Cottage Destroyed At the Birches

The family of William O'Brien had a narrow escape from fire Thursday morning when their cottage was destroyed. The firemen were first notified by telephone but were wrongly directed by Box 227 and went to the wrong side of Lakewood Grove. Box 472 summoned the apparatus from Ward Three. The cottage with contents was destroyed; loss $2,000.

BURNS FATAL

Miss Susan H. Hawes of 726 Pleasant street died on Wednesday from burns received at her home the day before. She was the daughter of Bradford Hawes, for many years on the Board of Selectmen.

Miss Hawes lighted a gas heater in her room on the second floor and in some manner her clothing caught fire. Becoming hysterical, she dashed down the stairs, screaming, attracting the attention of her father, who was sitting in the parlor reading, and of Simon Gallant, who was painting the interior of the house. Her shrieks also attracted the attention of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McFawn, who live across the street.

Mr. Hawes and Mr. Gallant, with the aid of Mr. and Mrs. McFawn, extinguished the flames by wrapping a blanket around the woman. Dr.

GET TOGETHER DINNER

The six members of Weymouth Post, No. 78, of American Legion felt well repaid for their journey to Boston Tuesday night even if the home train was over an hour late. To listen to several splendid addresses, greet their buddies from all over the state, enjoyed a good dinner all served to pass an evening that will not be soon forgotten. Commander Stein, Adjutant Santacrose, past and present finance officers, Walter Peers and Irving Johnson, Victor Nosiglia and Summer Peers all said it was the best yet, as for the national commander these words from a Boston paper voice their sentiment:
It would be superfluous to say that the national commander has captured the hearts of his fellow legionnaires of the Bay State. His personality, his Americanism, and his exposition of the ideals of the Legion will be long remembered by them and his visit should stimulate Massachusetts to do her share in the nation-wide drive to give the Legion a membership of one million and a half when the National convention opens in San Francisco next fall.

Equally interesting were the fine addresses of James T. Williams Jr., Gen. Edwards, Maj. Gen. A. W. Brewster of the First Army Corps Area, Admiral Wiley and Judge Landis.

BASKETBALL

At Bates Opera House last Friday night the Whitman A. A. defeated Weymouth A. A. 33 to 32. At the end of the regular periods the score stood 28 to 28 and it took two overtime periods of five minutes to decide.

At the Clapp Memorial gym on Tuesday Weymouth High won from Attleboro High 34 to 24.

RED CROSS DRIVE

Editor Gazette-Transcript:
No doubt it would be interesting to the people of the town, and the readers of the Gazette to know the outcome of the recent Red Cross drive.

The number of members subscribing to the fund was 1161 at one dollar each, to which was added several cash gifts which bring the total donated in Weymouth $1435.50.

Certainly this is very gratifying and shows that our people are interested in all those things which tend to help the unfortunate and needy of the world over.

Great credit is due Mrs. Thayer and her able corps of officers of the Weymouth chapter for this result as they not only exceeded the $1255 quota for the town, but accomplished it at a time when other matters were pressing upon us which might have been expected to check the effort for the Red Cross work.

There are still one or two to hear from and if any reader of this should have a pang of remorse for not having a part in this work they will find the committee in a receptive mood and glad to relieve their conscience by accepting their contribution, which may be sent to the Weymouth chapter, R. C. on to the writer. Thanking you for your courtesy, yours truly,

J. B. REED

DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS

The regular meeting of Dorothea L. Dix Tent 32 was held on Thursday evening, Pres. Nellie G. Loud presiding. There was initiation of candidates. Several recommendations of the good of the order were adopted. A social hour was enjoyed by all at the close of the meeting.

The members are reminded that there will be a whist party in G. A. R. hall on Friday evening, Feb. 9, under the direction of P. J. Harriet Fern.

All were very sorry of the sudden death of Sister, Mrs. ... We extend our sympathy to her father and sisters.

MASS MEETING CALLED

Editor Gazette-Transcript:

Because of the numbers of enthusiastic responses to my letter signed "KORA" which appeared in your issue of January 19th, it is deemed advisable to call a mass meeting of all citizen voters, (Ladies and Gentlemen) regardless of party affiliations, who are interested in the subject matter of that letter.

This meeting is called for Wednesday, February 7th, 7.30 P. M. at Iberian Hall Jackson Square, East Weymouth, Mass.

P. VAILE

Editor Gazette-Transcript:

A few issues back there was printed in the Gazette-Transcript a very interesting letter signed "Citizen." The "cut and dried" action pertaining to the present caucus plan for nominating candidates for town offices is deplored and wisely asked is it strange citizens refrain from voting when the ballot sheet offers no choice.

The result is that more than EIGHTY PERCENT of our voters manifest no interest. This laxity has become so habitual that the annual election appears a farce. Worse however, this laxity has begotten an apathy which shows itself in all town affairs and is truly lamentable.

The time for again nominating candidates is very near. The one-sided caucus will meet and nominate in the same facile be staged.

IS IT NOT TIME FOR THIS EIGHTY PERCENT OF OUR ELECTORATE SHOULD SPEAK? To open a way for effective action and put other candidates in the field, for the choice of all voters it is proposed to hold the Citizens Non Partisan Voting Caucus.

at G. A. R. hall on Monday evening, Feb. 5, at 8 o'clock.

At this meeting an executive committee for 1923 will be elected.

Mrs. Edna Warren, our newly installed president, will give a list of her 1923 appointments on the following committees: welfare and hospitalization, relief, memorials, recreation, entertainment, finance, etc., and will outline also her plans for the year's activities, and will call for suggestions from all members of the Unit.

Put aside everything to attend this meeting and then take a voice in the suggestions for the good of the Unit, every member is needed, inasmuch as each one has a God-given gift and by using it, she can help Weymouth Unit to grow and prosper. Build strongly and soundly for the future.

WEYMOUTH, FEBRUARY 2, 1923

VITAL STATISTICS

In 1922 the number of male births in Weymouth far exceeded the females; out of a total of 316, there were 172 males and 149 females.

The only months in which the females predominated were March, September, and December.

April was the banner month with 32 arrivals, but in February and March there were 31 each, and in August and November thirty each. Rather surprising how equally they were divided.

By months the sexes and totals were:

	Males	Females	Total
January	15	8	23
February	17	14	31
March	12	19	31
April	18	14	32
May	18	10	28
June	13	8	21
July	14	9	23
August	16	14	30
September	8	11	19
October	12	11	23
November	16	14	30
December	12	13	25
Total	172	149	316

Marriages

The total number of marriages recorded was 149.

Married in Weymouth 77; in other cities and towns 72.

Either party born in Weymouth 55; born in other cities and towns 170; born in foreign countries 48.

The popular months to marry were October, June, and September. In order named, the total number of marriages were: October 11, November 11, December 11, January 10, February 11, March 10, April 10, May 10, June 10, July 10, August 10, September 10, October 10, November 10, December 10.

Deaths

The total number of deaths recorded was 239, males 119, females 120; 83 of the decedents were born in Weymouth; 103 were born in cities and towns other than Weymouth; 53 were born in foreign countries; 191 died in Weymouth and 48 died elsewhere.

Number of decedents married 84; widowers 23, widows 49, single 83.

The ages of the decedents were as follows:

Under one year	15
1 to 5 years	7
5 to 20 years	9
20 to 50 years	44
50 to 80 years	111
Over 80	53
Over 90	6

A comparison for 17 years is given below:

Year	Births	Marriages	Deaths
Year 1922	316	149	239
Year 1921	270	145	183
Year 1920	292	169	217
Year 1919	285	147	216
Year 1918	307	151	291
Year 1917	294	134	217
Year 1916	252	130	221
Year 1915	243	143	193
Year 1914	292	130	230
Year 1913	254	147	205
Year 1912	257	150	195
Year 1911	245	118	223
Year 1910	258	115	223
Year 1909	260	120	194
Year 1908	253	117	195
Year 1907	267	118	256
Year 1906	284	129	216

It will be seen that in 1922 there were more births than in any recent year, 46 more than in 1921.

The number of marriages was only four ahead of 1921, and 20 less than in 1920.

The number of deaths was the largest since 1918 which was a record since 1905.

TESTING AUTOMOBILE HEADLIGHTS

The United States government bureau of standards is working on a new type of an automobile headlight for use on state highways by motorists at night. The present automobile headlight, when in use, usually blinds the driver coming from the opposite direction. In the lenses shown in this photograph the beams from the headlight are focused on a screen 50 feet distant and the intensity in all parts of the beam is measured with a photometer. Photograph shows Mr. E. S. Willis of the photometer section of the bureau of standards demonstrating the new light that will be used by motorists in the near future.

SAFE STOP DEPENDS ON DRIVER OF AUTO

In Tests 86 Feet Has Been Fixed as Minimum Distance.

Takes One-Half of Second for Experienced Man to Sense an Emergency Before He Begins to Apply His Brakes.

What is the shortest distance required to stop your car going at a certain speed in an emergency? The answer to this, in the opinion of E. W. Weaver, Cleveland engineer, depends on two things: First—Condition of brakes and the road surface. Second—Time required for the driver to sense an emergency before applying the brakes.

Of these conditions the second is most important, says Weaver. Tests have set certain minimum distances for stopping, based on knowledge of brakes and road surfaces, in relation to the various speeds of the motor-car.

For instance, 86 feet has been fixed as the minimum distance required to stop a car with good brakes, going 30 miles an hour on a dry level road. With poor brakes on a slippery road, the distance is 258 feet.

But the human element must also be considered, says Weaver. He figures it takes one-half a second for an experienced driver to sense an emergency before he begins to apply the brakes. In this one-half second of time, at a speed of 30 miles an hour, the car will have gone 22 feet.

Therefore, in stopping an automobile from a speed of 30 miles an hour, for example, the total distance required would be 108 feet, with good brakes and a dry, level road; 250 feet, with poor brakes and a slippery road.

Other distances can be judged with the aid of the chart Weaver has prepared, dependent on the car's speed and the driver's own alertness in sensing the emergency.

DEFECTIVE TUBE RUINS TIRE

Owner Has Greater Assurance of Full and Satisfactory Service From Good Casing.

A defective tube will ruin the best tire. Just as it's the heart that keeps the body going, so it's the tube that keeps the casing up. A man would certainly not select a weak heart because it was cheap, but would want the best. So the motorist should purchase the tube that will best prolong the life of the casing. The better the tube one buys, the greater assurance he has of full and satisfactory service from his casing. A good casing is terribly handicapped with a defective or worn-out tube.

PUZZLING TIRE BLOW-OUTS

Difficult Matter to Trace Cause of This Annoyance to Autoists When Casing Bursts.

It is not always easy to trace the cause of a blow-out. The tire may have been kept carefully at the proper figure, tread inspected and bends watched, yet the casing gives out.

More often than not, difficulty of this kind must be traced back for months when the casing received a severe blow, weakening the fabric structure and then, as time wears on, the entire casing becomes affected and blows out when least expected.

Blow Your Horn.

When backing your car. Just before reaching the top of a hill. Before taking dangerous curves in the road. Before crossing a road and before coming to a cross road. When desiring to pass another car going in the same direction.

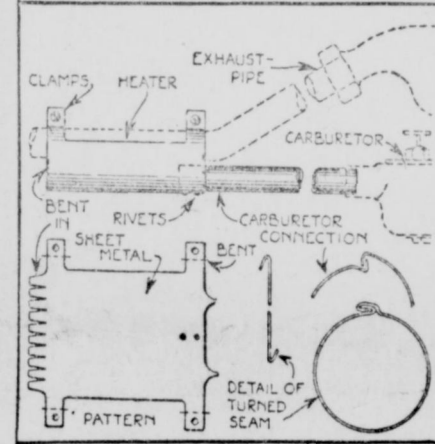

CARBURETOR AID IN SAVING FUEL

Heater Not Large Enough on Old Machines to Obtain Economy With Gas.

OWNER CAN SUPPLY WARMTH

Connecting Pipe Is Fitted With Adjustable Opening That Can Be Arranged in Convenient Way—Pattern Should Be Made.

The average carburetor heater is not sufficiently large to obtain maximum economy in the use of gasoline, especially on cars several years old. The carburetor and intake manifold should be too hot to place the hand on comfortably, for then the gasoline and gasoline vapor in contact with the surfaces separate into the vapor most readily burned when it reaches the cylinders. Any owner of a car can add to the carburetor a heater that will supply an abundance of warmth and result in economical operation, with added advantage that the car can be throttled down to a lower speed.

The body of the heater is sheet iron formed to a pattern as indicated, and secured with clamps to the exhaust pipe. The connection with carburetor is by means of a pipe rounded to shape over the mandrel, and bent wherever necessary to bring it in line with the carburetor. This connecting pipe is fitted with an adjustable opening that can be arranged in any convenient way for use.

As a preliminary to forming these heaters, a pattern should be made of heavy paper and fitted in place. When the pattern is correctly fitted, the metal is then cut from the paper pattern. The immediate effect of the added heat will be noted in the carburetor adjustment. As much a reduction as a half turn of the needle-valve is obtainable after operating the motor several minutes.—By G. E. Leurs in Popular Science Monthly.

AUTOMOBILE GOSSIP

A self-starter makes less noise when the car is in gear and it is propelling the entire machine.

In England, stainless iron and steel are now manufactured into fittings for automobiles.

Corroded terminals should be first scraped and then cleaned with a strong solution of washing soda.

A common fault which cuts down the gasoline mileage is the excessive use of brakes.

Seventy-five per cent of your motor troubles will be traceable to the ignition system. And 90 per cent of those will be due to your own neglect.

When following another car closely on crowded roads be ready to turn out to one side or the other when using the brakes.

Obey the manufacturers' rules regarding lubrication. Don't figure you know as much about the car as they do.

F. H. FERRIS A CANDIDATE

I take the liberty to announce at this time that I will be a candidate for the office of selectmen.

Weymouth needs young men with progressive ideas and men who will look out for town interests. I firmly believe in spending money in Weymouth to the ones who pay taxes and not outside. Weymouth needs a Board of Trade, a Tax Revision placing just taxes on all, and on the small property owner. Other towns and cities have had their gas and electric light expenses reduced. WHY NOT WEYMOUTH? Is she sleeping? Our train service is deplorable, and what have we done to remedy it?

I pledge my support, if elected, to work for the best interests of the town and I wish to thank, at this time, each and everyone who have so loyally advanced this campaign.

Yours respectfully,
FREDERIC H. FERRIS.

Common Practice.
"Yes," said the gentleman who was showing a stranger about the great city, "our public library contains 100,000 reference books." "Must be helpful." "Well, I don't know, I fear we refer to that fact more than we do to the books."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Legal Validity of Coins.
Coinage legislation determines the point at which the coin loses its legal validity. In the United States, gold coins which have lost more than one-half of 1 per cent of their weight in twenty years from date of issue, or proportional amounts for shorter periods, are legal tender by weight only.

Hesitancy.
"Ef'n yo'all got t' fight, anyhow," said Charcoal Eph. in a mood, "pick out a little feller an' hit him when he ain't lookin'. Luck don't favor no man dat go roum' requestin' trouble."
—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Spaghetti Bug!
Eleanor, age three, was out for a stroll the other day with her mother.
A large anglerworm had crawled over the sidewalk, and Eleanor, spying the worm, said, "Oh, mother, just look at that big spaghetti bug!"

The Ages of Trees.
The Tortworth chestnut, in England, figures upon a charter dated 1135, and so is probably well on toward the end of its Tenth century, and there is an oak at Tilford, near Farnham, which was there in the year 1250.

Chemistry's Magic Wand.
In 1895 the incandescence light was a luxury. Aluminum was almost as dear as silver until chemists discovered how to extract it from clay. Silicon, essential in making fine steel, once sold for $100 an ounce.

In Praise of Agriculture.
Agriculture is the noblest of all alchemy; for it turns earth, and even manure, into gold, conferring upon its cultivator the additional reward of health.—Chatfield.

A SAFE TEST
For those who are in need of a remedy for kidney troubles and backache, it is a good plan to try Doan's Kidney Pills. They are strongly recommended by East Weymouth people.
J. W. Snow, 73 Chard street, East Weymouth, says: "I strained my back lifting some time ago and it affected my kidneys and caused backache.
Mornings my back was lame and sore and when I raised up quickly a stitch took me in my back. I had to get up that night to pass the kidney secretions and they were highly colored and burned. I also had headaches and dizzy spells. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and used two boxes and they cured me entirely."
On February 9, 1921, Mr. Snow said: "The cure Doan's Kidney Pills gave me some time ago has been a lasting one."

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of

ROBERT SLYKE

John Bartley, noted criminal investigator, recently returned from Secret Service work during the war, is asked by the governor of New York to investigate a mysterious attempted robbery of the Robert Slyke home at Circle Lake, near Saratoga. Bartley is asked, in view of recent developments, to establish the guilt or innocence of two men in the penitentiary for the crime. A miscarriage of justice is suspected. Rogers, chief of the central office, arrives as Bartley and his friend Pelt, a newspaper man, are preparing to go on a fishing trip, and begins to describe the case. Bartley finds in it the resting of an old case, is interested and agrees to solve the mystery.

CHAPTER II—Continued.

At the foot of the hill, the road ran beside the lake for a little way, then ascended another hill. Just before this ascent began, Bartley left the main road and followed one that ran for nearly a mile between leafy trees. At length he turned his car down a long driveway that wound its crooked way in and out through a grove of great trees. When I had begun to wonder if we should ever escape from them, we came out upon a green lawn that stretched for several acres, having in its midst a large rambling house, painted the whitest white I have ever seen. It was a cheery-looking house, one made to live in, with a great piazza stretching across the front, and gay-covered chairs that gave to it a tropical atmosphere. Even as I was thinking how much I liked it, a man came running down the steps, three at a time, whooping like a wild Indian and waving his arms at us.

Truth compels me to say that Currie was, to put it mildly, stout, nor could anyone call him good looking. His big red face, now almost purple from exercise, was a kindly, tolerant one, filled with humor; his blue eyes warm with kindness. Down the steps he came and across the lawn, yelling all the time:

"John Bartley, you old sleuth, don't you dare drive on my new lawn!"

With a laugh, Bartley made a wide circle across the grass before he stopped. Currie was beside us and on the step of the car in a second, one arm thrown around Bartley's shoulder and his red face beaming; but all he said was, "Well, well, John!"

Bartley's answer was just as short and had the same deep friendliness. Then Currie turned and greeted me. A second later, a servant came to take charge of our things, and we followed Currie to the house.

We entered by one of the largest living rooms that I have ever seen. It stretched almost the entire length of the building and had two fireplaces, both of which were large enough for a man to stand upright in. Currie led us up a flight of stairs to the second story where, pushing open a door, he showed us into our suite of rooms.

Five minutes later, at Currie's suggestion, the three of us were sitting on the stone edge of his swimming pool. It was forty feet long and open to sun and air. For thirty minutes we swam and dived. Then we climbed out and dried ourselves in the warm sun.

Then Bartley lighted a cigarette and told his friend what had brought us to Circle Lake.

Currie said nothing until he had finished, and then, rubbing his chin slowly with his hand, replied, "Do you know, John, there are a good many people around here that doubt if those two men had anything to do with the robbery. There was nothing stolen, so Slyke said. He said also that there was nothing in the house that anyone would want to steal. After the trial folks began to talk, and since those other attempts to break into his place—well, they have talked more!"

"What are they saying?" asked Bartley.

"I don't know such a devil of a lot about it myself," replied Currie. "I was away at the time of the burglary and of the trial. But I do know that some people doubt if there ever was a burglary. Others say the state police and the local cops got mixed up in a row and framed the men. Still others think Slyke knew who the men were, but had strong reasons for not wanting to identify them. What his reasons could be, God alone knows! Never cottoned much to Slyke anyway. He is a crabbed sort of chap, a bit conceited, one who is always right and the rest of us, of course, always wrong. But if you want to see him, and are not too tired, we can go over there now. I have to see him myself about a strip of land I just bought from him. His estate joins mine, you know."

Bartley expressed himself as far from tired and very willing to go to see Slyke at once. We dressed quickly and soon joined Currie in the living room. As we went out onto the lawn, he said:

"I am sorry my wife is away, but she will be back tomorrow. I asked Doctor King to come over tonight and dine with us. He can probably tell you more about the robbery than I can, for he was called in by Slyke the night it happened."

After a ten minutes' walk we came suddenly upon a house, a massive stone building, half covered with ivy. A large veranda ran across the front, forming at one end a glass-enclosed sun parlor. What appealed to me most was the huge stone tower that rose from the center of the building to a height of some thirty feet. The house, with its well-kept lawn, stretching to the woods in the distance, made a beautiful picture.

Though we had not paused long to admire the scene, we did not have time to ascend the steps and ring the bell before the butler opened the door. Currie gave his name and we were ushered into a great room which, from its furnishings, might have been called a library if there had been any books in it.

When the butler had left us, Bartley said to Currie, "I presume that this is the room where they found the burglars?"

Currie nodded, and I turned to look about. It had two large windows opening on the side of the house where there was no veranda, and nearby a small safe, half hidden in the wall. This, I judged, must have been what the burglars were seeking. I tried to picture to myself what had taken place on the night of the burglary. There could not have been much light; and I wondered how Slyke's stepdaughter, standing on the stairs at the far end of the room, could have seen well enough to recognize the men, when Slyke, who was close by, could not do so.

I had little time for my conjectures, for at that moment Slyke entered the room. After greeting Currie, he was introduced to us.

"But You Were Never Sure That They Were Guilty."

While Currie was talking with him about the strip of land that he had bought, I examined him closely.

He was a small, decidedly nervous man, weighing about a hundred and thirty pounds, with low forehead, shifty eyes, and flabby lips that drooped. His face twitched again and again and his hands were never still.

It was not until Currie had told him who Bartley was, that he showed the slightest sign of interest in either of us, and even then his manner was far from cordial. You could see, in fact, that he was wondering why Bartley had come, and wishing him a thousand miles away.

Bartley himself, seeing how Slyke felt, said to a friendly laugh, "It's hardly right to run in on you this way, Mr. Slyke. I was coming over to see you formally in the morning; but as Mr. Currie said he had some business with you this afternoon, I decided to come with him."

He then told Slyke why we had come to Circle Lake. The man made no response to this, nor did he say anything when Bartley told him of the governor's interest in the two men now in prison for the burglary.

The remark was so unexpected that Slyke's face grew red and he stammered, "But—well—anyway they were—proven guilty."

"But you yourself said that you could not identify them."

"That may be so, but there were others that did recognize them, even though I could not," Slyke answered. Bartley changed his tactics. When he sets out to win a person, there are few that can resist him; and in a moment or two even Slyke thawed under his smile.

"I can understand," Bartley remarked, "how bored you must be with the whole affair, but, as you probably know, Mr. Slyke, there is a growing feeling that those men in prison are innocent. What I am to do is to find out whether there is any ground for such a feeling. I know that you will be the very first person to wish them pardoned if they are innocent. Can I come over tomorrow morning and have a talk with you about the burglary? My wide experience may help me to see things that the others have overlooked. The governor asked me to look into the matter, you know."

Slyke did not seem over-pleased at this suggestion, and muttered that he was going fishing in the morning. He finally agreed that his stepdaughter Ruth could give Bartley whatever information he wanted. Seeing that so far as he was concerned, the conversation was over we took our leave.

As we re-entered the woods, Bartley remarked with a laugh, "He was not what you might call keen to see us. That burglary for some reason seems to be a sore subject with him."

When we arrived at the house, Currie excused himself to see about some matters on the estate, and we went up to our rooms.

Currie had said that if we came down to dinner in evening dress he would throw us out; so still in white flannels, we joined him in the dining room. He was talking with a young man of about thirty-five, whom he introduced as Doctor King. He was a likable sort of chap, with clean-shaven face, tanned red by outdoor life, and dark blue eyes with a twinkle in them. Upon his coat was the little insignia that showed he had seen service.

Currie had promised us a good dinner, and we were not disappointed. The doctor showed himself to be as well read as Bartley, who is interested in anything that is a book. As the dinner progressed, we found that the doctor and Bartley found many a congenial topic.

Their discussion finally settled down upon the two schools of psycho-analysis. From the first, this talk bored Currie; and every once in a while he would throw me an appealing glance. At last the conversation turned to crime, and Currie suddenly asked Bartley if it had ever been discovered who Jack the Ripper was. What made him ask the question I do not know. Bartley replied that though no name had ever been given out, Scotland Yard had come to the conclusion that the crimes had been committed either by a crazy Polish Jew, or more probably by a doctor. A well-known doctor had been on the border line of insanity at the time the Whitechapel murders had occurred; and when he dropped out of sight the murders ceased. The English detectives were almost positive that he was the murderer, but they could not prove it.

"No more than they were able to prove," Currie interrupted, "that those men they sent to jail ever broke into Slyke's house."

The doctor remarked, "I was called in as the family physician by Slyke, on the night of the burglary. He told me, at the time, that he had not recognized either of the men."

Bartley did not speak, but sat watching the glowing tip of his cigarette. I knew he was waiting for the doctor to say more.

"Both the men that were arrested," the doctor continued, "had worked at one time or another for Slyke. You would have thought that, if it had been the ones who broke into his house, he would have recognized them. But he told me positively that night, or rather that morning, that he had not recognized either of them."

As the doctor did not continue, Bartley asked, "Then he never, at any time, said he recognized either of the men?"

The doctor shook his head. "No, he never did. At the trial he said there had not been enough light for him to see their faces. Ruth, the stepdaughter, was the only one who thought she recognized them—that is, one of them."

Bartley asked quietly, "What was the mix-up between the state police and the local police?"

King looked surprised. "Why, I never knew there was any. Of course, there is some foolish jealousy between the two branches. The state police arrested those men simply because they were sneaking through the fields at three o'clock in the morning and refused to give an account of themselves. I have heard that the officer in command of the troopers never believed that these men had anything to do with the Slyke affair. Most of the evidence against them was not found until several days later—some by the local police and some by Slyke's chauffeur. When the police were first called in, they didn't find any evidence; indeed, I do not think they looked for any until the next morning."

"They found Slyke in his bed, shot. They told King it was suicide."

AMERICAN LEGION

The executive committee of Post 79, American Legion, held a very interesting and snappy meeting in the town offices Monday evening; Leo Cote, Irving Johnson, and Albert Humphrey were chosen for the entertainment committee and every member that has attended the monthly socials the past year know that with Leo as chairman there are some mighty fine fees ahead of us so get together all you fellows and pay your 1923 dues and get in on these good times. Stanley Heald, Henry Cote, John Easton, James Frost and Carlton P. Tyler were chosen for the relief committee. For auditors, Ralph Young, Herbert Rockwood, Norman Wilker, were elected.

The band members are going to run a moving picture and vaudeville entertainment some time in the near future to procure new uniforms and should have the co-operation of every member of the Legion, as a good band is a great asset to any Post, and under their new leadership they have secured new music and some new talent and have improved 100 percent, so let us give them a lift boys and have a band that we will be proud of. The subject of the Post's annual show was discussed and a committee was chosen to select several different types of entertainments and report at the next regular meeting to be held Tuesday, Feb. 6, in G. A. R. hall as this will take considerable time and a lot of help it is the duty of every member of the Post to attend this meeting next Tuesday evening and help this thing along so that it will be bigger and better than anything we have ever had. So get together fellows and be there strong Tuesday night. Something doing from 7.30 to 10.30 smoking allowed.

RICHARD SEELEY

The Seeley family of 18 Common street, consisting of two sisters and a brother has been wiped out in the past two weeks by gripe and pneumonia and the nearest kin are second cousins. Richard Seeley, 59, passed away Sunday evening. He, like his two sisters, was born and had always lived in Weymouth and a greater part of the time in the house in which they all passed away. He was educated in the Weymouth schools and from a boy was known for his sterling worth and character and one whose work was as good as his bond. He was a great reader and familiar with many interesting subjects. He was a deep thinker and never affiliated himself with any political party preferring to vote for the man he thought best fitted for the position. His even disposition and kindly manner endeared him to all who knew him. He was years gateman at the Quincy avenue crossing for years ran a Goodyear stitching machine at the Stetson shoe factory. He was a man of considerable means and retired a few years ago. During the World War he took a position as gateman at the Quincy avenue crossing of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. and held it up to the time he was taken ill. By his death the town loses an honest, upright citizen. With his death his whole family is wiped out, for like his sisters, he never married.

The funeral took place Tuesday morning from the Church of the Sacred Heart, Rev. Fr. John B. Holland celebrated mass. The music was by the church choir assisted by Miss Helen Caulfield and Mrs. Edward Paul Noonan, soloists, directed by the church organist, Mrs. John W. Hanley. There were many floral tributes. Interment was at St. Francis Xavier cemetery. The bearers were Thomas Fitzgerald, John F. Dwyer, Edward Hart, William F. Callahan, John H. Coffey and John J. Norton.

A singular circumstance was that while Mr. Seeley's funeral was being held William A. Field, 62, who was also a gateman at the same crossing as Mr. Seeley passed away at his home, 78 Commercial street. He is survived by his wife and two daughters.

JOHN W. RATCLIFFE

John W. Ratcliffe of 416 Commercial street, East Braintree, died on Monday.

He was born in Troy, N. Y., on Feb. 12, 1850, and came to Braintree forty years ago, becoming connected with the old fax mills and continuing there until five years ago. Surviving him are his widow, three daughters, Mrs. Cora Baker and Mrs. Ernest S. Barend of Weymouth, Miss Grace M. Ratcliffe of Braintree, and a son, George W. Ratcliffe.

AMOS W. LOCKE

Amos Washington Locke, well known to the older residents of Weymouth, passed away at the home of his son-in-law, Lewis C. Strang on Weymouth Heights, on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 30. Funeral services were held on Friday morning, Feb. 2, at 11.15 o'clock and were in charge of Konoahasset lodge, A. F. & A. M. of Cohasset.

Mr. Locke was born in Boston on Sept. 18, 1840, the son of Amos Cutter Locke and Martha Hill Ayres. In early manhood he moved to Cohasset. During the 70s he lived at North Weymouth and was employed by the late Alexis Torrey. Later he lived on Front street, Weymouth Landing. Before coming to Weymouth Heights to live about 14 years ago, Mr. Locke had been for a number of years a resident of South Braintree.

Mr. Locke was a member of Konoahasset lodge of Cohasset, South Shore Commandery, K. T., of East Weymouth, and Safety lodge, No. 96, New England Order of Protection of Weymouth. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Abbie Gilbert Locke and two daughters, Mrs. Martha L. Strang and Miss Agnes C. Locke, all of Weymouth Heights.

EDWARD F. KINGSLAND

Edward F. Kingsland died at his home 208 Broad street Sunday. He had been in poor health for some time, but his death was very sudden. He was out two days before. He was for years a motorman on the local street railway retiring some years ago on account of his health. The past summer he had been chauffeur for the C. M. Price Co., and later conducted a milk route. His widow was formerly Miss Margaret Stratton of Hingham; they had two children. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Ezra A. Hoyt of the First Universalist church at Hingham, and the burial was in the Fort Hill cemetery at West Hingham. Six brothers-in-law were bearers: John S. Stratton, James W. Stratton, James A. Conroy, Roy S. Horsman, William E. Dymont, and Einar J. Olsen.

ISABELLA S. NOYES

Mrs. Isabella Sherman Noyes, who passed away last Saturday, was born in Marshfield Jan. 12, 1838, the youngest of ten children of Peter and Ruth (Ewell) Sherman and she was the last of her generation.

As the older children one after another settled in Weymouth the father and mother followed with the younger children so that most of Mrs. Noyes' life was spent in our town. She was connected with three orders the Eastern Star, Women's Relief Corps and Rebekahs of which she was a charter member.

These were all represented at her funeral last Monday in the South Weymouth Universalist church where Rev. Mr. Watson had charge of the service. An appropriate address was made by Rev. Mr. Atwood, so well known and appreciated by Weymouth people, having been associated for years with Mrs. Noyes, he had had an opportunity to recognize her high character. The Eastern Star also held the service of its order and several musical selections were pleasingly rendered by Mrs. Eveline Sherman Philbrook, a great niece.

A widow for nearly forty years, Mrs. Noyes made her home in South Weymouth with a sister until her death a few years ago. After that except for a year spent with a niece in East Weymouth she lived with Mrs. Elton Sherman of South Weymouth, who will miss the companionship of her only family contemporary as she had a sweet and affectionate nature. Nephews and nieces are the nearest relatives left, her only daughter having died in childhood.

Burial was at Mt. Hope cemetery where prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Watson, who also made the prayer at the house before the church service.

Are Ward Caucuses and a Convention Legal?

The Gazette-Transcript has been asked to quote the law relative to caucuses for nomination of town officers; whether Ward Caucuses and Conventions are legal? Whether the Primaries did not take the place of General Caucuses?

The following provisions apply to all caucuses of political parties:

Section 71 of Chapter 53—In cities and towns which have not accepted the provisions of law relating to primaries for the nomination of municipal officers, political parties which nominate candidates for elective city or town offices shall do so by direct plurality vote in caucuses, except when city or town charters provide otherwise. All provisions of law relative to the preparation of nomination papers and ballots, to primaries and elections, and to recounts of such ballots, shall, so far as applicable, apply to such caucuses.

Section 82—At least two weeks prior to the date on which caucuses are to be held, the chairman or secretary of the city or town committee shall notify the aldermen or the selectmen respectively of such date, and said aldermen or selectmen shall at the expense of the city or town provide polling places for said caucuses, in case a city, not less than one for each ward; and shall at least ten days prior to the date of said caucus, give said chairman or secretary notice of the places so provided.

Section 83—Notice of caucuses, signed by the chairman and secretary, shall be issued by each city and town committee not less than seven days prior to the day on which they are to be held. The notices shall state the place where and the day and hour when the several caucuses are to be held. They shall be conspicuously posted in at least five places on the public ways, and if practicable, in every post office in the city or town, or shall be published at least twice in one or more local newspapers. The hour fixed for calling the caucus to order shall not be later than eight o'clock in the evening.

"The notice shall designate by name or office the person who shall call such caucus to order, and he shall preside until a chairman is chosen. If he is absent at the time appointed, any member of the ward or city committee present shall call the caucus to order and preside until a chairman is chosen. The first business in order shall be the choice of a chairman, a secretary, and such other officers as the meeting may determine. No person shall serve as a caucus officer at any caucus in which he is a candidate for a nomination to an elective office."

Section 107—"Caucuses, except as otherwise provided, shall be held in general accordance with the laws governing the conduct of elections and the manner of voting thereat."

Section 108—"The order of business shall be as follows:—
 "First, Any necessary preliminary business.

"Second, Balloting until 8.30 in the evening, when the polls shall be closed unless the caucus shall vote to keep them open until a late hour; but every voter waiting in line at the hour for closing the polls shall be allowed to vote."

"Third, After the polls have been closed, and other business properly before the caucus."

The following provisions apply to caucuses other than those of political parties.

Section 117 of Chapter 53—"A caucus of the voters, or of a specified portion thereof in a ward of a city, or in a town, may be called and held for the nomination of candidates to be voted for at any city election, or AT ANY ELECTION OF TOWN OFFICERS for which official ballots are used, or for the selection of delegates to a convention, or for appointment of a committee. A like caucus in any representative district may be held for the nomination of a candidate for Representative in the General Court. The proceedings of such caucuses shall be invalid unless at least 25 voters participate and vote therein. Except as provided otherwise in this chapter, the provisions of this chapter shall apply to such caucuses." (Continued on page 12)

SALT AND SOFT COAL

Some genius has discovered that ordinary table salt makes an ideal top dressing for a soft coal fire. This treatment, it is claimed, will not only put and keep the stove or heater in good order, but it will materially improve the fire and what is of much more importance, the salt acts as an effective safeguard against fires where they don't belong—outside the stove or heater. There is no intricate system for the application of this simple heating unit. Simply leave the dampers open during the process of assimilation, requiring a half hour or more, during which all excess soot or other foreign substance will be consumed and will disappear in smoke.

The Sacrifice They Made

By MARION A. CHILSON

It was dusk when Doris Royace dropped her book into her lap and gazed steadfastly across the water. Her thoughts went back to the day when she, with little Dick, had left home in bitter anger and had taken refuge here, in answer to Cousin Beth's invitation to spend a few weeks with her at her cottage on Lake Fairview. The quarrel had been over a trifling matter, but of the whole episode one utterance stood out clearly, the answer her husband had given to her hysterical statement that he no longer loved her.

"Love, real love, is gained only by sacrifice," were the words that repeated themselves over and over in the girl's troubled brain and puzzled her strangely. Another thing troubled Doris. Little Dick had always been his father's constant companion, and in his estimation no one else was quite so great as daddy. The two idolized each other, and now that they were separated the little fellow begged constantly for his father. It hurt Doris to refuse him, since he was not very well and never had been during his short life of four years. Often something within her whispered for the boy's sake, if none other, to forgive and forget. But in the end her pride always conquered.

Although the days at Fairview were full of young people, gayety and fun, they passed slowly for Doris. Something was lacking, and she, knowing where this something was and that her happiness depended upon it, could not reach out and grasp it, although it lay just beyond her reach.

Two weeks passed when, one afternoon, Doris, with the same heavy heart, put little Dick to sleep in his crib and then lay down herself. She awoke about two hours later and arose quickly, as she had slept longer than she had intended. Glancing toward the crib, she was astonished to see that it was empty. Rushing downstairs, she gave a hurried survey of the rooms. Her face went white as she noticed that the screen door was unlatched. Beth had forgotten it before going to her rooms.

A quick thought came to her. Twice before little Dick had started to find his daddy. Suddenly panic seized her as she noticed black thunder clouds gathering. Hastily she awoke Beth and together they made a more careful search. Beth telephoned to the neighboring cottages, but nothing had been seen of the runaway. Meanwhile the thunder rumbled and the storm drew closer.

Men from all around gathered and the little party began their search. Doris, wrapped in a raincoat like the men, went with them, as nothing could persuade her to remain at home. Her face was deathly white and her eyes were like coals, but with the others she pushed onward. The storm broke with torrents of rain, vivid lightning and crashes of thunder. Still the search continued. Doris trembled, but clung close to Beth and could not be forced to turn back. It was late when the storm let up and the moon broke through the black clouds. Slowly Doris became her own calm self, but the fear and pain in her heart were almost unbearable.

Midnight passed and they had almost decided to give up the search when Doris heard a slight noise and some way managed to slip away from the others unnoticed. Her heart gave a leap as she spied, a short distance ahead of her, a man half standing, holding a little figure in his arms. They were in the shadow of a large tree and the man's back was towards her, so that she could not see his face. As she approached they she bent over the little face.

"Oh, Dickie," she faltered. "Oh, darling! Is—he—hurt?" She asked this of the man, who had now risen to his feet.

Before he could speak, Dickie threw out his little arms. "Mother," the little voice was soft and unsteady; "mother, I've found my daddy." The baby eyes closed, and he snuggled closer to the man's breast.

"My Doris, could you ever forgive me?" The man put out his arms and drew her to him.

"Oh, Jack, you don't know how I've wanted you!" "Not any more than I've wanted you, my little girl," he whispered, as he kissed her quivering lips.

It was nearly morning when, at last, Dickie lay in his little bed, while the doctor said one word, "pneumonia," and shook his head doubtfully.

It was during these hours, while Dickie slept, that Jack Royace found a minute to explain. Finding life at home a torture without his wife and child, he had hired a cottage and, with a friend, had gone there for their vacation without the least knowledge of his wife's whereabouts. Upon the preceding afternoon, while walking alone, he had taken shelter from the storm in a cave. A few minutes before Doris found him holding the boy, he had heard a cry, and going out, had found Dickie in a wet, rumpled little bundle.

All of that night, the one following Dickie's rescue, Doris and Jack knelt side by side at the little white crib. It seemed to the two breaking hearts that all that they held most dear, most sacred, seemed slowly slipping away with each tiny breath that came from the white, still body. It was only occasionally that Dickie opened his big blue eyes, but seeing his father and mother, he closed them happily. Only once did he venture to speak, and then his voice was so weak that it frightened the listeners.

"Daddy, you will always stay with mother and me, won't you?"

"Yes, darling, I'll never go away again." Jack slipped his arm under the little fellow while Doris smoothed a little hand and smothered back a sob.

The end came about one. "Daddy," he whispered faintly, and then, fainter still, "mother." Jack crushed the little body against himself. Doris looked away for one long moment, and when she looked into the crib the little body once more lay white and still.

Two weeks later a white-faced woman and a grave, silent man sat alone in the moonlight. Their souls were full of grief, but they were young, and when you are young life is sweet, even though touched with sorrow or with bitterness.

The girl was the first to break the silence. "Jack, dear, long ago you said that real love was gained only by sacrifice. I didn't know what you meant then. I am just beginning to understand. You meant, dear, that we should give up, or be willing to give up, things we loved—be willing to sacrifice anything, or do anything for the other. But, Jack, we have now; we have sacrificed the one we loved best. We have sacrificed our darling for each other. Don't you see, dear? You didn't give him up for me, nor did I give him up for you, but we both gave him up for each other."

"Yes, Doris, and when you make such a big sacrifice, the biggest possible, the love ought to be the same, dear—the biggest, the best, also."

In the moonlight Doris's eyes slowly filled with tears. But behind them there was a new light, a light of glory, sweetness, love and the beauty of Jack drew her tight into his arms, and his lips touched her dusky hair, then they both looked away into the darkness to where little Dick slept.

And although he was no longer with them, his memory was dear, and his spirit seemed to be ever near, all about them, softening their sorrow and helping to increase the new love that he had created.

INDIAN UPRISING PUT DOWN

Notable Battle Between Aborigines and Spaniards Recorded in History of Durango, Mexico.

The name of the little settlement of Tepehuantes, in Durango, Mexico, recalls one of the earliest events in Durango's recorded history, a bulletin of the National Geographic society remarks. It was the tribe which gave the name to the village which, with the Tarahumares, arose against the Spanish settlers four years before Plymouth colony was founded. In that year some 25,000 Indians of these two tribes marched on Durango city. They killed missionaries and burned down churches as they moved. Not more than 600 white people withstood this siege, and even allowing for an exaggeration in their estimate of 15,000 of their enemy, killed, the white man's victory was a terrible lesson to their assailants.

These tribes had a beverage, resvino, peculiar to them—a beer, of milk and water hne—made from maize corn and grass seed.

The descendants of these Indians retain symbols introduced by early missionaries, but little of Christianity. When they worship, pagan gods before a Christian cross they pour out libations of resvino. They feed it to infants along with their mother's milk to ward off sickness. They use it as a liniment, and take it internally for every ill. They employ it at orgies with no thought of debauchery, for such orgies are part of their worship.

"Wild Spirit" Advances Illumination.

Man's eternal search for riches and the futile endeavors of alchemists to change the baser metals into gold, led to the accidental discovery of artificial gas.

John Baptiste van Helmont of Brussels studied and practiced medicine, and later turned to chemistry and research work in the Seventeenth century. In the course of his experiments with fuels in 1609 he discovered that they yielded what he described as "a wild spirit." He found that this "spirit" could be produced by means of combustion, fermentation and the action of acids on limestone.

So phantom-like and elusive was Van Helmont's discovery that he named it after "geist," the old German word for spirit. It was nearly 200 years after Van Helmont's discovery that practical steps were taken to harness this elusive spirit.

A Commute's Record.

"Did you attend the funeral of our late friend, Sam Bilets?"

"Yes. The preacher delivered an eloquent eulogy over Sam's remains, praising his qualities as a husband, a father and a citizen, but he failed to mention an achievement Sam bragged about more than anything else he ever did."

"What was that?"

"He commuted for twenty years and never missed the eight o'clock train to town."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Why Millionaires Keep Busy.

"Are you thinking of retiring from business?"

"The idea hadn't occurred to me," said Mr. Grabcoin.

"You have more money than you will ever be able to spend."

"What keeps me plugging away is the sad realization that there is more money in the world than I will ever be able to get."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Oh, Yes!
The apparently amorphous agglomeration of Dostoyevsky's work on close inspection reveals consistent and conscious architectonics. The incrustation of irrelevant incidents autonomous interpolations, and unassimilable sub-plots cannot defeat the linear logic of the crystal which his novels essentially have.—The New Republic.

These Beneficial Blues.
Here's a doctor saying a good word for the blues. As a means of calming excitable temperaments and highly strung nerves, an occasional gloomy outlook on life, he says, is distinctly beneficial. And of course we all know how profitable it is for dentists to feel down in the mouth.—Boston Evening Transcript.

Pathetic Russian Plaything.
A very primitive doll can be found in Russia. It is the moss doll, and it expresses the poverty and loneliness of Russia's forest regions. It is roughly made of wood, with a face of pathetic sadness, and is dressed in hood and clothes of forest moss. The male doll is distinguished from the female only by the hat which he carries.

The Judges Say—

You will hunt a long while for record of a conviction in any court of a boy who regularly attends Sunday school. Lawyers and judges know that the church is a constructive influence for peace and order. They know, too, that all law is founded upon the "old fashioned" Ten Commandments of Moses, which, if kept, would permit the scrapping of much court machinery.

God expects us to obey his laws because of love for him. He is an impartial judge, whose memory is as long as time, but who has promised that every one who comes unto him truly repentant will be forgiven.

Let us join with the judges and lawyers in supporting the church, which is fundamental to all law and order. Go to some church Sunday.

OUR 300TH ANNIVERSARY

Indications are that there will be no celebration of the 300th anniversary of the settlement of Weymouth unless a new committee is appointed. The writer is a member of the present committee and hereby tenders his resignation.

The chairman of the committee and some others seem to think that their chief duty was to erect a "Memorial" but long ago it was demonstrated that it would be impossible to finance the erection of a $50,000 memorial on the top of Great Hill, however commendable the project might be. Weymouth should have more memorials, but they will come in due time.

There is no article in the warrant for the special town meeting of Feb. 5, under which any action could be taken relative to the Anniversary, but an effort will be made by the chairman of the Anniversary Committee to bring up the question and seek instructions as to how the anniversary shall be celebrated.

By eliminating the memorial part of the celebration, it may be possible at this late date to present a program that will advertise Weymouth and keep her on the map. Rich in events of Pilgrim time, Weymouth could present a pageant which would be not only historical but one of progress.

It need not be as elaborate as Plymouth, but more like Cohasset, Gloucester, and other towns, and it would attract people from Boston to Weymouth.

There should be several productions of the pageant, perhaps every other night for two weeks.

If other events are desirable why not a banquet with addressed by Gov. Cox, Senator Lodge, Senator Walsh, and others.

WEYMOUTH POINTS THE WAY

If Weymouth is not to obtain publicity through the celebration of her 300th anniversary she may through the work of the Boy Scouts in ridding the town of rats. The Dedham Transcript comments as follows:

"Weymouth and the rat are about to part company. That alluring section of Massachusetts immortalized by the pen of Joe Lincoln, has joined the League of Spotted Towns, and will henceforth wage a relentless war against rodents. The town selectmen have placed their official seal on this worthy enterprise with a bounty of ten cents, a munificent price when one attempts to appraise the real value of a rat. And yet, measured in terms of destructiveness, the rat power of this country can be rated up to several million dollars.

"Not alone for their organized crusade against rats are the wise people of Weymouth to be congratulated. They have enlisted all the Boy Scout troops in town and these, once organized, mean a mighty host encamped against Mr. Rat. The one regret is that all such organized attempts at rat extermination drive a large part of the rodent population elsewhere. In order to be effective the crusade should be state-wide. It might profitably be nation-wide."

TOWN CAUCUSES

vided in this section, no caucus or meeting other than those of political parties shall be entitled to nominate a candidate whose name shall be placed on the official ballot, or to select delegates to a political convention for the nomination of a candidate whose name shall be placed on such ballot.

In the General Laws of 1921 there are provisions for the acceptance of the Primary Act of voters of Weymouth so petition.

None of the above sections of the General Laws seem to justify the "convention" which the Republicans call a "general caucus", and there would seem to be a question about the legality of "Ward Caucuses" in towns, though they may be held in cities. The law seems to provide for ONLY ONE caucus by a political party.

The following Weymouth transfers of real estate were recorded in the Norfolk registry last week:

Rose A. Holma to Gust Holma, Commercial street.
Waldo M. Oakman et al to M. Grace Scannell, Lake Shore drive, Pine Ridge road.
Theodore Raymond to Roy A. Pace, Summer street.
Leona M. Savage to Alina Leinonen.

SHUBERT THEATRE

"Naughty Diana" is the enticing title of the merry musical comedy which comes to the Shubert theatre, Boston, for a brief visit beginning Monday night, Feb. 5.

"Naughty Diana" is another A. H. Wood production. Its featured member is Charles Ruggles, well known and well liked in Boston through his excellent performances here with "The Girl in the Limousine", "Ladies Night", and other farces. But in this instance Mr. Ruggles will have the assistance of a large musical comedy chorus of Danas of whom it is said that "none of them are homey, but all of them are homeless". The "homeless" feature of the plot concerns the tendency of the leading character to offer a refuge to young ladies who are without a parental and protecting roof over their pretty heads. Naturally enough the philanthropic gentleman soon has his house filled with such attractive bit of femininity and the complications that ensue are due to the fact that he is unfortunately, a married man.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE

"Just Married", the famous laughing success with Vivian Martin and Lynne Overman, at the Plymouth theatre, Boston, now entering its fourth week in Boston, continues to play to undiminished business, and is crowding the house at every performance. There is every indication that "Just Married" will duplicate in Boston the success it has achieved in New York, Chicago, and Philadelphia.

The story of "Just Married" centers about a gently stimulated young man who gets aboard the French Line steamship "Lafayette" by mistake, just before she sails from Bordeaux, France, for New York. There are several oddly assorted couples aboard, old and young, married and unmarried and some honeymooners, willing and unwilling. From the time the stimulated gentleman comes aboard, without any effort of will on his part, they are all so deviled, scrambled and messed up that there is apparently no untangling their difficulties. There seems to be only two ways out, either the ship must be put back to Bordeaux, or the young man must be thrown overboard. Things come right eventually after three hours of hearty laughter, however, and the voyage peacefully proceeds.

ST. JAMES THEATRE

At the St. James this week the Boston Stock Company will be seen in "Grumpy". It will mark the first presentation here of this play in nine years when it was last seen at the Hollis and Plymouth theatres with Cyril Maude, Elsie Mackay, and Herbert Marshall. This time Mark Kent, Walter Gilbert, and Adelyn Bushnell will share honors with the other members of the company. The title of the play is taken from the nickname given Andrew Bullivant on account of his constant scolding. Ernest Heron, Grumpy's nephew, has been sent from Africa to deliver a valuable diamond. Ernest, who is in love with Virginia, Grumpy's ward, is disturbed by her interest in a Mr. Jarvis, who is visiting Grumpy. Ernest is found unconscious one night and the diamond has disappeared.

Variety of Summers.

St. Michael's summer in England, and two other "little summers," correspond to the American Indian summer. According to tradition, St. Michael's summer arrives about September 29 and stays two or three days. The other two bursts of summer due before winter really comes are St. Luke's summer, due about October 18, and St. Martin's summer, due about November 11.

WALSH, SMOOT TILT ON TARIFF

Former Says Levies Raise Prices of Overcoats by $5 and $10

LATTER PUTS BLAME ON RAW WOOL COST

(Special Dispatch to the Herald)
Washington, Jan. 23—Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, and Senator Reed Smoot, Republican, Utah, engaged in a lively tilt in the Senate today, when Senator Walsh called on Senator Smoot to admit that the Republican tariff had increased the cost of clothing. This is the first there has been discussion in this session of the Senate of the effect of the tariff on the cost of living.

Senator Walsh used statements taken from the Daily News Record, a trade paper of New York, reporting the opening of the American Woolen Co.'s fall lines in New York Monday. These showed, he said, that on fifty leading worsted staples displayed there is an advance of 12 1/2 percent over the prices for the fall of 1922.

"WILL RAISE PRICE"
The effect of this, said Senator Walsh, quoting the opinions of clothing manufacturers who were at the opening, will be to raise the price of suits and overcoats for next winter all along the line from the cheapest to the highest in quality, by $5 or $10.

WE, as merchants who are anxious to keep prices down, are sorry to say this is a cold, hard fact and is one big reason why the prudent man or young man should take advantage now of our semi-annual Cems of Truth.

The following striking sayings seem inflated at a recent conference on church publicity: "Get the facts or the facts will get you." "A hearse is a poor vehicle in which to ride to church—why wait for it?" "I've been in the harness in this church for the past twenty-two years." "Yes—during that time you've worn out fifteen hold-backs and only one collar."

Had a Kick Coming.

"Moike," said Patrick, "You look down in the mouth. Has anything happened to you." "Rotten luck, bedad. A big beam just fell on a man at the factory and killed him," replied Mike. "An' was he a friend of yours?" inquired Patrick. "No," said the other, "but the man I owed a dollars to begorra, was standing right next to him, and escaped as if by a miracle."

Opportunities Ever Present.

Men can be as original now as ever if they had but the courage, even the insight. Heroic souls in old times had no more opportunities than we have but they used them. There were daring deeds to be done then—are there none now? Wrongs to be redressed—are there none now?—Charles Kingsley.

South Sea Islands.

Polynesia, from two Greek words meaning "many islands," is the name generally applied to the South Sea Islands. The chief group embraces Hawaii, the Ellice, Phoenix, Union, Manihiki and Marquesas group Samoa and Tonga and the Cook, Society, Tubna and Taumotu groups.

WITH THE FUNNY MEN

SO SENSITIVE ABOUT IT

"Is Mrs. Peckton much cast down since she was defeated in her race for congress?"
"So much so," replied Mr. Peckton, "that I don't believe I'll ever take her on another visit to Washington."
"Why not?"
"At the mere sight of those legislative halls she so confidently expected to adorn she'd burst into tears."

Some Reasons.

Mr. Pester—"You're 12 pounds under weight. Why did you buy that book on 'How to Reduce'?"
His Wife—"Well, I might get fat and then it would come in handy and then I might build up by doing just the opposite from what the book says. Besides it was marked down to half price. And—Oh, you mind your own business."

Free-and-Easy Railroad.

"How far are we from Juniper Junction, conductor?"
"About 40 miles, ma'am."

"And when are we due to get there?"
"Oh, in about two hours, ma'am, if the engine holds out. But even if we don't get there in three hours, Juniper Junction is the kind of town that is willing to wait."

Not Foolish.

Meredith—I think Brown was foolish in spending all that money on a wireless outfit just because his wife wanted to listen to the free air concerts.

Webster—Foolish, indeed! He says the extra hours of quiet he gets every evening now are worth ten times the price he paid.

Old-Fashioned Wit.

A young man at a party was urged to entertain the company with a song.
"But I can't sing," he said rather testily. "You only want to make a butt of me."

"Not at all, old man," returned the other. "We merely want to get a stove out of you."

"You didn't agree to get the lady a divorce?"

Wedding Note.

"Not long ago," says a metropolitan newspaper man, "I ran across a country paper which contained this paragraph in regard to a local wedding: 'The bride wore a lizard-green silk on whose cheek blossomed the flush of dawning womanhood.'"

The Old Lady Again.

Caller—I am glad your niece is getting along so well with her studies. Do you think she will get on the merit roll?"

Mrs. Blunderby—Oh, undoubtedly. Her teacher says her work is so meretricious.

Hardly.

"If you will allow me to advise you, my boy, I wouldn't propose."

"Why not?"
"She isn't pretty."
"She has an adorable back."
"Still, you don't want that turned on you all your married life."

Hanging Around.

Policeman—Have you any suspicious characters hanging around here?

Sly Villager—Well, I did see one fella hanging on a tree down the road, but he wasn't suspicious, he was dead.

Fifty Dollars Down.

Brown—How do you like buying a house on the installment plan?

Greene—It has its drawbacks. By the time I have my house paid for it will be so old and devastated that I will have to build a new one.

New Party Will Nominate Town Officers

A Citizens Non-Partisan party was launched in Weymouth Wednesday evening, with Frank N. Clapp of Weymouth as chairman, P. S. Comstock of Weymouth as secretary, and Thomas P. Vaile of South Weymouth as treasurer. There is also an executive committee including the above and John H. Moran of East Weymouth, Charles R. Greeley of South Weymouth, Charles H. Williams of North Weymouth, Thomas Coffey of East Weymouth, Richmond Litchfield and Joe Taylor of South Weymouth.

The following preamble was adopted:

"We assert that a political party, as recognized in the larger fields of National and State management, has no place in the management of our town affairs.

"Town matters call urgently for business acumen and broad intelligence, the same as pertains to the control and successful results of all commercial enterprises.

"We maintain that all voters in our town should show active interest in every town question, that in a non-partisan caucus only can they secure political efficiency.

"We citizen voters of Weymouth, regardless of political party affiliations, assembled in mass meeting, do endorse the foregoing preamble and do now organize a Citizens Non-partisan party. This organization shall be governed by the State laws pertaining to caucuses and nominations assembled in mass meeting nominate candidates for any or all town offices, and take any action thought advisable upon questions pertaining to the best interests of the town.

"In nominating candidates for Selectmen, not more than one shall be nominated for any ward, either in a ward mass meeting caucus, or in the town mass meeting caucus.

The officers of this organization shall be a chairman, whose duty shall be to preside over all meetings; a secretary, who shall record all proceedings and preserve the same; a treasurer, who shall have custody of all funds and keep minute records of all receipts and expenditures; all disbursements shall bear in items what for and to whom paid and receipted, provided however it shall be endorsed as correct by the chairman. Also an executive committee of nine. The chairman of the organization shall ex-officio be chairman of this committee and the secretary of this committee shall ex-officio be secretary of this committee, and seven shall be elected by the members in mass meeting assembled.

"In case of the absence of the chairman or secretary at any mass meeting or any committee meeting the executive committee shall elect a temporary chairman or secretary or both as the case may require. A majority of the committee shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of any business. All committee meetings shall be called by the chairman through the secretary and care taken that each member receives notice.

"All these officers shall hold office until the end of the general mass meeting in 1924 when after all nominations and other business shall have been finished their successors shall be elected.

"The general mass meeting shall be that held for nominating candidates, etc., for the Annual Town Election in March of each year. It shall determine the date of the annual meeting of this organization when at its end, as indicated above, officers shall be elected for the ensuing year.

Cash contributions were made by those present to provide funds for the committee.

The executive committee realize that time is short, but they will immediately ascertain at the State House their status and make nominations for the town election either by caucus or by nomination papers.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

On Sunday, Feb. 11, at 3.30 a memorial service for the late Mrs. Mary E. Holbrook will be held in the Old South church, South Weymouth. FIRE AT CLAPP FACTORY

Spontaneous combustion caused a large loss from water at the shoe factory of E. Clapp & Son at 4.40 this morning.

Box 226 was pulled and the fire department laid lines of hose, but used only a fire extinguisher. Fire sprinklers prevented the fire from spreading, but caused a heavy loss from water.

The fire started under a bench in the packing room on the second floor. Box 226 was pulled twice.

The World in Weymouth in Exhibit and Pageant

On Wednesday evening with an Oriental-American banquet, followed by a pageant entitled "Tasks and Talents", the four days Missionary Exhibit at the East Weymouth Congregational church came to a close. Its success far exceeded the original plans.

All tickets for the banquet were eagerly purchased in advance and none were disappointed. The menu had many unusual dishes, but people were ready to try them; it included: baked beans, Turkish pilaf, fruit salad, dolma, paklava, Turkish coffee, baked Indian pudding, and lokoum (Turkish paste).

The entertainment of the evening was a pageant "Tasks and Talents" presented by the Y. P. S. C. E. under the direction of Miss Martha Hawes and Miss Janet Harlow. Music under the direction of Miss Elizabeth R. Taylor. The pageant was preceded by a junior play entitled "Missionary Martyrs" under the direction of Mrs. Edward P. Hunt.

The Sunday morning program included a sermon by the pastor on "The Eastern Window" assisted by Mrs. Anna Hume Lee, who made her appeal for India. The church decorations were of flags of the missionary countries.

The Sunday School children were addressed at 12 by Mrs. Lee in costume, singing and reading in Marathi.

Sunday evening, B. P. Hivale, Hindu of Bombay, student at Harvard. Special music.

Exhibit opened at 4 on Monday for the Monday club. One room devoted to A. M. A. exhibit. The A. M. A. is home missionary society of Congregational church doing its work largely with Negroes and Indians in United States. The exhibit was arranged progressively: 1—The Negro in Africa. 2—The Negro in slavery. 3—The Negro freed. 4—The Negro educated. The Civil War veterans of Reynolds Post had their exhibit of Civil War mementos. In the A. M. A. exhibit, Normal and Industrial, Negro and Indian schools were represented by handwork of students.

A second room was arranged with sand table, studies of African, Japanese, Chinese, Turkish, and Arabian villages. Large colored framed pictures covered the walls.

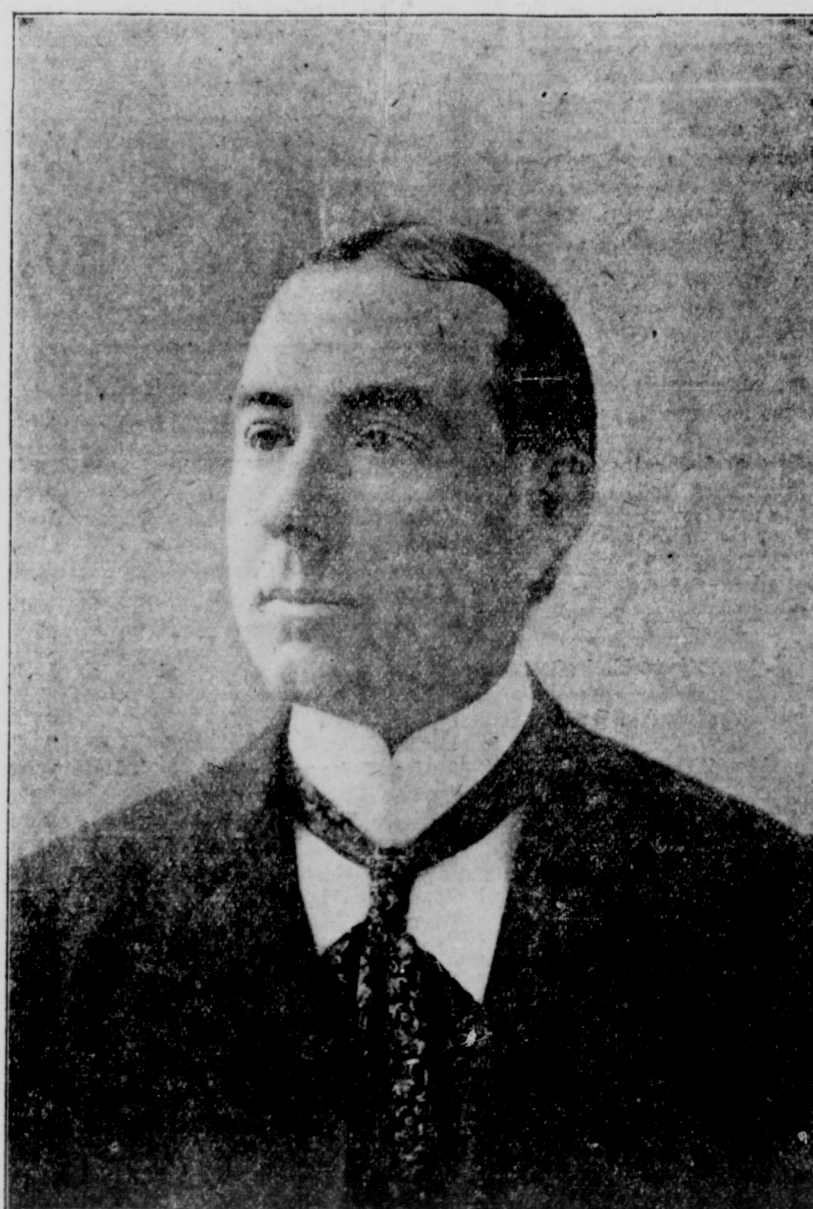

The dining room was arranged for American Board Exhibit, the foreign mission work being represented by cribs and pictures. There were Chinese, Japanese, Turkish, and India

See What the New Plans for High School Call For

Did you attend High School? If you did you are interested in what follows.

If not, your children may be attending or will do so soon. Hence this should interest you.

Wanted at once! Accommodations—more room at the High School. The present High School is overcrowded. Many new pupils every year have caused this. The present building is far too small. It is up to you to act, and speedily. Attend yourself or be sure every town meeting member is present at the next meeting. Shall less than ninety voters in this town representing 5000 stand in the way of your child and mine receiving what is justly his or her right—a High School education—full time and under conditions adapted for them to receive full benefit from the courses offered?

These are plain facts, my friends. More room is urgently needed; it must be had. Every effort must be put forward to obtain. The scholars are going in relays, short periods, throughout the day; the rooms are overcrowded and inconvenient. The remedy is new quarters, even after a start is made it will take time to finish any addition. But the start must be made at once. A committee has been busy since your last town meeting; has carefully and fully gone into the matter and has presented a report worthy of your earnest and serious consideration. Read it through carefully and think it over and then get busy with your representatives.

The committee says: The proposed extension of the Weymouth High School has been so planned as to provide for future expansion, avoid loss in the use of the present building with minimum changes in the interior to make this a valuable asset in the total cost. The present driveway and elevation from the street would not be changed.

The present building stands as it does today. Inside a few partitions for new rooms and the changing over of the now inconvenient and awkwardly placed hall. The expense of heating and lighting when not in use will be eliminated.

The same type of construction will be used as in the present building insuring complete harmony.

The new construction is at the south and southeast of the present building, forming a right angle and the new construction is then 200 feet or so from the street, not near enough to be disturbed by any traffic annoyance or noises.

The committee has wisely and carefully considered the lay of the ground (so to speak). It must be remembered that north, west, and south of present building are rocky ledges—hence the school is founded on the rocks (and will stand forever).

The south ledge is near the surface close to present building, then slopes. Blasting is both dangerous and expensive. To avoid blasting this ledge will not be excavated. The cost pocket will be located in a natural low point on the extreme south of the new building. The entire plant would conform to present grades with little excavation cost in fact a saving and yet produce a well lighted ground floor.

The committee's report is full and complete even to what cost, if action is taken promptly will be, they say, based on actual estimates and including furnishing and altering the present total cost would be $300,000.

If the cost of the present building which has already paid for itself is added to this the cost per pupil is $390. This is less than some built prior to the war and the minimum cost of new ones is $700 per pupil.

But remember and this important fact must be considered. Any builder or concern furnishing materials will tell you prices change daily. A committee cannot be held responsible for these advances and if you wish to get the results the committee after special investigation say you can, you must act now in fairness to the committee. Or by waiting it will mean additional cost. Committee also says:

Limited periods of use of the platoon system are only a makeshift until extension is possible and will gradually lower the educational standard. If lower construction costs were probable in the immediate future, continuation of this could reasonably be advocated. It does not seem possible that present labor and material shortage will permit lower prices for four or five years. On the contrary it is anticipated that contracts which are not placed before this spring will be subject to a rising market.

On good authority it is stated that at least $15,000 can be saved if the report is accepted and the order passed now.

The passing or voting on this proposition is only a start, an awful lot of work remains to be done after you vote on it.

Now, please consider the foresight of the committee, who not only have furnished you plans, and prints of construction, but say how it may be used. They have worked on a useance or noises.

MONDAY CLUB

Another of the very attractive programs arranged by the executive committee of the Monday Club was enjoyed by a large number of members on Monday. After the customary opening exercises, including the Salute to the Flag the regular business meeting was held.

Mrs. John Leighton at the president's request read the State Federation president's monthly letter, after which the club appropriated $10 to the Julia Ward Howe memorial in the headquarters at Washington.

President Mrs. Libby called attention to the recent loss of two members by death, Mrs. Eliza Smith and Mrs. Sarah Pierce and bereavements in the families of two other members, Mrs. Herbert Rockwood in the loss of her father and Mrs. Amos Locke in the loss of her husband.

The program consisted of vocal solos and a reading. Miss Ruth Larerstrom of Dorchester, accompanied by Mrs. Hodges gave two very attractive groups of songs, among which were "Mighty Lak a Rose", "Monarch of the Rose", "April Morn".
Her pleasing manner and very sweet voice were enjoyed by all. While Miss Elizabeth Garrett Whiting has appeared before the Monday Club a number of times, her refreshing personality and charming manner in giving her readings centers around a young doctor who confidently pro-scribes for his first patient who is ailing with a bad case of love sickness and jealousy, but before the end of the story the young doctor needs treatment for the same serious malady himself. Miss Whiting's portrayal of the half dozen characters of the play was very vivid and applause greeted her at each entrance on the stage.

At the conclusion of the program many of the members availed themselves of the opportunity to see the missionary exhibit down stairs in the church and to enjoy the Oriental Tea to which the Missionary Society of the church invited members of

DANGERS OF A COLD

Weymouth People Will Do Well to Heed Them

Many had cases of kidney trouble result from a cold or chill. Congested kidneys fall behind in filtering the poison-laden blood and backache, headache, dizziness, and disordered kidney action follow. Don't neglect a cold. Use Doan's Kidney Pills at the first sign of kidney trouble. Follow this Weymouth resident's example:

Mrs. M. McCartney, 46 Granite street, says: "Some time ago while living in Scotland, I was troubled with my kidneys, caused by a cold which settled in them. My kidneys felt dull and heavy and they acted too frequently. My back was lame and I had a constant aching pain in the small of it which bothered me mornings when I got up. A friend told me of Doan's Kidney Pills so I got a box and they soon relieved the trouble. After using a few more boxes of Doan's the pains left and I was completely cured".

ROOKIES TRAINING FOR AUTO SQUAD

Showing How Spare "Shoe" Are Stolen From Rear of Car.

One of the greatest sources of worry for the New York police department is the matter of stolen automobiles. Annually thousands of cars are stolen, and in many instances they are recovered. The thieves have many ways in which they make away with the cars, likewise are they learned in altering the appearance of a stolen car so that it is not easily recognized. Changing license plates, removing the serial numbers of the motor, repainting and in some cases rebuilding the body; these are some of the steps taken by the auto thieves to disguise stolen cars. The police have taken stringent steps to prevent a spread of the thievery and are training rookies for the special duty of detecting and recovering stolen cars.

HOW TO START A STALLED CAR

Twelve-Foot Length of Insulated Wire Connected as Shown Did the Trick.

ACTION WHEN IGNITION FAILS

Not Always Easy to Determine Which Is Right Terminal on Coil—Care Is Necessary to Secure Good Connection.

A motorist in distress recently asked for help because his ignition had failed. In view of a threatened snowstorm and rapidly approaching darkness, it was desirable to remedy the trouble as quickly as possible. A hasty examination showed that the fuse was intact; but the maze of wiring of the switchboard and the connecting instruments was far too complicated to detach and make any repairs, even with the manufacturer's chart at hand to explain the intricacies of the wiring. Nevertheless, we had the motor running in less than five minutes. The means used was simply a 12-foot length of insulated wire connected as shown.

When the ignition fails and the trouble seems to be somewhere between the coil and the battery, the quickest way to get the engine going is to run a special wire direct from the battery to the coil.

Inasmuch as there are usually from two to four terminals on the coil, it is not always easy to say which is the right one. Sometimes the manufacturer's instruction book will indicate it, or the right terminal may be determined by trial; usually it will be the terminal which indicates a live circuit when tested by the simple process of rubbing the special wire on it.

When the breaker points are closed, in connecting the end of the special wire to a terminal, be sure that the regular wire has first been disconnected.

The other end of the special wire should be connected with the side of the battery that is not grounded. Care must be exercised to obtain a good connection at this point. Scraper the electrode clean, and if any difficulty is experienced in obtaining a good spark, make a nail hole in the electrode and wedge a few strands of wire into it, as illustrated.

When this connection is made, the ignition switch will be inoperative, but the engine may be stalled by bringing the car to a stop and letting the clutch in gently while the brake is on. Care should be taken to crank the engine immediately after making the connection and to disconnect the wire as soon as the motor stops in order to prevent the coils becoming overheated.—M. R. V., in Popular Science Monthly.

Mileage Told by Tires. Tires tell mileage history more convincingly even than speedometers. The appearance of a car is frequently made or marred by condition of the tires.

CAUSE OF ACCIDENTS.

Among the causes of traffic accidents are careless driving, children playing in the streets, poor parking accommodations, insufficient playgrounds, bad street lighting, lack of signs, narrow street fronts, inadequate police force and unintelligent traffic regulations.

KEROSENE NOT GOOD AS ENGINE CLEANSER

Drained Case Should Be Treated With Fresh Engine Oil.

Engineers Have Figures to Prove That New Method Is More Economical—Drain About Every 500 Miles During Winter.

Kerosene used to be a good standby on which motorists depended for cleaning their engines.

Now come oil engineers with the declaration that kerosene causes a loss of 18 per cent of the total lubricating capacity of an automobile.

So, instead of using kerosene to flush out the crank case, those who have studied this phase of motoring say the drained case should be cleaned with fresh engine oil.

This costs more money, and arouses a bit of suspicion, when it is known that this advice comes from the oil companies. But their engineers have the figures to prove that, in the long run, the new method is the more economical.

Engines that have any form of splash lubrication have oil troughs and pockets in which part of the kerosene used for flushing is sure to remain. In some cars, say the oil engineers, the kerosene retained in this way represents 18 per cent of the total lubricating capacity of the car.

It is safer, therefore, to use the regular kind of engine oil. The crank case should be drained about every 1,000 miles in summer, and every 500 miles in winter. Every time the change is made, the case should be flushed with engine oil instead of kerosene.

The oil used for this purpose can be put to other lubricating uses. Regular cleaning of the crank case means longer life for the engine. The carbon that accumulates there in a season's run is enough to wear down the bearings, pistons and cylinder walls in a short time.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

The old system of throwing the clutch out before applying the brakes is fast becoming taboo.

The record for changing a tire of an ordinary small automobile is 3 minutes, 28 1-5 seconds.

If a loose bolt or nut slips into the drip pan it is wise to immediately locate where it belongs and reset it.

In connecting up any battery, wet cells or dry cells, care should be taken to use a good grade of insulated rubber covered wire.

When tightening nuts which hold wires to spark plugs, the wires should be held firmly with one hand while the nuts are being tightened with a pair of pliers in the other hand.

One of the selections rendered was a march that Comrade Ventre composed for the Post and he should be complimented for his ability as a writer of music. The subject of the Post's annual slow was discussed and brought to a many good suggestions. Comrade

Johnson reported for the committee that was chosen to select the type of slow that would be suitable for the occasion and explained in detail one that met with the approval of all the members, the name of which will be given out at a later date. The committee that was selected to put this slow across were Comrades Leonard, Haviland, Leo Cote, Johnson, Heald, and Warren. Now it is up to every member of the Post to work with this committee and put this annual show across big. This entertainment will be given shortly after Easter, so get together boys and show the people of Weymouth what we can do. The committee for this show will meet at the town offices Friday evening Feb. 9, at 7:30.

Comrade Henry Litchfield was chosen as chaplain of the Post for the ensuing year.

The Post accepted the invitation of the Rev. K. A. Handanian, pastor of the East Weymouth Congregational church to attend the memorial services to be held at that church Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. Comrades will kindly meet at the G. A. R. hall at 6:30 o'clock and will be escorted to the church by the Legion Band. The Band will take part in the church exercises. It is requested that all members that can will wear their uniforms; but it is not necessary. Do not forget the time 6:30 o'clock at G. A. R. hall.

The matter of Legion members taking an interest in town affairs was brought up and every member of the Post that is a member of the town committee is requested to be present at the Special Town Meeting next Monday night. It is not the policy of the Legion to enter into politics. But it is the duty of every member of the Legion to take an interest in and to help make the town of Weymouth the best in the state.

The next meeting of the Post will be held Monday evening, Feb. 19, in G. A. R. hall.

This will be a social meeting and every member is requested to bring some exercise man along with him. There will be an entertainment of some sort, plenty of eats, and smokes for everyone. So postpone all other engagements and be there strong on Monday evening, Feb. 19, and see what we have in the line of monthly socials.

Two new members were enrolled Monday night into the Post, so you can see that "Coo Coo" was right when he said, "Day by day in every way we are getting better and better."

HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL

After several unforeseen delays and two cancellations of games because of the terrible weather condition the Weymouth High school basketball team has started its season in top style. Although the team has been defeated three times by three of the best High school teams in the game, namely, Abington, Reading and Boston College High, it has emerged the winner from two hard-fought games, namely, Milton Academy and the Weymouth High School Alumni or Weymouth All Stars.
Last year's team went to Abington and was defeated by Abington to the tune of 72 to 36 while this year's team journeyed to the same hall and was defeated by the same Abington team by the small score of 22 to 18.
Last year on Weymouth's home floor it was defeated by the Boston College High school team 29 to 13, while this year on the same court we were defeated by the B. C. High team 28 to 22.
These comparisons are pictured to show the vast improvement in Coach "Willie" Whittle's team. The team is captained by Irving C. Keene (unanimous choice of the players) son of Mr. and Mrs. Miles P. Keene of 21 off Green street, North Weymouth. The lineup of the team contains three veteran players or two years experience, William F. "Billy" Shields, veteran and cracker-jack forward; James "Jimmie" Daniele, new to the High school team, but veteran of the court, indispensable; forwards, Capt. Irving C. Keene and George "Haddie" Dwyer, veteran first class back and most outstanding player, who will be captain of next year's squad, and last but not least, there is the widely known, highly appreciated back in the person of Arthur Mauro, commonly known as Fozzi. Coach Whittle's choice of George Craig forward and Charles "Snapper" Kelley, center, will speak for itself as to the worth of these two "subs" chosen from fifteen.
The schedule for the season is as follows:
Jan. 12—Reading at Reading
Jan. 16—Milton Academy at Milton
Jan. 19—Abington at Abington
Jan. 25—B. C. High at Weymouth
Jan. 31—Attleboro at Weymouth
Feb. 2—Mansfield at Weymouth
Feb. 6—Open
Feb. 9—Medford at Medford
Feb. 13—Belmont at Belmont
Feb. 16—Milton at Milton
Feb. 20—Milton at Weymouth
Feb. 23—Allen School at Newton
Feb. 28—Abington at Weymouth
Mar. 2—Mansfield at Mansfield
Mar. 6—Reading at Weymouth
Mar. 9—Northeastern College at Weymouth
Mar. 14—Belmont at Weymouth
Mar. 16—Attleboro at Attleboro
The team is managed by Edward W. Callahan and he requests everybody in Weymouth to come to the Clapp Memorial building in East Weymouth to all of the High School games.

The February Scribner's opens with an article of exceptional romantic and historical interest by Clifford Albion Tinker, about the beautiful old church in Selby, Yorkshire, England, known as "Selby Abbey". It was founded in 1069 by a young Benedict, a monk of Auxerre, in France who dreamed strange dreams and left his native monastery to wander afar.

"THIS IS MURDER"

CHAPTER II—Continued.

Currie rose and suggested we play a game of billiards; and the conversation about the burglary ended. While I play at the game, Bartley plays with unaccustomed skill, and both Currie and the doctor were almost equally good players. It was not until some hours later, when the doctor was called away by telephone, that we realized how late it was.

Bartley and I were tired after our ride and the long hours of visiting, and we went immediately to our rooms. Neither was inclined to talk, but Bartley did unburden himself enough to say he believed that Slyke knew who had committed the burglary, but for some reason wanted to hide the fact. Five minutes later, I was in bed and asleep.

I slept without dreaming, until someone aroused me by a vigorous shake. Bending over me, already dressed, was Bartley. I vaguely noticed a strange look in his eyes and traces of excitement on his face, but I was too tired to be interested and started to turn over and go to sleep again. He threw the covers off me, saying in an eager voice:

"Get up, Pelt, get up quick! Doctor King has just phoned us to meet him at Slyke's house. They found Slyke in his bed—" he paused—"dead."

"Dead?" I questioned. "But why—how—"

Bartley did not wait for me to finish. "Shot. They told King it was suicide."

CHAPTER III

Suicide or Murder.

I was out of bed in a moment, and getting into my clothes as rapidly as I could. Fully dressed, I followed Bartley out onto the lawn, which was still wet with the morning dew. We crossed the field and went through the woods in silence. At last I ventured to ask what it was that he had heard regarding Slyke's death.

"About five minutes before I woke you, King phoned to say that he had been called to Slyke's house—that he was dead. He was told that he had committed suicide."

"Why should he have killed himself?" I asked. "He did not look to me like a man who had nerve enough for that."

"In a moody tone Bartley replied, 'I don't think he did,' and left me to puzzle out his meaning."

When we reached the house there was no outward evidence that anything unusual had taken place. Doctor King's car was coming up the drive as we neared the front of the house. With him was a short, red-faced Irishman in police uniform, whom he introduced, a moment later, as Roche, the chief of the local police force.

Bartley turned to the doctor. "Just what did they tell you over the phone?" he asked.

"Only what I told you. I had just gotten out of bed, when the bell rang and an excited voice asked me to come at once, as they had just found Slyke dead and thought he had killed himself."

Before we could ring, in fact before we could reach the top step of the piazza, the door was flung open and a woman of about fifty rushed wildly to the doctor's side. She was far from an attractive woman, thin, with what is called a hatchet face. Her shrill voice broke as she grabbed the doctor's arm and cried:

"It's come, doctor, it's come, just as I expected. He's killed himself. Oh, I knew there would be trouble. Night after night I have had a message on the ouija board. It said again and again, 'Trouble, trouble coming.' And I have dreamed that he was dead, too. It's come. He is dead."

Bartley gave me a look. This, he knew, was Miss Potter, the sister of Slyke's dead wife and an ardent spiritualist.

It was some time before the doctor could get her calmed down enough to introduce us.

and answered excitedly, "The butler found him. Mr. Slyke was going fishing today, and was to have been called early. The butler went to knock on his door and found it half opened and—"

Bartley interrupted, "Then, I take it, he usually kept the door of his room locked."

"He did, I do not know why. The butler saw it was open, looked in, called him, and got no answer. Then he came and told me. I was at breakfast. I went to his room, and there he was—" and her voice trailed off in horror.

Bartley's face was very grave as he said, "What did you do when you found he was dead?"

For the hundredth time she brushed the hair from her eyes. "I called the servants—Ruth was not here. Then I telephoned for the doctor."

Roche did not like Bartley's doing all the questioning, and he asserted his official position by saying that it was time we went up to the room where Slyke lay. Miss Potter led the way, walking like one weary and overwhelmed with grief. The room, thirty feet square, was larger than I had expected to find. It was furnished like a den. The bed in one corner was the only evidence that it was used for sleeping purposes. Under the white coverlet we could see the still form of a man huddled in a heap, lying on his back, his legs extending into the air a little beyond the foot of the bed. His face was half hidden by the bedclothes, which were closely drawn around his neck and over his chin. The doctor had taken his position at Slyke's head, and we all stood about him in silence until Bartley's voice broke the stillness.

"Miss Potter, when you came in did you touch the bedclothes at all?" She hesitated a second, as if trying to think, then replied, "No, I gave a quick look, saw he was dead, and hurried from the room."

"And they are just as you found them—I mean, up around his chin this way?"

"So far as I know. The butler says he never went near the bed at all."

Without a word, Bartley pulled back the covers as far as the man's chest. Slyke's nightshirt had not been buttoned. His face was calm, showing not the slightest sign of a death struggle; his eyes closed; his mouth partly open. As Bartley pulled the clothes still further down, we saw that the right hand held a revolver. Then we noticed the wound that had caused his death. It was under his left ear, half hidden by the pillow, on which were a few drops of blood.

The doctor knelt and examined the wound closely, then rose to his feet. Bartley in turn bent over the body, but he turned his attention to the hand holding the revolver. It lay close to the side of the body with the fingers gripping the butt firmly. Bartley moved it a little, but did not attempt to loosen their clutch. With another glance at the pillow and the face upon it, he rose, his lips compressed, his face grave.

Roche turned to us with a half smile. "It's such a simple case, Mr. Bartley, that it won't need any of your skill to solve it. The doctor won't need to hold a long inquest. It's as clear a case of suicide as I have ever seen. He undressed, got in bed, and then shot himself. There is the gun in his hand. Not much in this case, is there?"

The doctor half nodded in agreement; but Bartley, as if he had not heard, bent again over the bed, his face stern, and examined the revolver. When he straightened up, he said simply, "It's serious enough, Chief. Murder always is, and this is murder."

At his words Miss Potter, who had been standing beside me, eagerly watching everything that was done, gave a little cry. As for myself, I was not greatly surprised at his words. His manner had been so serious that I had been expecting something of the sort. Roche granted in amusement, and turned to King.

"Do you hear the man now! Murder! Why, that's foolish, Mr. Bartley. It's suicide. He has the gun in his hand."

Bartley gave him an amused glance as he answered, "It may be foolish, but it's murder. True, he has the gun in his hand; and that makes it look something like suicide, I agree; but that's just what someone wanted us to think."

This statement seemed to make Roche angry. His face flushed and he sneered, "Oh, come now, how do you expect to prove that?"

Bartley did not answer but simply pointed to the gun. I think we all looked at it rather foolishly, as if we expected to find in it, by some miracle, a clue to his statement.

"As we did not speak, he replied, 'Roche, you think that the fact he is found dead with the gun in his hand, proves that he committed suicide. But to me, that gun and the way it is held, proves murder. Not only murder, but that the gun was placed in his hand after death. Look at the way the hand grasps the revolver. It is not held so firmly but that with some effort it can be removed. The testimony of all medico-legalists is that in cases of suicide or of accidents, the attitudes and acts of the person whose life is suddenly ended are continued for some seconds after death.'

Roche was listening attentively, but Bartley's last words were a little over his head. Perceiving that he did not understand, Bartley explained at greater length:

"What I mean by that is simply this: In cases of suicide or where a man shoots himself by accident and dies suddenly, the hand clutches the weapon so tightly that after death it is almost impossible to loosen his grip. There is a muscular spasm that follows death which causes the hand to grip the weapon even more tightly than in life. Most medico-legal books agree that a weapon so held is the best evidence of suicide."

Roche was not willing to accept this statement. "That's a fine theory," he sneered. "Just the sort of a thing you city detectives dig up. You have got to have more than that to make me think he was murdered."

Bartley gave a little shrug of his shoulders, as if bored by the whole thing. "As you wish! I had an idea you might want more evidence than that." He paused, and we waited breathlessly for his next words.

"Look at his eyes. They are tightly closed. It is a recognized fact by all medical men that, when death comes by violence, the eyes of the victim are wide open and staring. On the other hand, in cases where death comes slowly, they may be half shut. In neither instance are they ever fully closed. When we find a case where the eyes are tightly closed, we know that someone has closed them, and that it was done after the man was dead."

"Here we find the eyes closed. If he committed suicide, they would be open. If he had been murdered, they would be open also. Though the fact they are closed does not help us to decide between murder and suicide, it does point to the fact that someone has been in the room and closed them after he died. May we not suppose that the same person that placed the gun in his hand to make his death appear to be suicide, was also the one who closed his eyes, not knowing that they should have remained open, no matter how he died?"

He paused, as if waiting for someone to speak, then as no one did, he continued:

"But that is not all, Roche. You should use your common sense. Here is Slyke, dead, with both hands by his sides, and the bedclothes up around his neck and over his chin. You don't expect me to believe that he could have shot himself, pulled the clothes around his neck, and then placed his arms by his sides. He did not have time enough for that; he died instantly, without even a struggle. A second after the shot was fired, this world was over as far as he was concerned. It was someone else who arranged those things. Someone who wished his death to appear to be suicide, and in trying to do that rather overdid the whole thing. No, I do not think there is the slightest doubt in the world but that he was murdered."

Roche had long since lost his confident air. He said nothing, though, even when Bartley had finished. The doctor, too, had listened with interest, yet I was not altogether sure that he wholly agreed with Bartley's reasoning.

"But, if Slyke was murdered," the doctor asked, "why should all this trouble have been taken to make it look like suicide?"

Bartley, who was bending over the bed examining the body, did not answer until he straightened up again.

"King," he said in a grave voice, "I am sure this is murder, not suicide. The person who killed him wished us to believe he killed himself. Moreover, he was not killed in bed."

Both the doctor and Roche looked as if this last statement were too unbelievable; and even I, who had long since ceased to be surprised at anything that Bartley might say, wondered a little.

"I have grave doubts if he was even killed in this room."

A PLEA FOR THE FAMILY ALTAR

Extract from sermon by Rev. Earl E. Story at East Weymouth Methodist church last Sunday.

One of the most if not the most important means for the deepening of the religious life of today is the Family Altar. Fortunate indeed is that individual who has been or is being brought up under the influence of a family altar. We sometimes sing "The Old Time Religion is good enough for me". But it isn't. Not that the Old Time Religion was not a good religion. It was very good. But what we do need and want is the spirit of the Old Time Religion in the religion of today. The Old Time Religion had a peculiar power which the religion of today lacks. The source of that Old Time Power was the Family Altar, where every member of the family was in his place while the scripture was being read and the prayer offered.

No picture of fifty years or more ago is complete without the family altar. And who dares say that those people were not the salt of the earth? And in spiritual things their generation was superior to ours of today, again because of the influence of the family altar. If there is a breakdown in religion and the Church, and there are those who believe that it is near—it will be largely due to the neglect of the family altar in the home life of the nation. Mr. Roger Babson, who has one of the keenest minds in the country, has this to say regarding family religion: "Much of the prosperity of this nation is due to the family prayers which were once daily held in the homes of our fathers. To a very large extent, the custom has gone by. Whatever the argument pro and con may be, the fact nevertheless remains that such family prayers nurtured and developed these spiritual resources to which the prosperity of the nation is due. The custom of family prayers should be revived". For the sake of our own souls and for those of the generation to come, establish a family altar in your home. Every Christian home should be recognized and known as the dwelling place of God.

WEYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL

that is very practical and efficient. For they say:

The completed plant would be a series of units, usable independently and damage from any cause not put all out of commission at one time. The present building would furnish recitation rooms for three upper classes. Freshman classes are in the new part and between these the vocational department for use of both sections and also available for evening use. The extension end toward Middle street contains a new assembly hall and gymnasium. These can be used separately or collectively for school, or if desirable, can be used independently for community purposes.

This means the new hall—or vocational school can be used at night alone, not necessary to open, light, and heat the other units. Each unit is complete in itself, yet new to the other to be convenient.

New rooms created in the space of the present hall furnish desk capacity for one hundred and forty-five pupils, largely offsetting the cost of the new hall. Desk room for eight hundred pupils in all can be extended without enlarging for nine hundred by installing book lockers in the spaces provided. The assembly hall will seat a larger number and the gymnasium necessary to meet state requirements for physical education can be fitted with four hundred seats or six hundred bleachers for spectators on two sides.

In addition to administration quarters necessary the rooms are divided as follows: twenty class rooms, six commercial and science rooms, nine vocational rooms, hall, and gymnasium.

The committee has allowed nothing in the plan which would not be necessary for the proper education of the number of pupils to be provided for.

The present building has twelve class rooms, a hall, one study room, and the chemical laboratories. Thus the new building gives three times the space and as the school has now an enrollment over twice what the accommodations call for, the serious handicap is overcome.

The same type of construction would be used as in the present building. First class would cost from 25 percent to 50 percent more according to amount of fire-resisting adopted. Including cities only 17 percent of the school buildings in the country are first class construction and the present combination of urgent demand for accommodations and building costs have made it largely prohibitive. There are ample exits to insure safety of pupils and construction must meet state requirements to prevent spread of fire.

One cannot glance over the plans more than once, when he discovers each time many ideal arrangements; for instance the entering or freshman class is grouped all together in one unit, easily accessible to old parts of the building, but the usual coming and adjusting of a new class in no way disturbs the upper classes.

The vocational school is in a unit by itself. If used at night can be entirely separate and shut off by gates from the rest of the building. Perhaps at this time the fact that because of lack of accommodations scholars must go to Boston, this expense is paid by the town and if this new vocational school is prepared it will mean a money saving to the town, close to $2000.

The school would also accommodate a few more pupils than Weymouth supplies, so that it would mean much to adjoining towns if some of the vocational pupils can be taken care of, being nearer than Boston.

This tuition would be paid for, and would mean additional revenue of a goodly sum, perhaps raising the $2000 mentioned above, to $5000. Wouldn't this amount take care of part of interest on bonds or pay perhaps the light or fuel bill.

CLAPP MEMORIAL MENS CLUB
The members of the Men's Club of the Clapp Memorial Association are looking forward with unusual interest to the February meeting which is to be held next Wednesday evening, Feb. 14.

It seems that the committee on speakers, headed by Parker T. Pearson, has been trying all season to secure some one to speak on the Balkan situation, but absolutely without success, as they wanted a speaker who actually knew conditions there of his own knowledge.

You may imagine their gratification therefore, at being able to announce as the next speaker the Hon. George Fred Williams of Dedham formerly United States minister to Greece and Montenegro who from his intimate knowledge of conditions in the Balkans, consented to speak upon that all absorbing topic.

Town Meeting Articles

Has any one seen a printed warrant for the Annual Town Meeting?

What opportunity is there to appear before the Appropriation Committee Feb. 13 or 15 to favor or oppose articles in said warrant?

The warrant was closed Jan. 15, and four issues of the Gazette-Transcript have been printed since that date, but the Selectmen are keeping the voters in the dark.

When will the voters seek light?

No Quorum Present at Special Town Meeting

No business was transacted on Monday evening at the special town meeting, because the question was raised that no quorum was present, and a count showed it to be a fact. Hon. George L. Barnes was Moderator, and the Town Clerk read the warrant.

The only article in the warrant read as follows:

Art. 1. To see what sum of money the Town will vote to raise by loan or otherwise, and appropriate for the construction and original equipment of an addition to the Weymouth High School, and for alterations and improvements to the present building, and to determine by vote the manner in which funds for the purpose shall be raised or borrowed, and the terms and conditions of any loan or loans necessary to procure such funds, and to authorize the issue or issues of bonds or notes to secure the same, in such sum, not exceeding $300,000, as the Town by vote shall fix, and also to take any other action in relation thereto.

J. Leonard Bicknell of the Appropriation Committee offered the following motion:

"Voted—That there be appropriated the sum of $50,000 to be raised in the levy of the current year for the purpose of making alterations and improvements to the Weymouth High school and furnishing equipment made necessary by such alteration; and that there be appropriated the sum of $250,000 for constructing, originally equipping and furnishing an addition to the present building of the Weymouth High school such addition to increase the floor space of said building and to meet said appropriation the treasurer, with the approval of the Selectmen, be and hereby is authorized to borrow a sum not to exceed $250,000 and to issue bonds or notes of the town therefor, said bonds or notes to be payable in accordance with Section 19 of Chapter 44 of the General Laws, so that the whole of said loan shall be due and payable in not more than twenty years from the date of the first bond or note, or at such earlier dates as the Treasurer and Selectmen may determine."

"And also that any balance of the appropriation made for the alterations, improvements and equipment of said school not needed for such purpose shall be applied to the addition to said building and the original equipment and furnishing thereof."

"And further that the committee appointed by virtue of a vote of the town passed at its last annual meeting be and hereby are constituted the committee of the town to carry out the purposes of this vote."

Representative Prince H. Tirrell, the chairman of the High school building committee, favored a full discussion of the motion and moved that Supt. Parker T. Pearson be privileged to explain the plans by use of the stereopticon.

Mr. Clapp raised the point that no quorum was present.

Messrs. Mulligan and Hodges were sworn as tellers and they reported 78 Town Meeting members present.

The Town Clerk said that the total number was 179, and that 90 were required for a quorum.

The Moderator ruled that no quorum was present and no business could be transacted.

Prince H. Tirrell inquired if an adjournment could be voted for one hour, but it was ruled out of order. Then he wanted a recess.

Frank A. Pray favored a hearing Supt. Pearson regarding a quorum. Wallace H. Bicknell moved adjournment which was defeated.

After more talk on a recess, adjournment, etc., it was voted on motion of Thomas Fitzgerald to adjourn for one week, until Monday evening, Feb. 12.

After adjournment the members remained and heard Supt. Pearson explain the needs of a larger High school, and also the plans accepted by the building committee which are the work of Howard B. S. Prescott of Boston and Arlington. They were illustrated by the stereopticon.

COLONEL BAUER
Word has been received at Headquarters First Corps Area in Boston that the War Department has appointed Frederic Gilbert Bauer of 236 Pleasant street, South Weymouth, as colonel in the Judge Advocate General's section of the Officers Reserve Corps. With the exception of Prof. Eugene Wambaugh of Harvard Law school, who was appointed a colonel during the World War, Colonel Bauer is the first Reserve Judge Advocate from New England to obtain this rank.

Colonel Bauer served for over six years as an officer of the old 8th Massachusetts Infantry and when the National Defense Act was passed in 1916 he was given one of the original appointments as Major in the Judge Advocate General's section of the Officers Reserve Corps.

During the World War he was successively Judge Advocate of the Northeastern Department, Judge Advocate of the Sixth Regular Army Division, Chief of the General Law Section in the Judge Advocate's office at General Headquarters, A. E. F., Chief Finance Officer of the A. E.

F., and a delegate on the Inter-Allied Commission on the cost of the Armies of Occupation.

In October, 1918, he was promoted in France to the grade of Lieutenant-Colonel, and in 1919 received from Belgian Government the decoration of Commander of the Order of Leopold II in recognition of his services in arranging the general settlement of the financial relations, between the Belgium Government and the United States.

In 1920 he accepted a commission in the regular army and was assigned as Judge Advocate of the First Corps Area. He left the Army in October last to re-enter private practice.

Colonel Bauer has resided in South Weymouth for the past fourteen years and was the highest ranking officer from Weymouth in the World War.

POSTER CONTEST

Under the auspices of the Weymouth Visiting Nurse Association a poster contest was opened for the pupils of the eighth and ninth grades. The subject given for illustration was "Cleanliness" and prizes were to be awarded the best posters.

Nearly every child in the contesting grades entered work and the posters showed much thought, originality and careful execution.

Prizes have been awarded as follows:
Two dollars and a half in gold to Jessie Wichert, Grade VIII, Nevin school, for the best poster entered.
One dollar each to Ruth Bennett, Grade IX, Athens school for the best workmanship in the Ninth Grade and to Edward Kuplast for the most original Ninth Grade poster. He, too, is at the Athens school.

Gladys Pelletier of the Pratt school receives the Eighth Grade award for originality and William DeCoste of the Hunt school for the best workmanship in the Eighth Grade.

The prize posters will be on exhibition for a few days in each ward in town.

SERVICE STAR LEGION

The regular monthly meeting of the Old Colony Chapter, Service Star Legion, will be held in Pythian hall, Weymouth, Thursday, Feb. 15, at two P. M. The officers for 1923 will be elected at this meeting and all of the members are urged to be present.

Who is eligible to membership in the Old Colony Chapter, S. S. L.? Any woman in any part of Weymouth or Braintree, who is a wife, mother, or granddaughter of a World War veteran whether said veteran resides here or elsewhere. New members will receive a hearty welcome. Former members who for the time being have lost interest in the work are cordially invited to return to the chapter and renew old friendships.

Because all is well with us, we must not forget that there are many ex-service men both in and out of the hospitals who are still suffering from the effects of the war and who need help and encouragement. The Old Colony S. S. L. is trying to do its bit along these lines. The larger the membership the greater the possibility for doing good. Come and lend a hand.

Rugs Will Not Slip.

A practical non-skid attachment has been designed for rugs which makes them cling to the floor without the necessity of anchoring them with tacks or similar appliances. It is an interliner, consisting of a netlike fabric coated with rubber. It is fastened to the under side of the rug, and clings to the polished floor, making it impossible to slip.

F. H. FERRIS A CANDIDATE

I take the liberty to announce at this time that I will be a candidate for the office of selectmen.

Weymouth needs young men with progressive ideas and men who will look out for town interests. I firmly believe in spending money in Weymouth to the ones who pay taxes and not outside. Weymouth needs a Board of Trade, a Tax Revision placing just taxes on all, and not on the small property owner. Other towns and cities have had their gas and electric light expenses reduced.

WHY NOT WEYMOUTH? Is she sleeping? Our train service is deplorable, and what have we done to remedy it?

I pledge my support, if elected, to work for the best interests of the town and I wish to thank, at this time, each and everyone who have so loyally advanced this campaign.

Yours respectfully,

FREDERIC H. FERRIS.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS
 Editor Gazette-Transcript:
 A lady came into my office a few days ago and said, "How in the world do you know how to find anybody in the latest polltax book gotten out by the town?" I answered her and said I remember at one time seeing a letter in the Weymouth Gazette asking the same question. She said, "I want to find John S—". In the old books I could look over all the names which began with "S" and in two minutes I found him. Now I don't know what ward he lives in, or what street he lives on, and it will take me all day to look this book over. And I thought, why in the world, when a thing is all right, does some one go to work and spoil every thing.
 Now, changes are necessary in some cases in this world, but some things that are changed are actually spoiled. I would like to know through your valuable columns who is responsible for this change and why it was made.
 We are having a long cold winter; cannot wait for some warmer spring weather.
 Have not gotten over the thought that the Historical Society should move down into the hall over the Tufts library. Lots of things would be contributed if that could only be brought about.
 The dumping of old paper still continues over back of the buildings in Washington Square constituting a fire menace. When will the time come when all things should be done right? What a happy time we will all have then!

LET'S WAKE UP
 Editor Gazette-Transcript:

About one year and half ago some land was sold at North Weymouth to the Edison Illuminating Co., which has made it necessary for the occupants of such land to vacate in a certain length of time. The Brooks-Skinner Co., which does a large business in Weymouth, are leaving our town within a short time and are to locate in Quincy.

Being interested to see Weymouth grow and prosper I have got in touch this week with this concern and am informed by them that no one representing Weymouth has called on them to see if any arrangements could have been made with them to stay in our town.

Mr. Brooks feels hurt to think that from the fact that about sixty people are employed in their plant, over half of whom live in Weymouth, that no one has been interested enough to at least approach them on remaining here.
 Isn't it nearly time to get some live men interested in our town affairs.

HOLY NAME SOCIETY
 The Holy Name Society of Sacred Heart church will receive Holy Communion in a body at the early mass on Sunday, Feb. 11. A very fine musical service under the direction of Joseph Beauregard of East Braintree has been arranged.

Immediately after mass the men of the parish will sit down to a communion breakfast to be served in Pythian hall. Messrs Hart, Murray, Ahearn, Shea, Riley, and McCormick compose the committee of arrangements.

Sunday evening after devotions in church the men will meet for a social hour in the church hall when a demonstration of Cone's methods will be given and an address on "Reader Interest" delivered by G. A. Dunning.

Emulation.
 How happy would a man be could he imitate Perodotus! I do not say in all his perfections, for that would be too great a wish, but either in the gravity of his sentences, or in the delicacy of his Ionique tongue, or (to be short) in a thousand other advantages, which make all those that would attempt it, despairing, drop their pens.—Lucian.

Not the Revolutionary Tune.
 The famous "Marseillaise" is always associated with the beginning of the French Revolution, but the real Revolutionary tunes with which the Terror started were the "Carmagnole" and the "Ca ira," of either of which not one man in a thousand has ever heard. The "Marseillaise" came later. Thus one more "bubble" of history has been burst.

Life of Queen Arts.
 Queen arts have been known to live for 15 years.

SACRED HEART PARISH REUNION
 On Lincoln's Birthday night, Feb. 12, in Bates Opera House the people of the parish will gather for their annual reunion.
 A splendid concert—to start at 8.15 sharp—will be given to be followed by dancing.
 George Walsh, John Ahearn, Dennis McCarthy, Leonard Riley, John Magner, Thomas McCarthy, and Edward Cleary are the committee in charge.
 Plans are under way to start the dance with a grand march.

"Cock and Bull Stories."
 The origin of the term "cock and bull story" has been discovered by a British newspaper man, who says it came from the stories told in two hosteries, the Cock and the Bull, in a small English village. Nevertheless we can't give the British all the credit for cock and bull stories.

America's Amusement Bill Runs High.
 The Treasury department reports that approximately $63,000,000 is spent each month for amusements throughout the United States. The bulk of this money is spent at the moving picture shows, the theaters, at circuses, and at amusement parks.

DURING 1922

It was necessary to run a total of 24,675 Feet of service pipe.

Note
 A service runs from the main in the street as far as the cellar of your house.

WEYMOUTH, FEBRUARY 9, 1923

NEW GOVERNMENT ON TRIAL

Persons qualified to vote in town elections are often criticised because they do not vote, but what shall be said of Town Meeting Members who have accepted a nomination and election and sworn to represent their neighbors who are now deprived of the privilege of taking part in Town Meeting?

At the special town meeting this week was there a lack of interest in the needs of our boys and girls; an apathy in town affairs generally; or indifference to duties; or a desire to shirk one's duties?

Is our limited Town Meeting government a failure? Certainly if our limited town meetings are to continue there must be at least 90 per cent of the members at every town meeting.

THE CAUCUS LAW

In recent years many have opposed party nominations for town officers, yet under the law as it now operates in Weymouth, only the Republicans and Democrats are allowed to hold caucuses.

In towns like Weymouth WARD Caucuses have no legal standing, but the nominations must be made at a caucus for the whole town, either by the Republicans or Democrats. Independent or Citizens Caucuses have no standing, but nominations may be made for any office by nomination papers. (See Section 6 of Chapter 53 of the General Laws).

All balloting at legal caucuses must be by ballot, and the ballots must be preserved and forwarded to the Town Clerk together with the check list. The polls shall be open at least 30 minutes (See Sections 84, 85, and 86).

The Selectmen shall provide either party with polling places for caucuses (See Section 82).

Notices for caucuses shall be published at least twice in one or more local newspapers (See Section 83).

Nomination papers must be signed in the aggregate by at least one voter for every fifty votes polled for Governor at the preceding biennial State election in such town, but in no case by less than twenty voters. In Weymouth 3970 votes were cast at the last State election, so that eighty signatures may be required for nominations (See Section 6).

Nomination papers of a candidate for city or town office shall seasonably be submitted to the Board of Registrars, who shall forthwith certify the number of names required to make a nomination (See Section 7).

All nomination papers shall in addition to the names of candidates, specify as to each,—(1) his residence with street and number, if any, (2) the office for which he is nominated, and (3) the political principle. On nomination papers the name Republican or Democrat shall not be used. (See Section 8)

In towns, certificates of nomination for town offices shall be filled on or before the second Wednesday and nomination papers on or before the second Thursday preceding the day of the election, before 5 P. M. (See Section 10)

Town primaries shall be held on the second Tuesday preceding town election.

Any city or town committee SHALL, at the written request of fifty voters, members of its party, call caucuses of said party to determine by ballot whether the provisions of law for the use of official ballots shall be adopted. x x x The polls shall be kept open at least one hour. If said caucuses shall vote to adopt such provisions, all caucuses of said political party in said city or town shall thereafter be called and conducted accordingly. (See Section 89)

There are several sections which govern the conduct of primaries in towns that adopt the official ballots provided for in Section 89.

TOO MANY POSTPONEMENTS
The needs of Weymouth are accumulating fast. The town needs a Town House with a large public hall as a civic center for Weymouth; the town needs an Almshouse rather than place its needy in institutions in other towns; the town needs building laws, health laws, and the collection of garbage; the town needs a larger High schoolhouse, and a new schoolhouse in North Weymouth. This year we should enlarge our High school and give Weymouth boys and girls the advantages enjoyed in other large towns.

Perhaps the order introduced at the Special Town Meeting this week should be amended so as to reduce the payment in 1923. The sum of $50,000 seems too large. If the total cost of $300,000 cannot be divided into twenty equal yearly instalments there should be no objection to reducing the payment this year to $25,000.

Pay as you go, is a good policy, but new schoolhouses should be built by the issue of bonds.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

American Legion Auxiliary to Weymouth Post, No. 79, entered into its 1923 activities with great enthusiasm at the first regular meeting this year Monday evening, Feb. 5, 1923, at G. A. R. hall. It was a very cold night, but a large attendance did much to encourage the new president Mrs. Warren, in the commencement of her duties.

The following appointments on 1923 committee were made by the president:

Welfare and hospitalization committee—Mrs. Mary J. Riley, chairman Mrs. Richard H. Loud, Mrs. Alys Hall, Mrs. Clara M. Stiles, Mrs. Ida Sylvester, Mrs. Josephine Johnson, Mrs. Rose Donovan

Publicity committee—Mrs. Irving Johnson, chairman, Mrs. Margaret Stillman, Mrs. Ethel Champeau, Mrs. K. G. Lovell, Mrs. M. S. Page

Memorials committee—Mrs. Annie Fraher, chairman, Miss Katherine Fraser, Mrs. Mary T. McIsaac, Mrs. Mary A. Boyle, Miss Annie Delorey

Finance committee—Mrs. Annie J. Libby, chairman, Miss Hazel Dexheimer, Miss Edith Rosnell

Refreshments committee—Mrs. Katherine Peers, chairman, Mrs. Mary McLaughlin, Mrs. Annie E. Bettencourt, Mrs. Carrie Benjamin, Mrs. Emma Hawkesworth

Relief committee (changed to remembrance committee) the object of the committee being to remember sick Auxiliary and Post members—Mrs. Catherine Delorey, chairman, Mrs. Annie Fraher, Mrs. Katherine Peers, Mrs. Cecilia Dolan, Miss Lucy Tanguy, Miss Grace Donovan, Mrs. Richard H. Loud, Mrs. Stanley Heald, Miss Marion Melville

Membership committee—Mrs. Willis M. Rand, chairman, Mrs. Ella M. Wellbrock, Mrs. Dominic Ventre

Dolan, Mrs. Harry Desmond, Miss Annie Delorey, Mrs. Rita Cote, Mrs. Charles Olson, Miss Helen Crehan, Miss Theresa Casese, Mrs. Cora Cowling, Mrs. Blanche Cushman, Miss Hazel Dexheimer, Miss Margaret Haviland, Mrs. Viola Haviland, Miss Adrienne Manuel, Miss Marion Melville, Miss Annie Santacroce, Miss Lillian Smith, Miss Margaret Smith, Mrs. Robert Goforth, Miss Katherine Hanley, Mrs. Alys Hall, Mrs. Elizabeth L. Webb, Miss Alida Mathewson, Miss Annie Clinton, Miss Grace Callahan, Miss Mildred Callahan, Mrs. Hazel Leonard, Miss Pauline Dowd, Miss Almira Tanguy, Mrs. Bertha Tanguy Lovell, Miss Lucy Tanguy, Mrs. Clara Tanguy Taylor, Miss Vivian Tanguy

The executive committee for 1923 will be composed of the eight chairmen of the above committee.

It was voted to give $20 toward the radio set for the entertainment and pleasure of the boys at Norfolk County Tuberculosis Hospital at Braintree. This radio set will cost from $350 to $400 and is to be the gift of the Norfolk County Auxiliary Units. There are 23 boys at the hospital at this time we are advised.

There was some talk about a minstrel show to be put on by the Auxiliary in the not far distant future, but the matter has been placed in the hands of the entertainment committee for their action.

The meeting was about to close when the president introduced Mrs. Easton, who had attended one of the Cone lectures. Vice-president Haviland feared for the effect on the members, knowing that Cone's would-be impersonator had been ill for a week after the auto-suggestion lecture. Mrs. Easton gave a few minutes talk on Cone-ism and one demonstration.

But, let it be known that "Every day, in every way, the Auxiliary is striving to be better and better".

KNOCKS AND BOOSTS

By Nic. Quad

The American Doughboys have wound up the watch on the Rhine. The first contingent of the American Expeditionary Forces landed on foreign soil in June, 1917, to accomplish this mighty task, and in January, 1923, the last contingent of that great army have packed their baggage and left for home—their work successfully completed.

Remarkable deeds of valor and glory have been recorded for the individuals and units who made up that army, and they are written in letters of gold. Who can read their deeds at Chateau Thierry, Belleau Wood, the Argonne, and other bloody battle grounds without a thrill of pride?

Especially when we know that the heroes are our very own! Perhaps we rub elbows today in more peaceful pursuits with these former gladiators, who answered the call of the flag, for it was "not theirs to question why, only theirs to do, or die". And they did it!

In relation to the above, it cannot be estimated to what extent we owe their success to the American forms of sport. The spirit of WIN is implanted in the American breast by basketball, baseball, football, and by every other sport where Americans excel many other nations. This probably accounts for the fact that America leads in peace as well as war.

GOING AFTER RATS

At the Town Office last Friday Dr. O'Donnell of the State Department of Health addressed a large group of Boy Scouts and their leaders on "Rats and their relation to the public".

Dr. O'Donnell said that a rat will produce from 8 to 10 litters of 6 to 8 young in a year starting at two months old. Reproduction at this rate occurs only when the mother rat is well fed and has a comfortable home. Therefore if we deprive the rat of food and a comfortable home, our rat catching is going to be of permanent value.

LATTER PUTS BLAME ON RAW WOOL COST

(Special Dispatch to the Herald)
Washington, Jan. 23—Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, and Senator Reed Smoot, Republican, Utah, engaged in a lively tilt in the Senate today, when Senator Walsh called on Senator Smoot to admit that the Republican tariff had increased the cost of clothing. This is the first there has been discussion in this session of the Senate of the effect of the tariff on the cost of living.

Senator Walsh used statements taken from the Daily News Record, a trade paper of New York, reporting the opening of the American Woolen Co.'s fall lines in New York Monday. These showed, he said, that on fifty leading worsted staples displayed there is an advance of 12 1/4 percent over the prices for the fall of 1922.

"WILL RAISE PRICE"

The effect of this, said Senator Walsh, quoting the opinions of clothing manufacturers who were at the opening, will be to raise the price of suits and overcoats for next winter all along the line from the cheapest to the highest in quality, by $5 or $10.

WE, as merchants who are anxious to keep prices down, are sorry to say this is a cold, hard fact and is one big reason why the prudent man or young man should take advantage now of our semi-annual

WEYMOUTH, MASSACHUSETTS, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1923

PRICE SIX CENTS

Almost Unanimous for High School Appropriation

So clearly did the committee on High School enlargement and the school authorities present the needs of the school and the superiority of the plans accepted, that the town meeting members were almost unanimous at the adjourned town meeting on Monday in voting the $300,000 asked.

In the absence of Hon. George L. Barnes, the annual moderator, William J. Holbrook, the town counsel, was unanimously elected moderator.

The moderator read the only article in the warrant, and the motion of the Appropriation Committee, that $300,000 be appropriated, $50,000 to be put into the tax levy of 1923, and $250,000 to be raised by bonds payable within twenty years.

T. P. Vaile queried if we were not getting the cart before the horse. Thought we should first have a report from the Building Committee. Asked who the committee were.

Bruce H. Tirrell, chairman of the committee, said the committee presented plans which had been accepted and he reported verbally. The committee had endeavored to meet the situation with the least amount of money. At least six plans had been secured, but those selected were the unanimous choice. When enlarged the building could be used in units, either the hall or the vocational department. The architect had taken advantage of the grade of the land, and at the same time avoided blasting. Would accommodate 800 to 1000 pupils and in an emergency 1000. Fortunate in getting close estimates of cost from two reliable builders.

At the request of J. W. McDonnell, Mr. Tirrell explained the location of the enlargement, which is to the south and then to the east.

M. Sheehy queried if town could not get along for present without altering the old building, just the new building.

Mr. Tirrell expected that the enlarged building would all be needed when completed, especially if the sixth grade of the grammar schools was moved in.

Mr. Sheehy—Are we to understand that no new school building will soon be needed in other parts of the town.

Mr. Tirrell said more accommodations were now needed in North Weymouth.

Tellers were sworn and were about to take the count on making the appropriation when T. P. Vaile thought discussion was in order. He recognized the needs but would cut out some of the fills and reduce the cost. Moved to cut out the $50,000 direct tax and raise $150,000 by bonds.

Mr. Sheehy moved $200,000 as an amendment.

Mr. Tirrell said there was absolutely nothing unnecessary.

Mr. Vaile accepted the amendment; Bryan Leonard asked how much delay would be caused if appropriation was reduced.

Mr. Tirrell said to get new plans might delay work three months.

Mr. Leonard believed in efficiency. He opposed delay. Saw no ornamentation in plans. The efficiency of the American army in the late war was because of physical training in the schools. Supervision over the pupils is desirable.

The question came on appropriating $200,000.

Mr. Sheehy withdrew his amendment.

The moderator was about to put the motion to appropriate $300,000 when Mr. Vaile contended that his amendment for $150,000 was in order. The Moderator so ruled, but it was lost 4 to 93.

Question came on the $300,000.

W. H. Bicknell moved to make the bonds mature in ten years instead of twenty.

Mr. Vaile moved to postpone article until the Annual Town Meeting. Lost.

The Bicknell amendment was also lost.

The main question was then put and the count of the tellers showed 101 in favor and 4 opposed, and the moderator declared $50,000 appropriated to be raised in the tax levy of 1923 and $250,000 to be raised by bonds.

HOLIDAY NOTICE

Because of the holiday next Thursday, it is very important that advertisements and news should reach the Gazette office EARLY in the week. Only important news will be received after 3 P. M. Wednesday.

Many in Field As Candidates for Selectmen

Within ten days it will be known field a list of straight business men who will be candidates for town officers of 1923. The Republican caucuses will be held Feb. 20 and 21, and a non partisan town caucus has been called for Feb. 23 at Odd Fellows hall. Other nominations will be made on nomination papers.

Because of the death of William F. Cowing there must be a new Selectman from Ward Three. Among the Republican candidates are H. Franklin Perry, Frank A. Pray, John B. Whelan, and Frederic H. Ferris.

In the East Weymouth ward there are several in the field including the present incumbent, Frederick Humphrey. He will have as rivals Winslow M. Tirrell, Harry E. Bearse and others.

In the North Weymouth ward Benjamin F. Smith will oppose William B. Dasha (but the former may not enter the Republican caucus).

In other wards there will probably be rivals for Alfred W. Hastings and Theon L. Tirrell.

Probably the Non-partisan caucus will not put a full ticket in the field, but may nominate five for Selectmen. It is a splendid opportunity for the Non-partisan party to put in the Petition Circulating For Referendum on High School

The voters at large will have an opportunity to vote on the High school appropriation, if a petition that is being circulated secures over one hundred names.

No appropriation passed at a limited town meeting becomes effective until the expiration of five days after the dissolution of a meeting, which will be Saturday night or Monday.

If the necessary number of signatures to the petition are secured, and the petition is filed with the selectmen before Saturday night, a special town election must decide on the appropriation.

The petitioners are undoubtedly acting under Section 8 of the Limited Town Meeting Act of 1921 which reads:

Section 8. No measure passed at any representative town meeting, except a vote to adjourn or a measure appropriating or borrowing money for emergency purposes which shall contain a preamble specifying the facts constituting the emergency and requiring for its passage a separate vote of two thirds of the town meeting members present and voting thereon, shall become operative until after the expiration of five days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, from the dissolution of the meeting. If within said five days a petition, signed by not less than one hundred voters of the town, containing their names and addresses as appearing on the voting list is filed with the selectmen asking that the question or questions involved in such measure be submitted to the voters of the town at large, then the selectmen, after the expiration of five days, shall forthwith call a special meeting for the sole purpose of presenting to the voters at large the question or questions so involved. The polls shall be opened at two o'clock in the afternoon and shall be closed not earlier than eight o'clock in the evening and all votes upon any questions submitted shall be taken by ballot and a check list shall be used in the several precincts in the same manner as in the election of town officers. The questions submitted at the said town meeting shall be determined by vote of a majority of the voters at large voting thereon. The questions so submitted shall be stated upon the ballot in the same language and form in which they were stated when presented to said representative town meeting by the moderator, and as they appear upon the records of said representative town meeting. If such petition be not filed within the said period of five days, the vote in the representative town meeting shall become operative and effective upon the expiration of said period.

The petitions have been circulated in all wards of the town and it is said more than the required number of signatures have been secured. The petitions will probably be presented to the Selectmen on Saturday

HIGH SCHOOL PETITION

Regarding this petition the voters should give it careful consideration before they sign. First, do they realize the delay it means?

Second, as to the cause regarding the gymnasium, why not look at it in this light:

Physical exercise is required by law in High Schools. It is impossible to have suitable physical exercise with a gymnasium. The present High School, built 25 years ago, originally had a gymnasium which was later cut up for a class room owing to the growth of the school. No standard High School is built today without a gymnasium. The proposed gymnasium occupies the space under the new hall. It might be called basement and as such would occasion no comment. It is made possible by the natural contour of the land which falling way, gives sufficient height in the basement for a gymnasium. The building of a new hall with gymnasium underneath constitutes a less expensive proposition than the retaining of the present hall and the building of six or more additional class rooms outside of the present building.

Is a delay worth it? It is not the whim of a few. The vote was clear and decisive. Shall the four opposed carry out their desires against the 104 that voted for it?

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

There was a large attendance on Tuesday evening at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, at Quincy, when Judge Frederick C. Hill lectured on "Christian Science: God's revelation of Spiritual Healing". An abstract follows:

Christian Science as it is presented to you and to me came through the discovery by Mary Baker Eddy of the operation of absolute, fixed spiritual law. In an impartial investigation of Christian Science it is desirable, in fact quite essential to know somewhat of its Discoverer and Founder. I feel quite safe in assuming that my early experience in the investigation of this subject is similar to yours. My first impulse was to inquire "Who is Mrs. Eddy?" "What did she discover and found?" The answer to these questions is simple and helpful.

Mrs. Eddy was a devout and lovable New England woman, deeply interested in the Bible. Early in childhood she displayed a keen perception of the underlying truths contained in Bible narratives. Through her research and study of the Bible she noted that perfect trust and confidence in God's laws were followed by permanent and fixed results and that blessing and healing were part and parcel of His infinite plan. Hence Mrs. Eddy discovered and proved the divine laws of Life, Truth and Love.

In the consideration of Christian Science it is absolutely essential to understand the nature of good and evil and to be able to distinguish between that which is intrinsically good and that which presents merely the appearance of good. Christian Science declares in no uncertain manner that God is the source of all good and that the human, the carnal—mind is the procuring cause of all evil. It presents logical, irrefutable proof that man lives by divine decree, and that the Scriptural text, "In Him we live and move and have our being" declares the real status of man and not merely an emotional theory. It declares emphatically that evil is not a person, place or thing; that it is not a cause or creator and that there is no realm or dominion over which evil is the sovereign power. In fact, it denies that evil has any power except such as it assumes in human belief and it then destroys this assumed power by overcoming the human mind with the divine Mind.

Christian Science presents to you the conception of God as infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love. It presents nothing about Him save that which is supported and sustained by Bible authority and which is rational and comforting. When it is perceived that God is infinite divine Mind it at once becomes apparent that like produces like, hence His creation must of necessity be mental and not material. God must be sought and found, if at all, through the avenue of divine Mind and not in or through matter. It then becomes clear that the real man whom God pronounced good lives, moves and has his being in Mind, and is a spiritual, not a material being, and because he is an idea in Mind he can and does express the qualities of that divine Mind which created him.

A Christian Science treatment is a conscientious effort based upon a sincere desire to bring into human experience "the enduring, the good, and the true" so that by the renewing of the mind it can be proved what is that "perfect will of God". In other words the reformation of the sinner and the healing of the sick is but proof that divine Principle, God is present and available and is, as we have heretofore seen Immanuel or God with us. This happy and desirable mental condition is established through the medium of prayer. There is great lack of understanding among Christian people as to what constitutes true prayer. This lack of absolute knowledge is the procuring cause of much error and accounts for the erroneous belief that Christian Scientists do not pray. Such belief has no foundation in fact. They pray continually and understandingly and the fruits of their prayers are rich blessings to humanity. It must be remembered, however, that in their prayers they do not supplicate God to conform His will to theirs or to change His infinite design. Neither do they charge Him with human delinquencies and as a matter of course they do not petition Him to remedy or correct that which He has not created. They do pray to Him from the standpoint of sincere desire and "absolute faith that all things are possible to Him", and such prayer is answered by driving out of human consciousness the diseased, erroneous images of thought and letting in the light of God's man created in His image and likeness.

DANGERS OF A COLD
 Weymouth People Will Do Well to Heed Them

Many bad cases of kidney trouble result from a cold or chill. Congested kidneys fall behind in filtering the poison-laden blood and backache, headache, dizziness, and disordered kidney action follow. Don't neglect a cold. Use Doan's Kidney Pills at the first sign of kidney trouble. Follow this Weymouth resident's example:

Mrs. M. McCartney, 46 Granite-street, says: "Some time ago while living in Scotland, I was troubled with my kidneys, caused by a cold which settled in them. My kidneys felt dull and heavy and they acted frequently. My back was lame and I had a constant nagging pain in the small of it which bothered me mornings when I got up. A friend told me of Doan's Kidney Pills so I got a box and they soon relieved the trouble. After using a few more boxes of Doan's the pains left and I was completely cured."

RUGS MADE BY SOUTHERN WOMEN

Making "Pulled" Rugs in Arkansas—The Insert Shows Part of a "Crazy" Quilt Made of Old Neckties.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The beautiful old art of making "pulled" or "hooked" rugs is being revived in Arkansas and Mississippi by rural women who are anxious to increase the family income. The industry is one which has started among the farm women and girls themselves, and wherever possible it is being spread and encouraged by extension agents. A representative of the United States Department of Agriculture on a field trip recently saw one woman near Little Rock who sold many of her small pulled rugs made from her own designs of flowers and forest leaves for as much as $12 each. Several other women were doing similar work under her instruction.

In another part of the state an old loom, brought over from England 150 years ago, was seen. The woman who owned it not only used it to weave rugs but also made beautiful woven wool coverlets of unusual designs, showing not a little ingenuity in making up new patterns. She, too, was teaching others in her community to make rugs and coverlets.

In addition to pulled and woven rugs, many of the popular rag rugs are made, including the braided and crocheted types. "Crazy quilts" and counterpanes of applique work are also being revived in addition to the beautiful woven wool counterpanes.

FRESH VEGETABLE IS POSSIBLE EVERY DAY

Particularly Beneficial to Those on Restricted Diet.

Great Number of Plants Have Been Grown in Search for Those Low in Carbohydrate—Diabetic Urged to Plant Garden.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

With a view to suggesting to those on a restricted diet, particularly to diabetics, ways in which variety might be introduced into the menu, the United States Department of Agriculture has searched the world for promising vegetables, low in carbohydrate. The difficulties of the diabetic diet center mainly around the supply of vegetables and the provision of variety at all seasons. A great number of vegetables have been grown in the course of these investigations. Last year 91 species were planted, so that some vegetable was available every day of the year.

These varieties included asnerine, asparagus, basella, bush and pole beans, cabbage, carrot, cauliflower, celery, chard, chervil, chayote, collards, corn salad, cress, cucumber, dandelion, eggplant, endive, escarotte, fennocchio, kale, kohlrabi, lettuce, mung bean, mustard, New Zealand spinach, okra, onion, leek and shallot, orach, pal-til, parsley, patience, pepper, purslane, radish, rocket, salsify, scorznera, sorrel, soy bean, spinach, squash, vegetable marrow, tomato, turnip and witloof. All these vegetables are valuable in the diet of the normal person as well as the invalid, because of the vitamins, minerals, and bulk they furnish. Many excellent combinations can be made among them. They vary in their composition and suitability for invalid diets, and the department recommends that the advice of a physician be followed in their use.

The department suggests that every diabetic or other invalid dependent on vegetables who can do so should develop a garden, both for the sake of variety in the diet and because of the new interest and hobby it furnishes. Even city patients may find it possible to have small gardens on near-by vacant lots. Most of the uncommon vegetables in the foregoing list can be easily grown. Information concerning them may usually be had from the extension agent, whose headquarters are at the State Agricultural college, or from the United States Department of Agriculture.

KEEPING SOUP POT ON STOVE

Much to Be Said in Favor of Practice Provided Contents Do Not Become Stale.

There is much to be said in favor of keeping a soup pot on the stove all the time, says the United States Department of Agriculture, provided great care is taken not to allow the contents to grow stale. Into this pot can go clean portions of uncooked food, and also clean foods left from the table, such as meat, milk, mashed potatoes, or other vegetables, crusts, cold cereal mushes, and even fruits. Soups made from such materials may not have great nutritive value, but, like those made out of materials bought for the purpose, they encourage the use of a large amount of bread, particularly if carefully seasoned.

Bitter Orange Jelly.

Bitter orange jelly is made by preparing the juice as directed for bitter orange marmalade. After the peel has been removed, weigh the fruit and cut it into small pieces. Place it in a kettle and for each pound of orange add two pounds of water; boil until it thoroughly disintegrates. Pour the mass into a flannel jelly bag and press until no more juice can be extracted. Drain this juice again through a clean flannel jelly bag without pressing. No peel is used in the jelly. For each pound of fruit taken one pound of sugar is added. This is boiled until it has reached the jelling point.

FRESHEN VELVETS BY STEAM

One Plan Favored Is to Draw Cloth Through Vapor Coming From Teakettle Spout.

Most velvets may be freshened by steaming from the wrong side, suggests the United States Department of Agriculture, in connection with its home economics work for women. One way is to draw the velvet through the steam from a teakettle. Care must be taken that the teakettle contains only a little water, or the water may splatter out and spot the velvet. As a special precaution several thicknesses of cheesecloth may be tied over the spout. A cone of heavy paper placed around the spout will direct the steam and make it possible to hold the velvet farther from the heat.

Another way to steam velvet is to place several thicknesses of damp cloth over a hot iron and pass the back of the velvet quickly over the cloth. Velvet so creased that it cannot be freshened by steaming may be "panned" by steaming and ironing it in one direction.

Onion juice will remove rust from knives.

Orange sauce brings out the real flavor of roast venison.

Ducks are delicious served with turnips cooked in the same vessel.

Freshen a stale loaf by putting it in a steamer over a pan of boiling water for a few minutes.

If you are storing away silver for some time, pack it in dry flour and it will not become tarnished.

Never soak colored things—soap, wash, rinse, pull into shape and hang out to dry as quickly as possible.

Glass should be washed in cold water. This gives a brighter and clearer appearance to it than when washed in warm water.

After washing lamp chimneys try polishing them with dry salt. This gives the glass a brilliant shine and prevents it from cracking.

T.'s) are placed on the chimney, the total weight of the letters being four and one-half tons. Each section of one of the enameled letters weighs 265 pounds and there are four sections to each letter, each one being ten feet in height. Much of the work has been done in the face of a high wind, blowing at the rate of ninety miles an hour, making the task exceedingly hazardous. The men who undertook this dangerous work were lashed in ho'sum chairs suspended from the cap of the stack. Two-inch planking on the ground, struck by a falling scaffold from which fell the entire distance of 365 feet, splintered the planking by the force of the fall. Eric M. MEMORIAL SERVICE

A special community service in memory of a woman is unusual, but as Rev. Dr. Poole said on Sunday afternoon the service "just had to be" in honor of Mary Elizabeth Holbrook, who died Jan. 3, 1923. The service was held in the Old South Union church at 3.30 P. M. and was largely attended.

The order of service opened with an organ voluntary by Mrs. Frank Loud, followed by prayer by Rev. Frank L. Luce, the rector of the Church of the Holy Nativity, of which Mrs. Holbrook was a communicant.

It was her work for institutions that endeared Mrs. Holbrook to so large a number, said Rev. Dr. Poole and he introduced in turn representatives of these institutions.

Mrs. Maybin Brown read resolutions adopted by the Guild of the Church of Holy Nativity.

Miss Ruth Benson beautifully rendered "My Task".

Mrs. Carrie F. Loring, the Department President of the Women's Relief Corps, reviewed a friendship of over 20 years, saying it was on Nov. 13, 1894, that Mrs. Holbrook was afflicted with the order. She was the third president of Reynolds Corps, 102, the Department president in 1913, and in 1923 at the time of her death, the Department Counselor. She attended many of the Department and National conventions and was loyal and faithful and charitable to a marked degree; a beautiful character.

Mrs. Frederick Andrews read a poem on "Friendship" which she introduced with a tribute to Mrs. Holbrook.

Hon. George L. Barnes spoke for the community—the town, the school and the home; telling how when a boy Mrs. Holbrook won his esteem; how she commanded the respect and confidence of all. She lived true to the conception of citizenship; she was a town meeting member. A good neighbor and friend. Her death creates a vacancy which will long be felt.

Miss Benson sang a favorite hymn—"Absent".

For the Study Club Mrs. Harriet Simpson read the tribute, saying it was impossible to estimate our loss. Her sympathy was broad, and love dominated her life. She had a rare gift of understanding; so human, but with Spartan courage.

The tribute of the Old Colony Women's club was by Mrs. Henry T. Morse, who said Mrs. Holbrook gave unstintingly; she never wavered; she was sweetly self possessed; an organizer, a queen among us; ready to aid any worthy project. With a love of fellow beings she drew all. A comfort to friends in trouble. She introduced the flag into the club and at every meeting we salute the flag, and shall then think of her. Her recent review of the history of the club for 25 years was prized. By request a tribute was reread.

The service closed with hymn 415, a hymn of hope entitled "Pilgrim". The benediction was by Dr. Poole.

W. R. C. NOTES

The next regular session of Corps 102 will be held on Thursday evening, Feb. 22, at 7.30.

Glad to know that Mrs. Loring, department president, is enjoying her usual good health after being indisposed by a cold.

The ceremony was performed by Rt. Rev. Mons. M. J. Splaine of St. Joseph's church. The best man was M. Arthur J. Scully of Hingham, brother of the groom. Miss Anna Madden of Roxbury was maid of honor and Miss Alice Scully of Hingham and Miss Elizabeth Hefferman of Trinity College, Washington. The ushers were George Scully of Boston College, John Shields of Holy Cross, and Frank Kelly of Boston College, and Frank Whittaker of Tufts.

The bride was beautifully gowned in white brocade chiffon with pearl trimmings. The veil was held by a coronet of pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was dressed in silver gray chiffon velvet with a silver lace hat trimmed with French flowers. The bouquet was pink roses.
The bridesmaids' gowns were turquoise blue and shell pink chiffon velvet with pearl trimmings and silver lace hats. They carried Ophelia roses.

The church was decorated with palms and roses, the color scheme being pink and white.
The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond studded platinum wrist watch. The bride's gift was a diamond studded gold watch. The best man was presented with a signet ring, while the ushers received watch chains and cuff links. Pearl necklaces were the gifts to the bride's attendants.

Following the ceremony was a reception at Hotel Westminster at which the bride and groom were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weiss, Mrs. Mary Scully and the ushers and attendants. The reception room was elaborately decorated with cut flowers. The reception was attended by guests from New York, Washington, New Haven, Springfield, Dorchester, Brockton, Worcester, Quincy, Hingham, and the Weymouths.
Mr. and Mrs. Scully are now on a six weeks trip to Florida. Mr. Scully is well known in Weymouth and is in the employ of the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. Miss Weiss also has a large circle of friends in Weymouth. She is a graduate of Notre Dame and Paeton College.

KNOCKS AND BOOSTS

By Nick Quad
Some people when they go to Boston from Weymouth feel that they are going from the ridiculous to the sublime, but personally we feel that the reverse is true. Why it is that people will submit without complaining to the indignity heaped upon them when they are forced to go into a smoky, sooty, steamy, dingy place like the South Station is beyond our primitive comprehension. But the American people are long-suffering. We wear good clean clothes to visit the city, only to have the railroad ruin them. In this day and age the railroads should have electric engines pulling their trains, at least into terminals, like is done in New York city.

ESTATE OF $100,000

At Probate court in Dedham on Wednesday William J. Holbrook was named as the administrator of the estate of his mother, Mary E. Holbrook, late of Weymouth, and gave a bond for $200,000. The deceased left $100,000 personal estate and $2000 real estate and as her heirs the son named and a daughter, M. Agnes Holbrook, both of Weymouth.

THE BALCONY

John Bartley, noted criminal investigator, recently returned from Secret Service work during the war, is asked by the governor of New York to investigate a mysterious attempted robbery of the Robert Slyke home at Circle Lake, near Saratoga, and to establish the guilt or innocence of two men in the penitentiary for the crime. A miscarriage of justice is suspected. Bartley finds in the resting of an old case, is interested and agrees to solve the mystery. With his friend Pelt, a newspaper man, Bartley goes to Circle Lake, the pair becoming the guests of Bob Currie, an old friend. The three visit the Slyke home. Slyke recounts Bartley's coming, saying he is satisfied the two men in prison are guilty. Bartley is not. Next morning Slyke is found dead in bed, apparently having shot himself. Miss Potter, the dead man's sister-in-law, the village police chief, Roche, and the family physician, Doctor King, all agree Slyke killed himself, but Bartley insists he was murdered.

CHAPTER III—Continued.

"When you look at the pillow," he explained, "on which his head lies, you will find only one or two spots of blood. The shirt, in fact, has none at all. The wound must have bled some—not much, it is true, but far more than it seems to have done from the appearance of the bed. He was killed elsewhere and placed in this bed afterwards. I doubt if he was even undressed at the time of his death."

Miss Potter, who had remained silent although obviously very nervous, asked if she might go to her room and leave the doctor in charge. This delegating of her authority to the doctor did not appeal to Roche; and he told her that, if her brother-in-law had been murdered, it would be the police and not the doctor who would take charge of things. The ordeal through which she had passed must have been more than she could stand, for she made no comment on his challenge but started to leave the room.

"Miss Potter," Bartley asked, as she reached the door, "did you ever see this revolver in Mr. Slyke's hand?" She hesitated a moment and then replied, "It's Mr. Slyke's; he was in the habit of keeping it in a drawer of his desk. The gun was bought soon after the burglary, but so far as I know, he has never used it."

Although her statement that the revolver had belonged to the dead man made the suicide theory plausible, yet I could not quite see how the facts that Bartley had brought forward to disprove the suicide could be overthrown.

"What makes you think, Mr. Bartley," Roche asked, "that Slyke was dressed at the time he was killed?"

Bartley answered: "If Slyke had been killed in bed there would have been more blood on the bedclothes than the few drops we see on the pillow. His nightshirt, too, if it had been worn at the time he was killed, would have had some traces of blood on it. There are no such stains. This, and the fact that death must have been instantaneous, makes me feel sure that he was undressed after he was killed and then placed on the bed in the position in which we have found him."

Bartley began a search of the room, using a small glass once or twice as if he were looking for finger-prints. Slyke's clothes were flung over a chair, and one of his stockings had fallen to the floor. The way the gray suit lay on the chair made me wonder if Bartley was right when he said the murderer had undressed him after the crime. It looked so much as if it had been carelessly flung there by a man preparing for bed.

After going through Slyke's pockets Bartley said slowly, "I have grave doubts if he was even killed in this room."

He continued to examine the room, searching the floor, looking into the drawers of the desk, examining the walls even; then he came back to the clothing. Picking up the blue silk shirt from the chair, he examined it a second time before he said: "I was right. He was not killed in this room. Here is the suit he wore. You will notice that all his clothing is placed on this chair in the manner that a man would naturally place it if he was undressing for bed. But there is no button in the front of his shirt to hold his collar, and one stocking is missing. Any man may lose a collar button, but if he does, that button will be dropped at the place where he undressed. No button is in this room. It was lost in the room in which he was undressed. We find his shoes here but only one stocking, and we naturally ask where is the other stocking. Then, too, there are no blood stains anywhere in this room. Though his wound did not bleed much, it must have bled some. These are the reasons why I say he was not killed in this room, or even undressed here."

His explanation seemed reasonable enough, yet somewhat mystifying. Why had the murderer taken all this trouble to undress Slyke, and why had he done it in some other room? The next question was just as puzzling. If Slyke had not been killed in this room, where had the crime taken place? As if he had read my thoughts, Roche suggested that as there was another room in the tower, we might see what could be found there.

The butler, who entered at this moment, did his best not to glance at the bed. He was holding with great difficulty a half-grown Alredale that growled fiercely when he saw us. The butler motioned to the doctor to come to him. As he reached his side, Doctor King placed his hand upon the dog's head and it ceased to show its teeth and licked his fingers. For several moments he and the butler held a low conversation, then King turned to us to say that he had just been called to the hospital for an operation and would have to leave at once.

Bartley scribbled something on a piece of paper, and handing it to the doctor said, "I think there ought to be a picture taken of the body so it can be used at the inquest."

The doctor agreed and went out, accompanied by the butler. As the door closed behind them Bartley went to look it, but the key was missing. After a moment's hesitation he decided it would do no harm to leave it unlocked while we were gone, and we all started for the floor above.

The room we entered was of the same size as the one in which we had found Slyke. Here, too, there was little furniture—three chairs grouped around a little table in the center of the room, a lounge in one corner, a small desk in another. It was the table that attracted Bartley's attention. On it stood a half-emptied bottle of Scotch whisky, and beside the bottle three glasses, one of them holding about a spoonful of liquor. Near one of the glasses was a half-smoked cigarette and a magazine, and on the opposite side of the table the stub of a cigar. Bartley looked at both of them with keen interest and finally placed them in an envelope. The cigarette must have been a very high-priced one, for the end was of the finest straw. The appearance of the table suggested that three men had been present and that two of them had been smoking. A conference, perhaps, at which a bottle of whisky had assisted. Aside from the table, there seemed to be nothing of interest in the room.

While Bartley was still glancing at the table, I walked over to the large window and drew aside the heavy curtain that reached to the floor. At my feet was a playing card that had been concealed by its folds. Glancing around to see if there were any others and finding none, I brought the card to Bartley.

As I stepped to his side, I saw that he was examining the magazine. Like many magazines, the back carried a gaudy advertisement that covered the entire page. This one had an unusual amount of unused white space. Bartley pointed silently to where someone had idly amused himself by drawing on it with a pencil, a habit many people have. The design was simple, only a mass of scrolls, with a little figure here and there, and lines running through them.

Whatever it meant to Bartley, the mass of zeros held no significance to me. He did not enlighten me, but placed the magazine in his pocket. Then I showed him the playing card and told him where I found it. He asked, "Are there no more?" I was answering, "No," when Roche interrupted, "Yes, there is one."

He pointed to the stairway that led to the top of the tower. There, lying under the bottom step, was a second playing card with the same design on the back as the one I had found. What were they doing in that room? Bartley smiled to himself as he examined the second card.

Roche asked, "What do they mean?" With a gesture that might have meant anything, it was so expressive, Bartley replied, "They had a card party downstairs last night."

Roche was excited in a moment. "I'll tell you what it means. Someone at that party killed Slyke, followed him up here and killed him."

It was not a half-bad theory, and even Bartley did not protest as much as I had thought he would. Instead he said, "There is something in what you say, Roche. We must look first for the person who had the chance to kill him. You assume that after the party the person who dropped these cards did what any absent-minded person might do. That is, he placed the cards of his last hand in his pocket. He may have followed Slyke up here, hidden behind the curtain, and as he killed him dropped some of his cards on the floor."

He paused, half frowning, as if the theory did not quite appeal to him, and added slowly, "Still, Roche, there are other things to be considered. Those two cards are in different parts of the room; not together as we might have expected if they had been dropped by accident. It looks to me as if they might have been placed where we found them by design. As if someone wished us to think just what you thought. Then there is that bottle of whisky and the three glasses. All three glasses have been drunk from. The glasses show that they were all used at about the same time. Evidently two of the men smoked; the third did not. What I wonder is, were these three persons in the room at one and the same time?"

"There Must Be Blood Spots Somewhere, Yet Where? There Are None in This Room."

Roche, who had long since lost his air of self-satisfaction, now offered to help us make a thorough examination of the room. When we had ended our unsuccessful search, Bartley stood silent, a puzzled expression on his face.

"It's more mysterious than ever," he said at last. "I am sure he was not killed in the room below. I am also sure he was not killed here. There must be blood spots somewhere, yet where? There are none in this room."

He went to the window and glanced out, then came back and glanced up at the steps that led to the roof. All at once his face brightened, and motioning us to follow him he bounded up the seven steps to the little door that opened onto the balcony. We followed more slowly.

We found ourselves on a balcony some four feet wide that ran around the tower. About eight or ten feet below its bronze-tipped top, an iron railing protected the edge of the balcony and was covered with ivy, as were also the sides of the tower itself. Bartley paused for a moment, standing with his hand on the rail, his face serious, his eyes thoughtful. But it was for a moment only; the next he was out of sight around the tower. Almost instantly we heard him call us, and when we reached his side he was on his knees examining the floor and the lower part of the wall. Looking where he pointed, I saw at his feet a dark splotch on the floor of the balcony, and a little higher up several similar spots on the wall of the tower. I realized that, at last, he had found what he had been looking for. There was no doubt that the splotches we saw were blood, and that it had been shed within a few hours. Had he expected to find them just where he did? I wondered.

"You say I know who killed him—I know?"

The committee that was chosen to take charge of the Post's annual show held a meeting in the town offices last Friday night. Stanley Herald was chosen as chairman of the committee and Oberlin Clark, publicity man.

The committee decided to hold the show in the Gem theatre at Weymouth Landing the second week in April. The exact date was not selected, but will be given out later. So get together fellows and help the committee out in every way possible. Now, do not forget the social that will be held next Monday evening in G. A. R. hall at 7.30. And also do not forget to bring along some extra Service men with you, and let him see the good times he would have by becoming a member of the Post.

The entertainment committee for these socials have arranged an extensive program for the evening with plenty of music, singing, and speaking and enough eats and smokes for everybody, so cast aside all other engagements for Monday night and follow the crowd to G. A. R. hall.

THE BALKAN QUESTION

The Men's Club of the Clapp Memorial Association welcomed several new members on Wednesday evening, and all present obtained a better understanding of conditions in the Near East after the excellent presentation of the situation by Hon. George Fred Williams, former ambassador to Greece. His particular subject was the Balkans. He first depicted the situation of the country, and then told why it plays such an important part in the affairs of Europe. It is in the pathway of commerce from Europe to Asia with great shipping ports. Every three or four years for the last thousand years because of conquests it has had to fight for its existence.

Mr. Williams explained the domestic relations, the Turkish question, the ambition of Russia, for many years to get a port on the Adriatic Sea or the Mediterranean Sea; how the Great Powers of Europe have opposed this move of Russia and her ally Serbia. Constantinople is the key. The conference at Berlin in 1878 had created independent countries. To divide up Macedonia might cause a European war so they made it independent. Albania has a distinct race and a language of its own, and has remained independent.

The failure of Serbia to get a port caused the country to burst into frenzy against Austria, and a conspiracy caused the murder of Archduke Ferdinand, and precipitated the World War.

Mr. Williams gave some insight into the diplomacy of today, among European nations, and paid quite a tribute to Albania. He had personally investigated the report of the murder of peasants in a church in Albania, and did not agree with the Greek report. He said he had won the confidence of the Albanians, and might be called upon later to help them in their diplomatic affairs.

No brief report would do justice to the admirable presentation by Mr. Williams. He was given a rising vote of thanks at the close.

Horace R. Drinkwater presided at the banquet in the absence of the president, and introduced the speaker. As usual a hot roast beef supper was served, with scalloped oysters and ice cream.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

In reporting the appointments on 1923 committees two omissions are noted. Miss Mary Trask of Weymouth was appointed on the relief and remembrance committee and Miss Helen Corridan of Weymouth was appointed on the entertainment committee.

Past President Mrs. Annie J. Libby and President Mrs. Edna M. Warren with several members of the Auxiliary attended the Abraham Lincoln musical service at the Congregational church, East Weymouth, on Sunday evening, Feb. 11. The address by Rev. K. A. Handanian, pastor, left in the hearts of each one a feeling that she was listening to a man of sincerity, truth, a deep thinker, and above all a man who has the courage of his convictions.

The musical selections by the Arlington Male Quartet and the special music by the American Legion Band were greatly enjoyed. The members who were fortunate enough to be present at this service will wish to be invited at another time and will bring more members with them.

On Monday evening, Feb. 26, at 8 o'clock at the residence of the president, Mrs. Edna M. Warren, 288 Middle street, East Weymouth, there will be a meeting of the executive committee and officers of the Unit. Remember the date and let us have a full meeting. The chairman of each committee, eight in number, is a member of the executive committee and if any chairman is unable to attend this meeting she is requested to appoint a member of her committee to attend in her place.

Those members who have not sent in the statement of their ex-service relative's participation in the World War are asked to kindly send it to 166 Middle street, East Weymouth, at as early a date as possible. Twenty-five years hence the value of an accurate history will be more apparent than at this time when the World War is still fresh in our minds.

MEETING OF SELECTMEN

The Selectmen at their meeting this week received an accounting from the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company which showed a deficit of $831.25 from the operation of the Weymouth division for the six months ending Nov. 30, 1922. The balance appropriated by the town for 1922 was $7,189.50. In three years the town has appropriated $28,000 to help out the street railway.

By request of the Republican Town Committee, Grand Army hall was provided for the Republican caucus.

The Selectmen will report favorably at the Annual Town Meeting on the laying out as town ways of May terrace, to be known as Vinson street; Beals street to Norton street; Rambler's way from Evans road to Pearl street, to be known as Evans road, and also a street off East street.

The Overseers of the Poor went on record as opposing House Bills 559 and 1074, and Senate Bill 174 relative to Mother Aid commission in towns.
Paul C. Burt was appointed special patrolman on the police force, and Edward P. Noonan as a special police. Licenses were also granted.

Twin Daughters Born To the Junior Editor

Rejoicing, consternation and commotion reigned in the Gazette-Transcript household at noon last Friday, when a radio from the Weymouth Hospital announced that twin daughters had been born to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fisher Prescott. There would not have been more commotion if someone had thrown a monkey wrench into the big cylinder press which was running off the big edition. The faithful old press, however, had not shipped a cog. Consternation quickly gave way to rejoicing when it became known that the mother and the little girls were all doing well and that the new arrivals were indeed welcome.

There was rejoicing too, in the Weymouth Hospital because these were the first twins born in the institution. All the inmates soon knew of the big event and forgot their own aches and pains and the arrival of the twins has interested all. The matron, Miss Schofield, and the nurses are almost as proud as the father and mother, and are giving the little ones the best of attention. As babies go, they are not very little, as No. 1 weighed 5 1/2 pounds and No. 2 tipped the scales at 7 1/2, both healthy with good lungs. Dr. Emerson, Dr. Sargent, and the hospital staff are all happy over the event. It is no signal honor to Dr. Emerson, who worked so hard to establish the Weymouth Hospital, contributing both time and cash so that he might almost be called the founder, that he should have welcomed the first twins.

Of course Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Prescott are delighted as the little girls are their first grandchildren and also because their three children were all boys and boys have predominated on both sides of the house. Grandpa and Grandma Prescott were among the early visitors to the hospital. In fact they are there most every day and they are sharing in the congratulations of friends.

News of the arrival of twins was immediately wired to distant Oakland, California, where the parents of the fond mother reside, and soon Grandpa and Grandma Morrill were adding their congratulations. And the wires across the country have been kept hot conveying congratulations from the Recreation Department of the City of Oakland and friends of the family. It was in Oakland in October, 1921, that Mr. and Mrs. Prescott were married and it was in San Francisco that Mr. Prescott enlisted before the draft in the 36th Ambulance Corps, and gave over two years service, during the World War in the 91st Division, several months in France and Belgium. He made his second trip to California to receive his honorable discharge and the third to obtain a wife. When Mr. and Mrs. Prescott attend some future reunion of the 91st Division in San Francisco their twin daughters will probably be the center of attraction as they are the first set of twins in the Corps; each year members of the corps get together and celebrate.

Mr. Prescott is secretary of the Massachusetts Press Association and at their regular meeting on Monday he was heartily congratulated.

Every day, from the hospital, comes cheering news that mother and twins are progressing rapidly and will soon be at their home at 14 Station street, East Weymouth. They acknowledge many gifts of plants, flowers, and cards.

VALENTINE SUPPER

The "Valentine Supper" of Trinity Parish Guild in Pythian hall last Friday was well attended. The supper committee was Mrs. Charles Belting, Mrs. Charles Hoffes, Mrs. Thomas Payne, Mrs. William Adams, Mrs. Oakley, and Mrs. Samuel Woods. Agnes Crawford entertained at the pumpo. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey sang duets. Edith Payne and Myrtle Rice, two charming little misses, gave excellent reading and the Galign sisters, Marie and Agnes, danced very prettily. The entertainment closed with an amusing one-act comedy by Mrs. Alice Northup and Miss Elizabeth Hyde. An informal dance followed.

VACATION MOVIES

The management of the Alhambra and Quincy theatres of Quincy have been very thoughtful in their booking for the vacation period of films well suited to youth. At Alhambra Feb. 19, 20, and 21, "Oliver Twist" with Jackie Coogan in title role may be seen. Lovers of Dickens will enjoy this picture greatly as the true Dickens atmosphere is manifest. On Feb. 19, 20, 21, "The Flirt" by Booth Tarkington will be shown at the Quincy theatre. Feb. 22, 23, 24 Wesley Barry in "Rags to riches" from book by same name by Charles Taylor. The vaudeville also has been especially chosen for young people and will include trained animals and a live doll act.

McNAMARA-SLOAN

Miss Mary Ellen Sloan, daughter of John Sloan of Windsor, N. S., who has resided at 435 Bridge street, North Weymouth, for several years, and Patrick McNamara of Lovell street were married at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, East Weymouth, Monday morning by the pastor, Rev. Cornelius I. Riordan. Miss Lena Riley, niece of the bride, was bridesmaid and Philip Riley best man. The bride wore a brown silk travelling suit with hat to match. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Phillip Riley on River street, North Weymouth. The couple will reside at 54 Lovell street. A reception was held in the evening at the home of Mrs. Riley with a large number of guests present from Boston, Lynn, Quincey, and the Weymouths. Mr. and Mrs. McNamara received presents of cut glass, silver, and money. Refreshments were served.

K. OF P. ANNIVERSARY

Delphi lodge will observe the 53rd anniversary of the order next Monday evening. A caterer's banquet will be served at 6.30, to be followed by an entertainment and dancing. The entertainers have not been announced but the committee say the entertainment will be the very best. The committee includes: Grant B. Chase, Lawrence E. Pray, Elmer Goodspeed, Lester W. Tisdale, Russell Dexheimer, Franklin P. Whitten, William D. Aitken Jr., Christopher Wade, Everett McIntosh, and A. Parker Bates.

A Spider's Nest.

The trap-door spider's nest is like a net of finest gauze, spread upon the grass. The spider comes out of his nest at dusk, fastens back his front door with a silken cord, erects a long web and settles down comfortably. At dawn the web is taken down, the trap-door lowered and the spider is not seen until evening, when the same performance is repeated.

MUTUAL
OF BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

SYNOPSIS OF 60TH ANNUAL STATEMENT

Reported to the Massachusetts Insurance Department as of December 31, 1922

The Total Resources, or Assets, amounted to $268,075,903.41

Comprising $23,939,266.89 in United States Liberty Bonds
$130,078,119.89 in Mortgages on Farms	$33,084,113.79 in Railroad Bonds
9,113,000.00 in other first-class Mortgages	22,458,027.97 in Municipal Bonds
22,278,445.72 in Loans on Company's Policies	27,124,929.15 in other Legal Assets

Of these Resources there was set aside as a liability to cover the Reserves required by law on Policies in Force, the sum of 236,792,105.00

And also there was set aside for all other defined liabilities (including $5,640,000 for the full year's apportionment of Surplus Returns to Policyholders for 1923) the sum of 12,303,279.62

Leaving as Surplus Assets for General Emergency Protection 18,980,518.79

These funds make secure the policies of some 3,250,000 individuals who are the owners of the funds and for whom they are held in trust. These policyholders are insured in this Company for $1,668,847,668.

But these funds do more than secure the policies; they are daily in use for the public welfare.

The Liberty Bonds held are the living evidence of the support which the policyholders gave to our Country in financing our war.

Mortgages on farms and on other real estate, bonds of States, Cities, Counties, and Townships, of Public Service Corporations, of Railroads, assist in the production and transportation of food and other commodities, and in other activities of our nation's life.

Payments to policyholders and their beneficiaries, for death, endowment, and other claims, reached $25,080,474.17 for the year, or $83,601 per working day.

Since organization in 1862 the payments to policyholders aggregate $292,858,962

In every essential element—new business written, income, assets, surplus—there was a strong and consistent gain in 1922.

THE VALUE OF A MAN

Dr. Luden reduces the elements of the composition of man as follows: Fat enough for seven bars of soap Iron enough for a medium-sized nail Sugar enough to fill a shaker Lime enough to whitewash a chicken coop Sulphur enough to rid a dog of fleas The value is estimated by the doctor as 93 cents.

Some men are evidently not even worth the bargain price of 93¢ for in order to have the proper amount of lime, iron, etc., in the body, the diet must be well balanced. Coffee and doughnuts, and pork chops and pickles and coffee, will not supply the minerals required by the body.

Where do these minerals come from? Largely from milk, whole grain cereals and vegetables. Iron, which helps make red blood, is found in green vegetables, whole grains, eggs, dried fruits.

Phosphorus is found in milk, cheese whole grains, turnips, onions and turnips, peas, beans and lentils. Lime is found in milk, green vegetables and whole grains.

It is especially essential that the prospective mother should eat foods containing these minerals, or else the supply for the growing infant will be taken from the mother's own body. One quart of milk daily will provide lime for bone and tooth formation and thus insure the mother against loss of the teeth.

An ideal menu for a day:
Breakfast—Baked apple, glass of milk, oatmeal and milk, whole wheat muffins and butter

Dinner—Baked potato (eat with skins), spinach, meat loaf with tomato sauce, baked Indian pudding and milk

Supper—Cream of celery soup, Graham bread and butter, fruit salad or sauce, gingerbread Siamese Debtors Must Work.

In Siam the law allows a debtor a clear three months. Then, if he fails to pay up, the creditor can apply to the court for an order to seize him, when he is compelled to work without pay until he has worked out his indebtedness.

Brighter Days Ahead.

Concerning Riches.

HISTORY OF WEYMOUTH

The Weymouth Historical Society announce that it is proposed to publish the Town History this coming year and circulars have been sent to every family in Weymouth soliciting advance subscriptions. The history will comprise four volumes bound in cloth and illustrated with rare and interesting pictures.

The contents will include a carefully prepared genealogy of Weymouth families, also chapters on all phases of Weymouth history since the landing of the first settlers. Many unique features will be included and every effort will be made to produce an accurate and desirable history.

The work will be every bit "Weymouth made", all the articles have been written by Weymouth people who have done their work without compensation and thus it is possible to sell the entire four volumes at the very low price of $10. Even the printing will be done in Weymouth and all money paid in will be distributed in Weymouth. Work will be begun on the printing as soon as possible after the Annual Town Meeting.

JOHN HANCOCK MUTUAL LIFE

The annual meeting of the policyholders of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company was held on Feb. 12 at its new administration building on Clarendon street. Pres. Walton L. Crocker was in the chair. The principal business transacted was the reading of the annual report for the past year, the election of officers, and the annual address of Pres. Crocker. The present officers were reelected. George R. Nutter of Dunbar, Nutter & McClennen, attorneys, and Thomas M. Devlin of Devlin Bros., leather dealers, were elected to the Board of Directors.

Pres. Crocker presented the 60th annual report of the directors, summarizing the activities of the past year as a record of healthy progress and accomplishment. The admitted assets as reported to the Massachusetts Insurance Department as of Dec. 31 last, total $268,075,903, representing an increase of $28,352,532 over the previous year. The ascertained liabilities being $249,095,384 (95 percent of this sum comprising the policy reserve), there result surplus assets of $18,980,518.

The new insurance written and placed in force in the year was $250,402,524, or an increase of 13 percent over the corresponding item in 1921. This is the company's second best year of writings, having been exceeded only in the somewhat abnormal year of 1920. The outstanding paid-for insurance was brought up to $1,688,847,668, or an increase of eight percent over the preceding Dec. 31. The net income, of which $56,879,460 was from premiums and $11,983,877 from interest, aggregated $68,863,337.

Payments to policyholders comprised a total during the year of $25,080,474. These payments averaged $83,601 for every working day. After paying a warm tribute to the "well-ordered, enthusiastic organization working in effective cooperation" in the home office and in the field which now comprises approximately 12,200 persons, Pres. Crocker said in part:

"The health of policyholders has increasingly become the concern of life insurance administration in general. Your company has recognized its proper field of activity here and desires to manifest its attitude through the adoption of all practical means of helping to prolong and preserve life.

"The new home office medical laboratory will furnish an effective base from which to pursue future studies relating to this desirable feature. As an instance of the company's interest in such matters, there may be mentioned our alliance with the Harvard Cancer Commission, and through that body, with the Funtington Memorial Hospital, which has been most admirably equipped for the study and treatment of cancer.

"As about ten percent of the death rate is caused by cancer, which appears to be on the increase, the question is of moment not only financially to the policyholders of the company but from a sentimental and humanitarian standpoint.

"A life insurance policy is property. Every life insurance policyholder is thus a property owner. The securities upon which this property either present or potential, is based comprise farms, railroads, public service utilities, schools, highways—the mediums of production and distribution, and other elements of the manifold activities of our National life. Through the institution of life insurance, therefore, so society at large is relieved of many financial burdens."

LINCOLN SERVICE

A largely attended Abraham Lincoln service was held at the East Weymouth Congregational church on Sunday evening attended by invited patriotic orders of the town, including the G. A. R., the American Legion, the allied orders and auxiliaries, and the Boy Scouts of Troop 2. The auditorium was decorated by large banners of sixteen countries of the world, arranged on either side of the center aisle forming a long line, at the end of which hung the American flag. An illuminated picture of Abraham Lincoln and a miniature log cabin had been arranged on a table in front of the pulpit, and a tent like that used in the Civil War on the platform as a setting for the old Civil War song "Tenting tonight on the old camp ground", which was sung by the Arlington Male Quartet of Boston. The program rendered by the quartet was as follows:

"Comrades in arms" Adams "Tenting on the old camp ground" Kittredge

Prayer Response, "Guard us and guide us"—Arr. Kinkel

"Soldiers Farewell" Hawthorne "Whispering Hope" Kinkel "There is no death", solo, Mr. Ciapp

The American Legion band rendered a selection as an offertory and led in the singing of the national anthem of "The Star Spangled Banner". The address by the pastor, Rev. K. A. Handanian, was "Abraham Lincoln—Sixty Years After". He said in part:

"Lincoln's Ideal expressed in a word, was Unity. His principle thought was 'A house divided against itself can never stand'. To that end he devoted his life and waged the battles of the Civil War. He once expressed his purpose in life in these words: 'Die when I may, I want it said by those who knew me best that I always plucked a thistle and planted a flower wherever I thought a flower would grow'.

Whether he succeeded or not is for us to judge. We know that he plucked the thistle of rebellion and planted the flower of Union. He plucked the thistle of slavery and planted the flower of racial freedom. He plucked the thistle of hate and planted the rose of love. No ambition for honor or glory or office deterred him from pursuing his course of the achievement of the goal of national unity. When he was warned that his "house divided" speech would bring him defeat and consign him to oblivion, his answer full of courage and fearlessness was: 'Friends, the time has come when these sentiments should be uttered, and if it be decreed that I should go down because of this speech, then let me go down linked with the truth'.

"Lincoln, if he were living today, sixty years after, if he were living in the divided world of today would say 'A world divided against itself can never stand', and would have devoted himself as ardently to the cause of world unity as he did to the cause of national unity. It is time for the nations of the world to try a bit of the remedy of forgiveness, and to appreciate the words of a bishop speaking recently who said: 'Gentlemen, if we are not to forgive our enemies, whom then are we to forgive? Furthermore, Lincoln, were he living in America today would continue his work for the preservation of national unity, socially, industrially, and religiously. He as devoutly would fight such divisive influences as the Ku Klux Klan or Anti orders that in any way work to widen the breach between peoples and religions.

"Americans who boast of so great a leader as Abraham Lincoln must lead the way in teaching the world that there is not one kind of truth that is Protestant and another that is Catholic; one kind of love that is Protestant and another that is Catholic. The teaching that will preserve national and world unity is this: truth, love, loyalty, forgiveness, is one: God's truth, God's love, God's forgiveness.

"Men of the Grand Army and of the American Legion, whatever else is true, we belong to that great church universal to which Abraham Lincoln said he would belong over whose pulpit was written the Savior's statement of the substance of the law, 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and thy neighbor as thyself'.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Editor Gazette-Transcript: In last week's issue of the Gazette your correspondent "Rex" expressed a wish that the Weymouth Historical Society would remove their rooms to the Tutts Library Building. I would suggest that "Rex" join the Historical Society and advocate the matter at their meetings.

I am very sure that if it could be shown that this would be a benefit, the Society would be willing to comply. I have made this statement in public before, but in a canvass made last year there were only three who favored the Tutts Library.

The Historical Society is a Weymouth Society and is perfectly willing to meet wherever its members most desire, but until "Rex" becomes a member his suggestions can have no weight.

RAT CAMPAIGNS SUCCESSFUL

The Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture conducted an anti-rat campaign in Georgia during December, and followed it with a similar campaign which is in progress in Virginia. In cooperation with the extension service of the Georgia Agricultural College, preliminary organization work was done, and a State-wide publicity campaign was put on. The campaign attained its greatest efficiency at Atlanta when the chamber of commerce purchased and distributed tons of charge two and three-quarter tons of barium carbonate for poisoned baits for rats. Satisfactory results are reported both in the number of

MANY NEW MEMBERS

Div. 6, A. O. H., on Sunday afternoon initiated 25 new members, making a total of about fifty new members since last June. The order is fast regaining its former strength, and looks forward to having about 150 or more members before the year is out. The club rooms are being altered and will soon be in first class condition. The Division has planned a large social program for the coming year, and many good times are being looked forward to.

Dennis Slattery, State vice-president, gave an interesting talk on the aims and work of the A. O. H. He was followed by President Thomas Slattery of Div. 9 of East Weymouth, who is also secretary of the Norfolk County board. He complimented the division on its growth in membership pointing out that it led all other divisions in the county in the drive for members in the past year. He stated that the degrees will be given soon and he promises to make a strong effort to have them in Weymouth.

The program ended with vocal selections by the Division Quartet composed of Walter Kent, Edward Cleary, Edward Haviland, and William Nolan.

Advising Husbands.

It's awful, Marie, to be married to an aviator. As soon as I mention a new hat, or even if I only express an opinion different from his own, right away he goes up in the air."

SHUBERT THEATRE

"Elsie", the John Jay Scholl musical comedy sensation to be at the Shubert next week, is registering heavily among the votaries of the theatre elsewhere because of its well defined theme, its realistic semblance of what would take place in a home of wealth, should its only son marry, seemingly, beneath his station—to an actress.

Of the song numbers, written by Sessle and Blake of "Shuffle Along" fame and Carlo and Sanders who composed "Tangerine", "Hearts in Tune" sung and danced to by Mr. Freedley and Miss Marwick, easily leads because of its true loveliness, its delightful diction and the exquisite sway and rhythm of its waltz movement which has never been equalled since the days of the Merry Widow waltz. Next follows "Two Lips Are Roses", which causes hilariousness and fun. Then comes "Boo Bunting" in which fast furious frivolities follow so frequently that one has hardly time to catch one's breath with its lilted love motif, its excellent staging, its bits of comedy by the members of the chorus who act as sheriffs, mortgag collectors, and constable's assistants receives three, four, and oft-times five encores nightly. And last, but not least, are "Everybody's Strutting Now" and the "Thunderstorm Jazz" numbers the whole forming an evening of high class fun and merriment that will make a visit to see "Elsie" at the Shubert worth while.

WILBUR THEATRE

"Listening In", the mystery comedy which comes to the Wilbur theatre, Boston, Monday night, Feb. 19, direct from its run at the Bijou theatre, New York, is sponsored by the Milton productions and has a real Boston favorite in the leading role in Ernest Glendinning.

"Listening In" is the most up-to-date of the long line of mystery plays and Carlyle Moore, the author, who wrote "Stop Thief" and "Unknown Purple" has concocted a comedy which bears the same relation to the mystery play as "Stop Thief" did to the old crook melodrama.

"Listening In" tells the story of a young man whose fortune is at stake, and who, left alone in a supposedly haunted house, sees a ghost materialize from Ectoplasm, and while "Listening In" on the infinite gets information which he uses for material gain. The simplicity of the modus operandi is fascinating for so natural is the play, that it hardly seems to be acting and a play at all.

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE

"Blossom Time", the exquisite Franz Schubert operetta, will start the second and last week of its en-agement at the Boston Opera next Monday evening, Feb. 19.

"Blossom Time" is one of the greatest musical successes of the decade. With a score consisting entirely of the famous composer's loveliest melodies, which are delicately woven into a story of Schubert's life, it represents the most distinguished musical production of the past few years. The action of the play takes place in Vienna in 1826, when Schubert was unknown save to a few friends who believed in his genius. He falls in love with Mitzi Krantz, daughter of the crown jeweler, to whom he has been giving music lessons, and as their intimacy develops he composes a love song in her honor. He asks the Baron Schreiber to sing it for him. Meanwhile, Mitzi, who has already fallen very much in love with her inarticulate suitor, is led to believe by a jealous prima donna, bent on avenging himself on the baron, that Schubert is a rascal, and so, when the baron sings the impassioned melody to her, she falls into his embrace and precipitates the most tragic incident in Schubert's life.

Next week there will be a special Washington's Birthday matinee, besides the regular Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

George Jessel's "Troubles of 1922", the Schubert Advanced Vaudeville show that will be seen at the Majestic theatre, Boston, for the week of Feb. 19, is the smartest production of its kind. From start to finish it captivates the eye, intrigues the ear, and inspires to hearty gales of laughter. There is plenty of comedy, a dash of sophisticated satire, a chorus of bewitching charm, in costumes that are delightful.

The cast of principals is headed by George Jessel, Fay and Florence Courtney, who would grace any production. The vaudeville portion of the entertainment has the brisk informality that characterizes all the unit productions. The Courtney Sisters are nominally headliners.

"Troubles of 1922" develop and disentangle themselves in a prologue and nine scenes, including a brilliant Broadway blaze, and the tragic-comic revelation of the seamy side of play producing—the maddening middle of a rehearsal.

MONDAY CLUB

The musical treat offered to the members of the Monday Club and their guests by those in charge of the meeting of February 19 did not slip by as an ordinary meeting with a fair attendance, but the program offered served to bring out a large attendance, an out-spoken vote in favor of fine music. The East Weymouth Congregational church was held, hardly a vacant seat, and the afternoon proved most enjoyable to those present. The concert was grand, each and every number beautifully and wonderfully executed, showed the fine calibre of the artists.

The Old Colony Club of South Weymouth, the annual guests of the Monday club were represented by a large number. The street railway company furnishing buses that were just packed both ways.

The Joseph Ecker Trio were the afternoon's entertainers, and while Miss Alice Eldridge is well known by many in South Weymouth, Miss Eva Boyden of Brockton has visited the club before, and many have heard Mr. Joseph Ecker at the High school. It is always pleasant to hear them, whether it be a piano solo, or the deep baritone and rich contralto voices. Their numbers for the afternoon included:

Ama Pinsuti
By the Waters of Minnetonka Leurance
Miss Boyden and Mr. Ecker
"O Don Patall" from "Don Carlos" Verdi
Sylvia Speaks
Awake My Heart to Gladness Densmore

Miss Boyden and Mr. Ecker
While at the start some little anxiety was felt by the non-appearance of the piano, a sigh of relief was plainly heard from the assembly as it was gracefully rooled down the aisle. And while Miss Eldridge said herself it would be hard to do anything with a cold and unresponsive piano, these present felt her selections were finely executed and loudly expressed their approval by vigorous hand claps.

The pleasing personality of both Miss Eldridge and Miss Boyden was evident. And whether Miss Boyden sang alone or with Mr. Ecker, their voices blended wonderfully and were just fine.

President Mrs. Libby presided at the business session and the notice was served on the members that once more the Monday Club was honored by one of its members having twins. Some few years ago Mrs. Frank J. A. Perry of Weymouth was the fortunate parent, and twins were also born to Mrs. Ralph S. Wilder and now the publicity chairman, Mrs. Prescott, who in a short period has done splendid work for the club, on Feb. 9, welcomed twin daughters, thus putting Monday Club in a class that not many clubs are in, that of having three sets of twins.

Previous to the music, Parker T. Pearson, superintendent of Weymouth schools, spoke on the special town election next Monday on the High school question, urging all to come out and vote for the appropriation. It is apparent that there is urgent call for more accommodations at the High school.

COAL SITUATION SERIOUS

There is no hard coal in Weymouth and the situation is serious. A barge load arrived at Quincy Point this week, but where there are hundreds of applications it will not last the week out.

Organizations and individuals should write letters to their Congressmen, Gov. Cox, and the State Fuel Administrator.

A meeting of the Weymouth Board of Trade has been called for this evening at the Clapp Memorial Building, and President Frederick Humphrey announces that the topic will be: "Advisability of adding our voice in protest to Washington on the present coal situation, and any further business that may come before the meeting."

The Weymouth fuel administrator, William B. Dasha, is besieged all day long with applicants for coal, and does not find any time to attend to his own business, or town business.

On Wednesday he tried to get some of the coal that arrived by barge at Quincy Point, but Quincy seemed to have the preference. However, Mr. Dasha was able to get some, and is delivering it today.

Mr. Dasha has discovered about 150 tons of broken coal for the Old Colony Gas Co. in storage at the wharf of Sheppard & Sons, which it is said will not be used until May. He is making a strenuous effort to obtain some of this coal, and will appeal to the State department if necessary.

The local coal merchants are making prompt delivery of soft coal, and many families are using it, although they dislike it.

Pray and Tirrell Nominated for Selectmen

Weymouth will have at least two new Selectmen this year, as Mr. Humphrey is retiring and Mr. Cowing died recently.

The largest caucus was in Ward Three where there were three candidates. Out of a total vote of 296, Frederic H. Ferris received 38, H. Franklin Perry 112, and Frank A. Pray 146. Mr. Pray was declared the nominee, but it is said that Mr. Perry will run on nomination papers.

In the East Weymouth ward a big majority was given to Winslow M. Tirrell, the vote being 103 to 40 for Frederick Humphrey. Mr. Humphrey was present, and on his motion the nomination was made unanimous.

In the North Weymouth ward William B. Dasha was renominated for Selectman and Overseer of the Poor without a contest.

In Ward Four, Theron L. Tirrell was renominated without opposition.

In the South Weymouth ward only 22 votes were cast, and Alfred W. Hastings was renominated for Selectman.

Tonight a Non-Partisan town caucus will be held at Odd Fellows hall at East Weymouth. The executive committee of the party met yesterday to consider candidates. Probably a complete ticket will not be nominated, but the party will try to elect one or more Selectmen.

It is also expected that the following will run as independent candidates for Selectmen, John B. Whelan, Benjamin F. Smith, H. Franklin Perry.

There were no contests for the other offices to be filled at the Annual Town Election, and all whose terms expired were renominated.

The chairman of the caucus was Prince H. Tirrell, and Newland H. Helmes was secretary.

MINSTREL SHOW

For the benefit of one of their members, Russell Bailey, the K. C. Boat club gave a minstrel show at the club house on Wednesday evening to an enthusiastic audience that filled the main hall and overflowed into the glassed-in porch. The program included,—

K. OF P. ANNIVERSARY

Delphi lodge, Knights of Pythias, celebrated its anniversary with a banquet, entertainment, and dance at Pythian hall on Monday evening. Caterer Burrus of Roxbury served the banquet. Percy F. Baker, baritone; Theresa Sprague, soprano; Helen Cameron, reciter; and Abbie Hasselme, pianist, furnished the entertainment. The dancing was from 10 to 12.

The three surviving charter members of the lodge, Darius Smith, James T. Pease, and Reuben Tirrell were present, as were also Deputy J. E. Lyons and Mrs. Lyons of Brockton. The committee in charge included Grant B. Chase, Lawrence E. Pray, Elmer Goodspeed, Lester W. Tirrell, Russell Dexheimer, Franklin P. Whitten, W. D. Aiken, Parker Bates, Everett McIntosh, and Christopher Wade.

MEETING OF SELECTMEN

Special meetings of the Selectmen have been held the past week on Friday and Tuesday as well as the regular on Monday.

A petition signed by 245 voters was received asking for a referendum vote on the High School appropriation. As it had more than the required number of names it was voted to issue a warrant for a special election next week. The Selectmen are not advertising the date, so voters should keep telephone busy to ascertain the date.

Minor licenses were granted. Inquiries are being made for the Annual Town Report, as the contract for the printing called for the delivery on Feb. 15.

The following names have been drawn for the criminal session of the Norfolk Superior court, which includes a murder trial: Andrew C. Thompson, Elmer E. Lunt, William F. Callahan, Henry R. Hawkes, Roger P. Loud, Fred L. Bayley, James T. Nettles Jr., Bertie T. Loud, Irvin B. H. Hawes, Joseph C. Ashton, George B. Crane, Ernest E. Thayer, Alfred C. Tower, and Alexander A. Burnett.

WARD THREE METHODS

To the Voters of the Town of Weymouth:

I wish to thank the voters of Ward Three who attended the caucus Tuesday evening and voted for me. I feel sure that I received a plurality of the votes cast at the caucus, although the vote as announced gave a plurality of 34 to F. A. Pray. The caucus was a cut and dried affair, and little short of a joke.

Although I had announced my candidacy but four days before the time of the caucus, the successful (?) candidate had been working for months, and led me but a few votes, allowing they had been cast as announced.

This candidate, with cards bearing his likeness, stood directly beside the ballot box which, by the way, was an ordinary soap box, and tried to place them in the hands of each voter as they were about to deposit their ballots which, to my mind, was nothing short of intimidation. And to cap the climax, these cards were cast and counted as ballots.

I am informed by reputable citizens, who stand ready to make sworn affidavit, that they saw in a number of instances, voters deposit more than one ballot in the box. The caucus had no legal standing, and a protest was of no avail.

It was a case of one man against the ring. I do not question the officers of the caucus, as I feel that the result as announced by them was a correct statement of the votes as they found them in the ballot box. It is a well known fact that at a Republican caucus held in Ward Three a number of years ago, the successful candidate who carried the caucus was counted out.

Unless conditions are speedily remedied in this ward, it will be impossible to get a decent citizen to run for an office, and I feel sure the action of the caucus will be repudiated by the voters on election day.

At this time, several available candidates for the office of selectman refused to run on account of the conditions. It is high time that successful business men and not business failures were placed in offices of trust, where hundreds of thousands of dollars of the taxpayers money is handled.

Yours Respectfully,
H. FRANKLIN PERRY

LESTER WARREN BLANCHARD

Lester Warren Blanchard died suddenly on Feb. 9 at his home, 100 Montevello road, Jamaica Plain. He was born 62 years ago at North Weymouth, the son of the late Deacon Alonzo and Miriam Blanchard. Early in life he began his career in the baking business, which he had successfully followed for the past forty years in Boston, being at one time president of the Master Bakers Association. He was a member of Tremont lodge, No. 15, Odd Fellows, known and beloved among his associates as a man of sterling character and high integrity.

In 1882 he married Elizabeth Thury of Malden, who survives him with two sons, Harold W. of Hartford, Conn., and Andrew T. connected with his father in the present business at Jamaica Plain. He also leaves two sisters and a brother, Mrs. Charles Seabury of Grafton and Mrs. George Bean of North Weymouth and Carl Blanchard of New Haven. The body was brought for burial to the North Weymouth cemetery to be laid beside many generations of ancestors.

First Gas Used in This Country.

The first recorded demonstration of gas in the United States was in Philadelphia in August, 1796, when gas was manufactured by M. Ambrose & Co., Italian fireworkers and artists. In Richmond, Va., in 1803, a huge gas lamp was erected on a 40-foot tower, which for a time attracted much attention. Introduction of gas lights in Rembrandt Peale's museum in Baltimore in 1816 proved to be such a sensation and success that it led to the organization of a gas company and the lighting of the streets of that city with gas. The light in the museum proved to be even a greater attraction than the skeleton of a mastodon, which, up to that time, had been the chief feature of the museum.

Stewardship.

We would leave for the consideration of those who shall occupy our places some proof that we hold the blessings transmitted from our fathers in just estimation; some proof of our attachment to the cause of good government and of civil and religious liberty; some proof of a sincere and ardent desire to promote everything which may enlarge the understanding and improve the hearts of men.—Webster.

Had Her Lesson Perfect.

A little girl was told that polite people did not talk about their ailments in company, or outside the family. So when a visitor asked her if she was well, she said, "Well, in the family, I have stomach ache and other childish ailments; in company I am quite well thank you."

Like Bread Upon Water.

Is thy crust of comfort wasting? Rise and share it with another; then through all the years of famine it shall serve thee and thy brother. Is thy burden hard and heavy? Do thy steps drag wearily? Help to bear thy brother's burden—God will bear both it and thee.—Elizabeth Charles.

Cleans Teeth of Saw.

Saws used for cutting metal are frequently rendered inefficient by reason of the particles of metal adhering to the surface and interfering with the cutting operation. A new invention has a tiny wheel which cleans each tooth of the saw after it has passed through the metal.

Auntie's Temperature.

John, listening to Aunt Emma talking loud and fast, and being unable to follow the conversation, thought she was scolding, whereupon she remarked to her mother, "My, but Aunt Emma is high temperatured today."

Give us agitation of opposing parties to arouse a healthy vigilance in town affairs."

Bamboo a Good Food.

The bureau of plant industry says that natives of the Far East have eaten grass in the form of edible bamboo sprouts for many years. This tender sprout can be prepared for the table in the same manner as asparagus and is deemed by some to be a delicious spring vegetable. Bamboo, according to scientists, is not a tree, but a giant grass. It grows like asparagus, the new plants forming from the original roots.

On the Six-Ten Train
By CLARISSA MACKIE
(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Jane drove the big car up the long hill to the railroad station and backed it skillfully to the platform among the hundred other motors waiting for the express to come in. David Perry often came down for a week-end at the Woodland's suburban place, and since his engagement to Jane had been announced it was Jane who invariably met him at the station.
Sometimes there were other guests for the Woodlands, or perhaps it would be merely one of the family, Mr. Woodland or young Roland, or Sally, but they usually fell into the background of unimportance. David and Jane and Joy rode together.
Jane was looking particularly lovely this afternoon; she wore a new frock, and a soft flopping country-hat that made a frame for her bewitching face. "Six-ten's late," remarked the baggage-master-station-agent-telegrapher, with a knowing look at Jane Woodland.
Jane smiled and dimpled. Peter Hornbeak knew that the six-ten was David's train. She walked up and down the long platform, stopping to speak to a few friends here and there, and then stood gazing down the line.
The train came rushing in, bringing a breath of excitement and bustle from the big city. Jane saw David's towering form emerge from a rear coach.

He Carried Her Bag.

saw him assist a woman—they walked together—he carried her bag. She wore a black cloth suit of extremely modish cut, a large hat swathed in a black lace veil. She walked with a jauntness that put Jane's healthy stride to shame.

Jane stared coldly at the approaching pair.
The truth must be confessed at last. Jane Woodland was of a very jealous nature. She loved David, and it hurt her to see him pay any attention to other women. He rarely did, for Jane filled his world completely.
"A smaller girl than I—and a lot prettier," thought Jane bitterly, as she drew back behind a pillar. Temptation prompted jealousy to act. Jane slipped around the station building, jumped into her car and whisked away in the green twilight.

As the road uncurled before her she seemed to see those two figures, the slender, pretty girl and David walking together.

Suppose she went back and met them—the girl might be some one in the village whom David had met, or she might be a cousin.
David had no cousins.
She wondered what they would do—take Steve Brogan's taxicab perhaps, but they certainly would not have the effrontery to come to the Woodlands'. Having come to this conclusion, Jane glanced behind her and saw them walking along the path behind her. The girl wore gray silk stockings and gray suede slippers.

The slippers must have been very uncomfortable to walk in. Jane thought of that as the car slipped along the pleasant road. Then she turned the corner that led home. As she turned the corner she glanced over her shoulder and saw David putting the girl into a taxicab. He jumped in beside her and they rode rapidly away in the opposite direction!

Jane did not eat much dinner that night; she parried the questions of her family and listened for the telephone bell. David would ring her up. He usually did so after one of their quarrels. She rather hoped he would call her.
It was ten o'clock when the telephone called her.
"Jane?" came David's voice.
"Jane is speaking," she responded coolly.

"I must apologize; I came on the six-ten, but did not see you, dear."
"I was there—I saw you—but you were so absorbed," upbraided Jane.
"Jane Woodland!" he breathed, sharply.
"Well, you were busily engaged, were you not?"
"Yes, in a way. My grandmother came down with me and I was going to ask you to drop her off at my Aunt Agatha's. Didn't you see? So we walked along the road until a taxicab picked us up."
"Your grandmother?" repeated Jane incredulously. "Your grandmother!" she added in scornful disbelief.
"Yes. Now, Jane, that I have explained this, you can see your mistake, can't you?"
"I don't know what you mean about my mistake, Mr. Perry," she said in her coldest tone.

"Has it reached the Mr. Perry stage?" he asked furiously. "What is the next move?"
"For me to return your ring, which I shall do in the morning," said Jane, with her eyes full of tears, which, of course, David could not see.
"Very well," he answered, and rang off.

The next day being Sunday, Jane went to church and had the pleasure of seeing David sitting in his Great-aunt Agatha's pew, with the strange girl beside him. Jane saw that David was very attentive to the slim young thing in black, and a grim despair seized her.

She wondered if it occurred to David that they—David and Jane—had planned to be married in this very church in September? Why, they had decided upon the floral decorations, the ushers, the guests, the music—everything had been carefully thought out. What happy times they had had, too.

Slowly the congregation dispersed. In the porch the Woodlands lingered to greet their friends. Jane would have hurried on to avoid David, but her mother plucked her back.

"Jane, my dear, I want to introduce you to Mrs. Churchill, David's grandmother. Susan, this is my youngest daughter," murmured Mrs. Woodland, with justifiable pride.
"Delighted, my dear, David has told me about you. Where is the boy? He brought me to church in that fendish little car of his—he has had it stored at Agatha's. I refuse to return in it. Take your little Jane home, Davy, and I'll go back with the old folks. Agatha will come, too!"

Jane stared at the absurd little figure, tricked out in its girlish clothes. Behind the lace veil shimmered a sweet, lined face and graying hair. How pitiful it was to cling so firmly to passing youth!

"Well, good-by, granny. Sorry about the mad ride, Jane likes the little car; eh, Jane?"

But Jane's shamed eyes were watching the jaunty, swinging gait of David's grandmother tilting along on high-heeled shoes. When she lifted her gaze to his at last David was smiling. "Well?" he asked.
"Your grandmother!" she laughed tremulously, and this time she believed it.

TESTING COAL FOR A QUEEN
Elizabeth of England Was at First Extremely Skeptical as to Its Value as Fuel.

In olden days the lord mayor of London was one of the sovereign's most trusted henchmen, and at times many strange duties have fallen to his lot. One of the quaintest was devised by Queen Elizabeth, says London Tit-Bits.

Until her reign coal was almost unknown in the south of England, though sea coal was gathered regularly from the shore and used in the North.
One day a Northumberland subject sent her a consignment of coal. The queen saw it burn on the hearth and enjoyed its pleasant glow. "Can it be used for cooking?" she asked. She was assured that it could.

But she was a cautious person. She sent a quantity to her lord mayor, ordering him to use it for cooking his own dinner and to report to her whether food treated in this way was fit for human consumption!

Not until the lord mayor had reported that he had eaten and survived would she have coal used in the royal kitchen.

Expert Advice.
Two men, neither of whom could be considered of championship class, and whose knowledge of the rules of the royal and ancient game of golf was no more accurate than was the technique of the various shots, were standing at the first tee. One of the men, taking a vicious swing, sliced to such an extent that the ball struck an oak tree with such force that it came bounding back across the tee, and the player in question caught the ball in his hand. With a bewildered look on his face he turned to his opponent and asked: "What shall I do now?" His opponent, with no intention of joking, replied: "Tee it up, hit it again and then put your hands in your pockets."

"The Poetry of Earth."
If it be true, as some poets think, that every spot on earth is full of poetry, then it is certainly also true that each place has its own distinctive measure; an indigenous meter, so to speak, in which, and in which only, its poetry will be truly set or sung. There are surely woods which are like stately sonnets, and others of which the truth would best be told in tender lyrics, brooks which are jocund songs, and mountains which are Odes to Immortality.—Helen Hunt Jackson.

"I'M HALF CRAZY"

John Bartley, noted criminal investigator, recently returned from Secret Service work during the war, is asked by the governor of New York to investigate a mysterious attempted robbery of the Robert Slyke home at Circle Lake, near Saratoga, and to establish the guilt or innocence of two men in the post-mortem for the crime. A miscarriage of justice is suspected. Bartley finds in it the resting of an old case, is interested and agrees to solve the mystery. With his friend Pelt, a newspaper man, Bartley goes to Circle Lake. The pair becoming the guests of Bob Currie, an old friend. Slyke recalls Bartley's coming, saying he is satisfied the two men in prison are guilty. Bartley is not. Next morning Slyke is found dead in bed, apparently having shot himself. Miss Potter, the dead man's sister-in-law, the village police chief, Roche, and the family physician, Doctor King, all agree Slyke killed himself, but Bartley insists he was murdered. Investigating, Bartley finds evidence that Slyke was shot on the tower of the house, undressed, and placed in bed.

As if answering my thoughts, he said, "Yes, Slyke was murdered here."

Though I had been sure he would say that, it did not seem reasonable that any person should select the balcony of a tower, fifty or more feet in the air, as a place in which to commit a murder. It became still more puzzling when I remembered that Slyke had been carried down two flights of stairs, undressed, placed in bed and a revolver clamped in his hand. Roche, his fat face puzzled, gave me a bewildered glance. I could sympathize with his astonishment as I felt much the same way myself.

I expressed my surprise to Bartley and he responded, "I know, Pelt, all that you have said and all that you are thinking. It does seem out of all reason that anyone should pick the top of this tower for a murder. Yet here are the spots of blood, and there are none anywhere else. I am sure he was not killed downstairs; it must have been here, and--"

He paused and, bending over, picked something up. At first I could not make out what it was; then I saw that it was a gold-plated collar-button such as a man wears in the front of his shirt. Roche needed only one look to identify it, "Slyke's!"

Bartley did not speak until he had walked entirely around the tower and was again beside us. "Chief," he said, "we may say there is no doubt that Slyke was killed up here. I do not know why such a strange place was chosen, but I do know that he was dragged down these stairs after his death and placed in his bed to make his death appear to be suicide. The odds were very much in favor of the criminal's being able to succeed in his design, too. But he slipped up--slipped up in the manner in which he put the gun in the hand and in the way in which he closed the eyes. But why he should have killed Slyke up here I cannot understand."

He paused for a moment, as if thinking, then continued, "Slyke gave a party last evening. The crime must have been committed after the party broke up. That was probably between one and two o'clock in the morning. One man, perhaps two, stayed behind to talk with Slyke. We can't say positively that they did, but they may have. Roche thinks that this man, or men, committed the murder. One man may have stayed and then gone away before the murder, or someone else may have come later. They may have come up here to see the view, and one of them shot him. After the crime the body, at any rate, was taken downstairs again and undressed, the nightshirt placed on it, and it laid in bed. As he wanted it to appear like suicide, the murderer placed the gun in the dead man's fingers, but he either did not remember, or perhaps did not know, how the eyes should look after a sudden death. The very things done to make us think it was suicide prove that it could not have possibly been one."

As Bartley was now ready to go downstairs again, we all returned to the room below. The first thing we saw when we entered, was a brown stocking, the mate to the one in the room below. We had not noticed it on our way to the balcony as it lay half under the rug, and the opened door hid it. Bartley picked it up, glanced at it, smiled, and was going to say something when a voice called to us from below.

In a second we were down the stairs and in Slyke's bedroom. The door to the stairway was closed just as we had left it; Bartley opened it to find a young man with a big camera under his arm on the landing. He gave us an inquiring glance; then, seeing Roche, whom he seemed to know, he announced, "Doctor King said you wanted me up here to take some pictures. What shall I take first?"

Bartley glanced at the bed and I thought gave a slight start. The bedclothes that had been driven down around Slyke's waist when we were examining the revolver in his hand had been replaced by Bartley, before we went to the floor above, in the position in which they were when we entered the room--that is, around

Slyke's neck and half covering his chin. "You had better take first a picture of the bed as it is now," Bartley suggested. "Then I will pull the bedclothes down and you can take a picture of his hand with the revolver in it."

The first picture took some time, for the young man could not seem to find the proper place for his camera, but at last it was done. "Now for the other one," Bartley went to the side of the bed, reached down, and pulled back the bedclothes. As he drew them down he paused and a cry escaped him. "Look!"

As my eyes fell on the hand of the dead man I, too, started. When we had gone upstairs the revolver was clasped in Slyke's still fingers. Now they were empty. Someone had removed the gun!

CHAPTER IV The Dead Man's Eyes. For several moments we were all so startled that none of us spoke. For myself, I could only look at the hand that had, so short a time before, held the revolver. I could not imagine who could have taken it, and what his purpose in doing so could be. I glanced at Bartley. His face was set, a white line showing around his tightly closed lips. He was angry, very angry.

As he turned to Roche, who stood with eyes bulging, his voice shook a little. "Roche, go and get Miss Potter at once. Tell her to call all the servants and have them assemble in the living room. I will be down in a moment."

Roche hurried out without speaking. Immediately Bartley bent again over the bed, studying the position of the hand that had held the revolver. When he straightened up he told the photographer that he would not need him any longer. As soon as the young man had left the room, Bartley turned to me with a rueful little smile. "Well, Pelt, I certainly slipped up this morning. We left this room without locking the door. True, there was no key, but I should have left either Roche or you on guard. Instead of that we have given someone a chance to slip in here and remove the revolver. He thought he was removing a valuable piece of evidence. The joke is that the removal of the revolver does not make much difference. We all saw the gun, and we all heard Miss Potter say that it had belonged to Slyke."

"But," I asked, "who could have known about it--I mean that it was mine. I am, of course, the head of the local police and shall have to put up some kind of a bluff, but I wish you would take charge of the case."

"You say Miss Potter doesn't wish to give us any aid at all?" Roche nodded. "Well, then, Roche, we will have to go down and see what we can do with her together. You tell her I am your assistant. You might also add that if she refuses to give us the information we need, we can arrest her on the charge of obstructing an officer in the discharge of his duty."

Both men grinned at this, and, still smiling, Roche led the way from the room. From the top of the stairs we could see Miss Potter in the living room below, pacing nervously back and forth. When she heard us descending, with Roche in the lead, she stopped at the desk and began to arrange its contents in an effort to cover her nervousness and confusion. She did not look up even when we were at her side.

After waiting for her to speak, Bartley said in a grave tone, "Miss Potter, I understand that you told Officer Roche that you refused to call the servants."

She raised her face, crimson with anger, and tried to answer, but though her lips formed the words not a sound came from them. At last, in a voice broken with passion and with words stumbling one over the other, she said, "I--yes--it's so. I--told Mr. Roche not to call the servants. No one asked you to come here. You have no business in this house--looking into things that do not concern you. Mr. Slyke is dead, and every one will believe that he killed himself in spite of anything you can say. Anything that has to be done Mr. Roche can do. It's none of your business, anyway."

Standing in front of us with her figure straight and her shoulders thrown back defiantly, she almost shrieked the last words at us. She was so angry that she did not seem to know what she was saying. I wondered why she should be in such a rage. So far as I could see, there was no reason for it. We stood silent and embarrassed. Bartley's eyes never left her face. Under his grave scrutiny she flushed and her eyes dropped. "Miss Potter," he said suddenly, "you don't want me to believe that you know who killed your brother-in-law, do you?"

His question seemed the last straw. She turned on him like a fury, and her eyes roved over the desk as if she were looking for something to throw at him. She shrieked, "You say I know who killed him--I know? Why, I don't even believe that he was murdered. How dare you say that--how can you stand there and say it to my face?"

Bartley shrugged his shoulders. "I don't say that you know, but if you keep on acting like this whenever you are asked a question some one else will. If it should come out in the inquest, for instance, that you refused to allow us to question the servants, people may not only think you know, but they may go even further. If you don't aid us, Roche can arrest you for obstructing an officer in the performance of his duty."

This was news to her. Anger gave place to fear, and she looked at us helplessly. Bartley realized that, overcome by what she had been through, she was not herself, and added kindly, "I know this death must have shocked you terribly, Miss Potter. I am trying my best to make it easier for you. I did not force myself into the house. Doctor King himself asked me to come this morning. What you do not seem to comprehend is that a serious crime has been committed. Your brother-in-law has been murdered, and the law will demand to know who did it. It will also want to know if you did everything in your power to help us to discover the murderer."

For a moment she said nothing, then she turned and faced Bartley, her eyes searching his, and in the tone of one weary and broken she said, "I will do what I can to help you."

She hesitated and brushed the unkempt hair again and again from her eyes, as if hardly knowing what she was doing.

"It's driving me wild. I am half crazy," she cried suddenly, and taking an uncertain step forward stumbled almost to her knees.

Bartley placed his arm around her and led her to a chair. Then turning to Roche, he asked him to call the servants.

As soon as Roche had gone, Bartley began to examine the room. A few feet away from him were three card tables, their surfaces littered with playing cards, just as they had been thrown down when the last game was over; so, too, the chairs were in the same position into which they had been pushed when the players rose for the last time. Bartley picked up the cards on the nearest table and counted them. He did the same thing with those on the second table and on the third. At the last table he paused longer than he had at the other two. Finally he took from his pocket the two cards we had found in the tower and motioned to me to join him.

As I reached Bartley's side, he asked me to count the cards on the table. I did so and found the pack was two cards short. As I finished, he handed me the two cards that we had found upstairs saying, "Look at these."

Suddenly a girlish voice called, "Who is talking about me?"

UNION MEN'S CLUB

Fayette Winchester Denio, vice-president of the Old Colony Trust Co. and chairman of the taxation committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, was the speaker at the Union Men's club Wednesday evening. He spoke on the subject of "Taxation in Massachusetts". Among other things he said that our cities and towns are today too extravagant in their appropriations. Taking a piece of chalk he wrote down figures showing that we are lavishly spending the people's capital. In a few years we will come to the precipice. He advocated the cessation of improvements except where absolutely necessary for a period of ten years until we have recovered a little from the war. "A town should not have a tax rate of over $20 per $1000, and for every dollar that is increased, 50¢ should be added to the poll tax, so as to make the voters who do not own property think when they vote appropriations".

The speaking was preceded by the usual good roast beef supper and there were many jokes passed around in the form of funny valentines. Philip R. Coak, vice-president, presided. The supper was served by L. H. Hyde and committee.

W. R. C. NOTES

Mrs. Loring, D. P., with several members of her staff and many Relief Corps members attended the reception of Gov. Cox on Washington's Birthday at State House.

The many friends of Mrs. Margaret Culley are glad to know she is improving and much better from a serious illness.

Notice of Norfolk County Association meeting was read.

WEYMOUTH HEIGHTS

The Sufonectis club held their weekly card party at the home of Miss Catherine Crane. The first prize was won by Mrs. Moore, second by Mrs. Delory, and third by Mrs. Schilmer, and the consolation prize by Mrs. Jeffis. A delightful lunch was served and a very enjoyable evening was had by all.

The Senior Christian Endeavor held a costume party in the First church chapel on last Saturday evening. The chapel was prettily decorated with red and white crepe paper and red hearts. Games were enjoyed throughout the evening and refreshments were served.

Miss Isabelle Jones gave a Valentine party to the young people of Weymouth Heights on last Wednesday evening. A delightful evening was spent playing games and was much enjoyed by all who were present.

Miss Edith Bates spent the weekend with her sister, Miss Abbie Bates of Dorchester.

There will be a supper and entertainment at the First church chapel this evening. The entertainment is in charge of Mrs. MacDowell, and will be in the form of an original fashioned play in honor of George Washington's Birthday.

LADIES NIGHT

The Men's Club of the Congregational church were fortunate in securing for their speaker for the annual "Ladies Night", Harold C. Keith, president of the George E. Keith Co., which operates one of the largest shoe factories of Weymouth.

First, he told what the company was trying to do, and his ideals for better industrial conditions and a good spirit in the community, were applauded. Since the Keith factory was opened in Weymouth seven million pairs of shoes have been manufactured, and the pay rolls have aggregated $5,000,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith have recently returned from a tour of Europe by automobile, and Mr. Keith first showed many excellent views of the battlefields of France which he took himself. The second part of his illustrated lecture was his trip through Switzerland, finely shown by beautiful dissolving views.

The lecture was given in the auditorium of the church and was largely attended. Mr. Keith was introduced by the pastor, and at the close was given a rising vote of thanks.

The committee for "Ladies Night" were William C. Earle and Ralph Haskins, and the supper committee included Charles Humphrey, Ralph Bates and Herbert Rockwood, who served an excellent roast beef supper before the lecture.

A TRIBUTE

That it is not necessary for a man to hold a high position, executive or political, to always be popular and liked. Or the greatness of the position does not mean wonderful deeds. A man in a humble position can give such service that the words are true "Well done, good and faithful servant"; nor is it necessary for a man to always die at the firing line to be said he died in the service. This past week there has left our midst a man who nearly everyone in East Weymouth, little or big, called "Tige". In the nine years he has carried faithfully the mail from the postoffice to the station he has missed but three or four days. Always on time, dependable and faithful, probably hardly a soul in Weymouth who has received or sent a letter but what he carried the same for them, thru all long day that he put in at this work. Seven days a week, he never missed a mail—he was very faithful and could be depended upon.

Nor was his work mechanical; he took a close interest in it all; he was careful not to touch a sack that was not properly locked or labeled, and the Postmaster speaks thus of him:—"Always faithful to his duty; could be depended upon, and his work will long be remembered as of the very best, and it will be a position not easy to fill"

"Tige" was fond of horses, due probably to many years association with the late George W. Young.
So faithful to his work that even at the end when almost too weak to handle the sacks himself, he stuck to his post, until his brother really ordered him home to bed and rest. Thus, so faithful and true to his work he practically died in the harness.

A wife mourns the loss of a good husband, for "Tige" Davison was fond of his home and daughters.

CARD OF THANKS

Ladies and Gentlemen: I respectfully wish to tender you my sincere thanks for your kind and generous acts in helping me out when fire destroyed my home and property. I can scarcely tell you how much your kindness benefited my family. But what I wish particularly to add, is to tell you in simple words that I am thankful and if ever the time comes that I can do a favor for any of you, individually, you shall find me ready and willing to reciprocate to the best of my ability. Again sincerely thanking you, I remain,
Mr. (and Mrs.) William O'Brien

AMERICAN LEGION

Post 79, American Legion, held its monthly social Monday night in G. A. R. hall and believe me it was some time.

Music? Why we had all kinds of it. The band played several selections and the Post is mighty fortunate to have a band like we have, and the leader, Comrade Ventre, has brought them up in wonderful shape. Comrade Stein led the singing and Comrade Ventre presided at the piano and how they did sing; some of the fellows were on the key all right and others were trying to get on when the singing stopped. But that made no difference as everybody was having a rattling good time.

Rev. Caleb Justice of East Braintree gave a very interesting talk on "Americanism" and during the course of his speech he brought forth many things that Lincoln and Washington did during their lives. An extended abstract of the address will be printed in the Gazette next week.

Dan Cummings, commander of the Neponset Post, was introduced and made a few snappy remarks. Sandwiches and coffee was the next on the program but just before we started to eat, the band played Carolina in the morning" and Jack Easton twirled a coal shovel around his head for a few minutes; it was all right for him, but one of the visitors sat right in back of Jack and he looked very uneasy, but did not dare to move. But everything turned out all right and Jack was given a great hand.

Johnny Sullivan rendered several vocal selections during the evening and he has improved wonderfully in the last year.

The evening's entertainment was closed with the band playing the Star Spangled Banner. It was a great night and everybody enjoyed themselves and look forward to the next social which will be held next month.

Now don't forget the special election that is to be held next Monday in regards to the town appropriating money for a new High school. It is up to every member of the Legion to do his duty as a citizen of the town of Weymouth and attend this election and vote wisely on the matter.

The members of the Post extend their hearty congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Prescott upon their new arrivals and wish them and theirs all the happiness that can be forthcoming.

GEN THEATRE

Now another big attraction for the Gen theatre; everyone has heard of "The Storm", the picture with the big forest fire, spectacular from start to finish. As Mr. Rogers is ever on the alert to please his patrons he has engaged this picture for two days, hoping to seat everyone and not turn away hundreds as was the case when "Ninety and Nine" was shown. Mr. Rogers believes in the best, so very soon will come "Adam's Rib".

SOME FACTS ABOUT SCHOOLS
 Editor Gazette-Transcript:

As "fine feathers do not make fine birds" so fine school houses do not necessarily make fine schools.

Why doesn't the School department tell us the facts in regard to the school situation instead of dazzling our eyes with stereopticon views of gymnasiums, halls, and luxuries that we can ill afford at the present time?

North Weymouth needs a new school at once and the school accommodations in East Weymouth and South Weymouth are inadequate.

Where is the money to come from for the other parts of the town if we spend $300,000 on our High school thus so nearly approaching our debt limit that it will be difficult for the town to borrow more money? The High school is not adequate. Why not enlarge it on the original plans made at the time the building was designed? This could be done for about one half of the amount called for in the new plans. By the way where are the old plans, were at the town office ten years ago? They cannot be found.

The sanitary conditions in several of our schools are an absolute disgrace to the town. Children are obliged to go out of doors to buildings which have neither heat or water. Why not have necessities before considering luxuries?

Our schools are not what they should be although the statistics at the State House show that we are spending a far larger proportion of our income from taxes for schools than the average towns of the state. The teachers are not getting it. Will the School department please tell us where the money goes to?

A few years ago the School department almost demanded $100,000 for a new school house at Weymouth Landing yet by spending $25,000 and keeping our old buildings that part of the town is well provided for.

It must be taken into consideration that the School department is calling for nearly $200,000 for maintenance of schools this year, so let us do what is necessary to the High school at this time and later on we may be able to build a separate building for a gymnasium. X. Y. Z.

HIGH SCHOOL ADDITION
 Editor Gazette-Transcript:

The matter of the proposed addition to the High School is of such importance that a referendum thereon is entirely fitting. There may well be regret that certain criticisms of the project are not well founded, and that certain mistaken ideas as to the plans have been current, since it has long been known that the town must provide in large measure for the greatly increased number of boys and girls in school, especially in High School, and various details of the plans proposed have been widely discussed and explained, with apparent satisfaction generally that the plans were reasonable.

The committee charged with obtaining plans for an addition to the High School was appointed immediately following the last March meeting. They consulted a number of competent architects, giving their time and opportunity to study the operation of the school under the full sessions of last year, and later, under the plan of divided sessions made necessary by the increased attendance in September.

The divided sessions plan now in operation cannot be a permanent success, although its inadequacy will not be fully shown until it has operated for more than one year. Under it the pupil hurries in to school in the morning, remains four hours, and hurries out at noon, to make way for the afternoon classes who are ready to hurry in. No scholars, except those required to make up delinquencies, may use the school more than the allotted four hours, at least one hour a day less than allows for proper opportunity.

Since September, 540 scholars have enrolled at the High School, and the average attendance has at all times been much more than the school can receive at one time.

Crossed Ocean in Small Boat.
The first crossing of the Atlantic in a small boat was made by Henry May, who was wrecked on the then uninhabited Bermuda Islands in 1522. He built himself a little boat out of the wreck of his ship, and actually reached England in safety.

Waterproofing With Paraffin.

DANGERS OF A COLD
Weymouth People Will Do Well to Heed Them
Many bad cases of kidney trouble result from a cold or chill. Congested kidneys fall behind in filtering the poison-laden blood and backache, headache, dizziness, and disordered kidney action follow. Don't neglect a cold. Use Doan's Kidney Pills at the first sign of kidney trouble. Follow this Weymouth resident's example:
Mrs. M. McCartney, 46 Granite street, says: "Some time ago while living in Scotland, I was troubled with my kidneys, caused by a cold which settled in them. My kidneys felt dull and heavy and they acted too frequently. My back was lame and I had a constant nagging pain in the small of it which bothered me mornings when I got up. A friend told me of Doan's Kidney Pills so I got a box and they soon relieved the trouble. After using a few more boxes of Doan's the pains left and I was completely cured".

THE HOUSE ROCK

From whence came thou, great mass of stone
To our townspeople, so well known
What power divine, whose guiding hand,
Has left you here, near pits of sand?
Near oak and birch and cedars tall
You seem to tower above them all.
What youth of geologic class,
Can tell us how this solid mass (Resembling England's favorite queen
In profile, at an angle seen.)

Come to be left here, firm and sound
With not a part within the ground?
What river bed or current fast
In glacial periods of the past,
Has had a hand in your formation
Placed here in such an odd location?
Have you been rolled from day to day
Like snow, by children when at play Growing in size and weight also
As farther on your path you'd go?
Did Indians in their birch canoes
While passing by, in waters blue
Gaze with wonder or great surprise
While noting your enormous size?

Did trappers bold or anglers fond
Of fishing in the ponds beyond,
Or hunters in their quest for game
Ever stop to think, from whence you came?
Put now, when fields are broad and clear
To camera lovers you are dear,
Some leave the city's parks and fens
And with clear skies and perfect lens—
Get snap shots of your rocky mass,
The pictures to their friends to pass,
Who ask where they may go and see
This Weymouth curiosity.

So, if some day you do not know
Just what to do, or where to go,
Walk over Spring Street, in Ward two,
Ask where the House Rock you can view,
To trace its source and large dimension
Is difficult as fourth declension.
The stranger almost without fail
Who sees it, close to Plymouth trail,
Agrees with me, though may be older,
The House Rock surely is "some boulder".

START DRIVE AGAINST RATS
A large gathering of scouts and their friends attended the meeting in Weymouth High School hall on Monday evening. Rev. C. W. Allen presided.
Dr. Paul Eaton of the United States Public Health Service spoke about the good which could be derived from the campaign which the scouts have mapped out.
Dr. George O'Donnell of the Massachusetts Department of Health also spoke very interestingly on the subject of abolishing rodents from Weymouth.
H. C. Mosman of the Massachusetts Department of Health said in part: "The rat, one of the most repulsive of animals, has for so long associated himself as to become almost a parasite. He is solely responsible for the spread and continuance of the bubonic plague. The control of this disease depends entirely upon the catching of rats in such quantities and in such places as to eradicate the infection prevalent in the rodent population of any given place. For the same reasons examination of rats in any port will give indication of the entrance of plague before any human beings become sick.
As the measures depend upon rat examination and as rat examination depends upon catching rats, and as catching rats depends upon the proper placing of traps, then: the habits of rats become of absorbing interest to the plague worker.
Rats are nocturnal travelers, feeling their way at night with amazing speed by means of the short bristles growing from either side of the nose. This peculiarity is made use of by the rat trapper, as he knows his trap must be set close to a wall or obstruction. These animals seem to use well worn runways for the most part. Mere signs of the presence of rats is not sufficient for the setting of a trap. The rat was there, but runs must be traced out, and traps cleverly set in such places will get the rats.
First, the holes are found, and by their cleanliness or dirtiness tell whether they are used holes or not. The grey marks left by the rodents indicate their usual path of travel, and at suitable places a trap is set. In the basement signs of the Norway or ground rat are hunted; burrows under or through a wall; marks around pipe openings. In the high-floors the roof rat is expected. This roof rat (Rattus Alexandrinus) is the hardest to catch. His signs are to be found on beams, under rafters, along ledges and pipes. Traps must be very delicately set for this species.

The best traps are the killing snap traps, the best type being known as the "Official". Dry bread is the best of bait, but may advantageously be varied with bacon and fish, raw meat cheese, or even pumpkin seed.
In the main it may be said that rat catching rests upon two general principles, first, adequate trapping in the habits and haunts of rats; and second, hard work. This combination will catch rats if the rodents be there at all.
The meeting was in charge of A. A. Eddy, Rev. C. W. Allen, Howard Clark, and Duncan MacKellar.
During this next week Mr. Mosman will teach the scouts the habits and haunts of rats and the best methods for catching them. He will instruct the boys in the art of making efficient traps. They will probably begin the actual work of catching the rodents the first of March.

ELECTRIC LIGHT RATES
The Reading Municipal Light Commissioners have announced a reduction of two cents per kilowatt hour in the rates of current in that town, effective March 1. The present price is 11.7 cents, net, and the new net price will be 9.9 cents, equally the lowest on record in Reading. Coal was only $4.50 per ton the last time Reading paid such a low rate, several years ago.
Weymouth rate is almost double the above—and why?

FISHERMEN INDIGNANT
Petitions are being circulated and signed protesting against the passage of the bill in the legislature which would compel fishermen from Norfolk county to confine their activities to taking lobsters from that part of the ocean that washes the shores of this county. If the bill becomes a law the lobster catchers of Weymouth will be unable to fish along the shores of Scituate and other Plymouth county towns where they had forty miles of waterfront. The new law would confine them to less than two miles.

BIG PICKEREL
A Boston paper reports that Charles G. Jordan Jr. of 159 Allen street, East Braintree, came up from Cape Cod Monday with the "king fish" of all pickerel. It was 29 inches long and weighed 5 3/4 pounds.
Mr. Jordan caught the pickerel through the ice in Pleasant lake, Harwich, on Sunday. It was one of the two fish he got during the day. The other fish, also a pickerel, weighed a little over two pounds.
The big fish was caught in a trap and when secured had split the trap in two in his efforts to get out. About forty feet of string had run out before the trap was secured and when once landed on the ice, the pickerel made a valiant effort to get back to the ice hole.
The pickers are said to be the biggest caught in the Cape. It is so handsomely marked that Mr. Jordan intends to have it mounted and placed on exhibition.

STREET RAILWAY SCHEDULE
The Brockton division union, in concert with other unions on the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway system, has voted to request a new wage scale of 90 cents per hour maximum for operators of one-man cars, to become effective May 1 at the conclusion of the existing agreement.
The new minimum requested will be 70 cents. The union also asks for eight hours in ten, instead of nine in eleven, as at present. The matter will be reported to the joint conference board covering the Eastern Massachusetts system at its monthly meeting in Boston and the board will open negotiations with the company. Quincy, Weymouth, Taunton, Fall River, Lynn, Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill, Somerville, and other centers are interested.

MEETING OF SELECTMEN
Notice from the State Department of Public Welfare informs the Selectmen that the Randolph street crossing of the New Haven road will be guarded by an automatic flash light signal except on the passing of the express at 8:35 A. M., and 5:35 P. M. when an employee of the road will guard this crossing.
C. M. Brackett, proprietor of the Wessagusset garage, was granted a first class auto agent's license.

CORRESPONDENCE COURSE
Massachusetts housewives will have an opportunity to do their canning next spring under instructions from the Massachusetts Agricultural College through a new correspondence course in horticultural manufactures now in preparation. The new course will be ready by April 1 and will be available to any resident of the state.
It will consist of a series of lessons giving instructions for canning and preserving the various farm and garden products and will require reports and samples to be sent in to the college department of horticultural manufactures for scoring and criticism. The department plans to furnish the jars and mailing cartons for this work. After the first two lessons on the principles of canning, every home student can select the assignment that she wishes to follow each week, and in this way can adapt her course to her canning schedule.

BATES—MORRISON

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Tirrell at 156 Middle street, East Weymouth, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday evening, Feb. 17, when their son, Reginald W. Bates, took as his bride, Miss Louise A. Morrison, daughter of Mrs. Louise A. Morrison of Berkeley, California.

At 8 o'clock at the strains of the "Bridal Chorus" played by Mrs. Leslie Morrison, sister of the bride, the wedding party proceeded through an aisle of ribbons held by Marshall Bates and Myrtle Rice, brother and cousin of the groom, and Wilma and Paul Corcoran, cousins of the bride.

The groom, with the best man, who was Mr. Charles Page of North Weymouth, a classmate, also both having enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps at the same time, was followed by the matron of honor, Mrs. Frank Bartlett of Springfield. Then the bride on the arm of her brother, Mr. Leslie Morrison.

Under an arch of smilax, roses and wedding bells, they were met by Rev. Earl E. Story of the Methodist Episcopal church, who performed the ceremony, using the double ring service.

The bride wore white georgette crepe, pearl necklace, tulle veil, with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas and lilies of the valley.

The matron of honor wore mulberry crepe de chine, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. The groom's gift to the bride was a purse of gold, to the best man, a silver cigarette case. The bride's gift to the matron of honor was platinum lingerie pins.

Music was furnished by Miss Ethel Freeman Raymond, piano, and Mary Keith, violin. The color scheme of yellow was carried out by Boston caterers.

Mrs. Bates is a graduate of Tufts. At the present time she is a Latin teacher at Weymouth High school. Mr. Bates is in the garage business at North Weymouth.

At a late hour Mr. and Mrs. Bates departed, amid showers of rose petals, and confetti and the good wishes of their many friends, who were present from Boston, Melrose Highlands, Arlington, Medford, Orange, Cambridge, Milton, the Weymouths and Springfield.

After a honeymoon spent in New York they will reside at 159 Middle street, East Weymouth.

Charles Hollis of Millet avenue has accepted a position as salesman with the Harlow Machine Co. of Nashua, N. H.

Mrs. S. M. Orcutt, who has been seriously ill at her home on Hollis street, is reported as being much improved.

Mrs. Joe Taylor is slowly recovering from two weeks illness with which she has been confined to her home on Main street during the past three weeks.

Andrew Dondero has returned to his home on Curtis avenue, having spent three months in Florida.

Under the auspices of Abigail Adams Rebekah lodge, I. O. O. F., a social dance was held in Odd Fellows hall on Saturday evening, under the direction of Miss Velma Richardson.

Lloyd Procter, a student at Bates College, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Procter, during a vacation caused by the closing of the college, which was necessitated by the prevalence of scarlet fever.

The Ladies Social Circle of the Second Universalist church held their February supper and social in the church vestry on Thursday evening. Mrs. Fletcher Howe was chairman of the supper committee and Miss Helen F. Richards had charge of the entertainment.

The fourth number of the Lyceum Course was given in the Community Building last Friday evening by Prof. David D. Vaughan of Boston University, who spoke on "Social unrest and proposed remedies".

William L. Swan of Pond street has accepted a position with the Weymouth Trust Co.

Rehearsals for the play entitled "Three Live Ghosts" which is to be given in the Opera House on Friday evening, March 2, under the direction of Mrs. Carl Gridley are in progress and should prove to be one of the best entertainments of the season.

The members of the cast are all local, which adds to the general interest of the public. The proceeds of the entertainment are to be used to purchase new scenery for the Opera House.

Mrs. Lena Young, who has been the guest of her sister, Miss Ada Marion Perry of Main street for several weeks, has returned to her home in Worcester.

Miss Bernice Baldwin has resumed her studies in the High school having been confined to her home on Main street during the past two weeks with grippe.

THE ELEVENTH HOUR

It will be remembered that the subscriber has thru the medium of these columns brought to the attention of the readers the fact of the History of Weymouth, which is in process and particularly of the chapter dealing with musicians which chapter is his particular province.

The response has not been as general as he had hoped but the reason, at first not clear, has suddenly been revealed thru the answers to several personal letters which he has written. Who were and are the musicians of Weymouth? Are they the not-a-few who have gone from Weymouth and become famous, reflecting a luster upon their native town, or are they the many whose names are scarcely known outside of Norfolk county, but who have spent their lives and their musical ability often unpaid and never paid more than at the rate of country prices.

To me the answer is obvious but less some one unconvinced let me illustrate with a story of three people in my home village, The Landing. Forty years ago or thereabout, nearly all of us who studied the piano "took" from either one or the other of two ladies. Both were descended from one family, both were conscience, painstaking, thorough musicians, both succeeded in instilling into most of us good technic, marked rhythm, and a desire to do and know more about music.

Now, within a few days a young man, who is a descendant of this same family, has received a recognition from a foreign nation for the work he has done for their music, but his musical life has been lived entirely OUT of Weymouth and while those who know him have felt the thrill of the honor he has received, the center of that vibration is Boston and not Weymouth.

Do you see? If you do, please write and tell me how many years you have sung in such-and-such a church choir for nothing. Tell me how many times your father, like mine, sang gratuitously at the funeral of a person of whom he had never heard before. For my father and yours, and you my dear friend, from the point of view of this chapter on the musicians of Weymouth are the real musicians after all.

JOHN HARRIS GUTTERSON (Signed) Box 134 Back Bay P. O. Boston, Mass.

Mixed Tune. "Radio Tune Plan Successful in Part," says a headline. It couldn't have been the part we heard.—New York Morning Telegraph.

SELWYN THEATRE Channing Pollock says he didn't write "The Fool" for theatre-goers. That is, not for the type of "stare-goer" that is satisfied with two hours of laughter and nothing else.

"The Fool" was written for people who want to be entertained and amused, but who also are interested in the big questions of the day, and are glad to have a new thought put in their minds by a diverting discussion on the stage.

One of the Boston critics said of "The Fool" that it was a great and effective combination of common sense, religion, and thrilling melodrama. Perhaps this is the reason why the play has been running to capacity business for five months in New York, and why it has started off at the same pace in the Selwyn theatre, Boston.

HIGH SCHOOL ADDITION (Continued from page 9) Next September there will be nearly 200 from the ninth grade ready to go to High School, and as less than 100 are to graduate, an enrollment of 600 or more may be expected.

Should the nine grade system be abolished, as it shortly must be in order to postpone a very extensive building program in the several wards, an additional 200 scholars would be sent to High School, making an enrollment about or over 800.

In plans the committee have considered these probabilities, and a normal capacity of 800 pupils has been provided.

LEGAL STAMPS REMICK'S The Big Store QUINCY

HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING Editor Gazette-Transcript: At the annual March meeting last year a committee was appointed to look up plans and report relative to building a new High School, etc.

There was not a line of written report, nothing but a brief verbal report and a jumble of blue prints to enlighten Town Meeting Members and voters.

Without an hour, without adequate information, for Town Meeting members to fully investigate and candidly consider, they pushed for a vote granting this large appropriation.

When opposed and an effort made for more time to consider, such as postponing to the Annual Meeting, one month later, the cry was raised:—Oh; delay is dangerous, cost will mount up, etc., etc.,—all quite in keeping with steam roller methods.

The Ladies Aid held their regular all-day meeting last week on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. James B. Smith. Part of the day was spent in sewing for the Weymouth Hospital. A business meeting was held in the afternoon.

Mrs. Frank Atchley has been ill with influenza. Mrs. Lydia Holmes is able to be out again after her recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles White attended a Valentine party Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Buckley of East Milton.

Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Greenier entertained the members of the Porter Epworth League at a Valentine party in their home Wednesday evening. The rooms were appropriately decorated. Games were played and refreshments were served by hostess.

James B. Smith, who has been confined to his home with illness for several days, is out again. Miss Della Vincent, who has been making her home with Mrs. Fannie Severy of Washington street left here last Sunday to live in Boston.

Mrs. Charles Leach entertained the Weymouth Circle of Lockin Secretaries at her home on Tuesday. The large number present enjoyed a fine dinner, and a very interesting and profitable business meeting followed. Piano selections made up the musical program.

ODD FELLOWS TOURNAMENT

In the Odd Fellows tournament last Friday evening between Wildey Lodge of South Weymouth and Puritan lodge of South Braintree at the Puritan club rooms, Wildey won over Puritan in pool, cards, and checkers and also both pool matches. The home lodge also won two tables of cribbage, high lives and checkers. Single pool—Louis S. Howland 61 Puritan, Ray Martin 75 Wildey. Double pool—Bernard L. Simonds, Chester W. Dalley 68, Puritan, Carroll Cates, Joseph Janelle 75, Wildey. Checkers—Walter L. Simonds 6 Puritan, Henry Kohler 0, Wildey.

SOUTH SHORE HOME BUILDERS AND REAL ESTATE CO. OFFICES QUINCY AND WEYMOUTH, MASS. Telephone: Granite 4785—Wey. 93

Still Another Want. A Swedish inventor has patented a glass bottle that won't break. Now for some genius to invent a broken bottle that won't cut an automobile tire. Nashville Southern Lumberman.

MATES ONLY. Will it be seventy-five or a hundred thousand dollars more, later? Is it business? Is it a common deal for taxpayers, to have $300,000 into such a venture as "We don't think it will cost more" indicates?

Created we need more room for High School pupils, 250 new spaces, needed and 700 to be (double the present number). A hall for 1500 is essential, so at present is a gymnasium.

Our taxes now are very burdensome; to add $5 more per $1000 for this one project alone is a serious burden. There are one hundred offices in the city for the March Annual Meeting set to face. They will run into very many thousands of dollars.

As to financial culture, the law is now as it has been and what has been done along those lines can contribute nothing. From the National Government is seeking to assure us to certain expenses. It is now for some to spend the other people's money. Let one taxpayer work in a straw vote of the election by voting and then the question of how many will be taken on and carried on this of taxpayers' money rather than on those of extravagance.
