

Anti-Slavery Office,
New York, 15 Feb., 1864.

My Dear Garrison,

I feel a strong desire to go on to your Reception of Thompson, but fear it will be impossible, or at least very inconvenient, to do so. I am anxious that he should have some sort of reception here, and can't help hoping that the example of Boston may set our Loyal Leaguers at work for the accomplishment of that result. Meanwhile I hope he will not ^{at present} accept the application of any individual or association to come here merely as a lecturer. It would be a pity to have him make his first appearance here under any other than the right auspices. Let the example of Boston have time to work. If your Reception goes off well, I think something can be done here.

I suppose Mr. Thompson has letters of commendation from Bright, Cobden and others of our English friends, to conspicuous Union men here, and I want them to have an opportunity to honor him if they will.

Pray remember me very cordially to Mr. Thompson, and assure him of the gratification I feel in view of his safe arrival in our country.
My kindest regards, dear Garrison, to your wife, of whose convalescence I hear with heartfelt satisfaction.

Yours, faithfully,

Oliver Johnson
