PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 116th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

Vol. 165

WASHINGTON, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 23, 2019

No. 14

House of Representatives

The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Ms. DELBENE).

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC,
January 23, 2019.

I hereby appoint the Honorable SUZAN K. DELBENE to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

NANCY PELOSI,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING-HOUR DEBATE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 3, 2019, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning-hour debate.

The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties. All time shall be equally allocated between the parties, and in no event shall debate continue beyond 11:50 a.m. Each Member, other than the majority and minority leaders and the minority whip, shall be limited to 5 minutes.

SUPPORT THE OIL REGION NATIONAL HERITAGE AREA REAUTHORIZATION ACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. THOMPSON) for 5 minutes.

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, northwest Pennsylvania has a rich history and a vibrant, diverse economy. Its winding trails, beautiful landscapes, recreational experiences, and thriving communities make Venango and Crawford Counties especially captivating places to live, to work, and to visit. Many of these attractions are centered around the same central common theme: the world's first commercial oil well.

Colonel Drake successfully drilled this well in 1859, triggering the first oil boom and establishing the Oil Region as "the valley that changed the world." His efforts not only made northwest Pennsylvania the energy powerhouse that it is today, but also sparked a cultural revolution that came as a result of a booming economy.

We are tremendously proud of our history and heritage in northwest Pennsylvania. We still celebrate these historic communities that bloomed from Colonel Drake's innovative idea, and Drake Well continues to have a tangible impact on the area's economy.

In 2004, Congress designated the region as a national heritage area. There are only 49 of these areas across the country that are designated as places where natural, cultural, and historic resources combine to form a cohesive nationally important landscape.

The Oil Region national heritage area was the Nation's 25th national heritage area, and it celebrates the birth of the petroleum industry. The region is honored to have this important designation, but without action, it will sunset next year. That is why I have introduced H.R. 642, the Oil Region National Heritage Area Reauthorization Act.

The heritage area's coordinating entity, the Oil Region Alliance of Business, Industry, and Tourism, has taken a grassroots, community-driven approach to heritage conservation and economic development. Through public-private partnerships, national heritage area entities support historic preservation, natural resource conservation, recreation, heritage tourism, and educational projects. These partnerships foster pride of place and an enduring stewardship ethic.

The Oil Region Alliance focuses on heritage development, economic development, and tourism destination marketing. All three of these areas have been successful, and from 2005 to 2015, ORA has been able to invest more than $6.8 million in heritage development projects, invest more than $6.7 million in economic development activities, and attract nearly 240,000 visitors, annually. They have done an excellent job using innovative methods to stimulate the local economy, using a mixture of both Federal and private funds.

Last year, Congressman MIKE KELLY and I visited the home of the legendary investigative journalist Ida Tarbell. Born in Pennsylvania at the onset of the oil boom, Tarbell is best known for her 1904 book, "The History of the Standard Oil Company."

The ORA had recently completed a full restoration of Ms. Tarbell's home, ensuring that it would be preserved for generations to come. This restoration was just one of many projects the ORA is working on, and my bill will allow these projects to continue through 2026.

Extending this funding is crucial for the ORA to continue its mission of preserving the Oil Region's history, stimulating the local economy, and allowing others to appreciate the beauty and culture of Venango and Crawford Counties.

The ORA's efforts give us the ability to appreciate the rich history of northwestern Pennsylvania and understand the impact that our community has had on American culture today. I urge my colleagues to cosponsor this legislation, which will directly impact northwestern Pennsylvanians and preserve a rich heritage for all Americans.

STATIC WALLS DON'T WORK

Mr. DEFAZIO. Madam Speaker, well, the President is increasingly focused in messaging on the need for the wall as being the shipment of illegal drugs into the United States of America and the drug epidemic. I think we are all concerned about that, and we would all like to do something effective to deal with it.

Now, as his current acting chief of staff said when he was a Member of Congress about a wall: You go under—tunnels—you go through or over, and what you need is more manpower, more technology.

So the President says we need a stupid, static wall at extraordinary costs. Actually, we need something else. What we need are effective measures.

The Department of Homeland Security says they need $5 billion to reconfigure our ports of entry and to bring in new technology.

El Chapo's lieutenants and others have testified at his trial in New York they don't go across remote desert areas. They buy semi-tractor trailers and they reconfigure them and bring them through the ports of entry. They are very efficient. And that is how they are getting drugs into this country.

We lack the personnel and the equipment to detect these shipments. So how about investing there?

Oh, and by the way, the people who are screening at the ports of entry, 8 percent of the vehicles is all they can screen today. Probably less today because they aren't getting paid, and some of them can't show up to work because they can't hire childcare or they can't fix their car to get to work or something else.

So the President is concerned? Really? I don't think so.

And then there is another way that drugs are more and more frequently coming into our country. As you can see from this display of drugs here, the Coast Guard intercepted $5.6 billion of drugs coming in on maritime routes last year. But the retiring Commandant said that is only about 20 percent of the drug shipments we can identify. We don't have the personnel or the proper equipment to intercept the other 80 percent.

Oh, by the way, the Coast Guard, they are not getting paid either.

But the President is concerned. Well, has he talked about the need to give more resources to the United States Coast Guard?

So, hey, it would be great if they get $5.7 billion, and that is one-fifth of the drugs they can identify. That would be $25 billion of drugs being intercepted next year if they had the equipment, the personnel they needed—five times the cost of a stupid, static wall.

So if the President is truly concerned about cartels and Asian mobs shipping drugs into the United States, he should be talking about putting money where it is needed: at the ports of entry, the Coast Guard for maritime interception, and other places where it would be more effective.

That is the position of the Democrats. We want to have effective 21st century border security, not a failed wall. That has been tried by a number of civilizations.

Static walls don't work. Let's do real things to deal with the real problem.

CNN—THE FAKE NEWS KING

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BROOKS) for 5 minutes.

Mr. BROOKS of Alabama. Madam Speaker, while CNN has had a rotten, no-good, horrible week, the American people have had a great week because last week exposed the CNN vitriol, prejudice, bias, and deception that crowned CNN the fake news king. First, CNN fake news story number 1:

For 2 days, CNN drooled over President Trump's impeachment propaganda in a BuzzFeed report that was so bad it prompted a rare public rebuke and "not true" proclamation by Special Counsel Robert Mueller.

CNN, strike one.

Second, CNN fake news story number two:

CNN viciously and wrongly attacked, ridiculed, slandered, and maligned Covington Catholic High School students by portraying them as racists. By and large, these teenagers at a pro-life march were White males, Catholic, and, heaven forbid, President Trump supporters with Make America Great Again hats.

CNN's prejudice against this profile blinded CNN to reality. Had CNN done its homework, CNN would have reported from the very beginning that the students were the victims of African American racists who hurled insults at and sought to intimidate White teenage students and were the victims of Native American political activists who rudely accosted the students, beat a drum in their faces, and yelled that White people should leave America.

Did fake news CNN report from the very beginning this racism against White people and how remarkably well these Catholic high school students handled this situation and maintained their composure? No. Sadly, CNN's bias and prejudice did not allow that.

CNN, strike two.

Third, CNN fake news story number three:

CNN did a poorly researched fact check on illegal alien and border security crime data comments by various Republicans, including me. The segment opened with "New Day" host Alisyn Camerota deriding "fact-free fear-mongering" from "Trump supporters."

Really? If you support border security and protecting American lives, you are a fact-free, fear-mongering Trump supporter who must be attacked at all costs? Is that really CNN's viewpoint?

CNN's John Avlon then falsely claimed that I said a border wall is the way to keep death-dealing drugs out of America, when I clearly stated a border wall is a necessary subpart of a broader border security strategy required to slow down drugs crossing over our southern border and save American lives.

That truth didn't fit CNN's blind fealty to open-border, socialist Democrats, so CNN deceived rather than tell the truth.

CNN next showed me stating that Federal officers apprehended roughly 2,000 illegal aliens per year for homicides on American soil. That is fine. That is true.

Federal Government's Immigration and Customs Enforcement and Removal Operations reports state Federal officers apprehended 1,886 illegal aliens in FY 2017 and 2,028 illegal aliens in FY 2018 for homicides committed on American soil.

But CNN's John Avlon attacked this Federal crime data by citing an unrelated PolitiFact analysis and making an apples and oranges comparison that misunderstands the difference between the words "homicide" and "murder."

Well, all murders are homicides. Not all homicides are murders. Murders are a subpart of the word "homicides."

In any event, the PolitiFact analysis involved another person, not any of us, and was about murders not homicides and disagreed with nothing that I said.

CNN strike three. You are out.

Madam Speaker, is CNN the most trusted name in news as it claims? No. Not when its reporters, fact-checkers, and newscasters are so blinded by vitriol, prejudice, bias, and hatred for President Trump that they cannot think or see straight; not so long as CNN is nothing more than an apparatchik for radical, open-border, socialist Democrats, not the truth and not the American people.

Madam Speaker, CNN has earned its fake news crown, and based on last week, is not at risk of losing its crown anytime soon.

HONORING SERGEANT WYTASHA CARTER

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Alabama (Ms. SEWELL) for 5 minutes.

Ms. SEWELL of Alabama. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the life and service of Sergeant Wytasha Carter, a 16-year veteran of the Birmingham Police Department, who lost his life, tragically, in the line of duty on January 13, 2019.

Wyt, as his family and friends fondly called him, was a natural-born leader with whom others enjoyed working. Sergeant Carter was a Birmingham native who graduated from Phillips High School before attending Liberty University.

Sergeant Carter was drawn to service from a young age. After graduating from college, he served in the United States Armed Forces, as a U.S. Air Force sergeant, before beginning his law enforcement career in 2002 as a correctional officer with the Shelby County Sheriff's Department. Sergeant Carter served with the Birmingham Police Department for nearly 8 years and was recently promoted to sergeant last year.

But above all, Sergeant Carter was a husband, he was a father, and he was a beloved member of his community. He was so beloved that more than 2,000 people gathered to celebrate his life and his service at his funeral last Saturday.

Sergeant Carter was a passionate guardian of his Birmingham community: He was a fierce protector of his coworkers; he mentored children about the dangers of drugs and gangs; and he was someone who consistently worked above and beyond the call of duty, devoting his life to improving his community.

Sergeant Carter died from a gunshot wound while doing the job he loved so passionately. He and other police officers were working to make our community safer.

Sergeant Carter led by an example of excellence and of giving back to his community. The city of Birmingham is better because of his contributions.

His death is a stark reminder of the dangers that our brave policemen and -women face while working to secure our safety. They courageously put their lives on the line day after day to protect and to serve our neighborhoods while we sleep. Every time they put on their uniform—and even when their uniform comes off—they bravely put duty before self.

I ask my colleagues to join me in praying that God provides comfort to Sergeant Carter's family and friends, especially his wife of 21 years, Tiphonie, his daughter, and his young son. We pray for all of those who were affected by this senseless tragedy, as well as his fellow officer, who was critically injured in the shooting and who continues to rehab toward full recovery.

We must use this tragedy as a reminder that Congress must act to prevent this sort of senseless gun violence, gun violence that Sergeant Carter spoke out against. We honor the legacy of service of Sergeant Carter by making sure we in this body act. As President Obama said: "Our tears are not enough. Our words and prayers are not enough." We must act.

Madam Speaker, on behalf of Alabama's Seventh Congressional District and a grateful nation, I ask my colleagues to join me in celebrating the life of Sergeant Carter's contribution to making the community of Birmingham better and this Nation. May we live out Sergeant Carter's legacy by working for a safer and more secure nation today and every day.

ELMORE COUNTY TORNADO

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Alabama (Mrs. ROBY) for 5 minutes.

Mrs. ROBY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the hardworking men and women I represent in Elmore County, Alabama, who, this past Saturday, experienced a devastating loss, as a tornado ripped through the city of Wetumpka. By the grace of God, no lives were lost and only minor injuries have been reported at this point. Still, the damage is severe and the road to recovery is long.

Madam Speaker, on Monday, I spent time on the ground with those impacted, and I had the opportunity to see firsthand the damage to several churches, the police station, dozens of homes, and businesses. I appreciate the tireless work of the local leaders and first responders who immediately jumped to action to begin putting the pieces back together for the people who have lost so much.

During this challenging time, it has been so encouraging to see the community united like a family. They have come together to begin the rebuilding process. Merely hours after the devastating storm, the Elmore County Emergency Management Agency heard from nearly 1,000 individuals who signed up to volunteer their time and resources in the cleanup efforts.

Madam Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to speak directly to the people impacted by this weekend's tornado:

My office stands ready to assist you in whatever ways we are able. My staff and I work for you, and we want to be a resource for you during this very challenging time. The rebuilding process won't be easy, but if we work together and help each other whenever possible, we will get through this together. In the meantime, my family and I will continue to pray for those impacted by this devastating event.

RECOGNIZING DR. CURETON L. JOHNSON

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BUTTERFIELD) for 5 minutes.

Mr. BUTTERFIELD. Madam Speaker, I rise this morning to recognize a great American and a great friend, Dr. Cureton L. Johnson, a longtime theologian and community leader in Fayetteville, North Carolina. Dr. Johnson will approach his last official sermon as pastor of historic First Baptist Church in Fayetteville on Sunday, January 27, 2019. I am, therefore, honored to share with my colleagues in the United States House of Representatives the accomplishments of this remarkable man of God.

Cureton Lee Johnson was born in Raleigh, North Carolina, to the late Dr. and Mrs. Paul H. Johnson. He is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and received his master's degree from American University here in Washington, D.C., and the Shaw University Divinity School in Raleigh. He also received his doctor of ministry degree from Drew University in Madison, New Jersey. He previously served on the public relations staffs at North Carolina A&T State University in Greensboro and Howard University here in Washington.

Over the years, Madam Speaker, Dr. Johnson remained true to his commitment to be active, productive, and dedicated to every facet of his beloved community. As a young student at UNC-Chapel Hill, Dr. Johnson served as president of the Black Student Movement Association. He was the founding editor of the BSM's newspaper, referred to as Black Ink, which is still in publication today.

A longtime social activist, Dr. Johnson was a member of the anti-apartheid movement during the 1980s and was arrested while demonstrating at the South African Embassy in the District of Columbia.

Dr. Johnson also served as the editor of the Baptist Informer, which is the official publication of the General Baptist State Convention of North Carolina, Incorporated, the oldest organization of Black Baptists in the Nation, founded in 1867.

The son and grandson of Baptist ministers, Dr. Johnson was called into the ministry in 1976 and ordained in 1978 under his father, the legendary Dr. Paul H. Johnson, Sr., at Martin Street Baptist Church in Raleigh.

On the first Sunday in June 1991, Dr. Johnson assumed full pastoral responsibility at his current First Baptist Church in Fayetteville.

I might say, Madam Speaker, First Baptist Church in Fayetteville was formed in 1868, 5 years after the Emancipation Proclamation was signed by President Abraham Lincoln and months following the ratification of the 13th Amendment to the Constitution, ending slavery in America. It is the oldest missionary Baptist church in the city of Fayetteville, a church that I have attended on many occasions, including when I was stationed at Fort Bragg Army post in Fayetteville.

Madam Speaker, much of First Baptist Church's growth in recent years can be attributed to the leadership of Dr. Johnson and its spirit-filled church congregation. Under Dr. Johnson's leadership, the church has been a powerful force for uplifting God's people in this community, launching a free summer children's reading camp in 1993. It continues to serve over 100 children every year.

In 1999, First Baptist Church broke ground on a $2 million Christian center. The two-story facility includes 11,000 square feet, a library and learning center, nursery, children's church, clothes closet, and a multipurpose room for neighborhood development and outreach ministries.

First Baptist Church remains active in the Union Baptist Association, the General Baptist State Convention of North Carolina, and the Lott Carey Foreign Mission Convention.

During his pastorate, Dr. Johnson has preached more than 2,300 sermons and welcomed more than 500 souls into the fellowship, presided over 750-plus funerals, officiated at more than 125 weddings, and dedicated some 130 babies. He has ordained 15 ministers, including First Baptist Church's first five women ministers. He has also ordained the church's first five women deacons.

In closing, Madam Speaker, Dr. Johnson is blessed with a loving wife, the former Lena A. Goode of Durham. They have two sons, Paul and Cureton; one grandson, Jayden Cureton; and one granddaughter, Jaelynn.

By the grace of God, Dr. Johnson retires after three decades of outstanding leadership at First Baptist Church. Although Dr. Johnson is retiring from an active ministry, he will never retire from his unwavering service to God.

On behalf of the United States House of Representatives, we thank Dr. Johnson for his service to community. His life has been one of unlimited service. We will cherish his leadership for years to come. I extend my congratulations and best wishes to Dr. Johnson, his wife, and the entire congregation at First Baptist Church and the Fayetteville community.

Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing the Reverend Dr. Cureton Lee Johnson on this auspicious occasion.

HONORING STEVE NETTLETON

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. LAMALFA) for 5 minutes.

Mr. LAMALFA. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the life and to mourn the passing of a truly larger-than-life figure from my community in northern California, Mr. Steve Nettleton, pictured here with his wife, Kathy, appropriately out at the ball game.

A well-known philanthropist and lover of baseball, Steve passed away recently due to complications of Parkinson's disease at the age of 79.

Originally from Iowa, Steve grew up with a passion for America's pastime: baseball. Now we know that Steve also attended San Diego State University. His love for the game drove him to try out for the SDSU baseball team. While he didn't quite make the roster, he never left the sport behind.

In 1971, Steve and his family relocated to Chico, a small town in northern California he never heard of—and he never left. More than 20 years later, he built a multimillion-dollar business as a grocer but said his best day in the business was the day he sold it in 1995.

If you lived in or near Chico, it would be hard to miss the Nettleton name, as Steve's generous philanthropy resulted in many buildings and many projects bearing his name: Enloe Medical Center's Nettleton Mother and Baby Care Center and the Nettleton Gym at the Boys and Girls Club of Chico are just a couple of those examples that were named in his honor due to his work.

Perhaps even more notably, Steve and his wife, Kathy, generously donated $2 million to transform Chico State University's humble baseball diamond into a modern, 4,100-seat stadium, which was soon also adorned with the name Nettleton Stadium. The "Nett," as they call it, helped revitalize the baseball program at Chico State, which then became home to two national championship baseball teams, among the many more regional and conference titles the Chico State Wildcats went on to win.

Steve also brought the joy and family fun of minor league baseball to town as the owner of the Chico Heat franchise. Throughout the club's existence, Steve's limitless passion for baseball shone through in every facet of the organization. They wanted to win games, but they also wanted to give the community something that was unifying and entertaining. Indeed, it is and was.

It should come as no surprise that Steve was awarded Chico Sportsman of the Year in 1999 and was inducted into the Chico Sports Hall of Fame in 2016.

His generosity was not limited to baseball. Steve was deeply passionate for the community he learned to call home. As I mentioned, he was also a known contributor to the Boys and Girls Club of Chico, the American Red Cross, the American Cancer Society, United Way, the Salvation Army, and many more.

For all of his efforts and contributions on behalf of a university which he did not attend, Chico State awarded him an honorary doctorate degree of humane letters—only the second person in school history to receive such a degree.

It is indeed clear that Steve deeply cared for his community. In return, it deeply cared for him. Through his selfless generosity over the years, Steve Nettleton built a legacy that will far outlive his time on this Earth. But still, those who remember it will miss the nightly opportunity to shake Steve's hand after a baseball game as he showed his appreciation to those fans in attendance.

Steve brought much joy and fun to his hometown and to its people. He will be greatly missed. God bless the Nettleton family at this time.

DAY 33 OF THE SHUTDOWN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. HIMES) for 5 minutes.

Mr. HIMES. Madam Speaker, so here we are together in the House of Representatives on day 33 of the government shutdown. We have all been back in our districts, and like me, I suspect have all heard from people who are really starting to suffer as a result of this government shutdown: TSA agents, other people essential to our security, other Federal workers, and people who receive food stamps who are wondering whether 2 weeks from now they will be able to feed their children.

I don't know about you, but I come back to Washington thinking one thing, which is: We need to stop calling this a government shutdown. That sort of makes it sound like a machine isn't working somewhere. Let's call this what it is. The President's decision to sign no budget until he gets his wall is not a government shutdown.

It is taking the happiness, the prosperity, and the opportunity of millions of Americans hostage until he gets his wall. It is not too strong to say that this is torturing millions of Americans with anxiety until the President gets his wall.

It is saying to Americans that you will work for weeks, and maybe months, but we won't pay you because he needs his wall. If you are one of the millions of Americans who rely on SNAP benefits so that you can look at your child and know that that child has had nourishment that day, you may not get those benefits because he needs his wall.

If you are a contractor, you are not getting any back pay, and I am sorry, because he needs his wall.

I have got the stories from my district that everybody else does in this Chamber. The worst one was when I talked to a woman named Debbie. Debbie is fighting stage IV melanoma. Her husband is a Department of Transportation executive who was called back to D.C. to work without pay, leaving Debbie to raise three children and battle cancer without pay, with the insecurity of whether she will be able to pay her copays to keep herself alive.

Why? Apparently, holding hostage the American people is okay because the President's wall is that important. Well, if that is so important, why, when the Republicans controlled the House, and the Senate, and Presidency until a few weeks ago, why did we not hear about the wall then? Why are we torturing the American people now?

I have been here for 10 years. We haven't ever had a debate or an argument about a wall, but now it is okay for the President to torture the American people, to keep them without money, to keep them in insecurity, to keep them in anxiety, because right now the wall is absolutely essential.

Let's talk for a second about where this came from and what kind of a tool this hostage taking is. Remember, during the campaign the President said, we will build a wall from sea to shining sea, a big beautiful wall that will be paid for by Mexico.

What we are doing right now is not delivering on the campaign promise of the President of the United States. We are cleaning up around the fact that he could not deliver on a campaign promise to have Mexico pay for the wall. Instead, security workers and the American people are being asked not just to pay for his wall, but to suffer for his wall.

This is a dealmaker. The art of the deal. I was in the majority once when we had the Senate, and Presidency, and the House. There was lots of stuff we wanted but we couldn't get done. A public option in the Affordable Care Act, we couldn't get that done. The American Clean Energy and Security Act, we couldn't get that done. Something to address climate change, we couldn't get that done. But we never dreamed that the tool that we had in our pocket was to say we will torture the American people unless we get what we want.

I would remind my Republican colleagues that there will be a Democratic President someday, and they are setting this precedent. Set this precedent because it is an awesome tool. Maybe we will decide not to pay the military until we can get truly universal health coverage. Maybe we will decide not to man the borders or to decriminalize marijuana because that is what we want, and we won't pay people until we get what we want. It is a terrible precedent, and my Republican friends know that.

So what do we do now? There are two things that can happen. The President can maybe turn off "FOX News" long enough to see that this is hurting his politics very badly. He could maybe experience some empathy; something that I am not holding my breath for. Or maybe, Congress could act like Congress and say we are a coequal branch and we stand for the people who we are currently torturing.

The Senate majority leader said, I will not move a bill that the President will not sign. Think about that. The United States Senate, the greatest deliberative body on the planet is, by design now, a rubber stamp to the President.

It is not hard to override a veto. It just requires us to do what we are paid to do and stand for the American people who are suffering right now.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members are reminded to refrain from engaging in personalities toward the President.

THANKING MINNESOTA'S FIRST CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT FOR THE PRIVILEGE OF SERVING THEM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. HAGEDORN) for 5 minutes.

Mr. HAGEDORN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to thank the residents of Minnesota's First District for the privilege and honor of serving them as their Representative in the House of Representatives.

As southern Minnesota's servant in Congress, I will work to keep America safe with secure borders and a military and foreign policy of peace through strength.

I will work to make America prosperous by transforming the Federal Government and implementing regulatory reform, individual tax reform, work for welfare, patient-centered medical care, merit-based immigration, and achieving U.S. energy independence.

I will work to protect our God-given U.S. constitutional rights, especially the right to life, the right of law-abiding Americans to keep and bear arms, and the right to religious freedom.

Lastly, I will work to sustain agriculture and our rural southern Minnesota way of life.

Madam Speaker, serving this body is humbling, and I look forward to working with my colleagues to restore America's greatness and reflect the views and values of the constituents of the First District of Minnesota.

FIGHT FOR AMERICANS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. KENNEDY) for 5 minutes.

Mr. KENNEDY. Madam Speaker, a few days ago I walked into a Coast Guard base in Boston and I saw something I never thought I would witness on American soil. Members of our Armed Forces were lined up at a food pantry while they were on the clock because their employer, the United States Government, wasn't paying them for the work that they put in that day.

Madam Speaker, look around this country, and you will see nearly a million civil servants and more than a million contract workers who are forced to deter medical care, find part-time jobs, return Christmas presents, take out loans, pawn valuable possessions, draw down retirement savings, just to afford to feed their family and to keep a roof over their head.

You will find families that are terrified that their food stamps will run out. You will see notices threatening eviction for families who are upholding their end of their rent, while the government defaults on its own obligations.

You will see businesses struggling to stay afloat under lost Federal support. Domestic violence organizations will have to turn away survivors because critical grant funding isn't coming through.

Yes, this is about a misguided and demagogued immigration fight. And, yes, this is squarely about a President who couldn't keep his promise.

But at its core, it is about an administration that has spent 2 years treating the livelihood of working families as a bargaining chip, quickly traded away time and again to protect power, profit, and political gain.

Theirs is a system that asks American workers to make painful sacrifices that those in power only read about; a system where tax cuts for international corporations are paid for by Medicaid cuts for working families; where healthcare premiums skyrocket for the sick and the suffering; where healthcare industry executives reap the reward.

Theirs is a system where labor protections for workers are wiped out as distant CEOs lay off loyal employees and gut pensions; where a safety net that keeps our fellow Americans afloat shrinks and tears as their President smiles and holds the scissors; where profits accrue to those who have already profited, and the loss is borne by those who can least afford to bear it.

Beyond the shutdown, beyond this President, our government needs to prove to the American people that we are fighting for them. Because right now, they don't believe we are in their corner, and I don't blame them.

HONORING SERGEANT ALIPIO ARROYO RAMOS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SOTO) for 5 minutes.

Mr. SOTO. Madam Speaker, I rise to honor Sergeant Alipio Arroyo Ramos. First Sergeant Alipio Arroyo Ramos, resident of Kissimmee, Florida, was born on January 14, 1949, in Cayey, Puerto Rico.

At the age of 18, he joined the United States Armed Services where he served proudly for over 22 years. During his time in the Armed Forces, he obtained a degree in accounting from the University of Maryland and completed combat medical training at the U.S. Army Medical Department Center and School in Texas.

In 1969, he volunteered and served in the Vietnam war as a combat medic where he fought for our Nation and provided critical medical aid to wounded fellow servicemembers and civilians in the line of fire.

As a result, he was awarded the Bronze Star for his courage in the Vietnam war. After the Vietnam war, he briefly returned to the civilian sector and applied his military medical experience with the epidemiology division of the Puerto Rico Department of Health before deciding to rejoin the United States Armed Forces on Active Duty.

Upon rejoining, Mr. Arroyo was assigned to multiple posts throughout the United States and abroad. In 1988, he was stationed in Fort Bragg, North Carolina, where he successfully passed rigorous training and evaluations to become a member of the United States Special Forces Command, a lifetime achievement he and his family are proud of to this day.

During his tenure with the United States Special Forces he worked directly under two different four-star generals. Since his retirement in 1998, he continues to be an active member of the Disabled American Veterans organization and is a passionate and fierce advocate for veterans' rights, particularly those, such as him, who have suffered the unfortunate and debilitating consequences of having been exposed to Agent Orange during the Vietnam war. To this day, he continues to adopt the motto: "Duty, Honor, Country," as his life creed.

First Sergeant Arroyo resides in Kissimmee, Florida, with his wife, Luz Amary, who has always stood by his side in support throughout his entire military career. He is the father of three children: Nikolas, Phillip, Zulimar Arroyo; and three grandchildren, Camila, Valeria, and Sofia, all of whom he loves dearly.

UNPAID GOVERNMENT WORKERS

Mr. SOTO. Madam Speaker, I want to take a moment to talk a little bit about the shutdown. We are in day 33, since the shutdown began. The House and Senate came together originally with bipartisan budgets to try to resolve this. But then on that fateful day, President Trump said that he will take the mantle and he would shut down the government over border security.

Over 2 weeks ago, I met with TSA, PASS, and Department of Corrections employees, and they told me their stories about not being able to make a mortgage; about not being able to have healthcare and childcare; about those facing diabetes and cancer.

Last week, I returned back to the TSA in their break room to speak with workers about how we were going to transport people to and from work, waiving tolls, addressing diabetes, and childcare, once again.

This past week, I joined Second Harvest Food Bank to help feed Federal employees because the United States Government is not paying them. Our Federal workers are about to miss their second paycheck.

Mr. Speaker, I ask the President: How long will TSA protect our airports without pay; how long will the IRS workers clock in to timely process our tax refunds if they are not getting a paycheck; and how long will U.S. Customs and Border Protection agents protect our very border that we are debating without getting paid?

We can debate and negotiate over border security.

But why, Mr. President, must you hold nearly 800,000 Federal workers and their families hostage?

Where is the Senate?

We have voted 10 times to reopen the Federal Government. The number of times they voted: zero.

The offer that was given this week, a temporary 3 years for Dreamers and TPS refugees for a permanent border wall with $5.7 billion and a political asylum system that is worse than the current one.

If you are really serious, President Trump, why not make the changes for our Dreamers and TPS refugees permanent, much like the wall you are asking for?

Now the House Democrats have a counteroffer. We already put in a $1.3 billion increase for border security in a bipartisan Homeland Security budget. This was the budget passed by the last GOP Congress. Now we are adding an additional $1.5 billion to improve our security in a three-part border and security plan: one, more security for our ports of entry where most of the drugs are coming in; two, more technology at the border so we know when people are coming across it; and, three, more personnel.

Mr. President, reopen this Federal Government.

I ask the Senate to get a backbone and act.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members are reminded to address their remarks to the Chair and not to a perceived viewing audience.

END THE SHUTDOWN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Illinois (Ms. KELLY) for 5 minutes.

Ms. KELLY of Illinois. Madam Speaker, I rise today because 800,000 Federal workers—7,400 of who live and work in Illinois—are furloughed or working without pay because of this unnecessary Trump shutdown.

Today I want to talk about two of them. The first is a constituent from the south suburbs of my district. Before joining the Federal Government workforce, he proudly served our Nation during the Vietnam war. He fought for his country. He risked his life for this country.

When he came back from the war, he continued to serve. In fact, he served 46 years in the government working to help his fellow Americans find opportunities and bridges to a better life. After 46 years and because of the declining health of his wife, he decided that it was time to retire. Given his career, I would say it is a well-deserved retirement. So he filed his paperwork, but, sadly, it was 2 days before the Trump shutdown started. His retirement application has yet to be processed. He has yet to receive his final paycheck and cannot access his TSP or 401(k) because he doesn't have his official retirement documents.

Madam Speaker, this is insane. It is insane that this President—a five-time draft dodger—would treat a Vietnam veteran with such outright disdain. But, honestly, I am not sure he cares.

While this story is especially upsetting, it is not the only story. Another of my constituents was featured yesterday on "CBS This Morning." His family has three kids; two of them are autistic. After years of dedicated government service, his family was denied his paycheck and likely won't receive his next scheduled paycheck either. In order to make ends meet, they are dipping into their savings—savings meant to provide for the long-term care of their children.

Is this really the way we want to treat Americans—let alone Americans who have dedicated their careers to serving our great country?

Madam Speaker, these are just two stories of many. Right now there are dozens of Active Duty Coast Guard at Station Calumet Harbor risking their lives to save others and to protect the homeland who aren't getting paid. These are Active Duty servicemembers, and they were told to hold yard sales or babysit to make ends meet without paychecks.

Are you serious?

President Trump wants Active Duty Coast Guardsmen to sell their families' memories because he is throwing a temper tantrum and shut down the government. It is just madness, plain and simple.

I have a message to President Trump about his border wall: You have lost. This game is over, and you are hurting people like this Vietnam war veteran. You have lost, and you are not going to get it. End this Trump shutdown and then have a real serious conversation on border security and comprehensive immigration reform.

In fact, I will promise right here and right now, Mr. President, if you are serious about solving issues—and there are definitely issues that need to be solved—I will be the first one at the table. Reopen the government, Mr. President. I will be there to talk about real bipartisan reforms that will enhance border security and prevent more families from being cruelly torn apart by a broken immigration system.

Madam Speaker, while this is a Trump shutdown, he has dangerous enablers in Congress. The biggest one is just a few steps away in the Senate, the Senate majority leader.

I also have a message for the Senate majority leader, the gentleman from Kentucky: Call a vote on any of the bipartisan funding bills that this House—the people's House—has sent over to the Senate. Call a vote and reopen the government. Call a vote for the 6,400 Kentuckians working without pay or not working in your State. You were elected to serve the people of Kentucky, not the whims of the man in the White House. Mr. Majority Leader, it is time to do your job.

In closing, Madam Speaker, I want to thank my colleagues on the other side of the aisle who have joined our efforts to reopen government. Each vote gets a few more. These are hardworking, commonsense men and women who want to do their job. They want to serve their constituents and make America a better place.

Together with House Democrats, they are standing up to President Trump and his illogical wall. Together with House Democrats they are saying: reopen the government. Together with House Democrats, they know that we can't secure our border if border agents aren't being paid and if Active Duty Coast Guardsmen are not being paid, and we can't secure public safety if FBI agents aren't being paid.

Madam Speaker, my constituents and hundreds of thousands of other families are suffering because of this Trump shutdown. I am proud to have voted with every House Democrat to reopen the government to pay our Active Duty servicemembers and restore government services. It is time for the Senate and President Trump to show the same commitment to our economy, our national security, and the hard-working men and women who serve this Nation as Federal Government employees.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members are reminded to direct their remarks to the Chair and to refrain from engaging in personalities toward the President.

LET'S COME TOGETHER

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. WOODALL) for 5 minutes.

Mr. WOODALL. Madam Speaker, I remember standing in your chair over these last couple of Congresses reading out that very same card at the end. Whether the Obama administration or the Trump administration, folks come down to the floor, they get caught up in the passions of the moment, and we do have opportunities to come together.

I had not planned on coming down. I was actually in the Cloakroom making some telephone calls, and I heard my colleague speaking. I heard her with sincerity implore the President to come to his senses, come to the negotiating table, and end this shutdown. Then I heard her with sincerity implore the leaders of the Senate to come to the negotiating table, to come to their senses, and to end this shutdown. Then in about an hour and a half, I will be down here leading the debate on the rule for the minority, and we will bring yet another of the exact same bills we have brought to the floor that have gone absolutely nowhere in an effort to reopen the government.

I would say to my friends that the secret to finding common ground isn't to ask everybody else to come to where you are standing. That is the new definition of compromise in this town. I have seen that, that gravitate in the five terms that I have been here.

The definition of compromise is: Well, why don't you agree with me?

The truth is the only movement I have seen in this debate over these last 32 days is the President this past week-end when he said: Do you know what? We have called on every single Member in every single Chamber to find a solution to the young men and women trapped in a DACA status, those families who come here with temporary protective status, and they are uncertain about their future—folks on both sides of the aisle have called for that—he said: Do you know what? Maybe we can broaden this debate, Madam Speaker. Maybe we can broaden the definition of what success looks like, and maybe we can break this logjam.

Madam Speaker, I would just say to my colleagues: I will come back down to the House floor as often as you all want me to come back down to the House floor, and we can do exactly the same thing every single day knowing we are going to get exactly the same result from the White House and the Senate. Or, we can try to do something different.

Candidly, my constituents didn't send me here to do the same thing over and over and over again with the same failed result. They sent me here to get success. They don't care if I win. They care if I succeed on their behalf. They don't care about Republican and Democratic priorities. They care about their family priorities.

And I have to believe—though I don't know all of my freshman colleagues as well as I would like—I have to believe that even with all the new Members in this institution there is still more that unites us than divides us in this country. I love that about this institution. I love that about the men and women who are here.

So, Madam Speaker, I ask this: Let's try to do a little more listening and a little less talking. Here in the rank and file, golly, I have to believe if I could pick out a few colleagues here, I am pretty sure that we could sit down at the table and solve this. I confess it is beyond our reach as we sit here today. This is a White House decision. This is a MITCH MCCONNELL decision. And this is a NANCY PELOSI decision. We ought to all as rank-and-file Members be outraged when it does rise to that level because we lose control. Our constituents lose their voice.

I am encouraging my leadership to be as open and honest and to be as flexible and creative as they possibly can in finding a solution. Every single one of us bears responsibility in this Chamber of what is going on.

If Senate Democrats had let these appropriations bills move last fall, then we wouldn't be in this mess. If Republicans had passed a continuing resolution in December, we wouldn't be in this mess. There are 1,000 different decisionmaking points where we could have done things differently. We cannot change those, but we can change what is happening here today.

I tell my constituents back home: If you want to understand what is happening in Congress, listen to the 5 minutes in the morning, listen to the 1 minutes at noon, and find out if the folks who are coming to the floor are celebrating opportunities for success or simply condemning their colleagues for not being invested in solutions.

I believe in the men and women of this Chamber. I believe in the U.S. House of Representatives. I believe in self-governance in this Nation. Failing the American people, Madam Speaker, undermines that confidence. We have an opportunity to succeed, and I hope we will say yes to that opportunity.

VIRGINIA'S EIGHTH DISTRICT IS SUFFERING

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. BEYER) for 5 minutes.

Mr. BEYER. Madam Speaker, my Northern Virginia district includes more Federal workers—almost 87,000—than any other, and my people are suffering.

This week we entered the second month of a shutdown which President Trump began by rejecting a Republican bill which passed overwhelmingly in the Senate after promising that he would, in fact, shut down the government.

The undeniable fact is that if the President told Senate Republicans today to vote for the exact same bill they already passed, the exact same bill he promised to sign, then this shutdown would end. But he refuses to do so because his demands are unmet.

President Trump's complaints of a crisis, Madam Speaker, are correct in one respect: they are a crisis for the people I represent and for people in every district across this country.

The President has said many things since he promised that he would shut down the government, but few of his comments are directed to the Federal workforce. I have gotten many hundreds of calls, emails, and letters, and they are overwhelmingly opposed to the shutdown. They are about tuition they can't pay, rent, healthcare premiums, insulin and other drugs, and groceries.

I am particularly concerned because so many of the folks who work in northern Virginia have security clearances, and the number one reason people are denied a security clearance is because of a financial blot on their record. It is the number one reason their security clearance is taken away. If they are late on car payments and mortgage payments, they can actually lose their jobs.

I am concerned about the impact on contractors. These are the folks like guards at the Smithsonian or food service workers or people in cleaning crews. They tend to be minimum wage. They tend not to have savings, and often no benefits. They are not getting paid, and they have nothing to fall back on. All the people who serve in our community—waiters, dental hygienists, auto mechanics, and hairstylists—are seeing their ability to make money day after day disappear.

President Trump says his shutdown is about making the country safer, but that doesn't make any sense if you talk to the people who are suffering today. I have heard from furloughed FBI agents, air traffic controllers, State Department officials, workers at TSA, the Department of Homeland Security, the Coast Guard, and even Customs and Border Patrol, and they all vehemently oppose the shutdown.

Madam Speaker, we all support effective border security, but keeping these people furloughed or making them work unpaid doesn't make us any safer.

But on the positive side, as the pain has gotten worse for our community, I have also seen something else, which is that communities are coming together to make sure that no one gets left behind. Business after business throughout the country and throughout northern Virginia are helping with free sandwiches, free meals, and free services.

Nonprofits are stepping up their efforts to meet the worsening conditions created by the shutdown, and government officials, furloughed and unfurloughed, are doing everything they can to pitch in and lighten the blow on their unpaid colleagues.

□ 1100

Yesterday, I was helping serve food to Federal employees at Chef Jose Andres' World Central Kitchen. There was a line around the block, and it was D.C. police officers on their lunch break who came to help serve.

By the way, Madam Speaker, I think I handed out more than 300 meals, and not a single person said: Open up the government. Give Trump his wall.

We are better than this. We are good, kind, and industrious. The American people don't deserve this shutdown.

It is axiomatic that we shouldn't negotiate with hostage takers, but the President has taken our government hostage. If we give him what he wants, he may well use this tactic again and again and again.

President Reagan said: "Mr. Gorbachev, tear down this wall."

We say: President Trump, tear down your wall—your unreasonable obsession with an obsolete, medieval, ineffective way to secure our borders—and open up our government.

NEED FOR INFRASTRUCTURE INVESTMENT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. MALINOWSKI) for 5 minutes.

Mr. MALINOWSKI. Madam Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Transportation Funding Fairness Act and to express my hope that, after we have come to our senses and reopened the government, this year Congress will come together to fund the bridges, tunnels, railroads, airports, and roads that we all understand America needs to prosper and grow.

In the first decade of the 20th century, commuters in New Jersey towns like Summit, Union, and Westfield could hop on a steam-powered train, ride right up to a terminal on the dock in Jersey City, change seamlessly to a ferry, and be in Manhattan within 50 minutes to an hour, if there wasn't too much fog or ice on the Hudson River.

A hundred years of magical, technological progress later, and we have managed to shave that trip by maybe a few minutes, if the trains are running on time that day.

Decades of underinvestment in public infrastructure have taken its toll on American greatness. Anyone who has traveled the world and has seen the modern airports and seaports and fast rail networks that our competitors are building would understand that.

Just in the last 2 months, as we have not even been able to open our government, the Chinese Government has been busy approving over $125 billion in new rail projects—$125 billion.

No State suffers more from our lack of attention to infrastructure than New Jersey, where twice as many people use public transportation than the national average. To get to and from New York, 200,000 of us a day still depend on just two rail tracks across the Portal Bridge and through a Hudson River tunnel that our great-grandparents built in 1910 because they thought those 50-minute, turn-of-the-century commute times were unacceptably long.

When the Portal Bridge opens to let boats pass today, a worker with a hammer must sometimes lock it back into place while stranded commuters wait, and that Hudson River tunnel has just a few years of life left. If we fail to replace it in time, we will be dealing a crippling blow to the economy of our region and our country.

That is why it is so urgent and important that we get the Gateway Tunnel project built.

Madam Speaker, in New Jersey, when we say we want to build bridges, not walls, that is not just a metaphor. We mean it literally. The $5.7 billion that would be wasted to wall off America from Mexico happens to be almost exactly the Federal share of building a new Hudson River tunnel that would keep Americans connected to each other and, ultimately, to the world.

These are the real choices that we face. Is there any doubt what the voters who sent us here would have us choose: building something that millions of people living in my State and neighboring States say they desperately need, or something people living on the border say they do not need? A symbol of national progress, or a symbol of national fear? Is there any question at all?

That is one reason why I am introducing this bipartisan bill today, which is meant to clear one of the artificial obstacles the Department of Transportation has placed in the path of the Gateway Tunnel.

The Department has argued that when States take advantage of Federal transportation loans to pay some of their share of projects jointly funded by the Federal Government, like Gateway, those loans don't count as part of the State contribution to the project.

It makes no sense. State taxpayers, after all, are 100 percent obligated to pay back those loans. It is like saying that I am not actually paying for my house because I have taken out a mortgage.

Our bill makes crystal clear that States can use Federal loans to cover all or part of their share of these projects.

Speaking of taxpayers, Madam Speaker, I represent a State where we get only 74 cents back from Washington for every dollar we pay in taxes. That is the worst ratio in the country. The average American gets $1.12 back for every dollar he or she pays, courtesy of the Federal deficit.

What we ask, with strong justification, is that Washington give a bit more back in the form of investment in the infrastructure that powers States like New Jersey and, in turn, enables us to power the American economy.

I hope we will make progress on that this year and that this bill will make the task a little bit easier.

GOVERNMENT SHUTDOWN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Washington (Ms. SCHRIER) for 5 minutes.

Ms. SCHRIER. Madam Speaker, yesterday marked 1 full month of this unnecessary government shutdown, and 800,000 Federal employees are set to miss their second paycheck later this week.

The shutdown is not only affecting those workers, but we are seeing ripple effects of agencies being closed or staff being downsized. Food banks are seeing massive increases, some almost twelve-fold, in demand from Federal employees, but also people who rely on help like Section 8 housing checks or SNAP benefits.

Here is some of what I am hearing. I heard from a constituent who is a career employee at the FAA that "it is frustrating that thousands of hard-working Federal employees have become innocent pawns in the current Washington standoff between Congress and the President over funding for border security. As an integral part of the Nation's air traffic control system, my focus has always been and will always be on safety."

He goes on: "My dedicated colleagues and I at the FAA work tirelessly in furtherance of the agency's mission of providing the safest, most efficient aerospace system in the world, despite some of us now doing so without pay."

I have also heard from a woman whose husband is a Federal agent at the FDA. "My question," she says, "is how are we going to make ends meet without a paycheck from my husband this Friday? We adopted our sweet son a year and a half ago, draining our savings account to do so. We currently do not have savings to fall back on during this time.

“How are we supposed to pay our rent, our bills, keep food on the table for our family, or pay for an emergency should it arise? I do have a full-time job that will at least bring us some income during this shutdown, and I am sure we are luckier than most Federal-employed families, but I can assure you that our family is in true panic mode.

“We have been doing everything in our power to ensure our family would be able to purchase a home this summer. How do we explain to creditors that we don’t have the money to pay them right now without it affecting our credit?”

I have also heard from a constituent who is a furloughed Federal worker who is “forced to come to work every day without pay due to the partial government shutdown.

“Every day that goes by, the stress and anxiety about not having a paycheck and having to support my family, all the while having to incur the costs of going to work every day, mounts. To top this all off, as an ‘excepted,’ or an ‘exempt,’ employee, under current Federal law, I am not allowed to apply for nor can I receive unemployment compensation.”

I have also heard from a local business owner who contracts with Federal entities. He says: “My work has ground to a halt. I won’t be compensated for any downtime, and I will have to reduce my workforce. We don’t need a wall; we don’t need to waste money; and we don’t need symbolic racism. We need an open government that manages land, services, travel, and commerce. Please apply pressure to get the government open and our district’s Federal employees, contractors, and private-sector partners back to work.”

I have heard from a constituent who served 40 years in the Coast Guard, under many different administrations, who said: “Worst of all, it is negatively impacting the most junior members of our workforce. These are the people you will meet if you ever take your family out boating on Puget Sound or the navigable waters of this country and experience some form of distress. As a retiree, I will not be paid at the end of this month, a statement I once believed I would never have to say.”

I have heard from a social worker whose client left a domestic violence situation and recently received a letter about discontinuation of Section 8 housing benefits: “This family, without this support, will be homeless once again, let alone the emotional strain that this is causing. Please do what you can,” she says, “to prevent the stress on our most vulnerable.”

The shutdown must end now. Federal employees and their families should not be held hostage for a wasteful and ineffective wall. People who rely on assistance from the Federal Government are now caught in the fray.

The House now has voted nine times to reopen the government with bipartisan bills that have similar language to what the Republican Senate passed in December, and we will introduce similar legislation today, giving Republicans in the Senate yet another opportunity to open the government.

I will not support reopening the government in exchange for the President’s wall. This hostage-taking strategy must not be a successful one, or we will see it again.

The wall, as he defines it, is a monument to racism and xenophobia, an environmental disaster, and a huge waste of hard-earned taxpayer dollars.

Let’s be clear that what Mr. Trump offered as a “compromise” on Saturday doesn’t even undo the damage he alone has caused. That is no compromise; that is lip service.

Get the government open, and then we can have an informed, evidence-based discussion about the best way to protect our borders without holding the American people hostage.

HOSTAGE TAKING

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GREEN) for 5 minutes.

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Madam Speaker, I rise once again as a proud American. I love my country. I love what it stands for, in terms of its great ideals. And, Madam Speaker, as a proud American, I rise today to address the question of hostage taking.

One of the principles that we employ in international diplomacy—and I am being a little bit euphemistic by saying “international diplomacy”—is that of not negotiating with hostage takers.

If you take one of our planes, highjack one of our planes, and you demand a ransom, we will not negotiate with you. Grab an American off the streets in some distant place, and we will not negotiate with you.

It doesn’t matter that you start out at $50 million and then reduce your desire to have a ransom to $10 million, maybe. We don’t negotiate with you. You are a hostage taker.

The United States of America, the greatest and richest country in the world, which can pay the price, refuses to negotiate with hostage takers.

Madam Speaker, this is bigger than the President. This is about whether or not we will allow any President to take hostages and demand a ransom that must be paid or else the hostages will continue to suffer. This is about whether we will allow any President to do this—not just a Republican President, any President.

It is un-American to take persons hostage within this country and demand a ransom when we wouldn’t allow it on the international stage.

I am a person who decided that it was appropriate to meet with the hostages, and I did. I met with the hostages who work with the IRS. I heard their clarification call for help, their appeal for some understanding.

When I met with them, it became very clear to me that there is pain beyond the pain of not having the check to pay the bills.

Some of these persons literally indicated that they were having some mental concerns that would have to be addressed because they played by the rules. They have come to work; they have done their jobs; and now they find themselves in this most tenuous position of being denied the wages they have earned.

There is something wrong when a President will hold people hostage to the extent that they have mental issues as a result of the hostage taking.

One of the things called to my attention was that they don’t believe that this all ends with them the moment they are allowed to go back to work and receive the wages that they have earned. They believe that they may have to have some additional counseling to help them through and to better cope with the experience that they never contemplated they would have as a result of being employed by the United States of America, the richest country in the world.

This is bigger than this President. It is about him, but it is bigger than him. It is about whether or not we will allow hostage taking within the country and yield to it, or will we demand that we do what we continue to say is our bedrock principle when it comes to negotiating with hostages on the international stage, and that is, you release our people; you let them go.

Mr. President, let our people go. You have become a modern-day pharaoh. You are holding people hostage, Mr. President. Don’t you see what you are doing to the fiber and fabric of this country? Don’t you see how you are ripping it apart? You are a modern-day pharaoh. Let our people go.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members are reminded to direct their remarks to the Chair and to refrain from engaging in personalities toward the President.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until noon today.

Accordingly (at 11 o’clock and 16 minutes a.m.), the House stood in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker at noon.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Patrick J. Conroy, offered the following prayer:

God of wisdom and peace, thank You for giving us another day.

As this partial government shutdown continues, help the Members of this assembly to open their hearts to Your love and to surrender their hopes and desires to Your purposes.

Pour out Your spirit of wisdom on each Member that today's deliberations might best respond to the pressing issues of the day. While disagreement abounds in Washington, thousands are in need of relief.

Bless those Americans who locally are stepping forward to assist those charged with serving to secure our safe travel and our borders and who are missing their second paycheck.

May humility and compassion be manifest among those who have the power to bring this impasse to an end.

Lord, have mercy on us.

May everything we do be for Your greater honor and glory.

Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House her approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

Mr. CROW. Madam Speaker, pursuant to clause 1, rule I, I demand a vote on agreeing to the Speaker's approval of the Journal.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the Speaker's approval of the Journal.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. CROW. Madam Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to clause 8, rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

The point of no quorum is considered withdrawn.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. WILSON) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. Under clause 5(d) of rule XX, the Chair announces to the House that, in light of the resignation of the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MARINO), the whole number of the House is 433.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. The Chair will entertain up to 15 requests for 1-minute speeches on each side of the aisle.

46TH ANNIVERSARY OF ROE V. WADE

(Ms. LEE of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. LEE of California. Madam Speaker, yesterday was the 46th anniversary of Roe v. Wade, the landmark Supreme Court decision that affirmed the constitutional right to an abortion.

This decision allowed millions of women to come out of the shadows and access lifesaving reproductive care, yet antiabortion laws and sustained attacks on women's access to the full range of reproductive healthcare continues to push abortion coverage out of the reach for too many people.

Since 2011, State lawmakers have passed more than 400 laws that restrict abortion, and policies like the Hyde amendment have pushed coverage out of reach for millions of women, especially low-income women and women of color. That is why I have been proud to be the lead cosponsor of the EACH Woman Act, along with Congresswoman Jan Schakowsky and Congresswoman DIANA DEGETTE.

This legislation will end the harmful Hyde amendment and make sure that all people, regardless of where they live or how much they make, have access to a full range of reproductive healthcare.

Madam Speaker, I remember the days of back-alley abortions, and we cannot allow this administration to turn back the clock on women's access to abortion. It is time to be bold and end Hyde and lift all the bans that deny a full range of reproductive healthcare to all women.

IRANIAN PROXIES

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, the murderous regime in Tehran has a very clear policy: death to America, death to Israel. That is why Iran trains, arms, and funds militia groups to fight its proxy wars throughout the Middle East.

In Iraq, these militias destabilize the country, weaken Baghdad's central authority, and do Iran's bidding. These militias directly threaten American interests in Iraq.

Many of them have American blood on their hands, but they are not being held accountable for their actions by our government. That is why I introduced H.R. 361, the Iranian Proxies Terrorist Sanctions Act, with my colleagues on the Foreign Affairs Committee, BRAD SHERMAN, STEVE CHABOT, and TOM SUOZZI.

This bill will finally sanction two notorious Iranian-controlled proxy groups in Iraq, including those responsible for the September 2018 attacks on the U.S. Embassy in Baghdad and U.S. Consulate Mosul. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this bipartisan bill.

In conclusion, God bless our troops, and we will never forget September the 11th in the global war on terrorism.

GERTRUDE AND SOL SLOAN—INTERNATIONAL HOLOCAUST REMEMBRANCE DAY

(Mr. HIGGINS of New York asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. HIGGINS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I recently met with an extraordinary American by the name of Gertrude Sloan. Today, I rise to share her story and that of her late husband, Sol, both Holocaust survivors.

Sol and Gertrude were born in Romania into Jewish families, and both were taken by the Nazi regime and held in a camp in Auschwitz. In an oral history, Sol tells the horrors of the concentration camps: starvation, beatings, and family separations with fatal endings.

Of the 1.3 million people taken to Auschwitz, an estimated 1.1 million were killed. Sol and Gertrude made it out alive. They met at a displaced person's camp and were later sponsored by relatives to come to America. In 1955, they opened Sloan's Antiques on Buffalo's east side, which continues to be operated by their son Max today.

I share the Sloans' story as we prepare to recognize International Holocaust Remembrance Day. May it be a reminder of the unspeakable grief for the Holocaust and for the inspirational stories of those who survived.

GLOBAL TRADE ACCOUNTABILITY

(Mr. DAVIDSON of Ohio asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DAVIDSON of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, international trade is essential to America's economy and to American leadership. Today, I introduce the Global Trade Accountability Act, which seeks to establish this principle.

As a private-sector manufacturing business owner, I experienced the harmful effects of bad trade practices firsthand.

On trade, as with many other issues, Congress needs to work with President Trump to restore power to the American people. This bill does that by ensuring that the President has flexibility to change tariffs as needed in negotiations, but if the President wants the tariff to continue beyond 90 days, Congress would need to vote approving that action.

President Trump's commitment to put America first in trade is commendable in fulfilling his promise to American workers; however, the President should not be in this fight alone. Congress needs to join the fight to ensure these efforts are effectively moved forward for the entire country.

The Constitution clearly gives the legislative branch the responsibility to regulate commerce and lay taxes and duties with foreign nations, yet Congress has surrendered this Article I authority. Mr. Speaker, it is time to restore it.

STOP HOLDING OUR FEDERAL EMPLOYEES HOSTAGE

(Ms. BROWNLEY of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. BROWNLEY of California. Mr. Speaker, today, I want to share the story of one of my constituents. Her name is Trisha.

In December of 2017, Trisha and her family lost their home and all of their belongings in the devastating Thomas fire. Since then, the family has been working hard to rebuild their home and their lives while supporting their two young children.

Now, because of the Trump shutdown, Trisha and her husband, who both work as air traffic controllers, have gone weeks without paychecks, facing very extreme hardship.

President Trump is holding them and 800,000 other Federal employees hostage, making an already stressful time even worse.

I welcome an honest, bipartisan discussion on border security, but we cannot have a full and transparent legislative process while the American people are being held hostage. It is time to open up our government now.

MENNONITE COLLEGE OF NURSING CELEBRATING 100 YEARS

(Mr. RODNEY DAVIS of Illinois asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RODNEY DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Illinois State University's Mennonite College of Nursing on celebrating 100 years of excellence in nursing education.

Founded on January 23, 1919, the Mennonite Sanitarium Training School had a vision of training the Nation's best nurses. In 1982, they grew to become the Mennonite College of Nursing, thereby offering undergraduate degrees for the very first time.

In 1995, they added a graduate degree; and in 1999, the college became part of Illinois State University, where it has expanded to include even more academic offerings, including a doctorate degree.

Today, the ISU Mennonite College of Nursing boasts a state-of-the-art simulation lab and a 10,000-square-foot facility to provide students with hands-on experience in real-life situations with patient simulators.

As the husband of a nurse who is a former nurse educator, I am proud of the strong legacy of ISU's Mennonite College of Nursing and their commitment to educating future generations of nurses just like these students here. I commend them on their century of leadership and look forward to the many achievements to come.

AIR TRAFFIC CONTROLLERS AFFECTED BY THE SHUTDOWN

(Ms. SCHAKOWSKY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to share with you a letter from Antonio, a constituent of mine affected by this shutdown. He says:

I am an air traffic controller at O'Hare Airport. This is already a stressful job, but a job that I love. This shutdown is adding an extra layer of stress to all of the controllers working around the country. With the shutdown going past a month, we are all stressing about bills, how to put food on the table, how to pay for childcare, et cetera. We don't have the luxury of escaping from the stress of this job because, when we go home, the stress just continues as worrying.

Finding out that our vision and dental benefits would be billed to us with the expectation that we pay those bills out of our own pockets, despite having no paycheck for over a month, has only added to that stress. This shutdown is going to be a massive safety risk for the flying public if it doesn't end soon.

I have more from Antonio, which I will include in the RECORD later.

BRAVE MEN AND WOMEN OF FEMA

(Mr. RIGGLEMAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RIGGLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to commend the work of our hardworking FEMA employees and the fantastic job they do with disaster relief.

In October, my district, and many on the East Coast, were hit by Hurricane Florence and Tropical Storm Michael. I visited the town of Drakes Branch in Charlotte County to offer support after those storms. The damage was devastating, and there was work to be done all over the East Coast.

In my district alone, FEMA applications were filed in Charlotte County, Danville city, Franklin County, Halifax County, Lunenburg County, Mecklenburg County, Prince Edward County, and many others.

I commend the hard work done by FEMA in helping these areas recover, because we are recovering and are continuing to work to rebuild these areas.

I also commend the brave fire and rescue workers in all these areas, especially Meherrin Volunteer Fire and Rescue and the Drakes Branch VFD.

This is not an easy task, but for our work so far, we have been a success, and I thank the brave men and women of FEMA for their efforts.

END SHUTDOWN AND PAY AMERICAN WORKERS

(Mr. SCHNEIDER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SCHNEIDER. Mr. Speaker, as we stand here today, 33 days into the longest shutdown in our history, hundreds of thousands of Federal employees are being forced to work on our Nation's behalf without pay.

We are all able to confidently shop for groceries and eat in restaurants because FDA food inspectors are on the job. We are able to pass through airport security and fly across the Nation because TSA agents and air traffic controllers continue to do their jobs. We can all sleep soundly at night knowing our shores are protected because the men and women wearing the uniform of the Coast Guard remain resolutely at their posts, on the job.

The list goes on and on, and all of these Federal workers, these Americans, are working without pay.

Mr. Speaker, this situation is unconscionable. It is unjust. It is immoral.

This past weekend, Jason, an 8-year-old boy from my district, presented me an impassioned letter, remarkable for its wisdom. He writes: "Dear Mr. President. . . . All of us work hard for our money. . . . I hope you see my point of view and end this shutdown."

Mr. Speaker, I ask the President to listen to Jason and the majority of the American people. End this shutdown and pay the American workers who every day keep our Nation safe, secure, and strong.

MARCH FOR LIFE

(Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, last Friday, more than 100,000 Americans came to Washington for the 46th annual March for Life. This year's theme was "Unique from Day One."

Those who march envision a world where the beauty, dignity, and uniqueness of every human life are valued and protected.

Thanks to the pro-life movement, abortion rates across the country are at the lowest since 2013. Proudly, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania remains one of the top protective States in the Nation to provide legal protections for human life from conception to natural death, according to the Americans United for Life.

Many of my colleagues have introduced legislation in this Congress to advance the pro-life cause and to protect the unborn. I am proud to cosponsor many of these bills, including the Defund Planned Parenthood Act, the No Taxpayer Funding for Abortion Act, the Sanctity of Human Life Act, the Protecting the Dignity of Unborn Children Act, and the Life at Conception Act.

Mr. Speaker, we must always be a voice for the voiceless, and we must continue to build a culture that values life and respects mothers and their children, both born and yet to be born.

SHUTDOWN HARMS VETERANS

(Mr. CROW asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CROW. Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak out against the great harm this shutdown has on our Nation's veterans. I have often said, when politicians talk tough, real people get hurt.

Today, over 150,000 veterans are furloughed or working without pay. In Colorado, over 20,000 veterans who rely on SNAP food assistance are left wondering if they will be able to afford to feed their families.

This is more than just a delayed paycheck. It is about the denial of dignity and respect.

As one furloughed veteran in Colorado told me, when he took off the uniform, he wanted to continue serving our country by working for the government. We owe it to him and all others to honor that service by getting them back to work. There is a sacred promise in America that, if you step up to serve, we will be there for you when you take off the uniform.

After I returned from my third tour of duty, I was grateful that my country was there for me, and today, I stand before you to make sure we are there for them. It is time for the Senate to vote. It is time to reopen the government. And it is time to end this travesty.

SHUTDOWN IMPACTS

(Ms. UNDERWOOD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, this week, we will vote for the tenth time to end the shutdown. I sincerely hope that this is the last time.

For the people in the 14th Congressional District of Illinois, the effects of this shutdown are real and they are painful.

This weekend, I visited a family shelter for survivors of domestic violence that does incredible work serving my community. This shelter would like to expand to serve more people, but funding uncertainty around reauthorization of the Violence Against Women Act makes that impossible for them. Domestic violence survivors are a casualty of this senseless shutdown.

This weekend, I met an entrepreneur who is working to open a pet care company with her husband. He even left his job so they could realize their dream. They are currently waiting on a Small Business Administration loan they need to open their business. It is sitting on a furloughed worker's desk. Entrepreneurs are a casualty of this shutdown.

This week, I met with air traffic controllers in my district, people who keep passengers and freight moving safely through the skies. They are working 6 days a week and about to miss a second paycheck. They told me they look after their colleagues by asking: How long do you have left?

How long do they have left before they miss a mortgage payment, a healthcare bill, or max out their credit cards?

Mr. Speaker, I sincerely hope the Senate will take up one of these bills and reopen the government.

PRESERVE DIGNITY OF OUR CITIZENRY

(Mr. DELGADO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. DELGADO. Mr. Speaker, today, I rise to lay bare the calamity that is the shutdown. From phones ringing off the hook, to folks I talked to at my townhall meeting on Monday, we have heard from far too many of our fellow citizens struggling because of government inaction.

Take the Coast Guard, who I met with in Saugerties last Friday. They are providing an invaluable service to our community up and down the Hudson River, not only search and rescue, but ice cutting, which is critical to our local economy.

They are out there working in the freezing cold and not being paid. This is the first time in history U.S. Armed Forces servicemembers are not being paid during a lapse in government funding.

I repeat: Because of the shutdown, members of the U.S. military are working without pay.

Government dysfunction of any kind is not good for the well-being of our democratic order. We are now approaching levels of dysfunction that ought not be tolerable for anyone who cares to preserve the dignity of our citizenry. We must open the government now.

HONORING LIFE OF DR. RONALD MERTHIE

(Mrs. MURPHY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MURPHY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the life of a spiritual leader in my central Florida community, Dr. Ronald Merthie, who recently passed away.

A proud son of Seminole County, Dr. Merthie attended what is now known as Crooms Academy of Information Technology, where he was elected class president. He went to Texas Southern University on an athletic scholarship and, upon graduation, returned home to become an educator.

Dr. Merthie struggled with substance abuse for a period of time, but he found strength through faith, overcoming personal hardship and becoming a pillar of his community.

Dr. Merthie's life was filled with action and achievement. He established the New Life Word Center Church, offered spiritual guidance on a weekly broadcast, and founded a K-12 school.

It was Dr. King who said, "Life's most persistent and urgent question is, 'What are you doing for others?'" Dr. Merthie devoted his life to serving others, and he will be deeply missed.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring this exceptional man and offer our condolences to his family and to all of those whose lives he touched.

RES. 31, FURTHER CONTINUING APPROPRIATIONS FOR DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY, 2019; PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF MOTIONS TO SUSPEND THE RULES; AND WAIVING A REQUIREMENT OF CLAUSE 6(a) OF RULE XIII WITH RESPECT TO CONSIDERATION OF CERTAIN RESOLUTIONS REPORTED FROM THE COMMITTEE ON RULES

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 61 and ask for its immediate consideration.

SEC. 2. Upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider in the House the joint resolution (H.J. All points of order against provisions in the joint resolution are waived. any matter for consideration pursuant to this section.

SEC. 4. The requirement of clause 6(a) of rule XIII for a two-thirds vote to consider a report from the Committee on Rules on the same day it is presented to the House is waived with respect to any resolution reported through the legislative day of January 30, 2019, relating to a measure making or continuing appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2019.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HUFFMAN). The gentleman from Massachusetts is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. WOODALL), pending which time I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, on Tuesday, the Rules Committee met and reported a rule, House Resolution 61, providing for consideration of H.R. 648, the Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2019, under a closed rule.

The rule provides 1 hour of debate equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking member of the Committee on Appropriations. It also provides for consideration of H.J. Res. 31, which makes further continuing appropriations for the Department of Homeland Security for fiscal year 2019 under a closed rule. The rule provides 1 hour of debate equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking member of the Appropriations Committee.

Additionally, it extends same-day authority for appropriations measures through January 30 and suspension authority through February 1.

Mr. Speaker, we are on day 33 of the Trump shutdown, the longest government shutdown in American history. Hundreds of thousands of Federal workers will miss a paycheck for the second time since the President plunged us into this mess.

The very people who keep our Nation safe are struggling to put food on the table, people like men and women in the Coast Guard, FBI agents, Border Patrol officers, and TSA agents.

Makeshift food banks are being opened across the country to help these workers and their families get by. Right outside our Nation's Capital, in Northern Virginia, some Federal workers waited more than an hour recently at a local food bank. Demand was so high that a tenth of the food was gone in the first 5 minutes.

Because of the President's shutdown, 15 million households could see a gap in their monthly SNAP benefits that lasts more than 40 days. Four million low-income households could see a gap that lasts more than 50 days.

This program is their lifeline, Mr. Speaker. These families don't have a plan B.

I have given weekly end-hunger-now speeches on this floor since February of 2013, and I have made it clear time and time again that hunger is not only unacceptable in this country, the richest country in the history of the world, but it is a political condition.

We have the resources. We have what it takes. What we need to muster is the political will to do something about it. But here we are, and as I said, it is embarrassing enough that the wealthiest nation on the planet has an ongoing hunger crisis, but I never, ever imagined that a President of the United States would exacerbate it like this.

This is disgusting. This is unacceptable. This is unconscionable.

Let us be clear: It is the President's bruised ego that keeps a quarter of our government closed today.

Now, his latest so-called compromise proposal isn't really a compromise at all. In fact, it brings new meaning to the word "cruel."

Not only does it fail to provide a permanent solution for the Dreamers or TPS recipients, it only covers a fraction of eligible Dreamers, it excludes TPS holders from Asia and Africa, and it rewrites the law for future DACA recipients, TPS holders, and asylum seekers that will make it all but impossible for anyone to qualify.

These are the same old, tired, and extremist ideas the President and his advisers floated last year. They were rejected by both the Republican-controlled House and the Republican-controlled Senate. This is not a compromise. This is called backwards.

Now, if this administration wants to target refugees, people fleeing persecution, people fleeing for their life, if that is what he wants to do, then at least he should have the guts to do it in an open hearing for the world to see.

Now, President Trump is treating this like some reality show. He doesn't want to look bad in the right-wing press despite the fact that Members of both parties are refusing to fund his ineffective wall. If the President really wants to reach a real compromise, then he should log off Twitter and actually sit down with us and be willing to actually negotiate; no more storming out of the Situation Room and no more of his my-way-or-the-highway approach. Work with us for a change.

For whatever reason, Mr. Speaker, he has been unwilling to do that. President Trump may not have the fortitude to get us out of this mess that he created, but this majority does. So instead of following the President who got us into this mess, we have an opportunity to lead. Passing these bipartisan, bicameral bills is what leadership looks like.

Now, many of my Republican friends have asked to consider a plan that doesn't cede the House's will by considering a Senate bill. Well, today is their day because we are considering a bipartisan, bicameral compromise. This six-bill package is the result of real negotiations between the Appropriations Committees in the House and Senate. It is a true compromise that would reopen the entire government apart from the Department of Homeland Security. In fact, these negotiated bills are exactly what my good friends on the other side of the aisle have been asking us over the past week to take up. Again, this is all last year's work in the last session.

I recognize that we don't have a similar agreement on the Homeland Security measure included here, but this short-term CR will get our TSA agents paid while all other parties get back to the negotiating table.

The minibus includes $328 million in new dollars for border security that we know will actually work. The funding will increase infrastructure investments at our ports of entry; install new technology that will scan for drugs, weapons, and contraband; put in place technology to detect unauthorized crossings; and fund more immigration judges. This is what smart security looks like in the 21st century, Mr. Speaker, not some medieval wall.

Now, these details have already been agreed to by Democrats and Republicans on both sides of the Capitol. The majority is standing by our word. I urge my Republican friends: Take yes for an answer.

The President may be proud to have shut down this government, but this is nothing to be proud of.

How can anybody be proud that 800,000 Federal workers are about to miss a second paycheck, that our TSA workers are calling in sick so they can work another job that actually helps them pay the bills, or that the economy is losing growth at twice the speed originally estimated?

I could go on and on and on and on, Mr. Speaker, but I know each of us has heard from people in our districts. Our offices are getting these calls every day, in fact, every hour and every minute now. We are all hearing from struggling constituents. Their message is the same: End this shutdown. End this shutdown.

This doesn't seem, unfortunately, to be a priority for President Trump. He is out there tweeting about which player should be in the Baseball Hall of Fame. Give me a break. Maybe he doesn't know what it is like in the real world. After all, the President got his start through what he has called a small loan from his dad that reports now estimate could have totaled more than $60 million. That is the world he lives in.

But families are struggling and left to wonder how they are going to afford to put food on the table or how they are going to pay for medicine without a paycheck.

Enough of the games. Congress has the power to end this shutdown.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all my colleagues to vote “yes” on this rule and give the underlying legislation the strong veto-proof vote it deserves. Let’s finally turn the lights back on. Listen to your constituents, I say to my friends on the other side of the aisle. Listen to what they are saying. Turn the lights back on.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WOODALL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my friend from Massachusetts for yielding me the customary 30 minutes, and I appreciated the first 60 seconds of his comments where he went through that kind of policy work and that kind of procedural work, the work that we do.

We are on opposite sides of this issue. The Rules Committee is the single most partisan committee on Capitol Hill, and, yet, we always find a way to come together and share the debate to move forward. But after that first 60 seconds of process, we went into 4 minutes of the President and accusations, one after another after another.

Now, I have only been in this institution for five terms, Mr. Speaker, but that is long enough to understand that there is only one way to turn a bill into a law, and that is if Congress proposes it, Congress passes it, and the President signs it. Now, my good friend from Massachusetts knows as well as I do the President has not vetoed one single spending bill that the Congress has sent to him. The government is not shut down because the President is rejecting bills that Congress has passed. The government is shut down because Congress hasn’t passed a bill.

Mr. Speaker, if you would just listen to that opening statement, your blood pressure probably gets as high as mine does: failure after failure after failure, disappointment after disappointment after disappointment, embarrassing event after embarrassing event. I will remind my colleagues that we are where we are because we came together and passed more spending bills on time before the end of the fiscal year than any other Congress in 22 years.

Now, we could have gotten them all done. My Democratic friends in the Senate didn’t want to move those along. They had perfectly legitimate policy reasons for doing that. I am not going to question their motives; I will question their wisdom.

We have got more done together than we ever have before, and we could build on that, I tell my friend. We could build on that or we could go into our corners, we could put on our jerseys, and we can throw accusations out as fast as we can invent them in our head. That is where we are.

It is the month of January, Mr. Speaker, the very first month of this new Congress. We have new leadership. It has been more than a decade since I have seen a face like yours in the Speaker’s chair. We have spent 338 hours in this Chamber—338 hours in this Chamber—this month working on appropriations bills. Not one has gone to the President’s desk for his consideration.

My friend from Massachusetts is right when he talks about pain in American families. My friend from Massachusetts is right when he talks about the expectations folks have of Congress and how we should do better. My friend from Massachusetts is right when he says that this is not what any one of us was sent here to do. We were sent here to solve problems.

I promise you, unless your family is different from mine, Mr. Speaker, unless your relationships are different from mine, I have never solved a problem in my family by telling my loved ones how much it is their fault, how much they need to change, how much they are on the wrong side of an issue and we are not going to do anything until they come around to my way of thinking. It hasn’t been a particularly successful method for me.

Now, I look back over these last 33 days. The President sent the Vice President to Capitol Hill. He came with the OMB director, Mick Mulvaney.

He said: I told you what I needed to pass the bill. I told you what I needed and what I thought was important for America and for national security. But I will tell you what; I don’t have to have exactly that. I can come off that. I can negotiate down from that. I can move away from that. Let’s talk about what the other options may be.

No response.

The President this past weekend: I want to break this impasse; I want to find a way we can move forward; it is not about who wins. We all need to win as Americans. We all want to do better as Americans. I am going to offer to do something that no President has been able to do. I am going to offer to put into statute protection for the young men and women in the DACA program. I am going to offer to put into statute protections for those men and women in temporary protected status that has since expired. I am going to put that into statute for the first time.

As the press release is dated, Mr. Speaker, Speaker of the House NANCY PELOSI rejected that offer 7 minutes before it was made.

I am not saying that that is the right answer. I am not saying that that is the best we can do. I am not saying that is where the conversation ends. I am asking my friends: When does the conversation begin?

More than 300 hours we have spent talking amongst ourselves and produced nothing to go to the President’s desk. Sadly, I know that this issue has elevated beyond where my friend from Massachusetts, even as chairman of the powerful Rules Committee—and it is the powerful Rules Committee, it can move absolutely any measure through this House, and the Rules Committee has been incredibly successful. The House is moving appropriations bills like nobody’s business, Mr. Speaker, because when you are in the majority you can do that. You can do my way or the highway.

That is the way my friend described President Trump’s attitude. I will just remind my friend that is actually what we have today in this bill. My ranking member asked if we could consider some amendments to this bill, and he was told no. My friend didn’t say: Let’s just come down here and have amendments willy-nilly. We will have a preprinting requirement, we will do what we call a modified open rule, just so some of our new Members can have their voices heard, their constituents’ voices heard in some way.

The answer was no; straight party-line vote. All the Democrats said: no, we are not going to allow any other voices to be heard; and all the Republicans said: yes.

I don’t fault my friend for that. That is not a personal slight of any kind, Mr. Speaker. The Rules Committee is the Speaker’s committee. It does the work of the Speaker. As powerful and talented as my friend from Massachusetts is, it is his job to implement the Speaker’s will. Now, to his credit, he has been very bold in terms of trying to open that committee up. He has been very bold in trying to make sure more voices have been heard. But we find ourselves trapped in this appropriations cycle. We haven’t actually gotten to where my friend is going to be able to do his very best work. We are still trapped in trying to do the business of last year.

But my friend’s pointing out that the President’s my way or the highway—which is inaccurate—is not helpful. My pointing out that this bill is Speaker PELOSI’s way or the highway may be accurate, but it still isn’t helpful. We have got to have a conversation with one another. I can go down the list of the ways that the President has said he is willing to come to the table, but he is sitting at the table alone.

I am a vote counter, Mr. Speaker. I know how to count votes in this Chamber. I have no doubt that the rule that my friend from Massachusetts is proposing is going to pass this floor today. I have no doubt that the underlying appropriations bill is going to pass this floor. This rule includes something called martial law, Mr. Speaker, which means they can bring up anything they want to any time they want to, no preprinting, and no opportunity to review it, none of those activities that we would say bring out the very best in transparency here. If any of those bills come up, they are going to pass.

There is no confusion in this Chamber about who has the votes to win. The confusion in this Chamber is how it is we get from where we are to where our constituents want us to be and doing the same thing over and over and over again isn’t going to get it done.

It is my first time carrying a rule in the minority, Mr. Speaker. I knew when I walked down here this morning my job was to lose. I don’t mind losing.

But I do mind when the American people lose, and the American people are losing right now. There are no winners right now.

I know the men and women of this Chamber. There are some talented orators here. We can absolutely trade insults and accusations until the sun goes down. But there are some talented policymakers here, too. There are some talented negotiators here, too. As long as the President is sitting at that negotiating table alone, we are not going to get to a solution. But he doesn't have to be there alone. I appreciate his making the invitation, and I hope, as my friend from Massachusetts said, we will learn to take yes for an answer.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Let me just remind my colleague that the bills that we are taking up here today were the result of a robust amendment process and robust debate in the last Congress. This is all last year's work.

I also remind the gentleman he is right about one thing, that we haven't sent the President a bill from both Chambers, but we almost did. If he remembers correctly, in December, when the Republicans controlled the House and the Republicans controlled the Senate and they, obviously, controlled the White House, we actually came together and the Senate passed a bill that would keep the government running and open, unanimously.

I even supported the gentleman's martial law rule to be able to bring up that legislation expeditiously so we could do our work and so that nobody would have to be anxious over the holidays as to whether or not they were going to get paid.

We were about to vote on it, and it was agreed on by Democrats and Republicans. There was no controversy. And then the President turned on rightwing TV or was listening to rightwing radio, and Ann Coulter and some of these other rightwing extremists said: No, you can't do that.

And he changed his mind, and everything came to a standstill. So all this bipartisan work was for naught.

What we are bringing up here today is all the bipartisan work that many of my Republican colleagues on the Appropriations Committee, Democrats and Republicans, worked hard on to come up with a compromise that is good. It is good. Yet my friends say: Well, no. Let's start all over again.

The bottom line is the other side left us with a mess. When they controlled everything, they weren't able to get the job done.

Let me just say, here are some facts: This is the longest shutdown in history, but it is historic for another reason. This is the first time in history that a Congress has ended in a government shutdown. Never before has a Congress left it to the next Congress to reopen the government. With all due respect to my friends, that is what my friends left us with.

On top of that, Republicans had control of the White House, the Senate, and the House last year, and they couldn't keep the lights on. Then Republicans went home for Christmas and New Year's and every day in between. I know because I was on the floor multiple times begging to be recognized to offer solutions, and I was denied even the ability to offer a solution.

Since we took charge, we have non-stop offered options. Now some Members want to complain about how we are cleaning up the mess that was left to us.

Imagine this. Imagine if someone dumped a bunch of garbage on your lawn and then started complaining about how you weren't cleaning it up. That is what is happening here.

I would suggest that my friends kind of save their criticisms for a time when we aren't cleaning up after all of them.

I just want to make one other point. The gentleman said that we have martial law, same-day authority in this rule to bring up anything we want. No, that is not the case.

When my friends were in charge, they did. They had martial law to bring up anything they wanted to, and they were trying to bring up a cheese bill, if I remember correctly, instead of a bill to keep the government open in the last days of December.

No. We limit it to appropriations matters, and we want to be able to, if we can come to a deal, if we come to some sort of solution, to be able to bring something up immediately to be able to get everybody the paychecks to which they are entitled.

I know the gentleman was home over the holiday weekend, and I was, too. My constituents asked me the question over and over: I get it that there is a disagreement over the President's border wall, but why do you have to shut the entire government down over that issue? Why can't you just continue in negotiation? Why do you have to deny TSA workers a paycheck? Why is that okay? Why is that acceptable? Why are they pawns in this? Or men and women who serve in our Coast Guard, why is that okay to say: You don't get paid because the President is having a temper tantrum and he is not getting his way? All of a sudden, we have to deny them a paycheck?

People don't understand why my Republican friends think this is acceptable. The gentleman from Georgia knows that the reason why a bill is not on the President's desk is because the Senate majority leader, Mr. MCCONNELL, is basically doing the President's bidding. He said: I am not going to bring anything to the floor that the President doesn't want to sign.

We have another option here, too: We can actually pass bipartisan bills that should win overwhelming support. We should pass them with veto-proof margins and basically say to the President: We don't believe in government by blackmail. That is not the way we do things around here. That is not the way this government is supposed to work.

We ought to reopen the government, and we ought to engage in serious discussions about how we improve our border security. We have some great ideas on how to do that. We have some ideas that I mentioned in my opening speech on ways we can improve our border security.

We think a border wall is a ridiculous idea. But if you want to talk about a wall, fine, but don't—don't—hold hundreds of thousands of workers hostage.

We have an opportunity now to set these hostages that the President has taken free. Let's do it.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members are reminded to refrain from engaging in personalities toward the President.

Mr. WOODALL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, and I appreciate that admonition from the Chair.

I was looking aggressively at all the words my friend had to say for what that thing was that was going to break this logjam, what that thing was that was going to bring people together, what that olive branch was that he was extending to succeed where others had failed.

I heard that if we only come together and do it his way, that we could all just get along, and I have no doubt that that is true. That is not what a negotiation is. That is not the way this Chamber works.

We have got to send a bill to the President's desk. When the President starts vetoing bills, then start accusing the President of being the grit in the cog in this legislative wheel. We don't have agreement amongst ourselves.

We were up in the Rules Committee last night, Mr. Speaker, and one of my appropriator friends was celebrating the bills that were coming to the floor today and celebrating how pleased she was that so many of the pro-life provisions had been stripped out, celebrating that so many of the dollars that we would be sending overseas would no longer be encumbered by pro-life provisions, that folks would be able to use them in any way that they wanted.

Well, I have no doubt that she was pleased by those things, but we are not all pleased by those things, Mr. Speaker. This doesn't represent the compromise solution that everybody is on board with, as my friend would have you believe.

The financial services language in this bill, that never made it through conference. We couldn't agree, not amongst ourselves in the House and the Senate, not in a bicameral way.

My friend who is the ranking member of the Financial Services and General Government Appropriations Subcommittee, Mr. Speaker, shared last night that there were 20 different pieces of bipartisan legislation that were in the original bill, 6 pieces of bipartisan legislation that had been signed off on by the then-ranking member and, now, chairwoman of the Financial Services Committee that we could have moved forward, that we could have made a difference—again, stripped out for reasons beyond my understanding.

This isn't complicated if folks are sincere about coming together around the table. It is impossible if folks would rather trade insults than solutions.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. MITCHELL), a friend who has been dedicated entirely to solutions in his short time in the House.

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. Speaker, we have three crises in our country right now: We have a humanitarian crisis at the southern border. We could talk about the dynamics of that, but let's be honest about it—we truly do. We need to secure our Nation's borders, and we need to reopen our government and pay our Federal workers, something I have been committed to since I joined Congress.

So far, we have wasted more than 338 hours working on dead-end bills that will not pass the Senate, the President won't sign, because my colleagues on the other side of the aisle, or their leadership, won't get in a room and negotiate with the President, with MITCH MCCONNELL, with the majority leader, with the minority leader—all in the same room—and negotiate on the package that the President has put forward.

I spoke on that package last week. I held up this letter, which was a January 6 letter from the President, from the administration, to the chair of the Appropriations Committee and all the members. The other side of the aisle was astonished. They didn't know what this letter was.

That is a little bit demoralizing, if you think about it, why the letter wasn't shared with all Members on the other side of the aisle.

You see, compromise means you don't get 100 percent of what you want, but you move the ball forward. You move the ball down the road, and you keep making progress.

Those same people who are calling it a border wall or a barrier or whatever you want to call it—I do stress to my colleagues on the other side of the aisle, call it about anything you want, short of a moat. If you make progress, we move forward.

These same people who are now calling it immoral voted for border security, border barriers, when there was a different President. Now that it has President Trump's name on it, suddenly it has become evil.

Since January 3, President Trump has made two detailed proposals to Congress on how to solve this problem—it shows that the President is prepared to negotiate on it—a package of things that include border security, technology at the border, strengthening our points of entry, humanitarian aid, additional immigration judges, and, let me stress this, providing assistance for people to apply for asylum from their home countries rather than take that dangerous and treacherous journey to the Mexican border.

Doctors Without Borders says that 31 percent of the women who make that journey are sexually assaulted. The President wants to address that. Neither of those proposals have even gotten a moment of discussion from the other side of the aisle.

Anyone who spent 35 years in business, or even a few years in business, as I have, would know that compromise means you deal with the entirety of the problem. You negotiate the problem, and you get an answer that moves it forward rather than say: Some things are out of bounds; we are not going to talk about that.

The part I like now, lately, is: We will talk about it later; we promise we will.

There is a song about that. It is called, "Tomorrow, Tomorrow."

Sorry. Now is the time to deal with it. Now is the time. And I agree: Having people not paid—my dad was an autoworker. He was laid off multiple times. Missing two paychecks is brutal. There is an answer to that. It is called negotiate.

It is important that Members of the House and Senate and the leadership take seriously the President's proposals, go to a room, close the door, and negotiate rather than say, as has been said by the current Speaker: zero dollars for the wall, maybe a dollar.

I don't care if you call it a wall. I don't care if you call it a steel slat. I don't care if you call it a barrier. But we need security at the southern border. Why is it we can't have that now?

Further, we have to end this and pay our Federal workers. We must end this crisis and pay the workers. There is a route there.

Rather than spend 338 hours on the floor—in this whole posturing, this whole profiling—sit in a room and spend 10 percent of that time, 33 hours, in one room. My guess is you would come to an answer on the problem.

Why are we not doing that? Why are we not doing that? Our Democrats on the other side of the aisle obstruct people being paid.

Last week, we proposed an amendment that would have, in fact, retroactively opened the government to pay Federal employees. Six Democrats joined us in that—only six—and it was defeated.

Again, if you want to pay the employees, pay them; don't use them as hostages, as you have.

A couple summaries I wish to make: First, these are not the same bills that you claim were bipartisan bills that passed appropriations. As my colleague has noted, significant items have been pulled out of that—life protections. I will go through a list. So they are not the same bills.

Let's be honest on the floor and at least call them what they are. They are Democratic versions of the previous bills that they put through.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. WOODALL. Mr. Speaker, I yield the gentleman from Michigan an additional 2 minutes.

Mr. MITCHELL. One of the questions I posed for my colleagues: Why is it okay to begin running reelection campaigns now for an election to go 2 years from now? Why is it okay for the Presidential campaigns to start on the backs of these workers and the southern border?

Someone answer that question for me, because that is what is happening. That is what is happening all over the country. That is what is happening on TV.

This is now the cause for which people are going to run campaigns. And, frankly, as a result, yeah, we have government by blackmail, but the blackmail is going on by the other side of the aisle that insists they will only talk about certain components of this, but not all of it, because they have now decided it is not politically expedient as they are getting ready to run for office—some getting ready, apparently, to run for President—and they want to use this as leverage.

We can solve this problem in 1 day. I encourage my colleagues to do so. Get the Speaker of the House, the minority leader, majority leader of the Senate, the minority leader of the Senate, and the President in a room, close the door, and don't come out until you have an answer that they all agree to. How hard is it to understand that concept?

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Let me say, I think we have agreement here. We all want to open the government. We all want to reopen the government. I think the difference here is that we have no preconditions on reopening the government. My Republican friends do have preconditions, and it is whatever the President decides he wants to tack on at the last minute.

So there is a difference here. We have no preconditions. Open the government up, start paying all of our Federal workers, let's get our country back to normal here in terms of the Federal workforce, but my Republican friends have all these strings that they want to attach to it.

The gentleman from Michigan said, you know, he refers to one of the "gotcha" amendments that the Republicans offered on backpay for Federal workers. I should remind him that we actually passed a law here, S. 24, which created an entitlement to backpay for Federal workers who aren't getting paid during the shutdown. So we actually dealt with that here. We actually passed a law, and, that, he may not have known that.

I should also say to my Republican friends, understand that the American people are not on your side on this. There is a recent "CBS News" poll—7 in 10 Americans do not think the issue of a border wall is worth a government shutdown—7 in 10.

Now, I know there is this—you know, the President is worried about that 25, 30 percent of his base, but the vast majority of the people in this country aren't with him on this. They are not with you on this by not stepping up and saying we ought to reopen our government.

You want to have a negotiation on border security, we have lots of ideas to enhance border security, and that is based on conversations with people on the border who talk about increased technology, who talk about better infrastructure, who talk about more personnel, you know, more asylum judges. I can go on and on and on. We are all for that. Let's continue that conversation.

But why in the world does this President insist on shutting the government down until he gets his way on this border wall? This is not the way you do a negotiation. And, again, if you want to reopen the government, and we do, we have no conditions. Reopen the government. It is that simple.

And the bills—the gentleman from Michigan talked about bills that the Senate would pass. Some of the bills that we are sending over to the Senate passed unanimously. Boy, I mean, if that is not a signal that they overwhelmingly agree with the substance of these bills, I don't know what is, but they did. They voted unanimously, in some cases, for some of these bills we are sending over here.

Mr. Speaker, I include in the RECORD an article from "The Washington Post" titled: "Unacceptable: Coast Guard's top officer criticizes lack of payment in government shutdown."

[From the Washington Post, Jan. 22, 2019]

'UNACCEPTABLE': COAST GUARD'S TOP OFFICER CRITICIZES LACK OF PAYMENT IN GOVERNMENT SHUTDOWN

(By Dan Lamothe)

The Coast Guard's top admiral said Tuesday that members of the armed forces should not be expected to shoulder the burden of the partial government shutdown, citing the "anxiety and stress" it is causing military families as their pay is withheld.

Adm. Karl Schultz, the Coast Guard commandant, said he is heartened by the outpouring of support Coast Guard personnel have received across the country but expects more.

"Ultimately, I find it unacceptable that Coast Guard men and women have to rely on food pantries and donations to get through day-to-day life as service members," he said, speaking on a video posted to his Twitter account.

The comments marked the admiral's most forceful remarks about the shutdown since it began 32 days ago amid a dispute over President Trump's demands for funding for a southern border wall. While the majority of the U.S. military is part of the Defense Department and has funding, the Department of Homeland Security and its agencies, including the Coast Guard, are affected by the shutdown.

About 41,000 active-duty service members and 2,100 civilians who are considered "essential personnel" are working without a paycheck under the promise they will get back pay when the shutdown is resolved, said Lt. Cmdr. Scott McBride, a service spokesman. That situation grew more urgent Jan. 15, when service members missed a paycheck. An additional 6,000 civilians working for the service are furloughed.

Overall, about 800,000 federal workers are not receiving paychecks amid the shutdown, with nearly half furloughed.

Schultz, appearing alongside the service's top enlisted man, Master Chief Petty Officer of the Coast Guard Jason M. Vanderhaden, noted that civilian employees will miss another paycheck Friday and called it a 'sobering' situation.

Senior Coast Guard officials and the American public, he said, "stand in awe" of the affected service members' "continued dedication to duty and resilience" and that of their families.

The admiral, in keeping with the military's tradition of not commenting directly on politics, did not blame anyone specific for the shutdown. He and Homeland Security Secretary Kirstjen Nielsen are making their case for the service on Capitol Hill, Schultz said.

The Coast Guard has continued to carry out operations across the globe during the shutdown.

On Sunday, the Coast Guard Cutter Bertholf departed from Alameda, Calif., with about 170 people aboard for a deployment to the Pacific that will last up to six months. The Defense Department will reimburse the service for the deployment, but Coast Guard personnel still will not be paid until the shutdown is resolved.

"The crew, like all other [Coast Guard] members, are affected by the lapse of appropriations, and are not being paid," said Lt. Cmdr. Steve Brickey, a service spokesman. "It is always difficult to deploy for months and leave behind family and loved ones. That stress is of course magnified when you add on the uncertainty of the shutdown."

Mr. MCGOVERN. Admiral Schultz, the Coast Guard's commandant said: "Ultimately, I find it unacceptable that Coast Guard men and women have to rely on food pantries and donations to get through day-to-day life as servicemembers."

In total, 41,000 Active Duty service members and 2,100 civilians are essential personnel and working without pay and have been for 33 days now. An additional 6,000 are furloughed. As of this Friday, these brave men and women will have missed two paychecks. That is unacceptable.

Mr. Speaker, I include in the RECORD an article titled: "America's veterans said to be disproportionately affected by government shutdown."

[From ABC News, Jan. 9, 2019]

AMERICA'S VETERANS SAID TO BE DISPROPORTIONATELY AFFECTED BY GOVERNMENT SHUTDOWN

(By Elizabeth McLaughlin)

As the partial government shutdown continues for a third week, veterans groups are sounding the alarm because of what they say is the disproportionate impact on America's veterans and a growing fear that financial uncertainty could lead to self-harm.

An estimated one-third of the federal workforce is made up of veterans, according to the Office of Personnel Management, meaning that more than 250,000 veterans are not currently receiving paychecks.

"This shutdown has consequences that go beyond loss of pay," the Union Veterans Council said in a statement this week. "Financial instability is one of the main cause of suicides among the veterans' community. These hard-working men and women who sacrificed so much for their country should not have their families held hostage by lawmakers that cannot relate to living paycheck to paycheck."

Edward M. Canales is a local union president with the American Federation of Government Employees and a veteran liaison officer who serves as a resource to veterans working in the U.S. Bureau of Prisons west of the Mississippi River.

He told ABC News that he's received numerous calls from veterans who aren't able to support their families during the shutdown and express "no positive outlook on the future."

"If this shutdown does not stop, we are going to have fatalities. We're going to have suicides," he said.

Canales, a U.S. Army veteran himself who deployed to Iraq during Operation Desert Storm, said he is referring calls to the Department of Veterans Affairs hotline out of concern that a veteran will self-harm.

He called the shutdown "shameful," saying its "slapping every veteran in the face who has served their country."

As a special investigative service technician who worked in the federal prison system for 26 years, Canales is currently not receiving his retirement pay.

Toby Hauck, a six-year Air Force veteran, is an air traffic controller in Aurora, Illinois, who has gone without a paycheck since Dec. 31. He told ABC News that his father and grandfather served in the U.S. military and now his son and daughter-in-law are deploying overseas at the end of the month.

Hauck and his wife, a neonatal intensive care unit nurse, will be looking after their two-and-a-half-year-old granddaughter during the ten-month deployment, and the continued lack of pay causes added stress to their already hectic jobs, he said.

"We are hardworking, proud American employees doing a job for the American public that is essential as an air traffic controller," said Hauck, who is also a representative for the National Air Traffic Controllers Association. "It's not acceptable as a veteran, as a federal employee, as an air traffic controller to use my profession and my livelihood as a political football."

"[Veterans] are very proud of our heritage and what we've done for the country. And those of us who continue to serve the federal government as a federal employee continue that pride throughout their careers," he added.

Mr. MCGOVERN. The Union Veterans Council said in a statement this week, "Financial instability is one of the main causes of suicide among the veterans' community. These hardworking men and women who sacrificed so much for their country should not have their families held hostage by lawmakers that cannot relate to living paycheck to paycheck."

According to the Office of Personnel Management, one-third of the Federal workforce is made up of veterans. That means 250,000 veterans are not receiving paychecks right now during this Trump shutdown. That is an absolute disgrace.

Mr. Speaker, as the Trump shutdown continues, hundreds of Internal Revenue Service employees have received permission to skip work due to financial hardships, and absences are only expected to grow.

I would like to share a story about Marissa Scott, an IRS employee who is gravely affected by this Trump shutdown. Ms. Scott lives outside of Kansas City, Missouri. She drives 98 miles roundtrip to work each day. Right now, she cannot afford to fill her gas tank and has stopped going to work.

She shared that she typically helps 50 people a day with their tax returns and fears that this shutdown may cause delays in tax refunds for months as more employees like her are unable to continue working without a paycheck. These are tax refunds that Americans rely on and are eagerly waiting to be processed.

Mr. Speaker, I include in the RECORD an article from "The Washington Post" titled: "Hundreds of IRS employees are skipping work. That could delay tax refunds." It also details Ms. Scott's story.

[From the Washington Post, Jan. 22, 2019]

HUNDREDS OF IRS EMPLOYEES ARE SKIPPING WORK. THAT COULD DELAY TAX REFUNDS
(By Danielle Paquette, Lisa Rein, Jeff Stein and Kimberly Kindy)

Hundreds of Internal Revenue Service employees have received permission to skip work during the partial government shutdown due to financial hardship, and union leaders said Tuesday that they expected absences to surge as part of a coordinated protest that could hamper the government's ability to process taxpayer refunds on time.

The Trump administration last week ordered at least 30,000 IRS workers back to their offices, where they have been working to process refunds without pay. It was one of the biggest steps the government has taken to mitigate the shutdown's impact on Americans' lives.

But IRS employees across the country—some in coordinated protest, others out of financial necessity—won't be clocking in, according to Tony Reardon, president of the National Treasury Employees Union, and several local union officials. The work action is widespread and includes employees from a processing center in Ogden, Utah, to the Brookhaven campus on New York's Long Island.

The move is the leading edge of pushback from within the IRS, and it signals the potential for civil servants to take actions that could slow or cripple government functions as the shutdown's political stalemate continues in Washington. U.S. Department of Agriculture meat inspectors have begun to call in sick, Transportation Security Administration sickouts at airports have been rising, and federal law enforcement agencies say the shutdown is increasing stress among agents and affecting investigations.

"They are definitely angry that they're not getting paid, and maybe some of them are angry enough to express their anger this way," said Reardon, whose union represents 150,000 employees at 33 federal agencies and departments. "But these employees live paycheck to paycheck, and they can't scrape up the dollars to get to work or pay for child care."

Not receiving pay for more than a month has taken a toll on employees across the government, but especially on those who are not in high-salary jobs. The employees summoned back from furlough to process tax refunds are paid between $25,800 and $51,000 a year, depending on their seniority. IRS employees will miss a second paycheck Monday if the government does not reopen this week.

"I'm at the point where I cannot afford to go to work," said Marissa Scott, 31, an IRS customer service representative who is out on hardship leave. Scott lives outside Kansas City, Mo., and drives 98 miles round trip to work each day. "I cannot afford to fill my gas tank."

Scott, who has worked at the IRS for four years, says she typically helps as many as 50 people a day with their returns during tax season, including U.S. troops stationed overseas. She said the shutdown could delay refunds for months, and without employees like her on the job, "it's going to be a disaster all around."

Many of the IRS employees who are choosing not to come to work despite getting called back are taking advantage of a provision in the union contract that allows them to miss work if they suffer a "hardship" during a shutdown, according to the labor groups.

That could mean a blown car tire, an empty gas tank or a child-care bill.

"I have fielded no less than 30 to 40 calls, emails or text messages about hardship requests from employees daily since Thursday," said Shannon Ellis, president of the NTEU's Chapter 66 in Kansas City.

In Andover, Mass., more than 100 customer service representatives, electronic filing workers and other IRS employees plan to use the hardship exemption and won't report to work, said Gary Karibian, chapter president of a local union.

"I would say a majority of employees are calling out under hardship," Karibian said. "I'm getting reports whole teams are requesting out. One person told me, 'I'm the only one on my team here.'"

The union lacks an official head count of absent workers—the IRS declined to share data on hardship exemptions—but staffers in Fresno, Calif.; Austin; Andover; Kansas City and Atlanta, among other locations, say they won't be showing up for work, Reardon said.

Duncan Giles, who has worked for 24 years at an IRS call center in Indianapolis, said more workers are requesting hardship leave as they learn it exists.

"The more this goes on and the tougher it is to get to work—they simply cannot afford it," said Giles, president of NTEU Chapter 49, noting that about 30 of the 170 employees who have been called back to work in Indianapolis have requested the exemption. "Every single person wants to be at work. They want to help the American taxpayer. But we have to pay for gas and child care."

The hardship exemption allows IRS employees not to have to use sick days to be absent from work, and managers must approve the exemptions.

Lawmakers also have heard reports of IRS staffers intending to miss work and are planning to ask Treasury, Secretary Steven Mnuchin for details when he testifies on Capitol Hill this Thursday, a House aide said.

The IRS declined to say how many workers are on hardship leave, and spokesman Matt Leas said the IRS is continuing its work to prepare for the beginning of filing season next week.

"We are continuing our recall operations, and we continue to assess the situation at this time," Leas said.

The IRS employees' moves come amid broad uncertainty about the Trump administration's attempts to minimize the impact of the shutdown. On Sunday, the number of TSA agents who failed to show up for work hit a record 10 percent, resulting in long wait times. Guards at federal prisons also are calling out at high rates, with union officials at 10 prisons contacted by The Washington Post this month saying the number of employees skipping work has doubled.

As a result, officers who report for duty often are working 16-hour shifts, and prison secretaries and janitors are being forced to patrol the halls and yards.

"All I have is pepper spray and a radio to call for help," said 52-year-old Opal Brown, who works as a secretary at Hazelton Federal Correctional Institution in West Virginia.

The FBI Agents Association said in a report Tuesday that the shutdown is hampering the ability of agents to perform their "duties and fund necessary operations and investigations."

USDA meat inspectors also have begun calling in sick—in numbers large enough to trigger an agency crackdown. The inspectors were told Jan. 11 to bring in a doctor's note, even if they were ill for a single day, records show.

Six days later, after protests from union leaders, agency officials reverted to existing policy, which calls for a doctor's note after three days.

Some front-line managers at the IRS have threatened their employees and said they could lose their jobs if they put in for the exemption, but Reardon, the union leader, said most have been instructed by senior management to approve the requests.

IRS employees are some of the most impactful federal workers caught in the middle of the shutdown, as the tax filing season begins and millions of Americans are expected to seek tax refunds in February. Last year, more than $140 billion in tax refunds was paid out through early March, according to IRS data.

Trump has expressed an interest in making sure that tax refunds are paid out next month, believing that if they are delayed he could face major public backlash. His budget office took the unprecedented step this month of ordering thousands of unpaid IRS workers back to the office, saying that processing refunds was an "essential" government function even if the workers weren't paid.

As much as 75 percent of the roughly 4,000 furloughed IRS employees in Kansas City could qualify for hardship leave, said Christina Bennett, executive vice president of the local National Treasury Employees Union chapter. "Right now, they're being lenient," Bennett said.

Employees who process tax refunds, she said, are among the lowest-paid IRS workers. Some are worried about losing their cars.

Bennett, 63, who has worked nearly four decades at the IRS, most recently as an accountant, said she, too, can no longer afford her commute. She plans to request hardship leave if the government calls her back to work.

"I just don't have it," she said. "I'd have to walk a half-hour to get to a bus stop. And it's so cold. We've got rain, snow, rain, snow."

Takeya Cooks, 24, another IRS worker who guides taxpayers through the refund process, said she might never report back to work. She already has applied for a new job at a Kansas City bank.

"How am I supposed to live like this?" she said. "I'm worried about losing my apartment."

John Koskinen, a former IRS commissioner, said federal employees are dedicated to the agency's mission but might be reaching their breaking point.

"As you put more and more pressure on the system, you increase the risk of a significant glitch," Koskinen said. "If I were the administration, I'd be troubled. The pressure is going to mount."

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WOODALL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I wasn't kidding when I said I was looking for the olive branch in what my friend had to say. I genuinely believe, if you lock me and the gentleman from Massachusetts in a room together for 24, 48, maybe 72 or 96 hours, we could come to a solution and get us out of this box. But it does take sitting down with people that you trust to get a hard negotiation done.

I shared in the Rules Committee the other night, Mr. Speaker, and I will share with you today, the story of one of my constituents. His name is Doug Jenkins, and this is his story:

Jeanette Jenkins, age 76, of Lawrenceville, Georgia, passed away on Saturday, April 28, 2018. Jeanette was a member of Hebron Baptist Church for over 25 years and currently a member of First Baptist Church of Atlanta. Jeanette had a passion for serving in many capacities of the ministry, as a Sunday school teacher and volunteering in various activities. She was an avid reader and enjoyed sewing. She is survived by her loving husband of 57 years, Doug.

Jeanette didn't die of natural causes on April 28, Mr. Speaker. She was just running out to pick up some drugs at the drugstore. Her husband stayed at home. She was leaving the subdivision, waited for the light to turn green, and pulled out, when a van full of gentlemen who should not have been in this country, who were not in this country legally, ran that red light and killed her. She never recovered consciousness; died in the hospital later on that evening.

We can describe the President of the United States and his commitment to border security as a temper tantrum, but it is not true. We can describe the President of the United States and his commitment to border security as some sort of political fixation, but it is not true.

The stories that my friends tell about Federal employees missing paychecks, those are painful, those are hard, and we can do better. But the stories that each and every one of us have about members in our community who have lost loved ones, not for a week, not for 2 weeks, but forever, because we didn't do our job protecting American borders—I want to do better.

I was pleased to see the President talk about agricultural visas and how he wanted to expand those programs. It is important to us in Georgia. I am excited about EB visas, trying to get more investment in this country. We need more. I come from a community of immigrants. America's history is founded in immigration, and our future is founded there, too.

But nobody else could have protected Jeanette Jenkins. Nobody. My local law enforcement can't do it. My governor can't do it. That responsibility falls to the national government and the national government alone. The President campaigned on it; the President was elected on it; and we have an opportunity to come together and do it.

I don't want to kick the can down the road for another year. I don't want to kick the can down the road for another decade. I don't want to have another Jenkins family come into my office and say: Rob, where were you? What did you do when you had an opportunity to make a difference?

I regret that we are in the box that we are in. It is a box of our own making. But we can get out of it, and we can make America better as a result of it. It doesn't have to be a lose-lose. It can be a win-win.

Nobody is winning today. Nobody has benefited by the shutdown today. I cannot negotiate by myself. The President cannot negotiate by himself. We need folks to say "yes" to the invitation. Take the gentleman from Michigan's advice: Ask your leadership, as we have asked ours, to lock yourself in that room together and don't come out until you have an answer.

My friend from Massachusetts says he has no preexisting stipulations about what the package has to look like. I hope that is true. It has not been my experience—stripping out all the pro-life provisions, for example. That was something that your conference wanted. Not working on the CFPB provisions that the Financial Services Committee had done, not including those 20 bipartisan bills, there are conditions that folks have, as they should, because they were elected to this House, and they are obligated to serve their constituents.

We can get this done, Mr. Speaker, but I commit to you, we are not going to get it done by pointing the finger of blame at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. We are going to get it done by coming together right here and doing our job, the task the Constitution assigns to us, and, that is, agreeing on a provision amongst ourselves and sending it to the President for him to accept or to reject.

I believe in what we can do together, Mr. Speaker, and I hope my colleagues will again take "yes" to an invitation to the negotiating table as an answer.

Mr. Speaker, with that, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Let me just say, at the outset here, that if we all agree that the government should be reopened, then what is there to negotiate about? We should just open up the government.

We have no preconditions about opening up the government. We have none. The gentleman from Georgia apparently has a precondition: whatever the President's whim is on a particular day. Yeah, the President did campaign on building a wall, but he didn't get up there and say: We want to build a wall and you pay for it, American taxpayers. What he campaigned on was saying: I want to build a wall, and Mexico is going to pay for it.

Well, he has had 2 years, and, obviously, he can't get Mexico to pay for it, so he wants to saddle the American taxpayers with that bill.

So, look, the bottom line is, we believe that border security is an important issue, and we, on this side, have been more than willing to invest in border security, and we are going to continue to do that.

As I mentioned before to the gentleman, President Trump's shutdown has put a strain on local and Federal law enforcement, undermining cooperation between them that helps keep our communities safe. While he is having his temper tantrum, you know, our local law enforcement officials are feeling the strain. That is why local law enforcement leaders across the country, including those serving in border States, are calling for an end to the shutdown.

Mr. Speaker, I include in the RECORD a letter to President Trump and Members of Congress.

[From the Law Enforcement Immigration Task Force, Jan. 22, 2019]

LAW ENFORCEMENT LEADERS CALL FOR AN END TO SHUTDOWN

DEAR PRESIDENT TRUMP AND MEMBERS OF CONGRESS: As law enforcement leaders who support commonsense immigration reforms consistent with public safety, we write to express our deep concern with the partial shutdown of the federal government.

State and local law enforcement work constructively with federal law enforcement to combat drug trafficking, gangs, organized crime, and other threats. In addition, the federal government provides needed training, equipment, and funding to state and local law enforcement agencies—support that is now threatened by the ongoing shutdown. A prolonged shutdown threatens this cooperation and strains local resources. It also negatively impacts our colleagues in federal law enforcement, forcing essential law enforcement personnel to work without pay. These circumstances threaten public safety and cannot continue.

Instead, we call on Congress and the Trump administration to reopen the federal government without delay and work together on bipartisan solutions to improve our immigration system. We believe there is room for compromise.

While there are partisan disagreements over the need for a border wall across our entire southern border, there is widespread agreement over commonsense steps that can improve border security. A bipartisan deal can build on these areas of agreement, improving border security by focusing on ports of entry, strategically deploying and using technology and ensuring that CBP has clear sight lines all along the Rio Grande. With nearly 700 miles of physical barriers already in place along the southern border, these targeted investments in border security can contribute to improving public safety and reassuring the American people that the border is a priority.

Similarly, bipartisan immigration reform will benefit the United States as a whole. We believe that immigrants should feel safe in their communities and comfortable calling upon law enforcement to report crimes, serving as witnesses, and calling for help in emergencies. By reforming our immigration system to bring undocumented immigrants into the legal immigration system, immigrants are incentivized to become constructive partners with local police in public safety initiatives. Bipartisan immigration reform can provide undocumented immigrants with an opportunity to earn citizenship, requiring them to pay a fine and back taxes and pass a background check, encouraging further civic responsibility. This would improve community policing and safety for everyone.

The current impasse is an opportunity for Congress and the Trump administration to strike a bipartisan agreement to end the shutdown and fix our immigration system. The shutdown prevents state and local law enforcement agencies from having access to needed federal resources, strains federal law enforcement personnel, and undermines cooperation between state, federal, and local law enforcement.

We urge Congress and the Trump administration to break this deadlock and improve public safety by reopening the government without delay and working to reach a bipartisan compromise that includes common-sense border security as part of a comprehensive reform of the immigration system.

Thank you.

Mr. MCGOVERN. "The New York Times" reported yesterday that the Trump shutdown has also impacted the FBI's efforts to crack down on child trafficking, violent crime, and terrorism, needlessly putting our communities and constituents at risk. I say to my friends: Look at what you are doing here. Look what is happening. This has to end.

For example, a long-term MS-13 investigation that has resulted in 23 gang indictments has been constrained because of the inability—get this—the inability to pay for interpreters needed to communicate with informants. That is insane, Mr. Speaker.

REPORT SAYS SHUTDOWN IS IMPEDING F.B.I.'S LAW ENFORCEMENT EFFORTS

(By Katie Benner)

WASHINGTON.—As the partial government shutdown enters its fifth week, the funding freeze has impeded F.B.I. efforts to crack down on child trafficking, violent crime and terrorism, according to a report issued Tuesday by the group that represents the bureau's 13,000 special agents.

"The resources available to support the work of F.B.I. agents are currently stretched to the breaking point and are dwindling day by day," said Thomas O'Connor, the president of the group, the F.B.I. Agents Association.

The report reflected the scope and seriousness of the shutdown's effects, and came as President Trump and the leaders of the two parties on Capitol Hill maneuvered to find a path out of the impasse. The Senate scheduled procedural votes for Thursday on competing Republican and Democratic proposals, although neither appears likely to win sufficient support to pass.

The Justice Department, which oversees the F.B.I., is one of the government agencies affected by the partial shutdown, along with the State Department, Transportation Department, Agriculture Department, Interior Department and others.

Mr. O'Connor said that national security was directly related to the bureau's financial security. "It is critical to fund the F.B.I. immediately," he said.

Because of the shutdown, the F.B.I. has been unable to issue grand jury subpoenas and indictments in several cases cited in the report.

An agent working on an MS-13 investigation that has gone on for more than three years and resulted in 23 gang indictments for racketeering, murder and money laundering has been hamstrung by his inability to pay for an interpreter who can communicate with his Spanish-speaking informants, the report said.

The bureau has also not been able to pay its informants, an important source of intelligence in terrorism, narcotics, gang, illegal firearm and other national security cases. The F.B.I. could lose those informants.

"It is not a switch that we can turn on and off," the report said.

The 72-page report described how field offices in some cases have run out of basic supplies like tires for vehicles, copy paper and forensic supplies like DNA swab kits, and do not have the funds to buy replacements.

The F.B.I. is not the only part of the Justice Department struggling during the funding lapse. The department has had to ask the federal courts to postpone some major civil litigation, including a lawsuit over the lawfulness of the Affordable Care Act, which the department no longer defends in court.

The federal courts that hear Justice Department cases are also running out of money. The nation's legal system could soon be hobbled if Congress and the Trump administration cannot come to an agreement to reopen the portions of government that have been closed since last month. The federal courts will run out of money by around Feb. 1, requiring them to cut back to essential services at that point and furlough some workers.

The F.B.I. Agents Association has been warning of the negative effects of the shutdown for nearly two weeks.

On Jan. 10, the association and representatives from all of the F.B.I. field offices signed a petition that said the shutdown could create financial issues for agents that would make it hard for them to pass the routine financial background checks necessary for them to obtain certain security clearances. They also said the pay freeze would make it hard to retain and attract agents.

The latest report from the association, which is based on the accounts of scores of agents, outlines more dire consequences. The group allowed the agents to speak anonymously to protect them from retaliation and other negative repercussions.

Correction: Jan. 22, 2019—An earlier version of this article incorrectly described the F.B.I. Agents Association. It is a professional association, not a union.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, 40 million Americans struggle with hunger and food insecurity, and the Trump shutdown has needlessly made this terrible problem worse. Without funding for USDA in place, access to SNAP benefits for hungry families is threatened. Millions and millions of people will be affected.

Mr. Speaker, I include in the RECORD a report from the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities titled "Many SNAP Households Will Experience Long Gap Between Monthly Benefits Even If Shutdown Ends."

[From the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, Jan. 22, 2019]

MANY SNAP HOUSEHOLDS WILL EXPERIENCE LONG GAP BETWEEN MONTHLY BENEFITS EVEN IF SHUTDOWN ENDS

(By Dorothy Rosenbaum)

The Administration and states' efforts to issue February Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP, or food stamp) benefits early to avoid deep benefit cuts in that month that might otherwise have occurred as a result of the partial government shutdown have created a new problem: a lengthy delay between February benefits (which most beneficiaries received by January 20) and March benefits.

In turn, this will place additional strain on the emergency food network and other community resources, which already are stretched.

MOST HOUSEHOLDS RECEIVING FEBRUARY SNAP BENEFITS IN JANUARY; MARCH SNAP BENEFITS REMAIN UNCERTAIN AND AT RISK

The Department of Agriculture (USDA) announced on January 8 that it would work with states to pay the vast majority of February SNAP benefits early, by January 20, to ensure that SNAP has the funding to stay open through February 2019. Despite the operational challenges of this approach, it appears that every state was able to issue benefits early, and in combination with SNAP's contingency reserve, there will be sufficient federal funding to cover all February SNAP benefits as a result.

These recent actions that USDA and states have taken protect millions of low-income households—including millions of poor children, parents, elderly people, and people with disabilities—from having their basic food assistance cut back substantially in February. With a continuing shutdown, USDA would have to issue additional guidance to states explaining whether it has other options available to cover all of March benefits, or if not, how deep a benefit cut will be required in March and how states should implement it.

Ending the shutdown, and funding and reopening the Agriculture Department and other parts of the government that now are shuttered, would be the best way to avoid cutting millions of households' SNAP food assistance. For the remainder of this paper, we assume that SNAP will receive funding so that full SNAP benefits can continue in March and subsequent months—an assumption that is far from assured.

MANY HOUSEHOLDS WILL HAVE A LONG SNAP BENEFIT GAP EVEN IF THE SHUTDOWN ENDS

Some states may be able to adjust their March issuance schedules to partly address this issue, but if all states paid February SNAP benefits on January 20 and don't make changes to their March issuance schedules, we estimate that about 90 percent of SNAP households that receive ongoing SNAP benefits—about 15 million low-income households—will experience a more than 40-day gap between issuances. Almost 60 percent will experience a gap of more than 45 days, and 25 percent will experience more than a 50-day gap.

States have long had the option to pay SNAP benefits to different SNAP households on different days of the month. Spreading payments across multiple days eases state workloads across the month and helps to ensure that retailers that participate in SNAP do not face a severe increase in demand for food and staffing on the day that SNAP benefits become available. Any given household, however, must receive its SNAP benefits on or about the same day of the month, usually resulting in only 28 to 31 days between SNAP issuance dates. Only seven states issue SNAP to all households in the state on the first day of the month. Most others spread issuance out, often over ten or 20 days, and usually based on households' Social Security or case numbers or the first letter of the head of household's last name.

In fact, SNAP law requires that “no household experience an interval between issuances of more than 40 days. It is not clear whether USDA will waive this requirement in response to the unusual circumstances resulting from the shutdown—as seems likely—or whether the agency will require states to develop an alternative issuance schedule to avoid gaps of longer than 40 days. One possibility would be for states to change March issuance to occur on March 1, and to stagger the adjustment back to households' normal issuance cycle over several months, as needed to stay within the 40-day maximum interval between issuances.

HOUSEHOLDS IN ALMOST ALL STATES WILL SEE GAPS LONGER THAN 40 DAYS

The length of the gaps between February and March issuances will vary by state, but the vast majority will be longer than 40 days.

States where all households will have 40 days between SNAP issuances: Seven states, accounting for about 2 percent of SNAP issuances nationally, issue SNAP benefits to all households on the first day of the month. In these states, the gap for ongoing SNAP households that received the early February issuance on January 20 would be exactly 40 days, as households would receive their March benefits on March 1. Those states are: Alaska, Guam, Nevada, North Dakota, Rhode Island, Vermont, and Virgin Islands.

States where households will have 40–49 days between SNAP issuances: Another 21 states issue all (or almost all) of their ongoing SNAP benefits within the first ten days of the month. In these states, SNAP households will experience a 40- to 49-day gap in benefits. Those states are: California, Colorado, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, and Wyoming.

States where some households will have 50 days or more between SNAP issuances: About half the states have some households that will have more than 50 days between SNAP issuances if the states do not change their issuance schedules. In states that issue some SNAP benefits for ongoing SNAP households after the 10th day of the month, those households will have at least a 50-day gap; households that typically receive their benefits after the 15th day of the month will have a gap of 55 days or more. These households account for much of these states' ongoing SNAP benefits: in 17 states, 50 percent or more of benefits will be issued with at least a 50-day gap.

LONG PERIOD BETWEEN SNAP ISSUANCES WILL CAUSE HARDSHIP FOR SOME SNAP HOUSEHOLDS

Assuming SNAP has full funding to continue in March, SNAP households should have available the same total amount of SNAP benefits over the three-month period (January through March) that they otherwise would have. However, the change in the timing of February's issuance and the long interval between January 20 and a March SNAP issuance is likely to cause hardship for some households and, as a result, increase the demands for emergency food assistance and other community services.

It's well documented that SNAP benefits normally run out for most households before the end of the month. Within a week of receiving SNAP, households redeem over half of their SNAP allotments. By the end of the second week, SNAP households have redeemed over three-quarters of their benefits, and by the end of the third week they have redeemed 90 percent.

SNAP benefits are not intended to cover the entire month for most households. The SNAP benefit formula assumes that families will spend 30 percent of their available cash income for food. Many households spend their SNAP benefits quickly because they can only be spent on food. Cash income from other sources is needed to pay for other expenses, such as rent or mortgage, utilities, essential non-food items, clothing, gasoline, and car repairs. As a result, families use their SNAP benefits first to make food purchases, saving cash for other needed expenses.

Moreover, SNAP benefits are low. SNAP is intended to provide additional benefits to meet the cost of the Thrifty Food Plan (TFP), the Agriculture Department's estimate of a bare-bones, nutritionally adequate diet. But substantial research has found that the TFP, which currently provides at most $1.85 per person per meal for a family of three (the average benefit is about $1.40 per person per meal), is not sufficient to meet the needs of most low-income households.

Because SNAP benefits often fall short of meeting basic monthly food needs, and because struggling households have to use available cash to meet non-food expenses, families can find themselves at the end of their 30-day SNAP benefit payment cycle without enough food or the resources available to buy more food. Research has found that food spending, food consumption, and diet quality fall and that food insecurity, hospital admissions, and school disciplinary problems rise after households have exhausted their monthly SNAP benefits. SNAP families often have to turn to social networks, food pantries, and others to get through the month.

Given the experience of the strain on low-income households' budgets and community resources under normal SNAP issuance patterns—when the gap between SNAP issuances is no more than 31 days—stretching that gap to 40 to 50 days or longer could create substantial hardship and hunger and sharply increase demand for local emergency food providers and other community social services providers.

Many SNAP households may find ways to weather this disruption. In general, households that participate in SNAP demonstrate a capacity to manage limited budgets. But extending the time between monthly benefit payments for the vast majority of SNAP households will certainly cause difficulty for some substantial number of poor families. Many families may not be able to budget the advance food-assistance benefit over an extended period of time for several reasons, including:

Lack of information. USDA, state officials, retailers, and state and local nonprofit groups and charities are working to educate SNAP households about the early issuance of February benefits and the fact that those households will not receive another issuance in February. States are urging households to factor the early payment and the delay until a March payment into their February food budget. But USDA did not require states to send SNAP households individual notices about the change in February benefits. Instead, states are trying to use newspaper stories, posts on their websites, fliers in local welfare offices, and their partners' networks to spread the news about the changes in the timing of SNAP benefit delivery. Many households likely won't understand that the benefits they received around January 20 are an early issuance of their February benefit and that a lengthy gap will ensue before they receive their next benefit issuance.

Confusion and misinformation. Reports are emerging that there is considerable confusion about why households are receiving early SNAP benefits for February and what to expect in the future, especially given the uncertainty resulting from the government shutdown. The confusion may result in some SNAP households spending their SNAP benefits relatively quickly, exacerbating their food shortages in the latter part of February and the first part of March.

Household income fluctuations or unexpected expenses. Households living with very low incomes experience shocks to their monthly income on a routine basis. Workers can see their hours and pay reduced with little warning. Individuals with monthly income below the poverty line rarely have savings to manage unexpected expenses. If their income drops or expenses spike unexpectedly during this timeframe, perhaps because of a high winter heating bill, households generally will use available cash to manage their non-food needs, leaving less money to buy food at the end of the SNAP payment cycle.

Differing abilities among SNAP participants. Even with advance warning and robust information, some SNAP households can struggle to manage a significant shift in their budget, particularly those with cognitive limitations. Managing a major monthly budget shift like this could be difficult for some individuals with mental impairments who do not receive assistance to manage their benefits.

CONCLUSION

Even if the government shutdown is resolved quickly, the disruption in the timing of February SNAP benefits is likely to make it hard for many SNAP households to meet their basic food needs as they wait for their March SNAP benefit payment. Some 30 million people in about 15 million households—the vast majority of SNAP households—will not get their March benefit until at least 40 days after they received their February payment. Of these, 8 million people in more than 4 million households will need to wait more than 50 days. This benefit disruption will likely cause hardship for a substantial number of these households. We expect more households to try to turn to emergency food networks and other social services for help as they seek to stretch their benefits across more days.

Mr. MCGOVERN. The crisis already has started. Access to food for SNAP beneficiaries also is being threatened by the shutdown, as reports indicate that 2,500 retailers around the country are unable to take any form of SNAP EBT payments.

As PBS reported over the weekend, the licenses for these retailers are on hold due to the shutdown.

Mr. Speaker, I include in the RECORD the transcript of the PBS story.

PBS NEWS HOUR: WHY MANY STORES CAN'T ACCEPT FOOD STAMPS DURING THE SHUTDOWN
(Jan 17, 2019)

While so far there have been no major lapses in benefits for the nearly 39 million people who depend on food stamps amid the partial government shutdown, 2,500 retailers around the country are unable to take any form of SNAP EBT payments.

Judy Woodruff:

With the government shutdown now in its 27th day, many federal programs have been affected, including food stamps.

So far, there is no major lapse in benefits used by nearly 39 million people each month. That's because of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It found a way to pay SNAP benefits, as they are called, earlier than normal.

February benefits, awarded through a debit-style card used at stores, are being paid out this week. Several states, including California and Florida, are warning users to be careful and make sure they manage to make the money last longer.

For 2,500 retailers, the problem is already here. That's because those stores needed to renew a license for the Electronic Benefit Transfer, or EBT debit card program, and they failed to meet a deadline before the shutdown. Those renewals, required every five years, are on hold.

Sarah Jackson is an employee at one store in Northern Arkansas.

Sarah Jackson:

We have been completely unable to take any form of SNAP EBT payments. Grocery stores need a license to process EBT payments, and ours expired and was unable to be renewed on schedule because of the government shutdown.

Because of an argument about a wall, I have to look people in the eyes every day and tell them they can't pay for their food, for their children's food.

Judy Woodruff:

Sarah Jackson in Arkansas.

We reached out to the U.S. Department of Agriculture for a response. A spokesperson wrote back—quote—"Over 99 percent of SNAP retailers are able to accept benefits as usual. There is a small percentage of stores that failed to complete a required reauthorization process that was due on December 21. These stores can take steps to update their status once funding is restored"—end quote.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I could go on and on and on about the impacts here. If we all agree we should end the shutdown, let's just end the shutdown.

Maybe my Republican friends should be calling Senate Majority Leader MITCH MCCONNELL to say, you know, let's come together and pass a bill to reopen the government without any conditions. That is what the American people overwhelmingly want.

Mr. Speaker, I have heard my friends on the other side of the aisle rushing to congratulate the President for his so-called compromise plan over the weekend. Let me repeat: This is no compromise at all. Just read the fine print.

The Washington Post said simply: "The proposal on the Dreamers was whittled down to the point where it only undoes the disaster Trump himself is orchestrating."

That would be like an arsonist offering you a fire extinguisher to put out the wildfire that they created. That is a compromise? Are you kidding me?

I have an idea. Mr. President, stop causing disasters. Congress should be more than a cleanup crew for your messes and failed policies.

Let me close with this, Mr. Speaker. When I think of the best of the United States, I think of the Statue of Liberty. It wasn't built from within our borders. It was gifted to us by friends from abroad, the French, to represent the freedom that we stand for, to welcome all those immigrants who come to this country, not to transport drugs or crime, as the President portrays, but to live a better life that they can find only here in the United States.

When President Trump thinks of the best of America, he dreams about a concrete wall, something to prevent immigrants from coming here, something that offends our allies, that would make our country, a global leader, turn away from the rest of the world at a time when American leadership is badly needed.

On top of all of that, a wall will not work. It would be ineffective. If we built a 50-foot wall, someone would build a 51-foot ladder.

As I said, it is a medieval idea when we have better solutions here in the 21st century: cameras, sensors, radar, and drones. If anyone doubts that they work, go visit the border, as I have.

Democrats are for border security. The minibus includes $328 million in new funding to help secure the border. This is what professionals are asking us for. A concrete wall is being discussed as a viable option only at the President's rallies and in the right-wing media.

Here in the real world, hundreds of thousands of people are struggling. They need us to reopen the government today, right now, not years from now, as the President has suggested.

These bipartisan, bicameral bills will get us there. This continuing resolution to fund the Department of Homeland Security will get us there. Let's end this shutdown and reopen this government.

Mr. Speaker, I urge a "yes" vote on this rule and the underlying bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on ordering the previous question.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Proceedings will resume on questions previously postponed.

Votes will be taken in the following order:

Passage of H.J. Res. 28;

Adoption of House Resolution 61; and Agreeing to the Speaker's approval of the Journal, if ordered.

The first electronic vote will be conducted as a 15-minute vote. Pursuant to clause 9 of rule XX, remaining electronic votes will be conducted as 5-minute votes.

FURTHER ADDITIONAL CONTINUING APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2019

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the order of the House of January 17, 2019, the unfinished business is the vote on passage of the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 28) making further continuing appropriations for fiscal year 2019, and for other purposes, on which the yeas and nays were ordered.

The Clerk read the title of the joint resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the joint resolution.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 229, nays 184, not voting 19, as follows:

The air carrier shall have approved procedures for dispatch and en route weather evaluation and shall operate under instrument flight rules en route to the destination.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The bill shall be debatable for 1 hour, equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations or their respective designees.

The gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. LOWEY) and the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. GRANGER) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from New York.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and insert extraneous material on H.R. 648, currently under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the Trump shutdown, now in its 33rd day, must end. It must end without delay so the Federal Government can get back to fully working on behalf of the American people.

Just this morning, President Trump’s chief economic adviser warned that the shutdown could lead to zero economic growth this quarter. Let me repeat: zero economic growth.

The solution is simple. Reopen the government, pay our Federal employees, and then negotiate border security and immigration policy proposals that can command bipartisan support.

It is simple. The bill before us is yet another step in that direction. Today, Democrats put forward six conference reports negotiated last December when Republicans controlled the House, the Senate, and the White House. In fact,

Republicans have even urged us to bring them to the floor.

If Republicans are serious about governing with us for the betterment of all Americans, then they should vote for these six conference reports and reopen the agencies covered by those bills.

In addition, Chairwoman ROYBAL-ALLARD is bringing forward a continuing resolution for the Department of Homeland Security through February 28. This legislation will open the Department of Homeland Security and pay its employees while President Trump and Congress negotiate border and immigration policy beyond the $1.6 billion in border security-related measures in the bill we consider today.

This bill provides $563.4 million for immigration judges to reduce the backlog of immigration cases and $524.2 million for construction at ports of entry to facilitate lawful entries and trade.

There is $527 million to assist Central American countries as they work to improve security and economic stability in the State and Foreign Operations portion of the bill, which Ranking Member and former full committee Chairman ROGERS negotiated with me and Senators GRAHAM and LEAHY.

The State and Foreign Operations division also no longer includes poison pills, such as the expansion of the global gag rule, which would have tied up $8.8 billion in funding for lifesaving nutrition programs and efforts to prevent malaria, TB, and HIV.

It no longer bans funding for the United Nations Population Fund, protecting maternal and child health and access to family planning services.

A strong international affairs budget of $54.2 billion will help stabilize the world’s economy, meet unprecedented humanitarian needs, and continue our fight against radical extremism and terrorism.

These bills were written by the Republican-led House and Senate, together with Democrats. I will repeat that. These bills were written by the Republican-led House and Senate, together with Democrats. Neither Democrats nor Republicans got everything they wanted, but we compromised for the betterment of the United States.

These bills should be enacted to end the Trump shutdown for all Americans, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. GRANGER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 648. The bill before us today represents some of the hard work done in conference between the House and the Senate. House Democrats closed the bills without Republican signoff. Therefore, this bill leaves many items yet to be negotiated.

It has no chance of becoming law in its current form because it does not include funding for border security. The Senate will not take it up, and the President will not sign it.

Today marks day 33 of an unnecessary government shutdown. Democrats have failed to come to the table to offer a serious compromise solution to reopen the government, pay our Federal employees, and fund border security.

In contrast, over the last 33 days, Republicans have offered multiple plans to do just that. Last week, I put forward a plan that would allow Federal employees to immediately receive pay while Members of Congress and the White House continue working toward a permanent solution to end the shutdown. Sadly, Democrats in this Chamber voted against this commonsense measure.

Over the weekend, President Trump put forward a reasonable compromise proposal that provides something for both sides: funding for border security and protections for Dreamers. Once again, Democrats rejected this plan before they even heard the details.

Mr. Speaker, we face a true humanitarian and security crisis at our border. More than 30 percent of women who come to the border are sexually assaulted on their trip, according to Doctors Without Borders. The number of families and unaccompanied children crossing the border illegally has increased dramatically, up nearly 150 percent in December.

My friends on the other side of the aisle talk often about the need to help these women and children, and I agree with them. So why are they refusing to accept this compromise proposal put forward by the administration that would provide relief for 700,000 child immigrants brought here by their parents and another 30,000 immigrants whose protected status is in jeopardy?

This shutdown has caused real-world consequences for Federal employees who have bills to pay and families to support. The hardworking men and women of the TSA, Border Patrol, Coast Guard, air traffic control, and others are suffering. The continuing refusal of Democrats to come to the negotiating table only further harms these employees.

The shameful gamesmanship must stop. I call on my friends on the other side of the aisle to get serious about working with us to secure our border, end this shutdown, and pay our Federal employees.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Before I yield to my next speaker, I just want to make our position very clear. The solution to the Trump shutdown is simple: Reopen the government; pay our Federal employees; and then we can negotiate, Democrats and Republicans. Our proposal will form the basis for these eventual negotiations. Let's open the government and then get to work.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. SERRANO), my good friend and the chair of the Commerce, Justice, Science, and Related Agencies Subcommittee.

Mr. SERRANO. Mr. Speaker, I thank Chairwoman LOWEY for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, as incoming chairman of the Commerce, Justice, Science, and Related Agencies Subcommittee, I would like to take a couple of minutes to discuss that section of this bill and the agencies it funds.

We are currently on day 33 of the Trump shutdown. The impact is growing as employees miss paychecks, individuals and groups dependent upon Federal assistance go without, and our public safety and scientific innovation is undermined. This is particularly true for the agencies under the jurisdiction of the Commerce, Justice, Science, and Related Agencies Subcommittee.

Just last week, the Department of Justice had to scramble to find cash to allow recipients of grant programs under the Violence Against Women Act to be funded for 1 additional month.

The New York City field office of the FBI had to set up a food bank for employees who are currently working without pay. We have heard reports that individual FBI agents are asking not to be called back to work so they can find paying jobs and that agents in training are quitting the process, with no paycheck in sight.

The shutdown is also undermining scientific research and our next generation of scientists. The National Science Foundation, NOAA, and NASA are currently unable to award grants for ongoing research or scholarships to ensure that our future scientists have the ability to continue their studies.

At the Department of Commerce, key economic statistics are being delayed. The International Trade Administration cannot investigate unfair trade practices. In total, more than 90,000 employees at the Department of Justice, which includes the FBI, DEA, ATF, U.S. Marshals Service, and the Federal Bureau of Prisons, are working without pay.

More than 90 percent of employees at NASA are currently furloughed without pay, and more than 86 percent of employees at Department of Commerce find themselves in the same situation—without pay.

The question I have for our colleagues on the other side of the aisle is simply this: Is this worth the cost? Should we imperil our economy, our scientific leadership, and our public safety because the President wants to waste money on an ineffective and unnecessary wall?

We all know the answer to that question, although some are too afraid, unfortunately, to say it.

This bill offers us a bipartisan way out of this crisis. It is the compromise that the House and Senate negotiators worked out last fall. I think that bears repeating. This bill is the bipartisan compromise that House and Senate negotiators worked out last fall. While the CJS section does not contain everything that our side may want, it does contain important investments in science, innovation, justice, and economic development. In fact, with very few changes, this portion of H.R. 648 very closely mirrors what the Senate introduced just 2 days ago.

The CJS division of this bill includes significant increases for the Census Bureau, NASA, the National Science Foundation, and the FBI. It rejects the administration's proposed cuts to the Economic Development Administration, the Minority Business Development Agency, and the Manufacturing Extension Partnership program and more. It is a commonsense solution to the shutdown, and it lets our Federal employees get back to the business of helping our Nation.

I urge Members on both sides to vote for this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I would just like to close by saying what I said before: we continue to push and push for this wall to be built. I don't spend time on whether the wall will be big or small, cement or wood or metal. For me it is simply this: this country, of all countries in the world, should never build a wall. This country is not the country that builds a wall. So in New York we have the Statue of Liberty, and in the south a wall.

Ms. GRANGER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. ROGERS).

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I thank my esteemed colleagues, full committee Chairwoman LOWEY, and Ranking Member GRANGER.

This six-bill appropriations package represents a lot of hard work for many of us on the Appropriations Committee. Broadly speaking, this package is a fine example of compromise—Members working across the aisle to do the important work of funding our government in an efficient and thoughtful manner. Our Appropriations Committee delivered.

Nevertheless, while this legislation addresses many bipartisan concerns, I fear that it has no chance of becoming law in its current form without a compromise on border security. That is truly unfortunate. We are holding up the government, we are causing a lot of people a lot of unnecessary pain and suffering, and we need to get this done.

Regarding funding for the Department of State, Foreign Operations, and other related programs; this portion of the bill provides important resources for our national security. It supports our allies and partners, including $3.3 billion in foreign military financing for Israel—a $200 million increase from last year, by the way. It also maintains funding at or above last year for Egypt, Jordan, and Tunisia, as well as countries facing Russian aggression, such as Ukraine and Georgia. In our own hemisphere, the bill supports programs to counter transnational criminal organizations and the flow of illegal drugs.

I am pleased to say that in collaboration with Chairwoman LOWEY, this bill also reflects a number of bipartisan priorities, including $800 million for basic education and important increases in global health, such as additional funds to combat tuberculosis. It also maintains current levels for embassy security during these dangerous times.

Despite the strength of this division of the bill, Mr. Speaker, the larger package is regrettably incomplete. It is as if we worked together to carefully piece together a complex puzzle, and there, right in the middle, is a glaring missing piece. These six bills that we have worked through together are good bills, but we need to find that missing piece and reach a compromise that will fund border security, reopen the government, pay our faithful employees who are now struggling to make ends meet, and get back to the business of serving the American people.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, before I introduce our next speaker, I want to thank the distinguished gentleman, Mr. ROGERS, for alluding to the good bipartisan work we did, the $800 million for education and healthcare. It was a good bill. Frankly, that is why we need to pass these bills and, I agree with the gentleman, take the time to negotiate border security where there may be some differences. So let's open the government, pass those good bills that we worked on together, and then take some time to talk about border security.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. PRICE), who is the chair of the Transportation, Housing and Urban Development, and Related Agencies Subcommittee and is my good friend.

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I rise to support H.R. 648, legislation to reopen and responsibly fund the government, including the Departments of Transportation and of Housing and Urban Development.

This bill reflects the various conference agreements that were reached on a bipartisan, bicameral basis late last year. The chairman at the time of our Transportation, Housing and Urban Development, and Related Agencies Subcommittee, my friend, Mr. DIAZ-BALART, was an excellent partner through this process. We worked together with our Senate counterparts to secure numerous priorities in the final package that spoke to the good work done in both the House and Senate.

Unfortunately, the House and Senate leadership failed to bring this legislation to the floor before the end of the 115th Congress, despite unified Republican control of the branches of government. They failed in September, and they failed again in December in the lame-duck session. But, now, we do have a chance to rectify that mistake.

Division F of H.R. 648 funds DOT, HUD, and related agencies. It includes $71.1 billion in discretionary funding, which is $23.1 billion above the President's budget request and $1 billion above the fiscal year 2018 enacted level.

This total includes more than $17 billion for new housing and transportation infrastructure.

It includes billions of dollars of funding above the authorized level to accelerate improvements in our aviation system, expand transit and rail networks, replace aging highways and bridge infrastructure, and make improvements at our Nation's ports.

The measure also includes robust funding to preserve and expand our affordable housing stock, particularly for vulnerable populations like veterans, seniors, and the disabled.

It locks in increases to flexible grant programs like Community Development Block Grants and HOME that are vital for local governments as they address housing and community development needs.

Just as important, this legislation would finally re-open DOT and HUD and allow more than 20,000 furloughed employees of these departments to receive backpay and to return to their mission serving the American people.

In the last 3 weeks, the House has passed short-term continuing resolutions to keep government open and allow more time to negotiate, but that wasn't good enough for the President.

We have taken up funding legislation passed by the Senate almost unanimously, and that wasn't good enough for MITCH MCCONNELL to get to yes.

Today we have the opportunity to fully fund the government with a package that reflects bicameral and bipartisan priorities. It is time for Republicans and President Trump to finally take yes for an answer.

The Trump shutdown has dragged on for more than a month, shuttering vital government services and creating chaos and uncertainty for families, businesses, and communities.

The President has taken DOT hostage, and the strain on our aviation system is growing worse each day. The President has taken HUD hostage, and housing contracts have lapsed putting tenants in jeopardy.

H.R. 648 would finally end the hostage-taking. It would ensure that vital transportation and housing programs are funded for the rest of this year. Meanwhile, a separate bill would temporarily fund the Department of Homeland Security so that negotiations on border security could continue.

H.R. 648 is the result of months of bipartisan collaboration. It excludes problematic policy riders from both sides of the aisle. We should pass this bill and re-open our government.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this commonsense approach and re-open the government without further delay.

Ms. GRANGER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. ADERHOLT).

Mr. ADERHOLT. Mr. Speaker, I thank Ranking Member GRANGER for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, the Subcommittee on Commerce, Justice, Science, and Related Agencies—the subcommittee of which I am privileged to be the ranking member in the 116th Congress—oversees a diverse range of important priorities. It ranges from deep space exploration to Federal law enforcement to supporting economic growth to international trade, and much more.

My friend, the gentleman from New York (Mr. SERRANO), has an abiding commitment to these priorities as well, not to mention a well-established record of bipartisan work on this subcommittee. I look forward to continuing this collaborative and collegial spirit for the good of the Nation with Chairman SERRANO in the 116th Congress.

In light of that, I appreciate that the bill that is before us this afternoon includes many of the Commerce, Justice, Science agreements that Chairman SERRANO made last year with then-Chairman CULBERSON, and I am pleased that many of the funding levels included for Federal law enforcement, assistance to our State and local law enforcement partners, and many NASA programs were included.

However, as it has already been said here this afternoon—and I am sure it will be said again—the President has made it clear that he will not support spending bills that do not address the Nation's urgent border security needs.

While the package that is before us this afternoon has a lot of very good features—that is not disputed—the problem is it fails to address the border security funding that is needed at the Department of Homeland Security. So instead of continuing to put appropriation bills on the floor that we know that the President will not support, I would ask my friends on the other side of the aisle to negotiate with the President, make a counteroffer, and to come forward to the table.

We know that many Federal employees are not being paid. Many government services that Americans depend on are not being provided. Along our southern border, women and children are being abused as they are trafficked by smugglers, and drugs are pouring in through the borders as well. The majority continues to refuse to negotiate and to make a counteroffer.

Mr. Speaker, I am ready to sit down, as I know my colleagues are, to work on an agreement to pay our Federal employees to get the government operating again and secure our borders.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BISHOP), who is the chair of the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Subcommittee.

Mr. BISHOP of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, last fall we were very close to finishing this bill and bringing it up for a vote; had we passed it then we would not be in the mess we are in today. But we can't go back in time. We are now in the 33rd day of the shutdown. Vital services are eliminated or stretched to the breaking point. The shutdown must end. It can end if we pass this excellent bill.

I want to address my colleagues who objected to voting for the Senate-passed bill a few weeks ago because they said it did not protect House priorities. This bill does and was negotiated with all four sides, House and Senate majorities and House and Senate minorities. Each side had an equal voice.

Former Chairman ADERHOLT, Chairman HOEVEN, Senator MERKLEY, and I, along with our staffs—committee staffs and personal staffs—worked together on the bill. I certainly would like to thank them for the very respectful and collegial way we worked through the various issues of agreement and disagreement to arrive at this bipartisan product. Additionally, we look forward to working with Mr. FORTENBERRY, the new ranking member of the subcommittee.

House priorities were protected whenever possible. Here are some examples: the bill is at the House level of $550 million for rural broadband expansion, above the Senate level. House language barring Chinese poultry in school meals is included. House language setting aside funding for persistent poverty counties is included. The House position to continue funding construction of Federal agriculture research buildings is maintained, where the Senate bill provided no funding. The higher House level for healthy foods financing, and the higher House level for rural housing assistance grants to help rural elderly and low-income homeowners stay in their homes is included.

Most importantly, this bill is good for the country. It provides over $23 billion in discretionary funding equal to the FY18 level. It reflects the more than 1,000 requests for agricultural research funding that we received from House Members, providing $3.4 billion, an increase of $388 million above the fiscal year 2018 level.

The farm production and conservation mission area, which includes the Farm Service Agency, is well funded at $2.75 billion.

I thank the Secretary, Secretary Perdue, and, most importantly, the Farm Service Agency employees for coming back to work for 2 weeks, and part-time thereafter, in order to process critical emergency loans, assist with additional administration services, and help with tax documents. But they need to be paid.

The bill also makes significant investments in rural development by providing $41 billion in loans and grants, including the House level of $550 million for rural broadband.

Domestic food programs are well funded. I am proud of the fact that the bill includes $110 million, a 72 percent increase over the normal funding level, to help our Nation's food banks handle the high volume of commodities that will become available as a result of the USDA's trade mitigation plan.

On the international side, the bill provides $1.7 billion for Food for Peace and funds the McGovern-Dole program at $210 million.

Finally, it provides FDA with $3 billion in discretionary funding, $269 million above fiscal year 2018. It includes more funding for House priorities than the Senate bill we considered a couple of weeks ago and includes important investments to fight the opioid epidemic that were not in the House bill.

This good bill will end the shutdown at USDA and FDA. Funds for economic development loans and grants for rural areas will begin to flow again. It will ensure the continuation of the National School Lunch Program, WIC, and SNAP without interruption.

It will allow some 8,400 USDA meat and poultry inspectors to be paid for the work that they have been doing for free and will allow FDA to conduct food safety inspections at the necessary level instead of the bare minimum.

As I have said before, this bill touches the lives of every American. I implore Members on both sides to support this bill. Reopen the government. It is time that we restore the services Americans count on and pay the people who provide them.

Ms. GRANGER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GRAVES).

Mr. GRAVES of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate my friend from Georgia and his remarks a minute ago. In fact, they sounded very familiar. I think I heard them maybe 20 days ago, because this is really nothing more than just theater today. If we are in a theater, this is nothing more than a rerun.

We have been through this exercise. So, for those in the gallery and watching, you have probably seen this before because it was on January 3 that we took up a bill much like this. We were told then, Mr. Speaker, that: If you pass this, the government will reopen. This is the answer.

But here we are again, 20 days later, and nothing has changed. In fact, the arguments are the same. This is not a good-faith effort at all. I think just less than an hour ago, we voted on an appropriations measure by the new majority that said, if we pass this, the government will reopen, and employees will be paid, and everything will be back to normal, and harmony will be around all of us.

But that was less than an hour ago. Nothing has changed. In fact, we are here right again.

So, going back to January 3, with a bill much like this, six appropriations bills bundled together that had passed the Senate at some point in the past were voted on by this House. They went to the Senate. No action was taken.

The next day, January 4, we voted on a continuing resolution to fund the remainder of the government, because that, again, was going to be the solution. That was the silver bullet. It was going to open the government, put everybody back to work, and have all the employees paid. But, in fact, nothing happened, nothing changed.

We go into the next week. Because that didn't work, let's break them all up and let's do them all separately. I am not sure why. Maybe we will get a different outcome. But nothing changed.

In fact, they left the House. They go to the Senate. The government is yet still closed.

Then, last week, let's do something very different. Let's don't take up any of those again. Let's just pass a continuing resolution because, surely, we missed the mark those other times. This will reopen the government. This was the solution, we were told, last week.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, nothing has changed 33 three days in. Here we are again.

But we have started over. We are going to do it again, but we are going to change the terminology. These are the agreed-upon conference reports from last year. I heard the majority say it was the Republicans who had unified control of the House, the Senate, and the Presidency that agreed to these things last year, so let's bring those up today.

But that is just a term. That is not truth. It is not fact.

For those watching and those in the gallery, they probably know and remember the cartoon "Schoolhouse Rock." I believe it was very clear in a simple cartoon: You go from the House. You go to the Senate. There is an amendment process. You have the opportunity to change, to amend, to perfect.

Then, when each body has passed something, you go to a committee. Those individuals from the House and the Senate, they get together. They reach an agreement, and it is called a conference committee report, which we are led to believe this might be. With that come signatures on this report. Then it is presented to each body for final passage and then to the administration for signature.

If this is, in fact, a conference committee report, how could it be? How could it be, Mr. Speaker? Because it would have had to have passed the House at some point this Congress, within the last 20 days, and then have passed the Senate different, and then differences reconciled, also with signatures.

Mr. Speaker, I would ask, is my signature on any of this? To answer it for the Chair, it is no. I was chairman last year of the Financial Services Committee. We did have good-faith negotiations. Mr. QUIGLEY is fantastic to work with. We were reaching consensus and had great compromise.

So, today, to hear the other side say that this is what I agreed to is truly inaccurate, because you will not find my signature. You will not find any agreement from me on what is presented in the Financial Services portion.

So this is not a good-faith effort. This is a repeat and a futile exercise that we have seen over the last 20 days.

In fact, I doubt anybody is even watching, because you know where their attention is today? I hope it is in the Senate, where they are taking up the President's proposal—a true, good-faith effort to reopen the government, to secure our country, to secure the border, and to make sure that 800,000 Federal employees are being rightfully compensated.

That is where the attention should be. I wish the House would take up similar, but in the spirit of compromise. We don't see it here.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, I will draw your attention back about 11 months ago. I believe it was the now-Speaker of the House, NANCY PELOSI, who holds the record for the longest single speech standing on the floor of the House, 8 hours and 7 minutes. It was over a very important issue. It was over DACA.

The government went into a shutdown moment last year. There was this big debate about it. It was then-Minority-Leader NANCY PELOSI who took 8 hours and 7 minutes to speak about this issue.

Yet when the President, this weekend, makes a proposal about it, before he can even reach the lectern, Mr. Speaker, she is opposed to it. She is opposed to it.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from Minnesota (Ms. MCCOLLUM), my good friend, the chair of the Interior, Environment, and Related Agencies Subcommittee.

Ms. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this omnibus appropriations bill, and I come to you in good faith with it.

Two weeks ago, our colleagues on the other side of the aisle told us that they could not support the appropriations bills on the House floor because they reflected only the Senate's priorities.

Well, there is good news today. The bill before us is a product of bipartisan negotiations. It reflects both the priorities of the House and the Senate. It is a compromise bill, and it will reopen our government.

The interior and environment section provides $35.6 billion, which is $300 million more than the fiscal year 2018 enacted bill.

We made critical investments in this legislation in Indian Country, environmental protection, public lands management, and the arts.

The National Park Service is funded at $3.2 billion, an increase of more than $20 million. This money is more urgently needed than ever because of the damage at our national parks due to the Trump shutdown.

The Land and Water Conservation Fund, which supports tens of thousands of projects all across the States, is funded at $435 million. That is a $10 million increase.

The Environmental Protection Agency is funded at $8.8 billion. That is an increase of $17 million above the 2018 enacted level.

Clean water and safe drinking water go hand-in-hand, so I am pleased that this bill includes $2.9 billion for the State revolving funds and $35 million for grants that reduce lead in drinking water, even at our schools. This funding will enhance the EPA's ability to protect human health and the health of our environment.

We continue to invest in Historically Black Colleges and Universities, the Civil Rights Initiative grant program, the Historic Preservation Fund, and Save America's Treasures.

Once again, we have worked in a bipartisan way to increase funding for the National Endowment for the Arts and for the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Congress also continues its commitment to providing funds necessary for the Smithsonian to complete its rehabilitation on the beloved National Air and Space Museum.

Finally, critically, it is important that this interior bill upholds the Federal Government's trust responsibilities to our Native American brothers and sisters. Funding for Indian Country is $1 billion more than the President's budget. It provides a $266 million increase in the Indian Health Service, the largest increase for any agency in this bill, and it is a $17 million increase for the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

This bill is a lifeline to restart funding and stop the senseless cruelty of the Trump shutdown in Indian Country. Basic services like health clinics, Tribal Justice services, and food assistance for seniors are being put at risk for nearly 1.9 million Americans throughout Indian Country.

As Democrats have continued to advance bills to reopen the government, to end the Trump shutdown, I have listened to my colleagues across the aisle. Our colleagues insisted that, if we brought up the conference negotiated bills, they would give their support.

Well, this is it. This is the conference negotiated bill, and, Mr. Speaker, I am looking forward to their support.

Programs in the interior bill impact all of us, from preserving our natural and cultural resources to protecting our health and our safety by ensuring clean air to breathe and clean water to drink, for today and for future generations.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues on both sides to support this bill, and I thank Mrs. LOWEY for yielding me the time.

Ms. GRANGER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. FORTENBERRY).

Mr. FORTENBERRY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the ranking member, Ms. GRANGER, for her indulgence in letting me speak today. Let me thank our chair, Mrs. LOWEY, as well for at least the ability today to have a discussion.

Mr. Speaker, no one wins in a government shutdown. No one wins if the border is not secure. That is where we are.

On my way here yesterday, as I was scrambling to get to the airport—and I live in Nebraska, a relatively small State, so we all kind of know one another or at least kind of recognize one another. As I checked in with my boarding pass and showed the TSA agent my ID, he looked at me and he said: Can you vote for the bill?

Now, given it is the Senate bill that is dominating the headlines, because it is a reasoned attempt to reach some type of consensus here, I looked at the TSA agent and I said: Yes, I can. I know this has been tough. How long can you hold out?

He said: It is tough. I don't want to miss another paycheck, but I can hold out about 30 days.

He said please. I thanked him for his service. Right now, I would like to thank all of the people who have come back to work without pay, who have done their duty, many under some hardship, because they know it is the right thing to do.

Yet, what is also the right thing to do is to get past this logjam, this impasse, and to leverage this moment and to actually get an outcome, a bipartisan outcome, that secures our border.

This weekend, the President, I thought, laid out a reasoned proposal that included a spectrum of immigration issues, most of which enjoy robust bipartisan support, including border security. And what do we need there? Personnel. We need technology, and we need enhanced barriers.

Now, there is the possibility of some movement on these important questions of reopening the government and getting the right type of border security that now sits in the United States Senate. But I thought Senator LANKFORD made a good comment as well. He said this isn't a yes or a no proposition, on that particular bill. It is the starting point, again, for a reasoned debate about how we find some consensus.

Mr. Speaker, America is a just and generous Nation, and we have opened our arms to people who wish to come here and embrace the values, people who have fled political or economic persecution and want to rebuild their lives. That is the hallmark of who we are.

But charity cannot flow out of chaos. When you have disorder at the border, you have an inability to have a just and humanitarian system that is beneficial to America and to people in need all around the world.

And that, fundamentally, is what is at issue here today—not necessarily finding a compromise, but a consensus. A compromise implies that somebody may win and somebody may lose. Let's all win here. Let's get the government reopened with the right type of package that includes robust border security that can make America proud.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois

(Mr. QUIGLEY), my good friend and the chair of the Financial Services and General Government Subcommittee.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank Madam Chairwoman for yielding me time.

During these heated times, we are accused of sometimes not listening to each other. Well, we listened to them. They all wanted the conference bills, and they have them. And I have heard today that what we need is a compromise on border security, which is interesting, because we are here on day 33 of the shutdown because of the President's singular focus, almost an obsession, on a symbolic but ineffective wall, not border security.

He is holding the government, its workers, and the services they provide hostage because he has convinced himself, and surely his base, that the wall will protect us from violent crime and end the flow of illegal drugs.

If the President actually believes that border security is the end goal of the wall, then fine, let's reopen the government and have that debate, because our plans for border security actually work.

Enacting the bills before us today does nothing to preclude the President from continuing to make his case on the wall. He and the Republicans have simply concluded that by continuing to impose suffering on Federal workers and the public that relies on them, it strengthens their hand in negotiations in only one element of that, an ineffective element, the wall. That is not the way our government is designed to work, nor should it work. This is governing by extortion, and we should all stand together to reject such tactics.

Democrats know that we can do more to strengthen border security, but it has to be done in a smart and effective way. We know that more than 87 percent of the hard narcotics are coming through our official ports of entry. A wall will do nothing to stop that.

That is why the Financial Services and General Government division of this bill responsibly puts money where it is most critically needed. It includes full funding for construction of two of the highest priority ports of entry along the southwest border to help stem the flow of illegal goods, narcotics, and people being smuggled into the country.

Overall, this conference agreement provides $1.6 billion for border security, real border security, and we are prepared to do more. During my visit to the southern border in October, I was briefed on security needs, and I heard a lot about new cameras, sensors, radars mounted on towers, vehicles to spot moving people and objects, and for drones to surveil tough terrain, roads that are parallel to the border, all things that actually work.

And at the ports of entry, they need new technology to eventually scan all commercial and passenger vehicles for illegal drugs and contraband. We can provide these resources. This bill shows that we are willing and able to put a downpayment on these bipartisan solutions. So, again, if it is about border security and that is why we are here, then fine, let's pass the bill, reopen the government, and have that debate.

Ms. GRANGER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. JOYCE).

Mr. JOYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I thank the ranking member from Texas for yielding and the chairwoman from New York.

Mr. Speaker, I am honored to be speaking here today as the newly appointed ranking member of the Interior, Environment, and Related Agencies Appropriations Subcommittee. I am honored to be paired with the newly appointed chair of the subcommittee, my friend and fellow Great Lakes advocate, Congresswoman BETTY MCCOLLUM from Minnesota. I am thrilled to be working with her in this capacity, and I look forward to many years of bipartisanship and collaboration on behalf of our constituents, our States, and our country.

The Interior division of the omnibus bill before us today was negotiated in good faith by both House Republicans and House Democrats. It reflects bipartisan priorities and represents many months of hard work by the House Appropriations Committee.

I am pleased that the bill includes $3.9 billion for the Department of the Interior and the United States Forest Service to fight devastating wildfires; $9 billion to increase the Federal commitment to our treaty and trust agreements with American Indians and Alaska Natives; over $3½ billion to improve our Nation's aging water infrastructure and improve public health; and $1.9 billion to reduce maintenance backlogs in our Nation's parks, trails, and wildlife refuges.

However, the Interior piece of this bill was negotiated as part of a comprehensive package funding numerous critical government functions, including securing our Nation's southern border. House Republicans conditionally agreed to drop several high priority provisions in the Interior bill in exchange for other priorities in this comprehensive package, including strengthened border security.

We were so close to finishing that package last year before the holidays, which would have fully funded our government, addressed the crisis at our southern border, and ensured all our Nation's Federal workers would continue receiving their paychecks, but, sadly, that is when the negotiations on border security broke down, and, shortly, thereafter, the government shut down.

There is an old saying in negotiating that nothing is agreed to until everything is agreed to. And since a compromise has not been found on border security, this Interior bill and the other bills before us today are not a true conference agreement. To suggest otherwise would be to mislead the public in an attempt to gain political high ground on an issue that most of our constituents expect us to instead find common ground.

We all agree that strengthening our borders is necessary, not only for our Nation, but also for the welfare of those willing to risk everything to enter this country illegally in pursuit of a better life. Let us be willing to risk the criticism that too often gets in the way of compromise. Let us have the courage to meet each other in the middle.

Our constituents have been counting on us to reach agreement on border security and immigration policy since long before this government shutdown even started. So let's stop using the shutdown as an excuse to avoid a negotiation because no one wins in a shutdown and no one wins if the border isn't secure.

I am willing to work with any and all of my House colleagues to break this impasse as quickly as possible. Until then, I must oppose this unfinished package before us today, and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), my good friend and the majority leader.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I am glad that Mr. JOYCE is still on the floor. Mr. JOYCE, I think, put his finger on the problem, and the problem is: Gee, I really like the Interior bill. It has been reached in a bipartisan fashion, and it is wonderful, but, by the way, the package is not perfect because it doesn't do what I want done or what the President of the United States wants done on one specific bill, Homeland Security.

My goodness, I don't know why we didn't have an opportunity to conference on that bill. You brought it to the floor on December 20, 10 days before the end of the year—10 days before the end of the year. If it was so important, why did we wait 11½ months to bring it to the floor? How could we conference a bill like that? There was no time.

The reason you didn't bring it to the floor is you didn't have the votes. Mr. JOYCE, Mr. SIMPSON, Mr. COLE all came to this floor when we considered another bill that was what the United States Senate Republicans wanted in their bills, and so we said we need to open up this government.

Mr. GRAVES talked about and Mr. JOYCE talked about consensus. Mr. GRAVES used the word "consensus." Hopefully, we will have a consensus on this floor.

Shutting down the government of the United States is stupid, irresponsible, and dangerous. That ought to be a consensus on this floor. And if that is the consensus, as it certainly is mine and certainly on my side of the aisle, then the cure is to open up government.

We have offered 9, 10, 11 different alternatives to do that, most of which were their bills formed in the last Congress under the Republican leadership in the House and the Senate. But, sadly, they won't take "yes" for an answer, so they keep the government shut down.

Only six Republicans in the last vote voted to open up government. Every Democrat, save one—and that had nothing to do with opening or shutting down government—voted to open up this government of the people and for the people.

I served on appropriations for 23 years. I never voted to shut down the government, because the government is there to serve the people, and we swear an oath to protect and preserve. Somebody is now going to say: Well, we put something in a bill and you voted against it, Hoyer, and that was an appropriation bill. By the way, when I voted against it, it passed.

Mr. Speaker, Democrats have been trying to open this government since the first day of our majority passing their bills. When I say "their bills," the Republican bills; they were out of the Senate.

On January 3, the Democratic-led House passed a package of six appropriations bills for fiscal year 2019 based on the language approved overwhelmingly in the Republican-controlled Senate, alongside a continuing resolution for the seventh bill funding Homeland Security, which, I will remind you, was not brought to this floor until December 20, 2018.

What a high priority they placed on that. They were in charge for 11 months and 20 days, and they never brought it to the floor. High priority item, obviously.

Senate Leader MCCONNELL passed a bill through the Senate on a voice vote, I think, unanimously, and sent it to us, so government would be opened. We would have voted for it, all of us, but they didn't bring it to the floor.

They brought a bill to the floor that said they wanted to do something on the wall. Why? Because the President wanted to do something with the wall. Why is the government shut down? Because the President will not allow the Congress of the United States to act to open it up. And Senator MCCONNELL, for unknown reasons, believes that we have to have a by-your-leave, Mr. President, to open up this government.

This is historic that we have shut down the government for this length of time. It is unforgivable that we have put 800,000 of our fellow citizens—people who work for this government, people who help millions of people every day to get assistance they need or documents that they have to have to settle on a home, or make sure that there is training for firefighters, or any one of thousands of different, critically important jobs that the Federal Government does—out of work. They, on the Republican side of the aisle, my colleagues, have done that. They have shut down the government. We have not.

Unless you think taking a hostage and demanding a ransom and having us not agree to that ransom is shutting down the government, and, therefore, you have to vote over and over and over and over and over again to keep the government of the people shut down.

During the second week of January, we passed, on an individual basis four appropriations bills that passed the Republican Senate last year 92-6. Is that a partisan act on our part offering four bills that passed the United States Senate, which they controlled, 92-6? When I say "they," I mean, the Republican Party. These are not Democratic bills we are trying to pass through with some majority we have. We took their bills. Why? Because we have a consensus: shutting down the government is the wrong thing to do.

And very frankly, I think privately, if you are asked that question, presumably most of you respond with a consensus answer: "You are right, it is. We shouldn't do that."

As the urgency of this shutdown grew last week, House Democrats attempted to send a continuing resolution at last year's funding levels.

Now, it is important to understand, last year's funding levels are the levels that were set when the Republicans were in charge of the House and the Senate, not Democratic numbers.

This is not a partisan issue. This is an issue about doing the right thing: opening up the government. So we were prepared to send your bills, and you voted against your own bills.

I can't understand it, and I can't understand why anybody in America doesn't understand that we are for opening up government and the Republicans are repeatedly and consistently voting not to open up the government. House Republicans rejected those four bills that were Republican bills.

Next, we voted to add an amendment to reopen the government through February 8, a short term—give us time to talk and discuss and see if we can come to agreement. It seems to me to make sense. That is usually what short-term CRs are for. We may yet find out tomorrow whether Senate Republicans can agree to reopen government under those terms. I hope they do.

In the meantime, late last week, we also brought a continuing resolution to the floor to reopen the government through February 28. Okay. Maybe we need a longer time to negotiate.

Democrats have been trying to end this Trump-McConnell shutdown non-stop since taking control of this House. That work continues this week as we bring to the floor a new appropriations package.

As we debated the Senate-authored versions—let me say that again, the Senate-authored versions, not our versions—of funding bills earlier this month, some of my Republican colleagues came to this floor and said that their objection to it was because it did not reflect the House position.

Now, ladies and gentlemen, you just heard Mr. JOYCE talk about the Interior bill. Presumably, if the Interior bill were here alone, he would vote against it because it didn't have national security interest in it. On that theory, we ought to vote against 11 of the bills that we don't like individually, but you brought them as packages last time. I thought that was a good example.

We are going to do it again. But the fact of the matter is it is not because you are disagreeing with your bill—you come as the ranking member, I say to my friend, Mr. Speaker—but because of some other issue. We can all find some other issue.

So I think there is a consensus that shutting down the government is the wrong thing to do, and unless you believe that shutting down government is okay, you will vote "yes" on these bills to open up our government, the people's government. Serve your constituents and the American people, generally.

I don't know why you keep voting "no" just because the President tells you to do so. That is not what your constituents sent you here to do. Our constituents sent us here, Mr. Speaker, to serve them. The writers of the Constitution of the United States didn't say the President tells Congress what to do. They said Congress tells the President what to do, and he executes that policy.

That is what separation of powers is all about. Not for Senator MCCONNELL to say: Unless the President says it is okay, I am not going to put a bill on the floor. What kind of misreading of the Constitution of the United States is that?

We are the policymakers of America. We are the ones who send to the President. Yes, he has a role, a critical role. He can veto, and we need two-thirds to override his veto, but it is not to say: Mr. President, we won't even put it on the floor for the Representatives of the people of the United States to express their opinion on unless you say okay.

Let's get a spine. Let's stand up. Let's act like the Article I institution we represent. Let us be independent.

Let us have what democracy demands: differences of opinion argued out, not by taking hostages, not by demanding ransom, but by discussion, by debate, and by votes. That is what democracy is about.

And if it becomes common practice for President Trump or any other President to say to us: "If I don't like what you are doing, I am going to shut down your government"—that is what is happening here.

It is not just about a wall. It is about whether tomorrow the President is going to make some other demand and shut down the government, or tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow when the President makes another demand and shuts down the government.

When will it stop, my friends? Maybe never, but it will not continue with my vote.

Vote for this bill. Open up the people's government. Stand up and be what America believes you are, an independent, coequal branch of the Government of the United States. Vote "yes" for your country and for the people you represent.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members are reminded to address their remarks to the Chair.

Ms. GRANGER. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote "no" on the bill before us today, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, Democrats have been clear throughout the Trump shutdown. We support investing in strong, smart, and effective border security, and we are prepared to negotiate once the government is reopened.

The solution to the Trump shutdown is simple: Reopen the government; pay off Federal employees; then negotiate on border security. Our proposal will form the basis for these eventual negotiations.

It is time to end the Trump shutdown. Vote for this package of six bills that reflects conference agreements where we worked together from last year. Reopen most of the government. Let workers get paid. Vote "yes."

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support the consolidated package of six appropriations bills and reopen the federal government.

This unprecedented shutdown has ground our country to a halt.

Every day this shutdown continues, families in my district suffer a cruel fate. From missed paychecks, uncertainty in food benefits, to delays in critical efforts that protect the health and safety of our country.

The shutdown impacts Universities conducting critical research, in my region, at the University of Toledo. Twenty-five percent of the University of Toledo's research awards are from agencies affected by the shutdown. Anticipated grants are now delayed.

This week, nine of UT's researchers on aerospace projects for NASA Glenn Research Center in Cleveland will be placed on leave without pay.

Aquatic ecologists fighting invasive Asian carp in the Great Lakes have been put on hold.

The health of the Great Lakes is in danger. This is not the time to risk the vitality of our region on partisan bickering. I would like to include in the RECORD the following article about the impacts of the shutdown on EPA inspectors unable to protect our water.

I call on all my colleagues to support this effort and reopen government.

SHUTDOWN MEANS E.P.A. POLLUTION INSPECTORS AREN'T ON THE JOB

(By Coral Davenport)

WASHINGTON.—The two-week-old shutdown has halted one of the federal government's most important public health activities, the inspections of chemical factories, power plants, oil refineries, water treatment plants, and thousands of other industrial sites for pollution violations.

The Environmental Protection Agency has furloughed most of its roughly 600 pollution inspectors and other workers who monitor compliance with environmental laws. Those scientists, engineers and analysts are responsible for detecting violations that endanger human health, as they did, for example during an August 2018 airborne inspection that found that oil and gas fields in Karnes County, Tex., were leaking illegal levels of chemicals into the atmosphere, in violation of the Clean Air Act.

While the inspection personnel represent a relatively small proportion of the E.P.A.'s total of about 15,000 workers, their absence increases the chances that, either by design or by accident, companies might emit illegal levels of contaminants into the air or water without detection, for weeks on end, according to people familiar with the E.P.A. inspections.

"There are plants that discharge wastewater into streams and rivers, places that store hazardous chemicals in containers that could leak—we show up and test these places to see if they're meeting pollution laws," said Garth Connor, a furloughed E.P.A. inspector based in Philadelphia who has been off the job since Monday. "Now there's nobody out there to check if they're complying."

Mr. Connor inspects for air and water pollution and hazardous waste disposal at sites throughout the Mid-Atlantic.

The inspectors "are the cops on the beat," Cynthia Giles, who headed the E.P.A. enforcement division during the Obama administration, wrote in an email.

She noted that, in 2017, E.P.A. workers performed about 11,700 such inspections, averaging to about 225 inspections per week, according to the agency's records. The numbers suggest that hundreds of such inspections may have already been canceled this year, with the potential for hundreds more to not take place should the shutdown continue for days or weeks more. "Those weeks can never be made up," Ms. Giles wrote. "In addition to the violations not found and the inspections not done, there is also the impact of no inspectors in the field doing unannounced inspections," she added, asking: "Will that result in more violations because companies know E.P.A. isn't watching?"

Andrew Wheeler, the acting administrator of the E.P.A., did not respond to an email requesting comment. On Wednesday, President Trump formally nominated Mr. Wheeler, who was confirmed last year as the deputy chief of the agency, to formally take over as the agency head. When on the job, E.P.A. inspectors regularly cite companies for violations that endanger human health. For example, during an April 2016 inspection at a Firestone rubber plant in Sulphur, La., E.P.A. inspectors discovered that the plant was emitting illegal levels of butadiene, a carcinogen, into the community.

Some E.P.A. inspections are unannounced. Others take the form of two- and three-week on-site visits.

Still other examinations don't happen on-site: E.P.A. experts sitting in labs or at computers will review documents detailing a plant's own reported emissions of pollution or wastewater, checking whether legal limits were met or violated. These activities, too, are on pause during the shutdown.

Inspectors need to read those reports "and say, 'no, you can't do that,'" said Eric Schaeffer, who worked at the E.P.A. on enforcement from 1990 to 2002 and now runs the Environmental Integrity Project, an advocacy group. "Then they follow up and go on-site. But none of that is happening."

Unlike other federal agencies affected by the government shutdown, the E.P.A. continued to operate through the week of Dec. 24, but pollution inspections, along with most of the rest of the work of the agency, had ceased by New Year's Eve.

Mr. Schaeffer recalled the effect on pollution enforcement of the longest government shutdown in history, which ran from Dec. 16, 1995, to Jan. 6, 1996.

"That was one of the worst years ever at the E.P.A. in terms of numbers of inspections and enforcement," he said. He added that the damage to the work of pollution inspections didn't end completely once the government reopened. "Everything was ground to a halt, bogged down. You can't just restart at 100 miles per hour. You have to reschedule everything." Another former E.P.A. official who now lobbies on behalf of industry offered a different view, saying that a shutdown of even a few weeks was unlikely to make much difference in the amount of illegal pollution emitted or detected.

"What you have is a delay," said the former official, Jeffrey Holmstead, who served in the E.P.A. during both Bush administrations and now works for some of the largest coal companies and electric utilities in the country. "I don't think it's true that all of a sudden, because E.P.A.'s inspectors are not there, that most people will take advantage of that," he said. "There may be a few folks who believe they can get away with more, but I don't think that's the biggest issue."

Among Mr. Holmstead's clients are several companies that have been cited for violations by the E.P.A., including the electric utility Southern Company, which has had 52 sites with violations over the past five years, including 23 sites with current violations, according to E.P.A.'s enforcement database. An email sent to a Southern Company spokesman requesting comment on the violations was not answered.

Another of Mr. Holmstead's clients, the electric utility, Ameren, owns 23 sites that have been cited for pollution violations over the past five years. A telephone message left with an Ameren spokeswoman was not returned.

In many years, about 10 to 20 percent of the E.P.A.'s pollution inspections turn up significant violations, according to the agency's data.

Most operators "really are doing a good job," said Adam Kushner, a former top legal official at the E.P.A. "But there's a 1 percent that are bad actors, who will continue to do what they're going to do, unless inspectors find them. And then there are sites where the operator just may not have identified the problem, and they're putting bad stuff out into the air without knowing it."

Angela McFadden, a furloughed E.P.A. environmental engineer who oversees state permits for pollution discharge and has worked as an on-site inspector dealing with clean water violations, said she "always" found violations during her time as an inspector.

For example, she said, in inspecting municipal water systems in rural areas she frequently found that cities and towns over-chlorinated or under-chlorinated their water—not a legal violation, but a potentially harmful situation that is easily corrected when identified by an inspector.

Ms. McFadden recalled a more frightening inspection she once performed in Pennsylvania that found excessive nitrate levels in a municipal water supply. Nitrates can sap oxygen from the blood and, when found in high levels in drinking water, are linked to "blue baby syndrome," in which infants struggle to deliver enough oxygen to their bodies.

"Right now, E.P.A. is not monitoring any of that," Ms. McFadden said. "Things are falling through the cracks."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. All time for debate has expired.

Pursuant to House Resolution 61, the previous question is ordered on the bill. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT

Ms. GRANGER. Mr. Speaker, I have a motion to recommit at the dais.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentlewoman opposed to the bill?

Ms. GRANGER. I am, in its current form.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Ms. Granger moves to recommit the bill H.R. 648 to the Committee on Appropriations with instructions to report the same back to the House forthwith with the following amendment:

Strike section 1 and all that follows and insert the following: "There are appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, such sums as may be necessary for the pay of any employee furloughed or excepted during the lapse in appropriations beginning on December 22, 2018, as authorized by subsection (c) of section 1341 of title 31, United States Code (as added by the Government Employee Fair Treatment Act of 2019)."

Ms. GRANGER (during the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the reading.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from Texas is recognized for 5 minutes in support of her motion.

Ms. GRANGER. Mr. Speaker, my motion amends the bill by striking all of its contents and replacing it with an appropriation to ensure Federal employees will get the backpay they deserve.

I am offering this motion because the overall bill we are considering today does not address the Department of Homeland Security's funding requirements to secure the border. Therefore, we know the President will not support it, so it will not reopen the Federal Government or ensure our employees are paid.

Last week, I essentially offered this same motion, which, again, will immediately provide the backpay our hard-working Federal employees have earned since this shutdown began.

This should be something that all Members of this Chamber support, so it is troubling that my friends on the other side of the aisle chose to vote against this measure when it was brought to the floor last week. So we are giving them yet another opportunity to end the political gamesmanship and vote for this measure today.

This shutdown has caused real-world consequences for Federal employees, such as Border Patrol and DEA agents, TSA personnel, air traffic controllers, and the hundreds of thousands of other Federal employees suffering during this shutdown.

These employees have bills to pay and families to support. This motion will ensure that they are able to do that immediately while we continue working toward a permanent solution that will reopen the government.

We need to start working on legislation that can be enacted into law. This motion is one such measure.

Federal employees should not suffer because of the Democrats' refusal to negotiate.

Mr. Speaker, I urge a "yes" vote on the motion, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I claim the time in opposition to the motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman from New York is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I want to make it very clear to my colleagues: This motion to recommit will ensure the government remains closed. It will be irresponsible to adopt this motion.

This means all those people who are not getting paid will continue not to get a paycheck to support their families. They will not be able to go to the supermarket and act like normal families. This is totally irresponsible.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to strongly reject this motion, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

Ms. GRANGER. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 9 of rule XX, this 15-minute vote on the motion to recommit will be followed by a 5-minute vote on passage of the bill.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 200, nays 215, not voting 17, as follows:

Ms. CHENEY (during the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be considered as read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. NEGUSE). Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Wyoming?

There was no objection.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

HOURLY MEETING ON TOMORROW

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns today, it adjourn to meet at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

HARMFUL MOTION TO RECOMMIT

(Ms. MCCOLLUM asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I rise to address the Republicans' motion to recommit that was offered on the previous bill and to explain to the American people the harm that that motion would have caused.

The Trump shutdown is in its 33rd day. Critical programs that help our most vulnerable friends and neighbors, like SNAP benefits for seniors, will soon run out.

As chair of the Interior, Environment, and Related Agencies Appropriations Subcommittee, I know the difficulties this shutdown is causing for Indian Country, where basic healthcare programs could end soon.

Mr. Speaker, for our Native American brothers and sisters, this shutdown is literally a life-or-death matter, and that is why the Republican motion to recommit was so very disappointing. It strips the entire text of the bill, keeping the Federal Government closed and threatening the well-being of tens of millions of Americans.

It is callous, it is cruel, and it is wrong. And that is why I join my Democratic colleagues in rejecting the motion to recommit.

House Democrats are doing our job. We are passing legislation to reopen the government and to fund our Federal employees with the paychecks they deserve. Mr. Speaker, it is time for the Senate and the President to do the same.

COMMENDING CHANDLER POLICE CHIEF SEAN DUGGAN

(Mr. BIGGS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BIGGS. Mr. Speaker, I rise tonight to commend Chandler Police Chief Sean Duggan for recently being named the 2019 Chief of the Year by the Arizona Association of Chiefs of Police.

Chief Duggan has served Arizonan communities in law enforcement for more than 30 years, following in the footsteps of his father who was a New York City police officer. He joined the police force in 1986 when he started with the Scottsdale Police Department and also served as a member of the Arizona Department of Public Safety's gang and illegal immigration task force.

In an interview 5 years ago, after being selected as Chandler's top cop, Chief Duggan said: "Was I a kid who wanted to be chief? No. It's the greatest honor that can be bestowed on me professionally."

Mr. Speaker, I say to Chief Duggan: Your service to Chandler has been honorable. The citizens of Chandler thank you for your leadership. Throughout your career, you have dedicated yourself to protecting our liberties and ensuring that criminals are removed from the streets. The east valley is privileged to count you as a neighbor, influencer, and leader.

Congratulations on your award. You have earned it.

PFAS TASK FORCE

(Ms. DEAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. DEAN. Mr. Speaker, Article I, Section 27 of the Pennsylvania Constitution reads: "The people have a right to clean air, pure water, and to the preservation of the natural, scenic, historic, and esthetic values of the environment. Pennsylvania's public natural resources are the common property of all the people."

Pure water, it doesn't get any more basic than that. But for years, constituents in my district in towns like Horsham, Willow Grove, North Hills, and Upper Dublin have worried about the quality of their water and the impact of that water on their health and their family's health. Like citizens who live near military bases across the country, their water supplies have been contaminated with a class of manmade chemicals known as PFAS.

Unfortunately, government has been slow to act. The EPA has attempted to block research showing just how dangerous these chemicals really are. Testing and cleanup have been insufficient, and, now, day 33 of the administration's shutdown, 93 percent of EPA workers are furloughed, challenging our ability to deal with this and other important issues.

But today, we in the Congress have launched a bipartisan PFAS Task Force. I invite all Members of Congress to work with us on this matter of genuine national concern.

BACKPAY FOR FEDERAL EMPLOYEES

(Mr. KEVIN HERN of Oklahoma asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KEVIN HERN of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, just a few minutes ago, we voted to fund Federal pay through the end of the shutdown. Republicans voted unanimously with bipartisan support from 10 Democrats. If we had just eight more Democrats, our Federal workers would be getting paychecks. Now hard-working Americans are facing a second zero-dollar paycheck.

President Trump has asked Democrats to work with him to find a way to reopen the government and pay our furloughed employees, but Speaker PELOSI didn't even listen to the President's proposal before she rejected it this weekend.

This is ridiculous. The President offered a legitimate proposal with the compromises that Democrats asked for, the same priorities that Speaker PELOSI talked about just last year. In return, he wants the funding to solve the crisis at our border.

This is bigger than partisan games. This is the lives and livelihood of hundreds of thousands of Americans. Let's stop stonewalling, stop the theatrics, and do our jobs.

SHUTDOWN

(Ms. JACKSON LEE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Mr. Speaker, what my good friends have not heard is the outrage and cry of the desperate Federal workers, some sending their children to relatives because they cannot support them, museums shut down costing $4 million, TSA officers not able to come to work, and air traffic controllers suffering.

Today, Democrats did again what they have done over and over again. The message is: Mr. President, open the government, pay the workers now, and let us sit down at the table of reconciliation and iron out the question of border security.

As a member of the Homeland Security Committee, I have voted time after time as a Democrat for border security—barriers, drones, technology, jeeps, and laptops. I know what it is. I am from a border State. I have been to the borders in the daylight and in the dark.

Today, we voted to open up Agriculture, Commerce, Justice, financial services, environment, Transportation, Housing, and all of the law enforcement we voted for.

Our simple cry is: Mr. President, understand the pain of America. Open the government, pay the workers, and let's get down to the business of negotiating on behalf of the American people.

HONORING AL AND CHERYL HODGE

(Mr. GRAVES of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GRAVES of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Albert Hodge, Jr., and as anyone who knows Al will attest, my remarks would not be complete without a recognition of Al's talented wife, Cheryl.

Over the past 21 years, Al has served as president and CEO of the Rome, Floyd County, Chamber of Commerce. Thanks to his hard work, employers—including Suzuki, Pirelli, Neaton, and Lowe's—have brought more than $1.2 billion of direct investment to our region and thousands of jobs.

But Al's success would not be possible without Cheryl. Cheryl is not just a supportive wife, mother, and grandmother. She is a Rome institution in her own right. A talented artist active with the Rome Area Council for the Arts, Cheryl is best known for her beautiful water colors, one of which is hanging in my office right here in Washington, D.C.

I pray for the best for Al and Cheryl, wherever life takes them. They came to Rome over 20 years ago, and it is certainly a better place today because of them.

Al and Cheryl, thank you and God bless.

WE ARE A NATION OF IMMIGRANTS

(Mr. ESPAILLAT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. ESPAILLAT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the New York State Legislature for passing the DREAM Act. States have had to step up because of the Trump shutdown, because of our inability to move forward and recognize that this continues to be a nation of immigrants.

So States like New York today had to pass the DREAM Act to allow in young people, many of whom are nurses, doctors, members of our Armed Forces, and teachers who are contributing to our communities across the country. All they want is a shot to be part of the American Dream, because this is a nation of immigrants.

The DREAM Act today in the New York State Legislature was named after my good friend who passed this year, unfortunately, Senator Jose Peralta.

I congratulate New York. That lady still stands in the harbor with her torch lighting the bay for everyone across the world, because we are a nation of immigrants.

SCHOOL CHOICE

(Mr. ALLEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, this week, we celebrate National School Choice Week. Every child and family is unique in their own way, and when it comes to learning, it is no different. National School Choice Week shines a bright spotlight on effective educational options for children.

At the heart of our American values is the belief that we can all pursue happiness through hard work and dedication on the path to achieve the American Dream. This path starts at a young age, and school choice empowers parents and families to choose the best educational environment for their child, ensuring that the American Dream can become a reality.

In the town of Dublin in my district, school choice starts in elementary school where students are encouraged to find their passions early on and are provided with the tools to succeed. And it has worked. Dublin City Schools have a 90 percent graduation rate, with Dublin High School reaching almost 97 percent.

As a proud school choice supporter and member of the House Education and Labor Committee, I look forward to continuing my work highlighting the effect of school choice in Georgia and throughout the Nation.

GOVERNMENT SHUTDOWN'S IMPACT ON CENTRAL VIRGINIANS

(Ms. SPANBERGER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. SPANBERGER. Mr. Speaker, today, I rise to share another story of how this reckless shutdown is hurting real people in real communities, including in central Virginia.

Chesterfield, Virginia, resident Donna Ingram has worked for the U.S. Department of the Treasury for 15 years. She is a mother of two, and because of the shutdown, she is worried about her ability to make ends meet. Earlier this month, Donna's pay stub showed the word "furloughed," and her paycheck showed the number zero.

Donna is currently in the middle of medical treatment, but because of the shutdown's financial harm, she has been forced to discontinue her treatment. Donna said her livelihood is at stake and that she could lose everything she has worked so hard for over the past 15 years.

Donna said that Federal employees like her want to work; they want to serve our government and our communities; and they want to continue their service.

Yet this is how we treat our public servants here in the United States? Are they bargaining chips?

I will continue to push for an immediate end to the shutdown, because I do not think they should ever be used as bargaining chips. There are hundreds of thousands of hardworking Federal employees like Donna who are depending on us, their elected officials, to do our jobs, to open this government, and to restore the function of our government.

END THIS SHUTDOWN

(Mr. MEUSER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MEUSER. Mr. Speaker, I am new here, but I am almost speechless. We just had, moments ago, a vote that would have provided pay to the Federal workers who have not received their paychecks this year.

Americans agree that we must provide for our border security, reopen the government, and end this shutdown. But since House Democratic leadership has refused to come to the table and negotiate in good faith, the least we could do is ensure our Federal workers don't suffer because of Washington's dysfunction.

Last week, only six Democrats joined every Republican to vote to pay our workers. This vote took place moments ago, and 10 Democrats joined us again. We have heard speeches today on the floor, in the media, and all over the news by Democrats who claim to empathize with Federal workers who have gone unpaid. But when they had the chance today to pay them, for the most part, they have declined.

We need to listen to the people, pay our Federal workers, secure our borders, and end this shutdown.

SHUTDOWN

(Mr. MCADAMS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. MCADAMS. Mr. Speaker, working families in Utah are now facing another lost pay period. Through no fault of their own, they are suffering from the last Congress' failure to pass bills to fund government operations and our inability now to get an agreement to end the shutdown.

This weekend, I heard stories firsthand. Family members are facing medical issues due to the stress of wondering when a spouse will be paid. IRS workers worry about missing the training they need to be ready for processing tax returns. Air traffic controllers are working hard to keep airplanes in proper airspace over the Salt Lake Valley but are going without normal staff backup and equipment maintenance.

One individual who has been in government service for 30 years as a member of the military and as a civilian has applied for other jobs, knowing that he is likely not going to get hired. Employers see too much uncertainty.

Small businesses are hurting because their customers don't have money to eat at local restaurants or shop in local stores. The shutdown is harming the entire American economy and every American.

As one worker said to me: Our jobs have nothing to do with the border.

They have had enough of political games. I support border security, and I support Dreamers, but we need to end the shutdown so that they can get back to work.

REMEMBERING MARSHALL COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

(Mr. COMER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. COMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in solidarity with the Marshall County community to honor and remember the precious lives of Preston Cope and Bailey Holt. Preston and Bailey were victims of a tragic shooting at Marshall County High School in Benton, Kentucky, on this day last year.

Marshall County High School is comprised of a truly compassionate group of students, parents, and alumni who have demonstrated the resiliency of this community in the wake of such devastation.

Preston Cope and Bailey Holt remain in our hearts as we remember and honor all that these young, bright individuals brought to their families, friends, school, and community.

TRUMP SHUTDOWN

(Mrs. LAWRENCE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mrs. LAWRENCE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today addressing the damaging impact of Trump's senseless shutdown in the State of Michigan and in the 14th District.

Thirty days and Trump continues to hold the American people hostage over a wall that Mexico was supposed to pay for. Over 5,000 workers in the State of Michigan continue to suffer.

My constituents are suffering the hardships because of this shutdown. A constituent from Southfield, Michigan, wrote:

I have worked for the Federal Government for over 30 years. I have given 100 percent in my career with the IRS, and now I am facing the possibility of not being able to pay my mortgage because of this shutdown.

Our Federal Government is supported by a devoted workforce who are feeling like they have been taken for granted and used. This is unacceptable. Our hardworking Federal employees deserve so much better.

This shutdown is causing chaos and pain for our dedicated Federal workers in America. It must stop.

BRING THE COUNTRY TOGETHER FOR THE STATE OF THE UNION

(Mr. ZELDIN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ZELDIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to voice my objection and disappointment with the decision that was made to disinvite the President of the United States to address this Chamber for the State of the Union.

I would like to commend Majority Leader STENY HOYER, who, just yesterday, said he would welcome the President here to the Chamber this upcoming Tuesday.

This decision that was made is not one to bring this House together. That is a decision that is not one to move our country forward. I object. And many others in this Chamber do as well, and I believe many Democrats do.

Then I hear that we are about to leave again? I say we stay here. We should all be in one room. No phones, no pay, no one is leaving the room until we have a deal and there is white smoke.

That is how to lead, not to set us backward, as we are seeing again by the Speaker's decision today.

NATIONAL SCHOOL CHOICE WEEK

(Mr. WATKINS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. Speaker, this week is National School Choice Week. It is when we shine a light on the educational opportunities when they are tailored to the individual student.

I was raised by four academics, and they would be the first to tell you that, in order to empower young people to develop into the type of adults who can solve the problems of tomorrow, their educational experiences need to be tailored.

No parent, no teacher, no student wants an ill-fitting educational experience.

Education is the great equalizer. It is the combat multiplier. It is the path that leads toward American dreams.

God bless the American student. God bless the American teacher.

READING OF THE CONSTITUTION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2019, the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. HILL) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. HILL of Arkansas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the Chair for the opportunity to address the House today as we come together as Members of the House and read our U.S. Constitution.

Long-time British Prime Minister William Gladstone in 1878 said: "The most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by brain and purpose of man." That is how he described the U.S. Constitution.

For 2 centuries the Constitution has dedicated the structure of our remarkable Republic and created the operation of the consent of the governed and the protection of a free people's individual rights.

All of us who work here in the people's House marvel at its daily majesty, of James Madison's checks and balances, separation of powers, and the institutional hybrid of Federalism.

Today, we gather at the heart of the Capitol, the heart of Article I, the first branch, to read our governing document:

"We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

Ms. FOXX of North Carolina. Article I, Section 1:

“All legislative Powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.”

Section 2:

“The House of Representatives shall be composed of Members chosen every second Year by the People of the several States, and the Electors in each State shall have the Qualifications requisite for Electors of the most numerous Branch of the State Legislature.

“No Person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained to the Age of twenty five Years, and been seven Years a Citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an Inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen.

“Representatives and direct Taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union, according to their respective Numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole Number of free Persons, including those bound to Service for a Term of Years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three fifths of all other Persons.

“The actual Enumeration shall be made within three Years after the first Meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent Term of ten Years, in such Manner as they shall by Law direct. The number of Representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty Thousand, but each State shall have at Least one Representative; and until such enumeration shall be made, the State of New Hampshire shall be entitled to chuse three, Massachusetts eight, Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations one, Connecticut five, New-York six, New Jersey four, Pennsylvania eight, Delaware one, Maryland six, Virginia ten, North Carolina five, South Carolina five, and Georgia three.”

Mr. EMMER. “When vacancies happen in the Representation from any State, the Executive Authority thereof shall issue Writs of Election to fill such Vacancies.

“The House of Representatives shall chuse their Speaker and other Officers; and shall have the sole Power of Impeachment.”

Section 3:

“The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, chosen by the Legislature thereof, for six Years; and each Senator shall have one vote.

“Immediately after they shall be assembled in Consequence of the first Election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three Classes. The Seats of the Senators of the first Class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second Year, of the second Class at the expiration of the fourth Year, and of the third Class at the expiration of the sixth Year, so that one third may be chosen every second Year; and if Vacancies happen by Resignation, or otherwise, during the Recess of the Legislature of any State, the Executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next Meeting of the Legislature, which shall then fill such Vacancies.”

“Each House may determine the Rules of its Proceedings, punish its Members for disorderly Behaviour, and, with the Concurrence of two thirds, expel a Member.

“Each House shall keep a Journal of its Proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such Parts as may in their Judgment require secrecy; and the Yeas and Nays of the Members of either House on any question shall, at the Desire of one fifth of those Present, be entered on the Journal.”

Mr. CONAWAY. Section 7:

“All bills for raising Revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives; but the Senate may propose or concur with Amendments as on other Bills.

“Every Bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, shall, before it become a Law, be presented to the President of the United States; If he approve he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it, with his Objections to that House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the Objections at large on their Journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If after such Reconsideration two thirds of that House shall agree to pass the Bill, it shall be sent, together with the Objections, to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two thirds of that House, it shall become a Law. But in all such Cases the Votes of both Houses shall be determined by yeas and Nays, and the Names of the Persons voting for and against the Bill shall be entered on the Journal of each House respectively. If any Bill shall not be returned by the President within ten Days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the Same shall be a Law, in like Manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their Adjournment prevent its Return, in which Case it shall not be a Law.

“Every Order, Resolution, or Vote to which the Concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary (except on a question of Adjournment) shall be presented to the President of the United States; and before the Same shall take Effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives, according to the Rules and Limitations prescribed in the Case of a Bill.”

Mr. Speaker, this historic reading of the U.S. Constitution on the floor of the House tonight, together with the Bill of Rights and all the amendments ratified as described in the original document, make the supreme law of the land. They are the law that we look to every day to guide the work of this House of Representatives. And I will remind my friends that 50 percent of the words in this historic document are governed and written in regard to Article I, the first branch, the Congress of the United States, the legislative branch.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my colleagues tonight who have joined us on the floor in reading the U.S. Constitution: VIRGINIA FOXX, TOM EMMER, WARREN DAVIDSON, MIKE BOST, TED YOHO, MIKE CONAWAY, ROGER WILLIAMS, TIM WALBERG, JODY HICE, RICK ALLEN, PETER OLSON, BUDDY CARTER, MORGAN GRIFFITH, ANDY BARR, BRIAN BABIN, and SCOTT PERRY. I am grateful for their participation in reading this historic document.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

BORDER SECURITY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2019, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GRIFFITH) for 30 minutes.

Mr. GRIFFITH. Mr. Speaker, I come to the floor tonight to discuss a trip that was recently made to our southern border in Arizona with the sovereign state of Mexico. Mr. BIGGS headed that party up, and at this time, Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. BIGGS).

Mr. BIGGS. Mr. Speaker, it is a pleasure to be here and to speak and report to the American people about what we saw and learned on the Arizona-Mexico border over the weekend.

We spent Sunday and Monday putting a lot of miles on cars, traveling within 30 miles of the border all the way from the New Mexico line through about two-thirds of the State of Arizona. It becomes kind of interesting because, quite frankly, there are so many people who do not appreciate the breadth and the wide open space of that country.

Let me just take a few minutes and tell you that we had nine Members of Congress there. We met with Border Patrol agents, Customs agents, Border Patrol management. We met with ranchers, residents along the border. We met with numerous people, all who have an interest in the immediate impacts of illegal border crossings.

One ranch that we happened to visit in Arizona, right on the border, you could look out and you could see the vastness of what our Border Patrol agents are dealing with. You could literally see many miles into Mexico. The Sierra Madres are coming down from their height, leveling down, and then you have two other additional mountain ranges that come on the Arizona side, right through it, kind of tapering into the Chiracahua Mountains, beautiful mountains.

You can see the vastness of this open space, and it is many hundreds of miles, and even thousands of miles square. We have two or three Border Patrol agents there and no fence, really, to speak of.

So we talked with some of the ranchers who live along there and their experience. We walked through some of the hills and on the paths that illegal aliens and drug traffickers pass through and walk. We talked with some of them.

One gentleman explained to us that he has had four home invasions—four home invasions—more than 15 burglaries, and, every day, trespassers on his property.

Imagine that as your lifestyle, knowing that you will have home invasions, knowing that you are going to have people trespassing on your property consistently.

We moved over to the wall in Douglas, Arizona. It sits on the border with Agua Prieta. We took pictures. We talked with Border Patrol agents. And then we could see where that border wall, how long that goes.

It is bollard fencing, which is slatted steel fencing that goes anywhere from 10 to 15, 18 feet high. But it was so ineffective in some places that they have started putting concertina razor wire to keep people down.

In a minute, I will tell you how that doesn't really work.

And then they put up a third or second barrier there in some parts of Douglas, but not enough money. It just kind of runs out. And you can see how far that border wall goes in Douglas, and it is the bollard fencing.

We then kept moving in Cochise County in Arizona, and we ended up, we were able to talk to some local law enforcement and some of the Angel Parents.

But I want to talk about something that I thought was most intriguing and interesting. As we were sitting there in that restaurant with some of our staff, our Members of Congress, some local law enforcement, some of the Angel Families, we had a resident just come up out of the blue, and she thanked the local law enforcement for the efforts being made to protect the citizens of that county.

She said: You know, I have had a home invasion. I have had repeated burglaries. I have had trespassing on my property, on my ranch. We get people come in, they turn on water, they want a drink of water, and they just let the water run. They never turn it off. They trash my property.

She was telling me this. I asked her to address our group. She did. Impromptu, she told of her experience, out of the blue. She didn't know who we were. I thought that was remarkable. It was completely unstaged.

We had the Angel Parents, Mary Ann Mendoza talk about her son, Brandon, who was a Mesa police officer. Brandon was killed by a driver who had previously been arrested and deported. He was driving along the wrong way on the freeway and runs into Brandon and kills him.

Steve Ronnebeck spoke. Steve had a son, Grant, early twenties, very outgoing, gregarious young man, working at the QT, which is a convenience store. One night, Mr. Altamirano, who had been convicted and deported previously—in fact, he was convicted for burglary. That was a plea deal down from the two counts of kidnapping and rape of a woman who was victimized by Mr. Altamirano.

He had been deported. He comes back, goes in to buy a pack of cigarettes. Grant is counting out the change. Mr. Altamirano does not like how slow it seems to be taking, pulls a gun out, and pointblank shoots him in the face, killing Grant Ronnebeck. What a tragedy that is.

So they are not alone. I have talked with Angel Families from throughout the country. You say: Well, okay. You are in a border State. That might happen in a border State. This goes throughout the country. These types of tragedies have happened throughout the country.

It is unfortunate and it is sad, but it is preventable in large measure.

We got a briefing at a Border Patrol station in southern Arizona. They are not too far below their full complement. They are about 80, maybe 75 percent of their full complement of agents. This is a big area, though, and they run three shifts. By the time you take care of time off, vacation days, sick days, by the time you take everything into account, you have seven people watching and monitoring the cameras that do not cover even all of the area for which this station is responsible.

You have seven Border Patrol agents trying to interdict, literally, over hundreds of miles, hundreds of miles largely fenced with a four-strand barbed wire fence. It isn't like you have even have T poles as your fencing poles or even a more rigid pole. It is basically branches of trees. That is what you have along that particular section of the border. It doesn't take much to get across.

So we went to Sasabe, which is a very small port of entry, and they have 1½ miles of bollard fencing either side of that. Then this is something that is really hard to explain, but they have, again, the four-strand barbed wire fence that rolls on out until, I know, where it goes into single-strand barbed wire fencing. I have been there, I have seen it. But on this trip, we just watched the four-strand barbed wire fence.

When you get there, how does it tie in to the bollard fencing: with a piece of rope that is tied to a slipknot.

And you think fences don't work? Of course they work. The bollard fence works. You can stand there right at the end of the bollard fence and look out into Mexico, and the several paths that you see moving north toward their border all come up to where that rope and that slipknot that is holding the four-strand barbed wire fence comes into the bollard fence, and they all come right to there.

Why? Because you lift up the rope, pull it down. You can actually put it back on and then continue on up the hill.

But there is a convenience store in that little town near that Border Patrol stocked with MREs. And guess who needs MREs: cartel scouts who are in the hills and mountains of southern Arizona and near that little town.

They sell bullets, not in the box. When I have ever bought bullets, ammunition for my guns, they are in little boxes—not here. You can get them in little baggies, you know, little plastic bags you buy to put your sandwich in. This is what you have.

So is it any wonder that in the Tucson sector, 40 percent of the drugs that have been seized in the last couple years are in that sector?

You have a drug problem. We have tens of thousands of people killed each year because of opioid abuse. The vast majority of that is coming across the southern border. And of that that is interdicted, you have a significant plurality that is coming right through that Tucson sector.

So we then had a chance to meet with some Border Patrol agents, talk to them about what is going on. It was marvelous. They gave us some ideas.

I want to talk a little bit about something that we really don't focus on.

Mr. Speaker, I am going to save that, though, because I see the gentleman from Arizona.

Mr. GRIFFITH. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. GOSAR).

Mr. GOSAR. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, as the gentleman said, we had a tour this weekend in which eight other Members plus Andy and I had actually gone on this 2-day border tour.

We spoke with the Border Patrol agents, ranchers, and law enforcement officials; and during our tour, we heard, firsthand, the destruction and the dangers that came with open borders and loopholes in our immigration laws.

Ranchers told their stories about the day-to-day reality of illegal aliens using their land as drug and human trafficking routes. They walked us through how these criminal organizations used their open borders and their land to make billions.

Now, let's look at the statistics.

In 2017, more than 49,000 Americans died from heroin and opioid-related overdoses. And we are just starting to see the intrusion of the synthetic fentanyl for which you don't get second chances. It is so toxic, that even a dose as small as a grain of salt given to somebody can kill them.

Ninety percent of the heroin in our country comes from the southern border. This weekend, I stood on the soil that thousands of illegal aliens walk to smuggle these deadly drugs into our country.

We also spoke with Border Patrol, who shared their stories detailing changes that have occurred, particularly in the last 10 years. They noted that one of the biggest changes they are seeing is the shift in the illegal aliens' attitude. Instead of fleeing, they are fighting. Illegal aliens have become emboldened by the advocacy of open borders the Democrats have promoted.

Now, over the last 5 years, we have seen a 2,000 percent increase in the asylum claims. We have seen a 50 percent rise in family units coming to our southern border. Ninety-eight percent of those family units will stay in our country.

Think about this. They will be turned in to our country; they will never come back to a court order, staying in our country. So it is very important to hear that 98 percent of these family units will stay in our country.

This isn't just lawmakers in Washington saying they have a crisis at our southern border; this is people who live the reality of this every day. These are the ranchers and individuals whose livelihood has been taken from them because open border advocates have chosen to protect illegal aliens instead of the citizens they represent.

Republicans have taken action and provided a solution; Democrats have not.

Ignoring this crisis diminishes the Americans and migrants who have fallen victims to the crimes committed by illegal aliens or are harmed because of illegal drugs flowing across the border.

Our job is to protect our own citizens, our country. The President's proposal echos the very need Border Patrol agents tell us firsthand they need: We need a wall, and we need it now.

Mr. GRIFFITH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his comments.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. BIGGS) for a question.

Mr. Speaker, in listening to the gentleman's remarks, of course I was there and saw this rope as well, but I think the folks back home need to be aware of this rope. We are not talking about some massive rope. We are talking about—what?—an inch, half-inch, quarter-inch rope?

Mr. BIGGS. Mr. Speaker and the gentleman, I would tell you, it looked to me like it was about a quarter-inch rope. It was not much more than what you would call about a clothesline width, but it was about a quarter to a half inch.

Mr. GRIFFITH. Mr. Speaker, in fact, was it not accurate that you could actually roll back part of the barbed wire fence once you took the rope off and you could have multiple people coming through at any given moment?

Mr. BIGGS. Mr. Speaker, that is correct.

Mr. GRIFFITH. Mr. Speaker, the reason that illegal immigrants or drug cartels would like it that way is that they can roll that back and, wearing their carpeted shoes which prevent tracking, they can then come in there, put it back, and that way the border agents who are working that area won't have any idea that somebody has actually come through there because they can't really tell. There is a well-worn track, but you won't know when somebody has come through.

Mr. Speaker, I ask the gentleman if that is his impression as well.

Mr. BIGGS. Mr. Speaker, yes, that was my impression. You also can't tell how many people are coming through. It may be one or two. It may be 20 or 40.

Mr. GRIFFITH. Mr. Speaker, in fact, there, they had a road as well, which our border agents told us was very helpful. When you have a wall, you have a road next to it to help catch those folks who are trying to come through. But they had a device up, also, made of heavy metal and concrete to prevent the drug traffickers from using vehicles at that point and bringing their stuff in and just loading it onto a vehicle.

Mr. Speaker, I ask the gentleman if that isn't correct.

Mr. BIGGS. Mr. Speaker, that is exactly right. In fact, that road kind of ended where the bollard fence ended. And then you had the Normandy fence that was sitting there, but then right next to it, you had that track for people to come walking through that barbed wire fence.

Mr. GRIFFITH. Mr. Speaker, continuing in this colloquy with my friend from Arizona, I ask if he would agree that when we heard from the border agents that the wall—this bollard fencing, wall, however you want to describe it—is important, but things like having roads where you can get in are also important, because we heard numerous stories.

I would like for the gentleman to maybe tell one, about how the agents may be able to see through electronic devices that somebody has crossed the border, but then it may take them hours to get there. I remember several specific stories, but I just wondered if Mr. BIGGS remembered any stories like that.

Mr. BIGGS. Mr. Speaker, yes. I would tell the gentleman that when I talked about, literally, nearly 1,000 or more square miles that seven agents are covering, if the camera is there, they have seen these people. By the time they get there—it takes 2, 2½ hours because it is rugged terrain—nobody is there anymore; because the sensors, the cameras are there, and nobody is there anymore, and they are moving on. That is because they are trying to get to their destination, which may be Tucson, it may be Phoenix, and from there, all points throughout the country for these drugs to be distributed.

But, yes, indeed, this happens over and over and over on a daily basis.

Mr. GRIFFITH. Mr. Speaker, I would say that we heard this repeatedly, and what we heard is that we need the wall to help channel this flow of illegal immigrants. We need the wall to make sure that we have some idea of what is going on. We need the electronic surveillance.

So this is not a one-size-fits-all kind of situation, but we need the electronic surveillance to help when we are monitoring the wall. We need additional folks on horseback. We need additional canine units.

We heard from one agent that we need, at the Customs department, density equipment so they can test to see if a tire is supposed to be a certain density. If it is twice as dense as it is supposed to be, they know that something is being hidden in that tire, some contraband, most likely drugs, and so this is important.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. BIGGS) for additional questions. I would like to continue our colloquy. I don't know if his colleague, also from Arizona, Mr. GOSAR, would like to join in that colloquy as well.

I would say to the gentleman, Mr. BIGGS of Arizona, did he also find it interesting that almost everybody who we talked to, and certainly all of the border guards and all of the ranchers right on the border, specifically said a wall would be helpful; but there were other things that needed to be done as well?

Mr. BIGGS. Mr. Speaker, yes. It was one of the Angel Moms, Mary Ann

Mendoza, who said it well. She said: A wall won't stop everyone, but no wall will stop no one. They wanted a wall.

There was not one person that I met, and that we met, that didn't advocate for a wall. But they also understood that you need to have the infrastructure, that is to say, roads. You need to have cameras and sensors. You need to actually have more boots on the ground: better vehicles that can get there, and, where necessary, horses.

Don't forget that they were using dogs, for instance, to sniff out currency. We have a shortage of dogs at the ports of entry and in the interior between the ports of entry.

They need lighter weight. We talked to one agent who said that when he is out there wearing his full bulletproof vest and the whole harness, if it is 110 degrees ambient temperature—which, by the way, most of our summer is going to be well above 100—he said that quickly rises and you are at 145 to 160 degrees as a Border Patrol agent.

So, yes, we need a lot. But the one thing that is foundational to all of this, to try to get the border under control, is fencing.

Mr. GRIFFITH. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. GOSAR). Would the gentleman tell me some of the stories related to fencing or additional equipment and how those fences will channel people; where it makes it easier to keep track of who is crossing that border? Did he have any stories that he might like to speak of?

Mr. GOSAR. Mr. Speaker, oh, absolutely.

The ranchers told us over and over again. One of the ranchers was working on one of his backhoes on his property. He turned to look and a well-armed illegal is sitting there with an automatic weapon. Over and over again we see this, time and time again.

We have the Border Patrol telling us, over and over again, that what they see is they will see a mass of undocumented that are family units or undocumented children. They have to take their resources and attach them to those people, allowing the drug cartels to swiftly move in another point of reference.

It is big country, as the gentleman from Virginia got to see. There is lots of space, that goes north and south that have the advantages of cover. In fact, if I am not mistaken, the gentleman can actually tell the story of our last stop in Nogales and what happened right in front of us over the border.

Mr. GRIFFITH. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I will tell that story, because what happened is very interesting.

The Border Patrol was there and an individual did cross the fence. Sometimes people say: Well, the people can climb over the fence. They can, but it slows them down and allows the border agents, using cameras and being there live on the scene, to intercept those people.

And, sure enough, there we are, standing—I think we kind of acted as blockers. This fellow comes over the fence and drops down. The border agents are moving fast, and there we are standing where the natural escape route would be. While we didn't do anything heroic, and we had to watch the border security agents do their job very professionally, they got the gentleman into custody fairly quickly, it was because there was a wall, agents, and a whole team of equipment working together: the cameras, the wall, and the agents working together.

If you don't have a wall there, they are never seeing that guy; they are never catching that guy, because he had to rise up and be seen in order to cross the border wall/fence.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BUDD).

Mr. BUDD. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend for yielding, and I also thank my friend from Arizona for inviting us to his home State to meet with several Members from Arizona. What an eye-opener. This is something that I have supported—the building of the wall, increasing our border security—standing strong with the President for that. But to see it in person was quite an eye-opener, and I really want to thank my friend for doing that.

After spending several days in Arizona, with Customs and Border Patrol, touring areas of this southern border, I can say with more assurance than ever that we are in desperate need of a wall. In certain areas, all that separates us from another sovereign nation is a barbed wire fence. Living on a cattle farm in North Carolina, if a fence on our farm was in the same condition as that, we would be spending all night to replace it because we would be losing cows left and right. Our ranchers down there in Arizona are losing their cows into Mexico. The cows from the ranches in Mexico are coming down.

You don't realize—we don't think about it much—but there are ranchers on the Mexican side that actually want a wall. They say: Please, build the wall. We don't think about hearing it that much, but we do because they don't want the cartels coming into their ranch and cutting their fences. There are a lot of problems.

While I was there, over and over, I heard, again and again, about the need to have a wall to shrink the amount of mileage that our Border Patrol agents need to cover.

When technology detects an illegal, it takes them about 2 hours by car to get there, give or take, and then about 2 hours on foot, and then from there it is a completely different game. A wall will act as a complement to our brave border agents, and it limits the amount of terrain, which is vast—it will limit the amount that they have to cover.

The situation facing the ranchers is bleak, as I mentioned before. I spoke to one woman, whose brother was killed by an illegal alien during a home invasion. We hear all the time about home invasions. Many of these Angel Families have been left with lost loved ones. Other families have had property damage or stolen vehicles. A simple F-150 pickup truck, that we would normally just park and take our keys with us, they have got chains wrapped around the whole vehicle to keep it from being stolen by the illegals.

We spoke with two other Angel Families, and their stories are heart-breaking and, unfortunately, not anomalies. Throughout the trip, we heard over and over again how the drug cartels will use illegal immigrants as decoys in order to overwhelm Customs and Border Patrol agents at the checkpoint, leaving the border unmanned so that they can move their drugs across.

Each immigrant, who is caught trying to illegally enter our country, takes about 2 to 4 hours to process. The cartels have done the math. They have sent waves and waves of people to tie up our Border Patrol so that they can, in essence, send their cartel and drug mules across in another area.

This weekend, President Trump put forth a plan that would reopen the government, but the plan was rejected by Democrats before it was even released. I call on my Democratic colleagues to come to the table and negotiate in good faith. In the past, Democrats have been more than open to securing our borders: in some cases, voting for $50 billion and $40 billion, respectively. The $5 billion that Trump is asking for pales in comparison.

Before us is a national security crisis, a drug crisis, and a humanitarian crisis. A wall will help in a much broader effort to get operational control of our border and keep our country safe.

Mr. GRIFFITH. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BABIN).

Mr. BABIN. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague from Arizona for this Special Order and for the opportunity to speak.

Mr. Speaker, last weekend, a handful of colleagues and I toured the southern border between Arizona and Mexico, meeting with Border Patrol agents, ranchers, law enforcement, and Angel Families, who have lost loved ones to illegals. Mr. Speaker, I can say, more confidently than ever, that we need stronger border security. This is not—I repeat, not—a manufactured crisis on the border, as we are hearing the opposite side of the aisle say.

This crisis at the border is getting worse, but the solution is the same: we must secure our borders in order to regain control of our broken immigration system. The brave men and women who put their lives on the line every day to protect our country are doing so without the full support of the Federal Government, and that is unacceptable and tragic. It certainly is not a manufactured crisis.

We need to build a border wall, construct roads and infrastructure, improve our technological resources, and restore pay to Border Patrol agents that was stripped out under the Obama administration. I hear our Democratic opponents say across the aisle that walls are immoral and ineffective. A wall is not immoral. It is absolutely necessary. Certainly, a wall will not prevent all illegals from coming over, but no wall keeps no one out.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues on the other side of the aisle to put their money where their mouth is and actually go and visit our southern border.

This is what our opponents say across the aisle is border security. We saw it. We were there. I want the American people to see this, and my constituents to see this. Our Democrat colleagues need to go down to the border and see this.

Mr. GRIFFITH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his remarks.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. BIGGS) for the conclusion on this great trip.

Mr. BIGGS. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate everyone who went to the border with us. We will be doing it again. I will invite my Democratic colleagues to come with us as well. It is eye-opening.

Mr. GRIFFITH. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

CELEBRATING BOONE DRUG'S 100TH ANNIVERSARY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2019, the Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Ms. FOXX) for 30 minutes.

Ms. FOXX of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I rise to congratulate Boone Drug in Boone, North Carolina, on celebrating the 100th anniversary of the founding of its original store, opened in North Carolina's Fifth District by Dr. George Kelly Moose. With this longevity of service in the community, Boone Drug can truly claim to be a neighborhood institution. In January 1919, when it opened, it was one of only two drugstores in Boone, and it has thrived in the midst of the changes of the pharmaceutical industry through the last century.

For 50 years, customers went to see Dr. Moose, walking from miles away to buy their medicine at Boone Drug. The upstairs of the building was occupied by a group of doctors and a dentist, which kept constant traffic moving in and out of the store. Dr. Moose even kept his drugstore open until each doctor had seen his last patient, often late into the night.

In 1947, two brothers, Dr. Odell Kelly—"O.K." for Odell Kelly—and Dr. Wayne Richardson, joined Dr. Moose at the pharmacy. The space was expanded for a soda fountain and grill, where many locals socialized, and the town's movers and shakers talked politics.

Joe Miller was next to join the Boone Drug ownership. Having worked at the fountain in high school, the Richardson brothers convinced him to go to pharmacy school and eventually made him a fourth owner.

Dr. Miller was joined by Dr. John Stacy and Dr. Jim Furman. They have kept alive the legacy of customer service, philanthropy, and business expansion of their predecessors. The Boone Drug pharmacists often volunteered their services, staying open until 9 p.m.; so that physicians could work long hours and patients could fill their prescriptions after a late-night doctor's visit. The store's philosophy was that anyone who came in with a prescription left with medicine, even if one didn't have the means to cover the entire prescription's cost right away.

In the mid-1980s, Dr. Miller broadened the store's horizons, selling art supplies. The popular art supply store, named Cheap Joe's Art Stuff, began in the upstairs of the drugstore. At first, art supplies were placed on shelves between over-the-counter medicines downstairs. Eventually, what started as Dr. Miller's hobby outgrew the drugstore and Cheap Joe's Art Stuff moved into its own location, serving customers worldwide.

Although the drugstore's fountain and grill closed in 2011, the owners have filled its former space with a non-profit community kitchen that feeds the hungry.

Today, there are 17 Boone Drug locations in North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee. The pharmacists in these pharmacies serve as direct contacts for medical information without an appointment or the expense of a doctor's visit.

Boone Drug provides a shining example of the important role that pharmacies play in supporting healthy communities. They provide immunizations, durable medical equipment, counseling, and expertise in healthcare.

I have been a patron of Boone Drug since moving to Boone as a student at Appalachian State University and always enjoy my visits to the store. I continue to love all the wonderful employees and am privileged to represent this small business and local pharmacy. It treats clients like family, which is the hallmark of a small town drugstore that lasts a century, and I wish Boone Drug another 100 years of success.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Congressional Record

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 116th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

Vol. 165

WASHINGTON, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 23, 2019

No. 14

Senate

(Legislative day of Tuesday, January 22, 2019)

The Senate met at 11 a.m., on the expiration of the recess, and was called to order by the Honorable JOHN HOEVEN, a Senator from the State of North Dakota.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Eternal God, the center of our joy, on September 11, 2001, our Nation united because of an external threat. Remind our lawmakers that nations are not only destroyed from without but from within.

As each Senator has taken an oath to protect our Constitution from all enemies, foreign and domestic, provide him or her with the guidance to passionately defend this land we love from the most subtle incursions. Lord, as some Members of our Armed Forces seek sustenance at charity food pantries and prepare to miss a second payday, something has to give.

Forgive us, almighty God, for our sins of commission and omission. Remind each Senator of the words of Jesus of Nazareth in Luke 10:7: "Those who work deserve their pay."

We pray in Your sovereign Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Presiding Officer led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. GRASSLEY).

U.S. SENATE,
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,
Washington, DC, January 23, 2019.

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable JOHN HOEVEN, a Senator from the State of North Dakota, to perform the duties of the Chair.

CHUCK GRASSLEY,
President pro tempore.

Mr. HOEVEN thereupon assumed the Chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

STRENGTHENING AMERICA'S SECURITY IN THE MIDDLE EAST ACT OF 2019—MOTION TO PROCEED—Resumed

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will report the pending business.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

Motion to proceed to S. 1, a bill to make improvements to certain defense and security assistance provisions and to authorize the appropriation of funds to Israel, to reauthorize the United States-Jordan Defense Cooperation Act of 2015, and to halt the wholesale slaughter of the Syrian people, and for other purposes.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Democratic leader is recognized.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, yesterday, the Republican leader, my friend, announced that the Senate would hold two votes on Thursday afternoon. First, the Senate will vote on the President's proposal, and then the Senate will vote on an amendment that is essentially identical to the underlying bill sent to us from the House, meaning a continuing resolution that opens the government for 3 weeks plus disaster assistance.

Let me be very clear. These two votes are not equivalent votes. It is not "on the one hand, on the other hand." The President's proposal demands a wall and radical legal immigration changes in exchange for opening up the government. The second vote demands nothing in exchange for opening up the government.

The first vote—unless you do it my way, I am keeping the government shut down—is the Trump amendment. Our amendment says: Open up the government, and then let's talk.

To say, well, one is a Democratic amendment and one is a Republican amendment doesn't get the magnitude of this. The difference is one is holding 800,000 workers hostage—millions of Americans hostage—unless the amendment authors get their way. The second vote doesn't demand anything. It just says to open up the government and then let's discuss it.

The first vote, on the President's plan, includes radical changes to our asylum system and the full funding the President asked for the border wall in exchange for reopening the government. The first vote is completely partisan. The first vote is the President's hostage-taking position codified into an amendment. It says: You must do it our way and pay $5.7 billion for a wall before we open the government.

The second vote is the opposite. It does not demand anything before we reopen the government. It simply reopens the government for 3 weeks and allows us to continue debating border security. There is nothing partisan about the second vote. If President Trump weren't opposed to it, there would be nothing controversial about the second vote and just about every Republican would vote for it, as they did the first time, a month ago.

S483

The second vote is not a Democratic proposal with demands. The first vote is a Republican proposal with Republican demands. One simply reopens the government. The other says: No way. It embodies the President's temper tantrum: If you don't do it my way, I am shutting down the government and hurting lots of people.

The two votes are not equivalent. It is not "on the one hand, on the other." They are diametrically opposed in concept.

I do give Leader MCCONNELL credit. He put on the floor, for the first time, an ability for Senators to vote on a clean proposal to reopen the government. That is the second vote. It is completely silent on the issue of border security. A vote for the continuing resolution does not preclude a continued discussion on how we best secure our border. It isn't pro-wall or anti-wall. It just says: Open up the government. It is a way to reopen government while we continue to work out our differences.

I want my Republican friends to understand the stakes here. Reopening the government for 3 weeks may not sound like a long time, but it is massively important to 800,000 public servants who have been languishing without pay. Reopening the government even for 3 weeks would mean that all 800,000 get their backpay, to which they are entitled. That is three full paychecks: one for January 11, one for January 25, and one for February 8. Let me repeat that. Even a 3-week continuing resolution would provide three full paychecks to our Federal employees: TSA, Border Patrol, FBI agents, air traffic controllers, food safety inspectors, Coast Guard. Every one of the ones I mentioned involves our security. The President says—in my opinion, totally incorrectly, misstating all of the facts—that we need the big wall for our security. Even if he succeeds—which he will not, I believe—it would take years to build that wall. There is also eminent domain and so many other issues that it might never be built at all. But this is hurting TSA, hurting Border Patrol, and hurting FBI agents, air traffic controllers, food safety inspectors, and Coast Guard members, who all deal with our security right now—right now.

So if you believe in the security of America, you vote for the second amendment, no matter what you think of the wall.

The American people, more and more—it is amazing—they are on our side to start with, and they are turning more on our side now. In a CBS poll this morning, 7 out of 10 Americans say the issue of a border wall is not worth this government shutdown, including 71 percent of Independents, but, astoundingly, 43 percent of all Republicans say a border wall is not worth a government shutdown. Close to half of all Republican voters are saying to President Trump and to Leader MCCONNELL and to every Republican Senator in this Chamber: Don't keep this shutdown going over the wall. Don't hold the government hostage. Open it back up and figure out your policy differences.

Parenthetically, I would remind my colleagues that this poll—and another one this morning showed the same thing with President Trump's ratings lower than ever—occurred after his speech on Saturday. His gambit to try to get the shutdown off his back failed, as it should have, because the shutdown is solely his. He said he was proud of it. He said 25 times before he did it that he wanted to do it. Everyone knows the shutdown is his. Neither the President nor our Republican friends can squiggle out of that one. Because of the President's destructive hostage-taking gambit, as I said, his disapproval rating reached the highest level of his Presidency in the CBS poll.

What more do my Republican colleagues need to hear? The will of the American people is crystal clear: Open the government.

I know that President Trump has some power in these Republican primaries, but sometimes you have to rise to the occasion.

The second bill, without any preconceptions or preconditions says: Open the government. The first bill is hostage-taking: Unless you do it my way, the government is staying shut down.

So these are not equivalent bills. These are not "on the one hand, on the other hand."

For weeks we have been at a stalemate. Leader MCCONNELL has not allowed a vote on legislation to reopen the government until now. Tomorrow the Senate will finally have its chance. We can reopen the government until February 8 and continue to discuss border security. If you are worried about hundreds of thousands of Federal employees going without pay, if you are worried about the impacts of the shutdown on our economy or our basic security—as law enforcement, Border Patrol, and food safety are not paid—if you are worried about our national security, and if you are looking for a way to open up the government, this is the way. The second vote is the only way that is on the floor of the Senate and can actually open up the government.

I urge all of my Republican colleagues, as they did once before—before President Trump said what he said—to join Democrats on a bipartisan basis on the second vote tomorrow and, finally, open up the government.

I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Ohio.

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. President, I am here today to talk about the ongoing government shutdown and the need to provide more security on our southern border and to try to put a little perspective around it.

The President just issued his own proposal. It is a reasonable proposal, I think, and a constructive proposal to try to end this shutdown and reopen the government and strengthen the southern border. I am told we are going to vote on that plan tomorrow here in the Senate. It includes a lot of the ideas that I have been discussing with colleagues on both sides of the aisle, Democrats and Republicans, over the past few weeks. Some of these ideas are ones that Democrats support more, and some the Republicans support more. It is the basis for a compromise.

I am going to vote for the President's plan, and I am going to explain here in a minute why I would hope that colleagues on both sides of the aisle would support that plan tomorrow as a way to take a step forward and to take a step back from the partisanship and the division that is keeping our government shutdown.

My hope is that even if the proposal cannot pass with a 60-vote majority, which, unfortunately, seems likely right now, it will spark good-faith negotiations to enable us to quickly end the government shutdown and move forward.

Unfortunately, some of the partisanship and division I talked about has made that harder. It is interesting that even before the President made his announcement, but on the day he was making it, the Speaker of the House, NANCY PELOSI, said the proposal was a nonstarter before she knew what was in it. That is not serious. That is not the basis for a serious negotiation and certainly not responsible for us in the middle of a partial government shutdown.

I think there is in this body—and, I think, in the House, as well—a general consensus that we need to do more to protect the southern border. The Democratic leadership of the House and the Speaker of the House just presented a billion-dollar plan, for instance, for more border security.

I call it a crisis, but call it what you want. Here are the facts. During October and November of last year, the most recent months for which we have good information, Customs and Border Protection agents apprehended more than 100,000 people trying to enter our country illegally. That is nearly double the number of people who were apprehended a year ago in 2017. That is twice as many people.

The big increase, as you know, is with families and kids, unaccompanied children. According to the Department of Homeland Security, there has been a 50-percent increase in the number of families coming across the border illegally and a 25 percent increase in the number of children during fiscal year 2018. Along with that, there has been a 2,000-percent increase over the past 5 years in asylum claims. That increase has primarily come from three Central American countries: Guatemala, El Salvador and Honduras. While 9 out of 10 of these asylum claims are ultimately rejected by the immigration courts, the applicants have long since been released into the interior of the United States. People don't stay in detention waiting for their hearing. They are released into our communities. I am told by Customs and Border Protection that they think about 90 percent of those families and children are never removed.

Is that a problem? I think everyone should agree that this is a problem. The system is breaking down.

In fiscal year 2018, Customs and Border Protection referred nearly 50,000 unaccompanied minors—all of whom came across our southern border to seek asylum—to the Department of Health and Human Services for care. I have done a lot of work on this issue in the Homeland Security subcommittee called the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations.

It is a tough situation. It is a tough situation to have these kids in any kind of detention for any kind of time. It is a tough situation for these children, many of whom have experienced trauma and violence on their journey north and need significant help.

Human trafficking remains a significant problem along the border. Law enforcement officials on both sides continue to arrest people for facilitating labor and sex trafficking of adults and children, women and children. Local law enforcement along the border have repeatedly voiced their concerns.

In addition to the individuals trafficked into the United States involuntarily, criminal smuggling networks mislead prospective migrants by assuring them a safe route into the United States. This happens all the time. According to a survey by Doctors Without Borders, over two-thirds of migrants report facing violence on the journey north, including theft, extortion, torture, and sexual assault. Almost one-third of women report being sexually abused while being taken on that journey north to enter the United States. This is something none of us should find acceptable.

Furthermore, as we know, the Drug Enforcement Agency has said: "The southwest border remains the primary entry point for heroin into the United States." There is no disagreement about that. I am told that about 90 percent of the heroin that is flowing into our communities comes across the southern border and that fentanyl, which is this incredibly powerful synthetic opioid that is 50 times more powerful than heroin and comes primarily from China and primarily through the Postal Service, is actually increasingly going through Mexico too. Law enforcement tells me that it is being shipped from China to Mexico and is then being taken across the southern border. Seizures of fentanyl—which, by the way, is the No. 1 cause of death in my home State of Ohio and in, probably, your States—increased by 135 percent in its coming across the southern border last year as compared to 2017. Again, most of it is coming from China, and most of it is coming through the mail system, but increasingly it is also coming across the border.

It gets worse. Over the past few weeks, I have been at three meetings with drug abuse task forces in Ohio and have talked about the crisis back home and how we should address it, and we are making some progress. That is the good news. Progress is also being made with regard to opioids. We are seeing fewer deaths by overdose, and we are seeing fewer addictions.

What we have done here in Congress is to put more money into prevention and treatment and longer term recovery, and our providing Narcan to our first responders and others is beginning to work.

Guess what I heard from all three of these task forces. It is that now, coming up—raising its ugly head—is pure crystal meth. Methamphetamines are taking the place of opioids in some of these communities. That is the new scourge. Guess where this crystal meth is coming from—Mexico. This is pure, powerful crystal meth. We have seen a 38-percent increase in methamphetamine trafficking across the border, again, just from 2017 to 2018.

I don't think there is any disagreement on either side of the aisle that we need a more secure southern border, not just because of people coming in illegally but because of the fact that there is trafficking, that there are drugs being transported across that border, and we all want to address it.

Senator SCHUMER, who just spoke, has talked a lot about the need for more screening at our ports of entry because most of these drugs come in by way of cars and trucks. He is right. By the way, that is in the President's proposal.

Because of all of those problems, the experts tell us we need to do some things. One thing they say they need are more physical barriers. This is from the experts. They also want more Border Patrol agents. They want more technology. They want more surveillance, more cameras. They want drones to be in some places that are out in the desert so they can see what is going on. They want more screening at the ports of entry. Again, the Democrats have supported it, and I have supported it. They are looking for anything they can do to try to stop the flow of drugs and to do it with technology, and that takes more money.

I believe the proposal the President outlined over the weekend hits all of those points. That is why I think it is responsible. He made clear that he is prepared to have these new barriers that he is proposing not be cement walls, which is what so many Democrats have opposed, but, rather, to be fences. In some places, they should be wire—pedestrian fences. In other places, they should be low vehicle barriers. In other places, they should be what the President has called steel barriers, the ones you see through. That is the kind of construction we are talking about here, not the cement wall that a lot of people think he is proposing. Frankly, that is what they have taken from what he has said and from what the Democrats have said. It is almost like we are talking past each other.

Second, specifically, his proposal stipulates that these barriers would be constructed in a way that would be consistent with the "Border Security Improvement Plan." It is a plan that experts at the Customs and Border Protection Agency have proposed. These are the experts.

It is not 2,000 miles of the border that would have these fences and structures and barriers that we are talking about. In the President's proposal—and this is going to surprise you—it would be 234 miles of the border.

So, No. 1, they would not be the cement walls in the way that people are talking about. No. 2, it is going to be done in the way in which the experts recommend in terms of where they are going to be placed and what kinds of structures they will be. It will also be a total of 234 miles out of the 2,000-mile border.

The 234 miles are going to support the top 10 priorities of this plan that the Customs and Border Protection people have submitted, which is this "Border Security Improvement Plan." It is going to be specifically what the experts say the top 10 priorities are. What are their top 10 priorities? I am told, for instance, it is a new fence in parts of Texas where there is no fencing in the urban areas. That is in the plan. The White House is not making these decisions, but the experts are through this border security plan.

The legislation that the President has proposed has some specific language in it saying that these barriers must be built in an operational, effective design that prioritizes agents' safety. That language, folks, was taken right out of the bipartisan fiscal 2018 appropriations bill that this Senate passed last year. This is consistent with votes we have taken in the past as to what kind of wall it will be and where it will be. That means the definition is one we have long voted for. As we speak, approximately 115 miles of border barrier is being built using this same definition because it was proposed and voted on by this Chamber last year, just a year ago, on a bipartisan basis.

The $5.7 billion proposal in funding for the construction of additional physical barriers along the southern border is consistent with what the experts say ought to be done.

Based on the Secure Fence Act back in 2006, which, again, was bipartisan, more than 500 miles of fencing have already been built in California, in Arizona, and in New Mexico by previous administrations, Republican and Democratic alike. Based on the data, on the actual facts, it is making a difference. The data from Customs and Border Protection show that in areas where this fencing has been built, apprehensions have decreased substantially. That probably doesn't surprise you if you think about it. At a minimum, having these barriers slows people down and keeps vehicles from coming across that desert terrain, which gives the Border Patrol a chance to respond, along with there being the technology—the cameras, the sensors.

Again, another one of the misconceptions about this whole debate is that it is over the entire 2,000-mile border. It is not. It is over 234 miles. These barriers will be strategically deployed. They will be built where they are the most needed—in populated areas, where there are not already natural barriers to keep people from crossing. What his proposal does, as I look at it, is it fills a demonstrated infrastructure gap along the border but only where it is necessary.

As we talked about, our Border Patrol experts say Texas is their top priority. Why? It is because Texas is 1,200 miles of the 2,000-mile border and because there are only 100 miles of barrier in Texas currently. So there are over 500 miles of border that have barriers, and only 100 miles of that is in Texas, which has 1,200 miles of the border. It has most of the border.

The new fencing is particularly necessary in the most populated parts of the Rio Grande Valley. McAllen, TX, is one example of that. To me, that makes sense because that is where about 40 percent of the crossings occur and because they are asking for this fencing there. These are the experts.

In addition to there being more funding for more barriers, the President has requested more money with which to hire another 750 Border Patrol agents and 2,000 additional law enforcement professionals. Again, more people to be able to respond is something that on a bipartisan basis, I think we support here.

He is proposing $800 million for humanitarian needs, to fund and enhance medical support and transportation facilities for those who are detained at the border. This is consistent with what the Democrats have supported in order to deal with the humanitarian challenge. The Homeland Security appropriations bill already includes funding for these purposes, but the President requested additional funds to help with the influx we have talked about. So it is like a supplemental spending request. We have had more families and more unaccompanied children in particular, so it makes sense to have more humanitarian funds available to deal with that.

The President has also requested $563 million for 75 additional immigration judges and support staff so we can reduce the nearly 800,000 pending immigration cases that are backlogged. This backlog is part of our problem because people are typically in the communities, and many of them don't show up for their court cases. Reduce the backlog—that is the obvious answer here. By the way, this part of the President's proposal is identical to the proposal Speaker PELOSI made just a few days ago. It is identical—75 new judges and support staff.

Finally, the President has requested a total of $805 million for counter-narcotics and weapons technology screening at the ports of entry. There is $675 million within that for reinvestment in drug and weapons detection and $130 million for K-9 units, training, personnel, and portable scanners. Again, this is one some of us feel very strongly about, including Senator SCHUMER and including a lot of us on this side of the aisle. It is one that was also proposed by Speaker PELOSI a few days ago—more money for screening at the ports of entry. Her proposal is almost identical to the President's, except, frankly, the President proposes a little more money for the same purposes.

It is like we are talking past each other. We know there is a need. We generally agree. There is a general consensus on the need for what has to be done along the border; yet we can't seem to find common ground. To try to get there, in addition to these funding requests—and I applaud him for this—the President outlined his support for dealing with other immigration reforms that both parties support, such as DACA.

I remember DACA as being these young people who came here as children through no fault of their own and that the question was, Do you continue the program that President Obama set in place or not? My view is to resolve this political football once and for all and provide certainty to these young people who came here through no fault of their own. Some of them are working, some of them are in school, and some are in the military. They are looking for some certainty.

In the way the legislation is drafted, it is for these young people who have taken the responsible course and have gone to school or who are working or who are in our military. This is a process whereby we can provide that certainty, and the President has proposed it. He has proposed for all of those children who have applied for and been accepted into this DACA Program 3 years of additional authorization to be here, which will be past this administration.

The President has also embraced an effort to look at this issue of temporary protected status, or TPS, which allows us to provide protection to individuals who come from particularly trouble-stricken countries, and there are now 10 countries on that list. The Secretary of Homeland Security has the authority to provide harbor to those individuals where there has been a natural disaster, where there is a war, or where there has been a lot of violence in those countries.

Some of those TPS visas are expiring. I believe the President has laid out something that many Democrats have called for that makes sense, in my view, which is to provide some more certainty for some of those individuals. Again, it is a 3-year authorization, which will go beyond the next election.

The President has also talked about changing the asylum process. He has picked up some ideas from that side of the aisle and this side of the aisle, including having people apply for asylum in their own countries.

This is an attempt to find that common ground. Yes, let's be sure we have a protected southern border, but let's also deal with what have been some political and, unfortunately, intractable problems. For all of these reasons, I think we need to come together and negotiate a solution. I think the President's proposal is a reasonable one. That is why I plan to support it.

I know my Democratic colleagues have other ideas as well. What I said to them this morning and last night and will say again this afternoon when we meet—Republicans and Democrats alike—is, let's talk. We are not that far apart. Let's close this gap. That is what I find to be the most frustrating part of this. Yes, we have had shutdowns in the past, but I don't think we have ever had a shutdown that is so easy to resolve. We are not that far apart. If we would stop talking past each other, including as to what kind of structures we are going to put along the border, as I talked about, I think we could get there.

In my view, shutdowns don't make sense. We are now in day 33 of this government shutdown. I am not a big fan. I have legislation I have now introduced five times in Congress to say let's end government shutdowns. The legislation would simply continue the spending from the previous year and reduce it by 1 percent after 120 days and another 1 percent after the next 90 days in order to incentivize Congress to get its act together and actually pass the appropriations bills.

At day 33, 800,000 workers have missed one paycheck, and another paycheck is coming up tomorrow.

I have heard from a lot of folks in my State of Ohio—TSA employees, of course, at the airports, many of whom I spoke to when I came to Washington yesterday morning. It is a tough situation for them. Some of them don't have the savings. They live paycheck to paycheck. They are getting by through a combination of things—family members helping them, talking to the banks about their car payments or their mortgage payments. It is putting a lot of stress on them. I applaud them for showing up to work, by the way.

Workers at NASA—NASA Glenn in Cleveland, OH—can't go to work, so our space program is being slowed down. That is a problem.

Across the board, I am hearing from people who are in law enforcement, our prosecutors, saying they can't pay informants to be able to go after drug dealers. I am hearing from our Coast Guard personnel on Lake Erie. Again, these are patriots. They are showing up for work. I applaud them for that. I thank them. We owe them an end to this shutdown and a resolution to this issue.

I also don't like shutdowns because, frankly, as bad as they are for families, they are also bad for taxpayers. As taxpayers, we always end up paying more in the end. In the end, we are paying people not to work because people who are furloughed are going to get their paychecks when this is over. That doesn't seem very good for taxpayers. The people who are actually showing up for work—we are not paying them now, but we will pay them later. It is inefficient. Services are being cut off. Yet, in the end, taxpayers are going to be paying for it. So it doesn't help taxpayers.

I also don't like it because it hurts our economy. People say: Well, not much. We are doing fine.

We are doing fine. Thanks to the tax cuts and tax reform and regulatory relief, the economy is doing better, but this is running the other way. This is providing negative momentum.

The Council of Economic Advisers at the White House told us this week that the shutdown is going to reduce quarterly economic growth by 0.13 percent for every week it lasts. In other words, every week the shutdown continues, it hurts our economy more. If this shutdown lasts another 4 weeks, that will be a full point off GDP. So in just another 23 days, it will be a full point off our GDP. That is a big deal. That hurts paychecks, it hurts jobs, and it hurts the economic growth that all of us are so happy to finally have—to see the fact that unemployment is low, to see the fact that there are more jobs out there than there are workers looking, and to see the fact that wages are finally starting to increase. Let's not go the other way.

We have the opportunity before us to solve this. It is not that hard. Let's stop talking past each other. Let's find that common ground.

The President is going to have to continue to negotiate, and he says that he will. The Speaker of the House is going to have to move. It is not responsible for her to say not a penny more for barriers along the border, which she traditionally supported, as have other Democrats.

Let's act in good faith. Let's move forward to a responsible resolution that will reopen the government but will also ensure that we have a secure southern border. That is what the American people want. That is what we should be providing in the Senate and in the House, working with the President. Let's come together, and let's get it done.

I yield back my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. MURKOWSKI). The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. BARRASSO. Madam President, I have up here a quote from the Washington Post from January 20, 2019. The words say: "to refuse even to talk until the government reopens does no favors to sidelined Federal workers and contractors"—to refuse even to talk. This is a Washington Post editorial message to the Democrats.

The Post says that the Democrats should welcome the President's week-end offer and return to the negotiating table to end this partial government shutdown, which is now in its fifth week. I agree. It is time to end this stalemate. It is time to talk, and it is time to vote.

The title of the editorial was "Make a deal. Save the dreamers"—make a deal.

Divided government is often messy business. It is also serious business. It is what the American people have voted for and what we have seen more often than not in this country. Politically, there really are no winners and losers in this arena. What I worry about is the American people. Nobody wins in terms of a shutdown.

The Senate will vote tomorrow on commonsense, compromise legislation to secure the border, reopen the government, as well as to address what I believe are key immigration issues for the country.

We do have a national security and a humanitarian crisis at our southern border. President Trump has, again, requested $5.7 billion. That is one one-thousandth of the Federal spending. He has requested the money for a steel barrier system.

The southern border is almost 2,000 miles. The physical barrier already protects about 650 miles. The President wants to build more security barriers because we know they are a proven solution.

In addition, the President is proposing to grant provisional status—a 3-year reprieve—for the 700,000 Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals illegal immigrants, known as DACA. This 3-year reprieve will also help 300,000 temporary protected status immigrants. When people say TPS, that is what it stands for—immigrants with temporary protected status. Right now, they have protected status, but that is expiring. These are individuals who have suffered devastation in their lives due to the challenges previously faced in Haiti, as well as individuals from Central America. So we are talking about over 1 million people for whom the President is proposing changes that would impact them and their lives.

These DACA and TPS measures are an immigration policy bandaid. They are not the solution to everything. They deal with an immediate problem for a limited period of time. Once the government reopens, the President then plans, as he said, to hold weekly, bipartisan meetings aimed at broader immigration reform.

Border security policy has always been bipartisan. For decades, Presidents and congressional leaders from both parties have supported security barriers to protect the American people.

In 2006, Senate Democrats, including Senator Barack Obama at the time and Senator Hillary Clinton and Senator Joe Biden and Senator CHUCK SCHUMER—all of them—voted to construct a physical barrier on the southern barrier.

In 2005, then-Senator Obama said this: "We simply cannot allow people to pour into the United States undetected, undocumented, and unchecked." Then, when Senator Obama became President Obama, he actually described the border situation as a crisis, but he failed to fix it.

President Trump resolved to fix the decades-old problem. That is when Democratic leaders suddenly changed their tune. They withdrew support for securing the border and dug in their heels, prolonging the partial government shutdown.

Even President Obama's last Border Patrol Chief, Mark Morgan, supports President Trump's efforts. President Trump did not keep him in the job, but Mark Morgan has said—and he was on television the other day—that building the wall is key to solving the security crisis and that Trump—President Trump—should "stay the course."

Still, Democrats refuse to negotiate with this President, so we can't reopen the affected Federal Agencies and pay the 800,000 furloughed Federal workers.

President Trump has the truth on his side. Here is the Homeland Security Department's assessment of the border situation: Each month, 60,000 illegal immigrants reach the border. Drug smuggling spiked in 2018, with a 38-percent increase in methamphetamine, a 22-percent increase in heroin, and a 73-percent increase in fentanyl. We also saw a surge in arrests of dangerous criminals, including 17,000 adults with criminal records and 6,000 MS-13 and other gang members.

In 2018, 60,000 unaccompanied children and 161,000 families reached the border—a dramatic increase from 2017. Many were victimized along their journey.

The Border Patrol areas that do have enhanced or expanded physical barriers have seen a dramatic decrease in illegal traffic. That is why the President has requested additional funds to construct more barriers. The areas he has pointed to are the 10 locations where the Border Patrol has said: These are the spots where we really need the help.

All Americans want a healthy immigration system that enforces the law and keeps families together. The President has put a reasonable, bipartisan compromise on the table to end this partial shutdown and to pay furloughed Federal workers. President Trump is ready to sign this legislation. The Senate will vote on it tomorrow.

The House Democrats hold the keys to reopening the government. I believe Democrats should stop playing politics and meet President Trump in the middle. That is what President has done with his good-faith effort.

I say: Let's vote to secure the border and vote to reopen the government.

TRIBUTE TO ALFRED REDMAN, SR.

Madam President, now I would like to turn to a different topic that would be at an appropriate location in the RECORD. It is something that I think the Presiding Officer, as the former chairman of the Indian Affairs Committee, would find interesting. That is because I rise today to pay tribute to an incredible individual, a great man, the legendary Indian High School boys' basketball coach, Alfred Redman.

Saturday night, in Ethete, WY, the long-time coach was surrounded by school officials, by players, and by fans, who gathered for a ceremony renaming the school's gymnasium in his honor. Redman's incredible coaching record as he coached the Chiefs was 426 wins and 118 losses in 26 seasons.

Under his leadership, the Chiefs consistently made State tournament appearances, winning six State championship titles, and finishing second six additional times.

Coach Redman was tough. He conditioned his players through grueling practices. This was his formula for success: Work the players hard and make the games easier to win. His toughness paid off. He put Wyoming Indian basketball on the map, both at the State and the national levels.

Over the seasons, from 1983 to 1986, Redman's Chiefs set the State bar with a recordbreaking 50 straight victories. That record still stands today. It is no surprise that Redman is both a Wyoming and a national coaches Hall of Fame inductee.

Wyoming owes a great debt of gratitude to Coach Redman—a giant in State basketball history.

Thank you.

I yield the floor.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island.

GOVERNMENT FUNDING

Mr. REED. Madam President, I come to the floor again to urge an end to the Trump shutdown, which is over a month old—the longest in history.

Let's be clear. This is the Trump shutdown. The President called for a shutdown two dozen times, and he said he would be proud to own it.

Regrettably, it is clear that he does not care about the impact his shutdown is having on families across the United States. He barely acknowledges their pain.

If you needed any reminder of the low regard the President has for the Federal workforce, remember that on December 28, in the midst of the shutdown he instigated, he signed an Executive order that will freeze pay for the civilian workforce in 2019—assuming he ever reopens the government.

With his announcement on Saturday, the President is now playing games with the lives of hundreds of thousands of refugees and Dreamers, who, because of his earlier actions, could face the real threat of deportation.

Meanwhile, his administration is playing favorites, rewarding those with deep pockets and good connections, forcing IRS employees back to work without pay to process tax returns, reopening the Department of the Interior to help pave the way for oil and gas leaks.

For those without resources, it is often a different story. Recipients of Federal housing assistance, for example, are wondering what their status might be in the next month.

FBI agents are worried about the effect the shutdown will have on active investigations. Air traffic controllers, FAA inspectors, and TSA workers are working long hours to keep flights on time and safe, but the cost to them and their Agencies will stretch years into the future.

Transit agencies, unable to draw down needed Federal capital and operating funding, are also feeling the pinch, which could affect service and safety down the line. We have seen this coming. That is why Democrats have been pleading with the majority leader for weeks to allow a vote on the funding bills that Senate Republicans wrote last year so we can reopen the government. These measures have broad bipartisan support. In fact, the leader voted for each of them, but for weeks, the majority leader refused to allow a vote on these and other bills, saying the Senate will not waste floor time on show votes, on bills he believes the President will not sign. By his definition, he can only bring up bills that can pass the House, earn 60 votes in the Senate, and get the President's signature.

As the leader knows, when there is a veto-proof majority—as there has been in the Senate on these very bills to fund the government—the President is, quite frankly, irrelevant.

Here is what the record shows: Last year, the Senate passed the Agriculture appropriations bill 92 to 6. We passed the Interior appropriations bill 92 to 6. We passed the Financial Services-General Government appropriations bill 92 to 6. We passed the Transportation-HUD appropriations bill 92 to 6. Although they didn't come to the floor, the Appropriations Committee passed the Commerce-Justice-Science bill and the State-Foreign Operations bill unanimously.

As for the Department of Homeland Security, we passed a continuing resolution in the Senate unanimously last year to keep the Department funded at least temporarily. There is no reason we can't pass that measure again and start paying our coastguardsmen and other DHS personnel. What cannot pass is President Trump's demand for billions and billions to build hundreds of miles of ineffective wall through places where it is unwarranted.

Don't take my word for it. Listen to Congressman WILL HURD, a Texas Republican, who represents a district he says includes 820 miles of the roughly 1,900-mile border with Mexico. Congressman HURD has called the wall "the most expensive and least effective way to secure the border." He is correct, and MIT engineers and other experts have estimated this wall will cost well north of $30-plus billion.

Democrats want to focus on border security infrastructure but the improvements of greatest need, including ports of entry and more effective technology to detect illegal border crossings and drug smuggling. Once the government is open, there is room for debate on how best to improve border security and even on longstanding immigration matters.

It will not be easy. First, the President's call for a wall is as political as the day is long. He is focused on motivating the roughly 30 percent of Americans who think keeping the government shut down is a good thing.

Second, negotiating with this President has proved a difficult job, even for members of his own party because he has a hard time keeping his end of the bargain. In December, when Republicans controlled both the House and Senate, the Senate unanimously passed a bipartisan deal, sponsored by the majority leader, to keep the government funded until the beginning of February. The clear understanding was that the President, as communicated by Vice President PENCE, would sign the legislation, but, within hours, the President scuttled the agreement.

Going back to March 2018, the President nearly vetoed the Republican Omnibus appropriations bill that was based on funding levels he had already agreed to.

As far as funding for border security, the President changes his demands constantly. First, Mexico was going to pay for the President's border wall. Last February, he asked taxpayers for $1.6 billion. Then it became $5 billion. Now it is $5.7 billion. How is it possible to make a deal with, frankly, such an unreliable party?

Here is one other point, and it goes beyond President Trump. If Congress capitulates to his demands because he has shut down the government, he will be emboldened to use the same tactic again and again and again. If he succeeds, then every President who follows will feel justified in using the same ploy. Rather than ending one shutdown, we will be inviting more in the future.

The only choice we have in Congress is to pass the bills we know have overwhelming bipartisan support and reopen the government with or without the President's signature.

Tomorrow the majority leader will be asking the Senate to surrender to the President's cynical demands for wall funding. That proposal is a dead letter purposely filled with poison pills: It will not get 60 votes in the Senate and will not pass the House. It fails the very test the majority leader has been saying must be met. It is, by his own definition, a show vote.

As an alternative, the Senate will have the opportunity to vote again on the majority leader's proposal from last December, which would reopen the government through February 8. Added to that measure will be much needed disaster assistance. It will be interesting to see if the Senate Republicans will support or oppose this measure, which is essentially one they wrote. I hope they will take yes for an answer and vote with all of us to reopen the government and to begin serious, thoughtful, and principled discussions on ways we can improve borders and many other topics.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader is recognized.

Mr. McCONNELL. Madam President, tomorrow the Senate will vote on the plan put forward by President Trump to reopen the closed portions of the Federal Government right away, increase security on our southern border, deliver disaster recovery funding, and address some outstanding immigration issues.

By way of reminder, this is a compromise measure that was carefully designed to include the kinds of ideas Democrats have been eager to support, including very recently. First and foremost, the legislation would end this partial shutdown and bring all parts of the Federal Government back online for the American people. Normal operations would resume. Federal workers would receive backpay and continue to be paid. This could happen quickly.

The bill also takes a compromise approach to the underlying disagreement that brought us to this point. It would fully fund the border security priorities identified by the men and women actually working on the ground: investments in surveillance and security technologies, in recruiting and training new Border Patrol agents, and, yes, additional funding for physical barriers like the walls and fences which Democratic Senators used to boast about voting for and which President Obama's administration bragged about building.

Of course, the reality of a divided government is that negotiations do not leave either side with their perfect plan. So the President went out of his way to include additional items that have been priority areas for Democrats. For example, the proposal would grant 3-year lawful status for certain currently enrolled DACA recipients and individuals under TPS. Finally, the White House proposal also includes all seven of our regular order appropriations bills, the product of bipartisan work in this body and in the House throughout last year.

So the President's compromise offer should command serious consideration in both Houses of Congress. On day 33 of this partial government shutdown, we have before us a bill to immediately reopen the Federal Government, deliver all remaining full-year appropriations measures, support disaster recovery efforts, fully fund comprehensive border security priorities, and address some outstanding immigration issues. It is hard to think of a good reason to oppose this, but my Democratic friends are trying to come up with something—anything—to justify prolonging the stalemate. I have a great deal of respect for my friends across the aisle, but honestly this is getting downright silly—downright silly.

Yesterday the Democratic leader announced that he was denouncing President Trump's proposal because "there were no serious negotiations with any Democrat." It would appear my friend is offended that he wasn't consulted while this compromise was under construction. So let's stop and think about that for a minute.

For days—weeks now—the American people have seen the Democratic leader and the Speaker of the House make a public strategy out of refusing to negotiate. That has been their position; that we will not negotiate.

They have said it publicly. They have announced they are not interested in a negotiated solution to this impasse, not interested in meeting the President halfway on immigration policy or anything else, happy to keep the government closed unless and until everyone agrees to move forward in their preferred manner with no concessions and nothing for border security.

Now, that has been the Democrats' public stance. Our friends across the aisle have said repeatedly that they have no intention to negotiate out of the stalemate. The Speaker of the House joked that she would allow $1—$1—for physical barriers like wall fencing. That is why they have turned away from multiple opportunities to negotiate at the White House in recent weeks.

So my friend across the aisle is attempting quite the two-step here. First, the Democratic leader repeatedly said he wasn't interested in any talks at this point, but then when President Trump puts forward a proposal to move us forward, my colleague complains he wasn't consulted.

Well, the President and the American people are picking up on the strangeness of the Democratic leader's strategy of refusing to even negotiate. Here is one headline from a newspaper editorial that echoes this growing national sentiment. Here is what he said: "Trump made an offer—it's time for Democrats to start negotiating."

This is from the Washington Post—the Washington Post:

[T]o refuse even to talk until the government reopens does no favors to sidelined federal workers.

[A] measure of statesmanship for a member of Congress now is the ability to accept some disappointments, and shrug off the inevitable attacks from the purists.

There are signs that Democratic Members in both Chambers are starting to come to the same conclusion, starting to reject their leaders' refusal to even negotiate.

Here is what a few of our Democratic colleagues in the Senate have said in the last few days:

I personally don't think a border wall is in and of itself immoral.

Here is another:

Everybody is for border security. . . . There are places a wall makes sense.

Here are a few of our Democratic colleagues over in the House:

If we don't compromise, the American people are the ones who get hurt.

Another said:

If I had the opportunity to vote for some sort of deal, I would.

Another said:

There is common ground. . . . We do have to figure out how to secure our borders.

Even Speaker PELOSI's own House majority leader broke completely with her extreme position in a television interview just yesterday. When asked if he would personally be open to wall funding, Congressman HOYER replied:

Look, I think physical barriers are part of the solution.

That is the majority leader of the House of Representatives.

When the news anchor pressed him on Speaker PELOSI's statement that a wall is immoral, Majority Leader Hoyer replied:

It depends on what a wall is used for, whether it's moral or immoral. If it is protecting people, it is moral. That is not the issue.

He went on:

We want to make sure that people who come into the United States are authorized to do so. . . . We are for border security and I think we can get there.

So more and more Democrats seem to be coming to the same collusion as the rest of us. It is time to make a deal—time to make a deal.

Fortunately, a deal is on the table. It is a deal for everyone who would rather reopen the government, invest in border security, and secure more certainty for DACA recipients than sacrifice all that for the sake of this radical new position that physical barriers, like walls or fencing, are inherently immoral. So the President has produced a fair compromise that pairs full-year government funding with immigration policy priorities from both sides.

Enough political spite—enough. Enough showboating for "the Resistance." Enough refusing to join in talks and then complaining you weren't consulted. Our Federal workforce and the American people deserve a whole lot better than this.

I can't believe the bulk of our Democratic colleagues really see opposing the President as more important—more important—to their constituents than restoring full government function, paying our Federal employees, securing the border, and more certainty for the DACA population.

When we vote on the President's plan tomorrow, we will see what each Senator decides to prioritize.

COVINGTON CATHOLIC HIGH SCHOOL

Madam President, on one final and totally different matter, I need to say a few words about something that took place this past weekend.

Last week, Kentuckians of all ages traveled to our Nation's Capital to exercise our fundamental American rights to peacefully assemble and petition the government.

Unfortunately for the students of Covington Catholic High School, their participation has resulted in threats on their lives.

Far-left activists and members of the national and State media isolated a very few seconds of video footage from any shred of context, and many decided it was time to attack and denigrate these young people.

Because of what some highly partisan observers thought—thought—they saw in a few seconds of confusing video, these kids, their school, and their families were met with a deluge—a virtual deluge—of partisan vitriol and hatred from people who never met them and had no idea what had taken place. Some prominent figures even used this pile-on to propose curtailing the First Amendment for groups with whom they disagree, even targeting the students' hats.

How quickly some seem to forget why the Framers insisted on these protections in the first place.

In a matter of hours, these students were tried, convicted, and sentenced by the media, where accuracy is irrelevant and the presumption of innocence does not exist. To their credit, some apologized for their commentary upon learning more, but by that point too much damage had already been done.

Because of the startling death threats against these students and their families, Covington Catholic—which, by the way, is in Kentucky—was closed yesterday. The school's administration is working closely with law enforcement, but it is unclear when any sense of normalcy might return.

This time, it is families in my home State who are paying the price for exercising their freedoms. Sadly, this kind of fact-free rush to judgment is becoming an all-too-often occurrence.

If we can learn anything from this weekend, here is what I hope it is: When the rush for headlines takes precedence over the facts, mistakes are made, and our rights as Americans are put at risk. This trend is particularly troubling when young people are involved.

SIGNING AUTHORITY

Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senior Senator from Alaska be authorized to sign duly enrolled bills or joint resolutions today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—H.R. 21

Mr. KAINE. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of Calendar No. 5, H.R. 21, making appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2019, and for other purposes. I further ask that the bill be considered read a third time and passed and the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table with no intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. MCCONNELL. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

GOVERNMENT FUNDING

Mr. KAINE. Madam President, I rise to discuss the effects of the Federal Government shutdown. I have given a number of floor speeches about the effects of the shutdown on Federal employees and their families. I heard the Presiding Officer give a similar speech about the effects on the Coast Guard in Kodiak, AK, the other day. I have also talked about the effect of the shutdown on American citizens who depend upon the services of Agencies that have been shuttered or dramatically reduced in capacity.

Today I want to talk about something different. I want to talk about the effect of the shutdown on American businesses, especially small businesses.

Over the past month, I have had numerous conversations with business owners who tell me how this shutdown has hurt them, and, no surprise, economic analysts have indicated that the shutdown is having a massive effect on the U.S. economy.

S&P, for example, has concluded that the shutdown will cost the United States more than $6 billion by week's end, a little bit over 1 month in.

President Trump's chief economic adviser, Kevin Hassett, said that a zero-percent growth rate is possible because of the shutdown.

His quote in an article dated January 23:

If [the shutdown] extended for a whole quarter and given the fact that the first quarter tends to be low because of residual seasonality, then you could end up with a number close to zero in the first quarter.

We are now more than 1 month into the shutdown, and this economic effect is very real.

I just returned this morning from a discussion with businesses in Loudoun County, VA, which is sort of in the western outer suburbs of Washington, and here is what these businesses told me:

A conference hotel in Loudoun whose bookings in the first quarter are down 50 percent from the same quarter last year, and because they had such a strong year last year, they said they were projecting for increases this year, so their bookings are down 70 percent from what they had projected for the first quarter of 2019.

When they lose revenue because of lost bookings, that affects their ability to hire people. It also affects their purchase of supplies from area suppliers. They say they have a HIVA practice—Hire Virginia—and what did they call the other one—a SUVA practice, Supplies from Virginia. They try to buy all of their supplies and hire all of their people from Virginia, and so the reduced bookings are having a direct effect on other businesses and individuals as well.

A local chamber of commerce, with 1,200 members who are suffering in a variety of ways, but the chamber president pointed out to me that 300 members are nonprofits—nonprofits which are seeing reduced contributions because of the shutdown and people having less income but also increased demands for services.

Local restaurants whose revenues are down 20 to 30 percent—that reduction in revenue, which is fewer people coming in or people coming in and spending less, affects hiring and it affects their payments to local suppliers, thus having a second-order effect on other businesses.

Restaurants are reporting that they are seeing a big uptick in Federal employees applying for part-time work at their restaurants, which they have a hard time providing because their revenues are down and fewer customers are coming in.

Many government contracting firms in Northern Virginia—often started and operated by veterans—whose employees are furloughed or working fewer hours, thereby affecting the profitability of their businesses, most said they are trying to continue to pay their employees even though they are not working, even though they are not bringing in revenue, which is affecting profitability and eventually the viability of the very businesses themselves.

The contractors are talking about how they are starting to lose employees in a tight labor market to other businesses that are not dependent upon government contracts.

Loudoun is the third most popular tourism destination in Virginia out of 134 cities and counties. I did not know that until I was informed of it by a proud operator of the Loudoun Tourism Department today, but they are seeing dramatically reduced attendance at any tourism site, from restaurants to hotels and bars, to museums and all kinds of other historic sites in Loudoun.

Here is one that was interesting, and it dovetails with a discourse, a speech given by the Presiding Officer on the floor a few days ago—a local microbrewery. A local microbrewery said, first, sales are down due to people losing salaries, and sales being down affects their employment, but they are also unable to launch new product lines. New product lines require an approval by a Department of the Federal Government to approve that a new product line is offered. There are 7,000 microbreweries in the United States, and they all need approval from this Federal Agency, the TTB, when they want to offer a new product line.

The owner of Old Ox Brewery told me: We set it up months in advance. This was going to be the March release. Normally, it would take about 2 weeks from an application. This Agency is really pretty prompt. They get back with you quickly, and they tend to approve quickly, but he said: I have two problems with the Agency right now. They are shuttered so they can't approve the product lines I have developed and I wanted to brew for March. I can't brew them now if I can't sell them. That means products I promised not only in-house at our brewery but to grocery stores and restaurants that I promised, I can't brew. He said: I know this Agency, when they finally come back with a reopening, with 7,000 breweries just like mine having filed with them, the backlog is going to mean they are not going to be able to respond in 2 weeks. It is going to take them significantly longer.

If I might read a letter—this is not from the Old Ox Brewery, where I was this morning, but another brewery in Alexandria, VA:

Dear Senator Kaine,

Here is a summary of the negative effects the government shutdown is having on our small business in Alexandria, VA.

The Alcohol & Tobacco Tax & Trade Bureau (TTB) has stopped reviewing recipes and labels. . . . It affects our entire operation, and damages our revenue stream, which relies on new beers in the market.

It also hurts our employees, some of whom are paid on commission from the sale of our beer.

Upstream in our supply chain, it negatively affects our farmers who provide our grain, as well as our hop growers and malt suppliers. It also hurts our other suppliers, such as our label printers and box manufacturers.

Downstream, it hurts our distributors and retailers because they don't have our new beers to sell [and ultimately affects customers].

We have a pending Small Business Administration loan for our new bottling equipment. The SBA has closed and we cannot close on this loan until the shutdown is over.

The brewery I was at this morning—the Old Ox Brewery—was a little bit ahead of Port City in the process. They got a loan to renovate a new facility in Middleburg, VA, which they have purchased and renovated, but they can't get it open until the TTB comes out and does the inspection of the brewery equipment.

He said: I invested, and I am paying, but I am not able to bring in any revenue, and I have no idea when I am going to be able to bring in revenue.

Traditionally opening a new facility requires a TTB approval first, and you then go to the State to get permission to open the facility.

He said: Am I looking at 90 days? Am I looking at 4 months of paying for this facility without being able to bring in any revenue for it?

This same challenge as was indicated in the letter from Port City affects not only breweries but wineries. Loudoun County has a lot of farm wineries.

One owner of a local winery came. This is a small operation. They started the winery so they could preserve the family farm and not have to sell it to developers.

A lot of our small family farms get turned into subdivisions unless the family who operates the farm can find a productive way to make a small acreage profitable.

In 2002, this family, who had been in farming for generations, decided: We don't want to sell for a subdivision.

The way we will try to be profitable is to operate a farm winery.

The same Agency, the TTB, is charged with approving their product and also labels. They have done their grape harvest, and they booked time at the local bottling plant in March to take all of the wine and put it in bottles with labels affixed, but they can't get the labels approved. They have all their product, and they have booked time at a facility that starts in a very few weeks, but there would be no reason to use the bottling facility to put wine in bottles with no labels on them. They couldn't sell it. The Agency that is required to approve labels is shuttered. They don't know what they are going to do.

A 10-person, small family business—maybe this spoke to me because I grew up in a house with a small business where, in a good year, there would be eight employees, and in a bad year, there would be five, plus three teenage boys and my mother. So this business was a lot like my own family's experience in size. They distribute janitorial supplies to customers, such as the Smithsonian. The Smithsonian operations are closed. They also distribute janitorial supplies to WMATA, their largest customer.

WMATA is open. WMATA's Federal revenues are still coming in, but WMATA also relies on the farebox revenue. WMATA is down $400,000 a day because, with Federal employees furloughed, huge numbers of people who normally ride the Metro Monday to Friday aren't.

That $400,000-a-day hit on WMATA has not yet affected this business—he was careful to point that out—but with the Smithsonian shut and WMATA affected, he is worried about when he will see his 10-person business affected.

There is deep concern by area businesses in this part of Loudoun, which is very close to Dulles, about the effect of the shutdown on TSA workers and air traffic controllers, as would be the case in Alaska, where air travel is critical. It would probably be air or snowmobile for many people living in Alaska. In Virginia, air travel is critical. Anything that affects commercial air poses huge jeopardy on people's access and on the local economy.

This one was interesting—a local consignment shop. I was like, well, how are you affected by the shutdown? It is a consignment shop that is fairly notable and has won awards for being one of the best small businesses in the county. They talk about how their business is dramatically affected by the shutdown. They see it every day. More Federal employees are bringing in personal items to try to submit to consignment because to make do, they need to sell personal items they might not otherwise want to. Also, there are fewer people coming in to buy the items that are available in the consignment shop because there is less discretionary income. This shop has reduced its own employees' hours by 20 percent.

A local small business development center—this is kind of a community center, like an incubator for small business. It is funded through SBA. It serves 300 startup businesses a year. They are unable to operate. They have some local funds. They can see clear to March, but they don't know whether they can stay open thereafter due to no Federal funding. These small business centers operate around the country. One of the things they do is help businesses like Port City get small business loans. They can't do that now because there are no business loans being made.

A Federal contractor who is currently unaffected because their contracts are with DOD Agencies had an expansion plan to go out and work with other Agencies that are shuttered by the shutdown; thus they cannot move forward on the expansion plan.

Finally, county government officials who were at the meeting have now had to provide emergency funding for local food banks and for free public transportation for affected Federal employees and other emergency services as well. That wasn't what they thought they would need to be doing with the budget they had planned for. The fiscal year began July 1. They hadn't put it into the budget, but they are having to cobble together ways to serve the Federal employees and their families who are affected.

There are so many other stories like this that I heard around Virginia. One that stuck with me in particular was a local dentist commenting that so many patients are canceling appointments because of their concerns about inability to pay copays or buy medications. Hopefully, these are postponements and not cancellations. Obviously, it is not good for people's health and not good for the small business this dentist operates.

We do have a solution to this that the Senate will take up tomorrow. I am heartened by the fact that we will have an opportunity tomorrow to vote on a solution. I think we should vote to open government until February 8. That is not a lot of time. From tomorrow, it will be 15 days. Then we should engage immediately in an effort to consider, debate, amend, and vote upon the proposal the President introduced through the majority leader yesterday.

I listened to the majority leader's comments before I spoke, and he said a deal was on the table. As I saw Republicans—for example, my colleague from Oklahoma—describe the deal on Sunday during one of the television shows—he said: It is the President's opening proposal. It is meant to inspire constructive dialogue.

In that sense, I agree. It is a proposal to inspire constructive dialogue. The four elements of the President's proposal—border security, the temporary protected status program, the DACA Program, asylum processes, and the bases for receiving asylum—are very legitimate discussions on which I believe we can find a bipartisan compromise.

We will have a vote on that proposal tomorrow, but it will not be a proposal that is about compromise—it will be an up-or-down vote. Do you accept the President's proposal without the opportunity to hear its justification, without the opportunity to offer an amendment? Take it or leave it. Under those circumstances, it is very hard to say that is a constructive debate or dialogue; however, we have the opportunity to do that.

I believe that if we vote to open government through February 8—15 days—the Senate should, in this humble Senator's view, put that bill in committee next week. There should be an administration explanation of the pieces of the bill, with the members of the relevant committees being able to ask questions. For example, on the TPS proposal, you propose to restore TPS for 4 of the 10 affected countries but not the other 6. Why is that? Is there some reason for that, or can we explore it?

I think those questions need to be asked, and they need to be answered. There may be a reason there. There may be a better approach there.

Then the committee should be able to move—again, in my opinion; I am not on either of the relevant committees, Appropriations or Judiciary, but with Republican majorities and Republican chairs, I believe this could be done—move to a markup of the bill a few days or 2 days after the explanatory discussion. The bill could then be on the floor the following week, before February 8, where we could do the same thing and have the opportunity to try to make the bill as strong as it can be, as bipartisan as it can be because it would need to be to have a realistic chance of passing in the House.

I do agree with the majority leader—there is now a proposal on the table. It is a proposal that is worthy of discussion. I have some ideas about ways to make it better, and I bet virtually every Member—Republican and Democratic—in the Chamber would have ideas as well. But if we are going to take it seriously, let's take the time to take it seriously.

I urge my colleagues to vote yes on one of the votes we will take tomorrow, which would reopen government for 15 days while we engage earnestly with the President's proposal. I deeply believe that if we undertake that kind of focused effort without being pulled away because of the needs of constituents affected by the shutdown, we can be focused and find an answer.

The last thing I will say before I yield the floor is this. Some would say: Why don't you negotiate while the shutdown is in place?

If there was a hurricane in Virginia Beach, everybody in this Chamber would understand that I wasn't here; I was in Virginia Beach dealing with people who were hurting. This is a hurricane. When it affects the livelihood of so many Virginians who are hurting deeply, I am out every day with people who are hurting. In the middle of a hurricane, no one would fault me for being in Virginia Beach or a Florida Senator from being in Florida trying to comfort people who are hurting. Nobody would say: Why aren't you back here having around-the-clock negotiations on something?

For this Senator, the top priority I have every day is trying to be out with people who are hurting and trying to provide them with answers and some assurance that we can move forward. If we can get government open for 15 days, we can be here around the clock, and we can find a solution to this. I am confident we can. I ask my colleagues to join me in that when we have that vote.

With that, Madam President, I yield the floor.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine.

MS. COLLINS. Madam President, government shutdowns, regardless of which party controls Congress or the White House, are always harmful to Federal employees and their families, who struggle to pay their bills without paychecks, to Americans who need help from closed government Agencies, and to our economy, which is damaged by the decline in consumer spending and consumer confidence. Ironically, they also always end up costing taxpayers more money than if government had been funded on time. That is why I have always worked to end shutdowns.

In 2013, for example, I convened a bipartisan group, of which the Presiding Officer was the very first member, that produced the plan that led to the reopening of government after a 16-day shutdown.

During the past month, I have had numerous discussions with colleagues on both sides of the aisle, as well as with White House officials, on what we can do to reopen government. At the same time, I have been working to mitigate the impacts of this shutdown as much as possible for the hundreds of thousands of Federal employees and their families. These families are being unfairly and seriously harmed, and they have no idea when they will receive their next paycheck.

Right around Christmas, I worked closely with the White House to ensure that the Coast Guard received pay for their work prior to the shutdown, when an anomaly in the pay system put their paychecks at risk. In addition, Democratic Senator BEN CARDIN and I sponsored a bill to guarantee backpay to Federal workers affected by the shutdown. Our legislation was passed by both chambers and was signed into law by the President.

I have also joined Senator RON JOHNSON from Wisconsin in introducing the Shutdown Fairness Act, which would ensure that Federal workers who are deemed essential and required to come to work each day are paid on time despite the partial government shutdown.

It is simply not fair to force employees to work and not pay them, and I hope that this bill, too, will become law.

As the Presiding Officer is well aware, after 33 days—the longest shutdown in history—it is long overdue for all sides to come together to engage in constructive debate and compromise to end this standoff. Shutdowns represent the ultimate failure to govern and should never be used as a weapon to achieve an outcome.

Here is what does not reopen government. Political ads do not end shutdowns. Overheated and inflammatory statements do not end shutdowns. An unwillingness to budge and a lack of specific proposals do not end shutdowns. What will end this shutdown? Remembering the real harm that this shutdown is causing, putting specific proposals on the table so that the administration and Republicans and Democrats in both the Senate and the House can see signs of good faith and compromise, voting on specific proposals and trying to get to yes—that is what is necessary to end shutdowns.

Finally, over the weekend, the President submitted a plan to end the shutdown, which the Senate will consider tomorrow. His legislative package avoids the chicken-and-egg dilemma of whether we should reopen government first or whether border security measures should be considered first. It combines all of those issues in one package that would reopen government, strengthen the security of our borders, change some immigration rules for the better and some, in my judgment, for the worse, and provide disaster relief funding. The administration's package would reopen government for 800,000 Federal employees, including hundreds of thousands who work at the FBI, the TSA, Border Patrol, Coast Guard, and the DEA, who have been working without pay to protect us from terrorists, drug cartels, and other criminals. It provides disaster funding to address devastating hurricanes, wildfires, earthquakes, and volcanoes. The bill also makes border security investments and includes some immigration changes.

It is important to note that all of the remaining appropriations bills are incorporated into this package, and, thus, this bill would fully reopen government until September 30, the end of the fiscal year.

I would also note that these seven bills either passed this Chamber or the Appropriations Committee last year with widespread bipartisan support. The Transportation, Housing, and Urban Development bill that I offered with my good friend and colleague Senator JACK REED, the ranking member, is a great example. At its core, this is a bill that creates jobs, strengthens communities, improves our infrastructure, and helps low-income families, veterans, seniors, and those who are homeless with their housing needs. This bill passed the Senate in August by an overwhelming vote of 92 to 6 as part of a four-bill package. It should be law.

This shutdown is harming low-income families and seniors across the country. Funds for housing repairs and disaster recovery have been stopped from being allocated to areas of critical need. Public housing agencies and multifamily property owners in Maine and across the country are scrambling to line up short-term loans and other financing to try to fill the gap caused by a lack of HUD funding.

Since the shutdown began, nearly 42,000 households, most of which are comprised of low-income seniors or disabled individuals, have not had their rental assistance renewed, and millions more are at risk the longer the shutdown continues.

Just this morning, the city of Portland contacted me to express alarm over the 1,700 housing vouchers serving 3,500 people who will be affected on March 1. Statewide, that number is in the vicinity of 10,500 vouchers, affecting many thousands more vulnerable individuals and families.

The problems, unfortunately, go well beyond HUD housing vouchers. Because most HUD staff have been furloughed, HUD has been unable to correct computer errors that are keeping local shelters and small nonprofit groups across the country that assist the homeless and victims of domestic violence from accessing their grants. Maine's eight domestic violence shelters are about 75 percent funded by the Federal Government. If this shutdown continues, how can they continue to serve the women and children who are escaping abuse and violence?

While there is never a good time of the year to be at risk of losing one's housing or to be unable to find a shelter if one finds oneself homeless or to be able to escape domestic violence and abuse, the middle of the winter is an especially cruel time to face a housing crisis.

The shutdown is also challenging for our Nation's air traffic controllers, who remain on the job, dedicated to the safety of every flight, despite missing paychecks. Our Nation's air traffic controllers and safety professionals work in a system that has no room for error. Regrettably, they are now enduring financial strain in jobs that are already very stressful.

So many other important functions of the Federal Government—operating our national parks and the tourism they support, ensuring the safety of the food that we eat, preventing hunger, avoiding drug shortages, processing tax refunds, addressing the opioid epidemic, providing access to loan guarantees for small businesses and homeowners—all would be addressed by reopening government.

Let me provide just a few examples from my State of Maine. I have heard from physicians in Portland about emergency shortages of critical drugs. We cannot reach the FDA, which is where we would normally turn for assistance because of the furloughs. Instead, we are contacting the manufacturers to try to get help.

A small Maine-owned architecture and engineering business in Western Maine has contracts with 10 Federal Agencies. It will very soon not have enough work for its employees because it is not being paid by these Agencies. A smoked salmon facility in Hancock, ME, cannot operate because it lacks a vital certificate from the FDA. Seniors at the Maine Maritime Academy are unable to take their licensing exams, which will delay their job searches significantly, and current merchant mariners who need to renew their licenses cannot do so.

The Coast Guard, which is so important to my State and to the State of the Presiding Officer, is not being paid, and yet its members are required to work to perform absolutely vital tasks, and they cannot be absent to take on another job to pay the bills.

Of course, like many of my colleagues, I have talked with so many TSA employees in Bangor and in Portland who are having difficulties paying their bills, having to take out loans or rely on family or friends, and yet they are so devoted to their important mission that they show up for work day after day, despite not being paid.

In addition to reopening government, the legislation also includes investments and policies to lessen the problems at our southern border. Ninety percent of the heroin that is flooding into this country is coming from Mexico, some through legal ports of entry that lack the technology to detect these drugs and some smuggled across the border outside of ports of entry.

Physical barriers have proven to be an effective deterrent in many areas where they have been built, such as San Diego and El Paso. That is why Congress and two previous administrations, on a bipartisan basis, authorized and built more than 600 miles of walls, fences, and other barriers by January 2017, an often overlooked fact.

In fact, to listen to this debate, you would think that there were no barriers along our southern border, and that is not true. There are more than 600 miles of physical barriers. In some places, they don't make sense, but in some places, they have proven to be an effective deterrent. Republicans and Democrats voted to support the construction of these physical barriers in 2006.

As recently as last June, the Senate Appropriations Committee passed—again, on a bipartisan basis—a Homeland Security funding bill that would have provided the money for additional physical barriers at the border. The package before us that we will vote on tomorrow would supplement this existing infrastructure by providing funding for an additional 234 miles of barriers at high-priority locations identified by the experts at Customs and Border Patrol.

We already have more than 650 miles of physical barriers. What this bill would provide is funding for 234 additional miles of fences, walls, and other kinds of physical barriers that have been specifically identified as needed by the experts at Customs and Border Patrol.

The bill would also provide $800 million to meet the urgent humanitarian needs of those who are crossing the border, as well as additional funding for new Border Patrol agents, immigration judges, and Customs officers. Again, you rarely hear any discussion that this package includes $800 million for humanitarian assistance, as well as funding for personnel, for technology, for K-9, and for sensors. This has to be a multipronged approach to be effective.

The package also takes some preliminary steps to alter our broken immigration system. We need to focus on the Dreamer population, those young people who were brought to this country by a parent usually at a very young age.

I so remember a conversation I had with a Dreamer who lives in Portland, ME, and attends the University of Southern Maine. He was brought to this country by his parents when he was age 4. He had no idea that he was not an American. He thought he was born in Portland and had lived his whole life there. It was only when he was going to apply for his driver's license that his parents told him the truth. The fact is, like so many other Dreamers, this young man has known no other country but America.

Many of the Dreamers are going to school, working, serving in the military, or otherwise contributing to our country. This legislation does not go as far as I would like, but it would at least provide relief for 3 years to the 700,000 young immigrants who are enrolled in the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals Program, or DACA Program. Frankly, I would prefer giving these young people a path to citizenship, provided that they have abided by and continue to abide by our laws.

We also need to help those legally receiving temporary protected status, the so-called TPS population. Many of these immigrants have been in the United States for years—even decades—working hard, creating jobs, and becoming established and valued members of their communities.

On the other hand, some of the asylum changes proposed in the President's bill are problematic. Allowing people to apply for asylum in their home countries appears to me to be a good idea, but raising the bar to qualify for asylum needs much more study.

The plan put forth by President Trump is by no means ideal, but it would result in the reopening of government—my priority—and the outlines of a compromise are before us. I urge my Democratic colleagues to also put forth a specific plan that addresses all of these issues.

Compromise is not a sign of weakness. It is a sign of strength, particularly when hundreds of thousands of families are being harmed.

The administration and Senate Republicans and Democrats have the opportunity to resolve the stalemate before 800,000 Federal workers and their families—dedicated public servants—miss yet another paycheck, and our economy is further damaged. Shutdowns harm too many innocent Federal employees and their families as well as vulnerable citizens, homeowners, small businesses, and rural communities. This shutdown must end.

I thank the Presiding Officer.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

Mr. CARDIN. Madam President, it is day 33 of this dangerous and unnecessary government shutdown.

Let me share with my colleagues that this morning, I stopped by an IBEW office that was set up by the Maryland Food Bank. We are very proud to have the Maryland Food Bank in Maryland. It provides the necessary food for hungry Marylanders who go through tough times and can't get enough food for their families. I don't think we ever thought it would have to set up a special location for Federal workers and for those who are impacted because of a Federal shutdown, but it is exactly what it did today. I am very proud of those at the Maryland Food Bank. I thank them for their services to the people of our State. They have now been able to provide basic food to patriotic Federal workers who are not getting their paychecks.

This will be the second pay period this week for which Federal workers' pay stubs will read "zero" for the work they will have done. Of the over 800,000 Federal workers, 30 percent are veterans. They are patriotic Americans who show up every day to do work—to keep us safe, to deal with our national security, to deal with our food safety. The list goes on and on and on. They are showing up today and working on the 33rd day. They are being asked to carry out their work with their having no prospects of getting paid in the near future. These are patriotic Americans.

The number is more than 800,000. We also have contract workers who get contracts from the government. Many of these contractors employ low-wage workers to do basic work for the government. These workers are not getting paid.

We have small businesses that depend upon contracts that are not being fulfilled right now because of the government shutdown. They are laying off workers.

Then we have the general impact on our economy. It is projected that we are going to lose all of our economic growth, which will slow down and create more unemployment in America.

All of that is happening because of this shutdown. It is in our national security interest to end this dangerous shutdown. The FBI is on shutdown, meaning many of its workers are not even being brought in, and those who are being brought in are having a difficult time doing their jobs. On Thursday, the FBI Agents Association released a petition that describes the shutdown as a matter of national security. It urges leaders in Washington to reopen the government.

"On Friday, January 11, 2019, FBI Agents will not be paid due to the partial government shutdown, but we will continue our work protecting our nation," the petition reads. "We urge our elected representatives to fund the Department of Justice . . . and the FBI because financial security is a matter of national security."

My colleagues, these are people who go to work every day to keep us safe, and we are asking them to do that without their having a full complement of supporting workers and to do it without being paid.

Recently, I met with our airport security people—the TSA and others—who are charged with keeping our airports safe. They are responsible for air traffic safety. They asked me how they can do their work when they are distracted. How are they going to pay their bills? They also don't have the full complement of support staff necessary. That is what it is at risk.

We know security is being compromised in our Federal Prison System. On Friday, prison guard Brian Shoemaker was patrolling the halls of Lee penitentiary in Southwestern Virginia when an inmate tried to squeeze past him into a restricted area. Seconds after Shoemaker told the prisoner to turn around, the inmate lunged at him and punched him in his shoulder. Mr. Shoemaker did not sustain a major injury, but it did not escape him that he was working without a paycheck at one of the most dangerous Federal jobs in America during this partial government shutdown. Fears for his and other prison staff members' safety are escalating as 16-hour shifts become routine and as a growing number of guards call in sick in protest and work side jobs to pay their bills.

"I don't think we should be subjected to that kind of thing and not receive a paycheck," said Shoemaker, age 48, a 17-year veteran of Lee penitentiary. "I'm walking in here and doing my job every day, and it's very dangerous."

Mr. Shoemaker is one of 36,000 Federal prison workers who is deemed to be an essential employee by the U.S. Government, which means he is expected to report for work during the shutdown even though he will not get paid until the government reopens. He has worked 33 days without pay.

Even though these employees are supposed to work, union officials at 10 prisons, including Lee, who were reached by the Washington Post, say the number of employees who are not showing up for work has at least doubled since the shutdown began. This cannot continue.

As a result, those who are showing up are routinely working double shifts, correctional officers and other prison staff members say. Secretaries, janitors, and teachers are filling in for absent officers. There is at least one prison—Hazelton Federal Correctional Complex in West Virginia—at which the number of assaults on officers has increased since the shutdown, according to a union official there.

"There has been a rise in people calling in sick and taking leave during the shutdown," said Richard Heldreth, the local union president at the Hazelton prison. "The staff who are showing up are dealing with this violence, long hours and extra overtime with the uncertainty of when we will be compensated."

The list goes on.

I had a chance to meet with some of our Coast Guard workers this morning. The Coast Guard is in a partial shutdown. Here is one of the critical national security Agencies of this Nation that is not working at its full strength. We have heard the President talk about border security. He has compromised border security by not allowing Homeland Security to be fully operational—to have all of its capacity—and its workers to be paid to do their work.

Research is being very badly hurt as a result of this shutdown. A coalition of more than 40 patient and healthcare provider groups is warning about the effects of the government shutdown on the FDA. This marks the first time advocacy organizations have weighed in on the more than month-long lapse in appropriations.

"We fear that this continued shutdown not only puts the current health and safety of Americans' safety at risk, but has begun to put future scientific discovery and innovation in jeopardy," the group wrote in a letter to President Donald Trump and senior congressional leadership. The effort, spearheaded by Friends of Cancer Research, has drawn in the American Academy of Pediatrics, the American Society of Clinical Oncology, Research!America, and the National Organization for Rare Disorders.

The shutdown is keeping the FDA from reviewing new drug and medical device applications and from conducting certain inspections of food and medical product facilities. It has also slowed the hiring and onboarding of new staff at an Agency that is already grappling with hundreds of vacancies. Some FDA research and policy development has also come to a halt.

The FDA regulates products and industries that comprise about one-quarter of the U.S. economy. The FDA ensures a safe food supply; protects patients from contaminated and unsafe medical products; and approves new lifesaving treatments, the group wrote.

The list goes on.

Diplomatic missions around the world are being compromised. I had a chance to talk to one of our Ambassadors in a key country of great interest to the United States. He confided in me that without a full complement of staff, his mission is being compromised, and our national security is being put at risk.

Let's take a look at the faces of the people who are impacted by this shutdown. I already mentioned the fact that just a few hours ago, I was at the Maryland Food Bank location at which I saw very proud, patriotic government workers stand in line to get bags so they could pick up food because they didn't have the money to pay for food for their families. That is what is at stake.

I have received letters from Federal workers who are concerned about whether they will be able to continue their dental and vision health protection because those payments are not automatically made when we are in shutdown. The workers are supposed to make those payments directly. How many workers are going to be able to or will even know that they need to make the payments? They may see the loss of critical coverage.

I know it is affecting people's credit scores. We know credit agencies are not very tolerant with late payments. Yet government workers are going to have to slow down in paying their bills because they will not have money. Most workers live paycheck to paycheck in paying their bills. Now their credit scores are going to be affected, and that is going to affect the cost of credit. It may affect such things as their security clearances, which will affect their employment.

I have heard from several Federal workers. I heard from one who said: I have this dilemma. I live 90 miles away from where I work as a Federal worker. I am expected to be there every day. I don't have the money to pay for gasoline for my car. Yet I am expected to pay for that without getting a paycheck. By the way, I don't have the money to pay for the childcare for my children. How am I expected to show up for work and do essential work when I don't have the money to take care of my needs so I can get transportation to my job and take care of my family's needs with safe childcare?

This is the face of the people who have been impacted by this partial government shutdown. Her circumstances are really shocking.

One might be surprised to learn that many Federal workers are expected to use their own personal credit cards to pay for government expenses. If they travel on behalf of the government, they use their own credit cards to pay for those expenses. I am told it averages somewhere around $600 a month. At the end of the month, they have to, of course, pay their credit card bills, but they have their reimbursements from the Federal Government for these legitimate expenses. In a government shutdown, there is no Agency that can reimburse them for that money. The credit card companies are going to demand that they pay. These are government expenses, not theirs. What do they do? This is where we are today with the tragedies.

There was an ad in the paper that really got to me. It was written by a government worker who said she was looking for a job.

She writes:

I'm currently furloughed due to the government shutdown and am available for baby-sitting during the workday. I have plenty of childcare experience from raising my two children, ages 3 and 5, so I know how hard it can be to find last-minute weekday childcare. Alternatively, I'm also happy to provide science tutoring for any high school or college students. I have a Ph.D. in cellular and molecular medicine and can help with biology, genetics, microbiology, biochemistry, cell bio, or research methods. Please message me if interested, and I would be happy to provide you with additional information. Thanks.

Here is a Federal worker whom we want to keep in Federal service. She needs money to pay her bills and is willing to be a babysitter but has scientific training. We know she could be gobbled up in the private sector for a lot more money than she is making as a government employee, and we are going to lose her. We are going to lose a lot of talented workers who ask: How much longer can I put up with this? How much longer can I work without pay? The critical missions that she is performing on behalf of America will be compromised and lost. This is what is at risk. This is what we are risking.

I haven't even gone into all of the different Agencies or the work that is important to Americans. HUD's being closed means FHA loans are not being processed and that you can't go forward with your closing on a home. I know several senior housing projects are being put on hold, which jeopardizes quality, affordable housing for our seniors. The IRS season is beginning, but it doesn't have its full complement. People want their refunds, but they are going to be delayed. The list goes on and on and on.

This is President Trump's shutdown. Many of us, on both sides of the aisle—Democrats and Republicans—understand border security issues. In the fiscal year 2019 appropriations, our appropriators did their work. The distinguished ranking member, Senator LEAHY, is on the floor. He worked very closely with Senator SHELBY on every single appropriations bill in a bipartisan manner. We did our work in the U.S. Senate.

Seven of the appropriations bills have not yet been completed through no fault of the work of our appropriators. Four of them passed the Senate by a vote of 92 to 6. Why don't we just pick them up and pass them? We have tried. I have asked unanimous consent. Because we don't want to offend the President, the Republican leaders have refused to allow us to consider them. Two others passed the Appropriations Committee by votes of 31 to 0 and 30 to 1.

With regard to Homeland Security, on border security the committee did its work on the fiscal year 2019 budget. They came up with a game plan on border security. We did our work on time, in a bipartisan manner. We know how to deal with border security issues. We have the expertise to work to make sure that we spend our money in the most appropriate way to defend our border and to protect Americans.

So what should we do? First, we should open the government. There is no excuse for the government to be closed. We are a coequal branch of government. We need to act as a coequal branch of government. It is our responsibility. We will have that chance tomorrow.

There will be a vote on the floor of the Senate to pass a short-term continuing resolution. This is identical to what we acted on by unanimous consent before the President changed his mind.

Let's remove the hostage-taking of the American public. Let's have a short period of time to prove that we can use the legislative process here, as we have in the past, to work on border security issues and pass a bipartisan border security bill, but not under the tactics the President of the United States is currently using. We can act that way on behalf of the American people.

This is a dangerous shutdown. We have seen the results, and we know people's lives have been compromised and our national security has been affected. We need to take the leadership.

I hope my colleagues will join me tomorrow in voting for the continuing resolution so we can open the government and use our legislative process to deal with the border security issues and to deal with what is important to the American people.

With that, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Vermont.

Mr. LEAHY. Madam President, I hope the country has heard what the distinguished senior Senator from Maryland said. He sees this every day. He sees it when he goes home to Baltimore. He sees it when he talks with his neighbors. He sees it when he is in the grocery store. He sees it at the temple. He sees it everywhere because these are the people who are among our finest government workers, and they are out of work. They are not being paid. I suspect he also sees it with the contractors and subcontractors and those who are not on the Federal payroll but who would lose their jobs if the Federal Government is closed. So I compliment him for doing this.

I also appreciate what he said about the Appropriations Committee. The distinguished Presiding Officer is one of the hardest working chairs of the Appropriations subcommittees. I realize she cannot respond in her position as Presiding Officer, but I note that she moved her bill through. She did it in a way that got enormous support from Republicans and Democrats across the political spectrum, which is the way we are supposed to do it. It certainly has been the way we have seen it done with people from her State. We did it with her father. We did it with my dear friend, Senator Stevens, when he was chair of the Appropriations Committee. We did it when the distinguished senior Senator from Maryland, Ms. Mikulski, was chair of the overall committee. We got this done.

It is a lot of work. It is tremendous work for our staffs on both sides of the aisle—a lot of late nights and weekends—but it is done because the American people want the U.S. Government to work.

For a month now, much of the Federal Government has been closed for business while the President of the United States rants and raves about his personal obsession, the centerpiece of his extreme, anti-immigration agenda—a wall on our southern border.

For a month now, hundreds of thousands of dedicated public servants have gone without a paycheck, even while many of them showed up for work every single day. Many can no longer pay their bills. They worry about how they are going to put food on the table. Many are looking for temporary work. Many are standing in line at food pantries. These are professionals. They are trying to figure out: How do we pay for childcare or healthcare? How do we pay our student loans? How do we pay for our mortgage?

It is not just the individuals. It is also our institutions. Our Federal courts are running out of money. Our Federal courts are running out of money. TSA agents are calling in sick in droves after weeks on the job without pay. What is that doing with air traffic, especially during the winter, in America?

Thousands of people who are trying to buy new homes, which boosts our economy, with a Federal Housing Administration loan told: Come back later.

Come back when?

Well, we don't know. Whenever President Trump ends the shutdown, come back.

Small businesses and farmers cannot get federally backed loans. This is after this body—under the leadership of the distinguished Republican, Senator ROBERTS, and the distinguished Democrat, Senator STABENOW—put through a 5-year farm bill, which brought almost all of us together. We voted for it, but now farmers can't use it. They don't even know what the new rules are because nobody is there to answer their questions.

We scaled back on food inspections. We are not enforcing our clean air and clean water rules. Our national parks are being vandalized and permanently damaged as they remain open to the public, but they are not staffed.

As a former prosecutor, here is something that sends a chill down my spine. The FBI Agents Association says criminal investigations are being stymied, grand jury subpoenas are going undelivered, and confidential sources are being lost. It is quickly becoming a national security threat.

This is America? This is the country I am proud to serve?

Either the President does not understand the harm his shutdown is causing, or he does not care. But the country is suffering. Our economy is suffering. The American people are suffering.

The Trump shutdown makes us look foolish and weak to the rest of the world. This is the leader of the free world we are seeing as weak and incompetent. However, over the weekend, the President addressed the country from the White House, and he laid out his price to stop the shutdown. Calling it a compromise, he made vague promises for protections for DACA recipients and those who receive TPS, or temporary protected status. We could end this shutdown, he said, and all U.S. taxpayers had to do was fund his wall—a wasteful monument to himself that he just wants the taxpayers to fund, even though he gave his word to all Americans, over and over, that Mexico would pay for it. He did not tell the truth then, and now he wants the American taxpayers to bail him out.

It was a transparent attempt to look reasonable on national television, while simultaneously holding the Federal Government and millions of Americans hostage to a shutdown that harms our economy and our communities every day. But as for offering temporary protections for vulnerable immigrants—protections that he unilaterally chose to strip, in the first place—in exchange for a permanent, ineffective wall, nobody can call that reasonable. It is hardly reasonable to hold the well-being of our Federal workforce or the services upon which many in America rely as hostages to fund a pet project. The President cannot bargain with something that he broke.

On Monday night, Senate Republicans unveiled the President's plan in more detail. It became clear that what seemed like a disingenuous ploy to seem reasonable to stop his slide in the polls was really a much more cynical attempt to implement his hard-lined, anti-immigration agenda, using the harm of the Trump shutdown as leverage.

The McConnell bill before us reads like an A-through-Z immigration wish list for President Trump and those in his anti-immigrant inner circle. First, the bill provides $5.7 billion for a wasteful monument to the President's ego—a wall that most experts say would do little to address the real problems on our southern border.

The bill, ultimately, dramatically increases the number of Immigration and Customs Enforcement, or so-called ICE, detention beds to 52,000 and ICE enforcement agents by 2,000. Even as I give these numbers, I think of walking through these rooms with cages that children are being kept in. Every one of us who has children or grandchildren and every one of us who has gone through a school yard and has seen young children has heard that the decibel level is outstanding. They are laughing. They are playing. They are talking with each other. When you go through these cages—these cages holding these young, innocent children—there is dead silence—no laughter, no talking with each other, no joking. There is dead silence.

This is America. What are we showing the rest of the world?

The Trump administration has repeatedly proven it does not know how to prioritize its immigration enforcement resources. In the first 14 months of the Trump administration, ICE's arrests of immigrants with no criminal convictions—no criminal convictions—spiked by 203 percent over the last 14 months of the previous administration. So it shows that President Trump has not deployed resources to round up, as he said, “bad hombres” or threats to our national security. He is deploying his enforcement resources to strike fear into the hearts of all undocumented immigrants.

This administration's enforcement policies are driven by the cruel desire to scare undocumented immigrants into believing that they or their disabled children or their elderly parents could be next. Until the Trump administration changes its dragnet approach to immigration enforcement, Congress should not fund an expansion of his detention and deportation force.

I would ask anybody to walk past those cages with the children in them. I never thought I would see this in America. I have seen it in war zones and other countries, but not America—not in the America I love.

The bill also contains provisions that serve as fig leaves to fix problems the Trump administration brought about in the first place. It would provide 3 years of temporary protection to 700,000 individuals currently involved in DACA—protections that are only required because of the President's own decision to terminate the DACA Program. It would not provide a path to citizenship for these Dreamers or any protections to the nearly 1 million more individuals who are eligible for DACA protections. Similarly, the bill would provide 3 years of temporary protection to TPS recipients from a few countries with TPS designation the Trump administration terminated in the first place.

If you provide permanent funding for a wall in exchange for provisions that temporarily clean up messes of the Trump administration's own making, that is not a compromise. It is taking hostages on top of hostages. That is a nonstarter. Stripping away protections from Dreamers and TPS recipients and then treating them like pawns by suddenly offering them temporary reprieve—this is not compassion. It is callous. It is wicked. It is evil.

Finally, the bill seeks to dismantle our humanitarian asylum system as we know it. It contains provisions that would effectively bar any asylum applications from Honduran, Guatemalan, and Salvadoran minors that are not made from a designated processing center somewhere in Central America. In other words, thousands of vulnerable children fleeing the horrors of torture, murder, and rape in the Northern Triangle and arriving at our border would be categorically barred from applying for asylum and be subject to immediate removal proceedings.

The entire point of asylum is to provide an opportunity for those who have fled from persecution and violence to seek refuge in our country. Our asylum system would become distorted beyond recognition if, instead, we punish these desperate children—punish them for the very act of fleeing for their lives.

It is remarkable that the man whose name is on the book called “The Art of the Deal” would think that Democrats would accept what amounts to a deal breaker. This Democrat will not.

I welcome a debate on the need for immigration reform. I would remind Senators that in 2013, when I was chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, I issued a bipartisan bill to reform the immigration system and secure our border through the committee. We held dozens of hearings. We considered hundreds of amendments. We often met until late at night. Then, when we brought it before the Senate, it got 68 votes here on the Senate floor. Republicans and Democrats joined together to give it a supermajority. So it shows it can be done, but not while the President holds hostage all Americans, including hundreds of thousands of Federal workers and their families.

I remind the Senate that on December 19, when Republicans controlled the House and Republicans controlled the Senate, the Senate passed a bipartisan bill to fund the government by a voice vote. In other words, the Senate was for keeping the government open—until President Trump changed the mind of our Republican leader.

The President and Senate Republicans should reopen the government now, without any further foot-dragging. Congress and the Senate are a co-equal and independent branch of government. We have bipartisan bills before Congress right now to do that. My friend the majority leader has refused to bring them up while the country pays the price. This has to end. I hope he will pull up the bipartisan bills. I hope he will let us vote.

Again, I would say that we are looking weak to the rest of the world. We are looking foolish to the rest of the world. But what hurts the most are the people—not only Federal employees but contractors, private industry, and everybody else in every one of our States—who are suffering and watching our economy sink further as a result.

I see the distinguished majority leader on the floor, so I yield the floor.

ANNIVERSARY OF MARSHALL COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL SHOOTING

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, I would like to take a moment to mark the first anniversary of the tragic shooting at Marshall County High School, which took place 1 year ago today in Benton, KY.

Bailey Holt and Preston Cope, both 15, began that morning just like any other. Their parents and friends described Bailey and Preston as bright kids with promising futures ahead, but this peaceful community was shattered when a fellow student opened fire, taking Bailey and Preston’s lives, and leaving nearly 20 additional students wounded.

Their families were left to grieve, and for the past year, the community has done its best to provide comfort and put the pieces back together.

This evening, the Marshall County community will join together once again to remember the victims and to continue the healing. As they do, my prayers and those of all their fellow Kentuckians will be with them.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

TRIBUTE TO DR. STEVEN M. SOUTHWICK

• Mr. BLUMENTHAL. Madam President, today I wish to recognize Dr. Steven M. Southwick on the occasion of his retirement.

For over 30 years, Dr. Southwick has dedicated himself to researching combat-related PTSD. His impressive work has helped make great strides in the efforts to alleviate suffering and promote resilience for veterans. Much of the necessary progress in this field is thanks to Dr. Southwick’s diligent studies.

A graduate of Yale College, the George Washington School of Medicine, and the Yale Psychiatry Residency, Dr. Southwick served in the U.S. Army before attending medical school. During his service, he was stationed in Germany. His time in the military would shape the path of his future research.

In 1985, Dr. Southwick joined the faculty of the VA Connecticut Healthcare System and the Yale Department of Psychiatry. Throughout his career, he has worked not only with combat veterans, but also with a range of trauma survivors, including athletes, astronauts, civilians with PTSD, and former prisoners of war.

Some of his many notable accomplishments include leading the first mechanistic neurobiology study of PTSD and, along with his colleagues at the National Center for PTSD, being among the first to study the biological and cognitive underpinnings of resilience among U.S. Special Forces trainees. Through such research, Dr. Southwick pioneered the study of human resilience and introduced a new perspective on trauma. I have been fortunate to learn firsthand during visits to the center about the progress he and his colleagues are making on this complex but extremely critical condition that affects many veterans and first responders, and I commend them on their vital work.

He now serves as the medical director of the clinical neuroscience division of the VA National Center for PTSD and the Glenn H. Greenberg Professor of Psychiatry, PTSD, and Resilience at the Yale University School of Medicine. In these positions, Dr. Southwick has mentored countless future leaders in the field of PTSD research.

Dr. Southwick is the recipient of numerous honors and takes part in a number of journals, committees, and seminars in his area of expertise. Though he is recognized for his immense contributions to the realm of PTSD research, he is also highly regarded and beloved by his colleagues, students, and patients.

I applaud his lifetime of service and hope my colleagues will join me in congratulating Dr. Southwick on his well-earned retirement.●

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

MARKING THE PASSING OF THOMAS DUNCAN

HON. NANCY PELOSI

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Ms. PELOSI. Madam Speaker, I rise to recognize and honor the life of a dedicated former House employee, Thomas G. Duncan, who passed away on January 16, 2019 in Fairfax, Virginia.

Tom was born June 10, 1952, in Long Beach, California, to Thomas Owen Duncan and Keith Anne Gamble Duncan and grew up in Dallas, Texas and Birmingham, Michigan. He graduated from the College of William and Mary in 1974 and the University of Virginia School of Law in 1978. Following his graduation from law school, Tom began a distinguished thirty-year career in public service in the House of Representatives. He began his work in the House in 1979 as an Assistant Parliamentarian and rose to serve as a Deputy Parliamentarian for ten years. He went on to serve with distinction as a staff member on the House Committee on Financial Services, serving as general counsel to chairman from both parties, where he consistently demonstrated his deep commitment to upholding the integrity of our institution, and advancing progress for the American people.

In his more than three decades of non-partisan service to the House, Tom always brought the highest level of professionalism and dedication to the table. He earned the respect of Members and staff alike for his encyclopedic memory of facts and dates, and his great intellect and critical willingness to hear arguments from all sides. His unflappable demeanor delivered calm to many hard-fought battles waged by the House's most energetic and colorful Members.

Tom's many friends will always remember his great love of sports, especially his fondness for the Tigers, the Wahoos and the Washington Nationals. One never wanted to be on the opposite side of a sports trivia contest with Tom, but all will remember him as a gentleman who allowed his opponents to lose with grace. Tom could reveal a mischievous streak when it was needed most by his colleagues, best and most memorably displayed in his creation of the Hershberger Award during his days at the College of William and Mary.

Tom is survived by his beloved wife of 37 years, Alison, his two daughters, Katharine Duncan (Brent DePuy) and Taylor Duncan, and his granddaughter, Elizabeth DePuy.

The House is grateful for Tom's contributions over his thirty-year career in our institution. May it be a comfort to Tom's loved ones that so many grieve with and pray for them at this sad time.

HONORING THE LIFE OF DIONNE BAGSBY

HON. KAY GRANGER

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Ms. GRANGER. Madam Speaker, I would like to honor the life of a dear friend and true role model, Dionne Bagsby. Her advocacy and public service to Fort Worth pioneered the growth and development that we see in the community today.

Dionne was a trailblazer for minorities and women in the city of Fort Worth. With her dynamic personality and straight talk, she was able to break unprecedented racial and gender barriers throughout her life and career.

Dionne was the first woman and African-American to be elected to the Tarrant County Commissioners Court. During her tenure on the court, she hired the first Tarrant County African-American precinct administrator and greatly enhanced minority employment and participation at the county level. When she retired from the commissioner's court in 2005, the Texas Legislature honored her community service in a resolution stating, "a distinguished 16-year tenure that has been characterized by integrity and excellence."

Even after her retirement, she refused to stand on the sidelines. She always encouraged young women to speak with confidence and helped them aspire to careers that challenged the norm. Dionne served with a purpose, making it her mission to leave Fort Worth a better place than she found it.

Dionne Bagsby leaves behind a legacy that will impact and empower not only the Fort Worth community but the state of Texas for generations to come. I am lucky to have known someone as inspirational and dynamic as Dionne.

My thoughts are with her family during this difficult time.

COMMEMORATING "BLACK JANUARY"

HON. STEVE COHEN

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. COHEN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the 29th anniversary of the "Black January" killings which is one of the most tragic events in Azerbaijan's history.

On the night of January 20, 1990, approximately 26,000 Soviet troops stormed Azerbaijan's capital city of Baku in tanks and armored vehicles. That night, the Soviet military bulldozed innocent Azerbaijanis and opened indiscriminate fire on peaceful demonstrators, including women and children. As a result of these merciless acts 147 people were killed, around 800 were injured, 841 were arrested, and 5 went missing.

The Human Rights Watch report "Black January in Azerbaijan" states that "among the most heinous violations of human rights during the Baku incursion were the numerous attacks on medical personnel, ambulances, and even hospitals." The report concludes that the violence used by the Soviet Army constituted an exercise in collective punishment and that the punishment inflicted on Baku by Soviet soldiers may have been intended as a warning to nationalists, not only in Azerbaijan, but in other Republics of the Soviet Union. I offer my thoughts and prayers to the families of those who gave their lives for the independence of Azerbaijan.

The United States and Azerbaijan are strategic allies and share common interests in the region and globally. I commend Azerbaijan's contributions to the security of the United States.

As the co-chairman of the Congressional Azerbaijan Caucus, I urge my colleagues to recognize the sacrifices of the Azerbaijani people in their steps toward a free market economy and encourage a recommitment to the democratic values for which many Azerbaijanis sacrificed their lives.

HONORING THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE MERAMEC REGIONAL PLANNING COMMISSION

HON. JASON SMITH

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. SMITH of Missouri. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the 50th Anniversary of the Meramec Regional Planning Commission (MRPC), officially established on January 23, 1969, by Governor Warren E. Hearnes. The first Board of Directors elected by MRPC were Salem Mayor Jack Masters as chairman; Leon Camillo, representative from Potosi, as vice chairman; Cuba Mayor John Brummet as secretary; and Vienna Mayor Travis John as treasurer. The scope of work has changed over the years, but the overall mission remains the same: To enhance the quality of life for the Meramec Region.

The MRPC, currently serving the counties of Crawford, Dent, Gasconade, Maries, Osage, Phelps and Pulaski, built a strong reputation throughout the area for its work in grant writing, economic development, community and emergency planning, small business loan assistance, housing rental assistance, and legislative advocacy on behalf of the region. These services are especially vital to small communities that often do not have the resources to compete with larger cities for grant funding.

I congratulate MRPC on this milestone anniversary and appreciate the vital role they play in the quality of life in the Meramec Region. Today, it is my great privilege to recognize the Meramec Regional Planning Commission before the United States House of Representatives.

IN HONOR OF MS. FRANCES TANKERSLEY

HON. LANCE GOODEN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. GOODEN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Frances Tankersley as the oldest active member of First United Methodist Church of Terrell, Texas celebrating her seventy-second year at the age of 97.

Born to Charles and Leah Deen of Emory, Texas on November 22, 1921, Frances was raised in Sweetwater and received a bachelor's degree from Texas Tech University. She met her future husband Dennis Tankersley at the United Service Organization in Lubbock. Dennis was stationed at the South Plains Army Airfield and had been a pilot in the Second World War. Upon their marriage, they moved to Terrell and began a life together raising two sons, Jim and Greg.

Her tenure at the Terrell Independent School District left all members of the community with a strong appreciation of her selflessness. Ms. Tankersley was a home economics teacher and a special education department supervisor. Additionally, she taught Sunday school at the kindergarten level at First United Methodist for many years and fostered the development of generations in our community. To this day Ms. Tankersley is involved in Relay for Life and volunteers for Meals on Wheels delivering hot lunches to those in need. She is known throughout Terrell for her kindred spirit and affectionate curiosity, as well as her love of golf and her weekly bridge matches.

Ms. Tankersley still resides in Terrell where she has been an active member of her community for decades and drives herself to her beloved church each Sunday. May her commitment to service, faith and community be an example for all of us.

HONORING MR. ALBERT BURSTEIN

HON. BILL PASCRELL, JR.

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. PASCRELL. Madam Speaker, I would like to call to your attention the many outstanding achievements of Mr. Albert Burstein. I recognize the many contributions he has made to the people of the Ninth Congressional District and the State of New Jersey.

Expressing the influence of Mr. Albert Burstein to our community and country is an honor. A Columbia graduate, lawyer, political reformer, state legislator and World War II veteran, Mr. Burstein stands as an example to us all. As a member of our Greatest Generation, Albert was present for many of our country's greatest challenges. It gives me great pleasure to add my personal appreciation and commendation for all that he has done.

Born on November 22, 1922, to Julius and Hannah Burstein, Albert's story begins with his family in Jersey City, New Jersey. Julius and Hannah were immigrants from Poland and Albert spoke highly of their willingness and bravery to start a new life here in the United States. I know Albert was a source of great pride flourishing in the new country they called home. Let his experience be another success story to others in pursuit of the American Dream.

On December 7, 1941, the attack on Pearl Harbor would change the lives of many Americans, Albert Burstein included. A student in his junior year at Columbia University, Albert was cognizant of the looming threat in Europe. However, the attack on Pearl Harbor would postpone his studies at Columbia University and on May 8, 1943 Albert would be dispatched to Wheeler, Georgia for basic training.

While a recruit, Albert was enrolled in the Army Specialized Training Program (ASTP). Assigned to study German history and language, Mr. Burstein was temporarily transferred to the University of Nebraska to complete his training. This endeavor would be short lived since the growing demand in Europe would abruptly end many of the U.S. Army's training programs. Moved between Louisiana and Mississippi for advanced infantry training, in the period of a month Albert was in Cherbourg, France.

Enduring the rigors of war, Albert served our country for thirty-three months in active duty. For Albert's valiant efforts in WWII, he was honored with the Bronze Star and named to the French Legion of Honor for his service in France. Albert Burstein answered the call and came home safely. WWII is one of the greatest challenges our nation has ever faced, and Albert Burstein stands as a great American who answered the call to duty.

Returning to civilian life, Albert reenrolled in Columbia University where he would meet his wife Ruth and complete his education with a law degree. Albert and Ruth would marry in December of 1950 and have three beautiful children together, Jeffrey, Diane and Laura. Living in Jersey City, Mr. Burstein established Wolf Baumann and Burstein, a place where he would work for thirty years. While living in Jersey City, Albert would get his first taste for politics starting an independent committee aimed at addressing the needs of the city and its people. Nevertheless, Albert and Ruth would move to Tenafly, New Jersey after determining they wanted to move to a quiet town.

Living in Bergen County, Albert would establish himself as a political authority. Holding office in the New Jersey State Legislature for ten years, Mr. Burstein would represent the 37th legislative district. As an Assemblyman, Mr. Burstein would serve as the Assembly Majority leader and advance many important causes during his time as a public servant. Presiding on the New Jersey Election Law Revision Committee and the Law Revision Commission, Assemblyman Burstein championed efforts to reform New Jersey's election and public financing laws.

The job of a United States Congressman involves much that is rewarding, yet nothing compares to working with and recognizing the efforts of dedicated individuals like Mr. Albert Burstein.

Madam Speaker, I ask that you join our colleagues, family, friends and the residents of the Ninth Congressional District in recognizing, Mr. Albert Burstein and his outstanding character and service to his country and community.

CELEBRATING THE LIFE OF

HON. JIM COSTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. COSTA. Madam Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the life of Mrs. Elizabeth "Betsy" S. Lucido, who passed away on January 12, 2019 at the age of 75. Betsy will be remembered as a loving wife, mother and for her devotion to God. Betsy cared for many families in need and was a pillar in our community. Her dedication to our Valley will be remembered for years to come.

Betsy was born on August 8, 1943 in Cleveland, Ohio to Howard & Irene Tripp. Her family later relocated to Fresno, California, where she attended St. Therese Elementary School and the Convent of the Sacred Heart of Menlo Park High School as a resident student. After high school, she attended the University of San Diego, where she met the love of her life William "Bill" Lucido. Betsy and Bill married in Fresno on June 6, 1964. They were blessed with four daughters, Maribeth, Anne, Kate and Monica.

Betsy radiated a "motherly charm" and was known for her generosity, family values and caring personality. Betsy served her community in a number of ways. She was a board member of the Central California Adoption Services—Infant of Prague, Right to Life of Central California and the Ministers of Presence Guild of Catholic Charities. One accomplishment she was particularly proud of was her role in the founding of Catholic Charities, an organization which serves the needs of those in crisis by providing food for the hungry and hope for the weary. Betsy saw her work as an extension of one's home and love for God. She was always willing to give a helping hand and recognized everyone as a unique child of God.

Betsy's active work in the Fresno community has not gone unnoticed. She was honored by the Fresno County Women's Chamber of Commerce as the "Fresno County Mother of the Year" in 1998. In 2012, Betsy and Bill were the 2012 honorees at the Right to Life of Central California annual celebration dinner.

Betsy is survived by her husband Bill and daughters, Maribeth, Anne, Katie and Monica. She leaves behind her grandchildren Maxwell, Hemy, Logan, Paige, Lindsey, Grace and Corbin, and many close friends.

Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring the life of Elizabeth "Betsy" S. Lucido. Betsy leaves behind a remarkable legacy of love and selflessness, which helped change the lives of countless men and women in our community. It is my honor to stand with Betsy's family in celebration of her great life.

HONORING GIRLS SCOUTS OF CONNECTICUT

HON. ROSA L. DeLAURO

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Ms. DeLAURO. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the Girl Scouts of Connecticut, and everyone who supports the Girl Scouts of the United States of America. Participating in Girl Scouts helps prepare young women to lead.

I include in the RECORD this letter, written by Girl Scouts Connecticut CEO Ms. Mary Barneby and originally published in the New Haven Register:

GIRL SCOUTS LEADER EXPRESSES THANKS

(By Ms. Mary Barneby, Girl Scouts of Connecticut CEO)

The recently ended holiday season is a time for giving, reflection, and expressing gratitude for all we have been given. I know that I am thankful for everyone who has supported our Mission at Girl Scouts of Connecticut. Because of you, over 26,000 Girl Scouts in our state are thriving and building the skills they need to change the world.

At Girl Scouts, we put every ounce of passion and energy into ensuring a bright and equitable future for girls. It's important now more than ever that we support and pave the way for girls and women. We've definitely seen some progress: this past election season, more women ran for public office and more women went to the polls to share their voice and vote.

Girl Scouts prepares girls for life, and recent stats from the election prove that fact. In the 116th Congress, 17 out of the 23 women in the U.S. Senate are Girl Scouts alum, and 57 percent of women representatives in the House of Representatives are Girl Scouts alums, including our own Jahana Hayes, the first African American woman from Connecticut elected to Congress!

At Girl Scouts, you become part of a global sisterhood for girls to take action, lead the way, explore the unknown, and change the world. We offer each girl unique and unparalleled opportunities to pursue what she care about, whether its technology, sports, the arts, environmentalism, and more. No matter her passion, Girl Scouts helps her live it out.

Again, thank you to everyone who helped support girls and women this year. I wish you and yours happy holidays, and look forward to having more join us in the New Year.

SHUTDOWN IMPACTS ON AN IL-09 CONSTITUENT

HON. JANICE D. SCHAKOWSKY

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to include in the RECORD a letter from Antonio, a constituent of mine affected by this shutdown:

"I am an air traffic controller at O'Hare. This is already a stressful job, but a job that I love. This shutdown is adding an extra layer of stress to all of the controllers across the country. Our day off are the time that we have to decompress from work and focus on mitigating stress. With the shutdown going past a month, we are stressing about bills, how to put food on the table, how to pay for childcare, etc. We don't have the luxury of escaping from the stress of the job, because we come to the stress of worrying.

Finding out that our vision and dental benefits would be billed to us, with the expectation that we pay out of pocket, despite not having a paycheck for over a month, has only added to that stress. This shutdown is going to be a massive safety risk for the flying public if it doesn't end soon.

Controllers will retire or quit to find another source of income. It would be heart-breaking to have to leave this job, that I love so much, because I had to find a way to feed my family. It would mean a lot to me if there was any way this could be distributed to the other members of Congress. I feel it is a very important message for them all to see."

Everyday this week, I will be coming to the House floor to tell stories of everyday people who are affected by this Trump 1 Shutdown. It is time for President Trump to re-open the government and pay the hard-working Americans serving their country through public service.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. RON ESTES

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. ESTES. Madam Speaker, I was not present for Roll Call vote No. 45 on H.R. 328. Had I been present, I would have voted "yea."

TRIBUTE TO CRAIG W. FLOYD

HON. STENY H. HOYER

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. HOYER. Madam Speaker, I rise to congratulate my good friend Craig W. Floyd on his retirement after thirty-four years of service as the founding Chief Executive Officer of the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund. Craig retired at the end of 2018 and leaves behind a powerful legacy of service to the men and women of law enforcement across our nation. I have been proud to work closely with Craig over the years on a cause about which we both care very deeply: honoring those who have fallen while protecting our communities.

Craig helped launch the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund in 1984, partnering with his former boss—and my friend—former Rep. Mario Biaggi of New York and others to establish a permanent memorial in Washington. In 1991, the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial was unveiled, and it now preserves the names of 21,541 law enforcement officers who gave their lives in the line of duty. It stands as a powerful reminder to the millions of visitors to the nation's capital of the service and sacrifices of those keeping them safe back home and in every community. In 2018, the National Law Enforcement Museum was opened near the memorial to tell the stories of the men and women whose names are borne upon its walls.

Craig was instrumental in bringing this vision to completion and establishing the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial and the National Law Enforcement Museum. Under his guidance, the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund launched the world's most comprehensive database of law enforcement officers killed in the line of duty; published To Serve and Protect—a Tribute to American Law Enforcement; built partnerships with the Department of Justice and Department of Transportation to promote officers' safety and wellbeing; and inaugurated the tradition of holding annual candlelight vigils during National Police Week in May. In many ways, these all stand not only to pay homage to the men and women of law enforcement but also as a lasting tribute to citizens like Craig W. Floyd who dedicated their careers to honoring and aiding these heroes.

I hope my colleagues will join me in thanking Craig for his service and wishing him well in his retirement. I encourage everyone to visit the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial and the National Law Enforcement Museum in our nation's capital to learn about the service of those who put their lives on the line to protect our communities every day.

HONORING THE LIFE OF DR. RONALD WAYNE MERTHIE

HON. STEPHANIE N. MURPHY

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mrs. MURPHY. Madam Speaker, I rise to honor the life and legacy of a spiritual leader in my central Florida community, Dr. Ronald Merthie, who recently passed away.

A proud son of Seminole County, Dr. Merthie attended Crooms High School, where he was elected class president. He went to Texas Southern University on an athletic scholarship and, upon graduation, returned home to become a teacher, assistant principal, and coach.

Dr. Merthie struggled with substance abuse for a period of time. But he found strength and redemption through faith, overcoming personal hardship, serving as a role model to others, and becoming a pillar of his community.

Dr. Merthie's life was filled with action and achievement. He established the New Life Word Center Church, offered spiritual guidance on a weekly broadcast, and empowered the next generation by founding a K-through-12 school.

It was Dr. King who said that "Life's most persistent and urgent question is, 'What are you doing for others?'"

Dr. Merthie devoted his life to serving others. He lead a good life in the most meaningful sense of the term. He will be deeply missed.

I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring this exceptional man and offering our condolences to his family and all those whose lives he touched.

INTRODUCTION OF THE VA MEDICINAL CANNABIS RESEARCH ACT

HON. J. LUIS CORREA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. CORREA. Madam Speaker, I have met with multiple veterans in my congressional district who attest to the therapeutic benefits of medical cannabis in managing their pain.

According to the American Legion, a significant number of veterans across the country—not just in my district—are currently using medical cannabis as an alternative treatment. With so many veterans using cannabis for therapeutic purposes, it is important that physicians have the information and research necessary to fully advise on the potential impacts of medical cannabis usage on post-traumatic stress and chronic pain. The U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs is uniquely positioned to pursue that vital research.

To that end, I am introducing the bipartisan VA Medicinal Cannabis Research Act, which requires VA to conduct clinical research on the safety and effectiveness of medical cannabis, in varying forms and delivery methods, for treating veterans diagnosed with post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) and veterans with chronic pain. The legislation requires VA to submit annual reports to Congress on the implementation of this bill for five years. The VA Medicinal Cannabis Research Act is a pragmatic and sensible approach to the need for additional research and could potentially save veterans' lives.

CONGRATULATING MR. JOHN ELLIOTT

HON. JIM BANKS

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. BANKS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Mr. John Elliott on retiring from his position as Vice President and Senior Trust Officer of 1st Source Bank in Warsaw, Indiana. For nearly fifty years, John has served the northeast Indiana community with distinction as an engaged citizen, cherished friend, and valued trust officer.

John graduated with a business degree from The Ohio State University in 1966, and immediately began his storied career as a trust officer at First National Bank of Warsaw. To further his education, John enrolled at the ABA Graduate School of Banking at the University of Wisconsin, as well as the National Graduate Trust School at Northwestern University. INTRODUCTION OF THE ENDING CORPORAL PUNISHMENT IN SCHOOLS ACT OF 2019

HON. ALCEE L. HASTINGS

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. HASTINGS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Ending Corporal Punishment in Schools Act of 2019.

This bill would prohibit any educational institution from receiving federal funding that allows school personnel to inflict corporal punishment on students and creates grants to encourage improvements in schools, which promote positive behaviors.

Madam Speaker, corporal punishment is a form of physical punishment where someone deliberately inflicts pain on another individual in order to punish them. In schools, it includes the spanking or paddling of children by school officials.

Although corporal punishment in schools has certainly been part of this country's history, it has been a blemish on that history and must end immediately. In addition to the fact that there is no conclusive evidence that corporal punishment mollifies disruptive behavior, it is disproportionately used against African American students and children with disabilities. These punishments can result in physical as well as emotional harm to children.

Schools must be a safe place where students are protected from harm, so that they are able to thrive, grow, and learn. Sadly, 19 states still allow corporal punishments in school. Last year, more than 100,000 students were physically punished by being hit, slapped, and spanked. This is completely unacceptable.

Madam Speaker, schools must be a safe space for our children to learn. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this critically important bill, and hope to see its swift passage very soon.

CONGRATULATING GREG POHLMAN ON HIS INDUCTION INTO THE ILLINOIS HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL COACHES ASSOCIATION

HON. CHERI BUSTOS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mrs. BUSTOS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Greg Pohlman, who is being inducted into the Illinois High School Baseball Coaches Association Hall of Fame. Mr. Pohlman served Carrollton Community High School for 40 years as a coach, teacher and athletic director.

Mr. Pohlman retired from his post as the baseball coach at Carrollton in 2016 after a long, successful career where he tallied up over 500 career wins. Under his leadership, the Carrollton Hawks went on to win the 2011 Illinois High School Association Class 1A State Championship following a 31 win season. This championship season gave Mr. Pohlman the record for most wins in a single season and is an outstanding coaching achievement. Mr. Pohlman's accomplishments demonstrate not only his extensive knowledge of the game, but also his commitment to the students he coached. Throughout his tenure, Mr. Pohlman rightfully earned a reputation of being a great role model to young student athletes and someone who truly gave his all to allow students to compete and learn to the best of their abilities. However, his impact went beyond the sports he coached—throughout all of his years as a teacher and coach, he tried to instill in his students and athletes the importance of being productive members of our society. Mr. Pohlman is an exceptional leader in our community and it is fitting that his years of service are being recognized in this way.

It is because of dedicated leaders such as Greg Pohlman that I am especially proud to serve Illinois' 17th Congressional District. Madam Speaker, I would like to again formally congratulate Greg Pohlman on his well-earned induction into the Baseball Coaches' Hall of Fame and thank him for all of his service to the community.

HONORING GLEN WOOD

HON. H. MORGAN GRIFFITH

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. GRIFFITH. Madam Speaker, I offer these remarks in honor of Glen Wood, a founder of the legendary Wood Brothers

NASCAR racing team, who died on January 18, 2019 at the age of 93. Glen Wood was a giant of auto racing, an owner and driver on the longest-running team in NASCAR history.

Stock car racing has a long and storied heritage in Southwest and Southside Virginia, and Glen Wood, a native of Stuart in Patrick County, made notable contributions of his own to the sport. A trip to Daytona Beach in 1947 fired Mr. Wood's passion for racing, but he earned his place in racing history three years later when he founded Wood Brothers Racing with his brother Leonard. As he recalled to the Associated Press, "We started racing in 1950 with a car we bought for $50. We put No. 50 on the side of the car because it just seemed like the right thing to do."

Wood Brothers Racing eventually changed the number to 21, and they became a powerhouse, winning 99 victories in over 1,500 starts in NASCAR's top division. Glen Wood earned four of them himself as a driver. Many of the others were won by some of the sport's greatest competitors, including Cale Yarborough, Curtis Turner, A.J. Foyt, and David Pearson, driving for the Wood Brothers team. The Wood Brothers also brought innovation to the pit stop, drastically reducing its average length. These accomplishments garnered Glen Wood many accolades, including a place in the NASCAR Hall of Fame and recognition as one of NASCAR's 50 Greatest Drivers.

Glen Wood was known for his success on the race track and for his gentlemanly demeanor off it. In his later years, he could be found at the Wood Brothers Racing Museum in Stuart greeting fans with his wife Bernece. Wood Brothers Racing remains a family business to this day, with Glen's oldest son Eddie now its president. Glen Wood was a towering figure in auto racing, and his legacy still endures. I offer my condolences to Mr. Wood's family on their loss.

IN MEMORY OF REDD REYNOLDS

HON. JOE WILSON

OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Madam Speaker, last week South Carolina paid deserved tribute to the late Redd Reynolds who was appreciated as the "South Carolina Bob Hope" of the National Guard. I include in the RECORD his thoughtful obituary, which was published January 15th in The State newspaper.

LEXINGTON.—Clarence T. "Redd" Reynolds, 91, went home to be with the Lord on Sunday January 13, 2019. The son of the late Henry and Lottie Reynolds, Redd was born Jan. 17, 1927 and grew up in Lexington, South Carolina, where he attended Lexington schools. He honorably served in the 78th Division of the United States Army in World War II and with the Armed Forces Radio Network. Following World War II, Redd attended Newberry College and, most importantly, married the beautiful Doris Rawl on Aug. 26, 1950.

Redd became a prominent radio personality and broadcaster at WBLR 1430 AM in Batesburg. As a result of his ties in the broadcasting industry and his patriotism, he and Doris created Caravan of Stars, a traveling music and dance group that entertained troops at military bases in Georgia, Virginia and Mississippi. Redd was considered the Bob Hope of the National Guard, producing and directing shows for more than 30 years. In 1987 he was honored with the Order of the Palmetto by Gov. Carroll Campbell.

Redd was a committed member of American Legion Post 7 for more than five decades, dedicating his time and talents to the cultivation of his beloved community. He made significant contributions to the Palmetto Boys and Girls State programs, as well as American Legion Post 7 baseball. He also served on Lexington Medical Center's board of trustees from 1978 to 1987.

In 2012, Redd was thrilled to be selected for the Honor Flight program, joining other South Carolina World War II veterans on a trip to visit war memorials in Washington, D.C.

Redd was a vibrant member of St. John's Lutheran Church in Lexington, serving with Lutheran Men in Mission and as a Sunday School teacher, Young at Heart member and church council member. He and Doris also teamed tirelessly to care for the grounds of St. John's. If it was happening in God's house, Redd participated.

Surviving Redd are his wife of 68 years, Doris; children Terry (Anne) Reynolds, Phil (Janice) Reynolds, Jandell (Richard) Morrison and Barry (Jeanne) Reynolds; grandchildren Clay (Lindsey) Reynolds, Justin (Rachel) Reynolds, David (Ann Marie) Reynolds, Macaulay Morrison and Caroline Morrison; and great-grandchildren Cale, Jack Wyatt and Amelia Reynolds. Redd was predeceased by his two sisters, Betty Hutto and Pauline Salter.

The family will receive friends and the community at Barr-Price Funeral Home and Crematorium, Lexington Chapel from 5:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. Tuesday, January 15, 2019. A celebration of life and interment will be held at St. John's Lutheran Church 3:00 p.m. Wednesday January 16, 2019. In lieu of flowers, the family requests donations be made to St. John's Lutheran Church or to the Redd and Doris Family ROTC Grant-in-Aid at Clemson University. (Mail to Deborah Towery, Clemson University Foundation, P.O. Box. 1889, Clemson, SC. 29633.)

HONORING RABBI EPHRAIM SIMON OF TEANECK

HON. BILL PASCRELL, JR.

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. PASCRELL. Madam Speaker, I rise today to acknowledge the outstanding and selfless achievements of Rabbi Ephraim Simon.

Rabbi Simon is the director of Chabad of Teaneck, New Jersey. As a rabbi, he has focused his studies on the three intellectual divisions of wisdom, comprehension, and knowledge but also a great focus on responsibility and love. For some, these may just seem like religious principles, but to Rabbi Simon they are more than that: they are guiding outlines for how to live one's life that he emphasizes every day in service to his community.

Rabbi Simon's commitment to community and charity was evident in 2009 when the rabbi selflessly donated one of his kidneys to a total stranger. This noble act saved the life of a father of 10. Because of Rabbi Simon's generosity, he inspired others in the Teaneck community to follow in his footsteps and register as organ donors.

Rabbi Simon could have stopped there, but he did not. Nearly a decade later he saved yet another stranger's life. Enduring a difficult surgery, on December 20, 2018 Rabbi Simon donated a third of his liver to Adam Levitz, a father of three suffering from critical liver failure. This act of goodness has given Mr. Levitz a new chance at life.

To give a kidney or a liver is an act very few can say they have done, to have given both to complete strangers is an act of generosity unknown to nearly all of us. The rarity of these procedures is not only due to a requirement of great courage and selflessness, but also due to the great physical risks they carry for the health of the donor. Donating part of one's liver, when one also only has one kidney, has such risks of complications that Rabbi Simon and Mr. Levitz could only find one clinic in the country who would perform the procedure.

Rabbi Simon's inspiring acts are done not for publicity, but out of a desire to inspire others to have a positive impact on those around them. In the words of Rabbi Simon, "a rabbi's greatest lesson is how he lives his life."

Madam Speaker, Rabbi Simon's selfless acts serve as an inspiration not just to his wife and nine children, but also to the community in Northern New Jersey and across our country. Rabbi Simon deserves great respect for his deeds.

To honor Rabbi Simon and his acts, I wish to recognize his commitments to saving lives and improving the world around him.

TRIBUTE TO THE STAFF OF THE CAPITAL GAZETTE, RECOGNIZED AMONG TIME MAGAZINE'S PERSON OF THE YEAR HONOREES

HON. STENY H. HOYER

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. HOYER. Madam Speaker, I rise to pay a heartfelt tribute to the men and women of the Capital Gazette. The staff at the daily paper, based in Annapolis and covering news across Anne Arundel County and the surrounding area, were recognized last month by TIME as one of its 'Person of the Year' honorees. They joined murdered Saudi journalist Jamal Khashoggi; Maria Ressa, a reporter in the Philippines working to expose corruption amid the country's drug war; and Burmese journalists Kyaw Soe Oo and Wa Lone, imprisoned for covering the plight of Rohingya refugees. TIME's award focused on the dangers facing journalists as they seek to fulfill their role as 'guardians' of truth. At the Capital Gazette, that danger took the form of a deadly mass shooting on June 28, 2018, which killed five employees and injured several others.

On that tragic day, a gunman entered the Capital Gazette offices in Annapolis and took the lives of Gerald Fischman, Rob Hiaasen, John McNamara, Wendi Winters, and Rebecca Smith. It was a targeted attack by a mentally disturbed individual who should never have been able to acquire dangerous firearms. The attack came after months of vitriol leveled at the press, where reporters were called 'enemy of the people' and lambasted as purveyors of 'fake news.' To their credit, even after this deadly shooting took the lives of their friends and colleagues and after having to endure threats targeted at them and other journalists, the staff of the Capital Gazette continued their important work of reporting the news to the people of Maryland and released an edition of the paper the very next day. They would not be deterred from their mission, so critical to our open and deliberative democracy.

Madam Speaker, I hope all of the Members of this House will join me in congratulating the Capital Gazette and thanking its staff for the hard work they do every day—as well as all the members of the press who are risking danger to report the news. We must continue to stand up for the freedom of the press, which is critical to the liberty of our people and to all nations around the world.

CONGRATULATING THE SAUK VALLEY AREA OF COMMERCE ON RECEIVING A FIVE-STAR ACCREDITATION FROM THE UNITED STATES CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

HON. CHERI BUSTOS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mrs. BUSTOS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the Sauk Valley Area Chamber of Commerce on receiving a Five-Star Accreditation from the United States Chamber of Commerce. The Sauk Valley Area Chamber of Commerce was one of 120 chambers across the nation to receive this accreditation this past year.

Founded in 1912, the Sauk Valley Area Chamber of Commerce has gone on to develop their organization's abilities into one of the finest in the nation. The Sauk Valley Area Chamber of Commerce represents many communities across both Illinois and Iowa, where they work to expand economic opportunities in the region. With this accreditation, it is clear the Sauk Valley Area will continue to benefit from the efforts of this organization as we begin the new year. I am impressed by the work they have done to improve the well-being of local businesses across our region and congratulate them on a job well done. As we look to the future, I am eager to see how the Sauk Valley Area Chamber of Commerce builds upon this distinction and uses it to expand upon their successes and continue to improve the local business community. A strong workforce is key to a strong community, and this five-star recognition speaks volumes to that commitment.

It is because of groups such as the Sauk Valley Area Chamber of Commerce that I am especially proud to serve Illinois' 17th Congressional District. Madam Speaker, I would like to again formally congratulate the Sauk Valley Area Chamber of Commerce on its five-star accreditation and thank them for their service to our community.

CONGRATULATING TONY ANDERSON FOR RECEIVING THE 2018 DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD

HON. JACK BERGMAN

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. BERGMAN. Madam Speaker, it's my honor to recognize Tony Anderson for receiving the 2018 Distinguished Service Award from the Traverse City Area Chamber of Commerce. Through his exceptional leadership and steadfast devotion to his community, Tony has become an indispensable part of Northern Michigan.

Since 1929, the Distinguished Service Award has been given to leaders who have had a tremendously positive impact on the Traverse City area. Through his decades of service to his community, Tony has shown himself to be more than deserving of this honor. Through his Marathon4Kids organization, Tony has completed 43 marathons in 43 states and raised more than $400,000 for Big Brothers Big Sisters of Northwest Michigan. This year, he plans on running in Mississippi, Idaho, Kansas, and New Mexico as a part of his mission to complete marathons in all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

Tony's determination has been previously recognized on multiple occasions, including being named "Volunteer of the Year" at the 2012 Michigan Governor's Service Awards. In addition to his work with Marathon4Kids, Tony has served as a volunteer firefighter, an emergency medical technician, and as a key member of the Traverse City Area Chamber of Commerce. Additionally, he is the former president of the Freedom Builders—a faith-based organization that provides housing assistance to the local community. The impact of his work in Traverse City and across Michigan cannot be understated.

Madam Speaker, it's my honor to congratulate Tony Anderson for receiving the 2018 Distinguished Service Award. Michiganders can take great pride in knowing the First District is home to such a selfless leader. On behalf of my constituents, I wish Tony all the best in his future endeavors.

DIRECTING SECRETARY OF STATE TO DEVELOP STRATEGY TO REGAIN OBSERVER STATUS FOR TAIWAN IN WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION

SPEECH OF

HON. TED S. YOHO

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, January 22, 2019

Mr. YOHO. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 353, my bill that directs the Secretary of State to develop a strategy to regain observer status for Taiwan in the World Health Organization.

I would first like to thank Chairman ENGEL and Ranking Member MCCAUL for working with my team to bring this great legislation to the floor. From 2009 to 2016, Taiwan attended the World Health Assembly, the World Health Organization's annual summit, under the status of an observer. However, following the election of Taiwan's current President Tsai Ing-wen, the People's Republic of China has stepped up its campaign to marginalize Taiwan's participation in the international community. In 2017 and 2018, due to increased political pressure from the People's Republic of China, Taiwan did not receive an invitation to the World Health Assembly.

Taiwan's exclusion from the World Health Assembly, serves no purpose other than to placate Beijing's insecurity. The World Health Organization exists to address shared transnational health challenges, and Taiwan has proven time and again that it is a model contributor to world health. Since 1996, Taiwan has invested over $6 billion in international medical and humanitarian aid efforts impacting over 80 countries.

The United States and the U.S. Congress have long supported Taiwan's participation in international organizations, and this legislation will continue this important work. My bill will help ensure that the U.S. diplomatic strategy to advocate for Taiwan's presence at the World Health Assembly adapts to Beijing's increased efforts to box out Taiwan. A similar bill, which I introduced in the 115th Congress, passed the House with unanimous support.

Taiwan is a benevolent actor on the international stage, and it deserves to keep the place it has earned. The next World Health Assembly will take place in May of this year. Passage of my bill will be a timely opportunity for the House to recommit to longstanding U.S. policy, and take a firm stand in the face of Beijing's increasingly oppressive tactics. I urge my colleagues to support Taiwan's participation in the World Health Organization as an observer by supporting this legislation.

SENIOR BISHOP MCKINLEY YOUNG

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. LEWIS. Madam Speaker, I am saddened to share that my friend passed away last week. I rise today with a heavy heart to recognize Senior Bishop McKinley Young, who served as the 109th Bishop from Big Bethel AME Church in Atlanta since 1992.

One of the beloved sons of Atlanta, he was a man of the people and for the people. After completing his studies in Atlanta's public schools, Bishop Young continued his education by earning degrees from Morris Brown College, Andover Newton Theological School, and the University of Chicago Divinity School. An additional six institutions of higher education recognized him with honorary doctorate degrees.

Over the years, the Bishop pastored in Providence, Rhode Island, Chicago and Evanston, Illinois, but Atlanta was always home. In our community, he was committed to the souls of his congregants and service to our society.

Throughout Metro Atlanta, Bishop Young initiated voter registration, education, mobilization, which led to a day of action at the Georgia State Capitol. He was an active supporter of the African Methodist Episcopal Church Service and Development Agency (AME-SADA) for over 20 years and most recently served as chair of the board. Bishop Young also served as the president of the Council of Bishops and the General Board and chaired the Commissions on Women in Ministry, Global Witness and Ministry, Annuity Investments and Insurance, and the Commission on Church Growth and Development.

This great man spoke up and spoke out on behalf of those who had no one to speak for them. Bishop Young worked tirelessly to give hope and opportunity to those, who were left out and left behind. He ministered to those who were lost in the wilderness of despair. In my heart of hearts I know that the impact of his prophetic leadership will be felt by generations yet unborn.

Madam Speaker, today, I offer my deepest condolences to his loving wife, Dorothy Jackson Young; children, Karyn (Ron) Young-Lowe, Deana (Julius) McAllister, Andrea (Roderick) Jones and Stephanie Lynn Young; grandchildren, Jennifer Renee and Jessica Christina Lowe, Julius III, Colin and Dylan McAllister, Peyton, Noah and Miles Jones. I thank them for sharing this "faithful giant" with us.

INTRODUCTION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA PAPERWORK REDUCTION ACT

HON. ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON

OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Ms. NORTON. Madam Speaker, today, I introduce the District of Columbia Paperwork Reduction Act to eliminate the wasteful congressional review process for legislation passed by the District of Columbia Council and to align longtime congressional practice and the law. The congressional review process for D.C. bills is almost entirely ignored by Congress, providing it no benefit, but imposes substantial costs (in time and money) on the District. Congress has almost always used the appropriations process, rather than the disapproval process, to block or nullify D.C. bills and entirely abandoned the congressional review process as its mechanism for nullifying D.C. bills 24 years ago, having only used it three times before then. Yet Congress still requires the D.C. Council to use Kafkaesque make-work procedures to comply with the abandoned congressional review process established by the D.C. Home Rule Act.

Our bill would eliminate the congressional review process for bills passed by the D.C. Council. However, Congress would lose no authority it currently exercises because, even upon enactment of this bill, Congress would retain its authority under Clause 17 of Section 8 of Article I of the U.S. Constitution to amend or overturn any D.C. laws at any time.

The congressional review process (30 days for civil bills and 60 days for criminal bills) includes those days when either house of Congress is in session, delaying D.C. bills from becoming law, often for many months. The delay forces the D.C. Council to pass most bills several times, using a cumbersome and complicated process to ensure that the operations of this large and rapidly changing city continue uninterrupted, avoiding a lapse of a bill before it becomes final. The congressional calendar means that a 30-day period usually lasts a couple of months and often much longer because of congressional recesses. For example, the congressional review period for a bill that changed the word "handicap" to "disability" lasted nine months. The Council estimates that 50 to 65 percent of the bills it passes could be eliminated if the review process did not exist. To ensure that a bill does not lapse, the Council often must pass the same bill in three forms: emergency (in effect for 90 days), temporary (in effect for 225 days) and permanent. Moreover, the Council has to carefully track the days the House and Senate are in session for each D.C. bill it passes to avoid gaps and to determine when the bills have taken effect. The Council estimates that it could save 5,000 employee hours and 160,000 sheets of paper per two-year Council period if the review process were eliminated. House Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy addressed the issue of saving such resources by eliminating the amount of paperwork sent to Congress when he proposed a cut in the number of reports that federal agencies are required to submit to Congress. Our bill is a perfect candidate because it eliminates a paperwork process that repeats itself without inter-

My bill would do no more than align the Home Rule Act with congressional practice over the last 24 years. Of the more than 5,000 legislative acts transmitted to Congress since the Home Rule Act was passed in 1973, only three resolutions disapproving D.C. bills have been enacted (in 1979, 1981, and 1991) and two of those mistakenly involved federal interests—one in the Height Act and the other in the location of chanceries. Placing a congressional hold on more than 5,000 D.C. bills has not only proven unnecessary, but has imposed costs on the D.C. government, residents and businesses. District residents and businesses are also placed on hold because they have no certainty when D.C. bills, from taxes to regulations, will take effect, making it difficult to plan. It is particularly unfair to require the D.C. Council to engage in this unnecessary, labor-intensive and costly process. My bill would only eliminate the automatic hold placed on D.C. bills and the need for the D.C. Council to comply with a process initially created for the convenience of Congress, but that is now almost never used. This bill would promote efficiency and cost savings for Congress, the District and D.C. residents and businesses without reducing congressional oversight, and would carry out the policy stressed by Congress of eliminating needless paperwork and make-work redundancy.

I urge my colleagues to support this good-government measure.

OBSERVING THE 29TH ANNIVERSARY OF BLACK JANUARY

HON. STEVE CHABOT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 23, 2019

Mr. CHABOT. Madam Speaker, I rise today in observance of the 29th anniversary of Black January, January 20, a historic and tragic day in the history of the country of Azerbaijan and to remember the lives lost at the hands of Soviet brutality 29 years ago.

On the night of January 20, 1990, 26,000 Soviet troops invaded the capital city of Baku and surrounding areas. As a result of this violent crackdown on the Azerbaijani people, more than 147 innocent civilians died, around 800 people were injured, and hundreds were arrested. This event has remained embedded in Azerbaijan's national history and in the minds of its citizens as "Black January." This tragic event is seen as the rebirth of the Azerbaijan Republic.

This attack was a desperate attempt to squelch the independence movement that was gaining momentum in Azerbaijan and to rescue the totalitarian regime, the rule of Communist Party, and the whole Soviet Union. This attack, however, produced opposite results, further inflaming the independence movement in Azerbaijan as well as those in other Republics of the former Soviet Union.

Popular pressure led the country to break away from Soviet rule and declare its independence. On August 30, 1991, Azerbaijan's Parliament adopted the Declaration on the Restoration of the State Independence of the Republic of Azerbaijan, and on October 18, 1991, the Constitutional Act on the State Independence of the Republic of Azerbaijan was approved.

November 1991 marked the beginning of international recognition of Azerbaijan's independence. The United States was among the first nations to recognize the young country's independence when we established diplomatic relations on February 28, 1992 and opened an embassy in Baku in March.

Today, the U.S. and Azerbaijan share many interests and objectives for the region as we cooperate on a broad range of issues, especially energy development and security concerns.

I encourage my colleagues to join with me and the Azerbaijani people as they remember this tragedy.
