PREFACE.

This little work is intended to assist beginners in the Chinese spoken language. The request has often been made to me, to prepare a simple work in the form of a Vocabulary, as being a want felt by learners. The attempt is here made to supply this want, and to provide a manual which may be suitable for those, who wish to acquire the common phrases of conversation, without attempting to unravel the more subtle intricacies of the language.

In the first part of the work the standard Mandarin orthography has been used. It is found in a printed form in the Wu fang yuen yin 五方元音, a compact and useful native dictionary which may be advantageously consulted for the sounds of words. Farther on, (57th page) I have adopted the peculiarities of the Peking dialect,—which are given with great fulness in Mr. Wade's recent and valuable work "The book of Experiments."

In the Appendix will be found the laws of the Peking dialect in regard to tones, which will be of assistance to those who may be perplexed by incongruities, which are here reduced to something like a system.

All who desire to become really good speakers in this language should study the tones. The knowledge of this peculiarity in Chinese words, lends great distinctness to what is said, and the dryness of the study is much more than compensated, by the pleasure found in being readily understood. The difficulty experienced in distinguishing and learning the tones is much less than is generally supposed.

The tones are marked in this work chiefly according to the standard five-tone system, or that now prevailing at Nanking, and in the northern part of Kiang-su and Ngan-hwei. Such is the system adhered to in the native Mandarin dictionary mentioned above, and by Premare, Morrison, Medhurst, and other authors.

APPENDIX.

- I. Tones of the Peking dialect.
- II. Tones of Nanking dialect.
- III. Tones at Chefoo.

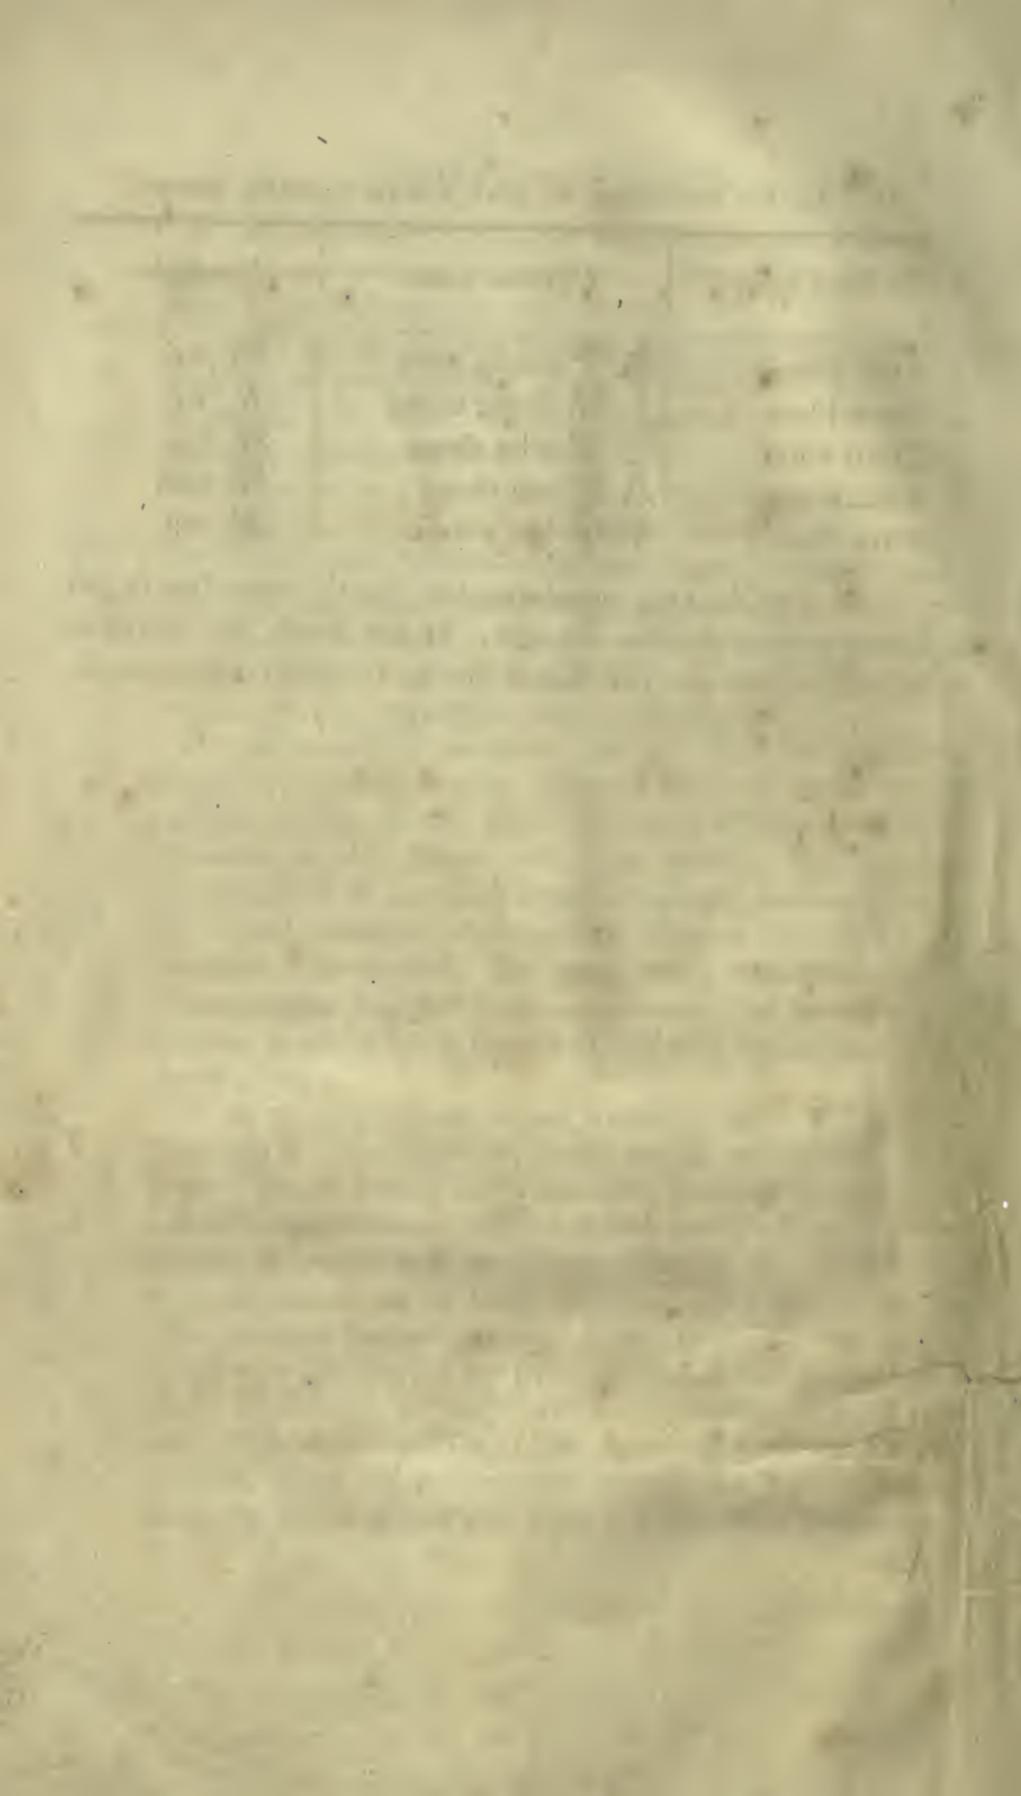

Alphabet and Tone marks.

1. The five vowels i, e, a, o, u, when they are not followed by a final n or ng, have the Italian sound. They are the vowels contained in the words fee, fay, papa, foe, too.
2. The vowels i, (e), when followed by n or ng, are pronounced as the vowels in fin, and fun. But after i and y, the vowel e is to be sounded as e in sent. A, o, u, when n and ng follow are unaffected by that circumstance.
3. The vowel i is heard like e, in middle, tassel, ancle.
4. The vowel ü is heard like u, in the French words tu, une.
5. The vowel è is heard as the first e, in there, or as ea in bear.
6. The mute and sibilant consonants k, t, p, f, s, sh, ch, are pronounced as in English. Though sometimes a little softened in northern dialects, so as to be heard like g, d, b, etc, this need not be noticed in expressing their proper orthography.
7. An inverted comma above the line follows the consonants k, t, p, ts, ch, when they are aspirated. In such cases a strong guttural aspirate closely follows the sound of these consonants. Pronounce the word Tahiti without the vowel a. This might be expressed by T'iti, according to the orthography now explained.
8. In the mandarin of the north and the west, the initials h and s coincide before i and ü. The sound formed by this union may be denominated a sibilant h, or an aspirated s, and the spelling hs has been proposed for it, but it will probably become sh in the course of years.
9. In the same dialects, ts and k coincide before the same vowels i and ü. The sound thus formed may be written k, ts, or ch. It is not plainly defined, and is constantly hovering between these various phonetic values. After a further period of change, it will probably determine itself finally into a distinct ch. Every word is pronounced evenly, or with a rising or falling inflection of the voice, or with a double inflection. It may be pitched high or low, according to the usage of any particular dialect, and be enunciated quickly or slowly. All words in the language are arranged in four or five large groups, and one of these tones or inflections is attached to each. Thus the great class to which each word belongs is known, by the intonation with which it is habitually pronounced.

10. The five tone-classes are marked in the following manner:

Tone class.	Chinese name.	Examples.
First tone.	上平 shang p'ing	烏 wu
Second tone.	上聲 shang sheng	五 'wu
Third tone.	去聲 c'hü sheng	務 wu'
Fourth tone.	入聲 juh sheng	屋 wuh
Fifth tone.	下平 hia p'ing	無 .wu

* * * For Nanking mandarin, the fourth tone-class or juh sheng is marked with a final h. In the North, the words of this tone-class are distributed among the other tone classes, and the number of tones is then four.

APPENDIX I.

Tones of the Peking dialect.

1. Words in the first tone class, 上平 shang p'ing, take the upper quick falling inflection; by the falling inflection being meant the tone of commands in English. But this becomes the upper even monotone, in combination with another word following. If a word of this class stands last without the accent, it assumes the lower quick even monotone, as in 外邊 wai' ,pien, outside.

2. Words in the second tone class, 上聲 shang sheng, take the lower quick or slow rising inflection. The rising inflection is in English the tone of questions. When two words of this class are placed together, the former takes the upper quick rising inflection, as in 洗臉 'si 'lien, wash the face.

3. Words in the third tone class, 去聲 c'hü sheng, take the lower quick falling inflection, or occasionally the lower slow falling circumflex, which first falls and afterwards rises. When two words of this class are placed together, the last is pitched high, and becomes the upper quick falling inflection.

4. Words in the fifth class, 下平 hia p'ing, take the upper quick rising inflection, or occasionally the upper quick rising circumflex, which is a double inflection, first rising and then falling.

5. Words belonging primarily to the fourth tone class, 入聲 juh sheng, are, in the spoken dialect, distributed among the other tone-classes in the following manner:—

Old tone-class.	Initial letter.	Peking tone-class.
Upper juh sheng.	k, t, p, s. ts, ch, h, w, y.	Upper p'ing ,sheng 上平
Lower juh sheng.	k, t, p, s. ts, ch, h.	Lower p'ing sheng 下平
Lower juh sheng.	l, m, n. j, w, y.	去聲 c'hü sheng.

This is the general law, but the exceptions are very numerous, and they admit, for the most part, of reduction to a few subordinate laws, which here follow, numbered 6 to 9.

6. Many upper juh sheng words, principally substantives, with the initials k, t, etc. and accustomed to be pronounced alone, are heard in the second tone or shang sheng,* e. g. 血 'hie, blood; 百 'pai, a hundred; 鐵 't'ieh, iron; 尺 'c'hi, a foot; 北 'pei, north; 塔 't'a, a pagoda; 腳 'chiau, foot; 筆 'pi, pencil. Many words whose usual tone is the first, take 上聲 shang sheng for a special sense, as 曲, c'hü, crooked, but 'c'hü, a song.

7. Words taken from the book language, and not used to be pronounced singly, or not themselves thoroughly colloquial, prefer the third tone or 去聲 c'hü sheng; e. g. 特 t'e, purposely; 確 c'hiüe, true; 朔 so, new moon; 設 shè, to place; 客 k'e, a guest; When a word has the first tone for a common colloquial sense, as 摆, ko, to place, it often prefers 去聲 c'hü sheng, for another sense it may bear in combination, as 躁 摆, tan ko', to remain anywhere for sometime.

8. Certain syllables have a preference for the fifth tone, or

* Words needing to be pronounced singly would naturally adopt the second tone, which, in Peking, is enunciated with particular distinctness.

下平 hia p'ing, e. g. chu, chi, ch'i, fu, ko, tse, te, 福 fu, happiness; 得 teh, to obtain, etc.

9. The reading tone of many juh sheng words, which obey the preceding laws, is 去聲 c'hü sheng; and this is especially true of those that are colloquially attached to the first and fifth tone classes; all such, when used in poetry, are read with the intonation of c'hü sheng. In poetry, juh sheng words are all transferred to c'hü sheng, except a few found in shang sheng.

10. Words arrange themselves in groups of two, three and four, regulated by accent. The accent falls usually on the last word in a combination of two; on the second and fourth in a combination of four; and on the first and last in a combination of three. But when, as often occurs, two sounds are so closely combined as to become one dissyllabic word, the accent is on the first; e. g. 甚麼 .shen ,mo, what? 我們 'wo ,men, we.

11. When the accent is on the first of two sounds forming a dissyllabic word, or the one significant and the other enclitic, the last loses its proper tone, and assumes that of 上平 shang p'ing, the first tone class. This is the reason that the proper tone of the following, among many more common words, viz. 着 .cho, .chau, it is so; 兒 .ri, son; 門 .men, door; 頭 .t'eu, head; 磨 'mo, interrogative particle, 呢 .ni, interrogative particle, 子 'tsi, son; 情 .t'sing, thing; 咯 lo, final particle; 爺 ye, father; 來 .lai, come; 老 'lau, old; 個 ko', a particle, is in the Peking dialect habitually exchanged for 上平 shang p'ing, in certain familiar combinations; e. g.

留着 .lieu ,cho, leave it there.

衙門 .ya ,men, mandarin office.

裏頭 'li ,t'eu, within.

甚麼 .shen ,mo, what.

老子 'lau ,tsi, father.

事情 shii' ,t'sing, thing.

老爺回來 'lau ,ye, aged sir; a common title of address to man-
[darins.]

你老 'ni ,lau, you my old friend.

這個 che' ,ko, this.

12. The initials k, t, p, ch, and ts, are always aspirated in the fifth tone-class, except when the words to which they belong are derived from 入聲 juh sheng.

13. The presence of the initials l, m, n, r, j, in the first tone-class, is limited to words which are exclusively colloquial, or affected in tone by the particular position of the accent, as explained in law 12.

14. The suffix 兒 .ri, attached to the substantives and other words very extensively in the north, is frequently absorbed into the word to which it is attached. The final letters n, ng, and the vowels are then exchanged for r, while the tone of the word is kept and that of the suffix is lost.

Normal form.	Colloquial form.	Observations.

15. The words — i, one, and 不 pu, not, vary their tone according to their position in the collocation of words to which they belong. Before a word in 去聲 c'hü sheng they prefer hia p'ing. Before shang p'ing, shang sheng, or hia p'ing, they take the c'hü sheng intonation, and when standing last they are heard in the first tone, e. g. 不是 .pu shi', it is not so; 不來 pu' .lai, he did not come; 初一 ,c'hu ,i, the first day of the month.

Observations.

These laws serve for Tientsin as well as Peking, except that the first tone-class receives the lower slow even tone, and the third or c'ü sheng, the upper quick falling inflection.

In the distribution of the juh sheng words among the other tone-classes, there is little difference between the usage of Peking and Tientsin.

The student is recommended to verify these fifteen laws, with the aid of a native and Mr. Wade's very useful Peking syllabary. The tones there assigned to juh sheng words will be found to be, in many instances, irregular and uncertain. This is on account of the transition state of these words. Thus, 極, 夕, 習, chi, si, si, belonging to 下入 hia juh, should be in 下平 hia p'ing by law 5. But they are placed in the syllabary under 上平 shang p'ing. A Pekinese whom I consulted transferred them at once to 下平 hia p'ing. In such cases, the difference of authorities indicates that a transition is taken place, and the law of change tells us which sound will ultimately prevail.

I am happy here to take the opportunity of referring to assistance, which I derived from suggestions by Mr. William Stronach in regard to some of the preceding laws.

II.

Tones of the Nanking dialect.

1. Words in the first tone class take for their distinctive intonation, the lower slow monotone, or sometimes the lower slow falling inflection, which consists of a slide of the voice downwards.

2. Words in the second tone class, 上聲 shang sheng, take the lower slow rising inflection, or to express the thing differently, in enunciating them the voice slides upwards.

3. Words in the class known as 去聲 c'ü sheng, take the quick falling inflection.

4. Words in the fourth class, or 入聲 juh sheng, are short in time.

5. Words in the fifth class, or 下平 hia p'ing, take the upper quick rising inflection.

III.

Tones at Chefoo (Fuh-shan hien) (Yen-t'ai).

1. Words in 上平 shang p'ing, the first tone take the lower slow rising inflection.
2. Words in the second tone-class 上聲 shang sheng, take the upper quick rising inflection.
3. The third class 去聲 c'hü sheng, takes the upper quick falling inflection.
4. The class called 下平 hia p'ing, takes for its intonation the lower quick falling inflection.
5. Words of the fourth class or juh sheng are distributed principally among the second and fifth classes; those of the upper division, or 上入 shang juh, preferring shang sheng, while such as are in the lower division, 下入 hia juh, are usually found in 下平 hia p'ing.
