Vol. 1, No. 1 of the Musical and Society Journal, published by D. C. Ashmead at Reed City is at hand. It is printed on tinted paper, is a six column folio, and presents a tasty appearance.

On Friday last several of our boys went to Cornua to witness a game of base ball between the League Club, of Detroit and Cornua Club. The game resulted 30 to 0 in favor of the visiting club.

One of the greatest curiosities we have ever seen is in the form of a small house made entirely with a jack-knife by Mr. Torrence living two miles west of this village. It will be exhibited on Friday at Cotchers Hall.

The excitement over the small-pox question is at white heat at the present time in our neighboring city, Flint. We are somewhat astonished that it has been allowed to spread with such fearful rapidity, and expose so many. But we understand that the authorities have quarantined the city now in localities where this disease is raging the greatest and perhaps the worst is over.

The Genesee County Temperance Alliance which held a meeting at Fenton Hall in the city of Flint on the 1st inst, elected the following officers: President A. N. Davis of Grand Blanc, Secretary, J. J. Carter, Flint; Treasurer Zach Chase, Flint. A vice-president from each township was appointed.

The ladies society of the Baptist Church take pleasure in thanking the public for their patronage at their dinner on the fourth of July, and at their Ice Cream refreshments on Saturday, and would announce that during the entire season on Saturday afternoon and evening at Cotcher's hall they will furnish something that will please the taste or give the toothache to all that will call. The object is to build a new Meeting house. The public are invited to call and taste.

We hear that Mr. J. B. Rutledge made a little money last night out of the dance that he gave in his bowery.

The tent meetings are being carried on now every evening and a large number of people turn out to hear Elder Daniels. He has some very interesting subjects and we would advise all who can, to hear him.

The 4th passed off very nicely and all seemed to enjoy themselves. The farmers are very busy with their hay and by the middle of next week some will have to commence cutting their wheat. We see Mr. Judd did not get his house finished before the 4th as he expected.

Miss Minnie Althouse of Flint is in town for a few days, the guest of Mr. & Mrs. E. P. Embury.

We hear that one of Mrs. J. Judd's Daughters of Flint is spending a few days with her mother. Got scared out by the small-pox.

WAR!

The Bombardment Commenced.

DOOMED EGYPT SUFFERS GREATLY FROM THE FIRST DAYS' ACTION.

Loss: British Have Five Killed, and Twenty Seven Wounded. Egyptian Loss Unknown.

The cause of the present trouble in Egypt had its origin during the reign of Said Pasha, from 1854 to 1869, who commenced the construction of the long contemplated Suez Canal.

Large sums of money were spent in various ways and the country plunged into debt. After a reign of nine years he was succeeded by Ismail Pasha, who followed the example of his predecessor by expending vast amounts for the completion of the canal; and other expenses brought the country to the very verge of bankruptcy.

BANKRUPTCY.

In order to save his country, the Khedive had to dispose of his controlling number of shares of the canal in England. This act together with the immense sums loaned of France put Egypt completely in the power of these two countries, a position of which she never has, and probably never will be able to free herself.

"THE IMMEDIATE CAUSE" began about two months ago by the army not receiving their pay, which created severe difficulties among the authorities of that country.

The official acts of the nations interested, so exasperated the people until June 11th it led to open riot in which 200 Europeans were killed. This aroused the in England, and immediately the British vessels of war commenced to assemble in the ports of Alexandria to defend her claims, and the Egyptians began at once to erect earth-works to defend herself against any attack that might be made.

MONDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

Admiral Seymour having discovered yesterday that the Egyptians were mounting heavy guns on Marabout Island, on the western side of the entrance to Alexandria harbor, issued a proclamation demanding the surrender of the works within 12 hours, and notifying the authorities that if they failed to comply he should open fire at the expiration of 24 hours. It is said an offer was made to the khedive to go aboard the feet, but it was declined.

All the Europeans are leaving the country that can possibly do so, abandoning their goods and possessions.

THE BOMBARDMENT OPENS.

The British bombardment of Alexandria was opened at 7 o'clock this morning. The ironclads Sultan and Superb led off. The Egyptian batteries were ready, and replied instantly. The shots from the forts at first fell considerably short of the ships of the fleet. It took a quarter of an hour, notwithstanding all the preparations, for the guns to get settled reliably down to their work of destruction. At 8:15 a. m. the

TUESDAY'S ACTION.

The cannonading from the fleet after it had got fairly under way was simply one of the most perfect specimens of naval warfare witnessed in modern times. The cannonade continued all day with very destructive effects on the Egyptian works, tearing down their embankment and silencing their guns. The return fire did but very little damage to the British ships.

STRAYED—A small light red cow, with white in the face, around the upper and across the back, and had nice horns from the farm of Virgil Bedell, 34 miles south of Hamilton station. Any one giving information at this office, or by letter to Mr. Bedell will be suitably rewarded.

RAIL-ROAD INTERESTS!

Surveying The Route.

About noon on Saturday last, word reached us, that engineer Holmes, and Surveyor Pettee, with a gang of ten men were making their way toward our pleasant village, surveying the route for the new railroad. Our already busy streets commenced to teem with excitement upon this question, and men began to gather in groups to ascertain if the statement was correct. They were assured of this fact a little later by the farmers from the north part of this township, and Montrose, who came to town to give full details of the proposed line and the different farms it would probably pass through, if it came on the west side of the river.

About six o'clock the company arrived at the Baptist church on the west side of the river, having completed the survey up to that point.

They rested their work at this point until Monday morning and repaired to the Laurel House to remain over the Sabbath, and where they were questioned by the citizens as to the inferior and superior qualities of the proposed line.

In reply to the question concerning the amount of low ground they would have to pass through, engineer Holmes said that they had been troubled only one day thus far, by water on the line of survey.

On Monday morning the line was resumed again at the church and then proceeded in a south-eastward direction about two miles, to a point on a line running directly north and south from Flushing to Hamilton.

They then returned northward crossing the river east of the village, and proceeding in a northern direction on their way back to Saginaw; thereby surveying a line on both sides of the river.

After this line is completed the two committees will confer with each other as to which line they will select for the proposed railroad, and the arrangements for the work of construction will then undoubtedly be commenced.

The southern terminus of this road as yet is not determined out will probably intersect the Chicago and Grand Trunk R. R. somewhere near Hamilton.

Mary's Lamb on a New Principle.

Mollie had a little ram as black as a rubber shoe, and every where that Mollie went he emigrated too.

He went with her to church one day—the folks hilarious grew to see him walk demurely into Deacon Allen's pew.

The worthy deacon quickly let his angry passions rise, and gave it an unchristian kick between the sad brown eyes.

This landed rammy in the aisle; the deacon followed fast, and raised his foot against that first kick. Was his back, for Mr. Sheep walked slowly back, about a 'd 13' salt and ere the deacon could retort he stood him on his head.

The congregation then arose and went for that 'ere sheep; several well directed butts just piled them in a heap. Then rushed they straightway to the door with curses loud and loud, while rammy struck the hindmost man and shoved him through the crowd.

The minister had often heard that kindness would subdue the fiercest beast. "Aha!" he said "I'll try that game on you."

And so he kindly, gently called: "Come rammy, rammy, ram; to see the folks abuse you so I grieve and sorry am."

With kind and gentle words he came from that pulpit down, saying: "Rammy, rammy, ram—best sheeple in town."

The ram quite dropped his humble air, and rose from off his feet, and when the person landed he was behind the hindmost seat.

As he shot out the door and closed it with a slam, he named a California town—I think twas "Yuba Dam, T"—hawk-eye.

The Indian's Future.

The question of what is to be the glorious ultimately of the red man in America is one which demands of us, as a people, serious consideration. Will a few fleeting years extirpate and exterminate from the face of the earth a race which has so long filled our fourth readers and our school declamations with crude oratory, exist only as a smoke-stained, bead-trimmed memory? Will the beautiful picture of the brunette Indian maiden at last become nothing but the frontispiece of time honored legend and the trade mark of a fire cut factory? Let us hope that it will not.

We have crossed the wide ocean and wrested from these people their lands and then to add insult to injury, we have taught them the mysteries of our civilization.

With the white man came the doctrine of various atonement and the open back shirt. He brought with him the dictionary and the garden hose, salvation and saleratus. The tale was soon told, and now on the vertebrae of the continent the teleph and the morning papers are crowding the red widower and the pigeon-toed scion of Powhatan into the moaning sea. The restless waves of civilization and soap have crowded old Rise-Up-William Riley and his whole tribe into the black night of forgetfulness and death. Gradually he has picked up his household goods and his wife and upright piano, and stolen toward the couch of dying day. Now he stands upon the rocky battlements that border the new States, and bathed in red sunlight and nothing else in particular, he shakes hands with his approaching doom.

Had he taken more kindly to the bath-tub of the pale face and fraternized more adequately with the crash towel of the European, his oblivion would have been less speedy and the black tom cat night of eternal sleep less formerly.

Silent and unrelenting, unmoved above the broad cemetery of his people, stolidly awaiting forgetfulness and death, we cannot help admiring the brawny brave with the undaunted eye and the buckskin pants with the seat cut out. Nature gave to thee, thou dusky warrior, strength like the eagle, and swiftness in the chase, but in her wisdom denied thee the copper lining that is required to meet and conquer the vintage of a progressive age. The mountain lion may meet thee and yield up his life at thy hands, but the juice of the centipede, that is distilled by the paleface and sold to thee, tangle up thy duodenum and cracks the crown sheet of the digester.

Brave orator of the school book, grim relic of the days of Pocahontas, we watch with tear-dimmed eyes thy closing hours. Adieu, thou Indian mother standing on the steep, precipitous shores of eternity. Behind thee rest the dead heroes of thy race and at thy side the brindle relic of a mighty tribe of Indian dogs fatigued and listless pets his favorite flea. No one can look upon this sad and smoky group unmoved. The fading remnants of a glorious petty larceny mob. Had he adopted the Prince Albert coat and the doctrine of a protective tariff, instead of the plug hat and whiskey sour, his future might have been a resplendent one, and his life less clouded with failure and remorse.

We should learn from this to shun the errors which have basted the glorious future of the red man. Let us profit by his example and eschew the flowing bowl. We should also avoid the exposure of an outdoor life. A constant communion with nature and wet feet shortens life, and clouds the pathway with gloom and catarrh.—(Bill Nye.)

B. TURNER'S COLUMN.

The last act in the Drama which began at Albany N. Y. over one year ago was closed by the execution of Guiteau on Friday, the 30th ultimo. The disgrace and shame will remain a history as a mark never to be effaced on the record patissian strife. But the nation still prospers and the little dot on the Geographical map known as Flushing is becoming more significant and although it may not become the seat of Government it is destined to be the Central point of an intelligent and prosperous population and now that a Rail Road through from Saginaw is almost a certainty it becomes necessary for every citizen to be wide awake. I therefore take this method inform the public generally that I am prepared with ample room and a large stock of all kinds of goods such as Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots & Shoes, Drugs and Medicines Paints Oils and Brushes, Agricultural implements, Lumber wagons, and in fact such a variety and stock of goods as will supply almost every want and I also am prepared to buy at the highest price paid in Flushing; anything that farmers have to sell. Now in order to verify the facts above stated you are invited to bring in your butter and eggs, your cash or your approved credit and the quality, price and variety shall be made satisfactory to the closest buyer. Our 5 and 10 cent counters have been thronged with buyers and all are astonished at the large number of useful articles to be found there, and in order to avail yourselves of the great advantages to be gained in buying so cheaply it will be necessary for you to come often or watch and read my advertisement carefully from week to week so that when a new stock is added to it you may reap the advantage. Hoping to see your pleasant faces and smiling countenances often at my store, I am still your humble servant.

B. TURNER.

MAN'S GRATITUDE.—This is an ungrateful world to say the least. A man will not like a lunatic when he has the razor blades and declares that he knows how to live another day, yet he applies Swayne's Ointment, the intense itching is allayed at once, he gets cured and goes down to the lodge without one word of gratitude. When asked why he looks so cheerful he dodges the question by an indifferent answer. It's just like a man though, isn't it?

The Woman at Home.

Our mothers, wives, and daughters! Home is not all without them. Yet they may die and leave the house silent and sad any day. Husbands and fathers, a word in your ear. The ladies are not always to blame when they are low spirited and "cross". They are sick. Put a bottle of Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" on the shelf and tell them to use it. The color will come back to the cheeks and the laugh to their lips. Go and get it at once down town, or mail One Dollar to the Doctor's address at Rondout N. Y.

AMERICAN LADIES.—The first impression Sara Bernhardt received of the American ladies manifested itself thus:—"Oh! ze ladies, ze are so beautiful, such clear complexion I neverse see before." all of which is due to the universal use Swayne's Ointment for skin diseases, which insures a clear and clean complexion, and a healthy color, this calls to mind the divine precept, "cleanliness is next to Godliness."

Teachers, Alumni, Ladies and Gentlemen. To come before you at such a time and address you on such an occasion is, to me, a new experience. Feeling that I need to avail myself of every opportunity to increase my education and get good, expecting to be benefited more than to benefit, I have accepted this task. I shall try to say something relating to education, feeling that if I take a wide subject I may be able to give a wide address, though at the risk of tiring you.

Webster says: "Education is properly to draw forth and impart, not to draw to the communication of knowledge as the discipline of the intellect, the establishment of the principles and the regulation of the heart."

It does not require very great skill in logic to show that education has a very intimate relation with the well being of individuals, families and nations. Education begins with life; he touches first ministers to it, afterward the sight, and then hearing. These are guides to assist the progress of nature in unfolding our powers.

I agree with Locke when he says: "I think we may assert that in a hundred men there are more than ninety who are what they are, good or bad, useful or pernicious to society from the instructions they have received."

It is on education that depends the great difference observable among men. The least and most imperceptible impressions received in our infancy have consequences very important and of long duration. It is with these first impressions as with a river whose water we see easily turn in different canals in quite opposite courses."

Education is not all from books by any means. A man's learning consists of what he knows, and that consists of what he has learned and remembered. Setting aside all ideas of school, and all processes of education it remains true that he who knows the most has the most education. Books, the repository of grand thoughts and fundamental principles of culture are not to be lightly valued. Except a living man, there is nothing more wonderful than a book. Books are great educational forces in the world. If all books contained grand and pure thoughts, and principles of culture refined and ennobling, how it would change the character of much of the education of our young. Books are educational forces, but he that gets education only from books is not a well-educated man. Henry W. Lord says: "Primarily, it does not matter by what means a man has obtained knowledge: by what books; or whether without any: in what academies, colleges, universities, or not any: if he has obtained useful knowledge, just in proportion to the extent of its value of it, he is well educated or otherwise." Some one has said that "history is the essence of innumerable biographies." It should be the purpose of our schools to so educate our youth that each one may hope to add a biography to history. If any one should claim that education is to be derived alone or mainly from books, let us assure them that books are only scattered along the margins of science, and that nature has yet unwritten truths important for us to find out. She waits to be examined and reexamined, her volume ever opened but never finished. The aim of our schools should be to send out, not fossilized dependents on society, but cultured, independent, and practical workers.

Trudeau, the historian, says: "The first business of education is to assist in supporting ourselves; a man must work, beg or steal." That education then that helps us in the great struggle of life is to be desired.

How slow would the progress of literature, science and art have been had none ever gone beyond books. We have thought that too narrow views of education have been entertained by the multitude. They think that to educate a child is to crowd into his mind a given amount of knowledge, to teach the mechanism of reading and writing, to load the memory with words, to prepare the boy for the trade. We have spoken of the early age at which education begins; a word then to parents, may be out of place. Your influence is great. On you very much depends whether the circumstances surrounding the child shall be operated to his good. You must help him to read, interpret, and use wisely this great volume of nature, society, and experience that open out for him. The young, left to the education of circumstances, left without teaching, guidance, restraint, will, in all probability, grow up ignorant, torpid in intellect, strangers to their own powers, and slaves to their passions. The fact that some children without aid if parents or schools, have struggled into eminence, no more proves such aid to be useless than the fact that some have grown strong under physical exposure which would destroy the majority of the race, would prove the worthlessness of the ordinary precautions which are taken for the security of health; but parents cannot do the whole work of education. The occupation of their time with family, household and business cares makes it impossible, if qualified, to give the intellectual culture demanded. Hence the need of a class of persons who shall devote themselves exclusively to the work of education. We are the people that are able to proclaim not that "the soldier is abroad," but that "the school-teacher is abroad;" he is to be found at every cross road. The low estimate placed on education to which we have referred, makes it possible for those with very meager qualifications, if any, to obtain a situation as teacher of the young. The teacher ought to be from the best minds and characters in a community, and these ought to be secured at any price. An education cannot be inherited, it must be acquired. There ought to be, therefore, the very best assistance provided for securing the right education. Strange that parents should incline to be economical on this, the only treasure to which many of them can ever help their children. They who squander thousands on dress, furniture and amusements, think it hard to pay small sums to the teacher.

There is no office higher than that of a teacher of youth, for there is nothing on earth so precious as the mind, soul, character of the child. No office should be filled more conscientiously; teachers ought to be of the best men and women. Parents should do all they can to induce such to become the guardians and guides of their children. To this good, show and luxury should be sacrificed; they should wear the cheapest clothes, live on the plainest food, if they can, in no other way secure to their family the best instruction.

It is but a few months since the learned world was pained to hear of the death of Prof. Watson, a man that had won applause on both sides of the sea, by his researches and discoveries among "the glittering stars of night" while in the chair of astronomy at our own university. How can I tell you of the heroism and the pride of that mother of his who with her needle was, even during the very hours when in the darkness and silence of the observatory he was laying the foundation of his fame, earning that which enabled him to continue his studies and researches. Do you suppose she regretted the sacrifice she made? Channing says: "No language can express the cruelty or folly of that economy, which, to leave a fortune to a child starves his intellect, impoverishes his heart. There should be no economy in education. Money should never be weighed against the soul of a child." Teachers ought to be known and watched by parents. If liberal compensation is made by the parent he ought to know that suitable return is made therefor, both in the intellectual and moral work done. Very many send their children to school, and rarely see their teacher, who is operating daily and deeply on their mind and character. Perhaps they do not ask how that work is advancing on which the dearest interests of the family depend. Perhaps they put their children under the daily control of one with whom they do not care to associate.

I have spoken of the office of the educator of human beings as the noblest on Earth, and while on this subject let me revert to that statement again. It is a more important office than that of the statesman. The statesman may set fences round our property and dwellings; but how much more are we indebted to him, who call forth the powers and affections of those for whom the property is earned and our dwellings built, and who render our children objects of increasing love and respect. Again, higher ability is required for an educator than for a statesman. "The highest ability," says one, "is that which penetrates farthest into human nature, comprehends the mind in all its capacities, traces out the laws of thought and moral action, understands the perfection of human nature and how it may be approached." Such is the teacher. The speculations of statesmen are shallow when compared with these. The one watches over the outward interests of the people, the other quickens its soul; the one studies and manages the passions and prejudices of the community; the other studies the essential, the deepest, the loftiest principles of human nature; the one works with coarse instruments for coarse ends, the other works by refined influences on that "ethereal essence," the immortal soul; the one receives $41.67 per month and has his stationery and mileage expenses paid, the other averages in Michigan $41 for males and $26 for females, and they pay for their own stationery and travelling.

But let us come back again to the true end of education. Its office is to call forth power of every kind;

The Golden Rule is a weekly nonsectarian, religious family paper, published in Boston, at two dollars a year, and is rated one of the best of its class.

No paper in the country can excel the Golden Rule in attractiveness and intrinsic value. It is the favorite family paper wherever introduced. It has something for every member of the family, and is always pure, bright, helpful, entertaining, and interestingly readable. Whenever a fair trial has been given to the Golden Rule it has almost always secured a permanent subscriber. It is on this ground that a new departure is made in history of newspaper enterprise.

Read the following offer: To any reader of THE OBSERVER, not a subscriber to the Golden Rule, sending fifty cents or otherwise, the Golden Rule will be sent from the time the subscription is received to January 1, 1883.

Although this sum does not nearly cover the actual expense of the paper thus sent, we know that it will be a good investment in the end, as experience has shown that where the paper has been given a foothold in a family, it is almost sure to become a constant guest. Newspapers are like people; it takes time to get acquainted with them, but when once attachment is formed, it is hard to break.

Write at once, enclosing fifty cents, and mention THE OBSERVER. You are sure of four times your money's worth at least. Address, "The Golden Rule, Boston, Mass."

The publishers of THE OBSERVER cordially endorse all that is claimed above for the Golden Rule. We consider it a paper of rare merit, and our readers will do well to accept so generous an offer.
