DEDICATION

This volume of the Yackety Yack is dedicated to Frank Porter Graham by that university generation which knew him in the classroom as a sterling teacher, master workman in his chosen field, and blood-brother in the spirit to all who labor for human justice everywhere. By this dedication we express our affectionate gratitude to a student-comrade and teacher and our confident hopes for Alma Mater under his guidance.

FOREWORD

IN the North Carolina Room in the University Library is a book-shelf on which stands the file of the University annuals—the Hellenian, 1890 to 1900, the YACKETY YACK, 1901 to 1930. The Hellenian, published by the fraternities, portrayed the total campus scene as visualized by fraternity men. The YACKETY YACK, staffed by representatives from all organizations of the campus, has unfolded annually a more extensive view.

The YACKETY YACK for 1931, the 41st in the combined series, embodying the organizations, activities, and traditions of its predecessors, maintains their essential unity and carries them in new directions.

The book itself marks a departure in its physical form and dress. It becomes a small folio; sticks to simple black and white, without borders, in letter press; introduces the delicacy of the etcher's art in its illustrations; and presents itself in a binding of rough red buckram, white backbone, and gold lettering similar to the more artistically printed books of the best modern presses.

Inside the cover other added features appear. R. D. W. Connor presents an historical sketch of the University with portraits of Davie and eight presidents. An article on the University Administration, including not only the deans but all the administrative officers, shows the University organization at work. Another division, devoted to the General Alumni Association, the Alumni Loyalty Fund, and other related alumni interests, puts the campus in touch with what these important organizations do outside the University.

The 1931 Class Poem, History, Last Will and Testament, Prophecy, and Statistics, formerly reserved for Class Day, constitute the final adieu of Nineteen Thirty-one, and round out a volume that will stir the imagination of the campus, and, in time, worthily take its place on the library shelf with its predecessors.

Chapel Hill, 1931.

INTRODUCTION

THIS book is designed to be a picture of the University, painted with pigments of a hundred and thirty-six years' colorful endeavor and enriched by the refreshing effort of a year. Editions somewhat similar have preceded; others shall follow. The present volume purports to be the picture as it appears in 1931.

This picture-story of student life in Chapel Hill during the scholastic year, 1930-31, treats of the University—its history, alumni, administration, and physical aspects—and the student body—its personnel, organizations, athletics, fraternities, and dances. In preparing the book I have held, so far as possible, to the ideals of beauty and utility. The beauty of the thing may be judged by comparison with editions generally approved by knowing critics. The utility of the volume may be measured by its completeness as a record, its truthfulness as an interpreter, and its effectiveness as an agent to make memories for the future. All of which has been remembered constantly in the process of preparation. Readers naturally will quibble with the editor for his inclusion of this and his exclusion of that. So much I freely concede. But the effort has been honest. May the judgment be fair.

Whatever of special merit the present volume may have besides the inherent value of such a compilation, is due to the generous co-operation of many persons. I desire gratefully to acknowledge the loyal efforts of the students who have so worthily comprised the editorial and business staffs. Special thanks are due to Mr. W. T. Couch, of the University Press, for his valuable suggestions in working out many important details of design and composition; to Mr. J. Maryon Saunders, Executive Secretary of the University Alumni Association, for his aid in the preparation of several sections; to Dr. R. D. W. Connor, Head of the University Department of History and Government, for his contribution of an historical sketch of the University; and to Dr. L. R. Wilson, University Librarian, for his helpful criticisms of the book as it progressed. I owe particular gratitude to Mr. J. Merritt Lear, Professor of Economics in the University, for effectively continuing the good counsel he has given for years, as Treasurer of the Publications Union Board, to staffs of the YACKETY YACK.

Now for the true worth of this volume. As to its correctness, anyone is at liberty to find as many faults and inaccuracies as he can in the following pages. All I can claim is that I have desired and purposed to picture the University in its several phases, so far as I know them. But to portray the University correctly is really a more difficult task than one would suppose who has not tried it.

THE EDITOR.

THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

An Historical Sketch

THE University of North Carolina, conceived in the year of independence and born with the founding of the Republic, is the child of the American Revolution. Revolutionary constitution-makers believed that the success of their experiments in democracy and self-government depended upon an educated citizenship. "Liberty and law," declared the orator at the laying of the cornerstone of the University of North Carolina in 1793, "call for general knowledge in the people and extensive knowledge in matters of the State, and these in turn demand public places of education." This idea gave a decided impulse to higher education in America. In 1775 there were only nine colleges in the colonies; within a decade after Yorktown there were eighteen.

JOSEPH CALDWELL

The most significant contribution of the period to higher education was the state university, and in this contribution North Carolina led the way. The North Carolina Constitution of 1776 required the Legislature to establish one or more universities. Twenty-three years passed, however, before the Legislature obeyed this mandate, and the inspiration which finally induced it to do so came from the same enlightened statesmanship that had just inspired North Carolina to ratify the Federal Constitution. The Constitution was ratified November 21, 1789; the University was chartered December 11, following. In these two acts, Kemp P. Battle, the historian of the University, discovered "a comprehensive plan." In the Legislature the charter of the University was put through by the same men who in the Constitutional Convention had just procured the ratification of the Federal Constitution. Indeed, William R. Davie passed almost immediately from the Legislature where, on November 12, he had introduced the bill to charter the University, into the Convention where, on November 21, he moved the ratification of the Constitution of the United States. Of the first forty trustees of the University, twenty-eight had served in the Constitutional Convention of 1789, where twenty-one of them had voted for ratification. Indeed, so clearly was the early University primarily a Federalist enterprise that the Anti-Federalists charged it with making "every effort to give direction to the minds of the students on political subjects, favorable to a high-toned aristocratic government."

The trustees held their first meeting December 18, 1789. Since the Legislature had left the infant University to support itself or starve, the trustees turned their immediate attention to the task of financing it. Their only resources were a gift of land warrants for 20,000 acres, and cash amounting to only $2,706.41. The trustees were forced, therefore, to apply to the Legislature for aid. Again Davie came to the rescue and by sheer power of logic and eloquence, wrung from an unwilling Legislature a loan of $10,000 (afterwards converted into a gift), which enabled the trustees to take the first step in the founding of the University.

Their first problem was the selection of a site. After examining several places, they selected New Hope Chapel, in Orange County. On October 12, 1793, in the presence of a distinguished company, surrounded by a forest of oaks, maples and dogwood brilliant with the red and yellow hues of autumn, William R. Davie, Grand Master of Masons, laid the cornerstone of the first building. On January 15, 1795, the formal opening ceremonies were held, but the first student did not appear until February 12. Before the end of the term the faculty of two professors found their time fully occupied with their forty-one students.

The founding of the University was North Carolina's first real step in the process of modern state-building. In his "Plan of Study," Davie, whose services gained for him the title "Father of the University," declared that it was "designed to form useful and respectable members of society—citizens capable of comprehending, improving and defending the principles of government, citizens who from the highest possible impulse, a just sense of their own and the general happiness, would be induced to practice the duties of social morality." It was this conception of public service as the chief function of a state university, rather than the ideal of general culture, that characterized the University of North Carolina before 1860, and from it came the inspiration for the various movements from 1815 to 1860 which became the foundations on which the modern state has been built.

The University struggled for existence against active opposition. Numerous causes were responsible for its unpopularity,—public disappointment that it had not met early expectations; the "indiscretion and misconduct of students"; the common belief that it was a hotbed for skepticism and infidelity; and the belief in Republican circles that it was the fountainhead of Federalism in North Carolina.

For a decade after its establishment the University's work was directed by a presiding professor. In 1804 the need for stronger measures of internal discipline and for defense against external attack led to the decision of the trustees to elect a president. Rev. Joseph Caldwell was chosen and served until 1812. His successor was Rev. Robert H. Chapman, who resigned after four years of unsuccessful efforts to cope with a rebellious student body. Thereupon the trustees persuaded Caldwell to accept the presidency again. He served until his death in 1835. David L. Swain, who had just completed his third term as governor and wished to retire from politics, was the next president, serving until he was dispossessed of his office by the Reconstruction government in 1868.

Before 1815 the University was a typical liberal arts college, laying chief emphasis upon the classics and mathematics. After 1815 two other lines of development are noticeable. One was the introduction into the curriculum of the natural sciences. In 1815 professorships of chemistry and of geology were established, and gave a tremendous impetus to scientific studies at the University. In 1824 the trustees sent President Caldwell to Europe to purchase scientific apparatus for the laboratories. Thus the natural sciences were given a place in the curriculum on terms of equality with the humanities.

The second line of development was in the study of such subjects as were designed to prepare men for public service. History, law, rhetoric, public speaking and debating were especially encouraged. The two literary societies—Dialectic and Philanthropic—whose history is coincident with that of the University, took an active part in student life. In 1843, President Swain organized at Chapel Hill the North Carolina Historical Society, and in 1845 established a department of law. "The ideal of public service over-shadowed general culture prior to 1860." The result is seen in the long list of public officials who were University alumni, including before 1860, one President of the United States, one Vice-President, seven Cabinet officials, ten United States senators, forty-one representatives in Congress, fifteen state governors, and state judges and legislators too numerous to be counted. To the learned professions, business, agriculture, and war, the University's contributions were no less notable.

President Swain's wide acquaintance in the state, coupled with his personality and policies, wrought a change in public sentiment toward the University and popularized the institution. When he became president in 1835 the enrollment was 104; before 1860 it reached 430. Its student body was drawn from the entire South; of the 576 graduates between 1850 and 1859, 159 were from other states than North Carolina.

In common with all other southern colleges the Civil War wrought havoc with the University of North Carolina, although it managed to keep its doors open throughout the war. In 1860 its student body represented every southern state, and as Dr. Battle says: "As each state passed an ordinance of secession, its citizens at the University hurried home fired with zeal to take up arms." Of the Freshman class of eighty students but one individual remained to graduate, and his services had been declined by the army for physical disability. In 1864-65 only sixty-five students matriculated. In the meantime one-third of the members of the faculty had entered military service.

In 1863 the Conscription Act threatened to close the University. President Swain urged the President of the Confederacy to exempt students until after graduation. "They can make no appreciable addition to the army," he wrote, "but their withdrawal may very seriously affect our organization, and in its ultimate effects cause us to close the doors of the oldest university at present accessible to the students of the Confederacy." President Davis agreed to the suggestion, saying that "the seed corn should not be ground up." But within the year the necessities of war required the rescinding of his order and every student in the University capable of bearing arms immediately joined the colors. Of the fifteen members of the class of 1865, fourteen enlisted and the fifteenth was rejected because physically unfit.

Nevertheless, the University continued its work. To prevent the suspension of exercises, the faculty offered to serve without salary. Even after the Confederacy had fallen and the University buildings had been turned into barracks and stables for the 4,000 Michigan cavalry that occupied Chapel Hill, the college bell was rung daily and a dozen students attended classes. In 1865 four seniors, three of whom were battle-scarred veterans of Lee and Jackson, received their diplomas.

The University survived the war; Reconstruction closed its doors. The causes of this catastrophe were two—poverty and politics. The war wiped out the University's endowment, leaving it with liabilities amounting to $100,000. An appropriation of $7,000, made by the Legislature and small sums from other sources enabled it to keep going until it was strangled by partisan politics.

In 1868 the "Carpet-bag" state government turned out the old non-political, self-perpetuating Board of Trustees and replaced it with a political board. The new board was composed entirely of Republicans and included some of the most notoriously corrupt carpet-baggers in the state. Partisan politics dictated its policies. At its first meeting it ousted President Swain and soon made a clean sweep of the old faculty. The new president, Solomon Pool (1869-1870), and certain of the new professors were near and needy relatives of prominent politicians who were also trustees. The new professor of Greek, who was formerly head of a negro school in Raleigh, advocated the conversion of the University into a negro college, promising that funds for its support "would be forthcoming from the North at once."

Sorrow and indignation at the use of the University for political spoils filed the breasts of its alumni and other friends. "Oh, how I sorrow for Chapel Hill!" lamented Zeb Vance. "How worse than desolate it must look under the oaks!" For two sessions the new faculty waited in vain for students; money then began to give out; the Legislature refused to make appropriations; and in 1870 the doors of the University were closed. A student, more realistic than sentimental, expressed the general feeling when he wrote on the wall of one of the recitation rooms, "This old University has busted and gone to hell today!"

The friends of the University were jubilant at the "grand fizzle." Hoping to regain control and revive it on the old basis, they began at once a campaign to arouse popular interest. Particularly effective was Mrs. Cornelia Phillips Spencer, who wrote letters to everybody of influence, contributed numerous articles to the press, and in her widely published "Pen and Ink Sketches of the University," painted conditions at Chapel Hill in unforgettable phrases. She was supported by many prominent men, chief of whom was Kemp P. Battle.

Their efforts finally succeeded in 1873, when an amendment to the Constitution was adopted which took the selection of trustees out of politics. A new board, chosen in 1874, assumed charge in 1875, reorganized the University, elected a new faculty, and in September reopened its doors with fifty-nine students in attendance, and Dr. Charles Phillips as presiding professor. The next year the trustees elected Kemp P. Battle president, and under his direction "the University began slowly to climb back to health and strength," free from any taint of politics.

From its re-opening to 1931, the University has had seven presidents, each of whom made a distinct contribution to its development. President Battle (1876-1891), who "called it back to life amid the ruins of its former greatness," laid a broad and firm foundation for the future structure, earning the title of "Father of the new University." His successor, George Tayloe Winston (1891-1896), made its campus the dwelling place of dynamic democracy and a citadel against the forces of intolerance and bigotry. Edwin Anderson Alderman (1896-1900), threw open its doors to women, proclaimed its mission to seek out and teach Truth, and interpreted to the people its place as the conservator of learning and culture in the democracy. The "architect of her material rebuilding," Francis Preston Venable (1900-1914), also, by his insistence upon sound and thorough work, "inwrought into her standard the ideals of modern scholarship." Taking up the task as President Venable laid it down, Edward Kidder Graham (1914-1918), recognized in the University the most efficient "instrument of democracy for realizing all the high and healthful aspirations of the State," and placing this instrument at the service of the State in the solution of its varied problems of industry, commerce, education, government, and social development, made the University "a great service bureau for the State, eager to serve, and eagerly sought for its counsel." Harry Woodburn Chase (1919-1930), bringing to the University a national outlook, guided it through a period of rapid material expansion and growth, while guarding with jealous care its standards of scholarship and defending its right to freedom of research and teaching.

The latest successor of these leaders, Frank Porter Graham, chosen to succeed President Chase in 1930, has been in office so brief a time that one must speak of his administration in the language not of history but of prophecy. Imbued with the high ideals and rich traditions of his alma mater, one may confidently predict that he will rear upon the foundation laid by his predecessors a yet greater and nobler structure.

ORGANIZED in 1843 the General Alumni Association invites participation by every former student of the University of North Carolina in a program of alumni service that is now nearly a century in age.

For the three fold purpose of perpetuating associations formed in collegiate years, promoting the welfare of Alma Mater, and promoting the cause of education generally, the Alumni Association was created. And since that time has striven to follow as guiding principles the motives which actuated its organization.

The record of the alumni of the University is a history of the institution's contribution to the life of the State and Nation was created. And since that human endeavor the University has sent forth her sons and—more recently—her daughters. The achievements these have made have brought added prestige to the University, even as association with the University has brought prestige to the individual alumnus.

As a unifying force for University welfare the Alumni Association calls upon alumni to express through it their loyalty for Alma Mater. Working in co-operation with the University administration the Association seeks to coordinate the alumni interest in bringing to focus public and private support in the building of a greater University.

With its high purposes yet there comes to the individual alumnus associated by membership in the General Alumni Association the recompensing pleasures of renewing University friendships in local alumni meetings, class reunions, home-comings and other alumni assemblages. Through its publication, The Alumni Review, the Association offers a means whereby an alumnus may more easily keep informed about alumni and University affairs.

And through its Central Alumni Office in Chapel Hill the Association constantly avails itself of opportunities of alumni service and preservation and perpetuation of University traditions.

THE Alumni Loyalty Fund, administered and directed by a committee of alumni, exists for the purpose of rendering a greater service to Alma Mater through the stimulation of gifts from private sources.

Bequests, Memorials, gifts for specific purposes, and small unrestricted gifts from everyone are essential if Carolina is to remain apace with other institutions of like standing. This work the Alumni Loyalty Fund strives to accomplish.

Funds so derived will only supplement State appropriations and not replace them. Private gifts will be used only for such emergencies and for such quality work as can not be financed from any other source.

No gift can be too small to render a genuine service. A very small sum from each of our 15,000 living alumni would aggregate a total which would be of inestimable value to the great University which has meant so much to all of us. Carolina sons and daughters are loyal enough to respond generously if only given the opportunity.

THE OLD WELL

Administration

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

PICTURED here for your memory is the student story of the 136th University year. Organizations, activities, scenes, and faces in the green garden of this book are kept forever fresh to the turn of these pages. In this year, distinctive for the financial depression and an unconquerable spirit, you have mightily helped the University to come through. You have borne the deep budget cut in a spirit that rises above its damaging gashes and that will hold on for the better day that is to come. May the testing of these times prove you worthy of greater tests beyond the days treasured here. A life of widening usefulness and deepening happiness is the affectionate hope of alma mater for each one of you.

FRANK P. GRAHAM,
President of the University.

ROBERT B. HOUSE
Executive Secretary

ROBERT B. HOUSE came back to his Alma Mater in 1926 to fill a newly-created job as Executive Secretary of the University. And since that time by judicious application of his energies he has earned for himself an important place in University administration.

The job of Executive Secretary was created by the Trustees that the President might be relieved of many duties of administration, and to that end Mr. House has devoted his efforts. He dispatches many obligations of the presidential correspondence, handles many interviews necessary in the administration of scholarship awards, works with student groups, assists in the executive work of faculty committees, and in general serves as an officer of liaison between the President and his faculty and the student body. In short, Mr. House is an ever present helpmate to the President of the University. This he has been now to two Presidents.

And Mr. House is also one of the official "contact" men of the University. He makes numerous addresses before civic clubs, alumni groups, commencement audiences, and other similar gatherings. He enjoys thoroughly his contacts with people and finds a quick entree to the good graces of those with whom he comes into contact.

CHARLES T. WOOLLEN
Business Manager

SERVING loyally and efficiently in the administrations of four University Presidents, Charles T. Woollen has become as much a part of Chapel Hill and the University as the oaks of the campus.

As a freshman in 1901 Mr. Woollen began his service in University administration when he was appointed Registrar. While still an undergraduate he was appointed Secretary of the University, the duties of that office being in addition to those as Registrar. Also as an undergraduate he became Purchasing Agent, a position he still retains. From 1908 to 1914 he was University Proctor. In 1914 he became Business Manager of the University. Also he is now Graduate Manager of Athletics, being appointed to that position in 1913.

Charged with the direction of the business office, the collection of student fees, the handling of University funds, the purchase of supplies and equipment, the supervision of the University Service Plants, the management of athletics, and numerous other duties, Mr. Woollen leads a busy life. Yet he finds time enough to remain intimate with many students and alumni.

Alumni tell interestingly of Mr. Woollen's musical proclivities in the earlier years of the century. He was leader of the band and a director in the University orchestra and glee club.

ADMINISTRATION

THOMAS J. WILSON, JR.

Dean of Admissions

DR. TOMMY J. is an institution with Carolina men.

For twenty-two years Dr. Wilson has been Registrar of the University. It has been Dr. Wilson who passed upon the entrance requirements of those who made application to come to Chapel Hill. His is the hand that has recorded the grades of University students in the book of scholastic attainment or failure. And it is he who finally passes upon the credits of candidates for degrees.

A Cerberus of the scholastic standards of the University, Dr. Wilson has handled again and again the record sheets of Carolina students. And in his retentive mind he carries a prodigious number of facts about the scholastic accomplishments of University students and alumni.

Dr. Wilson as a senior in the University in 1894 helped organize the local scholarship fraternity which in 1904 became the North Carolina Alpha chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. He has served since its organization as faculty secretary and treasurer of the chapter.

Recognizing and rewarding his long service the University Trustees this year changed Dr. Wilson's title from that of Registrar to Dean of Admissions and Registrar.

FRANCIS F. BRADSHAW

Dean of Students

IN the position of Dean of Students one might expect to find a person intently bent upon making students conform to rigid rules of discipline. Certainly not true is this of Francis F. Bradshaw, Dean of Students at the University since 1920.

Mr. Bradshaw is a psychologist both by nature and in training. He seeks to know and understand the students whose welfare is his official and personal concern. And because of this attitude he has the confidence of the student body.

Closely associated with the officers of student government, Mr. Bradshaw's office provides helpful assistance in student governing. The problems of student life are his concern and he is constantly occupied with investigating the need for and recommending student loans, gathering and disseminating vocational information, preparing chapel programs, inspiring dormitory organization, assisting with fraternity problems, and in other similar students interests.

In the field of personnel work he has gained national prominence. This year Columbia University awarded him its Ph.D. degree for work of psychological rating scales. Yet with all the business of establishing and testing standards of measurement, he is always at home to the individual student seeking counsel and direction.

DEAN ALLAN WILSON HOBBS

ALLAN WILSON HOBBS, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, has been a member of the University faculty for thirteen years. Prior to his appointment last year as Dean, he, in addition to his teaching, had rendered valuable service to the University as a member of the administrative boards of the College of Liberal Arts, the School of Engineering, and the School of Applied Science, as a member of the President's advisory committee, the faculty executive committee, and the student self-help committee, and as chairman of the University Athletic Council. Dean Hobbs was born in Guilford County in this State, and was graduated from Guilford College with the A.B. degree in 1907. He was awarded another A.B. at Haverford College in 1908, and in 1917 he won the Ph.D. degree at Johns Hopkins.

THE COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS is the mother of all the colleges in the University. It was foreseen in the first Constitution of North Carolina and was provided for in the charter granted by the General Assembly in 1789. Twenty-one departments of instruction, each functioning under its own head, are contained within the College—botany, chemistry, classical languages and literatures, comparative literature, economics, education, English, geology, Germanic languages, history and government, journalism, library science, mathematics, music, philosophy, physics, psychology, Romance languages, rural social economics, sociology, and zoology. The course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts is designed to provide a general, well-rounded, liberal education. It is the purpose of the College of Liberal Arts to secure for the student intellectual development and intelligent action through the pursuit of learning which is of cultural, preparatory and vocational value.

DEAN JAMES MUNSIE BELL

JAMES MUNSIE BELL was appointed Dean of the School of Applied Science in June, 1929, following the death of Dean Andrew H. Patterson. A native of Chesley in the Province of Ontario, Canada, Dr. Bell received his A.B. at the University of Toronto in 1902 and his A.M. at the same institution in 1905. He became a naturalized citizen of the United States in 1908, after he had received his Ph.D. at Cornell University in 1905. For five years he was a chemist with the United States Bureau of Soils, and in 1910 he came to the University as a member of the Chemistry Department faculty. In 1921 he became head of the Chemistry Department. During the World War he was in the Chemical Warfare Service of the United States government. Dean Bell has served the University as a member of the faculty committees on English Composition, Foreign Study, McNair Lectures, and Travel Study in America, besides his duties as a member of the Faculty Advisory Committee. He is a member of a number of scientific and professional organizations, including the American Chemistry Society and the American Association of University Professors.

THE SCHOOL OF APPLIED SCIENCE includes four curricula leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science; Bachelor of Science in Chemistry; Bachelor of Science in Medicine; Bachelor of Science in Geology, and Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy. In addition there are two-year Premedical and Predental courses, and a one-year Predental course. Each curriculum combines instruction in certain sciences and their application to the arts, with certain other general courses deemed essential to a general education. These curricula are designed to furnish the fundamental instruction and to prepare students to pursue the technical profession to which they lead.

DEAN GUSTAVE MAURICE BRAUNE

Deceased

THE late Gustave Maurice Braune, Dean of the School of Engineering from 1922 till his death November 26, 1930, came to the University in 1921 to organize and head the then new School of Engineering. Under his capable administration, the School began a period of progress which soon placed it among the foremost schools of engineering. Dean Braune inaugurated the co-operative plan in the School which has since become a feature in engineering education. A native of Alabama, Dean Braune was a graduate of Spring Hill College, Mobile, Alabama, in 1888 with the degree of B.S. He later studied and was graduated in civil engineering at the Royal Polytechnic, Dresden, Saxony, in 1895. From 1897 to 1912 he was identified with many large engineering concerns, accepting in 1912 a professorship in civil engineering in the University of Cincinnati. He later became head of the department in that institution. In 1921 he accepted the call from the University of North Carolina. Few teachers have ever been more loved and admired by their students than was Dean Braune. His untimely death was a blow to the University and to all who knew him.

ALTHOUGH it was not until June, 1922, that the Board of Trustees of the University established the School of Engineering as a unit apart from the School of Applied Science, the University was one of the pioneers of America in offering to students courses in engineering. Since 1853, when Professor Charles Phillips was named head of the department of civil engineering, the engineering departments have advanced rapidly. Included in the present School are departments of civil, electrical, mechanical, and chemical engineering. The department of mechanical engineering offers an option in aeronautical engineering in the senior year. The engineering courses have been developed along broad and cultural lines, and the necessity of cultural training as a part of a thoroughly technical education has been kept constantly in mind. The instruction consists of four-year courses leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Science in Chemical, Civil, Electrical, and Mechanical Engineering. A prominent feature of the training offered by the School is the co-operative plan, by which each student, during his junior year, comes into close contact for a twelve-week period with outside industries. Thus the training is designed to be both theoretical and practical.

DEAN MARCUS C. S. NOBLE

MARCUS CICERO STEVENS NOBLE, long recognized as the "grand old man" of education in North Carolina, was appointed Dean of the School of Education in 1913, and he has held the position since that time. No state has had a citizen more devoted to its schools and more tireless in promoting their growth than is Dr. Noble. Since he came to the University from the Wilmington public schools in 1898 as Professor of Pedagogy, he has seen a poverty-stricken University grow large and strong—and his has been no small part in that growth. Despite his 76 years, Dr. Noble carries out his duties as educator, bank president, churchman, and author with his usual light step, and his well-known roach of hair is as thick and turbulent as ever. He is a member of the University Class of 1879. Recently he published the first of a two-volume History of the Public Schools of North Carolina, a work which required no end of research and application. This history is his dominating interest at present. When interrupted he exclaims, with his usual kindly humor, "Don't bother me. I've got to finish this history before I die."

WITH the enormous increase in elementary, high school and college education within recent years, the equipping of prospective teachers and educational workers with the knowledge, attitudes, and skills necessary for successful teaching and administration has become of tremendous importance. The primary function of the University School of Education is the preparation of young men and young women for the more responsible teaching positions, principalships, and superintendencies. By an act of the General Assembly of 1887, free tuition is given to teachers in the schools of North Carolina and to prospective teachers who are residents of the State. Two curricula, both leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts in Education, are offered—the one is designed for the preparation of teachers for the secondary schools, and the other for the preparation of teachers for the primary and grammar grades. A training school, made possible through an appropriation from the General Education Board of New York in 1926 for a five-year period, is operated in connection with the School of Education. Through it "directed teaching" is given, with students in the Chapel Hill schools as subjects. This spring approximately 65 seniors will receive degrees in the School of Education, and the total enrollment is around 350.

DEAN DUDLEY DEWITT CARROLL

DEAN of the School of Commerce since its establishment in 1919, Dudley DeWitt Carroll has been instrumental in bringing about the remarkable development of that division of the University. Its enrollment has increased from 125 in 1919 to 625 last fall, and under Dean Carroll's leadership it has won national recognition. Born at Mizpah in Stokes County, North Carolina, Dean Carroll, together with Dean Hobbs of the Liberal Arts School, was awarded A.B. degrees in 1907 by Guilford College and in 1908 by Haverford College in Pennsylvania. Returning to Guilford in 1909, he served there for five years as Professor of History and Economics and Dean. In 1916 he was awarded an M.A. at Columbia University, and he taught at Hunter College in New York City for the next two years. He came to the University in 1918 as Professor of Economics, and the following year was placed at the head of the newly-organized School of Commerce. Dean Carroll says that in his long experience as a teacher he has never worked harder than in 1908, when he taught no less than 17 classes each day at Mountain View Institute in his home village of Mizpah, besides serving as principal of the institution! Besides his duties as Dean and Professor of Economics, he is a member of the Board of Governors of the Institute in Social Science, and of the faculty committees on Chapel and Entrance Requirements and of the Faculty Advisory body.

THE SCHOOL OF COMMERCE was established in 1919 when the General Assembly enacted the necessary legislation in response to the recommendations of the President and the Board of Trustees. The course of study, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Commerce, covers a period of four years and is designed to give a foundation of broad and general culture, and, at the same time, supply a definite and practical training to those who intend to engage in any of the great lines of industrial and commercial activity. It is the purpose of the School of Commerce to provide its students with as thorough and scientific business training as it is possible to give within the range of the subjects which it attempts to cover. The student must supplement his general survey with a specialized study of any one of the following: the administration of production; the management of finance; marketing and selling; management of personnel; the avoidance or distribution of risk; dealing with problems of transportation; conforming with legal requirements; handling the problem of accounting; foreign trade. The School of Commerce has had a phenomenal growth, and it is now recognized as a leader in its field.

DIRECTOR HOWARD W. ODUM

HOWARD WASHINGTON ODUM has been Director of the School of Public Welfare and Kenan Professor of Sociology since 1920. He is recognized throughout the United States as a foremost authority in the social sciences. In addition to his numerous other duties at the University he is Director of the Institute for Research in Social Science. His scholastic degrees include an A.B. from Emory University, an M.A. from the University of Mississippi, and doctorates from Clark University and Columbia University. He has taught at various Southern universities, and he was Dean of Liberal Arts at Emory before coming here. Author of numerous scientific works and novels, Dr. Odum has a wide reputation as a writer. He is at present on leave of absence in Chicago, where he is Director of Social Science exhibits for the World Fair to be held in 1933.

ALTHOUGH the School of Public Welfare has been in existence little more than a decade, it has provided for the specific needs of the State and the South for well-trained social workers and community leaders and for research in social problems. Plans for effective organization of the school were begun and tasks entered upon during the Summer School of 1920. A four-fold service is provided; the first emphasizes instruction in Sociology and Social Problems; the second emphasizes training for special work and community leadership; the third aspect of the work deals with direct and indirect community service, or social engineering; the fourth aspect emphasizes social research, scientific inquiry, and publication of results estimated to be of value to the State, the University, and to the general public welfare and social progress. The plan of instruction follows these divisions: General Social Theory; The Home and Family; The Community and Association; The State, Government, and Public Institutions; The School and Education; Play and Recreation; Industry and Work; Methods of Organization and Administration; Field Work; and Summer Institutes of Public Welfare.

DEAN WILLIAM W. PIERSON, JR.

WILLIAM WHATLEY PIERSON, JR., Professor of History and Government and member of the University faculty for fifteen years, was appointed permanent Dean of the Graduate School last July. Considered one of the foremost living authorities on Hispanic American History, Dean Pierson is one of the best known exponents of the Southern school of historians founded by the late William A. Dunning, long the Nestor of American historians. Born at Brundige, Alabama, Dr. Pierson won A.B. and M.A. degrees at the University of Alabama in 1910 and 1911, an M.A. at Columbia University in 1912, and his doctorate at Columbia in 1916. His education at Columbia was followed by study at several Spanish and French institutions. He is the author of several historical works, and he has now in preparation books on The History of Peru, The Government of Venezuela, and The Administration of Governor Montiano. A member of several scientific and historical societies, he is on the editorial board of The Hispanic American Historical Review. Dean Pierson is serving the University as a member of the faculty committees on Foreign Study, English Composition and Library Books, and is a member of the President's Advisory Committee. Already under Dean Pierson's leadership a great Southern graduate school has been developed at Chapel Hill, and the University is drawing scholars from the South in particular and the entire country in general.

FROM the founding of the University 136 years ago research as well as instruction has been encouraged, although the first formal action toward establishment of graduate study was taken in 1881. It was in 1904 that the graduate department was formally organized as a distinct school of the University, and its progress has been steady since that time, until it is now generally recognized that Texas and North Carolina have the two foremost graduate schools in the South. Authorities believe that the Chapel Hill school is the better balanced of the two. During the past decade the Graduate School has made its greatest advances, and the enrollment has increased from 145 in 1920 to 734 in 1930. Professional training for teachers and research have gone hand in hand in the development of the University Graduate School. Languages and Literatures, Philosophy, Political and Social Sciences, Mathematics and the Natural Sciences—all are given special attention in the Graduate School, with special facilities for research and instruction in them. The former Mary Ann Smith dormitory has been converted into the Graduate Club, where a majority of the graduate students room and take their meals. Much benefit has been derived from the Club, since it brings together students with similar interests.

DIRECTOR NATHAN W. WALKER

NATHAN WILSON WALKER, Director of the University Summer School for twenty-two years and Acting Dean of the School of Education since 1921, has earned a wide reputation as an efficient executive and educator. Under his leadership the Summer School has expanded rapidly until it now has an enrollment well over 3,000. It was in 1903 that Mr. Walker graduated from the University with the A.B. degree. He became Professor of Education in 1905, and he has been a member of the faculty since that time. Mr. Walker has a Master's degree from Harvard University. Among his many services to the University are those of membership on the Board of Governors of the University Press, the faculty committee on Entrance Requirements, and the President's Advisory Committee. He is a member and official of several southern educational associations.

VERY few persons, even those intimately connected with the University, realize that the first summer school for teachers, known in those days as the "Summer Normal," was established here in 1877. That first summer school ran for eight years, being suspended in 1884. Revived in 1894, it ran for eleven more years, and was revived again in 1907. Since that time it has continued to expand and prosper. Today the Summer School is one of the most important divisions of the University. Last summer there were 131 instructors, 31 of whom were visiting professors, and 290 courses were offered. The total enrollment was 3,005, and approximately 125 degrees were conferred, 53 of them by the Graduate School. Courses are given in Art, History, Biology, Botany, Chemistry, Commerce and Economics, Education, Engineering, English, Geology, German, Greek, History and Government, Latin, Library Science, Mathematics, Music, Pharmacy, Physics, Psychology, French, Spanish, Rural Social Economics, Sociology, Zoology, Elementary Education, Fine Arts, Physical Education, Practical and Industrial Arts, Natural Science, Social Science, and Writing. These courses are planned for all teachers of primary and grammar grades, high school teachers and principals, county and city superintendents and supervisors, librarians, college and university students and teachers desiring credit towards graduate and undergraduate degrees.

DIRECTOR R. M. GRUMMAN

RUSSELL MARVIN GRUMMAN has been Director of the Extension Division since 1928. He came to the University in 1925 as Associate Director of the Division, and was Acting Director from 1926 until 1928. To him is attributed much of the credit for the rapid expansion of the University's extension service, and he has been indefatigable in improving his department. A native of Brooklyn, New York, he graduated from the International Y. M. C. A. College at Springfield, Massachusetts, in 1918, and studied at Teachers' College, Columbia University, in 1919 and 1920.

STARTING as a Bureau of Extension in 1912 under the leadership of Dr. L. R. Wilson, University librarian, the idea of university extension was clarified and expanded under the administration of the late President Edward Kidder Graham. In 1921, in conformity with standards established by the National University Extension Association, the work was organized as a major division of the University by President Harry W. Chase. Chester D. Snell served as director of the Division from then until 1928, during which time there took place, both in the organization and in its field of service to the state, a remarkably rapid period of growth and expansion.

The Extension Division of the University of North Carolina is the administrative agency through which are conducted the extension activities of the various University departments. By means of correspondence instruction, extension classes located in all parts of the state, radio lectures, extension library service, reading courses, community dramatics, interscholastic activities, and a variety of publications, the University is relating itself effectively with the life of the state.

A total of at least forty thousand individuals receive each year some regular educational service through the various activities and publications of the Division. Last year instruction was offered to 3,614 off-campus students who enrolled in extension classes and correspondence courses.

DEAN CHARLES T. McCORMICK

CHARLES TILFORD McCORMICK, Dean of the Law School since 1927, is noted for his thoroughness and the efficiency of his administration. Much of the exceptional progress of the Law School within recent years is attributed to his influence. Born at Dallas, Texas, he received an A.B. degree at the University of Texas in 1909, and an LL.B. cum laude at Harvard in 1912. For eight years he practiced law as a member of the firm of Ethe-ridge, McCormick and Mromberg. In 1922 he became a Professor of Law at the University of Texas, coming here in 1926 in the same capacity. A year later he was made Dean of the University Law School, and he has served in that position since. He has taught in the summer sessions of the Cornell and Yale Law Schools. Author of a number of articles for leading law journals, he is a member of the American Bar Association and the North Carolina Bar Association. Damages, Evidence and Personal Property are the subjects he teaches in the Law School.

DURING the past decade the Law School has in all probability raised its standards to a greater extent than any other division of the University. In 1924 it was raised to "Class A" to conform to the standards of leading law schools throughout the country. Two years of academic work as prerequisite for entrance have been required since that time. The Law School is a member of the Association of American Law Schools, composed of 62 of the leading law schools in the United States, including such schools as Harvard, Yale, Cornell and Chicago. Since 1923 the School has occupied Manning Hall, named for the late John Manning, once a distinguished professor of law here. Modern and commodious, the building is particularly noted for its beauty of design. The library is one of the largest law libraries in the South, containing more than 21,000 volumes. In 1843 the law school which developed into the School of Law of the University was founded at Chapel Hill as a private school by William H. Battle, then a judge of the Superior Court, later a justice of the State Supreme Court. It was not until 1899 that the school was completely incorporated into the University, although it had maintained a close connection with the institution since its establishment.

DEAN ISAAC HALL MANNING

ISAAC HALL MANNING is probably better known in the medical profession than any other man in North Carolina. Dean of the University School of Medicine and Professor of Physiology here since 1901, he is one of the oldest in point of service and most respected members of the faculty. Born in the neighboring town of Pittsboro, he came to Chapel Hill in 1882 and entered the University, studying here for four years. He received his M.D. degree from Long Island College Hospital in 1897, later studying at Harvard University and the University of Chicago. Dean Manning was recently elected a Fellow of the American College of Physicians, one of the highest honors that may be bestowed upon a member of the medical profession in this country.

THE SCHOOL OF MEDICINE was established in 1879 under the direction of Dr. Thomas W. Harris. A course in theoretical and practical medicine was offered under the preceptorial system, but the plan was found impracticable and was abandoned in 1886. In 1890 the school was reopened with a more orderly and logical arrangement of courses. At first the course covered only one year, but in 1896 a two-year course was inaugurated. In 1900 the School of Medicine was incorporated as an integral part of the University and was reorganized to meet the requirements for the first two years of the full four-year course leading to the degree of doctor of medicine. In 1902 it was expanded into a four-year school, and the clinical subjects of the third and fourth year were offered in Raleigh. After a few years of successful operation, this plan was abandoned because of lack of financial support, and the clinical subjects were dropped. In 1908 the school was admitted to membership in the Association of American Medical Colleges, and is now ranked in the class "A" group by the American Medical Association. The subjects included in the four-year course in medicine are arranged in two main groups, the so-called laboratory and clinical groups, and two years of study are devoted to each. This division makes it possible for a student to pursue the laboratory subjects in one institution and the clinical subjects in another without loss of continuity and with no disadvantage. Students who have successfully completed the two-year course in the laboratory subjects offered here are prepared to begin the study of the clinical subjects and may be transferred, without examination and with full credit, to the third year of other medical colleges of the highest rank.

DEAN EDWARD VERNON HOWELL

Deceased

EDWARD VERNON HOWELL, founder of the University School of Pharmacy and its Dean for thirty-three years, died in Chapel Hill February 14, 1931. It was in 1897 that he came to Chapel Hill and began the work of establishing a School of Pharmacy. Much of the Pharmacy School's remarkable expansion and success under frequently adverse conditions was due to Dean Howell. His was an unusually vivid personality, and his students were deeply impressed by his kindness and depth of knowledge. He was born at Raleigh and was graduated from Wake Forest College, receiving his Ph.G. at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy. A member of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association, he was a former vice-president and executive committee-man of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy.

FOUNDED in 1880 in connection with the School of Medicine, the first Pharmacy School at the University was abandoned six years later when the Medical School passed out of existence. In the fall of 1880 the school was revived by Dr. Richard A. Whitehead, but again its career was cut short. It was in March, 1897, that the present Pharmacy School was established with the late Edward Vernon Howell as Dean and Professor of Pharmacy. The course of study extended over two sessions of nine months each and led to the degree of Graduate in Pharmacy (Ph.G.). At that time the school occupied the lower floor of New West Building. In the summer of 1912 the school was moved to Person Hall, and in 1914 two new courses in pharmacy were added to the curriculum; one, a three-year course, led to the degree of Doctor of Pharmacy (P.D.); the other, also a three-year course, led to the degree of Pharmaceutical Chemist (Ph.C.). In 1917 the school was admitted to membership in the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy. The degrees of Doctor of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Chemist were abandoned in 1925 in order to meet with the Association's newly-made requirements, and the course of study leading to the degree of Graduate in Pharmacy was advanced from two to three years. A four-year course was added leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy (S. B. in Pharmacy). In the fall of 1925 the School of Pharmacy moved into its building, Pharmacy Hall. Upon the death of Dean E. Vernon Howell on February 14, 1931, Professor John Grover Beard was appointed to succeed him.

DR. LOUIS ROUND WILSON

ALREADY one of the University's busiest men, Louis Round Wilson will assume another duty of major proportions next fall when the new School of Library Science is established here. Dr. Wilson has been appointed director of the school. Since 1901 he has been University librarian; during the intervening three decades the library has developed from a collection of less than 25,000 volumes to a modern, fully-equipped department, housed in one of the largest and most beautiful buildings in the South, with a total of approximately 300,000 volumes. Born at Lenoir in this State, Dr. Wilson attended Haverford College in Pennsylvania for three years, entering the University in 1898 and receiving the A.B. degree here a year later. He also has earned M.A. and Ph.D. degrees here. He is Director of the University Press and Professor of Library Administration, as well as President of the Southeastern and Southern Librarians' Associations. Among his literary activities is the associate editorship of Studies in Philology, and he has written several books of an educational and technical nature.

DURING the past seven years more than 125,000 volumes have been added to the library; less than 100,000 were collected by it during the 126 years from its founding in 1795 until that time! A magnificent structure costing $625,000 was dedicated as the new University library in 1929, with nine stories of stacks capable of shelving approximately 400,000 books. Space has been provided for extensions which will bring the capacity well over a million volumes. Ideally speaking, the new library is the expression of the dignity of learning; practically, it is planned with cold and remorseless efficiency, with every inch of space utilized to the best advantage. At present the library receives 2500 periodicals annually and houses approximately 225,000 volumes. A need that has been increasing for many years in the South will be fulfilled next fall, when a library school will be established here as the result of a gift of $100,000 from the Carnegie Foundation. In this school librarians, like lawyers and doctors and teachers, may secure expert professional training. The University of North Carolina Press, incorporated in June, 1922, has the following objectives: the publication of periodicals devoted to the advancement of learning and produced at the University by or under the direction of the Faculty; publication of catalogues, periodicals, and other documents pertaining to the University and its various schools and departments; and the promotion, through the publication of deserving works, of the advancement of arts and sciences and the development of literature. Approximately 106 books have been published by the Press since its establishment, in addition to a number of periodicals and series of studies.

DR. ROBERT BAKER LAWSON

ROBERT BAKER LAWSON, Physical Director of the University since 1906, was born at Brookneal, Virginia. He was a student at the University from 1897 to 1900, the last two years in Medicine, and received his M.D. degree from the University of Maryland in 1902. During his student days he was a five-letter man, playing on the baseball, football, track, tennis and gym teams. After graduation he played professional baseball with several major and minor league clubs, returning to the University in 1905 as coach of the baseball team. Since 1906 he has been Associate Professor of Physical Education, in addition to Physical Director.

THE WILLIAM PRESTON BYNUM, JR. GYMNASIUM was completed in 1904. It is furnished with modern gymnasium apparatus, a swimming pool, baths, and running track, and contains a trophy room and the office of the Director. Gym classes are held for all freshmen, who must attend them three hours a week unless excused. In the fall a thorough physical examination of each new student is made, and the heart, the lungs, the eyes and the ears are tested in order that students defective in physical development may be given special work under the personal supervision of the Director of the Gymnasium. Most of the campus dances are given in this building. In recent years the Gymnasium has become inadequate for the needs of the rapidly-expanding University, however, and efforts have been made for several years to secure an appropriation from the State Legislature for a larger and better equipped building.

DR. ERIC ALONZO ABERNETHY

“Doc Ab” has been practicing medicine in Chapel Hill since the fall of 1904, and has been University Physician since 1919 and Summer School Physician since 1912. He was a student here from 1895 until 1900, the last two years in Medicine. Receiving M.D. degrees from the University of Virginia in 1901 and Columbia University in 1903, he re-entered the University in 1906 to secure his B.S. degree. During the war “Doc Ab” achieved a distinguished record, serving with the Belgian Army until the American forces arrived in France. He was Commanding Officer of a Sanitary Train during the St. Mihiel drive, served in the Meuse-Argonne salient, and was wounded in Belgium. His rank was Lieutenant-Colonel. During the past year or two “Doc Ab” has been in poor health, and he recently returned from New York where he was a patient under a famous specialist for several months. His condition is much improved now, however.

THE original University infirmary was constructed about 25 years ago near the center of the campus. In 1910 it was replaced by a wooden structure containing 24 beds, with one negro man in the capacity of nurse. After the war in 1918 the present infirmary was built, said to be the best planned college infirmary in the United States. It is modeled on the British hospital plan, with a number of small units containing four beds each. Under the immediate supervision of the University Physician, it is provided with two experienced nurses. At the discretion of the University Physician a student may be admitted to its wards, and for such services as may be rendered by the staff no charge is made. During the last school year 1,135 cases were treated at the infirmary, and approximately 500 of them were placed in bed.

Class Poem

*In a milkweed's pod, drinking the white sap,
Smug, protected, well-ordered, and aligned,
Alike as scales on a sucker's back,
Lie the young seeds, importunate, untried,
Tomorrow they will drift the windy meadows,
Each under his own snowy wing,
And no omnipotence may pack them in again,
Tiered, dovetailed, shoulder to shoulder.*

I

*Look at them before they scatter away,
Closely, to see under the little flaws and differences
The inevitable oneness of their pattern:
Beneath the spats and affectation of one,
The flannel underwear and dullness of another,
Beneath the whims, the shams, the loud talk,
The drunken, synthetic laughter, the studious asceticism
Under hypocrisy and sincerity, pride and humility,
The varying interests, the petty aspirations
For campus honors, bloated to spurious value
By the unfocused, giddy eyes of youth,
Under it all beats a common pulse, an ache,
A steady cadence of ambition that yearns to strike
The lifted note of a dim thing called happiness.*

III

*They go hunting it now,
All following one scent;
But with as many different gaits
As there are members of the pack;
And each gives tongue in his own way,
Pseudo-dilettants, athletes, genuine students,
Lank mountain boy, stony-shouldered,
The strength of gnarled hackwood in his arms
A few fools, a few complacent swine,
Perhaps a genius or two; playboys, grinds,
And a hundred colorless, plodding weights
Who may pull down the quarry
Where the others have gone heedless by,
Reckless and blind in haste.*

II

*Chapel Hill will see them again some day,
"Limping up the wind,"
Covering their wisfulness with laughter,
And handshakes, and boisterous greetings.*

MOORE

AS we try to recollect those scenes and events which constitute our history for the past four years we are seized at once with a feeling of loss and a sense of gain—perhaps it would not be incorrect to say accomplishment. In retrospect the Class of '31 seems to have passed through four crowded years. Many things have happened, and many changes have been wrought. In fact, our period of academic life has been one of transition: the campus has changed its appearance; professors have come and gone; new institutions have been established, and old ones have been altered. But these changes have not been revolutionary or sudden; there has been no hectic struggle between the old and the new. There has not even been a really live intellectual issue which has roused the whole student body (which members of bygone classes lead us to believe was the case in previous years); there has been nothing of this sort to divide our ranks. Thus, while we have witnessed changes, and while we ourselves no doubt have been transformed in many ways, our growth has been quiet. And this quiet educational process we have passed through has given us time to absorb some of the atmosphere of the University and color of Chapel Hill, which things are the very stuff of our regret in completing our four years here; for having learned to love the University and to appreciate the term alma mater, we suddenly find that we must leave. We feel, in leaving, that we are losing something which we are just beginning to understand. Our loss, however, is tempered by our progress as individuals, by our having been shown the direction of education, by our friendships, and by personalities and incidents which will always live in our memories.

Our class has seen the campus extend its proportions to an extent which is almost phenomenal. The Library, Bingham Hall, Kenan Memorial Stadium, "I" Dormitory, and nine fraternity houses were added to the surroundings. New West and New East were renovated, and then followed the remodelling of Peabody. Old Memorial Hall was condemned and razed, and a new structure was built on its site. Through the generosity of donors whose identities are unknown, the new music building and auditorium were erected, and funds for the completion of Graham Memorial Building were provided. Although we probably shall not see the Morehead-Patterson Tower completed, we at least saw its beginning. As we leave, Carr Building is being transformed into a club for lawyers, and some of us will avail ourselves in the future of the advantages of this renovation. With the erection of new buildings the South Campus has taken on a new importance, and none of us will be surprised to see new dormitories and classroom buildings grouped in a few years—after the depression—around Kenan Stadium.

Other important changes concern campus institutions. Possibly the most revolutionary of these was the decision on the part of that time-honored organization, the Philanthropic Assembly, to admit females to membership. The Di has not, as yet, seen fit to do this. Probably the most important innovation was the Daily Tar Heel. News daily instead of tri-weekly has improved our dispositions at the breakfast table considerably. The Magazine, a supplement of the daily, now appears semi-monthly. Another significant establishment was the Entertainment Committee, which provided us with a much more entertaining and artistic program than we had before.

Early in our history we had political battles among ourselves which at first appeared likely to divide our house. However, although the great game of politics is practically in the same state at the present as when we first had contact with it, campaigns against each other, it cannot be said, never made us bitter toward each other. After the melee of each election vanquished congratulated victor, and things went on peacefully. We have been particularly fortunate in our leadership. Our class presidents during the four years have been most able. Under strong leaders much progress has been made in student government, which is gradually growing more popular and efficient. There is no student organization on the campus which has not experienced and which has not been affected by members of our class. We are justly proud of those men who have brought honor to our colors.

We are the largest class in the history of the University, and rivals might attribute our many superlatives to this fact alone. Nevertheless, there are more Phi Beta Kappa keys and athletic monograms attached to members of our class than to those of any other. Moreover, we are the most cosmopolitan group, almost one-sixth of our members being residents of other states and foreign countries.

The Class of '31 made an unusual contribution to the University in its donating five hundred dollars to the Second Quadrennial Institute on Human Relations. When it became evident that the Institute Committee could not secure adequate funds, the class stepped in and saved the day. This gift of the class to the Institute, as a gift to the University, will not only be a permanent monument to the Class of '31; it will be as well an everlasting tribute to its members.

When we entered the University the market was bullish, we were optimistic, and the future seemed to hold in store for us a multitude of good things. Now we face a bearish market, we are rather discouraged about the future, and we wonder whether the depression will last two years longer or ten. But even if our hearts are not light, they are not heavy. We leave knowing that the University will continue to go forward, for it could not do otherwise under the administration of so able and beloved a man as our new leader, President Frank Graham. And perhaps—this is not conceit—some of our own members may be able to pull us out of all this chaos. After all, who can tell?

BEVERLY MOORE, Historian.

Last Will and Testament of the Class

State of North Carolina, Orange County, City of Chapel Hill, University of North Carolina

LITTLE

WE, the class of '31, of the aforesaid State, county, city, and university, notwithstanding 8:30 classes, term papers, comprehensive exams, Swain Hall food, etc., do claim to be of sound mind; and in consideration of the approaching end of our collegiate existence, do make and declare this our will and testament. We do hereby give, bequeath, devise, convey and dispose of the following hereinafter provided.

1. Our executor, hereinafter named, shall give to our memory a decent resting place, suitable to the wishes of our friends and relatives, and pay all expenses to the Hall of Fame, together with all our just and recognizable debts, out of moneys which may belong to our estate, including any laundry deposit, laboratory, and locker refunds accruing thereto.

2. To the University: A sufficient sum to finance the erection and maintenance of a building with walls six feet thick, wherein shall be put separate rooms for the use of immature orchestras, would-be glee clubs, and chronic devotees of boisterous bull-sessions; also money for the employment of a full time Yiddish interpreter for "I" dormitory.

3. To the Faculty: As a sincere and honest tribute to what they have meant to us during our four-year stay, our undying gratitude; also to their watchful care we do intrust Davie Poplar, the old well, Graham Memorial building, and other such venerable landmarks on the campus; and for their slight edification, greater wonder, and still greater amusement, we do commit our four year's collection of quizzes, to serve as a flagrant example of the depths to which even the exam system is capable of descending.

4. To the student body coming after us: Our experience and knowledge of the gentle art of "bumming," and how to judge accurately the exact number and beauty of bathing girls in any given "pic" merely from seeing placards in front of the theater, and how inauspiciously and imperceptibly to participate in that ancient and over-worked activity known as "booting."

5. To the Juniors: Those ephemeral but venerated figments of imagination known as "senior privileges," including being able to smoke cigars with some appearance of pleasure, cut classes with greater regularity than catch them, provide amusement for the rest of the campus by what might be called a second fraternity initiation week, the donning of senior regalia; and attendance on Sociology II; also heterogeneous collection of fraternity pins, Phi Beta Kappa keys; athletic letters, chapel notices; probation slips; and other worldly honors of little use to one about to embark upon the other life.

6. To the Greeks: Several well-tested solutions of the situation resulting when three "one-and-onyms" wire last minute acceptances of bids to the dance; and abundance of hard wood paddle material; and the manual entitled "How to Pay for the House in One Year," by Rushmore Richfellows.

7. To the Non-Fraternity men: A sum to provide for the installation in each dormitory of a "fire" alarm and window raiser, to work automatically upon the approach of any member of the illusive sex; a special supply of hot water for the third floor showers between five and six o'clock in the afternoon; and finally a recommendation for investigation of over-emphasis and professionalism in intramural football.

8. To the Co-eds: A tearful and heart-felt good-bye, with sincerest wishes that they may always be as successful in life as they have ever been at Grai dances.

9. As sole executor and administrator of this will we do hereby appoint that the dean of deans—Dean Paulsen—to execute this our last will and testament, according to the true intents and meaning of the same, and every part of the clause thereof—hereby revoking and declaring utterly void all other wills and testaments by us heretofore made.

In witness whereof we, the said class of '31, do hereunto set our hand and seal.

The Class of '31 (SEAL)

JAMES M. LITTLE, JR., Class Lawyer.

MARSHALL

NOT long ago it was my good fortune to visit the grotto of that mysterious and venerable, but altogether charming old recluse, Abul Ben Drumghoul, prophet and sage. After listening, for a while, to his interesting and learned discourse on various topics of passing concern to the contemporary world, I made so bold as to ask the kind old father to tell me something of the future.

"And what would you know of that which lies before, my son?" he asked.

"Only that which my fellows wish to know, father," I answered. "For long have my colleagues debated the future and many and varied have been the conjectures made by them over the tomorrow, both for themselves and the members of their college class."

"Then that I shall gladly tell you; for I have watched, with the interest of one who sees both the past and that which lies before, your class of '31. Youth and its prospect has ever held me for its audience."

And without further comment the Ancient, with still clear eyes fixed steadily on a distant hill-top, spoke slowly and rhythmically in a low but resonant monotone.

"The future spreads itself before me like a splendid multi-colored tapestry, whereon is pictured the plain and the spectacular delineations of the years-to-be. To my forseeing eye they are clear and vivid. To you and your fellows they do not yet appear. But take heed lest you see them not when the time is ripe. I see the future of your class interwoven with the future of your state. The strong threads of men spun fine and true beneath the guiding hand of a mother institution run smoothly through the threads of a mother commonwealth. The fabric is a perfect blending of the two, each supporting the other and so closely knit that the whole is made a symphony in men and ideals. Here and there are bright shades of individualism which lend music to the even monotone of a background, deep and rich. Here and there bright hues stand out and sing in overtones of chromatic splendor the qualities that make leaders of men. Bright hues that sparkle and reflect the rays of the light of knowledge; bright, effervescent hues that shine from noble men. Clear tones that give life to the threads of leadership, firm but gentle and brilliant but not gaudy. Threads that show fineness, threads that bind the whole, threads that weave an unperceivable Gordian knot and weave at once a picture of truth. And yet the brightness of these striking pictures does not in any way detach them from the tapestry itself. The weak and the strong, the drab and the colorful entwine to create the whole. The great merge with the obscure and the line of relation is unseen. Each is a part of the other. The microcosm becomes macrocosm and the macrocosm the microcosm. All is the picture. The chromatic blending of the dull with the dazzling presents the sublime harmony of a symphonic whole. Truth, you see, shall lend its universal force in the forging of a greater state from the individual and the mass. The strong threads support the weak; the brilliant tones shed a soft and enveloping glow upon the drab.

I see the intricately woven scenes of every field of human endeavor. In each of them your classmates stand firmly as masters of their particular vocation. Here in colors strong and bold are painted men of science, lead only by a spiritual desire to ameliorate human suffering. Here are learned men whose only guide is the imparting of their knowledge to a virile youth. There are statesmen at the helm of state, their sextant is the people and their north star is the truth. And clear is the portrayal of judges and lawyers lead only by the hand of a blind goddess. Leaders of commerce and industry harness nature for mankind's betterment in one gigantic display of power. And here are ministers of things spiritual whose teachings are ever tempered with tolerance. Many and varied are these colossal scenes and beautiful and good are they to see. But behind all of them and back of each of them and interwoven with them is the smooth and ever-flowing wave of an enlightened people. And this monotone is the life of the picture; through this unifying entity throbs the pulse of a greater state. The tapestry is sublime and its delineations are superb. The threads woven by your fellows are noteworthy. All of them show the influence of their university, instilled in them in student days long since gone. And these pictures of the tapestry of future time shall eventually spread themselves before you. Take heed lest you and your fellows see them not. Let each be watchful lest he be destined for a greater thread. The light of truth imported to each while seeking an elusive thing called knowledge brought to him, unseen but nevertheless real, ability and ideals that serve leaders when the hour comes. Take heed—heed!"

The white head of the old man dropped forward upon the breast of his heavy and flowing mantle. The last soft glow of an evening's tired sun spread gently over the delicate and sensitive features of the ancient sage. All was quiet and still. And then, as if starting from a dream, I broke the silence.

"Father it is very strange and I do not understand."

"Yes, my son, very strange—strange. But you and your fellows will see. You will see."

"But father," I asked, "in all your mysterious panorama is there not one dark picture for some poor unfortunates?"

"Yes, lad, there is. There is one dark spot. It is reserved for those people who like class prophecies."

remaining 14.53 per cent.

CHAPEL HILL, North Carolina, September 21, 1927—to this Village on that date 845 freshmen, from the farms and cities of this state and nation, from the preparatory and the high schools, came to enter the University for the first time. The class of 1931 was larger than any class before or since by 126 members.

North Carolina sent 85.47 per cent of the group here, while the other states and foreign countries made up the

The College of Liberal Arts attracted the largest group, 260 in numbers; the School of Education enrolled 136; the School of Commerce, 213; the School of Applied Science, 145; the School of Engineering, 91.

Doctor Lawson, director of the gymnasium, together with his assistants, gave the class a thorough physical examination, and found that they were a healthy lot. Freshman football attracted 82 of the group, and cross country claimed 52. Thus there were 134 who did not have to take gym class during their first quarter here.

During the four years the class of 1931 has distinguished itself in extra-curricular activities and in scholarship. 32 won the distinction of making Phi Beta Kappa in their junior year. The N. C. has been awarded to 54 members of the class.

The publications and other activities have attracted many. It is interesting to note that for the past three years, the president of the Publications Union Board has been a member of this year's graduating class.

Golden Fleece, the most coveted honor on the campus, bestowed membership upon 6 of the class in the junior year.

The four years of achievement will be climaxed June 9, when the Governor of North Carolina will award approximately 350 members of the senior class, their diplomas and their Bibles.

The Quadrennial Institute on Human Relations

IN the spring of 1927 there occurred the first Institute on Human Relations at the University. Its program emphasized three major areas of contemporary Social Problems, namely, International Relations, Industrial Relations, and Interracial Relations. Two days of consideration and through Friday March 25th. Specialists in these three fields were brought to the campus to lead the program through platform addresses and classroom seminars. During the week there were twenty public mass meetings, and sixty-one classroom seminars. The total attendance upon the eighty-one meetings was approximately 21,000, mostly students and faculty of the University, as very little effort was made to get outside attendance. Seventeen leaders and speaker participated in the program. Other than platform meetings and classroom seminars a very important third feature of the week's program was an Exhibit of books, literature, posters, flags, charts, bibliography, etc., constituting a wide variety of materials bearing on the subjects under consideration. The 1927 Institute was sponsored by the Departments of History and Government, Social Sciences, Economics and Commerce, and the Y. M. C. A., with responsibility for the program lodged in a Committee representative of these four departments.

In the mind of the first group which met in 1926 to consider plans for an Institute on Human Relations the dominant idea was that it should occur quadrennially as the all-campus effort at a thorough awakening of Social Consciousness on the campus, and in the state, once in each student generation. Therefore, the second Quadrennial Institute on Human Relations was set up and took place the week of May 3rd through 9th, 1931. The second Institute was conducted on the same general range of subject matter, but on a larger scale than in 1927.

The University will ever be indebted to the Class of '31, for an act of unprecedented generosity which made it possible for the campus to hold this Second Institute in proper quadrennial rhythm. Due to the inability of the Committee to secure necessary funds for the program, in these times of economic depression, the vote to postpone till another year was about to carry when the Class of '31 appropriated out of its memorial gift funds the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) to complete the necessary budget for the 1931 Institute. The Committee wishes to use this and every other visible means of memorializing this act of the Class of '31, by which they have established a spiritual memorial to the enrichment of present and future campus life.

The Institute Committee in 1927 was composed of nine students and nine faculty; the present Committee, of eleven students and eleven faculty members.

About 1900, a group of students and faculty-members seriously discussing the need for a student center on the campus. Inasmuch as the Young Men's Christian Association was the pioneering organization in providing activity buildings particularly on the campus of State schools, the thoughts of this group turned immediately to the idea of a Y. M. C. A. Building. A year later the idea crystalized into a definitely organized campaign for building funds. At the opening of the campaign, Dr. Francis P. Venable, then President of the University, secured from a friend an initial gift of $10,000; and the student, faculty, and alumni campaign raised an equal sum, for the purpose of erecting a Y. M. C. A. building in the center of the campus. In 1904 the above structure was erected; and until this day has been the hub around which campus activities have revolved, for it has been the common meeting place of them all.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

AS far back as 1876 we find records of the student body at the University organizing an Athletic Association and taxing themselves to provide equipment and trainers. The sequel to that action was the decision on the part of the students themselves to include with the matriculation fees a charge upon each student for the further expansion of an athletic program. The students for a large number of years perpetuated the Athletic Association through their own efforts, with no help from the University or faculty.

During its infancy the Athletic Association sponsored baseball and occasional track meets. There were no intercollegiate contests of any kind. As the student body grew larger, the athletic program expanded. Throughout the period of growth the students played a leading role. Student sentiment has been a large factor in the rapid progress which athletics has made at the University. In 1926, when a committee was appointed to make recommendations for the control of athletics, recognition was given to the part students had played by giving them equal representation with the faculty and alumni on the proposed Athletic Council.

The Athletic Council has control over all matters pertaining to athletics at the University. Its membership is composed of three faculty members appointed by the President; three alumni members elected by the alumni; three student members—the President of the General Athletic Association, the President of the Student Body, and a delegate elected from the Monogram Club; the Graduate Manager of Athletics; and the Director of Athletics.

The athletic policy of the present Athletic Council is to provide such a broad athletic program that every student in the University will find some sport which commands his interest. In an effort to carry out this policy the Athletic Association maintains varsity and freshman schedules in football, basketball, baseball, track, boxing, wrestling, cross-country, tennis, and golf. The Athletic Association also maintains one of the largest coaching staffs in the South to assure individual attention to every student trying out for the various squads. In addition, there is a Department of Intramural Athletics which sponsors a diversified athletic program for all students who do not have the time or ability for varsity and freshman competition. The goal is active participation by every student in some form of athletics.

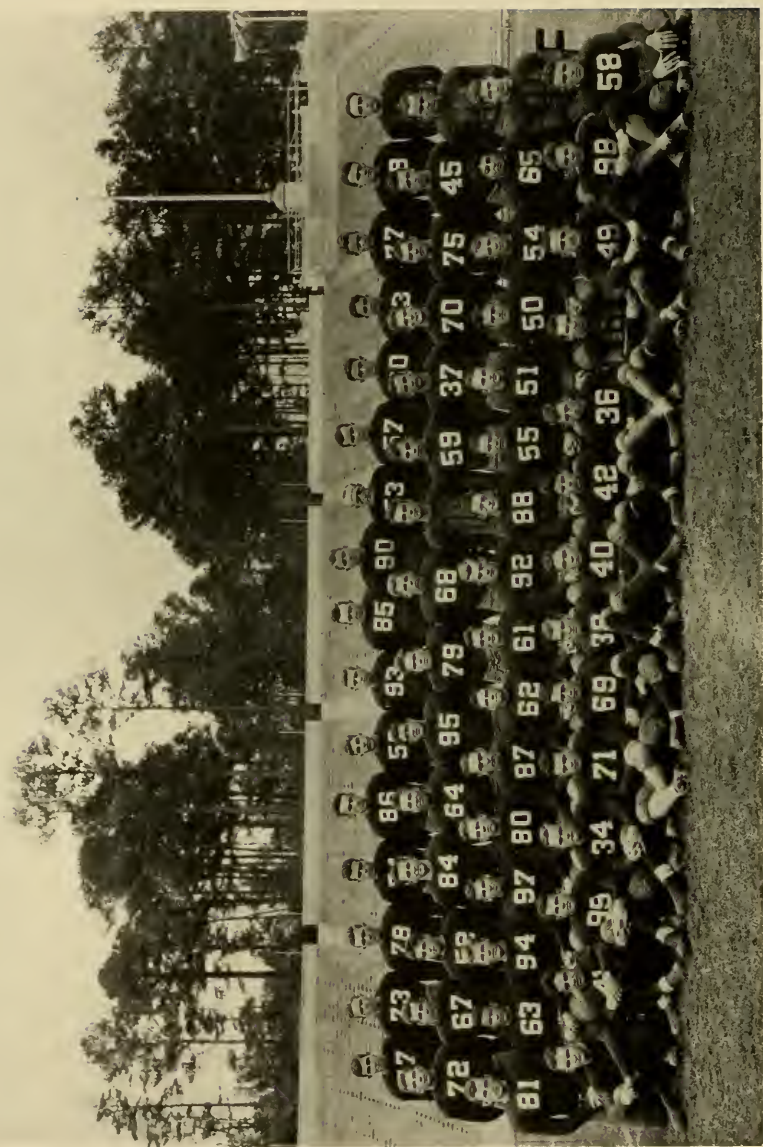

To one man, Mr. Charles T. Woollen, goes the major portion of credit for the rapid advancement towards this goal. Mr. Woollen became Graduate Manager of Athletics in 1913 and has served in this capacity since that date. When he came into office, the Athletic Association was barely able to support four intercollegiate sports. Under Mr. Woollen's guidance the Athletic Association has added five sports to its intercollegiate schedules, has increased its physical plant to the point where it compares favorably with any in the South, and has established itself on a firm financial basis.

The preeminence that the University enjoys in a well-rounded athletic program, and the splendid athletic plant which the University maintains, is a monument to Mr. Woollen's able and devoted service as Graduate Manager of Athletics.

CAPTAIN NASH

CAPTAIN NASH
Halfback

Culminating with the captaincy of this year's team, the football career of Strud Nash has been an ideal one. A star of a fine set of backs, he was a mainstay of his Freshman team, was selected for All-State as early as his Sophomore year, and was later honorably mentioned for All-Southern.

As captain this of a powerful but erratic team, Strud had his hands full. Nevertheless he played his usual brilliant game, especially in the unparalleled 41-0 victory over Virginia, and remains as a shining light in Carolina football history.

THE SEASON

CHAMPIONSHIP football teams are built around good lines, lines that have had experience. In reviewing the successes of the 1930 Carolina gridiron team this fact is clearly distinguishable. With a bevy of stellar backs and the mere remnants of the great line of the year before, prospects were dark at the outset of the season. The Tar Heels hung up a record of five victories, three defeats, and two ties. Wake Forest, V. P. I., Maryland, N. C. State, and Virginia all fell before the onslaught of the Tar Heel forces, while Georgia, Tennessee, and Davidson turned the table for victory. The latter two defeats were only by a two and one point margin respectively. Duke and Georgia Tech battles Carolina to ties, the Devils to a scoreless count, and the "Ramblin' Wreck" to a 6-6 deadlock.

As the season progressed, the forward wall, composed of a host of rookies and an occasional veteran took on shape and rose near the end of the season to pave the way for a 41-0 slaughter over Virginia.

There were few individual stars, for the 1930 Tar Heels provided no such score-at-random ball carriers as did the memorable "346 point team" of the year before. New strength was tested and raw material trained in a process of constructing great teams for succeeding years.

Anticipating a whitewashing such as that in 1929 when the Tar Heels downed the Deacons 48-0, eight thousand fans sat under a hot September sun and watched Carolina barely eke out a 13-7 victory over the stocky Wake Forest eleven. It was the first game of the season and Carolina's comparatively green line found difficulty in opening up holes through the heavy Wake Forest forward wall.

Toughened by their experience of the preceding Saturday, Carolina's line opened up hole after hole in a staunch V. P. I. line and ball-carriers Branch, Magner, and Nash galloped through for six touchdowns to the Gobbler's three. The final count gave the Blue and White the long end of a 39-21 score.

Resorting to the air for repeated gains, the Tar Heels matched Maryland touchdown for touchdown in a thriller at Kenan stadium and Johnny Branch raced through the whole Maryland team for ninety-six yards and a touchdown in the final quarter to give Carolina the edge, 28-21. It was the longest punt return in the country on record this year.

Elusive off-tackle plays and tricky reverses, aided and abetted chiefly by "Jack the Ripper" Roberts, spelled defeat for the Tar Heel grid legions as Georgia took a one-sided contest, 26-0. Carolina's line looked good in the first half, but ceaseless battering in the third quarter told, and the Georgians had everything their way from then on.

A blocked kick, resulting in a safety, and a trick pass for a touchdown was all that separated Carolina from a well earned victory over Tennessee. The Vols handed the Tar Heels their second drubbing of the year by 9-7 count, but the score fails to hint how the Blue and White carried the ball within the shadow of the Tennesseans' goal on five occasions.

Pap Hart for Georgia Tech and Rip Slusser for Carolina each gained more than seventy yards, but neither could bunch his gains at the opportune moment to break a 6-6 tie as the "Ramblin' Wreck" and the Tar Heels battled on each other's goal lines for four quarters of hectic football. Though Tech went down to overwhelming defeat as the season neared its close, experts stated that the White and Gold had as fine a team on the field as the memorable 1928 eleven which achieved national fame.

Captain Strud Nash came into his own and crashed through State College's line nineteen times for seventy-six yards and received three passes for seventy yards more as the Tar Heels downed the Wolfpack by a 13-6 count. The battle, listless at times, was pepped up in the second quarter when Sam Gunneau put the game in danger by intercepting Magner's pass and racing seventy-six yards for a touchdown.

Beaten and broken in the first quarter by a hard driving Carolina line, the fighting Wildcats of Davidson rose to mighty heights and provided the sensation of the season by downing the Tar Heels 7-6. Failure to make the point after touchdown was responsible for the defeat, but despite the slight numerical margin, the Wildcats decisively outplayed the Carolinians. Tom Brock, Davidson's punting guard, kept the pigskin well out of reach of Carolina's safety man, Johnny Branch, whose long punt returns were the bugbear of every 1930 foe.

A Tar Heel team of old, smacking of the famous "346 point team" of 1929 ran rampant over the best that Virginia had to offer in the annual Turkey Day classic in Charlottesville, and when the smoke cleared away Carolina had a 41-0 victory in the bag. It was the worst drubbing ever handed a Virginia team by Carolina in thirty-five years of gridiron relations between the two. Magner and Nash contributed to the Tar Heels scoring, while the line ruggedly resisted every effort of the Cavaliers.

With the stage set appropriately by the spirited Tar Heel victory over Virginia, and a State Title at stake, Duke and Carolina locked horns in the memorable battle of "Lake Kenan." Drenched by two days of rain, Kenan stadium was a sea of mud as the Blue Devils and the Tar Heels trotted upon the field to do battle. In a short time the mud made players indistinguishable and while spectators sought protection from the driving rain under coverings of every description, the two ancient rivals battled to a spiritless 0-0 tie. Both teams fumbled frequently, the ball passing mid-field on but several occasions. The tie clinched the state title for the Devils and gave them fourth place in conference ranking.

THE FRESHMAN SEASON

Freshman football, dubbed the "Gridiron laboratory," experienced only a fair season in record of games won and lost, but its purpose of developing future varsity material was fulfilled to the utmost. Four out of five games played were dropped, three by close scores, but several dozen stellar linemen and backfield aces received their first tutelage and will doubtless see service with the varsity next year.

Maryland was the first to taste the fruits of victory from the Yearlings, downing them 13-12. On the one long trip of the season, Princeton's Tiger Clubs shut out the Tar Babies, 20-0, and in the second home engagement N. C. State College Frosh turned back the first year men by 12-7. Duke's Blue Imps swelled the lists of defeat to four, gaining a 14-7 victory, while Virginia bowed in the final contest by 45-0. The latter game saw the Tar Babies functioning as a well organized machine, blocking and tackling to perfection.

The Season

AN impenetrable defense coupled with a lightening offense gave the Tar Heel cagers their first win of the season in intercollegiate competition, bowling over the Guilford Quakers by a 33-13 score. Randolph-Macon proved to be an easy foe in the second game of the year, falling by a 34-13 score as the Carolina forwards and center got the shooting range. Davidson, encountered in Charlotte, proved to be too stern a foe as the Tar Heels were forced to take the short end of a 29-28 score. Furman was the next Tar Heel victim, dropping a close contest, featured by adept freezing of the ball, by a score of 23-16. A 38-8 win over South Carolina brought the hectic "suicide period" to a close with a net of five victories and one defeat. Raleigh "Y" fell before the Tar Heel onslaught in a pre-season warm up.

After a brief respite, the Deacons of Wake Forest invaded the Tin Can and were sent home with a stinging 30-13 drubbing. Risking a spotless conference record at the mercies of V. P. I., the White Phantoms received their first S. I. C. setback of the year by the narrow margin of three points. The Gobblers amassed a sizable lead and proceeded to freeze the ball, permitting the Carolinians a few scattered shots; the final count stood 31-28.

N. C. State was the next prey for the Phantoms as the latter loped off the Techmen by a 22-18 score. In their first meet of the season, Duke and Carolina tangled in Durham and Devils came out with a 30-18 victory after gaining a 11-3 lead which was never topped. Settling a score but a few weeks old, the Red Terrors of N. C. State gave the Tar Heels a drubbing in Raleigh to the tune of 23-20. A northern invasion with games with V. P. I., V. M. I., Virginia, Washington and Lee, and Maryland netted the Tar Heels three victories and two defeats, W. and L. and Maryland eking out close wins. In a return contest with Davidson, Goodson, Wildcat captain cut loose in the last half to score five difficult field goals, just enough to give his quintet a 30-28 win over Carolina. Termed as an "epic contest" the return Duke-Carolina engagement in the Tin Can drew fans from all corners of the state. It proved to be the same old story and the White Phantoms were snowed under to the tune of 34 to 23, clearing the way for Duke to a state title. Holding a 24-14 margin at the half, Coach Ashmore's men reversed their form of the week before and administered Wake Forest a severe drubbing, 45-25. Captain Marpet and the elongated center, Sandy Dameron again topped the scoring lists with a dozen points each. V. M. I.'s Flying Cadet basketekers journeyed southward and were vanquished by the ever-changeable Tar Heel quint by a score of 30-21, while Sewanee, final foe of the regular season tasted bitter defeat as they were snowed under an avalanche of baskets, 37-28.

The season over, the White Phantoms concentrated on the conference tourney at Atlanta. Conceded little chance to go far in the tournament, the Tar Heels drew attention at the outset by eliminating Vanderbilt, 23-21. Away to an early lead by virtue of a 13-1 walk-away in the opening quarter, the Tar Heels apparently had their second tourney encounter with Maryland on ice, but a cog slipped in the Carolina machine and the ultimate winners of the conference title piled up the points in the final minutes to emerge victorious, 19-17. With but a minute to go, the Old Liners' great guard, Berger, dribbled through the Tar Heel defense for a crisp shot that proved the margin of victory, and the elimination of Carolina from further competition.

THE SEASON

With a record of eleven victories and three defeats, Carolina's Tar Baby basketeers wound up their season by administering a 21-20 beating to Wake Forest's Baby Deacon quintet and annexing the state freshman title. A foul throw sunk in the last split second of play by Fisher gave the Yearlings their margin of victory. Scoring victories over the best first year college teams that the south has to offer, the Tar Babies might well lay claim to sectional honors. The playing of Weather, Fisher, and McCachern was especially commendable, and around these three the frosh quintet was built. Accompanying the varsity on a northern trip, the Tar Babies turned in a spotless record with wins over Woodberry Forest, V. M. J. freshmen, and Augusta Military Academy.

THE SEASON

LED by Captain Noah Goodridge, the Tar Heel boxers completed another successful season, winning the State title, gaining third in the Southern Conference tournament, and losing only one dual meet, that to Penn State 4½-2½. Goodridge, undefeated in nine bouts won the Conference lightweight title while Warren, heavyweight, was undefeated in seven bouts before losing in the Conference finals.

The season opened January 16, with a 5-2 win over South Carolina. Levinson, Goodridge, Jackson, and Davis won decisions and the heavyweight was forfeited to Warren. Goodridge, Warren, Davis, Levinson, Holderness, and Wilson turned in two victories each as V. M. I. and V. P. I. went down 6-1 on successive Saturdays.

On February 7 Warren's victory over Bryant enabled Carolina to defeat Virginia 4-3 before approximately 4,000 people. Davis and Levinson scored knockouts, and Captain Goodridge a decision to account for the other Carolina points.

Duke was defeated February 17 to clinch the State title with Warren again scoring the deciding point. Goodridge, Landis, and Levinson won decisions for Carolina's other points.

The Tar Heels closed their dual meet season the following Saturday, losing to Penn State. Goodridge won a decision from McAndrews and Warren knocked out Skoberne. Parsons, middleweight, fought a draw with Babb. Virginia won the Conference tournament with Tulane second and Carolina third. Every Carolina fighter, except Young, won at least one bout, with Goodridge and Warren going to the finals.

Of the six men awarded monograms, four will be lost by graduation. Goodridge, Warren, Davis, and Holderness completed their careers while Landis and Levinson will be juniors next winter.

THE FRESHMAN SEASON

The freshmen went through their six-meet schedule unbeaten, winning the State and Southern championships. Brown and Raymer won all six of their bouts. Brown with six knockouts and Raymer with three knockouts and three decisions. Numerals were awarded to Cliff Glover, Jimmie Williams, Furches Raymer, Bruce Langdon, William Allsbrook, Paul Hudson, John Nicholson, Vernon Guthrie, James Wadsworth, Peyton Brown, and Lacey Pace.

THE 1930 SEASON

LAST year the Flying Tar Heels again swept the South, capturing the Dixie title by a large margin, the state title, and sweeping all but one of the dual meets.

Eleven lettermen formed the nucleus of Coaches Fetzer and Ranson's squad, and these were supported by several star freshmen. The veterans were: Ken Gay, sprinter, Johnny Stafford and Bill Perry, hurdles, Captain Dave Nims and Dick Garrett, quarter milers, Minor Barkley and Cliff Baucom, distance men, Dave Neiman, George Bagby, Pot Adkins, and Sandy Dameron, field events. Among the new men were: Ray Ruble, Charlie Farmer, Rip Slusser, Brodie Arnold, and Theoren Brown.

After winning an unofficial meet from State, Carolina took on the highly touted Georgia Tech team and won an overwhelming 104-27 victory, getting thirteen out of fifteen first places. Farmer and Barkley of Carolina and Ed Hamm and Doug Graydon of Georgia Tech featured.

Duke, next on the schedule, also fell an easy victim to the South's best team, the score being 96-29.

Then came the thrill of the year—the meet with Penn State, one of the leading cinder teams in the country. In this battle of champions, Carolina kept her eight year old clean slate for dual meets unmarred, the Nittany Lions falling 70½-55½.

V. P. I. was defeated by an 88-38 score.

In one of the most important meets of the season, Carolina trounced Washington and Lee, southern indoor champions, 78½-47½. It was a record-breaking day. Charlie Farmer continued his sensational work in the sprints, running the century in 9.8 and the 220 in 21.2, both marks tying the Southern records.

A number of other feature performances were turned in. Brodie Arnold, Tar Heel vaulter, moved his own University record to thirteen feet.

Dave Neiman also increased his University record in the broad jump with a leap of 22 feet 5¾ inches. In a great finish Ken Gay bettered the State record in the quarter mile, running the distance in 50.6.

After having won the state championship, Carolina suffered her first defeat in a dual meet in eight years at the hands of Princeton, the score being 80⅔-45⅓.

The climax to one of the most successful seasons ever enjoyed by a Carolina track team was the annexation of the Dixie title at Birmingham, Ma. The Tar Heels rolled up 40½ points, while Georgia was second with 28½ and Mississippi Aggies were third with 25⅓ points.

In total points for the season, Charlie Farmer, sophomore, led with 100 points. Another sophomore, Theoren Brown was second with 85 markers. Minor Barkley, senior, was third with sixty-five.

Twenty-six letters were awarded to the following: Capt. Dave Nims, F. A. Adkins, B. D. Arnold, G. L. Bagby, Minor Barkley, C. R. Baucom, T. R. Brown, E. P. Dameron, W. H. Dry, C. M. Farmer, H. R. Southern Intercollegiate Conference Indoor Meet

IN two years of existence the Indoor Meet has become one of the biggest events on the athletic calendar. The 1931 games were particularly successful, being attended by a crowd of three thousand which packed the Tin Can.

The Tar Heels swept through to take the indoor championship by a wide margin, rolling up 37.2 points to their nearest rival's 18.7. First places were won by George Bagby, high jump; Ray Ruble, pole vault; Clarence Jensen, mile; Lionel Weil, 440 dash; and the relay team, composed of Jensen, Marland, Weil, and Drane.

Carolina's victory was somewhat clouded by a leg injury suffered by Charlie Farmer, last year's sprint champion, which kept him out of most of the outdoor season.

The 1930 Season

ALTHOUGH the record of twelve lost for thirteen won is not impressive, there were several high lights to last year's baseball campaign. For one, the Tar Heels again swept the Virginia series, beating the Cavaliers by the scores of 8-5, and 12-1. In addition the Tar Heel nine rated second to Duke in the Big Five race.

As has been the trouble in past years, the main handicap to the team was the dearth of pitchers, Coach Ashmore being forced to build his mound staff around three sophomores, Cecil Longest, Paul Edwards, and J. D. Shields. There was plenty of power in the Tar Heel bats but they were helpless without any support from the hurlers.

The season opened rather auspiciously with an 18-7 win over the Springfield, Mass. College. In this game Coach Ashmore used twenty-one men. The batters, led by Captain Jimmy Maus and Nap Lufty, fell on the northern hurler for fifteen runs in the first three innings.

Carolina continued her winning ways, this time beating Cornell 3-2 in a pitcher's battle. Frank Fleming bested the Cornell ace, Boies, allowing six scattered bingles. Burgess Whitehead, Frank Fleming and Phil Jackson featured the play.

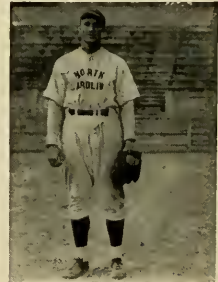

In the second game of the Cornell series, the Tar Heels suffered their initial defeat, losing a free hitting game 10-8. Auburn Wright, after his second victory, pitched good ball, but five errors on the part of his mates lost the ball game. La France, the visiting first baseman led the attack with four hits, including three doubles. The batting of Wright and Whitehead were the bright lights in the Carolina defeat.

The Tar Heels then went down to Athens, Ga., for a two game series with the Bulldogs. Georgia captured the opener, 9-1, Fleming, Hinton and Longest being hit hard. The tables were turned in the second game, Carolina coming out on the long end of a 6-4 game, which was called in the sixth on account of rain. Wright hurled for the victors.

Defending her Tri-State title in the opening league game with Maryland, the Tar Heels again emerged victorious, 7-2. Frank Fleming started on the mound and pitched steady ball, allowing the Old Liners one run and three hits in the seven innings that he hurled. Shields, who relieved Fleming, allowed the other run, yielding three hits. Nap Lufty was the big star in the victory. Nap fielded like a major leaguer and had four hits at bat, a single, double, triple, and home run.

Opening a six-day northern trip against the Terrapins at College Park, the Tar Heels collapsed, being snowed under by Maryland, 14-1. This game started the Tar Heels off on one of the most disastrous trips in years, losing five out of six Conference games. The only redeeming feature of the trip was an 8-5 victory over the Cavaliers. The pitchers fell down, the batter couldn't hit; in general the Tar Heels played the worst ball of the season.

Georgia returned the Tar Heel visit, coming to Chapel Hill for a two game series. As was the case in the early series, each team won a game, the Crackers capturing the first, 7-0, and losing the final, 7-3.

In the first encounter Chandler, football ace for the visitors, blanked the Tar Heels with only three hits, while his mates were pounding Park, Shields, and Edwards, for eleven hits, including two triples, and a double.

Longest pitched hitless ball for seven innings, easing down in the final two innings to breeze through with a 7-3 win. The all around play of Carolina's big three, Whitehead, Maus, and Lufty featured.

V. P. I. repeated her earlier victory, this time walking off with a 9-4 score. As has been the case in most of the losing games, the pitcher, Wright, hurled good ball but received no support at the plate or in the field.

Duke, state champions, took the season's two games, each by large scores. There was no doubting the supremacy of the Blue Devils, who had one of the best collegiate clubs in the nation. The score of the first game was 14-5, and the second, 15-2. Lefty Jenkins, Duke Southpaw, won his sixth game over the Tar Heels in three years.

The second game of the Virginia series was rained out, but the Tar Heels took the Greensboro classic by the large score, 12-1, thus giving the Tar Heels a clean sweep for the season. Fleming and Maus was the winning battery.

In a game on which depended second place in the state race, the Tar Heels defeated State, 5-3 at Emerson Field. This game rolled down the curtain on the 1930 season.

Burgess Whitehead was elected captain for 1931 after the State game, but will be ineligible to play college ball as he signed a professional contract, and "Piggy" Potter was elected to replace Whitehead.

THE SEASON

For the first time in five years the Carolina Cross Country team failed to win the Southern Conference championship; but the team turned in victories in both of its dual meets, took the State title, and placed fourth in the Conference run. Captain Cliff Baucom and Clarence Jensen led the team to victories against V. P. I. and Duke, while Jensen was the first Tar Heel to cross the finish line in the Conference run. Baucom ran most of this race with a foot injury, but placed twenty-first. With the exception of Baucom, a senior, all the monogram winners were sophomores. Clarence Jensen was elected captain of the 1931 team. Monograms were awarded to Captain Baucom, Jensen, Cordle, Farris, Hubbard, Pratt, and Jones.

THE SEASON

Carolina's wrestling team, with Stallings, Conklin, Tsumas, and Cowper doing outstanding work, won the State title and were unbeaten in the South. Conklin won all six of his bouts while Tsumas lost only to Navy. Navy was the only team to win over the Tar Heels, and every team in the state was defeated by an overwhelming margin. Every regular except Usher won state championships.

Four letter men, Harry Tsumas, Don Conklin, Percy Idol, and Pete Usher, will return next year with Tsumas as captain. Captain Fred Stallings, Mayne Albright, Fred Ferguson, Marion Cowper, and Ken Hampton closed their careers by carrying Carolina through one of its most successful wrestling seasons.

Monograms were awarded to Captain Stallings, Tsumas, Albright, Usher, Conklin, Cowper, Ferguson, Idol, and Hampton.

[As this book goes to press, it is generally conceded that the University's 1931 tennis team has established just claim to the title of National Intercollegiate Champions. The season shows an unmarred record of victories over the strongest teams in the South and East.—Ed. Note.]

THE 1930 SEASON

Coach Kenfield's 1930 tennis team swept through its eleven-match schedule with ten wins and one tie to win the State championship and claim Southern honors. Tulane tied the Tar Heels 3-3 in the final match of the season, but Carolina won the remaining meets easily, winning over some of the most prominent teams in the South.

Carolina won the State championship with Hinkey Hendlin winning the singles title and pairing with Phil Liskin to take the doubles crown. Four Carolina men fought it out in the quarter-finals. Liskin and Hendlin went to the finals of the Southern tournament but were eliminated. Captain Bill Merritt was the only man lost by graduation.

Monograms were awarded to Captain Merritt, Graham, Baggs, Hendlin, Brown, Liskin, and Palmore.

Golf was added to the list of minor sports at Carolina during the 1930 season and the team responded by winning seven of its nine dual matches, taking the State championship for the third straight year, and placing fourth in the Southern Intercollegiate tournament. Captain Charley Chatham led the team in its seven victories, and received able support from the remaining members of the squad. Duke and Georgia Tech defeated the Tar Heels by close scores for the only losses of the year, while decisive victories were turned in against Wake Forest, Duke, N. C. State, Davidson, Virginia, William and Mary, and Vanderbilt.

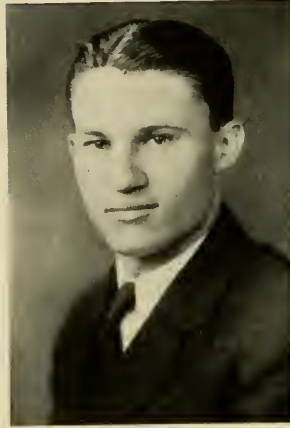

Monograms were awarded to Captain Chatham, Willis, Stewart, Goodes, and J. Adams.

Intramural Athletics

THE purpose of Intramural athletics is to provide an athletic program for those students who have neither the time nor ability to compete on varsity or freshman squads. The Intramural Department provides a diversified athletic program, in order to have a wider appeal to the student body. Additional events have continually been added, until at the present time competitive leagues exist in almost every branch of sport. The enthusiasm of the student body for participation in the intramural program has grown until practically every student now competes in at least one of the sports conducted by this department.

Director Shepard, assisted by "Mac" Gray and Wallace Shelton, have worked with the purpose of providing some form of sport for all members of the student body at all times during the year, and their efforts have resulted in the most successful year that the department has ever had.

There is something distinctive about the culture that is Carolina's. This atmosphere of enlightenment and refinement is the product of one hundred and thirty-six years' progress, material and spiritual, which development has seen constant enrichment of life in Chapel Hill.

Certain old landmarks have stood for decades as symbols of the University's finer feelings. Exemplary of these is Smith Hall, located within a stone's throw of the Old Well. This building was erected in 1849, and financed by funds accruing from a land grant in Tennessee left the University by Benjamin Smith shortly before the turn of the eighteenth century. Benjamin Smith was one of the country's earliest large educational benefactors, and a constant debt of gratitude is paid him in the memory of Carolina men.

Smith Hall is a practically perfect example of Roman variations on the Greek temple. Pleasing proportions, majestic columns, cultured dignity—these elements enter to make the edifice an object of architectural appreciation. Just as the Egyptians and the Greeks revealed their objects of admiration in their architecture by moulding the effects of the lotus leaf and the canthus leaf into their capitals, just so has the designer of Smith Hall portrayed our most highly valued land yields in the capitals of the columns here using the forms of corn and wheat. It is generally understood that this is the only local adaptation of the Corinthian column in modern times.

The architect for the building was A. J. Davis, of New York City; the builder, Captain John Berry, "a very substantial citizen of Orange County."

Smith Hall has served a variety of uses. Built as an assembly hall for alumni, it was later converted into a dance hall, then a gymnasium, then a library, then a law building, and finally into a theatre, in which form it now adds so materially to the effectiveness of the nationally-known Carolina Play-makers.

Smith Hall symbolizes in itself beauty that can well become the objective of private funds in 1931 in beautifying and enriching the University, physically and in every other respect.—THE EDITOR.
