinton's plece is hannted"
Isabelle did not feel inclined to eontinuo the conversation at this rato of information, und therefore kept rilonce sad trudged on for the baisnce of the three miles.
At last they arrived in front of a house, bearing ancient hnild. The lower part of the hove w ancient hnild. from the gable ap, wood. Its age showed that the original huilding might date for B contury, but all exporto would be at fault to tel! s century, but all exporto would be at fault to tol at what periods the different wings snd addition were completsd. Her guide posted himeelf at ricketty gate leading no offer to open it.

no offer to open it. "Go in 1 " sald Imabelle.

"Dey keepe a dog yar, miesis," was the anawer

of her squire.

"Give me the bag, then," she asid, sllpping the money into his hand, and taking from him his money into his hand, and $t$ burden; "I will go ius alone.
burden; "I will go in alone," The negro, with a grinof satisfiction, relinquished look of wide-mouthed wonder, he made a sidelong dance into the road, and naid:
" Good-bye, missis! Look out whar yer gwing," Isabelle, by great exertion, pushed opon the gate, and was for a moment startled to see a grea Englieh matiff bounding down the path, with yelps of attack. The dog chme on to her very feet, yolps of attack. The dog ctame on to her very feet, but, seeng no signs of torror, followed submissively up to the house, where a knoek at the door, after a long waiting, brought a stout Irish girl, of s vacant face, who stared unknowingly at the new after a long waiting,
a vacant face, who stared unknowingly at the new comex.
"I "I want to 8
Arst apealing.

Arst apeaking. The gut only  The gixi only gazed in a vild manner, as though

was foreign to her.
ot hear me? I wan
Swinton. Tell him bo direetly
The givi dropped the
The gini dropped the knoh of the door in a frightened way, and stepped back a pace or two, but at an impatient movemont from Isabelle stid way through a door on the alcovo, and left her ninutes when the sound of a step was heard, and tall, grsyhaired woman, of eevero faco, came slowly down a flight of stairs leading into the hall, and towards her, as thongh sho would, by the piereing power of her cold gray eyes, look her lhrough, nd know at a glance the meaning ordinary an appearance as a visitor.
"What is your business ?" she

"ally.

"My business is to see Colonel Swinton," IBa- belle answered, proudy. elle answered, proudy.

"Colonel Swinton cannot be seen, madame." "I will see him. You can go to him and say that hie wite
"Phew
Bnt there was a changa in the hatchetty face of the elder lady in A momont. A rigid smile came over her countenance, and she said:
"I bog your pardon, madnme. I did not know Swinton's wife. I did not know that the colonel Swinton's wife. I did not know that the colonel ospocted you. He is very ill; the doctor hes expected you. He is very ill; the doctor hes ordored quiet and reposo, and he has declared that he will see nobody, and so I am only following orders. Please wall in."
And the woman threw open the door of an un-aired room, and, moving forward in the dark pushed the shuttor, lotting in, perhaps, the firs ight it had known for monthe.
"Colonel Swinton has been down here for two weeks," she continued; "but he has been ill all the time, aud I am bur,
"It malkes yon.
"It makes no differcnee," was Issbelle's re bnt I wish to see Colonel Swinton directly," en she divested herealf of her honnet and shawl, and thrsw them upon the sofa.
"I will go to the celonel and announce you," was the woman'a reply, moving towards the doen
"No; I will go to him now. What is your name?"
"Millor
madame, madame. I have lived in this house, Colonel Swinton's grandmother, and knew the oolonel when he was a boy.
Miller went forward at an unwilling pace in obedience to Mrs. Swinton's movement, until she obedienee to MKrs. Swinton's movement, until ah had reached the becond floor, where she stoppe again, and seld
"Perhaps yon'd better let mo go in and tell the Isebelle paid no sttontion to the euggeation, bmi puiling by her, entored a large, sombre, darikened rgom, with an old-fashioned tiled chin noy place, aud furniture that secmed somewh too good and too well kept for the honse of farmer. It took almost a minuto for hor oyes to hecome accustomed to the dim light, hut whe they did they esw a figure lying on a bed in th fnr coruer. A motion of her hand dismissed Millor, who weat away with a donhtful frown, and Isubeile seated herself beside the bed whereon lay her Eleeping husband. Almost an hour she set witching his nueasy alumbers, a tossing, restiess, "Miller, arink!"
Isabelle took the pitcher from the table, filled the glass and gave it to the outatretehed hand. Ho drank withont raising his oyea, and, handing Leahella in tha dime room.
"Who is that $?^{"}$ he asid, in a quick, commanding She drew near to the bed and leanad over him hat inatantly st arted back ot the sudden movement " made towards her.

Georgo, do yon not know me ?'
What-what-what does this mean, Issbelle? "George, joing here?"
George, jon wers aiek and I eame to yon,
Do not blame me, I must bee you snd I must atay
"Stay with mel Yon cannot stay with me.
Ring that bell. You must go sway immediately. Casbelle, you do not luow what yon are doing by " What I am doin
"What I am doing! What does this meen? Is it a matter of oriminal import for a wife to join her hushad when he is ill? George, what do you wean by tolling me this?"
"Mean ! Isobelle 1 I mean that you must go "way instanily," and Colonel Evinton ast up in the hed, with his arm stretohed ont, and his finger the hed, with his arm
"I will not go," she suid. "I came here not oly to attend you because you wrote that you were thl, hut because I felt that I mnat see you, fature, and know what I have to expect."
He dropped back upon the bed, and for a ferm moments was entirely sil apon his elbow he said:
"Isabelle, if I were sble I would suswer you, an I am not. I have but this to aay, that you must go eway from here. Return to your uncle, and say that I sent you back. Go to a hotel, do anything, but dou't stay here."
"Why ?" Sbe stood away from him as ahe asked this. "Why do you toll me to go away from you? this. "Why do you toll me to go away from you?
Surely, George, if there was a reason for this you could explain it to me."
"No! no! I cannot explain anything can wait but I go. If you eannot toll meto-day an explanation of your conduct, unless I lasve i with you."
They we few foot apart, he with a look of diabolief in the disobedience of one whom he had never befor known to disobsy his slightest whim, she with a sot dotorminntion to carry out that which she believed to be right. At last ho spoke agaib in a low, hollow tone:
"Call Miller. I want her immediately."

"ice can you want that I cannot do ?"

"Call siller," he reiterated, in a lou Will you not let me wait upon you? Why should you briug that woman between uB ?" This time he elmost shrieked out, "Call Miller," and Isselle rose and went towards the door to obey; but the call wes anneceasary, for the sudovey; but the call wes anneceasary, for the sud beon within hearing of his voice. Sho advanoed -quickly towards the bedside, and withont looking at Isabelle or aeking the cause for which she was so vehemenily suramoned, ple said in the calmest and most mechanical way
and

This is vory wrong! The doctor hes ordereci quiet and reat, and that he met not apoak or be spoien to, and here is nothing hut eicitement and danger. It is very, very wrong !
Ing to llo made no response, but atood aloof, wait ing to hear what would pasa between those two.
" Miller", said the sick I aun going to Now York."
"His mind wanders 1 " she said, as though speaking to heraelf. "Colonel, yon cannot get up. soon. His time is up now. Compose yourself nitil he comes."
"Yes 1 yes 1 but I muat get up then. I must go to New York, This lady must be taken back to o New York, This lisdy to the city. I must do it."
"Really this is too bad," alhe said sgain, as "hongh to hcrself. "Too had It may be really and Miller lookod at her wateh, and then towards the door, st which, as though answering her wish hy apringing from nothing, an elacrly, calm-faced man entered with a velvety trad, and advanced to the bed, with a slight bow to Isabolle. The pationt had turned his face to the wall, and as the doetor stood looking on him, Miller, without changing her own posid :
"Mrs. Bwinton, Doctor Wirner
"Mrs. Sivinton, Doctor Wárner."
The doctor took the hand of Is
"I fear your unexpceted arrival is to assist our patient, Mrs, Swinton,"
"I shall not disturb him, doctor, but I shall remain quietly about him until he is woll.
The doctor gave an acquiescent nod, and withont more worde scated humseir at a small table, and after compounding some medicines and writing dir away.
Coton
Colonel Swinton had dropped ofr again to aloop, or wae leigning it, and Iabbelle loft tho room, mation to Miller to follow her. Whan hoy reached the parlor below, Isabello tanned quickiy towards her, and in a voico different from What sho had yet spoken, ahe said:
may say to yon must be oboyed. Do not mak any mistake on this point."
Tho woman howed her head in silent, eulky acquieresace,
"I intend to uabland as pocapy a room as near that of $m y$ husband as possible. Yon will, of course, prepare it for me." it for me"
"Cortaia
"

Let ine see the apartments you intond I sha!
There was something in the voice of Isthelle that told this woman, notwithastanding her desire to command, that she must obey, and on this she houselieaper for her accammodation, and Isaball took possession of rooms lesding into those of hor husband, and looking out upon the back of the housk.
The night was gathering frst, and Ibsbelle sat in her room gazing ont on the shadows that were ceming down upon the surronndinge of the house There was nothing cheering in her position, and yet notwithst snding its unhappiness, sbo felt more content than when in that lonely spot in Pennaylvania sha waitod and watched as a desort ed wife. She was now with hor hnabend, and in his own house, where hs oould not go from her or where, if he did, it wes something thet had s semblance of a homo. There she may watch and wait, snd when the time came that she could speak, would know her fate, whether it was to live apart end neglected or whether there was enough of that love left he once possebsed to mako her Life something that would aecord to the requirements of her heart. And then her mind went ments of her hoart. And then her mind went Cottarie, she had been Cottage, she had been surroumded by nothing but porhapt like herself, looking ont upon the fast ap pearing atars and thinking of her as she thought of them, and-

What was that

A figure, tall and atrangely dreseed, flitted beore the window, starod an instant towards her certuinly a woman, though the face would searcely anmeaning look, and was goue. It was tell it, and in tho dim light Isabelle had hittlo chanco to ise what would have cnabled her to identify it. The eyes were large and bright, though a strange, unearthly look eame out of them, and the foatures were drawn and gaunt them, and the foatures were drawn and gaunt, though not old. A shivor ran over Isabelle as sho hough not old. A shiver ran over Isabelle as sho reealled the words of the negro that day, snd cost her oyes over the dim, zombre look of the room in which she sat. She was no heliever in the caper natural, but who could this extraordinary person be who had just now so mysteriously flitited throngh he grounds, with a moverint that was roither he grounds, wimh a movement that was noither ralking, running or flying? She reised the sash and atrained hor eyes out into the darkness, but here was not is trace of the mystery, and once more she seated herself to mnse not ouly on her ast, but on all the sircangeness of her present. Some daya paseod, and Isabelle had gradually calmed herasif finto a daily routing. Twice or three times & day she a dent a littlo time with hor husbrind, studionsily avoiding any action or word that would be likely to lead to a dibeussion of his conduet or her purpose. Between herself and miller there was almost ontire silence. Isabelle had never said anything to her of the singular appearance of the first evoning, beyond asking directly the noxt day whether thero wore inmatoe of the servant girl, snd recoiving a "No, madame? the servant girl, snd recoiving a "No, madame for anawer. She had thonght it better not to have Mademoiselle Pauline down with her, and accommodation at tho hotel to which her baggage had gone.
Every day Doctor Warner oame, like a machine, with his zoft, caluke way, and looked at his patient, compounded has medcine, said a fow cour Swinton's movements were confined to a very oircumscribed area, merely from her own room, in which all her meals were served, to that of he no thands, and from there, onco during the day, through what had onco been a flower garden, but through what had onco heen a flower garden, but was now an overgrown mass of weeds. To Isabelle's room there were two doors, ona leading out to a long doserted room, the other into the hall. The first, Miller had inforwed her, on teking possession of the apartmente, had not been opened since the old ledy's death, now ncarly ten years, and Isebclle found, upon trying it, that the door was firmly tastened, apparently nailed, on the other side. The door leacing into the ha she always lo
This was the state of things when rasbelle had been oue week in the and house. ovenis upon a eaused a wood ire to be made upon the hearth which was still blazing when she retired to bed How long sho had boen asloop ehe could not tell, ouly hy the appearance of this fire when she wat ouly hy the appearance of this fre when she was awakened, whieh still smouldering in coals showred it to be aomewhere near midnight. The cause of it to be Bomewhere near midnight. The cause of the awakening was a noise in the room, abont as the awakening was a notise in tase reom, ade by a much, perhaps, as would have been mado mouse gnampag upon the wainscot, and Isabolle mouned to soe a figure, darkly clad, crouching over pasaing throngh fasteacd doors, and laughing
There was no more sleop for I Isabelle that night, and yet wben morning came she dsterminod to say nothing to Mriller ahont the mattor, but wail for somo elucidation of it withont her aid. Quietl che weat into the deserted room, and cramined tho door, and was convinced that it was unopenable from tbat eide, witbont the exortlon of grea force, and that as far as eanld be fudged by the accumulation of dnst, it had cortainly remained accummalation of Unst, it had certainly remined ahnt for tho time that Miller claimed. This was ant for the time that Mrilor claimed, another strange thing to ponder on, but as day after day went over the matter hecame softene in her mind, and Isabelle mae disposed to persuade hereelf that what at frret whe regarild ne a myetery wae nothing more than some natural myetery wae nothing more than some natural occurrence that would nitimately meet with eney explanation, Thuse nearly twenty days had slipped away, and yet left his roam, but every dny he would take possession of a groat armehair facing the window, and sit for heurs, looking ont npon the distant hills, withont speaking a word. Several times Isabelle had offered to read to him, hit the offor Was alvays rejected, mildly hat discouragingly. During these timce he nover exohanged over two or three words with her, bnt when ehe was ont of the room, and the doors open between their toe room, and che doors open bolween cor apartments, she could hear him holding long conversations under his voice with Miller, all, scemingly, questions on his side, and answers upon the
It was upon a night of nearly the twenticth day after her arrival at the phace, that Isabello had gone early to her room, and sitting for some hours viting, went to sleop more wearied thann naunal. It was the first snow of the senson, just enongh had follen to cover the ground, and to east the hed fallen to cover the ground, and to east the reflection of its brightnese into the room, so that reflection of its brightnese fato the room, so that evorytbing in it was light and easy distinguished,
Isabelle had scarcely fillen into her flrst doze when she was conscions of a choking sensation, and straggling awnke, found herself grasped by the throat, by a figure bending over ber, and glaring down with a fierceness of face terribly real. Isubelle essayed to scream, but the hande tightened on her threat, and nothing came but a gurgling sound, which conld not have been heard beoyond the room. She tried to rise, but the strength of ber attacker was too rise, but the remained fastened by the powerful grip to tha bed, her etrength and breath rapidaly passing away. The minntes. wors hours, end ths lhands away. Tha minntes. wore hours, end tha hands tightened upon her thront. There was no help to reacb ber, and Isahelle, with one bittle, silent prayer, swooned.
Within hnif sn Within hnlf an hour the house was amakencd by slurieks, and Miller hasteaing to Mra, Swinton's roem, from which they came, found the door locked inside, and the sicreams being repectod with terrible emphasis, In a moment Colonel Swinton had staggered from his bed, and dashing 8 winton had staggered from his bed, and dashing कowards the fastoned door, finding that it did not yiold to his hand, went bock to his room, and with yion the bpped of thought brought out a hesvy, old.
fashioned poker. One or two blows with this sent a panel whizzing from the door, and gave admit.
tanee to Mriler'e hand to unlock it, and adinit them both, to find Isabelle stnading whito and rigid, in the centro of the reom, a fow drops of bleod oozing from her mouth and nose, and dropping on hor nightgown, while her right hand was a scrap of fringe.
"She has been greatly territied," Dr. Warner sid, the next morning, as be stood by Isabelle's bedside; "ahe must be kept very quiet, and not bedside; " she must be kept very quiet, and not he left alone at night. Another sych fright, and I will not answer for the consequences" Isalelle had been moved into anotion and Miller was in attendance, for a nervous fever wns the result of the night's worlh. Coloncl Swinton had returned to his hed, the excitement having east him eoriously back, and the house-keoper felt that she bad her hends full. keeper felt that she bad her hends full.
"Doctor, MLse. Swinton inforned me thie morning that she has writtets to. New Yorls, peremping that she has written to New York, peremptorily, for a friend of hera, a Mr. Peyton, and his torily, for a friend of hers, a Mr. Peyton, and his wife, to come down. The lotters went forward this morming , betore sho told this. What do yon think of it?" think of it?"
"They must come," easid Dr. Warner, eententiously.
"Had Colonel Swiatos bettor hion of it?"
"Not yet. It will not do to disturh him "Not yet. It will not do to distarh him with anything for some deys yot." The housekeeper drew tho ner of the room. "Doetor, do you know what Mrs. Swinton's belief is abont this affair?"
"She thinks it was done
"inatigation of her huraband." some ono on the "What I" ejaculated the doctor, with an aptonisbed took at Miller. "Doos she really so bebieve?"
"She really so eayss",
"Oh, dearl deart This has been a very carelose affair. Very unfortunate!
"Yes! but as I havo said,
Yes! but ae I havo said, doctor, how could it have been foreecen or prevented ${ }^{\text {" }}$
" The "Truo enough," send the dootor, thinkingly. "But noue the less unfortunate. And so eho thinke that it der her ?
"Nol
"Nol she does not absolately say thst, bat sho sayd her inieds will be hero to-day or to-morrow, nid that she will retarn to New York with them, and then, that this affair will bo iuquired into, that a divorce may be gote"
"Vory unfortunatol very tor, tracing the patteln of the repeated tho doctor, tracing the pattem of the carpet with the too of his boot. "Do yon know anything about this Mr. Pey-Poy-"
"Peyton," engestod the housekeoper. "Nol

Thave never hearr of them unta now, but sind
saye that he in ber nearest and dearest friend."
" "Ahl ah $\mathrm{p}^{\text {enid the doctor, } \text {, tooping to piek np }}$ pin, and critically ezamining it in the bgbt. "Man, end critically examining it in the bigbt.
"Maried, of course. Ah! yce, brings his wife down with him Very onfortunate, very! Must he careful tbat no more accidente occur." "I can't mndersitand bow it oould have bappeued. It was most manacountable. I tried to per-mnade her this morring, that it was merely a nijhtmarre, and that shas hat injured hereif in her struggles to wake, bnt sbe only scratches and bruises on her throst.)
"The thing mustr't occur agnin," said the docorr, depositing the pin, after a thorough examina-Hion, in a little silk pincurflion taken from hio pocket, and taling his velvety feet ont of the pocm, and intoa haggy that atood waiting at the room
gete gate. .
Tho
The next day at noon a carrigge drew np to this game gate, and wilton Peyton jumpod ont, and handed his wifo to the gronnd. Miller was standing at the min entranco of the house to welcome them; which she did with courtesy, and a single glance, that in its aweep took in the ontire characteristice, mental and physicall, of the conple, and then wahercal tbom physical, of the conple, and then ubherca tbem ato the parlior.
"How is Mre
tion. "Onite unwell," awas willerts anerar. "soen thing serious has occurred since Mrs. Swinton wrote to you."
"Serionst" said Peyton, looking inquiringly into Miillor's face, as though he would read its meaning.
"Yes,
"Yes, irirl Mrs. Swinton will inform yon when sho nees yon."
"Let us go
she will pardonuecty to her then! Come, Nolly 1 will plesee show us tho way, madame " moved somexhat hurriedy towards the door, followed by his wif followed by lis wifo. The bousokeeper opened a room doer upon that floor, and in a moment, room doer upon that Hioor, and in a moment, Iabbelle who had left her couch, was clasping both Witton and Nolly in her arms, with both Witon and Nolly in burat of punsejonate tears.
For the firt time in his lite Witon ldised Isabelle, a liss of pure affection, a kisis of sampa-thy, without tmowing of what her distress consistod, such a kise as a brother may have given much, loved dister, for se did he love her. What is this, Iasbelle? Why did you sond for us in so positive a way? Don't cry, but tell ue Detwey. No harm shell come to you now ${ }^{m}$ Between her sobs, for she could not spealk, she pointoo to her neck bruied pivid markis of the f bruised nud scratched, the He looked at it with horror, and into the ooft blue syes of his wife, which were full of tears.
"Creat heavena! has it come to this? Isabelle, you cannot live with thic men you cannot hve with this man," were his word "Not him! not him
"Oh, yon do not know how te sald in a whisper: "Inabello, composo yoursolf. What do mean whsn You say, ' not him?
"Hueb, Wilton, Yon shall
""Hith, Wiiton; yon shall knew all, but lot ue go away from this honse. Indeed my lif gatf here, I cannot tleep, I am afraid."
"Col
Can you not explain? If you carnot do it it is in this loonse that $I$ should lnow overything not after we have left it"
"And you vill stay with me, you will not leave me $?^{\text {" }}$
me "Not until you are in eatety. Now, Ieabelle, I only wish to ask you one question. Did Swinton do this $p$,
"NoI not no ${ }^{\text {" }}$ " he enid, getting the shawl that was about her high up in the neck, "not him, but something more torrible" "Did be cause it to be done?
She burned her face in Nelly's bosom, hut spoke "Isabelle, you have mo serrey mou, there muat be no if youn would What hes boce the causo of this attack upon
"Murder," she whikpered, without looking ap.
Wilton's brows linitted with a convulsive twitch. Witon's brows knitted with a convulsive twitch. baelf a siaglo word that jou know yourself?"
"Yes 1 "nd in a moment, dryiug ber swallowing the sobs that bad heon choking her him a history of hor doings from the hour she had left him, ospecially that part which related to tha attanek.
Have you told of this murderous attempt, excopt as tar as relates Watom's first question.
"Who had I to toll?" ehe aaked, "I only spoko of the nomptor of the night biller. I have note not soon my my o the husband, they eas he must not be eeon, but that he belicee, or profesees to believe, that the whole he belierees, or professess to believe, that the whole matier was adream, and that I have wounded mymatter wan a drea self during sleep."
"
the dootor?" Wilton selked,
"See, Wition, this is the eirangest part of the wale. Neither the doctor nor Mitlor have shown the lenst surfrise, nor heve they suggesied that any attompt slowld be made to deteet or arrest the guilty one who songhit to murder me in my ${ }^{\text {aisep }}$ Just ## houseleeeper entered.

"I have informed Colonel Swinton of your arrival, sir, and he requasts me to soy to you that ho
wunts to see you immedintely
 "no farthacr barm can possilly come to you," and $\underset{\substack{\text { room, } \\ \text { Colen }}}{ }$
Colenel Swinton was lying upon his hed and as Peyton ontered raised himsolf upoo his allow He mande un slgn of greeting, and ung his elbeom.
tinguish b
his voice.
um
"What echool of gentlomen were yon odincated in, Mr. Peyton, that tangbt an interference in the domestic afliars of one almost a stranger to jou, and a thrusting of your society on himin in his oum house? I am waiting your answer, sir!"
Indeed he might have waited, sompe minutes longer withont this reminder, for Wition was al most deprived of a rojoinder by the suddenness of the attack, Ho reoovered himelle howerer, in an the sttack, Ho recovered himpelf, home
iustant, and asaid, in a firm, decided tone Colonel Swinuanted in a school of humanity, toct a defenceloses and abbsed woman, to say no thing of one whom I shall always esteom as a ais tor, and interforo for as a brother showla, oven to the extent of incurring her hasband's displen

"Abl and are yon sure that your bnight-erranry is acceptable to the lady $?^{\prime \prime}$ hs said, fastry hissing the wroris ont. "Perfoetly gure 1 sib for me, and now that I am here, by declaring thot the will leave this house under tbe protection of "Did it over ocour to yon my mife.
shall probubly heve somethin to Peyton, that I shall probably have something to say about my wife's leaving this house. She came here against my positive orders, and insisted upon etaying when I was teo ill to reeist her obstincecy. Now ehe shall stay, whether she wifbes to or not, until I
"You take her from boro mybeif.
"You are mistaken, Colonel Swinton, your wifo is my tister, or ohoosea to conaider herelf es sucb and I am proud to bear tho titlo of her brocher My house and my mother's are open for her, true homes, where sho can remain in safety, until suah time as the law gives her rolesse from you,"
Ho was stunned by tho coolness of the man with whom ho had to deal, but recovering himself in a moment, he said:
"The hav 1 Wi
law 1 Is Mrse. George Swinton abeut to act as any shocmaker's wife wonld do, end appeal to lawyers for aid ageingt her busbond? You tall lile a child, Peyton; Mra. Swinton has no foundation on which to have an appeal to lav.
"No foundation,

fonndation ?"

"Marder! Pabaw 1 If I did not know yon for temperate man, Peyton, I would ask you now is as soon as I heard of your arrival, that I night warn you and your wife against encouraging thia delusion of Mre Swintor's that she has been at ackec. Tha entire truth is that she has had an unpleasant dream, sind strugging with it, 1 am told, has bruised herself baily."
"Colonel Swinton ! look at me, whether I look tike a child that can be deluded with such tales es these? If I had not alrendy heard Mrs, Sminton's story of this attemptod murder, I would only have to leols at her bruises to der, I would only have to look at her bruses to see that thoy wero done by a human hand, and by see that they wero done by a human hand, and by no tender one at that."

"Yon are wrone P

said abont the mattor the better," "Tho less said abont an nt templ to murder your Swinton was quiet for a fev momente, looking ondewhat absealy at wato, as though thinking, "Well! we tempt to murder Mrss. Sminton, how do you thints hor position is to bottered hy an inquiry?" .a.
The qnestion was a staggering one to watton, The qnestion was a staggering one to waton, taggering from its very impudence. There be caggering from its very impudenco. There be-(ore him wat a man who, hute few months married, was desizous of entering apon an argument bave his wite murdered. To Wilton's reasoning, this was the only vieriv of the case. Swinton saw, his look of horror and astenishment on Peyton's faoe, and followed it up by saying:
"I Iacoord to you somewhat of the claim in Mrs. Swinton's estimation, and am willing o sabmit for yours or her cousideration, whether matter that can ouly end in our-I sayy oury-diagrace and entire separation, when, by foregoing hat inguiry, everything reasonable that my wifo demands shall be accorded ? Ho cenaed, looked earreestly at Peyton, and "If you are appealin ersonally, to stay any action I may cont Swinton, in the affir, the appoal is utterly uncalled for. shall do nothing hat at the request of Mrs. Swinton, and when she makee thet request, I shallonly move as ehe may command, without attempting to infuenco her in uny way. My own beliof is that to infuenco her in ony way. My omn beliof is that it slound be tbe sulject of investigasion, and in shown by which I may know that the real happiess of Mra, Swinton is at stake by eeeling tnoh nestigation,"
"Wial
"Will you not receive my assurunce that it wil me rain to us both to follow the matter "" "I akk no both to follow the matter?"
anace
"I abk no assuramce for myself, nor do $I$ nrrogate a right to demand any explanation of meaning, but most assuredyy some can he given ${ }^{2}$ "MThs, Swinton ${ }^{\text {P" }}$ of pasaion. "Sanoth," he said with a sudden burat "Cool to encourage ber in mny sueh demsnd" "Colonol Swinton, you forget yourself, and preume npon your heipleses state. This interview is ended until such time su gon can secount to mo for the language yon have juet ueed. Mra. Swinton must act as eho ploases withont my induence being uaed to dissuado her, and sbe sball have my entire aseistance in any stope she may see fit to to

And withont another word Pegton rose from his sent and left the room, wbile swinton, who had raised himself almost on his knees in the bocil gazed atier him with features livid with anger.
On his way back to leabelle, he was stopped hy

Nuiker, who came hastily ont of a room apon the same floor as that of Colonel Swinton', and confronted hime
"For Hen
"For Heaven's salke, sir, do persuade Mrs. Swinton to tako the colonell', addivee, and ont preas this terrible sthair any farther. Do not let it becisterrible
He shook of the hand that she had loid upon face, answimered
"There is something strange in your solicitude, teriousky in her bed at midnight, and an attempit mado to murder her by a moman-nnderatand me, by a woman-and you join Colonel Swinton in miahing to hnel it, and ask me to beoomo s party Minhing to hneh tit , and ask mo to beoomo a party to this infamons request. I believe yon have told me that thero in no female in this honse but yourself and tbo eorrant. If it were this girl, yoo cer-- toiuly would net want to shield her, therefore I eanmot see that you are adding to your own repnantion hy seeking to amother an investigation. If thero is anything to confoss, lot it come at once, mercy of Mre Swinton."
"Oh 1 gracions heavens 1 am I also to be auspeoted? Has $i$ come to this, that peoted Has it come to this, that I an to be nconsed of an attempt to murder Mrs "Do you draw any distidiction, Mrs. 3iiler, between the marderer nad the ono who is acceessory, either before or after the fact? If you do, be nssured that upon that point the law will differ with

The woman stood agbast and dumb, loeliligg and he had turned awny, nad disappenred at the foot of the stairs, then ene hurried with precipitation into Colonol Smintones Isabelle had sobbed beole foveridh doze, wbich continued for an aneasy, Wilton's return, when she awolor suddenly aftor with a atart, rising herself, loekced him inquiringly in the face, with the single oxclamation of
"Well ?"
In es fow worda as possible, Witon gave hor an with Swinton. When it "And yon declar
"dvise me against an inqniry ${ }^{\text {" }}$ " you would not "I did. ${ }^{\text {an }}$
"And that you would give me gour aid in any steps I may ace fit to take?" steps I may gee fit to take ?"
"I will. But consider well, Ysaholle, what you 1 wil. But consider well, SaHolle , what are ahout to do."
"I have conesidered it well, and I am detormined to have this mystory uaravelled-for mystery it 10-of a deeper kind than I have any power to explain, 世 it is na Oolonel Swinton says, something the investigation of which will result in ruin and diagraco, , oto the ruin come, it must equally come witwout to eme thiciation; bat the dirgrase cannot come to me, I have done nothing to deserve it."
"A "And how do you propese to unravel it? I fhall lute public exposarc, it will be botter."
"Witon, you know how I have been educated, without any knowledgo of the world, I was talan from my quiet, happy life, snd thrust suddenly ont to thiuk and act for myself. What I many do now possilly will not meet with your con not $I$ hase determined, and I will not be turned but aside, and you have promised not to adrise or influence me, Now, 1 havo fluencs me. Now, I havo road of men-detec-tives-who, having spent s lifotime in ench basiness, are skillod hoyond our comprehension in unravelling these mysteriee. I shall send to New York for one or these, and tell him the story. Ho can do more than ourselves, end with its murayelling wo can tben tell what shall bo done. Whast I want of you is to recommend this man, and if yon do not know of one, I shall write to the chief of the poice and explain my want.
Wliton sat silent and 1 th
the only phan he oould thinnk of at that momement even had he been inclined to at that moment, could recommend a man whom heb beliered would do, , quiet, unobtrusivo peran, who had "worked fow wreeks before case for a friend of his only a lilte romamaee and superhumer that sonnded raoro den things than resility. The mastert was dis ecuased, a letter was written, a messenger obtained Miller or thas sarvm, without the interposition of as the twilight was coming down over "The Place," Mr. Darins Browint Place," Mr. Darius Browhust, professional detective, a amoll, eel-liko mant, with a never-restineye, walked np the garden path, and reported himselí to Peyton.

Tay Pusk, The holdness of the piks is very ctrraordinary. It bavo neen one followe a hait within $z$ head keepor of Richmond perk cean tavadiug; and the onee washing his hand at the eide of a boot in the greest thif pirate flordd burinise the barque colconda, ofe oape meniy, july 8.

THE PIRATE FLORIDA. Smoltankousix with the arrival of the gratifying invelligonce of tho dofest and deetraction of the pirate Alabama came tho neme that ber concort, the Forida, se on our coast, running har courme of piratical ruin. Ste seems to luve struek acroas to the Ohess peake and at once begun wayleging veenols. Sbe ienow commanded hy Capt. Moorrie, and carries 130 mon. She bas two 120-ponnd rile gine, twe 12 -pound howitzers, has two 12a-pona rinie gu and a battery of six guir.
On the sth ehe captured and brened the barque Golconds, Cuph. Winslow, on her way from Tolcahuane, with ${ }^{1,500}$ barrete of oil; and eoom ntter the barque Greenhind, wilh coal for Peneacola; the Gen. Berry for Fortens barquo Selinita and Echoonar Howard.
On the 10th alhe captured the Elcetrio Spatk, a now pteamanr, of 850 tons barthen, built in Plilladolphis, and a very fast boat. a very fast bont.
Capt, Gruham
am or the Electrio Epark thire describes the "Whand we represent in cour illustration: fiag. Wo whawered ly running np the Skitenind stripoo storn. As we etill held on, the Ylorids fired a third ehet, which paceed over nis amidesiip, abont midway ordared tho congine to be otopped and our colorr lowf ared. Tho Florida immediately eent aboard a bout's from and to what port I was bound? 1 nnowered from New York to New Orleana. Ho thion auked for my pa

 ho pirate, and of the capture of the Eleotric Spark.

THE SIECE OF PETERSBURC.
OUs readers will be able to study the sieg of Petarsburg in our illusiratione this year, as they did that of Vlokshury last year. It is one of theoee easen where pictorial illusiration hee anadrantaye over mon verbal accounts. To say that Gront is pnehing the siege the oity lo hourly noring ith deestinod fali, tho current of Dirio that sets towards Mingara.

HOOKER'S CAPTURE OF LOST

 MOUNTAIN, JUNE 14.1Iv the advance of Gen. Sherman, after the robelle a Iieutenant-Gezeral, Mountain that cont the Etowsb, Palmer moved on Eenobsw and Howard on Pine mountrin. To Hooker wse assigned the assanit on the difficult position at Lost mountain, divanco, and soon comed up with the enemy. Having advanco, and soon come up with the onomy. Having drivon the rebola from two hills, Geary being without upport upon hie right, weo forect to halt, Butterfield nind Willinms having arrived, ana formed in open felds on the right of Geary'e porition, about 3 2. Mf, Gon. Hoolcer ordered an advianco of the corpa. The linee moved forwurd, ariving the enomy'e picketo rapidy before them, halting now and thion a moment to dielodge nome of the maro stabborn of tho rehels who maintained their fre untti almost under the feet of the adranelng troops, Geary'e division wea the ficit to encounter the enemy in otrong force, with whom u chaup volley or two mos axchanged, and they thon foil bick to their etrongly extrenched linee, from which buck to their etrongly eutr thoy opened a torilhe fire.

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { thoy opened a torrible fire } \\
& \text { This was the commencer }
\end{aligned}
$$

which whas the commencomont of the fili after atrogele darki the main line of 2 division ind puebed to wlthin 150 yarde of the rotion worke, its ekirminhers having driven those of thi voriks. Volloy oucceoded rolioy, and it was eomotime after night had clonod ero tho contest abseted to the ordinary brialk are of the oppoaing linee of stirmishena.
Buttovila, on the right, met toe enemy throw out a strong line of exirmisbera, und tho morning of the 15 th opened with heary firing, remt
 bnes of Gearr's 2a mid 3d britades.
The night had not been epent in

FUN FOR THE FAMILY

 hto word,
What is the principal differonce hetween the ewallow and the cat? it is an admitted fout that one swallow and the not mako a eumunor, hat one cat can matio supring. sapring.
A rritiow who was heing led to execution
tola the officer not to take him tirouch a est thin atreet tor an old dobt.
Av illiterate firmer, wishing to enter some

"Tugy don't make as good mirrors as they glans that ehe unam housod into. A prasos who looks at the world in somewhat gloomy colora recently complained in M. Antert lang life."

BETTER LATE TEAN NETER.
I nam him etond upon the bribk
Of wild Niagatape fill,

A moment eteod he gazing down,
Hithe coinmaded oye and batod breath,
It mighit ba that acroas hie brain
It mighit ba that acroash hie brain
I sur him toce hie nryns on high,
nstay, maiman." lood I sald ;
He bocatcd not, but opringing
Went home and got to boal
A sowdien who read his name in the list of deaths at an boopptal wrote homo thot ho didn't be. us hat rond ith of yourself:

Spoongr was arrested for drunkenness, and lion."

An oencluenan from Loxington, Ky, relates would return the roecr.

 5on, ",
Hero Mr. Olay'b eounte nance brightence.

MI. Chy was puzzled.

There is a place in New Hampshire, thgy any, whero they nevar have awy old maida. When a

 | whis |
| :---: |
| her. |

GOURAUD's
Italian Medicated Soap,

 "Album Goms""-Something Now, Gay

Q. W. TOMrLINson, Fubliohos, 22i Wathingtoa St, Boaten, Mas:

Cheroltee I Medicines.

"I Iolf Preservation!"-A New IMedical
boots, containlug Scerety relaing to singlo and Married

OVER ALE COMPETITORS.
OIIIOIRIEIING: de SINS, Grand, Square and Upright Pianofories.

THALBMRG'S CHRTIFICATM:

Warerooms, 652 Broadway, N. Y., 246 Washington Street, Foston.
Vineland Lands. - To all wanting Farms.

B. T. IEATYTUAED, sOs BROADWAY, N. Y.
Principal Army, Navy, Campaign, Masonic and Society Badge Manufacturer of the United States.

HOSTETTER'S chlebratid STOMACH BITTERS.

 Sold by hum Draggiste and Famlly Grocert. Hostetter's Stomach Bittern,

The Greatest Thing of the Times.
 to tho Anerican probic.
N. B. - Cataloguse sent free on applleation. Gixeat ia ducements to Agents.

459.62

Seaside Summer Resort

FAURFIEXD HOUSE, FAMRFLCLD, CONN. Thia

000

Thatrimony, - hyy every man should Mailed in sealed envalope cin 22 White strect, New York.

The most "Fich, Elare and Racy" Pa,

BANNER," Hinedale, N. H

Wonderfil $I$ Strange

$$ 100$ per Thonth. Active and reliahle

 TARNUMS  SE MFSEXVR

Preeorves the Eyea, avoids bending. No besting.

WANED WANTEB? Find

 WHISKERS & MOUSTACHES.

EPILEPSY OR FALLING SICKNESS,

A Most Wonderfal Discovery!

Tro medieal profension hero becen bamene, with but fer

Textimonials or Casen cured.

 wruek and Janesivio whom wo would libo mnch

 comnoment thing your medichos",

J. H. WINSLOW & CO. THE GAYATEST OPORTUNTYT ENER OFFERED 100,000

Wrowth $500,000: To be entd for ong DoLLITn eeces, wilhous regard is Stereoscopic Pictures and Cartes de vistere, intert importatoones Alo, New Beoze and

The Confessions and Experience of an Invalid.

[DISTIIIRDDEW]

Ir your wane to TEnow

MEDICAL COMMON SENSE.

 ofvino

Do Yon Want Iuxuriant Whiskers or Moustaches?
MY ONGURYT will fores them to erow hoarily in

Photograph Cards for Gontlemen--
Sampies mand

Wanted Diverywhere, good reliable

Attention, Company!

Beanty- Iiunt's White Iiquid Enam-

 AkM, It in anto martantod to remova Tan, Frockeces

"The West-Indian Hair Curlor,"

Asthma Cured.

Broker'e Etock of Unredeomed Goods,

 conioting of avaitety of rich nnd vuluubbig goods, buch

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL,  DEGRAAF & TAYLOR,

(FORMEREX I. P. DEGRAAF),

 one of the argeet Funiture Housen in the Unilba Sthtes. tbo Thaieeail
in part, of
ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND CHAMBER FURNITURE; Mahogany and Walnut, Parlor and Chamber Furniturs
 ENANTELLED CHMMBER IURNITURE, in Sots, from 822 to ste
Tucker's New Style Patent Spring Bed, The beat tes well na the cheapect of any in uro. Retail price, speach.

Do

Fail to Get, on your way to the Boat or Car,
FRANK LESLIE'S
LADY'S MAGAZINE TOR JUEY, 1864.
Such an array of Fonthons and Fashion in The Colored Steel Double Page of Puahions is unequanled.
A FOUR-PAEE FASHION PLATE, Coifiuree, Beathing Divessea in FULL SIZED PATTERN OF A JACKET
FOR HOME WEAR.
Contents:

The story of the Clown'e Daughter.
Bracken Hollow.
Red and Whits:
The Two Fincero.

With a eolection of Fino Axt Pitaros, Socala Sketchees, Comio
niuatrations, eto, ete.
Frank Leslie's Lady's Mingazine
 bas noter been spproached.

Buy a Number and be Convinced
FRANK LESLIE, ${ }_{537}$ Peanl Street, N. x.

,

 GrivissPatent Cray's Patent MKolded
Contis
Thed onty Collert
 MOLOCOB

 Hatche, soins son de co., J. s. Iowney \& $\mathbf{C O}$., 97 Warren St, N. X.
 HODOES, BROS., 23 Hanorer St, Ballemore

DUREMA'S ETARZSYTA receryed two prize medals

 (From Jarice 3 and 4 at theINTERNATIONAL EXHIDTTON,
At the Grent International Exhithtion at Highest Prizo Mredar for Ity Great Delicagy an an Article or Food.
 WM. DURYEA, Agent, 166 Fulton St, N. Y.
Dr. Ina Porte's 工ife Flizir. RTEE GRAT MERYNE AND REDUVENATNGa

EMMPLOYMENT AT YOUR OWN HOMES.

Siterary Agency, Istablishod in 2892.

 to pabistaseriber continues to roocesion ona recad manu.

MATRIMONIAL FAVORS

At TUCIERE's, 759 Broadway.
 PHOTOCRAPH CALLERY, No. 2 Now Chnmbers Street, standing tac incroaso ing pice of dififorent materialk, tho charge are tho oune and the quality the best.

 All other Thotograxpis up to lifo aize colorcol in Bvery attoation puid to visilitors wi.

HOWARD's "IMEROVED" SWHAT PROOF

Soldiers' Meney Belts.

The Great Money-Mralcing Article.
 E. H. martin, Hinedale, N. H.
$$ 60$ A mowxit 1 mant $A$ gents at sea month,

 Stereoscopic Viows and Cartos de Visite:

75,000 Watches, Chains, &c. VOOFRTII $400,000.
To be mold for Ono Dollar racb, withou regant tritu

The Early Physical Degeneracy of American People,

 pitation, Imphird Nutrtition nod Disgettion ohtin this DRE. ANDREW STONE,

"Poychomancy"" FTow either sex may cood will of muy persen thieg choose, indet tiv, This

THE COMAC PAPER OF AMERHEA
HRANK LESLIE'S
BTDGFT OF FUKW. FOR AUCUST, IS NOOV OUT,
containing the great cartoons or tum day.
THE WAR OF THE GIANTS ;
THE FIGMIES OF EUROFE:
THE TENDER-HEARTED BUTCHERS
The Fair Girl of Washington,
With mmerone other hito at tho times-beetion SIX . TERN PAGES of the fineet Homorcus Writinea of thy gag, with Comic Romancon, Poems, Westera Storien, det. Price only 10 Cents.

$10 AGENTMS $10

FRANK LIDSLTEPS

Unrivalled Publications

Frank Iesli's Lady's Mragazino and GAZETTR OF PASHION. TLD best Family Maumino unsurgasesei in number and execuliton. In FisHoss th har no equal or compettor Frank Leslie's Ton Cent Mronthly,

Trank Zueslio's Illustrixto Zeitung, Tho onif cerman Diluitrated paper in the country. $$ 835 \mathrm{se}$ per annum.
Prank Leslie"e Rady's Itlustrated AI$\frac{\text { maxac, }}{25}$

Koyal Havana Iottery.

For Hardening & Invigorating the Gums. Puransing, Beantrying nnd Presorring tho Teeth, Tyorvons Diseaogs and Physical Debilideppula, Pa.

WM. ISNABE & CO.
InNUFACTOBEAS OF GOLD mEDAL GRAND AND SQUARE PIANOS,

 WM. $\mathrm{ENABE} \& \mathrm{CO}$. rent on applicotion.
a $557-20$
Use of Tobacco, in all its forms, Cured

WHAT TO DO

HOW TMO IOO T1
Talte an Agoncy for our Popular Bookse-buy at Whiole-taib, eell at Rectail, and save tho proitt. Foul particulare 450-420

Agento Wanted, $-$ 50$ por IITonth guar-

STAMMERING

Dr. Boswoll's Vogetable Preparatio 14, guaranteed to permanoguty cume Sypritiak Yercurial

NOW WE CAN LIVE IN COMFORT!

 burnera no
le certaiu.

AMOS HORNING,
gont for Manursetarer,
321 Nortb-Second

Wanted:-Agonts دiverywhere!-From 83 to $15 per day eas Chas. fer riturn, Springilald, Maes.

Gartos do Visite.

25 FRENOH GRISETTES. SOMETHIN In difforent postions of Art. Bent on recelpt of $$ 1$

GROVER & BAKRE'S HIGHEST PRGMIUM ELASTIO STTICK SมบITcc MaACxTINES! Salesrooms, 495 Broadway, New York

- Eresenedepe. $I^{N}$ thoose expes of ecanty, retarled grovith, the per Iating power, the Bilesm of tho Tennespeo 8 wamp Shrab has Lcen found to excita tho Beard, Noustache Sc,

$7 ARMIY  WATCH:

A Besntifol Engraved or Engive-turned Golid.Plited

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE BYMAIL or EXPRESS

Solf-Moasurement for $hirts. Printed directions for eelf-measuroment, IIst of prioes, and drawinge of differcnt titylea of aliurte and collari and eatmonisume

STVOMTCOKGARS

MNAMELTD WHINE, Hoving the eppeazunco and comfort of Unin, bavo been worn in Engifind for the last two yeara in prefercence to worn in England for the hatt two years in preforence to any other coliar, ais they aro readily cleanoed in one To Nuilitary Mon sid Truvellers they are invaluable.
Price 75 cente each; sent by poot to any part of the Price 75 cente each; bent by post to any Union on the reeoipt of po cemit.
abyry Wakred in every Town in the tuion,
S. WV. 5. VW.ART, No. sst Brondway, New York.

IADIES' IEETIPER

 FIVE ANATOMIGAI mNGRAVINGS Has information never before publisbed. Sent free,in a sealed tavelope, for 10 centh. - Addrees Box 4652, Ncw York Post Office
sportsmen, Tourixstes, AND ARMY AND NAVY OKFICERE, Poworful and Brilliant Double Clase

ARMY BADGES,

bY the single one, 100 or 1,000 !
FIRST, SECOND, THIRD, TOURTH, FIFTH, SIXTH, INNTH, TENTE, ELLEYENTH, TWELFTE, FOURTEENTH AND EIGHTGENTH
FOURTEENTH AND EIGHTKESTH

Showing Each Divieton, send for Clreular. Addreta DROWNE & MOORE, Manufacturing Jewcllers, 208 Broaiway, N. Y.
A Secret Worth Knowing--Eow to makie the ORLKBritsD
sppies or other fruit, in 12 bours. The Rectpe Beat

FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS! AIf artictec for Soldiers at Baltimore, Wantington, Fortrese Monroo, Harper's Ferry, Newberne Port
 by HARNDEN'8
Charged low rates.
TOMES, SON & MELVAIN, 6 Maidon Kane, New Eork.

 RTCE PBESENTATION BWORDS, Constantly on hand. $\qquad$
NOVV FRIATPY. THE RECORD
PARIS, LONDON
NEW YORK FASHIONS.
SPRING NO., 1864
WITH THE LARGEST COLORED PLATE
Ever given in any Pablication. Price 25 Conts Indies, Dressmakere, , &c., con obtain this invaluable

FRANK HESMIESS TITUSTHANED

The Late Peace Conference at Niagara Falls.
Tmene has of late been an extraordinary meeting of peace-makers at Niggara Falls. Considering the strange oharactsrs thus strangely bronght together, face to face, the magnitude and gravity of the stuhject of their consultations and correspondence, and the ondden extinguisher clapped npon their proindeed sn extraordinary Peace Conference, without a precedentin the records of the domestic diplomacy of any nation on the face of the earth, before or since the rehellion of Abeolom. Stripped of its false pretences, its disguises and its delasions, however, it appears "like and its delasions, however, it appears "like a tale told hy an idiot, "and is in its conclusion

signiffing nolhing,", "found and fury,

Bnt the designs of the self-constituted peace amhassadors from Jeff Davis, as hetrayed in thie afrair, are worthy of some special attentions. Mr. George N. Sanders, in his own pecathar way, as a southern Democratic sceneshiftar and revolutionist, has for many years been playing in hoth hemispheres the role of Warwick, the King Maker. His plan of operations, usually employed, has heen very simplethe manipulation of a hair dozen leading pote dinner, lacling nothing from the appetiz ing raw oysters in the outset to a qniet game of ing raw oysters in. the outset to a qniet game of hrag at the close. Thecai costly entertainments, in thenext place, on this aido the water at least, havs cost him nothing; for he has alwaye contrived to make the Democratic party, in fat omcer and contrach, foot tha hill. With the side of Daris, Sonthern Confederacy, heeping the plot of a as offoring on unbornded field for past and lnorative speoplations ahroad as a confidential agent of the new Government, In this capsoity as a "Confederate" contractor in England for ironclad vessels of war and swift blockaderunners, it is eaid that Mr. Sanders "realised something," $n$ ntil "Confederats" ironcladsfrom Englieh ports were discovered hy her Majesty's Cabinet to he contrabands, and the bnilding of hlockade-runners at a venture whe found to hs a losing game. Then Mr. Sanders hearing of the postponement, on the peace question, of the Chicago Democratic Convention, from ths the 4th of July to ths 29th August, croesed ths Atlantic to try once more his lnels of a finger or two in this Democratio pie.

This explanation concerning Mr. Sandera will enable the uninitiated readers to guess who was ths initiating spirit of this late Niagara Peace Conference. It was Mr. Sanders, He hreaks the ice in hia introdnctory dispatch to Mr. Greeley; he then retires into ths hackground, and the late Unitsd States Senator, Flemont O. Clay, of Alabama, and Froleeeor Holco the as the repreeentatives of Mr. Jofr Davis, who desire to open negotitations for peace. Mr ,

Greoley communicates with Mr. Lincoln, and is anthorised to bring these rehel envoys extraordinary down to Washington. But hrought to this tesh, they find it experient to explain that they aro neting witbout authority from ndrocates they would like to be passed throngh to Wushiuston, and thence to Richmond, and thoy wonta like to take Mr. Sauders along with them. Mr. Greeley writes for fresk instruc tions to "Honest Old Ahe," who, in a hrief whom it may concern," says, "that if the partiea indirated are ready and competent to treat for peaco upon the hasis of oubmisgion to the Union, and tho boare Mhy and Hob mayy come along. shass, ohy and Hol comhe, indignantly rejecting these nvertures retiro in dismst : Sr. Greeloy returna to retiro in diagust ; Mr. Greeloy returra to Gotham, a sadder and a wiser man ; Mr. Sanderranm, a saapears from the public eye and so dends this fumous Niagara Peace Conference. The question recurs, what were the objects of Mr. Cloorge N. Sanders in this husiness? He hadi several ohjects in view. His immediato desire was doubtless to get through to Richdosire was double sis to gecounts and secure the bolancos that may he dus him from the secret service fund of the so-called Confederate States, for servicees rondered in Europo, Noxt, en rout to Riohmond, he desired, perhaps, a aing politicinna concerned in the important husiness of the Obicago Conyontion. But the great, purpose of Mr. Sanders and his nssociacor to peace throngh the restoration of the rehollious State8 or to put the Administration in a false position, Anst two Clwango Convention on a promieing Southern peace platiorm for the approaching Presidentinl election. The correepondenco in tion of Jeff Davis to tion of Jefi Davis ta Nir. Gimore (knowa heretofcre is tho novelist, Edmund Kirke), of fied with nothine robolitons stater will he eatisenco or Southcru extarmination independMr. Sanders thoru Comprony anthority fron Company had no shacow of conference ou the footing oriminally suggeated to Mr. Greeley. Wo must conclude, therefore, that Mr. Sanders contrived this peace experimeut for the honefit of the pence faction interented in the Chicago Couvention. We conclude, too, thant President Lincoln, through his direet ndvices from Richmond on the pence aud that he has offectunlly hlocked it.
Pence must come througb the powerful negotintions of Gens. Graut and Sherman, and gotiations of Gens. Irretistifly progreessing to they are steadily and irter they are steadily and irreeistaly progressing to the desired consummation of a shatantina and durahle peacee, under the old flag, from Maino to Mexico.

Barnum's $\mathbf{A}$ merican $\mathbf{M E n s e u m}$.

Oscauyan's Oriental Album,

 onnyan.
Scoond Avecui, zod door from buth st, N. Y.

termis for Frank Leslie's Hllustrated Newspaper.

$$ 100$ 200 500
One copy, our yost....
Two eopion, one year, Two eopios, one year, to ono wildest, in in

TERMS FOR ADVERTISING.

Ono Dollur a line on the outede or last page.
Bisty Cunts aline on the 14th and 16 tath pages,

[^25]ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER ${ }^{6} 37$ Pearl Street, New Yorke

Summary of the Week

vimonti.
Tho rehels aronot escaping with sll tbeirplunder. Indeed, as we remarkod last weok, vory little is hkely ever to reach the rehol eapital. Gen. Hunter, reporta that Oon. Averill, with his carairy, attecked Eariy, in front of Wincheater, on tho 20tb of July killing and wounding over 300 rucn, taking 200 prisoners, amoug them Gen. Lilley, four camon, and a largo quantity of arms.
At Anickor's gap anothcr party were punsshed A party at Hughea's croek, alsymed by firo A party at Hughears croek, alarmed by flye On tbe 20th the rebelf sbelled our line hefore Petersharg, hut the fire was rotumed ao botly tbat ono of their caissons hlew np.
Tho noxt day a general bombardment took place 32-pornders destroyod the depot of the Weldor railrond, with nearily all its contonts.
Oen. W. F. Smitb has been roliseved of the combimd of tho 18ih cospa. Martindale sucoeeds Gon. Barney is assigned to the 10tb army neonox.
Sherman, having oroasod tho Clattaboochee flanked Johnston, and drovo him into Atlanta
His cavalry meanwhilo cut the railroad cast of Decstor proventing Johnston from siding or being Dceatar, prove aided by Lec.
On the 21 at
On the 21at be made another flonit movemont trowing his army to tho loft, and occupying Decatur.
On tho 20 th Hood, who had nuperacded John-Hen, matoliod out of Athonta nnd made a degporato aton, maroliod out of Athanta nond made a de yporate attack on Sherman's lue ; hat though ho cbargea threc succesive times, he wan ropulacd witb terrible lose and compalled to retrest into his worlen loaving 600 dond nud 4,000 wounded and prisoners in our hands.
On the 21st
On the 21st McPhacrson, with the centre, advanced to within two miles and a half of tho twwn. Blair to within two miles and a half of tho towa. Blair was on the oxtrome left : Hookor on the richit was on the oxtrome left; Hookor on toe right resting on the ohattalionchee. The enomy formed in front. A goneral slicrmishing took placo, but no general action. We met a severo loss in the no general action. We met death of Oen. JicPherson,
A battlo took ploce noxt dlay, it is roported Eacape from Atlants or relief aro hoth now al Escape fron Atlanta or rehef aro hoth now altboir railroede on the south-west at Notasulga and

Tho Riclmoud papera admit that Davis Las re moved Jobmston from the Dcpartment of Ten nesiee, but Sherman bad done that long ago.

mississmpl.

Gen, Slocum made another advance into Mississippi, Gen. Smith co-operating, Forrcst called on rally to his support. Ou the 16tb he captured the rally to his support. Ou the 16 t
Union etockade at Browneboro.
Gon. Smith, witb tbe cavaliry under Mower and Grierson, came up with Forrest at Tupelo, on the 13tb, snd in a severe hattle defoated the enemy.
The rehels attuctod again at nigbt, but were roThe rehels attuckod again at nigbt, but were ropolsed. On the 15 tha Forreat was three timos ropulsed, and tbo next dny $imitb, being out of La Grange on the 20 th, after nnotber engage ment. Fourcet was wounded and barely escuped. The rebel Gen. Fanlkner aud Col, Forrest were kalled. Their totai loss is pat down at 2,000 Two regiments of the Marino Brigedo, on tbe repulsed, with loss, fivo hrigades of rehol cavalry and one of infantry. Our loes was about 150 in all.
The rebel guorilias sre committing ravages in sII parts of the State, the militia in Platte and joining the rebeles, Col. Ford, on the Government, attacked Thornton'e guorillas at Arnoldaville, and broke up his band completoly, killing 40 and capturing 200 stand of arms, Refugees are from llay county, where the Americana engaged the guerillas on the 18th, near Richmond.
Thornton bss been in Missomi eevoral months, On and protected by sympathiaere.
On the 17tb Capt. Noses, of the 2d Colorado, connty, many of them in the $\mathrm{V} . \mathrm{E}$. uniform, and delivering the obailcuge correctly. They then attacked our mon, and Moses at last feli back, losing hy Major Arohards towerds Knoxville, wbero they asperecd then attacked Plattgharg, Clinton county, lialing tben attacked Plattgharg, Clinton county, lailing Capt. Tumer, the commander of the two milith companies poeted there, and diepersing his men.
Jeunieon is also in pureuit of Thornton and other guerillas.
Tho bloeksic-running eloope, Barnh, Mary and Hope, with coiton, bavo recently heen captured.
The Diomo of Milan is rapidly approfeching

FOREICN NEWS

Mr. Dnotry ar Laurs had offoially informed
Mr. Daston, the Americen Mintater in Mr. Doston, the American Minloter in Paris, that the alleged privateer steamer Yo dido lind been noll to tbe Prussing Governionint. This diaposes of con $\cdots$ nom

 Eari Rassell dellivered an onergetic apecch in defence of the Government to the Peare, and Lord Palineration mads one of his most apirited adareseses in outalument the eubject-tiowards Denmark and Gormany in the tinging: invective ogatast the foreign diplomacy of the Canfinct

 Won-interference in the internil affirs of other nations.
With reard to the Amertion wast there have been froma

 Therre had heen a chango of Ministry at Copenhagen, and the Donioh King had mand pouce proponilionk to Prussio, which were under coulderation.

TOWN COSSIP.

Why is it-answer, oh, ye etrong-mindedthat women contimualls etrive, even while thoy repndiata, vere known, Excoppt undor tho most etominato and themealves?
Thid juea enggented itelf to na a fow deys since in a whalk upon froulway, and an observation of droces. The mode now covete overy portion of man's apparel bnt have courage enongb to moonat male helongings. Leok ot tbo doubbebreasted drcess bodies, with real buttons and bution-aoleal Look at the collare, stonuing and turn otrs, nind poin trinming, that off the heids of heir fair weasers could not be recognied for thelr sex. Look at the hair wotu ohort, the coat sleeve, and lastly. the milit try styls of epaulette that only wanto the rank marked to made the wearers what hey choose to assume. Now, why would not the auggostion be worth botco that ench lidy wearer of the shoulder-straps ebonld have a mariked ryik deeignatiog what nusr relative shg had in the army ond hieposition, and allove no rolative to had in the army and hieposition, abd allow no rollative to count farther off than father, hunband son or brother? Is not the idea ne good a one as thand of Holland, wher in overy lody is oddressed by the tille of hor hubbasd? It wovid perhaps tesd to the recruiting of the Unlon army, by glving an inccan brothora, that they might wear the bars, tho atare, the eaghers and trefoil.
Thero would he something in suoh a baigo. more to be tesired than the blacl hue of the "Ladica' Anll-Luxury League." diecuse an aseortion of a fir fitiond of ours mande the lust week, and which masy possility be a fach. Sbe sase that our finily wanis aro curtilled for dress, arad that wivers, visters and daughtere havo just us muct, or thoogbt of 35 centr a ponnd for hear and lamb, nod cul down in quantity, or subetitato cbeaper tocd, but thoy are not etargored at organdlen at $$ 1$ a yard, for whiob they once only paid so cents. They deny themselves raopberrice at 20 centa per beiket, but thoy do not dony them-

 suwart
Verily, we belleve that the possion of drees with woman is more aboorthing and coul-deutrofing than

为

[^26]
EPITOME OF THE WEEK

 Oent of pixi hat ordared tho arreat and imprion.

 trice of Thatmo mition

$\rightarrow$ The morrihantr' clemke of thin city yro about to

 - Arma
 partiolitrty and caror require

 Thou Contral Amarican Transtit Company have,

 On this primelple the campany aro now builidig two ##   per barsel and that the struggle for bread was ono sor lifo and death, we betro pprocitod twe conncetion betweon the bearee nnd the harrel of feur." - A Scutborn lady living in Wetumkict is or, ......

 works in Parik, in imitation of Bickenn, Thackieray, etc.

 next morriet Hosmer, tho scalptor, to coming bome

 the troopk."

 mayt "I war very norry huve heari that jou bavo verf had troubie athome, put hopurg the govennuout will soon put rebite down."

 and sapport of the chowda of pl
turong Saritoga during the nammer

 Obituary - The oldee inhabistit of Woikurn

Accidents and Ofonces. There to notow in

 The The Crands pppere eontoin necounts of yery dis

tonsive Are broke out in Nixon's mills sud the orthen

 Ooi. Ring strother, woollcu yurnegidneres

Art, Xitorature and science.-That

 vary goong roputution.

Toroign- The Turkibb digg is to bo altered. In.

 ber three emparora.

 our, espronsmomu mascon thaty thery company." What do

 Vin Eanting milgt

pencted, the performascees are for the prosent sue

 - som body thes dibo overed that none of MeserThie oril hat mex do do live affer them.

- Thuo price of now wrapara in London during the

Chit-Chat with the ladies.

Keep Them at Home.
draft, and of courso more volun-
Another draft, and of courso more volun-

 iike; but, wora we all to bund together, we conis aecomm plisb our end. Do jou suppese thore is $n$ د.an iu that world over whom some woman ban pot the strongest they won't own it-lan to him. Even ola unclo Abe in probably under the dominion of Qucen Mary; if not, sempo ther feminine holde the roins, tako my word for it. We woansa have only to hay, en masse, "this ©ighting hat atop," and it in over, For our owa part we tivine nothers, aud at the poor brave fellows mnimed for life and the soldicrs' funerali, peased Eo often in our streeta, thast, inotead of emulating the Romas matrons, wbo rere atrong-minded old frighto, from whom defccaded

 We for one are propared to hold our mascruíne friend hy the coat-coils, to go isto ithong hyderies, to hilte tbem in the stationary wasbtube, and to mallo ials ntatoments as to their Writhinge, whan the enroling oflecar couvee around-to do nyybing, in fact, to anve eny friend of ours from becoming o robel tarect indeud any fritand of ours from becoming a rowet trarect ready of of vowiag, as so many tedies do, that we are ready Country. Unprotected Fomules
There is another reacon why wo connot let the gentiomen all epeak at ouce wben so many thouzand men are whated aro we to do without thom? Wozen culoy more liberty in this dis- Union than they do In Turkey, of couwe. Writers alwaya hoast of that, but we baven't many privileges after all. Ten of the nmartect and efrongest of our eex may be protected by one menn specimen of tho opposite one, who would rum if nay one crled "Booh 1 " to him. He-on the atrength of tuis storeplpo hut, we presume-having the power to conduct them to plucer or amuseizent, tarough the etrocta afthr darl, eto., ete. It is particulnrly unjustjuet ao bad, and done in the rame spirit, as the velling If Mr. Smith wil spend his ovoningo whero be can If amoke and drinir ta his heart'l coutoat, society eliond not eompel Mre, Smista to remain relus, darning hose not counpec Mre. Sear of blemiditing her reputation khi Liould be permittod to theo ber children to the theatre, or trot around the corner to nee some aequaintanc
 a sphisuer of ta, coo ugly to have even an elderty beau, should not be compeliod to be a prisoner after duall Elie should be able to go to the opera, aud sauntcr homo st 12 , withont fear of being "spolken to."
Remomber, we are not strong-minded. It is much phasconter to havo a betu, a hosband if yon ato manried, or cyen a bearioh broller along with yout Bu If a peor, unhnppy woinna has no pair of cast cuifs belonging to her, sle should not he dobarred from at nine on sunday nights, anythisg else Mr. Grund votocs. Bo yolocs. Bo Jo frieuds fram

Help Xourecls:

Help sourself in this worta, for unlens you are one of the lucky onos no one vill do for fou. thep you wxicties aud your gricfie and your bitte aches an
 This is a selish world ; people are too full of thei own troublea to toke an inturest in those of othere The ns they aftect themselvea.
The not want to ruye shows a smiling countonance and a full parse is Underatand that, and expect nothing elvas, particalariy if youn are a woman. A procty feog, coquettich dreal anid bright esea will win your why with maen, who turin Is you are in businces and if yon are a bueline woman-sou deverve pity, don't exphet any. You'll be chasted, of course ; you will aiwaye have the vorst of s bargain (that of cour will be cul bund to rer rigbt ; yomen havo no banilicos to anter Amia I ny, particularly if yon uro a weman, ana fored by circumataves to tyio part in the money makiog hattle of lie, bilp youreelf, ava don't expect

Spixitual Rappings.

In those degneeratodsyoy you are nover qualto sure who a witch and who in not one. The Lady who gabble is a whtel and who in not one. The Ldy who gnbble to yon of new bonacte and ribbons during a morning

straggers, and may the nigbt bofore have served is medium for Nopolicon Bonnowarte or Julita Covar. The 5oung gnateman in the next pew in church may be in the libitit of indulging in tranees, und may luve raited Sutarn the day before yeutering, and meet wilt Thalting ton there. The old man who server your milk bia grand-danghter mho can malke an extenston-table tipk ins. a Bon who, an the dark, can untio any made about his porsoun bs the chothealine Spiritunliam has apparenily cotered mout dy and ooo ut least of nearly every large family has ledge of tho most nbeund phenomms, which havo no aj pannont porpose, and which, if eckoorite deed to be abso
lutedy
 with thoir carthly toolieg . Wo are balf inclined to a quicece with tho vesidictef uth orthodox colitry cleris. mon, and say, " tt ts nhiroad npon the eart

Old Zadien.
Is tharo anything prettier than a protts old leily?
thinle not Tnks about sixtcen when vixty fa charovin Tbe oof white hair, tie pinky checks the phomp thif good old lady can be protty. Bod tonuper ond over fault and vien to whieh womaniood ionulicet io mare plainly about the mouth aud nyer, nnd on the forchead.
Ot course gricf ond ill-heath mako tbelr masks nteo But you uny be asaured that a prethy old lady, with pleceront namile, hes been a good danyiter, wife and mother in her day, or one ol thono incetimable viad aibters, who linve no feur ef the appeilinion "old mald," but do all the good they ean, nad are coatent and plentodios' portualts, and apend my leionro moments loolin.

it them and caying: "Who can dread Gge willa theso | t them and |
| :--- |
| xanyplee $?^{\prime \prime}$ |

Abstract

Tus Homas Frovrs,-The proportions of guro is eix time the lengit or the foot. Wheeuer tid iat on fomport is a doparture romem the hiogizat beal     mano ao tho duntanco from the whina the arma are extomded.

KNABE & CO.'S PIANOFORTE

 MANUFACTORY,
Pateimore, Hery

Tre energy and onterprise of her citizens the recources and added to the wealth and importine It has token a high rank, so that, in certand depart olking mille, its vast asd perfect muchisco-mopo, its pynuation of Bultimore has vosily increaecd; thouthere by the uew aveuues of industry and trade which have bean opaned up within bat a vers hrief apacc of time so ime, so that the city may be said to bo in a most nourthaisg and prosperous condition. The lecs of the people ; businene wat at a standatill; zuin appiarently thared them in the fice, but with indomitable energs they commenced the work of respedtation, and soou found new chnnacle for the prosecution of a trade, which spoodily sprang up tato grand proportions, not only with the weatern but the E-sitern States. So large, indeed, has thie tivide become that the and dipstod would banlorupt half the city, in no longer fell, but ia rephacod by a largor and more leailuy Yelt, but trade.
As with Ysallin in 12 piano

The second Hoor of tho emaller builling ts occupied

Wh. knabe & co.'s piano manufactory, baithora-Warbroons, no. 850 wrst baithiona
Wh. ENABE & Co.'s plano manofaciory, banthea Tetimontal from Gottechatk
"After haring played on the Pinno of Mesara Knabe 4.

 gned,
"Though not parsonnlly acquainted wth you, itsfords me mich, as a pitrict friend of Jontice and candor, I cmnot withold from you. On a recent viait to Philidelphala, I ad to my aetonilkhment, time, been fresh in my memory. "With much evteem, yours,
"GA. SATTER.

Teatimonial from Maurice Strecosch "I eanmot but congratalate you upon the immenae Testmonial from Henri Tieurtemp: "I wie delighted on hearing the clear and full tone of your really irsteclast Ptance, and 1 congratulato yon on

THE STORY OF THE LIChtNINC.

 Thes summer eve beneath the ehivering lindens,The eoft warm air
Sways the green branchels to and fro, as gently As ohildhood's prayer

The oheeted lightning in the heavens blazing, Oleaves clonds in twain g flash, till darknese Soems almost vain.

Fire leaps from cloud to cloud, and the horizon Is all alight,
As if the skies had opened, that the angels Might beat back night.
And an they part, quicker than thought can travel,

It seems almost
That living lightning leaped from the artillery Of e myeterions host.

And that boyond the iron frontier
Ligbt chased darkness through the shadowy clondland

Of the ideal.
There is a oloudland also in reality,
Where night and day
Ever encounter in mysterions armor For sovereign sway.

When good and evil meet, and clash within us In heart and brain,
When sorrow seems to gather ever o'er us, And hope is vain.

When the will that would work is strieken powerless,

And frieudship's smile
Is like the mockery of a orimson aruset
Tis bright but warms not ; and the deep'ning shadows

Of gathering night
Drop down, and leave tbe wanderer cold and frozen

On fields of white.

There's many a battle in our shadowy cloudland

Of Heart and Brain,
When Might makes Right, and Right sits, worn and listless,

Moaning with pain.
There's many a battle in the shadowy cloudland

When tiny feet
Tramp for the first time, houseless and forlorn, Adown the street.
When little blue eyes, wondering nt the stars Tbat shine o'erheai,
Ask sobbing from a weary half-starved father A piece of bread.

And many a one is fought around the dying
For thirst of gold, graep at purses or possessions Fire tbe olay's cold
When solemn deathbeds seem at best but gullies,

Where miner's hands
May jostle with eacb other in tbe pluader Of golden sauds

And there are many battles tbat do admost Nature couvulse, cen good and evil, with the Of vild impulse.

When reokless, heedless passion'e dread rebellion

But in our cloudland, if there's sometimes darkness,

There's also light,
Legions of angele minister to those who Strive to do right,

If we but lift our arms, and not sit idly Nursing Despair, Bnt work with hands and brain until its pban-toms Vanish in air.
So underneath the ehivering German lindens I close my eyec,
To dream again this etory of the ligbtning Up in the skies.

The Flower of the Family. Dn. Thonse, of Tbornedale, was known all orere the county, The enlack horse, ditiven at s blive fining, would have Lleen recegnived any there within twenty milos of the villago. The dototors person and potionas were ailire unmistobabale and tamiliar. 4 gray orerconth , morn witb eccontrio

 ing sboulders, a genial foce, keen, kindily line coes Hio medicicinss mere most definitely known by their roell or supposed resulta
In theory the

-

"What shall I do ?" If heretical, it was certainly effective. If a patient declined to recever under his care, it must he wilful indocility, not by any means the doctor's foult.

It wss this singular fatality in his prsctice that made Dr. Thorne and his borse and chaise known ar and wide. People on the outer margin of his as a vague very little aheat Thornedale. There be doetor's exnberant personality, and exiated hy his sufferance, which wes a very great mistake indeed. Thornednle was a positive fact in itself, having a stubborn individuality of its own.:
In its earlier days it bad borne some foo claseical name, hat later the Thornes nequired an aacendancy, and Squire Thorne having beques thed 5 legacy for tbe endowmont of an academy, tbe town petitioned the Legislature for leave to change its title to the more enphonious one of Thorneoppesition from that part of the community which considered itself eprocially called to resist every innovation-to serve as a sort of tide wall, againat which the advancing wave of progrees may dash and hreak itself in vain-a class of persons abundat everywitere, and asefal wand disegreeahle when it beeomes deeirable to remove them. The villsge lay in a green hollow. Smooth fields sloped down to the small stream which eang along the valley, wide meadows foll of flowers and rich in luxuriant grasses ran out hetween tha old elma leaned over and caressed the flowing water.
a hahitué of Dr. Thorne's house, and naturally enongh fell inlove with Boll. He was hriliont and enengi fell in love with Boll. He was hrilfont and amhitious, susceptible to the charmn of womaniy and kindty impulaes. Everyhody said it would bs e splendid moteh. The doctor aeqnievced with great seoret satiafaction, and the loveri themselves lionted adowa the fairy stronm with perfeot corfidenco in each other. There was, pethape, a little calculation in Ward Livingeton's mind; not that he would have raarried for $m \mathrm{Jncy}$, but, rinco 3311 was beantiful and lovable, it well. What he to he glod that she was rich ss well. would have dono had Dr. Thorne becn poor bo innot nsceesary to consider. Ho coulortane would give him. He wase glad to he epared exceesive give end the pinches of poverty, for all sueh things toil wore dietastefol to him. It was fortanete that wore diatastefal to him. It was fort While Bell was leoking ent of the window and hinking of hor lover, it was the forge large open buiding a fire. A red flame shot up, a shower of sparks flew abont, end presently ponderous hammer.
A etalwart Agure came into the light, It wae not graceful er elegnat, more atrong than Bymmetrical, in ne reapect of a oharacter to pieaso a young giri's eye or win her fenoy. Fet it cempelici young giri's eye or winhor ford Livingston ont of Bell's ettentien and put Werd her thoughte, until a footfell en the gardon waik aroused her, the hell was rung i Bell sprang forward to meet him.
"Don't go yet, Ward," asid Belle gentlo voice.
Ho had no wieh to go. Ho never wantod to mise that sweet presence again. Sybarite as he wae, he ceuld have spent hie bifo at her side in iade he ceuld have spent whispered talk. But tho train was just about loaving, and he wnagoing to thast ciby, where he had openerl an office. He must city, where he busincos. But that need not delay their marriego,

\section*{keop them apart.}  for her at Christanas. Dr. Thorne gracioully ns-

 sented, and Helen and susie were in the diningyoom talking ahent hridal dreesce, and Boll be o Chere be a rec?
The inexerable  The inexerable minutos brought the hour for the

"And now, indeed, I must go, denr
Bells oyes were hid by the sweoping lashoe, a tear or two stole inte sight, and now, with a groat 倍 elb, the clung to him ar a pas go," the cried. "I cnunot bear to have you gill, whese live he had first gucessed and never wen to a full confessien, forget her maidenty theme, him. He never forgot towed in words that thrilled him. them, never fergot the tonch of her clinging hand end the pathoe in her voice, the nemhrnnce. He weuld love her for ever, the astid. The words were a solemn pow. He menat thom to be such. All thas wae hest in him was fully awoke.
what Bell belicved him tebo.
Ten minutes sfterwards, when he pessed the blackennith's shop en his way to to etakion, wished thst Stephen Blair wore not standing in wished thst steple, where he must epoak to him. Sront of his forg honest fellew, and he would net go by an eld playmato witheut a pleasant werd, hat new there wero tears in his cyes, and Bd the veice, har weys, her heanty and graco, mind, and knowledgo of her love for him hllod theorghts away he did not want to take hat of the shop deer, from hor. As he ceme abreast he frem ho
Stephen
him
him,
"There gees Miss Boll's sweetheart, ue doubt,"" said one of the smutty werkmen, blouse upen the auvil. "Eh, Stephen?"
"Ne doubt," eeheed Stephen. " "Twill be a fine match. The eld squire's sou"s a hanas'eme family.
"The fower of the family," muttered Stepheu.
"Do yen knew will thoy he married soon?"
"Do yeu know will thoy he married soon?"
persisted the man.
Would he never be still? Stephen tumed abWould he never ruptly and angrily, and went iuto anethcr part of mill was sont for repnir, and it had the grimy micturegque forge fire. windew loeked upen the river. Over the A window loeked upon the river. just belev luidgo was the railway etatien, and jother kop the small colt.
hoube for him.
He crobed hie hrown, steut arms upon the sill He crobsed hie hrown, steut arnes upoa the sin and looked aftor Ward Livingeton. There he was walkiug up and down the platforz-sight, ele gant, pelidhed. 8t own braway limbs.
" $\Lambda$ pretty Eignre to win a girl'e love," he mu
tered. "Hard, rengh hands- eoarre dreeo-an tered. "Hart, complexion like an ludian! Was therc no other girl lu the werld that I uust pecods fall in love girl tu the werla tant with her-the dolicate frairy? Vulcsu and Veuse Pebaw! Thut wae all a fable. Women lere what is greooful nud petitc. Hew cany Ward Livingston'e wetiens arg tomb care fer himit Doc he arer doubt if ehe weuh carend her? Feol-
he worship the very nir arond that I could ever think I oonld be anything to her! ${ }^{\text {He }}$ could havo carred his folly. Stephen Rain was etroughy modo ; grewn cenrse snd dark with lobor end exposure; a men of bercsive forehead with a pondereas-lonking eut from overhanging had, with theit shiting bighte, their evaneecent het snd went over the hridge into his garden.

There was work to bo done here-delicate plants o be honsed for winter hloesoming. Ho bet himelf ahont it. His old mother, pattaring shont saw him. A glow of pride thrills, her heart. Hor brave, manly boyl There wasn't anothor like him in the whols world. Howhard he had worked how hard he had stndiedl Ho had as good an edaca-tion as the miniater himself. What was the want of collegs to euch as Stephen? And now he was getting on, and bure to be a rich man one of thoee daya. All hecause of that queer piece of mach dery in the corner.
The November
The November morning wos sunny, hnt the atilu ir was keenly celd. There wore little fringes of were pendent frem the eaves of Stophen Bhar's hep. The masic of the watorfall was mufled, and the spray congoaled on the wells, andeverywhere it was fresty and celd and dieheort crimA it to tigure in grey cloak and furs, od-in reliof on heoa, waskeound of golden sunshine.
Stophon Blair, cloaring a way the dobrio of the senson'e growth from his garden, saw it, and his heart was wermed in a noment as the sumber could never have warmed the pest ontice.
The hands h fom Ward Livingston. She had poeped into it on her way, oud lulf underotood, half imegined the drift of the six cloecly writton pagee. The verld wes uet gloemy to Boll. The sharp tir only made her bloed leap faster.
At the end ef tho waik wat the cezy fire in the room, and the long heur alone, in which to rend and ro-read Narg in the dry loaves breke in npon ghe plensant flew of her theughte. She atoppod dewed in her words and eycs, for the simple sentence etirred him almest to teare. He came down to the gato, elifting lights playing ever his hrown face. aurpriee. He euught at a stem of elometis that hung over the gnte, snd crushod it in his stron fingers.
ver see anything of you now," said Bell
"Why den't yon ceme in as you not gently. "Why den't yon ceme in as you noud to " She saw that he was in treuble, and had a vague foar that sho might heve scemed unfriendly of late, knowing that nll that summer Ward Livingston luad steed between her and the whele werld.
"Beenuse-" The aontence came to an abrupt stop.
Boll loeked np inquiringly, and then drew back in sudden pain. There was ne need of stepher's tanamered words, no need of the tones so satutated rith tenderness. Dut enco epoken a feeling of despairing resignatieu eame upon him. He had dene whot ho hed a thousand fine ver to do.
self it weuld be madnese and folly eve and now the knew that hold say, his hands clutehwaiting for whit ghe weur serm, stail as stene, the mig tumult that ellook him a momeut ago hushod, heping nothing-he had nevor hopod-and fearing nething-for had he not aiway* been cortan fell to the ground, and Ward's letter slipped out fell to the grounde unhed. The white hande fint tored a moment, and finally the soft palm rested on Stephen's cearse, brown fingere.
$\Delta$ cloud ef teare rese to her eyce.
"Oh I Stephen," blie cried, in greot pity. " am eo serry for you promiecd te Ward," It was Jike an automaton eakting.
opesking.
Al once
Bell savi clearly into the etrong nana ture she had power to move so deeply. Thing that Ward's light-hearted, happy leve ceuld net have known. She longed to cenfert him, hut her She could only cry helplesely, end pray for him in her hourt. By-end-bye aho said:
"I can't forgive myself for grieving you, stehen. I havo always aulmired you so much-you mist hring you a now serrew,"
He could net help seeing her truth and kindnees. He forced himseif to apeak. "ll is urore a joy, medi. Gepel it. Ged make your life what you conld have nade mine." He turned away from her, lis face whito with emotion. lell picked up her letter-stcphen eoula not tome. The hrightuess was takeu out of tho mernput Ward'e lettor awhy. How could she rend it new?
Thet night the forge fires flaglicd out inte the darkness. Bell looked ovor the "Peer Stephen!"" At noon the next day chureh hell rang ont in loud and cager appeel. The devce came thying awny from the tower with a whirr and ehates, the deek of the tall liberty pelc in the centre of the comimen. What ceuld it moan? With many a perk and deft twist of tor were not the lecognieed neee of queation. Fow aud fenuliar"? At raro intorvale it breke into tho owect, oummer silionce or pulsow nloug the dowd white wintry stilluces in slow round thut s sonl had pasecd; then the stir in the village street was huelied; the osecu steed otill in the iurrew, and the plonghuna revereathy un-
the

talk of young girle, and tenched the springs of momory of old people; it kuellod through the hickering conscieusness of the ill and dying, and wuke ebnddering sobe in thooe who watcled snd cearod; it took che giory quat of chilled anew the pale winter day.
Bat these wers not the low, alow-benting throbs of sorrow. They burat in lond clangor-they brieked along the air in mad cries-thoy rained in ewift, sonorous, uminterinitting strodes that atartied a vague fear in the villago peeplo, and it duetions kindiling on their lips.
Some looked from the hill and eaw a red flam Hesh ont of the valley.
"The mill ie on firel Tho millis on firel"
Dr. Therne, visiting his pistients thros miles off, anw a gray cloud of smoks darkon tho aky, and iuOver the lile, meling throagh the hollo Over the hills, rushing through the hollows, ramping along weoded road, tho premoniticu of danger arowing every moment more vivid, of danger grewing every momeat mare vind, shents of the people, aud Dr. Tharne at hai looked down into tho hollow apon the nullgreet furnaco of searing, leaping, seothing flime, upen o sen of upturned faces and ewelling mares upen osen of upturned faces and ewelling manes, of omoke. Ho threw himself from the chaise int. the crowd. Shrieks of terrer and pity rese around him. Figures creesed the wndews betweon sher of crimson fire. The dector sprang ferward, dozen hands reetrained him. "They're all sa hut one," 日aid some ene huasbry The mases of peeple acarcely breathind, All eyes were streined in an agony of doult. A large, streng man with o ehildish-looking git olinging to his shoulders-everybody knew whid Brown's little girl, whe eupportod her mother by "Stephen Blair! Ged bless him," said the
A eobbing whisper ran throngh tho crowd.
The strairs are burnt away
People rubled forward with leddere; the fier lames drevo thom hack.
Stephen hesitated. The fro ragod ahove him is tessed in red waves nnder his feet; it made inall behind bim; sharp, hissing tongucs senp out end seared his elething. $\Lambda$ ehndder stirse out end searea heane and cries arobe Stephen waved his hands. They foll hack. Ouly oue way, and that must be Bought quick. a hement stronger hola uperveo for the leap, a hail a mement's braeing his nerveo for the leap, a haif fear nobedy could soo-in the agony of drenil nobody could hear, till the long oxultent sher: nobody could hear, $\begin{aligned} & \text { raple eried fer jey, and said } \\ & \text { rat }\end{aligned}$ rang out, and the people eried each other that huth were eafe.
Swifter the red fiames leapt from wall to wall more dense the volumes of ameke ; more frequeli tho erash of faling bricks. It was barely pasail. to save the edjwout buadege; tas hope from th

Dr. Thoruo had scen it, and remembored with r. of sell-reprouch that he had neglected th ronow the inswa day of October.
There was nothing to he dene hut to atand witi oldcd arme, and watch the
At last the long, blue wreaths, that liuk d and mayed alang the rewa or machimery, wore quencimoke; presently bo mill was s smoublering ruin.
$r ?^{n}$ whispered Bcll , The dector drew her closer te him with a quic pared the pinchea of poverty. Helen was strum and Susie light-heartod, and es for himsoli, ther was a great deal of werk left in him yot. reply was in a with the werds
" $A$ total lose, my dear. Im poorer uow than 1 was twenty years ago," Wheu the docter joined his family at teatiof the rcom wore ite usunl plessant wepoct. Bellini beok open befere her ; Helen was sowing ; Sus. a making tee, and Miss Lucy was knitting. Tiz doetor wea siighitly urituted. It aeomod im:- natural and unfeoling that everything ahould hie natural and nuico so bright and gay.
fire," lhe thonght.
The dector glanced at bar werk, Bluo anil white-techniesily called "mixed." What bc came of it all nobody knew. It is ccrtain hlue and white was nevae ne insurauce, incy
"Yon know there whe "You know there was ne insurauce, oaid tho docter, deaperately. Sho knew relicf if on enough, and scolded limim for his negligetuer, bs with an expreesive smin, putting any sugar in her tea, because they wiuct patw be oconomieal.
They talked over the misfortum by the waniug fire. was very hard! What weuld Ward say,
It
must write to bim bell. sho must thought Bell.
niorrev'e mail.
Thils March dey was a foreehadowing of eummer; the sunshine was goldon; the wid wind vere abloep; the bine birds nere smgine in tho were asloep, the water rippled pleasanhi, . . .nster elins, end to wes sure to be delhghtral, and Susio was hride at Easter. The young mimiter wad decartio that her oquightinow in work the

Thensauk. were cloads of anesry musiin dhont, sirs
There Woits of tulle, aimest the lips of the grasin bladoo
dewy webe woren evor ateadily; pule, only for pink fiubloo sudd coly when tome one Epoko to her. Upon the hill the young heir of the Livingtons sat alone in what was once the fumily porlor, meagre enongh now. Hoir to half a hinddred ecerce of worn-ont lund; a a crazy old houro and a harren prite, ho said to himedf hittorly. He threw pritide, ho suid to himedf hittoriy. He threm moto wood npon tho fire ; it was tho only hright moro wood npon tho fire ; it was tho only hright thivg near him. Ont of doors were the mild spring sir and the infpiration of the coming sam-mer, bnt Word Livingston shat himaelf up in the mer, bnt Word Livingston shat himself up in the bionk honae with his hleck thonghte for campany. bionk honae with hie hleck thonghte for company, Black thoughts indeed. They conhd soarcoly have heen darker. Three monthe sgo he bad henrd that Dr. Thorne had lont his fortnno. He had erumpled up Bell's dainty letter into a mase of indistinguiehable wrinkles, in the frrst passion of dixappointmont a had thrown him.

What were thoy to do now ? of courso there conld bo no wedding it Christmas. Bell would conld bo no wodding at Christmas. Bell would andorstaud thet-had said so, indeed-and he andorstasi that-had said 80 , indeed-and he her how sorry he was. Which he did. And Bell's reply lay yet unanawured in his portfolio. For whet was he to do? Poor little Bellt He said that evory dey for tho firsi month. He imagined her premnaturoly old and faded, harassed hy tho hatefid necessity of econonyy, mnbmitting patiently to the detestable makeslifte of povorty. Ho thougbt of himsolf-poor-burdened with a house hold; hooltating at a hutohor's stall between cheap joints; walking a made on a rainy dey to sevo eix-ponce; going to lihrarles to consuit booke he oould not efford to buy; sitting in tho gallery a the thentre; rofusing invitatione that he coul instend of giving thom to heggers. Bah! How he doapised it all. Why didn't the old fool of a doctor look nfter his inamrance? whe didn't he keep a watch? But what was the good of cursing lie folly.
Thore was no need of suateling dorn the curtain with a pnill that toro off the shahby fringee Madeline Beverley could not Boe hin at thast dietance though her window was open, staring at him so importinently. What had brought the Eevorloyg into tho coantry ao early? Did Madeline tolent, grace and woall. spid he understand the ook which her fino, shallow hack cyca flasho quickened a littlo at the reeollection. But after all Bell was wore to his taste-doar little Bellownod the fortune of the Beverleya, Madelino's eyoe would have raiusd their lightninge upon him in vain. But euppose- just for a moment-that he married Madeline. What then? What but an easy path to the station lie covclod, reputation, squate ; ite olvgont formelhing, its dainty bijou Cerie, ita pictarea, and the subtlo atmoapheso of refinempent that pervaded it. Thero wae the little refinerpent tbat pervaded it. Thero was the littlo noto Boll had sout to him a week ago. "Release noto Boll hatd aont to him a Feek ago, "Release him from his eugagoment $1^{\prime \prime}$ The puper almost burnt bis fingerg. He threw it down, execrating himadl. But what was he to do? It would no do to ofter hor love and boggary. And so he had emmo homo, uot to break the ongagement cxnethy, wo daye, haps, sfter all, it yould be better to go back to New Yorl, and write to her, and if anything showld happeu to provent his seeing her agein Ah! there were lighte in tho drawnug-room at the Boverleyg. He must go over and call. It would we only civil to do so. Nre. Boverloy had toased ho only civi to lout winter ahont Bell. Ho was glad tbat ho had not told her of big engagemeut. By this time you will see that Ward Livingston was uit quitte tho inpereonation of honor that nd far from hoartless $i$ tbitten with guilt and whame, and yenzning for the deer love now inrevocahly lost to kim, he crept ont of the village at daylight the next day, false to Bell and all that Thorme's whon Bell sat alono. It seemed cruel. whec avay from tho light and besuty, and ali the hiterests of life. Her tathor came in, and aitting in his urnchaur by the firc, ratiled the newspaper 1measily. Prosonity
"Bell, conve hore, chadd 1 " Slw went, clropping on a ori stroked her hair a nomout.
"Joll, Boll made her voice yory Ward? Boll made her voice vory quiet and steady to reply : "It is all over hetween us, father." A fov wore questiens and answers, and tho doctor ntered same sharp, angry words "Oh, dou't, I caut boer that," cried Boll, and
"on ho hold her fast in his anns while she shook with passiomato solva. Dr. Thorne's limilly nature was roused to angor.
Tho lose of moncy was nothing to this. Ir it would be of ony use to do enything; but nothing could restoro Bell's faith ; nothing conid mako bims what whe had believed him to be. The Juwe air is disturbed by maritial mueso; ibe streets are poisy with shouta; the coming trains spo bobet by crowds of the villago people cular for the now.
Plumate is awalie. The old Cromwellian

channols, and Tife lost ita paltriness and innignink cance ; the hefore an enthusinatic crowd
All this went on nnder the windows of Dr. Thorne's parior, and the whole howh And no Miee Lacy knit to some purposa. The dootor Mies Lacy knit to some purposa. The doot.

"stephen Biair hes enlisted."

A glow of tender pride swept over Bell's face.
"I knew Stephen wonld go P "
Something in her voice made them all look at arying to himaelf: aying to himeolf
" Nonsensel it
Nonsensel it inn't at all likely, Such a rongh hut-w women like polish. Absurd in me to think no it
But he held the newspaper upside down, end ent ont thinking of it.
"Do you want to go,
"Do yon want to go, Stophen ?"
sight of her hefore he went. He heaitate " ${ }^{\mathrm{No}, \text { I }}$ don't want to go. I have my mother caro for, and there are a good many thinga I want
Not throwing his life awsy in s freak, no ohildish impuise, but the Falor that reasons snd dares hecosuso it mnst.
He glanced at in tho soft lampligit
 II I wiehed ont of life hint I "I may not get all That is what I thonght, Bell. But that is pust spirit. I'm afraid People taiks apire giory; all the pomp and pageantryy of war ary that little to me. 1 wonld rather stay in my shop, hat and see the flowers blossom, and hear tho summer sounde. I think T 'm not afraid to dio, hut it It was her he was thinking of, and yot he had It was

But the oause, Stephen!" cried Boll Yee, the eauso-the holieet anid noblest that man ever fought for; don't fear that I won't stend by it, Bell. The old flag has not elheltered me all my life for me to turn my hack upon it now." Bell was illent. Ward would have heeu capable of an impulse of petriotism-would he haveshown that steady, wise fully. So at luat Stephen bado her good-hye. "I wanted to see you once more, Boll. It wor't he so har
"Stephen, deer Stephen I" cried Bell. She ran honor you: I knew yen you to lnew hew much honor you; I knew you wouid go, but I did no Her prsieo thrilled him; lee esught her hands, covered them with fervid lieges, ritculate worde and so was gone.
The next dey Bell was in her room looking through the shut blinds upon the seene in the street helow. Clote zanks of mon in the gray uniform of the service, a ewarm of women and child ren preessing closo up to tbem, the State banner, wbite and lustrous, fllttering over the throng of heads like a colossal hird; and more derinite than all eise, a figuro towering aboye its fellowa, and hroad-shouldered and museular, a sunhurnt face hroad-shouldered and muscular, a sunharnt face little palid for all the excitement, and wistful and again, and oach time turns away bafled and and agaim, and dieappointed.
Deer, brave Stophen 1 She did not love him, hut that he had cared for her was semething to be eocretly prond of all her lifo. She could not go eocretly proud of all her lifo. She could not go end etand with the rest nuder that etorm of glances, end stand with the rest nuder that atorm of glanees, hut now, as the drums beat, tho music of the hand hut now, as the drums beat, tho music of the hand rese rich and inspuing, and the oommand was rese rich and inspuring, and the oommand was hrown face was instantly raieed, and the wiatnal blue eyes met her own. Stephon curried ewny in his hoart a picture that never for a moment grew dim-a slight figure fremed in by the crimeon dim-a slight figure iremed in by the crimen drapery of the window, the rippling hrows hair hown awiy from the templee, tho sweet, halfhown awhy from the templee, the sweet, halfamiling mouth, and the soft, dovo cyea thet could hardly seo him for teavs.
The regiment arrivod in Now York. It was a grandovation. Muase, erowde of people, the streets blossoming in rod, whito and hlue ; fair bunds waving, and choer after cheer welcomed the heroes.
Mudoline Beverley looked from betweet parted Mudoline Boverley looked from betweeu part curtaina. "Isn't it splondid? Her bleck ey curtaina. "Isn't it splondid?" Her bleek eyes were sparkling and her color brighter. Werd were sparking and her color brignter. Whem those
"It isas fine as a reviow in the Ohamps Elysécs," ntinued Madoline.
What should you think of my going ?" aaid Ward, gravuly. "Xou l " Her eyes kindled. It would bs a fine "Can you get a commission ?" "Can you get a commission ?
oword. I mesait to go as a private." "A privato!" Her lip oruled. "There are onough people to do that-such ns those, After all, whet would the glory bo worth if you ehould all, whet w ho killed?
That was what Ward was thinking, and so ho presentiy sat domn on the velvet sofa and hegged hor to play to him. Bell was wondering if he would go- the hoped so. It ho had heon hors she would have yielheid hin. would have yiehled him-olh, so readily-although it would have heen like parting with her own life Tyo nore heen we parting with her own life. Two yours have opened graves all over the land Thorned two courago and Inith of the people. Sometimes the elurch bell tolled its solemn prean over the dead eoldier, and then tho war cano Loma very vivialy.
The village
Bh
prowa of her min -ry stemhern
ling, and never ahirling, Skephen did his duty and the soldiers who have fought, and marched, and half starved know what it is to do that. Sometimes the papers orme to him, and one day he resd Ward Livingston's marringe day he read Ward Livingston's masringe. A bitter hope sprang np within him. "Ho wns never good hope sprang np within him. "Ho whs never goo I knew it."
And ao the daye wont on, draary camp rontine, piekel dnty, fecing the osnnon, storming fortificsroin of ahot and thell, some foarful mineile struck him and he foll. The storm of battle swept ove bim, snd after a long time Stephen awoke from his awoon to find himself almost alone nuder the starlight.
He wos carried in and pronoanced not quite hopoless; and one day when the traiu stopped at Thornedale the wounded soldior was lifted ont and set npon the platform, glad onongh to aeo the dear old plaee once more, and to hear the never-forgottenmusio of the river. He might have beon gone a lifetime, so much had ho lived in the time.
Thero were no blazing firoe in the shop now; tho great forge hismmer was edent, Stephen pleased himself with thinking that he would re kindle them by-snd-hye, and put the idle river to new usee ; he wonld fachion into shape those ideal forms thast haunted his bnsy hrain. But his strong hands had grown very weak, he almost foared ho should never have complete mastery over thein again. The languor would not go. Every day after a little while ho hobbled out to the shop and ant down in the corner where the curious implemonte of his craft lay ahout. It was elow work; the of his craft lay ahout. It was slow work; the warm sunshine came in and fell on the dark hit warm sunshine came in and fell on the dark hits of iron, and the elhadows of the white clouds thst drifted over the aly glided up to his feet. Stephen wondered if this was what it was to be ill-to foel the onorgy all gone from his frame, the a and purpose slipped sway from his heart.
and purpoes slipped awny from his heart.
There was no epring left in him, ho ealiceadly. There was no spring left in him, he ealifaeily. And now ghancing up the windows open in Dr. Thorne's marler, and he knows how genial and homolike is the stracsphere within.

And ao sitting and Minluing, the dull pain tolling him what it is thet he noods, he soees a little frmiliar figure como out at tho door and along tho street. Bell ia comlag to hring him the dally papor. Sho will pass the door and go ou to the pattage ho thiuks, and he will let her do so.
The afternoon edonce is unbrokon and very aweot to Boll. Notbing but the rippling fiow of the brook, tho geutlo monotony of the oicadn's chirp, and tho quiet, yellow suashine slooping on the housea, and the white, dusty read and the dark picturesque shop.
Beli's hoert was very Boli'a hoort was very light; the two yeara past had developedher wonderfuly, "It wasa shame" had developed her wonderfully, "It was a shame," she eaid, "to grow norlid and misernhle over her own sorrovr in euch a time. Nothing was left now of her grief but a little added teaderness and dopth and strength of feeling, and those might well have heen won at a greater coat.
The flutter of her hue maslin dreas caught Stophen's eye, perhaps the magnetism of his of the shop door.
ing to stephent are you here? I was just eoming to give you the paper," and before he could riee ahe had put it intohis hands, Stephen gloneed over it in some emharzasement. He had seen her et home offon sinoe his retarn, but now the shyness that he thought be hed ontliyod fottered him.
Bell looked around with a girl's ouriosity at the curamiliar things sbout. Thoso ourious cog.
wheels and that revolving cylindor-what were they ? Sho would aek; and turning to Stephen, met slook that frightened away the smile from fingera in great confusion. Stephen looked at her all his love aud yearning shining in his eyes. Would sho take him? He thougnt of his oripplod Thimp he magnified his uncouthnese.
The sunshine played around her, the wind stirred her wavy hair, bruehed the Iringe of the shawlshe wore dorose ber white hands. Hew fair she was thoso hlack, rough things aronnd her. He hit his Li . Oh, it was hopelese I Dell saw the gray look sottled upon his face, and rememhered that Novemher morruing two yours hefore. How strong he was thon, and now so wealt and maimed. It was very pitiful. Toars sprang to her eyes. Did he oaro for hor now? Bell stepped to the window, water just below filled the slence ; hut she mus eay Bomething. "What are those curious thinge, Stephen ?"
she asked presently, going back to the thought he had scared away.
Stephen explained: "Invontions-he had puz zled over them in the eveninga heforo he went to the army-patented now some of them and the army-patented now some of them and proved." Bell's faoe hrightened in surprise and "They will make you riol, wou't they?" "Ycs," Bit there was uo gladncsa in his face "And famous too ?" Perhaps!"
"You aro very
"Arn't you unreasonablo?"
"Ahout
Am I ${ }^{\prime \prime}$. "Rich and famous, what else oan yon want? "You kuow what I want. Oin! Bell, givo it "You mel"
"

Well, I never!" It was Miss lucy who said it

"What do you moen " $"$ "
"To think thet the fiow ry a blackismithy"
H'shav! Hugh atill

Rohin" and Dr. Thorne stopped trito the cebnit The cottage has pnt out many quoor little wing and profections ; a bay window looke orer the and whits morning-glories open in the summe unrieo; the forge fire Boll comes over and looks st the wondornu thinge growing ap under Stophen'e direction, her hrown hair hlown awey from her forchead in the pretty old fashon. Thay walk back to the colplo in tho wido world.

NEUTRALITY

A volituag bat on au old oak troe, And he oooked his headt so koowingly, As he piped awny $\rightarrow$ ' Neutrality.
A rooster perched on a neighboring tree, Coelk-andoodle-doo for the "Land of tho Free, Our motto shall bo-' 'Neutrality.
And so they kept up a jolly good time, That had asved their beaks from the dirt and alme
Of warring peoples in other olimce.
So they roosted togothar on a shaky old troo, Thifg gray old vulture and the oeck, you sou; And they got as fat as fat ean be,
Singing all the time-"Neutrality.

FOR THE FAMILY

Tom, what in the world put matrimony Well, the fnot fa, Joe, I was getting ehort of ohirts. A renchant having advertised for a youth Wo was "qualk as igures" a yoump man eppenred tbe next morning, hringing his mother agility in the lancers and the polkal

Tye wit doservedly won his bet who, in com-
 Tar lion and the horse disputed ono day ah

"How do you like me now ?" asked a belle ay longer."
We lately met a grammarian, eaye a Cali-

"Weit, Samho, what's yer up to, now-11ags ?"
"Oh,
"He,
orm?
orm
" Wha
"rm ",
"#hat department? Why, I doeas the circular work,"
"What'o dant ?"
Why, I turns the griuditonel" ${ }^{\text {" }}$
"Pax, you have dated your letter a week
shead. It is not so lats in tho mouth by one week, you

Wmow Grizzle's hughnnd lately died of writhing in agony, his gentle wift asid to him:
it Woil Mr. Grizzle , on De din't hiok, about 60 and wear all tho ahcots out, if you are dying," Punch, eome time since, had this joke
"Tmon Vksizts. The duel between thie M Nat Mrok Vustut,-The dual betwoen thie Merrimac

Waper bays that, althungh he never baw a "tho run oid, he has seen lots of collera limp vithio " tha" run ofi, h.
be puet fow duys.
WHy are soveral young ladios going in a wragon to a country bail, with no end of bagrs+de, ilite treag? Beannso their hearta are in thefr trankn.
Marmenz- "How terrihly the ship lehors !" arclained tho poseenger to the enptain, an they tood togetber in the bbight or the bininecle; "what cargo lavive oun in the hold?" ou in the hold ", "replice the captain, torning his tele.
"Petrolamin
 Apropos to Gen. Grant, a soldier writes from tho froat that althongh the men ullo thelr otium anm dig, they prafer the ofium witboat the dig.

The Criaj's Wan Truns, - The other day while a chld was running st full speca on the uidowilk

 pitruity st her numer chumed to ther mother
"Oh, dearl what
 us. Werweleri zur sinol siont Cbwese Lithzature.

Mock remains unsung," as a tomeat ssid
a briekbat cut short his igresode.
How should a lover go into his finir one's nousco. Always with a riug and never without a ral. AT a reeent meeting of the Hritish Ethno-

A Play $S$ whi
A Pruxr SaluD. .-The Sonthernerk, at the [^27]

position on kenesaw mountain, June 29.-From a Skeioh by our Spequal Artisi, J, F. E. Hiluman.

ISABEL.

Are the obeske of Tashed in snow Like the vioustest that grom 'Mong the daikize in the dell Are har egss : the atars of night
Ne'tr a mortal heart did swell With such pare and fond delight As the oyss of Iatbel.
Musie tremhles on tho if Oh1 the fairy Inabel
 1 would eoin my brsin snd eoul,
Could tha mintags bny a fpell Could thr mintags bny a kpol
That would wat mo to ngy goal-
Waft and win me Ianbol.
As the sound of adver fine Is the voice of Isasbel; Wit, like bubbles on tho wine, Pure as pearts in ocean shell, Sparkicithrough her goldon theme Jofful ns a marriags ball I conth glide adown life'betro
In oze beat with Ienbel.

THE MYSTERY OF "THE PLACE:"

 bTORY IN THREE PARTS. by J. W. WATson.part mi.-chapten y.
"Asp so, ma'em, you couldn't eay certainly Whe ther the figure that you saw and apoke to in our room, the first time, wao man or woman? yurbelle could not say. The light wae go imperfcet thatit wre imposiblo to seo with certhint, hat by the rohe she thougbt it was a woman. "Could ahe tell, by what she saw of the face, how old it might be ${ }^{\text {" }}$ "ueationed Mr. Brobbett. how old it might bo ? queetionco Mir. Brobbets.
"Yes ; perlhaps about thirty or thirty-five. But something unexplainable, than sot down for an eeppeiial laga."

Was thare no sound uttered by it?
None; only a lond breathing, which could he Neard aeruess the rooun Cosbelle and wilton, and asked every question, and thion dieoussing a hentry supper under the caglo eyes of Millor, A enperrieion that mas thorongly ry roturned hy Mr. Brothett, though lise olkeerrable, awnounced his intention of taking a walk down to the villa se a mile distant, where walk down to the viliage, a mile distant, where alout an hear afterwirds hie eould he seen bented at the village store, aeting oracle for a group of country people, having, before his departure from
"The Phee," eeutioned both Isabollo and Witon "gainst mentioning to any one his profession, er poaking of him in any other light than as a with & messange.
"And eo," said Mr. Brobbett, "yeur poorhouse is ton mades away. Weil that's bettor than having right lara wuder your noges, don't you see. And I suppose you havent' get many vagrante about here as a pormanent thing ?"
"No," "No," "poke up one of the gossips, "Wo ain't tronled with that ere sort to" cattle much."
"Noo "No woman, now, for instance F " suggested Mr. Brobibott.
"
"There ain't a right poor woman out of the poor'ue within twelve mile hut nunt Sally Nicholes, an' shee's not hoeu outen her shauty for thin two ant er more.
"Nor any crazy folles, nor idiots, I supp
now was Mr. Brobbett's next obeerration. "'Thero arry't sioh a thing next obververvetion. distanee, 'oppt crazy Pote.
"And $I$ guess it oming up to-liny? waid I met on the road oot wisbing to have to ask a direct degcription of that individual.
"Guees not," Was the rejoinder. "Pete's wont Which hothered Mr. B
Which hothered Mr, Brohbett exceediugly, leaving no hook on whieh to hang the supposition, that che nttempt may have heen made hy some roving ragabond or maniae of the neighborhood. Thereiore Mr. Brobbott ventared on snother tack and talked about Stanaicld, finally setlingy, vit of gossip abont the Swinton fanily.
" Tbe old man was an henest follow,
"Tbe old man was an henest fellow," said one white-haired ancient, who stood, whip in hand ane a team at the door, just to drink one mug more of aider, and hear just ene more story from eomodider, and hear just ene more atory from eomo-lody. "He didu't turn up his uoso at his callin', ven though he made money aud got rich. Eut I ven though he made money aud got rich. Eut I an't eay es much for that ere son of his, the an't eay as much for that ere son of his, the sther of the prosent one. Ho went to York and labbled a litite in everything, and everything grned to gold onithit And it's the eeme way with good name with it. And much sbout him. Wheu he was young he wes wild and run away frem loome, and tbey heer'd ubout hifon down to South unerriky, and ather outlaudish phnces, and it wasn't till long after he'd grow'd to bo a fuan that he came bome again!
Inoka fter tbe farm?"" said Mrr. Brobbett, leoking ont of the corner of his out of the corner of his eye at the old farmer.
"Looks arter the farm! Hel he! hel Kar'Inte ho don't lecer none 'bout the farm. Why in's got more money in ene day than you or 'I in a ar. He's dowa bere a heap, hat it ain't to look "Wbat is it, then? ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ sead Mr. Brehhett, coming the direot quostion.
"That's zacty what nobody lanows. There' rauge talls 'bout things up to "The Phace. rauge talle 'bout things up to "The Place."
mio asye one thing and some says another ; hut mo baye one thing and some says another ; hut s a hect that thero's somethmy strunge about it.'
" Ghoats, now, for instance," eaid 3rr. Brobbett, hazarduag the idea.
"'mbat'a eo !" said the old man, "Choote it is.
don't asy'at I b'lieva in ghoste, but I ahonlan't hke eitch stories to git ant
there is up to Swinton's."
"D'ye mind the time when Jim BIakeley eaw thet thing boppin'aronad the house lust wintor r? ${ }^{\text {t }}$ chimed in a rongh-looking teamstor, who had been balk' ing his boote to a cinder for the lingt hour, "Warn't he sleered thongh 1 Glory । Bnt whon he lim in yer thet night, he was jist as white under the gill
"Why he rood a woman dreesed in a lon gewnd, an' a lot of fixings all over her arme and hasd. He'd hiu ap to "The Pluce" to team a load hasd. He'd hin ap to "Tbe Pluce" to team a losd of wood to 'em, and was jnet oomin' away, 'Lont dark, when this srs thing rum rigbt ont in front of right in his face. Jim swore he'd never scen sich syes sicce ho was born.

"Did it eay any thing ?" Was Mr. Brobhett's nest

 question."Yee; guessit did. It sside e lot o' thinge that Jim didn't maderstand. He says it's' 'eause it was Jim didn't understand. He says it's 'eause it was not English; bnt us fellers say it wae 'oase Jim wot Engifis ; bnt u wae too fightened.
Deeply interosted was Mr. Brobbeth, and exceedingly pleosed was Mr. Brobbeet's friends at oeedingly plobsed was Mr. Brobbett's friends at having found a real live Yerker who didn't "pat on airs," and whe would liaten to their reeitale with zeet. And thonglitfull was Ur. Brobbett that night zoet. And thonghtfal was dr. Brobbett that night as he walked down to "The Placo," end perhaps as he walked down to "The Placo," and perhape nerpoue handing of a doft contrivance for discharging esven half ouncos of lend with unerring certainty, which be sliways carried in a cortain pecket for certain oceasious. Partioularly did Mr. Darins Brohbett finger this instrument ne ho went up that lonely garden Well, and especially did his small gray syos smap around in every huel did his small gray syos snap around in every huth and over every stone both of the grounds and the houee ; but to no effeet, for ho was seon eafely houee ; but to no efteet, for he was seon earely housed and in consultation with Pegton, withat having met with sny adventuro sicoilar to that of baving met with sny adivent
"Now, then, sir," eaid Mr. Brobbett, carneotly "there's one thing in sll this matter the got to diseuss, and that thing is ghosts."
got to discuss, and tbat thing is ghosts, Wilton could not help smiling at this first proposition of the detective, who went on:
"Boenuse $\mathrm{I}^{\prime}$ ma man who don't boljeve in ghests, "Boosuse I'ma man who don't bobeve and never did. So that'part's settled."

Peyton noddded assent, considor is that this affair has hoon done hy seme pe
Another nod of sassent.
"New, thon, who could have a motive in the denth of Mrs. Swinton but her husband? an next, whe could he get to do the jeb?
Peyton waited to hear farther.
Peyton wnited to hear farther
"He didn't de it himself, that's clear. That it wasn't done by that heusekeeper or the girl is also outside to do it? As far as I've heon able to lear to-night, no one. Now, Mrs. Swinton eays poei-tively that there has heen no one here in consultatively that there has heen no one here in consultation with Colonel Sninton or Mra. Miller eince sho tion with Colonel Sminton or Hra. Mulcr eno sho entered the housp; and ae they didn't lnow of her eoming, the thing couldu't have been arranged isn't, there'e one thing certain, which ie, that if they've boen able to cover up their footprints so well as that, they'll be ablo to oover 'cm up altogether, and we shan't be able to hit on the oue gether, and we shan't be able to tit on that did it at all. Now, then, what's tho nost supposition? Why, tbat they didn't know anything zboutitat all, and for rohbery, or by some crazy beggar er tramp fite beggar or tramp for rohbery, or by Bome crazy person-a supposition that don't hold good, don't you soe, beoanse if it was so they wouldn't he so you soe, because if it was so they wouldn't he anxions to hash it up. You-sco tbat, den't you?" anrions to huesh it up, Yousoc tout, den't yo "Weyton did see But there Mr. Brobbett was bothered. "What then "' he echoed; "tbat's the question. Why, what's the next idea? That thero's somehody in this houss that we don't know of-that's tho next idea!"
And Mr. Brohhett lookedinto Peyton's astoniehed fuoo with a very professional eatiafuetion.
"Imposable!" ojaculated Wilton. "If thero monstration of it."
"Mra. Swinton hasu't got mo eaid Mr. Broblett, oracularly.
"WWat
the Pest
What do I advise ?" caid Mr. Beytons asked. "Wh. Iadvise this house to be eearched. It can't do any herm; and if any oppoeitionis made, I advise the loching of Coloucl Sulinton into his own reom and the haudcuffirg ef Mrs. Honsekeeper-that's And In Ir ine And Mr. Brobbett clinched his advico hy hringing the articlee mentionod from bia pocket, and giving them a gentlo shake before Peyton's cyes, giving them a gentle shake beiore Peyton's cyes, "Rathor a positive way of doing the thing," was Peyton's quiet reply. positives whon we get such folke es this 'ero Mullor to deal with ${ }^{\prime}$ " cor, as though he was a mightly timid ahont that lady's ontering in tho midest of their collequy. Therefore it was agreed that next morning, without mentoning the matter to Isnhelle or Mre. Peyton-lor, as Mfr. Brobbott romarked, "Women have their uses, but they're better not mixod.upin these affairs" - the honee was to he searehed at all hazards, and ooMr. Broblett and Poyton Bcparated, hazards, ond oomfr. Broblett and Poytonseparated, the first to go with rather more noieo tban wai his wont th his romen na though he wanted it apparant he was not afraid, on the principle thet a boy whietles if the dark, and having prepared lumself partialy for bed und blown out tbe light, to elentiy and steulthily, taling that eame sevon-elhooting and, in the very darlitet comor of the room, scat, opon take up what loeked yery like a watoh ior the urght,

It was long atter midnight, and all the inmates of "The Pisce" Wers eupposed to Lsabelle ehared her conch with Mrs, Poyton, a knock on the wall conld summon him in an instant, while Mr. Brobbett's apartment was on the opposite side of the hall, and direetly nnder hat of Colonel Swiuton.
Tbe firat bresth to braak ths monotony of tho night was the sound of a quick rotee from the might Was the sound of a quick volee from the reomabove, not words that Mr, Brobbeit could distinguisb, bnt as tbongh a frightened call had been made, and almost instantly the sound of feut pon the floor, at which, like an alarmed dog, Mr. brobbett pricked up hifs ears and listoned with and intensity thnt shonld have penetrated coiling snd foor, In another mement a sound was heard as of the fall of a heary bedy ebove, and Mr. Brobbett, eterting to his feet, opened his door that led into tbe hall, aud stood on one side, waiting. He da not have to wait long, for in a few seconds the ind a lond thastain, at hainoad, openedhes the and a loud, sharp langh rang over the heuse, that almest in an inetant cured Mr. Brobbett of hif disbolief in gheste, and was followed by a roice, which he know directly ae that of Colonal Swin-ton'e theugh he had never hoard it, crying sharply ton'e theugh for 3riller.
Following rupon this came the patter of rapid tops the unlighted bnll to receive into bis arms a gigue that made even his celd blood dance sure that mains hotly, by itt very grasp, fer
through his veis though the deteetive had proficred found in a moatoppage to the Aying agme, ho that pair of hands were on hie throat with the tonacity of a fiend, which all his etrengtb ded to unlock. Never before bad Mr. Brohbett been in euch a cituation. It wae only by the dim ght of the meonstraggling through his own room nto the ball that be ceuld see anything of the grare that had clutchod him, and by it he saw what he hardly could helieve human. The figure was tall, almest teo much so for a woman, with deeply eunten, and elcin fairly drawn tight ever the bones. Tbis was tbe fearful apparition that had fastened upon Mr. Brobbett's throat, not allowing him even a ohance to call sloud, It was a terrible etruggle fer a minute betwoen him anc the figure, but tbo hithe, active man was almost at the first grasp overpo, but not relinquishing its going down with him, but not relinquishing its hold. Suddenly there was a report, $&$ flasi, a ierce and deathly saream, and the figare ryme wny from Mr. Brobbett's throat at the very menent that Peyton's door opened and Mre, Nillex appearod st the top of the stairs.
Br, Brobbett was on hie feot instantly, ehuking himsolf fike a beaten dog, and rumning his hands in a firightoncd way ever his throat, and Miller and Colencl/Swinton were banding ever the prostrate

figure, with Peyton leo  fuunded beyond actien.

"For God'seake, Peyton, teop Isabelio and your wite from comiuts here! Do it it you caro for tbem !" came gasping from swinton, Peyton turned towards their roem, and stapped
his wife, who had that instrat opened the door, nd with o few luyried words bogging the dor main there quiet, took the key and mado a surety of their obedienoe by locking the door on tbe outfide. He oame back to see Colonel Swinton and siller raising the prostrate igure in tbeir anme and preparing to earry it away. Mr. Brobhett was and preparing to earry it away. Mr. Brobhett wa part he had played, and Wittou could only offer his seelistance to he zejected by Colonol Swinton. "No, no!" he answered to the proffer, "for God's snke, Peyton, let us alene now. Everything stall be explained in the morning. Benove me, co ont of the homese It yon really care for Iee go out of the honse. It you really care for Ier belle, now is your time te show it. Don't tell her or your wife anything untill 1 soe you in the morning. Keep that man in the houss, No harmshall come to him," and he dikappeared up the stairs, oarrying the limp and lifoless figure in has arnus, Pcyton returned to tho apot whero stood Mr Pcyton returned to tho spot whero stood Mr.
Brobhett, and taking him by tho arm led bim bsck to his room, whero, when a lamp was lit, it the evout through which ho had juet passod, ani syes twice as restlees as those of an hem 'bofore. "What do y
out to Peyten
"strangel vary strange, and terrible I"
hett said, pointing with his thumit towards the upper roorn.
Nothing to you," was Peyton's assirod reply
Mr. Brobbott seemod much relieved, nni an down.
"I w
'I wouldn't have had the thing happoned for twenty dollars ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ gaid Mr. Brobivelt, slapping his thigh with an emphasis, as twough he had pheovd a hifb pecuniary value ou the tranauclion.
"Now, Mr, Brobhets, there's only one thing for atiun. Tm not ageing to run away, even if I 'm
"Ohy for it," angwered Mr. Brobluct. "You"l ind me hero in the morning, alive or dend."
And to Peyton returned to lits room, and from there to that of his wifo and Isabielle, to reassur them, and heg thein to wait till mornigg for an explanation, and onco more quiet, if not aloep, explanations, nud osco ectiled upon the honse.

Is was ecarce deylight next morning when Mir Milltr eppeared at Peyton's rooma with a roques that Pcyton was wakingly expeotant of, and instantly acoorded. That tbe honselkecper had paned throagh a night of terrible agitation wes depicted on her finoe. She looked ten yoars oldor than the day hefore, and in her very tons and manaer of addross to Wiltoa showed a rinking of tbat courage which, whother it was real or unreal, kept her stern and prond the day previoue. Ho entered the room to find Colonel Swinton stretched upon the bed, nnd to ses by the light, which wne still burwing apon the mantel, a white faco and bloodlesa lips, aceompnnied by a look trom the eyee tbat told of strength snd will burucd, if not to the socket, at lenst to that point where the ligbt Alickera nad is unsteady. Siwinton pointed to a chnir at his bedside, and Peyton sestod himself, wnitugg for some worda from him thst alould epen the conversation. When he did speak it was in a low, deliberate tone, as a man would spenk who had been wouken would spenk who had been woakoned by sicknoas,
"Peyton, it sceme that $I$ am to sppend in my "mbeyton, it seeme that $I$ am to sppend in my ask the merey at your hands that I sbould ask at "Colonel Swinton, you talk to une in riddles. I have not the slightest conception of yomr meaning, I have, I believe, in thitio matter actod only as a Ihave, I behove, in this matter actod only as a truo friend of Mrs. Swinton's, and in so doing I cartainly have been a true friend of youra. a strange you shown mach friendsbip ul hinging a stranger inte my house to be a wieness of what it would have been botter to have kept within ourselvee?
" $Y_{6 u}$ ?
"You made no offer, so fur, to enter upon any nothing of myself. You have ofiered nothing that would livve led to the expeetation of a seeue like that of last wight""
"Whe was that man?" asked Swinton, without anewering Poyton's acenantion. Peyton was ilent.
"Will you not toll me who the man is that hae "come a partner in revelatiens that sheuld been kept only witbm a family lenowledge?"

Poyton hesitated a moment, noul thon answered

"He was an employed detective."
"As I euepected ए" Swiuton said, ns though peaking to humsolk, "What doce he knew?"
"Notbing, as yet, hut wbat you know of," Notbing, as yet, hat wbat you know of,"
But what I know of? How do I kuow of But what I know of? How do I know of what or you may have come to the knowledge of? he or you may have come to the knowledge of?"
"Colonel Swinton, I know uothing but what your wife hue told me, and what has been told yourself, as well as what I bavi last night."
"And this morning you expect from mo a solu"And this morning you expect fro tion of this mystery, as you think it?"
"Yes?"
"Peyton, I do not feel that I have any right to dony 1t, eitbor to yourself or Iqabello, but I say to ruin to hoth her and myeclf!"
Colonel Swhinton had raised himself to a sitting positiou on the bed, as he said this, with a fieree earnestnees, but not in a threatening way, when of tbo oick math, but hastily and without quiet. She came directly to his bedeide and locned over, whispering on few words in his car. Colonel swinten sprang from the bod, and hurried on a dress-ing-gown that hung over a chatr; turning to Peytom as he dia so, and making a velument Peyton as he did so, and metion of his hand, he said:
"Come I for God's sake, follow me!"
Through the hall they went to a passage on the ght, off from whicb led a stairease, independent a door, the only ene at the head of the stairs, which tbe housekeeper seemed to open by some pring which whe stooped to rench, and at once they were in a suite of rooms furniehed witb more care and expenge than the rest of tbe houso, end are and expense than thed with small articles of foroign mako sud ol exquisite taste and worlmanehip.
Past two reoms, apparently used as parlors er draving-roome, into a large chamber the three amried to find Doctor Warnor staniling by tho ido of a luxirions bed, leaving ono hand upon the loot, and looking earnestly upon whoover lay Colonal Swiuton was the first to approach the bou stood in salcut astonishment just insido the loor, to sce the ligure in the bod tarn, and to roor the creatare, be it mon or woman, that bed attompted the lite of Isabelle end of Mr. BrobibetThe dark, sunken cycs uev lacked the wilthees they had borne, and tho face had no ferocity of ar. The hips wore bloodless, and tho. nostrils inched, but there was un air of intelligence in tho xpercasion as swinton preased tho witherod haud to has hps. Doctor Wamer bent dewn to tho enr of tho imeeling man and whispersd some words, "Dyng1"
Swinton had drawn his faco close to that of tbe
suro, aud in a voice trembliag with emolion, aguro,
said:
and
"Marie, do you know mo?"
Tho woman mutio a motion, as though to riso, speakos.
"Doctor, do you think there is any returning
"Pbere is no doubt of it," was the answer.
Again Srinton bent his faco to the woman enic Whaspered a Iew carcessing words in Freuch. Hes rayu nearer tho bed, fad stood lookngs with tonriul oyes upon the dying woman, wbo, eatching is quect look up into her face, elowly pnt forth ths s quich look up into her face, elowly pnt forth the other hand to the housckeeper, whe, aeizing it, pressed it to her lips, and sobbing out "Oh, madame!" as suddenly ruleasod it, and pussing ts he upper ond of tho room had her fice inabel part of the honse could be expected; stringe w poo this dying woman, whom he oonld connect

their ocoupant; snd siraincrestill to see him so

 presence, and to see this womsi, Mre. Miller, presencs, and tho had taken for the omhodiment of icinesssnd eclifishnees, give way to what hes knew must snd selfishnees, give way to what he knew most he real regret and heart sorrow for the dying For some minntes all remained in silence, the For some nimest heary hreatbing of the woman only being heard, until Doctor Warner made a step towarias her and uook up the hand that Miller had releneed, nad took up the hand th touehed the pulse.
"She ean laet but a few minntes longer," he said, in a low wbieper to Swintoo.
The dying woman muat have caught the eound or the words, for she turned her oyes qnickly upon or him , and in a voice strongly hetraying the foreign aecent, soid:
"Only a few minntes, monsieur?
 of astoniehment, and looked for an instant almoct
in terror st the epeaker, snd Atiller wae hy the in terror st the epeaker, and haideres. The woman brought back her eyes to Swinton'e fnce, and spoke again:
"Oh, Marie I how bappy I sm to hear your voice once again "
"It bas heon a long, long sleep," she low weary tone, "bnt I sm awake now," Swinton was leaning over, preseing bi to hors, snd looking into her dim eyes. "You aro erying, Georgel Is it hecnuee I have nwakened and can once more epeak to yon, or ho-onuse, as monsieur snys, I am to die in a few minonuse, as monsieur Bnys, I am the dion eohe of the one utea ?
There whe no anawer but the sbe wae addressing, "Ie it not hetter that $I$ ehould die & Sometbing tells me that I have hcen a weary hurden to sou for many years. Sometimee I lenew this in my for many years, Sometimee I knew this in my dreams, but never while I was waking. Now I oan dook in your face and upon the toncbes of silver in your hair, and see that for yeare what you must have horne burdened with one wheee race wae accureod. Oh 1 why did yon eo hurden yourself hecanee I loved you? Do not turn amay your face eause I loved you? Do not turn away your face, George, I know the soeret, I have always known George, I know the scoret, I have always known it, even in my meet vacant bours. Monsteur, esn it, even in my meet vacant boura. Honsieur, es I may live, if only for an loor, that I may say all I would eny to lim who has given up his heet years for me, who hae never epoken harebly or locked for me, who hae never epoken harebly or looked unkindly, even wben I in my madness would have elain him? Nol well lot it he eo then I Oh, Ire-member it all now George, put your hand upon member heart. Whero are you, darling? The light grows dim. Let your face lie cloee to mine, Kissliss lins me, George [" Tbere was a end efillneee in the room, only broken by the sobs of Miller, and the long monne of Swinton, and Peyton wont forth and loft them with their dead. The cattike step of Dr.
Warner followed him to the outer room, where he eqooks: "Mr, Peyton, ne Colonel Swinton's truated friend, I wonld beg that you defer the balance of the intorview I whe forced to break off for an hour to pass your lips until ite conclusion. Colonel Swinton will heep nothing from you, You eholl know all as soon as he is suftieiently compesed to speak witlt you.
Peyton bowed to the doctor in acquieecence, and left the apartment. What be had passed through bad beon os witneas, it offered no olucidation to his mind. Who was the woman from whom he had neen life depart that morning? She had been a maniac without doubt, and in that state had attacked Inabelle and Mr. Broblett, hat ehe had died sane, oxpreacing the decpest love to Swinton and gratitude to thoes ahout her. All the surroundiugs showed that sle had been kept with eare and luxury; but why sbe had been allowed to wauder out, snd while attempting the life of another lose her own, was a marvol thet Pegton
eould not unavel,
He found AHs. Brolhett in his room, dieensaing his breakthet with an appetito sttle impaired by his breakthet with an appetito bttle impaired by tbe eventa of the night, nnd yet vervously anxioue tbrongh, Mr. Brobbett did not generally besitate to ask questions, but there was eomething in the fuce of Peyton that forbade it, and taking it for grantod that tbe request that ho elhould wait a few bours for a gratifeation of curiosity was properly founded, be was almost silent. It was the awaited in sileat anxioby the time that ehould elacillate tho myatery.
RAILROAD TRAINS GOINC UP THE JAMES.

TREASURE-TROVE.

iy ADA veooxas.

Fane on my sight, ye Northom skies No more 1 oce your talien hass, Bat spaces swoet of eunny hlue Aud lines of palaces arise.
A wind from Pastam's rosy howere Sweeps o'er my hrow, and low snd swoet With many s psuso and mormor fleet Along the ebore the azure waves Lisp in the sunshine ; far snd near
The Contadinn's song I hear, And on the sand Venetis laves
Her feet in Adris 1 hssinteous queen,
And heanteous bride, whoee emiling face And heanteous bride, whooe emiling Sheds all wound s wordless grace, And ntill preeerven the golden mean.
And now upon hor ceren hills The mistrees of the world I seed
Oh, Rome I I bow and worship theoFaith now my longing wibh fulfils.
Mine eyee have known thee ; happy eyes
To know the towers that Crearr knew, To gaze upon the eelfame hluc That stained the hanghty victor's eki
Yet, bappy heari, witbin those streets The Ccnoi's daughter mst her doom To tbat whieh every tyrant greeta.

But now betore my cager sigbt The vieion fades; a mist of tesra Has dummed the aream of my firet years-

Afur gleams Florence in the eumHer level roofs and marble Epires Aglow with golden noontide iresAglow with golden noonti of fairy eities, faireet one.
I yearn to clasp thee. Even eo Yearned Dante in his exited gloomNor found contont withiu the to

Without theo, Italy, my own My queen of ail the peopled earth 1 By right of loving-it is knowu To poet-hearta whate'or we love Is ours; and thus I call thee mine, Though but in dreams I ece thee shin

HE REBELS AT BLAIR'S HOUSE. Tre elegant residence of the Hon. Montgomery Blair, at Silver Spring, nour Whehinglon, was totally deatroyod ty te rebee, aithough it wes proChacd at frat that it was precorved through the intorforience of Ex-Vico Prepident Breckinridge, The has is a nationel one, es among the contents were an exten.
ive corrempondonco with the grnateat men of his tos. anttore invalualle for tha future political history of the country.
Our Artiot given a nkotob of the ruine, and a graphite picture of tove raiders caroueing in the ruine. Upon one pictore of the raidcra caroueing in the runio. Upon one of the breuze uran shown was the inecripilon in panci:
 The United State Gencrale wouldn't have tranted you thue, if you biad heen a arehol, es you call ue. May you

What protection was the roino toll. The writer woll know tuabt on Amariean Ganerai woold have trented the dmits it. They spared nothing tut a carte-de visite o conpleto wain their havyoc, oni thes way carricd of
On unother vece wan writhan:
12, "The J 1854

BATTLE AT FORT STEVENS,

When news of the rebel invasion reached Grant, he sent up to City Polnt the old oth corps that hid to long batiled undor sedgwick. Gur reader will and a viow ef tholr embarkation at City Point in our columne to-day. They went pertiape enjojing the soare of the Wailington people, nuttle eurpecting that ander tho egee of the President.
About sir o'clock on the 13th the robole ehowed Fort stercus Gen. Wrigbt orderod a minull brigade of infuntry to clean out the uncmy from his front. The infuntry to clean out the uncmy from his front. The dwelingu ou tho luil opposits, ehelter for ebarpetooture Were preliminarily emptied lyy shelle, which act then on fre-sielle pent from Forto Maesochusetts and Slocum. Then our infantry rosa, and, with o fanlilit Slocum. Then our infuntry rowa, and, with a fanliki spreading to the right and left, deshed with hmraha o

WILLIAM PITT FESSENDEN.

BATTLES OF KENESAW MOUNTAIN

June 2a-z.

Kenceaw mountain, a gecond Lookont among its fillows, ss nome one woll remarke, was the spot
chowa hy Johnoton ue the latt defence to $\Delta t$ lanta, in the peries of Ape on Appe through which the America army has fonght ita way. It if about four milen int on the Banks, und presenting, as our rasders o'n judges,
a most dignitied appearance. a moat dignifted sppearanco.
Sherman recolved to binl
of the right and left of his army advaneoc, the contro maintaining its porition arourd and upon the bane ef the mountafa in the teeth of a very heary artiliong fire from the rehel Latitories. The 20th and 23d
The 20 th and 23 d wheoled on the leff, to hem in the robets between our line and the roilrond. The 14 th robets betwen our here enemy, whe charged furioualy, $a$ muakct. Butteries I and MO of the 1at New York bnd eccurd positions which gave them a crossfre upoa the proved entiroly too hot for them. proved entiroly too hot for them
Agalh, obout six ot ${ }^{\prime}$ clock, they and were driven buck etil more mpilaly by a cambline Are of artily ry and mugketry, whithen muat, from the opeaness of the ground, have proved very dentructive.
Gur losses were eilght. They did not probahiy oxceed 200 lillled und wonnded during tho doy, end one quarte of this lowe wae auffored by the 1 thi Eeutucky.
To cover this ansuitt upon Hoolior, at olevem
To cover this annautt upon Hoolor, at olevem A.s, the enemy opened a ripid hat randona are upon our contro enemy opened a rapia hat randon dre upoa our ront on high ridgea, and frem Big and Litlle Kencesw end Baid vigor and preciston, At every diecharge of our guna irom the ceremy.

The peints de tions, Sherma

upon Int pres nes

LITTLE JOHNNY'S CATECHISM.

BrafannL-Can you tell me, child, what you Lirmie Joimary- I am a vory amall member of a vory weak Caliset, in a very ereat conntry. Weik Cabiset, in a very great conntry. Buravin-How do you account for having becomo LirtLe Jorasyl-By reason of tho nome which 1 lm - heritad from my fathors und tiy graniluthere at my Bampanyu-Did thoy dive you anything elio at your Burangi- Have you any other higber dutica?
Iaxize Jognix - No.
Brixasmul-ch poor Jolinnyl how gedly you bave heen neghectad. fell me, child, how did you expect to

 Bolvod this eountry in whr Barkaskil -And will thio keep you in ofico?

 happen?
LITrLE Jornss - We alall Llockado all the Gorman poits, and keep ont our own conmeree, ond everything cruiecere umder the German hay will dentroy our coro
merce, and heve French will carty the troch of the world
nd pet the mine wad get the Rhinc provinces, ond wo thill prebably go BrimuskiA-Nougbty hoy; did sou see all this of the boginning?
 LrTrLL JomsNY - Obl yea, BrrasNz-And you thluik

 arainet the primelple of nationaily in Holatomi natieg
the eoopertion of the Enapcror imposuble? But you can onple

Tere editor of the New York Monthy stotes rend listely: "Going into an ordinary for hie diuner, bo Wus nurpiried to observe tbe extra crire with- Which e genlleman, who took the ouat eppoitsu to him, took of thats of and commenced bis dimincr. The and ite con

A simile.

Tas family is like a book; The parents are tho cover, $t$ frot the pages of the hook Are blank and purely fairBut Time soon writeth memories

Tove io the litilo solden olam That bindeth ap the trust: Oh, hreak it not! lost all the lenvea shonld ecatter and ho should ecatter and he lost.

ATMT:

"Asry Lex is sick and not expected to live," said a hright, Hack-eyed hoy to his companion one heantiful antamn morning, as he outered the echoolroom. What did you cay, Willie ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ I aeked, feeling larmod at the nuwelcome tidinge.
"Why, teacber," answerod the child, "Amy was taken very siok late night with tho fover, and Mr. night, and got brother John to go for the doctor. Whea motber oame home thie morning ehe eaid Amy oould not live, and the doctor aaid so too., I could not qneetion the child furthor, I folt too ced and too heartaick. Conid it he poeesible that cad and too heartaick. Conid it he poeerihle tbat ono so yonng and benutiful as Amy away in her youth, just when lifo was most fair and lovely? With a ead heart I rang the gohoolbell to call my happy pupila to their stadies, and ae I took my esat among them I knew not how soon I wonld miss one of their merry facee, how eoon one of my littlo flook might he called away, eoon one of my bitlio flook might he called away, or thant I too might rocoive the summona. The proceding Sabbath I had epont the day at Amy's home. Amy had much to tell me ae we Bat togethor ou the vine eovered portioo. She was talking of the happy future, around which fanoy wove | 60 many chining garlands. She was soon to he |

| :--- | I kiseed her binehing cheek, snd prayed that life might bo always fair. But, thon, the morrow: now bittle we know what it has in store for us. It was now Thureday. Amy wae eoon to paee into the land of sbadee. That was a dreary day to me, and as I dismissed my eobolars in tho evening, I fondly h

weno not eo had as Willie said it waa.
Wae not eo had as Willie said it was,
That evening I walked elowly and endly acrose the flelde that lod to Amy's home. The twilight was growing deepor and darker, butI did not beed it, for my tbougbta were far away, trying to eolve tho myetaries of the futare. Bnt as I ontered the tho myetories of the future. But as I entored the eiok room I eaw et a glavee tbat hope was fruitlesa. eiok room I eave st s glance tbat hope was iruilicess, Amy wae sying on the bed, palo and motionless, and hor short, quick breathing told that life was ehbing faet, tho dootor stood hy, holding her pulse, bat se 1 entered bo hid it down and wout away, Father snd mothor, essters and brothers atood around, watebing the loved one with anxious cave.
James Walton, tho affianced hubband, was seated at the foot of tho hed with bie face bured in his hande, and I eaw his strong frame quiver and whake, like a tall treo of tbo forest as it hends to the mercilese wind. Oh, how I pitied him, I kissed the beautioul invalid. She opened her oyes and looked at me, a faint emile ebot across her featuree, but that was all. My entrance aroused Jamee. Ho arose and otood hy the hedside, and so her gazo foll on him sle etretehed fortb her armo for him to come nearor. Ho heat low till his fhce tonolod hers and kiseed her fovered lips, and then, covering hie fsce with his hands, wcpt bitterly. I left the room and his hands, wept bitterly, I leitt the room and turned my eteps townde bome. What right badI, a &tranger, to intrude? That was no time for idlo gazers on. The parents, I knew, would ruthor he alone with thoir dying clisid.
The moon had risen and wae ehining hrightly an
I retraced my stops, and my hoart felt oubdned aud eorrowful
The noxt morning Amy was dead. She had never again would we aee her more. The Sabbuth she was luried, iaid in the deop, eilent tomh. How henatifnl eho loolsed in her bridal robea I Little did fho think as alie etitebed together the enowy fabrio that it would moulder around bor in the tomh.
James Waiton turned away from that spot a ruined man, fost two yeare before he had first met Amy, whiue on a visit to his uncle'e who lived cloes by.
"You are very mach intorosted in egriculture, my boy," baid tho old inan: "I wil talke you torer my boy," baid tho old iman; "I will take you over to farnor Ley's this evening ; want you to 80 hie farm; everything is is apple-pie order, and ho has a fine daughter, too," asid the old man, witb a ely laugh; "You will need a bittle woman to take girl." ${ }^{\prime \prime}$
"Pshaw, uncle," eaid Jamee, "yon don't think never endure to tive out on the bleak prairie, and I got along very woll keeping hachelor's hall Bnt in epite of his hantering tones, James was intereeted, and wby he could not tell. Perhapo it That
That dny wae their firot meotiug, and the artless giri made an impreesion on his strong heart never to be erased. His visit was contidcrably lengtboned, and thoee pleasant sutumnul evonings invarinhly found him at furmer Ley's, Sometimes be and Amy would lake is walk owor the cooling hils, at others a mooningt riae, betwer and elwaye bappy, and when he went avay he left his own heart and took Amy's with him. It was the noxt spring the rehellion broke out James wrote to Amy in this mauner:
"AFy, strong arms and hrave hearts nre
wanted; will yon uot day, Go, James, with God"e hlessin", end protect our insulted bauner "
And Any did eay it, thongh it cost her many bitter teare, and many round spote on the paper showed where they had fallen, hat ahs loved her young lover moet deeply and truly for his nohle young lover patriotism,
Afow weeks found him with it hand of men ae hrave and nohle as himeelf; it wge Capt. James now. Any was sitting hy the window, aewing, ons day all alono, when a lond knock at the hulldoor day all alono, when a lond knock at the halldoor etartled her; who conld it he? and laying asid her work she went to the door. her work she went to the door. "Oh I Jamee, Jumen," ehe exclaimed, joyonaly, "how glad I am that yon have come." "I could not go sway withont seeing yon, Amy," he said; "hnt whon this war is over I will Amy," he asid; "hnt whon thie war is over I bave you with me alway, shall I not, Amy ${ }^{\text {P" }}$ And Amy aaid, "As yon please, James," to make her his lride, hut the day ohe was to have heen hie found her tbe hride of death. No wonder he was etanned hy tho hlow, sometimee the tali trees that hate stood the storms of timee the tall trees that have stood the storms of many yeare are lsid prostrate at a aingle mighty many yeare are laid prostrate at a aingle mighty hlast. He wout book to his men so ohanged, to eltored; he was no longer the gayeet, happiest man in tho regiment, poor Jamee. Wus tharo any work to ho dono requiring beart or courage, Capt. Jamos was the man, foremost in danger; the hraveet of the hrave was Capt. James, danger; the hraveet of the hrave was Capt. James, loved, honored and respectod hy all who knew loved, honored and respectod hy all who knew him, and the hoys asia, We will follow whero Capt. Jamee loads. Through many hloody hattles he $\left\lvert\, \begin{aligned} & \text { passed untonched, hut at last, once when the } \\ & \text { sinouts of victory were long and lond, his voice }\end{aligned}\right.$ shiouts of victory were long and lond, his voice

was not among them, and thoy found him cold and lifeless among the flain; an opened picture and lifeless among the elain; an opened picture dug his grave, and he and the pieturs will moulder together, hut in happier spheres may their eouls he reviited. their eouls he reunited.

An Axctery Ccstom. The triennial ceremony of "throwing the dart" in Cort harbor was performed a short time ago by the Mayor of that city. This Iormed a ahort time ago by the xayor of this city. This meniula by which in oldent itime municippal boundarles vere preserved and corporato rimhita asserted. A similar was formnarly bold by toe Lord Mayer and Corporation of Bublin, in which, aftor riding rouna the inhand boen.

Seaside SummerResor:

Mratrimony.-Why ovory man should marry, Why every womup abould marry, All mil.

The most ${ }^{\text {St Rich, Raro and Racy" Pa }}$

Wonderfal! Strange !

$$ 100$ per MKonth. Active and reliablo

 TORAL SEWING WTACHINES Preserves the Eyes, avoids bending. No basting. No Mracbine conpleto without it. Price 31 to, with

 WHISKERS & MOUSTACHES.   4012

The Greatest Thing of the Times.

 $450-62 \quad 239$ Dealere in Jowolky.

Italian Medicated Soap,
 chationit poome spins surroot buir foim low

"Alhum Goms"- Something Jow, Gay

${ }^{46}$ Self Preservation!"-A New IXedical Price
637, P. O., Nem Yorkic.
great prize distribution Gold Watches, Diamond Fings, Elegant Jewelry and Fancy Goods

WOF? $5500,000:$

T. BENTON & CO., Jewellers, 195 Erondmay, N. Y.

 for ONE BOLLaB, or it may be exchanged otier artcle ou our list of the 1 amp value NTO BBIC ANVXZSS:
MAY geta WATCH or BIAMOND RING for ONB Bon lurc drawn
Yoo MUS get the VALUE of your money.

Trinity Collection of Church.Inrsic.

RARE BOOES. AGENTS WANTED. PRIZE PACEAGES. AGENTS
NEW YORE AGENCX, 37 and 30 NISann Street, N.

Do You Want to get Mrarried ?

DYSTPEPSTA & FTMS!
+endern
A suaz cura for

 No. 19 Grand Street, Jersoy oity, N. J.

Fublished this Day.

BRADY'S MERCURY STORIES, No, 51
SADIA,
A zieroine of the Rebellion.

Grand, Square and Upright Pianoforties.

Warerooms, 652 Broadway, $\mathbf{N} . \mathbf{Y}^{2} ., 246$ WFashington Street, Bostan.
B. TH. IHATMEID, 2OS BROADWAY, N. Y.

Principal Army, Navy, Campaign, Masonic and Society Badge Manufacturer of the United States.

HOSTETTER'S chmbrratyd
STOMACH BITTERS.

 suirmer and in the fall tinn at any otiver besson, Aots, therefors, in te timo ta puit tho constitution and the or

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,

J．H．WINSLOW \＆CO． tiel eratist opporyunty yivr ofrzred 100,000

Worth \＄500，000：

Thio Confessions and Experience of an Invalid．

DISTIULID DEW

IT Your Wenze to Exmow
 MEDICAL COMMON SENSE．

Do Zou WFant Eusuriant Whiskers or 2Moustaches？

Wanted Everywhere，good reliable

Attention，Company！

 corming we of tho fict），can have their muney returned to them at any time within three monthe from day of $\begin{array}{cc}\text { A8s－s3 } & \text { P．O．Drawer A．C．OLAR，Albab，N．Y．Y．}\end{array}$
Eeauty．－Eunt＇s White Liquid ふnam－

 3roker＇o Stock of Unrodoemed Goods，     Cooley＇s Cabinet Printing Office FOR THE ARMEY AND  Merchantr，Benlo ors，Tonchere， Amatsums，etc．，ote．， And warranted to print in the best mannoes．Soud ior circular． Coolley， Sprace St，N． X

IRTERNNTMUERW，IETERNINTURJ WHOLESALE AND RETAIL， DEGRAAF \＆TAYLOR （TORMERET H．P．DEGRAAE），
NO． 37 IBOVVHRE，NJIVV TOFRE．
Thie oatablishmont fa nix etoress in helght，end extends 242 foet throngh to No． 85 Curyotis Street－making one of the largest Furaiture Houpes in the United Statia．

ROSEWOOD，PARLOR AND CHAMBER FURNITURE；

Mahogany and Walnut，Parlor and Chamber Furniture
Also，OANE and WOOD SEAT werli，AII qualitiea；FAIR，HUSR ana SPRING MATTRPSSES，a large stock
Tucker＂s New Style Patent Spring Bed The beas se well us tho chcapest of any in ure．Retell prica，so each．
Their focilities for manufacturing dofy compotition．All work guaranteed an reprosentod．

Do not Fail to Clet，on your way to the Boat or Car  FRANK LESLIE＇S Lady＇s Magazine

 TOR AUGUSK， 1864.Shch an arrys of Fashiona and Tashiton intolligenco wan
The Steel Double Page of Bridal Fashions is unequathem．
A FOUR－PAGE FASHION PLATE，
Jneleoth，Cuffa skirts，Wainta，Cbiliaren＇e Dresose， Colfiures in great varietz．

FULL SIZED PATTERN OF A CORSAGE， WITH COATBASQUE． contents ： ${ }^{\text {Mr }}$ Brether an
The Wiict Ghaot
Notes trom the CIfio of a Tragedienne．
The
The Bride of Oranienberg．
An Ex．Foliocmunn in Story．
A Faty stery for Little Folka．
With eligast IJuatration，Social Skethes，Natural Hitorry，Travell，comio seepee，ota
Frank Leslie＇s Lady＇s Magazine
Is the traahiost，mont racy and oharming of the monthices，and in point of musuatration monthiles，and in point of mustration

Bny a Number and be Convinced！ FRANK LESLIE， 537 Peari Street，N．y．

原

E18）
Barcont
Cray＇e Patent Molded Gatcont

 HATCLI，JOHNSON \＆CO．，
日1 Devonshire Stroet，Boato J．s．LOWREX \＆CO．， 37 Warren $8 \mathrm{st}, \mathrm{N} . \mathrm{x}$ ．
 HODGPS， AROS ， 23 Eanover St，Balitimora－ WALL STPPGENS \＆CO，
TEAYTTT \＆BEVIS，ocr．Fifth and vine sta，ioning． A．FRANKERES $&$ CO．， 434 Maxia St．Louleville． RRADFO

PLAYING CARDS！

 PLAYING CARDS． PLAYING CARDS．
BEST THHING OUTI

Finest Card Ever Issued ！

52 Beautiful Bictures．
anclose \＆1 25 sud three rud stompo for sample pact
EMMPLOXMENTI
AT YOUR OWN HOPMES．

Ziterary Agoncy，Sstablishod in 18A2．

 O publishera，

MATRPMONIAL FAVORS
 AND PARIS FLOWERS，
At TVCEMR＇g． 759 Broadway．
ETOUVARD＇S＂IMLIPROVID＂ SWIEAT PROOF

Soldiers＇Txoney Belts．
 to the qualhty denire Ad Adren
HOWARD BEIS CO．， 436 Broadway，N．Y

Storenecopic Views and Cartes de Visite

Whe इarly Bhysical Degeneracy of American Zeople，
And the enrly melancholy dociline of collihood and Youth futi pabiniled by DR．SONE，Plyyoilnn to the Troy Lune ond Hye Troy Lune nixd Hyeronic Thatitate．

 DR．ANDEEW STONE

75，000 Watches，Chains，\＆\＆ VOFRTE \＄400，000．

|  |  ${ }^{2}$ |
| :---: | :---: |
|  | ARMY CORPS ${ }^{\text {S }}$ |
|  | Sbiowlog arch Ditilon． |
|  | BX THE SINGLE ONE Sand for CIrcular． Adarees |
|  | DROWNE $&$ Moors， |
|  | Manufso＇g Jewollerg， 209 Broadway，N．Y． |

＂Roychomancy，＂How either sex mav fuccuito nad ghin the love，oonididenc，aneestion num

THE COMIC PAPER OF AMERICA

FIRANK LEASLIEDS BUDGEN OF FUN， FOR AUCUST，
IS NOVN OUTP， contanning thi great cartoons of the daz． THE WAR OF THE GIANTS； THI FIGMIES OX XURORE： THE TENDER－HEARTED RUTCHERS

The Fair Girl of Washington．
With nomorona other hites at tho times－heedides SIX Frice only $\mathbf{1 0}$ Cents．
क10 AGrinTs $$ 10$ And Dealurw，Something Now，Vnton Burner for

FRANK LESLLEMS Univilled Publications

Trank Zeslio＇s Zady＇e Mragazine and GAZETTE OF FABHON，The hest Tumily ATagaxino pubiaised．The reading portion in tho oreank of cou－ unsurpassod in number and orecution． In fasHioss it has no cqual or competiter
Trank Leellio＂Ten Cont MIMonthy，

 only German minstrated paper in the couztry．$$ $ 90$ par annum Trank Leslie＂e Lady＇e Mluotrated Al－ mavict
25 conte．

Mrunros's Hen Cent Wovels

gexamu

For Hardsning & Invigorating the Gums,

Norvous Diseason and Physical Dobilie

 Holphia, Pa,
WM. KNABE & CO.,
MANGFACTURERS OF GOLD MEDAL
AND AND SQUARE PIANOS, GRAND AND SQUARE

 Gothatbilk, Strokosh,
G. &itter, ond other leading artiets. Every fer tuve coart, warrante Price lints promptly WM. ENABE & CO. ount on application.
$457-090$
Tse of Tobacco, in all its forms, Cured

WHAT TO DO

HOW TIO DO IT

STAMMERING.

NOW WE CAN LIVE IN COMFORT!
 now foirly satreduced, and givo porfect sitio
foctionj they win not break by heat, fallingor ony ordinery usigo. They fit ail the con oil burnera nev
is cortain.

Cartee do Visito.
25 ERENOH ORISETTES. 25 FRENOH GRISETTES. something veit nioe.

GROVER & BAKIER'S HIGHEST PREMTUM RLASTIO STITCH STWING MCACFENTS! Salssrooms, 495 Broadway, Nsw York.

TED BOWTM MITCROBCOPD,

FRANK LESLIE'S ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.

$7 ARMY WATCEI.

 Dia, Out Honds, Enquits Hosementr," and Corroct Adaren OHAs. P. NORTON $& O D$., Importers, NOETON & 00 ., Importers.'

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE BYMALL or EXPRESS

कelf-II easurement for \%hirts:

STHMWCOMARS

TNAMMEDD WETME, Hoving the appearanco ond comfort of Unon, buve been Horn In Engennd for tho laet two years in profronoo to Horn other collur, ze they are readily oleaned in one Price 75 ente ench; son
Union on the roccipt of 00 conte

WHOLESALE AND IETAIL, Aompis Wancrid in overy Town in the Union,玉5. W. FI. N/AKW,

A HAN TRAP.
LADY-" Charles, dear, $I^{\prime} m$ really afraid may orinoline is coming off" " HUBEASD (euddenly bureting into a cold porspiration)-"By JCve, let's bolt into fats bonnet shop."
[Sold.]
IADIEES' IETHTTER. HVEANATOMICAS ENGRAVINGE Hao informntlon pevor beforo pnbliobed. Sent free, in a gealed envelepe for

Eyoritamera, mouxiste, AND ARMI AND NATY OFFIORRS, Powerful and Erilliant Donble Clagsoge

Vineland Lands. To all wanting Farms.

BALLOU'S
patinted
FRENCH YOKE SHIRTS Warranted to ETTX,

chyapma

 othor shist Oircular contain.
ing drawinge and pricee sent frea.
For anlo by all the prinolpal deelin:
the United Stasto.
BALLOU BROTHERS, 403 Broadway, H. $\mathbf{\nabla}$.

"Anow Whito," Linen Tiniehod, Tlin-

Natantrithetunding the increseo in prion of obem oalo and other matoriole, IGNTOESEFT, PHOTOCRAPHER, Ne. 2 New Chambers Itreet, N. Fa, Will take Card Picturee of the OLD PaIOE tor a bbort $$ 150$ PER DOZES.
Largo Photographe $$ 1$ the firt- 60 cta. sdaitional oneth Particular attention pald to copying Gards or Ambrotypea into biandiome Colorod Pbotographs and Cards:

PRESEDENTMAT CAMPAICN MEDALS
of every description, now ready in Fin and Modal.
 0

Ground in on in in overa! drob ahades for viluse, Co
tagoe, Rooffete. eto

Jargo mpd thiriving settlomonts, mild spa bealthful chimote, 80 milioe nonth of Philiadolpbis by raifond. Ptch

 From Roport of BoLos Ronnseos, Agricaltaral oditor of this Triburni:
Fition and mitate

The Euman Foice-Male and Femalo Why io ono Boese and tho othor Soprano? Staminering

GTREINWAX & SONE,
Noa. 71 and 73 Fonrteenth St., I. Y., Were awurted a Firet Prize Melal ot the lote Oreat Internutional Exhibition, Lendon, Thore were two handred and nixty-nine pian world entered for competition.
world entered for componden. N N. Y, Tines agye: "Mcesro, Steinwny's eqdorsemont by the Jurore it omphatic, ond stronger and more to tho point than 0090 of any Europeau moker.'

GREAT CEANCE

TO MAKE MONEY!

 yield $$ 60$. Send for oirecularg. Mailed free. $C O$.

FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS:

Al artioloo for Solilars at Baltimore, Washington,
 by HARNDEN'B
ODateba low ratoo

Ghulto Onguont,-Warrantod to pro-

A Fecret Worth Enewing-EIow to noke the otbLEBATED WESTERN CDER witheut pples or otrer frait in 12 hours The Recipe nont overywhero for 25 cente Adaroxis F. B. BOWEN, BOX 200, Boaton, Mass.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE ARMY

 Hereatter wo will eend, pospocid, any of our PHOTO-anAPHC NLBUMS ord prea by ectalore for themkelveg friende, giving on Album of the foul valas of the monoy weat.
Our Albums beve tho repatation of belng muperior to all othert in betaxty and furabitity, nad rango in prica

CARD PHOTOCRAPHS

 Now embraces about 5,000 ORecers Army and Navy,atoteemen, Actore, copite of Works of Art, $k a$ Catin statemmen, Actore, copteg of $W$.
logue eent on reccipt of tamp.
Stereoscopes and Stereoncopio Views. Our eosortmont of thees is very extensive, iacluding a rreat voricty of viown of the preeent Wor. Catalegue 450.60-2.10 Manafacturers of Photographic Matoriala.

NTOVV FRTADE.
THE RECORD
07
PARIS, LONDON Asm

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

 grRINE NOe, 1864.WITH THE LARGEST COLORED PLATK Ever given in any Publication Price 95 Cente.
    \title{

FRANK FESLIES  \title{ \section*{FRANK FESLIES    illustrated}

    illustrated}}

No. 463-VoL. XVIII.]
]

What is the Prospeet?

Wrat is the prospect|? When will this long night iof dreadful war give way to the welcome dawn of pence? Notwithstanding the apparently nexhaustible military forces, resources and facilities of all ldinds possessed by the loyal Stetes, as developed in the prosecution of this gignntic var, we are begining to lee ite pressure ond in every way. Withthecontinuedexpenditure of a thousand millions a year, for evenanother year, againsta nstional income from war tariffs and war taxes of less than one-third this enormous outlay, the national corrency must still contimne to decline, in value, more or less, the prices of the essentials of life, of hahor, and all the products of liebor, minst still continne to advance, until we reach thst fearfal orisis of a financisl collhpse, and its dreadfal consequences of universal hank. ruptey and confusion We think there is reason to epprehend that unless, in the interval to December next, eome victories are obtained by our armies so e ebilities, snd the hrosdest eagacity, in hi decisive and comprehenaive as to banish all efforts to weather the storm. | donbts of the issue of this mighty struggle, | The war drsgs hesvily. The rebilion, in |

| :--- | :--- | :--- |
| the nationsl tressury will not much longer be | this campaign, exhhits a degree of vitality | the nationsl tressury wil not much. Secretary

 ARTIST IN TEARNESGEE.

Chattanoogs last Novemher. The late co temptible peace-st-any price faction of the North is becoming bold, bosstful and defisnt, and threstens to rale the Chicago Democrstic racy.
Neith Fessenden may'display the highest financial ever lost with the steggerab into winter quarters, will ce mies uponsh or disperse the two great fortunes snd those of his sinking ConfedeNeither successfal rebel raids nor disgraceful eye ; dark forebodings sre eutertained, sud gloomy prog. nosties are uttered on every hand; and yet the genersl confidence of the country in the crowning result of this terrible contest was never eo firmly set, nor so clear in perceptione as it is to-day. perceptione as it is to-day.
How are we to explain this How are we to explain this strange anomaly between the strange anomaly between the doubts snd fears which are immorgble faith in the immovable faith in the sp-prosehing triumph of the prosching triumph of the seems to exist? This is an interesting enigme, but its solution is simple and easy. There is, whatever may sp pear upon the surface, a pre pearing impression in the public mind thst the vital forces of the rebellion are nesrly expended ; that etrong and energetic as it etill ap. pesrs, it is but the etrength of a dying msn, and the energy of despair In a word, the great body of the intelligent people of the loyal Ststes believe that Gens, Grant and Sherman, hefore they go again into winter qusrters, will or disperse the two great

West, nor the long detsntion of Gen. Grant on the south side of Peteriharg, nor the omhnrments of trade, nor the multiplicetion of our axee, nor the proclamation of another draft for $500,000 \mathrm{men}$, nor have all these things, toother with mischierous peace agishion of a delnded peace fection, heen snfficiont to buntry in the near approach of the complete country in the near approach of military, financial and political.
At length, too, this faith of the people in the riumph of the Union is heginning to he justiled hy the snhstantial achievements of our rmies East and West, hy the recent tromenwith which Gen. Grant aticks to his parpose of capturing Richmond, and in the steedy and irresistihle movements of Gen. Sherman, which have oarried his splendid army from Chatlenooga down into the heart of Georgia, and to the focne of a railroed syetem which virtually secures him the command of the Stete end the whole South-west. it is to the vercran end never-failing ermy of the Fotomac undor Gen. Weat, ender the Sherm thet the oreot hody解t ander Gon. Shermen, Wor for the of the pooplo of the lldonhts, and fars, and mharressments toriching the importent queeion of the prohahle duration end final issue of of the war. We fully share in this cheering belief that the rehellion is et last in its dying struggles, thet the end is near, and thet the moet glorious rewards to the ective friends of the Union for the great aacrifices they heve made upon its eltars will soon he reveeled over the length end hreedth of the land. Yet a bittle while and the fulfilment of this cheering vision of victory, peace end remnion will he mede visihle to all eyes. The present overwhelming crmpsign will surely end in this crowning result to the Union.

Barnum's American Museum.

 MMMENSE ATTRACTIONS.-Colossal Giente, Dimi

Oscanyan's Oriental Album,

 Condieting of 23 Pbotorgaphio Portriats of Oriental Mrenand Women, then from iffe in both indoor and outaoor

 O. OsOANYAN,
Secand Avenae, 2d dorar from 56th St, N. y. $. ~ . ~$
 forr different hinh.
Oreek and Emglioh.
Gentlemen-I have used PERRY DAYIS'S PAT RTLLER in my fomily for eeveral years and have al waye found it a reitoble oure for Diarrhoca and Dyeen-tery, and I checrfully reoommend it to the prolle Traveliery cannot have by them a bettar friend in time of endiden attack of Bowel Complhint.

Yours truly,
J. H. parke. Nors-I It ehould be underatood that tbe Phis je admintstered internally as well nes externally.

FRANK LESLIE'S ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER

537 Pearl street, New Yorl,

ZEW YORK, AUGUST IS, 16GT

THERMIS

 One copy, thyee monthOne capy, six monthy
One capy, six months
One capy, one year,
wrapper
Tour copics, wrapper - to one address, in ono 780

TERMS FOR ADVERTISINC.

Onk Dollar a line on the outelde or lant pare.
Sixty Cente a line on the 1th and 16 th pages.

To Corresponioùnta.

First-class stories will he read promptly, end First-class stories will he read promptly, end
if found worthy of ncocoptance, nnitully campenated.
. The mannectipt ehoold bo fegrible, on one aide of the peper ouly, and be accompanted with tio eddress of the writer. Foeme of a higiv order and moderato length maill. hitter poothace miat be pralc mattic. If neat by ounces shonld be nent ty exprese. When partiee wish MSS. retarned by mall, poatage tampe must be enctood for the fall smount. Oontribnstampe murt be enctosod for the fuly amount Oontribntors of chert ardicice poome, copy, as the chenpeat course.

Summary of the Week.
nota.
The recont raid was not ended as soon an kuppoecd. After Wright abandoned tho pursuit of gall antly, smpported hy Orook, near Winchester, on the 24 th and 25 th of July, hint wast last driven through Martinalurg and fell hack to Harper's Ferry. Malligan, while gallantly leading his men, Col. The rehels immedistely began to dest Baltimore and Ohio railrosd. Rappahemnocz and recaptared much hooty.
anants analy.
Grent's plans are heginning to unfold. He made movement north of the James. Gen. Foster is at Deep Bottom, heyond the Jomes, seriously threstening Richmond hy the the road. His position is come milce nearer to the eapital than Harrison's landing is.
Loe, alarmed at thie, eent troops to eheck him. On the $28 t h$ Grant sent Hancock eilontly snd ecretly to sid Foster. The rehels, however, discoverered to it sud Fottacked them on the ponton bridg over the Jsmea. But Hancook, in a hrief sction, drove them into their entrenolmments, took many prisoners, and recsptured four Parrott guns lost by us in May.
Lee, evidently expecting o battle, here made sll preparation, strengthening his worke and concehpreparation, strengthening his works and concentrating lis troops. Torhert and Gregg's division ofsheridsn's cavalry force nextengaged the enemy and wae for a time forced hack hy the ovorpowering hody in front.
While hoth pertios were spparently eqnally carneet in preparing for the grest hattle here and ekirmishing constantly, Grant wes preparing urpriee hofore Petershung.
At ten minutes to five on
At ten minutes to five on the 30th ho exploded Fleasant's 48th Penn., hlowing up one of Lee' orta neareet to the Appomattox, and our men o? the 6th, 9th and 18th corpa, nnder a mardorona artillery fire that had for a time heen pouring into the rehel works, ruphed into the enemy's ontrencli ennstivanta.

The new rebel raid has come off. On the 29th July it wos snnounced thast the enemy were approsching Chomhershurg. At three A.N. on the Sth a rehel force of 800 reaohed it, after driving hack a small forco near Mercerahurg. Gen. McCsustand demanded si once $$ 100,000$ in gold, and Imost immedtately fired the town, destroying 265 of the most valnable and elogant public and private huildings. It was ired at elevon A.M., and he rebols docamped at once, st Averill was eaid to be approaching. He entered pursued them to McConnellihurg.

nasouri

In coneequence of the nadacity of the rebel guerillas and their hratality, Gea. Roseorans, hy he authority of the War Department, has called teere for the protection of the Stats from guerillas and to repel invasion.
In the anme connection Gov, Hall has ismed a roclamation, stating the emorgenoy for more roops to he great, and urging the people to fill up the regiments at once.

The newe from Charleeton to the 21at statee that Fort Snmter was undergoing another destruetive fring was verg slow, but scouste, and damsge resulted to nome of the strongest portions of the fort. The fire on Charieston is also kept

The work of erecting residences for the rehel prisoners on Morris island progroeses, though the rebels annoy the workmen to the extent of their ahility hy shelling the huildinge.
zonoil
The hattle of the 22a, in whioh Hood attacled the veterans of Hooker, Howard and Newton, resuited in a total repuise of the rehels, with heavy loss; lut in a euhsequent attack on Binires he gnined o temporary advantage, onahling him to hoast of a complete victory. He han, however, loet at least 7,000 men, while Sherman'e loss does not exceed 2,000, and heij utterly failed to reheve Gon, Forater's late expedition created a grest aonre in Savannah. Tho rame were moved down ston sent a brigade of Georgia troope to Savannah, which was diverted at Augusta to John'e ioland where thoy participeted in the fight of the 9 th.

Arxaness,
On the 15th July 250 of the 10 th Illinois were surounded in their camp, at Zaraoy, hy 1,600 of Shelly'e men; ahont one-half out their way out, Price'e army ie at Camden, and Kirky Smith is attempting to provont reinforcemente from Bank:
reaching Gen. Steele.

naval.

The steamer Kingston, of the Georgetown and New York line, ran ashore, near the moath of the the rehele, who hoarded hor in hosta The pilot a Bultimore man, wes suapected of trenchery, The steamer B. M. Runyon struck a enag of Grifith's landing, Miss., on the 21ef, and eunk many of the 10th Missouri cavairy were lost.
On the 8th the Kanavih Pang On the 8th tho Kanawha, Penguin and Aroostook destroyed a reetos

FOREICN NEWS.
A deporamion of influential British sympathibera bod an interviow with Lord Pumestion on the In an offes of Earopean mediation in the Amertan war. The Anglo-rebel party argued the motter with conaldes.
oble tact and point. The poaltlon of the Engltab Cabine upoa tue strangth of the diopatcte.

prement momnnt to be dienstrons.
The King of the Bel gians was in Tivit to the Emperor Nopoleon of Vichy.

TOWN cossip.

Who cen picture the glories of a good, oldralloned rainstorm to a parched city?
Our country consins, all over the land, who have or late been mourning over burnt-np crops ond umhedithy cattle from droaght, can have some ldoa of it, bnt thoy fill to reallee the flrat hinking potter of the rain on the baved parveranata and the glowing housetops, that drink in tho falling drope and eand them aff turned into atean naongh to whiak the wh.
North river ateamboat.
For 40 daye and 40 nigbts New Yorli wne without rain, and that with some daye whan the mircory counted ar to 100. At hat it came in torrenth, and water enough fell in o complo of bours to put out the fires that were hurning in the ground and cool the red bot metai rooft To be mare Misa McFimsey was excessively annoyed a the fall thereof because upon that, very morning the hod arrangod to leave for Newport, and wat obliged to drum terribly put eat, for npon that idontical morning fite champetre, which necordimply met witb an indeanit postponemant, as the creams and Jellies would no koep. Ontaide of these little disappointments the rain of tbo tart weelk carae off charmingly, and was halled by the pent-up members of "The Can"t Get Away Club" with gennine astinfaotion.
To one who is fond of tho one who is fond of looking out of the windom
there are a good many thinge in a elty ratnatorm worthy of real thougbt and remark, We sball mention one of these. While the grateful nhowors wore pouring down the othor morning wo roald not hetp noticlug the hun way through it to achool. Childran generally love to bo in tbe rain, but the consequencee are not understoo by them, bat should be by the parenta or tochers. by them, bat ehoold be by the parents or toachers. On that day thouaside of childrea sat all day in eohcol with wet garments and feet, ponsibly in strong drapgbts, or what in wrorse, eweitoring in oiose rooms, and sowod the seedis of diseesee, to remain with tbean for life. It w everybody's buriaces to neo that they did not come to achool in the orain, or in they did, that their clotbon or bnninebn.
The fame rale applies to the thonsanda of foung girla in the workhlope of the city. From the breaking of

.

 $\underset{\substack{\text { in } \\ \text { pud } \\ \text { did }}}{ }$

? *
 erphantiono of oren the mort simple trutias aro a fital
and
 and

 and 隹

 | good |
| :---: |
| nim |
| nim |

 and

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.

 minate afther the diewter, and

 Nari. Win

 Mivilitary. Showla Gen. Fry adhare to the opimime sadin consideration of seymovit humane treatement on Congrcee is mancortain.

 member of thiot
mempaniod
will dis duts.

5ingol Th the spapeme court at Chambers Mrs. Fiver

Accidents and Offoncos-Cipt, strect, of the

 the mecond dumb with in man the moin int springftid, Manas, on the 23a July

 Dnpont the vad Jult, atont an boan nter aundown

 and Dodging anader
Nev Tork Hospital
Art, Literature and science. - Mri. John pencili end with greater suocegee thum genemaly ettend

 hand apoct your moment tetaloniry Lows."

 John move his arn round Julld's neck

Mive Elimond About, in hin hat work on "Progress,"

 - It wio rexathy ewertad in tho Fronch Chambers

DESTRUCTION OF ARMY HORSES.

 THE destruction of horses during our oivilwar is somenthing ntterly unparalceled. statements of

sGenes at the national capi-

 TAL DURING THE REBEL RAID.
 attack on the ylum of Joly, and the repuleo of a rebai aeanult by the 2 aitb Now York diemounted caralry and art under the cover aroordad by the buidange and the Thut mivitary octaring

 ,
the rebel ram savannah.
THE recent nlarm at Savannah caused the

 sheth we givo ia from a sem a ditin riven In rinely kept out of oction.

THE ALBANY STEAMBOAT

ST. JOHN.
Tasvelifer up or down the Hudson will mien it groatly if they do not make a trip on the nulgs.
nifcent ateamboat St . John, whioh we flustrate in our paper. The press, too often, perhaps, prasises any new boat when it ns firat put on a line, but in thisis caso we cannot Eo beyond the truth in ntyling it the most mag nificent bont ever yet scen on the North river, and aurely this is hiph praiso.
The $\frac{8 t}{}$. John to 417 feet long. with a bradth of 85 fuet. The Theel hins a diameter of th feot, and fa diriven as our own . woult by John Eaglia, and is now commanded Shue

Weinegny and Friany. connteotng with the variou
finoz of rullioad from Abrny for the North and Woet.

SICNAL  OWER ON

Tar tide of war has rolled away southward from Lookout Mrountain, and it it agnian an object of in
 of being caught by guerilha.
Lookont mountain Lookont mountsin tn one of the most noted earth
ginute in Amcrica, and terrifcaly npifits ite majectic prcesence to a beight of 2,400 feet obove the Trunceecee four mileen long, ent ont of its anful and preclpitous sidea; but when reached, the lover of nature his atoply repuid for his pilgrimage thither. Standing on its sumrepuld for his pillimage thuther. Standing on its sume mit the tourist drinka it bracing eir; his eye wandera

LITERATURE.

We have great pieasure in enlling attention neccssful that it bldas foir to be one of thoso rare pboomenon in the periadical prese of the prosant daylog of endititocond pleanuro that we recognita it os the property and under tho editorinn eapervision of one with acquaintancesilipg wave wod wo toik evequintunceschip, an wie dingreenble

 ing lyrics, one or morv of them, bat wo think that tho

 srotitication that we chroniclo tbis fact in our own column

LOVEABLE WOMEN
According to a new "Theory of Harmony and Form," certuin combinitions of a circle, trinogly and nquare producos perfeot type of fomale besuty al wondenalraica. Wo kave uwaya conaldered women the truernul problim, yet never suhpected time this was Buphe the theory is only nymtriaugle, and the fyetionablo clonks are oll equeras. Poonsibly the new theoriate intend it to be undirstoon, that thene three, with a good-looling girl "inclutch,

 alidy methiomaticialy bceantiful eppears to mout olvzn
tage when dancing to the pound of a piano.
 th may comprobend harmony and molody, oppecially o
the vice. There are woumen of nwent, madiouly naturua growing np to the

Till, at the last, the sy set themselves to man
Like perfect mualic unto noble woras." Byron bringa before us the image of one of this aweal ataterhood in half a dozen lines :

Arary pieg are so terribly tough that the sol-

 The Ruwno Passton. - In the "Bald Eagle

 le uttered the words. "TTE Woman anawerod and wi, in Ihte no hubband, the dying woman rone uprint in hor bed

Advior that gyeri Mun bround Resid, -We have probably ail of un met with instances in which a moy bring upon the, mother, the evates or the wift of some fellow-oreeture.

COL. B. F. TRACY, 109th N. Y
It would be unfair to the otscers of coferior raik if we were to consno our illustrations simply to the many brigudier end majorgonerals. We hore takon as o creditable epecimen of the colonele tho commanding olllecer of the 109th Now York. F. Traey was, at the be-Col. B. Find
and the war,
 hwyer in Tiogn counts. Ho Was borD at Oweg, int that division of the otato of New Yort, on the 2sth ghe of 23 me was to prome prominent the he wns, in spite of hip yonth otected and himaolf to be put forward tion candiate for the Axkumbly, to urgo tho measie. Ho was elected, no oo. measare, Ho was elceted, nind ob-hancid tho passage of the required

 In the smmmer of 1862 he woe
secketed by the Mulitary Committee for the 2 th Sonatorial Dintrict to whe on new held entircly to him, but ho underiook the thik with his vonted vontee mporgy, and rassing two

The defesces of savanwah-fhe meabl ray sayandah, now ready fof actiont

Mustroted by the tria parobles of tho leaves and tho mustard eeed. In aldidition to the pastor, Rev. W. B Lee, the Rov. Drs. Hodge and Norr assisted in the Eervicee. In the sarnoon the dedicailon termon wras preached by the pastor from Wras preached by the pastor from the ordinance of buptinm to the youngess chila of the pasior provious

 In the ovening tho Rex. Dr ine Ri of the Reformed Datch. Churchor, an Neo by Rev. Mry. Neandor, of tion clesgymen allo were present. Tl house was fillod throughont the dit

 ing sudence,

Is our old age the mind
 There are many trials in life Which do not seem locome from unWhich do not Eeem to tome from un-Wisdom or folly. They aro silver arrowe ehot fiom the bow of Cod arrowe ehot from the bow of god
emd Exet inextricably in the quiver-Ing heart.

hosal stathon on loogout mountaty, eregted by the rehela durisg them occupation.

 migades or thase 3d Wilicor:i diaisision. the the bottlo or tho Wildarnees, yoy gth, it carrted

THE CENEVAN PRESBYTERIAN

 CHURCHIs situated ou Gates Avenue, corner of Hunter strect, Brooklyn, and was conatructed during the past winter aud apriag, under the nuperviston oi Mr. John H. Keleo, for the Greene Avenue Preubyterian Onurch. It was reads for occupotion in Aprih, bnt owing to tho absonce of tho pal wne not inco te built of biel, ind tan ance is nest, #ymmaterieal ond nubstantial. Within, the princtpal room or cuditorium in obout 35 foet hy 60 feet, and 26 foet in height, abundantly Milhted and well furnibhed Oppoeito the pintform and dopk, und under dered by leave of oalk, enoircling tho legend, "Jhovvi Tnd keenu" " The Iomd our Righteousness"-on old cetmont title of Chrisit.
The truysing of the The truwarigg of the root timbers is oxponed, hoving beco anichod and grained in ook, to correspond with the other woodwork; the will

 It war formally doulicatod on sundoy, June 19th.
The permon in the morning wus presched by

THE ARK.
BY BOSENBERG.
Sainty surging round my soul swayt and deep the waters rollSwayt and deep the F
Nhere a place of rest may ba. Out, young Passion! out and try The pathless wave and boundlese aky ; Passion's wing is loosed in vainPassion finds nor panse nor reetWith ruffled wing and rumpled bresst, Passion cometh home again.

Out, Ambition! stronger etillGreat of hesrt and large of willVulture wing and eagle eyeSwoep the wave and battling wind, Place and spot of rest to find But in viin, Ambition's fligh Sweeps the wave for place of rest; Home it comos, with bleeding bresst, Shattered wing and failing might.

III.

Dear Home-dweller! gentle Love Timid plume and eye of dove ! Thine at length the task to tryOnt, and search the wave and sky. Nor flies the trembling one in vainBack it comes in joy again. Love brings home the olive-leafLove has fornd the place of restWoman's true and tonder
Only home in every grief

THE DESERTED HOUSE, AND WHAT HAPPENED IN IT.
bY Clatre crotton.
I cames apon it in the course of my solitary ramble one aftornoon. I was out on a berrying expedition, and having heaped uny haskot with the great ehining blackberries, and perceiving signe of an spproaching shower, I turned to retrace my steps. But had whitio uncertain wbat direction to take. Judging from the landmarks, I oonchided Imuat be full two miles from home. Heavy masses of thunderieden clouds were surging up from the north-wcat, and rapidly darkening the whole hedveus, the roin weuld be upon me before I could walk half that distmence. I hastened my stepe, anxious shower.
As I emerged from the woods I paused and glanced around me in cvery direction, Only one human hehitation was in sight, that was solitary farmbouse, situste in the midst of e field, at some distanoe from the highway. I let down the bars, which formed the primitive mode of entrance into this domain, and hurried along the narrow foetpath lending to the house, hoping to find shelter beneath its roof. As I spproached the lonely dwelling I conda discover no signs of life about the premises; no smoke wreath coried gracefully from the tall chimneys, no open door invited the traveller to onter. A nearer view satisfied me that the place was doserted. The house was old, weatherplacoined and dilapidated, loeso claphoards retiled in the wind, snd moss and lichens grew upon the roof. The front yard was overrun with burdock, plantain end Roman wormwood. Here, and there a sunflower or hollyhock reared its head among the weeds, but there were no other flowers, A straggling line of gooseberry and eurrant bushes stragging the wall, and of few seattered, seraggy phum trees in thet dixection, gave proof that e gardon had once exiatod there.
The air of desolation and neglect that brooded over the whole place gave mo a disagreenble, simost painful sonsation, hut there was no time rattled over my hesd, and a few hesyy raindrops the avant-couriers of the coming storm, pattered on the dusty gress it my feet,
I ran np the stone steps and tried the heavypanelled doer; it was fast, and refused to open to my necds. The windows were without blind or curtain, and throngh them I could equare, empty rooms withio.
is There "There must be another
I will find it," I ssid.
And hurrying round the corner of the house,

col. b. q. tbacy, 109 TH N. Y. $\mathbf{Y}$. fonud a second door, on the backeide. Thie, less hung off in loose flakee from the wsil, and rsitted fonud a second door, on the backide. This, less securely fastened then the other, yielded to my efforts to open it, and I entered tho houso. Pessing through e long entry, I found myeelf in a lorge room, which must have served as a kitchen in former days. The atmosphere of the spertment Was close and musty, and my first ect was to set down my basket and throw open a wiudow to down my basket snd throw open a window to admit the fresh sir. Then I gleneed around me. The room wos bare of furnituze. There wís a large open fireplsee at one end, hlack end yawning, like the mouth of a cevern; the smoke-stsined ceiling wes seamed with great orackes, sud looked ready to give way sltogether. The meuldy wall paper lideens and unwinking, guarding the secrete of the house, while thoy read thone of your ore past you: There is a rukting of garmente eweping past yon feel, though yon do not hear, the cound of footfolle, and you start with a shiver throngh your whole frame as a chilly bresth, with the soun of a aigh in it, fans your choeks.

Snch fanciee thronged my mind as I stood on the deeorted hoarthstone and gazed around the dismantled room, and I found myself repeating, hall uncouscioualy
"Oeer all there hung a shadow of a fear,

"Puhaw P" I exclaimed, impationtly, "this is mere childiigh weakness. I thonght that my nerves were stronger. Longeliow sud died are haunted houses.' If thet's eo, ghosta are too plentifnil to make it worth one's while to be afraid of them; beeides, they never moke their appearanco by daylight, they tre regular birds of darkness." I did not attempt to visit the other parts of the house, but, throwing off my hat and shawh, crouched down on wathed the blackened uky, lit up almoot momentarily by sheets of dazzling flame. The roll of the thunder was continuous, and the rain csme down se though threatening the earth with a second deluge.
"If this continues till might, as it seems likely to do", thought I, "I shall hsve the choice of epending the night here, or trying to grope my wayding the migh the derhness. A plessent prespect, way truly. What sn adventare it would be to relate to my sammer friends?
my summer thienids suggeated others, and I forgot all about the storm in the train of reflections thus awakened. Six weeks before I had becn engoged in the foum Why had I left it so suddenly? Ah, ing prace hanga a tale.
Until my eeventeenth year I had known nothing of wealth or luxury, for up to that time my father' doily life had been a hand-to-hand struggle with poverty, to procure the means of subelevice the Effects of the Lightning.

should be edncated, derpite sll obstacles. Bnt about thet period he came unexpechefl him the a the possession of & iarge fortue, course of hife was at once changed; society discovered at once that Mr . Harley was a most rofined and gentlemanly personage, and his dsughter kilared, myoul, a bosulu and accomplished young lady.
To bo sure, my father had been the perfect eion of wealth, and my own blonde beauty had been as radiant before that cvent as nfterwards, only asciety had not aeen it in that light. Well, perhaps a gem does show the fairor for its rich setting, asd my wealth of golden hrown hair may pearla twined amid its silken hreids than it did when simply garlanded with wild flowere, and tbe when simply garina nd arms may have gleamed snow of my neck and whiter in contrast with the sparkling jewels with which they were wreethed At any rete, I was not disposed to quarrel with the admination that Was now accordcd me, nor to depreciate ite value. I was sh heiress; I it right royally over my sulh years jects.
Among my sdmixers I numbered a young lawyer, Sweyn Selcott by neme, who was employed by my faither in law busincss councoted wy fther thought to which he had become how. My fom opinion was hot less fevorable. He was poor, in the common acceptation of the term, having only his native talents and energy to depond upon in winning hi Way in the world, but rich in the most noble quab tics of hesd and heart, and in a reputation that War without e stain, it by look sudd act, and I was love, but he betrayca had been olready broathed in my ear. I knew that it was pride alone that withheld the avows, for he dreaded the impntation of being a fortune seeker, and perhaps feared that I should do hi that injustice
Theve eaid that the heginning of the fashonable eoason that summer found me st Newport. Sweyn Selcott soon joined our party there. It was the firat time he had ever left hia business to iale at a wstoring-pluce ; was I wrong in eupposing that I wes the magnot that attractod him there? One plcasant nifht he drew me away from the hea and glare of the ballroom on to tbe moonlit piasz and glare of the ballroam on to tbe moonlitit piazza, where we were joinod by anothar conple, my friend Annio Wilbur and her lover, Annie was in light spirits, and commencod giving Mr. Selcott an animatoo dosocription of o ride ow hat taten that day and a cottage at which we had called for was.
"It was such a cottage as we read sba:
 in vines and roses, 1 looked to see Mildred go into extacies over it, and was diespeinted that ehs did not, for she is is etrongly inditined to the sentimental, you know."
"I did not know it", ssid Mr. Soloott, quietly,
"Ob, yes ; Fou shonld bavs heard her, as I did, "Ob, yee ; you shonld bavn heard her, as I did, read tho bellad of 'Edwin and Augelin' the spalke rolumes."
"How many?" I aakted, drily. "hat no one eould havo read those lines as you Yoad them without having filly adopted ,their epirit. Yon evidently believed the doctrine,
I reddened with anger and annoynce st her I reddened with anger and annoyance at her hadingege. Sweyn Secoot't eyees were fixed full on hadinge. Sweyn selcotif' eyen were fixed fall on my fice; was he tring orend my thoughte?
What epinit of evil prompted me to answor Annie Whint spirt ns I did?
"You are mistaken," I said, "in thinking thast
I incline to "love in a cottage. and that sart of Incline to 'love in a oottage' and that sort of sentimental trasb. I have seen too mucb of the nguin, My idcsl of a residence is a bromn stone front, in a fashienahie arsune, I prefer gaskigbt to glowvorms, velvot tapeatry carpote to rushforc curtuiniors, and rosewood and marble to makin pine for furniture. I conilider vaees, pictures snd statuottes as indispensahle articles, and a liboral supply of well-trained servants as among the ne-ecesaries of life." I had speken with a tone and smphasis that left no doubt as to my meaning jnst what I maid. Was it the moonlight falling fall on Swey Sol hail my words prodnced it?
"Yon have dramn ths picture with a glidiful hnndi," gaid Annie, gaily; "bot wouldn't the
 "ary to complete it ${ }^{\text {"P }}$ " awsy. $\begin{aligned} & \text { Her. C. meant, not a momber of Congrese, } \\ & \text { Hut a wealthy young Phildadelpbian, Mortimer }\end{aligned}$ but a wealthy young Phindelpbian, Nortimer and the panions.
painong,
anhe night air is chilly. Shall we return to the ballroom? thout me. Ho spoke in a hoorase, chasnged voice nhout me. Ho spose in in hoarase, changed voice, and 1 ncecopted hisa arm in silence. At the door of the hallroom he asid abrupty:
I leave this place in the morning."
"So soon I" I said, witb a alight start.
'Yes ; I onght to bave gone bsforeungerrad here too long," Some one approashod at that moment and claimed my hand for the danct. Mr. Seleott howed nad withdrew. I did not see him agoin that evening.
Early tha next morning a note was placed in my hand, it was very hriff, and ran thus:
hand; it was very hrief, and ran thus:
"Mrwnen-I oould net leavs witbout bidding youn farevell Yon have roued mo frem the Well, it was all over then. I might have expeeted it, hnowing him as I did. What if the peeted it, knowing him as 1 did. What is the lond that held the tiny geroll was clenolied until wher the nails pierced the tender flesh. Whist if tbe red hlood ebbed away from cheek and lip, lesting red hlood ebbed away from cheek and lip, lesring ny fice gbsstly in its pallor! If my own hand my face gbssty in its pallor! If my own hand had recklesaly spilled the wine of lifi, I was not ono to sigh and complain heceune the tempting draughit oould never s gain beoffered to my thirsting Lipa No matter bow painfully the heart might throb beneath its silken vest so that the world uever suppeoted the eecret of tio suffering.

I remainod ot Neeprocrt a weekl longering. ontwardly gayer and more hrilliant than ever, thicen I declared to my father that $I$ was saios to dasth of the everlasting round of dancing, booting and bathing, Margaret Howe. He consonted willingly, for he licve he would have aceompanied me to siberia without a murmur, had I funcied a plensure jaunt to tbat somewhat distant locality
I loved my ount Margaret dearly, for she had supplied a motber's plsce to me through tbe aupplied a wotber's plsce to me through tbe years in a ploanant littlo coontry plsco called denastbrook, and hither we journeyed as fast as carr and rotage and dither we journeyed aoschos could convey nas.
She received me with open arma, and inveighed enorgetically againat the late hours and healthenorgeticolly against the late hours and health-destroying ploasures that had, aa ahe supposed, destroying ploasures that had, aa ahe supposed, atolen the rosea from my bebeks. She at once establiabed a regimen which she made me carry yout most faithfully. She kept me in the open air, got ter and the whitest of home-made braad for my breanfintht and then wonomered mbat coonld ail me that all her efforts failod to win beck my bloom that all her efforts failed to win bockk my bloom and spirits. Bat I was improving mentally if not phynically. Hours of oolitery thonght and communion with nature were offecting a change in my cbaraeter, it damped apon me that thero were nobler niana and parposeen in life tban tbose I bad been purnuing. The bitternces hasd all gone ont of my heart. I acknowledged to myself, humbly and sorrourfully, that I bad foolisbly wreoked my omn happine日s, bnt honoceforth, heaven helping me, I would live for the good of others.

My eunt's latest specifie had beon to acnd me out en long daily walks, ostensibiy for the purout on long daily, walks, ostonsibiy for the purpose of gathering berries, nad thia brings me hack to than partic lar aftemoon, amd my situation in the deeprtted bouse.
Wrapt in my own thonghts, I heeded nesither We Tar of elements without nor the yloom and loneliness within, until a hareh, ereaking pound etartled me ont of my reverio snd ontomy feet. It was tho opening of the front door which I bad Wras the opening of the front door which I bad tried in vaiu I heard it groun ae it swung invard case. Noxt came quick, heavy footateps along tbe passsge way and into the room adjoining the on owich occupied. 1 stood expectant, and as bittle approbonsive. The door between the roonas ittle approbensive. The door between the roonses was fluyg open, and-conld I believe tbe evidence of my oyes 8 -there, on the threshold, stood Sweyn Solcott, gaxing npon me with a look of Sweyn solcott, gaxizg nopon me with a look of unuttorable zurprisa, ae tbough doubting the reolity of the rision before him. WW. stod facing osch other in silence. Ho wes the first to speak:
"Milidred-Mies Harley-is it reasly pou in hodily form, or is it only an illuaion of the eyedight ${ }^{\text {It }}$ is cortninly $m e$, snd in the flesh," I repliod, with a emile, surprise, and a slight touch of mnsement at the eingularity of the -anair, reotherwise have felt at this unexpected meeting. "Alh, yee, your roice proves your identity; but ow in tho name of all that' boppen that I Ifine yon here ?
"Tbat is eagily explinind TToat ise ensily explaincd. 1 am visiting a reledive in this neighborhood-Mre, Margaret Howe Icame out this sfternoon to gather berrie8-in proof whereof wituens my basket - 1 lont my way in the wood, sayw the shower coming un deacried in the wood, saw the shower coming ap, descried this houso and effected an eutrance by foree of srma juat in time to eaccpe tbe rain. Now for your own uppearance, if yon plasse."
"Mine I OL, I came for the sole purpose of 1 fakerell for more on my old home mas cangbt by the shower hefore I reached the

"Your old home o" 1 said, inquiringly. peet thant this place the onvinger to me. You moud dianot suasdid you? I am happy tbat tit has aflorded yon shelter. All tallis
He spot
He spoke in such ligbt, mocking tonees, thast
"I cancertain whether be was in jeat or orarnest. "I can't beieve you ero serions," I baid; "ir hongh it migbt have passed throngin ansalit bodily,"
"No," he snswered more gravely, "I inherited it trom an uncle, I will tell you about it, hat first it from an ancle, I will till you obout it, hut first let me find you a cbair, I think there let me find you a cbair, I think there are some stowed avysy in the stric., chairy, one of which he placed for me and invited "I wishI coold offer yon refreekhments," hs said gaily, "but unfortunately my larder is empty." gaity, "but unfortanately my larder is empty."
"I can supply that deffiency," I said, mailing "please sucoppt tome of my berries, you will find ness, to tbe taste.
He mocepted them with thanks, pronouncing them delicious. Ho did not take the other ctair, but remainod standing on tho hearth witb his arm resting on tbe mantelpiece.
"I promised," he said, aftor a moment's panse, totell you how I came in possession of this place Tbe story csn bo told in a few words. It was the bome or my ancle, the only relatitie. I ever kinew-for $I$ was orphaned in infsnecy. He wiopted me for I was orphaned in infancy. He adopted me, and was in all reegpecte a fither to me. Ho was a singular being; silent and gloomy ulways, his very presonee threw s chilling sbadow over my ehildibh preance turew s chiling sjadow over ny ehlidisi was slowly eating out his life $I$ never knew, but in sil the years that I lived with him I never sawhim smile. Tho man's face was a living tombstone ; engraven in its deep lines yon might read 'Sacred to the memory of-wbat? Shome lost hope, some huried puasen perhap, whose death had made him the wrook tbat he was. He was kind to me mitted mo to minglo with it as froely as I chose.
"When I was eixteen I left his roof to enter on my collogistooourse, and in atter yenrs only riited it at intervala, Atter lesring college 1 commoneed the atudy of tbe law, and had juat taken out licence to practioe wben I was sulmmoned home suddeully of heart disisease whilio in the act of inditing a letter to me, and was found sitting in his ohair, the pen atill clesped in his atiffened fingers. From the few linea written it was evident that be was ahout to impart to me some important communication, but death cont abort the interded rovehation. As heirrat-law I camo in poasossio house and tbe aunil farm attacbed to it.
"There bad always been an impression in the neighhorhood tbat my unole was a wealthy man.
In eariy life he had been engaged in mercantilo in early lifis he hed been engaged in mercantiom pumuits, which he had abandoned suddeonly from aome unlmown cruue, probahly it was comnected with the sad secret of bis life, whatevertbat mighit
"He Lad dlyaya paid my expensee, and anppliod ne liheraily with pocket-money. I linew not from what sourco ho derived nia funds, for he was reserved iu sul hia strinsactions, and I loved him too sincorely to to quotion him witb regard to anything tbat ho those to keop seerot; hut I han given ro oredit to tbe vague rumors concorning hia suppoed wealth, and felt no diapppointment at find. ing myself beir only to a tumble-down house and a &w acres of unprodnotive land. Henceforth I a Ew acres of unprodnotive land. Henceforth mant depond sntirey on my own reacurces. A lingaring attachment to the home of my ehildhood mode me unwilling to sell the plsoo, if indeed I could have found a purchaser, and the isolated aituation of tbe house renderad it difficalt to find aitnation of tbe house renderad it difficalt to find left the place to solitude. That wes seven years have felt an ir once more before the ocenn divided me from it, perbaps for ever.
"The ocesn!"' I said; "are you going to lespa ur native land?" "I start for California next week."
Indeed 1"
I tried bard to stendy my voice, and I do not tinued:
Do yon think of making a permanent bome on that auriforous soil, or shall you return when you have achieved-what I suppose is tbe object of your amhition-a fortune?"
" Who knows? It

Perhsps at seme far distent day, eay or so from tbe present time, if my life is spared, I may return to look once more on familiar scense and the faces of old frinnds, if any sucb are left." He paused a moment, and tben resumed in a "If such a thing shonld $h$ hould have the pleasure of fapding y presume I ing matron, presiding as Mrs. Mortimer Crosby, or Mrs. Somehody else, over the palatial mancion Ton aro dosting to occupy."
Why need he heve asidid that? Did hs wish to orture me? I almest hated him for tho momeat as he stood tberc, so cool and calm, looking down npon me from bis six feet of altitude, with theee dark, searching eyos, thst seemed to read my fuce as they would an open book. How handsome he was, to be snre; with those finely chiselled features set off by tbe elosely curling beard and hair, he black and glesay as-as-well, after all I can find no better comperisonthan thet much-used raven's no better comparisonthan thet much-used ravon'
"Very poesibly you may. Tima brings strange changee, and teacbee us some startling truths, and you may chance to learn a lesson from it,"
"What do you mern, Mildred ${ }^{\text {" }}$, ha alked quiclely.

"Notbing in

There was silence for a few momenta eraation had besn interrupted every now and then by rattling volleys of thunder, and eharp, blinding flashes of lightning. I had drawn my chair close to the open window, he observed it, and eaid
to the open window, he observed it, and eaid
bastily:
"You must not sit there, Mildred! it in dangerons, and thet window ought not to be opon." I rose just as he stepped forward to olose it. How shall I dosoribe wbat follewed? A broad I felt myself flang backward, ne by an invisible hand. $\Delta$ eurrent of electricity scemed pouring throngh my syetem, Astunning crast, as though the house was falling sbout our heads, was in my eara for sn instant, then sight and sense failed together. When they returned, dimly at first, and then more perfectly, I rose slowly ap from the then more perfectly, I rose Blowly up from the gazed srbund me with a stunned and bowildered eoling. The room was filled with a strongly sulonce where the fiery bolt had strack, The whole Well of the room oppesite the window was a confused mass of ruins. Blackened and splintered boards, torn and shrivslled paper, fragments of rick snd heape of plester were mingled together brick snd hesp
But my companion, Sweyn Selcott, where was he? Ksecona glasice showed him tome. He loy direetly st full length, silont and motionlesa as the desd. Was he living? I dared not ask myself the question as I kuelt, awostruck, at his side. His eyes were closed as if in slumber, his face calm and placid ss thet of an infant. There was no mark of placid ss thet of on infant. There was no mark of the fery fluid on his person, as far ss I could ohserve. I raised his head on my arm, and and searchod hreathiessly for the faint throbbing that should whisper of life. But no pulse finttered heneath the pressure of my trembling fingers. I tried his temples, the same terrible stillneas there Water ! water ! surely that weuld revive him. It vas pouring in torrents outsido, hat 1 bad no vessel to catch it in. Necessity auggested the expedient. I soizod my light shawl and held it outstrotched from the window. It was asturated outstrotched from the window, It was asturated in a moment. Then I wrung the cool stream from its folds on to his head, and let it triokle down his face. Again and again I repeated tbe or to watels eagerly for the faintest aymptom of returning eongeiousness. All in vain I Not the Was , not the faintent tremor etirred an eyclid. Was this indeed death? Help must he procured ot some rate, but bow was I to obtain jt, If I at some rate, but bow was I to obtain it, If I weat forth in that drenehing rain, ignorant as I Was what course to take, might it not be huurs heforo I could reach a bouse and dispatch assist-Aud if a faint apark of lite atill lingered anee? And if a faint apark of lite atill lingered in the form hefore me, would it not he ntiterly exinguishod hefore the long-delayed help could rive? I had kept complete control over myself intil thia moment ; doing everything that suggeated itseif as caluily as if I wai about some ordinary omploymeut; knowing that if I wonld be of any aesvice to him, I must not give way to tears or terrora.
But now, as I gazed on that white, akill face, all sope ahandoncd me, and the ansuisk of my beatt lound vent in one wild, despairing cry; "Dead! deadt Ob, my God! and I loved him

Has human love, in its strong agony and mighty passion, power to call back the soul that mighty passion, power to call back tin is futtering on the vergo of ote rnity? I almost tbought so the next moment, as I panion's lips, so elight at first that I feared my eyes had doceived ms, bnt a little after a fliokering light, like a ripple of sunshine, swept slowiy over pended breath, divided betwixt hope and suas. pended breath, divided betwixt hope and faar selves foll on my fuce, as I bant over him. Ho lay quietly regarding me for a few momente, हi though trying to collect his thoughts sufficiently to sccount for my presence so near him. Presently he spoke
"Where am I?
"Where am I? What has happened?"
Ittold him in a fow words. yy voice quivered a their way, bnt I kept them back reeolutely.
"I romember sll now," he asid; "I saw the flash, but wes congeions of nothing more, I think Ilash, but wes congcions of nothing more, I think body, hy tbe mere force of the shock, as I bave read of men on the battlefiold being, atruck down by the wind on the batticholl being struck dow touching tbem. I do not think that I am injured at all; I wonder if I could rise ?"
I gave him my hand, and with some difficulty be regained his feet, but he staggered witb weat be regained his feet, but he staggered witb weaknees, and I wes obliged to assist him to ohkir nese, and I wes obliged to assist him to a ohair.
I sank into the other, my strength all gone, now I sank the excitement whioh bad kopt it up hid passed awsy.
"My poor child," Lhe said, "how white you are 1 and you tremble from woskness more tban I do. and you tremble trom weskness more tban I do. You mnst have been terribly frightened."
I smiled faintly in answe
"I think," he added, after gazing for a moment on the wreck wrought by the lightning, "I think on the wreck wrought by the lightning, "I think we have both been vory neur the gstes of death this day." Hs ahded his eyen with his hand, and his lipe moved ss if in prayer. My own head was bowed and from both hearts want up a forvont thank-giving to the All-Father for the lifed that He had prgerved. "What is this?" anid my companion, with look of surprise, as he passed his hsnd acress hia open throat, sud then througb his damp hair.
I explained what I had done.
"And you bed the courage and prosence of mind to nse means for my recovery. Yourere a mind to nse menns for my recovery. You are a I was silent; he le

Was silent; he leaned towsrds me.
scious when recovering from that deathlike trance was the sound of your voice. I beard it, as in a dream, before I could move a finger or give the faintest sign of lifo, but every word was dig-tinctly sudible to me. Milldred, will you sbide by tinetly sudible to that confescion ?"

I turned away my heed, sad pat np my hands to hide the burning blushee that were oovering face and neck.
"Mildred," he resumed; "I have loved you long, with a love ss deap and devoted as ever glowed in a buman bosom, But you were an heiress, and pride reatrained the confession of my feelings. I had mads up my mind, however, to hazard the avowah, when some remarke of yours, the last night of my stay at Newpert, completely cruahed my hopes, and I lsft your presence resolved to quit friends at home, and seak, amid far vainly and so well Your remember the words to vainly and so woll wbich I allude."
"That foolish upeeob," I said; "pray forgeb thst I uttered it. I never mesnt it in earneest, and have ragretted it bitterly aince,
I paused in confusion, maiden pride and ehame cheoking the confession or what hill forget it glady," he replied, "if you will only pernit me to remember thoee other words spoken to-day."
I did yot answer in words, bat alowly, timidly,
I turned, and with heatiog lioart, and downcast I turned, and with heating loart, and downcast eyes, laid my hend in his.
He clasped it olose, and He clasped it olose, and drawimg me nearer-but no matter for the rost. The next haif hon no matter for the rost. The next helf hour slipped swiftly by, for wo had mucb to any to each Bother.

" little doubtingly.  "Will not say. ",

 'yes,'n I replied. "Rest easy on that score. My father loves me too well toessential to my happincoss."
The rain had nearly ceas
The rain had nearly ceased. The clonds were breaking away, showing the blne aky hetween their rifte, and the tbunder muttered faintly in the distsnce.
"We shall

marked my companion.

"Are you stron
asked, doubtingly. caniage in the ebed, not a dozen rods from the house"
He had
He had risen as he spoke, and approaching the fireplace, stood gazing on the ruins Snddenly he uttered an exelamation that drew me to hia aide, and following the direetion of his eyes I saw what attracted his attention. The wall above the mantelpiece was not of plater, but of woodwork ouriously panelled. This had heen covered witb ouriously panelled. This had heen covered witb paper whioh was torn away, and through the papor whioh was torn away, and through the sbattered woodwork a oavity in the wall heneath was pininly visibles. My companion pushed aside a single ahelf in it. On this sbelf lay as aquare package, of moderate eize, wran? in hrown paper, and atrongly neoured. It was directed on paper, and at the ontaide:
"Por my ,nephew, Sweyn Selcott. To be "It is my uvelo"s
"It is my uwclo's handwriting," aedd selcott pleoe which he was about to reveal when his hand was palsied by death,"

He broke the eesals of the package, and re moving several wrappinge, tbe inner one being o oiled eillt, discloesd the pappras neathy tied togethor ${ }^{\text {pappers neestly }}$ tied togethor.
"We will git down and look these over at our leisurs," be esid. "Come, Mildrrd, your intereste are one with mine now, help me to oxamine these ${ }^{\text {paperss }}{ }^{\text {P }}$ "
The man was growing eancy with suocees, but I by his sido we commenced tbe examination.
The first document opened purported to he tbe and bequeethed, in dne legal form and plranee, to his
hit property of which the writar died posseseed.
Then followed tbe enumeration of varions sums of money doposited in differcnt hanking-houses in the State of M-Sweyn (he insisted on my cnlling bim that) ran tbem orer rapidy.
"The figuree amount to thirty thoneand dollors," he eaid. "Not quits enongb for tbat brown stono
it in tont, Mildred, bat $I$ think wo shall arrive at it in time."
"No mare of that, an' thou lovoat me," I replied, laughing and ocoloring, but $I$ added, misplied, laughing and coloring, but I added, mis-cinievousty, 1 I euppooe you will not eare to go to Celformin, now that you have found a fortine chicevously, "Iow Califoria, now
nourer home $?$
"No." he eaid, "my motive for going to Cali-formia was destroyed by the frot diecovery that I made here toddy; this is tbe sccond and lesser ono. The old house hes heen very kind to me, it the greatost treasure first."
"You sre getting unsndurable," I said: "go
" witb the reading Tbe will was wing.
Tho win was dully signed and witneesed.
"I sball bave no dificulty in proving this instrument," observed my companion, "ror I know sll theee witneeses to b b hiving $;$ hut what could h have induoded my uncle to deposit it in sucb a hiding-plaee ? But for that timely stroko of lighting, a blessing in more wayz then one, the package migbt have remained undiscovered unti the house erumhled in ruins, and posaibly never the house erumhled in ruins, and possibly never have been reoovered. However, the cot was of a have been reoovered. However, the set waio of a pieco with his whole character, and I will not queetion his motives, for I am certain thought hio was acting for my benent." A part of the other papers were given by the öicorrs of the various barks in which the money wae depositod. Then we came to a roll of manuscript lahelled "The story of William of manum Selcotht."
"We w
"We will leave this anread for tbe present," seid Sweyn. "We will not aedden our newfound happinese by it happiness by à tale of suffering, perhaps reinorse. Some dey wo will read it together
We did read it together a firr monthe later, or rather I sat at my husbendy hnee while heresd tbe narrative alond I may give it to the some day, but at present it has nothing to do with my story.
By the time we had fanisbed tbe pepers, the rain had entirely ceased; the oun was elinining rain had entirily ceased; the oun was ahining once more, and we propoedd to leave the house once mora, and we propoeed to leave the house which had been to us the acene of eueb etartling The sun was sinking behind tbe western hille hush, and tiny heds of greas, seemed dowerad with a new glory and beanty. As we croseed the threehold both of ua turned in voluntarily, and $h$ Deoerted House.

THE MYSTERY OF "THE PLACE:"

atory in thiree part

㫙 J. w. Watsox Vzay hitlo over an hour had elaped when Mrs.
Miller summoned Peyton to Colonel Swintor's room. There he found him etretconed st jengti upon his hed, proetrate and helpleses, with eumikon syes and hollow temples, that told an unerring tale of agony and remorse. Peyton was eentod

"Peyton, I bbye much to aek pardon for. Not ouly from my wife, bat from you and from the world. God, wbo looks into our hearta, will, I think, pardon many of my fuylte. His hand has boen in the evente of tbe paet few days, not to boen in the events of tbe paet fow days, not to epare nue bat to base Isabelle from a lifelong sorHe He He topped for a moment to recover bis brasth, "I wish to make all the revalations I have to make, Patyton, to you, before any thing in asid to Iosbelle, that you may anviee that wilicb is beest for her. I truly helieve you are her triend, Let me toll my story.
"You have, without doubt, beard much of goosip, such gossip an floats throumh society, that sip, such gossip ae floats throush society that has an instinctive lmowledge is being whispored in his very presence-of my youth. I whas 2 vild boy, Peyton, but never a wicked one, and when finally I left my home end went sbro, ad, what to to seek tbat freodom which might have easily bcen acorded me witbont doing either myself or my family injury. My futher was a harr man, who, while attaining wealth hefore the world hat his roputation in doing eo, and sought to force me rrors. It wao from this rigidity of goverument tbat I broke and wanderad eway, without caring what became of me. I weant fratst to Havann, afterwards to Mexiso, and finalily, aftor eeveral yeera, brought up in the neiggborhood of Bnenos Ayres, Soutb Amorics, ers and reckless life of a cattlo hunter ty the dan.

I soon found myself mazing money fast ae a dealer in the prodacteof the bunt. Thise busist wese a drought me intso contact witb many commeriol houbog of day at the msee I eaw the daughter of Cabriel Gnerin, and wne at onco attracted Cnorin, and wae at onco attracted. I Iam going to epealk truthfally - and I nay attractoc. I I was too yonng to know my own heart, and too unsentled in character to control it. Marie Guerin was very beantiful and very young-ouly fifteen-thougb even at that age looking as oil twenty in hie northern climate.
"Toe natural result of my attraction was that phibbed metter-as I slroedy had gained the favor of the father.- Guaerin wes Frocoh, having come to Buenos Ayres twenty yeura beofre, and masried to Buenos Ayres twonty yeara before, and masried appearrance of the latet, was in manner and apeech Only French. We had not met men time I knew that sbe loved me, a love many that waes shown wive that flatereded my en ardor of ber rice, and a not return it in the measure it was given. She wals so beautifu, end it was eo pleneant to hear among hy asaociates the complinente that were tione to him who was so fuvorred, by bor. congratuia
"Still there wa "Still there was a myatery hung family, though what it was I could never unravel. In fact I cared Litlle to do so, I was too much flattered in the love I had gained, the first love of a tered in the love I had gained, the first love of a beantiful woman, and tbe firte reel love that had ever heen beetowed upon myeois. How it came about aiter many montbe 1 do not knov, but one day I salked Marie in marriags. 1 sball neverceass to remember the wild, paseionate embrace, the torrent of words, glowing almost with idolatry;
with whieb she dismissed me to her father for his consent.
"I was oontounded when be received ny proposition ation and forget my love. Why? He worild not answer. Was I not her eqnal in education family, wealtb, everytbing? Yes; but if I valued her. At last, wearied to anngery, I declared my intenion of seeking Mario without his consent, and snd told the story of his mposition caught my arm
"Insanity was her heirioom!
the femsles of the Nevarriez family had died in madhouses; her own mother, Gnerin's wife, being at that time an inmete of an naylum in the anbat that time nu inmete of an afylam in the eab-wrbs of the city, tbougb supposed hy every one buth of the city, thougb supposed hy every one but herbend to be dead, and Merie herssif had aireedy shown unmistaikable evidenoes of tbe malady. It had been the grant torrow of his liff ; he had married her mother in spits of the warning that had heen proffered him, and the result had been that he had prayed that none wonld demand Tarie in marriage, knowing thie hereditary curse Tarie in marriage, knowing this hereditary curse;
bat if they did, tubould not be withont a reoount: ing of all the agony he had endured for a a ecoure of ind years trom yiolding to the paseeion of yonth, snd Yearf trom yiolding to the paeeion of yonth, him linking bimaelf to ono wio could ouly hring him uhhappioes. unhappinees. And then the old man, in as strong words ae has hed power to uttor, spoke to mo of all the yeare Le had loved this woman, who had been that from him in a maniac's eell, who was incapable of distinguishing kindness from brutality, and who did not even know the one whom sbe had once so loved, and who now went on from year to year, etill loving her who was living and atill dead. All this I heard, and my heart aank within me, , but still I could not refrain from going hack to Nario and once more eeing her; the old hack to Marie and once more eecing her; the old man's appeal was as nothing, and the very next wbat he so much fearred, and Witb big oycs fill witb tears, Gabriel Gaerividing it Tras consummated in accordernoe witb his wiehee. These wishes were, frat, tbat all the cere-- monieg ehould be private ; and second that monies ehould be private; and second, that I should teke my wifo away from Buenos Ayres for one or two years to travel. Both 1 wili ingly conzented to, and after a proper delay ried and left the city for Europe.
"I will not go through events. It is enengb 1 say the firat eymptoma of the torror thed when coning upon os. I battlod against it in every way; we sought society, change, oxecitemont, whatover had the loast air of possibility na tend ing to oure or allariation. We weat to Paris ard London, ond then sougbt tbe higheet medical eliill in the world, but it was without effeet, and in loee than one year from my marriige $I$ had upon my hands a manisd wife, who did not oven recogniso her huaband.
nin
nin
"For a long time I fought againgt this, and edto do that which I congeientionaly tbought best, which was to return to Buenoes Ayres, and in quiet which was to return to Buenoe Ayres, and in quiet either awwit tbe recovery, if suoh a thing were posiile, or give up my life to wateh her wbom I that I was of leave Loundon for Sootu America news came of the deatb of Marie's fatber, and or mine, $a$ ooincidencee tbat eoemed strangely intended to sffoot my future course, for now I must go to that or Maric'e wae loesened.
the ouleeplen unders tand tho restloss responeibility New York, and with dififullty found meana of ascluaing my wife, without sending ber to an ssyllum. My marriago had never hecn announced to my relstives, and now I determinod it sbould Would not proaent to them a manaino as my bride Wuas done, and in this way, for or our gryers. I Ihed in New Yoric, having her alwaya with me, without and after mature considerstion I determined to remove Mratie to it. After eeveral vitto, sind conversations with Miiller, I concluaded to retain bor here, and to entrust ber with $m y$ here, and to entrast ber with my gecrat. Thie truat has einco been extonded to Dr. Warner, and I bave nevor yet had caasse to regrot my truast; they bave both been frm, true friends to myeelf, hase acted with their confidence, and I may bey with their advioe.

"And now, Peyton, I come to another dark chaptert It chaptert It it ten yoare since I first brought Marie to this bonee. For one-half that time I Marie to this bonae. For one-half that time I sancoe ever left ite threebold, but gradually tha desire crept upon me to got ont once again into the worla, the world. It began with a fow days' abeence, snd an I getherod confidonce in the cars and affoction of Miliber and Dr. Warner for my poor Marie, tbe period lengthened, untit it would he Marie, tbe period lengthensd, untill it would he ouly days here, and weeks aww. As I wes ouly days here, and weeks away. As 1 whe received into society, not ouly rea man of wealth, ont as an eligible man in overy way, wes it any begaen to think of ebarm grew upon me? and It I bure in a different light than ever hefore. For tha first time I really began to regard Marie ae a burden, and tocherish segna to regard Marie as a burden, and to oherish some hope that tbe time would come when I should ha frea to marry again, that I might per potuate my name, andid bave oome one to whom Ould lespe the wealt that whe my hands, from the coonomy and quiet of my
"This for gears was a dormant thought, until that one in wbich I mot Imabelle. God forgive me for my weakness 1 I eaw her, and smothering my memory of my living dend wife my memory of my Uving, deed wiff, I loved Iosbellet For a while I etruggled againat it, and then arguing sophietically that as alho was dead to myself so sbould she be dead to all the world, I sought Isabello as my wifo, and was oven more anxious than her morcenary uncle to hasten the marriage, and to hasten it so that it would have
" fow days before our marri 作, and aylling Millor and Dr. Warner to me announced to tbem that I was already married and told them all my reasons for so doing. Had they then entered any protest \&gainst it thera was still time to rotreat, but it was not so. At was still time to retreat, but it was not Bo. At frist they were both elhocked at the announcement bont there was no word of accuestion on their eincorely attachea, and though no wordi buve passed between ns sinoe that day when I first announced my act, promaturely, still I belisve that tbey would offer stronger argumont in palliatio of my courge than $\mathbf{I}$ coild myealk.
tbat I reolly knew suffering fromg with Tasbelle Then I had the deep remorse for the wrous I bad done the poor mamas, snd the sorrow for that to Ieabello. I dreaded to look apon the first, leat eoma accusing elould glance from her mad eyss to punish my crime, even though che kyeu nothing of it, nor yet ever could know, and I droaded to look upon the last, for foosr thist upon me for tbe rain 1 had brought upon her.
from thise part of the country, and why. I deefired to koep her away, and why I was filled with way down here Warner and Miller, and I my mecrot but Dr. reliancs in them, but tbat dial not beiter it. It was the fearful anxicty of mind $I$ had bosn under. going for montbs that bronght upon me this "And now to wae attacked hy Mrame to that night when Isahcillas how she got out of her How mis occurred, and nexplainable riddds. Mixilor sleepge in tbe toon ajjoining Marie'e, with tbe door open, and every outlet is locked, and the keys in Miller' hed. We way of her to tuis time, been able to find any Tay of her getting out, or of her- getting into it is the first time she ever showed a derixe to do injury. Last wight $I$ wae awakened hy a allight noise, and eaw Marie walling abont my room. Sbe saw me atari from the bed, and fed into th ball, after which you know what ocenrred. "Now, Peyton, I leave myself in your handis. Whatever you sny sball bo done, must be. If it is and on my knees contess ell my faylto and her, though I love her, I am willing to reim ber for ever, that the is an unwoddod wifte, and that sbe may do with mo as ahe likeo, or with my property, I will; but it, on tbo contrary, you think that all this past may bo buried in obivion, and who alroudy know it who khall alo those tarree repentance, then $I$ can feel that I still bave tuture."
Swinton consed, and looked full npon Peyton, who hent his head upon his hands for o fur minutese, in deep thougbt. When he riseed ith it "Can this ho concealed trom Isabhelle?"

With your aid," wae Swinton's answer. How ?"

"By not acknowiedging the rclationslisp
Iarie,", "aid Swinton, hositatingly.
Peyton heesitated
Peyton hesitated ouly for a moment, and then anid: "It ie hest,"
"Tbank you!" Swinton said, quiedly. "It ie your exprosesed friendehip for Irebelle. I huve as well as in tbeir interest, and if you anco, as you vhall asserted, truly Ieabelle 's friend and wer, devotion to he:
Pcyton roee from bis geat, and grapped Swin'I bolieve yon, and tball bo es "I bolieve yon, and tball bs equally your friond.
And now to send away this man, the unviliog
cause of Marie's death,"
"You cen purchase his silence, though he knows nothing, at tunob price that desk you will find money. Give him plenty ! and Swinton handed Peyton a key.
Afowminntes after Peyton wne in Mr. Brobbett'e roum, wbers tbat genteman was walking about in nervous anxifty, and immediately on Poyton's appearuace hailed him with ${ }^{\text {appearance hailed him with, }}$
"Mr. Brobbett, you aro a man of lusinges, and I am going to talk to yon in that ray," enid Poyton, to which Mr. Brobbett nodded an aseent. "And to begin, let me ask yon what you would consider propeg compensetion for a oneo of this lind sup-posigg you uproued it no farther, and returned to Now York?
Mr. Brobhatt gave a little anxious smile, and auswered:
"Well, Mr. Popton, if I wes paid Liberally, "And how much more, Mry. Brobbett, would you oxpeot to entiraly forget the occurrencee of the past few hours, tha moment yon left the bounderiss of thie placo ?" Mr. Brobbett smiled more
"Those are thinge generally laft answer thomselves. You'ro a liwiver, Air. Peyton, and "Thow, Mr. Brohhett, I &hall give you another twenty for that 1" Brobhath, breat Thank yout", reeponded Mr. "And now, Mr. Brobbett, a final
How mnch more will you want to leave hare withont any explanation of the odd affirir of hast nigbt, and to feel that it never will be explained? perhape you will lesave that also to me ?" Mr. Brobhott nodded a delighted assent, and "Then, Mr. Brobbett, sllow mo to band you thanke. If over anything occours in your line pain, 1 shall alwayg remsmber you, and bave perfect confidence in your judgment and secrecy. Mrr. Brohbett was ons blaze of smiles, and a nuarto volume of then quarto volume of thanke, and daclared that he not wait untin the carriage wes ordered, but would walk to the dopot, and wo Mr. Brobbot went $A$ fow minutee later Isabelle stood by her husbandes bedsido. The work of the nigbt hed made. sabelle coold not have reeseted the hutd hor pity forth, nor prevented him preesing hers to his lips hefore he began to apeak.
"Isabelle, I bave much for; firstly, for sppareit negleet, whieh, though nd for the long future yon sume end. 16 is over, o melse of my went of devetion.
 naniac, a relative, Isabelle, wbom I have sought to hide from the world. A speechless and, up to alke, for my family'e anke, and tor miac. For lier sake, for my fomily'e salke, and for my own and ourr, Teebelle, I have sought to hide this exisence, and yet not let ber buffer in any way. Whers I was takken ill, and it was my deeire that you should not become acquininted with this family searot that made noe wish to family secrot tbat made mo wish to send you away. I have explained all tbis to Peyton, and also that tbe atthack upon you io a mystery to us scape from her rooms. The seoret of her ciietence wae haried with Dr. Warner, Miller and will you forgive un whitb youpand Peyton. Isabello, me by a life of love and protection to comp allow for the pest ${ }^{\text {?" }}$, and Swinton drow the yielding ohis arms, and kias An, George, how can I reeist enything you now, and I will he ever obedient. You are my hobland. I love you, only suffer me to be with you, and he lind, und I aels no other bappineess. you, and he hand, and 1 ask no other bappiness.
For the future bave no secreta, no matter wbat they many be ; let me but sbare them with yon, and show hear meu thist I do forgive truly, you shat never sbadow hetween ua,", and 1 IIabelle twinod har

srms about his necik, and returned warmly hia | $\substack{\text { arm3 } \\ \text { kise } \\ \text { kis. } \\ \text { Tbe }}$ |
| :--- |

Tbe next day the body of Marie was borne to fov rodis onty from the ho the Swinton family, a prosent hat the undertakar and cleggyman, and lis in body until tbe hour of oternal liie, while the eecret of har life and death wase equally huriod in Yeara bave paseed tince then, and the grave. justififed the means in tbo keeping of this eecret from Iuabelle who live a beloved wifo mother and a heppy woman.

A Wrix Preszaved Native-The Daily

\section*{| Latat |
| :--- |
| Lain |
| dita |
| dita |}

AN ODE TO MEMORY

ny henay neze.

Tran giveth up the ghoot, and where to he?"-Job. sp There is he? not by her sile Not ooer thoese rullegs wandering side,
 That form bebloved he marks not more, Those eecene aimimird d onore
th, not tbe rudiance is not dim That nese too giand hie tavororite hill; The plesasurusthat vero darat thind Bnt, har lyit home tio not tes thi-

 His mas tbe poomp, the oromded hanj; Hin ribhese honore, pleaearues, ell Destrie could frame; hut mhero are they?
 Surrounded hy cedirining bande The churchysard bears an added dtone,
 And doath diepluys his hapner here Thi ilfo if goun, the bhrouth has feer Thind ing gat, been no more ehall he;

NINA MARSH

HE SECRET OF THE MANOR.

mitria $L$ mmanamber

Berchwood MLaros was one of those fine old placeo that carry romance with them. The building wee rembling and eomewhat discornected, inh showing easily the additione of successive centu-fies, but cummodleus withul. The prevailing atyle ries, but commodleus withau, The provaing atyle of architecture
mas Eizahiethan ; but one of the wings which had been addod by the grandather of the present proprietor had obviouely been deince it hore alout as mnoh resemblance to the parent structure as a mongrel-bred puppy to its high-ceste mother-the slight similitude betwoen them being all the more provoking, perhape, from suggeeting the model without funtiling the conditions. Neverthelesk, Beechwood Manor, etanding amongat is asd old treee, in an extoneive park well filled with deor and cattle, was, ns we have eaid a a tine old place, and ampy deerring. John Clumber Marah, Eaq., the present owner of the honse and large eetate adjoining, was one of the old generation of country squires. Heloved his home abeve all places in the worla, qnitting it with reluctence, and returning to it with deight. He was an honest-hoarted man-the old wquire He was not, perhaps, what may be called religious, his syotem of faith being moro of habit than prineiplo; hut he was strictly morel in his lifo and denings. His mord was as good as his bond ; snd though he exacted the uttermast farthing dno to him for corn or cattle, it wae with a manly doterminatien te be treatod as he would treat othera, and a cosviction that he was giving a fair equivnlent in retarn.
Ient in retarn. dony that he was consciontions to No one conld
a degree, and a man who followed duty only, ever a degree, and a man who followed duty only, ever whore it appeared nstural that ho should isten to his henrt. Ho was considered hard and storn hy tome on this nccount; hint it may be noted that thoso who qnarelled with Mr. Marah were popple of whom the wortd in in eneral were not much in. clined to misko friends Certainly it mey be said that he was not sympathetio--that he had little pity for ainners, lot their temptations have been what they might; still, ho wae a good husband, sn oxcollent tather, 4 just lanalolorid and a simocre this fair category or virtues, what witted to diecern, and which home fow might not have considered euperfluous where there was have considered eupperfluous where there was already so much to provelko admiration and esteem. Mrareb, his wife, was one of thase gentle, Mrs. petient, soll-saccificing women who merge their vory individuality in that of tbeir husband, and aro perficectly satiified to aninn hy reffection only.
Theese tranquil dispositions are not the most heautifnh, but they are the most convenient. ., Mra
Mareh at fifty looked baroly thiry trace no gray hair amonget hor frir, ample ourl and her cheek was pure and unvrinkleolh When you live through others, allowing them suffer for you, and only taking a meok share of thoir bardene, it is wonderful how you keep your complexion and your tompor. You eip slowily and tranquilly at the cup of life, never drinting deop tranquilly at the cap of lifo, nover drinking deop enough to reach the bittor dregg. Your beverage enough to reach the bittor drego. Mour somowhat lrothy and fiavorlose-truo ; but then your bead is always clear, your hand steady, end what wit you havo is ready at oommand-nll gifas of great price in this age of gib pens and prompt Mre. Marsh had the credit of heing rather a wise gotiam which is absolutely forceed upon them rebellion hy te coling thoir wives that the indulgence of gelf is the higheet aspiration they can here. Mr. Marah was an amiable and consciontions deepot, bat etill he was a despot; and Mrs. Marsh, like thooe who live nuder a government ae wise as abeolnte, forgot to culculate hie power, and rae, moreover, porfie efly persuuded that hie rule wee sy moderate as it wae jnst.
Macelecine, the eldest deughter, Modelecine, the eldest duughter, wee a lerge, elcepy-esed, apathetio woman, in whoee character there was no one ealient point one might hope to grasp. She had, oceasionally, a bright iden-in fance work, and had ombroidered a ocreen from her own decign, bnt oiberwise might have ben thonght a fool, had ehe not inherited her mother's thonght a fool, had the not moet blesased gift of eilence.

moet blessed gift of eilence. Katie, the youngeet daugh

ten, made up the present per, a beuntital child Mr. Mareh bad justreturned from the eeaside, whither he had been acoompananied by tll his family exoepting one danghter, who, meanwille, had been paying a long-promieed visit to a friond in the North. Thoy hed arrived at the etation, which North. Thoo hed arrived at the etation, which wab some little dietance from the honse, and Mr. Marih was now driving hie family home, Mred Marah being eested at his eide in tront of the coaschman, with a groem and a lady' ${ }^{\text {and maid, all in }}$ a sort of luggage.van, wore to be eeen just paesing a sort of luggage.van, wore to be seen just paesing tbrough the lodge gates. It was one of Mr. Murah's pi iarities that he would never allow any one to take the reins bui himing driven. Fortunately he was on excellent whip, and it was pleasant to notice the calm ease with whieb he managed the impetuous horsos, steeping them to a smooth, unhronon trot ail the way up tbe avemue, guiding them steadiky reuma an alrupt corner, snd finalyy bringing thom to a endiden heltt withhin an incb of the stops leading ap to the house door.
simmons, the butler, had heerd the sound of wheell, and was already prepared to welcome his wheele, and was already prepared to welcome his master and mistrees homo again. Mir. Marsb alighted and carofully helped down his wife and daughtere, then they all entored the house. "Is Mize Nina hero?" inctuired Mr. Mareh, noro hy way of asying aomething encouraging to the attentivo butler than from any doubt ho allowed himself to ontertain on the point.

What time did ahe anive on a quarter to eccon, sir."
Mr. Marsh tumed and examined the clook. It was juat one minute past the hour, and the hal was already illumininted by a large lamp overhead Then he took out his watch, and looked curionsly from that to the clock,
"You aro half an hour buhind London time ; let that be attonded to," weo his first remark. Then that be attonded to," weo his first remark. Then ho added, quiclly, "A quarter to seven, ati you eay? Yeu bave made a mistake, Siwmous ; Miss eis? Yeu bave made a mistake, simmons, Nina was to come ky tho five oclocls train"
"Ye "Yea er lut lut on hy the next."
Mr. Marsh looked as thongh he did not reulise the poosibility of people missing a thing they wiebed to reech, whillat Mrs. Marah, who was growing eomewbat smxions, ventured to inquire how Mive Nina got home.
"Sbe walked, ma'am," retarnod the ever-respoctful Simmone, spealing with a reluctanco it woctiul Simmone, spen

What1 Mise Nina wes allowed to walk, when there were horsee and carriages here doing nothing !" exclaimed Mrr. Marrh, aternly. "Prey lat me lnow how this occurred." "The under-groom drove the pony-carriage to Blenkford for Miss Nina, sir; but zas sie did not cep her time, and the next train camo in oo lat ne thought it wna no uae etoppiug.
Mfr. Marsh frownod, but eaid no he led the way upetaira, his wife and daughtiter ollowing in his wako.
On the handing they were me thy the housekeeper, a toll, dignifided-looking person of about orty, who, both in appearance and mumners, might have done oredit to a far higher atation. She removed Mrs, Marsh's wrappers, reepeetfully inquitinged arers, harrah ing health.
Mg aleer her health,
Mrs. Mardh answered tbet the was all the better or her trip, hut that the ovening had come over ro suddenly dark and obilly that she feared -nay,

was quite eure-that she mast havo caught | was |
| :--- |
| cold |
| " Oh | "Oh, mama! How oould yon think it dark and chilly? exclaimed Katio, euthnsiatically.

Mr. Mareh had entered the drawing-room by this time, or porhapp Katio might not hase venured to express her ideae so frecly, her father having an maienaile convin to aclnowledge to an opimion of bes.
"And Nina, Mres Trent, where's Nina ?" added Katio in hor hright, impetuous way. "I want see her so baily ; why didn't bibe come down ? "Mriss Nina ie lying ou the bed in borown room, miss. Sbe felt tired . her walk, and aaked for cap of atrong tea, eaying she alkould rest quiouly nntil you ell eame home. I will call her, miss, if you like No ; Fln go myodf, thank you."
And Katie, my dearr," said Mira, Mareb, "tell Nina her
But Katie found her Bister'a door locked againet her for the first time in hor lifo. Nina's voice waa low and fuint when it came in nuewer to thoss eager okildish greetings. She was evidently suffering en well han gritiguch.
My darling," she murmured in a amotherca conc, 88 if her face were preased in doep against the pillows, "I am longing to see yon all-dear hetter, perhaps, in a minnte or two, and then $\Gamma 1$ oome. Tell pupa as, desr, won't you?"
"And you will try not to be very long,
"And you will try not to be very long, Nina ?"
said Katio, plaintively, for the almoot worelipped hor eccond sister, and was stonding tbeero amonge tonder kises and loving touch ahe had not felt for months.
"I mill
.

I mill try. But etop-I mnet oome now whilst I can. It if better, perhape."
A low, emothered, "Oh, A low, emo door oned, my God, have pityl ${ }^{1}$ on the thresheld.
Sbe had not been lying down, it deemed, for ber hair was carofflly luraided so as to form a high coronet above her pure, pele browe. She held s as to pull hior young sideter clooe to her breest.
"Oh, Nin, I Inve misect you eot" and then the freeri, sweet lipy were pressed over and over again frenib, sweet lipy were preased over and over on the white, quivering month of her sister. on the white, quiveripg month of her sister.
"Come, Katio," eaid Nins, preeently, "you let meme go to patip, nown now,"
"You oughtnt't to be made to go to anybody, ina, darling eo ill a you look "Huah, Ketie, I am not ill, only tired. Don" tell poople about it; it would only make mo worse and I am so weary now-almost weary enough to
"Oh, Nina !" and the child beld against her with

"But it woon't be, darling-I oan't expeot that and yon, $I$ could be so ghad to feel ill-for $I$ am ill Katie, and I told you a dalsehood when I declared hat I was not. Bnt it doeen't matter what I or do now-nothing can make mo worse than Iam - Jou who Liston here, child. II you know mo woe and beatiful, you would shrink from me with hing.
Oh, Nina, don't speank so; you frighten me." Rored took ${ }^{2}$ epeaik ${ }^{n}$ said her siater, giving usedyy to her hood. "What did I It toll yon, Katio?" Iknew all." "din Ithink. Ther "All what, Katio? I am raving, I think, Ther papa, chilid." Nina almeot dragged her little sifter with her through the paeasos sud into the drawng-roun
With the lanip still in her hand ebe pasesed up her fubber's eide, all the majeety of her beantythat grand, large, imposing beanty-displayed before him as ehe bent her heat to recaive hie kisy on ber browa, Mr. Marsh was not over pleaseed that Nina had not come beforo, end would not condeocend to aekk any quaetions as to her visit, etce, hut juet embraced her coldy, and let her go, Then Nina sat downa, simply because she could not tand.
Whereas Mradeleine and Katio took aftar their mother in face, Nina, who was incomparably the most heautiful of the three, bore a strong reeemblance to her father-hy no means a handsomo man. She hed the samo deep gray eyes, only in her thoy were eo lopely, thickiy fringed by their long black lashee, that you turned from their Elante firmly beilieving thet you would nover tolorate hlack or blue egee again. Darkening with ore anger, , gottening with tenderneees paling mith inn grior, fathomloas in thought, bat through all their changee eyes to win with & emilit, and venquisish by toon, is it to ho wondered that Nina, ovon in childish daye, had gresped a sooptre beofore which the strongest were fain to kueel? Her noso was the strongest were fin to nueer wor sone vin
a delicate aquiline and in ber mouth snd with heir ste with their steedy, dotermined meke, sou recognised it once the daughter of Mr. Marsh, and pictured once the daughter of Mir. Marsh, and pictured tro his lore of poe mis But nezer yet have gode also his love of power. But never yet have goan Tho firm downward corre at the corners was almost emothered in dimplee, wiltolding its roveation of hidden strength from sll but the mest lation of hidden strength from sll but the most diecerning. To those therefore who werve be good ndges that orimsen month seemod only forme Nina's benuty its gleam of eottnees and enchanting

Finding that hor fither did not talk, Nina hai taken upa book, and was protonding to read. Bu youtend of fixing themeolvee on the page, and every momen cineme that woary, tion of her fingers to her head.
At leet Mrs. Marsh camo in. Sho had mado every poseible arrangement for her own comfori frrst, not because she really valued this beyond aight of her daughter's face, bnt timply from halit. She quickenva wer pace af iner who mais neno tion to rise and welcome her, only aate silent in her ohair, cowering down as if Mre. Mareh were ooming to strike and not to embraco her.
"Nina, my love", excluimed Nire. Marain, and o mound her soft, loving arme round that tigid, she wound her soft, loving arme round that rigit "Mother, there's nothing to know-nothing to and rice stopped ab ruptly, and Nina foll aenseleas at her mother's Mrse. Marsh gave a holpless glance at her huss hand, ns if to mqquiro what had better he doue, bito he was already at her side, his plan of netion thoroughly matured, and ready to be put into immodiate practice.
"Call Srs. Trent,", said he, oalmly, but quiokly "And, Sophis, my doar, you would be better in your own room for the prosen.
It did not Beem hard to Mrs. Mareh to be banished from her daughter's aide at such a time
She fnew that her husbond mesant to save her, and ehe wha too much under hie auihority, to and eie wad o think all he did mast be right, to accuetomed to underatand that she ought not to bo saved. Nr. underatand that she ought not to bo sovec. Sir Mareh might have known that the wes not itted for the post he was abont to dollogate to Mrea Tront, but at any rate he dhould have allowed be thing rather than stife in the bud that Aret ma-

Cornal instinct which promptod her to exert all he energy to proserve the life ehe had beetowed.
Sbe did heeitate one moment on the threehold, looking wistfolly one moment on the threehold, leef figure ; but Mr. Marsh'e qniet $n$ Now, my dear, if yom please," seemed to fix her wavering resolntion, and she disapperred.
In another minute Mrrs. Tront was otanding by "Nom, Mrus. Tre
"Now, Mras, Trent, look here", eaid Mr. Marah.
MLiee Nina has, I bolieve, en attonk of brin Mree Nina has, I believe, an attaok or brial ont a ecocond'e unnecessary delas. I fhall carry her into her own roem, and lay her on the bed, and yon must undress, her. Moenwhile, I ehall o myself for a doctor, And now take the lamp, you plesse, end lesd the way."
Mra. Tront was quite eqnal to the emergeney. and inspired you with instinctive confidence in her trength and efficiency. Mr. Marsh had no noed o add another word. Mra. Trent undorstood at once all that was expected of her, and was preared to perform it to the best of her ability. Her charecter wae not unlike her maeter'e, only in her this latent power and strength of will had become suddenly developed by adveraity, wherces in Mr. Mareh it had boon in eteady demonetration hrongh life, being a principle in one and a habit in tho other.
Nina was already undroseed, and was tosing and moaning in her bed, when the hoofs of Mr, Marsh's horee were heard striking the gravel in a and proceeded deeidedly, but regrotsolly, the hot, burning head of ite ample treesses, binding it round with a ceol, moist bandago in lien of its rich coronet of shining braids. This eho renewed very five minutes, mheeding tbe plaintive voice of peor as if her heart wonld breale.
The child know how hopelees it was to appeel
for admittance, and the mystery of her beloved fister'e illance, and the mystery of hor beloved She slunk away to her own room when ebe heard her father returning, and yet, censtant in her enhat night, but sat on the fieor just within her own little bedohamber, the door ajer, listening in ager terror to every sound from the wick room, her teare falling afroah overy time that Nina'e roice pierced the etillmess of the house with ite tharp cries or moane.
Dr. Oundle, on his
Dr. Oundle, on hie srrival, expreseed fuil approbstion of Mrr. Trent's thoughtful arrangements, and congratulated Mr. Marsh upon his good for tune in heving any one so efficiont and trustworthy about him at such a crisis. He aolsnowledged tha he could see but faint hopes of life for Nina. Still, ahe whe young, her constitution was naturally vig niweys a chanco - at the eame time he felt it rich niways a warn her family not to be too aungune wher there was, unfortunately, so little to hope and so much to foor.
Theee words hed been addressed to Mr. Marsh in Mrs. Trent's presence, but when they wore con cinded Dr. Ou Mo late to account for this attack.
"Oh, dear ms, no, nothing of the kind1" anered Mr. Marsh, very deoidedly.
I am inolined to betieve, sir, that you will find yoursalf mistaken,' continued Dr. Ounde, wita equal conidience; yill cloes the if you will take my determinedly aginat every one of the eeryane excepting of coure Mre. Trent, whom I should beliove to be perfectly trustworthy and discreet, The ravings of delirium are full of diatorted fancies and atrange beliefis and the vulgar and ignoreni aro so easily impresese with the truth of anything of gratines thei taste for gosiip and their love of the horrible. It would be hard if Mies Marah, after struggling so painfully into life, should have that life poisoned by ealumny or misrepresentation, and no effor could be too great to provent such a masastophe.
Dr. Oundle was a kind-hearted mand he poke now with eignificance which Mr. Marsh felt almost inclinod to resont. has hepented his asdistarb her; and Dr. Ounde, whilst slaking his head a hittle duliouely, begged that, in any case, his hint might receive due attention,
"I had already settled that it shonld be as you propoos, repied Ir. Muld at all trust abont my the only person I could at all trust abont my danghter at sucta a tims. I can safely answor that no one will relieve her wateh, unleee it be myseli," Dr. Oundle looked almost compassionately into the calm, stern face of Mr. Marah, then said the ea gently
"Bet
"Better leave it to Mrs. Trent; we men are 2wherd he took np his hat, and refusing Mr. Yareh's offor for refroshmonts, left the sick-room the house, promising.to call again in the course olsewhore who was needing his services quite as nuch ae his patient horo.
But why deacrihe that dath-hat rile it eeemod almoot a defest? Nina was, at list, allowed to seo ber family again, snd por lithe Kntie, palo and rad, was the herself in the paseage, for sbe, too, felt etrangely near erying-nearsi been in all her life hofore.
Madoleine was just learning a difficnlt stitoh in arochot, and was so oxcited with her succeas that seemed opproseed rather than oheered by theee vieitors, and when thoy were going she sighed, nd beckoned back Katie, who was lingering on nd beckoned baok Katie, who was lingering on Nrs. Trent had not tho heart to ohject, and was led that ahe bad not done co wben ehe fonnd Nins sleeping quietly with the cool fingers of he preseed with both of her hot, sager palme.

oratizan IL-rat Ds on pozs?

Feos that day Nina pr, wsed far more rapid-1y townrde recorery. Sbe wae now ahle to quit ly townards recorery. Sbe wae now ahle to quit her room for eeveral honrs overy day. She sellom saw hor father on theese occaaious. His nepbew, Cyril Marebb, capthin in the - Husears, and staying with him, and tbe two gentlemon were maling landable offorte to thin the preeerves Nina semed to feel something approoching to reliof at her fotbor's absence. As a atern shadow reliof at her fotbor's absence. As a stern shadow ho badd arkened hor delirium, standing abore her, like some flerce Virginius, with the elaughtering knife in his land; ; and sbe conld not ria her mind of thees improsesions sufficiently to look forward withont thuddering to heing ag tho unceaking serutiny of hie keen tye.
But one morning Mr, Mernh seat a meeesge from tho hreenifast-tablo that he hoped Nins would sparo herself as mnch as possibio during the day in orreer that slie might he ble to join them all in tho druwing-room for a Eittle while after dioner. Now, Mr. Marah's requests, however gently worded, were understood as, and meant for, commands ; and, therefore, his daughmeant for, commando; and, theref tor h 3 d no altermative but to ochey.
tor had ne alternitive but to ohey.
But even the the the could scarcely gather But beven aurage for the effort. She kept lingering un hor own rooun long after she had heard Mr. Mr. Harah and hin gueet leaving the dining-room.
in hor onn rem Hor consin was an uttor stranger to her. Some mivunderstanding hetweea Mr. Mareh and his brother hud prevented any intimncy during the Hietime of the latter; and for the last tan yeure Capt. Marsh had been in Indiut with his reciment having only inst reoturnod to Ennlund. And as yet Nina was still week onough to foel meoting with Nina was still weak onough to feel meoting with strangers a serious grief.
Prescotly
E
Prosontly Kutio came hounding along the passangeg eent hy Mr. Marelh to reqneet that Nina suge, eont hy Mr. Marsh to reqneet that Nina would join them at once. Nina roso, drew her sawn closer about her, and with a hardid fant look about the lipe which lirought out the sant look aboot tbe lips which hrought out the lines and stifled the dimples, she marched in amongst thom all.
Capt. Marah was leaning againet the mantelpiece, talliking to ber futher, when she entered. He kept hio cyee steadily upon her ae she ad. catch an exproesion of. perploxity and discontent, coutd neithor nuderstand nor approve.
Nina met that enlm, scrutinising glance; and, Ninn mot that culm, scrutinising glance; and, thongh sha returned it by a haughty tosi of the heod, it was plain to see that sho did not relish her cousin's neighborthood, and had snme reaoon to fear his penetration. And yet there was a fooling instinot that it waold be inpoeeribo for them to he indifferent to oach other ; that they munt be ither warm friends or hitter enemies.
Captain Marelh was hy no meaus a handsome man, and yet his fice somolow ceught your atman, and yet his face somolow ceught your attontion at onee, and attracted you, in epito of pourself. Fise frame was almost hercroenn in proportion, but well knit togother, hroal and proportion, but well knit together, hroad and muxoultr, without boing obese Hys fro resemhled tomewhat that of an inteliiggont mastiff. The hled somewhat that of an inteliligont matifif, The syes wero deep set ; tho nose loug, and thickonng siightly at the noetrils; the cheeks hronzed lower part of the faee was concealed in hair, Captuin Marsh patronising no harber. But his heard, moustaches and whiskere were all of silky blonde, and became him well; only benesth this Weelth of hair you could just mnnage to tracs the outline of firm, well-shaped under lip, a somenhat obrtinato-looking chin, and you gueseed therefrom that Captain Marah liad a pretty etroag from that Captain Marah had a pretty etrong will, and knew how to hold his orn. But the firat impreesion he gave yon was of strength, not ouly physical hut meutal. The merest child might linve ecen clate it might rely on him, and trust itself to his care ; and though means a religious man, the best Christian conl and dealinges, more fit to ho trusted in honor hy the weakeot of women, or more thloroughily to ho relied on for keecping his great passione under due guard and diexplpline Althoogh Captain Marih was a favorite with the progrese in tha good graces of Nina. They ranty progress in tha good graces or Nina. They rurely spoke together, though Nina wae now more in the drawing-room, end, eoneequantly, in his company. Captain Marsh was trying to guard himeelf against the fascination of her heanty and weak ness combined-able allies in the eabjugation of strong, hrave men. He was pleasod to heliove that he had been uuceessfoll, and rather dared defeat in hia ancencty to to show, and his ruther dared de- He was always perfectly civil to Nina, even attentive et mas others seemed frozen intos of his maxine genin feey dirs otty he neared her side. Ho was deternot trust. not trust.
Nina's ey
Ninn's eyes were very heautiful, bnt theyhad no honest glancee. They thrankl heforo her seruting, and derre dommontst under his regard. On elffreproachfully; hat on the poor they never looked st all. Beesides thia, Nina, alwaye melanholy, was often irrithble and dificullt to pleaso; tant, at others humblo Andeo talking all the things into cousideration, Cyril Marsh came to the conolusion that it would not do for him to full in Bure meth his beatiful cousin.
But then a man wbo has made thie reeolntiou is in far more danger than ane whbe hout it at all. Yon connot pho hasnerer thought hurning your fingera. You may fenoy that you are a asfo distance from the eparkes, and plume youraelf groatly on your pradence end forecightit in having gained your ploasure withont ribik; hat prosenty you begis to feel a titrangs, intonse prosently you begiu to feel a strangs, intonse wormth oreeping over yon, and ona quick glenco saffices to ehon that the fro has beon smonlaer-ing a long time, and that it is now too late to exing a long time, an tinguigh tbe flame
14 firt Captain Marrih mado a atndy of Nina, nnd pursued his investigations with eqnal coolnee power of controlling hime own thonghts, and they went from neocosesity rather than plesesure to that quiet, steady figure on the soff, with its hent heait Perher Perraps Nina, if loss hriliant, was more tonchhair, which had been than she had ever heen. Hor in small, cribp ringe, matiog her lorelinneess a chilldike ; and ako wonld only droes herself in such somilre colors - hlack befing her favorite woar
 Ho longed to sce those firm, grave lipa sweotened and reudered gracionaly mobile or petalantly bright thy some new play of feling,
From longing, Captain Marsh,
From longing, Captain Marsh, who was rapidy forgetting his good resolutione, oame to trying if he could not oompues hits wihes hy tome happy exppodient. So one night he left tbe group at the centre table, and followed Ninu to her diatant sofn He stooped down, and spoke low.
II have been waiting anxioualy for yon to die "rer that wh must be eitber friends or foes."
Nina flushed a deep, ungry red. Sto knew this will, but ahe did not care to have her belief put Hor eyes gave lima a sudden deep flash of dechred hootility.
WWhich
Which is it to he, Miss Ninn ?"

- Ho spoke lower than evernow, and his voico wa "Neither one nor the other.
Nuidean one nor the other. Lot ns ho mer

Uniortunately, th

I don't soe viy, that is impoeesile now."
"We are too much alike. Whon such as we meet, it is either to take each other by the hand in loving amity, or to scratch and fight like eat and log. But I $n \mathrm{n}$ inclived to thint that be hetter ns friende," he signiificantly concluded.' "If I were to make frienda I thonly not keep ma, with a passionate selir-re may desire to be brought nearer to mee on account of your regard for the otbers; hut I am like none of them, and not half so worthy of any effectionof them, and not half so worthy of any affectionate cousinsthip with you ae eran Madeleine, wrapped up as she is in fancy-mork to the exclusion of int and good feeling. As far as I am concernod, friend might ho pleasent, but it would certainly b dangerons at the amme time ; and for your sake, "That you might an you-
"That you might also he dangerons to me a "I caunot toll", replied Nina, simply and sor rowfully; "but it is sight of me to guard agninst
the mero possibility."
"Bnt you certainly owe me a reason as we. as a warning. Without that you hade boottor not have spokon at all, since one without the other ie worse than uspleses,
" You may
ike, now ty take what you like, and do what yon "cience,", taid I Nina irritably; and shle turned to her hook again, and accorded him no further hotice.
Captain Mareh haif roose, looking perplexed and ere eyes were finshing. Cyril caughtt the gleam to videlong glance interrogating him angrily a o why he stayed, and he sat down ag ain d minedy, his mill se obstinate as hor own. "Now I $I$ have receivod your warning, Listen to mine. You have eome secret tbat you wiihh to guard from all the world, but especialily trom you father and me.
"Tina ibnddered convulsively.
douht, hetrayed dansing your delirium,", continued Captain Mersh, lisis intellect developing itsolf unde the etimulas of this contest into $a$ keenness tha was almost pitiless. "But this is nothing to me. I mean to find out this secret, sinoe you dare me to thio diecovery hy your want of candor. But $I$ 6hall adopt no moans that are not perfectly fair and straightforward. I I told you thet we must $h$ et cither friends or foee, and yon chose the hattcr al termative, and are, therefore, no doubt, fully pre| pared to tale the cansequencos." |

| :--- |
| Nina |

Rine curnued his way then; his eyes were dim, There her lips did not look much like asking quartor There are some women with whom prids ie the and Nina was one of these. She knew Captrain Marsh was pitilesa under her disdein, hut that a word might have noftened word might have ooftened him, and yet aho would not epeaki that word. She howced to him haughtly. not spealk that word. She howed to him havghtly as the persecutor of moman. Is that a military "It It quiro if deocoit he quite ao apposife if 1 were to in "And if I wore to angmer that it was, what wo "ou gain hy the aclmowledgment?" against many subheoquent dengers a safeguard
 may force wont aoknowledge it. Ciroumstance against thsir every inotinot, hut it is not right to attribute to choice that which "may he tha result of a moot miesrable neceosity.
Avd, in epito of himealf by exphined osgar again, eceming toplead that sho would and him to roepect hor with an earnestuets that almost prochimed his love.
"That might to impocailhe."
"Then you rofose to come to terme, Niea "Idon ony to met nee what right yon have to dictate
"The right that svery man has who finds his affection going whore his trust cannot follow,' answered Oyril under his breath.

A fiosh passed across Nina's face, hat it was gone almost hefore he conld know it had heen gone almost hefore he conld know it had heen there. She was very pale when she next spoke. "Why oan't yon be satisfied with the medium "Bectited just now?
"Becanse I am a true Marsh, like yourself, and cannot accept this milk-and-water friendship any more than you can in reality give it, Now look st me well, cousin Nina, hefore yon decide against your own intereste, I am atrong and capsble, aud hot likt a man who, thongh well-intentioned would he likely to infurs, throngh weakness and ncapacity, just where he would most wish to serve. should be a discreet as wall as a powerfol ally. A long, weary sigh, as with one who is giving np averything toat osn make life plessant, and bidaing enough:
nough:
"Than 解 yon all the same; but I require no
"Very well ; then yon know the consequences. Then I find myself in danger of a serions wonnd, am jnstified in seelking praventives hy overy am jnstified in seeling preventives hy overy effort in my power-cure being impossiblo to one of my diaposition when once the blow in given." And Captain Marah roe agein and moved a fow if from her side, bat slowly and heeitatingly, At this moment itmost expecting a reeal. which he had heen reading, and called out from "Oyril, when :

Colonelst, George was
"Colonel Who? What did papa say ?" exclaimed Nina, turning round on her cousin and stretching It her hand to detain him.
It was evideut that her emotion complotely mastered her for once. Her lips wero apart, her mastered her for once. Her lips were apart, her
"Colonel St. George," answered Cyril, softly, and he placed himself befors her in order to conoeal her agitation from the others, whilst he replied oh his nincle'e queetion
"At the end of the week, I helieve. I luardly underatood, though, what day, for he had an engagement at Lord Gillingham's, and could not be He ventured to cast a glance finished speaking, to see if sbe had recovered he self. Mr. Marsh had returned to his paper, and the other two were husily occupied in different ways. Captain March stooped over the oonch on which his cousin reclined, end demanded, in a fieree whisper, what Colonel St. George was to hor. hisper, what Colonel St. Goorge wa
"Nothing," she faintly murmured. "You are telling me a falsehood," he eontinued, "I am so weak, so very weak," she anawered omplete desperation. "You wero kied to me jnst ow ; yon atood before me that thoy might not ime to-night, and have been tallting more than me to-night, and have been talling more than usual. I had better go to bed. No; don't tell bem so-let me slip away.
Slie was very humble now, and she was using all her power, too, smiling on him with her heurtiful eyes, heseeehing him with her sweot lips, even alling him hy name in tbe urgency of her need alling him hy name in tbe urgency of her need hat he sheuld stand hy her as a friend at that hour. "Yon see, cousin Cyri, I am not quite strong now ; ouly he kinder still, and help me to get away without heing seen. Yon will, won't you, Cyril ?"
"Look here, Nina ; one of us two muet have a "leeplees night. Which shall it be?"
" mat I, Cyril ; I have so many oannot truast must either act th love a woman fool. To-night I may show mysolf the latter; hnt o-morrow I shall have my turn in a different character. Now go,"
He walked back to
He walled back to tho table as he finiehed speaking, and hegan an animated conversation with Mrs. Mareh. Pre⿻ently Mr. Marsh put down his paper, firstly, hecanse hs greatly relished his aephew's company; and, scoondly, because he considered it highly diecourteous to leave him to such poer entertainment as women's tongues conld that Nina was gone. "She fell tired," eeu making her tail Captain Marah. "I had otrong enough to hear, I feney. She did not wioh to dieturh any of you, and, thisrefore, went quietly wredeloine hay with good-night.
Mredeleine had given allher interest to the complicatious of her crochet pattern long hefore this oxplanation was concluded, and Mra. Mursh hsd takeu possession of the Timcs, She mo to touch it antil she conld feal sure that her hushand would not want it again, Mr. Marsh partionlarly ohjocting to letting any portion of it out of his own hands. Bnt now the patient little woman saw her opportanity, and profited hy it at once. hs hegan to read with a face of demure eatisfac on, whilst $\frac{15}{}$. Mer of practical men, until the wilock atrnck eleven when the night eandles were brought in and a Tho next day
The nest
Tho nest day Nina made fitfol vaite to the draw-ng-room, running away again to her own room s every sound of foetstepe on the stairs. When vening came ehe insisted upon making one of th noual gronp at the centre table, and held some light work in her hand, from whioh eho nevor once lifited her eyea. Captain Maroh had got over the lited her eyca. Captain Maroh had got over the oool and watchful, and quito determined that ehe anould not take advantage of him again. He evon tried her in every way he conld, coustantly mon-tioning Coloncl St, George'a visit, and regarain her curiously meanwhile.
But Nina wao on her guard, too, and not muscle of her fuce her needis even quickened to pece throagh tha muslin. He redouhled his efforto to provole her misery and dieplausure.

Loving passionately where his reason disaproved made Cyril harah and deepotic. He made Cyril harah and despotic. He felt inclived to visit his own folly on Ninn, althongh, in his sober momente, has could not bat exonerate her from all blame. She had been as oold and ropellen as poscibls, even rejecting haughtily his opters of Iriendship. She had done ail in her power to dieonerant him angil the provious ovening, when, in all her fominine na to for oa him, nsing all her fominine wiles to gain her end. But the motive for these was so clearly obvious that the greatest coxcomh in creation conld not have miainterproted her meaning. Altogether, reviewin these things, Ceptain Marsh could not help felin that he had heen conqnered for onee, and wa hirsting for a counter-viotory to wipe outt tbe stain or defout.
believed. Mr. Marsh was out. than he could have magistrate's meeting early thet morning on hore hack, and had prohably stayed to dinner with one of his riends. At any rate, ho hed not yet returned. It wes snowing fast outside, and Mra Marsh was thinking of ordering dry thinga to be got ready for hor habband when he did arrive, and and aminal respousibility that her numerous journel a minute. During one of the same tima, matohing a hade of wool she wso nseding for her work, and Katis having been in bed some hours, Nins and her cousin were left alone,
She dropped her embroidery then, and looked "Ceptain Marsh," she said, gently.
He elightly bowed, hat he would not even glance "You have great influence with my father," she went on, in a low, eager voice; "it is easy to se that; will you, then, do what you can to per Colonel St. George from woming here ${ }^{\text {th }}$ to preven "What is Oolonel St, George to you ?" eald Cyril, eternly.
"It hi is nothing to not went him here"
" do not ses how hie "It he is nothing to you, I do not see how hi "A stranger, and yon Nina, evasively.
Nina, evesively.
"Tbst's just
ples hettor if he were an old friend wand your serulikely to notice ths change in you, and inquire the reason; or, again, if he were a lover who would b sure to take umbrage at your altered looke and manner as a sort of treseon against himsolf manner as a sort of tresoon against himsolf. Under any other oircumetances, I do not sue what earthly difference. Colonel St. George's prezen can make to you."
"Unfortunately, it is impossihle for ma to ex "Then it ie imposeible for me to serve yon, un-loss you can melke it clear to me that I ought to do so" "And that I caunot."
"He ie your lover?" inquired Cyril, in a tons of noet fierce interrogation. "Your huaband?"
"Yo." have some
"rociprocate?" P I I ouly know that I hate him, I eannot toll "Then, Nina Marah, he ing "
"Stopi Captsin Mereh," anid Nins, rising from her chair in haughty displeaeurs. "I bare aubefriended me last night, and I thought mige yo indueed to do the name sgain. But you might b one step farther without forgetting that yon are gentlemsn and that I am the danghter of Mr Marsh."
And she guthered her work together in ber tremulons hands, and, bowing coldly to him, left tremulons

THE CROSSINC OF THE CHAT

 TAHOOCHEE.The Chattahoocheo is a heautiful stream, though at ines, owing to the heavy raing, the wetor and the bottoms on cooh side are green with laxurious cropa of corn, which-alas ! for the planters, win nover be gethered. which of the wheat and barley bad been harreeted at I carpiad Bouth. Whot wan put in harn here in fast buing cansumed ne forage for the horsea nimd Dilided by the rain boosta of the Southern rreek, the pcopie of the rebel statee belleved Adlantan not preguable but unathinsble. With a range of aimont impasabie mountaine becore it held by blarge army commanded by one of their best Gencraks, Joneph E
Jomneton, they lavgbed to ecorn the fidua thata Northerm

A white man not long since sued a black man in ono of the courte, and while the trial wee before

 I say, Brown, what a olose shaver Jones
Wha beqk cubbblo obout a peany!
Well, whot if he does? Toe leas one nquabblen

THE SIEGE OF CHARLESTON. Tre long siege of Charleston continues, indeed wo can properiy style sirge a dietant bombardinaced. The nearer approsch of our army eeeme hardly poesiblo, but recently a movernent was made by which Scceastonville, a place frequently ifguring in our acMorris Ielsad.
Our Artist givea an interesting view of Fort Strong Hhile burting its allowace of destructive motering on the deroted plyot. This fort is eituated on the upper Thesc bombardmeuts are not wanton, They are provoled by heo euncmy, wbo fre at our siteamery, and pecially nt tho Plauter, the boat carried ori by Srmal

We give aluo a view of Fort Johneon, the Citizens'
Battery nad Buttery Simpkine, Jomes finind, s. 0 .

 nd "Battery Simpline" face the Union worke on Morris Xiland.
Fort Joimmoon appeare to be a mero maces proved unsuaccesstu, owing to a lask of proper support, roiniting in a loes of 150 Driontor priconcers, Our alctel wees taten from Fort Wagner.

CRANT AND THE CENERALS OF THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC. Our double-page groups together the men in whoos hands aro the great opcratione now carrying serviees, during the paet three years bave made their namoe familiar to the country-men whoee capuctity has hean teoted by a thousand evonts.
of Grant it is unneceesery to epeatr. The man who, at the beginning of the wry, was repulsed in hie own state, and inally placed at A deak, has, by a dogion perseverance, 3 wonderful emergy and fertlity of reRource, mado his mark at Belmont, Donelson, pittoburg linding, and the eeries of eplendid victories that reeulted In the reduction of Vickeburg, the more recent ditiode ment of Bragg from Lookout, monntain and Mistionay ridgo; bow, ctep by step, he forced Lee back from the riago, own, cepp Richmond is too rocent to neoda word And who hae be around him to aocomplish his phae Mende, commanding the Army of the Potomso proper;
tie man who led the Penueglvunia reecervee on oc many and atioody fich; who, wademy, yeur ago phuced in com and of the army, met and broke Leo's course of mand of tho arny, m. triumph at Gottysburg.

Butler, commanding tho department in which the operstions are now cerrted on the tran of wargy tha dministrative talont, wio first abed ligbt on tho negro question by declaring wiaves uted by the enomy contrabuest of war; who, in he governmint of New Orleaue, achieved wonders thateven now can scarccle be created, giving that cify treecom from rowdy rule, from dally sanitary,
its viebs.
These men are worid known.
Of the Corps Commandersand athor Generais grouped - Maj.-Gen. Ambrose E. Burveide, once commander of brigude at Bull run. Took Hattorak in January, 1862, wud defesting the enemy at Roanoko and Newbern,

 Mathemstes at Weet Point, and aa Euytine er in Latoo freve rank in tho Eniind imo Ho was ecmployed in in.

 mpanted thid
 forces prometin Warbirpton touborm nghting and un

 Mayoracoorn. Ho commuded the tint Anny Corpe.

 obustris, bot nypointod from oino

 Imsantry, In the presentwar no bas bean dut ingialabe

FUN FOR THE FAMILY. If a young woman bide you talke heart, you probbiby Coliermos, the po
arrivivigat an inn called ont:
 Af Englishman, boasting of the enperiority

 and was wico in tioger of midisg orer rymeli."

 more, , poise phout it than the man who juut lost hid
hesa
Tas other day, for a distance of 40 miles,

 pot me
The New York newaboys make the most of hollori" newarborest "nothing to holler" isa bad fix for the A covious boy in Lochwinnool parioh, , foot

Lady Cmindos, who was still a coquetto in not saranced mutority, came to it party aluer oleven

A frusow having imbibed rather freely took

 whio cas trat been repuled, now with dant hopo

 " $I$ am surprised, $m$ y dear, that $I$ have never

The only tolerable things we can find in tatist amprione tetrobama (Condeneed ena Trumsitited.) Grunt Todnod to grant
Hanter hantea.
Mancthicoon not un Osy' 'un; hig avairy cat np.
Tme book of the growling, enarling, smapping
"Ie that clock right over there?" asked a

Proposals for Loan.

Notico is heroby ctron that mincribtione will be

 Nived by the Treamarer of the Unitod Statese, the keveral Askitant Treasurera and deatgnatod Doposituries, and by the Nutlonal Baoks deligrated and qpaified as De pasitarien and Finanoial Aganta, for Treasary Notea Weat at the xats of from ang guat 15, 1864, hearig int nnum, with ecmi- mnnual conpons atleched, payshlo in awful money.These notes will be convertiblo, at the optien of the holdor at matarity, fito alx per cent. gold bearing from Augute 15,1895 om Auguit $15,1887$. The ootes will be iesued in donominationn of afly, sand dollarr, and will be thaned in blank, or payable to ondor, as may bo directed by the enbiecrihers.
All subseriptiona mart be for fifty dollare, or nome anluple of afty dollare.
Dapliesto cortincates will ho lesuod for all deposits cartifcato the deneminulion of notoo roquircd, hethar they are to to isvued in blank or payable to der. When so endorsed it mast be left with the oflcer receiving the deposit, to be forwarded to thl Departmens.
The notos will be trannmiltod to the ownara free of original Oertificates of Deposit os they can be prepunil Intorest will bo aliomed to Angues 15 on all depoilin mode prior to that date, and will be paid by tho Depart ment apon the recelipt of the oriminal certificatet. As the notes draw interest from August 15 , parson maling doposlis subaequont to that ante muit pay the piterest nccrned from date of note to dito of doponit. ${ }^{1}$ Interest inccrned from date of note to dato of deponit. Partien depeniting twenty-llve thoumnd dollars and npwards for these notos at any one time wil bo allowed a comminelon of one-quarter of one per eent, which bll for the amount, certibed to hy the officer with whom the dopesit was mads. No dednations for commiasiona must be mode rrom tho doposia.
Oncors recelving deposits will ace that the proper adorsemente aro made upen the original certiacatos. quceted to give to appucanta all deeired information, and afford evory focility for malting eabecription

w. P. FISSENDEN,

ALL RESPEOTABLE BANES AND BANKERS throughont the country will donhteess FFORD FACHITIES TO SOBSORIBERS.

Seaside Summer Resort

 thy The houeve it new and handeomely furnibbed
tas all modern improvements-lo 1 ghted with gos

 Patsico making early arrangements for the reason wi
bo taken on faporable termg.
$\begin{array}{lll}000 & \text { P. D. CARRIOUE. }\end{array}$

Matrimony,- Why every man should marry, Why eyery woman elomid marry. All may Malled in Ecalcd envelope on 12 Whitu Streets New Yor.

The most "Rich, Rare and Racy" Pa=

$$ 100$ per 2IFonth. Active and roliable Ageote in the Army and overywhero elise, in the most

pDARNUM'S  SELSSEWER  FORAL SEWING WACHINES

Italian Medicated Soap
It is woll known-cures Tan, Freckles Pimples Gounsud's Pom cre titur uproils hatr from low

 Aleo ofButer, 129 Weahington Street, Boston: Drria and Druggitata geacrilis.
"Album Gemse"-Somothing Noew, Gay

 C. W. TOMcirvson, Pubilathor, 221 Weelitugton $8 t$, Bocton, Mans.
"Belf Prosorvation P"-A New MIXedieal

J. H. WINSLOW & CO.
 100000

Voxth $500,000:

The Confessions and Experience of an Invalid.
 buity, Premetare Decal. etor; eupplying at the sum

[DISTILIED DEW]

If your want to IEnow
 MEDICAL COMMON SENSE.

T-

Do Yon Want Iuxuriant Whiskers or Moustaches?

Photegraph Carde for Contlomon-

Wanted Ivorywhore, good reliable

Attention, Company!

 488-83 . P. O. Drawer Al O. CLlarky,
Beauty-Exunt's White Liquid Enam-隹, preparid by Nadamo Racthel Liveraron, tham cote *kid rormanontiv, tiving it a eoint, estin-like texture

Asthma Cured.

 WHOLESALE AND RETAIL,
DEGRAAF & TAYLOR, (tomminit E. p. DEGRAAF,
NO. 37 BOWVERY, NPW TORE.

ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND CHAMBER FURNITURE;
Mahogany and Walnut, Parlor and Chamber Furniture
 ENAMRLLED OHAMBER FORNITURE, in Seta, FTOM $$ 22$ to $$ 100$.
Tucker's New Style Patent Spring Bed, Thin Dest sa well as the cheuptet of may in wae. Retilit price, $$ 2$ each.

Do not Fail to Get, on your way to the Boat or Car,

FRANK LESLIE'S

LadY'S Magazine

FOR AUGUBT, 1864.

Suchl an array of Fostione and Yoechion tatalifigence wan
The Steel Donble Page of Bridal Fashions is unieponlard.
a four-Page fashion plate, ma, Skirts, Whists, Children Coiffures in great varioty.

FULL SIZED PATTERN OF A CORSAGE, WITH OOAT-BASQUE. contents,

Mrse Rubhton's
Notes from the Litco of a Tragedienna.
Tho Brido of Oranien borg.
An Ex. PPiceceman's stors.
A Firry Story for Litill Folkik.
With elegant Hinctrations, Soctal Sketobes, Natural
Frank Leslie's Lady's Magazine
Io tho freahent, moont racy und charming of tho monthlios, and in point of illustration monthlies, and in point of illnustation tien neeser been approachech

Buy a Number and be Convinced
FRANK LESLIE,
537 Pearl stroot, N. y.

Gray's

Gryst Patan molidy Patent
 Molded

Collars

 HATCH, JOHNSON & CO., J. . LOWREY $&$ CO, 37 Warran St, N. X.
 HODGES, BROS, 23 Hanover St, Baltemore. WALL, STEPHEMs & co., 822 Pennylvanin Av, Washing LEAVITT & BEVIS, cor. Firth and Vine Sta, Oinn.
J. VON BORRIES \& $00 ., 13 \mathrm{M}$ Main St, Louinville. . PRANKERNTHAL \& BRO., No. 6 Mrin St, $8 t$, Loule, SRADFORD, BHOS, MJI winukce.

DURYBA'S MATEBNA

beceived two prize mmdals (From Jorieo 3 and 4) at the INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION,
At the Great Internationai Exhibition at Hamburg, Juiy, 1803, Recoived the Hamburg, Juiy, 1863 , Recoived the Higheat Prize Medal for its Gront Highest Prize Medni for its Gront Delieney as au ArticIe or Food.

 WM. nURYEA, Agent, 166 Fulton St, N. Y.
Dr. Ia Porte's Life Z्llizir. THE ORENT NERVINE AND REJUVENATING

C. B. Bea, MK. D., Baltimere, 35 yenre rofeenor of Femalo Thernpentics, Bafey Carde Iree.

PLAYING CARDS! PLAYING CARDS. PLAYING CARDS.
BEST THHING OUT
Finest Card Ever Issued!
 52 Beautiful Pictures. En2 2.

EMDPLOYMENT AT YOUR OWN HOMES.

 $\frac{\text { O. ूUNRO BROWN, } 71 \text { Bleccker St, N. Y. }}{\text { Litorary Agency, Established in } 1842 .}$

MATRIMONIAL FAVORS

At Tucwin's. 759 Broadway.
HOWARD's "mmprovid"
SWEAT PROOF

Soldiers' Money Belts.

Tho Great Mrenoy-Mraking Articlew,

S60 A monthi-I want Agonta at z00 month,

5tereoscopic Viowo and Cartoo do Visite.

The Zarly Physical Degeneracy of American People,
 ATrutico in theienio Imatitata.

DR. ANDREW STONE,

75,000 WVatches, Ohains, &c. WVORTHE 400,000 .

 ARMY CORPS Showing esch Divition. BX Thes smyate one, send for Crirularar
Address DROWNE & MOORE
 WEDDING CARDS: "Poychomancy,"-How eithor sox may

THE COMIC PAPER OF AMERICA

FRANK LENLIE'S BUDGET OF FUN, FOR AUCUST, IS NONV OUTP,
oontannino the oreat cartoons of mum day.
THE WAR OF THE GIANTS;
THE PIGMIES OF EUROPE:
THE TENDER-HEARTED BUTCHERS
The Fair Girl of Washington,
With nomerons othor hitt at the timen-belides sIXTREN PAGES of the frest Humorous Witingig of the Frice only 10 Centso
$$ 10$ AGENTS $$ 10$

FRANK LXSLTE?
Unrivalled Publicationis
 GAZETTE OF FASHON. THe best Buaily Magande

Trank Lesli, Te Ten Cont Montbly,

Fravalk Toslio's Illnstrirte Zeitung, -the onl 'oorman milustrated poper in the country. Fess so per annum

Trank Leslio's Lady'g Ilinstrated Al| MANAO, |
| :---: |
| 25 conts. |

Royal Eravana Eottery.

Egibumi

For Hardening & Invigorating the Goms.

Sold by Druggiete and Fancy anods deatera everyBALL & RUOREL, Proprietors, 218 Greenwili St, N. y.

Norvous Disoases and Physical Debility, arieing from sprcillo in Reporta of the HOWARD AssociATION-sint in neoled leter envelones, frco
 WM. KNABE & CO., MANUFACTORERS OF GOLD MEDAL GRAND AND SQUARE PIANOS,

 Price lists promptly
WM. KNABE \& $\mathbf{C O}$.

WHAT TO DO

HOW TO DO IT Toke an Ageney for our ropulur Boak-buy at Whole

| $400-620$ | FOWLER & WELLLS, |
| ---: | ---: |
| 369 Droadwy, N. Y. |  |

Qgonts Wanted, $$ 50$ per Thonth guar
 Use of Tobacco, in all its forms, Cured and parviareb Partcularg free. Addrees, Cons.
$419-610$
JAS. DAY & SON, New Haven, Conn.

STAMMERING

NOW WE CAN LIVE IN COMFORT!

Cartes de $V$ igite.
25 FRENCH ©RISETTES.
SOMETHING VERY GRISETTES,
 and four red atam,
etreet, New York.

GROVER & BAKERR'S HIGHEST PREMUM ELASTIC stITC̣H SมWING TAACTETME! Salesrooms, 495 Broadway, New York

18 Rich, Rare and Racy Articles for $\stackrel{\text { Lock Bos 15, Wesaington, D. O.. }}{ }$ in $\quad \therefore$ K. EDNARDR pincipati, ohio

[^28]
orand tablead proyt the fadee lately perfonmed at miagaba, calizd "the olive branog.

$$ 15$
Gizansmis 20

Hap prinipal leale
the United Stotea.

 "Cholere" to O. H. WELLD
nor Notwithatanding the inorease in price of oliemi
 PHOTOGRAPHER,
No. 2 New Chambers \$treet, N. $\mathbf{Y}$., Will take Card Pictures at the OLD PRICE for a ehort 1 So PER DOZES:
Largo Photographs $1 the firet-50 cte. additlonal ones.
Perticular attoation puid to copyigg Oarda or Ambirotypen into handicome Colored Phytographa and Cards; typen if tho original in defacce, it it eian be copied to a perfect picturs ota resionable price.
DYSPEPSIA TABLETS,
For RNDIGESTIOX, HBARTBORN, otc., manufoctured
onis by S . G. WELLING, and Eoid by Drugglets gen 65 centa DEROT, 207 CENTRE STREET, 20 floor.
ocoo
Valuable Information

TO TVIDRYEBOTE:

MATCH, THE BEST IN Tas woran, are cheaper than anyothers ot the LODI MANUFAOTVRDG Co's,

PRESIDENTIAI

 CAMPAIGN MEDALS Of every dececriptlon, now ready in Pin and Modal. Trado orderas silicitat ond promptity alled at Pactory

BRIDCEWATER PANTIT

Ground in oil in serexal arib ahades for Villas, Cot

Vineland Lands.

 "It is one of the most ezternse fertite truats, in an a farming, that we know of this side of the Festern praities."

The Euman ${ }^{\text {Toico-Male and Eemale. }}$ Why te one Bnsa and the other Soprano Stammering, Afrecting tho Ryses-Tumpernment Qudity, and Con

 Sensations when orsing-1s it poinful) Coming to

STEINWAY & SONS,

Nos. 71 and 73 Fourteonth St., N. $\mathbf{Y}$,, Were awarded a First Prize Medal at the 1 into Great International Exhilition, London. There were two bundred and eixty-nine pianos from all parta of the world entered for competition
The Spectal Correspondent of the N. Y. Ttimes noys: "Mreeare, Stelnway's endorsement by the Jurors is of any Europenn makce."

 TO MAKE. MONEY!

Prize Puckage and En graving Warchouke, 36 and 38 Beekman Street, N. $\mathbf{Y}$.

FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS!

A1 artioles for Soldiers at Baltimore, Wahington
Fortrota Monros, Hurper's Ferry, Newberne, Por Boyal, and ail other places, ,hould be eent withali ratee by HARNDNN EXPRESB, No. 65 Broudwo. Suter: elargod low ratas.
$${ }^{\text {P }}$ ARMCY WATCYI. $$ 7$

 An Evegant SilVRR WATCH, sime 38 above, single one, by mail, 87 . Specially aclapted to the AxNr.

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE BYMAILor EXPRESS

Self-Measuroment for shirts.

STHWHOKLARS

PNAMTLID WHITH, Heving the gppearance and comfort of linen, bave been worn in Eng fand tor the last two yeara in preference to any other coilar, the WHOLESALE AND RETALI
agerxis Wantis in every Town in the Union.
S. W, Ex, WARD,

LADIES' IETMER. EIVE ANATONITCAI ENGRAVINGS Has informotion never before pabilshed. Sent free, in a sealed sunvelope, for 10 centa, Addrees $D$ Dox 4652 , Now York Post Ofice, Spoxtsmen, Touristis, AND ARNIX AND NAVY OFFICERS,

To all wanting Farms.

Enameled White, 50 cente; Pearri White, 75 oente, Snow White, Linon Finishod, $$ 1$ is "Whation Stitched and man ond civilian-rotiovated in one minute ind ft for inmediato une, being manufetured on sciontinc prin. unmediato une, being manulfectured on sciontife prin eiplea, cannot obaro or miritute the "neck." Mrailed on prepayment. Discount to the Trade JBANERET, 78 Nuesau $8 t$, N. Y. Use of Trobacco, in all forms, Cured

 INOV FEDADI. THE RECORD

PARIS, TONDON
NeW YORK FASHIONS, ERRENE No., 1864.
WITH THE LARGEST COLORED PLATE Ever given in any Pubiloation.. Price 25 Cents
Lodies, Dresmaturs, de., can obtain this tavelanble Faellion Record of any Nowidoajer,

FRANKFISSLIESS

No. 464-Vor. XVIII.]
NEW YORK, AUGUSF 20, 1864.

The War for the Union-What we Have Gained, and What we Have Yet to Do. "Wras have yon gained hy this fratrieidal partiznn whose hootility to "the powers that be" has carried him nud his sympathies over to the enemy. "What have yon gained from this muholy crussade for the subjugation of the Sonth? How mnch nearer are yon to Richmond than you were in the summer of 1862 ? How much longer can yon sustaniu these aunual drafts of 500,000 men, and this war expendihnre of a thonsand millions a year?"
Let ns briefy endeavor to answer these quesnois in good fiitu, conceaing the poimt that we hoce, that mikht hon men, tme, means and moncy, has might have heen saved had the anted than it his hously and wisely proseto the inquiry, "When. Mist, lhen, we turn to the inquiry, "What have we gained hy this war?" We lave gained in the domains chaimed ns helonging to one-half called "Confederato States" Ing Congress the States represented were Vir- men
ginia, Kentncky, Missouri, Arkansas, Tenne gimia, Kentncky, Missouri, Arkansas, Tenne
see, North Carolina, Sonth Carolina, Georgia Florida, Alahama, Mississippi, Lonisiana and Foxida, Alahame, Mississippi, Lomisiana and country now under the actual occupation and authority of Davis and his confederates has been ednced to the interior portions of the last sight States ahove-named. The Northern military line of the rehellion, which, in 1861, ran north-westward from Manassas to Kentncky, and thence throngh the heart of that State to Columbns, on the Mississippi river, in thonsand miles and more ahove the sea, has heen pushed so far down into Georgia as to threaten the complete isolation of all the "Confederacy north of the Savamain river from the States helow. From Colmmhns to the Gulf of Mexico, overcoming numerons armies, and a hain of fortifications, armed flotillas, rafts, ms and other ohstructions unparalleled in he defences of any other river of modern or opened and occupied, and is now in theen reinte and permanent occupation of the Govern ment.

Thms that half of the Davis Confederacy which secures the neutrality of Franee; there which liee west of the Mississippi is in the is lintone rebel privateernow left dodging ahout condition of a wing of an army hopelessly ent upon the ligh eeas; the ironclads huilt for the military ye main hody, so that, in a practicnl enemy are ont of the way, and as for a rising of the rehellion to the reduced the vital iorces ' single tier of States, and parts of States, lying convinced it would not begin to they are fully hetween Richmond and Molile.
So mnch for the territory recovered, All these things we have gained - onetary estimate, practically. In the popalation haif, two-thirds of its claimed by the rehelreclaimed from the rebellion we have gained of its most valuable military resonrees and wo-thirds of its original strength; and in the lines of communication, including the whele valuahle resources for peace or wax, wrested line of the Mississippi river, the dethronefrom the enemy, onr gains have been corres- ment of King Cotton, the nentrality of Eng pondingly great. Nor do these constitute all land and France, and the snhstantial unity our gains. In the beginning of this war the of the great North and the loyal States of the rehel leaders, from the commercial power of South upon this grand, paramonnt and snKingCotton, confidently counted npon a timely preme Jacksonian idea that "the Union mus coalition from England and France, upon the and shall he presorved." If we have changed destruction of our commerce on the high seas, the issue from $19,000,000$ of people against and the raising of the hilockade hy a numerons $12,000,000$ to $27,000,000$ of people against less Heet of foreign-huilt privateers and ironclads, than $5,000,000$, is it not manifest that we have and npon the active armed co-operation of a gained enongh to insure our final success, and powerful division of the Northern Democrncy.
We lave gained the erowning reward of the present campaign

Barnum's American MKuseum.

Oscanyan's Oriental Album,

Second Avenue, ooccanyas, door rrom soth st, N. X.
 fowe dikoreat jiln
frank leslef's
ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER,
${ }^{537}$ Penrl Street, New York.
NEE YORK, AUGUST 20, 1884.

| termis for  Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper  One copy, tarree months. One copy, ixx mon the. One cory, one yair...................... 400 Two coples, one yess, to one ndareess, in ons wrapper. Foar copilea, one ycar, to one addreese in in 750 one wrappra.......... Mhagatine and paper, one year, to one ad- |
| :---: |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |

TERMS FOR ADVERTISING.

Bixty $\begin{aligned} & \text { Oente a } \\ & \text { line on the } 1 \text { th and } \\ & \text { and }\end{aligned}$

First-chass stories will be rend promptly, and found worthy of acceptance, suitibly compensated. The manueript thould bs legible, on one side of th paper only, and bo accompanied with the adiareen ot the writer. Pomas of a bigh cricor and modorate length will meet with attention.
 eent by mail at the roter of printed master. If sent hy mail, letter poftage muat bo paia. Puckegue over fout ounce ubowid he eent hy express, When partles miah yiss, retumod by mail, poatage

Summary of the Week.

vmernas.
Since the unfortunnte fridure of the asanalt on Lee' lines all hae been quiet hefore Petersburg Lee' lines all has been quiet hefore Potersburg.
That developed the fact that sis very suall foree can hold Lec'y lines against Grant's anmy; and hence thero is evory probability of Lee attempt hig a Northern invasion in force. Indeed such a movement bo an army, under Johnston, is an nounced our doad have heon buried ninder flay of trace flag of truce Our lose was 1,800 killed and wounded, and 1,000 priboners.
The rchela aince fired a m blow mp our saps, and they retreatod after a fruit The President went down to Fortrese Monroe and had a long interview with Grant, on Sunday July 31st.
westenn vtrointa and maryland.
Thero is now no question but that tho robels are preparing to hurl $a$ large and well-proparod army on Maryland, Pomngylvania and tho Dis trict in hopee of relieving Georria and in hopea of relieving Goorgia and Richmond.

Early lang a force of $$ 3,000$, marching with veteran troops to join him. Part and Fancock, and are centreing neare Antic | parm. |
| :--- |
| tand |
| and |

Gen. Sheridan is in command of the Union troops, regulare and militia.
ceonots.
Hood is asid to havo loat 25,000 men killed, wounded and muisfing since he took command. On the 26th July Gen. E. Joccook, with 3,200 oovalry, was sent by Gen. Stoneman to cut the Macon and Western railroad. He succeeded in demolishing 18 miles of the road. He then etart ed to oaptare a retel train of soo wagons, going from Atlanta to Macon. He took and destroyed it, capturint Hood's papers and 500 prieoners.
His mean uniortumately made free with the liquora found, and when MroCook was attacked and surromidea by Gon. Ransom they were niterly defeasted, loos all their prieneres, and got buck to Marietta, in small bodies. Up to tho lateen date 1,500 had come in.
Fort Hohsou, near Penas. captured by Gen. Asboth, with 18 gas jus, a quantity bent captured by Gen. Asboth, w of stores and ammunition.

Cucerilas are very sective in thin state. On the 25th & plantation, five miles from Vickebarg, was 25 th a plantation, five milies from Vick bararg, was totally dostroyed. A Texan regiment deatroyed anothor near Notchez, killing the whitee, and carrying off thio negroes and property.
Oiller partiee with artilery are ntermers. The Fairchild, at Aston landing, was struelk 17 times.

FOREICN NEWS.

THE Alexandra, about which so much dis-general cargo ol merchandibe. Thu name of hat veeed has been chunged, mand elto io now collch the Mary; sid of armo on land and sea mutil July 31, during wibl periot the hlociade will be roied. The German Fom diacly send plenspotentiorien to Vinnna, in order

como to on undertanding with Austrin and Pruseta ro-

TOWN cossip.

Tre old adage that "one-half the world nowsa not Low his ower half ivee" mighto onoo have und nime tenthe of the world cortallily knowa how the
 of the clover comes up on tho wind, think of the mil.

 Thut dersees of heat
Thut all tha coom try may yuow something of tho orrercrowdel atate of this Babylon in which wo Mve, lot A monll summuary be then.
Now York has 550 tene
popuiselon er 19 gisg tumile , inouces that have a groes

On the other band, for two miles on the Firah avenue, amilies, while in a single hiock of tenemants only a fow

 theoodcunoly yopunthod districts and wilibes the out catol a breath of the paraing aif. Cleanilineas in such Quarters is noxt to sumposible, and mitbout 1 theazth in 1t requira these mpen-hestad summer days to make

 Inclinsd plane, to thast every ehower wecheo away hor dirt, nor hao hio those excellrat wankegerer, thic turtey

 stood in a glance. Somo have aseerted that New Yoril has propered by the war, and has nothing to complain ot rep map

 | are |
| :---: |
| mific |
| orif | pen

kint
mor
imp

Abstract

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.

 -A A yurn man, rending in Proviames, who wos tent. Hay is phemtiflil in Mative, and the quanity axcel

 Ant, An Pnellik ceginecr, is reyorted to have eald

 - Affire on Mohile begin to aspunce an iutoresting

 momitho of huit company, and hite a true soliber, ac

 come.

 $\rightarrow-$ Siocritry $W$. Pitt Fessend Rebel Mrivy Annio R, Jones, bether knownas "thoppoty

 readeni or Onondasa, where he was hymuny yearee

 on the reter corpe or the sunltary Conminas
having beera at the tront einine the liats of Junce.

 Oonemres Dilimm B . White one of the proprictors of the

 Than ayturions murder in a nuilroded in Lan

Art, Literatare and Science- Sholdaon ic

 Clc on Tre Loudon Timest thus commences mevera ant well-linown line or- Iranalation of Hamlet into French, the is mado- "Irnilts, thy name is woman," Comicmiolle Frailty is the name of the Thay."

SOOK NOTICES.

 the United Sistion

QUEER NANES IN THE NEW YORK DIRECTOR
$A$ wrirgr in the New York Post says: In the

 The foll wiving arro con mitura

OUTDOOR AMUSEMENTS OF ENC-

 LISH LADIES.Ir is a striking fact that we Amerieans, des cended Arom to Engligh, Trikh and Scotch, all famed for their dovotion to athletio eporte, bave ouch an almoot national distoets for ther. When wech an heaithy invigarating Engish mports are race. We huve bcaity invigorating English aports are rave. We huve only the wont excreccenos of hoxing-the prizefight Archery, ball gamen, ranning, leaping areseriy deprived of outdoor sport of puill, opinion, entircty their feeble conultin fragilie forme their feeble oonatitutione, the childicas mothara, or mothers only at almont s cont of life, are the coneequenoe of this stato of things
The gloomy asectic super warred on all sporta an dirpleasiog to the Deity, and their nofluonce has. tinctured the whol is indeod worting fo fanor of whit has been called Meliverance of woruen." Wo cannot do better than to to arouse the atteations of parents te thie great fact, that the phyydecul training of thoir daughtets is ecoond ouls impart and intellectual; and physical edueation it hest are toeks, and win but fev. or hito young lsiles, though too fow, leara to ewnm, to nliste, to row. Lot elepta in top reo as to doly Cuprd himeale In England, in tho foundation of many sohoola, the now of the bow wa a part of the course, and a iliver

 Ploting the 12 dozen.
Thte flooting ground wa
Beate for epectiors at 1 was enolosed with a ruiling, with it one end. Trere were couble of to gentlemen belng further

The FUny of 4 Woaran Scorakn.-A terri-

THE TOPER'G $\angle$ UTOXN SONTLOQUE, Lcavon have their time to fall AAd no llkewion heve ,
The rouson, too, tho namo,

AFRICAN CANNIBALISM. In Africa there are two kinds of camibalism. whone office it la to eat a portion of the victime phether man, gost or fowl. This cnstom, provalent among muny ikes them. necoune he hates them, bnt becausow- Le of thaving for ment, to wbich the notives

 me bead, whice
filit to the ligg.
the Fanng they told mone thies had mised a great deal with

 I reinember that whan I wa int riog, and who had been browgbt canuma foountry, il

MAXIMS FOR THE MEAN.

 Why not use that dirty envelope? Your corre.apondnit is unre to think it was soiled by tho postuan Yon can tura your linen collary, and posituan eave in tho wuihtig bul. But they fray eoonar, from tho hirsder bungle and growl, will otten draw a cigar from a ifricnd You can haraly be upch a fool os to have gandler Trop the boxkeeper a shiling, and

FASHIONS FOR AUCUST
Fig, 1.-Incroyahle coat of spotted muslin,

CONTRABANDS COMINC INTO

 CAMP.The negro furnishes, in his various phases sopber. Never, perthape, bas a race teen such a mo.

COTTON IN INDIA.
Ir is a striking fact that, with all the endeayor made to grow cotton in yarious parte of the world,
Eome of tbema old and suilable fiolde for the plint, the wicho mmount preduced han not yet in any year the exponab.

Among be

WHEN WY SHIP COMES HOME FROM SEA.

by J. W. WATBON.

Mx darling climbed npon my knee, With fond, exnltant langhter, "Papa," shs said, "you sweet papa, "Tis you that I am after

I want such lots of pretty things, Such toys, and hooks, and dresses And dolls with golden tresses

And thsn, papa, you sweet papa, I want a velvet bonnet, want a dress of snow-white silk, With tiny rosebuds on it; want a house as high as me, With chairs and sofas plenty; And then I want-ob, let mesee!-
Of hooks-I want fill the Of hooks-I want full twenty!
"I want-" hat here I clossd the mouth With kisses and omhraces, And took between my open palms The happiest of faces.
I said, while gazing in her eyes,
Where love in light lay hasking,
"My darling, when my ahip comes home, You shall have all your aslang."

Couns never seud down to ask the grass and planta below how much they to ask the grass tiue relier of their own full bolome. they ruil for

Irrue Iove.

 BY MARION POWELLofafterit.
"WriL, good-hye, George ; Im off," said Fred Hamilion; "I go this way." "I should like you to go to tho thentro with mo; I expect to meet eome of the boys. Put off your " No , not to-night. I hopo you will have a niee time and onjoy yoursclves; hut I must go. So So mare good-bye.
So saying, they parted. Fred Hemilton wallied thoughtfully along tho aniot streets, whit thoughtfully along tho quiot sireets, while hie

fact, both ineide and out an sir of comfort, though not of wealth, appeared to reign.
Fred Hemilton sat down, took up Fred Hemilton sat down, took up a book, lata it down again, then looked at the pictures, all of finally seated himsolf upon the soff, end rested hi head upon his hand. Ho was aroused hy a gentle footstop. Ho looked up, and there she stood, bright and emiling as ever.

The Substitute.
"Ah l" ahe said, holding out her hand, "so you have come agein. I thought yon had quite forgotten us. Why have you not been? and his dark eyes hrightened "Tho laet time called you were out-had gone to the theatre, think your father said, Did you enjoy yourself? "Yes, very mneh indeed"
And she blushed, for his eyes were fixed apon her. He saw it, his heart secmed to sink within her. He Baw it, his heart secmed to sink withit him, why he know not. Sae looked up, their eyes mot, sud for the firat time Lizzie realised the fact that Fred Hamilton loved her. She had looked upon him as a denf friond, and thought he nonder-stood it- ales! how could ahe have been so blind? -but her heart was given to another, and sho thought he must know it. Now that hereyes werc opened she hardiy knew what to say or how to set. Seeing hor embarrassment, he broke th silence: silence:
"Lizzie
"Lizzie, you seemed pleased to see me; yot now you do not epealt, and scarcely anewer my questions. Why is it? Have I offonded f If eo, it was oertainly unintontional.
with seme beavy reverses; atill he managed to keep hila head abore water, snd took his intended keep hig head toere watcon, een-in law into his own office.
Thia was of courre a great trial to Mr. Atton, Who felt it would necessarily compel him to d defer their marriage for nome time : he became detheir marriage for nome time: he becamo de-ho could not took at things in the light the did, he has not the eame faith in Providence : and whe ahe was so cheerfull he would oomplain abe did not care for him; atill she hoped on and hore nill pa tiontly. Shio had still anotber trouble in store-
the draft commenood-days and nighta of uncertainty paseci Poor Lizziel who hind cheered othere thirough their difficulties, was now almost hearturoken It was hard for her to part with him at all; puad
then to 50 , to be surrounded by all tho dangers o tben to go, to be surrounded by ail teo himg again war, ehe telt sure she would nuver se War, ahe telt sure ehe woud nurese, his heart wa Beiaden, what mado not in the cause, and nis will.
One evoning he carme pale and low-ppirited; he toolk her hnad, kiseed her, then without spenking sat down. She stood hy his side, laid hor little hand upon his hend, brumbed the hair beck and hand upon his hend, bruathed the prosesed a kiss upod his Harty me, wiy do you look so pule? I eannot bear to sec you thius," Lizzeve come to any goed-bye. I muat go. I have tried ny beet, unt all in vain; there dearest, you kuow I eannot do," aud he drow her towardn him. "Oh, Lizzie, how oan I part with

"II I could ouly go with you, Harry."
That would be imposeible, darling."
Then yon caunot, muat not gol Oh, you cauappenod to you, dear Harry?

解, Lizzie, what will become of us both; as for myseli, 1 would rather die than ive in euch a etata of uncortainty. I am amost "Oi, Harry, do not talk to-we have mueh to be grateful for; there are many worse off than You; we mnst trupt in Providence," nad sho hai Ler head upon liie shoolider ; she felt elle coult not tall to him-hor heart was full-another word and elhe would be unable to restrain her tears. It was a hard talk for her to perform. If ahe gave vent to her real fectings it would only make him vent to her renl foexings it would onf mak worse, and if she tried to be ehoerful he would worse, and if ahe triear for him. Thuse she aut, think ble kowing vhat to do, when the bell rang, haray knowisg int announced Mr. Hamilton. He came in, aud eeeing the depressed por are going to
 "Yes, it ls; , Y linow not at what moment finay "I am sorry for you; it must be g groet trinit to was in tears. Ho then said
"Why, Lizzie, fanoy him coming haek s heroyou should not give way thng; I thought you bai mere faith sid. out for the best ; he may come Who knowe what tuny happen?"
"Yee, snd he may never come back at all," "bi answered, sobbing.

But yon muat hope that he will."
"I feel, if ho goos, I shall never sce him agnin." "That is nonseonse-he wil.
"Beeides, what makes it atill worse, ho does not wish to go, it is against his will; he feele he sha never return."
Frod turned to Mr. Alton, who sat silent and dejeeted. "Why do you go, Aton, with that feeling ""
"Yoon may rely y pon it I would not if I coul "Yoid it in many wiy ; bnt-" ho hesitated.
avoid it in nny wiy, bint-" ho heaitated.
The truth ineened upon Fred. He Hid not speak. After a few momenta "ilence be said "Alton, you shall not gol Come, eheor up, Lizzie. Yon shall not be parted. I lave nothing Lizzie. Yon shall not be parted. Mhave nothing to keep me home ; I will goas your sive
nitate." to keep me home; I will go as your sivesitate.
Mr. Niton at firat would not Histen to it. Lizzie was silent, bhe could not speak.
 bofore, I have nothing to make home doar to me -in thot I have nono-with you it is very ditiorent

- do not retuse me-I shall feel doubly rawarded - howing I have mnde two happy. Alton, putting youraclif ont of the
" Oh , Fred, it is too kind, too noble a saserficice. How can we orer repay you? But no, much, wo must not hour of it," sho anid
"I izzy, if you wonld really show your gratitade "Lizzy, if you wonla really show your gratituad aocept my ofier.
will seo you to merrow. Good nigight.", Fooling her exprosiona of ghoue, almost over-com fresh air, while the gentle hreeze tanned his heated hrow. heated hrow.
 riek my life. If I fall, it wiil ho joy to mow leano you hapy, that one thought will remard and cbocr me" That evening, when Mr, and Mres. Edwards re turued ond heard what bad paseed, they wert overpowerco by thoir feeings. What coula sur pase the generous conduot of Fred Humilton their chitlds happineoss dopended upon it, yet they did not like to persuade him to nocopt the noblo ofier of his fiend. It was therofore left to the noxt morning, whon ho was to meot Fred Ham ilton. Witu what great anxiety did Lizzie lool iton. With what great anxiety did Liszze forward to the ovening, whon aha would see Alton forward to the ovearn the result.

When Alton and Hamilton mat he suid:
"Fred, 1 cannot consent to your going. hould never forgive myeelf if nyything happenei to yon ; beoides, how coald I ever repay yon. It must not be." "Alton, not another wordi. It ia for Lizaieb Alton, you have won a prize I would have givec worlas to win. Iit it trage then that I rubh to worlds to win. Is it strange then that I ruah to the battefifld and in its exciting socmans geek to bury in oblivion all thonghts of her? But $i t i$ is uas-leass-I have alrendy aaid enough-you can now bless yon hoth!
All arguing was in vain; and Alton, who was too glad of the chanco, with some appearance of reluctanoe, conanonted. Tbost eveving he claspee Lizzie to upon the head of the lirave Fred Hamiltonmany a prayer went ap to heaven for his asfe

налten in

Is was a bright morning, the sum arose in all its flory, not a clond dimmed the clear blue aky but, ah1 there was many a sad hoart-many a toarfal eye-for on that morning a rogiment oarful eye-lor on thet mornig a regimeni of brave young men were to say farewoll to their doar friends, and atart for the field or hetde, ight for their country. Ala! low few would return to their hoomes ; it was a sad, hoartronding yot beautiful sight, as they murched along with their bright bayenets glistoning in the ennlight how awfol to think of tho work for which those weapons were intendodl The dreacuul scences of blooddhed and dianghter those young men wonld behold Among them was our friend, Fred Hamilton, hey noble and handsome he leoked in his uniform; but how sad, how thoughtifu, he marchod with his comrades; yot he gave a friendy smile, every now and then, when ho recognieed an old friend walling with the crowd. recognieod an old friend walking with tho croond
After going through the prineipal trrecta of tho After going tbrough the prineipal strocta of the oity, they reacuod at there the emberk flace of deetination wer there lay an old, unasfo boat, int ouly for the who were about to rislt thoir hives for their eountry. Fred etooch alone, his thonghts wandered hack to the many happy daya he had paseod xu the doar ola elty-or Hark 1 a voioe called hie name ; he looked, and there he saw silton and Lizzic ; his heart beat wildy ; he held out hia hande, taking ono of caoh of thitro ; he graeped them wermly ; he did not of thitirs; he graeped them wermly; he dia not speak for a moment ; then wita one great einat he gulped down the choking

"This ie mote eni I

"Can ${ }^{\text {" }}$ "
can never do oue-half enough to show $m$
"titnde to yon, Fred," interupted Lizzi
"We have ouly a few minutes to be together,
"not apond them tbus ; we may never meot again, doar friends."
"Oh, do not talk
"It is the truth, Lizzie, if it should bo so, you ill both think of mo sometimes. Altou, he ever and and loving as you 2re now; take good care of her; give my kind lore to Mrr. and Mrac Edwards; ask them to write to me ; and Lizzie Sou write, too with Alton-will yon?
Ood Ulese
 hands in his, and fixed his oyes npon her face, as thongh to read hor very thoughte.

Alton," he enid, withont raising his eyoe,
Mray I take one farewell libe ?
He atooped, and preesed a cies npon her lips, hicis sho $\begin{aligned} \\ \text { returned. }\end{aligned}$
"Lizzie, that has repaid me; that kise shail lood me on to victory l farowell" "with a genth pressuro of the hand -B laet fond loolr-he parted with her.
As he turned he saw the tears roll down her thir check; he brusiod theee away that started to his own cyes, for they dimmed his sight ; there he tood with folded arma : he willod to watel Lor as long as alhe was in view; then he turued sway with a bigh, leanod against the side of the voseel, retted his head upon lue hands, and gave
"Ob, God 1 I thought I was a man, and yet is it unmanly to have feeling? What heart conil bear so hoavy a blow without boing cruabed? bu cheorme. Among all thsse men there must be many with heurte as sad as mine. 1 wonder who toat poor fellow ia? he seoms bowed down with griet. Ah 1 it is the grief. Ah1 it is the sume I noticed with thas sweet young ereatare, and beautiful boy, who no wonder he is broken-heaarted? What is my sorrow whon compared to his? Oh! Lizzie were sorrow whon compared to hie? oh: Lizzie were you mine, could 1 leave you thua? but why will sbau not he, I wriah I could cheor thal pors fellow, be haunts my thoughts. When the first outburst of griel is over I will try to opeak to lim I How foud ho spper lim1 How foud ho sppeared of hor; how proud of his child; whet father would uot be proud of such a hoy? he will bo a comfort to his mother; a small imago of tha ons sile loves; thay both so bitter as aoparation. Oh1 henvens, war is cruel, thme to tear fond haarte asunder; to doendate so mauy happy homcs1 Why do we fight? When will it end? Patriotism must be a of love and fond affection, and leave all to die for bleodiug country. He is calmer now; I wiil opesk to him ; I pity him from my very hsart; may Ood sparo him to them?" We will not follow the bravs hoya on their journay, nor relats the manyaunisaiu and das-

gors they encountered when they arrived at their place of deatination.sor theeke have passed sinet Fred Hamilton in the Tor the soene of action. Lizzie sits alono in the little room where hs first felt the pang of unre quited love; where ho had to nobly offored to go, and leave her lappy with her rival. Sue is now Ho has already pasaed throngh a battle uninjured, and has writts

"Poer dcar follow 1" ehe exclaimed. "Oh, mother, faney the dsnger he has been in; wha should I do if Harry wus away fighting, sur rounded by all the frightial scenes he apeasee of thank heaven gratitude to him, who so nobly ever anow my encrificed himsolf? Heaven only knows he may never retarn!
"Ged grant he may; he is too brave and good fall so young," answered Mrs. Edwarda.
And yetit is so often the braveet fall firet; Ifeur will be recklees.
"I do not think so; reeklossness does not ditwill not run into unneceasary danger. I ofton think of him, and feel with you we may never see him ugain ; but we must hope trovidenco will heaven."
"Yee, God knows what is beet for us all,"
"Yee, God knows what
"And it would be well if we clways thought so, my dear; hat, come, do tako is walk, you look Juat at this minnte there was a ring at the boll, and a young friend ceme a walk. herofore, both started for a walk. Whon she reding Hamilten's lotto
"w
"Where is Herry? Ithourht "Where is Harry? I thought he said he would not?"
"He
"He may be here soon; he may possibly not come the office this morning, and I have not seen him since ; he told me to tell you, Lizzie, he woud teels better." What was the matter?" asked Lizzie,
"When "xioukly, haoduche; ho will he all right again "-morrow ; I thould not he sulperl come in now." Soen after taa Livelook, when hearing hia well koom, watohing foctep, she ran to the door herselif to known for weloome him.
 have heen watching for you, bey pentured out to yon look ; you showd not
night."
"I will do mo good."
"Now, siton, this is very wrong ; I declare I feel hall inelined to send you home at once." atay a bittle whille, pepa."
"rerg well, but take my advice and go home arly, a long pight'a reat will do you good."
"I will get you a cup of tea," eaid Mre. Ed-
"Werds. "I have taken tea, thank you."
Yes, bnt what is the tea you get at the board
"Do take one cup; you know you like mama's Lizzie ran devm end seon brought it up.
"Hero is some calse I made, you must fasto
Then sike sat on a stool at his feet whits ha alked of the happy fature, whon ahe would gled-lenhim with her bright smile, and tend him if his head achod; that evouing passed. At last he aroee, and bidding Mrr. aud Mrs, Edwards good night, prepared to depart. Lizzie went to the deor with him; be gave her their neual farewell ise, "ise, but still lingered, lolding her
"This will not do ; I muat go." He again gave her a fond
He walled slowly, for he folt tired and weak; he had scarcely gone three blocks when he met a friend, who indnoed lim to go in snd take a drink, assuring lum it would do him goed, They played a game or two at biliar
The next moraing when Mr. Edwards went to his store Alton had not arrived. After aome time a gentieman boarding at his how of sad news; Mrr. Alton was very ill, having been dobirious all night, Mr. Edwards went at onco wiong, und pronouneed hun; lound his in its worst form, Alton wat it typloid fever in to Lizzie to cones and hold his head.
e! Whe do not leave me. Donot take her from Oh, Lizzeie, Lizzie, plaee your littlo cool hand on my head; it is barning-it feels ou fre. Whe die ; he Hamilton, Lizzio' Toll him not to let mo lovea you; for your anke he will save me. I cannot leave you to go and fight, it would hall me, Lizzie. I do not want to die yet. Lizzie, you atay with me mays he hent me at hilliards; I won't pay-it's a lic. I did no drink much; it's not thakes L" yon stay with me 1 , woor Lizzie, who wee now there with her mother, Pond trying tood pale as desth, walang his head and to see one to speak to him. It wan hord for $h$ to the loved in such a stato, but she cuuld not hear to lease him; she watched patiently at his sido, and waited anxiously for the rellent, he gava little The doctor was and and alleat, he gava heary watoh he at last hepe After a long and wer hepe. After a long and weard hor. Her heart opened his eyes aud recognised lor was gladdenod, hut alas! not for long, ho gredually grew weakar, and ere long wha no move. He Anong the first to avfer was Mr. Alton; who with his partner lost all. Mr. Edwards also met died with her hand in his, and his eycs fixed upo ber face.

We will not try to describe Lizzio's grief, she wss almost hearthroken, it secmod to silble. What! Alton lost to her for ever?
When tho firat outburst of griof was over sh seemed utterly indifferont to evorything, taking seemed utterly indiffercont to evorything, taking no internst in anything; the only thing tbst ever consed her was a letter or news from Hemailon consed her was a letter or news from Hamilton, He often wrote to them, and she answered, writing long end kind lettera to him; it diverted he ing long and kind lettera to him; it diverted hir mind and oheerod him throngh oll the hardships ho oudared for her sake.
Thus montbs flow hy, they had not heard from Hamilton for some time, when one morning Hamilton for some time, when one morning Mr Edwards was looking over the paper, and his eye fell npon the name of Frod Hamilton among the "rounded.
"I hope to hoaven it ie not Fred, and yet it cannot hoall a mintule " not ho all a mietake""
"What is the matter ?" exclaimed Lizzie, start ing np, end glancing over the paper.
"What bae happened?" asked Mrs. Ddwards. It was too platn-"Fredorick Hemilton, severely." This was a great shock to all of them, and they snxionely awaited furtber news. they saxionsely awaited fartber news.
At last a letter caine from Fred, pe At last a letter came from Fred, penmed hy one ing slowly; every now and then they reccived a tew linea saying he was hetter, and sending his few linee saying he was hetter, and sending hit love. After a long time o line came written with love. Afer a long time os line came written with a tremlling hat well-known hand, thanking them a tremining hant well-known hand, thanking them for the many things they had sent, and their worda of comfort worth more to him.
One evening na
One evening as Mr, and Mrs, Edwards and Lizzie were sitting slone, the bell rang, the serLizzio were sitting slone, the bell rang, the servant said a gontleman wiehed to see them. As he came in Mr. Edwards arose and howed, As he came in rafeed ber eybs from hor work, then started up and exelainnod:
"Oh 1 is it, can it he Fred? and so changed."
Ho eame forward with unsteady step and took her band.
"Yes, Liz
"Yes, Lizzie, I em slightly changed," he aaid, Ia tremhing voice.
Mr, and Mry. Edwar their friendly gresp of the hend and affectionate friss told more theito words, Fred Hamiton, who wis.
Fred Hamiton, who was still very weak, was now completely overpowered; he sand almost cxnow completely overpowered; he sanal almost exhansted into on ohalr. Lizzie stood hy him in silonce, holding his hand. Her father handed kim n glass of wine.
"Take it, it will revive yon."
He let go her hand and took it. The movement throw his overcoat back. Lizzie etarted, nttered a faint cry, then huried her face in her hazads. Her parents looked in surprise, while Fred excnimed: "What is it, Lizzie?"
"Oh, can you ever forgive me, Fred?
Ah, can you ever forgive me, Frod
A tbonght flashed across his mind, she had seen is armess coutaleeve. Yes, Fred had lost his his armless coataleeve. Yes, Ired had lost his right arm. It was a great ehools to hoth Mr, nad Mrs. Edwards, as well esLizizi, Tbey sat takiing for a long time, and insisted upon him remaining for a long time, and insisted upon him remaining witb them, he wowid he snre of good nursing end every comfort. It was indeed more than he had hoped; whito ho rcolined npon the sofa, Lizzic sat and reed to him. Thus weeks paseed, and he sat and read to him. Thus weeks passed, and he when he had hoen out, and returned home very tired, he threw limself upon the sofa. He looked guite his síde.
"Whet isit? why are you so sad and low-sptitited to-day? Hes anything heppenod to aunoy you"" to-day? Hes anything heppenod to amoy you?"
"No; do I renlly look so oad and pale? It is indeed ungratefal when I have had such excellent nursing," he sighed.
you may got a nap? or would you life me to read to you?" "Oh, Lizzic, you are too kind "" "No, I cannot be too kind, I cannot do too mach for you." for you,"
"Yes ; fency how sadly I shall mise all your kind attentions when I am fer away," " When and whero are you golng ?"
"I herdy know myself", he gnswered
"Why do yon go ?"
"Because I must-I here too long niready-It mare not stay-I have hoen "How can you talls 80 , Fred? You know how mnch we all think of you, we shall niss you sadly finced mach we all think of you, we shall miss you sudly facced. Why do you think of leaving us yet?
"For many, many reesoni, Lizzie; how ean I repay you for all yonr unremitting lindneas and attention?" attention?"
"Say, rather, can we over repay you? Oh, Fred, when I think of it-the dobt of gratitude I "Do not mention it, Lizzie, I pray. You have repaid, aye, dounhly repaid me I"
"No, Fred, I can never repsy you, I ouly wish I could." could."
 "Hy becoming n
She was silont.
"Forgive me, Lizzie. In it too much-dare hope? Cna yon love me, or will you try?" "Fred," dhe hegan in a trombling voice, "it is not rorth whilo trying, for I dolore you," end sihe not rorth whilo trying, for I dolore rested her head npon hise shoulder.
Lapizzio, this is more tban 1 hoped for-I am too him, is ia it a dream i--tell mo again that you low me, Lizzie, and that you will he mine !"
Yob, cho did love him, 'tia tole, with Yove, cho did love him, 'tia trae, with a different love to that ehe had felt for Aiton, hat none the leae trne and lasting. When Mr, and Mre they were overjoyed; it wae what thoy had long wisked hut hardly daved to hoper "Take her, Hamilton, my hoy, and be heppy-yon deserve to hel yon deserve to hel Mny God hilose you hoth! I have reason to he proud of my hryo and holl have reason With what unhounded joy did Frod Earilton ook npon the hlushing Lizzie, who was so soon to be his bride. How donhly rewarded did he feel for ail the dangers ho bad enconutored, for the sacrihis he had mede, when he called her his own, prixthe had so fairly won.

WHERE IS THE SUMMER.

Beyoud this far bline aen
It has sldimmed the wave with its aunny wings,
For the clime where ito For the clime where ite home should be For the land it has left with its dead alone !

It has woood the breoze with its whisper low, From the wild wood's trembling sbade; It has rohhed the groves where the strnamlets flow Of the song that their murmir madoThe fragrance it ehed in its hright st hour

Fros lured the songsters of joyons note
From their rest on leof and spray,
It has swept the mead where the b,
It has swept the mead where the bee-hirds tlost,
And tho summer insecte play; And the summer insecte play;
And has horne with its foyous trate
And has horne with its foyous train along
The foresta' last hreath of feathered song.
Lt has colordd the clouds that softly hung Like flakes in the air on high, has trea flumg
n those

On thooe

 hivel

A STROKE OF FORTUNE.

 of Armand Le Claite, on the fourth flat back, No.- Rue Vietoire. There wes an angeliogrisette, and had two little flowerpots, one for a rose an and had two little flowerpota, one for a rose andthe other for mignonstte, invariably on her windomsill. Was it hecanse hia friond Felix, who passod most of his time with him, admired her 60 mach and fattened his noen so often for her anke agains the glass, that ehe bestowed so muol attention It is morning, and the the
In . We mill
It is morning, and the two friends have just es-temporized a hreakfast over an apparatus heated hy a spirit-lamp. Felix, as usual, is gazing ponsively at the apartment of the fuir Lucette (for such was the name of lo petite), such was the name of la petite), while Armand, atter trying in vain to compose himeolf at his casel, rises and hegins to pace the floor with an air of anxiety and vexation. His studio was ilfe all other atudios, cuns, painta, pots, easels, broshes pallete, figuros, huoken casts, etc., were all commingled in picturesque confasion. Finnly Lacet te shuts the blinds, a sure sign of her depariure for the day (for the little woman was a the day (for the httle woman was a seamstress).
Felix philosophienlly bghts a cigar, soats himself in a chsir, elevates one leg upon an adjacent table Shakespeare.
"My dear Armend," said Felix, "he cool Take comfort, It will be all the same thing a "Bah!" replied Armand.
$\qquad$
d. "Coond It Corafort I am inconsolahle, wretched heyond description Hang philosophy! Fait till you have suffered I have suffered ss "By tbe way, now that I think of it, what is the matter ?" said Pelix. "It is decucedly vulgar to be migorable, unless indecd it is to he happy,"
"Why, you know Angelique d'Hantvile?"
"Why, you know Angelique d'Hantvile, ?"

eisarely puffing his cigar.

"Wretch! No; a sylph, with auhurn tresses
We first met in the Bois de Boulogue. It was he-fore my father died from grief ot the loss of his fortume, through infernal stock opseculations. Was thenrieh, but an artist from choice. I painted Angekique's likeness, read with Angenquese likeness, read with her, gezed with her on the pictures in the Louvre (for sho wnia dcher on the pictures in the Lourve (for sho was dc voted to art and to me) hy sunlight moonlight, starbght, twilight, midnight-in fact, hy no light at all, save what flashed from her own beautitul yyes-and, finally, we heeame engaged. Old Bul-hon, hor father, hlessed us hotb, and we were as happy as say," replied Felix. "Peste! Nol ol and forkade me his honse when he fonnd I was pennilcss." Cheer up, old fellow," said Telix. "Thuro'b should in all that to make you miserable. I shoulder it pleasant + devilish pleasant-that is, if my concerned."
"Sfince that time I have not seen her; but I have no doulht of her fidelity and devotion. And now, robbed of my lovo, I am heset with duns, ny now, rotbed of my lovo, I am heset with duns, my Berious thoughts of eutioide and oconpying pnhlic attention for throe daye in the Rue Horgue." "Nonsense!" eadid Felix. "It ie infernally uncomfortable to he fished out of the seine and dis comfortable to he flshed out of the Soine and dis embowelled for the anstomical henefit of hospital. etudents. And now that I think of it, I know a etudents. And now that I think of it, I know a man that will extricate you out of your dimiontion restore you to the arma of your Angelique, and malke you a rieh wan hesides. Of couree yon mhow M. Tobias Canand?"
"Tobjas Camard!
"Toblas Cazard! No; never heard of euch a "What! Not know Canard! Tohisa!" exBourse: Poor innocent youth! Your onrly the oation must bave hoen sady! Your ourly edu-a while, and I will hring him to youtod. Whit is a lucky thought." Saying this,
saying this, Felix derted out of the room, loaring Armand to hitter reflootion and cold cottec., Ho tried to puint, hut insptration hed fled; he

[^29]looked out of the window, hnt Lucette was nat
there. The sight of her bright, innocent, beautifal there. The sight of her bright, innocent, beautifal Angelique) was wanting. So opinion, hy that of glass of cognac and angar, and plunged into the mysterits of the latcat effasion of Dumas phre.
While thus agreahly occnpied, the hootmaker While thus agreeahly occnpied, the hootmaker, tailor, landlord and other friends visited binn on tailor, landlord and other frivends visited himon financial maiters, hat he managod to get rid of financial matters, hat he managod to get rid of these, and agsin dropped into gloomy abstraction Atlength his reverie was broken by the appearance of Felix, accompauied hy his astoanding friend, M. Tohias Canard.

Tohiss wea astounding. Fat, miraculously dressed, a gorgeous cravst, a hat knowingly cooked on one eide, with an immense curl, a gold-headed cane, sn cyeglass stuck in one eye, and an easy oonfident mauner, may give the resder some iden of the magnate of the Paris Bourse. They were of the magn introdues.
"Ha " said Tohias, taking ont his watch,
"have jnst got fifteen minutes to spare-must be on 'Change directly-any quantity of things to do M. Ary to huy, etc., eto. What can I do for yon, M. Armand Lo Claire? Your friond, Felix, has bean telling me your position, and I'm the man to get youn out of it, Down to dey-up to-morrow. That's my motto." Tobins laughsd with an essy essurance, and squinted at some piotares on the wall as if with squinted at some piotur
the one oye of a critic,
"My dear Nonsieur
"My dear Mronsieur Canard," said Armand, "I fear you can he of little service to me. I am crossod in love, broken in fortune, eruoffied hy the critics-in other words-I am nsed np."
"Never mind," said M, Canard, turning round quickly. "I lmow your case. Inl fix yon ont all right. seerot. But to ohlige yon, I will impart it. Let me whieper it in yonr ear."

Hero the magnate placed hie mouth to Armand oar and whispered. Armand suddenly jumped a ment exclaimed "Humbing 1 Did you say humbug, M. Oa.
nari?"
'" Deei
namhe
"Deeidedly and empbationlly humhug-plain served the magnate. "Have spu any friend or relative, my dear Le Claire, from whom yon may reasonahly oxpeot any littlo legacy ?"
"None," anid Armend,
"None," snid Armand, gloomily. "Not one from whom I expect a hrass farthing. To he sure I have an uncle in the East Indies, tut whether I have an uncle in the East In he is rich or poor I know not."

"His name?"

"Belmont," snid Armand. But, pahnw-" "No pehaw about it," snid the magnate. "H He's anboh, I feel assured that he is nothing short of nahoh, sud we must kill him immediately."
"Kul who ?" cried. Armand "What Kun Who ?" cried "Armand mean, Monsieur Canard?"
"Mean! I said kull-
Gil him at once, and you shall inherit the whole of his immeuse property. You'II see. Felix, Saving which, the thile I am writing.
Saying which, the huay little man sat down and commenced vriting. Ammenced vriting Armand looked at Felix and congratulated him queintanco. Felix locked out of the window and mused on Lucotte and flowerpots. At length in. "Sud intellige read as follows:
"Sad intelligence from Bomhay. By the latest divees we are apprisod of the desth of the venerwealthy and aneient house of Belmont, Rodhechild \& Co, of Bomlay. The whole of his immense property falls to bis nesreat heir and nephow, M. Armand Le Claire, a young and accomplishedartist of this city. By this stroke of fortune $\mathbf{~}$, Le of this city. By this stroke of fortune MI , Le Clairo comes into possession of upwards of ton Clairo oomes into possession of upwards of ten millions of france. We are plessed to learn that milions of francs. We are plessed to learn that the young gentlemen is in every way worthy of hie the young gen good fortune."
"There"
"Thare," said Tohine, "I flatter mysolf that will make a sensation ltom in to-morrow's newswil make a sensation itom in to-morrow'e newspapers." "And do you think," said Armand, "thet I will phatically no P"
"Felix," said Tohias, after quizzing Armen through his eyeglass, "your friend is green-re-merkahly verdant. However, Monsiour LeClaire merkahly verdani. However, Monsiour Le Chaire, we shall not quarrel. I shall give you an opportunity of meling your fortune. To-morrow, your paper on the Bourne will he as good a Boron paper on the Bourse will he as good as Beron Rothechilds. They will see it Rothechilds. They will soe it in the papers.
Everyhody will seo it, and you aball he a rieh man in spite of yoursell."
"I wont
"I won't oulmit to such a humbug-such a villainous hoax," exolaimed Atmand. "My honor my-" "Fyadesticks!" asid Tohias, "Leave it all to me. Here. I want you to huy some stocks, my own gotting np-and they are rising, eir, Heing like an immense halloon.'
Here the mamato to Here the magnato took out his etock hook and marked down Armand for so many shares of hit so many elares of that, and so on to the tume of ahout tro millions.
Armand stood astontahed. He made up his mind that Toblas was a quiz-to he docidod to lot mind that Toblas was a quiz-to no decided to le the play go on. No matter," he said; "put me down for what you please. I'Il take anytbing-everything-will you please. I'll take anytbing-everything-will talto the Bourse, if you ohoose, or the experin-tendence of the credit mobilior. Im yore man." "Bravol" eaid the magnate. "You are man. eonsilile young fellow, I really helieve. Sign these notes (for the stocke), and your Jellx, endorse notes (for the stoclee), and you, Fellx, endorse them. Before twenty-four hours are ovor you will ho a rich man Angand and Felix did ae roqueeted, hoth thinkupon the gay and feetive Tohies, after eaving a revoir, took his departure, humining an air from one of the lateet operas. On the stairway he happened to mest Mr. Stuite, the taillour par exeel lence of the world, wbo, with a formidable piece of paper in his hand and a conitenance irate, was "Ha! Stultay a visit to our friend Arwand. your hand," asid the magnate, slapping Give violently on the hack: "I magnate, slapping him to congratulate Le Claire upon his unexpected zood fortume.
"I have come," replied Stulte, "to congratulate him with this," showing a hill of hage pro "A mere trifte. Clap on at least a hundred per ent. Holl pay it. of eourse yon've heard the news. Why, man, do you stare so? know his uncle is dead-nahob-worth ten milhoug, and he'll have it all. I am going to heve oharge of bis funds for investment. Hal ha ! old fellow. Clep on the itemes "I'm thanderste item,
"nhappy stultz ; "I must see the bewildored and conrse he will want a new full suit of mome. Of His uncle muat have been a very nice man, and I Whery sorry to henr of his desth."
way to the atelier of Armand, and Tobins took himself off in the direction of the Bomrse.
The two friends after the magnate'e departure ourst out a laughing, hut thoir mer suddenly diapelled hy the fatal Stultz,
"My dear, worthy frisnd, Le Claire, lot me emhrace you. Oh I I oould weep and ery hoth at this Hat ha! hat"
Here for him, gave way. His feelinge were too after ther most and he fell upon Armand's neck, sensation mechool. approved manner of the latest o vigorously since old Bullion blessed him aud Angelique. In turn, he squeezed Stulla till he was glad to let go, and then quietly was glad to let go, and then quietly suhmitted to he measured for the suit of momrning. The leader of fashion would not hear of the payment of the old score.
"Any time-any time will do" he said; "and now adien. Bless yon both. Mousieur Relix, I ahall expeet you to vieit me soon, and look at my new styles," new styles,
Stultz do
Staltz departed, leaving Armand and Felix more astounded then before. The wholo thing more astounded then before. The wholo thing, resumed his pencil, and Felix proceeded to cook the dimmer.
The next morning Armand met some of his former friends-those that former friends-those that had shaken him off, and all seerned glad to see him, and insisted upon his dining with them. Sueh a revolution! What his dinigg with them. Sueh a revolution! What did it mean? Wes the moral world tmred upside down?
The
The megnate, on the other hand, went to the Bourse, and sold old Bulion the atocks opposite Bourse, and sold old Bullion the stocks opposite the name of Armand, at a net profit of flve hunthe name of Armand, at a net proft of five hundred thonsand franes; hut unfortunatcly they collapsed at the next board.
Aiter hreakfast, Armand and Felix wero surprised hy the entrance of Bullion and Mr, Canard arm in arm, the latter smiling and twirling hi eyeglass witb an air of triumph.
"Monsieur Le Claire," ssid.
Monsieur Le Claire," seid. Bullion, "pardon
the neglect of the puat two years. Give me you hand. Let the past be the past. Give me you I hoth agard and I hoth agroe that Angelique shall he yours. The dear girl cousente, and we shall all he so happy ob, so happy-"
"In the count
magnate, putting his right forefinger alongaide of his nose,
"Monsi
"Monsiemr Le Claire," continued Bullion, "I had the misfortune to lose yesterday half a million-hat it was to you, and I nm consequently so happy-" "of course you are? What is balf a million t "ho the happiness of this young man, and your angelic, long suffering Angelique," exclaimed Tobias.
"Let a father emlirace "Let a father emhrace you. Bless you-hless you, my son," said the affectionate Bulion, olasp. ing Armand in his arme.
The scene was touching-the tahlean wa striking. The magnate lenelt apori one lmeo and bowed his hoad, while Felix again flattened his nose in the direetion of the apartment of Lacette
"Aht the French are Euhlime". "Aht the French are Euhlime."
Ies," said Bullion, frantically; " she is yours, And then in a low tone, he whispered to Towias, "Did yon say tem millions, Monsileur Canard?"
"Only ton," Esid the magnate, sollo voce.
and feelinge of the Parisian community by douls and feelinge of the Parisian community, by detailing the happiness that flowed in fortunsto Armand aud his heloved apon the Suffice it to sey that they were married. Feliz magnate, altermately hives at Armand's house and magnate, alter at his friend'e.

THE OURANC-OUTANC.

Iv Sierra Leone is a epecies of ourang-outang, ond fed, they work ilto corvinats, They generally walk uprigbt on their two hind foot. Bometimaes they are ompployed to pound subotanioes in a mortar, and they amployed to pound subetanioes in a mortar, and they are frequentyy taugat to go to rivere and to oring water in atoil pitcobers, and if tbey are noticoon tavion oir thoy iet thema fan; and when they percoive they are broken the poor followe zometimes- weop like a ebill in anticl.
pution of too fogaing they are to raceive.
 trade of funny tricke. He wouta present hin bund to lead bis visitare ibout the foom and promeando ais

346  SUCCESTED BY SEEINC WILD RDSES BLOOMINC

straight iron pathway the long train wee ranking, ith ite noise, hninan lesd: and ite smoke, and ito great hniman lond:
naw whiore a wlld roes in boanty was blashing,
ing
ind amoet by the side of the hot dusty rovinin and roud.
Untrained were ito brenches, untended it flonribhNo eye wetched ite opening or mourned its dooay, But ito leaves by non it opened its buds in the warm light of day. Iaked wiy it grow there, whero none prized its por thoanty? For stay ; And the ans I waty,
I told $\qquad$ There are those on lifor's pathwoy whose spirits ero willing diwell where tha busy crowd pases them by; But the dow from above on thillige smiles of the All tilling ud they Hoom Eyens Eye.

They are loved hy the few-iike the robe they re
 stray, We too have p placo and a miseion assigned ns, Thourgh it be but to grow by the sido of the way

NINA MARSH

 THE SECRET OF THE MANOR.chamter mo-xime yoo thiokrese. Dnxens MrusTrionrz Sx. Gronoz, Eerl of Gillingham, could not hase been callod an essipers character, even by the most sorvilo worstippers
Ho lived in pleassant obbivion of the aristocravoy. He lived in ple esamne obdinent that men oun break without being or incurring any plebeinn penaltief. to him at first Naturo had not boen niggardy to to starting ; but he had ruinod a fino consethation died habite that it was ou thonght a handoome man. He could put on a manner or ghaid was the first dignity when coconion required, athe exposure of to reesent nny faniliarity which the lie vices mid on was to be trustod, sinoo you could not tell bnt that he mighth pleasantry for a hit smiet fort He He was one of thowo men wiom it bittor rotort
is hard to fattor, dungerous to offend, and imis hard to fattor, poasihio to dooive.
The prinoiplal part of his morning wea generally epent in the stathen, and ocy aome atrango controdoiction of termid, sinco it conaisted or grould jote the groma
ruther than aoids-he woul
 own ventursed to get in the lease degreo familiar on the ventrongth of his lordship's atthe jeeto; the eanh sould smile-true, but the noxt morning the sole wouso-steward would call the dolinquent aside give him a month'a wages, curt dim nselese for warning that it would be worse that liin to apply for a character at Rendlesham Court. And this was tha man who, bolieving Nina Morrah to he cvery tifulug , had allowed his thoughts to to dell npon her, and had asen dared to covot her for his ownl Lorad Giliingham had never intendad to marry; gected a solieme of revenge. His loribibip liked geeted espont peopli; ; and he waa more than evor resolnte in aecuring Nina for himbei bo an se Colonel St. Goorge had acknowedged to an quaintance with her whe when a beautitul woman not certaialy Was in quuetion. raigod the earl's sumpicious.
This retioncec
What ooold be tho motive, unleus his connin was enamored of Mise Mersh himeolf, and feared the confceseion might provoko rivelry? His lordehip hugan to acent another relish in hio wooing, evon haggan to aceal agreable than the fret. He hated Maurice more agraeable than hia heir, for haring a good St. George for being hine Sotitution and a fine suro, and for looking a young man etill st thirty-sixi, whot. They vere boter in thoir vicess. The surl had farent prioiplies in at pleaura; the colonel had had rushed headiong at anoo in anya gone byit havo boen the rigit one thant tiis ay atom might hiown irritanbly at tiug gouty after sll. Ho looked do log logs swathed in bandages and anpportod on cuthious, and then enilod at Colonol St George,
lot sentod opposite him at table.
was by no mesne a plasent one, and slaurico was not duped into belioving kisg of aztura goodwill.

FRANK LESLIE'S ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.
[ADGust 20, 180h

He puruhod aside the bottle whioh Lord Gwing ham phed juat sent his way, as if to indicate thot
 "taki , hang it, St. Georgel done alreedy?
"Why,
ou nsen't to be moch s. milksop," exclaimed the You rant't to be such a milksop," exclaimed the ing mieerabby in the ettempt. "Enough is as good es a foast, "nowered hie colonel, putting his hand over tee oficious relative was abont to refil.
"Ah, that is olways the oreed of you cold-bloded people,"
"And An tho eofoest too. A little estimnlates one "And whon did you frat turn stoio " mnquired " Sorl with another of hil dangerous smilee.
" dicocverod the oxpedienoy of propitat"og father Time."
 forlocolk, ek ${ }^{7}$ " seid the carl, with a malicions "My doar lord," snswered the other, wh known, of insolent triumph, "it io not generaly know be popalar, but there is often quito as muca slai be popalar, bint there is isplay in condaoting and good generolsiip diaplayating a victory."
 and atitifactory. Ah, by-tho bye," resumed the earl, after a pauee, "whet hes beocone of Mrs. St. earl, after a pause, "whet has become of nrs.
George? Notody hears ayything of her now a George ?
daya?
aya, "
"There is no reason that they ehould, consider-, ng that sho has been in by oplied the other quiety.
"Come, now, st. George, thet won't do." The other did not seem the lesst ananoyed or diacomposed at hat roldillod hir glass again end earl noticed that ho fill earl noticed that ho wion ono pause to catch drauk off the contonts withon onmisod therefrom the fluvor, and hiis lordetiip surmisod therathom that the oolonel was not quiz sit ho wibhed to appast.
: 8 ho wighed to appo
"Eged
St. Gcorg
"Egedt st. Gcorge", pursued this amiable nobleman, speaking with unuazal fincerity, "I nobleman, speaking with unuusual sincerrity, "I am grat to find that you ere vuinerablo on one point, at leiest." I never pretended to be otherwien,", gaswered the colonel, smiling disadainfuly into the other's minded of pat folliee
the conesognonces."
"But have you
That's tho question.
That'e tho question"."
"Certainly, since Mrs. St. George bas been deed "Qewactly ore year, one month and Ave deyss",
"By Jovel Maurice," excleimed tho earl, with "By Jovel Maurice," excleimed tho earl, with brutal cordiality, "one oan't heip having a certain sort of reepect for yon,
"I am torry not to be able to accept your lord"hip's complimont,", "eplied the coloneh, in s tone of Bmooth contempt. int heve dot present, but if you will call at my lodgings biowe it to you with happen to groatost pleasure,"

Lord

 vinced."You had better have brought it with yon," he nuid, signiincantly. "It almyst looks sunppicious when you con't produco your proofs, if that is
"I con oasily send for the certificote, ip "Ill. I will ordor it it own by tomorrow'a poast, and

 | plice the earl, corclessly; "only, if yon showid |
| :--- |
| toke a fancy to one of thoese Mrarh girls, it would | (ook woll to he ready provided with nome sun "I don't thindl Jr. Morah would takie upon himif to doubt my honor.

"Il to doubt my honor." (that. Mr. Marshi is not ne to be easily cowed, let me tell you. "I haro no wise eithcr to cow him or to marry one of his danghtere," said the edonel, im"Oationtly "Ohl well, nover mind; don't lat us quarrel And so Colonel St. George dia, ovor and over Athe earl himnolf again, drinling oven deopor then the earl himsork and 日eeming to forgat that he hav beer. Towarda moderation eanticr butler brought in some atrong cofice, end then the trwo gentlemen rotirod to the tcarll prosecutcod with unwavering zeat and equal revishh, until four in the morning, when brandy-and-weter, in unlimited dooness closed the ailug. It was verging towards noon whin the oorr war rather, later in the same-day. Thi ann wae himang the two haggard, narvelesa, liatlosa men co shame low in its light to toy oupr who ant down
the
Tho earl war not in a good tomper-he never Theng was of an dear a penalty for his tomporary obLivion of a favorite doctrine to foel especillut ploned phe else. He sut moodiiy playing with hiis knite and fork, toring the conry in fragmento over his plate. Hie toring the conry in frammend under any circum-
appetite ealdom feiled him und one of the ormodest necessitos ond and went to the rose irritubly from the table, and vinder window, this is denced alow work, I must ayy,"
"Will ith
pat in the orrl, as he followed hile oxample ; "et woma

keenl persor
where person ${ }^{n}$ n
where."
"Cort
"Cortainly not." havel she's handeome enongh to make us "By Jove
"grot that ceorge ${ }^{\text {" }}$
would talice a great deal to makio one regret $t$, " answered the other, carelesesly.
I don't know," ropied the eari, whom any one ot underotanding him well might have thought most charaingly candid. "This sort of lifo one gets deucedyly triesempo and weoring at hast. Now, here am I, Por instence; is I lappen to bo go may get well a,
"I don't think a wifo wond bo mnch assiatance "I don't think $a$ wifo wondid be mich asini, per-
to yon in preventing that atastrophe-onit cold, oy
people
are.

And when they are not woll off?"
A change moy not bottor their condition",
"Thet is true enongh, but still it is worth a tal."
"And fall from scylla into Charybdis" ", seid the oarl, reeentfully, end he lod tho way to the stahles. "Come oud take epcep ar a prime piece of hout the women-one's safest out of the right abot a goci horre servee you whist ho can,
wat way; but a good horre
and when he's worn out an end of the msttur." the carl entered the stablea as he frishoi And the carl entered the etable ne he Enishou pending and here the converasation dropped. But But speaing, oud here ctrainly won the day. Colonel his lordahip had cont
St priding himuelf upon his penetration. He believed the earl'e candor to be a lure. Hi had spoken or marriage, for the firss time in his life, with tolermarriage, for the firset time in lis cousin imagined anco, even approvel, and wis therofrom that matrimony was the farthest rom
his thonghts, end that his solo object in dienueseng
 The earl had well calculated the eireor oupec Arankeness. He knew that the other wors than subspect him of tolling the truth; and he chucikled pect him of chimeif over the succeas of his stras tagem, pretending to hove errived at a solemm conclusion that honesty wos the He cortainly did meen to marry Nina Marrh, and had no fears as to rjeection, but hing that the stiug of diaappointmont would be etronger and deoper of diapppointmont it oome upon him suddouly and to hio cousin if it oun witheut varming. He dia not mesn to be haikea of one iote of his triumph; at the very moment he colonel thought hat
How whould be struak.
Ho was not deeeived as to Colonel St. Georgois Ho was not deceived Nina Narsh. Ho smiled trie foelings towarde Tre feeiings the sly. A man who has pabsed nd reking ap those nursing bis ourn had passionsen as be is cruel.
 cause en but the first and true stimulus to poseegion, in a man benumbed by batiety ine he eari, could not be the loveniso dowered witha Heleu's his reiesh and giver and disappointment of a man nox in the misery now in the m mis.-prowieod inheritance.
robbed of a lon
The earl thought it probaible that Colonol St George Lud drawn largely on his expeotations, As it happoned, hia lordaty conviotion was exceedingly agreasble to him, it promised that his scaicme oromnad by his utter conind and the future, for whose enjoyment he had vin; , unraing bia conetitution, and reetraining pribn. He only wondered that he had aimost have onily.
hong bleasod tho sweetneess and beauty of Nina Marrh
to him such an esay and for haring suggestoc Thot Uvocang Colouri sed just as the firat dinnarbell wau ringing, and thenfore wenh dosonded ing him to Beeohwood was a large, handeome apart ment, and the scone with was brilibiant and striking.
Mre. Marsh, $\begin{gathered}\text { till beautiful in in faee and elonder in } \\ \text { Mre }\end{gathered}$ flgure, recline on an gold and otimbon oue hrge aharing it with hor oldaet danghter, whone but handsome form, languid Carronose, sietare. At eyee made a plesaingly voluptuono pietare the fireplece stood Mr. Marah and hits nephew, carrying on olow, anrneer conn Nina, ettired in a imple dress of black net, her fathomloce syee, tankened tha door.
But the acane chenged, as if by magio, diroctiy wey; Cyril wheoled alharply about, and Axed hif wey, jualoue eywe on Nimn, almost threotening har, during har to eiow any emotion; whilist Nina pulse, toake rupright, collm and digsified, her lipa comp, bat har whol line
exorable diedain. rom 180 wi.
"That
ressed."
"

They mot thas-the colonel bowing almost to the ground before her-mhen Mr. Siarsh wared his hand that was, end mentioned her rame-sho hangity end diatant, but a griy aladow seeming hangity end distant, but a griy ahadow seawng to creep over all the sweetncess of her beauty, leaving it coll, and hard, and unwomanky.
Another minute and Colonel St. George was peaking to her-some few light, coortecns word nes seemed to warrons, and then Captain Mareb cool and watohfal as some indorible Nemesif

 berclief, and yet leaving it on the ground longor than was necessary, as if to pinue the other's gal lantry, and with a strange, fierce thrill he noticed Colonel 8 Bt George lifting carcfully mmonget the Colonel st. Georgo liting carcias a tiny papor, foldd of deliente eambrio sud lane man ses to вeparate the two, unpereeived orwer, the note to his own pocket.
Proesently Colonel St. Goorge vacatod hia place, being asilenged to converaution by Mr. Marbh, bcing challenged to converaation by Mr. Markh, unless eatertained by himsel.
turn to drow neer and stoop down to his beentifíl
"What is that lottor yon have just given to
"Wand tonol St George ${ }^{20}$ inguire

"I have given lim no letter, "Ehe sad.
"I thonght a Marbh never lied," was his retort, polken gently now, almost sorronfully.
"The Maribee are like other people-they comromiso with theirconsciences at times when hard
"That is poor policy, Nina, to give it no worbe
"eme." "Who mndo you a judre over me q" exeluimed
Nina, kimost tiercoly, for her conscionce wha ng his words with etinging socrerity, and conng his words with atingine soo courre of sotion lemning naflinchingly, bess ondered inevitabic hy dem nhe now ecomed to bo rendered inevitable ly whic circumstences than tho oblivion of dnty and priuciple from whioh ail this decepturn ind the selifere Captain Marsh, pertaps, divined the soifereprosech which leaveno vinay ynalp

"Mina, innt youce either for rood or evil, since her beanty is ocrown and king dom, and malles on ber power absolate over many aniela a atainless ought to hold a puro court, nnd wiele a enaile by ceptro, making those who ane irt im, the aweetness of your gruciour . You should give and better for their worship.
them and better lor
them a truec and better revorencee for womanchoce
hrongh your goodiness, and nohler purposes
 when God has doworod her with tao gin of wang in your authority to toko np with the vilest, you in your authority deal to enswer for some day-will have gran can believe. Do not forgot the more than yon chat reaponsibiliti privilegea."
He parased here, uwniting her anawer.
"I forget nothing," aaid ahe ; "I ribh I could erhaps then I might suffer lese.
Her voico died amay in a low, retrained sob nd Captain Marsh whe about to speak aguin Then Colonol st. Georgo Nina, addressing her in tone of light badirage. Nina lenghed, and Captain March turned owwy, He dia not know how horsh and unnaturel that He dia not haow unike the clear, free, joyoue langh man-hou und oweetness of her guiety in times gone ty. He hal devor secen her happy. Hough gone from her Nina could romember having once beon Lighat far-ofl dream. A dark abyyas of misery connected which standa botweon our mortality and the promised immortality woua han hackward atep more eesy to traverne than one not deeth she into the torribie past. It was not feared; thera is something immesaurebly wore to a proud womon who reveroncea the honor men tecause it and that is shame.
The weary evening dragged on in tortara to Onptain Maral. He was truly thankfal when he sew the tray of silver onndeadi, essy courteny for
Mr. Marbh, with the quiet, Which he was noted cousing-room, friehing him is good night. Then the members of tho family aleo retirct, excopting Mr. Marikh, who atayed bedind Jithe wifile meroly to propese to his nephaw that a bithe wimile meroly tarly the next morning for a they shonld atart earl chey shonld atart entate whioh had not been shot distant part of the ental ovar, in order to give Conel St. George a good gity day's sport; he then easualy mether neighhore Lord Gillingham and a few other would dino with them that same evening, after would dino with them that same evening, after which they both shook hands, end eeparatod to which they both shook

Augesi 20, 1864.7

He passed nofliJ dom, ie stairs, quietly un-oarred the door, and pas , nt int the night. Evorything wes profonity still. One side of ngaint fhe clear gray sky in tranquil repose; the low, mattering sound of the ditant hrook came in hutnl rechoes through tho ehruhberios: in everththing theres whe the heauty of suutumn, fading Ino nose. His heart was atill hot within him, hut bo could reason with himasif now; ouly ho had bo could reason with hinasalf now; only ho had arrived at that point wben his etruggles, untead arrived at that point wben hise struggles, ustead of quenching the flame fanued it into lifronger

life. He wrostlced acainat loving wbon he already lifer He wrostlcd againet loving wbon he already loved. Bnt he could still decocivo himself, and gain a little pecase that way. Even at the last when his brisk whurch mad mado him feel as in when his brisk wow posible, and he hadd, theree sloep would now to fore determined to go in, he turoed out of hit Fay on some spccione excuse, in order to featet his way on some spccions excuse, in ord
eyee on the obodow of o bont tead againat the light in Nins's window. againet the light in Nine's window.
And who sball dare to nay, after this, thist moman in her weakness is not a good matel for man in his strongth
Captain Mareb ro
samp cantion ho hoent used in heaving with the io
bolted the door corefully bebind him, bolted the door carefully behind him, and paseed on tiptoe through tho passagees. The housekeeper's kceper's room was at the end of the hall, almos st the foot of the grand atuircase. Mrse, Trent was untike an ordinary dependant insomanch as her dignity and eilf-rcliance gave bee 3 markod pooition, nand exacted notico. Her place in the housthold ceomed an important one merely from the grave earnestness with whioh it was filled. You couid not overllook her, and, perhape involuntarily, nncousciously, yon would addreess her wien you spoke as an equal rather than bs
 those qualitiee in taled to divine inattuctively
 a charaeter whose
It wass perhnps, through reriaming Mrrs. Tronte chaimis to attention that Cyril came to look astonishment, knowing tho rogular hours lept n .
Beechwood, the dour was ajar and the place well lighted. Ha just glancod through the apertire as he paseed, and was etill moro anrprisied to see Mres Trent Atanding erect by tho talle, with a and winte hut determinod face, whilst Colonel 5 .
George, olliling in a chair oppoite her, beemed b.
his mero nttitade to express definance and disidsin. heorge, in ontitade to express defiance and disddinn
"IIy good oreature," Captain Marah heard hin nay, III n tone of insolent triumph, "a all the talking in the world would do no good to oither. You are in the world would do no good to toth tarred with the ename hrush.
" WYe could not tonch pitch, eve. "Wo could not tonch pitch, even in ignorance, withont heing defled," was the contemptuous reply.
of vastly complineentary to me that last remark of yours," said the colonel, , treteching himaelif in rob mysilf of a whole hour of sweet sleep in order to hcar flatteries that would sound fuist as to hear flatteries that would sound just as Weniness in you please."
So far Oaptain Marih loxity and ssurprise that he lised not remomhered che imputation to which he would render himeedf went away st once, hut also felt hot with shame
thio involuntary breach of integrity Retreating hastily from tho eound of Mra, Trent's voice fearful lest ho migitit distinguish another word of room, and was quielily in hed, where hie hodily fatigue wae soon diesipated hy soreral hours of quiet reposo.

chaptha ry, -a ninner party at neecirwoon

 masob.Mr. Shans seldom guve more than two biner parties a-jear, hant theee two were carried ont in atylio to mako componsation for thair ra 17. Di- Direotly the invitatious wore sent off $w$ and inform her how mapy gueets were and infonu her how mapy gueets mere ox soted and what sort of proviion he should $l$ i. mid for them. Tbe reat was loft to her, and. wo well folfilled her part, Mre. Nirra wns no muere con sulted abont any of the arrangements than if ehe had heen $s$ habs. Hor only care was in the matter ory fastidious on these occasiona. He He liked to rery see every thing dono wroll. Drese was necoessary to ladies hoth as an occupation and a diftrastion need to asy; and as tboy had nothing elos to attend to, they slould malke an effort to insure a satiofactory result. Knowing, therefore, from long exifor's tronble may he hetter imagined than de Ecribed rhan, on going into Nims's roum before deoconding into the draming-room previous $t$ the the arrival of her suoets, sho found her daughter dreesed in the Everlsosting hlack, and nundorne " Mr Iy doar Nina, whatcr.
Mree. Mrarsh, with what look yon mean thank oxclaimed diemay. "Hive 5on forgoten th yon forgoten that trioune ase coming ton- Kighit
"No, mama," answered the other guietly.

Then aumbly you could not have intended yon thow hown particumary your pepa is." ising, and some caprico I would yield at once, for your eak but it is a queation of daty and good feeling, and therofora I cannot giva up tho point.
"Bat, Nina, your pupe
"No, he won't, mamn; he bne found of late that I bave a will of my own, and am not to be guided by a silken string, even in smeb a loind hand 24 youre. Besides, I will tell him candidly that it was "My ohstinacy and not your forgetfulness."
"But pray, jnst to ollige me, put some ornamont in your hair. You look now as if you were going to he preaent at a fumeral instead of a dinnergoing to Nim'e lipe quivered with a vague, undecidod filly on eeir-control, and she fixed her eyee wistoon yielded to one of determination and acorn. "Mums," she said, almost angrily, "you ar to tell you our trouhles, for everything would to him, and ho-I don't mind saying it he can' he mnoh to us, or rother to me. I love him, droad him ; and if he kisces me I shndder."
"Oh, Nin

"Oh, Nina! "It is true,

It is true, mama. When he comes into the Wo have heard of the tortures of the Inquibition bnt what are they to mine? I am on tho rack all day, and only oome off to go to hed at night, when I could almosthate the sleop that gives mestreng 0 hoar the renewed tortures of another day.
"Oh, Nina !" said Mrr. Marsh again time her soft blue eyes were stainod with tears. "I must speak, mami-I must-I am oholing, don't you sce? Oh, if you hsd been to me tho mother that Bome women are to their daughters, you would have saved ma so much eorrow, so mnch ehame 1 If 1 could have gone to you when I knew that the flrat taint of evil wae malaing it way within mo, and felt sure that my confidone would have heen sacrod, oh, mother, what you would have spared mol Bnt you never helonged to me. You wero hound to papa and his intorosta, and yon would have hetrayed me-you lmow you rould !-ouly to gain one alugle glance of approBut here alhe suddonly paused and broko into wild, forcod laugh.
hich is rether unfair, when you consiar hos much I dislikie to listen to them myeelf," she sdded, turning from Mre. Marsh and stooping to a drawer near. "Now see, mama, will this do?" and eho moved round so as to face her again, a wreath of The eemed to gather new radiano gloam in her oyo seemed to gather new radianoe, contrnating with he snow of her myrtle crown. Mrs. Marsh regarded her with admining tendernesa.
"How well you look $\mathrm{I}^{4}$ ghe said at last do try to he a little more gay - you've seemed so miserahle since your illnees-and don't talk in that way again, Hou tnow llove you, all of you, doarly he right that I should keep anything from him."
"I don't see that."
"I don't Bee that,"

- "No, my love, becanse you are not married;
hnt you will underetand all this fally some day. hnt you will underetand all this fully some day.
And now give me s kiss, and mind he a hittle more Gike your owneelf this evening." "I will", spoke she falt that abe might and sould bo moro
gay. spoke gay.
Beit
secusto coustomed to it half ita hurden is gone grown against the laws of Nature that grief should be fie, every day se it darkeas into night takes come hing from its intensity and power to ating, until esn only be renewed by some sudden ehock. an only be renewed by some sudden ehock.
Nina wna young and beautifol, end had con right to tha favor of men. If she could not tulke pleasurs in life ahe must have a certain satiafucion in her beauty and the influence it hestowed She loved supremacy, and a "sad Pamela," she gay Pamela would ontstrip her far in conqueste orld and she wid to herelf: "Why should I not proft hy my youth? I have suffered enough to expiate my ain. Besides, I am no wores than hundreds of others, nfter all. The no worse than hundreds of others, after all. The sword of Damocles hange sitapended over my head, sword of Damoeles hangs sinpended over my head, hut it may naver fall. Only let me remomber that hut it may naver fall. Only let me remomber that the lovo of an honest man can nevorhelong to me, that my shadow wonld fall like a curso on a puro hearth, only mindful of this, I may get gome mall pleusure out of my life yot. And I will, let mall pleasure out of my life yot. And I mill, let the future hring what it may-shame, despair, the future hring what it may-shame, despait, doath. I havo my youth and heanty as oapital As Nine ontared the drawingroom thet nisht Captain Marah'e koen eyes detected at oneo a radical ohange. Her faco was hardened, her manuer reckless, her eyes hrillisnt but cold. Cyril looked reckless, her eyee hrillisnt but cold. Cyril looked on in deep perplexity, and wondered what this new eo her glad again, her I rat langh atruck to his albow, a sharp chill. He had a tempter at tempter in his present state of feeling, Katie was olinging ahant him, pluoking mieohievously at his ong, eilkon heard, us Nine walked into the room.
"Herer's Nins," sho exclaimed, moving away ot once. Then she ouddeuly returned, dng hér little rosy fist into his closcd fingers, and tried to lead him along with her ously. "You come," said the kittle lady, imperiother day. I heard you and kind to Nins the and making her ead. But now you've got to come

"Dered Cyill, emiling at the child, hat etill watching keenly every nuovement of her elder sister. heard my noxt pall, if you don't you harder in tbe heard my next pull, if you don't do as I tell youn,"
"In view of auoh a dire penalty, I euppose I thare? oboy. But what am I to eay when I got "Soyl" rapasted Katle, disdaintally. "The arst tying I alwsye hear, whan company comse, is 'How do yon do? I bope yon ars quite
well?"
"Oh, then, I well?" then, I am to ask Nins if pbe is quite "Of course," anawered the little lady, looking as if sbs thongbt ber cousin's edneation bad been as if abe thongbt ber Perhapa Cyril was giod of an axcuse to sun himon his heel and walked up to Ning'e sided sharpl "Kstie ie allowing herself to feel anxions abont your healtb," he said, "thongh why it is imposbible to say-your eyes and cheeks hoth give hrieible to say-your eyes and cheeks hoth give briliant oontradiction to hor fears,"" Nina, with a light lengh.
"Then
"night."
"Now
"Now I perceive what I have all along eurmised," ssid Nina, in a tone of deep hitterneas,
"You have no respect for me, or you would not pay me compliments."
oniy was astonished at her penetration. Oyril oniy spoke lightly to those of whom he thought lightly. To Nina, hitherto, he had often been But not, whend tyrannical, hut never ineineere. But not, when be spoke of her heauty as a dosiruhle end gracious sight, it was with jealoua irony, for he could almost have torn and crushed the myrtle orown for hecoming her so well. He thought of the letter given so deceitfully to Colonel St. Gaorge the evening hefore, he thought of the many falsolioeds which had stained the richneess of thoua hesntiful lips, and Nina's lovelinese lurned him io sick ass if it had been a fou "I will conqner her," he sald to himeolf, with a for me alone. I won't have her distribnting so lavishly the sweotness of her smiles, the touch of her hand. I hate her now, hut I will have her all her hand. I hate her now, hut I will have her all the same. Sho shall not dare me. Does ehe the same. Sho shall not dare me. Does she think that my heart is made of snow? Have I none of the passions thet burden other men wo cunse-I am proud and roticent, and refuse to morship at every alurine in my way? She is nothing to ms beyond any other woman whose beanty is plonsant to the eyo; hut I will make her mine, i for a woman to play with the affection what it it for a woman to play with the affection of an honest man. I mast revenge others. I have no wrongs of my own to avongo ; I am heart-whols atill. Providence has hoen very gracious to me there, for I heve beon in her presence now for there, for I heve beon in her presence now for days and hours; I have Been her sad and gay, weak and strong, pele and hlooming, and have kept my seusce all through. I haye nothing to kept my seusce all through. I have nothing to cool hend and quiet spirit. She is somewbat of the panther hreed-sleek, and henntifal, and false, and ahe may tear my hend in the souffle, but the ean never reach my heart; thast is trebly guarded sgainst her wiles. I may have thought lovo pobsible, days hack, hut now-oh1 I am sefe now." tions with a triumphant smile as he steppod csrelessly on one side to make room for Colonel si, Gaorge by Ninnot ehair. Ho wan too happy fi be lieving himbelf eo eecure not to he indulgent to othere. He pitied tha weelese he othere. He pitied tha weakness he could not shere. He was auhlimely unconscions that tha which Nine had sean Colonel St. George appronoh. But so it is-lot thom sny what thicy like-men deceive themelvos far oftener than women de## ceive them. There wes

There wes a look of confidence in Cyril'e face that wae almoet insolent ashomoved back, smiling and twirling his huge moustache. But Colonel St. George had scercely exchanged three words with Nina hefore the door opened, and the firat guesta were aunounced:
"Mr. ana Miss Dawes."
Miss Dawee was a fine-looking girl, with a high temper. She was ruthor fond of slang, paasedthe hest part of the day on horsehack, and was ns dauntiess in the chase as any Nimrod of tho party.
Her edncation had heen eadly negleoted. Having Her edncation had heen eadily neglooted. Having lost her parento when quite a elind, bie had heen left to her hrother's indngent guardisoship, performed his truet to the hest of his ability. He to toged a most sapient governesa, who undertook to tesch everything, and so she did-everything in genoral, and nothing in particula. In , the ooramlle, Anne Dawes was feat losing sll the wit ooramile, Anns Dawes was fast losing sll the wit ehe possessed, when her hrother suddenly canne to the reecue, diemiseed the paragon, and recomadopted the notion with onthusiaetic earnestnees, and soon became an apt scholar in Jack's hande,
"I suppoee you can read and write and do little epphering, can't you? inquired Jack, a little anxiously, of his sister ono day.

And play a little
"And play a hittle nir or two on the pinnoforte
"Why, yon know I can, Jaek."
"Then what the deutoe do you want more ?" "I don't want anything more.
"That's a good girl," enid Jack, olvionsiy lmhis huge hand. "Just go and see Mre Bonnct make a pudding soma day, end then you'll do." Jack's theories upon femala edncation were comewhet peouliar, and he weo a hittio uncomfortaomewhet peculiar, and he wao a hittio uncomfortable at first as to how they would look in practice hat when he saw Aman growing struight and tall, found tbat she conld manego a refractory stoed found tbat sho conld manego a refractory stoed with perfect anse, and amuae hereelf in wet weather, Jack chucklod to himbelf in great glee, and loudly declared that he had hit the right nail on the head this time.
As to his own advantagee in respeot to cluoa-tion, they had been remarksibly meagro, dependWg antiroly upon his own oxartione; aud, ae ho pased the day outdoora in all weathors, and went to alsep fimmediataly aftar dinner of an avening, it may he surnined that Jack Dawas had not plncked enougb fruit off the tree of kmowledgo to render it a very unsightly ohject. Jaols render it a very unsightly ohject. Jaols frequented all the fairs within a bundred miles, never missed a rsce, aven if only a epring meeting. rule, hut Jnek nowrished in his abceret sonil a deep, copelesa, ohivalroue passion for Nina; and to eit in to the sound of her rojec, sumning himself in the hrightness of her eyes, was a privilage Jack valued more highly thun all his patrimonial nores.
He was conscions he did not shin in mourned over hio hage red hands as he tried to squeeze them into gloves; hnt smidst all his bonest feeling, and a sort of rongh nohility whioh raised tim above coutempt, und gradually oreatod ffeotion and confidence where you might have hought it mpossible at first to bestow either one $r$ the other.
Jeck was alwaye the firat arrivat.
used to eay to his sister, "to he marching in when the room's full. Someliow, it takes away the uas of my legs. I ahouldn't mind who I fuced on horeehack, because I feel at home thore; but when you get me into drewing-rooms, and tell me to sit just Nan, and that's a fact. I'm always so informally off my feed, too, on auoh occusions. Foreign teckshewe are poor food, now, aren't they? I think I see myself doing a hard dey's riding without substantisle, and plenty of good ale to wash 'm down !
oat before his sistar had searcely taken thsir goat before Lord Gillingbam arrived. He was quickig foll. The two lust were people who could dot be overlooled in not be overlooled in any noociets which they ehoee Frequant. Hadame do Pene wae the wilow of French refugec, and had taken up her abode at noighhorhood, and her of the cheapness of tho nightorhood, and her old sohool friendehip for
int. Marth. A small cottage wis all ahe could aflord to rent, hut her elegant teste soon converted it into a fitting habitation for any lady in the land. A few trifling ornaments, gracefully lasposed, a modorate supply of muslin and damask, and throngly the happy art and individuality of tho mistress, her drawing-roem lookad sfosh and luxurious as the boudoir of a queen. The same genius for effect regulatod the toilets of hersolf and deughter. She conld not afford to huy oheap things, she said, and certainly no one would have ventured to hring this aconeatiou against anything they sam on char Gainst anything they saw on either Msdame or Hademoiselle de Pene. For herself it was a rich hut sombre sills, of which people did not easily ire, becautse tho ormaments, accompaniments, or whatever they may he called, were judieiously varied; and Galrielle, in her eno raried; and Galurielle, in her enowy mnslin, that gorgeona hahrimand and sweet, and ladylike, count wherever she appeared, and the men raved count wherever she appenred, and the m abont white muskin and natural flowers.

ANECDOTE OF THE STORK.

TuE atork in Schleswig is the pet of ths conntry pooplo, wbo cheribh oll manner of suporstitions sble to the foeundity of their wivch. Happy to the ovog. Anong many ntories that were told me in which urious and weil authenticated:

LIFE IN BED.

Wa all know that sleep is ae neceesary to the sapport of animal life is foed. Our vilal machinery would soon wear ont without it, and if it were not for bo intervals of bealthrit ineentibility thot uleep afforid ing. Eyen plauts sloep, and the cold lymph that tlown thirough their veious nysteme would cesco to circulato if the active priaclple of their existence wero not ro-

THE NEW BARRAGKS AT THE

 BATTERY, N. Y.When New York had its fort just below the Wauing Green, $u$ fow ronks in a bhoal phace before it occupled tho site of the present Battery. This was defunow, giving it the name it has since borne. The spectek pf caatio or fort which was senbeequently added hush had a Curiout hotory, and as the Botteraty became in time a frahionthb promenade, the Costre became a Garden, in diys when gardert were the rage; tben it come the centre of that most important and weil. Mana, aged tnatitution, "The Commiseion of Emigration."

 ramn of the commerce of the great city. It it a pity to have auch beantirs tirown sway, but with the uptown tendeney of fashion tit han become deserted. Our Priric hing for a time heene given up to the Gov-to ancient nilitary louke ke fovested it once more with Governor"s Inlusid in the backgrowad and Castle Garden whil anable our readers to barrucks, which are commodedious, well bailt and far esk porior to those la the Parki in every reppect.

PAYING OFF NECRO SOLDIERS

 How strange it is now to look hack at the commencerment of this war! What adyances hos been the negroes who cacaping from thavery werge becoming a hurthicn on the Government ohould be armed and The opponentsof tbe Goverument and the eympatbiser with rebellion were of course loudest and mont vehcrannt in thdir denanclation of the system. The rcholGoverumeat tureulenela ana nas myile Governmont parsibted, and a considerable part of the jonger an experiment. Twe regimenta differ ereatio those with

THE SIECE OF PETERSBURC.

The Explotion of the Mine-The Attank

 on the Rebel Linc.Stros our last, issued just as the news came of the explosion of the rebel mino, alling all with exfrectual brsaling up of Lee's army, farther new of the ore, unfortunately damping our oxpectatione Our readera will readily underetand the po fairs by our illuntration on pages 280-1 of this volume, few weeke nince. bich ILeat-Col, Plenuaute, 48 sth Pemn, with was that miners, uadertook to mine. The work wan comoumenced on the 23 th of Jone fand was proscouted with thomenced secreey, the vory solaiers in the ecreeky, the vory solaters in the adiointug hresstworita being inorant of the plan und woondering at the mubtor-

The excatation way commenced in the vido of the hil of to use our exterior line of worken rumg, The tumnel, ond a binical term "gallery, Is about fone not frif rom the entrance, and for ot timer wave not witite troubil rhe floos, however, wat planled, and the

 and to obviato it thea rapese of the tumnol wna curve upward, so that the latter balf whe seperul feet hrye upwara, se that the latter balf whe several foet blghe thanat at the entrace. The earth, ns soon as oxcayated, tioastorks. Yn this manaer no hatraylig accumnuln.

tion of ourth, took place. The ycentlation why ingeuiuniling of timbler and d pumke could be overtncead. Thi beard, and leit no doubt that the men were and leit no doubt that the men were directiy benearat

the erbel fort. Tho onomy wore evidently making Hooring Hooring for their artillery As near as coula mo asing tancer
feet the distonce frome the tuminel to the fort was 20 feet
Anter it was zaniolently erlaent that a point directly under the fort was reochand the cor mino whe commenced. The naglo of the fort project eide . 2 d divelon, which was in the centre, advanced and carried the Egcond line, 9 nhort disturco beyona the carry the orest of the him, which would have lecticed tro conteat.

The troops sdvanced in good order us fir as tho frst cotamand, but heving nocldentally brokum hie corth he Wha unatio to get of the neld. He, however, helld poin-pession of tho ground for eoveril hoarn, and only bur End none but veterangy Rbold have been terat on so imi rgo antartho explonion.

FUN FOR THE FAMILY.

A rupr who sings in the choir of a certain alywe
Axsorx, in reply to a friend who wanted to Ar a camp meeting in this State, recently,

WE coneider the old man's roply to his Bon mother Eyst on mo
 amicted widower:" "Sur - mi wair th dad, and wante

Soos aftior the death of the poet Wordloworth himi
"Yon have had a great loase."
"Whit loeat?

"Wrav are you doing ${ }^{2}$ " said a father to his

Culorovonk is recommended as oxcellent No famly chould bo witiout it A. Fexiow who has some "music in his

"Patrich," said a judge, "whet do you esy
 "Ir is atrange, minttered & young msn, 日e

WE don't see why a lady in crinoline should so blrousi tor compunaionalit. Lat her be content in go maroun for ber ern
dircle.
Maranons reaemhlee the moderator lamp.
Tbere to alwaye sometbing the matter with it. Wry do hens always lay in the daytime?
Becsure at night they become roostess. Some 20 or 30 yeare ago old Phleg, up in Chanter counts, was toling his rreod Jonen concorning

 termik into moncht fice, bo mid: late youk"
A WITNEss, in his eagorness to leave the Gronoz III., speaking to Archbiahop Stretton of hit lage fanily, used tha oxprovision, oi helieve

A KINGLY HERITACE.

I Have a little drop of hleod Whose course is aild and deet Sematimes I feel it in my soul,
And sometimes in my feet. Sometimes it couraes like a fill And sometimos like a flood, And often I am deluged with This littlo drop of blood.
I know from whence the heritageFrem ont the hearte of lcings
Somstimes it groms ethereal Somatimes it grows ethereal And then I foel the souls of winde Go bearing me away, Where jewelled fountains play Within the royal temple's aisles Divinest aingera sing,
And at the holy altar shrines The ewsetest censers swing The incense of whese pure perfum Melte through the azure dome, And forms again, in epirit flower, In the Mighty Spirit's home.

The erowns that graced the haughty brows Of my ancestral kinge
But elor yen ow gold and etones, But gleriens eaglee' winge. Their sbrinen the woods, Their singera-all the hirde of Henv, Their incense-cupe-the flowers.
The tomples that they worshipped in And they had thoir honting gromde of One Who nevor sells His landis. Ye pleep, O kingly ancostors, Bencsth the foreet trees, But your royal ghosta sre atill ahout,
Upon the woodland hreeze Upon the woodland hreeze, Sometimes they trainp across my hcart As through a hunting-ground foel a hundred Indiano leap Within it at a hound. And yet I frel it roll Ae if a thousand tomahawl Were lifted in my soul 1 It lighte the secret coumcil-firee At which the soul in ailonec elite, And deigns not to complein. Your royal ghosts, 0 woodland kings 1 Thoy reign in me at will, And bid me, with inperial pride, Te suffer and he still. Te sumer and he still,
They do not teach, when emeto, to turn And give the other cheel
Alas 10 lordly sncestere Ye were not over meel.
Too muoh of encle in yeur
Too little of the deve :
My heritage is xich in hate,
But peor enough in love I

ANTIPATHIES AND FEARS.

 Ir is a difficult metter to account fer the dismany instances are npon record of uxaceountable all. tipsthien, so deophiy rootad that no exortion of the mind Fas capable of eradicating thom. Of thin we lavo grelin, who, tliongh he was undarunted in the field batto, yot coald nover luelp trembiling and turning pals at the yight of the harmiens equirrel. He was the firs ot trugh at his own weaknew, but lifa ntmoot effortware never able to overcome this involuntary terror. Cardiasis Oordons and Carafis, a Veretian nollemay of tho family of Barbarazl, and Lady Henagge, ona of ito maslas of hozor to Qucen Elizabeth, swooned it more maight of a rose
There was once a fanilly in Aquitaine which cater tained so great ne avervion to appleathat the meresint of one fet thair nopes bleeding. The very lenet particlo of oive oll Introdpced in nay dlsh, and however wel dieguieni, was no obnoxious to & Count of Darmatad that he was immedistely ecized with tainting fits. We are informed by Bartholus, that he hieq a man, of a bold and courageous dispogition, who could not ece

 beiDg once drams out by force from his euyper, into the preewnco of ouc, what was only intended as maerrimeut underground, in vauls or cellars, Colligula, who lobored under gimilar fear, whenever it thauicerea

 lisgust towarde saiminn tood.

 Hihn Yelitoe of hluscif, that neven or elght atraw.
berriee wowd produce convuleions. Many aro unable

AErson in puhlio company accusing th

Army and Campaign Badges

17. T\% IEATV

Mraufacturing Jewellen, 208 Broadway, N. 5.
Proposals for Loan,

HOSTETTER'S calimratid STOMACH BITTERS.

 Imponarea
Eold by all Drugeinta and Family Groceras. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,

IT SELLS LIKE HOT CAKES !
Wo pay Ageata $$ 100$ per month.
MY LOVE STCORX;
Or, tho thriming adenentarber of a Southorn Soldior impressed into the rebel army, wbeoe ayma-pathice Wercvith tho North aynconte, pootpaid. Eucloee rod stamp, for par fieulara, to FRANK V. MERTON, New Xork.
$$ 10$ AGFNTE $$ 10$
 and 20 more Novel and LNECOLN Una Mractinilian,

Just Published.
THETA MNTGV NNUMDEMER
FRANK LEESLIEOS BUDGET OF FUN, Eeing No. 78, FOR SEPTEMBER.

Its Grand Cartoon is one of the moet tolling bits of the age, and represents Mr. Lincoln, the Political Blondin of the time wheeling a Berrow on the Tightrope
Also, the Hend of the Halahama; herides Seven Splendid Humorons Sketches of the deplorahle state of Europe owing to Emi gration-hesides numerons Comic Engravings hy the First Artists of America and Europe-Leech, Temiel, Resenberg, Bellew, Netwman, Forhes, Crane, Howard, McLellan, etc., ete.
The Letterpress is equally admirshle, the contributioas heing hy our first anthore.

Brice 10 Cente
FRANK LESLIE'S
Puhlication Office,
597 Pearl Street,
New York.
J. H. WINSLOW & CO. THE ORRATEST OPPORTONITY MVER OFFERED 100,000

WVOrth $500,000:

 torms to Agente, whic

The Confessions and Experience of an Invalid.

[DISTILLED DEW

If You want to Kinow A Hite of overything relating to the buman esytem,

MEDICAL COMMON SENSE.

Do You Want Euxuriant Whiskers or MINoustaches?

Photograph Cards for Contlemen.-

Wanted Dverywhere, good roliable

Attention, Company!

 46893 P. o. Drewer Hig, Alinny, X. Y

Beanty-Ennte Whito Xiqnid Snam-

Asthma Cured.

The Great Monoy-Mraking Articlo.
Everyody needs IT. Ageats or solider

 Cooley's Cabinet Printing Office
$\qquad$

 And narrantod to pript in the beal manomer. Ecad orcirculifr: coocery sprues St, N. Y

FUTETNIMETRIG, FMURINMMIETE WHOLESALE AND RETAIL, DEGRAAF & TAYLOR, (FORMEERLE E. P. DEGRAAF), NOO. 37 BOWVHERY, NTEVV YORES.

ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND CHAMBER FURNITURE;
Mahogany and Walnut, Parlor and Chamber Furniture.
Ino, OANE and WOOD SRAT work, all quakitiea; HARR, HUSR and BPRING MATTRESBES, a large atock ENAMELLED OHAMBER PURATTURE, in Seta, from $$ 29$ to $$ 100$.
Tucker's New Style Patent Spring Bed, Thictr facilitien foer manafactaring defy compoctition. All work grarontond en the

Do not Frail to Gret, on your way to the Boat or Car,
FRANK LESLIE'S
Lady's Magazine
TOR AUGUST, 1864.
Sneli an array of Fashong and Foslifon intolligonco was never given in Summer.
The Steel Double Page of Bridal Fashions Is unequalled.

A FOUR-PRGE FASHION PLATE, | Coifuren in groet varicty. |
| :--- |

FULL SLZEd PATTERN Oe A CORSAGE, WITH COAT.BASQUE. contents:
My Hrother nnd I.
The Wife'a Gbot.
The Wise Gbot.
Noto frem tho Lifo of 0 ir
In Ex-Policerman's Slory.

Frank Leslie's Lady's Magazine

hise never been approechod.
Bny a Number and be Convinced
FRANK LESLIE,
537 Peaxi Stroet, N. x.

67ay  Patont  Moldea  Collans

 HATCH, JOHNSON & CO. 81 Deronahire Street, Boato J. &. LOWREY $&$ CO., 37 Warron St, N. Y.
VAN DECSEN, BOEHMER & CO. 627 Chestaut Streot, Pbiladelph HODGER, BROS, 23 Hanover SL., Baltimorc LBAVTIT & BEVIS, ocr. Fiffia nand Vine Sts., Cling. A. FRANEENTHAL & BRe., No. 5 Main St., St. Ionie BRADFORD, BROS, Muwaukce.

DURYBA'S MLATRETYA
hecerved two prize meddals From yaries 3 and t) mith
INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION,
At the Grent Mnternational Exhtbition Hamburk, JnIy, 183, Reecivod the Hlghest Pxize Medrit
Highost Prizo Mednifor its Great
 OR A PAMPHIEST, WITH 6 R RECEIPT, rhieh wil

WM. DURYEA, Agent, 166 Fuiton St, N. Y
Dr. Ta Jorte's 工ife Elisir.

C. S. Bea, DK. D.; Baltimoro, 38 year $\underset{\substack{\text { Profese or or Pemme } \\ \text { 456.69 }}}{ }$

PIAYING CARDS! PLAYING CARDS. PLAYING CARDS.

 BEEST THING OUTFinest Card Ever Issued!
 52 Beautiful Pictures.
 ALLEX, e0 Nossau Street, N, $\mathbf{Y}$. Zitorary Agency, झstabliehed in 1842

 in the anture of a prolimininary feo becamo necouasyry to pubiniaberaiber continnes to rocelve and resd mana-
The subscriber scripts in the same mannet, giving his candid opinion concerming them, and orrangmg for tbeir printing avd aid and beneit outhora.

MATRIMONIAL FAVORS
BHIDAL GETS, RRIDAL GARNTIURES, BRIDES
MADDS BETS OSTRICH FEATHERS
At Troesmig. 759 Broadway.
$$ 100$ por Minonth. Active and reliable Agente in the Army and everywbere olse, in the mot lucrative buifinesh linown, Honorable and no riok.

ARNUM'S SERSBEVNR TORALL SEWING MACHINES rcaur No Machine completo without it Prico $$ 1$ 60, with dirctiong, ent by mail. For asle for all Mrehines, at

GOURAUD's
Italian Medicated Soap,

 eetabiipbod Degot of CatigrDEE, Dhilladelphat.

and Druggitata generally.
"Igelf Proservation":-A Now MKedical
Nook, containing Scoreta rointing to Singlo nid Married

Stereoscopic Viewe nnd Cartes do Visite

The Rarly Physical Degeneracy of American People,

 DRE. ANDREW STCONE,

55,000 WVatches, Chains, &c WOORTHE $400,000.

 650-62 P. O. Drawer 118, Albniy, N. X.

 ARMY CORPS arigg oxal Divition. BY THE SINGLE ONE, Snad for oircuin Adatresa DROWNE \& MOORT, Mraunfao'g Jewellera, 208 Brosdmuy, N. $\mathbf{Y}$

"Peychomanoy"- How oithor oox may

Ex. WV. BIENTOZE: PHOTOGRAPHER,
No. 2 Now Chambors Stroet, N. WII tave Card Pietureen at the OID PRICE for a $$ 11$ emp per Dozins.
Large Photogrophas $$ 1$ the Arst- 50 cta, saditional oneen

Matrimony.-Why every man ohoula

 Whito Street, New York.
"Album Geme"-somothing Now, Gay

$$ 10$ AGENTTS $$ 10$

FRANK LESLTEPS Unrivalled Publications

Frank Leslio'e Lady'o MKagazino and GAZEETE OF FASHON. The bet Fhuily Magzine unsurpassed in number mind oxcontion.

Trank Leslio'。 Ten Oent Moothly,-

Frank Ieslie's $^{2}$ Illustrirte Zoitung,-the only German Hiustrated paper in the country. sss 50 per anna.

Trank Leslio ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{E}$ Lady'e Ilinstratod Al| Mansot |
| :--- |
| 26 conas |

Royal Exavana Iottery.

Tonvon

 For Hardening & Invigorating the Gums.

Norvous Diseaee and Physical Dobili-

WM. KNABE & OO. MANUPACTURERS OF GOLD MEDAL GRAND AND SQUARE PIANOS, Certincates of Excel
neo from Thabberg

 for Ave years,
Promot litg promptly
WM. KNABE $&$ CO. sent on spilication.
457.690

WHAT TO DO
HOW TO DO IT Take an Agence for our Popular Books-buy at Whole-- eate, eoll st Retail, end save tho pronts. Full particulars | nent on receipt of alamp, hy |

| :--- |
|  |
| 389 WRLLS, |
| Wroudwy, | 160.620

Agonte Wanted.- $$ 60$ por Month guaranteed. For Terma and Specimens addrese with otamP K. L. TODD & DO., Now York.

STAMMERING

NOW WE CAN LIVE IN COMFORT!

Cartee de Visite.
25 FRENOH GRISETTES.
$\begin{aligned} & 25 \text { FRENCH GRISETTES, } \\ & \text { sOMCTHING VERY NTCY }\end{aligned}$
In different poeitione of VERY NICE.

GROVER & BAKTER' highest premtum Elastio stitoh SIWWIMC MAACEIN: Salesrooms, 495 Broadway, New York

[^30]
satumdar marketino in 1964.
Pnovmen-" Here wife, here are the groceries; I've got the meal and vegetables in my pocket."

$$ 15$

guanwo PR DAY $15

w

 Extra preminm inducements frear
&or 180, contining
York. RIORARDS & CO., 102 Naeean Stroet, Now
o.
 BALLOU'S patented FRENCH YOKE SHIRTS Farrantod to EIT, chrapmar than theud of any othor shirt House
in thia etty. Circular contain.
ing drawinge and prices eant For salo by all the prinelpal deale
tho Unitad statea, BALLOU BROTHERS, 403 Broadway, N. Y.

DYSPEPSIA TABLETS,
For INDIGESTION, HEARTBURN, cte, manufictured S5 cents. DEPOT, 207 CENTME STREET, 2 floor.
0000 Valuable Information

Use of Tobacco, in all forms, Cure

"Artistic Mechanism Triumphant," AMEBIGANSTECEOOLDRS

PRESIDEANTAAL CAMPAIGN MEDALS Or overy donoription, now ready in Pin and Modal.
Trade orders solleitod and promply filled at Twetory
prices. Wholosale Dipot

BRIDCFWATER PANTIT

Ground in 0 il in mevoril drab shadee for V ilas, Cot

Vineland Lands.

Tho Euman Voico-MTale and Femalo.
 Mitatin

 $402.3 \hat{a}^{\text {Fo }}$

Cfrid CREAT

STEINWAY & SON:
Fos. 71 and 73 Fourteenth St., N. Y.
Woro amarded a Firyst Pxize Medal at tho lato Great Interantional EXhibition, London. Thero were two hundred aud eixty- bino planos froan anl parta of the world outered for compotition,
The speciul Correspondent of the N. X. Times baya:
 of any Suropean miker." "0..

FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS ! Alt artiolen for Solalicin at Baltmom, Washingtan, Fortress Monroe, Harper's Eerry, Newborae Port
 clarged low ratce,

CRTBA男 CTEANCE

 TO MAKE MONEY

$\qquad$。

57 Armx WATICEI.

WARDS SHIRTS

 SENT EVERYWHERE BYMAIL or EXPRESSEolf-1Ieasuroment for Shirts,

STHWHCOMARS

#NAMELTD WEIM,

Having the appearanoo and comfort of lunen, have been worn it England for the lant two yearg in preforonece to sny otane collar. ae they aro readily cleaned in one minnte with a evonge, Travellors they aro invaluahle.
To asitiary Mon and
Price 5 conts each; scnt jy poet to any part of thio Union on tho rececipt of 00 cente.
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
S. W. TI. WARD,

LADIES' IETPTBR. TVVE ANATOMTCAL BNGRAVINGS Has information nevor before fubliphed. Sent frce, in a Ecaled ouvelope, for 10 efite

Sportsmen, Touristes, AND ARMI AND NAVY OFHCERS, Poworful and Brilliant Doublo Claeeoss

To all wanting Farms.
nate, $$ 0$ milos south of Philodelphin by railrood, Rich olace Cunibeitsud county, New Jemey.
tha Frituine:

A Socret Worth Inowingo-How to apples or otior frait, iy 12 houre. Tho Recipe sent

GOOD HEWS FOR THE ARMY. or fricnda, giving aa Album of the fult valuo of the monoy zont.

CARD PHOTOCRAPHS

 Stetequenen, Actore, copice of W
logue eent on recelipt of stamp.
Stereoscopes and Stereoscopic Views. Our ansortmeat of theee to very cxtansivo, includtog a great vartity of viewe of the prereat Wor. Catsog Eent on reecipt of Etamp. A. A. ANTHONY & EO

NTOVV ERTADE.
THE RECORD

PARES, LONDON

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

 SPRTNG No.. 1864.WITH THE LARGEST COLORED PLATE Ever given in any Publication. Price 25 Cente

Lavitee, Dressmankere, sce, can obtaia thla invalnablo Fuablon Recorio of any Newedealer.

FRANK LESLIE'S TIUUS TRANED

Mobile-Admiral Farragut's Operations and their Military Importance.
Is the late daring and difficult, hut luilliantly succeasful operationa of Admizal Farragut, below Mohile, he has aitministored a staggering blow to the rehelliou in the South-west. In ranning the gountlot of Fort Morgan-a large, suhstantial, defensive worlc, carefully built hy the United Siates, at an expense of $$ 1,500,000$, the United Slatea, at an expense of $$ 1,500,000$, range, the main inlet to the hay-the indomitable old Admiral repeated that hold and perilous outerprise which carried him up to New Orleans; in capturing, with the assistance of Geu. Granger'a land forces, Fort Gainesanother aubatantial Government work, mounting 50 heavy guns; and in dislodging the enemy from the eupporting aand batteriea on the adjacent islands, he secured
the adjacent islands, he secured complete poa-aession of Mohile bay and tbe gateway and

$\qquad$
$\left|\begin{array}{l}\text { inland hue of uavigation thence through Mis- } \\ \text { sissippi sound and Lake Pontchartrain to New } \\ \text { Orleans. With these ndvantages gained, the }\end{array}\right| \begin{aligned} & \text { dnetion of the city may be deliberately prose- } \\ & \text { ented; and in the mantime the imminent } \\ & \text { danger which menaces Momile estends to At }\end{aligned}$ Orleans. With these ndvantages gained, the danger which menaces Mohile extonds to Atvalue of Farragut and Granger's position, in To treng then the ar support of Sherman in Georgia and Grant in Virginia.
We write thia article in advance of any authentic reports of any farther sncceasses hy our land and navel forces helow Mohile. We think it prohahle, too, thit, from the extreme of the hess of the water in tbe upper portion of the enemy's from the number and extent leading to the city, that its reduction will yet require something of the labora of a yegular eiege. It will, however, anffice for our present pnrpose, that Farragut and Granger are in occupation of the hay and its land and water

To Ctrengthen the army of Hood against the exhausting pressure of Skerman, Mobile bad so far heen drawn npon, that on the of Furagut's aquadron, the ahle-bodied men the disposition of Gen. Manry, we have no donht, were diminiahed to the detachmente geiled to man his ironclads, cottonclads, regular forts and eartbworks, perhaps not over ve thonsand men all told. He , in tum, must be beavily reinforced, or Granger's infantry, with Farragut'a light draft fresh water gunhoate, will apesdily enforce tbe evacuation of the city. But from what quarter are these inrapensahle reinforcemente to Mrury to he ve resulted in droining the country of it and eavalry, from tbe Athantio seahoard to the Miesissippi river. It is apparent, tben, that Hood'a army or Georgia must he sacrificed to aave Mobile, or that Mobile must be ahandoned to eave Georgia. Assuming that the latter alternative is adopted, the Union forces at Mobile, hy tboas navigable rivers the Tombighee and the Alahama, secure at once, in a milivital commercial tablisbed the most importnog whioh are es of "Confederate" important of all the depota to hundreds of millions and corn, amounting cannot he lost without losing the State But the poasession of Mohile will But the poasession of Mohile will not only of tbe navigable Alabama river to the Montgomery railroad, it will enable our foroes from Mohile to move convenisntly, with reinforoe ments and supplies, to the aupport of Sher man in Georgia. We are, tberefore, inoline

"Come, Yaniks, for God's saks-take me out of this place! It is all over now, and there's no use letting a fellow stick here."

The Uniou wounded running the gauntlet of balleta to reach the sutrenchmentse to the opinion that there is a foundation of trath io the rumors afloat that Gen. Lee bas been compelled to wenkea his arky in thi mond, in order to strengthen Hood in Gieargia. If this hee heen done, however, the nex defeat or retreat of hy the stealthy removal of bility, he followed hy the stard ; and from Lee's entire army southward; and from in that careful review of the military sitastion in that a quarter, we have every refent of Hood will he the next great military event in Georgia.

The Seven-Thirties,

WHAT ARE THEY?

We trust that a large portion ef our readors havo pon. aored the appest of Mr. Fonsenden, eur new Becretary of the United staten, cecting ne a hood tarrongh haotr agent the Governmont, wimh individualse to lend them two hundrea millono of doliars for threoyours, at eevng nix monthe. For thin they offor Trosesury Noten-that in, in realily, potea drawn and endoreed by every man parpone, to effect which every man, unloes ho

The Appeal is madressed not merely to a few great capitaliets, hut aleo to the many whove aggregute meann conetituto the mass of the wealth of the land. The ward. Every man rho har' ifty dollore can take part in this loan. Apart from patriotism and the daty when as this.
It in secara. Every dothar of every man'e propurty ie pledged for the pusefuul payment of the intareet, andef the debt whicn due. The security ia incressing in value. the debt which due. The seere before the war wo were earning 1,000 millione a year more than we epent. Dariag the three yearn of the war, owing to the high prices and constent demand for lhbor, we have earned mere than ever before.

No man who conld or would worth has been tale; and, escept for the war, we have upent less thau hefore. In three jears of the rar we of the Onited stake have certainly earned 3,

The coet of the war may he set dewn at 2,000 millions, Deduoting this from eur net eargings, the People who day thon they were when the war hroke out.

Ne othar investanent can be ae cumily convertible. The , wan whe han a Tresaury notofor $$ 50$, or $$ 100$, or $$ 1,000$, tsan turn it into money mome rendily, and npon hetter ferms, than if it were invested upon bond and mortguge, or in rairoad awoha

- Tho interest offered in highor than can ho reaized from any other eafo and converthle inventment. It iet, moreover, readly collectahle when due, Te exch note ere afived avo "coupons," or interent ackets, duo at the oxpiration of ench successive half year. The holder ef a noto has vimply to cut eff one of thicse conpons, present receive inn intornst; the noto iteelf need not bo presected at all. Or a coupon thane payable will every where be coulvalont, when dun, to money.

Thum, while this lonn presento great adrantoges to large copitalata, it ofiers apecill inducemonts to thone amall astings. it is in every way the best Savinga Bank; for every instluation of thin kind must zomehow invert ita deposite prositaliy in ordor to pay intorecet and best inveetmey wat from the promin interost whiol they receivo they must deduct largely for the oxpensen of the Baak. Their usual apor shume over $500. The person who inveete directly with Governmeat will rocelve almost so per cent. more. Thue the mant who desear interest: If he doposits the enme mum in this No tienal Savinge' Bank the receives $$ 73$. Fer thoso whe Wish to limin a eafe, convenient and profitable meane or their ell thom in nothing whilo presenta ee mimy advantages thie National Loan.
 At the expirition of three yeara $a$ holder of the noter of fill or of fuadiog his notes in a alx per cent. gold intermore than twentry yeass from its date es the Govern. mert may olect.

For six montan pest, theeo honds have ringed at an average premium of ahont eight per cent, in the Now thus mading the real rits of intorent over 10 per cent. and hesides, to make tho indacerment even greater Congrens hy spocial act exempta its Treasary notes from Wes, patriotiem dver to liberally rowarded?

Barnum's American Nuseum.

Oscanyan's Oriental Album

 acocptable prewent mat can be mide to a dady. Cont naly $$ 3$. Ecnt froe, by monul, on recelpt of the price, by O. OBCANYAN, nue, 24 door from N. B.-Te provent counterfelting, each packago in nocompanied ty the proprieor'e own autogriph in (ourr diferent languses, viz. Turkiob, Armentan four different las.
Groekk and Engiah.

To Army Sutlers.

PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN KILLER.

ad it will be mose and ranis in lif, ind it will be more approciated hy the voluntevr, who is exped to diasuese of all kinds. It will eure his oore his cengh, and will he his frlend in time of suffering and poin. Feop a nupply. "Nrr. Suther," and the and soldiere wil
drugglets.
frank Leslie's
ILLUSTRATED NEW SPAPER,

NEW FORK, A UGUST 27, 1864.
All Communicationa, Pooka for Roview, ete. must he
and

TPIBRMMS:

One cops, thres montia One copy, aix monthe  One copy, wix months Ono copy, ene jear,

$$ 100$ 200
400
Twe copies,
vrapper
to one sddrees, in on 400

Four copies
year, to oue addrees, in one 750
1500 Mryazize and paper, ene year, to one addrees 600
One extra copy to each oluh ef four ooplee, yearly.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISINC

 One Dollar a line on the outside or lnst page.Sixty Centa a line on the 14th and 15th pagce.

To Correapondents.
First-clees etoriee will be read promptly, and Ifound worthy of neccptanoe, eultably componsated. The mannseript thonla be legihes, on one siae or the paper only, and he acomppanied witt the adress of the writor. Poeme of a high order and moderate leggth paper only, and he aca the writor. Poeme of a
will meot with attention.
will meot mith attention,
By the declifion of the ontheritles et Washington, By the doclifion of the ontheritles et Wasbington, Anfioues zom Newspapems AND MAaszmes cannot he sent hy mail at the rates of printed matter. If sent hy ent hy mail at the rates of printed matter, If bent hy mnil, lettor poostage muast be padi. Packngen over four ouncen eheuld be oent hy exprest. ounces eheuld he sent hy express.
When partien wiah M68. returned hy mall, postage tors of thort articles, pobmes, eto., will do well to keep cors of sart ar ticlee, pobmes, the cheapeat course.
con

Summary of the Week.

The onticipations as to a now and more formidbitberto econ bave not besn reabieed, and the haters of this country and ite institutions are not yet gratified with tbe eight of Waehington in The appointment of Gen. Sberiden to the command of a department, embrucing the erea of rebel incursion, bas been bailed with manimous replause.
MeCauland wae pursued in bis retreat by Gen. Kelloy, and attaoking tba Union commandar on be 1et at Folek' mill and Oldtomn, was beaten; and at New oreelk, on the 4tb, at thrae P. M., wae 7 to Averill overtook McCausland at Morefield, defeated him wgain, taking all his artillery and 500 prisoners; Bradley Jobnson was taken, butesoaped in disguise, and the wretob MoCaueland harely Eseaped in the mountaine.
Erily retrented from Wincbester on the 11tb, with an immense train, closely puraued by our
mon. On the 13tb, Moelby ettacked a train near Berryville, end aucceeded in bnuning 15 or 20

wagone vearnis.

It was known that the rebels were buey counter mining, and ovorything was in readinese. Thei mine proved, bowever, a mifsorable fiasco. It wai mine proved, bowever, a miscrable fiasoo. It wa exploded at fivo p.ar. on tba 5th, eo far from our linoe tbat not ovan a clod was burled within the antronobmante. Thay came onyelling lika hounda, hut whin tbe amole eloared away under a coneentreted fire and retreated.

There bave been no important movements since.
$\Delta$ hrick fire on our ehipping in the Jomes is boing teadily kept up.
Col. Stodman, commanding 2 d brigade, 2 d divifion, 18 th corps, was mortally wounded by ion, 18th corps, was mortally wounded by a stray
On the 7tb an orinence boat, while palading was blown up, Shermen still bolds bis poeition befora Allanta. ince the ropulse by Logon, Hood bas made no stempt on Sbermar's inoos, His great succeas bas been tbe eapture of Gen. Stoneman and part of his oommand, near Macou, on the soth July. tonomau set out from Decatur on tbe 27 tib, to resase, if poacible, our prisoners at Macon. He destroyed railroads and other property st Gordon, and near Macon ; but between Cbuton and Filleborongb was attacked by the cuemy in force. Stoneman cbarged in frout, driving toom back, force into a panic. About 400 were taken prieonere orceinto a panic. About neluding Oen. Stoneman
On the 8 d Stanley, with the 4 tb conpe, aitucked the robel lines and gained some advantage.
Tbe rebels are eending reinforce menteto Atlanta, nud Bragg, Johnston and otber generale are at nacon, to eave, if poesible, the cance of rubellion nd treseon. nd treasoon.
The rebele, under Cooper, Oano and Standwaite, 5,000 etrong, with 12 piecee of artillery, Gen. Tbayer did not wait for them but advanced a mile and a balf, and in balf an bour routed them completaly. They da nor waik retrented in haete from our onvalry.
On tbo 20tb Major Carmichael, On tbo 20tb Major Carmicbael, witb a small troope, attacked a rehel force near Helena, and defoated it. Our loss was 40 tilled and wonniled that of the rebels in killed alone over 100.
Enemtichz.
amatown

tennessee.

Oen. . . J. Smitb etairt
pedition from Memplbia.

texac.

A party of loyal Texans eaptured Eagle Paee from tbe rehels, on June 19tb, and anothor party roce on the rebels at San Antonio, defenting tbem and bolding the town till au overwhehning robel force came up. For some reason not ox plainte on the Pio Orande retnining posgeseion pointe on the only of Brazos.

On the ith Admixal Farragut attacked the forte at the mouth of Mobile hay. Tbe uext day LieutPoweil.
On the 8th Col. Charles Anderaon, 21st Alabama, surrendered Fort Oainee, witb 600 men nd six months' tripes were raieed.
stripes were raieed.
Tbe rebels were not more suecessfal on weter. The monitor Tecumeeb, Capt. Craven, was blown up by a torpedo, near tbe obstructions, hat after up by a torpedo, near tbe obstructious, hat after we captured the rebel ram, Tenneesca, with Admiral Buchanan eeverely wonnded. The rebel Hetacomet, Capt. Druek. Two other rebel hoats, the Morgan and Gaines, took refuge under tbe guns of Fort Morgan. The Philippi, one of our lispatcb boites, wae burned et inv. Morgan $a$ inveeted hy land and water.

FLOMDA.

On the 2sd July Gen. Birney marcbed from Jackeonvile, and routing tbe enemy at White ville, pusbed on to Baldwin, eapturing a lergo quantity of srmeand supplies, andacetroying much place on tho let at Brandy Station. The Alice Price was recently run aground and lost, after doing mucb eervice.
eodth ontolina.
Gou. Foster'e step in procuring rebel Oeneral to put under fire at Charlecton bas proved etfootive. The rebele attompted to prevont the erection of bousee for them, and, satiofied that they coild very easily kill off tbeir own Generals, propoend Wescela, Soammon, Sbaler and Hiokman, and 45 field officere-have tbus been reetored to us, Thoy bave since, bowever, it is said, sent a large numher of our officers to Cherleeton.
loutsiaxa.
On the 26th July, Lieut. Waebburn, on the Olyde, and destroyed flatboate huilding thern, and two
On tbe 29tb a elcirmiab took place at Morganzia,
On whicb the rebels ware repulsed witb loee On Auguat 5tb Major Remington, 11tb N.
eavalry, wae attacked near Donaldoonville by largo rehel force, but out his wey throngb.
nodian apyaids.

Our autborition baving deelined Father De Smet's plan of pacification and prefered war are resping the fruit. The Indians are eveoping the road from Fort Kearney to Soutb Pase, and a ganeral combination from Texae to the British line epoken of ae actually plotted nayal.
A new reliel pirate, the Tullabaaeee, Oapt. Jobn it the outrance of New York harbor the hrige Carrie Estelle and Mebards, twe herque Bay sto and sohoonora pilot hoat A. Funk and echooner

Carroil, bonding tbe latter. He suhseqnently took and bonded the bairque sollote, but baraed the ehip Adriatic nnd pilot boat Wm. Bell. the ehip Adriatio nnd pilot boat Wm. Bell.

TOWN cossip.

Hesc, hest, nothing hut heat intolerohle!
 pust for have nover before been loown in New York.
Auguat nights, hy righte, whoulh be cool, no matter how scorching the daya, but in thitn coee the role io revoreed oud the nighte ere can be limaginec.
For grown poople mane For grown poople we have lltte aympothy when they are crowded and Jummed together in cition during the hested tarm. The country crie eloud for labor of every desciption, and there in no reasosa why the oity shoul lot he relioved of eome of it, and at the same time the food. But for the ohildrin who ure not treo palule ciated, fickly, large sympatay, To sce the poor emil and sweltering nurses patientis enduring the strecto cooking that is gradaully nemiding them gravewari, eave.
Tbere in no reseon whateror that ono half of all the destlin that occur in this cits thould he child con tomd that they are killed bry the careloenden of race of their parants. There is no medium in the ca of children, thay aro elther over-atteded, or uttorly noglhoted. We hase seen within a day or tho arghooted. We have eeen within a day or two a mother who utterly refuced her little one fico and fruit. " Whas?" we naturally nulied. "Becanee they were not beatthy," And so the Little child went gaisping through the hot rmmer hours, fod upon potatoen, butter and baker' bread, chunks of ment nnd toa. If it lives throuph canon it will only argue that it if it the through the horse, and if it cios + well, the mother will not bo indicted for murderi
We de not ace thant
Ne de not see that tho derangereent of the currenoy, etera them from oxtravagance at the watering-piace Ind in travel. Stewart', Lord & Taylor'tund Legrain's os tho hueiness thoy want to do hy orders from out of town, und hy those who ran in for a day to do their thopping. Theso coiohliehments tell ue that they are tine sight, and one of hua airy, fiviry sunge which he dith tributee with such uuproeithe poilles, bo would he

 While these weighty mutterk of dress and pleanure are pling the minde of the firce portion of creation, are nuling the minde of the fifrer portion of preation, holir lord and matera are fearnuly exercied by the he thought of this coming dritt tor $20,00 \mathrm{men}$, and the one that atlended to hin own huininene nend etrictly

 Ateoupt wak made to arreet him, Chough there rore everal sound Union mea thioong thone who heard the

 to complit of of uncomiortelis oo

epitome of the week

 - Milik is 16 corctst pery quart in Blatumoro.

 ucorily 15,000 men in mo present apportienirg

 Sontherno-The Moblie Advertuer gives thils anec.

-T

 The Dnion Convention of oblo nominoted Eg. glentor for Senator hy Bfover S. P. Chaee, Who had only 99 votes.

 tho roarrige of hie didow of the thete as. Prrsident, deni Con, 12 dayo from Inve letitue United stster.

- Miss Batom an wil rel urn to Ergland in Oetobe
- Miss Broddon has agrned to writo a new novel for
- Miss Broddon has agried to writo a new nc

 Obituary. - James 3reCul, one of our eits millionnircty num Pressident of the Meiropoltan Bank, died on the ith of Auguat, it Now York, of diseses of the hearth Inaso L. Varina, formerly Mayor of New York died ot his reidence, at Ptekekill, on the 11 Lu Aug.

 golinntry.

Fioreign- When 6ydney 8 mitb suid that no reform

 Wo Here ia what Ruakin saye of hie conntrgmen Wragib, an a nution, kuow not, anit , yot to

 - The Satut Public of Lyo

 he acene
franility top Clarendon.

LATE" IS NOT "NEVER."

 "OF conrae, murder will out; ays, and thenhere's God's vongeanco upon the murderer, and the rest of it. Yes, and yon bsheve all that; anh tant mietur; hut, shall I tell you a history?" "Well, the night is fine, as our October nighte
hore are apt to be; the coffee is not bad; the ico, thes orange and pistaccio, among others, far from disposed to listen; there is a crowd boro in Fl o rian, which is equivalent to solitudo, for no one knows what his nsighhor is clattering; Anna Bazzari in "Beatrice" has excited you far beyond slecp, albeit the Campsaile clock has tolled out it solemn One. They will let you in at Daniele's at any hour at which you choose to ring the hell which haoga, delenssfe, on tho Piezza del Shiayoni so half an hour, mors or less, signifies kitle. I am not indisposod to talk, and will tsll youl a story. Botlega ! un cafte e fuoca"
Lot me place my interl
Lot me place my interlocntor before my readers. A man whom a carcless observer might have described ss old, for his hair was gray, "but not with yearg," ns you diecovered when you looked at him. Thero was a roundness of contour, a vigor, a flaxibility in his movemanta that portained not to advanced age, and belicd the promiso of the grizzled hairs, in whieh hut few chesnut remnants recaildd their earlier hue. All this showed that the aspect of ago was but the diaguise of that the aspect of ago whas but the diaguise of premsturely blested youth, and arrested attention on the person who, one fine nigbt, in St. Marl's Square, Venice, thus hespoke him who now writcs There was bright moonlight; the broad aquars was afloat in radiance; the many-domed, maltipiunacled cathedral loomod out like somo Cyolop lines of iders, purper; down ths arcado strosmed ing goldsmith's ware at the arched angel of the "Mareeria," or the equally glistening, if less costly, objets de Venice, the shell gauds of the neigihoring traveller traps. In Florian eni Sattii neiguhoring traveller traps, In Florian snd Sattii overiowed a mase outer lieadth of the piazza, playing choss, drinking cofice, eating ice, hatehing treason, ahasing the Austrians; it wes 1859, and the Lomhard campalgn was imminent. There is your scone, now for the dramatis personce. (his enemiea sny sqnat, hut that's mendacious), red, hat that's their ill-nature), not ill-looking (his private opinion), very expressivs countenanee and gentlemannlike exterior-of coarso.
conmmon; none of your melo-dramatic heroes, not him, ail ninetesuth century, modera and polished. He was prematurely grizzled, not his fouit, wis he said, hat his misfortuns. The man conld moon all day over Basilica, ohiesa, or Aooademia; was nnwenrying in wight-deeng, the most exhaustiyn of teata; had a wrint of eatgut in a salte dorm2s
could sit np till daylight at opera, or post operi orgie; seamed to renonnce sleep and disomn fotigas, yet had the exterior of elder manhood. He waifa and strays of Venice focked round him as to a certain haven for mendicity, and the ommipoten plsces I never was cap-int-hand to him in ay giving him np.

Let him speak for himbelf.
I think I hinted that nuurder now and then managed to slip through the mesles of our wisdorn; of courae yon will siny that to he aife it must be subtle, that the coaree, violont assaseln pays a "I not is powniar. Warty' if yon liks, since tho mir is popular. Whare did he live ? well, say In-dindostan is wide. Suppose we call him
Smith the forg Smith, the forgery may he pardoned.
"I knew him-not a had cranture well enough disposed towards his fellow men. Wo med coscribe him os entaltern of Notive Infentry, past theoda-twenty or so, and married for tho some four years his junior He was a popular pleasunt man, and content with his lot. Butfool's paradiso, lived content. When, without of parts paradiso, lived content. When, without any ill, grew worse, medieal men did thair hest (we won't say to kill her), and the end of it was that she he lovod 'lay a dying,

My dear fellow, nerve yoursalf, we can do no more, sho will die, so apalko the regimental doctor, and tho rumbls of his departing wheels rolled tor, and tho rumbls of his departing wheels rolled out tho requium of his hearer's longings, and he know that all the devotion of years was coming to naught, nud lie had to tell her. How was it to bo done? Goid knows how, but in eome incoherent wise it was accomplished, and, out of his insanity die; and he, more ahattered of henrt then must grovelled by her couch snd, what? prayed?
Did be? I suspect he must havs gone negrer to Did be? I suspect he must havs gone n what you would have called blaspheming.
"Whan a hand touched his, and a voico apoke yours ahout me,' and somehow there was a hard cyuical ring in tho tono whioh cyuical ring in tho tone whioh grated on the hushand. 'I am not worth it, Tom. I have carricd about mo long enougb the weight of deception, the burdon of a lis, In my own deapite, in the candor of death, I am spealing out. I shall teach you to curse me, my poor Tom; but I must tell you, I cannot dis and hoodwink yout Your manly faith has not faltered, and I must at last ho true.? ho true.,
"What was going to he disclosed, what hlack arcenan on, and of what she said this is the sho went spitome.

Suddenly orderod on service (his rogiment many others, had to leave his wife behind, and alono. One thsy knew had, in ths long woaxiness of those lonely days, wormed himaclf iuto ler confidence, her affection, had trinmphed and remainfidence, her affection, had triumphed and remaised oxultant. On her fell sickness, repentance, ed oxutant. On her Yell sickness, repentance, confession, dsath; on her hushand, solitads, without oven a loving regret to mitigato its bit-terness-he remaining unsenthed.
"Well, well: and Nemesis? Listen. A January aftornoon, a hroad oxpanse of level yellowgreen (a erop of whest and passe ; these yollownpon, then in india), a liue of coolies, two Engliahmen, gun in hand, away buzz the quail-brro, brrr-piff, paff-'my hard,' 'your eye wiped, old fellow', hold, on, load,' ©c., &c., 'all right, ny Goat snd a humry of fest, and a a mand down, and hlood on the trampled corn, not blood of quaill "And foot to wheek aid, ono fair-skinned and fair-haired man, unharmod, hends over another who lies proue in the ripening harvest. The wounded man is very pale, thi sound man, with fingers corppresing the wound in his compenion's thigh, to all appoarance very earnest for his welfare, Brown-hued humanity is hurrying hither ond thither. The white man unhurt, watches closely, the injnry done by his unlucky shot (his uncocked gun had exploded suddsnly), a apace is left ahont "t Bryan. Then speaks he who is unscathed. mine.'
"And he ramoves his finger frem the severed "And straightway the wounded man, who, with holding on to life, ahjuree existonco; looks up in his friende facs, sees in it what extinguishes all vitality in him, trise to apeak and fails, aud in the " uden horror-die日,
And murdor will out?, Bon & savoir! Bottegat He ate lis ico, looking junt a little palc, for ho had sxoited himself as he went on. We strolled round the plazza; and then, passing in front of the cathocrral and the palaco, parted et tha cornsr of ths Piazstta in a day or two afierwards the rail rolled me away towards Milan and Turin.
This odd story has sineo recurred to me, while, at times, I recall scrape of my quondam associato's conversation, which had in them hints of ciato convorsation, which had in them hints of many yoars apent ahroad, and in torrid climes. And again, he had a wny of looling at the Austrian troops, whenever he asw them under arms, and a quick sppraciation of defects or good points in their tenue or their mancenvres, that had in it a smack of the harruek yard and parade ground.
Had he svar lived in India, I wonder? Was perchance, his own story which he had just halfsooffingly sketohsd ? -who knowe? $\mathrm{H}_{8}$ wae juat the lind of man whom I should deeline to truat, if feeling that I hud played him any trick for . he was likely to hear me matice.

EVENINC.

Uron the ocean's pallid straud I sat and dreamed alone, Whila on the wavea, like goldén sand, The aun'a last beama were strown, And twilight, in a converae land,
To oarly day had grown. To oarly day had grown.

Methonght I heard an oldeu tale, Told in the water's tune,
That breathed of homa and that deep vala Where, in the month of June, Wo sat and talked with facea pale Beneath the quiet moon.
All day we ast and talked, and kept The feast of love all day,
Till, with hia lamp, the fikler crept And she, like April, smiled And she, like Apriil, smiled and wept, All day, till twilight from the hil In deepening ahadowa fell, And far acrosa the distant mill Wa heard the evening hell; And then the voice which hannts me atill Whispered- "Mine own, faréwell!"
The past is past for evermore :
My memory now is cold;
And ouly on thes aurging ahora,
$f$ or in the whispering wold In thoas hright days of much mose than a good many uncles do. induetry, it is

Jane Benson's Trials.

 by charles f. preston.
ohapter $x_{0}$

 Hzre, you, Jane!" celled Mra. Mordaunt,harshly, down tho back stairs, "where aro you golag, I abould like to know?"
"I ain going to
"I ain going to school, aunt," was tho timid reply. "No, you aro not," was the decisive reply. "I can't fpare you this morning. You must stay at cen't epare you this morning. You must stay at homo and help Bridget." homo and help Bridget."
and hung it onpon the noil straw bonnet writh a eigh, and hung it npou the nail belind the door, Thon withont a word ahe weut down into tho kitchen whoro she was soon busied in washing potatoos for dinner.
now about thirteen yoare old. Despite $\}$ the plain cnitico dress whith yhe wore, her swoot aftractive face mado her apperer to adventage be-

cumaitanc

And who was Jano
Sho was the only daughter of Mr. Mordaunt' dister, At four yeers of ago she had been leff an orphan, and bad ever since been an inmate of her uncle's houae. Mrs. Mordaunt represented that the was an object of clarity, and olsimed the credit of providing ber with a home Jans believed this to be the caee. Thers were vary few whe wero aware that her unclo hold for her in trust a property yielding three hundred dollars yearly, which considerably more than compenated him for any expensea he was put to on ber accomit He and hia wife quietly ignored this circumatance, and made Jane a household drudga, making her aleep with the cook, whom she assiisted by day. The fact was Junc'a littlo fortune had heen

A оиatomen for fnewoh books.
swallowed up hy unsuccossfol speculations, and her unele would have found it diffienit to roplace it.
Wo left
Wo left Jane washing potatocs in the litchen. She had searcely finished this task when she waa prcisood into the servico of the humdreas, and sent The little girl aighod.
"How shall I cerer lcarn anything," sha though to hersclf, "it I am kopt out of kchool hall the time. Then the toncher will blume mo bceanse I don't atady out of achool I sm sumo I wonld if aunt would let me, but she keeps me at work all the time. Perhsps she will let me go to achool this afternoon," Bnt poor June was deatined to be disappointec in her hopes.
"You will Jane," shid hor to atay at bome this afternoon, Jowe, on Sophia's aunt, preaently. "I want you to "Miss Whitcomb acolds regulary," anid Jane, timid "I can't help it," auid Mru. Morduunt, coldly. "You must tell her yon are needed at home." aunt ${ }^{\text {P" }}$
"I dosira you will say nothing mora on ths subject, Jane," aaid her aunt. "You can't go, and you need say nothing more on the subject. However, if yon will be a goed girl I will give you one of Annottes's old droeses." This did nct impart so moch pleneare to Jane an might have been expectod. Her consin was somowhat smallor than hersell, and her shap in Anott'sc cat-off dreeses, snd under the cir-min
harply.
"ane, what do you say $?$ " aekod her aumt,
"
charply.
"Idont know, aunt."
"Don't know ' where'e your maunera, obild? "Don't know! Where't your manera, ohidr Don't toun know what you ought to say when youl
 to add.
"WYy" exclained Mra. Mordaunt, atepping
Min short and transixing hor mieco with vergeance
planee, "here's vanity for you with a venge glanee, "here's vanity for you with a veageance., Perhapoyou'd like to have me buy you a silk droos,
miiss?
As eaech of her cousino hed several, the doeire and might not have becon altagether unnatural on the part of Jane, particularly as it would have been bought with her ewn money. She felt emboldened bought toeayy
" So
sophia and Annetto wear silk dreenes,"
"And amppoee they do," retorted Mirs. Mor for you as it ia, sud much thanks we get for it. But you are not worth wasting words upoy. You will stay at home from school as I have biden you'" At this moment the door hell ruag, and Mrs, Mordaunt, adjuating the folda of her moire antique, walked oomplncen cive her callera. Jane, with plogmonta.

CRAPTER II.

ALruovar Mras. Mordaunt sent her own daughtors to 日 hesed that Jane was allowod similar advantage. Indeod it must be neknowledged that hor plain, unfoahionahle and nnbecoming attire Would have makio her out a strange figuro ont Nadsme Pompadour's Soleet Selool for Young Nadame Pompsadou's Soleet Sehool for Young Ladies, while madame heraers woud torke much a eonginy Bucceed, her busceptibilities were in no pupil Hower.
 tion in Jane' 'helalif.
Jane was extromely fond ef stady. Sho leunned rapidy, and writh mederate adrantagoes would huve rapididy, and with moderate adrantagos wonld have mede a brilliant scholar, far exeelling her supermede a brilliant scholar, far exeolling her super-- neilal couteins. - Oue day she piched up an elopienlary Freach bconthen neide for ono of a higher but bad beon thro
As it was not likely to bo inquired anter grade. As it wae not likely to bo inquirred niter sho took it up to her attic and hid it awzy in her trunk. Whonever eue found an opportunity she pored over ith trying hard to mather witite but perseverance and hard hator enteled her to nuany of these. To her detight tho found she was motualy making progrese. There was one point, sowever, whici puzzled her. She did not know however, which puzzed her. She did uot kinow how ts pronomnce the words. She determined, without conaiul
"Sophia," she said, one day, an that young lady lay stretched on a lounge in what ehe doubtlees considered an attitade of elegant repose, "I wiah you'd read a tittle to mo out of your beoks." Her chat on earth do you want me to do "I thought I would like to hear how it sounds," answered Janc, depreoatingly.
guidly. "Bat I should like eo mnoh to hear juat a little," pleaded Jane. "I heard yon saying something in pleaded Jane. "I heard yon saying Bomething how glad I should be if I knew as mach ns youn" Sopbia wae vain, and this compliment had its Sopb effect.
effcot.
"Oh, woll," said aho, "just hring me that book ou tho table. Only I don't see what good it's going to do you. You would never bo sble " learn Frcnch. You haven't, got sbility onougb," Jano thonght it hest to ignore this uncomp mentary remark, and brought the book. Sophia could pronounce Frencia better than she could reañ it, as Msdame Pompedour, who waa a Frenchwoman, took special pains to practise her scholars in thia way.
resd, and her quielt comprobeusion enaliled her to seize the prominent principles which regulated tbe pronuncintion.
qucstion which Sophia, who foll that she whe showing of her ciously answered.

When tho lesson was over Jane thanked her

 cousin gratefully."ousin graterouly.
Sophia leoked at her curiously.
"You're a queer girl, Jane"," she suid. "Why should you care about all thie? I can't concciro."
"I just thought Id like to know how it eounda, "n eaid Jano, apologetically.
" Hase you got any glovee, Jono?" aeked Sc-
"Hall
Hel phia, who felt mousully graciene.
n No," said Jane.
"No," said Jane.
"Then here's a par of mino you mby have. They neod mending, but they'll make a very good
"Tuanl you, Sophia."
sto by dint of persoveravice Jane maniged to gct threugh her Frenoh hook. By this time she had become so nuch intarested in the language that she felt amxious to go on. But there was ona great difficalty. She hed no m more money to buy tbem with.
n what's the matter wid yon
"What's the matter wld yon, Joney?" inquired aer humble triend Briaget, who .s loft ao mach to her cumpn noship. how much I shoold like a little money."
"And what weald yon do wid it?"
"And what weuld yon do wid it?" akked
Bridget. "Id buy a Fre
"Dry", boid Jane. your eoasine learn French $\mathrm{r}^{\text {" }}$ inquired Bridget, not over grammatically, Yee, Bridget ; and I should like to learn too." "It'e a elame of the misthress to nighict you so entirely, poor dear. T'm aure you'd make a hetter echolar than them, if she'd only give you a conanco"
"She thinke I mm only fit to work in the kitchen sid Jene, sadly. "I aball grow up ignorant, snd that's worse than wot having money!"
"I don't know abeut that, darlin'," seid Bridget. "I don't know abeat that, darlin," Beid Bridget. ivery day in the year."
"Td rather be able to sing and play, and he a ind ine scholar." "It's likely yor right," asid Bridget, a bittle puzzled; " but I'd rather have the monoy to hay ane things wid. And what's the priee of them fine things wid. And what's the priee or then books tbat yer conein'e got ? "I ounld buy eeeond-hand eopieo for two or three aollara," smid Jane. "Secoud-lizad ones would do aollare," smid.
just as well."
"Why wit
"Why won't you put their names down on a bit of paper like ? ${ }^{\prime \prime}$, anid Bridget.
Jane complied with thio
Jot know whet it me thie request, thongh ehe dic the paper hor peckot.
The next dey a bookseller was considerably surpriead at a vivit from a eteut, red-faced lrialh girl, wbo preeented a piece of paper with the romark
"Have yo got them books, nir, that's down
thore?" "They are French books," he aaid, looking up
up
at her.
"Av coorse; I know thast," returned Bridget, for
it was ehe.
"Yee, I have them," he answored.
"It ye have thom acecond.hand, sir," said Bridget "they'll do me just ae well. Maybe I shail he wanting to buy Bome more."
"Are you intending to stady French yourself?
the bookecller could not holp naking. " What else would I Le wanting the books for?"
retarned Bridget, with an air of importance "My educetion was niglicted when I wes a giri, and now I want to lenra something.
Bridget wns determined not to betray Jame' secret, and for this reason geve tbe ludiorous impression that she wanted the books for her own "A queer oustomer," thought the shopkeeper th a quasoment. A serviceable though well-worn copy of ench of the volomes wes found. The prioe proved to be tifty centa for the one, aud a dollar and a half for tifty cents Bridget took out her pooket-book, and with an air of bill.
"Yo
"Yo may quentially
Tbe bookseller, thongh not nidertaking to roll them up, carofally wrapped them in paper, nad the promia purchase.
purchase.
"Tre got something for ye, Jancy," ehe eaid, myateriously, to our young heroine, after she got homo. "It's apeteirs."
Jane accompanied her to the little attio room, and there lay the books she had so much covotou,
"What, Bridget 1 did you buy these for me? "What, Bridget 1 you you buy the exe for me mot to have epent ye exclaimed. "me," your money for me.". I many apind my own money
"Whisht, my darlin",
as I like. Wes them whet you wanted ?"
"They are just what I wantod. How kind you
"Hueh now-it's nothing at all."
you, Bridget."
${ }^{2}$ "Woul, my darlin', just as you ploaso. Maybe instcad of that you oan teach me a littlo of the lingo. Mesilf would like to know how it scemes spaito in that outlandish way. It must bo mighty spaho in that ous " quare entirely."

O yea, Bridget ; rut toach yeu a little no
"Will ye Now, whenevor you want to Bay yes, you must say 'ouit', "Wel That's mighty quare entirely. Then ite the two of us na.
'No it isn't that kind of a wo. It is apelt $0-11-i$ ',
"And what means no ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ " inquired tho French pupil.
"Non."
"Nong!" repested Bridget, with a strong Hi bernian aceont,
"Yes, Bridget, that's right. Shall I teach you seme more toda, Janey. That's all I can remimbor "Not today to once."
Writb great pride in her new scquiremonts, Bept repeating to hereelf "we" and "nong," till at tho teatable, whin Mrs. Mordaun blarted oat:
a TVon "Erilget talling French 1" exclaimed Sophia, nemrly choking with langhtor.
"Yes," anid Bridget, recovering from hor confusion and acemming an air of mosilf that took loseons onoo. followed that poer
Such a hurst of laughter
Bridget

Jane, however, loet no time in avaling herself of Bridget's gifts. Occaeionally ohe wonld onof Bridget's gifts. Occasionally ohe wonld on surmount, bat in gencral her quiek sppreheusion earried her bravely through them. When her French reader was finished, Bridget honght her another hook, and before a year was over Jane, nother hook, and before a year was over Jane, little se her coueins suspeeted it, was a eensiderlittle es her coueins suspceted it, was a eensider-ably hetter Froneh echolar and read the language ably hetterter zesdinoss than either.
with greal
But Jane thought it hest to keep this new ac quirement to herself.

chafter iII.

So four yeare elipped awny.
Jane wras now eeventeon yeare of oge, about the ita yonthfui ewectnees, she poeseesed more than ordinary benuty. Mrs. Mordaunt coald not help acknowledging to herecif that her niece weuld prove a dangeroun rival to her plain consins if any opportunity of comparison ehould be ofored. She opportunity of comparison ehoula be offosed. San detormined to allow, no eubh opportunity. Jane was kopt mere than ever in the background Ste was strictly confined to the sorvants' quartore whenever there was company, and was still dressed Whenever there was company, and was still dressed in the cast-of clothes of her consine. This was a hitter humiliation to her. She would have bee contented with anything of her own, however plain, but it ohafed her pride to be trested as beggar.
"But, after all," she thought, "am I anything more? I am a humble dependent on my uncie's bounty. If I am ever so situated as to carn my ounty, Ing. I amall be happy," own living, I ehall be happy.
At this time hier leading ide
At this time her leading idea was to become a govpect ahle and to her taste. But she folt that, in orler to eompass thia she must be well ednested, and how could ehe ever acquire an education in her preent circumstances? preent circumstaneca? In the laet ohapter an acoount was given of the In the laet ohaptor an acooud in acquiring the But, as may roadily be auppeeed, she did not atop there. She aecertained what beoke her conains used in other departmenta, and one by one obtained thom. Though withont a teacher, her firm recolutions enabled her to acquire a more thorough their advantagee, succeeded in doing.
In one reapeet, however, they had the advantago. Instrnmental music was quite out of her reach; she must be content to do without it. Yet as ehe heard Sophia and Annotte drumming away on the long-suffering piano in a manner which might well jar on the euscoptibile nerves of a genuine lover of music, she often felt, with a sigh, that ahe could aequil herzelf with much greater eredit if she only had tbe opportanity.
One day she mado a discovery whieh materially In tho loft wose hon an
In tho loft was an old barrel filled indiscriminately with old rags and paper litter.
Her aunt geeing her at leisure on Her aunt seeing her at leisure one atternoon ohauced to think of this harrel, and ordored Jane tego up and pick out the rags, and burn the old paper.
Somewhet unwillingly she undertook the taek Sho had recently commenced Latin, and was promising horself an hour or two to spend upone But eomotimes really meroies in diaguiso. When Jane elimbed with unwilling feet the atoep and narrow staircaee, she little dreamed of the die cevery which abe was destined to make.
For about half an hour Jane pureued hor unintoresting task. She was required not only t eepart the rage into white and colorod.
In her eoarch elie came at length to a amall In her eossch ection of lettere addrobsed to her uncle. One yellow with age was open. Casting har eye apon the-signaturo, suddenly Jane's heart beat fast and the signaturo, tumultuously.
The letter was nigned "Mary Benson," and this The letter was nigned "Mary Benson," and this sbe rocognised as her mother's name. She had sbe rocognised as her mother's fame, strong desire to learn something ahont her mothor, but neither Mr. nor Mis. Mor daunt ever seemed dieposed to apenk of her. It may be that their sense of the wrong they wore doing the child made the mother's memory pleasant. plessunt.
Jane felt no soruplee about reading the letter. She firet kieeod it revirnil, turned to the first down upon a small commenood reading.
Tho charooters wore emall, and the ink had fuded so as to make it difficult to read, but Jano would have persovered if it had taken the entir aftomoon.
Tha was the lettcr:
"My Duas BnexHER-I ait domn to write to you,
foimg that I have hut a hitle while longer to live.
Consumption has faetened upon me, and I caunot febing that I have hut a hed upon me, and I I aunot Consumption has fotened do not hepe to cecape from ito deaily graep. I do think I dread death. I have oonlidence in my meacifully my many ahortconinga, I have one reason for wriehing to live. My bitlie Jane ii now thrce years old. She promisea to grow up an need a mother'e care, and for her bate wigh to tivo. Yet in meaveny Father ordaius othervieo, $\mathbf{I}$ inm in His hands. TThis leado me to the requent whicb it is the object of thio letter to make. When am gone I wioh you to receive my littlo girl, and oare for hher education, I think nothing, will make up 1or the lack of that. I do not foel to eay mooe upan this puint. You will underetand mo, my dear brother,

"But thiv letter has tired me. I grow tired easily now. With many prayers for the happiness of yoursolf and my litto meece - 1 reman, yonr
affeetionate sister, MABY Bexsos." The emotion with which Jane read thie touching toter may be imagined. But, mingled with this, there was a doop feoling of indignation agginst the brothor, whe conld so orvelly disrogara a alatar's dying request. Her heart bounded with Ghe thought that the wae no longer the poor dependent she had suppoeed.
onongh to enpport her in comiort, and it weuld be hers in lese than a year.
Yet how had she boen reared? As the cempanion of her uncle's servants, with the most imited advantages of oducation. That she did peres and persees a fund of koownedge and infermation was not hy her uncle's help, but in spite of bim. hitherto enbrnitted uncomplainingly and unresistingly to the domands npon her, She had toiled as a servant. Her time had beea conse, feckng it her duty to compengate her unele for her board. Now that sho had learned that she wad no depenlont, that he had received more than a full quivalent for sll he had bitherto expended upon her, her eonl revalted against this oppreesion. She dotermined vithout delay. Carofully concealing the precions letter in her booom, she downetairs.
Sbe met hor aunt on the landing.
"Have you finished 日orting the rage, June?" "nquired Mre. Mordaunt.
"I have not," said Jane, coldly.
"Thon what are you down here for? Go up mmediately, end finish them."
"I would rother he exeueed," baid Jane, coelly woun give the talk to seme one of your cervanta." "What $\mathrm{I}^{\prime}$ exclaimed her aunt, her face whito with anger, "do yon mean to defy me? Do you dare to refuase obedionce? Go up immediatoly.
"I most deeline, aunt," eakd Jane, perfeetly collocted. "I may as well give you notiee that eollocted. "I may as well give you notiee that you must find bome ene else to do your drudgery.
I have elaved for you for years. I have reoolved to do so no longer.
"Good heavenal are yeu mad $\%$ "exclaimed
Mrs. Mordaunt. "What hae came over yon?" Mrs. Mordaunt. "What hae come over yon ?"
"I have ouly come to a reeolutien which $\mathbf{I}$ am sorry I had not come to before.
"You ungrateful trollop!" slurieked her aunt, hor anger it s whito heat, "t do you expect we are going to support you in idionees it would ser, you right to turn you out to shift for yoursels"
Jane turned ber gaze meaningly upon ber aunt. "Very well," said she; "let my uncle make "Very well," said she; "let my uncle mane left him in truat for me, and I will go to-day." Mre. Mordaunt's fece turned white, hut thie Mith constornation. "Who hae told yon of this?" she ejaculated. "It matters not," said Jene, marling with " leeling of inward trimph her aunt's dismany, "It vate finterviow with my unclo to-day. Meanwhile, madam, if I am to remnin under ycur rool you will ceoign me a better reom than 1 at present occupy ; I shall at onco require now clothing, and an oppertanity to make up the doficiences in my an oppertanity to make up the donciences in my education, whicb has beon so shamefully neMrs. Morlaunt did not venture npen a reply. Without a word sbe twrued and deseended the ataira. Jane's assertion of independonce come upon her like a thonderclap. Sbe felt that come upon her like a thunacrchap.

OHAPTED IV.

Somemyar to hie wifo's aurprise, Mr. Mordaunt heard her n.
"I think," he soid, arter a pause, "it will be "eat to send her of ut once to a boarding-school." "What !" exolained his wife, in astonisbm
"Are you going to give up to her like that ?" "Are yoil tell you my ehject," said her hnehand. You Y Soehna
"Yes.
in India for the last thirty years
nd, as I beiieve, has accumnlatod a princely fortuno"
"Well" "
"This"
"This morning I receivod a telegram, datod Halifax, informing me that he had got thus far take up hio reeidenco here, and it is onr fanlt, take up we dont induco the wife, if
us handeomely in his will."
us handeomely in his will." Mordaunt, engerly.
"Yes, I eee," said Mre. Mo What a fino thing it will he for the dear girle," It is just ae woll that she elonid he out of the house. Thon there will be less obance of her coming into competition with our daughters. As Jane's inheritanee-though it will tronble me to Jane's inheritence-it will bo nething to what we raise the money-it may get from Uncle Joshna.
may get feom-let har go at onco-the farther of the hotter. I don't like tbe girl-and that's the thruth of it. I elionld feel hiso killing her if I thought ahe was likely to interfere with Sophis thought ahe was likely to interfere mith soph snd Annelte. How much do youthink your unole is worth ?" "Half a million, I have no douh ${ }^{\text {" }}$ Mraif a murdaunt's ejes aparlcled. Vieions of a oplondid house, in fine carriage and magnificen furuiture daneed before her imagination.
"I tremhlo get Jane of without delay" whe she should arrive before

sho comea." "Gend be

"Eond her up to me"
"Jane 1" aeid her ancle, abruptly, "would yon
like to go to boonding tohool 7 "
"Yocy Sho did not was the colla repl. sill nond. This phane of her unclés ehe regarded na a tandy juetioe.
"It is heet that no time ohould bo lost," suid
Mr. Mordannt, somemhist annoyed hy her manner. "Where an I to to etar to-morrow?" Whoro am I to go , eir?" "
"To Thave no dremnqulvania,"
 may go out thle anterrouon and and purchase " Trouk and the neceeary meterials for dreesee. Theey and the neceeaary meterinals for dreesee " cen be mado ap whion you have arrived."
"Vory will sir." Vang follt as mir. Jane falte as eager to go ns her wuclo and aunt iden of her going to boarring esthocl, but when they learmed thicir futhor's motive they heartly pproved
The next afternoon Jene hed started on her A day inter Unole Joshuaa arrived.

They were ell silting round the hroelifnst tathie emall and dried up hy Indian heat, appoared to enjoy thoroughiy the cordial femily circcle into which he bad stepped, All seomod to vie with ench otherin showing him ettentiou. Hows would he auspeet their motiveo to he interestod? "By the way," oaid he, "didin't your sister "Yee," Enid Mr. Morde
And where is eloo nount, uneasily.
"I have had the charge of her ever eince her mother a denth. She is now at boording school,"
"I he "I hope she is as eweet aud attraceifie es her mothor. I romember her ae a charrining gixl."

 has twrued out."
"You stortle meP", eaid Uncle Joshus, with an sir of ooncorn. "What is the matter with her?" "She has been very unroly nid dieobediont thom the first. She could never lee got to attenad to her lcesone She ago. We have hecn obliged to send her of to ato gige. We have hecn obliged to send her off to distant boarding school to sco if something can not he made or her.
"I am truly eorry to hear it-Mun's child toop murmured Unele Jo murmured Uacle Jotetue sorrowfuly, "As you eay, it would havv pained her poor mother to know how the has "Yes sin: it ber on But let na change the unpleasant eabject. We wilh hope fora change for the hetter," While this converation wee going on Bridget rupted Mrs. Mordaunt, but thought of a better

wat. way.
" 0 , you owld dinner!" "he said to hereolf, ment tuly hanking her fiot at her mietrees. "Won't $I$ expooe yer deeatoful doings !
"I'd like to ppalke a mord to yon, sir "" fell apon Uncle Joalhna'e eare in a etrong Hiborminn "coent, leterer in the dey.
"Indeed"" was the astonished ejeculation. Brlali, bay ond my my good girl.
Bridget did sey on. In a tone of imdignont eloquence ahe told Uncle Joahue the whole otory, how poor Jsne had heou snubbed End inl-treaed, and mede to work in the thitchen; how the heaed had heen eut off from all dodnationel made to consort with servante, untitintagee, juat before his arrival ehe had heen packed off to a boordingschool. Bridget tola how she had socrety foumd meone to stady, and with an eloquenee borr of triendishin. whioh lout nome of ito whom hicr aunt had bought to vo vility.
Uncle Jochuu listened in oilence. Unclo Jochuu Listened in oilence
"Where is this hoarding-pebo asted. asked.
"In
Bridget. aylvany," respond Itwill go there at once and see Jane. UI I Ind out your romad He Henmihile don't say anything ahout whero 1 have gone." ahout whero 1 have gone.
"Thet I won't,
"Thet I won't, your honor,", eald Bridget with Uncle Joehua make an nnexpected journey, hut reeieted all hinte to revenl hivide detimution. The oxplanation came in dae time.
Four day later Mr. Mordeunt reco lowing lettor:
"NEpHEW-Yo will ohberve from the date
this Jotter thut $I$ reeollod to eatiofy my mind 28
the trnth of

tbe poor child tho advantages of which your cruel parsimonon hae deprived heer.
i $F$ Thur 4
Mr. Mordaunt ernahed the letter in his fingers proachee, charging upon her this bitter disep pointment. She retorted, and a scene of harsh ailtercation followed. Jeno was avenuged.
Sephia and Annette, ao they walk along Broad-They kre ready to fawn upon her now, and are oagor to claim relationuhip. Jane receivee their avvances politely hut coldy. She cennot quite advances politely hut coldyl. Sho cennot quite forget tho pant. As for faithful Bridget, , Bhe oeeupien a prominent place in Unele Jodian's household, and is remunerated so hendsomely for hee gervices that aho posseees no less than three eill dresees, a white eatin bonnet in Lie latest otyle, and a gold hreestpin of mammoth proportions. and a gold hreestpin of mammoth proportionn:
Her ovident prosperity has led to overturee of nintieg nar evienent proserity has led to overtareo or aevaral damirera, hut Bridget like her ploce to wewll to he lured from hit.
sayge. "I wouldn't leave my ewate ellme?" che thress if I could have tin of 'em." And that seth the the nowation. So the questio

LILY'S ball.

Lriy gove a party,
And her playmates, th
Gally
To drett omene in thir heot
To dance at Lily's ball
Little Quelerer Primrose
Sat and never stirr'd,
, And, exoopt in whispers

Tulip fine and Dablin Shone in eille end eatin;
Learrued old Convolvulvua Was tiresome with his Latio.
Snowdrop nearly fainted,
Becanee the And went amay, hefore the reet, With घweot Iorget-me -not.
Paney danced with Deffodu, $\xrightarrow{\text { Rilloo with Violet; }}$
With protty Mignonette.
But, when thiey danced the country-dence, One oould searcely tell Which of theee trvo danced it hest-Cowelip or Heatherbell.
Between the dances, when thoy allt Ithought T'd nover soen hefore So many pretty facee.
But of all the pretty maidens Dering Lily wees to me The eweetest of them all.
And when the danoe was over
They yout down stairs to sup And each had a teete of Honeycake,
With dow in With dow in a Buttereup.
And all were dreseed to go eway Bofore the eeto of sun And Lile lye aeid "Good-Lye !" and gave $\Delta$ lies to every one.
And heflore the moon or Wer sbining overhend
Wero fiat tasleop in hed

THE THREE MISSES PINKERTON.

Y A. brack.
Tmene was Mise Sarah Pinkertou, Mise Lulast neme heing a corruption of her prona, the Astundanoe. Wheother her her onternal proper one hed had indeed felt that in his thix danghter suficient supply or not, I Reend daughter he had o at all eventa Dame Nature kindly toolk the hint and Mise Sarah (or, se I believe the fashion now mate it, Sadie) wae tall and thin, and from a kind desire on her part to place herself sire on her part to place herself on n level with oll Rround her, had contracted is hahit of stoeping whioh made her vory round-ahouldored. She was tobirty. Haik, hut and forty," hut enllow, slim and eince been searching for a manaly hand to guide her down the etree ceesffuly. Several times had her spirits heou Yo ogether for over hufore entering the matrimonind theam, thoy ignominiously becked out, and che harque amay frome the entrrance of the old waidg ehamnel, to wlici it was evident sle Mras drifting These disappointwents had eomewhat affected her disposition, hut she mas too proud to conifese tho trouble, and indidgnantly said: trouble, and indignantly suid:

They nower koew when they were well off, hut exThey nover knew when they were well off, hut ex.
pectod the wifo to bo alwaye ready at a heels or a bid. Alwaya with the ing, and Biddy hans gone off and left you with all tho housowrark to do, while sour rect to heaven on his departure, and only hronghit you hack in time to meet him ot the door on his retarn. Rememer, the poor thll down town all day, toiling hard ot reading the newropapere and piching his teeth in the eaey cheir, with Kib feet up on the deelk or ing sufticientif now and then to pay some old Molis fouru or tire cente for a eouple of eplendid pples, to epoil his appetite for tho dinner which hip. No, no! Sho did not want to he the slave of any man."

Neverthele
refused thet honor had the opportunity not have but would have lisped out the "Yes" 29 ewoetly se her neighhor.
Mise Lucinda was a little morsel of humanity, twenty-eix years of twenty-eix yeara of age and not weighing over ninety pounds. A moet notahle housemife, whet would never be found. Whew ! rhate e little scold withe
"Sarah Pinkerton," ehe would say, not at ell in awe of her tig sister, "I should he aehamed if I could not put the covers on the proeorve jars any better than you have done. Hore is this hlack eurant jam dropping all down on the shelf where day, end theee pseches I eball have to hoil over again, you tied them oo loosely that the air has got to them snd they are working like joarnesmen." Miss Lucinda had been more eueceasful than her sister, for once ohe had a lover and was aoon ter bister, for once ohe had a lover and was soon demeenor on hís part ehe ordered him to leeve the returned.
And now for Wies Bunty. There ie no gein-eaying the fact, thet alfhough she wes too fleneaying the fact, thet although she wes too fleohy for good proportione, she wae neverthelees ne for good proportione, she wae nevertheleas sweet a little dunpling as you could find, and perfect derling in the hargsin. Bleee her heart frightened off her lovers, soolding like Misa Luaffectionate, everyhody loved her. Indeed she hed no oocasion to ahuse the opposite sex, for even if they did not nhl want to mary her, there was not one emong them who wout not Was not one emong them who would trate any piece of folly on her sccount.
She wee ahout twenty-two yeare of age, though you would have gueeed her eighteen, with the you would have gueeeed her eighteen, with the rosiest cheeke and hlackest eyes imaginable. She hadnota bito of romanco in her, anddeclaredehe did not oare if she never got married ; she liked the boys first-rate as they were, perhaps a nearer ecqueintance might apoll her high opinion o them. Now elhe could go slating or coesting Whichever she pleaeed, and there was no one to tell hor the latter wee boyish and rudo except wes etill e child, andeeemedto consider though she too young for long skirts and high-necked waiste. But she was very well euitod to he thought so, for I overheard her one day elify ineinuate to her companious (lezy little thing), that it enved her a world of trouhle, sud ehe was afraid it wouldn't be propriety of being in hoys' bociety eo much, and of pie and hread-making.
But "uatieient unto the day is the evil thereof," she gaily seng as she left them, and tripped lightly up the stepe into the houne, and-into the lightly up the stepe into the houve, and-into the arma of a gentloman who was conversing with "Oh P" exclaimed Buat
"Dear me, you rude child" asid Sadie.
Watched her with an amnaed flooe, bs with her roey cheeks still rosier ehe hurried upstairs out of
"Then
"Then you think it would he imposiible for you socommodate me with a room, Mise Pinkerton ? "I am very eorry, sir, hut we have only one spare room, and that we always like to have ready for our friends hat I think, perhaps, our nextdoor neightor has one.
"Thank you. Good-
"Sadie, who Good-morning Ouriosity, who was that ?" piped little Miss
" Now top of the atairs. and I will heobliged to you ifhereafter thout, Bunty, and 1 will heobliged to you ifhereafter yon will learn Tumhling into vieitore' and leea like a hoyden. Tumhing into vi terious fashion."
not how, Sadie, don't be croas, you know I could now the rest. So now tell me what he wantod that'e a dear? that'e a dear?"
"He wented oould makted me to take him to hoard. What cannot imarine" think we wanted hoarders, "Well, hut who is he, Sadie?"
"Why, what a tease yon are. He is the new sef, here ie his card-Prof Arthur smitheon. He is a very is a very gentlemauly person, 1 don't think 1 have met one of the who hat pleseed the oo much. I shall get pape to bring him here to tea some time." "Ohl do. Won't we have tum, holl teke a inncy to you, Sadie, and hecomemy " Don't be sill

No; Ili try not to ty."
though he wae aot to, hat I thought he looked a society when I came in, and from what I psw of him he looked bike a first-rate old gentlemnn." had held ber breath to briag bluah whioh ahe Buaty's former words diod nway. "Tm elure he's "uot a dey over thirty." her irate Eister hastily dianppesred in the sitting room. "I gueee rul toles the next time I meet him. What new notion has that dear old Sudie got into her hend now, I wonder ?
True to Pinkerton to hring saruh prevailed upon Mr ing, and true to her word Bunty took a one evenat him, and inwardly pronounced him a mighty good-looking follow, and (as Sadie had gaid) not viously qnitted this wicked world, Misa Sarah, of solicitonely in honors of the tohle, inquiring unoe smiling sugar all the while. Miss Lucinde ond her soat opposite their gueat, and dealt out to him with a lavish hand her ohoice preeorves ond cakee, while her hlack eyea sparcled, and her glib fort, end fort, end ezoh word was a luillet or cannon-bail, way of ehell; while Bunty, the montwict hen hy set demure and immocent as a kitten, planning misohjef while ohe quietiy offered him hatter or oheose, snd peeping 日lily at him while the finish-
Alas grac
Alss 1 poor proteesor I Tribulation in pettiooets is getting poescesion of your. is getting poescesion of you. Everything is going wrong. Many, many visite he made to the houso after thet ovening, lint Bunty, knowing full ryell whom he really came to eee, and that it was no eccident which made her meot him every afternoon When taking her walk, no matter which way che ly forced the for fan and to the honse had enttled the question, end that anybody could see with whet reepnet and stmoet adoration he looked up to her, not dariag to offer bimeilf for fear of rejection, theraby losing her beloved eociety.
On the strength of this euppoeltion Sadie thaweil a litile from her dignity, throwing a portion of the enoourage hie (se the her manner, and trying to And thue eeveral monthe pseeed. Sodie feeling more end more sure of hor conquest, Buuty mennwhile feeding the flame, when one day ahe chanced pectition of a wedding in the family hefore long "Yes" of a wedaing in the family hefore long. hlush, "I think meelf he with an attempt to Wiahes before long. Thope make known his he in too greet a haryy for me to heve time to got a handsome ontfit, I think I had hetter hegin "mediately, to make sure."
"What 1 "eaid the astonished Sadie. "Why, my deer sister, I did not lmow that you, too, contemplated marriage. Do tell us who it is? Perhapplated marriage, Do tell us who have a douhlo wedding"
"A douhlo fiddleeticke Sambl
tell me you ontertain thought of mon't meau And as to the perenn I am epeaking of anybody. with a grain of eaneo can eee lyw desrly the profesoor loves me, though he has nevor had the whet is the matter? Bunty1 Bunty! Come here whet is the matter? Buntyl Bunty! Come here phor.
But
prickly reealied her seng. Miss Pinkerton's wath th epitheta, such es "perlidious wretah " "ty torrent roee, and the like followed, ahly replied to hy the teare and ebuse ensacd, An hour and a half of torrified at the storm she had helped to raise fly, to her room and locked the door. How it euded she nover knew, hut Serah and Lucindo were in vieihle during the remainder of the day, and for a week hardly spoke to one another, eacb, however, treeting the poor professor es their own property At leet one day Min mine ance ing very important, and with & lotter home, looll"My daughters," he seid, "I heve this hand ceived for one of you an offer of marriage from pereon whom Ihighly esteem"-Sazah end Laciudn immediately proceeded to look conscions-"End though loth to spare the love of either of you, yet, knowing I oannot almays he your etrongbola yet, knowing I oannot always he your etrongboli to lean upon, I must eay I trust it will meet approval, se he seemp very earneet about jitnhere they caet triumphant looks at eaoh othol "I at first determined to read the miseive aloud, hut on recensidering the matter cencluded to let the rightful owner use her own cencluded to let the rightfin owner use her own judgment"- both started forward to receive it, hut geve a hittl soream as Mr. Pinkerton quietly continued-" may dear Bunty, take it."
But Bunty sprang to her father, and olasping had lost a friend rather theol eohbed ae though she
"Why, Bunty, daw sure I do not wiilh you to marry him if you feel so This made Bonnty langh.

I guess I do, a little, pape
"Ony a litto?"
"Well,
"Well, yee, a Little more than a little. On the "If yon don't I thall eue you for hreach mise, my darling," said a manly voice at hor side.
"Yon "it is fall two monthe since that in his armes, given, and I shall claim its falifiment soon." Was there ever euch another doceitful child ? "uoth Mise Lacind.

Tre Siok Brionnd.-Heury Ward Beecher

Peteraburg Raiinoad. Rebel Mortar Battory.

Bobel Foit. Steples of Petorsburg and barned Honsea,
THE SIEGE OF PETER BURG-BATTLE OF JULY $30-$ XPLOSION OF THE MINE AND CHA

Battery of 9th Cosys in Position. charge on the enemy's Works by 'fhe' 9ah Corps. - From a Sketof ey axdrey MoCaluah.

SEASHORE FANCIES.

O prizesestr watere, rippling on the rand,

 Green and pollucid as tho bergl-stone, Cannting tberir cosselese hreozy moWbat onowy bitho foct at girlizh play
Have yo not kisted on Nc 0 waves, what foam around yon lonoly rock, Beding tho dietant torant with hosreor roar, Has not some ship, beneath the tompert's shocks, Gono down, a piteous wreek, to rise no moro? Lote in the mighty billows' wahh and divay,
What gallant hearts have ye not stilled todey? O dancing hreakkere, froesh from other seas, Wheroon tho ling cring, loving aunnhino amile
 Borno from the epico-grovec or hoon pelay
Whare duaky mands make morrimont alway-
Have ye not leved tbeik porfeet forms to-day ? O tossing hillowa, eome ye from aftar, Dimming the redienco of the nerthern otar Eleame
Upon the topp
Upon the toppling ieoberge, grim and gray?
Havo ye oot laikhed thoir frozen eidos to-day?
O Bea of Hro, whoes watere heave and roll,
Ye lavo ead wreciks und joyous yonth Ye bring sweet fragta ance to tho weary boul, And chill it with the hreeth of icy storms Hero, on tho ehore, we snile, and weep, sud pras,
O waves, clouno all our sins from as to-day

NINA MARSH

THE SECRET OF THE MANOR,
Munang de Pexz was no favorite with Mry, Marob, beoauso ho hatod elever and sprightly womon soa rule, and hand a elrong prejindice againet hor netion into the bargain; hut he always bohaved to her with marked respeet. High-born, hut poor, and elionsted by her long exile from thoee relatives whose raalk and inthuence must have dotormined her own poaition in the world, Medneme de Péne's situation wae one to the world, Mednme do Pene's situation was one to excite tho sympethy of every true gonileman, and ladiee alvayo walled up to the manor-honse, lot oarringe; but Mr. Harsh took oare that thoy door to recive them when they amived-a Madame de Pène was led hy lat to a sent on Mrre, Merrul's sofa, and then Gabriellc alid away to Ninn's eide. Theare was a strong friendship hetween those two, totally disaimilar though they were hoth in duppoition and tomperament, porhaps all the more on that ac, eoount. But there wae one great infranane in the the aftection each folt for the other. Gabriolle was fall of trust towerde especially towardo Nina, to whom rihe wwuld wiinimgly hase conidide a seerot afteoting her very life, if she could hute had life, if ahe could huve had any suoh; wherse日 Nina had no faith in womon at all, not evan a, had she beazu boro pressed, have confided in her noureet female friond. But still they were sincerroly attaclud to osch other, with a fondnees on Gahriele's sido which was roturned by a moderately tendor partielity on that of the other, Nina deriving & passable degree of of the other, Nina deriving a passable degree of pleasure from an intimacy whiol made the young Frencin girle life rosy with joy.
With a radiant gloam in her great velvet ayes, Gabrielle preseed tenderly to Ninnith eide, and was welcomod hy a smile. They could have e tuttle eoteg conversation together in their corner, for other gueeto were anriving, and diverted attontion rom their neighborhood First the Honorahle Lawrenco Vane strolled indoleutly into the room. Ho was inclined to he patronising and oupercilione, hut, catching wight of a auperior star from his hut, catching sight of a auperior star from his oma firmament, ho graciously oondoscended to modify his too-overpowering distinction, and fawned about Lord Gïlingham unta the earl turned upon him, and growled out some hrutel tanders excepting through ita efleots. Tho Houerable Cawroinoo hecoame saddanuly humble, and gave no one any trouble throngh the rest of tho evening. Lord avd Lady Bouggiton were the interasting eresture of forty, who was playing the young hride for tho fourth time, End seemed to have pronted hy practiee. Then came some noureauz riches-a Sir Barnard Bykes, with hie ouvecuzz Fiches-a Bir Barnard sykes, with hif over-droased wife and under-dreeeed daughtere.
 inge "loant to virtue's eide"-cempleted the party.
No booncr wore sul the guesta aseemhlod than No Booncr wore all the guesta aseemhlod than diunce was anyounced Nina had heome the Peno. The hittlo Freonh giric looked as artless as child, and teoned quito os engaging. sho anco as to bo quite a curiosity in his way. Oa-brielle thought a long heard an aheoluto sign of urielue thought a long heard an aheolutosign of patriarchal yoars, and referred to Cyrile remi nisconces ae worthy of all reepect from thei antiquity alone. Her compenion Wras eufiejently amneed at her innocent impertinenea and eprigat

Iy eallies, bnt he quite intended to make profit out of her neighborhood, and elilfally drav the out of her neighborhood, and akilfally drow the conight losd to some revelation of Nina'y sentimente and tastes. The young French girl looked nelance at him throngh a long, blinding Eweep of aeknace at him throngh a long, hlinding ewiep silten laelhes. She was evidently measuring b ground, and trying to discover what interont he bad in her reply. Bnt Captain Marah, divined the ond in her reply. Bnt Captain Marah, dinned th careleses smile.
A eimple country girl lase no chance with a man of the world. When she hae displayed null her of the world. When she hae displayed nul her little arta nad wiles, and feels that her hittle etockhitte arta nind wiles, and feelhs that her httle etock-in-trade is qnite exhanated, oho io jnet as far paseivo all tho while. To begin anew would be her fair vide all unguarded," quite at the mercy of tbe vietor. Poor Gahriello'e imocont httle weapons were rapidly blunted by her advoreary'sínening, and were rapidly blunted by her advorsary'sieneing, and ehe was soon, or eppeared to he, hlurting out all ehe knew with the most cherming confidenee in the worla.
was heautiful. Did he know whut Lappened about her the otber day?
No, ho did not, and cared very little hesides, to judgo from tho attention he paid to the saimi on his plate. At the same time he had no ohjection his plate. At the aame time he had no ohje.
to lending half an ear to her candid prattle.
"Woll, first of all, do yo
"No, indeed, I do not."
"How etrangel She is quite the character of the neighborhood, a wicked, oumanigg, hardoned old souk, who hsan't the least hit of heart that any ond soul, who hasu't the least hit of heart that eny one can find out. All thase who hare dealinge with her ehe chots, some of the villsgeree ehe in timidstes, sad the rest she what mema calls ' om school for embryo điplomatieto." notbor sidelong glenee as keen as petulant. "We hate the old woman, Nine and I, heonueo ehe ioe servile, aud begine to flatter us end tolls us how pretiy wo are directly ehe sees tie."
"And you don't like to be tald
"And you don't like to be told you are pretty ? "Cla dipend", anawered the French girl, with a little shrug of her graeeful shoulders. "Not hy becauee we understand why it io dene.
"But if I were to toll you how charming I theurgt you, would it afford you ony gratifiontion ?"
"It
one stont persen, er tro more alenderly fashione "I have mide a great discovery to-night," bsid Gabrielle at hast,
"Well, what is it " inquired Nina.
ith your beatifu captain is deeperately in love "Nonsense, Gsbrielle", said Nina, her rolee flush could malse it.
"I assure you it is an absolute fact. I snepectod thast it would be so, and to-night I have gained tho eor did it?
"I don't hoow-how should I "
"Well, it was cleverly managed, though ehouldn't say 8o, perhaps. I told him some long day. Yory forfa shook. a sharp, oudden stort that the "Whet's the matter?" exclaimed Gubrielle nrionely. "Are you in pain, or did I startle Neither, that is all."
"Well , Gahrielle. Go on ; a pin prioked me, "Well, it was a rich etudy; you should heve oeen 1 Captain Marsh was careless and a little insolont at first, protending to he grently occupiod with his dinner, and hardiy deigning to glance my way ; hut I mede the whole afririr appear so myy-torious, declaring that you were in disguise and afrsid of being seen, etc., until I paled the ageny up with your stealthy koock at Dame Oldum'e up with your stealthy koock at Dame Oldum'e door and euddon ontry. 'And then what do you door and euddon ontry, 'And then what do you think I heard her gay?' was my conclntion, and I think I heard her say ?' was my came to an improssive pause," Nina tried to opeak now, but her voice died away in her throat, and her hand, which had fellen down hiplegely at her side, was clenched and hlue. She had jnat strength enough to sit upright and listen, that was all.
Gahrielle looked puzzled. She dared aek uo questione, hut ehe wont on mechenioally, without sny pleaeure in her recital.
"He had dropped his kuite and fork, and was I sm aure his heart etood etill to listen, and ho wis quite white from the earneet strain of attontion in whieh I hold him. 'Well, what ' he al most gasped at last. 'Good-morning, dame ; I ander you out of the room,
"Nins heaved e great eigh of relief.
"Waa that nill" she inquired, in a doep, hoarse voice. "Yon didn't toll him anything more?"
"ice. "Yon didn't toll him anything more?"
"What more could I tell him, Nine? That wa
"Oh, Gahrielle 1" enid Nins, dxawing a long bresth, "you did frighten me terribly. I woald have given nlmost anything rather than Oaptain Mareh, abovo evoryhody, should havo known that I weit to Dame Oldum'e that day

And why ?"
wrmured Nina, ovasively; "hat I may, perhape, let you know when he is gone."
Gabrielle ssid ne more, hut she drow her own oonclusione, and tha frith of them was that ohe had bean nearer the truth than she had supposed in attributing eome mystery to Nina; but her im-- pression was that this myetery conoerned hoth Nression was that tha myetery conoornce con lovepassages hetween them, which, for some incompreheneible reqson, they doeired to couceal. This eeeresy ohilled Gabrielle's affeotion, whilst it aharpenod her witt. Sbe withdrew into a corner and watohod the game, and it seemed strange, even to hersolf, wbat hitternees and auapicion towarde Nima took the place of her Sormer love and truat Meanwhile Jaek Dayor had posacesed himelf of the vaent chair by Niann's side. Jack Was of the vaeunt chair by hian's side, Jack was his brain till it aohed; then he occupied himself equeozing on his glovee. This oporation afforded him some relief, su it might appear a tolershle eshim some relief, ss it might appear a tolershle escunse for silence, considoring the diffieulty of the undertaking, hut whon once it was concluded Jack felt more uncomfortahlo than ever. He got redder and more fidgety every moment, until Nina womanly compasaion was aroused in his hehale, "Have you been hunting much lately, Mfr. Jack's face brightened immediately.
"Well, you beo, Mise Nina, this inn't the country
it used to bo for thet sort of thing; the farmers ara so deu-I mean so very tetchy, and heve put up no end of wire fences on purpose to kill the horsee and hreat our necks, But we'd a jolly rum, as times go, yeaterday. Nan was thera, and got ns timee go, yesterany. Nan was thera, and got the brush, after the pluekiest riding I ever som." And Jaok glowed with hrotherly pride and satisfactien se he opele
"We all krowr wh
"We all know what a splandid
"Tiss Dawe Ls, " "Well, you bee, Mise Nim kind
"Well, you see, Mise Nine, I stuck to her when ohe was yonng, and there'enothing like that; sad Nan's uncommon clever at anything. The way shic amuees herself ie wondcrful. I alwaya thought ladies were quito down in the month and fidgety in wet weether, but ehe isn't ; and the hest part of it is ethe amuece hersel with nothing et all. Jack stopped here to leugh and was honeotly olatod at his own sueeces, never having found hali so much to say to Nina in all his life hefore. He began to think he had underratedhisownconvorsathility, powere, and hitherto kept him, from shining in and aocioty. Jack wer going to hegin again hefore the etenm went off, ae ho mentally expressed it, when eide, and hent his head to whisper eome exaggerated amompliment in her ear.
Hameant todo the agreashleto Nina, he hadtokon
what to punish Jock Dawee for daring to poach on his manor. He began to launch ent some of his bittor, hiting plessantries at the youngequire. Jacle bore them patiently onough at first, becaues he savr marke of difepprobstion on Ninn'a face. He Was determined not to be bullied into a retreat, was determined not to be bullied into a retreat, and Lord Gillingham was equally dotormined that ho should find it convonient to shift his quartore, nd that, too, before long.
Lord Gillingham whis not a pan to remember priviloges hifo renk beetowed, and the opportanition it gave him for riding roughehod ovpor anybody that eriaged in hie peth. He conld appear very that eriaged in hie path. He coold appear very courtly when beliked, ae, also, exoendingly coaree, courtly when be liked, ae, also, exoes dingly coarse, which made it impoeeible for any gentleman to quarrel with him, unless ho mado up his mind to answer in kind. Jaek Darres ent doggedly silent, and quite as obstinate in hie purpose as the earl himself. He lordelip grew savage at last, aceording to hia nsuel habit when opposed; he eprend at it gignifienils to Jek's bulke, glaneed said, in a tone of amooth insolence "Would you ohlige me, Mr. Jeck dar, with one of your eaeb-off gloven? I want it for my eehinet ouriositien.
"Yes, it is & pretty hig, stoat hand," anawored Jeek, b sudden gloam of flerooness creeping into hie eyes, "but it's nething to my arm. I believe I I could fell an ox without elanking in my shoess. In was at Roydans fair one day-not in such good company as I might have heon, purbape, hat still honest lade enough, as honeot ae lords, maybeand one man, who was the worse for liquor, bogan imitating the note of a jaeldaw, and pointing me out to tho erewd, and jeering atmo. Now, I stand most thinge, except being made most chinge, except boing made game ort, 60 , I drove my fiet into his faee and knooked pretty well
all his front teoth all his front teoth ont, bosides damaging one eye ;
and now nohody eares much to molest me, peer or and now nohody eares much to molest me, peer or pesant, for Pm not apt to bo partial at all-ouly, the other, it ie for a lord, when it oomes to fighting becanse they give in eoouest, and are more ossy to hest",
"Flling oxen and knocking out people'e front teethare neareoly drawing-10om acoomplishmento, it seems to me,"
"And I den't
I was invited, and profee tohe a drawing-room man. I was invited, and so I expected they meant mo to hore firet, for a good dimner's ono thing and good company's another.
And the young squire roso, aqueezed Nina's hand, with an aeeompanying, ghanee, oarnestly hand, with an aceompanying grunce, oarnestly apologetie, as nuch as to say, "I did not moen snything against you and yours-I anything agginat you and yours-I am only proteoting myself:" then, witb asort of rough dignity it was more esey to reopeet than to ridioule, ho crossad tho room to fotch bie nietor, went, with her on his arm, to bid his hoot and hoatese goodpight, and quietly lotit the room.
"What an insufierable boor "" oxelnimed his lordahip, hut not bofore the door had fairly cloeed lordahip, hut not bofore the door had fairly cloeed upon Jack Dawee. "I don" shortly.
And she left her sest at his side and joined Lady Boughton and Madame de Pène.
Lord Gillingham gare vent to Lord Gillingham gave vent to a mppreweed osth and rose toe. As be was horne homeward in hi sorlyy-cueshioned carriage he docided, without diffieulty, that he had not speeded so muoh in his wooing es he had led himself to expeot.

chapter v --daze oldeva rab a hittle even.

Trs village of Beechwood wes shadowed toWards the east hy a scmi-circle of gaunt old hills.
Most of the lahorere' cotta geaneestedcloes benesth these, glad of the sheltor from keon winde in winter snd the hot sun in summer. They werthey all belonged, having the genins of order in high degree-and were eo neatly twinned, each one hy its opposite neighhor, that Beechwood could hoest quite a respectable atreet.
The Red Lion Inn was the
The Red Lion Inn was the last heuse in the village, and hud formerly been advertised hy a flaming eignpast. A sendy lion, with a golden laming eignpost. A sendy lion, with a goldon mane, wao seen heating the sir with ite forepmws, and opening wide ite huga jaws at the evidont risk of dielooation. "A terrihle rampagions hrate" he was olristened hy the little hoys of the last generation, who stole seared, hat elasmed, glances at him as they pasaod hy to thoir games on the common. And certainly he did not look as if human veal would at all offend hie polate $\rightarrow$ rather the contrary. Mede diehee were quite out of hie way; ho preferred bittek aus naturel to the ounningest ragoont that oould he devisod, and, instoud of having hie jointe carved at the eidehoard, he kept thom under hie own parw. But the lion was kept thom under hie own paw. But the lion was getting old now, and oould not piok a hene as be getting old now, and could not piok a hene as he used to do. The hoye knew thie, and their courage roee with its weakness. They tell $u 8$ of a race of Indiane who, when their fathers grew old, and conld no longer follow the chase or go to war, immodiatoly slaughtored them and diehed them up. The hoye did not dish up the hon, for the eimple resson that he wae not compoeed of digetable materials, bnt they put him to a perpe tual ehame, sud otherwioe maltrested him, unti at last he was ee hattered and salduod thet he had only two fore-quarters and a half nn aye with only two fore-quarters and a half an aye with Which to hid definnce to bis enemies.
igzag path, whieh ledi, paet the poet-oflice, to httle cottage perched on the very eummit of th hill, and reecmbling more the eyrie of amme hird of prey than the abode of s human creature. This was Deme Oldam'e eastle, aud the rendezvous of all the go tongues. tongues.
Dame woman, with emall reporenco for any anthority bumau or divine. Self-interest wat the governing prinoipla of har lifa. She deapised weakly paople, her hifo, and could
whon he mas young, and perhaps better, for,
he wne wont to any, she kuer moro tow to begia She whe wont to nay, she kuew moro how to now son to make her time go the furthest.
Dami Oldum was rather Damu Olanum was rather an important person in the village, and tho entre of ber house was con the village, and tho entric of ber house was considered a grant privilege. Her parties were almys select; hat it may he noted that no one Alwys getect; hat it may he noted that no one who conld not in some way compensate for the exponse incurned for her ontertainment, itber in the information ahe conld eupply, the drantagos sbe oonld insare to her hosteese or the amusement eho could aford. Little Rooe or tbe amusement tho coold afford. Lithe Roese, hor soon Ben's hetrothed, was unwillthgly exompt from these conditions, and oaly hrought her hlushos axd prettiness to the feast, thereby grently conducing to Ber's enjoyment at the expense of the rest.
Dame old Dame olddm't cottage was always neat and trim, bnt to night it lookod unusundy gay. She trim, bit to-night it lookod unusundiy gay. She bad pinced a fow chinn ornaments on the mantel bad piacod a fow chinn ornameents on the mantal piece, and, with her best ton-ervice displayed on seemed to mean inhospitable welcome for her Meraht b, was the irat to arrive. Biza wore ared siltr droes eibo with yelow, bad long pink streamera fowing down her hack, and hrooches ond bracelets ad inffititum. Eliza was a person of oducation, ond eutoff the tips of her worris hy way of sbowing she had been to a gremmar-schoo of sbowing she had been to a gre and was acomatomed to good socioty.

"WWHL, 'Liza," said Dame Oldum, giving hor an place ?"
"Thank you extremoly," anamered Eliza, "but they are not what may he oulled particulur saluhrious. Miise Nina has heen a poor ereature ever ince her illncese; that keepp her haces," something on hor mind, and "What should sile have on her mind?" saia Mise Wolls, o bitlle soornfuly; "ehhe can hany anything she takes a fancy to, nnd is made as nuchof hy the gentsfoiks as if sho wifs a queen; boeides, it's ns clesr as noondhy to any one that's aides it's as close as noonday to any one that's give anything to have her."
"And what doess bhe ery to him ?"
"Not much as anybody con ind out; bnt the's ot a person to show ber Foclings ; ghew was alwaya not a person to &how her folings reeervated sincel can remembor."
"And the two gentieman staying there now, are "That's mhat none of limes they seem to be, and sometimes they don't sem And there's nothing partio'hnt orr myster'ons-like in the manner of eithor of like in the manner of eithor of 'm ?" "
" What ehould there be?" And Eliza opened wide her pale gray eyes, az Oh, nothing, " answored Dame Oldam, a trange, erafty smile hovering about ber thin But eervants are elevererer than their masters take them for, and see what is goling on underhand vithout wanting any teliing; that was my meanng. But now yon'll bit down, won't yon? We ing. But now yon'l bit down, wont shall have Jim's company, I sappose?
"Thank you; he'll be here, punotual at eight
"ciock. Ho ean't got away before, bnt he"ll come more as if she wero commenting than ${ }^{\text {tioning: }}$ "so he

"So he muny he as far as looka go, but hishabits "What's the matter with them ?"
"He's too fond of the 'pullio' for my taste," long buack atreanmers.
"You see, young men will be young men," was the eurront coneolation Dame oldum yolunteared
"So "So they may be for aught Icare," retorted the "soung they maty me fith for aught teare," retorted the
 "inal pick and elioosese pretty well whore ahc hiteg." "I hnow that,", snswerred the old wouna, with one of hor funning rmiles; and has plenty of gamption."
thor, eharply.
And Dame Ol
or recont for her reng that the wound was cover her eqnanumity; then she replenished the fire, and aot the kettle, hisesing, amongst thi loga.
This cheerful sound fell pleasuntly on the bousomaid's ear.
"A eap of tea is a refreehing ihing," she re" rma alwaya gled of my toa now, for our moals up oomplain sadly ahout limits in their heer."
"Hplaim sady a
"Hows that?
"Why you
ame, she' a been e, since this last housekeoper ours, Not tbat wo haven't enough, and seo on, but got poultry now of it isn't na it used to be; wo only and we don't have anything hot for hroalfast, which I miess in partienlar, for my eonstitation is ono that requires a great deal of support.'
"Do you hear any tall of giving a ways sonp this winter?" inquired the old woman, prosently. "If Weut any charity thilag.
mother, sharply. "If a poor lone widder-woman, who has worked and slived all her life, doeen't mant such things, I don't know who doas, Bon, a great, stalwart fellow of six frot high, pnit np his colossal shoulders, and gave a little eignifoent whistlo; then ho took his hat, saying he was going 2 bitto ray dowo the him and thould be hack in a few minntes,
"So he's atill sweet in that quartor," inquired or, rather, remarked, Miss Wolls when Ben hage person had diauppeared throngh the doorway. "I wonder he does't look higher, Im Way. ", sure,
They
and Eli
They wore on Mrs. Oldum's gore subjeot now, "It's no use san reming iod of tbe fact harehly; "yon candit alter thinge. Mren are ail fools whore the women are concermed. If they oan get hold of a toco with a little pink about it their mothers, or anybody else, may go to the workuy for vhat theylu hold out a hand to sive 8 mind to tit," she edded, with a bittlo complhcent glance at the chint ornanients and well-filled hoard, "a-going to throw himself away on littl . hussy like that, who's got nine brothers and sic tera, a hailing mothor, and a father with no gump-- tion at all. It's enough to manto one forget one's mauners, and rog'tar smenr. It he'd choose you, now, I ehouldn't have minded. Idare Eay you'vo made some bttlo savings, and you've been brought up in a way as would hring eredit to eny fainly; up in a way as would hring erodit to sny fainly bat es for her, I could
But here wordd failed Damo oldam, or expediBut here worda failed Dame oldnm, or expedi-eney disoiplined her temper, for she came to a sudden paise.
"But ooolan't tomething be done to put a stop pliment to loraelf. "It's a slame to nee such fine young man as Mr. Bea making so mean bimsclif na to condescend to $a$ common laboror' bimachif ne to condesend to a common leboror's deughtor. If he oculd be mide to aee that eho want bo
"Ho woulda't helieve it, she always looks as if hutter wouldn't melt in hor mouthn "She's very hypocritic to my mind,", said Mise Wella, spitefully; "and as to her looks, I don't At this moment Bea heart by the hand. Mies Wells rose and mado her a ceremonioua inolination, whidst the old wo Poor little Roes gave a wistful, saddaned glance up into hor lover's fhee, and presed cloeer to his up into hor strong arm.
"Never you mind, Jittle ono," said the great fellow, bending down to her witb eyee of earnest

"rim suro Fm very glad to see Xise Rose," dasia he housemid, with an nasinnating smile on her you are well, mis.
But Dame Oldum still kept a sallen silence.
"Td better go home, Ren," whispared Roe

"Then I say you sha' n 't," answered Ben, with despotio tendernees. putting down and riding ovor rough-shod as I agreekho to them an I invites as mell a to then shic invitce, why we'l part compeny, that's all.
There's a cotiage to let down street, and then there'll be nothing to leep us from being married at once,"
Dame
De
"Yee, and foraake your poor oh him.
has worked the skin yor her hoones to mothep, a who over your hend; you'ra a protyty lad, you gre"'
"I don't want to forsalfe you, mother ; I ouly want you to behave pleasant to Rose, and mulke her weleome when Rhe eounos to the house.
Dame Oidum adruanced int Dame Oidum adranced into tho middle of tho in her teen old faee, then sthe made an elaborate eurtsey.
"I am very glad to see yon, miss, and thank you for eoming," sho hised at Rose through her toothloes gumb
"Thank You for heving me, dame,", enswered Butte Rooo with groat sweetness, and seeing her satisfied, Ben, who had a certaiu fear of his mothor, and, moreover, was too nsture to take the trouble of quarrelling if b oonld help ite, protended to he satisfied too, und helped Rose to remove her thingg.
She was a pretty eroatur She was a pretty eroaturo- almost a ohila.
Her boondo hair danced in wayes about her aine foroe, the doep vialeted eyea stoling oly geanees at you from under the sweoping hrown Iashes. In of an amethyst in her tender ey es. Red.lppped, even-featured, with the brilliancy of health on her oven-featured, with the brillaney of health on her elueeks, and the unehacllod freedom of naturo in her supple limhss, was it to bevondered that great down with a species of admiring worahip on the moet favor of this ohild?
Beu had often stestrhily compared his hand with hers as it nestled in his hrond plim, contonted hut tremalous, and he marvelled in his stout, honeat heart how anything could have boen mall and weak. Ben's passion Ben had solemnly promisod himsolf that, when Rose belongod to him, those fraill fingora, redden-od with tbeir coarse toil, Ahould have perfeot reet, and that Rose should gain moro from his vigor of arm than the protection promised.
one that posightion in as bpite of men means an enviable Presontly other gueats arrived, hnt they all took their tone from the miftreas, who was too strong in her wicked eraft to he hot at deflanee dy ordinary peoplo. Riose ate hut little ; zander cueh a nary pooplio. Rose ate hut ditle ; under sueh a battory of envious eyes she oould ouly sigh and he silont. Dame

she could not he accustomed, and, therefore, had no right to expect. But Rose wae rery patient and gentlo hy nature, and ehe would not have uttared a compliant or alown any resentment for the world. There was notbing sbo bo mpeh feared as any hreach between Ben and his mofther. She would have heen very misorabhe, ouly that her lover's great hand wonght hera now and pressingly of his foolings, that all the rist was ndurable after that.
When tea was over the table was promptly
eleared, and a dirty pack of ourds produeed cleared, and an dirty pack of oards produced.
Mise Wells kindy volunteered to toach them oon forgotten in the ascitementers. Rose mae and, on Jim's arrival a little later, the fon raged of fast and etrong that Robe could venture to mix ull her nuts with Ben's, and oven ehow him each oard, consulling him samnstly as to how much the ought to estake.
Luck favored Rose, as if to apite her tormentors. and how mastonishing how orten she had vingtel-un and hurned out of the ir deel ; until at last, ae Mliss Wella whispered to hor neiechbor There was no doubt but what she did it out of The on purpoes.
The game did not proceed very rapidly, as most tronger in detruction treak at addition, spd were often innocently waiting to he pain whey they had excoeded the orthodox number by nine or ten. Bat Misis Wells kept her aharp cyes on all, and under auappices oroditors reopived their
due. At hall-past nine a hottle of homemade wine was put on the tabie, nocompanied by the romains of the plumcake and another ditish of

tart.

Rose was the frot to go, becsuse, as ahe whisup lste after his day's work. Bon stealthily filled her pookets with the nuts they had won to gother, knowing how deeply this unexpected treat would , knowing how depply this unexpected troat would rojoice the heorts of her little brothers and eiatera at home. Then Rose put on her sida siatera shawl, almost ashasmed of their timplioity, bittie knowing that she, in bor neat but common things, look far more like e lady than the othere in their flaunting fuery. At the hast fose let go of Bon's faunting fiuery. At the last Rose let go of Bon's nrm and went to Dame oldum, who received her arm and went to n galten illonco.
"Thank you for inviting me," said the sweat
 But fron the free breath drawn outside, ae she grasped slmost nervously at Ben'e arm, you might havo divined the unspoken thought in Roso's hoart. Hor step was buoyant now, her laughtor resdy and unrestrained. Ben could see by the moonlight thist all the roees by the moonhght thst all the roses had come bseck to her oheel, freshened hy the stiff night breeze.
"It has beon pleasant coming and going with made everything seem nice. I oan't got out otben you know, becauso mother wante me so badly at bome. But oid, Ben!" sho suddenly addod, "how hoavg my pocket is, and hoov it swings againet ny side ol What oan be in it?"

"TE's

Ben looked as if hou've put there for a trick. meannees, whilst Rose dag her little eager hand into her pocket, and hrougbt it out again full of nuta.
"Oh, how plessed the ehildren will hel" ehe oyously exelaimed; "there's such a lot! I joyously exelaimed; "there's such a lot! I wanted to take a fow, but I was afraid of what wanted to take a yow, but say, and you must have done it, Ben. You are slways so good to me; I wish I knew how be kind to you. ${ }^{n}$
"You are a kind bittle one; you do more for me than anybody hes ever done yet-you keep me straight. I used to epend all my ovehings at me straight. I used to epend all myy ovehings at the 'puhio' hefore we got acquainted, and now I haven't set foot inside the door for over six thuiastically, "andthen Pa build you a house like Squirro fitarsh's, nad you ahould go about dressed in aillsa and astins, with a greet golden orown on our hoed, and you shouldn't so mueh as lift your ittle finger, but have lords and ladies to wait on you like servante, you should! You're handsomie and pretty-behaved onough for a queen, any
"But I don't want to he one, Ben. When I linnera to get, and all your sewing to do, I shall equito happy; and so I am now, ouly there are mother so ailing; but I lerow it is God scands us weh things, and we've no right to mumblo at them."
"You neyer do grumble, Rose; leastwaya, I never heard you," baid Ben, who was as truthful "ever heard you"
"I try not: hit sometimes I foel as if I should like things to be better, and then I think of yon Bon, and all your kinduess, and I feel ashamed of年ing down-hourted. But here we aro at homoploase luock very gentle, in eene we ahould wako mon't bear any molicos ahout to-night, will you?" pleaded Rose, as ho stood good-hye. "I shas'n't."
"You're an angel, if ever there was one," answered Ben, stooping to dram her oloso to his wrarm, honest hgart. "God hloss you, Rose."
"And you too, Ben.
Oh1 it don't eignily ahout me ; P'd rather yon
And Bon
And Bon felt ao nahamed that the groat tears of ove overitiowing lia eyes should be seon by nont man, that he dodgod round the eorner aud disappeared, jnat as Seth Woodman opened the door and let his daughter into the houne.

A Dhame Beri-Queen Elizabetb's portrait.

FIREFLIES

Tas June, and all tbe lowland swamps
Are rioh with tufted reede and Are rioh with tufted reeds and ferne, That rise when twaporousht's orimson hurne And as the doepening duak of night Steals purpling up from vale to beight,
The wanton firefles show their fitful ight,
Soft gleams on clover-hlooms they fling, And glimmer in eroh shadowy dell, Fell, as of old a Pleind fell ; And on the fields hrigint gems they strow, And up and down the meado the foreat wander to nod fro.
They store no hive nor earthly cell,
By dey sip no honey from the rome Nor anght of uninown they dwell,
Yet, when the nisht npon gite sisclose;
Cals out the murk and misty dnmps,
They pierce the shadows with their shining lamps.
Now yo, who in life's garigh light,
Unseen, unknown, walk to and
When Death shall hring a dreendese night,
Mey ye not find your lemps aglow?
God worke, we know not why nor how,
And one day lights, close hidden now,

FOREICN NEWS.

The Queen's speech proroguing the British in the American elvin war
The Houre of Lorde lod finally deele int ond Yelverton'e marringe. That indomiltabio woman ba scothand hor delor. of meving the case in Scothand.
An armietlee for nine monitin hed been agrood on be-twren Deamork and Augtria and Preatio, wioce Gov.

 The French preas worropmuch annoged and surprioc
ot Lord Palmoraton declining to recogniee tho ompire th

N HONEST DEACION.
Deacon N-was an honest old oodger; a con wotud occastonally get ex ciodingly " mollow,"" nnd Amost every Sunday of dimner he would fodulge in hie favoritite cider brandy to such an extent that it wue with dificuly be reached his pey in the equirete, One Sunday morning the paracn told bia

Of couroo o consternation in the congregation wre the recult of the bonet deacen reaponion however, the coming wath.

sootod himbelf
"And now,

 didrecerod him:
ne conllod oq mire.
tp? I did when
The new loan offered hy the Secretary of the

 Ftort netwern a BuLL AND AN Elaphani-- Thie Cont

 \%

THE BATTLE OF PETERSBURG.

 We give no inconsiderable space to-day to portraying the vivid seenee of the explosion of Pleassant' portraying the vivid Bcenee of the explosion of Pleessant'smine and the oparstioneo of the ormy after the eneomy' works had been burled into the air.
On our double pace will the found On our double page will he found a fine panoramio the backerround, ncar the coatre, may he seen the spiries of Petershurg ond the stark ruins of houses dentroyec hy our hombardment. The Poternharg railionod, on tho left, mey he noticed and followed, as it appronihes the line of the enemy'e works, with their . Orts frowning deflance. Our own line it seen nearor in with bettorice

The keat heolor fuan necumber roposantuton of tho
 becen memeat meaten our charge ir mane, woula anvo ancem.

nt of this place. It in all over now, snd thuse's no ns lioting a feliow etick bere. Come, talse me oat gulolk,
 "One of the churging ofteers, noticing the dirt move

 urvive"

PARIS FASHIONS FOR AUCUST
Owns to the absence of the Imperial Court Oom Parif, and the departure of many familice for the considered se the Parie fashions for August must he connidered as those rather of the Digpursion than of that favored locality whtoh generally gives an limpules

to fonovation. Newrtholees, the pecular stamp of tho Partidenne will pot fall to be recognieed oven at hundroda of leargues from the cepithl and thongh ahe may refga with less eclat, her influonco will not be felt tho levs during the time whicn obe may bo regaried a the leets daring the umo whan ebe may be reparied
 thas adopton of rach toilittes ne
Athough cany of werr, theso 1 ybt eostumes cro no withont their pocaller complleations ; and, to be alto gother graconal, requiro eare in the evelection and arrawement of the conose for ornament In andition to the ordiniry dumoition to patroniso fonlerd toon, nocconling to trio cap rices of tro nodisto. Indeed

tee muiutantio

 tom Lterar plececit in moxik

SENDING SEEDS AND PLANTS EY MAIL
Ture late oct of Congress in authorising the eonding of seeds, plants and cuttings by mail ot a low rate of postage la one of no wmall importance to tho grent mass of the people, extended es they are over 80 wide a diatrict of country. It is often dificalt in many parts of the country to procure freah gorden Eveds, cutorder them by oxprees, even on express roates, the charges in many instances will exceed ecveral times the Value of the thinges ordorcd. But the hato act of congrens nuthorikes tho ending of soeds, cuttinge, eto, os so low a rete of postage as to bring themwithin the Tbe law epeciîce "scods, outtings, balhe, roota and aciona" whieb may be cent in yaclagen not excenoding four pounde in weigat, tio epcciced limits of the haw, at orate or positgo or two ceats for every four ounec, or tho sinme for any ndaltional fraction of four ounces, prepaid by ftampe

Vooptabie Liffe.-It has heen calculated phames of the veretation of tho prodecessor. Efrzer or Liong.-Dr. Moore, the metaphy-

FUN FOR THE FAMILY. NEwGpMen people are proverhilly temperate eo well si virtuoum Wo blieve one of the crat uid mquest retarnoda jury that tbe deceased came the the On smill nives to lament tho End of his, $\triangle$ oentlievan, on hoard a steamhoat with his aumily, was ceked by nis children, "What mado the ont go when when begre themarevy, minuto doacription

 A gesmbiman was once argaing with a Scotch

 "ehow mo the manu that can convince menn" Mrk. Partiniton, "high living doespt't alway brine it arandfuther.
A rew daye since I was sitting with Mr . Daw,
he lawyer, in his office, in Court square; a cient oswe
 "sitato, and I want to us even with him."

 Nom ?"
"teblckeoper ron lied: "Thirty ahilinge,
"H

 Cooze, once performing in a country town,

 IT is said there are "tricks in all trades," and Wo believe it Hore ia a development in this sidrection, whiob the reader can suda to his present $\begin{aligned} & \text { tock of ficts } \\ & \text { proving the truth of tho old suingo }\end{aligned}$

And why not a fat plig
$\because$ Crause, you eee, thay
Cause, yon Re, th
Zork noerket tometimes.
IHow iof
-W Why, you see, sume of thom west country dealer

 but there an't to beart and subbtance in it. You carry one of em ere crittere hompe, and calculsto you've got in
but

A handome young lady being asted if she gave oliina, repuled:
gave o lies, repled:
"No ; but 1 oflan have one atolen, Sone people allow their affairs to hecome so dernaged that thelf lisbities quito go ont of their munde.

"Union is not always strength," as the
eailor exid when he esw the purser mixing big rum Love generally makes a wise man act like a fool, and interest oometimes make ofool act like

wiso man.

A Lawyen's Elooguence.-A young American
 pornut, with mpanity and without pokes, then-yeq itheil, cinetited havo our forefatbern fougbt, and bied, oud died ind veln."

"Mother, where's Bill ?

"Mly bon, do not let me hear yon say Bill again

"Ob, gek , seo him now, Bat, mother, what make the ducks have sooh brow willimis?"
" Go out to your brother direcoly, you witle scomp, or III box your carb,"
A wowas had a man talken hefore a magis trate for coming into her bonse, and putfing lior in ica

 "I sAx, Samho, can yon anawer dis conun-derfum ; snppoes I fib yon a botto of whatce that wit

A Cocknex conducted two ladies to the oh

 A man may very well afford to have gray hoirs when a whio or aweetheart to gettiog too blind to distin wash them,
 and forty,", expocting ber husbund to return to Lo Louion by ocertan triin, wont to tho depot to micot him. Aftor
 U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

The Socretery of tho Treserary gives notico that nubscraptions will be rocalved for Conpon Tremaury Notes, payablo thre jeare from August 15th, 1864, with semh anmuel interest of the rate of sevin and three-tenths per in harrul modey.

Then notes will be convortible, at the option of the holder at maatority, into pir per cont. gold bearing bonde, payablo not lees than tive nor more than twenty yearo from their date, as the Coverumant maty eloct.

They will bo farmed in denominotions, of afty, one hundred, Avo hundred, ono thousund and Avo thom sand dollara, and all eubrcriptions mait be for Enty dollers, or somo multiplo of fifty dollars,

The notes will be trianemitted to the ownera frea of tranepportation charges as soon after the receipt of the orignal Corticentss of Deponit ne they can be prepored As the notee arnw interest from Angurt 10, potion intereet necrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Partien depositing twonty-Ave thonsand dollhre sma upwarda for thene notes at any one time will be nllowed a conumission of one-quarter of one por cent, which will be paid by the Ireanury Departimeat upon the r ceipt of a bill for the amount, certhed to by the officor with whom the depeet was mede. No doductions io commatasions munt bo made from the deporits.

Special Advantages of this Loan

If is a national savings bank, ofering higher rate of intetest than any other, and the bett security. Any amings bank which pase ita deponitora in D. S. Notes, conelders that it is paylog in the best dir culating medium of the country, and it carnot pos in anything better, for its own Essotsaro either in Government securritiss or in notes or bonas pasable in Goreru aent paper.
It in equalig convonlent on otemporary or permonont avestrocnt. The notes can slwaye be eold for within a motion of their face and accumalated intarest, and aro

Convertible into a Six per Cent

 5-20 Grold Bond.In odastion to the very Hberal interest on tho notee for three yeara this privilege of conversion is now worth about three par cent. per annum, for the current note for $5-20$ Bonds ia not less than nine per cent, pre. itm, and bofore the wer the preminm on six per cent. U. S , stoeke wis over twenty per enat. It will bo cesn that the sctarl proat on this loan, st tho present merket

Its Inemption from State or Mur

Just Published.

Drexta nvirvi nvumiremer or
HRANE LESLIEGS
BUDGET OF FUN, Eloing No. 78, FOR SEPTEMBER.

Its Grand Cartoon is one of the most telling hits of the age, and represents Mr. Lincoln, the Political Blondin or the time, wheeling a Barrow on the Tightrope.
Also, the Hend of the Halahama; hesides Seven Splendid Humorous Slretches of the deplorable state of Europe owing to Emi-gration-hesides numer ons Comic Engrayings hy the First Artists of America and Europe-Leech, Temniel, Rosenherg, Bellew, Nowman, Forhes, Crane, Howard, McLellan, eta, etc.
The Letterpress in equally admirahle, the con tributions heing hy our first anthors

Price 10 Gente.

FRANK LESLIE'S

Puhlication Office, 537 Pearl Street New York.

Fifty MINothods of Employment.-Arts

Brady's "Mzercury" Stories.
HOLLOW-ASH HALL

A TALE OF A HAUNTED HOUSE.

 by maraaret blount,Author of "A Dangerous Wroman," "Orphan of Charn loy," "Downe Ressrec," "Mitity Atherlen," ke. prioe twenty.five oents.

Molled free of postage on recelipt of price. FREDERIC A. BRADY, Publinher,
No. 22 Ann stroet, N. y.

Do You Want to get Mramied?
 ard marry whoovcr they weih, irreapcotive of neve peroonal sppearaico. Sent by mall for to cento ani tro red stimpph. Addres 662.69 L. D. LOCKE
, Box 1525, Portiand, Me

nicipal razation.

But aelde from all the adrantages we have eaumerated, Epectal Act of Congress exemptr all bonds and Treanury notes from tocal tazation. On the average, bill exempthon to worth abont tiog per cent, par annum, wccording to the rate of taxotion in varions parts of the country. It is believed that no seonrities offar so grast indnce menta to lendors as those lesued by the covernment. In all other formas of indebesanoge, the aidin or abiuty of privote partice, or etock companies, or soparake com: monities, only, is pledgod for parment, while the whole roperty of the counsry ta mad weecure tho dacharge of all the obligatlons of the United Statel.

While tho Government offoro the most Uberal tormo for its loase, it belloves that the very atrongeat appeal will be to the loyalty and potriotism of the pooples.

Dapilcote certinentes will be tanued for sill deponita The partico deposlting must endorsa npon the origitial critiacate the denomimntion of notes required, and Whether they cre to be inabed in hink or payablo to order. Whan no endorsed it mant be left with tho ameer receiving the doposit, to bo forwarded to the Treasary Departmint.

Subecriptions will be recelved by the Treasumer of the Uuited states, at Washington, the soveral Aviatant Trearurers and desigaoted Depositaries, and by all Na Honal Banita which ere dopenitaries of publlc monoy, and all regpectable baniss and banerrs throngbont the country wil givo farthor information and AFFORD EVERY FAOHITY TO AUBSORIBERS.
J. H. WINSLOW & CO. THE GREMTEST OPPORTUNTTY ETER OFFERED 100,000

 Woxth $500,000: To se nold for oNE DoLLAR enct, without reard to trme to Agenta, which

7. H. WINsLOW & CO. 209 Brosd

Stereoseopic Pictures and Cartos do nstix,
nitap importatonn
alog, New Yookse and

The Confessions and Hyperience of an Invalia.

HOSTETTER'S cinmarated STOMACH BITTERS.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,

$10 AGENTS $$ 10$

Dr. Briggs's Golden O'Dor.

 ${ }^{4055}$ Whiskers! Whiskers!

 Wonderful! Strange ! Foll Yistractions by whiot any personcem master tho of lun. Beat ly mail fir A. JAGGERE, Cantound, ML.
Doauty- $\mathbf{H z u n t}$ 's Dloom of Rosos,

 If you want to IKnow, &C., read MEDICAL COMMON SENSE.

IEUERNTHUSEGE, F"UERNT"UEEE WHOLESALE AND RETAIL,

By

DEGRAAF & TAYLOR,
(FORMTERTE F. P. DEGRAAE),
NO. 37 EOWVMERT, NNBVV TOIRTE.
This establiehment is eix atoreys in hofgbt, and extands 243 fect through to No. 55 Cluryetle Strect-maiting it Thiny aro prepared to offer one of the largest Furnitore Housea in the Unitsd Statee,

ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND CHAMBER FURNITURE;
Mahogany and Walnut, Parlor and Chamber Furniture
Also, OANE snd WOOD SLAS work, all qualite B; HATR, HUSK and SPRING MATTRESSES, a large atock ENAMDMLED CHAMBER FURNTURR, in Seta, from $$ 22$ to $$ 100$.
Tuckex's New Style Patent Spring Bed, The best os well as the cbcapest of any in use. Retall priee, 32 each.
Thotr facilitien for msaufseturing defy competition. All work guarantoed as ropressated.

Do not Fiail to Get, on your way to the Boat or Car,
FRANK LESLIE'S. LADY'S MAGAZINE

5OR AUGUST, 1864.

The Steel Double Page of Bridal Fashions is unequaleed.

A FOUR-PAGE FASHION PLATE,

Jackets, Ouff, Skirts, Waikst, Chiliaren'
Coiffures in graat varicty.
FULL SIZED PATTERN OF A CORSAGE, WITH COAT-GASQUE, contents :
My Brother and $\mathbf{L}$
The Wifert Ghoot, Mrss, Ruspton' L Lut Will
Natea from the Life of a x .
Notes trom the Life of a T
The Bride of Oranieuberg.
An $\mathrm{Er} \times$ Policeenanie B Sory.

$A$ Fairy Story for Lithe Folke, Erank Leslie's Lady's Magazine

Is the freuhest, most racy and charming of tho monthlies, and in point of intuntrotion has aever been approchoched.
Buy a Trumber and be Convinced : FRANK LESLIE, ${ }^{537}$ Pehxl Strect, N. Y.

DURYZA'S MAAIZENA

 EGEIVED TWO PRIZE medals INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, LONDON, 1952;At the Great Intornational Exhibition at Hamburg, July, 1883, Feceived the Highest Prize Modal for tes Grent Highest Prize Mrodal for 1ts Grent Delicacy as an Artiole of Food.

 WH. DURYEA, Agent, 106 Fulton St, N, Y, C. S. Sea, IN. D., Baltimore, 36 years

profoasor of Femalo Therapentica Sulfy Oarda Free. | Profoasor |
| :---: |
| 469.63 |

Tho Great MMoney-Making Article. Everybody needs it Agento or soldiers catu make $$ 10$ a day.
sample, with particulase, sent free by mail, for

Do You Want Iuxuriant Whiskers or Mroustaches?
MY ONG UENT will force them to grow hearliy in six wceks (upon the amoothest face) without stalin or
.
 to any address on racelpt of dn order
R. G. GRALMM, 109 Nessan St., N. Y.
Photograph Cards for Gontlemen.- Samples matatalosues went for 25 conts, Eucloeo an Samples nim Cataorues yent for 20 cconts, Eacioee an envelope with your

Wanted Pverywhere, good reliahle Agonten tor apleasnant, and extr, liberal buniasosmente

Attention, Company!

 forming mo of ite fact) car hive tbelir moonoy returnec to them st any time whin three monthe from day of $\begin{array}{ll}458 \text { R3 } & \text { P. O. Drawer A. } \mathrm{O} \text {, Alibany, N. }\end{array}$

PLAYING CATDS! PLAYING CARDS. PLAYING CARDS.

BEST THEING OUTT Finest Card Ever Issued!
 52 Beautifal Pictures. Enotoce $$ 125$ and three red etamps for emaple pocs. 40.5

Literary Agency, Estahlished in $\mathbf{1 8 2 2}$.

MATRIMONIAL FAVORS
 At TUCIKar's. 769 Broadway.
$100 per MTonth. Active and roliahle
Ageata tine Azny mid everywiore ele, in the moat

 Precervea the Eycof, avoida benaing. No basting.

GOURAUD's

Italian Medicated Soap,

 5574, P. O., Now York.

Cooley's Cab

75,000 Watches, Chains, &80 WOMETII $100,000.

 82ix Cortinctex con be oraured. for si; thirten for $450-62$ P. O. Dravior M18, Albany, K. Y. Y, ARMY CORPS; Showing each Dtrinion.

BY THE sivaLs 0 ONE, Send tor Cor 1 Troilar. Adidrees DROWNE \& MOORE, $\square$

 SETME WEDDING CARDS.
"Psychomancy." - Zow oithor sox may

 PHOTOGRAPHER,
No. 2 New Chamhers Itreet, $^{\text {N. T. Y., }}$
Will tise Card Picturce st the OID PRIOE for a abort

Large Photogrophe 51 the firt-50 cta, eddititonal oncs.
Particmarar ntionton piad to copsing Oarid or Ambro-

MTatrinony,-Why overy man ohould marry to mow Read the miutrutco Mryirinsig Guide

"Album Goms."一- Somothing Now, Cay

FFANK LESLTEP

Unrivalled Publications

 publizbed. The reading partion in the cream of contemporary Fneslibb literature. The Mluastrations are umarpasased in number and execoution. In XAsHions it tas no equal or competion

Frant Lesilio's Ten Cent Minothly,

Irank Ieslie' Illnstrirte Zeitung, tho onis German Hluntrakea papar in tho oountry. $$ 8350$

Trank Leelie'e Lady's Illustrated AlIANAG, a very valazile mad ottractive work. Price 25 ceats.

GROVER \＆BAKER＇S HIOHEST PREMIOM FLASTIO STITCH SEWING MAACEIMES！ Salesrooms， 495 Broadway，New York， TO EVEFRYEODY：

THE BOWDN MITCROBCOPD，

HOWARD＇S＂IMKPROVED＂ SWEAT PROOF

Soldiers＇Money Belts．

AMERICAN BILLIARD TABLE

aind comisination cughions，

SeasideSummerResort

fankpield hovse，fambreis，cons．Thle

p．d．caraique．

Where he really vas，all the time．
\＄15 PER DAY
$$ 15$

 York．

BALLOU＇S

patented FRENCH YOKE SHIRTS Warranted to FTT，

cmapyr

 Kor tho same ODNT－

For alle by all the princolpal dealers throughout BALLOU BROTHERS， 403 Broadmay，N．Y．

DYSPEPSIA TABLETS，

Yor INDTOESTION，HEARTBURN，ole，manufuctared
onis by \＆G．WRLLING，and Hold by Drugbieth Ben
 The Tariy Physical Degeneracy of American People，
 Troy Luing and Hygimio Inatitite

 DR．ANDTREW STONE
 Lunen，Xo， 20 Firu Brceth Troy，N．Y．

TVORY JEWIELIRY．

PRESIDIMTIAS CAMPAICN MEDALS

BRIDCEWATER PANT

Ground tin on in several drab athedes for vilias oo

Vineland Lands．To all wanting Farms．

Bportemera，Tourietis， AND ARMIT AND NAVY OFFICBRS， Powerful and Brilliant Double Classos． withont the dintreneing en onnd improve the fingt，fint frequeat changel．

Army and Campaign Badges！

B．T．TIAYGUAFD，
MLanufacturing Jowellor．
208 Broadway，N． $\mathbf{Y}$
208 Broadway，N． $\mathbf{~ Y . ~}$

STEEINWAY \＆SONS，
Nos， 71 and 73 Fourteenth St，N． $\mathbf{X}_{\text {，}}$ ， Were awrordod a Firat Prize Medal at the late Great Interuational Exhibition，London．There were two hundred and sixty－nine ptanog from ull parta of tho world entered for competition．
Tha special Correapondent of the N．X．Times asya： ＂Meserra，Btelinway＇o endorsement by tho Jurora in of any Earopean mator．＂

FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS I

CRTMAT CHANCE

TO MAKE MONEY

Valuable Information

 409.50Shulte，Onguont．－Warrented to pro－ duce a fuil set of whiterr in six Weteco or monty ree
 －
A Socrot Worth Mnowing－Fow to

$$ 8$ wamyy $$ 10$
 A aingle one rext free，by mall，in neat ease，wirt

WARDS SHIRTS

 SENT EVERYWHERE BYMAIL orEXPRESSSelf－Measurement for shirts．
 STHWHCOMAARS

卫NAMETHD WEITE， Having the enpearance and comtort of Henen，base been wory other collar，tus they are readily elenned in one minuto with a spenge．Travellers they aro Iuvaluable，
To Nillitary Nen and The Price 75 conte ench；sent hy post to any part of the Cuion oa the rocesipt of 90 conte．
WHOLESALE AND RETAEL．
Aoesma Wanted in every Town in the Unfon，
5．W．卫上．WATBD，
IADIES＇LETMPRR． FIVE ANATOMITCAZ DNGRAVINGB Has information nover before publifhed．Sent free，

FRANK EESMIE'S MTUSTRAMED

The Peace Question-The Iltimatum of Jeff Davis.
In the late pence mission of Messre Gilmore (or Edmund Kirke) and Jaques, to Rich mond, althongh a volunteer enterprise on their own responsibility, these gentlemen, in our opinion, have rendered no suall service to the opinion, have rendered no suall service to Government and the common cause of the loyal Ststes. From various sources throngh the newapuper organs of the unconditional pence party of the North, there had heen such positive and circumstantial assurances of a disposition on tbe part of the chiefs of the re bellion to enter into negotiations for peace, and upon terms that would he acceptable to the North, that, looking to the practical unity of the North, it had become a matter of great importance to ascertain the real opinions of Jefferson Davis upon this questiou.
Wo have no donht that Mesars. Gilmore and Jaques were themselves persuaded, before undertaking their journey to Richmond, that, in vion, they would find the rebl Prevident his ruling associatee prepared to listen to almost any propositions thas would open the door to netgotiations for peace. From the interesting report snbmitted to the pnblic by Mr Gilmore, throngh the Atlantic Monthly, of the resulte of this mission of himself and patriotio colleague, we infer that they had also argued Mr. Lincoln into such active aympathy with their hopeful anticipatione, that he not only aided them in every needful way upon their journey, but that, in the conversation with Jeff Davis, they spoke according to the suggeations tbey had received at the White House. In other words, although they acted House. In other words, althougli they acted upon their own individual responsibility, and without auy official credeutials to back them, they doubtless appeared before Davis as in reality the representatives of the President of the United States, and were manifestly so enertained and dismissed.
Hence the importance of the essential facts connected with thie remarkable pesce conference hetweeu Mr. Gilmore, the learned and experienced traveller in the Sonth, and anti-slavery romance writer, and bia brave and patriotio colleague of the church militant, the Rev, Col. Jaques, on the one side, and the implasalle despot of the so-called Confederate presented by Mr. Gilmore included the aholition of slavery, a general amnesty on belialf of the parties concerned in the rebelliou, no confiscation, the return of the rebellious States to the Urion, the debte of the so-called Confederste Government to be iguored, Comederste Government to be iguored, and pon all the States North states to fall alike positions, we will incoln's ultimil assume, make up Presiden think, too whatum in behalf of peace. W tion precedent the rebellioue States, the remaining propest tions will be among the lesding features of a treaty of peace, whether undertiken hefore or delayed till the thth of March next.
The peace nitimatum of the rebel President on the other hand, allows no margin whatever for peace negotistions or an armistice. The independence or subjugation or the rehellious confederated States is all that he hns to offer

His people, he tells-ne, are not fighting for lavery, but for independence; that they oannot and will not return and place themaelvee gain under the Government of the United statee npon any terms; that, in fact, they are esolved upon an independent Sonthern conederacy, and will "die in the last ditch" rather than surrender. Accepting this report of Mr. Gilmore as conscicntionsly correct, we accept this fact as thus abuudantly established-that ar only available negotiators for peace are sucia masters of diplomecy as Gens. Grant and Sherman, and that invincible seafaring amhae ador, Admirel Farragut. From a careful reading of Mr. Gimmore's report of tais lato peace mission to kion Gen, Grant, therefore, is the proper man tosend into the rehel cepital ss our next ambessador in hehalf of peace. His style of argument in favor of rennion is 80 convincing thet we are quite sure his presence in the rebel capital win at oncesettle the question. Nor can we believe that any overtures or auy arguments in view of peace negotiations or an armistice will be egntertained by Jaf

FRANK LESLIE'S ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.

Davig while he remaina in Fichmond. His situation is desperate; bnt he cannot yet ran situation is desperste; bnt he cannot yet ran the Eazarde of sall points definntly to ths army of Gen. Loe, and leaves the issue of Union or Disunion to be eettled hetween him and Gen. Grant. Anxions, thersfore, as we are, fromi every consideration of interest and humanity, for the retarn of the hlesaings of peace, it is manifest that these blessinga can only he recovered with the restoration of the Union, and that this conammation can he reached only through a vigorone prosecution of the war. In thin view of the suhject we have every caune for encburngemsnt; for we are entirely sataned that as this rehellion, originnilly supported in men and supplies from $12,000,00$ of ouctically, to ern poople, stauds now rednced, practically, to a confedoracy of less than hlacks, the end must be near at hand.

The Seven-Thirties,

WHAT ARE THEY?

We truet that a inrge portion of our retders bave pondered the appes! of Mr. Fesscadon, our new socretary of that United States, acting as a hody through thoir agest the Goverument, winh indiviluals to lend them tre hundred millious of dolliara for threo yeare, at eevan six montbe. For this they ofler Treasury Notw-that is, tu reality, notoe drawn and eudorsed by every mana in the counce, to effect which overy man, uniess bo he traitor at beart if not in act, is solemnly pledged.

Tho Appeal is addressed not morely to a fow greal eapithlista but sloo to the many wboso asgregnte mequys constinute the maes of the weath of the ham. ward. Every man who has aftry collars con take part in thin loak Ayart from patriotisar ana all owe to tbuir country, no investuent io to deeiraluo as thin.

It is secura. Ivery dothar of every man'e property pledged for the punctunl parminat of the toterest, and or For neme yearo before the war we were earning 1,000 mifilione a year more than we spent. Duriog the three years of the war, owing to the high prices and conser demand for falor, we have earas more than ever before.

Ne man who could er would work has been dile; and, except for the war, wo have epent loes than before. In three yeare of the war we of the United States have certathiy earned 3,000 millione noere than we bave espent apart trorm the war.
The cont of the war may he het down at 2,000 milions. Dedueting this from our net carnings, the People who are eccurits for this loan ere 1,000 millione rit.
doy than they were wben the war broke out.

No ofber inventuneat ean be no ersily converthle. The rasa who bas a Treasury notofor $$ 50$, or $$ 100$, or $$ 1,000$, can tirn it into monoy more readill, and upon better torms, than if it were invested upon bond and rooshguse, or in rallrona atocke.

The interest offored if higher than ean ho realized from any other eafo and coanrertible inventment. It is, mozeover, roadily collnctsble when due. To escb now the expiration of esch puccensive half year. The bolder of a note has zimpiy to cut or one of these conspons, present it at the nearest bank or Government Agenoy, and rocelve his interect; the mote iteolf need not be presented at ali. Or a coupon thus pasabl where be equivalent, when dae, to money,

Thus, while this loun provents great adrantoges to nrge capitalints, $1 t$ olfcre eneocial inducements to those who wieh to make a safo and profitalis invertment of emall savings. it is in every way the best Saving Bank; for every institution of thin lind mast romelow oxpeliell. They will lavert largely in this loan, as the hest inveatinent. Dut from the gross intarost which they receive they must deduct largely for the expennes of the Dunk. Their unual ratu of interest alsowed to peraon wbo invests directly with Goverament will rocoive almoet 50 per cent. more. Thus the man who dopasito $$ 1,000$ in a privato Savinge' Bank reccives $$ 50$. yesr intorent; if be deposits the same sum in thin Na hem lo noluge er for the bemoat ef their chllarem, thils Nstomal Loun.

It is convertibleintos alx pie ceni, gold-boaring bond. At the oxplration of thre y yoars of cocer of the noter of the 7.30 loan hane the option of acsoptag pal old inter-more than twanty youre from ite date us the Gevern. mont masy eleot.

For sla monthe past, thene bonda bive ranged at an average premiuio of aboat elght per oent. in the New York market, and have sold at 109 to-day (sugust cest) and besides, to mako the inducement evan groater, Congreso hy epecial ect exempta its Treasury notes from Was patriotlem ever so libarally rewarded?

Barnum's American museum

Oscanyan's Oriental Album,

 only 83.
Secona Arenue, 24 door from soth St., N. Y.
 fowr difirent hng
Qreek nad Eag libb.

frank lesule's

ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER
537 Pearl street, Now York.
NEW FORE, SEPTEMBER 3, 1834.
All Conmunsoctiono, Boohs for Roriow, cto., munt be adarceacd to Frask Lessim, 637 Pearl itreet, Now York

TERMS FOR

Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper. One cops, three montbn,
One copy, six moutha..
Twe coptos, one yes, $\qquad$ 8100
200 400
one vrappas. 88 , in 750
your coplies, one eve vrappor. $\qquad$ to one addrses, 750
1600 eve vian Msgazine and drems.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISINQ.

Onts. Dollar a line on the outtelde or last paggo.
Sixty Conts a line on the Itth and 15 th pages.
To Correspondents.
First-class atories will he read promptly, and found worlby of scceptawos, The manueeript ahould be lodinde, en ene sidn of the paper only, and be sccompanied with the addrens of leagth will meet with aftuntion.
By the decision of the anthorities at Washiogton, Annoues yon Newhpapers and Manzmes cannot be eont hy mall at the rates of printed ratter. If eant by mail, lotter pontage must be paid. Packages over four ounche ehionil he sant by exprews.
Whon parties wiob MSS, retar.
When parties wiob Mss, retarned by mail, poitase tampo must bo encloed for the full amonnt. Coatributora of ebort articles, poeme eto., will do woil to heep copy, av the eheapest course.

Summary of the Week,

viboints.

Gen, Grant, on the 14th Aug, commenced a nem movement hy throwing Hencect's corps and the divisiens of Terry and Toster across the James a divibiens of Terry and Postor across the James ar Deep Bottom. The rehels were cempletcly surDeep Bottom. Tire rehols wero completcly Gen. Birney clenred the riflepith ; Barlow carried part of the worke, takiog many prisonsis.
This brings Hancoolk within two miles of Fori This hinin
Darling, Butler is engaged here in digging e canal across Dutch gap, hy which ssven miles on th Hanoock took a battery that emnoyed the canal On the 16 th Warren, with the 5th corps, advanced to aud crossed the Weldon railsoad. He vanced to aud crossed the Weldon rainoad. He hy Hin, who forced him hat s little, hut wa

the colord hoope ropirod
A bockado-runner attempting to get into.
Charleston ran ashore on Snllivan's inland on the 12 th, and was eutirely destroyed hy the Morris islend hatteries.
asonels.
Shorman bss pushed his rigbt around to Eest
Poiet, cutting off Hood's communication with Point, cutting of Hood's cemmunication with Tontgomery and Macon.
On the 6th Aug., in an lines, the 23d army corps gaized eome advantage hut lost over 500 men. Sherman's hatterins are hat $\begin{aligned} & \text { foctually } \\ & \text { etreety. }\end{aligned}$

Darion, in McIntosh county, is said to have been hurned hy our roidera. hurned hy our roidera. invested Dalton and demanded its eurrender. Col Siehold had hut 800 men, yst he refuned, snd held out till he wae reliered hy Gen. Steedman, when out till he was reliesed hy Gcn. Steedman, when he toold the offentive and dreve Wheoler off, a he toolc the offensive and dreve Wheolor ofir, colored regiment throwing them into confusion.
Wheeler lost 150 mem. Wheeler lost 150 men. He is attenipting to cut off Blecrusn's railroad lins, and especially to do stroy the tunnel et Tuunel hill.
Gen. Stechman startcd frem Chattanooga and engaged Whecler at Greysille, The action wo engaged Whecler at Greysville, The action wa severe; Steedman was wounded and Col, Streight severe; Steedman was wounded and killed.
shenandonh valley.
Gen, Sheridan has his arnyy well in band ready for Early's threatened advanco. The positien is for Early's threatened advanco. The position is one of almost unnterrupted disaster heretefore, and we trusi that Sheridaus will edd to his lsurela hy a dccisive victory.
Early has heen reinforosd hy part of Longstreet's corps, lut Sheridan is driving him down, In a recent fight at Front Foyni, Meredith's cavalry divieion routed in party of rebel infontry ary divieven routed a party of three hattle flags.
On the 11th Ang. Cuater engaged the enomy near Winchester, snd with Devens and Cesuola atterly routed them. The dificulty of guarding all ths pasaces and preventing rehel attacke on his flank passes and preventing rehed attacksond and supplics, has induced Sheridn to fall hack to Burryville, so as to he sble to watch ail important points.

348sissippl.

A sharp skinuisb took place near Ahheyrille on he 10 th of August, in which Gen. Hatch defeated On the 13 th Gen. Smith destroyed a part of Farrest's command et Hurricnne oreek, killing so,

The steamer Empress, from New Orleank, when near Guiness landing, was attacked from the Arkansas shore hy a hattery of six 12-peunders, supported hy eevalry. Sixty ghot ond shels shuer, Filling five and wounding 11 or her 500 pissongers.
The Captain, Mulley, was killed, and she would have hecn token hut for the fortunate appearaneo of gumhost No. 3.

On the 13th of Angust 300 guerillas sttacked Selma, Livingsten ceunty, hat tho garrisen, 30 men of the sth Kentucky, repulsed them, killing wounding 15, and capturing more. The Union less, three killed, one wounded A more enceessful party plundered West Point
The rehel Johnson still holds Henderson, and a party, under Hall, is at Brownshoro.

party, under Hall tennesser.

Arebel force has takeu possossion of Cleveland, them.
werxols.
Guarillas, on the 13 th of August, coptured thre atesmers near Shawneetown, londed with cattle for Gorsrament. The rehel force ( 1,500 streng) was Gorernment, The rehel fore commended hy Col. Johnson.

Since our last tbe Tallalassee has burnt the pilot-hoat Wm. Bell sud the ship Adristic, from London. She captured also the hrig Billow, sebooncrs Spokans and R. E. Pesker, harque Glenalvon, snd many others. Most of these were either captured or burned. Sle took 25 suil of either captured or burned. She took Martinicus rock, six off Oape Sable, two off Port land, and tben ran mito Halitax. The Britisb Admiral stopped her coaling, and she sniled again on the 20th.
Admirsl Farrsgat's report gives his less in the battle off Mohile at 44 killed and 88 wounded Farragut demanded on the 9th the surzender Fort Morgan, and on its refusul prepared for a comhined attaos. The rehels destroyed all the outhuilding at the fort.

FOREICN NEWS.

There is very little to interest ns in the news THERE is Yery from tho OId Worla, Peace had bean agreed upon between Deumark and the two great German Powers, hut twecn Deumark and tto two great German Powers, hut
he price puld hy the formae waa very htan. Denmark had gitren up Sonleswig and #otsecin and part of Juthe price had div land
The
gild

 to Copecuhureen from Funcn.
The cermas papers assert that the Duchien have heens

town cossip.

We cannot see that anytbing is so ahsorking at the proesat moment an the coming draft and the belleve that it buris as hright in our armios an it over did, and conesquostly that the draft io an excelient tomic and calculated to revive, oefcevilty if tho peticant Petcorsburg. will ge the patriotio atyy-at bome citizcas of
We this great rillage juat one moutb more to realles tho force of wbat is conming. If then, with tho taking of nearly 20,000 mea froma among u, they do not wake up to the fict that we bave a war on hand, we are minkiran. Thero can lo no doubt thast this conscription is a hister pill to take, fut wo feel that Now Xork descrven its and pill to take, but wo feel that Now York descrven its and dcorvas it preeleely in the chape wbe will recolve ith With ber immocneo wealth ehe conld have srouied lt, severity. Money would have eaned the roan and loft severity. Monsy would have ensed the roat and lof hut uttio to do on the sth of ssptemher, but unfortu-
. hut Dttle to do on the sth of Siptemher, but uafortal nately for the people tbere was nothing for the poltical natciy for the peopera masters who govern ut to make, no job to bo managed or tealings to bo gotch, and convequeutly the peoplh are loft to snlfre, while every otker part of the state with a more fraction of eur wislth, has carried awhy with a more inction of eur wiunt, mountics and 1 ropidaly rclieving itsolf of the incubus of the caning drift In the mesatime hounty brokers and yumber are geting ricla at the coet of our cittzene and tho men ane getting riclist the coto of our citizeno and tho mon whom they are eending to seprewert bem in fie fuld. Whom thoy are sendiog to rthrear about $$ 1,000$ houisn, An ahle-liodied mau io worth and a otipend of $$ 10$ per month for three yeura, The rigks aro not largo, and the man who ta torangerato cal

 tho oum with a honaty lirolcer, aga would not tonure ono man in ten good in a cor ot his hither oneo wied but that there Brown, ue Mrs 8wnadown, was neat uad protty, os whe

 Thr. Don Bryant closed at Wullacc's on Saturday ynat

EPITOME OF THE WEEK

 Antur orse and euthuantic mans mocting of the

 mento of prices.

Cand danatione...
Admistione....

| Admiskione..  Dept, of artiolee, relies, eto  pat Ontrea.  Skating ponit......... Refreshment saloon.  New Eaptand Ritohen, |
| :---: |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |

Bue expendititures were ens followe:

 pany now under contrate whtit tie

 atione ought be digar,

 cety tr ere has heen no yellow fover. to Every one who will wol lunteor.

 fimeal per day.
 carr." $\Delta$ hit ot nhoady.
A subtituto broter in Pougliks epple got rightly drunt he took too much himself, and wan eniletod by diun intividual whom ho hoped to sel. He dal oot and oart his matake until the next morning. My. John Mullaly, editor of s weekly papar in Mnilitary,-Hexamer's batery, wisch left Hudion run, Yariax Courtbonse, $A$, burg, econd Gettysturg, $B$

Coan Harbor and Fotersburg.
Porsonal.-The Duvenport Brothare, with their muniagor, Harry Palmer, suiled for Europe on the 200 Lh Charlos Hale of Boston, thie eficicial not ha,
it hut post yot, being detained in Engina.
 the 30 LH ult.

 them at her reeidenon in Londion. The resions for suol eympathico in that gaarter are not understiood. Quoen Victorin has becn pleased to confer the digaity of Barout of tho Unite Kingoom upon sir Charles Lyell, the eumeut peologivit, by the title of sir

 by Gen, Wool.
Obituary, The Uties Herald announcce the deat
Philo Grutuey, former Juetice of the suprome Cour

 - Siroon Hegen died at Syrague, Conn., July 22.
He was 20 yeare old, and wua born in the houes in which he died. -Zeiger, a hass ninger, long connected with tho Itaha operdin London, tod lateig at Ghent from poisou
very

 the other two ; one of whom wus her brothersin. -hw,
Tho ruecals ame after $$ 500$ wlich hior husband hud sent her the iny provious. Toreign--The horece in the Fmperor'e carrlage have a wito diater, ora brow

in the same houss &ith thim - Lord Gveratone, wbo hat, juat died, has lot boe marriage of some dogs that thave juit aarrived from Monday, the inrte

during thas purio.
 alairmen, of this's "ifty, writing to one of the weithend to hor State ifit suyg am for tho wir untal cyery man le frce as God creat.

him." Great deal of aqfirclianee about that woman.
"- A few leachivg Boiton indice haye sipged a card lady who hae not had a new drove for three yeark, anh whio hae nover falled, since utis war began, to devote a large portion of cach doy to worling for the causc, When Yo bee ladies in colico drectes we have fulth in their addrceses. When yo see 1 ln their addrceses.
-The Verg
 even eugared in moot eesentially niding gin harveetin, the hay, one of the sintere was riding tie moving man

 mouy and nifection, and after more than a year elhpued dho married again. A few iaye since an exchaned

 Don" "Boy $1^{\prime \prime}$ callod ont Brown to the wiltor at Sam's.
 - Cherubini's widow ducd tetoly at Newilly, aged 91,

Tue new Cosmetic, Distilled Dew, is rapidly
 $t 00$ frequan.
Brontwiv.

 Tus red, white and blue-the red choeks,
the white teeth, aud blue esee of a lovely mirl, erre tur the white good a hag
gight under.

OUR MEXICAN FRONTIER
Corron was, from the first, tbe capital of the rebote in carrying on their operations. As one the rebeir porta were captured or hlockaded tho cotton trsido Wan drivan to the R1o Girnde, and when onr occapation of Brownsvile intorraptod it here it retired ap the river to Piedras Nograa, Hire, on a stoamboot, cotton pros was mprovina, and ub the cararana from the intertior reached dom to Mathmorns.

THE BRIDCE OVER THE MATTA

 PONY AT MILFORD STATION.
THs beanty of American soenery, either

 athe full drapery of eummer, or Fhen fall dyes the 5 dosth, can neyer erous collors wheh givo echarn and art. This prety pictore of a Virghinie aconit, howand athe docil it breathe of war? Yot, here within thre montha the two mifhty armilee now contonding before etarteurg arept by on the path of bioo rom the Sppphazmock to the Appomitox. The Mrattapony to a phluy the sucecseive eylinhtee of the name hove bech given, to that Mot-Ta Po and Ny combine to form

MONARCHY IN NORTH AMERICA.

 Triumphal Entry of the EmperorThe conclnsion has been reacbed; the empire founded on French hayonets Io oetstiliebod! Aftur iong deliyye and hesitotion Mfo ximilion suiled to Mexico, and, reaching Vera Oruz on the 2sth May, proceoded at once to the capital. His ontrance was investod by the French with all possible pomp, and we ifluatrute it, from of the time.
The ontrance took place on the 12 tha of June. The hreviou day, at leven A.M., 500 horemen and 250 ar an santh Cruz Here Mnximillan ond his wie deconded from their carriare, having arrived with e

 laf hut not very entbuetosso crowd
They were hero reecived and felbcitated by Gen, and fiow cre were thrown betore them at every step. I

A PERSISTENT YANKEE

ondent writing from betore

 A ecrgeant stepped out from a riflepit on sunduy and lese of the probiability that ho woull at any moment b shoh A rebel officer shouted to him to go back, butthe sergeant was zumindful of the warning, an anked:
" Won

 your men would ilte some collee for tobaceo. $P$ min
dractulu anxion for ateree.

Should Brites Beee be rakren Befone on doanco menci? For gome time paut I huve heen on such b toutc.

 "Bure it's your own fauit if they are Kghts" sind Biday, in reply to the somplande of the buyer, "ite your owa fnult, sir tor ranit it with s puund of your own toap, I bought here myself, that I wdighed thom with The tho
rubject.

MERCY.

An angel lit on the vesper star, When the red sun sank to rest, On the moonlit valley's hrenst. A diamond wand in her right hand bore $\Delta$ broidered hannar rare, And she sighing looked on the seene helow, Throngh the brown of the dewy air.
One by one young planete winked Through the veil of the twilight alky Like the stolen glanees flashing sent From a harem henuty's eye.

The raging erescent's trembling light Fell sadly soft and mild, And the world benenth was stilly caim As the sool of a slesping ohild
The robin hopped along the path Nigh tame as tame may be ; The black hat fitted elosely hy From the shade of the linden tree.
The drowsy deisy had closed its Kid, The forest birds all were mnte, And the stream erooned sweet on the listening ear,
As the notes of a chanted lute.
Ive sean the cannon's sullen mouth Point straight to a breast of crime, But the bloodless hall hisasd far hisyond, For a mother had asked in time.
I've geen the blackened chasm yawn For a ahip on the foam-rimmed wave, But the wild aunge shrank hike a frighteued thing
At the prayer of the wilder brave.
I've seen the lightning's forked flame Dart down with a mission to slay, But the maiden's ery up quicker came, And the fire-lance turned awny.

There is love even yet for the guility of earth,
There is joy for the peniteut's tear,
O God! that the ensign of havoe should
And the rivers ran rnadily there.
"Your spirit, vain man! should be dovelike and pure
But the cates of you jewelly rill,
But the gates of your Eden so passing fair
Ope wide to the serpent still." Opa wide to the serpent still.
The seraph said, and nusesn away
Flew back to the realms of bight, And the evening star waxed hrighter then In the gloom of the gatharing night.

A RING TO WEAR.

by oatharine rarnshaw.

ceapter i.

It is four years since I last asw Ohristine Lindesy. Knowing the hopelessness of my love, once loved me even as I stall loved her. I could not etrive for the neponthe of other affections or faneies, for to my heart "twas swecter for her despairing" than a triumphant life with any other. Every socne of splendor or beanty hrenght her from my window, I qeemed to be standing again hy hor side. Ladies and gentlemen wers promeoading on the piazza below my window-thair voices rose in the murmurous musio of society in modulated the murmarous masio of society in modulated tones. I listened without hearing, Tonde sumg if thoy wero as happy as they soomed and every coach to-day had brought some new arrival. I had ceme frem Havre bnt a fow weeks before, and was interested in learning the waya of Amprica's clite.
"There's the
"There's the last carriage from tho boat," some one on the piazza remarked, as a carriage wheeled "There's not ano aomehody would he obliged to leave. If this is is hig hotel, Lloyd can't store many more awry," hig hotel, Lloyd can't store many more awsy,"

"Don't grumble," said the othor voice; "these last new-comers are an stdition to our society, I assure you. If this moonlight doean't deceive me, the people alighting from that carriege art the Melvane party whom I met e month ago in Newport. Yes, I am sure. We'll aee thsm at breniffast, snd if you kay so, I'll present yon." " And who, pray, are the Melvanes?"
"Don't lonow exnctly-they are not Amerieans. Tbey are very rich, T'm quite sure of that. Here the twoyoung men walled out of hearing.
It wes the only conneeted converastion I heard It wes the only connected conversation I heard from the piazza, so I heppened to rememher it, But it had passed from my mind leng before the next morning, and was only recalled by a remark made to me by Felton, one of the gentlomen whoss words I had overhesrd. He sat besids me at table, and asked, after a deeultory talk of a few minutes: "Mr. Standialh, has it happened that you havo evor met with the Melvanes in your travels ?" evor met with the Melvanes in why do you ask? replied.
replied. OL , shmpls cariosity, that's ell. They came
"Ohre last night, but I don't ses them at hrealdfast.
They are Eaglish, or Scotch, I sbould judgo, and They are English, or Scotch, I abould judgo, and most aggravitingly exclusive. I believe you Engmobt aggravatingly exclusive. I beheve you Engliah always aro."
"I won"t am not Enghish-I am Scotch."
"Not English!" eried Felton; "I could have sworn yon were, Why, Stendish is pure English."
"Yes, I knew it,"I said, feeling the old clond "Yes, I lenew it," I said, feeling the old clond of my lifo bettling over my face. of my lifo eet tling ovar my face.
Fetion looked towards tho doo opencd. An elderly lady and gentleman entered. " Ah , thero is Mr. and Mrs, Yolvane. How un-

We ?
up at the table where the new-comers had taken anir places. They were entive atrangers to me, nd I only gave them the interested glenee that a them in a foreign land. Their look was unmistakably Scoteh, of the educated, upper class. Resolving that I would introduce myself to them on tho plea of a common nationaity, so soon as an opportunity occurred, I went on with my breakinat, bistening with plecid interest to the taik goIng on round me done several times since my arrival hers, slone in a little rowhoat. The sea was glowing with sunset gold as I st leet left my hoat and walked up the sands to the house. Instesd of going up the broad gravelled way I pasaed throngh a small oek grove that formed a part of the grounds of the hotel. walked listlesaly, withbent head and hends clasped behind me. The path I took wound deviously, and passed behind a little graperine arbor; When reame close to this I sam the gleem of a ledy's hand from hetween the brosd lesves. Some one bad passed her hand through the greenery. All I ceuld see was that snowy hand-not rounded as fins ladies' hands are, bnt with slendsr fingers, a shape hetokening intellect and power. With a suffocating cessation of the puises of my heart, I bad recognised that hana, for whoes honorahlo posseasion I wonl give my life. On one of its I had placed there years ago. I atood atill, haif panting with the suddenness of the recognition. Self-indignant that I had not more conteig ano aboogntged by its ofver trol, I governed my accelarated pulsee sud walked on np the path. I had hardiy taken half-a-doznn stepa befare Felton ealled to mo. He was leaning against the entrence to the arhor; he said:

HCPPY moments.

"Have you become a wood-or-water-sprite Standish, that you have deserted ne to-day ? bis tone indicated that he wisbed me "If I have heen transformed it is only into a priest of Neptane. I've been on the soe all day." yon tn the firt back and tell us about it-or are be, unleas yon devoured your flah uncookod." Thus called, I turnod baek. Had the girl in the arbor reoognised my voice, or bed she, with woman's prerogative, forgoen it as a thing of aever-to-be-recovercd past?
I stood at the arhor doer, and glanced at her face as Felton said
" A fellow-countryman, Mise Melvane-Mr As I had so often in visions seen Christine Lindsay so she stood before me now. Paler tben when I had scen her last, with leas of impnise and more of what of hahitual self-restraint, and somo would have called it hanghty; the purple darknees of her eyes gleamed royally es ever.
She bowed distently yet gracionsly, and as set down ehe let the folda of her handrerchit over har lame to cherish high hopes beo atill wore the ring ahe had promised to Hed shocome towearitas a taelk, oniyior aske and not for love? To think that she ceased to care for me geve a more drendfol then to know that she coud never he mine. part, I thought. Felton sat down opporito her, but I remsined standing. It was evidsnt that he thonght this our first meeting, indeed there was no reason why he shonld not.
"Have you heen in the States a long time, Misa Molvane," I asked. "If I undorstood Drr. Fation he sadi "u are not American."
No; I came to Boston some six monthe ago,
so you see I have not been here no long but that sometimes feol a pang of homenicknobs,
The old, familiar musie of her voice, the old en chanting endearmente of her presence; and I was shonld ever acoustom myself to this intercourse "Yon still are tras to your old love of heatb and mount inin tben " I I sidid. "Yon eeom to disprove the doetrine that, for a moman, it oniy requires the doetrine that, for a woman, it iniy roquens abbence to bitterly, oul
to nnetber.
to ane boit.
Invoiunturity, and it seemed uneonscionaly, ethe vied her banderchief to her lips thno ehoriug raied her bandkerchiof to her lips, thne phaming tbe subdued epardie of her ring. She repbedider "Mr. Stundimb ean hardy be a Hig geoted that pooioibitity, I Inow fall well tho Gacho 4 night to do."
I stoed at the door, halr reeolved to walk abruptly away. She speke again, and I bstened with ${ }^{\text {ngain }}$ Deu
Det. And you-have yot just left Sootland? Hove
"on any nowa trom home?" yon any newa trom home w" $I$ looked np and esid, with frigid tones:
 have not heen in Seotland for four yearm, Sbe turned diligaty pale, her bipe tromiled ; bio Side tot roply, and I rent up to the honse, lesving
Felton to prattle to an waditor who 1 fell confidiout Felton to prattle to an wuditor who 1 would not undcratand what he ssid.
Beveral days passed, during which $I$ only auw Several days pasbed, during which 1 only anw the Molvances t tathe. I was fovored with invithe Molvanes at table. I was favored being told by thations to join eeverial exeuriong going. Thou,
Idid not goit
At leant relt At leat Friton declared I was ungollant, and a bear. Any other man would bo delighted, he bear. Any other man wouid be dolighted, he said; they wero so exclusive, he woondered that they hid reoognised him. Meanwhilie, I was trythey had reeognised him. Meanwhille I was trying to imagiua whly Christine had dropped her ounn uman- that of Lindsay-for which I kuew her to have a strong horeditary faudily priade. I wordered if eome drosesfult thing had happened to the Lindsaye-were tbey dead, or disbonored and so the beireses had for orer cast from her that onshee had worn ahont her neck the Lindsyy chain which the heir of her family yweys preserved us
the token of their implachhlo Fiatred to the Drum-

 Ladinco Christine had been with mee at the seme
sin

 pornhbo har bctween me and the woman $I$ loved.
Though I fed from thie paradise from whic 1 wne excluded, I could not bring myaelf to take the namo which helonged to me hy birtb so hilood preferred the neme by wiuch Christine Lindses had ealled ine, and so I reinquiaihed to my unknown younger hrother the rigbts of Angns Drummond.
Drummond.
sitting alone on the sunds, hearing the monotone of the waves on thisis strange American coast, I imagined and lived again in sweet ialesses thooe tineo when loch and lurea were denreat agith in the world to me, becange 1 snw them mith Chrien.
tine. Somatimes from the rochs or in shout near tine. Somatimes from the eochargh or talk with the shoro I hoard her roice in lugh Bome plensure party, and the sound melted into my deanus and made that meunory of the past met more real for a moment than this happoioss preeent.
How iuexinuuttibe seemed our fairy mine of joy.
 haver the face of tho earth. So the thoughts ran into ench other na 1 lay in the sbe ow of orok on the heeach, one afternoon in Angust. One arm Wat hent over my face, and with my yoos on the blne above me, Ilistemed to the roll of the ilve at nyy feet,
$A$
abilill voice near me caused mo to start

 The voice or Christion repho io stopping at
"It bo Mr. Standikh, whit sume hotel mith us. We won't dieturb hime." I rose tomy feet. "I beg yon will not leave becouse $I$ am here, Miss Melvane," $I$ naid. " $I$ will Mot frighten you, if yonl detiro it, ril depart,"
"You will displease me greatly if you go away," she reppitiod "We are not princesses, to drivo peoplo from a chosen solitude. We are the inpeople from a chosen tradere, Mr. Standish."
She stood tracing charzactero with her paranol in the enan as sho ppole. The warm glorieo of it this summor day had tive her owes hace with ar Taint orimson, and givon to her eyes a languid fire
tiant answered back to the splendor of sky 4 nd ${ }^{\text {Bea. }}$ "We never consider a happineas as an intruder,", I eatia, with moro the nir of a galiant eomplimont than I had intended. She turned her opes from I fancied, in spite of its coolnees, had a bittle of parion and proeented mo to her. An niry futter of ribbous, smiles and kindiese, Miss Gervaeo, from Boaton, greeted de with superabuinanant good vill, nod wiliue fliee Melvane trobled along the sea. lisat Christinc retauned and stood hy us; there elll a silonoo between us, tine, who said to Misw Gerrase:

suppor."
Tmo girls etarted ooff tow ards the poinbyy path, down which they had descended to this path, down which they had desended to this sheiltered noook. Some undeinnod foeling that they mught not want me prevented my accompanying them. I leaned buck against the ragged ironhnod rooks and lietened to their rotresting foote etepz, and watching Christine no ebe malkod over tbepse and watching Cance. Still musingly leaking at the point of to rocks ronnd whish they had dienppprese, in wae surpribed to see them return, Mies Gervae, in adceemed to me with terror. I hooked angerly a Chrietine. Ouly the orimson tinta had left her "Oh, Mr. Stendish, what in to he done ?" eried Wiee Gervase, with elasped lande. "The tide line come in over the path hy which we eame, and wo can't get up there."
For the îrat time 1
For the first time I noticed that the water had ricen into the gulleye of sand, and through a rocky riexn into the ghleleye of band, and through a rocky gap, which, when they come, had been green with gippery seawed and yeilow with long, onaly kelp.
I remembered tho way hy wbich I had renched I remembered the this epot, and I suid:
"There i i no need for clarm-at least, Ithink
not. If you aro sufficiently hardy to retumn wition not. If you aro sufficiently hardy to roturn witit me in the rongh way $I$ exploren, we thall be able me in the rongh way 1 explired, m , reach the top of the recks in safoty."
"Any way to get ont of this horrid phace," Miee Gorrase said.
Chrietine emiled, and remarked
"What an adjectivo to apply, Dora1 1 think this the coast."
"Don
"Donbtless," was the reply; "In agree witb "Donbless," was the reply; the rocka yonder. Till then, let me deepise it heartilv.
Meanmhile tbey were scrambling aseieted by my hand and tbeir own stendy spirit. Tho path grew more difficult every moment. My neeves scemed steel, so otrong was my purpoes to on foobng of tiniumphant joy that again Christiue Lindeay wos dependent on me for rescue. We did Lindsay was dependent on me for reseuc. We dia not talk, I only gave the necessary directione, and they responded ouly by netione. We oame to n ehasm ; ininge, black rock, with the marke of cenchasm ; a hinge, blekek rock, with the marks of centuries on its shlhckened eurface, wes ont downwarde in the middle, split through more smootbly than in the midale, spit harogh done it. It formed a human hands could have nuly so wide that $I$ could just conveniently leap gully so wide that I could just conveniently loap cross it, whon I oame down to the eands alone. Could 1 ever get the two girls over? Afrar domn the harnacled silees, in the miniature ruvine at the Lottom, the water came in, int thunderone elaps thit seemed to ehake the const, nnd that sent the spray up over us in blinding beauty, making the rocks glow with slippory sheen. rocka glow with alippery Aheen.
We strod a moment on the verge, with the tide every moment creeping up the rooky pointe, that were covered with a rank growth or beearowing wreds and moss. I waited to get full broast belore
I essay yed the leap. Miss Gerraso looked at me witb terror-stricken face, hnt she uttered no word and made no scene, as 1 might have judged sibe Christine stood & little apart, her face, with its Curted lips and diated eyes, fixed towardd the parted
and erce waters that oame coiling and then rusbing nto their home in the stony galley. She lookod into their home in she stong fome feird spitit haid facinated nnd was beckoning her to ite home-as if the might have heard the muxic of Parthenope, and would throw heraeal
"SIies Molvane," I eaid, " will you try thie lenp with mo? It is a neceisity for us, sho turned towards me, her faee glowing with Sho turned towarids m.
come fiward exultation.
"Let Dorn go frst,", she repliod; "then, if you want to como back, you may tuke me.
II 1 want to come back!" 1 repented, forget-
her eyer.
I turned
Iturned abrupty from her, and enutioning Mise Gervnse not to malke an effort hereolf, I took her eentary-hardened roeks, hroken, deed. But eentary-arare tho gap ond placed Mise Gervase, safoly clar trembing, on the stone, and with an fint and faint and trembling, on thin agito hound was hack aggin.
Christine had not been looking at tbe waters then; that thet mo thous hy the expression of her face. Iextondeà ny hande withont speaking. She dvanoed a tep towards sic, and then her foot advanoed a step towards nac, and then her for elipped and she staggered towards the clinem My heart seemed riven by gome horrible fate. reached her side and canght her in my arme.
"My Godl" I eried. "Cbrietine, you will kin
ourself, for all my efiorts.
I trembled so that I hardy dared think of osany ing the croesing gag ind, She perceived the vibration of my frame, and wetharew herser roun my "I have startled yon," ahe enid; "I was very oareless I will try to take moro heed. I forgot caroless. F Was atandag."
My a great exertion I hronght hack my nervos into the tenseness of action. I folt tompted to whisper to her, as I again held her in my arms, that I eould not doploro a fate that should precii that 1 eould not doploro o fate that should precipitate us into eternity so long as sbo was with mee, pitate usind nothing. It took her affely over, and when we wore aurificientry reeted we walked haci to tho hotel. Miss Gervano uttered her thanks in a tone so true and wommaly that I ahould havo folt repaid had I I done her a eerrice at $\AA$ greater risk. Christine rempined silent till we renched thiedecertca piazza, heen, ás me her hand, ber left hand, with my ring burring ypon it.
"Mr. Standishh", she eaid, 1 held her hand in hooth my own. I wnited for her to continne. Her face wnee averted, and I conld not eet her cyets. She etod for a momant hand and hastily entered the house.
Thit evening aciee Gervnese opread the elor
through the parlors, and for tbe hour nothing else wise talked of. Miss Mclvane, they exid, was somewas talked of. Miss Mclvane, they eaid, was some what indiapoeed from the exeitement of the afternoon. She did not come dovnotairs. Istood by the chair of Mies Gervase, that evening, interested hy the sweet gratitude I ebiv in her beantiful fece. hy the sweet gratitude I enw in her beantiful feee.
I folt myeelf somewhat drawn towarde her, becaneo she had been with Christine, beeamse I now no longer wendered tbat Christine bad chosen her for a friend. Undernenth the gracoful frivolity of fashionnble life I diacovered the pure throbe of a kind, inpulaive, womnnly hoart. I was so uneonselons of tbe remarks my att antion, conpled with the evente of the afternoen, had cauced, that I hardly underatood Felton, when he eaid, af he hade hardly underatt me good-night
me good-night:
"Confounded lucky thing of youre, Standish. old Gervise ie a rich old Bencon-tirecter. I wibh I fergot his words withont wondering what they meant. Afterwarde I learned that he only expressed the goesip of the evening.

ofatter in.

Wrinoor, a fhir, etill night of summer, with stare burning warm and yellow, a faint, ovieet wind that hardly stirred the tall beach grass, and wind that hardly stirred the tail beach grase, and tossing it into spray. Such a night calmed my heart as I stoed on the R House piazze and looked sway from the gniety mennd me. Within looked sway from the gniety sronnd me. Within there was the erad' of a denee, the mazee of enerrating, inebriating muaie, the heavy scent of hehotrope mingling with the perfume
kidded hands and the fume of eweet mines

Leaning on the railing, I was snddenly

 the fragrance of beether floating on the nir. I turned quietly. Near me, but half screened by the national festoons of this featal night, I Cbristine standing alone, and lookung, as I had hoen doing, out at the csim wetors, It was to from the incoming tide, snd I had hardly spoken with her since, though notn day had paseed withont interviews with her friend, Miss Gervase. I stood for a raoment watching her. Sasifus snd unstraint able as a fairy prinecss. Her heavy garnet sillk the rioh lnetro of the gold ebo wore, increased a ther than lessened her imperialsouthernbeoutya blonde would have been overloaded thus dreesed but not an olive-hued and drally-cyed brumette. I stood hy her side. There was snowy hace at her throet and over ber neck. I looked in vain for the gleam of that Lindasy chein, whose ue companying nees. A sprig of purple heather wao in her hair and in the fingers of the band that hung over tbe railing.
She to
She turned her faultless face towards me with e calm greeting. Her manner seomed tike $\begin{aligned} & \text { now, } \\ & \text { soft and cold, but atill not preeisely repeling }\end{aligned}$ soft and cold, but atill not preeisely repeling
The absenes of her chnin, for which I could no imagine a reason, gave me a nameleas hopehope which I dared not own to myeelf.
"Yon are very fortunnte in being able to pro cure heather here at a ball by the Anerla dia yo side, Miss Melvane. Where in the obtain it? Excuee my ouriosity."
"It is very pardonable," ebe smiled. "I sen to Boston thie morning for it. But see, Mr. Standish," che held the sprsy towarde me, "it only a frail houseplant, after all. It lacks the vivid hloom of our native shrub.
"It is bomesiek, like you, Mies Melvane."
"It is b
"II"
she
she raised her ayes, hrilliant and distant, mine for a moinent.
"You are vory rapid in forming conclusiona."
"Am I not correot?" I aeked, "You are not awure how oloeely I besn your face. What otwer interprotation shall I givo that inexpressibly sad ourve of your mouth, that droop of your eyenias when yon are alone and at rent. Yen long for the bome you have left behind., Tbe red of semetleinelity
The red of semething like angry surprise flashed over her face. She looked for a moment ont over the sea hefore she rephicd. Then her voice, winstead the sea hefore she rephed. Thentignas was ironical.
"Mr. Stancueh has changed somewhet tif he now of freces."
It was the first ellusion, howover remoto, to the fact of her haviug known me heiore. My tone was as oold as her own as I replied: "I do not study faces; I ain no physiogno-

I could hardiy provent myseli from asking why the choin wae absent from her neek. Still nothing but her own woris conld have made it. I still held her flower in my hand. "Will yon ohligo me to rotura it ?" I asked. "Io the knight begging flowors of lus fair adjo?" asked a swcetly modulated tone behind
us.
Misa Gervase stood near us, her sapphire oyes blazing with soft fisme. Misa Melvane bent blazing with soft Alme. Misa Mevane bent alightly forward, nd ealid, in auswer, to my queslightly forward, and esid, in aubwer, to my quesion:
"Ye ; if yon plense, in so distant a maner that I could havo flung the bloseom, in despuiring rage, at her feet.
I placed it sile
I placed it silently in her extended hand and turned abruptly to Miss Gervase, enying ns I turnca abruptly to "You eee the fir ir ladye keepe bei blooms. It must he that I am not a faitbrul knight-" oome wretched impulso prompted me to bend my head towards my eompanion and murwor the words: cowards my eompe
"
I placed my hand over the fair fingers on my Im as I spoke. The cold, sorene manner of Miss Telvane hind taunted me to it ; Ihad no hope that in hearing those words ohe would be ne miaerable as the apirit that prompted me to nttor them had mede me. mede me.
Iled Mis
ae we retarned alowly we sall Christine atanding, with a proud droop of the bend, tenderly fondling the flowers in her hisnd. Sise tarned beforo we reaehed ber snd entered the parlers. Half an hour later, nhen Mries Gervese nid I steod amedg the daneers, Christine wae leating through the maze witb etarlit eyes and epealing faee, histoning with rare lindness to tbe whispered werde of her partner, and her partner wne the dashing, fashion-Hisle Felton.
fisee bore evilenee that ho was under a more emplete enchantuent than I had deemed him capphle of fecling. At lnst ho whirled his comGerrase. He stood over ber chair, and in the panses of our talk I heard enstches of their conversation:
"Yes"
"Yes," sbe was saying, in assent to some remarks of Felton; "they prefer tbe quiet of tbo evering to thie heat Ileft them on the verandah. Felton eaid eometbing and laughed eligbtly ns ehe, too, had heard fheir worde, and her ehecke fluebed as her byee met mine. I wished to speaks, but I could think of nothing to say. Again Christine spoke, thie time with ony
"Everyway worthy, I preanme. Mr. Standieh man of mine, too, Mr. Feltom ; if sueh is the ease I.ought to be asaurcd of his euperiority." She langhed. I could not bear Felfon's reply, bnt from his tone he nuuat have murmared a canpbment
I begged Miss Gervase to dance with me, and in a moment more we were giding past whose unwilling liateners we had been.
So completely did Miss Melvane withdraw herself from me, tbat, had I striven to eee her, I could not have succeoded. It was not my purpose to meke any efforts towards intorviews with ber, nid ny any efforts towarde mbrnewa peason reason told me that I shond he gind she tbug ebo wes every day in some exonrsion with me though every might I saw ber in the parlore, I was as far removed from her nu though the was in Sootland and I in Araerioa. Had I been less peasionately and hopelcessly in love with ber I showid have left the place where eho was, thus acting could I ferogo tbe happinees, dreary and unlighted so that happinese wae, of looking apon ber as she moved througb the rooms and talked with her companions? I saw every movemont of hers, though I might be apparently devoted to Miss

Unconecionsly to myself, I becume the cavalier

 of Miss Gervase, never once thinling the remarka it migbt cause. I escorted her and hor only to all egotist to think that ehe might come to like me ; I forgot that my rescuing ber com that fearfal ligh tide might throw a glamour over her eyesfor me. In the sweetnoss of her hesth I found the only relief l knew from the bitterness of the destiny tbat separated me from Christine, and that relief was ouly momentary and partial. Sometimee, in the darliness of my misery, I wisbed that Christine and I had never met again after tbat hrief time of nappineas for us both. Had I not seen her, I migpiness for unve heen comforted hy the belief that she still loved.
How imbeeile I seemed to myseif in those daya. Vacillating between what I thonght my duty and the inclination that gave me the poor pleaeure of seeing Christine, though between us there passed no words. A month since I had seen Miss Melvane ot the R- House. Divided hetween my desire to stay, R - House, Divided hetwe duty that pointed out a dififerent path to me, I had at length reaolved to leave and wander in search of the apathy whicb ecomed so far off.
I would give myeclí a tew more days of life in the I would give myeclif a lew more days of life in the presence of Miss Melvane, bat next week I should leave the seashere. I weuld shut from my bie the fair impginings that only rendered me morhid sud sure. Had tbe country-sest of my family-the Drnmmonds-beca in any other part of Scotland Drnmmonds-becs in any other part of Scotland than adjoiniog the estatcs of the Lindenys, I might than adjoining the estates of the Lindeays, 1 might bave reeolved to retarn aind derote myself to the bave reeolred to retarn nind deevere mined. But the sylvan life to which my fancy inch dear reminin-thought of revisiting seenes of ench der thonght af rovisiting econee scencee, with the brand of
was too bitter toeneomnter.
These thoughts and memories brooded like darli winged birds over my soul as I sat alone in the grape-vined arbor of the hotel gronnds. Looking out at the entrance with introapective and nnece ing eyoe, I wne suddenly aware of a shadow at the ing eyod, Itartled from my reverie, I retumped to the present-but without moving from my position.
It was the handsome, gracefal form of Feiton who It was the handsome, gracefai form of Felton who stood there. His face was turned somewhnt from me , and he did not at first notioe that I wasthere, He held a amall miniature in his hand, his cye mew how the picture affiected him. I was not so far off but that I could reoogniee in tho pioturo the unrivalled lineamenta of Chriative Melvane.
How came Felton to have the portrait of Mias How came Felton to have the portrait of chas Melvane? Their friendalip mast he fast merging into a stronger feeling. This then wss the endurinto a stronger feeling, whish was to ontilive any ing, the eternal love wish separation. Coald I forgot Christine'e Face ne sho had told me hove destiless was the passion I for hat the firet time had ealied into I should forget. Unnow qnite imperative that I should forget. willing to penetrate into the privacy of Felton's willing to penetrate into the privacy or reltons heart, I dropped the hook I had not ben reading heart, I dropped He turned abrupty, with indignane faco, hadvanced to my aide.
"It is you then, Standiph? he euid; "I was afruid it might he some of the tattling old down afrnid it might he sonne of the tattling old downon gora round here, sud I'm in a baid mood for gors $\begin{aligned} & \text { r } \\ & \text { them. } \\ & \text { He }\end{aligned}$.
that had fallen from my bande, tarning over the aves earrfally, though he beld in Hrong tiae ap. You secm particularly ghino" I saia, cliseping hands over my bead, and looking hazdy at tim, souls mest guarded hopes,
"Did yen eoe the pieturo I had just now?" be aked suddcily
I I aww yon hail a pisture," I repliced.

 mind Bhowing you tho pieture, for if tho origiual
refuese me, I shall -ob , Standidh, I thall ho accnraed!"
 gpoke. I eould hardly reeognive in him the brdibiant and Reomingly oare-free nequaintanoo of this tiant and reemingly care-free equaintanoo of thi watering-pliee. I looked at the shadow of the face he had pinced in my hand. The midnight cyes and dewy, erimson lips of Christine mot my gaze. I was not to he hetrayed into a long lool at that hemiteling faco, and roturues it, naying: "Yo
"this."
"Yee, so I shoidd thisk," he enid, "if sho had to hor, and I ehall return it to-night, Ho did not resist the inelination to look again at the face. Bron while 1 folt the torment of jeal ouny aud despni, I eould not but adnit that I had never really yadnirod thie man tull this moment, whion I discovered how strongly ho loved thins woman so worthy of it,
"I havo langhod at lovo", he anid, at lant, "bo ename I thought the fleeting fancles I haro foll eanse I thought the theoting fancles, I hano fole were will $I$ should over lowow. Now, nt hast the grand passion of my life hns mot me. Do no luugh, Standiahl, when I t tell you how I long to doelaro my love to hor, and yot how I dare not, for fear of that dreadfol possibldity. Amu I ao very He hent his fhee to his hands as he fin opeelicing ; 1 put my hand on his shoulder.
 Fotton. Do you wab me to toll Ho looked up eggerly as a boy, lut with all a man's earnestnes
"Yos-tell $\mathrm{mel}^{1 "}$
"I I ean only nay what I juadso from hur manner.
Ialing here as I have boen, I have fallen into the Iding here as 1 have bon, 1 have wateked you gomehahito of observing. whet, Felton it it seems to my jindgment that you will he acceptod." I would hare said momere, but $I$ would not emnin which $I$ had thus far spoken. His fice grow radient at my worde.
"I have sometimes thought," he said, "that sho favored me ware than others; hat somehow
I have lost tull the egotism I ever pooseesed and
and
 It is vespy futare to pheny a mappy for I felt that I could not longer from my seath for sustain auch a conversation. Felton rose and suetain such a co
"Wiah me success, Standish," be ssid. I cond not force mysilif to with that another man might marry the woman I loved. $I$ felt moymelf mow palo es he spoke.
"Don't you wish 1 may be happy ${ }^{\text {" }}$ " he asked,
". for I stood dumb, straugerly difierent from my manner a moment ago. I ralliod and rephed:
 your fríudg"."
He looled at me doubtraly a moment, then aaid: :- You eeem very kind to mo, hant I dont think I nuderrtand you yet, for nin your apparnt frankeurneesty:
"Believe me, you shall never repent it.
Ho walked a way, leaving me indigunnt with nysolf that I had not bettor control of emotious solf that I had not bettor control of emotious whioh ehould have hean in complete anibmiasion. man of the world, and etill allowed myelf mwised hy thoughte of things unattainable. I hardly salw Felton ageiel for $n$ day or two. was shoving ny hout trour the sands into the water, preparatory to one of my solitary rowing expeditions, ,henen Fellon ealled to mo Trom the came down to me.
"Want in the world are you going to do with that hitte sthell ' S" Folton alked; "it's not laige that hittle sholl "' Felton asked; "it's not laige enough "rm ging to take my last row, for I leave the Christive, who was turning over shelle with her foot, did not panse in her occapation or look ap. unfortumato; we recckoned ou you for one of the

"Mises Gervuae will peranado you," ho ropliod, with $\AA$ langh. "I "wish your hont whes larger,
Standish, for Miss Molvano and I were juxt saying we had never hcen in a row boat on the ocanh
She thinks the eense of neamoss to Neptune would uaslese to leave it to your agreement whath one of you shall go
"
Is it

Is it perfeetly anfo ?" Felton askol.

 ed that yon'lil retura to tho thotel witbout ax He turned his gat, amimated un expreasion hard to reeist. Sbe looked oold and Somewhat diatsant, hut sho asid:
"Certainly, if yon wish it." ho the Indian' head," he said, tossing a ponny in tha air.
I could not be an indifferenteppectator. Though thatd he my companion, yot I Imitt $n$ wad hope nd when Palton eried:
"I bavo loot, and you have won !" I felt such a
-ihration through pyy frama as only Chriating Nibration through my trame as only Christin coidd eanse, I glanced et har fres. Mer eyee were soft and sweet, hut her moonth wha curved in the set lines of reeplendent pride.
"I fear this expedition is umpleanant to the ledy," I snid; "I will exonaso her attondance if she wishes it, though her preenenee would give me reat plensare.
"I avail my
I avail myealf nf no oxecras, Mrt, Standish, If "I am ready thon," I sanid
She took my oxtended hand and seated herseif in the boont. I shovere of, feeling that ouee more I held in my hands the lifo of Curistine, even as I had done years age in the defiles of Clen Darroch. had done yoars ago in the defiles of Glen Darroch.
tried to talke ail tho comfort I could from that tried to tnike ait was comfort have her thus sit-tween ure the insupenhile wall of a dondy famdy fend Withont that bartier thero rose the brilfient face of Felton to miock unconsciously at any shadow of a hope I might have.
"You do not linow hut $I$ am a very unatiliful boatman, Miss Mclvane ; yet yon truat to my guidmoe. I I hlould foel very gratefid, for to be gieve that one placee confidences in me is one of hieve that one places the happiest feolinga."
the happiest resolved I wonld for this honr pasa her forent ttranger I had appeared during her atay at the slore. She looked up with softened mouth and eyes, and ssid in her most molodions tonen: "Then let me he the one to inspire in you oue tirely". My eyes flamed, my lips grow hot with the words. I wiehod to speak, but she turned away with an anmistakahle look on hor face, whiel said, "thns far and no farther." I ouly snid in a con"thins frar an atrniued voic
UY
"You are very kind, you know that $I$ cpprecinte An unhappy s An unhappy edcuee foll upon ns, Mise Morvane set leaning over the hoat's inide, trating her hasd in the water, tal the drops of the emerald soa In the water, klood as they pleamed on the ruhy on her finger.
Mounwhil Moanwhilo the sun was sinking in the skly, fhat neering the weetorn lionizon. Irested on my oars, and looked serose the wator over the softening and landeopene towards the doparting sun.
Mise Molvano said, "MIr. Btandidb,". I turned towards her. Her hand was raised slightly and xtended towards the west to which $I$ bad bee
"Aboro the oee, beneeth the alss,

Our fancieo fy with yen curtew,
Or poice on foom wilh tuit eamew,
So dritt wcen in rossle etuto

 And breveght to cur whitral, jearuling ges
Her voice had murmured into the silence ; it ceased, and ahe lent sgein over the side of the boat.
"'That is not an inprovization, in it, Miss Mel ne ${ }^{\text {" }} \mathrm{I}$ I asked.
" Oh , no, I was quoting.
"Tho song of zome lenguia lover afloat with his lady-love, I suppose ?" 1 eaid.
"No; the sony of on
"No; the song of ono friend to another. Shali Tro back nov, Mr, staudifin Fror reply I turned the hoot in shore. As the teel grated on the eand, Miise Melvano wavod lise keel grated on the sand, handhorchief to mome ono walling at a a little dibtanco on the beach. I looked up, and Mine Gervase bowed to me.
"Has she heoome
"Has ahe heoome reconciled to your dopar-re?

replied.

 not feel tronbled for my friond. Thenk you for my row; I have enjoged it very much."
 ap towards sthu holui. Miss mith a group of luaies and gentlemen. I foit almoot Eure that she would like mo to join them, but the remarkis $rise Melvano hed just uttered made mo half unwiling to do ko. After two or thrree heenitating steps in a differont direction, 1 arvancod towards NIss Gervase. The slight. plensed smilo with which she greetod me soothed my perturbed spirit. Onconsecionsly to mynadf I led her apart from tho rest, end we twn walseat done to tho hotel. For some reason I did not alone to tho hotel. Tor some reason 1 cid mention my intended departuro to her then. I Giled on with reckless haste, till, as wo momurard the stops to the plazza, Cliristine camo forward to meet her friend, then I bowed to hoth and walhed awny.
In tho orvening I should reecivo tho farowolls of my acquaintances, for 1 atartod oarly the next moraing. In tho evening I would ondenvor to moruing. In the evening I would endenvor to thanki alias Gerrase for the lilindooss she had awaiting tho supper-bell; then everything whe morgid and overwelmed in the thought thet to-morrow I should again he speeding awny from Christine, this time with no assuranes of her love Christine, this time with no spsuranee of her love to consols me. Feverishiy throwing such 0 console me. Feverishiy throwing buch thoughts from me, I walked to my window and leansd ont, coeling my unhappy spirit by the sight of thio everlaeting ocoan. In a moment, Christizel's voice osme hap through the open winhad givou to me was gone
I closed the window and ast down; to-morrow night I would he for enough away from all enchantment, I resolved that I would not stay I would receive the adieur of my friende directly ftor supper, and not prolong the farewelle.
I desoended when the hell rang, and met Miss Gervase in thre hall. She sat heside me at table, she did not mention my departure, though huli the people near us asked me questions coneers ig why I was going, and urging me to remain.
With the hand of Miss Gervase on my urma munterod through the perlora, offering my good byes to thoso who ohose to receive them. At last we advanced to Christine, who stood by the window with Felton.
cams to pay ny parting dovoirs, Mise Mel"ano," I ssid, "join with me in the mish that we way happdy meet again.
sbe did not raise her hand and replied:

do most sing

moment after, on tho rendered my stay at the seaside infinitely more ofiered her gratitnde as heartfelt as any I ove knew, and I hoped wo might moet again
meot as warm friends as we parted now.
moot as warm friends ne we partcd now.
Till now I hed nimost forgotten tho insinuationa I had beard coneorning tho relationa Letween $m$ y companion and myseif. her particularly interested in me; now at our last interview I could not deteot any interest beyond a friondly one. Though her voioo was silightly constrained and somewhat cold when she nnawered, I hud reason to believe I bad causod it.
"I am very happy to havo
"I am very happy to havo amnsed you, or driven canni from you, Mrr. Standish," she sald driven ennui from you, Mrr. Standish," she sald
"it would seem but fair exchango between na; aort of payment for your assistanee on the rocks. She withdrew her hand from my arm, and said: snid:
"Sha
"Shall we not return to the house now? happy journey to you."
Sho left me at the foot of tho staire, and Shutting ont the sounds of eompany below retired at an enrly hour. Fortunately, I slep heavily; a dresmless sleep from which I was sorry to bo awekened. I dressed hurriedty, and sorry to bo awekened. I dressed hirriedy, and locked my trunks. I had still an hour to spare, and stood hy my open window inhaling the invgosution of the salt morning breoze. My sesgorntion of the salt mornig
"Don't let us lose the first boat," I asid, without turning round.
"No, sir' ; there's tims onough," he replied, and advancing to my side, he gave me a eard, Beying: advancing to my side, he gave me a eard, seying:
"The lady wibhed me to hand you thie." The lady wighed me to hand you thie."

> nd iu pencil the words:
"Hinve yoll timo to grant me a ten minntes' in-erviow in tho beck parlor ?"
I was more surprised than I conld have exI was more surprised than I could heve expressed. Orushing the pastehoard in my ingers, I afked the man if the lady was downstnirs. I was standing before Miss Melvane.
She greeted me coolly, seomed propared for mg she greeted me coolly, eeomed propartly
"I holieve MMiss Gervase to be one of my hest fitends, I eertainly love her as snch," friends, I eertainly love her as snch,"
I bowed silently. Miss Miolvane I bowed silently. Miss Molvane had heen Ehseutly twiring the ring on her finger, now she Chseutly twirling the ring on ber finger, now she "I know your tíue here is very ehort," sho continued, "soI will he ns hrief as possible. You minat understand that beeruse I love Dora Gervaso, I am interestod in her happiness. You Cerraso, I am interestod in her heppiness. You must kuew also that she has not the slightest knowledge of what I intend to any, and that sho must nover know. Mr. Standish-
With a soeming effort sho suddenly raised hen yes to mano and continued.
"Mr. Standigh, judging from your manner, eertainly thought yoy loved her.
I eould not restrais
"And I and asid:
"And sour
nuhappy that you leave her thms. Had I not felt not so assarrod of your reciproeating that feeling I should not lane spoken to yon."
I loft my aent and walked to the chimnos pieco. I loaned my stm on the sheif, and held my hand scross my eyes. Now I could he nessured that thie woman whom I loved wee wishing me to morry ber friond. At last I said, but without morry her friond. At etirring from my position
"It humiliates as minch as it surprisos me to lenn that you think Miss Gervase has an affec tion for me. I eannot but think you are mistrion for me. I tricen mnst helieve me," was her reply; "I am
"After a moment's pauso she eontinued
"You must not think mo offiolous, but it seems to me impossible that you shonld not rotura that affeetion. I can hardly lring myedf to believe afleetign. I am not to expect the entire happiness of that 1 am m Her voice banls to a low tone before it eessed. I looked at her. She ant quietly in a low chair hy tho table; her hands as sbe had folded them; tho tho table; her hands as sbe had folded them; tho ruby gleaming on hon white finger. Her whole aspect to is easual observer was that of a aort nf uterestad quiet. That soft atilliness atung me to fury. Guly the irregular rise and fall of the ting crimson roen at her throst showed that she was not as entiryly indifferent as alie looked. Impelled hy something irresistible within me, I turned fiereely towards her, and eried: hunted and wonnded enougb." I paised, not heeause I had not werde, hnt I paiased, not hecsuse I had not werds, hnt hecnuse they came po barning, toooverwhelining Mr. Standish "" hhe exclaimed, depreatingly, "Let me speak now, once for nal", I interyupted, It is not onongh that I should love you intensely, hopeleasily, that I shonld he soparated from yon hy an eternal cruelty. All this I have horus, hoping, belieging, that yon btill loved me, Iut met youers. I had fondly hoped the hol You have said that yo as everiasting as her Mo marry Misa Gerraes, Chriatina
I nttered the last word os I sau the frice of Christine gradually torned to me, with an oxpred sion as undefinaile as it was thrilling. I thonght I went going to spenk, but she did not, I went on inking of hought of loving Mies Gervese winking of yon has alwaye exeluded tho possihope yon will not be very mueh disuppointed that I am not in lovo with your friend.
There was silence for a moment, when sho seid,
"You will please pardon and forget this connor. I will not detain you."
Hor yoice was strangely shaken and aweet. I tepped suadeniy to her side.
"Forgivo me," I erid, "but you heve not wom the Lindsay oham simee yon havo been here. Have you lost it ?"
In the one sentence I scemed to return to tho yoars gone ay, to stas.
A elight tremor camo to her hips. She sat down in the chair from whiel she had just risen. "for I
"I have no right to that chain," ehe esid, "for "I have no right
m not a Lindary."
I sant on my knees at her feet. A futare for whioh I had not hoped seamed opening hefore me. took her hand. "ou promised to do so ?" I astod.
She withdrew her hand, and placed it softly on my foreheed. Like a blessing it lingered there, and she enid:
"I have worn it because ever aince you geve
"A I I loved you.
ing into those dusky eyen that eareseed ine; "I am oue of the fovididen rece, and now it in you who have been mistaken in your linesge. You hnow told you, you had nat a Scotch fuee. Some tim you mast tell me the story, just now ions want harrier, no gnlf, that now we may love united, as we havo eo loug loved seperated."
stor, the told me:
"A story of romaneo, Staudish," ahe said, "bnt the nortb of Scotland is fruitful in strange stories, I shnil explain to you how justly I oame hy my olive eldin and daxk hatr. Yoa know that trihe of gipsies that have from time immemoriel en camped on the common at the south side of the Lindany eatate. Canning, eovetoras ae ever any of her people, the nurae employed by Donald Lindsay was a distant conuection of the gipsies on the common. The old tale of their craft, Standish. She placed an infant of her tofle in Standish. She placed an iwfant of her type in the eradle where the heireas of the Lindseys had the eradue where the Ihat ehild was the Christine who grew up so strongly tinctured with all the prejudices of the gonuine Lindsaye, who wore their chnin of hate gent
my and the en old witb all their vindictiveness. By-and-bye an old gipsy demanded money from Donald Lindazy in The proofs were ineonteatehle. Unhappily the The proofs were inconteatenle. Unhappay to real heiress died in her chadiood. I nead not tell you how terrible a blow this was to my nather I shall always eall him so. Thongh he stall lovo me, I can nover sneeecd to his estates; they'g Mr. Mel when 1 if i had heen the daughter of Donald Lindsay, wonld have been my uncle, ha ydopted me as his deughter and beiress, that why I am with him here. I eagerly emhraee tho opportunity of escaping in she panasod in ber narration, smiled a little as so said:
"And now, Standibh, I em not a Lindsay, ouly Christino, the nameloss gipsy girl. Do not forget yonr Drummond pride.
"Your warning is too late," I said, gaily; " beI spolke the ruhy on her tingor.
I spoke the ruhy on her tingor.
Sire replied, and the tendernoss in her voice toned for my years of lonelneess:
"My love, iustead of a clain, I have now a ring "My Ment"
to wenr."

Frenci Peasant Women.-Every haman carry mont things on their hendis, and they carry every-

378
FRANK LESLIE'S ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.
[Siept. 3, 1804.

SWEET MEMORIES-RAIN.

How they pllasined the window pane
How they yened npon the plain-
How they glitered in the dell-
How tbey patterect, tindled, tell-
Oll, worve not forgotten griito rially dencing, mad with glee, Tiesing blon, Kiesing blossom, buab and triee, Wian it e'or entrance agnin, Cooling, tinkling, fulling rain? Firet a aprinkle, then a shower, Witb a deahing, drenching power, Great drop of rain?

мезrecurno. Hearken, siririt of the Rain,
Sead those liguid gems againSend thone lignia genm again-
Now we lift onr oyes to theo,

For drops of rain.
All of blessing's in thy gitiWhat's in honor-what't in tbrift Daje lig on, and falls not one Ascet drop of rain. Come, off appinklinge, gently downyer,

VINA MARSH;

 THE SECRET OF THE MANOR.
chaptes tima drawn game.

 A bovirisrly wind and a elondy sky heraldad Lutrifire hounde. There bed alroody beon eome cubl-hunting, hit now the eenson was to begin inrigit good enrnest, and sportsmen welcomed engeriy tbe promised ploastara.
be began to live as coon as he might lift tbe buwt to higa hoonder, ar guide his hunter across couniry at the risk of neck and limbs. Bootod up to the kneee, with sharp gpurs at his beelis and n red coats on lio back, Joek etood this morning on the steps in front of bis house, waiting until A mma should be " Now, then, Nan at all, but merely for the ealke of relieving visis ouly mind. In another minuto Mine Naween joined him, and juunty hat. Jack put tho end of his whip into bie mouth, and sounded an emplatic whistle, which was responded to in less than a minute by Jnock and hise sieter etarted ing their borses in orider that they quiptly, reerervfor the grand businees of the day. The bounde verv to meet in Beechwood Park, the master being a brother ma
A broalkfast of provisions oafficient to eatisfy sill colncre and tompt all appetites bad been prepared at the manor-house ; put Jack Dawee fact too eure of meeting Lord Gillingham there to partele of on tbe
over.
Nina had never followed tho hounds before, but, thirsting for some excitement to dult the gnawing pain at her heart, ehe had decided to necompany her fither on this oconsion. Mr. Mersh was not orer-plesed mitl her decision, bnt he did not oppose it. He felt tbat eho might possibly dere him, pond, though he wae realigigig perfectly how much, of hie duthortity had passed drom him, he did not care to have it actively proved ; so Nina bad her care to have it actively proved; so Nina bad her own way, turnuing a deaf ear to Katie's eupplications and ber mother's fears.
Captain Marath had beara her express her intention of following the hounds, and porhape he tention of following the thounds, , and porhape he had not believed eho would carry it into effect, for hed not believed seto would carry it int is eisce, when be met her in the hall that morning duly equippec, a bright red feather enciroling her tiny equipp pony to-day $P$, he inquired, in a tone of very douhtful satiafaction.
"And why not?" nothing of wbich you knew your father to disdiaspprovovo." Of which I knew Captain Merch to "No, Idid not mean that. I I m peifectly aware that I have no claim upon you; if if bad, you may be sure I ehould epeak in a more decided way Did you belong to me, I would not permit this "Yours notionss ane no entedilurian," said Nina, scornfully. "Xour mot.
tor of Nonhis at loast,"
"Ninn, sparo my mother-remember she is dead," answered Cyril, in a tone of deop feching.
"Any light mention of ber name in the worst pain you can give me." "I na very, very sorry; I spoko withont tbought," eaid Nina, atretching ont her hand towards him with sometbing of her old impulsive "Ob, Nins, wby will you not be always like this next? Surely it cannot be necessary to try so many mooils when this one becomes you so well. Nisture has given you such a very sweet grace-a crece tbat may be always used without losing one sbado of its gless, one ieta of tha ebarm. Fo be caken into an bonest man'0 heart, to be lept and cberished there with a love tbat ig aimost fierce in its lure and puissanee-is that nothing to yon, Nian? Can yon stand alone, with no one to rejoico in your beanty becanse it in his arna, and Nimn, I tell yout tbot yom, above all women, are dependont npon love; that even as yon shit yeur heart against it youl yearn for it too. Da not turx home and home ties. Do yon know what old age is, standing elivering and deeolate at the tbreshold of happier people, watohing their joys withont sharing them, longing to plack the crown of inasharing them, longing to phuok the crown of intsternity of their brows, becanse yon nro cbildless, nd deselate, snd sorrowful, with no hnsband lookoncs clinging about your knees and calling yon mother? Nina, my poor child, you have beers sore tried and tempted, perhaps yon may oven have einned; bnt I can forgive. You wore so young, it einned; lut I con forgive. You wore so young, it was hardly your fault; you were imprudent. say, was hardly your fault;

child, am I not right ?
"Chitders, and desolate, and corrowful" -he trano must be. Sho had no trons. What could she eay ? She only etood mnte before him, her cheek doadly white even in the before him, her cheek doma slandow of the rod plume.
"Speats,
"Speak, Nina," and his yoice wae low and bager as bo bent over her, until hie blondo beard lmost owept her cheel.

What am I to say?"
Say that you can conscientionely becopt the love of an honest man.
Sbe had grown ead
Sbe had grown ealdenly onim-the celmness, and awe and despait of the prieoner listening to and awe and despsir of the prieoner listening to a judge pronouncing doom.
"I oannot answer you, Captain Mareb," was her reply, vary coldly and qniettly epoken
"And I am to inderstand -"

Nothing-or, rather, anytbing you like.
And you can give np your futurc-"
And you can give np
I must- to the paet."
Her thice bad boftened
Her thee bad softened again as sho epole tbe loet worde, snd tbere came a look of wietful tenderCaptain Marah was deeply agitated, hie love and hie pride struggling together in his beart as in they were eworn foes who had met at last. He whe still bending over ber, anth she did not move, when Mrs. Trent'e door euddenly opened, and she came out into the hall. There was an expreseion of pity ee vell as reproach in licr fuce as sbe went ap to Nina and caid,
"They are all ready to start, mies; you had better ga. Mr.
or three times."
Nina gathored up her ekirts, stooped to recover then moved ewittly away. When ebe dieappeared then then Mrs. Trent turned to Ceptain Marsh and eaid, docidedly, but respectfully:
"Can I have a yon, eir, in my room ?"
"I nm almost ont
"I nm almost aifraid tbat if, ae you say, they are going to start at onco, I should be missed, answored Captain Mareh, with perfect courtesy "but I can come to you this evening after the firet Jinner-bell has rung end the othere dinner-bell has rung and the othere have gone to their roome." heir rooms." sir ; $I$ sball not detain you long,"
"Thank you,
And Drs. Treut bowed and re-entered ber room. And wars. Aready mounted when Captain Maral got out. The scene was a pretty one when viewod from the bigh etcp of the old Manor Horase. The impatient bounde were gathered in a knot at the turthest cad of the lawn, and the red coste of the huntsmen gave animation to the dark backgronn huntsmen gave animation to the dark backgronnd formed a fitting pentre to the gronp. Her heautiful check had gained a endden flueh of oxcitoment and her lps were apart, whilst her plume ewayed brokwa.
head.
Capta
Captain Marsh turned from her with $a$ foeling of He hat wae almost loathing for the inetant He had no actual certainty for all his terriblo her horee with an 6ase that had sometbing defiant about it, with that red glow on ber face end strang wild gleam in ber cyee, Cyril found it possible believe that her silence under bie questionings had owned a motive which he darod not misunderstand. If ebe showed boraeif sed and humble be was her tyrant; bnt the instant he could make sure that ehe was feeling any happinese not taken directly ehe was feeling any happinese not taken directly from him, and euriching them witb the memory of her eweetnose, be wae visited hy suoh keen pange of jealous rago that his beart within him felt tile a bitter burning load of pain,
He mounted his horse, searcely knowing how be got into the eaddle, and spurred the poor brute fill it reared and enorted witb pain. At this moment Lord Olllingham, who bad not joined tho otbera at break fust, as Jack Dawes had eupposed be wonld do, came on the scenc. His lordship was splendidly moumted, as he was sure to bo, but was splendidy mounted, as he wna sure to bo, but loo ed terribly palo and worn, and held hisreinsin lon eed terribly palo and vers tromulous fingers.
very tromulous fingers.
The hrunde now galloped off with their noses to the ground and darted into cover at Grassmere Wood, shout a mile firther on. You could hear the coft whining of tho honnde and the rustle and stamping of horser feet amonget the dead deavos and tangled undorwood. Presently a atout old Reynard was hunted ont of her lair and darted Mrough tho wood and into somo meadows of Mr. Marsh's, hotly paraued by the eagor doga, the huntsmen close at tbeir beoln. Tben the chase began in real earnest.
The poor fox was sorely preesed, but she kept up a brave heart all throngh. She never once trued back to measure the strangth of her ene-1 mies, or to scan their whereabonts, bat kept stes, or to scan their whereabonts, but kept stoadiy on, marrelligg a hitte, ports?
was, teath to her what wae death to her shonld of neoces sity bu sport to them. If the injnstice of this principlo was made dear to her loen ing
"Weul whio won" she timpariousy reiturated game."
chivten viominnxas mur viemir.
Ir was with focliug nenrly approading to

 mome cuccounts witit his bailif; thr turterer was bosy Coant and met $A$ recady summons to euiter. The housekeeper leoked palo, but was ealon and dignifiod, and the feeling of her cuperionity was eo strongly recalled to Captain Marsh's mind that he forbore to seat hünselft until he bust received an invitation.
ahe handed himably andenteed his delicacy, for Some women in ber position would have conaifiered it neceesary to expatiate largely upon tbe liberty she bad ventured to take; but Mre. Trent had too much independonce and seif-rcepect to humble havo been there if he had eeen anything lowering flonting hio uncle'r honackecper. She was a lady, so far ae appearance and manner could make her one, and Cyril was too secuure of hie own position to make those eritieal distinctione which betray solf-made men.

Sras. Trent hegan tho conversation in a tone of iet simplicity.
I know, six, that you aro not easily decefved, therefore you underetood that my interrup tion this morning wns tho resnlt of a fised designand not accidental, ae might bave been sapposed?"
"Yes, thia much I understood, certainly, but I
" quite in the dark as to your motive.
"Miss Nina ie not free to accept any attontion
"Ie the obstacle moral or legal?"
"I cannot anewer that question", ever, Mre. Trent. I am convinced that Mies Nina does not perceivo sny legnl barrier to an undertanding betwoen ue, althougb ebe acknowledges o nome moral impodiment, which, at timeen, slie allowe me to hopo many be siumotuated. Inm not apt to be over-expansive, Mrr. Trent, bnt it ie useapt to be over-expansive, Mrra. Trent, bnt it ie uselees trying to conceal that which you already lmow eo well; only it seeme to me, if you really wieh to benefit either of us, you must be more explicit." " Unfortnnately, siir, I am eo placed tbat a full confidence would not only be a personal injury to mybelf, but rank treachery to another. 1 must give my warning witbont explanation or comgive my watming witbont exp meut." "I cannot see my way out of all theee mysterice, and they perplex and pain me. It seensis to me that I might expect eandor from my consin, if not from you."
"There are some things that a woman nevor telle," answered Mrs Trent, with a slight contelle," snswered Mrs. Trent, with a slight conetriction of her firin lips.
"But you must remember that, in leading me
But you nust remember that, in leading me so far nnd then forsalang me, you leave me prey to a zuapiciou which may be fur worse tban th truth."
"I ca
"I can toll you this mueb, Ceptain Marsb: that xise Nine ie far more to be pitied than blamedthet bor honor is etsinless in the oyce of God. There may be cometbing woree beyond, but witb this I have no right to deal. She judges hereolif, perhape, as no onc eognizant of all the cirom-stances of the case wonld judge ber. Tbis is her punislunent, and I devoutly hope that it may'go no further.
"I Is there

I hardly know ; hut I bnve felt for come time as if we were sleeping on a rolcono which migh any dwy hreak out into foll fury. If that hour sbould ever come when yom are by, rememher that Miss Nina will have need of a etout heart and that Miss Nina will have need of a etout heart and a etrong arm to carry her through, and do not fil A etrong arm to carry her,
"So help me God I will not1 And now, Mrs.
Trent, before I leave, will you allow me to be impertinent enongh to ask yon two queetion about youreelf?"
"You may ask them, sir, but I cannot promise to anewer them"
"Whewer them." (I told you tbey were very im-
"Who ? pertinent ones) and what is your connection witb Colonel St. George in
"I am Mr. Mrarsb'e housekceper, and I have no connection with Colonel St, George." "But-excuss me-I eavi him here, in your "But-exeuss me-I eaw him here, in your "Yon have niso dono me tbe favor to entor my make a great mistake if be reckoned mpon an conmection between us on that acconnt."
"Then Colonel St. George oeme to aek the eame queetion as myseir pisquired.
"By no moene. He had known me in sappier past that we met to disones, And ncw, Captain Mursh," added Mrs, Tront, who hady fallen inseneibly into the tone and manner of ofs cqual, "it is eibly into the tone and manner of of cqual, "it is alrealy a quarter-past six, and Mr. Nareh dines punctually at the halis hour; I am sfraid you will punctually at the hardy have time to dress."
hat
"I am an oldsoldier," answerod Cyril, with a faint attempt at a smile; and he wont out from tbis interview, through which he had expected sneh grand rebuite, not only disappoinien, bat more Cyril had preaervei Cyri had preaerved the impression that Mrs* Tho fandt that Nina seoned most to imply Mrs. Trent had denied for ber, whilst laying stress on another whioh all his penetration had not onabled hin to discover. And yet, whilst all tbose miserable compliontions seemod to leave separate the river wras too much for w. Jeromes was juat thiling me that tho whiter bad rion to withd two foct of the top mo that tho whter bad rioan to witbdn two foot of the top of tho rock. $I$ was in the set of kening formard to feel th wben amomthing thumped hewily agnint the rock: Jcromo foll with his foot, to soo if it hand lotigeci $A t$ to namo moment thero was another thrmp, thon a

the roting and jarring agninst the rock; comething had rected on it, for tho muter curtod up nudenly, and
and
 hat wo conld not move the lolped utlok, Juas se we gave up ail thonght of getting it off, smother stick came Nock, puaing it wirone, Jetrome screaned to me to by my hand, did so at onoo. I tried and sllpped, and ogether, and the armm munt no they vere being jammed Hgethar, and he arm wan laoken whe a twig and the fiesh crushed. Jeromo heard me cry ont, and thinking

 Jerome palled mo bsek, aing mo what was the mstter.
Saddenly I sw a ught. The foy mado mo forget my psin.
Whint e ejght was thon rereated around uat The timber from the upper part of tho Bosver creek wail coming down wiah the freabet. Sevemal atiote win coming down wiak the reabet. Sevemal stioke biol lodged on our rock, and it wat a mercy we were no both Ewept away.
My arm began to paln me, and yet in my confostion I waw no wos of goting off until tbe ercelk fell, whicb wo row whonla be fo three or four hourn. I was looldn in the river watcbing the timber coming down, and nursing my brokon arm, when Jerome eried ont, 'Il juraming all anough there turn of the river, and noar the besd of the repid. my sound hand andarm, and soon wo wore safoly handod on the jam. Wo rusched the nlanty atter wo mon diepersed to work, bnt ins the courne of the day Jerome and I got a ride to the eotlement, whero I eoon got

EXPLOSION OF THE POWDER

 BARQES nd Gen. Moado, atVirginin, July 8 .
We illnstrate in this iasue one of the moet borrible explosions that as journaliete we have boon The Fondrioka, louded with aramunition, was unloading eboal is foct from Le what beingengrged, Nearly 100 barrels of powder still remalined on boord wbes che udtenly lilow up.
Yhe oxploeton occurred at a fexr minutes before one cclock in the afternoon, and the greater portion of the at dinner, rendering the toee of life mueb less than woula otherwios have hcea the case. There wrce, bowever several bundred negroen and a number of board the bonts and on the banke of the river.
The noise lasted about 30 scconds, and witucsnas esy
the Ehoek was felt a long fotanoe on tho vile of the Express, wheh wero almost ntterly torn dovi, the liager number of persons occupytng them eccaping with elifht hruiect.
 Had the ground been level the loes of we woulh ne
doubt bave excudiod thas which resuited.
 all kinds of etores, sharge number of old sadales an picoos of barness being amonget tile debria.

 Some acerrihe tho oxplosion to so the fall of a shell in the hold.

THE SIECE OF PETERSBURC

Burylng the Dend undor a Flag of Afien the repulse on the 30th Gen, Burnside sent a flsg of hruce to aek leave to reanovo our wounded and bury our dead. On the lat of August a reply was given, and working partiee, white and colored, evnt out. Our Artist eketebes the torrible secDe. The bodies, after Jying in a midsummer gun for two dayg, these remauna of the galinat fellown who toll. The rebol

The Wolp. - From tho Rio Colorado we had

NECRO SUBSTITUTES.
THe scheme of Northern States sending down to the Bordera to pick up negroes as nubatitutes for day. Massachusetta begua it. New York city, prefor ring a draft of ber eitizens, has decilined it. Our Artist depiets a poone of this colisting, this new lind of negro market. To men accustomed to beligg sold the affuir et the monej. A Etory is told of a man in Missouriwhite msn-wbose ill luck got him smone the drafica He scraped up enough to buy a subetitute and sallied ont to the nepro quarter; seoing a likely rubject loung ont to the negro quarter; seoing a likely rubject Joong
ing by an alley, bo bailcd him with a-"Hallol don't you want to muke some money $\mathrm{T}^{\prime \prime}$ "How, masaas?" wat the alowly drawled snewer. "Why, I am drafted, and will give any man 8500 to tole nuy place". "Don't fellow to go for me. Will yon P' $^{\prime \prime}$

SHELLINC WORKMEN ENCACED ON REBEL RAM AT CHARLESTON.
$\qquad$ aketcb of the robel rimm boyding in Charliciton Darbon as seen througb of powerfut glass This 18 not a worl
wideb our army and nevy can allow to proceed uninter rupted; and baving got tbe ronge quite accurotely, ae hrequency and effect thet oftonco drop sbell aronnd with Irequency and effect thet ofton compels tbem to suppeni their inbors sbrupty, and not nifrequently for a com siderable time.

CEN. SHERIDAN'S HEADQUARTERS,
Harpor's Ferry.
The appointment of Gen. Sheridnn, an old ond tried army oflleer, to the general direction of affiirs on the Upper Potomac, baty restored a conflence asdily Laken by provlous mtecarriage. Gen. Sberidan, wiose nortrait we gave eo recentif that it must be frech in the minds of our readers, bee outabilinbed bis headquastors At a manson on Harper's ferry heights, which we llus trato. Tho originaly ine mansion ebowa marka of tbo deudy strugglos that bave boen carried on around it the roof and cornice are torn by sbells, and the outdetertion and neclect.

OCCUPATION OF NEW WINDSOR
OUR readers will find among our illustrations a view of the occnpation of New Windsor by rebel cavalry during tibe recent rala, Whew Windhor in a hriving post-vilare in Carroll countr, Marylend, ncar cuougb to be visited by robel ruidert. As these purties dash into a town some cudcavor to eacope with valusblen but are generally parsued and pay dearly. The un tho sbocmakers und draggists next, and the publlcana, of course, ane thronged with sinners. It is a and recori to turn over the purge of cur paper for the hat three ears end eco our picture.gallery of ruined American towne and nulding plonty, with every mark of activity, energy end - Warceably by the red band of war:

Our Ruetchee, truthrul and carefully dramn, can ecarcely be appreciatedi but we notice witb pieanare

UTS VIOTORY AT MOBILE
Few commandera by sea or land have wo their wey moro enccesafolly to the popnar beart thas

 Now Orleans he gainod crery noint of spplazse, nud arubbes pat two rebel foris in uis onn nisle, ,iliences

 baso and clicososam leodidig, closely foulowed by tho Mctiscomet, Oncida, Yasco, &a, 18 in all, hatased two hnttorien were pased. Tho Brookiva was the irret tol.

Then the fleot wte fhirly ynder weigh the lino hended afrectly for Fort Morgnn, the enemy opening a torriffic ire from Forts Mongan and Gaines, and asedated hy tho are from Forts Morgan nad Gaines, and neclatod hy tho grans from the robel ram Tennessec and four other velo Eole of the entranco of the bays

FUN FOR THE FAMILY. A PARTs correspondent thus describes an odd

 lear
How
bours corts

 hro while itig dian not hat loong bectuecen them, however

 as on tho solum, tion,
oif during the ectlon.

THE CACTUS PLANTS OF CALIFORNIA.

Tres San Franciseo Bulletin says: "The che giory of the hothouses of Earope and the wonder of travolers, whose ilowers nud fruite are soen in every leazue of surface in Sonth Callfornis, Arizons and the Peninewio-hine nevar mufficiently attrueted the ettontion of our filoritus or farmers. Fifty.flve specles of eacten are kuown in the botany of theee pections, and they innary appearanco, forming boantiful orxaments whon in tbe rlcinity of ofher regetstion. If the diffleront species, all corered with thorns, could be got togother in a Call fornip garden they would form cane of tho moot singalas smd uniquo displays it la possible o concolve in gardan.
ing, end it to to be nemombered thit the fruits are ma valuable for human food as the flowera are for feasting the eve.
of contral North America or in whut we may term the of cantral Northa Amestics or in whut we may term tho OAfifornin fimuacera of climatee sud woils, ss they are fourd from the parallel of Cariboo to Capo St. Lcha, nod from the eastorn Alopes of the Rocky Yountains in North Dacotah to the alia river. Thoy are met with in North Dacotah to the alia river. They are met with in all alititadea between the Cilland Panams, from the line of perpetanl enow to that of the reashore.

2Kargaret 3lount's JNew 2sovel.

DOWAE RESERVE;

THE MYSTERY AT WISHING WELL.
by margaret blotnst. micstratiens by darlez. price so centr.

 "Domio Reserve."
Mallod free of potago on rocecipt of pricic. FREDERIO A. MRADY, Publumbor, 聞AD, PUTNAM'S

patent STOCKING SUPPORTER
A. corrin & co., Sole Mannfacturera, 627 Broadway, Nv. צ.

AMERICAN BILLIARD TABLE

 bale by

IMMPORTANT NOKICE TO OFFICERS, SUTLERS, GUNSMITHS, $\qquad$
Tho coosast buyereof all articles comencted with Guns,

 485.8

Sifty Misthods of Mmployment- Arts,

Do You Want to get Mharried?

Just Published.

or  FRANK LIESLTE'S  TUDCFTE  Being No. 78,  FOR SEPTEMBER.

Its Grand Cartoon is one of the most telling hits of the age, and represents Mri. Lin coln, the Political Blondin of the time, wheeling a Barrow on the Tightrope.
Also, the Hend of the Halabama ; besidees Seven Splendid Humorous Slretches of the deplorable state of Europe owing to Emi-gration-besides numerous Comic Eivgravings by the First Artists of Amorice and Europo-Leech, Temniel, Rosenberg, Betlew, Newman, Forbes, Crane, Howard, McLeilan, ete., eto.
The Letterpress is equally admirable, the con tributions being by our first authora.

Price 10 Cents.

frank leslees

Publication Office,
537 Pearl Street,

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

The gexretary of tho Thensury piver notlco that eub riptlons will be recelved for Conpon Treasary Notse, ayabile three Jeara from Anguat 15th, 1854, with nem mund interest at the rate of coran and taree-tenthe po a lawful money.
Thece notes will be convertible, at the option of the Dolder at maturits, into alx per cent. gold bearing bonds, payalle not less than five nar more than two yeara from thotr date, as the Covernimest mily clech
They will be issued in denominatione of naty, one hyind Ave bundred, one thousanit and five tho asnd dollase, and all subseriptions munt bo for afty dollars, or some mulutple of afty dollars.
The notas will be tranmaittod to the owniens fice of ranoportstion charges ah noon after the reecipt of the riginal Certifioates of Deposil at they can be preparod.

As the noten draw mereet from Augant 15, pareona mation depoaits enbroquent to that daste must pay tho interest eccurued from date of noto to dato of dopoeit.

Parties depositing twenty-live whourand dollars and upwrus for these notoe at any one time will be nllowod a comminglon of one quartor of one per sente, wiveb coipt of a bill for the amicunt, certsed to by the ofieer with whom the dopoeit mas made. No dectuotione for cocumbsuione mut bo made from the deposite.

Special Advantages of this Loan.
it is a national savings bank, ofiering a bigber roth of intetant than any otber, and tho beet ser curity. Any sarmege bank wheb puys its depositora in O. 8. Notes, constiders that it in peying in the bent circolating medium of the country, and it conset pay th anything better, for lts own onede are oithor in Govern. ment paper.
It is equelly convenlent as a tomporary or perraascat nveetment. The nothe con always be colla for within a fractiou of their fince and accoumulated interest, and aro the host eecurity with banks as collateralu for duecouni.

Convertible into a Six per Ceut.
$5-20$ Gold Bond.
In afdition to the very liberal intoront on tbe notes for thrco years, thits privilege of converrion it now orth ahont three per cent. per annum, for the corrent te for 5.20 Bonds is not leso than nine per cenb pro thm, and before the war the prominm on six per cent U. S. stocka was ovor twenty per cont. It will be eeon that the nctant-proilt on tuls loan, at the preson.
rato, is not lese than ten por conth. por anaum.

Its Bxemption from State or T (IU nicipal Tazation.

Ent nelde from oll the nalvaniagee we have onumerated, apecial Act of Congross cxempts all bonds and Treanury hate from local taxation. On the aversge, tbio exemp on is worth ebout two per cont. por annum, accordís to the rele of taxotion in various parts of the country.

It is belleved thet no scourities offar oo great inducemonto to lenders as thoso insued by tho Government Ia all olher forms of indobtedness, the falth or abilit, of private parties, or stock companies, or separate con. nusities, only, is pledged for paymunt, wille the whole of all the ollligations of the United States.

While the Govelnment offere the most liberal termes Ior its loans, it bellevea that the very strongeet appel will bo to the logalty and petriollsm of tho people.
Dupiteato ourtiacetes will be lisued for tll deposils The partien deponiting mnst endorse apon the originat certincoto the danomination of aotes roquired, and whether they aro to be ismued in blank or peyabie to order. When so andorsed it must bo left with the oficer rocoiving the depeait, to be forkarded to the Tresury Departaneyh

Subecriptione will bo recoived by the Ircasurcr of thes United stales, at Woshitiogtan, tho several Ansolant Treasurexa and deniganted Deponitaries, ana by ail Hin tional aLl respectable banis and banieras bhogghout the country will give fur thar inforwation and New York. AFYORD EVEKY faceaty io sulechibers.
3. H. WINSLOW & CO. THE GRATTEST OPPORTUNTYY ETVER OFFERED 100,000 WATCHES, OTANS, EETS OF JEWRLERY, GOLD

WVOrth $500,000:

 Tomn in thi Coiulry.
2. ㅍ.

Sterooscopic Pictures and Cartes de Visire, ateet imparthitone

the Confessions and zasperience of an Invalid.

Old Fyes Made NJew!
$\Delta$ pampluet direstivg how to apeedily restoro tigh Scent by nisil, fice, on recolipt of 10 centa. Addresis

46
E. B. Yootr, , M. B.

REEMINGTON'S
(r) ARNY AND NAVY

Approved by the Government.
 E. REMMEAVGTON & gons,

How to Play any Musical Instrument whyhout a teacher.

 posipal ouver ditson $&$ co., Fublinivers, Eoton,

 $466-9$

23eautiful Ealse Moustaches, 60 conts Wanted-A Gents to sell our New Mrape Honk, elo Prico onty 15 eenta each. Whoicesis sip 1

Than moist succ

FRANK LESLIE'S

LadY'S Magazine

Gazette of Fashion,

 FOR sEPTMMEME, 2864,IS UNSURPASSED IN ATTRACTION
foLl stzid patyen of a foaro body and DOLDLEFAGE COLORED PLATE OF FABHOMN, ombracing stylea Dowhere ebse found fourpage cut,
containing thirty-ons difiarant drssees.
Wow strle of Hitt, Coreages, Fichue, Jackets, Hoodcontents, ${ }_{T}$ Tridi in tho Thiligbit. numatrate.

Paul diarratt; or, the secrat. nunatmiod. Exhe Doctor't Wile, by Difies Bradon-continnod. With olther attructive matter, illustratione of Foredga

Buy it by All IN eans ! FRANK LESLIE,
 WHOLESALE AND RETAIL,
DEGRAAF & TAYLOR,
(FOMNDTLIE E. P. DMGRAAE),
NO. B7 BOWTHET, NTEW YOFRE.

Thay are propared to oflto great inducemants to the Whiolesulo Trade for Timo or Onsh. Their stock oonaiste in part, or
ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND CHAMBER FURNITURE;
Mahogany and Walnut, Parlor and Chambsr Furniturs
 enamelled chamber furnture, in Sota, from 5231 3100.
Tucker's New Style Patent Spring Bed, The bost as well ss the chanpeat of any in uns. Hotall price, ga esch.
Their facllition for manufecturing dory compstition. All work gaamithed an repreantod.

Photograph Cards for Ceptlemer.-

HOSTETTER'S cajmbratad

STOMACH BITTERS.

A TnMRLY WARNING TO THE SIOK. -It A AB. Untted Blatos aril ficoded with, the dirost poisona, under

 Sold by all Drugsista and Family Grocara.

Hoststter's Stomach Bitters,

$$ 10$ AGENTME $$ 10$

G.WANTED WANTE O

Dr, Briggs's Golden O'Dor. WHYY BECAUSE IT has proved to glve satisfaction to Thouachds. TUe Gotan ODor wil forco ffill git of 455.5

Beauty--Erunt's Bloom of Rosee,

If you want to TEnow, &c., read MEDICAL COMMON SENSE.

Iiterary Agener. Sistablished in $\mathbf{1 8 4 2}$.

 to publighbras
Phe subberiber contimnes to recoive and read manuald and bensint autbors. In all ceses lister of pdice ehould bo forvarded by mand whila manucripts oro nent, prepaid, rithur through the Poet ofice or bexpee, Cooley's Cahinet Printing Omce

GOURAUID:
Italian Medicated Soap,
 and

 and Draggists gunerall
"Aelf Proservation"M-A Now Mredical

Stereoscoplc Views and Carteo do Visite

MATRIMONAL FAVORS
BRDAL SETS, BRIDAL GARNTTURES, BRIDES AND PARIS FLOWERS,
At TUCLER'E. 769 Broadway.
$$ 100$ per Mronth. Activo and reliable Agents in pho Aruy anh evengwhere siso, to the wos

 Preeerves ths Eyes, avolde booding. No basting.

Attention, Company!

75,000 Whatches, Chains, &ec. WOIRTHEI $100,000.

 450-62

"Poychomancy,"-How eithor gex may

Asi Notwithatanding the inorease in prico of chemb. Ez. WV. BFINTOESEET, PHOTOCRAPHER, $$ 160$ PER DOZZN
Largo Photographs $$ 1$ the Arat- 60 cta, additlonal ones.
Particular attentton patd to eopying Cardin or Ambroypos into Landeome Colornd Pbotogrape

Matrimony,-Why ovory man should narry. Why arcry noman tbourd mayry, All ink Mailed to E Ealed enverps o
12 White Strect, Naw York.
C. S. Sea, In. De, Baltimore, 36 year3
Protiesor of Femala Therapeutco. Safoty Carda Dree.

The Creat Mioney-Making Article.
 E. H. Mrartins, Hinedals, N. H.

Do Tou Want Iuxuriant Whiskers

 or MIOustaches?Mry ONGUENT will foroe them to grow heavily in mijury to the okin. Prico $$ 1 \rightarrow$ tent ty moli, poet iroe

${ }^{6}$ Album Gome"? Something Naw, Gay and yancy, The most dexirable Carde Ever pabijetorl

FRANK LESLIE'S

Unrivalled Publications

Erank Ieelis's Iady's Magazine and GAZETTE OF EABHION. The Leat Family Magazin publisised. Tho reading portion ts the erenm of con.
tumporary Englich ifterature. Tve nlustratious are In DASHION8 it has no equal or competim.
can ditpenss with ith Termb, 83 par amnum.

Frank Ieslie's Ton Cent Monthly , Lo Ledger of tho Magazlince, full of brilinant storisn and other Mlustrated matier. $\$ 1$ per anmum; $10 \mathrm{ctic} a \mathrm{No}$.

Frank Teslie's Tlinstrirte Zeitung, -the only Germen Iluntratud papor in tho country, $$ $ 300$ only Germen Illuntrated papor in tho country. $$ $ 3$ on

Trank Looslie's Iady's Illustrated AlMaNAC, 25 cints.

DISTILLDDEW

 and Clear. AUB Brugbists have it on sile,BEPOT, 13 BROADWAY.

Royal Eavana Lottery.

 ${ }_{2} 2 \mathrm{~d}$ Btrout，X．X．

New Fork Clant Nows－A Iarge sup－

For Hardening \＆Invigorating the Gums， Olesnalig，Beautifying and Prosorving tho Tooth，
 tho world has ever Eeen．
Bola by Dang Doode destere evers－
 School Feachers Wanted For Tnplysh，French，German，，spanidh，Mosic，DRAW．

WM．KINABE \＆CO． MaNUEACTURERS OF GOLD MEDAL GRAND AND SQUARE PIANOS，

 leading art tiste．Evary Indtrument warrantod
for juve jear． instrument，
for five jerar．
Prico hita Price hintas promptiy
WM．KNABE \＆ $\mathbf{C O}$. ent on applicatiou．
$4577-650$ WIN．KNABE \＆co．
HOVFARD＇S＂TMLPROVAD＂ SWUAT PROOF

Soldiers＇Money Belts． Every Soldier can have one sent to him by rowarn mail，rree of oettoge，by inclosing 8260 or $$ 3$ ，cocording

Agents Wanted－$$ 60$ per IKonth guar anteed．Por Terns and Spectmenis ndarese vith stanp
L．L．TODD \＆ 00 ，New York．

QROVFIR \＆BAKERES higeyst phemium rlastio otrioh
 Salesrooms， 495 Broadway，Nsw York，

T표n ROWEN TIXCROSCOPD，

What TO DO

HOW THO TO TI
Tako an Ageacy for our Popular Books－bay ot Whole salo，ecll at retasl，and avve the prontus．Full particularo FOWLER－\＆WELLS，
， LSO Brodiwhy，X．

THE EARLY BIRD CATCHING THE PENNSYLVANIA WORM．
$$ 15$ PER DAY
$$ 15$

 torials，onch as Papor，Envolopes，Pencils，Pong，Pen

IVORY JLEWHEREX．
 ongraved with Opecian border， 85 per eot．Sont frice
by matil on recolptof price． by mell on recolptof prico ivory combs．
ivo

0000 BIGN，GOLDEN ELLEPHANT． American People，
 Troy Lung ana Eygienio Instituto

 B．Fank not to
DR．ANDEEW STONE

BALLOU＇S
patented FRENCH
YOKE SHIRTS Warranted to FIT， chrapar for the eame QUAL
FITzs
Thase Thase othor shat of any in this silt． Oircular contain． ing drawingo and ing drawinge ana prices aont free．
For ealo by all tho principal deale the Unitea Ststes．
BALLOU BROTHERS， 403 Broadway，N．Y．

 ＂Choker，＂to C．H．WELLLN
DYSPEPSIA TABLETS，
Por INDIGESTION，HEARTBORX，the，manufuctured eraly．Fifty cants por box；went free on the recolpt of Ces conts．DEPOT， 201 CENTRE STREET， 20 Door．虽

$$ 8$  $\xrightarrow{\text { ARMY }} \mathbf{$ 1 0}$

 $\triangle$ A Eniplo Ono mant Meo．

IADIES＇LITHTER．
TIVE ANATOMICAL BNGRAVINGS
Has informastion never before publebed．Sent free，
in a Ecaled envelope，for 10 centa．

Bportemon，Touristel， AND ARMY AND NAVY OPTIOERS， Powerful and Brilliant Double Classes．

屎

 whthout the diftressing result of fic

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE BYMAUL OR EXPRESS

Self－mieasurement for Ehirtso

 STHM Comars

2NAMTHLBD WEIME，
 nory other colitar，ns they ase resaily elcaned in one Onlon on the receipt of 90 centa．
WHOLIESALE AND RETALL． Aoesma Wastep in eyory Town la the S．W．馬．WART，

Shaltid Onguont－Waranted to pro－

A Socrot Worth nowing 耳ow to

Gray＇s

T St Patent Molded Collars
 HATCR，JOHNSON \＆CO．，
Ei Dovonehiro Street，Bosto J．S．LOWREY \＆ 00 ．， 37 Wurren 9t，N．Y．
 HODGES，BRÓs．， 23 Hanover St，Baltimore． FALL，STEPEEMNS \＆ 322 Feunsylvanin Av，Wsehington
 J．VRANKENTHAL \＆BRO，No． 6 Hain Bt，St Louin． BRADFORD，BROS，MHIWaukke．
WRED，WITTERS \＆ $00 ., 7$ to 13 Toboupitoules St．，N． O Nervous Diseasee and Physical Dobilis ty，nrising from Breciico causea，lin both eazey new

 Howard Ass．

Vineland Lands．To all wanting Farms．

Army and Campaign Badges ！

隹

 포．2．IXAYVAIED，

2Tannfacturing Jeweller． 808 Zroadway，2v．$\Sigma$ ．

FRANK LESLIEM MLKUSTRAMED

No. 467 -VoL, XVIII.]

The late Military Operations in Virginia-Their Important Results.
Gex. Grast has succeeded in another important step towards the rednction of Richmond. He lins done this not without considerahle losses, hut his gains are immeasurably greater. All the late mysterious and, to the common observer, inexplicable movements of our troops from the south side of the James river to the north side and back again, and up the Shenandoah valley and down again, find their solution in the capture and occupation of the Weldon, Wilmington and Oharleston railroad, the main artery hetween Richmond and Georgia, the head and the heart of the rebellion. Without dwelling, however, upon tho beautiful strstegie movements snd comhinations which havo been crowned wo the new position, succese, lot us brieny consider the vich the lines of the heroic old army of the Potomac over which the hine have heen extonded
Down to the 4th of July, 1863, there wero three great railroad arteries, with nnmerous ramificatious, hetween Richmond and the rehellious States, reaching even to the shundant military supplies and reinflorcements on the west eide of the Mississippi, by way of some one of numerons crossings along the 300 miles of the river held hy the enemy between Vicksburg and Port Hudson. With the capture of Vickshurg hy Gen Grant, all the country on the west side of the Missigsippi river, in a military view, was ent off from Richmond. Nest, with the terrible defeat and expulsion of Bragg from Chattanooga, including the expulsion of Longstreet from Knoxville and East Tennessee, one of the three great southern arteries to Richmond, the Virginia snd Tennessee railroad, was eevered. Now, with the late succeasfol extension of his lines hy Gen. Grant, the main and direct railroad from Richmond to Georgis is eut off, so that the only railway line

NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER $10,1864$.

Frasz mulhen, the exolish halway mumaker,-FRom photcobaph by clarky now remaining between Richmond and the South is the interior Danville line, a hastily snd imperfectly constructed road, passing, by a circuitous and out-of-the way route, around to ts primitive and Charieeton. This single track rainsy, military purposes between Richmond and Georgia.

Now, when it is remembered thst Lee's army snd the oifies of Richmond and Peterahurg aro mainly dependent upon Georgia for their provisions, the loss which they have suffered in the loss of the great Weldon lino may be imagined. That Gen. Lee fally comprehended the loss of thie vial line is very evident from his desperate attempts of three successive days and nights, by furions chargee in solid columnes, to recover it. The greatest difficulty experienced by Gen. Grai in this campaign has been the difficulty of getting Lee out of his earthworke. From Spottsylvsnia Court-honse down to the Chicahominy, &and thence to Petersburg, Gen. Grant in flanking his wiy adversary ont of one strongly fortine position, hass never heen ahle to catch him till snugly sheltered behind suot . hidan the Weldon road, through which Lee's army has, of apte, maily dram its onbsistence, compelled him to come out and do his best to recgain it. He choso, tor this ohjeot the ffavorahle time of a dark night, and in the midst of a heavy etorm, to make hie sssault. It was an effort marked with the lcunning of an Indian, aud the energy of despsir on the part of the attacking rehelcolnmne, and it was a burprise to our wnprotected troops, and yet the attack was a failure, nnd the game was lost.
From these fants the intelligent reader will perceive, taling the movements on hoth sides sroond Richmond, and sway off in the Shenandoh valley into the estimate, as parts of

FRANK LESLIE'S ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.
[Seft. 10, 1864.
the same gamo, thast Grant is the master of Lee, uot ouly in hard fighting, hut in the deitho movements of the enemy to his own parpoises. As the matter now etands, with the loss of the Weldon road, the transfer of reinforcements from Lee to Hood, or fronn Hood to Lee, becomes a difficult operation, insasinch wust be monopolized in the transporta the neceesary supplies to Richmond. Nor in this the worst of it to Gon. Lee; for the Danville road is now in greater danger than ever will not rest mutil he has reached it, or emoked his adversamies out into the opon field to fight for it. Alrendy in the struggle for the Weldon road we bave the corroboration of our viewe of Jne last, to wit- that in reality the elahoare of little value to the defence of those cities, while their eubsistenee depenats upon the railroads which connect them with Georgio. Jin Davis wonld have us helieve that he is in no danger; but the lines of Vickshurg are inevitahly olosing nround him. The ndvance of flour in Riehmond to the extent of $$ 100$ on the tells the story.

Government Securities

as an investment.

There 18 one vlew of invertments in Goverament tocclas which has not heous genemaly thice. Yf taken ty crully considared hy the people. it is this : When,
afer 0 tong suspensuon, epecie puyments are resumoid, hut twe nsoort on the ground of haitoricall expereneec, it is tue tivet in the War of $1812 \cdot 16$ Goverrminent atocks 1:1.1, at oup time, to To; hut most of the banks ware then Hitcle urecrey in the oounty to bay stocko with. But market value at the preeront rate of gold would ho $13 \mathrm{~s}_{\text {, }}$, Ceurthe were, by the resumption of opocie poymenate, Hus, cquivident to a33s per cont, while the declino on a ruitroud atock would bo noally or quite cqual to the sptcre pusments we hove hat, and there orse many

 'te and 13, price wewre reduced to o degree now searcebk sermenent fundid do not suctuante to the same cztent as other krude of property. There is good rcasoa for it The prico, osing to the greater or less bull of the entire curreny, but thero can ho none in tho intrinsie value value of Governmost tooek have been eocmparatively

In all the recent commercial fluctuations of Eughand (in some of which there has been a complete prostrasois has uot been over five or nix per cent. This eamnol he said of any other thad of atock, Of mailway and hank stocks the great variatione aud af times wonderful doprectution are notorious. Suddea conmercisl revulelons have reduced theere stocks wo one-balf their price.
Supposs, then, that with gold way at 90 now, and Gorgold puypuente in oue year, (and this is a supposition gold puymente in oue year, (and woll be the relative effuct on three lionds of stoek- eay Government at 106 blity the resmuption of goid payments in a gear would bring thecm to thore red 90; bank $\mathbf{~ w s}$; railroad 70 .
Judged by Aetorical experience this would be nearly Government funds depreclate 15 per cont,, the baike 25 , and the raliroads so. It ie more prohahle, if this etatement be thought erroncous, that the actual roeaits would be much more in favor of Goverament. But we merrely Governmont stooks will bo far losk rechativoiy, than the inll in cry otiver kida of stocks, The practionl inference boing unado for investment, it it a far safor end mor proftable enventument $f$ se the futhre, when gotd paymacsta vill he resumed, thin any other. Now mololy ceis dont ther bulk and expenec of tho Was, will be over in a year or wos suld whon that occurs, there will come a pold sland of stocks, the holder of Governmeat louss will have uo fill to lamont. He will, in frot, profit hy that change

Barnua's American museum.

 BMENBE ATTRACTIONS.- Colossal Giants, Dimi. aroand Athanta, retarning wit

Oscanyan's Oriental Album

Barents,

And enpecially mothere, who hove the more immodsato caro of ohildren, permit me to say with candid earneedaces, never lay down to reet st nigght with the health and happiness of your childana nt heart withont heving the PERRY DAYIS PAIN KULLER et hand. Trubt to no otherpain proparations or pumiceas. They may, and often do, fill in critloan cuese - bat the Pcrry Davis, hever-no, aceer If you herry Devis's Pain Killor is in nessli every etore thromghont the longth and bresitith
of our land, nind all owr the elvilzed world. no
of our land, and all ower the clviluzed world.

FRANE LESLIE'S
ILLUSTRATED NEW SPAPER, 537 Penxl Street, New York.
NEW YORE, SEPTNMBER $10,1804$.

THFRMIS:

One copy, three months

$\begin{array}{r}8100 \\ 200 \\ \hline\end{array}$ one copy, six month
Two coples,
wrepper
rour coples, one year, to one adares, in one 750

TERMS FOR ADVERTISINC. One Dollir a line on the outslde or laet page Sixty Conts a line on the 14th and 16 th pugge

To Correspondents.
First-class stories will he read promptly, and found worthy of aoceptance, euilouly compeasated.
The manyarript should be legilite, on one afice of the The manuneript should be legribe, on one alate or the paper ouly, and be accompaned with the address of the writos, Poems of a b will meet with attention.

 mail, letter peetage muat be pali. Packnges over four ouncoe should be 日ent by oxpreer.
When parties winh Mifs. returncd hy mall, postrge
,
 torapo of mort articles, poeras,
copy, at the ohcapent course

Summary of the Week,

vmorinta.
Our forces still hold the position gained by Gen. Warren on the Weldon road, the rebels, after thely from his front. On Snnday, August 21st, they made a most determined assault, limt after thrce rcpulses retired. This compensated for our eaught between the fire of two columns and almost annihilated, the General, Haywood, being killed.
On the 23d a part of the 2 d corps tore np the rairond to a distance of three milcs beyond Ream' station, and the 5th corps also dee.
to withan four miles of Petershurg.
On the 25th Gen. Hancock who
On the $25 t h$ Gen. Hancoek, who was south of Renm's ststion, was repeatedly attacked, but in vain. At half-pust 5 A. in. a combired atteck was made on his contre and left, bont he repulsed them as he had done befere, end the cnemy withdrew, loaving their dead and wounded on the field.

wo weeks.

On the same day an attack wes made on Butler picket line, but easily repulsed.
Gen. Sheridan has now in fact centred his army
G Harper's Ferry
Ou the 17 th Gen. Torbert kept tho enemy st bay un the Winchester and Newtown Pike Penrese, with the 1st brics Ne of the 1st division, distinguishing himeolr greatly.
On tho 21 st a hriek engagement took place two miles boyond Charlestown. The robols, at 8 A.su, attempted to pierce our front at Sumnit Point. The efth;eorps and Wilion's cavalry bore tho bruat and losi heavily. We drove the enemy over a and losi havily. We drove the enemy over a mile. On the 24th skirmishing was renewed on mile. On the 24 the
On the 24th Moseby attacked the steckade at sher an hour's fight withdrew. on the 25 th the rehels attempted to cross at iam No. 4 but wore repulaed. The enemy have since fallen buck to Smithfield.
osonols.
Wheeler crossod the river above and ospiured a train near Cleveland. and ospiured a train near Clevelund, On the 13 th the 15 th corpe oharged the worlse at Atlanta and carried the riflepits works at Atlanta and carried the riffcpits, rosd without lose, and made a complete circuit

$$
\begin{aligned} & \text { river. } \\ & \text { Ont }
\end{aligned} $$ ns neg

losia.

On the 19th Maj.-Gen. Dodge lanta while poetting a picket line.
The Union prisoners at Anders sent a dind are 35,000 prisencre there suffering fourfully.

Farragut and Grapger are thundering away at Fort Mrorgan, the Tonneage takine the placo of Fort Jorgan, the Tonnessee taking the placo of Gort hic so recently defended.
Ganury is pressing all-lhack and whitoorder, if possible, to save Moblle Aceording to rebol papers, Fort en on the 27 th of August.
On the 218t, Forrest, by a bold deah, captared Mremphis at 3 A. Y. and held the town Ror Wash burne and Gen. Hurlbat, hat they both esenped.
Forrest, as he rotired, was pursuod by Col. Winslow.
loutsiasa.
Two steamers, the Athantie No. 2 and M. R.
Oheek, while engaged in an illegal cotton trade Oheek, while engaged in an illegal cotton trade, was deized by the rebels at the mouth of Sunflower river.
On the sth of Aug. the rebels attacked the Indepondent scouts ucur Goodrich's landing, hut

nomte canoinsa.

A rebel force attempting to take conscripts hy force at Greensboro', on Augurt 24 , were driven out of the town, their commander, Major Whitfield, and Capt. Keyoe boing killicd.

The Tallahassee has dcstroyed 22 American bising vossels off North Cape, Prince Edwside runner from wilmington to Nassaa.

FOREICN NEWS.  Tes foreign news received during the pest week la very unimportant. Parliament is prorogued in England, end the mout notshle work Lord Palmeraton

TOWN cossip

Onoz more we are shout to talk of the draft. We do not know smy numpeet bo near to the hearts of the pecription.
Thero is
tfect, tbe rich distination in the elangses whom it whil his pooket, when colled on to disburse a thotsand or troo for a subetituto, and the poor one fecling it in his person and hin fumily,
For the first we bave no oympathy; it is nall time that For the first wo have no eympathy; it is nall time than the zioh ehould do something towerds this war, and wie dolug Now York coty Etarted on this belief end wis
dind liberal of the dream, and now the wealliy towa bowe be gpirit the encergy and mones of the country, or, in other wordj, New York, riadeen to death by acuryy polititcians, hae nllowed tore time to go by when alo could here filled hae nllowed toe tome the eake of a fuw millions of dollart, a drop in tio bucket of her realth, hselet every littlo vilhg take away her men by the inducombent of higher bountice
There oro numberleee towns neat us that pay $$ 601$ cesh to one year men, while Now Yorts pays only $$ 300$ to three yon gingliy. TTe resuit is that our eity is entisting no men, sid to maleo tho mattor worse, is, onder the prompting and to malte tho maltor wora, is, onder the prompting oi some of these eame eourvy polificians, antumpting ot some of theve eame eourvy politicians, attampting-as we hope, vininly -to aneak out of har duty hy trying to prove that the alone hee enlisted eome so,000 mea in tho navz, almost as great a number as there is in it nitcogether. In two weeks, therefore, New York will be given up to the conieription, and 20,000 men taken away, given up to the coneription, and 20,000 men taken awny, hountylees and perbape penuylices, to the fild. Dor hoped that whon they return to thear homaes they Will he honeet enought in the fature to attond to their polithe honeet esonght in the fataure to athond to their politi-eal righte and voto for hoonest inco, not for a politician eal rights and vote for honest mea, not for a poincina who can ees nothing that has not a money-making jok

 mooth th the pay hole and pour through it a toircat of profonity and apuse that would have gate it juatinablo had ho been jerised throush the apertare, evou though

$\overbrace{0}$

名

 and | lestio |

| :--- |
| artop |
| grop |

 dit

 and

Sept. 10, 1864 |
FRANK LESLIE'S LLLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.

BOOK NOTICES.

Tek Ackes Evover : A Pratical Experience,

 Sime

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.

 Coldiors get, ordera bat

 Onio Vrit Fermando Wood made a epench at Dayton

Obituary,

 Art, Science and Iiteratureo Anothor

|  |
| :---: |
|  |  |
|  |  |

 conce, coverca whta gleea

 there.
Itals.
chi

 out of a thictrical ecmidal. The coee was sedt tor trail

 the Pope that matk of efieem, Lil uucees or will be hoored.

 not go und bee that chap loe hio money

 The nancible exporitucco of Animerign oro no ner wing
The bave
druy
 amora proaperoue condition Even the full In Governi

A STEAM-ENCINE FOR THIRTY-

 ONE CENTS!ONB of our learned profeseors tells ns that

NOTES ON SCIENCE.

M. De Rocusa announces to the Acaiemy of Scinnces parto of the gibbe as notit in harmonyy with the ocer pted theory in France. That theory yesumea then tho polypes

 Whlch it wae observid
of cerris on its suricee Myotio Pond.

 and no action were marked.
Manufacture of the Voteo

|  |
| :---: |

 by orr apeclal artist, J. B. tayion.
ATTEFIELD OF WINCHESTER $\quad$.

 bere but s few weeks since the gallant, devoted and un-

BY TORGHLICHT.

No General probably ever attempted a task

Chattanooge, buming orrajes, danger, and the advantage is taken of tbe darkoet oresting from ite pictarconque beauty, dia not its impartance invent if with an interest of a far deeper hathe tamous R.
hight of torebee.

ORPKEUS;

Or, the Birth of song.
iy hosenbena.
Tre hlue Hille danced with Joy, and the rihhed Of the hroad Chestnuts quivered-the lithe Palms, Bending their Whiplike Stems in the glad Air, As golden Grain in a Sun-ripencd Field, Swept over hy the swimming Evening Breeze, Answers its toying Brenth. All Nature throhbed Through its quick Pulse, responsive to the Touch
That firet awoke the Lyre, calling out Soug, Freelhhorn and joyous from its quivering New Threade on which great Thoughts aud Dreams were strung Into the Weh of the young Melody,

Wheeling through the blue Breadth of clondless Heaven,-
The delicate Birde swept nearer ; in the Grass The crouching Panther sleeked ite speekled Hide,
With rasping Tongue, aud quenched its firclit Eyee it Eyee
Beneath a strange Delight; heside it moved, In mazy Coils, the pied and glittoring Suake, Glancing, a living Rainbow in the Gladnes or its awakened Hearing; while the D The unwonted Music rippled. Beast and Flower, Reptile Earth, Oceen and Stream, woke to the first-horn Soug:
"Ere Music spake to ye, how chill end dark Was Warth ; Was Rarth;

How Coareen On mortal Mirth

God gave the Lyre. He bade me walke ite Voice. And etrike it. Let all world Beast, Herh and Bird.

It calls ye hack to Iife, whence ye had fled, Since Bitth
The Soul of Earth.
With gentle Song it epeales, All Life may hear Grape-Clnster, green Fig, red Pesch, Harvest-Ear Swell, grow and fill;
The Date Tree rains its incuits-a luecious Hall On Earth;
Sun-rounded Melone from thet Sun inhale Their juicy Worth;
The Lion crouehee hy the Lamb's white eide, Subanced;
While the fierce 'Tiger's hlack and tamy Pride Bathes not in Blood;

The Serpent weaves in long and awimming Ringe Tear it, the gray Dove's Wiue gray Dove's plumed and fluttering

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { it, the gra } \\
& \text { Winge }
\end{aligned}
$$

Fan Graee avd Earth ;

The Eagle ecelks the Thruah, and learns to huild Where Sunghine's mellow Flashee light and gild Its specilled Breast ;
The Hand of Man no more ehall etain with Red The Earth,
By God from Birth
God gave them all to him, to hloom and grow Love is the Spell of Joy with

$$
\begin{aligned} & \text { ell of Joy with } \\ & \text { And sll ahove. }
\end{aligned}
$$

Then let him bail all Thinge, this side of Death, With Mirth, Round all on Earth."
Scarcely the Song's extatio Voice died ont Than Man awoke. Shaloing his Looks ahroad, He ceomed to woo a fiercer Melody Than that which crisped along his curling Hair A few hrief Moments Aince Lifting his Spear, major-oen. r. oolesiy, of minols.-hrom a photcorafl by bradx.

He smote the Stag, whoee twisted Antlers kept | In sahle Gloom, and overshadowing all Time to the Memory of tho Music. With The Blow roused all which dresmed.

The Leopard'e Spots Glanced through the Sunshine-dappled Greenwood Shade,
As with a vigorons and a sudden Bound He sprung upon the Lamh. Searce were his Fleshed in its Neek, than on his spotted Hide
Fell the fieree Lion's Paw-with hroken Back But Jaws fost clinchod, writhed Backs switt as light,
The Boa loosened from its scely Ringe, And shot around the mighty Brute a Coil More mighty still. While his Bonee crunched and craclded,
And crunched again heneath its lapping Strength, Forth from his riven Mouth a Roar of Pain Burst, Shriellike. Ou the Dove the Eagle stooped, Rending its pale gray Plumes with iron Bealk Rending its pale gray Plumes with iron Beak
And dappling them with Blood. And then the Wind, Smiting the Tr
Smiting the Trees together, as in Sport Wrenched from the Sward their lusty timhered
Limhe Limhe
And the the stwert each other. On its Wing
Came the swart Cloud and Tempest, lapping Earth

That waiked on Earth-Peal upon Peal hrak forth
The Thunder, while the arrowy Lightning leapt
Out of its whilom Bondage, as it smote Him who lad slain the Deer.

When Orpheue saw
What chanced, in a white Agony he raised His face to question God.
Beasts sought their Caverns-the windying Sus. Beasts sought their Caverns-the undying Sum Bathed Earth in living Light. In auswering Earth veiled th
Of Grass aud Ivy-from the Lightning-elain The rotting Flesh sank Sluicelike, till it grew A Screen of Wild Flowers ronnd the whitening Bones.

And oven as he gazed, he saw thet Life
Is twofold. Strife, and Love, and Joy, and Pain,
The new-horn Agony and young Delight Are ench Neceesities. Without the One, The Other were not Gladness. On his Lips ill Question died. As the Sun called out From Death, Belief leamed that in Error Lies

The appointed Death to Knowledge. Then he struck
His Lyre to a new Prayer, the Prayer of FaithFaith in the Eternal Will-a Faith that All Is ae it ie, hecause the Hand of God Hath mnde it, Storm and Sunsbine, Love and Each to draw, Life from Each-Each Joy from Each one small part of the completed Whole.

THE BROKEN BOND.

Ar the tume the oveut tranepired with which my etory introduces itself I was an "Attorney at if any of my readers have ever known hy persomal experience what it is to occupy such a position al the bar, and in the world, they can adequately appreciste the dignity and consaquence of the in dividual who stood in my patent leathers at that cpoch. Yisions of the bench were never cecondary cpoch. Yisions of the bench were never eecondary to that of the Supreme Court of the United Statee with the eeal of the Chief Juetice in the foroground; while in the gauzy interim were cutlines of eocnee in the State Legislatare, the Congrese, and egpecially the Senate of the United States, in Which my form, matured hy yeare and portly development, constituted an imposing feature anil my cloquence had made eminent myname. That name io not particulerly impreasive itaell. It in simply John Hart. My redere are aware that there has heon no Chief-Justice Hart of the Uniter States litberto; consequenthy I have not yet achieved hast dietinction.
Thad survived hy ono weelk the period of my noviciato as a student in the office of Philip pled well, Eeq., attorney at law, in a eeaport town of one of our Atlantic Statee. For ressona which will be appreciated in the perusal of this narrative I deoline to he more explicit.
I went to Mr. Pledwell from an humhle home, My mother wae a widow, and could do little towerde eetting me up in the world; hut ohe hea the acquaintance of eeveral memhers of the har and amonget the memhere Mr. Pledwell favorably considered her deeire that I ehould "be a lewyor."

vMbRELLA COURTSHIP
Upon ohtaining my mejority I paseca an exami nation; and upon that very day took the usual oaith, entered my autograph in a firm hand on the court'e hooks, and was admitted to practise at the hat, Thimhs i, there is a name chat wil he faJolin Fart ehall have a distinguished position npon the ecroll of fame. True, the prediction hae yot to he fulfilled.
Upon the evening of that day Mr. Pledwell se tonished me by propocing that I should hecome at cosce a memher of the firm, to he known hereafter as Pledwell & Hart. Here was proof that I wae useful and appreoiated; and Mr. Pledwoll, who was a hachelor of forty-five, had determined that I shonld have no time to grow diseatisfied in an in ferior poeition while looking out for myeelf, True, the partnerehip wae only a small per centage of a wes income for the free ave yeare. but the ofn the fature "with the contingency you know," eaid Mr. Pledwell, "of the whole husinees, in the ordinary course of natare- what do you say ?
1 dia not bike to throw myeelf into his arme, becauee I knew that would he unprofeseional; snd therefore, I only acoepted the proposition at once, with very sincere thanka in the expression of whioh I thought I was sufficiently careful not to be too demonstrative.
"That will do-that will do,", said Mr. Pledwell. "You needn't think yon get it for nothing. We most hoth work hard, as usual; hat hereafter I ohall give you a considerahylen than you have had hitherto. I ehall work my way as a pioneer for you; perhape more directly sod diligently into the civil courts, and the district and oircuit courte of the United States, The criminal bueinces will, in a few yoark, devalve almoet exclusively npon yon.
"I am agreed, wir".
"You will prepare
"You wil prepave to mako your debut in the case of Charley Weller. You wil condnct the pre-limiary exnmination for the defenee, and follow the ettorney-general, with an opening hefore the jurg." "Thank you, als."

FRANK LESLIE'S ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.
$=\overline{\text { The interview closed, and I went to ny boarding* }}$ house that night with an overwihelming sense 0 ny coming greatness. Ono thonght alono sud my coming greatnoss. no mother's home. How bappy she would have beor wide for consummatinn mation of her hopes and prides rhe had hocal two my protestional oondition. Thue, but there are hend; and I tell yon what, I telt rondy for ate cqual to a contest with anyhod,-8hap as trap. Did not you, Mt. Attorive-Oencral, on your eamission dey? eumision dey?
A week hed pasond away. The "shingle" st our ofice door already bore the names of Pledweli our ofice door the dany ware hrought to n closo $i$ in Hart, and the din which a crowded court-houaco, jury, bur and beneh hadheardmy meidenspes a troublesomon nffirir. night row in the street, in which a polioeman hat been killed. It had occurred noerr elcotion time been ruiled. thats had been fired, one of whioh pasee Soveral sthons. Dosth onsued in it faild -that mss baid. But in my spaced eloquent upon tho flight of "Bud" and the evi"our unfortinnto elient" from such an inssen act opportunity to get on anter be heard he was idenoped in the deposition. Mir. Pledweil followed mitigation the econd degroo to manslaughter, or murder in the eccond degro simplo riot ; and notwithatanding the e flort of the simplo riot; ;and notwitwas instigatod possibly by attorney-gineral who was in somo political feeling, to press conviction for the bigher offence, tho jury, in the ahbence of direct

 He eseaped the perniton."
"wae tho minning movo.

THe trial had not elosed till six o. olock in the prie oner was at oneoremoved from the court-aowse to the jail. The orowd had dispersed, and gather ing ap our books and papers, ,ave the buillang. mysbol wero ibots in thed imediate vicinity of the court
The etreets hoopoo wore not much frequented stur dark, and that in which our office was mituated was quite retired. It is desirbule tha tinctly understand the locality. From the streot there was a "blind court" receding to the deptin of abont eixty feet. The house it reeeded, were al
the amall street froms whica most entirely occupiod 15 lawyors', conveyancers and kindred officess axsimatating mith the legal profossion Theeo housse hall had double entrieshat is to say $a$ door rigith and leeft at an angle of forty-five degrees with the front, and a aitimots staisa between themi leading to the apartmonts abover. Pledwell aud myself appronched tho entrance to tho court. I first became selusiblo of court into the street) by its eudden extinguishment. ur. Pededwell, it seoms, , had not noticed d , and 1 eaid nothing bout i, rofession who was just pullod to, and a man of middele height, clad in 8 from our entrance, but whether from our ofice or not, we could not tell of course., it was certan not from one of the two lower ones, as he conld havo descended the staird his arm; but what it
An Mr.
He had sompething under bit was in the very obeeure or rather darke state oo the locality I could not make out; and indeed scarcely thought ahout it unt Mhrwards. had tho ebhpo ot a large book. He was plunging out: "Hollo, my friend, do you want to see anybody about here

Ohno, ohno," Wae eomewhat grufly answered, and in an inetant he turned the corner, in the direction we had come, end we heard his rapid footeteps roceding alony the etreet. I thought hoy wore quickening into a run.
"Thit tellow has been af Pledwol. "Boakstening, or picking " pp of triflee in the ofieos, Well, hhe oan't have got anything but bolieve I leff my door untastened as nsual, when 1 returrod to conrt nifer recens." And up.
I folt out tho matechibox on the tahho and took a match from it; but an une sume time send was tho only one. Upou puling it on the sandpapor it gave a partial gioein and dilickered ont, possibly from the effecte of a damp atmoespererene Ios. tended my hand towaras the gasburnor, with whioh it esmio
"It wae hot. clainuod.
"Impo
It
I Imposinain. "Thon that rascal has been in here."
"There is somothing slippery under my foot,

" Ther I saidi " slipp

 Pledwell.I oonfe
a mastch in my oigar case.". And Mry. Plodwell handed it to me. In fingering it between ns it handed it form. 1 stooped to recover it, and put my hand at onee into a puddo of something-it was warm-I was sure curded at the thought. curdled at the thought.
"Mr. Plodeli" Ioxala thin. there is hhood on the Huor." ", "Is ano as I ave

"'seer mother matoh"

A heary groan, or rather s soond which hlended a grosn and bigh, a deep moan, as if it were tho last expiring Eush of hife, starthed na woth.
came from the otber side of the desk which was in came frome of tho room, and was accompanied witi
the centre slight movement. I involuntarily stepped to warde the door.
"Good God! what cen tbat be?" ejsonlated Mr.
I oonfess that my tongue was silent. I do not tink I conld by any cfort have spoken a word, think I conld by any cifort haye spoken a word declining greatnoce.

"fr. Pledwell.

The silence of deeth wes aronnd us. "I heve not another match nbuot mee" "anad nr.
Pledwell "Go you and got a light-I will romain Pledwell "Go you and got wind bring somebody vith yon."
I could have blesed him tor the tomporary Imancipation trom that horror, while I honored the nerve and reaolution which onebled him to nutstan that fearful agong of mospense alone. Experience is a woud how.
1 tetepped from the door, and was jast ahout to make a dash at a high rate of speed for somewhore, when the olid, quiet-fifoted janitor of tho oourt, whose business it was to close shuttors ind lock offices of eareless pooplo, came round corner with his hantern in hit hand. I soized him corner mith bis hanterlo lime towarde our office. "Who the you? what do you want ?" exclime the frightenod old man, hurrying back as from murderor. "It ior $I$, Mr. Hart. Mr. Pledmellis in in the office
there is thore is somothing wrong lis ine
And as I had frightened him too mnch to got his hand and bado him follow ure. Upon ontering hir hand and binoedthe candle from the liantera, and the office I roino at once perceived a human form upon the hoor, bu on lighting tho gue ffightttul sceue of hood and borror diecovered ittelf. There lay, etreteonod at full ongth, now, as it proved, entiroly doad, thi oody of a good-eized, midddo-ased man, his hich seem to be etili flowing from eome wound which did not immodiately appear. Thore was hlood under our feet, and hlood had been spurted from the wound, doubtloss when first inficited, over the office tehle, taining hooks and papers upon it
Mr. Pledrell orderod the frightened janitor, who eeomed unkil a physicion.
in
Doctor M

Doctor Munson is in the noxt equare," he saia. loft, and aftcr having felt the pulse and heart of the proatrate body; "the man ie dead, and he has certainy died ohcod iust murdered him. But that fellow we met had just murered nd. we camo towether, Hurt, or one of us might have had a troublesome case of circumestanial Elooke what wado through. It is very strange. Look, wado through. It is very strang. Aod, as I bad is that by your hoo.
moved towarás him.
It was a knifo, after the Bomie pattern, bu to pick it ap.
 Botere to lot the coroner and jury sec the rooth precisely ${ }^{\text {pen }}$ man man dend.
In a fer minutes Dr. Munson came in, and of glance conirmod the fact that uifo wao eximet
He put his finger to the pube, and remarked that yo put tis singer to the puso, ane essary on that no further examintion was necer point. By this time a orowd hat colected winout, and proesenty Mr. Pledwell'e colored servant thrust his way through theil, and wat inatinly sont off for coe cors in a ehort time, aud an invespeared with a jury tigation proceoded.
The body was leid etraight upon the floor and the hood washed from the faee. The coroner then asked if any one proaent ideo the question ceased, but had searcoly uttered when he himsel exa Hoot of the jury recempnisedyim aloo, and so did I and XIF. Pledweil. Thore was no doubt of the identity. That was settled at once. Mr. Pledwell haontity. finct, truasacted some husinese for him a ${ }^{4}$ armer perioc John Hafiin had been a oarpontor, and wae, in pruad a tato for liquor, he had saved his ehare or "plunder," as the "hhooy" call it, while his com panions had speant theire. He wae, at the time ord lie desth, perthipes, orty-ive yeaze peronall pro-saved, as it turned out, in real and saved, use peris, hetweu eoven ond eight thousand dolloraperiy, he:weea M . Plodwoll and myeblf were first exammed,
Mr. and stated what io alrealy known to the reaces whon I soized hima ho thought his hour had come He did not recognibe my roieo, and ho
Dr. Munson had exmmined the body, found the Dr. Mond and prohed it. It was on the right side of Whand and an ineh broad and aboot four inohee deep, sovering the carotid artery ynd jugular vein.
The nan conid scarcely have eved three minutes afeer such a monnd The coroner theo procecedcd
to eancoh the pookets of the deoensed, कnd tomad

to

a poekothook contsining sundry papers and shout twenty dollurs in notee, a purse with some specif wenty dollsrx in notee, a purse wita some spech in gold and silver, s watch, $s$ pocketinife and in gold and silver, othor nuimportant trintes. No clue here. The man did not eeom to hase hoen rohbed. "What's thie bit of paper upon your tahle, , Mr. Pledwell"," meked the coroner, takking ap a piece of rather dark-shaded foolseep. "Do you linow of rether darik-s.
anything of it ?
Mr. Pledwell examined it.
"Hart, have you secn it before ?
secn it befors ?
1 looked at $i t$.
"No, sir; I know nothing of it. I put all the tationery there was upon the table into my port-said the coroner. Sud twe coroner.
It wrotched serawl, andeviden' ly done by in nnedueatod person.
"IVr. pledwol we want you to fix eome papes (papors sapposed) fore uns anoute some propety wioh wo ar And there it stopped. What conld this monn Who onnetituted the "wo?" What had interWho onnetitutod mie wor Hed tho man heen rupted the commmication? struck at that momont, or had e quarrel ensued The paper looked ike a note which secmed th contemplite an sppointmont to meet us at another time, probshly in the morning. There was part time, probehy 3 th paper, aud it hod a poontio fainty mell. This was the only thing that had the quanity of a clua, hat how vaguel The upphot of the evening's inguiry was, that the hody wns removed to tbo finily residoncc, and after olieiting all the testimony poss.
Upon the following day it was sccortained that Hafinin left home on the preeeaing day, after dinn or, alono. He was at a stare during tho afternoon, and he was seen just before durk by ain ncquantanco, who stopped and spoke with him
not or now minnte or two, but nothing was eivicited wim with the slightest degreo seemed to aerson. The handany partion the bit of papor was hie, and the knifo was bis. These facte wore ostablishcd conclusively. Bat no trace conld be obtained to any one with whom he was chout to exchange property, nor was it known, evon by bis family, tuat so there coutemplated any thing of the sort. And tho jury rondered a verdict ind filicted by oome pereon unknown. And thne the affair was laid away from the public mystery.

HAPTER III.

I thocoist the remark of Ms. Pledwell, that it we had not happened to enter the office and dishad to do battle with a ceee of circumstantia evidonee, quito ureasonable at tho time it wue made ; hut to my inconceivahie astonishmont an mortification, eome months after the murd Pled ovorheard a remark, well know It was between a couple of lov fellow standing within the conrt-house, and I could no deign to notice it. Mr. Pledwoll purohased a ema piece of property some time aur that, and ther esme an anonymourt of poor Jack Haflin'e mones? was bonght with part of poor Jack Haflin'e money?
But annoyed as I wae hy these things, Mr. PledBut annoyed as I wae hy these things, Hecertainly did not affoct unconcern. I was sure it was genuine. He actually leughed at it, and said he expected it. "But," said he, "scandal must sanut its mouth after Hatin's striars are sethea, and resl estato all tration cetablisuce the Hart, a friend told me the other day, that ho hed actually heard a surmisc that Haflin had come to my office with a large amount of money, which might have heen secured by a law life in pey? life in pay"
"It is

It is not possible," I said.
But this insolcnce did not rouch Mr. Plodwell alone. It eventually reached, and, of course, affected me, as it did not him, for I was young and eeneitive. One day, in my hourding-uoue, when affiar came up, as it occasionaly wors drew forth eono gonoral remathe abounrded declaration that frome was nove of them to be trueted. Two or three students were hoarding there, but none wax presant; and I am not cortain that ehe saw m when ehe epoke.
"What Mre. Hilson ?"' I aeked.
She tarned upon me wnth a fingh ne
it I could not define it or ite cause.
"Oh, nothing," she seid.
"But," eaid I, "if I did not misunderetand you, is something-something to mo. I hoard you spenking of lawyers, and th of them wae to he trustod."
"And what if I dia ?"
"If yon did, you insuited me without cause."
"If you did, you insuited me wits, you can woar it."
I rose and demanded to know what I owed her, I I paid montinly.
"It will he hakis month to-morrow.
I paid the amount and turn room to the hall for my hat.
"Mr. Hart, dou't be foolish about it."
I Hilson."
"And do yon mean to say you are going for good ?"
"I am."
"Very well. Then yon may just gire my compeople in this house who think that he has had peopld in Hallin's proporty, if he didn't have one handis killing, too." in his killing, too."
I was fearfully
arcmhled with passion. Had it come from a man should have throttled him on the apot. But i was from a foolish and imorant woman, I surmised, howerer, thet she was influenced hy the opinions of othors in the house, aud thet I might Lave heen spoken of as obnoxione to their vulgar suegricione and detiento sensibuities. I would not dogrnde myself even by a reply. Iheard the nex whom followed mo ; pnd the juvenilos of the protime forth.

Is my new hoarding-honse I was very ploaountly situated. It was recommended to me by an experienoed friend, who was just Ho had found the widow who conducted it a very Kind, motherly sort of person, and one more likely to be imposed upon than to impose npon ohera. He had the andseity to bid me beware of my hourt, as she was atill young. Yonag, forsooth I Sbe was scarcely less than five-and-thirty. Yet I onfess that she was still blooming, pretty and onfers that she wrs still blooming, prewy attraetive. So much for my new landady. But who is thie I find delighating the bousehold in the nicely forniched parlor, with music and song at the piano? What a cherming epitomo of all that tho aust practised noyeinet geto uport ("Oh ${ }^{\text {" }}$ " That is a digressive ejseculation. Someooly has beon looking ovor my shoulder and te Fes. I me cruolly, hut I will have my say. I was no pretence, no show, no affectation. She had quietly taken a seat et the instrumeut in corrphith hee wiwect voice was a bolice, indeed, to many ond ber sweot voice was a solice, of the day. "Who is the ?" I inquired of a geatleman sented uext to me.
"It is Clara Lyne".
"Mrss. Lyne's sistor ?"
"Mrs. I Me"s deughter."
"Wra, Lyne's daughter. I gentle whietled, in thonght; " mo ther and daughter may be rivals somo day." In ono month from the time I ontored Mrs, Lyne's house I was hiplplesely lost. Clara'e hrow oyos and bruwn lasir, and hor pretty, loving ways, had complictely done my husiness. And I had reason to bchiovo that thero wero others in the wouse who were in the sanue predioamont with my-
I deternined to take the advance, if paes le, and spared no effort to oompassanopportanity I was not without hope. If aneied thet those lovely eyee had oceasionally loitered a momont with tenderness under my own. Oh, if I were only loved, my sum of earthly heppinese would be loved, my sum of earthly heppiness woulsble; hut I was constantly bafted in froquont attempte to achiove a tleceddette with Ciara. At length I met her in the streot, and at the very moment tat a threatening ehower was hurrying her homewards. By good fortune I had hronght my umhrella and she had none. My offer of shelter was accopted, and before we got to the honse I had told her that I loved hor and how dearly.
Wonll Would she not give the a well, and ahe looked up into nyy faco, with her oyes swimming in tearss "Do not press me for a reply, 3r. Hatt, vory wretehed, young as I am." The door opened, and the P sight. I proceeded to my office. She knew that I Something was accomplished. She loved her, and her manner towards me wse unchanged. Unchanged? Not entirely. There wes a more frequent interchange of was difficuit as ever to make an opportunity to was difficuit as ever to make an opportunity speak to her. One evoning, at the piano, I wae just able to say:

May I write to you?"
Consult mams; she will explain. I onunot toll you," the said.
And again the toare flooded those swoet hrown I loat no time in ecerring a privato interviow Ifh Jirs. Lyne. I met her on the atairs as I leit tho room to seok he Lyne?" "Certainly," in ber quiet ladylike way, and we
"tor or sitthng-room.
"I must take care that no mistake occure," "hought I; "such thinge have been. She must not construe for horself."
The reader will eee how effectually I guarded against sueh an accident, quite a poesible one, I thought, as I looked steedily into hor lace beauty.
"Mrie. Lyne, I love your daughte
Sho did not start nor make any exclamation sout it whateoever. She eighed perceptinly.
"I am eorry for it, Mr. Fart," ehe said, rather tadly, I thought. If you will give her to ms I will devote my hife to hor happinese. "I helieve you would, Mr. Hart, bnt it eannot be. If you love her much, sa you do perhape, I shall make engedged."

Eagaged! I I all hut shriesed. this ehould bo known in the houso." mistake ;" no, her mannor first ; I mused abetractodly." ${ }^{\text {" You havo spoken to her then, Mr. Hart }{ }^{\text {P" }} \text { " }}$ "Yes, ma'am, I have. And moreover, I heliove my regard.
"Then. I am norry for her niso, Mr. Hart."
"Well, I eamnot mextion that at preeent. And Mra. Lyne seomed to be communing with Lornelis I noticed aleo that thore was a घort of of hesitancy and pre-occupied manner, as is it ine wne not exactly satisfed with zomething ; was Witc that of oono not satined with himself. She ste ped to the door, and colling the little colored stepped to tho door, and calling the hitle colorect wniter, sont him to Miss Cara with a message together, abe turnod pole, and dank into a chair. Hor mothor vent to her, gat hy h drew her faco tondery towards her.
"Hy darling, you muet not give way to your "Mama, I very well this ovening. "I sent for you, becouse I buve mado up my mind to consult Mr. Hart upon a minhioct which seems to he more and moro distreesiag to you and me every day.
There was no re
Iwas perploxed. Here was aome mystery whielh 1 woonla not eomprehend. "Mr. Hart has told mo that he loros you, and gaze, and quite hididen now, while the profision of hrovn hair was radiant mith lustre under the gloem of the gas. I have told him, my dear, that you are engaged-Clura drew herealf quietly from her wother's ombrice, roso, turned towards the door, and Ba I thon believed and nfferwardid loannect b be the ns he repressec. $I$ thought Mres. Lyne was a When sbo was gone I thought Mres. Lyn bittic overoome. If so she rallie ed ont onee. "Mir. Hart," ele said, "to tell yon the truth I for you, which, under tho circumstances, she onght not th have done. But, of eurrse, treeling a great respecot for you myyout, I Leould not blame made. np my mind if anything came of your partiality for ench other, to consult you about the circum theal sufferor in the case. I am eure you 1 will theop my sounsol."
Not proiesionaly, morely, Jrss. Lyne, bnt
"Aster the death or Captain Lyne, who sailed several years out of this port, I heeane vory nueh atruightened. Indeed, bail arrangement of the hitle property he left redduced me to povorty;
ana dithongh I had sueceeded in pretty well com-and letiing time Captnin Wraxall, of the ehiip Warloek, was in the city. He had sailed with my hasband as mate, and he sought me out in a friencily way, anxions to help me. He called again, and met Clara, in whom he took much intarest; and thereafter, frequently spent an hour or two with us. oropoecd to take this houne for. mo, to founish it and to place mo in it as ito mistrese, that $I$ might open it ss a boarding-housse of of superior class
That $I$ might he forehanded whilo wres tbent, he alo proposed to placo hive. This proposition bank, suhbect to nyy demand. The seemed to mo exccedingly kind, if disintorested; thinking of his motivas I-" and Mirs, Lyno's eolor heightened-" well, I was a widow, and ho, I suppose, a year or two oldcr than myself",
"And I could have honoroil hin choi
"I did not liko the iden of heieng hought in this way, hor had I any prediliection for Captain Wraxal. My hushand had spoken of bim as an impulesive and qometimes a passionate man but impuleive and oomectimes a passionate man, hat with many excellent quatities. Nevertholess, I In cannot tell what 1 might have done, pressed with the bitterneesa of my condition. But that teat was not presented to me Captain Wraxall told me purpoose in providing as ho proposed to do wa , that we hoth might have as comfortabie hom while he was away; and that on his return h would, with ny consent, marry my daughter. exlibition of fecling. I told him that $I$ would take time to eonsider, and consaltt my chill."
"And ahe-"
"She was young, heart-whole, und, a sort of pet of Captain Wraxille, who had already loaded her with presenta, did not aeem to revolt at the pro position, ceataily. He is rather a fino-looling man, and by no means anlikely to eommnnad the that us she was free, sho conld honeetly accep the proposition, and thongh elee did not love him at all then, she mighti in two yeare, But it would would cost her nothing. Poor ehild, the had no idea of the hondage sbe incurred, not from any unkindnees on the part of Captain Wraxall, how-

Ind the agreement was made

 nd ho immedintely took the honse consented as you eee, even mith a piano for Clara, and I muet admit ho was very coneiderato to her whilohe remained, saying that ho ehould put of his courting till his return. Ho boarded with us, of doparture, saying that he shonld eeo us "under the Warlock went to aes, aud a moro agreeables genorons, opon-hearted man I nevor knew.
"That'g warm praise for Mr. Tom Warren," thinks I hut I was more intercated in the bond thinks I, hat I was more interated in the bond which Wraxall might havo ecoured. I was anxions to be st it as a lawyor, and tearr it all to pieces.
"Captain Wraxall, on tho day before he eailed, "Ouptain Wraxall, ond tho day before he hesiled, came into this room and siid he was prepared to oloes the ugreement. He took from his pocket a paperof which 1 will show you a eopyy:"
 and handed following :

I agres return from

${ }_{\text {(Signed) }}^{\text {Hzain }}$

November 28, 18 -

1 agree that my danghter, Clara Lyne, shanll

November 28, 18 -.

 (Witneess)
November 28, 18 -.
Harriet Lixe.
November 28, 10
ion to select earpets, and fudeed a good portion of the furnitaro; but the hilis were alwaye made of the furnituro; but the hills were alwaye mad ont in his name. I dare say posple took ns for newly married couple, very often"
"Mre. Lyne," I said, "this whole matter is a eontsmptible bit of trickery, to secure your pree cions treneure of a denghter, as hibs vifs.
He bas talen care to get all the security on his own side. gitt of the property,
"Hies not worth that," smapping my fingere "His gift ho took the preaantion to make withouit hat thact h he prid them ?"
"But if ho we
"But it ho wera so dishonorable as to claim th marringe in defiance of tho bond, and in apite o may resistance, I conld destroy the hills." And ho wonld fall hack on the parties from Were hought by him, paid for by him, and delivered to his order. livared to his order. No, Mre. Lyne, it the agroe mout failit from ouy cunse-and I mean that it shis property beyond all donitt.'
then
Mrs. Lyno did not reply. Sho sat and pondored the state of the ease. She felt that she had compromised her duaghter, yet she faily realited tho grent honefit ohe lad derived froni Captain Wraxallts proceeding. She had harail betore this in-tervow with me taken a nution that Wraxall bad to be ; but she was desirous to save her daughter,
 "When is Wraxal expected to roturn, Mre. Lyne," I naked; "whero did he go to o "
" Prohably not for a year yet. I learn from Mr. Tarren-who writes mo oceasionally-tbat when the elip anived at singapore, thoy found ordera for Californian then to proceced toAnstralia, whence they expected to go to Califorwaia again. It seems,
 "Mrs. Lyne, I have a very clear perceptain my daty in this matter, and I think it would do Captain Wrayall some good to let him bec cand by can play at his game, 1 will partner naw good friend, Mr. Plectwell, and be guided perhaps by hilis opinion."

TERE uext day I laid sll the facts hefore Mr. Pledvell, ana anked him what I onght to do.
"What yon onght to do, Jeck ?" he e with well affeeted astonishmont, while the famWiliar "Jeke" which he always used in liis hearty ind genial noods anticipstod his rerdict. "Fihy, wbat do you think you ought to do ?"
Well, sir, 1 aisicd yonr advice this time.
Then take it. Go to your hoarding-bouse, paek your urual, affectionate farcwell to the young lady, and syy you leave her for tho cuptain, hat be sure you don't tell her that this was my adrice.
There was a twinkle or humor about his eyes and tho corners of his notes in the he harst into ingly in his face, and presently he hurst into 2 hearty langh, and so did I.
"O Jack, O Jacid" he a
"don't aakk my advico, hut follow oommon senee and your own inclination. Marry tbe giril as soon as you can, and be Eure it is heforo that captain comes home-a fellow ord enongh to be her sather indeed. And it he makes a fuss abou to take the widow. That's my advice
"I think thero is somehody clso stands hetter with the widow than the enptuniu, Bil
"Ahl who's that?"
"The mato of the ship."
avy a-bed and ahourd," and ho cintsplace aome day, a-bed and ahourd,", and ho enjoyed bis joke.
This whe enongh for mo. I told Mra Lyno that Mr. Pledwell had advised mo tomarry Cleraif sh would accept me, and that he regardod the whole transaction of tho eaptrin's as a trumpery aifiair
At most Wraxall conld talie the property, hut that At moest Wraxall conld talke the property, hut thai could he easily remedied. could he easily remedicd.
There wore some
There wore some ecruples to overcome, but Tirs Lynechter as paramount to all other considerations, and I had the gratifieation to find that Clara was really delighted to eacapo from the hond, cven by vioiating it. It hat been an incuhas upon my darling's heed and henrt for many montha. darling's head and henrt for many months,
I sball not expatiste on that period of I bball not expatiste on that period of mutun declaration of thelove which had druwn ourlloarta together, in spite of the bonds which hasd heen made to keep them apart. "Love luughs at locksmiths," Aiter a "regulhr term" of court tolicip.
and hy no means inpelled hy nuy prospect of the Warloek's return, I married Clerro. We had quite figured very agreanhly thoughont that impocing transsaction. We made the e usual ridienlous wedding tour, ind of course under the circumataricos ding tow, , nd of course under the circumatanioo could not fail to enioy ourselvee awny from home could not fail to enjoy ourselves awny from home, while longing all the time to he there We were while longing all the time the he there we were very happy. It would he folly to prattle about the ## cienaten vi.

A L.ETrsa from Tom Warren some months aftorwarde informed ne that Captain Wraxall had reociyed papers from - por dowe before, in Hiet ne Coun ra Lyne Tom waited to hoow wis did. I assured her that we would tame him if he toll into thy hand of Pledrull end #art. We lavve. an effectual way of deaing with nuimnis or thar cenus, sad we zucceeded in onosoling ber nother. Another letter from Tom Warren, dater a month

 lot of mulacts and fixed amuition, and whon Tom anked hima haout it, he snid he was going to Iremsined nt the house, as it was fortunstoly between terms, after the alip wns Ennounced , waiting for Captain Wraxall. The boariers knew ng noter hits arrival, vhen ho might firly conwomon aecessillo to big bume. There was a ring of hie tribe-had heon tolid to diow Cartanin #rux-Thiskered and monatached, mid foortalil bronzed

 yot nly yy any meana. He was simply terrible
 "Mrs. Lync is not at all well, sir, and requeeted thatI shoond seo yon."

 "WWil you please to 1 le mo know who 1 have the honor of peaki ing tor" be said with mock court-

 Ray, that I was tho hushand of Mrrs. Wyne damyhLrission, asdid totally unable to control himpelf But I was young axd aetive, and aterping nifide I eacuped his onstit he merely caught theienppel of mypoat, nad 1 struck bis hand from tint, carry

 "You'l quit whon I choose, end that will be very

 of your voyave",
 Lecounta for the milk in the cocoanut
I did not choose to notico his
I dia
myalt
math
wigelf, This property, my young bantam, helongs to "Then you can tako it at a propor timo, and in proper meaner., Well, that's something. Yon

"I demand the bills for the property which I left in the care of the widowi", "Ahom to yon," said

I have horono with yeuk long envongh.

FRANK LESLIE'S ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.

HEARTSICK.

Is ir the tramp of men to battle, The oting ing roll of the musketi's rattlo, Ia it the monn of strong men dying,
 And the falling zob of the summer ruin." Listen sgain! whero the bill Lies glooming Flinging it shadow acrose the grass,
Did you not hear the ennuon booming, Did you not hear the enamon booming,
And the elahl of steel from the rocky pree?
 And the wail of the south wind diropped Alae and alas1 when tbr heart is fearing,
Ivery sbatow has life and weight;
Even tbe wind to the spirit's hearing, Even tbe wind to the spiritit hearing, Comea like the cell of of darkening fate: You, 0 e child, in yoar springtime gladno
Gnly the lireeze in the pinatope see ; I, with a longing, sielk, beart--adidneee I, with a longing, sidk, beart-andueer,
What doce the Sonth wind say to me

| That &ome oplaco whero its hrenth is falling |
| :--- |
| Ho io fighting - perh | Ho io fighting-perrhape is shin-

That toome placo whore its voioe ie calling, He is moaning my mame in vaiu ;
Sonewhere under ita gentle elghing, In brokon elumber or deady strife, In camp or fille, is the torue hantrt ying, "wifo"

You aud I I, my little one, neatling
safo by his bearthatone far wary, What disll we do for our eoldier's nssting What ean we do, hut wnit and pray Writing and praying with heart and might, But most of al wbent he South winds hirings
A neesege from him, as they do to-night 1

NINA MARSH;

THE SECRET OF THE MANOR.
CUAPTER VILL-THR QUERS of banawick. Batansick in a fino old town in the North of England, mueh colebruted for ite clenr sit nad medicinand, watere. It is tha favorite resort of antignated beaux, forlorn epinetere and worthly-minded widbeaux, forlorra eppinetore and wortaly-minded widows ofs cortain age. By way of maling provision for tho wants of for the wants or wuoh resididonta, every wird ein at cornere, and the bread is mase with a
as possible, and very lightly browned.
The inhabitants of Belmwick wre m people of limited ineonmwiok aro mootly gentleget here more plensure for their money then is to be found elsowbere. The morning is nenally deplace ; the affermoon is given up entirely to visit-mg-olias scandal-varied from time to time by a eheap eonoert at the public rooms sand ter and whitst agreeably fin up the evening hours. wick. If you were to give a chempagne eapper yoa wonld he olseeed amonget tho parvenus at once, True aristoracy never exceeds e docent competence. The hospitality of the plaos is not of a ruinouslind The gentlemen many be cbeered, hut oertainly not inchrnated, , the serious business of the hourr, uny more anbetantial refection would be regarded witb eusppicion and diuffavor, as well as considered a shnmeful Waste of time. Yon may take a pinch of enufir bee tween deals, hut if you were to venture on this indulgence in the middle of a hand, you would not dare ehow yeur fice in Bulmwiek for a weelk, or perillad the odd trick.
The first two questions saked of you when you arrive in Balmmiek are-whether you bolong to a good family, and play a tolerable rubher. if fow toeth, you perceive at once that they are not believed in. The three Mieecs Grimaldeune, who have not been indebted to nature for the emslleet possilho advanage for the laet thirty yeare, absure you that they nerer saw anj thing so natural aa your coiffure, nnd myyteriouly inquire if the back snd front art both in ond pieos or take of eeporatoly, It is nselese to decilare that it is ill your own; you are met with a eonfidential, meaning emile. Onn-no one of conrse what you re paid for is your word end honor it's the most natural of its kind 1 You protest, you even got angry, or porhupe yon denocend to toaser, heing gomewhit tonacions of tho few oharms apared to you by that swift-footed cnomy, the eldar rerum; ; int all to no pripose, theee three aneient maidene would not believe the hair to bo your own oven if they had geen it hair to grow.
But
But Balmwick has certainly one great recomruendation which you cannot find elsewhere. Here youth is looked upon as a terrible disadvantage fifty is considered rather immnture, and girlo o forty are pronounced too frivolous to he goo company. It is wonderful how acon you may per sutde yourself into azything of this eort if you only make the effort. The aches and pains bo-longing to old age yon may easily he broaght to bolieve ariae from delicacy of constitution, and the solomn warning of white hair is loet in a place eolown warring of white hair is loet in a plac where every one weors a wig.
The Belinwick neason bad just now commeneed and its aober gaieties had set in in good earncest

The Honorahle Mrs, St, George was the acknow- ledged eucen of Bemwick, and was well fitted for her poet of ruler. She was a heen-eyed, quick-witted, bardoned little old woman, who loved power bettor then oll thinge, even than her own son. She had a sharp, decided mamer, and a suspicions way of scunning you over the rim of hor gold spoctaclee, as if ehe were alwaye on tbe lookout for a revoke, end would be inexorable in claining the threc tricka as forleit if sbe only canght yon the three in the fact.

Mrs. St. George had been a very gay person in ber youth, but, heing politic and askute, she had alvays mansged to keep ont or the way of any open scandal, filling her jowellox and brealding her lmeband's heari in ths most decorous manher lmoband's heart in tha most decorous Masihle-under the circumatances. Mr. St, Geerge had been a warm-hearted, simple-minded, indolent man-very different from bis wicked, designing little wifo. He loved hie bome and quiet country pleasurea above sil thinge, whilst nhe was never happy unless plunged np to the very lipa never happy unless plunged $n p$ to the very lips the whiring vortex of Konilon gaieties. For time ha followed hor alvays, couquering his own dietaste fer such scenee; but, at last, tbe heartacho bo hrought awny with him was worse tban the heartinche she left behind her, and it became tacitly decided that she ehonld go her own way tacitly decided that she chonld go her own wen without interruption from him. This arrangemen was quite to her tasto; hat his advantages were soarcely so conspicaue, Ho conid not wean hie affections from this through, wilh a sort of obtase tondernees, until tbat very hour when, after its long, weary efrain, the poor heart broke at last,
Aud it wae to spare ancb a George, in dying, would not, for the sake of her honor and the honor of his name, alienate his eon
He hoped and tlooght that something in his fate would bring a regret to her, aud prompt her to atone for her injuries to him ly ber care of their child. He conld not fathom the dopthe of euch hardeted soul ao here, No sooner was the fumeral over than she huried Maurice off to s distant school, distinetly speoifying that he wie only to new conquests. In a few months the woeds were diecarded, and tbe young widow wae fairly launched sunonget the old dieelpations; but it was a notable fact that, although surrounded by admirere, and perfectly willing to ho persuaded into a cinauge of name, no one eeemed to prese tho olternative with suy vehemence or constancy.
For thirtoen years had Mre. St. George refused to to nocopt her failure, and then her hopes grew gradually very dim. It was too late in the day to play the saint with auy chance of eucoese, oo 3irs.
St. George, whose wits had always been infinitely St. George, whose wits had always been infinitely brighter than her morals, made her bow to the world and gracefolly retired fiom the fold. Sle agaciolled et Bulmwick; and no her ground, and fised her throne, than subjects canie tlocking in, flad to bo sheltered under a sceptre which united blad to bo sheltered wisdom to firmness
Mrs. St. George was quite in her element now. The new queen proved a litlletic persou had long heen needed to reguiate the Behmwick pleasures and give tbom more consiotency, and thooe who have suftered froms disorganised ayetem are wont to he very sulamiesive under a new order of thinge promising more enjoyment and seourity. The ruler, therefore, as Mre. St. George posscssed qualities eminontly fitting her for a post of comteen years at Balmwick should have cemented and legitimised her authority ratber tracted from its effeot.
Tbie night Mrs. St.
her a eelect party of friands. She was expecting her eon to arrive at eight o'clock, and as it wae contrary to Balmwiolk etiquette to have an unoc cupied person at theee rennions, Mrs. St. George cupied person at theoe rennions, alrs. Sh. George had only invited six gueets, making, with hereelf and son, exactly enough for two rubbere.
Tbe present party consisted of the three Misses Mrimaldenne, a Mirs. Sturt aud Mir. and Mise the second, wae eprightly ; Miss Amoross, the third, was languid; but all three were equally and painfully lean, and would, by the faehion of thei evening toileites, a beolutely insist upon advertis ing this leannees, ineteadof heeping it modestly in the background. Miss Grimaldenve wore her fals hair in hends, Miss Jaqnetts arranged hers in little đanoing ourla, whilst Amoroee's flabby, lietlcse ringlets were finished off by two giant accrocheocuurs, wbicb were gummed tightly down on each cheek, and were supposed to sdd greatly to the cheek, and were supposed to lustre of her emall groen eyes.
Mrs. Sturt was a direot contrast to the lean sie terhood, heing ponderous in pcron, end haavy in intellect. At the caite timetser, having a certain method of arranging he cards whioh helped her money, and kept her to one oteady syotem, eaey to fathom end respond to by her partner.
Little Miss Mervyn-as her friends loved to call 1 er-was one of thoso guehing, eympathetio ereatures whoee whole lite is an unconscious ascrifice to some favorite tyrant. Sbe was a reverent lover of all God's works-a cunple, true-hearted womnn, Who might have had foibles whioh oceasionally rendered her ridiculous, but at the eame time, wns noted for many of those qualities which mark that she loved her neighbors se herself. Sbe wab open to affection from all quartare, as she often declared; but the love of young people was hor eapecial pride and joy; she grew soutimental over eepecial pride and joy; she grew sontimental over them, made up ratches for them in her innocent, hungling way, and genarally peranaded them into the pleasure of laughing or crying with them, according to tbeir necessitiea
by eli-indnlgenee, bring themuelvee to a degree of uselesenese only possible for those who have of useleseness only possible for those who have sucb a member in their honselold to moderstand.
His nerves were shways in his own wry, end in other people's too. Eo bad as many eman conecito as e valin beauty of sixteen, and was so full of fancies, 80 unplessunt in bis idioaynciasica, that lises siater's pitient devotion to him dey by day muat have been a species of mertyrdom. Anthony Merven fahored under one fixed delacionwhich, from indulgence, had hecome nov almost minll to support the weight of his hody. Ho would tale no excrcise ou this nccount, and was, therefore, growing etout, and reaily creating the evil ha eaded.
Mr. and Mies Mervyn poeseceed jointly a emall etate in Weotmoreland, upon whicb they lived during thic summer, passing the winter at Balmwiak in order that Mr. Mervyn might drink the waters, whith be cone peculier complaint.
Colonel St. Georgo was lator in arriving this and she therefore proposed the been led to expects up their ruhbers without him as well as they could. Irs. St. George, the two eldeet Missee Grimaldenne and Mr. Mervyi made up the first table, hemselvee wilt a dommy ae a suhetitate for the ganent colonel.
It waseloso upon nine $\sigma^{\prime}$ clock when the expected guest at last arrived. His mother's solo greeting, athough tbey had not met for monthe, wes a busi-ness-ilike nod as she pointed to the vacent place at the next teble. Tbe three Miseee Grimaldenne rose as be entored the room, aud curtsoyed to him, whispering and giggling together meanwbile like boarding-school girlis out for a holidny ; Mra.
Sturt gave him n etolit how; whilst little Miee Sturt gave him a etohit how; whilst little Mise ing motion of the lips, hut dropped back aga n speechless with emnotion, and wrong hie hand in silonco. Mr. Mervyn did not sttempt to rise and greet the young offoer, he merely put down his cards, snd pointed deprocatingly at hie legs. "Yon will excnse me," he ssid, "but my unfortunate poculiarity rendere it imposible for me to walk across tbe room without due preparatlon any sudden movement under the influenoo of excitemcut npsets my equiiibrium. Yon see the beat of me now, sir, but if the card-table wore removod you would at once perceive how mieerpowertul frame
"You've diued of conrso " interrupted Mre
St. George, speaking to her eon; then, withoat waiting for an answer, she turnod to Mr. Mervyn, gud added quickly, "Oome, Mr. Mervyn, it'e you lead-spades are trumpe."
"Hearts slumaye ougbt
e and tender Amorosa in the hackground. "Amorosal" eaid Miss Grimaldenne eeverely, "restrain your feelings",
"Dear Amoross ie such a turtle-dove," excluimed Jaquettia, sending an arch glance toward Colonel St, George. Colonel St. Georg
ings," repeated Miss Grimaldenne, in a tone of unhending virtuo and eeverity. "Being a hohy of the family ie a great disadvantege," she added, of the family ie a great disadvantage," she added, turning to Misa Mervyn, who was seated nearest turning to Miss Mervyn, who was seated neare to her, at the adjoining tuble-"a very great dissdvantage. Amorosa has never had to exert herself, or exereiee self-control. We have always listened to her prattle, and sle forgeta that ahe cannot always have sueh an indulgent audience, and must learn to reetrain tbose warm emotions which our mistaken partiality has led us to cherish to openly. Amorosa ehould make an offort to more lifo other girls." Amoross sighed demonstratively, and pinohed effort st restraint so impressively recommeuted by her eldcet eistar ; but this little pantomine, although opecially designed for Colonel St.
George's edification, seemed to meke hut amall George's edification, seemed to meke hit smal impreseion upon him, even if it attracted hio impreseion upon him, even if it attrracted hie attention at all. Guided by some instinct of repulsion towards poor little Miss Mervyn-impossila to nnderstand, considering the gentle, noffensive tendernese of te ohject-Colonel St. George was busily devising the means of eitting Gefar from her as could be manegod, and consequently propoeed that she should be his partner, in order that he might eit oppoeite her methodical mind could never ecoept any innoration on the establighed order of things, asserted that it wee always customary to cut for partnere, as she ehonld really feel eeriously nneomfortable it this rule were sot aside. Colonel St. George had no alternative but to qbey, only luok favored him, and hronght him tbe very privilege he hed meant to spproprinte without satisfying the usual forms.
Miss Mervyn eighed, not a huge, obtrusive igh, euch ae Amorosa had favored the compeny aigh, euch ae Amorosa had favored the compeny with a few minutes before, but a suddenly-drawn with a few minutes beiore, but s sudaeniy-drawn breath, hetraying some inward perplexity and could have ant so patiently through four interminahle rubbers, sorting her caris proporiy, out of her trouble to enahle her to return her partner's lead or attend to tho technicalities of the game. But so she did, only her feeling of relier wns oponly manifeetod when the laet rubber was wns oponly manifeetod when the haet rubber wa hrought to a concluation, nad Amoroba left them, and hegan to attack the refreelimonts. The other ladies soon joined her, and, after a very light supper, all prapared to depart.
During this time Miss Jiervyn, who was much too exeited to ent, purgued Colonel St, George too excited to eat, pureucd Calonel St, George alout tho room, trying, by all the eimple means in hier power, to hring him to a stanattill, and force him to listen to something she had to any;
and it wae worth while to see how gracofully he managed to extriente himedf from fill her on-tanglements, bussing himspif so earneetly in ministering to the ladics' nauts, and elonking them when these wants wure sstisfied, that Miss Mervyn could not seeure his sttention for a minute.
Her only hope was that he might taks ber downstairs nlouc, and thus give her an opportunity of peakcing to hinn; but ho ctuelly cueteated her pur speaking to linn; but ho ctrelly cufeated her parotber to her, whills, Jaquetta and Amorosan, unoccupied and watcliful, followed cloes in their rear.
Her el
Her chair was at the door, anil hichanded her in with an excese of conetcosy whel wha hut another with an excese of courtosy whech wna hut another word for insolence-uoed to her wider the circumstences, Miss Morvy grew desiocrate, tinding boreelf eo eteadily foded. She was within a fow peces of the three Misses Grimaldeune, whoss green eyes glistened vigilaitly out of the sludow. green eyes glistened vigilantly out of the shadow.
To leave in this stato of snepense was impossihle and yot the qnestions sho lad to asi wero of such not bo given hefore the Niizece Grimaldemne. She heaitnted a moment. Cclonel St. George, with a cold, truumphant emile on his lipe, stood on the lean Gracee Hor with the difficultien of her eituation. At loset she could etand the state of thinge no longer; at any endure tluough the morrow, or be left to chance for mitigation or rehief. Sho bent forward, cage and hreathless,
"Colonel St.

Colonel St. George, I mnet eee you to-morrow, carly. I mast, don't you understania? very oarly. I must, don't you understand ? At nine o'clock-even eight-I will make ready to reneive yon. Don't dieappoint me. You nee I am ent dying of anxiety and curiosity." waiting upou your," answered the colonel, his lip, in its cynical ourl, giving an upward sweep to lie nge moustache; "hut you mustn't give yourse the trouble of rieing so eerly on my account." "Oh, I don't care e bit bow early it is--only mind you come," soreamed tho little women, ne at a sign from Colonel St, George her bearers inoved Then the conveyanoe ordered by the Misess oaw tbern seated, wished them good-night, and tiko woat back to the crawing-room to perform is an encourcoging word and a holping hand dnring The perils of his dessen The colonel laughed to himeelf as he stood bstening a minute and lookjing down the street we he cloeed the door. A shrill echo fom the carriage coutainiug the three Misses Grimnldenne pierced the etiliness in a manncr pcoularly sugseative of internal feuds.
"How very groes!" Mtiee Grimaldenne wae remarking in reierezce to miss Lervyn"s conduct the latter part of the evening.
"Disgusting!" put in Jaquacta, as she carefully Disgustiag! pat in Jaquacta, as she carefuily lemoved hor carls, placed theni fongthwise in a little paper box, aha covered her bald head with an old gray hood. "It's, euough to make oue ushamed of being a girll"
"Nousensel" said Amprot
the use of pretending to be girls, and so on, when we are alone I I know you were sixty last biuthday, and if that'e a girl, why I euppose Metbusaleh wae only juet getting into the prime of life when has dicd."
"Amo
"Amorosa," osia Mias Grimalaenne, sternly,
"your vulgerity surprises me" your vulgratity surprises me 1
"As to me, I never talice notio terrupted Jaquetta, leftily; "they may alway be stiributed to jeslonsy and spite."
"Jealonsy! Fal ha! hn " leughed Amorosa, But her langh wae not so disdainful as she wisied it to appear.
-mphasis. "Mesy," rooumed Mice Jequetta, with omphasis. "Myean, paltry jouloasy. I might have been married at this moment if I had liked, and you know I might, and that's wbat yon can't forgive me."
"I don't

I don't think he would have felt much inclined to press the matter if he hsd seen you in you "Amoroeal", exclaimed Miss Grimaldenne, ad
"Aloung monitorily, in har decp hatee voice. But Amoroe wae not to be chccked.
"A "A poor, pitifal dancing-maeter!" ehe went on, "And then for eny one calling herself os lady to he o proud of tbat! Well, I never 1 And I must esy that the way you oncouraged ham, and flirte about in his fince, and all that, was shamefol. Al he wantel we your money, and that you need to pretend was a great deal more than it really is, in proder to oheat him into malcing you an offer of marriage."
But Jaque
hape eloo whe bud taken refuge in eilence. Per hape elho wee sighing and grieving a little in her heart; for the firet, last and ouly lover, united in one eingle individunlity, ie not to be resigned without some sorrowfil regret. Jequetto had consulted the femily honor and retused the danc-ing-master, but not withont a pang; eo that Amorosa's taunta, brushing against the ninheale wound, caused her to surink yet, Witb anothe of her gray bood, and relieved her fcolinge by a few natural teare.
Meanwhidle, Colonel st. George hed returned to his mother's room, and was sitting alone with her. Mre. St. George rather hiked her son now that b was teo old to be any trouble. They might possilh have quarelled had they lived macb tosether but, as they rarcly met moro than twies a year, they managed to agree remarkably well.
Tbe colonel's feet were on the fender, and he was looking somewhst moodily into the fir "I might be tempted to ask," ha eaid, prosently, for ite antiquitiee, where on carth yon got nil the old women who wero here to-night?"
"Miss Mervyn yon know.,
"Gf couree ; but the pondorona widow ?"
"Is a Mrs. Sturt-a woman of good fortune,
"Is a Mrs. Sturt-a woman and an excallant whit-player,"
"And the throe girkp?" She eaw perfectly the tonite and folice ore to thers, age with good grace. It to rexign hersect harder for her to grow old, too, must hinve bee the Misses Orimaldenne, who had than any of the Miises Grimaldenne, who had never beon handsome or artractive. Bnt ahe was again; but thore was if ehe acopted it as it was.

tobegot ont her lif if ane
Having tuooeeded in perfocting herself in this Having tuooe eded in porfocting hersell in this state of feeling, sho coolana aftord to hangh at those oolonel again, when his mother's gaiety had some. wihat enleided.

"Yce-Amorosa,"
"And we may presume that eha entchce hoarts?"
"Or wifhos to do eo. The will and the deed are and vory dififerent things." In her oase they certainly must he. But, mose od women about you tr
"My dear Maurice, you dont enppooe thetyoung girlie would como and play whist with me, do you?
The old and the young have naturally different The one of pleasuro. I don't want to go to balls, notere I Ihould, of course, be neglectod nnd ridiculed I have had my dasy, oertuinly, and I con very weil undoratand that others alhould like to hevo theirs ; and in the meentime there is no hevo theirs; and in the messtime there is no reasou why $i$ illould not now meke myeelf as conureasou why I fhould not now mak.
fortable ae I can in my own way.
"IVell, I suppose you know host. But I have some nowe to tell you that will rather surprise som.".
youndeed!"
"IVhet
"Wheed do you ses to Gillingham being on matrimonial thoughts intent?"
"Impossillel
You dont' say

"Why tha daughter of that Mr. Mareih with whonhyo the have heen etaying latcely?
"Then I tell you what, Maurice--you mast forestal or supplant him, whichever is the needful oaurse Ites no nee having o handeome face and afinc figure if you can't do that," conoluded Mrs. st. Giorge, with judicious &lattery.
"I ould mannge it direetly if Iiked" "Then you muas be mad to hesitate one moment."
"Not at all. I aan playing a high game, mo"Noi at oll. I aan playing a high game, mother. The pool must he mino, syentually, hut I ther. The poon must he it until wonld rather not take it doubled. Revenge in sweet."

Swoeter thau love's yonng dream? "Sweeter than anything in life," ho anawcred, beginning to punch the coals,
"I am glad to kuow that," or sharp, quick way. "I have always bcen hor sharp, quick way. "I have always boen doubt ful whether yon took efter me or your father "Tr as cool as a cucumher, if that's what you "That's what I did mean, hut it has always been matter of perplaxity to me. Mins Mervyn hae given me hints occasionally abont some attaohment you formed for Nina Marsh when ehe was staying with her here in my shsenco last year." The poker fell out of Ms surice's hand and dropped on the fender with a hard clang ; hut, finding the keon gray eyes opposite fixed on him with an expression of curiosity and mischief combined Colonel St. George stooped slowhy to rep himself of the poker, saying, as he did so "I thonght you were much too sensible to be lieve all you heard." "I don't believe anything I hear, but all I see," In this cose yon could have seen nothing,"
I saw you drop the poker, snd heard it, too," "I saw you drop the poker, and heard it, too," answered his mother, going off" into one of her answered his
"It was so confoundedly hot!" hefore without still, you had held it some time Maurice: don't try anvenience. Take my advice, When our beanuty fades our wit brightens. To show you how well I have profited by my opportunities of etudying character, shell I tell you tunities of studying character, shell I tell you what you would bave done if you had had no possihle leaning towards Nina Marsh? ? possible leening towards Nina Marzh ?
"Well?"
"Well?" would have led me to suppose that she "Yon would have led me to suppose that she was a vust favorite of yours, allowing me also to ontertain the notion-more words that she, in her turn, did not regard you with actual disfavor. Now, Maurice, amI right or not?" "I dsre say you are; but the faet is, I hardly know I like ony one, that riage is very repugnant to my feelings."
"And nothing else would he poseihle in tha quarter, I Maurioe shook his hoad, and took to punching the fire again in his extremity. He conld not the fire again in his extremity. He conld not make np bis mind. He eaid he liked Nina as much as he oould like sny one; and then, again, his consin's partiahity, and Captain Marebl'e strang conduet, which puzzled and etimulated his own foolinge without exuetly suggeating rivalry- -al George into a maze from whioh he fonnd it impoe George into $x$ maze from whole ho fonad impoe notion that, by playing his trump card too earls, he might endanger the game.
If designing men knew how mnch less labor there was, beth of mind and hody, in a eimple straightforward course of action, they wonld aroid straightforward course of action, they would aroia the complications of vice, if from policy alone The gloomy shadow on Colonel St, George's face, as be sat musing over the remnant of fire in his mother's grate, wae the mere refex of an inward feeling of remoree which took the liherty of being aggressive and deapotic from time to time. He got up from hiessat, shook walked to the other end of the room, and then walked to the other onme hack to the fire.
"You've nothing p
aquired of his mothcr. "I lesve by the first train
"morrow,"
"I chn't atand all these old women P" he anwered, impatiently.
'Ana live, eh ?' and Mrs, St. George langhed a langh which stahhed her son like s aword. He oolked dangerous for a moment, but the oloud passed over before any eyes less watchful than hose of his mother could have noticed it at all. "My tendereat regards to the turtle-dove, "My tendereat regards to the turtle-dovs, mother, and tell her how grieved I am to miss a ropetition of her innocent prattle." And as he finished speaking he took his candle and went ap
The next morning, precisely at malf-past six, a fif stopped at the door of Mies Mervyn's lodgings, and a gentlemari got out and knocked at the
"Is Miss Merryn np?" he inquired, of the slipshod maid who anowered his summons. "Oh, dear mel no, sir," replied the girl, the military air of tho etranger alone keeping her from military air of tho atranger alone some exprossion of open dibdain,
"I am very sorry," anid Colonel St. George, im pressively; "she told mo I might come as early as am on my way to cotch the seven o' clock train for London, and this is the only opportanity of eeving her I could have had. Pray give her my oar when ehe does come down, and tell her how disspponted I was not to have had the interview we appointed much desived. You won't forget my mes-
 the earrige and drove off,
And thus it come to pass that when Mies Mervyn descended to the breskfast-room with a pale, anxious face, after her sleeplees night, the first anxious face, after her sleeplees night, the firs thing that attracted her attention was Colonel St. thing that attracted her attention was Colonel St Gcorge's ourd, with an obtrnaive "P. P. C." in She did not deserve tbis at his hands she know, and for a moment she was visited with a strong eense of his ill-uasgo and ingratitude. But she soon sucooeded in conquering this feeling, and soon sucoobded in conquering this seeing, whilst she choked down her tears she triod to feel sure that something had really oocurred to neceseitate Colonel St. George's abrupt departure. To Miss Mieryn's simple, unsuepicions nature, this Miss Merryn's simple, unsuapicions nature, thit bolution of the mystory scemed the most prohahi as well es the most plensant. But, however atrenuonsly the might endeavor to emother her doubts, she wan conscious of an uneasy, diseatisfied foeling, which went hand-in-hasid with her disappointinent and regret. It was not that she saw through Colonel St . George'e subterfuge-for ehe was by no means penetrating or astute-hut she could not rid her nind of the impreealon that she conld not rid her nind or the impreeaion tha he might have spared her the time ghe had so earnestly begged had he closen, and that, if sc tually compelled to lesve Balmwiok, it would, at tea. t, have heen postihle to put off hig journey for a couple of hours.
The days at Beechwood passed the more pleasantly that Colonel St. George was gone. antly that Colonel St. George was gone. The now was on the ground, the skeleton trees were in shrouds, snd the earch had covered the bittle greenness still left toit in a wide, , parkling mentle of unsuilied whiteness. Everything looked cold, and pure, and beautiful, where the winds had holand pure, and beautiful, where the winds had hollowed out for themselves eoft caves to lie and soh in through the night, or had drifted heaps of snow their peaks.
The pallor of these winter landscapee hringe a chill to our very hearts. Somehow, we shonld not like to die at such a time. We have piotured our last resting-place a quiet graveyard whore the pink-eyed daisy looke up rejoioingly at the sum, and yeliow huttercupe nod at each other in the hreeze. To fade away in the soft hush of a summer Sahbath ovening, Nsture going to sleep with you, and weary humanity olosing a moistened lid you, and weary humanity olosing a moistened lid after the longthened Sunday prayer, only this last to wake agnin, striving, and struggling, and weop-ing on, whilit you, under the dsisios, will taste for the firrt time the perfetedness of repose-this is what we dresm of with strange longing in our sad and eilent hours. But what has hrought this gloom over our page? The noveliet must not gloom over our page? The noveljet mult not dream, nor pick ont of the mosaic of life ouly those dull, somhre plecee which bcat accord with his self, but for others, unravelling the incidents his plot suggeste, and placing them before the mind's eyt of his resders as vividly as his skill will allow. Above all things he must not lag. Moralising is not his business; let him lesve that to wiser heads and colder hearts.
Here, then, we make our humble confession of one, and daah back into our tale, ohanting a rapia mea culpa on the way.

THE MILITARY COLLECE,  \section*{Marletta, Ga.}

To MY Putend on His weddrye-siont

To-Dax for thee and to-morrow for me ; I have ssid God bless thee, o'er and o'er, But I wish it douhle and more But 1 wimh it douhle and more.
friend I pause on thy bridal-night I pause from ray toil to wish thee all, That to mortal lot can fall, And upon thy head no touch of sorrow. The sun shone fair, and the moonlight now Has crownod the darkness with siver glesme. As glad za a bridegroom's dreems ; But on me the household lamp lete fall A light enbdued-and thy hour of prid Is the vigil of a Festival
To us on life's other side. To-dey on tho living all joy he shed;
But to-morrow is for the Bleased Doed

To-morrow for me, but to-dny for thee Thus are the lots of our living cast, nd the oheerrai lamp ehods over me Thine ho that shines ont of the past. In thee life'e promise all bright and br But the sunshine, though fair it smilee, and swe Falls to me over oross and grave. Eright be thy path and untouchod by gorrow, To-dey for thee; and for me to-morrow

FRANZ MULLER,

The English Railway Murierer. Few cosee heve ettrected more ettention than the murder of Mr. Brigs. in a firetecoses natway ear, rom the mystery tbat enthronded it., No euspicion-cemen to atbuch to any one. Mrr. Brigge to ng triuin at Fencburoh etrect for Hekney etotion. Within three minutee ride of the latter point bo wan

 His eyco aro emall
caretully combea. ill and deep aut, has b

SCENE AT TARLETON'S PLANTA

 TION, BAYOU TECHE.Oor epecial Artist depicted the ectual ecmen, wheh to meny will eeem a mere curicature of Southern negro life. An old negro with a violin, hie mauter's probably, came into the Union camp, and affer relnting the cauee of hie coming, whiked awny. 8 bortly afterwards, suyn our Artist, I found him under a tree, with some of has sable brethren around hime listeniug to his performance on the violln, the youngor dancing na though wacb mufio waze too good to be loat, and ol most comical point of the whole was the preeenco
two muloe enen in the midet, loobing on with ain air of quiet droulcry perfectly imcediatiblo.

CEN. OCLESBY

Major-Gen. Rtoelrd J. Oalesby was horn in Kontucky, but removed to nlinois ot a vory early age during the Mexican war we 1at Iisentenant of co. Co o regiment was decebarged in Mas, 184
Compt. Alorrin, in February, 1837, the command of the bady cat ap at Cerro Gordo, loning cevoral line ofiteors

 in tre outung downand branging amay a rebel lagg fron that peint.
After the reorganization of the regimentit was trane

installation of the most rev. JOHN M'closky,

Bur a few years ego the Catholio hödy in this country was oo insigufincunt in numbere that it sarcely entered into the oriliary viom of American sonts, momasteries of evory dencription. Under our free government the ritee of the cbinch are performed iree goucrntuent the rtee of tive cburch are performed without interruption, sad with ail the pomp and eplendor that the wralth of tho body pos euabiles thom to jive. Thore are few more plicturesque erents of the day than tbcec coremonies, which mecn Lut a fow stepa ay than tbocec corromonies, which recn Lint a fow steps from a buey atreet of a cify in thia century, eeeum to carry the bebolder back to the Milddio Ages.
Ono of the frondeat Catholic ceremonit.

 with burning topers, a crostakeareo ond a long lino of Aftur this the Archlib bop knelt before the altor for a tine in prayer, and wie thenescorted to the Epuccopal

SKIRMISH AT CEDAR CREEK,

Ous eketch of this elirmish ehows in the buckground the $\mathrm{htg}_{\mathrm{g}}$ wooded summit of 8traueburg nountsin and in the foreground the abnliow ofrcam nown ats Codar creek, and tamiliar already irom opera tiona near it. On a noigbboring hais tho robuls have ca away the woods at the summat tor a pigmal station

the siece of petersburc
THe epade is egain doing briele work in Virgnia. Tbe army edvancea alternately by trachches wae ehrunk from as degrading ie now a work that the soldior takes to roadily. Ho knows and feels too wcly tie importance of the siligbtust entrouchment, and has

MIDDLETOWN, VA

Arrone the Virgmia villagee coming hetore tbe pnilic from time to time is Middeetown, of whith
we give s pleasing akelcb by our Special Artiet on the Oppor Potomae, Mididetown ie quilet, ordinary Virginia village, $y$ ging betwoen Wincheeter and straebur. on the turmplio row, prueonting no ntriking featuree and with none of the hasy etiring look of our Northern

SCENERY OF THE MOON

Among the many terribly-sublime ecenes We mander than thut whioh prisents itself to the nopecten were he pliced invide one of thooo vast volcanic craters -Tycha, for instunce-aurrounded on every wide by the mees torrifio evidences of voleavic torce in in wildee, featurea. In auch a poeition be woold bave befere him starting ap from tho vist plain beiow, a mighty obeliek. starting ap from tho vast plain bedow, a mighty obeliel Alopod mountain of nome 2,000 feet in hoight, casting its intense bects ebadow over the plateau ; and partiy its intense thects ebadow over the pleteana; and party

UNION PRISONERS

 FROM TEXAS. THE sketches of Union prisonorse exchangedby the pebols after they wero reduced by starvation and reduced hy starvation and which we gave a fow weodst nince, were the most nopalnince, were the most appalling that tit hasever been oar ling that it hacever boen our duty to prouent to the pnblic in oar Mluetrated contempo. raneouns hetory of the time.
Qladly, for the honor of our Oludly, for the honor of our common humanity, would wo have avoided the task sud thrown a vell over tho datablical muligraity of tho antiorities which coula conattiorities which could conaruelts.
A aheotoh, which we give to-day, from a photograph by MePhersom $\&$ oliver hows the enliated men of he 19th Iowa, talien on their resching Nor Orleans, after long and cruel captivity at nent wiaceaptured pear Mor anza, on the $28 t \mathrm{l}$ Koptemhof, 1865, baving been eent out with tho 26 th Indiana,' seotion of the 1st Minsouri and mountid infontivy, al nuder Col. J. B. Iealke, 20th

Iowa to divert the rebbiGen Greano. That ofller, howover, laving been reinforced by Com . Mouton, crosacd th Aohafalayn and ont off Leaka rom hie division. Alliough mado a determinined Alght and after finding it vain to attempt to cut Lis way through to Greeno at onco fell back and the prisonera wer and the prisoners were marched, through a drenol ing rall, to Grecno'e camp and having boen stripped of vorything but the clothem on tioir backes, began thetr ovitiate in tufforing. on ment, eent to shreveport, nifforing from humger and cola, having no blunkets or

FUN FOR THE FAMILY.

 facotioun author.
This following lines are said to have been mach eclobratod omilial in one of our fovernmint de-

From 10 to 11 -anta hreakfant for seveal
From in to 1 -theree nolhing done.
Froma 1 to $2=$ thereve nothing to do.
Froua
2 to
and rompo
A youno man in Canada, whose English

 Wriss the French papers do eet out wonder

 oelzad for thligh treesinde promptilude, sis fis about to bo meunwhilo the invider wes comjelled to wear the wil crus'
miondal

DRELS FOR VOLUNTEERS.
Fail in-To good waye and hasbita, wilich will bo con ducivection-To your hasineas, snd never mind other peoplecto Might Face-Manfully do your duts, and don't he glad of peity excumo for elirking ii

 Preeent Arrme-Oheerrully when your wifo aske you $t$ Breate oinhy for her. hab and everything which io to retira your odvincement in the worla, food for reflection paragraph suggests plenty of Living Artbets. An old poxdier demanded lo bo let in Monerigus Dunsind, a visitor in New York, haviag no fuith m

 The unhappy depositor rushed to tho ssuntiog.honi for the emount. At this the Frenchmnn was more ass biut I I gou got him 1 don't want him; bat if yen have not got him, 1 must heve bim." OLD Dr. Nichols, a celebrated quack docto trreat tigu prainted to to tract the wondering eevee of the

"And what, pray, we that wo wated the doctor.
"Whe joe, watirn "Why, you see, wald Pat, " oou'ro got a hesutiful ohect of wutor here, and not ta bit of o bird Bwimming
mit." "Ayl yes," replod the doctor, "thate ngoo idea.
1Hill have. comple of ewane yanted there; wouldn't they be fino $\gamma$ "
 "And whint Lhatf" niked the doctor.
"Why, I can't exacdy bink of hing name Jlat now, hut
 The tast veen of Pat and the doctor w
for dear life, and the dootor after bim.
"Jm, this damp, unwholesome air has given

 Whin is the figure of your mother's mother

Wonderfal I Strange!

Foll Instractiona hy which any person can master the

Headquarters for Armv Corps, Masonic and Campaign Pins.

 Every Noval Veseel. With each order recelved $x$ שill send my Wholesale Muitratod Cireulas to Agente.
B. T. HAXWARD, Manufacturing Jeweller,
(Box 4876.) 208 BROADWAY, NDW YORI.

The most succe
ever puhlibhed.
FRANK LESLIE'S LADY'S MAGAZINE

Gazette of Fashion, FOR 日มPTMMERE, 1864, IS UNSURPASSED IN ATTRACTION: FULL BIZRD PATTRRN OF A FIGABO BODY AND doublepage colored plate of fashions mblac cing Etyice nowhore elso found YOURPAAE CUT, containtng thirty one different dresees.

New Stylo of Hata, Corsages, Fichus, Jookots, Headdreasea; fasbions for girts of various agees. Contents .
Fathere Bequest. Iluatrated.
$\triangle$ Fright th the caucasue,
Told in the Trilight Iniuatratod.
Lave Mo for Mseif Alone.
Pval Garrett; or, the Scooed. Illostrated.
Eesle Granger. Mlastrated.
The Doctor's Whio, hy Mise Bruddon-continaed.
With other attractive matter, illustrationa of Forelgr
No Mogazine in the conntry crasla it in the Uterary eblility of its varied and interesting asntenty, or it

Buy it by All wreans I
FRANK LESLIE, 537 Pearl street, N. Y.
Bantiful Yalso Mroustachos, 60 cent

MAD. PUTNAM'S STOCKING SUPPORTER

627 nimadems, N. x . Tho most "Rich, Rare and Racy" Pa-

IMIPORTANT NOTICE
TO OFFICERS, SUTLERS, GUNSMITHS, and the public generally.
 Sword, Belts, Sanhes, Freentation Articlce, Mihtary
Naval and Fancy Goods, etc., con get the very bes tho orousily poited, and in novid sutisfactorily supplyag
eorme of tie princlpal dewers in the conntry.
 405-8
Pifty Mothods of Dimploymont.-Arts,

New Map of Richmond

Showing all of the Fortinastions eurronnding the Rebel Onpital, together witi a decaription of full the Forts, eli,

GREAT PRIZE DISTRIBUTION Gold Watches, Diamond Rings, Flegant
Jewelry and Pancy Goods, Woxth $500,000:
T. BENTON & CO., Jewellers, 195 Brosdway, N. X. OERTHFOATRS, nsmitog Each article of onr, itonk and tes vache, oro phacedin anved EwH1 bopps, and egard to chooles, on receipt of 20 cents; the uitres

TOO TEIANNEEES:

Yon MAY get a watcr or DIAMMND RNE for ONE DOLLAR, wich you do not pay undil jon knoo wist
 Entr Cortifiestes sor t1; thirceen for $$ 2$.
AGENTS WANTED. Send a viamp for a Circuian

Highly Important to Soldiers!
The "STYPTIC," disoveved by the aslebrated Chem-int, PROE. LIEBIG, is an infulible romedy for Hemerthase and Bleeding from Founds, it is put up con. pocket. As noon as wormded lt thould be applact and turing the italian and the Dandth waro. Sent, wath foll A libent to any nddreas on reccipt of &1.

DANBS, EDile ABent for the U. R.

IMPORTANT

 on rectaijlof 25 centa. Addreso

Do Yon Want to got Mlarriod? "Courtóalp Made Easy," $A$ Boot of 100 parce, Ithes. tratod Ireating on "Peychomancy, painly elowand nary whoever they wivh, wrespective of ube or Eunt by mail for 60 centa knd

Sues. 10, 1006.1
FRANK LESLIE'S ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.
J. H. WINSLOW & CO.
 100,000

VForth $500,000:

 turme to turgen whath
Toum to the country?

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

The Secretary of tho Treasury givee notico that subThe socrotiry of tho Trensury eiveo noticen payabie thrie yoarn from Auguit 15th, 188t, with nembannial intcrest at time roto of eeven and three.tonthe per oevt. per annum-1
These notes will be convertible, at the option of the holaer at matarity, into six per cent. gold hearing bonde, payablo not lees than ive nor miore than twenty years from their date, ns the Govornment may elect,
They will be ternedi in denominntions of $$ 50, $ 100$, They wall be tartect in denominations of $$ 50, $ 100$, $$ 600, $ 1,000$ and $$ 5,000$, and all subserriptione mast be for ifity dollars, or bome mudiple of nity dollark. As the noten driw interest from Auguat 15, pestons molving doposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest necrued from dite of noto to date of deposit.
Partiee depositing twenty-five thousund dollare and commiantos of ono-quarter of one per cent. Special Advantages of this Loan. IT IS A National savings bani, oftering higher rate of intereot than any other, and the beat $x$ aurity. Auy eavinge bunk which pays its depositors in finting medtum of the country, and it cannot pay in anything botter, for its own asoots are either in Government escuritios or in notes or honds payalle in Govern. rant paper.

Convertible into a Six per Cent.

5-20 Gold Bond.

In tadition to the very Uheral intersat on the notee for thres ycars, ulls privilege of canveralon is now worth about three per cent. por annum, for the carrent rate for $5-20$ Bonds to not lese than nine per cent, pre mium, and befors tha wor tho prewium on six per cent U. S, etocke was over twanty per cent. It will be soon that the actuas proht on thie loan, st the preesnt market rate, le not lese than tun per cont. por unnum

Its Exemption from State or MKunicipal rasation.

Bnturide from ell the advantages we have enumerntod, notecs from local taxations. On the averoge, this exempthon io worth nbout two per cent. per smum, sccarding to the rote of taxation in various parte of the country. It io helieved that no Fecurities olfier eo great indaceIn all other forms of indeltedeces, the talth or ability of privato parties, or stock companies, or separato communities, only, in pleiged for payment, while the wholo property or the connkry in hell the ohligatione of the United Stites.
of
Enhacriptions will he recelved hy the Treasurer of the Vrited Ststee, st Washington, tho soveral Aenothat tional Bunka which are depopitarica of publise money, and

AKL RESPEOTABLE BANKS AND BANEERS throughout the country will give fur ther information an AFFORD EVERY PAOLLITY TO SUBSORIBERS. Storeoscopic Picturee and Cartes de YisiTk, lateet importatione Alo, New Beoke and

The Confessions and Jxperience of an Invalid.

wat cant is1 50. Send wishy for Crealan,
 WHOLESALE AND RETAIL,
DEGRAAF & TAYLOR,

(TORMERETE IF. P. DEGRAAF),

NO. 37 BOVUEIET, NHEV YOFEE.
Thise eetrabielimont is eix storoye in height, and ostanda 249 foet through to No. $\mathbf{6 5}$ Ohryetie Stroet-mazing one of the largest Furnituro Bousce in the Unitod states.
They are propared to ofer grcut inducements to the Wholesile Trade for Time or Cueh. Their et ook conslits in part, of

ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND GHAMEER FURNITURE;

Mahogany and Walnut, Parlor and Chamber Furniture
Aleo, OANE and WOOD SEAT work, all quilities; HATR, HUSK and spBING yr TTRESSES, a large stock enamplled owhmber furnture, in Sels, from $$ 22$; il00.
Tucker's Ňew Style Patent Epring Bed, The hest as well as tho cheapest of sny in uso. Retitil price, $$ 2$ each.
Thelr faolititien for manufacturing dely coniputition All work guaraniced as represented.

ARMT BADGRS

SINGLE ONE, 100 OR 1,000! aold, silver and white metal.

$\qquad$ Bilver, $\$ 1$ so each.
Gold, $$ 8$ each

HOSTETTER'S cambbravid
STOMACH BITTERS.
 Mited state aro Hooaiea with the dirot poisont under poumas purporing to be medicinal, hut not a whut heoo

 Done of thase thinge, but are a comhination of pure E*-

 Bold by all Druggieta and Family Grocert. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,

$$ 10$ AGDNTS $$ 10$ And Dealers, to nell Fine Crayon Portrait of and 20 more Novel and UVNoful Artioles. Profit large,

WFANTED WANTED!

Dr. Briggs's Crolden O'Dor. WHY? BECADSE IT has proved to grro astiffuction to Thourands. The Gotden O'Dor will forco a fuil eet of Whiter Whifkers or Motatachies if tive week, sud no Hunitragl
 4e5-8

Beanty,-Eunt'o Bioom of Roses, A oharninge, dellcato and perfict nutural color for the cheeks or ilpe; doos pot wosh off or linjure the eldin; remsine permsneut for yoars and cannot bs detected.
Price si. 18 cents by main, evararely packod from oh-

If yon want to Know, ckc., read MEDICAL COMMON SENSE. A curloas book for curiona pcople, and a food boak for every one. price $$ 1$ to. To bo had at tall Nowe Depolif.
Contents

Ititerary Agoncy, シstabliehed in 2842

GOURAUD'
Italian Medicated Soap,

 man Drisgitit, conenemys.
"Solf Preservation"?-A New Ihedical

Sterooscopic Views and Cartes de Visite

MATRIMONIAL FAVORS
 At Tucirin'g. 769 Broadway.
A№o por Month. Aotivo and rolizalo

Attention, Company!

 | 468-63 | P. O. Dramer Ails, AlLang, N. X |
| :--- | :--- |

75,000 Watches, Chains, Suc. VOPEMNEI $100,000.

 $450-62$

"Peychomancys"-ZHow oither sex may

Nevo Notwithetanding the increase in price of cheaib.
cals and other mutarials,
 PHOTOCRAPHER,
No. 2 Now Chambere Eireet, N. Ys, Will take Card Piohures at the OLD PRICE for a ehort $$ 150$ PER DOZRN.
Large Photographa $1 the irat-50 oth. addetional once,

MRatrimony.-Why every man chould

 The Great Mitoney-Mifaking Articieo
 ${ }^{25}$ coonth. Addrean E. B. MARTIN, Binatale, N. H.
Do You WFant Zuxuriant WWiskers or Moustaches?
MY ONGOEN Will force them to grow hovily in

"Album Gomo"-Somo thing Now, Gay

 And Aunco Toomotedomo thing Now, Gay

Whiskers ! Whiskers !

FRANK LESLIETS

Unrivalled Publications

Frank Leslitere Lady's ntagazine and GAZETTE OF PABEION. The bost Family Magzzine

 In PABHONS 1 thas no equal or conapetition
Trankik Leslio's Ten Cent Mronthy,

Frank Zeelie's Illustrirto Zoitung,-the only German mustrated paper in the country. S$0 00 per annum.
Trant Loolio"s Lady'e Iluetrated Al${ }_{2}{ }^{\text {Mindacta }}$

[DISTIILEDDEW]

Beautioes the Camplexion, removes Tan, Freckles and Dlecolosutions, and readers the Slitin Wiito, Sork, Smooth Bnd Cleer. Ail Druggists have to on Bile 000 DREOT, 718 BROADWFAY.

Royal ELavana Zottery.

Soldiers' NLoney Belts.

GROVER & BAKEDR'S Highest premion elastio stivin SJWTING MACELENJS! Salearooms, 495 Broadway, New York.

Sutlors, tho Best Prizo Stationory Pack-

"The West-Indian Zair Curlor," war-routed to curl the moit stright and etifi hoir on the

Agonts Wanted to eoll the Largost

Great MEn.

REMINGTON'S

FRANK LESLIE'S ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.

AMERICAN NAVAL OFFICER COINO INTO ACTION-NEW STYLE INVENTED BY COMMODORE FARRACUT.
$15 PER DAY $15

IVORY TEWELRE

$\qquad$
The Tarly Physical Degeneracy of American People,

DRR. ANDREW STONE,

BALLOU'S

patented
FRENCH
YOKE SHIRTS
Warrentod to FIT,
CHEAPMR

otbor shity.

For este by all tho principil denter baLlou brothers, 403 Broadway, X . $\mathbf{y}$.

METALLIC AMERICAIN

DYSPEPSIA TABLETS

For INDIGESTIOR, HEARTBUEN, eta, manutectured
only by & . WELiNG and zold by Drugethea gea.

LADIES' ITETMER.

 TIVE ANATOMTCAS DNGRAVING: Hee information never before pablinhed. Sent free.

Eportsmaon, Tourilete, AND ARMTY AND NAVY OFFICERS,

 Without the distresetag on and improve tho
Oitaloguas feent by enctoong atamp.

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE BYMAIL or EXPRESS

Self-Measurement for shirts Printed direetions for velf.measurement, iint of prices, ond drawing of diferont etyles of olirts and collars
Eint free evergwhrm mand free everywhrm.
end
mind

SuHM COMFIRS

gNAMILLED WETMTE, Hoving the oppearanco and comfort of inan, hevo been worin
Rnitand for the last two years in proference to

 Price tis centa eachi, sent by post to any Onion oii the receipt of of conta.
WHo

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { WHOLESALE AND RETAIL. } \\
& \text { Agenta Warte in every Town in the Union. } \end{aligned}
$$

> S. W. अᄑ. WARD,

Shults Onguent-Warranted to produce a fall ett of whatere in six wreaks or money re-$668-700$ A Secrot Worth Enowingo-Eow to aplee or other fruit in 19 hour the Boctre somt Frerywhore tor 25 cents. Adarese 0000
I. B. Bowent, Box
220, Bosten, Mass.

 Molded
 PATENT MOLDED COLTAR." Sold by all retart den.
exs in Men'e Furninhing Goods. The treie fuppied by HATCH, JOHNSON & co, Bi Deroushire Streot, Bonton. J. S. LOWREY & CO., 3 TWarren St, N. Y.

VAN DEUSEN, BOEHMRR \& CO.,'s $\underset{627}{ }$ Oheerthiteet, Philhdeiphia. HODGES, BROS., 23 Hanover St, Baltimoro.
 LEAVITT & BEVYS, cor. Firth and Vino Sts, Cinn. A. FRANEENTBAL & BRO., No. 0 Main St., St Louto. BRADFORD, BROS, Milwenkec
WERD, WITTERS & 00. . 7 to 19 Tchoupitontas St, N. O
Nervous Diseases and Physical Dehili-ASgoclumion -ent in ecaled ietter envelopes, fre
of charge Addresi DR. J, BKILLIN HOUGHTON

WM. KNATE & CO., mantracturers or gold medal GRAND AND SQUARE PIANOS, Cortincoteo of Excel-Thalem.
AYD COMBINATHON CJSEIONE,
 Balls, Cues, and every article reinting to Buinade, eafe by
PRELAN $&$ COLLENDIR,

Vineland Lands. To all wanting Farms.

FRANK LESLIE'S

出, 3 ,

Barnum's American MMuseum.

Oscanyan's Oriental Album,

O OBCANYAN,
Scoond Avenne, 24 door from seth St, N. Y.

frank lescie'g
ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER,

NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 17, 184
 Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper. One coyy, three monthu.
One copy, dix monthe...

one year, ........................

TERMS FOR ADVERTISINC.
One Doller A hine on the outaide or last page.
Sixity Cants a line on the 1th and 15th prger.

First-class stories will ho read promptly, and length will moct with attention.

Antcuss yon Nywrypras smo Meozmezs carnes bo
 hould bo acont by expreas.

We recently receivod the following letter

 Very reepeemfility The etory nent with that rorg oaf-band commonica Wagor," by Edward Newiman, and proved to bo A htory now. It was pubsiched in onr paper of Nov. 14, 1868 , as "Consin Jukk'B Courtahip; or, the Loet Wager,", and in placfing . his photograph tin a luo gallery recently in Broome street, but now in a handsome marble huilding

Conclusion of Volume XVIII.

Wrra this numher we closo eighteon umes of this paper, aud thus rapidly approach ing the second decade of its existence, wo may he pardoncd for a feeling of pride at having heen the first to estahlish a successful Illustrated Paper, fully up to the requirements of the time, and consequently possessed of those characteristics which malse popularity a result he Knowing whe
Knowing what the pnhlic requires, wo spare no effort, no talent, no expense to lay hefore them, week hy week, an illustrated record of all that is exoiting, aheorhing, curious or inter esting in the events of the day.
Daring the present sad civil war our peper las boon a living history. Generals in every section attest the fidelity of our sketohes ; foreiga papore recognise in our illustrations which leads them almosi uniformly to mer ours in preference to any othor illnstrations.
Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper is not only an Hiustrated Journal, it is Family Paper of tho highest order. Its Tales Sketches and Poems, exclasively original, hav won a repatation in the country as evincing the

It is our pride here, too, that we have called forth a numher of writers whose names will Those whoso suhscriptions expire with the volume should renew them at once, to avoid interruption in receiving the paper.

Atlanta Ours - Grant and Sherman as

 Peace Ambassadors.Gen. Sheaman's magnificently conducted Georgis campaign has at leugth been crownsd The captare of Atlantatells the welcome story. It practically demolishos the reheltion from Georgia to the Mississippi rivor, and reduces the fighting capacitiss of Jcfi Davis to his armed forces in Virginia
In tapping the railrond leading South-westwardly, via West Point, to Montgomery, Alahame, after cotting the Augusta road, Gen Sherman rendered the situation of Hood, within his streng oncircling fertifications of Atlanta, exceedingly uncomfortable; hut whon Atlanta, exceedingly uncomfortable; hut who Sherman's right wing was swung around so as to cover the rond leading South to Macon, a stuhhorn struggle to recover it or a stealthy evacuation of Atlanta, if possihle, became the svacuation of Allanta, if possinhe, heca fige the only alternative to Hood. True to his fighting proclivities, right or wrong, he adopted the deeperate alternative of risling city and army in an effort to dislodge his poworful adversary in an effort to disiodge his powormul adverbary at tho point of the hayonet from this Aaco rond; but the forces sent were in turn attacked and routed, end the disastrons consequences, which the cerutions Jo. Johnston would have toreseen and avoided, the rash and. He ahan-dent Hood rushed into and realised. He doned the city which he was appointed to defend, and, what is woree, he has no place of retrent hefore him, right or left, which promises him anything more than a few days security agaiust the complete dostruction, dispersion or capitalation of his divided and persion or capit
The ouly alternative, in our judgment, now remaining to Hood, if still reeolved to "die in the last ditch," is to try the experiment of a junction with Gen. Lee, in Virginin. True, the prospect in this direction is gloomy, for the vic torions Yankee army of Atlanta, whatever route he may take, will douhtlees follow close npon his trail; hat Hood needs ascistance, which ho his trail; hut Hood aceds assistance, which he Lee. In view of some such enterprise, the occupation of the Weldon railroad hy Gen. Grant will render him a donhle service. He then stands a la Vickshurg, directly hetween the army of Lee and the army of Hood, and thus interferes as mach with the reinforcement of Lee from the South as with the suhsistence of his army in Petershurg and Richmond. In fuct, Grant's position on the Weldou railroad is snhstantially what was the position of Sher man on the Mroon road hefore the late hattle, and that a similar resnlt will soon follow we are ontirely confident. The spasmodio activityand threatening demonstrations of Early's tivity and threatening demonstrations of Early's forces in the Shenandoah valley are mach the forces in the Shenandoah valley are mer, Roddy same as the movements of Wheeler same as the movements and other rehel raiders in the rear of Sherman They are hat the flatterings of the old hird in the grass to divert the sportaman from he Grant and Sherman thoroughly comprehend.
We congratulate the army of readers of this journal on the glorious prospeot hefore us. The Secretary of War has ollicially ennounce the cheering intelligence to the rountry, the instead of the 500,000 men called for by the President in his last order for a draft, 300,000 will suffice for all the purposes of this war ; and that " 100,000 new troops, promptly furnislsed, are all that Gen. Grant asks for the capture of Richmond, and to givo the finishing hlow to tho rehel armies yet in the field." With unquesthoning faith in Gen. Grant'e carefally that thed requisition, we entertain the hope satisfied will emahle lim to finish np the dis mantled Confederacy and tottering despotism of Jeff. Davis, Rast and West, will, hy a jus Grant and Sherman are the only peace amhas sadors, whoee overtures and peaments in hehalf of peace are sure to prevail. Let us support theso ahle ambassadors in their convincing psace.

Summary of the Week.

tranti

A diepatch from the Army of the Potomae saye that tho reporte of the losses in the 5tb corps, in the batulos of the 18 th, 19 th and 21 et ult, rooching 5,000 , greatly exaggerate the facte. It io believed 5,000 , the eggregate loss will not exceed 3, ,o00.
the loee of the 2d corpa in Tharsday's fight
The will noe exceed 1.200 . The rebels are said to be using the Weldon railroad below ream' be using the Weldon railrond blow rheam's etation, and ruoning thoir supplies thence to Petersburg around our loft by wagon. As this requires a lerge force to guard the trains and requires a large force to guard the trains and defend tho road against our eavalry, it caunot bo either a very proitable or plensant meaus of communicetion. Arrangomente have boen made for barying the rebel desd left on the field of not do this, and also thet they did net carry off their weunded, is palpable eridence that, althongh they drove back the 2 d oorps, they did net achiev a coimpleto or creditsble victory.

GIERIDAN's DEPABTMENT.

Merritt's divisien of Oen. Torbert's cavalry ceme up to Braduy Johtuben on the sainary hand-to-hand Ight âreve him througb and heyond smithfield.
On tbe 22th the enemy brongbt up infnatry, but Sheridan seut up Ricketts's division of Wright Sheridan seut up Ricketts's aivibion of Wright minntes, In his retreat up the valley Early was pursuod by sboridan with his whole army, and Averill attacked Vaughan's esvelry eouth of Martinsbarg, oapturing 20 wagens, twe battlo fiage, many prieoters and a herd ef cattle.

Tho steamer Creocent was recently sent dewa ander convey of the Admiral carrying 600 rebel officers to place ander fire, but the captain, when her aphoro. One rebel efficer did, in fact, eacape. The captain is under triel.

हоמетa.

Whoelor bad been operating en Sherman's communioations, and though defonted in one or tho placeo met some euccess. Sherman, as if alarmed at this, oetensibly gave up the siege of Atlant and pushed hie artuy down to East Point on tho Mincon rosd, lenving Slocum (30th corpe) on the Chattahoocbee. Hood then etationed a part of hia army at Joneeboro, and theae on the afternoon of the 30th attacked Shermen, whoee centre was at Coneh'e, but the Union General drove the rebelo back with heavy lose, broke up the Macon road, and on tbe 1st of Sept. made a genersal attack on the onemy at Jonesboro, Oen. Jeff C. Davis carrying the worke, with 10 guna and 1,000 prisoncrs, In the night tho enemy retrested to Lovejoy'e station. Hood cut of from the best pert of his army, with Sherman on his rond, blew up the magazinee in Atl then marobed in.
Kilpatrick bod previonsly heen cutting the road
a ailbama.
On tho 23d Oen. Granger and Admirnal Farragut opened on Fart Morgan. Gen. Page Contrary to oetabiisbed militery ussge, the robel Gen. Page threw swey biesword, and caused the complete destruction of the guns and ammanition in the fort; and there le every reason to bsliove that this wns done efter the white figg had been raised. The terms of capitalation were tbe same as in the caso of Fort Geines. The oonduct of Gon. Page contrsete most unfavorebly with that of Col. Andereon, the Commandar of Fort Gaines, who sorupulously preserved aveg momont he reised the whito atg.

Lorma.

Col. Herris, with 75th Ohio and some other troops, recently penetrated to Stork, where they deatroyed & train. Thoy then advanced to Oreenville, and drove in the euemy; but eoon after, while resting and esting, were suddenly and a party of his men managed to eecapo, but many wore taken.
missibantri.
The atenmer Lancanter wes fired into 15 milee
belor Natchez by a rebel battory, supported by below cegalry.
Hardonaburg was plundered by guerillas on the 23d of Augnst.
Jake Bennet,
Jake beunt, with a gang, dashed into Oreneboro', killed three negro sola, of the Brd Kentucky ouvalry.

тENNESSEE.
On the 29d Gon. Gillett, in a fight with the rebels, killed 40, and drove the force from the town. His looe was 25 men, among them Ool. Carney mortally wonuded.
A dispatob from Louisville, dated Auguet 30, eaye that tho rebel Gen. Wheeler, with his entiro force, appeared at the head of the Oumberland river, threo milee below Gallatin captured $n$ company of Federal troops, end were attempting to crose tho river the eame morning for an acvance nuou Gallatin. A report has reaohed Cave City, Ky, that tha coll ing the Federal foroos at Gallatin ordered the depot to be burned, sa it was without the range of his guns. A rebel forco axtimsted at 10,000 , with 12 picees of ertillery, wore within 17 mules of Aaehvile, ou morning. Gen. Ronaseer, with a body of cavalry and infantry, met tho enemy's advance cerry in the morning. Sbarp akirminhing commenced with varying succees. At last accounte Gen. with varying succeass At last acoounte Gen.
Rouseenu had driven tberebels threemiee tovarde Rouseenu had Marfreeoboro'.

missouni.

On the 28th of Angues it was antuouncod in St, Louis tbat Shelby, with 6,000 men, wes ebont 70 milloa l Shclby and Marmadule are said to hove attached Pine Blaff.
indins teararfory
The Kaneae City Journal says it is necertnince taneons attsel will be madeby the corabined vands of Cheyenues, Kiowna, Utahs, Suakee, Camanchee and Arrapahoce on Fort Koarney, Fort Cottonwood, and all along Platte Valley. Evory measure is and all slong Platte Valley. Evory measure is preprietors, with their famalies, are taking refugo
in the ferts. in the ferts.
The India armed than U. S. treepe leadera, sud are better proved in a recent fight where mey infilitod serieus damnge, whilo our mon were unable to resch them with the guns in their hande.

The Tallahassee, aftor plandering and destroying aleug our ceast, ran into Holifix, coalod, and donbtlees traneacted ether busines. She then sombtlees traneacted ether business. She then started back to Wimiugton, and, in spite ef the tarted back to Wimiagton, and, in spite of the efforts of eur blockadere, ran in, and new hes under the guns ef Fort Fisher, giving end reeciving a ealuto ne she stoamed in. Anether privntoer entered, and was saluted by Fert Caswell.
Tho Nicholas Biddle, of New York, wae burned The Nicholns Biddle, of New York,
of the Brazilian censt by the Florida.

FOREICN NEWS.

OnnEns have heen issued in Eugland thant uo eikmantled The Kingara, according to a Liabon telegram of Auguat 13, wia in the Tagus. Her intanion wne eupThe last advices fromp Frnulfort Ahow a loss of faith in Uultod statoo Bonds, harge rates having deqreened Freet die Frech dieturbanceo have broken tout in Algiera.
The Ozar bax ordered a reduction of the Eivasion The dificults between the American Consul and the Eypdian Government hae been estianictority aljuated.
Odder had been reatored in Beltast, where thore had been no rioting dinco the 19th or August. Mryl.
The King of Spain had left Frameo for Mndid.

 between France and Itsly.
The Ruesian arny is be bednced.
The Austrins and Prussana have The Austrians snd Trussiana have deeided to occupy tho Duchy of Holatela.

TOWN COSSIP.

Is all communities there are what may he tormed otock toples, which last like wondern, not uine dagn, but their alloted time. The topics for this week have beon two; Arebly, the nomination of Mc Clellan for
 of the moast exelithag monthe in the whole hietory
of the country. New York in an eepectally excitalle sgitate un the faot coming newo from our arroles in the neld, which bids fair to culminate in that time tote ind neld, which bids fair to culininate in that tirae foto something doecded. The next two monthe wil decido what policy will

 Whit
Bt.
Tho Tro o teach
the ru theo rur
recom
Yorkit
yorar.
your bo
bo exien
gathe
wrar Frode
enme.
wrek, Wriond
frion

 jurs,
nis.
Amo
dating carrine

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.

 Domostic- The builing wherat ite Chitago Con.

 Pat The Wastingtan Star doptores the profane, ditas)

 Taylot, caparc.c.cuads and Gen. ER. R. W. Writht ma

 Soman, havil leased

 Whe erdimily rommend thin gatroumo ano weld ant to oum:

Mrilitary. - A Unlon omeor writing from Charlees

Foreign.-The eondtlon of Britid Indif mas never

-The French papore havo hatly hecame ao com.

 what tit we the proh cotioun yeuro

- The robel papar pabuiuhed in youdon, the Thde: geame of both North nua south whion the war in Andor

 Hibo till toid out tasinet hin

tion of Tha Frenoh Geovornment cantemplato the eboul.

Parie. A A ournat devevoted to coonkery han beon strited tu

 Laryorr, hut requires the origimal of tho hat erer.

 hectual endo wiment, are aliway opent to suspicion.

 India Lo the se sait repport.

Orricerns, sutlera, gunamiths and the pablic

THE UNION HALL, SARATOCA.
As Saratoga excels all other Watering Places for hrimancy and fratiol, so doen Union Hall carry of emphatically tise Yery bet of the lind ever opeced, and propared ei ll were for a triumph worthy of co renownod of this beautifal of thehlishmonont, hist it reguired the ano made it par teat thant exquilito managoment whileh or the continant, So admirnbly are all the departmento os 1,200 guents in the house at one time, the utmost regularity provauled and the most ustidnons attunllon was rald to every guent.
$T$ he cuisine is ateo
Tho ewisine in atso an modal for variety and plenty, und verything recherche and solld are atrags on the tahie The pila beat ever mown in Saratogn.
Ictermined to leeop Union Hall open till the Iet of On Fiday, Augant ad, Mrr. Leland gave hit grand ball, which wront off with the greotest telat. TVe foor managera wh, Theodore Moyer, willio Hooy John 8 . Hoes, ow York, and Coanat Duqnesme, of Havama.
The Committe of Arrangemonte was as follows: Hon Lovi 8, Chatheld, Cherke Morgun, D. M. Burney, R.
Rein, E. C. Kennedy, C. ©. Haitige, N. Whteman

 fions so great that he tso epent much of the evening in Leepping filop to the muinic of the Union.
 ing of old ecquinitances, wud dance nuccoceded dunce

IN VAIN.

closer arms, press cloeer lips, In taot and vain caressing. or never more that pailid eheek Wiu crimaon 'neath your preseing. or these vain words and ho waited yester even;
ho whats now-hat in the fur Reeplendent halle of henven.
7ith patient cyes fixed on the door She waited, hoping ever, ill denth's dariz wall rose cold between Her geze and yon for ever. And in the wild bee'e humming And in the wild bee e humming;
he last freath that ghe shaped to words Said softly, "Te ho coming?"
ow eilenced lies the geutleet heart That ever beat 'neath cover de-nevor to be rang again By you, a fielle lover? onr wronge to her knew never end, Till earth'e lost honds wexe rive our memory roee coid hetween
Her partiug son and heaven.
ow vain your fatee and tardy grief Vain youx remoreeful weeping; or sbe, whom only you deceived, Lies huslued in dreamess form Should lying worde be spokeno, pray to God, "Be merciful As she whose heart I've broken."

HE BROKEN BOND.

çurten vi.

next morning I related to Mrr. Pledwell wha ccurred, and told him what I intonded to do. proved the purpose to let Maxwell take away miture, and so to clear him out and get rid tlinking aspect on. At length extending m and puting his hand in a fatherly way nine and gently pressing it, he said art, I have been exercised about telling you mo time pest, indeed ever since your marand the nequaintar that I am in love."
I" I exclaimed. Surely there was the least atereotyped juryman in town knew as well e, over head and eare in love."
ith whom, sir ?"
c. Pedwoll yo-your mother-in-law,' ell, perlups $I$ anr ; you shall be the judge. lor that is entirely too old to think of mar-
lor and so I thought of talling your mother as ughtel yet, I yet, guppose ; but yon will hefore I ean red of my hotel life. Perhaps I shonld say that, however. I want something I waut a home Jack, and I have a flang I waut a home, Jack, and I have a fancy could live woro happily with yon and your could live moro happily with yon and your nd mother-in-law than with anyhody else. o no family, no kindred, who know or care ing about me."
rifledwell," I exclaimed, "nothing could tify us as to have you in our house ; and I It, stop a bit, Jack, I don't like the hoardinghold of that sort. It would be all very well vere younger. Now, if we can manege to it pay sirs. Lyne hetter to give np the ing-house, do you think she woald do it ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{m}$ it did not appear as a gratuity, I вmppose ratuity-stuff, If I choose to pay a thoulollars a weelk for my hoard, what is there tuity in it? Whatever I mey propose tuity in it? Whatever I mny propose I am ing to oncumber it with a hond for ter, if the has one, or for herself." ara is her only child, sir.
ad she is already in possession, without a ton, I trust." ad I hope so too," baid I. And between his eas and such a thought of Clara I bagan to ow, Hart, I happen to own a house in - street, No. 41. You know it. It will he vacent the is wher to-morrow.

Nevert, that handsome, fashionable bromnNover mind about the bandsome and fashionNow, I bave heen thinking aince thot if Mrs, Lyne would he houselseeper there I would make it snt would he houselseper we'll all live together." I was dolighted, and could not repress the ex hilition of my grateful antiefpation of so much pleasnre, "But," suid I, "Mr. Pledwell, I think it ie more than likely that Tom Warren will presently marry the widow, the widow.
ho his houselieeper too-when he is in port. In he is the good fellow you take him to be, I will take him for a son-in-law, willingly."
There was one other thonght, hut I hesitated to expreas it. Clara had become so saorod to me now that I wna induced to lean towarde him and actually to whisperAnd then he lifted his ey ed wonder, andeselaimed
"Is it possihle?"
I nodded, with an augmenting sense of my im portance. "Wonderfal! But upon my honor, Juck, I have heard of anch things happening as a consequence tell you-and so did I
"But I thought it might not ho pleasant for you, sirr,"
"As I have not heen aconstomed to domestic squalls, eh? Never you mind about that. We'll squalls, eh? Never you mind about that. We'll meke hawyere of him and his unto the third and fourth generation."
"Bnt it might be a ginl, you know, sir."
"Ah, so-it-might 1 Then we"ll have to the plan and malent Then we'll have to amend motier-in-law likes the proposition, which ye will arrange in detail hereafter, tell Clara I bhall enter no demurrer in the other case, up to a dozen. And We will have such fun with theni, especially at ali that." ing that thise with such a happy heart, wonderthat there wos some hidden eor. Ifelt confident disappointed affection that he could wifold,

"that"e the form in which we are to wind up with And they were overjoyed at the houso. Mrs. the elaaticity of hope expanding into fruition. And the next day there was as mee a little party soing a-shopping ae ever you sen, in a nout, low carriage bought for the occesion and future necs, as a fit appendage of the nev bonse. There was deer Clara, of course, of the first importance-and We were all very careful of denr Clara, I caan tell you, and Mr. Pledwell not the least so ; but he esorted mama Lyne, and there was no end of the hings we bought. Olara whispered to me that como to town and was furmishing his palace. Yet it was all good, never geudy; substantial, and hlonding uao with ornamont. I was natoniched at the exquisite taste which Mr. Pledwell displayed in his quiet suggeetions, Clara whispered to me, "bart if there were only plenty more aueh men as Mr. Pledwell, whet a world this might he, as one of my songs says." "And plenty more such darlings as yon," I aid; and her dear little hand pressed my arm. "He is a noble men, though."
The bonrders were dismissed in the course of a made a traly pleasant evening of it. The house Was surrendered, and at the expration of a weck Captain Wraxall wae notified that the five hundred dollars in bank had been transferred to his account, and that he could remove his furniture. It lone with Ceptain Wraxall. But it was not so.

CHAPTER VIII

Tom Warren, who, with a due regard to the proprietiee, had not expected and did not seek to 50 with us, had taken a new hoarding-house. Kre Il was up to something. He had muttored to would swe thought we were clear of him, hat he would $\begin{aligned} & \text { mamp us yet. And } \\ & \text { morning we received a declation from huddle }\end{aligned}$ $\&$ Fogg-who had at one time aspired to bo congidered the rivals of Pledwell \& Hart-of a enut they had entered for hroach of promise of marhiage, on the part of Hemy wrasall 0 \%. Clara "Breach of promise"" exclamed IIr. Pledivell
"So it appears. But I should think we might eflect a coupromise." "How ?"
"By paying him e rensonalile amount." "Not one cent-for tribute. Compromise, for sooth 1 Loel here-damages laid at twenty thousand dollars !"
" Why, the m

Why, the man is a fool!"
Is he? He claims 'mental distress and aher-semikisg ron a flativ.

ration; inability to perform the doties of his station; acts inconsistent with nccessity;'- that of confidence with the owners of the Warlock their disesteem; nud finally, general ruin of reputation,' That looks serions, dou't it ' Talk of a twenty thousand dollara. He will compromise with you for thirty thousend "He certainly con to that degree, Mr. Pledivell, Do yon thint it i possible that he cit those capers at singapore of promine of marringa ?
lhewd if he $1 \mathrm{cmn}^{\prime} t$ conceive. He was pretity ceived no real damage, I judge. I know one of the owners very well, and will aseertainsomething on that point, No donht sinddie \& Fogg have made up the easc from Wraxalls facts, such a they are, pretty adroitly. And yon see, hy including the widow in the deelnration, they have excluded her evidenoe about the bills and the gift of the property. The odions feature of a bergain for tho daughter-odious as it is in its relation to the sharp practice of Wrazall-can't be brought ont. You are concluded in the declaration, as a matter of course, as a party to the violation of th
"Bat, M
mako an efiort to prevent the issue coning to trial " ${ }^{\text {" Wherefore? }}$
"
"The publicity of the thing
-notoriety, if it is not good advertisement popularity. I wouldn't misg the case npon consideration. We'll have it recordod among the causes celebres,"
What good humor and nnflagring apiritel What a gupport to a young nain in the world is such A noble
Pled
Clara received the intelligence of the hreach of promise with the ntmost equanimity ; and even Mre. Lyne, in her new home and with suelh plea sant experiences, said she woud not trownle herself ehont it, as long na Mr. Pledwell wonld he in the case.
"And Hart, mama," I added.
"And only think," said Clara, archly, "you had no idea when I married you, John, that I wae worth twenty thonsand dollars, had you
And then we langhed heartily at tbat.
"Twenty thouasnd dollurs!" I exclaimed. "Why, darling, I thought you wero worth twenty piness, Clara, and there is no measore or standurd pinesas, Tyse trial conld not come on on thil the eusning torm. Tbo Warluck wae in dock for repairs and We had determined to prese the case sad have an ond of it as ypeodily yo poesible ; Bo that upon tbe instant it wes osilied at the next term we were "ready", Luadde & Fogs and their ckent were evidenty na enger as we werro detormined. Upon The phiutirif produced tho " bond," whieb, of conree, wee did not contest. We thow that we hona, min was onlth wife, and pecimarily responsible for wibaterer damagen might bo awardod hy the

The hond nadaitted, then followed the adminesion of the marruge; and then Tom Warren was culled of the marrage; and then Tom Warren n
by the phinitir, and ho took toe etand.
By thie withese plaintiff's lawyers proved the loorrang of the marriage. His great anger and thrants of vengennce. His arming the ohip and "And what
"And what was your opinion of all this?", demaded Fogg. nauded Eogg.
"Well, Itho
"Well, I thought it was queer," eaid Tom.
"Did you not thiikk that Oaptain Wraxall was "Did crazy"
"İ" tho
" "I thought he was aeting very strangely",
"Did you exprese the opinion to any one, "Did you express the opinion to any one, to "our oompanions on board, to any of the erow, or o any one on shore, that he was crnay f" "o any one on sh
"Idid not."
Redoot, ixt; for thongh you are our witness,
have reeson to helieve you are un unwiling wo hs"
"I shall sponk the truth, six."
"No doalht of that, sir - no donbt of that. Yon
 "I don't care a d-dry maseuit about the conse-quonces, I will spealy the truth, whatever the quonces, I will speak the truth, whatever the consqutuencos many e..
There was a general snile at Tom't narrow There was a general snile at Torn's nerrow exenpe. you write to anybody, Mrr. Warren-the
"Did you "Mid you write to anybody, Mr. Warren-the owners of the Warlock, for instance-about the came finto Tom's mind. He colored hugely-I should say he painted. The bronzed fice was wonderfuly modified by the red

"I did write and expreess an opinion.".
"Ah, I thought wo should pet , tit. And to hom wne this opinion exprossed Whom Wha this oping
"To Mrse LYnee"
And the upshot And the upshot of it wes that Tom'v letters to the widow were brought into court by eubpans. Tom looked appeotingty at me. I I aldresseded the eourt and demanded that, as they were private letters, thoir honors aloould examine them and purfrer the reaiding ooly of such points a a rexated to tbe case. The counsel on the other side consented, and, aceordingly, Tom's senastiveness Was rehered with regard to cortsin love passages contained therein. Ho furtively obeerved the old gentlemen on the bench, as one of them, in an perhape esw, an I did, an ocensio oual phantom of $n$ emile upon their venerable facee. One of thema copied from two lettriss cartinin passeges, which were rond. It was cnougb that they exprossed their belief that the ceptain was "crazy," and that the loss of Clara had drven lim crazy, This wna crushing to Tom, nnd he felt it ton times more tuan I did. He thought be had very innomore lian 1 did. Hll thought be had very inno-oently ruined us all. We put him on the etand. "What did yon actually mean when yon wed that word 'erazz' with respect to the captain ${ }^{2}$ " I asked.

I meant that he was acting like a crazy man."
"Did you think ho wna aetually crazy ?
"No, brir." thought he was crazy, would yon not Hud ou the

have taken such moasarree Mr. Foge was on isi feet.

leading question beyond tounto $n$, leading question beyond doulht."
Their hours bowed, as I Inew they would, hut I had got Tom where I wanted him. "Weol, then, Mr. Warren, I wask you what you would bave done if , sou had heliored captaiu Wraxall to he orazy singapore and had hino remeded. I should have writen home to the ompers; ; mad if neceessury,
I woild bave taken oommand myeeli."
 aury. eaptam," I reasarked, with a look to the
"Of conrse not,"
"Inother sngestion," asia Mr. Fogg.
"I have dowe, eir-I bave done. Rie witneess can go dowh.
it was three ochock, and the eourt was adjourn

ofatier $x$.

Tue case looked rather bud; it might he tronhle-some. Mr. Pedwell did not ilite it hat we wera some. Mr. Pledwell did not lite it, hat we wers detoruinod on $\AA$ stifl hattle before the jury. Wo

Were consulting together in the evening st home over ome mesne toy which to bring out the becret condit vere eome meesnb hy whicu he bring out the eicret conditions of the hond, when the bell rung sod Tom Warren was uehorcd in. He eame partly to earn hon we mian hore the eppose of th but he had a little busiuces mith us first.
"I suppose $I$ have done all the mischief I can,"
He enidid rather sol-mnily; "and bo I concluded to eco if I could do any good,"
" t thanit thet is rather beyond you, Tom," sair Mi. Medwell, "umless yon ean help ne in A logal dificully." the bond which was road in court to-day was doted the 28th of Novembor. Now I don't lmow that it hook of the Warlock proveg that is that the log nine P.x. on the 27th, and tbat wo were then towed down the river by the tug Heroules forty miloe, where we anchored at five A. . of the $28 t h$. We laid there al that day, accorting to the $\log$, and Captsin left port.
"Arey yon eure of this, Tom P" we both amked
in almasi the same brenth and the same words.
"I am sure of it",
"How came yon to remember it $?$ "
"Because 1 discovered the mistake one day when wo had heeu abont a month at sea, nnd told Captain Wraxall about it and alkece it I I thould correet it. Ho unswered, shanpuly snd surily that it was no mistake; be had made the entry himaself and knew Thant he was about. Did I think he was drunk when he came aboard? my own buevinuss, and moro of tho sater mind And the foct ie," Tom added, "I thought he was drunk when he eame aboard that night, and I know he drank a good doal for two or three day nfteraent a mistake while druik he did not like to make the earrection,
you know

"Where is the logbook, Warren $?$ "

"Wress it's ahoard, can make of it. Can you get a sight of it before "e issue e subpana for i, Early in the morning Tom went ahoord, and at breakfast time cullod at tho houso with tho in formation that he bad seen the log, and it was unaltered; the datos were exactly as ho had stated.
Upon the opening of the court $I$ demanded a subbeona for tha logboolk of the Warlock issuud subpana tor the logbook of the Warlock issuod agianst the owners. I was determined to seep the captain's hands of: withess, please the court, Mr. Warren, plaintiff witoess, will scocompany the depaty-sheriff; , h kmows where the book can be instanily found."
and
And they went off
I noticed Captain Wraxall in immediate and ap parently uneasy conver parently uneasy conversation with hie counsel
They evidently wanted to know the meaning of the demand for the logiook, and Wraxall was or plaining. It is a point of honor with the profes sion not to oiztento consultations between opposing attorneys and client, but one ounonot help heariug, and 1 dietinctly haard Wraxall say :
"I was ahaut half drunk."
The tostimony of the logbo
"Ge
"Goutlemen," from the bench, "proceed with
"Ob, adozen, your hy more witnesses?
of the Werlock, if if it in is necessarg, as to the the pepearanoe of the, elliin whecessary, eame tinto port;
bat me have the whole crew es to the conduct of our ciiont -mough to justify auy juyy in avarding donlle tbe damages claimed-ridictive damagee "Mry amount," I cried out, "you,
the jury yet." Call your withessea,"
And a long string of them was called, and most proved pretty much everything that Fogg wanted. The faus of tao twelvepounders, the portholes, Co mugkets, the ammunition, were proved over aud over again, ad mauseam, and until I began to sugpect that wruxal hat contemplatod pracy and tarem out thereaster they "hauled off on that teck," as Tom seid, and belioved, "muder the captain's orders."
Well, they elosed for the plaintift, with the exoeption of rebutting testimony, and $I^{\circ}$ cullod Warren to the "Wr to the stana.
court and jury what is the dote at which the Warlock left part on hor last voyage."
"It is the 27 th of November,

Was the eaptsin on buard f"
"He was, siux"
When did he loave the alip after that date ?" "You are quito suro of that?"
"Quite, , aix."
And what of all that?" asked Fogg
Why,
"Why, eir, that Captain Wraxall wae not on board the Warlock, miles down the river, meking entrice io the Ehip's log, and at Mra. Lyme's house, in $\longrightarrow$ at one and the same time. Either CaptainWraxall's log proves him negligent, incapablo, unworthy of his position, 'crazy', if you plcae unworthy of his position, 'crazy', if you please, sir, heforo the breach of promise; or bis io not the sir, heforo the breach of promise; or bis io not the signsture on the bond. You connot prove his signsture on the bond. You connot prove his eignature on the bond, for you cannot onll Arrs. Captain Wruxall, for if we could get him there wo would prove hun to he a moat thameleas-"
"May it please tbo conrt, the gentleman is transconding his privilege," oxelaimed Fogg in flurry of wrath. llurry of wrath.
" May it
"May it pleano your honors," I continued, taking the logbook from the table, aud proeceding to throw it open for the pago of entry; hat I had no sconer put my eyee upon a blank page than the oolor of the paper, s distinct watermark and that never-tc-be-forgotten smell almost overpowered
my mind, and I was us co
if I had been in the aky.
"Mir. Pledwell, Bsy something," I whispered, "ond go on with the case till I examine this And at that moment I was confident that I held A clue direct-a bandfal of them, they were cumumurder of Hafin, as I was ten minntes lster when it was beyond, douht. In tarning to the end of the hoolk, and I did eo stoalthily, there was actually a torn page, the torn page the very ebape of the frecture.
"Mr. Pledwell, don't let this hook go out of your Bight, whatever you do, till I retu back in five minntes," I whispered.
I would have told him what I had discovered hnt I hod already experiencod the embarrassing offeet of the discovery ou ine in proceeding with "May it pleand.
"May it please your honors," seid Fogg, before sready admittod the bond -
"That was before we had the shightest idea of such testimony as this," seid Mr. Pledwell ; "and done by my collesgue in all honor, and with the sole view of expediting the isgue of the osae." sole view of expediting the issue of the case."
"Very well-very well," interposed Fogg, "Now let me asld Mr. Warren a question. Mr. Warren, dot me ast Mir. Warren a question. Mr. Warren, do you nut know thant this is an error of date, an onor in the entry; and that, in on eint or fact, the ship left port on the might of the 28 th of Novemher, and not on the night of the 27th ?
"It is an error of entry, and the ship eertainly "I iseovered the orror-
sir. You can
"But I do,
 "I did, sir, when we were about a month at sea, and ewggested its correction."
"The captain denied that it was an error; inall right ; told me I hasd better in fact, as much as his, to see that the $\log$ was right-and ordered me to let the book remain as it was."
During
During this last proceeding I had returned into by the table, hed adjusted that piece of paper which bore Haüin's unfiniehed communication to Pledwell & Hart to the torn page. It fitted exaetly. How strange that it should have boen left there to tell the talel I then rose with tho book there to tell the tale 1 I then rose with the book in ny hand, and advancing towarda Wurren, held in ny hend, and advancing towarda Warren, h it open at about the midde towards his ?hce. "Witness," I eaid, "will you bo good enough odor which this hook exhales."
The words emphnsized, and a look at Mr . Pled"The enled his attention.
Was on a former voyar, is simply this. The book things in a locker, amonget a quantity of sandal wood, and the water during the voyage got into the locker, from the hilge pamps. It is a mixed emell of bilge water and sendal wood."
I then resumed my phace, told Mr. Pledwell what I had disoovered, consulted with him, and what I had disooverod, consuited with him, and informed him that hit servieee twere required to not of desperation, as we were shout to charge him in open court with murder. Flight by the door was impossible, the area beyond the railing being densely crowded. But the windows at the wide were opon, and he migat make a rush that Wion of astonishment, Mr. Pled woll advised him to move carelesely round within the har, and as the scousstion was made to etep close up to Wraxali, so as to have him completely in hie graep should it he necessary complesely in his graep being eoncluded, I rose.

路
"For what purpose, sir?"
"I have to ask your honora to issue a beneh "Against whom, Mis. Hart?"
"Against Heary Wraxall, master of the ship Warlock," Wraxall atarted to his feet, and made a step or two towards me. Hie counsel were aleo up in a instant.
"Agrainst me m" exelaimed Wraxal, that it wa on eceount of his conduct on board ship, and tbat
we had finally $n p$ anded anccessfuily to the We had finally nppealed au"
"Against me-what for ?"
"For the wilful murd
r of John Hztin!" I oxclaimed, in clear and deliberate topes, which were heard by every one in court.
Wraxall, instead of sbowitg viotanco or desperation, turned ashy pale, livid, so ntterly and rapialy did the hlood recede upon his heart. His jaw dropped, he quailed in ahject torror, and prosently abook from head to feot as with an back its sustaining vitality, he reeled and would hive fallon prostrate, had not the shere caught
I shall not atsempt to describe the scene in the resdily conceived, as far surpassiag that of nay dramatio fiction. Tho crowd without most remote frum the railing pressod foarfilly upon thoso in the interior, and until the officcrs of the court could exert their anthority snd influence there was groat cause for spprehension that eome wonld Was groat cause for spprehension that eome wonld be cruelied to death. Within the har, the eherifi had suecoeded in removing Wraxall to a emall retiring apartmont in one corner of tho courroom, notwithstanding the remonetrances of his counsel, who had the andacity to doelare the pro-tion." Order haring been restored, the court demsnded npon what informetion I made the charge and asked for the arrest; and ordered me to be arrorn. I gave a succinct scoount of the facts known to the reader, as they transpired at the offico of Pledwell and Hart three years preceding, and exbibited the bit of paper on which Hafin had tost the odor of that bit of paper, and then thes of the book, and to follow it nap by comparing the irregular edge of the former with the torn page of the latter. The color of the paper wonld he of the latter. The eolor of the paper would he There was not room for a midulo, corresponded paper was torn from that book, and with the cbange of date in tho log and other eirecum-stances, I felt free to take the onth, that I has good and reasonable ground to believe tha Henry Wraxall was the man whom Henry Wraxall was the man whom I saw leeving
the court in which our ofice wea situated, with eomething under his arm, which I believed to he s large book, on the night of the 2sth Novembor. 18-, and that he hed then and there committed the homicide in question.
The court, withont a dissenting voice, approved ex parte cride, concurred in the sufficieney of the ex parte cridence, aud ibsued the warrant which was immedintely served. Messrs. Madde and Fogg then aeled permission to con wult with thoir oliont, whieh was granted, hat, on appronchin the door they were refueed admittance. The aherial stanted that the prisoner was too much agitated to see any one, and had pusitivoly The to his counaol at present.
The court euggested that something must be done with the case on trinl. Muddle asked the court to ndjourn, but this was refnsed. He then wanted the ense pestponed. The court thought the position of the plaintiff ought not to delay progress. We asserted our purpoee to go into proof witb reasonable inference, that WraxalPo eonduct from the time the homieide was comfalsifed, wae the effect, solely, of a restless conecience, and not of the breach of promise. Finally, we agreed npon a anggestion of the court, that a nominal verdiet elhould be taken for the plaintuff, and eaeh party to bear his or her own coste, with there appear to have been a mistachee in the mat ter otherwise pending against the plaintiff, he could move for a new trial, and it wonld cortainly be awarded. The jary were instracted so to render their verdict, and they did, witb a written statement toat it was ander tbe direction of the court; otherwiee they would have folind for the court; otherwise they would have forind for the nominally responaible fort" breach of promise," with respect to any man charged with the crime of murdcr. This was somewhat extra-judioial on the part of the jury it is true, hut the court suffered the protest to go on the reeord. And suffered the protest to go on the reeord. And thus ended our breach of promise ense, after a thus ended our breaeh of promise ense, after a fuehion entively unexpeoted hy any of un, and under circumatances which really threatened to

chatran xi.

Tre newe had reaehed home before us, for Tom Warren was there and dined with us. After dinoigars, and discrusing the of wine puffing our Wraxall effair, which was now transforred to tha criminal court and the enstody of the attomey vant entored the room. A man, named Sutton, wighed to see Mr. Hart. I proeceded to the hall, and found, as I expected, Sutton, a depnty-warden and found, as I expected, Sutton, a depnty-warden of the jail.
"Ah, Sutton, how are you? What's the matter? Some elient of youra got into your hands this evoning ?" and Fogg's. The captain wante to eee yon, sir, afore he goees to bed to-uight, He's in an awful way, vir."
"Tbe cap

Tbo eaptain," I ejaculated; "what eaptain ? For I thought he meant the warden of the jail, that way. "Captai
"Captain Wraxall, you know. He as was sent
"Wo-day-" "Wants to see
"Wants to seo you, siri", It must be Muddle or Fogg he wants to see," come over after you, and two dollars to pay for a back, and bere it is at the door."
Ireturned to my friends and statedthis strange bit of information. Wr. Pledwell whe inclined to think that Wraxall mearated some reyenge, and ob"At all goimg; but I eould not thin that. And Farren insisted upon my consont, and off ne wo
At the jail I learnod that the wardon and doctor oand fro in great distroes. They were apprehensive he might do himsolf some injary, and were about to put officors on guard. Wraxnil wea with Warren.
"He was much gratified that I had come," the rarden said, whocame to me from his eell, "but he Wante to seo your alone. Ho objects to Mr.
I apked.
"I bave
"Do you think he neaus mischief?" demanded Warren.
"Not
"Not a hit of it. One glanes at him will entiefy yout this littlo yevolver in your pocket, and I will till Sntton to pht the handcaiff on him bofor
l ave the cell. Yon will be perfeeily हale." and I proceeded with the reetly sa ife was then eestod with lis head in his bands reolining upon the table, which his face mnot bave tenched. Ho looked up as we ontered, and no changed in his aspeot that I oould searcely racogniso him ; the shape of his facs and unohanged heard were the remains of reeemblance. "Oh, Mr. Hart, I thank you for this-I thank you for thia, I didn't know whether yon would comen. Won't yon give me your hand? I am not guilty as yon think I ama, I tools his hand frank suringiy. "Captain, I am raally sorry to see you in thi predicament, but I oannot accuse myself at all."
"Ni, "No, no, Mr. Hart. Yon have done right.
Bat I don't want to 日ay anything more till I have had a talk with yon alone"
Sutten sdvannod, in complianow with tho warden's whispered orders, to pat on the hazdwarden's whispered orders, to put on the handouffs; hut I woold not allow it. In faot, I rotumed tha revolvor to the warden privately, Thore was no need of that. And they retired from the cell, no need of that. And they retired from weo sell, and wo two, who had hegan that dap as bittor enemies, wero locked up togethor. An hour later onsmies, wero locked up togethor. An hour later the grating witbout, and assied the guard who had Me opened the door, and looked into tho ooll. "Whare's tho captsin?" he exol
"Thoro in hie hed, and fast nelioep, and quiet in The guard entered, listenod to his hreathing to rotiring, iocked op his prinoncr for the night.
And I left tho jail, esesured that Captain Wraxall Was innoocnt of the elarge of murder, and having also assurd him that I would efiect his acquittal in a few days.

On the next day I had enornoy-general, and relatod all ther with
 I sim oonfident. But I conourred with his opinion, that for the sake of all parties, and for the satisfaction of the public min was arraigned, pleaded "not guility," and I eppeared for the defoneo. Wo responded to the domand of the attornoy-genernl, that we wera ready for trial. A jury was sworn, when the testimony was taken given hefore the coroner.
thon asked permission of the court to read the prisoner's statement, to whieh the rattorneygeneral oflering no objection, their honore condetermine the credililility to which it was entitled I had prepared the doeument as briefly as possi "I, Henry Wraxall,
"I, Henry Wraxall, eonfoss an mintentional grncy in the death of John Hafin. I owned a ouse and lot in - street, and Haflin owned a house and lot in otreet, and Hafin owned a lot adjoining, upon which wae a carpenter'e shop, We had met onoe on tha property, and I had proposed an exchange of hie lot and caupenter's ahop tha city. Thors was a difference bitwoen us of manding three hundred and fifty on tho exchango.
Finelly, I underatood him to consent to ny termis, and on the afternoon of the 28th of Novemher, 18-, ho met me in the etreet, and we went to gether to a $\ln$ wyor's office-I know not whoso-to conclude the agreementand huve the papers dramy weil $\&$ Hart, who, hs said, had done some husinesa for him bofore. W8 waited about half an hour, when no one coming in, and it appearing unlikely that any one would bathere again during tha evening, ha proposed to write a note, maling ansppointment for thenext morning at tenoclock.
He then lighted the gas, and I walked oat of the door to tho frout, and downa to the court for the purpose of looking into the street. I shortly refarnod, hat during my ahsence, it now appeara that Hafin, filing to find papor npon the tahle, I was then carrying to the eship, and had laid down a nooment hafore. Of this I knew nothing, or I should of course havo tora out the rest of the lend, or moet prohally have eunle the hook itself in tho or moet prohally have eunlt the hook itself in tho
gee. Indeod, had I known that he was ouly capahle of euch s ecrawl as that which the occasion has proved, I should certainly have written the note myself; hnt in fact I did not hnow that he had written anything, othorniso I should have destroyed or taken it away with mo. What followed was so mexpeoted and rapd in its ocourreneo, that I had no time for moro than a momanat's deoffiee, Hafin renewod his exception to the paython sald I wonld have nothing mors to do with hook, and called him a trifier. I canght ap my cited and throw his hand violently from I me, whon struck mo with it latily on tho side of the hasp, end I an oath loo bprang at me, and I I esaght sught of juat as it was coming down violentired hie amm ag it aside frens me, the hlade was buried in hi and the blood epoutcd from the wonnd at my feet, struck at me. It fell from his hand. I thoalifted and him to him to his fast and aslked if ho was hurt auriously. He soemed to make an eflort to epeak, he writhing as it wore to eseape from me, and, as I thought, to rocover hia keaife fontil me, and,
and fell heavily hoyond the tahlo on the floor, if he reply.
I the

There was a horriblo gargling in the throot, a deep groan and all was still. Oonident that he woe groan and all was still. Oonfident that he was dean, I was overwlielwed with horror and alarm. Itook up my hook, and as I paused a moment to I heard volces apparently at a short diatence, oxtinguighed the gas, ift the room, qnictly pulled to the door, and hurried domu the oourt, meotio the door, and hurried domu the court, meoting two poriens, one of whom spoke to ma as I passed.
On passing through the atreoto to the ship, I from the scone of the homicide, and drank pretty if it should over be neceasary, purpone, to prove, ahoat a distant looality at or ahcut the time at which Hallin was billed, should the deed be enrly dikoovered. In one of these bousen I found the master of the tug Hercules, and engaged him to take the ship down the river that night, haring take the ship down the river that night, haring previously designed to wait until the next day at aoon, for the purpose of closing the husinees with the effect going nhoard I was somomhat nnder fused Mir. Warrea an hour's biberty for the pur pose of going to his boarding-house. It seems, on hour, and learning this, Warren tools carriag I made the falso entry in the lorbools, anext day a view to an alish, and recording the sbip at ancho all day on the 28 th , all day on the 28th, and making sall on the 29th, whereas, in point of fact, the ship lost no time in the river. After gotting to sea, I had time to re-fleet upon the folly of my Hlight; and I was over wheln2ed with the convietion that, if by any ponsihaity shoald no tor he helieved in any facts which I might make. This proyed upon my mind to such a degree that I was ahmost inceapa-blo of dnty, and I frequently sought rebef in brandy when none on hoard knevty that I did eof in brandy whe
"Upon arriving at Singapors, I found order and when again at Singepore fonnd intelligenee the marriage of Miss Clara Lyne, my ettechment to whom had proved, under the sulhsuquent events, ay pride. I had coseed to mere gratification of ontirely, but the faet of her mantiage, in view of hor binding engagement to me, atartlodmee with the oonviction that whe cortainly would not bere consented to it, and as I had no reason to douht with her mother's approval, but that I was suspected or knomn in the death of Hafiin, and that they hoth regarded me as a domed, lost man. Imagination ran riot with horror, but at the same unreal apprehansion of the pirates of the China of the war wim Enginnd. In arming the ship I was actuated solely hy a determination to resist, with the help of such of my crew as I might bs ahls to bribe to my purpoces, any attempt to arAll thie may scom like folly, mednesa, and it is in fact the absurdity of a distempered hrain
"Opon arriving at home, I mas reliovod to And hat no surpicion had attnohed to ms rith reiped that no surpicion hasd attrobod to ma with respect to Haflia'e death; but etill my mind wanted someth Haflin' death; but etill my mind wanted somothing to engage itaelf upos, and I fanciad that it rould conduce to my greater safety to act in vindication of my rights, ss I chose to regard the riolation of tham hy Mrs, and Mliss I appear rory indignant and anergetio in the affair for I cannot explain the tortarg I endured, nor th motives and epringe of sotion hy which $I$ whe moved from time to time. I was, in fact, no longe tempt to hully Mr. Hart, I felt the cruahing at of a good man'e pure love for a good wife in her defence against the insolenoo which my passion dictated. I was haffed hy his indiguation and manly spirit, teat with it.
[I apologised for this languaga in a document insisted upon its une.]
"After the Art, and I was confronted with ocurred in open subsequent refleetion I deternined to crime, upon hroast of it; and inasmuch as the homioide had taken place in the offico of Mesars. Pledwell and pronch them, honest as I believod them to be, with tho ahsomute truth. sought with Mr. Hart, And under hia kind communication and oonsolation and conafort, and now tbrow myself found relief tice and consideration of the court and jury, an eured that justice will relieve mo of all taint of crime.
Upon this
"Signed, Hrmaz Weaxilin" Upon this delaration the Attorney-General Waved argument, and merely informed the jury that Mr. Hart would make a few remarks, to whieh, Itheu rapidy oollated the facte, and ahawed the sonsietency of the relation. Proved by the diecovered papor that the parties must havo come to strife. That they came for a p peaceahle parpose, and that the homieide conld not have been preeven with deign at the momeut, it must have been in the heat of passion, and go for nudor the law. I roferred to tho foot that the gas approach, and to tho very moment of tho was not at that moment actually dead. I also atoted that thore was no curtanin to the window, tbna no precaution whatever conld have been talken gainst observation from withont. Everything thua going to prove tho total ahence of promeditation, I parsued the analyais under the application of resson to all pointe of the sase, and submitted it to tha enfficient time to gather tho sentiment diet of "Not Ouilty.
olasping my hands and theed, and came up tome thes most grateful amotion. The stitorney. wenc ral very kindly came towards him, and romarked that he fally concurred with the rerdict. And in fact, Wraxall received sympathy and congratala. tion from all.
After two or thrse meeks spent at the honso of a frisud in the coantry, he returned to the city a new man. Ho had dstorminod to rolinqnish tbo sea and sottle in California. Before bie dopa sea and sottle in California. Bcfore hie dopar ture, however, ho visitod us several times, and quito dolighted Clara "that young lasyer."
wedding bell
redding between Oaptain Thomas Wo good abip Warlock, minus the twelve-pounders, and Mra, Harriet Lyne. And soon afterwards they all Eet sail together for San Francisco, where Oaptain Warren now realdes when and from which port he is ocessionally accompanied by his wife on a pleasure thlip to Singapore and Sydnoy, and who proves to he a capital sailor

SHERIDAN'S OPERATIONS IN THE SHENANDOAH VALLEY. Ws give a page of skotches illustrative of the rcent rotrompade movement of Gen. Slevidan from Winchoder to Harper movement.
Gen. Wilieon, who loft Wael rabel fivance, galled, as they passed througb tho to wa, ty anollade kcpt ap from tho houbes by the cilizeno He mude $s$ etand at a amall town cullod sumanitt Point, Fonry, wbere he formed in iliva of hattle.
On the 2lot alkirminhing begen

 velind the line of honeoe Othiot evetches reprosent the sotion of Dume'
cavalry with the evieny at OHarle etown protecting tw
 The ruined
 The forarth eketch fo a view of

 rune slong the front of tho viow, Tho robele econ rothed from
and hie ih now again adreanoing.

OPERATIONS BEFORE MOBILE.

Thit prosags of Fort Morgan and Fort Grine

 proparatione no yet for a maval The colels hod mede no
Their had they turved for, the notecen their blothon halea, nointo guuboata.
The Temanesfe

The Solmn is o Ane veseel of Hight druagbt, and carr
our hesyy gume, one a 100 -poumdur Frooke'v rile.
THE CHICACO CONVENTION AND THE DEMOCRATIG NOMINEE.

| THE DEMOCRATIG NOMINEE.  Afrer is delay without a parallel in the his tory of our Preoidental conteets, and when tho day of election whs fast appronching the Convention of Demo- oratic delegatea from tho warioue Statoo met at Chicago, in an immense etructure, erected for the purpoee on Michigan avenue, near the Lake shore. For many daye the leadere of the party had been wending thoir way from all parts to Chicngo, with rehel agonts and Republlican iocokerr-on. The Convention wae finally ealled to order on the 29th of August, at noon, by Augusto Belwont Chasrman of tho National Democratic Augusto Bclwont, Clairman of to National Democratic Conamittee Es. Gov. Bigler, o Pennyivania, wa then thominated teleporary Preeldent, and scerctaries liaving bech appolnted, the Convention organized. Tho Hot of dolegaten was then called by Statee, all the Statel in next day Horatio Segmour was chosen Prosident of tho Convention. A plitform, was then adopted, oondemining the Ad rainiterrsfina, hut expreasing no opinion ae to the right or wrong of the South in its couree, demanuing a cesth tion of hoatilitica, with a riew to an wlhmate convention of States, or other pacacable meerac, tbet peace may be Neotored on the basie of the Foderal Dnion of the Statas No plau of action was proponed for the contingency that peace conld not be reatored on that hiele On the alet the voing for A 4 candididete  Mrcclellan recolved 202 3 votes and Thomas II. Seymour,  Connecticut, 238 y . made nuanimoun for McCleilim. There was more discrsity in the nominntion for Vice.   ballot all the candidaten except Peadioton were with. druwn and he wis unanimonery elected.  MoClellan, nith what lo namiatskare the people. Oen. larity, a Oeneral of great abulity, once Coraminder-in. Chicr or the armice of the Union, the beroor well-fought pathico bnve alwayn been freely nnd boldy expreessod for the mon mainet whom Moclolisn foght.  A Lange and heautiful series of oavos has bocn opered by tho adiver minors in the Patagonia and Mowry mine. in Arizona, as they were boring for water. One of thine. in Aree isizona, ns they wereboring for water. 150 foct long, the interlor belag coverod with beautifal rormatione of stalaotites of varions colora, | hicidor of the monal prumbing mifo. A If Jolinnoon't wifo had lived, thero Foula have hoon no boarding up of had lived, there Houla lave hoen no boarding up of bits of orange-peel ; no toncling in the poets in walking along tho etreot ; no catiog and drinling with a diegueting vorvcity; if Oliver Goldemilh bad bsen masried he wouk never have morn that memorable and ridiculoos coat. Wrenever you find a man whom yon know lithe shont oddly dresed, or talining ridicalouely, or exhiliting any eccentricity of manner, yon may be tierahly sure that ho in not a married man. For tae little comenes aro rounded off, the little ehoote aro prumed aknay, in marricd men. Wivee generally have much moro seate than thotr buebande eapecinly when the burbasds are olover men. The wifs'e adivicee ero Iisie the wholesomes, though paioful, niteary. milpping of  A Roman Aymanao.-Galignami has an account of a roesut discovery in Elurope. It is as follows:   of whita marble, on eech ilide of which aro inectiptiona pendicular cotrmng. At the head of ench in repreecntad The wramac coatsine some curious information on thand agricultore and relfigion of the Romane. At toe top of each column, end under the sign of the Zodiac, 10 tice name of the month and the number of dayo; pext comeo on the sich day, sud aro coneequendy calied guintainal for the remainder of the jear they commence on the Eeventh day, and are culled apphana. The ider are them and the nones. The nnmber of houre of the dny present d by tho ordinary Roman Angare, tho fractione   Eun appenre la alno namod; the dayo of the Equinoxes nnd of the Suanmer foletioe are ulto given. Fior the Winter tolstlice there are the worde hienis initiken (fie- rinning of the wintor). Next comes tho chapter of eimings of the wintor). Next comes tho chapter of cipal oparations that onght to be carzed on daring tho month. The alnavic torminates hy the religious pirt; it pointa out the god who praudes over esch month; fives a pint of of the reli gious feler wbich fall during the lispen of kime, and warnee the farmon not to neqloe the worthip ofthose protectiog divinitico of thie labore it he wormip of those protecting divinitice of hie lavors it he wrehee to bave them pronper. On the upper part of thic block of marbie is Apollodriving the chariot of the 8 ue, and on tho under port Ceren reaplng corn in the held, which thown that this slmanao wus moro particularly intended for farmers. It bas heen eoat to Naples. |
| :---: | :---: |

(

te cyis MSI
M

sil

4
 1

5

\section*{prumens}    से  为 4  $\qquad$ $\frac{18}{48}$ 149     $\qquad$  +

$\qquad$
$\qquad$ 8
2 28

17 Why aravern $\frac{25+1}{2+5}$ Hit $\square$ $\qquad$N a $6,27=$ a $6,27=$ a $6,27=$ a $6,27=$

 a $6,27=$ 500

 1 . -oum $\rightarrow 4{ }^{1}$ $\sqrt{31}$

THE UNRETURNING BRAVES.
The mwallows huild beneath the oaves,
As in the days agone ;
Tho wheatco fiolda are all ablaze
And in and ont tho west wind play And in and ont tho west mind playe

The sumsbine falls as warma and bright,
Tho olover felds are red; As jogtully tho whol dedy long Tho thonghtfful alies, with mothe And, etanding in the farmhouare door And, etanding in the farmhouge door

I eo-d oting the landeape ofr-
The focky he ueed to tend.
The wild rose and joesamine hlow Boside the window-sill;
For tho dear hands that placed tbom thore,
Aro lying orosead and etilil.
Ahout the hills the exmmor folds
Fer wealth of golden light; Her waslth of golden light;
And, past tho willowi silvery gleam, I antch that glimmer of the
And Dilies cool and white.

But oh 1 a shasdow darkens all
Tho sumphine and the hloom Tho roicee whose hind end loving workts Wore sweoter than tho song of hirds Is silent in the tomb
How ran the summor fill no gay
About onr fermhonso door, When dll the quict ways ho trodRhall kuow him novermore 1

NINA MARSH;

THE SECRET OF THE MANOR.

Oaptany Manary atinlingered on at Beachwoo Mancre, Mr, Mersh had ingered on at Beechwoo his nepherr, and did not like to part with him. Cyrilhad no home in England, and conld, therefore ill refuas his nncle'e cordial invitation to make a hoine of Beechwood Manor. The whole honsehold-even of those who conld not well ppeak out -fonnd some expressive, if mute, fuabion of back ing the master'e request.
which, Marah, who had hin under an anthority been a littlo too strmgent for perfect happineves recognised the medintion of Cyri's influence over her hnahand, and blossed his preeenoe by hor smiles, if not hy her words. Madeleine was cold and indifferent hy nature, and so unaccustomed to let any one interfere with her comfort or convenience, that it wae a matter of small moment eo far as ehe was concerned, who went or oanie; a honseliold often does a good, strong, kind older brother.
Katic Katic had heen a sonreo of anxiety to all of late. Shas soemed to be growing beyond her strength, and had decop hectlo epole of color on hoth her thin oheeks. She never complainea, hit there Was a hollow look in her large blue eyes whicb pained Oyra greatly, the more so thet he ofter pained oyra greany, the more so thast he often her hand to hor side when ehe fancied herself un-obsarved. It teemed to him that a greet trouble wnas coming on tbem ell. The others 日nw no dan ger ; they ouly wondered that Katis ahoula have grown so thin and listlees, and foared-at henst firr. Marsh did-lhat oome malady sbe had csoaped in early ohildhood was threatening he
But the chald herself was not deeeived. Cyril woudered often if sbe could he, and scon had hise doubte eolved. The day was hright and clear, and Galrielle do Pène, tomptod ont hy tho suushine had waiked throngh the anow to apend a long doy at the Manor hoouse. Cyril had notieed the abieangreat need the latter had for some towe-hearted great need the loter had at thiend abont her at time, he wished lieyond all thinge that tbe reserve growing up hetween the two should be hroken through. He fancied that, if once left alone together, the hahit of eoufidenee wrold force Galrielle into exploining the motivo of her coldnoess. Nimi could never have wronged Gabrielle, whatever her faults might have wronged Gabrielle, whatever her faults might have heen in other ways; and this explanation muet, therofore, result in a ronewal of their old $\underset{\substack{\text { andialion } \\ \text { Mrs. } \\ \hline}}{ }$ when Gahrielle Frenoh girl \& kind and pleneant greeting; then carried of Katie, ae he said, to sum herselfa little on the terrace.
Kaitio alwaye obeyed her consin, hut he was pained to see how listlesaly she rose, and how feobiy har hot fingers struggled into hie open palm.
"I an alvays tired now cousin cyil" ehe an swered, "hut I ehould lite to come for a little winile," Ho went to fetch hor hat, mrapped a large woolen elhawl about her-for it was wonderful how then he led her out on tho terruee. Katie was speak; hatt prosently she looked ap into Captain Marslh's face with solemn, wistrul eye "Cousin Cyrl," eho stid, "if you had a little sister, and you loved her very Captsinin Marih did not anower at once. He hed never folt lesan sure of hesing ahle to to mater his omotion; hint, aftier a tme, ho spoke, finding it dircult ove

"No, Katie, I think not-that in to ayy, if she were good, and that I could fcel nuro that ahe was were good, and thast I could fcel nure that the was going to a happier bome than mino. I could roth going to a happier bome than mino. I could rith help grioving for her, Kntie, under any circumstancos, but it would not bo anch grief as poople have wiho are without hope Katio had grown edent nd thoughtrul again, bit, after a fow minntes, she drow cloner to his

"I It's the enow I don't Iike-all that cold snow. If I might only wsit until the folds ware getting green, and the martine had come to their neets green, and the martins had come to their neets again under my window, I don't think $I$ ehounld if I did $s 0$ long toll the violete agini, ir Iore hefore I go.

"But what makes you think

"I don't know, luat something tells mo mo had suoh a atrango droam last night," Bhe edded, aftor a pauae. "I thonght an nigol eame down to talke mo away, and I said to him : 'I I sin only a little girl, good engel, and mama and Nina want me hadly-can't you eparo me? Tho angol whook me haty-cas' you sparo me? Tho angol shook his hoosd end smillo. 'We want you moet, and love you hest,' hoo maid. 'God is vory tendor of tis lithe onc8; He will take care of yon.' 'And vill He take care of Nina, too $I$ I asked. The ngel'r fuce grew ro patc, and sad, aud mournful at this that I was frightened for Nina, and awoke, wet with tcara.
take cario of Nima
Sho stopped in hor walk, and agsin the hlue,
Wiot Miethin esce intorrogatod him earnestly. Captaiu Marah stopped too, and averted his face. Nias was dear to him- desrer than lifo - and yot, for very truth's sake, he could not give this child any unswer which ehould etiffe her yagne feara. So ho remained घillont, hoping and praying that she would not preess a reply.
"Oousin Cyrl, don"t you like to sey? Has Nina dono nyything mrong ?"
"I Iom "Iamnot ther ieeper" answered Captain Marah, bitterly.
"No, hat you are her cousin," returnod Katie,
"But that doen not. give me any right to pry
"nto her eecrete Katio." "No-and yet-"
The child's expreasion was so full of painful perplexity that Cyrd put his own feelinge aside, and
 "ghtnsss to her haart.
And yet, Katie," he ropeated after her, with a bentere, $I$ encouraging amile, "I know you see "T'm ouly a littlo girl, and perhape it's my love make, me think differently from you; hut-

And here Katio poased again.

"You won't he angry mith me, oonsin Oyril ?"
"Not for tho world; yon may, trast me perfectly
"Then I may aek-nren't you hard and unkind poor Nina, eometimes?
"I am afraid 1 Innat often appenr so to you", he answered, gravely-"even to others. Bnt I he answered, gravely ""even to others. Bat $I$ I caunot explain why this course of aotion in forcod caunot oxplain why this course of aotion is forcod upda me, sadly against my will. It would not ho apdn me, eadly g against my will. It would not ho nay feeling that I Ihould ilike to own to mysell, or ehould oare to mention hefore you, that could make me tender with Nina. I must be one thing or the other-very affectionate or very lard ; there ir no effety for one of my disposition in a medium conree. But this is a subject on which you and I must not tall, for Nina's anke, Katio. Only rest hully assured thast, although $I$ may sometimes appear harsh, there is no service 1 would not render your sister, no azacrifioe I would not make, to secure her any real happpiness. You truat me, Katio I know, and will make yourself sattisfied with this " nutional promien.
But there is one question I should like to ask."
Will you take eare of Nina when I am gone? "You are not going from ue, at suy rete, yet, for a long whate, I hope; but, if you must, Katie,
if it is so decreed, and no prayers of ours can avert if it is so decreed, and no prayers of ours can avert your doom, then I promise you, child, that I will your doom, then I promise you, child, that I will proteet Nina against everybody-even against proteet nymelf,
Katie
Katie eeemed satiafica, and thoy toolr suother trange to Captain Mace in ailencte ohild shonld epealk of harself as if sho ware Nina'e eafeguard and shield. And perheps ehe was ; for the old persuasion that to each wae given a gaardian angel, o koop him from herm, and to ward of the blowe of hatred and malioe, is true enough; aek many ${ }^{\text {an }}$ may eeem "only a child," hut they know how rou thoee pure lips and innocent eyes -hsve he evil thought uppermost at the time, and ro member gratefuly that Our Saviour himself sanc-. tified their superstition when He said: "Of such tified their saperatition when He said: "Of such ts the kinedom of heaven."
The kingdom of heaven. na his littlo cousin was ppearance of Nima and Gahrielle de Pene. The appearanco of Nina and gabiedele de Pene. The two giris were walling arm-in-arm, as in past tays, and Gobrielt days, and Gebrielle's tace was finshed, whilst her eycs ehowed that teare had only juat been wiped away. Still her red lipe wore parted with snilea, sway. Still her red lipe wore parted with smilee, epeaking to Captain Maral., "We are going into ppeaking to Captein Haralh, "We are going into the lower gardeus for some nowdrops. If yon meen to bo very civil we will allow you to eecor ns; and if not- why, you may come all thin a hoor ie hetter than a hore, at any rate."
"I hope I may he able to ateer olear of hoth "Yon are perfectly aware of your orn advantagee, girl. ${ }_{\text {girl. }}$. infercnece, mademoiselle? I only nollowed anyeel to cotertiain a bumble hopo that I might not prove dies greesble an yon scomed to anticipate.
"How refroshingly modest and imnocent you know refrostaingly modest and immocent 1 Do suecd. Maw yesterday in mamn's Monde 1 . for leave of shanence to nthend hies sister'e wedding 'Thhy, but I thonght you wero on ouly ohild d, ssid the coloncl, regarding the petitioner with aome suspicion. 'Oh, non, non eolonel', answere some suspicion. 'Oh, non, mon eotonel' answored tho other, roadily; 'nous sommes deux-un gar. tho other, roadily, con el unce file:
"A une fille; el cest moi qui, suis le garemo." Idon't at all reesent tho comparison. He probahly was in the hahit of looking nopon him as s soldier Who was to be haltiod through a certain amount of drill, rather than a lad who had human feoling and human dosires and who had human feening minding the suspicioions martinet that 'ce'est mo qui suis le garpon,

Mather & good interpretation, isn't it, Nina On the strength of ite ingenuity yon shall he exempted, Captain Marsh, from eny further efforte to do the agreeable all the rost of our wall. I that it is quito impossiblo to olaes you in either of tho categories stigunatised, and, therofore, I will atone for my want of discornment by applauding vehemently evory fature remark Jon may convehemently evory fature remark jon may condeacond to make. Whoreupon let us goand makio descond to make. Whoreupon let us go and ne, haveoc amongst tho snowdrope. Como, Katie., that Gixh than cheered her friond gaiety depreseed Nonder st this, for it had the snme effect upon limeole Often onongh, too, at the meess, when his hrother officers were in outrageons spirita, mirth, and had found it a greater fflort to looit gay than to look gravo. Nine evidently sbared hil with a forced amile, until, at lencthes onily met astonithed at the gravity of hoth Gabrille bega to roprosch them rith it in no mosaurel torme "You're what mema would call 'glume,' both of yon. I never in my life naw two euch long, Marsh, I have occa funeral procession. Captain a few good thinge on a lady andience, yrith a genbrosity aufficiently rare in your sex. If you could only hunt up the remasnt of a viticius only hunt up the remsant of a witticism, or the ghost of & bon-mot, really 1 Rhould be grateful. A for you, Nins," "hie added, laer tone olanncing to one of piteons earmestneess, " rour revity is to uncomplimentary, to say the leest of it. Here am I oo happy hooonose everything is made nght be But Nina intorrupted her hy an exprosaive geaKatie, fancying horself unnoticed, hed sunk down on $t$ little garden seat, and wsagressing her and her hrosthing wae heavy. She ipe were hine nearly fainting with fatigue. But one other was watching her too-one who was atrong na tenderand presentiy to was leaning over her snd apoaking in his gentlest tone.
She looked up you are very tired."
ses. up at Cyril with her soft, wiatiful

"I Ihall carry

Slue howed her head, end the soft, sweet loving smile he had learnad to think so very hoantifal playod over her wan lips. Very oarefully he liftod Gahrielln, nolored and bore her Lowardas the honse, to Nina's arm, who, pele and grave, hut perfoctly esim, walked hehind Captain Marah, never moving her eyer from Katio's face.
to pass in order to seach the hy which they had the loud, ehrill roice of Dame oldinm, they heard in angry dispute with the coachman who wao heard to eay, in reply to gome remark from her: "Nonsense I go aloug; yon don't want Miss Nina. Slle's outa walking, and yon don't eappooee we're going to fetch her home for such ne you."
"All I can say is, that if she knowed I was standing here in the cold, waiting for her, the'd "I tell gou what,

Itell you what, dame, there's some hereahouts Who are a bit afrait of you, hecsuae your tongue's eoanood with peppor and vinegar and doesn't give any stint of il warde tut eort. You don't sords ; hut im not one of that say I say to people's facees, and don't encourage no backhiting ; and so T 'd rather tell yon than tell no backhiting ; and so r'd rather tell yon than tell enybody eike that 1 don't like your 'tioing our ecrvants up to your house and getting ell the nems ont of 'em. Mre. Trent may do as slise likes ahout the malds a-going, but Jim shall have worl and pienty given him to toep his hande husy all tho evening next time you send him down an invite pl

If you'd bad an invite yourelf yon'd havo been "More civiller," said Dame Oldum, loftay.
"ula acorn to go to your littlo pottering place, I lived in good fam lies an my timo, and known how going to 'sooiate with my hinteriors 'cns old and coming on. 1 know what's due to mysell aud my ompgo on. T know whe master hetter than that."
"I wish I had got the paying of your doos," replica the old woman, sharply; "I wonldn't heep you waiting. Trogot a mino I ena worls when I m in 10 want of money.
Nina had
Nina had grown paler and paler as this couveran tion proceeded. When it came to a pause alhe dropped Gabrielle's arm and stepped towaris the yard, telling her to follow Oaptain Marsh into the housc. But Cahrielle, who was like an April day, hato
altorate teara and amiles, haring seen the roady to he gay agnin, and trastly relishod the ides of an enconuter with Dame oldum. So sho folloved Niun's steps instead of taking the path to the house.
Her fhee waz inffamed wor whole to tho atnblea lefiant. Sho made ollw hor whole sir inoolent and The canght sight of tho ladies and opened her "Theret he talks about insumere," she snid, pointing to the coachuann, who stood grinning in the background, "and the fan'lies he's lived in hehavior than a pig. Horo's a poor hody, wholl turn into the seventies next Michaclmas, plonse tho Lori, left to stand in tho cold jost as if aho'd for growed on her to keop her warm like a wild mimas), instead of only heing boboven for a covernor chanrity, nor nothing, as I can see, ond I haven't took to speetales yet for the want of eyesight. Bnt that's always the way with thom mothogs. You got $a$ civil word or the devil of of his man. It's jnst as if they was atraid all their wagce 'ru'd bo given awny in alms, I do be-- lievo they'd drink the poor aoap on a full atomach athor than wo bhonla get a Bup of it on an empty ofe. I wish gontlofolke ant in the kitoben instes wont that's migsing, and, maybe, tiop poore 'z'd nore and the ewwecthearts lesg, Now ho 'there get,
But Nins intorrupted her impatiently,
"Well, but, dane, what arc gou come for now?
You lave had moup every woek, I know, beaides conis and blankote at Christmas.
"When you don"t renlly went sny of them," pnt he paribb to my aro bettor or tasn any one in the parisb, to my certhain knowledge. Ben has "You see, mise, with no urriner. Yon don't linow nothing shout the and atantinls English folks is cecustomod to. Tre board eny as Frencli people live npon nothing, and have a crust of bread to look at for deseert; ; lut I was bronght up differont. As to Ben, he ien't was bronght up differont. Ay to Ben, he inn't much of a holp now : most of his wages goes in much of a holp now : Most of his wages faurings sid such like for his swetheart."

"Hash 1" whispered Nina in French. "Don't make an enemy of the
"What harm eould she do me?"
"Sbe might injure your reputation."
"And that wouldn'taiggoify much. I Ahall never ho ahole to marry, mama says, becanee I have got no dot,"
"Oh,
ale, try and preserse jow your own comfort's Nina spoke foelingly, hat $G$ abrielle ouly reeponded Meauwhile, Dame oldum, who graceful ellonlderathis hrief dialoguo with euspicion, hecouse it was carried on in a language she did not understand, brolke in again :
"Raga and tatters ign't comfortable wear in cold weathor, let furrin folks say what they likte. I want a warm shawl and a merriner froctr, and 1 want a warm shawl and a mean to have 'em somehow,
"I toll yon what, dame," said Gabrielle, dauntleasky, "you don't want anything ; and if I wero Nina I youldn't give yon anything.
"Mias Nine knowe what ele's ahont, and so do I," answered the old woman, with a finsh of menace in her koen eye. "If any third party gets hetween na she'e like to do more mischief thnn ns she'e like to do more mischief than good. Mammoselles aint Englieh, snd they don't know nothing abont English wants." "It's a good thing for jon they'ron not," retorted Gabrielo with eqna asperity and tharpnees.
"I aint askod you for nothing." said Dame Oldum, sneering; "I don't go to empty cup"Yoas and expeet good cheor." proud dame, we are poor, end " and we are not shamed of it. Our euphoerd may not ho very vell garnished, perhaps, hut we can alvays manage to find something in it for those who are "Indeed I do ; hut, Gabriello, wby argue with nme oldum? You do not underatand each Dame Oldam? You do not underatund each other. And, dame, mind, I caunot have you rude other. And, dame, mind, I caunot have you rude to my friend. Come up to-morrow morning snd I will sees you, and if you are really in want of what yon say you ehall have it."
Nins tornod away as she had finished epenking, and Cabrielle followed her. Nine'e ptep was and Cabrielle followed her. Nina'e step was quick and imperious, her face clonded, and quick and imperious, her face clouded, and Gahricllo's remonstrances were stayed on her Gips. She would not imperil the recont good nn-not derstanding hy nuy provooation, and yet the had 3 hard struggle not to reproach Nina for her they hed mutnally formed of Dame Oldum's character. Bnt ths words remained prndently unapou, and, in auswer to Bome instinct whieh with Dunie oldum should he ignored before the othera, Gahrielle kept a sorupulons eilence ou the subject. Fortunately, she had suficed too mall hy her former surpieions to slow the mach eoely renewed, and, therefore, if she hud her doults momentarily restored hy Nina's condnot thast day, ehe scon diemiesed them, and managicd to replace her old love and trust in her friend; ouly this time, it must he ownicd, they were compooed of some what patchod-up materrals, and dia not promise to bear any very severe atruin upon not promise to boar any v, their force and endurance.

chatyzar L-A bit op a badcat

Ir heing & fine morning, and no occupation likely to prove more agreeahle engreeting itaelf, Lord Gilingham had hohlled over to Bcechwood to have an Interview with Mr. Marreh, meaning to opeak frankly as to his viewn rogarding Nini The aril had & grand notion of his advantage has from other and indapendent onuses as well. A rague distruast of Nins'e eontimenta in his hohar had occasionally vieited him, bnt Lord to modicoty, and ormed to so settled poonriction posale, hoth ehe and her father, if not Mra-
 The earl had spacialy songht this interview with hin noighhor, thinking that the hueinees with hif mighbyor, thinking that the huteineeo part of his propoeal rould he hetter settled heNins'e wishemsestres the prith ant. After reference to secret anul, ho did not relishb eeeking hin anawer from thooe lipe which, althongh so hin ham nover known in thatr eofinoss and matitrol, bu
But there was eomothing in the confidence dia. phaylod Mr. Mard, Hillingham thet thioh eomewhat gale ful doughter to giva away, he was the eqnal of the keep hise tomper under control, bott thoasa know him well andoretood that when he epoke Inth hie beaticd moore
But Lord Gillingham did not know bim vory woll; sud whon, therefore, Mr. Marsh, aftor spacak bimeolf in a perfectly calln, measured tone to his euit.
Mruvih, "which, is an simple conntry "anaid Mr. have, I dnre sny, no right to expeot; ; but I alwaya denghters ebould he aelied in marriage, I would entirely put neide my nuthority, to afford them. of each a etep, and conld not tolerate that either of tbom ehould look at it in a lens gravo light than "Then you authorise me to eponk to Miee Nins "You may if yon like, of courreo; bnt I give you notioe that 1 oannot in any way eupport your wibhee. Ae from man to man, 1 conaitider it right to tell you candidly that your modo aome time past doee not sppear to me to offer a rery good guarantee for the happinesa woman who might heeome your wiffe, arl, having the grace to look pone," mnttered the world, and therefore too apt, I am z man of the youth; but I cannot exactly place yours in that socered in from that time to this heen per-han his preeent is my danghter for hio wife," sarl, fumhling with his watch-chain. "No "No oons can accuue me of playing the hypocritio; hut, of hirth and breediun to young lady of Miw Mareh's intention of purging it for her reception, and making her pooition in avery way respectable and "I am au old man, my lord, and hava aeon a hut fow that leated d year." The earl hit his lip. It wae ovidently with great effort that he kept hie rage within hounde, "Then I suppose yon expect a eveond St. An,
"I am not oo difloult to plene ha eaci, ronghly. "I am not eo diffoult to plesse ae you imagine," could disponsa with $\mathrm{a}^{\text {. good deal }}$ in to have what I wranted in othore, Certsingly 1 ahould far rather my danghter marrieds s gentiss.
nan - one who had a good claim to the titleat the same time, if she should chance to pick upon a man who had no hirth, hat was wellwhich would ineure hiir rotaining her affection and ropy apt in England to forget virrus optima respcet 2 good cost : $\mathbf{I}$ must know frot of nll whity it covers; and I ifrmly heieieve that if my principte were more in vogne-if plain afficioncy, inetoad of ent -reahould h, which ocoasionally mar the workiogs of Church ${ }^{n} \mathrm{Ah}$, ,

Sh, youre a lit of a Radioal, I see I"
Mr. Marsh, vith one of his quict emiles; " "hat my epecial motto is, "Tho right man in the xight
"And you mosn me to infer that $I$ thould not he
the right mano in the right place as Misa Marelra huehand ?"
io to leave that to my danghtor to decide ; that ie to sesy if you et,
"Certainly I do."
jurisdiction," eaid Mr. Mareht matcr is beyond my ${ }^{\circ}$ All right ${ }^{\circ}$ " exclu. March.
olfaring hie hand, which Mr. Mareh preesed and tightly as ho could. Which Mr. Maroh preesed ae then. 1 wieh yon good-morning."
But, inatcad of joinin room, as might havo heen cxpeoted under the circumstancee, he mounted his horsue, which a groom had beoo ordered to hring round to Beech Food in -hour, and rode straight to Beech After his rixitor was gone Mr. Mureh gave his came in to romind him that they hod settled to wills over to one of his farma hefore liuncheon. Mr. March pushed nsido his papera and got up at noe, hut Cyril notileod that bismanner wat not no Ireoand pleasant as neual. Presentity the coure "Lord Grine oul asid.
"Indeed" snswsred Cyril, witho "He came ahout Nina,"
"About all attention now.
Yee; he made a propeooad for her hand."
Ho? Lord Gillingham ?"
"Ho? Lord Gillingham ? ${ }^{\text {Y }}$, almor ot gasped Cyril, aid Mr. Marah, mietaking hie nophew'o trouhio for astoniehment. '

Bnt my cousin did not accept him ?n
'I don't know what ehe mas do; she has not "Noof conallted yet,"
"I gava him was that ?"
er," naswerod Mr. Mareh, cherily cllt ture that Nina had too mueh good eenee to he I have had hopees too for worm hy euoh a man. otber arrangemente Fore Bikoly to be made. Indeod, I may as well
gpoalk frankly is no one in the world to whom I would rather give Iohould not masy thie much were I not sure that "I'm afraid, then, I must wait for Katio, for Ninn will have none of me," replied Cyril, with Mr. Mareh paueed in 解解 his walk, and his face

"She hae refues yon?" he inquired, in s tone dieappointment, whioh was the best kind of
"No," enid Cyril, "ghe will not let me come "I thought ahe had orry for her, that is all," said Mr. Marob, and he vell," he added, preeently, "if one is to "Ath, over all a woman's fanoiea one will hare enough to do. Come along and look at the hullocke P' And here the converectiou dropped; hat M. than be had heen singo her stack of hrin fever. Strange to eay, Mr. Marab mentioned nothing of Lord Gminghame viait or its motive either to is to the hor Nina. The dity of enlightening Nina antended ber the Captain Marab. Buth a mor this could not tell her; be had got into the hes. keeping बvery happy hour he conld get free of quagreahhes, and, oonsequentiy,
He had accured the place he best loved-uamsly evening, only Gahrielle do indnced to otay the night, and was in her wildoest spirits from the novelty of the event.
Even Mr. Maralh, who, like a tuve John Ball, whiked foroignare, and heeides, considered tively laughing with Gabriolle in the very fuoe of a grave didactio leader in the Times. She maie eiving a ladicrone deacription of her interview with a littla "I had heen givie
I had heang giving him aome good moral leanone taks doanp root, I veutured to inquire what hig notion of perfect happinces would ha, expecting, Just imagine hie reply-' Two jolly and eagacity. day, and plenty of nuta to crack hetween timea, ah! yon may lsagh at his angwer, Captain Marah hut I can seenre you it hat bad a eerione effec nutare- that and ths seboolmetars privately hegging me to shotain from visiting the eahool teach them to worship idolo. You ace Ih should of prejudicat Hero am I, a Protentent, int though the child of French parents, xeared and edneated on English soil, yet I am not allored to enter a village echoodroom for fear I ehoold corrapt tbe young ides I You know Tommy Billa, don't all the dncke and chickens for four milee aronnd. I canght him one day with his sietor's doll elevated the French midam and her dsughter worelippes be Thercee with eome new diacovery of hie hieit turnchartiat and iconoclast, and deetroy our pump handlee hecanse thoy are fashioned after the eimp.
 Millage dircctly Tommy growe, up," Mre, Marnh,
"But, my dear Gabrielle," eaid Mre day." Dour Mrs. Mrareb, we don't expect logio from nstare would put euch a atrain ppon thoir briin mithhinory that it would he ont of repair a whole

 "Ah, hat Dame Oldur"'s a wonder. Sha'd bs the gretatit sholar of the agg if ounning took the proce of coltivotion.

 That ia a plos I rarely deay," he answered with increased gravity, "hnt I Iouht ita applicahey tell mame that oho has eaved money, with har, her to hn the mate moit invetereate money, and 1 krow all Beechmood. Nina honod tow over her work, and asid no more;
hit her ailenco did not look minch bike oonviction

 that, dan, fully remaraded woonld patio happy and free once more.

SIECE OF PETERSBURC.
ho Action on the Woldou Rallrond, Aug, ao and as.
Eaniy on the morning of the 18th of Anguet the sth corpe moved ont to the diroction of tho Woil on the me withons of tive corpo followed each other ranced from twe to thrce mille Legond. of the emgige mont whisob ensube on the sfternoon of that das, the hack frut then rallying wad driving the examm, we smmed din the early yart of the nftornon

 2ank, but front inat
The rebe

Tender where oll tha bad people ara buriod !"

Si zish

THE THREE CALLERS.  Monv calleth fondly to a fair hoy straying 'Mid golden meadows, rich with clovor dew; She calls-but still he thinks of naught envs playing ; While ho, still morry with his flowery store, Deems not that Morn, sweet Morm, returns no Noon cometh-bnt tho hoy to manhood growing, Heeds not the timn; he seos bat one eweet form, Heeds not the timb; he sees bat one eweet form, Onc young fair face, from hower of jeseamine yonng glowing,  And all his loving heart with bliss is warm. So Noon, unnoticed, eoeks the Western shore, And rasin forgets that Noon returna no more. Night tappoth gently at a oasement gleaming With this than firolight, flickering faint end 1 By which a gray-hsir'd man in sady dreaming O'er pleagures gone-as all life's ploasurce go Nigbt calls him to her, and he leaves his door, Bilent and dark-and he returne no more

ANECDOTES OF ALLICATORS.

A triesd of mine was lately riding in com pany with thirco others, in single illo, nlong the narrow strip of hand which connects the ponineula of Jaifm sprang to one side in a manner to muezpecter so norsts to unieat him. It appoared thot an allgeator whloh bud heen living hy the aide of the laggoon had mande espring at the horse'e lege as he passed. One of the geatlemen who was riding hohina my friend, ead who bad aeen the whole proceedng, was no sirongty impressed with that ho wes not estisfied until ho had diemounted and examined the horec's lege.
This is unquastionshiy one of the coolest pleces of impertuance 1 have over heard of on the phrt of $s$ tank allfgator; nad having heard of it I shall cortaliy bo alligator; and having heard of it I shanh cortalaiy bo are, up to my walst, for half no hour at a time, gitore in o tank in the noighborhood. I eppied on the oppoelto eide of a tunk two bieck carlow, birda of most oppoalto eido of a tank two bisck curlow, birda of mast delicato Ilaver, but very eliy. Miy gun carrier was a dollosto yavor, but very eliy. Ny gun carrier wan a good way in tho rcur, and as the ourlaw wero horving quiouly along, 1 rode into the tank to watch them. There wero sevornd alligatore sbout me, and the way they wont to work bas this: A fellow would riee to the they went to work thas this: A follow would riee to the surfice and look at my peny and me to eee where we urficee and look at my peny and me to bee whero vie Weace. Then he would eink and come up again a litto nearver and go down agatn, and comp up nud have anotbcr look to beo where we werc, At lapt my guaw was brought ond 1 hecd ny shiot at the curlow, and sawno Eomin of a gum. . after, my friend kopt i lookout for his evemy, and discovered him once more on the bank-ho gave hitm a two.oupco ritte ball, which mado a long searr along hie futal at onco, and the alugator succeeded in getting sway.
 an nilisntar has sought the hoppistbio shelter of the caton found another in hie stablo.
An old sportaman in Jaffna, who had an ondless stock of tiles, tused to tell how fe hod onco ghot several slllof tles, tused to tell how he hod onco ehot several slltgatore with grains of rice instesd of bellt Aftor he had teated the crednulity of his hoarars to $s$ moderate degrec, tected the crednlity of his hoarars to $s$ moderato degrec, ho would ndd that the alligatore wore about nino inches long. They were young ones which be killod as speci-may bu, tho yonng allightore ara not so very disgusting.
In fict, tho brighit yellow bars which altornite with the hilack ones are rather pratty than otherwise. 1 and ove in a vivarium, and tho viciona litllo beast ueed to nip moy lingers whon I tried to feed it. It gol out one night, aud I don't know what becrune of it
A moorman canght a young allg gator in his fluhing
kral in the Matura river, and 1 went to oce it. It was krual in the Matura river, and 1 went to eee it. It was alive, and to sll appearanocs there was no reason why, if ket nlono, it apeudd not grow up to ulifgator' eostate-- ita longih wis nbout threo add o hall fect. Thuking its longh was nbout three and o half feet. Thuking fint this would bo a good opportuwity for tosting the Tuast this would bo a good opportuwity for tosting the correctives of what I had heard in the north of the istand about the remartablo effect of lime upon the all. gitor, I asked a mun to bring mo come, on which he procured from a noighboring houno $s$ lump or the chunprocured from a nelighboring houns s hump or the chanamb, or lime propared from alelly, which the nattves are in the hublt of chowing along with the nut of the areca padua sud the leaves of the betel creeper. The limo had previlousiy been molstened with water. Haying opanod the jawn of our unfortumsto victim-an opcrablon to which it aubmittod with oxemplary resignation when it found it could not provent it wo inseritod, tion when it found fack as the openide not into the thront, a lump of chumamb ahout as large es a plgeonty $\mathrm{cg} \mathrm{g}_{\text {a }}$ aftor whech we put the onimal into tho wather. Inmuedistcly it turned over on ite side and thon on lto bock, and appearod parelysod; roon its oyes closed, and I thought it mas dead.
After abont five minutea it ruvived a litth. I eould not renixin longer to watith it, but fu the evening I rode to where It had been experincnted on, when 1 found that wenime it had been expertinnted one whon 1 oomd that wit was desd, and leavit that it had died withto two houra

FUN FOR THE FAMILY

Quxer, ladylike society- Dumh-bellss.
"Trese notes enliven me," as the man said Ir a woman were to change her sex, what What lawyer presidea over railway and ateam oxonrelona? Coke, Warci city is made of the lightest materials? Funkun describes a hachelor as half of "I'll he shot if I stay," as the partridge said

Ir ia a popular delusion to helieve that pow. der on a hidy's frec has the tame eff musket, namacly, to cause hor to go off.
A ranlor who, in sleating, fell through the see, dechred that he would neter egain leave his ho gocse for a cold duck.
"WEX do you use so much tobacco f" said

Mr first is the love of little ladies, my second the llimb of a fath, Sydngy Smrm speaks of a man ao dry, that if you wero to bore holca fo him with a girnlot tawduat wouid como ont.
A coscrutas, extolling tho sugacity of one of his horses oherved that "if nan boily was to go for to ise him ilf, he mouid bear mankeo like o Ohefotion." A smaners to law courts, hearing a judge

Soon after Sir Heary Rivers took orders, he

A lady performed, iu the presence of Dr.
 tho lenst daxagroublice
In a small party, the subject tarning on "I wonder, nyy dear, jou hase naver made a match Sale you want the brimatomel" "No, not the hrimatone; only the rop
Malesherbe having dined with the bishop

 A roon womnn who had attended aeveral

Shradidx made his appearance one day in a pair of yow hoots. These nthmacting the nonco of some of hiin frieudis, he asked tliem to gucas how ho cane hy
Several unsucccarful conjectures wore offrrod
"No," said 8 lueridam, "jou'zo uono of you right.
"No," said sueritan, "you'zo", bonght them nad putid for thoma 1 "
Tre following dialoguo is aaid to have taken place recently between a marrisd couplo on twoir
"Myolas dear, are you counfortable in that corther ? ${ }^{4}$

"And no cold air from tho window by your ear?
"Qhent, my dear, FII obange places with jou."
Ir is told of a woll-known American map robers, who demanded lian moncy. Betug more pari dept than to cerry moncyin in thic countra, tiliey lalled in

Wrice of our dogs doos tho dog star most re-emble? A ekyo texrier.
When is a hlack dog not a black dog Wry ia a game at cards like a timber yard?
WREN is an umbrella not an umhrella
Whan it is dripping.
"I peEx rather dull to day," as the razor
"Thar's a moving sigbt," as the stage-onchmas said of the rallway tridin.
A covennsss, advertising for a situation,
saje she "1s percect madetress of her own tongue, Whes is a schoolhoy like a farm-servant in July? When he ic making A.
Dr. Baeton, of Morton College, Oxford, sald the fellows of his collego withed to hive an organ
"but he put e stop to ith"
In a hotel hero, says the Trinidad Neus, Man named Drum is tho bark, WHY is an Irish row like railway travelling?
Bocause it is a very common apecles of low commo.

Agents Wanted, to sell our now AP OF HichMond. Theouly hip publiehed thow解 10 ceate per copy; Wholesaig is con NEW STAP OF MoBILE: A Splendid Mop. Price

A STARTLINC FACT!
Fighly Important to Soldiers.

ho have worn them would not be withont then
They aro endorsed by wiflest ptedical snd eclantifi Inerican, &c. sent free by muil of recoipt of Sefortici, Po.
Pricoor obove, wishout pocticts, $\$ 160, \$ 1,75$ centa. Gencral A G. G. EVANS, 4 4es-9 (General Agent for the Vnited Stale9) $\begin{array}{r}\text { 650 Chetnut St, Philldotophta, Pa. }\end{array}$
The Barly Physical Degeneracy of American People,

 DRE. ANDREEW SHONE

Popular Patriotic and Home Songs,

AMERICAN BILLIARD TABLE

and comibination cusbions,

Do Zou Want to get WIarried?
 ing bow etthor eez can facimate, win tho undy ing love
and marry whoover they with, trreapective of gye perooual nypearnico. Scat by mail for so cento ani iro red stample. $\Delta \mathrm{ddreas}$
462.68 B. D. LOCEE &
OO., Box The most encc
evor published.

FRANK LESLIE'S

 LADY'S MAGAZINE ANDGazette of Fashion, TOR बEPTAMMBER, 1864, S UNSURPASSED IN ATTRACTION

FULL STZED PATTERN OF A FIGARO BODY AND waistcoat.
dOUDLIE-PAGE COLORED PLATE OF FABMION $\qquad$ HOUR-PAGE CUT

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { IDUR-AGE CUT } \\
& \text { containing thirly-one dfforeat dressen, }
\end{aligned}
$$

Oow Stjle of Hota, Corssges, Fichink, Jackets, Henddreeses; fantilona for girls of yariona ages, CONTENTS :
A Father'e Bequest. Mhastratod
A Fright in tho Caucasue, Told in the Twillght. Milu Lovo Mo for SIyself Alone.
Paul Garrett; or, the Scerot. Illustrater.
Easie Granger. Mustratod.
,.it

No Magazine in the country excels it in tbe literary balfy of ita varled mad interesting contents or its abality of its varled and interesting contents, or its Huntrations, and none amproschas it an a Fashion guide.

Buy it by All IMeans :
FRANK LESLIE,

Just Published.

Trexs injpvo inummerme

HIRANE LEOSLIESS

BUDGET OF FUN,

 Boing No. 79,for october.
Ite Grand Cartoon ia one of the most telling hits of tbe age, and represents the great Aroh-Rehel heing Flattened Ont.
Also, John Bull and his Trihulations ; and Gen. Grant and Jeff. Davie - hesides numerons Comio Engravings by the First Artists of America and Europe-Leech, Tenniel, Rosenherg, Bellew, Newman, Forbes, Crane, Howard, McLellan, eto., etc.
The Letterpress is equally admirahle, the contribations being hy our beat anthors.

Price 10 Conts.

Frank leslie's Publication Office,

537 Pearl Stroet,
New York.
Satlers, the Bost Prize stationery

xImPORTANT NOTICE TO OFFICERS, SUTLERS, GUNSMITHS, and the publio generally.

Soldiers'. MLoney Belts.
 quabty deaimd. Addrcs8
HOWARD BRLT CO., 430 Brondwey, N. Y.

 Y Ditcul

 HATCH, JOHNSON \& CO., J. 8. LOWREX \& $\mathrm{CO}_{n}$, 37 Warren St , N. X.
 HODGES, BROS., 23 Hanover St, Bultimore LEAVITY \& BEVIS con Fifth and Yive, Waehington. J. VON BORRIES A. FRANEENTHAL \& BRO., No. 6 Main St., St. Louis. WEED, WITTKRS $\& \mathrm{CO}, 7$ to 13 Tchoupitoalas St, N. O
$45 \mathrm{~S}^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$

REEMINGTON'S

[^31]
J. H. WINSLOW & CO. T"UERINIMTEET&, E"URRNITMERE  100.000    DEGRAAF & TAYLOR,  (FORTMERZ E. P. DEGRAAT),

 VEOTth $500,000:

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

The socrotary of the Treasury given notico that subeckiptlons will be rocoived for Conpon Treasary Notes, annual intarest at tho rats of seven and three. tonths per eent. per annum-principal and faterest both to bo pasd in liwfol money.
These notes will be convertble, at the option of the holder at maturity, into six por cent. gold bearing bomis, payalle not hoss than Iive nor more than twenty sears from thelr dato, sa the Governmont may elect. They will be tasuoá in denominations of $$ 50, $ 100$, $$ 500, $ 1,000$ and $$ 5,000$, and sil suhecriptione must be for afty dollare, or nomo muleple of fitty dollares. As the notes uraw interest from Angust 15, peroons interost accrued from date of note to date of deposit. Pertles dopasiting twenty-five thouennd dollers an npwerds for these aotes ait any one tlmo will be allowed
 Special Advantages of this Loan, if is a national savings bank, offering a bigher ante of interest than any other, and the beet se curk. Any savings bank which pays its depositars in U. S. Notes conaiders that it is paying in the best ofr anything better, for its own assests and elther in Government sccurities or in notos or bonds payable in Govern mont pupos.
Convertible into a Siz per Cent. 5-20 Grold Bond.
In addition to the very liberal interent on the noten for three years, tbis privilego of conversion is now north about throo per cent. por annum, for the current mium, and before tbe war the prominm on six per cent. U. S. atacke was over twenty por eent. It will be seen that the actual proat on this loan, at the procoont market sate, is not less than tea per cent por and

Its Exemption from State or $\mathbf{M} \mathbf{M}$ nicipal raxation.

But asido from all the ad vantagon wo have onumeraind, A apecial Act of Congress erempts all bondz ard Treasury mhets from tocel faxation. On the evorago, thas exemption is worth alout two per cont. per annum, according to the rats of taxation in varions parts of the country. It is helfoved that no securities offor so great induceIn all other forman of indebteducss, the forth or nbilits In all other formn of indebtedness, the fatth or ablitity of private parties, or stock companioe, or eoparate com. mintics, onky, ia pledged for paymont, whilo the whol property of tbo countr'y is hald to accure the diacharg of all tho ohligations of the Uniled Statee.
Euhecriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the Onithd Blates, at Washington, the several Asaiation Treasurera and deeignated Depoaitaries, and io all Na thomul Banke which are dopositarten of publio mones,

ALL respeotable banes and bankrers throughout the country will givofurther information en AVFORD EVERY FACLITY TO StBSORIBERS

The Confessions and Experience of an Invalid.
Pablabed for tho honent and an a warning, and a countion to young meu who suffer from Nerrocus billy,

 $466-9$ G. $F$, HAWEESA, Sole Mannficturery,

NO. B7 BOTVIPRET, NNFV TOIRES.

one of the largent Furaiture Honues in the Unfled Stalises

in part, of

ROSEWOOD, PARLOR AND CHAMBER FURNITURE;
Mahogany and Walnut, Parlor and Chamber Furniture.

Tucker's New Style Patent Eprin

ARNE RADGES
SIVGLE ONE, 100 OR 1,000 : gold, silver and white metal.

SYOWV중 & Mroona,
Photograph Cards
Samplos and Cutalogues nont for

HOSTETTER'S oelzbrated STOMACH BITTERS.

Sold by all Drugrisis and Family Grocorn.
Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,
prepruen And SoLD ny
New Yonk Orrice, 59 Czohla strekz
Old Byes IMLade NVew!
and givo up apectocles, without aidofdoctoror medteine. ant by mail, fice, on receipt of 10 cunta. Addrees $\begin{aligned} & \text { 466cow } \text { E. B, FOOTE, M. D., } \\ & 1150 \text { Broadvray, N. }\end{aligned}$
$$ 10$ AGILNTS $$ 10$ And Doaiors, to cou Fine Orayon Portrait of and 20 morn Novel and Usoful Artioles Moclevilan

WR Fact is Wrell. Jxnown that DR. FELIK GOURAUD'S MEDIEATED SOAP

 Gouraud's Poudre Subtile   Gouraud's Lily White, Liquid Ronge,

Litorary A Aonc cy, ZIStalilighed in 2892 .

"Solf Prooervation "M-A Now Mredical

storooscopic Viows and Cartes do Visite
1,0oo difformite

MATRIMONIAL FAVORS

 TXD PARIS PLOWKRA
$\frac{\text { At TUCKFR's. } 759 \text { Broadway. }}{\text { $100 per JKonth. Active and reliable }}$ Agonts un the Army and everywhore and rels, meliable tho moet acrative buaninens mown. Honorablo ond no nink,

$\qquad$

Attention, Company!

 | $468-8 \mathrm{~s}$ | P. O. Drawer A. O. CLARE, Albany, N. |
| :--- | :--- |

75,000 Watches, Chains, &c. VVOFTHIX $400,000.

 450-63 P. O. Drawer 118, Alhany, N. Y. C,

登

 Ne- Notwithetanding the increase in prioo of ohemi-
EE, VV

РНотOCRAPCZES  ,

Will lake Card Pietures at tho OLD PRTOE forast $$ 150$ PER DOZEN.
Large Photographs $$ 1$ the irst- 50 els, addtional ones, Particuinr attention paid to copptig Cards or Ambro types iuto handsome Coilorcd Ptiotornaphe

Inatrimony-Why overy man should

The Great IMoney-JMalcing Article
 25 cante. Addroes
$\begin{array}{ll}\text { 0. H. MARTIN, Hinsdale, N. H. }\end{array}$
Do Eou Want Iuxuriant Whiskers or MMoustaches?

 R, G. GRAHAM, 109 Nassan St., N. X.
"Albnin Goms."-Something Newr, Gay
 tho 230 , tec., eto. Prico only 8 cening Cacch, or $$ 1$ for tho bet of 15 choice earde. W, TOMminson, Pullator, 221 Waehington BL, Bostoli,

Nervous Debility, Ieminal, Weaknoss, ac, can be cured by one who has reall cured hinasedf
and hundireds of othere, and will tall you nothing bat
tho trouth. Addrose, Wis WARD H . TRAVER, Lock Bos, Boston,
FRANK LECSLIE9'

Unrivalled Publications

Trank Ieslie's Lady's Magazine and GAZEPTE OF FASHION. The best Family published. Tho reading portion is the oream of conamporary English literature. Tho Hustrations aro In FASHIONS it has no equalition,
In FasHions it has no equal or eempetitar-a0 laty
Frank Ieslie's Ton Cont NXonthly,-

Frank Ieslie's Ilustrirte Zeitung, the nis German Ilustrated paper in ths country, $$ 350$ only Garman Iliustrated paper in the country. $3 60 per annum,

Mrank Leslie'e Eady'e Illustrated AlMANAO, a very valuable und attractive work, Price 25 centa.

DISTIUEDDEW

Roval Havana Inottery.

For Hardening & Invigorating ths Gums.

 LADIES' NTHTHER. TIVI ANATOMTEAX ENGRAVINGS Has informotion nower hofore phallabod. Sent free
sita
0

Eportermen, Mouriestes, AND ARMY AND NAVX OEFICIN3

GROVER & BAKHIR'S hayest prearum klastio strion SHWTEYG MAACYENES! Salegrooms, 495 Broadway, Nsw York.

Sutlors, tho Best Prize Stationory Packagcs uro put up by 467.000 .

Great Men.

Warrions, Clergmue.." Poota, Canubbale- Flathoand, Mlacianwh, with Heenkn, Brownow, Dr. TYug, Luther, trial will prove our as For allo by all Druggitan.

Pricoe 31 por casco. FARENG ATO. ${ }_{35}$ Proviletors, D .

WHAT THE CAPTAIN OF THE TALLAHASSEE IS EXPECTED TO DO.

G

\section*{$\cdot$| ter |
| :--- |
| Ho |
| 1 |} Sond for our pernon who nete ak dient, prewented

Extra Pran Extra Pramium indncommnts fret, Narsun Strect, Now
Y. O. RIOKARDS & CO., 102 Nassu
York.

IVORY JEWIGLRE. BROOORES, RAR RINGS AND SLEEVE EUTTONS ongraved with Grechan border, $$ 5$ per ech sentirnily
by mant froo

ono

 BALLOU'S
PATENTED
FRENCH
YOKE SHIRTS Warranted to FIT, and to bo CEFAPTR
for the same QUAL
TITES and MAKE

Oirculnr contain$\operatorname{lng}_{\text {pricas aeat free. An }}$ the United Statea.
ballou brothens, 403 Broadway, n. $\mathbf{Y}$.

The only gnamolled "Turn-over": Cellnr mado in "Onoker," to o. H. WriLTrove, 04 Pine Etroot, N. X.
and recoive it by return mail.

DYSPEPSIA TABLETS,
For INDIGESTION, HBARTBURN, otc., manafectured oniy by E. G. WELLING, and sold hy Druggiale generaly. Firty cente per boxi sent free on the receipt of 65 conta. DEPOT, 207 ORNTRE STREET, 2 d floor.
0000

WM. KINAESE & OO. MANUFACTURERS OF GOLD MEDAL
GRAND AND SQUARE PIANOS, DALITMORE, Md.
 Certincaten of Froelnoc from Thalberk Gottuchalk, Btratroech, G. Entter, nnd other leading antiste. leading artists. Every Instrament warmated
for fye ycars.
Price for ave ycars
Price lista promptly
WMS. KNABE & CO.

PRæSIDENTMAS

 CAMPAICN MEDALS
Of overy doccription, now ready in Plo and Moctal. Trade ordera gollctted sna promptly filed it Factors.

 Trade ordera sollcited sna promptly filled át Factorypricons Wholcoslo Depot, Deppot, OAMPATGN MEDAL CO.,
439 Broedww,

BRIDCEWATERPAINT

Ground is ofl in soveral drab ahades for Fillas, Cot tages, Roofe, ete., eto.

FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS!

creaty chancy

TO MAKE MONEY!

STEEINWAT & SONS,
Nos. 71 and 73 Fourtconth St, NT. X, Wre awarded a Firet Prize Meilal at the Iate Great International Exhibition, London. There wero two hunared and alxify-nino planos from all parta of the two hionired and allity-nino plan worlared for competition.
The Specinl Correupondent of the N. Y. Times aaya:
"Mresurse, Btednwry's ondoriomont by the Jurora in omphatic, and etronger and more to the potat than that of any European maker." 0000
Use of Thobacco, in all forms, Cured end Pravestep. Partlicalars free. Addrces, 103 -700
CHAS. H. DAY, New Haven, Oonn.

$$ 8$ wamict . $$ 10$

 mail, tm neat case, wrib a Deauxirul Vear canas, for
only $$ 10$.
 Sent free by mail, for only $$ 8$.
British Army 0fficer's Watch,

 Price, eingle oac, by man, winn key, oasc, ac., completer ony 226. ON $\epsilon$ CO., Sole Importert, 38 and 40 Ann Street, N. $\mathbf{Y}$.

WARDS SHIRTS SENT EVERYWHERE bYMAIL or EXPRESS  $olf-Theasurement for shirte:

STHFWCOLLARS
TNAMHLTH WEIKY, Having the appearaneco and comfort of linen, havo boun
Wrorn in En any other collnr, we they are readily clemned in ono To Milistary Men and Travellers they aro Invaluable.
Price 75 cente each; ; fent hy post to any part of tho Price 76 cente esoch; pent hy post to any Union on the recolpt of 90 conte.
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL. WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
S. W. TH. WARD,

Shults ${ }^{7}$ Onguont-Warranted to prom ance a full net of Whlekers in Bix Weekti or moncy reanded.
$458-700$ TEI BOWWN MIXCROSCOPB, Ungulfying 500 rincrs, malled to any addroese for 60 ota, Pruyz of diferent powiors for $$ 1$. Address
B. TI EIATYMAIED, sOS BROADWAY, N. Y., Principal Army, Navy, Campaign, Masonio and Society Badge Manufacturer of the United States.

Vineland Lands. To all wanting Farms.
 35 por acre, payahlo within four jears. Good husiness opaning for manufactorica and others. Churohos, ecbools pd good解 ho scot free. Addrees OHAS. . L. LANDIS, Vingland Post Omice, Cumberland county, No满 Jurrey. "It is one of the mont extentive flerite tracts in an atmart hevel

[^0]:    Whiskers in 42 Davs or monsy refunded, wy Ongunt will force them to grow heavily in Sir

[^1]:    No. 446-Vol. XVIII.]
    NEW YORK; APRIL 16, 1864.
    [Price 8 Cents.

    THE METROPOLITAN SANITARY FAIR. THE city of New York has been for weeks Juey witb tbe preparation for tbe Metropolitinn Sani asy Firi, the generosity and pitriotikm of the people ar and near pouring in contribations with 80 lavisb a bind that the original proportions of the Fair-an aud pigay, that addition affer addiltion has been mado the ouildinge.
    Now, when too late, it ta seen that the true plan weald bave peen to take Unioneonare and erret n large weuld bave been to take Union eqnare and ereet $n$ large buid tog enclosing the whole. Iblowould have given he necessary apace and broaght sll fnto a compnot nd ascessible form.
    (t io now in $t$ wo dintingt portione, one st the Ármory win $1+$ th street extcnding to 15 th etrcet, and includimg ndd a Eecond bnilding at the northera portion of Unilon juare, het ween the Park and the Everett Honse. Tue orighal huidding on 15th ktrert we rapreeented ome rime uniee, but tho whole front is hiddan now indios Department, hung with Berstadve and other olicectione of Roeky mountain cuitioeities, wigwamn, epolls of tho chaee, etce. Here the Onondaga Indiann we Blinetrate folly.
    Of the Miaebinery Department on 10tb etrect an ex
    erior view ie given in one of oar illustratione thin weck. Betweon tbese is the main departmentit of the Wair, of which we give on our donble pagea rifw takan nom the "Cockleft Summerbonse" near the New Jersey department, ebowing the tables of the Turneris the Churcb of the Resurreetion, tbe German Chureb, Ohio, New Bedford, Rechmond and Weetcbester ountics, and the impoaing table of the New York ire Depariment, with the contrinations of variou loode, Boots and Shoes. The Floral Temple in the contre of the main hall may also be deeerned.

    The Union aqnare builsing, wbleh we aleo lay be cone our readers, contains the Knieaerbocker Kitcluen, the Muale Hall, the Culldren'e Department sad InterThe Muslo Hall, the Chlldren'e Department snd Inter national Hall, The Falr was inaugurnted on April th. Tbe Mayor, Hon. C. Godfrey Guntber, in a pro lamnation Invitod ail to make it a boliday, and during do latter part of tbe day tble recommendation wa The Fuir wras ia acb as New York ceidom witneenoa, acelistemed a it le to parndes. The Firat Divielonon, of the New York State Nationnl Guard under Gen. Sandford, with to regulars in tbo harhor under Brig Gen. Stannard that street, 2d avenne, Astor place and Broadway to he Clty Hall, wbere a marohing sainte was glven to The Mor and Corporation
    The whole parade was magnificent, the regulars meeting every expeotation and prodncing a great effeet on the tbousande tbat lined the streets. Never since the reception of the Prince of Wales bas there been such kn ovation.
    The doors of the Fair were opened st six $o^{\circ}$ clock and It was inamgurated at eight oolock by the Star

    Band, Phis was followed by a prayer and the eling ing of a hymn written by Oliver TVendell Holmoo,
    Gen. Dix, on hebaif of the Committso, then pre Gen. Dix, on hebaif of the Committso, then pre ented the Fuir to the ladies, a letter from toe Reve
    Dr. Bellows, from the Clifornia steamer, was preDr. Bellows, from the California steamer, was presented, and Mr. Joeeph H. Choate responded for the ladies. The proceedinga eloesd witb the OId Hun Ired, and the gay nad fasbionable audlence dils persed throngli the halle.

    ## The Indian Department

    This department, whleb we illuatrate as one of the trikng lateriors of the Fair, bas been placed under $t$ with a mplititne of Mr. Blerstadt, who bas adorned rtioles of attire end furnitare, arms, impiements, sophies of the war-path and the bunt. Other eol cators, army oficers and private gentlemen have of the to the contente of the roam, while the managere bave erected a etage, the scenery belind wbleb is a inely executed view of an Indian village; the floor is eodded, and on either side $a$ tent wigwam of ekins. State the de an number of Iroquois Indians of thie dietated pesos to tribe in Florids, Nova Scotis, Lalke Superior and the Mriseisalppl, and bad French and Eng lieh Governors anxione suppllants for their filend ship. Thene Indisno will give dally, at atated boure, a number of tbe war, religioue, patrioticand other ds nces which have so long prevailed in their trlbe. In a room which bave eo long prevailed in theirt tribe. In a roon bung with elk heads, sealpa, buffalo and bear sking, bung with elk heads, sealpa, buffalo and bear skini, omabawke, eaddles, canoes, eviowahoes, robea, Indin
    cradtes, baskets, mille, etc., witb Indians performing dancea at which Gomez, Verrazand and Hudeon may bave gazed in worder, we are earried back to day whe
    New York wau but a barren rock, with $n$ few reatteredt Indians temporarily on it for bnnting or flehing.
    The Main Hafl.

    The main ball of tbe Fair, to whilih we allude, witi The cbarming temple of Flora in the centre is n wellconcelved and bymmotrical mase of evergreens and floral decoration 5 . It is crowned by a revolving temple of Liberty, an ind depend from eolumns, and mect the eye in every direetion. Names of tbe eelebrated battlee of tha war executed in flowers grect the epectator on entering. Around this are the tables, which we ean speul of but briefly, referring to the dally papers for fuller accounte. The Poliee Department oceupies the let na you onter, the tnotes easily recognised by the large banner. The other deconations are tasty and elegant, and two pastoral seenee worked on cloth ntirac many, Here geatlemen's furnishing qoods and an aportment of toys will be found.
    divided into four alooves to reprean the left, 1 a Sensons, eacb contaning articlen enited to it It tnnde between the Albambra and the Cocklof ortalised by the authors of

    On the oppoeite side, in the nortb-eset eorser, is lb attrietlive etsmd of the Fire Department, its mase of

[^2]:    A Hzart that can Fezl for Another.-

     "Aye," geld tue farmer, "Iuty bim as geta her'll esarve it.
    Tuge nation that will at last destioy all nationo-Extermi-nation,

[^3]:

[^4]:    Soldiers, Attention!

    ## Pain Divease and Expozure, with a hot climate muddy woter and had diet, will se unnvoidahle; hut

     and $$ 100$ per box or pot. 6
    Shulta' Onguent.-Warranted to produce a ful
     Sent, postpakd, for 50 ceats. Address C. F. SHULTS Troy, N. $\mathbf{x}$.

    250 Rare Receipts.
    SBVENTEEN ELLCTROTXPE ENGRAVINGS, Tells What to Do, And How to Do

[^5]:    s and incidialio in the variuls hepalimenfo-mex lage bó.

[^6]:    t98.470 No. Cos BROADWAX, X. Y.

[^7]:    Whiskers! Whiskers ! MY ONGUENT will force them to groy on the money refunded. Price 25 ceats, or aix poefagee for $31, y$ mail. Addreas. 31, ty mail. Address A. JAGGERS, CalAown, in.

[^8]:    "I always do eo," wae the reply,
    "It is past my comprehension," said the host; "however, I shall keep a eharp lookout on the inmates, and see if 1 cannot deteot the robani-pro. viding he is in the house. In the mentime say viaing he is ing ; if ths money is not recovered in a fortnight I will pay you all you have lost." . "You, Heinrieh Casper!" exclaimed the dro&s, in eurprise, as he regarded the landlord sumpiciously.
    "I've
    "I've said so, and I'IL keep my word," said Cer-
    per. "But why ehould you do so ?" asked the drover. "To sav5 the reputation of my house," replisd the landlord.
    "Very well," was the rejoinder. "I hope you the may discover the' rohher, for your anke as wsll as my own."
    The drover left the house, half suspecting the landlord of the Black Boar for the robber hionself, a augpioion he eubsequently imparted to his companions in trade, who, with one accord, agee with patroniss some doring their aojoum at the Black a slimil

    A month later eight of them mot on the same evening at the tavern of Heinrich Casper, ard he, not having discovered the thiel, and consequently not recovering the money atolen from the drover, paid that person one bundred guilders out of his savinge.
    The dir
    The drover took the money, and wss more firmly conninced with the robhery. They agreed to lay a trap for him that night after retiriog.
    After supper they went to the ropm to count their gold, Rndolph being prssent, and, as uutul, with his unwieldy pipe in his mouth and hand. The robhery was made known to him, admonishing hims to keep the affair a secret. Rudoiph was astonianed at ths divolosure, but he stoutly took the part of at ths disolosurs, but he stoutly took the part of could he found in Heldelherg."
    The gold lay in plles on the table hofore the men and ths process of counting began. Rudolph

[^9]:    $$ 75 \triangle$ MoNTH-A gents whuted to sell geving

[^10]:    4. Treasury Buitding. 5. Scene in Exchange Place. 6. Miser. 7. The Man that Lost. 8. "Burst."

    BROKERS, THE RUSH ON THE THEASURY DEPARTMENT FOR GOLD CERIIFICATES,-SEE PAGE 103.

[^11]:    Conjaring 1 - Coutainigg full directions for perforning 130 of the mont Wonderful and Astounding Feats of Hoeou Poces, Magle, Sjelght-of Hand Ven.

    $$ 75$ U MONTH.-Agonts wanted to vell 8 swing Mfachnes sold, or employ Agents who will work for

[^12]:    "Albam Comg,"-Something Now, Gay sud

    The " Star" No Chimney Brrner

[^13]:    Cephalonle, turee nr four; and other islands, onte.
    We have heard mach of the power of [^14]:

     ELOE PREBMNTATION BWORDS.

    Logal Tondor, Stationory, MMngio an

[^15]:    A westen paper strikes the names of two

[^16]:

[^17]:    winced not a little under the process, hat snbmitted to it for the nonce. Victor spont the money thus getorted as freely as if its source lied heen inexhanatible, like a as if its source lied heen inexhanatible, like a never-failing water spring. He foll into the ways never-failing water spring. He foll into lacility of of the New York profligates with the faily of the New York prouggates wind fand hecame a general favorite with them; for while he had money he was silvays without a "treat the orowd," and when he was wither cent never dreamed of asking them for one, Gamblers, pugilists and the "fancy" delighted in him, for he could fight and play, and gain and lose with perfect samgryoid and goodnature. He reyclled with the fastest women, het on the fastest horses, a carcer of unremitted dissipntion. he a carcer of unremitted dissipation. lrink himself to death, hut when he found that he swallowed with impunity that liquid fire called "Jersey lightning," as if he were as solamander, and preferred this fiaming drink as an ordinary beverage to toa and coffce, he rclinquighed all oontidence in this slayer of thousands, and ceat about him for quicker means to rid himeelf of tha insatiable young vampiro that was fceding apon, his life.
    "IF I
    I
    "If I must be ruined," said Grimgrip to himself, "I will not allow, nather to revel in the. plcasure of destroying me, hut, Like a spendthritt, enjoy the wasting of my own substance." Knowing a powerfol and desperate fello John McKill, who had already committed more. than one homicide with impnnity, Grimgrip asborned the murderous hally to rid him of the incubas that hroke his rest and empticd his money bags. As he gave the ruffian a hardsome earneet, and promised him a maniticent rewasd whion was worlk was done, the proposed assassination was undertaken withont hesifetion or reluctance, and with a cold-blooded and deliberate determination

[^18]:

    Boanty--Ennts White Iiquid Enam-

     ploxion Hilech is quition natura, mitbent injury to the

[^19]:    Swords, Sashes, Belts,

[^20]:    AMERICAIN
    Tho only cnamelied "Tarn-ovar", Collisr made in "Choker." to O. H. WEETITNG, es Pine strect, N. X and recive it by retura nuili

    Amorican, Swiss and English Watches n bupcrior ntyles and quality of cusce. Ordera from the Trudto or Army, (largo or kmail) promptly and foth-

[^21]:    Dr. Briggs's Golden Onguent.

    Grinning for tho Presidoney, and which Seut to any address on receipt of 15 ceath OASSO $V$. BEA
    Bozenc,

[^22]:    Photograph Cards for Contlomen.
    Samples arid Cstalognea sent for 25 cents. Enclose on

[^23]:    If you wart a First-Rate Glee Book

     OLIVER DIFsON $&$ CO, Pubuehors,
    277 Wathington street, Bostoa

[^24]:

[^25]:    First-class stories will he read promptly, and

     leugth wit meet with atteution.
     tent ty mall at the rater of printed master. If weot hy mail, letar poatige nimet be paid. Packaces over four ouncer thoud bo oent ty crpros.
    When purtios mibh Miss. reth stanee mut bo encloved for toe foul nmonnt contibe Lorsa of thort articles, poemes, ote, will do well to kecep a copy, we the ehespeet courre.

[^26]:    $A$ mencronutu colotk has heen invented and in A Rapio Imoline,-Love at first right.

[^27]:    15th Army Corps.
    SHRRMAN'S CAMPAIGN IN GEORGIA-THE 15TH AND 17TH ARMY CORPS ATTACKING THK REBRL POSITI

    Just mysiuck. We know exactly how many there arel al ways writing lor somsolve with abusing the aald doe ut the oddest finstance I verer knew was oue of thoee pecimons of whioh so many flooked to the Calfiorning mines in 1850, and who ware known there as "Plkes," whelhor thoy came from Misoourl or noth it hod been

     The truth was Mrr. Pike mas lazy, vory lazy, ond would sooner etarve thas work at any time. He woe frstrate at playing pokor, bluff or seven-up, and was a master-band at plasing the adate, be band at plsying the addes, bedng thoroughity poated in all dancing.tueses, Oue day, when thinge looked amaz-$\qquad$
     unemplagod man.
    "You play the fiadte, dou't you?" he eaila,
    "Why, haere's a little party abont halif a milio helow

    ## own and play

    "Cam't go," said Mrr. Pike.
    "Can't go!" gaid Mrr. Plike. that Pitke hidn't had a ohance to make to much in a month heforo; "why can't you "
    "Bolaso Icarn"t-that's tho rea to gitt an invitatlow to a party, and-not go."I

    I once bavis as apeciman itko gentut on the whart
    rancivco, who hid come o Franolyco, who hua comio from Mbeourl, and mas with open-mouthed wond uhip for tho frat tirse, heen ralning in the nigh her ealls wore fteken out langing Mike great buasa to yords, Mri. Pike looked for mevoral minntes, and turning to me, ho aild: Thant them free olfen hea 'bont them frelghta the dhipe bring, hat I never till now how they brotgh Now I see they fotch them ere bagol Anothor gonite man of th atyle, making his firit visi wharves to sue maritime o wharres to ere maritine
    fastened hise attentiou ou
    , menee enchor lyigg aihor romark was:
    that ere bjg piok ont to fardere big piok ons to fiey mout a bir thoy coula mine $l^{\prime \prime}$

    A Flase of Liobtin A flesh of Hghtning onc Near the city of Pas, in stands a mountain, whts natives call Telemill. natives call TeleminL, mountain a fish of Bghtoln mountain a fiseh of beghtoln chargling Iteelf, toreced e era tas girde, which, filling eldo of a hll, dliscovered immenso quantty $\alpha$ gold immenso quantity $\alpha$ gold moute, naya Dilon, that ga eome time nold at Raz even as eight pieces of elght por
    A treasure of thats lidid woul At treasure of thas chiad woul
    to promise inoxhauetule to promise haxhawetble
    to the proprietore of the to the prit the part wheac taln crag was bevered is so covered with anow rud foe covcred with anow sud fice
    the whole year that, the? the whole year tat, never heen able to derl other hament thas that first instance. fras instance.
    IT is said that the pi away from the buochor t he heard that preveation to than cure.

[^28]:    IVORY JREWELLRY.
    BROOCHES, EAR RINGS AND SLEEVE BUTTONS
     engravod with grecian bi
    by mall on receltof price.
    IVOBY combs.
     NS...............
     TEEA BOWXN MITCROGCOPE,

[^29]:    -

[^30]:    The Beireas.

     domi rawlins, sis Broadway, N. Y

[^31]:
    C. S. Fea, MK. D., Baltimore, 36 years

