ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

N.B. THE p. (page) with a number annexed, in the left margin, refers to a page in the preceding part; and a number in brackets [] in the same margin, refers to the ordinal number in the margin of the page referred to.

p. 1. ABBOTT.—JOHN ABBOTT, b. Aug. 26, 1662, son of George and Sarah (Farnum) Abbott, of Andover), m. JEMIMA —, and settled in Sudbury, about 1696. Chil., b. in Sud., 1. Jemima, b. [Cady, 5, in Part II.] It was probably their dr. Hannah Cady, who m. in Tolland, William Shurtleff. [See T. Hammond, 148, in Part II]. JOHN ABBOTT, millwright of Wat., was appointed on a committee for building a bridge over Charles River, in Jan. 1713-14. He owned or occupied the land between Mill Creek and the river. He d. in Wat., Mar. 24, 1717-18, aged 57 years, and his widow m. previous to 1721, John Beeks. The will of Jemima Beeks, dated May 28, 1747 [wit. by John Coolidge, Sarah Briant, and Sarah Cotting, and presented for proof Mar. 18, 1754, by Daniel Livermore], mentions dr. Jemima Norcross; dr. Hannah Cadee; and chil. of her dr. Mary Wheeler, d. Mrs. Beeks d. Mar. 4, 1754. [See Beeks, in Part II.]

ADAMS.—It is not improbable that GEORGE ADAMS, of Watertown, was a nephew of Henry Adams, of Braintree, and a brother of John Adams, of Cambridge [See General Reg. VII., p. 40: And see Camb. Church Gathering, p. 62]. George Adams, with wife and 5 children, were living in Wat. in Jan. 1660-1, in indigence.

[7.] Judith Adams, from Lincoln, living with Dr. Adams, of Waltham, was warned [against settlement] Dec. 4, 1758.

p. 2. [32.] George Adams m. in Newton, 1758, Abigail Prentice, dr. of Edward and Abigail (Burridge) P.

[55.] Lieut. Roger Adams, of Newton, m. Hepzibah Russell, of Wat. [For his parentage, and the m. of his children, see Jackson, Hist. Newton, pp. 231 and 232. See there also, the parentage and family of Smith Adams.]

[56.] Smith Adams, son of Joseph and Mercy (Fowle) Adams, of Newton, m., in 1779, Lucy Warren. [Warren, 50-6. Also see Jackson, as above.]

[60.] For Masson, read Mason, N. H.

p. 4. ALLEN.—Feb. 1, 1711-12, wid. JUDITH ALLEN, of Boston [dr. of Capt. Richard Beers] for £36, sold to William Bond, William Shattuck, and Nathaniel Bright (trustees for the purchase of lands for Rev. Mr. Gibbs) 14½ acres of pasture, bounded N. by other pasture of Judith Allen; E. by David Stone and Benjamin Chadwick; S. by Bank Lane; W. by William Bond. Also, 3½ A., bounded N. by highways; E. by B. Chadwick; S. by B. Chadwick: W. by Rd. Beers.

Henry Allen and family moved from Boston to Wat. in July 1722, and dwelt in a house of Jabez Beers. He (H. A.) was probably a grandson of Captain Beers.

[10.] Jemima, second wife of Obadiah Allen, was wid. of Isaac Tomlin, Jr., of Westboro, who d. May 19, 1739, and eldest child of Supply and Susannah (Barnes) Weeks, of Marlboro, b. 1701. She m. (1st.) May 19, 1730, Isaac Tomlin. Both of her marriages, and the death of her first husband, occurred on the 19th of May.

- p. 6. [41.] Joseph Allen, m. in Camb., Dec. 19, 1700, Elizabeth Robbins.
 [50.] Mr. L. R. Page says, "Dea. Joseph Allen, who d. in Hardwick, Aug. 1793, aged 84 (b. 1709) belongs to this family. He was said to have been born in Weston, and his mother d. when he was very young." His place in the order of births is between Rebecca and the twins, Elizabeth and Ann, who were bap. when a week old. He is supposed to be the Joseph Allen, who m., in Westboro, Feb. 9, 1732-3, Mary, (?Mercy) Livermore, "both of Hassanamisco" (Grafton), and settled in Hardwick, where she d. Mar. 1, 1789, in her 77th year [gravestone], and he d. Aug. 18, 1793, æt. 85. In the Hardwick Records, her name is Mercy. [Livermore, 60.]
 [53.] For Daniel, read David.
 [60.] Nathaniel Allen d. before Nov. 16, 1762, leaving wid. Elizabeth and drs. Betty and Tamar, of whom Samuel Stratton was guardian.
- p. 7. [81½.] Ebenezer Allen, being under bodily infirmity, cannot keep his father, Lewis, as he hath for 3 years past, and he is committed to his son Abel, with the aid of the town. [Town Records, Jan. 10, 1706-7.]
 [98.] George Allen, with wife Hannah, and son Samuel (living at Josiah Priest's), came from Medford in 1758, and were warned (against settlement). He, with wife Hannah and 2 children, moved from Waltham to Wat. in 1762.

ALLIRE.—Wid. ALLIRE [? Allen] signed a protest respecting the meeting-house in May, 1694.

- p. 8. AMBLER.—It is probable that this family moved from Wat. to Cambridge, and afterwards to Stamford, Conn. [See Hinman, pp. 48-9.] Abraham and Richard Ambler, of Stamford, were proposed for freemen, Oct. 14, 1669. Abraham was deputy in May, 1674.

ANDERSON.—Jan. 22, 1713-14, JOHN ANDERSON and wife REBECCA, had leave of the town to build and settle on 10 acres of land in Newton, bought of Nathaniel Sanger, bounded W. by Major Gookin, N. by Isaac Williams, E. by Richard Eccles, and S. by highway. At a meeting of the selectmen, Nov. 18, 1714, Nathaniel Bowman was requested to take John Anderson and family. About July 1, 1731, Mary, wife of John Anderson of Groton, left her husband and came to Wat. She probably returned, as John and his wife Mary came from Groton ab. 1734, to the West Precinct (Waltham), lived in John Smith's house; "caution" was entered against their settlement.

WILLIAM ANDERSON was on a coroner's jury in Wat., July 26, 1669.

ANDREWS.—DANIEL ANDREWS was a proprietor of Wat. 1677, and May 13, 1681, Daniel Andrews, bricklayer, of Salem, for £35, sold to Jonathan Sanders [Sanderson] 35 acres, lying between Samuel Thatcher and Samuel Daniels. Feb. 7, 1681-2, he sold to Richard Norcross three parcels of land in Pound Field, in Watertown. This Daniel Andrews of Salem was probably a son of Thomas and Rebecca, first of Wat., and afterwards of Cambridge. Samuel Andrews was wit. to two or more deeds in Wat. in 1685. In May, 1683, a general survey of Worcester was made by Samuel Andrews of Watertown. [Hist. of Worcester, p. 31.] Was he a brother of Daniel?

ANGIER.—Rev. SAMUEL ANGIER m. Sept. 2, 1680. [3.] For Edward, read Ed. mund. [5.] For Uriah, read Urian. [6.] For 1727, read 1717. Chil. of Rev. S A. 2. Hannah, b. 1682; 3. Ruth, b. 1684; 4. Edmund, b. 1685; 5. Samuel, Sept 1687, d. in Camb. Mar. 6, 1721-2; 6. Urian, &c. According to Judge Mitchell [Hist. of Bridgewater, pp. 105 & 6], he had a second daughter Ruth, b. in Wat., 1705, who m. (about 1735) Rev. John Shaw of South Bridgewater. This must be a mistake. In the first place, according to the church and town records, he had no daughter Ruth born in Watertown. It was Sarah, who was b. and bap. in Wat., Aug. 1705. In the next place, his dr. Ruth was one of the executors of his Will, when that supposed second dr. Ruth, could have been only 13 years old.

Nov. 18, 1714. The selectmen of Wat. appointed Urian Angier, schoolmaster, "if he be found qualified." He was a physician, and on the 22 Feb., 1719-20, the selectmen voted him 17 s. for attending Nicholas Wyeth. In the m. of Ephraim A., for 1727, read 1717. In the m. of Oakes A., for 1703-4, read 1730-1. Eunice d. in Bridgewater, 1771, unm. aged 73. Ames (eldest child) m. in Boston, in 1708, Margaret M'Carty, and had son William. Soon after his graduation, the selectmen, on Nov. 22, 1701, agreed with Ames Angier to keep school for £30, those that send to school to furnish $\frac{1}{4}$ cord of wood. [For an account of the family of Rev. John Angier of E. Bridgewater (son of Rev. Samuel, of Wat.), see Mitchell, p. 106.]

p. 9. APPLIN.—Ap. 3, 1687. JOHN APPLIN and wife BATHSHUA of Wat., sold to John Dix, 10 A. of land, with house and barn, bounded E. by Henry Spring; S. and W. by highway; N. by John Dix. [7.] For Ap. 7, 1687, read 1688.

p. 10. BACHELOR.—JOHN BACHELOR was selectman of Wat., 1636. The lot he sold to Jere. Norcross, was sold by Richard and Jere. Jr., for £20, to Thomas Hammond; bounded E. by Robert Tuck, N. and S. by divided lines. One of the lots of Jer. Norcross was bought of Robert Batchelor.

BACON.—First line, for David, read Daniel. Jan. 20, 1678. DANIEL BACON, of Salem, ship-carpenter, for £20, sold to his brother Isaac Bacon of Camb., tailor, $5\frac{1}{2}$ acres in Camb. or Wat., on south side of Charles River, had by deed of father, Daniel Bacon; bounded W. by highway; E. by Wm. Clemence; N. by Jacob Bacon; S. by Isaac Bacon. July 20, 1681. Susanna, wife of Daniel Bacon, Jr. "rendered up her claim of thirds." Mar. 13, 1692-3, Jacob Bacon and wife Elizabeth, living in the bounds of Watertown, for £39, sold to John Barton, of Boston, 7 acres in Wat., bounded E. by Wm. Clement; N. and S. by Ephraim Wheeler; N. by Charles River; W. by highway. The name of John Bacon often occurs in the town records about 1693 to 97. Aug. 15, 1699, money was voted for "John Baken, a distracted man." [See Jackson, p. 234.]

BAILEY.—Rev. JOHN BAILEY was assistant at Old South, in Boston, before his settlement in Wat., and he preached his farewell sermon there July 25, 1686. "July 26 [1686], a considerable troop from Watertown come and fetch Mr. Bailey; some of ours also accompany them." [Sewall's Diary.] I have found no record of a second marriage of Rev. John Bailey; but it is said [Farmer and Mendon Asso. p. 177], that Rev. Peter Thatcher, of Milton, m. for his second wife, the wid. of Rev. John Bailey. The name of the wife of Rev. THOMAS BAILEY was REBECCA. She m. (2d) in Boston, Ap. 26, 1694, William Brown, Jr., Esq. of Salem. [See Farmer.] John Denton, in his Journal of a Visit to N. England, in the winter of 1685-6, says, "I went to visit Mr. John and Mr. Thomas Bailey [in Boston]. These two popular preachers are very generous to strangers; I heard Mr. John upon these words: 'Looking to Jesus,' and I thought he spoke like an angel. They express a more than ordinary kindness to Mr. Wilkins, my landlord, and (being persecuted in Limerick for their nonconformity) came over with him from Ireland."

For much information respecting the life, the talents, character, and eminent Christian virtues of the saintly John Bailey, see Francis, pp. 50-58; also Cotton Mather's sermon, on the day of his funeral, Magnalia, Book III., Part II., Chap. vii., which is one of Mather's "best things."

Oct. 1, 1754. A certificate was presented to the selectmen, that James Bailey, then of Watertown, had been a member of Christ Church, in Boston, since 1731, where his dr. Elizabeth was bap. Oct. 10, 1731. "Elizabeth, wife of James Bailey, buried in Watertown, Oct. 14, 1754." [Records of Christ Church, Boston.] Mar. 11, 1755. Constant, a slave of James Bailey, of Wat., was fined for horse-stealing.

Mr. Bailey's negro man d. March 1751, and 2 negro children, belonging to him d. in 1749.

p. 11. BALDWIN.—[1.] See Saltonstall, 23, Part II.

[11.] Capt. DAVID BALDWIN of Wat. m. ABIGAIL JENNISON. [40.]

[15.] Robert Baldwin of Waltham, b. July 15, 1775, was a posthumous son of Isaac Baldwin, who was killed in the battle of Bunker Hill. James Francis, his 4th child, was b. June 28, not 18.

[15-2-5.] For Clara Ann, read Abby Brown.

- BALL.—[3.] The records and files of the County Court, in reference to Mrs. ELIZABETH BALL, furnish a striking illustration of the ignorance and ill treatment of cases of mania at that period. John and Elizabeth Ball had a dr. Sarah, b. 1655, living in 1657. By a deed of John Ball, dated Mar. 6, 1660-1, it appears that he then had only three children living. One of them was John, another was Mary, whose history was a sad one. It has not been ascertained whether the other child, then living, was Hester or Sarah, or what became of her.
- [4.] It is ascertained that this Sarah Bullard was a dr. of George Bullard.
- [12.] John Ball, m. (2d) 1730, Mary Clark. [12.]
- p. 12. [15.] Mar. 36, 1706, James Ball, of Wat., and wife Elizabeth, for £6, sold to Scipio Finney, negro, 12 acres, bounded N. by Allen Flagg; S. and E. by Chester Meadow; W. by Jonathan Sanders.
- [24.] Peter Ball, of Waltham, one of the coroners of Middlesex, in 1774.
- p. 14. BARNARD.—[1.] For June 4, read June 27.
- [3.] SAMUEL BARNARD, d. Sept. 8, 1683.
- [4-4] Samuel Goffe, m. in Camb. 21, 9, 1682. [Geneal. Reg. vii. p. 58.]
- [5.] In 1722, Sarah Barnard, then of Andover, wid. of James Barnard, of Sud., gave bonds as administratrix. It is probable that she was a 2d wife, and from Andover.
- [6.] Mary Barnard was the 2d wife of Wm. Barrett, of Camb., who lived near the College.
- [3 & 7.] Samuel Barnard and Joseph Barnard, then of Hadley, took the oath of fidelity, Feb. 8, 1678. It is probable that these were sons of John Barnard, of Waterton, but this remains to be ascertained. In 1683, Joseph Barnard was a leading man in Deerfield, Mass. In 1714, William Brown, of Lancaster, sold land in L. to Samuel Barnard, of Hadley.
- [8-1.] Ap. 30, 1706, Sarah Barnard, in her 15th year, chose her uncle Paul Wentworth, of (?) Dover, for her guardian.
- [8-2.] For 1694, read 1693.
- p. 15. [13.] July 25, 1708. Mercy, wife of Ensign Samuel Barnard, was adm. f. c. by Rev. Mr. Angier, and, in the record, he calls her "cousin Mercy," which implies a relationship between the family of Rev. John Sherman and the Angier family. Or, was it because she was a dr. of a ministerial brother?
- [33.] The Will of Jonathan Barnard, dated Aug. 25, 1774, proved June 25, 1776, mentions sons Edmund, Joseph, Benjamin, Nathan, Josiah, and drs. Phebe and Hannah. His inventory, June 28, 1776, by Capt. Edmund Bowman, and Samuel Stearns, £55 5s. His eldest son, Jonathan, not mentioned in the will, probably d. young. His son Josiah, who died in the public service, belonged to the company of Capt. Jonathan Browne. Cornelius and Sarah, not mentioned in the will, probably d. young.
- p. 16. [41] Nathan Barnard, a soldier of the Revolution, went first to Jeffrey, N. H., afterwards settled in Union, Me. [See Sibley's History of Union.]
- [45.] James Barnard d. before 1742, when his wife was a widow.
- [49.] David Barnard moved to Waltham, in Aug. 1766.
- [54.] Major S. Barnard commanded a company "at Lexington alarm." He was selectman, 1778 and 79.
- [57.] For Painter, read Tainter.
- [60.] From 2.60 in the margin, strike out 2. The estate of James Barnard was divided (lodged, May 16, 1810), to sons James, Jonas (gone out of the commonwealth), Samuel, John, Sally [Sarah], wife of Israel Whitney, Anna, Roxana, and Dolly.
- p. 17. BARRON.—[1.] The Will of ELLIS BARRON, dated Oct. 26, proved Dec. 19, 1676, contains bequests to wife; to eldest son Ellis, £10; son John, £5; son Moses, £4; to granddr. Elizabeth Barron, "the pyed black heifer." The residue of the estate to be divided into 7 parts among 7 children. Oct 16, 1658, the Court ordered William Fletcher to pay Elliz Barnes [Barron, then Constable of Wat.] 8 shillings, for hue and cry sent out for his servant. Wid. Hannah Barron, in her Will, mentions her "negro, Shippio." [See James Ball. [15] in Part II.] Daniel Barrou, of Woburn, in 1653, was probably a son of Elliz, of Watertown.
- ☞ In the early records, the orthography of this name (Barron) is often varied, being frequently written Barnes.
- [2.] The Will of Elliz Barron, of Lancaster, dated Dec. 31, 1711, proved Oct. 7, 1712, mentions wife Lydia; sons Timothy and Elliz; drs. Abigail Houghton, Mehitabel Parker, Hannah Cady, Elizabeth Philbrick, Sarah Taylor, and Grace Stevens. His dr. Elizabeth, m. Ephraim "Philbrook," of Groton. [See Butler, p. 426.] There is a deed, dated Nov. 5, 1706, signed by Ellis Barron, housewright, of Wat., and wife Lydia, conveying house and land in Wat. to Timothy Barron [? his son]. In 1713 [probably the date of the registration, and not of the deed], Ellis Barron, of Lancaster, and wife Lydia, sold to son Ellis, of Groton, and his son Samuel, land in Groton, near to Ephraim Philbrick's. It is probable that he [E. B. [2]] was driven from Groton by Indian hostilities, returned to Wat., with a 2d wife, Lydia, where he remained, until he sold his house and land to his son Timothy, and then (about 1706 or 7) moved to Lancaster.

- [9.] Timothy Barron was constable of Wat., in 1715. June 17, 1717, he sold his house and 12 A., and one other lot in Wat., to Jonas Bond, Esq. He d. July 28, 1718, aged 46. It was probably his 2d son, Timothy, who m., in Groton, Jan. 13, 1725-6, Hannah Fletcher, of Chelmsford. His 3d son, Peter, d. in Camb. Ap. 11, 1721, æt. 19 [gravestonè]. And it was probably his dr. "Rachel Barns, of Watertown," birth not recorded, who was pub. in Boston with Philip Marret, of B., Jan. 24, 1731-2.

BARSHAM.—Barsham is a Yorkshire name. Coat of arms. Per pale gu. and ar. a chief or. Crest.—A garb in fesse. William Barsham was one of a jury of inquest, Sept. 28, 1630, and member of a trial jury, "of life and death," Sept. 19, 1637. He was a selectman in 1653, and was some time sealer of weights and measures. His son JOHN, probably of Exeter, by wife MEHITABEL had the following children.

1. Annable, b. May 31, 1670. 2. Mary, b. Feb. 26, 1671-2.

3. Dorothy, b. Feb. 2, 1673-4. 4. Sarah, b. Aug. 11, 167-.

5. William, b. Ap. 25, 1678. [Record in the State Archives, Concord, N. H.]

Capt. Nathaniel Barsham, was a lieutenant in the forces raised in 1690 for an expedition against Canada. He was town-clerk 1686 and 98; selectman, 1686, 88, 89, and 90.

p. 18. BARSTOW.—This orthography of this name has been adopted here, because it has become the almost universal usage. But there is very little doubt that BAIRSTOW is the correct one. This is the orthography very generally used in the Watertown Records, and most frequently in the early Colonial Records, where it is also written Bayrstow. We have the autograph of Michael, the eldest of the four brothers, who came to America, and he always wrote it Bairstow. In his Will and Inventory on record, the Register of probate has written it Barstow, while in the original Inventory, which is on file, it is Bairstow; and it is probable that the Register took the same liberty to alter the name in recording the Will. It is also Bairstow in the Will of his wife's sister, Susanna Halstead. The social position, the respectable and important public appointments bestowed upon Michael Bairstow, imply that he was a man of so much intelligence, that in this matter we may recur to his practice as pretty good authority. This orthography is the one, and the only one, found in Burke's Encyclopædia of Heraldry, and the following is the coat of arms belonging to it. "Bairstow. Erm. on a fesse betw. two cotisses sa. three crescents ar. Crest, out of a crescent a demi eagle displ." In Barry's History of Hanover, p. 208, is another coat of arms, with a variation in the name and escutcheon, and a different crest, which is as follows. "Barstow, Naburn Hall, York. Ermine on a fesse sable, three crescents or. Crest, a horse's head, coupéd ar." It is probable that the former is the most ancient, and that it is the one, if either, that belongs to the families of this name in New England, and that the latter, more recent, has been granted or assumed, since the Barstows came to New England.

There is no doubt but that MICHAEL BARSTOW, of Wat., was the eldest of the four brothers that early came to this country. Michael Barstow, son of Matthew Barstow, of Shelf, a parish of Halifax, Co. York, was bap. Nov. 17, 1600, and m. Feb. 16, 1624-5, Grace Halstead. It is not known when he arrived, but he was a lot-holder in Charlestown in 1635, and he and his wife were admitted to Charlestown Church, Dec. 5, 1635. (Miles Bastow and Marcia,* his wife.) It is not ascertained at what time

* This seems to imply that he had two wives, 1, "Marcia" (Mercy), 2, Grace. But there are instances on record where the names Mercy and Grace were used the one for the other. This was undoubtedly the case here, as appears by his marriage in England. Susanna Halstead, who was a sister of Grace, wife of Michael Bairstow he moved from Charlestown to Watertown; but it must have been between July, 1636, when his name was not on the list of those who received allotments of Beaver Brook Plowland, and 1642, when he owned a large homestead and 6 other lots of land. He sold his house in Charlestown to James Browne, which he (J. B.) sold to Abraham Hawkins, Nov. 20, 1643. By his Will, dated June 23, 1674, he gave his "farm [100 acres farmland, not his homestead] to my pastor, John Sherman;" to the church in Wat., £16; to Hannah Barstow, alias Prince, 1 bible, and the debt due by her first husband, William Barstow; to Elizabeth, wife of William Randall, of Scituate, £5; to Susan, wife of Wm. Perry, of Medfield, £5; to Michael, son of John Barstow, d., my upland and meadow, near house of John Traine; also, my lot at Bear Hill; to John and Jeremiah (also) sons of John Barstow, d., each £15; to Dea. Thomas Hastings (exr.) £10; to Dea. Henry Bright (exr.) 40s. The residue to be divided into 10 parts; 2 parts to chil. of brother George, d., and 8 parts to chil. of brother William, deceased. Elizabeth Randall, and Susan Perry, named in the Will, are supposed to be his sisters, but are not mentioned as such. [See Shattuck 15, Part II.] He did not die May 23, 1674, but probably in Ap. or May, 1676, a short time before the date of his Inventory.

William and George Barstow (Beresto) embarked for N. England in the autumn of 1635, without wives, aged respectively 23 and 21 years. It is not known when John Barstow arrived; but according to his age, given at the coroner's inquest, he was born about 1625, showing him to have been at least ten years younger than either of the other brothers.

2. [4.] WILLIAM BARSTOW (next in age to Michael) settled in Dedham about 1636, and he removed thence to Scituate, between 1643 and 1649. He m. Anne —. "He was an extensive landholder, a man of high respectability, and a worthy and enterprising man." He d. in 1668, aged 56, intestate, and admin. granted to his wid., Anne. His Inventory, taken by Robert Stetson and Joseph Sylvester, was sworn to by his wid. Ap. 5, 1669. His wid. m. (2d) John Prince, the first of the name in New England. [See Geneal. Reg. V. p. 383.] Chil.:
3. 1. Joseph, b. in Dedham, June 6, 1639, of Hingham; m., May 16, 1666, Susanna Lincoln.
4. 2. Mary, bap. in Dedham, Jan. 2, 1642-3.
5. 3. Patience, b. in D. Dec. 3, 1643, m. 1662, Moses Simmons, of Scit.
6. Sarah Barstow, a legatee of Susanna Halstead, and mentioned in connection with Deborah [6], was, without much doubt, a daughter of William, and the one who m. about 1665, Nathaniel Church, a carpenter, of Scituate, son of Richard, and elder brother of Caleb, of Wat. 8. 5. William, b. in S., Sept. 1652, inheritor of his father's homestead; a ship-builder and owner of a sawmill; by wife Sarah had 7 chil., and very numerous descendants.
9. 6. Martha, b. in S. 1655, m. Dec. 9, 1674, Samuel Prince, a son of her mother's 2d husband. She d. in Hull, Dec. 18, 1684; 5 children, one of whom, Martha, m. Ezra Bourne, of Sandwich, and their dr., Mary Bourne, m. Rev. John Angier, of E. Bridgewater, youngest son of Rev. Samuel Angier, of Wat.
- N.B. It appears by the will of Michael Bairstow, of Wat., that 8 shares of his residuary estate were given to the chil. of his brother William, implying either that there was one child whose name has not been ascertained, or that a double share was intended for the eldest son, which, however, does not appear in the will.
10. [3.] GEORGE BARSTOW, a member of the Artil. Co., 1644, had land granted to him in Dedham in 1642; was a householder of Scituate in 1652, and member of the 2d church. The next year he returned to Camb., where he d., Aug. 18, 1652. He m. Susannah, dr. of Dea. Thomas and Susannah Marrett, of Camb. where she d. Ap. 17, 1654.

13. [4.] JOHN BARSTOW, the youngest of the 4 brothers. Strike out the marriage of his widow, and see, above, Anne, wid. of his brother William. In the Inventory of Capt. Bozoun Allen, dated Sept. 22, 1652, is mentioned a debt due by "John Bersto, at Mr. Hibbin's farm." He had 3 children.

was admitted to Charlestown Church only 14 days after Michael and his wife. It is probable that she (S. H.) came over with her sister, and lived and died with her, unmarried.

In 1714, Jabez Beers, of Wat., sold land to Joseph Shattuck, of Wat., barber-chirurgeon, and his wife Mary.
- [12.] It is probable that Anthony Beers moved from Wat. to Rox., and there had son Barnabas, b. Sept. 6, 1658. In 1667, lands in Fairfield, Conn., were granted to Anthony Beers, which he sold in 1669.
- [22.] This name, Eleazer, by inadvertence, was misplaced. He was a son, probably the eldest, of Captain Richard Beers, and was one of his executors.

BEMIS.—The estate of JOSEPH BEMIS [1], was divided, Nov. 18, 1712, after the d. of his wid. Sarah, and it was distributed (except what had been given to "eldest son, Joseph," and dr. Martha), to the following children, viz.; Ephraim, Mary, Rebecca, and John. As the eldest child, Sarah [2] is not mentioned in this distribution, she was probably d. s. p. It appears that Joseph [3½] the eldest son lived to have a share of his father's estate, but it is not known what became of him. Martha [4], was adm. f. c. by Rev. Mr. Angier, Feb. 25, 1697–8, then aged about 49, unm. Ephraim, [7 and 9] settled in Watertown, where the births of four of his children are recorded, but the account of his family is brief. He probably had other children besides those four recorded, and it is probable that his family, or some part of it, moved to Windham and Hampton, in Windham Co., Conn.

BENJAMIN.—May 20, 1633. Mr. JOHN BENJAMIN was chosen constable of New Town [Camb.] by the General Court. Nov. 7, 1634, he was exempted from training on account of age and infirmity, but was required to have, at all times, arms for himself and servants. He was of New Town, in Oct. 1636, and there was a mistake in saying that his house was burned in Watertown. It is conjectured that he purchased several homestalls in Watertown, of those who migrated to Wethersfield. N.B. The references on p. 27, are to Hinman's Catalogues, 1st edition. See his 2d ed., pp. 196-7.

Inventory of the real estate of John Benjamin, Sen. [1.], proved July 3, 1645. House and meadow next the mill, lot bought of John Bernard, £50; house and 60 acres (homestall) £75; 10 acres of meadow, near Oyster Bank, £10; 10 acres in Rocky Meadow, £13; 8 acres in Great Dividends, £12; 16 acres in Wat., bought Ap. 20, 1645, of Capt. Robert Sedgwick, of Charlestown, £10.

- p. 27. [3.] Mrs. Abigail Woodward was wit. in Court, June, 1671, then aged 47, showing that she was b. in England about 1624.

☞ John Benjamin, Sen., had a son Joseph, of whom there is no mention in Wat. records, and who settled in Barnstable. He m., June 10, 1661, Jemima, dr. of Thomas and Joice Lambert, of Barnstable. "Oct. 30, 1686, Joseph Benjamin, of Barnstable, sold land in Camb., bounded on land of Abel Benjamin, my brother, which was devised by Will of my honored father, Mr. John Benjamin, some time of Watertown, deceased." William Clark, of Yarmouth, who d. Dec. 7, 1668, by his nuncupative Will, proved Feb. 28, 1668-9, gave his property (£8 3s.) to Joseph Benjamin. [Gen. Reg. vii. p. 178.] There was a Joseph Benjamin and wife Hannah, of Hampton, Conn., as early as 1748, whose lineage has not been ascertained. They had at least 5 chil. [Hinman, p. 197.]

[9.] Joshua Benjamin d. May 6, 1684, aged 42, therefore b. 1642.

[10.] The nuncupative Will of Samuel Benjamin, of Hockanum (Hartford), made about Sept. 18, 1669, "a little before he died," proved Nov. 10, 1670, by Thomas Atwood, aged about 60 yrs., and Thomas Edwards, aged about 47 yrs., gave all his estate to wife Mary, to dispose of at her discretion, and made his brother Abel, overseer. Inventory £98 19. The wid. in Court agreed to pay the two daughters, Mary and Abigail, £10 each, at their marriage, or at the age of 18 years. Of the two sons of

* It is conjectured that the following Bemis family are descended from Ephraim Bemis.

Jotham Bemis, Jr., and wife Tryphema, from Connecticut, settled early in Saratoga, Saratoga County, N. Y., on the margin of Hudson River, and on the road leading from Albany to Skenesborough (now Whitehall). He kept a public house, which was the only one of note between those two places. The high ground, rising in the rear, or on the west side of his house, and known as Bemis Heights, has acquired an historical celebrity, as the place where the battle was fought, which resulted in the capture of Gen. Burgoyne and his army. Gen. Gates occupied the house of Mr. Bemis, as his headquarters, until after the battle of Sept. 19, 1777, when it was occupied by Gen. Lincoln, and Gen. Gates removed his headquarters to the house of Captain Ephraim Woodworth, on the Heights.

Mr. Bemis had 5 children. 1. Jonathan. 2. William, who both moved from that town. 3. John, who settled on the homestead, but moved to the town of Saratoga Springs, where he and his wife both d. about 1828, s. p. 4. SAMUEL BENJAMIN, of Hoccanum, the eldest, Samuel, had a son, Samuel, and two daughters. His 2d son, John, of Hartford, m., in Hartford, HANNAH ———. His Will, dated Oct. 14, proved Nov. 1753, appointed his son Gideon exec'r and residuary legatee. Inventory of his real estate, dated Dec. 26, 1753, amounted to £1870 (? O. T.). The Will of his wid. Hannah, dated Dec. 7, 1754, mentions sons Samuel, Gideon, and Caleb, and makes the latter exec'r and residuary legatee. Children of John and Hannah, of whom the births of only two are recorded.

1. David, of Hartford, m. Ruth ———. May, 1749, admin. on his estate was granted to his wid. Ruth. Inventory presented Sept., 1749, £211 17. His wid. Ruth was appointed guardian of his chil., Feb. 4, 1752, viz.: 1. Samuel, about 7 years old. 2. David, about 4. 3. Jonathan, aged about 2 years.

4. Samuel, b. May 30, 1708, had also a bequest of £50.

Jan. 12, 1696-7, John Benjamin sold to his sons, Daniel and Abel, 60 acres in Dorchester Field [? the homestead of John, Senr.] bounded S. by Charles River, E. by William Bond and Dorchester Field, W. by heirs of John Loveran, N. by Robert and Jonas (? BIGELOW.—[1.] JOHN BIGELOW, Senr., was b. in 1617, according to his age, given as a witness in Court. His Will, dated Jan. 4, 1702, 3, mentions his wife (not named), sons John ("the eldest"), Jonathan, Daniel, Samuel, Joshua; drs. Mary Flagg, Elizabeth Sternes; chil. of dr., Sarah Larned, drs. Abigail Harrington and Martha Woods. Son Joshua and son-in-law Isaac Larned, ex'rs. Capt. Benjamin Garfield, overseer. The Inventory of his real estate, dated July 16, 1703. Also a charge, 2s., for a man and horse to notify John Stearns, at Billerica to attend the funeral. Also, 3s. for a man and horse to Sherburne to notify Isaac Larned and wife to attend the funeral.

- [10.] As there is no reference to a son James, or his family in the father's Will, it might raise a doubt whether John had such a son; but the record of his marriage, by Rev. Mr. Bailey, must remove all doubt. "Upon the 25 March, 1687, at my own house, in Watertown, I married James Begalow, the son of John Begalow, and Patience Brown, the daughter of Jona. Brown, with their parents' full consent, being legally published," &c.

p. 42. BISCOE.—(Brisco.) [1.] Mr. NATHANIEL BISCOE was Selectman, 1648 and 50. It is probable that he was a Baptist, agreeing in sentiment with Dr. John Clarke, with whom he was associated in England. His letter to Mr. Thomas Broughton, of Boston, his son-in-law, shows that he was an acute observer, a clear, independent thinker, and a terse, vigorous writer; and it is easy to conceive that such a writer, attacking the politico-ecclesiastical policy of Massachusetts Bay, would make a very sensible impression. In encountering such a disputant, it was very discreet for Hubbard to conclude, fuste potius erudiendus quam argumento. [See Hubbard's History, chap. xlvi.] The 47 acres of land which he purchased of the town and sold to John Wincol, about the time of his return to England, was bounded N. by Thomas Straight, common land, Beaver Brook, and land of John Whitney, E. by highway to Concord [now Lexington Street], S. by Isaac Sternes, Bartholomew Pierson, George Bullard, and Anthony Pierce, W. by highway, N.W. by John Warren. The Inventory of his son, John, renders it probable that this land was returned or reverted to him, and the probability is strengthened by the circumstance, that this lot is not, as I think, mentioned in any of the several sales made by Capt. Wincol, about the time he moved to Kittery. This lot seems to coincide, in part, with the land which Andrew White and Nathaniel Stearns bought, in 1713, of Elisha Cooke, of Boston. [See White, 5.] Notwithstanding the disparaging tone of Wintthrop's Journal, respecting "one Briscoe," it is evident from the records, that his townsmen entertained a high opinion of his capacity and integrity. On important committees, "Mr. Briscoe" was generally placed at the head. Sept. 8, 1647, for £7 16s., he bought land in Boston (mortgage) of Angel Holland, shoemaker, of Boston. [See Geneal. Reg. iv. 319.]

[2.] It is conjectured that Nathaniel Brisco, Jr., soon after his difficulty with Nathaniel Eaton, the first principal of Harvard College, went first to Wethersfield, and very soon proceeded to Milford, Connecticut, where other Watertown emigrants settled, where his name is on the first list of free planters, Nov. 20, 1639, and where he was admitted to the Church, Ap. 20, 1644. The records show, that he had a share in the business of the town, and that he was a proprietor of several lots or tracts of land. It is probable that in the autumn of 1651, he came to Watertown to take leave of his father, then about to return to England. We may infer from the letter of his father to Mr. Broughton (Sept. 7, 1652), that he had settled at a considerable distance from Mr. Broughton, then of Boston. No record of his marriage, nor of the birth of his children, has been discovered, but it is supposed that he had two children, Nathaniel and James. He d. in 1683.

- p. 91. BOYLSTON.—[1.] For 1668, read Feb. 21, 1668-9.
- It is evident, from the County Records, that THOMAS BOYLSTON, of Wat., was not a very exemplary husband or Christian, and that his friends in England had not full confidence in his prudence and discretion; as an agent was employed to purchase an estate for him in Watertown. It is not improbable that he had been a gay young gentleman of London, whose habits were not formed after the puritanical model, and, not being a member of the church, he was never admitted freeman.
- Ap. 1650. Suit. Thomas Boylston vs. Thomas Pratt, for withholding money sent him by his uncle. John Sawin testified that in 1648, he spoke with the old man (the uncle), and he said he had assigned his house and lands in New England to him, Thomas Pratt [in trust] for young Boylston ["Boidson"] and his children. Nonsuited.

[For the information respecting the family and descendants of Dr. Thomas Boylston, Jr., of Muddy River, on page 91, we were indebted almost exclusively to the researches of Mr. Thomas B. Wyman, Jr. Since the printing of that page, he has made some corrections, and added greatly to the amount of that information, which he has published in the Geneal. Reg. vii. pp. 145-150. The Genealogy, is still far from being complete, and the compiler desires those who are interested in the subject, and are critical in such matters, to communicate corrections and additions, to Mr. John Hunt, Boston. To aid in this undertaking, and to give a more full and satisfactory view of that luxuriant branch of the old Watertown stock, we here insert in a condensed form, so much of that article in the Register, as seems to be clearly ascertained.]

Since the Bright pedigree, on pages 98 and 99, was printed (in Sept. 1852), Mr. Somerby has been prosecuting his antiquarian and genealogical researches in England, and he has obtained much additional information respecting the early history of that family. Besides a few corrections, the additions are so great, that it is deemed advisable to reprint the pedigree, corrected and enlarged; and to append to it, in the form of notes, most of the information recently obtained. For the materials of this information, we are chiefly indebted to the personal researches of Mr. Somerby, and for the condensation and arrangement of them in the following pages, we are much indebted to Mr. Jonathan B. Bright, of Waltham, whose enlightened liberality has furnished the means for prosecuting these elaborate investigations.

That the Bright family of Suffolk, was one of high respectability among the gentry of that county, is evident from their many alliances by marriage, with persons of honourable houses. Although their lineage has been traced back no farther than to Walter Bright, of Bury St. Edmunds, yet there are reasons for believing the family to have been related to the Brights who flourished in the county of Kent, at a much earlier period. Catherine Bright, of Royton, in that county, who married Robert Waters, a gentleman of large estates, was the mother of Mary Waters, who afterwards became the celebrated Mrs. Honeywood, wife of Robert Honeywood, of Mark's Hall, in Essex. In 1709, her portrait was bequeathed by Thomas Bright, of Bury St. Edmunds, to his cousin Fisher; who, he says, was related to the Honeywoods. Some families of the name of Bright flourished in Essex and Norfolk, from a very early period, and as these counties adjoin Suffolk, it is quite probable that they were of the same original stock. The Suffolk family of Bright, in the male line, is believed to be extinct in England.

Henry Bright, the Anglo-American ancestor of the family embraced in this volume, was evidently the only one of the Suffolk family, that came to New England. It has already been shown (page 96), that he must have come over as early as 1630, as in that year he became a member of the first church of Boston, which was organized in Charlestown. As his name does not afterwards occur in the Boston Records, nor among those who remained in Charlestown, after the great removal thence to Boston, it is presumed that he went very early to Watertown, perhaps in 1630, although not with the very first settlers. His descendants, in the male line, have continued to reside in Watertown, and its vicinity, to the present time. They have never been numerous; but the pages of this volume show that those in the female branches, who trace their lineage to him, are very numerous.

Others of the name of Bright, came early to New England; but there are no reasons, derived from American records or traditions, for supposing that any of them were related to Deacon Henry Bright of Watertown; and the result of the extensive investigations in England, seems to prove clearly that they were not. Two of these were of Watertown, viz.: Henry Bright, "Sen." [see page 96], and Thomas Bright, who purchased the house and homestall lot of Lient. Robert Feake, and sold it, Dec. 17, 1640, for £60, to Col. William Rainborow. It is probable, that this Thomas Bright went to Hampton, about the time he sold his house and land in Watertown. Nothing is known of the origin or the date of the arrival of either of them. [May not this Thomas, be the Thomas Brighton, who embarked in the Truelove, for New England, in Sept., 1635, then aged 31?] Rev. Francis Bright, son of Edward Bright, of London, came over in 1629, in company with Mr. Higginson, settled in Charlestown, and returned to England the next year. [See Frothingham's Hist. of Charlestown, p. 25.] Samuel Bright, servant of John Sweet, was adm. f. c., first church in Boston, Sept. 1644, and was adm. freeman, May, 1645. The name Bright appears in Salem, in 1636, and in Hampton, in 1640, but it is not known what became of those bearing it. The name occurs frequently in Boston in the last century, as early as 1724, in church records; also in Dedham. Most of those in the United States, out of New England, are supposed to be descended from early settlers of this name in Pennsylvania.

NOTES TO THE PEDIGREE ON PAGES 708-9.

NOTE 1. (I. Generation.)—John Bright, of the Parish of St. Mary, Bury St. Edmunds, in the County of Suffolk, maltster, was living in the time of Henry VIII., when he held lands of the Abbot of that place, and may have been the father of Walter, Roger, and Margaret Bright. This is the only one of the pedigree not provable by Wills and parish registers. The register of the Parish of St. Mary, although it begins as soon as any in England, 1538, is not sufficiently old to contain the baptisms of those first named in the pedigree. No Will of this John Bright has been discovered. John Bryghte was witness to the Will of Anne Buckenham, of Bury St. Edmunds, May 20, 1539. He was buried June 26, 1545. This is the earliest Bright yet ascertained as residing in Bury St. Edmunds, from which circumstance it may be inferred, he was originally of another town or county. The name is common in the adjoining counties of Essex and Norfolk. It is, therefore, possible that the Brights of these three counties, were originally from the same stock. At this time, there is but one person of the name living in the County of Suffolk, and he, a descendant of a family of Shropshire, whose ancestor settled in this county, in the last century.

NOTE 2. (II. Gen.)—Walter Bright, of the Parish of St. Mary, Bury St. Edmunds, mercer, was a man of wealth and consideration in that place. He owned a house in College Street. He was one of fifty-two parishioners of St. Mary's, who, in 1546, authorized the churchwardens, of whom John Bright was one, to sell the church plate, for the repairs of the church. His Will, dated October 28, 1550, proved in the Prerogative Court, in London, Feb. 6, 1551, provides for his wife Margaret, she to have his dwelling-house in College Street for one year, and all the property she brought with her. His son, John, "to have a harness for a man, with half a sheaf of arrows." Son Edmund, a house. Son Thomas, to have a close, with appurtenances, in Westgate Street. Legacies to his daughter Joan, wife of Thomas Cage, and their children, Mary and John; to his brother Roger Bright, and his sons, Augustine, Nicholas, and Thomas; to his sister Margaret Page, and her sons, George and John. Legacies in money, to all his children and grandchildren, to the poor, and to St. Mary's Church. The name of his first wife, and mother of all his children, has not been ascertained. His second wife, was Margaret Elwolde. It is possible she married, after his decease, Wm Jervis, of Wkepstead, Gent., as Thomas Bright in his Will, dated August 20, 1587, appoints his father-in-law, said Wm. Jervis, supervisor.

Of the descendants of the other sons of Walter, viz., John and Edmund, and his daughters, Joan and Katherine, nothing is known beyond what is mentioned in the pedigree.

NOTE 3. (II. Gen.)—Roger Bright, of Bury St. Edmunds. He and his sons, are mentioned in his brother, Walter Bright's, Will, October 28, 1550. The Will of his widow Joan, dated Bury St. Edmunds, Feb. 4, 1578, and proved March 26, 1580, mentions her son Thomas Bright, and his children, Thomas, Agnes, and Margaret, not 18 years of age Daughter Agnes (Annie ?), and her husband, Thomas Whight, and their children, viz :—Margaret, Mary, Dorothy, Elizabeth, and Frances, not 18.—Daughter Margaret, and her husband, Richard Collyn, and their children, Margaret, Cranvys, and Elizabeth.—Daughter Mary, and her husband, Thomas Balles, and their son William.—Brother, John Skott, and his wife Alice, and their daughter Mary. Sister, Jackesonne. Her god-daughters, Katherine, and Alice, children of John Bright, and several others. John Skott, and Thomas Bright, draper, executors.

NOTE 4. (II. Gen.)—Margaret Bright, wife of — Page, and her two children, George and John, are mentioned in her brother Walter's Will, October 28, 1550. Nothing further is known of them.

NOTE 5. (III. Gen.)—John Bright, of the Parish of St. Mary, Bury St. Edmunds, clothier. He lived in College Street. He is mentioned in his father, Walter Bright's, Will, Oct. 28, 1550; also in the Will of Joan Bright, widow of his uncle, Roger Bright, Feb. 4, 1578. His own Will, dated August 5, 1593, proved in the Prerogative Office, in London (a copy of which is at Bury St. Edmunds), gives to his wife Alice, during her life, all his lands, tenements, meadows, &c., &c.; legacies to his daughter Joan, wife of Thomas Osburne, and their children Thomas, John, Jane, Susan, Alice, and Joan; to his daughter Mary, wife of Henry Cage, and their children, Henry, Mary, and Margaret; to his daughter Cicely, wife of Robert Beane: to his daughter Margaret, a house and grounds, in Church Govel Street; his wife, Alice, to have the charge of said Margaret and her property during life, from which it is inferred that Margaret was of unsound mind; gives to his daughter Alice, wife of Nicholas Sharpe: to his daughter Catherine, wife of Henry Copsey, and to the children of his brother, Edmund Bright. Appoints Thomas Bright, son of his brother Thomas, supervisor. His widow, Alice Bright, made her Will at Felsham, Co. of Suffolk, in 1600, which was proved, at Bury St. Edmunds, in September, the same year; gives to her daughters, Joan Osburne, Mary Cage, Catherine Copsey, Alice Sharpe, Margaret Bright, and Cicely Beane, and her grand-daughter Cicely Beane, and son-in-law Robert Beane; speaks of her house, in College Street; appoints her daughter Joan, governess of her daughter Margaret, and executrix to her Will, and her kinsman, Thomas Bright, son of Thomas Bright, deceased, supervisor.

NOTE 6. (III. Gen.)—Edmund Bright, son of Walter, of the Parish of St. Mary, Bury St. Edmunds, and wives, viz.: 1st, Anne —, 2d, Catherine Copsey. Administration by his widow, March 27, 1589. He is mentioned in his father Walter's, and his brother John Bright's Wills. Nothing is known of this branch beyond his children, and the children of his son Thomas Bright.

NOTE 7. (III. Gen.)—Thomas Bright, the elder, was of the Parish of St. James, in Bury St. Edmunds, draper. He was the alderman (chief magistrate) of Bury, lord of the manor of Brookhall, in Foxearth, Co. of Essex, and of the manor of Butters Hall, in Thompson, Co. of Norfolk. His Will, dated August 20, 1587, was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, September 23, 1587. He gave to his wife Margaret, during her life, the manor of Butters, with 400 sheep, and tenements called Bees and Brightmeares; also the manor of Brookhall; also lands and tenements in Bury St. Edmunds, Great Barton, Nowton, and Fornham, St. Martins. After her death, his son Thomas to have the Norfolk estate, and Walter, son of said Thomas, to succeed. To son Robert, his property called Barton Place, in Great Barton. To son Henry, his lands, tenements, and fields in Barton, and in other towns and parishes, which he had purchased of Sir Robert Jermy, Knight, and George Cocks; also a stone house in Whiting Street; also a tavern and other buildings on Angel Hill, Skinner's Row, Smith's Row, and Frier's Lane, &c., and other places in Bury St. Edmunds. Son Thomas to have, with other property, the close in Westgate Street, which his father Walter gave him by his Will. To son Jasper, certain tenements in Nowton, and a house in Bury St. Edmunds, &c., &c. Legacies to daughter Margaret, wife of Robert Roodes; to daughter Agnes, wife of Thomas Reade, and to daughters Katherine and Susan, not 21 years of age. Mentions his godson Thomas, son of his brother Edmund, and brother John. Gave to the Feoffees of the Guildhall Feoffment, Bury St. Edmunds, for several charitable purposes, the sum of £300. Appoints sons Thomas and Robert executors, and his father-in-law, William Jervis, of Whepstead, Gent., supervisor of his Will. His estates were large. In the Rolls Chapel, London, are three Inquisitions, Post Mortem, describing his lands in Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk. His portrait, procured by the Corporation of Bury St. Edmunds, hangs in the Guildhall. By permission of the town authorities, a copy has been made, which is in the possession of J. B. Bright, of Waltham, Massachusetts. His wife Margaret (Payton) Bright, held her first Court for Butters Hall Manor, August 14, 1590. Her Will is dated Nov. 20, 1599, and was proved in the Prerogative Court, at London, March, 1600. She was then residing in London, probably with her son Robert, who was afterwards of Netherhall. She gave to her sons, Robert, Henry, and Jasper, and her daughters Anne Reade, Katherine Barker, Joan Houghton, and Susan Barber, £100 each; to the children of her sons Thomas, Robert, and Henry; to the poor of the Parishes of St. James and St. Mary, in Bury St. Edmunds: to the poor of Thompson, in Norfolk; Barton and Risbie, in Suffolk. Mentions her brothers, Ralf Payton, Adam Payton, and George Payton; sisters Reyner, and Rose Laughan; late sister Sybil Hancoek, deceased, and sister Margery Wilson. Appoints her sons-in-law, Bennet Barker and Edmund Houghton, executors, and her son Robert Bright, overseer. He wrote his name, Bryght.

There are some records of proceedings in relation to Thomas Bright's legacy of £300, to the Guildhall Feoffment, down to 1612, but there is no distinct or separate account of it subsequent to that date.

The Suffolk Directory, for 1844, contains an account of the Guildhall Feoffment; a list of its houses, farms, tenants, &c., vested in the Guildhall Feoffees of Bury St. Edmunds, in trust, for the public use and benefit of the inhabitants of the town, and for specific charitable purposes: the rents in 1838 amounting to £2000. Then follows a list of donations, in which are mentioned those of Thomas Bright, Sen. (viz. £300, besides the tithes of Foxearth); by Thomas Bright, Jr. (viz. in the time of Charles I., two messuages in the Fish or Meat Market, afterwards burnt down); and by Lady Carew [dr. of Thomas Bright, Sen.] (viz. £100 laid out for a tenement and land, called Jeckes, at Hepworth). From this we may infer, that these legacies have not been squandered nor diverted from their original purposes, but they probably became merged in, or incorporated with, other possessions held by the Feoffees.

It is to be observed that in the time of Thomas Bright, Sen., money was of eight times its present value, which would make his bequest equal to £2,400 at the present time.

Wright's Hist. of Essex, Vol. I., p. 573, says, "Mr. Bright left an annuity of £12 to be paid out of the estate of Brookhall, for poor prisoners and widows, and for the use of St. Edmundsbury school."

NOTE 8. (IV. Gen.)—Thomas Bright, son of Thomas, the elder, of the Parish of St. James, Bury St. Edmunds, was alderman or chief magistrate of Bury, in 1610. His arms were entered in the Herald's College, by William Camden, Clarencieux, 14 James I. (1616). He received by Will, from his father, the Manor of Butters, in Thompson, Co. of Norfolk, and held his first court there, August 6, 1620.

He was supervisor of the Will of his aunt Alice, and one of the executors of his father's Will. He died in 1626, and was buried in the churchyard of St. Mary, Bury St. Edmunds. By Deed, in 1625, he gave to the poor of St. Mary's Church; to the prisoners in the county gaol: for the repairs of the churches of St. Mary and St. James; and for cakes and wine at the annual meeting of the Feoffees.

Nothing further than what is mentioned in the pedigree is known of his wives, Margaret Kent, and Margaret Beton. Mary, wife of Thomas Bright, gent., was buried in the Parish of St. Mary, September 4, 1625, probably a third wife of this Thomas.

His name appears in the first charter from James I., dated April 3, 1606, to Bury St. Edmunds, and also in the third charter of James I., to Bury St. Edmunds, dated September 17, 1614.

His grandson, Thomas Bright, in his Will, dated March 1, 1709, bequeaths to the town of Bury St. Edmunds, a portrait of King Edmund, which he desires may be hung in the same room with that of his grandfather. Neither of these pictures can now be found. That of Thomas Bright, the elder, is still in existence, and easily distinguished by the inscription at the bottom.

NOTE 9. (IV. Gen.)—Robert Bright, son of Thomas, the elder, moved to London, where he was living in 1600. He subsequently became lord of the manors of Netherhall, in Thurston, and "New House," in Pakenham, both in the County of Suffolk. He had arms confirmed to him, as second brother of Thomas Bright, of Bury St. Edmunds, with a crescent on the bend, for difference. In 1620, he built the manor house called "New House," in a very elaborate style of architecture. He made his Will, October 1, 1630, which was proved in the Bishop's Court of Norwich, March 1, 1631. He gives to his son Thomas, who succeeded to the Netherhall Estate, a tenement called Battlelies. To his son William, a farm, called Barton^s Place, with the fisheries thereunto belonging. To his son Henry, "New House," in Pakenham, houses and lands in Cockfield, and lands in Norton. Legacies to his brother-in-law, Thomas Reade, of Bury St. Edmunds; to his three sisters, Lady Carew, Katherine, wife of Bennet Barker, and Joan, wife of Edmund Houghton; also to Thomas, son of his brother, Jasper Bright. His estates were extensive in the County of Suffolk, all of which, in consequence of the failure of male issue, in subsequent generations, have gone with the females to other families. As the wife of Robert Bright is not mentioned in his Will, it is to be presumed she died before him. Her family is not known. [See p. 100.]

Netherhall stands partly in Pakenham and partly in Thurston, near the parish church of the former, and about six miles from Bury St. Edmunds. The Ashfields, Knights, who were originally of Stowlangtoft, appear to have been seated here about the time of Henry VIII., and it passed to the Brights about a century afterwards. The Hall has undergone some changes in its exterior, and now, 1853, belongs to William Chinery Bassett, Esq., who is lord of the manor. "New House" was sold to Sir William Spring, for a dower house for his lady, soon after the death of Robert Bright. It is now the seat of its owner, the Rev. W. J. Spring Casborne, who is also improprietor of the Rectory. Mr. Casborne inherits the estate through the female line, from Sir William Spring, the male issue being extinct.

NOTE 10. (IV. Gen.)—Henry Bright, son of Thomas the elder, was of the Parish of St. James, Bury St. Edmunds; where he was baptized September 20, 1560. He died in 1609, intestate. A chasm in the administration records between the years 1609 and 1630, deprives us of some facts in relation to the family, which it would be desirable to know. He was a man of considerable wealth, and proprietor of several estates in Bury St. Edmunds, and the neighboring villages. An Indenture, dated March 20, 1606, is among the corporation records, by which Henry Bright, and his wife Mary, lease to the town, for certain purposes, the Angel Hotel, a messuage in Cook's Row, Abbeygate Street, and several tenements, shops, &c., in various parts of the town. He owned houses adjoining the Angel Hotel, which are still standing. His name appears in the first charter from James I., to Bury St. Edmunds, dated April 3, 1606. Of his wife's family, nothing has yet been ascertained. After his death she married William Cole, Gent., of Bury St. Edmunds. She is mentioned in the Will of her son Thomas Bright, of Ipswich, dated April 17, 1618.

NOTE 11. (IV. Gen.)—Susan Bright, daughter of Thomas Bright the elder, was first married to — Barber. She is mentioned in her father's, mother's, and brother Robert Bright's, Wills. Her second husband was Sir Nicholas Carew, Knight, of Beddington, in the Co. of Surrey, and she was his second wife. His first wife was Maria, daughter of Sir George More, Knight, of Losely. His sister, Elizabeth Carew, was the wife of Sir Walter Raleigh, Knight. Lady Susan Carew died at Beddington, in 1638, and was buried in the church there. She gave the feoffees of the Guildhall Feoffment, at Bury St. Edmunds, £100, for the purchasing of lands to the yearly value of £5, which was to be equally distributed to five poor widows. It was laid out in the purchase of a tenement called Jeckes, in Hepworth, in 1636.

Her son Thomas Carew, died in infancy. She also had a daughter Susan Carew, of whom nothing further is known.

NOTE 12. (V. Gen.)—Mary Bright, daughter of Henry, and granddaughter of Thomas Bright, the elder, married William Forth, of Nayland, Co. of Suffolk, Gent., son of William Forth, Esq., of Butley, in the same county, of an ancient and highly respectable family, one of whom married John Winthrop, of Groton, who emigrated to New England. Her husband was one of the overseers, and her son, Dr. William Forth, of London, executor of the Will of her sister, Elizabeth (Bright) Dell, widow, of Stratford-le-Bow, in Middlesex.

NOTE 13. (V. Gen.)—Thomas Bright, son of Henry, and grandson of Thomas Bright, the elder, was baptized at the Parish of St. James, Bury St. Edmunds. He was a merchant in Ipswich, and died unmarried. His Will, dated April 17, 1618, proved in the Prerogative Court, at London, January 26, 1626; gives to his brother William Forth, of Nayland, —; to his mother, then wife of William Cole; and £70 each to his brothers John and Henry, when they shall be twenty-one years of age; also, legacies to his sisters Elizabeth and Martha Bright, and to Maria, daughter of Thomas Woodgate, of Ipswich.

NOTE 14. (V. Gen.)—Elizabeth Bright, daughter of Henry, and granddaughter of Thomas Bright the elder, was baptized at St. James, Bury St. Edmunds, Sept. 17, 1598. She married — Dell, whom she survived. Her Will, dated August 6, 1657, at Stratford-le-Bow, in Middlesex, gives to her brother "Master Henry Bright, of New England," and his children, —; to her sister Martha Blowers, and children, —; to her nephew William Parks, —; to her cousin, — Cawby, Esq., —; to the Rev. Mr. Greenhall, of Stepney, —; to the poor of Stepney, —; and legacies of 20s. each, to several persons for purchasing for themselves rings; appoints her nephew, Dr. William Forth, executor, and her brothers Blowers, and William Forth, overseers. She is mentioned in her brother Thomas Bright's Will, dated April 17, 1618.

NOTE 15. (V. Gen.)—Henry Bright, fifth child, and third son of Henry, and grandson of Thomas Bright, the elder, was baptized in the Parish of St. James, Bury St. Edmunds, Dec. 29, 1602. He came to New England, in 1630, and settled at Watertown, Massachusetts, where he married Anne, eldest daughter of Henry Goldstone. (See Goldstone, in Part II.)

He is mentioned in the Will of his brother Thomas Bright (see Note 13), and in the Will of his sister Elizabeth (Bright) Dell (see Note 14), who bequeathed him £200. and £70 to his children. These legacies were paid, in 1659, by her nephew, Dr. William Forth, of London, her executor, through his agent, Dr. Hezekiah Usher, of Boston, in New England. See in Vol. III., p. 286, of the Suffolk, Mass., Registry of Deeds, the release and acquittance of the same, executed by Henry Bright. He wrote his name, Henrie Bright.

NOTE 16. (V. Gen.)—Thomas Bright, of Netherhall, son of Robert, and grandson of Thomas the elder, succeeded to the Netherhall estate, and had the arms confirmed to him by Sir John Borough, the 29th July, 1641. He is mentioned in his son Robert Bright's Will, dated April 21, 1652. His wife was Agatha, daughter of — Mileson, and sister of Borodale Mileson, of Norton, Co. of Suffolk, Esq.

NOTE 17. (V. Gen.)—Henry Bright, of Netherhall, Gent., was baptized at Bury St. Edmunds, in the Parish of St. James. His father, Robert Bright, of Netherhall, bequeathed him the "New House" in Pakenham, which he built in 1620; also houses and lands in Cockfield; lands in Tostock and Norton, and houses and lands in several other places. The present proprietors of Netherhall have in their possession a plan of the estate drawn by this Henry Bright in 1620. On a corner of the plan is a sketch, in outline, of Netherhall, and the following note:—

Manor de Neatherhall, in Thurston, in comitatu Suff. Oxate mensum per HENRICUM BRIGHT, Octavo die Octobris, Anno Reg. Jacobi dei gratia Angliæ Franciæ et Hiberniæ decimo Octavo et Scotiæ quinquagesimo secundo.

He is mentioned, as is also his wife, in her father William Fiske's Will, dated March 20, 1648. Their son, Robert Bright, of Ipswich, speaks of his mother in his Will, bearing date 29th May, 1668.

NOTE 18. (VI. Gen.)—Thomas Bright, Esq., of Netherhall, and great-grandson of Thomas Bright, the elder. His Will, dated at Thorpe Morieux, in Suffolk, May 4, 1713, was proved at Bury St. Edmunds, Nov. 18, 1713;—desired to be buried in Thurston Church;—makes his son, Thomas Bright, sole executor; mentions his son-in-law, John Risby, and cousin Elizabeth Gosnall: directed £100 to be laid out in the purchase of land for the benefit of the poor of Thurston and Pakenham, the rents thereof to be applied in buying 12 pairs of shoes and stockings for such poor men and women, or children, as should most want or deserve the same. In satisfaction of this charity, £5 a year is laid out in articles of clothing, by the owner of the Netherhall Estate. His wife, Elizabeth, was the daughter of Clement Heigham, of Barrow, in Suffolk, Esq., one of the intended Knights of the Royal Oak, and great-granddaughter of Sir Clement Heigham, Knight, who represented the Co. of Suffolk in Parliament, in 1593 and 1634.

NOTE 19. (VI. Gen.)—Robert Bright, of Netherhall, great-grandson of Thomas the elder. His Will, dated April 21, 1652, proved in the Prerogative Court, at London, June 20, 1656, gives to his brother, Thomas Bright, his diamond ring;—legacies to his five sisters;—speaks of his father, Thomas Bright, his brother, Borodale Bright, and his cousin, William Bright. Mentions his hawks and goshawks.

NOTE 20 (VII. Gen.)—Thomas Bright of Netherhall, Esq., was baptized at Barrow, in Suffolk, January 5. 1660, and was buried at Thurston, April 2, 1727. His wife, Mary, was a daughter of William Grigson, of Fornceett, St. Peter's, Co. of Norfolk, Gent., and sister and heir of Wm. Grigson, Esq. She was buried September 27, 1744. In Thurston Church are monumental slabs in the floor, near the chancel, with these inscriptions:—

Here lyeth the body of
THOMAS BRIGHT, of Netherhall, Esq.

The remainder of the inscription is covered by a pew. Arms: Bright impaling Grigson.

Here lies the body of
MARY BRIGHT.
Pakenham.
Life
44.

A pew covers the rest of the inscription. The same arms are in a lozenge-shaped shield.

NOTE 21 (VII. Gen.)—Agatha Bright, daughter of Thomas Bright of Netherhall, was born in 1663, and died unmarried in 1732. Her Will, dated April 30. 1731, gives all her money and personal estate to her nephew, Thomas Bright, and to his sister, Mary Bright; to Mrs. Bright, their mother, a ring; to sister Risby, a ring. Desires to be buried in Thurston Church. The following inscription is on the monumental slab, with the arms of Bright, in a lozenge shield:—

Here lyeth the body of AGATHA BRIGHT, Spinster, one of y^e daughters of Thomas Bright, of Netherhall, Esq. She died Dec^rbre y^e 10, Anno Dom.
1732, aged 69 years.

NOTE 22. (VIII. Gen.)—This Thomas Bright was the last of the Netherhall family in the male line. He was born in 1713, and dying unmarried, his sister Mary, afterwards wife of Edmund Tyrrell, became his sole heir. He was buried in St. Peter's Church, Thurston, of which he was patron. On a monumental slab is the following inscription, surmounted by the family arms:—

Here lies the body of
THOMAS BRIGHT
of Netherhall, in Pakenham, Esq., who departed this life
the 21st day of December,
In the year of our Lord Christ
1736,
Aged 23 years.

NOTE 23. (VIII. Gen.)—Mary Bright of Netherhall, sister and heiress of Thomas Bright, and the last of that branch of the family, married Edmund Tyrrell, Esq., of Gipping, in Suffolk, widower. She was living in 1754. During her life, the Netherhall Estate was sold to George Chinery, Gent., of Bury St. Edmunds. It now belongs to William Chinery Bassett, who, with his mother, resides there. Edmund Tyrrell was baptized at Benhall, Co. of Suffolk, Sept. 9, 1703. He was the son of Thomas Tyrrell, Esq., of Gipping, and Anne, daughter of Sir John Duke, Bart., M.P. for Oxford. By the death of his uncle, Sir Edward Duke, without issue, he became heir to his estates. His will, dated August 15, 1746, was proved in the Bishop's Court at Norwich, January 8, 1749. He desires to be buried in the family aisle in Stowmarket Church. The patronage of the vicarage of St. Peter's Church, in Thurston, once in the gift of the Brights of Netherhall, is still in the Tyrrell family, Charles Tyrrell, Esq., of Polstead Hall, being the present patron. Gipping has for many ages been the seat of a branch of this very ancient family, whose ancestors may be very satisfactorily traced to the period of the Norman Conquest, and for more than six centuries, its chief, in a direct line, enjoyed the honor of Knighthood. They derive from Walter Tyrrell, a Norman Knight. It has not been ascertained whether this Mary (Bright) Tyrrell left children.

NOTE 24. (V. Gen.)—John Bright, Gent., son of Thomas and grandson of Thomas Bright, the elder, was baptized in the parish of St. James, Bury St. Edmunds. He was Alderman (chief magistrate) of Bury, as was his father and grandfather before him, and a Captain in the Parliamentary army. He sold the estate in Thompson, and bought the manor of Talmach Hall, in Little Bricet, Co. of Suffolk. He died March 17, 1660, aged 67 years. His Will, dated January 14, 1659–60, proved in the Prerogative Court, in London, May 8, 1661, gives to his wife Mary his houses and lands in Bury St. Edmunds; mentions his sons Thomas and William, his sister Gibbon's children, and his grandchild, John Salter; speaks of lands and tenements in Brockford and Wetheringsett, which he purchased of Thomas Colby, Gent., and lands and tenements in Ireland. He was buried in Bricet Church, where a beautiful marble monument against the north wall, near the chancel, surmounted with the family arms, impaling those of Style and North, perpetuates his memory. [See p. 102.]

This inscription gives his death in 1670, which is an error. It should be 1660. His wife, Mary Style, was the daughter of Wm. Style, of Hemingstone, in the Co. of Suffolk, Gent. Her second husband was the Hon. John North, son of Dudley, third Lord North. Talmach Hall, the manor-house in the Parish of Little Bricet, is so called from its ancient possessors. In 21st Edward I. [1292], Hugh Talmach, and Maria, his wife, held lands here of the Countess of Gloucester, and his descendants continued here until 7 Edward VI. [1553], when John Talmach was the owner. It afterwards belonged to the family of Kemp, and then to the Brights. It is now the property of William Adair, Esq. The Hall still exists as a farm-house, though much dilapidated. The principal portion of the building was taken down about 40 years since, and hardly a vestige of its former greatness remains. It was once surrounded by a moat, traces of which are still perceptible. The Brights of this place were interred in Bricet Church. Little Bricet (which, in 1844, was a small hamlet, with only 25 inhabitants, and the farm of Talmach Hall), was annexed to Offton in 1503. It is 30 miles from Bury St. Edmunds, and 12 from Ipswich. [See p. 101.]

NOTE 25. (V. Gen.)—Edmund Bright, Gent., of Holywell Row, Mildenhall, Co. of Suffolk, baptized at St. James, Bury St. Edmunds, was a grandson of Thomas Bright, the elder. His Will, dated January 9, 1658, proved in the Prerogative Office, London, March 7, 1659, gives to his godson, Mr. Thomas Bright, son of his brother, Mr. John Bright, all his houses and lands in Bury St. Edmunds, houses and lands in Holywell Row, and Beck Row, in Mildenhall; legacies to his brother, Mr. Thomas Bright; to his cousin, Thomas Bright; to his godson, the son of his cousin, Henry Bright, deceased; to his sister, Mrs. Mary Bright, and to his cousin John Gibbons, his sister's son. Gives a rent-charge of four pounds per annum to the poor, which continues to be paid to this day, at the parish of St. Mary, in Bury St. Edmunds. Desires to be buried in the churchyard of St. Mary's, in Bury St. Edmunds, near his parents, and his wife and son. Edmund, son of Edmund Bright, baptized at St. Mary's, July 19, 1633, was probably this son. His wife Susan was the daughter of Edward Alston, of Boxford, Co. of Suffolk, clothier, and granddaughter of William Alston, Lord of Sayham Hall, in Newton, in the same county. A rent-charge of 40s., given by Edmund Bright, is yet distributed among the poor parishioners of St. Andrew's Church, in Mildenhall, out of land at Coldham Hills.

NOTE 26. (VI. Gen.)—William Bright, Esq., succeeded to Talmach Hall, on the death of his father, John Bright, in 1660. His own estate, in 1656, was represented to be worth £400 per annum. He married Sarah, daughter of Henry North, of Laxfield, Co. Suffolk, son of Sir Henry North, of Mildenhall, in the same county, Knight, who was a younger son of Roger, second Lord North.

His second wife was Sarah Gilson, whom he married 31st August, 1704. He was buried in Bricet Church, on the floor of which is a stone slab with the arms of Bright impaling those of North, and this inscription:—

Here lieth the body of
WILLIAM BRIGHT, of Talmach
Hall, Esq., who departed this Life January the 7th, 1706, in the Eightyeth Year of his Age, who Married Sarah North, here Likewise Buried, one of the Daughters of the Honourable Henry North, of Laxfield, Esqr.
Their only Daughter Sarah was Maryed to Thomas Dawtrey, of More, in the county of Sussex, Esqr.

Talmach Hall passed to the Dawtreys, by the marriage of Sarah, only daughter and heir of William Bright, to Thomas Dawtrey, of More, in Sussex, Esq., whose daughter Sarah married Edward Luther, Esq., of Myles, in Essex, and had with other issue, Richard Luther, Esq., eventually inheritor of the Dawtrey estates.

NOTE 27. (VI. Gen.)—John Bright, of Talmach Hall, Gent., son of John, was baptized at Bury St. Edmunds. He died at Talmach Hall, and was buried in Bricet Church, where there is a stone slab, much defaced, bearing the following inscription:—

Here lyeth the body of
JOHN BRIGHT, Gent.,
Who died
May, 1657.

NOTE 28. (VI. Gen.)—Thomas Bright, of Bury St. Edmunds, son of John Bright, of Talmach Hall, and great grandson of Thomas Bright, the elder, is mentioned in his father, John Bright's, Will, January 14, 1659–60. He died Feb. 20, 1710, aged 72 years. His Will is dated March 1, 1709, and proved at Bury St. Edmunds, May 18, 1711, in which he desires to be laid in Bury Churchyard, where his wife Dorothy is buried; makes his son-in-law, John Westthrope, sole heir; gives him "the house where I now inhabit, in North Gate Street," and other houses in same street,—a house in Cooke Row, and houses and lands in Brettenham. "Item, I give to the towne and corporacon of Bury St. Edmunds, King Edmund's picture, to be hung up in the chamber where my grandfather Mr. Thomas Bright's picture, now hangs. I give to Mr. Sam. Bury, a picture or a landscape, now hanging over my great parlour chimney. I give to my she cousin, Fisher, a picture, is now in my litle parlour, of Mary Waters, the widow of Robert Honeywood, of Charing, in Kent, she being related unto the Honeywoods." Gives to his son-in-law Samuel Battely, and his wife, £10 to buy them mourning; to his executor Robert Hayward, a ring; to his consin Joseph Legg, of London, £5; to the poor of both parishes in Bury, and to his maid-servant Elizabeth Walford. "Item, I nominate my nephews, Edward and Thomas Salter, Edmund Spencer, Edward Luther, William Dawtrey, and Robert Fisher, to be my bearers, to beare up the pall; and I give to each of my bearers a gold ring, with this motto: 'Remember to follow Thomas Bright;' and I would have Edward Bullard, Sen., old Samuel Marshall, Samuel Ormes and Joseph Ormes, for my under-bearers, to carry and conduct my body to the ground." He gave to the under-bearers, each a coat of black gown. Mentions his daughter Alice Westthrope, and cousin Bartholomew Young; desires to be buried in linen.

There is a handsome monument in the churchyard at Bury St. Edmunds, on the top slab of which are the arms of Bright, impaling * * * * and the following:—

THOMAS BRIGHT, Gent., Dyed the 20 Feby., 1710,
aged 72 years.

On the west end of the monument,—

Here Lieth the Body of
DOROTHY, y^e wife of THOMAS
BRIGHT, Gent., who departed this Life, December the 3d, 1684,
In Hope of a Blessed
Resurrection to Life Eternall
Through the Merits of our Lord
Jesus Christ.

Mary Waters, whose portrait he bequeathed to his cousin Fisher, was the daughter of Robert Waters, Esq., of Royton, in the Parish of Lenham, and Co. of Kent, and his wife Katherine Bright, of Royton. From this, it is inferred, that Mary Waters was related to the Brights of Suffolk. She was a remarkable woman. In Wright's His. of Essex, Vol. 1, p 371, is an account of the family of Robert Honeywood, and of Marks Hall, the place where they resided, with a view of the hall. There are several portraits of Mary Waters, one at the Hall, and one at Coleshill, in Berkshire, the seat of the Earl of Radnor, who is descended from her, as is likewise his lady, through her mother Lady Mildmay. There is also a marble statue of her in the church at Marks Hall, as kneeling, with an inscription. She lived to see 367 descendants, viz.: 16 children, 114 grandchildren, 228 in the 3d, and 9 in the 4th generation. Her grandson, Dr. Michael Honeywood, Dean of Lincoln, in King Charles II.'s time; and whose monument is in the Minster, used to relate, that he was present at a dinner given by her to a family party of 200 of her descendants. She was born 1527, married in 1543, and died May 11, 1620.

NOTE 29. Luther, Dawtrey, and Chamberlen. The family of Luther, allied to the celebrated reformer, is first mentioned as of the County of Essex, in the reign of Henry VIII., when Wm. Luter had a lease from the crown, of the Manor of Albinis, in Stapleford Abbots. Richard and Anthony Luther, Esqs., "so truly loving brothers," as is expressed in their epitaph, "that no account whatsoever was kept between them," died in 1627, and were owners of the Manor of Miles. Richard Luther, the father of John, inherited the large estates of his uncle, Sir Wm. Dawtrey, Knt., and was one of the great landed proprietors of Essex. John Luther spent £50,000 in the contest when elected M. P. for that county. Dying without issue, his sister, Charlotte Luther, married to Henry Fane, Esq., of Wormsley, Co. Oxford, younger brother of Thomas, 8th Earl of Westmoreland; and Rebecca Luther, married to John Taylor, Esq., grandmother of John Taylor Gordon, M.D., were his heirs. John Taylor Gordon, M.D. and John Fane, are the present representatives of these ancient families of Dawtrey and Luther. The latter owns the Manor of Miles. The Dawtreys are deducible in an uninterrupted descent from the conquest. John de Alta Ripa, obtaining from Joseelyne, of Louvaine, a grant of the Manor of Haultrey, assumed the surname of De Haultrey, or Dawtrey, and founded the distinguished Sussex family of that name, and were descended through Margaret Roper, wife of Sir Wm. Dawtrey, Knt., of Moor House, Esq., from Sir Thomas More, Lord Chancellor of England. Sir Wm. Dawtrey, Knt. of Moor House, and Doddinghurst Place, son of Thomas and Sarah (Bright) Dawtrey, was Sheriff of Essex, in 1736, and died in 1758. Charlotte Chamberlen, wife of Richard Luther, was daughter of Hugh Chamberlen, M.D., of Alderton Manor, and Hinton Hall, in Suffolk, the celebrated court physician in the time of James II., and Queen Anne; now represented by John Taylor Gordon, M.D.

NOTE 30. (VI. Gen.)—The children of Henry and Martha (Fiske) Bright, of Netherhall, viz.: Robert Bright, of Ipswich, Grocer. His Will, dated May 29, 1668, and proved July 3, 1668, gives to his brother-in-law, Francis Woodward, £50; to his brother, John Bright, £250; to his sister, Martha Bright, £50; to his brother, William Bright, £3 to buy him a gold ring; to his co-partner, William Sayer, £10; to his mother, Mrs. Martha Bright, £10; to the poor of the Parish of St. Lawrence, 40s.; to the poor of the Parish of Pakenham, 40s.; to Mrs. Elizabeth Sayer, his partner's mother, £3 to buy a gold ring; to his brother, Henry Bright, £100; to his brother, Thomas Bright, £100. Appoints his brothers, Henry and Thomas Bright, executors.

Thomas Bright, of Ipswich, Gent., one of the bailiffs and portmen of that town. His Will, dated June 17, 1698, and proved Feb. 11, 1698-9, mentions his sister Katherine Woodward, of London, widow; his brother, Henry Bright, of Framisden, in Suffolk, Gent.; the two sons of his brother-in-law, Robert Nicholas, living at Devises, in Wiltshire, Gent., who married his sister, Martha Bright; his cousin, Thomas Meadows, of Holborn, London; his cousin Chapman, Minister of Framisden, John Gibbon, of Ipswich, and his kinsman, John Copeman, of Ipswich; also his cousin, Captain William Bright, of Hull, to whom he gives all his messuages, tenements, houses, lands, &c., in Copdock, and other towns and parishes in Suffolk; legacies to several persons for gloves, hat-bands, &c.; directs, that there shall be engraven on the stone now lying over his wife, the day of his death, who was bailiff and portman of the town of Ipswich; appoints John Copeman, executor, and his sister Woodward, supervisor. From his not mentioning his brothers, John Bright and William Bright (noticed in his brother, Robert Bright's, Will, in 1668), it is presumed they were deceased. It is probable, that his cousin, Captain William Bright, of Hull, whom he makes his principal heir, was a son of his uncle William Bright, of Netherhall, respecting whom nothing yet has been ascertained, beyond his name. Thomas Bright also bequeathed by his Will £100 stg., to be put out on good security, or else to be laid out in the purchase of land, by the bailiffs and portmen of Ipswich, and their successors, for the only use and benefit of two poor children of the Parish of St. Mathews, in Ipswich, in the hospital of said town, forever. The "Suffolk Directory" (1844), mentions land purchased in 1722, with £340, left to the Hospital by Thomas Bright, and Richard Philips.

BROOKS.—(I.) THOMAS BROOKS.* Neither the date of his arrival, nor the place of his embarkation has been ascertained; but there is reason to suppose that he came from London. He first settled in Watertown, and was one of the "townsmen then inhabiting," to whom the Beaver Brook plowlands were granted in 1636. He was adm. freeman, Dec. 7, 1636, while he resided in Watertown. It is evident that he could not be the Thomas Brooke who embarked in May, 1635, then aged twenty, in company with Rev. Peter Bulkley. The second son, perhaps the third child, of Capt. Thomas Brooks, of Concord, was born 1632, when the other Thomas was only 17 years old. He moved very soon from Watertown to Concord, of which he was captain, and he received various other appointments of honour and trust. The General Court appointed him constable of Concord, Dec. 8, 1638, and he was representative in 1642, '43, '44, and four years after 1650. In 1640, he was appraiser of horses, cattle, &c., for the purpose of taxation, and appointed to prevent drunkenness among the Indians. In 1657, he purchased of the commissioners of the General Court, for £5, the right of carrying on the fur trade in Concord. In 1660, he and his son-in-law, Timothy Wheeler, jointly purchased of Edward Collins, 400 acres in Medford, for £404, two-thirds for himself, and one-third for Wheeler. His wife GRACE d. May 12, 1664, and the next Oct. 22, he sold his house-lot in Concord; but he remained in Concord, and died there May 21, 1667, intestate. His inventory, by Dea. Merriam, Dea. Potter, and George Wheeler, amounted to £448 3s., and his debts to £26 5s. 2d. His three sons and son-in-law presented the Inventory for probate, June 16, 1667, and the next day signed the following agreement.

"Whereas Thomas Brooks, of Concord, has left an estate, and the sons of the said Thomas, not willing to trouble the Court, have jointly agreed as followeth: 1st. That the Inventory taken by Dea. Merriam, Dea. Potter, and George Wheeler shall be accounted the full estate of Thomas Brooks. 2d. We do agree that Joshua Brooks shall have a full double portion out of the lands at Medford, and that the three other sons, Capt. Timothy Wheeler, Caleb Brooks, and Gershom Brooks, to have equal portions, only Caleb and Gershom are to have the remainder of the said lands, after Joshua is first accommodated, as a part of their portion, and Timothy Wheeler out of the movable estate, and all to be distributed by [to] them by those three parties

* As Capt. Thomas Brooks first settled in Watertown, and as there are numerous alliances between his descendants and other families in this volume, we insert the following genealogy, although it cannot with propriety be called a Watertown family. This Genealogy is very deficient in some parts,—much less copious and satisfactory, especially in the issue of his eldest son, than it may be made by careful research, and by a ready co-operation of those who are able to aid in the undertaking. For our materials we are chiefly indebted to the researches of Mr. William G. Brooks [173], of Boston. He is still prosecuting his researches, and any contribution from any source will be thankfully received. We hope that what is here presented will awaken attention, and an increased interest in the subject.

[There were several families and individuals of the name of Brown, found in the records of Watertown, Waltham, and Weston, not descended from Abraham, and whose lineage has not been ascertained. It is probable that some of them were descended from Thomas Brown, of Cambridge, some of whose descendants settled in Newton, and probably others from the Browns of Sudbury.]

William Brown, wife and family, "lately from Ireland," moved from Boston to Watertown in Oct. 1722, and the next January he occupied "the house Mr. Angier dwelt in," at this time owned by Capt. Abraham Brown, and which Capt. Brown soon after sold to John Stearns. The names of his wife and children are not recorded, nor is it known what became of the family.

BULL.—In first line, for 1656, read 1652. William Bull, of Wat., was a son of William Bull, of Cambridge. In a suit, in 1683, he is called "William Bull, Jr."

BULLARD.—June 17, 1679. Testimony of Mary Bullard (wife of William Bull-lard, of Charlestown [father of Nathaniel], formerly wife of Francis Grissell [Griswold], of Charlestown, whose Inventory was dated Nov. 9, 1652), "That before I was married, I told my husband (Wm. B.) I had two children, and an estate by him" (F.
 G.) Wm. Bullard and wife Mary had belonged to Camb. Church.

[2.] It is supposed that Benjamin Bullard was a brother of Robert and George, as well as of Maudlin and Anne. When he (B. B.) demanded of the selectmen the estate of his father-in-law, Thorpe, the selectmen say, Mar. 29, 1672, "we find the land of Thorpe, at his decease, was Bullard's, and his two sisters' [? Maudlin and Anna], but the use of the estate was Goodman Whittacar's till Nov. 12, 1672."

[3.] George Bullard m. (1st) Beatrice Hall, of Boston. "Beatrice Hall, now wife of George Bulward, of Watertown," was dismissed from the First Church of Boston, Nov.
 17, 1644. Ap. 4, 1644, George Bulward, of Wat., sold to Thomas Straight, his home-stall, a house and 8 acres, bounded west by John Knolls; E. by Esther Pickeram; S.
 by highway; N. by Maudlin and Anna Bullward. This was the homestall of G. B. in the list of possessions, 1642-4. At a meeting of the selectmen, Dec. 23, 1684, it was ordered that John Ball, son-in-law, and Jonathan Bullard, a son, be notified of the necessity of help for father Bullard and his wife.

p. 148. [4.] JACOB BULLARD, was in Wat. in 1680, when John Bigelow brought a suit against him; and in 1683, when John Nevinson brought a suit against him for slander. At a meeting of the selectmen, Jan. 30, 1709-10, ordered that the selectmen address the Judges of the Supreme Court, concerning Jacob Bullard, an aged blind person, who is unhappily sent from another province. He was buried Nov. 21, 1715.

[4.] Strike out (?), also (supposed his dr.).

[11.] Strike out (?). Abigail, 3d child of Joseph and Elizabeth Bullard, m. Abraham Bigelow, of Weston. [Bigelow, 140.] [Mar. 5, 1706-7, Joseph Bullard, of Wat., miller, sold to Francis Fulham, 1 acre in Eddy's Farm, south side Sudbury road, late of Alexander Miller, of Piscataqua: bounded W. by F. Fulham; N. by Samuel Jones, and Jonathan Bullard, Sen.; E. by J. B.; S. by Land of Contention; the said lot is at the north of the tract, called Pond Meadow, bounded S.E. by Morse's Meadow.] The Will of Elizabeth Upham, dated Jan. 16, 1753, mentions sons Thomas and Henry Spring, dr. Mary Parmenter; dr. Elizabeth Upham, grandsons Abraham and Isaac Bigelow. Wid. Margaret Spring [61], ex'x.

[16.] Strike out all after 1711.

[20.] Ebenezer, o. c., in Wat., Ap. 12, 1741, was an early settler of New Ipswich.

p. 149. BUSBY.—In Oct., 1637, Nicholas Busby was admitted an inhabitant of Newbury [Coffin, 24]. He could have remained there only a short time, as he was a selectman of Wat., in 1640. Oct. 4, 1653, John White, and wife Frances, of Boston, sold to John Coolidge, 7 acres of land in Wat., [bounded N. and W. by pastor Sherman; E. by Garritt Church; S. by highway]: "originally granted to Nicholas Busby," by him sold to John Stebbin, and by him sold to John White. The Will of Nicholas Busby, of Boston, dated July 25, proved Sept. 10, 1657, makes his wife (not named) sole exec'x.; mentions eldest son John (in England), and son Abraham; eldest daughters Anne Nickerson (wife of Wm.), Katherine Savory, youngest daughter Sarah Grout; Joseph Busby, son of his son Nicholas, deceased; and Sarah Grout, his grandchild. It mentions money and plate, which he gave to his wife; books in "Phisicke," "Divinitie" and "History," bequeathed to his two sons, and three Bibles to his three daughters. As his drs. Anne and Katherine did not embark with him, it is probable that they were married in England. It is also probable, that his dr. Sarah, m. (1st), Ens. Thomas Cakebread, and afterwards Capt. John Grout. [See Geneal. Reg. viii. p. 278.] Oct. 14, 1643, the Gen. Court granted him a bounty of 34s., for making cloth.

BUSH.—John Bush, took the oath of fidelity [not adm. freeman], 1652. In 1650, the court ordered John Bush to pay Samuel Benjamin, 10 bushels of Indian corn. Oct., 1657, John Bush was discharged of his bond, as an accomplice of John Knapp. John Bush, d. in Camb. 1, 11 mo., 1662. Mar. 3, 1683-4, Mr. Goddard to be informed that selectmen did not approve of his taking in "ould goodm. Bush's wife's sister," into his family.

BUTTERY.—Jan. 3, 1658-9, selectmen refused to admit John Buttery as a sojourner or inhabitant. He was probably the man who m. Elizabeth Knapp. [11.]

BYLES.—Daniel Byles, of Wat., and Sarah Doubleday, m. in Boston, Jan. 21, 1762.

CAKEBREAD.—Ensign Thomas Cakebread, was proprietor of Wat. in 1642, although he had first gone to Dedham, and at this date was a resident of Sudbury. He was one of the original members (1637) of the Ancient and Hon. Art. Co., and in Sept., 1642, after the return of Capt. B. Pendleton, to Wat., the General Court appointed Ensign Cakebread, "to lead the company of Sudbury as ensign." His name has sometimes been confounded with that of Capt. Thomas Bredeake, a mariner, who obtained a commission against the Turks, in 1644; after the decease of Ensign Thomas Cakebread, who d. in Sud., Jan 4, 1643-4. He m., subsequently to Ap., 1637, Sarah, dr. of Nicholas Busby. His wid. Sarah, m. Capt. John Grout. [See Busby, also Grout, in Part II.] It has not been ascertained that he left any children. There was an Isaac Cakebread, of Springfield, in 1678; and one of that name in Hartford, in 1680. [Hinman, p. 468.]

CALLOW.—The land of Oliver Callow, was one of the boundaries of 25 acres, sold by John Clough to William Shattuck, July 4, 1654. In Aug. 1654, John Callow sold to Abraham Williams, a dwelling-house and 12 acres of land in Newton.

p. 150. CAPEN.—Josiah Capen, was selectman of Wat. 1773, 74, 75, 76, 83 and 85; was a justice of peace, as early as 1775, and major 1783.

1 | CADY.—(I.) NICHOLAS CADY, of Wat., as early as 1645, m. JUDITH, dr. of William Knapp, Sen., of Wat. [Knapp, 5.] About 1668, he moved to Groton. They were both living there in 1680. Mar. 6, 1650-1, Nicholas Cady sold to John Knapp, of Wat., his right and title to a house and land, granted to them jointly, by deed, dated Dec. 8, 1645. This shows that he was in Wat., as early as 1645. Sept. 11, 1668, "John" [Nicholas] Cady, of Groton, and wife Judith, sold to George Lawrence, 6 A. of upland, and 5 A. of meadow, in Wat. Ap. 29, 1680, Nicholas Cady, planter, of Groton, and wife Judith, sold to Simon Coolidge, of Wat. 25 A. dividend land, also 6 A. near West Meadow. Chil.,

CHESTER.—(I.) LEONARD CHESTER, from Brady (or Blaby) Leicestershire, of a very respectable lineage, came to New England in 1633, then aged about 23 or 24 years, and settled in Watertown. Two years afterwards, he left Watertown with the colony that first planted Pyquag, which they named Watertown; soon after, by the Court, named Wethersfield. He left Watertown previous to the making out of the earliest list of possessions, and his name, therefore, is not found in any list of proprietors; but it is recorded that one of the lots of Mr. William Paine was bought of Mr. Chester. Several circumstances, in confirmation of tradition, evince his respectable social position, and that he was comparatively wealthy. His name occurs only once in Massachusetts Colonial Records (in Ap. 1634), and then, although so young a man, he was designated as "Mr. Chester." Although he remained in Watertown only about two years, a considerable water-course (the outlet of Shorman's Pond, sometimes, of late, called the West Branch of Beaver Brook) was named for him, Chester Brook. A tract of land was also named Chester Meadow, and these names were long retained. In laying out the Naubuc Farms, on the east side of Connecticut River [now in Glastenbury] previous to 1640, which was "the first tract of land in the Colony regularly surveyed and laid out into farms," Mr. Chester's allotment was the largest (except four, viz.: 1. To Elder Clement Chaplin 1200 acres; 2. To Matthew Mitchell (? father of Rev. Jonathan Mitchell, of Cambridge) 900 A.; 3. To Governor George Wyllis, 480 A.; 4. To Gov. Thomas Welles, 435 A.; 5. To Mr. Leonard Chester, 432 A. The next largest was to Mr. Thurston Raynor, 330 A.

Richard Blynman, sold this estate to William Chapman. [Caulkin's Hist.  [7.] For Higham, read Hingham. Caleb Church m. (2d) in Wat., Nov. 6, 1691, Rebecca Scotto. On the Court file is the testimony of Richard Church, dated Jan. 15, 1656, then aged 47. Sept. 1, 1676, suit was brought, Samuel Appleton vs. Caleb Church, for possession of five-sixths of corn-mill in Watertown, left to his (S. A.'s) daughter, Judith, by her grandfather [Wm. Paine]. In Mar. 1689, he signed a contract to "erect a corn or grist-mill in the village of Oxford," for the French Protestants, and on Feb. 4, 1689–90, he signed a receipt, "in full, following our bargain." [Mass. Hist. Cell. 3d Ser. II p. 31.] Aug. 7, 1681, Caleb Church sold to William Adams, of Dedham, 60 acres of land in Cambridge. Oct. 1689, John Perry petitioned the Court to remove Caleb Church from keeping an ordinary, "for it is a very disorderly house, he himself is a stirrer of strife in our town, and entertaining such as himself, who frame and make lyes, and spreads them abroad," &c. His (C. C.'s) own daughter, Ruth, and a kinswoman of his wife, named Hannah Cutler, &c. This was very probably a malicious prosecution, for in Dec. 1688, John Perry was bound over in £10, for "giving forth words tending to move discord, strife, and dissension among his neighbors, and for breaking the common pound of the town in August last." He (C. C.) was selectman of Wat., 1692, 98, 99, 1700, 1, 2, and 13. [For his parentage and affinities, see Mitchell's Hist. Bridgewater, pp. 363–5, and Winsor's Hist. Duxbury, p. 245.]
 Nov. 16, 1724, Jonathan Broomer, of Freetown, Bristol Co., appoints his son Joshua, Atty., to collect his (Joshua's) mother's share of the estate of her father, Caleb Church.
 [9.] Ruth had a second and third husband [see Child, 77, and addition thereto, p. 740.]

 [13.] Joshua Warren was admin. of the estate of Caleb Church, his father-in-law.

- p. 159. CLARKE.—[1.] It appears by Dr. John Clarke's own statement, in his, "Ill News from New England," that he arrived in Boston in Nov. 1637, and Mr. Savage supposes that the "Mr. Clarke" who was by the Court chosen constable of Watertown, in May, 1632, was the "Mr. William Clarke" who was adm. freeman May 18, 1631. This is very probable, and if so, he soon after left Watertown, as his name is not on the earliest list of proprietors, nor in the town records. [Winthrop, I. p. 74.] As there is no evidence that he remained long in Watertown, it is very probable that he was the William Clarke who accompanied John Winthrop, Jr., in Mar. 1633, when he, with others, went to begin the plantation of Ipswich. What became of him is not shown in Felt's History of Ipswich. It is probable that he was the William Clarke "dwelling between Lynn and Ipswich," licensed by the General Court, June 2, 1641, "to entertain passengers and cattle." The evidence is not conclusive, yet there is good reason to believe, that Dr. John Clarke, the physician, preacher, and civilian of Rhode Island, first settled in Watertown, and that it is his name, which is found on the list of proprietors in 1642; for it is not unusual for a name to remain on that list, after the proprietor had moved from the town. In the first place, Dr. John Clarke, of Rhode - Island, made bequests to his nieces, the daughters of John Fiske, Sen., of Watertown. [See J. Fiske, 1.] In the next place, there seems to have been a particular intimacy and congeniality of sentiments between him and Nathaniel Briscoe, Sen., of Watertown. They were appointed joint executors of the Will of John Hazell, dated Nov. 19, 1651, about the time he (Dr. C.) was released from prison in Boston, and a short time before he and Mr. Briscoe sailed for England. They were, however, to depart so soon, that they gave a letter of attorney to Thomas Broughton, lately removed from Wat. to Boston, son-in-law of Mr. Briscoe, for the settlement of Hazell's estate. The Will was witnessed by John Warren and Thomas Arnold, of Wat., who were also Baptists. About this date (i. e., in Oct. 1651), both these witnesses were fined by the Court. "for an offence against the laws concerning baptism." [See Warren, I., and see Arnold.] Nathaniel Briscoe, Jr., was one of the witnesses to the said letter of attorney. [See General Reg. IV., p. 319.] For the intimacy and co-operation of Clarke and Briscoe in England, the next year (1652), see Briscoe's letter, in Mass. Hist. Coll., vol. I., 3d series. CLEMENCE.—(Clements.) At court, Ap. 1655, John Benjamin had assigned to him the care and custody of the wife of William Clemence, neglected by her husband. Oct. 2, 1655, the care of her was committed to John Fuller, to receive £6 per annum. June 19, 1656, the court refused a divorce to William Clemence.

CLOYSE.—Willis (History of Portland) says, the 2d wife of John Cloyse was Juliana. Had he three wives, or is this a variation or error of Jane? In 1660, he sold land in Charlestown, and moved to Falmouth, Me., and settled on W. the side of Presumpscot River. He is supposed to have been killed by Indians in 1676. [See Barry.]

CODDINGHAM.—In Aug. 1728, James Coddingham and wife moved from Marblehead to Watertown. In Aug. 1742, Rebecca Coddingham (? wife of James) went to Waltham. In Ap. 1742 (or 3), James Cottingham and family moved from Waltham to Cambridge.

He was adm. freeman of Mass., Sept. 3, 1634, and was dismissed from Wat. Church May 29, 1635, to form (with others) a new church on Connecticut River. In 1641 he moved to Stamford (Rippowams), of which he was an original purchaser. In 1644 he moved to Hampstead, L. I., and was one of the earliest settlers of Jamaica, L. I. His son, Hon. John Coe, was a very early settler of Newtown, L. I., of which he was magistrate 1652, 3, 4, 5, 6, 1, and 2, the first after its organization. [See Hinman's Catalogue; also Riker's Hist. of Newtown; also, Thompson's Hist. of L. Island.]

- "It appears in the Rolls of the Hundreds, time of Edward the First, that William de Coulinge held lands in Cambridgeshire, from which one can reasonably infer that the family were seated in that County at that time."
- "The practice of adopting hereditary surnames from manors and localities originated in Normandy about the close of the tenth century, or the beginning of the eleventh. Possessors of land took them from their own estates, a practice in which the Normans were soon imitated by the English, particularly after the Conquest. Many families of Saxon origin copied the example of their conquerors, and prefixed de to their names. In a few instances the article de or d' is still retained; but, generally speaking, it was dropped from surnames about the time of Henry the Sixth. Thus, instead of William de Couling, &c., the landed gentry wrote themselves William Couling, of Couling, &c."
- "The custom of taking names from towns and villages in England is a sufficient proof of the ancient descents of those families who bear them."
- "That the name (Coulinge) is derived from the village of Couling or Cowling in Suffolk, there is not the least doubt, and it continued so to be spelt, with occasional variations, until after the family was seated at Arrington. Probably Collins is derived from the same source. The family of Coolidge of Cambridgeshire is the only one in England, that adopted their peculiar way of spelling the name; the corruption being in consequence of there being no fixed mode of spelling in those days, and persons wrote names as they sounded to the ear. In Burke's Dictionary of Arms are several varieties in the spelling of the name, evidently of one common origin, from the similarity of the arms; the griffin being almost always introduced in some form or another, either in the arms or crest. The fleur de lis seems anciently to have been connected with the family arms."
- "In the year 1327 [1st Edward 3d] Walter Couling, and Ralph Couling, of Wimpole [adjoining parish of Arrington] Co. Cambridge, were assessed to the King's Subsidies. [Subsidy Rolls, Public Record Office, Carlton Ride, London.]
- "The name has undergone various orthographic changes from the time of its adoption from the village of Cowlinge, in Suffolk, on the borders of Cambridgeshire; the first of the name probably being styled de Cowling or de Cooling, as lord of the manor there, which family soon after removed to Cambridgeshire, and spelt the name, at different periods, Couling, Cullinge, Colynge, Cullidge, Coledege, Cowlidge, Cooledge, and Coolidge." (See Pedigrees, pp. 744 and 745.)
- p. 165. [1.] In the 13th and 14th lines from top, for Coalidg and Coalyng, read Coulidg and Coulyng. John Coolidge, Sen., d. May 7, 1691, aged 88; his age corresponding precisely with that in the tabular English pedigree, p. 744. His wid., Mary, d. Aug. 22, 1691, aged 88. The inventory of his real-estate, homestall-house, and 12 acres, £50; 60 A. of remote meadow, £12; 10 A. of woodland, £20; 5 A. in remote meadow, £7; 2 A. in Rock meadow, £4; 6 A. swamp, at home, £20; another homestall, bought of David Fiske, 12 A. £50; 30 A. of dividend land, £8; 2 acres in Rock meadow, £4; 14 acres against Fresh Pond, £20; 7 A. in Pondfield, £14; 3 A. in same field, £6; farm lot, 80 A., £10. (Gravestones in Watertown.)
- [3.] Stephen Coolidge was fined £5 by the town for refusing to serve as constable. If he hire a man to serve, fine to be remitted. Nov. 12, 1692, Court "ordered y^e Watertown selectmen be forthwith sent unto to make known to the Court why Stephen Coolidge may not be released from serving as constable." Admin. of his estate was granted to his brother, Jonathan, Mar. 5, 1710-11. His estate was divided June 18, 1711, to his brothers John (heirs), Simon (heirs), Nathaniel, Jonathan, and sister Mary (heirs). House, &c., given him by his father, appraised at £100.
- [4.] Simon Coolidge was witness in Court in 1659, then "aged about 27;" again witness in Court, June 11, 1662, then aged 30, both showing that he was born in 1632. He d. Dec. 27, 1693, aged 71, and admin. was granted, Jan. 15, 1693-4, to his son Joseph, and his son-in-law, Nathaniel Bright. Inventory, £66 12s. 3d.
- [6.] Nathaniel, d. Nov. 3, 1711.
- [8.] John Coolidge, Jr., was chosen sergeant in June, 1666, was selectman 1684, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90. In the settlement of his estate, or at his decease, he is said to have been aged about 50. This is undoubtedly an error. It probably should be 60 years. He is the first named among his father's sons in his Will, and it is to be observed that he was married in 1655.
- ☞ The marginal figures for reference, from 8 to 20, were thrown into pi in printing, but they will not probably mislead the reader. Hannah, the eldest child of John, was born Jan. 29, and not Feb.

Also about 2 A. of land, bounded N. by Mill Creek; S. by Charles River; E. by the mill; W. by the stone dam. May 26, 1663, he bought of John Stone, of Sudbury, all his right to the river and fishing wears in Watertown, being the one-half thereof. These wears had formerly belonged to Elder Edward How, and were inherited by his two daughters, the wives of Treadway and Stone. July 3, 1664, he bought of John Knapp and wife Sarah. 93 acres, formerly belonging to William Knapp. Ap. 2, 1667, he bought of Samuel Daniel and wife Susanna 117 acres in waste lands, No. 3, lot 90. On Thanksgiving-day, Nov. 4, 1743, a collection was taken for Samuel Coolidge, to be laid out for clothing, &c., by the deacons. He was buried at the town charge, Jan. 13, 1767, aged 63.

[13. Note.] Mary Danforth was the 2d wife of Solomon Phipps, Jr. Her second husband was Thomas Brown, of Sudbury. Ap. 3, 1670, Solomon Phipps, Jr., and Mary, his wife, "the worshipful Thomas Danforth's daughter," were adm. f. c. in Charlestown.

DANIELS.—Robert Daniels d. July 6, 1655 [Camb. Records.] He was released from training Ap. 1655, probably on account of his age. He was upwards of 60 years old. After 1651 he moved to Cambridge. Reana Daniels, of Camb., was probably his widow, who afterwards m. — Frost. Jan. 7, 1656-7, Reana Daniels, of Camb., sold to John Whitney 40 acres of great dividend land, 13th lot, 4th division, bounded N. by Camb. Line, E. and W. by Richard Waite; S. by highway; deed acknowledged by Reana Frost. Ap. 12, 1669, Robert Daniels, who sold land in Wat. in 1661 and 1662, and whose Will was dated in Sud., 1661-2, was probably a son of that Robert, who moved from Wat. to Camb., and d. there. It is also probable that Samuel Daniels, of Wat., was his son. Ap. 2, 1667, Samuel Daniels, planter, of Wat., sold to Nathaniel Coolidge 127 acres in the waste lands, No. 3, lot. 90. [For Ap. 26, 165-, read 1656.]

DAVIS.—In 1677, Benjamin Davis was put out or bound to Joseph Underwood. Mar. 29, 1692, wid. Underwood was warned for having taken into her family Benjamin [? Benanuel] Davis, and his family, and the Court disallowed him to be an inhabitant of Watertown. Jan. 1740, Mary Davis went from Wat. to Camb., and was "cautioned" against settlement.

DEAN.—Feb. 11, 1700-1, the town refused to pay the demands of Joseph Dean for serving as constable. He probably resided in the Farms (Weston). James Dean moved from Camb. to Wat. in Jan. 1741.

DENGAYNE.—(Dingham). Henry Dengayne, a "townsman then inhabiting" (1636), to whom a lot of Beaver Brook Plowland was granted, was probably the "Doctor Dingham" mentioned as a grantee of land in Wat., in a deed, Dr. Philip Shattuck to Jona. Smith. [Mid Deeds, Vol. X., p. 52.] He was an early proprietor of Dedham, and was probably the "Mr. Henry Dingham" who m., in Rox., Ap. 1641, Elizabeth Alcock, wid. of the Dr. and Dea. George Alcock, who d. Dec. 30, 1640. He d. in Rox., of apoplexy, Dec. 8, 1645. Nov. 4, 1646, the petition of Mrs. Dingham and John Alcock, for division of the houses and land (two-thirds to John, eldest son, and one-third to Samuel, b. Ap. 16, 1637), was granted by the General Court. [Colon. Rec. II., p. 165.] This was a few months after John had grad. Harv. Coll., and about 13 years before Samuel graduated. See Will of George Alcock [Geneal. Reg. II., p. 104] wherein is mentioned only two children, John and Samuel, and wife, not named. Also, see p. 627, note.

p. 198. DENNIS.—Sept. 1743, William Dennis moved from Boston to Watertown. In Ap. or May, 1748, he moved from Rox. to Watertown.

DENKLER.—This name is sometimes written Dunkler, Dunklin, and Dunklee.

DILL.—George Dill came to Wat. 1671, warned out Sept. 5, 1671, and d. there, a pauper, in 1715-16. [See Colonial Records for May 10, 1648, II., p. 242.]

- p. 198. DIX.—[1.] It was for a time supposed that Edward Dix and Jane Wilkinson, who embarked at Gravesend in Jan. 1635, were married after their arrival, and became the ancestors of all the Dix families in Watertown and that vicinity. This supposition is not yet, I think, entirely disproved, although later investigations have rendered it questionable. It is now supposed that Edward Dix, of Watertown, was the "Edward Deekes" who subscribed at the church gathering in Charlestown, Aug. 27, 1630 (and must therefore have come over in the fleet with Gov. Winthrop, or very soon after) and the "Edward Dixe" who was adm. freeman Mar. 4, 1634-5. Perhaps he returned to England for a wife. In subscribing at Charlestown, his name immediately succeeds that of Henry Bright, who also went to Watertown; and, in the list of freemen, his name is in the midst of other Watertown names. He was a selectman 1650, and he had been a constable previous to Ap. 1651, when he, and others with him, were fined by the Court, each 10s. for not providing half-bushels for standards, when constables. Ap. 2, 1661, wid. Susanna Dix brought suit against Serjt. John Wincol and John Dix, Exrs. of Edward Dix, for her dowry. Verdict for the plaintiff, viz., one-third rents and the costs, 13s.
- [6.] 5. Deborah, &c. She was not a daughter of Edward Dix. Dr. T. W. Harris says, she was doubtless a widow, for she had sons Leonard Dix, John Dix, and William Dix, who were settled at Hartford, Conn. Who her first husband was is unknown to me; Richard Barnes was her 2d husband.
- [7.] Elizabeth, wid. and ex'x of John Dix, with her son Edward, signed a deed, Ap. 17, 1719.
- [10.] Abigail Dix m., Dec. 10, 1701, Jonathan Grout, of Sud. [See Grout.]
- [20.] After Suffie, insert (? Sophia, or Sufferana).

[Lands and localities, sometimes retained the name of the first proprietor after his removal or sale.] — Edwards, of Watertown, had son Abraham, bap. in First Church, of Salem, Aug. 12, 1637. It is probable that this John Edwards, of Wat., was one of the early settlers of Wethersfield, Conn. The Gen. p. 208. FISKE.

Mr. Somerby, having recently visited and examined the Parish Registers in the County of Suffolk, where the Fiskes are known to have resided at an early date, says, "I found sufficient to justify the belief, that Nathan Fiske [of Watertown] was the eighth in descent from the first Simon Fiske, of Laxfield, through Robert, of St. James, South Elmsham, who was his (Nathan's) great grandfather. [The other Fiskes of New England are, it is believed, all of the same lineage.] This Simon Fiske was lord of the manor of Stradhaugh, in Laxfield, in the time of Henry VI., and he bore the following arms, viz., "Checkey Arg. and Gule; upon a pale sable three mullets or pierced." These arms were confirmed Nov. 16, 1633, to Nicholas Fiske, professor of physick, of Stradhaugh, in the Parish of Laxfield, and at the same time a crest was granted him, "for an ornament." The arms had been borne by his ancestors in the reigns of Henry VI., Edward IV., Richard III., and Henry VII.

Mr. Somerby says, "the family [of Fiskes in Suffolk] is very ancient, and has always been highly respectable." He found nearly fifty Wills of this family, proved in Suffolk, between 1462 and 1635. These searches of Parish and Probate Records, and the copying of them, cannot be prosecuted in England without considerable expense; and it is to be hoped that, among the almost innumerable Fiskes in New England, many of them wealthy and liberally educated, a sufficient purse will be made up, in order to make a thorough investigation.

FITCH.—[See David Fiske, [1.] in Part II., p. 758.]

FLAGG.—This orthography of the name has been adopted in the text, because it has become the prevalent, almost the universal usage, for the last few generations. There is, however, very little doubt but that it is erroneous, and that the correct orthography is Flegg. In the first place, the name Flagg is not found in Burke's Encyclopædia of Heraldry, which is a pretty good dictionary of well-known early English names; but Flegg is found there, with a coat of arms, with some variations, as Fleggh and Flegh. In the second place, in the early records of the town, and of the county, for eighty years or more, the name is, almost without exception, written Flegg, with some variations, always retaining the e, as Fleg, Flege, Flegge, flegg, &c. Finally, we have the autograph of Thomas Flegg, Jr., a facsimile of which is here inserted, which is written with an e. The initial ff, for F, was not unusual at that period.

- [1.] For 1643, read 1641. Thomas Flagg, Sen., continued to be selectman, 1681, 85, and 87. He was released from training Ap. 165-, by paying the Co. 5s. per annum. He was fully released therefrom by the Court, Ap. 5, 1681, when his eldest son was 40 years old. His Will, proved Feb. 16, 1697-8, mentions only a part of his children, viz., sons Thomas, Michael, Allen, and Benjamin, and dr. Rebecca Cooke [son Gershom was already deceased.] William Flagg, killed by Indians at Lancaster, Aug. 22, 1675, was probably another son, b. about 1648, and, being dead, not mentioned. The Will of his wid., Mary, dated Dec. 30, 1702, mentions only a part of her children, viz., Mary Bigelow, Elizabeth Bigelow, Rebecca Cook, and son Benjamin; son Samuel Bigelow, Exr.
 p. 220. 2½. Bartholomew Flagg belonged to Capt. Samuel Moseley's Company in Dec. 1675. [Geneal. Reg. viii., p. 241.]

FLEMING.—John Flemming was selectman 1649. His Inventory, dated June 13, 1657, by John Coolidge, John Livermore, and John Wincoll. House, barn, malt-house, &c., £120. House, &c., bought of Thomas Tarball, £25. Four other parcels of land and personal estate. His estate was divided Ap., 1659, giving eldest son a double portion.

Thomas Flemming, probably went to England late in the year 1658. Oct., 1658, Thomas Flemming ordered by the court to pay the costs of his servant, Thomas Browning, he (Browning) to make recompense at the end of his term. [See Browning.] As appears in the text, he was of Romford, Co. Essex, Eng., the next Feb., 1659. Oct. 2, 1660, John Flemming (Jr.), Samuel Sternes, John Winter, Nathaniel Bowman, and John Page, convicted of being at an uncivil meeting of sundry young persons, were sentenced to pay the constable's fees, 6s. It was on the same day that John Flemming obtained permission of the court, to engage in seafaring employment.

FLOWERS.—Thomas Flowers, came from Maryland to Wat., in 1756.

FOLEY.—John Foley, from Ireland, m., in 1778, Anna Rogers, b. Nov. 30, 1757, dr. of John and Hannah (Williams) Rogers, machinist and clock-maker, of Newton. Chil., 1. James, a shipmaster. 2. Sept. 15, 1795; m. Rev. Francis Green Macomber [see p. 354], a Baptist clergyman, of Beverly.

FOOTE.—For a copious and well-executed genealogy of the family and very numerous descendants of Nathaniel Foote, a very early emigrant from Watertown to Wethersfield, see "The Foote Family;" by Nathaniel Goodwin, published in Hartford, 1849.

FOSTER.—Abiah Foster, moved from Waltham to Wat., in 1761.
John Foster, moved from Rox. to Wat., in Ap., 1764.

FOWLE.—[1.] For 1752, read 1751. He was probably the Edmund Fowle, son of Edmund and Mary, b. in Newton, Sept. 23, 1719.

226. [3.] Edmund Fowle, was selectman 1795, 1805, 6. He d. Sept. 28, 1821, aged 74; and his wid. Huldah, d. in Wat., Feb. 21, 1842, aged 85. His dr. Mary, d. May 11, 1823, unm. His dr. Huldah, d. May 6, 1822, unm.

Army, was killed at Cincinnati, by the explosion of the Steamer Moselle; dr. Harriet m. William Smith, of Lowell; dr. Elizabeth m. Charles Smith, of Quincy; dr. Maria, m. — Britton, of Orford, N. H.

[9.] Chil. of Jeremiah, 1. Cromwell, d. May 25, 1823, aged 22. 2. Caroline, m. — Etheridge, of Charlestown.

FOX.—Thomas Fox, m., Ap. 24, 1683, Elizabeth, wid. of Charles Chadwick (who d. Ap. 10, 1682). She d. Feb. 22, 1684-5, aged 70. Thomas Fox was Rep. of Wat., 1688, and "Father Fox," was chosen tythingman, 9 months after the above marriage. Mr. Shattuck, p. 371, says, Thomas Fox, Sen., d. Ap. 14, 1658. It seems to me more probable, that it was the son Thomas, who d. at that time; and that Thomas Fox, Sen., was the "Father Fox," who m. the widow Chadwick. From the age of the bride (aged 69), we infer that he was an old man. It is conjectured, that his 2d wife, Hannah, was a daughter of Capt. Thomas Brooks, that she, and her son Thomas, and probably her daughter, died before her father, and is not therefore, mentioned in the settlement of his estate. We insert the little we have gleaned, with respect to the family of Thomas Fox, of Concord, accompanied with our conjectures, to be confirmed or confuted by others.

THOMAS FOX, m. (1st), REBECCA —. She d. May 11, 1647, and he m. (2d), Dec. 13, 1647, HANNAH BROOKS. As the birth of no child of hers is recorded after 1650, she probably died soon, and before her supposed father, Capt. Brooks. He m. (3d), ELLEN, wid. of Percival Green,* of Camb., where he settled, and was a member of the church as early as 1658, and was this year selectman. She d. in Camb., May 27, 1682, aged 82 years; ten months before his m. to wid. E. Chadwick. He d. in Camb., Ap. 25, 1693, æt. 86. [See Camb. Epitaphs.]

1. Eliphalet, m., 1665, Mary Wheeler, dr. of George and Catherine, of Concord. He m. (2d), in 1681 or 82, Mary, wid. of Isaac Hunt, and dr. of John and Anne (How) Stone, of Sudbury. [See How.] She d. about 1686. [She had m., May 14, 1667, Isaac Hunt (? son of Wm., of Concord.) He d. Dec., 1680, leaving 6 children. By her 2d husband, E. Fox, she had 2 children.] He d. Aug. 15, 1711.

2. Elizabeth, b. Sept. 18, 1642; m., Oct. 3, 1665, John Ball, Jr., of Wat. [2.], his 2d wife.

3. Mary (twin), b. Sept. 18; d. Oct. 9, 1642.
(By 2d wife Hannah.)

4. Hannah, b. Sept. 25, 1648, probably d. young.

5. Thomas, b. Feb. 26, 1649-50; d. 1658. 6. (?) Jabez.

* John Green, the only son of Percival and Ellen Green, of Camb., m., Oct. 20, 1656, Ruth, dr. of Edward and Ruth (Bushell ? Bushnell) Mitchelson, of Camb., and had 1. John. 2. Nathaniel. 3. Percival, b. Mar. 29, 1660; grad. Harv. Coll., 1680; d. in Camb., July 10, 1684. 4. Ruth. 5. Samuel. 6. Elizabeth. 7. Edward. He succeeded his father-in-law, E. Mitchelson, as Marshal-General, and d. Mar. 3, 1691, aged 55.

FREEMAN.—The name of Samuel Freeman's wife in the records is Appia (Apphia). May 31, 1648, Henry Freeman, of Wat., mortgaged his house with 2 A. of land in Wat., situated between Joseph Tainter and Richard Gale, to John Newgate, of Boston, and William Barber, of (?) Ludgate, in consideration of their releasing him from a bond in favor of John Freeman, of Westminster. [Suff. Deeds I, p. 91.] This renders it probable that he was from Westminster, or that vicinity. There is no record of any children of Henry Freeman, of Watertown, but probably James, of Boston, and Samuel, of Sudbury, were his sons. May 3, 1704, Mary Sherman, of Wat., and James Sherman, of Sud. [Ex'rs of Rev. John Sherman], for £40, sold to Samuel Freeman, of Sud., weaver, and James Freeman, of Boston, brewer, 4 acres in Wat., near the Farms [Weston] meeting-house, bounded N.W. by Thomas Woolson; S.E. by land of — Loveran, d.; S.W. and N.E. by squadron line; only excepting what is sold to the Farms for a burying-place. James Freeman, administrator of John Freeman, of Newton, Ap., 1705. Jan., 1713-14, Apphia Freeman, from Cambridge, was warned out of town. She became pauper, and was buried in May, 1723, when the selectmen ordered 5 quarts of rum to be bought for her funeral! Her parentage not ascertained.

p. 227. FULHAM.—Francis Fulham, Esq., was for a long time the most influential man in Weston. The Registry of Deeds shows that he purchased numerous lots or parcels of land, generally situated in the S.W. part of the town. Jan. 4, 1697-8, James Barnard, of Sud., sold to Francis Fulham, of Wat. [Farms], 60 A. in Wat., near Sudbury, a quarter of the farm called Barnard's Farm, "near the Land of Contention, so called." Feb. 10, 1707-8, same sold to same, 24 A. in S.W. corner of Watertown [Farms], part of a grant of 236 A. called Land of Contention. [See Eddy [6.], Part II.] He was selectman 1710, '11, before the separation, Weston from Wat., and afterwards, he held numerous responsible offices. [See Bond, 35.] The date of his decease has not been ascertained; but he lived to advanced age, for "Col. Francis Fulham," was Moderator of a town-meeting, Mar. 25, 1751. Mar. 30, 1752, he resigned his agency for collecting rents for the proprietors of Natick, and for paying to each his due share. The records of Natick were in his keeping as early as 1719.

[3.] Francis, m., Dec. 4, 1740, Susanna Hammond, dr. of Eleazer and Hannah (Harrington) Hammond, of Newton. [T. Hammond 70, Part II.]

[4.] Jacob Fulham d. in Leominster, Oct. 20, 1833, aged 83, probably a son of Jacob and Hannah (Ware), of Weston.

[12.] For Mar. 30, read May 30. Sarah Fulham, was the 2d wife of Dea. Wm. Trowbridge. 5 chil. [See Trowbridge, 18, Part II.]

FULLER.—William Fuller, aged 25, and John Fuller, aged 15, embarked in the Abigail, in May, 1635, for New England. This age of John does not correspond with the age of the first John Fuller, of Newton, who d. Feb. 7, 1698-9, aged 87. Perhaps there is an error in one of these dates. Elizabeth, wid. of John Fuller, of Newton, d. Ap. 13, 1700.

The family and descendants of John Fuller, of Newton, are so very intimately associated with Watertown families, and what was printed on pp. 227-8, contains some errors, and so many deficiencies, that a brief, condensed genealogy is here inserted. That large tract of land called the Fuller Farm, and upon which most of the families of this name have resided, was situated in the bend of Charles River, opposite to Waltham Plain. It included nearly all the land lately taken from Newton, and annexed to Waltham. It was, however, more extensive, extending farther down, and farther back from the river. For a view of the topography of this farm, and a more copious account of this family, see Jackson's excellent History and Map of Newton, to which we are much indebted.

G.) was put away by the wid.; thence he came to Wat., to the house of Elliz Barron, whose wife had skill in matters of surgery; that Barron being weary of him, he came to the selectmen, who refused to receive him as an inhabitant. Ap. 11, 1692, Mary Holden (wid. of Justinian), aged 45, testified that S. Garfield lived with her husband Justinian. 1½ years, in the limits of Wat., some few months before his decease. This time (1½ years) was probably after his return from Salem; for one petition on file states, that the 20 yrs. of absence from Wat. was partly spent at Salem, where he was an inhabitant, paid taxes, and was impressed in the Indian War. William Shattuck and others testified, Ap. 19, 1692, that Justinian Holden moved to his farm in Camb., last part of Dec. or beginning of January, and there remained till the day of his death, about the middle of August following—that Garfield had been his servant 18 or 19 years.

GOLDSTONE.—[Such additional information has been obtained, and such errors of dates in the pedigree have been discovered since the printing of pages 105 and 6, that the whole account of the Goldstone family, as revised, is here inserted.]

The following Pedigree has been obtained from the records of Bedingfield and Wickham Skeith, villages of Suffolk, England.

Henry Goldstone, aged 43, wife Anna, aged 45, dr. Anna, aged 18 years, and dr. Mary, aged 15 years, embarked at Ipswich, Eng., in Ap. 1634, and settled in Watertown, where he d. July 25, 1638, aged 46. In Nov. 1634, the Court "dismissed him training," by reason of age and infirmity, only he was to have in readiness at all times sufficient arms for himself, besides his servants. His wid. m. John George (of Watertown after this marriage), who d. about the 1st of June, 1647. His Inventory, by Lient. Mason, John Coolidge, and John Sherman, was dated June 12, 1647. This Inventory was presented for probate by his wid. Anna, June 29, 1647, and on the same day she presented for probate "an inventory of all such goods [personal estate] as were widow Gouldstone's, and in her possession, before she entered into a married estate," £188 0s. 11d. She is called, "late wife of Henry Goldstone." She was appointed guardian of Robert and Susan George, two children of her last husband by a former wife.* This Susan George m. Robert Harrington [1]. [See General Reg. VII., p. 172, and Suff. Prob. II., p. 33.] The items of the above-mentioned Inventory show, that Mr. Goldstone's house and farm were well furnished and stocked for that early day, and the schedule of his real estate (11 lots, one of which was a homestall of 28 A.), amounted to 355 acres. "Wid. Hannah [Anna] George," d. in Wat., Ap. 26, 1670, aged 79. Chil.,

1. ANNA, bap. at Wickham Skeith, Co. Suff., May 16, 1615; m. Dea. HENRY BRIGHT [1].
2. MARY, bap. Feb. 26, 1620 (probably not soon after birth, as she was 15 years old when she embarked), m. in Rox., Oct. 8, 1634, Lient. JOSHUA HEWES. He, then unm., came over about Sept. 1633, a fellow-passenger, it is believed, with Rev. John Cotton, Edmund Quincy, Col. John Leverett, Gov. John Haines, and Rev. Thomas Hooker. He was adm. freeman Mar. 4, 1633-4, and on the same day subscribed 20s. towards building the sea fort [Fort Independence]. He was Rep. at the Gen. Court, June 1641, and in Sept. 1642, the Court appointed him to have charge, in Rox., of the order respecting the making of saltpetre. He was a merchant of large transactions; was one of a free company of adventurers for trade and discoveries, incorporated by the Court in Mar. 1644, and in May, 1645, "Mr. Joshua Hewes" was one of the four undertakers for the iron-works. [See Col. Records, vol. II., Index, and Winthrop, II.,

* John George, of Charlestown, was one of the founders of the First Baptist Church in Boston. In Hutchinson's Hist. Coll. I., p. 399, see an account of the intolerant, shameful proceedings of the Court against him. He d. Sept. 12, 1666. His nuncupative Will mentions wife Elizabeth, and chil. Elizabeth Glazier, Martha Rose, John, Ruth, Hannah, and Mary. His wid. m. — Harbour, dr. Ruth m. in 1668, Samuel Frothingham; dr. Hannah m., Nov. 25, 1673. James Miller; dr. Mary m., July 11, 1678, Joseph Dowse. Whether this John was a son of that John George who d. in Wat. in 1647, has not been ascertained, but it is not improbable. Having attained his majority before the decease of his supposed father, he is not mentioned among the wards of wid. Anna.

Mar. 2, 1641. John George was put (by the Court) to Mr. John Winthrop, Sen., for 8 years, with his own consent. He was probably an orphan.

213.] He was one of the Rox. Grantees of land, between the lines of Ded, Wat., and Sudbury; was one of the messengers appointed by the Court, in 1648, to Shawomet (Warwick), in order to settle the disturbance there between the English and Indians; was engaged in the Narragansett purchase and settlement, and in 1662 moved thither, to Wickford (N. Kingston), but afterwards returned to Boston. His first marriage is the third recorded in Roxbury. His wife Mary (Goldstone) d., and he m. (2d) Feb. 11, 1657, ALICE, wid. of John Crabtree, of Boston. He d. in Boston, Jan. 25, 1676, aged 66. The births of only three of his chil. are recorded in Roxbury, but it is probable that he had others. Chil.,

1. Joshua, b. Oct. 19, d. Dec. 20, 1639. 2. Mary, b. Dec. 29, 1641.
3. Joshua, b. May 25, 1644. Joshua Hewes, probably this son, was appointed innholder, June 26, 1693, and d. in Boston in 1706.

GOLDTHWAITE.—Inventory of wid. Martha Goldthwaite, of Waltham, dated Dec. 3, lodged Dec. 4, 1783, £38 6s. 10d.

GOODRIDGE.—(Goodrich.) See Gutterig, in Part II.

GOSS.—For May 10, 163—, read 1631. John Goss, was a juror May 2, 1631. June 4, 1639, he was fined £20, for common railing [violating the gag-laws], and committed to prison. The fine was remitted not long afterwards.

GOVE.—The Will of John Gove, of Charlestown. dated Jan. 22, 1647–8, mentions wife (not named), whom he made ex'x; daughter Mary Gove, whom "I do give and bequeath, with my wife's full consent, to Ralph Mousal, and his wife, as their own child forever; and my two sons John and Edward." Inventory dated Jan. 25, 1647–8 (three days after the date of his Will), £9 12s. 6d. The Will renders it very improbable, that this Inventory embraced the whole of his estate. It is probable that he was a dealer or worker in brass. The disposal of his daughter, Mary, renders it probable that she was not the daughter of his wife, whom he appointed ex'x. He bought his house of "goodm. Larkin." [See Geneal. Reg. vii., p. 170.]

[1.] JOHN GOVE, was constable of Camb., in 1672: d. Nov. 24, 1704, aged 77. The record of his children requires to be corrected as follows:—

4. Nathaniel, bap. Nov. 16, 1662; d. soon.
5. James, bap. Dec. 13, 1663.
6. Nathaniel, bap. Aug. 4, 1667, mentioned in his father's Will; m. Mary —, and moved to Lebanon, Conn. [See Geneal. Reg. vii., 59.]
(By 2d wife.)
7. Jonathan, b. Jan. 19, 1677–8; d. Oct. 11, 1681.
8. John, b. about 1680; d. Jan. 16, 1681–2.
9. Jonathan, b. May 3, 1682.
10. Sarah, b. Aug. 28, 1686; m., Jan. 15, 1707–8, Samuel Scot, of Cambridge.

p. 260. GRANT.—[1.] After 1608, insert, or 10. Admin. on estate of Christopher Grant, was granted Oct. 6, 1685, to his sons Christopher, Caleb, and Joseph. His residence was towards the eastern border, not N.E. corner of the town. His homestead, of 5 acres, in 1644, was on the north side of the Cambridge road, opposite to Mount Auburn Cemetery. Jan. 19, 1691–2, Caleb, Christopher, and Joseph Grant, and their sisters Sarah Sevorns, and Mary Smith, state to the court that their father d. about 6 years since, intestate, that their mother is now deceased, and they pray for a division of the estate.

 [11.] Mary Grant, wid. of Joseph, was living Mar. 1751, aged 84.

 [31.] Christopher, Jr., d. Mar. 12, 1850. Col. C. Grant was selectman 13 years, 1781-94.

GRAVES.—Benjamin Graves, fined 40s. for selling drink, was released by the selectmen from that part of the fine belonging to the poor, he being a poor man. At the same time (May, 1694) he was “approved as a retailer, he living in the woods, upon a road remote from any other ordinary several miles.”

GREEN.—Winthrop [II., p. 152], says: “Divers families going from Watertown [in 1642-3], to plant Martha’s Vineyard, procured a young man, one Mr. Green, a scholar, to be their minister, in hopes soon to gather a church there. He went not.” It was Rev. Henry Green [not Thomas], an early proprietor of Wat., afterwards the first minister of Reading, who m. Frances, the eldest child of Dea. Simon Stone.* [Thomas Green, of Malden, m., Sept. 5, 1659, Frances, wid. of Richard Cook.]

Samuel Green was witness to a deed in Wat., Dec. 26, 1677. John Green was witness to a deed by wid. Jane Guy, in Sud., in 1666, and to a deed in Wat., Ap. 1671. He was an inhabitant of Wat. 1702 to 1714, where his wife, Bethia, d. Oct. 12, 1714, aged 68. [See Shattuck [12], Part II.]

p. 263. GREGORY.—[34.] The parentage of this Susan Upham is not ascertained.

GRIMES.—James Grimes had 3. Mary, b. in Newton, Ap. 25, 1747. 4. Kezia, b. in N., Sept. 28, 1749.

* Feb. 3, 1668, Simon Stone, Jr. (brother of Frances), and wife Mary, sold to Simon Coolidge a farm of about 55 acres, lately belonging to the relict and heirs of Henry Green, late of Watertown, clerk, to whom it was granted. This farm was in the western part of Watertown Farms (Weston), and very near or adjoining to the “Cowpen Farm.” The Will of Dea. Simon Stone [General Reg. III. 182] gives to his dr. Frances, £10, “And my mind is, that my daughter Frances’ £10 should be paid £5 to Johanna Green, her daughter, and Nathaniel Green, her son, 50s. apiece; and the other £5 to the children she have by her husband —.” By this, it appears that Mr. Green left only two children that lived to maturity, and that his wid. Frances m. a second husband, and had other children. It has not been ascertained what became of his dr. Joanna, or whether his son Nathaniel had wife or family. The son resided in Watertown as early as 1694, when he subscribed towards repairing the meeting-house. After this he appears to have become indigent or helpless. Mar. 16, 1708-9, wid. Mary Stone [6], presented a complaint to the selectmen that Nathaniel Green, an inhabitant of Wat., is destitute of a place of abode. Same date, the selectmen agreed to meet Ap. 1st next, to inquire, what estate of Green may be found in the possession of Mrs. Mary Stone. The next June, the selectmen desired Jabez Beers to take Nathaniel Green as far as he hath occasion, and the rest of the time to spend with Samuel Spur, at the shoemaker’s trade. Jan. 30, 1709-10, the selectmen ordered the Treasurer to receive of the heirs of Simon Stone, deceased [6], payment on Green’s estate; and on the 30th Jan. 1710-11, Simon Tainter agreed to keep Nathaniel Green 4 years from the 5th instant.

GUTTERIG.*—(Gutteridge, Gudderidge, Gouteridge, Goodridge, Goodrich.) It is not clearly ascertained whether Goodridge, or Goodrich, is the correct orthography, as both of them are English names, and they have different coats of arms. Goodrick and Goodricke are also found in works of heraldry; and the coat of arms of Goodridge and Goodricke render it very probable that they are of the same origin. The inventory of "William Goodrich," of Watertown, by Samuel Thatcher and Thomas Hastings, was dated Ap. 3, 1647 [See General Reg. VII., p. 57.]† His wid. Margaret m. John Hull, of Newbury, who d. there Feb. 1, 1670, and his wid. Margaret d. Feb. 3, 1683. His children went with their mother to Newbury, and all married there.

* We offer the following conjecture, to be confirmed or confuted by future researches, viz.: that John and William Goodrich, (?) brothers, came to this country together from Bury St. Edmunds, or that vicinity, Co. Suffolk, England; that William, the younger, settled in Watertown, where he died; that John, the eldest of the two, was the John Guttering who was adm. freeman of Mass., May, 1642; that soon after this he went to Wethersfield, where his name appears in the Conn. Coll. Records the next year, taking with him his two sons, John and William (having left another son, William [See Note, p. 45], in England, to be educated, afterwards minister of Hegassitt, d. about 1677, s. p., bequeathing his estate to his nephews in Conn.); that he died on his return voyage to England, in 1644, leaving in Wethersfield those two sons, John and William, from whom the Goodrich families in Connecticut are descended.

† Colonial Records, June 6, 1637, "Whereas John Binfield dyed, leaving 2 children undisposed of the charge of the one [Mary, who m. Samuel Garfield] was ordered to be defrayed by Mr. Cradock, he having the goods of the deceased, the other [Alice] being disposed of by the country" [to Emanuel White, q.v.]. It is probable that White d. soon, as his name disappeared, and, by the Gen. Court, Sept. 3, 1639, "William Guttridge was enjoined to take care of Ales Burwood, until he may be lawfully discharged of her." [See p. 26.]

HACKETT.—Aug. 28, 1744, caution against (settlement of) Elizabeth Hackett, and her dr. Elizabeth, from Boston, Ap. 8.

HAGAR.—In the church records, Rev. Mr. Angier wrote this name Agar. Perhaps it will be ascertained that William Hagar, of Watertown, was a son of that William Agar, that was adm. freeman May 18, 1631. Both names are found in England, and their arms may indicate some early affinity, a lion being their chief characteristic.

John was probably a son of Abigail, and Hepzibah was a dr. of Sarah. Lieut. John Hammond was selectman 1664, 70, 92, 98, 1701. His Will, dated Nov. 18, 1709, mentions wife Prudence, son John, dr. THOMAS HAMMOND.

- 1 (I.) THOMAS HAMMOND, settled in Hingham, as early as 1636, was adm. freeman Mar. 9, 1636-7, and was a grand juror Sept. 19, 1637. In 1650, and again in 1656, he sold lands in Hingham. In 1650, he purchased land in Cambridge Village (Newton), near the boundary line of Brookline, and near a beautiful body of water, which has since borne his name—"Hammond Pond." Nov. 14, 1656, for £40, he purchased of Esther, dr. of Nathaniel Sparhawk, of Cambridge, 300 A. of land in said town, on the south side of Charles River, bounded N., S., and W. by a farm granted by the town to Robert Bradish (partly now in the possession of wid. Hammond), N. by land now of John Ward, and Thomas Prentice, formerly granted to Elder Frost; E. by Mr. Hibbin's land. His wife, ELIZABETH, died first, and he d. Sept. 30, 1675, leaving two sons, Thomas and Nathaniel, and two daughters, Elizabeth and Sarah, all mentioned in his Will. To his drs. he gave lands in Brookline ("Muddy River"). Inventory, £1139 16s. 2d. There is no clear evidence that he and William Hammond, of Watertown, were kinsmen; but it is very probable. It is supposed that he came from Lavenham, Co. Suffolk, England, whence it is known that William Hammond, of Wat., came; and that he was the Thomas Hammond who m., in Lavenham, Nov. 12, 1623, Elizabeth Cason.

HOW.—1st line, for 1632, read 1634. Elder Edward How d. June 24, 1644. In 11th line, after Boxstead, insert, Co. Essex. July 18, 1658, "Miss ——— Bunker," from Watertown Church, was adm. to Charlestown Church. George Bunker, who married the wid. of Edward How, of Wat., was adm. freeman Mar. 4, 1634-5, and was constable of Charlestown in 1638. He was one of the wealthiest settlers of the town, and in the divisions of land, his shares were commonly the largest of any. One of his lots of land on Bunker Hill ran over its summit, and hence its name. [Frothingham's Hist. of Charlestown, p. 83.]

Elder Edward How, of Watertown, and Matthew Cradock, of London, were joint and equal proprietors of the first mill built in Watertown. It is probable that the mill had been built by How, at the joint cost of himself and Mr. Cradock. It appears by the earliest list of possessions, and likewise by his Inventory, that Mr. How owned the land (2 acres) between the river and "Mill Creek," extending from the Mill up to the stone dam. His homestead of 40 acres was also in that vicinity. Aug. 19, 1635, he sold his moiety of the mill to Thomas Mayhew for £200, with bond for £400, and mortgage, with condition, "that if said Mayhew pays to How £200, bond to be void, else said How shall enter upon the moiety of said mill, as if he had never made sale thereof." Mayhew bought the other moiety of the mill of Nicholas Davison, agent of Matthew Cradock, of London. Ap. 18, 1640, Mayhew sold the mill to Dep. Gov. Dudley for £400. It is probable that Mayhew failed to perform his conditions with How, and that this gave rise to the case briefly noticed by Winthrop, vol. II., p. 50. In his Inventory, by (Rev.) John Knowles (Capt.) Wm. Jennison, and (Capt.) John Sherman, is included this bond and mortgage of Thomas Mayhew, for £400.

HUBBARD.—See Ives, p. 306, and Hamlet, in Camb. Church Gathering, p. 60. It appears that James Hubbard, by wife Sarah, had, 1. James, who m. a dr. of Miles Ives, and was his exr. and residuary legatee. 2. Sarah, m. Samuel Champney. 3. Thomas, b. in Wat., Aug. 10, 1638, "joined the Church in Wethersfield." He d. in 1738, and his wid. Sarah m. William Hamlet, of Cambridge, and of Wat. [See p. 269.]

[The following account of a Hubbard family is here inserted, on account of its many affinities with other families included in this volume. It is very defective, and it is hoped that some one will be induced to supply its deficiencies.]

GEORGE HUBBARD, and wife MARY, are supposed to have come from England about 1635 or 6, and went with the early settlers to Wethersfield, of which he was delegate in 1638. His lot of land in the Nanbuc Farms, laid out in 1640, on the east side of the river (now in Glostenbury), contained 195 acres. He soon afterwards moved to Milford, and was there admitted to the church, Jan. 15, 1644. In 1648, he moved to Guilford, and was there admitted to the church, Oct. 6, 1650. He was living in Guilford in 1665. He had at least nine children, some of whom were born in England, but the order of their birth has not been ascertained. HUDSON.—Daniel Hudson was taxed in Wat. in 1652, and two acres were granted to him in King's Common, Oct. 22, 1653, he to make brick for the town's use. Nov. 7, 1664, he was released from the condition. In the Inventory of John Chinery was a lot of 10 acres, formerly of Daniel Hudson. He moved to Lancaster in 1664, where he, and his wife, and two daughters, were slain by Indians in 1695. [Worcester Mag. II., p. 296.]

JACKSON.—About 1637, or earlier, Robert Lockwood, Isaac Sternes, and Henry Jackson, were lessees of the fishing weirs in Wat., for six years. This was probably the Henry Jackson who, then aged 29, embarked at London, in April, 1635, in the Elizabeth and Ann. For a copious and satisfactory account of the family and descendants of Dea. John Jackson, and Mr. Edward Jackson, of Newton, see Jackson's History.

JACOBS.—Nicholas Jacobs sold his homestall in Wat. to Robert Daniel before 1636, also, sold a lot near the river to John Barnard, and moved to Hingham. He was licensed by the Gen. Court, Oct. 7, 1640, to keep an ordinary in Hingham. In Nov. 1646, he was appointed one of the Commissioners to end small causes, and was elected Deputy of Hingham in 1648, 49, &c. His Will, dated May 18, proved July 28, 1657, mentions wife Mary (Ex'x), eldest son John, son Joseph, drs. Mary Otis, Elizabeth Thackster, Sarah Cushen, Hannah (m., Dec. 13, 1657, Thomas Loring, Jr., of Hull), and Deborah. Inventory, £393 8s. 6d. [See General. Reg. viii. p. 280.]

JAMES.—The marriage contract between wid. Reana James and William Andrew, was made Aug. 11, 1640, and on Aug. 21, 1664, "Daniel Kempster, aged 77," testified that he witnessed the signature of the contract.

JENNISON.—In 4th line from the bottom, for Black, read Block Island. Mr. William Jennison was by the court, chosen Ancient (ensign) to Capt. Patrick, Aug. 16, 1631, and held the office until Mar. 9, 1636-7, when he was chosen Captain for Watertown. He was one of the first three Commissioners for Watertown, appointed in 1638, to end small causes, and he appears to have held it, by reappointments, until his return to England. Oct. 6, 1634, he was fined £20, by the Court "for upbraiding the court with injustice, uttering these words: 'I pray God deliver me from this court,' professing he had waited from court to court, and could not have justice done him." At the next court, Ap. 7, 1635, this fine was remitted. The Colonial Records show that the court had great confidence in his capacity and integrity. He received numerous appointments on committees, of which he was often chairman, for determining boundaries between towns, and plotting new towns; also on questions of taxation, Indian affairs, and contested land claims. He, and Mr. Mayhew, both of Watertown, were appointed to bring Mr. Nathaniel Eaton (the first principal of Harvard College), to trial for his misconduct, chiefly in relation of his mal-treatment of Nathaniel Briscoe, Jr., son of Nathaniel, Sen., of Watertown.

In May, 1637, he was one of the four commissioners appointed by the court, to provide men, munitions, and provisions for the Pequod war. Sept. 3, 1638, the court granted him 200 acres of land, which was the land mentioned in the following transaction. Ap. 8, 1657, William Jennison, "of Colchester, Old England," by his brother Robert, his att'y, conveyed to Edmund Rice, 200 acres, granted to said William; bounded W. by the Dunster Farm; N. by Sudbury line; E. by Wat. line; S. by Dedham bounds. This land passed from Edmund Rice, to his son Matthew. This conveyance shows that Capt. Jennison was living in England, as late as 1657, and renders it probable that the Jennison family originated in Colchester, Co. of Essex.

According to Frothingham's Hist. of Charlestown, there was a William Jennison, residing there in 1678. This is probably a mistake for Jamieson, or Jameson.

[6.] Ensign Samuel Jennison was Town Clerk, in 1691. His Will, dated Nov. 30, 1700, mentions eldest son Samuel; 2d son, William, of Sudbury; son Peter; youngest son Robert; eldest dr., Judith Barnard; 2d dr., Rachel Barron; dr. Grace Holden; youngest dr., Lydia; grandchil., Mary Jennison, James and Samuel Barnard, Timothy Barron, and John Holden; also Joseph Bowman. Inventory, dated Oct. 31, 1701. House, &c., £95; farm, 50 acres, £90; farm, 20 acres, £60; 12 acres in lieu of township, £5; 1 acre of meadow, £10. Ap. 5, 1699, James Barnard, of Sud., sold to Samuel Jennison, Sen., of Wat., gent., land in Sudbury. This was probably the land $\frac{1}{2}$ of which he (S. J.) gave to his son William, Sept., 1700.

- p. 326. KING.—9th line, for 1646, read 1644. This "young, resolute, and confident" Thomas King, appears to have been the pioneer in the settlement of Rutland [then called Nashaway]. From an excursion thither, with Sholan, an Indian chief, he returned and induced the hardy and adventurous John Prescott and others, to go and commence a settlement there. He and Symonds, built a trading-house; but he died in Watertown, before he had moved his family thither. His Inventory renders it very probable that he was a trader in Watertown. [See Willard's Centennial Address, at Lancaster, and Geneal. Reg. viii., p. 56.] Mary King, a member of the 2d church, in Boston (name of her husband not given), had eight chil. bap. there, the 6th of whom, Richard, was bap. Oct. 18, 1711. Was this the Richard King who settled in Watertown, as early as 1740, and afterwards moved to Scarborough?

Oct. 15, 1658, admin. on the estate was granted to Ephraim Child, Richard Beers, and Priscilla Knapp. The next April, she was released from the administration. Dec., 1658, the constable of Wat. was ordered by the court to deliver wid. Knapp her chest and other things, which John Knapp has detained from her by attachment. JOHN LAWRENCE.

(1.) JOHN LAWRENCE,* settled in Watertown, probably in 1635, as his eldest child was born there, Mar. 14, 1635-6. His name is on the earliest list of proprietors extant, and he was adm. freeman Ap. 17, 1637. The date of his arrival in America has not been ascertained, nor is it known whether he was married before or after his arrival. Nothing has yet been ascertained from American records or archives, with respect to his parentage or ancestry. It has been supposed that he was the John Lawrence† of great St. Albans, Hertfordshire, who embarked in the Planter, for New England, in 1635, then aged 17 years. This is evidently a mistake, as the passenger in the Planter was only 19 years old when John Lawrence, of Watertown, was admitted freeman.

By his first wife, ELIZABETH, he had 12 children, all born between his settlement in Watertown, and his removal to Groton, whither he moved in the autumn of 1662. His wife, Elizabeth d. there the next summer, Aug. 29, 1663, and he m. (2d), Nov. 2, 1664, SUSANNA BATCHELDER, dr. of William Batchelder, of Charlestown. He d. July 11, 1667, and his wid. Susanna d. July 8, 1668. His Will, dated Ap. 24, proved Oct. 1, 1667, appoints his wife, and sons Nathaniel and Joseph, ex'rs; mentions sons Enoch, Samuel, Isaac, Jonathan, and Zechariah; of the three at home, Elizabeth, "to live with Mr. Ensigne Buss, of Concord, till of age; the other two, Enoch and Zechariah, be trust to Samuel Willard and William Lakin, till of age." To his dr. Mary he gave only half a portion with the rest, "to teach her a remembrance of her disobedience and unfaithfulness to me in my distress." [She had married two days before the decease of her mother.] Inventory, £278 0s. 4d. House and 10 acres of land, from the street to the hill, taking an equal breadth, apprizd at £60. The Will of his wid. Susanna, dated at Charlestown, July, proved Dec. 16, 1668, mentions her two daughters, Abigail and Susanna; her father and mother Batchelder; two sisters, Rachel Atwood and Abigail Asting; her father Batchelder, and brother Atwood, of Malden, ex'rs.

[Signature to his Will.]

The date of his removal to Groton is determined with sufficient precision by the following facts. Oct. 23, 1662, he sold land in Watertown to John Barnard. Oct. 27, 1662, he sold another lot to William Page, and on the same day another lot to Joseph Underwood, and on the same day he sold to John Biscoe his homestead in Watertown, a dwelling-house, &c., and about thirteen acres, "being the now mansion-house of said John Lawrence," bounded on the E. by the highway; N. by Timothy Hawkins and John Hammond; W. by the meadow of said Biscoe; S. by land of John Flemming, deceased; wid. Dix, and her sonne; wid. Bartlett, and said Biscoe. In Dec. 1662, "meet men were found amongst the inhabitants [of Groton], when Dea. James Parker, John Lawrence, William Martin, Richard Blood, and James Fiske, were chosen selectmen" [Butler, p. 17]. His early admission as freeman, and this election to the first board of selectmen of Groton, show that he was well known, and of good repute. According to the list of possessions in Watertown in 1642, he then owned 7 lots, amounting to 154½ acres. In legal instruments he was designated a carpenter, although, from the amount of his land, it might be presumed that he was chiefly devoted to agriculture. The birth

* In compiling the following genealogy of the descendants of John Lawrence, we with pleasure acknowledge our obligations, in the first place, to Butler's very valuable History of Groton, so often referred to in the course of this work; in the next place, to the Genealogy of Isaac Lawrence [366], by Mr. F. S. Pease, published in Albany in 1853; and lastly, to "the Memoir of the Family of John Lawrence," by Rev. John Lawrence, printed in Boston in 1847, but not published. To the latter we are indebted for much information respecting the later generations. A gentleman has lately succeeded, as we are told, in discovering the pedigree of the Lawrence families in England, and tracing it back to a remote period. This pedigree has not yet been received in this country. Perhaps it may be forwarded in such time as to find a place in our Appendix.

† The following family, from Great St. Albans, Hertfordshire, embarked in the Planter, Nic. Trarice, Master, Ap. 2, 1635.

JOHN TUTTLE, mercer, aged 39; JOAN TUTTLE, aged 42; John Lawrence, aged 17; William Lawrence, aged 12; Miria Lawrence, aged 9; Abigail Tuttle, aged 6; Synon Tuttle, aged 4; Sara Tuttle, aged 2; John Tuttle, aged 1 year.

1653-4, Mrs. Joanna Tuttle was att'y of her husband John Tuttle, then living in Ireland. He d. at Carrickfergus, Ireland, Dec. 30, 1656. It appears by the court files of Essex, 1659, that Joanna Tuttle had a son George Giddings; son John Lawrence; sons John and Simon Tuttle. Also, that there was a John Tuttle, then aged 33, nephew of her husband. As no son William Lawrence is mentioned in this document, we may infer that he was not then living. It is here evident that this Joanna m. (1st), — Lawrence, and afterwards John Tuttle. The numerous and respectable Lawrence families of Long Island and New York, are said to trace their lineage to these emigrants, John and William, from Great St. Albans.

There was a Henry Lawrence of Charlestown as early as 1635. In the first division of land on Mistick side, Ap. 20, 1638, he received five acres. July 22, 1643, wid. Christian Lawrence (supposed to be the wid. of Henry) and her son John, sold land at Fort Point. The age of this son John has not been ascertained. Wid. Christian Lawrence d. Mar. 3, 1647-8. Oct. 8, 1648, Nicholas Lawrence, of Charlestown, sold land at Fort Point to Nicholas Shapley.

of his dr. Elizabeth is recorded in Boston, and as no births of his family are recorded in Wat., from 1649 until 1659, perhaps he resided in Boston several years, in the exercise of his trade. Chil.,

15. 2 | 1. JOHN, b. Mar. 14, 1735-6. He is not mentioned in his father's Will, and it might therefore be concluded that he was deceased, and without issue. But it is to be observed, that he does not mention his son Peleg, nor his drs. Abigail and Susanna, who are known to have been then living. We shall assume that he was then living, until there is some evidence to disprove it, and that he had a family.

Rebecca, bap. in the 1st Church of Boston, Feb. 1, 1679-80, and who d. Nov. 14, 1685. It is conjectured that the persons making the following Will were his wife and daughter. The Will of Rebecca Lawrence (? of Boston), dated July 18, proved Dec. 12, 1726, gives her estate to her mother, Rebecca. The Will of wid. Rebecca Lawrence, dated Sept. 27, proved Oct. 11, 1731, bequeathed her estate to her sisters, Margaret Davis, Ruth Royce, Maria Frost, Hanna Davis; nephew Wm. Whitcomb, and niece Huldah Archibell. Dec. 2, 1793, aged 88 yrs. 9 m. and 23 d.; and his wid. survived him 26 years. "In the spring of 1738, with a team composed of a yoke of oxen and a horse, he started, with his family and goods in a cart, for his new home, in what was then called the New or Western country," and he reached Canaan, the place of his destination, June 2, 1738. The last 30 miles of the journey was through a heavily wooded forest, without house, or road, or bridge, over streams too deep to be forded. It is said that nine days, some say fourteen days, were occupied in making this part of the journey, from New Hartford to Canaan. He first encamped under an oak tree, and soon after made a temporary shelter in the side of a hill, half under ground, in which he lived until the next spring, when he built a house on the lot opposite to the saw-mill. A few years afterwards, he built a second house, and in 1751, he built the house which has been long known as the Lawrence Tavern, and which he occupied until about 1786, when he relinquished the care of it to his son Jonas, with whom he lived until his decease. His stature was six feet, and erect, frame large, but not fleshy; was intelligent and sociable, with a pleasant countenance. In business, he was active and correct, and his character unblemished. By occupation he was a farmer, but, having a good deal of mechanical ingenuity, he used to do some work for himself, and neighbors, as a carpenter and joiner, and is said to have superintended the erection of the first meeting-house in Canaan.

"He accumulated a valuable property, owned several large farms, which he kept under cultivation; was the owner of twenty slaves at one time, to whom he gave their freedom before his death, with the exception of one, who was liberated by his heirs, making provision for the aged and infirm, and contributing to the comfort of others who were needy." He held many town offices, and was Representative to the General Assembly, in 1765. He was at first a member of the Cong. Church, now in South Canaan. In 1769, he and his wife were dismissed to the church in North Canaan. The church was regathered at the settlement of Mr. Lawrence. Mr. Ashley d. 1797.] "His style of writing was characterized by method, clearness, closeness, and strength. In doctrine Scriptural and sound, in order and discipline careful and unyielding, his constant reference was to the law and the testimony. Highly conservative in spirit, and loyal beyond most of that day, his political sentiments became the occasion of disaffection among a portion of the people," and, after a third council, he was dismissed, on the ground that he was "unfriendly to the war." Nov. 8, 1827, aged 73, and his wid. d. May 2, 1845, aged 89. "He was one of those who rallied at Concord to oppose the progress of the British troops. When the news of their approach reached Groton, he was in the field, when, mounting his horse, he rode through the adjoining towns, giving the alarm, and returned in season to join his company at the meeting-house. In the battle of Bunker Hill, he received a slight wound, and his hat and coat, pierced with the balls of the enemy, were preserved many years. At the time of his marriage, while the ceremony was in progress, the tolling of the meeting-house bell called out the minute men, whereupon he parted from his bride as soon as the rite was finished, and marched to Rhode Island. He soon returned on a furlough of a few days, after which she did not see him again until after the birth of their first-born. He continued in the service until the close of the war; was promoted to the rank of Major, and was in many of the hardest fought battles of the Revolution.
- "Respected and beloved by his townsmen, they willingly elected him to those offices in which he would serve. Hospitable and kind in his manners, a pleasant remembrance is still cherished of the cordial welcome and comforts his house afforded. He was an exemplary Christian, and a deacon of the church. He was one of the originators of Groton Academy, now most appropriately entitled 'The Lawrence Academy.' In this school his children received their early education, and well have they remembered its origin, and the advantages there enjoyed." Chil.,

(VI.) AMOS LAWRENCE, Esq., of Boston. He engaged early in mercantile life, as a clerk in Groton, where he remained until he attained his majority. He then, in Ap. 1807, went to Boston, and, after serving a short time as a clerk, he so far won the favor of his employers, by his energy and sagacity, that they proposed to him a partnership in their firm, which, however, he wisely declined. The next Dec. (1807), he commenced business on his own account. His business increased rapidly, and was attended with unvarying prosperity. He invited his brother Abbot to Boston, and, when arrived at the proper age, made him a full partner in business. Then originated that mercantile house (A. and A. Lawrence), of which he was the head about forty years, and which, for success and honorable repute, has probably never been surpassed in New England.

His success is not attributable to good luck in hazardous adventures, but to a rare sagacity and energy, that "commanded uniform and great success. His judgment was shown not merely in his purchases, and in the lines of business on which he entered, but also in the selection of agents, clerks, and partners, and in deciding whom he might safely trust. He never, or very rarely, made bad debts. It is said, there has been no man in Boston, who took hold of business with the same grasp and energy. Quick in his perceptions, deciding as by intuition, and prompt in action, he is said to have had, in those days, little patience with the slow, the inefficient, the dainty, or those who felt above their business."

He continued in active business for twenty-five years. At the end of that time he was so suddenly, and so deeply prostrated, by drinking cold water when heated, that for many days he was not expected to recover. Although he survived this attack about 20 years, his health continued very delicate, and he often had sudden attacks of such severity, that he did not expect to survive. After this failure of his health, "he gave no attention to the details of business, but remained the senior partner of the firm, giving counsel and general direction, being consulted and relied on in all questions of difficulty and importance."

It is extremely rare to find in the same person such an earnest disposition, united with such ample ability, to do good. A simple detail of the events of his life—of his beneficence, and the wise discretion, and kindly manner in which it was accomplished—would be a better eulogium on this munificent benefactor, than any highly wrought rhetoric. Fidelity to the cause of humanity, by holding up for imitation so worthy an example, demands those details to be stated now, which could not have been done in his lifetime, without wounding the sensibility of one, who unfeignedly shunned notoriety. But it does not comport with the plan and scope of this work to enter into such details. [For a delineation of his character and services, see the Sermon of his pastor, Rev. Dr. S. K. Lothrop; Prof. Packard's Hist. of the Bunker Hill Monument; but especially the excellent discourse of President Hopkins, "Commemoration of Amos Lawrence."]

LINTON.—It is supposed that Richard Linton, of Wat., went to Concord, and resided a few years (1638 to 1642), and there bore the name of Lettin; and that thence he moved to Lancaster with the first settlers. Richard Lynton was at Mr. Cradock's plantation, in Sept., 1630.

p. 338. LIVERMORE.—[1.] It is probable that John Livermore settled first in Watertown, and very soon went to Connecticut, with other Watertown people. In the first place, a large portion of the passengers of the Francis, with whom he embarked at Ipswich, in Ap., 1634, settled in Watertown. In the second place, he was adm. freeman with several other Watertown men, in May, 1635. In the third place, his name is on a list of very early proprietors of Watertown. This list is not dated, but it contains the names of many of those, who went to Wethersfield and Dedham, in 1635 and 36. The first notice of him in Connecticut, was in 1639, when he, then of New Haven, signed the fundamental agreement of the New Haven colony. His autograph may be seen in vol. i., p. 1, of the Col. Rec. of New Haven. It is not improbable that he went to Wethersfield, and remained there until the settlement of New Haven was projected, when he and Robert Seely joined the planters of that town. He was "admitted a member of the Court" (i. e. made a freeman of the colony), Oct. 29, 1640, and took the oath of allegiance, July 1, 1644. June 11, 1645, "It was proposed that another ordinary might be set up towards the waterside," and it was "left with John Livermore to consider of it." [Col. Rec. of N. H., I., p. 103.] His home lot, which has been identified, was on the west side of Fleet Street, next but one to the Harbor. May 17, 1647, Joseph Nash was chosen corporal, "in room of John Livermore, who expects to go to England." His name does not appear in the records again, until Jan., 1648-9, after an interval of about 20 months; and it is probable that he was in England. May 7, 1650, "John Livermore hath sould and passeth to Theophilus Higginson, his house and house-lot $\frac{1}{2}$ acre and 10 perches; 8 acres $\frac{1}{4}$, 15 rods on this side the West River, next the land of Richard Beach; $6\frac{1}{2}$ acres 25 rods, on the other side the West River, next Milford highway, by the meadow side; 28 acres of the 2d division, betwixt the lands of Edward Banister and Richard Osborne; 5 acres of meadow in the West Meadow, next meadow of Henry Gibbons; 3 acres of meadow in Solitary Cove, with the work-houses, with the land belonging to them; bounded with stump of a tree next the sea, running along the creek to the end of the house—being in breadth so wide as the house is." [Col. Rec., N. Haven, II., p. 18.]

John Livermore

It is probable that Mr. Livermore left New Haven, about the date of this sale, as his name does not afterwards occur in the records. It has not been ascertained whether he went directly to Watertown, but it is probable, as he was a juror in July, 1653. From the rule for assessing in New Haven, it appears that John Livermore had a wife and two children when he went there, or soon after, as he was rated for four persons [not including servants], and £100 estate. In the first "seating the meeting-house," in 1642, seats were assigned to John Livermore, and to "sister Livermore." Children bap. in New Haven. 1. Samuel, bap. Aug. 15, 1641. 2. Daniel, bap. Oct. 7, 1643. 3. A daughter, bap. June 4, 1645. 4. Mary, bap. Sept. 12, 1647. Daniel was living at the date of his father's Will (1683), then aged 40 yrs., but he is not mentioned in the Will of his mother (1690). Mary Livermore and John Russell m., in Charlestown, Nov. 12, 1691. Was this Mary the widow of Daniel, or was it the Mary bap. in New Haven, 1647, but not mentioned in the Will of either of her parents?

[10.] The "Cowpen Farm," upon which Lieut. John Livermore settled, was on or near the border of Sudbury, and he was a member of Sud. Church, until the organization of Weston Church ("the Farmer's Church"), of which he was an original member. Elizabeth, his dr. (probably by his 2d wife), was adm. f. c. Weston, 1728, and d. May 30, 1732. The Cowpen Farm was bounded N. by Robert Jennison and John Sawin; W. by Robert Jennison; E. by R. Jennison and Nathaniel Greene [son, and heir of Rev. Henry Greene]; S. by Capt. Hugh Mason. The 20 acres of meadow belonging to it, were near Nonesuch Meadow. Oct. 22, 1695, John Grout, Sen., of Sud., conveyed to [his son-in-law] John Livermore, of Watertown [Farms], a tract of land, situated between Dedham line, Wat. line, and Sud. line; adjoining partly 200 acres, granted by the General Court to William Jennison, of Watertown; bounded S. by Dedham line; N. by Sud. line; E. by Wat. line; W. by the 200 A. above-mentioned, now in the possession of Matthew Rice. Nov. 21, 1712, John Livermore conveyed

- this tract of land to his four daughters, Hannah Rice, Sarah Fulham, Martha Gleason, and Mary Bigelow.
- p. 339. [20.] Samuel Livermore, bap. in New Haven, Aug. 15, 1641, was selectman of Wat., 1684 and 90. His Will, dated Dec. 5, 1690, proved June 16, 1691, constitutes wife Anna, and eldest son Samuel, exec'rs; uncle, Jonathan Danforth [youngest brother of his wife's mother], Capt. Andrew Belcher [cousin of his wife, and father of Gov. Belcher], and Simon Stone, overseers. Inventory (of real estate), dated Jan. 14, 1690-1; homestall and 44 acres, £200; 2 A. of upland in Pondfield, £6; 20 A. of dividend land, £20, 5 A. of marsh, £30.

- [50.] Matthew Livermore, grad. Harv. Coll., 1722, "schoolmaster of the town," was adm. f. c. to the West [Waltham] Church, Feb. 18, 1725-6. He had been the schoolmaster most, if not all of the time after his graduation. This shows an error of dates in the Annals of Portsmouth, as to the time of his settling there. He probably went to Portsmouth in 1726, was master of the grammar-school until 1731, when he was admitted and sworn as an attorney-at-law. Soon afterward, Gov. Belcher [who was a distant relative], appointed him Attorney-General for the Province, and advocate for the King in Courts of Admiralty. "He was serious in his deportment, exemplary in his conduct, and firm in his belief of the truths of the gospel." [See Annals of Portsmouth, p. 261.] It has not been ascertained that he ever married.
- [55.] Ap. 2, 1725, John Robbins, of Camb., was appointed guardian of Abigail, dr. of Daniel Livermore, of Wat., in 18th year. Jonathan Stone was appointed guardian of Jonas, son of Daniel Livermore. This was probably that Jonas Livermore, who m., in Newton, July 3, 1735, Esther Hyde.

- p. 342. [61.] Dea. Thomas Livermore was selectman of Wat. (before the incorporation of Waltham), in 1719, 20, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 28, 32, 33. [N.B. According to the town record, Serjt. George Livermore was selectman in 1730. This is the only place, it is believed, where this name occurs, and it may be a mistake for Thomas.]

- p. 353. LOCKWOOD.—Edmund Lockwood applied to be adm. freeman, Oct. 1630, and was adm. May 18, 1631. He was foreman of a jury appointed by the Court, Nov. 9, 1630, on a trial for murder. He, "Mr. Lockwood," was one of the two persons appointed by the Court, May 9, 1632, for New Towne, to confer with the Court, "about the raising of a publick stock." At the same time he was appointed constable of New Towne. He d. previous to Mar. 3, 1634-5, when his wid. Ruth [? Elizabeth] was ordered by the Court to place all writings left by her husband in the hands of John Haynes, &c. It is very probable that he was one of those first planters of Watertown who went thither with Sir Richard Saltonstall; that upon the planting of Newtown, the next year, either he moved thither, or he had settled so far to the East as to be within the bounds assigned to Newtown, and that he was brother of Robert Lockwood, of Watertown, who was executor of his estate. This supposition is favored by the fact, 1st, that on the 31st of March, 1631 (before New Town was planted), he was a surety for Nicholas Knapp, of Watertown. 2dly. On the 7th of April, 1635, the General Court referred to the church of Watertown, with the consent of Robert Lockwood, exec'r of Edmund Lockwood, deceased, to dispose of the elder children of said E. L., and the estate given to them, at their discretion; to take account of the said Robert Lockwood, and give him a full discharge. It is probable that he had two wives, the first of whom was mother of "the elder children," assigned to the care of Wat. Church. His 2d wife was Elizabeth, dr. of John Masters, of Wat., by whom he had a son John, b. in Newtown, Nov. 1632. After his decease, his wid. Elizabeth m. Cary Latham, of Newtown, who moved to New London, Conn., and by him she had several chil. [See Caulkins' Hist. N. London, pp. 87, 306, and 312; also, Geneal. Reg. II., p. 180; IV., p. 62; also, Hist. of Norwalk, Conn., by Edwin Hale, D.D., pp. 184, 203, 218, &c.]

It is probable that all of the name of Lockwood in New England are descended from Robert and Edmund, and there is not much doubt but that there is a misnomer of the widow of Edmund, in the Court Records of Massachusetts Bay, as printed, I. p. 134, and Index.

MADDOCK.—[2.] A letter of John Maddock, of Wat., dated Jan. 16, 1698-9, says, that since the last he had a son [Henry], born, named for his grandfather, and it appears that he had an uncle, John Maddock, of Barbadoes, at that time. Admin. was granted to wid. Ruth Maddock, Mar. 1, 1702-3. His Inventory was dated Feb. 26, 1702-3. Joseph Child, her 2d husband, by whom she had 3 chil., d. Nov. 3, 1711, and she m. The homestall of John Maddock (house and two-thirds acre; in the sale of it to Jonas Bond, called 1 acre), was on the S. side of the river, probably in Newton, bounded E. by highway; S. and W. by Stephen Cook; N. by Samuel Stowell.

He was, by the General Court, first appointed Commissioner to end small causes in May, 1643; and in May, 1658, upon the request of the inhabitants of Watertown, he was "empowered to solemnize marriages at Watertown." This was very soon after the removal of Elder Richard Browne to Charlestown. Ap. 1658, he was, by the County Court, made one of the committee on the house of correction. Wid. Hester d. May 21, 1692.

MAYHEW.—It is probable that Mr. Thomas Mayhew arrived in 1631, as he was chairman of the committee which reported to the Court, Mar. 6, 1631–2, the boundary between Charlestown and Newtown. For the ensuing 13 years, it appears by the Colonial Records, that few, if any, other persons so often received important appointments from the General Court. It would require a large space to enumerate them. He was one of the first Commissioners appointed for Watertown, to end small causes in 1638, and held the office by re-appointment, until 1642. For other town offices, see p. 364. Oct. 10, 1641, James Forett, agent of the Earl of Stirling, granted to Thomas Mayhew, of Watertown, and his son Thomas, Nantucket, and two small islands adjacent; and on the 23d of the same month, he granted to them Martha's Vineyard, and the Elizabeth Islands. Of these, Mr. Mayhew was constituted Governor. [Hutchinson's Hist. I., p. 161.] While in Watertown, he built the first bridge over Charles River, about 1641 (only a foot-bridge); was temporarily proprietor of the Mill, of the fishing-wears, of the Oldham Farm, and of the Bradstreet Farm, in Cambridge Village (now Newton). It is probable that his son, and others with him, went to Martha's Vineyard, soon after the grant was made, and that Mr. Mayhew, Sen., did not move there, until the spring or summer of 1645, as he signed the report of a committee, as chairman, Dec. 7, 1644, which was presented to the Court the next May; and his place on a committee was supplied by another appointment the next October.

On the 14th Oct., 1647, Thomas Paine, son of Thomas Paine, of London, deceased, 15 years old and upwards, chooses Thomas Mayhew, "now of the Vineyard," my father-in-law, and Grace, his wife, my (?) mother-in-law, guardians till 21 years of age, which will be 8th Feb., 1652. It is probable that this was Thomas Mayhew, Jr., and that Jane was the last wife of Thomas, Sen.

He gave 20s. to ministers Sherman, Simes, Watson, Eliot, and Mather. His Inventory was proved by his son Richard, Oct. 5, 1658. In Court, Oct. 6, 1657, Dea. Simon Stone, and Charles Chadwick, testified that Mr. Norcross, deceased, declared his Will before he went to England. This implies that he died in England.

OFLEY.—For John Ofley, read David. This name was sometimes written Osley, David Ofley, mem. Art. Co., 1638.

OLDHAM.—For Simon Bradstol, read Bradstreet. Mr. Bradstreet was never proprietor of "the Oldham Farm."* The 500 acres, which Mr. Mayhew conveyed to Mr. Bradstreet, were on the south side of Charles River, in Newton. [See Map, in Jackson's Hist. of Newton.] For Black (Island), read Block.

* The General Court granted the "Oldham farm" to Mr. Oldham, Ap. 1, 1634. He mortgaged this grant (which was not ordered to be laid out until June 2, 1641, sometime after his decease) to Mr. Cradock; Mr. Cradock sold it to Thomas Mayhew, subject to a mortgage. Mar. 18, 1647–8, Nicholas Davidson, of Charlestown, att'y of Rebecca Cradock, alias Glover, sold it (cancelled the mortgage) to Thomas Mayhew, for 1000 acres in Martha's Vineyard. Soon after this, it was seized by virtue of execution granted to Richard Dummer, against Mayhew. The land was appraised Mar. 21, 1648–9, at £70, and was to be measured out at the charge of Mr. Mayhew. In a few instances, in the records, it is called "the Dummer Farm."

Mr. John Oldham arrived at Plymouth, in the ship Ann, in July, 1623. That he was a man of comparative wealth and importance, may be inferred from the fact, that in the allotments in Plymouth, in 1624 (the first ever allotted "in continuance"), ten acres were assigned to him, which was a considerably larger lot than any other person received. The next largest, 7 acres, was that of Mr. Allerton. All the others, including those of Gov. Bradford, and Elder Brewster, were still less. It is supposed that besides wife and children, he had servants, which entitled him to so large a lot. We may also infer his good repute and respectable social rank from the circumstance, that the Governor invited him, so soon after his arrival, to a seat in his council.

Morton says [Memorial, p. 122], "Mr. Oldham was a man of parts, but high-spirited and extremely passionate, which marred all in right improvement of them." The next spring, soon after the arrival of Mr. Lyford in Plymouth, he and Oldham became intimately associated together, and by their perverse conduct, gave so much disquietude to Plymouth, that in the summer of 1624, Oldham was banished, with orders to depart immediately, and forbidden ever to return; but his wife and family had "leave to stay the winter, or till he can make provision to move them comfortably." He went to Nantasket, probably accompanied by the worthy Mr. Roger Conant, and not long after was followed thither by Mr. Lyford. The next April, 1625, Mr. Oldham returned to Plymouth, without leave (perhaps for his family), and, says Morton, "suffered his unruly passion to run beyond the bounds and limits of all reason and modesty," so that he was again expelled immediately, with the greatest indignity.

The great offence of these three gentlemen and their adherents, was their attachment to Episcopacy, and a man of Mr. Oldham's talents and temperament was not likely to maintain a controversy with the authorities of Plymouth in an inoffensive tone, especially when he coincided in sentiment with a majority of Plymouth Company, in England. These circumstances are to be remembered, when reading the opprobrious disparaging language of Bradford, Morton, and others.

In 1624, the Dorchester adventurers began a settlement at Cape Ann, and having heard that "some religious persons removed from Plymouth to Nantasket, from dislike of their rigid principles," in 1625 they chose Mr. Conant to manage their affairs of planting and fishing (i. e., to be Governor), "Mr. Oldham to manage the trade with the natives," and "Mr. Lyford to be minister of the plantation." After remaining at Nantasket more than a year, Conant, Lyford, and others, removed to Cape Ann, in the autumn of 1625, but Mr. Oldham did not accept the appointment, choosing to "stay at Nantasket, and trade for himself."

In 1626, about a year after being driven a second time from Plymouth, Mr. Oldham entered upon a voyage to Virginia, was wrecked on Cape Cod, and his life was in extreme peril. This was supposed to have led to a change in his character; certainly he gave such evidence of it, as to regain the favor and confidence of the Colony he had so much offended. They gave him "liberty to come and converse with us [of Plymouth] at his pleasure;" and in 1628, they intrusted to him the charge of Morton, the Merry Mount rioter, to transport him to England. Gov. Bradford, in his letter, written on this occasion, says, "this bearer, Mr. John Oldham, who can give your honors further information upon his oath, if need so require, whom we have sent with the prisoner, and to attend to your lordships' pleasure."

While Mr. Oldham was in England, he and John Dorrell purchased, of John Gorges, younger brother and heir of Capt. Robert Gorges, a tract of land, extending from Charles River to Abousett [Saugus] River, and from the border of the bay at the mouth of Charles River, 5 miles into the country, and from the mouth of Abousett River 3 miles into the country. This tract of land seems to be a part of that which John Gorges sold to Sir William Brereton on the 10th of Jan., 1629, and about which Mr. Oldham and Sir William were both negotiating with the Massachusetts Company in the spring of 1629. It is not easy to explain these apparently overlapping titles, from the records of the Massachusetts Company in their letter of instructions to Gov. Endicott. Neither is it apparent how the grant of the Plymouth Company to Capt. Robert Gorges on the 22d of Dec., 1622, became so invalidated or annulled that the same Company could afterwards rightfully grant the same to the Massachusetts Company. The negotiations in 1629, between the latter Company and Sir William Brereton and Mr. Oldham, show that the titles of these gentlemen from John Gorges had at least some apparent validity; but how the conflicting claims were adjusted has not been ascertained. There is, however, good reason to conjecture, that the greater power of the Company, and their legal astuteness, had much to do in this adjustment, if such it would be called, and that the old adage was verified, might makes right.

Gov. Cradock, in his first letter of instructions to Gov. Endicott, dated Ap. 17, 1629, after mentioning the troubles occasioned by Mr. Oldham's claim, says, "And because we would not omit to do anything which might strengthen our right, we would have you (as soon as these ships, or any of them, arrive, whereby you may have men to do it), send forty or fifty persons to Massachusetts Bay, to inhabit there; which we pray you not to protract, but to do with all speed, &c., whereby the better to strengthen our possession there against all or any that shall intrude upon us, which we would not have you by any means to give way unto."

The conclusion of this letter is remarkable. After stating fully the extent of Mr. Oldham's grant, and that William Blaxton, clerk, and William Jeffreys, agent, were authorized to put Mr. Oldham in possession, he says, "Having a sight of his grant, this I found, though I hold it void in law, yet, his claim being to this, you may, in your discretion, prevent him, by causing some to take possession of the chief part thereof." In the summer of 1629, in accordance with this direction, Gov. Endicott sent a few settlers to take possession of Charlestown, which was nearly the central point of Mr. Oldham's grant. There is nothing, either in the two general letters of instructions of the Massachusetts Bay Company to Governor Endicott, or in the records of that Company, that exhibits Mr. Oldham as anything less than a frank, highminded man, confident of the justice of his claim.

Mr. Oldham is said to have returned to America in 1629; but we find no mention of him in any records until he was admitted freeman, May 18, 1631, the earliest date of any such admission. The precise date of his settlement in Watertown has not been ascertained, but it must have been very early, if not coeval with the first planting thereof. It is evident that a more truly catholic spirit, and more just ideas of civil and religious liberty prevailed among the first settlers of Watertown, than in either of the other very early plantations about the Bay. As evidence of this, we may refer to Winthrop for the accusation against Elder Richard Browne, the treatment he received, and the ground assumed by Mr. Phillips; also, the arraignment and trial of Rev. George Phillips, Elder Richard Browne, and others, of Watertown, for expressing their opinions respecting representation and taxation; also, to the arraignment, a little later, of Capt. William Jennison, for expressing privately his opinion about the course pursued by the British Parliament; also, to that admirable letter of Sir Richard Saltonstall, the founder of Watertown, to the ministers of Boston, on account of their "tyranny and oppression,—fining, whipping and imprisoning men for their consciences." These things enable us to understand why Mr. Phillips, a man of such fully acknowledged talents, learning, and piety, is found to have had little or nothing to do with the illiberal politico-ecclesiastical policy of that day, and why the high-spirited John Oldham should attach himself to the Watertown people, who, at the earliest opportunity, manifested their respect and confidence by conferring on him their most important political trusts.

But the respect entertained for Mr. Oldham, and the confidence in his talents and integrity, were not confined to the Watertown people. In May, 1632, soon after the notable resistance of the Watertown people to taxation without representation, and before the institution of a body of deputies or representatives, it was ordered by the General Court, "that there should be two of every plantation appointed to confer with the Court about raising of a public stock," that is, the levying taxes for public uses. These appointments were made by the Court, and the first name on the list of appointments was that of Mr. Oldham. He was a member of the first meeting of deputies of the several plantations in Massachusetts Bay, in May, 1634, and he was made chairman of the first committee appointed by that Court, viz., to draw a plot for the enlargement of Boston at Mount Woolliston. In Sept. 1634, the Court appointed him "overseer of the powder and shot, and all other ammunition" for the plantations of Watertown and Medford. At the same Court, he was made chairman of a committee (consisting of nine honored names), with "power to set out the bounds of all towns not yet set out, or in difference betwixt any town." He was not afterwards elected deputy, probably on account of his intended removal to Connecticut. But in May, 1635, although not deputy, he was one of the committee appointed to consider and report upon "the act of Mr. Endicott, in defacing the [king's] colors." This subject was brought before the Court of Assistants, "in the name of the rest of the freemen, upon complaint made by Elder Richard Browne, of Watertown, who argued the offence as a matter of an high nature."

There is reason to believe that Mr. Oldham is entitled to the honor of being the pioneer, the projector of the first plantation on the Connecticut, or in that state. Winthrop says

[I., p. 111], "John Oldham, and three with him, went overland to Connecticut, to trade," lodging at Indian towns all the way. The date of his departure is not given, but Mr. Oldham brought back so favorable a report, that in Sept., 1633, a bark was sent thither to trade. Whether Mr. Oldham went in her, it is not stated, but it is very probable; for Winthrop says, Nov. 5, 1634, "the Rebecka came from Narragansett with five hundred bushels of corn, given to Mr. John Oldham. The Indians had promised him one thousand bushels, but their store fell out less than they expected. Canonicus gave him also an island in Narragansett Bay, called Chippacursett [? Prudence Island, said by Roger Williams to be "spectacle-wise"], containing about one thousand acres, six miles long and two miles broad." [See Mass. Hist. Coll., 3d ser. I., p. 165.]

In May, 1634, the people of Cambridge (Newtown), obtained permission of the Court "to seek out some convenient place . . . to which they may remove their habitations." The next Sept. they asked leave to remove to Connecticut River, whither they were probably induced to go by the favorable report of Mr. Oldham. This application met with strong opposition from the Assistants, because they proposed to remove beyond their jurisdiction; and such inducements were offered for the relinquishment of their proposed removal, that Mr. Hooker and his company did not migrate to Connecticut until May, 1636, when they commenced the settlement of Hartford. It is said that, in their first project for a removal, it was their intention to settle on the beautiful meadows of Pyquag. In the meantime, during their delay, Mr. Oldham and a company of his fellow-townsmen, took possession of Pyquag, and named it Watertown, which name it retained until Feb. 21, 1636-7, when the Court named it Wethersfield. It is said that a party of Watertown men went to Pyquag in 1634, and remained there with much danger and suffering during the ensuing winter. The next spring, May 6, 1635, the Court granted "liberty to the inhabitants of Watertown to remove to any place they shall think meet to make choice of, provided they shall continue under this jurisdiction." Very soon, and without strict regard to this proviso, they went and settled at Pyquag.

Although Winthrop (July 20, 1636), noticing the death of Mr. Oldham, calls him "a member of Watertown congregation," there is little doubt but that he was one of the colony that went and planted Pyquag. The settlement of his estate is the earliest one to be found in the Connecticut Court Records, and his Inventory was presented to a Court held at Watertown (Wethersfield) Sept. 1, 1636. At the same time, the Court ordered, "that Thurston Raynor [of Wethersfield], as he hath hitherto done, so shall continue to take and preserve the corn of Mr. Oldham, and shall inn [gather in] the same in a seasonable time." This shows that he was a planter of Wethersfield, and probably went there in 1635. [See The Public Records of the Colony of Connecticut, Vol. I., Index.] He left his business unsettled in Massachusetts Bay; for on the 6th Sept., 1636, the Court "ordered that Mr. [Gov.] Haynes, Mr. Harlakenden, and Increase Nowell, or any two of them, should examine business concerning Mr. Oldham's estate and debts, and Mr. Hutchinson and Mr. Mayhew to gather up the debts and estate, and be accountable to the Court."

Mr. Oldham had a family at Plymouth in 1624, but no later reference to it has been discovered. As, however, he had a house in Watertown, near the wear, burnt, Aug. 14, 1632, probably he had a family there. Whether the following named youths were his sons, or otherwise akin to him, has not been ascertained. John Oldham, aged 12 years, and Thomas Oldham, aged 10 years, embarked for New England, May 14, 1635, in the Elizabeth and Ann, Roger Cooper, master. There were families of the name of Oldham in Cambridge for many years afterwards, of whom we have obtained no satisfactory record or information. [See Saltonstall, 35, in Part II., note.]

p. 382. ONGE.—Mar. 5, 1630-1, arrived at Nantasket, sailed from Bristol, Dec. 1st, the ship Lyon, William Pierce, master, among whose passengers was — Ong, with wife and children. It is probable that he d. soon, and that his wife was wid. Frances Ong, of Watertown [Winthrop, I., p. 42]. Jacob Ong was "an original proprietor" of Groton; but it does not appear, from the History of Groton, that he had any family there.

Mar. 25, 1710, John Page conveyed to Samuel Phipps, of Charlestown, for the use of his wife Emery, 26 acres in Watertown. Mar. 14, 1710-11, John Page, and wife Emery, sold land in Groton to son John Page, of Groton. He must have died soon after this. Nov. 15, 1711, Emery Page, of Wat., quitclaimed to son Joseph all estate of her husband, John, deceased. On the same day, Joseph "Paige," of Wat., sold to Daniel Harrington two lots of land in Watertown.
- [9.] Sept. 27, 1670, Samuel Page, of Wat., planter, and wife Hannah, for £32, sold to Benjamin Garfield about 23 acres, bounded W. by Edward Garfield, the highway, and John Page; N. by Thomas Smith; E. by William Knapp, Thomas Straite, and Beaver Brook Meadows, with the brook southerly; S. by John Page, Sen., and highway. Oct. 11, 1676, Samuel Page bought of David Fiske, and wife Seaborn, 149 acres in Wat. (Farms), granted to my father, David Fiske; the 9th lot. He probably moved to Wat. Farms about this date.
- [11.] Samuel Page, at the same time (1713) sold land to Nathaniel Lawrence, then of Charlestown.

It is probable that John d. unm., and that the only descendants of William Paine, of Wat., are in the line of his dr. Hannah (Anna) Appleton. Nathaniel Payne, of Rehoboth. [See Whitaker.]

PALMER.—William Palmer, "a townsman, inhabiting" Wat., 1636-7, moved to Newbury, about 1637, thence to Piscataqua (Portsmouth), and afterwards to Hampton. He was one of the petitioners, Sept., 1638, for liberty to begin a plantation at Winnacunnet (Hampton). He d., leaving three sons, Edward, Christopher, and Stephen; dr. Martha, wife of Capt. John Sherman, of Watertown. He married Grace, wid. of Thomas Rogers, who d. in Wat., Nov. 12, 1638. His sons, above named, were by a former wife, and are not mentioned in the Will of his wid. Grace; and Martha, wife of Capt. John Sherman, must have been her step-daughter. After his decease, she returned to Watertown, and m. (3d), Roger Porter. Elizabeth, wife of Daniel Smith [200], was a dr. by her 1st husband, Thomas Rogers. [See Colonial Records, vol. iv., p. 232.]

About 1650, William Palmer, of Hampton, agreed to release to his son-in-law, John Sherman, of Watertown, land in Great Ormsby, Co. Norfolk, England. Probably he came from that place. There was a William Palmer, who arrived at Plymouth, in the Fortune, Nov. 9, 1621. [Chronicles of Plymouth, p. 235.]
In Palmer, 3d line, for Nov. 19, 1697, read 1679.

PARILL.—The Inventory of Edward Parill, of Wat., dated June 24, 1644. [See Geneal. Reg., viii., p. 56.]

- p. 384. PARK.—(Parke, Parks). The situation of the large Park Farm in Newton, in relation to Watertown, accounts for the numerous alliances between the family and descendants of Richard Park, and Watertown families. For this reason, and from having discovered some errors, and many deficiencies, in what has been printed on pp. 384, &c., we insert the following corrected record. For more full and precise information, see Jackson's History of Newton, to which we are chiefly indebted for our materials.

The farm of Richard Park, Sen., was contiguous to the small parcel of land, belonging to Watertown, on the south side of Charles River; and it is probable, that his residence was, at an early date, within the bounds of Watertown. Oct. 19, 1652, he was debtor to the ministry of Watertown, £2; and on the 22d Aug., 1659, the selectman ordered that Richard Parks and wife, be not allowed abiding in the town [town record]. May, 1664, he sold to James Keebe, a horse, valued at £6, for which he was to build a frame house. Ap. 3, 1666, Hugh Mason, Thomas Wiswall, and Edward Jackson, were appointed to set off the portion of Sarah, wid. of Richard Park, his second wife, and not the mother of his children. Love Brewster, of Dux., the eldest of the surviving sons of Elder William Brewster, first of Plymouth, afterwards of Duxbury, m., May 15, 1634, Sarah Collier, dr. of William and Jane C., of D. 3 Chil. He d. (?) 1650 (Will dated Oct. 1, 1650), and his wid. Sarah, m. Richard Park. After his decease, she returned to Duxbury. Dec. 4, 1671, she brought a suit against Thomas Park, and Sept. 26, 1678, she, then of Duxbury, for £45 15s., sold Thomas Park her life-estate in the estate of Richard Park.

- p. 402. PENDLETON.—Mr. Bryan Pendleton was the first of the petitioners for a grant of Sudbury. In May, 1640, he was desired by the Court, "to train the company at Sudbury." After this, he returned and resided some years in Watertown. In 1661, the selectmen of Portsmouth granted Capt. Pendleton, liberty "to up his windmill upon the Fort-point, towards the beach, because the mill is of such use to the public." Major Pendleton "possessed a large estate," probably much larger than any other in Portsmouth. [See Annals of Portsmouth, p. 63.] His Will, dated Portsmouth, Aug. 9, 1677, proved Ap. 5, 1681, mentions wife Eleanor, son James; grandchild, James Pendleton, Jr., and grandchild, Pendleton Fletcher; granddaughters, Mary and Hannah Pendleton, "which my son had by his former wife;" gr. son Brian Pendleton. Besides house, household goods, and land in Portsmouth, he possessed housing and land at Cape Porpus; 640 acres east side of Westbrook, near Saco Falls; 100 A. upland, and 10 A. meadow, bought of John Bush, in the township of Cape Porpus, adjoining Prince's Rock; "my several islands in or near Cape Porpus; my farm at Winter Harbor;" three plantations or lots in Wells, and "land on the great island Piscataqua." PERRY.—[1.] William Pary, adm. freeman, May 6, 1646, was probably the William Perry, of Wat., where the name, in the records, is frequently written Parry. In a deed executed by William Perry, Ap. 8, 1675, the name of his wife in the instrument is written Joanna, but it is signed Annah. Sept. 30, 1672, Capt. Hugh Mason made a motion in Court, that William Perry, aged 66, be excused from training. There was a William Perry, of Medfield, in 1674, who m. Susan, sister of Michael Barstow, of Watertown.

Inventory of the goods of Joanna Perry, of London, personal, in the hands of Nathaniel Holland, of Wat., prized Mar. 19, 1667-8, by William Bond and Joseph Tainter. Aug. 6, 1667, John Perry, principal, and John Clary, surety, gave bonds concerning the estate of Joanna Perry;—Josiah, brother of John, being beyond the sea. Perhaps this Joanna was the wid. of John, of Rox., who was adm. freeman, Mar. 4, 1632-3, and d. Sept. 27, 1642. He had a son John, b. 1639, and this son may have been John, [4.] of Wat., who had two sons named Josiah.

[Samuel Perry, of Rox. (? son of Wm. [1.]), by wife Sarah, had, 1. Nathaniel, b. Aug. 27, 1685 (? 84). 2. Nathaniel, b. Jan. 3, 1685-6. 3. Joseph, b. Dec. 20, 1688.]

[3.] Obadiah Perry, is said, by Farmer, to have been one of the founders of the Church in Dunstable. Was Ebenezer Perry, of Newton, 1731, and of Camb., in 1734, a son of Obadiah?

[4.] Dec. 4, 1688, John Perry, of Wat., tailor, in Aug. last, "did utter and give forth words tending to move discord, strife, and dissension among his neighbors, and on 25th August, did break the common pound of the town." Prosecuted by — Garfield, gave bond £10, and was discharged the next March.

[5.] Feb. 19, 1701-2, John Perry, of Wat., bought of Mary Cook (ex'x of Philip, of Camb.), and Samuel and Philip Cook, 6 A. in Camb. (Lex.), whither he afterwards moved.

p. 403. [27.] Josiah Perry was Constable of Wat., 1729 and 31, and appointed Sealer of weights and measures, Mar. 14, 1737-8.

[36.] John Clary, late of Hadley, by Will, without date, proved Mar. 31, 1691, mentions son-in-law John Perry, and Sarah his wife, and his grandchild John Perry [5.], and his brother Joseph [36.]. John, the grandchild, d. in the lifetime of Sarah, his mother, who d. Oct. 11, 1730. In 1731, Joseph Perry, of Brookfield, weaver, brought suit for land in Wat., against John Perry [6.], of Lex., and Ebenezer Perry [20.], of Newton, cordwainer.

PHILBRICK.—Philbrick, succeeds Phillips.

PHILLIPS.—Henry Phillips went from Wat. to Dedham about 1636, as a candidate for the office of teacher in the Church. He m. Anne, a daughter of John Dwight, who also went from Wat. to Dedham. He returned to England in 1642 [Winthrop, II., p. 389]. What affinity there was, if any, between Rev. George Phillips, this Henry Phillips, and Hannah Phillips "of Watertown," who m., Sept. 1, 1638, Joseph Morse, first of Dedham, afterwards of Medfield, has not been ascertained. Henry Phillips was ensign, of Dedham, in 1648 [Colon. Rec. II., p. 258]. Hannah, wid. of Joseph Morse, m., in 1658, Thomas Boyden, an early settler of Watertown, then said to be of Medfield. In her Will, dated 1676, she mentions her daughters Elizabeth and Sarah Lawrence [see 23, p. 821, and 32, p. 822].

Rev. GEORGE PHILLIPS, the first minister of Watertown, was a son of Christopher Phillips, "mediocris fortunæ," of Rainham, St. Martin, Co. Norfolk. He entered Gonville and Caius Coll., Camb., Ap. 20, 1610, then aged 17 years; grad. B. A. 1613, and M. A. 1617. He gave early indications of deep piety, uncommon talents, and love of learning, and at the University distinguished himself by his remarkable progress in learning, especially in theological studies, for which he manifested an early partiality. He was settled in the ministry at Boxford,* Co. Suffolk; but his strong attachment to the principles of the old nonconformists brought him into difficulty with some of his hearers, and as the storm of persecution grew more dark and threatening, he resolved to take his lot with the Puritans, who were about to depart for the new world. On the 12th of April, 1630, he, with his wife and two children, embarked for America in the Arbella, as fellow-passenger with Governor Winthrop, Sir Richard Saltonstall, and other assistants of the Massachusetts Company, and arrived at Salem June 12, where his wife died very soon, and was buried by the side of Lady Arbella Johnson. Mr. Phillips was adm. freeman May 18, 1631, the earliest date of any such admission. He continued to be the minister of Watertown Church 14 years, greatly respected and beloved, and he died the 1st, and was buried the 2d of July, 1644, aged about 51 years. Winthrop [II., p. 171], says, he was "a godly man, specially gifted, and very peaceful in his place, much lamented of his own people and others."

* (?) Boxted, Co. Essex.

Mr. Phillips was distinguished for his learning in the original languages of the Scriptures, and in theological doctrines. Mather says his hearers counted him "the irrefragable Doctor;" and Johnson says he was "mighty in the Scriptures, and very diligent to search out the mind of Christ therein contained." He was independent and conscientious in forming and maintaining his opinions. He had repeated theological controversies, in which he was characterized by candor and Christian urbanity. It is evident, from the brief records of his life, that he brought with him less of the ecclesiastical leaven of the old world than the rest of his brethren, and that he and his people, especially Sir Richard Saltonstall and Mr. Richard Browne, entertained more enlightened views of civil and religious liberty, or had a more just appreciation of it, than then belonged to other planters of Massachusetts Bay. He was the earliest advocate of the Congregational order and discipline, in which he was, says Hubbard, deeply versed, and very skilful. His views were, for a time, regarded as novel, suspicious, and extreme; and he, with his ruling elder, Mr. Richard Browne, stood almost unaided and alone, until the arrival of Mr. John Cotton, in firmly maintaining what was, and still is, the Congregationalism of New England.

Mr. Phillips and Mr. Richard Browne are entitled to another honor, much more distinguished than has generally been conceded to them. When the Governor and Assistants passed an order to tax the people, without their consent, they called together the people of Watertown, and "delivered their opinions," that it was dangerous to submit to it. For this they were arraigned before the Governor, and there was "much debate" on the subject. The result seems to discredit the statement of Winthrop, that "they confessed they were in error;" for very soon afterwards, before another attempt was made to levy a tax, the Court ordered (May 9, 1632), that "two of every plantation be appointed to confer with the Court, about raising of a public stock," and this soon led to the institution of a representative body in the government of the Colony. It is not now easy to estimate the extent and importance of the influence of Mr. Phillips in giving form and character to the civil and ecclesiastical institutions of New England [See Winthrop's Journal, in many places during Mr. Phillips's time; Hubbard's History, p. 186; Mather's Magnalia, Book III., Part II., Chap. 4; also, Richard Browne, p. 117, and John Oldham, p. 863; Francis' History, pp. 13-38.]

His nuncupative Will was witnessed July 5th, and proved Sept. 6, 1644, by Dr. Simon Eire and Apphia Freeman. [See General Reg. III., p. 78]. His Inventory, taken July 22, 1644, by the four Deacons, Ephraim Child, Thomas Hastings, Nicholas Guy, and Simon Stone, amounted to £553 2s. 9d. One item was "the study of bookes £71 9s. 9d."

George Phillips

The locality of Mr. Phillips's first residence in Watertown has not been clearly ascertained. It is conjectured that he first settled on the Cambridge road, near the Camb. line, by the side of Sir. R. Saltonstall, and within the present limits of Cambridge, and that he not long afterwards moved to the vicinity of the old graveyard. "There is a tradition," says Dr. Francis, "that he lived in the house now (1830), occupied by Mr. Daniel Sawin, opposite the old burying-ground." The homestall of Samuel Saltonstall (bounded S. E. by Charles River, and separated from the then boundary-line of Cambridge only by the intervening 13 A. homestall of Thomas Brigham) was bounded N. W. by land of George Phillips. Samuel was the only son of Sir R. Saltonstall, who settled permanently in Watertown, and it is probable that his homestall was the one selected by his father. In the list of possessions in Watertown, made out in compliance of an order passed in 1642, for the purpose of assessments, the lands of Mr. Phillips are not included, probably because they were exempt from taxation. The records show that he had liberal grants of land.

The first wife of Mr. Phillips, as already stated, died at Salem very soon after landing. She was a daughter of Richard Sergeant, and probably a half-sister of John Hayward, an early settler of Watertown. They were probably children of the same mother, but of different fathers. Cotton Mather says she was "an only child," that is, as we suppose, of her father. The grounds for this opinion are the following:

Nov. 12, 1644 (about 4 months after the d. of Mr. Phillips), "The General Court declared that they think it just and meet that Mrs. Phillips make over so much estate as shall secure £100 to Samuel and Elizabeth Phillips, grandchildren of Richard Sergeant, or otherwise give bond with sureties [to] the consent and satisfaction of Capt. Cooke, Mr. Sparhawk, and John Bridge, who are intrusted in the business by the Court; this security to be given in a month." In the margin of the original record, they are called Mrs. Phillips's "son and daughter-in-law." The next year (1645), Dea. Ephraim Child and John Hayward (the supposed uncle of Samuel and Elizabeth Phillips), petitioned the Court that Samuel Phillips, son of Rev. George Phillips, deceased, may have maintenance assigned him out of his father's estate. This was asked for at this time in behalf of Samuel, because he was commencing a collegiate education, and not for his sister Elizabeth, because then probably not more than 16 or 18 years of age.

In the grants of the Beaver Brook plowlands, ordered in Sept. 1636, 40 acres were assigned to Mr. Phillips, bounded E. by land of Edward How; S. by footway through the plain to Beaver Brook; N. by highway to Sudbury; W. by land of Edward Garfield. Ap. 11, 1649, Samuel Phillips, student of Harvard College, for £16 10s., sold to Edward Garfield the western half of his lot. May 17, 1651, Elizabeth Phillips, widow and sole executrix of George Phillips, deceased, debtor to Job Bishop, of Ipswich, New England, for a certain sum or sums of money due to Elizabeth Bishop, wife of said Job Bishop, and daughter of said George Phillips, deceased, conveyed to Job Bishop and wife Elizabeth the eastern half of said 40 A. lot of Beaver Brook plowland, which land Bishop and wife soon afterwards sold to Edward Garfield.

John Hayward, by his Will, dated July 31, 1672, then aged 79 [Mid. Prob. Rec. iii., p. 275], divided his estate between his wife Mary and Samuel Phillips, of Rowley, whom he appointed joint executors. [It is supposed that Elizabeth (Phillips) Bishop died before 1657, s. p., and therefore is not referred to in this Will.]

Rev. Samuel Phillips, of Rowley, in his Will, mentions property bequeathed to him by "my uncle Hayward."

Widow Mary Hayward, by her Will [Suff. Prob. vi., p. 456], bequeaths her estate to persons who had only small legacies from her husband, John Hayward, and who were her children by another husband; but she does not mention any of the Phillips family, which renders it very improbable that there was any consanguinity between her and that family.* [See Hayward, p. 793.]

Mr. Phillips m. (2d), ELIZABETH —. Nothing has been ascertained respecting her parentage or family, but it is probable that she was the widow of Capt. Robert Welden. [See Welden, p. 626; also, Drake's Hist. of Boston, p. 118.] She d. in Wat. June 27, 1681. By her Will, dated Oct. 20, 1674, wit. by Samuel Stearns and Nathaniel Holland, she gives to "son Samuel all Latin, Greek, and Hebrew books now in the house;" to Job Bishop, 1 shilling [his wife, her step-dr, being d.]; to James Barnard, "who married my daughter Abial" (Abigail), 1 shilling [she had d. 1672, s. p.]; to sons Zerobabel, Jonathan, and Theophilus, the "rest of my estate."

Sept. 30, 1681, Samuel Phillips, of Rowley (his mother-in-law being deceased) granted a power of att'y to William Bond and Jonathan Pickard to act for him. Oct. 4, 1681, admin. on estate of George Phillips was granted to Samuel Phillips, of Rowley, and Jonathan Phillips, of Watertown. Dec. 20, 1681, William Bond, Joseph Tainter, and Simon Stone, Sen., were appointed by the Court to divide Mr. Phillips's estate. They reported Ap. 3, 1682, and the next day, Ap. 4, Capt. John Sherman, William Bond, and Simon Stone, were appointed to divide the estate of "Mistress Phillips" among her children. They reported that nothing could be done.

Chil. of Rev. GEORGE PHILLIPS.

8. 2 1. SAMUEL, b. at Boxstead, Co. Suffolk, England, 1625; grad. Harv. Coll. 1650. It has been said that the expense of his education was assumed by the town, as a token of respect for his father. This, however, may be questioned; for, in the first place, his father left a comparatively good estate for that period; and in the next place, in 1645, before he entered college, his uncle, John Hayward, and Dea. Ephraim Child, petitioned the Court that he might have a maintenance assigned him out of his father's estate.
- 3 2. ELIZABETH, b. in England; m., previous to May 17, 1651, Job BISHOP, of Ipswich. As she is not mentioned, nor any heirs of her, in the Will of John Hayward; as wid. Elizabeth Phillips, in her Will, mentions Job Bishop, but not his wife, and as Job Bishop had no children born (no birth recorded), before June 1657, it is presumed that his wife, Elizabeth (Phillips) d. early, s. p., and that he had a 2d wife, who was the mother of his children. [Thomas Bishop, merchant, of Ipswich, as early as 1636, d. Feb. 7, 1671, leaving wid. Margaret;

[See Hayward, in Part II., p. 793.]

2. 8 (II.) Rev. SAMUEL PHILLIPS, settled in Rowley, in 1651, as colleague of Rev. Ezekiel Rogers. He "was highly esteemed for his piety and talents, which were of no common order, and he was eminently useful, both at home and abroad. He officiated repeatedly at the great public anniversaries, which put in requisition the abilities of the first men in the New Eng. Colonies. It is not known that any of his productions were printed; yet it is on record that, in 1675, he preached the Artillery Election Sermon, and also the Election Sermon in 1678." [See Gage's History of Rowley.] In Sept. 1687, an information was filed by one Philip Nelson, against Rev. Samuel Phillips, of Rowley, for calling Randolph a wicked man; and for this crime [redounding to his honor] he was committed to prison. [See Washburn's Judicial History of Massachusetts.] He m., in Oct. 1651, SARAH APPLETON, born in England, in 1628, dr. of Samuel and Mary (Everhard) Appleton, of Ipswich. She was a descendant of John Appleton, who d. at Great Waldingfield, Co. Suffolk, Eng., in 1436. [See Geneal. Reg. V., p. 144; vii., p. 37 and 38; Hist. of New Ipswich, pp. 298 and 99.] [Her father usually had the respectful prefix "Mr.," and was often elected a Rep. to the Gen. Court. In 1641, he had permission to set up a malt-house, and he is said to have been a cultivator of hops. He (S. A.), d. in Rowley, June 1670, probably at Mr. Phillips's house.] Mr. Phillips d. Ap. 22, 1696, greatly beloved and lamented. His widow d. July 15, 1714, aged 86. His Inventory amounted to £989. In Nov. 1839, a chaste and handsome marble monument was placed over the remains of Mr. Phillips and his wife, in the burial-ground of Rowley, by Hon. Jonathan Phillips [147], of Boston, their gr. gr. grandson. Upon it is an inscription to their memories, and likewise to several of their honorably distinguished descendants.

93. 113 (V.) Hon. SAMUEL PHILLIPS, of Andover, grad. Harv. Coll. 1734. After teaching a grammar school some time, he engaged in mercantile business in the North Parish of Andover. In the winter of 1775-6, he was engaged in the manufacture of gunpowder, and built a mill at great expense, which was blown up in 1778, and three persons killed. In 1788, he built a paper-mill, which was carried on by Phillips and Houghton. He was often the Representative of Andover, and member of the Executive Council before the Revolution, and in the Revolution was a staunch whig; was many years a civil magistrate, discharging the duties thereof with the most exemplary fidelity. Such were the sternness and precision of his manners, always frowning on vice and disorder, that they did not contribute to his popularity. Early habits of exactness and economy in business enabled him to accumulate a large estate, much of which he appropriated to the public good. In 1778, Phillips Academy, in Andover, was founded by him and his brother, Hon. John Phillips, of Exeter, by the gift to the Board of Trustees of several valuable tracts of land, and £1614 in money. In the constitution of the Academy, the founders declare that "the first and principal object of their institution is the promotion of true piety and virtue."

Your affectionate Father

The property in North Andover now owned and occupied by the Phillips family, came by the Barnard family.] "Her letters are very interesting, and show her to have been a woman of great piety, and strong religious views." An obituary notice of her in the Sentinel, in Nov. 1789, closes thus:

"Think what the mother, Christian, friend, should be, You've then her character, for such was she."

After teaching a public school some time in Andover, and other towns, he went to Exeter, and taught a private Latin school. He studied Theology, and on the 25th of May, 1747, he (then a ruling elder) received an invitation to become the pastor of the church in Exeter. A correspondent says, "I have the almanacks of Rev. J. Phillips, from 1739 to 1746 inclusive, but it is not known that he ever accepted a pastoral charge, or was ordained." He engaged in mercantile pursuits, in which he was very prosperous. He was a Justice of the Peace, and "was authorized to be, in some singular cases, one of the Judges of the Superior Court." He was a trustee of Dart. Coll., 1773 to 1793, and founded and endowed in that College, the Phillips Professorship of Theology. He aided his brother in founding Phillips Academy in Andover, and made it a bequest (one third of his estate), amounting to twenty thousand dollars. 96. 117 (V.) Hon. WILLIAM PHILLIPS, of Boston. At the age of 15 years, he went to Boston, and became apprentice to Edward Bromfield, Esq., a highly respectable merchant of that town, son of Hon. Edward Bromfield, for many years one of his Majesty's Council, in the Province of Massachusetts Bay, and a great grandson of Rev. John Wilson, the first minister of Boston. At the termination of his apprenticeship, he m., June 13, 1744, o. s. ABIGAIL BROMFIELD, eldest daughter of his late master, and engaged in mercantile pursuits, in which he was very successful. [By this marriage, a great grandson of the first minister of Water-town, was united with a great granddaughter of the first minister of Boston.] He was for many years a deacon of the Old South Church; and was repeatedly elected Representative and State Senator. "He took a decided and active part in the proceedings which preceded and attended the Revolution; was on many of the committees appointed by the town of Boston, in those trying times, and often contributed liberally of his estate to promote the measures, which issued in the establishment of our independence." He was one of the committee sent to demand of Gov. Hutchinson, that the tea should be sent back to England; was rejected, as a Councillor, by Gov. Gage; was a member of the Convention for framing the Constitution of the Commonwealth, and of that, adopting the Constitution of the United States. Upon the outbreak of the Revolution, he moved his family to Norwich, Conn., where they remained, while the British had possession of Boston, occupying the Arnold Mansion, the same house in which the traitor, Benedict Arnold, was born. June 6, 1783, aged 69. Before going to New London, he was employed as a missionary to the Mohegans, and acquired the favor of the sachem and tribe. "No minister in the country stood higher among his own flock, or in the esteem of his brethren, than Mr. Jewitt. He was a man of dignified deportment, rigorous in discipline, but very fervent in his preaching, and uniformly assiduous in his calling." [Caulkins' History of New London, p. 434] He was a chaplain in the army in 1756, often afterwards in the French War, and in the Revolution. He m. PATIENCE PHILLIPS [43½]. She d. in 1773, and he m. "My wife, Patience, was recommended from the church in Salem, Mr. Fisk, Pastor." The tradition is, that he became engaged to Miss Phillips while he was a student of theology; that he was very ill, and she, being a member of the same family, nursed him so kindly and assiduously as to produce a life-long and loving attachment between them. The tradition of the origin of this attachment has been preserved in his parish, to account for his marrying a lady born with only one hand, and about ten years older than himself. His Will, dated a short time before his decease, mentions his wife Mary; son David Hibbert Jewitt, and my gr. chil., David, Charles, Elizabeth, and Sarah Jewitt; "my dear son-in-law, Elisha Porter, Esq., of Hadley," and my gr. chil., Samuel and Sarah Porter. p. 404. PHILBRICK.—The homestall or residence of THOMAS PHILBRICK, in Wat., was at the N. W. corner of what are now called Belmont and Lexington Streets. It has not been ascertained when he arrived in the country; but it is probable that he was of that company that came over in 1630. It is probable also that most, if not all, of his children were born in England. Thomas, supposed to be his second son, was b. in 1624, and his dr. Elizabeth was married before 1643. His Will, dated 1663, mentions the following five children. [See Geneal. Reg. vii., p. 358.]

1. James, a mariner, m. Ann —.
2. Thomas, b. 1624 (at. 42, in 1666); m., Sept. 22, 1669, Hannah, wid. of John White, [See [3] p. 886.] Perhaps this m. was that of his son. Edward

* John Morton, Esq., of New York, the father of Mrs. Quincy, married Sophia Maria Kemper, whose father emigrated from the Rhine, and settled in New York. Her brother, Col. Kemper, of the Revolutionary Army, who died a few years ago, in Elizabethtown, New Jersey, was father of Rev. Jackson Kemper, for many years an assistant of the venerable Bishop White, of Philadelphia, now Bishop of Missouri. Susan Kemper, a sister of Mrs. Morton, and of Col. Kemper, m. Dr. David Jackson, of Philadelphia, and was the mother of Dr. Samuel Jackson, the distinguished professor in the University of Pennsylvania.

French, of Hampton, an aged man, in his Will, dated 1673, mentions his daughter Philbrick [Geneal. Reg. vi., 254.]

3. Elizabeth, m. (1st), previous to 1643, Thomas Chase, of Hampton, by whom she had 5 sons (see the text, p. 404).

4. Hannah. 5. Martha, m. John Cass, of Hampton.

Ephraim Philbrick m. Elizabeth Barron, and had three chil. b. in Groton, 1687, 90 and 99. [Butler, p. 426.] Elizabeth Philbrick m., in Groton, Feb. 16, 1683, Samuel Willard, of Killingby, Conn.

p. 405. PHILPOT.—It is probable that there was only one person of the name of Philpot in Watertown, viz., Thomas, and that John is a misnomer. Thomas Philpot, proprietor of a homestead in 1642, became insane as early as 1647, and was imprisoned, the usual treatment of that malady at that time. He was living as late as 1678.

p. 406. PIERSON.—The residence of Bartholomew Pierson, in Watertown, which he purchased of John Stowers, in 1644, was on the N. side of Belmont Street, between Thomas Philbrick on the east, and Anthony Pierce on the west. Oct. 7, 1655, he sold his house, barn, and about 6 acres, to Anthony Pierce, for £23; bounded W. by (? John Pierce. The land he sold to George Bullard, for £12 (8 acres, not 12), was bounded N. by John Wincol; E. by Isaac Stearns; W. by Anthony Pierce; S. by highway. After he moved to Woburn, he had a dr. Sarah, b. May 7, 1653. It was probably his dr. Mary (birth not recorded), who m., in Woburn, Oct. 28, 1673, John Richardson. His son Bartholomew, d. Feb. 23, 1661. He (f.) d. in Woburn, Mar. 12, 1687, and his wid. Ursula, d. May 28, 1694.

PORTER.—Roger Porter was selectman of Wat., 1648. After he came to Watertown, he m. Grace, wid. of William Palmer, first of Watertown, afterwards of Newbury, of Piscataqua (Portsmouth), and Hampton. [See Palmer, p. 865.] It has not been ascertained what became of his four daughters, whom he brought with him from England.

p. 407. POTTER.—Ap. 15, 1635, William Potter, aged 25, embarked for New England, in the Increase, Robert Lea, master. July 1, 1635, William Potter, husbandman, aged 27. Frances Potter, uxor, aged 26, and Joseph Potter, aged 20 months, embarked for New England, in the Abigail, &c. Except for the difference of age, it might be supposed that the two were identical, as cases occurred, where names were entered for one vessel, and the persons came in another. If there were two persons of that name, it is not known which of them settled in Watertown, but probably the one aged 25. June 2, 1646 (the year after Wm. Potter sold his land in Wat.), William Potter, m., in Rox., Judith Greaves. [See Drake's Hist. of Boston, p. 248.] Was it his wid. Judith Potter, who m. Samuel Finch, in Rox., Dec. 13, 1654? William Potter was one of the signers of the original agreement entered into by the first settlers of New Haven. [See Hinman's Catalogue, 2d ed., p. 76.]

PRATT.—For adm. freeman, read, took the oath of fidelity. It is probable that Thomas Pratt came from London. [See Boylston, p. 702.]

PRENTICE.—Ruth Worthylake, wife of Benjamin Prentice, came from New London to Wat., in Aug., 1763. Prentice occupied the Learned Tavern in 1766-70.

PRESCOTT.—John Prescott took the oath of fidelity in 1652, and was adm. freeman, May 19, 1669. He d. 1683. [For much information respecting his life, character, parentage, family, and very numerous and highly respected descendants, see Geneal. Reg. vi., 274; Willard's History of Lancaster, in Worcester Mag. vol. II., and his Centennial Address in Lancaster, June 15, 1853; Butler, pp. 285, 428, and 476; Shattuck, p. 381; also see p. 828.] He owned 6 lots of land in Watertown, amounting to 126 acres.

p. 407. PRICE.—It will be seen, p. 408, that a query was entertained as to the identity of families of the name of Price and Priest. Several circumstances had formerly rendered this very probable, and it is now satisfactorily ascertained that they were identical. In the Town Record, Nov. 28, 1670, the name of Wm. Price, is written Priest. Oct. 23, 1697, Mary, relict of William Price, for £90, sold to Samuel Livermore, a house and 14 acres, bounded E. and N. by Camb. line; W. by Philpot's lot, and Henry Godden; S. by William Shattuck, and town land common. To this deed is attached the following memorandum.  "Whereas, ye grantor's name in this deed is called Priest, which name she is commonly known by, yet it is here to be understood that her right name is Price." William Price (her son), signed a quitclaim to this property, to Samuel Livermore. A little before this, viz., May 1, 1695, wid. Mary Price, and her son William, sold to Wm. Shattuck, 14 acres in the same neighborhood. Her death is not recorded in Wat., and it is probable that, about the time of these sales, she left the town to reside with one of her children. At a trial in court, between parties belonging to Watertown, "Wm. Priest" was a witness. His age is not given. It is not improbable that he came over in his youth, with John Wetherill, his kinsman. [See Wetherill, p. 637.]

Of William Price, Jr., the latest notice discovered, is his signing a quitclaim to the mother's homestead, as above stated.

Of John Price (ex'r of his father, Wm., Sen.), no precise information has been obtained; but it is conjectured that he settled in Lancaster. After the death of his father he was lessee of the Philpot lot, in Dec., 1686, and July, 1688. Perhaps he is the one, who m. Rachel, dr. of Samuel Garfield [Garfield 2½-5]. In a deed for land in Weston, sold 1710, it is described as bounded N. and W. by John Priest and James Priest. [John Priest, of Woburn, had, 1. Elizabeth, b. Sept. 12, 1679. 2. John, b. Nov. 1, 1681. 3. Hannah, b. July 19, 1686. Nothing more has been learned respecting this family; but the dates show that the father could not have been the John Price (Priest), born in Watertown.]

For James and Joseph, sons of William Price, see Priest, 1 and 11, p. 408.

Hannah Price, the youngest child, m. Dec. 24, 1702, Thomas Sanderson [5].
Sept. 3, 1751, caution against (settlement of) Hannah Price, from Boston.

PRINCE.—John Prince, the progenitor of the families of this name in New England, settled first in Watertown, afterwards successively of Hingham and Hull; m. for his 2d wife Anne, wid. of William Barstow. [See General. Reg. V., 383, and Barstow, in Part II., p. 678.]

p. 409. PROUT.—Ebenezer Prout was Clerk of the House of Representatives, in 1689, and on the 6th June, signed the order of the House for the imprisonment of Sir E. Andros, in the Castle. His eldest son Timothy, by his first wife, Elizabeth [Brooks, 43, p. 721], married Lydia, daughter of Major Thomas Savage, of Boston. In 1728, he purchased the Cammock Patent, at Black Point (in Scarborough), of the heirs of Capt. Joshua Scotlow, and settled there, and d. Ap. 5, 1768. His children, b. between 1718 and 1728, were, 1. Lydia. 2. Ebenezer, of Scarboro. 3. Timothy, of Boston. 4. Joseph, of Scarborough. 5. Mary, m. Capt. Alexander Kirkwood, a Scotchman, of Scarboro, s. p. 6. Elizabeth. [See Hist. of Scarboro, p. 221.]

QUINER.—Thomas Quiner and family, moved to Cambridge, in June, 1741.

RAINSBOROUGH. (Rainborow, Rainburrow, Rainsborow.)—Dec. 17, 1640, William Rainsborow purchased of Thomas Bright, for £60, the house and land in Wat., which had been the homestall of Lieut. Robert Feakes. He was elected a member of the An. and Hon. Art. Co., in 1639, probably early in that year. Whether he resided in Watertown, has not been ascertained; but such a purchase renders it probable. He returned to England in 1644; became Colonel of a Regiment in Cromwell's army, of which Israel Stoughton was Lt. Col.; Nehemiah Bourne, Major; John Leverett, a Captain; and William Hudson, his Ensign. [Winthrop, II., p. 245.] He was Governor of Worcester in 1646, and he went to Ireland in 1647. He d. 1648. [See Clarendon's Hist. Rebellion, 3219.] Did Col. Stephen Winthrop marry his sister? [Winthrop, II., pp. 351, 354; also Colonial Records, II., pp. 60, 80, and 82.]

 [19.] Mary Randall, an orphan, grandchild of wid. Worth, bap. in Wat., June 26, 1698.

RAYNOR.—Thurston Raynor, had a lot of 330 acres in Wethersfield, which he sold to Robert Treat, and moved to Stamford in 1641. [See Oldham, p. 864.] He was elected magistrate in May, 1664. Perhaps this was the son, who was then 49, and the father 70 years old.

RAYNGER.—Caution by Lex., against (settlement of) Ann Raynger, from Wat., May, 1761. July 10, 1694, Mrs. Hooper warned not to entertain Henry Reiner.

REMINGTON.—John Remington was selectman, 1771, 72, 77, and lived in the house previously occupied by Capt. David Baldwin.

REYNOLDS.—Robert and John Reynolds, were both very early settlers of Watertown. Robert was adm. freeman Sept. 3, 1634, and was dismissed from Wat. Church, May, 1635, in order, with others, to organize a church on Connecticut River. John was adm. freeman May 6, 1635, and about the same time (in 1635), he was appointed on a committee in Wat., for dividing to every man, his share of meadow and upland. There is no further notice of either of them in the town records. They probably both belonged to the colony that first went from Watertown to Wethersfield. John Reynolds was one of the original purchasers of Stamford, and a John Renold was a freeman and "townsman" of Norwich, in 1669. As the name of Robert Reynolds does not occur, after a very early date, in the Conn. Col. Records, it is conjectured that he returned to the Bay Colony; that two of his daughters, Ruth (Whitney), and Mary (Sanger), settled in Watertown, where he had first settled, and that he d. in Boston, in 1659. [See his Will, in Geneal. Reg. ix., p. 137; also Whitney [10], and Sanger [1].]

Andrew Belcher, vs. Thomas Rider, of Wat., for withholding the corn-mill, verdict for the plaintiff. July 17, 1691, Thomas Rider, of Wat., for £22 10s., mortgaged to Phillip Shattuck, of Wat., weaver, 30 A. of dividend land, also all his right in a grist-mill, on said land, bounded N. by Camb. line; S. by land of Elizabeth Wood; W. by Mary Sherman; E. by Christopher Grant. Thomas Rider and wife Sarah, resided in Dorchester, in 1709.

It is not clearly ascertained that this family settled in Watertown; but it is very probable, as they came over in the same ship with several other Watertown families, and belonged to the colony that went thence to plant Wethersfield. Robert Rose was sworn constable of Wethersfield Feb. 6, 1639-40. In the Naubuc Farms, he had an allotment of 312 acres. Robert Rose was one of the freemen of Stratford, in 1669.

RUCK.—Thomas Ruck, of Charlestown in 1638, adm. freeman May, 1640, soon afterwards of Salem. In the list of the possessions of Isaac Sterne, made out in 1642-44, is one lot of 10 acres, bought of Thomas Ruck, Nov. 2, 1643 (by him purchased of Capt. Jennison), and another lot of 60, also bought of him. Oct. 17, 1643, the General Court allowed Mr. Ruck £5 15s., "for the charge of the Committee which met at Salem." Although an early proprietor, it is probable that he never resided in Watertown.

SALTONSTALL.—Sir RICHARD SALTONSTALL, of Huntwicke, b. 1586, was a son of Samuel Saltonstall, of Rookes and Huntwicke, by his first wife, ANN, daughter of John Ramsden, of Longley, Esq., and a grandson of Gilbert Saltonstall, who purchased Rookes in Hipperholme. He was a Justice of the Peace for the West Riding of Yorkshire, and Lord of the Manor of Ledslam, near Leeds, which he purchased of the Harebreds. He was not one of the six who purchased Massachusetts Bay of the Plymouth Company, Mar. 19, 1627-8, but he soon became one of their associates. After Sir Henry Rosewell and Sir John Young, two of the original purchasers, he is the next named among those associates, in the Charter granted by Charles I., Mar. 4, 1628-9; and he is the first named among those Assistants appointed by that Charter. The first time his name appears in the records of the Courts of the Massachusetts Bay Company, was Mar. 5, 1628-9, where it immediately succeeds the names of the officers; and it will be found, in those records, that his name almost invariably stands at the head of the Assistants. When the proposition of Gov. Cradock, to transfer the government of the Company from England to the Colony, was to be argued in a General Court of the Company, on the 29th of Aug., 1629, Sir Richard was named first of those who were designated to advocate the transfer. At a General Court, held Oct. 15, 1629, two committees were appointed, one on the part of the adventurers, who were to remain in England, and the other on the part of those to go over, in order to draw up articles of agreement "between the adventurers here at home, and the planters that are to go over, as well for arranging and settling the joint stock, as for reconciling any difference that may happen upon this change [transfer] of government." Sir Richard was appointed chairman of the committee on the part of the emigrant adventurers. At a General Court, held Sept. 29, 1629, "were read the orders made the 28th and 29th of August last, concerning the transferring of the patent and government of the plantation into New England, but that business, being of great and weighty consequences, is thought fit to be deferred for determination until Sir Richard Saltonstall, Mr. Johnson, and other gentlemen, be come up to London, and may be here present." It is probable that his residence continued to be in Yorkshire until about the time he went to America, and for that reason he was not a constant attendant at the Courts of the Company. At a General Court, held Dec. 1, 1629, in order to fulfil those articles of agreement, the Company appointed five "undertakers" among those about to go over, of whom Sir Richard was named next after the Governor, and five others among those that were to remain in England.

Early in April, 1630, Sir Richard, with his sons and daughters, embarked at Yarmouth, on board the Arabella, and arrived at Salem on the 12th of June. Those passengers, by this and other ships, who landed at Salem, very soon proceeded to Charlestown, where their number was much enlarged by the arrival of passengers in other ships, that came directly to Charlestown. Here this company was very soon divided into two portions. One of them, with Sir Richard as their leader, and Mr. Phillips as their minister, went to plant Watertown, and without delay (July 28), organized a church, and Sir Richard was the first subscriber to the church covenant. The other portion of the Company, with Gov. Winthrop as their leader, and Mr. Wilson as their minister, remained in Charlestown, and organized a church, which was soon afterwards transferred to Boston. [See Historical Introduction.]

Sir Richard remained in America less than a year. On the 29th of March, 1631, he, with his two daughters, and one of his younger sons, embarked for England, and, it is said, fixed his residence in London, having sold his estate in Yorkshire about the time he became one of the adventurers in the Massachusetts Bay Company. He never returned to America; yet we may presume that he proposed, and was expected to return, as he was elected an Assistant by the General Court in May, 1633. He continued to be a proprietor of Watertown for several years. Mar. 3, 1635-6, the Court granted him 100 acres of meadow in Watertown, and in the allotment of Beaver Brook plowlands, 1636, 30 acres were assigned to him, among "the townsmen then inhabiting." This assignment was made because his estate in Watertown was managed by his servants, in his name, for whom he was responsible; and this probably continued only until his sons, Samuel and Henry, attained to their majority. In the list of possessions ordered to be made in 1642, Sir Richard's name does not appear, but the names of those two sons.

He, with Viscount Say and Seal, Lord Brooke, and others, was one of the patentees of Connecticut, and he was active in promoting its settlement. For this purpose, he sent over a bark of 40 tons, with 20 servants, which arrived at Boston, June 16, 1635. His interest in the Connecticut plantation did not, however, seem to diminish his regard for Massachusetts Bay. This was evinced by his efficient superintendence of its interests in England, by the settlement of three of his sons, and the education of the other, in Massachusetts, and by his legacy to Harvard College.

Among those who subscribed the two letters, dated London, Aug. 29, 1629, one of them addressed to Gov. Endicott, and the other to the ministers of Salem, and likewise that letter dated on board the Arbella, Ap. 7, 1630, addressed to their Christian friends and brethren they were about leaving in England, the name of Sir Richard Saltonstall stands first. In addition to this circumstance, there is in them so much Christian charity, such a courteous tone, a spirit so liberal for that day, and so much in harmony with his admirable letter, addressed to the ministers of Boston a few years afterwards, that we may fairly conjecture, if not confidently assert, that he was the author of all of them. Of that letter of expostulation and rebuke to the ministers of Boston,* above referred to, Dr. Francis justly says, "this letter is a noble testimony to his charitable and Christian feelings, and seems to me scarcely less to deserve the praise of being beyond the age, than the celebrated farewell address of John Robinson, at Leyden." A character in all points so exemplary, so good, and so great, so exempt from any seeming blemish or defect, it is not easy to find among the early worthies of New England; and his honorable descent, and the superior social position, so evidently conceded to him by the other adventurers, are feeble claims to our respect, compared with his eminent personal worth.

After he returned to England, he received marked tokens of the public confidence. His influence at court is shown by his success in thwarting the machinations of the enemies of Massachusetts Bay. In 1644, he was Ambassador to Holland, and while there, his portrait was painted by the celebrated Rembrandt. It is now in the possession of the family of the late Hon. Leverett Saltonstall, and it is very highly valued as a work of art. Upon it is this inscription, "Aetat. suæ 58, A. D. 1644."⁷³ In 1649, he was one of the High Court of Justice appointed to try Duke Hamilton, Lord Capel, the Earl of Holland, the Earl of Norwich, and Sir John Owen, for high treason, of whom the first three were condemned and executed, and the other two were condemned, but pardoned.

Sir RICHARD SALTONSTALL, m. (1st), GRACE KAYE, daughter of Robert Kaye, of Woodsome, Esq., and aunt of John Kaye, Bart. She was the mother of all his children. She d. before he went to Massachusetts Bay. After his return to England, it is said he m. (2d), a daughter of Lord Delaware, and m. (3d), MARTHA WILFORD. The date of his decease has not been ascertained, but his Will was made in 1658, at the age of 72. Chil.,

* Copy of a Letter from Sir Richard Saltonstall to Mr. Cotton and Mr. Wilson.

"Reverend and deare friends, whom I unfeignedly love and respect,

"It doth not a little grieve my spirit to heare what sadd things are reported dayly of your tyranny and persecutions in New England, as that you fine, whip, and imprison men for their consciences. First, you compell such to come into your assemblies as you know will not joyne with you in your worship, and when they show their dislike thereof, or wites against it, then you styrr up your magistrates to punish them for such (as you couceyve) their publicke affronts. Truly, friends, this your practice of compelling any in matters of worship to doe that whereof they are not fully persuaded, is to make them sin, for soe the Apostle (Rom. 14 and 23), tells us, and many are made hypocrites thereby, conforming in their outward man for feare of punishment. We pray for you, and wish you prosperitie every way, hoped the Lord would have given you so much light and love there, that you might have been eyes to God's people here, and not to practice those courses in a wilderness which you went so farre to prevent. These rigid wayes have layed you very lowe in the hearts of the saynts. I doe assure you I have heard them pray in the publicke assemblies that the Lord would give you meeke and humble spirits, not to strive so much for uniformity as to keepe the unity of the bond of peace.

"When I was in Holland, about the beginning of our warres, I remember some Christians there, that then had serious thoughts of planting in New England, desired me to write to the governor thereof to know if those that differ from you in opinion, yet holding the same foundation in religion, as Anabaptists, Seekers, Antinomians, and the like, might be permitted to live among you, to which I received this short answer from your then Governour, Mr. Dudley. God forbid (said he) our love for the truth should be growne soe cold that we should tolerate errors; and when (for satisfaction of myself and others) I desired to know your grounds, he referred me to the books written here between the Presbyterians and Independents, which if that had been sufficient, I needed not have sent so farre to understand the reasons of your practice. I hope you doe not assume to yourselves infallibilitie of judgment, when the most learned of the Apostles confesseth he knew but in parte and saw but darkly as through a glass, for God is light, and no further than he doth illumine us can we see, be our partes and learning never so great. Oh that all those who are brethren, though yet they cannot thinke and speake the same things, might be of one accord in the Lord. "For my reverend and worthy much-esteemed friends, Mr. Cotton and Mr. Wilson, preachers to the church which is at Boston, in New England, give this.

- 9.2 1. RICHARD, b. at Woodsome, Co. York, in 1610; d. at Hulme, Co. of Lancaster, Ap. 29, 1694, aged 84.
- 3 2. ROBERT, was probably the 2d son of Sir Richard, as he must have attained his majority at least as early as 1636; for on the 23d Sept., 1637, Mr. Hugh Peters presented to the Court a deed, by which Robert Saltonstall assigned to him all the estate that he hath or shall have, to satisfy his creditors. This implies that he had some time before attained his majority. It appears by a deed dated about 1642, that he had resided some time in Watertown, and he probably went to reside in Boston, as early as 1638 or 40; and was adm. mem. An. and Hon. Art. Co., 1638. He was the superintendent of his father's interest in this country, and it appears by the Colonial Records, that in 1645, Sir Richard had granted to him irrevocably, all his dues or claims in this country, which was allowed by the Court. His name often occurs in the Colonial Records, in connection with business transactions. June 2, 1641, it was certified to the Court, that Connecticut colony had sold to Mr. Robert Saltonstall, "a great quantity of land, not far below Springfield." June 20, 1645, for £100, he sold to his brother Richard, 2100 acres of land on Connecticut River, "between Springfield and Windsor Ferry." [Essex Deeds, I., p. 7.] He was one of those purchasers of the two patents of Wecohannet (Dover), and Pascataquack (Portsmouth), who, on the 14th of June, 1641, "gave up and set over," all their power of jurisdiction to the government of Massachusetts Bay. Oct. 1, 1645, the Court granted to him 3200 acres, in right of his father, which had been granted to Sir Richard, as an adventurer. Previous to May 26, 1647, he had sold to Adam and Dean Winthrop, 1000 acres at Cochituit, which had been granted to his father, to be laid out by Capt. Pelham and Mr. Pendleton. There were repeated contests between him (as agent of his father) and Watertown, respecting titles to lands. They were finally terminated by arbitration in Oct., 1647. May 29, 1644, he was fined 5s. for presenting a petition, respecting land in Watertown, on so small and so bad a piece of paper. Mar. 16, 1647-8, having sold a house and land, to which he had no just and true right, and about which there had been considerable controversy, he was ordered by the Court to make restitution, was fined for his miscarriage, to pay costs of Court, and was debarred from pleading in other men's causes in any Court of Justice, except himself have real interest therein. This renders it probable that he was a lawyer, or had been accustomed to act as an advocate in courts of justice. May 2, 1649, he petitioned for a new trial in the above-mentioned case, which was granted. In Oct., 1648, and again in Oct., 1649, the Court permitted him to prosecute and recover, in any court of justice, his legal claims in the two patents of Swamscote (Exeter), and Dover on Pascataqua River. He was never admitted freeman, probably because he was not disposed to conform to the rigid discipline of a Puritan church. He was enterprising and energetic, and his father seems to have reposed entire confidence in his integrity; yet he seems not to have possessed the public spirit, and the high-toned religious and moral characteristics, which were so admirably illustrated in his father and his brother Richard. He d. unm. about July, 1650.
- His Will, dated June 13, proved Aug. 15, 1650, mentions his father; his brothers, Richard, Samuel, and Henry; his sisters, Rosamond and Grace; his uncle John Clarke, whom, with George Munnings, he appointed executors; his aunt Clarke, and her son, then in Barbadoes. He made bequests also to Henry Walton, Adam Winthrop, and Thomas Lake. On the day the Will was proved, John Clarke renounced the executorship. [See Geneal. Reg. vii., 334.] It is supposed that Martha, wife of John Clarke, of Boston, was a sister of Sir Richard; but it seems to me more probable that their wives, Grace and Martha, were sisters.
- 4 3. SAMUEL, probably the 3d son of Sir Richard, is mentioned in the Will of his brother Robert, and in a letter of his sister Rosamond, dated Ap. 22, 1644. For an account of him, see pp. 415-16, and note, p. 918.
- 5 4. HENRY, probably the youngest son. [See p. 415.] No additional information respecting him has been obtained. He is mentioned in the Will of his brother Robert, and in the letter of his sister Rosamond.
- 6 5. ROSAMOND, perhaps the eldest child. In Ap., 1644, she had been living two years at Warwick House, in the family of the Earl of Warwick. Whether she ever married, or what became of her, has not been ascertained.*

7 6. GRACE, mentioned by name, in her brother Robert's Will, and in her sister's letter (but not named) and then, 1644, living in the family of Lady Manchester. It is not known whether she married, or what became of her.

8 [7. Peter Saltonstall, was formerly conjectured to be a son of Sir Richard; but it is now deemed nearly certain that he was not. His name has been discovered in no records, except those of the Artillery Company. He is not mentioned in the Will of Robert, which mentions all the other children of Sir Richard, nor in the letter of Rosamond to her brother Samuel, which was probably written some time before he was elected into the Art. Co.; as he was, with one exception, the last one elected in the year 1644. It is not improbable that he was a son of Sir Peter Saltonstall, of Berkway, Co. Herts, Kt, a first cousin of Sir Richard. Sir Peter had a son Peter, who d. s. p.]

2.9 (II.) RICHARD SALTONSTALL, Jr., eldest son of Sir Richard, b. at Woodsome, Co., York, in 1610; matriculated "Mr. Fellow-commoner," in Emmanuel College, Camb., Dec. 14, 1627. He accompanied his father to New England, in 1630, before taking a degree; was adm. freeman, May 18, 1631, then of Wat., aged 21, with the title "Mr." This was only a few weeks after his father departed for England. He embarked for England Nov. 23, 1631, where he remained about four years and a half, and, it is conjectured, gave some attention

"From Warwick House.

"Dear Brother:—

"I am not a little glad to receive any intimation of your health and happiness, either by word or writing, and both your own letter and my brother Henry's intelligence, hath lately assured me of it. I should be much more glad to see you that I might know you better, and enjoy more intimate acquaintance with your spirit, especially in spiritual things. I trust you have seen and heard so much the beauty thereof, where you are, that they have really challenged your heart from all the world. I can desire nothing so much as your soul's prosperity, and that you would interest yourself in all the ways and means, that might add to your growth for an eternal welfare. I am sure 'tis the best counsell, and you will find it so one day, when all your days on earth must be concluded by death. Consider that time much, and what kind of provision eternity will require, and then the world and all carnal things will not take up your thoughts more than needs must.

"Dear Brother, I am glad to hear of you so well as I do, and therefore, I desire you would go farther, and not be a hindrance to the good of your own soul by any indisposition of nature. Put forth yourself and trust God in his own way and work, if you can find, in any true measure, anything of Christ savingly wrought in you; and what he will own, man dares not reject, nor any that desire to draw near to God in any ordinance; and all his ordinances are precious and highly to be valued, and surely God will never draw so near, or delight in any, that do not make it their desire and endeavor to draw near to him in every ordinance. Consider your condition seriously, put yourself to trial, let God see you willing to deny yourself in all carnal reasonings and sinful objections, that you may give up yourself fully to be one of Christ's flock, that he may wholly rule over you.

"Dear Brother, you are likely to be a constant settler where you are; therefore, without question, you have liberty to dispose of yourself into church-fellowship, and I pray God you may be so fitted for it, as interested in it.

"For our condition here, I need not tell you how we are dispersed; my father and brother Henry, are in Holland. My father hath some necessity to be there now, because of Mr. White's breaking, by whom my father hath lost more of that little estate he hath left. For the present I am, and have been, two years in my Lord of Warwick's family; my sister is with my Lady Manchester, and thus we are dispersed about. The Lord give us all a gathering in Christ, and there we shall meet without separation to all eternity.

"Dear Brother, farewell, only remember me, and I shall never [forget] you, * * * * *

"Your truly affectionate to legal studies. About 1633, he married MERIELL GURDON, dr. of Brampton Gurdon, of Asson, Co. Suffolk, Esq. (who, it is said, had "eight sons, Parliament men"). He embarked at London, in Ap., 1635, with wife Meriell, aged 22 yrs., and dr. Meriell, aged 9 months. Upon his arrival, then aged 25, he settled in Ipswich, and immediately began to receive tokens of public respect and confidence; and there is not probably in the early colonial history, another instance, where so young a man received so many. The Colonial Records show that he was truly a worthy son of a very worthy father.

Mr. Saltonstall was elected Deputy of Ipswich, to the first General Court, held after his return, and was at five courts between Mar. 3, 1635-6, and April, 1637. He was elected Assistant, June 1, 1637, and continued to be elected annually until 1649. In Oct. of that year, another man was appointed in his place on a commission, which he could not attend to, "in regard of his intended voyage," bound to England, probably for the benefit of his wife's health. Sept., 1649, "being, by God's Providence, upon a voyage to England," he appoints the present Pastor and the Deacons of the Church of Ipswich, his attorneys, with "power to act," about all of his estates in Ipswich. [Essex Deeds, II., p. 6.] When he returned has not been ascertained, but he was in England in the spring of 1662. [See Hutchinson's State Papers, p. 371.] In 1672, he went back to England, where his three daughters were married. He returned to Massachusetts again in 1680, where he remained about three years; and then, at the age of 73, went again to England, where he died, at Hulme, Ap. 29, 1694, aged 84. He was elected Assistant, in 1664, and again, upon his second return to Ipswich, in 1680, 81, and 82. Sept. 6, 1636, the Court appointed a committee to examine the accounts of Mr. R. Saltonstall, executor of the estate of John Dillingham, deceased, and of Edward Dillingham, his son. This estate was not finally settled until 1645. May 25, 1636, he, with two others, was appointed "to keep court" at Ipswich. In 1644, 1646, and 1647, he was appointed ("desired) to keep court" at Piscataqua. Sept. 8, 1636, he was one of those deputed to require the last rates of each town in the plantation; to find out the true value of every town in the plantation, and to make an equal rate for £600. The next year he received a similar appointment. In 1638, he was appointed a referee "in business, between Henry Sewall and the town of Newbury." Mar. 12, 1637-8, he was one of the committee appointed to report upon "excessive prices," and to report "their thoughts for remedying the same." At the same time he was appointed on a committee "to consider of a levy, petitions, and other trivial matters." May 29, 1644, he, with two others, was appointed, "with full power to hear and determine all businesses at Hampton, both about their differences, offences, and a new plantation, according to their several petitions."

Oct. 7, 1641, he was, by the Court, appointed him Serjeant Major in Col. Endicott's Regiment. Although he received so many offices and appointments, and the preceding are only a part) he does not seem to have been ambitious for office. Winthrop says, that in 1644, Mr. Saltonstall "moved very earnestly that he might be left out of the next election (of Assistants), and pursued his motion after to the towns;" and he supposes that it was because Mr. S. found himself in a small minority, among the Assistants, on some points of public policy. Like his father, he had more correct views of public justice, and of civil and religious liberty, than were then and there prevalent. Oct. 1, 1645, the Court granted a charter, for 20 years, after any discovery made within three years, to the following gentlemen, as a trading company or company of adventurers, viz., "Richard Saltonstall, Esq., Mr. Syman Bradstreet, Mr. Samuel Symonds, Mr. Richard Dumer, Mr. Willie Hubbard, Capt. Wm. Hathorne, and Mr. Wm. Paine." He was one of those persons who were privy to the concealment of the regicide Judges, Whalley and Goffe, and in 1672, he gave them £50.

There are three events in the life of Mr. Saltonstall, of some importance, as illustrative of his regard for civil liberty, public justice, and humanity.

The greatest blemish, the charge which it is most difficult to meet satisfactorily, in the conduct of the planters of Massachusetts Bay, is undoubtedly their bigoted attachment to the minutia of their religious dogmas, their seeming to be the disciples of Moses more than of Christ, their intolerance of any variation from their views, even on speculative points of no practical importance, and the severity of their dealings with those who conscientiously differed from them. In such a condition of the public sentiments, or rather of those who bear rule, there can hardly fail to be a proneness towards the assumption of arbitrary power. This was manifested in the early attempt of the Court to tax the people without their consent, which, however, was so met by the Rev. George Phillips, the uncompromising Elder Richard Browne, and other people of Watertown, that it was not afterwards attempted. This occurred while Mr. Saltonstall was in England. The next important manifestation of this tendency was on the 3d of March, 1635-6, when the Court passed an order, that the General Court, at their next meeting, "shall elect a certain number of magistrates for term of their lives, as a standing council." This order was obnoxious to the people, and awakened among them a jealousy of the designs of their rulers. They looked upon it as an infringement of their rights, as an attempt to introduce into the government an almost irresponsible body, which was not warranted by their charter. Such was the excitement produced, that at the end of three years (May 22, 1639), the Court virtually, but not formally, almost annulled the force of that order. The obnoxious Standing Council, however, still subsisted, and to allay the excitement, the Court authorized "every freeman to give their advice to any of the deputies concerning the institution and power of the Standing Council."

Mr. Saltonstall, although an Assistant, with a very fair prospect of becoming a member of that Council, if he desired it, coincided in sentiment with those freemen, and such of the Elders as disapproved of the Standing Council, differing in this respect from most of the other Assistants; and he wrote a book, maintaining that the institution of such a body for life was not warranted by the Charter, and was a sinful innovation. It is evident, from Winthrop, that his remarks were cogent and pointed. Mr. Saltonstall put the book into the hands of Mr. Hathorne, a Deputy, and from him it passed into other hands, and not until after the lapse of a considerable time was it laid before the Court. The book gave great offence, especially to some of the high officials, those most interested in the institution which was attacked, and they would gladly have censured or otherwise punished the author. But such was the character and influence of Mr. Saltonstall, and so cogent and unanswerable his argument, that they did not succeed, and he was "discharged from any censure or further inquiry by this or any other court." This vote was passed May 3, 1642. Yet so much rankling did the book leave in certain persons interested, that on the 14th of the next month, the Court voted "to vindicate the office of the Standing Council, as it is now ordered, and the persons in whom it is now vested, from all dishonor and reproach, cast upon it or them, in Mr. Saltonstall's book." For this purpose, the book was referred to the Elders, the very persons who had advised the institution of such a Council. "The Elders all met at Ipswich," Oct. 18, 1642, and took the book into consideration. They "differed much in their judgment about it," but finally agreed to report that three propositions are laid down in it, and "in their answer they allowed the said propositions are sound;" but they made some nice distinctions about the application of them, intended to lessen the odium attached to the institution and the authors of it. The Government of Massachusetts Bay, through their own weakness, and the artifice of La Tour, became dishonorably, not to say dishonestly, implicated in "the French business,"—the controversy between D'Aulney and La Tour. In an early stage of this business (in May, 1643), "those about Ipswich, &c., took great offence at these proceedings," protesting against them "with divers arguments, some whereof were weighty." [Winthrop, II., 128; Hutchinson's State Papers, p. 115.] In this protest, it is fair to presume that Mr. Saltonstall was the leader, not only from his social and official position, his being the first subscriber, and his known sentiments, but from his subsequent conduct.

This protest, dated July 14, 1643, was signed by Richard Saltonstall, Simon Bradstreet, Samuel Simonds, Nath. Warde, Ez. Rogers, Nath. Rogers, John Norton. [See Hazard's State Papers, I., p. 502.] Mr. Bradstreet speaks of it as a joint production,—“we writ the letter,” “our letter,” and he defended it against the strictures of Gov. Winthrop.

At the General Court, in May, 1645, a commission was granted to the Governor (Dudley), Lieut. Atherton, Mr. Pelham, Capt. Cooke, Mr. Saltonstall, and Mr. Hathorne, with power to summon witnesses, &c., to search out the truth about "the French business;" yet, at the same Court, a pass was granted to La Tour for seven armed vessels; and a small amount of provision was allowed them "on the country charge." This was a manifest violation of the spirit, if not of the letter, of the 9th Article of the Confederation of the four New England Colonies, entered into in May, 1643; and in August, 1645, a solemn and formal protest was delivered to the Commissioners of the United Colonies, in the handwriting of Mr. Saltonstall, and signed by himself and Mr. Hathorne, who were a minority of those commissioners of inquiry, appointed the preceding May. This protest, for pertinence, perspicuity, just sentiments, and comprehensive views, will compare most favorably with any state paper of that period. [See Winthrop II., pp. 381-3.] From this paper, we may infer the ability displayed in Mr. Saltonstall's book against a Standing Council for life.

Mr. Saltonstall is entitled to a high place among those Christian philanthropists, who have entertained a conscientious regard for "the higher law," and have spoken and acted promptly and boldly against the nefarious slave trade. Capt. James Smith, of Boston, and his mate, Thomas Kaezar, in the ship Rainbow, went to the coast of "Guinea to trade for negroes." Upon their return, bringing only two negroes to Boston, and reporting their doings, Mr. Saltonstall, in Oct. 1645, presented to the General Court a petition, representing in strong terms the heinous conduct of Smith and Kaezar, declaring that "the act of stealing negroes, or taking them by force (whether it be considered a theft or a robbery), is (as I conceive) contrary to the law of God and the law of this country," and he "requested that the several offenders may be imprisoned by the order of this Court, and brought to their deserved censure in convenient time." The petition, written with Mr. Saltonstall's peculiar terseness, perspicuity, and boldness, was signed by himself only. [Winthrop, II., p. 379.] The petition was granted, and it was ordered that Capt. Smith (a member of Boston Church), and Mr. Kaezar, "be laid hold on, and committed to give answer." The Court ordered the two negroes to be delivered up, and one, if not both of them, to be sent back to Guinea at the public expense.

Yours most faithfully in all Christian regards.
 Richard Saltonstall.

But he refused to accept the appointment, and, upon the deposition of Sir Edmund, he became one of the Council, which took the government of the Colony into their hands. He continued in this office until the arrival of the Charter of William and Mary, wherein he was appointed one of their Majesty's Council. On the 2d June, 1692, he was appointed one of the Judges in a special commission of Oyer and Terminer, for the trial of persons accused of witchcraft, and, with a highminded liberality, worthy of his father and grandfather, the more honorable for being at that time singular, he, and he alone, refused to serve in that commission from conscientious scruples. In August, 1680, he went with the Deputy Governor and others, "with 60 soldiers, in a ship and sloop from Boston, to still the people at Casco Bay, and prevent Gov. Andros's usurpation." In 1683, he was appointed by the Crown one of the Commissioners "to examine and inquire into the claims and titles, as well of his Majesty as others, to the Narragansett country," to which important commission he attended. He was administrator of the estate of his uncle, Samuel Saltonstall, of Watertown. Chil.

John Winthrop, who d. Nov. 27, 1707, Mr. Saltonstall was elected his successor, and took the oath of office as Governor of Connecticut, Jan. 1, 1708. He was tall and well proportioned, of dignified aspect and demeanor; of eminent intellectual endowments and acquirements, and a very graceful and impressive elocution. He was an advocate of vigorous ecclesiastical authority, always striving to exalt the ministerial office, to maintain its dignity, and to enlarge the powers of ecclesiastical bodies; which gave him unbounded popularity among his clerical brethren. Such were his views of law and order, both in church and state, and of the discipline to be employed in maintaining them, and such his regard for official dignity and privileges, that he acquired the reputation of being severe, imperious, and of seeking self-aggrandizement. Yet he was a very popular Governor, and remained in office until Sept. 21, 1724, when he died suddenly of apoplexy. [For a full and excellent delineation of his character, see Caultin's Hist. of New London.] He m. (1st) JERUSA RICHARDS, dr. of James Richards, of Hartford. She d. in Boston, July 25, 1697. He m. [For her parentage and lineage, see Farmer; also Riker's Annals of Newtown, L. I.] To his son Rosewell, he bequeathed the Rosewell estate in Branford, and his manor of Killingly, near Pontefract, in Yorkshire, England; to his son Nathaniel, his farm at Cauchinchaug (Durham); to his son Gurdon, his lands in New London; to his daughters Elizabeth, Mary, and Sarah, the estate in Wethersfield, that was their mother's. He also provides for his daughter Catherine. He built a mansion on the border of Lake Saltonstall, in Branford, which has a variety of antique ornaments;—walls hung with grotesque pictures, Spanish leather tapestry, &c. &c.

* WILLIAM ROSEWELL, b. in 1680; m. (by Increase Nowell, Esq.) in Charlestown, Nov. 29, 1654, CATHERINE RUSSELL, dr. of Hon. Richard and Maud Russell, of Charlestown. [See note, p. 736.] In 1653, wood and common land was assigned to him "on Mistiek syde," in Charlestown. He moved to Connecticut, as early as 1667. He probably first went to Branford, as he was one of the original signers of the "New Plantation Covenant" of Branford, Jan. 20, 1667; but he must have moved to New Haven very soon afterwards, for on Jan. 13, 1667, the town of New Haven granted him a lot, on which he built a house, and "for some years dwelt in;" was engaged in trade, and owned a bark, trading between New Haven and Barbadoes. He probably returned to Branford, in 1671; for, on the 9th of Feb., 1671, the town of Branford granted him a tract of land, at the outlet of the Lake [since called Saltonstall Lake], on condition of his erecting and maintaining a dam there. This dam yet remains. In the same year was a marriage settlement between Hon. - 84 5. DUDLEY, b. Sept. 8, 1738, a distinguished seaman, of New London. In early life, he made numerous voyages in mercantile pursuits. In the Revolutionary War, he attained the rank of Commodore, and had command of the American Fleet in the expedition against Penobscot in 1779. The disastrous issue of that expedition was attributed to unforeseen obstacles, and the insufficiency of the force,—not to any want of skill or bravery in the Commander. The largest American vessel was the Warren, of 32 guns, and they were attacked by a squadron of five British war vessels, led on by Sir George Collier, in the Rainbow, of 44 guns. Under such circumstances, the destruction or capture of the American Fleet was inevitable. He afterwards commanded the privateer Minerva, and among the prizes taken by him was the Hannah, a merchant ship, of London, bound for N. York, having the most valuable cargo sent to America during the war. The exasperation produced by this and other losses by privateers from New London, is said to have led to that expedition, in Sept. 1781, in which New London and Groton were burnt, and the garrison of Fort Griswold massacred.  121 3. RICHARD, b. Ap. 5, 1732, grad. Harv. Coll. 1751; was a distinguished scholar, and had the Latin Oration when he graduated. He was the fourth of the family in succession who held the office of Colonel. In the rank of Major, he was engaged in active service in the French War on Lake George, and belonged to that body which capitulated at Fort William Henry, Aug. 9, 1757. When the Indians fell upon the unarmed prisoners, he fled to the woods, and very narrowly escaped death in that horrid massacre. He commanded a regiment from 1760 until the end of the war. Soon after this, he was appointed High Sheriff of the county of Essex.
 Col. Saltonstall was a firm loyalist, and uniformly opposed the measures taken in opposition to the royal government. He deemed the proceedings of the British Parliament extremely inexpedient, but he never doubted their right to tax their American Colonies. In the autumn of 1774, he fled to Boston, and soon afterwards embarked for England. He refused to enter the British service, lest he should be directed to act against his native country. The king, nevertheless, granted him a pension, and he never returned to America.

Col. Saltonstall resided upon the family estate in Haverhill, in a liberal and hospitable manner, but was never married. He was characterized by integrity, frankness, a benevolent disposition, polished manners, a superior understanding and knowledge of the world, which made him much beloved, and gave him great influence. He d. Oct. 6, 1785, at Kensington, Eng., where there is a monument erected to his memory. [See Sketch of Haverhill, by Hon. Leverett Saltonstall; Mass. Hist. 125. 122 6. NATHANIEL, b. Feb. 10, 1746; at the age of 10 years, upon the decease of his father, was received into the family of his uncle, Meddlecott Cooke, Esq., of Boston; grad. Harv. Coll. 1766; settled in Haverhill, where he devoted his life to the practice of medicine; M.M.S.S. His classical education and general intelligence, his eminent professional skill, and conscientious discharge of duty, his gentle manners and kind disposition, and his strong attachment to the liberty and independence of his country, acquired for him great respect in the community, and the affection and entire confidence of his patients. He was remarkable for his humane and assiduous attention to the poor, consoling them by his friendly, cheerful demeanor, and by the medicines and other necessities which he freely supplied, without the prospect of any pecuniary remuneration.

At a time when all his brothers and brothers-in-law adhered to those principles of loyalty in which they had been educated, Dr. Saltonstall remained true to those principles of civil liberty and humanity which he inherited from his worthy ancestor, Sir Richard Saltonstall, and his not less worthy son, Richard of Ipswich. This conscientious adherence to his principles separated him forever from those he most loved. It was to him a severe trial, and gave the strongest proof of his sincerity, and the strength of his principles. These had probably been much invigorated, by his training in the patriotic Cooke family.

Kemball and John Dix; W. by John Eddy; N. by Camb. line. It is not unlikely that Deborah lived with her uncle Michael, as he had no children, and her father was dead, and that this was a marriage portion, bestowed a few months after her marriage. SHAW.—[See Mitchell's Hist. of Bridgewater, p. 290.]

- p. 429. SHERMAN.—Samuel Sherman, an early settler of Boston, was not the Samuel Sherman who went from Watertown with the first settlers of Wethersfield. The latter, it is said, was a brother of Rev. John Sherman. It appears, also [Hist. of Glastenbury, p. 163], that he was a son of Joseph [? Edmund] Sherman, of Wethersfield, one of the original grantees of the Naubuc Farms, who, in 1641, gave this farm [144 acres] to his son Samuel. If these statements be correct, this Joseph was the father of Rev. John Sherman, of Watertown, and the father and his two sons may have gone to Wethersfield together. Samuel Sherman was one of those twenty Wethersfield men who purchased Stamford, Oct. 30, 1640; from Stamford he moved to Stratford, where he died, Oct. 1684. In 1672, he was the first of the subscribers to the fundamental articles for the plantation of Woodbury (Pomparagne), Conn. He m., about 1640, Sarah Mitchell, daughter of Matthew, of Wethersfield, afterwards of Stamford, sister of Rev. Jonathan Mitchell, of Cambridge. [For a Genealogy of his family and descendants, see Cothren's Hist. of Woodbury, p. 682; also, p. 633.] He was a magistrate, 1664, and, at a General Assembly, Oct. 13, 1664, the Court granted him "a farm of 250 acres of land upon New Haven River, whereof 50 acres may be meadow, so it be out of the bounds of the town."
- p. 430. [2.] For dr. of Roger and Grace Porter, read, dr. of William Palmer. [See Palmer, p. 865, and Porter, p. 910]. Capt. John Sherman was Rep. again in 1682. At a court, in June, 1654, Serg. Sherman was accepted as Ensign of Watertown company, and he did not attain the rank of Captain until 1680, or, perhaps, 1681, when he was about 67 years old. His residence or homestall (which passed to his son Joseph), consisting of two parcels of land, was bounded as follows, viz.: 30 acres, bounded N. by Strawberry Hill; E. by Capt. Bond and John Perry; S. by Joshua Whitney (what had been the homestall of his father, John Whitney), Nathan Fiske, and Henry Spring; W. by a lane or highway. Also, 14 acres, bounded E. by said lane; N. by Strawberry Hill; W. by Nathaniel Bright; S. by Nathan Fiske and Benjamin Wellington.

- [50.] Rev. John Sherman was dismissed May 29, 1635, from Watertown Church to Wethersfield. He resided in Wethersfield until after May 7, 1640, when the Court of Connecticut ordered that "Mr. John Sherman, of Wethersfield, be freed from watching until the Court take further order." His name is on the list of free planters of Milford, Conn., Nov. 20, 1639, and he was admitted to the Church of Milford, Nov. 8, 1640. At a General Court of New Haven, Nov. 24, 1640, he was one of the five persons chosen magistrates of the plantation [Colony of New Haven]. At a General Court, May 27, 1641, "John Sherman is, till the next Court of Election, to join with four others [the other magistrates, Wm. Fowler, Edmond Tappe, Zechariah Whitman, and John Astwood], in dividing of land, and to receive inhabitants." In Nov., 1643, his possessions were a house, lot $4\frac{1}{2}$ acres, meadow $9\frac{1}{2}$ A., and upland 20 A. He was invited to become a minister of Milford, but declined. He was dismissed from Milford Church, Nov. 8, 1647, which was probably about the date of his return and settlement in Watertown, where he had a child born less than three months afterwards. There is no record in Wethersfield or Milford of either of his marriages, or of the births of his children. The births of only 5 (not 7) of his children are recorded in Watertown, although several others were undoubtedly born there. [For an account of his eminent talents, learning, services, and Christian character, see Mather's Mag., book iii., part ii., chap. 29; also, Francis's Hist. of Watertown.]
- [55.] Rev. James Sherman was dismissed at Sudbury, May 22, 1705, and he d. Mar. 3, 1718. Same date (Mar. 11, 1708-9), James Sherman, of Salem, physician, and wife Mary, for £139, sold to John Holden and John Traine, Jr., both of Wat., a sawmill and 333 acres of land, in platt surveyed by David Fiske, May 5, 1694, by order of Court, passed Mar. 27, 1685, except 35 A. at South End, in possession of Benjamin Walker, and 77 A. in possession of Simeon Stoddard [above stated].
- [56.] Abiah Sherman was a witness, Sept. 24, 1683, then aged 19; therefore b. about 1664. He, then of Wat., was adm. freeman Mar. 22, 1689-90.

- p. 450. STEARNS.—(Sterne and Sternes, in the early records.) In the distribution of "the farms" or farm lands (situated in Weston), according to an order of the town, passed May 10, 1642, 259 acres were allotted Isaac Sterne, which was a greater lot than was assigned to any others, except John Barnard, who had 287 acres, and John Knight, who had 270 acres. The next greatest was 250 A. to John Bisco; next, 209 to Henry Goldstone; next, 158 to Simon Stone. The farms then granted were not surveyed and plotted out for the grantees until after the lapse of many years. Soon after the grant of the farms above mentioned, a list of possessions in Watertown was made out, wherein it appears that Isaac Sterne, in 1643, held 13 lots, amounting to 471 acres. One lot of 10 A., and another of 60 A., he had recently purchased of Thomas Ruck, and two of his lots were homesteads. By a deed, dated Jan. 23, 1645-6, he purchased of Thomas Philbrick 6 lots of land, amounting to 113 A.; which, added to his other possessions, would increase his number of lots to 19, and his number of acres to 584, which would be more lots and more acres than appears to have been then held by any other proprietor. It is supposed that he first settled near Mount Auburn, but that in a few years he moved to a lot on the east side of "the way to Concord," now called Lexington Street, on the west border of Pequusset Meadow. The homestall which he bought of Thomas Philbrick, situated on the N. W. corner of Belmont and Lexington Streets, he gave to his son Samuel, who settled there; and it continued to be occupied by his direct descendants, of the name of Stearns, until after the decease of his great great grandson, Capt. Phinehas Stearns, in 1798. Since then it has been held by his descendants of the name of White.

- p. 451. It is stated in the first paragraph, p. 451, that families of the name of Starn and Stern, in the Middle and Southern States, are of German origin. This may be in part correct, especially in Pennsylvania, but not entirely so as to the Carolinas, Georgia, and Tennessee. See [40], pp. 554, and 948.
- p. 453. [9.] John Stearns was town clerk of Billerica two years, and he was one of the Committee on the part of Billerica at the mutual agreement, in 1654, for the separation of Billerica [Shawshin] from Cambridge. In 1658, he was constable. For m. (3d), 1684, read, m. (3d), June 29, 1687.
- [10-3.] In 1675, Samuel Stearns [then aged 16], son of John, of Billerica, d., "was disabled," and the Court ordered that Lieut. French, who had married his mother, should have the charge of him. In April, 1722, the selectmen of Billerica presented a petition to the Court about Samuel Stearns, an impotent and discomposered person, who had been for some time taken care of by Capt. John Stearns and Isaac Stearns, his brethren, 8 acres of land in the centre of the town belonging to Samuel, being in the possession of Isaac, that they (the selectmen) may have the same [land] towards his support. Feb. 24, 1702-3, Mary Mixer gave to her son, Samuel Stearns, 24 poles of land, a share of the estate of her first husband, John Stearns, which had been divided in Oct., 1687.

[40.] Shubael Stearns and Rebeckah Lariby, m., Dec. 29, 1704, at Kittery. [County Record.] The marriage in the text is that recorded in Tolland records by Shubael himself, when he was town clerk. It is stated, on page 554, that Shubael Stearns [40], with his large family, left Connecticut, about 1750, on account of ecclesiastical difficulties, and that he settled in North Carolina. He and his family were Baptists, and some of them, especially his son Shubael, and son-in-law Daniel Marshall, have exercised a great influence upon the religious sentiments of the South. This son was at the time of their migration about 44 years old, and he has been called a Boanerges. He first halted at Opeckoa, in Berkely Co., Virginia, where he founded a church. He there met Rev. Daniel Marshall, who had married his youngest sister, Martha, and who went from Tolland on a mission among the Indians. From Opeckoa, they moved into Hampshire Co., 30 miles from Winchester, Va. Some of his friends, who had gone to N. Carolina, invited him to come to them; and he accepted, and settled at Sandy Creek, Guilford Co., N. Carolina, where he established what was called his New Light Church, which proved to be the prolific mother of many churches at the South. He d. there, Nov. 20, 1771. When the family moved to Virginia, the broad Virginia pronunciation was given to the name, and it has been very generally written and pronounced Starnes.

We have obtained a very imperfect genealogy of the family and descendants of Shubael Stearns, who have become widely dispersed and very numerous. Of the family of Shubael, Jr. [41], the very successful preacher, nothing has been learned. His brother Peter [43], had 5 children. [See p. 554.] Charles, the eldest, settled in Charleston, S. C., where he died, and was buried in the Cemetery of the Circular Church. His daughter Mary, m. Capt. Thomas Commander Russell, an officer in the Continental line in the Revolution. Hepzibah, a daughter of Isaac [44], m. — Welborn, and they are the ancestors of the large family of that name, in N. Carolina, Georgia, and Tennessee. Ebenezer [48], after he went to the South, m. (2d) Elizabeth Young, of Buncombe Co., N. Carolina. About the time of the Revolution, he moved into S. Carolina, and afterwards into Columbia Co., Ga., where he died. His children were, 1. Dr. Samuel Scott Starnes. 2. Daniel, who m. his cousin, Harriet E. Russell, a daughter of Capt. T. C. and Mary (Starnes) Russell, and he is the father of Judge Ebenezer Starnes, of Augusta, Ga. 3. John Starnes, m. — Ware, now living in Tennessee, an aged man. 4. Mary, m. Rhodam Falloss, Esq. 5. Ebenezer, m. — Harvey, and had son William, a physician, and other children.

Rev. Daniel Marshall, who married Martha [50], the youngest dr. of Shubael Stearns, was a son of Abraham Marshall, of Connecticut, and was very distinguished and influential as a preacher. His son Abraham, was also a very distinguished Baptist preacher of Georgia. [See Benedict's History of the Baptists, published in 1848, pp. 646, 683, 84, 85, 86, and 87.]

STICKLAND.—(Stickline, Strickland.) Serj. John Stickland, applied to be adm. freeman, Oct., 1630; was adm. May 18, 1631. He was probably one of that small company that was sent from Salem to Charlestown, in 1629, to take possession of Massachusetts Bay, and from Charlestown went very early, perhaps with Sir Richard Saltonstall, to Watertown. He was member of a jury of inquest Sept 18, 1630, and in May, 1631, of a trial jury. Sept. 4, 1632, he was fined £3, for refusing watch at the Captain's [Patrick] command. This fine was discharged by the Court, Sept. 1638. He sold his homestall in Wat., to John Whitney (who made it his permanent residence), and went with first settlers to plant Watertown (Wethersfield), Conn. He was dismissed from Wat. Church, May 29, 1635, "to forme a newe in Ch. Covennte, in this River of Conectecot." He was probably the ancestor of all the families of the name of Strickland, in New England and Long Island.

Rec., II., 128.] The Warners were not mentioned in his Will, but in that of his wife, Sarah. The tradition in the family is that Joan, the wife of Deacon Simon Stone, who embarked with him for America, was a daughter of William Clark. His last wife, Sarah [wid. of Richard Lumpkin], in her Will, made a bequest of £60 to her kinsman, John Warner, and John and Daniel Warner, were residuary legatees. It is not improbable, from anything yet discovered, that in her Will, for Warner, we should read Warren. John Warren, of Wat., had only two sons, John and Daniel, and each of them had a daughter Sarah, although neither their mother, nor either of their wives, bore that name. The homestall of Dea. Simon Stone, of 40 acres, was on the south of Mount Auburn Cemetery, and probably it embraced a part of the land, which was included in it, formerly called Stone's Woods [See Will of Dea. STOWELL.—[1.] Samuel Stowell was a clothier. May 23, 1738, he, wife, and 5 chil., viz., Josiah, Thomas, Cornelius, Mary, and Elizabeth, and Indian girl, Margaret, moved from Waltham to Wat., and resided (?) on the S. side of Charles River. [5.] Josiah Stowell, previous to Sept. 7, 1754, had become a member of Christ Church, in Boston. He moved from Boston, mid. of March, 1764. The next year he moved to Newton.

p. 592. [21.] Mar. 5, 1718–19, John Stowell, of Newton, for £100, bought of Obadiah Coolidge, of Newton, and John Sawin, and Daniel Bond, of Wat., a house, shop and $\frac{1}{2}$ acre of land, bounded E. by Boston Road; N. and W. by Stephen Cook; S. by wid. Ruth Child. [See Maddock [2.], p. 855.] John Stowell was Constable of Wat., in 1737.

[29 and 30.] These (David and Daniel), were probably identical.

STOWERS.—In 1644, John Stowers sold his first homestall in Wat., to Bartholomew Pierson. [See Pierson, p. 910.]

STRAIGHT.—[1.] For adm. freeman, read, took oath of fidelity. Capt. Thomas Straight was wit. in 1666, then aged 47, showing that he was b. about 1619.

[3.] Thomas Straight, Jr., m. Mary, dr. of John Shepard, of Concord. She was b. 1662, and was taken captive, 1676. [John Sheppard, d. Dec. 15, 1699, leaving 2 sons and 6 daughters.] He was a selectman 1704, 8, 12, 16, 30, and Treasurer, 1708.

p. 593. STRATTON.—[2.] Jan. 1, 1654–5, Thomas Adams and wife Mary, of Concord, sold to Samuel Stratton, of said town, the house lately called “the house of John Adams.”

[10.] John Stratton was selectman 1682 and 83.

[18.] Jan. 5, 1701–2, Mary, wid. of John Stratton, d., and her eldest son (John), appointed Edward Winn, of Wob. (who m. Mary, her eldest dr.), att’y to dispose of land in Boston and elsewhere.

[19.] Inventory of John Stratton and Bethsheba, his wife, dated Sept. 23, 1709, £46 6s. 6d. Her father, John Applin, administrator.

p. 594. [39 and 40.] Jan. 23, 1701, Edward Winn, of Wob., appointed guardian of Jonathan and Mercy Stratton.

[48.] John Stratton resided some time in Camb., and returned to Wat., with wife and 4 chil., in Mar., 1762.

[54.] June 29, 1740, Lydia, Jemima, and Kezia, drs. of Joseph and Sarah Stratton, o. c., in Waltham.

p. 594. [?] May 1, 1806, the widow’s third, of the estate of John Stratton, of Weston, was set off to his relict, Abigail, then wife of Seth Babcock; also to Wm. S. Moore, and to Abigail Stratton. Mary, wife of Bezabel Flagg, had a claim on the estate.

p. 596. STREETER.—Stephen Streeter, with wife Ursula, adm. f. c. Charlestown, Mar. 21, 1652. Caution by Wat., Jan. 3, 1692–3, against (settlement of) Stephen Streeter, and wife.

STURGEON.—Rev. Robert Sturgeon, was one of those who officiated some time in the church gathered by Rev. Mr. Angier. He had some strenuous opposers in the town, but was sustained by the church, or a large part of it, embracing many of the most respectable persons in the town. Jan. 11, 1721–2, sixty-three of the substantial citizens, signed an obligation to pay him a salary of £84 per annum. Aug. 28, 1722, caution by selectmen of Wat., against (settlement of) "Robert Sturgeon, who came from Woburn, Dec., 1721, being a stranger arrived from Ireland." Jan. 9, 1722-3, information was lodged against him, and he was obliged to give bonds (£100—Joshua Bigelow and Joseph Harrington, sureties,) for his appearance at court. At the Court, Mar. 12, 1722-3, the grand jury found an indictment against him, charging him with "preaching and administering the Holy Ordinances, and acting as a pastor to the pretended church in Watertown," and "continuing his wicked and malicious inclinations to overthrow, ruin, and subvert, as well the churches of said Watertown, as the other churches of this province, here happily and religiously established," &c. &c. He was found guilty, and fined £20 and costs; appealed, and gave as security Ebenezer and Thomas Wellington.*

SWAIN.—(Swaine, Swayne.) In the list of the possessions of Dea. Simon Stone, in 1642, are included 8 acres (part of his homestall), and 2½ acres of meadow, bought of "John Swaine." Is not this a misnomer for William Swain? William Swaine, then aged 50, embarked with Clement Chaplin, in the Elizabeth and Ann, in Ap., 1635, was adm. freeman, Mar. 3, 1635-6; Rep. of Wat., in May, 1636; and, about that time, with other Watertown people, he moved to Wethersfield, Conn., and was a member of the third court in the colony, held Sept. 1, 1636, and of the several succeeding ones. He, and Andrew Ward, of Watertown, were two of the commissioners appointed by the Gen. Court, Mar. 3, 1635-6, "to govern the people at Connecticut." He left Wethersfield about 1644, with others, to commence the plantation of Branford. These very early appointments to office imply a very good repute. He could have resided in Watertown only one year. See Colonial Records, I., p. 171.

SWIFT.—In 1636, William Swift mortgaged his house and lands in Wat., to John Haines, Att'y of Andrew Coleman, in England, to whom Swift had given his name as joint security in a matter where Roger Spring was the principal debtor. [See Colon. Records, Sept. 1, 1640.]

TABOR.—Philip Tabor, adm. freeman, May 14, 1634; was proprietor of 5 lots of land in Wat., which he sold to John Woolcot. His wife was, probably, Lydia, dr. of Mr. John Masters, of Watertown. [See Geneal. Reg., II., p. 180.] Philip Tabor, member of Watertown Church, but residing in Yarmouth, had son John, bap. in Y., Nov. 8, 1640.

TAINTER.—[1.] Joseph Tainter was selectman, 1657, 64, 65, 67, 72, 80.

* Soon after the decease of Mr. Angier, a controversy arose about a division of the town into two precincts, and about the location of the two meeting-houses. These subjects were referred to the General Court, who appointed a committee of 3 of the Council, and 4 of the House of Representatives; and they reported Dec. 3, 1720, the boundary between the two precincts (which was surveyed Dec. 13); and that the New or Western [Mr. Angier's] meeting-house, shall be removed within two years to the rising ground 20 rods west of Nathaniel Livermore, or a new one built; and that within 10 years, the Old or East meeting-house be removed, or a new one built on Schoolhouse Hill, Ap. 29, 1721; at a town-meeting, it was voted to remove the meeting-houses. Many of those best accommodated with the Angier meeting-house where it was, were not disposed to accept or comply with the report of the committee, and determined to maintain worship, where it had been done for about 25 years. For this purpose, they employed Mr. Sturgeon, as their pastor; and his concurrence in their purpose appears to have been the only ground of the heinous charges brought against him.

p. 651. WHITTEMORE.—(Whittamore, Whitamore, Whitmore, Wetmore, &c.) Mr. Farmer appears to consider these names as only a varied orthography of one name. Those, however, who have carefully investigated the subject, have concluded that there were three distinct names and families (Whittemore, Whitmore, and Wetmore), between whom, there has been discovered no early consanguinity. Gentlemen are now engaged in investigating the genealogy of the Whittemores and Whitmores, and will probably fully elucidate this subject. On pages 652 and 53, under one name (Whittemore), are mentioned families, who were distinct in their name and lineage; one portion of them being Whittemores, and the other Whitmores. We here insert so much as to correct the error referred to, with a little additional information.

APPENDIX I.

THE EARLY HISTORY OF WATERTOWN, MASSACHUSETTS; INCLUDING WALTHAM AND WESTON.

THE PLANTING OF WATERTOWN.

§ 1. IN March, 1628, the Plymouth Company sold to a company of six gentlemen, in England, the territory extending from a line three miles north of Merrimack River, to one three miles south of Charles River, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean. These grantees* soon afterwards conveyed to other gentlemen an interest in their purchase, and the number of joint proprietors soon became much enlarged. They assumed the title of "The Massachusetts Bay Company," and in a few days chose Matthew Cradock, a wealthy merchant of London, Governor, and Thomas Goffe, also a merchant of London, Deputy-Governor. A charter for their Company was not obtained from Charles I. until the next year, March 4, 1628-9; but in June, 1628, three months after making the purchase, a company of emigrants was sent over, who landed at Salem, and commenced the settlement of that ancient town.

§ 2. Captain John Endicott, one of the original purchasers of the Plymouth Company, was appointed Governor of this little colony; but it is to be observed that he was not made Governor of the Company, as the Governor and government thereof then remained in England, and gave him his instructions. Mr. Roger Conant, with three others, had fixed their abode at Salem previously to the arrival of Endicott and his company; but as Conant was not sent there by the Massachusetts Bay Company, his plantation there, with his very few companions, has not been allowed to give date to the town.

* These original grantees were Sir Henry Rosewell, Sir John Young, Thomas Southcott, John Humfrey, John Endicott, and Simon Whetcombe.

The patentees, to whom the charter of the colony of Massachusetts Bay was granted, were Sir Henry Rosewell, Sir John Young, Sir Richard Saltonstall, Thomas Southcott, John Humfrey, John Endicott, Simon Whetcombe, Isaac Johnson, Samuel Aldersey, John Ven, Matthew Cradock, George Harwood, Increase Nowell, Richard Pery, Richard Bellingham, Nathaniel Wright, Samuel Vassall, Theophilus Eaton, Thomas Goffe, Thomas Adams, John Browne, Samuel Browne, Thomas Hutchins, William Vassall, William Pinchion, and George Foxcroft.

The names of those who came to Massachusetts Bay are printed in italics. Mr. John Winthrop was neither an original grantee nor a patentee; and the first time his name appears in the records of the Company was September 19th, 1629, after it had been determined to transfer the government and patent to the colony.

§ 3. In July, 1629, Governor Cradock proposed to the Company to transfer the government of the plantation from England to the colony—"to those that shall inhabit there." A meeting of the Company was called together, August 28th, to discuss the question about such a removal. On the same day it was ordered that one committee be appointed to prepare arguments in favor of a removal, at the head of which was placed Sir Richard Saltonstall; and another committee to prepare arguments against it. On the next day, August 29th, after long debate, it was determined by a vote to be "the consent of the Company," that "the Government patent should be settled in New England." At a "Court" (meeting of the Company), on the 19th of October, it was determined that a Governor and assistants should be chosen for New England, and the next day, Mr. John Winthrop was chosen Governor, and Mr. John Humfrey, Deputy-Governor. At the last court of the Company held in England, March 23, 1629-30, on board the Arbella, Mr. Thomas Dudley was elected Deputy-Governor in place of Mr. Humfrey, who had concluded not to go to New England at that time.

§ 4. After determining to remove the government of the Company to the colony, and electing a Governor and assistants with that view, active preparations were made for a large emigration the ensuing year. Seventeen emigrant ships left England in the year 1630, of which fourteen sailed before the first of June. The first ship, the Lyon, sailed in February, and arrived in Salem in May, where the passengers probably remained, awaiting the arrival of their expected companions, with the Governor and assistants. The next ship, the Mary and John, carrying the Dorchester company, who first planted Dorchester, sailed from Plymouth on the 20th of March, and arrived at Nantasket, Sunday, May 30th, fourteen days before the arrival of the Governor. On the 8th of April, four ships, the Arbella, the Jewell, the Ambrose, and the Talbot, sailed from the Isle of Wight, bringing the Governor, Deputy-Governor, several, if not all, of the assistants, Rev. George Phillips, Rev. John Wilson, and others, who afterwards held prominent places in the early history of the colony. The Arbella arrived at Salem, June 12th, the Jewell, June 13th, the Ambrose, June 18th, and the Talbot, July 2d.

§ 5. The passengers who arrived in these ships were not satisfied with Salem, as possessing the desirable advantages for a permanent settlement, and soon after landing, Governor Winthrop and Sir R. Saltonstall, with others, went, on the 17th of June, to reconnoitre the country about the Bay, for the purpose of selecting a place for settlement. Having selected the peninsula of Charlestown for that purpose, they returned to Salem, and, as soon and as fast as preparations could be made for their accommodation, the passengers of the fleet proceeded from Salem to Charlestown.

§ 6. In the Arbella came over the families of Sir R. Saltonstall, Rev. George Phillips, and probably not less than a dozen other families, who were among the first settlers of Watertown. In the addenda to Winthrop's Journal, Vol. II. p. 340, is the copy of a catalogue of names, in the handwriting of Governor Winthrop, which the editor, Mr. Savage, supposed to be a list of persons designing to come over, and that the first list contained the intended passengers for one of the ships. This must have been the Arbella, as on that list are the names of Mr. Winthrop, Sir Richard, and others, who are known to have come in this ship. On that list are also the names of fifteen very early Watertown families.

§ 7. Soon after the removal of the emigrants from Salem to Charlestown, a large portion of them, with Sir Richard Saltonstall as their leader, accompanied by Rev. George Phillips as their pastor, proceeded about four miles up Charles River and commenced a settlement, at first sometimes called Sir Richard Saltonstall's plantation, but soon after, by the Court, named Watertown. It is difficult to determine the date of the removal from Salem to Charlestown, as it was probably a gradual process; nor is the exact date known, when Sir Richard and his followers left the latter place for Watertown. But their stay in Charlestown must have been short; for only forty-eight days elapsed after the landing of Sir Richard at Salem, before Watertown affairs had become sufficiently matured to organize a church, when forty men, with Sir Richard at the head, signed the covenant.

§ 8. It seems clear that only three towns in the colony can claim priority of settlement over Watertown. The first, or oldest, is Salem, settled in 1628. The second is Charlestown, which was first settled by a feeble colony of about a dozen men, sent thither from Salem about the last of June, 1629, by Governor Endicott, by order of the Company, in order to forestall Mr. Oldham in taking possession of that part of the Bay, which his patent covered. The third was Dorchester, which was planted by the Dorchester men, who arrived at Nantasket in the Mary and John, May 30, 1630. The fourth town was Watertown, begun by Sir Richard Saltonstall probably before the middle of July. On the day of the landing of the passengers of the Mary and John at Nantasket (Sunday, May 30th), ten of their number, embracing some of their chief personages, obtained a boat and proceeded first to Charlestown, and thence up Charles River about five miles, and landed at a place in Watertown, long afterwards known as "Dorchester Field," on or near which is now built the U. S. Arsenal. As they landed in planting time, it is supposed that they planted crops, which they returned to gather, and hence the name, Dorchester Field. They had, however, staid there "not many days," when they were required to join their companions, who had in the meantime moved from Nantasket to Matapan, soon after named Dorchester. If this short residence and planting, by the Dorchester men, were deemed a settlement, Watertown might claim priority over Dorchester; but it has never been so considered.

§ 9. That a large number of settlers accompanied Sir Richard to Watertown, or very soon followed him, is evident from the following considerations: In the first place, "about forty men" signed the covenant on the 30th of July. It is known that some of them, probably most of them, had families. The number of female members is not stated. There is good reason to believe that others, some of them having large families, did not then sign the covenant, not being entitled to church membership. In the next place, on the 30th of November, only four months later, the Court of Assistants passed an order to collect of the several plantations, except Salem and Dorchester, £60, for the maintenance of the two ministers; and the portion of the several towns was as follows: Boston, £20; Watertown, £20; Charlestown, £10; Roxbury, £6; Medford, £3; Winnesmet, £1. When it is considered that, at this time, most of the office-holders and men of large estates, except Sir Richard, belonged to Boston and Charlestown, and that assessments were made according to estates or possessions, it is not unreasonable to suppose that the population of Watertown was then equal to that of Boston and Charlestown. It is also to be observed that one-half of that whole assessment was assigned to Mr. Phillips, the minister of Watertown.

§ 10. Until the end of the first year (1630), all the plantations and people in the colony, excepting Salem and Dorchester, appear to have been regarded as two churches or congregations, with their two pastors, between whom the assessment for pastoral maintenance was to be equally divided. One of them was the church organized in Charlestown, embracing Boston, and probably the few people of Roxbury, Medford, and Winnesmet. Here Governor Winthrop engaged to provide accommodation for the minister, Mr. Wilson. The other church was that organized in Watertown, where Sir Richard engaged to provide for the minister, Mr. Phillips.

THE ORGANIZATION AND AGE OF THE CHURCH.

§ 11. There is a question respecting dates, in which Watertown is interested, that has engaged the earnest attention of several inquirers. It relates to the chronology of the very early churches of Massachusetts Bay, and writers have differed in their conclusions. Dr. Holmes [Mass. Hist. Coll., 1st ser. vii., p. 15] places them in the following order of dates: 1, Salem; 2, Charlestown; 3, Dorchester; 4, Roxbury; 5, Lynn; 6, Watertown. Captain Edward Johnson makes Boston church (organized in Charlestown) the fourth, and Watertown the seventh church. Rev. Samuel Sewall [Am. Quar. Reg. xi., p. 48] considers Charlestown the third church, yet he afterwards presents reasons for considering the churches organized at Charlestown and Watertown coeval. Dr. Kendall, after a lucid collation of historical authorities, says, "If there be no mistake in the historical facts now adduced, it would seem that Watertown church had a prior existence to the one at Charlestown, and was second only to that of Salem, in Massachusetts Bay." [Centennial Discourse, p. 21.] At the end of this discourse is a very elaborate note by "A. H." (Dr. Holmes), in which he attempts to invalidate Dr. Kendall's conclusions, chiefly by arguing from the usages of the churches, but overlooking an important element in the argument.

§ 12. Salem church may, without doubt, claim the priority. The first church of Dorchester was the second, or next oldest. The people who collected together at Plymouth, England, in order to embark in the Mary and John, "because they designed to live together after they should arrive here, met together in the New Hospital in Plymouth, and associated into church fellowship, and chose Mr. Maverick and Mr. Warham to be their ministers." This was probably done in the early part of March, 1630, as the Mary and John sailed on the 20th of that month. In 1636, this church, or a large part of it, with its church organization, migrated from Dorchester to Windsor, Connecticut, and of course ceased to be a church of Massachusetts Bay. After this removal, the remnant of the church left in Dorchester, with Mr. Richard Mather and the company that came over with him, united and organized another church, their covenant being dated August 23, 1636. From that time this has been the oldest church in Dorchester; but it must concede the priority to several other churches.

§ 13. Since that migration to Windsor, Watertown has a fair claim to rank as the second church of the colony. The only one that has a plausible claim to be even coeval, is the first church of Boston, originally organized in Charlestown.

§ 14. Mather says, of the first settlers of Watertown, "they resolved that they would combine into church fellowship as their first work." Upon the recommendation of the Governor, July 30, 1630, was observed as a day of fasting and prayer by the people both of Watertown and Charlestown. This religious observance was proposed on account of the great sickness and mortality then prevailing in Charlestown; and other churches, including that of Plymouth, were requested to observe the same day in the same manner. There is no evidence that Watertown was then afflicted in the same manner. The sufferings of the people of Charlestown were attributed to the deficiency of good water, with which Watertown was abundantly supplied, and for the sake of which they are said to have selected the site for their settlement. While the Watertown people sympathized with their Christian neighbors in their afflictions, and prayed for their relief, we may suppose that they were not so much engrossed therewith as to preclude the necessary attention to what they had resolved to do "as their first work." After the close of these religious exercises in Watertown, Mather says, "About forty men, whereof the first was that excellent knight, Sir Richard Saltonstall, then subscribed this instrument, in order unto their coalescence into a church estate;" and he inserts the covenant, in extenso, "because it was one of the first ecclesiastical transactions of this nature managed in the colony.

But in after time, they that joined unto the church [evidently implying that he regarded it as a duly organized church from the date of that covenant] subscribed a form of covenant somewhat altered," [implying that the signing of that first covenant was entering into church fellowship]. Again, Mather says, "A church of believers being thus gathered at Watertown, this reverend man [Mr. Phillips] continued for divers years among them," &c., evidently considering the "ecclesiastical transaction" on the 30th of July, as "the gathering and ordering of the church," and the subsequent services of Mr. Phillips, as a continuance to fulfil the duties arising from the relation then formed.

§ 15. The writer of the elaborate note at the end of Dr. Kendall's discourse, already referred to, attempts to show from the usages of the early churches of New England, that the signing of that covenant, on the 30th of July, "was but a preparatory measure," only the first step taken towards the organization of a church, a sort of extemporaneous, unpremeditated affair. But, in the first place, the length and elaborate preparation of the covenant, and the number of men who signed it on that occasion, render this supposition improbable. In the next place, we find no reference in any work to any additional proceedings in organizing the church; and it is extremely improbable that Mather, in making his "more particular recital" of the "gathering and ordering of the church," would have said so much about a mere "preliminary measure," and made no reference to the more important consummation thereof, if any occurred. In the third place, this reasoning from the usages of other churches seems to be materially invalidated, if not entirely set aside, by a sentence in Mather, which the writer of the note has entirely overlooked; for it shows that Mr. Phillips and his people did not conform to those usages, or rather that others did not follow their example. "Mr. Phillips being better acquainted with the true church discipline [Congregationalism] than most of the ministers that came with him into the country, their proceedings [in Watertown] about the gathering and ordering of their church were methodical enough, though not made in all things a pattern for all the rest." Mr. Phillips was the first to assert and adopt Independency or Congregationalism in New England, and Hubbard says that, for some time, he "was without any to stand by him," and that, on that account, "he met with much opposition from some of the magistrates." In noticing the ordination of Mr. Knowles, as colleague of Mr. Phillips, December 9, 1649, Governor Winthrop says, "The church of Watertown [not a council of ministers] ordained Mr. Knowles, * * * * differing from the practice of other churches, as also they did in their privacy, not giving notice thereof to the neighboring churches, nor to the magistrates, as the common practice was." These statements elucidate the organization of the church in Watertown, and they show what validity is to be attached to Dr. Holmes's argument from the usages of other churches. [See pp. †123 and 873.]

§ 16. The day of fasting and prayer in Charlestown (July 30) was observed in the midst of a great affliction, on account of which the fast was especially recommended; and it is scarcely supposable that the people were then in circumstances to attend deliberately and so promptly to their ecclesiastical interests, even if they had entertained the same notions of church discipline and order as did Mr. Phillips, Sir Richard Saltonstall, and their associates. Accordingly, at the close of the religious services on that day, only four men signed a covenant, which was brief, compared with that of Watertown. Two days afterwards, five others signed the covenant, and this number was increased by repeated accessions until the 27th of August, when, says Winthrop, "We of the congregation kept a fast and chose Mr. Wilson, our teacher, and Mr. Noel an elder, and Mr. Gager and Mr. Aspinwall, deacons." This gives clearly the date of this church, which soon afterwards became the first church of Boston. That this was, in early times, and for a long time, regarded as the date of the organization of the church, is clearly shown by the following extract from the diary of the Rev. Dr. Joseph Sewall, of Boston: "1730, August 27, I preach'd the Lecture from 2 Pet. 3, 15, 'Account that the longsuffering of our Lord is salvy'."

—N.B. It is y^r day 100 years since the first Church in y^s town was gather'd at Charlestown."

§ 17. If the foregoing observations do not amount to a demonstration, there seems to remain little or no doubt but that Watertown was the first church in New England, that distinctly adopted the Congregational order; that it may justly claim priority over the first church of Boston, and, since the migration from Dorchester to Windsor, is entitled to rank as the second church of Massachusetts Bay.

RELATIVE EARLY POPULATION AND WEALTH.

§ 18. The accompanying table, [p. 983] besides presenting the amount of taxes levied for the uses of the Colony, shows the relative estimated wealth or valuation of the very early towns for several years. It will also aid in forming an idea of their respective populations. But assessments alone will not give the numbers correctly, as taxes had respect to estates and not to the number of persons. At the first meeting of the deputies, ever held in the colony (May 4, 1634), the Court ordered that, "in all rates and public charges the towns shall have respect to levy every man according to his estate, and with consideration of all other his abilities whatsoever, and not according to the number of persons." As Watertown was neither a shire town, nor a place for much trade (not being a shipping-port, although accessible by small vessels), it did not offer to official men and capitalists such attractions for settlement, as did some other towns. After the departure of Sir Richard Saltonstall, there was no Assistant or Magistrate, resident of Watertown, until 1686; and wills and inventories show that there were in Watertown, no large estates, such as are usually accumulated by trade. The people being entirely devoted to agriculture, with a few exceptions, where a mechanical trade was carried on in the intervals of farming, property was more equally distributed than among people who could enter into commercial pursuits. For eighty years after the first settlement, there was not more than one or two inventories that exceeded £700. An inspection of the table, with these considerations in view, shows almost to a certainty, that, for the first four years, Watertown was the most populous town in the Colony, and it is not improbable that it continued so for fifteen or twenty years. In 1645, the levy on Boston was, to that of Watertown, as 100 to 41½. But Boston was then the residence of the Governor and of the principal merchants; the seat of government and the emporium of trade, and of course the focus of wealth. Johnson, in 1651, [Wond. Work. Prov.] in giving some brief statistics of the very early towns, gives no statistics of Boston, as to the number of houses, or families, or of the acres under tillage. It was "the centre town and metropolis," "the mart of the land." But he calls Watertown "this great town consisting of one hundred and sixty families;" with "almost two hundred and fifty souls in church fellowship;" with "land in tillage near upon one thousand eight hundred acres;" "their herd of kine and cattle of that kind, about four hundred and fifty, with some store of sheep and goats." His account of the other towns shows that Watertown, in most, if not in all of those particulars, outranked all the other towns, except Boston, of which, as just stated, he has given no statistics.

Notes to the preceding Table.

‡ 20. The first five taxes were for specific objects; the others for general uses.

¹ In this tax, Mr. Theophilus Eaton was individually taxed £20 without giving his residence. It was a 1-75th of the tax of the whole colony. His name is on a levy of the preceding November, but not the sum given.

² The name of Wessagusset was changed to Weymouth, September 2, 1635.

³ Natasket, or Nantasket was taxed only twice. The following order implies that the plantation was then broken up. In June, 1641, the Court ordered that a plantation be forthwith set up at Nantasket "for the furthering of fishing." The name was changed to Hull, May 29, 1644.

⁴ Winesmet was annexed to Boston, September 3, 1634, and ceased to be taxed separately.

⁵ Saugus and Marble Harbor were taxed together in 1632. "It was proved to the Court, March 3, 1635-6, that Marbleneck belongs to Salem," and it was separated from Salem and incorporated as a town, May 2, 1649. The name Saugus, was changed to Lynn, November 20, 1637.

⁶ The name New Town was changed to that of Cambridge, May 2, 1638.

⁷ A plantation was begun at Agawam as early as September, 1630, but was abandoned by order of the Court. A permanent settlement was made there in the spring of 1633, and on the 5th of August, 1634, the Court gave it the name of Ipswich.

⁸ May 6, 1635, the Court allowed Wessacumcon to be a plantation, and at the same time named it Newbury.

⁹ The name Bare Cove, was changed to Hingham, September 2, 1635.

¹⁰ The order for planting Dedham was passed by the Court, September 3, 1635, and by an order passed September 8, 1636, the plantation was named Dedham, and exempted from public charges for three years from the first of May next.

¹² The order for making a plantation at Musketaquid, was passed September 3, 1635, and named Concord; and it was exempted from all public charges, except trainings, for three years.

¹³ March 3, 1635-6, the Court ordered a plantation to be settled at Winnacunnet; on the 22d of May, 1639, gave it the powers and privileges of a town, and the next September, 4th, gave it the name of Hampton.

¹⁴ At this Court (June, 1642), the following towns were taxed for the first time "for public uses," viz.: Braintree, £14; Rowley, £15; Sudbury, £15; Gloucester, £5.10.

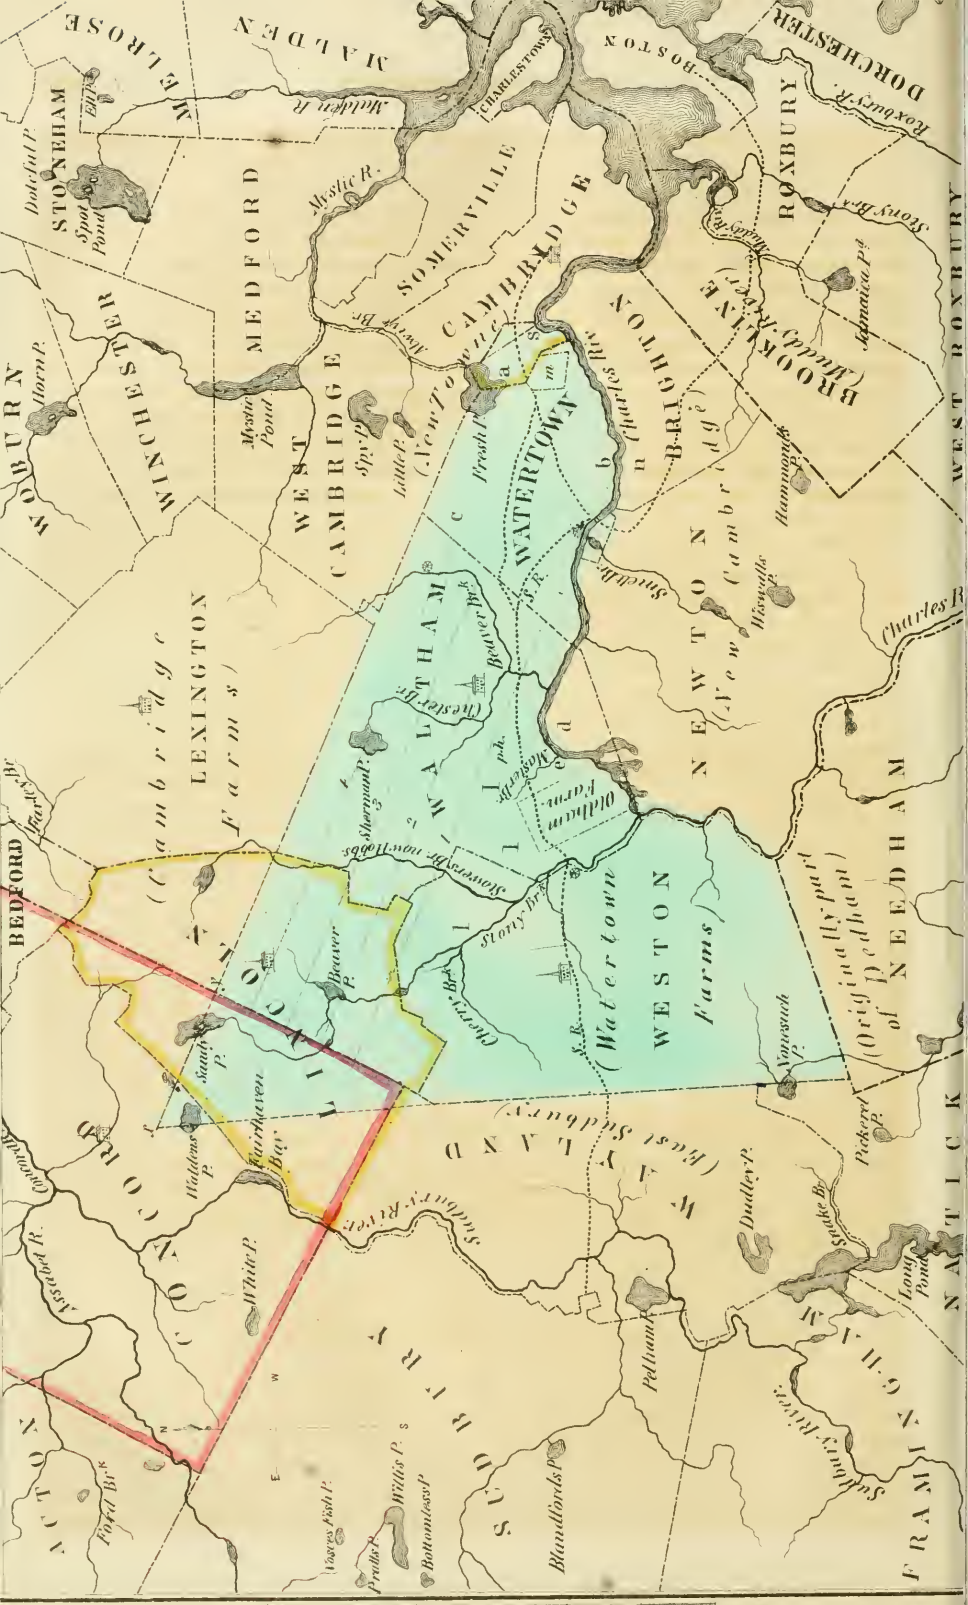

¹⁵ At this Court (May, 1645), Woburn was taxed for the first time £7, and Wenham £3.10. "for public uses."

THE NAME OF THE TOWN.

§ 21. The Indian name of Watertown has been usually printed, Pigsqusset. It is sometimes found written Pigs go suck. The correct orthography is probably Pequsset, as it is usually and very often found so written in the early town records. It is sometimes written Peguusset. There was a tract of land on the north border of the town, a very little distance east of Lexington Street, then called Concord Road, which is often mentioned in deeds, and in lists of possessions, called Pequsset Meadow or Pequsset Common, and for many years used as a cow-common. There was a way leading to it, sometimes called Pequsset Road, and likewise a Pequsset Hill. The extent of the meadow, which bore this name, has not been ascertained. [See Section 81.]

§ 22. There has been some question as to the origin of the present name, Watertown. It has been asserted or surmised, on what authority I know not, that it was named for Waterton, a village in Yorkshire, which name Sir Richard Saltonstall wished to perpetuate. This seems to be favored by the circumstance that nearly all the very early plantations in that vicinity were named for towns in England; yet very little credit is to be attached to it. We find no evidence that there ever was a place of that name in Yorkshire. A daughter of Sir Richard Saltonstall, evidently a well-educated lady, in writing to her brother Samuel, in 1644, directs it to Watertowne. If it had been named for a Waterton in England, in compliance with the wishes of her father, it is extremely likely that she would have known it, and retained the correct orthography. [See Note, p. 916.]

§ 23. It is much more probable that the ancient and generally received tradition is correct—that it was so named because it was so well watered. Johnson [Wond. Work. Prov., chap. 28], calls Watertown “a fruitful plot of large extent, watered with many pleasant springs, and rivulets, running like rivers throughout her body.” After describing the inconvenience and sufferings encountered at Charlestown for the want of good water, Prince [Annals, p. 244] says of the settlers of Watertown, “some travel up into the main till they come to a place well watered, whither Sir R. Saltonstall, with Mr. Phillips and others went, and settled a plantation and called it Watertown.” Hubbard does not deem the being well watered, a sufficient reason for so naming it, “most of the other plantations being well watered, though none of them planted on so large a fresh stream as this was.” Perhaps some plantations, afterwards settled, were as well watered, but at the time Watertown received its name, no other plantation could, in this respect, be compared with it. [See Sections 120–130.]

At a Court of Assistants, September, 7, 1630, the second that was held after their arrival in the Colony, it was ordered that “the towne vpon Charles Ryver shall be called Waterton.” In the margin of this record, it is written, “Water Toune.”

MAP.

The accompanying map is intended to show the relation of Watertown to the surrounding town; its original boundaries and extent, as determined by the Court; the overlapping of the grants made to Watertown and Concord, and the several excisions, by which Watertown became reduced to its present small dimensions. Also some of its most important localities. S. the homestall of Sir Richard Saltonstall, and afterwards of his son Samuel. a. The portion of territory taken from Watertown and annexed to Cambridge in 1754; b. Dorchester Field; c. Pequusset Meadow or Common; d. the portion of Newton (about six hundred acres) annexed to Waltham in 1849. Nearly all of this was included in the ancient Fuller Farm, and constituted about two-thirds of it; e. Mount Feake; m. Mount Auburn Cemetery; l. l. l. “lieu of Township” lands; n. Nonantum Hill. P. II. Prospect Hill; s. r. Sudbury Road; x. the N. W. corner of Watertown, according to the original order of Court; y. the corners of Watertown and Cambridge (Lex.) contiguous to Concord. The lines marked 1, 2, 3, 4, denote the Squadron lines, or the dividing lines of the four Great Dividends. This mark [*] denotes the sites of the three ancient mills, on Charles River at the bridge, on Beaver Brook, and on Stony Brook. The village or the centre of a town is denoted by the figure of a meeting-house. The four squadron lines on the map, appear to begin at the eastern boundary of Waltham, and they did so very nearly; but the exact line has not been ascertained in its whole extent. [See Sect. 86.]

TERRITORY AND BOUNDARIES.

§ 24. Most of the ships that came to this colony in 1630, landed their passengers at Salem, whence they proceeded to Charlestown. Other ships came with their passengers directly to Charlestown, and this place became the rendezvous of all the immigrants of that year, except those who came in the Mary and John. From Charlestown, this concourse of people dispersed to the several sites, where plantations were commenced in that year. These were Watertown, Boston, Roxbury,

Medford, Lynn, and Winesemet. Watertown is here placed first, because the first and the most numerous body of planters that left Charlestown that year went thither. At the first planting of those towns they probably had no definite limits, except where they had natural boundaries. The settlers selected inviting spots, on or near the margin of the bay, or on navigable water, which were separated from each other, either by natural boundaries or by intervening spaces, then deemed sufficiently broad to avoid future collision or encroachment. The territory of each plantation extended back into the wilderness in different directions from the Bay like radii, in some instances indefinitely, until limits were afterwards assigned to them by the General Court. Numerous towns, since that time, have been incorporated within the territory originally belonging to those few first settled towns.

§ 25. The site selected by Sir Richard Saltonstall and his companions was more remote from the Bay than either of the other plantations begun that year, and Watertown was the first of the inland towns. It was, however, upon the tide-water of Charles River, which was there navigable for only small vessels; but the settlement very soon, if not at first, extended above tide-water. As the company of planters who first went there was large, and as they were not compacted into a village or dense population, like other early plantations, they must have been scattered over a very considerable extent of territory. In many of the plantations the settlers were required to reside within half a mile or a shorter distance from the meeting-house, for the sake of mutual defence against the Indians. But we have not discovered any such order or compact in respect to Watertown.

§ 26. The first planters went to Watertown before any attempt was made to settle "The New Town" (Cambridge), and the territories of Watertown and Charlestown, although not yet defined or specially granted, seem at first to have been contiguous, and to have been regarded as embracing all that territory which now constitutes Cambridge, West Cambridge, and Lexington. This is evident, or at least is rendered extremely probable, by the language of both Winthrop and Johnson.

§ 27. In December, 1630, the Governor and assistants had repeated meetings, at different places, in order to select a site for a fortified town, and for the capital of the colony. At their last meeting, December 21, Governor Winthrop says, "We met again at Watertown, and there, upon view of a place a mile beneath the town, [i. e. the central point, or residence of the chief persons], all agreed it a fit place for a fortified town." The homestall of Sir Richard was situated on Charles River within that strip of territory which was taken from Watertown and annexed to Cambridge in 1754, and was about a mile from the site of Harvard College. Wood [New England's Prospect], whose distances are not exact, says Watertown was about half a mile westward from Newtown, and "this town" (the central or chief point of Watertown) was within half a mile of the Great Pond. Winthrop [i. p. 73] says, Watertown wear was "three miles above the town." Between the homestall of Sir Richard and the New Town [Camb.] line, there was only one small intervening lot (13 acres, belonging to Thomas Brigham), and this homestall was bounded on the north-west by a lot of Mr. Phillips, supposed to be the one upon which Sir Richard engaged (August 23, 1630) to build a house for Mr. Phillips. These lots of Sir Richard and Mr. Phillips were about three miles below the wear, half a mile south of Fresh Pond, and one mile from Newtown; and that point, or the immediate neighborhood, was undoubtedly what was meant by "the town."

§ 28. The Newtown line being run thus near to Sir Richard's residence, it is highly probable that a considerable number of his companions were found to have settled within the limits of Newtown. This view is corroborated by Johnson [Wonder-Working Prov. chap. 28], who says, "They [the first settlers of Newtown] chose a place situate on Charles River, between Charlestown and Watertown, where they erected a town, called Newtown, and now named Cambridge, being in form like a list cut off from the broadcloth of the aforenamed towns." We may infer from this language of Johnson, that Newtown, at first, possessed no land on the south side of Charles River. We may infer it also from the language of an order passed by the Court of Assistants, June 5, 1632, granting 200 acres to Thomas Dudley, "on the west side of Charles River, over against [not in] the New Town." It is probable that, before the planting of Newtown, all the land between Charles River and Roxbury, and extending from Back Bay to the southwest, was considered as belonging to Boston and Watertown, with perhaps an undefined line between them. What portions of this belonged to these two towns respectively has not been ascertained, but probably chiefly to Boston. We have not discovered any evidence that any land on the south side of the river belonged to Newtown before 1634; but it is very probable.

§ 29. The population of Newtown had increased so rapidly, chiefly by the accession of Mr. Hooker and his followers in 1633, that, in May, 1634, scarcely three years from their beginning, they "complained of straitness for want of land, especially meadow," and asked leave of the Court to look out for further enlargement and removal, which was granted. At the next Court, held September 4th, they asked leave to remove to Connecticut; and the question of "the removal of Newtown" was "the main business" of this Court, "was debated divers days," and caused the adjourning of the Court [Winthrop, i. p. 140]. The first and main argument for removal was "their want of accommodation for their cattle," and their inability to "receive any more of their friends to help them." One answer to this was, that "they might be accommodated with enlargement, which other towns offered." Upon putting the question of removal to Connecticut, a majority of the deputies (15 to 10) were in favor of assenting to it, but a large majority of the assistants voted against it. Upon this disagreement in the votes of the two bodies "grew a great difference between the Governor and assistants and the deputies." But after keeping "a day of humiliation," and a sermon by Mr. Cotton, "the congregation of Newtown came and accepted of such enlargement as had formerly been offered by Boston and Watertown."

§ 30. At what time this offer was made has not been ascertained, but probably at the same time, if not before, Newtown people asked permission of the Court "to remove their habitations, or to have an addition to what they already have;" for at the same Court, May, 1634, it was ordered that "Boston shall have convenient enlargement at Mount Walliston," probably as a compensation for the land which they offered to Newtown. A committee, of which Mr. John Oldham, of Watertown, was chairman, was appointed to "set out" and to "draw a plot" of this grant at Mount Walliston. Soon afterwards (September, 1634) Winesemet was annexed to Boston. The land offered by Boston is designated as "the ground about Muddy River." Whether it embraced only what has been since known as Muddy River (Brookline), or embraced also a part or the whole of Brighton, the records do not show. The latter is not improbable. The land offered by Watertown was "the meadow on this side Watertown wear, containing about thirty acres, be the same more or less and now used by the inhabitants of Newtown." On September 25, 1634, the Court confirmed these offered lands to Newtown, with the proviso, "that if Mr. Hooker and the congregation now settled here shall remove hence, that then the aforesaid meadow shall return to Watertown, and the ground at Muddy River to Boston." In 1636, Mr. Hooker and his congregation moved to Hartford, and of course the proviso would take effect, and the grant of the offered lands be void. The land about Muddy River reverted to Boston, and was long afterwards incorporated and named Brookline; but Watertown did not recover her meadow.

§ 31. Watertown and Newtown, soon after the offered lands were confirmed to the latter, differed about their boundaries, and on March 4, 1634-5, the Court referred "the difference concerning all bounds of land between them" to a committee "to determine the same before the next Court of Assistants." This committee reported on the 7th of April, and their determination was such as to prevent the reversion to Watertown of the meadow, according to the aforesaid proviso, upon the migration of

Mr. Hooker and his company, which occurred the next year. The following is their report:—

“It is agreed by us, whose names are here underwritten, that the bounds between Watertown and Newtown shall stand as they are already from Charles River to the great Fresh Pond; and from the tree marked by Watertown and Newtown on the southeast side of the pond, over the pond, to a white poplar tree on the northwest side of the pond, and from that tree up into the country northwest-by-west, upon a straight line by a meridian compass; and further, that Watertown shall have one hundred rods in length above the weare, and one hundred rods beneath the weare in length, and threescore rods in breadth from the river on the south side thereof, and all the rest of the ground on that side the river to lye to Newtown.

[Signed]

“WILLIAM COLBRAN,
“ABRAHAM PALMER.”

§ 32. The foregoing were the only definite boundaries of Watertown at that time, which was before the settlement of either Concord or Dedham. Orders for the settlement of both these towns adjoining Watertown on the northwest and southwest, were passed September 3, 1635; but the order for “setting out the bounds between Watertown and Concord, and between Watertown and Dedham” was not passed until May 2, 1638. The western limit of Watertown had previously (March 2, 1635-6) been fixed by an order that “the bounds of Watertown shall run eight miles into the country from their meeting-house, within the lines already set out” [on the north and south, in the Report of the Committee above inserted]. On the 8th of June, 1638, the Court ordered, “for the final end of all difference between Watertown, Concord, and Dedham, that Watertown eight miles shall be extended upon the line between them [Watertown] and Cambridge, so far as Concord bounds give leave; and that their [Watertown] bounds by the river shall run eight miles into the country in a straight line, as also the river doth for the most part run, and so to take in all the land of that [north] side of the river, which will not fall into the square five miles granted to Dedham; and that the neck on the same [north or left] side of the river near to Dedham town, shall be cast into the said square of five miles to make up the same, so as the said square is to be accounted by quantity and not by situation, because the place will not admit of it;* and that their [Watertown’s] eight miles from Watertown meeting-house shall be by a line between both the other [north and south] lines.”

§ 33. The controversy between Watertown and Concord related to conflicting claims to grants of land made by the General Court. The report of the committee already inserted, made in April, 1635, assigned to Watertown, as her northern

* In May, 1638, the General Court granted to the town of Roxbury 4000 acres of land, “because Dedham doth shorten them” (by a boundary line between Dedham and Roxbury, reported by committee and adopted at this Court). The order for this grant was repeated in May, 1640, but was not immediately carried into effect. In October, 1643, the Court appointed a committee “to lay out the land of Roxbury men,”—“if it be there to be had near Dedham and Watertown,” but “Dedham hath three weeks further time granted them to settle their bounds; and then Roxbury men” to have their four thousand acres “between Watertown, Sudbury, and Dedham.” (Col. Records and Hist. Rox., p. 69, &c.) This seems to be that tract of land, or a part of it, which was granted by Dedham to the Natick Indians, about 1650, in exchange for Deerfield; and it seems probable that, at the end of the three weeks, when Dedham had “set her bounds,” space was not left for the Roxbury people. Watertown and Dedham were contiguous, until the incorporation of Needham in 1711, only a short time before Weston was set off from Watertown and incorporated.

The Natick Indians are said to have been gathered together from dispersed and wandering life, into a civil society by the Rev. John Elliot, about 1650; their town was laid out the next year, and their settlement was recognized as a district, as early as 1652. Natick was incorporated as an English District, in 1762, and incorporated as a town in 1781. [See Bigelow’s Hist. of Natick, p. 21.]

boundary a line beginning at Fresh Pond, and running straight W. N. W. into the country indefinitely, that is, until the western boundary of Watertown should be determined. These lines continued (the N. and W. boundaries of Watertown) would meet within the present limits of Concord, near Walden Pond, including most of that Pond, half of Sandy Pond, and much the largest part of Lincoln. About six months after the northern or northeastern boundary of Watertown was thus reported and determined, but before it had been surveyed and marked, Concord was granted by the General Court, and their "six myles of land square" was so located as to overlap the land already granted to Watertown. As the land was first surveyed and settled by Concord people, they were allowed to retain it, notwithstanding the prior title of Watertown.

§ 34. It has just been stated that the General Court assigned the western limits of Watertown in March, 1636. It does not appear from the Court records, at what time the line was first surveyed; but in May, 1651, commissioners (John Sherman, in behalf of Watertown, and Walter Haynes, Edmund Rice, Edmund Goodenow, Thomas Noyes, John Grout, John Ruddocke, and Hugh Griffin, in behalf of Sudbury), being authorized to settle the division line between Watertown and Sudbury, did "consent and conclude that the line which was formerly by Mr. John Oliver drawn in that plan, and the same marks revised about three years since, in the presence of some of each of the towns aforesaid, commonly called the old line betwixt Watertown and Sudbury—shall forever stand and be accounted the true partition line." This line began at the south point of Concord, and was directly continuous with its southeast boundary, running ninety-six rods S. 30° 15' W., "to an angle betwixt two hills;" thence "south about half a point westerly" [S. 2° 20' W.], until it came within eighty rods of Nonesuch Pond, where "Sudbury bounds ended." By consulting the map, it will be seen that by this survey a small triangular piece of the land, originally granted to Watertown, was annexed to Sudbury.

§ 35. Two early grants of land were made to Watertown by the General Court, the second of which, was in compensation for land taken off by Concord. It is not improbable that the first grant was made with the same intention, and that the second was made because the first grant failed. On this point we are left to conjecture, and to inference not entirely clear. In November, 1637, by the Court, "Watertown is granted one thousand five hundred acres of meadow, if it be there convenient, at the new plantation [Sudbury], upon the river Concord is upon." The reason for this grant is not given in the record, but the date and the location of it render it probable that it was in compensation for the land taken off by Concord. Sudbury was soon afterwards incorporated, and this conditional grant to Watertown being within its limits, it would not be "convenient," to allow Watertown to have it. It is to be observed that Sudbury was a Watertown settlement and granted to Watertown petitioners, and this large grant might be deemed to supersede, and more than make good the lesser grant. But it is probable that it was not so viewed, and that the second grant was made in lieu of the first. We find in the town records, no mention of this first grant of one thousand five hundred acres, until after the lapse of more than seventy-five years, when the town may have lost sight of the relation between this first and a subsequent grant. A committee was appointed to search the Colonial Records, wherein were found mentioned two grants of land to Watertown, neither of which had been made good by location and survey; and on January 14th, 1722-3, the town "chose Col. [Jonas] Bond, Nathaniel Bright, and William Shattuck, to address the General Court, to obtain two thousand acres of upland, and one thousand five hundred acres of meadow, formerly granted to Watertown and not yet taken up, and to see whether it should be divided between Watertown and Weston."

§ 36. This is, we think, the only reference in the records to those one thousand five hundred acres of meadow, subsequent to the following second grant. In May, 1651, at the same time that the boundary between Watertown and Sudbury was finally settled, the General Court ordered, "that Watertown shall have two thousand acres of land laid out near Assabet River, adjoining to the bounds of Sudbury, in respect of such land as was wanting to them, which was granted to them formerly by this Court to be the bounds of their town, and that Capt. Willard and Lieut. Goodenow are appointed to see this done and performed, and to make return thereof to this Court at their next session, provided it be not prejudicial to any former grants." This committee did not perform this service, probably on account of the terms of the proviso. The reason for this grant is more distinctly shown in the town records. At a town meeting, held March 12th, 1660-1, "Capt. Mason, Lieut. Beers, and Serj. Wincoll were appointed to find out where to have laid out the two thousand acres granted by the General Court in recompense of some land taken off by Concord." The "bounds of the town," referred to in the preceding order of the Court, was undoubtedly the line before referred to, beginning at Fresh Pond and running W. N. W. straight into the country. Committees were appointed by the town very numerous times, in order to obtain of the Court the location and survey of this grant, but without success, until after the lapse of more than one hundred years. After this great delay, exceeding in duration unending chancery suits, the grant was located "at Wachusett Hill," and divided between Watertown, Waltham, and Weston. Waltham and Weston sold their shares in 1756, each for £267.6.8= £2005. O. T. Watertown sold her share of it about the same time.

§ 37. Within the boundaries of Watertown, as determined by the Court in April, 1635, were embraced the present towns of Watertown, Waltham, Weston, the largest part of Lincoln, and that part of Cambridge lying east of Mount Auburn Cemetery, between Fresh Pond and Charles River. Watertown is now one of the smallest townships in the State, and it has been reduced to its present dimensions by repeated excisions. The earliest was in 1631, already mentioned, when a strip was cut off from the whole northern border, in order to make up the township of Newtown (Cambridge). The next was in 1634, when thirty acres of meadow, on the south side of Charles River, was offered and relinquished to Newtown, in order, with the additional offer of Boston, to induce Mr. Hooker and his congregation to relinquish their purpose to remove to Connecticut. The third excision was in 1635, when Concord was granted, and trenched so far upon the land previously allowed to Watertown, that the Court granted Watertown 2000 acres of land as a compensation for the loss. The fourth excision took place in 1712, when about one-half of the land was taken off and incorporated, January 1, 1712-13, as the town of Weston. This had been commonly designated as Watertown Farms; afterwards, for a few years before the incorporation, as the Farmers' Precinct; sometimes as the third Military Precinct, or the precinct of Lieutenant Jones's company; sometimes as the Western-most Precinct, in which case Waltham was called the Middle Precinct.

§ 38. The earliest mention in the records of a boundary between the Farms and the rest of Watertown, is Mar. 13, 1682-3, when it was voted that "those that dwell on west of Stony Brook be freed from school tax in 1683." October 2, 1694, it was voted that "our neighbors, the farmers, being upon endeavors to have a meeting-house among themselves, the town consents that they may come as far as Beaver Brook, upon the country road leading to Sudbury, and so to run north and south upon a line, to the end there may be peace and settlement among us." This line was so far east as to set off to the Farms more than three-fourths of the present territory of Waltham, and about three-fourths of the land of the whole town. We find no subsequent mention of such a boundary, and it was so different from the obvious eastern boundary of Watertown Farms, and from the one afterwards adopted, that it might be suspected that there was an error in the record, and instead of Beaver Brook, it should be Stony Brook. But that vote was passed in the early stage of a very earnest controversy about the removal of the meeting-house from the eastern to a more central part of the town, and if the record is correct, it was probably passed by an accidental majority, who hoped, and intended thereby, to put to rest the project of a change of the location of the meeting-house.

§ 39. At a town meeting, held January 6, 1701-2, it was voted "that the bounds of the Farmers' Precinct for the ministry is from Charles River along the brook called Stony Brook, that cometh out of a pond called Beaver Pond, said Precinct being on the westerly side of said brook." This vote seems to be only an iteration or sanction of an order of the General Court [Records vii p. 49], passed July 20, 1699, respecting the boundary line between the "Farmes" and Watertown. "It is Resolved and Ordered that the Bounds of s^d Precinct shall extend from Charles River to Stony Brook Bridge, and from s^d Bridge up the Brook Northerly to Robert Harrington's Farm, the Brook to be the boundary, including the said Farm and comprehending all the Farms and Farm lands to the lines of Cambridge and Concord, and from thence [the Brook] all Watertown lands to their utmost Southward and Westward bounds." On the 7th of May, 1708, the town appointed a committee (Joseph Sherman, Lieutenant Jonathan Smith, and Joseph Peirce, Sen.) "to run a line between the town and the Farmers' Precinct, referring to the ministry." This was done on the 28th of May, and the line (minutely described in the records) began at Charles River, followed up Stony Brook to Beaver Pond, "and from said pond to a black pine, at the bounds where Cambridge and Watertown and Concord meet; said Farmers' Precinct being on the west side of said brook."

§ 40. The petition of the Farmers' Precinct for incorporation was presented by Captain Francis Fulham, Lieutenant Josiah Jones, and Mr. Daniel Estabrook, and at a town meeting, December 2, 1712, upon the hearing of said petition, the town "did by a free vote manifest their willingness that the said Farmers should be a township by themselves, according to their former bounds," with proviso and conditions, viz., 1. That the Farmers continue to pay a due share of the expense of maintaining the Great Bridge over Charles River; 2. That they pay their full and due share of the debts now due by the town; 3. That they do not in any way infringe the rights of proprietors having land, but not residing among the Farmers.

§ 41. The present boundaries of Weston, on the north and east, do not correspond with those described, when it was set off as a precinct. Beaver Pond, there mentioned, is in Lincoln, and the pine, where the bounds of Cambridge (Lex.), Watertown, and Concord meet, was not far north of the centre of Lincoln, which was incorporated as a precinct, April 24, 1746, and as a town, April 19, 1754, and which was made up of land taken from the northern part of Weston, the southern part of Concord, and the western part of Lexington. Nor does Stony Brook continue to be the entire boundary between Weston and Waltham. This line of boundary, after following up Stony Brook about a mile and a half, leaves it at nearly a right angle, and runs N. 30° E. 344 rods; then N. 60° W. 124 rods; then N. 38° W. 136 rods; then N. 60° W. 76 rods, where it meets the corners of Weston, Waltham, and Lincoln. From this point the boundary between Weston and Lincoln runs, with many angles, nearly due west, until it reaches the boundary line of Wayland (originally Sudbury).

§ 42. Weston extends considerably farther south than either Watertown or Waltham, and on its east and southeast border, for 840 rods, it is separated from Newton by Charles River. The southern boundary is a line beginning at Charles River, and running W. 13° S. 993 rods, separating it from Needham, until it reaches Natick. Its western boundary is a line beginning at that corner of Needham, running N. 2° 20' E. 377 rods, separating it from Natick; then continued in the same direction 1360 rods; then N. 30° 15' E. 52 rods, separating it from Wayland, and there reaches the corner of Lincoln.

§ 43. The next excision from Watertown took place, April 19, 1738, when Waltham was incorporated, taking off about three-fifths of her already much diminished territory. Before the incorporation of Weston, Waltham was sometimes called the Middle Precinct, or the precinct of Captain Garfield's company; afterwards the West Precinct of Watertown. When incorporated, Waltham was bounded on the south by Charles River; on the west by Weston, boundary already described; northwest by Lincoln; north or northeast, by that line already described, beginning at Fresh Pond, and running straight west-northwest to Concord line, and separating Waltham from West Cambridge and Lexington; east by a line beginning at Charles River, and running north 48° east, until it reaches West Cambridge, and separating it from Watertown. As early as 1754, the farm of Matthew Bridge, afterwards of his son Nathaniel, in the extreme western angle of Cambridge (now W. Cambridge), was annexed to Waltham. In 1849, Waltham received an accession of between 600 and 700 acres of land on the south side of Charles River, by the annexation of a part of Newton. Nearly the whole of this tract belonged to the ancient Fuller Farm, and included about two-thirds of it. A small portion of this addition, at the southwest, belonged to the ancient Williams Farm.

§ 44. About sixteen years after the incorporation of Waltham, Watertown suffered another excision from her eastern border. The present boundary between Watertown and Cambridge (between Charles River and Fresh Pond) is not the original one, mentioned in the report of the committee, previously inserted. [See Section 31.] In April, 1754, a strip of land, about half a mile wide, was taken from the east border of Watertown and annexed to Cambridge, as appears by the following transaction of the General Court. [Records, vol. xx. p. 228-9]:

In the House of Representatives was read and accepted the following "Report on Cambridge Inhabitants' Petition, referring to Watertown, viz.: The Committee on the petition of the First Parish in Cambridge, praying that a number of the inhabitants of the town of Watertown, with their estates, be annexed to them. Having viewed the situation, heard the parties, and finding it most convenient for said inhabitants to attend the public worship of God in the said Parish, as they usually have done for many years past, and it being their desire to be set off to the town of Cambridge, as well as to the First Parish aforesaid: Report that all the inhabitants and lands within the following bounds be annexed to the Town and First Parish aforesaid, to do duty and receive privilege in the same: The dividing line between the said Cambridge and Watertown to begin at Charles River, and from thence to run in the line between the lands of Simon Coolidge, Moses Stone, Christopher Grant, and the Thatchers [on the one side], and the lands of Colonel Brinley and Ebenezer Wyeth to the Fresh Pond, so called [on the other]: All which is submitted per Joseph Pynchon per order." Read and concurred in by the Council, and consented to by the Governor, April 19, 1754. Within the strip of land thus annexed to Cambridge, Watertown still holds a wharf or landing on Charles River.

§ 45. This boundary line may be seen on the maps, beginning at the most southern point of Fresh Pond, running nearly south to Mount Auburn Street, then east along that street; then through the northeast corner of Mount Auburn Cemetery, and thence nearly south to the river. The original eastern boundary line has not been accurately ascertained; but it probably corresponded nearly with the present Vassal Lane and Sparks Street, beginning at the southeast side of the east bay of Fresh Pond, and running to the most northern point of the bend in the river. By consulting a map, it will be seen that until 1754, much the largest part of Fresh Pond was within the limits of Watertown, and since that time less than one-half of it.

§ 46. The small portion of Watertown at present lying on the south side of the river, has not the exact dimensions assigned to it in 1635, although about the same quantity of land. March 1, 1704-5, a committee (Jonas Bond, Esq., Captain B. Garfield, and Joseph Sherman) was appointed "to find out the line between Watertown and Newton, on the south side of Charles River." The committee reported, November 16, 1705, minutely describing the line, as may be seen in the town records, and which is nearly the same as that delineated in the recent map of Watertown. The line began at high-water mark on Charles River, at the northeast corner of farm, formerly Mr. Mayhew's, and ran straight southwest 2° west, $41\frac{3}{4}$ rods; then a straight line west-northwest 5° north, 216 rods; then a straight line northeast by north, 80 rods, down to the river. [On the recent map this northwest boundary is 93½ rods.] It was signed by the above committee on the part of Watertown, and by John Spring, Edward Jackson, and Ebenezer Stone, on the part of Newton.

§ 47. We have not discovered any estimate of the number of acres—of the total area of Watertown, as originally granted; but from a comparison of the known area of a large part of it with the whole of it, as seen on the map, it may be supposed to have been about 29,000 acres. The present areas of Watertown, Waltham, and Weston are as follows:—

EARLY RECORDS.

§ † 46. There is no record extant of any municipal transactions of Watertown, of earlier date than 1634, four years after its first settlement. The record in the first volume commences with what is marked page 2; and it has been supposed that some part, at least one page, of the town records, has been lost. There is, however, good reason to conclude that only a title page is lost; that with the beginning of this volume of records, there was a commencement of a new order in municipal affairs. It was immediately after the occurrence of an important change in the government of the colony; when a house of Deputies or Representatives became a constituent part of it. As the people, from this date, began to be represented in the government of the colony, so “the ordering of the civil affairs of the town” began to be intrusted to a body of freemen, chosen annually for that purpose. Then originated that peculiarly New England municipal body, a board of select men. Previously to this date, the civil and ecclesiastical affairs of the town were commingled together, without any distinct line between them. No one had a right to vote, unless he were a freeman; none could be admitted a freeman unless he were a church member, and the church was Congregational, wherein its affairs were managed by the votes of the members. The church officers seem to have taken the lead both in civil and ecclesiastical affairs, and it is probable that, previously to 1634, the records were kept accordingly. Whatever those records were, they are lost.

§ † 47. As an illustration of the preceding view, the following transaction is adduced. On the 3d of February, 1631-2, the Court ordered that £60 be levied out of the several plantations, "towards the making of a palisado about the Newtown." A warrant was sent to Watertown, for £8, which was its proportion of that levy. Hereupon "the pastor [Mr. Phillips] and elder [Mr. Richard Browne], &c., assembled the people and delivered their opinions, that it was not safe to pay moneys after that sort, for fear of bringing themselves and their posterity into bondage." For this they were summoned before the Governor and Assistants, on the 17th of the same month, and there was "much debate;" but, being the weaker party, they or some of them, were compelled to make a retraction, and submission. [Winthrop, I. p. 70.] It is not improbable that the resistance of Mr. Browne, occasioned the magistrates to be so determined on his dismissal from the Eldership. Although the Governor says they freely confessed their error, the entire correctness of this statement may well be doubted. This doubt arises from the known character and sentiments of Mr. Phillips, Mr. Browne, and others of Watertown; from the "much debate," in which they defended their views of taxation without representation, and from the important results that soon succeeded. Such a confession and submission, in such a case, would be unlike Richard Browne, John Oldham, and John Masters.

§ 48. This transaction shows that the people were called together by the church officers; that the minister, elder, and "divers of Watertown," were summoned to answer to the magistrates for their attempted resistance; and that there is no reference to any civil or municipal organization, or authority, as would undoubtedly have been done not long afterwards.

§ 49. But this transaction deserves a conspicuous notice for a more important reason than merely for elucidating the municipal economy of a town; for there is nothing of which Watertown has so good a right to be proud. At the conclusion of an elaborate note [Winthrop, I. pp. 70, 71], Mr. Savage says, "to the agitation of this subject [by Watertown people], we may refer the origin of that committee of two from each town to advise with the Court about raising public moneys, 'so that what they shall agree upon shall bind all,' and this led to the representative body, having the full power of all the freemen, except that of elections." It was on the 9th of May, less than three months after the debate with the Watertown people, at the very next meeting of the General Court, that these Committees were appointed for the several towns; and it is also to be noticed, in the record of these committees, that the names of Mr. John Oldham and John Masters, of Watertown, are the first on the list. These circumstances should be remembered, when reading Winthrop's Journal, in the place referred to.

§ 50. The first paragraph in the town records has become very obscure by age and much handling, and some of the words are obliterated. But the volume has recently been copied by a competent person, and it is very probable that he has succeeded in restoring that paragraph to its original reading. As these records contain so much information, in so condensed a form, respecting the men and the transactions of those early times, and present it more satisfactorily than we could do by any digest or analysis, those ancient records—all that are of an earlier date than November, 1647, except the lists of possessions—are here inserted verbatim et literatim. They appear to be not a full journal of transactions, and are little more than a record of ordinances enacted.

§ 52. From this last date, November 28, 1643, to November 9, 1647, a period of four years, the records of the transactions of the town are lost, so that, with the exception of the lists of grants and possessions of land, and the record of births and deaths, the preceding are all that are extant earlier than November, 1647, when the records assume more the form of a journal of the transactions of town meetings, sometimes embracing those of the selectmen.

§ 53. On the 9th of September, 1639, the Court "ordered and decreed that hence forward * * * * there be records kept * * * * of the date of every marriage, birth, and death, of every person within this jurisdiction." It appears by the colonial records, that this order was very imperfectly complied with, and on June 14th, 1642, they made it the duty of an officer of their own appointment (the clerk of writs) to perform the service, with fees therefor, and fines for neglect to perform it. The following is that order.

§ 54. "It is therefore ordered, that hereafter the clerk of writs in the several towns, shall take especially care to record all births and deaths [marriages were recorded by the magistrates] of persons in their towns; and for every birth or death they so record, they are to have allowed them the sum of 3d. and are to deliver in yearly to the recorder of the Court, belonging to the jurisdiction where they live, a transcript thereof together with so many pence as there are births and deaths recorded, and this under the penalty of 20s. for every neglect; and for the time past it is ordered, they shall do their utmost endeavor to find out in their several towns, who hath been born and who hath died, since the first founding of their towns, and to record the same as aforesaid."

§ 55. In order to insure a full compliance with this order, which "hath been in many places much neglected," the Court passed an order Mar. 7, 1643-4, "that all parents, masters, or servants, executors and administrators, respectively, shall stand charged to bring in to the clerk of writs the name of such, belonging to them or any of them, as shall either be born or die; and that the new married man shall stand likewise bound to bring in a certificate of his marriage, under the hand of the magistrate, which married him, to the clerk of the writs," and penalties were imposed for the neglect of these duties. In May, 1657, another order was passed, more particular in its requirements and more stringent in its penalties, in order to insure the accomplishment of the purposes of the foregoing order.

§ 56. Mr. Simon Eire was the first clerk of writs, appointed for Watertown, December 10, 1641, and he retained the office until October 1, 1645. The account of births and deaths in Watertown (with the exception of a few between 1648 and 1651), entered in the Boston records, and printed in the 7th and 8th volumes of the Genealogical Register, are the result of Mr. Eire's compliance with that order. It is probable that the first volume of the records of births, deaths, and marriages, was not opened, or begun to be kept, until 1648, by John Sherman. The following is on its title page.

§ 57. "The records of the births, deaths, and marriages, in Watertown; kept according to the order of the Court, made in the year 1648 [1642, as no such order was passed in 1648]. What was taken before [before John Sherman was appointed clerk of writs], was by Mr. Eire, and uncertain in the transmitting; yet in this book transcribed according to the order of the Court—so many as come to hand. 1648."

"The year by Mr. Eire supposed begun the first of March; but from 1648, the twenty-fifth of March, by John Sherman, 26 (10), 1648. The year is set upon the head of every page, and the month and day to every entry. J.[ohn] S.[herman]. The account of the year is from the twenty-five March, in all the entries that were brought to me, John Sherman."

For the early lists of grants and possessions, see following sections.

§ 58. Marriage was regarded as a civil contract, and for a long time could be performed only by magistrates, or by other persons especially authorized therefor. As there was no magistrate, resident of Watertown, for a long time after the departure of Sir Richard Saltonstall, Watertown people, in order to be married, were obliged to go to magistrates in other towns until November, 1646, when Mr. Richard Browne was empowered to officiate on such occasions. Upon his removal to Charlestown, Capt. Hugh Mason, was, in May, 1658, appointed to the same office, and "hereby is empowered to solemnize marriages at Watertown, for preventing travel and other inconveniences." He probably retained this office until his decease, in October, 1678. Whether any held the same office between the decease of Capt. Mason and the election of William Bond to the magistracy, has not been ascertained. The earliest record of a marriage in Watertown by a clergyman, was August 10, 1686, by Mr. Bailey.

§ 59. For the above reasons, few marriages are recorded in Watertown, until after Mr. Browne was authorized to officiate. The earliest marriage on the record is that of John Bigelow and Mary Warren, in 1642, "before Mr. Nowell," and this is the only instance, where the name of the officer is recorded, until August, 1686, when a marriage was solemnized by Rev. John Bailey; and in December, 1686, a marriage was performed by William Bond, Esq., about eight years after the decease of Capt. Mason.

THE EARLY SETTLERS, THEIR RESIDENCES, AND THEIR MIGRATIONS.

§ 60. It is very difficult, if not entirely impossible at present, to make out a full and correct list of those persons who accompanied Sir Richard Saltonstall, at the first planting of Watertown, and of those who went there before 1636. It is most probable, as before stated, that their number was greater than that of the settlers of any other town planted in 1630; and there is reason to suppose, that with the exception of Boston, Watertown continued to be more populous than either of them, for twenty years. [See table and notes, p. 983.] The population became so crowded, that the people began very early to disperse, either to form new plantations, or to go to other towns already settled; and Watertown has been a prolific old hive, sending out swarms almost innumerable. In August, 1635, after the migration to Wethersfield, it was "agreed by the consent of the freemen (in consideration there be too many inhabitants in the town, and the town thereby in danger to be ruined), that no forrainger coming into the town, or any family arising among ourselves, shall have any benefit of commonage or land undivided, but what they shall purchase, except that they buy a man's right wholly in the town." [Town Records.]

§ 61. Some very considerable migrations from the town took place prior to the date of the earliest list of proprietors extant; and as some of these emigrants, if they had become proprietors, probably sold their possessions before they left, their names are not found in the records, and are not certainly known. It is indeed known that there were some very early residents, whose names are not found in the lists of possessions. A considerable number of them are known, because, either they remained proprietors after they migrated, or there is a record of their dismissal, or their names were mentioned in describing the possessions of those to whom they sold, or they had held some office, or had given names to localities. It is probable also, that some died within the first few years, whose deaths are not recorded, as the records of births and deaths, for that period, are very scanty, and those that are extant were not recorded at the time of the events.

§ 62. The first considerable migration was the colony that planted Wethersfield, the oldest town in Connecticut. Some went and took possession of Pyquag, in 1634. The next year a larger number, including some names afterwards somewhat distinguished, went there and named the plantation Watertown. Not long afterwards the Court changed the name to Wethersfield. Some of this colony afterwards were among the first settlers of Stamford, Milford, and Branford [see their names in the following catalogue, § 77].

§ 63. The next considerable migration from Watertown went to Dedham. Mr. Haven [centennial address], says, "the founders of Dedham came from Watertown." September 3, 1635, the Court "ordered a plantation to be settled about two miles above the falls of Charles River, on the N. E. side thereof, to have ground on both sides of the river," &c. ; and on March 3, 1635-6, a committee (Ensign Jennison, Mr. Danforth, and Mr. William Phelps), was deputed to set out the bounds thereof, and they reported on the 13th of the next month. On the 8th of the following September (1636), the Court named this plantation Dedham, and exempted it from public charges for three years from the first of May next. A considerable number of the names of the settlers, who went from Watertown to Dedham, are known. Others probably went there from Watertown, whose names are not found in the records, for the reason above stated. A few of the petitioners and grantees of Dedham, did not move there ; among whom were John Coolidge, Thomas Hastings, and Robert Feake. Among those who are known to have gone there, were John Hayward, Lambert Chinery, Daniel Morse, Ensign Thomas Cakebread (afterwards of Sudbury), John Dwight, Henry Phillips (son-in-law of Mr. Dwight, and candidate as teacher), John Bachelor, Ralph Wheelock (candidate as teacher), John Eaton, Dr. Henry Dengayne (afterwards of Rox.), William Barstow, and George Barstow (supposed to have gone from Watertown, where their eldest brother, Michael settled), and John Kingsbury.

§ 64. The order for planting Concord is of the same date as that of Dedham, and Capt. Thomas Brooks, the ancestor of one of the most distinguished families of Concord, went from Watertown. Timothy Wheeler, an early proprietor of Watertown, was probably one of the early settlers of Concord. Although this town cannot, with propriety, be said to be planted by Watertown people, the preceding genealogies show that numerous Concord families may trace their early lineage to Watertown.

§ 65. The next plantation, made by Watertown people, was Sudbury. At the General Court, November 20, 1637, the following preamble and order were adopted. "Whereas a great part of the chief inhabitants of Watertown have petitioned this Court, that in regard of their straitness of accommodation, and want of meadow, they might have leave to remove and settle a plantation upon the river, which runs to Concord, this Court, having respect to their necessity, doth grant their petition, and it is hereby ordered, that Lieut. [Simon] Willard, Mr. [William] Spencer, Mr. Joseph Weld, and Mr. [Richard] Jackson, shall take view of the places upon said river, and shall set out a place for them by marks and bounds sufficient for fifty or sixty families, taking care that it be so set out as it may not hinder the settling of some other plantation upon the same river, if there be meadow, and other accommodations sufficient for the same. And it is ordered, further, that if the said inhabitants of Watertown, or any of them, shall not have removed their dwellings to their said new plantation before one year after the plantation shall be set out, that then the interest of all such persons, not so removed to the said plantation, shall be void and cease, and it shall be lawful for such as are removed and settled there, or the greater part of them, being freemen, to receive other persons to inhabit in their rooms, in the said plantation; provided, that if there shall not be thirty families at least there settled before the said time limited, that then this Court, or the Court of Assistants, or two of the Council, shall dispose of the said plantation to any other. And it is further ordered, that after the place of the said plantation shall be set out, the said petitioners, and such other freemen as shall join them, shall have power to order the situation of their town, and the proportioning of lots, and all other liberties as other towns have under the proviso aforesaid.

“And it is lastly further ordered, that such of the said inhabitants of Watertown, as shall be accommodated in their new plantation, may sell their houses and improved grounds in Watertown; but all the rest of the land in Watertown not improved, shall remain freely to the inhabitants, which shall remain behind, and such others as shall come to them.

“And the said persons appointed to set out the said plantation are directed so to set out the same, as there may be 1500 acres of meadow allowed to it, if it be there to be had with any conveniences, for the use of the town.” March 12, 1637-8. “The Court thinketh meet that they [of Watertown], should have liberty to sell their allotments in Watertown, and they are to give their full answer the next Court, whether they will remove to the new plantation, and John Oliver put in the room of Richard Jackson, or to lay out the said plantation, which they are to do before the next Court.”

§ 66. An order was passed September 6, 1638, allowing the petitioners, Mr. Pendleton, Mr. Noyes, Mr. Brown and company, to go on in their plantation; but an allotment of lands does not appear to have been made, until September, 1639, when the Court gave the plantation the name of Sudbury. May 13, 1640, an addition was made to their territory of one mile on the southeast and southwest sides, with conditions, and it was exempted from rates for one year from May 20, 1640. In 1649, the boundary line of Sudbury was laid out two miles further westward, for their enlargement.

§ 67. Although Sudbury was a plantation specially granted to the inhabitants of Watertown, only a small proportion of the names of the very early grantees of the lots, are found in the Watertown records, and some of those returned to Watertown, [See the following catalogue; and see Barry, pp. 154, 5, & 6.] The probable reason that so few went to Sudbury, was, that so many had migrated to Wethersfield, Dedham, and other places, as to relieve Watertown of its crowd of settlers. It will, however, be found that a large part of Sudbury families were afterwards of Watertown origin. The following Watertown names are found in the earliest lists of Sudbury grantees, viz.: Robert Betts (“Beast”), Thomas Cakebread, Henry Curtis, Robert Daniel (“Darvell”), John Grout, Solomon Johnson, John Knight, George Munnings, Peter Noyes, William Parker, Bryan Pendleton, Richard Sanger, Joseph Tainter, Anthony White, Goodman [John] Wetherill. The two sons-in-law of Elder Edward How, viz.: Nathaniel Treadway and John Stone (eldest son of Dea. Gregory Stone, of Camb.), were also original grantees of Sudbury.

§ 68. The pioneers in the settlement of Nashaway (Lancaster), were Watertown men, among whom were Thomas King, the sturdy John Prescott, Richard Linton, Lawrence Waters, Rev. Nathaniel Norcross, John Smith, Ralph and John Houghton. Numerous Lancaster families, of a later date, can trace their lineage to Watertown.

§ 69. Martha’s Vineyard was first planted by a colony from Watertown. [See Mayhew, pp. 364 and 857.]

§ 70. It is known that, at an early period, removals to and fro, between Watertown and Cambridge, were not unfrequent, and some may have occurred too early to be noticed in the records. In 1632, Capt. Daniel Patriek moved to Cambridge, and not long afterwards returned to Watertown. Mr. John Masters, moved after 1632, from Watertown to Cambridge. It is highly probable, that Edmund Lockwood went to Watertown with Sir Richard Saltonstall, and that the next year, either he moved to Cambridge, or was found to have settled within the limits assigned to Cambridge. Dea. Gregory Stone moved to Cambridge about 1637. David Fisk, Jr., of Watertown, married in Cambridge, and settled there. These are a few of the instances of this kind that might be given.

§ 71. Several emigrants from Watertown were among the original proprietors of Groton, and the numerous families of the name Lawrence, Tarbell, Page, Sawtel, Holden, Stone, Knapp, Clary, Barron, Peirce, Boyden, Whitney, Crisp, Ong, some of the Moses [names found among the original proprietors]; also later settlers of the name Cady, Headly, Prescott, Sanderson, Shattuck, some of the Fiskes, and many others in the female line, may trace their lineage to early settlers of Watertown. Emigrants from Watertown may also be found among the early settlers, of nearly all the towns in Middlesex County; and, in a considerable number of them, their descendants are probably as numerous as in Groton.

§ 72. Descendants from the early settlers of Watertown, are not less numerous in Worcester County. As evidence of this, see the histories of Framingham, Shrewsbury, Worcester, Rutland, and Spencer. The histories of other towns, if equally well written, would evince the same thing, with at least equal fulness. And it is probable that there is not a town in the western counties of Massachusetts, where there are not, or have not been, families of Watertown origin.

§ 73. Emigrants from this old hive were among the early settlers of many other towns in Connecticut, besides the very ancient ones of Wethersfield, Stamford, Branford, New Haven, and Milford, especially in the northern and eastern portions of the State, where their descendants are very numerous. They were also among the very early settlers of some of the oldest towns on Long Island; a few also went to Rhode Island. The families are also very numerous in Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont, who are of Watertown origin. It would be an endless, but not a fruitless undertaking, to attempt to trace out fully the Watertown genealogies; and it may be seen in the preceding pages, in the attempt to trace the genealogy of only a few branches to the present time, that they are to be found in every State in the Union.

§ 74. The following is an Alphabetical Catalogue of the names of persons, known to have been proprietors or residents of Watertown, prior to the end of the year 1643; compiled chiefly from the lists of grantees and proprietors, embracing also some names derived from wills, deeds, settlement of estates, and descriptions of possessions.

§ 75. The earliest of these lists of inhabitants, is that of the grantees in the Great Dividends, which were granted in July, 1636, and it contains 120 names. [See Sect. 86-7.] The next list is that of the grantees of the Beaver Brook plowlands, "being 106 in number," and dated February 28, 1636-7, but ordered the preceding September. In June, 1637, the Remote, or West pine [? plain] meadows, were granted to "the townsmen then inhabiting, being 114 in number." [For other information respecting these and other lists, see Sections 91, 96, 97, 100, 102, &c.] Before and about the time of these grants, many changes were taking place in the population, many migrating to Wethersfield, Dedham, &c., and others arriving from England, to buy their lands and supply their places, as stated in the preceding sections, and as will be seen in the following catalogue.

§ 76. Deputies, or Representatives of Watertown to the General Court, are printed in SMALL CAPITALS; other freemen (fr.) in italics. Several of those who migrated from Watertown, became afterwards magistrates, deputies, or freemen of other towns or colonies. But they have not such designations in this catalogue.

An asterisk (*) denotes clerical persons; ministers and ruling-elders, but not deacons.

A cross (†) before a number denotes the date of embarkation in England, with the name, in some instances, of the place of embarkation.

A double cross (‡) denotes a selectman.

In some instances the localities of the homestalls are given. In others only the boundaries are given, as the localities are not yet satisfactorily ascertained. The term homestall (instead of homestead), is retained as it is the one always made use of in the early records.

- § 77. Daniel Abbot, applied to be admitted freeman in Oct. 1630, before New Town (Cambridge) was settled, and he was adm. the next May. In Ap. 1631, the Court ordered a military watch of 4 to be kept every night at Dorchester and Watertown. About five weeks afterwards (May 18th), Daniel Abbot was "fined 5s. for refusing to watch, and for other ill behavior showed towards Capt. Patrick." As Capt. Patrick belonged to Watertown, and as no watch was ordered to be kept at New Town, there can be little doubt, but that Daniel Abbot was one of the first settlers of Watertown. He may have settled within the limits afterwards assigned to New Town [see Lockwood, p. 854]. His fine was remitted Sept. 8, 1638; and the Colonial Records (June 4, 1639), say "Daniel Abbot is departed to New Providence."
- Robert Abbot*, fr. 1634; was grantee of a homestall and meadow on the East side of Mount Auburn, and of a lot in the Great Dividends in July, 1636; all of which were bought by Roger Wellington. He went early to Connecticut [see Reg. Abbott Fam., p. 173].
- Richard Ambler*, of Wat. 1639, not a grantee, went to Stamford, Conn. His homestall was the lot in the town plot granted to Richard Beers, S. side of Belmont St. near Warren St.
- Thomas Andrews*, not a grantee, but proprietor of 4 lots; homestall S. of Camb. road, near Camb. line.
- Edmund Angier*, fr. 1640; proprietor of 3 A. East of Mount Auburn, in 1644, but probably never a resident of Wat.
- Thomas Arnold*, † 1635; fr. 1640; grantee of 8 lots and purchaser of 1 lot; moved to Providence about 1655; 2 homestalls, Orchard St., near Lex. Street.
- † John Bachelor, grantee of 6 lots, some, if not all, of which were purchased by J. Norcross. He probably moved to Dedham in 1637; fr. 1640.
- Nathaniel Baker*, a grantee in the Beaver Brook Plowland, 1636-7; (?) went to Hingham.
- John Baker*, fr. 1634; a grantee in the Town plot in 1638.
- William Baker*, fr. 1634; a grantee in the Great Dividends in July, 1636. [There is reason to suppose that there is a misnomer, and that these grants were made to only two, perhaps only one person of the name of Baker.]
- John Ball*. (?) On the list of Winthrop [II. p. 340], supposed to be the names of those intending to come over in 1630, is the name of "Mr. Ball." If this was the John Ball, of Concord, he may have arrived before Concord was granted; settled first in Wat., and moved to Concord, in 1635, prior to the date of the earliest list of proprietors of Watertown.
- † Ellis Barron, fr. 1641; not a grantee; bought the homestall, 10 A. of A. Kemball, on the E. side of Common St., adjoining on the East the lot granted to Thurston Raynor; d. 1676.
- William Barsham*, † 1630; fr. 1637; grantee of 5 lots, and purchaser of 1 lot; d. 1684. His homestall was W. of Mount Auburn, between Cambridge Road and Bank Lane.
- † Michael Birstow, of Charlestown, 1635; probably moved to Wat., 1637, or 1638; fr. 1636; not a grantee, but proprietor of 8 lots; d. 1674. His homestall of 14 A., probably S. W. corner of Belmont and School Streets.
- † Thomas Bartlett, (?) † 1630; fr. 1636, d. 1654; grantee of 7 lots. His homestall of 14 A. N. E. corner of Common and North Streets.
- Richard Beach*, of Camb. 1635, of Wat. 1639, not a grantee; d. 1674; one lot 6 A. in the town plot, N. side of Warren St., near Lexington St.
- † RICHARD BEERS, fr. 1637; d. 1675; grantee of 7 lots, and purchaser of 3 lots. His homestall of 10 A. granted, was bounded N. E. by Fresh Pond, W. by Grove St.
- † Joseph Bemis, of Wat. 1640; d. 1684; grantee of a farm and of a meadow at Nonesuch; purchaser of 7 other lots. His homestall of 12 A., S. side of Warren Street, was made up of the two lots in the town plot, granted to Simon Stone and J. Firmin.
- John Benjamin*, † 1632; fr. 1632; first of Camb., afterwards Wat., where he d. 1645. The circumstance that his name is not in any list of grantees, renders it probable that he did not move to Wat. before 1637 or 8. His homestall of 60 A. was situated E. of Dorchester Field, and bounded S. by Charles River. He had 3 other large lots, grants to R. Feake.
- Richard Benjamin*, † 1632, of Southhold, L. I., in 1667; not a grantee, but proprietor of 2 lots.
- † John Bernard (Barnard), † 1634; fr. 1635; d. 1646; grantee of 12 lots, and purchaser of 2 lots. His homestall of 13 A. was on the N. side of Mount Auburn St., a little W. of School St.
- Robert Betts*, ("Best," "Beast,") a grantee in the Great Dividends and in the Beaver Brook plowlands; an original grantee of Sud., where he d. 1655, s. p., bequeathing his estate to his brother-in-law William Hlunt and other relatives of this name.
- † John Bigelow, of Wat., 1642, fr. 1690, d. 1703; not a grantee, purchased two lots, one of which was the Great Dividend lot granted to Henry Dengayne, and the other, his homestall of 6 A., was the lot in the town plot granted to Henry Bright, Jr., on Warren St.
- † John Biscoe, fr. 1650, d. 1690; grantee of 27 A. in lieu of township; proprietor of at - least 14 other lots, amounting to 509 A. From the number and value of his possessions, in 1642-44, he then being only 21 to 23 years of age, it seems probable that the lands were held in his name for his father, Nathaniel, the "rich tanner." His homestall was at the N. W. corner of Belmont and Common Streets, bounded N. by the homestall and meadow granted to John Lawrence. [See p. 819.]

- † Nathaniel Biscoe, not a grantee; purchased of the town a lot of 46 A., bounded E. by Lexington St., and South by the homestalls of T. Philbrick, John Stowers, Anthony Peirce. This lot passed to his son John, then to Elisha Cook, of Boston, and from him to Andrew White and Nathaniel Stearns. It was for a long time the residence of the heirs of A. White. [See White, 5, p. 639.]
- Edmund Blois, fr. 1639, d. 1681. His wife and son embarked for N. Eng., in 1634. He was a grantee of 5 lots. His 6 A. lot in Town Plot, N. E. cor. of Main and Warren Streets.
- † [WILLIAM BOND, the first of the name in Watertown, but too young to be a proprietor in 1642-4. It is supposed that he came over in 1630, then aged 5 yrs., as the nephew, adopted child, and heir of Dea. Ephraim Child.]
- Nathaniel Bowman, † 1630, applied to be admitted freeman Oct. 1630; not admitted; d. 1682. Grantee of 8 lots; homestall W. side of Common St., (sometimes called Bowman's Lane), a little S. of Belmont St. He purchased of E. Goffe a large lot in Camb. (Lex.), adjoining or near the Watertown line, and moved there.
- Thomas Boyden*, † at Ipswich, 1634; fr. 1647; was an early settler of Groton, resided some time in Medfield, again in Groton, and afterwards again in Watertown. [See Phillips, p. 872.] His homestall a little W. of Common St., adjoining Wm. Hammond.

- ‡ John Warren, † 1630; fr. 1631; d. 1667, aged 82; grantee of 11 lots. His homestead, of 12 A., bounded W. by highway [Lexington St.]; E. by W. Hammond; N. by J. Bisco; S. by J. Sterne. His first homestead, of 5 A., situated N. E. of Mount Auburn, was sold early to H. Mason, and he moved to the above-described lot, for the sake of larger accommodations.

§ 78. FREEMEN.—The following is a list of the freemen of Watertown, admitted previous to the union of the colonies of Plymouth and Massachusetts Bay, with the date of their admission. In order for such admission, it was necessary to be a church-member, and for this reason there were some men holding respectable social positions, who never were thus admitted, or not until advanced age. It was not necessary, however, to be a church-member, or a freeman, in order to hold office in the town or appointments from the Court. This could be done by taking the oath of fidelity, and, in some instances, townsmen, who were not freemen, were allowed to vote. Thomas Mayhew held a responsible appointment from the Governor and Assistants, more than two years before he was admitted freeman. Joseph Bemis and Thomas Flagg, were never admitted, although they were both selectmen, and held other offices. John Bigelow, Sen., took the oath of fidelity in 1652, but he was not admitted freeman until April, 1690, at the age of 73. Roger Wellington was not admitted until 80 or 81 years of age, when he had been many times selectman. William Bond was admitted in 1682, more than 20 years after he had been selectman, juror, constable, and likewise town clerk, and only a short time before he was elected a magistrate. "Mr." William Goddard, was admitted in 1690, more than 20 years after he was a selectman. John Nevinson, being a churchman, was never admitted.

§ 79. A star (*) prefixed to a name denotes those who applied in Oct., 1630, to be admitted. Among those who applied at that time, was Nathaniel Bowman, of Watertown, whose name does not appear in the list of freemen. It will be seen that some of the very early settlers and proprietors, or natives of Watertown, were admitted freemen after they had moved to other towns. This mark (?) is prefixed to the names of freemen, who were early proprietors, where there is an uncertainty or improbability as to their having ever been residents.

ALLOTMENTS OF LAND, POSSESSIONS, &c.

§ 80. In early deeds, inventories, &c., there is a very frequent reference to several kinds or classes of lots, named generally in reference to some grant or allotment of lands; and such information concerning them as we have obtained, is here presented. It is derived chiefly from several schedules of grants and summaries of possessions contained in the early records. Of the earliest grants, called the Small Lots, there is no schedule, and the information respecting them is derived from the summaries of grants and possessions. The same may be said in regard to the marsh lands.

§ 81. 1. Homestalls and home-lots. These were collectively called the Small Lots, and they comprised, or rather were scattered over, nearly the whole of the present territory of Watertown. There were within these limits a few tracts of land, of uncertain or unascertained extent and dimensions, called Commons, devoted to the common use or benefit. There was the meeting-house lot of 40 acres, sometimes called the Meeting-house Common. Neither its situation, boundaries, nor dimensions are mentioned in the records; but it is pretty clearly inferred, from a collation of the references in the descriptions of grants and possessions, that it was situated between School St. on the West; Belmont St. on the North, and Mount Auburn St. on the S. East. "Fifteen acres of upland upon the Meeting-house Common were granted to" Rev. George Phillips. Rev. John Sherman, was allowed to take the wood from a part of it. A part of it was ordered to be sold in 1667 to defray the expense of rebuilding the Mill Bridge. Pequusset Common is the one most frequently mentioned in the records, and it is the one afterwards sometimes called King's Common. It was bounded N. by Cambridge Line; W. by the Great Dividends; S. and E. by the Small Lots. Pequusset Common was distinct from Pequusset Meadow. The latter was a narrow strip of land, a little distance east of Lexington Street, and running south from that Common towards Belmont Street. This meadow was granted in small lots to several proprietors, before the order was passed (May 21, 1638), for appropriating Pequusset Common to the general use. [See p. 996.] The common on the west side of the Great Pond was probably in Waltham. Other lots were granted to aid objects of general interest, viz., the wear and the mill. A small lot on the river was reserved for a public landing.

§ 82. There were small tracts of marsh on the border of Charles River, of which there is no schedule of the grantees or proprietors, but they are mentioned in the summaries of grants and possessions. They bore a very high price in proportion to that of any other land, as may be seen in inventories; but they are not mentioned in the valuations of land for the purpose of assessments. Most of them were probably disposed of at, or very soon after, the first planting of the town. There were, however, instances of grants of marsh land as late as 1635, as in the case of Mr. William Paine, who embarked for New England in that year. The town retained for a long time, in various parts of it, several parcels of land, usually called "common land," when mentioned as a boundary, yet probably not devoted to general use, like the commons, already mentioned. Some of them were retained until after the incorporation of Waltham.

§ 83. It does not, I think, appear, either in the colonial or town records, by what tenure or on what terms the freemen of the town held the lands, or were authorized to grant them to the townsmen. With the few following exceptions of grants made by the Court, they appear to have been all granted and allotted by the freemen of the town; and they made no grants, beside the Small Lots, until after the civil affairs of the town began to be "ordered" by a board of selectmen, in 1634. In Nov., 1632, the Court granted to Mr. George Phillips 30 acres of land "up Charles River, on the south side, beginning at a creek a little higher than the pines, and so upwards towards the wear." This is probably the 30 A. lot of meadow, which in the list of Mr. Phillips's grants, is described as bounded "the West with the river, the S. E. [S. and E.] by Cambridge Line." We should suppose, from the description of the grant in the colonial records, that the lot was nearly opposite the U. S. Arsenal, and that it was within the limits soon afterwards assigned to Cambridge. It is not easy to reconcile the two descriptions. [See sections 30 and 31.] On the 1st of April, 1634, the Court granted Mr. John Oldham 500 acres of land, "lying near Mount Feake, on the Northwest of Charles River." [See pp. 382 and 361.] This grant was made before the western boundary of Watertown was determined by the Court, and before any grants had been made by the freemen of the town, besides the small lots. On March 3d, 1635-6, at the same time, and in the same order that determined the western boundary of the town, the Court "agreed that Sir Richard Saltonstall shall have one hundred acres of meadow, to be set out indifferently by John Pratt and William Rescue." This, also, was a few months before any grants had been made besides the small lots. In the schedule of possessions made a few years afterwards, this lot is described as "remote meadow, bounded with the farm land." It was contiguous to the farm of 200 acres, and to the 100 A. lot in the Great Dividends, both not long afterwards granted to him by the freemen of the town. The foregoing three grants appear to be the only ones made by the Court within the limits of the town, and none was thus made after the western boundary was determined.

§ 84. There was an early map or plan of Watertown in the possession of the late Abner Sanderson, Esq., of Waltham. It was lent to a gentleman engaged in historical investigations, and unfortunately destroyed by a conflagration in Boston, in 1825, and no copy of it left. It was probably made by Abraham Browne, as it was done in 1640, while he was the town surveyor. This loss leaves it very difficult to determine the exact positions, where some of the first planters settled. In order to do this, it would be necessary to construct a plan of the town from the schedules of possessions. These give the number of acres in each lot with its surroundings; but their dimensions are not given, and it is evident that they were very irregular. According to the descriptions, the roads and the boundaries of lots nearly all ran parallel with the lines of latitude and longitude, yet, these seem to be the only directions in which they did not run. Some highway, road, or lane, is generally given as a boundary, but it is seldom named, and when named, not always clearly identified at this time; for, since that time, other roads have been laid out, and some of the old ones vacated or changed. In laying out the lots and roads, the surveyor seems to have made no use of chain or compass.

§ 85. It is probable that, of the homestalls and homelots, allotted to the first planters, few or none exceeded 16 A. They varied from this to one acre, and their average was probably about 5 or 6 Acres. In the schedules of possessions there are several much larger homestalls, a few of which were grants; but it is very doubtful whether any of them were made at first. William Jennison had a homestall of 50 A. granted him; but, as in the case of Abraham Browne, John Warren, Isaac Sterne, Ephraim Child, W. Hammond, and others, he had at first a smaller lot granted him nearer to the river, and the large lot was probably a subsequent grant. It is certain that most of the homestalls exceeding 16 A. were not grants to the possessors, and that very few of the holders of large homestalls were first planters. The records show that, in some instances, they were acquired by purchase, and made up of several small lots, obtained of grantees, who migrated early to other plantations; as in the case of Jeremiah Norcross, whose homestall of 26 A. was composed of 4 lots, purchased of different persons. John Benjamin, who moved from New Town to Watertown about 1637, had a homestall of 60 A., probably obtained and made up in the same manner, as no part of it was granted to him. In some instances they were obtained partly by grant and partly by purchase, as in the case of Simon Stone, who had a homestall of 50 A., of which only 12 A. were granted, and the rest purchased of several different persons. The diminutive size and great number of the small lots led to frequent early changes in proprietorship, and this circumstance enhances very much the difficulty, already referred to, of determining the spots, where the primitive settlers first planted.*

§ 86. 2d. The Great Dividends. After the small lots, the earliest general grant of lands by the freemen was that of the Great Dividends, dated "July 25, 1636." "A grant of the Great Dividends [allotted] to the freemen [and] to all the Townsmen then inhabiting, being 120 in number. The land being divided into four divisions, every division being 160 rods in breadth,—beginning next to the small lots, and bounded with Cambridge Line on the North side, and with the Plowlands on the South. To be laid out successively one after another (all the meadows and cartways excepted), for them to enclose or feed in common." These four divisions were sometimes called the Squadrons, and the lines dividing them, the Squadron lines. These divisions are said "to begin next to the small lots," but it is difficult to determine this line exactly. Pequusset Meadow is described as bounded on the North by Cambridge Line, and on the West by the Great Dividends. It is conjectured that the Dividends began not far from the present boundary between Watertown and Waltham, and that for some distance these were bounded by the road (now Warren St.), which was the western boundary of the Town Plot.

The following are the names of the grantees, with the number of the lot and the number of acres. The dividends were numbered from the south 1, 2, 3, 4; the 4th being bounded N. by Cambridge Line. Many of the lots changed owners before 1644, and the name of the purchaser follows that of the grantee, in these tables.

§ 87. The First Great Dividend, beginning at the small lots at the East, was bounded on the South by the Beaver Brook Plowlands; running W. N. W. as follows:

§ 91. 3d Beaver Brook Plowlands. The next general grant of land was that of the Beaver Brook Plowland, partly meadow, and partly upland, the record of which is as follows: "1636 [36-7], Feb. 28. A grant of plowlands at Beaver Brook Plains, divided and lotted out by the freemen to all the Townsmen then inhabiting, being 106 in number, allowing one acre for a person, and likewise for cattle valued at £20 the head; beginning next the Small Lots beyond the wear, and bounded with the Great [Dividend] Lots on the north side, and Charles River on the south, divided by a cartway in the midst; the first lot to begin next the river, the second on the north side of the cartway, and to be laid out successively until the lots are ended." It is probable that the grant was made in Sept., 1636, when a committee was appointed to "devise to every man his propriety of Meadow and Upland that is plowable, and the rest to lie common;" and that the date of the record (Feb. 28, 1636-7), was the time when the allotments and schedules were completed. The lands then granted amounted to 741 acres, of which about 285 A. were at the east of Beaver Brook, and were designated, "lots in the Hither Plain," sometimes called the Little Plain. The rest of the lots were situated west of Beaver Brook, and were called the "lots in the Further Plain," sometimes called the Great Plain.

§ 92. The lots in the Hither Plain began at the Driftway (now called Gore St.), and a line continued southwardly, from the S. end of the Driftway, to the river. These lots were arranged or plotted in two series or ranges. One of them was bounded on the south by the river, and on the north by the cartway betwixt lots [Pleasant St.]; and the lots in it were designated by the odd numbers, 1, 3, 5, &c., to 43 or 45, and each lot extended from the cartway to the river. The other series, beginning at the Driftway, were bounded on the south by the cartway betwixt lots, and on the north by the highway, afterwards long known as the Sudbury Road, now called Main Street. Each lot extended from one of these streets to the other, and they were designated by the even numbers, 2, 4, 6, &c., to 36. These two ranges did not extend so as to be contiguous to Beaver Brook. A small strip of land on its eastern border was retained as town or common land.

§ 93. Although the 40 A. lot of Mr. Phillips is placed at the head of the schedule of these grants, it is evident it was within the limits of the Small Lots, and did not properly belong to the Beaver Brook plowland grants, from which it was separated by the Driftway. It belonged to "the small lots beyond the wear," and the grant was probably made to him, at the same time that others, in the immediate neighborhood and contiguous to it, were granted to Sir Richard Saltonstall, Edward How, and Abraham Browne. This improper insertion of the name of Mr. Phillips, will account in part for the discrepancy between the number of grants said to have been made [106] and the number of names on the list [108]. The same thing occurred in regard to the list and allotments of the Town Plot. The name of Mr. Phillips is the first on the list, although his lot was not in the Town Plot, and it was probably granted to him some time before the allotments of that plot.

§ 94. In the grant of the Beaver Brook Plowlands, they are described as "beginning next the small lots beyond the wear." The following is the order of the lots, with the names of the grantees, between Sudbury Road on the north and the way betwixt lots (Pleasant St.) on the south, beginning at the way to the Little Plain (Howard St.). 1st. The homestall and adjoining homelots of Abraham Browne, 40 A. 2d. A lot of 12 A. granted to Edward How, and by his heirs sold to Robert Harrington, from whom it passed to his son Edward, and after probably to his grandson Edward. 3d. A 40 A. lot granted to Rev. George Phillips, and by his heirs sold to Edward Garfield, about 1650. This was bounded on the west by the Driftway, which was the boundary between the Small Lots and the Beaver Brook Plowlands. In the Inventory of E. Garfield, this lot is described as "on the Little Plain, near Sudbury Road," and it was then (1672), appraised at £60. In late times it became the elegant residence of Governor Gore, and it now belongs to J. S. Copley Greene, Esq. Immediately south of this lot of Mr. Phillips, and separated from it by the cartway betwixt lots, was a 20 A. lot of plowland, granted to Sir R. Saltonstall. It was bounded on the west by the first lot (John Whitney's) in the Beaver Brook Plowlands, and his son Samuel afterwards sold it to Whitney. As this lot was bounded W. by the land of Whitney, it appears that the Driftway did not extend to the river. Situated E. and S. E. of this lot of Sir Richard, between the river and Pleasant Street, were lots belonging to John Knight, Edward How, Joseph Morse, Richard Woodward, and Abraham Browne.

§ 95. The lots in the Further Plain (in later times called Waltham Plain), beginning at Beaver Brook, were bounded on the south by Charles River, and on the N. by the Great Dividends, or "common land." They were plotted in two ranges, like those in the Hither Plain, and separated from each other by Sudbury Road, now called Main Street. The range next the river were designated by the odd numbers, continued from the Hither Plain, beginning No. 45, and each lot extended from the river to Sudbury Road. The other range, on the north side of the highway, were designated by the even numbers, continued from the Hither Plain, and each lot extended from Sudbury Road to Great Dividend lands.

The following table shows the names of the grantees in each of the four ranges, their order of arrangement, and the number of acres granted to each. Many of the lots changed proprietors before 1644, and the second name to a lot is that of the purchaser. The year, added in a few instances, shows that the sale took place at a later date than 1644.

§ 96. 4th. Remote or the West Pine Meadows. The next general grant of lands was made only a few months after that of the Beaver Brook Plowlands, and the following is the record of it. "1637, June, 26. A grant of the Remote or West Pine Meadow, divided and lotted out to all the Townsmen then inhabiting, being

* In the list of S. Freeman's possessions, this lot is included as a grant. This is probably a mistake, unless Gay had relinquished it to the town.

114 in number, allowing one acre for a person, and likewise for cattle, valued at 20lb. the head, beginning next the Playne Meadow, and to go on until the lots are ended. Granted to Robert Feake, forty acres; to Edward How, twenty-four acres." By comparing this order with that granting the Beaver Brook Plowlands, it will be seen that in each of them the same rule was adopted as to the quantity of land allotted to each individual. The lots were numbered, with the number of acres in each, with the exception of those of R. Feake, and E. How, which seem to have been distinct from the others. These meadows were probably in the southern and southeastern part of Weston; but their location and dimensions have not been ascertained, nor has it been discovered that there was any regular order or series in the arrangement of the lots.

§ 97. 5th. Town Plot, Township, Town Lots. July 30, 1635, it was "Agreed, by the consent of the freemen, that two hundred acres of upland near the Mill shall be reserved as most convenient to make a township." This was a year before any of the general grants of land were made; but the records do not show that there was any order for the survey or allotment of this reservation until Ap. 9, 1638, when it was ordered that the Selectmen "shall have power to give out the land upon the Town Plots to several persons, according to their discretions." At a town meeting, two weeks later (Ap. 23), it was "Ordered, that those freemen of the congregation [to whom these lots were assigned] shall build and dwell upon their lots at the town plot, and not to alienate them by selling or exchanging them to any foreigner, but to the freemen of the congregation; it being our real intent to sit down there close together, and, therefore, these lots were granted to those freemen, that inhabited most remote from the meeting-house, and dwell most scattered." [See p. 996.] At the date of this order, it is probable that the meeting-house was at the east of Mount Auburn.

§ 98. There has been much perplexity in ascertaining, or even conjecturing, where this reservation for a town plot was located; for there is nothing in the town records indicating its locality, boundaries, or dimensions. We have, however, after a careful collation and analysis of circumstantial data, arrived at a conclusion, which is satisfactory, if not clearly demonstrable, viz.: that it was that tract of land, bounded E. by Lexington St., S. by Sudbury Road (Main St.), N. by Belmont St., and W. by that continuation of Belmont St. (a part of which is now called Warren St.), where it turns to the south until it intersects Main Street. A road ran E. and W. through the middle of it, now called Warren Street. There was one range of lots on the south side of Belmont St.; one on the north, and another on the south side of Warren St., and a fourth range on the N. side of Main St., (Sudbury Road). As no penalty was attached to the order, requiring the grantees to build and settle on their lots, and forbidding their alienation to any except freemen, the order appears to have been entirely disregarded, as it is clear that very few, if any, of the grantees ever resided on them. The greatest part of the lots very soon passed into other hands, and in many instances to those who were never admitted freemen, or not until a long time afterwards.

§ 99. In the volume of town records containing the other schedules of possessions, is the following list of the grantees of the town plot. The name and lot of Rev. George Phillips is at the head of the list, although, as in the schedule of the Beaver Brook Plowlands [Sect. 93], this lot was not in the town plot, but on the east side of Lexington Street. At least three lots (6 A. to John Whitney, Sen.; 6 A. to John Sherman; and 8 A. to T. Arnold), were granted in this plot, after the following list was recorded. "1638, Ap. 9. A Division of land at the Town Plot, No. 40. George Phillips, 12 Acres; Robert Feake, 9 A.; Richard Browne, 9 A.; Daniel Patrick, 9 A.; Winifred Woolcott, 6 A.; John Firmin, 6 A.; Samuel Hosier, 6 A.; Simon Stone, 6 A.; John Smith, 6 A.; Simon Eire, 6 A.; Edmund James, 6 A.; John Doggett, 6 A.; Nicholas Busby, 6 A.; Richard Beers, 6 A.; John Coolidge, 6 A.; Edmund Lewis, 6 A.; John Stowers, 6 A.; Barnaby Windes, 6 A.; Hugh Mason, 6 A.; Frances Onge, 6 A.; Samuel Freeman, 6 A.; Henry Bright, Jr., 6 A.; John Nicarson, 6 A.; David Fiske, 6 A.; Henry Dow, 6 A.; Gregory Taylor, 6 A.; John Tomson, 6 A.; Thomas Hastings, 6 A.; Daniel Pierce, 6 A.; Charles Chadwick, 6 A.; Edward How, 9 A.; John Eaton, 3 A.; John Smith, Jr., 3 A.; Isaac Mixer, 6 A.; Edmund Blois, 6 A.; John Baker, 3 A.; Abraham Browne, 6 A.; William Potter, 4 A.; Thomas Philbrick, 3 A.; Thomas Carter, — A." The reservation ordered for a township was to contain 200 A.; but the above grants, deducting that of Mr. Phillips, amounted to 238 Acres. To this, are to be added the lots subsequently granted to Whitney, Sherman, and Arnold.

§ 100. 6th. Lieu of Township Lots, or lots beyond the Further Plain. On the 17th July, 1638, three months after the allotment of the Township Lots, it was by the freemen "Ordered, that all those freemen that have no lots at the Township, shall have 12 Acre lots beyond Beaver Plain, and all other townsmen shall have 6 Acre lots in [(?) beyond] the said Plain." The lots thus granted, are those often mentioned in inventories and lists of possessions, as Lieu of Township land. They were situated at the west of Waltham [Beaver] Plain, immediately south of the Great Dividends, and extended westward beyond Stony Brook. The names of at least 67 grantees are found in the records, and their lots amounted to about 800 acres. The lots were all numbered, but the records do not show that there was any regular order or series in the arrangement of them.

§ 101. On the same day (July 17, 1638), that the Lieu of Township land was granted, it was "Ordered, that all the land lying beyond the Plowland and the lots granted in lieu of the township, having the Great Dividends on the one [North] side, Charles River and Dedham bounds on the other [south] side, and the Farm lands at the farther end [west side] of it, shall be for a common for cattle, to the use of the freemen of the town and their heirs forever, and not to be alienated without the consent of every freeman and their heirs forever." This was called the Freemen's Common. Notwithstanding this attempt at absolute perpetuity, on the 27th Nov., 1639, the freemen granted this tract conditionally to the Farms. [See Section 81.]

§ 102. 7th. The Farms, or Farm Lands. The first notice in the records of the Farm lands is in the preceding order, concerning the Freemen's Common. Three months afterwards (Oct. 14, 1638), it was "Ordered, that the Farms granted shall begin at the nearest meadow to Dedham Line, beyond the line that runneth at the end of the Great Dividends, parallel to the line at the end of the town bounds [Sudbury Line], and so to go on successively from Dedham bounds, in order as they are given out, as they which are deputed to lay them out shall see good, and appoint the proportion of meadow, being twenty acres to one hundred and fifty acres of upland." At the same time it was "Ordered, that Daniel Patrick, Abraham Browne, John Stowers, Edmund Lewis, and Simon Eire, or the major part of them, shall lay out the Farms as they are ordered." The next year (Nov. 27, 1639), it was "Ordered, that if the Land in view for Farms shall not suffice to accommodate the rest of the townsmen that are behind, that then they shall have their farms out of the Freemen's Common, upon the same condition that the rest have theirs."

§ 103. In the Files of the County Court, is the following document. The summaries in brackets, here inserted, are not in the original; and a name in brackets, following that of a grantee, shows who had become proprietor of the lot previous to 1644. This order for allotting the Farms by 10 in a division, and with the lots so numbered, is by no means lucid, and is, indeed, enigmatical. "1642, 3 m. 10 d. Ordered [by the town], that all the townsmen that had not farms laid out formerly, shall take them by 10 in a division, and to cast lots for the several divisions, allowing 13 Acres of upland to every head of persons or estates."

"This is a true copy, taken out of a transcript of the Town Book of Watertown, this 7 (2), 1668, (signed), John Sherman. Confessed in Court, by Mr. John Sherman, 6 (2), 1669, Thomas Danforth."

§ 104. By examining this schedule, it will be found that there are the names of 92 grantees, while the highest number of a lot is 104, and that there are 12 or 13 numbers blank, or without a grantee's name. In one or two instances, the same number is attached to the lots of two grantees, probably, oversights in making the schedule, or in the copy of it. In the introduction to the schedule, mention is made of "farms laid out formerly," that is, previous to May, 1642. A range of lots, on the south side of the highway [? Sudbury Road], was laid out to the following persons, whose names are not in the preceding schedule. The 1st lot in the range, adjoining Sudbury Line, was that of Bryan Pendleton, by him sold to Peter Noyes, and very early purchased by George Munning. The next, adjoining it on the east, was that of Daniel Patrick; next, Simon Eire, 200 A.; next, John Stowers, 130 A.; next, Abraham Browne, 130 A.; next, John Whitney, 120 A.; next, Edward How, 200 A.; next, Jeremiah Norcross, 250 A.; next, Thomas Mayhew, 250 A. To these may be added the following names, not found in the preceding schedule, viz.; Sir Richard, 300 A., granted to him by the General Court, which farm passed to his son Henry; Edmund Lewis, 100 A.; Edward Garfield, 100 A. It will be perceived that the committee of Oct., 1638, to lay out the farm lands, was composed of persons here named, and not contained in the schedule, and, that during three years and a half after their appointment, they seem to have laid out few besides their own farms.

§ 105. It may be seen, in the order for the laying out the Great Dividends, that all the meadows within them were excepted. Among these were Patch Meadow, whose location has not been clearly ascertained; Pond Meadow, in the N. E. part of Waltham; Rock Meadow, on the borders of the upper part of Beaver Brook, and situated partly in Watertown [Waltham], and partly in Cambridge [W. Camb. and Lex.]; West Meadow, on the northern border of the town, adjoining Cambridge [Lex.], but the exact location not ascertained. Numerous proprietors of lots in these meadows are found in the schedules of possessions and inventories. Besides the Beaver Brook Plowlands, a considerable number of meadow lots on Beaver Brook were held by different persons. Perhaps, these were identical with Rock Meadow. Other meadows are mentioned, of which we know very little. Chester Meadow, was on Chester Brook, the outlet of Sherman's Pond. Edward Garfield, in his Will, mentions a "meadow further side of Chester Brook, called Plane Meadow," and in his Inventory, it is called Chester Meadow. Pequisset Meadow [See Section 81]. Several small tracts of meadow, not designated by distinct names, were situated among the Small Lots. Cherry Meadow, was probably on Cherry Brook, a W. branch of Stony Brook. Crooked Meadow, Long Meadow, Slendergut Meadow, &c.

§ 106. For much additional information respecting the allotment of lands; regulations for fencing and feeding in common; for surrounding the plowlands in common enclosures, &c., see the transcript of the original records, as printed, pp. 995 &c.

§ 107. There was much dissatisfaction among the Watertown people, with the early allotments of the Remote Meadows, the lands in lieu of township, and of the farm lands, which led to much contention and repeated surveys. Jan. 10, 1647-8, Mr. Bisco, Lieut. Mason, and Isaac Stearns, were appointed a committee "to determine the wrong in laying out the Remote Meadows;" and at the same time a committee of 7 (Lieut. Mason, John Coolidge, Dea. Hastings, Mr. Bisco, John Sherman, John Warren, and Mr. Pendleton), was appointed to consider the disputes "about lands in lieu of township." The dissatisfaction and contention continued many years, at least until 1663, and it was probably this state of affairs, that acquired for a considerable tract of land, in the S. W. part of Watertown, the name of "the land of contention," terms frequently occurring in deeds. About 1663, this part of Watertown was again surveyed and plotted out by Capt. John Sherman, in order to be allotted to those to whom it was granted. It contained 1102 acres, including that covered by water, and was bounded on the south by Dedham; west by Natick and Sudbury, otherwise by Watertown farm-land. There is in the county records a delineation of the outline of this tract, as surveyed, but not a plot of the farms within it.

SOIL, FORMATION OF THE LAND.

§ 108. For an account of the soil, and of the formation of the land, within the three precincts of Watertown, we must rely chiefly upon the descriptions of them by those who resided there, and were very competent observers.

§ 109. Rev. Dr. Francis, in his History of Watertown, says: "The soil of Watertown is in general remarkably good. A portion of the southeastern extremity of the town is sandy, poor, and barren; but with this exception, the land is among the best and most productive in the Commonwealth. The soil consists for the most part, of black loam, having a substratum of hard earth, so that it suffers little comparatively from drought in the summer. There is [in 1830], very little woodland in the town, nearly all the land having been cleared and cultivated." We may infer, from the early records, printed in the preceding pages, and from the subsequent records, that it was not well wooded at the first settlement, as strict orders were passed very early to prevent the destruction of trees; as trees, single or in small numbers, were sometimes granted or accepted as a compensation for debt or service, and individuals were sometimes permitted by a town order, to take dead trees on the common land. Townships are rarely found, especially in New England, where so very large a proportion of the land is well adapted to tillage, and where there is so very little broken or waste land, as in Watertown.

§ 110. There are few hills of any considerable elevation, and only two or three appear to be named in the early records. The first is Strawberry Hill, repeatedly mentioned in the early schedules of possessions. There has been much perplexity and uncertainty, as to its locality; whether it was identical with Schoolhouse Hill, or was situated farther north, near the Cambridge Line, or a little west of Fresh Pond. It is stated, on page 47, on what then seemed to be sufficient grounds, that the 50 Acre homestall of Capt. Jennison, was situated on the northern side of Belmont Street, where J. P. Cushing, Esq., now resides. This homestall was bounded on the north by the lot of Thomas Philpot, which lot was bounded on the north by Strawberry Hill. In 1697, Mary, wid. of William Price, sold to Samuel Livermore her house and 12 acre lot, which was bounded N. E. by Cambridge Line, and west by Philpot's lot. Any evidence, that Philpot had more than one lot of land, had been sought in vain. We now suppose that, after the schedule of possessions was completed, in 1644, and before Philpot became insane, about 1646 or 7, he had purchased a second lot near Cambridge Line, upon which he built a house, and which the town held and rented to various persons, for more than 70 years; that the lot between Jennison's homestall on the south, and Strawberry Hill on the north, was the one sold, in 1651, to John Clary, by order of the Court, to defray the expense of Philpot's imprisonment, and which Clary, in 1688, sold to William Bond, Esq., then proprietor of the Jennison homestall. This supposition is favored by the circumstance that, in the schedule of possessions, the Philpot lot at Strawberry Hill contained, by estimation, 10 acres, while the lot, so long rented by the town, contained between 3 and 4 acres. It now seems to be clearly ascertained, that Capt. Jennison's homestall, of 50 A., was on the north side of Mount Auburn Street [at first called Mill Street], between Common and School Streets, and that Strawberry Hill was identical with School-house Hill, afterwards called Meeting-house Hill. In the Mid. Registry of Deeds, p. 383, is a deed, dated May 25, 1694, by Thomas Underwood and wife Mary, conveying to Nathaniel Fisk "laud on the south side of Strawberry Hill (or the School-house Hill)," bounded east "by highway over the hill by the school-house." This seems to prove the identity of Strawberry and School-house Hills. It is the highest point of land in the town.

§ 111. Whitney's Hill, is supposed to be the same which has of late been called White's Hill. The homestall of John Whitney, of 16 A., bought of John Stickling, was situated east of it [see Whitney, 1 and 60]. Oct. 29, 1697, Joshua Whitney, then of Groton, sold this 16 A. homestall to Corp. [afterwards Dea.] Nathan Fiske, and it was then bounded on the N. by Joseph Sherman, and Henry Spring; E. by Thomas Bond; S. by Lieut. Jonas Bond; W. by N. Fiske. At an early date, John Whitney, Sen., and his sons, had become proprietors on the north and west sides of this hill. In 1644, the homestall of John Whitney, Jr., was on or near the spot where Mr. Charles Whitney now or lately resided, and he owned the lot in the Town Plot at the S. W. corner of Belmont and Lexington Streets. The meeting-house, built about 1695, where Mr. Angier was settled, was at the S. E. angle of the Belmont and Lexington Street cross-roads, and it was ordered to be built between wid. (Hannah) Stearns and Whitney's Hill, and was sometimes described as between the Pound and Whitney's Hill. The Pound was then at those cross-roads, where it was constructed about 1687. Elbow Hill is sometimes mentioned in the description of roads, and was probably nothing more than a declivity in Lexington Street, at first called the Concord Road. The highest point in Mount Auburn Cemetery is less than 100 feet above tide water, and before its present appropriation, this tract, or a part of it, was called Stone's Woods. It does not seem to have been deemed of sufficient height or importance to be designated or referred to in any of the records.

§ 112. A writer in the Mass. Hist. Coll., 2d Ser. III., in describing Waltham [the middle precinct of Watertown], says: "The land in the south part of the town, which runs parallel with Charles River, the distance of two miles, and half a mile in breadth [i. e. the Hither and Further Plains], is very level, and is mostly of a light, sandy soil, not very deep. Adjoining the river it is fertile. The interior of the town is of a hard, loamy soil, upon a gravelly bottom, and tolerably fertile; in general the land is uneven, and in some parts rocky. Almost every farm is or may be fenced with stone-wall, from its own grounds; and probably few towns in the country exhibit more excellent walls. * * * * In the north and westerly parts of the town, the land is much broken, and somewhat hilly, but productive." There are a few high points of land in Waltham, considerably higher than any in Watertown. The highest and most conspicuous is Prospect Hill, about half a mile west of Waltham Plain. It rises with a regular rounded surface, like the back of a porpoise, to the height of 482 feet above tide-water. A large pine tree formerly stood on its summit, and it was one of the first points seen by mariners on approaching Boston harbor. It commands a very wide, diversified, and beautiful prospect. In an ancient record it is called Knapp's Garden. Bear Hill, west of Prospect Hill, and bordering on Weston, has about the same height. Mackerel Hill, near the N. E. corner of the town, is less elevated, but commands a beautiful prospect, including Boston harbor. It has borne this name from a very early date. The first hill within the ancient limits of Watertown, that is noticed in the early records, is Mount Feake, named for Mr. Robert Feake, of Watertown. It was discovered and named by Governor Winthrop and his exploring party, in January, 1631-2. It is too insignificant in magnitude to be entitled a mount, or even to be thus noticed as a hill; and the party must have been in a jocose mood, when they gave it its designation and importance. Much of it has been removed or destroyed of late in the grading of a railroad. There has been, heretofore, some uncertainty about its locality. [See Dr. Kendal's Centennial Sermon, p. 28.] This uncertainty seems to be dispelled. It was near the east border of the Oldham Farm, a little distance S. W. of the western end of the Further [Waltham] Plain. According to the terms of the Grant of the Oldham Farm, in Ap. 1634, it lay "near Mount Feake, on the northwest of Charles River." Mr. Richard Browne had a grant of 12 acres of meadow "at Mount Feake, at the turn of the river," which was bounded W. by the Oldham Farm, and E. by the river.

§ 113. In the appendix to the Centennial Sermon of Rev. Dr. Samuel Kendal, of Weston [the farmers' precinct], he says: "The town is in general uneven, and in some parts, a broken tract of land. High cliffs or ledges of rocks are found within its limits. * * * A considerable proportion of the town is elevated above the common level of the adjacent country, and gives an extensive view of other parts. A hill of excellent land on the southwesterly part of the town presents a very extensive, and, in the month of May, a very romantic prospect. The soil in the elevated and rocky parts of the town is, in general, a deep-red strong loam, very favorable to the growth of fruit trees. There are several tracts of plain land; but these are of no considerable extent. The hills are mostly springy, and very little subject either to frost or drought. A number of brooks and rivulets accommodate the inhabitants, and pay their tribute to the bordering streams. The greatest part of these brooks rise within the town, and are fed by springs. There are few or no stagnant waters, but several tracts of meadow, that abound with excellent peat." No hills are named in Weston, in the early records.

ROADS.

§ 114. The attempt to identify the primitive or very early roads, residences, and other localities, is attended with much difficulty and perplexity, for reasons already stated. [See Sect. 84.] Most of the present roads in the town are undoubtedly of very early date, with slight changes or variations in some instances, but not such as to affect their identity. It is probable, however, that some highways, cartways, and lanes, then made use of to reach the very numerous small lots into which the town was at first divided, were long since vacated, or so changed that they cannot now be clearly identified with the originals. A few of the roads received names very early, and others are so described that they can be clearly identified.

§ 115. The earliest reference to roads in the town records, is in 1635, probably Sept. 14, when it was "agreed, that John Warren and Abraham Browne shall lay out all the highways, and to see that they be sufficiently repaired." In 1636 (probably in Nov.), it was "Ordered, that there shall be an highway left sufficient at the hither end all the great dividends or lots." In 1637, it was "Ordered, that there shall be eight days appointed for every year for the repairing the highways; and every man that is a soldier or watchman to come at his appointed time, with a wheelbarrow, mattock, spade, or shovel, and for default hereof, to pay for every day 5s. to the town, and a cart for every day to pay 19s." Dec. 30, 1637, it was "Ordered, that there shall be a highway between Ephraim Child and Thomas Rogers' ground, lying in Dorchester Field, leading to the Flats." This was probably what was sometimes called Crooked Lane, running between E. Child and John Sherman, who bought Rogers' lot after his decease.

§ 116. The two most important roads, at least the most so at first, were Mill Street and Sudbury Road, the one terminating and the other beginning at the Mill, near to the wear. Mill Street began below Mount Auburn, where Sir Richard Saltonstall began his plantation, and selected his homestall lot, and passing by the ancient graveyard, it extended to the Mill, at the first or lowest falls on Charles River. It did not long retain this name, but acquired that of the Cambridge Road, or the Road to the College, and sometimes the County Road. It has recently been named Mount Auburn Street.

§ 117. The road extending westward from the Mill, was at first sometimes called the Country Road, but it has been much more commonly known as the Sudbury Road, since the planting of that town. It was the County Road, and it is often designated as such in deeds, inventories, &c. It is now Main Street, and it retains this name through Waltham to Weston. It is said that, for a long time, there was more travel on it, than on any other road in the colonies. It was the great thoroughfare from Boston and its vicinity, passing over Boston Neck, through Roxbury, Brookline, New Cambridge (Newton), and over Mill Bridge; thence westward through Watertown, including Waltham and Weston; to the western part of the Colony, to Connecticut, New York, and the Southern Colonies. Some of this travel was diverted by the building of Cambridge Bridge; and still more by the Worcester turnpike. The recent construction of railroads has diverted so much of what was retained, that as a thoroughfare it is now comparatively deserted. It has not been ascertained that the direct road from Cambridge to Waltham, which is very ancient, had any distinct name in very early times, when the first schedules of possessions were made. In later times it has been commonly designated as the Back Road, and recently it has been named Belmont Street. The road now called Lexington Street, beginning at Belmont Street, and extending northward by Elbow Hill, was anciently called the Concord Road. In Dec. 1638, it was "Ordered that the highway leading to Concord, shall be 6 rods broad." Whether that part of Lexington Street, extending southward from Belmont to Main Street, had any distinct designation in early times, has not been ascertained, but the whole of it is of a very early date. What is now called Howard Street, was at first called the Way to the Little Plain, and in later times, the Road to Dirty Green. That part of the present Pleasant Street, extending westward from Howard Street, was at first only a cartway, laid out for the accommodation of the Beaver Brook Plowlands in the Hither Plain; and in the early schedules of possessions, it was commonly called the Way betwixt Lots. [See Sect. 93.] That part of Pleasant Street, extending eastward from Howard Street to the Mill, was called the Way to [along] the River. That part of Common Street, extending northward from Belmont Street, was called Stone Street, and it had that name, where it turned southeastwardly, until it reached Hill Street. That portion of Grove Street, extending northward from Mount Auburn Street, is the one referred to in the following order, passed, May 10, 1642: "Ordered, that an highway being laid out from Justinian Holden's lot, to George Parkhurst's house, six rods wide, and from thence to Richard Beers' lot, 2 rods wide, shall be for the use of the town forever." In the schedules of possessions it is called a Drift Way, and it extended only to R. Beers' lot. Washington Street, was at first called the Way to the Pond, and is frequently so mentioned in the early schedules. It extended directly to the Pond, and did not then turn towards Cambridge, as in the recent maps. There was another road, called Pond Road, north of Cambridge Street, running from Camb. Village, or meeting-house, towards Fresh Pond.

§ 118. The roads between Mount Auburn ["Mill"] Street, on the north, and the river on the south, at the west of Mount Auburn, differed very much from those delineated on recent maps. Ancient roads have been vacated and others laid out, and this greatly increases the difficulty of ascertaining the location of the grants and early possessions in that part of the town. Bank Lane is often mentioned by name, or referred to, in the early description of lots. It began near the Mill Bridge, extended eastwardly through Dorchester Field, passing along at a little distance from the river, and on the south side of Mount Auburn. It then turned northwardly, and was probably the same, which was then sometimes called Water Street. From the notices of it, as a boundary of lots, it may be inferred that its course was not direct, and that there is now no road corresponding with it, except perhaps the S. E. portion of what is now called Grove Street. That part of Common Street, or a road nearly coinciding with it, running southwardly from Belmont Street, over Strawberry Hill, was sometimes called Bowman's Lane. The homestead of Nathaniel Bowman was on the west side of it, at a little distance south of Belmont Street. The present School Street, extending northward from Belmont Street, in the early schedules of grants and possessions, was called Hill Street, and it is often mentioned by that name.

§ 119. On the 24th March, 1640-1, at a town meeting, it was "Ordered, that there shall be a cartway through William Hammond's lot and Edmund James's meadow, and so through the lots of John Warren and Isaac Sterne, to fetch hay from Rock Meadow and the Remote Meadows." It is supposed that this cartway, beginning at Stone (Common) Street, answered to what is now called North Street, but that it began farther north than at present. In 1658, the selectmen ordered "Capt. Mason and Dea. Bright to lay out the highway through Corporal Hammond's land, from Mr. Eire's house to John Biscoe's land." Whether this order refers to a road corresponding in part with the present North Street, or to the northern part of Stone Street, is not clearly ascertained. As before stated, that part of the present North Street, east of Common Street, was then a part of Stone Street. North Street, extending westward, on the south side of Mackerel Hill, passed along near, and nearly parallel to, the northern border of Waltham, and it was known formerly as Trapelo Road. Febr. 7, 1658-9, "Ordered, a highway in the way that goes to Chester Brook," which was the west branch of Beaver Brook. Busby's Lane is often mentioned in the early description of lots. It began at Cambridge Street, east of Mount Auburn, and extended to the small homestall of 2 A. of Mr. Busby, originally granted to John Livermore, and situated on the East Bay of Fresh Pond. It is probable that the southern portions of School Street and of Common Street do not correspond exactly with the ancient streets running in the same direction.

PONDS AND WATER-COURSES.

§ 120. The earliest writers who notice Watertown, mention it as being well watered, and it has been supposed, with good reason, as already stated [Sect. 23], that it derived its name from this circumstance, as, in this respect, no other very early town could be compared with it. Besides the numerous springs noticed by early writers, but whose number and position cannot now be determined, the ponds and water-courses are numerous.

§ 121. When Watertown was first planted and named, Fresh Pond, the largest in the town, was entirely within its limits. After the planting of New Town (Cambridge), the northeastern and smaller portion of the pond was within the bounds of the latter. Since 1754, when the eastern part of Watertown was taken off and annexed to Cambridge, less than one-half of the pond has belonged to Watertown. This pond is renowned for the purity of its water, and for its ice, which is shipped in large quantities to all parts of the world. There are several much smaller ponds in the eastern part of the town to be seen on the map, but too small to have received any permanent designation. Two or three of them are enclosed in Mount Auburn Cemetery, one of which is called Forest Pond, probably the ancient Shallow Pond. Two others are a little further west, and another at the southwest.

§ 122. Farther west, within the bounds of Waltham, is another pond, about three-fourths of a mile long and half as wide, generally known as Sherman's Pond, sometimes, more recently, as Fiske's Pond, and Mead's Pond. Its area is supposed to be about 100 A. In the early records it is sometimes mentioned as the Great Pond, before it appears to have obtained either of the other names. It is within the northern or high grounds of Waltham, and is the source of the ancient Chester Brook, or West Branch of Beaver Brook.

§ 123. About half a mile west of the site of the old Waltham Meeting-house is a pond and an extensive bog, called Beaver Meadow, through which the ancient Chester Brook passes. There is good reason to believe that this bog was formerly covered with water, and was the pond to which Winthrop refers, where "the beavers had shorn down divers great trees, . . . and made divers dams across the brook," thereby making a large pond, and leaving a bog after the dams were destroyed. At a little distance south of this is a small sheet of water of about four acres, now called Lily Pond, having its outlet through Beaver Meadow into Chester Brook.

§ 124. In the western part of the town, as originally granted, were included a part, if not the whole, of Walden's Pond (now in Concord); a part of Sandy Pond, and the whole of Beaver Pond, both now in Lincoln, and a part of Nonesuch Pond, the larger portion of which is within the bounds of Natick.

§ 125. The town was watered on much the largest part of its southern border by the beautiful Charles River, originally called the Massachusetts River. Its average width is eight rods; tide-water extends about three miles above the eastern border of the town, and it is so far navigable for small vessels. At the head of tide-water was a fall, which furnished water-power for the first mill built in the town, and one of the earliest in the colony. [See Mills and Fisheries.] Above this are other falls, furnishing water-power for the Bemis Mills, and for the Upper and Lower Waltham Factories. These water-powers were not, however, made use of until a comparatively late date.

§ 126. Besides several streams, too small to have obtained permanent names, there were a few brooks, branches of Charles River, sufficiently large to furnish water-power for mills. Smelt Brook, having its source in Newton, passes through and enters Charles River within that small portion of Watertown which lies on the south side of the river. Mills have been built on it in Watertown and in Newton.

§ 127. The first considerable tributary to Charles River, on the north side, within the ancient boundary of Watertown, was Beaver Brook. Winthrop says, Jan. 27, 1631-2, "The Governor, and some company with him, went up Charles River about eight miles above Watertown, and named the first brook on the north side of the river (being a fair stream, and coming out of a pond a mile from the river) Beaver Brook, because the beavers had shorn down divers great trees there, and made divers dams across the brook." This brook, which enters Charles River at the lower end of Waltham Plain, is made up of two main branches, which unite about 250 yards from the river. The west branch originates in Sherman's Pond, and after a course of about two miles, passing through Beaver Pond, and through what was long known as the Livermore Farm, but of late as the Lyman Farm, unites with the east branch. The volume of water is sufficient for a mill, which was built upon it, probably by Dea. Thomas Livermore, in the early part of the last century. The eastern and larger branch begins in Lexington (Cambridge Farms), and, passing through the western corner of West Cambridge, and through Rock Meadow, it runs most of its course through the eastern border of Waltham until it joins the west branch. A fulling mill was first built upon it in 1663, and afterwards other mills, on or near the present site of Kendall's Mills.

§ 128. It is evident that Gov. Winthrop did not explore that locality, as he does not give correctly the source of the west branch, nor refer to the other branch. The author of the "Topographical and Historical Description of Waltham," adopting Winthrop's statement, appears to regard the west as the main branch, as the true Beaver Brook, and the eastern branch as a tributary. This must be erroneous. By consulting ancient deeds and surveys of roads, it will be found that the eastern branch, in early times, always bore the name of Beaver Brook, and that the western branch, coming out of Sherman's Pond, was the ancient Chester Brook, upon which Chester Meadow was situated, probably not far below the mill. These were named for Mr. Leonard Chester [see p. 735], and must have received their names very soon after that excursion of Gov. Winthrop, as Mr. Chester arrived in 1633, and left Watertown in 1636. Some modern improvers have given the name Clematis to the middle portion of the ancient Beaver Brook.

§ 129. About 350 rods west of Beaver Brook, a small stream enters Charles River, which has occasioned some perplexity, owing to Winthrop's account of it. It is too small to be deserving notice except for this circumstance. From its relation to Adam's Chair and Mount Feake, as given by Mr. Winthrop, this small stream, now almost dried up, must have been Masters' Brook. Yet he says it was "greater than the former" (Beaver Brook). It is evident, from its channel and its sources, that it could never have had such a magnitude, which is applicable only to Stony Brook, which is a mile west of Mount Feake. The latter bore its present name at least as early as 1640 or '41, and has always retained it; while the small stream, near Mount Feake, has been known as Masters' Brook until a late date. We are compelled to conclude, either that Winthrop, through inadvertence, wrote greater for smaller, or that, upon returning from his excursion, and writing in his journal, his recollection of the localities had become confused.

§ 130. The largest tributary to Charles River, within the ancient bounds of Watertown, is Stony Brook. It originates in Sandy Pond, which is near the north-west border of Lincoln, and is partly within the original bounds granted to Watertown. It runs a S. S. E. course, passing through Beaver Pond, until it unites with Charles River, about two miles above Beaver Brook. Its principal branch is the ancient Stower's Brook, for which, in modern times, a less euphonous name, Hobb's Brook, has been substituted. It originates in a small pond near the eastern border of Lincoln, originally within the bounds of Cambridge Farms (Lexington), and, after a course of about four miles nearly due south, it unites with Stony Brook, about two miles from its junction with Charles River. This is supposed to be the same stream which was sometimes called Four Mile Brook. On the west side and above the junction of Stower's Brook is another smaller branch called Cherry Brook. It is large enough to be used for a small manufactory. It is probable that Cherry Meadow, sometimes mentioned in ancient records, was upon this stream. Stony Brook furnishes valuable water-power, and there are several mills upon it. [See Section 143.]

THE WEAR AND FISHERY.

§ 131. The fishery in Charles River, at Watertown, has always been deemed of considerable importance, but much more so in early, than in latter times. Johnson [Wond. Work. Prov.] says: "This town [Watertown], abounds with several sorts of fish at their seasons, bass, shad, alewives, frostfish, and smelts." Wood [New England's Prospect, 1633] says, "A little below this fall of waters, the inhabitants of Watertown have built a wear to catch fish, wherein they take great store of shads and alewives. In two tides they have gotten one hundred thousand fishes." In the spring of 1632, this wear was constructed by the permission and encouragement of Gov. Winthrop, but without an order, which could be granted only by the General Court. He gave this permission, because, if they had waited for a meeting and order of the Court, the season for fishing would have passed, before the wear could be constructed. At the next meeting of the Court, May 9, 1632, "It was ordered, that the town of Watertown shall have that privilege and interest in the wear they have built, up Charles River, according as the Court hereafter shall think meet to confirm unto them." On the 3d of Sept., 1634, the Court "Ordered, that no man shall fish with a net nearer the wear at Watertown, than the further part of the island in the river, and there also, never to cross the river wholly with any net, except it be at high water or after." Notwithstanding the reasonableness, almost the necessity of the action of the Governor, and the early sanction of the Court, that permission of Governor Winthrop was, not long afterwards, one of the points of accusation brought against him by Dudley, the disaffected and unfriendly deputy Governor.

§ 132. It is not known who took the lead in the construction of the wear, but it is not improbable that it was the energetic and enterprising Mr. John Oldham, whose "house near the wear at Watertown," was burned down in August of that year (1632). [Winthrop, I., p. 87.]

At a town meeting (of the freemen), in Jan., 1635-6, it was "agreed, that there shall be four rods in breadth on each side of the river, and in length as far as need shall require, laid [out] to the use of the wear, so it may not be prejudicial to the Water Mill. Also, one hundred and fifty acres of ground to the wear upon the other side of the river, to be laid out in a convenient place."

§ 133. The orders of the Court, just quoted, imply that the wear was built by or for the town, and was public property. If so, it not long afterwards became private property, and was held in shares. The 150 acres granted by the town, passed with the wear to Mr. Mayhew, and it was confirmed to him by an order of the Court, June 2, 1641, when it was "agreed, that Mr. Mayhew shall enjoy the 150 acres of land on the south side of Charles River, by Watertown wear."

§ 134. On May 29, 1639, Thomas Mayhew mortgaged to Matthew Cradock, of London, one-half of the Mill (which he had purchased of Mr. C.), and six shares in the Wear at Watertown, as security for £240. On Feb. 27, 1639-40, Mr. Mayhew conveyed to Gov. Dudley, for £90, the rent of his wear for the last four years, which is, by lease, let to Robert Lockwood, Isaac Sternes, and Henry Jackson, for six years; also, the river-side and inheritance of the wear forever, subject to a certain mortgage [to Mr. Cradock]. On the 6th of March, 1643-4, for £59.10.2, Dudley sold to Edward How all right and income in the wears in Watertown, except £22.15.6, due from Isaac Stearns and Robert Lockwood. Elder Edward How, by his Will dated June 3, 1644, conveys to his heirs "the wears with all their privileges thereto belonging;" and they continued for many years in the possession of his two sons-in-law. Mar. 30, 1662, Nathaniel Treadway, with Sufferana (How), his wife, sold to Nathaniel Coolidge, all his right in the wears on Charles River, near the Corn Mill; and on May 26, 1663, John Stone, of Sudbury (the other son-in-law of Mr. How), sold to Nathaniel Coolidge, all his right in the river and fishing wears in Watertown, being the one-half thereof.

§ 135. At a town meeting held Ap. 12, 1671, "Upon consideration, that the Indians being like to buy the privilege of the wears and fishing at the river, which the town apprehend will be much to the damage of the town, they being like to be bad neighbors, the town voted, all, as one man, that they were altogether against their having the wears, or that they should set down so near the town." At the same time it was voted to purchase the wears for the use of the town, and a committee was chosen to treat with Nathaniel Coolidge on the subject. From that time the wears have continued to be the property of the town, and have been annually rented at the highest price that could be obtained.

§ 136. At the time of the purchase of the wears of Coolidge, Watertown comprised the territory of Waltham and Weston, and when these towns were incorporated, they retained a joint proprietorship in the wears, which continued until the commencement of the present century. It was finally cancelled at the same time, and on the condition, that they were exonerated from the burden of contributing to the maintenance of the Great Bridge over Charles River. [See Sections 146-155.]

§ 137. Mar. 8, 1742-3, the County Court granted the petition of Richard Beers, and others of Waltham, to construct a wear in Charles River, provided they leave one-third of the river free for fish to pass and repass.

§ 138. As early as 1738, altercations arose between Watertown and the towns situated on the other side of the river, respecting their claims to the fishery. In that year, the people of Newton, Needham, Medfield, and Sherburne, presented to the General Court a complaint against the inhabitants of Watertown, for stopping the course of the fish in Charles River. At the same time a complaint of the same tenor, was presented by the Indians of Natick. The representative of Watertown, Jonas Bond, was directed to defend his constituents in opposition to these petitioners. The complaints and altercations were afterwards frequently reiterated.

§ 139. The number of fish resorting to this river has gradually and greatly diminished since the first planting of the town, especially within the last half century, and the value of the fishery has, of course, declined. The profits of the fishery have of late been divided between Watertown and Brighton, the former receiving seven-tenths thereof, and the latter three-tenths, which division has been the result of litigation.

MILLS.

§ 140. Neither the exact date nor the builder of the first mill in Watertown have been ascertained; but it was probably built, in 1634, by Edward How, at the joint expense of himself and Mr. Matthew Cradock. It was built at the first fall, at the head of tide-water, on Charles River, on "Mill Creek," which was a canal partly or wholly artificial, leaving the river at the head of the falls, where a stone dam was made across the river. It is probably the oldest artificial mill-race or canal in this country that has continued in uninterrupted use. The mill is not mentioned by Wood [New England's Prospect, 1633], who mentions the wear and the falls, where the mill was built; but it was built before August 19, 1635,* when Mr. Edward How sold one-half of it to Mr. Thomas Mayhew for £200, for which Mayhew gave a bond and mortgage for £400, with condition, that if said Mayhew pay said How £200, the bond to be void, else said How shall enter upon the moiety of the mill, as if he had never made sale thereof. Mr. Mayhew bought the other half of the mill of Mr. Cradock, through his agent, Nicholas Davison, and on the 29th May, 1639 (perhaps the day of purchase), mortgaged this half of the mill, with six shares of the wear, to Mr. Cradock, as surety for £240. On the 18th April, 1640, Mr. Mayhew, for £400, sold to Thomas Dudley, Deputy-Governor, one mill, "bought of Edward How, Elder of the Church of Watertown," and of N. Davison, agent of Mr. Cradock of London, subject to the mortgage to Mr. Cradock. This mortgage to Mr. Cradock was redeemed by Mr. Dudley on or before Mar. 7, 1643-4. No evidence has been discovered of the redemption of that mortgage of Mayhew to How, and that bond of Mayhew was one of the items in the Inventory of Mr. How, who died in the summer of 1644. From this statement of the facts, it is not strange that Mr. How should urge his title to the mill with pertinacity; and notwithstanding Winthrop's statement [II. p. 50], which seems imbued with partiality or personal pique,† there is reason to surmise that the official influence, and domineering disposition of his antagonist, gave a shape to the decision of the Court. Gov. Dudley died July 31, 1653; the next September a petition was presented to the General Court, by his executors, requesting that the legatees, to whom "Mr. Dudley gave Watertown Mill, have power to dispose of it for the use of the heirs;" which petition was granted. The greater portion of the mill was probably purchased about this time by Mr. William Paine, first of Watertown, afterwards of Ipswich and Boston. His son, John Paine, of Boston, on the 20th Jan., 1663, conveyed the mill as security to Samuel Appleton, of Ipswich, who had married Hannah, the only daughter of William Paine. [See Paine, p. 384, and also Mid. Deeds, III. 51.] On the 1st Sept., 1676, Samuel Appleton, on behalf of his dr. Judith, sued Caleb Church for the possession of five-sixths of the corn-mill in Watertown. It appears by the Will and Inventory of

* A grant of land was made to the mill in Jan. 1634-5.

† The lead, which Watertown people had taken in resisting Gov. Winthrop's policy of taxation without representation; and their adoption of strict independency, in opposition to his politico-ecclesiastical policy, produced a prejudice against them, in his mind, which on several occasions he ill conceals.

Thomas Dudley, Jr., a grandson of the Governor, that his share of the mill, "in grandfather Dudley gave me," appraised at £40, had not been sold in Nov., 1655, but by the will was directed to be sold. Mr. Thomas Danforth was one of the executors, and probably bought this share, which may have been that one-sixth which did not come into the possession of Mr. William Paine and his heirs. Hon. Thomas Danforth and others, who had become proprietors of the mill previous to Nov. 30, 1686, when they had erected a fulling-mill adjoining to the corn-mill, asked and obtained liberty of the town to build a house on the N. side of the [mill-] stream. Oct. 6, 1710, Mary, daughter of Hon. Thomas Danforth (wife, first of Solomon Phipps, Jr., and afterwards of Thomas Brown of Sudbury), by deed conveyed to her daughters, Sarah and Abial, all her rights in the corn-mills and fulling-mills on Charles River in Watertown. [See p. 197, note.] The subsequent line of proprietors and occupiers of the mills has not been ascertained; but they were for many years occupied by Stephen Cook, Jr., and afterwards by David Learned. In 1653, the mill was rated at £140 for the support of the ministry.

§ 142. The next mill built in Watertown was a fulling-mill, built on Beaver Brook, supposed to be on or near the spot where are now Kendall's Mills. May 30, 1662, Timothy Hawkins sold to Thomas Agar, of Roxbury, fuller, three-fourths of an acre of land, bounded N. and E. by Richard Sawtel; W. by land of Thomas Smith; S. by Wm. Knapp; E. by lands in common [? boundary of Hawkins' whole lot], with all the accommodation of water, for the erecting and maintenance of a fulling-mill in the said place, and on the (?) river that passeth through the same; also the right of way. Dec. 18, 1663, Thomas Agar, fuller, of Wat., sold the same lot of land, with the fulling-mill thereon erected, to Thomas Loveran, late of Dedham, Co. Essex, Old England, cloth-worker. Jan. 3, 1669-70, T. Loveran sold this land and mill to Timothy Hawkins and Benjamin Garfield, described as surrounded on all sides by land of T. Hawkins. [Mid. Deeds, III. p. 52-7, and IV. 72.] A corn-mill was erected there before 1690, of which, at that time, Thomas Rider was proprietor, and mortgaged the mill and 30 acres of land to Dr. Philip Shattuck the next year. In 1700, the mills or a part of them, belonged to Samuel Stearns, son-in-law of T. Hawkins. [Mid. Deeds, XII. 515 and 625.]

§ 143. The next mill in Watertown was on Stony Brook, and probably built at the joint expense of John Livermore, Richard Child, and Josiah Jones, of Watertown, and John Heywood, of Concord. Feb. 19, 1678-9, they bought of Nathaniel Treadway and wife 30 acres, in lieu of township,* bounded S. E. by George Parkhurst, and N. W. by Joseph Underwood. At a town meeting, Jan. 5, 1679-80, it was "granted that the new corn-mill, now set up and to be finished at Stony Brook, be freed from rates for 20 years, from Jan. 5, 1679-80." On Mar. 3, 1683, John Heywood, of Concord, and wife Anna, for £60, sold to John Livermore one-fourth part of Stony Brook Mills; and on Ap. 21, 1684, Josiah [? Lewis] Jones and wife Lydia, for £60, sold to John Bright all his one-fourth share of mills at Stony Brook, viz., 30 acres bought of N. Treadway, and land bought of John Chadwick, with houses, &c. These mills were probably owned some time by Lient. John Brewer, and afterwards, for a long time, known as Bigelow's Mills. [See Section 130.]

§ 144. The mills, built on the three points just referred to, were the only ones in the town for the first seventy, probably the first hundred, years after its settlement. During the last century, at dates not ascertained, several other mills were built within the ancient limits, including Waltham and Weston. One, long known as the Bemis Mill or Factory, was built on the river, about one mile above the "Old Mill." Another, on the river, about a mile and a half further up, was built by John Boies, where the Waltham Factory has since been built; another on Smelt Brook, on the south side of the river; another on the ancient Stower's Brook, of late known as Hobb's Brook; another on the ancient Chester Brook. Since the beginning of the present century, mills, large and small, for various manufacturing and mechanical purposes, have been so multiplied and enlarged, within the original limits of Watertown, as to absorb a large amount of capital, employ nearly or quite all the water-power, and give employment to very numerous families.

* This was probably the 30 A. lot, No. 43, beyond the further plain, granted to Edward How, and sold by his son-in-law, Treadway.

FERRY AND BRIDGES.

§ 145. In the town records there is no notice of any ferry; but in the Colonial Records, is the following license. By the Court, Nov. 5, 1633, "Mr. Richard Browne, is allowed by the Court to keep a ferry over Charles River, against his house, and is to have 2d. for every single person he so transports, and Id. apiece, if there be two or more." The spot where this was kept has not been ascertained. Probably it was a little to the East of Mount Auburn, where he had 2½ A. of marsh, bordering on the river, and 7 Acres of upland, which he sold early to R. Wellington.

§ 146. There are several bridges within the bounds of Watertown, mentioned in the early records. The earliest, and much the most important, was that built over Charles River, at the head of tide-water, very near the first mill, and usually called Mill Bridge, or the Great Bridge. The earliest reference to this bridge is in the records of the General Court, June 2, 1641, when it was ordered that "the toll of Mr. Mayhew's bridge is referred to the Governor and two magistrates, to settle for seven years." The right or privilege of a toll-bridge was not granted, as appears by the record of the Court, for Oct. 17, 1643, when the Court granted Mr. Mayhew "300 acres of land in regard of his charges about the bridge at Watertown Mill, and the bridge to belong to the country."

§ 147. The next May (1644), the Court ordered this grant to be laid out to Mr. Mayhew, and appointed a committee (Peter Noyes and Edmund Goodenow of Sudbury), for that purpose. It was probably located in or near Nashaway; but there is no record of it. It is evident from the transactions not long afterwards, that this was only a foot-bridge; and, although it was "to belong to the country," there was no provision, in the above grant to Mr. Mayhew, for the repair and maintenance of it. Very soon after obtaining that grant, Mr. Mayhew moved to Martha's Vineyard.

§ 148. The following preamble and order, in the records of the General Court, for May 26, 1647, show the origin of the first horse-bridge; and the terms imply that it was the first one ever built across Charles River. "Whereas, complaint hath been made to this Court of the great want of a horse-bridge near unto Watertown Mill, and that the want thereof hath hazarded the lives of several persons, and may endanger many more, and for that the best and most commodious place is in the bounds of Watertown, it is ordered by the authority of this Court, that there be a sufficient horse-bridge made over the river there, by the inhabitants of Watertown, before the first of the 9th month [Nov.], next ensuing, upon pain of forfeiture of £10, and after that 10 shillings a day to the country, till it be made up as aforesaid."

§ 149. Watertown did not immediately comply with this order; for, on the 11th of November, 10 days after the time assigned for finishing the bridge, the Court "granted the town of Watertown to the first of the 4th month [May] next, upon the penalties prefixed to the former order; also, they have chosen Mr. Hibbens, Mr. John Glover, the surveyor-general, and Edmund Rice, before the first of the first month [March] next, to view and appoint a place to put up the bridge for the benefit of the country and town within the bounds thereof." At a town meeting Dec. 28, 1647, "the town appointed Mr. [Nathaniel] Biscoe and Isaac Stearns to consider how the bridge, over the river, shall be built, and to agree with the workmen for doing it according to their best discretion." As it was not completed in the time specified, upon petition the Court granted that Watertown shall "have till the 10th of the 7th month [Sept.] next, for building their bridge, under the former penalty in the last Court order." When the bridge was completed, does not appear in the records, but on the 28th of the next November (1648), the selectmen ordered payments to be made to Mr. Biscoe and Isaac Stearns for work done at the bridge.

§ 150. The construction and materials of the bridge were so defective, that it required not unfrequently to be repaired or rebuilt; and, for the first hundred years, Watertown felt the building, rebuilding, and maintainance of it to be a heavy burden, and repeatedly asked aid from the county, but without success. It appears in the above cited grant to Mr. Mayhew, that the bridge was "to belong to the country," not to the town, and in the order of the Court, the committee were "to appoint a place to put up the bridge for the benefit of the country."

§ 151. In less than twenty years it was found necessary to rebuild the bridge, and in Nov., 1667, the selectmen ordered that the land on the Meeting-house Common, upon the W. side of the way from the meeting-house to pastor Sherman's house, shall be sold, and the pay to go towards building the bridge at the Mill; and in the same month the land was sold to John Coolidge, Jr., for 20 shillings per acre. The selectmen agreed that the bridge should be built with baskets, and in Dec. they agreed with John Coolidge, Jr., to build the bridge for 40 shillings a basket; the baskets to be each 8 feet long, 6 feet broad, and 7 feet between the joints; the town to fill the baskets with stones, to lay the timbers in place, the sill to be laid even with the ground; the bridge to be half trees, slit with a saw, to be three abreast to each basket, and the bridge to be at least three feet wide, to be done by the first of September. At a town meeting, Dec. 10th, three days after the bargain with J. Coolidge, Jr., it was voted not to allow what the selectmen had done about the sale of the land on Meeting-house Common, and about the bridge. The width of the bridge shows that it was not designed for carriages, but only for horses, cattle, and pedestrians. Whether this scheme of the selectmen for building a bridge was carried out, the records do not show.

§ 152. A committee on the bridge was appointed Aug. 3, 1681, and the next month, Sept. 20, £14 was put in the hands of Caleb Church, the miller, to procure liquor, as cheap and good as he can, for the comfortable carrying on the work at the bridge. Mar. 28, 1684, the selectmen desired Caleb Church, to make the bridge over Mill Creek, the old bridge being carried away by the flood. The bridge over the river appears to have been destroyed before May, 1694; for in that month the selectmen and surveyors agreed with John Barnard, Jr., for the carpentry of Mill Bridge, he to provide 5 or 6 hands, if he can; he to have 3s. 6d. per day and find himself, and the hands half a crown a day, and find themselves. The bridge was not immediately built, for on July 24, 1695, the town voted that Ensign Barsham, David Fiske, and Daniel Warren, Jr. (surveyors), take care that there be a bridge built over Charles River, as near the place where it stood before as may be conveniently, and that it be a foot bridge; also that Corp. (Joseph) Sherman, Ensign (John) Hammond, Serj. (Samuel) Thatcher, and John Stacey, be added to the surveyors, in advising how, &c. Sept. 6, 1695, there was a presentment against the town for want of a bridge over Charles River, to which it was replied that it was repairing. Again, as early as 1714, there was a presentment for the want of a bridge over Charles River, and the town appointed a committee in May, 1713, and again in May, 1714, to apply to the Court to have Charles River Bridge maintained by the County of Middlesex. June 8, 1714, the Court do not see cause to comply with the petition of sundry principal inhabitants of Watertown, but dismiss the same. The next month, July 13, the selectmen of Watertown, appearing in Court to answer the presentment of said town for want of a bridge over Charles River, near the Mill, the Court, upon view of the record of the Honorable [General] Court's grant of land for charge about the bridge, by or near Watertown Mill, asserting the bridge to belong to the country, the Court dismissed the presentment for the present, they paying the fees. The next year, July 5, 1715, the selectmen appearing in Court on the same presentment, say the bridge was built at the charge of the country, and was so to remain, as appears from a copy of a record of the General Court (referring to the terms of the grant to Mr. Mayhew), and the Court continued the consideration thereof, till the next Quarter Sessions. The same subject coming before the Court the next year, Ap., 1716, the Court, finding that Watertown has maintained and supported a foot and horse bridge over said river, upwards of fifty years, order Watertown to repair said bridge forthwith.

§ 153. In the present state of private and public pecuniary resources, and the great progress made in civil engineering, the building of a bridge over Charles River would be regarded as a very trifling, unimportant enterprise. But it was not so in early times. For the first eighty years after its settlement, the whole assessed value of Watertown was less than a twentieth part of the estate of a single inhabitant at this time. The expenses of supporting the ministry, schools, the government, and paupers, the building and repairing of meeting-houses and school-houses, the making and repairing roads, and the occasional heavy charges and losses resulting from Indian warfare, occasioned a very heavy taxation. As an illustration of this, it may be observed, that the annual expense of supporting the ministry alone, in the time of the Rev. John Sherman, was about two per cent. upon the whole assessed value of the town. Under these circumstances, it is not strange that Watertown should often complain of being compelled to maintain "the Great Bridge," for the convenience of the country, at their own expense.

§ 154. Upon the incorporation of Weston and of Waltham, one of the stipulations upon which the rest of the town consented thereto, was that those towns should continue to render their proportional aid in the maintenance of the Great Bridge; and this arrangement continued until the commencement of the present century. In the records of the several towns may be found frequent reference to this business. For an account of the time and manner in which this joint responsibility was cancelled, and the whole devolved upon Watertown, see Francis, p. 116; and Section 136.

§ 155. The other bridges mentioned in the early records were those over Beaver Brook, Stower's Brook, Smelt Brook, and Chester Brook. The first mention of the bridge over Beaver Brook (in Sudbury Road, now called Main Street) was Oct. 8, 1673, when the selectmen paid for "a gallon of liceur at the putting down of Beaver Brook Bridge." There was a presentment against the town in 1695, and again in 1705, for want of a bridge over Smelt Brook. At the last presentment, Jonas Bond, Esq., in behalf of the selectmen, answered, it was a shallow place, and a good bottom, and needed not a bridge; yet the Court ordered that the said way be forthwith mended on pain of paying £5. In April, 1713, the town was presented for suffering the bridge over Stower's Brook, in the upper way [the road leading to Lincoln], orderly laid out, to be defective. It was answered that there never was a bridge over Stower's Brook at that place. The next December, a report was accepted as to the way called The Old Way [crossing the brook near Hobbs's Mill]. In Aug., 1719, the town was again presented for not building a bridge "over Stower's Brook, on the town road ['the upper way'] leading to the northerly Precinct of Weston." Major Jonas Bond, in behalf of the selectmen, presented their plea, that they were under heavy charges for building the Great Bridge; but the Court ordered the way to be speedily repaired. In the preceding January, the town had agreed with Thomas Learned and Capt. Thomas Prentice to rebuild the Mill Bridge over Charles River. A bridge over Chester Brook is sometimes mentioned at an early date, but at what time or place it was first built, has not been ascertained.

§ 156. The Cowpen Farm. Nov. 2, 1649, the town appointed John Sherman to get a pen of one acre, fenced with four rails, for "lodging a herd in the woods, and to procure a small house for lodging the herdsman, towards Sudbury bounds."

Mar. 31, 1651, the selectmen engaged Solomon Johnson, as herdsman, at £25 per annum, and allowed him the use of the house. Dec. 16, 1651, an agreement between the selectmen and Johnson was signed, making him herdsman for seven years. Seven years afterwards, Oct. 1, 1658, another agreement with Johnson, as herdsman, was signed. Sept. 4, 1660, a committee (Serj. Beers and Serj. Bright) was sent to the Cowpen Farm, to examine the condition of the fences, housing, &c., and they reported that Johnson had not performed his covenant; and on the 5th Dec., 1660, articles of agreement were signed by the selectmen and Henry Curtis, relating to the Cowpen Farm, leased to him for seven years, with 40 A. of upland, of which 13 A. are broken up land (leaving out the land of John Sawin), also 20 A. of meadow; the rent free the first year, and he to pay £5 a year for the other six years. At the same time, a committee (Serj. Beers, Serj. Bright, and Nathaniel Treadway) was appointed to run the line between John Sawin and the Cowpen, and to stake out 70 A. for the Cowpen Farm. When this farm was first laid out, by mistake, it encroached upon land of John Sawin, and "to prevent differences," the town agreed, Ap. 12, 1659, to pay John Sawin. This farm of Sawin was the lot in the Dividends originally granted to Bryan Pendleton; by him sold to Peter Noyes; by him sold to George Munnings; by him sold to John Sherman; and in Ap., 1653, repurchased of Sherman by Munnings, in behalf and for the use of John Sawin, his son-in-law, and his grandson, John Sawin, Jr. In Dec., 1661, the following were the boundaries of this farm: W., Sudbury Line; N., Highway; E. by farm land, "which Curtis doth farm;" S., common land. This farm land, cultivated by Curtis, was probably the farm originally granted to Capt. Daniel Patriek. [See Section 104.] Oct. 1, 1662, it was "agreed [by a vote of the town] that the Cowpen doth belong to the farm land," and it was voted, Jan. 18, 1663-4, that Henry Curtis hold the lease until it expires. But, on the 7th Nov., 1664, the town ordered the Cowpen Farm to be sold; and on the same day it was bought by John Livermore, Sen., and given to his son, John, by whose family it was held for a long time. It is probable that the Cowpen ceased to be used for its original purpose, sometime before this sale of it.

GRAVEYARDS.

§ 157. The earliest mention of a burying-place, in the town records, is July 5, 1642, when it was "ordered, that Hugh Mason, Thomas Hastings, and John Sherman, are appointed to set up a sufficient [fence] about The Burying-place, with a five foot pale, and two rails well nailed, by the 15th of 2d [? 7th] month, and the town to pay them for it." The next December 20th, a rate was ordered, and one item was, "for fencing the burying-place, £6 10s." Its location is not described; but it was doubtless what is now known as The Old Graveyard of Watertown. It is at the S. E. corner of Mount Auburn Street [Mill St., or Camb. Road] and Grove Street. It is about half a mile west of Mount Auburn Cemetery. The terms of the above order imply that it was then in use, and well known as the burying-place, and it is probable that it had been used for sepulture from the first planting of the town. If any other lot was used for the same purpose before it, it must have fallen into disuse very soon, leaving no vestige or tradition of its existence. There can be only extremely few, if any, older graveyards in New England, and it was the only one in the town (then including Waltham and Weston) for more than seventy years. In it repose the remains of the Puritan progenitors and kindred of hundreds of thousands of people, not only of those who have lived, or are living, in almost every town and village of New England, but of very many who are dispersed throughout North America. Some evidence of this may be found in the preceding genealogies.

§ 158. The origin of the two next graveyards are of the same date. At a town meeting, Jan. 1, 1702-3, it was "voted that they give liberty to the Society belonging to the Middle Meeting-house [Mr. Angier's], and the Society belonging to the Farmers' Meeting-house, to choose and appoint some convenient place for each Society for burying-places to bury their dead in, or for any others belonging to said town, and make return of their doings therein. 2d. Voted that if the said burying-place or burying-places cannot be procured without paying for them, the inhabitants will pay for them, as they can agree, or as they shall be valued by independent inhabitants mutually chosen." At a town meeting, Oct. 23, 1704, it was "voted, that the town will give Richard Blois three pounds in money, and all the land lying between Capt. Benjamin Garfield's field, Beaver Brook, and the Country Road, and the road leading over Beaver Plain to be four rods wide through said land, the said Blois giving to the town treasurer a deed of the land, as it is already laid out, for the use of the town forever for a burying-place for the middle part of the said town." This land of Blois's was probably the 4 A. lot of upland in the hither plain, granted to his father, Edmund Blois, bounded N. by the highway; W. by common land [i. e. not yet granted]; E. by John Loveran. This land,* conveyed to Blois in exchange for the burying-ground, afterwards belonged to Daniel Flagg, and at a town meeting, Mar. 6, 1720-1, "liberty was granted Daniel Flagg to fence in the Westerly Burying-place in Watertown, making a gate." At a town meeting, Jan. 3, 1722-3, it was "voted to accept of the highway laid out by Daniel Flagg, near Beaver Brook, which is on the side hill, instead of going through the low land, where it was formerly." This is now called Grove Street. This continued to be the only graveyard of Waltham for more than one hundred years. Other lots have of late been appropriated to the same use. We find nothing further in the town records respecting the burying-place of the Farmers (Weston); but it appears by the Mid. Reg. of Deeds, that, previous to May 3, 1704, Mary Sherman (wid. of Rev. John S.) and James Sherman, of Sudbury (ex'rs of Rev. John Sherman) had sold part of a 4 A. lot, near the Farmers' Meeting-house, for a burying-place.

§ 159. The second graveyard, within the present limits of Watertown, is situated at the intersection of Mount Auburn and Common Streets, on the N. side. The date of the appropriation of the land to this purpose has not been ascertained; but it was probably about 1754, when a meeting-house was built there. Since this lot was opened, there have been comparatively few interments in the old, or lower graveyard.

§ 160. Within the present century other graveyards have been laid out, one of which is renowned for its extent, its natural beauties, and all the additional attractions, which wealth and refined taste can give it. But, although Mount Auburn Cemetery is within the limits of Watertown, it cannot, with propriety, be deemed one of its graveyards. It is the burial-place of the wealthy and distinguished of the metropolis of New England, and of a wide region around it. It is situated in the midst of that region of small lots where the first planters of the town first settled, and as it contains more than 100 acres, it probably includes a very considerable number of those ancient homesteads; but their exact localities are not sufficiently well ascertained to determine who were the original grantees of the lands. Deacon Simon Stone had a grant of 12 A. of upland, supposed to be the southern border of the cemetery, and previous to 1644, he had purchased several other adjoining lots, so that, at this date, his homestead contained 50 acres, and probably much of it is embraced within this cemetery. Much of the land in the cemetery is not adapted to tillage, and it long bore the name of Stone's Woods.

INDIANS.

§ 161. The history of Watertown has been very little implicated directly with the Aborigines. It never suffered a hostile invasion by them, and was often a refuge of those who fled from other plantations to escape the atrocities of Indian warfare. It had an Indian name (Pequusset), and it is not improbable that it was an Indian settlement, before the country had become so nearly depopulated by a very fatal epidemic. The advantages of Watertown for planting, beaver hunting, and especially for fishing, must have been attractive to them. We have not discovered that the English settlers ever purchased the territory of Watertown from the Indians, except probably a small claim, in 1638, on the south side of the river. Capt. Roger Clap says, that the ten Dorchester men, from on board the Mary and John, who went up to Watertown on the 31st May, 1630, when they had encamped in Dorchester Field, learned that 300 Indians were in their neighborhood. These were probably the Nonantum Indians; for Nonantum was only a short distance from Dorchester Field, on the other side of the river. It is not improbable that their number, in this instance, was much exaggerated. "Upon a complaint made by Sagamore John and Peter, for having two wigwams burnt, which, upon examination, appeared to be occasioned by James Woodward, servant of Sir Richard Saltonstall, it was therefore ordered that Sir Richard should satisfy the Indians for the wrong done to them (which accordingly he did by giving them seven yards of cloth), and that his said servant should pay unto him for it, at the end of his time, the sum of Ls. [50s]." [Colonial Records, Mar. 8, 1630-1.] On the 4th Sept., 1632, the Court ordered a severe penalty to be inflicted on Richard Hopkins, of Watertown, for selling guns, powder, and shot, to the Indians.

§ 162. At a General Court, Sept. 6, 1638, "it was agreed that the Court of Assistants should take order for the Indians, that they may have satisfaction for their right at Lynn and Watertown." The next spring, Mar. 12, 1638-9, "the Court desired Mr. Gibbons to agree with the Indians for the land within the bounds of Watertown, Cambridge, and Boston." May 13, 1640, by the Court, "it was ordered, that the £23 8 6, laid out by Capt. Gibbons, shall be paid him, vidt., £13 8 6 by Watertown, and £10 by Cambridge; and also Cambridge is to give Squa Sachem a coat every winter while she liveth." The situation and extent of the land purchased at this time are not given; but it was probably the Indian claim to "the wear lands," and Nonantum, on the south side of the river. This conjecture is favored by the circumstance, that Cambridge [Newton] and Boston [Muddy River] were embraced in the commission, and that Watertown and Cambridge paid the expense.

§ 163. In 1671, an attempt was made by Indians to purchase of Nathaniel Coolidge the fishing wears, with their privileges, in Watertown; but this was effectually resisted by the town. [See [28] p. 747, and Section 135.]

§ 164. Although the town was never invaded by hostile Indians, Watertown soldiers and emigrants encountered their full share in Indian wars and massacres. An early and very notable instance was the massacre of Mr. John Oldham, at Block Island, in July, 1636, which was the immediate cause of the exterminating Pequot war. Aug. 25, 1636, soon after the report of this massacre was received, the Governor and Council sent 90 men under four commanders, one of whom was William Jennison (then an Ensign, but made a captain the next March), in three shallops, with orders to put to death the men of Block Island, but to spare the women and children; then to go and demand satisfaction of the Pequods, and if refused, to enforce it. George Munnings, of Watertown, was one of the volunteers in this expedition, and Oct. 28, 1636, the Court granted to him £5, and the fines for a week, "in regard of the loss of his eye, in the country's service in the voyage to Block Island."

§ 165. To carry on this war, Massachusetts agreed the next April 15th, to furnish 160 men, of whom 14 were to be raised in Watertown. Capt. William Jennison, of Watertown, was one of the committee appointed May 17, 1637, "for the present expedition for men, munition, and provisions," for this war, and he was soon after on a committee for apportioning to the several towns an additional levy of 50 men, of whom 4 were to be raised by Watertown. As prompt action was necessary, "the first of the Massachusetts men, that could be raised," consisting of 40 men, were placed under the command of Capt. Patrick, of Watertown, and their departure hastened. Robert Seeley, a Watertown man, who had moved to Connecticut, not long before, was lieutenant, next in command under Capt. John Mason, in that dreadful fight, which exterminated the Pequot nation.

§ 166. Many of the very early towns (as we have attempted to show in another place, Section 48, 49, &c.), were planted chiefly, or in part, by emigrants from Watertown, and a full history of those towns, as Wethersfield, Lancaster, Groton, &c., &c., would show that Watertown planters and their descendants have not been exempt from a full share of the perils and hardships of a border life, often envired by savage neighbors. The history of no war gives a full record of the slain, and of the sufferings resulting from warfare; more especially would this be the case in wars waged by such foes as the American Indians.

§ 167. Besides the massacres of these early plantations, settled by Watertown people, we have the names of some, who did not migrate from Watertown, but went to aid in the defense of those plantations, and fell a sacrifice to their public spirit. William Flagg, was slain at Lancaster, Aug. 22, 1675. Capt. Richard Beers, was slain, and John Chinery, mortally wounded in battle, at Northfield, September 4, 1675, and in the same month John Ball was slain at Lancaster. In the same year, John Sherman, Jr., son of Capt. John Sherman, fell in the Narraganset fight. In Feb., 1675-6, George Harrington, of Capt. Wadsworth's company, was slain at Lancaster. Upon the attack upon Groton, in March, 1676, 40 Watertown men marched to their relief. At a later day, Serj. Jacob Fulham, of Weston, fell heroically in the renowned fight at Lovewell's Pond, May 8, 1725. Lieut. Gersham Flagg, of Woburn, eldest son of Thomas, of Wat., was slain by Indians, July 6, 1690, at Lamprey River.

EARLY MEETING-HOUSES, CHURCHES, AND MINISTERS.

§ 168. As the first settlers "resolved that they would combine into church-fellowship, as their first work," it is very probable that they very soon constructed a house for public worship. Their number was so great from the first, that they could not all be accommodated in any one of the small hastily built tenements, which they must have first erected. One was certainly built before 1634, as the first transaction in the records, after the distinct civil organization of the town, related to the meeting-house. The records do not show when or where it was situated; but as the residences of Sir Richard Saltonstall, Rev. Mr. Phillips, Elder Richard Browne, and of most of those, who were first admitted freemen, were at the east of Mount Auburn, and as that part of the plantation was then designated "the town," there can be little or no doubt, but that the first meeting-house was built there. On the 7th Aug., 1635 (?36), a rate of £80 was ordered to be levied for "the charges of the new meeting-house," which implies that there was another and older one. It is conjectured that this new one was built on the Meeting-house Common, near the old graveyard. It was provided with a bell as early as Feb., 1648-9, when a bill for a bell-rope was ordered to be paid, and the next September a town rate was levied "to build a gallery in the meeting-house."

§ 169. On the 14th of Oct., 1654, it was ordered that a new meeting-house be built between Serj. Bright's [where Mr. J. P. Cushing now resides], and John Biscoe's [N. W. corner of Belmont and Common Streets], and they agreed with John Sherman to build it by the 1st of Sept. 1656, for £400, with the use of the old seats; and a rate of £150 was then ordered to begin with; and, it was agreed that "Cambridge meeting-house shall be the pattern in all points." There was, however, so much dissatisfaction among the people with that site, that, on the 20th of the next February, it was "voted that the site of the meeting-house be determined by Mr. Endicote, Capt. Bridges, and Mr. Aderton [? Atherton]." No record of their decision has been discovered, but it probably resulted in the building of it on the Meeting-house Common, on or near the site then occupied, and it is probable that the house was completed about the time stipulated, as on the 7th of November, 1656, an order was passed "to seat the meeting-house," and the rules were: 1st, office; 2d, age; 3d, estate.* A little more than a year afterwards (Jan. 22, 1657-8), it was ordered, that brother [Edmund] Blois, shall have £3, for looking to the meeting-house. It appears that he held this office until his decease; for, on the 24th of May, 1681, the selectmen chose Benjamin Crispe, "in the room of goodman Blois, to take care of the meeting-house, with a salary of £4 10." This continued to be a place of public worship for the whole town, including Waltham and Weston, until after the resignation of Mr. Bailey, when an earnest controversy arose about the inconvenience of the location, which resulted in a division of the church, and the building a meeting-house at the southeast corner of Belmont and Lexington Streets, on the homestall lot originally granted to Rev. John Knowles.

§ 170. Soon after the decease of the Rev. Mr. Angier, the town was divided into two precincts, with a distinct boundary between them, and distinct and independent ecclesiastical organizations. Soon after this each society built new meeting-houses. The western precinct (Mr. Angier's Society), built theirs a little north of Waltham Plain, near the old Livermore homestead, of late known as the Lyman Place; and in 1723, the Eastern Precinct (Mr. Gibbs's Society), built their new meeting-house, 50 ft. long, and 40 ft. wide, on School-house Hill, afterwards known as Meeting-house Hill, and which is the ancient Strawberry Hill. This continued to be the place of worship until 1754, when a new meeting-house was built near the corner of Mount Auburn and Common Streets.

§ † 170. The first church of Watertown was organized July 28, 1630, and, next after that of Salem, is the oldest in the colony of Massachusetts Bay. [See Sections 11-17.] It was the only church in the town for sixty-six years. Rev. George Phillips was the first and the only pastor for more than ten years. It was the first church that adopted strict Independency, or Congregationalism; and, in this respect, for some time, it stood alone, at least until after the arrival of Rev. John Cotton. For a long time it adhered more strictly to Independency than either of the other churches. We may infer this from Mather's account of the organization of the church; from Winthrop's account of the ordination of Mr. Knowles, and from succeeding ordinations. Mr. John Knowles was ordained pastor, Dec. 9th, 1640, as a colleague of Mr. Phillips.† With the exception of an absence of about seven months on a mission to Virginia (Oct. 8, 1642 to June 20, 1643), he continued a pastor of Watertown about ten years. He is said to have sailed to England in 1650, but the precise date has not been ascertained. This was probably a sudden determination, as he was admitted freeman in May of that year. He was, for about three years and a half, a colleague of Mr. Phillips, who d. July 1, 1644. After this event, he was sole pastor about the same length of time; after which, about the close of the year 1647, Rev. John Sherman returned from Milford to Watertown, and became his colleague. [See pp. 432 and 935.] This shows that Mr. Sherman was not the immediate successor of Mr. Phillips, as has been commonly represented. After the departure of Mr. Knowles, Mr. Sherman continued to be the sole pastor until his decease, Aug. 8, 1685.

§ † 171. These three (Phillips, Knowles, and Sherman) were the only pastors of

* There can be little doubt that a new meeting-house was built at this time; as, in addition to the levy of £150 first ordered, another of £152 16s. 1½d. was ordered Nov. 9, 1655, and the same sum again Dec. 2, 1656, soon after the time stipulated for its completion.

† See Section 15. It is probable that the principles of Independency, imbibed in Watertown, by those who first planted Wethersfield, was the occasion of the early ecclesiastical strife in Connecticut. It is also to be noticed that the sensible and eogent memorial of Woburn Church, in 1653, against ecclesiastical tyranny, and advocating Independency, was signed by several emigrants from Watertown, and that the first subscriber was John Knight. [Mass. Hist. Coll., 3d Ser., I., p. 38.]

Watertown for the first fifty-five years. But, in the meantime, there were several clerical men and ruling-elders residents of the town. It is said [Hist. of Glastenbury, p. 31], that the Rev. Richard Denton came to Watertown in 1634, and the next year went to Wethersfield. This is not improbable, although no confirmation of it is found in the Watertown or Mass. Colonial Records. Rev. John Sherman, before mentioned, came over in 1634, and resided in Watertown until he was dismissed from Watertown Church to Wethersfield in May, 1635. Mather says that, on a thanksgiving-day in Watertown, "Mr. Sherman preached his first sermon as an assistant to Mr. Phillips," in the presence of "many other divines," who "wondered exceedingly" at this early display of his ability. He resided in Connecticut about twelve years and a half. In 1636, Mr. Ralph Wheelock and Mr. Henry Phillips went from Watertown to Dedham, with the early planters thereof, as candidates for teacher (i. e. for the ministry). Whether they ever preached in Watertown, the records do not show. Neither of them obtained the pastorship at Dedham. Mr. Wheelock engaged in official civil life in Dedham; afterwards resided in Medfield. It is probable that Mr. H. Phillips also renounced the clerical profession. Between 1637 and 1642, Mr. Thomas Carter and Mr. Henry Greene settled in Watertown, and received grants of land. In the lists of possessions, they are both styled Elders. Mr. Carter was an officer of Watertown Church, and, as an Elder, with Elder Edward How, signed the dismissal of members to Dedham Church. He was ordained the first minister of Woburn, Nov. 22, 1642. Mr. Green was ordained the first minister of Reading, Nov. 5, 1645. [See pp. 261 and 776.]

§ 171. We have not discovered any notice of more than two lay Ruling Elders of Watertown. Mr. Richard Browne had been an officer in a Church of Separatists in London, and was an Elder of Watertown Church at its first organization. He had undoubtedly much influence in causing the church to assume strict Independency. He was dismissed from the office of Elder in 1632, through the influence and instigation of those magistrates and others who were devising and imposing that politico-ecclesiastical domination, which has been so reproachful to that colony; and it is probable that their persecution of him should be attributed quite as much to his bold advocacy of ecclesiastical independency, and his opposition to taxation without representation, as to his ideas of Popery. [See Richard Browne, pp. †122-4.] Mr. Edward How, who died in 1644, very near the time of Mr. Phillips's decease, was an Elder for several years; but the records do not show the date of his election. After his decease, the only officers in the church appear to have been pastors and deacons. The distinction between pastor and teacher was never recognized in Watertown. The town records mention together the two pastors, Knowles and Sherman, giving precedence to the former. Winthrop [II. p. 18] noticing the ordination of Mr. Knowles, Dec. 9, 1640, three years and a half before the decease of Mr. Phillips, says, "The Church of Watertown ordained Mr. Knowles, a good man and a prime scholar, pastor, and so they had now two pastors and no teacher, differing from the practice of the other churches, as also they did in their privacy [private, exclusive manner], not giving notice thereof to the neighboring churches, nor to the magistrates, as the common practice was." The church, in this instance, clearly evinced their principles of strict Independency. They had the stronger reason for adhering to these principles, after the intermeddling of the magistrates and others in the case of their worthy Elder, Mr. Browne.

§ 172. From the preceding statement, it may be seen that the Rev. Mr. Sherman continued the sole pastor of the church almost thirty-five years after the departure of Mr. Knowles for England. There are no church records of that period extant, and we know little of the condition or doings of the church during that time, except the little that may be obtained incidentally from other sources. From the silence of the town records, we may infer that there was peace and harmony.

§ 173. Oct. 12, 1674, ten years before the decease of Mr. Sherman, the town voted to "desire Mr. Thomas Clark to be helpful of Mr. Sherman in preaching;"

and on the 15th of June, 1685, two months before his decease, the town "voted to treat with Mr. [John] Bailey to help the minister." On the 24th of August, it was "voted that the town would defray the charge of our Reverant Pastor Sherman's funeral;" and, at the same time, appointed a committee [Capt. Sherman, Father Coolidge, Deacon Bright, and Simon Stone] to apply to Mr. Bailey. On Nov. 2, 1685, the town voted a rate of £80 for Mr. Bailey, "the year to begin Aug. 24, 1685." It appears that he did not accede to the proposal; and, on June 8, 1686, the town appointed a committee "to request Mr. Bailey, the elder, to appoint an interview." At an adjourned meeting, June 20th, "the Reverant Mr. Bailey being present amongst us, and declaring himself ready to come amongst us, in order to continuing with us, if peace and love continueth amongst us, and we make his life comfortable. The town declared, by a vote, their acceptance of his answer, and doe desire that cear be taken to fetch him up, as soon as may be with conveniency; and do desire to do thear utmost to satisfy his desyre." The stipulations, or bargain, between the parties, do not seem to have been determined until about the end of August.

§ 174. Mr. Bailey was installed, Oct. 6, 1686. This is said to be the first instance, or one of the first, of an installation in the colony. The early Congregational Churches of New England did not generally regard ordination as a ceremony or sacrament for admitting men into the clerical order, or caste, but a process for inducting them into office, and investing them with the powers pertaining to it. Their views were, that election to office, by a church, or company of believers, must precede ordination; that whatever power or privilege was conferred by ordination lasted no longer than the connection of the minister with the church over which he had been ordained; and that, if he took charge of another church as pastor, he must be inducted into office by another ordination. Mr. Bailey had been a minister for some time in Ireland, where he had probably imbibed Presbyterian views of ordination; and when he was settled in Watertown, he was installed in office without ordination. In his journal, he says, "I was solemnly set apart for the pastoral work at Watertown, without the imposition of hands." [See the elaborate and learned notes of Rev. Samuel Sewall, Am. Quart. Reg., XIII., p. 48, "Mr. Phillips," and p. 56, "Installation."]

§ 175. At a town meeting, Nov. 1, 1686, about three weeks after the installation of Mr. John Bailey, it was "voted with a very full vote that the town did still earnestly desire that they might enjoy Mr. [Thomas] Bailey, the younger, to be helpful to his brother in the ministry." He did not immediately comply with this desire; for, on the 27th Sept., 1687, it was "voted to fetch up Rev. Thomas Bailey at the charge of the town," and, on the 7th of November, it was voted that "Rev. Thomas Bailey's £60 shall begin the same day he came to dwell among us, 2 Nov., 1687, with house-room and firing." The town records furnish no evidence that he was ever ordained or installed in Watertown. He d., Jan. 21, 1688-9, after a residence in Watertown of a little more than fourteen months.

§ 176. Mr. John Bailey returned to Boston, in 1692, but it is probable that he attended very little to pastoral duties after the summer of 1690. His health was feeble, his disposition affectionate, and his temperament nervous and desponding. His brother Thomas d. in Jan., 1689, and his wife died in April, 1690. This last bereavement seems to have greatly depressed him. In his church record, Ap. 12, 1690, after recording some admissions to the church, he adds, "I meant to have said something here farther as to it [delay to join the church], but Lyddy is dead, and I feel entirely indisposed to everything." The last time he admitted any to the church was August 3, 1690, and at the end of the record, he says, "A sad week of temptation, I had before [this], having but few in the church to help me, and encourage me; but God carried me through." The last time he officiated at a marriage in Watertown, was Mar. 6, 1690-1, and the last baptism was performed May 31, 1691. It is probable that he attended very little, if any, to pastoral duties after this date.

§ 177. In the church records, Ap. 27, 1690, Mr. Bailey says, "I admitted [to the church] Mr. Henry Gibbs, who has sometimes preached for me, and now this quarter of a year has lived with me." This probably indicates about what time Mr. Gibbs first went to Watertown. Oct. 14, 1690, the town voted "to make choice of a help to carry on the work of the ministry amongst us, in this, our great want." This implies that Mr. Bailey still retained his pastoral relation, but was unable to fulfil its duties. At the same time it was voted "to treat with Mr. Henry Gibbs;" and to give him £40. At a town meeting, Nov. 3, 1690, Capt. Sherman, Lieut. Bond, and the deacons, reported Mr. Gibbs's answer, "that he looketh upon it as a call from God, that he hath inclined the town to be so unanimous in their calling of him, and, therefore, is willing to attend to the said work as God shall enable him." The town accepted the answer, and voted that his salary began this day. This appears to have been a call to Mr. Gibbs to be an assistant to Mr. Bailey, and not to be a pastor. At a town meeting, a year later, Nov. 16, 1691, a committee [Mr. Bond, Capt. Warren, and Simon Stone], was chosen "to treat with Rev. Henry Gibbs, and Mr. Bailey to be helpful," &c. A week later, Nov. 23d, it was voted that "said committee shall now, in the time of our vacancy, provide help for the town, and defray the charge out of the £60 salary;" and that the balance in the hands of Bond and Jennison, "should be given to the Rev. Mr. Cosson" [Cotton]. Dec. 28, 1691, the selectmen directed rates for the two ministers—Mr. Bailey's, but three-quarters of the year to be collected. The circumstances and proceedings here referred to render it very probable, that Mr. Bailey ceased to perform pastoral duties in the summer of 1691, not long after the performance of the last baptism. As he was settled in October, at which time his salary began, the three-quarters of the year above mentioned would terminate in July. It was not an uncommon thing for towns to be in arrears in the payment of ministers. This may have been the case here, and Mr. Bailey may have remained in the town until the rate was collected, and the arrearage paid. His pastorship in Watertown, lasted a little less than five years, and during that time he admitted 116 to the church, performed 347 baptisms, and officiated at 39 marriages.

§ 178. Notwithstanding the inconvenience many of the people labored under, on account of their remoteness from the meeting-house, which was then situated towards the eastern border, far from the centre of the territory, and of the population of the town, the town records do not indicate that there was any serious strife on that account, until 1692, after Mr. Bailey returned to Boston. Yet, the Report [the advice and determination] of the Committee of the Council, to whom the points in dispute were referred, say, "there has been of a long time, even ever since the days of your blessed pastor Phillips, an earnest contending about the place of meeting." That its removal had been generally and confidently expected, for several years, is evident from the following vote, passed at a town meeting, Feb. 12, 1685-6, previous to the settlement of Mr. Bailey. "Agreed, the town would hire of any, who should build a house for the minister, until the meeting-house was removed, or another one built elsewhere." In 1685, soon after the decease of Rev. Mr. Sherman, the farmers presented a petition, which is not recorded, but the purport of which may be inferred from the following vote, passed by the town Nov. 10, 1685. "Voted that the farmers' petition should be suspended, as to an answer to it, until it pleaseth God to settle a minister amongst us." They had probably asked to be exempted from taxation for the support of a ministry, which they could not attend on account of their remoteness. But that contentious spirit is not evinced, which afterwards prevailed. It appears from the record of the organization of the church of the Farmers' Precinct [Weston], that a considerable number of the members had belonged to the Church of Sudbury, whose meeting-house was much nearer to them than that of Watertown. Even as early as 1650 or '51, this remoteness from the meeting-house is referred to by Johnson [Wond. Work. Prov. chap. xxxiii.], who, speaking of "this great town, consisting of 160 families," calls it "a fruitful plat, of large extent, watered with many pleasant springs, and small rivulets, running like veins throughout her body, which hath caused her inhabitants to scatter in such a manner, that their Sabbath-assemblies prove very thin, if the season favor not."

§ 179. In 1692, an exciting controversy arose in the town about the location of the meeting-house, which then stood not far from the old graveyard.

At a town meeting Nov. 18, 1692, in order to determine the location of the meeting-house, it was ordered that "those who are of the mind to build and set up a meeting-house on the hill between the Pound and Widow Whitney's, let them follow Robert Harrington, Sen.; those that are of the mind to build it where it is, let them follow Mr. Norcross," and, "in case we can't agree among ourselves, we will refer it to men." It appears that they did not agree, and on the 7th of December, the selectmen appointed Robert Harrington, Daniel Warren, Sen., and Isaac Mixer, Sen., to petition Gov. Phipps and the Council concerning the meeting-house. A town meeting, summoned by the Council, was held Dec. 27, 1692, at which were present the Lieut. Governor, Major Phillips, Esq., Mr. Suel [Samuel Sewall], Esq., Capt. Lines [Lynde], Esq. It was then voted 1st, "that matters of difference in Watertown, relating to the settling a minister and the placing the meeting-house is referred to a committee." 2d, "that we do pray the Governor and Council to choose a committee, and that we will set down by the determination of that committee in reference to matters aforesaid." 3d, "that we do so desire and appoint Mr. William Bond, and Lieut. Benjamin Garfield, to apply themselves to the Governor and Council for the obtaining a committee for the ends above said." The selectmen received notice, Mar. 9, 1692-3, of a meeting to be held at Capt. Sewell's, in Boston, the next Thursday at 9 A. M., "concerning the meeting-house," which meeting was adjourned to the 23d. The following is the "return" of the Council, dated Boston, May 18, 1693. "Whereas, there has been of a long time, even ever since the days of your blessed pastor Phillips, an earnest contending about the place of meeting for the public worship of God. Having heard and duly weighed the allegations of both parties, in your public meeting, and considering the remoteness of the most of your inhabitants, from the place where the meeting-house now stands. Our advice and determination in that matter is, that within the space of four years next coming, there be a meeting-house erected in your town on a knoll of ground lying between the house of Widow Stearns, and Whitney's Hill; to be the place of meeting to worship God for the whole town. And if in the mean time the minister see cause to dwell in the house where the Reverend Mr. John Baily dwell'd, the town pay rent to the proprietors, as hath been accustomed since its building. So praying to unite your hearts in his fear, we take leave, who are your truly loving friends and brethren."

[Signed], "Wm. Stoughton, John Phillips, Jas. Russell, Sam. Sewall, Joseph Lynde." [Addressed], "To our Brethren and Neighbors of Watertown."

§ 180. Ap. 17, 1694, the selectmen called a town meeting, to be held on the 9th of May, one object of which was "to consider of the charge of building a new meeting-house, and to see to the performance thereof," in conformity with the determination of the Council. At that town meeting was presented an earnest protest against a compliance with the decision of the Council, "because the town, nor any part, never desired any gentlemen to say where we should build a meeting-house, nor when; and we do absolutely deny ever to pay one penny towards any such building at that place; but if the town shall see cause to erect a place of meeting, for the publick worship of God, at the westward part of our town, so as it may be convenient, where the farmers, with such others that way as will be pleased to join with them, shall think convenient, we shall be willing to be helpful therein, as much as may be thought necessary," &c. This protest was signed by eighty-two men and women residing in the eastern part of the town, and by thirty-three men and women residing at the western part of the town, in the farms.

§ 181. The majority of the town were in favor of compliance with the advice and determination of the Council, and they elected selectmen, who, at least a majority of them, were of the same views. But the opposition of the other party, belonging to the east part of the town, was very fierce and acrimonious. At a town meeting, held Oct. 2, 1694, the contention was so great that the Moderator, Daniel Warren, Sen., did, by advice, adjourn the meeting, "to prevent such inconvenience as might justly be feared by reason of the heat of spirit that then seemed to prevail." The contentious party immediately, through a constable of their party, appointed Simon Stone moderator, and passed some votes, against which the selectmen afterwards entered their dissent as irregular and not valid, and ordered their protest to be entered in the records. A counter-dissent was entered for the other party by Ebenezer Prout, then Town Clerk, which the selectmen soon after (Mar. 15, 1694-5) declared was entered without their knowledge and order [for] it to be recorded. It was at that irregular and riotous town meeting, that the vote was passed to make Beaver Brook the eastern boundary of the Farmers' Precinct. [See § 38.]

§ 182. Notwithstanding this opposition, on the 7th of Mar., 1694-5, a levy for building a meeting-house was ordered, at 4*d.* per pound, amounting to £320 4.* The house was built without delay, for a town meeting was held, "at the new meeting-house," Dec. 20, 1695. It was built on the southeast angle of the cross roads, at the crossing of Lexington and Belmont Sts. At a town meeting, the next February, it was voted to accept the new meeting-house. At the town meeting in Dec., a committee (Capt. Warren, Isaac Mixer, Sen., and B. Garfield) were appointed to treat with the Rev. Henry Gibbs. In his reply, dated Feb. 4, 1695-6, he says: "Being sensible that there is a great dissatisfaction in the town [the eastern part of it], with reference to that meeting those votes were passed [appointing a committee to treat with him], I fear it might prove uncomfortable, should I express my compliance therewith; and so, accordingly, I am advised to decline the matter till such time as care be taken to remove the said dissatisfaction, not doubting but that this being effected, which I earnestly pray that God would in his own time grant, it would much conduce to our comfort and advantage." After receiving this reply "to the town, the town applied themselves to him again, but he refusing, then they were to apply to some other minister to preach in the New Meeting-house;" but "Mr. Gibbs to have the first proffer." At a town meeting, Mar. 12, 1695-6, it was voted that only one-fourth of the rate be paid to Mr. Gibbs, and three-fourths of it "to be paid to the preachers appointed by the town to preach in the New House." At the same time, it was "voted, that the town will be at [assume] the charge of building the New Meeting-house, that is set up in the place appointed by the Honored Committee, bearing date May 18, 1693." Also, "voted, that the New Meeting-house shall be the place for all publick town meetings for the future, by reason it is most in the center." At a town meeting, March 24th, it was reported by the committee appointed to treat with Mr. Gibbs that "he refused to preach even so much as one day." There appears to have been no farther application to Mr. Gibbs, who seems to have sympathized with what might be called the eastern faction. At a town meeting, June 26th, 1696, it was, "1st, Voted that there should be a day of humiliation kept in Watertown, the time and place to be appointed by the reverend elders. 2d, That Simon Stone, Capt. Barsham, Isaac Mixer, and Benjamin Garfield, are desired and appointed to entreat the Rev. Mr. Samuel Willard and Rev. Mr. Cotton Mather to carry on the work of the day of humiliation, and to appoint the time and place of meeting."

§ 183. The records do not, I think, show the result of this application; but the selectmen were notified that, on the 28th of August, 1696, "the church chose Mr. Angier to preach, and they warned a town meeting to be held on the 21st of September." At this meeting, "each party chose three persons to represent them in a debate with those of the middle part of the town." The east end chose Capt. Barsham, Simon Stone, and Joseph Sherman, to represent them, and the middle part chose Jonathan Sanderson, Philip Shattuck, and Benjamin Garfield, "to debate those matters of difference that did keep them from uniting in love and peace, as to the worship of God." The "proceedings of that meeting were then suspended," i. e. adjourned, to Sept. 28th. At this meeting, Benjamin Garfield, the Town Clerk, "did relate to the town the proposals made by both parties, which are as followeth. Those of the east part of the town were :

"1st. To have two congregations, and a rate made by the town for their maintenance of both the m[in]isters, and so the people be at liberty to go to which meeting-house they would.

"2d. Or to come to the old meeting-house again.

"3d. Or to draw lots which should be the meeting-house of the town.

"The answer of the middle part of the town are [is] as followeth: First, That two congregations would not be convenient, because if we should be in two congregations it is much to be feared we should be two in spirit; which, by too long experience, we know would be very unreasonable, having built [a meeting-house] in a place for the whole town. 3d [proposition]. As to draw lots for which place to meet in would be altogether inconvenient, because the town did refer it to a committee, which we count is a lot in that matter; therefore we would make some propositions to you [to meet the three made by the other party]. 1st. There be a general assessment for building Mr. Gibbs's house, repairing the old, and building new meeting-house. 2d. Because the new house is most convenient to meet in. 3d. If the east end desire Mr. Gibbs should be first put in vote to vote for, it shall be so; and if there be a major part vote for him, we will comply with it—to preach in the new house. 4th. If Mr. Gibbs hath not a major vote, we will put Mr. Angier to vote. 5th. It was offered to the east end to have both ministers, and to have [no] further debates. 6th. Or [if there is to be further debate] to have moderators. So (at this same meeting, Sept. 28, 1696) "after all this debating, the town concurred with the church in calling Mr. Angier to preach in the new meeting-house." On the 21st Dec., the town voted £70, as a salary for Mr. Angier, with house-room and firewood, the year to begin this day. At the same time, a committee was appointed "to procure housing for Mr. Angier, and to bring him and family to Watertown." Mr. Angier was ordained May 25, 1697. The first baptism by him was June 20th; the first admission to the church, Oct. 10, 1697; and the first marriage by him, Jan. 3, 1697-8. At a town meeting, May 21st, voted, "continued concurrence in Mr. Angier's choice." At a town meeting of the two precincts, orderly warned, July 2, 1697, it was voted that a committee (Capt. John Warren, Deacon Cook, Lieut. Nathaniel Bond, Lieut. Jonas Bond, and Samuel Eddy) be appointed "to treat with Rev. Mr. Gibbs to assist Rev. Mr. Angier," and "to pay him £65, &c., if he accepts."

"The Reverend Mr. Angier, being informed of Mr. Gibbs's call, hath showed his concurrence as followeth :

"I having been informed of a late vote of the inhabitants, for the inviting Mr. Henry Gibbs to preach in the new meeting-house, I do hereby signify my good liking and approbation of Mr. Gibbs his being joined with me in the work of the ministry for the church and town in the new meeting-house.

[Signed]

"SAML. ANGIER."

§ 184. Mr. Gibbs did not accept this offer. He had been preaching in the old meeting-house most of the time for nearly seven years, and his sympathies and attachments seem to have pertained to the people of the east end, where a church was organized very soon after the settlement of Mr. Angier, and where Mr. Gibbs was ordained Oct. 6, 1697. The first baptism was performed by him Nov. 7th, and the first marriage, Dec. 17, 1697.

§ 185. In the course of this controversy, the people at the middle part of the town seem to have been the most reasonable and liberal; but they did not evince this upon the ordination of Mr. Gibbs. Judge Sewall [diary] says, the ordination of Mr. Gibbs "was done in the afternoon in the open air, though a cold day. The western party, having the selectmen on their side, got possession of the meeting-house, and would not suffer the assembly to enter there."

§ 186. It may fairly be questioned which of the two was entitled to the distinction of being the first church; that is, whether that of Watertown or that of Waltham has the best claim to be the direct descendant of that church which was organized by Mr. Phillips. Mr. Angier was elected and settled by a majority of the votes of the church and of the town, and he was then the only minister of the town. His society, or a majority of them, afterwards became the Church of Waltham. Mr. Gibbs, at his settlement, was neither elected nor settled by a vote of the town, but by the party at the east end. But his society occupied the old meeting-house; the church records, kept by Mr. Bailey, passed into his hands; and when the town was divided into two precincts, Mr. Angier's society, after his decease, built their meeting-house in the West Precinct [Waltham], near the old Nathaniel Livermore homestead, while the society which settled Mr. Gibbs, embraced the whole of the Eastern Precinct [Watertown], and a large number of those families who at first belonged to Mr. Angier's society. Moreover, the church records of Waltham extend no farther back than those kept by Mr. Angier.

§ 187. The salaries of Mr. Angier and Mr. Gibbs were for a long time paid out of the town treasury; but there arose a controversy between the two societies about the expenses of building and repairing the meeting-houses. The subject was referred to Court. The advice, or report, was not acceptable to a majority. It is probable that the ground of the controversy was that the Western (Mr. Angier's) Society had a majority of the voters in the town, that the Eastern (Mr. Gibbs's) Society had the most wealth, and paid the most taxes, and that the expenses of Mr. Angier's Society were paid in part by taxes levied on those that did not belong to it. The controversy continued until after the decease of Mr. Angier. Nov. 19, 1720, the General Court appointed a committee to assign a boundary line between the two precincts. They made their report in December, which was accepted by the town, and Samuel Thaxter, Esq., was ordered to run the line. This committee likewise decided that, within two years, the new or West Meeting-house should be removed near the house of Nathaniel Livermore, a little distance northwest of the mansion of Geo. W. Lyman, Esq., and that within ten years the old or East Meeting-house should be removed to School-house Hill. [See pp. 955 and 6.] Mr. Angier's successors have been Rev. Warham Williams, Rev. Dr. Jacob Cushing, Rev. Mr. Ripley, &c., and the successors of Mr. Gibbs have been Rev. Seth Storer, Rev. Daniel Adams, Rev. Richard R. Elliott, Rev. Dr. Convers Francis, Rev. John Weiss, &c. See the earlier of these names in this work. For a more copious account of Watertown Church, see Dr. Francis's history of the town.

§ 188. The first settlers of the Farms were so remote from the meeting-house (from 5 to 8 miles distant) that many of them attended the meeting in Sudbury, yet they were taxed for the support of the ministry in Watertown. At a town meeting Nov. 10, 1685, three months after the decease of the Rev. Mr. Sherman, it was "Voted, that the Farmers' petition should be suspended as to an answer unto it, till it pleaseth God to settle a minister amongst us." The petition is not recorded, but there is good reason to believe that it was, to be exempted from taxation for the support of a ministry which they could not attend. There is no further reference to this subject in the records until Oct. 2, 1694, where it appears that "Our neighbors, the Farmers, were upon endeavors to have a meeting-house amongst themselves." The next January they agreed to build a meeting-house thirty feet square, and to place it on land of Nathaniel Coolidge, Sen., by the side of the road, at the head of Parkhurst's meadow, a little in front of the present meeting-house. The next year agents were chosen to contract with workmen to build the Farmers' Meeting-house. Votes were passed in 1698, 1699, by the precinct for completing the meeting-house, which, notwithstanding its smallness, was not so far finished, as to be occupied until Mar. 1700. It was begun by subscription and afterwards carried on at the expense of the precinct.

§ 189. At a precinct meeting held Oct. 8, 1700, for the choice of a minister, in order for settlement, Mr. Thomas Symmes, was chosen, but did not accept. Soon after a similar call was given to Mr. Joseph Morse, and on the 6th July, 1702, by a vote of 30 to 12, they gave him a call to settle in the ministry. The next year they built him a house 40 ft. by 20, and he gathered a congregation, but the next year (1704), difficulties arose, so that a church was not organized; and he was not settled [see p. 374]. Feb. 11, 1707, the precinct chose Mr. Nathaniel Gookin, to be their minister. He did not accept; and on July 16, 1707, they chose Mr. Thomas Tufts, who declined the call. Feb. 4, 1708, they gave a call to Mr. William Williams, to settle in the ministry [see p. 654]. He accepted, a church was gathered and organized, and he was ordained Nov. 2, 1709. He was pastor of the church about 41 years, and was succeeded by Rev. Samuel Woodward, who was ordained Sept. 25, 1751 [see p. 664]. He d. Oct. 5, 1782, and was succeeded by his son-in-law, Rev. Dr. Samuel Kendall, who was ordained Nov. 5, 1783 [see pp. 325 and 665]. He d. 1814, and was succeeded by Rev. Dr. Joseph Field [see p. 207]. For more full information respecting this church, see the very valuable centennial Discourse of Samuel Kendall, D.D.

MILITARY MEN AND AFFAIRS.

§ 190. Few of the first settlers* knew much of the military art, or were able to teach it; but it was necessary that every man should be trained to the best means and mode of defence against the hostile attacks to which they were so liable. The government, perceiving this necessity, immediately provided for it. The first recorded transaction of the Governor and Assistants, after their arrival, having reference to military or defensive measures, was at their second meeting, Sept. 7, 1630, when provision was made for the annual support of Capt. Daniel Patrick, of Watertown, and Capt. John Underhill, of Boston. The former had been a soldier in the Prince's Guard in Holland, and probably both of them had been trained and habituated to a military life. They continued to be supported at the public expense for seven years. They were not merely militia or trainband captains, who had to turn out at stated times with the soldiers of the town, where they resided, nor were their duties limited to those towns. They were the military disciplinarians or professors of the colony.

§ 191. There does not appear to have been any general military organization of the colony, until about the close of 1636, in the time of the Pequot war. It is probable that, for the first few years, Capt. Underhill had the training of the soldiers on the south side of Charles River,—those of Boston, Roxbury, and Dorchester; and that Capt. Patrick had the training of those on the north side of the river,—those of Charlestown, Watertown, New Town, and Medford, exclusive of those in and about Salem. In Dec., 1636, all those in the colony, able and liable to do military duty, were ranked in three regiments, as follows:

1. The South (Suffolk) Regiment, of which John Winthrop, Sen., was Colonel;

* Among those who arrived a few years later, there was probably a considerable number, who had some skill and experience in military discipline. It is said that several of them had belonged to the Honorable Artillery Company, of London.

Thomas Dudley, Lieut. Colonel; and Capt. John Underhill, Muster-master. It included the towns of Boston, Roxbury, Dorchester, Weymouth, and Hingham.

2. The North (Middlesex) Regiment, of which John Haines, was Colonel; Roger Harlakenden, Lieut. Colonel; and Capt. Daniel Patrick, Muster-master. It included the towns of Charlestown, New Town (Cambridge), Watertown, Concord, and Dedham.

3. The East (Essex) Regiment, of which John Endicott, was Colonel; John Winthrop, Jr., Lieut. Colonel; and Capt. William Trask, Master-muster. It included the towns of Salem, Saugus (Lynn), Ipswich, and Newbury.

§ 192. At the Court in the succeeding March, captains, and in some instances lieutenants and ensigns, were appointed for the trainbands of most of the towns. But on the same day (Mar. 9, 1636-7), the Court appointed "Mr. John Underhill, and Mr. Daniel Patrick, captains for the country's service, for which they are to have £30 apiece yearly out of the treasury, and to be disposed by order of the Council of War." At this time Capt. Patrick, although belonging to Watertown, and holding the above-mentioned appointment, did not continue to command the Watertown trainband, to which office Mr. William Jennison was now appointed. The next Nov. (1637), Captains Underhill and Patrick were by the Court discharged from any other service ["for the country"], and a gratuity of one quarter's pay was made to each of them. It does not appear that any successors were appointed, sustaining the same relation to the government, as they had done, and their office became obsolete.

§ 193. Their duties seem to have been to train and prepare the people for military service, to hold themselves always in readiness for the "Orders of the Council of War," and, perhaps, to act as the military advisers of the government. It is probable that experience in the Pequot war, had shown that the tactics and discipline of a Prince's Guard were not the best preparation for efficient service in Indian warfare, and that this led to the dismissal of Captains Patrick and Underhill, and to the abolition of their peculiar office. It is to be observed, that at this precise time commenced that association of gentlemen, as a military company, which was incorporated Mar. 13, 1638-9, and which, at first sometimes designated as the First, or the Great Artillery Company, has long been known as The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company. As this company was formed and incorporated for "the advancement of the military art, and exercise of arms," it may have been regarded as a substitute for the office and services of Captains Patrick and Underhill, and have led to their dismissal. In Nov., 1637, at the same time that he was dismissed from office, Patrick obtained permission to move to Ipswich. He, however, remained in Watertown, as he was elected selectman Dec. 30, 1637, and the next October (1638), he was appointed on a committee for laying out the farm lands. Soon after this, Captains Patrick and Underhill, both moved to Connecticut, and Patrick was murdered by a Dutchman, in Underhill's house, at Stamford, in 1643.

§ 194. The information respecting the early organization of the Watertown trainband is very scanty and obscure. Neither the town nor colonial records, so far as has been discovered, show at what age young men were enrolled in the trainbands; but as all above the age of sixteen years were required to take the oath of fidelity [Colonial Records, I. p. 139], that was probably the age when they became liable to military service. Nor was there any legal limit of old age which exempted from it. In the County Court records, there are many instances where men in advanced age were exempted from military trainings, by the Court or magistrates, on account of their infirmities. It will be seen below that it was not unusual for men to receive military appointments, or advancement in rank, in advanced age, and they seemed never to arrive at too great an age to hold them. It is, however, not improbable that some, who held subaltern offices in early life, continued to bear the title long after they ceased to hold the office.

§ 195. It appears from the colonial records, that the soldiers of Charlestown and Watertown were for some time trained together; for, in Sept., 1635, by the Court, it was "agreed that Charlestown and Watertown shall be distinct companies, and to have officers of their own." As Charlestown and Watertown were not then contiguous, being separated by the interposition of New Town [Cambridge], it would seem very unnatural that the two former should be thus combined, and that New Town should have a distinct trainband. Although New Town is not mentioned in that order of the Court, we conjecture that, previous to that time, the soldiers of those three towns were trained together, and that, when the order was passed "that Charlestown and Watertown shall be two distinct companies," it meant distinct from New Town. It appears by an order of Court, passed Sept. 3, 1634, a year before the passage of the above-mentioned order, that trainband companies sometimes "consisted of two or more towns," and it is probable that, until 1635, the soldiers of Watertown, New Town, and Charlestown, constituted one company, and were trained by Capt. Patrick. It is to be observed that, in 1631, Mr. Jennison was, by the Court, chosen "Ancient [Ensign] to Capt. Patrick," not for Watertown; and the next year, after Capt. Patrick moved temporarily to New Town, Mr. Robert Feake was chosen "Lieutenant to Capt. Patrick," not for Watertown; but that after the passage of the order for distinct companies in Watertown and Charlestown, such appointments were made for towns specified. It is also to be observed, that, when that order was passed, Charlestown, Watertown, and New Town, were the only towns then organized, which were soon afterwards embraced in the Middlesex Regiment, of which Capt. Patrick was Mustermaster; for the date of the order is the same as that of the orders for planting Concord and Dedham. The colonial records do not, I think, show that any captain was appointed for either Charlestown or New Town until after the passage of that order; and as military officers were chosen by the Court, it is presumable that they would be found on record, if any such appointments had been made. It has been already shown that Capt. Patrick was not merely a trainband captain appointed for Watertown. The first choice of trainband captains, for either of those three towns, was made Mar. 9, 1636-7, when Mr. Robert Sedgwick was chosen for Charlestown, Mr. William Jennison for Watertown, and Mr. George Cooke for New Town. This was about eighteen months after the passage of the order for distinct companies in Watertown and Charlestown, and only three months after the order for organizing all the soldiers of the colony into three regiments. Perhaps it may be found that the order for distinct companies was not immediately carried into effect, and that Patrick continued to command the soldiers of the three towns, until the Court chose those three captains.

§ 196. After Captain Patrick, the earliest military appointment by the Court of a Watertown man was Aug. 16, 1631, when "Mr. William Jennison is chosen Ancient [Ensign] to Captain Patrick." He retained this office until Mar. 1636-7, when he was chosen Captain of the trainband, and held the office until his return to England. On the 25th Sept., 1636, soon after information was received of the murder of Mr. Oldham, the Governor and Council "did send forth ninety men, distributed to four commanders—Capt. John Underhill, Capt. Nathaniel Turner, Ensign Jennison, and Ensign Davenport"—in order to "do justice upon the Indians for the murder of Mr. Oldham." [Winthrop, I. p. 192.] George Munnings, of Watertown, in this expedition, lost one of his eyes.

§ 197. The next year (Ap. 18, 1637), when the Court determined that the war against the Pequots "should be seriously prosecuted," and that one hundred and sixty men should be drafted out of the several towns in the colony, Watertown was at first required to furnish fourteen men. May 17th, fifty additional men were ordered to be drafted, and Capt. Jennison was one of the committee for apportioning them among the several towns. The quota of Watertown was four men. At the same time a committee (Capt. Trask, Capt. Jennison, Capt. Turner, Sergt. Richard Collicot) was "appointed for the present expedition for men, munition, and provisions." Also, at the same time, Lieut. Howe was ordered "to go Lieutenant to Capt. Patrick."

§ † 197. On the 4th of Sept., 1632, Mr. Robert Feake was, by the Court, chosen "into the place of Lieutenant to Capt. Patrick." He attained no higher rank, and in March, 1636-7, was superseded by the election of Capt. Jennison. In Sept., 1634, he was one of the military committee appointed by the Court to select sites and lay out the works for fortifications at Castle Island, Charlestown, and Dorchester. About 1639 or '40, he went to Connecticut and was connected with Capt. Patrick in the purchase of Greenwich. He became impoverished, returned to Watertown, and died in indigence. When John Stickland was admitted freeman, in May, 1631, he had the title of Sergeant. Thomas Cakebread had the title of Ensign, and was an original member (in 1637) of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, and in its records has the title of Ensign. Upon the first settlement of Dedham, "an invitation was sent to Thomas Cakebread, a renowned soldier of Watertown, to come and be at the head of military affairs." [Haven's Centennial Address, p. 12.] In Sept., 1642, after the return of Mr. B. Pendleton from Sudbury to Watertown, "Ensign Cakebread was appointed to lead the company at Sudbury as Ensign." The records do not show that either Stickland or Cakebread held offices in Watertown.

§ 198. It is stated on page 402, that Mr. Bryan Pendleton was a captain in Watertown, and Farmer says, he was "a captain of the militia;" but no evidence has been discovered that he held any military office, or title in Watertown. It may be supposed that he first gained the title by commanding the trainband of Sudbury during the short time he resided there. But when he was, by the Court, appointed to that duty (May, 1640), no military title was given to him; and it is not probable that he held any higher title than his successor. Although his name often occurs in the town and colonial records, no military title is attached to it until 1657, several years after he moved from Watertown to Portsmouth. He was a captain there at first, and afterwards attained the rank of major.

Henry Bright was appointed surveyor of arms in Watertown, and took the oath of office in July, 1640. In the town records he had sometimes, and, for a long time bore, the title of sergeant. He appears never to have advanced beyond that title, and he bore it until 1664, then aged 62, after which he bore the title of Deacon. John Wincoll was a sergeant in Watertown, and attained no higher title, until he left the town, about 1662, when he must have been at least 54 years old. After he moved to Kittery, he was elected captain.

§ 199. In May, 1645, the Court ordered, "that in the entry of Watertown officers, [Hugh] Mason should be put in instead of [Thomas] Bartlett," who afterwards, and until his decease, bore the title of Ensign. This appointment of Mason was made about the time Capt. Jennison returned to England, and Mason probably commanded the trainband, with the rank of lieutenant, until May 1652, when he attained the rank of captain. He probably held the office until about the time of his decease (1678), then aged 73, as no other one attained that rank in the town until that time.

§ 200. Richard Beers is first mentioned as a sergeant in 1642, when the Court appointed him to superintend "the breeding of saltpetre" in Watertown. He attained the rank of Lieutenant, soon after Mason was chosen Captain. He bears the same title in the town records until 1675, and he is never mentioned with the title of Captain until the record of his death, Sept. 4, 1675, which was more than 38 years after he had been admitted freeman. He was not less than 59 years of age, and probably considerably older, when he went on that fatal expedition against the Indians.

§ 201. John Sherman bore the title of Sergeant until after the decease of Ensign Thomas Bartlett, in 1654, and after that, bore the title of Ensign until after the decease of Capt. Beers, when he attained the rank of Lieutenant, and he held this rank until after the decease of Captain Mason. In the town records, he does not bear the title of Captain, until 1680, when he was about 67 years old. He seems to have retained the office until his decease, in 1691, then aged 76, as no one else held that title until after that event. He was succeeded in office by William Bond, Esq., who had then been a magistrate about five years. He had borne the title of Corporal until he was elected magistrate in 1686, when he was about 61 years old. In 1676, the Court appointed him lieutenant of a company of horse, but, as he continued to be honored with the title of corporal for ten years afterwards, probably he did not accept the appointment. He had the title of Lieutenant in 1689, and when he attained the rank of Captain, he was about 67 years old. Thomas Strait bore the title of Captain at an earlier date, but he probably brought the title with him, and never held the office in Watertown.

§ 202. From the preceding statement, it seems to have been strictly true that, of military officers, "few died and none resigned," except with life. A considerable change, however, took place soon after the decease of Capt. Sherman, and military titles became more numerous. This appears to have resulted from two causes. In the first place, rotation of office was more frequent. In the second place, there were more offices to be filled, there being three military companies in the town. About 1691 or '92, the town was divided into three military precincts. The first was the precinct of Capt. Bond's Company. The second was the precinct of Lieut. Garfield's Company—of those belonging to what was sometimes called the middle precinct, now Waltham. The third was the precinct of Lieut. [Josiah] Jones's Company, of those who belonged to the Farmers' precinct, now Weston. John Warren bore the title of Captain about 1691, but of what company the records do not show. The military titles pertaining to various persons will generally be found in the genealogies, where they belong. So far as appears in the records, Jonas Bond, Esq., was the first Watertown man who attained the rank of Major and of Colonel.

§ 203. On the files of the Middlesex Court, is the following certificate or memorial of soldiers, dated Ap. 15, 1690. Most of them belonged to Watertown. "Being listed in the service of the country against the French, and ordered down to Charlestown, and being denied quarters elsewhere, the widow Mary Peachee did entertain us." [Signed] "Nathaniel Barsham, Lft.; Wm. Davenport, Sergt.; Samuel Barnard, Corporal; Richard Mellins, John Applin, John Fisk, Peter Mansel, John Smith, John Swetin, Thomas Stratton, Henry Spring, John Fay, Thomas Willson (? Woolson), Nathaniel (?) Wod, Solomon Ray, George Stevens (? Stearns), John Poney [Perry?], Josiah Jones, Joseph Garfield, James Ball." Upon this certificate, there was a motion to the Court to renew her license.

CIVIL AFFAIRS AND OFFICERS.

§ 204. After the departure of Sir Richard Saltonstall to England, in 1631, there was no Assistant or Magistrate, resident of Watertown, for more than fifty years. All suits were brought before the Court of Assistants, until Mar. 1636, when four County Courts were ordered to be held every quarter, to try civil actions, where the "debt or damage did not exceed £10," and "all criminal causes, not concerning life, murder, or banishment." Although only the Assistants bore the title of magistrates, yet others were empowered to perform the judicial functions of magistrates. At County Courts, it was required that not less than one magistrate [Assistant] should be present, and that not less than five persons should be on the bench; and for holding these Courts, the General Court appointed "magistrates and other gentlemen,"—"other persons of worth to be joined as associates to the magistrates." At the General Court in May, next after passing the order for county courts, the persons were appointed for holding them, and Mr. [Robert] Feake, of Watertown, was appointed for that to be held at New Town, for the towns of Charlestown, Concord, Medford, Watertown, and New Town. The next year Mr. Richard Browne, of Watertown, received the same appointment. These five towns were the nucleus of the County of Middlesex. At the same time that Mr. Feake and Mr. Browne, of Watertown, held appointments as associates in these courts, there were Commissioners for ending small causes in Watertown, showing that they were not regarded as magistrates.

§ 205. On the 6th of Sept., 1638, the General Court, "for avoiding of the country's charge by bringing small causes to the Court of Assistants," ordered, "that any magistrate in the town where he dwells, may hear and determine by his discretion all causes, wherein the debt or trespass, or damage, &c., doth not exceed 20s.; and in such town, where no magistrate dwells, the General Court shall from time to time nominate three men, two whereof shall have like power to hear and determine all such actions under 20 shillings." From their decision there was an appeal to a Quarter Court, a Court of Assistants. These men were entitled Commissioners—"Commissioners for ending small causes." They were invested with some of the functions of justices of the peace, without the title.

§ 206. At that time there were four towns (Watertown, Weymouth, Hingham, and Newbury), in which no Assistant resided, and for each of which, accordingly, Commissioners were appointed. Those for Watertown were "Mr. Thomas Mayhew, Capt. William Jennison, and Mr. Richard Browne." They were reappointed in June, 1639, and again in June, 1641. In May, 1643, "Mr. Simon Eyre, Capt. Jennison, and Hugh Mason; and John Sherman [temporarily] till Capt. Jennison come." In May, 1645, Mr. Richard Browne, Lieut. [Hugh] Mason, and Ephraim Child were appointed; and this appears to be the last time that such Commissioners were appointed by the General Court, who, in May, 1647, ordered them thereafter to be appointed by the County Courts; and in the succeeding November ordered them "to keep a true record of all such causes as shall come before them to be determined." In 1652, they were authorized to administer oaths in civil cases; and in 1656, they were authorized to solemnize marriages. These and other powers were taken from them the next year.

§ 207. Marriage was for a long time regarded as a civil contract, and performed only by magistrates, or by persons commissioned by the General Court for that special service, in towns where no magistrate resided. [See §§ 58 and 59.]

§ 208. The earliest notice in the records of the County Court, of the appointment of Commissioners for Watertown, is in April, 1650, where are found the following appointments. The earlier records of this Court are lost. At a town meeting, Ap. 4, 1659, it was ordered, that the Commissioners to end small causes should meet on the first Monday in May, August, November, and February.

The 2d volume of the records of the County are lost, and therefore, the names of the Commissioners of that period have not been obtained.

§ 209. The first magistrate or justice of the peace of Watertown, of whom any notice has been found, subsequent to the departure of Sir Richard Saltonstall, was William Bond, who was appointed as early as 1686. He died in Dec. 1695, and was probably succeeded by Ebenezer Prout. The next magistrate was Jonathan Phillips, son of Rev. G. Phillips. He died early in 1704. Jonas Bond, youngest son of William Bond, Esq., was appointed a justice of the peace and of the County Court prior to Mar., 1703, and before the decease of Mr. Jonathan Phillips. He d. in April, 1727. The next justice was Dea. Joseph Mason, who was appointed previously to May, 1734. He d. in 1755. Nathaniel Harris was appointed before Dec., 1734. He d. in 1761. Jonas Bond, eldest son of Jonas Bond, Esq., was commissioned by Governor Shirley, Jan. 11, 1748, when there were two other justices in town. He d. in 1768. From this period to 1800, there were several justices of the peace, residents of Watertown. We have the names of several, if not all of them, but know not the date or duration of their appointments, viz.: Dr. Josiah Converse, William Hunt, (?) Henry Gardner, (?) Elijah Bond, Jonathan Brown, Josiah Capen, Dr. Marshall Spring, Amos Bond, Nathaniel R. Whitney.

REPRESENTATIVES OF WATERTOWN.

§ 210. According to the Charter of the Massachusetts Bay Company, there were to be "four Great and General Courts of the said Company," held upon "every last Wednesday of Hillary, Easter, Trinity, and Micha[elma]s." The Company, besides the Governor, consisted of the Assistants and the Freemen; that is, besides those named in the Charter, "all such others as shall hereafter be admitted and made free of the Company and Society." These Courts, so constituted (of Governor, Assistants, and Freemen) had full power and authority to choose, nominate, appoint, and admit others "to be free of the said Company;" to elect and constitute officers for ordering, managing, and despatching the affairs of the Corporation; "and to make laws and ordinances for the good and welfare of the said Company." It was also ordered by the Charter that the authority, office, and power, conferred upon any one by election, "shall cease and determine" upon the election of a successor.

§ 211. The principles and provisions of this Charter were more liberal than its administration. Notwithstanding such ample powers, both elective and legislative, were granted to the freemen, who were very numerous compared with the Governor and Assistants, they had, for some time, very little influence in the government. One chief cause of this was probably their great number, occasioning an unwieldiness in making use of their power and privileges. The Governor and Assistants took advantage of this, and, says Hutchinson, "kept the powers of government, both legislative and executive, very much in their hands the first three years. The people began to grow uneasy, and the number of freemen being greatly multiplied, an alteration of the constitution seems to have been agreed upon, or fallen into by the general consent of the towns; for, at a General Court of Elections, in [May], 1634, twenty-four of the principal inhabitants appeared as the representatives of the body of freemen, and, before they proceeded to the election of magistrates, the people asserted their right to a greater share in the government than had hitherto been allowed them, and resolved, That none but the General Court had power to make and establish laws, or to elect and appoint officers, as governor, deputy-governor, assistants, treasurer, secretary, captains, lieutenants, ensigus, or any of the like moment, or to remove such upon misdemeanor, or to set out the duties and powers of these officers: That none but the General Court hath power to raise monies and taxes, and to dispose of lands, viz., to give and confirm properties."

§ 212. It is remarkable that the colonial records contain no reference to the origin or introduction of a House of Deputies into the government. The first notice of them is, that they are there, without asking or being invited. Winthrop, however, throws some light on the subject, but not a full elucidation, and we are left to conjecture. [Winthrop, I. p. 128.] It is probable that the concert of action among the freemen of the several towns began with the appointment and the meeting of committees of two from each of those towns in 1632, "to advise with the Governor and Assistants about the raising of public stores, so as what they should agree upon should bind all," &c. Mr. Savage asks, "Why the notice mentioned in the text should be given?" It seems probable that this was only the usual notice required by the Charter to be issued by the Governor, summoning a meeting of the General Court. On the first of April, 1634, six weeks before that meeting of the General Court, at which deputies first appear on the record, the freemen, two from each town, deputed to "meet and consider of such matters as they were to take order in" at the ensuing General Court, "having met, desired a sight of the patent." This seems to imply that the Charter had hitherto been kept out of the sight of the freemen, at least so far that they were not fully acquainted with its provisions. Having seen the Charter, and having found that it required all the laws to be enacted by the General Court, they "repaired to the Governor (Winthrop) to advise with him about it." He endeavored to convince them that they had not "a sufficient number of men qualified for such a business" as legislation, and to induce them to take such a course as to leave legislation to the Governor and Assistants. The result was that, soon afterwards, at the ensuing General Court, Mr. Winthrop, for the first time, failed of being elected Governor, and the Court passed an order admitting the claims of the deputies to have "the full power and voices of all the said freemen, * * * for the making and establishing laws, granting lands, &c., and to deal in all other affairs of the commonwealth, wherein the freemen have to do, the matter of election of magistrates and other officers only except, wherein every freeman is to give his own vote." For a view of the influence or agency which Watertown people had in effecting this change in the government: in checking its aristocratic tendency; in resisting taxation without representation; and establishing a representative republic, see Winthrop, I. pp. 70, 71, 128, 129; also Richard Browne, p. † 123, and § 147-49.

§ 213. By the General Court, Sept. 8, 1636, "it was ordered, that, hereafter, no town in the plantation, that hath not 10 freemen in it, shall send any deputy to the General Court; those that have above 10 and under 20, not above one; betwixt 20 and 40, not above two; and those that have 40, three, if they will, but not above." In Oct., 1636, it was ordered, that each town pay the charges of their own deputies; but this order was reversed the next March, and the order re-established, that their charges be borne by the country. On 13th March, 1638-9, "it was ordered, that no town shall send more than two deputies to the General Court." In the course of the next ten years, the Court made repeated attempts to alter the mode of the election of deputies, or to lessen their number, all tending to diminish the influence of the freemen in the government. These attempts were resisted, and the record of the Court for March, 1647-8, says, "The most of the freemen desiring their former liberty of sending one or two deputies to the General Courts from time to time, the former wanted liberty is continued, and the former act, in suspense, is repealed." This desire of most of the freemen was formally expressed by their vote upon a proposition submitted to them by the Court.

§ 215. Selectmen of Watertown. [See Sections † 46-48.]

By recurring to the original records (pp. 995, &c.), it will be seen that the selectmen were not at first designated by that title. They were those "chosen by the freemen to order the civil affairs of the town." The first time that title was applied to them was in 1647, at the commencement of the records, after that hiatus in them, 1643 to 1647. The first board (1634) consisted of three members. The next four (1635, '36, '37, '38) consisted of eleven members; the next three (1639, '40, '41) of twelve members; the next two (1642, '43) of nine members. These were chosen by the freemen, and a recurrence to p. 1017 will show that the number of selectmen was large in proportion to the number of freemen. The number elected in 1647, when they are first entitled selectmen in the town records, was seven, and this continued to be the regular number for a long time, at least for many years after the incorporation of Weston. T. C. for Town Clerk: Tr. Treasurer.

§ † 215. Constables.

Constables were at first elected by the General Court; afterwards by the Quarter Courts, and as early as 1653, and probably earlier, they began to be elected by the towns. The following were some of the early appointments by the Courts:

Oct. 19, 1630, John Page was chosen Constable of Watertown for one whole year, and after till a new [one] be chosen.

May 9, 1632, Mr. [William] Clarke was chosen Constable of Watertown. [See Wintthrop, I. p. 74.]

Aug. 5, 1634, Samuel Hosier was chosen Constable. He was constable again in 1650.

1642, Gregory Taylor, Constable, by the Court.

June 4, 1641, John Whitney was chosen Constable by the Quarter Court.

§ 216. Representatives of Weston, elected in May.

The first volume of the records of the transactions are lost, and the earlier part of this information has been obtained from the records of the General Court.

Francis Fulham, 1713, '14, '15, '17, '18, Esq., '19, '20, '22, '24, '29, '30, '31, '36, '37.	Abijah Upham, 1750, '51.
Josiah Jones, 1716, '21, '25, '26.	Elisha Jones, 1752, '53, '54, '56, '57, '58, '60, '61, '62, '63, '73, '74.
Joseph Allen, 1727, '28.	Abraham Bigelow, 1755, '59, '64, '65, '66, '67, '68, '69, '70, '71, '72.

Joseph Livermore, 1738, '39, '40, '42, '43, '48, '49.	Isaac Hobbs, 1777.
Josiah Brewer, 1741, '44, '45, '46, '47.	Joseph Roberts, 1778.

Sept. 29, 1774, Col. Elisha Jones, Esq., a tory, was superseded by the election of Capt. Bradyl Smith, who, the next year, had the title of Colonel. At the same time, Josiah Smith and Samuel Phillips Savage were appointed a committee to attend the Provincial Congress, to be held on the 2d of October, and Capt. B. Smith was added to it. At the same meeting (Sept. 29th), Benjamin Peirce, Dea. Thomas Upham, and Samuel Baldwin, were appointed a committee of correspondence. Jan. 2, 1775, John Allen, Israel Whittmore, and William Whitney, were appointed a committee of inspection, to see that the advice of Congress, relative to the non-importation agreement, be strictly adhered to. The records show that Weston contributed liberally of men and money towards the establishment of liberty and independence. It is left to the historian of Weston to present to the public a full account of her patriotic services and sacrifices.

SCHOOL-HOUSES, SCHOOLS, AND SCHOOLMASTERS.

§ 219. The earliest mention of a school-house in the town records is Sept. 17, 1649, when a rate was ordered for building one, and, on the 2d of November, John Sherman was appointed to build it, 22 feet long, 14 feet wide, and 9 feet between the joists. Dec. 10, 1650, it was ordered to add a turret to the school-house. Jan. 12, 1657-2, an order was passed to pay John Sherman for "work about the turret," and to finish the school-house. It is supposed to have been built on Strawberry Hill, which afterwards bore the name of School-house Hill, and was near John Sherman's residence. In 1676, there was a charge for repairing it. We find no other mention of the school-house in the records until 1696, when one condition of Mr. [Edward] Goddard's consenting to keep school was, that the school-house should be repaired; and a committee was appointed to make an estimate, and to report thereon. Feb. 7, 1708-9, voted, to fix [up] the old school-house, if it can be done for 10 or 12s. Sept. 24, 1711, voted to repair the old school-house, or a part of it, for a watch-house, according to the Governor's direction. A document, on the files of Mid. Court, dated Dec. 19, 1664, states that Watertown School-house was robbed of seventeen Greek and Latin books, by two Indians, one of whom was a servant of Mr. Bisco.

§ 220. At a town meeting, Jan. 31, 1708-9, a committee (B. Garfield and C. Church) reported that they had received [selected] a place, near Phillips's Fence, upon the town's land, leading to Whitney's Hill, near the Middle [Mr. Angier's] Meeting-house, and as near the Causeway, as may be convenient for a school-house. At the same time, it was voted to build a school-house, within twenty rods of the meeting-house, 25 feet by 20, and 6½ feet between joynets. Oct. 8, 1711, the selectmen ordered the "studdey" in the school-house to be completely finished at the town's cost.

§ 221. The first notice of a schoolmaster in the records is Nov. 7, 1649, when the selectmen ordered that David Mechell* [Mitchell], of Stamford, Conn., be certified of the town's desire for him to keep school. Whether he accepted does not appear from the records. It is not to be certainly inferred from this that there were no schools before this time. There are no town records extant of the first four years (1630-34), and those for the next nine years (1634-43) are little more than general ordinances. The records for the next four years (1643-47) are wanting. A school might have been kept in private houses and in the meeting-house, as was often done afterwards. Jan. 6, 1650-1, Richard Norcross was hired for one year for £30, and was allowed 2s. a head for keeping the dryherd. He is the only schoolmaster mentioned until 1675. His salary had continued the same. In 1667, it is stated that the school was to be free to the inhabitants; others (not inhabitants) to pay as before, and their pay to go towards his salary of £30.

* He was a brother of Rev. Jonathan Mitchell, who was ordained in Cambridge a few months after the above date, and of Sarah, wife of Samuel Sherman, Esq. [See p. 934.] They were children of Matthew Mitchell, who embarked at Bristol in May, and arrived at Boston, Aug. 17, 1635. He went to Concord with the first settlers, and the next year (1636) moved to Saybrook, where one of his sons was captured and burnt by the Pequots. Soon after this he settled in Wethersfield, where he received, in 1640, the largest grant in the Naubuc Farms of any except that of Clement Chaplin. He was one of the original purchasers of Stamford (Rippowams), and moved there about 1641. (For the numerous descendants of David Mitchell, see Cothren, pp. 633, 34, &c. Also, for the numerous descendants of Sarah (Mitchell) Sherman, see, in the same work, pp. 682, &c.)

§ 222. Feb. 23, 1674-5, a committee (Capt. Mason and Simon Stone) was appointed to treat with Mr. [William] Goddard to keep school, and he was employed at a salary of £30, to begin Ap. 5, 1675. [See Certificate, p. 287.] Mar. 27, 1677, agreed with Left. Sherman to keep school, to begin Ap. 9th. From May 1 to Aug. 31, to keep eight hours in the day; to begin at seven in the morning and not to break up until five at night, noontime excepted. From Aug. 30 to Oct. 31st, six hours in the day. In March and April, and the four winter months, to begin at ten and continue until two.

§ 223. Jan. 7, 1678-9, the selectmen notified Left. Sherman and Mr. Goddard, giving them one-fourth year notice, that they had chosen another man to keep school, when their year was out, viz., Richard Norcross, from Ap. 9, 1679. In June, July, and August, he was to teach only Latin and writing at his own house; the other eight months Latin and English scholars at the school-house; to have £20 out of the town rates for 1679 (and probably what he could obtain from tuition as before). It was soon after determined to have the school kept the whole year at the school-house, and to add £5 to his salary. Ap. 8, 1679, Lieut. Sherman refused to give up the key of the school-house to those sent to demand it. Dec. 1, 1679, voted that Mr. Goddard shall have £5 for schooling from April last to April next. Dec. 30, 1679, the town voted that Lieut. Sherman is to keep school as formerly. It appears that Lieut. Sherman was not a grammar school, and the County Court, Dec., 1680, ordered Watertown to provide a grammar school. A committee was appointed, Ap. 1681, to provide a master to teach Latin and English, and Richard Norcross was chosen, Aug. 3, 1681, to begin when "the Captain's" [Sherman] time is out next April. Salary £25, and the benefit of Latin scholars over and above. Mr. Norcross was again employed in 1682 and 1683. He was to be paid for scholars not of the town, and if the [number] be large, the town to have places provided for the boys in the meeting-house.

§ 224. In 1683, it was agreed that those who dwell on the west side of Stony Brook (Weston) be freed from school tax of 1683, that they may be the better able to teach among themselves. Mr. Norcross was employed in 1685 and 1686. Those that send children to school to pay 3*d.* a week for each, and all short of £20 the town to make up to Mr. Norcross. But the town will pay for such children as their parents are unable to pay for, the selectmen being judges. Nov. 26, 1690, the town allowed £15 for the schoolmaster's maintenance. About this period repeated complaints were made to the County Court of the deficiency of schools in Watertown.

§ 225. Dec. 12, 1690, Nathaniel Stone [Stone, 19.] was chosen schoolmaster, and the committee reported, Jan. 9, 1690-1, that he had accepted, twenty persons having engaged to pay, or see him paid, 50*s.* a quarter, in addition to the £15 granted by the town. Nov. 27, 1693, the selectmen made the following agreement with Richard Norcross: to teach school one year from next Dec. 4th; to be paid by the parents, for English, 3*d.* a week; for writing, 4*d.* a week; for Latin, 6*d.* a week; school to be kept at his house until Ap. 1st; then, upon a month's trial at the school-house, [if] there appear [not] a considerable quantity of scholars, then he hath liberty to keep all the year at his house, and the town to pay him additional £5. But, if he have none but Latin scholars, then to allow out of his £5 what such Latin scholars' proportion cometh to. If he find scholars to increase, to keep school at the school-house from Ap. 1 to Oct. 1st, and the remainder of the year at his own house. Also, to catechize scholars and all other persons that are sent to him. June, 1696, the selectmen applied to Edward Goddard to teach school, to whom he replied, that if they would repair the school-house and give him £20 he would come; but the town did not accept the terms, and the town was fined for not having a school.

§ 226. Feb. 15, 1696-7. The town refused to have a grammar school, and appointed a committee to estimate the repairs of the school-house. Two of them reported that it would cost £3 or £4 to finish it well; the others reported that 30s. or 40s. would make it sufficient for use at present, and 40s. was granted. Feb. 26, the town voted money for a school; and, Mar. 29, they voted £10 and certain privileges, if Edward Goddard would keep school. Whether he then accepted does not appear in the records. Aug. 15, 1699, Edward Goddard agreed to keep the grammar school. May 24, 1700, voted, if Mr. Goddard will keep school the year ensuing, to grant him the remainder of the £10, granted for keeping school from Aug. 15, 1699, and £10 more for the year ensuing, and the rates from the "parents and owners of children."

§ 227. June 3, 1700, [Rev.] Mr. Samuel Parris agreed to keep school at his place of abode till some other is chosen. Sept. 3, 1700, Mr. Norcross was chosen to keep school for £10, and the usual rates from parents, and they to send one quarter cord of wood in the winter. At this time Mr. Norcross had been a schoolmaster forty-nine years, and was seventy-nine years old. Nov. 21, 1700, voted to keep the school the first and third quarters at the old school-house, and the second and fourth quarters in the middle of the town, and that the Farmers' Precinct, by paying £20, be freed from any other school charges this year. Also agreed with Ames Angier [grad. Harv. Coll., 1701] to keep school from Dec. 8; to have £30 in money, and those that send children to send one-fourth cord of wood. Mar. 2, 1701-2, agreed that the grammar school should be kept the second quarter at the house where old Father Ives formerly lived. Jan. 1, 1702-3, Ames Angier agreed to teach school half a year and no longer, to begin Jan. 25th. Ap. 23, 1704, Nathaniel Gookin [grad. Harv. Coll., 1703], agreed to keep school half a year, seven hours a day, for £15. Ap. 3, 1705, voted £30 for schools: £10 to be equally divided between the farmers and the westerly inhabitants, if it be improved for schooling; if not, to be for the use of the poor. Ap. 13, 1704, engaged Nathaniel Gookin to teach four months. May 10, 1706, the town "desired Rev. Joseph Morse to keep school, and be helpful to the minister, for £40, and 4d. per week for all who send their children," which he accepted conditionally. [See p. 374.] Dec. 13, 1706, school to be kept at Joshua Bigelow's house, west side of Beaver Brook, the next quarter.

§ 228. Jan. 22, 1707-8. Thomas Robie [grad. Harv. Coll., 1708] engaged to keep school half a year for £15, to begin 1st of March. 1st qr., seven hours; 2d qr., eight hours. Jan. 14, 1708-9. Benjamin Shattuck [grad. Harv. Coll., 1709] engaged to keep school, from Jan. 17th, half a year, for £15. He continued to teach in 1709, '10, '11, '12, '13, and '14. Nov. 30, 1714. Selectmen voted Urian Angier to be the schoolmaster, if the town approve, and town accepted, if he be found qualified. Nov. 20, 1714, at a meeting of selectmen, a committee reported "that they have been with the President of the College, and he informs them they cannot have any there that will keep school." Mar. 25, 1715. Selectmen agreed to pay Mr. Robert Ward [grad. Harv. Coll., 1719] £18, if he will keep school half a year ensuing. He was teacher again in 1716. May 10, 1717. Mr. Ward agrees to teach for £4, additional salary, and his year began May 11. May 19, 1718. Benj. Fessenden [grad. Harv. Coll., 1718] treated with to keep school one qr. for £10. Ap. 6, 1719, Voted £22 for Benj. Fessenden, and in 1720, '21, and '22. July 22, 1722, he was called to the ministry. Dec. 28, 1722. Ordered £12 for Matthew Livermore [grad. Harv. Coll., 1722], to be schoolmaster. Nov. 2, 1724. Ordered £22 for Matthew Livermore. June 7, 1725. Ordered to pay Mr. L. May 20, 1726, ordered £59, to pay him in full. Feb. 24, 1726-7, Ordered £30 for Samuel Coolidge [grad. Harv. Coll., 1724], schoolmaster. May 22, 1729. Ordered £15 to Samuel Coolidge. David Stearns, grad. Harv. Coll., 1728, master, 1729. Nathaniel Harrington, grad. H. C., 1728, master, 1733, '38, '46, '50, '68. Samuel Nightingale, grad. H. C., 1734, master, 1734. Joseph Priest, grad. H. C., 1734, master, 1735. Josiah Pierce, grad. H. C., 1735, master, 1736. Jouathau Sewall, grad. H. C., 1748, master, 1748. William Jennison, grad. H. C., 1724, master, 1750,

d. in Ap., 1750. Samuel Coolidge, grad. H. C., 1724, again master, 1751. Josiah Swan, grad. H. C., 1733 (?), master, 1758. Thomas Phipps, master, 1758. Edward Russell, grad. H. C., 1759, master, 1760. Marshall Spring, grad. H. C., 1762, master, 1763. Joseph Willard, grad. H. C., 1765, master, 1765. Caleb Prentice, grad. H. C., 1765, master, 1766. Nathaniel Bond, grad. H. C., 1766, master, 1767, English school. John Hunt, Jr., grad. H. C., 1764, master, 1767, writing school. John Stratton, master, 1768, writing school. In 1767, five women's schools were provided for twelve weeks from Jan. 1st., viz., Samuel Cook's wife [Cook, 30, [?] his 2d wife]; Joseph Flagg's wife [? 63.]; Samuel Mason's wife [? of Newton]; Mrs. [Miss] Kezia Stone [49.]; and Mrs. [Miss] Hannah Bright [99.]

WATCHES.

§ 229. At a Court of Assistants, Ap. 12, 1631, "it was ordered, that there shall be a watch of four kept every night at Dorchester, and another of four at Watertown, the watches to begin at sunset," and "if any person shall shoot off a piece, after the watch is set, he shall forfeit 40s., or if the Court judge him unable [to pay], then to be whipped; the second fault to be punished by the Court as an offence of a higher nature." It appears, by Winthrop [I, p. 74], that the ordering of the watch belonged to the Captain in the town where he resided, but where there was not a Captain resident, the duty devolved on the Constable. At the first meeting held by the General Court, after the introduction of a House of Deputies (May, 1634), it was "Ordered, that there shall be a watch of two at night kept in every plantation, till the next General Court." Mar. 9, 1636-7, it was, by the Court, "Ordered, that the military officers in every town shall provide that watches be duly kept most fit for common safety, and wards on the Lord's days; and that every person above the age of eighteen years (except magistrates and elders of churches) shall be compellable to this service." At the same time it was ordered that "every town shall provide a sufficient watch-house before the last of 5th month next, upon pain of £5." This order, about watches and wards, on the 2d May, 1638, was renewed and confirmed, for continuance from year to year. In May, 1640, it was ordered that "the ordinary watches and wards, in time of peace, shall be set by the constables in the several towns; but, in times of great danger of an enemy, the military officers shall take charge thereof." At a town meeting, Ap. 27, 1681, the military watches were turned into constable's watches, "until God's providence doe discover more eminent danger;" the night-watches, by the constables, to begin May 1st. The next month, June 11th, it was agreed that watches cease for the present.

§ 230. The information in the records respecting the watches in Watertown are very scanty. The meeting-house was sometimes used as the watch-house, which was also the depository of the ammunition of the town. In 1711, the old school-house, on School-house Hill, was ordered to be repaired for a watch-house.

§ 231. The homestall of John Wetherill was described as "bounded, W., with the townhouse and the [Pequusset] Common." Whether this was a watch-house, or what was its use, the records do not show. In the same neighborhood, at an early date, there was a wolf-pen, with a palisade about it. Perhaps the "town-house" was for the accommodation of a herdsman, who had the care of the cattle that were fed in common, on Pequusset Common, and the wolf-pen may have been used for enclosing the cattle at night against the attack of wolves. Jan. 10, 1647-8, the town voted "to give John Wetherill the palisade that enclosed the wolf-pen." By this time much of Pequusset Common had been divided into lots, and perhaps it had so nearly ceased to be used as a cow-common that the wolf-pen was useless. Soon after this the cow-pen was provided on the west border of the town. [See Section 156.]

§ 232. Fairs. By the Court, Sept. 6, 1638, it was "Ordered, that there shall be two fairs at Watertown, the one on the first Friday of 4th month (June), the other on the first Friday of 7th month (September)." At a town meeting, Mar. 30, 1639, it was ordered, that these "two Fairs at Watertown * * * * shall be kept upon the Trayning-place." Fairs were, at that time, ordered to be held only in Salem, Watertown, and Dorchester. As there is no further notice of them in the colonial or town records, they probably soon fell into disuse.

SALARIES, WAGES, VALUATION, &c.

§ 233. A perusal of the copy of the original records of the town, inserted in the preceding pages [pp. 995, &c.], will show that there are very few notices of salaries or wages in them,—no mention of the Pastors' salaries until Dec., 1642, when the salary of Mr. Phillips was £67 13 4, and that of Mr. Knowles £40. The second levy, made by the Governor and Assistants, Nov. 1630, upon the several towns about the Bay (exclusive of Dorchester) was £60, for the two ministers, Mr. Phillips and Mr. Wilson, one-half of which was for Mr. Phillips. This was probably for half a year. There are numerous penalties specified in the records for trespasses and violations of orders, and, in a few instances, fees or compensation for services. In 1638, the reward for killing a wolf was 5s.; in 1648, 1s. for killing a fox; and, in 1668, for killing blackbirds, 3*d.* per dozen. In 1640, the fee for executing a town order was 1s.; and 4*d.* upon the acre was allowed to the town surveyor "for surveying, plotting, and staking the lots upon the two plains, and the remote meadows." [See Sections 91–99.] The next mention of the Pastors' salaries was Jan. 33, 1647–8, when £120 was granted to Pastor Knowles and Pastor Sherman. This was very soon after the return of Mr. Sherman from Milford, and probably this sum was equally divided between them. This seems to have been the sum granted to the ministers for several years, and after the departure of Mr. Knowles, the whole sum was granted annually to Mr. Sherman. The "rate for the ministry" was usually a larger sum, as there might be some failures of payment, and the expenses of making and collecting it. In 1659 and 1660, £150 was allowed Mr. Sherman, and the next year the "ministers' rate" was the same sum, and in 1661 it was £160. From this date, until his decease in 1685, his salary was £140. This was a very liberal support for that day; but Mather says he had twenty-one children. After the settlement of Mr. John Bailey and his brother Thomas, the same sum was divided between them, viz., £80 to John and £60 to Thomas, with allowance for houseroom and firewood. After the organization of the two churches, and the settlement of Mr. Angier and Mr. Gibbs, £168 was annually divided equally between them, and after the settlement of Mr. Warham Williams and Mr. Storer, they each received the same salaries. It was the usual custom to allow the minister firewood in addition to his salary. Sometimes this was deducted from the salary, and sometimes the minister was required to take a large part of his salary in provisions, "town pay," at the rates fixed by the town prizer, or at the Court price. The first time that the term salary occurs in the records was in 1680, and then Mr. Sherman was to have one-fifth ($\frac{1}{5}$) of it in money. In 1687 the prices of "towns pay" for paying rates was, rye, 4s.; Indian corn, 3s.; and oats, 2s. In Jan., 1691–2, the prices were, rye and barley, 4s.; Indian corn, 3s.; and oats, 2s. In Feb., 1692–3, rye, 5s., barley, and barley malt, and Indian corn, 4s.—2s. in money to be taken as 3s. in grain. In 1697, oak wood was 7s., and walnut 8s., per cord. In repairing or rebuilding the mill-bridge, in 1706, carpenters, working in the water, were allowed 3s. per day, laborers on the land, 2s. 6*d.*, and teams 5s. per day.

§ 234. The earliest mention of the pay of a schoolmaster was Jan. 6, 1650–1, when £30 was voted for Mr. Richard Norcross; and this continued to be the salary, with little variation, except as to manner of paying it, for about seventy-five years, with a few exceptions, about 1715 or '20, when it was £36. In some cases tuition was to be paid for certain studies and certain scholars; and whatever was obtained in this manner was deducted from the sum the master was to receive from the town.

§ 235. On page 999 may be seen the valuation which was fixed, in 1642, upon the several kinds of lands and cattle for the purpose of taxation. In 1648, broken-up land was rated at 20s.; very bad [broken-up land], 15s.; unbroken, 10s.; meadow, 20s. It is remarkable that, in no appraisal or valuation for the purpose of assessments, do we find any mention of marsh lands, although, according to inventories, they were deemed to be from three to fivefold more valuable than any other lands. The following are the "invoices" of the town, at several dates, for the purpose of making assessments, with the number of "heads" (taxable persons):

		Taxable Persons.			Taxable Persons.
Aug. 30, 1658,	£7298,	153	Sept.,	1681,	£6376,	171
Sept. 6, 1664,	7572,	154	Ap.,	1682,	6391,	172
Aug. 31, 1669,	6505,	192	Nov.,	1683,	5143,	174
Sept., 1678,	6691,	176	Sept.,	1685,	5441,	160

§ 236. In a levy of a tax of £30,000 upon the colony, in Nov. 1693 (after the union of the colonies of Plymouth and Massachusetts Bay), the share of Watertown was £224 16 6, being about 1-120th part of it. In Mar., 1694-5, a tax of 4*d.* in the pound was levied for building the new meeting-house, and amounted to £320 4*s.*, which shows the total valuation or invoice to have been £19,212. This was little more than a year after the preceding levy upon the whole colony, and it shows the whole taxable property in the colony (of Plymouth and Massachusetts Bay) to have been at that time about £2,305,500.

PHYSICIANS.

§ 237. The information respecting the physicians of Watertown in early times, during the first hundred years, is very scanty, and their number very few. We have not discovered that any of the pastors of Watertown practised the healing art, which was not unusual in early times. James Sherman, of Sudbury, son of Rev. John Sherman, of Watertown, was a pastor and a physician, and two of his sons, John and Thomas, were physicians, and were said to be some time of Watertown; but in 1708 they resided in Springfield.

The earliest notice of any medical practice was Mar., 1630-1, when "Nicholas Knapp was (by the Court) fined £5, for taking upon him to cure the scurvy by a water of no value, which he sold at a very dear rate." Probably his only medical education had been, like that of his numerous followers, to study the credulity of human nature, and how he might most successfully dupe it. Mr. Simon Eire, "chirurgion," was the first physician of Watertown, where he resided about 10 years—1635 to 1645—when he moved to Boston. As there is no evidence that there was any other physician resident of Watertown for many years afterwards, it is not improbable that he sometimes visited it professionally, as he retained his estate there. But if there were no physicians, their place was supplied by some of the goodwives. Grace, wife of John Livermore, was an obstetrician, and she was sometimes summoned to Court, as a witness in cases, where she had acted professionally. In the County Court files is a petition of the Selectmen of Watertown, dated 1690, in which they say that S. G. came from Cambridge to Watertown "to the house of Ellis Barron, whose wife had skill in matters of surgery." The next physician after Dr. Eire was Dr. Philip Shattuck, who probably practised there from about 1670 to 1722. He resided in the northeast part of Waltham. Dr. Palgrave Wellington was his cotemporary, being only five years younger than Dr. Shattuck. He resided on the Cambridge Road, on or near the lots of G. Church and W. Woolcot. He d. 1715. Dr. Richard Hooper was a cotemporary of Doctors Shattuck and Wellington, and resided at the east of Mount Auburn. He died early in 1690. His son Henry was a physician of Watertown a few years, and about 1723 he moved to Newport, R. I. Dr. Josiah Converse, from Woburn, settled in Watertown, probably about the time of the decease of Dr. Shattuck, and the removal of Dr. H. Hooper. We have not ascertained where he resided, but perhaps it was the residence afterwards occupied by his nephew, pupil, legatee, and executor, Dr. Marshall Spring. He died in 1774, after a residence of probably nearly 50 years. See Spring [60], p. 444, and Bond [323], p. 62.

LAWYERS.

§ 238. There was no lawyer, resident of Watertown, for the first 120 or 130 years after its settlement, and our information respecting those of later times is too scanty to be inserted here, if we were attempting a history of such times.

INNKEEPERS AND LICENSED RETAILERS AND TRADERS.

§ 239. Innkeepers were licensed by the General Court or Courts of Assistants until the organization of County Courts, and they were sometimes appointed or nominated by the selectmen. The following list is undoubtedly defective. The locality of many inns in the following list has not been ascertained.

Sept., 1635. The Court licensed John Masters to keep an ordinary, and he was discharged, June 4, 1639, a few months before he died. He had probably moved to Cambridge previous to the date of his license, but the record does not show it.

June 6, 1637. By the Court, George "Munnings" is fined 20s. for selling beer and keeping a house of entertainment without license." This was about six months after he returned from the expedition to Block Island with the loss of an eye. The next November, "Munnings, of Watertown, is (by the Court) put down from keeping an ordinary, or house of entertainment; and it is referred to Watertown to choose another." [See p. 859.]

Mar. 12, 1637-8. John Loveran [Loverill in the Court Record] is, by the Court, "allowed to sell wine and strong water" at Watertown. His homestall was a little distance east of the Bridge, extending from Mount Auburn Street to the river.

June 1, 1641. William Knapp, for selling beer two years unlicensed, was fined £5. He resided on the S. side of Belmont Street, W. of the graveyard.

Nov. 4, 1646. "Mrs. Margaret Howe [wid. of Edward] and Nathaniel Treadway [her son-in-law] are granted liberty to draw two butts of wine, which they received for debt, and cannot put off in the butts." [See the Map.]

Nov. 2, 1649. Thomas Wincoll was, by the selectmen, allowed to keep a house of entertainment.

Oct. 1654. Lieut. Richard Beers, upon the recommendation of several freemen of Watertown, was licensed by the County Court to keep an ordinary. His license was repeatedly renewed, and probably continued until his decease in 1675. His homestall, in 1644, bordered on the S. W. shore of Fresh Pond. Previous to 1644, he had purchased another homestall on the south side of Mount Auburn Street, not far west of the old graveyard.

☞ The County Court Records, from Oct., 1663, to Ap., 1681, are lost, or were not discoverable at the time our researchs were made, and it has not been ascertained what licenses were granted during that time.

John Nevinson, licensed, in 1685, to keep an ordinary, and until his decease, Jan., 1695. He was succeeded by his son-in-law, Samuel Hastings, for a short time. Mr. Nevinson's widow, after the decease of her second husband, with whom she lived only a few months, obtained a license in 1698, and continued to keep an ordinary until 1717; probably in the neighborhood of Mount Auburn.

Caleb Church, licensed in 1686, and until 1711; resided on the N. side of Maine Street. He sold the land, Ap. 23, 1712, to Thomas Learned. See Learned, below

David Church, licensed in 1687 and '88. [See G. Church, on the map.]
Thomas Woolson, 1686, and until 1708; supposed to reside on the Sudbury Road, in Watertown Farms [Weston], at a short distance west of the meeting-house.

John Chadwick, licensed in 1693, and again in 1695.

Mrs. Hooper [wid. of Dr. Richard], licensed in 1693; E. of Mount Auburn.

Daniel Benjamin [19.], licensed, 1694, until 1699, "to sell liquors in-doors."

Ebenezer Prout, licensed, in 1695, and license renewed, to "sell liquor in-doors."

Samuel Parris, licensed, in 1700 and in 1701, as a "retailer out of doors," i. e. a trader; north side of Maine Street, west of the Town Hall.

Samuel Bigelow [22.], licensed, 1701, and until 1716, to keep a house of entertainment.

Abraham Brown [18.], licensed in 1709, and continued four years; where his grandson, Jonathan Brown, Esq., and great-grandson, Major Adam Brown, afterwards lived.

Thomas Learned [42.], licensed in 1712, and until his decease in Dec., 1729. It was on the lot where the Spring Hotel has been built. He was succeeded by his widow, Mary, who kept it until 1764; then kept two years by her son, Abijah Learned; then by Benjamin Prentice, 1767-69; then by her son, Bezaleel Learned, in 1770-71. See C. Church, above.

Thomas Coolidge [107.], licensed, 1713, until 1737, when he was succeeded, for a few years, by his widow, Mary, who was, in 1744, succeeded by her son, David Coolidge, who continued the business until 1755; supposed to be where W. F. Gay now resides.

Ebenezer Wellington [17.], licensed, 1715-17.

Mrs. Mary Brewer, of Weston, wid. of John, licensed in 1717.

David Ball [10.], licensed in 1717; probably on Waltham Plain.

Wid. Ruth Child [77.], licensed 1717 and '18; (?) near the bridge, south side of the river.

Thomas Harrington [141.], of Waltham, licensed, 1719 to 1737.

Thomas Saltmarsh, licensed, 1735 to 1769; not far west of Mill Bridge, probably that since known as the Wellington Tavern.

Capt. John Brown [77.], licensed, 1737 and '38; probably on Belmont Street, where Gen. Jonathan Coolidge afterwards lived.

Nathaniel Harris, licensed, 1738 to '49, as a retailer (trader).

Jonathan Gardner, licensed, 1739.

John Hunt, licensed, as a retailer (trader), in 1740, and in 1769, was succeeded by his son John. His son, Samuel Hunt, licensed as a trader, 1758 to '64.

Nathaniel Coolidge [148.], licensed, 1744-46; son Nathaniel, licensed, 1764-70, and kept near the south end of Mill Bridge.

Jonathan Bemis [52.], licensed, 1745 and '46.

Cornelius Waldo, licensed, as a trader, in 1750, until 1771; supposed to be on the Dr. Hooper place.

William Baldwin, licensed in 1753.

John Remington, licensed, as a trader, in 1753, and continued until 1765.

Hannah Livermore [? 54.], licensed, 1754 to '61, to sell tea, coffee, china, &c.

Jonas White, licensed, as a trader, 1764 to '70.

Edward Richardson, licensed, 1764 to '71; at the junction of Belmont and Mount Auburn Streets; since known as the Bird Hotel.

Jonathan Capen, licensed, 1769-71.

Thomas Wellington [62.], licensed, 1770-71; supposed successor of Thomas Saltmarsh. Ezekiel Hall, licensed, 1770-71.

Capt. Abner Craft, licensed, 1772.

In Weston and Waltham, after their separation from Watertown, there were many innkeepers previous to the end of the last century; but the list obtained is too defective to be inserted here. See Baldwin, Brewer, Woodburne, Gleason, Townsend.

APPENDIX IV.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE MAP OF THE EARLY TOPOGRAPHY OF WATERTOWN (PROPER).

IN Sections 84 and 85, pp. 1020 and 21, are pointed out some of the difficulties to be encountered in attempting a plan or map of the original divisions and allotments of land. These were by no means exaggerated. But, having discovered that we had fallen into one or more important errors, regarding early localities, through the hastiness of our conclusions from inadequate premises, we were induced to enter upon a more thorough investigation in order to rectify them, but without the expectation of succeeding so well, or proceeding so far, that the result could be offered in the form of a map of ancient Watertown. The success of the intricate and perplexing labor having far exceeded our expectation, the result of these researches is here presented in a map, with some explanations.

As no record of that period gives the dimensions of a lot, but only the quantity of land, and that "by estimation," not by measurement, all that is attempted in the map, is, to show the size of the lots, and their relations to each other, to roads, and to the natural boundaries. It is evident that the estimation of the quantity of land in each lot was not always accurate, as, in many instances, the same lot, in different descriptions or records of it, is stated to contain different quantities of land. If their exact outlines could be discovered, they would probably exhibit very many discrepancies between them and those on this map. This is, however, of comparatively small importance, if their size and position are determined. That such is the case, generally, with few and unimportant exceptions, we are entirely satisfied.

In the course of the following explanations, the term grant is applied to lots where the title was derived directly from the town, not by purchase, and the holder was the first individual owner. The term possession is applied to lots obtained by grant, purchase, gift, or inheritance, and the holder of it was not always the first owner. In the early schedules there is only one instance of a lot purchased of the town, and that was the 47 A. lot purchased by Mr. Nathaniel Biscoe, the rich tanner. In later times, there are many instances of such purchases.

It may be seen, in the copy of the original records, p. 995, &c., that there is frequent mention of general enclosures, and fencing in common. The same may be seen in the succeeding town records, and it was many years before they were discontinued. The first mention of general enclosures occurs very early (Jan. 3, 1634-5), and it was afterwards (May 30, 1643) ordered, that "a fence with 4 rails, or any fence as good, is counted sufficient." They generally had distinct names, and each was surrounded with roads, or some natural boundary.

Pond Field was bounded E. by Fresh Pond; W. by School Street; S. by Belmont Street; and N. probably by the Road to the Pond.

Meadfield was bounded S. by Belmont St.; E. by Common St. (Pequusset Road); W. by Lexington St. (road to Concord). It was probably so named because it included Pequusset Meadow.

Bowman's Field was bounded N. by Belmont St.; S. W. by Orchard St., and E. by Bowman's Lane. These names indicate the respect entertained for Mr. Bowman.

Jennison's Close, or Field, was bounded W. by Bowman's Lane; N. by Belmont St.; E. by School St.; S. by Mill St. (Mount Auburn St.). Capt. Jennison's homestead was much larger than any other in this tract.

How's Field was bounded S. by Sudbury Road (Main St.); W. by Lexington St.; N. by Orchard St., and E. by Bowman's Lane and Mill St. (Mount Auburn St.). Elder Edward How was the largest proprietor in this tract. It included the east range of lots in the Town Plot.

Pound Field was bounded N. by Mill St. (Mount Auburn St.); S. and W. by Bank Lane; E. by Grove St. The town pound was anciently in it, near the N. E. corner. About 1687, the pound was at the S. E. corner of Lexington and Belmont Streets.

The Hither Plain [see § 91], for several years, had a general enclosure, and the cartway betwixt lots [Pleasant St.] was not a fenced road. It is, indeed, highly probable that few, if any of the lots, in the Hither and Further Plains, were ever fenced according to the original allotments. Early and frequent changes of ownership occurred, before the lots began to have distinct fences, and two or more lots were often consolidated into one.

There is some obscurity about the arrangement of lots in Dorchester Field, and the delineation of them is not entirely satisfactory. It probably had no precise boundaries. The following lots, in the schedule of grants, are described as "in Dorchester Field," viz., E. Child, 10 A.; J. Loveran, 8 A.; W. Jennison, 6 A.; John Bernard, 6 A.; R. Tucke, 2 A. At a later date, the large homestead of John Benjamin was said to be in Dorchester Field.

There is a small tract of land between Dorchester Field and the homestead of Nathaniel Foote, which it has been found very difficult to delineate, according to the lines or divisions of the original grants, owing to the repeated changes of ownership, and the defective descriptions of boundaries. Jeremiah Norcross was not a grantee; but, in 1643, he owned a homestead of 26 A. in that locality, made up of land bought of John Page, Robert Tucke, Richard Amler, and Jacob Logan (? Seger). This land of Mr. Norcross included the 14 A. homestead granted to Edmund Mason, and the 7 A. homestead granted to Robert Tucke. It is conjectured that Page and Amler bought the land of Mason, and sold it to Norcross, and that Seger had a 5 A. lot, obtained by grant or purchase, which he sold to Norcross, and which would complete the 26 A. homestead. Not long afterwards, Mr. Norcross purchased of H. Cuttris the 16 A. homestead granted to N. Foote.

There are a few instances, in the schedules of grants, where the same lot appears to have been granted to two persons. In these cases it is probable that the first grantee relinquished it to the town, exchanging it for another, or perhaps failed to comply with the terms of the grant. One instance of this is the lot north side of Belmont Street, next east of R. Holden. It was granted to Edmund Sherman (who left Watertown in 1637) and to Bryan Pendleton. From the latter it passed successively to N. Busby, John Stebbins, J. White, J. Coolidge, and Rev. John Sherman, who purchased the lots of J. and R. Holden.

We have not attempted to delineate all the lots of marsh land. In most instances, they are described as bounded S. or S. E. by the river, and N. or N. W. by Bank Lane, with the omission of the boundaries on the other two sides. As these lots were not residences, it is the less interesting to determine their outlines and localities. There were 21 lots of marsh granted, amounting to 62½ acres. The largest lot (10 A.) was that of Dea. Ephraim Child, bounded S. E. by the river, and N. W. by Bank Lane. It was probably opposite to his first residence, situated at the southwest corner of Water Street and Bank Lane. Two lots of marsh were granted to Elder Richard Brown. The first (3 A.), which he sold early to Simon Stone, was opposite to his first homestead, E. of Mount Auburn, which he sold to R. Wellington.

There were three 2 A. lots of marsh between the homestall of Nathaniel Foote and the river. The easternmost was that granted to N. Foote. The next was that of John Smith. The other was the second lot granted to R. Browne. Pine Marsh was the first marsh at the E. or S. E. of Dorchester Field. Three 2 A. lots in it were granted to Robert Lockwood, Nicholas Knapp, and Thomas Rogers. Several of the marsh lots may be seen delineated on the map.

It has been stated in § 81, that Pequusset Meadow was divided into numerous small lots. They were situated in a range, beginning at John Flemming's homestall, and extending north to Pequusset Common, in the following order. Those marked (*) denote an original grantee. *J. Doggett, 2 A., sold to John Flemming; J. Bisco, 3 A.; *J. Lawrence, 2 A.; *W. Hammond, 3 A.; *H. Goldstone, 2 A., passed to his son-in-law, Henry Bright, Jr.; *N. Bowman, 2 A.; *Isaac Cummings, 2 A., sold to Henry Kemball, Jr.; T. Boyden, 3 A.; *E. James, 3 A.; *I. Sterne, 2 A.; *J. Warren, 3 A.; *J. Simson, 2 A., passed to G. Parkhurst, who m. his wid., and who sold it to W. Hammond; *H. Bright, Jr., 2 A., sold to W. Hammond; N. Busby, 4 A.; S. Freeman; S. Eire.

By referring to § 27, it will be seen that some locality or region, at the east of Mount Auburn, at a very early day, was called "The Town." Whether this was applied to some point, or what was its extent, the records do not show, and we are left to conjecture. The tract of land at the east, north, and south of Mount Auburn, was undoubtedly the one where the plantation was begun in the summer of 1630, and it is conjectured that the lot, marked G. Phillips on the map, at the junction of Cambridge and Water Streets, was the centre, and the point from which distances were reckoned. Sir Richard Saltonstall's homestall was bounded N. W. by land of Mr. Phillips, and it is supposed that Mr. Phillips's lot extended northwestwardly to the junction of Cambridge and Water Streets; that after "the new meeting-house" was built near the Old Graveyard, Mr. Phillips sold two parcels of the lot to Mr. E. Angier and H. Pelham, Esq. It appears by the schedules of possessions, that the lots of Pelham and Angier were purchases and not grants, and that in the list of Mr. Phillips's grants and possessions (in the same schedule, made out a short time before his decease), he had no lot bounded S. E. by land of Sir Richard. It was not unusual for lots to be described by their original or early boundaries, after the adjoining lands had changed owners; and thus Sir Richard's lot, after it had passed to his son Samuel, was described as bounded N. W. by G. Phillips. It is our conjecture (supported by plausible reasons, but without positive data), that the first house of worship was built on that lot, at the junction of Cambridge and Water Streets, on the map marked G. Phillips; and that if any burials took place before the opening or appropriation of the Old Graveyard, they would be in that lot or its immediate neighborhood.

By consulting the map, it will be seen that a great portion of the lots, east of Mount Auburn, were not held by grantees, but by purchasers, and at the time the schedules were made out (about 1643) many of those grantees, whose names are marked on the lots, had sold them, and moved to other larger lots, situated farther west, or had migrated from the town. R. Seeley, J. Livermore, R. Feake, A. Ward, R. Abbot, and B. Windes, had moved to Connecticut; A. Shaw to Dedham; Mr. Phillips, R. Browne, A. Browne, J. Firmin, J. Warren, E. Child, I. Sterne, W. Hammond, and J. Lawrence, had moved to other lots, which may be seen on the map. From the situation of the homestall lot of Leonard Chester, and the time of his arrival, it is presumed that it was not a grant, but a purchase; and it may have been the grant made either to John Masters or Capt. Patrick, who moved to Cambridge about the time of Mr. Chester's arrival. It will be seen on the map that the lot, marked as a grant to John Hayward, contained 24 acres. This is so much larger than any other grant made in that region, that it seems to require some explanation. Our presumption is that a part of the 24 A. was granted to him; that he purchased one or two other contiguous lots, which had been granted to those who left the town early, and that then, in the schedules, as in the case of J. Norcross, the whole was inserted as one lot. On the map may be seen two lots, on Bank Lane, near Water Street, marked Edward Goffe, who was a purchaser and not a grantee. These were undoubtedly grants to some of the planters of 1630, and it is not unlikely that one of them was made to W. Jennison; for his large 50 A. homestall was among lots granted at a later date than the time of his settlement. The lots east of Mount Auburn are sometimes styled Planting Land, and there is reason to believe that all the lands in this region, fit for planting, were granted the first year. There were two or more lots granted at a later date, as those of Simon Stone and R. Wellington; but these were among the rough grounds of Mount Auburn, and were unsuited to planting or tillage.

The tradition is, that Mr. George Phillips resided in a house opposite to the Old Graveyard, very near the "new meeting-house," and this is so probable and plausible, that his supposed dwelling is marked on the map. Yet there is good reason to question its correctness.

Mr. Phillips's homestall in the Town Plot, at the corner of Orchard and Lexington Streets, was the first in the list of his possessions; in that schedule of grants, which was completed a short time before his decease. In other instances, almost without exception, a man's homestall, where he resided, is placed first in the list of his possessions. It is also to be observed that, if he lived on this lot, he was the next neighbor of his co-pastor, Mr. Knowles, whose homestall was on the other side of Orchard Street, and it was only half a mile north of Mr. Carter's residence. There is no doubt but that the widow of Mr. Phillips, and his son Jonathan, lived on this lot. In the Inventory of Jonathan, 1704, is, $\frac{1}{2}$ the dwelling-house that was his father Phillips. If Mr. Phillips moved to this lot, he only complied with the terms, on which it was granted, that he should "build and dwell upon it." In the next place, the lot of Mr. Phillips, upon the Meeting-house Common, is the last in the list of his grants, and it is not called a homestall, but only "fifteen acres of upland."

The 12 A. homestall of Thomas Mayhew, may be seen on the map, near the bridge. May 6, 1654, he sold this (then called his orchard, containing 9 A., and occupied by John Bush), to Nicholas Davison, of Charlestown, for all his (D.'s) sheep, cattle, and land in Martha's Vineyard, except the land (1000 A.) which he received of Mayhew for the Oldham Farm. Nov. 3, 1655, Davison sold this Mayhew homestall to John Fuller, of Cambridge, for £44. Fuller sold it to Richard Sanger, May 15, 1657, for £46. From Richard Sanger, it passed to his son John; then to his grandson David; then to his great grandson William; then to his gr. gr. grandson Richard, who now occupies a part of it. A part of it was formerly the residence of Rev. Dr. Francis, and a part of it is now the residence of Dr. Hiram Hosmer.

Mr. John Oldham left Watertown and died before any schedule of grants or possessions was made out, and his name is not found in them. It is very probable that the 60 A. homestall, bought by John Benjamin, was his residence. [See p. 1037.] The Wear is supposed to have been opposite to this lot.

Richard and Abraham Browne settled on adjoining lots on Bank Lane, east of Mount Auburn, but they both moved very early to other lots, as may be seen on the map. Richard very early sold his first homestall to R. Wellington, and his adjoining marsh to Simon Stone; John Train bought his last homestall. Abraham Browne retained his first homestall and adjoining marsh, until after the summary of possessions was made out.

In the Inventory of Abraham Browne [p. †125], his homestead was reported to contain 60 A. Unless there was a mistake in the estimate of the quantity of his land in the early schedule, his homestead, in this Inventory (besides the 40 A. between Main St. and Pleasant St.), must have included the 10 A. on the S. side of Pleasant St., granted to him and to John Browne, and 10 additional acres contiguous thereto; for the additional 20 A. to the ancient homestall, could be obtained in no other direction [see § 94]. That a part of the estate was on the S. side of Pleasant St., is shown by the following mortgage. Whether this was the grant made to John Browne, has not been ascertained. Ap. 13, 1697 [soon after the settlement of the estate], Abraham Browne mortgaged to Caleb Church, 6 A. adjoining Dirty Green, bounded E. by C. Church (the owner of Dirty Green); N. by highway to Beaver Plain; W. by Abraham Browne; S. by Charles River. This lot of A. B. soon passed to Edward Goddard; for, on the 22 Mar. 1705-6, Caleb Church mortgaged "12 acres of pasture, called Dirty Green," bounded S. and E. by the river; W. by Edward Goddard; N. by highway (Pleasant St.). It has not been ascertained how this place acquired the name of Dirty Green, and Dirty Place.

Upon the final settlement of the estate in 1694 [see p. †125], Capt. Abraham Browne, in behalf of himself and other heirs of his father, Jonathan, bought of the other heirs their rights in the estate. The records do not show how the estate was divided among the heirs of Jonathan, after this purchase; but some information, not very exact, is derived from succeeding transactions. The western part was assigned to Abraham, the eldest son, and ex'r of Jonathan. He built upon it, and it has never ceased to be owned by his descendants. The eastern and larger portion, was assigned to the widow, Mary, and the younger sons. A large part of this, soon passed out of the possession of the family, but was recovered after the lapse of about 28 years, and held in the family until about 1808.

Mar. 30, 1703, wid. Mary, and her sons, William and Benjamin, for £192, sold to Samuel Barnard 25 A., bounded N. by Sudbury Road, and land of Mary Browne; W. by Mary Browne, and partly by land of Serjt. John Fiske. By this deed, it appears that she retained some of the land assigned to her and her younger sons, and a subsequent deed shows its amount. Mar. 13, 1705-6, William and Benjamin B., sold to their brother Abraham, 9½ A., bounded N. by Sudbury Road; W. by land of Abraham Browne; E. and S. by Samuel Barnard. On the same day, Abraham signed to his brothers William and Benjamin, a quitclaim of his right in the land which they had sold to Barnard. By a deed dated Dec. 23, 1715, Capt. Abraham Browne conveyed to his son Jonathan, 14 A. "in easterly part of my estate," bounded E. by Samuel Barnard; S. by S. Barnard and John Fiske; N. by highway; W. by Abraham Browne. Mar. 18, 1730-1, James Nutting, of Wrentham, gunsmith, and Mercy, his wife, and Esther Barnard, spinster (both daughters of Samuel Barnard), for £450, sold to John Browne (youngest son of Capt. Abraham), house, barn, shop, and 24 A. land, bounded N. by highway; W. by Jonathan and Samuel Browne, who held, by deed and legacy, that western portion, which their father obtained by settlement and purchase. The next day, Mar. 19, John Browne sold to his brother Jonathan, the same property for the same sum, subject to a mortgage of £220, to Jonathan Nutting, of Wrentham. After this mortgage was paid off (as it was done), the ancient homestead was again vested in the Browne family.

Jonathan Browne (eldest son of Capt. Abraham), in the lifetime of his father, lived in the ancient mansion, bequeathed to him by the Will of his father, situated on the N. side of Sudbury Road, nearly opposite to the house of his father. There is little doubt but that he lived in that house, until after the removal of his brother Samuel to Leicester, so that all his children were born in it; and it is very probable that it was his permanent residence. If he moved into the house, built and occupied by his father, he could have resided in it only a short time, as not long after the removal of his brother Samuel, who inherited and occupied the house, it was, by his son, Jonathan, Jr., mortgaged, Jan. 12, 1747, to Capt. Thomas Hlomans, who occupied it for a few years. This ancient house, on the N. side of Sudbury Road, without much doubt, was built and occupied by the first Nathan Fiske, of Watertown, on that lot in the Town Plot, which he bought of Robert Feake. From him it passed to his son, Serjt. John Fiske, who was living in it as late as 1703. How or when it came into the possession of Capt. Abraham Browne, has not been ascertained. From Jonathan, Senior, it passed to Col. William Bond, who married his youngest daughter, and who also owned that part of the ancient Browne homestead, which was also bequeathed by Capt. Abraham to his son Jonathan. The western part of it, with the house built by Capt. Abraham B., was occupied by Jonathan, Jr., Esq., from whom it passed to his son, Major Adam Browne.

The 28 A. homestead of Henry Goldstone passed to his son-in-law, Dea. Henry Bright; then to his eldest son, Dea. John Bright, who died without issue, and it passed to his second son, Nathaniel Bright; then to his son, Cornet Henry Bright; then to his son-in-law, Isaac Sanderson; and Dec. 12, 1777, it was divided to his sons, Josiah and Henry Sanderson.

The 14 A. homestead, granted to Thomas Bartlett, and where he always resided, passed to his son-in-law, John Applin. Previous to Ap. 1683, Applin had sold to Henry Spring the eastern part, 6½ A. of it, and on June 8, 1697, Spring sold this to Jonas Bond. Ap. 3, 1683, Applin sold to John Dix the west part of it, then called 10 acres. Jan. 12, 1719-20, John Dix sold half an acre of this to Jonas Bond, Sen.; and July 5, 1732, John Dix, of Watertown, and Samuel Dix, of Worcester, sold the remainder of it, with mansion house, barn, and orchard, then called 8 A., to Jonas Bond, Jr., for £250, current money. This Bartlett lot, with other lands on the north, was the homestead of Jonas Bond, Jr., Esq. The dwelling-house stood where Mr. Cushing has built his farm-house. Sept. 8, 1695, Jonas Bond bought of William Bull and wife Elizabeth, 8 A. [the grant to Thomas Smith, which he sold to William Perry in 1651], "near the hill called and known by the name of Pigsgosuck, and is bounded east by Dea. Sanderson; west by the highway called Pigsgosuck highway [Common St.]; north by lands of Ellis Barron and John Chinery; south by land of Joseph Hastings." This land of Joseph Hastings, was the Benjamin Crispe lot. June 17, 1717, Jonas Bond, Sen., bought of Timothy Barron and wife Rachel, 12 A. adjoining the last purchase, and situated partly on the W. side of Common Street. A short time before this, Barron had purchased this land, or a part of it, of his father, Ellis Barron.

The lot of Dea. Thomas Hastings, on the west side of School St., was always his residence. He added to it by purchase the lot of H. Bright, Sen. This homestead, then 20 A., passed to his youngest son, Samuel. Mar. 15, 1727-8, his son Daniel (? David) for £300, bills of credit, sold ¾ of it to a committee of the town, for a ministerial lot, for the accommodation of Rev. S. Storer. The next month (Ap. 1), Joseph Coolidge, of Cambridge, guardian of Nathaniel, the youngest son of Samuel, sold the other ¼ of it to said committee. Oct. 18, 1755, a committee of the town sold this lot to Samuel Mason, housewright, of Newton, for £288, lawful money. This was the next year after building the meeting-house, at the junction of Bowman's Lane and Belmont St. The town bought the lot (½ A.), for this meeting-house, of Nathaniel Harris, Esq., Jan. 29, 1754.

John Fiske bought the W. end (6 A.) of the Henry Dow lot, next south of Dea. T. Hastings, and this was his first homestead, which he sold, Mar. 15, 1648-9, to Charles Stearns.

Oct. 18, 1755, a committee of the town sold to Ebenezer Stone, "1¾ A., formerly used as a training-field, bounded N. W. by Stone (the purchaser); S. by road [Belmont St.]; W. by David Coolidge; E. by lane [Grove St.], leading to Mrs. John Coolidge's house." It was on the training-place that the Fairs were ordered to be held, in 1639.

The lands of Elder Edward How [see map], obtained by repeated grants and purchase, passed to his son-in-law Nathaniel Treadway. Nov. 14, 1688, N. Treadway, for £140, sold this land (70 A.) and house, to his son Josiah. Oct. 13, 1699, Josiah Treadway and wife Dorothy, then of Charlestown, for £120, sold the western half of this land (35 A.) to Samuel Parris. Mar. 3, 1703, Parris sold it to Nathaniel Hobart, of Hingham. Hobart sold it to Daniel Stowall, who conveyed it back to Hobart, Feb. 6, 1707-8, and on the 12 Jan. 1709-10, Hobart sold it to Robert Goddard for £230, then called 34 acres. It was then bounded S. by highway [Main St.]; E. by Caleb Church and Josiah Treadway; W. by Samuel Eddy, Elizabeth Woodward [wid. of George], Caleb Church, and Benjamin Wellington; N. by B. W. and S. Eddy. The other part of the How estate (27 or 30 A.) passed from Josiah to his son, James Treadway, who, on Jan. 9, 1710-11, sold it to John Coolidge, housewright. It was bounded S. by County Road (Main St.); W. by C. Church and R. Goddard; N. by R. Goddard and S. Eddy; E. by County Road (Mount Auburn St.), and Samuel Eddy. It will be observed that this was not the whole of the east half. About 6 A. had been sold to Caleb Church, probably soon after the purchase by Josiah Treadway. Church was licensed to keep a tavern in 1686. Ap. 25, 1712, C. Church, millwright, sold this land (6 A.) to Thomas Learned, where he and his family kept a tavern fifty years or more. The Spring Hotel has been built on that lot.

The 2 A. lot, bounded S. by the river, N. by Mill Creek, and extending from the bridge to the dam, was a grant to E. How. This grant, in addition to what is said in § 140, is an additional reason for believing that he built the mill. [See p. 747.]

In 1635, 20 A. was laid out "to the use of the mill:" it was not a grant in fee to the owner of the mill. The town still held it, and had the right to dispose of it, and for this reason Mr. Dudley is not named among the proprietors. In 1677, the town sold a small part of it to Caleb Church, which was about the date of his settlement in Watertown. July 7, 1752, a committee of the town sold the eastern point of this land (16 rods) to Nathaniel Harris, Esq.

The 150 acres granted "to the use of the wear," was by the Court confirmed to Mr. Mayhew in 1641 [§§ 131-4], but it was not included in the list of his possessions, and it has not been ascertained when or by whom it first began to be occupied and improved.

The records do not show who was the original grantee of the 20 A. homestall of John Flemming. His heirs sold this and other lands to Rev. Roger Nevinson. Mar. 4, 1677-8, John Nevinson, son and att'y of Roger Nevinson, for £160, sold to Nathaniel Bright this homestall (house and 20 A.); also two lots of dividend land, of 15 A. and 50 A. Ap. 2, 1651, Flemming bought of Thomas Andrews, of Camb., the lot at the N. E. corner of Lexington and Belmont St., which was a grant to Edmund James; but probably it was sold before the decease of Flemming to John Biseo. Flemming also bought land on the south side of Belmont St., nearly opposite to his homestall, which his wid. and ex'ors sold to his son-in-law, John Barnard.

It is probable that William Hammond settled at first on Cambridge Road, very near the Cambridge line [see map]. Whether this was a grant to him, the records do not show. He sold it early and settled on his 40 A. homestall, situated east of Pequusset meadow. He also owned three small lots in Pequusset meadow, one of them granted to him, and the other two purchased. This homestall passed to his son Thomas. The Inventory of the estate of T. H. by John Livermore and Ens. John Sherman, showed that it did not equal the amount of his debts, and the estate was assigned to John Livermore and Steadman.

On the 29th Sept., 1663, Edmund Sherman, clothworker, of Dedham, Eng. (formerly of Watertown), by his attorney, Rev. John Sherman, his brother, brought a suit against the assignees for "two broadcloths," adventured and sent over to Thomas Hammond. Verdict for the plaintiff, £40. It appears by the will of Dea. Henry Bright, p. 105, that this homestall, with the adjoining meadows, was put into the possession of Rev. John Sherman, who sold them to Dea. H. Bright.

John Warren first settled on a lot on Water Street; but he sold it, and moved early to a lot on the east side of Lexington Street, next to that of Isaac Sterne, where he resided permanently. The N. E. corner of Belmont and Lexington Streets formerly was called Commodore's Corner, and it is said to have been so named for Samuel Warren, who lived there, and was called The Commodore.

Isaac Sterne settled first upon his homestall on Cambridge Road, near Cambridge Line. But he moved early to a larger homestall on the east side of Lexington St., immediately south of that of John Warren, where he resided permanently. It passed to his son Samuel, then to his grandson, Nathaniel. John Firmin settled first, as it is believed, on Water Street, but removed early to his land on Bank Lane, a little distance east of Dorchester Field.

The locality of the homestalls of Abraham Shaw and William Bridges imply that they were first settlers, but they sold and moved away so early that the schedules do not show whether they were granted or purchased.

The grant of a homestall to John Lawrence, east of the Fresh Pond, and adjoining that of Robert Seeley, implies that he was a first settler; but he settled very early on a lot granted to him on the west side of Common Street, which was his permanent residence, until he moved to Groton, except, perhaps, a temporary residence in Boston.

In 1643, Capt. John Sherman owned two homestalls, both obtained by purchase. The arrangement of lots, in the list of his possessions, implies that he occupied the lot on Bank Lane, which had been granted to Thomas Rogers. But it is more probable that he settled at first on his homestall on the east side of Common Street, immediately south of Strawberry Hill. This was his permanent residence, and it passed to his son Joseph. In 1643 it consisted of the two lots granted Daniel Morse and Edmund James, and, by estimation, contained 16½ acres. It was afterwards enlarged by purchasing adjoining lands, and, in the time of his son Joseph, embraced the lots granted to John Reynolds and I. Mixer. He had few grants, and most of his early possessions were grants made to Thomas Rogers.

The residence of Rev. John Sherman was the Richard Holden lot on the N. side of Belmont Street. He next purchased the Stebbin lot, on the east, as already stated. In 1673, Justinian Holden, then of Cambridge, "sold to John Sherman, Pastor, two parcels of land adjoining or adjacent to the dwelling-house of Mr. Sherman." His land, after this purchase, nearly surrounded the Pond at the N. E. corner of Belmont and Grove Streets. The town had granted Mr. Sherman the use of 20 A. on Meeting-house Common for fring.

Concerning the residence of Thurston Raynor, Gregory Stone, Thomas Boylston, and John Chinery, see those names in the Catalogue, pp. 1005, &c.

The lot of Christopher Grant, on the N. side of Belmont Street, is called a grant of 5 A. in the schedule of grants; but in the sale of it to G. Church, with one acre of Pond, it is stated that 3 A. were granted to himself, 3 A. to L. Waters, and the 1 A. of Pond granted to John Griggs. At this sale it was bounded W. by Mr. Sherman. The lot of O. Callow, on the W. side of School Street, passed to Wm. Williams, then to his widow, then to her son, Abraham Williams, who sold it to R. Wellington. The Godfrey lot was granted to Hugh Mason, who probably sold it to Godfrey at the time he [M.] purchased his large homestall on the E. side of School Street. Oct. 17, 1653, William Godfrey sold his homestall to Robert Sanderson [see p. 257]. A part (6 A.) of the 16 A. Parkhurst lot was purchased by H. Mason. This 6 A. was a grant to E. James. The 21 A. homestall of Capt. H. Mason was his permanent residence, and he purchased a part of the H. Dow lot (? or R. Veazy lot), on the other side of the street. It passed to his son Joseph; then to his grandson, Dea. Joseph, Jr., Esq.; then probably to his gr. grandson, Nehemiah. The Ellis Barron lot (which was a grant to Richard Kembell) was the residence of that family, so long as they remained in town. Ellis Barron, Jr., sold it, or a part of it, in 1707, to his son Timothy, who sold it, in 1717, to Jonas Bond. The adjoining 8 A. homestall lot of Thomas Smith was bought by Wm. Perry about the time Smith moved within the present limits of Waltham. [See Jonas Bond above.]

The 7 A. lot of Benjamin Crispe was his residence, until he moved to Groton, soon after which he sold it to Thomas Boyden, about which time he (B.) returned to Watertown. The 4½ A. lot, at the S. E. corner of Belmont and School Streets, was granted to John Lawrence, who sold it about 1642, to Wm. Page, but did not execute the deed until Oct. 27, 1662, when he was about to move to Groton. The 7 A. lot next south of it was granted to B. Pendleton, and purchased by Wm. Page. [This lot is also in the list of grants made to J. Simson.] The next, south of this, was a 7 A. homestall lot, purchased by Dea. N. Guy. This was his permanent residence. The 3 A. lot of upland next south of the last was granted to N. Guy. These lots passed to his son-in-law, Joseph Tainter. The next lot south, at the corner of Belmont and School Streets, was granted to Thomas Cakebread, and it was purchased by John Grout.

On the W. side of School St., at the corner of Mt. Auburn St., was the 13 A. homestall granted to Ensign T. Cakebread. From him it passed to John Grout, whose residence it was until he moved to Sudbury. Adjoining this, on the west, was the homestall of John Bernard, where he probably always resided. The west half of it was sold by him to Daniel Smith previous to 1644, and afterwards the other part of it was sold to Smith. After the decease of John Bernard, his widow probably lived at the S. E. corner of Main and Howard Streets, on the Carter lot.

The next, north of these lots of Bernard and Cakebread, was the 12 A. lot granted to Richard Browne, from whom it passed to George Richardson, and, as early as 1643, to John Train, who resided there permanently. May 12, 1709, his son John and his grandson John mortgaged this lot to N. Bright; and on the 26 Jan., 1710-11, John Train sold it to John Stratton.

The next lot, on the north, was the 14 A. homestall granted to Bryan Pendleton, who resided there until he moved to Sudbury. He probably settled first in "the town," east of Mount Auburn. From him this lot passed to George Munning; then (when Munning moved to Boston) to John Sherman; then bought back by Munning and given to his son-in-law, John Sawin.

The next lot, on the north, was the 12 A. homestall granted to John Simson, who d. June, 1643. It then passed to George Parkhurst, Sen., who m. Simson's widow. After Parkhurst moved to Boston, he sold 6 A. to John Train, and 6 A. to M. Barstow.

The next lot north, at the S. W. corner of School and Belmont St., was the 14 A. homestall granted to Richard Carver. After his decease, it passed to Michael Barstow, who resided there, but a little before his decease, sold it to John Train. For the permanent residence of John Whitney, Sen., see pp. 1016 and 1036.

About 1644, Rev. John Knowles bought the large homestall of Capt. W. Jennison, and about the same time sold his homestall at the junction of Orchard and Belmont Streets to Thomas Strait. Oct. 21, 1644, Strait sold to T. Tarball the western part (6 A.). Ap. 8, 1644, Strait bought of George Bullard the adjoining 8 A. lot. Mar. 16, 1648-9, he sold to Thomas Arnold these lands (then called 20 A.) purchased, part of J. Knowles, part of G. Bullard, and part of Thomas Wincoll. Oct. 20, 1662, T. Arnold and wife Phebe, then of Providence, sold these lands (or a part of them), then called 18 A., with dwelling-house and barn, to John Wincoll. It is stated in the deed that a part was granted to him (T. A.) and a part purchased of T. Strait. On the S. E. corner of the homestall of J. Knowles may be seen a 1 A. lot (marked T. A.) granted to Arnold. This was Arnold's residence, and was included in his sale to J. Wincoll; but the land bought by Strait of Thomas Wincoll, and sold to Arnold, was not included in this sale to J. Wincoll. Oct. 27, 1661, T. Arnold and wife sold to John Whitney, Jr., his land, 17 A., on the S. W. side of Orchard Street, 12 A. of which (adjoining Mrs. Phillips) had been granted, and the rest was that portion of T. Wincoll's lot sold to him by T. Strait. At this date Richard Whitney owned the adjoining land on the S. E., which was a part of the T. Wincoll lot. John Whitney, Jr., already was the proprietor of the lot on Lexington Street, adjoining that of Mrs. Phillips.

We have, in another place, stated the probability, that what is now called White's Hill was the ancient Whitney Hill, as John Whitney and his sons were settled on three sides of it. This is not disproved; but it is, perhaps, quite as probable that the Whitney Hill referred to, in determining the site of the new meeting-house [§ 179], was some smaller elevation in the Whitney lands that was less remote from the site of the meeting-house.

The 16 A. Pickeram lots were bought, Sept. 1, 1646, by Joshua Stubbs, who sold them, Nov. 28, 1654, to Joseph Underwood.

The 4. A. lot, E. of J. Knowles, marked M. & A. B. (Maudlin and Ann Bullard), was probably bought by R. Jennison about 1650. The 6 A. lot of N. Thealc, at the east, was sold in 1645 to William Shattuck. June 7, 1650, James Cutler sold the same lot to John Randall (probably the husband of wid. Elizabeth, p. 409). Nathaniel Holland and Wm. Price not long afterwards had small lots in this neighborhood on Belmont Street. Jan. 1658-9, Richard Smith, bought of T. Arnold 1 A. in the same neighborhood.

The 12 A. homestall of T. Philbrick, N. W. corner of Belmont and Lexington Streets, was purchased, Jan. 23, 1645-6, by Isaac Sterne, who gave it to his son Samuel [see p. 455]. The 8 A. homestall next west of this, was granted to John Stowers, and occupied by him. It was bought by Bartholomew Pierson in 1644, and by him sold to George Bullard, Mar. 11, 1653-4. This was probably G. Bullard's permanent residence; and the statement [p. 148] that he moved to Weston in 1660 is a mistake. Jan. 29, 1703-4, Samuel Barnard, housewright, and wife Mercy, sold this lot to Capt. Abraham Brown, then called 14 A.; thus enlarged, by an addition either of some of the land granted to Peirce, or perhaps by a purchase of land on the north. This was long known as The Parsonage, and was the residence of Mr. Angier. It is probable that this property was purchased and held by Brown (who had been several years town treasurer), as agent, trustee, or treasurer, for this purpose, and not as his private property. If held as his personal right, there is no evidence that he or any of his family ever resided there. After the removal of the Angier meeting-house, and about the time of the purchase of a parsonage for Mr. Storer, Capt. A. Brown sold it to John Stearns.

The next W. of Stowers, was a 4 A. lot granted to Anthony Peirce. The next, W. of this, was a 6 A. lot granted to his father, John Peirce, who sold or gave this to his son Anthony, and settled on two lots in the town plot, on the opposite side of the road. That lot granted to John Peirce is described as bounded W. by a highway. This was probably the highway ordered to be laid out at the hither end of the Great Dividends [see p. 996]. It would be nearly continuous with the road on the W. side of the Town Plot; but it was probably vacated very early, if it was ever opened.

Since writing § 98, it has been ascertained that the tract of land, there described as the Town Plot, was not the whole of it; that the Town Plot also embraced that range of lots on the E. side of Lexington Street, extending from Orchard to Main Street. The remark in § 99, respecting the lot of Mr. Phillips, is therefore inappropriate.

The Town Plot on the east side of Lexington Street.

The first, in the list of lots in the Town Plot, was the 12 A. homestall of Mr. Phillips, at the S. E. corner of Lexington and Orchard Streets. He purchased 3 A. adjoining this. The next, south of it, was the 9 A. (in the Town Plot) granted to E. How. It passed to John Whitney, Jr. The next, south of this, was the 6 A. lot granted to Edmund James, which passed to Richard Wait. The next, south of James, was a 3 A. lot purchased by S. Freeman; but to whom granted, the records do not show. The next, south of this, was the 3 A. lot granted to B. Windes, and by him sold to Richard Benjamin. The next S. was the 4 A. lot granted to William Potter. Richard Woodward bought this and the 6 A. adjoining it on the south, and gave or sold these 10 A. to his son, George Woodward. This was the permanent residence of George Woodward, and it was occupied by his widow and family many years after his decease. The lot next S. of G. Woodward, at the N. E. corner of Lexington and Main Streets, was the 6 A. granted to Edmund Blois, who made it his residence. Some time afterwards he is supposed to have moved to a lot on the S. side of Mount Auburn Street, a little W. of the Old Graveyard.

Town Plot, west side of Lexington Street.

Joseph Tainter owned and occupied a homestall of 18 A., at the N. W. corner of Main and Lexington Streets. It was made up of lots granted to Simon Eire, Gregory Taylor, and 6 of the 9 A. granted to Capt. Patrick. This homestall passed to his son, Simon Tainter. The other 3 A. of Patrick's lot, was bought by John Vahan and by him sold to E. How. Next west of Patrick's, was the 9 A. lot granted to R. Feake. It was purchased by Nathan Fiske, who made it his permanent residence. It passed to his son John, who lived there, perhaps unmarried, to advanced age. There is little doubt but that this is the lot which passed from Capt. Abraham Browne to his son Jonathan, and that it was the residence of the late Col. William Bond, who married a daughter of this Jonathan Browne. It is very probable that the house occupied by Col. Wm. Bond, was built by the first Nathan Fiske. It was very ancient, and was removed more than 40 years ago. Sudbury Road, at this point, anciently, ran four rods farther south than it has done for the last 150 years. In Ap. 1703, Abraham Browne having petitioned to have 4 rods land on the Common near his house, the committee made return, July 5, 1703, that they had laid out 4 rods southerly side of the hill,* between Browne's and the present house of Serjt. John Fiske [son and ex'r of Nathan], and have set out [to John Fiske] the same quantity of Browne's land, on the south side of his homestall next the highway leading to Beaver Brook. It appears by a deed of wid. Mary Browne, and her son Benjamin, that Serjt. John Fiske owned land on the south side, and contiguous to the Browne homestall. It is also to be observed that this old mansion of Col. Bond, stood almost in the road, with no space between them, but that the old part of the Browne mansion, stood several (6 or 7) rods from the road, and that after Capt. A. Browne built the new part towards the road, there was still a considerable space between it and the road. [See Abraham Browne, p. 1086].

The next west of Nathan Fiske, was the 6 A. homestall granted to Dea. Thomas Hastings. About 1643, he gave this to his servant, Robert Harrington, and on the 4 Mar., 1656-7, he executed a deed in full, Harrington having built upon and improved it. Although Harrington lived to great age, and acquired numerous and large possessions, it is probable that this was his permanent residence, and that it passed to his youngest son, Edward, and afterwards to his grandson Capt. Edward Harrington.

The next west of Harrington, was the 6 A. homestall of Thomas Flagg, and it was probably his permanent residence. He was not the original grantee of it, nor do the records show to whom it was granted.

Next west of Flagg was the 6 A. lot granted to John Sherman, and bought by E. How. There is some obscurity in regard to the lots between those of Sherman and Coolidge, and we cannot make the map, at this point, satisfactory. Sherman's lot was bounded W. by Jonas Eaton, a grantee of 3 A. in the Town Plot. Wid. Frances Onge was grantee of 6 A. in the Town Plot, and her son, Simon, was afterwards owner of 6 A., which was bounded E. by Jonas Eaton, W. by William Seger [? Hager]. This is the only mention of Wm. Seger in the records. The 6 A. lot of J. Coolidge was bounded E. by Jonas Eaton. As this lot is not in the summary of Coolidge's grants and possessions, in 1644, perhaps it will be discovered that he sold it to William Hager, who married and settled in Watertown about this time, and that this was the ancient Hager residence.

Next west of this, was the 6 A. lot, with a pond of 1 acre, granted to Abraham Browne. He probably sold the land, or a part of it, to Edmund Blois.

* This ancient Fiske mansion, with rooms on both sides of the entrance, was two storied in front; but the hill in the rear, towards the north, rose so abruptly, that the garret floor of a wing of the house, extended in that direction, was on a level with the ground. As an apology to the reader for this particularity, it may be stated that the author was born in that remnant of early Puritan architecture.

Recent researches render it not improbable that John Fiske [11, p. 210], was a son of Nathan [3, p. 214]; but at present we have not data to determine the question.

The 21 A. homestall of Samuel Freeman, where he resided, was at the S. W. corner of Lexington and Warren Streets. It was made up of the 6 A. granted to Samuel Hosier, 6 A. granted to Charles Chadwick, 6 A., grantee not ascertained (probably John Thomson, who sold it to W. Clarke, and by Clarke sold to Freeman), and 3 A. of the 9 A. lot granted to Richard Browne. This lot of R. B. is described as bounded E. by William Clarke. This homestall of S. Freeman passed to his son Henry. The other 6 A. granted to R. Browne, was purchased by Richard Gale, and was his residence. N.B. On the map, C. C.'s lot should be next to S. H.

Next west, was the 12 A. homestall of Joseph Bemis, where he resided permanently. It was made up of the 6 A. lot granted to John Firmin, and the 6 A. lot granted to Simon Stone. It passed to his son John, and probably to his grandson Jonathan.

Next west of Bemis, was the 6 A. lot granted to Nicholas Busby; and next west of this was the 6 A. lot granted to Isaac Mixer. Next west of Mixer, and bounded W. by the highway, was the 6 A. lot granted to Daniel Peirce, and purchased by John Prescott.

The 6 A. lot at the N. W. corner of Lexington and Warren Streets, was granted to John Dogget, and from him passed to Richard Wait, who resided there. The next west was the 6 A. lot granted to John Woolcott or his widow Winifred, from whom it passed to Edmund White, and afterwards to Samuel Thatcher. The next west was the 6 A. lot granted Edmund James, from whom it passed to Nicholas Theate, who resided there; (?) sold by George Parkhurst to R. Wait, Ap. 6, 1652. Next west, was the 6 A. granted to R. Kamball, sold to Richard Beach. Next west was a lot of George Parkhurst, the size and the grantee of it not ascertained. Dec. 3, 1649, Joseph Underwood sold it to John Bigelow. The next west was the 6 A. lot granted to Henry Bright, Jr., from whom it passed to John Bigelow. This was the first and the permanent residence of the ancestor of all the Bigelows in this country. Next west was the 6 A. homestall of Miles Ives, grantee not ascertained. This is supposed to have been his permanent residence. The next west, bounded on the W. by the highway, was the 6 A. lot granted to Edward Garfield. It was his residence.

The 6 A. lot at the S. W. corner of Lexington and Belmont Streets, is in the list of grants to John Whitney. It was probably granted after the other lots in the Town Plot had been granted, and the list made out and recorded, as his name is not on that list, and the adjoining lot was described as bounded E. by the Common. This lot passed to his son, John Whitney, Jr., who did not reside upon it, but upon a lot on the E. side of Lexington St., adjoining the land of Mr. Phillips. The next west, was the 6 A. homestall of Bartholomew Pierson. He was not the grantee, and it is conjectured that it was a grant to J. Stovers. Pierson sold this lot with a house to Anthony Peirce, Oct. 7, 1655, for £28. About this time Pierson moved to Woburn. The next W. was the 6 A. lot granted to John Smith, Senior, and by him sold to John Peirce. The next W. was the 6 A. lot granted to W. Barsham and by him sold to John Peirce. These two lots constituted the homestall, where it is supposed that he resided permanently. The next W. was the 6 A. granted to David Fiske, and was the homestall of William Parker. Next W. is the 6 A. lot granted to Richard Beers, passed to Richard Amler, where he resided, then called 7 A. The next W., bounded W. and N. by highway, was the 8 A. lot of upland granted to Thomas Arnold. Like that of John Whitney, it is not in the recorded list of lots granted in the Town Plot. This is the lot that was seized to pay the fine imposed for his not attending public worship. It was purchased by (?) Miles Ives.

The 2 A. lot of John Spring, at the corner of Orchard St. and Bowman's Lane, was his permanent residence, and passed to his son Henry.

Dec. 13, 1649, James Cutler, Sen., and Nathaniel Bowman, for £70, bought of Edward Goffe 200 A. in Cambridge, adjoining Rock Meadow, and near, or adjoining to Watertown [Waltham] line, payable in instalments of £10 annually, in goods; payments secured by mortgage. It was bounded E. by land of N. Bisco. Mar. 4, 1650-1, Cutler sold his share (100 A.) to Bowman for £39. It is probable that Cutler and Bowman moved from Watertown about this date. [See pp. 88 and 189.]

The 5 A. lot at the S. E. corner of Belmont St. and Bowman's Lane was the residence of John Bisco, in 1643. The 6 A. homestall lot of Benjamin Bullard, near the N. W. point of Fresh Pond, probably belonged to his father, Robert Bullard, whose wid., Anna, m. N. Theale. The 6 A. homestall, where N. Theale resided in 1644, in Bowman's Field, had probably belonged to R. Bullard. John Coolidge settled first on the Camb. line a little W. of Fresh Pond, and probably always resided there. Richard Kimball's residence was at the E. of Fresh Pond. That of Henry Kimball, Sen., was on his lot adjoining that of N. Bowman. Joseph Morse settled first on the S. side of Orchard St., and in 1640 exchanged it for the 18 A. lot, E. side of Pequusset Common.

The preceding explanations apply exclusively to what were called the Small Lots [§ 81], and they illustrate, in part, what was said in § 84 and § 85, about the multitude of lots and the frequent change of ownership. In further illustration of the multiplicity of lots, we would refer to the lots in the Great Dividends, in the Beaver Brook plowlands, the lieu of township lots, the lots in the West Pine and other meadows, and the Farms. [See pp. 1021-28.]

The changes of ownership were in many instances wholesale. All the lots granted to Gregory Stone, and his purchased homestall, were purchased for Thomas Boylston. The 7 lots granted to John Bachelor, and the 6 lots granted to Robert Tucke, were all purchased by Jeremiah Norcross. These were not all of N.'s purchases. All the lots of Peter Noyes were purchased of Bryan Pendleton. The numerous lots granted to Thomas Cakebread passed to John Grout. The numerous lots of Nicholas Knapp and of Robert Lockwood, were bought by B. Pendleton, after he returned from Sudbury, and by him they were sold to Robert Daniel. After his decease, they passed to his son Samuel Daniel, who sold to his brother-in-law, Thomas Fanning, what had been the homestalls of his father, of Robert Lockwood, and of Nicholas Knapp. All the lots held by Thomas Andrews, were grants to Edmund James. All the lots which Thomas Philbrick retained until his removal to Hampton, were purchased by Isaac Sterne. John Ellet sold his house and 5 lots to Thomas Wincoll. Edward Lamb sold most of the lots granted to him, to Charles Stearns. Most of the lands granted to John Simson passed to George Parkhurst, who married his widow. All the lots of John Firmin (with the exception of his first homestall in "the town," sold to Henry Bright, Jr., and his lots in the Town Plot, sold to Joseph Bemis), were by his heirs sold to Barnabas Parr, of Boston, and by Farr sold to Richard Beers. The 2 lots granted to Nathaniel Foote, were bought by Henry Cuttris, and by him sold to Jeremiah Norcross. The 4 lots granted to Robert Abbot, were sold to Roger Wellington. John Stowers sold to Thomas Hammond, at one time, a dwelling and 18 lots of land. He had previously sold some lots, and he still held a 130 A. farm. In addition to the lots granted to John Woolcot and his widow, he purchased the 5 lots of Philip Tabor, some, if not all, of the lots of Abraham Shaw, and one or more lots granted to John Tucker; and from his widow, Winifred, most of them passed to Edmund White, of London, and by David Yale, his attorney, they were sold to Samuel Thatcher. 8 lots were granted to John Gosse, and all of them that he retained until his decease, were by his heirs sold to Samuel Stratton. John Knight, from Sudbury, owned 15 lots in 1643, all obtained by purchase or exchange, except one farm of 287 A., ten of which lots he sold to Thomas Underwood, at the time Underwood moved from Dorchester to Watertown. The 9 lots granted to Henry Goldstone, and the 4 lots purchased by him, all, so far as ascertained, passed to his son-in-law, Dea. Henry Bright.
