AGE NO BASIS FOR JUDGING TEACHERS

Many Most Efficient After Reaching 60, Declares Association.

"Age is no basis on which to judge the efficiency of a teacher," representatives of the Duluth Teachers' Association said at a meeting held last night in their request that the board of education reconsider their action in removing retiring teachers automatically after they reach the age of 60 years.

Communications from the Duluth Teachers' Retirement Fund association, the Duluth Teachers' association and principals, who were read at the meeting, and representatives appeared to promote the idea in person.

Prove Efficiency as Basis.

The action of the board, they maintained, would result in increased payment of salaries, and was unfair to those who are doing efficient work. Many of the best men in public schools are men who have passed the age of 60 and there is no reason to believe that a teacher cannot do his best at that age. The board's action is based on the efficiency rather than on the age of the instructor.

A resolution adopted unanimously by the retirement fund association, and presented to the board last night, reads in part: "It is in the best interests of the board of education to automatically retiring teachers at the age of 60 years is in the best interests of this organization and to the continued success of the schools of Duluth."

World Renowned Efficient Teachers.

The association would call for the attention of the board to the marked efficiency of various persons in the system who are over the age of retirement and would suggest that the retention of teachers in the system be based on the record of efficiency rather than on age.

The resolution was referred to the committee on retirement and was read by Director P. D. Knudt. The committee will confer with all organizations of the system and will make a report to the board at the next meeting.

TURK NATIONALISTS CRAFTY DIPLOMATS

By CONSTANTINE BLOW.

(Special Cable to The Duluth Herald and Chicago News, Copyright, 1922.)
Constantinople, Nov. 10.—(Via Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 11.)—The situation in Constantinople continues extremely critical. The Nationalists proved crafty diplomats and immediately after going through the form of depositing the sultan began taking over the administration of the city and the control of the customs. The police, hitherto under the control of the Allied authorities, ceased to obey orders, declaring that they would accept instructions only from Ankara. Tefik Pasha made his headquarters at the sabbah ports and assumed an attitude of complete independence, saying that "the Allied troops may remain here but have no right to take part in the administration of the city, which will be ruled exclusively according to the laws of the Nationalist assembly."

The capitulations, so far as they mean protection of foreigners, have been virtually abolished and the constitution is to be enforced strictly. The tension is great and unless the Turks adopt a different attitude and cease to infringe upon the Mudania convention the Allies will take measures to enforce their rights. The exodus of Greeks and Armenians continues.

The capitulations, so far as they mean protection of foreigners, have been virtually abolished and the constitution is to be enforced strictly.

WILL NEVER KNOW THE NUMBER LOST ON BOAT

(By the Associated Press.)
Shanghai, Nov. 11.—It seemed apparent today that the number of lives lost in the burning of the river steamer Ta Shing, near here, yesterday, could never be known.

HOME TOWN NEWS BRINGS BACK MEMORY

Albert Lea, Minn., Nov. 11.—An item in an Eastern newspaper under an Albert Lea dateline was the last which unlocked the memory of Carl Flakerbi, a victim of amnesia for the last four years, and finally his being reunited with his family.

According to the story told Flakerbi disappeared four years ago and was believed to have perished in a Texas flood. He left a wife and two children.

Flakerbi's loss of memory was due to injuries received when a boiler exploded on the tug on which he was working. He was taken to Johns Hopkins hospital for treatment and was later discharged as cured. From there he went to Philadelphia, where he was known as Carl Olson.

The news item this summer recalled a familiar name and he decided to visit Albert Lea to see if he could not "find" himself. When he got to Duluth, received a sentence of eight years in the state penitentiary at Joliet, according to word received today.

Whitten was arrested here, accompanied by...

CITY QUIET FRIDAY; SO IS COURT SATURDAY

Last night was the quietest in weeks as far as the police are concerned and today only a few offenders were arraigned. Court moved quickly today as it is a legal holiday and only criminal cases came before Judge Funk.

All restaurants and soft drink parlors on Michigan street and between Eighth avenue west and Superior street were closed at an early hour last night because of the drizzle and this part of the city was practically deserted. It is in this section that a majority of the drunks are picked up.

Frank Kihir, Peter Manning and August A. Piering forfeited bail of $50 for failure to appear in court for being drunk. Matt Laessli, David McLaren, Oscar Hog, August Laird and Mike Jaba, each paid fines of $20 and costs for similar offenses.

MINNESOTA ELECTS FULL G. O. P. TICKET

Latest Returns Improve Standing of All State Candidates.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 11.—With returns from Hennepin county complete today, the standing of Republican candidates in Tuesday's election generally is improved, with particular advantage to Ivan Bowen for railroad and warehouse commissioner and James H. Quinn for justice of the state supreme court.

The entire Republican state ticket was elected and Associate Justice James H. Quinn returned to the supreme court bench, according to virtually complete unofficial returns. In addition, the electorate adopted the rural credits amendment to the state constitution by an overwhelming ratio, and indications were that the occupation tax amendment also would be adopted.

Contests that appeared doubtful had changed to certainties for the Republican candidates in the late tabulations, with the closest race that for railroad and warehouse commissioner.

With only 100 scattered precincts missing in the gubernatorial contest, Governor J. A. O. Preus, Republican, has a plurality of 16,292 and as the missing precincts are in counties that have averaged approximately "fifty-fifty" for the governor and the Farmer-Labor candidate, indications were that Preus' plurality would stand at that figure.

Quinn to Front.

Justice Quinn, who had been running an in-and-out race with William A. Anderson, Farmer-Laborite, at tabulations continued during the day, went into the lead decisively in the final totals, and with less than 100 precincts unreported, his majority was 14,542.

For railroad and warehouse commissioner, Ivan Bowen had a lead of 10,629 over his nearest opponent, W. W. Ruyter, Farmer-Laborite, with 309 precincts unreported.

Dr. Henrik Shipstead will have a plurality of $2,000. The Farmer-Labor candidate received 519,569 votes in 3,382 precincts, as against 336,785 cast for Senator Frank B. Kellogg, Republican. Mrs. Anna D. Otseck of Cloquet, Democratic nominee, polled 121,194 votes.

Governor Preus maintained his lead and 2,859 precincts gave him 302,652 votes as against 287,351 cast for Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Laborite. Edward Indreus, Democrat, polled 69,319 votes in those precincts.

Grace F. Karschner of Ortonville, Republican candidate, was assured of a plurality of approximately 23,000 in the contest for clerk of the supreme court.

which he is a passenger, left her pier at 2:35 o'clock this afternoon. Introducing his brother, Clemenceau said: "This is the oldest member of the family."

"That's untrue," declared Albert Georges, the oldest in the family. It is one of our sisters, and there are five of us living."

A woman correspondent asked M. Clemenceau for an interview on American women, and he replied: "What are American women so different? At my age all women are the same."

The Tiger smiled at his own remarks and then resumed his talk.

B-P-W WILL HELP DIRECT S. A. DRIVE AMONG CITY WOMEN

Some shoes are priced too low to be good. Look out for them. They are the highest cost shoes of all in the long run.

Other shoes cost too much because they bear a certain trade mark that is prized highly by the maker. Don't look for them. You needn't.

Our shoes are good shoes at the lowest possible price for such goods. And we absolutely guarantee every pair we sell so that you assume no risk. They have good labels, too—but we don't sell labels.

MINISTERS LAUD LATE DR. RYAN

Duluth Pastors Pass Resolution of Regret Over His Death.

At the regular meeting of the Duluth Ministerial association at the Lakeside Presbyterian church, which was the first opportunity offered to recognize the recent death of Dr. A. W. Ryan, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted: "Whereas, in the providence of Almighty God it seemed wise to call Rev. Albert W. Ryan, D. C. L., to his heavenly home on Friday evening, Oct. 27, 1922, we, the members of the Duluth Ministerial association, hereby record the loss we feel in the passing of a beloved friend and fellow pastor. Dr. Ryan had been rector of St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church in this city for thirty years and was dean of the clergy in Duluth. As ministers we have appreciated his leadership and have been constantly edified by his counsel and advice. We recall, as we came to Duluth, how cordially we were received by him and the brotherly interest which he always manifested in a newly arrived minister. We recall in the thirty years of usefulness in his own church, in his fine Christian spirit, in his broad lines of social service, manifested particularly in the building up and supervision of St. Luke's hospital, the establishment and development of the county and state humane societies; in his co-operative nature and in the fellowship we enjoyed with him as ministers of different denominations. His constant and faithful preaching and practicing of the gospel of Christ and his scholarly attainments and habits of wide reading have always been a source of admiration and inspiration to us; therefore be it resolved, That we assure Mrs. Ryan and her son and daughter that in their hour of bereavement we feel that we, as a family of ministers, have also lost a beloved member and we assure them of our deep sympathy and our earnest and heartfelt prayers that God in His goodness will manifest His comforting and uplifting spirit during these dark days of sorrow, and that we know their paths will be illumined by the realization that in some such busy, fruitful life their loved one has passed to the reward which God has for His faithful servants, and be it also resolved, That to the vestry and membership of St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church, which Dr. Ryan loved and served for more than a generation and which, with its splendid edifice, stands as a monument to Dr. Ryan's faithful efforts, we extend an expression of sincere sympathy in their loss and at the same time join with them in gratitude to God for the privileges of this lifetime of splendid leadership and accomplishment and be it further resolved, That this resolution be spread on the minutes of the Duluth Ministerial association and a copy sent to Mrs. Ryan and to the vestry of St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church, and to the newspapers in Duluth.

The resolution is signed by the committee, which consisted of Rev. J. H. Stenberg, Rev. Charles W. Ramsay and Rev. George W. Arms.

MOONSHINE POISON, MEAN ASSEMBLY, SO HE DRINKS DENATURED ALCOHOL. "Drink moonshine, nobles' drink, I wouldn't put that poison still in my stomach, it makes me sick, but with this stuff I have no trouble at all," a drunk told one of the failures at police headquarters yesterday, as they searched him and found a bottle.

"No, he didn't drink bottled in bond or anything like that. It was denatured alcohol, known to those who escape a death or blindness from it as 'food-natured alcohol.' "I have been drinking denatured alcohol for two months and wouldn't drink anything else," he said with the stuff I buy for 25 cents a pint so why should I pay $2 for moonshine when it makes me sick?" He mixes the alcohol with white soda and that is his beverage.

He is going blind and police say that he is unable to read a newspaper now. A bottle of the mixture was taken away from him and in the morning the denatured alcohol had corroded the glass in the bottle.

CHILD UNINJURED WHEN STRUCK BY CAR Richard Miles, 5 years old, escaped without injuries when he was struck by an automobile driven by Albert Knudson, 114 East First street, at 8:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The accident occurred between First and Second avenues east on First street. The child ran in front of the car before Knudson had time to apply the brakes, the report to the police said. Knudson picked up the child and took him to a physician's office and then to his home.

Louis Koehler, 805 Greenwood street, collided with C. F. Newman, 819 North Eighth-third avenue west, on Twentieth avenue west near Superior street last night. Both cars were damaged, but none was injured.

WALLY DECKER HERALDS COMING OF FISKE O'HARA Wally Decker, veteran showman who has been coming to Duluth for many years, arrived here yesterday to herald the engagement of Fiske O'Hara, who will come to the Lyceum with his company Friday evening, Nov. 24. Mr. Decker was associated with Mr. O'Hara when the Irish tenor first took up the show business and he feels very much at home in his present capacity.

Mr. O'Hara will be accompanied by his wife, Pat Clary, who is his leading woman. They have a new play written for them by Anne Nichols, which is entitled "Land o' Romance." The tenor will have his usual number of new songs.

Gopher Rooters Numerous at the Iowa City Game—Music Hall, Rest Room and Library Completed—More Money Pledged for Stadium-Auditorium Fund.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gopher rooters were provided a special coach to carry them to the sidelines for today's game at Iowa City. Due to the efforts of coach, who took up a collection at the game last Saturday, $1,726.44 was secured to send the university team and fresh team to Iowa City. A delegation of Twin City grid-iron fans and several hundred student rooters accompanied the team and band.

Music students are delighting in the final completion of the music hall restroom and library. Situated conveniently at the end of the first floor corridor, it presents an inviting arrangement of cushioned davenport, dull walnut tables and upholstered chairs in Chesterfield and Italian Renaissance designs. A pleasant fireplace, shaded lights and velvet carpeting are further assets. Four-shelf book cabinets line two sides of the room. When these are filled through the efforts of the music board to the campus libraries. A portrait of Carlyle Scott, head of the music department, will be hung above the fireplace at the dedication of the building. Upholstered chairs are today being installed in the music hall auditorium, which is ready for public use on the evening of Monday, Nov. 13. Mozart's comic opera, "Così fan tutti," will then be presented, as the first number of the university chamber music course.

Seventy-five more species of medicinal plants are cultivated by the college of pharmacy of the university than any other college in the country, according to Dr. W. W. Stockberger of the drug, poisonous and oil plant investigations division. This division of investigations is under the direct supervision of the bureau of plant industry of the department of agriculture.

Twenty-five hundred dollars was pledged Wednesday to the stadium-auditorium fund by some of the 3,000 loyal Minnesota students who are anxious to give, but were not interviewed during the drive. This is the total of the first day's work by the cleanup squad of seventy-five workers headed by Bernice Glancy and Ed Sater. The squad consists mostly of the division commanders, and captains of the immortal "fifteen-hundred." The objective of the organization is to make Minnesota a 100 per cent school. There is a continual stream of students coming into the stadium headquarters to make their subscriptions. Many of them feel that they have been slighted in the drive and that they are not to be cheated of an opportunity to place their brick in the new stadium. The "fifteen-hundred," the largest and most complete organization that Minnesota ever attempted, has been temporarily disbanded. In spite of this, it will stand ready to respond to the call of a needy Minnesota. The friendships made during the intensive campaign are everlasting and if the "fifteen-hundred" is ever called into action again, the task in hand will be entered into with more spirit than was shown in the task just completed. If that is possible, Lyman Pierce, who is in a large measure responsible for the success of the stadium-auditorium drive, left this morning for his home in San Francisco.

Alumni at luncheon Saturday noon accepted the challenge of the students and faculty, as presented by President Coffman, Lyman Pierce and Tom Phelps, and pledged themselves to carry the campus memorial drive to a successful finish. They thrilled at the revival of Minnesota spirit, and roughly enjoyed by the student body. Dr. C. N. Pace delivered a pleasing talk on the meaning and interpretation of Armistice day. He was well received by the pupils.

The rest of the program was as follows: March Militaire (Schubert), Central orchestra; soprano solo (a) "The Americans Come," (b) "In Flanders Fields," Olive Arthur, quartet, "The Flag Without One Stain," Gail Pote, Eleanor McKibbin, Willis Peer and Walter Jager; national fantasia, Central orchestra; address, Dr. Pace.

He declares that it is a part of the regular routine for him to ask for the lowest-priced room and find they have none left, and so on up until it comes to the expensive rooms. "They never have the low-priced ones," said Mr. Gilliland, "but you have to go through the form of finding out that they haven't. It's like the case of the 'dumbbell' who asked a soda clerk for a plain soda without flavor. "Without what flavor?" asked the clerk, "behind the counter to the d. b. in front." "Chocolate," said the customer. "We haven't chocolate," said the clerk, "so I'll have to give you soda without vanilla."

NOTED HUMORIST BRINGS PLEASURE TO RANGE AFTER DULUTH Following his lecture at the First Methodist church on Thursday evening, Strickland Gilliland, the noted humorist and poet, left yesterday for the range, where he has several lecturing dates. Mr. Gilliland is quite well acquainted with this part of the country, for his recall dates are so frequent of late years as to make him almost a semi-resident. His popularity apparently grows, and his distinct success at the First church here Thursday virtually ensures a recall for the next season's course, it is asserted. # NEWS AND NOTES OF THE THEATER

Strand—"Ashes of Love" With James K. Hackett and Effie Shannon.

What power would the thought of truth and justice have on a mother's actions if her own daughter's good name were in the balance, in an interesting question raised in "Ashes of Love," the latest Ivan Abramson production made for the Graphic Film corporation, which will be the attraction at the Strand theater beginning Sunday.

In this story the daughter, on her deathbed, confesses to the mother she has been untrue to a husband who has lived for her alone. The mother decides to keep the secret locked in her heart, a determination that is weakened, as time goes on, by the agony of despair that takes possession of the husband in the loss of his loved one. She sees him gradually losing his mind, as a result of the strain, and the realization comes to her that it is her duty to kill the memory that is killing him. She finds herself in the position of justice with the reputation of a deadly lover, head daughter on one side of the scale and a man's reason, perhaps his life, on the other—and comes to a decision.

James K. Hackett, Effie Shannon and Mabel Julienne Scott have the leading roles with Ruby de Remer, Paula Shay, Hugh Thompson, William H. Davidson, Iona Mills Adams, Thea Talbot and William Hechtel as associate players.

MINNEAPOLIS SYMPHONY WITH HENRI VERBRUGGHEN HERE NOV. 24

"Symphony concert last night most brilliant and successful opening in history of orchestra. Henri Verbrugghen, guest conductor, proved himself a master. With only week of preparatory rehearsal he accomplished precision of attack, tonal and beauty of balance, clarity of expression, exposition of themes, as Minneapolis has never known. Reorganized orchestra stood test superbly, and conductor called upon to acknowledge storms of applause again and again."

This telegram, received by Mrs. George S. Richards from Carlo Fischler, manager of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, that appears on Mrs. Richards' All-Star course at the Armory Friday evening, Nov. 24, was but a forerunner of the enthusiastic acclaim with which the orchestra and its eminent guest conductor have since been received.

The coming to Duluth of the full Minneapolis Symphony orchestra of eighty-six pieces is sufficient alone to evoke the attention of music lovers of the Northwest, but that Henri Verbrugghen, the Anglo-Belgian sensation in European music circles, has been engaged to direct the orchestra on its only concert of the season, is the talk of Duluth's music colony, who with the general public are looking forward with the keenest interest to the concert Nov. 24.

Verbrugghen is a genius of the baton not quite like any other, for his dynamic figure holds the listener from the first sweeping movement of his arm to the last spirited note. Here is a man of tremendous vigor, of quick sympathy and warm dramatic feeling, whose interpretations are charged with spirit, proper restraint, and serene beauty, as the music demands. One of the unusual features of the concert will be the rendition of "Waiaia Poi," a festive song and dance of the Maori natives of New Zealand, orchestrated by Mr. Verbrugghen. Alfred Meserlin, concert master of the orchestra, will be heard in a violin solo from "Piccolini" (Giraud).

Ernest T. Dudos, Atholian pianist, will appear in a repertoire of Shakespearean music. The list will include "Much Ado About Nothing," "Othello," "The Merchant of Venice" and "Richard III."

"Steve" will open Nov. 20.

"Steve" the show which will bring Eugene O'Brien, film star, back to the spoken stage, is slated to get under way Nov. 20 at an outdoor stage.

Laura Hope Crews has been engaged to whip the piece into shape. Mrs. Thomas Whelan will have an important role in it.

New York, Nov. 11.—The heavy welterweight king is dead. Long live the king! And a king among fighters little Mickey Walker seems destined to be. There was one unpleasant feature surrounding his ascension to the throne. When the "all bets off" bombshell was hurled from the clear sky, an unfair slur was cast upon the honesty of both men as well as Britton's superb gameness.

William Muldoon's action in calling upon Joe Humphries to announce the calling off of all bets was a decided "bait-and-switch" move. Those who do not wager and those who do. Little else was discussed around the old town the next day.

IT WILL LOOK GOOD TO RETAIN THE CONFERENCE TITLE

HAWKEYES HAVE EASY GAMES FOR REST OF SEASON

Old Gold Players Favored to Defeat Gopher Eleven.

THEN COMES OHIO STATE

Michigan Should Beat Illinois—Big Games Remain.

With but three weeks of conference football remaining it becomes obvious that Iowa, of all the undefeated teams of the Ten is likely to see the matter of retaining its title in the hands of the Hawkeyes today there is no apparent reason why they should trip up on their remaining gridiron problems.

Next meet Ohio State next Saturday and wind up their performance against Northwestern, and that is not nearly as rough a task as Wisconsin has in meeting Illinois, Michigan and Chicago in order, or as Chicago has in Ohio State, Wisconsin and Illinois. Michigan has a rest and the teams with Wisconsin and Minnesota on successive Saturdays.

Howard Jones was at Minneapolis Saturday to put the finishing touches on a squad which had a week's rest, and it is not surprising that he is untroubled and with full time to prepare for anything that Michigan may have—and it was none too much last Saturday—he should be able to point for Ohio State and look the Hawkeyes more handsomely than Chicago can.—(Chicago Times.)

Then Northwestern for a wind-up. Northwestern this year is a creditable team and may well be well but the Hawkeyes outfit it should prove duck soup if Iowa has even retained the favor and play variety it showed against Yale.

In the discussion of the conference schedule it may be recalled that it leaves little to be desired, and that when the season is over there may well be sections regarding the comparative strength of leading teams.

If the dope runs anything like true from today, there will still be four undefeated teams in the conference and it is conceivable that the last day of the season will find three undefeated teams in the field to quarrel about the Ten top honors.

Wisconsin should defeat Illinois today, Iowa should beat Michigan, Ohio State and the Ohio State-Chicago game is the only one difficult to predict results in.

Louisiana is not to be blamed for the comparative ease of its schedule, but it is a fact that it has been able to meet every team and took an Ohio State for the first time in conference history this year with the exception of a game with good and ample material, was to be the toughest kind of an opponent. Ohio State, not at all what was expected, unless, of course, it came up to expectations.

Iowa lost a tough battle which it did not seek to win at Chicago, and as a Princeton the Iowa date, and in the honor of being up with the undefeated teams, the Iowa team, under Howard Jones, is all right.

Michigan-Wisconsin. Decider. While there is a mass of detail to be filled up today, with some prospect of upsets the following week, Michigan and Wisconsin clash for the first time in conference history. Michigan should win it, but there was a rather general consensus last Saturday that Michigan would be the victor in the middle of the regular season.

One thing is certain about the preliminary clash of Michigan and Wisconsin, it is that Stagg and his men possess to turn back the Ohio State power and worth. Ohio State has been out of the conference and has been out of the conference since by a combination of breaks and by a combination of breaks.

Jack Wilson's men are again to go against the Ohio State power, and the result of it all is that the stadium at Columbus is to be filled with a battle replete with class and possibilities.

VETERAN COBB IS THE WONDERMAN OF BASEBALL PASTIME

Herald, Mich., Nov. 11.—Try Cobb batted .463 this season, the third season in his spectacular career when he has batted in the .400 division.

By hitting .461 this year Cobb established a new record for modern baseball.

Cobb has played eighteen seasons of major league baseball. In 1911 he made the best batting mark of his career, hitting for an average of .420. The following season he again batted better than .400, his average being .418 for the season. The following year, in 1913, his string of .400 averages was broken. He batted .380 that season and has ever since tried to reach .400 again and the tie he did record made by Jesse Burkett.

Burkett batted .400 or better in 1883, 1884 and 1895. The record stood until this year.

Ever since the close of the season there has been a dispute regarding Cobb's real batting average. According to some unofficial figures he batted .463 and other gave his batting average as .359. These averages, however, were compiled from unofficial figures, while the .461 average, which is final, is from the official scores.

There was a similar dispute at the close of the 1921 season. The unofficial average gave Cobb the American league championship by several points, but when the official averages were published Harry Freeman had an average of .394 and Cobb was second with .389.

"This upset was the sensation of the winter season."

Several differences existed between the official and unofficial averages during the season and Cobb's actual number of hits was the matter of doubt until the official averages had been carefully checked and re-checked.

Vendetta, Thoroughbred Mare, Wins Long Race

Straight-Going Action Accounts for Well-Earned Victory.

(By the Associated Press.) Chicago, Nov. 11.—Any straight-going sound horse, with the heart to keep going down the road, can finish in the 300-mile annual endurance test, according to experts who have analyzed the results of the 1922 meet, held recently at Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont.

The result, they decided, shows that racing men have long known, that the winners come in all shapes and sizes.

This year's five-day race was the fourth annual renewal of the classic of the army remount world, which was first run in 1912 at Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont.

Wayne Dinmore of Chicago, chairman of the committee in charge, in an analysis of the winning horses, commenting on the wide range of types that finished in the ribbons, finds that the variation in the victors was more apparent than the similarity, however, being largely due to the more outstanding carriage of head and neck in some.

All had good withers for the saddle, Mr. Dinmore says, all were sound backed and powerfully muscled over back and loins, all had fair slope of shoulders and pasterns, and all were well set on their legs.

Vendetta, the first prize winner, was a thoroughbred, cladstone, imported from England, and was in the third place, a grade American saddle horse, Tragnore, fourth, a crossbred, and in the fourth place, a crossbred, and in the fifth place, a crossbred.

The most important lesson learned from the endurance test, which rode the horses, carrying 220 pounds this year (twenty pounds less than in the 1920 and 1921 meets) to complete the 300 miles in five consecutive days, Mr. Dinmore says, is the necessity for straight-going action, and for a horse to be able to conserve his energy and to conserve his energy and to conserve his energy.

None of the prize winners were perfect straight-goers, but their deviation was so slight as to cause no interference, except in the case of the first prize winner, and her rider found a way to check the trouble, which was due to bad shoeing.

Next to straightness, the judges decided, a low easy gait is most desirable, a gait described by horsemen as "slipping along." This was most noticeable in Vendetta, and in Tragnore, and in the other horses, the judges raised their feet only enough to clear the ground and took put their feet down squarely with springy step.

High knees and hook action, with extreme flash, so much admired and sought after in horses used as pack horses, is a distinct disadvantage. It was found to hinder forward to under- endurance rides.

The judges also found that the skill of the rider, his seat, hands and feet enter largely in the result. The best riders rode the entire 300 miles standing up in their stirrups, balanced perfectly, they never struck the saddles. "One of the judges," Mr. Dinmore says, "described the ideal seat when he rode a rider—you could glue a fresh laid egg in the seat of his saddle, and he would not wobble for a whole day's ride."

Long stirrups and riding straight up, with spring in ankles and leg muscles, were also noted as factors in the success of the riders.

There was a similar dispute at the close of the 1921 season. The unofficial average gave Cobb the American league championship by several points, but when the official averages were published Harry Freeman had an average of .394 and Cobb was second with .389.

BENTON MAY NOT BE TAKEN BACK BY MAJOR CLUBS

St. Paul Pitcher Is Accused of Making False Charges.

(By OSCAR G. REICHOW.) Chicago, Nov. 11.—Pitcher Rubie Benton seeks to return to major league company. If he succeeds it will not be with the American league, for he is barred from that body, according to an assertion made today by President Ben Johnson. The New York club of Ban's league sought to purchase Benton, who is a left-hander, from St. Paul and asked if it would be permitted to sign him, but was given a "No" on receipt of this wire from the American league.

Benton, according to President Johnson, was placed on the list of the American league as a suspended player, and it is understood that Benton was a member of that team, made an investigation and found that Benton's statement could not be proved. Consequently Benton is barred from the American league.

WRITING IN AIR BY LOVERS SETS DULUTH COPPER WONDERING
Love cannot be hid, especially from the watchful eyes of a policeman. But, anyway, how could the copper miss seeing it when "he" and "she" make love from across the street in broad daylight?
She is a school teacher in one of the public schools; he is a clerk and works across the way from the school.
The policeman was walking down the avenue when he noticed the clerk in the window, swinging his arms up and down. Then he looked across the street. The school teacher was standing at her window; she nodded her head to her "lover" and wrote something in the air.
Now the copper does not believe in love at first sight, but he sure does believe in taking a second look—and even a third.
He watched the two for several minutes.
"Do you love me?" the aviator wrote in the air.
She nodded her head and wrote "Yes."
Then he signaled something else, which the copper couldn't make out.
"She shook her head and wrote 'No.'"
"Now, I wonder what that fellow wrote," the copper mused as he walked along his beat. "Wonder." *****

THE DIVIDENDS OF WAR.

There was a war. Eight years ago early this summer, an Austrian archduke of no large importance to the world was murdered by a fanatic patriot in a Bosnian village none of us had ever heard of before.

It is still a credit. Four years ago today the fighting ceased. At eleven o'clock on the morning of November 11, 1918, an armistice was declared. The killing over, a racked, ruined and distracted civilization began to struggle feebly back toward its normal paths.

If civilization—Christendom—had not prepared for war by thoughts and deeds and armies and navies and forts and guns and national policies, the war could not have come. It did not come because an obscure archduke was wounded in an obscure village, but because for generations Christendom, by policies and practices that were the very negation of the Christianity it professed but did not practice, had sown the seed and diligently cultivated the garden of greed, fear and hate that fruited in the catastrophes that began in 1914 and have as yet by no means ended.

But that were all, it would be evil enough. But it is not all. The world knows, if it will admit it, that this war wasn't a circumstance to what the next one will be, and that that next one will inevitably come unless civilization takes thought to prevent it. Nor is there any doubt about the course it must take. It must cease thinking in terms of armament and preparedness and hegemony and self-centered nationalism and fear and greed and hate, and it must learn to think in terms of the common welfare of human brotherhood and unity, of love and compassion and mutual helpfulness.

It must learn that no nation can prosper permanently at the expense of other nations; that any nation will prosper most and best through the prosperity of all nations; that men, whatever their color, race or creed, are made by the same Creator out of the same stuff, and have common problems, common needs, and a common destiny in the unity of mankind under the fatherhood of God in which, and in no other place, will mankind find home and peace.

What are the dividends of peace? Irreparable losses, irretrievably under modern conditions. There was once profit in war for the victor; now there is only loss to victor and vanquished alike. There was once hope of actual gains for mankind out of this last war was that it might prove a war to end war, and it was not that. Seek in the condition of the nations today for the dividends of this war; seek to find what they are and who has them. You will find only red ink entries everywhere.

We are celebrating Armistice day today. It will be a feeble celebration compared with last year, when a nation in prayer, moved as it had not been moved since the highest moments of the war and moved more nobly than it was then, looked away from the material to the spiritual and found strength and hope there; when this nation's prayers brought almost a miracle at the opening of the arms conference. A miracle that faded only because prayers ceased and hopeful men and women turned their constructive thoughts elsewhere.

The thorns which I have reaped are of the tree I planted—they have torn me—and I bleed. I should have known what fruit would spring from such a seed. —Byron.

The American Legion is the leading figure in today's celebration. The American Legion has a great opportunity to be of greater service than any other organization that ever existed. It knows what war is. It has the sense to reckon the gains and losses and to realize that war does not pay. It has the vision to see that the first purpose of every thinking person in the civilized world should be to end war—that that is more important than any other mission, more important even than "national independence" when national independence means Cain's cowardly alibi.

The American Legion recently had a national convention. It was attended by representatives of European organizations of war veterans. Following that convention these representatives, together with the new commander of the Legion, Alvin Owsley, signed a document which may become the Magna Carta of world peace. Here are some of its provisions:

That all international agreements among governments affecting the entire people shall be open and above board, with full publicity.

To oppose territorial aggrandizement. That an international court be established to outlaw war.

To proceed as rapidly as conditions permit, and when the degree of such emergency warrants, to disband and disarm and destroy the implements of warfare.

The objective should be no less than that. To establish an international organization to outlaw war and stop it in its beginnings, to disarm on land and sea and in the air, and to destroy all implements of warfare—this, and no less than this, should be the aim of thinking humanity.

If the world can see the Legion and like organizations in other lands making this their objective, and putting behind it all their weight of numbers and sincerity and thought, this would indeed be a mighty dividend of war. There can be no other possible dividend from it that is not utter loss.

MR. HARDING AND THE ELECTION.

Making full allowance for personal issues, liquor, labor and other factors that undoubtedly entered into the election results, it still remains clear that the vote was a rebuke and a warning.

In the main, it is congress that has voted upon. To what extent is President Harding also involved in this rebuke? It seems to us that he is involved in it to this extent; that congress was rebuked for lack of leadership and for planless wandering in a maze of littleness, and that the president, so far as his administration was directly rebuked, was criticized for failing to provide the leadership that congress lacked.

That is where the president laid himself open to rebuke. And yet this is not surprising. The country had just gone through two terms of a president who was criticized, rightly or wrongly, for providing too much leadership; for being the boss, the whole works, to a greater degree than many people approved. President Harding, in the senate, was a member of a circle that had grown impatient of what it believed to be presidential infringement upon congressional, and especially senatorial, prerogatives.

He came to the presidency, then, pretty deeply impressed with the view that it was not the president's business to tell congress what to do, but largely to mind his own affairs in the executive branch. It is true that in his first talk to congress he said that the presidency had powers which ought to be used, and intimated that his office ought not to be and must not be subordinated. There was a hint in this that he might assume leadership; but on the whole he didn't.

Congress lacked leadership, and the leadership that had come from the White House under Roosevelt and Wilson, and that came very vigorously and often very effectively from both, did not come from the White House under Harding. So there was no leadership, and the result was disappointing to the people, as they did not hesitate to say last Tuesday.

Has Mr. Harding the capacity for developing the leadership that is so vital now, so vital to the country, and so vital to the president's party if it is to have any hope of victory in 1924? We believe that he has such capacity, if he will exert it, and that he has it in a form peculiarly adapted to the need of the hour. It isn't in him to become a dictator, to order congress around as a top sergeant would order around a squad of raw recruits. He is not a Roosevelt. It isn't in him to lay down a lofty program and with chill insistence demand that congress put it through. He is not a Wilson.

But President Harding can do this: He can get his associates together, including those in congress, and shape a program that will meet the national, international, social, economic and industrial needs of the time. He can call to the leaders of congress, and he can say: "Boys, something happened November 7,

If you can't see that the country sent word to make good or get out, I can't see how you can expect anything but what will happen. We haven't been getting anywhere as things have been going, but if we don't get somewhere soon in legislation, we'll get somewhere mighty quick in November of 1924, and that's our lot. Let's get down to business, work this out together, and go through with a real program."

President Harding can say something like that, and he can say it kindly and diplomatically and effectively. He is an artist at the business of going folks together, and here is his chance. It was congress that was rebuked. But the president was incidentally rebuked, too, for failing to provide the leadership which congress so conspicuously lacked. He can't be a dictator, but he can be a kindly, friendly and sociable leader in an association between the presidency and his party in congress that must come about if the humiliation of last Tuesday is not to be followed by a political catastrophe two years hence.

Much of the world's visible supply of futility busies itself wondering which has the larger income, Ford or John D.

Parents tend to be proud of a child who is a book worm, who would rather read than do anything else. But this pride should be under some restraint. Such children can read so much that they keep themselves too much aloof from play and contact with their fellows, both of which they need as much as they need food and books.

And, undirected, they can run so much to inferior reading matter that they will ruin their memories, spoil the sound taste for good books, and become fanciful, impractical dreamers.

But in these days, doubtless there are very many more who need to be encouraged to read more than they do. A considerably smaller interest in movies, and a considerably greater interest in books, would be very good for most children. That is for parents to bring about if they have influence with their children.

And those who read too much and those who read too little should keep somebody, wise enough to know, to keep a watchful eye on what they read, and to do it dextrously and diplomatically enough to steer them rightly. It requires a good deal of crafty diplomacy to do this. When you tell a young person that it is his duty to read a certain book because it is a classic and will be good for him, you plant in him an aversion to that book. It prejudices him against it. It puts it in a class with castor oil and bathing. That isn't the way to do it. But if you can get him interested in that book by reading to him good bits from it, good will come of it. Those who avoid the "classics" because they were taught in school that it was a duty to read them know the psychology of this. Wrong methods of teaching have made them miss great pleasure and satisfaction.

Anyway, what children read is mighty important. They get something—something good or bad, upbuilding or destructive—out of every book they read. Their minds are very impressionable; their memories are absorbing more readily than they ever will again. They should not more be allowed to absorb poison in this way than they should be permitted to absorb poison in their food.

Preachers, teachers, librarians and editors may hold forth at great length on this important subject, but after all, like so many other issues, the responsibility and the chance are with the fathers and mothers. It is they that must determine, if anybody does, whether their children are reading too much, or too little, and whether they're reading good books or bad.

What Women Want

Elizabeth Tilton, national legislative chairman Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher association in Current History Magazine: How successful is the active-minded, undaunted American woman leader in seeing her issues through? At present women are more successful in upsetting the machine at the polls than in bringing their bills through congress. Though women understand the soft pedal of politics, club gestures and resolutions, they fight shy of the hard pedal, the technique of vote making, though the soft pedal never landed anything yet. In short, they do not realize the hard work that goes to making a vote. Women today make the club gesture and then instead of rallying up the sentiment and holding it fast, they stiff in congress against the enemy, they flex with "hats politics." But their intelligence can be counted on to carry the real fight for club gesture into the real fight for the right. Indeed, the W. C. T. U. never had any illusions about the nature of the task. They have always seen the way to the polls and elected candidates who were discredited by their noble causes, then, and gathered up and got across to congress barrels full of organized sentiment.

If women can attain the power, as did Gladstone to keep the central aim and submerge the lesser emotions, they will hold their physical intact and come in time not only to desire and to gesture in resolve, but to act. They will see to see these causes through. Today they are thinking hard and thinking well, but the drudgery of organizing, the jangling to the point where it makes the vote that makes the law, this step they have yet to take in any large way.

A Plan for Bromides

Los Angeles Times: Bromide was, in its day, a respectable word, endowed with dignity and standing. Low employment has, however, tarnished its appearance, wrecked its decent career, sharpened and poisoned the mid edge of its meaning.

When two solid citizens meet and exclaim: "Well, it's hot enough for you?" "Yes, it's hot enough for me." "Hotter today than it was yesterday."

"S' fact, it is hotter today than it was yesterday," there is a package of bromide and a dose of scoldings.

The bromide of platitudinous remarks is a day-to-day reassurance of the rightness of things. The citizenry speaks a notion that has not been subjected to being the medium of preparation of food.

The significant difference between the present and the past is that the preparation of food, in the past, was a manual operation, and the nourishment of the body is middle age and beyond in that the former has been mainly constructive while the latter tends in the opposite direction.

Most diets affectioned, in the past, are modified forms of starvation and practically all are based on withdrawal of foods of which the human body needs.

It remains true that there are few individuals who could not, with advantage, lose weight. But the result of a long, unbroken experience of a lifetime, to the scientist and all those of digestion alike, and die in the grip of a disease. Dietetic wisdom—crazy, too infrequently used—has shown that the result of a long process of adjustment which is even now not fully understood. Those who meddle with the exceedingly intricate and delicate machinery of nature, without due knowledge, are likely to bring about a catastrophe.

The Passing Show of 1922

Remarks—From Grange to Gay. From Wise to Frivolous—On Current Events.

Who Pays for Strikes? Detroit News: The worst of strikes is that the public always pays for them. The public settles the final bill, not only in the inconvenience suffered by being deprived of the product involved, but also settles in money, afterwards. Business contends that strikers live on money—which it means that its sacred profits must remain undisturbed—and hence the natural sequel of a protracted and costly strike is an increase in prices to consumers.

The governor of Iowa, N. E. Kendall, speaking in his home town at Albia, Iowa, protested against this practice of making the public pay for strikes. He took up specifically the statement of the head of a big coal company that his concern would increase prices this winter by making up the $75,000 it estimates it has lost in five months of private war with its workers.

It is rather naive to assume that the policy is new. All that is new is the blunt statement of it. Does anyone imagine that the coal operators have been paying out of their own pockets either for this war or for the many which have preceded it? The answer is, of course, no. The battle is won, the people who buy coal pay for the winning of it. If it in fact increases in wages in the generally adopted an entirely new equation will be introduced into business and the common people will understand why the price of every enterprise.

Food Fads

Editorial in the Portland Oregonian. It is difficult to restrain a certain feeling of admiration for the courageous British physician who has sounded a warning against the growing practice of "dieting" in the notion that the food we eat is responsible for every conceivable ailment.

Nothing that this physician says will be regarded as an argument against moderation in all matters for temperance is one of the cardinal rules of health, but it may be true, as he asserts with confidence, that it is dangerous to think of the accumulated experience of a lifetime, as middle-aged individuals are wont to do when suddenly they begin to disregard the promptings of appetite and to experiment with strange fads.

There is practically no edible substance that has not at some time or other been either prescribed or proscribed as a cure for disease. Vegetarianism is subdivided into a number of sects, the members of which would eat all food raw about offset by those others who regard everything as poison that has not been subjected to being the medium of preparation of food.

The significant difference between the present and the past is that the preparation of food, in the past, was a manual operation, and the nourishment of the body is middle age and beyond in that the former has been mainly constructive while the latter tends in the opposite direction.

Most diets affectioned, in the past, are modified forms of starvation and practically all are based on withdrawal of foods of which the human body needs. The vegetarian craze, the notion that all meat is poison, the fruit breakfast, the nut breakfast, and the diet of buttermilk and onions, prohibition of all starchy foods on the ground that out of sugar necessarily represents a source of energy, whereas it may only mean failure to store properly—these and other countenances which have bodily health and the theoretical stage are likely to have performed fewer cures than they have left in their train.

It remains true that there are few individuals who could not, with advantage, lose weight. But the result of a long, unbroken experience of a lifetime, to the scientist and all those of digestion alike, and die in the grip of a disease. Dietetic wisdom—crazy, too infrequently used—has shown that the result of a long process of adjustment which is even now not fully understood. Those who meddle with the exceedingly intricate and delicate machinery of nature, without due knowledge, are likely to bring about a catastrophe.

Variation of Bertha Collar. Paris, Nov. 11.—There is a quiet variation of the bertha collar being worn here today. It is seen on quarter frocks of beige crepe de chine.

It is made of beliswood fringes, a lustrous wool of the wool forms a softly rounded neck line from which the fringe hangs, back and front, to the waist.

Indoor Head Dress. London, Nov. 11.—The English flapper today is wearing indoors, a head dress to match her blouse. The blouse worn perhaps with a white serge skirt, is of printed silk jersey. A length of the printed jersey is twisted bandana fashion around the head, the two perky ends below the left ear.

Flippy Molestin Hat. Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 11.—Nothing is more satisfactory than the soft flippy hat of molestin for sports wear. Scores of them were seen on the way to the Harvard stadium today. In a shape more or less resembling the tam, a hat of this sort may be pulled into any desired shape and remain "put" no matter how blustery the breeze.

Enormous Comb Correct. New York, Nov. 11.—The new high coiffure now being worn here is heightened by an enormous comb set at the smartest angle consistent with the law of gravity. ## TWO AUTO SHOWS IN NEW YORK CITY

Second to Be Held in Madison Square Garden.

New York is to have a second automobile show this year, running concurrently with the exhibition in Grand Central place. This new event in the automobile show field is to be held in the historic Madison Square Garden from Jan. 8 to 11 and it will take care of some 400 cars, trucks and accessories manufactured who have always wanted to exhibit their products to New York show crowds, but who have been prevented from doing so by the limitations of space at the command of the producers of the Palace show. Lack of all this there lies an interesting story.

Last year a number of automobile accessory manufacturers who had been unable to obtain space at the Palace met in a New York hotel during show week. Inevitably there came into the conversation expressions of regret that they had been unable to get space at the Palace. One of them dropped a chance suggestion as to the desirability of running an overflow show to allow companies unable to exhibit at the Palace a chance to show their wares to the great crowds that gather in New York for the annual shows. Later on a committee of these manufacturers got in touch with William H. Wellman, who has achieved a distinguished record as impresario in other fields of motoring activity.

Putting it over.

At first Wellman did not want to engage in the signing of a show. It was only after he had been persuaded that the step was for the benefit of the automobile industry as a whole that he consented to undertake the task.

No one who knows Bill Wellman needs to be told that once he puts his shoulder to the wheel he throws every ounce of his energy into the work. First he engaged Madison Square Garden, historic site of the first and many succeeding automobile shows, where the real momentum of the automobile industry took place. Next he obtained the indorsement of leading individuals and organizations of the automobile industry of his overflow show plan and now he has completed plans and arrangements for the exhibition, which will startle bliss New York with novel and interesting features.

Accessory Store Feature.

One of the novel features of the Garden show, which is certain to evoke wide comment and approval, is the greatest accessory store in the world. This is a new idea of Wellman's, realizing that there are many manufacturers of motoring accessories who would like to exhibit their wares in New York and yet are prevented from doing so by the expense of sending men with the exhibits and maintaining them in New York for a week. This huge accessory store will solve the problem of these manufacturers. On and behind an enormous counter, on shelves and under glass, will be exhibits from all over the country. The manufacturers of these will simply send the products they desire to have shown. A staff of trained clerks will take charge of the store, book orders for the various products and represent the various manufacturers. In this way the only expense for the maker is forwarding his exhibit. The rest is done for him by Wellman's trained staff.

Ford exhibits will be a prominent feature of the Garden show. There will be a Ford section, with interesting novelties, which every owner of a Ford car will want to see. Further announcements of the Ford program of the Ford section will follow in due course.

Another innovation is to be a section devoted to displaying shop equipment of all kinds and varieties from trouble wagons to cotter pins. The visiting dealers, garage men and others in the trade will find this section of the show absorbing of interest and remarkable utility.

MANY ADVANTAGES FOUND IN PEERLESS LUBRICATION SYSTEM

Judging from the inquiries and comments that have been pouring in to the Peerless factory at Cleveland ever since the new car was introduced about a month ago, automotive engineers everywhere have noted with unusual interest the advanced chassis lubrication of the new Peerless.

The outstanding feature of the new Peerless chassis lubrication, according to Peerless officials, is a new method of storing and feeding the necessary grease to all externally moving parts. This method is not only simple, efficient and time-saving, but functions in such a direct and positive way that very little waste is needed to grease the entire car.

A new type of grease cup is used which feeds all of the vital parts requiring constant lubrication, such as the springs, steering system, brakes and other moving parts. This grease cup is a highly perfected combination of the conventional large-capacity grease cup and the Alemite system.

The car may be greased by means of the Alemite gun, disregarding the grease cup feature. When this operation is finished the grease cups are, of course, left filled with sufficient grease to lubricate the car for many weeks, and this is accomplished from time to time by turning down the cups by means of a special key which Peerless provides. When the cups become empty they are refilled by means of the Alemite gun.

The advantage of this system lies in the large capacity of the grease cups which does not necessitate constant use of the Alemite gun, and in the speed and cleanliness with which the cups can be refilled. An owner of one of the new cars in Cleveland, commenting on this arrangement, declared that he could grease his car from stem to stern in ten minutes without even soiling his hands.

The grease cups are made with such precision that the slightest turn of the key will produce an instant flow of grease, no matter how little there may be in the cup. One-half turn of the key is sufficient to generate a pressure of 100 pounds.

REO PHAETON WINS PRIZE AT BEAUTY CONTEST

The new Reo phaeton, which has just been announced by the Reo Motor Car company, has not only been attracting unusual attention throughout the country, but it has already been chosen as the blue ribbon winner in an automobile beauty contest, according to Martin Rosenbahl, local dealer.

In competition with approximately thirty other cars the Reo phaeton was awarded the first prize at the Roanoke, Va., fair, which has just ended. The winning car was driven by Mrs. Charles Carner.

"The beauty contest," which featured the closing of the fair, consisted not only of the exhibition of the various cars, but in their performance as demonstrated by their fair drivers. Each driver was required to drive her car past the judges' stand in the grandstand, turn around and back, and then come to a stop in front of the stand. After this she was required to start the motor of the car and shift gears before completing the test.

"The competition was divided into four classes of both open and closed cars, and a winner selected from each group, after which the class winners competed again in the same manner for the prizes, which covered all entries.

"The new Reo phaeton, which was the winner in the above competition, is a new model just from the factory and is a type of car which Reo has never built before. It is a four or five-passenger vehicle, mounted on the standard Reo six chassis and powered by the Reo six-cylinder motor, but the new style body is low and narrow and there are many extra features different from the standard type of open cars. The hood and radiator have the standard lines, but the bowl is wider, with a ventilator and a special designed windshield with integral side wings, giving the front of the car a distinctive look.

MOTOR CARS

The Car That Has Swept the Country

The 1923 Four-Passenger Coupe—$1895

This new model of the four-passenger coupe has more than maintained the new ideal of an intimate closed car which Buick so fully established in its first model of this type.

The interior of the roomy Fisher-built body is upholstered and finished in a rich plush with distinctive silvered fittings. The wide seat is set at a new and more restful angle, as is the driver's, and a comfortable fourth seat folds away under the cowl.

Attractive combination dials on a new instrument board include gasoline gauge, clock, speedometer, ammeter, oil pressure gauge, lighting and ignition switches. The gear shift lever has been lengthened to meet the driver's hand and the position of the steering column has been altered to further driving ease.

Marked refinements have been made also in the long-wheel-base chassis and in the famous Buick valve-in-head engine. A new suspension of the rear cantilever springs absorbs road shocks and eliminates need of snubbers. A higher cylinder block, longer connecting rods and pistons are among improvements that further the quiet, flexible and enduring performance so inherent in all Buicks.

In completeness, beauty and performance the most discriminating can find no superior excellence than in this new model of a traditionally luxurious car.

13, when a second Mitchell "White Streak" duplicated the feat of "White Streak" No. 1 in the East, by successfully terminating a 10,000-mile "sealed hood" run along the Pacific coast.

The Western demonstration was begun July 4 in Los Angeles, when Charles Ray, motion picture star, officially sealed the hood of "White Streak" No. 2. This car traveled northward through California's Redwood district, into Washington, Oregon and return. Not a human hand touched its motor during the entire trip, as is attested to by the written statements of public officials who inspected the seals at various intervals along the route.

Chris Helino, automobile editor of the San Francisco Examiner, brook its seal on Oct. 16 in front of the newspaper building. This ceremony was witnessed by even a greater number than was present at the inauguration of the test.

Not only was the motor in excellent condition, but the body and chassis had withstood the journey's strain without harm. This is attributed to Mitchell's spring suspension which is of special design.

William Ellenbeck and John De Paolo, drivers of international reputation, said on completion of their trip with the Mitchell "White Streak" that it was the most exhaustive test ever given an automobile in their entire experience.

Altogether, 109 standard stock cars were used to complete the million-mile demonstration for the Mitchell Motors Company, Inc. Each averaged ninety-one miles a day for 120 days. Total mileage equaled a distance forty times around the earth. Average gasoline consumption was 17.9 miles a gallon.

SECOND MITCHELL COMPLETES 10,000-MILE SEALED HOOD TEST

The million-mile demonstration of the new No. 2 Mitchell which has been conducted during the last six months, has been brought to a successful conclusion, according to a recent statement by officials of the Mitchell Motors Company, Inc.

The finale of this pretentious test, said to be unprecedented in the history of the automobile industry, took place in San Francisco, Saturday, Oct.

HEROES OF TRACK WITH LIBERTY

Many Famous Race Drivers and Managers in Organization.

If there is any class of men that should be thoroughly familiar with motor construction and the relative merits of different motor cars, it should be in the profession that is accustomed to checking automobile performance under the most trying conditions, and even, racing life and limb on the smoothness of a car's construction. This being a fact, there is much significance in the discovery that at least five internationally known racing men are connected with the production and marketing of the Liberty Six, built by the Liberty Motor car company of Detroit.

system of inspection was worked out after a long period of careful experimentation, and it has been definitely demonstrated that an automobile, if properly oiled, greased, tightened and adjusted at regular periods, will deliver a greater mileage and longer service at a minimum of expense for service work.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS GLUTTED; AUTO LINES SAME AS THE OTHERS

What a change has taken place in the business affairs of this country! Not more than a year ago everyone was deplored the fact that there were at least 2,000,000 people out of work. Some stated even a higher figure. Now everyone is calling for help in some sections saying that the restrictions placed on immigration have caused a shortage of 1,500,000 workmen.

In retail lines it is predicted that the merchants of the lines will experience a greater volume of Christmas trade than they had last year by 15 per cent. In view of all the surrounding circumstances (those in the retail line are advised to order and have their requirements shipped at once).

One very good reason for the auto business in the retail car shortage which already has become a factor. This will be more of a disturbing element in November when the peak of the car shortage is expected to occur. It will reach a crisis with an actual shortage of approximately 90,000 cars. This dearth of freight cars has a logical basis when one stops to consider that there is now three times as much pig iron being turned out in the United States as was produced in the same time last year.

CRANKSHAFT MOST IMPORTANT PART OF AUTO MACHINERY

Hidden away from view on the inside of an automobile motor is a piece of steel known as a crankshaft. Most motorists know that there is such a thing but it is out of sight and only makes its presence known, by a hammering knock when a bearing wears out.

In the quality automobile field the finest workmanship and the best mechanical brains of the country can produce in the matter of machinery is lavished on the crankshaft, considering as important to a motor as a heart is to a man.

Proper care at regular intervals is the secret of automobile life and longer service manager says F. J. Zoller, service manager of the Franklin Automobile company, Syracuse, N. Y. "Any car, no matter what its original cost, will deliver to its owner a far greater measure of service, if he will bear in mind that it is a definitely used piece of property as his own body."

THE KIDDIE CARTOONIST

upon it, equipped with everything from stationary wash basin to rocking chairs. The silver with camping equipment suspended from every possible part of the car to which a bit of wire or cord can be attached, is the most common long distance traveler. A "hay burner" lantern, one of the variety usually seen about farmhouses, may be attached to the radiator cap. Under the car may be swung two or three water buckets, each filled with cooking utensils or other articles. A frying pan may be attached to a door handle and the running boards usually are weighted down with baggage and the inevitable small tent that may be erected within a few minutes when the tourist finds a likely place to stop for the night. Every city and town in Florida along the motor routes within the last few years has established a camp site, and in the case of those on the outskirts of the larger places, are equipped with electric lights, water mains and sewerage. Every camp now is under the supervision of the state board of health and one sanitary engineer devotes his entire time during the winter to the inspection of them.

MOTOR VANGUARD IS DESCENDING UPON FLORIDA

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 10.—Somebody in Maine or Minnesota discovered a few years ago that he could load his family into the family silver and drive to Florida for the winter at an expense about equal to the railroad fare for one person. Now motor cars, from the quiet-running sedan to the rattling, banging flapper with frying pans, lanterns, coffee pots, buckets and other utensils attached all over them from radiators to spare tire racks, descend upon Florida in droves bearing the vanguard of the thousands of tourists who motor to the peninsula in the fall from all parts of the Union.

BETTER GENERAL BUSINESS IN SOUTH PREDICTED BY GIBBES

THE CHIEF developments in progress here are of least partially unexpected, however far general business expansion in the South may go. Settlement in the better sections and the rest of the South, a million men and women are engaged in some industry and excellent harvests have been secured. This was the opinion advanced by Frank H. Gibbes, president of the Cotton Machinery company of Columbia, S. C.

It will make particularly heavy demands on local transportation facilities. Mr. Gibbes further pointed out that the South should have more of the utmost care in the selection of their hauling units and that the truck is not affected by weather or road conditions.

It is said that the postoffice department at Washington, after several years' experience with motor vehicles, has come to the conclusion that they have many advantages over horse-drawn equipment, even where the distance to be traveled is short. In one city alone $20,000 was saved by the substitution of a portion of the letter box collection and parcel post delivery services.

Frank H. Gibbes, the Liberty distributor at St. Louis, Mo., expressed a justly deserved faith in the capable handling of Liberty Motors that driver was looking for over the country, trying to get a disappearing view of his ex-husband's car. It is now general manager of the business of the New York Liberty distributor.

SHARP PRACTICES IN HARD COAL TRADE

Dealers Charged With Sale of Poor Substitutes at High Prices.

That coal dealers are taking an unfair advantage of the present coal situation in order to pay off poor substitutes for hard coal at practically the same price of hard coal is the belief of the members of the West Duluth Commercial club, as expressed at the weekly meeting of the club held at the clubhouse at Central avenue last night. A lively discussion arose among the members and coal dealers were severely criticized for their actions.

Bay Potatoes; Aid Farmers.

L. A. Harnes, president of the club, in an appeal to the members, urged them to get their winter supply of potatoes now and in that way aid the farmers. Many of the farmers are finding it difficult to sell their "spuds" which, if no market can be found, will go to waste, working hardship on the farmers after a whole summer of care and a hard month of digging the potatoes. Mr. Harnes urged the buying of the entire winter's supply at once, instead of a little at a time during the winter months, so that the farmers may obtain funds with which to lay in the necessary seeds for the winter.

Committee Men, through James T. Harnes, chairman, on the re-organizing of the club at 215-seventh-avenue west and grand avenue, reported that the club has made preparations to move to the new site on 215-seventh-avenue west and grand avenue, and that the committee men desired that they were informed.

Invited to City Meeting.

Invitations were received from the West Duluth Y. M. C. A. for the membership of the club in the two-day meeting Monday at the West Duluth Y. M. C. A. building, at 7:30 p. m. The committee men for the Central district will meet at the meeting on Monday, Nov. 13, at 7:30 p. m. at the West Duluth Y. M. C. A. building. Peon Pants, Toreador Trousers, Hit Duluth; Sideburns, Sashes, Too

Flapperdom all Aflutter Over Appearance of Rudolph's American Introduction of Castilian Costume.

"They're here!" breathlessly exclaimed Cecil, our charming scenographer, as he entered the editor's room this morning, "they've hit Duluth at last, and I'm so thrilled."

"Who are here? All the successful candidates for office?"

"No, those peon pants we've been hearing so much about lately, saw a shawl on Superior street just a minute ago wearing a pair of them and he looked so good."

"I was beginning to get worried about the young men of Duluth, because they had been wearing the old-fashioned and behind the times and everything that I guess the reason why they haven't been any on the street before is because the demand for the new style of trousers is so great that the supply of the same is being exhausted."

"Well, by the way, is one of those modern young women who was frantically in love with the man who was wearing the trousers in the picture?"

"There, I'm not sure, but I'm sure she's not wearing a pair of them, because she's wearing a pair of the old-fashioned trousers, with a shawl at the waist and a hat at the bottom."

It is predicted, And despite what jealous males may say, the feminine element approves and does on the colorful costume, and that, as all citizens know, settles the question.

SHARP DECLINE IN STOCK EXCHANGE TODAY

COMBINATION OF OUTSIDE FACTORS BRINGS SELLING

Some Discussion as to Effect of New Congress on Business.

LOANS OVEREXTENDED

Many Houses Are Carrying More Stocks Than They Desire.

By STUART P. WEST.
(By Special Leased Wire to The Herald.)
Wall Street, Nov. 11.—There was further sharp declines on the stock exchange today for which there was no one definite or generally accepted cause. What happened could only be understood in the light of a combination of outside factors with unfavorable conditions within the market itself.

Undoubtedly fear of bad news from Turkey deterred people who otherwise would have been attracted by the heavy fall in prices, to buy. This made the market more liquid than the short selling and forced liquidation.

There was a lot of rather vague discussion over what the increase in industrial representatives might mean for the business future. It was thought that the increase in industrial representatives might mean for the business future. It was thought that the increase in industrial representatives might mean for the business future.

The selling was heavy in the last half hour of the day. There was very little attempt at support and even allowing for the outside uncertainties of the day, the selling was surprisingly poor. Prices left the top of the market with the whole list very weak.

Dividends on the noncumulative 6 percent preferred stock have been announced since June 1921, and nothing has been distributed to the common stock in the past two and a half years. The big professional operators have been on top of the market for two weeks, knowing that some houses were selling stocks to their customers to lighten up and sell at least half of their holdings. These firms take the bank loans are very high and that customers are carrying too much stock. A specific reason was advanced for the selling, "straw for an excuse."

Is a "Pick-Up" Friend Ever Worth While?

Would the Man You Meet in This Way Make You a Good Husband? Could You Always Feel "Sure Of" the Girl Who Permits Flirtation?

By Betty Vincent
Copyright, 1932.

Every young man and young woman in this city faces this problem at some time in their lives. "Shall I encourage the pickup friend?" "Youth makes friends easily, and so many times these are men or girls whom you think you would love to know. Sometimes on the street car, or sitting directly opposite you at a show, a face looks into yours and draws you like a magnet. "Gee, I'd give anything to know that girl," flashes through the young man's brain while the girl thinks, "Why does convention keep us from speaking?"

Somehow the young man and the young woman "pick up" an acquaintance then and there, but more frequently they meet at a party, or at a party where they meet. It is really the thing to do. Remember in cases like this the worth-while young man will not agree to a girl unless he is introduced, and the refined girl never picks up friends just because she "likes their looks."

Two girls will go alone to the movies and see two young men who are also alone. Naturally, since all are young, the thought flashes between them, "Why not hit up an acquaintance?" But girls who make friends with strange men like this seldom form lasting or worth-while acquaintances. Even though the young man is respectable and only goes for a lark they will look upon the whole with a doubt. "I only picked her up," a young chap will think, and turn to the girl whom he has known at school or been properly introduced to.

A man who meets a girl in this fashion seldom comes to her home. If he makes a date with her it is always to meet him at a specified place or at another moving picture show. He doesn't have the sentimentality of a true suitor. If you want to go on meeting him in a "pickup" fashion he is willing enough, but he will never be a courageous, eligible suitor.

And, of course, the girl who will agree to meet a man in this flirtatious manner will be just as willing to meet other men in exactly the same manner. A young man would never feel sure of her. If he were detained on account of business or out of town, he couldn't help thinking, "I wonder who she is gallivanting around with this evening?"

In the long run it doesn't pay to pick up friends this way. A young man may be tall, dark and handsome, and just the type of man a girl desires to meet, but if you can't meet him the right way it isn't hardly worth while getting up a "pickup" friendship with him. You are just making the road easier for the girl who is conventionally introduced to him. And a young girl may be the prettiest thing you ever set eyes upon, but if you have to give her your wrong name for fear she will call you up during office hours or at your home, is it not worth while "picking her up?"

The girl and man who have plenty of friends never need these "pickup" friends who are constantly before them. And if the lonely young man and woman from out of town will only wait their turn they will find the right friends, friends who will be willing to come to one's home and meet one's relatives. "Pickup" friends are just temporary time-killers; they are not the true-blue friends one may depend upon.

PHILOSOPHIA BOTANICA.
Carolus Linnaeus was born in Rasmus, Sweden, in the year 1707 and died in 1778. In the seventy-one years between these dates one of the greatest and most beautiful of the sciences was born and largely matured—the science of botany.

Since the publication of "Philosophia Botanica" the knowledge of plants and flowers was steadily expanded and to Linnaeus our thanks are largely due.

The "father of botany" began admiring and studying plants and flowers when he was only 4 years old. When the mother of Linnaeus was in doubt as to her little boy's whereabouts she invariably went out into the fields where she was sure to find the object of her search in the midst of his botanizing.

From his fourth to his seventy-first year Linnaeus literally lived with the trees, plants and flowers. They were his life, his only study and delight.

Eschewing all other ambitions save the noblest of all—the ambition of being a grandly honorable man—Linnaeus devoted all his splendid energies to the task of understanding the character and voicing the language of the mute tenants of the woods and fields; and it will never be known how much pleasure his labors have conferred upon mankind.

Linnaeus was endowed with a powerful intellect and it was easily within his reach to have become a great historian, or lawyer, or diplomat, or warrior, but he chose, rather, to follow the bent of his God-given inclination and to dedicate his powers to the task of describing and classifying the vast array of forms in the vegetable world.

When Linnaeus was born botany was in chaos.

The beauties of tree, plant and flower appealed to men, of course, as they had been appealing to them for countless ages; but they were scarcely understood at all, and of the marvelous stories that they stood waiting to tell not a word was known.

It was Linnaeus who introduced us to the most innocent and beautiful creations of God and helped us to feel the fellowship with them from which has come so much clean and lasting delight.

It is not unfair to say that to Linnaeus more than to any other man who has ever lived are due our thanks for the present-day intimacy between man and nature.

It is in nature—in the last resort—that our salvation lies. It is from nature that we draw the dynamic force, not only of the body but of the soul, and the closer we are to the mother of us and the fuller we are of her spirit and power the better it is for us in every way, both materially and spiritually.

THE BATTLE OF SALAMIS—THE WOODEN WALLS OF ATHENS

The defeat of Marathon only enraged the Persians. But matters of greater moment than the punishing of an unimportant Greek city arose in Persia, and Darius was dead and ten years had passed before his successor, Xerxes, found the opportunity to carry out his plans of vengeance. This was to be no puny expedition of 50,000 men under a subordinate. Xerxes decided to take charge of this army himself, and the forces he got together numbered more than 1,000,000 when all the camp followers were counted.

The ten years' respite had given the Greeks time to organize themselves somewhat. They had decided to forget their private grievances and unite against the common foe. As the huge Persian army, accompanied by the equally huge fleet, slowly made its way into Greece they found in that united resistance an even greater obstacle than the battle of Marathon had led them to expect.

At Thermopylae, the only pass into Greece proper, a small force under the Spartan King Leonidas held up the whole Persian force for days and made it possible for the Greek army to retreat in safety.

But such deeds of heroism could only retard and not stop the inexorable advance of a vast army. Soon only Athens and the Peloponnese remained to be conquered before Greece could be called a Persian province.

Slowly the Persians advanced toward Athens, burning and wasting the country as they came. To the Athenians it seemed that nothing remained but utter destruction. They sent a messenger to the oracle at Delphi to find out what course the gods advised them to follow and received an answer that they were to "trust to their wooden walls."

Now there was among the Athenians one Themistocles, who had long ago realized that no bravery on the part of the Greek soldiers could help them and who had long cherished a scheme to destroy the Persians by water. But here, too, the enemy had such superiority—a thousand ships to 300 of the allied Greek fleet—that he had been unable to persuade his countrymen to take the risk. But the oracle gave him an opportunity and he took the initiative in a way that once more saved the new-born West from the despotism of the East.

Themistocles persuaded the Athenians that the "wooden walls" in the oracle meant not the walls of their ancient citadel, but their ships, and transported them from the city to the island of Salamis, leaving nothing but empty houses for the Persians to burn.

Then, realizing that if he could cause a battle to take place in the straits of Salamis, where there would be no room for all the Persian ships to maneuver, he fought for time, trying to prevent the Greeks from sailing away as they wished while he sent a supposed traitor to Xerxes to tell him that here was his chance to finally crush the Greeks.

Soon the fleet found itself surrounded by Persians and fought from sheer necessity. A great victory for the Greeks resulted, which was the turning point in Greek and Persian history, for though the Persians did not give up the campaign for several years, yet from that moment they became a negligible factor in the struggle of nations for many centuries after.

Which is the Longer?
Cut out the diagrams illustrated above, or else draw two similar figures on a piece of paper. Show the drawings to your friends and ask them to guess how much longer line A is than line B.

Various estimates will be made, all of them favoring line A. But, as a matter of fact, line B is exactly the same length, which may be proved by measuring them with a ruler or by the straight edge of a card. The Y-shaped marks at the ends of the straight lines make an optical illusion that will deceive the keenest eyes.

There Was a Crooked Man

You little fellows can start right now and practice making toys from pipe cleaners. They will amuse poor children in hospitals if you can make them funny enough.

The crooked man's head is a nut with a face painted on it. This is glued to a crook at the end of the pipe cleaner that forms his body. The hat is of pasteboard. It takes one pipe cleaner for both arms, one for both legs and one for the cane.
