気象記念日

六月一日の気象記念日はまだ一般の人々によく知られていないが、明治八年六月一日に、中央気象台の前身、東京気象台が創設されたことに由来している。

もっとも、東京気象台というのは自称で、内務省の地理課気象掛というのが正規のもので、気象台という名が公に使われるようになったのは明治二十三年に「気象台測候所條令」が発布されてからである。

気象台は創設以後、着々と整備、拡充され、地方に於ける測候所も、府県所属のものと、地理局附属のものと二本立で、その数を増し、明治十六年二月からは、各地の気象電報をあつめて、毎日きまって天気図が作られはじめ、この年の五月二十六日に本邦最初の「暴風警報」が発せられている。一般に天気予報が発表されるようになったのは、明治二十五年六月十五日が最初で、大正十三年三月、ラジオ放送開始と同時に一般向の気象通報が初めて電波にのったのである。

中央気象台を管轄している官庁は創立当時は内務省であったが、その後明治二十八年に文部省に移り、昭和十八年、運輸通信省が新設されるに及び、文部省より移管され、更に昭和二十年五月、運輸省と逓信省の分離に伴い、運輸省によって管轄されることになり現在に及んでいる。

ことしは気象台創設から七十五周年に当り、その記念事業としての日本橋三越に於ての「気象と災害展」が開かれる。次に歴代台長の氏名及年史をあげる。

For YOMIURI

Frankly Speaking.....

by Hessell Tiltman.

The result of Japan's Upper House election has been variously interpreted as a victory for Premier Shigeru Yoshida, for the Socialists and other Opposition groups - and for the Occupation. Much will be said and written on that subject during coming weeks.

But irrespective of the political results, Japan's sixth postwar election served to underline the fact that the election law under which the campaign was fought not only runs counter to the freedoms guaranteed in this country's democratic Constitution, but heavily favors the "ins" by making it extremely difficult for a new and unknown candidate - not backed by a "machine" or oyabun or "dirty money" - to win a seat in the Diet.

Under the law now in force, a candidate is not permitted to begin his or her campaign until thirty days before voting day. (In the United States and Great Britain, by comparison, candidates often "nurse" their constituency for months or even years before the election takes place. Senator Robert Taft, for instance, made a speech-making tour throughout Ohio, the State he represents in the American Senate, eight months before voters go to the polls in November).

A candidate in Japan is not permitted, under the law, to conduct a house-to-house canvass for votes; he may visit relatives and intimate friends only. (In Britain, the mother of democracy, house-to-house canvassing, together with public meetings, forms the backbone of all electioneering, and candidates or their supporters make a point of trying to call at least once on every voter in the constituency).

A candidate, under Japan's law, is forbidden to accept any luncheon or dinner invitation extended to him by any civic group wishing to hear his views. (In the United States and Britain, candidates welcome such invitations as a means of making themselves and their policies known).

A candidate, in Japan, is not permitted to take part in or help promote any parades or demonstrations connected with his campaign. (No such restriction exists or has ever existed in either the United States or Britain. If it did exist in the United States, then those colorful Presidential swings across America at election time could not take place).

A candidate, in Japan, may place only one advertisement in newspapers, or two if he happens to be running on the national constituency ticket. Regulations govern his use of handbills and posters, whichare heavily restricted. (In Britain, a parliamentary candidate is permitted by law to spend during an election campaign a set sum per voter. This amount, which must not be exceeded, may be spent in any way the candidate decides except for the hire of cars to take voters to the poll).

In Japan, if a candidate manages, despite all these comic-opera restrictions, to win an election, the law prohibits any person from congratulating him or otherwise celebrating his success. (The "victory rallies" held in Britain and America to celebrate election successes would thus in Japan be illegal, and their sponsors would be prosecuted).

C O P Y

Copy for Election File

In Japanese elections, not only candidates but newspaper editors have their troubles. The election law stringently curbs the right of newspapers to support or attack candidates--something every newspaper in the United States or Britain does every day during an election campaign.

True, the election law has in this respect been revised and the press was last week permitted to take sides. But editors are still hamstrung by a restriction on any comment which could be held as "hindering the fairness of the elections" or constitute "distortion of fact." (Who is to be the judge of what is "unfair" or "distortion"? Bureaucrats who owe their jobs to the party in power?)

The net result of this formidable list of prohibitions, which reads as though some genius had sat down and written into the law every conceivable method of handicapping any candidate who is not a party hack, is that many Japanese electors know nothing about the candidate they vote for.

A check which I made in last week's election in a typical Tokyo suburban constituency revealed that many electors could not name one of the eighteen candidates running. Some voted for a certain Liberal because he announced, on the official list of candidates delivered to all households, that he was pro-American; several women informed me they voted for a Democratic party woman candidate because "women should vote for women"; a cook voted for a candidate who was in the hotel business "because he might help bring in more tourists and that would be good for cooks"! Few voters with whom I talked, except trade unionists and workers, knew anything about the politics or policies of the candidates for whom they voted.

The defects in Japan's election law cannot be blamed on the Occupation authorities. They were "made in Japan" - and written into the law by Japanese. General MacArthur's headquarters has throughout taken the view that the law was a matter for the Japanese and, despite the undemocratic restrictions on candidates, has refused to interfere. If the Japanese people want to be democratic, here is a matter that should be corrected before the next election.

The present law was enacted for a good, honest, purpose. Its intention was to break, or at least curb, the power of the political "bosses" and to ensure fair play for all candidates. It has not fulfilled that purpose. It has proved self-defeating. It should be drastically revised.

g) As to the election of members of Board of Education of To, Do, Fu, prefecture, city, town, or village and head man of a town or village, a system under which the electors may recommend the candidates with a joint signature shall be abolished.

h) The requirements and procedures for carrying up a person as an elected person, which have resulted from the disqualification of a person elected or from a vacancy happened in the membership of the House of Representatives, the House of Councillors or an assembly of a local body, shall be servized (Art. 97, 112 and 115 of the Law).

i) As to the election campaign;

(1) The house-to-house visits made by a candidate can be authorized within a certain limits (Art. 138 of the Law).

(2) The election campaign by means of speeches shall in principle be free.

(3) The scope of election campaign by means of literatures shall be enlarged. (Art. 142 and 144 of the Law)

(4) The freedom of news and comment of newspapers and magazines concerning the election shall be established. (Art. 148 of the Law)

(5) The scope of public management of election campaign shall be enlarged. (Art. 149-152, 161 and 167 of the Law)

j) The limit of amount of expenses concerning election campaign shall be about 2 or 2.5 times as much as the old one. (Art. 194 and 195 of the Law, and the Cabinet Order concerning the Expenses for the Election Campaign)

III. Outline of the Public Office Election Law.

1) General Provisions

There are provided the aims of the Public Office Election Law (Art. 1 of the Law), the scope of the elections to which the Public Office Election Law shall apply (Art. 2 of the Law), and the function of Election Administration Commissions (Art. 5 and 6 of the Law).

2) Electors.

a) Any Japanese national who is twenty years of age or over, and has lived for three (3) consecutive months (heretofore for six months) within the area of a city, town, or village, shall have the right to vote in the election of assembly men, chief, or members of boards of education of the city, town, or village and of the To, Do, Fu, or prefecture to which the city, town, or village belongs. (Para. 2, Art. 5 of the Law)

b) In order to have the right to vote in the election for the members of the House of Representatives and the House of Councillors, the Japanese national is merely required to be twenty years of age or over, and the domicile requirements mentioned in Paragraph 2, Article 9 of the Law are not required. (Para. 1, Art. 9 of the Law). However, in order to be registered in the electors' list, he or she shall in principle have a domicile in the area of the city, town, or village for three consecutive months or more, consequently he or she shall, in connection with the exercise of the right to vote, have the same requisite as mentioned in a) above.

c) As the exceptions to a) and b) above, the person who has been compelled to remove his or her domicile into the area of another city, town or village due to a fire, earthquake or other accidents, and an oversea repatriate may exercise the voting right, even though the length of his or her residence in the area of the aforementioned city, town or village does not reach three months by the day of the election concerned. (Para. 3, Art. 9, Para. 2, Art. 26, and Art. 270 of the Law and Art. 1 of the Ordinance).

d) It is stipulated in the Law that the Koreans and Formosans residing in Japan shall have no right to vote. (Para. 2, Supplementary Provisions of the Law)

e) No person who has the voting right shall exercise the voting right, unless he or she has not been registered in the electors' lists. (Art. 42 of the Law) The electors' lists are classified into the basic electors' list, the basic electors' list for mariners, and the supplementary electors' list.

f) The basic electors' lists shall annually be prepared as of the fifteenth of September. The basic electors' list for mariners is a special electors' list in which mariners who have not a certain residence on land be registered, and this electors' list shall be used only in the election of the Diet members; it is not used in the election of assembly-men, chiefs and members of boards of education of local public bodies. (Art. 20 and 21 of the Law)

g) The supplementary electors' list shall be prepared at any time when the election is to be held. In this list are registered the person who has not been registered in the basic electors' list despite his having the voting right, the person who has come to be eligible for the registration in the electors' lists by fulfilling the age and comicile requirements after the preparation of the basic electors' list, and others. (Art. 26 of the Law)

h) In order to be registered in the supplementary electors' list, the elector shall, by himself or by his proxy, request for the registration. (Para. 1, Art. 26 of the Law) The period of the request shall, in principle, be fixed by the Election

Administration Commission (Para. 3, Art. 27 of the Law), but as to the supplementary electors' list for the ordinary election of the members of House of Councillors of June 1950, the period of the request for the registration is particularly provided for in the Laws and Ordinances to be from the fifth of May to the fourteenth of May.(Art. 16 of the Enforcement Law, the Cabinet Order concerning the Electors' Lists)

i) The basic electors' list for mariners is not generally prepared at the time when the election is to be held, but it shall particularly be prepared when the ordinary election of the members of House of Councillors of June 1950 is to be held. (Art. 17 of the Enforcement Law, the Cabinet Order concerning the Electors' Lists.)

j) With regard to the method of preparation and others of the electors' lists, the details are provided for in Chapter IV of the Law and Chapter III of the Ordinance.

3) Districts with respect to Elections.

a) Election District.

(1) The members of the House of Representatives are elected from 117 election districts and the fixed number of members of the House of Representatives in an election district ranges from 3 to 5. (Appendix No. 1 of the Law)

(2) The members of the House of Councillors are classified into two kinds; those who are elected from the national constituency (100 persons) and those who are elected from To, Do, Fu and prefectural constituencies (150 persons. The fixed number of those in a constituency is from 2 to 8 persons) (Para. 2, Art. 12 and Art. 14 of the Law)

(3) The members of the assemblies of To, Do, Fu and prefectures shall, in principle, be elected from the electoral districts of counties (gun) and cities. (Para. 1 and 2, Art. 15 of the Law)

(4) The members of the assemblies of big five cities (Osaka, Kyoto, Nagoya, Yokohama and Kobe) shall be elected from the electoral districts of wards. (Proviso of Para. 5, Art. 15 of the Law)

(5) With regard to the election of members of assemblies of the city, town or village, the electoral district may be set up by by-laws. (Para 5, Art. 15 of the Law)

(6) In the case of the election of members of boards of education, no electoral district is ~~not~~ set up. (Para. 5, Art. 12 of the Law)

b) Polling Districts.

There are approximately 40,000 (4 places in everage for a city, town, or village) polling places in Japan and they are common to every election without exception. (Art. 17 of the Law)

c) Ballot-counting Districts.

The ballot-counting district shall in principle be the same as the district of a city, town or village in every election. (Art. 18 of the Law) designated by the election administration commission of To, Do, Fu and prefectures (a hospital accommodated with about 50 or more beds is scheduled to be designated), criminal defendants and suspects detained in a prison and others have come to be granted with an absentee-voting right at the places where they actually are. (Para. 2, Art. 55 and Art. 59 of the Ordinance)

(c) The method of requesting the ballot for absentee voting and of submitting the certificate of the causes has come to be simplified. (Para. 4 and 5, Art. 50, and Art. 52 of the Ordinance)

(d) The mariners may be delivered the ballot at a port of call nearby (heretofore they have been requested by all means to get the ballot from a city, town or village to which they belonged) by showing mariner's pocket lodgers with the certificate of registration, and may vote. (Art. 51 and 54 of the Ordinance)

e) Voting by Proxy.

(1) The elector shall, in principle, inscribe in person on his ballot the full name of one candidate for public office in the election concerned and vote (Art. 46 of the Law), but the elector who is unable to inscribe by himself the name of the candidate on account of his physical inability or illiteracy may have a proxy cast vote. (Art. 48 of the Law, Para. 3, Art. 56, Para. 3, Art. 57, Para. 2, Art. 58, and Para. 5, Art. 59 of the Ordinance)

(2) The voting by proxy for an illiterate which was authorized by the Public Office Election Law for the first time will enable the illiterate old women who seem to be considerably in Japan to exercise the voting right.

(3) When a person who had inscribed on the ballot for an elector has infringed upon the secrecy of voting, he shall be punished. (Art. 227 of the Law)

6) Counting of Ballots and Election Meeting.

a) The counting of ballots means to examine the ballots cast (Para. 2, Art. 66 of the Law), to decide whether the ballots cast are valid or invalid (Art. 67 and 68 of the Law), and to count the number of votes obtained by each candidate. As it is the most keen interest for the candidates that the ballot-counting business be conducted fairly, the ballot-counting witness selected and reported by a candidate (Art. 62 of the Law, Art. 69 of the Ordinance) shall participate in the ballot-counting business (Art. 67 and 70 of the Law), in addition to the ballot-counting overseers selected and appointed by the Election Administration Commission. (Art. 61 of the Law, Art. 66 and 67 of the Ordinance)

b) Election Meeting.

The decision of the persons elected is made at the election meetings, in which business the ballot-counting witnesses reported by candidates participate. (Art. 76, 83, 96, 97 and 98 of the Law) Besides, in an election of the members of the House of Councillors from the national constituency, an election sub-committee shall, between the ballot-counting and an election committee, be established in each To, Do, Fu or prefecture in order to take an interim count on the total number of votes obtained by each candidate. (Art. 75, 77, 78 and 80 etc. of the Law)

7) Candidate

No particular pre-election is held in order to nominate candidates. Anyone can be a candidate only by so notifying. However, he is requested to fulfill the following requirements;

(1) He shall be a person who has been eligible for election or who is to be eligible by the day of the election (the requirements for the eligibility are provided for in Art. 10 and 11 of the Law). But he is not requested to be registered in an electors' list.

(2) No public servants of the State or local public body shall, with special exceptions, be a candidate for public office during his term of office. (Art. 89 of the Law, art. 90 and Appendix II of the Ordinance)

(3) Except the case of election for the members of the assembly and headman of a town or village as well as for the members of the board of education of a town or village, the candidate shall deposit money and pay a share of the expenses required for the public management of the election (Art. 92 and 94 of the Law).

(4) Procedures for candidacy and forms of the written notification of candidacy, etc. are provided for in detail in Chapter IX of the Law, Chapter VIII of the Ordinance and Article 12 of the Regulation.

8) Persons Elected.

a) The person who has obtained the relative majority of valid ballots among the candidates shall be declared elected. However, the number of ballots obtained shall be more than that represented by a certain ratio. (Art. 95 of the Law)

b) When a person elected is disqualified for election, his success in election shall be invalidated. (Art. 99 of the Law)

c) When a person elected has committed any of the crimes on election and has been condemned to a punishment, or the general manager of the election campaign or the accountant has committed a crime and has been condemned to a punishment, the success in election shall be invalidated. (Art. 251 of the Law)

9) Election Campaign.

a) Due to the special circumstances in Japan, various restrictions are placed upon the election campaign, while matters to be conducted by candidates are authorized to be acted for by the State. (which are called the public management of election) Particulars of the restrictions vary according to the kinds of the public office to be elected and are provided for minutely in Chapter XIV of the Law and Chapter XI of the Ordinance.

b) Besides, the election compaign is understood to be a campaign aiming at the success of a specific individual candidate in an election, therefore, as a matter of fact, there are many points which can hardly be discriminated from the political activities conducted by political parties or other political organizations.

c) Election Campaign by means of speech.

(1) The election campaign by means of speeches is, in principle, free. There are neither such restrictions on the number of speeches nor any provisions requesting the presence of a candidate at the speech meeting on the street as those which existed in the general election of January last year for the members of the House of Representatives.

(2) However, as the exceptions to the above, a) the house-to-house visits and the similar deeds conducted by a person other than a candidate shall be strictly prohibited (Art. 138 of the Law), and b) an election speech held at a certain place shall be prohibited. (Art. 165 and 166 of the Law)

d) Election Campaign by means of Literature and Drawings.

(1) Different from the election campaign by means of speeches, the election campaign by means of literature and drawing is prohibited except those stipulated by the Law (Art. 142, 143, 144, 145 and 146 of the Law)

(2) Notwithstanding the restrictions mentioned in (1) above, the news and comment of newspapers and magazines are free. However, to put up newspapers and magazines for the election campaign at the street is prohibited except at the places designated by the Election Administration Commission. (Art. 148 of the Law. This provision was created anew.)

e) Restriction on the Means of Election Campaign.

(1) For the purpose of refraining from spending much money for the election campaign, the establishment of resting places (Art. 133 of the Law) and serving of foods and drinks (Art. 139 of the Law) are prohibited, and the number of election offices (Art. 133 of the Law) and the number of automobiles, loudspeakers and ships etc. to be used (Art. 141 of the Law) are restricted.

(2) No restrictions are placed on the number of electioneers. However, the election campaign by the National Public Service Personnel (Art. 102 of the National Public Service Law), the persons engaged in the election business and others (Art. 135 and 136 of the Law) and educators (Art. 137 of the Law) is prohibited or restricted respectively.

(3) The election campaign by the general public who are not requested by a candidate for so doing is placed under the following restrictions:

(a) With the exception of expenses necessary for the election campaign through telephone, no payment shall be made without a written consent of the accountant of a candidate. (Art. 187 of the Law)

(b) The election campaign by means of literature and drawings or the utilization of automobiles and loud-speakers shall be made within the limits of numbers authorized for a candidate.

f) Public Management of Election Campaign.

(1) Broadcast of political view and the broadcast of carreer. (Art. 150 and 151 of the Law, Chapter IV of the Execution Regulation)

(2) Holding a competitive speech meeting (Art. 152-160 of the Law)

(3) Public management of facilities and furnishings of an individual speech meeting (Art. 161-164 of the Law, Art. 112-125 of the Ordinance)

(4) Issue of the election official gazettes. (Art. 167-172 of the Law, Art. 126 of the Ordinance, Chapter V of the Execution Regulation)

(5) Putting up a notice of candidates classfied by there names and the parties to which they belong (Art. 173-175 of the Law).

(6) Newspaper advertisement (Art. 149 of the Law, Art. 9 of the Execution Regulation)

(7) Utilization of transportation facilities free of charge (Art. 176 of the Law, Transportation Ministry Notification No. 8/ )

(8) Facilities for fuels and papers (Art. 177 of the Law).

(9) Distribution of post cards free of change (Para. 1, Art. 142 of the Law, Postal Administration Ministry Notification No. 135 )

(10) Distribution of papers to be used for posters (Item 7, Para. 1, Art. 263 of the Law)

10) Expenses for Election Campaign.

a) The maximum amount of expenses authorized for the election campaign is restricted by the Law. (Art. 194 of the Law) This amount of expenses is about 2 or 2.5 times as much as that under the old laws (Cabinet Order concerning the expenses for the Election Campaign). However, in case the amount paid out has exceeded the limited amount, the success of the candidate in the election shall be invalid (Art. 198 of the Law)

b) Not only the amount of payments concerning election campaign is limited, but also the contributions concerning election campaign are placed under various prohibitions or restrictions (Art. 199-201 of the Law)

c) In order to open the income and payment concerning election campaign to the public, a candidate shall appoint an accountant, have him register all incomes and payments, and submit a report thereon to the Election Administration Commission. The procedures and forms thereof are provided for in Chapter XIV of the Law and chapter VI of the Executive Regulation, but these are generally the same as provided in the Law concerning Regulations of Political Fund and Expenditures.

d) When an accountant has neglected his obligation to submit reports and has been condemned to a punishment, the success in election of the person elected may become invalied. (Art. 212 and 251 of the Law)

e) In the case where a political party has paid out expenses or received contributions and other incomes in connection with the election campaign, the report thereon and the publication thereof are provided for in the Law concerning the Regulations of Political Fund and Expenditures.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

SUBJECT: Conference on Election Expenses

The attached draft amendments (Incls 1 and 2) were presented to Government Section for approval by YOSHIOKA Keiichi, Director of the National Election Administration Commission's Executive Office, on 28 March.

These amendments were necessitated by a revision in the budgetary allotments for election expenses in the forthcoming House of Councillors' June election as outlined in inclosure 3. As a result of these cuts a foreseen deficit of over ¥160,000,000 has been pared to about ¥19,500,000.

Tacit approval of covering the above ¥19,500,000 deficit by a transfer of funds from the ¥45,000,000 adjustment fund was given the NEAC by Mr. J. R. Mossler, Public Finance Branch, Economic and Scientific Section.

YOSHIOKA was informed by Captain Joseph that Government Section was willing to go along with any agreements on principle between the NEAC and ESS. However, it was pointed out to YOSHIOKA that the ¥45,000,000 adjustment fund had been earmarked for the June election which, if conducted on a Sunday as is anticipated, would require the use of nearly all that fund to offset added expenses. (If the election date should be set on a weekday, the fund would be free for utilization as mentioned above.) Therefore, additional economy measures are advisable to preclude a possible deficit of ¥15,000,000 to ¥20,000,000.

YOSHIOKA stated that all efforts would directed toward effecting additional savings where possible as advised.

The attached amendments will be presented for Diet action immediately.
