INTRODUCTORY.

In presenting herewith the City Directory of Macon, the publisher has no hesitancy in making the assertion that more labor and money has been expended upon it than has ever been expended upon any similar publication heretofore.

The character of the information contained in a Directory precludes the possibility of entire freedom from mistakes, and we expect that a very few errors and omissions will be discovered within these pages, but we do not fear to trust the work upon its merits, believing it will bear comparison, not only with any previous Directory of this city, but will compare favorably in point of fullness and completeness of detail with the Directory of any city in the country.

A source of very serious inconvenience to the Directory Publisher, and still more to the visiting stranger, in Macon, is the extremely incomplete system of numbering which prevails. The very fact of the city being laid 'out on the bias' makes the necessity of numbers the greater. We have endeavored to overcome this obstacle as nearly as possible by giving the side of the street, and the number of doors from a given corner, but have been compelled to call the northeast side of the street east, southeast south, southwest west, and northwest north.

In most cities there exists a law directing each householder to have his premises properly and distinctly numbered, and in case of neglect in complying with the ordinance, the city is empowered to place such number, and collect the cost from the householder. Whether such an ordinance exists in Macon, we do not know, but if not, it should be enacted at once and rigidly enforced.

In connection with the canvass of the city for names and general information, a very careful, and we believe accurate census of the population was obtained—the figures of which are given upon page 11. This feature is original with us, it being the custom of all other publishers to multiply the number of names in the Directory by some multiple, varying from $3\frac{1}{2}$ to 5, and giving the product as their estimate of the population.

The present volume contains 4,845 names, against 2,827 in the Directory of 1877; an increase of 2,013. That this increase is not the natural growth of the city, but is largely attributable to the closer canvass made, is evidenced by the fact that nearly 300 of the names in this volume which are not found in the last years' publication, have place either in that for 1875 or the one for 1873.

That it is not on account solely of the fact that more names of colored persons are inserted, is also evidenced by the number of white names in this work being 3,248, an excess of 413 over the total white and colored in the former work.

Special attention is invited to the Appendix department of this volume, pages 21 to 60. It will be found to contain a vast amount of information concerning city, county, State and Government officials, courts, churches, schools, secret and benevolent societies, railroad stations and distances, telegraph tariff, Southern express stations, etc., etc.

The Advertising Department, while not as extensive as we could desire or as we believe it will be in future, represents many of the best houses in the city, and we hereby extend our hearty thanks to those who have appreciated our work, and encouraged us in it.

In conclusion, we would state that we propose to continue the publication of the Macon City Directory at regular intervals in the future; and as we believe this volume will be acknowledged vastly superior to those heretofore published, so it will be our honest endeavor to make each succeeding work an improvement upon those which have preceded it.

Very Respectfully,

A. E. SHOLES, Publisher.

It is situated in a native growth of oak, upon the banks of the Ocmulger river, is perfectly level, and, in every respect, completely adapted for the purpose to which it is now applied. It contains about two hundred and seventy-five acres, and is beautifully laid out in walks and drives; there being four miles in drives, and one and one-third miles in walks. It combines within its limits three large and complete buildings, in every way adapted for the purpose for which they were erected, viz: the holding of the annual State and county fairs. These buildings are denominated Premium Hall, Floral Hall, and Machinery Hall, besides which are the Dining Hall, Grand Stand, Editors' Home, Ladies

Cottage, and every other convenience and appliance for exhibitors and visitors, including commodious apartments for all kinds of live stock. The cost of these buildings to the city was about $92,000. The race track is said to be one of the finest and hand-somest in the country. Taken as a whole the Central City Park is a credit to the city of Macon, and cannot fail to afford both pride and pleasure to her citizens.

This journal represents a consolidation of three of the oldest newspapers in the State of Georgia, to-wit: The Georgia Telegraph, the Georgia Messenger, and the Georgia Journal—each of them dating almost contemporaneously with the settlement of Macon, and furnishing news to two successive generations, which have subdued and reclaimed to civilization the large scope of populous and fertile country finding its market and commercial center at this point.

To all this region of Georgia and East Alabama the
