On the production of New-Orleans from the inundations of lakes Borgue and Panchartrain.

In oberings to the resolution of the Legislature, requiring the civil engineer to report so the means of preserving the city of New-Orleans and its visinity from the inundations occursioned by lakes Borgue and Ponchartrain, I have the honor to submit the following-resort:

 $\equiv$

2d. The reductation of the lake should be raised to a uniform height, which, on account of the beating of the waves, should be greater here than in less expect, aloos and covered with shells towards the lake, 5 feet will probably be sufficient.

2d. Both sides of bayou St John and the Carondelet can had should be brought up to the requisite elevation, so as to confine the water within the navigable channels; the head of the bayou heing closed by a dam.

4th. As the accape of the fluvial waters would be provented by the levest it should be restored, down, at least, to the levest it should be restored, down, at least, to the level of the present natural draining, by means of culverts with leading plitches suitably located, and provided with self-secting gates, which will consume upon a side of the lake.

These measures, I conceive, will accomplish the full object and intention of, the coptemplated protection. It is a favorable circumstance, that the space to be preserved from mundation is naturally divided into the following sections:

The first, and by far the largest Socion, is included by twen the Fishermen casal, Gentilly road and resiread, it contains about 12 square miles. The Gentilly ridge, with the exception of 1 few places, is sufficiently high to arrest the inundation; on the lower side an embankment obtained when the construction of the lake.

I would be designed that an estually navigable canal and at embankment, to be used as a road, might be made here: the following the construction of the lake.

I would be designed that an estually navigable canal and at embankment, to be used as a road, might be made here: the following the construction of the lake.

I would be designed that an estually navigable canal and at embankment, to be used as a road, might be made here: the following the deep holes, and the special proves are the whole amount of classic products and the construction of the whole amount of the construction of the lake.

I would be designed that an estually navigable canal and at embankmen

This section may be computed at about 9 square miles.
The aggregate amount of the above sectional estimates is add for superintendence, contingencies dec. 8,000

And the whole estimate for protecting the city will be $70,000. This is the sum which, I think, will effect the purpose expressed in the legislative resolution above mentioned, of securing the psecircis of the city from the inundations of the

The professions of the spulliders are to be trusted, that whole party, with the exception of McDiffic, is to be count-city grainst the renewal of the present bank charter, or the results of any national bank. Your Committee have also visited the Poydens F. nale Asylum. The same observations which they have submitted in relation to the Mole Orphan Asylum will apply, with full force to the Poy true Asylum.—The unwarted attention of the ladies who are the Directresses of the Asylum, and of the sisters of charity of the day, we received several communications from the inhabitants of St. Andrew's and the Port Royal Mountains of St. Andrew's and the Port Royal Mountains of St. Andrew's and the Port Royal Mountains intimating that the shock in these places was very severe, and excited considerable alarm. We rejoice, however, if it were messary. But they think the Legislatine to state, that no accounts of any accidents have reached statement of the namer of mantes. The tender age of many of them, and the Charity school attached for py to state, continue most satisfactory.
