POTERY.

Life is What We Make it.

BY G. R. SMITH.

Life is what we make it
In spite of Fate's decree;
For the picture darkly shaded,
Is not the same to you and me.

The moon appears to one
A sacred orb of light;
But when viewed by others,
A thing of no delight.

One creates a sorrow
Where another would have joy,
And some ever dread the morrow
Lest something may annoy.

A flower has honey for the bee,
And poison for the asp;
And different instincts see
The thing they wish to grasp.

One has the power of kindness,
That acts on all around;
Another's stupid blindness
Will every feeling wound.

Now life is what we made it
A voyage of calm repose—
And on the proper use of it
Depends a happy close.

CHILDREN'S JOYS AND SORROWS.—I can endure a melancholy man, but not a melancholy child; the former, in whatever slough he may sink, can raise his eyes either to the kingdom of reason or of hope; but the little child is entirely absorbed and weighed down by one black poison-drop of the present. Think of a child led to the scaffold; think of Cupid in a Dutch coffin; or watch a butterfly after its four wings have been torn off, creeping like a worm, and you will feel what I mean. But wherefore? The first has been given; the child, like the beast, only knows purest though shortest sorrow; one which has no past and no future; one such as the sick man receives from without, and the dreamer from himself into his asthenic brain; finally, one with the consciousness, not of guilt, but of innocence. Certainly all the sorrows of children are but shortest nights, as their joys are but hottest days; and, indeed, both so much so that in the latter, often clouded and starless time of life, the matured man only longingly remembers his old childhood's pleasures, while he seems altogether to have forgotten his childhood's grief. This weak remembrance is strangely contrasted with the opposing one in dreams and fevers, in this respect, that in the two last it is always the cruel sorrows of childhood which return; the dream, this mock-sun of childhood—and the fever, its distorting glass—both draw forth from dark corners the fears of defenceless childhood which press and cut with iron fangs into the prostrate soul. The fair scenes of dreams mostly play on the after-stage, whereas the frightful ones chose for theirs the cradle and the nursery. Moreover, in fever, the ice-hands of the fear of ghosts, the striking one of the teachers or parents, and every claw with which fate has pressed the young heart, stretch themselves out to catch the wandering man.

Parents, consider, then, that every childhood's Rupert—the name given in Germany to the fictitious being employed to frighten children into obedience—even though it has a chain for tens of years, yet breaks loose and gains mastery over the man so soon as it finds him on a sick bed. The first fright is more dangerous the sooner it happens; as the man grows older, he is less and less easily frightened; the little cradle or bed-canopy of the child is more easily quite darkened than the starry heaven of the man.

YOUNG MEN.—It should be the aim of young men to go into good society—we mean not the rich nor the proud, nor the fashionable, but the society of the wise, the intelligent, and the good.

When you find men that know more than you do, and from whose conversation you can gather information, it is always safe to be found with them. It has broken down many a man to associate with the low and vulgar, where the ribald song was sung, and the indecent story told to excite the laughter or influence the bad passions.

Lord Clarendon attributed success and happiness in life to associating with persons more learned and virtuous than ourselves. If you wish to be wise and respected, if you desire happiness and not misery, we advise you to associate with the intelligent and good. Strive for excellence and strict integrity, and you will never be found in the sinks of pollution, or in the ranks of profligates or gamblers. Once habituate yourself to a virtuous course; once secure a love for good society, and no punishment would be greater than by accident to be obliged for half a day to associate with the low and vulgar.

DR. KANE relates that when one day, worn out with fatigue, he turned into an Esquimaux hut to get a little sleep, the good-natured hostess of the wigwam covered him up with some of her own habiliments, and gave him her baby for a pillow.

Men and their Noses.

An acquaintance of ours has conceived a theory that the character of a man is best indicated in the face by the shape of the nose. We tried to convince him that if any one feature deserved the distinction of an exponent of character, it was the eye. He was willing to allow that the eye indicated temporary emotions, but the permanent deciding character was proclaimed to the world by the nose.

There is the large, massive nose, rising like a tower of strength in the middle of the visage—how such firmness does it not manifest! All great men have such noses. No one is fit to be a ruler of the people without such a nose. There is the Roman nose, indicating power combined with dignity and nobility. Such a nose can be always trusted. None but men of integrity ever wear them.—The aquiline goes a step further. It combines severity and cruelty with dignity and honor. A man with one of these hooked beaks may do many tyrannical things, but never any mean ones. The history of the world proves this.

There is the pug nose, showing humor, wit, and often folly. There is no force of character under this nose. The man is influenced by the slight relations of things. He may be good natured, but never great. A woman with a pug nose is sprightly, but coquetish. Her affections are not to be depended upon. She can love too many at once. Pug nosed people are fickle.

"They love all that is lovely; love all that they can."
There is that most indistinguishable, but most hateful of all noses, which resembles the ace of clubs. It is connected with the sensual, the low, and the unworthy. Shun the man with such a nose. His motives will be dirty and mean.

There is the bottle nose, a little above the last, showing animal appetite always indulged, though from its size manifesting some generosity of temper. Such a nose may do wrong things, but seldom mean ones.

There is the long thin nose of the fanatic, with dilated nostrils, prominent but lean. Men with this nose have no sensibilities, no impulses. They never see clearly; are obstinate, pertinacious, and unreasonable. They are often martyrs in a wrong cause, and are always willing to make others martyrs who oppose them.

There is the short, sharp nose, whose pinched up termination indicates stinginess and bad temper. Never marry a woman with such a nose. She will pull your hair for you before the honeymoon is over. She is a vixen and shrew. It marks avarice in a man.

There is the Grecian nose—a straight line running from the top of the forehead to its square, chisled end. It is the nose of beauty, of worth, of benevolence.—The gods were sculptured with it. Alas, it is seldom seen in its perfection in this work, day world!

Such is the theory of our friend, and such his belief in noses. We beg our lady readers, when they have finished its perusal, not to rush at once to the mirror to see what noses they have got.—Shasta Herald.

A DOMESTIC INCIDENT.—A lady member of an amateur musical society, when arrived at the house of meeting, discovered that she had left her music behind, and had to send for it. The messenger was told to ask for the loose songs left on the piano. The lady's old servant, more faithful than quick witted, on receiving the message, burst out indignantly with, "What! and do yer suppose my missus sings loose songs? Get along with yer impudence!" and slammed the door in the messengers face, muttering, as she went up stairs, "Loose songs, indeed!—as if my missus ever sung anything that wasn't moral and proper."

A REBUKE.—"I am sorry," said a learned judge to a young woman, who hesitated much in giving some very unpleasant evidence, "I am very sorry to have to enforce such an explanation as this; it must of course, be painful to any decent person, but the ends of justice require it; and not only so, but all the well dressed females you see on either side of me, have come a long way to hear that which pains you so much to utter."

DON'T PITY YOURSELF.—Some have got a sad habit of thinking themselves the most injured people in the world. They brood over ills and insults, and coldness and disappointments, till they quite believe themselves to be martyrs, bating only the stake and the fire. If you want others to pity you, don't pity yourself. Don't teach your children to pity themselves. It is unmanly, it is unwomanly; it is poor and paltry. Be above pity.

If you wish to make yourself a favorite with your neighbors, buy a dog and tie him up in the cellar all night. They won't sleep for thinking of you.

THE JOHN SMITHS. The dilemmas that beset a sheriff sometimes furnish no small amount of amusement. The subject joined in an exact copy (says the Richmond Enquirer) of a return made by the Sheriff of one of our counties to a process sent to him for execution:

Dear Sir—You have sent me a summons in chancery styled Wharton & Co. vs. Colvin's Executors, commanding me to summon John Smith to appear, &c.—Now, will you be kind enough, to let me know on which John Smith to execute this process; for we have many of them in this county? There is John, surnamed the Baptist, called after his religion.—There is Farmer John, Saddler John and Carpenter John, called after their occupations. There is Bumble John, very old, said when a boy to have been great at taking bee nests, when that was the euphonic title of that insect now meekly called the humble bee. There is Yankee John, called after the land of his birth. There is John Izard, the twenty-sixth son, no doubt so called from the old styled pronunciation of the last letter of the alphabet. Then there is Irish John, who is uncharitably supposed not to have had that name when he left the Emerald Isle, and John of Patmos, remarkable for having had many visions. This John particularly protests against the service of your process on him, saying his is a mission of peace and not of strife, and his name must not be mixed up with a law-suit. And, lastly, there is John the grafter, who can graft peacock feathers on a rumpless rooster's tail.

Our clerks know these Johns by their various titles, and generally so designate them in any process that may issue.—Will you, I repeat, let me know which one of our John Smiths your process is intended for, and it shall be duly executed? Yours, truly.

PARENTAL SYMPATHY.—Parents express too little sympathy for their children; the effect is lamentable.

"How your children love you! I would give the world to have my children so devoted to me!" to one who did not regard the time given to her children as so much capital wasted. Parents err fatally when they grudge the time necessary for their children's amusement and instruction; for no investment brings so sure and so rich returns.

The child's love is holy; and if the parent does not fix that love himself, he deserves to lose it, and in after life to bewail his poverty of heart.

The child's heart is full of love, and it must toward somebody or something. If the parent is worthy of it, and possesses it, he is blest; and the child is safe.—When the child loves worthy persons, and receives their sympathy, he is less liable to be influenced by the undeserving; for in his soul are models of excellence, with which he compares others.

Any parent can descend from his chilling dignity, and freely answer the child's question talking familiarly and tenderly with him; and when the little one wishes help, the parent should come out of his abstractions and cheerfully help him. Then his mind will return to his speculations elastic, and it will act with force. All parents can find a few minutes occasionally, during the day, to read little stories to the children, and to illustrate the respective tendencies of good and bad feelings. They can talk to them about flowers, birds, trees, about angels, and about God.

They can show interest in their sports, determining the character of them;—What is a sure way than this of binding the child to the heart of the parent? When you have made a friend of a child you may congratulate yourself that you have a friend for life.

STUART, THE ARTIST.—There are a hundred fine stories told of this eccentric, witty, improvident, but noble artist, Stuart. He was full of genius, but he would not work, or he would have made himself a great master. One day the blunt Dr. Johnson came into West's studio, and addressed something to Stuart. "Why you speak very good English, sir," said the Doctor. "Where did you learn it?" "Sir, I can better tell you where I did not learn it. It was not from your Dictionary." Dr. Johnson had too much sense to be offended.

Stuart read men's characters as easily as he read newspapers. Lord Mulgrave employed him to paint his brother, Gen. Phipps, who was going to India. When the picture was done, and the General had sailed, Mulgrave came for the price. "This picture looks strange, sir. How is this? I see instability in that face." "I painted your brother as I saw him." The first account Lord Mulgrave had from his brother was, that his insanity (unknown and unapprehended by any of his friends) had driven him into suicide!

ROUND dealing is the honor of man's nature; and a mixture of falsehood is like alloy in gold and silver, which may make the metal word better, but it debaseth it.

I KNEW SHE WOULD.—Deacon W— was a staid and honest Deacon in one of the interior towns in this State, who had a vein of dry, caustic humor in his composition. The deacon had a boy of some dozen summers, who was somewhat inclined to be a little ugly when not under the parental eye. In school, especially, John was a source of constant annoyance to the teacher. One day the mistress punished him for some misdemeanor, and John went home, crying, to enter his complaint, and told his father that the mistress had whipped him.

"What!" exclaimed the deacon, elevating his eyebrows, "been whipped?" "Ya-a-as," sobbed the boy.

"And did you let a woman whip ye?" shouted the old deacon.

"Ya-a-as, I couldn't help it."
"Well, John, you little rascal, you go to school to-morrow, and if Miss— undertakes to whip ye agin, you just pitch in; don't let a woman whip ye if ye can help it. Don't take any stick to strike with, but ye may strike, scratch, bite, and kick as much as ye're a mind to."

The next day the boy went to school, and emboldened by the permission given by his father, was soon brought before the tribunal of violated rules. The teacher undertook to correct him, and he did as his father had told him. The result was that John got a most unmerciful trouncing and was thoroughly subdued. When he went home he went to his father, crying—

"Well, dad, I got an awful bad licking to-day."

"What!" said the old deacon, "have you let that woman whip ye agin?"

"Ya-a-as," whimpered John. "I kicked her, and struck her, and fit all I could, but she lammed me orlully."

"Aha!" chuckled the humorous old deacon, "you tarnal little fool, I knew she would, and she'll give ye a trouncing every time she undertakes it, and I advise you to behave yourself in future."

John began to have some perception of his father's motive, and ever after was a sadder and a wiser boy.

CHILDREN AND STUDY.—The Philadelphia North American and Gazette makes judicious comments on the present system of study in the public schools, viz:

We like to see an orderly school, and we can admire the proficiency of young females who run up their term averages to ninety-nine and a fraction. But we have not lost our relish for the rosy cheeks and buoyant step and generous mirth of childhood. We cannot bear to see girls who are just opening into womanhood, with pale, anxious faces, and precarious steps, hurrying by from six mortal hours of study at school to four or five mortal hours more of study at home. We do not believe that a beneficent Creator ever designed that these patient, conscientious, dutiful children, should have all the joy of life crushed out in this style—that their youth should be spent upon the dreary treadmill of incessant study—and that when the real work of life is to be commenced, they should come to it with a disordered spine and shattered nerves, which turn to naught their lauded scholarship, and makes the boasted education which was to have sustained and cheered them, a miserable drag-chain for the rest of their days.

PUNISHING A WOMAN-WHIPPER.—My attention was attracted by the appearance of a man who waited on the table during dinner; his dress was more that of a country gentleman than a servant, and his countenance peculiarly sad and subdued. I found my eyes continually wandering towards this individual, whose manner disquieted me, for he moved about wearily, and as if his task was a weary one. After dinner the superintendent asked me if I had observed the waiter. "Yes. What is he? Who is he?"—"The richest man in Eastern Paraguay. He has a very large, well-stocked estancia."—"And yet he is here as a servant?"—"Yes; he was guilty of the ungallant act of whipping a woman, and the President has degraded him to be a servant at the iron works. He will at least liberate himself only by paying a sum, or its equivalent in cattle." So much for the rights of woman, and the summary administration of the law in Paraguay.—Travels in Paraguay.

A preacher out West, while endeavoring to impress the Gospel upon his hearers, pointed to a corner in which an editor was quietly taking a nap, and remarked: "There are some in the corner who shed the Gospel just like a goose sheds rain."

"I am thy father's spirit," as the bottle said to the little boy when he found it hidden in the wood-pile, and wondered what it was.

"That's part of the sinking fund," as a chap said when a box of money went to the bottom of the river.

THE
KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS.
SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1860.

OWING to our absence from town, a considerable portion of the present week, and the press of the advertising columns, and the scarcity of local news, we are unable to furnish our READERS with much editorial this week. Under the circumstances we have done the best we could. We hope that we will not be so hurried again for many a day.

Good Ducking!

We are informed by one of our townsmen that, on yesterday, A Diecemise and R. Hallemisse, two Frenchmen, killed 150 mallard, 67 canvas-back, and 32 black ducks, also, 27 large geeses, up the Sycamore slough, some few miles from this place. Our informant avers that he was with the gallic Nimrods, during the entire hunt; that they only fired twelve rounds apiece, and that their guns were common double-barrelled shot guns of "ordinaire imperle calibre."

As the lucky hunters forgot to bring or send the editor a fowl, we will be so fowl (fowl) as to not vouch for the fowl story (?), but merely give it as related to us.

Democratic County Convention.

The several delegates from the different Townships in this County, elected last Saturday to the Democratic County Convention, will convene at CACHEVILLE today for the purpose of electing five delegates to the Democratic State Convention to be held at Sacramento City on Thursday, the 29th instant, at 12 o'clock M. for the purpose of electing delegates to represent the party in the National Convention, to be held at Charleston S. C., on the 23d day of April, A. D. 1860.

An Inquiry from Sutter.

A citizen of Sutter county was in our sanctum a few days ago, inquiring for Mr. Smith, representative from that county in the Lower House of the present Legislature. The citizen stated that he had not heard anything from, or, of Mr. Smith since he "was running" for office. He wants to know if he is "still running yet."

We presume that Mr. Smith's constituency wants some public documents "sent from below."

By the way, our representative, Mr. Gwinn, very courteously sends his constituents favors irrespective of party.

Simple Justice.

In our issue, last week, we mentioned the circumstances of John Koon's being arrested upon a warrant, got out upon an affidavit of Mrs. Creamor, wife of George Creamor, charging said John Koon with shooting at her, immediately subsequent to the murder of J. B. Lowe. Justice Doty admitting him to bail in the sum of $500 for his appearance on the next Monday, at 10 o'clock A. M., with W. G. Seely and C. F. Reed as sureties.

Now, we deem it no more than a simple act of justice, that we owe to John Koon and to the community, to state that on Monday last, at 10 o'clock A. M., the defendant, Koon, appeared and demanded a trial. There being no prosecuting witness present (Mrs. Creamor failing or refusing to be present), the Court, at the request of the defendant, waited an hour, and then examined Messrs. Sides and Smith, defendant's witnesses, there being not the least testimony against the defendant, the Court discharged the defendant, Koon, from the complaint.—From what we can learn from the two men that were with Lowe and Koon at time of the shooting and murder, Koon did not shoot even in the direction of the house where Mrs. Creamor was. The presumption is, and pretty strong too, that Mrs. Creamor knew that Koon did not shoot towards her, much less at her; but filed the affidavit for the purpose of harassing and annoying Koon, as she, no doubt, has much malice against him; or she may have done it to cripple or invalidate his testimony against her husband, George Creamor (for Koon is an important witness against him).

RECORDS LOST.—The records of the late Board of Pilot Commissioners, in San Francisco, have been missing some time, and it is alleged that they have been destroyed for the purpose of preventing an investigation.

AMONG other discoveries recently made at Jacksonville, specimens of silver ore have been found, which indicate the presence of a rich vein.

Metrological.

During the present week we have been blessed with fine and pleasant weather; the thermometer ranging from 37° at night to 68° in the day time. Several fine showers of rain have fallen—sufficient to moisten the soil for plowing and to start vegetation. All nature appears to be endued with new life and freshness. Animal spirits are proportionally augmented and enlivened. The farmer in hopeful expectancy feels more cheerful!

The business man sees his way brightening up in the anticipated success of the yeomanry.

Rain and warmth at this season of the year is the great desideratum for this portion of the State. For the last four or five years the country on and in the vicinity of Cache Creek has been "parched up and burned out" by a succession of dry falls, winters and springs, succeeded by unusually hot summers, attended by arid simoon-like northern winds, pernicious, alike, to both the vegetable and animal kingdoms. We hope and trust the next season will be an exception to the preceding.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.—We would call special attention to the new Advertisements in to-day's NEWS.

Thomas & Brownell, Dry Goods and Provision Store, Knight's Landing; the following are in Sacramento, J. Bithell, Webster's New Unabridged Dictionary; Dr. J. R. Boyce's, Rowler's Infallible Rheumatism Medicine; D. Kendall's, Stove and Tin Warehouse; Alphonse Dennerly & Co.'s, New Crockery Store; Stanford Brothers, Importers in Groceries, &c.; S. M. Bailey's, What Cheer House; and Eaves & Nye's, Grand Lyric and Dramatic Entertainment.

LITERATURE.—We are indebted to E. B. Davidson, of Fourth street, Sacramento, for a plentiful supply of periodicals and newspapers. Among them we find Godey's Lady's Book, Illustrated London News, Yankee Nations, New York Tribune, Herald, New Orleans True Delta, Cincinnati Commercial and Louisville Journal.

CONFIDENCE BALL.—We received an invitation to attend the Fifth Annual Ball to be given by Confidence Engine Company No. 1, of Sacramento, on Wednesday next, the 22d of February (Washington's birthday). We need not mention about its being a fine affair, for the Ones, previously, have always given Confidence for those of the future. We hope we will be able to attend.

ANNIVERSARY BALL.—A ball will be given by A. C. Judy, at Suisun City, on Wednesday next, February 22d (Washington's birthday). From the appearances so far, we think he will have a good ball. The invitation has been received, and we are very sorry we cannot attend.

FLOUR MILL.—The Knight's Landing Flour Mill closed yesterday for the season. We understand it will be opened again about the first of June next.

HESPERIAN.—The February number of the Hesperian has been received, and contains the usual amount of good reading which it is already noted for.

PUBLIC DOCUMENTS.—Thanks to Hon. H. Gwinn, of the Assembly, for valuable Legislative Documents.

A GREAT GUN.—Lieut. Redman, who invented a plan for casting cannon hollow by the use of a core, through the centre of which a stream of water is forced for conducting off the heat and thus cooling a large mass of metal, recently had a gun successfully cast which weighed upward of 35 tons. The casting, which is four feet in diameter and 19½ feet long, is said to be the largest cannon in the world. This monster cannon was cast the latter part of last month, at a foundry in Pittsburgh, Pa, and has been named the Floyd, after the Secretary of War. As Lieut. Rodman's plan for casting proved entirely successful, it is said that should guns of this caliber be required they can be manufactured with dispatch, and in any quantity.

THACKERAY fell over a railing in a London fog lately and injured himself seriously. A satirist, who rails at everybody, should be railing proof himself.

WILKES SPIRIT says that Mr. Ten Broeck stood to win $300,000 upon his American horse Umpire for the next Derby, at an outlay of $3,000. He was shrewd enough to get all his bets "on" early, when his unknown colt stood discredited at the rate of one hundred to one.

A MILLIONAIRE in Kent, England, and a large land-owner, has a daughter upon whom he was prepared to band his fortune. The young lady was wooed and won by the curate of the parish in which she resided. The reverend gentleman wished to make her his wife, but her father resolutely refused, and eventually she was induced to marry a rich Dutch merchant. Upon her marriage her father settled £100,000 on her. The lady was married about four years, and a few weeks ago eloped with her former admirer, the parson.

MORE TELEGRAPHING.—Attempts are being made for a branch line of electromagnetic telegraph from San Juan to Watsonville and Santa Cruz, connecting at San Juan with the office of the Atlantic and Pacific line already established at that point.

[From the Union.]

A Farmers Views of the State Agricultural Society.

MESSENGERS: Since the Annual Meeting of the State Agricultural Society, most of the press throughout the State have not been sparing of abuse towards the citizens of Sacramento for their action in locating the next State Fair at the Capital City. The subject, it seems to me, has been nearly exhausted; but being a farmer, I feel a deep interest in the permanency of the Society, and I wish to make a few suggestions, hoping they may assist in staying the torrent that may seem to urge on, regardless of results.

At first I was strongly opposed to locating the Fair at Sacramento this year, on account of the Constitutional objection, believing it would work an injury to the Society; consequently I entered my protest at the time. I could not forget, however, that when that clause was inserted in Marysville there were not more than forty or fifty members present, and this year five hundred took part in voting. It has been done—and I see no good reason for trying to destroy through malice, an institution that has been productive of great good to the State. Now, sirs, if you will notice carefully, those who say the most against the Sacramentans have some side influence at work for other localities, or some personal grudge against some of the last Board, and apparently do not want the Society to exist unless they can control it.

No one can deny that the last Fair was the most decided success since the charter was issued, and to Sacramento—the city—its inhabitant—are the people more than half indebted for it. Without the facilities that your city furnishes, what could a Board of Managers accomplish, however efficient? Some of the papers, especially the California Farmer, are continually harping about the Society being managed by hotel-keepers, lawyers, doctors, etc.—everybody except farmers. For the information of those papers, I will add that just one-half of the last Board were either agriculturists or horticulturists, and some of them on an extensive scale; but, as is usually the case, this portion retired, almost wholly kept aloof from any of the business-managing, and left it for others to attend to; and I think the above professionals have shown themselves fully competent.

I will further say, without fear of contradiction, that in the hands of the farmers, exclusively, we could not hope to fare so well. What proportion of them have the means or credit to get money in advance to provide all the necessities to insure success?—few, indeed.

Provided a Board was made entirely of farmers who had the means, they would necessarily be sent over the State, and form my acquaintance I consider it would be very difficult to get a quorum to attend monthly meetings especially during seeding and harvest time. Admit that some of the last Board were citizens of your city and engaged in different occupations, it does not follow that by any means that they were not better farmers than many who do the most complaining. In some instances the reverse is the case, and I think Sacramento may be proud of the ability they have shown in their action.

In regard to locating the next Fair at Sacramento, I believe it will be productive of great good to the cause throughout the State. In the first place it has had the effect to arouse up localities that made a most pitiable display at the last Fair (San Joaquin for instance). Now a spasmodic effort is being made to get up district Fairs. Just the thing, I am decidedly in favor of local Fairs. They create an interest and awaken a spirit of rivalry and competition that a Fair could not touch.

Had every county or district in the State an Agricultural Society, our State exhibition would be better for it. So I say, gentlemen, organize all over the State. Offer your premiums, bring the product of your neighborhood together, and then send your premium articles and stock to the State Fair and compare them with other parts of the State. In this way you will do the State some good—some actual service.

As a farmer, I wish at this time to enter my protest against attempting to injure the California State Agricultural Society for Capital or political questions. If a mistake has been made this year treat it as such. "Time is the great reasoner." Sacramentans will be as quick to observe it and correct as any. FARMER.

ROWLER'S

Infallible Rheumatism Medicine. FOR CURING RHEUMATISM, MERCURIAL AND CHRONIC DISEASES.

(As the Phoenix rises from the ashes of its fire, re-animated with new life, so does this Medicine re-invigorate the whole system, and overcome disease.)

The removal and permanent cure of Rheumatism, Mercurial and Chronic Diseases, Stubborn Ulcers, Cutaneous Eruptions, Swelling of the Glands, and all diseases arising from an injudicious use of Medicines.

It stimulates to action the absorbents and secretions, drives pain of all kinds from the body, and reduces all swellings in an incredible short time.

In the above named diseases this preparation is Unequaled to the Known World.

As the medicine will recommend itself when once used certificates are considered unnecessary.

N.B.—It contains no Mercurial preparation whatever. None genuine unless the written signature of JAS. R. BOYCE, appear on the label of each bottle.

Democratic Meeting.

At a Meeting of the Democratic Party, held at Knight's Landing, on Saturday, the 11th instant, in obedience to a call of the Democratic Central Committee, of Yolo County, to choose Delegates to the County Convention, to be held at Cacheville, on the 18th instant.

Resolved.—That in case of the absence or inability of one or all of the Delegates from this precinct to the County Convention to Act, that no proxies be allowed, but that one of the Alternates be selected by the Delegates present, unless the absentee selects one of the Members personally.

On motion the Meeting adjourned sine die.

J. W. BALDWIN, Chairman. Wm. J. Reid, Secretary.

Just as the 12 1/2 train was about to leave the Lawrence (north) depot for Boston, quite a sensation was created among a large number of persons assembled there, by the attempt of a young woman to throw herself under a locomotive.

She had been noticed for some time in conversation with a young man, with whom she was apparently waiting for the cars to start for Boston.

Suddenly, as a locomotive came rapidly into the depot, she sprang towards it, and was in the act of jumping from the platform to the track, directly before it, when her companion caught her by her clothes.

She was drawn back by the crowd, and fainted. The young man who was with her, in reply to a question, said the girl belonged in Lawrence, and then suddenly left, and could not be found. The girl revived, but fainted again several times.

Mr. MURDO, of Naples, has made some experiments in the use of water-gas generated from the steam of locomotive boilers and carburetized by injecting 76 of its weight of some hydro-carbon and passing it through red-hot tubes, by which the oxygen of the water seizes on a portion of the carbon of the hydro-carbon, forming carbonic acid, and the hydrogen of the water combines with the hydrogen, and the remainder of the carbon of the hydro-carbon producing carburetted hydrogen gas.

M. BERQUEL has shown by his observations, that while the mean temperature of vegetation is the same as that of the air per year, per month, and very nearly per day, there is a very decided difference at the hours of the day. The temperature of a tree two feet in diameter, varies only about one-fifth as much at different hours of the day, as the temperature of the atmosphere, and its variation does not coincide in time with that of the air.

RECIPES FOR LADIES.—A hot shovel held over varnished furniture will take out the spots.

A bit of glue, dissolved in skim-milk and water, will restore old crapes.

Ribbons of any kind should be washed in cold soap-suds, and not rinsed.

If your flat irons are rough, rub them well with fine salt, and it will make them smooth.

Out straw is the best for filling beds; it should be changed once a year.

If you are buying a carpet for durability, choose small figures.

A bit of soap rubbed on the hinges of doors will prevent their creaking.

Scotch snuff, put on the holes where crickets come out will destroy them.

Wood ashes and common salt, wet with water, will stop the cracks of a stove, and prevent the smoke from escaping.

A gallon of strong lye put in a barrel of hard water, will make it as soft as rain water.

Half a cranberry bound on a corn will soon kill it.

No married man ever prospered in the world without the co-operation of his wife.

If she unites in mutual endeavors, or rewards his labors with an endearing smile, with what confidence will he resort to his daily toil, meet difficulty, and encounter danger, if he knows that he is not spending his strength in vain, but that his labor will be rewarded by the sweets of home!

Solicitude and disappointment enter the history of every man's life, and he is only half provided for his voyage who finds but an associate for happy hours, while for his months of darkness and distress no sympathizing partner is prepared.

"VELL, lasht night vash de vorst as never vash. I tought to go down de hill to mine house, but no sooner did I vald, den de faster I stand still, for de darkness was so tick dat I coot not stir it mit mine boots, and de rain, dunder and blixen, in more than tree minute my skin was vet troo to mine clo's.

But afther von leetle vile stopped qittin' to rain something; so I keep feelink mineself all de vay long; and ven I comes to mine own house to walk in, vat you tink? It belong to somebody else."

EXTRAORDINARY FISHING.—The steamer Narragansette, which formerly plied between Stonington and New York, was what is called a "crank" boat, and whenever she encountered a sea, would poke her nose under and take it on deck.

One night, on her trip to New York, she shipped a heavy sea, which stove some crates of fresh codfish stowed on the forward deck, and bursting in the doors which guarded the main deck, washed in upon the deck passengers, carrying with it an avalanche of fish.

"By the holy Saint Patrick!" exclaimed an Emerald Islander, as he surveyed the effects of the wave, "it bates the devil, sure, how she scoops them up!"

DIVIDE AND CONQUER.—A young exquisite was listening to a lady friend singing a song, in which the following lines occur:

"By that fair brow where innocence reposes: Like moonlight resting upon snow."

Looking at him intently, she divided the words in the first line in a manner rather different from the true version, and not particularly, thus:

"By that fair brow where in sense reposes: Like moonlight resting upon snow."

A MINIKIN three feet and a half colonel, being one day at the drill, was examining a strapper of six feet four.

"Come, fellow, hold up your head; higher, fellow."

"Yes, sir."

"Higher, fellow, higher."

"What—so, sir?"

"Yes, fellow."

"Must I always remain so?"

"Yes, fellow, to be sure."

"Why, then, good bye, colonel, for I never shall see you again."

"Is Mr. Jones in?" asked an Irishman of the porter in a hotel.

"No," was the reply, "will you leave your name?"

"Och, murther, do you think I'd be after going home without a name?"

Miss Fantadling says the first time she locked arms with a young man, she felt like Hope leaning on her anchor. Poetic young woman that.

"MR. LEMON has come over to our party," said a politician, exultingly, to an opponent.

"Well," replied the other, "if your party has nothing stronger than lemonade to recruit with, it must be in a bad way."

Scenes in New York Life, or the Romance of Every Day.

There can be no excuse for our novelists in choosing dull subjects. Our daily life is full of the most exciting events. Within a short time there has occurred some as startling as the most rabid sensationists can desire.

The neighborhood of Broadway, near Bleeker street, witnessed on Monday afternoon, a strange and exciting scene, which caused great commotion. A young lady, the daughter of one of our most highly respected citizens, whose fair fame the breath of scandal has never assailed, was not long since engaged to be married to a young Spanish gentleman, and the arrangements for the wedding had already been made.

On Monday afternoon she dressed in order to take a short walk on Broadway, and to make a few purchases. Just as she turned the corner of Bleeker street into Broadway, a carriage drove slowly past, and stopping opposite to her, she noticed two ladies upon the inside, one of whom tapped with her finger on the carriage window, and beckoned to her.

Not recognizing the persons who were inside, one of whom continued to beckon with her finger, she hesitated for a moment when the door of the carriage opened, and the strange person addressed the young lady with, "Come, sis, get in here—we want to tell you something."

The young lady who had now stepped near enough to the door of the carriage to discover that the persons were strangers to her, replied, "I do not know you—what do you wish?" "Oh! come, get in, do, and we will tell you; do get in, just a moment." The driver at the same time, importuned the lady to enter.

Mistrusting some wrong, she shrank back, and pursued her way upon the sidewalk, wondering what the mysterious invitation could mean. Shortly she was again overtaken by the same carriage, when the driver jumped from his seat, the door again suddenly opened from the inside, and the mysterious woman, now joined by her associate and the driver, all sought her to get into the carriage.

Frightened at this last importunity of the strangers, she fled into a milliner's store near by, in great agitation, and related to the proprietress her strange adventure. After sitting a few moments she rose to go, and as she opened the door of the store she was met by the woman whom she had seen in the carriage, who sprang at her with great fury, exclaiming, "You b—, you have been staying with my husband!"

In an instant she had torn the beautiful velvet hat from the young lady's head, scratched her face and inflicted several heavy blows upon her face and eyes. The greatest consternation prevailed during the melee, and in the midst of the excitement, and before the assailant could be arrested, she had fled.

The assault was so sudden and unexpected that the young lady could make but little resistance; in fact, she was almost instantly overpowered. It was sometime before she could sufficiently recover from the attack to think or say anything. The lady of the store, however, ran out and tried to find a policeman—vain hope in such an emergency. Meanwhile the female apparition jumped into her carriage and escaped.

The outrageous conduct of the woman, and the vile language which she made use of, left but little doubt as to her true character. A carriage was sent for, and the young lady was conveyed to her home, where her appearance in such a sad plight, and the relation of her strange adventures, caused the greatest excitement and distress. What the solution of the mystery can be no one appears, as yet, to understand. Was this young lady mistaken by some enraged woman for another person, supposed to stand in relation of a rival? Has the young Spanish gentleman—horrible thought!—a wife already? What were the intentions of the two women—were they plotting an abduction and murder of their innocent victim?

How BEAUTIFUL AND EXALTED are the following sentiments of De Witt Clinton: "Pleasure is a shadow, wealth is vanity, and power a pageant; but knowledge is ecstatic in enjoyment, perennial in fame, unlimited in space, and infinite in duration. In the performance of its sacred offices it fears no danger, spares no expense, omits no exertion. It scales the mountain, looks into the volcano, dives into the ocean, perforates the earth, encircles the globe, explores the sea and land, contemplates the distance, ascends the sublime. No place too remote for its grasp, no heaven too exalted for its reach."

"Does Mr. Wilson live here?" "Yes," was the reply of Mr. W's wife, "but he is not at home to-day."

"I know he's not at home now, but he will be very soon, for I've got him here dead in the wagon."

MR. PULLUP coming home late "pretty full," finds the walking slippery, and exclaims: "V-ver-very sing'lar; wh-when-ever water freezes it allus fr-freezes with the slippery side up; singular."
