LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL.

---

MAY 12, 1898.

SIR: I have the honor to present for your consideration a list of books with references to articles in periodical literature, relating to Hawaii, prepared by A. P. C. Griffin, Assistant Librarian.

The body of the list contains titles of books treating directly of the islands of Hawaii, and the introduction summarizes the bibliography of the geographical and scientific explorations.

Yours, very truly,

JOHN RUSSELL YOUNG,
Librarian of Congress.

HON. GEORGE PEABODY WETMORE,
*Chairman of the Joint Committee on the Library,
United States Senate. Washington, D. C.*

LETTER OF SUBMITTAL.

MAY 10, 1898.

DEAR SIR: I beg leave to present herewith a report upon the books in the Library of Congress relating to Hawaii.

Very truly, yours,

A. P. C. GRIFFIN,
Assistant Librarian.

Hon. JOHN RUSSELL YOUNG,
Librarian of Congress, Washington, D. C.

INTRODUCTION.

---

The first definite information about the Hawaiian Islands was given by Cook in his "A voyage to the Pacific Ocean, undertaken by command of His Majesty for making discoveries in the northern hemispheres, in the years 1776-1780," London, 1784, 3 vols., 4°. There are numerous editions of Cook's accounts of his voyages, of which the Library has several.

In 1786 the islands were visited by Portlock and Dixon, both of whom wrote narratives of the voyage, published independently at London in 1789 under identical titles: "Voyage round the world, but more particularly to the northwest coast of America, in 1785-88." La Pérouse made a short stop at the island of Maui in May, 1786, described in his "Voyage autour du monde," Paris, 1797 (English ed., London, 1799). Meares, in his "Voyages made in 1788 and 1789," describes a visit of a month's duration in 1788 at Hawaii. Lieut. George Mortimer, in his "Observations and remarks made during a voyage to the islands of Teneriffe, Otaheite, Sandwich Islands," London, 1791, gives a brief account of a short sojourn at one of the islands. Captain Ingraham, an American naval officer, describes in "Journal of the voyage of the Hope" (manuscript preserved in the State Department) a visit in the spring of 1791. Marchand, in "Voyage autour du monde, pendant les années 1790, 1791, et 1792," Paris, 1798-1800, gives a notice of a visit in October, 1791. Capt. James Colnett made several visits to Hawaii in 1791-1793, described in his "Voyage to the South Atlantic and round Cape Horn into the Pacific Ocean," London, 1798 and 1804. Vancouver made visits, extending over periods of several weeks, in 1792, 1793, 1794, recorded in his "A voyage of discovery to the North Pacific Ocean and round the world, in 1790-95," London, 1798, 3 vols., 4°; 1 vol., F°. Captain Broughton touched at the islands in 1796, as related in his "Voyage of discovery in the Dædalus, to the North Pacific Ocean, 1795-98," London, 1804 (French ed., Paris, 1807). Turnbull's "Voyage round the world in 1800-1804" describes a stay of one month (December 1, 1802-January 1, 1803) on the islands. Richard J. Cleveland's "A narrative of voyages and commercial enterprises," Cambridge, 1842, records the events of a trading visit in 1803. Krusenstern, the Russian navigator, spent three days only at the islands on his voyage round the world in 1804, as related in his "Voyage autour du monde," St. Petersburg, 1809-1812 (English ed., London, 1813). Lisianski, another Russian officer, made a short stay in 1804; an English edition of his narrative was published at London in 1804 under the title, "Voyage round the world in 1803-6." Mariner's "Account of the natives of the Tonga Islands," etc., London, 1818, 2 vols., has a note on a visit made in September, 1806. Archibald Campbell's "Voyage round the world, 1806-12," Edinburgh, 1816, describes a stay among the islands from January 27, 1809, to March 4, 1810. A. Delano's "A narrative of voyages and travels," Boston, 1817, has a chapter giving an account of a visit in 1809. Peter Conway's experiences in Hawaii in 1815-1817 are related in MacCarthy's "Choix de voyages," Paris, 1821-22. Kotzebue, on his voyage to Russian America, made explorations about the islands, which he describes in his narrative published at St. Petersburg in 1821-1823; an English edition published at London in 1821 in 3 vols. Choris, the artist of Kotzebue's expedition, published his productions in "Voyage pittoresque autour du monde," Paris, 1821-1823, in folio. A French expedition round the world, under the command of L. C. de Freycinet, visited the islands in 1819, as reported in his "Voyage autour du monde, fait par le ordre du roi, pendant les années 1817-20," Paris, 1824-1844; the scientific results of this expedition are given in Arago's "Promenade autour du monde," Paris, 1823. Two missionaries, Daniel Tyerman and George Dennet, record their experiences in the islands in 1822 in "Journal of voyages and travels in the South Sea islands," London, 1831, and Boston, 1832. The Russian expedition under Kotzebue in 1823-1826 visited Hawaii; see his "Journey round the world," London, 1830, 2 vols. Capt. Benjamin Cowell's "Narrative of four voyages," New York, 1832, gives an account of a week spent in Hawaii in June, 1825. Capt. F. W. Beechey was at Honolulu in May, 1826, and from January to March, 1827; see his "Narrative of a voyage to the Pacific and Bering Strait, in 1825, 1826, 1827, and 1828," London, 1831. Duhaut-Cilly's "Voyage autour du monde, principalement à la Californie et aux îles Sandwich, 1826-29," contains account of a visit of two months in 1828. Lafond de Lurcy's "Voyages," Paris, 1834-35, has notes on a visit made in May, 1828. In 1829 the islands were explored by an expedition under command of Hiram Paulding, the results of which are given in Paulding's "Journal of the cruise of the United States schooner Dolphin," New York, 1831. The principal succeeding voyages of exploration in chronological order are reported in: Meyer's "Reise um die erde," Berlin, 1834-35 (visits in 1828, 1831, 1833, and 1837); Reynolds's "Voyage of the United States frigate Potomac," New York, 1835; Warriner's "Journal of a cruise in the United States frigate Potomac," New York, 1835; Fanning's "Voyages round the world," New York, 1835 (4th ed., 1838); Bennett's "Narrative of a whaling voyage round the globe, from 1833 to 1836," London, 1840; Ruschenberger's "Narrative of a voyage round the world," Philadelphia and London, 1839; Vaillant's "Voyage autour du monde, 1836 et

1837," Paris, 1839 (records valuable scientific results); Sir Edw. Belcher's "Narrative of a voyage round the world, 1836-42," London, 1843; Du Petit-Thouar's "Voyage autour du monde sur la frégate la Vénus, 1838-39," Paris, 1841-1849; Laplace's "Campagne de circumnavigation de la frégate l'Artémise," Paris, 1841. The expedition under Wilkes made extensive explorations and scientific investigations on the islands, which are fully recorded in "Narrative of the United States exploring expedition, executed in the years 1838 to 1842, under Ch. Wilkes, U. S. N.," Philadelphia, 1845, 6 vols., and in the special reports of the scientists who accompanied the expedition, viz: Baird (Herpetology), Brackenridge (Cryptogamia), Cassin (Mammalogy and Ornithology), Dana (Crustacea), Gould (Mollusca), Gray (Phanerogamia), Hale (Ethnology), Pickering (Races of men), Wilkes (Hydrography).

The above constitute the principal accounts by navigators and explorers, to which Martin's "Catalogue d'ouvrages relatifs aux îles Hawaii," Paris, 1867, has been a helpful source of information.

The books treating more directly of Hawaii are enumerated in the following list, which it has been my aim to make as complete as consistent with preparation in a given time, particularly as to more important books.
