THE BONDS WE DIDN'T BUY!

'Tis a mighty task, my brother, this of waging Freedom's war;
 And we'll need a brand of courage that we've never known before;
 But the Vict'ry that awaits us, and no tyrant shall deny,
 Won't be had by "wishful thinking," nor the "Bonds We Didn't Buy!"

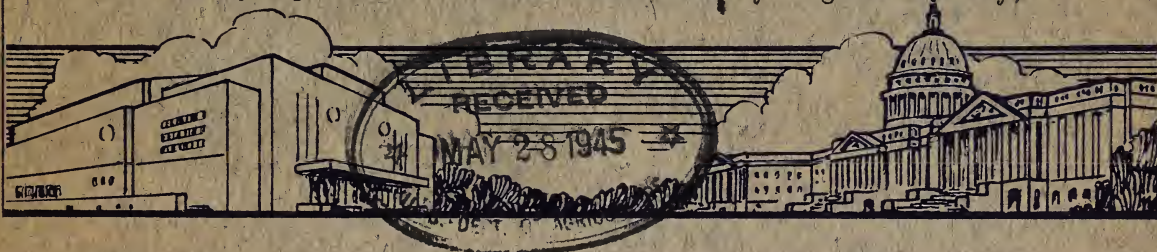

Those we love will strive undaunted - in the Sky! On land and sea!
 And they'll not renege at dying, for the "likes of you and me;"
 And there'll be no turning backward of the lads within the ranks -
 But the measure of their effort is of Planes - and Guns - and Tanks!

What of him who faces battle, and a Nation's fate at stake?
 Waiting! Hoping! Vainly pleading! for the "things we didn't make!"
 What of broken lines that falter, pay the penalty - and die?
 All for needless lack of something bought with "Bonds We Didn't Buy!"

...And a chapter would be written should "they" fail to "see it through"

Of a beaten, cringing people and the task "WE" failed to do;
 There would be a despot's emblem where "Old Glory" used to fly,
 O'er a once proud land! Grim token of THE BONDS WE DIDN'T BUY!!

 A-Board," employee publication of FRB. Contributed by Virginia Galloway)

FOUNDER OF FARM LOAN SYSTEM CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

The date of this issue of the Grapevine reminds me that September 21, 1943, is the 82nd birthday of Charles E. Lobdell, member of the original Federal Farm Loan Board and its second Farm Loan Commissioner, now living near New York City. Judge Lobdell, as he was familiarly called by his friends, probably had more to do with organizing the Federal land banks than any other man. He was a kindly person with a broad understanding of human nature and keen political and business sense. Born in the State of Kansas in 1861 at Osawatomie, the headquarters of John Brown, the abolitionist, he grew up in a turbulent atmosphere. Successively, he became county attorney, member and speaker of the House of Representatives, district judge, and president of several country banks in Kansas.

All of these experiences, when he went to Washington in 1916 as a member of the Federal Farm Loan Board, prepared him to win quick recognition as an able and understanding leader. The Judge seemed always ready to find friendly ways to promote and encourage young men and women of ability who came into the Federal farm loan system. Those who had the good fortune to know him will wish him many happy returns of his birthday. (J. H. Guill)

J. H. GUILL WITH THE SYSTEM SINCE 1917

In the last issue, the Grapevine reported on "oldtimer" Jimmy Gibbs who started with the Federal Farm Board in 1929. In this issue the Grapevine proudly introduces "oldtimer" John H. Guill, Assistant Director, Mortgage Corporation Service Division. A seasoned administrator, credit man, bowler, and famous raconteur, John Guill's entrance-on-duty date - 1917 - leaves Gibbs an oldtimer, but strictly "junior grade."

We are indebted to reporter R. H. Cawood for the following interview:

John Guill's father, who was born in Virginia in 1831, came to Missouri when he was 15 years old, and then went on to California in the fall of 1849, qualifying as a pioneer of that State. After mining for a while he took up land from the Government near Chico, California, and began to build up a farm. In 1860 he came back to Missouri, married, and drove across the plains by covered wagon, arriving in California in the fall of that year, taking 5 months for the trip across from Missouri to California. On this trip he took to California a small herd of Shorthorn, or Durham, cattle that won many awards at the local and district fairs.

John Guill grew up in California and after graduating from the College of Agriculture, University of California, returned to Chico to farm. The farm was a dairy farm and the milk cows were tested each month by testers employed by the County Testing Association. There were about 800 to 1,000 cows in the testing association. Each month the names of the best 10 cows in the association, that is, the ones giving the most milk and butterfat, were published. Out of his herd of 22 Mr. Guill had, in a single month, 6 of his cows named in the published list. He followed a consistent policy of grading up his herd through the use of purebred Holstein sires:

In 1917 when the war decreased the number of milkers available and the number of men available for work on farms, he sold his herd.

Would you guess that Mr. Guill has been a successful and practical politician? In 1910 he decided to run for member of the State Assembly and was elected. He ran again in 1912 and was elected for another 2-year term. These 4 years were served during Hiram Johnson's term as Governor of California and Mr. Guill was the first Democrat who had been elected to the Assembly from his county for the previous 20 years. Also, for his second term he was appointed by the speaker of the house, a Progressive Republican, chairman of the Fish and Game Committee. This also was the first time a member of a party not in control had become chairman of a legislative committee. At the expiration of the 4-year period Mr. Guill decided that he had had enough experience in the State Assembly.

In 1917 he organized a farm bureau in Butte County and became its first president. He was re-elected president for each year thereafter until he went to Washington in 1922.

The Federal Land Bank of Berkeley was organized in the spring of 1917. The majority of the board of directors resigned, however, in August of that year after about 4 months of operation. Mr. Guill was offered an appointment as director of the bank. The editor of one of the local newspapers in town called him up and said: "If you're offered the appointment as director of the Federal land bank, will you take it?" Mr. Guill was on his way to the Plumas County Mountains to take a vacation but said yes. When he got up to the mountain resort he received a notice to be in Berkeley in 2 days, so he had to turn around and go back. When he arrived home there was an appointment telegram from the Chairman of the Farm Loan Board at Washington naming him a director of the FLB of Berkeley.

Mr. Ellis, who is now the President of the Bank and General Agent of the district FCA went in as director the same day that Mr. Guill did. In addition to serving as director, Mr. Guill also held the office of vice president during the time he was connected with the bank. In 1921 the bank had difficulty in finding a person to accept appointment as appraiser in Sacramento Valley and, therefore, asked Mr. Guill to make special appraisals in that area.

With reference to his appointment as a director Mr. Guill made the following comments: "When I was appointed as a director of the Berkeley Bank, it was no particular honor to be a director of the bank because it was a new type of institution. The conservative people in the community didn't think of it with favor. You felt like going home by way of alleys and back streets. It was considered a kind of socialistic cooperation for credit among the farmers and was looked upon with suspicion. The cooperative idea wasn't solidly established at that time, but in a few years the bank gained the respect of the people because it was well managed and met a real need in the agricultural communities in the district.

LESSON II IN MODERN ART

By Harry Shenker

Realistic art may not be as realistic as some persons believe. When we see an object, or a picture of an object, we receive a "total impression." Even in realistic painting the artist fails if the observer is too conscious of details and too severe in the composition of the details.

The painter's art is to a large degree the art of refined selection. The artist paints to stimulate the imagination and uses contrast of colors, form, background, space, and frame to give the observer the proper total effect. Realistic painting does provide a "total effect" for any object pictured but it does this less efficiently, that is with less stimulation to the imagination, than a more refined selection of color, form, background, space, and frame will do. The more realistic the painting the less the art.

Ultra impressionism represents the most highly refined selection of all elements necessary to provide the proper total effect.

WHAT'S THE IDEA?

Federal Land Bank of Houston has been carrying on an active program to encourage employee suggestions for a number of months. The outstanding feature of the Houston plan is its publication, "What's the Idea?" which is devoted to the mobilization of new and constructive ideas. A "What's the Idea?" suggestion box located in each department of the bank is used to collect ideas or suggestions which employees believe will improve or simplify the work of the bank. Employees who submit ideas or suggestions that can be put into use are given official recognition in issues of "What's the Idea?" Copies of the Houston publication are sent to all other land banks in the system.

The making of suggestions represents an opportunity to participate in the management of the bank and more than 25 percent of all suggestions that have been submitted have been put into effect.

LAST STOCKING COLLECTION

Remember those silk and nylon stockings we used to wear? They're getting more and more scarce. As a matter of fact, they're getting so scarce that the cost of reprocessing for military purposes is too great to warrant further collections. Effective September 30, 1943, the campaign for salvaging silk and nylon hose will be no more, and October 4 is the last day on which collections will be shipped from local stores. Therefore, if you have any silk and nylon hose ready to be scrapped bring it to the box at the reception desk by Saturday, October 2. (AN)

REPORT ON WOMEN BOWLERS

Last Wednesday I had the privilege to be present at the opening of our FCA Women's Bowling League. If you haven't seen our girls bowl the big pins you have missed a real treat. They bowl with real enthusiasm and there are some skillful bowlers, too. A picked team of women bowlers would give any team in the men's league a run for its money.

I like to see our girls cooperating in recreational activities. Folks who have learned to play together have learned to work together. (S. D. Sanders)

CAST SELECTED FOR MELODRAMA

FCA dramatic talent, suffering from inertia since the move from Washington, showed signs of recovery last week following the announcement of try-outs for the club-sponsored melodrama, "On the Bridge at Midnight." A small but enthusiastic group of candidates gathered in the Clubroom Wednesday evening and read selected lines with gusto while Director Pat Ross listened attentively and looked on with a professional eye. Ross, delighted with the excellent material available, found it difficult to make her selections. Cracked one interested onlooker, "I haven't seen such a fine assortment of hams since meat rationing went into effect."

Announcement of the cast was made this morning. The coveted role of Queenie de Lorme goes to Bernice Nilson of the Library. Nilson, attractive veteran of college theatricals, proved a natural as the beautiful but persecuted heroine who, before the final curtain, surmounts more obstacles than a commando in training. Gordon Van Leer, personable young chief of the Classification Unit, is equally well cast as Horatio Wainright, the manly hero. Villainy of the snake-in-the-grass variety will be portrayed by Dick Kaufmann in the role of Mervyn Parsons. Kaufmann, with New York stage experience in his background, is an expert moustache twirler of the old school, and his evil leer is guaranteed to evoke more hisses than have been heard since the days of East Lynn. Supporting the leading roles will be Julia Connor as Mrs. Wilda Wainright, Ray McWhirt as Halstead, Alma Day as Mrs. Billingsley Billings, Lorraine Neugebauer as Maybelle Billings, Virginia Payne as Eunice Wainright, Joan Miller as Gypsy Heather, Marian Morelock as Minerva Courtenay, Carl Lowe as Jack Frost, Maxine Lehman as Dora Horne, and Francis Smith as Joe North.

Rehearsals start next week and the play will be produced the latter part of November. (HM) 10

SUCCESS STORY

Once upon a time they said to I,
"Your desk we would re-classify,
Now write up everything you do
And make it sound important too--"
I worked and slaved, with spirits high,
To write a masterpiece on I.
I turned it in--time passed away,
I watched more grey hairs come each day.

My step grew slower--filled with fear,
I think it was about a year
When they sent a charming maiden in,
To question me she did begin.
She asked me this, she asked me that,
I think she squashed my ego flat,
For when she came back with her script,
Ambition in the bud was nipped.

The sands went through the glass again,
I turned it end for end, and then
One day I hobbled in to ask
How they proceeded with their task.
They looked upon my tottering frame,
And kindly said, "We surely aim
To get the papers going through
The CSC by '52."

My ears grew deaf--my eyes grew dim--
I was no longer young and slim--
And then for faithful service done,
Retirement I had finally won.
I went to tell them I would go,
When in burst someone, shouting, "No!
You cannot leave--success you've made,
We've raised your desk another grade!"

FRESH AIR

After their chores --
"What's that I smell?" said Sue to Claire,
Said she, "Fresh air!" (DEW)

BONDAGE OR BONDS?

VICTORY GARDENERS

My back is broke, my knees are sore,
My nails are cracked, my pants are tore,
My Victory Garden's ruined my life,
It's wrecked my romance with my wife;

It's shot my English, scared my kids,
And put my savings on the skids,
The little birds wait on the fence,
And dig the seeds when I go hence;

The nightly prowls of alley cats,
Marauding dogs and thrown brickbats,
And paper blown across the plot
Make Victory Gardening not so hot.

I wonder, when I count the cost
In blisters, sweat, and temper lost,
If I can proudly strut around
And boast of harvests from my ground?

Oh, I shall dig for victory--
But that old hoe is killin' me!

A PUNCH IN EVERY PACKAGE

Come, get your vitamins, my friends,
For all your ills now make amends--
If you must corns and dandruff fight
You can be rid of them tonight!
Take pills to get a strong physique,
Beside you, Atlas will look weak.
But vitamins are dangerous too,
Watch the effect they'll have on you--
They build you up--you tear things down!
They give you tone--you go to town!
One pill a day will make you well--
Next day, two more, and you'll raise hell.
It's pills and pep, and pills and fun,
A vicious circle, once begun--
They help your eyes (so they tell me)
But down in here, what's there to see?
And if the pills improve your knob
You'll go and get a better job! (DEW)

FRANKLIN AND MARTIN LEAD IN FCA WOMEN'S GOLF TEAM PLAY

The FCA women's golf play is in full swing with the Franklin - Martin combination leading the field by taking all points from their opponents. The Vaughn-Mehaffy team, after dropping 4 points to Clark's 87 and Harbert's 97 in the 2nd match, were able to retain 2nd place after Delta recovered her swing and shot a 102 score against Sible and Nelson. The Morgan-Ross team captured 2 points from Roeh and Cogswell in a close match on the first 9. Cogswell and Roeh squeezed out one point in their 3rd match in spite of Hague's 98 score and Foerster's birdie on the 18th hole. With Vivian Anderson shooting 27 strokes under her average score and Lucille Holmes coming through with a 95, they grabbed all 6 points from Sible and Nelson.
