#1070 (Part 1 of 4)

(To be handled in Government Code. Secret outside the department).

My interview with the President, referred to in my #1069, was held in a private room in the White House in order to avoid publicity. It was as follows:

Prefacing my remarks with the fact that I was speaking on instructions of the Government, I said, "I have had no talks with the Secretary of State for about three weeks; ever since the resignation of the KONOYE cabinet; and since the present situation between Japan and the United States is such that it could not be left as it is, I am very pleased to have this opportunity of speaking with you. The conversations on this question have lasted for more than six months. From their inception, Japan has been wishing to arrive at a quick settlement. The people of Japan also looked forward to these conversations with much hope; however, the conversations have dragged on and in the meantime the relation between the two countries has grown worse. It has become increasingly difficult for the people of my country to be patient. Now, the Government of Japan has in the meantime made many concessions, but the Government of the United States has held to its arguments and has shown no willingness to respond to our compromises. As a result, some people in Japan have begun to doubt if the United States is really sincere in this matter. The Japanese people regard the freezing of funds as a kind of economic blockade, and there seem to be some who say that modern warfare is not limited to shooting alone. No country can exist without the supply of materials indispensable to its industry. From what reports I have received from Japan, the situation seems to be serious and threatening and, therefore, the only way to keep peace is for Japan and the United States to come, without further delay, to some kind of a friendly and satisfactory agreement. It is for no other purpose than that of keeping peace in the Pacific that the Japanese Government is endeavoring so hard to arrive at a satisfactory agreement by continuing our conversations.

To add to the end of Page 1. (Part 1 of 4).

(Part 1 of 4)

Further, as an explanation of our proposal, I stated that, adding the opinions of the Secretary of State and the undersecretary of State which were expressed on our proposal of September 25th, the difficulties apparently lied upon the following three points.

First, as to the Principle of Nondiscrimination, our government has decided to agree to apply it to the whole area of the Pacific including China, as per your government's desire, provided that it be applied to the whole world. Since this is Secretary Hull's long-cherished hope, I hope that the above-mentioned guaranty by our government will satisfy your government.

(To be ~~added~~ inserted) ----------

(2 of 4) (Not in typed translation of 1532 Hein 61)

Secondly, as to the attitude of both governments towards the European War, our government proposed, as per our proposal dated September 25th, that the actions of both governments ought to be based upon the consideration of 'protection and self-defence'. On this point, I wish to inquire whether your would give me the guarantee that the U.S. Government has no intention to interpret 'the words 'protection and self-defense' in an unreasonably broad sense. I stated that, if the U.S. government should give such guarantee, the Japanese government would also give the same guarantee. As to the words 'In case the U.S.A. should participate in the war ------', as per the last part of our proposal, Japan could not say anything further than the statement made in our proposal of September 25th, since my conversation with you was started in an attempt to maintain peace on the Pacific. You would agree with me that, unless we trust in each other's sincerity, any amount of argument will be of no avail.

3. I submitted the new proposal, as it stood, regarding the question of stationing and withdrawing of troops and proceeded to say, "With regard to this question, the Japanese Government has gone a step beyond her past proposals and has, by definitely fixing not only the localities in China where our troops would be stationed but also the period of their occupation, made it clear that the occupation is not a permanent and definite one. No doubt you would like to see the ~~#~~ troops withdrawn at once, but I am sure you well understand that it is impossible under the present circumstances to do so. I earnestly wish that you would give favorable consideration to this question from the standpoint of the general situation."

Next, I said, "The Japanese Government is making the following proposal with regard to the Japanese troops in French Indo-China," and so saying, I submitted the proposal contained in your instructions.

In reply to this, the President, remarking that he had already thought on the question before our explanation was given him, spoke as follows from a note which he had been holding in his hand, "As a result of a confusion created by the forces of aggression, the whole world has fallen into a critical state. What seems to me to be common sense is for us to wish earnestly that the world will return to peaceful normalcy and for the ~~#####~~ United States Government to do its utmost in the spirit of fair play for the establishment of peace, stability, and order in the Pacific. If this object is to be realized, actual results must be effected for the sake of human welfare. It is my earnest wish that the preliminary talks relative to this question would have good results which would serve as a basis of future negotiations. I will, just as the Japanese Government hopes, do my best in order to help carry on these negotiations successfully. I wish that the Japanese Government would clearly set forth its intention of following a peaceful course in its policy and not an opposite course. This is the way to attain the results toward which both you and we are working."

What the United States desires, are:
(1) to prevent the war from spreading; and (2) to establish a permanent peace.

The President elaborated on the point that with regard to the question of non-discrimination, he had agreed with CHURCHILL when he had conferred with that statesman to abolish the economic limitations throughout the world; that he had opposed Germany because Germany followed a policy contrary to this idea; and that he wished that the principle of non-discrimination would be applied generally throughout the world. The President then said by way of an incidental remark that in the days of President TAFT when disturbance arose in Cuba, the United States had failed by resorting to a policy of force; however, today under his administration, because the government had adopted a friendly policy, the relations with the Latin-American countries had improved. He then explained how necessary it is to follow a new policy in accordance with new situations. Secretary HULL inserted the remark that the South American countries, who had in the past been fearful of the United States, have come to take an attitude of welcoming the United States. Speaking on the remark I had made to the effect that economic pressure had aroused the feelings of the /Japanese/ people and had made them impatient, the President said, "It is necessary to find a modus vivendi if the people are to live," and proceeded to explain that this expression should be translated as "method of living." Although it is not clear to me what it really means, I intend to ascertain whether he refers to, possible, a provisional agreement.

The President then asked if Ambassador KURUSU was bringing with him a proposal other than that referred to above. I replied that he was not bringing any proposal, but in response to my wishes he was coming to assist me. Then the President said that he is leaving on the 15th and will be away for one week, as he must attend, as is his custom, a children's party at Warm Springs during the Thanksgiving week (the 20th), and that he wondered whether he would have the opportunity of meeting Ambassador KURUSU before he leaves.

Re: The Present Situation of the Japanese-American Negotiations.

Telegram in cipher No. 2313 (Code for the Chief of the Office - Urgent)

1. The Government has been holding Imperial Headquarters Liaison Conferences every day since its formation and has been discussing the principal national policies to meet the grave situation which is confronting us, and the above, as well as the principal policies in connection with the adjustment of the diplomatic relations between Japan and the U.S.A., was decided at the council in the Imperial Presence held on the 5th.

2. In regard to the Japanese-American negotiations, it was decided to continue the negotiations for the adjustment of diplomatic relations based on a fair footing, and the Government has already opened negotiations. However, there exists a considerable gap, and it is doubtful whether a conclusion can be reached, considering the progress of the negotiations hitherto. And, although we are making a final effort to reach a conclusion, the situation does not permit any further concessions on our part. Therefore, the situation does not allow us to take an optimistic view, and the situation surrounding our Empire is anticipated to take a sudden turn in the event of maladjustment of the negotiations. The above is strictly for your private information.

Re: The Present Situation of the Negotiations Between Japan and the U.S.A.

No. 2414 (Code for the Chief of the Office; Top Urgent)

The Recent Situation of the Japanese-American Negotiations.

1. Ambassador NOMURA has made a new proposal to Secretary of State Hull and President Roosevelt which was worked out after the establishment of the new cabinet by revising some part of our former one. Negotiations have been carried on in Washington ever since the beginning of this month between President Roosevelt, Secretary Hull, and Ambassador NOMURA (Ambassador KURUSU has also taken part in them since the 17th). Moreover, I have been pressing upon the American and British ambassadors in Tokyo as well, the necessity of the earliest solution, but America is assuming such attitudes as to insist on requesting the Japanese Government's affirmation of its peaceful intentions and at the same time on exacting our affirmative promise in advance concerning other fundamental problems, before clarifying her own answer of yes or no to the said proposal. In this manner it still holds fast to theoretical fundamentals and its attitude does not conform in the least to the situation which is becoming more and more serious day by day. Therefore, on the 20th we presented our final proposal with a view to easing the situation in the southwestern Pacific area and thereby avoiding an imminent crisis in the Pacific. Since then, America seems to have consulted with Britain, Australia, the Netherlands, China, and other interested countries about the said proposal and an answer is expected to be given shortly in some way or other. Nevertheless, judging from the American attitude until the present, there is very little probability that America, reflecting seriously on itself on this occasion, will accept our final proposal made on the 20th. Under these circumstances, it is very difficult to save the situation and there exists a danger that we shall be confronted with the worst in the near future.

The present telegram being addressed to:

Britain, America, Hanoi, Thailand, Soviet Russia, Germany,

Italy, Batavia, Australia, Ambassador /?/ in North /China/, Ambassador/?/ in Manchukuo, Nanking, Shanghai and Hongkong.

Please transmit the present telegram from America to all envoys in North America (including Honolulu) and Canada, Mexico, Brazil, Chile and Argentina.

Please telegraph from Hongkong to Singapore and Manila.
