

INTRODUCING

Jack Ross

Fake Faces - Debut Album

Life at 13 is never easy.

Alone. Lost. Changing. Enemies. Intense Emotions

Jack Ross invites you into a teenage story over his debut album - Fake Faces.

Featuring rapping, singing, and a complex array of vocals, Jack Ross spits clean high IQ Eminem-style lyrics and sings with a vulnerable voice.

Jack Ross wrote Fake Faces at 13 as a way of therapy. He realized that people connected with his words and he decided to create an album. Chapter 1 in his future discography.

Making melodies with his childhood Casio keyboard his sound is profound. In 2013, Jack was on CBC Radio 2 Top 20 and in his song 143 432 features in Hallmark Entertainment's Wind Song to be released in 2021. Jack also played guitar live on stage with songwriter Matt Epp when he was 12.

As an old soul, Jack's ideas intrigue. Recognized as a gifted wordsmith his metaphor, imagery and emotional intelligence are beyond highschool.

Jack Ross offers a hotline to those struggling in the mess of 2020/21. In addition to his music he runs a Virtual Therapy Helper Hotline on Snapchat.

Creating and publishing Fake Faces was a huge release for Jack. Music has been his medicine to process loss of innocence and growing up. Maybe his music can be medicine for others.

This album helps feel vulnerable, raw and connected.

Enjoy.
