New Position Announcement

University of Michigan

Founded in 1838, the University Library is the university's main library and is housed in 12 buildings, with more than 20 libraries. The University of Michigan Library ranks as the fourth largest research library in the United States.

The original home of the JSTOR database, the University of Michigan contains about 750,000 digitized pages from the entire pre-1990 backfile of ten journals of history and economics. In December 2004, the University of Michigan announced a book digitization program in collaboration with Google (known as Michigan Digitization Project), which is both revolutionary and controversial.
