The roll of members was then called, when all the members answered by their names, except Messrs. CHASE and CALVIN.

SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE.

After the calling of the roll, Mr. KERNS moved that the House do now proceed to elect a Speaker. The motion was agreed to.

The clerks were designated to act as tellers.

Mr. M'KEE, I nominate for Speaker, Col. JNO. P. GLASS, of Allegheny.

Mr. HEADMAN, I nominate for Speaker, A. D. MARKLEY, of Montgomery.

A ballot was then taken, when the following named gentleman voted for JNO. P. GLASS:

Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Colville, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Donohough, Espy, Evans, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harrison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Mann, Markley, Marks, Mechiing, Meily, Pennypacker, Peters, Pillow, Quay, Richards, Roath, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Stacey, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall and Wright—C1.

The following named gentlemen voted for A. D. MARKLEY:

Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen,

Brennan, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Glass, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Hetzel, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Rouch, Satterthwaite, Tharp and Westbrook—57.

Col. JNO. P. GLASS, having received a majority of the votes cast, was declared duly elected Speaker of the House of Representatives.

The Speaker elect was conducted to the Chair by Messrs. MARKLEY and QUAY.

He then addressed the House as follows:

Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:

I return you my thanks for this assurance of your kindness and confidence. Your partiality has called me to preside over our deliberations, while, as the representatives of the people, we enact into law their wishes and purposes.

We are the representatives not of counties, but from counties, and of the State. We are the guardians of its interest and treasure, the arbiters of its prosperity and progress. Our people demand of us no doubtful service. We owe them abiding fidelity.

In the performance of our duties, manly courtesy and kindness will secure confidence and good faith.

The business of legislation can only be well and speedily transacted by a firm and persistent attention to, and obedience of those rules, which long experience has proven to be essential to harmonious action and correct results. Strict adherence to the well established rules of parliamentary law, is the only highway to success. I shall try to enforce these rules, as I understand them, but my will to accomplish this will be impotent, unless I have your cordial support. With that I am sure I cannot fail, for my errors you will correct or excuse.

Several years of legislative experience have taught me that we have great mutual interests, although occasional special antagonisms. If true to ourselves and to each other, we cannot be false to the trusts committed to us by an honest constituency.

Measures of great importance to all will demand our consideration. The storm of war is followed by the sunshine of peace. Our victorious legions have returned from the carnage of conflict to the calm comforts of home. The fierce alchemy of strife has made a nation without a slave. The chains of the oppressed no more make liberty bluish in our land.

Our work is not yet done. Shall we vanquish traitor, or the victorious patriot, build the new safeguards which, in the future, will protect the shrine of liberty from the treachery and assaults of the same foe? This question we, the representatives of, and from the victors, must answer!

The friends of American Liberty have submitted to the people the Amendment to the National Constitution. The people have sent us here to adopt that Amendment, and thus declare that traitors must take back seats, while the true friends of national unity and power strengthen the foundations of free in-situations, and set watch and ward on the outer walls.

Pennsylvania was one of the first States to abolish slavery—so will she be firm in her defense of universal liberty. Her people, with the millions of other States, have issued their fiat. Treason must be made odious, and power and patronage cannot corrupt their people.

The great and growing interest of our State calls on us to extend our hands to further her true wealth and progress. No narrow sectional or local question should lead us from duty. Our hills, our valleys, our mountains, our productive fields, invite to activity every man and means of progress.—The sinews of iron, and the noise of power, bid us to be up and doing. We should offer inducements to enterprise, that she may reach out her busy hands and sturdy arms to develop new fields for commerce and manufactures. To do this we need, and I doubt not, shall have a general railroad law—that the rattle of the train and the scream of the whistle will startle the echoes of many a silent valley, and pour the treasures of new fields into the marts of trade.

But it is not for me to detail all the important issues likely to be before us.

Let us address ourselves to our tasks like men who cannot be foiled, if will and way can triumph.

I ask your indulgence and support. I will do my duty without partiality or fear. My judgment may err—my purpose shall not. Without your help I may fail. With it I cannot.

I repeat, I thank you for this mark of your favor.

The Speaker having signified his desire that the oath of office should be administered to him by Mr. Matamoras, a gentleman appeared before the Speaker's desk and administered the following oath:

You do swear by Almighty God, the searcher of all hearts, that you will support the Constitution of the United States, and that as you shall answer to God at the great day.

You do also swear by Almighty God, the searcher of all hearts, that you will support the Constitution of the State of Pennsylvania, and that you will perform the duties of Speaker and member of the House of Representatives with fidelity, and as you shall answer to God at the great day.

The members of the House then presented themselves and were severally sworn or affirmed, after which each signed a copy of the Constitution of the United States and of the State of Pennsylvania.

ELECTION OF CLERK.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I move that we do now proceed to the nomination and election of a Clerk.

Mr. FREEBORN. I second the motion.

Mr. KURTZ. I nominate, for Clerk, C. T. Alexander, of Centre county.

Mr. M'PHERRIN. I nominate A. W. Benedict.

The House then proceeded to ballot; the following gentlemen voting for A. W. Benedict:

Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Colville, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harrison, Hoffman, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Creery, M'Kee, M'Pherrian, Mann, Marks, Mechling, Meily, Pennypacker, Peters, Richards, Roth, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Stacey, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—58.

The following named gentlemen voted for C. T. Alexander:

Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Chalfant, Collins, Deise, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Hetzel, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Ronch, Satterthwait, Tharp and Westbrook—36.

Mr. A. W. Benedict, having received a majority of the votes cast, was declared duly elected Clerk of the House for the present session.

Upon the invitation of the SPEAKER, Mr. Benedict presented himself before the Speaker's desk and took the oath of office.

OFFICERS OF THE HOUSE.

Mr. DAVIS offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the following named persons be declared the officers of the House of Representatives for the present session:

Assistant Clerk—J. R. McAfee.
Postmaster—J. D. Kirkpatrick.
Sergeant-at-Arms—W. J. Owens.
Doorkeeper—Jas. M'Gown.
Messenger—Jas. M'Canley.

Mr. BOYLE moved to amend by striking out all after the words "assistant clerk" and inserting the following:

"Charles Perrine.
Sergeant-at-Arms—Charles B. Haines.
Doorkeeper—George Wamshur.
Messenger—Michael Maguire.
Postmaster—Michael J. Dougherty."

On the motion to amend, the yeas and nays were required by Mr. BOYLE and Mr. DAVIS, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Chalfant, Collins, Deise, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Satterthwait, Tharp, and Westbrook—35.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Colville, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harrison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrian, Mann, Marks, Mechling, Meily, Pennypacker, Peters, Richards, Roth, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Stacey, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—59.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The question recurring on the original resolution of Mr. DAVIS, it was adopted.

The officers elected then appeared before the SPEAKER'S desk and were duly qualified.

Mr. HOFFMAN. I desire to offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed, to act in conjunction with a similar committee on the part of the Senate (if the Senate shall appoint such a committee), to receive proposals, and contract for the publication of a Daily Record.

Mr. HOFFMAN. I offer the following resolution as an amendment.

Resolution read by the Clerk as follows:

Resolved, That if the Senate concur, that said committee appointed to make said contract, are required to stipulate that the said Record shall be laid daily (when the House and Senate are respectively in session) on the desk of each Representative and Senator, and said Record to contain inter alia the proceedings of such preceding session, not more remote than the third session prior to the day when so laid on the desk, and that no money shall be drawn from the State Treasury for the contract price, or any part thereof, if said stipulation is not complied with.

Mr. MEYERS. It seems to me that that resolution or amendment ought to recommend itself to the consideration of the House. The object of the publication of a Daily Record is to furnish the members with a knowledge of the proceedings of this House, in order, I suppose, that they may act intelligently. As it was last session, and as I suppose, for a number of sessions previous thereto, we did not receive the proceedings of the Senate or House, sometimes, for a period of eight or nine days after those proceedings had taken place, and, therefore, it is utterly impossible for members to keep the run of business in the House and the Senate. I think if it is necessary that the State should go to the expense of publishing a daily record of the proceedings of the House and Senate, copies of those proceedings should be at the hands of the members whenever they require them. Now, as it was last session, eight or ten days, and sometimes two weeks would elapse. We would have had as a record, not of the proceedings of a day previous, or two days previous, or three days, but of eight or ten days or two weeks beforehand. That certainly can be of no benefit to the members of the House or the Senate. They can be of no benefit to the people to whom we send our Record. Therefore it would be useless to publish it. If it is impossible for the party who has the contract to furnish our Record in that way—to contain the proceedings within three days from the time they occurred, let him get additional force, let him get additional compositors, let him get additional reporters. If the contract price is too low, let it be increased. At the close of the last session there were a large number of the Records not published; they came to us without affording to the members a single opportunity to make any correction. Certainly, the members are entitled to make such corrections in the Record. Where, by a slip of the pen, where, by a misunderstanding on the part of the reporters, or for any cause, errors creep into the Record they ought to be corrected. The members have not an opportunity to revise if the Records are not furnished to them. The record of the proceedings at the close of the last session was not furnished until a long time after they had taken place. It is not a question with the contracting party. You are obliged to furnish the Record in this way, and if you are to furnish it, you are to be paid for it. You must make your price accordingly. And when the contracting party makes his agreement he ought to be held up to it. Now, in the State of New York, the press publish a vast amount of matter from one day to the other and spread it before the people. And I think it could be done in this House. I think the proceedings could be published so that we might know what they were and act intelligently.

Mr. LEE. I offer the following amendment to the amendment.

The amendment was read by the Clerk, as follows:

Resolved, That political speeches shall not be required to be inserted.

Mr. QUIGLEY. I am very sorry this thing has been sprung at this early hour of the session. I am very sorry to see the spirit manifested by my friend from Northampton. I think it is altogether wrong. I have had some experience in this House. I know how the Record has been gotten up. I know why we don't have it on our tables on the day after the proceeding-ink place. And so does he. So do we all. Why? Because we don't pay the price for it. Now, I have fault to find also. I did not receive my Records as soon as I would have liked. I know why it was so. We did not pay the contract price that was wanted. I was on that committee, too. If you get more reporters and pay a larger price you will have what you want, furnished us in New York and Washington and some other cities.

I say this has been sprung too early in the session, and I make this motion, Mr. Speaker, so that these new members may learn something about it. I make a motion that this thing be postponed for the present.

Motion seconded by Mr. ADAIR.

Mr. MEYERS. I have but one word to say to the gentleman from Philadelphia. I made my remarks without any feeling whatever. The publication of the Daily Record is a business matter. And why, in the first place, was it raised that the Record should be published, I don't know. It has been done for a long time, and I suppose has become a necessary nuisance. If we are to have a publication of the Record, when are we to have it? When we want to use it? We want to use the proceedings of the first of March in two or three days thereafter, and not in the middle of the month. The party who contracts to furnish this Record to the House and the Senate should do so in the spirit which requires the necessity—that is that we know these proceedings. Now, this is not a political question. It is purely a matter of the transaction of business with advantage to the members, and if it is for the advantage of members it must be for the advantage of constituents, and then it ought to be a good thing. Therefore, I say, inasmuch as the right of the Legislature should be the receiving of proposals, that then these proposals ought to be received from such parties as are willing to print a daily record upon these terms and conditions. And when these terms and conditions are spread before the parties who are willing to make the contract, they can make their proposals accordingly. If they cannot deliver the Record for the price received herefore let them make their prices accordingly, and have the Record on the table, so we can know what is going on. Very often bills are introduced. We can know nothing of them. They are afterwards taken up out of order, without knowledge of them—merely by recollection of the things that occurred two weeks before—therefore we are unable to act with correct judgment on what has been done by the House or Senate. I think this amendment ought to pass, and for that purpose I call for the ayes and noes.

Mr. QUIGLEY. I make my motion to save time. I never knew a motion of that kind to be made so early in the session. We have in the House one hundred members, and out of this hundred there is one-half new members. If any man has a right to find fault I have. I have known the difficulty of this thing. But I have never known a motion of this kind made so early in the meeting of the Legislature, in my life. We have to receive a message from the Governor. It will take half an hour at least to read it. Therefore I wish to postpone this thing and let the new members know what the old members know, and then appoint a committee and do what you please.

Now, I am ecstasially opposed to the man who has the Record. I am a Democrat, and he is as black as the Ace of Spades. But I say this, there is no man can do it for the price he gets, and put it on the desk every morning. I make a motion to postpone for the purpose of saving time, and letting us get through with the organization of the House. Two or three weeks hereafter will be time enough.

Mr. DAVIS. I trust the House will go on an perfect its organization. I am of the opinion that this debate was sprung on the House, and to say the least of it, probably out of order. We have just, by resolution, elected the officers of the House. We have not sworn them in. The assertion of the gentleman from Philadelphia that he never knew a resolution of this kind to be offered on the first day of the session before, is entirely taken for granted by himself; because the proceedings of the last session show that it was offered on the first day. The gentleman was merely carrying out the principle of the last session, when he offered the resolution. I believe he was a little ahead of time. He should have waited until the officers were sworn in, and then his resolution was proper and in order. The hour is late and it is time to adjourn. So far as I am concerned, I don't think there is any hesitation on this side of the House in letting this question go over until to-morrow. I believe we can print a Record as cheaply and intelligibly and acceptably in our party as in theirs. But I believe this matter ought to be postponed. I believe it is out of order. I believe the officers just elected ought to be sworn in and the organization of the House perfected.

Mr. MEYERS. I consent that this matter be postponed for the present.

The question on the postponement for the present was put by the SPEAKER and agreed to.

Mr. DAVIS. I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That C. W. Walker be hereby appointed an additional Transcribing Clerk.

The resolution was agreed to.

The Doorkeeper announces that he has appointed the following gentlemen as Transcribing Clerks:

A. D. Harlan, W. R. Johnson, W. R. Brockway, Jas. Metcalf and W. C. Mlyus. The Postmaster informs the Chair that he has appointed as his assistant, Jas. Penrose. The Doorkeeper informs the Chair that he has appointed the following named gentlemen as his assistants: John Meehling, Jas. R. Horton, Thos. Martin, John Mitchell, James Ghegan and Lyman Hagie. The Sergeant-at-Arms informs the Speaker that he has appointed as assistants, George Strain, Geo. W. Kean, J. R. Orwig and J. D. V. Hazzard.

The messenger informs the Chair that he has made the following appointments:

Samuel Crawford, W. A. Rupert; John F. Keagy and George DeHaven; Jr. The above named gentlemen were then duly sworn into office.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution:

WHEREAS, The Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania requires the Governor elect to enter upon the duties of his office on the third Tuesday of January next ensuing the election; and therefore,

Resolved, That the inaugural ceremonies of the Governor elect take place at 12 o'clock, m., on Tuesday, the 15th inst., on the south portico of the Capitol, should the weather prove favorable; otherwise, in the Hall of the House of Representatives.

Resolved, That a committee of seven be appointed to act in conjunction with a similar committee of the Senate (should the Senate appoint such a committee) to make the necessary inaugural arrangements, and wait upon the Governor and the Governor elect, and accompany them to the Capitol, on the 15th instant, as a merited act of courtesy to the Governor, and for the purpose of having the oath of office administered to the Governor elect.

The resolution was read a second time and agreed to.

The SPEAKER appointed the following committee:

Messrs. PENNYPACKER, HOFFMAN, ALLEN, KERNS, CALVIN, QUIGLEY and WHARTON. Mr. M'CREARY. I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That a committee of two members be appointed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives is organized and ready to proceed to business.

The resolution was agreed to.

The Speaker appointed Messrs. M'CREARY and MYERS, the committee, Mr. M'KEE. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following:

Resolved, That the sessions of this House commence at 11 o'clock, a. m., and end at 1 o'clock, p. m., until otherwise ordered. The resolution was agreed to.

Mr. JOSEPHS. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following:

Resolved, That the Clerk be authorized to furnish one copy of Pardon's Digest, with appendix bound in, and one Ziegler's Manual, for each member, Clerk and Committee Room.

The resolution, as amended by Messrs. M'CREARY and QUIGLEY, was then agreed to.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following:

Resolved, if the Senate concur, that a committee of three members of the Senate and House be appointed to inform His Excellency, the Governor, that the General Assembly is organized and ready to receive any communication he may have to make.

The resolution was agreed to and the Speaker appointed Messrs. SHARPLES, MARKLEY and STUMBAUGH the committee.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following:

Resolved, That the rules of the last House of Representatives be adopted as the rules of this body until otherwise ordered.

Mr. BOYLE offered an amendment upon which some discussion arose, pending which, on motion of Mr. DAVIS, the House adjourned to meet to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

SENATE.

TUESDAY, January 1, 1867.

This being the day appointed by the Constitution for the meeting of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania, the members of the Senate assembled in their Chamber, and at three o'clock, p. m., were called to order by the Speaker, Hon. I. W. HALL, of Blair county, who announced a quorum of Senators present.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth being introduced, presented the returns of the last election of members of the Senate of Pennsylvania.

The returns were read by the Clerk as follows.

- Districts.*
1st. Philadelphia—W. H. M'Candless.
8th. Berks—J. D. Davis.
10th. Carbon, Monroe, Pike and Wayne—Charlton Burnett.
15th. Northumberland, Montour, Columbia and Sullivan—Geo. D. Jackson.
16th. Dauphin and Lebanon—G. Dawson Coleman.
17th. Lancaster—J. W. Fisher, E. Billingfield.
20th. Somerset, Bedford and Fulton—Alex. Stutzman.
24th. Westmoreland, Fayette and Greene—Thomas B. Spenrith.

29th. Washington and Beaver—A. W. Taylor.

29th. Mercer, Venango and Warren—J. C. Brown.

Mr. SCHALL offered a paper to the Chair, signed by Messrs. BURNETT, DAVIS, JACKSON, McCANDLESS and SEARIGHT, the reception of which was objected to by Mr. CONNELL on the ground that the Senators who had signed it had not yet been qualified as members of the Senate.

And on the question, Shall the paper be rejected?

Mr. LOWRY raised a question of order, as to the right of Senators signing the paper to vote.

The SPEAKER sustained the objection, and directed the Clerk to omit their names in calling the yeas and nays.

And the question recurring, Shall the paper be rejected?

Mr. BIGHAM. There is a rule that a Senator shall not vote on a question in which he is personally interested.

On the motion of Mr. CONNELL that the paper be not received,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DONOVAN and Mr. WALLACE, and were as follows, viz:

Yeas—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Ridgway, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—19.

NAYS—Messrs. Donovan, Glatz, James, Randall, Schall, Wallace and Walls—7.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The SPEAKER then administered the oath of office to the newly elected Senators.

The roll was then called, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Messrs. M' Candless, Ridgway, Donovan, Connell, Worthington, James, Schall, Davis, Randall, Burnett, Landon, Shoemaker, Cowles, Walls, Jackson, Coleman, Billingsfelt, Fisher, Glatz, M'Conaughy, Stutzman, Hall, Haines, White, Wallace, Searight, Graham, Bigham, Taylor, Brown and Lowry.

Absent—Messrs. Browne, of Lawrence, and Royer, of Montgomery.

Mr. BIGHAM announced that the Senator from Lawrence, Mr. BROWNE, was necessarily absent attending the death of a near relative.

Mr. CONNELL moved that the Senate proceed to ballot for Speaker, and that the Clerk act as teller.

The motion was adopted, and the roll called, with the following result:

Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Ridgway, Schall, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, White and Worthington—19, voted for HON. W. HALL.

Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, Jackson, James, M' Candless, Randall, Schall, Searight, Wallace, Walls and Hall—12, voted for GEORGE B. SCHALL.

LOUIS W. HALL having received a majority of the votes cast, was declared by the Clerk duly elected Speaker of the Senate.

The SPEAKER then addressed the Senate as follows:

SENATORS.—Time honored custom would seem to demand a brief expression of the feelings which I entertain, in entering upon my duties as your presiding officer. Whilst the honor you have conferred, affects me sensibly, I cannot felicitate myself upon its attainment, unless I prove equal to the discharge of its functions. I shall consider myself fortunate, if I shall be enabled so to preside as to maintain the dignity of this body, by a strict and impartial observance of parliamentary rules, whilst every Senator is treated with a proper degree of deference and respect. The Senate of the ancient Roman Commonwealth was looked upon with reverential awe. It was not that forced deference which is paid to imperial power. It was due to the virtues, the services, and the illustrious lives of the Senators themselves; to the noble sentiments they enunciated, the wise laws they enacted, and the gravity and dignity which presided over their deliberations.

Our State is modeled, to a great extent, after the ancient Republics. Well may we strive to imitate the Roman Senate in the halcyon days of the Republic, and to emulate its members in the austerity of their morals, the purity of their patriotism and the loftiness of their aspirations. By candor and moderation in council, by a firm adherence to our convictions of truth and right, by the utter exclusion of party considerations and partisan rancor, by having an eye single to the welfare of our Commonwealth and of the nation, we may hope to attain to the true ideal of a Republican Senate.

Men may well differ in opinion—differ honestly. The time has passed, long passed, and passed no doubt forever, when good men prescribed men equally good, because they differed in opinion. Good men may well be in earnest. Life is no pastime. Since unquestionably it is an earnest and solemn thing to die, it is an earnest and solemn thing to live. The world should be growing wiser every day. We have the light of experience streaming down from remote antiquity over fallen States and Empires, to guide us in the way of national safety. The session upon which we have just entered, imposes upon us new duties and new responsibilities, to which we should all be fully fitted. Our State is one of a great family of States. But whilst its interests are identified with those of the Federal Union, and whilst we as Senators cannot be indifferent to the great problems, arising from the attitude of the States lately in rebellion, nothing should be wanting on our part, to promote the development of the internal resources and mineral wealth of our entire Commonwealth.

Happily, the rebellion with its terrible slaughters, sufferings and desolation, is past. There remains to us the present and the future, and the duty to read the lessons of the past aright, and to apply the truth taught aright, so that our national life shall come out of the peril which has environed it, so strengthened, guarded and shielded, as to make its future perpetually secure.

On various occasions teach new duties, Time makes ancient good uncouth, They must upward still and onward, Who would keep abreast of truth. Lo! Before us gleam her camp-fires! We, ourselves must pilgrims be, Launch our May-Flower, and steer boldly Through the desperate winter sea, Nor attempt the future's portal, with The Past's blood-rusted Key.

That which has been very far from showing that a Republican form of Government is a failure, or indeed that it has any inherent or essential element of weakness. On the contrary, it has conclusively demonstrated its great strength and durability. Our weakness lay in this, that our Government was not really Republican. Our strength in the future will be in the fact that we will have a Government truly republican.

Liberty has survived, and come out purified from the shock of arms.

Liberty's vitality, like truth, is still undying. Like the sacred fire Nature has kindled in caverns, still it burns Though the storm howls without.

All men are to be beneforth equal before the law, and this an equality, not in name alone, but in fact. The mighty arm of the Republic will be stretched forth to protect from oppression and wrong the weakest and most humble citizen.

In our legislation, affecting the vast interests of a Commonwealth of three millions of people, may we all be enlightened to a faithful and conscientious discharge of our whole duty.

I pleased to designate a Senator to administer to me the official obligation I am required to take.

SEVERAL SENATORS. Let the SPEAKER name the Senator.

The SPEAKER. Will the Senator from Lehigh administer the necessary oath to the SPEAKER?

Mr. SCHALL then appeared in front of the SPEAKER'S chair and administered the following oath to the SPEAKER:

You do swear by Almighty God, the searcher of all hearts, that you will support the Constitution of the United States, and that as you shall answer to God at the great day.

You do also swear by Almighty God, the searcher of all hearts, that you will support the Constitution of the State of Pennsylvania, and that you will perform the duties of Speaker and member of the Senate with fidelity, and as you shall answer to God at the great day.

Mr. CONNELL moved that the Senate proceed to ballot for a Chief Clerk.

The motion was adopted, and the roll called with the following result:

Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Ridgway, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—19, voted George W. Hamersly.

George W. Hamersly having received all the votes cast was declared duly elected Clerk of the Senate, and the oath of office was administered to him by the SPEAKER.

Mr. CONNELL offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the following named persons be and are hereby appointed officers of the Senate for the present session:

Assistant Clerks—Lucius Rogers, Col. Fred. L. Hitchcock.

Transcribing Clerks—Henry W. Kratz, James C. Graham, Michael Reilly, William E. Browne, Joel L. Bigham.

Sergeant at Arms—Major W. M. Hinkson.

Assistant Sergeants at Arms—Col. Thomas Crawford, John Landon.

Doorkeeper—M. Edgar King.

Assistant Doorkeepers—John Burns, John Twiss, Capt. A. Gettsball, Ethel Fuller, John C. Sturtevant, William A. Wylie, Albert B. Taylor, Horatio P. Connell.

Messenger—Robert Sharp.

Assistant Messenger—Andrew Shields.

Librarian—Jacob Styers.

Assistant Librarians—Charles Williams, F. H. Briggs.

Doorkeeper of Rotunda—Benjamin Halde-man.

Mr. RANDALL moved to amend the same by striking out all after the word "session," and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

Assistant Clerks—William A. Gallagher, Frank M'Gee.

Sergeant at Arms—James Sherry.

Assistant Sergeant at Arms—W. W. Williams, Jas. Crawford.

Transcribing Clerks—Richard Kuhn, A. W. Walters, Thomas Hannah, E. J. Small, P. Shoemaker.

Doorkeeper—David Buck.

Assistant Doorkeepers—Wm. Ginkinger, Hiram Bixler, W. Lindemuth.

Messenger—Geo. W. Long.

Assistant Messenger—John Cox.

Librarian—Jacob Styers.

On the question, Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DONOVAN and Mr. RANDALL, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, Jackson, James, M' Candless, Randall, Schall, Seargist, Wallace and Walls—12.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfield, Brown (Mercer), Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Ridgway, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—18.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The resolution of Mr. CONNELL was then adopted.

The requisite oaths of office were then administered by the SPEAKER to the officers elect.

RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. WALLACE offered the following resolution:

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That the rules of the last session for the government of the two Houses be adopted for their government at the present session. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. JAMES offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the rules of the Senate, adopted at the session of 1866, be and they are hereby adopted for the government of the Senate at the present session, until otherwise ordered.

The resolution was adopted. Mr. WHITE offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Speaker of the Senate be and he is hereby requested to invite the clergymen of Harrisburg to alternately visit the Senate, and open its sessions with prayer. The resolution was adopted.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, presented the following extract from the Journal of the House; which was read as follows:

In the House of Representatives, January 1, 1867.

Resolved, That a committee of two members be appointed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives is organized and ready to proceed to business; and Ordered, That Messrs. M'CREARY and MEYERS be said committee.

Resolved, That (if the Senate concur) a committee of three members of the Senate and House be appointed to inform His Excellency the Governor that the General Assembly is organized and ready to receive any communications he may have to make.

Ordered, That Messrs. SHARPLES, MARLEY and STUMBAUGH be the committee on the part of the House.

On motion of Mr. LOWRY, the last resolution was read a second time and agreed to, and Messrs. WHITE, BIGHAM and WALLACE were appointed the committee on the part of the Senate.

RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. LOWRY offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That a committee of two members of the Senate be appointed to inform the House of Representatives that the Senate is now organized and ready to proceed to business.

The resolution was adopted, and Messrs. LOWRY and SCHALL appointed as the committee.

Mr. CONNELL offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That (if the House of Representatives concur) the Governor be requested to return to the Senate bill No. 472, entitled A supplement to an act relative to the sale and conveyance of real estate, passed April 18, 1853.

The resolution was adopted. Mr. BIGHAM offered the following resolution:

WHEREAS, It is understood that the Hon. Wm. M. Meredith, Attorney General of the State, at the annual session of 1864, had prepared an elaborate legal opinion on the questions involved in the proper organization of the Senate, and of the duty of the Executive in regard thereto;

And whereas, The same has never been made public; therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate, That the Attorney General be requested to communicate a copy of said opinion, in order that the same may be printed and preserved in the archives of the Senate for future reference.

On the question, Will the Senate agree to the same?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. GLATZ and Mr. WALLACE, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfield, Brown (Mercer), Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, M'Conaughy, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—16.

NAYS—Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, Jackson, James, Lowry, M' Candless, Randall, Schall, Seargist, Wallace and Walls—13.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, presented an extract from the Journal of the House; which was read as follows:

In the House of Representatives, January 1st, 1867.

WHEREAS, The Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania requires the Governor elect to enter upon the duties of his office on the third Tuesday of January next, ensuing the election; therefore,

Resolved, That the inaugural ceremonies of the Governor elect take place at 12 o'clock, m., on Tuesday, the 15th inst., on the south portico of the Capitol, should the weather prove favorable, otherwise in the Hall of the House of Representatives.

Resolved, That a committee of seven be appointed to act in conjunction with a similar committee of the Senate, should the Senate appoint such committee, to make the necessary inaugural arrangements, and wait upon the Governor and Governor elect and conduct them to the capitol on the 15th inst., as a merited act of courtesy to the Governor, and for the purpose of having the oath of office administered to the Governor elect.

Ordered, That Messrs. PENNYPACKER, HENNING, ALLEN, QUIGLEY, KEYS, F. W. WILSON and CALVIN be the committee on the part of the House.

Said resolutions were concurred in by the Senate, and Messrs. HAINES, FISHER, COWLES, M' CANDLESS, GRAHAM, GLATZ and RIDGWAY were appointed the committee on the part of the Senate.

HOUSE OF MEETING.

Mr. SHOEMAKER offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That when the Senate adjourn it will adjourn to meet to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock, and that 11 o'clock, a. m., be the hour of meeting, and 1 o'clock, p. m., the hour of adjourning until otherwise ordered, except on Mondays and Saturdays, and that the Senate will meet at seven o'clock, p. m.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, I would suggest that 8 o'clock be the time for meeting on Monday evening.

Mr. CONNELL. The 8 o'clock meetings, generally, amount to nothing. I move to amend by making it 7 1/2 o'clock.

The amendment was agreed to.

The resolution, as amended, was adopted. Mr. WHITE offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Clerk of the Senate be and is hereby instructed to furnish each member of the Senate, and also the chief and assistant clerks, with a copy of Pardon's Digest and the Legislative Manual of the latest edition.

The resolution was adopted.

Mr. CONNELL offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed from the Senate, to act in conjunction with a similar committee on the part of the House (if the House shall appoint such a committee), to receive the proposals and contract for the publication of a Daily Record.

The resolution was agreed to, and Messrs. CONNELL, BROWN (of Mercer county) and GLATZ were appointed on the part of the Senate.

ELECTION OF UNITED STATES SENATOR.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, legal men in this body disagree as to the time of the election of United States Senator, and I think it is a subject of such great importance that I would draw the attention of the Senate to it, and would like to hear from the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] on the subject.

Mr. WALLACE. I do not know why I should be called upon to give my opinion in regard to a subject of this kind, unless it is because I differ with some on the floor of the Senate. I am by no means confident I am right, yet men have opinions. My view in regard to this subject is that, as the act of Congress fixes "the second Tuesday after the meeting and organization" for the election of United States Senator, that the day of such meeting and organization is included as one of the two, and that the election must be on next Tuesday. Whether I am right or not, I do not presume to decide. I understand the law to be well settled that, in the computation of time the day, on which an act is to be done is included.

In Pierpont vs. Graham, 4 W. C. C. Rep., 240, Judge Washington sums up the authorities thus: "Then the computation of time is to be made from an act done the day on which the act is performed is included, because the act is the terminus a quo the computation is to be made; and there being in law no fraction of a day the terminus is considered as commencing at the first moment of that day."

In Arnold vs. U. S., 9th Cranch, 104, in which the question was upon the date of a statute, Judge Story says, "It is a general rule that where the computation is to be made from an act done the day on which the act is done is to be included."

Both these cases are decisions in the United States Courts.

In our own courts the same rule is held; for in the case of Thomas vs. A. Flick, 4th Harris, 14, per curiam opinion emphatically re-asserts this doctrine. So, too, in the Common Pleas of Philadelphia, Judge Allison, in 2d Philadelphia Reports, 370, rules that the day on which a judgment is entered is to be included in computing the time for taking an appeal.

These cases are simply a renunciation of the rule of the common law, and upon them I ventured to express the doubt I entertained upon the subject, to the Senator from Erie [Mr. LOWRY] in a private conversation this morning, not dreaming that he would thus let me out.

Under this act of Congress, the act to be done is the meeting and organization of the Legislature. If that be done on the first Tuesday of January, then it seems to me that it is clear that that day is to be included and not excluded; and if it be included, the second Tuesday falls upon the 15th day of January and not upon the 14th.

Mr. CONNELL. In order to have the opinion of men competent to decide on the question, I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That a select committee of five members of the Senate, to act in conjunction with a similar committee of the House of Representatives (if the House of Representatives shall appoint such committee), be appointed to report to the Legislature their opinion as to the day on which the election of United States Senator shall take place.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I think it is quite preposterous to settle a question of this kind in the way proposed. In all probability we adjourn to-morrow to meet again next Monday evening, at half-past seven. The most you can do to-day is to appoint your committee, and then you meet within a few hours of the time when this act is to be done. When the matter was first mentioned by the Senator from Erie [Mr. LOWRY], or the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WARR], had some books open before him. I took it for granted that he would say something, but he did not. I, therefore, take the privilege of saying that this question has been examined by a higher authority than any proposed in this way. The attention of the Attorney General of the State has been called to this matter. Although I do not know that he has given a written opinion, or what his opinion is, and I have more deference for his opinion than I have for that of any committee that can be appointed by this Legislature. I have also some deference for the act of Congress. But there is not one of those cases that turns on a statute worded as this. The Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] was exceedingly guarded in his remarks.

He did not pretend to say that his own mind was made up on this question. These decisions which he has quoted were in reference to civil rights—in reference to something of that kind—but not in a matter of as much importance as this, in which three or four millions of the people are interested, and in which there are not ten men in the Commonwealth, I will venture to assert, that have until within the last day or two, supposed that any other but to-day two weeks was the time for this election. The time is too short; the questions too important. It has been investigated by the Attorney General and he has decided the fifteenth to be the day. I do not think that any person seriously intends at this time to undertake to change the settled opinion of the whole mass of the people on any such subject as this. It may be creditable to us as lawyers, but we are not construing a statute for sharp practice. It is a matter of great interest to the people of the whole State.

Mr. CONNELL. I confess I am in doubt about the construction of this act myself. I think a committee of legal gentlemen of this and the other branch could give us light. I really do not think it is so preposterous. I find other gentlemen in doubt as well as myself.

Mr. LOWRY. I do not think there is a disposition from any quarter to introduce sharp practice. Now, the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] has given his opinion that a week from to-day will be the day appointed by Congress for the lawful election of a United States Senator. I have been taught to believe that the Senator from Clearfield was a very sound lawyer, hardly ever wrong. The Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM] thinks it is a preposterous opinion; and what are Senators who are not lawyers to do when such eminent doctors differ? I hope the Senator from Allegheny will be on the committee, and that his legal opinion may be consulted. I want to vote for United States Senator on the day fixed by Congress, and I want to know what that day is. I believe it to be the 15th—the second Tuesday after the organization of the Legislature. I think the 15th is the second Tuesday; we don't have any "first" Tuesday at all. The Senator from Allegheny is no more anxious to prevent sharp practice than I am; but this question has been raised, and I do not know how we can arrive at a decision. The Attorney General is not in town. If he was, we could call upon him for his opinion, but we understand that he is not to be here. I think the resolution a proper one.

Mr. LANDON. Mr. Speaker, the Senate of Pennsylvania is supposed, throughout the Commonwealth, to be a very intelligent body of men. We have been to the common schools, and have a knowledge of the English language, and know the days of the week. The Congress passes an act regulating the time for the election of Senator, stating that we should elect a Senator on the second Tuesday after our meeting and organization. Now, sir, every man who voted for any of us read that enactment in the common prints, and immediately began to calculate on what day the election for United States Senator will take place. My word, sir, that not five men fixed that day on any other than the 15th of the month. The Legislature meets on the first Tuesday; a United States Senator is to be elected on the second Tuesday after the organization. The first Tuesday after the organization will be the 8th—the second, the 15th. Now, sir, I do not like to say that there is any doubt about the common intelligence of the Senate; I do not wish to say that I am in doubt about my own common sense, and the object of Congress was to convey the idea that the second Tuesday after the organization is the day for the election.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, one word on this subject. I have great deference and regard for the opinions of every lawyer in this body; and of course every Senator is responsible to himself for his conduct. I have usually a very high regard for the opinion of the Attorney General of the State, but it occurs to me that he is entirely in error in attempting to apply here the legal practice he is attempting. I agree entirely with my distinguished friend from Bradford [Mr. LANDON], in the common sense view which he takes on this subject, and in concurring with him I know that I properly represent the sentiments of my constituents upon this subject. They elected representatives to come here and elect a United States Senator upon the second Tuesday after the organization of the Legislature. They accepted that to be the 15th day of the month. Every paper in the Commonwealth which has written or published articles on this subject has so supposed, and that has settled down to be the common conviction of every man, and it is surprising that some Senators should be in doubt on the question. The passage of the resolution on your subject casts an imputation on our judgment. I would call the attention of the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] to the rule recognized in our courts in the computation of time. It is ruled in Pennsylvania that where a time is prescribed in which an act is to be done, and the computation is to be made from the act done, then the day on which the act is done is to be included. But when the computation is to be made from the day itself, then the day on which the act is done must be excluded. I read from the syllabus of the case of Hampton vs. Krenzler, 1 Br., 18: "The rule is, that when the computation is to be made from an act done, the day on which the act was done must be included; but when the computation is to be from the day itself, then the day on which the act is done must be excluded."

Now, how this matter? The act of Congress is our guide here; common sense should give us an interpretation of it. The act of Congress says:

"That the Legislature of each State which shall be chosen next preceding the expiration of the time for which any Senator was elected to represent said State in Congress, shall, on the second Tuesday after the meeting and organization thereof, proceed to elect a Senator in Congress, in place of such Senator so going out of office."

Now, what was the intention of Congress in passing the act in question? Why, it was to commence to compute the time after the day on which the organization was completed, and that is to-day, sir; and it is well known by every lawyer in this body that there is no fraction of a day in law. I trust that the Senate will not press this question in this shape; I trust it will not be admitted here to insult what has been accepted as the common sense and common understanding of the people of the Commonwealth.

Mr. Speaker, the question involved is purely a question of legal construction, and it is in that view that I propose to consider it. The words of the act of Congress; designating a time for the election of a United States Senator, are as follows:

Be it enacted, &c. That the Legislature of each State which shall be chosen next preceding the expiration of the time for which any Senator was elected to represent said State in Congress shall, on the second Tuesday after the meeting and organization thereof, proceed to elect a Senator in Congress.

In the construction of this language the first and limiting question is, are you to include this day, the day of the meeting and organization of the State Legislature, in the count? To the test of this inquiry we must call in the legal rules of construction. Now, sir, it is well settled by the courts of this Commonwealth, that where in construing a statute the computation of time is to be made from an act done, the day on which the act is done is to be included. The Constitution of Pennsylvania requires that the State Legislature meet on the first Tuesday of January, and as we have to-day not yet met, but organized, this day must be included in the computing of the time, and being so included, "the second Tuesday" must be the eighth day of the month of January, 1867.

Turning to the decisions of our own Supreme Court, to find the case of Goswiler's appeal, reported in 3d Pennsylvania Reports, 200, where the court ruled that the day on which the act is done is to be excluded. Had this decision stood, the construction of the act of Congress, in the light of it, would have excluded this day, and the time for the election would be the fifteenth instant. But our Supreme Court, in the case of Thomas vs. Adick, reported in 4th Harris Reports, 15, overruled their former decision in Goswiler's appeal, saying that it had not been well considered, and that the rule of the common law was well settled that in the computation of time to be reckoned from an act done, the day on which the act is done is included, and that decision stands to-day as the law of the State, and has been re-affirmed in other subsequent cases. Had the language of the act been "the second Tuesday after the day of the meeting and organization thereof," I admit that the construction contended for by the Senator from Indiana would prevail. Now, sir, another rule of construction would apply, one, also, well settled—and that is, that where, by the language of the statutes, the time fixed is to date from the day of the act done, then that day is to be excluded in the enumeration. In the case of Small vs. Lake, found in second Philadelphia Reports, 85, Judge Thompson, in construing the act requiring an appeal from an award of arbitrators to be docketed, written twenty days after the day of the entry of the award on the docket, thus laid down the law:

"By the terms of the act, the twenty days do not commence to run until after the day, on which the award is docketed. The common law rule of including the first day and excluding the last, does not apply to this case, as by the terms of the statute, the day of filing the award cannot be the day of the decision." This State has followed the current of the English decisions on the question in issue.

The Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM] has characterized this view as an innovation, and as setting at defiance a question long and fully settled. I beg to differ with that Senator, and to regard this as a question of the first impression. The act to be construed was passed by Congress on the 27th day of July, 1863; and this is the first occasion that has arisen for its construction and application. It is, therefore, exceedingly important that a true and certainly correct construction be established. If the Senator from Allegheny and the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE] have such entire confidence in their view, they need have no hesitation in submitting it to the committee proposed to be appointed, and then demonstrating it to their entire conviction.

As this is a question arising upon a United States statute, we turn to the decisions of the United States Supreme Court upon this rule of construction, and we find them to affirm the rule established by our own State courts. In the case of Arnold and others vs. the United States, reported in nine Cramer Reports, 104, in which the opinion was delivered by Judge Story, it is ruled that where the computation is to be made from an act done, the day on which the act is done is to be included.

I may be wrong, sir, but in my judgment it is clear that the day fixed by act of Congress is Tuesday, the eight of January, inst.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, there are other reasons, entirely outside of this, which illustrate the folly of attempting to give a different construction than the one I have indicated. Had the act of Congress simply stated "after the meeting of the Legislature," and taking the fact that we met to-day, you might attempt to construe it differently, and raise some of these questions of sharp practice. But it expressly states "after the meeting and organization." What is the evidence of the fact of organization? The House of Representatives met and adjourned before the Senate, therefore it is impossible that that branch was informed that the Senate was organized. The House of Representatives have not completed their organization. The committee has been appointed, but unquestionably the Governor will not be informed until to-morrow that this Legislature is organized and ready to receive a communication from him. I think that alone ought to be the judges in this matter, and I venture to assert, Mr. Speaker, that if we did not meet until three weeks from to-day to elect a Speaker, the Senate of the United States would never undertake to come in and say that we were organized at a time different from what we ourselves had stated. It would be an act of folly for them to do it. There is, therefore, no use for this committee. I admit that there is something in the remarks of the Senator from Adams [Mr. CONAUGH], and the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE], in a question of appeal or statute limitation before the Supreme Court; but in a great question of popular rights, in the great question of the rights of the people, in a question in which, from the very nature of things, we ourselves are the judges, nobody else outside of the Senate and House of Representatives dare raise the question as to when we are organized. My friend, the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE], has not undertaken to say that he believes fully that he is right, but that he had grave doubts about it. But taking the fact that the act uses the two words, one the "meeting" and the other the "organization," the Senate of the United States will never undertake to say that the one is better when the Legislature was organized than the Senators and Representatives themselves.

The Senator from Adams [Mr. M'CONAUGH] reminds some of us that this is a very recent statute. I admit it. But it is of no avail in this case. The minds of three millions of people of Pennsylvania have been made up on this question, and I agree with the Senator from Bradford [Mr. LANOON] that the common sense, reading and common school education of the people all point to the 15th instant as the proper day for this work. We have several hundred newspapers in our State that have written paragraph upon paragraph on the election of United States Senator, and they all agree on the 15th instant. And for the first time in the State of Pennsylvania, before any organization is completed, this question is made a subject of discussion here to-day. I admit that it is laid down by the Senator from Adams that there is no necessity for unnecessary excitement or any impugning of motives. I ascribe to nobody anything but a desire to settle this question properly. But I am satisfied that the popular opinion is the right one, and I have not the slightest apprehension that it will be disturbed, especially in view of the fact that the matter has been submitted to the Attorney General, and he has expressed his opinion that the 15th is the time, and you need not fear that any tribunal will undertake to send their officers here to "fish out" whether we were organized to-day. Take, for example, the position we were in three years ago; it might then have been a question of doubt. But I have no objection to the committee, and do not believe five gentlemen are found in this branch of the House that will entertain the nice scruples of two of the attorneys on this floor, which would be very well in a question of appeal in the statute of limitation, but which I think is out of place here.

Mr. WALLACE. It is due to myself that I should state that I sought not to be called out upon this question. In private conversation I expressed a doubt as to the settled interpretation that Senators say the newspapers have given to this question, and having expressed that doubt I am called out and accused of sharp practice. I disclaim any sharp practice about it. I stated what I had a right to believe, and stand by what I said then. If the Senator wishes to know how I feel about it, I will trust to the construction of any clients I have had on this subject. When you come to remember that this act of Congress is now before us for construction, and that it is to be construed, not by the newspapers nor by popular clamor, but by the Supreme Court of the United States, then it becomes a different question; their decision would be taken as binding. I do not desire to be accused for expressing my private opinion on this subject. The Senator merely called for my opinion on this subject, and I expressed it in as few words as possible. It is for you to decide; but when you come to construe a statute passed by the Congress of the United States, you are to construe it by the settled law of the land; and it is only by standing by the law of the land that the rights of three millions of people are to be protected; when the law sends forth its fiat each and all should obey it, and we are obliged to administer it as it is written. I may be pardoned for saying what I believe.

Mr. WALLACE quoted from a correspondent of the Philadelphia Press, showing that an idea prevailed that the election for United States Senator would take place on the 8th instant.

Mr. BIGHAM. I hold in my hand a Press of to-day, which says:

"There is some misapprehension that the election for United States Senator will take place on Tuesday next, the 8th instant. According to law, the State Treasurer will be chosen next Tuesday, and the Senator on the Tuesday following, the 15th instant."

Mr. BIGHAM. This is an editorial. The other was merely a telegraphic dispatch.

Mr. WALLACE. The Senator merely appeals from "Philip drunk to Philip sober." Newspapers differ upon that subject. However, that does not affect the question. We have got to come to the proposition. What is the law? I affirm that when an act is to be done under a statute, the day on which that act is to be done is to be taken into the computation of time. The Congress has distinctly stated that, and it is only in virtue of those decisions that I have said what I have.

On the question, Will the Senate agree to the resolution?
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. FISHER and Mr. WORTHINGTON, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Glatz, Graham, Haines, Jackson, James, Landan, Lowry, M'Callister, M'Conaughy, Randall, Ridgway, Schall, Searight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Walls and Hall, Fisher—24.

NAYS—Messrs. Billington, Speker, Wallace and White—4.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The SPEAKER then adjourned the Senate until to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

SENATE.

WEDNESDAY, January 2, 1867.

Senate met and was called to order at 11 o'clock; A. M., by the SPEAKER.

On motion of Mr. GLATZ, the reading of the Journal of yesterday was dispensed with.

PETITIONS.

Mr. GLATZ presented the petition of citizens of York county, praying for the passage of an act requiring the rebuilding of the Columbia bridge across the Susquehanna, and on failure to do so to forfeit their franchise.

Laid on the table.

Mr. FISHER presented the petition of citizens of the Northwest ward, in the city of Lancaster, asking a division of said ward.

BILLS IN PLACE.

Mr. FISHER read in his place and presented to the Chair his entire An act to divide the Northwest ward, in the city of Lancaster, into election precincts and separate election districts.

Laid on the table.

Mr. JAMES, a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Quintero mining company.

Laid on the table.

Mr. LOWRY, a bill entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act relating to corporations for mechanical, manufacturing, mining and quarrying purposes, approved the 18th of July, 1863, extending the provisions of said act and the several supplements thereto, to any association formed for the publication and sale of periodicals, newspapers, school books, books of science or art and current or standard literature.

Laid on the table.

Mr. SCHALL, a bill entitled An act regulating the sale by hawkers and peddlers of goods at wholesale.

Laid on the table.

Mr. BIGHAM, a bill entitled A joint resolution to ratify an amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Laid on the table.

Also, a bill entitled a further supplement to an act entitled An act relating to corporations for mechanical, manufacturing, mining and quarrying purposes, approved the 18th day of July, 1863.

Laid on the table.

Mr. CONNELL, a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Granite insurance company.

Laid on the table.

Mr. DONOVAN, a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Academy of Notre Dame, in the city of Philadelphia.

Laid on the table.

Also, a bill entitled An act relating to passenger railways within the county of Philadelphia.

Laid on the table.

Mr. SEARIGHT, a bill entitled Joint resolution relative to the final adjournment.

Laid on the table.

Mr. SLOEMAKER, a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Vulcan Iron Works.

Laid on the table.

Mr. DAVIS, a bill entitled Joint resolution in relation to the reduction of the Internal Revenue tax on distilled spirits.

Laid on the table.

Mr. COLEMAN, a bill entitled An act relating to the personal estate of married women.

Laid on the table.

Mr. LOWRY, a bill entitled Joint resolution to ratify the amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Laid on the table.

BILLS PASSED.

Mr. RIDGWAY read in his place and presented to the Chair a bill entitled An act relative to the receiver of taxes in the city of Philadelphia, repealing so much of the act of April 9, 1861, as authorizes him to charge five per centum commission for collecting taxes from delinquent taxpayers.

On motion of Mr. RIDGWAY, the rules were dispensed with, and said bill was read a second and third time and

Passed finally.

Mr. SCHALL read in his place and presented to the Chair a bill entitled An act to authorize the appointment of an additional notary public in the county of Lehigh.

On motion of Mr. SCHALL, the rules were dispensed with, and said bill was read a second and third time and

Passed finally.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES.

Mr. WHITE, from the committee appointed to wait upon the Governor and inform him that the Legislature was organized and ready to proceed to business, reported that the committee had discharged said duty, and that the Governor would communicate with the Legislature, by message, at twelve o'clock this day.

Mr. LOWRY, from the committee appointed to inform the House of Representatives that the Senate was organized and ready to proceed to business, reported that the committee had discharged said duty.

A COMMITTEE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Messrs. MCCREARY and MEYERS, a committee from the House of Representatives, being introduced, informed the Senate that the body was organized and ready to proceed to business.

TEMPORARY ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. BIGHAM offered the following resolution:

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That both Houses, when they adjourn to-day, will adjourn to meet on Tuesday next, at 3 o'clock, p. m.

Mr. CONNELL, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say a word on this subject. It was only yesterday afternoon that we appointed a committee to decide as to the time of holding an election for United States Senator, and we do not know whether the House will act favorably on the resolution sent to them, and might prefer to wait a little while.

On the question, Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. LOWRY and Mr. CONNELL, and were as follows, viz:

Yeas—Messrs. Bigbam, Billingslet, Brown (Morcer), Burnett, Fisher, Glatz, Haines, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor and White—11.

NAYS—Messrs. Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Graham, Jackson, James, Landon, Lowry, McCandless, McConaughy, Randall, Ridgway, Searight, Wallace, Walls, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—19.

So the resolution was not agreed to.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

Mr. LOWRY, Mr. Speaker, I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the joint resolution ratifying the constitutional amendments.

Mr. WHITE, I would ask the Senator who makes this motion if he thinks he is entirely in order. I do not think this body has received notice of the existence of a constitutional amendment. It seems to me that the proper procedure in this matter is for the Governor to send his message to us, giving us official notice of the fact. That certainly has been the practice heretofore, and I think it is the intention of the Executive that it should be so; and until the amendment comes to us in an official shape, I don't think we have any authority in the premises.

Mr. LOWRY, Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my motion for the present.

RECESS OF THE SENATE.

Mr. CONNELL, Mr. Speaker, I move that this Senate take a recess until five minutes before 12 o'clock.

The motion of Mr. CONNELL was agreed to, and the recess was accordingly taken.

REASSEMBLING OF THE SENATE.

The Senate reassembled at five minutes before twelve, and was called to order by the SPEAKER.

ANNUAL MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth being introduced, presented the following message from His Excellency, the Governor, which was read by the Clerk, as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

The extraordinary expenditures, during the war and since its close, in payments growing out of it by authority of acts of Assembly, have amounted to upwards of five millions of dollars, which, added to the actual payment of the indebtedness of the State, and money in the Treasury for that purpose, shows the revenues, above the ordinary expenditures, to have amounted to $10,612,000, which would all have been applied to the payment of the debt of the Commonwealth in the last six years. ness of the Commonwealth, with such just and prudent changes as may be required in the future, and a wise economy in expenditure, will, in my judgment, ensure the entire payment of the public debt, within the period of fifteen years.

The time fixed for the redemption of $20,108,626 24 of the indebtedness of the Commonwealth having expired, I recommend that provision be made for its redemption, by making a new loan for that purpose, payable in successive periods as the prospective revenues will justify.

I recede, with much satisfaction, to the wisdom, prudence and economy of the representatives of the people, in the management of the finances of the Commonwealth, during a period of much embarrassment, uncertainty and distress, and congratulate you and them on the near approach of the entire liquidation of the public debt.

Since my last Annual Message, I have drawn from the Treasury, two thousand dollars of the fund placed in the hands of the Governor for secret service and other extraordinary expenses, which I have expended, in payment of my personal staff, and for other purposes, as heretofore, except five hundred and sixty-three dollars and forty-eight cents, which I have returned into the Treasury.

In present, for your consideration, the amendments to the Constitution of the United States proposed to the Legislatures of the several States by a resolution of both Houses of Congress, passed on the 16th day of June last. I was glad that it was possible, without delaying the final adoption of these amendments, to ascertain the opinion of our people upon them, at the general election, in October last. By the election of a large majority of members openly favoring and advocating the amendments, that opinion seems to me to have been abundantly expressed. Indeed, the amendments are so moderate and reasonable in their character, that it would have been astonishing if the people had failed to approve them. That every person, born in the United States, and free, whether by birth or manumission, is a citizen of the United States, and that no State has a right to abridge the privileges of citizens, of the United States—these are principles which were never seriously doubted anywhere, until after the insane crusade in favor of slavery had been for some time in progress. What is called the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, in the Dred Scott case, has made it expedient and proper to re-assert these vital principles in an authoritative manner, and this is done in the first clause of the proposed amendments.

The right of prescribing the qualifications of voters is exercised by the respective States, under the Constitution of 1789; three-fifths of the slaves were counted in ascertaining the representative population of the several States. The amendment to the constitution abolished slavery in all the States and Territories. Though it was formerly otherwise in most, if not all, of the old Southern States, yet for many years past free negroes have not, in any of these, been permitted to vote. At present, therefore, the late slave States would be entitled to count the whole of their former slave population, as a basis for representation, instead of three-fifths thereof. That is to say, they would have in the existing ratio about twenty more members of Congress than they had before slavery was abolished, and the free States would lose the same number, making a difference of about forty members of Congress, or, say, one-sixth of the whole body. In other words, the treason of the rebellious States, the suppression of which has cost us so many hundreds of thousands of precious lives, and so many thousands of millions of treasure, would be rewarded by giving them a vast increase of political power. This absurdity, the second clause of the proposed amendments, designs to prevent, by the just, equal and moderate provision, that in future, the representative population of each State shall be ascertained by making a proportionate deduction from the whole population thereof, if its laws exclude from the privilege of voting, any male citizens, not criminals, of the age of twenty-one years. I have yet to learn that any plausible objection can be offered to such a provision.

The third clause of the proposed amendments excludes from Congress, and from the College of Electors, and from all offices, civil and military, of the United States, or of any State, persons who, as functionaries of the United States, or as Executive or Judicial officers of any State, have heretofore sworn to support the Constitution of the United States, and have violated their oath by engaging in rebellion against the same, unless Congress, by a vote of two-thirds, shall have removed the disability of any such person.

The fourth clause affirms the validity of the debt of the United States, and prohibits the assumption or payment of the rebel debt, or of any claims for the loss or emancipation of any slave.

The fifth clause provides that Congress shall have power to enforce the provisions of the other clauses by appropriate legislation.

That these wise and moderate provisions will meet the hearty approbation of the Legislature, I cannot doubt. If proposed by two-thirds of each House of Congress and ratified by three-fourths of the Legislatures of the States, the Constitution provides that they should stand as adopted amendments of that instrument.

A question has been raised whether the States lately in rebellion, and not yet restored to their privileges by Congress, are to be counted on this vote—in other words, whether those who have rebelled and been subdued shall be entitled to a potential voice in the question of the guarantees to be required of them for future obedience to the laws. So monstrous a proposition is, it appears to me, not supported by the words or spirit of the Constitution. The power to suppress insurrection includes the power of making provisions against its breaking out afresh. These States have made an unjust war upon our Common Government and their sister States, and the power given by the Constitution to make war on our part, includes the power to dictate, after our success, the terms of peace and restoration.

The power of Congress to guarantee to every State a Republican form of Government, would cover much more cogent action than has yet been had.

The duty imposed upon Congress, to provide and maintain Republican governments for the States, is to be accepted in the broadest meaning of the term. It is not a mere formal or unnecessary provision. The power was conferred, and the duty enjoined, to preserve free institutions against all encroachments, or the more violent elements of despotism and anarchy. And now that treason has, by rebellion, subverted the Governments of a number of States, forfeiting for the people all the rights guaranteed by the Constitution, including even those of property and life, the work of restoration for these States rests with the National Government, and it should be faithfully and fearlessly performed.

By their passage by Congress, and the declaration of the people at the late elections, the faith of the nation is pledged to the amendments, and they will be fairly carried out, and their benefits given to the rebellious States. But when the amendments shall have passed into the organic law, should the people lately in rebellion persist in their rejection, and in continued disobedience, and the obstruction of the execution of the national laws, it will be an admonition to the nation that the animus and force of treason still exist among a people who enjoy none of the privileges of the government, save of its generous tolerance. With their rejection, all hope of reconstruction, with the co-operation of the rebellious States, on a basis that would secure to the Republic the logical results of the war, will have vanished, and the duty must then devolve upon the government, of adopting the most effectual method to secure for those States the character of governments demanded by the Constitution.

They are without lawful governments—they are without municipal law, and without any claim to participate in the government.

On what principle of law or justice can the rebellious States complain, if after they have rejected the fair and magnanimous terms upon which they are offered brotherhood with us, and a participation in all the blessings of our freedom, and they have refused, if the government, in the exercise of its powers, should enter anew upon the work of reconstruction at the very foundation; and then the necessity will be forced upon us to discard all discrimination in favor of the enemies of our nationality, to give us and them enduring freedom and impartial justice.

The Constitution has defined treason, and has given express power to suppress insurrection, by war, if necessary. It has not provided, in detail, the terms to be granted after such a war. How could it do so! It would probably not be possible to find the wisest partisan, that these States had a right to be represented in Congress at a time when they were carrying on open war against the government, or that Congress was not then a lawful body, notwithstanding their exclusion. How then have they regained the right of representation? Surely not by simply laying down their arms when they could no longer hold them. The United States have the right, and it is their duty, to exact such securities for future good conduct as they may deem sufficient, and the offenders, from whom they are to be exacted, can have no right to participate in our councils in the decision of the question of what their punishment shall be.

Practically, common sense determined the question of their right so to participate, when Congress proceeded in the enactment of laws, after the surrender of the rebel military force. It was determined again, when the now pending amendments were proposed by Congress. If two-thirds of Congress, as now constituted, could lawfully propose those amendments, then three-fourths of the States, not excluded from representation in Congress, form a sufficient majority to effect their lawful adoption. It was determined again by the formal sanction of both the great political parties, when Congress, by an almost unanimous vote, declared the rebellious States without the right of representation in the Electoral College in 1864.

We ought to go on resolutely and rapidly, with all measures deemed necessary to the future safety of the country, so that all parts of it may, at the earliest day, be restored to just and equal political privileges.

The annual report of Hon. Thomas H. Burrowes, Superintendent of the maintenance and education of the soldiers' orphans, will exhibit the present condition and the result thus far of that undertaking. Nearly three thousand of the destitute children of the brave men who laid down their lives that the nation might live, are now not only comfortably provided for and guarded from temptation, but are receiving an education which will fit them to repay the care of the State.

The appropriation made for this purpose, at the last session, has been sufficient to meet all expenses of the financial year just closed. And I recommend whatever appropriation may be necessary to continue and perfect the system under which the schools are conducted.

There can be no doubt that the appropriation will be made. It is to select any State interest which I would more warmly commend to your prompt attention and liberality than another, it would be this. All Pennsylvanians are proud of it, and it lies near the hearts of all true men.

Owing to their greater destitution and want of information on the part of their relatives, the orphans of our colored soldiers may require some special attention. Perhaps authority to the State Superintendent, to use, for a short time, the services of an agent, to ascertain their number and claims, and bring them into the schools that may be provided for them, will be sufficient. The whole number in the State is not large, of whom a few have already been temporarily provided for.

I recommend that provision be made for the maintenance of such of our soldiers as are in poverty, and have no other means to prevent them from securing a livelihood by their labor, by renting buildings at once, or such other means as you may deem wise and proper, until the arrangements proposed by the National Government for their support are completed. They are probably few in number and it is due to the character of the Commonwealth, that they should not remain in, or become the inmates of poor houses, or pick up a miserable subsistence by being. Patriotic and charitable citizens have done much for them, but speedy and proper relief can only be given them by the systematic and continued benevolence of the Commonwealth. The Legislature can alone afford immediate relief to all of this class of our citizens, and in thus exhibiting gratitude to heroic and faithful men, who did so much for the country, the burden will fall equally on all.

By our existing laws, juries are selected by the sheriff and commissioners of the respective counties. As these officers are generally of similar political affinities, the system has always been in danger of being abused for partisan purposes. During the last six years, it has been frequently so abused, in many of the counties.

To secure, as far as possible, the administration of equal justice hereafter, I recommend that jury commissioners shall be elected in each county in the same manner as inspectors of elections are chosen, each citizen voting for one jury commissioner, and the two persons having the highest number of votes to be the jury commissioners of the respective county, to perform the same duties, in the selection of jurors, that are now imposed upon the sheriff and county commissioners.

It will be necessary to provide, in all respects, for the increasing and changing interests of our people, by the enactment of general laws, but to a large extent it is practicable to relieve the Legislature from special legislation which is demanded and occupies so much of its sessions. Special legislation is generally passed without due consideration, much of it at the close of the session, and is chiefly objectionable from the partiality with which powers and privileges are conferred.

I again recommend the passage of general laws, when it is at all practicable, and in this connection, recommend the passage of a general law, regulating railroads now existing and the incorporation of new companies, so that so far as possible there may be a just uniformity in the franchises granted, and equal facilities afforded to the people of all sections of the Commonwealth.

I am here at this time, in the various prisons, a number of persons under sentence of death, some of them for many years, and as it has become a custom that an incoming Governor should not issue a warrant of execution in cases unacted on by his predecessor, it not infrequently happens that in many cases, some of which are recent, while some punishment should be inflicted, that of death may be imposed by the Executive to be too severe. I earnestly repeat my recommendation heretofore made, that provision be made for the reception of such persons into the penitentiaries, who may be pardoned on condition of remaining a limited time therein.

I reappointed Hon. C. R. Coburn, Superintendent of Common Schools, on the expiration of his term in June last, and he continued at the head of that Department until the first of November, when he resigned, and I appointed Col. J. P. Wickham in his stead. It is due to Mr. Coburn to say, that he fulfilled all the duties of his office faithfully and efficiently. It appears from his report, that there were in the school year of 1865, 1,863 school districts in the State; 12,146 schools; 16,141 teachers, and 725,912 pupils, with an average attendance of 478,066. The total cost of the school system, for the entire State, including taxes levied and State appropriation, was for the year 1866, $4,195,258 67. The increase in the number of school districts was 26; in the number of schools, 222; in the number of children attending school, 19,932; in the average attendance at school, 18,945, and in the total cost of the system, $591,020 02. I invite your attention to the valuable suggestions made in his report, and that of Col. Wickham, and commend our system of public instruction to the continued fostering care of the Legislature.

I herewith present the reports of Col. F. Jordan, Military Agent of the State at Washington; of Col. H. H. Gregg, Chief of Transportation; of S. P. Bates, on military history of our volunteers; of trustees of the Soldiers' Gettysburg National Cemetery; of the proceedings and ceremony of the return of the flags, on the 4th of July, in the city of Philadelphia, and of Col. James Worrall, commissioner appointed under an act relating to the passage of fish in the Susquehanna, and invite your attention to them, and the reports of the Surveyor General and Adjutant General.

The Agency at Washington should, in my judgment, be continued. It has proved very useful in all respects, and especially to our volunteers and their families.

Four thousand six hundred and ninety claims have passed the agency during the past year, and three hundred and eleven thousand seven hundred and three dollars has been collected from the Government and transmitted to the claimants free of charge.

It will be necessary to continue the office of Chief of Transportation, and to settle unsettled accounts with railroad companies and the National Government, and duties to be performed in the removal and care of the bodies of the dead, which require it. An additional appropriation will be required for this Department.

I earnestly recommend, in justice to the living and the dead, that our military history be pushed forward vigorously, and that money for this purpose be appropriated.

The trustees of the State Lunatic hospital represent that it is impossible for them to accommodate and care for the number of patients committed to them under the laws regulating admissions into the hospital, and earnestly recommend that provision be made for increased accommodation.

I need not say that the institution is carefully and economically managed, or to refer to the progress it has made, and I cordially unite in the statement and recommendations of the memorial herewith presented.

I invite your attention to the condition of the Arsenal.

It is too small—unsafe as a depository for the large amount of valuable military material to be kept in it, and is, in all respects, inconvenient and not adapted to its purposes.

Much inconvenience was experienced during the war for want of sufficient room and safety, and I recommend that ground be procured and a new and commodious arsenal be erected in or near the Capital of the State.

Since the adjournment of the Legislature I drew my warrant on the Treasury for five thousand dollars, appropriated to the National Cemetery at Antietam, and appointed Major General Jno. R. Brooke, trustee to represent the State. Before the warrant was drawn I appointed Colonel Wm. H. Blair and Captain J. Morrill Linn, who examined the ground and made a full investigation, their report of which accompanies this message. It will be noticed that they report seven hundred and ninety-seven bodies of Pennsylvanians that will be removed into the cemetery, and recommend an additional appropriation, in which I most cordially unite.

I cannot close my last Annual Message, without renewing the expression of my gratitude to the freemen of the Commonwealth, for the hearty approval with which they have cheered the labors of the Executive Office. To have earned such approval by my official conduct, during the last six years, must always be a source of pride to me, and a satisfaction. Without the consciousness that I was endeavoring to deserve their approval, and without the hope that I should succeed in attaining it, I must have sunk under the responsibilities of my position. It was only a reliance on Divine Providence, and the active, resolute, hearty support and zeal of the people, and their representatives, that encouraged me during the dark and terrible crisis through which the country has passed. I tried to do my duty to my country, and know I was at least faithful to her in her deep distress, and I conceived that duty not to be limited to the merely putting of men into the field to suppress treason and rebellion, and maintain the national life, and doing of everything in my power to sustain the just war forced upon us. I felt also bound, so far as I could, to protect and promote the rights and comforts of our volunteers after they had left the State, to aid and relieve the sick and wounded, and to care for the transmission, to their bereaved families, of the precious bodies of the slain, and the maintenance and education of their orphans as honored children of the country.

To have been the Chief Magistrate of this great Commonwealth, during the period through which we have passed, and to have seen and maintained (if indeed I have done so) the confidence and affection of her people and their representatives, are quite enough to satisfy the highest ambition, and in my retirement from the high trust given me, I pray God that the State may continue to grow in power and strength, and her people in prosperity and happiness.

A. G. CURTIN.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
Harrisburg, January 2, 1867.

The accompanying document was laid before the Senate, and ordered to be printed in the Legislative Record :

The memorial of the Trustees of the Pennsylvania State Lunatic Hospital respectfully represents that the condition of the chronic insane in the different sections of the Commonwealth, and should receive the earliest and most judicious attention of every citizen. Their number can only be ascertained by an approximate estimate. In the older and more thickly settled counties the number will be, of course, greater than in the newer districts, from the fact that all the causes of the disorder are there more fully developed, and from the gradual accumulation, during a period of years, of those who have either not had any treatment, or from the failure of that treatment to restore them to their sound state.

The whole number under the care of the public authorities of the different counties and townships may be set down at one thousand (not including the city of Philadelphia), and it may safely be stated that almost, if not quite, as many more will be found in the care of their relatives and friends. In addition to this number of those whose disease is established by a long duration, and in whom the prospect of restoration is not considered favorable or even probable, there will occur each year a given number of recent cases, in the proportion of one to every eight hundred inhabitants. Of these, the larger proportion will be restored to sound minds, but a given number, ten in every hundred, will most probably continue more or less diseased during the remainder of their lives, and consequently will need custodial care and attention from the public authorities or from their friends. But while there is this annual increase it may safely be estimated that a corresponding number of the chronic cases will die, so that, in reality, the number may not increase, though no diminution of the number can be expected.

In thirty-one counties of this State there are no arrangements for the care and custody of the insane, the whole duty devolving on the respective townships. In two instances special provision has been made by the townships for their own insane with their other poor. In the remaining counties the accommodations vary very much, not only in their extent, but in their character and adaptation to the purpose designed. In nearly all, no matter what their extent, they are crowded, and the more calm and quiet are placed in rooms with the sane. In very few of the county houses are the accommodations such as the character of the disease demands, and often they are such as to aggravate the misery and wretchedness of this unfortunate class. Too little attention is paid to a careful separation of the sexes, and not only do they mingle freely during the day, but they are together in their sleeping rooms at night, and those who have lost all regard to self-respect by reason of their disease are exposed to the gaze of the curious of either sex.

In by far the great majority of cases no attempt is made to carry out any system of treatment, medical or hygienic, for their restoration or the improvement of their condition. Very frequently recent cases are kept in close confinement, without any regular medical attendance, until the disease has become fixed, and all hope of restoration is taken away. A mistaken idea of economy seems to have so taken possession of the minds of men who thus act as to have driven out, not only the ordinary principles of good management and common sense, which guide them in other matters, but also to have forced them to forget the golden rule of doing to others as they would have others do to them. The wards of the Western Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane are now so much crowded that, when the additions to that building now in progress are completed, they will be filled with the number now under treatment, leaving very little additional accommodation for new and recently occurring cases.

The wards of the Pennsylvania State Lunatic Hospital are also nearly filled (those for the men are crowded), though no recent cases have yet been refused, nor will they be so long as it is possible to give them room; but in the course of a year or two, to judge from the experience of the last year, every available room will be occupied so as to require the removal of the chronic, or the exclusion of the recent cases.

From these statements, and they are rather below than above the actual condition of affairs, it will be seen that the accommodations now provided are entirely insufficient, and some additional means must be furnished if it is desired to give to the large number of constantly occurring recent cases that medical treatment which is necessary to restore them to the enjoyment of sound mind, and prevent their becoming a burden on the community and a source of alarm and anxiety to their families and neighbors.

It is established by the records and the experience of every hospital for the insane in the United States, that the majority of the inmates of every institution come from the immediately adjacent districts, principally on account of the facility of access and the diminished expense of conveying persons to the hospital, and it should follow, as a necessary deduction, that every hospital should be so situated as to be readily accessible from all parts of the district it is designed to accommodate.

This expense of conveying a person to the hospital, and removing them, particularly where a great distance has to be traveled, is a large item in their maintenance and often equals almost the whole cost of medical treatment and clothing for three or six months.

Another matter, deserving serious consideration, is the risk to life in an excited person from the fatigue and exposure of travel, often acting very injuriously and depressing the vital powers to such an extent as seriously to endanger life.

The early treatment of recent cases of mental disorder, as a matter of political economy, is one demanding special attention; the experience of all countries distinctly showing that at least two recent cases can be restored at the same expense as one chronic case can be maintained for one year, and the addition to the producing and paying population materially relieves the burden of the community and enables it so much more readily to maintain those who are chargeable to it.

From the facts thus stated, of the great number of chronic insane in the Commonwealth, and the insufficient character of the accommodations provided for them, of the great number of recent cases constantly occurring, for which the means of treatment are daily becoming more restricted, from the crowded state of the hospitals already in operation, and which, before another can be built, will be filled to repletion, from the great economy of diminishing the number of chronic insane, by providing more abundant means for prompt treatment and restoration in the early stages of the disorder, and the bounden duty of the State to provide for those who cannot provide for themselves, and who are of all men most miserable, we would most respectfully urge the erection of another hospital for the insane in the central part of the State, convenient to a large town and readily accessible by railroad from all the counties of the central portion of the Commonwealth.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, I move that five thousand copies in English and three thousand copies in German of the Governor's message be printed for the use of the Senate.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by making the number ten thousand in English and four thousand in German.
The amendment of Mr. WHITE was accepted, and the resolution as modified was adopted.

FINAL ADJOURNMENT OF THE LEGISLATURE.

Mr. SEARIGHT. Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be dispensed with, and the Senate proceed to the consideration of joint resolution relative to the final adjournment.

The motion of Mr. SEARIGHT was not agreed to.

TEMPORARY ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That the House of Representatives concur when the Legislature adjourns to-day it will adjourn to meet on Monday next, at 7 1/2 o'clock, P. M.

The resolution was adopted.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, I now move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill entitled Joint resolution to ratify the amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

The motion was agreed to, and the rule being dispensed with the Senate proceeded to its consideration.

The resolution was then read as follows:

WHEREAS, Two-thirds of the members of the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, in Congress assembled, did adopt an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which is entitled Article Fourteenth, as follows:

SECTION 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States, and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any laws which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States, nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty or property, without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

SEC. 2. Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed. But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of electors for President and Vice President of the United States, representatives in Congress, the executive and judicial officers of a State, or the members of the Legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State, being twenty-one years of age, and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged except for participation in rebellion or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such State.

SEC. 3. No person shall be a Senator or Representative in Congress, or Elector of President and Vice President, or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any State, who, having previously taken an oath as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of any State Legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof; but Congress may by a vote of two-thirds of each House remove such disability.

SEC. 4. The validity of the public debt of the United States authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties, for services in suppressing insurrection or rebellion, shall not be questioned, but neither the United States or any State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave, but all such debts, obligations and claims shall be held illegal and void.

SEC. 5. The Congress shall have power to enforce by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

Which said amendment has been submitted to the Legislature of Pennsylvania for ratification or rejection; therefore,

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Pennsylvania, in General Assembly met, That the amendment, as above proposed and submitted, is hereby ratified and adopted by the State of Pennsylvania.

Mr. WALLACE. It occurs to me that these are matters of grave importance—so grave that the Governor has taken notice of them. It occurs to me that we should postpone the amendments and have them printed. So grave a matter as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States should not be passed so lightly. I, therefore, move to postpone and print the resolutions.

Mr. BIGHAM. I have no objection, further than to say that two years ago the Constitutional Amendment, which was then a new question, had only passed Congress one or two days before it was taken up. These amendments were passed in June last, and I know the Senator from Clearfield is very conversant with them; he heard of them during the campaign.

Mr. SEARIGHT. I would like to ask, sir, for information, whether it is the design to press the passage of these resolutions today?

The SPEAKER. I am not able to say.
Mr. LOWRY. That was my intention, although I am not very tenacious.

Mr. SEARIGHT. That cannot be done without a suspension of the rules. This is the most important subject that can be brought before the Legislature this session; and if it is proposed to ratify these proposed amendments, certainly it is desirable that Senators should have them printed and see what they contain. It is true, as the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM] remarked, that they were somewhat discussed in the late contest. But that was some time ago, and we have forgotten what they contained, to some extent, at least. And then, we had nothing but a newspaper version of the amendments, and as they are to go before this body in official form, I would like to have them printed correctly.

Mr. WHITE. I have no doubt the Senator from Fayette [Mr. SEARIGHT] would like to be oblivious of the verdict of the people on these resolutions. I do not think that any Senator on this floor can forget that contest, some extent, at least. But, sir, these resolutions are as familiar, or ought to be as familiar to every member of this body, be he Democrat or Republican, as the New England primer is to the school-boy. It was the shorter catechism in the hands of the people at the last election; they are familiar in every local household in this Commonwealth; and I think, sir, that the people of this Commonwealth—I know that the people I represent would want me to signalize myself at this re-assembling of this Legislature, by casting my vote for the adoption of these Constitutional Amendments. I want no time for consideration; I am as ready to vote on them to-day as I am to vote on them next year. I trust, sir, that the Senate will not postpone their consideration, but pass them to-day.

Mr. SEARIGHT. Mr. Speaker, I certainly have no objection to giving the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE] an opportunity to signalize himself, and I am happy in knowing that he is competent to do so. I do not desire to signalize myself with regard to this subject or any other question. I am not particularly anxious to be oblivious on this subject, as the Senator insinuated, although there are some acts, and there always have been some acts, that it would be well for the country to keep under the shade of oblivion. That may not be the case with this act that the Senator from Indiana refers to—I do not allege that it is. But, Mr. Speaker, I deny the position that he has assumed; that the verdict of the people has been in favor of the amendments.

Mr. WHITE. The Senator from Fayette [Mr. SEARIGHT] and myself live in the same district. Did not the people pronounce a verdict on them there?

Mr. SEARIGHT. The people whom the Senator from Indiana represents may have rendered a verdict in favor of ratifying these amendments, according to his construction of their votes; but the people I represent rendered a different verdict.

Now, then, the only question, Mr. Speaker, is, shall these proposed amendments be hurried through without consideration, or shall they be printed and distributed upon the desks of Senators, and be duly considered? For my part, I am not prepared to discuss these amendments unless I have them before me. I have no recollection—or not sufficient recollection of their import and substance to discuss them in the absence of a printed copy. I think it would be no more than fair and right that Senators should be furnished with a copy of these amendments before they are called upon to vote, one way or the other, in regard to them.

Mr. LOWRY. I would suggest to the Senator that the resolutions pass to the second reading. They will then be printed and laid on our desks, on their final passage. But they can be found in almost any Republican newspaper during the late campaign. I do not suppose they were published in the papers the gentleman reads.

Mr. SEARIGHT. I have a copy of these amendments, or what purports to be a copy, taken from some newspaper—probably a Republican paper, but whether it is a correct copy, there is no evidence.

On the question, Shall the Senate proceed to the second reading and consideration of the resolutions?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DONOVAN and Mr. LOWRY, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigbam, Billingsfelt, Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, White, Worthington and Hall, Speakers—18.

NAYS—Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, Jackson, James, M'Connell, Randall, Schall, Searight, Wallace and Walls—12.
So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The resolution was again read.
A motion was made by Mr. DONOVAN that said resolution be printed and made the special order for Thursday of next week.

On the question, Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DONOVAN and Mr. LOWRY, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, Jackson, James, Lowry, M'Connell, Randall, Schall, Searight, Wallace, Walls and White—15.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigbam, Billingsfelt, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, M'Conaughy, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Worthington and Hall, Speakers—15.
So the question was determined in the negative.

The bill was then laid over for third reading.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE TREASURER.

The SPEAKER laid before the Senate the annual report of the State Treasurer, as follows:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT OF PENNSYLVANIA,
HARRISBURG, January 3, 1866.

To the Speaker of the Senate:

SIR—I have the honor, herewith, to transmit to the Senate the annual report of this Department, for the fiscal year ending Noember 30, 1866, as required by the act of 16th of March, 1862.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
WM. H. KEMBLE,
State Treasurer.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania;
GENTLEMEN:—Notwithstanding the extreme liberality evinced by the last Legislature, by which nearly one million two hundred thousand dollars was appropriated to charitable purposes, at the termination of the fiscal year the finances of the State are in a better condition than they have been for more than a quarter of a century.

The improvement in the condition of the Treasury, since my last report, has been $1,216,896 17. The reduction of our indebtedness, during the same period, $1,867,650 25. The receipts for the year have been $5,820,668 54. Of this amount, $6,062,694 19 have been from ordinary sources; $667,574 35, moneys refunded by the General Government, on account of expenses incurred in defense of the State; and $100,000 paid by the Pennsylvania railroad company, on account of their indebtedness to the State. The expenditures have been $6,462,303 41. Of this amount there was contributed to the Chambersburg sufferers, $497,608 70; for the redemption of public loan, $1,867,650 25, and for ordinary expenses, $4,097,044 42. This is an amount of expenditure truly alarming, and your immediate attention should be directed to the reduction of our annual expenses to a nearer approach to what they were previous to the war, when our ordinary expenditures were $2,962,518 29.

The disbursements on account of military expenses for the year have been $102,900 39. A proper examination into this item, I am satisfied, will convince you that most of it can be saved in the future, and none suffer thereby, except, perhaps, it may be claim agents. The act granting pensions to soldiers of the war of 1812, approved March 30, 1866, has cost the State far more than its friends could have anticipated. The number of applicants already exceed twenty-eight hundred, (2,800,) and the amount paid, over one hundred and sixty thousand dollars ($160,000).

I regard the passage of this act as a very unfortunate example for future Legislatures. The granting of pensions is a duty belonging to the General Government. To compel the States, by whom the men of 1812 were furnished, to pension them from their own resources, is to entail the total expense on States then comprising the Union, and allow the balance entire exemption. This is unfair, and the Legislature, by passing this bill, has set an example, which, if followed to its legitimate conclusion, would require the entire revenues of the State for the next forty years. It should be forthwith repealed. If there are individual cases of particular merit, they should go before the Legislature, and ask for special legislation, where their claims can be properly examined, and testimony taken from persons personally acquainted with each applicant.

In my last annual report attention was directed to the injustice of the tax on tonnage, from the fact that the same amount of tax is levied on a ton of freight, regardless of the distance transported, and thus discriminating to the serious disadvantage of the short roads. A decision of the court has lately been made, to the effect that no freight can be taxed, but such as may be taken up and delivered within the boundaries of the State, thus altogether exempting, from this tax, those roads running from Pennsylvania into other States. This tax should, therefore, be changed so as to bear equally on all roads.

The law taxing brokers and private bankers, as it now exists, is a cause of very serious complaint, both on account of the severity of the tax, and also on account of the publicity given to the business of the taxpayer. By the act of May 15, 1850, they are required to pay a license fee, equal to three (3) per cent. on their receipts from commissions, abatements, &c.; and by the act of May 10, 1861, every "stock broker, bill broker, exchange broker, real estate broker and private banker," is required to make a yearly return to the Auditor General, setting forth the amount of his profits, and pay a tax of three (3) per cent. on the same. It is also required to make a report to the Auditor General, in writing, setting forth the names of the individual members in the firm, and amount of capital invested in the business, and finally the tax levied, under this act, is in addition to all other taxes then existing. Both acts should be repealed, and a license law passed similar to the mercantile law, exempting them from taxation, until they shall be enabled to declare dividends equal to six (6) per cent. on their capital stock. It needs no argument to prove the gross injustice of such special legislation, and I recommend a general law, repealing all such enactments, and subjecting similar corporations to the same degree of taxation.

A dispute has arisen between the associate judges of this Commonwealth and the Treasury Department, in relation to the amount of salary they are entitled to under present laws. The twenty-fourth section of the appropriation bill of 1865, appropriated to each associate judge of this Commonwealth twenty-five (25) per cent. in addition to the salaries then allowed by law. There is also a similar section incorporated in the appropriation bill of 1866.

The construction given to these acts by this Department, is that the present salary of an associate judge is twenty-five per cent. in addition to the salary allowed by the general law existing previous to the passage of the appropriation bill of 1865. The judges insist that they are entitled to fifty-six and a quarter per cent. in addition to the salary under the general law.

Fully convinced that the Legislature of 1866 was intended to repeal the appropriation made in 1865, I have refused payment until the matter is decided by the courts, and your attention is now directed to it, in order that hereafter the Legislature may be on their guard, and leave nothing in doubt as to their true intention when arranging the salaries of judges.

The assessment of personal property, as returned by the county commissioners to this office, shows a neglect of duty, by most of the assessors throughout the Commonwealth, that is truly shameful. For example, no return of moneys at interest is made from the First, Fourth, Sixth, Seventh, and Eighteenth wards, in the city of Philadelphia; in the city of Pittsburg the same is true of the First, Third, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and Ninth wards. True, these are only fair examples of the whole Commonwealth, but examples are sufficient to show how the law is executed in the two counties of most wealth in the State. I do not see exactly how this is to be remedied. It has existed ever since the passage of the law taxing personal property, and the great majority of taxpayers seem to think it no part of their duty to make a return of their personal estate. The amount of revenue derived from this source (not including the indelphedness of corporations who collected tax on their own bonds) is about three hundred thousand dollars. It is not necessary that we should attempt to raise any larger revenue from this source, but that we should more equally distribute the amount to be raised. I therefore recommend that in lieu of the tax on personal property that each county be required to pay into the Treasury, a yearly tax equal to forty cents on each taxable inhabitant. I am well aware that numbers do not indicate wealth, but still this would be far more equitable, and will answer until such time as the tax can be entirely dispensed with, which I think is not far distant.

The revenue of the State is now in such a condition that a very close estimate can be made of our yearly income. Most of it is derived from sources that are growing and must continue to increase so long as the State increases in population and general productions. It may fall behind for a year, but in a series of years a general increase is certain. The amount of income, belonging to the sinking fund, for the last three years, has been as follows:

For the year 1864.....$2,685,121 00

For the year 1865.....4,111,423 13

For the year 1866.....3,757,746 73

From this it will be seen that it is safe to estimate the yearly receipts belonging to the sinking fund at three millions of dollars, ($3,000,000.) During the year 1872 the Philadelphia and Erie railroad company will commence their yearly payments of $240,000, being the interest on $4,000,000 deposited in the sinking fund as collateral security for the principal and interest of the debt of $3,500,000 owing by them to the State. This will increase the receipts of the sinking fund to, say $3,240,000 per annum. With such an income as this, is it not high time that Pennsylvania had removed the disgrace of having $23,000,000 of her liabilities over-due and unpaid? Should we not at once proceed to negotiate a new loan and redeem the old, so far as it may be due? I think we should. We ought also to repeal the law taxing our own loans. Most of the original debt was created at a time when it was not the custom of the State to tax her own loans, and subscribers had a fair right to suppose that the laws then existing were those by which the State would thereafter be guided in the treatment of her loan-holders. Moreover, since the passage of the act taxing her loans, every dollar she borrowed has been exempted from taxation, except a loan of $400,000, and that bears an interest of six per cent. per annum, showing clearly that the law was so unjust that no more money could be borrowed, except under a distinct agreement that it would not be taxed.

I herewith append a statement of our indebtedness, and also a calculation showing the amount that can be redeemed each year with sinking fund receipts, as herein estimated.

JOINT RESOLUTION ON ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. CONNELL. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution:

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), that when the two Houses adjourn to-morrow they will adjourn to meet on Tuesday next at 3 o'clock, P. M.

The resolution was agreed to. The hour of one o'clock having arrived, the SPEAKER adjourned the Senate until to-morrow morning at eleven o'clock.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2, 1867.

The House was called to order by the SPEAKER at 11 o'clock, A. M. Prayer was offered by the Rev. J. KENNEDY, member from Wyoming.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has concurred in the resolution of the House of Representatives appointing a committee to wait upon the Governor and inform him that the General Assembly is now organized and ready to receive any communications he may have to make, and has appointed Messrs. WHITE, BIGHAM and WALLACE to be the committee on the part of the Senate.

Resolved, That a select committee of five members of the Senate be appointed to act in conjunction with a similar committee of the House of Representatives (if the House of Representatives shall appoint such committee), to report to the Legislature their opinion as to the day on which the election of United States Senator shall take place.

Ordered, That Messrs. CONNELL, BIGHAM, WALLACE, M'CONAVAY and SCHALL be the committee on the part of the Senate, and that the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

Resolved, if the House of Representatives concur, That the rules of the last session for the government of the two Houses be adopted for their government at the present session.

Resolved, That a committee of three members be appointed from the Senate to act in conjunction with a similar committee of the House of Representatives (if the House of Representatives shall appoint such a committee), to receive proposals and contract for the publication of a Daily Record.

Ordered, That Messrs. CONNELL, BROWN (Mercer) and GLATZ be the committee on the part of the Senate, and that the Clerk inform the House accordingly.

Resolved, That, if the House of Representatives concur, the Governor be requested to return to the Senate Senate Bill No. 472, entitled A supplement to an act relative to the sale and conveyance of real estate, passed April 18, 1853.

At the request of the SPEAKER Mr. Brockway, Assistant Transcribing Clerk, and Mr. Marshall, Assistant Messenger, appeared and were duly sworn into office.

The Journal of yesterday was read and adopted.

Mr. CALVIN presented himself before the Speaker's desk, and was duly sworn as a member of the House.

COMMITTEE FROM THE SENATE.

Senator LOWRY, as chairman of a committee from the Senate, appeared before the House, and announced that the Senate was properly organized and ready to proceed to business.

Mr. FREEBORN. I offer the following petition in reference to the contested election in the Thirteenth district, Philadelphia.

The petition was read by the Clerk :

To the Honorable, the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania :

The petition of the undersigned respectfully represents that they are citizens and qualified electors of the Thirteenth Representative district of the city of Philadelphia, comprising the Seventeenth ward of said city (except the First election division), the Seventh election division of the Sixteenth ward of said city, and the Second and Seventh election divisions of the Nineteenth ward of said city, and were such at the time of the last general election, to wit: Tuesday, the 9th day of October, A. D. 1866.

That at the election aforesaid, an election was held in the said district for a member from said district to your honorable body.

That at said election two persons were voted for for said office of Representative to your honorable body from the said district, to wit: Michael Mullen and Enos C. Renner.

That the return judges of the said city have returned the result of the said election to the said Michael Mullen received three thousand and thirty-eight votes, and Enos C. Renner received one thousand seven hundred and ninety-three votes; that the said Michael Mullen was elected to said office, and which your petitioners aver to be an undue election and false return of the said Michael Muller to the said office, and they contest his right thereto, and specify the following grounds for their contest:

The third section of article one of the Constitution of Pennsylvania provides "that no person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained the age of twenty-one years, and have been a citizen and inhabitant of the State three years next preceding his election, and the last year thereof an inhabitant of the district in and for which he shall be chosen Representative, unless he shall have been absent on the public business of the United States or of this State."

Wherefore, your petitioners, showing that the said Michael Mullen was not born in the United States, and had not been a citizen of this State three years next preceding said election, was not eligible to the said office, at the said election, his election thereto was an undue election, and that the return thereto was a false return.

Your petitioners, therefore, pray that your honorable body will take such action in the premises as is directed by law, and will decree and declare that the said Enos C. Renner, who was eligible at the time of the said election, and the only person who was eligible, and voted for by the citizens and qualified voters of the said Thirteenth district, is entitled to the seat now held and occupied by the said Michael Mullen, as representative to your honorable body from the said Thirteenth Representative district of the city of Philadelphia.

And as in duty bound, they will ever pray.

I do hereby certify that the foregoing petitioners are citizens and qualified electors of the Thirteenth Representative district of the city of Philadelphia, comprising the Seventeenth ward of the city of Philadelphia (except the First election division), the Seventh election division of the Sixteenth ward, and the Second and Seventh election divisions of the Nineteenth ward of the said city, and that they were such at the election held on the second Tuesday of October last.

Whereas my name and the seal of office, this the thirty-first day of December, A. D. 1866.

[SEAL.] FRED. G. VOLBERG, Prothonotary Court of Common Pleas for the city and county of Philadelphia.

Mr. FREEBORN. I now desire to offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That this House will proceed on to-morrow, Thursday, at 12 o'clock, M., to draw a committee to consider the contested election case in the Thirteenth district of the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. LEE. I desire to amend by striking out the words "to-morrow, Thursday," and inserting "Wednesday, the 9th."

The amendment was accepted. The resolution as amended was then agreed to.

Mr. MANN. I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed, to act in conjunction with a similar committee appointed by the Senate, to agree to the time fixed by Congress for the election of United States Senator, who are requested to report a bill regulating said election, and that the Speaker of the House be added to the said committee.

IN THE SENATE, January, 1867.
Resolved, That a select committee of five members of the Senate be appointed, to act in conjunction with a similar committee from the House of Representatives (if the House of Representatives shall appoint such a committee), to report to the Legislature their opinion as to the day on which the election of United States Senator shall take place.

Mr. MANN. I desire an amendment. I heard the resolution adopted by the Senate, and if it can be amended so as to request the committee to report by bill, then I would concur. The law as it now stands provides a different day, and a different manner of electing U. S. Senators in Congress from that provided by Congress. Of course we don't want a law on our statute books in conflict with the legislation of Congress, and while we are acting on this subject, it seems to me the same committee ought to report a bill which shall be in harmony with the action of Congress. For that reason I move to amend the resolution of the Senate by requesting the committee to report a bill.

The question on the amendment was agreed to.

The resolution of the Senate as amended was concurred in.

The Clerk read the following extract from the Senate Journal:

Resolved, That a committee of three members be appointed from the Senate to act in conjunction with a similar committee of the House of Representatives (if the House of Representatives shall appoint such a committee), to receive proposals and contract for the publication of a Daily Record.

Mr. HOFFMAN. I move that we concur in the resolution of the Senate.

Mr. MEYERS. I offer as an amendment, the amendment which I made yesterday to the resolution of the gentleman of Dauphin [Mr. HOFFMAN.]

The amendment was read as follows:

Resolved, That if the Senate concur, that said committee appointed to make said contract, are required to stipulate that the said Record shall be laid daily (when the House and Senate are respectively in session) on the desk of each Representative and Senator, and said Record to contain inter alia the proceedings of such preceding session, not more remote than the third session prior to the day when so laid on the desk, and that no money shall be drawn from the State Treasury for the contract price, or any part thereof, of said stipulation if not complied with.

Mr. MEYERS. I also desire to add, "and that each member of the House and each Senator shall be entitled to twenty-five copies of said Record."

Mr. ALLEN. I move to amend by making "twenty-five" read "thirty-five."

Mr. MEYERS. I accept the gentleman's amendment.

Mr. DAVIS. I think that probably this subject is premature in the House. This is a question in which every member on the floor is particularly interested—the Daily Record of the proceedings of the Legislature being (and I think it is the experience of nearly every member) the only document I care very much about. It is one our constituents like to have; and we should carefully consider this question. It strikes me that the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton obviates the necessity of creating a committee at all. It provides for the work that this committee is to do, and limits the number of the Record to twenty-five. Now, if the Legislative Record is to be a correct report of the proceedings of this House, I would like to have more copies of it than twenty-five. I would like to see a committee of gentlemen appointed by the Chair that would take the whole subject into consideration and agree upon what kind of a Record we shall have, and when it shall be delivered to the House. And, permit me to remark, it could be delivered a great deal better if gentlemen did not hold it back in order to revise their speeches. I have no doubt the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS] is as much in the right of holding back his speeches as any other gentleman. I would like to see the matter referred to a committee, with power to act, and not confined to any particularity. Under the amendment offered by the gentleman the committee would have nothing to do but go out and contract with a party for twenty-five Records. I move to postpone this subject for the present.

Mr. MEYERS. I understand the gentleman as making his motion to postpone to have reference to the message from the Governor.

I therefore ask the unanimous consent of the House to the postponement of this matter until the message is read.

The SPEAKER. Will the House give its unanimous consent to the postponement? It was objected.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] to postpone the further consideration of this resolution.

Mr. MANN. I want to move an amendment.

If the gentleman from Philadelphia will fix the time when he will take this subject up I have no objection, but if it is postponed for the present then it is beyond the power of a majority of the House to control it, and it is only come up by a vote of two-thirds. I want the members of this House to understand that they put it in the power of one-third to control this matter.

Mr. DAVIS. I have no objection to the gentleman from Potter (Mr. MANN) fixing the time. I knew the Governor's message was waiting to be delivered, that this discussion was premature, and that it would occupy an entire session.

The resolution was then made the special order for Monday evening next.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES.

Mr. SHARPLES. As chairman of the committee appointed by this House to communicate with the Governor and inform him that we are organized and ready to proceed to business, I would respectfully report that His Excellency desired me to inform the House that he would communicate with this body at 12 o'clock to-day.

PETITIONS.

Mr. WINGARD. I desire to present the following petition:

The petition was read by the clerk: To the Honorable the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

The petition of the undersigned, more than twenty qualified electors of the Legislative district of the State of Pennsylvania, consisting of the counties of Lycoming, Union and Snyder, respectfully represent that the officers of the general election held for said district on the second Tuesday of October last, have certified and returned that at said election C. D. Roush received one thousand three hundred and twenty-four votes for the office of member of the Legislature of said district, and James Marshall received one thousand three hundred and twenty-two votes for said office of member of the Legislature of said district; and that said officers gave the certificate of election to said C. D. Roush.

The petitioners complain that the said election was undue, and that the said James Marshall was duly elected member of the Legislature of said district, and not the said C. D. Roush. And the said petitioners set forth the following facts on which their complaint is founded, by which it will appear that the said James Marshall was elected member of the Legislature as specified, viz:

1st. That in the township of Cascade, Lycoming county, one judge, one inspector, and one clerk, officers of the board who held the election, were deserters, and consequently incapable, by law, of holding said election; that said township gave a majority of nineteen for Roush over Marshall, and the election being held by persons incapable, by law, of holding it, is void, and said return should be thrown out in the computation of the final result.

2d. That in said township of Cascade ten deserters voted for Roush, when by law they are excluded from voting.

3d. That two members of the board of election in Jordan township, Lycoming county, were deserters, and that the election held in said township is consequently void; that said township gave a majority of more than one hundred in favor of Roush over Marshall, and the returns of said township should be thrown out in computing the final result.

4th. That one illegal vote was polled in favor of Roush in Montoursville, Lycoming county.

5th. That one illegal vote was polled in Porter township, Lycoming county, in favor of Roush.

6th. That two illegal votes were polled in Washington township, Lycoming county, in favor of Roush.

7th. That three illegal votes were polled in Brady township, Lycoming county, in favor of Roush.

8th. That an adjourned court was held in Williamsport, Lycoming county, Pennsylvania, less than ten days before the election, at which over eighty persons took out their second papers and voted in favor of Roush, at the ensuing election, when, in fact, they were not entitled to vote at all, not having been citizens ten days previous to the election.

9th. That one illegal vote was polled for Roush in the West ward of Williamsport, which is not included among any of those mentioned before.

10th. That one illegal vote, other than those mentioned before, was polled in favor of Roush in the East ward of Williamsport.

11th. That seven illegal votes were polled in Union county for Roush.

12th. That seven illegal votes were polled in Snyder county for Roush.

13th. That one illegal vote was polled in Muncy Creek township, one in Muncy township, and one in Wolf township, Lycoming county, all three being for Roush.

The petitioners, therefore, pray your honorable body to hear and determine said complaint. [Signed]

Mr. WINGARD. I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That the House will proceed, on Wednesday next, at 12 o'clock, a. m., to the selection of a committee to investigate the contested election in the case of the Hon. CHAS. D. ROUSH, now sitting as a member of this House, from the district known as the Lycoming, Union and Snyder district.

The resolution was read a second time.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I desire the gentleman to give some reason why this matter should be postponed a week. I think we may as well go to it to-morrow.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I presume the difficulty is, if the committee are called they will be compelled to be in session. The probability is that these parties are not ready to proceed, not having their witnesses. And it will only compel the committee to meet every day and adjourn until the parties are ready. Probably if we let the matter go over until next week, the parties will be prepared.

Mr. WINGARD. I move to amend the resolution by striking out the words "twelve, and inserting "twelve and a half, r. m."

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, it will take, probably, one hour and a half to draw this committee. The gentleman had better amend his resolution by making it the special order at 8 o'clock or 2, r. m.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk informs the Chair that it takes at least an hour to draw the committee.

Mr. WINGARD. Then, Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by making the resolution read that the committee shall be drawn at 11 o'clock, a. m., on Wednesday, the 9th instant.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the amendment by making it Thursday, the 10th, at 12 o'clock, a. m.

On agreeing to the amendment to the amendment, a division was called for, and it was lost.

The question recurring on the resolution as modified by Mr. WINGARD, it was then agreed to.

Mr. MECHLING. Mr. Speaker, I desire to present a petition from the citizens of Armstrong county, for the repeal of an act regulating the practice of entering judgments and issuing process in said county.

The petition was read by the Clerk and Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present a joint resolution to ratify the fourteenth article of the amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the joint resolution of the gentleman being in the nature of a bill is not now in order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Potter (Mr. Mann) asked leave of the House to introduce this resolution.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended in order that the resolution may be considered at this time.

Mr. DAVIS. I am not aware of any rule of the House that prohibits the reading of a resolution. Every gentleman has the right to read an original resolution, and under the rules it comes in over for one day.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I am under the impression that no rules have yet been adopted.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Potter desires to suspend the orders of the day so as to enable him to introduce a joint resolution which is in the nature of a bill.

The opinion of the Chair is that the gentleman's joint resolution is in order, provided the rules are suspended.

Mr. LEE. We have no rules.

The SPEAKER stated that the question was on suspending the rules.

A division was called for, when 56 voted in favor of, and 23 against suspending the rules.

So it was lost, two-thirds not voting in the affirmative.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, original resolutions being now in order, the first business that should be proceeded with is the resolution of yesterday concerning the rules of the House. The House adjourned upon it at that time. I understood the rules to be, in such a case, that it shall come up when the same order is reached on the following day. I, therefore, call it up.

Mr. QUIGLEY. The gentleman makes a mistake; the Speaker ruled his amendment out of order.

Mr. BOYLE. I do not call for my amendment. I desire to bring up the original resolution offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE].

The SPEAKER. The Chair desires the Clerk to read, for the information of the House, rule No. 48.

The rule was read as follows:

The rules now adopted shall be the rules of the House until otherwise ordered.

The SPEAKER. The decision of the Chair is that the resolution offered by the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] is now in order.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I have no resolution before the House.

The SPEAKER. The point of order taken by the gentleman—

Mr. BOYLE. Is not under rule 48?

The SPEAKER. The resolution offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE] and amended by the gentleman from Fayette will be reached in its order—No. 6 of the regular order of business.

Under Rule 8, page 120, of the Manual, the gentleman will read that "reports and resolutions may, on motion, be considered."

Mr. BOYLE. I understand, Mr. Speaker, that I am not driven to a vote in order to call up a resolution which the House adjourned, or a resolution that goes over without postponement.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has already said that the resolution will be reached when that order of business is reached.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. I offer the following resolution.

It was read by the Clerk:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to inquire into the manner of printing and delivering documents to the House, and report by bill or otherwise, if any improvement can be made thereon.

The resolution was read a second time and

Agreed to.

Mr. TONOHUGH. I offer the following resolution:

It was read by the Clerk:

Resolved, That the Reverend Jacob Kennedy, a member of this House, be invited to open our daily sessions with prayer.

The resolution was read a third time and

Agreed to.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read by the Clerk:

Resolved, That the Speaker and Clerk of the House be authorized to remodel the several standing committees of this House in such a manner as may be deemed necessary.

The resolution was read a second time.

Mr. MCCREARY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know in what particular way the gentleman intends to remodel the committees.

Mr. WADDELL. My object in introducing this resolution was for the purpose of increasing the committees. I think the experience of this House and the experience of gentlemen who have served upon one or two of the committees of this House must satisfy them that they are overburdened.

I refer more particularly to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

There is no gentleman who has served on that committee in this House but must feel it is no satisfaction to be so situated, and very little satisfaction to the gentleman who has charge of the committee, and certainly very little satisfaction to the House to hear reports from that committee.

It is impossible for them to go through in a satisfactory manner with the labors put upon them. The fact is, a large majority of the business of this House is thrown into the hands of two or three committees, solely.

It has occurred to my mind if this can be remedied by increasing the number of the committees—not the number on the committees—and changing their titles some way whereby a particular character of business can be thrown into the hands of the other committees, it would be for the benefit of the committees, and for the benefit of the business of the House. My object is not to increase the number of gentlemen on the committees, but to distribute, if possible, the labors of the respective committees more evenly upon them. I introduce this resolution for the purpose of endeavoring to accomplish this end and no other.

The resolution was then agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth being introduced, presented a message, in writing, from the Governor.

[See Senate proceedings.]

SPEAKER'S TABLE.

THE SPEAKER presented to the House and laid upon the table the report of the Board of Military Claims; an abstract of the report of the Lehigh coal and navigation company, and the annual report of the State Treasurer.

BILLS PASSED.

Mr. SHUMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. SHUMAN. At the close of the last session there was an act passed in regard to the granting of licenses in different parts of the State. There was a mistake in it. There was a provision in the original bill that was not asked for by the petitioners; and I would like to have that portion of it repealed. There is a two-miles clause in it. The friends of the liquor bill are perfectly agreed that that portion of it shall be stricken out, on account of another town being within two miles of the township limited. By having Penn township in, the bill affects all the country two miles beyond, which includes nearly the whole of another town.

I would ask leave to offer a bill to remedy this objection, and move that the rules be suspended in order that it may be put upon its passage.

Mr. MECHLING. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inquire of the gentleman whether this bill affects Armstrong county.

Mr. SHUMAN. No, sir, it affects nothing but Penn township.

The title of the bill is as follows:

An act to repeal a portion of an act entitled An act to prohibiting the issuing of licenses within certain boroughs in the counties of Armstrong, Indiana and Perry, and within two miles of the confines within which said boroughs are located.

On motion of Mr. SHUMAN, the rules were suspended, the bill passed its several readings and Passed finally.

Mr. LEE. I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That there be printed for the use of this House fifteen thousand copies of the Governor's message in English and five thousand in German.

Mr. MANN. I move to strike out the word "fifteen" before the word thousand and insert the word "ten."

On agreeing to the amendment a division was called for, when forty-three voted for and thirty-eight against the amendment.

So it was agreed to.

The question recurring on the resolution as amended,

Mr. DAVIS moved further to amend by striking out the word "five" before the word thousand and inserting the word "three."

The amendment was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was agreed to.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That five thousand copies of the report of the State Treasurer be printed for the use of the House.

Mr. QUIGLEY. I move to amend by striking out the word "five" and inserting "ten."

The amendment was not agreed to.

The original resolution was then agreed to.

Mr. M'KEE. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to read a bill in place at this time to provide for the payment of the retiring officers of the Senate and House of Representatives.

Leave was granted.

On motion of Mr. M'KEE, the rules were suspended, and the bill passed its several readings and

Passed finally.

Mr. ALLEN. I have a bill which has reference to a little borough matter. I will ask the indulgence of the House in allowing me to read it in place.

Leave was granted.

The bill is entitled as follows:

An act entitled An act to change the mode of electing town council.

On motion of Mr. ALLEN, the rules were suspended, the bill passed its several readings and

Passed finally.

Mr. LEE. I desire to offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That when this House adjourns it adjourns to meet on Monday evening next, at 7 o'clock.

Mr. KERNS. Mr. Speaker, the resolution is unnecessary, as the Senate has just refused to adjourn. It would be impossible for the House to adjourn.

Mr. DAVIS. It requires a joint resolution to adjourn over for more than three days.

Mr. LEE. I withdraw the resolution.

Mr. M'CREARY. I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Clerk of this House cause the chair lately used by the Speaker, and known as the John Hancock chair, to be restored to Independence Hall in Philadelphia.

The resolution was read a second time.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, before the question is voted upon, I will say, if there is anything in this world we ought to take pride in as a State and as a people it is the early history of this government. There is nothing about which so much interest gathers as the old chair, which was used at the Declaration of Independence.

I am informed that this chair last summer suffered considerable injury. Inasmuch as it is not in use it will be laid aside, and finally this honorable relic will be lost and no one will know where it has gone. I know of no place so appropriate for this chair as the place from which it originally came—Independence Hall in Philadelphia.

I trust that the members will act on it in that light.

THE SPEAKER. The Speaker desires to state that it has been the intention of the Clerk to deposit the chair in the new library room, in order that it might be preserved.

Mr. M'CREARY. I had rather have it where it properly belongs.

The resolution was agreed to.

Mr. KINNEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to suspend the rules, and read a bill in place.

Leave was granted.

The title of the bill is as follows:

An act relating to bounty taxes in Bradford county, legalizing the action of the burgess and town council in Troy borough relative to bounties, and to require the payment of the same.

On motion of Mr. KINNEY, the rules were suspended, the bill passed its several readings and

Passed finally.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn.

The motion was not agreed to.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make a statement. A bill was passed last session by misrepresentation. It is a Senate bill, entitled An act repealing an act appointing commissioners to lay out and open a State road from Marsh's Corners, M'Kean county, to the Philadelphia and Erie railroad.

I move the suspension of the rules, and ask that the bill may be put on its passage.

The motion was agreed to.

The bill passed its several readings and

Passed finally.

The Clerk read the following extract from the Senate Journal:

Resolved, That, if the House of Representatives concur, the Governor be requested to return to the Senate Senate bill No. 472, entitled A supplement to an act relative to the sale and conveyance of real estate, passed April 18, 1863.

On motion, the House concurred in the resolution.

Mr. KERNS. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to read a bill in place relative to the running of passenger railroad cars on Sunday, in the city of Philadelphia.

Leave was granted, and the bill was

Laid on the table.

Mr. M'CREARY. I ask leave to read a bill in place, entitled A supplement to an act to incorporate the borough of South Erie.

Leave was granted, and the bill was laid on the table.

The hour of 1 o'clock having arrived, the SPEAKER declared the House adjourned until to-morrow morning, at 11 o'clock.

SENATE.

THURSDAY, January 3, 1867.

Senate met at 11 o'clock, A. M., and was called to order by the SPEAKER.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the reading of the Journal of yesterday was dispensed with.

PETITIONS.

Mr. SCHALL presented a petition of the citizens of Lehigh county, praying for the passage of an act regulating the sale of goods by hawkers and peddlers at wholesale.

Laid on the table.

BILLS IN PLACE.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer) read in his place and presented to the Chair a bill entitled An act to establish a ferry over the Allegheny river at or near the mouth of Big Scrubgrass, in the county of Venango.

Laid on the table.

Mr. CONNELL, a bill entitled An act to define the time and regulate the manner of electing Senators to represent the State in the Senate of the United States.

Laid on the table.

Mr. WHITE, a bill entitled A joint resolution instructing our Senators and Representatives in Congress on the tariff.

Laid on the table.

Mr. McCONAUGHY, a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Littlestown Savings Institution.

Laid on the table.

Mr. LOWRY, a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Marine Hospital of Pennsylvania, in the county of Erie, to fix the location of a hospital in Erie city; and to grant real estate to said hospital.

Laid on the table.

Also, a bill entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act regulating railroad companies, approved February 19, 1849, and its supplements, and to create and regulate such companies.

Laid on the table.

Mr. SHOEMAKER, a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Wilkesbarre and Sugar Notch passenger railway company.

Laid on the table.

Mr. FISHER, a bill entitled A joint resolution regarding the meeting of the next Congress.

Laid on the table.

Mr. McCONAUGHY, a bill entitled An act to amend an act to incorporate the North American Transit insurance company, and the supplements thereto.

Laid on the table.

Mr. RIDGWAY, a bill entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act to enable joint tenants, etc., approved the 21st day of April, 1854.

Laid on the table.

LEAVE TO RECORD VOTE.

Mr. ROYER, having been absent, asked and obtained leave to record his vote on the organization of the Senate, and on the question of taking up the joint resolution ratifying the constitutional amendments.

Mr. RIDGWAY also asked and obtained leave to record his vote on the question of taking up the joint resolution adopting the constitutional amendments.

BILLS PASSED.

On motion of Mr. BROWN (Mercer), the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to establish a ferry over the Allegheny river at or near the mouth of Big Scrubgrass, in Venango county.

The bill

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. LOWRY, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act relating to corporations for mechanical, manufacturing, mining and quarrying purposes, approved July 18th, 1863, extending the provisions of said act, and the said supplements thereto, to any association formed for the publication and sale of periodicals, newspapers, school books, books of science and art, and current and standard literature.

The bill

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. McCONAUGHY, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to incorporate the Littlestown Savings Institution.

The bill

Passed finally.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 1, an act to repeal a portion of an act entitled An act to prohibit the issuing of licenses within certain boroughs in the counties of Armstrong, Potter, Indiana and Perry, or within two miles of the same, in the counties in which such boroughs are located.

No. 2, an act to pay the retiring officers of the Senate and House of Representatives.

No. 3, an act entitled An act to change the mode of electing town council in the borough of Youngsville, and defining certain duties pertaining to their office.

No. 4, an act relating to bounty taxes in Bradford county, legalizing the action of the burgess and town council in Troy borough relative to bounties, and to require the payment of the same.

No. 5, an act repealing an act appointing commissioners to lay out and open a State road from Marsh's Corners, McKeen county, to the Philadelphia and Erie railroad.

Which were severally laid on the table.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives also informed that the House of Representatives has concurred in resolution from the Senate relative to the appointment of a committee to fix the day for the election of United States Senator, with an amendment adding thereto the words, "said committee to report by bill," and have appointed Messrs. MANN, WADDELL, BOYLE, McCREARY and MEYERS the committee on the part of the House.

On motion, the said amendment was agreed to.

ELECTION OF UNITED STATES SENATOR.

Mr. CONNELL. Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be dispensed with, and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of bill entitled An act to define the time and regulate the manner of electing Senators to represent this State in the Senate of the United States.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, the object of that bill is to remove any doubt that exists on this subject, and to make the State and National laws conform. I think it had better be passed at once.

The bill was read as follows:

An act to define the time and regulate the manner of electing Senators to represent this State in the Senate of the United States.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General As- sembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That each House of the Legislature appoint one teller, and nominate at least one person to fill the office of Senator to represent this State in the Senate of the United States, and at least two days previous to the joint meeting hereinafter mentioned communicate to the other House the names of the persons so appointed and nominated.

SEC. 2. At the hour of 11 A. M., on the second Tuesday after the meeting and organization of the Legislature which shall be chosen next preceding the expiration of the time for which any Senator was elected to represent this State in Congress, to wit: on the third Tuesday of January, if the Legislature shall have organized previous to the second Tuesday; but if not so organized, then on the second Tuesday after the organization thereof, not counting the day on which the Legislature was organized, each House shall openly, by a viva voce vote of each member present, name one person for Senator in Congress from this State, and the name of the person so voted for, who shall have a majority of the whole number of votes cast in each House, shall be entered on the journal of each House by the clerk thereof; but if either House shall fail to give such majority to any person on said day, that fact shall be entered on the journal. At 12 o'clock, meridian, of the day following that on which proceedings are required to take place, as aforesaid, the members of the two Houses shall convene in joint assembly, and the journal of each House shall then be read, and if the same person shall have received a majority of all the votes in each House, such person shall be declared duly elected Senator to represent this State in the Congress of the United States; but if the same person shall not have received a majority of the votes in each House, or if either House shall have failed to take proceedings, as required by this act, the joint assembly shall then proceed to choose, by a viva voce vote of each member present, a person for the purpose aforesaid, and the person having a majority of all the votes of the said joint assembly, a majority of all the members elected to both Houses being present and voting, shall be declared duly elected; and in case no person shall receive such majority on the first day, the joint assembly shall meet at 12 o'clock, meridian, of each succeeding day during the session of the Legislature, and take at least one vote until a Senator shall be elected.

SEC. 3. Whenever, on the meeting of the Legislature, a vacancy shall exist in the representation of this State in the Senate of the United States, the Legislature shall proceed, on the second Tuesday after the commencement and organization of its session, to elect a person, to fill such vacancy, in the manner hereinbefore provided for the election of a Senator for the full term; and if a vacancy shall happen during the session of the Legislature, then on the second Tuesday after the Legislature shall have notice of such vacancy.

SEC. 4. When the election shall be closed as aforesaid, the president of the convention shall announce the person who shall have received a majority of votes aforesaid, to be duly elected a Senator to represent this State in the Senate of the United States; and he shall, in the presence of the members of both Houses, sign four several certificates of the election, attested by the teller, one of which certificates shall be transmitted by the president of the convention to the Governor of this Commonwealth, one to the person so elected, and the remaining two shall be preserved among the records and entered at length on the Journal of each House.

Sec. 5. It shall be the duty of the Governor, immediately after receiving the certificate of the election of any Senator, to certify his election, under the seal of the State; which certificate shall be countersigned by the Secretary of State.

The bill was read a second and third time and Passed finally.

PAY OF RETIRING OFFICERS.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the rules were dispensed with and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of House bill entitled An act to pay the retiring officers of the Senate and House of Representatives.

The bill Passed finally.

THE TARIFF QUESTION.

On motion of Mr. WHITE, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of the joint resolutions instructing our Senators and Representatives in Congress on the tariff.

The bill was read as follows:

WHEREAS, The taxation now necessarily levied upon the people of the United States to meet the current expenses and discharge the very large debt resting upon the nation falls heavily upon the mechanical, agricultural, mining, manufacturing, and other industrial pursuits of Pennsylvania, and requires of the parent government more than ever a proper and judicious tariff for protection against an unjust competition with the large and excessive importations of foreign goods and other products of cheap and pauper labor;

And whereas, The duty of the General Government to pass a proper tariff is also increased in view of the fact that the hosts of heroes who have on the battle-field maintained the integrity and vindicated the honor of the nation, have now returned to peaceful pursuits, and look for proper remuneration for their industry for a livelihood; therefore,

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That our Senators and Representatives in Congress be, and they are hereby, requested and instructed earnestly, by their votes to secure the passage through Congress, that it may soon become a law, of the tariff bill passed by the Lower House of Congress at its last session, and now before the Senate of the United States.

Resolved, That Pennsylvania is now, as ever, devoted to the doctrine of ample and permanent protection by the Federal Government to American labor, industry and enterprise, and that the tariff bill now before the Senate of the United States, judiciously protecting as it does the iron manufacturer, the woolen manufacturer, the wool grower, and all other industrial pursuits against the unequal competition of cheap foreign labor is, wise, just and necessary, and should early become a law.

Resolved, That the Governor be and is hereby requested to forward a copy of these resolutions to our Senators and Members of Congress.

The resolutions passed finally.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

The joint resolution ratifying the amendment to the Constitution of the United States being the order of the day, a motion was made by Mr. FISHER that the further consideration of the resolution be postponed until Thursday evening next, and that it be made the special order for that day.

The motion of Mr. FISHER was agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, informed the Senate that the House of Representatives has concurred in the resolution from the House relative to the adjournment of the two Houses until Tuesday next, at 3 o'clock P. M.

HOUSE BILLS PASSED.

On motion of Mr. LONDON, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill from the House of Representatives entitled An act relative to bounty taxes in Bradford county, legalizing the action of the burgess and town council in Troy borough relative to bounties, and to require the payment of the same.

The bill Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. HAINES, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill from the House of Representatives entitled An act to repeal a portion of an act entitled An act to prohibit the issuing of licenses within certain boroughs in the counties of Armstrong, Potter, Indiana and Perry, or within two miles of the same, in the counties in which such boroughs are located.

The bill Passed finally.

NORTHWEST WARD IN THE CITY OF LANCASTER.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill entitled An act to divide the Northwest ward, in the city of Lancaster, into election precincts and separate election districts.

Mr. BILLINGFELT. I hope my colleague will allow this bill to lie over until I can hear from my constituents about it. I do not wish it understood that I am opposed to the bill, but I am in favor of a general bill for all the wards in Lancaster.

Mr. FISHER was understood to say that this Northwest ward was the largest ward in Lancaster, and polls some seven hundred or eight hundred votes, and it is proposed to divide it up into precincts, but as he did not wish to be too impatient he would be willing to withdraw it for the present.

The bill was then withdrawn.

A JOINT RESOLUTION.

Mr. WHITE offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That (if the House concur) so much of the Governor's message as refers to the maintenance of such of our soldiers as are in poverty, and have been so mained as to prevent them from securing a livelihood, be referred to a joint committee of three from each House, whose duty it shall be to report by bill or otherwise, to carry into effect the recommendation of His Excellency, the Governor.

The resolution was adopted.

The SPEAKER then adjourned the Senate until Tuesday next, at 3 P. M.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, January 3, 1867.

The House met at 11 o'clock, A. M. Prayer was offered by the Rev. J. KENNEDY, member from Wyoming. The Journal of yesterday was read and adopted.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 1, an act relative to the receiver of taxes in the city of Philadelphia, repealing so much of the act of April ninth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, as authorizes him to charge five per cent. commission for collecting taxes from delinquent taxpayers.

No. 2, an act to authorize the appointment of an additional notary public for the county of Lehigh.

Also, extract from the Journal of the Senate:

IN THE SENATE, January 2, 1867.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That when the two Houses adjourn to-morrow (Thursday) they will adjourn to meet on Tuesday next at three o'clock, P. M.

At the request of the SPEAKER, John Mitchell, an Assistant Doorkeeper, presented himself before the Clerk's desk and was duly sworn.

SPEAKER'S TABLE.

The SPEAKER presented to the House and laid upon the table the annual report of the Philadelphia Savings Fund society.

The Clerk read the following extract from the Journal of the Senate:

IN THE SENATE, January 2, 1867.

Resolved, That (if the House of Representatives concur) when the two Houses adjourn to-morrow (Thursday) they will adjourn to meet on Tuesday next at 3 o'clock, P. M.

Mr. LEE. I move, Mr. Speaker, that the House concur in the resolution just read.

Mr. MANN. I move to amend by inserting Monday evening at half-past seven o'clock. There is a special order already by this House for that evening, and this resolution, if it prevails, puts that motion, I think, in the same position as if it had been proposed for the present, and will require a two-thirds vote to again get it before the House. If the House, therefore, desires to keep command of that motion it will amend this resolution so that we can meet on Monday evening.

Mr. M'CREARY. Will the gentleman inform me what the order of the House is on that evening?

Mr. MANN. The consideration of the publication of a Daily Record.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Potter (Mr. MANN) insist on his amendment?

Mr. MANN. I do.

The question being on the amendment a division was called for, when 31 voted for and 49 against it. It was therefore lost.

The question recurring on agreeing to the resolution of the Senator,

It was agreed to.

BILLS IN PLACE.

Mr. LEE. I desire at this time to make a short statement. Mr. Speaker, the directors of the poor of Oxford township, in Lower Dublin, Philadelphia county, have upon their grounds a building wholly inadequate to the purpose to which it is devoted. They desire the authority to borrow money to enable them to erect additional buildings, in order that the poor may be taken out of sheds and out of doors, and their comforts otherwise provided for.

I ask the indulgence of the House, therefore, at this time, to read a bill in place. Leave was granted and

Mr. LEE read in his place and presented to the Chair bill No. 6, entitled A supplement to an act to provide for the erection of a poor house for the better relief and employment of the poor of Oxford township, Lower Dublin, in the county of Philadelphia, approved April 7, 1867.

Said bill was read the first time. On motion of Mr. LEE, the rule for going into committee of the whole being in this case dispensed with, said bill was read the second time, considered and agreed to, and Ordered, To be transcribed for the third reading.

On motion of Mr. LEE, the rule which prohibits the reading of bills twice on the same day being in this case dispensed with, the said bill was read the third time.

On the question, Shall the bill pass?

It was agreed to.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a short statement at this time. Leave was granted.

Mr. KENNEDY. I hold in my hand a bill in which my constituents are very much interested, and which they would like to have passed at an early day in this session. I therefore ask leave to read it in place.

Leave being granted.

Mr. KENNEDY. I read in place and present to the Chair a bill relative to the election of jurors.

Mr. KENNEDY. I move to suspend the rules in order to proceed to the consideration and passage of the bill.

On the motion,

A division was called for, when 45 voted for and 33 against suspending the rules.

So it was not agreed to, two-thirds not having voted in the affirmative.

Mr. M'CAMANT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. M'CAMANT. Mr. Speaker, at the last session of the Legislature a bill was passed incorporating the Holidaysburg water works company. That bill restricts the company in the issuing of their bonds to a rate of interest not exceeding six per cent. They desire to go ahead with the erection of their works, but they find they cannot get the amount of money necessary at that rate of interest, owing to the stringency of the market. I therefore ask leave to read a bill in place.

Leave was granted.

Mr. M'CAMANT. Mr. Speaker, I read in my place and present to the Chair bill No. 1, entitled A supplement to an act entitled An act to authorize the borough of Holidaysburg to erect water works.

Said bill was read the first time.

On motion Mr. M'CAMANT, the rule for going into the committee of the whole being in this case dispensed with, the bill was read a second time, considered and agreed to; and

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

On motion of Mr. M'CAMANT, the rule which prohibits the reading of bills twice on the same day being in this case dispensed with, said bill was read a third time; and

On the question, Shall the bill pass?

It was agreed to.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House proceed to the consideration of Senate bill No. 1, relative to the assessment of five per centum on delinquent taxpayers.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will proceed to clear the table.

Senate bill No. 1, entitled An act relative to the receiver of taxes in the city of Philadelphia, repealing so much of the act of April ninth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, as authorizes him to charge five per cent. commission for collecting taxes from delinquent taxpayers.

Was read the first time.

On motion of Mr. DAVIS, the rule for going into committee of the whole being in this case dispensed with, said bill was read a second time, considered and agreed to; and

Ordered, To be prepared for a third reading.

On motion of Mr. DAVIS, the rule which prohibits the reading of bills twice on the day, being in this case dispensed with, said bill was read a third time; and

On the question, Shall the bill pass?

It was agreed to.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave of the House to read a bill in place.

Leave was granted.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I read in my place and present to the Chair bill No. 9, entitled An act to exempt the property of the Beaver County cemetery association from taxation.

Said bill was read the first time.

On motion of Mr. QUAY, the rule for going into committee of the whole being in this case dispensed with, said bill was read a second time, considered and agreed to; and

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

On motion of Mr. QUAY, the rule which prohibits the reading of bills twice on the same day being in this case dispensed with, said bill was read the third time; and

On the question, Shall the bill pass?

It was agreed to.

Senate bill No. 2, entitled An act to authorize the appointment of an additional notary public for the county of Lehigh,

Was read the first time.

On motion of Mr. KLINE, the rule for going into committee of the whole being in this case dispensed with, said bill was read the second time, considered and agreed to; and

Ordered, To be prepared for a third reading.

On a motion of Mr. KLINE, the rule which prohibits the reading of bills twice on the same day being in this case dispensed with, said bill was read the third time; and

On the question, Shall the bill pass?

It was agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

No. 2, an act to pay the retiring officers of the Senate and House of Representatives.

With information that the Senate has passed the same without amendment.

Also, bills from the House numbered and entitled as follows:

No. 1, an act to repeal a portion of an act entitled An act to prohibit the issuing of licenses within certain boroughs in the counties of Armstrong, Potter, Indiana and Perry, or within two miles of the same, in the counties in which said boroughs are located.

No. 4, an act relating to bounty taxes in Bradford county, legalizing the action of the burgess and town council in Troy borough relative to bounties, and to require the payment of the same.

With information that the Senate has passed the same without amendment.

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement in regard to a matter of urgent necessity.

Leave was granted.

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker, at the last session a bill was passed by this House granting annuity to Nancy Welliver, the widow of a revolutionary soldier.

The bill was reported upon by a committee, and passed this House with great unanimity, but failed in the Senate for want of time. The old lady is still living and resides with her daughter, who is in poor circumstances, and upon whom she is dependant for support. The old lady will probably not draw more than the first instalment, should the bill pass, her health being very precarious.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, it is very evident from the statement made by the gentleman, and statements made by others, that the bill, which is now asked to be passed in this way, could just as well take the ordinary course of legislation. We waste time by legislating in this manner—as much time as would be required to pass four bills in the regular way to one in this—and it causes members, who are unwilling to be pressing their bills, to be at a disadvantage. The order to-day is the reading of bills in place. We all desire that privilege. We shall have no such privilege if we keep on suspending the rules. I hope the House will establish, at once, the practice of refusing to suspend the rules for every little bill offered. We shall all gain by it. We can pass bills under the rules with less trouble to ourselves, with not half the trouble to the Clerk, and with much more satisfaction to all concerned. I hope, therefore, the rules will not be suspended.

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker, it is known to the House that there are no committees appointed as yet to whom bills can be referred. I ask the attention of the House to the statement I have made, and refer to the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. FREEBORN] to prove that it is a meritorious case. I agree with the gentleman that it is a wrong way of doing business, but this is a matter of urgency.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I asked the privilege yesterday of having a bill considered which is of general importance. I believe my friend on the other side of the House voted against allowing me that privilege. I had never asked that privilege before, and I think that it now ought to be stopped.

The question recurring on the motion to suspend the rules,

It was agreed to.

On agreeing to the bill,

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, it strikes me that we are legislating in the dark when, by a bill of this kind, we take money out of the treasury in this way. Of course, I have no objections to appropriating the money for this purpose, but this is a case of which we know nothing. How do we know that this person is the widow of a revolutionary soldier? We take the statement of the gentleman, but perhaps he has been imposed upon. This revolutionary soldier might have been a deserter, or perhaps, as Solon Shingle says of his grandfather, "he drew a baggage wagon into the revolution." All the facts in the case ought to be thoroughly investigated. We are going to pass a bill on the mere assumption that this person is the widow of a revolutionary soldier, without knowing anything about it. If the facts, as stated, are true, the bill should pass, but the bill should first go before a military committee for investigation. If they are satisfied that the facts are true, let the bill be passed, and then go through the Auditor General's office before payment. It does seem to me that the House should investigate these bills, and not pass them simply because somebody asks it.

There may be no merit in the bill at all.

Mr. FREEBORN. Mr. Speaker, the merit of this bill was fully established by the gentleman from Luzerne [Mr. KOON] before the committee. The bill was favorably reported by the committee, and passed the House last session. I therefore think it quite unnecessary to investigate the matter any further.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say that I have no objection to the payment of such claims when well authenticated. I merely wish to know that they are; and the remarks of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. FREEBORN] saying that the bill has been considered and approved, satisfies me.

The bill

Passed finally.

Mr. KURTZ. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. KURTZ. Mr. Speaker, at the last session of the Legislature a bill was passed regulating the fees of the district attorney in the county of Bradford.

I moved an amendment to attach Centre county, but I suppose, by some error, it was omitted. I wish to introduce a bill to extend the provisions of that act to our country.

The bill was read by its title as follows: No. 12, an act to extend the provisions of the first section of the act approved the 11th day of April, 1866, relative to the regulation of the fees of the district attorney in the county of Bradford, in the court of quarter sessions, to the county of Centre.

On motion of Mr. KURTZ, The rules were suspended, and The bill Passed finally. Mr. BARTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted. Mr. BARTON. Mr. Speaker, there is a matter of considerable importance to my constituents upon which I desire to have action at this time by introducing a bill. I therefore read in my place and present to the Chair bill No. 13, entitled "An act relating to the drainage of roads by supervisors in the county of Delaware.

On motion of Mr. BARTON, The rules were suspended, and The bill Passed finally.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution

Resolved, That the report of S. P. Bates to the Governor, on the Military History of the State, be published in the Daily Record. The resolution was read a second time, considered and Agreed to. The report is as follows:

STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA, EXECUTIVE OFFICE, DEPARTMENT OF MIL. HISTORY, HARRISBURG, Dec. 15, 1866.

To His Excellency, Andrew G. Curtin, Governor of Pennsylvania:

In obedience to your instructions, and to the terms of the commission issued to me in conformity with the act of Assembly of May 4, 1864, providing for the appointment of "some competent person to prepare a Military History of the Organization of Pennsylvania Volunteers and Militia," I entered upon the discharge of the duties entrusted to me on the first of _____.

MATERIAL FOR THE WORK.

My first care was to ascertain, as accurately as possible, the nature and extent of the material at command, and to consider the best method of obtaining such additional information as would be necessary to possess in order successfully to prosecute the work.

To this end a collection was commenced of executive documents, messages, laws and resolutions passed by the Legislature, orders and reports of executive officers, official letters and telegrams, and of reports of State agents in various capacities. A correspondence was entered into with military officials in each of the loyal States, and copies of reports and documents, published during the last three years, were solicited, whereby a large mass of interesting matter has been collected, which will serve an important purpose in the prosecution of this co-ordinate branch of labor.

Application was also made for information and printed documents to the Secretary of War, Adjutant General, Surgeon General and Clerk of the House of Representatives, at Washington, to which responses were received of the most cordial character, and publications of vast interest and importance were promptly forwarded.

In addition to these public sources of information a collection has been made of Histories of the Rebellion, both loyal and confederate, serial Records and Gazettes, Histories of Army Corps, Divisions and Regiments, publications of the Christian and Sanitary Commissions, and Maps and Political Digests, all of which will prove valuable auxiliaries as works of reference, and in the verification of important facts.

A few manuscript monographs have been received from commanders of regiments, which are filed, and the material will be used in making up the particular histories.

The matter thus collected was first examined in a general way and duly classified and arranged. The subjects were then taken up in their order, and those portions of the documents which bore upon the particular topic under consideration were attentively read, and copious notes made from them. By this method of procedure the composition of each part of the work becomes regular and systematic.

PLAN OF THE WORK.

After an examination of the material thus far collected, and a study of the subject somewhat in detail, I have arrived at the conclusion that the work should be prepared after the following plan, viz:

1. A general history of what the State accomplished during the period of the national troubles, and the material and personal aid rendered to the Government for the successful prosecution of the war, as shown by official proclamations, messages, orders, correspondence, records of soldiers' aid societies, memoranda of material furnished the General Government for army and navy purposes, from its mineral resources, with some introductory matter illustrative of the militia organization of the State previous to the breaking out of the rebellion; of its population, its material resources, its physical features, and the contingencies which forced the General Government to call out the militia of the several States.

2. A condensed history of each regiment, embracing an account of its origin, organization, instruction and drill, and its operations in the field—drawn from official records and such details and incidents as the officers can now furnish.

3. A complete roll comprising the name, age, rank, date of muster into service, residence, period of enlistment, casualties, and final fate of every officer and enlisted man—drawn from the muster-out rolls, pay rolls, company books and from such other subsequent legal evidence as can be adduced. A specimen page of this part of the work is herewith submitted.

4. Biographical sketches of the executive officers of the government, officers in the field, privates who distinguished themselves, and civilians, both male and female, who rendered signal service to the State, and through it to the Nation—collected from records, official acts, and reports, and as obtained by personal inquiry.

5. A Roll of Honor, composed of the names of those who died in the service, with the circumstances of their death and place of burial, prepared from documents issued from the office of the Quartermaster General of the United States, and from information to be obtained from the surviving relatives and comrades in arms.

6. An alphabetical index to every name that occurs in the history.

FORM OF THE WORK.

By far the larger part of the work will be occupied by the rolls. The nature of the items embodied in these must determine the form of publication. After due study and consultation, a company roll was prepared, and to test the matter fully, a single page was put in type. The result has confirmed the opinion, that it should be published in royal quarto form, and that the rolls and letter-press should be uniform.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

The general history should properly form the first part of the work. In the preparation of this, considerable progress has already been made, some four or five chapters being nearly completed. But as the investigation proceeds, new light is constantly being revealed, and additional facts are discovered which deserve to be considered. It is believed, therefore, that while the labor of collecting and digesting the material for this part of the work should be pushed vigorously forward, its publication should be delayed till the last. It is judged that this properly prepared will make one volume. The publication can, therefore, commence with the second volume, and proceed with the histories and rolls of the regiments in their order, and let the first volume be the last issued.

MATERIAL FOR THE HISTORY OF THE REGIMENTS.

In the preparation of regimental histories much reliance must necessarily be placed on the memoranda of facts furnished by the surviving officers. To facilitate the collection of this material, it is proposed to prepare and publish a carefully considered account of some one regiment, which may serve as a model of the form, and as an illustration of the kind and extent of information needed. To obviate the difficulty which might arise from lack of interest in the work, or delay in responding, a series of questions will be prepared to accompany the call for information, calculated to elicit the material facts needed, with suitable blanks for the answers.

PREPARATION OF THE ROLLS.

A large proportion of the muster-out rolls of the regiments, deposited in the office of the Adjutant General of the State, are tolerably complete. The material facts needed for the history can be obtained from these, though it will be necessary to consult other records for their verification.

Judging by the time consumed in the preparation of the company roll, intended as a guide in the printing of blanks, and as copy for a specimen page, it is estimated that it will require at least three days' labor to tabularize and copy the roll of a single company, and make the alphabetical index required. It will, therefore, require the labor of a clerk for five weeks to prepare the rolls of a single regiment, and to prepare the rolls of ten regiments may be set down as a fair estimate for a year's labor. There are on the records in the office of the Adjutant General two hundred and fifteen regimental organizations.

From this estimate an intelligent idea can be formed of the clerical labor to be performed. Some of the rolls in the Adjutant General's office are defective, and those of some regiments were never deposited there. Copies of these must be obtained from the records of the War Department at Washington.

In view of these facts it is recommended that provision be made for the appointment of six clerks, and a messenger as at present.

ESTIMATES—ROLL OF HONOR.

Pennsylvania soldiers who fell, victims of the rebellion, are numbered by thousands. They lie scattered on nearly all the battle-fields of the war. They sleep in the crowded graves around the wretched prison-pens where they suffered, lingered, and died. They fought, they endured, they perished in humble obedience to their country's call.

"When can their glory fade?"

It is but just to the memory of these brave men, that a careful record of the circumstances attending their death, and the place of their burial, should be set in an enduring memorial. The recently published records of the General Government disclose the name, number of graves, rank, regiment, company, and date of death, of all those in the national armies who died, and are now buried in the National Cemeteries. From these pamphlets the names of Pennsylvania soldiers can be collated and arranged, and with such other information as can be obtained, a record reasonably satisfactory can be made.

Justice to the living, as well as to the dead, who had a part in this great warfare, demands that this whole work should be faithfully done. From the little experience thus far had, it is clearly seen, that to execute the task with fidelity, according to the plan here submitted, will require careful investigation and unclouded judgment. In view of the vast strain to which the resources of the State have been subjected, and heart-throbbings, and heart-breakings, which her people have endured, it cannot be permitted that any part of the work should be carelessly or imperfectly done. The yearnings of father, mother, sister, brother, and the tears and tears amidst which he was remembered while on the march, in the bivouac, and in the battle, are the most sacred fruits of these dread years of war. The gleaner in such a harvest should tread reverently and gather devotedly.

The wisdom of the Legislature in providing for the publication of such a work is clearly manifest. The record of the thoughts and the deeds of a people forms the only enduring monument of their glory. The Retreat of the Ten Thousand and the Heroism of the Three Hundred who bled at Thermopylae, as fresh in Grecian history. The soldiers of Pennsylvania were everywhere valiant and brave, and the alacrity with which they sprang to arms upon the first cry of danger, form one of the brightest pages in her history. The State but secures and perpetuates her own renown, when she repeats and places in enduring form a simple record of the heroism of her sons. The survivors of the conflict will revert to it with pride in trembling age, and their children and their children's children to the latest generations will proclaim with exultation, "An ancestor, whose name I bear, was with Grant at Vicksburg, with Thomas at Chattanooga, or he followed Sherman in his March to the Sea, or fought with Meade on the immortal field of Gettysburg."

Respectfully submitted,

SAMUEL P. BATES.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.
Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer a bill, and ask the indulgence of the House to pass it, for this reason: In the borough of Tidoute they desire to build a school house, and are anxious to do it immediately. As the House, I am informed, intends to adjourn for several days, I desire very much to pass it to-day.

I therefore read in my place and present to the Chair bill No. 14, entitled An act to authorize the collection of money for school purposes in the borough of Tidoute, Warren county.

On motion of Mr. ALLEN, the rules were suspended, and

The bill

Passed finally.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That here be printed, for the use of the House, eight thousand copies of the Adjutant General's report, and that they be bound in a style to correspond with previous volumes.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, the act of Assembly provides for the printing of this report. It does not require any resolution. The act of Assembly provides for the printing of the Adjutant General's report, the State Engineer's Surveyor General's report, the State Librarian's report and the reports of the Superintendents of Public Printing and Common Schools.

Mr. DAVIS. I am aware of that, but I do not think it provides for any particular number.

Mr. MANN. Yes, sir, it provides for the number.

Mr. DAVIS. How many? But, Mr. Speaker, this is an additional number.

Mr. MANN. I hope, then, the resolution will not be adopted.

Mr. DAVIS. The Adjutant General's report has been more called for during the last two or three years than any other document that has ever been issued by this House. There is scarcely a family in the State that is not interested, either directly or indirectly, in this report. My constituents want to see it. State I survey one of them, for the purpose of tracing or examining the progress of one or more of the members of their families, from the time they entered the army until the close of the war. I was called upon to offer this resolution by a gentleman on the floor who will probably explain it more fully than I can. This is the last Adjutant General's report that will contain the statistics of the volunteer forces engaged in the rebellion. I am informed that it is very complete and ample in its details, and a volume that ought to be in every house in this Commonwealth. Therefore I am in favor of printing an additional number. The State printer, I am just informed, says that there is nothing in the law in reference to printing them.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, whether the act which the gentleman from Potter [Mr. Mann] refers to, does provide for the printing of the report, or whether this resolution involves the publication of an additional eight thousand volumes, I think is not very material. Whether it should be five thousand, or ten thousand, or fifteen thousand of that report, I think this House ought not to hesitate at this time in regard to the publication of them.

I understand, as the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. Davis] remarks, that this is the last report that will contain a complete record of all the regiments and organizations that went into the service during the war. There were some organizations that went into the three months' service and have never been placed on the Adjutant General's report. In this report the Adjutant General has brought up these organizations and will give a full account of them. This will be but justice to the men who went out in the beginning of the war, when it was supposed by the wise men of the land that ninety days would be sufficient to bring it to a close. These men went out and served three months and never had their names printed in the report. I say, in justice to them, the additional number proposed should be sent over our State. I know, in my own county, one regiment that went into the field almost immediately after the first gun was fired upon Fort Sumter, whose names as yet have not appeared upon the Adjutant General's report. But they will appear in this report, and I am informed that there are others in the same situation. There is no report that is so much called for as the Adjutant General's report. Every person who has lost a friend, or has been an officer in the service, will desire to preserve it. I know, as I know, so there is no document published here that has so much interest as this Adjutant General's report. Soldiers write to me from all parts of the State for the report. Inasmuch as this is the last one that will contain this record, and inasmuch as it will contain the record of many organizations that have never before appeared in the Adjutant General's report, I hope there will be no opposition to the resolution before the House.

The resolution was agreed to.

Mr. MAISH. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to read a bill in place.

Leave was granted.

Mr. MAISH. Mr. Speaker, I read in my place and present to the Chair bill No. 15, entitled An act relative to elections in the Farmers' and Mechanics' insurance company.

On motion of Mr. MAISH, the rules were suspended and

The bill

Passed finally.

Mr. PILLOW. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That if the Senate concur the Governor be requested to return to the House of Representatives House bill No. 1822, entitled An act relative to Brady township, passed during the session of 1866.

The resolution was twice read, considered and

Agreed to.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and

The SPEAKER declared this House adjourned until next Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 8, 1867.

The House met at 9 o'clock, P. M.
Prayer was offered by the Rev. James KENNEDY, member from Wyoming.

The Journal of Thursday was read and approved.

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth was introduced, who presented several messages, in writing, from the Governor, which were read as follows:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
HARRISBURG, JANUARY 8, 1867. }

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

GENTLEMEN—In the summer of 1862, after the battles on the peninsula, large numbers of sick and wounded Pennsylvania volunteers were carried to New York, where I found them in hospitals. Finding it necessary for their comfort and to facilitate their transportation to the State, I appointed Colonel C. M. Burton agent for that purpose. There were at that time some four or five thousand Pennsylvanians in and about the city of New York, and Colonel Burton gave them faithful attention, receiving supplies from the State, and friends at home, and in distributing them, and in having them transported to hospitals in the State and to their homes. For five months he was almost constantly engaged in his work, and afterwards continued to perform any duty asked of him.

He expended over one thousand dollars, which has never been paid to him, nor has he ever received any compensation.

In consequence of his not pushing his accounts, and delays in settlements, there is now no fund from which payment can be made, and I recommend that an appropriation be made for that purpose. I need not say that the State has heretofore responded to all demands of this character promptly, and that this claim is meritorious and should be paid.

A. G. CERTIN.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented the following message, which was read, viz:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, January 8, 1867. }

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

GENTLEMEN—I herewith return to the House of Representatives, in which it originated, bill No. 1515, entitled An act to incorporate the Home Insurance, trust and safe deposit company of the city of Pittsburg, with my objections to the same.

The twenty-fifth section of the first article of the Constitution declares that 'hereafter no corporate body shall be created, renewed or extended, with banking or discounting privileges, without six months' previous notice of the intended application, in such manner as shall be provided by law,' and the second section of the act of May 1st, 1851, directs the manner in which the notice shall be given.

This bill confers banking and discounting privileges, and as no notice of the application was given, is clearly unconstitutional.

I have, therefore, withheld my signature from this bill. A. G. CURTIN.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented the following message, which was read, viz:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, January 8, 1867. }

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

GENTLEMEN—I herewith return to the House of Representatives, in which it originated, bill No. 1232, entitled An act to incorporate the Dime Savings Institution of Susquehanna Depot, Susquehanna county, with my objections to the same.

The twenty-fifth section of the first article of the Constitution declares that hereafter no corporate body shall be created, renewed, or extended, with banking or discounting privileges, without six months' previous notice of the intended application in such manner as shall be provided by law, and the second section of the act of May 1st, 1851, directs the manner in which the notice shall be given.

This bill confers banking and discounting privileges, and as no notice of the application was given, is clearly unconstitutional.

I have, therefore, withheld my signature from this bill. A. G. CURTIN.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented the following message, which was read, viz:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, January 8, 1867. }

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

GENTLEMEN—I herewith return to the House of Representatives, in which it originated, bill No. 524, entitled An act for the creation of a boom and for the use of water in the county of Dauphin, with my objections to the same.

This bill proposes (inter alia) to authorize James Freeland to use surplus water out of the Clark's Ferry dam for the use of saw mill or other purposes, but not to interfere with the navigation of said dam.

The Commonwealth having long since sold all her canals and dams, I think she cannot, without violating the obligation of her contract, grant to other parties the surplus water of the dams, which are already held by the purchasers from her.

I have, therefore, withheld my signature from this bill. A. G. CURTIN.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented the following message, which was read, viz:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, January 8, 1867. }

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

GENTLEMEN—I herewith return to the House of Representatives, in which it originated, bill No. 1063, entitled An act to incorporate the Mount Union manufacturing company, with my objections to the same.

The fourth section of this bill provides that the burgess and town council of the borough of Mount Union and other corporations are authorized to subscribe to the capital stock of the Mount Union manufacturing company.

This section is in direct conflict with the seventh section of the eleventh article of the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

As I cannot, therefore, approve or sign this bill, it is unnecessary to refer to other very objectionable features which it contains.

A. G. CURTIN.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented the following message, which was read, viz:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, January 8, 1867. }

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

GENTLEMEN—I have approved and signed the following acts of the General Assembly, to wit:

On the 3d instant: An act to pay the retiring officers of the Senate and House of Representatives.

An act relating to bounty taxes in Bradford county, legalizing the action of the burgess and town council in Troy borough relative to bounties, and to require the payment of the same.

On the 4th instant: An act to repeal a portion of an act entitled An act to prohibit the issuing of licenses within certain boroughs in the counties of Armstrong, Potter, Indiana and Perry, or within two miles of the same, in the counties in which such boroughs are located.

A. G. CURTIN.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented the following message, which was read, viz:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, January 8, 1867. }

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

GENTLEMEN—I herewith return to the House of Representatives, in which it originated, bill No. 1014, entitled An act to incorporate the national trust company of Pittsburg, with my objections to the same.

The 25th section of the 1st article of the Constitution declares that hereafter no corporate body shall be created, renewed or extended, with banking or discounting privileges, without six months' previous notice of the intended application in such manner as shall be provided by law, and the 2d section of the act of May 1st, 1851, directs the manner in which the notice shall be given.

This bill confers banking and discounting privileges, and as no notice of the application was given, is clearly unconstitutional.

I have, therefore, withheld my signature from this bill. A. G. CURTIN.

In accordance with the rule, the further consideration of the veto messages was deferred until to-morrow.

SPEAKER'S TABLE.

The SPEAKER presented to the House and laid upon the table, the annual report of the State Librarian.

Mr. STUMBAUGH, Mr. Speaker, I regret, at this early stage of the session, to feel constrained to bring to the notice of this House the fact that there are current reports, seemingly in the mouth of everybody, and charges made in the newspapers of the day, by which it is attempted to fasten upon this House and upon the Senate—upon this Legislature—the charge that there are corrupting influences being used for the purpose of selecting certain persons for the United States Senate.

I believe that it must be apparent to every member of this House, that such imputations cast upon members of this body are derogatory to the character of the Legislature. I believe it to be my duty and the duty of all the members of this House to protect themselves against such imputations, and to vindicate their honor. I therefore offer the following resolution:

WHEREAS, It has been currently reported, for some time past, and charged in the public newspapers of the day, that improper influences have been used to secure the election of various persons for the office of United States Senators;

And whereas, Such charges, if unfounded, are derogatory to the character of the Legislature and should be disproved; or, if true, should be at once ascertained in order that the guilty parties may be brought to justice and punished; therefore,

Resolved, if the Senate concur, That a joint committee of investigation, consisting of three members of each House, be appointed, whose duty it shall be to examine into the truth of such reports and charges, and report to each House the result of their investigations, and that such committee shall have power to send for persons and papers.

The resolution was read a second time and agreed to.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I desire to amend the preamble so as to make it a little broader. I wish to authorize the committee to inquire into the charges of bribery and corruption in other matters.

The preamble, as thus amended, was agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows:

No. 4, an act to establish a ferry over the Allegheny river at or near the mouth of Big Scrubgrass, in Venango county.

No. 5, an act to define the time and regulate the manner of electing Senators to represent this State in the Senate of the United States.

No. 7, joint resolutions instructing our Senators and Representatives in Congress on the tariff.

No. 8, a further supplement to an act entitled An act relating to corporations for mechanical, manufacturing, mining and quarrying purposes, approved the 18th day of July, 1866, extending the provisions of said act, and the several supplements thereto, to any association formed for the publication and sale of periodicals, newspapers, school books, works of science or art, and current or standard literature.

No. 9, an act to incorporate the Littlestown Savings Institution.

He also presented the following extract from the Journal:

"IN SENATE, January 3, 1867.

Resolved, That (if the House concur) so much of the Governor's message as refers to the maintenance of such of our soldiers as are in poverty and have been so named as to prevent them from securing a livelihood, be referred to a joint committee of three from each House, whose duty it shall be to report by bill otherwise, to carry into effect the recommendation of His Excellency, the Governor.

Ordered, That Messrs. WHITE, FISHER and M'CANLESS be the committee on the part of the Senate, and that the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly."

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House concur.

The motion was agreed to.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution:

WHEREAS, a large amount of property has, by legal enactment, been exempt from taxation, from time to time, in the city of Philadelphia;

And whereas, Certain of said properties are held by corporate stock companies, which declare dividends on the profits arising from said property; and the exemption of the same from taxation being a serious injustice to a large majority of the tax-payers; therefore,

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine and report to this House the location and value of property exempt from taxation in the city of Philadelphia, specifying those used for religious, charitable and beneficent purposes, and those which pay dividends on stock held in the same.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

Resolved, That the Speaker and members of the House and Senate (if the Senate concur) will, at 12 o'clock, Thursday, the 10th instaut, meet in convention for the purpose of opening and publishing the votes for Governor, in pursuance of the constitutional laws of this Commonwealth.

The resolution was then read a second time, considered and adopted.

The SPEAKER then proceeded to clear the table:

Senate bill, No. 5, entitled An act providing for the election of United States Senator, in conformity with the national act of Congress, was Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary General, when appointed.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement in relation to that bill.

Leave was granted.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, the joint committee of the House and Senate, to whom was referred the resolution originating in the Senate to ascertain the time when a United States Senator shall be elected, after consultation, unanimously approved of this bill. The chairman of the Senate committee was directed to report to the Senate, as was also the chairman of the House committee directed to report to the House.

I have, until now, had no opportunity to report. This bill received the unanimous approbation of that committee of ten, and supposing there is no objection to it I move that the rules be suspended, and that the House proceed to the consideration of the bill.

The bill was then read a second time as follows:

AN ACT to define the time and regulate the manner of electing Senators to represent this State in the Senate of the United States.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That each house of the Legislature shall appoint one teller, and nominate at least one person to fill the office of Senator to represent this State in the Senate of the United States, and at least ten days previous to the joint meeting hereinafter mentioned, communicate to the other house the names of the persons so appointed and nominated.

Sec. 2. At the hour of 11 A. M. on the second Tuesday after the meeting and organization of the Legislature which shall be chosen next preceding the expiration of the time for which any Senator was elected to represent this State in Congress, to wit: On the third Tuesday of January, if the Legislature shall have organized previous to the second Tuesday, but if not so organized, then on the second Tuesday after the organization thereof, not counting the day on which the Legislature was organized, each house shall openly by a viva voce vote of each member present name one person for Senator in Congress from this State, and the name of the person so voted for, who shall have a majority of the whole number of votes cast in each House, shall be entered on the Journal of each House by the Clerk thereof; but if either House shall fail to give such majority to any person on said day, that fact shall be entered on the Journal. At twelve o'clock, meridian, of the day following that on which proceedings are required to take place as aforesaid, the members of the two Houses shall convene in joint assembly, and the Journal of each House shall then be read, and the same person shall have received a majority of all the votes in each House, such person shall be declared duly elected Senator to represent this State in the Congress of the United States; but if the same person shall not have received a majority of the votes in each House, or if either House shall have failed to take proceedings as required by this act, the joint assembly shall then proceed to choose by a viva voce vote of each member present, a person for the purpose aforesaid, and the person having a majority of all the votes of the said joint assembly, a majority of all the members elected to both Houses being present and voting, shall be declared duly elected; and in case no person shall receive such majority on the first day, the joint assembly shall meet at twelve o'clock, meridian, of each succeeding day during the session of the Legislature, and take at least one vote until a Senator shall be elected.

Sec. 3. Whenever, on the meeting of the Legislature, a vacancy shall exist in the representation of this State in the Senate of the United States, the Legislature shall proceed, on the second Tuesday after the commencement and organization of its session, to elect a person to fill such vacancy, in the manner hereinbefore provided, for the election of a Senator for a full term, and if a vacancy shall happen during the session of the Legislature, then on the second Tuesday after the Legislature shall have notice of such vacancy.

Sec. 4. When the election shall be closed, as aforesaid, the president of the convention shall announce the person who shall have received a majority of the votes at the election, and duly elected a Senator to represent this State in the Senate of the United States, and he shall, in the presence of the members of both Houses, sign four several certificates of the election, assisted by the tellers, one of which certificates shall be transmitted by the president of the convention to the Governor of this Commonwealth, one to the person so elected, and the remaining two shall be preserved among the records, and entered at length on the Journals of each House.

Sec. 5. It shall be the duty of the Governor, immediately after receiving the certificate of the election of any Senator, to certify his election under the seal of the State, which certificate shall be countersigned by the Secretary of State.

The bill

Passed finally.

Senate bill No. 7, entitled Joint resolutions instructing our Senators and Representatives in Congress on the tariff, was Referred to the Committee on Federal Relations, when appointed.

Senate bill No. 4, entitled An act to establish a ferry over the Allegheny river at or near the mouth of Big Scrubbers, in Venango county, was Referred to the Committee on the Local Judiciary, when appointed.

Mr. WHANN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended, and that the House proceed to the consideration of that bill.

Agreed to.

On motion of Mr. WHANN, the bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Senate bill No. 8, entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act relating to corporations for mechanical, manufacturing, mining and quarrying purposes, approved the 18th of July, 1863, extending the provisions of said act and the several supplements thereto, to any association formed for the publication and sale of periodicals, newspapers, school books, books of science or art and current or standard literature, was Referred to the Committee on Mining and Manufactures, when appointed.

Senate bill No. 9, entitled An act to incorporate the Littlestown Saving Institution, was Referred to the Committee on Banks, when appointed.

Mr. HETZEL. Mr. Speaker, I desire to move that the House proceed to the consideration of that bill.

The motion was agreed to.

The bill was read the first time, and

On motion of Mr. HETZEL, the rules were suspended, the bill read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. Speaker, I now move that this House proceed to the nomination of candidates for State Treasurer.

Agreed to.

Mr. LEE. I nominate W. H. Kemble, of Philadelphia.

Mr. MEYERS. I nominate John F. Spangler, of York.

Mr. QUAY. I nominate Gen. W. W. Irwin.

Mr. QUIGLEY. I nominate Lewis Snell, of Philadelphia.

Mr. KOON. I nominate Michael Resp.

Mr. JOSEPHS. I nominate W. V. McGrath.

Mr. MECHLING. I move that the nominations close.

The motion was agreed to.

TERMS OF THE DAILY RECORD.

THE DAILY RECORD will be furnished to Members of the Legislature and others at the following rates:

Single copy for the session.....$ 2 00

Members desiring extra copies of the Record, will please leave their names and the number of copies wanted at the publication office. GEO. BEGNER.

The Chair appointed as teller of the election Mr. W. W. WATT, of Philadelphia.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That as all the legislative power of the National Government is used in Congress, it is the imperative duty of that body to enact such laws, and to provide for the establishment of such governments in the States lately in rebellion as will secure to every loyal person therein full and complete protection to life, liberty, property and the enjoyment of equal political rights, to the end that the foundation of such governments may be fixed on principles of eternal justice, which will endure for all time.

Resolved, That the Clerk of this House be requested to forward a copy of the above resolution to each of the Senators in Congress, and Members of the House from the State.

The first resolution was read a second time.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I presume this resolution will elicit some discussion, though from the position taken by the Chicago Times, and from the nomination of a colored man for office by our Democratic friends in the Third ward of the city of Boston, I might perhaps suppose it would meet with the unanimous approbation of this House. Yet, as I heard some voice say no to the second reading it is possible that it will meet with an opposition, and I therefore move that the further consideration of this resolution be postponed until Wednesday evening of next week, and that this House hold a special session for its consideration.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I presume that this discussion is not in order, but I think I may say that this side of the House is ready to vote on the resolution now, if the gentlemen on the other side are willing to let us. I do not care about discussing it.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I hope it will go to a vote.

Mr. WADDELL. I hope the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] will withdraw his motion to postpone. I presume the whole House is as ready to vote upon this question as the gentlemen upon the other side. There is no desire on our side to discuss it. Everybody's mind is made up on the subject. If we were to discuss this resolution for a week it would not change a single vote or a single vote. I believe these gentlemen can put themselves on the record this afternoon as well as a week hence.

Mr. MANN. I withdraw my motion to postpone.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I ask for the reading of the resolution again.

The resolution was again read.
Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I will ask the gentleman from Potter to say, so we can vote understandingly, whether he means to include—when he says in his resolution that equal political rights should be conferred upon all persons—whether he means to include negroes.

Mr. MANN. I endeavored to use the good old fashioned English language in its proper meaning. I think I have done so. I think the resolution speaks for itself and I do not intend to interpret it for anybody.

I say for myself, and for nobody else, that I am willing to vote to convey to the colored man of the Southern States and of the State of Pennsylvania, when I have the opportunity, the same rights which I enjoy myself.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I did not think I was making an unreasonable request of the gentleman who offered this resolution when I asked him to explain what he meant by some of the terms; and I trust he will do so, that we may know just what we are voting for.

I know that there has been considerable double dealing heretofore; one thing has been said and another meant, and I trust that that will not be the case any longer. If the gentleman wants an expression from this House, it is of course to his interest, and the interest of his party, that it shall be no equivocal expression. Let us know what we say in order that what we say may have some meaning. I ask the gentleman to say, or decline positively to say, whether he means, by this resolution, to give suffrage to the negroes of the Southern States.

On agreeing to the resolution,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BOYLE and Mr. M'CREARY, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Cameron, Chadwick, Colville, Davis, Day, De Haven, Donohue, Egan, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Mann, Mechling, Meily, Pennyacker, Peters, Pillow, Quay, Roath, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Wait, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wizard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speakers—57.

NAYS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Deise, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Hetzel, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Rouch, Satterthwait, Tharp and Westbrook—32.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The second resolution was then read and adopted.

Mr. KINNEY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make a short statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. KINNEY. Mr. Speaker, the business portion of the borough of Towanda, in the county of Bradford, ask the Legislature to pass an act which will enable them to elect an additional justice of the peace at the regular borough election, which takes place on the 18th of this month. To gratify them in their wishes I am obliged to ask a suspension of the rules.

Leave was granted.

Mr. KINNEY. Mr. Speaker, I read in my place and present to the Chair a bill entitled An act authorizing an additional justice of the peace in the borough of Towanda, in the county of Bradford.

The bill was read the first time.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inquire of the gentleman from Bradford [Mr. KINNEY] how many justices of the peace there are in that borough.

Mr. KINNEY. I believe there are two, sir.

Mr. MEYERS. I see by the sixth article of the seventh section of the Constitution of the State of Pennsylvania, it is provided that no township, ward or borough shall elect more than two justices of the peace or aldermen, without the consent of the majority of the qualified electors of that borough. It seems to me that this is an interference on the part of the State, without some evidence that a majority of the electors of that borough have given their consent.

Mr. KINNEY. The people of that borough were so very unanimous in soliciting this, that, perhaps, they did not consider it necessary to comply with that provision. If it is necessary, why, of course, the bill will have to be withdrawn.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, this is an expressed constitutional prohibition, and therefore, the act, if passed, can have no binding effect on anybody.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, why is not that bill in order? The people of that borough will decide the question when it comes up whether they will have it or not. The Constitution of the State of Pennsylvania does not say that a man may not be nominated for an office. If the people of a borough determine that they shall have another magistrate, they do that by their votes. I think it is perfectly proper that they shall have the privilege of saying so.

Mr. KINNEY. I desire to offer an amendment, so as to provide that the question shall be submitted at the same time to the people. The bill, as amended,

Passed finally.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make a statement.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to be discourteous, but hereafter I must object to any suspension of the rules. I have some bills I wish to get through as much as anybody else, but the business is so confused by this manner of proceeding that they cannot be gotten before the House in their proper order. I desire my bills to go before committees in a proper way. There are bills brought in here that are of no more consequence than bills that are lying back to be road in place. Some person wants to erect a turnpike gate or something of that kind.

After this, I must object to the rules being suspended unless a very satisfactory reason is given.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, at the last session of the Legislature an act in relation to the fees of jurors and witnesses was passed for several counties of this Commonwealth, among which was the county of Franklin. The fees for witnesses have been discovered to be oppressive to suitors; our court meets on the 21st of January, and while I do not desire to take up the time of the House by introducing bills in an improper way, yet, as this is an act that affects no one but the people of Franklin county, I ask that the rules be suspended, that I may read in place and present to the Chair this bill.

Leave was granted.

The bill, entitled A supplement to an act increasing the fees of jurors and witnesses in and for the counties of Armstrong, Franklin and Westmoreland, approved March 27, 1866, was then,

On motion of Mr. STUMBAUGH, read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Mr. ADAIRE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to read in place and present to the Chair a bill asking for the appointment of an additional notary public in the city of Philadelphia. It is something in which nobody can be interested but myself and the party wishing the appointment.

Mr. M'CREARY. I object.

On granting leave a division was called for when, thirty-six voting for and twenty-two against it, it was not agreed to.

The bill then was, at the request of Mr. ADAIRE,

Laid on the table.

Mr. JOSEPHS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

On a division the motion was lost.

Mr. HOFFMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House now proceed to the consideration of the Senate resolution appointing a joint committee to receive contracts for publishing a Daily Record.

The motion was agreed to.

The Clerk read the resolution, with the amendment offered by Mr. MEYERS, as follows:

Resolved, That a committee of three members be appointed from the Senate, to act in conjunction with a similar committee of the House of Representatives (if the House of Representatives shall appoint such a committee), to receive proposals and contract for the publication of a Daily Record.

The amendment reads as follows:

Resolved, That if the Senate consent, that said committee appointed to make said contract, are required to stipulate that the said Record shall be laid daily (when the House and Senate are respectively in session) on the desk of each Representative and Senator, and said Record to contain inter alia the proceedings of such preceding session, not more remote than the third session prior to the day when so laid on the desk, and that no money shall be drawn from the State Treasury for the contract price, or any part thereof, of said stipulation if not complied with; that each member of the House and each Senator shall be entitled to thirty-five copies of said Record.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I believe there is no amendment pending to the amendment. I wish to offer the following as a substitute for the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS].

The amendment was read by the Clerk as follows:

To strike out the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton and add the following:

"And that the committee be requested to make said contract with such restrictions that the publisher thereof be required to publish the proceedings daily and not more remote than the third session prior to the day; that the number of copies furnished to each member be increased to not less than thirty, and to impose such restrictions as will compel the publisher of the same to comply with his contract punctually."

Mr. MEYERS. Probably the intention of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] was to meet the same thing that I had in view when I offered my amendment; but it is not so explicit. It leaves it a question with the party who makes the contract. If he is bound to publish all the proceedings up to the third day prior to the day on which the Record is laid on our tables, there can certainly be no objection. But the amendment is indefinite and subject to misunderstanding and misinterpretation. I therefore ask that this House vote it down. I have spoken to several gentlemen on the floor, and they have agreed with me on my amendment.

Mr. ALLEN. If I am not mistaken, the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] himself agreed that the number of these Records should be thirty-five at least. I believe my amendment to that effect was accepted by the gentleman from Northampton.

Mr. MEYERS. Yes, the amendment was accepted.

Mr. ALLEN. It was agreed upon. I don't wish it to be changed, but I think it should be more, if anything. It is a document that should be sent to our constituents, and I think the number should be increased rather than diminished.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, the object of the amendment I have offered to the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS], was simply to make it more plain and comprehensive than the amendment offered by himself. I do not understand his amendment at all. The amendment that I offered was intended to be so comprehensive that the committee will understand it and act accordingly. I submitted it to several gentlemen and they all agreed with me that it was proper. If the gentleman will point out any of the particular parts to which he objects, probably it can be made to suit him.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I do not now definitely recollect the wording of his amendment, but it is to this effect: That the party who makes the contract to print and publish the Record, shall print it daily, and that it shall contain the proceedings of each session not more than three sessions prior to that day. What day? Shall he make and print a daily Record? True, but that Record may contain proceedings of a session two weeks before that time. While the amendment which I offered fixes that he shall lay on the table a daily Record, and when he publishes the table that Record shall contain all the proceedings up to the day of the session not more remote than the third session previous to the day on which the Record is laid on the table. Certainly there is some doubt and equivocation in the language of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS].

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, the amendment I offered seems to me very comprehensive, and the objection made by the gentleman from Warren [Mr. ALLEN] will not hold. This amendment says "not less than thirty copies," and leaves it at the discretion of the committee to make it as many copies as they please. I think it covers the ground and makes it more plain than the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton [Mr.

MEYERS], with such restrictions that the publisher thereof will be required to publish the proceedings daily, and not more remote than the third session prior to the day.

Mr. MEYERS. What day?

Mr. DAVIS. The day of the proceedings published. Then it goes on to say that the number of copies furnished to each member be increased to not less than thirty leaving it discretionary with the committee to make it as many more as they please. Now, if we make it thirty-five, and the committee desire to make it fifty, which, as an individual, I am in favor of, they could not do it. The object of this amendment is simply to fix the minimum, and to impose such restrictions as will compel the publisher to comply with his contract punctually. I think of the objection of the gentleman from Warren [Mr. ALLEN] that, if he reflects for a moment, he will see that an amendment in this way makes it discretionary with the committee, that they can increase the number, but cannot make it less than thirty.

Mr. ALLEN. I will say to the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] that after meditation, I have still stronger objections, on the ground that he has given to the committee entire authority to decide how many copies shall be issued. I consider that legitimately the business of the House, and members by their votes should decide what number shall be furnished to them. I think that very reason should satisfy the members of this House that this amendment is not proper. He should say how many copies must be issued, and the House ought to decide it.

Mr. DAVIS. One word of explanation. After the committee have made a report to the House, then will be the proper time for the House to increase or diminish the number of copies.

Mr. ALLEN. It may as well be done now as at any other time.

Mr. DAVIS. My idea, which I believe to be the correct one, would be to leave it entirely with the committee to arrange about the number of copies, and if they give us too many we can cut them down.

Mr. MANN. I suggest to the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] that he make the day more explicit. His amendment says not more remote than three days from the day. If he will say that the day upon which the Record is laid on our tables I will vote for his amendment. I do think the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS], as it stands, is the more favorable. If the gentleman from Philadelphia will accept such an amendment as this, I think it ought to be agreed to by a majority.

Mr. DAVIS. One word more of explanation—not to interrupt the gentleman's argument. It is not always the publisher's fault that the Record is not laid on our tables.—I have just been informed that the Records, of which two numbers have been issued, have been up here since we adjourned, and they are not yet laid on our tables. It is the duty of the House to make its officers do this.—After the Records are furnished to the House, the publisher has discharged his duty, and the Record is no longer with him.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I understand the phrase to be a mere expression. I understand that when the publisher brings the Record to this House that he has completed his contract. He has then laid them on the table. One word will make it acceptable to me, and that is "not more remote than three days from the day on which said Record is laid on the table." If the gentleman will agree to that I am willing to vote for his amendment. This amendment to the resolution will then read, "and that the committee be requested to make such contract with such restrictions that the publisher shall be required to publish the proceedings daily, and more than the third session prior to the day that the Record is furnished to the House." Also, that the number of copies furnished to each member be increased to not less than thirty copies, and to impose such restrictions as will compel the publisher of the same to comply with his contract punctually.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, that is just exactly as indefinite as the other. It is couched in precisely the same terms—only the "period" instead of the "day." And the time he shall deliver to the House ("not more remote than three days.") The argument of the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] will hold good if that time be a month back. It is the very worst thing in the world to get a lot of lawyers to fix up anything like this. You had better get some plain, common sense man to come in and make a thing intelligible. The matter is just as ambiguous as it was before and subject to precisely the same objection.

The question on the amendment to the amendment was then put by the SPEAKER and

Not agreed to.

The question then recurring on the amendment of Mr. MEYERS,

Mr. DAVIS called for the reading of the same.

It was read by the Clerk, and

Agreed to.

The motion, as amended, was then

Agreed to.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following: To add, at the end of the resolution, "that said committee shall stipulate with the contracting party or parties, that all reports, reports and other documents directed to be published in the Record, shall be printed once only therein." The explanation I give is simply this: In looking over the proceedings in the Record of last year I discovered that the reports of committees were published in the House proceedings and published in the Senate proceedings from the same type set by the compositors, consequently there was only the additional labor of printing them. I do not see the necessity of that. All that is required, when any report has been ordered by the House to be published, if that report comes from the Senate to the House, is to refer to the page on which it is published in the House proceedings, and if it went from the House to the Senate, to refer to the page in the Senate proceedings. I do not think it right to pay such extravagant prices for printing, and then have to pay double for it.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I do not know that I understand what the gentleman is aiming at. Does he mean that if a bill which came from the Senate and was discussed there is brought before the House and discussed here, that the discussions in both Houses shall not be printed?

Mr. MEYERS. No, sir. The amendments refer to messages, reports and documents which come before the House and the Senate and require the action of both bodies. For example: The Governor's message is published in the proceedings of both Houses; reports from joint committees are published in the House and in the Senate proceedings.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I have authority to say that there is nothing published in the Record twice unless specially ordered. Does the gentleman offer his amendment here to prevent the Senate publishing the message in their proceedings, if we should publish it here? Is not the message read in each House, and does it not become a part of the proceedings of each House? Now, I believe the gentleman would not purposely make any mis-statement, but I believe I am safe in saying that no message or document is published in the proceedings of both Houses unless it has become a part of the proceedings of those Houses, or especially ordered by one of them. I have no objection, if a majority of this House wishes, to have other parties print the Record than those that have been printing it heretofore. I care not whether it is printed in Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Harrisburg, or elsewhere; I care not who is employed to do it, but I want justice done to those who have printed our documents in the past, and no misrepresentations made that will do an injustice to the men who labored to facilitate the business of the Legislature, and to publish a Record according to contract.

The amendment offered by the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS] is, in my opinion, enough; the House has voted on it, and instructed its committee how to do it. The gentleman, flushed with success, now comes here and makes a statement he is not guaranteed in making. He wishes another amendment still more obnoxious to this side of the House.

The question recurring, Will the House agree to the amendment? a division was taken, when forty-four voted for and forty-three against the amendment.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. BOYLE. I am sorry that the gentleman from Philadelphia found it necessary to give this question a partisan aspect. From what I have heard of it I do not think it was intended that it should take such a direction, but the amendment was offered from an honest desire on the part of the gentleman who presented it, and seconded by some gentlemen on that side of the House, to have a Record of some value of some value to us. Now, I can say, sir, that the Record of last winter was a perfect abortion, and of no account to the House or anybody else. Remarks made by one gentleman were as liable to be credited to another as to the person who made them.

In more than one instance remarks made by one gentleman were set down as having been made by another. More than that, sir, everybody who was here last winter knows very well that sometimes, not only days but weeks, would elapse before one would have the proceedings of the House before us in the Record. Being a practical printer, I profess to know something of printing myself, and I know there is no necessity at all for this delay. I know the facilities afforded for reporting and printing now-a-days, are amply sufficient to give a Record at the time desired, and a proper kind of a Record, and I believe this House is willing to pay for such a Record.

But as to the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton. He proposes to provide that messages, reports, bills or documents of any kind that are printed in the Record shall be printed there only once. I ask any gentleman here to give any reason, having even the shadow of a substance about him, that will justify such a restriction to be printed more than once. What reason is there why a report, or a bill, or a message, or anything else should be printed in more than one number of the Record? When we have done that we have certainly done enough. The gentleman from Philadelphia granted more than I claim. I do not remember to have seen the Governor's message printed more than once in the Record. But he says that it will be sought to be remedied, other than as regards the Governor's message, does not exist. If it does not the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton will do no harm. If the practice does not now prevail of printing bills and other documents more than once in the Record, then the amendment to this resolution providing that they shall not be published more than once, will do no harm. Is there anything that authorizes these gentlemen to appeal to the gentlemen on that part of the House to stand by their party—to stand by one who works faithfully for that side of the House? There is no gentleman on this side of the House who has assailed the publisher of the Record. There is no gentleman here who has made a personal attack on him. There is no gentleman here who wants to make this a party matter, but we do want a proper Record, and if we don't get a proper one I don't want any. I trust this House will not authorize the publication of the same documents time and again in this Record, as it certainly will do tacitly if it rejects this amendment. Let the party who prints this Record publish once, and only once, matters that are ordered for publication. And when he has done that it is enough.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I am very sorry the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] has given this question a party character by his remarks. For myself, I am anxious that we shall have such a Record as shall be creditable to the Legislature, without reference to parties or party men. And I hope, notwithstanding the unfortunate remarks of the gentleman from Fayette, that the majority of this House will so continue to do. I conceive nothing is more likely to drive us off than this attack on the publisher of the Record—than this attack made on the Record itself. I know the Record of last year was not such a Record as I hope we shall have this year. I think we ought to improve on this matter. I think the amendment already adopted is calculated to make some improvement. Notwithstanding the defects in the Record of last year, it was the most valuable document that this House sent out to the people. That is the unanimous verdict of the people of the district which I represent, that it is the most valuable document we sent to them. It is for this reason I appeal to the members of this House to give it a calm, proper and unbiased consideration, so that we may make it a still better Record than that of last year. It was the amendment offered by the gentleman from Northampton (Mr. MEYERS) is intended to improve this Record, and I appeal to my party friends to support this amendment. There is nothing in it that ought to be objectionable. It simply says that the Governor's message, and other documents, shall not be printed twice. I do not know, myself, that it was done. I was not aware that it was done, or whether it is or not, there is no harm in saying it shall not be done in the present or future Records. I ask gentlemen if they wish to go on record as advocating that there shall be paid eleven dollars per page for the same thing twice over. That is all. No harm can be done to any one. Pay the publisher of this Record a fair price for all he does—give him all it is worth according to his contract. Make an open square contract with him, such as would be made with any one else, to publish our proceedings correctly, promptly and only once. That is all this amendment calls for. I hope the amendment will be adopted.

Mr. MARKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I move this House now adjourn.

Mr. DAVIS. Will the gentleman withdraw his motion for a moment?

Mr. DAVIS. I have nothing further to say on this subject. I am perfectly satisfied that the House shall make any restrictions on the Record, and will withdraw the call for the yeas and noes, as it has not been ordered by the Speaker. So far as I am concerned, I am not afraid of the record, but I will relieve any other gentleman of what may be an embarrassment.

The question recurring, Will the House agree to the amendment? It was agreed to.

The resolution, as amended, was agreed to. Mr. MARKLEY, Mr. Speaker, I now resign my motion.

The motion to adjourn being agreed to, the SPEAKER declared this House adjourned until to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

SENATE.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 8, 1867.

The Senate met and called to order at 3 o'clock, P. M., by the SPEAKER.

On motion of Mr. RANDALL, the reading of the Journal of Thursday last was dispensed with.

Mr. WHITE said he desired, at this time, to make a statement affecting this body, which he thought would be in order.

The SPEAKER decided that it would not be in order unless unanimous consent was given.

The Senate refused to give its unanimous consent.

RULES OF THE SENATE.

The SPEAKER, in giving notice that he should insist upon a strict observance of the rules of the Senate, said:

I intend to enforce the rules alike with all Senators, in addressing the Chair, must address the Chair from their seats. These rules must be enforced; they are necessary for the order of the Senate, and they must be maintained. At the same time I desire to say to the Sergeant-at-Arms and his assistants that I shall expect the strict enforcement of the twenty-fifth rule. For your benefit, I will read it:

XXV. No person shall be admitted within the bar of the Senate during its sessions, except the members and officers of the two branches of the Legislature, the Governor, Heads of Departments, ex-members of the Legislature and stenographers, who may desire to report proceedings of the Senate for publication, under the direction of the Speaker; nor shall any person be admitted within the lobby of the Senate, except such as shall be invited by a member of the Senate. No person or persons shall be permitted to occupy the seats of Senators, or pass across the floor of the Senate, when the Senate is in session, nor shall any person or persons, at any time, be permitted to enter the room of the Transcribing Clerks, or the recess behind the chair of the Speaker, except the members of the General Assembly.

You will thus perceive that a Senator has no right to bring any person inside the lobby. So long as this is a rule on the statute book it must be observed. I shall exercise the privileges of a later rule, and hold any officer responsible for this rule, unless abrogated by yourselves.

STANDING COMMITTEES.

The SPEAKER announced the following standing committees:

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATE LIBRARIAN.

The SPEAKER laid before the Senate the annual report of the State Librarian.

It reads as follows:

To the Legislature of Pennsylvania:
I have the honor to transmit herewith a statement of the money received and expended during the year 1866, with a list of books purchased for and presented to the State Library within the same year.

It will be seen by the account settled by the Auditor General that on December 12, 1866, there remained of the library fund an undepended sum of six hundred and one dollar and twenty-seven cents. Since the settlement of the account, however, this sum has been absorbed in the settlement of outstanding claims; and there yet remains unpaid bills, which, with the daily accruing ordinary expenses of the library, will make it necessary to ask for a special appropriation to meet this excess of expenditure.

At the annual report it was announced that the library would be removed from the old to the new room before the meeting of the present Legislature. Arrangements were made during the summer to accelerate this removal, but as the work necessary to the construction of the new library rooms progressed it was discovered that its completion would be prolonged far beyond the time fixed for the removal, so that it became a matter of compulsion to rearrange and recase the books in the old room for immediate use at the convening of the Legislature. When completed, the new library room will be one of the largest and most commodious in the country—more than ample in its dimensions for all present uses, capable of accommodating a large increase, and so constructed as at any time to admit the erection of alcoves, which, in time, will accommodate nearly double the number of books the surface cases are calculated to hold. By this arrangement the new room assigned to the library will be capable, it is asserted by architects, to accommodate its increase for the next half century.

I am gratified in being able to announce that the system of exchange has been thoroughly restored with all the States and Territories forming one Union, from each of which, during the last year, the library has received official documents.

The following papers accompany this report:

A—Account of moneys received and expended for the use of the State Library during the year 1866.

B—A catalogue of books received in the State Library during the year 1866.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WIEN FORNEY,

State Librarian.

The accompanying documents are in the possession of the House of Representatives.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION OF HARRISBURG.

The SPEAKER laid before the Senate a communication from Brainerd Kay, secretary of the Ministerial Association of Harrisburg, which was read as follows:

44 BRADY HOUSE,

HARRISBURG, January 7, 1867.

Hon. L. W. Hall, Speaker of the Senate:

DEAR SIR—Your note of January 1st, inviting the clergy of this city to open the sessions of the Senate with prayer during the winter, was laid before the Ministerial Association this morning. It was the general conviction that you would be served more efficiently and satisfactorily by some one person than by all the ministers in rotation.

The association would suggest, respectfully, Rev. John W. Davis, a Presbyterian minister, residing in South street below Third. Mr. Davis is otherwise disengaged, and would no doubt be pleased with the appointment.

The association would not be understood as declining altogether, and if this arrangement would not be acceptable we would be pleased if you would inform us of the fact. Any communication on the subject may be addressed to Rev. John F. Chaplain, president of the association, No. 25, South Third street.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

BRAINERD KAY,

Secretary Association.

Laid on the table.

No. 2, an act to authorize the appointment of an additional notary public for the county of Lehigh.

With information that the House of Representatives has passed the same without amendments.

He also presented the following extract from the Journal of the House of Representatives :

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

January 8, 1867.

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the Governor be requested to return to the House of Representatives, in which it originated, House Bill No. 1822, of the session of 1866, entitled an act relative to Bradford township, Butler county.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Mr. DAVIS asked and obtained leave of absence for Mr. SCHALL for a few days from to-day.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE SECRETARY OF THE COMMONWEALTH.

The SPEAKER laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Commonwealth, which was read as follows :

STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA,
OFFICE OF THE SECT'Y OF THE COM'W,
HARRISBURG, January 2, 1867.

To Hon. Lewis W. Hall, Speaker of the Senate :

Sir—Be pleased to inform the Senate that on the first day of May, A. D. 1866, I appointed William W. Hays, of the county of Dauphin, to be Deputy Secretary of the Commonwealth, in room of Colonel William H. Armstrong, resigned, which appointment was duly approved by the Governor.

I have the honor to be your obedient servant.
ELI SLIFER,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary General.

INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

Mr. WHITE read in his place and presented to the Chair resolution entitled Joint resolution for the investigation of charges of bribery and corruption in connection with the election of a United States Senator, which was referred to the Committee on Vice and Immorality.

A motion was made by Mr. WHITE, that the Committee on Vice and Immorality be discharged from the further consideration of said resolution, and that the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of the same.

The resolution was read as follows :

WHEREAS, It is reported around the Capitol and elsewhere, and openly and positively charged by persons of good repute for truth and veracity, that money has been promised and offered, and other improper influences used to affect the votes of members of the Legislature in the election for United States Senator, to be held on the 15th of January;

And whereas, It is due to the name and fame of persons thus charged, as well as to the honor and public justice, that a prompt, thorough and immediate investigation be had into the charges so freely and positively made of bribery and corruption, that the guilty parties may receive their proper reward, or the charges be dismissed as false and slanderous; therefore,

Resolved, That (if the House concur) a committee of three be appointed for the purpose of investigating whether any person has, by money or other improper influence, sought to affect the election of United States Senator, and whether any member of the Legislature has received, or been promised money for his vote in the election to be held on the 15th instant, and to report the names of parties implicated; and that this committee shall have power to send for persons and papers, examine witnesses and make report at any time.

Mr. WHITE, Mr. Speaker, will you allow me to make a statement? I wish to state to you, sir, and through you to this Senate, for its information, that I am no alarmist, and that I am not moved to take an action of this kind from any mere idle rumor. I, sir, in common with every individual member of this body, am interested in its reputation. I know and feel that every other Senator here sympathizes with me in this feeling. Never before, sir, since I have been a member of this body, have I introduced a resolution of this kind, or given intimation of its introduction; nor would I do so at this time were I not possessed of information which requires me to take the action which I have. I want it understood, sir, that of my personal knowledge I know nothing; but we cannot be ignorant of the fact that rumors and charges of bribery and corruption, are scattered around everywhere. If that was all, I should not heed it. But I am informed by gentlemen of truth and veracity, by members of this body, that they know specific instances in which it has been done for the purpose of affecting the votes of members of the Legislature with reference to the election of United States Senator. Time, place and circumstances have been mentioned clearly and distinctly. In view of this fact, stated under my official responsibility as a Senator of Pennsylvania, I have offered the resolution which has been read in your hearing, and I trust this Senate will give it prompt, thorough, immediate action, and let us know whether the charges are proved; if proved, let the parties be held up to public reprobation; and more, sir, let them receive the punishment which the statute designates; if untrue, let the utterers of these charges be held up to the community as base and infamous slanderers. I trust the Senate will immediately proceed to the adoption of my motion.

The SPEAKER said that there was a rule in 1862 that required a two-thirds vote to discharge a committee—a most salutary rule—but that it was not the rule now, and that it required a bare majority to discharge the committee.

Mr. LANDON, Mr. Speaker, I suppose I can make a statement. I will confine myself to the simple question whether we shall discharge that committee. Now, sir, I think we should not discharge them for this reason: The matter that is thrown upon our hands is a grave matter: it is one that affects the whole State.

Now, Mr. Speaker, if the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE] means that he can designate time and place and circumstances, etc., all I have to say to him is this: Make your charge—make your charge, and I will vote for an investigation. I am very glad I can lay my hand upon my heart and say to all mousers, come on—so far as I am concerned. I know my own mind; I know those that I represent, and I will represent them and follow my own judgment. If any man desires to follow my track he can do so. But if the Senate will catch at every rumor and vulgar report that is emitted from an excited press, and appoint a committee to investigate, then, sir, the Senate will do more toward lowering its character than all these slanders can possibly do. Choke this matter instantler; appoint your investigating committee, hunt up these flying rumors, and drive out these vile odors that are spreading through all the avenues from here to the metropolis. Why, sir, you lower the Senate a hundred degrees. I challenge the Senator, for my part, I respect myself and the Senate. I remember that we represent the people at home; and let us not give them the idea at home that there is anything but corruption here. I say to the Senator, make your charge—give us facts, and I will vote for a committee. I have seen investigating committees before, sir, year after year, but they always ended in a poor, miserable fizzle.

Mr. Speaker, if you want a committee, I will vote for it, but not in a hurry. I am not going to endorse a proposition that has been got up here, saying that we are all corrupt. That bill must go over to its proper committee; that committee must report the bill, and so fix it and amend it that the investigating committee shall be sent out to investigate some specific thing, and not on a roving commission. Is not that right, Mr. Speaker? Put it in that shape, and you shall have my vote. I shall vote against appointing the committee unless you bring them down to specialties.

Mr. BIGHAM. Without saying anything at all on the main subject, I wish to call the attention of the Speaker to one thing, and ask him whether he will not withdraw the decision. Now, a proposition of this kind, which proposes on the face of it to create a special committee, I think was indifferently referred to a standing committee by the Speaker, and that he ought to withdraw his decision and let it come up on its own merits. I think it should not have been referred to a standing committee.

The SPEAKER. The Speaker is not responsible for the mistakes of other Senators. The Senator from Indiana read this as a bill in place, at a time when bills in place were being read. The Speaker could do nothing less than take a bill in place and refer it to some committee. If it was not a bill in place it should not have been read at that time. It was a bill in place, and was referred to the right committee. I can tell nothing about it, except that the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WITTE] read in place a joint resolution for investigating any charges of bribery and corruption. I hesitated, I confess, for a moment as to what committee to refer it to.

Mr. WHITE. I have not taken your suggestion, sir, in very good part, and in reply remark that the Senator from Indiana, when he rose in his place and read the paper now before the Senate, understood what he was saying perfectly well, and intended it should be considered as a bill in place, and is willing that it should be treated as such. Let it stand in full on its merits as a bill in place. Now, Mr. Speaker, will the Senate pause and consider for a moment what is the motion before it. There is upon your desk a preamble, specifying certain things, with a resolution for the appointment of a committee to investigate the truth of these charges. Every Senator can easily understand the purpose and object of the resolution. It has been referred by the Speaker to the Committee on Vice and Internal Affairs. We all understand what the object of the reference of a bill to a committee is. It is to see whether it should be reported for the favorable action of the Senate or not. This rule is applicable to all bills which require preliminary examination. But this bill had no features of that kind. This bill, upon its face, recites certain facts, and asks that you appoint a committee to investigate their truth or falsehood. I move, now, that the Committee on Vice and Internal Affairs be discharged; that no time be lost by this committee which you will appoint—if this bill passes—in discharging their duty. That is the question before the Senate—shall the bill pass at this time? My friend, the Senator from Bradford [Mr. LANDON], has spoken of prevailing charges, and has definitely and clearly proclaimed that he is ready for investigation.

Sir, I made no charges against the Senator from Bradford [Mr. LANDON], and I trust and hope that he is the peer of every Senator upon this floor in intelligence and integrity. I make no charges against any man; but the bill makes no charges against any man; but it recites that bold and open charges of bribery and corruption are made; and I wish it to go upon the record, as coming from me, that corruption has been offered to them for the purpose of influencing their votes for Senator. It is due to the dignity of this body—it is due to the reputation of every individual Senator, that the truth or falsehood of the charge be investigated.

You, Mr. Speaker, in delivering your inaugural address, when you assumed the constitutional duty as Speaker of this body, saw fit to indulge in encomium upon the peculiar character and deportment of this body, its purity, integrity and dignity; I trust, I hope it is pure, and I believe it is pure; but there are other persons, there are other men who would not believe so. Persons have seen fit to intrench upon the constitutional rights of members of this body, to make selections for a high office, and have offered gold to influence their votes. Is this not cause for investigation?

The Senator says I must be specific. Sir, I looked at precedents in the matter. I recollect in the case in the Lower House of Congress in 1858, where a motion was made for a committee for investigation, which was the first precedent for legislative investigation of this kind, this same question arose. It was the famous Covode investigation. On that occasion it was asked to make specific charges, giving names, times, and dates, and circumstances. By referring to the Congressional Globe you will discover this was decided not to be necessary. It was sufficient to know that there was responsibility taken—that the charges actually did exist, that the charges were actually made; and upon that statement the Congress of 1858-9 passed the resolution which appointed a committee of investigation. That has been the rule which has been followed ever since; that has been the rule which this body has followed in cases of a similar character.

Mr. Speaker, may we not here, in the Senate of Pennsylvania, whence emanate the laws governing the citizens, give the citizen the right to have his character investigated? Crimes are charged, a slander is uttered in the street against the character of the citizen; he invokes the law, goes before a jury of his countrymen; if the charge is false, character is vindicated; if the charge is true, he goes out without his character. Can we not, in the Senate of Pennsylvania, follow the same rule? I trust there will be no hesitation in this Senate to discharge the committee on this bill, that it may be passed at this time.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, I shall vote for the lowest and safest course of this matter. I shall, however, vote against discharging the committee for this reason: The other branch of this Legislature has passed resolutions of a similar character, and we are consuming time unnecessarily in the consideration of these resolutions. The House has passed their resolutions already, and as soon as the Clerk can transcribe them, they will be sent over here. I shall then vote to take them up here. We are not here yet that they have got resolutions of that kind in the other branch, I think I should vote for the immediate discharge of the committee. Look for a moment at the position in which we propose to place ourselves. The House passes resolutions for this investigation, and they come over here and go to the committee. These resolutions pass here and go to a committee, and in that way they are locked up, and may not be reached for some time. Now, sir, as I said when I took my stand here, those House resolutions will be before us soon, and we can vote on them, as they are of similar import, and thus save us more trouble. I shall, therefore, vote against discharging the committee.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, it is well said, sir, that common rumor is a common lie. But, sir, we cannot shut our eyes to what is rumored by Senators. We are not, sir, as I said when I took my stand here, those House resolutions will be before us soon, and we can vote on them, as they are of similar import, and thus save us more trouble. I shall, therefore, vote against discharging the committee.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, it is well said, sir, that common rumor is a common lie. But, sir, we cannot shut our eyes to what is rumored by Senators. We are not, sir, as I said when I took my stand here, those House resolutions will be before us soon, and we can vote on them, as they are of similar import, and thus save us more trouble. I shall, therefore, vote against discharging the committee.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, I believe the point under discussion now is on the question of discharging the committee, hence I think it improper to enter into a discussion of the merits of this question. If the allegations set forth in this preamble and resolutions have any foundation in fact, the sooner we know it the better. I, of course, have no knowledge as to the truth or falsity of these allegations. I trust, sir, that they are false. I can hardly believe that they are true. If they are true, they should be speedily ventilated; if they are false, those persons against whom these charges are brought should have a fair and complete investigation. That cannot be reached by the usual mode of referring to committees, in time for the main point in issue. That committee might waste one-half of the time of the session in investigating this matter. Here is a clear, specific charge, of what, sir? That corruption has been attempted, to influence members—upon what? Upon a specific act—the vote for United States Senator. That question will be decided next week. Now, if there is to be an investigation at all, it is important that it should be done speedily. I cannot see how the question can be reached speedily without appointing a select committee, as contemplated in the resolutions. If that is to be done, it should be done at once.

I do not believe these charges. I do not believe that any man, or the friends of any man who is a candidate for the high position of United States Senator, would resort to these base appliances; but if there be any truth in these charges, we should be probed to the very bottom, no matter on whose head it may fall. Hence, I am in favor of discharging the committee, and investigating, before this Senate and the Commonwealth, those broad charges that have been made. Now, when the Senator says a similar bill has been introduced in the House, I am willing to take his word; but it does not come here in an official form.

Mr. LOWRY. I would state to the Senator that we are officially informed of the resolution from the House is now on the Clerk's desk, having been sent over a few moments since.

Mr. FISHER. I was not aware of it, but until we have some official information, I move that we discharge the committee at once.

Mr. LOWRY. I move the question be postponed for the present, for the purpose of taking up similar resolutions that have passed the House.

The joint resolution from the House referred to was read as follows:

WHEREAS, It has been currently reported for some time past, and charged in the public newspapers of this day, that improper influences have been used to secure the election of various persons to the office of United States Senator, and the Legislature charged with bribery and corruption in other matters; And whereas, Such charges, if unfounded, are derogatory to the character of the Legislature and should be disproved, and if true, should be at once ascertained in order that the guilty parties may be brought to justice and punished; and therefore,

Resolved, That (if the Senate concur) a joint committee of investigation, consisting of three members of the House, be appointed, whose duty it shall be to examine into the truth of said reports and charges, and report to each House the result of their investigation, and that such committee shall have power to send for persons and papers.

Mr. LOWRY. I believe these resolutions are the same as those introduced here, or very similar; and it would be disrespectful to the other branch of this body, when their resolutions come here first, not to take them up. More than that, we are in danger of having no investigation at all unless this be done. We should proceed, and proceed at once, in this investigation. I would be glad to see the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE] as chairman of this committee. I hope it will fall into as able hands as his, and into the hands of men who will make a strict examination.

Mr. LOWRY moved to postpone the further consideration of the subject for the present, and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the preamble and resolutions just received from the House of Representatives on the same subject.

On the question, Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WHITE and Mr. LOWRY, and were as follows, viz.:

Yeas—Messrs. Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, Graham, Haines, Jackson, James, Landon, Lowry, M'Callister, M'Conahy, Randall, Ridgway, Seagriff, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Wallace, Walls, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—26.

Nays—Messrs. Bigham, Billingslet, Fisher, Evers, Taylor and White—6.

The question was determined in the affirmative.

The said preamble and resolution were read a second time and concurred in.

During the call,

Mr. GRAHAM said: As I am in favor of the earliest and fullest investigation into the charges here preferred, and as I believe that object can be obtained best and speediest by adopting or substituting the resolutions that have come over from the House, for those offered by the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE], I vote aye.

BILLS IN PLACE—CONTINUED.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer) read in his place and presented to the Chair bill entitled An act repealing a part of an act relating to the appointment of a county auctioneer for the county of Mercer.

Mr. GRAHAM, bill entitled An act authorizing the school directors of the borough of Sewickley to collect the balance of bounty tax in said borough.

BILLS CONSIDERED.

On motion of Mr. JACKSON, the Committee on Corporations was discharged from the further consideration of bill No. 12, entitled A supplement to the act incorporating the Sullivan land company, and authorizing said company to sell or exchange land.

The rules being dispensed with, said bill was read a second time and

passed finally.

On motion of Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence), the rule was dispensed with in case of bill No. 13, entitled An act to incorporate the New Castle water company.

Said bill was read a second time and ordered to be transcribed for a third reading.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, presented an extract from the Journal of the House of Representatives, which was read as follows, viz.:

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
JANUARY 8, 1867.

Resolved, That the Speaker and members of the House and Senate (if the Senate concur) will, at 12 o'clock, Thursday, the 10th instant, meet in convention for the purpose of opening and publishing the votes for Governor, in pursuance of the constitutional laws of this Commonwealth.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, said resolution was read a second time, considered and concurred in.

Ordered, That Mr. SHOEMAKER be the teller on the part of the Senate, and that the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth being introduced, presented a message from the Governor, in writing, which was read as follows, viz.:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, January 8, 1867. }

*To the Senate and House of Representatives
of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:*

GENTLEMEN—In the summer of 1862, after the battles on the peninsula, large numbers of sick and wounded Pennsylvania volunteers were carried to New York, where I found them in hospitals. Finding it necessary for their comfort and to facilitate their transportation to the State, I appointed Colonel C. M. Barton agent for that purpose. There were at that time some four or five thousand Pennsylvanians in and about the city of New York, and Colonel Barton gave them faithful attention, receiving supplies from the State, and friends at home, and in distributing them, and in having them transported to hospitals in the State and to their homes. For five months he was almost constantly engaged in his work, and afterwards continued to perform any duty asked of him.

He expended over one thousand dollars, which has never been paid to him, nor has he ever received any compensation.

In consequence of his not pushing his accounts, and delays in settlements, there is now no fund from which payment can be made, and I recommend that an appropriation be made for that purpose.

I need not say that the State has heretofore responded to all demands of this character promptly, and that this claim is meritorious and should be paid.

A. G. CURTIN.

Which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented the following message, which was read, viz:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, January 8, 1867. }

*To the Senate and House of Representatives
of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:*

GENTLEMEN—I have approved and signed the following acts of the General Assembly, to wit:

On the 3d instant:

An act to pay the retiring officers of the Senate and House of Representatives.

An act relating to bounty taxes in Bradford county, legalizing the action of the burgess and town council in Troy borough relative to bounties, and to require the payment of the same.

On the 4th instant:

An act to repeal a portion of an act entitled An act to prohibit the issuing of licenses within certain boroughs in the counties of Armstrong, Potter, Indiana and Perry, or within two miles of the same, in the counties in which such boroughs are located.

A. G. CURTIN.

Laid on the table.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented a message from the Governor, returning, with his objections, bill No. 798, entitled An act to incorporate the People's Savings Bank of Franklin, which was read as follows, viz:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, January 8, 1867. }

*To the Senate and House of Representatives
of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:*

GENTLEMEN—I herewith return to the Senate, in which it originated, bill No. 798, entitled An act to incorporate the People's Savings Bank of Franklin, with my objections to the same.

The twenty-fifth section of the first article of the Constitution declares that hereafter no corporate body shall be created, renewed or extended, with banking or discounting privileges, without six months' previous notice of the intended application in such manner as shall be provided by law, and the second section of the act of May 1st, 1851, directs the manner in which the notice shall be given.

This bill confers banking and discounting privileges, and as no notice of the application was given, is clearly unconstitutional.

I have, therefore, withheld my signature from the bill. A. G. CURTIN.

Laid on the table.

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the Senate proceeded to the reconsideration of the bill referred to in the foregoing message.

On the question, Shall the bill pass notwithstanding the objections of the Governor?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows:

YEAS—None.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfield, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Fisher, Glatz, Graham, Haines, Jackson, James, Landon, Lowry, M' Candless, M'Conaughey, Randall, Higley, Royer, Seaight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace, Walls, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—30.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented a message from the Governor, returning, with his objections, bill No. 971, entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act to incorporate the Kersey oil and mineral company, approved the first day of May, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, which was read as follows, viz:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, January 8, 1867. }

*To the Senate and House of Representatives
of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:*

GENTLEMEN—I herewith return to the Senate, in which it originated, bill No. 971, entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act to incorporate the Kersey oil and mineral company, approved the first day of May, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one.

The third section of the bill authorizes the president and treasurer of the company to issue bonds to an amount not exceeding seventy-five thousand dollars per mile, bearing interest at seven per cent per annum, independent of the stockholders or directors, and without any limitation as to price at which they may be sold. And the second section repeals so much of the act of incorporation of the company as requires the president and treasurer to be members of the board of directors.

Such unrestricted control over the credit and assets of the corporation cannot be justified on any principle, and I cannot, therefore, approve this bill. A. G. CURTIN.

Laid on the table.

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the Senate proceeded to the reconsideration of the bill referred to in the foregoing message.

On the question, Shall the bill pass notwithstanding the objections of the Governor?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—None.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfield, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Graham, Haines, Jackson, James, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughey, Randall, Higley, Royer, Seaight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace, Walls, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—31.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented a message from the Governor, returning, with his objections, bill No. 1590, entitled An act to incorporate the Hazleton Deposit Bank and Trust company, which was read as follows:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, January 8, 1867. }

*To the Senate and House of Representatives
of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:*

GENTLEMEN—I herewith return to the Senate, in which it originated, bill No. 1590, entitled An act to incorporate the Hazleton Deposit Bank and Trust company, with my objections to the same.

The twenty-fifth section of the first article of the Constitution declares that hereafter no corporate body shall be created, renewed, or extended, with banking or discounting privileges, without six months' previous notice of the intended application in such manner as shall be provided by law, and the second section of the act of May 1st, 1851, directs the manner in which the notice shall be given.

This bill confers banking and discounting privileges, and as no notice of the application was given, is clearly unconstitutional.

I have, therefore, withheld my signature from this bill. A. G. CURTIN.

Laid on the table.

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the Senate proceeded to the reconsideration of the bill referred to in the foregoing message.

On the question, Shall the bill pass, notwithstanding the objections of the Governor?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows:

So the question was determined in the negative.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented a message from the Governor, returning, with his objections, bill No. 1381, entitled An Act to incorporate the City Deposit Bank and Trust company of Scranton, which was read as follows:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, January 8, 1867. }

*To the Senate and House of Representatives
of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:*

On the question, Shall the bill pass notwithstanding the objections of the Governor?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows:

YEAS—None.

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Graham, Haines, James, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Searight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace, Walls, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—30.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented a message from the Governor, returning, with his objections, bill No. 1818, entitled An act to authorize James G. Brady, late a justice of the peace in South Mahoning township, Indiana county, to issue process on his dockets, which was read as follows:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, January 8, 1867.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

GENTLEMEN—I herewith return to the Senate, in which it originated, bill No. 1818, entitled An act to authorize James G. Brady, late a justice of the peace in South Mahoning township, Indiana county, to issue process on his dockets, with my objections to the same.

This bill proposes to authorize James G. Brady, late a justice of the peace, to retain his dockets and proceed to settle and conclude the unfinished business thereon, and that for purpose to issue process as if he were still a justice, during two years from the passage of this act.

The Constitution provides that justices of the peace shall be elected by the people, and therefore this bill which, in effect, appoints Mr. Brady a justice of the peace, for a limited purpose and time, is in conflict with the provisions in the Constitution above referred to.

I have, therefore, withheld my signature from this bill. A. G. CURTIN.

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the Senate proceeded to the reconsideration of the bill referred to in the foregoing message.

On the question, Shall the bill pass, notwithstanding the objections of the Governor?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows:

YEAS—Mr. White—1.

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Graham, Haines, James, Landon, M'Conaughy, Royer, Searight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace, Walls, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—26.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented a message from the Governor, returning, with his objections, bill No. 1439, entitled An act to incorporate the Miners' Deposit Bank and Trust company, which was read as follows:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, January 8, 1867.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

GENTLEMEN—I herewith return to the Senate, in which it originated, bill No. 1439, entitled An act to incorporate the Miners' Deposit Bank and Trust company, with my objections to the same.

This bill confers banking and discounting privileges, and as no notice of the application was given, is clearly unconstitutional.

I have, therefore, withheld my signature from the bill.

A. G. CURTIN.

Laid on the table.

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the Senate proceeded to the reconsideration of the bill referred to in the foregoing message.

On the question, Shall the bill pass notwithstanding the objections of the Governor?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows:

YEAS—None.

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Graham, Haines, Jackson, James, Landon, M'Conaughy, Royer, Searight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace, Walls, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—28.

So the question was determined in the negative.

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth being introduced, presented the following message, in writing, from the Governor:

STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA,
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, Jan. 2, 1867.

To the Honorable the Senate of Pennsylvania:

SENATORS—A vacancy having occurred in the office of Superintendent of Common Schools, by the resignation of Charles R. Coburn, Esq., on the first day of November, A. D. 1866, in accordance with the provisions of the act of the General Assembly of the 18th of April, 1857, separating the State and School Departments, I appointed Col. James P. Wickersham, of the county of Lancaster, to be Superintendent of Common Schools of this Commonwealth for the unexpired term of the said Charles R. Coburn, Esq., viz: until the first Monday of June, A. D. 1869, subject to the advice and consent of the Senate of Pennsylvania.

A. G. CURTIS, Governor.

Laid on the table.

On motion of Mr. FISHER, the rule which requires Executive nominations to lie on the table five days was in this case dispensed with, and the Senate resolved itself into Executive session for the purpose of considering the nomination of James P. Wickersham, of the county of Lancaster, to be Superintendent of Common Schools of this Commonwealth, agreeably to the foregoing message.

On the question, Will the Senate advise and consent to the appointment of James P. Wickersham to be Superintendent of Common Schools of this Commonwealth?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfield, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Glaser, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Royer, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Walls, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—22.

NAYS—None.

So it was resolved that the Senate do so advise and consent.

BILLS PASSED.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the Committee on the Judiciary Local was discharged from the further consideration of bill No. 6, from the House of Representatives, entitled an Act to provide for the erection of a poor house for the better relief and employment of the poor in the townships of Oxford and Lower Dublin, in the county of Philadelphia, approved April 11th, 1867.

And the rules being dispensed with, the bill was read a second time and agreed to.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the bill was amended by adding the words, "authorizing the directors of the poor house to borrow money."

The bill then

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. HAINES, the Committee on Corporations was discharged from the further consideration of bill No. 7, from the House of Representatives, entitled a supplement to an act authorizing the borough of Hollidaysburg to erect water works, approved March 16, 1866,

And the rules being dispensed with,

The bill

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. BIGHAM, the Senate then adjourned until 11 o'clock to-morrow morning.

SENATE.

WEDNESDAY, January 9, 1867.

The Senate met at 11 o'clock, A. M., and was called to order by the SPEAKER.

The reading of the Journal of yesterday was dispensed with.

Approved on the question. Shall the bill pass?

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence) asked and obtained the unanimous consent of the Senate to amend the second section.

The bill then

Passed finally.

RETURN OF BILL FROM THE GOVERNOR.

On motion of Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence), the resolution from the House of Representatives requesting the Governor to return to the House of Representatives, in which it originated, bill No. 1822, of last session, entitled An act relative to Brady township, Butler county, was twice read, considered and Agreed to.

THE GERMANIA SAVINGS INSTITUTION OF ERIE.

On motion of Mr. LOWRY, the Committee on Banks was discharged from the further consideration of bill No. 24, entitled An act to incorporate the Germania Savings Institution of Erie.

The bill was then read.
Mr. BIGHAM said under the Constitution and law of 1839 no bill of this kind could be passed without notice, and that this bill should not be passed until some evidence of notice had been given.

Mr. LOWRY. -Mr. Speaker, one remark in answer to that. The Senator has not been paying attention to the bill. Here is an association of five or six gentlemen who promise to receive deposits, and become individually liable for them; it is not a bank. The individual liability clause was on none of the bills to incorporate banks lately vetoed.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, there is not the slightest objection to this bill. The Senator from Erie [Mr. Lowry] entirely misunderstands me. It has nothing to do with individual liability. We had four vetoes on this subject yesterday.

read from the Constitution: "Sec. XXIV. No corporate body shall be hereafter created, renewed, or extended, with banking or discounting privileges, without six months' previous public notice of the intended application for the same, in such manner as shall be prescribed by law."

Some of the gentlemen on the committee last winter advised me that the rule had been not to extend this to mere deposit banks. Under that construction we permitted those bills to pass here; those bills went to the Governor. Such as had given their notice were signed; the others were vetoed; those vetoes were sent in yesterday, read and unanimously sustained. Now, if no notice has been given, why go through this form? The point taken is that the Constitution and the act of 1839 expressly provide that a bill so passed would be unconstitutional. There is a note here to Parson which shows how useless it would be to pass it.

"The exercise of the banking privilege of discounting notes, by a saving fund society, incorporated without such notice, renders the notes so discounted void in their hands; such illegal act cannot be a ground of a title."

The Governor, in the summer, called my attention to this, and said it would be utterly useless to sign such bills. I, therefore, think of me doing a kindness to the members of the Senate in calling attention to this point, that not only is it useless, unless we conform to the Constitution, but, should the Governor assent, the question could be raised in the courts.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, the Senator had the floor, and I interrupted him merely for the purpose of saying that I was not prepared to discuss this question this morning, and I am willing that the bill shall lay over. The bill was laid over.

BILLS PASSED.

On motion of Mr. HAINES, the Committee on Corporations was discharged from the further consideration of bill No. 25, entitled An act to authorize the Freedom iron and steel company to issue and dispose of bonds of the said company convertible into capital stock and to secure the same by mortgage, granting certain powers to facilitate the mining, manufacturing, transporting and vending business of said company, and extending their charter as hereby amended.

And the rules having been dispensed with, The bill

Passed finally.
On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the rules were dispensed with and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill No. 26, entitled An act to incorporate the Germantown swimming and skating park association.

The bill
Passed finally.

RECESS OF THE SENATE.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the Senate took a recess until twenty minutes past twelve.

ELECTION OF STATE TREASURER.

On the reassembling of the Senate, A committee from the House of Representatives being introduced, informed the Senate that they had been appointed to invite the Speaker and members of the Senate to meet the members of the House in joint convention for the election of State Treasurer.

The Speaker and members of the Senate proceeded in charge of the committee to the Hall of the House, where an election was held for the office of State Treasurer.

[See House proceedings.]
After some time the members of the Senate returned, and Mr. McCONAUGHY, teller on the part of the Senate in the convention, reported that William H. Kemble was duly elected State Treasurer.

On motion of Mr. GLATZ, the Senate then adjourned till eleven o'clock to-morrow morning.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, January 9, 1867.

The House met at 11 o'clock, A. M.
Prayer was offered by the Rev. JACOB KENNEDY, member from Wyoming.

The SPEAKER announced that there was a quorum of members present.

The Journal of yesterday was partly read, when Mr. MANN moved that the further reading of the same be dispensed with, which was Objected to.

The reading of the Journal was then concluded, and there being no objections, it was adopted.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows:

No. 12, supplement to the act incorporating the Sullivan land company, and authorizing said company to sell or exchange lands.

No. 14, an act to amend an act to incorporate the North American transit insurance company, approved March 30, 1860, and the supplement thereto, so as to authorize said company to insure persons against death or disability, whether from natural diseases, accident or otherwise, and to issue policies therefor in the usual manner, under the name, style and title of the North American life and accident insurance company.

He also returned bills from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

No. 7, a supplement to an act authorizing the borough of Hilditsburg to erect water works, approved March 16th, 1866.

No. 15, an act relative to the election in the Farmers' and Mechanics' insurance company.

With information that the Senate has passed the same without amendment.

The Clerk of the Senate also returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows, viz,

No. 6, supplement to an act to provide for the erection of a poor house for the better relief and employment of the poor in the townships of Oxford and Lower Dublin, in the county of Philadelphia, approved April 11, 1867.

With information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

COMMITTEE OF INVESTIGATION.

The following are the names of the members appointed by the SPEAKER as the committee on the part of the House, to act on the joint committee ordered to be appointed by the resolution of Mr. STUMBAUGH, to inquire into the charges of bribery and corruption in connection with the question of electing a United States Senator:

Messrs. STUMBAUGH, MARKS and WESTBROOK.

COMMITTEE ON LEGISLATIVE RECORD.

The following are the names of the members appointed by the SPEAKER on the part of the House, to act on the joint committee authorized by the Senate resolution to receive proposals for the publication of a Legislative Record:

Messrs. HOFFMAN, DAVIS and QUIGLEY.
At the request of the SPEAKER, Mr. CHASE, the member from Crawford, presented himself before the Clerk's desk, to whom was administered the usual oath of office.

COMMITTEE OF CONTESTED ELECTION.

The hour of 11 o'clock having arrived, Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to select a committee, according to law, to try the matter of the petition presented on the second instant, complaining of the undue election of C. D. ROCCH, returned as a member from the district composed of the counties of Lycoming and Snyder.

And upon calling over the roll it appeared that the Speaker and the following Members of the House were in attendance, viz:

Messrs. ADAIRE, ALLEN, ARMSTRONG, BARRINGTON, BARTON, BOYD, BOYLE, BREEN, BRENNAN, BROWN, CALVIN, CAMERON, CHADWICK, CHALFANT, CHASE, COLLINS, COLVILLE, CRAIG, DAVIS, DAY, DeHAVEN, DEISE, DONOUGH, EPPY, EWING, FOGEL, FREEBORN, GALLAGHER, GHEGAN, GORDON, GREGORY, HARBISON, HARNER, HEADMAN, HETZEL, HOFFMAN, HOOD, HUMPHREY, HUNT, JENKS, JOHNS, JOSEPHS, KENNEDY, KERTS, KIMMEL, KINNEY, KLINE, KOON, KURZ, LEE, LECH, LINTON, LONG, M'CAMANT, M'CREARY, M'HENRY, M'KEE, M'PHERRIN, MAISH, MANN, MARKLEY, MARKS, MECHLING, MEELY, MEYERS, MULLIN, PENNYACKER, PELTS, PHELAN, PILLOW, QUAY, QUIGLEY, RHOADS, ROATH, ROBINSON, ROUCH, STATERTHWAIT, SEILER, SHARPLES, SHUMAN, STEACY, STEHMAN, STUMBAUGH, SUBERS, THARP, WADDELL, WALLACE, WATTS, WEBB, WELLS, WESTBROOK, WHANN, WHARTON, WILSON, WINGARD, WOODWARD, WORRAL, WRIGHT and GLASS, Speaker.

The SPEAKER. Who appears as counsel for the contestants?

Mr. WINGARD. I appear as counsel pro tem.

The SPEAKER. Who appears as counsel for the sitting member?

Mr. Jacob Wiegler. I appear as counsel, so far as the temporary organization of the committee is concerned.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will now place in the boxes the names of all the members of the House, with the exception of the member from Fulton [Mr. RICHARDS], who is absent the sitting member [Mr. ROCCH] and the Speaker.

Messrs. GREGORY and GREGAN will be good enough to write down the names of the members as they are drawn by the Clerk, and announced by the Speaker, agreeably to the act of Assembly.

The Clerk then proceeded to draw from the boxes the names of the members separately, when the following were challenged by the seating member, Mr. ROVCH, by his counsel: Messrs.—Meily, Leech, Adaire, Cameron, Woodward, Weller, Lee, Sharples, Marks, Webb, Wharton, Worrall, Chase, Subers, Eath, Humphrey, Quay, M'Camant, Wilson, Ghegan, Hoffman, Espy, Wingard, Ewins, Donoghue, Kerns, Stacey, Watt, Brown, Peters, Wallace, Freeborn, Pennypacker, Armstrong, Stehman, Kinney, Mann, Waddell, Davis, Harbison, DeLaven, Gordon, Whann, Chadwick and Gallagher.

The following were challenged by the counsel for the contestant:

Messrs. M'Henry, Jones, Calvin, Deise, Hetzel, Quigley, Metz, Kurtz, Boyle, Hood, Collins, Craig, Rhoads, Westbrook, Hunt, Headman, Josephs, Chalfant, Kline, Koon, Barrington, Mullen, Linton, Jenks, Fogel, Boyd, Breen, Markley, Phelan, Satterthwait, Brennan, Tharp, Gregory, Harner and Robinson.

The following names were not challenged: Messrs. Stumbaugh, M'Creary and Allen.

The following names remained in the box: Messrs. Shuman, Pillow, Seiler, M'Pherrin, M'Kee, Mechling, Long, Colville, Day, Kimmell, Kennedy, Maish, Barton and Wright.

The SPEAKER. The counsel for the sitting member and the contestant, together with the Clerk, will now proceed to the ante-room, where they will strike alternately from the above list of seventeen names until there shall be but nine remaining.

Mr. Ziegler. Mr. Speaker, I have not the privilege of saying anything here, as I am not a member of the House, but, as a matter of information, I desire to state that I have assisted in drawing a jury in at least ten cases within the last five years.

When we retired to this room it was with the understanding that, the opposite parties, having had the right to object to a man as his name was drawn from the box, if they refused to object to such man as a member of the committee while in the House, they could not do so when in the ante-room. I would like to have that understood by the House.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, we will waive any right to challenge such members.

The respective counsel and the Clerk then retired, and after some time they returned the following members to constitute the select committee, who were duly qualified, to wit:

Messrs. Stumbaugh, M'Creary, Allan, Shuman, Pillow, M'Pherrin, M'Kee, Mechling and Kennedy.

Mr. FREEBORN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the other special order of the day, viz: the drawing of a committee in the case of the contested election in the Thirteenth district of Philadelphia, be postponed until after the election of a State Treasurer.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution:

The resolution was read as follows: Resolved, That the committee drawn to try the case of the contested election of C. D. ROVCH meet this evening in the committee room, No. 11, at 7 o'clock.

The resolution was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. It is some gentleman be good enough to move that the committee be appointed to wait upon and invite the Speaker and members of the Senate to participate in the election for the State Treasurer, to be held this day at 12 o'clock?

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to explain. The resolution I have just offered places me in a somewhat embarrassing situation. I asked the Clerk if it was not necessary to appoint a committee to wait upon the Senate, and inform them that we were ready to proceed with the election of State Treasurer. He replied that it was, and I received that resolution, and without looking at it I offered it, supposing it was a resolution of that kind, I do not wish to interfere with the prerogative of the committee. I will, therefore, offer the resolution I first intended.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to wait upon and invite the Speaker and members of the Senate to participate in the election of a State Treasurer, to be held in this House at twelve o'clock to-day.

The resolution was Agreed to.

The SPEAKER appointed Messrs. DAVIS, QUAY and QUIGLEY the committee.

After some time the Speaker and members of the Senate, in charge of the committee of the House, entered the Hall of the House.

IN CONVENTION—ELECTION OF STATE TREASURER.

The members of the Senate and House of Representatives having assembled in convention, the Speaker of the Senate took the chair as president of the convention.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY acted as teller on the part of the Senate, and Mr. WATT officiated in the same capacity on the part of the House.

The PRESIDENT. The convention will come to order. Gentlemen of the convention, this is the day and hour fixed by law for the election of State Treasurer. Is it your pleasure so to proceed now?

The convention having expressed its desire so to do, the Clerk of the Senate and the Clerk of the House proceeded to call the list of Senators and Members of the House, while the tellers recorded the names of the persons voted for, with the following result:

Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfield, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Ridgway, Royer, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker, of the Senate; and Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, Day, DeLaven, Donoghue, Espy, Ewing, Frichors, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Mann, Marks, Mechling, Meily, Pennypacker, Peters, Pillow, Quay, Roath, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Stacey, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and M'Pherrin, of the House—32, voted for W. H. Kemble.

Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Glaz, Jackson, James, M' Candless, Randall, Schall, Searight, Wallace and Walls, of the Senate; and Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Hetzel, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Mullen, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robb, Satterthwait, Tharp, and Westbrook, of the House—50, voted for John F. Spangler.

The PRESIDENT. The tellers report that they agree in their tallies. W. H. Kemble has received eighty-two votes and John F. Spangler fifty votes.

Wm. H. Kemble having received a majority of all the votes cast is, therefore, elected

State Treasurer for the year commencing May 1, 1867.

The PRESIDENT directed the Clerk to read one of the four certificates of the election, which were duly signed and sealed by the President and Tellers, as follows: Pennsylvania, ss.

To all whom these presents shall come, greeting: Know ye that in pursuance of an act of the General Assembly of this Commonwealth, passed the second day of June, eighteen hundred and thirty-nine, entitled An act relating to the elections of this Commonwealth, and in accordance with an act, approved March 16, A. D. 1864, entitled An act providing for the election of a State Treasurer, both chambers of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania met in the chamber of the House of Representatives, on Wednesday, the 9th day of January, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, for the purpose of electing a State Treasurer. The Speaker of the Senate presided, and the tellers appointed having taken down the names of every person voting at the election, and that of the person for whom he voted, it appeared that William H. Kemble was duly elected State Treasurer.

LOUIS W. HALL, President. W. W. WATT, Teller of the House of Representatives.

DAVID M'CONAUGHY, Teller on the part of the Senate.

Mr. COWLES. Mr. President, I move that this convention do now adjourn.

The motion was Agreed to.

REPORT OF THE TELLER.

Mr. WATT. Mr. Speaker, the convention, consisting of the Speaker and members of the Senate and the Speaker and members of the House of Representatives, met in the hall of the House of Representatives at 12 o'clock, M., this day (the Speaker of the Senate presiding), and proceeded to the election of a State Treasurer, which resulted in the election of W. H. Kemble.

The report was accepted and laid on the table.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate had concurred in the preamble and resolution from the House of Representatives, providing for the appointment of a joint committee to investigate the truth of certain charges in the public newspapers, that improper influences have been used to secure the election of a United Senator, and has appointed Messrs. LOWRY, GRAHAM and SEARIGHT to be the committee on the part of the Senate, under said resolution.

He also informed that the Senate had concurred in the resolution from the House of Representatives relative to the opening and publishing the returns of the late election for Governor of the Commonwealth, and had appointed Mr. SHOEMAKER to be the teller on the part of the Senate, under said resolution.

The Clerk of the Senate also presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows:

IN THE SENATE, JANUARY 8, 1867.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL and Mr. GLAZ, the Senate proceeded to the nomination of candidates for State Treasurer, to be voted for on Wednesday, the 9th instant; where upon

Mr. CONNELL nominated William H. Kemble.

Mr. GLAZ nominated John F. Spangler.

Ordered, That Mr. M'CONAUGHY be the teller on the part of the Senate, and that the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate had concurred in the resolution from the House of Representatives, requesting the Governor to return to the House of Representatives bill No. 1822 (of the House file), entitled an act relative to Brady township, Butler county.

COMMITTEE ON CONTESTED ELECTION.

Agreeably to the motion of postponement by Mr. MULLEN, the House proceeded to select a committee, according to law, to try the matter of the petition presented on the 2d instant, complaining of the undue election of Mr. MULLEN, returned as a member of the Thirteenth district of Philadelphia.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will proceed to call the roll.

The following members were in attendance and answered to their names, viz :

Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barrington, Barton, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Brown, Calvia, Cameron, Chadwick, Chalfant, Chase, Collins, Colville, Craig, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Deise, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Fogel, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Gregory, Harbison, Harner, Headman, Hetzel, Hoffman, Hood, Humphrey, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Lee, Leech, Linton, Long, McCamant, McCreary, M'Henry, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Maish, Mann, Markley, Marks, Mechling, Meily, Meyers, Mullin, Pennypacker, Peters, Phelan, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Rhoads, Roath, Robinson, Rouch, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Tharp, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Westbrook, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker.

The SPEAKER. Who appears as counsel for the contestant?

Mr. J. Alexander Simpson. I have the honor to appear.

The SPEAKER. Who appears as counsel for the sitting member?

Mr. Ziegler. I will attend to his interests for the present.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will now place in the box the names of all the members present, with the exception of those of the sitting member (Mr. MULLEN) and the Speaker.

Messrs. GREGORY and GHEGAN will be good enough to write down the names of the members drawn by the Clerk, and announced by the Speaker, agreeably to the act of Assembly.

The Clerk then proceeded to draw from the box separately the names of the members, when the following were challenged by the sitting member, Mr. MULLEN, through his counsel :

Messrs. The SPEAKER. The respective counsel, together with the Clerk, will now proceed to strike alternately from the list of seventeen names until but nine remain.

The counsel and the Clerk then retired, and after some time they returned the following members to constitute the select committee, who were duly qualified, to wit :

Messrs. Waddell, Marks, Quay, Chadwick, Mann, Breen, Harbison, Rhoads and Steacy. Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That the committee drawn to try the case of the contested election of MICHAEL MULLEN meet this evening, in committee room No. 12, at 8 o'clock.

The resolution was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The hour of 1 o'clock having arrived, this House stands adjourned until to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 10, 1867. The House met at 11 o'clock.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. JACOB KENNEDY, member from Wyoming.

The SPEAKER announced a quorum of members present.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows, viz :

No. 13, an act to incorporate the New Castle water company.

No. 20, an act to incorporate the Germantown swimming and skating park association.

Senate bill No. 26, an act to authorize the Freedom iron and steel company to issue and dispose of bonds of the said company, convertible into capital stock, and to secure them by a mortgage, granting certain powers to facilitate the mining, manufacturing, transporting and vending business of said company, and extending their charter as hereby amended.

The Journal of yesterday was read by the Clerk, and, there being no objections, was approved.

SPEAKER'S TABLE.

The SPEAKER proceeded to clear the table by presenting to the House the annual report of the trustees of the Girard estate, which was Laid on the table. Senate bill No. 12, entitled A supplement to the Sullivan land company, and authorizing said company to sell or exchange lands.

Mr. KINNEY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended, and that the House proceed to consider that bill.

The motion was Agreed to.

The bill was then read a second and third time.

Passed finally.

House bill No. 6, entitled A supplement to an act to provide for the erection of a poor house for the better relief and employment of the poor in the townships of Oxford and Lower Dublin, in the county of Philadelphia, approved April 11, 1867, was returned with amendments.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the amendments in the amendment of the Senate, just read.

The motion was Agreed to.

Senate bill No. 23, entitled An act to authorize the Freedom iron and steel company to issue and dispose of bonds of the said company, convertible into capital stock, and to secure them by a mortgage, granting certain powers to facilitate the mining, manufacturing, transporting and vending business of said company, and extending their charter as hereby amended.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended and that the House proceed to the consideration of that bill.

The motion was Agreed to.

The bill was then read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Senate bill No. 13, entitled an Act to incorporate the New Castle water company.

Mr. HARBISON. Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended, and that the House proceed to the consideration of that bill.

The bill was then read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Senate bill No. 20, entitled an Act to incorporate the Germantown swimming and skating park association.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended, and the House proceed to consider that bill.

The motion was Agreed to.

The bill was then read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Mr. KERNS. Mr. Speaker, I move to reconsider the vote had upon Senate bill No. 5, entitled an Act relating to the election of United States Senator.

The committee of arrangements on the inauguration find that it conflicts with the time fixed for the inaugural ceremonies.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. I second the motion.

The motion was Agreed to.

The bill being again before the House,

Mr. KERNS. I now move that we go into committee of the whole, for the purpose of special amendment, viz :

To strike out "11 A. M.," and insert "3 P. M."

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, my recollection is, that the act of Congress fixes the day upon which the election shall take place, without designating the hour. The joint committee from the two Houses, who had this matter in charge, some days ago agreed upon this bill and fixed the hour for the election at eleven o'clock. I learned from the committee appointed to take charge of the ceremonies, preparatory to the inauguration, that they desire the inauguration, as is customary, to take place at twelve o'clock. As there is some apprehension that the convention of the two Houses might not get through with the election of United States Senator in time to participate in these proceedings, the committee desire that the hour for the election be changed from eleven o'clock in the morning to three o'clock in the afternoon. As it is a matter over which the Legislature have full control, and as the same state of things will exist in the future elections of United States Senator, I think there can be no impropriety in fixing the time at three o'clock.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I agree entirely with the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] in his remarks.

I desire simply to add that eleven o'clock was fixed in this bill, because the committee of arrangements for the inauguration of the Governor had reported to this House that he inauguration would take place 12 M., and it seemed to the committee at that time, that the election should take place before that. Now, the committee of arrangements having examined the matter more fully, are satisfied that a different hour would be more convenient, and they desire the time changed. I hope the House will give its unanimous consent. It can make no difference at what hour we meet, and it is important that the people shall be accommodated in the matter of the time for the inauguration, I hope the House will see proper to give its unanimous consent.

The House gave its unanimous consent to the amendment, and

The bill

Passed finally.

Resolution relative to the payment of the expenses of the investigation of certain charges contained in the Sunday Dispatch.

A. G. CURTIN.

Senate bill No. 14, entitled An act to incorporate the North American transit insurance company, approved March 30, 1860, and the supplement thereto, so as to authorize said company to insure persons against death or disability, whether from natural diseases, accident or otherwise, and to issue policies therefor in the usual manner, under the name, style and title of the North American Life and Accident insurance company.

Mr. LEE, Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended, and the House proceed to the consideration of that bill.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The bill was then read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended, and that the House proceed to the consideration of the following bill, which I read in my place and present to the Chair:

An act to incorporate the Real Estate Savings Institute.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, it is well known that the other day when these bills were offered in place, out of their order, and I raised an objection, that I did not do it on personal grounds, but, as I believe, for the general good of the House. Perhaps I did not state distinctly enough the reasons for my objection.

I object to the reading of bills in place out of their order unless some clearly satisfactory reason is given. If gentlemen will wait until their counties and the order of reading bills in place is reached, and then, if they wish, ask a suspension of the rules, I will have no objection. The bills passed this morning came in, in the order of precedence. This thing of backing up upon the first of the session, is not proper. It is only permissible where it is absolutely necessary.

I have half a dozen bills which I wish to read in place and have printed, as soon as possible, but I cannot get it done unless we adhere closely to the rules. If the gentleman's constituents want the bill to-morrow—as the lady said about the divorce, she "must have it this night"—I have no objection.

Mr. WINGARD. Like the gentleman who has just taken his seat, I have eight or ten bills which I wish to present.

Bills have come from the Senate by the dozen almost, and have been taken up and passed. A large number of bills have gone from the House to the Senate, and I presume they are being acted on.

I have a number of letters from my constituents, requesting the passage of this bill, and, at their solicitation, I offer it. It is almost a fac simile of a bill that was passed here the other day. I have as many bills, perhaps, as the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY], but I am perfectly willing that they should go over. I am as much opposed to this disorderly mode of procedure as the gentleman who has just taken his seat, but this bill I desire to have taken up and passed now, if it is the pleasure of the House.

Mr. M'CREARY. All this, Mr. Speaker, does not go to the fact of its necessity. The mere fact that this bill is wanted is no reason why it should be introduced out of order.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, it is at the solicitation of my constituents that I desire the bill passed at this time, or at the earliest possible moment. As I said before, a similar bill has already been passed, and I ask the indulgence of the House to pass this.

On the question, Shall Mr. WINGARD have leave to read the bill in place?

A division was taken, when 47 voted for and 18 against granting leave.

So it was Agreed to.

The bill was then read the first time, and On the motion of Mr. WINGARD to suspend the rule which prohibits the reading of bills twice on the same day.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, this mode of procedure may be stopping a few weeks, and I know of no gentleman in this House who can stand it better than the gentleman from Lycoming [Mr. WINGARD]. I think this is just about the place to do it. We have been in session now two weeks, and we have never reached the orders, and if we go on in this way it would be better to abolish all rules and relieve the Speaker of the difficulty of appointing committees. I have no objection to the gentleman's bill, but I understand the question now to be on the suspension of the rules for the purpose of taking up this bill, and on that I call for a division of the question.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman has stated that I could afford as well as any member of this House to have my bill stopped. I would simply remind the gentleman that during the last session I never asked this favor but once, and that time it was refused me. This is the first time I have asked it this session. I am not in the habit of asking this favor of the House. If the committees were appointed I would ask that this bill should go to the committee. But I do not want to be made a scape-goat to carry off the evil of this House, and I am not obliged to the gentleman for singling me out as such. If the odium in this matter is to fall on any one, I think the gentleman's shoulders are quite as ample in their proportions as mine. I will appeal to the House if the gentleman has not, at this time, asked this favor of the House.

Mr. WADELL. Mr. Speaker, I desire, at this time, to present my views upon this question; because, I propose, at the proper time, to take the position which has been taken by the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY] and the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS]. The only question with me has been whether this is the proper time. The House has not yet got into regular working order. The Speaker has not yet been able to announce the committees, consequently bills presented to the House must lie on the table until the committees are appointed and they can come into their hands regularly. Therefore, I have not disposed to interfere, so far as I am concerned, with this indiscriminate way of doing business. The question, in my mind, has been whether a bill which was presented was proper in its form, and one which the House could consider without the aid of a committee. But, I say here, and I propose to follow it up when the time comes that we get into regular working order, that I shall object to all suspensions of the rules. As I shall do it, as I conceive, for the good of the House, I presume there is no gentleman here who has served over a period of one term, but must know that this mode of proceeding has thrown us into more confusion, and caused us more delay in the legislation of this body, than any other course. There are orders that we never reached last winter. Gentlemen had their bills thrown off on the second and third reading, and never heard of them again. Others have heard of their bills during the last week of the session, simply by reason of grace from those who had opposed them at an earlier period. They went to these gentlemen, and asked as a favor that they would withdraw their objections and allow the bills to pass. These orders have been prescribed for the purpose of facilitating the legislation, and if this House will only adhere to them, and take up their bills in their proper order, we will go through with these orders every day of our session. When gentlemen then get their bills to the second or third reading they will hear of them again when the time comes around, and then they will be disposed of. To my mind when the proper time comes, this House should adhere strictly to the enforcement of its rules, and take up matters in regular order. The only question is whether to-day at this time we should enforce this rule. The Speaker has not been able to announce the committees yet, therefore I have been disposed to indulge gentlemen in this indiscriminate mode of proceedings for the purpose of occupying our time while we are here. I am not disposed at this time to insist on the rules, although when the time comes I will stand by any gentleman pressing this matter.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I think the proper time has arrived now—I think it arrived on the first day of the session.

As far as the remark I made relative to the gentleman's bill is concerned, he will bear in mind that the gentleman from Erie gave notice a few days ago that he was going to object to this mode of proceeding.

This was the first bill offered this morning to which the objection could properly be made. I believe no bill should pass this House unless it is first printed and laid on the desks of the members. There may be some necessity sometimes for passing a bill in a different way, and when there is such a necessity I shall make no objection.

I have never presented a petition nor read a bill in place during this session, nor do I intend to do so, except at the proper time. I think, as the gentleman from Lancaster remarked, that if we commence on the orders in the morning we can get through them each day. Every district will be called, and then the member from that district can respond, and as the gentleman from Erie has said, if it is a case of necessity he can ask leave to have his bill passed.

By the present mode we shall never reach the regular order. The counties have not yet been called during this session.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know how we are going to reach the regular order until the committees are announced. We have an abundance of time—more than we know what to do with. The Senate is passing bills, and as soon as they arrive here, gentlemen who are interested in them get up and move that the House proceed to their consideration.

That is all right, because the bills come from the Senate! But because a bill is asked to be passed here and sent to the Senate, and that, too, previous to the appointment of the committees, and when we have an abundance of time, gentlemen wish to vote to stop at a certain point.

This bill is almost a fac simile of a bill which was passed here the other day. It is in good shape and it is desired that it should pass. I can see no good reason why it should not.

I did, last session, and I will again, stand by any gentleman who opposed the practice of frequent suspensions of the rules, but I was always reluctant to make myself instrumental in cutting off any gentleman who offered a bill. I always felt, I feel now, that this practice of suspending the rules was wrong, and I am willing to join the gentleman in going to the utmost extreme in carrying out the orders of this House.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is exceedingly unfortunate in his positions, to-day, for they pursue the regular order of business in the Senate. It is well known that the resolution for the appointment of a committee, which raised so much discussion in the Senate the other day, was offered by a gentleman out of place, and he was ruled out of order.

Bills in place are first in order, and original resolutions afterward. The gentleman undertook to offer a resolution when bills in place were in order and was ruled out.

Mr. WINGARD. I would like to know, then, why these bills, which come from the Senate by the dozen, are not sent to committees here?

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order, which is, that a motion to suspend the rules is not debatable.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of the opinion that the point of order is well taken.

The question being on the general suspension of the rules,

It was not agreed to.

The SPEAKER. If it is the pleasure of the House, the Speaker will appoint a committee of two, to inform the Senate that at twelve o'clock the House will be ready to proceed to open and publish the votes cast for Governor at the October election. Mr. QUAY of Beaver, and Mr. MARKLEY of Montgomery, will please act as the committee.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I did not understand the decision of the Chair on the question of suspending the rules.

The SPEAKER. On the question of suspending the rules generally, the Chair decided that it was lost.

Mr. WINGARD. I call for the yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will withdraw his decision in order to enable the gentleman to call the yeas and nays.

The yeas will proceed with the call.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I did not hear any gentleman second the call.

Mr. COLVILLE. I second the call.

The yeas and nays were then taken and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Allen, Colville, Craig, Donohugh, Gregory, Harbison, Headman, Hoffman, Hood, Humphrey, Kerns, Kinney, Koon, Lee, Linton, M'Kee, Maish, Markley, Marks, Quay, Rhoads, Robinson, Rouch, Shuman, Subers, Tharp, Wharton, Wingard and Wright—20.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barrington, Barton, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Brown, Calvin, Cameron, Chadwick, Chalfant, Chase, Collins, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Deise, Espy, Ewing, Fogel, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harner, Jenks, Josephs, Kennedy, Kimmel, Kline, Kurtz, Lees, Long, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Mann, Meyers, Mullin, Pennypacker, Peters, Pillow, Quigley, Richards, Roath, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Stacey, Waddell, Wallace, Webb, Weller, Westbrook, Whann, Wilson, Woodward, Worrall and Glass, Speaker—62.

So the question was determined in the negative.

Mr. PILLOW. Mr. Speaker, I rise to what I believe to be a privileged question; that is, to present a petition from sundry citizens of Cambria county, contesting the seat of JOHN P. LINTON, now a member of this House.

The petition was read by the Clerk as follows:

To the Honorable the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

The petition of the undersigned respectfully represents that they are citizens and qualified electors of the county of Cambria, and were such at the time of holding the last general election, to wit, the second Tuesday of October, A. D. 1866, being the ninth day of that month; that at said general election, in the said county of Cambria, there was amongst the officers to be voted for and elected, one person to represent said county in the House of Representatives of the General Assembly; that there were two persons voted for said office of representative as aforesaid, at the said election, to wit, John P. Linton, who was untily returned as having received three thousand three hundred and seventy-five (3,375) votes, and John J. Glass, who was returned as having received two thousand five hundred and sixty-five (2,565) votes, for said office, and that the said John P. Linton was returned as being elected to the said office by a majority of eight hundred and ten (810) votes.

Your petitioners pray that said election was a undue election, and said return a false return, of the said John P. Linton to your honorable body as the representative from the county of Cambria, aforesaid, and they contest his right thereto, and specify more particularly the following grounds of their contest:

1st. That the election held on the day and year aforesaid, in the township of Washington, in the said county of Cambria, was not held and conducted by proper officers of elections as required by the election laws of this Commonwealth; that the judge of elections in the said township of Washington was not, at the time of the said election, and is not now, a citizen of the United States, or a qualified elector of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and was incompetent to act as such judge of elections, in the said township; that at the said election, so held, in the said township of Washington, John P. Linton was returned as having received two hundred and thirty-two votes for said office, and the said John J. Glass was returned as having received thirty-two votes for said office.

2d. That the election held on the day and year aforesaid, in the township of Carroll, in the said county of Cambria, was not held and conducted by proper officers of elections, as required by the election laws of this Commonwealth; that ——— in the said township of Carroll ——— not at the time of the said election, and ——— not now a citizen of the United States or qualified elector of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and incompetent to act as ——— of election in the said township; that ——— at the said election, so held in the said township of Carroll, John P. Linton was returned as having received three hundred and three votes for said office, and the said John J. Glass was returned as having received forty-two votes for said office.

3d. That the election held on the day and year aforesaid in the township of Gallitzin, in the said county of Cambria, was not held and conducted by proper officers of elections, as required by the election laws of this Commonwealth; that John Frainer and John Bradley, in the said township of Gallitzin, were not, at the time of said election, and are not now, citizens of the United States, or qualified electors of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and were incompetent to act as officers of elections in the said township; that at the said election so held in the said township of Gallitzin, in the said county, John P. Linton was returned as having received one hundred and eighteen votes for said office, and the said John J. Glass was returned as having received fifty-three votes for said office.

4th. That the election held on the day and year aforesaid, in the borough of Loretto, in the said county of Cambria, was not held and conducted by proper officers of elections, as required by the election laws of this Commonwealth; that the judge of elections, and one of the clerks of elections, in the said borough of Loretto, were not, at the time of the said election, and are not now, citizens of the United States, or qualified electors of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and were incompetent to act as such judge and clerk of elections, in the said borough; that at the said election, so held in the said borough of Loretto, John P. Linton was returned as having received forty-seven (47) votes for said office, and the said John J. Glass was returned as having received ten (10) votes for said office.

5th. That the election held on the day and year aforesaid, in the borough of Conemaugh, in said county of Cambria, was not held and conducted by proper officers of elections, as required by the election laws of this Commonwealth; that Conrad Ernst (First ward), and Michael Burns (Second ward), were not, in the said borough of Conemaugh, were not, at the time of the said election, and are not now, citizens of the United States, or qualified electors of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and were incompetent to act as such inspectors of elections in the said borough of Conemaugh; that at the said election, so held in the said borough of Conemaugh, John P. Linton was returned as having received one hundred and thirty-six votes for said office, and the said John J. Glass was returned as having received forty (40) votes for said office, in the First ward, and in the Second ward, said John P. Linton was returned as having one hundred and twelve votes, and said John J. Glass was returned as having thirty-three votes.

6th. That the election held on the day and year aforesaid, in the township of Summerhill, in the said county of Cambria, was not held and conducted by proper officers of elections, as required by the election laws of this Commonwealth; that William Dovan (judge) of elections in the said township of Summerhill, was not, at the time of the said election, and is not now, a citizen of the United States or qualified elector of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and was incompetent to act as such judge of elections in the said township; that at the said election, so held in the said borough of Carrollton, John P. Linton was returned as having received one hundred and four votes for said office, and the said John J. Glass was returned as having received fifty-six votes for said office.

Your petitioners, therefore, pray that the whole vote of the said townships of Washington, Summerhill and Gallitzin, and the boroughs of Loretto, Conemaugh and Carrollton may be excluded from the returns of the said county of Cambria, and that the said John P. Linton be declared void for representative to your honorable body.

7th. Your petitioners further represent that at the election so held, as aforesaid, in the township of Allegheny, and part of the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of two hundred (200) and upwards were received and taken by the election officers of said township, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said township, for the said John P. Linton, for the said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors in the said township.

8th. That at the election so held, as aforesaid, in the township of Blacklick, and part of the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of twenty-five (25) and upwards were received and taken by the election officers of said township, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said township, for the said John P. Linton, for the said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors in the said township.

9th. That at the election so held as aforesaid, in the township of Chester, and part of said county of Cambria, votes to the number of two hundred (200) and upward were received and taken by the election officers of said township, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said township, for the said John P. Linton, for the said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors in the said township.

10th. That at the election so held as aforesaid, in the township of Carroll, and part of the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of two hundred (200) and upward were received and taken by the election officers of said township, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said township, for the said John P. Linton, for the said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors in the said township.

11th. That the election so held as aforesaid, in the township of Clearfield, and part of the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of forty (40) and upward were received and taken by the election officers of said township, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said township, for the said John P. Linton, for the said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors in the said township.

12th. That at the election so held as aforesaid, in the township of Conemaugh, and part of the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of sixty (60) and upward, were received and taken by the election officers of said township, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said township, for the said John P. Linton, for the said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors in the said township.

13th. That at the election so held as aforesaid, in the township of Croyle, and part of the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of forty (40) and upward, were received and taken by the election officers of said township, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said township, for the said John P. Linton, for the said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors in the said township.

14th. That at the election so held as aforesaid, in the township of Gallitzin, and part of the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of eighty (80) and upward, were received and taken by the election officers of said township, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said township, for the said John P. Linton, for the said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors in the said township.

15th. That at the election so held as aforesaid, in the township of Munster, and part of the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of one hundred (100) and upward, were received and taken by the election officers of said township, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said township, for the said John P. Linton, for the said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors in the said township.

16th. That at the election so held as aforesaid, in the township of Summerhill, and part of the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of eighty (80) and upward, were received and taken by the election officers of said township, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said township, for the said John P. Linton, for the said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors in the said township.

17th. That at the election so held as aforesaid, in the township of Washington, and part of the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of two hundred (200) and upward, were received and taken by the election officers of said township, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said township, for the said

John P. Linton, for the said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors, in said township.

18th. That at the election so held as aforesaid, in the township of White, and part of the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of fifty (50) and upward, were received and taken by the election officers of said township, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said township, for the said John P. Linton, for the said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors in the said township.

19th. That at the election so held as aforesaid, in the borough of Cambria, in the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of one hundred and thirty (130) and upward, were received and taken by the election officers of said borough, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said borough, for the said John P. Linton, for the said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors of the said borough.

20th. That at the election so held as aforesaid, in the borough of Carrollton, in the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of twenty (20) and upward, were received and taken by the election officers of said borough, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said borough, for the said John P. Linton, for the said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors of said borough.

21st. That at the said election so held as aforesaid, in the First ward of the borough of Conemaugh, in the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of thirty (30) and upward, were received and taken by the election officers of said ward, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said borough, for the said John P. Linton, for said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors of the said ward.

22d. That at the said election so held as aforesaid, in the Second ward of the said borough of Conemaugh, votes to the number of thirty-five (35) and upward, were received and taken by the election officers of said ward, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said borough, for the said John P. Linton, for said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors of the said ward.

23d. That at the said election so held as aforesaid, in the borough of Millville, in the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of one hundred and fourteen (114) and upward, were received and taken by the election officers of said borough, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said borough, for the said John P. Linton, for said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors of the said borough.

24th. That at the election so held as aforesaid, in the borough of Prospect, in the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of twenty (20) and upward, were received and taken by the election officers of said borough, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said borough, for the said John P. Linton, for the said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors in the said borough.

25th. That at the election so held as aforesaid, in the borough of Loretto, in the said county of Cambria, votes to the number of forty (40) and upward, were received and taken by the election officers of said borough, and were counted and returned in the general return of votes from said borough, for the said John P. Linton, for the said office, from persons, none of whom were qualified electors in the said borough.

26th. That all the votes so fraudulently cast, as averted, in the seventh eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh, twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth, seventeenth, eighteenth, nineteenth, twentieth, twenty-first, twenty-second, twenty-third, twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth counts above, were and are included in the general return of votes for the said John P. Linton, for said office, from the said county of Cambria, as aforesaid, and ought to be excluded therefrom.

27th. Your petitioners further show that the officers of elections in the townships of Allegheny, Blacklick, Carroll, Chest, Clearfield, Conemaugh, Croyle, Gallitzin, Munster, Sumner, Washington and White, and in the boroughs of Cambria, Carrollton, Millville, Prospect, Loretto, and the First and Second wards of the borough of Conemaugh, fraudulently permitted persons to vote in the said several townships and boroughs aforesaid, at the election aforesaid, for the said John P. Linton, for the office aforesaid, in direct violation of the provisions of the first, second and third sections of the act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, approved the fourth day of June, A. D. 1866, entitled A further supplement to the election laws of this Commonwealth, and that at the said several polls aforesaid, votes to the number of one thousand two hundred and upwards, were received and taken, and were counted and returned, and included in the general computation and return of votes of the said county of Cambria, from persons who were disqualified by the provisions of the said act of Assembly, all of which votes were for the said John P. Linton, for the said office.

28th. Your petitioners further show that the said John P. Linton, with a number of other persons, signed a circular, and printed or caused the same to be printed, and circulated, and delivered to the officers of elections of the several wards, boroughs and townships of the said county of Cambria, with the intent to intimidate the said officers of elections from performing the duties imposed upon them by the act of Assembly, passed, as aforesaid, and to compel the said officers of elections to receive the votes of persons who had deserted from the military or naval service of the United States, and had been deprived of citizenship by the act of Congress, approved March 3d, A. D. 1865, entitled An act to amend the several acts heretofore passed to provide for the calling and calling out the national forces, and for other purposes, and who were disfranchised by the act of Assembly, aforesaid, under a threat of incurring a heavy penalty thereby, by means of which many of the said officers of elections were intimidated, and permitted persons, disqualified, fraudulently to vote for the said John P. Linton for said office.

Wherefore, they pray that your honorable body will, in accordance with the provisions of the act of Assembly relating thereto, take such proceedings as are therein and thereby directed, and that you will award the seat now illegally held by the said John P. Linton, to the said John J. Glass, the representative legally elected to your honorably body, from the county of Cambria aforesaid, and as in duty bound they will ever pray, etc.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,)
County of Cambria, ss:

I, George C. K. Zamm, the Prothonotary of the Court of Common Pleas, in and for the county of Cambria, do hereby certify that the foregoing petitioners are duly qualified electors of the said county of Cambria, and were such electors on the second Tuesday of October last past.

Witness my hand and the seal of my office, at Ebensburg, this the fourth day of January, A. D. 1867.
GEORGE C. K. ZAMM,
[Seal.] Prothonotary.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That the House will proceed on Wednesday next, January 16, 1867, at 12 o'clock, M., to the selection of a committee to investigate and try the contested election in the case of JOHN P. LINTON, now sitting member in this House, from the county of Cambria.

The resolution was read a second time.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman will undoubtedly change this when he reflects, that, at 12 o'clock, on that day, the two Houses are to meet in convention to elect a United States Senator. On Wednesday the joint convention is to meet, but on Tuesday each House votes for Senator separately.

Mr. BOYLE. I have no objections to any other hour, so that it is on Wednesday.

The hour for drawing the committee was then changed to 11 o'clock, A. M., and The resolution was agreed to.

IN CONVENTION—RETURNS OF THE ELECTION FOR GOVERNOR.

The hour of 12 o'clock, M., having arrived, The Speaker and members of the Senate, escorted by the committee from the House, were introduced, when

The Speaker of the Senate took the chair as President of the convention.

The PRESIDENT. The convention will come to order. Gentlemen of the convention, this is the day and hour fixed by law for the assembling of the Speaker and members of the Senate and Speaker and members of the House of Representatives in joint convention, for the purpose of opening and publishing the official returns of the vote for Governor, given at the election held in October last. The clerks will now proceed to read the returns from Adams county, and the other several counties in this Commonwealth.

Mr. JOHN S. MANN acted as teller on the part of the House, and Mr. L. D. SHOEMAKER acted in the same capacity on the part of the Senate.

The returns were then read as follows:

THE PRESIDENT. John W. Geary, of Cumberland county, having received the highest number of votes, is hereby declared duly elected Governor of the Commonwealth for the ensuing three years.

The Clerk will now read one of two certificates which have been signed and sealed by the Speaker of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and signed by the tellers of the convention.
 The Clerk then read as follows :

We, the Speaker of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do certify that the Speaker of the Senate did, on the tenth day of January, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, in the Hall of the House of Representatives, in the State Capitol, open the returns of the election for Governor of this Commonwealth, and publish the same in the presence of both Houses of the Legislature, conformably to the Constitution of said Commonwealth, and that upon counting the votes by a teller, appointed on the part of each House, it appeared that John W. Geary had the highest number of votes. Whereupon the said John W. Geary was declared to have been duly elected Governor of the Commonwealth.

In testimony whereof, we have hereunto set our hands and seals, the day and year above written.
 Signed L. W. HALL, [L. S.] Speaker of the Senate.
 Signed JOHN P. GLASS, [L. S.] Speaker of the House of Representatives.
 Signed L. D. SHOEMAKER, Teller on the part of the Senate.
 Signed JOHN S. MANN, Teller on the part of the House of Representatives.

The convention then, on motion adjourned.
 Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I have the honor to report, as teller appointed to act at the joint convention of the Senate and House of Representatives, that the convention met according to the act of Assembly, and that, upon the returns being opened and published, it appeared that John W. Geary had received the highest number of votes, and he was, therefore, declared elected Governor of this Commonwealth for the ensuing three years.

The report was laid on the table.
 THE SPEAKER. The hour of 1 o'clock having arrived, this House stands adjourned until to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

SENATE.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 10, 1867.

The Senate met and was called to order at 11 o'clock, A. M., by the SPEAKER.
 On motion of Mr. GLATZ, the reading of the Journal of yesterday was dispensed with.

A. G. CURTIN.

RULES OF THE SENATE.

Mr. MR. WORTHINGTON moved that Rule 37 of the Senate, adopted in 1862 and reconsidered in 1863, be restored.

The rule was read as follows:

It shall require a vote of two-thirds of the Senate to discharge a standing committee from the consideration of any bill or resolution which has been committed to it.

Mr. BIGHAM. Does it not require some notice to change our rules?

THE SPEAKER. I do not know, sir.

Mr. BIGHAM. I raise a point of order upon that. I do not intend that rule to be restored without a fight on this floor.

THE SPEAKER. I hope the Senator will not make such a fight that I shall be compelled to call anybody to order.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I raise another point of order. There was a special order made for this morning, which takes precedence of all others—the constitutional amendments were made the special order for to-day, and they take precedence of everything else.

THE SPEAKER. The constitutional amendments come up after the regular order. The constitutional amendments do not come up until the regular orders are gone through with.

Mr. BIGHAM. There was a reason for repeating that rule. There are reasons why it appears to me improper, and I would prefer not to discuss it this morning.

THE SPEAKER. I will again read.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, there was a reason for this rule. So far as our committees are concerned, in this body, we have very little difficulty in getting bills reported from them. On one or two subjects, however, since I have been in this Senate, there has been great difficulty. One or two committees have taken the responsibility of not reporting bills that were sent to them within three days after the commencement of the session, till within three days of the end.

The restoration of this rule simply gives to one-third of the members on this floor the absolute control of this Senate. This is no speculative case, that such a thing may occur—it has occurred—and therefore I hope that this rule will not be restored. This Senate will never discharge a committee until that committee has had a reasonable time to examine bills.

Now, I should like to know from the very respectable Senator from Chester [Mr. WORTHINGTON] some reason why this rule should be restored in all its entirety; why one-third of the members of this body shall be permitted, for a whole session, to control the other two-thirds. During the past two winters, since this rule has been abolished, I have been a member of this body; and I am not aware of any difficulty having occurred from the repeal of this rule. I hope the Senate will be permitted to go on as they have done for the last two years. If necessary we can modify the present rules, if questions are raised and committees asked to be discharged, but until such is the case, and in view of the past facts in reference to this subject, I hope this rule will not be reconsidered.

Mr. WORTHINGTON. Mr. Speaker, it must be apparent to any Senator who has occupied a seat on this floor for the past year or two, that we are in constant danger of running into hasty legislation. We have seen it already this year. Bills have been sent already to the Clerk's desk, and were read, and the committees discharged, when those bills were actually not in proper form; when even the titles of those bills were such a character that they could not become laws. The Constitution requires the object of a bill to be clearly and explicitly stated in the title. A large number of these bills that are prepared and hurried through this body in that way, are of such a character. Now, I do protest against this hasty legislation. I say that any subject requiring the deliberate consideration of this body ought to come to the floor, and there be examined, and well examined, not only to see whether the phraseology of that bill, the title and the body of the bill be in accordance with the Constitution, but also to see whether it is a proper subject of legislation for this body. Now, it is alleged by my friend from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM] that this would put the whole power into the hands of a minority of this body—that the adoption of this rule would make one-third of the body the controlling power with regard to the legislation which should come before these committees.

You must have power to compel a committee to make a report, if they refuse to do so; therefore, there is no injustice in it. It is still in the power of the majority to say whether they shall make a report or not; and whenever a majority of the members say that a committee must make a report, they have to do it. So it is entirely thrown upon the majority at last. But I regard this rule as a salutary rule, and as one proper for legislation. We should not go forward in this rapid and thoughtless mode of reading bills in place and discharging the committees before Senators know what these bills contain. I think this rule is a salutary and just rule, and I have heard nothing from my friend from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM] to change my opinion. I trust this Senate will throw this safeguard around their action by following this rule, among the others we shall be guided by. It is only two years ago that it was rescinded. Why it was changed I do not recollect now, nor do I care; but I think it one of the best rules in the whole catalogue of rules, and I hope it will be adopted and that we shall adhere to it.

Mr. LOWMY. Mr. Speaker, this rule, sir, was changed on my motion, for a good and sufficient reason, as it was believed at that time. This rule, sir, was changed because under it this Senate was not only at the mercy of a minority, but was at the mercy of three men. Take, for instance, the Committee on Corporations; there are five members of that committee; three members of that committee could refuse to report a bill, and it would take a third of the Senate in order to discharge that committee. Take, sir, the Committee on Railroads; that committee was composed of five men; three men, sir, have held for years in this body, against the wishes of the people of Pennsylvania, a general railroad law. Repeat this, sir, and you give these three men the power to hold on to a general railroad law, and you place the general railroad law of this Commonwealth at the mercy of one-third of the members of this body. Now, sir, I am not going into a full discussion of this question; it is well understood. And unless we admit to the world in advance that these great measures of reform shall not be crushed—unless we are prepared to admit to the world in advance that we will keep them wherever they now are, we should not vote to establish this rule. I shall not vote, sir, at this time, at all events, to establish a rule here that places us at the mercy, at all times, of a minority of the Senate, and even at the mercy of three men of the Senate.

Mr. WALLACE. It appears to me, sir, the experience of the past in reference to this rule should teach us that it is unwise to attempt to re-establish it in this body. It is well known that it has not been beneficial in the past. A majority of this Senate should have control over all subjects of legislation that come before it; and in placing upon this Senate a curb and chain, in order to prevent it from doing those things that it by right ought to do. The case of the Senator is well put, that a bill may be held in committee during a whole session; it has been done, and will again be done. I do not charge the Senator from Chester with making any such attempt. But what has been done may again be done. As the committee are the creature of the Senate, they should be under the power of the Senate, and directed to make reports when the Senate saw fit so to direct them. The cases put by the Senator from Chester [Mr. WORTHINGTON] in reference to hasty legislation do not affect this question at all. If a majority of the Senate agree to hasty and imperfect legislation, we all know that two-thirds of the Senate will agree to the same thing. Laws are passed here as if by rote, and the bills thus passed are not of the character that this rule operates upon. It is bills of vital importance it operates upon, in such a way that three men of a committee may actually hold the whole Senate at defiance. It appears to me that we ought not to re-establish this rule.

Mr. SEARIGHT moved to postpone the subject for the present.

Mr. BIGHAM. If the Senator from Fayette [Mr. SEARIGHT] will allow me, I would move to postpone it indefinitely.

The Chair decided that the motion to postpone indefinitely was debatable.

Mr. SEARIGHT. That is the very reason I made my motion to postpone for the present. The constitutional amendments were made the order for this morning, and it is manifest that this subject will lead to a long discussion, and probably occupy the whole session, so that we shall not be able to reach this order at all.

Mr. LONDON. Mr. Speaker, if the proposition is here made, sir, to put the control of this body in the hands of three committee men, I am opposed to it. If a proposition is introduced to put the control into the hands of one-third of the members of this body, I am opposed to it. But a moment's consideration will show that neither idea is proposed. I was very glad, sir, to hear the plain, sensible remarks of the Senator from Chester [Mr. WORTHINGTON]. Now, sir, when bills of importance are referred to a committee, it is for the purpose simply of investigating them. When such a bill comes here from that committee and I am called upon to vote upon it, sir, I have a right to the presumption that that committee has investigated the subject; and if they report the bill promptly I have a right to think that bill all right. I cannot examine every bill myself; have to act upon it in part, at least, from their recommendation. Hence the propriety of giving committees a full opportunity to examine; hence the impropriety of taking bills out of their hands before they can give them full consideration. Take, for instance, the Committee on Corporations. A large amount of business is committed to their consideration. They must have time. By resolving they shall not be discharged, save by a two-thirds vote, time for proper consideration is secured. If the committee manifest a disposition not to report at all, the Senate can require them to report by a mere majority vote. By the passage of the proposed rule we put ourselves beyond the control of action, whether in or out of committees.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I did not intend to say a word upon this subject. The reasons against the motion of my friend from Chester [Mr. WORTHINGTON] have been so well expressed by my friends, the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM], the Senator from Erie [Mr. LOWRY], and the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE], that I did not feel like adding anything to them. But when the motion was made to postpone for the present, it was clear that this subject would come up again. Hence, I made the motion to postpone the question indefinitely, so as to settle the whole matter at this time. While I say this, there is one consideration occurring to me that has not been mentioned. I do not know whether my friend, the Senator from Chester [Mr. WORTHINGTON], was correct in saying that this rule was adopted in 1862. At all events, if it was adopted in 1862, after the experience of two years it was changed, and the experience of two years has demonstrated the wisdom of allowing the majority of this body to control. There is in obedience, sir, to the good old Democratic doctrine that the majority shall rule.

It is necessary that the Senate should be consistent. If we have the two-thirds rule adopted again, we are in this situation: Any gentleman may rise in his place and suggest a motion that the Committee on Railroads, if you please, report a specific bill. It is perfectly clear that a majority of this body would agree to that motion. What is the duty of that committee? It refuses to obey the instructions of the Senate; a motion is introduced that the committee be discharged and the Senate proceed in the consideration of the bill; they refuse to do it. What is the committee to do in reference to that bill?—Sir, I want to see our action here harmonious, and the best way is to let the majority rule in this body.

Mr. McCONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I hope the motion to postpone indefinitely will not prevail. I hope that the subject will be carefully considered and determined. If the Senate is not prepared now to do so, it may be at some future time. I think we should look at this motion in the light of experience. The same rule prevails in the House of Representatives at Washington, and I believe that its workings have there been found most salutary. The same rule prevails in the lower House of the Legislature of Pennsylvania.

In reply to the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WARR], who uses the popular argument, the good old rule, that the majority should control, I will say that, that is not applicable. This is a question as to the proper course of legislation. If it involved the idea suggested by the Senator, that the majority should control, the argument would be good; but it does not. Does the Senator deny the position that the Senate has the power to order a committee to report?

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, to reply to the Senator's question, I concede that we have that right. But let me ask, what will be the situation of the bill they have in charge if they refuse to obey the instructions?

Mr. McCONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, most assuredly the Senate has the power to enforce its order—the same in that case as in others. The supposition of the question is that the Senate is powerless to enforce its own orders. If so, it is not an effective legislative body; but the question is unanswered by pointing to the fact that the majority is not deprived of its control. It is the most discreet mode of proceeding in order to have perfect legislation. As I said in opening my remarks, the experience in the other branch, and in Congress, all concur in the wisdom of it.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, I find by reference to the record that this rule was in operation but a single year. It was repealed in 1863. A committee was appointed in 1863 to take the rules into consideration; a report was made adopting this rule, and it was adopted; so that the rule was in operation but a single year. Now, I will direct a question to the Speaker. As I understand the standing rule of the Senate now to be, it requires two-thirds of the members present to dispense with a standing rule of the body. Then, Mr. Speaker, will it not require a two-thirds vote of this body to change the rules and adopt this rule?

The SPEAKER decided that it would not.

Mr. WALLACE. Will it not be a part of the rule which requires a majority vote? I understand the rule to be now that a majority may discharge a committee. Now, will it not be a change of that rule, if two-thirds be required to discharge a committee, and will not two-thirds be necessary to change the rule? The question will arise when we come to dispose of the subject.

THE SPEAKER. Does the Senator raise a point of order?

MR. WALLACE. No, sir.

THE SPEAKER decided that it would require but a bare majority to adopt a standing rule for the Senate; but that it would require a two-thirds vote to rescind or change a standing rule.

MR. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, the decision of the Chair is the most overwhelming argument in favor of defending this motion that has been made. A bare majority, according to that decision, has the power to bind two-thirds of this Senate during the entire session.

The Senator from Adams [Mr. M. CONAUGHY] has referred to the experience at Washington. Mr. Speaker, we have norown experience. The Senate of Pennsylvania has never had something of its own. From the hapless moment of the year 1862, we go along without this rule. This rule—why should I disguise it?—this rule was established to prevent a majority of this body passing a bill in 1862, that passed the House of Representatives, the bill to repeal the act in reference to the tonnage tax passed in 1861.

What's the use of disguising it? It was passed to prevent the repeal of an act coming under the control of a majority of this Legislature. It answered its end in 1862. After that, having accomplished its purpose, it was silently permitted to slumber, and now seems to be resurrected. The experience of the last two years since I have been a member of this body, my own observations, and the interests of my constituents is that this rule should not be established. It has been used to defy the wishes of my constituents for two years.

In reference to the argument about general legislation it has had nothing to do. I am sorry that there is so much laxity in the House in discharging a committee. I have not asked three times to have a bill taken up without going to a committee. I wish that was the universal rule. But any half dozen members, if they show a disposition to sustain the rules, can do it. It only refers to the action on two or three subjects which may come before us. In the history of this Senate for some eighty years this rule has existed but one single year. It was devised for a particular purpose. I was not a member of this body at the time; but we all understand the object for which it was devised. It answered its purpose then and I hope it will not be re-established, especially as the Speaker has indicated that a majority can re-establish it, which puts it beyond the power of two thirds during the whole session.

MR. BROWN (Lawrence). Mr. Speaker, the Senator from Chester [Mr. WORTHINGTON] has urged as a reason for the restoration of this rule, that we have in some instances too easily discharged committees and put bills on their final passage. It seems to me that this reason is not applicable to the case, for I have noticed that while it is true that bills have passed here very rapidly, it was only in cases where there was scarcely any vote of the Senate whatever upon the question. The fact is that bills have been put upon their final passage simply by the vote of one or two members, no one objecting. If you had a rule that a nine-tenths majority should be necessary to discharge a committee, you would have had the same result in the cases referred to. It would always be the case where interests of general importance were not involved so as to call out a full vote, while in the case of those bills where there are great and general interests involved, a majority of this body would be bound by this two-thirds rule, and our bills left hopelessly in the hands of a committee. Sir, my experience does not date so far back as that of the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. CONAUGHY] so far as it does go. I have to say that bills in which my constituents were interested could not be obtained from the committees without trouble, delay and risk of losing them. I have, therefore, come to the conclusion not to vote to put a letter upon the rights of my constituents by voting for the restoration of this rule. We have been injured, not by too much liberty, but by the tyranny of a few men in a committee. For these reasons I am opposed to the restoration of this rule; and if, on the contrary, my vote could make a rule that one-third could discharge a committee, I would give it.

MR. WORTHINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I have a single remark to make. It is well known that the Senate has heard this motion and listened for an hour to the views which were given on the ground of imperfection; and there are several bills that have been read and acted already which are in the same condition, and if they had passed this body they would have been returned here, voted, merely on account of this imperfect and hasty action on our part. Now, are we doing justice to ourselves, if we should, day after day, pass bills through this chamber or through this Legislature, which, when they came to be carefully and legally examined, have to be returned to us as not in accordance with the Constitution? I see no reason why we should not put some restrictions at least over these and over all actions of this body, that these committees may have time to examine those bills. Now, if the argument is good in the other branch, why should it not work well in this smaller body? Have we the power to see what they cannot see? Our process is the same as theirs, and if it is proper for them to adhere to this rule, it is proper that we should adhere to it. I may be mistaken, but my impression is that if the introduction of this rule was good at one time, why is it not good now? My mind is clear upon this subject, that this rule should be adopted.

On the motion to postpone the subject indefinitely,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WORTHINGTON and Mr. LOWRY, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Lowry, M'Canless, Searight, Stutzman, Wallace and White—14.
NAYS—Messrs. Burnett, Connell, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, Haines, Randall, James, Landon, M'Conaughy, Jackson, Ridgway, Schall, Shoemaker, Taylor, Walls, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—15.

So the question was determined in the negative.

During the call the SPEAKER said: Before I vote on this question I desire to state the reasons which govern me. I find before me that the rule which has been referred to was adopted on motion of the Senator from Erie [Mr. Lowry] in 1862. I believe it to be a good rule and a wise rule. It is the rule of every parliamentary body that I know anything about, except this, and I see nothing in the rules now in existence that conflicts with it, except the practice which has grown up, and which has led to the discharge of committees without any consideration of bills—important and unimportant—a vicious practice that grew up prior to 1862, and which was, in my judgment, much less frequent during that session than before. I therefore vote "no."

The question then recurred on postponing the further consideration of the subject for the present, and on that motion

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BIGHAM and Mr. LOWRY, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Cowles, Davis, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Lowry, M'Canless, Searight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace and White—20.

NAYS—Messrs. Donovan, Glatz, Jackson, James, Landon, M'Conaughy, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Walls, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—15.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

ELECTION RETURNS FOR GOVERNOR.

Messrs. QUAY and MARLEY, a committee from the House of Representatives, being introduced, informed the Senate that the hall of the House of Representatives was ready for the reception of the Senate, for the purpose of opening and publishing the official returns of the votes given on the second Tuesday of October, A. D. 1866, for Governor of the Commonwealth; whereupon

The Senate proceeded to the hall of the House of Representatives.

After some time, the Senate having returned to its chamber,

Mr. SHOEMAKER, teller on the part of the Senate, made a report, which was read as follows, viz:

That the Speaker and members of the Senate and House of Representatives met in the hall of the House of Representatives at 12 o'clock this day; that the Hon. LOUIS W. HALL, Speaker of the Senate, in pursuance of the Constitution and laws of the Commonwealth, did then and there proceed to open and publish the official returns of the election for Governor, held on the second Tuesday of October, A. D. 1866, in the city of Philadelphia and the several counties of the Commonwealth.

[See House proceedings.]

From which it appeared that

John W. Geary received 307,204 votes.

Gilester Clymer received 290,036 votes.

Hies Lewis received 1 vote.

John W. Geary, of Cumberland county, having received the highest number of votes was declared, by the Speaker of the Senate, to be duly elected Governor of the Commonwealth for the ensuing three years.

That two certificates of the result were signed by the Speaker of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, one of which was deposited by the Speaker of the Senate in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and the other, attested in like manner by the Speaker of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, was transmitted to the Governor elect.

The following is a copy of one of said certificates:

We, the Speaker of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do certify that the Speaker of the Senate did, on the 10th of January, A. D. 1867, in the Hall of the House of Representatives, in the State Capitol, open the returns of the election for Governor of this Commonwealth, and publish the same in the presence of both Houses of the Legislature, conformably to the Constitution of said Commonwealth, and that upon counting the votes by a teller appointed by each House, it appeared that John W. Geary had the highest number of votes; whereupon the said John W. Geary was declared duly elected Governor of the Commonwealth.

In testimony whereof we have hereunto set our hands and seals the day and year above written.

LOUIS W. HALL, [L. S.]

Speaker of the Senate.

JOHN P. GLASS, [L. S.]

Speaker of the House.

L. D. SHOEMAKER, Teller on the part of the Senate.

JOHN S. MANN, Teller on the part of the House.

Laid on the table.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

Joint resolution No. 3, entitled Joint resolution to ratify the amendment to the Constitution of the United States, being the special order of the day.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY said: Mr. Speaker, it is very clear that we shall not have time to discuss that question to day; I, therefore, move that it be postponed and made a special order for Thursday of next week.

Mr. LOWRY moved to amend that the consideration of the resolution be postponed for the present, and that it be made the special order of the day for every day hereafter until finally disposed of.

Mr. SEARIGHT: That has been the order ever since the subject has been broached. It has been postponed from day to day, and the proposition of the Senator from Erie [Mr. Lowry] is simply to continue the same course. I move, as an amendment to the amendment, that a special order be fixed for Monday evening next, at 7 o'clock, and that these amendments be made a special order for that occasion. My object is to have a definite time fixed. I am not particular about the time, so that it be fixed.

The amendment of Mr. SEARIGHT was not agreed to.

The question recurring on the motion of Mr. LOWRY,

It was agreed to.

BILLS CONSIDERED.

Mr. CONNELL moved that the Senate reconsider its vote on the final passage of bill No. 472, entitled A supplement to an act relating to the sale and conveyance of real estate, passed the 18th day of April, 1853, said bill having been returned to the Senate by the Governor in pursuance of a resolution of both Houses.

The motion of Mr. CONNELL was agreed to. And the bill being again before the Senate, Mr. CONNELL moved to amend the same, which was agreed to, and the bill, as amended, Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. LANDON, the Committee on the Judiciary Local was discharged from the further consideration of House bill No. 19, entitled An act authorizing an additional justice of the peace in the borough of Towanda, in the county of Bradford.

And the rule having been dispensed with, the Senate proceeded to the second reading of the same.

On the question, Will the Senate agree to the same?

Mr. LANDON moved to amend the first section of the bill, by striking out the words "first Monday of May," in the fifth and sixth lines, and insert in lieu thereof, "twelfth day of February."

The amendment of Mr. LANDON was agreed to, and

The bill

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. RANDALL, the Senate then adjourned till to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY, having asked and obtained leave to make a statement, said: Mr. Speaker, it is well known that a committee has been appointed by this body—a joint committee to act in conjunction with a similar committee ordered by the House—to make an investigation which has excited a great deal of interest throughout the Commonwealth. As under our resolution we shall adjourn over until Monday, and as there is a very deep interest existing throughout the Commonwealth in regard to it, as I said before, I would like to hear from that committee, if that committee is ready to report. I make the inquiry because, in this connection, is involved the interests of that organization with which I am connected, and the reputation of men eminent in the Commonwealth.

Mr. LOWRY, Mr. Speaker, the committee would have reported this morning had it had anything to report. Names of Senators and members of the House of Representatives, and of other distinguished men, were given that committee. Those gentlemen were brought before them and sworn. There is not a scintilla of evidence thus far elicited to raise even the presumption of guilt upon the part of either of the candidates for the office of United States Senator. Not a presumption, sir. More than that, sir, there is no evidence of even imprudence on their part. More than that, sir, there is no evidence, thus far, of indelicacy on their part. The committee might have stopped here and made their report, but they prefer to hold the question open and invite all the testimony that could be obtained on that subject. The names of Senators and members, as I have stated, were given us, who, it is alleged, would prove that they had been improperly approached by the candidates for United States Senator. They have entirely failed, thus far, to make the charges good.

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, returned bills from the Senate numbered and entitled as follows: No. 13, an act to incorporate the New Castle water company.

No. 14, an act to amend an act to incorporate the North American transit insurance company.

No. 20, an act to incorporate the Germantown swimming and skating park association.

With information that the Senate has passed the same without amendments.

He also informed that the House of Representatives has concurred in resolution of the Senate relative to the appointment of a committee to receive proposals and contract for the publication of a Daily Record, adding thereto the following amendment:

That said committee appointed to make said contract be required to stipulate that the said Record shall be laid daily (when the House and Senate are respectively in session) on the desk of each Representative and Senator, and said Record to contain inter alia the proceedings of such preceding session not more remote than the third session prior to the day when so laid on the desk, and that no money shall be drawn from the State Treasury for the contract price, or any part thereof, if said stipulation is not complied with, and that each member of the House and each Senator shall be entitled to thirty-five copies of the Record; that said committee stipulate with the contracting party or parties that all messages, reports and other documents directed to be published in said Record shall only be printed once therein.

Mr. CONNELL, moved to concur in the amendment just read.

Mr. BIGHAM, Will not this add largely to the expense?

Mr. CONNELL, Certainly. Mr. BIGHAM, It doubles the number of copies. I would like to know what was paid out for this Record last year; I would like to see a report from the committee, as to what additional expense this would create.

The motion of Mr. CONNELL to concur was Agreed to.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

Joint resolution No. 3, entitled Joint resolution to ratify the amendment to the Constitution of the United States, being a special order of the day.

Mr. WORTHINGTON moved that it be postponed to Monday evening, and made a special order at that time.

Mr. WHITE, Mr. Speaker, I trust the motion will not prevail, as some of the members who wish to speak and vote on these amendments will not probably be here on Monday night. I move to postpone to Wednesday evening, at 7½ o'clock.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, other States, among them Ohio and New York, meet on the same day that we did, and we already acted and ratified the amendments in both branches of their Legislatures. The spectacle we present here is interpreted by the public as hesitating what we shall do. I do not care myself whether we discuss it or not; it was not my design to do so; but I have every disposition to accommodate any members of this branch. I would suggest that we are putting ourselves before our constituents in a false position on this subject. I cannot believe that it results from any hesitation to act; but I am very much afraid that that is the inference to be drawn. Now, at this stage of the session, when we have not business enough to occupy us, we adjourn from day to day, and are still hesitating, apparently, to act on this subject. That inference will be drawn. I do hope that the majority of the Senate will not be put in this position.

Mr. LANDON. Mr. Speaker, these amendments are the order until disposed of, and I merely rise to second most heartily the remarks made by the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM]. I am ready to vote upon these resolutions at any time, and I will vote against all postponements of them.

Mr. WORTHINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I want this question acted upon at the earliest practicable moment; but we are on the eve of an adjournment until Monday evening, and I understand these are gentlemen here who want to speak upon this subject, if they wish the discussion to begin this morning, I am willing; I am ready to go into the question now. I have no desire to postpone the subject. I will leave it to those Senators who wish to speak upon it.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, one word, in justice to myself and in reply to the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM]. I am ready, with him, to vote upon these resolutions; but a desire has been manifested on the other side to discuss them. And for the reason that we have been anxious about the question which is familiar to every Senator here, I for one did not suppose the Senate was anxious to go into this question to-day. In addition to that, and if there was any necessity for haste, if our action here settles this question, I would say, do it promptly. But it is a foregone conclusion what it will be. Our situation and the situation in Ohio are entirely different. They have not had the anxiety about a certain matter that we have. There was no election for Senator there. I do not think any injury will be done by postponing the resolutions until Wednesday evening next, and then make them a special order until disposed of.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, it is now the special order for every session until disposed of. Now we propose to place them beyond Monday evening. I hope the motion will be voted down.

Mr. MCCONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I think there will be no disposition on the part of the Senate to press this matter to a vote on Monday evening. Senators may be absent then who will want an opportunity to vote.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the motion to postpone the consideration of the resolution until Wednesday evening next?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WHITE and Mr. LOWRY, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Billigfelt, Brown (Lawrence), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, James, McCandless, Seagriff, Wells and White—13.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Brown (Mercer), Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, McCaughy, Royer, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—14.

—So the question was determined in the negative.

The further consideration of the resolution was then postponed until Monday evening next, at 7½ o'clock.

NOMINATIONS FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR.

On motion of Mr. WALLACE, the Senate then proceeded to nominate candidates for United States Senator.

Mr. CONNELL nominated Simon Cameron, of Dauphin county.

Mr. FISHER nominated Thaddeus Stevens, of Lancaster county.

Mr. WALLACE nominated Edgar Cowan, of Westmoreland county.

Mr. DONOVAN nominated Samuel J. Randall, of Philadelphia.

Mr. STEPHEN A. KELK nominated Galusha A. Crow, of Susquehanna county.

Mr. SEARIGHT nominated William A. Wallace, of Clearfield county.

Mr. WHITE nominated A. G. Curtin, of Centre county.

Mr. JACKSON nominated Jesse Horton, of Northumberland county.

Mr. BIGHAM nominated Thomas Williams, of Allegheny county.

Mr. GIBBONS nominated Thomas M. Marshall, of Allegheny county.

On motion of Mr. DONOVAN, the nominations closed.

The SPEAKER then appointed Mr. BIGHAM teller on the part of the Senate.

The Senate then adjourned until Monday evening next, at 7½ o'clock.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

FRIDAY, January 11, 1867.

The House met at 10 o'clock, A. M.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. JACOB KENNEDY, member from Wyoming.

The SPEAKER announced that there was a quorum of members present.

The Clerk read the Journal of yesterday, and there being no objections, it was approved.

Mr. ROATH. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That when this House adjourns it adjourns to meet on Monday next, at 9 o'clock, P. M.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the resolution by making the time seven and a half o'clock, P. M.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I think the standing rules of the House provide for an adjournment until that time.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by inserting "Tuesday" instead of "Monday."

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I simply wish to say that, according to the law we have passed, we cannot well do that. I am not very certain about it, but it seems to me the safest way is to make it Monday.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I do not think it requires a resolution.

We adjourn under the rules to-day, we will meet at 7½ o'clock on Monday.

There is no resolution required, and I hope it will be voted down.

The amendments were withdrawn.

Mr. QUIGLEY. I move to indefinitely postpone the resolution.

The motion was Agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE SPEAKER.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows: Viz: No. 19, an act authorizing an additional justice of the peace in the borough of Towanda, in the county of Bradford.

With information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

He also informed that the Senate has concurred in the amendments made by the House of Representatives to bill numbered and entitled as follows: viz:

Senate bill No. 5, an act to define the time and regulate the manner of electing Senators to represent this State in the Senate of the United States.

He also presented bill numbered and entitled as follows: viz:

No. 472, a supplement to an act relating to the sale and conveyance of real estate, passed April 18th, 1853.

Which bill was returned to the Senate by the Governor on the 9th instant, in pursuance of a request contained in a resolution adopted by both Houses, with information that the Senate has re-considered said bill, and passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

LETTERS, PETITIONS, REMONSTRANCES, &c.

The list of committees was then called, and petitions presented as follows:

Mr. QUAY, Mr. Speaker, I present the following petition and ask that it be read.

The petition was read as follows:

To the Honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

The undersigned, citizens of Beaver county, having been apprised of an intended application, by interested parties, during the present session of the Legislature, for an act restraining or forbidding the use of crude petroleum oil for illuminating purposes, are constrained, for the following reasons, to remonstrate against the enactment of any such law:

In the first place, we believe that the suggestion of such a law, and the application for it, is instigated by those interested in the refining of petroleum; and who, not satisfied with the world-wide demand for their product and the evident profit accruing to them, are nevertheless jealous of and dissatisfied with the slight competition which is experienced in a few localities where a portion of the small production of crude oil, suitable for burning purposes has been used. Hence, they have industriously circulated the idea among those not acquainted with its use that it is extremely dangerous. &c. For years past they have been so lectured, until we think any who were so influenced have learned better, and this bug-bear having failed in its effect, it is proposed to procure legislation to aid them.

By exciting the fears of insurance companies and their agents, they have procured a strong alliance which may join them in their demands. We care not, however, upon what theory they set the demand for such a law; but we think that the facts do not justify their conclusions. The crude petroleum bill, such as is produced in Beaver county, and the only quality we believe which has been used in its natural state, to any extent, we have known to be constantly used for six years past, and there has not been as much—certainly no more loss by fires, than occurs in a community of an equal number using refined oils.

Indeed, incontrovertible facts appear to warrant the conclusion that the superior fire test, claimed for properly distilled oil, is more an imaginary than real security against the danger of fire and explosions. The fact that oil does not burn when touched by flame until it is heated to one hundred and ten degrees, makes, to say the most of it, very little difference when burning in a lamp, where more or less of the oil is always heated to the temperature, and in case of a fall or breakage of lamp, is exposed to the flame in a state ready to ignite.

The natural oil will burn, it is true, at a much lower temperature when touched with flame, but it does not explode any more than the oilier. It will burn precisely as alcohol or any spirituous liquor does, and yet these have been familiar articles about our houses for ages past, without being considered so dangerous to handle by anybody who knew that they would burn when exposed to fire.

The fact, however, that ninety-nine out of a hundred lamp explosions that have occurred has been of oil that has undergone the process of refining, proves either that too much faith is placed in the skill and integrity of refiners, or that these explosions are an effect of some kind under peculiar circumstances with any oil as now treated, and cannot be guarded against unless in the construction of the lamp.

And until refiners can and do produce an article that does not explode under any circumstances, it is an outrageous request to ask restraints to be placed upon the use of an oil proven to be not as dangerous, or at most no more so than their own.

In using the crude petroleum, we know just what we are using—the natural product having a uniform quality, while every distiller makes his own compounds, which are extremely variable and have proven unreliable.

For these reasons, we do most earnestly protest against having our rights abridged in the matter of burning any oil that in our judgment is cheapest, safest and best.

We protest that it is unjust and tyrannical to make us tributary to the refiner by compelling us to ship an article to their distilleries to be passed through their stills, returned to us, at a cost of three hundred per centum, charged with acids and chemicals, which leave it, as undeniable facts attest, fully as explosive, if not more so, than it was at first.

We are satisfied that stringent laws may be passed regulating the sale and production of explosive compounds, sold under the name of refined oil, and of which people are obliged to rely upon the producers for its quality. But the natural oil, so long as it is sold, bought and used as nature makes it, allows of neither deceit or fraud upon the consumers, and the intelligence of the community must be risked by the law-makers for its safe handling and consumption, which should be free to all who prefer its use.

Finally, we assert that the community of refiners have been unnecessarily alarmed about the probable increased production and consumption of this natural oil. It is found within narrow limits, and in small quantities. The whole production of this quality of oil is to the whole production of petroleum in the proportion of not more than one to forty, and nine tenths of this small production has heretofore passed through the hands of the refiners.

We therefore pray that no law so fraught with favoritism toward one class, injury to another, and useless burdens and restrictions upon the whole community, will obtain your sanction.

Respectfully yours, &c.
Signed by Samuel T. Hamilton and sixty others.

Mr. KINNEY, Mr. Speaker, I present the following petition and ask that it be read. The petition was read as follows:

To the Honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in General Assembly met:

The petition of the undersigned, citizens of the county of Sullivan, respectfully represents that Jesse M'Carty, Joshua B. M'Carty and Charles Norton, election officers of the Elkland district in Sullivan county, have been indicted by the grand jury of said county for refusing the vote of John C. Warburton, a well known deserter; and your petitioners further represent that they are of opinion that said prisoners cannot have a fair trial in Sullivan county for the following reasons:

First—The county is intensely Democratic, and the prevailing sentiment of the Democratic party in this county is that deserters have a right to vote, notwithstanding the law enacted by the Legislature of this State in 1856, imposing penalties upon election officers for receiving such votes. This view has been impressed upon the people in harangues from the stump, not only by leading Democrats, but by judges who are to try the case. All of the judges of the court of quarter sessions of this county were candidates for office at the late election, and actively engaged canvassing for votes. They have all expressed the opinion that deserters who have not been covered as such, are legal voters. And further, it is reported, and we believe, that one of the judges counseled this prosecution.

Second—The Democratic sheriff and commissioners have placed a large majority of their partisans in the jury wheel, including a number of deserters, so that deserters and their sympathizing friends are certain to be a majority of every jury. It is manifestly impossible, therefore, that the prisoners can have a fair trial in Sullivan county, and we therefore pray the honorable body to pass a law to change the venue in said case from the court of quarter sessions of Sullivan county to the court of quarter sessions of Bradford county. And your petitioners will ever pray.

Signed by Henry Norton and one hundred and twenty others.

As attorney for the defendants, I respectfully ask that the above petition may be granted, being fully of opinion that the defendants cannot get a fair trial in Sullivan county.

THOS. J. ISAIAH.

The petition was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

Mr. WILSON, Mr. Speaker, I present the following petition and ask that it be read.

The petition was read as follows:

The subscriber, a citizen of Pennsylvania, prays the General Assembly of said State, to propose to the people that the 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th and 20th sections of the first article of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania shall be so amended as to read as follows:

SECTION 2. The representatives shall be chosen annually, by the qualified voters, on the second Tuesday in October.

Sec. 3. No person shall be a representative who shall not have attained the age of twenty-one years, and have been a citizen or inhabitant of this State for three years next preceding his election; unless he shall have been absent on public business of this State or of the United States.

Sec. 4. The number of representatives shall be one hundred. Each qualified voter shall vote for one person to be a representative, and the number of votes polled for each person voted for shall be certified to the prothonotary of the court of common pleas of the proper county by the return judges thereof, within ten days after the election, and a true copy of such certificate shall be by him forwarded to the Governor of this Commonwealth within ten days thereafter; and it shall be the duty of the Governor on or before the first Monday in December, annually, to ascertain from said certificates the number of votes polled within the Commonwealth for each person voted for, and to issue his proclamation declaring those elected, not exceeding one hundred in number, naming them, and the number of votes received by each, who shall have received more than one-twentieth of the whole vote polled for representatives: Provided, That if more than one hundred shall have received that number of votes, then the one hundred having the highest number of votes shall be proclaimed elected: And provided, That if less than one hundred shall have received that number of votes, the Governor shall add to his proclamation the names of those next highest in votes, double in number to the vacancies, and it shall be the duty of the House of Representatives, after its organization and before proceeding to any legislation, to fill the vacancies therein from the persons whose names are so returned by the Governor.

Sec. 5. The Senators shall be chosen for three years, at the same time, in the same manner, and at the same places as the representatives.

Sec. 6. The number of Senators shall be thirty-three, one-third of whom shall be elected annually; each qualified voter shall vote for one person to be a Senator, and the votes shall be certified to the prothonotary, and a copy of said certificate forwarded to the Governor, as in the case of representatives; and it shall be the duty of the Governor on or before the first Monday in December, annually, to ascertain from said certificates the number of votes polled for each person voted for, and issue his proclamation declaring those elected (not exceeding eleven in number), naming them, and the number of votes received by each, who shall have received more than one-twenty-second part of the whole number of votes polled for Senators: Provided, That if more than eleven shall have received that number of votes, then the eleven having the highest number of votes shall be proclaimed elected: And provided, That if fewer than eleven shall have received the requisite number of votes, the Governor shall add to his proclamation the names of those next highest in votes, double in number to the vacancies, and it shall be the duty of the Senate, after its organization and before proceeding to any legislation, to fill said vacancies from the persons whose names are so returned by the Governor.

Sec. 7. That in a case of a tie vote which will prevent the election of a Senator or Representative, which will render it impossible for the Governor to return precisely double the number of names requisite to fill vacancies in either House, the names of such persons so receiving tie votes shall be returned, although the number so returned should be more than double the number of vacancies to be filled.

Sec. 8. No person shall be a Senator who shall not have attained the age of 25 years, and have been a citizen or inhabitant of this State for four years next preceding his election, unless he shall have been absent on the public business of this State or of the United States.

Sec. 20. When a vacancy happens in either house, it shall be filled by vote of the house in which said vacancy happens, from the two persons having the highest minority votes at the preceding election for Senator or Representative, as the case may be.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has concurred in the amendment made by the House of Representatives to the resolution of the Senate relative to the publication of the Legislative Record.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That the committee appointed under the resolution to inquire and report the amount of property exempt from taxation in the city of Philadelphia be and are hereby directed to include in their examinations all the property exempt from taxation in the State of Pennsylvania.

The resolution was read a second time, and

Agreed to.

Mr. LEE. I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That the State Librarian be directed to forward to the mayor of the city of Philadelphia the table, now in the State Library, on which the Declaration of Independence was signed; the same to be deposited in Independence Hall, among the other relics of the Revolution.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would state that it will require an act of the General Assembly to give away any of the property of the Commonwealth.

Mr. LEE. We do not propose to give it away. It will only bein the custody of the city of Philadelphia as State property. It is proper it should be there. It is a fit receptacle, Freedom—is not complete without its proper paraphernalia. I think that all such relics as this should be deposited there, so that those who make their pilgrimage to this sacred shrine, this cradle from which fair Liberty arose, may not be deprived of the pleasure of seeing all the surroundings that adorn its infancy. We do not propose to give it away, but simply to put it in its proper place.

Mr. SEILER. I move that the resolution be indefinitely postponed.

The motion was

Not agreed to.

The question then recurring, Will the House agree to the resolution? it was

Agreed to.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That one thousand copies of the report of the Board of Military Claims be printed for the use of this House, and one hundred copies for the use of the department.

The resolution was

Agreed to.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

WHEREAS, On the 16th day of June last, the Auditor General appointed a commissioner under the act of Assembly, to investigate and report upon the creditors of the Venango Bank;

And whereas, By the submitted report of that committee, it appears that one of its members reserved his report, together with the testimony taken in the case, subject to official request; therefore,

Resolved, That Colonel H. C. Alleman, of Harrisburg, be requested to furnish this House with his report and the testimony taken in the investigation of the condition of the Venango Bank.

The resolution was read a second time and

Agreed to.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That one thousand copies of the report of the Fish Commissioner be printed for the use of this House.

The resolution was read a second time and

Agreed to.

Mr. SUBERS. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That five thousand copies of the Gettysburg report be printed for the use of this House.

The resolution was read a second time.

Mr. KIMMELL. I move to amend by striking out "five" and inserting "eight."

On agreeing to the amendment, a division was called for.

Mr. BOYLE. I ask some gentleman to state what the Gettysburg report is—what is it about?

The SPEAKER. It is what is known, I presume, as the Gettysburg cemetery report.

Mr. BOYLE. I ask the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. SUBERS] to state what the report says—what is the subject, the purport of it.

Mr. SUBERS. Mr. Speaker, this report is sought after more than any other report that has been issued by this Legislature. It is a report that interests every man, woman and child. Bank reports and railroad reports are sought after by railroad men and banking men, but this is a report that will interest every person. It gives a history of the battle and a list of all who were killed there and are buried in the national cemetery. The report is very much sought after and I should like to see the resolution pass.

Mr. BOYLE. I would ask the gentleman whether it is the same report that was published last year.

Mr. SUBERS. No, sir, it is not. There was no report published last year. This resolution is to publish the report of the year before last.

The division, which had been called for, was then taken, when 47 voted for and 50 against the amendment.

So it was agreed to.

The question recurring, Will the House agree to the resolution as amended?

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I do not know that I am opposed to this resolution; but I would like some gentleman to inform me for how many years this report has been printed, how many copies have been issued and what has been the aggregate expense of putting them out.

I think members ought to have some knowledge of the question, before they vote to appropriate money for anything of this kind.

A similar resolution was offered here last winter, and the House rejected it by a large majority.

For my part, I would like to have more information on this subject, so that I may vote intelligently.

The question being on adopting the resolution as amended, it was

Agreed to.
Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to inquire into the propriety of prohibiting steam engines running into and over the paved streets and built up portions of the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. JOSEPHS. I move to amend the resolution by striking out "three" and inserting "five."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The resolution as amended was

Agreed to.

Mr. ESPY. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution:

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That there be printed five thousand copies of the report of the State Historian for the use of this House.

The resolution was read a second time.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I simply wish to inquire whether this refers to the Military History.

If it does, it seems to me that it is rather premature, for that history is, as yet, incomplete. The historian has reported that he is progressing with the work; but it seems to me a very unsatisfactory thing to have an unfinished document. If it is to that history that the resolution refers, I hope that it will not pass. Let us wait until it is complete.

Mr. ESPY. The resolution is not intended to refer to the history, but to the report of the historian.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, we have already directed that to be published in the Record, and I think that ought to be sufficient.

The question being on adopting the resolution, it was

Not agreed to.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn.

The SPEAKER. Before putting the question on the motion to adjourn, the Chair will clear the table.

Senate bill No. 402 was reconsidered in the Senate, amended and returned to the House for concurrence.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, this bill has been amended by the substitution of an entire new bill for the old one.

I therefore move that it be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary General.

The motion was

Agreed to.

House bill No. 10, passed by the Senate with amendments.

The amendments were concurred in.

The question being on the motion of Mr. DAVIS to adjourn, it was

Agreed to.

The SPEAKER. According to the rules, this House stands adjourned until next Monday evening at 7½ o'clock.

SENATE.

Monday, January 14, 1867.

The Senate met and was called to order at 7½ P. M., by the SPEAKER.

Prayer by the Rev. E. A. BROWSE, Senator from Lawrence county.

On motion of Mr. DONOVAN, the reading of the Journal of Friday was dispensed with.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, informed the Senate that the House of Representatives has concurred in the amendment made by the Senate to bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

No. 19, an act to authorize an additional justice of the peace in the borough of Towanda, in the county of Bradford.

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth being introduced, presented several messages in writing from the Governor.

[See House proceedings.]

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the regular orders were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of joint resolution entitled Joint resolution to ratify the amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

On the question, Shall the resolution pass? Speeches were delivered by Messrs. CONNELL, SEARIGHT, LINDON and WALLACE, which have been withheld for revision.

On motion of Mr. BIGHAM, the Senate, at 11 o'clock, adjourned to meet at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Monday Evening, January 14, 1867.

The House met at 7½ o'clock, P. M.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. JACOB KENNEDY, member from Wyoming.

The SPEAKER announced a quorum of members present.

The Journal of Friday last was read, and, there being no objections, was approved.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 24, an act to incorporate the Germania savings institution of Erie.

No. 44, an act to incorporate the Eureka Life and Accident insurance company.

No. 45, a supplement to an act approved the sixth day of February, 1849, entitled A supplement to an act entitled An act to incorporate the Lykens Valley coal company, in Dauphin county, Pennsylvania, and to authorize the opening of a road in Honesdale, Wayne county, authorizing them to dispose of the stock of said company.

No. 46, an act to increase the fees of certain county officers in Sullivan county, and to validate certain charges heretofore made.

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth being introduced, presented several messages in writing from His Excellency, the Governor, which were read as follows:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,

HARRISBURG, January 14, 1867.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

GENTLEMEN—I have approved and signed the following acts of General Assembly, to wit:

On January 9th, 1867:

An act to authorize the appointment of an additional notary public for the county of Lehigh.

An act relative to the receiver of taxes in the city of Philadelphia, repealing so much of the act of April ninth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, as authorizes him to charge five per centum commission for collecting taxes from delinquent taxpayers.

A supplement to an act authorizing the borough of Hollidaysburg to erect water works, approved March 16, 1866.

An act relative to elections in the Farmers' and Merchants' insurance company.

On January 11th, 1867:

Supplement to an act to provide for the erection of a poor house for the better relief and employment of the poor in the township of Oxford and Lower Dublin in the county of Philadelphia, approved April 11, 1867, authorizing the directors to borrow money.

An act to establish a ferry over the Allegheny river at or near the mouth of Big Scrubgrass, in Venango county.

An act to define the time and regulate the manner of electing Senators to represent this State in the Senate of the United States.

A supplement to the act incorporating the Sullivan land company, authorizing said company to sell and exchange lands.

An act to authorize the Freedom iron and steel company to issue and dispose of lands of the said company convertible into capital stock, and to secure them by a mortgage, granting certain powers to facilitate the mining, manufacturing, transporting and vending business of said company, and extending their charter as hereby amended.

January 12th, 1867.

An act to incorporate the New Castle water company.

An act to incorporate the Germantown swimming and skating park association.

An act to amend an act to incorporate the North American transit insurance company, approved March thirteenth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty, and the supplement thereto, so as to authorize said company to insure persons against death or disability, whether from natural diseases, accident or otherwise, and to issue policies therefor in the usual manner under the name, style and title of the North American life and accident insurance company.

On January 14th, 1867:

An act authorizing an additional justice of the peace in the borough of Towanda, in the county of Bradford.

A. G. CURTIN.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented a message from the Governor, which was read as follows, viz:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,

HARRISBURG, January 14, 1867.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

GENTLEMEN—In April last three bills were presented for my approval, one entitled "A supplement to the act incorporating the Susquehanna boom company, authorizing the erection of a dam and allowing increase of tolls," and the other entitled "An act declaratory of the law relating to taking up lumber and prohibiting the floating of loose saw-logs in the Susquehanna river, between the town of Northumberland and the line of the State of Maryland." Great opposition was manifested by numerous parties in my approval of these bills, and on the other hand the friends of the bills insisted strongly on the propriety of their being approved, as being necessary for the just protection of the interests of the Commonwealth and her citizens interested in the vast lumber trade of the Susquehanna.

Opinions being thus divided I fixed a day, of which notice was given to all parties, and on which the friends and opponents of the bills were fully heard before me, by themselves and their respective counsel.

The arguments and statements then submitted to me, demonstrated clearly that the rights and interests of many of our citizens, and the prosperity of the lumber trade of the Susquehanna, were seriously involved in the decision of the question of the approval, or non-approval, of these bills. I was satisfied, also, that this question ought to be determined only after a full investigation, by impartial, practical and scientific men, of the facts of the case and the necessities of the trade. I therefore, in July last, requested Col. James Worrall, of Harrisburg, to visit the localities and make a careful examination, and report on the whole subject. He did so, and made me a verbal report, in accordance with the report of Col. Wright, to be presently noticed. Col. Worrall was almost immediately afterwards dispatched on the public service of the United States to the remote Northwest, whence he has not yet returned, and has therefore failed to make a written report.

Subsequently I addressed a letter to Col. John A. Wright, now of Philadelphia, requesting him to make an examination, a copy of which accompanies this message.

On the 19th of November last, Col. Wright made a report, a copy of which is herewith presented.

Finding that Col. Worrall and Col. Wright, after making separate examinations, wholly independent of each other, had arrived at similar conclusions, I apprised the parties interested that if the boom company would bind themselves to adopt, and carry out the suggestions made by these gentlemen, I would approve the bills, as the delay which would necessarily take place if all proceedings should be suspended till the Legislature could act anew on the whole subject, would be manifestly injurious to the public interests.

A formal stipulation was, therefore, made by the Susquehanna boom company, and duly ratified by a meeting of its stockholders, on the 30th of November last, of which, and of the minutes of the meeting of the stockholders, a copy is also herewith presented.

I accepted this stipulation or agreement, and have caused the same, together with a duly authenticated copy of the minutes of the meeting of the stockholders, to be filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

It will be perceived that by the terms of this agreement, the company agree to construct a dam and booms, as far as to accommodate the descending trade, and to pay into the State Treasury the whole of the fifty cents, to be paid for loose logs that may be caught in the boom, and to assent to any legislation that may be had to effect these objects.

Having thus, as I conceived, preserved the public interest, I approved the bills on the 11th of December last.

If the question presented had been the original question, whether booms should be authorized at all in the Susquehanna, it would have been open to many considerations of public policy and advantage, but as booms had already been constructed under powers conferred by law, and a large amount of capital had been invested in them, and the course of the trade modified by reason of them, it appeared to be eminently proper that the original question should be absolutely necessary. The additional capital to be raised by the company will give it the ability to pay damages that may be sustained by reason of any negligence on their part in fulfilling their duties.

I now present the whole matter to the consideration of your honorable bodies, submitting to your wisdom the question what further legislation may be proper and expedient.

The lumber trade of the Susquehanna has grown to be one of the most important interests in the Commonwealth, and the power to erect booms at Williamsport and Lock Haven, has made these the great manufacturing and distributing points.

The enterprise and capital invested at these points deserve just protection, but at the same time care should be taken that the right of navigating the river should not be interfered with more than is absolutely necessary.

The Legislature has now the power to settle all these discordant interests on principles of justice, and treating the boom companies at Lock Haven and Williamsport alike, give them equal powers and rights to charge for the capital invested fair remunerative prices and means of protection.

A. G. CURTIN.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, November 8, 1866.

SIR—The bills enclosed have been in my hands since the adjournment of the Legislature. I have heard the parties interested for and against and their counsel.

I desire you to make a full examination of the rights and interests to be effected by the legislation and report to me in writing.

1st. Whether the bills should become laws for the just and reasonable protection of the lumber business now existing at or near Williamsport.

2d. Whether in thus giving protection to the business and capital invested, the rights of others, above and below Williamsport, using the river are sufficiently guarded.

3d. Whether in your judgment there is or is not sufficient in existing laws to give ample protection to the lumber interests, and if not, whether the provisions of those bills are unreasonable or unjust.

4th. You will please to make your examinations and surveys with the knowledge (so far as possible) of the parties opposed to the bills, and inform me whether, in your judgment, the boom company should be allowed to charge for lumber accidentally caught in the boom, and if so, if the charges mentioned in the bill are reasonable.

Very respectfully,

A. G. CURTIN.

Colonel JNO. A. WRIGHT.

To His Excellency A. G. Curtin, Governor of Pennsylvania:

SIR—In obedience to your letter of the 8th November, I proceeded to Williamsport to examine the boom now erected at the site of the proposed dam, as authorized in the bill you refer to, and to examine generally as to facts to enable me intelligently to answer the several queries in your letter of instructions.

The rapid growth of the lumber trade on the West Branch of the Susquehanna, and its great monetary value, entitle it to proper protection from loss, which experience has taught can only be secured through the medium of a well constructed boom.

The practical working of booms, wherever established, must and do show that there can be but one successful boom on a river. The large cost involved and the unavoidable interference with and detention of logs or lumber of other parties, are sufficient impediments to the business to prevent more than one boom being successful on a river. Such being the case, the next important point should be its location, which must be determined, 1st, By proper physical conformation in the river, giving by a dam a large and long pool, and when the amount of lumber is large, sufficient depth of water and length of pool to provide more than one boom for better security of the timber; and 2d, It should be located at or above the point where the distribution of lumber commences.

The Susquehanna boom fulfills remarkably these two conditions. The long seven mile reach in the river at Williamsport, with the river nearly a straight line, high banks and stony bottom, fulfills the physical requirements, while it is immediately north of the commencement of the distributing railroads, and has convenient access to our system of canals.

The lumber trade has grown up in a few years from ten to one hundred and fifty millions of feet, and rapidly increasing. A run of 200,000,000 of feet in logs is looked for in the spring of 1867. A city is rapidly growing at Williamsport, dependent on this trade, and a large amount of capital has been and is being invested in mills, land, buildings, &c. This business is valuable to the State, and any reasonable legislation should be granted to protect it, and to encourage its development.

The Susquehanna boom company have steadily, amid many discouragements, persevered in keeping up and improving their boom, and are now engaged in erecting a mile of additional boom at Linden, on the river, to add in furnishing room for the harbor of logs; but to make this boom more effective a dam is required within the limits named by the bill.

I am clear that the dam is required, that it will not injure the lumber interests below its proposed location, and that it will be of great benefit to the general trade.

To build the dam and erect substantial piers in the river, sufficient to accommodate a run of two hundred million feet, would require an outlay of at least seven hundred thousand dollars, for which investment the company are entitled to secure fair returns for their stockholders, after the necessary expenses and repairs. But the proposed increase rates from fifty cents per one thousand feet, to eighty-five cents per one thousand feet, and from eight cents per log to twenty-five cents per log (the other twenty-five cents going into the treasury of the State) is, in my judgment, more than is reasonable and just. True, there is great risk to the property of the company, and there is a legal responsibility attached to them for losses of lumber.

They must also guard against the increasing height and fury of floods, as the lands on the head waters of the river are cleared. Yet the charges in the law are more than sufficient to cover all the risks and yet make adequate return to the stockholders for their investment.

The latter charge for logs, destined for the river below Williamsport, is defended on the ground of necessary protection to the large interests already concentrated at Williamsport. If this is the true object, and its imposition will secure the objects, then such amount of protection should be secured to the interest of Williamsport, but the fund arising therefrom should not be a prerequisite of the boom company, but should all go to the treasury of the State.

Such change being made in the bill, a very amply remunerating charge will be left, and more than under ordinary circumstances I could recommend. The approving the bills before your Excellency will establish a heavy tax on millions of acres of land, and it is exceedingly important the interests of the holders of such lands should be protected. But the present posture of affairs seems to be that there is some objection to the very large expenditures being made to strengthen and rebuild the piers of the present boom to prepare, as well as may be, for the trade of next spring, and delay or want of care may result in immense losses to the owners of the logs, and that the bills becoming laws will induce the boom company to make such improvements and repairs. While I do not acknowledge the force of this conclusion, yet it is of some importance—the rendering the company able to pay for losses of lumber arising from defect of their boom, which it is not now, and therefore no claim has heretofore been made. These considerations, on the whole, seem sufficient to warrant me in recommending that the bill, entitled A supplement, &c., with the modifications proposed, should become a law.

The declaratory law, as it may be called, does not appear to me to be practically of much consequence. While it bears on the face of it, the necessity of protecting rafts of lumber from injury by floating logs and imposes a penalty therefor by allowing such loose logs to be taken up, &c., &c., and requires all logs to be made up in rafts and under proper pilotage, yet the evident working of the law would be to create vexatious difficulties in the way of those who desire to send logs down the river, by the premiums to log catchers, and if in practice many logs should come down the river, the morose tendency would be questionable. However, if the boom at Williamsport is well built, but few logs will pass it, as the inducement will be lost in the charge of the additional forty-two cents per log, unless it should beto send logs in the ice freshet. Even then but few logs could be taken up, for the ice would carry them in its current and the danger would prevent much effort to capture the logs even near shore, while it is a question whether logs can be successfully taken down in an ice freshet.

I would, therefore, respectfully submit my answer to your question:

To the first—With the change proposed in direction of the whole charge for passing logs to the State Treasury? Affirmatively.

To the second question—The rights of others above and below Williamsport are probably as well protected as they could be to give that security to the immense value in lumber that must for many years be carried down the river, at least until branch railways shall be built from the main lines, reaching the smaller streams and penetrating the ravines and gorges of the mountains.

To the third question. I do not know that the provisions of the bills are unreasonable or unjust, with the exception already stated in the answer to the first question, yet I would have felt more at ease in recommending your signature to the bills, if in addition to the diversion of all the proceeds from passing logs there had been less than thirty-five cents per one thousand feet proposed to be added. Yet, for the reasons stated heretofore, and the further facts that the boom company do incur an expense in passing logs which reduces their profit, I could not say that the charges were unreasonable and unjust.

To the fourth question. The answer to this is involved in the answer to the first question.

Taking your question as a whole, I would respectfully submit that while the bills referred to are in some points objectionable and are susceptible of improvement, yet if the exception referred to can be properly arranged, I do not see that the objections are sufficient to cause you to withhold your signature from the bills, in view of the importance to the general interests of a speedy decision.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN A. WRIGHT.

Harrisburg, November 19, 1866.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Susquehanna boom company, held in the office of the company, Williamsport, November 30, 1866, Mr. L. A. Ensworth was called to the chair, and Mr. Henry White appointed Secretary.

The following resolution of the board of directors, authorizing Mahlon Fisher, John G. Reading and Peter Herdic to make an agreement on behalf of the boom company, to wit:

Resolved, That Mahlon Fisher, John G. Reading and Peter Herdic be, and they are hereby, authorized on behalf of this company, to make such arrangements concerning future legislation upon the bills, now in the hands of his Excellency, the Governor of this Commonwealth, as may be satisfactory to his Excellency, the Governor, and in accordance with the interests of the Susquehanna boom company; and the following contract entered into in pursuance of said resolution, to wit:

And whereas, Two several bills were passed by the Legislature of Pennsylvania, at the session of 1866, to wit: One entitled A supplement to the act incorporating the Susquehanna boom company, authorizing the erection of a dam, and allowing the increase of tolls, the other entitled An act declaratory of the law relating to the taking up of lumber and prohibiting the floating of loose logs in the Susquehanna river between the town of Northumberland and the line of the State of Maryland;

And whereas, Certain objections have been urged to the Governor, in order to prevent him from approving of said bills, alleging that the same would interfere with the facilities heretofore used by citizens of the State, owning saw-mills below the boom on the Susquehanna river or adjacent thereto; and that the rate of passing floating logs (fifty cents each), as authorized by one of said bills, was intended to be made a source of great revenue to the boom company;

And whereas, It is important that the bills should be approved soon, if at all, in order to proceed with the improvements contemplated;

And, therefore, In order to meet these objections, and assure the protection of the interests of all concerned, we the undersigned, Mahlon Fisher, John G. Reading, and Peter Herdic (a committee duly constituted and appointed for that purpose by the board of directors of the Susquehanna boom company, as appears by a certificate from the minutes of November 19th, 1866, hereto annexed), on behalf of the said, the Susquehanna boom company, do hereby agree and agree that if his Excellency, the Governor, shall approve and sign the said bills forthwith, the dam and schute provided for in one of said bills, shall be constructed so as not to interfere in any manner with the reasonable navigation of the river for rafts of logs, boards, sawed timber or other kinds of timber; or with the passage of arks, or other craft heretofore used for any such purposes, and that the same shall not in any way be subject to tolls or charges in passing the said dam or schute of the said company, or the facilities referred to and heretofore used by the public in that behalf unreasonably interfered with.

And we do further agree, in consideration of the promises, that instead of one-half of the fifty cents per log for passing the floating logs, as provided in one of said bills, the whole of the revenue from that source shall be paid to the Commonwealth by the company. And further, we do hereby agree that if the Legislature should hereafter deem it necessary to pass a law embodying the foregoing provisions and stipulations, as explanatory of the bills now sought to be approved, the said company shall accept of the said law, and hold its provisions binding to the same effect as if the same had been embodied in the original bills, was submitted for consideration.

Whereupon the following resolution, offered by Mr. John White, and seconded by Mr. George W. Lentz, was passed, to wit:

Resolved, That the stockholders of the Susquehanna boom company hereby approve the foregoing resolution, passed by the board of directors, and also ratify and confirm the contract submitted, as signed and approved by Mahlon Fisher, John G. Reading and Peter Herdic, on behalf of the Susquehanna boom company, and they pledge the company to carry out, in good faith, all the terms and conditions of said contract.

The following preamble and resolution, offered by Mr. John White and seconded by Mr. George W. Lentz, was passed:

WHEREAS, It is desirable that the boom should be enlarged and constructed of materials that will require a less constant outlay for repairs; therefore,

Resolved, That to enlarge the boom of this company and make it more durable, the capital stock be increased six hundred and thirty-nine thousand four hundred dollars, making a total capital of seven hundred thousand dollars.

L. A. ENSWORTH, President.

HENRY WHITE, Secretary.

I certify that the above are correct proceedings at the stockholders' meeting November 30, 1866.

GEORGE W. LENTZ, Secretary Susquehanna Boom Company.

I certify that at a meeting of the stockholders of the Susquehanna boom company, held on Friday evening, November 30, 1866, there was present the following stock representation, to wit:

James H. Perkins,	11 shares.
Geo. W. Lentz,	9 "
John G. Reading,	52 "
Herdie, Lentz & Whites,	189 "
Reading, Fisher & Co.,	167 "
L. A. Ensworth,	58 "
Peter Herdic (Perry),	2 " making

478 shares, which was more than three-fourths of the whole capital stock of said company.

Geo. S. BANGSE, Acting Secretary and Treasurer Susquehanna Boom Company.

ADDITIONAL MEMBERS OF A STANDING COMMITTEE.

The SPEAKER stated that, in announcing the standing committees of this House, on Friday last, the names of Messrs. McCREARY and LINTON had been accidentally omitted from the Committee of the Judiciary General.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, at the request of a number of my constituents, I had prepared a resolution to offer to the House to inquire into the expediency of prohibiting the passage of locomotives through the paved limits of the city of Philadelphia—prior to the meeting of the House. I mentioned the matter to my colleague from Philadelphia [Mr. HOON], asking his support of the resolution, which he promised to give. On Friday, much to my surprise, Mr. HOON rose in his place and proposed the resolution I had prepared, without giving me any intimation of the same. This had placed me in a false position before my constituents, and I ask the kind indulgence of the House to have these remarks printed in the Record, so that I may at least be placed in a proper light before the parties most interested. There is no steam railroad in Mr. HOON's district, and therefore his constituents are not directly interested in such a resolution, while the whole breadth of my district is traversed by the Baltimore and Pennsylvania railroad companies. I leave the House to judge between myself and to the justness of my remarks, and can only say that my assertions as to my being the originator of the resolution in question can be borne out by a number of others to whom I submitted it before I had decided to offer it to the House.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I have a few remarks to make in response to the state ment made by my colleague from Philadelphia [Mr. GREGORY]. I had an intimation that something of the character of the resolution I introduced would be presented to the consideration of this House; but in what shape I was entirely uninformed. My colleague from the Second district of Philadelphia is neither my guardian, my mentor, nor director in this House. I do not believe he has any right to control me in my actions. True, a conversation did take place between him and myself in regard to this matter. Other matters have been discussed between us, which he has presented to this House without consulting with me. This is a matter as to whether steam engines shall or shall not be allowed to run through the thickly built portions of the city of Philadelphia, a portion of which I represent. When I was elected to the Legislature I considered myself in duty bound to endeavor to advance the interests of the city of Philadelphia, and also of the State of Pennsylvania, and not limit myself to any particular district. I claim that I had a right to introduce this resolution when it suited me to do so, without inquiring of my colleague whether I should or not. I am very sorry if he believes that I meant him any wrong, for I certainly did not. The time was waning towards the close of the day when I introduced it on Friday last, and I desired it should be before the House as soon as possible. I can see no objection to my introducing the resolution, for we are both working for the same end, viz. to remove a nuisance from the city of Philadelphia, whereby the value of property may be increased and the taxes of the people diminished.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order. This question is not now debatable.

Mr. HOOD. I beg leave to say that I am not discussing any question, but simply making an explanation.

Mr. MANN. Then the member is out of order.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the gentleman be allowed to finish his statement.

The motion was

Agreed to.

Mr. HOOD. I hold that, as a representative from the city of Philadelphia, I stand clear before this House of any intimation which the gentleman has endeavored to make. We each have a duty to perform, and it makes no difference whether a matter of this nature comes from my friend from the other side of the House, or who it comes from, so long as it is well intended. I am sorry to see that my friend feels so badly about the matter of the conversation between us. I will only say that as a new member, this will put me on my guard in the future against holding conversations with gentlemen so exceedingly sensitive as my colleague seems to be. I shall try to be cautious about having any conversation with him in regard to what is going on in this House.

I repeat, Mr. Speaker, that I have no disposition to do my colleague any injustice, and am only sorry that, in my sincere wish to promote the interests of the city of Philadelphia, my honest zeal has made me so unfortunate as to steal his thunder.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman has stated the case so fairly, that I have nothing further to say.

The matter now is simply a question between him and myself, and as to who is in the right, I leave the members to judge.

Referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. BARTON. I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:
Resolved, That General W. A. Pierce, of Virginia, have the use of this hall on Thursday evening next, to deliver a public address. Subject—"Our Age of Heroism."

Read a second time and

Agreed to.

Mr. KINNEY. I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That hereafter the postoffice of this House shall be required to be kept open from 8 A. M. until 1 P. M., from 2 P. M. to 6 P. M., and from 7 to 9 P. M. On Sundays from 8 to 10 A. M., and from 2 to 4 P. M.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I think that resolution contemplates the closing of the postoffice from 1 to 2 P. M., and from 6 to 7 P. M. It would cause a great inconvenience to members coming here at those hours for their mail to have to wait an hour at noon or an hour in the evening. I think the postmaster and assistants can so arrange the matter as to keep the office open all the time during the day except on Sundays.

I therefore move to amend by striking out all of the resolution except that part which relates to Sundays.

Mr. KINNEY. I offered the resolution at the solicitation of the postmaster and according to my recollection of the rule of the last session. If such was not the rule last winter I have no wish to establish it now. I therefore accept the amendment.

The resolution was then

Agreed to.

Mr. WHANN. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That five thousand copies of the report on the Venango County bank be printed for the use of this House.

The resolution was read a second time.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I do not see the use of printing any copies of this report for the use of this House. I think all that is necessary is included in the Auditor General's report. There is no occasion whatever to print any number of copies, and I move the indefinite postponement of the resolution.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Venango [Mr. WHANN] can probably explain why he wishes this report printed better than I can. I think that, taking all the circumstances together, the failure of this bank, the wide spread excitement, and also the law on which it was founded requiring an investigation of all banks that failed under the State law—that this report should be printed. I am willing that the gentleman should move to amend by reducing the number to be printed, but I trust the resolution will not be indefinitely postponed. It will not be printed in the Auditor General's report. Under the law the Auditor General appoints a commission to take testimony to show why the bank failed, but unless there is an order made to print the report will be laid upon the table and will not reach the people who are most interested in this matter. The people of the State, especially of the western part, want to understand this matter, and, unless there is an order of the House made to print this report, it will never be spread before the people at all. The object I had, in offering the resolution in relation to this bank that I did on Friday, was to bring out the report and have it printed.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, if I understand the position of my colleague, it is this: A commission has been appointed to investigate the affairs of this bank; there has been a resolution passed this House requiring that commission to report to this House, and now here is a resolution to have that report printed. That report has not yet come before the House; when it does I will vote for its publication.

Mr. DAVIS. Under the resolution of last Friday the report was made to this House, and this evening the report was laid, by the Speaker, upon the table. If I understand the rules of the House, that is the last of it so far as the printing of it is concerned, unless we pass a resolution to print it.

Mr. QUIGLEY. I understand it thus: The report will be printed in the Record. I take it that every report laid on the table will be printed in the Record. Am I correct, sir?

The SPEAKER. It will be published in the Legislative documents only unless otherwise ordered by the House.

Mr. QUIGLEY. I therefore see no occasion whatever for publishing five thousand or five hundred copies of this report. It will be published with the Legislative documents and copied into the newspapers, especially in the district my friend from Venango represents. The newspapers will publish just such extracts as they think will be of interest to their readers. There is no occasion whatever for taxing the people of the State for publishing five thousand copies of a document of this kind. It may be a very long and tedious report, of no interest whatever, except to those who lost by the failure of the bank.

Mr. DAVIS. The gentleman has gone into a long argument to show that it is not necessary to publish this report. But there are but few persons who would not like to have all the light they can get on this subject. The law also requires that any bank organizing under the State law and failing, the cause of its failure shall be investigated.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Will my colleague allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. DAVIS. I have no objection.

Mr. QUIGLEY. If I understand the matter this Venango bank was organized under our free banking law, and afterward became a National bank. Am I correct?

Mr. DAVIS. It never became a National bank in form I believe. The object of this report is to show the world what did become of that bank. This bank was organized under the Free Banking Law of Pennsylvania, and the stockholders and directors have been attempting, under the laws of the United States, to change it into a National bank. But the facts seem to be that it never became a National bank, but that its funds were stolen. I wish this matter fully laid before the world, that I may know how much I have lost and how much the people of the State have lost through the failure of this bank.

Mr. WHANN. Mr. Speaker, this report is without doubt of more interest to the people of the Western part of the State than any other. It is that section of the State which has suffered by the failure of the bank. But, as I view it, this question interests the people of the whole State. The present banking system has not stood the test of many years, and it is a question whether it will stand that test or not. Now, sir, under that banking law, one of the greatest swindles has been perpetrated of which the annals of this country give any knowledge. It was under this system of banking that this swindle took place. Now, here is the case, and here is the report of the investigation.

The cause of the failure of this bank has been investigated, and by proper officers. The question then is, whether we shall leave the result of this investigation before the world, or whether we shall cover it up. I say that it is of interest to every member here to know whether this banking system is what we desire, what we can rely upon. This is especially why I offered this resolution. If the banking system is not at fault, we want to know where the fault is. Does the fault belong with the directors of that bank, or does it belong to the officers, or is the fault in the banking law itself? This swindle has been perpetrated, and I think it is right we should know the cause of it. I believe that when the proper view is taken of this question, the members of this House will be desirous of seeing the report of the investigating committee.

Mr. CHASE. Mr. Speaker, my constituents are quite as much interested in this matter as those of the gentleman from Venango [Mr. WHANN], and I wish to support this measure, as the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] says, to find out how much my constituents lost, also what the gentleman from Philadelphia lost, and have published a full statement of the conduct of the officers of this bank. It is highly important that every man in the State should know the facts in the case. I however think three thousand copies enough, and move to amend to that effect.

Mr. WHANN. I accept the amendment.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I admire, as much as any one, the disposition of my friend from Philadelphia [Mr. QUIGLEY] to economize, and I would be glad to second his efforts in that direction, but I consider this a question which not only the people of Philadelphia, but the people of the whole State, have a vital interest. By printing this report, I think there can be no injury done to any one, and there may be benefit to many. The bringing of this report before the world may be instrumental in divulging the causes of the failure of this bank, which has made so many men poor in our State, and put them on their guard against anything of the kind in the future. It may also develop the principles of this banking system on which this bank was founded as being wrong. I think there may be much good grow out of it, and the expense of printing is but a little thing in comparison.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I do not desire to be factions in this matter. My colleague [Mr. DAVIS] seems to think I know nothing about this bank. I think I know more about it than my colleague does. The bank was a swindle from the beginning. When it was organized under the free banking system it was then a swindle, and the very men who got it up were swindled. I am not one of the defenders of C. Y. Culver, but he was swindled in the affair. I know that to be a fact. I have no feeling at all in this matter. If the gentleman from Venango [Mr. WHANN] will modify his resolution so as to have a limited number of copies printed for his district I will agree to it. But I see no necessity for the number proposed.

I will withdraw my motion to indefinitely postpone.

Mr. WHANN. Mr. Speaker, I remarked that this was an extensive swindle, but I did not apply this remark to any one individually. I mentioned the directors of the bank and the officers, and said that it probably arose from some of those, but this investigation is calculated to give us the opinion of the commissioners as to where the swindle lies.

The question recurring on the amendment of the gentleman from Crawford [Mr. CHASE], Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out "three" and inserting "one."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The resolution as amended was then

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That the message of the Governor, and accompanying documents, in relation to the bills entitled A supplement to the act incorporating the Susquehanna boom company, authorizing the erection of a dam, and allowing increase of tolls; and to an act declaratory of the law relating to taken-up lumber, and prohibiting the floating of logs saw logs in the Susquehanna river, between the town of Northumberland and the line of the State of Maryland, be referred to a committee of five, to inquire and report what legislation is necessary to a just protection of all parties interested in the matters contained in said message.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out "five" and inserting "three."

Mr. GREGORY. I accept the amendment.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I should like to hear some reason why this should be referred to a special committee, and not to some regular committee of the House. If the matter is of such magnitude and importance that the regular committees of the House cannot give it proper attention, then there may be some reason for this action; but for myself I cannot see why this thing should take any different course from most of the matters referred to in the Governor's message. Other matters are referred to the standing committees, and those committees examine them, and report by bill, if necessary. I should like to know why this cannot also be done in the ordinary way.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, this message from the Governor is a special message referring to a special subject. The matter is one of considerable interest to my constituents who are interested in the lumber trade in the wooded regions of the Susquehanna. They have been somewhat wronged in the matter of the boom companies and the catching of loose saw logs in the Susquehanna river. They think they were not properly heard before the Governor, and they desire that they should be heard here in this matter. I think it a subject that ought to go before a special committee. The regular standing committees of the House are not the proper committees in this case. It is a special message in reference to a special subject, and a special committee is entirely proper.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] has expressed my views in this matter. I think resolutions have already been introduced this session referring special subjects to special committees more than I ever knew of before in my legislative experience. It certainly is a very uncommon thing to have, on every subject to which the Governor or anybody else refers, a special committee raised to investigate it. Heretofore it has been customary when a gentleman representing a particular district has introduced a special bill to refer that bill to the proper standing committee, and after the committee have carefully investigated it to have it come before the House for investigation. We have got only two weeks into the session, and yet we have three or four special committees to attend to special business which is entirely outside of general legislation. I think we are progressing in the wrong way. So far as my experience goes I think we are legislating fast upon all subjects, and we are certainly getting very fast upon the subject of special committees. I would prefer to leave it to the gentleman to introduce a bill in reference to a subject, and refer it to the Judiciary Committee, or any other standing committee he may desire, to report whether it is necessary or not. If this new method of legislation is cottoned, standing committees will be unnecessary as well as the reading of bills in place, and hereafter it will be only necessary for some gentleman to get up and move that a special committee be appointed to consider any matter concerning which he may desire a bill passed.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, the Governor had this matter before him, and a great number of witnesses have been examined in regard to it. The Governor has given a good deal of attention to it, and a great deal more time than any standing committee of this House can possibly do. Still the Governor has his doubts in regard to the propriety of the bill in question. I think that, in order that the matter may have a just examination and be carefully looked into, it is much better to have it referred to a special committee than to one of the regular committees of the House. A regular committee of the House cannot give this matter the careful consideration it deserves. If the Governor, who has had all this time, and who, I know, has given it a great deal of attention, thinks he cannot give this matter a just decision without referring it back to the House, I think its importance requires a special committee for its reference.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I presume I have as much interest in this matter as almost any member of the House, and I certainly think if there is or can be any objection to the bill before this Legislature for the last year or so which has taken a very wide and very important range, it has been this matter of regulating the lumber business in the Susquehanna. I cannot see that it will do any harm to have a special committee in this case. There is one thing very certain, that if such a committee is appointed, the questions to be inquired into will be very fully before that committee. The parties interested will present themselves before the committee, and if the committee see fit to report a bill, after investigating the matter, they can do so. I do not see how this committee could interfere with the functions of any other committee, for it will simply be a committee to inquire into a special subject and they can report a bill or not, as they see fit. Even in committee they do not report a bill; if my constituents desire me to introduce one, I shall consider it my duty to do so. I cannot see any harm whatever in appointing this special committee. I can see no objection to it and hence shall vote for it.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, the only objection that I can see to the course suggested, is that it is unusual legislation. The Governor in his message refers to special matters. Yet this House never pretends to cut up his message and refer the various subjects to special committees. I apprehend that if this special message of the Governor is referred, by resolution, to any of our standing committees, that the parties interested will have just as fair and candid a hearing as they can have before any special committee that may be designated by the Speaker. I have no objection to the gentleman designating the committee to which the matter shall be referred, but this proposed way of proceeding would seem to indicate that there is some suspicion, to say the least of it, of the various committees of the House. Now, I apprehend that if this goes to a special committee it will necessarily go before the gentleman who compose these various general committees, and it will only serve to divide the general committees to attend to special business. This will merely produce an accumulation of labors upon their hands, and the probability is that it will not receive the careful consideration it would if referred to one of the standing committees. Refer it, if you please, to a particular standing committee, and after that committee have examined it, they have full power to introduce such a bill as, in their judgment, they may think necessary to protect the interests of these parties. I can, therefore, see no necessity for such a reference as proposed, and no reason why it cannot be reached by the ordinary committees of the House, and I hope the House will not step out of its ordinary business proceedings in this case. I have no feeling in the matter, and have no interest in it, and knew nothing of it until this resolution was introduced, and can only say that if the gentleman desires it should have the investigation he suggests, and in the manner proposed, I hope I will not be honored by being appointed on the committee before which it comes.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, as a matter of course I designed to cast no reflection on any committee with which the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] is associated.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I did not impute any such motives to the gentleman who introduced the resolution, but merely desired to say that it bears that impress. I had no idea that he intended anything personal.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I judged from the gentleman's remarks that I received the impression that I intended to cast some reflection upon the standing committees of the House. That was not my intention at all. This matter is one that interests a large portion of the people of Pennsylvania in the counties bordering on the Susquehanna river. All those who are engaged in the lumbering business in those counties are interested in this matter. Some of my constituents in Philadelphia own land in the lumber regions and are directly interested in it. The Governor gave it, as far as possible, his attention for quite a time, and the message we have heard read from him to-day, will satisfy the members that, even with all the attention he gave it, and all the light he received in reference to it, he did not arrive at a definite conclusion as to the merits of the bill; he, therefore, referred the matter back to this House for any further legislation that may be required. If a special committee will not give the subject the best consideration, then let it go to one of the standing committees. But how a committee having quite a number of bills before it, each perhaps requiring special consideration, can give this subject as careful an examination as a special committee is unable to see.

Mr. MCCREARY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order. We are having but a reiteration of the same thing over and over again. I am very willing to hear a full discussion of the question, but I do not want to hear of it four or five times over, nor do the other members of this House. I have heard two or three members speak as many different times, and I therefore rise to this point of order.

Mr. DAVIS. I guess the gentleman's point of order does not refer to me.

[I am not going to make a speech; I am only going to explain.]

The Governor's message only came in this evening, and if I heard it read aright, it is unnecessary to appoint a special or any other committee. As my colleague [Mr. GREGORY] thinks it necessary to investigate this subject, I move to amend the resolution by striking out all after the word "Resolved" and inserting "That the subject of the Governor's special message on the boom question, be referred to the Committee on the General Judiciary, with the right to report by bill or otherwise."

Mr. ADAIR. I move to amend the amendment by referring it to the Committee on Corporations.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I hope that amendment will be voted down. I think the amendment of my colleague [Mr. DAVIS] eminently proper. I hope this House will refer it to that committee.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, there is another reason which I think is peculiarly applicable, and which will come directly to the judgment of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] should prevail.

There are very important constitutional questions involved in this matter. These are so important that not only the Attorney General, but the former Attorney General of the United States, were consulted in reference to the grave questions arising under the bill. As the Committee of the General Judiciary is the highest legal committee we have in the House, I think the matter should be referred to them.

Mr. ADAIRE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inform the gentleman from Lycoming [Mr. WINGARD] that there are some lawyers on the Committee on Corporations.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker.— I raise the point of order that the gentleman has already spoken as often as the rules allow.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was not granted.

The amendment of Mr. ADAIRE was

Not agreed to.

The amendment of Mr. DAVIS was

BILLS PASSED.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, it is well known that I have not often asked of this House the favor of the suspension of the rules, but I have a bill which it is important should be passed at once. I read it in place and move that the rules be suspended and the bill put on its passage.

The bill is entitled An act exempting the Morris cemetery, in the county of Chester, from the payment of tax, and the lots sold therein from an attachment for debt.

On the motion to suspend the rules, The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MANN and Mr. GREGORY, and were as follows, viz:

AYES—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Breen, Brennan, Brown, Calvin, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Day, Espy, Ewing, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffman, Hood, Humphrey, Jenks, Josephs, Kennedy, Kimmel, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Lee, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Markley, Meckling, Meyers, Pennypacker, Peters, Phelan, Pillow, Rhoads, Richards, Roath, Robinson, Seiler, Shuman, Steacy, Stumbaugh, Subers, Tharp, Waite, Watt, Webb, Weller, Westbrook, Whann, Wilson, Wingard, Woodard, Wright and Glass, Speaker—63.

NAYS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Chalfant, Deise, Fogel, Freeborn, Gregory, Harner, Hetzel, Hunt, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrian, Mann, Marks and Waddell—17.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The bill was read the first time.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I do not know that it is now the right time to make an objection, but it seems to me that the first section of this bill is unnecessary. Burial grounds are already exempt from taxation by the act of 1859, as follows:

"Whenever any lot or lots or the right of sepulture therein shall be granted to any person or family by any incorporated cemetery company, or church, or religious congregation within any common enclosure, made by such company, church or congregation as, and for the purpose of the perpetual burial of the dead, every and all lots so disposed of or used for burial shall hereafter be free and exempt from all taxation so long as the same shall be used and held only for the purpose of sepulture."

It strikes me that this act covers the first section of this bill.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, this bill refers to the whole property of the cemetery other than the real burial lots. I am no lawyer, but if it is not necessary to have this section passed I do not want it. But I do not see that it would have any deleterious effect if it is passed.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, if the object of the bill is to exempt the whole property, of course, the act read by the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY] does not reach the case at all. I presume the first section of this bill is necessary to effect the object intended by the gentleman from Chester [Mr. PENNYPACKER]. He wishes to exempt the entire ground, but the act read exempts the lots sold and those only.

Mr. M'CREARY. If that is the case, I have no objection to the section.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended, and that the House proceed to the consideration of the following bill:

An act to authorize the commissioners of Jefferson county to borrow money.

The motion was agreed to, and

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following joint resolution and ask that it be read.

The joint resolution was read as follows: "WHEREAS, By a late decision of the Paymaster General at Washington, soldiers who have lost their discharges are not able to draw the one hundred dollars authorized by act of Congress of July 28, 1866;

And whereas, This decision does great injustice to many soldiers, who for causes beyond their control have lost their discharges; therefore,

Resolved by the Senate, &c., That the Senators and Representatives of the Congress of the United States (and especially the Senators and members of Congress from Pennsylvania), he requested to enact such laws as will enable those soldiers who have lost their discharges, and whose names are borne on the muster rolls of their respective organizations as having been honorably discharged from the service of the United States, to receive the said bounty the same as though their discharges had not been lost.

Resolved, That the Governor of Pennsylvania be requested to forward a copy of these resolutions to each member of the United States Senate, and House of Congress from Pennsylvania.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, it may not be generally understood that the Paymaster General of the United States army has made a decision which prevents a great many soldiers from receiving the bounties granted by the act of July 28, 1866, for the reason that they, without any fault of their own, are unable to produce their discharges.

The act provides that, unless applications are made within a certain time, those applications will be rejected, and this time will soon be up. It is probable that a resolution of this kind may stir up Congress to action in regard to this matter. It is only essential that this should be attended to during the present session of Congress. This is a question in which I have no greater interest than all have. I therefore move that the rules be suspended and that the resolution be passed.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The resolution was read a second and third time and

Passed finally.

Mr. HARBISON. Mr. Speaker, I read in my place and present to the Chair, a bill entitled An act in relation to a railroad bureau and free railroad law, and move that five hundred copies be printed for the information of this House.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I think it will be time to have the bill printed when it is reported to this House.

On agreeing to the motion a division was taken, when twenty-nine voted for and twenty-three against it.

So it was

Agreed to.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules in order to consider the bill entitled An act authorizing the Governor to appoint one additional notary public for the county of Lycoming.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The bill was read a second and third times, and

Passed finally.

BILLS LAID ON THE TABLE.

Mr. STUMBAUGH read in place and presented to the Chair a supplement to an act to incorporate the Montana gold and silver mining company, approved the 23d day of March, A. D. 1866.

Laid on the table.

Mr. WHANN, an act authorizing the school directors of the borough of Oil City, in Venango county, to borrow money.

Laid on the table.

Mr. ALLEN, an act to repeal a part of an act, approved March 23, A. D. 1866, in reference to fees of officers and jurymen in Warren county.

Laid on the table.

Mr. WHANN. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following joint resolution, which I desire to have read.

The resolution was read as follows:

WHEREAS, Petroleum has become one of the great staples of Pennsylvania, and of vast national importance; and, as such, deserving encouragement, not only by the people of this

Commonwealth, but of the General Government;

And whereas, This great staple, which is now recognized as a national necessity, and has become one of our most important exports, instead of receiving the fostering care of Congress, is burdened with excessive taxation, the tax on each barrel of refined oil amounting to eight dollars per barrel, while the price of crude oil is less than two dollars per barrel;

And whereas, The present enormous taxation is not only oppressive, but destructive to this great interest; therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives, in Congress assembled, That our Senators in due time be instructed, and our Representatives be requested to use all honorable means to procure the reduction or removal of the tax on refined petroleum.

Sec. 2. That the Governor be, and is hereby, requested to furnish to each Senator and Representative in Congress, a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolutions.

Mr. WHANN. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. WHANN. Mr. Speaker, you will see, at once that the vitality of this bill depends upon the action of Congress last year. It is a short time to sit, and the act will be of no use unless it can soon reach them for action. I therefore ask for a suspension of the rules.

On the question, Shall the rules be suspended?

It was

Not agreed to.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I read in my place and present to the Chair a bill entitled as follows:

An act requiring the bounty commissioners of Forks township, Northampton county, to render an account to the auditor of said township, and providing for auditing the same.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, in 1864 a special act was passed for Palmer township authorizing the appointment of commissioners to loan money for the purpose of raising volunteers for that county. In the same year a supplement was passed extending the provisions of that act to any township in that county that would take the benefit of it. The commissioners were appointed in pursuance of said supplement, and have acted since 1864. They have, at this time, rendered no account and positively refuse, upon solicitation of citizens, to render any account whatsoever. They act under a special law, and there is now no law in force which can enable the citizens to force them to file any account or to have it audited.

Facts have come to light from which there is great reason to believe that these commissioners have levied and imposed large taxes upon the citizens of that township which cannot be sustained by any law, and are acting in a manner injurious and detrimental to the citizens of the township. There is now no act in force under which they have any remedy at all, or can require these commissioners to render any account unless by the process of a court of equity by bill and answer. Any gentleman acquainted with the proceedings in that court knows how long a time that would take. Under these circumstances it is necessary that some summary process be placed in the hands of the people to cause these parties to make a statement and oblige them to have their account audited. They propose to levy and collect taxes by selling property of the people who refuse to pay them. The people are refusing to pay these taxes, because they believe there is something wrong from the fact that the parties refuse to render an account. I, therefore, ask that the rule be suspended and that the House take up this bill this evening and pass it, so that justice may be done to the people of my district.

The motion was agreed to, and the bill was read.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I move to indefinitely postpone the consideration of this bill. I do not believe there is a gentleman in this House who has the remotest idea of the importance of the bill. Here is a broad, wholesale ex parte accusation, and it seems to me these party commissioners ought to have an opportunity to be heard. I think this kind of legislation is unprecedented. It looks suspicious, to say the least, that a bill of this importance, involving so many considerations as this does, involving the reputation and character of a large number of officers, should be passed in this hasty and summary manner. I think the House will see the importance of postponing it. I do not want to put the bill in such a condition that it cannot be reached, but I want to give the parties affected by this bill an opportunity to be heard before this House. I had no idea of the import of the bill or I should have moved for a division of the question on the suspension of the rules. To pass this bill in this summary way would, I think, be monstrous. I move that the bill be referred to the proper committee.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I think I would be the last gentleman on this floor to present anything for the consideration of this House which I deemed to be improper in the least degree. This bill applies to my own district—to my own constituency, and I am responsible to them for what I present here, and for what I pass. I might have presented a bill general in its character, applicable to the whole State, of similar import to the same under consideration, and if I had done so it could hardly be said that it involved a personal accusation against any gentleman acting as bounty commissioner, school director, or in any other capacity, having charge of public funds. In this bill I have made no charges whatever. I have made no other charges than can be implied in any general law in which you hold persons to a strict accountability, acting in a fiduciary capacity, to do certain things for the benefit of the people of the Commonwealth; and whenever any man who occupies that position is restricted and restrained, and is bound up in a certain way by the Legislature of the State, there is no reflection upon his integrity, but he is rather given an opportunity to do that which he is in duty bound to do.

Now, Mr. Speaker, this is an urgent case which requires immediate action. These gentlemen have been acting for three years in the capacity of commissioners. They have filed no account, and, when solicited to do so by the people of that township, they peremptorily declined. These commissioners now have the power, upon giving thirty days' notice to citizens to pay their taxes, of levying and selling the property in case of refusal.

This bill does not charge any criminal act against these men, who have been acting as commissioners, but merely provides that they shall file an account with the auditor, and give the citizens of that township an opportunity to know whether they have done their duty to the people, who have so farward with their treasury for the purpose of furnishing means to send volunteers to our armies. If everything is right, we are entitled to that knowledge, and if there is anything wrong, we are entitled to have it rectified, if possible. I ask nothing, but what is demanded by the majority of the people of that township, who are in favor of this law; and in their name I ask the passage of this bill. I hope, therefore, that it will not be referred to a committee.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker I am more thoroughly convinced, from the gentleman's argument, than before, of the necessity of my motion. Here are specific charges of dereliction; specific charges against specific persons, and they have no earthly opportunity of answering, or knowing that they are assailed upon this floor. The gentleman says these commissioners have refused to render an account for three years. Let us know that. He says they are going on to levy. Let them have an opportunity of showing that this is perfectly right. Let them have some chance to counterbalance the charges made by the gentleman on this floor. It is right they should have an opportunity to reply, and they should know that this bill is sought to be pushed through this Legislature. It is not right, in any sense of the word, that they should be thus charged, and a bill passed to make them do certain things that we know nothing about except from the ex parte statement of the gentleman. Let them come here and be afforded an opportunity to vindicate their reputation, as commissioners, before this House. We have vested them with authority to do certain things, and now let them have an opportunity to show their actions.

Mr. MEYERS. These persons have the extraordinary power of levying, assessing and collecting taxes. There is no community in this Commonwealth more willing to pay their taxes than my constituents.

Mr. LEE. Whence did these commissioners derive their authority?

Mr. MEYERS. They were appointed by the court of common pleas, under an act of Assembly. They have the extraordinary power of levying, assessing and collecting the taxes of that township. This bill provides for nothing except that they shall file a statement with the township auditor. Is there anything burdensome or wrong in that? If there is anything wrong in it, I would like to know wherein the wrong consists.

Mr. LEE. I do not say that there is anything wrong. But I do say that these parties should have an opportunity to answer for themselves. It is not for me to answer.

Mr. MEYERS. These commissioners have rendered no account for three years. If the gentlemen on this floor do not choose to credit my statement, then it is no use for honorable gentlemen to occupy seats in this House. Having failed to make any statement, is it wrong to ask them to render an account to the auditors of this township? Is it wrong to require these auditors, by law, to audit this account, and determine whether it is right or not? I desire the passage of this bill in behalf of my constituents, whose wishes and desires I am in duty bound to represent. I therefore ask that this bill be passed this evening.

Mr. WADDELL. I have nothing to say on the merits of this bill, one way or the other. But it is a source of some satisfaction to me that this discussion has arisen. I desire to call the attention of the House to this manner of doing business. I suggested last week that this is not the way to do business—by suspending the rules—and I presume the House will bear me out in the assertion. We have spent half an hour in the discussion of a bill, which, probably a majority of this House think, should go to a committee. We make have gone through the whole order in this time, and the committee could have examined the bill and the House have taken action on it in half the time. I do not pretend to know anything of the nature of this bill. I must take what the gentleman has said. We are compelled to take the gentleman's allegations, I would not feel it my duty to vote against the bill, when the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS] says it is right and proper. I only make the suggestion, and it is for the House to judge whether, in the future, we shall pursue this course or the regular order.

Mr. MEYERS. I only ask this indulgence of the House, because it is necessary to meet the ends of justice that the bill should be passed at once. If this bill does not pass tonight in time for the Governor to sign it this week, it is worth nothing for my constituents.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MEYERS and Mr. MARKLEY, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Boyd, Breen, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Day, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harbison, Humphrey, Hunt, Kennedy, Kimmel, Kinney, Kline, Lee, Leech, McGowan, Mr. Lee, McPherrin, Marsh, Mann, Marks, Mechling, Pillow, Richards, Rouch, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Subers, Tharp, Waddell, Webb, Weller, Westbrook, Whann, Wilson, Wright and Glass, Speaker—47.

NAYS—Messrs. Barrington, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Gregory, Hetzel, Hoffman, Hood, Josephs, Linton, Long, Markley, Meyers, Phelan, Quay, Rhoads, Wallace, Wingard and Woodward—19.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The bill was Referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

On motion of Mr. M'KEE, the House then adjourned to meet to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

SENATE.

TUESDAY, January 15, 1867.

The Senate met and was called to order at 11 A. M., by the SPEAKER.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. B. M. KERR, of Mechanicsburg, Pennsylvania.

On motion of Mr. BIGHAM, the reading of the Journal of yesterday was dispensed with.

THE SPEAKER'S TABLE.

The SPEAKER laid before the Senate the annual report of the Attorney General.

Laid on the table.

The SPEAKER also laid before the Senate a communication from the Attorney General, which was read as follows:

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OFFICE,
HARRISBURG, January 12, 1867.

SIR—I have received a copy of a resolution which passed the Senate on the 1st instant, requesting me to communicate to that body, a copy of an opinion which I prepared for the Governor on certain questions relating to the proper organization of the Senate, and the duty of the Executive in regard thereto.

With the consent of the Governor, I have the honor to transmit herewith to the Senate through you a copy of the opinion as requested.

With the highest esteem, very truly your obedient servant,
W. M. MEREDITH.

HON. L. W. HALL, Speaker of the Senate.

OPINION.

At the request of the Governor, I present in writing the grounds of the verbal opinion which I gave him some days ago on the question whether the Legislature were so organized as to enable him to communicate by message with the two Houses.

The House of Representatives had elected a Speaker, and by a committee informed the Governor of its organization. The Senate had not communicated the fact of its being in session, by a committee, but Mr. PENNY, acting as Speaker of that body, had informed the Governor of that fact.

This gentleman had been elected and taken the chair as Speaker near the close of the last session.

The published Journal of the Senate shows that after the commencement of the present session, certain members of the Senate protested against his authority to administer the oath to the newly elected members on the ground that his term of office had expired.

If this were so, then, of course, the Senate would not be organized until a new Speaker should have been elected and qualified.

The question, therefore, is, at what time does the term of office of Speaker of the Senate expire?

Of course, the offices of Speaker, Clerk, &c., of a legislative body are determined by the dissolution of the body itself. But, unless otherwise ordered, they do not determine till such dissolution. Therefore the Speaker, Clerk, &c., of the House of Representatives at Washington hold their offices during the two sessions of Congress without re-election.

In the case of a permanent legislative body which is never dissolved, its offices cannot be thus determined. The offices of Speaker, Clerk, &c., of such a body can become vacant, only in one of the following modes, viz:

1. By the expiration of a term specially fixed for its continuance at the time of the election of the officer, or, in case of the Speaker, by the expiration of his term as a member of the body.

2. By the death or resignation of the officer.

3. By his removal by a vote of the body.

That the Senate is a permanent body, and that the Speaker holds by the tenure appropriate to an officer of such a body is, I think, manifest from the provisions of the Constitution, and that it has been always so understood will appear from acts of the Legislature and from the course of the Senate itself.

The Constitution provides that one-third of the Senate shall be renewed by annual elections; that the returns of the election of Governor shall be returned to the Speaker of the Senate; that in case of the death, resignation or removal from office, of the Governor, the Speaker of the Senate shall exercise the office of Governor until another Governor shall be duly qualified, and that in such case, the Senate shall choose a Speaker pro tempore.

No one can maintain that a legislative body is dissolved by the expiration of the term of service of one-third of its members, and that such a result is not contemplated by the Constitution is evident from the provisions which assume that there will be at all times a Speaker of the Senate (which, of course, there could not be if the Senate were dissolved), and which devolve upon him the executive functions in case of a vacancy in the office of Governor.

The judgment of the Legislature on the subject, is to be found in the act regulating elections. That act provides that the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall, between certain named hours on the first Tuesday in January of each year, take into the Hall of the House of Representatives, the several returns of the election of members of said House, and that he shall, on the same day, as soon as the Senate shall convene, deliver to the Speaker of the Senate, all the returns for the election of Senators for that year. It is impossible to express more clearly, that while the House meets as an unorganized body, the Senate meets as an organized body, and has already a Speaker without any new election.

The uniform practice of the Senate, from its first meeting in December, 1790, confirms this view. During the first four years (1790, to 1793-4 inclusive), its officers, including the Speakers, held over as a matter of course.—The Legislature then met on the second Tuesday of December in each year. Mr. Peters was chosen Speaker in December 1700, and acted as such without re-election, till January 31, 1792, when he resigned, in consequence of his appointment as district judge of the United States. Mr. Powell was thereupon chosen Speaker, and held the office without re-election, through the remainder of that session, and whole of the next session (1792-3). He died before the commencement of the next session (which was on the 8d of December 1793), and it is stated in the Journal, that the chair of the Senate having become vacant by the decease of Mr. Powell, the Senate chose Mr. Morris as Speaker.

The Clerk and other officers elected in December, 1790, held their offices without re-election till December, 1794.

The Senate had omitted, till December, 1794, to classify its members, and, in consequence, they all held their seats for four years. Of course, the term of service of all expired at the general election in October, 1794, and they necessarily met in the ensuing December as an unorganized body. They drew lots for their classes, and from that time till the amended Constitution of 1833 was adopted, one-fourth of its members were supplied by new elections in each year—from that period, their tenure being reduced to three years, one-third of its members are so supplied.

From the next session (1794-6), the practice has, it is believed, been uniform for the Speaker elected at the previous session to take the chair at the commencement of a new session, and for the Senate (after the transaction of preliminary business, such as reading the returns, being informed by the Speaker of any writs of election which he may have issued during the recess) to proceed to choose a Speaker. This practice is inconsistent with the idea that the Speaker's office is vacated, either by the effect of the general election, or by the convening of the Senate. It probably originated (and has been so continued) in the view that since so large a proportion of the newly elected members took their seats at each session, it was desirable to let them have a voice in the selection of their presiding officer.

During the first thirty years, from 1790-1 to 1822-3 inclusive, with the exception of the first meeting, in December, 1790, and the next in December, 1794, above referred to, the entry on the Journal is: "The Senate met," or "convened."

From 1823-4 to the present time, the Journal has stated that a number of the members of the Senate, and other gentlemen elected to supply vacancies, assembled in the Senate Chamber. This is of no consequence in the solution of the question. For if it be clear by the Constitution and laws of the land, and by the proceedings of the body itself, that in fact the Senate met (a quorum present, its Speaker in the Chair, and its clerks in their places) as a permanent and organized body, the mistake in the entry referred to could in no way affect the true position of the Senate, and would be attributed to the error of the clerks. In fact, the Constitution governs this question, and no act of the Senate could change the nature and character which that body has under the Constitution.

In April, 1799, the Speaker's chair was held by a gentleman whose Senatorial term was to expire at the ensuing general election. He reminded the Senate of this fact, and to prevent the occurrence of a vacancy in the office, resigned, and a new Speaker was elected. This precedent, it is believed, has been since followed wherever there was occasion for it.

That the usages of the Senate have, in fact, been such as are above stated, and that they are in conformity with the Constitution, are propositions to which all men, at all times (so far as I am informed), have assented, and do now assent.

The real question therefore is, at what period, after the commencement of a session, does the tenure of the Speaker expire?

That it does not expire by mere lapse of time, is, I think, proved by the proceedings had in the session of 1849, and by the clause of the Constitution under which those proceedings took place. Gov. Shunk having resigned during the summer of 1848, more than three months before the general election, Mr. Johnston, the Speaker of the Senate, assumed the executive duties. On the meeting of the Senate, on the first Tuesday of the ensuing January, that body setting forth that the "present Speaker" was acting as Governor, and reciting the clause in the Constitution which provides that in such case the Senate shall choose a Speaker pro tempore, resolved to choose one accordingly, which was done, and the business of the session went on. It happened that Mr. Johnston had been elected to the office of Governor. On his inauguration, which occurred on the third Tuesday of January, he resigned his Speakership, and the Speaker pro tempore also resigned. The Senate thereupon proceeded to elect a Speaker. Of course, if Mr. Johnston had not been elected Governor, he would, after the inauguration, have resumed the chair as Speaker. When a Speaker pro tempore is elected in consequence of the absence or disability of the Speaker, the Speaker on the return or the removal of the disability, resumes the chair without any action on the part of the body. If authority were necessary to establish this familiar principle of parliamentary law, it would be enough to refer to the Journal of the Senate of the session of 1790-1800. On the third of February, 1800, a Speaker pro tempore was chosen, the Speaker being absent on leave. On the 11th of March following the Speaker resumed the chair without any motion or other action on the part of the Senate. It cannot be supposed that the resumption of the chair by the Speaker would have disorganized the body and stopped the public business.

It may be said in Mr. Johnston's case the Senate was constrained by an express direction in the Constitution. This is true, but the expression of that peremptory direction, infers an equally peremptory assertion that the Speaker's tenure continued. It puts, in fact, a binding and authoritative construction on other clauses in the same instrument, and affirms that the Senate is a permanent body, and the office of its Speaker does not expire by mere lapse of time.

Since the year eighteen hundred and fifty-seven (inclusive) the election of a new Speaker is prefaced thus: "The Speaker having vacated the chair." Whether they mean a resignation or an abdication I do not know, for the phrase has no parliamentary meaning in connection with a vacancy in the office of Speaker. The entry, however, does show that the Speaker is in the chair after the commencement of the session, and refers the vacancy of the chair to an act of the Speaker. It is immaterial to the present question, as from the published Journal of the Senate it appears that the present Speaker has not vacated the chair. In the absence, therefore, of a vacancy by the expiration of his term, or by any act of the Speaker, or by his death or any other accident, it follows that his office must have been vacated by the act of the Senate itself, that is to say by his removal by a vote of the Senate.

The Constitution provides that the Senate shall choose its Speaker, and the right to do so would have existed without such a provision. The Speaker of the Senate, as well as of the House, holds during the pleasure of the body, and may be removed at any time, except that the Senate has not the power of removing its Speaker while he is actually exercising the office of Governor. Now, an officer holding during pleasure may be removed, either by a direct removal and a subsequent appointment of a successor, or by merely appointing a successor, which, of itself, operates as a removal of the incumbent, as soon as the successor is duly appointed and qualified. The latter is the most common mode, and the most convenient for the public, because it leaves no interval during which the duties of the office cannot be fulfilled. The Governor, down to the Constitutional amendments of 1838, appointed, during pleasure, a great number of officers, and it is believed that when any of them were removed it was always in the latter mode. The other mode of removal, in the case of an executive officer, is by supersedeas, and it may be safely affirmed that in no instance has a supersedeas been issued by the Government of Pennsylvania, or of the United States, to remove an officer holding during pleasure. In the Senate, the direct removal of the Speaker would be by a resolution to that effect, and from the commencement of the present Government no such resolution has been passed. From 1795 to 1857 the Journal merely states that on motion of A and B the Senate proceeded to the election of a Speaker. The change in the entry since 1857 has been already noticed. The question, then, is removed to this. When it is to be resolved by choosing a successor, is the removal effected by proceeding to ballot for a successor, or est instanti that he is chosen and qualified?

I remember two precedents on the subject, neither of them of much importance. In 1842, after balloting many times, on the first day the Senate adjourned. On the second day of the session, after several further unsuccessful ballots had been had, a motion was made to adjourn, on which the eyes and nose were called and the old Speaker is journalized as acting as Speaker. In 1857, under similar circumstances, the old Speaker is not so journalized. These precedents may be set against each other.

The solution, however, of this question is too clear and easy to require precedent or even admit of argument. The removal operated by the appointment of a successor, is a removal by implication only; the putting of a successor into the office is wholly inconsistent with the retention of the prior incumbent. In law two men can no more hold the same office, at the same time, than they can in physics occupy the same space. The very nature and character of this mode of removal, prove that it cannot possibly be effected except by the actual entry of the successor in the office. In the case, therefore, of an executive officer, it is not the intention to appoint a successor—nor the selection of the individual—nor the offer of the appointment—nor anything short of his actual appointment and qualification—that will effect the removal of the existing officer. Now, when the Senate resolves to proceed to choose a Speaker, it merely expresses an intention to appoint a successor when it proceeds to ballot, it is merely an effort to select the individual—when it has actually chosen a Speaker, it remains for him to be duly qualified before he can enter on the office and thus detrude his predecessor.

When we consider that it might happen as the result of strong personal or party preferences, that many ballots might be ineffectually taken, and an indefinitely long period of time be consumed, before a successor should be in fact chosen, and that if during that interval the office of Speaker were vacant, the death of the Governor would extinguish the Executive and paralyze the Legislative departments; that no bill could be passed into a law; that no executive act could be performed; that there would be no Secretary of the Commonwealth to receive and transmit the returns of the general election, and no officer or clerk in the State Department to preserve the archives of the Commonwealth; in fact, that the whole frame of our government (so far as relates to its Executive and Legislative functions) would be dissolved. When we consider all this we cannot but admit the wisdom of the Senate in adopting, and through so many years adhering to a course, which, while it affords to the newly elected members the opportunity of participating in the choice of their presiding officer, does at the same time avoid creating a vacancy, even for a moment, in the office of Speaker.

In this opinion I have referred only to the question of law on which the Executive is bound to form an opinion, that it may govern his own action in his necessary communications with other branches of the government. I have thus stated the grounds on which I advised the Governor that Mr. Penney was, under the Constitution, the lawful Speaker of the Senate, and that although the usual communication by a committee had not been made to him, yet that it was the right of the Executive (and if in his judgment pressing public necessity required it), his duty, to waive the points of etiquette and send, in his annual message to the House without further delay.

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows:

No. 27, an act exempting the Morris cemetery, in the county of Chester, from the payment of tax, and the lots sold therein from an attachment for debt.

Referred to the Committee on Finance.

No. 28, an act to authorize the commissioners of Jefferson county to borrow money.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

No. 29, joint resolution requesting Congress to pass such laws as will enable soldiers who have lost their discharges to receive the one hundred dollars bounty under the act of Congress of July 28, 1866.

Referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

No. 31, an act authorizing the Governor to appoint an additional notary public for the county of Lycoming.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

On motion of Mr. LOWRY, the morning orders were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of joint resolution ratifying the amendment to the Constitution.

On this subject a speech was made by Mr. BIGHAM, which was interrupted by the entrance of a committee from the House of Representatives. The speech of Mr. BIGHAM will appear hereafter.

INAUGURATION CEREMONIES.

Messrs. MARKS and CRAIG, a committee from the House of Representatives, being introduced, informed the Senate that they had been appointed a committee to conduct the Speaker and members of the Senate to the portico of the capitol for the purpose of uniting with the Speaker and members of the House of Representatives in the ceremonies attending the inauguration of the Governor elect of the Commonwealth.

The Speaker and members of the Senate then proceeded to the portico of the capitol, where, in presence of the Speakers and members of both Houses, the certificate of the election of John W. Geary, of Cumberland county, as Governor of the Commonwealth for the ensuing three years, was read by the Clerk of the Senate, after which the oaths of office were administered to the Governor-elect by the Speaker of the Senate; whereupon

THE SPEAKER of the Senate proclaimed John W. Geary to be duly elected and qualified as Governor of the Commonwealth for the ensuing three years.

After some time the members of the Senate returned to their Chamber, when the SPEAKER announced that after the Governor had finished the delivery of his inaugural, he placed in his hand a copy thereof, which he now submitted to the Senate.

On the inaugural ceremonies.

On motion of Mr. LOWRY, it was Ordered, That ten thousand copies of said address be printed in the English language and four thousand in the German.

The hour of one o'clock having arrived, the SPEAKER adjourned the Senate till three o'clock this afternoon.

SENATE.

TUESDAY, January 15, 1867.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Agreeably to the provisions of an act of the Congress of the United States entitled An act to regulate the times and manner of holding elections for Senators in Congress, approved the 25th day of July, 1866, and of an act of the General Assembly of this Commonwealth entitled An act to define the time and regulate the manner of electing Senators to represent this State in the Senate of the United States, approved the 11th day of January, A. D. 1867,

The Senate proceeded, by a viva voce vote of each Senator present, to name one person for Senator in Congress from the State of Pennsylvania.

Whereupon

Messrs. Bigham, Brown (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Ridgway, Royer, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Worthington, White and Hall, Speaker—20, voted for Simon Cameron.—And

Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, Jackson, James M' Candless, Randall, Schall, Seagriff, Wallace and Walls—12, voted for Edgar A. Coward.

It appeared that Simon Cameron was duly named by the Senate of Pennsylvania for Senator in Congress, from the State of Pennsylvania, for six years from and after the fourth day of March next.

During the call,

Mr. FISHER said: Mr. Speaker, I desire, sir, to make a statement before recording my vote. I wish this Senate, sir, and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and especially my own constituents, to understand the position that I occupy here. The Republican members of the two Houses know that I did not participate on Thursday night last, in the nomination of a candidate for this high and responsible office, and I wish to stand fair and square, sir, before my own constituents, before this Senate and before the broad Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. In August last, sir, I was nominated to represent, in part, the great county of Lancaster. The convention, sir, that nominated me passed the following resolutions, which I will read:

Resolved, That the candidates for the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Pennsylvania, nominated by this convention be and they are hereby instructed to vote for and by all honorable means seek to procure the election of Thaddeus Stevens to the Senate of the United States, and that they continue thus to support him for that office, so long as he shall consent to be a candidate.

Resolved, That no person shall be considered a candidate for either Senator or Representative before this convention until he shall have first given his written pledge to obey the instructions contained in the foregoing resolution.

The following pledge was drawn up and presented to the candidates for nomination at that convention:

WE, the undersigned candidates for Senators and Representatives, do hereby pledge our word of honor, that in the event of our being elected to the Legislature of Pennsylvania, we will obey the instructions touching the election of United States Senators contained in the foregoing resolutions.

Under that pledge, sir, I did not feel at liberty to participate in the caucus of Thursday night last. At the time that caucus met, Mr. Stevens was still a candidate. I felt that I could not go into the caucus and participate there, in the nomination of a Senator, without disobeying or violating that pledge. Mr.

Stevens at that time was still a candidate. I felt bound by the pledge I had given to address to Mr. Stevens, so long as he remained a candidate. He remained a candidate at the time of the meeting of that caucus. I felt I could not go into that caucus and agree to support the nominee of that caucus, without violating my pledge; and, sir, I would not go into that caucus, and, after participating, refuse to support the nominee of that caucus. I now ask, sir, that the Clerk read this letter:

"JANUARY, 12, 1867.

Gentlemen—I write merely to say I consider you at liberty to consult your own wishes in your future action, relative to United States Senator.

Your obedient servant,
THADDEUS STEVENS.
Honorable Senators for Lancaster."

I feel now, sir, that I am relieved from the promise, and not having participated in the caucus, I can do as I please. My choice, sir, would have been to cast my vote for a very different man than the one I shall vote for; but as I do not wish to break loose from the party, I will vote for Simon Cameron.

The SPEAKER then adjourned the Senate until to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

INAUGURATION

JOHN W. GEARY,
GOVERNOR OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Grand Military and Civic Display.

The Gratitude of the People for the Heroes of the Union.

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE.

The sun rose behind snow-clouds, yesterday morning. By nine o'clock a fierce north-west wind drove the snow in heavy flakes to the ground, and in every respect the day was inauspicious for the magnificent display which, under more favorable circumstances, would have been made at the inauguration of John W. Geary, Governor of Pennsylvania. Nevertheless, an immense throng of people crowded the thoroughfares in all parts of the city. The railroads from all parts of the State, yesterday afternoon, during last night, and this morning, brought to Harrisburg large masses of citizens, representing civic societies of different orders, municipal bodies and municipal organizations. The attendance of so vast a concourse of people from a distance, may be fairly taken as a tribute to the hero, just made Governor of the Commonwealth. Personally, few public men now before the people are more popular than John W. Geary, or better known for the unselfish qualities of his nature, as a soldier and a statesman. To these may be attributed the vast gathering which assembled here to-day, and if any man ever had cause to congratulate himself on the sure evidence of popular attachment for his person, and popular admiration for his acts, on assuming the Chief Magistracy of the Keystone State, that man is Governor John W. Geary.

THE APPEARANCE OF THE CITY.

Notwithstanding the snow storm, and the icy condition of the sidewalks, the city, during the morning, presented a gay and joyous aspect. We never seen, on a similar occasion, the sidewalks more densely crowded. The storm did not keep the ladies at home. These were out—mingling pleasantly with the crowd, and by their presence adding greatly to the good order which prevailed in all parts of the city. By noon the sun made its appearance, however, and the afternoon was quite pleasant. The different hotels and public buildings displayed the national flags, while along the route of procession many private residences were handsomely-decorated.

THE ORDER OF PROCESSION.

The various military organizations and civic delegations having formed as directed by Chief Marshal E. C. Williams, the line of procession moved at eleven o'clock, in the following order:

First Division—Military—on Market street, right resting on Market Square.

Second Division—State officials, &c.—met at the Lochiel Hotel.

Third Division—Boys in Blue, &c.—on Third street, right resting on Market.

Fourth Division—Soldiers—met at Jones House.

Fifth Division—City officers, Bar, Clergy, &c.—met at State Capitol Hotel.

Sixth Division—Civic Societies—formed on North Fourth street.

Seventh Division—Fire Department—formed on North Second street.

The procession moved precisely at eleven o'clock in the following order:

DEMONSTRATIONS ALONG THE ROUTE OF PROCEEDINGS.

As the procession moved over the route the scene at different points was imposing beyond description. There was no mistaking the demonstrations of the people as the carriage with General Geary passed different points. His reception was enthusiastic to the utmost degree, and he must have been satisfied with the ovation offered him, of men who appreciated his value as a soldier and worth as a statesman, and by women who regarded him as one of the deliverers of the country.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

The House met at 11 o'clock, and appointed a committee to wait on the Senate, and invite the members of that body to participate with the House in the inaugural ceremonies. This committee waited on the Senate, and the Speaker, members and officers of that body, with the Speaker, members and officers of the House, proceeded in a body to the portico, to take part in the inaugural proceedings. THE PLATFORM FOR THE INAUGURAL CEREMONIES.

The entire front of the portico of the capitol was occupied by an immense platform for the accommodation of the Legislature, invited guests, and the Governor for the delivery of his inaugural address. This platform was handsomely decorated with American flags.

THE HEAD OF THE PROCESSION AT THE CAPITOL GATES.

When the head of the procession reached the capitol grounds a grand salvo of artillery was fired from the front of the arsenal, while the enthusiastic greeting of the people who crowded the porches and windows of the Capitol, the Department buildings, and filled up the paths of the Capitol grounds, mingled with the thunder of the guns. The scene at this point was grand and imposing.

As the Governor descended from his carriage, to proceed to the platform, the soldiers saluted him with a present arms, and amidst the enthusiastic cheering of the assembled multitude, he was escorted to the platform by the Legislative committee of arrangements.

After the Speaker, officers and members of the Senate and House of Representatives had assembled on the platform, Hon. L. W. Hall, Speaker of the Senate, introduced Rev. R. Audley Browne, Senator from Lawrence, who opened the proceedings with prayer as follows:

Almighty God! Creator of the heavens and the earth, we adore and magnify and bless thee. Thou art the King of kings. Thou art the Lord of lords. Thou art the Ruler of Commonwealths and the Governor of Nations, and we would therefore lift up our hearts to Thee with thanksgiving and praise; and we would bow in reverence before

Thy august throne. We bless Thee because Thou hast been the dwelling place of our race in all generations; and Thou art He in whom we, each one, live and move and have our being. Thou hast been our Father's God, and Thou art our God. They called upon Thee and Thou didst deliver them. Although thou wert a God thou hadst vengeance upon their inventions; and we call upon Thee, O God! this day, remembering that we are placed under obedience to Thy holy law—that we are the subjects of Thy rightful government.

O remember our dependence upon Thee for the graces that are needful for the fulfilling of our duties as private citizens. For those who are called to fill the duties and functions of office, we entreat Thee, O God, for Thy blessing. We pray for Thy blessing upon Thy servant retiring this day from the duties of Chief Magistrate of this Commonwealth.

We pray for Thy blessing, in like manner, upon Thy servant this day to be inducted into office. We pray that Thou wouldst be pleased to enable him to fulfill the high duties devolving upon him, and this prayer we make that we may live peaceably and in all simplicity and honesty under his administration.

We entreat, this day, Thy blessing upon this nation and the President thereof, and upon the National Congress, and upon the Legislature of this Commonwealth, and upon all in authority; and that Thy glory may be served by us as a people, that equity may prevail between man and man, that God may be recognized as our King and Lord, and that we may have peace and prosperity under Thy benign providence. All of which we ask for the sake of Thy dear Son, our Savior. Amen.

THE CEREMONIES OF THE INAUGURATION.

George W. Hamersly, Esq., Clerk of the Senate, then appeared and read the following certificate:

We, the Speaker of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do certify that the Speaker of the Senate did, on the fourteenth day of January, A. D., one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, in the Hall of the House of Representatives, in the State Capitol, open the returns of the election for Governor of the Commonwealth, and publish the same in the presence of both Houses of the Legislature, conformably to the Constitution of said Commonwealth, and that upon counting the votes by the Teller appointed on the part of each House, it appeared that John W. Geary had the highest number of votes; whereupon the said John W. Geary was declared to have been duly elected Governor of the Commonwealth.

In testimony whereof, we have hereunto set our hands and seals the day and year above written.

(Signed) LEWIS W. HALL,
 Speaker of the Senate.
 JOHN P. GLASS,
 Speaker of the House of Representatives.

The oath of office was administered to the Governor by Speaker Hall in the following form:

You do swear by Almighty God, the searcher of all hearts, that you will support the Constitution of the United States, and that as you shall answer to God at the great day.

You do also swear that you will support the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and that you will perform the duties of Governor with fidelity, and that as you shall answer to God at the great day.

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

When the congratulatory cheers of the people had subsided, Gov. Geary proceeded to deliver his inaugural address, as follows:

FELLOW CITIZENS—Honored by the selection of the sovereign people of my native State as their choice for Chief Magistrate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, it is with mingled feelings of humility and gratitude that I have appeared in the presence of my fellow countrymen, and before the Searcher of all hearts, to take the solemn obligation upon me, as an acknowledgment of that exalted station, "to support the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of Pennsylvania, and to perform my official duties with fidelity."

Profoundly sensible of everything that is implied by this manifestation of the people's confidence, and more deeply impressed with the vast importance and responsibilities of the office, than elevated by its attendant honors, let it be our first grateful duty to return fervent thanksgivings to Almighty God for His constant providence and unending blessings to us as a people, and especially mine to implore His aid and counsel in the discharge of civil trusts, who has been my shield and buckler amidst scenes of peril and death.

In addressing you on this occasion, in accordance with a custom originating with the Republican fathers, I propose briefly to express my opinions on such questions as concern our common constituency, and relate to our common responsibilities.

Like countries of the Old World, our nation has had its internal commotions. From the best of times we have scarcely yet emerged, and during which "war's desolation" passed over our land, leaving its blighting influences principally upon those unfortunate States whose people rebelled against the government, and notwithstanding the agonizing sacrifices of a great civil war, the States that maintained the government and determined that the Union should be preserved, have constantly advanced in honor, wealth, population and general prosperity.

This is the first time that a change has occurred in the Executive Department of this State since the commencement of the war of the rebellion; a brief reference, therefore, to that conflict, and to its results, may not be inappropriate.

We have the consolation of knowing that the contest between the North and the South was not, on our part, one for ambition, for military renown, for territorial acquisition, nor was it for a violation of any of the rights of the South, but it was for the preservation of our own rights and privileges as men, and for the maintenance of justice. Liberty and the Union are the chief objects of the South was avowedly the dissolution of the Union and the establishment of a confederacy based upon "the corner stone of human slavery."

To have submitted to this on our part, and to have shrunk from a manly resistance under such circumstances, would have been deeply and lastingly degrading, and would have destroyed the value of the priceless legacy bequeathed to us by our fathers, and which we are obliged to transmit unimpaired to future generations. The patriotic and Union-loving people felt that the alternative was that of life or death to the Union; and under the auspicious guidance of Abraham Lincoln, that virtuous and patriotic Chief Magistrate, with the blessing of Him who directs the destinies of nations, after open action and arbitrary violence on the part of the South, the appeal to arms was made. We had just cause, and our citizens approving it with a degree of unanimity heretofore unknown, in this or any other country, left their various employments, their homes and all that was dear to them, and hastened with enthusiasm to the scenes where duty and danger called, and as the surest pledge of their unswerving love and fidelity to the Union they unhesitatingly offered their lives for its preservation.—Nor was any other tribute withheld in providing the means necessary for the support of our fleets and armies. Nearly two millions of soldiers entered the field from time to time on different terms of enlistment. The citizens generally exhibited the highest degree of patriotism in the prompt payment of taxes, in their liberal contributions in the shape of loans to the government; and the world was astonished by the amount expended in their benevolent care for the sick and wounded, through the agencies of the Sanitary and Christian Commissions and other charitable associations. More than six hundred sanguinary battles and skirmishes were fought, in which nearly three hundred thousand of our heroic defenders laid down their lives in their devotion to the nation—"For God and Liberty."

In every phase of this terrible conflict, Pennsylvania bore an honorable and conspicuous part. She contributed three hundred and sixty-six thousand three hundred and twenty-six volunteer soldiers to the rescue of the nation; and nearly every battle-field has been moistened with the blood, and whitened with the bones of her heroes. To them we owe our victories, unsurpassed in brilliancy and in the importance of their consequences. To the dead—the thrice honored dead—we are deeply indebted, for without their services it is possible our cause might not have been successful.

It is natural and eminently proper that we, as a people, should feel a deep and lasting interest in the present and future welfare of the soldiers who have borne so distinguished a part in the great contest which has resulted in the maintenance of the life, honor and prosperity of the nation. The high claims of the private soldiers upon the country are universally acknowledged, and the generous sentiment prevails that the amplest care should be taken by the government to compensate them, equally and generously, with bounties and pensions, for their services and sacrifices.

I desire that it may be distinctly understood that I do not speak of myself, in connection with this subject; but I am happy to avail myself of this opportunity to speak kind words of Pennsylvania's private soldiers, and the noble officers who commanded them.

The generosity of the people of Pennsylvania to the Union soldiers has been imitated, but not equaled, by other States. There is something peculiar in the loyalty of Pennsylvania. She seems to feel, from the first, as if upon her devolved the setting of a superior example. The fact that she carried upon her standard the brightest jewel of the Republic, that in her bosom was conceived and from her commercial capital was issued the Declaration of Independence, gave to her contributions, in men and money, and her unparalleled charitable organizations, all the dignity and force of a model for others to copy. The rebel foe seemed to feel that if he could strike a fatal blow at Pennsylvania, he would recover all his losses, and establish a resistless power in the old world. But thanks to Divine Providence, and to the enduring bravery of our citizen soldiers, the invasion of our beloved State sealed her more closely to the cause of freedom.

The result of the battle of Gettysburg broke the power of the rebellion, and although the final issue was delayed, it was inevitable from the date of that great event. That battle rescued all the other free States; and when the arch of victory was completed by Sherman's successful advance from the sea, so that the two conquerors could shake hands over the two fields that closed the war, the soldiers of Pennsylvania were equal sharers in the glorious consummation.

No people in the world's history have ever been saved from so incalculable a calamity, and no people have ever had such cause for gratitude towards their defenders.

And here I cannot refrain from an expression of regret that the General Government has not taken any steps to inflict the proper penalties of the Constitution and laws upon the leaders of those who rudely and ferociously invaded the ever sacred soil of our State.

It is certainly a morbid clemency, and a censurable forbearance, which fail to punish the greatest crimes "known to the laws of civilized nations;" and may not the hope be reasonably indulged, that the Federal authorities will cease to extend unmerited mercy to those who inaugurated the rebellion and controlled the movements of its armies? This has been a "treacherous and odious;" and it will be distinctly proclaimed, on the pages of our future history, that no attempt can be made with impunity to destroy our Republican form of government.

SOLDIERS' ORPHANS.

And while we would remember "The soldier who has borne the battle," we must not forget "his widow and his orphan children." Among our most solemn obligations is the maintenance of the indigent widows, and the support and education of the orphan children, of those noble men who fell in defense of the Union. To affirm that we owe a debt of gratitude to those who have been rendered homeless and fatherless, by their parents' patriotic devotion to the country, is a truth to which all mankind will yield a ready assent; and though we cannot call the dead to life, it is our duty, as well as duty, to take the orphan by the hand, and be to him a protector and a father.

Legislative appropriations have honored the living soldiers, and entombed the dead. The people, at the ballot-box, have sought out the meritorious veterans, and the noble spectacle is now presented of the youthful survivors of those who fell for their country, cherished and educated at the public expense. Even if I were differently constituted, my official duties would constrain me vigilantly to guard this sacred trust. But having served in the same cause, and been honored by the highest marks of public favor, I pledge myself to bear in mind the injunctions and wishes of the people, and if possible to increase the efficiency and multiply the benefits of the schools and institutions, already so creditably established, for the benefit of the orphans of our martyred heroes.

FREEDOM AND SLAVERY.

The infatuation of treason, the downfall of slavery, the vindication of freedom and the complete triumph of the government of the people, are all so many proofs of the "Divinity that has shaped our ends," and so many promises of a future crowned with success if we are only true to our mission. Six years ago the spectacle of four millions of slaves, increasing steadily both their numbers and the pride and the material and political power of their masters, presented a problem so appalling, the statesman contemplated it with undisguised alarm, and the moralist with shame. To-day these four millions, no longer slaves, but freemen, having intermediately proved their humanity towards their oppressors, their fidelity to society, and their loyalty to the government, are peacefully incorporated into the body politic, and are rapidly preparing to assume their rights as citizens of the United States. Notwithstanding this unparalleled change, was only effected after an awful expenditure of blood and treasure, its consummation may well be cited as the sublimest proof of the fitness of the American people to administer the government according to the pledges of the Declaration of Independence.

We have but to estimate where human slavery would have carried our country, in the course of another generation, to realize the force of this commanding truth. And as we dwell upon the dangers we have escaped, we may the better understand what Jefferson meant when, in the comparative infancy of human slavery, he exclaimed, "I tremble for my country when I reflect that God is just!"

A simple glance at what must have been our fate had slavery been permitted to increase will be sufficient. In 1860 the slave population amounted, in exact numbers, to three millions nine hundred and fifty-three thousand seven hundred and sixty. Taking the increase of 23.59 per cent, from 1850 to 1860, as the basis calculation, for every year, in 1900, they would have numbered at least upwards of nine millions. What Christian statesman, as he thanks God for the triumph of the Union arms, does not shudder at the terrible prospect presented by these startling figures?

But while there is cause for constant solicitude in the natural irritations produced by such a conflict, he is but a gloomy prophet who does not anticipate that the agencies which accomplished these tremendous results, will successfully cope with and put down all who attempt to govern the nation in the interests of defeated ambition and vanquished treason.

The people of the conquering North and West have comparatively little to do but to complete the good work. They command the position. The courage of the soldier and the sagacity of the statesman, working harmoniously, have now sealed and confirmed the victory, and nothing more is required but a faithful adherence to the doctrines which have achieved such marvelous results.

EDUCATION OF THE PEOPLE.

The overthrow of the rebellion has changed the whole system of Southern society, and proportionately affected other interests and sections. Defeating the enlightenment of millions, long benighted, it forces upon the North and West the consideration of a more perfect and pervading educational policy.

Much as we have boasted, and have reason to boast, of our common schools, we cannot deny, when we compare them with those of New England, and contrast them with the preparations for the education of the Southern people of all classes, that we have much to overcome, if we would, in the one, or simulate the other. The recent convention of County School Superintendents of this State exhibit some startling facts, which deserve the attention of the people and their representatives. Yet it is not by legislation alone that any people can be brought to understand their relations to each other as citizens. Their best instructors are themselves. However liberal the appropriations may be, if these are not seconded by that commendable spirit which impels the parent to impress upon the child the necessity of a sound moral and intellectual training, our representatives are generous, in vain.—Everything depends upon the people; hence the great complaint, preferred by the convention of teachers, of shortness of terms in some districts, of the small attendance of enrolled scholars, of the employment of unqualified instructors, and of the want of proper school houses, results unquestionably not so much from the indifference of the State, as from the negligence of those who are invited to share and enjoy the blessings of a cheap and admirable system of popular education. The fellow citizens will only recollect the difference between the opportunities of the present generation and those of their fathers, and how much is to be gained by a cultivation of modern facilities, they will require little exhortation to the discharge of duties which relate almost exclusively to themselves and to those nearest and dearest to them.

The importance of common schools, in a republican government, can never be fully estimated. To educate the people is the highest public duty. To permit them to remain in ignorance is incurable. Evering, therefore, should be encouraged that tends to build up, strengthen and elevate our State on the sure foundation of the education of the people. Every interest and industrial pursuit will be aided and promoted by its operations; every man who is educated is improved in usefulness, in proportion as he is skilled in labor, or intelligent in the professions, and is in every respect more valuable to society. Education seems to be essential to loyalty, for no State in the full enjoyment of free schools, ever rebelled against the government.

Pennsylvania is called the "vanguard of education." She should remember that as she has been the mother of States, she should also be the teacher of States. "The great problem of civilization is how to bring the higher intelligence of the community, and its better moral feelings, to bear upon the masses of the people, so that the lowest grades of intelligence and morals shall always be approaching the higher, and the higher still rising. A church purified of superstition solves part of this problem, and a good school system does the rest."

THE STATE MILITARY.

Nothing, after the education of the people, contributes more to the security of a State than a thorough military system. The fathers of the Republic, acting upon the instinct of preparing for war in times of peace, embodied this knowledge among the primary obligations of the citizen. Yet the rebellion found us almost wholly unprepared. Our confidence in our institutions was so firm that the idea of an attack upon them from any quarter, much less from those who had been the "spoiled children" of the government, was never believed possible, however threatened. The first clash of arms found us equally undisciplined and unorganized, and we very soon experienced that the contrivers of the great slave conspiracy had not only strengthened themselves by the stolen ships, arms and fortifications of the government, but had been for years designedly instructing their youth in the science of arms; and when the bloody tempest opened upon us they were ready to spring at the heart of the Republic, while the citizens, in whose hands the government was left, were compelled to protect themselves and their country as best they could.

When we reflect upon the terrible sacrifices we endured to maintain our liberties, and anticipate that glorious period of our country when she, the whole continent, will be dedicated to human freedom, and when the despots of the earth will construe our example into a standing threat against their tyranny, we cannot disregard the consideration of this important subject.

As before remarked, Pennsylvania contributed over three hundred thousand troops to the national cause. Deducting the loss of nearly thirty thousand by wounds and disease incurred in the field, what an immense army has been left to circulate among and to educate the mass of our population! Properly comprehending this thought, we have at once the secret of our past success, our present safety and our future power. It would be easy to create an emulation in the science of arms among the youth of the State, by proper organization, and to disseminate, in all our schools, that loyalty to the whole country, without which there can be no permanent safety for our liberty.

In their late report, the visitors to West Point Military Academy laid a significant stress upon the necessity of such preceptors, in the future, as would teach the students of that institution their first and unavoidable obligations to the principles upon which the government itself reposes. The neglect of this kind of instruction was felt in almost every movement during the recent conflict; and it is not going too far to say that many who disregarded their oaths, and who drew their swords against the government that had educated and nourished them, found a meretricious consolation in the fact that they were permitted to cherish an allegiance to the State in which they were born, which conflicted with and destroyed that love of country which should be made supreme and above all other political obligations.

If, in our past and recent experience, there has been exhibited the valuable and splendid achievement of our volunteers in the national defense, there has also been shown the necessity for military skill, and that knowledge of, and familiarity with, the rules of discipline so essentially necessary in their prompt and effectual employment. In order, therefore, to make our military system effective, we should have particular regard for the lesson, that to prevent or repel danger our State should always have a well disciplined force, prepared to act with promptness and vigor on any emergency; nor should we forget that it is impossible to tell how soon our warlike energies may again be required in the field.

HOME RESOURCES AND HOME LABOR.

In nothing have our trials during the war, and the resulting triumphs to our arms, been so full of compensation as in the establishment of the proud fact that we are not only able to do our own business against assault, but what is equally important, to depend upon and live upon our own resources. At the time the rebellion was precipitated upon us, the whole business and trade of the nation was paralyzed. Corn in the West was used for fuel, and the producer was compelled to lose not only the interest upon his capital, but the very capital he had invested. Labor was in excess, and men were everywhere searching for employment. Mills and furnaces were abandoned. Domestic intercourse, by the trifling that the stocks of a number of the most important railroads in the country fell to, and long remained at, an average price of less than fifty per cent. But the moment danger to the Union became imminent, and the necessity of self-reliance was plainly presented as the only means of securing protection, and the gradual dispersion of our mercantile marine by the apprehension of the armed vessels of the rebels, the American people began to practice upon the maxims of self-defense and self-dependence. From having been, if not absolutely impoverished and almost without remunerative enterprise, depressed by unemployed labor and idle capital, all their great material agencies were brought into motion with a promptitude, and kept in operation with a rapidity and regularity, which relieved them from want, their country from danger, and excited the amazement of civilized nations.

Protection to the manufacturers of the country, when rightly viewed, is merely the defense of labor against competition from abroad.

The wages of labor in the United States is higher than those in any other country, consequently our laborers are the more elevated. Labor is the foundation of both individual and national wealth; and those nations that have best protected it from foreign competition, have been the most prosperous. It is clearly, therefore, the interest of the nation to foster and protect domestic industry, by relieving from internal taxation every sort of labor, and imposing such heavy duties upon all importations of foreign manufactured articles, as to prevent the possibility of competition from abroad. Not only should individual enterprise and industry be thus encouraged, but all public works, a liberal and properly restricted general railroad system, and all internal improvements of every kind, receive the fostering care and most liberal aid of the government. We are rich in everything necessary to meet our wants, and render us independent of every other country, and we have only to avail ourselves of our own resources and capabilities, to progress continually onward to a degree of greatness never yet attained by any nation. Our agricultural, mineral and manufacturing resources are unequalled, and it should be our constant study to devise and prosecute means for their highest development.

Why, then, should not the efforts of government make available the teachings of experience, and at once legislate for the manifest good of the people? Why permit our manufacturers to beg that they may live?

The government of Great Britain has, by her protective system, "plied duty upon duty," for more than one hundred and fifty years, and hence upon protection is founded her manufacturing supremacy. Yet her emissaries come to this country, and for sinister purposes, extol "free trade," speak scoffingly of "protection," and endeavor to persuade our people to believe and adopt the absurd theory, that "tariffs hinder the development of industry and the growth of wealth."

The great Republican party, in the Convention which nominated Abraham Lincoln, in Chicago, in 1860, as if preparing for the very war which most of our statesmen were at that period anxious to postpone, adopted a resolution, "which," to use the language of an eminent Pennsylvanian, "declared that the produce of the farm should no longer be compelled to remain inert and losing interest while waiting demand in distant markets; that the capital which daily took the form of labor power should no longer be allowed to go to waste; that the fuel which underlies our soil should no longer there remain to be a mere support for foreign rails; that the power which lay then petrified in the form of coal should everywhere be brought to aid the human arm; that our vast deposits of iron ore should be made to take the form of engines and other machinery, to be used as substitutes for mere muscular force; and that all our wonderful resources, material and moral, must and should be at once developed. Such was the intent and meaning of the brief resolution then and there adopted, to be at the earliest practicable moment ratified by Congress, as proved to be the case when the Morrill tariff, on the memorable 2d of March, 1861, was made the law of the land. To that law, aided as it was by the admirable action of the Treasury in supplying machinery of circulation, we stand now indebted for the fact that we have, in the short space of five years, produced more food, built more houses and mills, opened more mines, constructed more roads than ever before, and so greatly added to the wealth of the country, that the property of the loyal States would this day exchange for twice the quantity of gold than could five years since have been obtained for all the real and personal property, southern chattels excepted, of the whole of the States and territories of which the Union stands composed."

If the principle of protection proved to be such a talisman in the time of war, shall we reject it in time of peace? If an answer were needed to this question, reference could be had to the repeated concessions to this principle by the recent free-traders of the South. Scarcely one of the ambitious men who led their unfortunate people into rebellion, but now freely admits that if the South had manufactured their own fabrics, on their own plantations, and cultivated skilled labor in their great cities, they would have been able to prolong their contest with the government; and now to enjoy substantial, instead of artificial prosperity, they must invoke the very agencies they had so long and so fatally disregarded. Words need not be multiplied upon this important theme, either to make my own position stronger, or to impress upon the people the value of adhering to a system which has proved itself worthy of our continued support, and of the imitation of its former opponents.

FINANCES.

The exhibit of the finances of the Commonwealth, as presented in the late annual message of my predecessor, and the report of the State Treasurer, is certainly very gratifying; and the flattering prospect of the speedy extinguishment of the debt which has been hanging for so many years, like a dark cloud over the prospects of our State, combined with the hope that a reasonable reduction will be made in our habitual annual expenditures, will cheer the people onward in the pathway of duty.

Among the most delicate and important obligations required of those in official positions is a strict and faithful management of the public revenues and expenditures of the Commonwealth. Taxation should be applied where its burdens may be least felt, and where it is most just that it should be borne. Every resource should be carefully husbanded, and the strictest economy practiced, so that the credit of the State may be maintained on a firm and enduring basis, and the debt sure and steadily diminished, until its final extinguishment. Unnecessary delay in this regard, in my opinion, be incompatible with our true interests.

That these expectations are capable of speedy and certain consummation, has already been demonstrated. The public improvements, the cause of our heavy debt, which seemed to be an incubus upon the prosperity of the State, so long as they were managed by her agents, have been sold; the tax on real estate has been abolished, and considerable reductions have already been made on the State debt.

This important branch of the administration shall receive my constant and zealous attention.

The general and essential principles of law and liberty, declared in the Constitution of Pennsylvania, shall be watchfully guarded. It will be my highest ambition to administer the government in the true spirit of that instrument. Care shall be taken "that the laws be faithfully executed," and the decisions of the courts respected and enforced, if within their authorized jurisdiction. Influenced by considerations for the public welfare, it is my imperative duty to see that justice be impartially administered. That merciful provision, the pardonng power, conferred upon the Executive doubtlessly for correcting only the errors of criminal jurisprudence, and securing justice, shall not be perverted to the indiscriminate protection of those who may be justly sentenced to bear penalties for infractions of the laws made for the security and protection of society. Those "erroneously or "excessively" punished, or erroneously convicted, are alone entitled to its beneficent protection, and only such should expect its exercise in their behalf.

Whenever the people deem it expedient or necessary, from actual experience, to alter the laws, or to amend the Constitution, it is their undoubted right to do so, according to the mode prescribed within itself. I here repeat, what I have said elsewhere, that "so long as the people feel that the power to alter or change the character of the government abides in them, so long will they be impressed with a sense of security and of dignity which must ever spring from the consciousness that they hold within their own hands a remedy for every political evil, a corrective for every governmental abuse and usurpation."

THE NATIONAL SITUATION.

We are confessedly in a transition state. It is marvelous how prejudice has perished in the furnace of war, and how, from the very ashes of old hatreds and old parties, the truth rises purified and triumphant. The contest between the Executive and a Congress twice elected by substantially the same suffrages, a contest so anomalous in our experience as not to have been anticipated by the framers of the National Constitution, has only served to develop the remarkable energies of our people, and to strengthen them for future conflicts. That contest is virtually decided.

The victorious forces, physical and moral, of the patriotic millions, are simply passing before they perfect the work of reconstruction. Twenty-six States have not only been saved from the contagion of war, but have been crystallized in the saving. The unrested ten, still disaffected and still defiant, seem to be Providentially delaying their return to the Union, so that when they re-enter upon its obligations and its blessings they will be the better able to fulfil the one and enjoy the other. Their condition is a fearful warning to men and nations, and especially to ourselves.

Until slavery fell we did not fully understand the value of Republican institutions. We seem to have tolerated, and in many cases to defend slavery, we did not feel that its close proximity, so far from assisting, was gradually destroying our liberties; and it was only when rebellion tore away the mask, that we saw the hideous features of the monster that was eating out the vitals of the Republic.

If we are now astonished and shocked at the exhibition of cruelty and ingratitude among those who, having inaugurated and prosecuted a cause war against a generous government, and having been admitted to the punishment they deserve, are once more arrogantly clamoring to assume control of the destinies of this great nation, how much greater cause would we have for surprise had slavery been permitted to increase and multiply?

Boast as we may of our material and our moral victories, yet is it not true that there is no such thing as a Republican government in the ten States that began and carried on the war? There is not, to-day, a despotic State in Europe where the rights of the individual man are so defiantly trampled under foot, as in the sections which were supposed to have been brought into full submission to the Government of the United States. But the disease has suggested its Providential cure.

The abhorrent doctrine, that defeated treason shall not only be magnanimously pardoned, but introduced to yet stronger privileges, because of its guilty failure, seems to have been insisted upon, as if to strengthen the better and the contrasting doctrine, that a nation, having conquered its freedom, is its best guardian, and that those who were defeated in honorable battle should be constrained to submit to all the terms of the conqueror.

The violators of the most solemn obligations, the perpetrators of the most atrocious crimes in the annals of time, the murderers of our heroic soldiers on fields of battle, and in loathsome dungeons and barbarous prisons, they must not, shall not, re-appear in the council chambers of the nation, to aid in its legislation, or control its destinies, unless it shall be on conditions which will preserve our institutions from their harmful purposes and influence, and secure republican forms of government, in their purity and vigor, in every section of the country.

That they are indisposed to accept such conditions, is manifest from their recent and even arrogant rejection of the proposed amendments of the national Constitution—amendments which are believed, by many true and patriotic citizens and statesmen, to be too mild and generous.

They have not been fully considered by the people during the late elections, and approved by majorities so large as to give them a sanction which it would be improper to either overlook or disregard. And certainly in view of this fact, none of the late rebel States should be admitted to their former "practical relations" to the General Government, while they continue to oppose these amendments.

To the Congress of the United States the heartfelt sympathies and overwhelming suffrages of the people have been generously given. They have fearlessly proclaimed their unequivocal verdict—"WELL DONE GOOD AND FAITHFUL SERVANTS." Upon the deliberations and actions of Congress our present interests and future welfare all depend. In its firmness and courage the whole experiment of genuine republicanism is indissolubly involved. That this firmness and courage will be fully exhibited by its controlling majorities, in the origination and adoption of measures of wisdom and discretion, even more radical and decisive, is necessary, than those of the past, I entertain no doubt. Such measures will meet with my cordial approval. And I may well add, that while Pennsylvania will confide in a loyal Congress, she will not hesitate to sustain it with her entire influence and power.

That in the administration of the government I may err, is only what should be expected from the infirmities of the human mind; but as I enter upon the discharge of my responsible duties with a firm resolution to act with honesty and impartiality, I trust my errors will be regarded with charity and treated with the gentleness of magnanimous forgiveness.

And I earnestly hope that my intercourse with my fellow-citizens of the Senate and House of Representatives will be so frank and cordial that our duties to a common constituency will be pleasantly and faithfully discharged. Different branches of the Government as we are, with distinctive duties, we are nevertheless parts of one organized and well regulated system, and as we co-operate or disagree, the interests of the State will probably be promoted or retarded. Elected by the people, desirous to promote the welfare of every citizen, mere party differences should not be allowed to interfere with the maintenance of a generous, a true and comprehensive public policy.

It was the illustrious Washington, equally distinguished as a warrior and a statesman, who gave utterance to the declaration, "that the propitious smiles of Heaven cannot be expected on a nation that disregards the eternal rules of order and right; and Jefferson" who asserted that "whatever is morally wrong cannot be politically right." These utterances express my deepest convictions of the rules and principles which should permeate and control all governments. Let us fellow-citizens, adhere to them, be governed by them, and our efforts will be happily united in surrounding the institutions of our State, as well as those of our nation, with an rampart of truth that will repel the madness of ambition, the schemes of usurpation, and successfully resist the changes and agitations of all coming time.

At the conclusion of the inaugural address, the soldiers and people present broke out in the most tumultuous cheers, while those on the platform made a rush to greet Governor Geary. His Excellency left the stand accompanied by the officers of his Cabinet and the Committee of Arrangements.

THE END OF THE CEREMONIES.

At the conclusion of the inaugural address, both branches of the Legislature proceeded to their respective Chambers and adjourned until three o'clock.

THE SUCCESS OF THE OCCASION.

It is nothing more than just to write that the ceremonies of no similar occasion passed off with greater success. The order in the city during the day, was admirable, and was highly creditable to our military authorities. Little, if any, brawling was observed in the streets. If there were any cases of disorder and drunkenness, we did not see them. The people who came here from a distance, proved that they were of the most respectable character—reflecting credit, not merely upon the occasion, by their behavior, but doing honor to the localities whence they came.

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE.

Great credit is due to the Legislative committee of arrangements, Messrs. Kerns, Wharton and Glatz, for the admirable manner in which they discharged that portion of the duty devolving upon them.

Gen. E. C. Williams, Chief Marshal, and his Aids, acted with great ability, and to all of whom the utmost credit is due for the success of the occasion.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 15, 1867.

The House met at 11 o'clock, A. M.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. JACOB KIRBY, member from Wyoming.

The SPEAKER announced a quorum of members present.

The Journal of yesterday was partly read, when,

On motion of Mr. KURTZ, the further reading of the same was dispensed with.

On motion of Mr. LEE, the House then took recess until 12 o'clock, M.

At 12 o'clock, M., the SPEAKER called the House to order, and appointed Messrs. MARKS and CRAIG as a committee to wait upon and invite the Speaker and members of the Senate to meet the Speaker and members of the House of Representatives in the portico of the capitol, this day at 12 o'clock, for the purpose of inaugurating the Governor elect.

INAUGURATION OF THE GOVERNOR.

Agreeably to order,

The members of the House, accompanied by the Speaker, proceeded to the portico of the capitol, where they were met by the Speaker and members of the Senate; when, According to order,

The committee appointed for that purpose, introduced John W. Geary, Governor elect.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. R. AUDLEY BROWN, Senator from Lawrence county.

[See inaugural ceremonies.]
The Clerk of the Senate read the certificate of election.

[See inaugural ceremonies.]
When the SPEAKER of the Senate [LEWIS W. HALL], administered to John W. Geary, the Governor elect, the following oath:

You do swear by Almighty God, the searcher of all hearts, that you will support the Constitution of the United States, and that as you shall answer to God at the great day.

You do also swear that you will support the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and that you will perform the duties of Governor with fidelity, and that as you shall answer to God at the great day.

Whereupon, the SPEAKER of the Senate proclaimed John W. Geary to be duly elected and qualified as Governor of this Commonwealth, for the ensuing three years.

GOVERNOR'S ADDRESS.

After which, the Governor addressed the two Houses.

[See inaugural ceremonies.]
The SPEAKER and the members of the House of Representatives, having returned to their hall.

The SPEAKER declared that the hour of one o'clock having arrived, this House stands adjourned until this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 15, 1867.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The House met at 3 o'clock.

The SPEAKER. Agreeably to the laws of the United States and of this Commonwealth, this House will now proceed to name a candidate to be voted for as United States Senator.

The Clerk will proceed to call the roll.

The roll was then called, when the following gentlemen named Simon Cameron:

Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmel, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Mann, Marks, McNeelch, Meily, Pennypacker, Peters, Pillow, Quay, Rhoads, Roath, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—62.

The following named Edgar Cowan:
Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Hetch, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Masish, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Rouch, Satterthwait, Tharp and Westbrook—37.

Whereupon
The SPEAKER announced that Simon Cameron, having received the highest number of votes, was hereby declared the choice of the House.

The special order for this afternoon being gone through with, the SPEAKER declared this House adjourned until to-morrow morning, at 11 o'clock.

SENATE.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 16, 1867.

The Senate met at 11 o'clock, A. M.
Prayer was delivered by Rev. Mr. Bayley.
The reading of the Journal of the previous day was dispensed with.

ABSENT FROM THE SENATORIAL ELECTION.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

[Leave was granted.]
[At the session of yesterday afternoon I was accidentally absent from my seat. Owing to the crowded condition of the town it was difficult for me to get my dinner, sir—owing to that fact I was unable to attend the session. Had I been here I would have voted with the majority who voted for United States Senator upon that occasion, it being always my rule to follow my party in nominations regularly made. I now ask the consent of the Senate that my vote may be recorded with the majority who voted upon that occasion.]

The SPEAKER. Will the Senate give its common consent to allow the vote of the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE] to be recorded?

An affirmative response being given,
The SPEAKER said: Of course it is understood that this is to appear as part of the Journal of yesterday; in other words, it will appear from the Journal as if this vote was given yesterday, because the law specifies that the election must take place on a particular day, which day, in the present case, was yesterday. The Clerk will therefore make the required amendment of the Journal.

The Clerk then called the name of Mr. WHITE, and that Senator voted for Simon Cameron.

Mr. RANDALL. Mr. Speaker, I make a similar request of the Senate—to be allowed to record my vote in the election for United States Senator.

Leave was granted.
Mr. RANDALL, when his name was called, voted for Edgar Cowan.

Mr. M'CANDESS. Mr. Speaker, I am obliged to ask a similar indulgence of the Senate; I also desire to have my vote recorded.

Leave was granted.
Mr. M'CANDESS, when his name was called, voted for Edgar Cowan.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Mr. GLATZ. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave of absence for the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] for a few days from to-day.

Leave was granted.

COMMUNICATIONS, PETITIONS, ETC.

The SPEAKER presented to the Senate the petition of E. Cady Stanton, Lucy Stone and others—a committee of the Equal Rights association.

The petition was read by the Clerk as follows:

To the Senate of the State of Pennsylvania:
The undersigned, on behalf of the "American Equal Rights Association," respectfully petition your Honorable body to reject the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States upon the following grounds:

1. It is utterly inadequate. It fails to secure loyal State Governments in the South, or to curb the spirit of rebellion—yet the fact of its adoption is declared to entitle the rebel States to resume their seats in the Congress of the United States.
2. It will interpose an obstacle, if adopted, to such additional conditions of reconstruction as justice and sound policy require.
3. Its adoption would be an act of perfidy, unparalleled in history. For it places four millions of loyal negroes, our soldiers, disfranchised and without adequate protection under the heel of their enemies and ours; moreover, it subjects two millions of loyal white Southerners to the tender mercies of rebels.

4. It permits the disfranchisement of the loyal mothers of a million soldiers without penalty, and by an act of retrogressive legislation introduces the word "male" into the Federal Constitution.

5. It satifies nobody, not even its authors. At the South the loyalists protest against it, the negroes avoid it and the rebels repudiate it. At the North the Democrats unanimously oppose it, and a majority of Republicans condemn it.

6. The people of the State of Pennsylvania are opposed to it. Inasmuch as they have had no opportunity of expressing an opinion, it is the duty of the State Legislature, before acting upon a matter of such vital importance, to submit it to a direct vote at a special election to be called for the purpose.

BILLS CONSIDERED AND PASSED.

During the reading of bills in place, a number of bills introduced were considered and passed, in the following order:

Mr. SHOEMAKER. I read in my place a bill entitled A supplement to an act entitled An act to incorporate the Valley coal company, approved March 16, 1865.

The SPEAKER. The bill is referred to the Committee on Corporations.

Mr. SHOEMAKER. I ask the indulgence of the Senate to suspend the rules and pass that bill. It is one of great importance to the parties interested.

The question upon suspending the rules to proceed to the consideration of said bill was then put and decided affirmatively, when said bill was taken up, read twice, and

Passed finally.

Mr. SHOEMAKER. Mr. Speaker, I have in my hand a bill in which the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE], who is absent, is specially interested. I ask for its consideration. It is a short bill, and has been reported from committee.

I therefore move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Senate bill No. 28, entitled An act to extend the provisions of the act concerning the sale of railroads, canals, turnpikes, bridges and plank roads, to sales made or to be made under or by virtue of a power of sale in mortgage or deed of trust, without judicial process or decree. The motion was agreed to and the Senate proceeded to consider said bill.

The first and only section was read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, etc.

That all the provisions of the act entitled an act concerning the sale of railroads, canals, turnpikes, bridges and plank roads, approved the eighth day of April, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, shall extend and apply to sales and conveyances heretofore or hereafter made, under or by virtue of a power of sale contained in any mortgage or deed of trust, without any process or decree of court in the premises; and the person or persons for or on account of whom such railroad, canal, turnpike, bridge or plank road shall have been, or hereafter may be, purchased, shall have and enjoy all the rights and privileges granted and conferred by the said act upon the person or persons purchasing under judicial process or decree, as in said act mentioned.

The section was agreed to.

The bill was again read, and upon the question? Shall the bill pass.

Mr. WHITE said: Mr. Speaker, this is a general bill of an important character, and I would like to have an explanation from the chairman of the Judiciary Committee as to its purport.

Mr. SHOEMAKER. Mr. Speaker, this bill was read in place by Senator Wallace, and has been properly considered by the committee. The amount of the bill is this, that when in a mortgage or deed of trust, there is authority to sell the realty and nothing else, the attorney or the party authorized to make the sale shall be empowered to sell at the same time the franchises, that is, to sell the whole of the concern together; and we considered that this would be to the advantage of both the debtor and the creditor. If this power to sell pertains only to the realty, leaving the franchises out, why it simply diminishes the price of whatever may be included in the mortgage. That is the whole substance of the measure; that in case there is a general power of attorney simply to sell the realty in the mortgage or the deed of trust, this may include also the franchises of the corporation. I can see nothing wrong in that.—The object is virtually to carry out the whole power that may have been designed to be carried out in the deed of trust or the mortgage. Of course where there is a judicial sale, that is another matter; but this is where a sale is made by the authority contained in the mortgage or deed of trust.

The bill then

Passed finally.

Mr. BROWNE (of Lawrence). Mr. Speaker, I read in my place a bill entitled An act to repeal an act entitled An act relative to bounties in Brady township, Butler county, which became a law on the 4th of January, 1867.

The SPEAKER. The bill is referred to the Committee on Judiciary Local.

Mr. BROWNE (of Lawrence). I move to suspend the rules, and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of this bill. If the Senate desire, I will state the necessity for its passage.

The motion was agreed to, and the committee having been discharged the bill was taken up and the Senate proceeded to consider the same.

The bill was then read twice and

Passed finally.

Mr. GLATZ. Mr. Speaker, I read in my place a bill entitled An act to enable the school directors of West Manheim township, in the county of York, to levy and collect at once the honary tax remaining unpaid.

The SPEAKER. The bill is referred to the Committee on Judiciary Local.

On motion of Mr. GLATZ, the rules were suspended, the committee discharged, and the bill taken up, and having been twice read

Passed finally.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I read in my place a bill entitled An act to vacate a portion of Spruce alley, in the Ninth ward, in the city of Pittsburgh.

The SPEAKER. The bill is referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges. On motion of Mr. BIGHAM, the rules were suspended, the committee discharged, and the bill taken up, and having been twice read was Passed finally.

Mr. ROYER. Mr. Speaker, I read in my place a bill entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act to incorporate the Mutual insurance company of Montgomery county, passed March 31, 1841, authorizing said company to insure against storms and hurricanes.

The SPEAKER. The bill is referred to the Committee on Corporations.

Mr. ROYER. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules, and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of this bill.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say that this session having been fixed for the consideration of the special order, the joint resolution to ratify the amendment of the Constitution of the United States, I am opposed to any innovation upon the regular orders which tends to prevent or postpone the consideration of that important measure. Our session to-day is limited, and I fear that this practice of passing bills irregularly will not allow us to reach the constitutional amendment. I am not opposed to the particular bill before us, but it is to the general practice that I take exception. I will therefore call for the orders of the day upon every bill that is called up from this point.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would much prefer being permitted to adhere to the regular order of business, but when the rules are suspended for the accommodation of one Senator other Senators are apt to ask a similar privilege.

The motion of Mr. ROYER was then agreed to, and the bill being taken up was read twice, considered and

Passed finally.

A TEST QUESTION.

Mr. LOWRY read in place a bill entitled An act to change the name of Virginia Watkinson to Virginia Ottinger, and to give her all the rights of a daughter of Douglass and Emma Ottinger.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of opinion that the courts are empowered to act in the case presented by this bill.

Mr. LOWRY. I think not, sir.

The SPEAKER. The bill is referred to the Judiciary General Committee. The Chair would call the attention of the chairman of that committee to the question of the jurisdiction of the courts and the consequent prohibition of the Constitution, as would seem to be presented by the bill, and would request the chairman to make a report upon the subject, so that we may be guided as to our future action in like cases.

PRINTING OF INAUGURAL CEREMONIES.

Mr. CONNELL offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That a full report of the ceremonies attending the inauguration of Governor Geary be published in the Legislative Record among the proceedings of yesterday. The resolution was adopted.

GOVERNOR CURTIN.

On motion of Mr. M'CANDESS and Mr. COLEMAN, the following resolution was twice read, considered and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That at 12 o'clock, P. M., this day, the members of the Senate proceed in a body to pay their respects to the retiring Governor.

THE BILL TO RATIFY THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

Mr. BIGHAM offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Senate will hold a special session this evening, commencing at 7 o'clock, to act upon the bill ratifying the constitutional amendments.

The resolution was twice read.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, I propose to amend by providing for a session this afternoon at three o'clock instead of this evening.

The SPEAKER. Does the mover of the resolution accept the amendment?

Mr. BIGHAM. I am perfectly satisfied.

The amendment of Mr. LOWRY having been accepted by Mr. BIGHAM as a modification, the original resolution was then adopted.

NOTARIES PUBLIC IN PITTSBURG.

The Speaker referred to the appropriate committee House bill entitled An act authorizing the appointment of additional notaries public for the cities of Pittsburg and Allegheny.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. Speaker, I move that the committee be discharged from the consideration of that bill, and that the Senate proceed to consider the same.

The motion was

Agreed to.

And said bill was taken up, twice read and

Passed finally.

CONVENTION FOR ELECTION OF U. S. SENATOR.

The hour of 12 o'clock having arrived

The SPEAKER said: Senators, the hour appointed by law for the assembling of the Senate and House of Representatives in convention for the ratification of the election made yesterday for a member of the United States Senate has arrived. The Senate will therefore now proceed to the hall of the House of Representatives.

The members of the Senate then proceeded to the hall of the House of Representatives, and took part in the convention held by the two Houses, agreeably to the provisions of an act of the Congress of the United States, and of an act of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania regulating the time and manner of holding elections for Senators in Congress.

After some time, the Senate returned to their chamber.

Mr. BIGHAM, teller on the part of the Senate, submitted a report which was read, as follows:

That agreeably to the provisions of "An act to regulate the manner and time of holding elections for Senators in Congress," approved the 25th day of July, A. D. 1866, and of an act of the General Assembly of this Commonwealth, entitled "An act to define the time and regulate the manner of electing Senators to represent this State in the Senate of the United States," approved January 11, A. D. 1867, the members of the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania convened in joint assembly in the hall of the House of Representatives of said Commonwealth, on Wednesday, the 16th day of January, A. D. 1867, at 12 o'clock, a. m., the Speaker of the Senate officiating as President thereof; whereupon the journals of both Houses of the preceding day were read by the clerks thereof, as follows, viz:

(For a certified copy of the journals see Joint Convention.)

From which it appeared that Simon Cameron, of Dauphin county, had received a majority of all the votes given in each of said Houses for Senator in the Congress of the United States.

The PRESIDENT of the joint convention thereupon declared Simon Cameron to be duly elected a Senator to represent the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the Senate of the United States for six years from and after the 4th day of March next.

The PRESIDENT of the joint assembly, did then, in the presence of the members of both Houses, sign four several certificates of the election, attested by the tellers of the respective Houses, one of which certificates was directed to be transmitted by the President of the joint assembly to the Governor of the Commonwealth, one to the Senator elect, and the remaining two to be preserved among the records and entered at length upon the Journals of each House.

[A copy of the certificates will be found in the House proceedings.]

The report of Mr. BIGHAM was

Laid on the table.

BILLS CONSIDERED.

Mr. CONNELL moved that the Senate proceed to consider a bill which had just come from the House, entitled An act authorizing the Governor to appoint an additional notary public for the county of Lycoming.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The committee was discharged, the bill taken up, read twice and

Passed finally.

Mr. COWLES moved that the Senate proceed to the consideration of House bill No. 5, entitled An act repealing an act appointing commissioners to lay out and open a State road from Marsh's Corners, McKean county, to the Philadelphia and Erie railroad.

The motion was

Agreed to.

And the committee was discharged, the bill taken up, twice read, considered and

Passed finally.

Mr. WORTHINGTON moved that the Senate proceed to the consideration of a bill reported from the committee, entitled An act relating to the drainage of roads by supervisors in the county of Delaware.

The motion was

Agreed to.

And the committee was discharged, the bill taken up, twice read, considered and

Passed finally.

GOVERNOR CURTIN.

The SPEAKER then announced that the hour appointed for the Senate to wait upon the retiring Governor of the Commonwealth, for the purpose of paying their respects, had arrived.

On motion, the Senate adjourned.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Senate met at 3 o'clock, P. M.

AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate resumed the third reading and consideration of a joint resolution to ratify the amendments to the Constitution of the United States, which is as follows:

WHEREAS, Two-thirds of the members of the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, in Congress assembled, did adopt an amendment to the Constitution of the United States which is entitled Article fourteen, as follows:

SECTION 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States, and of the State wherein they reside; no State shall make or enforce any laws which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States, nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person, within its jurisdiction, the equal protection of the law.

SEC. 2. Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed; but when the right to vote at any election for the choice of electors for President and Vice President of the United States, representatives in Congress, the executive and judicial officers of a State, or the members of the legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State, being twenty-one years of age, and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged except for participation in rebellion or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such State.

SEC. 3. No person shall be a senator or representative in Congress, or elector of President and Vice President, or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any State, who, having previously taken an oath as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of a State Legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid and comfort to the enemies thereof; but Congress may, by a vote of two-thirds of each House, remove such disability.

SEC. 4. The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties, for services in suppressing rebellion, shall not be questioned; but neither the United States, nor any State, shall assume, or pay any debt, or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations and claims shall be held illegal and void.

SEC. 5. The Congress shall have power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

Which said amendment has been submitted to the legislature of Pennsylvania for ratification or rejection; therefore,

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the amendment, as above proposed and submitted, is hereby ratified and adopted by the State of Pennsylvania.

The SPEAKER. The session this afternoon is for the special purpose of considering joint resolution to ratify the amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which is on third reading. The Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM] has the floor.

Mr. BIGHAM then addressed the Senate at length, and was followed by Mr. DAVIS and Mr. TAYLOR. The remarks of these gentlemen will appear hereafter.

SPECIAL SESSION.

Mr. WORTHINGTON. I move to postpone the further consideration of this subject, for the purpose of making a motion to have a session to-night.

Mr. WHITE. For myself, Mr. Speaker, I would just say that there is a contested election case on the other side of the hall in which I am personally interested. I have to be present at a consultation in the case, which takes place to-night. It will therefore be impossible for me to be here.

On the question of postponing the subject for the present,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DONOVAN and Mr. RIDGWAY, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne, (Lawrence), Brown, (Mercer), Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conny, Rover, Searight, Stutzman, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—17.
 NAYS—Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, Jackson, James, M'Cardless, Randall, Ridgway, Shoemaker, Taylor, Walls and White—13.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. WORTHINGTON. I now move that when the Senate adjourns it will adjourn to meet to-night at 7 1/2 o'clock, for the special purpose of considering the constitutional amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

The hour of five o'clock having arrived, the Senate then adjourned.

EVENING SESSION.

The Senate met at 7 1/2 o'clock, P. M.

THE AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

The SPEAKER. The special order for the evening is bill entitled A joint resolution to ratify the amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Addresses were then delivered by Messrs. BURNETT, SEARCHT, LOWRY and BROVSE, of (Lawrence).

Their remarks will be published hereafter. On motion of Mr. BILLINGFELT, the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 16, 1867.

The House met at 11 o'clock, A. M.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. JACOB KENNEY, member from Wyoming.

The SPEAKER announced a quorum of members present.

The Journal of yesterday was read, and there being no objections, it was approved.

The SPEAKER presented the following petition, which was read:

To the House of Representatives of the State of Pennsylvania:

The undersigned, on behalf of the American Equal Rights association, respectfully petition your honorable body to reject the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States, upon the following grounds:

1st. It is utterly inadequate. It fails to secure loyal State governments in the South, or to curb the spirit of rebellion; yet the fact of its adoption is declared to entitle the rebel States to assume their allegiance in the Congress of the United States.

2d. It will oppose an obstacle, if adopted, to such additional conditions of reconstruction as justice and sound policy require.

3d. Its adoption would be an act of perfidy unparalleled in history, for it places four millions of loyal negroes, our allies, disfranchised and without adequate protection, under the heel of their enemies and ours; moreover, it subjects two millions of loyal white Southerners to the tender mercies of rebels.

4th. It permits the disfranchisement of the loyal mothers of a million soldiers, without penalty, and by an act of retrogressive legislation, introduces the word "male" for the first time, into the Federal Constitution.

5th. It satisfies nobody, not even its authors. At the South the loyalists protest against it, the negroes dread it, and the rebels repudiate it. At the North the Democrats unanimously oppose it, and a majority of the Republicans condemn it.

6th. The people of the State of Pennsylvania are opposed to it. Inasmuch as they have had no opportunity of expressing an opinion, it is the duty of the State Legislature, before acting upon a matter of such vital importance, to submit it to a direct vote at a special election to be called for the purpose.

(Signed)

E. CADY STANTON,
 SUSAN B. ANTHONY,
 LEVY STONE,
 HENRY B. BLACKWELL,

Committee American Equal Rights Association.

New York, January 12, 1867.

The petition was Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary General.

BILL PASSED.

Mr. M'KEE. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to read a bill in place at this time.

Leave was granted.

Mr. M'KEE. I read in my place and present to the Chair a bill entitled An act authorizing additional notices public for the cities of Allegheny and Pittsburg and more that the rules be suspended and the House proceed to its consideration.

The motion was Agreed to.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE SELECTED.

The SPEAKER. Agreeably to order, the House will now proceed to select a committee, according to law, to try the matter of the petition presented on the 10th instant, complaining of the undue election of JOHN P. LINTON, returned as a member from the district formed by the county of Cambria.

The Clerk will proceed to call the roll.

The roll was called, when it appeared that the following members were in attendance, viz:

Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barrington, Barton, Boyd, Boyle, Brown, Brennan, Brown, Camron, Chadwick, Chalfant, Chase, Collins, Colville, Craig, Davis, Day, Deise, Donoghue, Espy, Ewing, Fogel, Freeborn, Ghegan, Gordon, Gregory, Harbison, Harner, Headman, Hetzel, Hoffman, Hood, Humphrey, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kennedy, Kimmell, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Lee, Leech, Linton, Long, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Henry, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Maish, Mann, Markley, Maris, Mechling, Melly, Meyers, Penpacker, Peters, Phelan, Pilow, Quay, Quigley, Rhoads, Richards, Roath, Robinson, Rouch, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Tharp, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Westbrook, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker.

The SPEAKER. Who appears as counsel for the petitioner?

Mr. DAVIS. I will act as temporary counsel.

The SPEAKER. Who appears as counsel for the sitting member.

Mr. Fershing. Colonel Zeigler and myself will act in that capacity.

The SPEAKER. The names of all the members will now be placed in the box, except those of Messrs. De Haven, Gallagher, Kerns, Mullin and Shuman, who are absent, and Mr. Linton, the sitting member, and the Speaker.

Mr. GHEGAN and Mr. MEYERS will be good enough to write down the members as they are drawn from the box by the Clerk, and announced by the Speaker, agreeably to the Act of Assembly.

The following names were challenged by the contestant through his counsel:

Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Hetzel, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Phelan, Quigley, Robinson, Satterthwait and Tharp.

The following names were challenged by the sitting member through his counsel:

Messrs. Allen, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Donoghue, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gordon, Harrison, Hoffmann, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kimmell, Kinney, Leech, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Mann, Maris, Mechling, Melly, Penpacker, Peters, Pilow, Richards, Seiler, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Wingard, Woodward and Wright.

The following names were not challenged: Messrs. M'Camant, Roath, Whann, Lee, Quay and Stumbaugh.

The following names remained in the box: Messrs. Ghegan, Rhoads, Wharton, Worrall, Rouch, Westbrook, Day, Davis, Wilson, Adaire and Armstrong.

The SPEAKER. The counsel for the contestant, and the counsel for the sitting member, together with the Clerk, will now retire and proceed to strike out alternately, from the list of seventeen names that were not challenged or drawn, until the number shall be reduced to nine.

The respective counsel and the Clerk then withdrew, and after a little time they returned, and reported the following members to constitute the select committee, who were duly qualified, to wit:

Messrs. M'Camant, Lee, Quay, Whann, Stumbaugh, Roath, Day, Worrall and Rhoads.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That the committee just selected be requested to meet in Committee room, No. 11, at 7 1/2 o'clock this evening.

The resolution was read a second time, considered and

Agreed to:

JOINT CONVENTION.

The hour of 12 o'clock having arrived,

Agreeably to order,

The Speaker and members of the Senate and the Speaker and members of the House of Representatives met in joint convention in the hall of the House of Representatives.

HON. LEWIS V. HALL, Speaker of the Senate, took the chair as President of the convention.

The PRESIDENT. The convention will come to order, gentlemen.

Agreeably to the provisions of an act of Congress of the United States entitled An act to regulate the times and manner of electing United States Senators to Congress, approved the 26th of July, 1866, and an act of the General Assembly of this Commonwealth entitled An act to define the time and to regulate the manner of electing Senators to represent the State of Pennsylvania in the Senate of the United States, enacted in the Senate of the United States, on the 11th of January, 1867, the Journals of yesterday of the two Houses will now be read. The Journal of the Senate will be read by the Chief Clerk of the Senate, and the Journal of the House by the Chief Clerk of the House.

Mr. GLASS (Speaker). Mr. STUMBAUGH will act as teller on the part of the House.

The Clerk of the Senate then read the following:

IN THE SENATE,
TUESDAY, January 15, 1867. }

AFTERNOON.

Agreeably to the provisions of an act of the Congress of the United States entitled An act to regulate the times and manner of holding elections for Senators in Congress, approved the 25th day of July, 1866, and of an act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth entitled An act to define the time and regulate the manner of electing Senators to represent this State in the Senate of the United States, approved the 11th day of January, A. D. 1867,

The Senate proceeded, by a visa voce vote of each Senator present, to name one person for Senator in Congress from the State of Pennsylvania, to fill the vacancy which will occur in that body by the expiration of the term of Edgar Cowan on the 4th of March next.

Whereupon

Mr. WILMER WORTHINGTON voted for Simon Cameron.

Mr. LOUIS W. HALL, Speaker, voted for Simon Cameron.

Thus the votes were

For Simon Cameron..... 20
For Edgar Cowan..... 12

So it appeared
That Simon Cameron was duly named by the Senate of Pennsylvania, for Senator in Congress from the State of Pennsylvania, for six years from and after the 4th of March next.

Whereupon
The SPEAKER adjourned the Senate until to-morrow morning, at 11 o'clock.

The Clerk of the House then read the following:

Mr. JOHN P. GLASS, Speaker, voted for Simon Cameron.

Sixty-two members of the House of Representatives voted for Simon Cameron.

Thirty-seven members of the House of Representatives voted for Edgar Cowan.

From which it appeared that Simon Cameron, of Dauphin county, had received a majority of all the votes given in each of said Houses for Senator in the Congress of the United States.

The PRESIDENT of the joint Assembly thereupon declared SIMON CAMERON to be duly elected a Senator to represent the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the Senate of the United States, for six years, from and after the fourth day of March next.

The PRESIDENT of the joint Assembly did then, in the presence of the members of both Houses, sign four several certificates of the election, attested by the Teller of the respective Houses, one of which certificates was directed to be transmitted by the President of the joint Assembly to the Governor of the Commonwealth, one to the Senator elect, and the remaining two to be preserved among the records, and entered at length upon the Journals of each House.

The following is a copy of one of said certificates:

CERTIFICATE OF THE ELECTION OF UNITED STATES SENATOR.

I do certify that the members of the Senate and the members of the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, having assembled in joint Assembly in the Chamber of the House of Representatives, on the 16th day of January, A. D. 1867, in conformity with the act of the Congress of the United States, entitled "An act to regulate the time and manner of holding elections for Senators in Congress," approved July 25th, A. D. 1866, and the act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, entitled An act to define the time and regulate the manner of electing Senators to represent this State in the Senate of the United States, approved January 11th, 1867, to supply the vacancy in the Senate of the United States which will occur on the 4th day of March next. The Journals of the Senate and of the House of Representatives having been severally read, showing the names of the persons voted for, and the number of votes received in each House by each person, it appeared that Simon Cameron received a majority of all the votes in each House; and said Simon Cameron is declared duly elected Senator to represent this State in the Senate of the United States for the constitutional term, commencing on the fourth day of March next.

Witness my hand, this 16th day of January, A. D. 1867.

L. W. HALL,

Speaker of the Senate and President of the Joint Assembly.

THOMAS J. BIGHAN,

Teller on the part of the Senate.

F. STUMBAUGH,

Teller on the part of the House of Representatives.

The PRESIDENT, Simon Cameron having received a majority of votes of each branch of the Legislature, I do declare him to have been duly elected Senator for Pennsylvania in the Senate of the United States for six years from the 4th of March next.

On motion, the convention then adjourned.

IN THE HOUSE.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I have the honor to submit the following report.

The report was read as follows:

Mr. STUMBAUGH, teller on the part of the House of Representatives, reports:

That agreeably to the provisions of the act of the Congress of the United States, entitled An act to regulate the times and manner of holding elections for Senator in Congress, approved the 25th day of July, A. D. 1866, and of an act of the General Assembly of this Commonwealth, entitled An act to define the time and regulate the manner of electing Senators to represent this State in the Senate of the United States, approved the 11th day of January, A. D. 1867.

The members of the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania convened in joint assembly in the Hall of the House of Representatives, of said Commonwealth, on Wednesday, the 16th day of January, A. D. 1867, at 12 o'clock meridian, the Speaker of the Senate officiating as President thereof,

Whereupon

The Journals of both Houses of the preceding day were read by the Clerks thereof.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That the members of the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, as a testimonial of their appreciation of the faithful, intelligent and patriotic manner in which the Hon. Andrew G. Curtin has discharged his duties as Governor of this Commonwealth during the past six years, will call upon and pay their respects to him at 12 o'clock, M.

The resolution was read a second time.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, the Senate has just passed a similar resolution, and, as the Governor is about leaving this city to retire to private life, it is proper that the members of this House should put aside all differences that may have arisen in the recent contest and, throwing aside all prejudice, go to him and bid him farewell as the Executive of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. I therefore hope this resolution will be adopted.

The resolution was

Agreed to.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, previous to the convention of the two Houses this morning a motion was made by the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] that the committee, just selected to try the contested election case of the gentleman from Cambria [Mr. LINTOX], meet at 7 o'clock. I have been informed that one of the counsel for the sitting member is desirous of being present at the first meeting of the committee, and he also desires to leave the city this evening. I therefore move a reconsideration of the resolution adopted by the House fixing the time for the meeting of the committee, in order that it may be changed to 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I wish to say that I know very little about this case, as my attention was not called to it until this morning.

The contestant for the seat has left the House expecting to meet the committee this evening. I am not informed of his whereabouts, and would, therefore, be unable to advise him of this change, if made. I think his interest is at stake quite as much as that of the attorney engaged by the sitting member. Unless the gentleman will agree to convey the intelligence to the contestant, I hope the House will not make the change.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the motion by requiring that the contestant shall be informed of the change, in case the committee meet this afternoon.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I think that amendment unnecessary, to understand that the contestant is stopping at the Franklin House. He intends to remain in the city, and the counsel desires to leave. There will be no trouble about the contestant being informed of the change. I ask as a matter of courtesy, that the House adopt the resolution.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I have just been informed by a gentleman of the whereabouts of the contestant, and I will try to get word to him. I therefore withdraw my objections to the resolution. I do not wish to be captious about the matter.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my amendment.

The question recurring on the motion of the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] to reconsider the resolution and amend as indicated,

The House gave its unanimous consent that it should be so amended.

Mr. M'KEE. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That there be printed, for the use of this House, fifteen thousand copies of Governor Geary's inaugural Message, in English, and three thousand in German.

The resolution was read a second time.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out the word "fifteen" and inserting "eight."

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I hope the gentleman will not insist upon his amendment. Fifteen thousand copies are none too many for the members of this House. This document is one that should be read by all throughout the State, both Democrats and Republicans. I would prefer to have the number increased rather than diminished.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I hope the amendment will be insisted upon and agreed to by the House. I, too, am anxious that this message should be read by every person in the State, and I have no doubt it will be, because every paper in the Commonwealth, both friend and opponent, will publish it. This being the case, eight thousand copies are certainly enough to be franked by the members of this House to their constituents. We are largely increasing the annual expenses of this House. The incidental expenses have been more than doubled within the last ten years; and it is certainly time we should begin retrenching somewhere. I know of no better way than to commence here, at this time. There is no possible necessity for this House to publish so large a number of a document that will be published by every paper in the State. I hope, therefore, the amendment will be adopted.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I suppose there are printed and circulated, every day, two hundred daily, weekly and tri-weekly papers in the State of Pennsylvania; and I suppose a majority of them will publish the message, and it will then be read by a majority of the people of the Commonwealth. There is no necessity for publishing fifteen thousand copies of this inaugural message in English. Not that I have any objection to the message itself, but on the score of economy. There was a time when we did not have such a flush treasury, and when the capabilities for distributing information by means of steam presses and railroads were not of the same character as now; when it was necessary that a large number of the Governor's messages should be printed and circulated by the members. But this is not so now.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I think that gentlemen labor under a mistake in regard to the cost of printing. Some seem to think that ten thousand copies of a document will cost twice as much as five thousand.—But, after the matter is once set up, an additional number costs very little more—merely the price of the paper and press work.

If you print eight thousand copies, you may as well send out eight thousand more, so far as the extra cost is concerned. As this is the first address of Governor Geary, I think the people of the State should be afforded a full opportunity of knowing where he stands in the prominent State and national questions of the day. I have no doubt the people of the Commonwealth are very anxious to read it, and they should certainly have the privilege.

I am very anxious that the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS] should circulate a large number in his county, for I have no doubt that the interest in such a document would be of great benefit to the people of his district. I would like to see a copy placed in the hands of every Democrat in the land.

Mr. BARRINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I hardly think it necessary to remark that the citizens of Northampton county can very properly discharge their duties, without the guardianship of the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY].

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I simply wish to correct my friend from Erie in one particular. To the cost of publishing this additional number, must be added the cost of postage, for, I suppose, they are to be circulated. Every additional copy will cost two cents for postage; and I can see no use for this, as the document will be published in every paper in the State. Our postage bills are running up very fast. They seemed to be exceedingly high last year, but the course we are taking this year is certain to make them very much larger.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say that I fully coincide with the views of my friend from Potter [Mr. MANN]. Before this message is printed and laid on our desks, it will have been read by almost every one throughout the Commonwealth; and, for my part, I will be at a loss to know what to do with the copies which I should receive. I therefore move to amend the amendment, by striking out the word "eight" and inserting the word "five."

Mr. MEYERS. I accept the amendment. Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I did not intend to say a word on this question, but I hope the resolution will pass just as it was offered. This is a very important document—it is one that should reach every family; and, when it reaches them in the shape of a pamphlet, the people will lay it on their tables, and even keep it in their book-cases to be read.

I heard even a Democrat say that this was the best inaugural ever delivered in this State. There are a great many people whom it will never reach through the newspapers. It is for such that I particularly desire this number to be printed.

Mr. M'PHERRIN. Mr. Speaker, I have no doubt that this inaugural address has been published in the papers of the Commonwealth, or will be, and will reach every person who is likely to read it, before any copies ordered by this House are printed.

Messages and documents of this character are not generally sent to persons who are not in the habit of reading the newspapers. I concur with the gentleman in the amendment, and I hope this House will see proper to adopt it.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I simply desire to say that it will be seen by the Record of last winter that I have always voted on the side of economy. I am disposed to vote with the gentleman on that side now; but the reason I urge the larger number is that we may benefit those who do not take newspapers. In sending to my constituents I shall try to reach those persons. I think the perusal of that address will injure none, and it may be of some service to my Democratic friends. I should like to have it circulated largely among them, and kept in their libraries that they may read and re-read it, and have its principles inculcated in their minds.

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker I think I shall vote for the larger number, as the circulation of such stuff among the hardy and conservative men of Luzerne county would increase the Democratic majority there, from thirty seven hundred to four thousand.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, if there was any hope of accomplishing the object contemplated by my friend from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY], I would vote for this resolution; but, from past experience, I think that party is now invulnerable to any argument that can be presented, and therefore I shall vote for the amendment. I have no hope of converting that party in any such way, and don't think it is worth spending the money on them to do it.

On the question, Will the House agree to the amendment? The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MEYERS and Mr. ALLEN, and were as follows:—

Yeas—Messrs. Adaire, Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brown, Calvin, Chalfant, Collins, Colville, Craig, Deise, Donohugh, Ewing, Fogel, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Hetzel, Hood, Humphrey, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kennedy, Kinney, Kline, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Maish, Mann, Markley, Meyers, Pennypacker, Phelan, Pillow, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Rouch, Satterthwait, Sharples, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Westbrook, Wingard, Woodward and Wright—67.

Nays—Messrs. Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brennan, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, Day, Harbison, Hoffman, Kimmell, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, Marks, Meehling, Peters, Quay, Richards, Roath, Seiler, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Worrall and Glass, Speaker—36.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The SPEAKER. The special order having been reached, it being now half-past twelve, this House will now proceed to pay its respects to the retiring Governor.

The House then adjourned to meet to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, January 17, 1867.

The House met at 11 o'clock, A. M. Prayer was offered by the Rev. JACOB KENNEDY, member from Wyoming.

The SPEAKER announced a quorum of members present.

The Journal of yesterday was read, and, there being no objections, it was approved.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows, viz :

No. 28, an act to extend the provisions of the act concerning the sale of railroads, canals, turpines, bridges and plank roads, to sales made or to be made, under or by virtue of a power of sale in mortgage or deed of trust, without judicial process or decree.

No. 49, a supplement to an act entitled An act to incorporate the Valley coal company, approved the 13th day of March, 1855.

Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

1. That we have learned with indignation that the President of the United States has nominated Edgar Cowan as minister to Austria, to take the place of the accomplished statesman and historian now holding that position. In thus nominating a man who has betrayed his constituents and disregarded his pledges to the people of his native State, and whose course in the Senate has received their marked condemnation, Mr. Johnson seems to us to have contemplated a direct insult to the freedom of Pennsylvania, and shown his persistent purpose to place the Government in the hands of men who are opposed to the true interests of this nation, foreign and domestic.

2. That we fully approve of the action of the Republican members of Congress in opposing the confirmation of Mr. Cowan, and we unite our protest with theirs, and call on the Senate to reject said nomination and thereby save the country the shame of being represented abroad by one who in no particular would be a true exponent of American ideas or principles.

The resolution was read a second time.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, this strikes me as an extraordinary resolution to be introduced into a legislative body. I, sir, act with a minority of the members of this House. It so happens that we, on this side the chamber, are not near so numerous as the gentlemen on the other side. Yet we are representatives of a portion of the sovereign people of Pennsylvania, and are entitled to be respected and treated as such. Although fewer in number, we are the peers of any gentleman here. We represent constituencies the equals of theirs in every particular. There are but thirty-eight of us; but we represent two hundred and ninety thousand of the voters of this Commonwealth; there are sixty-two of the opposition, and they represent only three hundred and seven thousand. But, sir, by an act prompted by the same spirit of unfairness and disregard of right which thrusts this resolution upon us, and forces the Legislature of a great State to consider and approve a matter fit only for a party caucus or a party mass meeting, each gentleman on this side the chamber is made the representative of nearly half a million voters, and each gentleman on the other side of only a little over four thousand. I speak thus, sir, to remind the House that we are a part of this body, that we have some rights, and that we are entitled to respectful and decent treatment, and that we will not quietly submit to any other.

There is another matter, Mr. Speaker, which I mention with some reluctance. Shortly after we convened here a resolution was offered and passed without dissent on this side, requesting the member from Wyoming to open our daily session with prayer. We had a right to expect, sir, from his calling, that in that exercise the members of this House should not be subjected to daily and outrageous insult. But every member here knows that, until this morning and yesterday, the prayers of the member from Wyoming have been of that character. They have been nothing less than personal indignities to every gentleman on this side of the chamber.

Questions of a grossly partisan character have formed their staple, and we have heard ourselves traduced, and vilified as enemies of our country, as men who claim civil and religious liberty for ourselves, and deny them to others. We have heard the Lord Jehovah patronizingly informed that the President of the United States had violated his pledges, and a prayer that he might be banished; that our Constitution required amendment, and was about to receive it; that a United States Senator was to be elected; that the Republican caucus had nominated Simon Cameron—the immaculate Simon—their selection was fixed; and an earnest supplication that he might be intensely radical. I presume, sir, that no man having any sense of propriety approves such prayers. They do not hurt us—they will do us no harm—and we can hear them if gentlemen on the other side can. I mention the matter, sir, to mark our disapproval of the practice, and to let the House know how we regard it.

It has pleased the President, Mr. Speaker, to nominate Edgar Cowan for the high and honorable position of Minister to Austria. We all know something of him and his career; and I can see nothing, sir, in the one or the other that merits or excuses the charges made against him in this resolution, or that renders his nomination an insult to the people of this State. A few years ago he was raised to the exalted position he at present fills by the very same gentlemen who now traduce and vilify him. They must then have regarded him as a man of character and ability. What has caused the change in their opinions and conduct concerning him? It so happened, sir, that while Mr. Cowan has been a Senator, a desolating civil war has prevailed in this country, and has given rise to many great and grave questions. Upon these questions Mr. Cowan has not acted with the party that elected him. But, sir, I defy any gentleman on the other side of the Chamber or elsewhere to show that, in thus differing with his party, Mr. Cowan has done himself any discredit, or that he has done anything unbecoming a patriot, a statesman, a Senator of the United States.

That party, sir, systematically disregarded the provisions of the Federal Constitution and Mr. Cowan stood by and supported them. It assailed and overthrew the liberties of the people, and he defended and maintained them. It arrested American citizens without cause, without information, and imprisoned them without accusation or trial, and he denounced these lawless acts. It attempted to pass, and did pass unconstitutional confiscation laws, and he characterized them as unconstitutional. I might cite many measures of like character on which Mr. Cowan has differed with his former party friends; but, sir, he always differed with them to his credit, and to their shame. He has already been vindicated by the highest tribunal in the land; and as time passes it will be made the more manifest, that he has always been right, and that those who traduce him have always been wrong. He need feel no apprehension because of the place that he shall take in the history of these troubled times.

Mr. Speaker, if Mr. Cowan's convictions of right and duty prompted him to separate himself from his party and stand by his country, was it not his sworn duty to obey these convictions, and would he not have been false to his oath and recreant to his trust had he done otherwise? I, sir, have never seen the man who questioned Mr. Cowan's honesty; I have never seen the man who accused him of acting from other than pure and conscientious motives.

If the gentlemen on the other side think it right to convert this House into a Republican caucus—if they, in their official character, will denounce any man because of political differences—if they will endorse language unworthy a town meeting, and call that performing their duties, as members of this House, with fidelity, let them do so. I can only say, that their views of right, decency and propriety do not coincide with mine. I protest, sir, against the adoption of this resolution.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I suppose, that, after all, we come down to the question of sheer right. I think this side of the House have as much right to express their opinion upon the character of Edgar Cowan as the gentlemen on the other side. We may, if we feel disposed, denounce him as he deserves to be denounced. We may, if we feel disposed, accuse him of treachery to his party and to his pledges. The gentlemen on the other side have the right, if they desire, to smear him all over with these fulsome eulogies. I am not very sure that the gentleman who offered this resolution did not take the cue from the discussion in the Democratic caucus that nominated Cowan for United States Senator; for I think, if report says sooth, much worse things could not be said of him than were said there. But he was taken up to rebuke our party, and we feel disposed to say now what we think about him. We are here, peers of the gentlemen on the other side of the House, invested with the same rights—no rights superior. If we feel disposed to talk of Edgar Cowan as he deserves to be talked about, what business is it of theirs? You remember the story of what one boy said to another when he saw him crying at a funeral. His remark was: "What is the devil are you crying about? This is none of your funeral." This is the man we put in the position he now occupies, and we have the right and claim the right to say that he has disgraced the party and proved a traitor to the principles for the support of which he was elected. His whole record is full of blemishes, and no man knows it better than the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLS]. His whole record is full of apostasy to the party which took him from obscurity, and elevated him to the position which he has disgraced, and we feel disposed to assert our right, although the time of his misrepresentation of the people in Congress is nearly ended. Have we not the right to do it? Is it not our business to do it? Ought we not to do it? Certainly we ought. I do not blame the gentlemen if they should be disposed to take this renegade to their bosom, as they have done to other renegades. Let them take him and nurse him into life and he will sting them as he has stung us, and will sting anybody else whom it will pay so to sting. They are welcome to him. We elected Edgar Cowan when we supposed he was pure; they take him after they know he is a traitor—after he has broken his pledges and political faith with the party that elevated him to his present position. I say this is a question of mere right. It is my right to vote for this resolution, and I shall vote for it to save my country from the disgrace it would incur by sending such a man abroad to represent this great American people at a foreign court.

I need not add that, if my vote will be efficient, I shall be very thankful. It seems to me to be an unfortunate circumstance, if we are not able to save our country that disgrace. And, sir, I shall vote for this resolution, because I think it speaks the truth. It tells, what is the fact, that, in no case, would Edgar Cowan reflect the feelings or the principles or wishes of the people of this country, as a representative at that court.

Let the gentlemen do as they please; this resolution is our business, and we will take care of it.

Some reflection has been thrown upon our chaplain. The only fault I have to find with him is, that he has not addressed the throne of grace in behalf of those people who misrepresent this country here and everywhere else.

I would have him appeal to God 'ere morning, noon and night, when he retires and when he rises, that He would wipe away the dark record of the Democratic party. If that does not work a change, unless a miracle of grace is exercised, I would like to know what will become of them.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, on the present occasion, I am forced by my duty to my constituents not to sit by and hear this discussion without at least expressing my opinion on the subject. I agree with the gentleman from Fayette, and endorse all he said. The gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE] uses very freely the word renegade, renegade, renegade. Of what is the party of the opposite or Republican side of the House composed? The greater part are renegades from some other party. I point to the record of Edgar Cowan in 1861, and I assert that he has not justified that record by any vote of his since that time. The Republican party has left him, and not be the party.

Six-years ago the so-called Republican party of the present day elected Mr. Cowan to the Senate of the United States. He was a bright exponent of the principles of that party at that time. I must confess that I am very dull of comprehension, for I cannot see wherein he has departed from the principles on which he was elected. I look upon this resolution as a resolution of the members of this House. The principle attempted to be carried out is, that might makes right. I am not here as a party man. I belong to no party. I am a strict conservative man, and I mean to do what is right on all occasions. I do look upon the matter as a very serious wrong, and I therefore enter my protest, and I hope there is magnanimity enough on the other side of the House to vote it down.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I think this resolution is eminently proper, and I shall vote for it with a hearty good will. If we do not express our sentiments here, where can we express them? I have no fear of offending the delicate nerves of those who happen to be in the minority, and shall put my vote on record in favor of this resolution. It is, no doubt, humiliating to them. I think the President has unwisely appointed Mr. Cowan to represent our government in a proper court; especially in appointing him to represent us in a court whose power has lately been cut off, in a government which has recently descended from a first-rate to a second-rate power. I think that Mr. Cowan, in not sustaining the principles he was elected to sustain, has gone backward, while the party that elected him has gone forward. I believe it is a Democratic principle that the majority shall rule, and that is all we contend for in this resolution.

Mr. KURTZ. Mr. Speaker, I understand my friend from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE] to say that he denounces Edgar Cowan as a traitor to the people, and as untrue to the pledges he has given to the party. I would like to have my friend specify the pledges given to the party to which Mr. Cowan has proved a traitor.

Mr. LEE. The very best evidence I can give of the truth of my remarks is, the record of the House that now claims Mr. Cowan, six years ago denounced him out of measure.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I will endeavor to answer the question in my way; and now, sir, there is but one gentleman on this floor, besides myself, that had the dishonor of voting for Edgar Cowan six years ago; and I think I can answer the question of the gentleman from Centre [Mr. KURTZ]. The main objection urged against Edgar Cowan in the Republican party six years ago, when he was a candidate for United States Senator, was, that he was too radical and too much of an abolitionist. I recollect it well myself, and I give my word against him, that Edgar Cowan, on the streets, and in the halls of this House, lectured against David Wilmot, and asserted that he did not come up to the standard of abolitionism. Mr. Cowan, himself, claimed to be an original abolitionist, and it was upon that he was elected. I voted for him; but not until after I was forced to do so by the caucus of my party nominating him. I knew the man too well to put any confidence in him whatever. I thank God that my record shows that I voted for one who is now one of the lights in Congress, Hon. Thomas Williams, and I never regretted that vote. The gentleman wants to know in what Edgar Cowan has been a traitor. He has been a traitor to every pledge he made to the party, to every principle of humanity, right and justice, and the gentleman knows it. To-day he stands branded by the people of his own district as a traitor to the principles of right. Although he spent almost every day of the last caucuses in that district, electing over for the return of the Democratic candidate to Congress, the people of his own district repudiated him, and elected James John Covode, as radical as Charles Sumner, and as honorably a true Republican, who could not dis- race his fellow-citizens like Edgar Cowan. Gentlemen, I voted for him, and will speak what I think of him, and will go as far as a Senator did on the other side of the building last evening, and say that Edgar Cowan has made the treachery of Judas Iscariot respectable.

I have a few remarks to make about those men that say that they belong to no party, and that Edgar Cowan has lived up to what he promised to do when elected. The gentleman who made that remark on this floor was not here at the time Edgar Cowan was elected, or he would not have made any such assertion. I know that Edgar Cowan has been false to every principle of the party, and to every man that elected him. I know that he was taken by the great Republican party from obscurity—scarcely known anywhere outside the limits of his own county—never having held an office of any consequence before; and he was elected in preference to John Covode, on account of his radicalism, and abolitionism; and after he took his seat in the United States Senate, he went back on every pledge he had made. He is only supported now by the Democratic party, who opposed him then, and these who halt between their stomachs and their principles.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, if my voice will permit, I desire to say a few words in support of this resolution.

And first, I do not understand the appeal made by the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE], or that the offering of this resolution is any discourtesy to the other side of the House. I think the majority of this House, representing a majority of the voters of Pennsylvania, have the right, and it is their duty, to express their opinion of the man who has been so notorious as this man, Edgar Cowan. The gentlemen in the minority have an opportunity for their own vindication by putting themselves on record against any such resolution.

I hold that it is not only the right, but it is the duty, of the people of this State, and the Representatives in this Hall, to denounce Edgar Cowan upon every proper occasion. His name having been sent to the Senate of the United States for confirmation of his appointment as Minister to Austria, this becomes a proper and fitting time for the Legislature of Pennsylvania to rebuke him for his insolent defiance of the wishes of the people of this State. For six years this man has stood in the halls of the Senate of the United States, insolently defying the people who elected him. The people of Pennsylvania, on every occasion when they had an opportunity to speak, requested and instructed him to pursue the course he pledged himself to pursue if elected, and yet, constantly, insolently and defiantly, this man has stood there scorning the appeals of the people who raised him to his present position. Why, sir, there was no man who assisted in his election, no man who said and felt when he was elected that it was as a representative of freedom, of justice and of humanity, but was painfully conscious, after Edgar Cowan had risen in his place in the United States Senate, that he had committed an outrage on the people of Pennsylvania. I listened to him for two weeks in the spring of 1862, and, during that entire time, he never rose to utter a sentiment that he did not insult the people of Pennsylvania. Now, when the people of this State have an opportunity to speak of him as he deserves, that it is not acting courteously to the minority is a strange proposition to me.

I am not able to understand such logic and such reasoning.

I intend to treat every gentleman on this floor who differs from me courteously, properly and honorably. All intercourse between members upon this floor ought to be, upon all occasions, gentlemanly and courteous. But when it comes to speaking of men who have acted as this man Cowan has acted, we would be recreant to our trust if we did not speak of them as they deserved, and as this resolution speaks.

It is asked, to what has he been a traitor? He has been a traitor to the highest principles that a man can pledge himself to support.

He took the place of David Wilmot—he took it from a Legislature that accepted the position of David Wilmot as a true position. He knew, when he took his seat in the National Halls, that every man who voted for him expected that he would walk in the footsteps of David Wilmot. If he did not intend so to do, he obtained his seat under false pretenses. I say he committed a greater crime, morally speaking, in thus obtaining that seat, than any man who is convicted in the court of common sessions. Gentlemen say he had a right to change his opinions. So he had as an individual. I honor a man anywhere and everywhere, acting for himself, who stands up and says he is convinced he has been acting wrongfully heretofore, and changes his course. I do not care from which side he changes, if he satisfies me, from the reason that he gives, of the honesty in his change of sentiments. I know him when he acts for himself. But when he acts as the representative of a people I say he has no right to change against the man who invested him with his representative character, no more than an agent, or a proxy who has received a power of attorney to do a certain thing, has the right to do otherwise. No more. This allusion that was made here to gentlemen who have changed their sentiments is not to the point. The question is not whether Mr. Cowan had a right to change his sentiments; but, having changed, had he the right to hold the position he acquired from the people of Pennsylvania, avowing other sentiments? That is the point, and upon that point, if the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] has any regard for his party in its former position, he will have nothing more to say of the denunciation of Edgar Cowan.

It was not long ago, when, if a Senator presumed to differ with the Legislature of Pennsylvania, even upon the question of a charter bank, he was called upon to resign; and the gentleman's party were loudest in demanding that he should resign. If that was wrong, what is the crime of Edgar Cowan where the great questions of liberty and justice and honor are concerned? He has stood there in the place for six years, misrepresenting the people of Pennsylvania, knowing he was misrepresenting them, knowing he had been elected to carry out other principles. He has been standing there an open, notorious traitor, and now he is taken up by a traitor President and presented with all the honors that can be conferred.

I say it is due to the people of Pennsylvania who have sent us here that we should enter our protest against such conduct.

I thank the gentleman for having offered this resolution.

Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, when I offered this resolution this morning I did not intend an discourtesy to the members on the other side of the House, nor any insult to their dignity or their feelings. I intended that they should have the privilege of putting themselves upon record, and of endorsing this pet, Cowan, of theirs in his conduct in the United States Senate.

They, I trust, will have that privilege.

They will have the privilege of recording their votes the same as we have on this side. Edgar Cowan formerly lived in the district which I have the honor to represent. Of his early history I know little, but I know that previous to his election to the United States Senate he made it a practice to visit our vicinity. He was called upon to make speeches upon these occasions, and the only fault there found with Edgar Cowan was that he was too radical for the time. There was formerly a conservative element in the Whig party. Edgar Cowan was then a Whig, and to make himself more conspicuous, he was more radical in his expressed opinions than the Whig party generally was. I do not intend to detain the House by portraying the character of Edgar Cowan. I think it is fully expressed in these resolutions. I trusted that in offering this resolution it might meet the approbation of the Republican members of this House, if not the members on the other side.

There is one objection I wish to offer here to his being sent on a foreign mission, in addition to that expressed in these resolutions. I have learned that Edgar Cowan is a very apt scholar. I know that he was elected United States Senator from this State with the understanding that he was the most radical candidate. He was sent to Washington, holding, as we believed, the radical views which the Republican party now holds. He soon made the acquaintance of John C. Breckinridge, and Powell and Davis and Wright, who by their skill in reaching the vanity of men, soon had him their associate and fellow operator in their tendencies to destroy this great and glorious country. He drank of the fountain of their treason so fully and freely that he has not yet been able to disgorge himself. I fear if he goes abroad he will drink in the monarchial principles as freely as he did those of treason.

Mr. BARRINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman a question: whether the views of the Republican party were as radical at the time of that election as they now are; or in other words, whether they considered the object of the war with the South was for the purpose of conquering the South, and whether the Republican party, as a party, were in favor of negro suffrage?

Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, I will answer the gentleman's question by speaking for myself. I was then as radical as now, and in favor of sustaining the country against all enemies, foreign or domestic.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I design to say a word or two on this matter. I am not like the gentleman from Fayette—I am used to this thing. I expect no courtesy from that side of the House on political questions, nor do I think Edgar Cowan needs any defense from us. He has made his record and that record will live long enough to make nomination-ducers have gone down to infamy. That, sir, is my opinion; it will be the opinion of men ten years hence; and those who now traduce him will be ashamed of it.

I believe my colleague from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] said there is but one other man in this House who had the dishonor of voting for him in 1861.

I was not a member of this House at that time; but I am perfectly conversant with his election. I am conversant with this fact, that Edgar Cowan did not seek that nomination—that it was thrust upon him. I wish my colleague to correct me if I am wrong.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman has called on me for correction, and desires me to explain.

It happened, that year, to be a candidate myself, and traveled pretty much all over the State, trying to secure the office that you have the honor to fill at the present time, and every man I saw asked me to give a pledge to support Edgar Cowan when they would support me. Edgar Cowan pledged himself to be a better abolitionist than David Wilmont or he never could have obtained the seat he now holds.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman has not answered my question. I will answer it for him. I am perfectly conversant with the facts of the election, and I have no doubt the gentleman who occupies the Speaker's chair knows all about it too. The members from Allegheny were the men who proposed Mr. Cowan's name and placed him in his present position.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to explain.

The Senator from Allegheny county voted for Thomas Williams. Mr. Cowan was not a candidate from Allegheny.

Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, in the summer of 1860 Edgar Cowan was a candidate in the Twenty-first district. He failed to receive the nomination. After his failure, he threatened to run against the regular nominee, and in order to secure his co-operation in the district and keep him quiet, he was offered the support of that district and its influence for the United States Senate; and from that he took his first start.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I have only to say that I think the Twenty-first district made a very good choice.

About the issue in that year.

It has been charged that Mr. Cowan has been a traitor to his party, and a traitor to the principles upon which he was elected. What if he was a traitor to his party? He has not been a traitor to his country. He stands in the capacity of a citizen of his country when the very men who are now traducing him defied and violated them grossly. Now, in 1861, there was no such issue as negro suffrage. There was no such question raised in that canvass as negro rights overriding the rights of a white man. This is the first year that such a proposition has been broached.

The Republican party have always, and are to-day, afraid to go before the people on that issue. Mr. Cowan was elected in 1861. At that time the courts of the country were open to every man accused of a crime could enjoy the right of every man—the right of a trial by jury.

Times changed. The Republican party and their leaders came into power; men were carried off from their homes at midnight, ay, in the daylight, and incarcerated in ferts and dungeons without a trial, without an accusation.

Mr. Cowan said, this thing is wrong; these men are entitled to a trial by jury; they are entitled to show on what charge they are arrested. If they are guilty punish them.

Mr. Cowan then took issue with the Radicals and they denounced him. My colleague from Philadelphia says he is a renegade. Suppose he is. How many renegades has the gentleman in his party? How many are there in this House?

From your Governor elect down to his appointees, what are they?

Have they not been Democrats? Take the leaders of the Republican party in the State of Pennsylvania, what are they? Renegades from the Democratic party. Mr. Cowan differs from these gentlemen in one respect—and I wish my friend from Potter [Mr. MANN] to notice it—he differs from them in this respect—if he did forsake the party he did it from principle, and not for position. There is where a man shows himself to be a man.

Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman how Mr. Cowan came to obtain his appointment as Minister to Austria.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Cowan has been a constant conservative man since he assumed his duties in the United States Senate.

A word about the remark made by the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN]. I am surprised to hear a man of his years express himself in such a manner.

I have been taught always to respect the office, if not the man. But the gentleman gets up for his side of the House and terms the President of the United States a traitor. Had he lived in Mr. Lincoln's time and been a Democrat and used such words, I would not have insured his liberty twenty-four hours. But times have changed; and they will change. Last year we had on this side of the House thirty-four members; we now have thirty-eight members. And if it was not for the apportionment we would be a majority.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman if there is not a majority of seventeen thousand in the State against his party?

Mr. QUIGLEY. Yes; seventeen thousand majority in the State against you. But if there was no proper apportionment we would be in a majority.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make myself understood with regard to men who change their opinions. I have said nothing about Mr. Cowan's change of opinions as an individual. I say if he stood in his place in the Senate of the United States, and said under the circumstances in which the country is placed, he was compelled to change the opinions he held when elected, he should have resigned. I denounce him as a man in a representative capacity occupying an office by holding one set of opinions, and when he obtains the desired position turning around and professing and advocating other principles.

Now, that I am on the floor, I will refer to some evidence to which I desire the attention of the gentlemen on the other side of the House. It was rumored a week after the election in 1862, that those gentlemen had a small majority; it was also rumored that two or three of the gentlemen had changed their opinions, and thought, under the circumstances, that they ought to vote for a member of Congress who would sustain the administration. The rowdies and bullies of Philadelphia were sent for, and they came here with their pistols and bowie knives in their pockets, vowing it should be death to any man who turned traitor to his party.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman a question.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I will not consent to be interrupted.

That is the position they held in regard to men who turned traitors to the principles upon which they were elected.

Now, we do not propose to visit any physical injury upon Edgar Cowan. We simply propose to speak of his desertion of principle as it deserves.

I refer to this simply because the gentleman cannot, or will not, see the difference between a man who has changed his opinion as a man, and a man who changed his opinions and refuses to resign a representative capacity, with which he has been invested, because of his professing entirely different sentiments.

Mr. QUIGLEY. The gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] does not understand me. The point I made is this—that at the time of Edgar Cowan's election, the issues were not the issues of to-day.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman who has just taken his seat on the other side of the House what opinion Mr. Cowan has changed? I would ask that gentleman, and defy any gentleman on the other side of the House to show that Mr. Cowan has changed his opinion, or has violated one pledge that he made at the time of his election. They have been asked this repeatedly here, to-day, and not one of them has attempted to show what pledge Mr. Cowan has violated. I say it is due to them and to us, in making the outrageous charges they have against this man, to make some specific charges. There is not a man here who does not know that the questions at issue now are not the same as then. There is not one gentleman on the other side of the House who will dare to say that the question of negro suffrage, or the question of negro equality, or the question of admitting the Southern States, questions that grew out of the result of the war, were questions at issue at that time. Not one of them will they dare to assert, was then a party issue. Let them bring their specific charges.

I am opposed to this resolution because it is not true. Mr. Cowan has violated no pledges, and they cannot show that he has. My friend on the right [Mr. DAVIS] speaks of Mr. Cowan as though he had been a traitor from the first to that party; and he makes that charge, I think. It is well known to every man within the reach of my voice, that up to within a year, they claimed Mr. Cowan as being all right with them. I remember, when we had a discussion last winter, upon national questions, it was claimed by the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] at that time, and up to a late period in that session, that Mr. Johnson was all right, that his cabinet was all right, that Seward and Stanton were with them, and they also claimed Mr. Cowan at that time.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I wish to explain this matter in regard to Mr. Cowan. Last winter I voted for the resolution requesting him to resign. I had no confidence in him when elected; I have had none since, and I have always said so.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I will acknowledge that before the close of the session such was the fact, but up to a very late period in the session the gentleman from Philadelphia claimed that Mr. Johnson was all right with them, and Mr. Cowan was in the same boat with Mr. Johnson. I say again what right have they to call Mr. Cowan a traitor? What specific pledges has he violated? He says that he holds the same opinions now as the Republican party held at that time. We know that nothing so much offended them six years ago as being called Abolitionists. There was not a Republican then who would admit that he was an Abolitionist, much less that he was in favor of negro suffrage.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, there is something very singular in the manner in which those resolutions have been gotten up.

The terms used are:

First. "Betrayed his constituents."

Second. "Disregarded his pledges."

Third. The idea conveyed is, that the President knowing this, contemplated a direct insult to the freemen of Pennsylvania in nominating him as Minister to Austria.

Now, have the gentlemen on the other side of the House considered the force of these terms? Are they prepared to stand up and say that Mr. Cowan has betrayed his constituents?

"Betrayed his constituents."

That is the term. In putting Mr. Cowan into office, they required him to perform the duties of that office; and to perform those duties he bound himself by oath.

The measure of his duties was the Constitution of the United States. By that he was to be governed. He was elected, with the understanding that he would be governed by that rule and no other; and when his constituents' opinions differed from that rule he was bound to disregard those opinions and square his actions by the rule he had sworn to observe. Remember, he was not elected to carry out the will of his constituents any further than that will corresponded with the terms and conditions of the Constitution of the United States. That, sir, is your rule, it is my rule, it is the rule by which Congress is bound to govern itself—it is the rule by which members of this House are bound to govern themselves.

In order to fix upon Mr. Cowan a charge of having betrayed his constituents, they must show that their will corresponded, in all things wherein they required him to act, with the Constitution of the United States; and that, in this respect, he was untrue to his trust. We are not sent here as representatives and permitted to act as we please. We are not to be moved by every gust of passion that blows across the land. We are to look at that instrument called the Constitution. That governs you, it governs me; and when the charge is made that I am betraying my trust, it involves the charge that I am disregarding the duties imposed upon me by the Constitution. I ask any man to point to a single instance wherein Mr. Cowan, in this respect, has been at fault. The gusts of passion have swept across the country, and those passions have been the cause of measures on the part of the party in power not to be reconciled with right. But as fast as those measures have been brought under review by the Supreme Court of the United States, they have been declared illegal, and the Constitution sustained.

Look to the court that is to construe the Constitution and furnish evidence of its meaning. When that court gives what it considers the sense of the Constitution, you are bound by the decision. Take that for a rule, and compare with it the acts of Mr. Cowan—compare his votes, compare the measures he voted for and the measures he voted against. As fast as those measures have been brought under review we find he has been sustained, and public opinion has been relaxed. Point to an instance where this is not true. And, remember, you use the word "betray" in your resolution. It is not simply that Mr. Cowan has erred, but he has "betrayed"—has violated a duty—an obligation. Where, sir, has he violated an obligation? Where does he look to find his obligations? Does he look to every town meeting, every borough meeting, every county meeting? Does he look to a party assemblage, or does he look to that instrument by which he has sworn to shape his conduct?

Mr. Speaker, the standard of morality must be raised higher than mere party. We must elevate, and not depress it. We must look to that which gives us our organization as a government. We must look to that instrument by which we have sworn to be governed in every measure we originate. If we do not do that then there is a betrayal of trust.

The other expression used is, "contemplates additional insult to the freemen of Pennsylvania." When the members of this House endorsed the actions of Senator Cowan did they insult the people of Pennsylvania? Is it an insult to the people of Pennsylvania for me to vote for the man of my choice? We have said we believed the conduct of Edgar Cowan was right. Was that endorsement an insult to the people of Pennsylvania?

Have we not as much warrant for saying that the party who opposes us here insulted the people of Pennsylvania by nominating Simon Cameron? The selected him; they believed him to be the best man; they believed he would execute the powers entrusted to his care for the good of the country.

We believed Edgar Cowan had discharged his duty faithfully. We nominated him as the candidate of the party for United States Senator.

What has the President done? He has seen that the course of the Senator for the last five years was eminently trustworthy, and that in all things he was governed by a conviction of right. He has seen the waves of passion beat against the country, and yet that man stood firm. Passion was rebuked. He has seen Edgar Cowan mistaken in his resolution to do right. For those reasons he has seen fit to recommend him for a highly important office. And in so doing, the President is said to insult the freemen of Pennsylvania? Mark the words, "insult the freemen of Pennsylvania." I ask the gentlemen whether they are prepared to make this assertion good? The President thinks he has found a man of integrity, a man fit for the high trust he would confer, and in the exercise of an undoubted prerogative has nominated him as a foreign minister. But because Edgar Cowan has not been moved by every wave of public passion that has swept over the land within the last five years, the President has "insulted the freemen of Pennsylvania."

Mr. Speaker, I protest against a resolution couched in such terms.

And I have to make another remark, as the debate has taken a somewhat enlarged sphere.

My friend from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] made some objections to the manner in which the chaplain has conducted himself. My friend on the other side [Mr. LEE] justifies that course. I have nothing to say with regard to the chaplain as a man. I know nothing about his character. I know nothing about the man. But there is one thing I do know—one thing he ought to know—one thing every man ought to know—that he has no right to parade his passions before the Lord, and ask his blessing upon them. It does not take much theology to know that. When a man prays, it is not thy will but my will be done," it does not take much theology to determine the character of such a prayer.

When a man prays as he ought, he bows down, and asks God to be merciful, that not his will, but the will of the Almighty be done.

Is the gentleman prepared to say the prayers offered in this House, containing the very essence of malice, are not an insult to God? Is he prepared to endorse that prayer which assumes that "I am right and all others wrong"? If he is, sir, it is more than I am prepared to do. This, I think, is a very good rule. It would be well for the chaplain—for every man to remember it:

"Let not this weak, unskillful hand
Presume thy bolts to throw,
And deal damnation round the land,
On all I deem Thy foe.

If I am right, Thy grace impart,
Still in the right to stay.

If I am wrong, O, teach my heart
To choose the better way."

How much more proper it would be to pray in that spirit! I want to hear no more of the prayers we have had thus far. Pray for the nation; pray for its success; pray for its triumph; pray that all men may be enlightened and instructed; pray that we may be convinced of our errors, and that our minds may be influenced for good! But let us have no such prayers as we have been accustomed to hear of late

Mr. Speaker, I have said all I propose to say.

I hope this resolution will be voted down. Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, as my name has been called in question here this morning, I think that it is nothing more than right I should have the privilege of making a few remarks in regard to this matter. When I came here I came here as a representative and as a member of this House. I did not come here in the character of a chaplain. I knew nothing about the movement that was making to place me in a position of that kind before the House, until the matter was arranged. Then I was asked if I would take a position of that description. I replied that I had no objection to praying anywhere, and should have no objection to doing so here, if such seemed to be the mind of the House. A resolution was offered that I should act as chaplain of the House. That resolution carried in the House, and I don't know how many gentlemen on the other side of the House voted for it. I don't know but they all voted for it.

But in regard to the duties of that position. The Word requires that we should pray for all men; for men in authority, as well as for men in the lower walks of life.—And, of course, if it is our duty to pray for these, it is our duty to ask for such things as are needed to be the mind of the House. This is our duty, and if we err in our asking, God, who is infinitely wise, will of course grant only what is proper. There will then certainly be no injury done to those for whom any petition is offered. And, then, there is another requirement, or rather prohibition in the Word.—"There is a sin that is unto death, and I do not say that ye shall pray for it." Now, when I understood there was something of a rumor on the other side of the House, concerning the petitions which I had offered, I stopped in my reflections, and asked myself, Am I of liberty, among the circumstances, to pray in behalf of such? And I have not yet been able to decide the question. If men are given over, of course I have no right to pray for them. I do not wish to do anything of that description. If treason and rebellion against the country and against God, do not border closely on the sin referred to, I am much mistaken.

Certainly he that addresses the Divine Grace, if, in his judgment, a blessing of a particular character is desired and he is an honest man, will petition for that character of a blessing, knowing that God, in whose hands all these matters fall, is all-wise, and that He will be straight if the petitioner is out of the way. So much for the matter of prayer.

But, in regard to the resolution, while I am up, I will say that I am in favor of that resolution. I know strong efforts have been made on the other side of the House to relieve Mr. Cowan from censure—the censure that is due him on the part of his constituents. They took a step in his nomination a few days ago in that direction. Now, I would like to inquire of the opposite side of the House, if they would endorse a movement on the part of the President, to send Mr. Sumner to Austria?

Mr. QUIGLEY. I would vote to send him to SIBERIA.

Mr. KENNEDY. I put the question to know why the opposite side of the House will give their sanction so far as Mr. Cowan is concerned. He is not the superior of Mr. Sumner, nor can he vie with him. The opposite side of the House did not sustain Mr. Johnson when he was elected. Why do they sustain him now? Simply because there is an evident change in his principles, perhaps not so much of a change in his principles as in the development of those principles. Hence they stand ready to sustain Mr. Johnson, and also to sustain Mr. Cowan on the same ground. It would certainly be a bad thing to send Mr. Cowan to Austria as an exponent and representative of this Government. Would he be a proper exponent of the principles he himself condemns? By no means. If he has acted the part of a traitor in the position in which we have placed him, of course he would be a traitor were he appointed to represent this Government at the court of Austria. I am for the resolution and shall vote for it with all my heart.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I have noticed, in the course of this discussion, that nearly every gentleman in the course of his remarks, has asked this question: "In what particular has Edgar Cowan changed from the time he was elected United States Senator?" They demand from us in a sort of triumphant way to point out any particular in which he has changed.

It is well known in the history of the political parties of this country, that the Democratic party have ever boasted that they never change their principles. It is said of the Bonapartes of France that they never forget anything because they never learned anything. The Democracy boast of their party, that they have never changed their principles from the time they were laid down by Jefferson and enforced by Jackson, to the present time; that their principles ever have been, and are now, the same. Now, six years ago the Democratic party opposed the election of Edgar Cowan to the United States Senate. And for what reason? Because his principles were not in harmony with theirs. They called him an abolitionist, and denounced him as such. To-day these same gentlemen have nominated Edgar Cowan for United States Senator. One of two things must be true: either this boast of their leaders that the Democratic party has never changed is false, or else Edgar Cowan must have changed. Now, which is it that has changed?

Mr. SATTERTHWAT. Mr. Speaker, the questions of to-day are entirely new issues and the gentleman knows it. The question of negro suffrage was not a question at that time, and the question of the admission of the seceded States was not then an issue. There are new issues and we can vote consistently for Edgar Cowan without stultifying ourselves, because they are questions on which every member of the Republican party would then have taken the same position we now take.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman cannot get out of the position in that way. He asserts that the issues now are not the same as they were then. They cannot get around the fact that the Democratic party has asserted that they never changed during the war. The Democratic party interpreted the Constitution the same during the war as six years ago. But we find them six years ago opposing the election of Edgar Cowan, and yet they say to-day that Edgar Cowan has not changed, and that they have not changed. Now, can they tell me, if neither one have changed, how they came together? This one fact has been impressed upon me, that the gentlemen have thus placed themselves in a false position, and I would like to see them get out of it.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I do not suppose it is possible for the members on this side of the House to convince the members on the other side, or vice versa, and I would therefore move the previous question. I think that gentlemen have had sufficient opportunity to ventilate the matter, and to further prolong this discussion will be wasting valuable time. There is no use in thus spending the time, at the expense of the House, in abusing each other and venting our spleen. There are other questions that will come up this winter, upon which gentlemen can have an opportunity to express their views. I, therefore, call for the previous question.

The call was seconded by Messrs. SHUMAN,

MARKS, M'PHERRIN, COLVILLE, WEBB, KINNEY, SHARPLES, ROATH, GREGAN, CAMERON and GORDON.

On the question,
Shall the main question be now put?
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BOYLE and Mr. HOOD, and were as follows, viz.

YEAS—Messrs. Adair, Armstrong, Barton, Cameron, Colville, Donohugh, Ghegan, Gordon, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kinney, M'Pherren, Marks, Mechling, Meily, Pennypacker, Roath, Sharples, Shuman, Subers, Waddell, Watt, Webb and Whann—23.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Barrington, Boyd, Doyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chadwick, Chalfant, Chase, Collins, Craig, Davis, Day, Deise, Espy, Ewing, Fogel, Freeborn, Gallagher, Harrison, Harner, Headman, Hetzel, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kimmel, Klune, Kurtz, Lee, Leach, Linton, Long, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Henry, M'Kee, Mann, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Peters, Phelan, Pillow, Quigley, Rhoads, Richards, Robinson, Rouch, Satterthwait, Seiler, Steacy, Stumbaugh, Wallace, Weller, Westbrook, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—65.

So the question was determined in the negative.

During the call
Mr. ALLEN said: Mr. Speaker, I desire to make an explanation in regard to the manner in which I shall vote. It is my intention to vote for the resolution, but I think it quite improper to choke off the discussion of the question in this way. I have sympathy for my poor friends here in the minority, and they will probably never have another opportunity to express their sympathetic admiration of Mr. Cowan before this House. I shall, therefore, oppose this summary manner of cutting off discussion.

Mr. DEISE. Mr. Speaker, I did not intend to say anything upon this matter, but I regard it as being very important in view of the course we do not deny the undoubted right of the gentlemen on the other side of the House to give their views on this or any other question. I regard it their right, and, if so inclined, their duty. I object to the manner in which they propose to do it, and the subject of this resolution. I can very well appreciate the feelings of my friends on the other side of the House, for I have had similar feelings myself on like occasions. Their allegation is, that Senator Cowan has deserted the principles of his party, and therefore deserves a heavy condemnation in their hands. But, they should not forget, Mr. Speaker, that a man of Pennsylvania in the position of Senator Cowan, is entitled to that fairness which is due to every man from his fellow citizens. It is a great thing, Mr. Speaker, to thus attempt to reflect upon a man. If he is guilty, if he deserves it, then I hold that it is the right of the members of the other side of the House, and their duty will not be performed until they have passed this resolution. I am not here as the exponent of Senator Cowan. He has done many things that I do not endorse, and I have the firmest conviction that he was not my choice. But this resolution contemplates a vote of censure against Senator Cowan for a specific object. In all charity I hold that although we may differ in politics, although we may wrongfully utter an accusation, yet when the passions of men have subsided; when "reason has resumed her sway;" when we are about to sit in judgment upon the character and reputation of a citizen of this State, we should do so with an open whole duty independent of party feelings. There are men belonging to the Republican party for whom I entertain feelings of the highest possible respect. I hold that this is a question of principle. I call attention to that golden rule, Do unto others as you would have them do unto you. I am satisfied if sixty-two members of this House wish to protest against his action, that they have the right to do it; but I deny that as legislators of the State of Pennsylvania in a body they have any right to enter into the private character and public career of this man and thus disgrace him on the journals of the State of Pennsylvania.

That Senator Cowan has changed, so far as ideas are concerned, I am free to admit. Senator Cowan is not now in the rank and file of the Republican party; but I am free to say he has not violated what he believes to be his duty. There are many questions on which I differ with my fellow Democrats; but because we differ is it to be said that they shall pass a resolution of censure against me, and thus do me an injury in the community and the State? Not at all. Gentlemen, let us deal fairly. Let us do that which becomes the great State of Pennsylvania and the representatives of a great State. I believe there is magnanimity and fairness enough on the other side of the House to cause them to pause if they thought they were doing any personal injury. Senator Cowan may have differed from this party. I believe he has. But I believe Senator Cowan has been honest in that difference. I believe he thought he was carrying out his oath to the Constitution of the country. And is this difference a reason why he should be denounced in a resolution of this character? Why, sir, it would be entailed upon his posterity. Think of it, gentlemen on the opposite side of this House. Think of it when you are assailing a man's reputation, for it is all he has in this life. I would sooner be stripped of all material wealth, and have a proud name in history, than to have all the honors and titles that riches could confer. Therefore, I ask you, members of this House, to consider who reflect this resolution of the Pennsylvania Legislature may have upon a man who believes he is doing his duty, mistaken though he may be. You are saying to the children of Senator Cowan that his name is an odium to the State of Pennsylvania, which to say the least, is unkind. I profess to speak in fairness on this subject. I profess not to be the champion of either Andrew Johnson or Senator Cowan. They are none of mine. But I am interested for the character of one of my fellow-citizens, whose name and whose reputation may suffer by this resolution. This question affects the character of a citizen of Pennsylvania, not for the present alone, but to the remotest generation. You cannot wipe it from the record; it is there as the seal of condemnation of the Legislature of Pennsylvania. In this view I beseech the gentlemen on the other side to deal as they would be dealt by. What is Senator Cowan's offense? It is mistaken views, if anything. We are all liable to mistakes. The distinguished gentleman who has the honor to-day to be Governor of Pennsylvania, has made his views within a recent period. The distinguished out-going Governor of Pennsylvania differs with myself in politics, and yet by a resolution of this House we all paid him the respect due to the out-going Governor of the Commonwealth. I ask the same kindness and courtesy for Senator Cowan, at the hands of the members on the other side of the chamber.

Mr. Speaker, I have done. I did not intend to say anything on this question, but I believe it is our duty to state by the yeas and nays the character of the citizens of Pennsylvania. If he is a wild deserter scathe him to the teeth. But do not do it on such grounds as are assigned in this resolution. I have too much respect for any gentleman, to believe that he is a wild desperado and a renegade to his party. I will not charge it upon a single man in Pennsylvania.

Mr. WRIGHT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say a word. The gentleman who has just taken his seat asks very piteously to be dealt with fairly. Now, I appeal to him to answer if his colleagues upon that part of the House have been dealing fairly with this question. Have they not heaped insult upon an honorable member of this House on a matter that was not embodied in the resolution before us? And now they come with a piteous cry to "deal fairly with us!" Is that right?

Again, they complain they have not a majority in this House. Why is it they have not a majority? It is because the people of this great State have said by their votes, that they should not have a majority in this House. The people of this State have said that Republican principles shall rule. I ask the gentlemen on the other side of the chamber, if Mr. Cowan will carry out the principles of the Republican party, should he be sent to minister to Austria. I think he will not, and will vote for the resolution before the House.

Again, the gentleman from Fayette (Mr. Boyle) said Mr. Cowan, has done nothing wrong; but did what he deemed to be his duty. He was opposed to confiscation of the lands of certain citizens of the United States. That all looks very well. But who were these citizens? The Constitution of the United States, as I understand it, declares that treason is a crime, the penalty of which is death.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman to give way a moment to permit me to offer a resolution. I have been requested to offer this resolution in order to test the feeling of the House on this subject.

The SPEAKER. Will the House postpone the resolution under discussion, to allow the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE] to offer a resolution.

The House assenting, Mr. LEE offered the following:

Resolved, When this House adjourns that it do adjourn to meet on Monday evening next, at 7 o'clock, and that the resolution under discussion be made a special order.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I hope that will not be done, with all respect for my friend from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE]. We have consumed two hours to-day in discussing this resolution; and as has already been said, it will not affect one vote, probably, in the chamber. But I am satisfied, from the present view of the House, that they should have an opportunity of discussing this question, if they desire it, and such seems to be the wish of the majority. But if we are going on to take it up Monday evening, and dispense with business which is legitimately fixed for that night, I take it we are wasting time that should be otherwise employed. There are bills lying in the hands of gentlemen to-day that cannot be gotten before the House. There are gentlemen waiting on the present in the lobby, desiring to have it presented; they cannot return home, and yet we are consuming time here by discussing these resolutions and now we propose to devote two or three hours again on Monday evening. I have no objection to this resolution being discussed, but I protest against the wasting of the valuable time of this House.

For the purpose of disposing of this matter I move to amend the resolution by fixing this afternoon at 3 o'clock, and that this resolution be made the special order.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman has made the motion I was going to make. I do not see why we should adjourn to Monday evening and let the business lie. It is proper and right that gentlemen should express their views and I hope the House will hold a session this afternoon.

On agreeing to the amendment, a division was taken, and

It was agreed to,
The resolution as amended was
Agreed to.

The hour of 1 o'clock having arrived, the House adjourned to meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

SENATE.

THURSDAY, January 17, 1867.

The Senate met and was called to order at 11 A. M., by the SPEAKER.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the read of the Journal of yesterday was dispensed with.

PETITIONS, REMONSTRANCES, &c.

Mr. CONNELL presented the memorial of trustees of orphans at Germantown, praying for an appropriation for the support of the Home.

Referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer), two remonstrances of citizens of Mercer county, against the repeal of the law authorizing the appointment of a county auctioneer for said county.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

Mr. BIGHAM, the remonstrance of citizens of Pitt township, Allegheny county, against being annexed to the borough of Lawrenceville.

Referred to the Committee on New Counties and County Seats.

Mr. COWLES, the memorial of Elias Tome, of York county, which was read as follows:

To the Honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met:

The petition of the undersigned would respectfully represent, that his aunt, Veronica Gable, late of the township of Manchester, county of York, died in the year 1857, leaving a will, in which she appointed him one of the executors of her estate; that the will was proven on the 14th day of October, of the same year, and letters testamentary granted to your petitioner by the register of the county aforesaid; that in pursuance of said trust he commenced the discharge of his duties, and as he resided some twenty miles distant from the property, incurred heavy expenses in settling the same; that on the 31st day of August, 1861, the letters granted to your petitioner were vacated, and he was ordered to pay over the amount in his hands of the estate of the said Veronica Gable, deceased; that not being able to do so, having sustained losses in various ways to a large sum or sums, at the January sessions of the court, 1862, a bill of indictment was found against your petitioner for embezzling the money in his hands belonging to the said estate; that at the April sessions of the court the said bill was tried and your petitioner convicted and sentenced to pay a fine of one thousand dollars, and moreover to undergo an imprisonment in the jail of York county for a period of two years and costs of prosecution; that said term of imprisonment has long since expired, the fine has been remitted by the Governor of the Commonwealth, and the county commissioners are ready and willing to release the costs. But your deponent and petitioner would aver that notwithstanding, he is still held in confinement and detained in prison by the orphans' court of the county of York, for an alleged contempt in not paying over the sum stated to be in his hands, and has been ordered to be detained since the expiration of the term of his imprisonment for an additional period of nearly three years for the contempt aforesaid. Your petitioner would aver that it never was his design to commit any contempt of court; that he has no portion of the estate of the said Veronica Gable in his hands, and that he is entirely unable to pay the same at present, and that he certainly never can pay the same or any portion thereof while kept in confinement; that of the moneys which came into his hands of the estate of the said Veronica Gable, he paid a portion of it to the heirs of the said Veronica, and the balance he lost in various ways, incurring heavy expenses in traveling, account fees, &c., of which he kept no correct account.

Your petitioner is anxious to do justice to the heirs of the said Veronica Gable and pay them off dollar for dollar, but such thing would be impossible under his present imprisoned condition; that the said heirs have signed petitions for his release, but the court will not take any further action in the matter and refuses to discharge your petitioner; that he has now been in confinement in the York county prison for a period of nearly five years, and he would therefore pray your honorable bodies to pass a law discharging him from the further custody of the jail keeper of the county of York, and he will ever pray, &c.

ELIAS TOME.

York County, ss:

Elias Tome, being duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that the facts set forth in the foregoing petition are true and correct.

Sworn and subscribed this 9th day of July, 1866. LEIBRICH THEAGER, J. P.

Mr. MC CONAUGHY presented the memorial of citizens of Adams county, which was read as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in General Assembly met:

The memorial of citizens of Adams county respectfully shews that in the summer of 1863 a large portion of said county was occupied by the armies participating in the memorable battle of Gettysburg; that during said battle, and in the operations connected with it, there was great destruction of property suffered by the citizens—a number of buildings were burned, some by the rebels, because they were occupied by the Union troops, and some by the Union army, because occupied by the rebels. Many houses were occupied as temporary hospitals, the families being driven out and their bedding, clothing, furniture and provisions taken for hospital uses; many farms were stripped of fences, growing crops trampled in the earth, and barns emptied of grain and hay for forage; that in the confusion incident to this terrible crisis it was impossible to obtain supplies in the ordinary manner, and consequently there is no means of obtaining compensation for property, even when taken for the use of the Union army.

And your memorialists, showing that they are loyal citizens, and have contributed their full quota of men and money for the support of the government, and have always cheerfully borne their proportion of the public burdens; that their property has been sacrificed in the public defence and for the general welfare; that the losses sustained by them are greater than they can reasonably bear, and some have been reduced to poverty by them; therefore, do respectfully and earnestly pray that, from the generosity of the State, which has been extended to others in like calamitous circumstances, that they may receive such an appropriation as will at least give them partial relief. And they will ever pray, &c.

Signed by John Mickle, Edward Reese, and others.

RELIEF FOR THE WIDOW OF A REVOLUTIONARY SOLDIER.

Mr. FISHER, from the Committee on Pensions and Gratuities, reported, as committed, bill entitled An act for the relief of Nancy Williams, widow of a Revolutionary soldier.

Mr. SHOEMAKER moved that the Committee on Pensions and Gratuities be discharged from the further consideration of the bill, and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the same.

Mr. SHOEMAKER. This is a very old lady, between eighty and ninety years of age, and there is no doubt in the world but that her husband was in the Revolutionary war, and was entitled to this gratuity, and the only necessity for haste is the fact that she is very old and very infirm, and very indigent, and unless relief comes very quick, the probability is that she will not derive any benefit from it. On that account I hope the Senate will dispense with the rules and give the old lady the gratuity.

The SPEAKER. Is the Senator afraid she will die unless we suspend the rules?

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to interfere with any gentleman's local legislation here, but I think we should look out for the treasury. After very grave consideration, the Committee on Gratuities reported a general bill, under which a great many applications have been made. I trust at this early day in the first session after that general bill has been passed, before any special necessity exists, that we shall not hasten to set an example of this kind.

Mr. SHOEMAKER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to state, for the information of the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE], that this bill originated in the House last session, passed there, and was examined by a committee, and they found all correct, and so reported it. By some means or other it was overlooked on this side, and the gentleman who has this charge has no interest in the matter at all. The gentleman who represents that district in the House, is desirous to have it acted on.

Mr. WHITE. We all have such cases. I have had them, and have referred them all to the general law. I trust we shall not encroach upon that rule.

Mr. HAINES. Mr. Speaker, I was on the Committee on Pensions last year, and we gave the matter a very thorough investigation. My impression is that, if we take up this bill there will be about fifty petitions of this kind. The general law is wide enough, and I hope this bill will not be acted upon.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, I have no personal interest in this matter, unless it is to save money from the treasury. This application does not come under the law passed last winter. It appears that her husband was not regularly in the service. There is nothing to show that he was a member of anybody's company or regiment; he was a teamster. With regard to the number of applications that would come in if we passed this, I do not think there are fifty cases of this kind in Pennsylvania. The Revolutionary soldiers are pretty nearly run out; there are occasional widows, and, if every Revolutionary soldier or his widow should come here to ask for a gratuity, it would not deplete the treasury very much now. Therefore, under the representations made to me, and the facts stated in this affidavit, she cannot trouble us very long, nor can many of that class of persons. I do not apprehend we shall have to increase the State tax on that account.

Mr. WHITE. Do I understand that this is a widow of a Revolutionary soldier?

Mr. FISHER. Yes, sir.

Mr. WHITE said the matter of applying the general law was not the same as to those who served in the late rebellion; their applications were made through the pension department, and the merits of the applications passed upon there; but here, his recollection of the general law was that an affidavit of two witnesses was required, setting forth the material facts, and the State Auditor decided upon the merits of the application.

Mr. FISHER. My experience in the pension department is somewhat different from that. It is necessary to have the evidence and the Revolutionary names upon the muster rolls; if the rolls are not in existence, they do not pay at all. This man's name was not on any muster roll, and you are aware of the difficulty of these things, and to prove the services of anybody in the Revolution, because they are all dead, and there are no persons living now who would know anything about it. The committee have to rely upon the evidence set forth by the application itself.

Mr. SHOEMAKER. If I mistake not, the act duly refers to the soldiers of the war of 1812, and not to the Revolution.

Mr. WHITE. I hope the Senator will not press the passage of this bill now.

Mr. SHOEMAKER. If there is any Senator who would like to examine this bill, I have no objections to postponing it for further examination.

The bill was withdrawn for the present.

BILLS IN PLACE.

Mr. CONNELL read in his place and presented to the Chair a bill entitled An act to authorize the Governor to appoint five additional notaries public for the city of Philadelphia.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary General.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer), bill entitled An act to change the place of business of the Cameron petroleum company of Pennsylvania.

Referred to the Committee on Corporations.

Mr. BURNETT, bill entitled An act regulating roads and bridges in Wyoming county.

Referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. COLEMAN offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That Rev. A. H. Bailey, of Harrisburg, be invited to open the sessions of the Senate during the present term with prayer.

Mr. DONOVAN. Mr. Speaker, was not a resolution passed inviting the clergy of Harrisburg to open the sessions with prayer?

The SPEAKER. Yes, sir; and their reply was laid before the Senate, and attention called to it by the Chair.

The resolution of Mr. COLEMAN was adopted.

Mr. BIGHAM offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Senate will hold an afternoon session to-day, commencing at three o'clock, to close the discussion of the constitutional amendment.

Mr. RIDGWAY moved to amend the resolution by adding, "and that when the Senate adjourns this afternoon, it will adjourn to meet on Monday evening next, at 7 o'clock."

Mr. DONOVAN. Mr. Speaker, I trust the resolution will not be adopted. The Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BURNETT] has got off his great Shinkensley speech, and we want to say something upon this side on this subject, and I trust my colleague will have a chance to do so.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, I trust the Senate will dispose of these amendments before adjourning for the week. I hope we will meet this afternoon, and in the evening, if necessary, and dispose of them.

Mr. DONOVAN. I think it comes in very bad grace from the Senator from Erie [Mr. Lowry], as he has spoken on the subject; an opportunity ought to be given this side of the Chamber.

Mr. LOWRY. The Senators on that side will have an opportunity to speak if we have an evening session.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY said he thought the discussion should be closed this week.

Mr. BIGHAM. I desire to accommodate the gentlemen on the other side. I do not want to cast them off. I would rather sit here until twelve o'clock at night than that the Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. DONOVAN] should not make his speech on the subject. I do prefer that, if possible, we should close this discussion and take a vote sometime to-night. I want to vote on this question, and I desire to be absent to-morrow.

Mr. BROWNE [Lawrence] moved to further amend the resolution by striking out the word "close" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "consider."

The amendment was

Agreed to.
Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, in States where this question has come before the Legislatures, which met at the time we did, they have adopted these amendments, and I now ask the Republican Senators not to adjourn this week till this question is disposed of. If the proposition now before the Senate prevails, we adjourn in an hour to meet next Monday.

A SENATOR. No, sir.

Mr. LOWRY. I hope the resolution will provide for an evening session, if necessary. The resolution was then amended so as to read as follows:

Resolved, That the Senate will hold an afternoon session to-day, commencing at three o'clock, to consider the constitutional amendments, and that the Senate will hold an evening session, if necessary, commencing at 7½ o'clock.

The resolution as amended was adopted.

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The Deputy Secretary of the Commonwealth being introduced, presented the following messages in writing from the Governor:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,

HARRISBURG, Pa., January 17, 1867, }
To the Hon. Lewis W. Hall, Speaker of the Senate:

I have the honor to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

JOHN W. GEARY, Governor.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,

HARRISBURG, Pa., January 17, 1867. }
To the Hon. Lewis W. Hall, Speaker of the Senate:

Sir—Be pleased to inform the Senate of Pennsylvania, that on the sixteenth instant I appointed and commissioned Francis Jordan, Esquire, of the county of Bedford, to be Secretary of the Commonwealth, agreeably to the eighth section of the second article of the Constitution.

I have the honor to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

JOHN W. GEARY, Governor.

MESSAGE FROM THE SECRETARY OF THE COMMONWEALTH.

He also presented the following message in writing from the Secretary of the Commonwealth:

OFFICE SECRETARY OF COMMONWEALTH,

HARRISBURG, Pa., January 17, 1867. }
To the Hon. Louis W. Hall, Speaker of the Senate of Pennsylvania:

Sir—Be pleased to inform the Senate that on the 16th inst. I appointed and commissioned Isaac B. Gara, Esq., of the county of Erie, Deputy Secretary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which appointment has been approved by the Governor.

FR. JORDAN,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

BILLS PASSED.

On motion of Mr. DAVIS, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to confer upon the committee of a lunatic or habitual drunkard the power to institute actions of partition.

The bill

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled A further supplement to an act to authorize Woodland street, in the Twenty-fourth ward of the city of Philadelphia, to be graded, curbed and paved, approved the 27th day of May, A. D. 1863, repealing the provision to the first section of the supplement thereto, approved the 17th day of April, A. D. 1866.

The bill

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the rules were dispensed with and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled A supplement to an act relative to landlords and tenants, approved December 14, 1863, extending the provisions thereof to cases of descent and purchase.

The bill

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. LOWRY, the rule was dispensed with and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled A supplement to an act to incorporate the female Seminary of Eden Hall, in the county of Philadelphia, by the style and name of the Institute of Ladies of the Sacred Heart.

The bill was then read a second and third time.

Agreed to,

On motion of Mr. LOWRY, the title was amended by adding, at the end thereof, the words "and to take and hold lands, tenements, &c., and to sell or mortgage all or any part thereof."

The bill

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. BROWN (Mercer), the rules were dispensed with and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled A supplement to an act relative to the fees of district attorney of certain counties of this Commonwealth.

In committee of the whole, Mr. DONOVAN in the chair, the bill was considered, and reported with amendments.

The bill

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled Act to authorize the payment of State Agents at Washington.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, how long is it necessary to keep a State Agent at Washington?

Mr. SEARIGHT. Mr. Speaker, I am glad the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE] started an inquiry with regard to the import of this bill; I intended to make some inquiries myself; and inasmuch as it is an act authorizing the State Treasurer to pay out money, the people's money, I think it is the duty of every Senator to know what amount of money is proposed to be paid, and for what purpose. Now, sir, the act does not mention any sum; it is general in its terms. It may be an appropriation of a hundred dollars, or a hundred thousand dollars. I think, sir, it is too general and too vague, without an explanation from the very able Senator from Philadelphia, who, I understand, is chairman of the Finance Committee. I am not prepared to cast an intelligent vote on this subject. I would like to know what this money is to be paid for, and what is done there.

Mr. BIGHAM, in explanation of the subject, read from the act of May 4, 1864, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the agency heretofore established at Washington, by the State Governor, be enlarged so that the agent and assistant agent shall have the rank, pay and allowances of colonel, and Lieutenant colonel, respectively, to be paid by the Adjutant General; and that the duties of said agency be enlarged, so as to include the collection of pay, pensions and bounties, due to Pennsylvania volunteers, without charge or expense to said volunteers, and such other duties as the Governor may from time to time direct. * * * *

* * * * That the Governor be and he is hereby authorized to appoint clerks to assist the agency at Washington: Provided, That no more than two clerks, and that their salaries shall not exceed one hundred dollars per month, and shall be paid by the Adjutant General.

Mr. SEARIGHT. May I ask the Senator one question? How many agents are there at Washington?

Mr. BIGHAM. My opinion is that there is one general agent and one assistant.

The bill

Passed finally.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

Agreeably to order.

The Senate resumed the third reading and consideration of joint resolution ratifying the amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

A speech was delivered by Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence), which is withheld for revision, and will appear hereafter.

At the conclusion of Mr. BROWNE'S speech, Mr. DAVIS said:

Mr. Speaker, I wish merely to make a few remarks, but if any others wish to occupy the time of the Senate, I will give way.

Mr. M'CANDESS. Mr. Speaker, prior to the closing of this debate, sir, I have a desire, in order to fairly represent my constituents, to say a word upon the pending constitutional amendments. I do not know, at this late hour, so near the time of adjournment, that I would prefer to commence. I would rather commence and finish at once, and I move you, sir, that the Senate do now adjourn.

The Senate then adjourned until three o'clock this afternoon.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Senate reassembled at three o'clock, P. M., and was called to order by the SPEAKER.

BILLS IN PLACE.

On leave given,
Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence) read in place and presented to the Chair a bill entitled Joint resolution relative to the confirmation of Edgar Cowan as Minister to Austria.

Referred to the Committee on Federal Relations.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence) asked and obtained leave of absence for the balance of the week, and also permission to have his vote recorded in the affirmative on the passage of the resolution ratifying the amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

Agreeably to order, The Senate resumed the consideration of the joint resolution ratifying the amendment to the Constitution.

A discussion arose, participated in by Messrs. M'CANDESS, WHITE, DAVIS, LANDON and DONOVAN, whose remarks will appear hereafter.

Messrs. BILLINGFELT, FISHER and RANDALL asked and obtained leave to have their reasons for their vote on the constitutional amendment printed in the Record.

On the final passage of the joint resolution ratifying the constitutional amendments,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. RANDALL and Mr. BIGHAM, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Royer, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—20.

NAYS—Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Jackson, James, M'Candless, Randall, Seagriff and Walls—9.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

TEMPORARY ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. DONOVAN moved that when the Senate adjourns it adjourn to meet next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.*

The motion was not agreed to.

Mr. BIGHAM. Is it in order to say a word on this question?

The SPEAKER. Yes, sir. —

Mr. BIGHAM. I think that those gentlemen from a distance ought to have an opportunity to go home every two weeks. We cannot go every week, and I think we are entitled to some allowance of time every two weeks, or we cannot make railroad connection when we continue in session late in the week. I move that when the Senate adjourns it adjourns to meet on Monday evening next, at half-past seven o'clock.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY moved to amend by making it that when the Senate adjourns it will adjourn to meet to-morrow morning at eleven o'clock.

The amendment was not agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion of Mr. BIGHAM?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WORTHINGTON and Mr. RANDALL, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, M'Candless, Randall, Royer, Seagriff and White—14.

NAYS—Messrs. Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Jackson, James, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Walls, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—15.

So the question was determined in the negative.

Mr. DONOVAN moved that when the Senate adjourns it will adjourn to meet on Monday evening next, at eight o'clock.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WORTHINGTON and Mr. DONOVAN, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, Jackson, James, M'Candless, Randall, Royer, Seagriff, Walls and White—17.

NAYS—Messrs. Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Shoemaker, Taylor, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—11.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

During the call,

Mr. JACKSON said: Mr. Speaker, as that extra half hour may be of great importance to the gentleman from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM], I vote "aye."

The Senate then adjourned till eight o'clock on Monday evening next.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, January 17, 1867.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The House met at 3 o'clock, p. m.

The SPEAKER. The special order for this afternoon is the consideration of the resolution of the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. KIMMEL.

The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

Mr. WRIGHT. Mr. Speaker, when I was interrupted by the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE] I was just about closing my remarks. I have but one or two further remarks to make in regard to this question. And those are particularly in reply to the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] with regard to the confiscation of rebel property. He stated, as I understand him, that Mr. Edgar Cowan took the stand-point on that question that it was wrong to confiscate the lands and other property of rebel citizens of the United States.

Now, sir, Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman from Fayette or any other gentleman upon this floor desires to call rebels—men who have raised their arm against this Government—citizens of the United States they may have the honor of doing so. And as for the brand of infamy that the passage of this resolution would put upon Edgar Cowan I, for one, will go far as any man upon this floor, and let his name go down to posterity a disgrace and a dishonor. That, Mr. Speaker, I consider a sufficient reason for every man upon the floor of this House who loves his country to vote for this resolution.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman on the other side of the House desired to discuss this resolution, and this special session was made for that purpose. I would now like to see them go on with the discussion. If not, I would move that we proceed to the regular orders of the day.

The SPEAKER. The session this afternoon was called for the special purpose of considering the resolution.

Mr. DAVIS. Do I understand the Chair to say that aside from the discussion of this resolution we cannot do any business?

The SPEAKER. Such is the understanding of the Chair.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, I do not propose to make any extended remarks upon this subject. I am one of those who think it best to say what I have to say in a very few words. I think, and have thought in listening to this discussion, that the point made by the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE] was a very pertinent and proper one. The question before us, if I understand it, is whether the majority of the people of Pennsylvania shall have the privilege of censuring a man who was at one time in the front ranks of the Republican party, and who was almost too radical to be endorsed by the people, who, in a very brief time, changed his position and identified himself with the opposition. The gentleman complains of us, because, by passing a vote of censure we identify them with us. I think that this is an objection that is altogether erroneous. The yeas and nays will undoubtedly be taken, and the gentleman can record their votes as not agreeing with us.

There can be no question as to the apostasy of Edgar Cowan to the principles he once espoused. That is a fact too patent for any one to contradict. It does not require any arguing. It presents itself just in this light to me, and none other. It is a mere question whether a majority of the people of Pennsylvania, from whose principles Edgar Cowan has apostatised, have the right of so doing. He was elected to represent certain principles, and he misrepresented those principles. He took his stand in direct opposition to the party that elected him. In my opinion this is the only question, and no man can question our right to censure him for not performing what he pledged himself to perform. No man questions the fact that he is not with us, that he was elected to represent us, that he has not represented us, and that we have a right to censure him.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I am not disposed to wear the patience of the House with much talk, but I think it is not only due to my Republican constituents, but to all honest, true men in my part of the State, whether Republican or Democrat, to add my vote and voice in protesting against this man Cowan, for his treachery to those who clothed him with power. I believe it is due to the honest sentiments of many of the Democratic members of this House, who at heart disapprove the treachery of this man, that the resolution should pass.

Had he become convinced that the principle upon which he was elected was wrong, or that the party who placed him in power were unfaithful to the necessities of the times, he should have yielded the position. He should have frankly indicated the differences and resigned his place, that it could have been filled by one free from the contaminating influences which had changed his sympathies. Had he pursued such a course, sir, he might, with some propriety, ask the sympathy of his people. Then, sir, he could have been looked upon as one faithful to his convictions of right. But instead of that just course, he has said to his people, "You placed me here, invested me with power; I have the right to remain, and I will do what serves me best. I despise your presumptuous dictation." Why should these gentlemen, who have boasted so much of purity and fidelity to principle, so earnestly plead and try to uphold the acts of one whom all true men should despise?

Sir, this is but another evidence of their corruption. Let them bestow their empty honors. If they could, they dare not trust him. I think, sir, we have no better evidence of his infidelity than that he should here be bolstered up by those whose only principle is opposition to right: Why was this man nominated for the United States Senate by those who opposed his election with such earnestness six years ago, if his claim of being the advocate of the same principles he held at that time is true? If Democracy is yet the same, has he not deserted the principles he then avowed? That selection was not made, sir, on account of their admiration of that man, but, sir, as a rebuke to those who saw proper to censure him for his infidelity. It was not their desire to honor Mr. Cowan because of his merit, but to heap insult upon injury. And yet these men will tremulously plead for sympathy because of minority. They urge not his worth as an excuse from censure, but that he has no friends among good men; therefore, the Democracy feel bound to protect him. For such a man, I have no sympathy for such a man. I was taught, sir, in the school of true Democracy, to despise traitors wherever they may be found, and I will not now depart from those instructions.

Gentlemen may plead sympathy for this unfaithful servant, but it will not avail him or them. His friends have secured their minority here by grasping continually such delusive phantoms of hope. I sympathize with them in their misfortune, but as it is their choice of principle which has placed them in the minority, they cannot censure us nor plead their weakness in order to justify them in sustaining a wrong.

I think, sir, that this man has forfeited all claims to sympathy from this House. We have petitioned, we have remonstrated, we have resolved and re-resolved, and all has passed unheeded. This resolution should pass, sir, not only to teach him, but all who seek honors from their people, that they must be true to those who send them, or bear the degradation of their betrayal—that if they shall escape the mark upon their brow they shall not escape the blot upon their public record, which shall indicate the just condemnation of those who have been misrepresented and betrayed. Forgetting party prejudices, who can regard with respect or sympathy that man, who, having assumed to protect the rights of his people, has deliberately and persistently spurned their advice? Who, I ask, can admire him who kissed but to betray? I am surprised at this seeming admiration of one whose only act of greatness they can point to, is in betraying those who confided in him.

I put my vote on record, saying that Edgar Cowan has disregarded the declaration of principles that placed him in his high position; that he has disregarded the instructions of those who sent him; that he has despised the instructions of his people, as indicated by overwhelming majorities for principle, and in a hundred other ways.

And, when this House, in accordance with that principle, sought to advise, he has tauntingly thrown it back upon those who seek to do their duty to their people—sneers of defiance.

Sir, in view of such acts, it is our right, it is our duty, to show an appreciation of those acts, and place upon him that stigma he so justly deserves, as the fitting reward for such base treachery and misrepresentation.

My friend who recited with so much care that oath that bound him to obey the Constitution—"as it was" he should have added—and pointed out his duty as a representative with so much conscious clearness, seemed to have forgotten that he was also to perform the duties of a representative of the people with fidelity. If I know my duty here, sir, it is to guard the interests of my constituents and carry out their views, unless it be in direct opposition to that Constitution which I have sworn to obey and maintain.

This is all that has been asked of Edgar Cowan. If he has done this, let him be sustained; if not, let him suffer the censure which a just though injured people put upon those who betray their trusts.

Mr. MEYERS. In was not my intention to say anything upon the resolution, but before this question is put I will endeavor to say a few words, not to hope in the majority, which some of the remarks made upon this floor have been characterized. It is well to ascertain through the remarks that have been made by honorable gentlemen upon this floor, what is the difference of opinion between the gentlemen who have discussed this matter, and when we have ascertained that difference, let us see who is right. This resolution, as I understand it, is offered for the reason that Senator Cowan has been named by the President of the United States as a minister to the court of Austria, and is a sort of protest against the confirmation of that appointment by the Senate of the United States. One of the reasons urged in favor of this resolution, and in favor of this protest, is that Senator Cowan has proved a traitor—not to his country—but a traitor to his party and to the principles which he advocated at the time they placed him in the position of Senator from Pennsylvania. I have yet to learn, Mr. Speaker, that any law, or any code of laws, or any Constitution, State or Federal, makes it treason for a man to differ with his own party or with the principles of his own party. And I would ask any gentleman upon this floor to point out the speech, to point out the vote, to point out the resolution or bill offered by Senator Cowan which was not voted for, acted upon by him, presented and discussed in a spirit of moderation, in a spirit of candor, in a spirit of honesty and conscientious discharge of his duties. And when a man has done that, it is, sir, appropriate—I use that word—I say it is appropriate for the Legislature of Pennsylvania, sitting in the capacity of legislators, not of our party, but sitting here as sworn representatives of the people of this Commonwealth, to introduce a resolution to cast censure upon a man on partisan grounds and for the only reason that he has abandoned the principles of the party that placed him in power?

Mr. Speaker, I know of no offense charged in this resolution that entitles a man to condemnation—simply the charge that he does not agree with all the points of the policy of the party that put him in power and place. If he is guilty of treason, if he is guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors, or if he is guilty of anything that would not entitle him to occupy the honorable position of Senator of the United States, then, sir, that Senate has stultified itself in allowing him to remain there up to this time. If the arguments, allegations and assertions of the gentlemen upon the other side of this House are, true, then he ought to be placed in the same category with Senator Bright, and ignominiously driven from the halls of legislation which he has so dishonored. Will any man dare to say or avow that Edgar Cowan has filled that position dishonorably? I hear one who says that he has. In what consists his dishonor? It consists in a man taking the oath to support the Constitution of the United States, and then going and taking his seat, and violating that Constitution, and going over head and front to the enemy that set themselves up with the avowed purpose of destroying the Constitution. Is there any evidence that Senator Cowan, during this terrible ordeal, has done anything in which he interfered, either by vote, word or act, with the recovery of the territory of the Southern States, the preservation in full of the principles of the Constitution or the perpetuation of the Union of these States? Now, Mr. Speaker, the Constitution of the United States places the power of appointment in the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Senator Cowan has been appointed Minister to Austria. Every person familiar with the practice of the United States is aware, that whenever a Senator is appointed for any high and important office the question is never referred to a committee, but acted upon at once in executive session. Such a high regard do they have for their brother Senators that they do not even degrade them so much as to require that their names shall be sent to a committee to be reported upon whether they shall be confirmed or not by the Senate, but they are acted upon at once in executive session. The Senate of the United States is clothed with a great and responsible power in the confirmation of appointments. And has it come to this, that a resolution must be offered in the Legislature of Pennsylvania denunciatory of a United States Senator who is to-day the equal and peer of his brother Senators in the Senate of the United States, who is sitting there, and against whom no word of censure has been uttered by his brother Senators, against whom no vote of obloquy, censure, or contumely has been vouchsafed in that Senate? Shall it be said, then, that the Legislature of Pennsylvania have set themselves up here in the capacities of inquisitors and judges to declare that he, as Senator, has betrayed the people of this Commonwealth, and that the confirmation of his appointment would be an insult and a disgrace to the people of this Commonwealth? Sir, if Mr. Cowan goes to Europe in the capacity of a minister, when he descends from a position higher and more exalted than any position that a man can occupy at a foreign court, to dance attendance on kings, courtiers and princes, a man who, by the consent and by the approbation of his co-Senators, occupies the high, grand and honorable position of United States Senator with confidence and with respect, though he may differ from the majority in that body, let it not be said of that Senate, which has allowed him to remain there without reserve, to be instructed by the Legislature of Pennsylvania, that they shall not confirm him to a position less noble than that of Senator of the United States simply because he has left, to some extent, the principles of the party that has put him in power.

Now, Mr. Speaker, every one that is familiar with the current history of the day is well aware that if men placed in position, be it high or be it low, do not come up to the mark, and accord and agree with every word, syllable, and letter of the advance rank of the radical party they are denounced. A man is denounced whether he is a member of the Legislature; whether he is a layman; whether he is Governor; whether he is a Congressman; or whether he is a United States Senator; yes, sir, they do not even wait for his actions to be tested, but their denunciations go even to the secret chamber of the highest judicial tribunal of this Government, and are visited upon such men as Chase and the corps of Republicans in that body who have, by their recent decisions, decided against the constitutional power of this Government to enforce the test oath and other matters. And we find that radical conventions, legislative bodies, and the press, everywhere, are denouncing these men, because, under their sworn obligations, they have in their judgment and conscience decided these acts to be unconstitutional and unjust. Now, the spirit of this resolution is exactly in accordance with the spirit and sentiments of the Republican party as they are expressed everywhere, when they denounce even the judges of the Supreme Court of the United States because they have thought it their duty, under their oaths, to decide that certain acts done by this Government were unconstitutional, illegal, and wrong. When they offered this resolution here they mistook their tribunal. They ought to have offered it in a Republican meeting, not in the Legislature of Pennsylvania. The gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE] this morning stated that they, as a party, had the right to denounce Senator Cowan because Senator Cowan did not choose to stand up to the work, or in other words, because he betrayed his party. Now, sir, we do not deny, and we do not object to the right of the Republican party to call in question anything that Senator Cowan has done; but when you do it, let them do it in the capacity of a party, and not come in here and introduce a resolution, which, on its face, says that his appointment is an insult to the entire people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and is a disgrace to the people, because he had betrayed whom? Not the people, but the Republican party.

Mr. KIMMELL. Will the gentleman allow me to call his attention to the word "insult"? The resolution says, "it seems a studied insult."

Mr. MEYERS. That does not amend the matter much, Mr. Speaker. A few remarks have been introduced by the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] in reference to the position occupied by Senator Cowan upon the matter of confiscation. Now, members will recollect that, when the first bill was introduced into Congress in reference to confiscation, and the bill had passed the Senate, and was on the eve of passing in the House, information was received from President Lincoln that he would not sign the bill unless modifications were made therein in accordance with the language of the Constitution. That modification was espoused by Senator Cowan in the Senate of the United States, and that modification was made. Or, rather, at the same time there was a supplementary bill passed which confined this action of the confiscation bill to the life of the offender, and not to his heirs forever. I think, Mr. Speaker, that this resolution ought not to have been introduced into this House until it had been presented to an appropriate committee. It is a resolution that refers entirely to our Federal relations. We have a committee for that purpose, and there was the proper place for this resolution referred, and let that committee report it with such amendments as would accord with the sentiments of this House. As it stands now it is discourteous to the members of this House and discourteous to Senator Cowan and to the people of Pennsylvania. When you say that the people of this Commonwealth have received with indignation the announcement of the fact that the President has appointed Senator Cowan as Minister to Austria and that it is an insult to them; when you say that the confirmation of that appointment will be a disgrace and an insult to the people, you say positively what is not true. It cannot be viewed and ought not to be viewed in that light. And I say, therefore, for this reason, and many others that could be urged against it, it ought not to pass. It ought to receive the condemnation of this House by a large majority.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment, or rather substitute for the resolution:

The amendment was read as follows: WHEREAS, The course of Edgar A. Cowan, as Senator from Pennsylvania, has been different from what his previous public professions and declarations properly led those who placed him in that position to expect, and thereby he has lost the confidence of the people of the loyal States;

And whereas, His views as to the proper course to be pursued in the administration of the affairs of this Government differ so materially from the opinions of the majority of the people of this country as to prevent him from being properly regarded as a representative man; therefore,

Resolved, That we fully approve of the action of the Republican members of Congress in opposing the confirmation of Edgar A. Cowan, and unite our protest with theirs and call on the Senate of the United States to reject said nomination, and thereby save this country from being represented abroad by one who, in no particular, would be a true exponent of American ideas and principles.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 22, a supplement to an act to incorporate the Female Seminary of Eden Hall, in the county of Philadelphia, by the style and name of the Institute of Ladies of the Sacred Heart, and to take and hold lands, tenements, etc., and to sell or mortgage any part thereof.

No. 26, an act to authorize the payment of State debts at Washington.

No. 30, a supplement to an act relative to landlords and tenants, approved December 14, 1863, extending the provisions thereof to cases of descent and purchase.

No. 63, an act to confer upon the committee of a lunatic or habitual drunkard the power to institute actions of partition.

The question being on agreeing to the substitute of Mr. WADDELL,

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I hope this amendment will not be adopted. It will be a great deal better to withdraw the whole matter than to tame it down in this way by the adoption of this amendment. The first resolution offered states what ought to be the action of this House under the aggravating circumstances of the case. I am astonished that any friends of humanity, and of freedom, and of loyalty, should propose to modify this resolution in so material a manner as this amendment does. Just reflect for a moment on the insult that has been put upon the people of Pennsylvania for the past six years, and the entire disregard of the instructions from this Legislature. Repeated year after year—repeated, persistent, willful disregard of the solemn protests of this Legislature, not one of which have even received the slightest attention, or to which the least respect or regard has been paid by Edgar Cowan. Not only has he betrayed the trust reposed in him by a confiding people for six years, but last year he entered the contest, and publicly denounced his friends, and said, and still says, that he holds in his hands the patronage of Pennsylvania, to be sold to the highest bidder. He attempted to procure from the people of Pennsylvania the betrayal of their trust, and attempted to secure from every man holding office in Pennsylvania a betrayal of the trust bestowed upon him, as he has betrayed his own trust. It was known all over the Commonwealth, that if any Republican in office would sell himself and get another person to go with him, he should have any office within his neighborhood. Every postmaster held his office during this campaign at the pleasure and will of Edgar Cowan. He had either to pledge himself to support those principles, and sell himself for a mess of pottage, or be turned out of office. Edgar Cowan held this Moses' rod over the heads of the people during the entire campaign, purchasing weak-kneed Republicans, and attempting by such means to gain a majority of the people of this State to favor a policy he had sold himself to support. Having done this, shall we withhold our indignation, or tone it down to so mild an expression that he will have no regard to it? This substitute will be no protest to anybody. I hope it will be voted down promptly and unanimously upon our side of the House.

It has been said here, on the other side of the House, and we have been asked over and over again, "What are your specific charges?" My friend from Erie [Mr. M'CAEARY] gave evidence that is conclusive upon this point. Six years ago, every man upon the other side of the House voted against Edgar Cowan, and to-day every man of them is voting for him. Mr. Speaker, try to get yourself a conclusive evidence that he has betrayed the men who put him in the position he now occupies, otherwise, these men here would not be voting for him. This is conclusive and specific evidence, and all that ought to be asked for upon this point. It is said that it is a simple difference of opinion between Mr. Cowan and the Republican party. I tell you there is something far more than that. From the time Fort Sumter was first fired upon down to the close of the war, he never uttered a syllable in the Senate of the United States that was not aid and comfort to the rebels. He appealed in the Senate of the United States for the support of Hiester Clymer in the State of Pennsylvania. He made apologies for traitors, and every effective bill that was offered to put down this rebellion, he opposed with all the talent that he had been invested with, and all the power that the people of Pennsylvania had given him. Not a single measure was advocated by the loyal people of the United States to put down the rebellion, but met with the persistent opposition of Edgar Cowan.

I listened to the debates a year ago on a subject kindred to this, by my Democratic friends, and yet in one short year they have made great progress. I do not know how this is to be accounted for, unless it is through the instructions received from this side of the House. I, therefore, differ from my friend from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE] that there is no hope for them. I heard a Democratic Senator say, not long since, in referring to slavery, that it is a brutalizing institution. It was the first time in the manner of slavery. I also heard one say that he was in favor of giving equal justice to the negroes. Why, my friends, there is great hope for the country when Democrats can talk in that way. Therefore, I am in favor, on all suitable occasions, of giving all the instruction that is needed.

But, upon this resolution, and upon the necessity of rebuking Edgar Cowan, I submit that the loyal people of Pennsylvania owe it to themselves to so rebuke this man, that no other Senator from Pennsylvania will ever dare to repeat his treason.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I am not going to make another speech. I merely wish to say that, so far as I am concerned, I think there is no resolution can be drawn up in language strong enough to express the bitter contempt for the man that I helped to make United States Senator, and I am willing to vote for anything that will express the views of what I believe to be the views of a great majority of the people of this State. I am opposed to this sort of "whitewashing," and I go for administering "Dr. Townsend's Sarsaparilla" without any reducing. I would like to have that word "seems" stricken out. I call for the reading of the original resolution.

Mr. KURTZ. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inquire of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS], if when Simon Cameron was sent as a Minister to Russia, a vote of censure was not passed by a majority of the two Houses of Congress, and if he did not vote for that same Simon Cameron for United States Senator the other day?

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, when the gentleman introduces a resolution of censure here, I shall then be willing to express my opinion.

The resolution of Mr. KIMMELL was again read.

Mr. DAVIS. A word in conclusion. The original resolution offered by the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. KIMMELL], says that Mr. Johnson seems to have contemplated a studied insult to the loyal people of Pennsylvania, and there is no man, sir, who has read his record for the past six months, and examined it carefully, but must know that the appointment of Edgar Cowan as Minister to Austria is a studied insult to a majority of the people of Pennsylvania. Now, sir, the principles of Andrew Johnson and Edgar Cowan were submitted to the people of Pennsylvania last fall as they proclaimed their principles. The people have repudiated them, and we are now called upon to strike out any expression to the effect that Andrew Johnson "seemed" to contemplate a studied insult. It is a self-evident fact that it is a studied insult to the people to nominate a man whom they have repudiated, not only all over the State, but in his own district. Last summer, instead of "swinging around the circle" on an electioneering tour through the Northern States, Edgar Cowan left his seat in Washington, and went home to his own district, and there submitted himself to the people. But the people in that district, who elected a Democrat two years ago, repudiated their Democratic member of Congress, and sent honest John Covode to represent their district. Shall we fail to say that this appointment is a studied insult, when it is an insult to every loyal man? I hope not.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I am somewhat surprised, sir, that the gentleman from Potter [Mr. Mox] should anticipate that anything done by this House should have any influence upon Edgar Cowan. We have truded, sir, over that ground before, and we have had his reply. I do not anticipate that this House is called upon to act today so as to have any influence upon Edgar Cowan, and I apprehend that any resolution we may pass will fall like mist upon him. If this nomination should be confirmed, sir, Edgar Cowan will go as minister to the court to which he is appointed; this resolution to the contrary notwithstanding. They will not affect him in the least, and I apprehend that this House does not contemplate preventing his doing the duties of minister if he receives a confirmation of the appointment. It is not for that purpose that I understand this resolution to be introduced. It is introduced, sir, to sustain the members of Congress, in the House, in the course which they have pursued in regard to Mr. Cowan since his nomination. He knows, to-day, as they do, and as the people of this Commonwealth do, what the sentiments of this Legislature are in regard to Mr. Cowan. We have passed our votes of censure upon him. We have invited him to resign the position which he holds. We cannot do anything stronger; we cannot do anything which will better indicate our views as to his course. I understand the resolution to be that we sustain the members of Congress, and we call upon the Senate of the United States to repudiate the nomination which has been made, and, if you please, sir, we give our reasons for so doing. Now, sir, in giving those reasons it strikes my mind that this House should have some regard to its own dignity and feelings of propriety, and if we may differ in our language, if we may differ in the phraseology of our resolutions, I apprehend from him by reason of his public professions and declarations. He has deceived us and has deceived the people of a loyal State, and by reason of this deception they have lost their confidence in him. We say further, that entertaining the views which he does, as to the manner in which this Government should be administered, he cannot properly represent us in a foreign court, and, therefore, he is not an embodiment of American ideas and principles. Now, sir, you may try that, if you please, your adjectives to make stronger, by scurrilous epithets, the sentiments that you have concerning this man, but, I take it, we have expressed in the preamble the idea—"lost confidence." We have lost confidence in the man—the betrayer of his constituents—and, therefore, we sustain the Representatives in Congress who have protested against his confirmation, and we add our voice to theirs in asking the Senate to reject him as a minister to the court to which he has been appointed. Now, sir, gentlemen will not offend me in the least, if they want something stronger, if they choose to add their adjectives to the words to which I have given expression, they will not offend me, but I ask, for the dignity of the party which we represent, that we take the language as I have stated it and not the language of the original resolution. But I submit the case to this House to decide. We probably do not differ in opinion. It is merely in the manner of arriving at the same object, and I simply repeat what I have before suggested, that we should have a proper regard for ourselves while we express our disapprobation of the course he has pursued.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, it was not my purpose to again trespass upon the time of the House in the discussion of this resolution, and I would not do so, had the question been taken upon the original resolution. But as a substitute has been offered, I desire to say that, if I were a Republican and believed in passing any resolution of this kind at all, I would vote for the substitute out of regard for my own character. But, not being a Republican, and not believing that this House ought to express any opinion at all concerning the appointment of Edgar Cowan, and believing that neither the resolution or the substitute states the truth, I shall vote against both.

Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] if he would not be guided in casting his vote for the substitute, in the case he supposes, more from the fact that nothing is said in the substitute in reference to President Johnson's course, than anything else?

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I do not see any point in the gentleman's question. I will vote against both. If this House were a Republican caucus, or if it were a Republican mass meeting, then it might be well enough for the Republican party to denounce Mr. Cowan because of his apostasy from their principles, as they please to state it.—But, it being the Legislature of the State, representing the whole people, having legislative power, and, having no right to express any political opinion, I take the ground that we have no right to pass a resolution of this kind. We have no right to express a mere political opinion—to convert the House of Representatives into a Republican caucus. It is said that Mr. Cowan has changed. Well, I shall not undertake to say that he has not changed. I trust that, in some things, he has changed. I trust that some opinions Mr. Cowan held, when a member of the Republican party, have been repudiated. But I am not going to attempt to show now whether they have been or not.

Mr. Speaker, in 1861, when Mr. Cowan was elected to the United States Senate, there were certain great fundamental principles professed by all parties. When Mr. Cowan took his seat in the Senate of the United States he took the oath to support the Constitution of the United States, and all political parties in 1861 professed that the Constitution was their creed—all professed to support and believe in the Constitution.

Now, sir, if their professions were true, if the professions of the Republican party were true at that time, then Mr. Cowan agreed with the Republican party in supporting the Constitution. But, sir, at this time, there is a radical difference between them. During the six years that have intervened there has been a contrast, a radical difference between them and the man they elected. But, sir, he has not left them; if they told the truth at that time (and I am strongly led to suspect the truth of their expressions), because he adheres to the Constitution yet, and they have systematically, and almost without exception, when Constitutional rights were in question, abandoned and sold them.

And now it will refresh the memory of the gentleman. The Constitution says: "The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury."—Article III, section 2-8.

I suppose when this party elected Mr. Cowan they agreed in that sentiment. But do they stand to that sentiment now? Have they stood there during the last six years? Mr. Cowan has maintained faithfully that provision of the Federal Constitution, "That the trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury." But the party that elected him has, just as systematically, avoided it. They have tried men by military commissions, by courts without a name, and without any court at all, and convicted and punished them in the face of this provision of the Constitution. There they differ. One has left the other, if they were together in 1861. I will not attempt to say which, but I think the party has left Mr. Cowan.

The Constitution says further: "That Congress shall make no laws * * * abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press."

[Amends. Art. I.] To that Mr. Cowan has agreed. Has not the party departed from that? Were not the cases so numerous as to be an almost every day occurrence, of the tearing down of printing offices and arresting editors, in disregard of this provision of the Federal Constitution? Mr. Cowan stood by it; his party opposed it. Another provision of the Constitution is "the right of the people to be secured in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated; and no warrant shall issue but upon probable cause," &c. [Amends. Art. IV.] There, too, they differ, I think, however, Mr. Cowan has taken his stand upon the bulwarks of the Constitution, and I think the party has opposed it and disregarded it whenever it suited their purpose so to do. I might go on with a number of the other provisions of the Constitution and show wherein the party has disregarded them, while Mr. Cowan has stood by them. These are the real differences between Mr. Cowan and his party. There is a resolution that was passed in the Senate of the United States on the 25th day of July, 1861. Then Mr. Cowan voted with his party; then they all voted together. I desire to call attention to it:

Resolved, That the present deplorable civil war has been forced upon the country by the disunionists of the Southern States now in revolt against the Constitutional Government, and in arms around the capital;

That in this national emergency Congress, banishing all feelings of mere passion or resentment, will recollect only its duty to the whole country;

That this war is not prosecuted on our part with any spirit of oppression, nor for any purpose of conquest or subjugation, nor purpose of overthrowing or interfering with the rights or established institutions of the States, but to defend and maintain the supremacy of the Constitution and all laws made in pursuance thereof, and to preserve the Union with all the dignity, equality and rights of the States unimpaired.

That as soon as these objects are accomplished the war ought to cease.

Now, Mr. Cowan and his party agreed upon that at that time. Has Mr. Cowan departed from his party upon that subject? Have not his party, in the face of their votes in favor of that resolution, gone back upon Mr. Cowan? Mr. Cowan stands by the declaration of that resolution to-day, asserting that the war was for the preservation of the Union, and not for the object of conquest or subjugation, and that the right of the States should be maintained. There has been the difference; there has been the separation between them; but I do not think it is much to Mr. Cowan's discredit. This party professed to be for the Union, they pretended to fight this war for the Union, and Mr. Cowan was with them heart and soul in this view, and stood by that at all times, contending that the war ought to have been fought for the preservation of the Union. But he knows, and every man knows, that those who now have control of the Government, did not prosecute the war for the preservation of the Union, but to-day they are asserting, as a consequence of the war, that the Union has not been preserved. There is the difference between Mr. Cowan and his party. And I ask, gentlemen, in the light of the past six years, has Mr. Cowan left his party in standing up for the Union, or has the party left him, standing, as it now does, in favor of the disunion of the States?

The question being on agreeing to the amendment of Mr. WADDELL,

It was determined in the negative.

Mr. DAVIS, Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment:

Resolved, That the Clerk of this House be instructed to forward to the President of the Senate of the United States a copy of these resolutions.

The amendment was Agreed to.

The question recurring, Will the House agree to the resolution as amended?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BOYLE and Mr. —, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, Day, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffman, Kennedy, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Mann, Marks, Meching, Mealy, Pennypacker, Peters, Pillow, Richards, Roys, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stolman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wait, Welch, Waller, Wann, Wilson, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—54.

NAYS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hunt, Jenks, Kline, Kirtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Mullah, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Koush, Satterthwait, Tharp and Westbrook—33.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

His name was called by the Clerk, when He voted aye.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence resolution numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 3, joint resolution to ratify the amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

The following is a copy of the resolution: JOINT RESOLUTION to ratify the Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

WHEREAS, Two-thirds of the members of the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, in Congress assembled, did adopt an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which is entitled Article fourteen as follows:

SECTION 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States, and of the State wherein they reside; no State shall make or enforce any laws, which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States, nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty or property, without due process of law, nor deny any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of law.

SEC. 2. Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States, according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed; but when the right to vote, at any election, for the choice of electors for President and Vice President of the United States, representatives in Congress, the executive and judicial officers of a State, or the members of the legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State, being twenty-one years of age, and citizens of the United States, or any way abridged, except for participation in rebellion, or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens, twenty-one years of age, in such State.

SEC. 3. No person shall be a Senator or Representative in Congress, or elector of President or Vice President, or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any State, who having previously taken an oath as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of any State Legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof; but Congress may, by a vote of two-thirds of each House, remove such disability.

SEC. 4. The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties, for services in suppressing insurrection or rebellion, shall not be questioned; but neither the United States, or any State, shall assume or pay any debt, or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations and claims shall be held illegal and void.

SEC. 5. The Congress shall have power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article;

Which said amendment has been submitted to the Legislature of Pennsylvania for ratification or rejection.

Therefore,

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the amendment, as above proposed and submitted, is hereby ratified and adopted by the State of Pennsylvania.

QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE.

Mr. CHASE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of privilege.

I move that the House reconsider the vote had upon the resolution of the gentleman from Venango [Mr. WEANN], by which one thousand and copies of the minority report, and the evidence presented therewith, in the case of the Venango Bank investigation, were ordered to be printed.

Mr. GHEGAN. I second the motion.

The SPEAKER. Did both of the gentlemen vote with the majority?

Mr. ADAIR. I voted with the majority, Mr. Speaker, and I will second the motion.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to hear some reason for making the motion to reconsider.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I believe, sir, it is not in order to debate a question for the reconsideration of a resolution. I therefore ask the privilege of making a statement, that gentlemen may understand why the motion is made to reconsider.

Leave was granted.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, this is a matter that I have no direct interest in, one way or the other. I have not suffered by the operations of the Venango Bank, neither are any of my constituents interested in the question.

I have only undertaken to explain to the House why Mr. Culver, the gentleman who is interested in this bank, desires that this resolution should be reconsidered. I confess, for one, that, when the resolution was brought up here the other day and pressed upon the House and passed, I did not understand it, and was satisfied with the views that were expressed by the gentleman from Venango [Mr. WEANN], together with those of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS], as to the propriety of passing the resolution. I have, since that, learned the actual condition of affairs, so far as this House is concerned, and I have undertaken to present the views which Mr. Culver gave me to the House, and it will be for you to judge of the propriety of the action of the House. If you still think this matter should be published, I have no interest in it, and you must exercise your own judgment.

As I understand the matter, it is simply this:

In 1866, about the 16th day of June, the Auditor General of this State, General Hartranft, was informed, under the act of Assembly of 1861, that the Venango Bank had committed an act of insolvency. He, as Auditor General, was in duty bound to appoint a commission to inquire into that fact. He did so, and appointed Thomas J. Jordan, E. C. Williams and H. C. Alleman that committee.

The act of Assembly provides the duties of that commission. It is to inquire simply into the fact of the insolvency of the bank. That commission undertook to perform its duties, and made its report to the Auditor General under the provisions of that act of Assembly, which report I desire to read for the information of the House:

WHEREAS, The Venango bank, at Franklin, Pennsylvania, incorporated in pursuance of the provisions of an act entitled An act to establish a system of free banking in Pennsylvania, and to secure the public against loss from insolvent banks, approved May 1, 1861, has committed an act of insolvency, satisfactory evidence of which has been furnished me, in accordance with section eighteen of the said act:

And whereas, Notice has been given in writing to the Venango Bank, the notes of which have been protested, to pay the same with interest, which they omitted to do; therefore,

In pursuance of the authority vested in me, by the nineteenth section of the act aforesaid, I do hereby appoint Thomas J. Jordan, E. C. Williams and H. C. Alleman, all of the city of Harrisburg, Dauphin county, Pennsylvania, three discreet and judicious citizens of this Commonwealth, a committee to make immediate inquiry into the truth of such information, and report thereon.

(Signed) J. F. HARTRANFT,
Auditor General.
State of Pennsylvania, Dauphin county, ss:
Thomas J. Jordan, Ed. C. Williams and H. C. Alleman, being duly sworn according to law, say that they will respectfully support the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution of this Commonwealth, and perform their duty as a committee to investigate the affairs of the Venango Bank with fidelity.

(Signed) THOMAS J. JORDAN,
E. C. WILLIAMS,
H. C. ALLEMAN.

Sworn and subscribed before me, June 16, 1866.

(Signed) JNO. J. PEARSON,
President Judge.
Hon. J. T. Hartranft, Auditor General of Pennsylvania:

The undersigned, being a majority of the committee appointed in the annexed order to make inquiry into and report upon the truth of the information received by the Auditor General of Pennsylvania, as to the Venango Bank having committed an act of insolvency, respectfully report: That after being organized they proceeded to the town of Franklin, in the county of Venango, the place where said Venango Bank is located, and do find, that on the 27th day of March, 1866, said Venango Bank closed its doors, and did neglect and refuse further to do business, and that the said Venango Bank did, after the 27th day of March, 1866, neglect and refuse to pay and redeem its outstanding circulation and notes issued by it, and that the same has been protested, and that the said Venango Bank has continued, and still does continue, to neglect and refuse to pay its outstanding notes and circulation, and that the said Venango Bank has of truth committed, and still does commit, the said acts of insolvency.

Respectfully submitted,
THOS. J. JORDAN,
E. C. WILLIAMS,
Committee.

Harrisburg, June 28, 1866.

I will now read the report of H. C. Alleman:
Hon. J. F. Hartranft, Auditor General of Pennsylvania:

GENERAL—I have the honor to acknowledge the compliance of your confidence.

I fully agree with my brother members of the committee, that the Venango Bank, which was afterwards merged into the Venango National Bank, committed different acts of insolvency since the 27th day of March, A. D. 1866. But I most respectfully dissent from their decision, that it is not within our province to express our conclusions upon facts within our knowledge. We have made personal observations, personal examinations, and a very thorough investigation into the condition of the bank, and submit the testimony of a number of witnesses with our report. If we have no power to state our conclusions in reference to this investigation, we must unquestionably had no authority to make any inquiry into the causes of the suspension, or even go beyond the mere fact that the bank committed an act of insolvency. Although the one fact is of an incidental character, it is actually as necessary and important as the other.

Our conclusions upon the facts agree, and I am prepared to submit them, upon official request, at any moment, in accordance with my convictions of duty, regardless of either threats or consequences.

(Signed) H. C. ALLEMAN
Committee.

Harrisburg, June 28, 1866.

AUDITOR GENERAL'S OFFICE,
HARRISBURG, January 17, 1867.
I hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of the original remaining on file in this Department.

Witness my hand and seal of office the day and year aforesaid. (Signed)
[L. S.] J. F. HARTRANFT,
Auditor General.

Now, these are the reports made by the committee to the Auditor General, and I desire to call the attention of the House to the act of Assembly under which this commission was appointed, and you can see for yourselves how the question arises between these gentlemen on the Constitution, and which is right in their conclusions.

The act passed May 21st, 1861, provides that "the Auditor General, after having notified such bank that it has committed an act of insolvency, shall forthwith appoint a committee of three judicious and discreet citizens of this Commonwealth, who shall receive four dollars per day each, and their traveling and necessary expenses, all of which to be paid by said bank, who shall make immediate inquiry into the truth of such information, and report thereon to the Auditor General of the Commonwealth; and if the said committee, or a majority of them, shall report that such bank has suspended payment of its notes in gold and silver, he shall forthwith apply to the court of common pleas of the proper county, if in session, or to the president judge of the district in which the said bank is located, in vacation, [to] appoint a suitable receiver, who shall take immediate possession of the books, records, money, choses in action and property of such bank, of every description, including the securities deposited with said Auditor General, and hold the same for the joint use of the creditors of such bank."

Now, the House will see that the question presented here for that committee, is simply as to the insolvency of the bank, not what caused it, not what the directors or some individual official of the bank may have done, but simply whether that bank has committed an act of insolvency, and whether its assets should be placed in the hands of a common receiver for the benefit of all its creditors. This is the view the commission took, after their appointment. They thought they had no power to go beyond the inquiry, whether the bank had committed an act of insolvency or not. One member of the commission thought they had the power to inquire into the why and wherefores of the insolvency, and what had been done to cause it. They all agreed that the bank committed an act of insolvency, and they so reported to the Auditor General. Colonel Alleman thought he had the right to go beyond that, and signified to the Auditor General that he was prepared to make a further report on official request. General Hartranft concluded that, as Auditor General eral, he had no right to inquire officially for that reason, and he never did so. I may have, that, when the matter was up the other day, my impression was that the report of Col. Alleman came through the Auditor General, but, upon inquiring I find that the House, by resolution, requested Col. Alleman to present his report, together with the testimony, to the House, and that was followed up by a resolution to print. Now, this is not an official communication from the Auditor General; it is not before us in an official capacity; it is not presented in that way, and, if I understand the objections of the gentleman, Mr. Culver, who is deeply interested in this matter, I understand the testimony was taken in the borough of Franklin, or wherever it is styled, without any notice to him; without his being present, and without anybody representing him, or anybody there to examine the witnesses on his part. It was done entirely ex parte, and he had no right, under the act of Assembly, to suppose that such inquiries would be made. He had the right to believe, as he did believe, that the commission was simply to inquire into the fact of insolvency of the bank. Instead of this, I understand witnesses were examined to inquire into the whys and wherefores of this insolvency. Now, this was entirely an ex parte proceeding, and the most serious difficulty, which I understand, may occur by reason of printing this testimony is, that at this time there is hanging over this gentleman, whether properly or not I am not prepared to say, criminal prosecutions in the county of Venango, and in the county of Dauphin, in regard to the proceedings of this bank.

Will this House undertake to spread this testimony before the people of the Commonwealth in anticipation of this prosecution—in anticipation of the examination of these men in the only tribunal where it can be properly investigated? Will they undertake to spread this to the Commonwealth to prejudice the minds of the people thereby, and especially of those good citizens who may be called upon to pass upon the guilt or innocence of this man? Is that right or proper? Is it the duty of this House to place in such a position a citizen of this Commonwealth? I desire again to repeat that I have no relations with Mr. Culver; I have never had the pleasure—if it may be considered a pleasure—of the gentleman's acquaintance until yesterday. I have no interest in this matter, and I detail it to you as I learned it from him, and as it strikes my mind, without having a dollar of interest in the result.

Is this treating the courts of this Commonwealth, the citizens of this Commonwealth, or Mr. Culver fairly and honestly, as you would like to be treated when criminal prosecutions are hanging over your head, to have testimony spread broadcast over this Commonwealth, taken without notice to him, without examination on his part, taken ex parte, outside of the written letter, outside of the duty of the commission appointed upon that subject? Is it, I say, treating a man as you would like to be treated, to spread this testimony in advance before the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania? All that I ask, all that Mr. Culver asks, is fair treatment at your hands.

Now, each appreciate, I think, fully the feelings of these gentlemen who have been injured by this failure. They have, however, taken their remedy. They have done what they had a right to do, had this man arrested, and criminally prosecuted. This matter will thus be thoroughly investigated by the courts of the Commonwealth. It is a right which they have, to take the remedy which they have seen fit to pursue. I only say, do not, as members of this House, anticipate that investigation. Their rights will be fully pro-ted then, and it does not require the prejudice of the community to carry out and obtain what they consider their rights. They have the right to a full investigation, and, if this man is guilty, to have him punished under the laws of the Commonwealth. But do not subject him to the punishment which the prejudices of a community, by the publication of this ex parte testimony, may entail upon him.

Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House of Representatives, this is as I understand the case. The report of this commission has already been made officially to the Auditor General. It does not contain one iota of an improper allegation. They have attempted to do their duty under the act of Assembly, and have presented their report. This testimony, taken before Colonel Alleman, is entirely outside of this, and can be of no use except to create an undue prejudice against this man while these prosecutions are hanging over his head. I think, therefore, this House ought to move to reconsider this resolution.

I understand that there are other men interested in this matter who are not now in the city of Harrisburg, and I desire to press this motion for reconsideration at the present time. If the House will agree to it, I will ask that the further consideration of the resolution may lie over until the gentlemen get back to the city of Harrisburg, and have an opportunity of presenting their views before the House, if they see fit to do so. The object is to withhold the printing of these documents until the House can fairly make up their mind on this subject.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I have no disposition to prolong any discussion upon this question, but as the House has heard one side of it fully, I would like to make a statement here myself.

Leave was granted.

I can say, with the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL], that, personally, I have no feelings upon this subject more than my particular acquaintance with all the facts of interest in the failure of this bank must necessarily create. I never had any personal interest in the bank nor any personal communication with the person who was known, during its existence, as the proprietor of the bank.

I cannot understand, sir, why it is necessary to suppress this testimony. But let me say in the outset, that the resolution offered to have the testimony printed, had no reference to the opinions of Col. Alleman nor of any other man. I am perfectly willing that his opinions and deductions, whatever they may be, shall be left out; but the people of Venango county, who, in the failure of a certain individual, have lost millions of dollars, knowing that the Venango Bank was the starting place, have requested that the testimony taken by the lawfully appointed commissioners—not a minority, but the testimony taken by all, when everybody was represented—should be published to the world. Now, I ask this House, and you, Mr. Speaker, why, while the law provides for the taking of this testimony, that testimony should be suppressed by a vote of this House? We ask for no man's opinion, or directions, or arguments. We want the simple testimony taken upon the premises, taken in the county of Venango, where every man was represented, or had the right to be. I think, sir, it is a strong argument against the case, as here presented by the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL], that he does not desire this testimony published because it will reflect upon the gentleman referred to by name. I have never read the testimony, but if it is not printed the fact that he is opposed to it will certainly prejudice his case. We want only the testimony, and that we want published to the world. Everybody knows that this bank has failed, and that there is a cause for its failure. This cause the testimony taken by the legally appointed commissioners will show. It does not matter if only one of the commissioners took testimony and said they were the plain, unvarnished testimony, as taken under oath by the commissioners appointed by the Auditor General. I say this man Culver was represented there, or had the right to be, and to have all the witnesses examined before him. I do not know whether the testimony reflects on him, or the directors of the bank, or anybody else, but let the world know the testimony. I think the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] places himself in a false position when he comes here and argues against the publication of this testimony. There is no law against its publication, and let us see what the testimony is. The people of that part of the State are interested in it and have a right to know what it is. This House of Representatives has the responsibility of a resolution calling that report here, and then after a discussion of more than an hour, taken part in by numerous gentlemen, they agreed upon the number of copies to be printed. Now, I ask the House not to go back on its action and stultify itself on account of one man who is afraid some parts of this testimony may reflect upon himself. I ask, before this question is put to the House, that the testimony be read.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, no, sir, the gentleman from Chester is ready to take the responsibility of any position he may be in, if he has put himself into a false position; it is arguing that his fellow man shall be treated fairly. If there is any responsibility, and if that is a false position for a man to be in, then the gentleman from Chester is ready to take it. Now do not consider me as asking more than that. I do not know what the testimony is, and I apprehend that if this House is not willing to have it published, they are not willing to have it read to the world. I would just as leave it would be published to the world as to have it read to the public from the Clerk's desk; and I say we have no right to prejudice the people against a man who is standing with criminal prosecutions over him. I have heard courts in this State make a peremptory order that testimony should not be published, that had been taken where both parties were represented, and had the benefit of counsel, and have heard courts make a peremptory decree, that the testimony should not be published, simply because in going before the world it might prejudice the rights of a man who is bound to be tried by his peers, and who had the right, under the Constitution, to a fair, impartial, and unprejudiced trial. That is the ground that I put this upon. That is the ground I put myself upon to-day. I do not care whether Mr. Culver was there personally or by counsel. I say that, while prosecutions are hanging over his head, his rights should not be prejudiced by publishing the result of this investigation.

Now, gentlemen, members of the House of Representatives and Mr. Speaker, I ask a fair and candid consideration of this question, and I think I have a right to have it, simply because I occupy the same position as you. I have no interest in this investigation, nor in Mr. Culver, who is a perfect stranger to me. What good can it do the people of Venango county, to have this published? It will simply prejudice the minds of the people in the county where he is to be tried, and if found guilty, subjected, perhaps, to years of imprisonment. You have a duty and a duty to perform in this matter. He has rights as a citizen of this Commonwealth; and will you throw aside your duty, and cast aside his right, simply to gratify the curiosity of the people of Venango county? In this case comes to be tried officially, legally and regularly, when both parties are there with counsel, and the case is presented fairly before a jury of the people of Venango county, they can then learn who is in fault. It is only delaying the matter a few months, at the outside, in reference to gratifying their curiosity. Will you do this, or subject the man to the wrong which your resolution may subject him to? This is the simple question, and I submit it to the House.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the further consideration of this question be postponed until Monday evening next, and that it be made the special order for that evening.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I think we might just as well dispose of this question, now, as at any other time. I have intended from the first, in this discussion, not to allow my personal feelings to govern me in the least.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order. The motion now before the House to postpone the further consideration of this question for the present, is not debatable.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] asked leave to make a statement, and I followed The gentleman from Chester then made a speech without asking leave, and I hope the House will extend the same courtesy to me.

Mr. MANN. I appeal to my friend from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] not to press this matter any further at this time. There are now one or two important matters that should be acted upon this morning, and I trust there will be an opportunity for them to come before the House.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] asks leave to make a statement. Shall he have leave?

Leave was granted.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, the only object I have in the world for desiring the publication of this testimony is to place all the parties in this controversy upon an equal footing. The gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] makes an appeal to the members of this House and asks them not to prejudice any individual. I simply speak, in the discussion of this matter, without any personal interest, and I have no feelings of enmity toward the gentleman who has named. But there are other people in this Commonwealth who have rights as well as the gentleman from Venango, who now represents that district in Congress. The people of Venango ask for the publication of this testimony, and I see no reason why it should not be published. Now, this individual referred to, has published statements, and, under his official rank as a member of Congress, sent them all over the State of Pennsylvania; documents reflecting upon gentlemen whose characters come out as white as wool in this testimony, and yet, we are not to have it published. This gentleman has tried to prejudice the minds of every member of this Legislature, by means of letters by himself, or his friends, franked by him as a member of Congress. Here is testimony taken by a commission lawfully appointed for that purpose, and the same gentleman who has published these slanders to injure men, the latches of whose shoes he is not worthy to loose, has come here, and is trying to suppress official testimony that was taken in regard to him under the laws of this Commonwealth. Now, he has published his documents, and officially franked them to the members of this House and all over the State. We do not ask the publication of the arguments or opinions of this commission, but of the testimony taken under the direction of the Auditor-General and under oath, and if he cannot stand that he has no right to come into this House and try to suppress it. I want the House of Representatives to say to the world that they are in favor of taking the testimony of a regular commission, legally appointed, in preference to the slanderous statements against those opposed to the gentleman in this matter that he has sent all over the country under his official frank.

Mr. WHANN. Mr. Speaker, I do not intend to occupy the time of this House by any extended remarks, but merely to make a very brief statement to set myself right in regard to my statement.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order. I do not desire that this entire session shall be spent in this kind of discussion, and I therefore make the point of order in advance that the gentlemen are not confining themselves to the question before the House.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is in the opinion that the point of order is well taken. The gentleman will proceed and confine his remarks to the question before the House, on the postponement of the motion to reconsider.

Mr. WHANN. Mr. Speaker, I cannot agree with the attorney from the other side whose eloquent remarks you have just heard.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to explain. I do not appear here as attorney for anybody. I am without fee or reward of any kind, and, as I understand it, the profession do not regard themselves retained as attorneys without first seeing the evidence of it.

Mr. WHANN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman plead so much like an attorney that I supposed he was one, without any other evidence.

In regard to this testimony, so far as I can learn—and I have had perhaps a better opportunity of knowing than any other gentleman here—it is anything else than ex parte testimony. I believe that neither party was present, and that neither party exerted any influence upon the members of the commission, but that those officers proceeded to perform what they regarded as their duty without reference to either party. They took the testimony of the officers of this bank, and that I believe constitutes the entire report. Now, sir, as was stated here by another gentleman, it was the duty of that commission merely to elicit the evidence in regard to the failure of this bank, without making a charge upon any one. I have made no charge against Mr. Culver, and he stands to-day, so far as I know, with the members of that commission as friendly as his opponents. There is no feeling in this matter, and I make no reflections upon him. The bank has failed and has taken away its millions from my constituents, and they want the evidence in regard to what was the cause of that failure. I believe that the evidence should go before the world, and I believe that seven-eighths of my constituents wish to see this evidence.

The question being on the motion of the gentleman from Beaver [Mr. QUAY], to postpone.

A division was taken, when 32 voted for and 41 against postponing.

So it was not agreed to.

The question recurring,

Will the House agree to reconsider the resolution?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. JOSEPHS and Mr. LEE, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Armstrong, Barton, Boyle, Breen, Calvin, Chase, Colville, Donohugh, Espy, Freeborn, Gordon, Harbison, Hunt, Lee, Leach, Long, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Pherrin, Mann, Marks, Meily, Meyers, Pennyacker, Phelan, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Richards, Robinson, Seiler, Sharples, Steacy, Stumbaugh, Subers, Tharp, Waddell, Webb, Weller, Westbrook, Wilson, Worrall and Glass, Speakers—43.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Barrington, Boyd, Brennan, Campbell, Chalfant, Craig, Davis, Day, Detse, Ewing, Fogel, Gallagher, Ghegan, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Humphrey, Jenks, Josephs, Kennedy, Kimmel, Kinney, Kline, Linton, M'Henry, Maish, Markley, Peter, Rhoads, Roath, Satterthwait, Shuman, Watt, Whann, Wingard, Woodward and Wright—39.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The resolution being again before the House.

Mr. DAVIS moved to postpone the further consideration of the same for the present; which was

Agreed to.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to offer a resolution at this time.

Leave was granted.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That one hundred copies of the special message of the late Governor A. G. Curtin, and the accompanying documents, in reference to the boom and log bills, be printed for the use of this House.

The resolution was read a second time.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I cannot see the object of printing one thousand copies for the use of this House. They are certainly of no use to anybody else.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I can assure the gentleman that there are ten thousand persons in the State interested in this matter. I am daily receiving letters from persons requesting me to send them this message. Very important questions are involved in it affecting the interests of the whole of the people in the Susquehanna lumber regions. I ask only for one thousand copies on account of the expense to the Commonwealth, but I am satisfied this number is not adequate to supply all who have an interest in reading it.

The question being on agreeing to the resolution, it was

Agreed to.

The SPEAKER. Letters, petitions and remonstrances are now in order.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the regular order of business be suspended, and that we proceed to reports from standing committees, and reading of bills in place.

The motion was

Agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced informed the Senate that the House of Representatives had adopted the report of the joint committee appointed to contract for the publication of a Daily Record.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. LOWRY offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That so much of the Governor's message as relates to the removal of the State arsenal, located near the capitol buildings, be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, with a request that they confer with the Military Committee of the House, and select a new location, and report by bill or otherwise at the earliest practical day.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I was just going to state that I do not know whether this resolution is necessary at this time, because the Military Committee have made an appointment for a meeting already, and are going to make a report on this matter.

Mr. LOWRY. The resolution will do no harm.

Mr. WHITE said it would require a joint committee.

Mr. LOWRY. This is a subject that called forth the joint attention of the Military Committee of both branches. We have been sitting here for years so near the arsenal that, if an explosion should take place, there would not probably be one brick left upon another in this capitol; I will say nothing of the loss to the country of the members.

During the last six years, we could not get this building insured for any reasonable percentage. The subject has been talked of for years and years, and no action taken; the Governor has seen fit to call our attention to it. If we have a report from the committee of this branch only, it will go into the House and there sleep forever; but if the attention of these committees is called to it, and joint action required, we should probably have such action upon it as is contemplated by the message of the Governor.

Mr. SCHALL. Mr. Speaker, I have no objections, for my part, to building a new arsenal; but I do not believe in holding out bids for a large price. The idea of putting out a bid for property owners of this vicinity to sell property to the State at enormous prices, I do not believe is the proper way to arrive at the desired result in building an arsenal. If the joint committees hold out bids to property holders, they will ask almost any price for their property, if the committees recommend it to the Legislature. Some of the executive officers of the State had better purchase the property, and afterwards make arrangements for building an arsenal; if there will be no end to the money we will have to pay for their property, if we do business in this ill advised way.

Mr. LOWRY. I object to no property for sale for this purpose; but I for one am unwilling longer to sit so near the quantity of gunpowder that we are in the habit of doing. I, sir, and you, Mr. Speaker, have spoken about this subject for years, and it has become a serious question and a serious nuisance, and it should be removed at once; and I know of no way like to arrive at an object so desirable, as to draw the attention of both branches of the Legislature to the subject. That is the only object I had in view.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask wherein the great danger consists; it has been suggested to me that the powder has been removed. If that is the case, there would not appear to be any danger that the Senator speaks of; and unless there is some pressing motive, I shall not vote to subject the State to any further taxation at this time. If the powder has been removed, there is no danger, and it would be unnecessary expense, to purchase a site for a new arsenal, and erect a large and costly building.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, I do not know that the resolution contemplated the erection of a costly building. I do not care where it is located, but I want it removed from here. If the powder has been removed, it has been done within a few days. I have been informed this day, on good authority, that there is combustible material enough now to blow this building to atoms. It has been there for years, and we have borne with it. All I ask is that a joint committee may examine this matter, and make a report.

Mr. DAVIS. This resolution, as I understand it, simply makes provision for a new arsenal.

Mr. LOWRY. Strike out any objectionable part, if you like.

The resolution was amended by striking out the words "select a new location."

The resolution, as amended, was adopted.

BILLS PASSED.

On motion of Mr. BROWN (Mercer), the Committee on Roads and Bridges was discharged from the further consideration of bill entitled An act to authorize the burgess and town council of the borough of Columbus to levy and collect an additional tax.

And the rules having been dispensed with, the bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. SCHALL, the Committee on Corporations was discharged from the further consideration of bill entitled an act in relation to the sale of certain real estate owned by the Odd Fellows' Hall association of Allentown, county of Lehigh.

And the rules having been dispensed with, the bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. WHITE, the Committee on Corporations was discharged from the further consideration of bill entitled a supplement to an act to incorporate the Brady's Bend iron company, approved the ninth day of April, 1861, authorizing the conveyance of real estate in the several counties of the Commonwealth, and the recording of the resolutions of board of directors of said company.

And the rules having been dispensed with, the bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. WHITE, the Committee on Corporations was discharged from the further consideration of bill entitled An act to incorporate the Conemaugh and Allegheny transportation company, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of the same.

Mr. DONOVAN. Mr. Speaker, I have no objection to this bill, but in future I am going to object to bills of this kind being read in place and the committee discharged immediately. All the pernicious legislation in this body has been done in this way. There is no necessity, at this early stage of the session, to discharge a committee from the consideration of a bill. We ought to have the consideration of the committee on the bill, as a guarantee that it is correct. I do not suppose anybody in this chamber knows anything about this bill. I presume it is all right, but we have had trouble with bills passed in this way, without being examined. I trust bills will be examined, and passed if they are correct.

The rules being dispensed with, the bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Mr. FISHER moved that the Committee on Election Districts be discharged from the further consideration of bill entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act to incorporate the city of Lancaster, approved March 20th, 1818, changing the time of election of municipal and ward officers, and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the same.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make a short statement in regard to this bill. Although my friend from Philadelphia [Mr. DONOVAN] has just put a veto on matters of this kind, I desire to ask that the committee be discharged for the following reasons: If that bill is passed at all, sir, there is a necessity for passing it immediately; it relates to the election in the city of Lancaster, which takes place on the first Tuesday of February, and it is necessary, if passed at all, that it should become a law before the election.

THE SPEAKER. Have the courts not power in this matter

Mr. FISHER. No, sir; they have not. The bill was read.
 Mr. DONOVAN. Mr. Speaker, before the rules are suspended, I would like to ask the Senator from Lancaster how long a time the mayor is elected for now?
 Mr. FISHER. One year, sir.
 The rules having been dispersed with, the bill was read a second and third time, and
 Passed finally.
 On motion of Mr. SCHALL, the Senate then adjourned until to-morrow morning, at 11 o'clock.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MONDAY EVENING, January 21, 1867.
 The House met at 7 1/2 o'clock, P. M.
 Prayer was offered by the Rev. JACOB KENNEDY, member from Wyoming.
 The SPEAKER announced a quorum of members present.
 The Journal of Friday was partly read, when,
 On motion of Mr. QUIGLEY, the further reading of the same was dispensed with.
 The SPEAKER. The Chair would state that on Friday last the gentleman from Wyoming [Mr. KENNEDY] read in place and presented to the Chair an act for the better protection of ministers in solemnizing marriages, which, at the request of that gentleman, and without reflection, was referred to the Committee to Compare Bills. The Chair is clearly of the opinion that the reference of the bill in question to that committee was improper, as the bill involves questions of a general legal character, which the Committee to Compare Bills was not appointed to pass upon. The Chair will, therefore, withdraw the bill from that committee and refer it to the proper committee—the Committee on the General Judiciary. The Chair would further state that hereafter, in all cases of bills presented, he will refer them to the appropriate committee; and any gentleman desiring to have a bill referred to any other committee, will have to move the discharge of the committee from the consideration of the bill which has been referred by the Chair. The Chair deems this necessary in order that the Journal may be preserved properly, and no reflection made upon the Chair by reason of improper reference of bills.
 Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the orders of the evening, for the purpose of proceeding to the consideration of Senate bill No. 29, entitled "An act to change the venue in the case of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania vs. Henry Stevens and Jacob Harmon, from the court of quarter sessions of Adams county to the court of quarter sessions of Dauphin county."
 Mr. HETZEL. Mr. Speaker, I call for a division of the question.
 The SPEAKER. The question is on the first division of the motion of the gentleman from Beaver [Mr. QUAY], viz: to suspend the rules.

On the question,
 Will the House agree to the motion?
 The yeas and nays were required by Mr. QUIGLEY and Mr. STUMBAUGH, and were as follow, viz:
 YEAS—Messrs. Adair, Allen, Armstrong, Cameron, Chase, Davis, Day, Epp, Erving, Freshour, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Hoff man, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinsey, Lee, Leech, McCreary, McKee, Marks, McChesney, Mill, Pennycooper, Pillow, Quay, Roath, Seller, Sharples, Steacy, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Welser, Whann, Wilson, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—46.
 NAYS—Messrs. Boyd, Breen, Brennan,

Calvin, Chalfant, Craig, Deiss, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Hetzel, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Koon, McHenry, Maish, Markley, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads and Robinson—37.
 So the question was determined in the affirmative.
 During the call,
 Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, in voting aye upon this question am I to understand that I am voting for or against the motion of the gentleman from Beaver [Mr. QUAY]?
 Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, as I understand it, the gentleman from Adams [Mr. HETZEL] calls for a division of the question. If the question is sustained it results in the suspension of the rules for the night, and we will have no orders.

The SPEAKER. That is the understanding of the Chair. The determining of this question in the affirmative suspends the rules for the evening.
 Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I understand that this is a case in which, if the bill is not passed at once, it will be of no service to the parties. I therefore do not feel called in duty to vote against the suspension of the rules, as I have reserved the right to vote for the suspension whenever an emergency requires it. I consider this one of those cases, and shall vote "aye."
 The question recurring on the second division of the motion, viz:
 To proceed to the consideration of the bill named, it was Agreed to.
 The bill was read.

The question was, Will the House agree to the bill?
 Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker—I would ask for permission why that act is desired, and I hope the gentlemen of the other side will give a good reason. I want to vote understandingly on the matter.
 Mr. STUMBAUGH. Ma Speaker, I know but very little about this case except what has come to my knowledge through the Senator from my district. As I understand the case it is this: Last year an act of Assembly was passed by which persons known to be deserters from the army were not to be permitted to vote. At the election held last October these gentlemen charged, or rather held before the quarter sessions for trial, refused to receive one or two votes because the persons offering to vote were unable to say they were not deserters. They have been indicted in the quarter sessions of Adams county, as I understand it, and they believe they cannot have a fair trial there, and for that reason they have asked that the venue be changed. These are all the facts I know about the case.
 Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, now I would ask, is their mere request to have the venue changed, a sufficient reason to justify the members of this House in voting in favor of this charge? There is no suggestion that I have heard, going to show that they will not get a fair trial in that county. Without such suggestions on their part, or without proof going to show that they will not get a fair trial in—
 Mr. STUMBAUGH. If the gentleman will permit me, I desire to say that I have in my possession a paper that is sworn to by these and other gentlemen, putting themselves within all the statutes of the Commonwealth.
 Mr. JENKS. I would like to have it read.
 To the Honorable the House of Representatives and Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met:
 The petition of Henry Stevens and Jacob Harmon, citizens of the county of Adams, in the said Commonwealth, respectfully sheweth:
 That, at November sessions of the court of general quarter sessions of the peace in and for Adams county aforesaid, a bill of indictment was found and returned against them by the grand jury, charging that the said Henry Stevens, as judge, and Jacob Harmon, as inspector, at the last general election, held on the 9th day of October, A. D. 1866, for State and county officers, in the borough of Berwick, in said county, knowingly did reject the vote of one Ambrose Hair, a citizen thereof, legally qualified to vote at said election; that the said petitioners deny that they are guilty, as in said indictment charged; that they believe and are advised that they are entitled to have a trial before an impartial court and jury.

That one of the judges of the said court was a candidate for election at the said general election.
 That all of the said judges, and nearly all of the jury men drawn for the approaching January term of said court, are of one political organization, and that your petitioners do not believe that if compelled to go to trial in said court, they can have the fair and impartial trial to which they are, under the Constitution, entitled.
 Your petitioners, therefore, pray your honorable bodies to enact a law which will provide for a change of venue in the above criminal case, and for its removal to the court of common pleas of Dauphin county, for trial there. And they will ever pray, &c.
 (Signed) HENRY STEVENS,
 JACOB HARMON.

Adams County, &c.
 Before me, a justice of the peace in the aforesaid county, personally appeared Henry Stevens and Jacob Harmon, the above petitioners, and on their solemn oaths by me duly administered, do say that the facts set forth in the above petition are true; and that they verily believe that it is not possible for them to have an impartial trial under the said indictment in the said court of the said county of Adams, on account of the constitution and political character of the juries, and the prejudging of the question involved by the tribunal before whom they would thus be compelled to try.

HENRY STEVENS,
 JACOB HARMON.
 Sworn and subscribed before me the first day of January, 1867. JOHN M. WOLF, Justice of the Peace.
 Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I submit to any lawyer, or any gentleman in this House, whether that furnishes sufficient reasons to change the venue in the case. That petition simply sets forth, that persons of the opposite party will be called upon to try the petitioners, and, therefore, they cannot secure justice. It charges that persons who differ with them in political faith, would be so controlled by their prejudices, as to disregard the solemn obligations of an oath, and disregard the law to their injury—act against right and conscience. Now, sir, I would be willing myself, to be tried by the gentlemen on the opposite side in this House, and they may be considered as fairly representing the Republican sentiment in Pennsylvania. They have been elected because it was generally supposed they correctly represented that sentiment. I have not yet learned to let my political feelings so warp my judgment, so suppose for one moment, that men of an opposite party would, contrary to the solemn obligations of an oath, refuse to do me justice; and I trust that gentlemen of the other side will have equally generous views of the gentlemen on this side. The people have not gone so far yet, that they are incapable of doing justice between man and man because they happen to differ in political opinions. I think that petition contains a charge against the people of that county that ought not to be lightly" passed upon. This is the House ought not to act upon it without some other reasons than ex parte statements, though given under oath, of persons who are interested in this matter. We, on this side of the House, acting on the reasons that seem to underlie this question, we might declare that a fair trial could not be had in this county, because it happens to be of a political creed different from the county from whence these parties come. Now, are you prepared to say that? We are not prepared to make that charge against you. We are not prepared to say that the citizens of Dauphin county will violate their oaths in order to wreak their vengeance, if they have any such feelings, against men of an opposite party. We think that it is not fair to make that charge, and that it is not just to act upon such a charge, upon such testimony, against the citizens of any county. We cannot let these political considerations control us in this case. We have not gone so far as to excite the passions of the citizens of any county against their fellow. I protest against anything of this character. Let them go to the county and be tried there. The parties are there, the witnesses are there, and the administration of justice is much cheaper there to them and to all parties than here. Justice is brought to their own doors. If they are wronged, there are ample means to get their wrongs redressed through the proper tribunal.

I therefore oppose the change of venue upon any such grounds as those set forth in that petition.

Mr. HETZEL. Mr. Speaker, the court in Adams county is composed of two Democratic judges and one Republican, and I am informed that the judge and jury selected to try this case are Republican.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, those persons who are asking for the change of venue have themselves made oath to the effect that they cannot receive an impartial trial in that county, and I hope none of my friends on the Democratic side of the House would suppose for a moment that we are charging them with injustice or anything of the kind in voting for or against this bill. But the persons asking a change of venue have taken a solemn oath before high Heaven that they cannot get justice there, and I submit to the gentleman, or to any lawyer in the House, if that is not sufficient to entitle them to a change. We do not ask it upon political grounds. It is a matter between them and their God, and not between us here.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make a very few remarks, simply to put myself right upon this question. I am opposed to a change of venue upon trivial grounds, and always have been. I would not insist a change of venue in cases which might seem more important than this one. I may be called frequently to vote upon similar questions this winter, and for that reason I desire to say why I shall vote for this bill. I shall vote for it—not because I believe Democratic judges or Democratic juries are dishonest, by no means. I am perfectly willing to accept the position taken by the gentleman from Jefferson [Mr. JENKS], and upon all questions, when they have not formed an express opinion in advance. I would be willing to accept their decision, and I submit myself to their hands freely.

But the difficulty in this question is, that the ablest lawyers upon the Democratic side, in Pennsylvania, have, in advance, decided this question, and by means of circulars, addresses, and arguments spread all over the State of Pennsylvania, they have so impressed the minds of those who accept them as authority, that I believe there is not a Democrat in Pennsylvania who can give an unprejudiced opinion upon this question.

Why, they have proclaimed in every town in this State that this law is unconstitutional. They have advised and charged that this law should be disregarded, and they have said that every inspector of election, every officer of election, who obeyed the law of this Commonwealth would be a criminal. Now, how is it possible, having argued this question for a year, and having asserted, in all possible ways, that a law which this Legislature passed is an unconstitutional law, of no binding effect, and that the officers of this Commonwealth should observe that law would be guilty of a crime, that thus can they pass upon it impartially? I submit it to my friend from Jefferson [Mr. JENKS], how could they? They have prejudged the case, they have already settled it, and it is just as certain that an inspector of election who has executed the law of this Commonwealth, who is charged before a judge inspired by these sentiments and brought before him, will be convicted of a criminal offense, as the case is brought into court. Not because the judge is dishonest—not because he will violate his oath—but because he has prejudged the case. Therefore, as laymen, as conscientious men, we are bound to protect the men who have stood by this law. This Legislature enacted, a year ago, that a certain class of men had disfranchised themselves, and should not vote at the elections held in this Commonwealth, and certain officers throughout the State, believing that the Legislature of Pennsylvania had a right to enact laws upon this question, have taken the act of Assembly and acted upon it, and in Democratic districts and Democratic counties they are charged with being avaricious. Now, shall the Legislature of Pennsylvania stand by and see these officers, who have respected therein the law, be indicted and convicted as criminals without giving them a chance to be heard in a district where this law has not been prejudged against them? Every fair minded man ought to be willing that this question should be judged in a district where the question is not already decided.

These are the reasons, Mr. Speaker, why I shall vote in favor of this bill, and I will vote in favor of every bill changing the venue in cases of this kind.

Why, sir, Mr. Wallace, conceded to be a lawyer of ability, conceded to be a lawyer whom his party friends may look up to as authority, has put in the hands of every Democrat in that county an opinion, saying that this law is unconstitutional and ought to be disregarded. I submit, Mr. Speaker, that is not the way loyal lawyers ought to act. I submit that an act of the Assembly of Pennsylvania ought to be accepted by every officer in it as a law, and ought to be accepted by every lawyer in it as a law until proper authority had decided that it was not a law.

This act has never been before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. They have never passed upon it, and no individual authorized to pass upon this law underlying this question in Adams county has yet done so. It was the business of every inspector of election, of every justice of the peace, of every judge in Pennsylvania to accept that as the law of the land, and enforce it until it had been repealed or adjudicated as unconstitutional by competent authority. That I take to be the law of Pennsylvania, and no judge of election had any business to question the constitutionality of the law, and it was the business of every lawyer practicing in the courts of Pennsylvania to comply with the law.

I understand that the present judges in Pennsylvania have always refused to entertain any question of the constitutionality of a law. That has been always the practice where I have had any dealings. I remember years ago, before I had much experience in the practice of courts, of going into court to answer in relation to what I thought a very hard and severe law, and I said, "May it please the court, it seems to me that, although my client may have acted contrary to law, yet the law itself is so severe and unreasonable that this court ought not to commit him, and that the law is unconstitutional." He said to me, "Young man, that is not the business of this court. We accept every law passed by the Legislature of Pennsylvania unquestioned as constitutional, and will hear no argument upon that question." And that I understand to be the rule for all courts. It is only the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania that entertains questions as to the constitutionality of acts of the Assembly. This act having never been before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, every inspector of elections in the State was bound to take it as the law, and was bound to reject every vote offered by persons who were included in it. But the Democratic party, having determined that it is not a law, and advised those men to disregard it as law, have prejudged the question, and, therefore, people who had their claims for enforcing ought to have the privilege of trial where that question has not been prejudged.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I do not certainly desire to argue the legal bearing of this question, but if my memory serves me right, there has been a decision of the Supreme Court on this question. I think it was a case that came from Franklin county, if I recollect rightly, and I think—I am not positive about it—but I think one of the counsel was a former member of this House, Mr. M. Clure, and that the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania decided against the constitutionality of the question. There have also been two or three other cases that I recollect of—not by the Supreme Court, however. There was a case in Luzerne county decided by—

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, one word of correction. The case that came up in Franklin county was before this act was passed and signed by the Governor. It was argued before the act was approved by the Governor. This I know to be the fact, as I was one of the counsel in the case.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I think, if I recollect rightly, that the judges of the courts hold that a man is not a deserter until he has been tried and proved guilty. That is my recollection, and if I am wrong, I trust I will be corrected. Now, I recollect well when this bill was first introduced into this House in 1865. At that time, the predecessor of the gentleman from Franklin, Mr. M. Clure, than whom there is probably not an able lawyer in this House, and the predecessor of the gentleman from Warren, Mr. Bowers, who is known as one of the most able lawyers in Western Pennsylvania, and the predecessor of the gentleman from Potter, Mr. Olmsted, took the very same ground that I take tonight, that you could not disfranchise a man simply because you said he was a deserter. You had first to prove him a deserter before you could disfranchise him. He must first be tried by a proper tribunal, and found guilty, otherwise you had no right to consider him guilty. I take it for granted, that this is the law. I am aware that last winter, an act was passed under the whip and spur of party rule disfranchising certain persons, but I doubt there being a lawyer on the other side of the House who will say that the act is constitutional. Suppose I should go up to the polls and say my friend from Franklin [Mr. STUMBAUGH], whom I know to be a very loyal man, is a deserter. How is the inspector or judge of elections to know that he is a deserter? But because I charge him his vote must be refused. Is there any reason in a law of that kind? I hold that you must prove a man guilty of any crime before you can punish him for his guilt. My friend from Potter [Mr. MANN] is well enough informed to know that this law has been pronounced unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the State.

Mr. MANN. I would like to have the decision read. I have never seen it.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I know that such a case was before the Supreme Court of the State. I know that Colonel McClure was one of the counsel, and I know that the verdict of the Supreme Court was against the law. I know also that a case of that kind was brought up in Schuylkill county, and if I am not mistaken, it came before Judge Wright, and I know the same verdict was given there. I know of a case in Luzerne county before Judge Cunningham, and the same verdict was given there. These are the only cases I now recollect of, but I have no doubt that if you go before Republican judges in Republican counties, that the same verdict would be given.

I understand this petition for a change of venue is put upon political grounds. If I understand the case aright the trial will take place on Wednesday next. In some cases I will vote for a change of venue, in cases where the public feeling rises so high that a man cannot have a fair trial, as in a case of murder, or something of that kind; but in this case I will not vote for a change, for I believe these men can have a fair trial in Adams county; and, if they have not committed a crime, I trust and believe they will not be convicted.

Mr. McCREARY. Mr. Speaker, I do not propose to enter into the discussion of this matter, but merely to make a statement which will probably have some bearing upon the question. Now, I am informed by the Senator from that district [Mr. M. CORATH], an able lawyer, and than whom there is no more upright and straightforward man in this House or in the other, that there are no more Republicans upon the jury in Adams county than can be challenged by the Commonwealth. So you see they have a right to strike every man off who does not agree with them in political sentiments. If there was one Republican man left there would be some chance, but they have a right to strike off every man. Now, I say injustice must be done wherever such is the case. I am also informed that one of the associate judges, who is a Democrat, was elected at this same election, and he must necessarily be prejudiced against those persons who voted against him at that time. It seems to me that we should do in this case, as in criminal cases, wherever there is a doubt, let the person accused have the benefit of the doubt. These gentlemen who are to be tried, not only as he is in doubt about obtaining justice in Adams county, but they state under oath, that they absolutely believe they will not. It seems to me that there is no necessity for any hesitation on the part of this House as to how it should act in this case. If these gentlemen were on trial for murder, and a similar sentiment as to their guilt prevailed in that county as in this case, I apprehend that the gentlemen on the other side of the House would vote without hesitation to give them what they ask. If this case is to be tried, for receiving the votes of deserters, I am, of course, perfectly willing that the venue should be changed to some other county, if desired; and it seems to me we should make no distinction between this and any other case. If a man is to be tried for murder, and there is a doubt in reference to his having a just trial without a change of venue, all would be willing to give him the benefit of that doubt. Here is a criminal case, and the parties accused have sworn that they cannot get justice done there. Is the gentleman on the opposite side of the House so determined that these men must be convicted, that he is unwilling to give them a trial by the same persons that he himself would be willing to be tried by, as he has stated, gentlemen from the opposite party? Why is this?

Mr. JENKES. Mr. Speaker, I do not propose to enter into an argument concerning the nature of the law that has been reviewed by my friend on the left. I may, in passing, make this remark: that I have not yet so read the law as to arrive at the conclusion that the courts below have not the power to pronounce an act unconstitutional. If the gentleman will take the trouble to examine the cases which relate to that matter, he will find the rule to be about this: that they require a strong case; but where they find a strong case they do not hesitate to pronounce an act of the Assembly unconstitutional. Where there is a doubt they throw the doubt in favor of the constitutionality of the law. That is substantially the rule.

This question before the House turns on the question of principle, which, if it be true and carried out in its logical consequences, must disorganize the entire social fabric. For that reason I enter my protest against it. The proposition, stripped of its verbiage, means just this and no more: that men holding Democratic opinions cannot try Republicans and do them justice, and Democrats, acting on the same grounds, would say that men holding Republican opinions, who are to try Democrats, cannot and will not do them justice. I contend that a principle of that kind established and acted upon will disorganize the social fabric.

Establish that principle, sir, and you have done more to destroy the peace of the country and introduce anarchy than anything yet conceived of. It is because the principle is false, and because these men have not shown sufficient reason why the venue should be changed, that I oppose the passage of this bill. I ask my Republican friends to pause in this matter. Do not let us make this a party matter.

Judge Campbell, than whom no more honest and capable judge exists in the State, at the last court, Republican as he is, in full charge to the grand jury, decided (if I did not greatly misunderstand him) the act of Assembly referred to unconstitutional. It is true that Democrats generally have agreed in pronouncing it unconstitutional, but they did not go further to carry out their political opinions. They have always taught, and teach now, that citizens must obey the law in all that it requires of them. They rejected that law because, as they believed, it was not the law of the land. The gentleman has been pleased to talk about "loyalty." I am in the hearing of that word "loyalty" unless we have some definite meaning attached to it. Does the word "loyal" mean adherence to party? or does the word "loyal" mean a determined adherence and obedience to all the obligations required by the law of the land? That, sir, is my idea of loyalty—submission to all those who have lawful authority, to discharge all the obligations that the law requires. When an act is tried by the supreme law, and is found to conflict therewith, our obligations compel us to pronounce that minor law unconstitutional.

Sir, I understand loyalty to mean love of country, love of its institutions—that love which causes a man to obey the law in all that that law commands and requires. To return to the idea that the gentleman suggested. The whole argument, sir, turns upon that—the whole argument goes to destroy the foundations of society—to assume that men of different parties will violate their oaths, and refuse to do justice to each other. ^{Which principle} principle, and you make ^{mean another} another—and distrust is the foundation of those wrongs which so much afflict humanity, the ^{benefit} benefit, fully settled, that men will not do right to each other. Each man goes prepared to meet his neighbor as an enemy; each arms himself, and during the continuance of that feeling, the whole community is in an uproar. I protest against undermining the foundations of society. I stand here as the advocate of that which is right. I want men to say that they have confidence in one another.

Let us have no more of these appeals which serve but to excite communities against each other. I do not want to teach a Democrat that his Republican friend will not do him justice. We may not agree in politics; but it does not follow that I will violate the law. I do not want my Republican friends to teach their party that they cannot trust those of opposite views. Such teachings bring misery, they bring distrust, they bring confusion, and in the end they bring ruin. For that reason I oppose this effort to change the venue. I am willing to do these defendants justice; I maintain they will receive justice. No man knows better than my learned friend who addressed this House a few moments ago, that an honest judge always holds himself bound to change his opinions—feels at liberty to form new views upon argument of the case. The gentleman so holds himself at liberty; I hold myself at liberty so to do; the legal gentlemen on my right hold themselves at liberty to do so. When we hear a case argued we always hold ourselves open to conviction and feel bound to change our opinion when it is found to be wrong.

There is nothing here to justify a change of venue. I oppose it because it is founded upon a principle which, if carried out, must strike, and does strike at the foundations of the social fabric.

The question was,
Will the House suspend the rules and read the bill a third time?

On the question.
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. QUIGLEY and Mr. GREGORY, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adair, Allen, Armstrong, Cameron, Chase, Davis, Day, Esny, Ewing, Frechorn, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Le, Leech, M'Creary, M'Keen, Mann, Marks, Meclhing, Meily, Pynnpacker, Pillow, Quay, Roath, Seiler, Sharples, Stacy, Stunbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wilson, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—17.
NAYS—Messrs. Boyd, Brech, Brennan, Calix, Chalfant, Craig, Deise, Gregory, Harmer, Headman, Heltzel, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Koon, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Markley, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Satterthwait, and Westbrock—26.

So the question was determined in the negative.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE ON LEGISLATIVE RECORD.

Mr. HOFFMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am directed by the committee on the Legislative Record to make the following report.

The report was read as follows:
Mr. HOFFMAN, from the joint committee appointed to contract for the publication of the Daily Record, made report that they have contracted with George Berger for the publication of six thousand copies of the same, four thousand copies for the use of the House, and two thousand copies for the use of the Senate.

On the question, Will the House adopt the report?

It was agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence bill numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

Bill No. 75, an act to authorize the burgess and town council of the borough of Columbus to levy and collect an additional tax.

SPEAKER'S TABLE.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the annual report of the Frankford and Bristol turnpike road.

Laid on the table.

Also, the thirty-fourth annual report of the managers of the Pennsylvania Institution for the instruction of the blind.

Laid on the table.

Members desiring extra copies of the Record, will please leave their names and the number of copies wanted at the publication office. GEO. BERGNER.

Mr. HUNT, five petitions from citizens of Forest county, favoring the repeal of Senate bill No. 169, and supplement thereto, passed session of 1866.

Referred to the Committee on Counties and Townships.

Also, a petition from citizens of Philadelphia, property holders in said county, of like import.

Referred to the Committee on Counties and Townships.

Mr. BOYD, a petition from one hundred and ninety-four citizens of York county, praying for the passage of an act to secure the construction of a bridge across the Susquehanna river at Columbia.

The petition was read as follows:

To the Honorable the Senate and House of Representatives, &c.:

The petition of the subscribers, citizens of York county, Pennsylvania, respectfully sheweth, that the Columbia bridge across the Susquehanna river was, on the 28th of June, 1863, destroyed by fire, by order of Major General Couch, commanding Division of the Susquehanna. Since that period the communities of Lancaster and York counties, and the public generally, have sustained great inconvenience for the want of a bridge, both for railroad and for other travel. Since the period of its destruction, the piers and corporate franchise of said bridge have been purchased by a new organization or company, and said company refuse to re-build the same, but hold the exclusive right for both bridge and ferry.

Therefore, your petitioners consider it only just and proper for the Legislature to pass a law fixing a reasonable time to commence and complete the rebuilding of the bridge, and a failure to do so by the present company shall forfeit their corporate franchises and the exclusive ferry right for the same; and that said corporate franchises may be conferred upon a new and other company.

And your petitioners will ever pray, &c.

Signed by J. M. Glasfelter, and one hundred and ninety-three others.

Referred to the Committee on Roads, Bridges and Ferries.

BILLS PASSED.

Mr. CHASE read in his place and presented to the Chair a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Bemis paper mill company.

On motion of Mr. CHASE,

The rules were suspended and the bill read a second and third time, and Passed finally.

Mr. WRIGHT read in his place and presented to the Chair a bill entitled An act changing the venue of certain cases from the county of Juniata to the county of Snyder.

On motion of Mr. WRIGHT, the rules were suspended, and

On the question,

Shall the bill pass?

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I would be glad if the gentleman would state what the object is of a change of venue in this case.

Mr. WRIGHT. Mr. Speaker, this matter, as I understand it, is simply this: A few days ago, a certain notorious character in Snyder county, by the name of Peter Eby, committed a larceny. Several persons went on his track and had him arrested in Juniata county. The friends of this man turned around and arrested, and had bound over to appear in Juniata county, the parties who arrested Eby. These parties are all citizens of Snyder county, not one living in Juniata county, and it is nothing more than justice to them that they should be tried in their own county.

The question recurring,

Shall the bill pass?

It was agreed to, and

The bill

Passed finally.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

WHEREAS, It is believed that there is deposited an amount of powder and fixed ammunition in the arsenal near the capitol, sufficient to endanger all the public buildings located on the capitol grounds, as well as the lives of sitting members;

And whereas, The late Governor recommended, in his last message, the erection of a new arsenal at some proper place; therefore,

Resolved, That a committee, consisting of three members of the House, be appointed to act in conjunction with a similar committee on the part of the Senate (if the Senate shall appoint such committee), to examine into the condition of the present arsenal, the amount of powder and fixed ammunition deposited therein, to examine the localities suitable for the erection of a new arsenal, and to report by bill or otherwise.

The resolution was read a second time and Agreed to.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I read in my place and present to the Chair a bill entitled An act to exempt Calvary Monumental church, of Philadelphia, from taxation.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, the church that it is proposed to exempt from taxation by that bill is in my district, and is a very small one. It was erected to the memory of Bishop White, and was built by voluntary contributions alone. I therefore ask for a suspension of the rules that the bill may pass at once.

Mr. FREEBORN. Mr. Speaker, this House has already appointed a committee to examine into the matter of exempt property in the State. I understand that there are now over forty millions of dollars of property exempt in the city of Philadelphia. I think this bill should be investigated by this committee before being passed.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, the passage of this bill will not interfere with the business of this committee. This is a very little edifice—a mere shell. I do not suppose it occupies a front of more than sixteen or seventeen feet, and a depth of thirty or forty feet, and the taxes on it would not amount, under any circumstances, to more than one hundred or one hundred and twenty dollars. This is a bill similar to those that have passed this House year after year and time after time.

Mr. FREEBORN. Mr. Speaker, I understand that some of the members of this committee referred to, are in favor of reporting a bill taxing all churches because they receive incomes. Some of these churches have stored away in the cellars flour and meal, and I even know of one where they have ale in the basement. I understand that the committee will recommend that this property be taxed, and I think this bill should be examined by that committee before being passed.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, when that committee comes to recommend the taxing of churches that are receiving a revenue, I will shake hands with my colleague in advocating the measure. But this is a free church. It was built and is supported entirely by voluntary contributions. They do not even charge any rent for their pews, and are prohibited from so doing for all time to come. I know that the passage of this bill will not interfere at all with the duties of that committee.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, it is said by my colleague that this church is a very small, little shell of a thing, and this is done, of course, to cover an impression that it is worthless. I wish to say that there is not an edifice in Philadelphia owning the same amount of ground on which there has been so much money spent as on this worthless little shell. It was a temple built and dedicated to Bishop White, and it was intended to be a monument that should be a credit to the name of this great and eminent divine. It is one of the most elaborately and, I presume, most costly buildings of its size in the city of Philadelphia. Not only that, but the congregation worshipping there are as abundantly able to pay taxes as any congregation that worships in the city of Philadelphia. I simply make this statement to show that this little crust of a shell is not the worthless thing that the gentleman would have us believe, and the parties worshipping there would take it as a sort of negative compliment to thus have their splendid little edifice represented.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, my colleague knows no more about this edifice than I do. When I spoke of that church in the way I did it was in comparison with some others we have. The taxes on it, I know, amount to but eighty dollars per annum, while the taxes on some churches, were they taxed, would amount to hundreds, ay, thousands of dollars. But this is a church that derives no revenue, and was built and was supported by voluntary contributions.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask, for information, how it comes that this church is taxed at all. By the act of 1838 all churches are exempt from county and State taxes on real estate, and by an act passed last winter all real estate was exempt.

Mr. QUIGLEY. I do not know how it is, but this church is not exempt.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I move to refer the subject to the select committee created for that purpose.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I think that motion had better be amended by saying that it be referred to a committee of conference of the members from Philadelphia.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, if this bill is to be referred at all, I hope it will be referred to the proper committee. I think, sir, this is a very small business, and I ask that the first section may be read for the information of the House.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the first section.

The first section was read.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my amendment.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, my motion was to refer to the select committee already formed to inquire into such matters.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] to refer the bill to the select committee.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order. It is this: This committee was appointed to investigate what property is now exempt by law, and I make the point of order that this is not the appropriate committee to which the bill should be referred.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my motion.

The question was,

Will the House proceed to the consideration of the bill?

Mr. HEADMAN. Mr. Speaker, I hope this bill will pass.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I ask whether such a bill as this can pass, and I make this point of order. There is already existing a law upon the statute books of this State exempting all church property from taxation of all kinds, and the point is whether this bill can pass, whether we can put another similar law upon the statutes.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, if I understand the position aright, in order to enable the gentleman to get the bill before any appropriate committee, the House must refuse to proceed to consider it at the present time.

The SPEAKER. If the House refuses to proceed to the consideration of the bill now it will go to a regular committee.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I am not in any particular hurry about the bill. There is really nothing objectionable in the bill that I can see. I do not worship in the church, but this is a bill precisely similar to bills that we have passed here from day to day and we have from year to year. I did think, as we have no orders to-night, and, I believe, this is only the first or second time, during an experience of six years, that I have asked the passage of a bill under a suspension of the rules, that my request would be granted. I think this bill is all right and proper, and while other churches are exempt this one is not. It derives no revenue; it is supported by voluntary contributions, and it cannot rest its powers under its charter. I hope the bill will pass.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I have no doubt that the bill may be all right and proper. But the more question is whether it is right and proper for this House to pass it. It is only making ourselves appear ridiculous to put upon the statute books laws which can have no effect. I am astonished that the gentleman should get up this bill before taking the trouble to give us some facts in reference to the matter. With all the information we have, and with the law standing as it does upon the statute books, I say it would appear ridiculous in this House to pass any such bills at this time. I do not mean to reflect upon the gentleman; I only speak in this way to place the House upon its guard.

The act of 1839, section seventy-three, reads:

"All churches, meeting-houses, or other regular places of stated religious worship, with the grounds thereto annexed, for the occupancy and better enjoyment of the same; all burial grounds belonging to any religious congregation; all universities, colleges, academies, and school-houses belonging to any county, borough or school district, or incorporated, erected, endowed or established by virtue of any law of this Commonwealth, with the ground thereto annexed; all court-houses and jails, be and the same are hereby exempted from all and every county, road, city, borough, poor and school tax, and all taxes heretofore assessed on any such property shall not hereafter be collected, but the respective officers charged with the collection thereof, shall and are hereby exonerated from the collection and paying over of the same."

Now, sir, that act leaves nothing in reference to this church that can be reached for taxation save the spot of ground upon which it stands and the building itself, which constitutes real estate, and as we passed a law last winter exempting all real estate from State taxes, it strikes me that the whole case is met, and that the gentleman who got up the bill had overlooked that fact. Therefore, for the information of this House, and in order that we may act intelligently, it would be better for the gentleman to postpone the bill, and, in the meantime, he can ascertain the facts, and learn if there are, any reasons for this bill.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my motion to suspend the rules.

The bill was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That this House will hold a session on Wednesday afternoon next—January 23—to commence at three o'clock, for the special purpose of considering Senate resolution No. 2, entitled Joint resolution to ratify the fourteenth article of the Constitution of the United States, and that a session will be held every afternoon, except Friday, for the same special purpose, until the question is disposed of.

Mr. FREEBORN. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out Friday and Saturday.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, this resolution will not require us to hold a session on Saturday afternoon, because the rules provide for an adjournment from Friday until Monday.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by excepting Friday afternoon.

Mr. MANN. I accept that amendment. Mr. FREEBORN. I withdraw my amendment.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, the bill has not yet been reported from the Committee on Federal Relations, to which it has been referred.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I think the proper way will be, when it comes up on Wednesday afternoon, to move to substitute the Senate bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of the opinion that the adoption of the resolution discharges the Committee on Federal Relations from further consideration of the bill.

The question was,
Will the House agree to the resolution? and

It was agreed to.

The SPEAKER proceeded to clear the table.

Senate bill No. 75, an act to authorize the burgess and town council of the borough of Columbus to levy and collect an additional tax.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended, and that the House proceed to the consideration of that bill.

The motion was

Agreed to.

On motion of Mr. ALLEN, the rules were suspended, the bill read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the sum of five thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, be and the same is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to fit up and re-furnish the Executive Mansion, under the direction of the Governor, and the bills thereto be settled in the usual manner by the Auditor General.

The resolution was read a second time.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I understand that the Governor has moved into the mansion to-day, and that it is much in need of some additional furniture. The real ordinary utensils of life are much out of order and dilapidated, and, therefore, it is asked that the House proceed at once to the consideration of this matter, that funds may be had to re-furnish it to some extent.

The question was,

Will the House agree to the resolution? and it was agreed to.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That as a measure of economy, the Clerk be directed to forward, by express, such documents for the members of the House as they may prefer, instead of having them go through the mails.

The resolution was read a second time, and

Agreed to.

Mr. DEISE. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

WHEREAS, During the month of December, A. D. 1866, an act passed both Houses of Congress, granting to the African race the right of suffrage in the District of Columbia, at the same time excluding from that privilege all emigrants who have not resided five years in the country and became naturalized, and thus depriving them of that manhood suffrage so highly prized by our loyal Congress;

And whereas, We believe Caucasian emigrants, whose intellect, industry and wealth have contributed so much to the unparalleled progress of this country, are quite as capable of governing themselves, and as deserving of political privileges, as a people just emerged from a debasing slavery;

And whereas, By its legislation, Congress has sufficiently determined that the color of a man should not qualify or disturb his political status, and white men are not, for that reason, incompetent to discharge the duties of citizenship;

Resolved, That our Senators be instructed and our members in Congress from this State be requested to so amend the negro suffrage act above mentioned, as to put all white men who are citizens or who have declared their intention of becoming citizens and residents of the District of Columbia, upon an equal footing with the negroes, and to extend to them the same privileges enjoyed by the negroes.

The resolution was read a second time.
 Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the resolution be referred to the Committee on Federal Relations.

The motion was Agreed to.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Mr. ADAIR asked and obtained leave of absence for a few days from to-day for Mr. DEHAVEN.

Also, for GEORGE DEHAVEN, an officer of the House.

Mr. MARKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn.

The motion was Agreed to, and

The SPEAKER declared this House adjourned until to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

SENATE.

TUESDAY, January 22, 1867.

The Senate met and was called to order at 11 A. M., by the SPEAKER.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. Mr. Bailey, of Harrisburg.

On motion, the reading of the Journal of yesterday was dispensed with.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Mr. WORTHINGTON asked and obtained leave of absence for the Senator from Adams (Mr. M. CONANT) for a few days from to-day.

LEAVE TO RECORD VOTE.

Mr. RIDGWAY asked and obtained leave to have his vote recorded in the affirmative, and Messrs. GLATZ and SCHALL their votes in the negative, on the final passage of joint resolution entitled Joint resolution to ratify the amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

PETITIONS, REMONSTRANCES, &c.

Mr. CONNELL presented the memorial of David Paul Brown, Theodore Cuyler and one hundred members of the Philadelphia bar, praying that the salaries of the Supreme Judges of the State may be increased to eight thousand dollars.

Referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

Mr. WHITE, the petition of citizens of Saltburg, Indiana county, for the passage of a prohibitory liquor law for Pennsylvania.

Referred to the Committee on Vice and Immorality.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows, viz :
 No. 70, an act to incorporate the Bemus paper mill company.

Referred to the Committee on Corporations.

No. 71, an act changing the venue of certain cases from the county of Juniata to the county of Snyder.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

No. 73, joint resolution relative to the Executive Mansion.

Referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also returned bill from the Senate numbered and entitled as follows :

No. 75, an act to authorize the burgess and town council of the borough of Columbus to levy and collect additional tax.

With information that the House of Representatives has passed the same without amendment.

He also presented the following extract from the Journal of the House of Representatives, which was read as follows :

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
 January 21st, 1867.

WHEREAS, It is believed that there is deposited an amount of powder and fixed ammunition in the arsenal, near the capitol, sufficient to endanger all the public buildings located on the capitol grounds, as well as the lives of sitting members ;

And whereas, The late Governor recommended in his last message the erection of a new arsenal at some proper place ; therefore,

Resolved, That a committee, consisting of three members of the House, be appointed, to act in conjunction with a similar committee on the part of the Senate (if the Senate shall appoint such a committee), to examine into the condition of the present arsenal, the amount of powder and fixed ammunition deposited there, to examine the localities suitable for the erection of a new arsenal, and to report by bill or otherwise.

On motion, the above resolution was read a second time and

Agreed to.

Ordered, That Messrs. LOWRY, FISHER and JACKSON be the committee on the part of the Senate, and that the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

He being again introduced returned bill from the Senate,

No. 29, an act to change the venue in the case of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania vs. Henry Stevens and Jacob Harmon from the court of general quarter sessions of the peace of Adams county to the court of general quarter sessions of the peace of Dauphin county.

With information that the House of Representatives has passed the same without amendment.

He also returned bill from the Senate, No. 49, a supplement to an act entitled An act to incorporate the Valley coal company, approved the 10th day of March, 1865.

With information that the House of Representatives has passed the same without amendment.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES.

Mr. RIDGWAY, from the Committee on Corporations, reported, as committed, a bill entitled A further supplement to an act incorporating the West Branch boom company, approved the 29th day of March, A. D. 1849.

Also (same), as committed, a bill entitled An act to change the place of business of the Cameron petroleum company of Pennsylvania.

Mr. HAINES (same), a bill entitled An act to consolidate the Union coal company and the Howard coal and iron company.

Mr. GLATZ (same), a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Hiron knitting machine company, of Indiana.

Mr. JAMES (same), as committed, bill entitled An act to incorporate the Hand-in-Hand Mutual life insurance company.

BILLS IN PLACE.

Mr. SHOEMAKER read in place and presented to the Chair a bill entitled An act to consolidate the Stenben coal company and the Scranton coal company.

Referred to the Committee on Corporations.

Mr. M'CANDESS, a bill entitled An act to enable the Commercial wharf and railroad company to issue bonds and to secure the payment of same by mortgages, to extend the time for the construction of railroad connections and to increase the number of directors.

Referred to the Committee on Railroads.

Mr. CONNELL, a bill entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act to incorporate the Kensington and Oxford turnpike and company, giving each stockholder one vote for every share of stock and regulating toll on said road.

Referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

Mr. BURNETT, a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Sullivan and Pocono Summit plank road and turnpike company.

Referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

Mr. SCHALL, a bill entitled A supplement to an act to incorporate the Lehigh County Mutual horse insurance company, approved April 28th, A. D. 1857.

Referred to the Committee on Corporations.

BILLS CONSIDERED AND PASSED.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the Committee on Finance was discharged from the further consideration of bill entitled Joint resolution relative to the Executive Mansion.

And the rules being dispensed with, the resolution was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to incorporate the Hand-in-Hand Mutual life insurance company.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. COWLES, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to validate and confirm a certain mortgage or deed of trust, executed under the corporate seal of the Phillipsburg coal, oil and iron company, and to authorize the transfer of the railroad of the said company to any other railroad company owning a railroad connecting therewith.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. WHITE, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to incorporate the Hollen knitting machine company, of Indiana.

The bill was read a second time.

Mr. LANDON. Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to interfere with the Senator's legislation, but I wish to inquire why it is necessary that a knitting machine company should own so much land?

Mr. WHITE. It may be necessary for this company to raise its own wool, and they will require land on which to raise sheep.

The bill was read a third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. DONOVAN, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to incorporate the Sisters of Mercy in the city of Philadelphia.

The bill was read.

The SPEAKER said he thought the courts had power to incorporate such companies; if so, it would be useless to pass it.

The bill was laid over for a third reading.

On motion of Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence), the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act supplementary to an act entitled An act to provide for the erection of a poor house in the county of Lawrence.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. FISHER, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to authorize the appointment of a photographic reporter for the courts of Lancaster county.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. SCHALL, the Committee on Corporations was discharged from the further consideration of bill entitled A supplement to an act to incorporate the Lehigh County Mutual horse insurance company, approved April 28, 1867.

And the rules having been dispensed with, the bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. JAMES, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to incorporate the Quintero mining company.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to authorize the payment of Theodore F. Scheffer for printing deserters' list.

The bill was read a second time.

Mr. CONNELL. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say, in explanation of this bill, that, by the fifth section of the act of last year, relative to deserters, it was made the duty of the Adjutant General to procure these lists, and furnish them to the quarter sessions of the Commonwealth. In relation to this matter I ask that the following paper be read:

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,

HARRISBURG, January 8, 1867.

I certify that the foregoing bill is correct, and having been submitted to the State Printer for examination, is pronounced by him as charged at fair rates, and is just in amount.

That in order to secure the completion of the printing within the time required by the act of Assembly, it was necessary to employ force additional to that of the State Printer.

A. L. RUSSELL,

Adjutant General of Pennsylvania.

The rules having been dispensed with, the bill was read a third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. LOWRY, the Committee on Corporations was discharged from the further consideration of bill entitled An act to incorporate the Benrus paper mill company.

And the rules having been dispensed with, the bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. LOWRY, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to incorporate the Germania insurance company of Erie.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. RANDALL, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act appropriating part of the moneys arising from fines and forfeitures in the county of Schuylkill, for a law library for the use of the courts, etc.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. M CANDLESS, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to incorporate the Catholic Philopatrian institute of Philadelphia.

The bill was read a second time.

The SPEAKER said he thought the courts had power, and that bills of this kind should be ruled out; but, as the Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. M CANDLESS] thought the courts had not power, he would not object.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, the Judiciary Local have adopted a rule in reference to all these bills.

The SPEAKER. What is that rule?

Mr. WHITE. We report with a negative recommendation all bills on which the courts have jurisdiction. Certainly we have no jurisdiction in the matter if the courts have. I do not want to raise a point of order; but, if we let this bill pass, others of like character will go through.

The SPEAKER. The Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. M CANDLESS] thinks the courts have not power, or the Chair would rule it out.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, the Judiciary General will be placed in an awkward predicament if most of these bills come from another committee.

The SPEAKER said a bill had been sent to the General Judiciary for this very purpose—to test the question whether the courts had power in such cases.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I understand that one of your predecessors, last winter, took the ground that when the title of a bill indicated that the courts had jurisdiction, he would not refer it to a committee. Perhaps that is the shortest way.

The bill was read a third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. M CANDLESS, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act for the better security of the city of Philadelphia from damages incident to the refining or improper or negligent storage of petroleum, benzine or napha, approved March 16, 1866, construing the same.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. RIDGWAY, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the further consideration of bill entitled An act to incorporate the Brokers' Beneficial association of Philadelphia.

The bill was read a second time, agreed to, and laid over for a third reading.

WEST BRANCH BOOM COMPANY.

Mr. COWLES moved that the rules be dispensed with, and the Senate proceed to the consideration of bill entitled A further supplement to an act incorporating the West Branch boom company, approved the 29th day of March, A. D. 1849.

The bill was read,

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I would suggest to my friend, the Senator from Keokuk [Mr. COWLES], that my constituents are interested very much in the principle of this bill, as are also the constituents of the Senator from Warren [Mr. WALLACE], who is not in his seat. This is a matter which increases the obstructions in the Susquehanna river. My constituents living above, are of course against this increase of the obstructions. I do not know how my constituents will feel towards this bill, and I hope he will not press the passage of it at this time.

Mr. COWLES. Mr. Speaker, a similar bill was passed here last winter, after careful consideration, but it failed to get through the other House. This company ask for no additional privileges, except to increase their tolls; it affects the people there only. In 1849, an act was passed incorporating this company, and they have gone to work under that law, and constructed piers or booms in the river just below the town of Lock Haven. An immense amount of lumber is arriving there annually. The boom there will not sustain the mills at all, and hence the mill owners have to pay out of their own pockets to keep up this boom; they have to pass through all lumber and timber without delay. All rafts or timber has to pass through when it arrives. To show how stringent this law is, I will read from the act of 1849:

Sec. 7. That should any person or persons have lumber upon said river, which they are desirous of driving below the limits of said boom, and do not wish the same to be rafted at said booms, they shall give notice in writing to said corporation of their intentions, on or before the first day of March, in each year, describing the kind of lumber and its quantity as near as may be, together with the marks thereon, and the corporation, upon the receipts of such notice, shall be compelled to take up and turn all such lumber through their booms as fast as the owners of such lumber, wishing to go below the said booms, may desire, and no faster, and be entitled to receive as a toll or boorage five cents for each and every board-log boomed through said booms, and a reasonable compensation for all other kinds of lumber, in proportion to board logs, and to be paid on the delivery of said logs through said booms as aforesaid; the corporation to retain a lien on all such lumber until the toll or boorage shall have been paid: Provided, At all times, that no lumber of any description shall be stopped, except upon the written request of the owner or owners of the same, and no toll or expense shall accrue to any lumber designed to run or to be driven to any point below Lock Haven. A free and unobstructed passage shall at all times be kept open, so that the navigation of the river shall be as free as it now is.

Here, by the very act of incorporation of this company, they are compelled to have booms so constructed that no obstruction shall ensue. No other franchise is asked for in the supplement to their charter. By the present tells they are authorized to charge, they cannot keep up their booms there. They think it fair and just that they should be allowed a toll large enough to keep up the booms.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, at the last session we had a discussion and passed a bill in reference to the Williamsport boom. That bill the Executive held over during the recess, and appointed two commissioners—very intelligent engineers—who have gone into the whole question. The correspondence and reports of those men were presented here last week.

I voted in favor of the Williamsport bill; I was there last summer and examined the ground; the Lock Haven boom I have never seen. I am myself disposed to think that both have become necessities to the trade of the State; but there are always great controversies, especially upon the amount of charges that ought to be imposed by those companies. This matter has been taken up by two intelligent men, and the same principle is applicable to both companies, as to the rate charged. I should be glad to have this bill referred to the committee to which it properly belongs; and these charges should be what would be fair to both parties. When we have the materials to act intelligently on this subject, I think that we ought to refer it to a committee, and whatever is fair to both parties should be done. I make that motion, not through any unfriendliness to either, but to have justice done to both.

Mr. COWLES. Mr. Speaker, I trust, if the Senator has no unfriendly feelings against this boom, he will withdraw his motion. I cannot understand why the town of Lock Haven, when it comes here to ask a little favor, should be attacked. There is nothing in this matter in connection with the Williamsport matter. In this case they are asking for no additional obstructions to the river. We simply authorize them to put some dams here for the benefit of the mills at that point, and then charge an equal and just amount of toll. At present they have to subscribe to pay the expense of keeping their booms up. Those booms ought to be self-paying, and pay something also to the investment. I cannot account for the hostility that is manifested against this measure in this hall.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, the remarks of the Senator from McKean [Mr. COWLES] in regard to any unfriendliness towards that section, do not apply to myself. My memory is pretty good as to what I heard on this floor a year ago; and the Senator from McKean then dwelt at length upon the very point in the bill. The Senators from McKean and Indiana both voted in favor of the Williamsport bill, because of the amount of charges authorized by it. Now, I want to do equal justice to both these places. The Senator from McKean [Mr. COWLES], I think, will not say that that was not a prominent point in the discussion of last winter. I am willing to give both equal and exact justice. From a distance, we do not understand these boom questions. Those two gentlemen I spoke of have investigated the matter, and made a report, and we have the materials. I think it is departing from all the principles of legislation that the Senator from McKean should ask to have the committee discharged.

Mr. COWLES. The bill was not read in place to-day. It has been before the proper committee, and they have not reported it. Mr. BIGHAM. So far, then, I was wrong. I thought it had not been investigated. I withdraw my motion to refer to a committee.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I move to postpone the subject indefinitely. I will just say this: I have no disposition to go into the discussion of booms at this time. I desire, however, to be consistent upon this question, as well as upon all others. The Senators, particularly those who know my position upon boom questions, know the interests of my constituents upon this question, and, unlike my friend from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM], I am very unfriendly to booms, because the interests of my constituents are adverse to them; and I would, if I had the power, throw an earthquake into all the booms in the Susquehanna. The Senator from McKean knows my position on this subject, and that I represent the interests of my constituents. By this bill he seeks to increase the power and the privileges of the Lock Haven boom company; he seeks to extend their power by increasing the obstructions there; he seeks, further, to raise revenue for them by authorizing them to increase the tolls. That, of course, is adverse to the interests of my constituents who live above there. We discussed this question at length last winter, and, inasmuch as I opposed the Williamsport boom, I am disposed to oppose the Lock Haven company; hence I am opposed to passing this bill at this time, and I trust the motion to postpone the consideration of this bill will prevail. We are in the early part of the session, and no undue haste is required; hence I am in favor of the motion to postpone the consideration of this bill indefinitely.

Mr. COWLES. Mr. Speaker, I have a word to say upon this subject. Last winter, when this Williamsport bill was acted upon, I opposed some features of it. If they needed a large amount of boomage there, it was granted, but that must not be done at the expense of any other portion of the State. That is the theory I started on and argue. Previously to last year, the Williamsport company were authorized to collect on every thousand feet. I tried to show that that was sufficient. They also wanted the privilege of building a dam, which would be an obstruction to the navigation of the river. They wanted to stop all logs, etc., and make them pay. I resisted these features, because they would interfere with everybody. Such is not the case at Lock Haven; here is a large dam already constructed. In every one of the advantages of these facilities, a small town has grown up. All these logs that go to Williamsport, have to pass through that boom, and at the expense of the boom company itself. If they detain a log one hour they are liable to an action for trespass.

Read over the provisions of the act of 1849 and see how limited their power is. They are at present receiving a small amount of boomage; in order to keep these booms in repair, the owners of these mills subscribed out of their own pockets to reconstruct and charge. Now, sir, every one of the advantages of these facilities, a small town has grown up. All these logs that go to Williamsport, have to pass through that boom, and at the expense of the boom company itself. If they detain a log one hour they are liable to an action for trespass.

Mr. WHITE. Will the Senator allow me to interrupt him? The Senator from McKean [Mr. COWLES] has stated that the constituents of the Senator from Indiana are not in any way interested. Will the Senator allow me to ask him a question? I represent Indiana, Cambria and Jefferson; the people of these of the Susquehanna are in Indiana county; the people of that section are interested in the lumber trade; we bring rafts down and pass them through this Lock Haven boom, and are interested in the rates charged there. Is not that giving my constituents an interest in this bill?

Mr. COWLES. The provisions of this bill do not interfere with them at all. Here is the bill:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That from and after the passage of this act the said corporation shall have the right, and they are hereby authorized to charge and collect from the owner or owners thereof, toll or boomage upon all lumber which may have been rafted out of their said boom, to wit: seventy-five cents per thousand feet board measure for board logs, and a reasonable sum for warps and wedges, and for rafting; and boomage on square timber and other lumber, in proportion to boomage; and that the said corporation shall have the right, in addition to the remedy provided by the sixth section incorporating said company, to collect said toll or boomage, as debts of like amount are by law recoverable.

SEC. 2. That the said corporation shall have the right and they are hereby authorized, to expend the net income or so much thereof as they may deem necessary in the repair and improvement of their said boom.

There is nothing in the privilege which I ask to be passed to-day that interferes with this privilege in the original charter.

Mr. WHITE. Does it not seek to increase the rates of toll?

Mr. COWLES. It seeks to increase the rates of toll on all lumber to be manufactured at that point. There is no charge for lumber brought down from above. It is simply to charge tolls on lumber to be manufactured at that point.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, I dislike very much to interfere in the business; but a large number of my constituents are largely interested in the lumber business, and it strikes me that an addition of seventy-five cents per thousand feet is an enormous charge. Lumber is already beyond the reach of almost every person, and if you put this tax upon it, the consumer will have to pay it. Hence, my constituents and the people of Philadelphia also are interested, because it is one of the laws of trade that the consumer of the article ultimately pays the expense; and it strikes me that this is a enormous charge. Seventy-five cents for a thousand feet of lumber? Only think of it. It would make forty dollars additional expense on a raft of lumber. I shall be compelled to vote against it.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. Speaker, I understand the question before the Senate is on the indefinite postponement.

The SPEAKER. Yes, sir.

Mr. GRAHAM. We have very little business before us, and this question gave rise to a very prolonged discussion. The Senator from Indiana, who introduced the bill now, when we have time to discuss it thoroughly, I will vote to postpone it for the present, but to postpone indefinitely is certainly unfair.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, on the river above, there are two booms; those booms are twenty-eight miles apart; they have the right at Williamsport to charge one dollar and twenty-five cents on every thousand feet of lumber that they receive in their boom. We have given Williamsport, twenty-eight miles from Lock Haven, the right to charge one dollar and twenty-five cents a thousand, and now a weaker portion of his constituents come here, who live higher up, and ask us for the right to charge seventy-five cents. And yet we give to the larger town, without complaint here, one dollar and twenty-five cents, and because their little sister town asks for seventy-five cents, we huddle about it. My sympathies and my inclinations are with the Senator who has the bill to charge.

It is local in its character; it does not affect the interest of the Senator from Indiana; if his logs run down any further, he pays one dollar and twenty-five cents; if retained here, he pays seventy-five cents. Now, sir, I will reverse the case. If we gave, private last winter to charge seventy-five cents a thousand, and they come here now and ask the privilege of charging one dollar and twenty-five cents a thousand, then there would be force in their objection to it. But there is no force in their objections to the passage of this measure, and I shall vote against all propositions to delay it or to place it in the hands of a committee. I am in favor of a fair vote, and my vote shall be with the Senator who is asking us to pass this bill.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer). Mr. Speaker, I desire to vote intelligently upon this subject, and if I thought that this supplement would not change the character of the charter I would be prepared to vote with the Senator from M'Kean (Mr. Cowles). But I strike me, if I understand the force of the English language, that there is something in this amendment that will change the force of the first part of the charter of the company. I understand that this rate of boommage is to be charged on all lumber rafted out of the boom. I take it that will cover all the lumber coming down the river to where that boom is located. If it be so, that it affects only the lumber retained there, I will vote with the Senator. But I would call his attention particularly to that point.

By request, the bill was again read.
Mr. BROWN (Mercer). Now, Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the Senator from M'Kean a question. Suppose some of the constituents of the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE] should prepare a raft of logs in the county of Indiana, and come down to that boom; would it not be necessary for the raft to pass through this boom, and thus be liable to the charge of seventy-five cents, as indicated by the bill?

Mr. COWLES. Mr. Speaker, I do not think the bill is obnoxious to the charges made against it. I do not desire any such power for this boom company. All that is desired is simply that all logs that are run into this boom, for the use of these mills, shall be charged this amount of boommage.

The SPEAKER. Do logs coming down from above Lock Haven stop at this boommage?

Mr. COWLES. No, sir, unless they have authority to stop them. If there is any doubt in the minds of members of the Senate, if they wish to have the matter thoroughly examined, I have no objection. We simply ask an increase of boommage on the logs held there at the request of the owners of the logs. If it is desired to have it further considered and modified, so as to restrict it to that, we will let it lay over to some certain day. Last winter Mr. WALLACE himself proposed an amendment to the bill simply to this effect. I told him I thought the provisions of this proviso were just, but I would accept such modification.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I have no desire to be factious in this matter, but simply to be just to the interests of the present and future Senator from M'Kean [Mr. COWLES] can convince me that this bill is only local in its character, there may be no difficulty. But it may be necessary to have some amendments to effect the object he suggests. I withdraw the motion for indefinite postponement, and move that the further consideration of this bill be postponed until Wednesday of next week, and that in the meantime it be printed.

Mr. COWLES. Mr. Speaker, I shall ask that it be not postponed quite so long; make it Tuesday.

Mr. CONNELL desired that the bill should be postponed until the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE], who was absent, should return.

Mr. WHITE. Well, make it Tuesday or Wednesday.

Mr. COWLES. I would ask the Speaker if the bill will come up at that time on third reading?

The SPEAKER. Undoubtedly.

The motion of Mr. WHITE was agreed to, and the bill was ordered to be printed, and made the order of the day for Wednesday, the 30th inst.

The hour of 1 o'clock having arrived, the SPEAKER adjourned the Senate until tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

TUESDAY, January 22, 1867.

The House met at 11 o'clock, A. M. Prayer was offered by the Rev. JACOB KENNEDY, member from Wyoming.

The SPEAKER announced a quorum of members present.

The Journal of yesterday was partly read, when, on motion of Mr. STUMBAUGH, the further reading of the same was dispensed with.

PRIVATE CALENDAR.

The SPEAKER announced that the first order of business this morning would be the consideration of bills on the private calendar.

The following bills were read the first time and laid aside for a second reading:

No. 21, an act to authorize the Governor to appoint an additional notary public for the city of Philadelphia.

No. 54, an act in relation to the weighing of hay, coal and lime in the borough of Washington.

OBJECTED BILL.

The following bill was objected to by Mr. WILSON: An Allegheny, and will be laid over until the next private calendar:

No. 52, an act relating to soliciting passengers in Allegheny county.

The following bills were read a second and third times:

No. 21, an act to authorize the Governor to appoint an additional notary public for the city of Philadelphia.

Passed finally.

No. 30, a supplement to an act to incorporate the Montana gold and silver mining company, approved the 23d day of March, A. D. 1865.

Passed finally.

No. 33, an act authorizing the school directors of the borough of Oil City, in Venango county, to borrow money.

Passed finally.

No. 34, an act to repeal a part of an act, approved March 2, A. D. 1866, in reference to fees of officers and jurymen and witnesses in Warren county.

Passed finally.

No. 36, a supplement to an act fixing the term of the courts of common pleas,oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, quarter sessions of the peace and orphans' courts, in the county of Allegheny, and regulating proceedings therein, approved the 22d day of March, A. D. 1866.

Passed finally.

No. 37, a supplement to an act passed the 10th day of February, A. D. 1865, to increase the pay of county commissioners, county auditors, poor directors, jurors and witnesses, in the county of Mercer.

Passed finally.

No. 38, a supplement to an act passed the 13th day of April, A. D. 1859, relating to billiard saloons in the counties of Chester and Delaware, extending the same to the county of Bradford.

Passed finally.

No. 39, an act authorizing the commissioners of Erie county to incorporate Wm. F. Brockway, the collector of the township of Springfield, in said county, from the payment of certain taxes.

Passed finally.

Bill No. 40, an act authorizing the coroner of Montgomery county to appoint deputies.

Mr. SATTERTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be indefinitely postponed. The motion was

Agreed to.

Bill No. 41, an act providing for the punishment of persons residing in Northampton county, deserting their wives and children.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I see that neither of the gentlemen from Northampton are in their seats. It strikes me that the provisions of this act are covered by the general law. I do not see the object of passing it for that county. I would suggest that the bill go to a third reading. I do not want to place it in an unpleasant position. I merely desire time to obtain information from the gentlemen from Northampton with regard to this bill.

The bill was laid over on third reading.

Bill No. 42, an act relating to the prison of the county of Delaware.

Passed finally.

No. 43, an act to revive an act to empower the justices of the Supreme Court to supply defects in the titles to lands, occasioned by the loss of deeds or other writings respecting the same, or where they have been defaced or rendered illegible by time or accident, passed the 28th day of March, A. D. 1846, and its several supplements, and to extend the same to the county of Cameron.

Passed finally.

Bill No. 44, an act to regulate the fees of the county treasurer of Northumberland county.

Passed finally.

Bill No. 45, an act defining the duties of the inspectors of the Philadelphia county prison.

Passed finally.

Bill No. 46, an act to increase the fees of certain county officers and district attorneys in the county of Washington.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the title by striking out the words "to increase" and inserting the words "in relation to."

The motion was

Agreed to.

Mr. EWING. I now move that the bill be laid over on third reading.

The motion was

Agreed to.

No. 48, an act repealing the provisions of an act relative to the fees of district attorney in certain counties of this Commonwealth, so far as they relate to the county of Bradford.

Passed finally.

No. 49, an act supplementary to an act regulating the fees of the clerk of the quarter sessions of the peace, &c., for the city and county of Philadelphia, approved the 8th day of February, A. D. 1865.

Passed finally.

Senate bill No. 46, an act to increase the fees of certain county officers in Sullivan county, and to validate certain charges heretofore made.

Mr. WEBB. Mr. Speaker, I move this bill be laid over on third reading.

The motion was

Agreed to.

No. 51, p supplement to an act to change the mode of criminal proceedings in Erie and Union counties, extending the same to the county of Bradford,

Passed finally.

No. 53, an act extending to the city of Pittsburg the provisions of a further supplement to an act to incorporate the city of Philadelphia, relating to fire alarm and police telegraph, approved the 28th day of February, 1865.

Passed finally.

No. 54, an act in relation to the weighing of hay, coal and lime, in the borough of Washington.

Passed finally.

MESSAGES FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows:

Senate bill No. 72, a further supplement to an act to authorize Woodland street, in the Twenty-fourth ward of the city of Philadelphia, to be graded, curbed and paved, approved the 27th day of May, A. D. 1863, repealing the proviso to the first section of the supplement thereto, approved the 17th day of April, A. D. 1866.

Senate bill No. 76, an act to incorporate the Conemaugh and Allegheny transportation company.

Senate bill No. 77, a further supplement to an act entitled An act to incorporate the city of Lancaster, approved March 20th, 1818, changing the time of election of municipal and ward officers.

Senate bill No. 78, an act in relation to the sale of certain real estate, owned by the Odd Fellow Hall association, of Allentown, in the county of Lehigh.

Senate bill No. 79, a supplement to an act to incorporate the Brady's Bend iron company, approved the 9th day of April, A. D. 1861, authorizing the conveyance of real estate in the several counties of the Commonwealth on recording of the resolutions of board of directors of said company.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence, bill numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

Senate bill No. 74, an act to validate and confirm certain mortgage or deed of trust executed under the corporate seal of the Phillipsburg coal, iron and oil company, and to authorize the transfer of the railroad of the said company to any other railroad company owning a railroad connecting therewith, and to increase the number in the board of directors.

He also returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 78, joint resolution relative to the executive mansion.

With information that the Senate has passed the same without amendment.

SPEAKER'S TABLE.

The SPEAKER proceeded to clear the table:

Senate bill No. 74, an act to validate and confirm a certain mortgage or deed of trust, executed under the corporate seal of the Phillipsburg coal, iron and oil company, and to authorize the transfer of the railroad of the said company to any other railroad company owning a railroad connecting therewith, and to increase the number in the board of directors.

Referred to the Committee on Iron and Coal.

Senate bill No. 78, entitled an act in relation to the sale of certain real estate, owned by the Odd Fellow hall association of Allentown, in the county of Lehigh.

Mr. KLINE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended, and that the House proceed to consider that bill.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to hear some reason for that; we are sliding off again; we had a wild enough session last night. I suggest that the gentleman give a reason, if he wants the rules suspended, that we may be guided in our action. If there is an immediate necessity that the bill shall pass, I have no objection to a suspension of the rules.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, as no reason is given I call for a division of the question.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I should like to hear a reason from the gentleman. I am willing to suspend the orders if there is a present necessity for the passage of his bill. I do not want him to suppose that we want to cut him down.

Mr. KLINE. I withdraw the motion.

Senate bill No. 77, entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act to incorporate the city of Lancaster, approved March 20th, 1818, changing the time of electing municipal and ward officers.

Mr. STEHMAN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make a very brief statement in this case. On the 15th of February it is provided by law that a Mayor's election shall be held in the city of Lancaster. I also understand that the law requires a proclamation to be issued fifteen days previous to that time. The citizens of Lancaster are about to send here a bill as a supplement to their city charter. The whole city unanimously ask an extension of time for the holding of the mayoralty election. I therefore ask that the House pass the bill at this time.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know from the gentleman from Lancaster whether in its ordinary course it can be reached in time. If the ordinary delay will keep it beyond the time when the proclamation must issue, it might be well for the House to consider this election.

Mr. STEHMAN. Mr. Speaker, if the bill goes over and is referred to a committee it will be reported back perhaps this week; then it will be on the private calendar next Tuesday.

If any person objects, it cannot come up in proper time; because the proclamation must be issued about the first of February. The citizens ask the unanimous consent of both branches of the Legislature to have the time extended to the first of May. It is not a political matter at all. They ask this merely in order that they may have ample time to prepare their new bill. I have no special interest in it—none that the citizens ask it.

The question being, Will the House suspend the rules and proceed to consider the bill?

It was agreed to.

The bill was then read a second and third times, and

Passed finally.

Senate bill No. 76, entitled An act to incorporate the Conemaugh and Allegheny transportation company.

Referred to the Committee on Corporations.

Senate bill No. 72, a further supplement to an act to authorize Woodland street, in the Twenty-fourth ward of the city of Philadelphia, to be graded, curbed and paved, approved the 27th day of May, A. D. 1863, repealing the proviso to the first section of the supplement thereto, approved the 17th day of April, A. D. 1866.

Referred to the Committee on Municipal Corporations.

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker, I desire permission to make a very brief statement in relation to Senate bill entitled A supplement to an act to incorporate the Valley coal company. I am requested by the Senator from my district to make this statement. By the provisions of that act it has consolidated with another company, by which means they have been enabled to raise three hundred thousand dollars. The workmen of these companies have not been paid for the last six months. It is really a question of bread and butter. The money is ready to be handed over the moment the Governor signs this account.

On motion of Mr. KOON, the rules were suspended, the bill read a second and third times, and

Passed finally.

Mr. CHASE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended and that the House proceed to the consideration of a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Brady's Bend bridge company.

Mr. MECHLING. Mr. Speaker, I trust the House will indulge us in passing this bill; it is very important. A ferry is needed across Brady's Bend, and it is to be desired that they have the opportunity of getting the lumber there now.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I have to say this with reference to that bill, that there is a necessity for its passage. Every one conversant with the lumber trade knows that it is necessary to make contracts for lumber in the early part of the season. Now, unless this bill is passed speedily, the delay will be sufficient to prevent those men from carrying out the objects they have in erecting this bridge, in which case it will be delayed one or two years. It is a local bill founded upon local necessities which require immediate redress.

The rules were suspended, the bill read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to make a statement.

Last evening I presented to the Chair an act referring to the extension of an act in Chester and Delaware counties, in regard to the selection of sites for a school house, and for the erection of school houses; it is also desired to include Wyoming county. In consequence of the hurry of business last evening, the matter did not take the direction I hoped it would. I was in hope that the act would be considered by the House and passed upon. There is nothing political in its character; the petitioners are from both political parties. They have already contracted for the school house. Unless we can secure the speedy passage of this matter, we shall not be able to fix upon a site for the school house, and the business must go over. I hope the House will allow the bill to be considered at this time and passed upon. I ask that the rules be suspended.

On a division, the motion was

Not agreed to.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. Speaker, I would like to make a statement with reference to the bill relative to the Germanic savings institution. It has been some time in the hands of the committee. I understand this morning that the parties interested in this bill are anxious to have it passed upon as soon as possible. It is necessary that they have it immediately. Under the circumstances, I ask for a suspension of the rules that the bill may be passed. I believe there have been no objections at all on the part of the committee.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I have no objections to the bill being considered, but I submit to the House, the gentleman has not given a reason why we should suspend the rules. There is not a gentleman here probably, with a bill in the hands of a committee, or in his own possession, who is not anxious to have it pass, and just as anxious as the gentleman himself. I would like the gentleman to give us some reason why the bill should be taken up at this time.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my resolution.

BILLS IN PLACE.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I read in my place and present to the Chair a joint resolution entitled An act to provide for calling a convention to revise and amend the Constitution of Pennsylvania. I move that the resolution be referred to a select committee of five.

The motion was

Referred to the Committee on Pensions and Gratitudes.

Mr. JONES, an act granting a pension to Zeno Hoffmaster.

Referred to the Committee on Pensions and Gratitudes.

Mr. LINTON, an act to authorize the school directors of Millville school district, Cambria county, to use surplus school tax for building purposes.

Referred to the Committee on Education.

Mr. BOYD, a supplement to an act to authorize the superintendent of common schools of York and Lancaster counties to draw funds from the county treasury, to defray the expenses of teachers' county institutes therein, approved the 15th day of March, A. D. 1865.

Referred to the Committee on Education.

Mr. CHASE, an act to extend the time for the payment of the enrollment tax on an act entitled An act to incorporate the Meadville City passenger railroad company, approved the 11th day of April, 1866.

Referred to the Committee on Passenger Railways.

Mr. MANN, an act to decrease the expenses of the public printing.

Referred to the Committee on Printing.

Mr. PETERS, an act extending to Allegheny county the laws regulating the granting of licenses of eating houses and taverns in the city of Philadelphia.

Referred to the Committee on Vice and Immorality.

Mr. MANN, an act further to regulate the granting of licenses to hotels and eating houses.

Referred to the Committee on Vice and Immorality.

Mr. THARP, a supplement to an act to authorize the Governor to incorporate a company to erect a bridge over the West Branch of the Susquehanna, at the borough of Milton, &c., passed the 6th day of April, A. D. 1850.

Referred to the Committee on Roads, Bridges and Ferries.

Mr. MANN, an act to authorize the supervisors of West Branch township, in the county of Potter, to levy an additional road tax.

THE DAILY RECORD will be furnished to Members of the Legislature and others at the following rates:

Single copy for the session..... $2 00

Members desiring extra copies of the Record, will please leave their names and the number of copies wanted at the publication office. GEO. BERGNER.

CORRECTION.

In the Senate proceedings of Tuesday, in the remarks of [Mr. COWLES], on page 117, where he is reported as saying the Lock Haven boom bill had not been reported from committee, it should read, "and they have reported it."

Referred to the Committee on Corporations.

Mr. MAISH, a supplement amendatory to an act to incorporate the Farmers' market of the Fifth ward of the borough of York.

Referred to the Committee on Corporations.

Mr. ESPY, an act to incorporate the Meadow savings and loan company.

Referred to the Committee on Banks.

Mr. M'CREARY, an act to incorporate the Germania savings institution of Erie.

Laid on the table.

Mr. HUMPHREY, an act to repair the Cowesque river, in the county of Tioga.

Laid on the table.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended, and that the House proceed to the consideration of the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows, for the information of the House:

WHEREAS, The public press of the city of Philadelphia have, from time to time, called the attention of the citizens to the inadequate means of safety provided by the owners and lessees of public halls and places of amusement in said city;

And whereas, The recent destruction of certain of said places of amusement in neighboring cities warns us that all necessary precautions should be taken to provide the public with means of hasty egress in case of fire or other accidents; therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee on Judiciary Local be directed to prepare and report a bill to provide for the better regulation of public halls and places of amusement in the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. QUAY. I call for a division of the question.

Mr. GREGORY. I withdraw the motion.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

The consideration of bills on third reading, being in order,

The House proceeded to consider, in order, Senate bill No. 29, an act to change the venue in the case of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania versus Henry Stephens and Jacob Harman, from the courts of general jurisdiction of the peace of Adams county to the court of general quarter sessions of the peace of Dauphin county.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. — and Mr. —, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, Day, Donohugh, Espy, Gordon, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Habison, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Kee, Mann, Marks, Meckling, Meily, Pennypacker, Peter, Pillow, Quay, Roath, Seiler Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Wait, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—55.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyd, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Hetzel, Hood, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Markley, Mullin, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Satterthwaite, Tharp and Westbrook—33.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the bill

Passed finally.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. M'CREARY reported from the Committee on the Judiciary Local, as committed, No. 75, an act to repeal the act entitled An act to change the venue in the case of John Lennox, from the county of Washington to the county of Beaver, approved April 12, A. D. 1866.

Mr. DAVIS (Federal Relations), as committed, No. 100, a preamble and joint resolution instructing our Senators and Representatives in Congress to procure a reduction of the tax on petroleum.

SPEAKER'S TABLE.

THE SPEAKER presented to the House the annual report of the managers of the Western Pennsylvania Hospital.

Laid on the table.
THE SPEAKER. The following bill is on second reading.
 The question is,
 Will the House agree to the bill?
 The bill was
 Agreed to.

No. 32, an act requiring the commissioners of Forks township, Northampton county, to render an account to the auditors of said township, and providing for the auditing of the same.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I understand that Mr. MERRIS, from Northampton, is interested in this bill. There was considerable discussion upon it when it was before the House a few days ago, and I think it would hardly be proper to dispose of it in his absence.

The bill was ordered to be transcribed and laid over for a third reading.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn.

The motion was

Agreed to.

And the SPEAKER declared this House adjourned until to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

SENATE.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 23, 1867.

Senate met and was called to order at 11 A. M., by the SPEAKER.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. Mr. Bailey, of Salisbury.

On motion of Mr. SCHALL, the reading of the Journal of yesterday was dispensed with.

THE SPEAKER'S TABLE.

The SPEAKER laid before the Senate the annual report of the managers of the Western Pennsylvania Hospital.

Laid on the table.

PETITIONS, REMONSTRANCES, &c.

Mr. BOYER presented the remonstrances of citizens of Montgomery and Bucks counties, against any acts increasing the rates of toll upon the Limekiln and Jarretton and Horsham turnpike roads.

Referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

Mr. SCHALL, the petition of the surviving partner of the firm of Alvoile & Company, and the widow and legal representatives of Robert P. Krause, deceased, praying for the passage of an act authorizing the court of common pleas of Northampton county to make sale of certain real estate held in trust.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

Mr. FISHER, the petition of citizens of Lancaster county, in favor of rebuilding the Columbia bridge.

Referred to the Committee on Railroads.

Mr. GLATZ, a petition of likeimport from citizens of the borough of York.

Referred to the Committee on Railroads.

Mr. HAINES, the petition of Captain George V. Mitchell, of Millin county, for relief.

Referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, the petition for an act authorizing a railroad from Hollidaysburg or Newry, in Blair county, through the gap of Dunning's mountain, in which the Gap iron works are erected, passing into Morrison's Cove and adjoining or near to the Bloomfield iron ore banks, towards or to Pattonville, Bedford county.

Referred to the Committee on Railroads.

Mr. BIGHAM, the petition of citizens on the line of the Oakland and East Liberty passenger railway, asking that said company be required to reduce the price of tickets in said county.

Referred to the Committee on Railroads.
 Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence), the remonstrance of citizens of Philadelphia against the enactment of a law authorizing passenger railway companies to run their cars on the Sabbath day.

Referred to the Committee on Vice and Immorality.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer), the petition of citizens of the borough of Sharon, Mercer county, praying for the passage of a law extending to said borough the provisions of an act relative to auctions, &c., within the county of Lawrence, approved the 27th day of March, 1860.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

Mr. LOWRY, the petition of Sarah Ann Chase and others, praying that certain property adjoining Titusville shall not be subject to city taxation.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES.

Mr. BIGHAM, from the Committee on Finance, reported, as committed, a bill entitled An act exempting the Morris cemetery, in the county of Chester, from the payment of tax, and the lots sold therein from an attachment for debt.

Mr. SHOEMAKER, from the Committee on the Judiciary General, as committed, a bill entitled An act for the better and more impartial selection of persons to serve as jurors in the several courts of this Commonwealth.

Also (same), with a negative recommendation, a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Jamestown cemetery association.

Also (same), with a negative recommendation, a bill entitled An act to change the name of Virginia Ottinger, and to give her all the rights of a daughter of Douglas and Emily Ottinger.

Mr. SHOEMAKER. Mr. Speaker, in regard to the last bill reported by this committee, I am instructed to say that they are reported with a negative recommendation, because the courts have jurisdiction in both cases. The one, being a bill to incorporate a cemetery association, and the other to change the name of a person. As such attempted infringements on the jurisdiction of the courts have frequently occurred, I am instructed by this committee (General Judiciary) to report their views on this subject, hoping thereby to aid in remedying a serious and growing evil. I will read the clause of the Constitution—the third amendment, passed in 1864—which relates to this matter:

SECTION 9. No bill shall be passed by the Legislature granting any powers or privileges, in any case, where the authority to grant such powers or privileges has been, or may hereafter be, conferred upon the courts of this Commonwealth.

Every Senator is bound by his oath to observe this article, which has become a part of the Constitution, and if a bill be passed in conflict with this, your committee is of opinion such bill would be absolutely void and of no power. Now, in the Senate rule, No. XXII, this doctrine is reiterated; it reads as follows:

Rule XXII. No member shall read in his place, nor shall any committee, either standing or select, report any bill for the action of the Senate, granting corporate powers in any case where the authority of granting such powers has been conferred upon any of the courts of this Commonwealth.

The committee is of the opinion that whenever a bill of the kind referred to is read in place, or referred to any committee, it should be thrown out at once. Bills have often come before the committee, in which the first section asks for privileges where the courts have jurisdiction, and then follow other sections where the courts have no power. The committee instruct me to report that, in all such cases, where the subject matter of the bill is under control of the courts, to report such bills negatively. If the first section indicates that the courts have power, no following section will change the character of the bill; that is the plan this committee have adopted, and recommend it to the other committees. They think, if this plan is adhered to, it will facilitate matters here. And, in the second place, these bills where the courts have power had better go before the courts, because those courts know better what they need than we can possibly know here. That is the substance of what I am directed to say upon this matter.

The SPEAKER gave notice that hereafter such bills would be ruled out of order.

Mr. BIGHAM, from the Committee on the Judiciary General, reported, as committed, a bill entitled An act to authorize the Governor to appoint a person to visit prisons.

Also (same), with a negative recommendation, a bill entitled Supplement to an act entitled An act relating to the payment of bounties to veteran volunteers, approved May 12, 1866.

Also (same), with a negative recommendation, a bill entitled An act to protect the rights of joint tenants and others.

Also (same), as committed, a bill entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act relating to corporations for mechanical, manufacturing, mining and quarrying purposes, approved 18th July, 1853.

Also (same), with a negative recommendation, a bill entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act to enable joint tenants, &c., approved the 21st April, 1854.

Mr. SCHALL (same), as committed, a bill entitled An act authorizing the tender of money to be made after suit brought.

Also (same), as committed, a bill entitled An act relating to the powers of the legal representatives of deceased tax collectors in this Commonwealth.

Also (same), with a negative recommendation, a bill entitled An act for the more ample security of the titles of lot holders in cemeteries.

Also (same), with amendments, a bill entitled A supplement to an act regulating the laying out and opening of public roads in the Commonwealth, approved June 13, 1866.

Mr. FISHER, from the Committee on the Judiciary Local, with amendments, a bill entitled An act changing the venue of certain cases from the county of Juniata to the county of Schuyl.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, I should like to ask the indulgence of the Senate, to take that bill up; it is a very short one, and has reference to some cases pending.

The SPEAKER said this course would disarrange all the affairs of the Senate, and that the bill had better wait and come up in its regular order.

Mr. FISHER. I simply wish to state, Mr. Speaker, that I understand the court of quarter sessions of Juniata county will meet very soon, and it is very important to the cause of several defendants there, and if it is passed at all, the gentleman who has it in charge is anxious that it should be done at once, so as to protect the rights of people now in jeopardy.

The Senate refused to suspend the rules and take up the bill.

Mr. RIDGWAY, from the Committee on Corporations, reported, as committed, a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Vulcan iron works.

Also (same), as committed, a bill entitled A supplement to an act incorporating the Glenwood coal company, approved January 11, 1867, extending the privileges of an act regulating railroad companies to said coal company.

Also (same), as committed, a bill entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act to incorporate the Potter County lumber, coal and petroleum company, approved March 24, 1865, changing the name thereof, authorizing them to hold lands in Northumberland county, and to purchase other franchises, timber and lumber lands.

Mr. BILLINGFELT, from the Committee on Roads and Bridges, reported, as committed, a bill entitled An act relative to roads and highways in Schuylkill county.

Mr. CONNELL, from the Committee on Finance, as committed, a bill entitled An act to exempt from taxation certain property devoted to Masonic uses in the city of Reading.

Mr. JACKSON, from the Committee appointed to Compare Bills, and present them to the Governor for his approbation, made report, which was read as follows, viz:

That in conjunction with a similar committee from the House of Representatives, they have compared and on the third of January presented to the Governor for his approbation bills numbered and entitled as follows, to wit:

No. 1, an act to repeal a portion of an act entitled An act to prohibit the issuing of licenses within certain boroughs in the counties of Armstrong, Potter, Indiana and Perry, or within two miles of the same, in the counties in which such boroughs are located.

No. 2, an act to pay the retiring officers of the Senate and House of Representatives.

No. 4, an act relative to bounty taxes in Bradford county, legalizing the action of the burgess and town council in Troy borough relative to bounties and to require the payment of the same.

Also, on the 9th:

No. 15, an act relative to the election in the Farmers' and Merchants' insurance company.

No. 7, a supplement to an act authorizing the borough of Hollidaysburg to erect water works, approved March 16, 1866.

No. 19, an act authorizing an additional justice of the peace in the borough of Towanda, in the county of Bradford.

Senate bill No. 1, an act relative to the receiver of taxes in the city of Philadelphia, repealing so much of the act of April 9th, 1861, as authorizes him to charge five per centum commission for collecting taxes from delinquent taxpayers.

Senate bill No. 2, an act to authorize the appointment of an additional notary public for the county of Lehigh.

And on the 10th of January:

Senate bill No. 4, an act to establish a ferry over the Allegheny river at or near the mouth of Big Scrubgrass, in Venango county.

Senate bill No. 12, a supplement to the act incorporating the Sullivan land company, authorizing said company to sell or exchange lands.

Senate bill No. 25, an act to authorize the Freedom iron and steel company to issue and dispose of bonds of the said company convertible into capital stock and to secure them by a mortgage granting certain powers to facilitate the mining, manufacturing, transporting and vending business of said company, and extending their charter as hereby amended.

Senate bill No. 5, an act to define the time and regulate the manner of electing Senators to represent this State in the Senate of the United States.

And on the 11th of January:

Senate bill No. 20, an act to incorporate the Germantown swimming and skating park association.

Senate bill No. 13, an act to incorporate the New Castle water company.

Senate bill No. 14, an act to amend an act to incorporate the North American transit insurance company, approved March thirtieth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty, and the supplement thereto, so as to authorize said company to insure persons against death or disability, whether from natural diseases, accident or otherwise, and to issue policies therefor, in the usual manner, under the name, style and title of the North American life and accident insurance company.

Also, January 16th, 1867:

Senate bill No. 9, an act to incorporate the Listerstown savings institution.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. BIGHAM offered the following resolution, which was read as follows:

WHEREAS, The State Treasurer, in his annual report, calls the attention of the Legislature to the present tax on personal property, operating, as he alleges, unequally and unjustly on various districts, and recommends its repeal and the apportionment of three hundred thousand dollars in lieu thereof upon some equitable principle; therefore,

Be it resolved, That (if the House concur) the State Treasurer be requested to communicate to both branches of the Legislature such an apportionment as will, in his judgment, do equal justice to all portions of the State; the same to be based on the returns in his office, and to state the amount of the three hundred thousand dollars which he believes ought to be charged upon the city of Philadelphia and upon each county in the State.

The resolution was adopted.

Mr. WHITE offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That one thousand copies of the Surveyor General's report be printed for the use of the Senate.

The resolution was adopted.

Mr. BIGHAM offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Committee on Railroads be instructed to report the bill read in place by the Senator from Erie, or some substitute of its own, to provide for the organizing of railroad companies under a general law, and such regulations for the government of railroad companies as the public interests require; and that such bill or bills, when reported and printed, shall have precedence over our local legislation.

The resolution was adopted.

Mr. HAINES offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That there be printed for the use of the Senate two thousand copies of the report made by the Fish Commissioners to the Governor.

The resolution was adopted.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Agreed to order.

The Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill on third reading entitled An act to incorporate the Sisters of Mercy in the city of Philadelphia.

The bill was read a third time, and

Passed finally.

Agreed to order.

The Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill on third reading entitled An act to incorporate the Brokers' Beneficial association of Philadelphia.

Mr. DONOVAN. Mr. Speaker, I hope that bill will go over until Monday. I have no doubt it is correct, but I would ask to let it lie over.

Mr. RIDGWAY. I do not see any necessity for its going over.

Mr. DONOVAN. It is possible the Board of Brokers want to be incorporated, and it is possible they do not. There is no necessity for passing it until Monday. I think it is due to facts that we lay this bill over until we hear from them. The bill may be all right, but there can be no harm in laying it over until Monday. For six years I have never refused this request to a Senator on this floor, and never will. If it was the last week of the session there might be some reason for pressing its passage.

Mr. CONNELL said he thought his colleague misunderstood the nature of the bill. This bill was not to incorporate the board of brokers, which was already incorporated, but was simply for charitable purposes.

Mr. DONOVAN. If that is all, certainly there is no wrong about delaying this bill. It seems to me now that there is something wrong about this bill. I do not understand why it is necessary to pass it at this early stage of the session. I move to postpone the further consideration of the bill until Monday evening next, and that it be made the special order for that evening.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. RIDGWAY and Mr. DONOVAN, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Billingslet, Browne (Lawrence), Burnett, Cowles, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Graham, Jackson, James, Landon, Lowry, Schall, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Walls and Hall, Speaker—18.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Haines, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, White and Worthington—10. So the question was determined in the affirmative.

BILLS PASSED.

On motion of Mr. ROYER, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act exempting the Morris cemetery, in the county of Chester, from the payment of tax and the lot sold therein from an attachment for debt.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. SCHALL, the Committee on Corporations was discharged from the further consideration of bill entitled An act to incorporate the Mizuga iron company.

And the rules having been dispensed with, the bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. DAVIS, the Committee on the Judiciary Local was discharged from the further consideration of bill entitled An act to exempt from taxation certain property devoted to Masonic uses in the city of Reading.

And the rules having been dispensed with, the bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. WORTHINGTON, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled A further supplement to an act to incorporate the Girard life insurance, annuity and trust company of Philadelphia, passed the 17th of March, 1836.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. BROWN (Mercer), the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled an act to change the mode of electing the town council in the borough of Youngsville, and defining certain duties pertaining to their office.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. BIGHAM, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled A supplement to an act to incorporate the People's Saving bank of Pittsburgh, approved April 17, 1866, authorizing said company to increase its capital stock.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

WHEREAS, The public press of the city of Philadelphia have from time to time called the attention of citizens to the inadequate means of safety provided by the owners and lessees of public halls and places of amusement in said city;

And whereas, The recent destruction of certain said places of amusement in neighboring cities, warns us that all necessary precautions should be taken to provide the public with means of hasty escape in case of fire or other accidents; therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee on Judiciary Local be directed to prepare and report a bill to provide for the better regulation of public halls and places of amusements in the city of Philadelphia.

The resolution was read a second time, and Agreed to.

Leave was granted.

Mr. JENKS, Mr. Speaker, the persons who are interested in that association have purchased very valuable property, and become responsible for a large amount of money. The payments are coming due very rapidly, and they wish their organization perfected, that they may be able to meet the payments as they fall due. I therefore move a suspension of the rules in order that the bill may be passed at this time.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The bill was read a second and third time, and Passed finally.
 Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a short statement.

Leave was granted.
 Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, there is a bill on your table under the name and title of an act to incorporate the Holland knitting machine company, of Indiana county. I desire the indulgence of this House to allow that bill to be taken up at this time and passed.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana will please withhold his motion until the Chair clears the table.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I read in my place and present to the Chair a bill entitled An act for the relief of the widow of Colonel James Miller.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I ask that that bill may lie on the table.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I would inquire if that relief affects the treasury of the State.

Mr. MEYERS. Yes, sir.

Mr. MANN. I object, then.
 The SPEAKER. Objection being made, the bill will go to the Committee on Ways and Means.

PETITIONS WITHDRAWN.

Mr. HARNER asked and obtained leave to withdraw certain petitions, which had been presented last winter, for the purpose of re-presenting them.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. Speaker, I wish to call up the bill I read in place yesterday, and have it acted upon at this time. It is important the bill should pass at once, for the reason that the floods that have lately deluged the Cumberland Valley have swept away bridges which it is essential to have repaired at the earliest possible day, in order that the lumbering interests of that region may not suffer.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will suspend his remarks until the order of reading bills in place is finished. The Chair will then recognize him.

After the order of reading bills,
 The SPEAKER. The Chair will now recognize the gentleman from Tioga [Mr. HUMPHREY].

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. Speaker, yesterday I read in place a bill to improve the Cowanesque river, in Tioga county, which was laid on the table. I now desire that the bill should be taken up and passed for reasons that I have already stated.

The SPEAKER. The bill has gone to the printer, and therefore cannot now be taken up.

PRIVILEGED QUESTION.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a privileged question. I move a reconsideration of the vote had last Thursday upon the resolution relative to Senator Cowan. The object I have in making this motion is to so amend the resolution as to make it a joint one. The Senate wish to act upon the matter, and this would make it more consistent and in harmony with usual legislation. I move to reconsider the vote on the final passage of this resolution.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is informed that the resolution instructing the Clerk to transmit a copy to the President of the United States has already been carried out.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I am aware of that, and I do not see how that will operate against the motion I have made, if the motion is within six days of the time the resolution was passed. I am informed by Senators that they desire to act on the resolution, and to introduce a separate resolution, it seems to me, would not be so appropriate as to make this a joint one. We can then move to have it retransmitted as the joint action of the Legislature instead of the action of the House alone.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of the opinion that the subject sought to be obtained by the gentleman from Philadelphia can only be reached by the introduction of another resolution. The orders contained in that resolution were, that the Clerk should forward a copy to the President of the United States Senate. That instruction has been complied with, and there is no way, that the Chair is aware of, by which that resolution, sent to the President of the United States Senate, can be recalled.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I agree with the Chair that far, but I cannot see why we cannot consider the one passed and have it retransmitted. I was well aware when I made the motion that the resolution we passed had been transmitted to the United States Senate, but I think it would save time to make a joint resolution of it and send it over to the Senate.

The CHAIR. The Chair is still of the opinion that it is not proper to reconsider the resolution: The object sought can only be reached by the introduction of a new resolution.

Mr. DAVIS. I submit, Mr. Speaker—

Mr. WEBB. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a short statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. WEBB. Yesterday, while we were considering private bills, Senate bill No. 46 was brought up, and I asked that it be laid over on third reading. I am informed by the Senator who introduced it [Mr. JACKSON] that it is important this bill should be passed at once. I, therefore, move that it now be read a third time and acted upon.

Mr. WADELL. Mr. Speaker, I would suggest to the gentleman that the next thing in order, I understand, is bills upon the third reading, and, if the House will maintain the rules, we will come to the gentleman's bill in a few moments. That is the propriety of adhering to the regular order.

Mr. WEBB. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my motion for the present.

The SPEAKER proceeded to clear the table.

Senate bill No. 18, an act to incorporate the Quintero mining company.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

Senate bill No. 19, an act to incorporate the Catholic Philopatrian institute, of Philadelphia.

Referred to the Committee on Corporations.

Senate bill No. 29, a further supplement to an act entitled An act for the better security of the city of Philadelphia from dangers incident to the refining or improper and negligent storage of petroleum or naphtha, approved March 2, 1865, construing the same.

Referred to the Committee on Municipal Corporations.

Senate bill No. 35, an act supplementary to an act providing for the erection of a poor house in the county of Lancaster.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

Senate bill No. 55, an act to incorporate the Germania insurance company of Erie.

Referred to the Committee on Corporations.

Senate bill No. 48, an act to authorize the payment of Theodore F. Scheffer for printing deacons' list.

Referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Senate bill No. 61, an act to authorize the appointment of a photographic reporter for the courts of Lancaster county.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

Senate bill No. 64, an act appropriating part of the moneys arising from fines and forfeitures in the county of Schuylkill for a law library for the use of the courts, &c.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

Senate bill No. 81, an act to change the place of business of the Cameron petroleum company of Pennsylvania.

Referred to the Committee on Corporations.

Senate bill No. 84, an act to incorporate the Hand-in-Hand Mutual life insurance company.

Referred to the Committee on Corporations.

Senate bill No. 86, a supplement to an act to incorporate the Lehigh County Mutual horse insurance company, approved April 28, 1857.

Referred to the Committee on Corporations.

Senate bill No. 83, an act to incorporate the Hollin knitting machine company.

Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave granted.

Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, that company is now actively engaged in erecting buildings and making preparations for the transaction of such business as pertains to the interests of the company, and it has become necessary for them to borrow money to carry on their operations. They do not wish to be borrowing money individually, but to be incorporated and borrow money as a company. At the request of my Senator, who introduced the bill into the Senate, I ask now the indulgence of the House, that this bill be taken up and passed, and move that the rules be suspended for that purpose.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I read that the House will not so stultify itself as to take up this bill now. We have reached the order of bills on the third reading. There are some very important matters to be acted upon under that order, and, if the gentleman insists upon his motion to suspend the rules, I shall certainly insist upon a division of the question. If we are to have a general suspension let us all have a hand in it.

Mr. KIMMELL. I withdraw the motion and ask to have the bill laid on the table.

The request was Agreed to.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

House bill No. 41, entitled An act providing for the punishment of persons residing in Northampton county deserting their wives and children, was read.

The question was on the final passage of the bill.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call the attention of the House to the law as it now stands, and to ask the gentleman whether this bill accomplishes more than is now provided for. I think the gentleman will find no necessity for his act unless there is a local reason.

I think that on page 799 of Purdon's Digest he will find all that is required on this subject.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, the provision of the act referred to by the gentleman is under our poor law, and is based upon the fact that a person must first be a charge upon the county, and the proceedings must be commenced by the overseers of the poor or the directors, and can only be directed against the real or personal property of the individual. The change effected by this law is that the proceedings shall be made against the person at once, and he shall be brought before a court of quarter sessions and thereupon fined, if the facts set forth are proved.

The wife, or anybody interested in his welfare, or her children, may enter complaint, and, in default of his having any property, he may be required to give bail. Under the decision of the Supreme court bonds, notes, &c., cannot be taken from the husband, and, therefore, a man may be in such a shape that he cannot be reached. The object of this provision is entirely in conflict with the provision of the common law on the subject, and at once directs its action against the person of the offender, not upon the complaint made by the overseer of the poor, or the directors only, but upon the complaint of any person interested. The action is directed at once against the person, and he is compelled to give bail to carry out the decrees of the court. I think the objection of the gentleman is not a valid one, and I ask, therefore, that this bill be passed. I however ask that the first section be amended in the sixth line, after the word "such," by inserting the words "without reasonable cause."

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the remarks of the gentleman just made. I have had some experience as supervisor of the poor and I have found out, to my sorrow, the defects of the present law. I think this bill a very good one and that it ought to be general. I move to amend so as to include Luzerne county in the bill.

Mr. CHASE. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by inserting Crawford county.

The SPEAKER. It is not in order to make any further amendments. There is already one more amendment made than can be entertained now.

Mr. WADELL. Mr. Speaker, I would suggest to the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS] that he make his bill a general one. There seem to be a number of gentlemen who desire their counties inserted, and for my part I cannot see any objection to making it a general law.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, there is now a general law before the Judiciary Committee covering this whole ground, and I hope this bill will not be passed at present.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I move then that the bill lie over for the present.

The motion was

Agreed to.

House bill No. 46, entitled An act to increase the fees of certain county officers and the district attorney in the county of Washington, was read.

The question was, Shall the bill pass?

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I move that the further consideration of the bill be postponed for the present.

The motion was

Agreed to.

Senate bill No. 49, entitled An act to increase the fees of certain county officers in Sullivan county, and to validate certain charges heretofore made, was read.

The question was on the final passage of the bill.

The bill

Passed finally.

House bill No. 32, entitled An act requiring the commissioners of Forks township, Northampton county, to render an account to the auditor of said township, and providing for the auditing of the same, was read.

The question was on the final passage of the bill.

The bill

Passed finally.

REPORTS AND RESOLUTIONS ON MOTION CONSIDERED.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, you will remember, sir, that early in the session a resolution was offered adopting the rules of last session for the government of this House during the present session. At that time I attempted to offer an amendment to the resolution and was ruled out of order. I understand from the Chair, and from some other gentlemen who are presumed to know, that the order was reached the resolution would come up. I now call it up, sir.

The resolution was read.
(See page three of the Record.)

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment to come in at the end of the rules.

The amendment was read as follows:

"The following shall be an additional rule, to be known as rule 63:

"A committee may be discharged from the consideration of any matter referred to it by a majority vote."

The question was on the amendment of Mr. BOYLE.

Mr. BOYLE. I wish to call the attention of the members to the necessity of a rule of this kind. As the rules now stand, it requires two-thirds of the members voting to discharge a committee from the consideration of any matter referred to it. Gentlemen who have been here long know very well that there are times when matters get before a committee, and it is impossible to get them before the House again. The committee hold them for some reasons—doubtless for good reasons. Hence, a committee composed, say of nine members, may hold a bill by five members in that committee against one less than two-thirds of this House. Gentlemen will see how absolutely necessary it is, then, for the adoption of this amendment. Now, I hope, Mr. Speaker, that a majority of this House should upon all occasions, except perhaps very rare instances, be able to control the business of this House. By that, injury can be done to nobody, and that is all this amendment proposes. Hence, a committee composed of nine members, if I trust that the House will see proper to adopt it.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the amendment. Is the House ready for the amendment?

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the amendment of the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE], so as to provide that no bill or other matter shall be discharged from the committee by a majority vote, until after it has been in their hands twenty days. The reason I offer this amendment is, that it seems to me it would be leading to a useless content if, immediately after a bill was referred, gentlemen should jump up and ask to have the committee discharged from the further consideration of it. If a matter is referred to a committee this House should pay some little respect to that committee by at least giving it an opportunity to report. But I am inclined to think that a majority of this House, after a reasonable length of time, ought to have every bill under its control. I will agree with the gentleman, that after a committee has had a bill or other matters in its possession a reasonable length of time; a majority of this House ought to be able to withdraw it and refer it to another committee, or act upon it without further reference. I am, however, unwilling that any other committee shall not have a sufficient opportunity to report upon a bill before a simple majority of this House can take it out of their hands. For this reason I offer this amendment.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I have no objection to some such amendment as that offered, but I would suggest to the gentleman that the period is too long. Twenty days is longer than there is any need of. Then, sir, there is another objection. His amendment makes no provision for a bill introduced within twenty days of the end of the session. A bill introduced nineteen days before the close of the session would be held in the committee without any remedy at all. I would suggest to the mover of the amendment that he make some provision to meet cases of that kind. I would prefer to have the period less than ten days. That is long enough for any ordinary case, and the House certainly would not, in any proper case, vote to discharge the committees within an unreasonable length of time. I trust the gentleman will modify his amendment so as make it ten days, and also make a provision for reporting matters within a certain period from the end of the session.

Mr. KERN. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to the amendment of the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE]. Frequently there are bills before these committees in which great interest is taken, and the parties concerned desire to appear before the committee. Time is necessary to allow all the parties an opportunity to appear, and for that reason I think the amendment is uncalled for.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to the amendment of the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] on account of the length of time he allows a committee to control a bill before it can be withdrawn by a majority of this House. I am very much in favor of the original amendment, because there are cases that have come within my legislative experience when bills have been held by committees and not reported at all. I think it should be within the power of a majority of this House, at any time, to discharge the committees from the further consideration of any particular matter. I think, sir, this rule will prove very effective. I do not wish to make any reflection upon any committee. They will have a great deal of labor to perform, but after they have had time to consider a bill and do not report it the majority of this House should have power to take it out of their hands.

Mr. M'CLEARY. Mr. Speaker, I am very much in favor of the amendment of the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN], as also the amendment offered by the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE]. I think twenty days little enough time. Now, it often happens we adjourn from Thursday until Monday night, as we will do this week. Nearly one-half of ten days expires during the adjournment. It often happens that a committee come to act upon a bill a party appears before them, and it is found necessary to postpone further consideration until he can send home for testimony or petitions which are necessary to a proper understanding by the committee. We do not want persons here presenting bills, and as soon as they are referred, move to have the committee discharged. We do not want that kind of extraneous matter brought up day after day to interrupt the harmony of our proceedings. Therefore, I say, whilst the amendment offered by the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] is a good one, yet the amendment offered by the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] simply places a limitation upon that, and I think gentlemen on both sides of the House will see that twenty days is little enough, and is also sufficient time. Therefore, I trust both of these amendments will prevail.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the hour of adjournment be extended until the matter is disposed of.

On the motion, a division was called for, when Mr. MANN withdrew his motion.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I call the previous question.

Mr. WADELL. Mr. Speaker, I submit that the whole proceeding is out of order, and I raise this point of order: that it is not necessary for this House to pass a resolution making the rules of the last House apply to this session, while there exists a rule of the last House declaring that these rules shall remain in force until otherwise ordered, and this House need not at each session adopt rules for its government during the same.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say that it seems to me it is not competent for this body to adopt rules for the next Legislature. I think, therefore, the resolution of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE] is a proper one, and the point made by the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] is not well made. I know these rules say that they shall be the rules of the House until otherwise determined. But I submit that it is not competent for this House to adopt rules for the next Legislature and that this House is bound to adopt its own rules.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I submit that the point of order raised by the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] would have been proper in its proper place. But I think the point of order is taken at too late a day. If he had raised the point of order when the resolution was offered, it would have been relevant; but I think as this amendment has been introduced and discussed, it is too late to raise it now.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I understand from the gentleman's remarks that "hoary headed vice becomes respectable." An error can never be made anything else by age. If it was out of order to introduce that resolution in the first place, no subsequent proceedings upon it can make it right. I think that is a clear proposition. If it was out of order when presented, it is out of order to-day, and it would be out of order through all coming time, and no subsequent legislation could make it right. I believe that the point of order raised by the gentleman is well taken. I believe that the law provides, as any other law provides, for the subsequent control of this body. The law provides that a Speaker and other officers shall be elected. If the law cannot provide rules, how can it provide that certain officers shall be elected?

The SPEAKER submitted the question to the House for its decision, and

On the question,

Is the point of order well taken? the hour of one o'clock having arrived, the SPEAKER declared this House adjourned until this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, January 23, 1867.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The House met at 3 o'clock, p. m.

The SPEAKER announced by special order this afternoon to be the consideration of Senate bill No. 3, entitled Joint resolution to ratify the amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

On motion,

The House dispensed with going into the committee of the whole.

The resolution was read as follows:

JOINT RESOLUTION to ratify the amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

WHEREAS, Two-thirds of the members of the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, in Congress assembled, did adopt an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which is entitled Article fourteen as follows:

SECTION 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States, and of the State wherein they reside; no State shall make or enforce any laws, which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States, nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty or property, without due process of law, nor deny any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of law.

SEC. 2. Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States, according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed; but when the right to vote, at any election, for the choice of electors for President and Vice President of the United States, representatives in Congress, the executive and judicial officers of a State, or the members of the legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State, being twenty-one years of age, and citizens of the United States, or any way abridged, except for participation in rebellion, or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens, twenty-one years of age, in such State.

SEC. 3. No person shall be a Senator or Representative in Congress, or elector of President or Vice President, or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any State, who having previously taken an oath as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of any State Legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof; but Congress may, by a vote of two-thirds of each House, remove such disability.

SEC. 4. The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties, for services in suppressing insurrection or rebellion, shall not be questioned; but neither the United States, or any State, shall assume or pay any debt, or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations and claims shall be held illegal and void.

SEC. 5. The Congress shall have power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

Which said amendment has been submitted to the Legislature of Pennsylvania for ratification or rejection; therefore,

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Pennsylvania, in General Assembly met, That the amendment, as above proposed and submitted, is hereby ratified and adopted by the State of Pennsylvania.

On the question, Will the House agree to the resolution?

Mr. JENKS and Mr. MANN proceeded to discuss the resolution.

[The debate will appear in the Appendix to the Record.]

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows:

Senate bill No. 60, an act changing the time of holding courts in the Sixteenth Judicial district.

Senate bill No. 63, a supplement to an act to incorporate the People's Saving Bank of Pittsburg, approved April 17, 1866, authorizing said company to increase its capital stock.

Senate bill No. 54, a further supplement to an act to incorporate the Girard life insurance, annuity and trust company of Philadelphia, passed March 17th, 1856.

Senate bill No. 82, an act to consolidate the Union coal company, and the Howard coal and iron company.

Senate bill No. 107, an act to incorporate the Mipuga iron company.

Senate bill No. 106, an act to exempt from taxation certain property devoted to Masonic uses in the city of Reading.

Senate bill No. 71, an act to divide the Northwest ward, in the city of Lancaster, into election precincts and separate election districts.

Senate bill No. 108, an act to incorporate the Safe Deposit company of Pittsburg.

He also returned bills from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 47, an act to exempt the Morris cemetery, in the county of Chester, from the payment of tax, and the lots sold therein from an attachment for debt.

No. 3, an act to change the mode of electing town council in the borough of Youngsville, and defining certain duties pertaining to their office.

With information that the Senate has passed the same without amendments.

He also returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 71, an act changing the venue of certain cases from the county of Juniata to the county of Snyder,

With information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

He also presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows, viz:

IN THE SENATE, January 23, 1867.

WHEREAS, The State Treasurer, in his annual report, calls the attention of the Legislature to the present tax on personal property, operating, as he alleges, unequally and unjustly, on various districts, and recommends its repeal, and the apportionment of three hundred thousand dollars in lieu thereof upon more equitable principles; therefore, be it Resolved, That, if the House concur, the State Treasurer be requested to communicate to both branches of the Legislature such an apportionment as will, in his judgment, do equal justice to all portions of the State; the same to be based on the returns to his office; and to state amount of the three hundred thousand dollars which he believes ought to be charged upon the city of Philadelphia, and upon each county in the State.

On motion of Mr. STUMBAUGH, the House adjourned until to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock, Mr. MANN yielding the floor to allow the motion to be made.

SENATE.

THURSDAY, January 24, 1867.

The Senate met and was called to order at 11 A. M., by the SPEAKER.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. Mr. Bailey, of Harrisburg.

On motion of Mr. SCHALL, the reading of the Journal of yesterday was dispensed with.

SPEAKER'S TABLE.

The SPEAKER laid before the Senate the report of the managers and trustees of the Children's Home of the borough and county of York.

Laid on the table.

He also presented the following report of the inspectors of the State Penitentiary for the Eastern district of Pennsylvania:

To the Honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

The undersigned inspectors of the State Penitentiary for the Eastern district of Pennsylvania, ask leave respectfully to present to your honorable bodies this

SPECIAL REPORT.

The increase of crime within the past few years has exhausted the capacity of the penitentiary to receive all the convicts sentenced from the counties composing the Eastern district. This penitentiary was constructed for a population of five hundred convicts. It was opened for the reception of prisoners in 1829. The population of the Eastern district was then seven hundred and fifty-five thousand, five hundred and seventy-seven, and that of the city and county of Philadelphia, nine hundred and eighty-eight thousand, nine hundred and sixty-one. The following statement will show the proportionate increase of convicts to the population:

The population of the Eastern district in
1830 was.....	755,577
1840 ".....	1,168,300
1850 ".....	1,568,737
1860 ".....	2,009,811
1866 estimated.....	2,263,440
The number of prisoners received in
1830 was.....	49
1840 ".....	139
1850 ".....	150
1860 ".....	259
1866 ".....	364

Here it will be seen that since the opening of the penitentiary, in 1829, the population of the Eastern district of Pennsylvania has increased more than three hundred per cent., while the increase of prisoners from the same date has been more than seven hundred per cent., and the indications of the last two years are that the per centage of convicts will not diminish.

These comparisons have been made on the basis of the general population of the Eastern district and the convicts sent to this penitentiary. It should be observed that within the past ten (10) years several county prisons have been established on the Pennsylvania system, to which convicts from those counties are sentenced, which reduces the average of convicts to the State Penitentiary. It is not intended to present the general statistics as to the proportion of crime to the whole population of the State. In the annual report of the inspectors, that subject will be more fully examined. The present purpose is to show the demands on the exhausted capacity of the penitentiary, and to suggest the most economical and practicable relief.

By adapting our resources for temporary accommodation, five hundred and thirty-five convicts have been confined, but now we have five hundred and seventy (570) prisoners under sentence. As a large number of convicts have been sentenced, during the past two years, for the higher grades of crime, and necessarily for longer terms than heretofore, the discharges are now less than the receptions, and this, added to the increase in number, requires increased room.

To meet the pressing wants of society from the causes mentioned the inspectors propose the following plan:

To put a second story on the first block and increase its length, making it, in all respects, similar to the seventh block. By this plan there will be added to the first block on the ground floor, thirty cells and ninety feet additional length, and in the second story sixty-six new cells, and by adding eight cells to the second and third blocks there will be accommodation for one hundred and four (104) prisoners additional. It will require seventeen months to complete this alteration, and when complete the entire penitentiary will accommodate say six hundred and thirty (630) convicts.

Estimate for materials required in the proposed alteration will be, say:

Stone, six thousand perches.
Brick, seven hundred thousand.
Lime, eight thousand one hundred bushels.
Sand and gravel, two thousand seven hundred loads.
Iron for railing, stairs, doors, et cetera, one hundred and fifty-four tons.
Lumber for floors, doors, et cetera, two hundred and sixty-five thousand one hundred feet.
Lead pipe, two thousand feet.
Hydrant cocks, one hundred and ninety-eight.
Slates for roof, less quantity saved from present roof, no estimate.
Nails, twenty thousand pounds.

In addition to above, for arching corridors, say:

Brick, eighty-five thousand.
Lime, two hundred and fifty bushels.
Sand, eighty-five loads.
This renders the entire block fire-proof.
The cost of mechanical skill—wages, say nineteen thousand dollars.
Incidentals, heating, tin-work, plastering, five thousand dollars.

The actual net cost of materials and labor will be, by the above estimate, equal to, say one hundred and seventy-nine thousand dollars ($179,000).

The cost of labor depends on the time, and the hired mechanical skill will be by the day's work, at the established rate of wages. The manual labor can be performed by the prisoners, without any violation of the system of penitentiary discipline. The material will be furnished at first cost, and the work performed under the supervision of the inspectors, except the iron castings, which will be bought at the per pound cost, from patterns furnished.

This plan has been adopted for repairs for many years past, and has been more economical and satisfactory than any other suggested, and by it the State receives full value for every dollar expended, and the dangerous evils from unsuitable materials and improper work are prevented.

The inspectors have taken this early opportunity of calling the attention of your honorable bodies to the absolutely necessary work, in order that if you approve the plan proposed (the result of careful investigation and thought), the authority may be given to proceed without loss of time.

Respectfully submitted,

RICHARD V. Vaux,

He also returned bill from the Senate numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 46, an act to increase the fees of certain officers in Sullivan county, and to validate certain charges heretofore made.

With information that the House of Representatives has passed the same without amendment.

He also returned bills from the Senate numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 69, a supplement to an act to incorporate the People's Savings Bank of Pittsburg, approved April 17, 1866, authorizing said company to increase its capital stock.

No. 108, an act to incorporate the Safe Deposit company of Pittsburg,

With information that the House of Representatives has passed the same without amendments.

He also presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 100, joint resolution instructing our Senators and Representatives in Congress to procure a reduction of the tax on petroleum.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

No. 103, an act to regulate the salary of the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also informed that the House of Representatives has concurred in amendments made by the Senate to bill from House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 71, an act changing the venue of certain cases from the county of Juniata to the county of Snyder.

He also informed that the House of Representatives has concurred in resolution from the Senate requesting the State Treasurer to communicate to both branches of the Legislature such an apportionment of the tax on personal property as will in his judgment do equal justice to all parts of the State.

TEMPORARY ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. JACKSON offered the following resolution, which was twice read:

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That when the Legislature adjourns to-day it will adjourn to meet on Tuesday next at three o'clock, P. M.

Mr. LOWRY offered the following amendment:

Resolved, That the practice of the Legislature of adjourning upon Thursday noon of each week until Monday afternoon following is a pernicious one, unfair to those residing in the extreme portions of the State, and that hereafter the Senate will not practice it, and that henceforth we will attend to the business of those who sent us at least five days in each week; and the Clerk of Senate be requested to give an extract from the Journal containing this resolution to the House of Representatives forthwith.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to call upon the Senator from Erie [Mr. Lowry] to give an explanation of this amendment.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, it explains itself.

Mr. JACKSON. Mr. Speaker, those of us who live at a distance from Harrisburg, and who have always voted with those gentlemen who live near, for adjournments, are just as willing as the Senator from Erie, sir, to work from Monday morning until 12 o'clock on Saturday night, during the whole session; but those of us who live at a distance want some chance to go home; some of us have to go forty miles, and it is impossible for us to get home unless we have an adjournment for this length of time. It would be unfair to vote down this original resolution, acting as we have in good faith towards the Senators who live near here.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, this is my sixth winter in the Legislature, and during that time we have not averaged more than three days of labor in the week. That is the custom uniformly practiced, of adjourning on Thursday at noon, and meeting again on Monday evening at 8 o'clock; I am tired of this, and I think if the people consent to it they are very good natured. The gentleman says that he wants considerable time—until next Tuesday—to enable him to go home. Any gentleman that desires to go home can always obtain leave of absence; and why we should persist in these long adjournments, year after year, I cannot understand. I am sure the practice is pernicious. Ninety per centum of the gentlemen go to Philadelphia on Thursday of each week, and I do not think any of them come back with a clearer head or purer hearts in consequence of the visit. The great mass of them go to Philadelphia, and not home.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, it is a matter of little importance to me; I am near home, but when I was in the House I was in favor of the adjournment, so that gentlemen could get home occasionally; but when I was there I got such a terrible raking, that I am afraid to say anything against the resolution.

Mr. SEARIGHT. Mr. Speaker, if the practice which is alleged to exist by the Senator from Erie [Mr. Lowry] really did exist, then it would certainly be right to denounce it, in the language of the resolution, as a pernicious practice; but with all due deference to the experience of the Senator from Erie, I do not think the practice does exist, except at the beginning of the session of each Legislature. It may be, as is alleged by the Senator from Erie—my experience is limited in this body—but I do not think it was the practice of the House when I was a member there; and, at all events, it is not competent for this Senate to say that this is the practice of both houses of the Legislature, because we do not know that it is the practice of the House.

Mr. Speaker, I do not see what good can result from the adoption of this amendment. I am willing to claim that the practice of adjourning on Thursday, if it be a practice, is a pernicious one, and should not be done; but suppose this resolution passes, the same question will come up again at the end of every week when it is desired to have an adjournment. So that it can have no possible good effect if it be adopted.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out all after the word "Resolved" and insert the following:

Resolved, (if the House of Representatives concur), That the Legislature will adjourn sine die at 12 o'clock, M., on March 20th.

The amendment being objected to, they were both ruled out by the SPEAKER, as not germane to the subject before the Senate.

The question then recurred on the original resolution.

Mr. BROWN (Lawrence). Mr. Speaker, I am in favor of this resolution of the Senator from Sullivan [Mr. JACKSON], not because of the adjournment this week suits me particularly well; indeed, it does not do so; but every one cannot be suited by these movements to adjourn. We generally adjourn every Friday, to meet on Monday evening.

Mr. LOWRY. Allow me to correct the gentleman; so far, with one exception, we have adjourned on Thursday.

Mr. BROWN (Lawrence). We have only been here a short time. Last winter, we adjourned on Friday and met again on Monday; the consequence was that not more than half the Senators were able to visit their homes in the interim. Whether they visited Philadelphia or not, I do not pretend to say.

The Senators who live so far away from the capital that they cannot make the trip, of course have to remain here, while other members are enjoying the privilege of visiting their homes. I think it is as little as we can do to give the members who live far away a chance to visit their homes once in three weeks. Some of them live forty miles from the railroad. I have sympathy with any gentleman like the Senator from Sullivan, who lives far away, and I am in favor of giving them an opportunity of visiting their homes once in three weeks; and I should like to see an example set, and followed during the session, of adjourning over every three weeks for three days. I shall therefore vote for the resolution of the Senator from Sullivan.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, I wish to say why I shall vote for the resolution offered by the Senator from Sullivan [Mr. JACKSON]. I wish it to be understood that this is the last time, as a general thing, that I shall vote for adjournment so early in the week; but, as an act of courtesy to him, and others who have not the facilities I have of visiting their homes, I shall vote for this resolution, but wish it understood that I shall not vote for so long an adjournment hereafter.

On the question, Will the Senate agree to the resolution of Mr. JACKSON?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WORTHINGTON and Mr. LOWRY, and were as follow, viz:

YEA—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne, (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Davis, Fisher, Glatz, Haines, Jackson, Landon, M'Candless, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Searight, Stutzman, Walls and White—22.

NAYS—Messrs. Cowles, Graham, James, Lowry, Shoemaker, Taylor, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—8.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. LOWRY again offered his resolution, which was read as follows:

Resolved, That the practice of the Legislature of adjourning upon Thursday noon of each week until Monday evening following is pernicious, and unfair to those residing in the extreme portions of the State, and that hereafter the Senate will not practice it, but will attend to the business of those who sent us at least five days in each week; and that the Clerk of the Senate be requested to give an extract from the Journal containing this resolution to the House of Representatives forthwith.

Mr. RIDGWAY moved to amend by striking out the word "Legislature" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "Senate."

Mr. LONDON said it had not been the practice of the Legislature to adjourn every Thursday to Monday night.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, as to regulating the other House, I would rather appoint the Senator from Erie [Mr. Lowry] to go over and give them a verbal lecture. I submit that this is an encroachment on the rights of the other body; if we are going to give them a lecture, we ought to appoint some one to do it.

The amendment of Mr. RIDGWAY was Agreed to.

Mr. SEARIGHT moved to amend by striking out the words "unfair to those residing in the extreme portions of the State," and inserting in lieu thereof the words "unjust to the people."

The amendment was agreed to.

A motion was made to strike out all after the words "five days in each week."

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. RIDGWAY. I move to postpone the further consideration of the resolution indefinitely. I think it is in the power of the Legislature to adjourn at any time. Of course I shall vote for the adjournment. We all know that the Senator from Erie is persistent in his legislation, and has a great many bills to pass, and three days in the week is about as much as I can stand to watch his snakey legislation.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, the Senator has made a statement which the people who know him and who know me do not believe.

On the question, Will the Senate agree to the motion to postpone indefinitely for the yeas and nays were required by Mr. RIDGWAY and Mr. LOWRY, and were as follow, viz:

YEA—Messrs. Bigham, Browne (Lawrence), Burnett, Coleman, Glatz, Haines, Jackson, Landon, M'Candless, Randall, Ridgway, Schall, Stutzman and Walls—14.

NAYS—Messrs. Billingsfelt, Brown (Mercer), Connell, Cowles, Davis, Fisher, Graham, James, Lowry, Royer, Searight, Shoemaker, Taylor, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—16.

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring, Will the Senate agree to the resolution, as amended?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. RIDGWAY and Mr. RANDALL, and were as follow, viz:

YEA—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Cowles, Davis, Fisher, Lowry, Searight, Shoemaker, Taylor, Walls, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—18.

NAYS—Messrs. Browne (Lawrence), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Glatz, Graham, Haines, Jackson, James, Landon, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall and Stutzman—15.

So the question was determined in the negative.

EDUCATION OF SOLDIERS' ORPHANS.

Mr. LONDON offered the following resolution, which was twice read:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed, with instructions to prepare and report a bill providing for the selection of the necessary officer or officers to superintend the education of soldiers' orphans, and providing also for the proper disbursement of funds appropriated for that purpose by the State.

Mr. LOWRY. Where is that power lodged now?

Mr. LANDON. Mr. Speaker, the question propounded by the Senator from Erie [Mr. Lowry] is a very practical one, and one that should receive an answer—where is that power lodged now? I desire to call the attention of the Senate to this subject specially. In 1862, or thereabouts, it will be recollected that the Pennsylvania railroad company made a donation of fifty thousand dollars, to be appropriated to the education of the orphans of soldiers. Accordingly, by referring to the statutes of the State, you will find that in 1864 this act was passed:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania be and is hereby authorized to accept the sum of fifty thousand dollars, donated by the Pennsylvania railroad company, for the education and maintenance of destitute orphan children of deceased soldiers and sailors, and appropriate the same in such manner as he may deem best calculated to accomplish the object designed by said donation; and the accounts of said disbursements to be settled in the usual manner, by the Auditor General and the Governor, and make report of the same to the next Legislature.

That is the whole law concerning that part of it. This was immediately followed by the following correspondence between the Governor and Mr. Burrows:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 16th, 1864. }
 DEAR SIR:—The Legislature having conferred on me authority to expend the sum of fifty thousand dollars (given by the Pennsylvania railroad company) on the education and maintenance of the orphans of deceased Pennsylvania soldiers and sailors, your known patriotism, integrity and ability have led me to select you to superintend such expenditures. I send herewith a commission, appointing you to that office, and should be obliged by your preparing a plan for carrying into effect the intentions of the Legislature.

Your compensation shall be six dollars per day, and necessary traveling expenses. You will also be allowed a clerk at the rate of not more than one hundred dollars a month.

I am sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
 A. G. CURTIN.

Hon. Tho. H. BURROWS.

LANCASTER, June 27, 1864.

SIR:—The following plan has been prepared for carrying into effect the trust you have honored me with in relation to the destitute orphans of the deceased soldiers and sailors from this State. It conforms as nearly as practicable to the bill on the same subject adopted by the proper committee, but not finally acted on by the Legislature at its last session. The reasons for such departures therefrom as are now recommended, and for the additional details suggested, will be fully explained at a personal interview.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

THOMAS H. BURROWS.

His Excellency A. G. CURTIN, Governor of Pennsylvania.

The next point was this: In 1865 the Legislature passed an act appropriating seventy-five thousand dollars to go with the fifty thousand dollars donated by the Pennsylvania railroad company, and also a short section providing for the binding out of these orphans under certain contingencies. In 1869, by referring to the appropriation bill, you will find that three hundred thousand dollars was appropriated for this specific purpose, and that is the beginning and the end of the legislation on this subject, giving away the government of thousands of children control and and thousands of dollars of the public money; and I think this thing should be subject to the control of the Legislature. In the act of 1865 allusion is made to the State Superintendent of orphan schools; there is no such officer known to the law. In view of these facts, I do not know how to reach the desired end better than by offering a resolution providing for a committee of three. And I will now say further, that, if the Speaker please, I do not wish to be upon that committee, sir. I can select three better men than I am, and I presume the Speaker can.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out the words "a committee of three be appointed, with instructions," and insert, in lieu thereof, the words "the Committee on Education be instructed." We would simply be conforming to the constitutional requirements to see that some additional legislation is had; perhaps it was in violation of the Constitution, in leaving three hundred thousand dollars subject entirely to the discretion of one or two individuals.

The amendment was accepted.

Mr. WORTHINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I entirely concur in the remarks made by my friends, the Senator from Bradford [Mr. Landon], and the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. Bigham]. I suppose that this thing has been overlooked. The act passed in 1864, giving the Governor power to control this fifty thousand dollars donated by the railroad company, put the whole thing into the hands of the Governor; and the next year, when we appropriated seventy-five thousand dollars additional, it went in the same way, and last year we passed a bill appropriating three hundred thousand dollars for this same purpose, and still this thing, and the distribution of the money, was not properly considered. Mr. Burrows had been appointed by the late Executive to take charge of this fifty thousand dollars, and his plan for its distribution was concurred in by the Legislature.

This has grown to be a very considerable matter in the State, and it will require a large amount of money yet to carry out this system of education of these orphans. This year, I dare say, we shall want as much as last year, as these children are to be kept in these schools until they are sixteen years old, and that will make it run through a series of years; this year we are near the maximum number, and next year there will be gathered into these schools many more. As a great deal of money will be required, I think it ought to be well guarded. We ought to have officers appointed who shall be entirely responsible for the trust committed to them.

The resolution as amended was adopted.

The SPEAKER gave notice that the Senate had been invited to visit the public institutions of Pittsburg two weeks from to-morrow.

JOINT RESOLUTIONS RELATIVE TO EDGAR COWAN.

On motion of Mr. LOWRY, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled Joint resolutions protesting against the confirmation of Edgar Cowan as minister to Austria.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inquire whether it is customary or proper for the chairman of the Committee on Federal Relations to report a matter as coming from that committee before the committee has been called together?

Mr. LOWRY. I would inform the gentleman that a majority of that committee directed me to report.

In committee of the whole, Mr. COWLES in the chair, the resolutions were read, as follows:

Resolved, That we have learned with indignation that the President of the United States has nominated Edgar Cowan as minister to Austria, to take the place of the accomplished statesman and historian now holding that position. In thus nominating a man who has betrayed his constituents and disregarded his pledges to the people of his native State, and whose course in the Senate has received their marked condemnation, Mr. Johnson seems to have contemplated a direct insult to the freemen of Pennsylvania, and shown his persistent purpose to place the Government in the hands of men who are opposed to the true interests of this nation, foreign and domestic.

Resolved, That we fully approve of the action of the Republican members of Congress in opposing the confirmation of Mr. Cowan, and we unite our protest with theirs, and call on the Senate to reject said nomination, and thereby save the country the shame of being represented abroad by one who in no particular would be a true exponent of American ideas or principles.

Mr. LOWRY moved to amend by adding "that the Governor be requested to forward these resolutions to the Speakers of the two Houses of Congress."

The amendment was agreed to, and the committee rose and reported the bill, as amended.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I move that these resolutions be referred back to the Committee on Federal Relations, so that that committee may have an opportunity to pass upon them in a full meeting of the committee. I would say in explanation, that I ask it as an act of courtesy to the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. Wallace], by whose declension or refusal to accept the nomination for the office of United States Senator Mr. Cowan became the nominee of the Democratic party for that office. I think it is due to the Senator from Clearfield that this subject be postponed until he is present and can give his views on the matter. There can be no pressing, urgent necessity for passing these resolutions at this time. The Senators in Congress for Pennsylvania are Mr. Cowan and Mr. Buckalew. Mr. Cowan will certainly not vote for his own confirmation as minister to Austria. Therefore, there can be no urgent necessity for the passage of these resolutions; and I ask it as a matter of courtesy to the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. Wallace] that this course be taken.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, if these resolutions are to have any practical effect, we had better pass them now, because the subject is before the Senate of the United States. I am not going to say anything further, Mr. Speaker; I do not believe the gentlemen with whom I act will agree to postpone them.

On the question,
 Will the Senate agree to the motion of Mr. Davis?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. M'CANDESS and Mr. DAVIS, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Glatz, Jackson, James, M' Candless, Randall, Schall, Seagriff and Walls—10.

NAYS—Messrs. Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, Ridgway, Royer, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—18.

So the question was determined in the negative.

During the call,
 Mr. BROWN (Lawrence) said: Mr. Speaker, I should like very much to vote for granting the request, but it would require too much delay, and it is important that we should take time by the forelock, and act upon this matter now. I vote "no."

Mr. RIDGWAY, during the call, also said that he was appointed to committees holding back bills, he should vote "no."

Mr. BEARIGHT, Mr. Speaker, the Senator from Erie [Mr. LOWRY] has said that if these resolutions are to have any practical effect, it is absolutely necessary, in his view, that they should be passed through at an early day. I would like to have the Senator inform me what practical effect he expects these resolutions to have, let them pass when they may. The Senator from Berks [Mr. DAVIS] has explained the situation of affairs in the United States Senate, so far as this State is represented there. Of course the instructions contained in this resolution can have no weight with our Senators, and justly so, in my opinion. It appears that the authors and advocates of these resolutions are exceedingly indignant, because they allege that a distinguished historian by the name of Motley is to be superseded in the mission to Austria, by Mr. Cowan, of this State. Now, of course, Senators on the other side do not wish us to understand on this side that they want these resolutions passed on account of that deep-seated indignation. In a country that do not feel so sensible the removal of the distinguished historian as they do the appointment of the distinguished lawyer and statesman, Edgar Cowan. That is the place where the shoe pinches. I take it that they care but little about the fate of the distinguished historian, who is so well honored by the authors of this resolution. I imagine that if some such character as Beast Butler was to be sent in the place of the distinguished historian, we would hear no objection from Senators from the other side of this State. Mr. Speaker, this course of procedure is unusual. It has no parallel in my experience in the history of the legislation of the State of Pennsylvania. Why should not President Johnson appoint Mr. Cowan to this position? I ask Senators on the other side, only. The President is bound, under the Constitution to make this appointment, and I understand, Mr. Speaker, that Mr. Motley has been relieved at his own request. There is, therefore, a vacancy, and who among all the great men of the country would be commended to the favorable consideration of the President of the United States sooner than Edgar Cowan? Is not Edgar Cowan fit for the position? Is not he a patriotic man? Is not he a faithful man in every practical sense of the word? I take it that Senators on the opposite side of this chamber cannot deny that he is such a man? Why, sir, Pennsylvania may well feel proud of Edgar Cowan. Gentlemen on the other side know very well that, as a lawyer, he has but few superiors in this great State, so highly distinguished as it is for its able lawyers; and as a gentleman of high integrity he stands above reproach. He is in every way, sir, well qualified to discharge the duties of this high office; and why should Senators be indignant at his appointment? Sir, the sentiment collected and put into this resolution is a mere ebullition of this vile abuse that is reveling in the breasts of the Senators on the other side of this chamber. It is based upon political hatred towards Mr. Cowan. It is impossible for the friends of the resolution to care for the people of this Commonwealth that Mr. Cowan is not competent in all respects to discharge the duties of this appointment. And furthermore, sir, I would inform the Republican Senators that Mr. Cowan did not solicit, and does not to this day solicit, and it is exceedingly doubtful whether he would accept the position if he should be confirmed. His engagements at home are of such a character as will require his presence there, and prevent him from going abroad in case his nomination should be confirmed.

Another reason why, in my opinion, sir, this resolution is simply political, and means hatred toward Mr. Cowan, is the fact that there is not a single Senator in the city of Washington who does not exactly understand the relation that Mr. Cowan bears to the President and the country, and who does not know that he is well qualified to discharge the duties of this mission.

Mr. Speaker, you cannot advise the Senate of the United States with regard to Mr. Cowan. They understand the man, and know him as well as the members of the Legislature of Pennsylvania. He has made his voice to be heard and felt in the hall of the Senate at Washington. He is well known there, and his commanding talents are acknowledged by men of all parties. Sir, it is alleged by Senators on the opposite side of this Chamber that he has been unfaithful to his party. In what particular, I would ask, gentlemen, has he been unfaithful to his pledges? It is true, sir, that he did not believe the Congress had the right under the Constitution to make a paper money lender. He brought the strong power of his acute legal mind to bear upon this question, and demonstrated that such an act was unconstitutional; and that is one of the instances, I presume, in which he departed from the pledges that it is alleged he gave to the party of the opposition. He could not see that confiscation was a constitutional measure, or that it was expedient and proper. He is no advocate of negro suffrage, and is bold and defiant and patriotic in resisting that infamous measure, and here is one of his departures from the pledges and the measures of the radical party, and this is one of the strong reasons why he is to be denounced in the language that is put into this resolution. But, sir, Senator Cowan has been true to the Union and true to the Constitution; and I defy Senators on the opposite side of this chamber to point to a single instance in which he has been untrue to the Union and to the Constitution. I take it, Mr. Speaker, that this is another reason why he comes in for the denunciations of those Senators. I am surprised, Mr. Speaker, that any gentleman should introduce such a resolution as this and insist upon its early adoption, in order, as the Senator says, that it may have its proper effect. We on this side of the house are under obligations to the goodness of heart which characterized that gentleman, as well as the Senators on the other side. You know, and the Senate knows, and the country knows, that during the administration of Mr. Lincoln the sacred bulwarks of liberty which were gathered together by our fathers of the Revolution, who believed the Constitution to be the fundamental law of the land, were overthrown; and that upon their ruins was placed a sample of the most crushing despotism. Why, sir, men were not allowed to express their sentiments in the smallest propositions. They were not allowed to indulge in freedom of speech, or even in freedom of thought. And, sir, to point to a single instance, in which the Senator from Erie [Mr. LOWRY] was somewhat connected, and connected in such a manner as to place him under obligations to Mr. Cowan, was this case: a number of citizens of the county of Clearfield, I believe, were so unmindful of their duty, I presume had such little regard for the high powers there in authority, that they expressed the opinion that Mr. Lincoln was not an archangel! What was the result, Mr. Speaker? Having entertained this treasonable sentiment, they were all arrested; they were sent for by a Provost Marshal, that sign of Austrian despotism; they were brought here and placed in a miserable prison in this town, and kept there in close confinement, without any of the comforts necessary for their existence for weeks and months, and, sir, they were not released until the gentleman from Erie undertook their case, and went to Washington and had an order issued to release them. For this act of kindness and patriotism on the part of the Senator from Erie, the Democratic party will ever be grateful to him. He showed himself in that instance to be a friend of liberty, and the enemy of despotism. More than that, sir, I take it, sir, that the Senator from Erie has a letter in his possession which was addressed to President Lincoln, which has never been published and which, if published to-day and could go out along with the discussion on this resolution, would place the Senator, I fear, in a very inconsistent position in relation to this subject. Why, sir, he took the very ground in that letter to Mr. Lincoln in behalf of the release of these prisoners, that Mr. Cowan has taken in the Senate of the United States. Senator Cowan is to be denounced because he would not adhere to certain despotic measures proposed by the administration at Washington, and the most prominent of those measures was discussed by the Senator from Erie himself in his own eloquent and sound terms.

Now, Mr. Speaker, this resolution, I presume, will pass; but, sir, there will be a day of reckoning, and I am not of the opinion that Senators who vote for this resolution will, when the day of reckoning comes, feel proud that they have gone upon the record in favor of this resolution.

Mr. OWRY, Mr. Speaker, the gentleman has alluded to a letter that I wrote to the authorities at Washington; I have not got a copy of that letter, but there is such a letter, and I will get it and publish it in the Record in connection with his own speech, and by it I am willing to be judged.

Mr. M'CANDELESS moved to amend the resolutions by striking out all after the enacting clause and by inserting in lieu thereof the following:

Resolved, That the action of the President of the United States in nominating the Hon. Edgar Cowan as Minister to Austria merits the commendation of the white men of Pennsylvania.

Resolved, That the manly course pursued by Edgar Cowan, on the great question of individual rights and constitutional law in the Senate of the United States, endears him to the hearts of the citizens of Pennsylvania.

Resolved, That the Governor of our State forward the foregoing resolution to the President of the United States.

Mr. M'CANDELESS, Mr. Speaker, after so much has been said and, so well said, by my colleague, I think it is hardly necessary to say much to the Senate of Pennsylvania in relation to the Hon. Edgar Cowan. He is a living monument, sir, of a great mind, a man, sir, who loves his country better than he loves a political party; and standing in that position, with relation to the individual rights of the citizens and the Constitution and law of the United States, I think it is but a just tribute to him that the President has nominated him to the high position as Minister to Austria. And it comes with very bad grace from the gentlemen who have elevated him to his present position to attempt to stigmatize him because he is carrying out their principles. They should not attempt to stigmatize those who will not change with them. If they chose to make him their representative in certain great principles, and they chosp to change they cannot pile contempt upon his head because he was steadfast to those principles. I hope this substitute, for the honor of the party who are attempting to place this stigma upon their representative in Congress, will be adopted instead of the original resolution.

Mr. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to take the attention of the Senate but for a moment. I shall vote against this substitute, and I wish now simply to notice the remarks of the last gentleman on the floor [Mr. M'CANDESS]. It is charged, sir, that it is in bad grace for this side of the Chamber to vote for these resolutions denouncing Mr. Cowan, from the fact that he was elevated to this high position by the votes of gentlemen on this side of the Chamber. Now, sir, I would like to ask, if it is in bad grace, why the gentlemen on the other side, who were opposed to his election, who denounced him then, who did everything to defeat his election, are now so earnestly defending him? It has been frequently said that the Democratic party does not change, and never changes. Mr. Cowan, it is well known, was one of the most radical men in the Republican party. At the time of his election, the objection to him was that he was too radical for the party. Now, sir, either Mr. Cowan has changed and deserted his principles, or the Democratic party, which are told never changes, must have changed.

Mr. M'CANDESS. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will allow me, I desire to ask him a question, which is this: Whether the party he acts with were in favor of negro suffrage at the time Edgar Cowan was elevated by them to the Senate of the United States?

Mr. COWLES. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order, which is this: That the resolution, or the amendment of the Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. M'CANDESS] was out of order, inasmuch as it was the resolution of the Senator from Erie [Mr. Lowry], and I would refer to the forty-second rule, which is as follows:

"No bill or resolution shall at any time be amended by annexing thereto, or incorporating therewith, any other bill or resolution pending before the House; nor shall a motion or proposition be entertained under the color of such an amendment; nor shall any bill or resolution be amended by substituting therefor, under a motion to strike out, or otherwise, any other bill or resolution, on a subject different from that under consideration, without the unanimous consent of the House."

This amendment is directly in opposition to the resolution before the Senate; it is inconsistent with it; it is not a modification of it, but in conflict with it. The resolution before the Senate is substantially a censure of Edgar Cowan; the amendment presented by the Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. M'CANDESS] is in the commendation of Edgar Cowan, and changes the character of it entirely. That is the point of order I raise.

The SPEAKER. I do not agree with the Senator from M'Kean [Mr. Cowles]. The resolution offered on the one hand reflects upon Edgar Cowan; the other commends him. I do not think the amendment is inconsistent; it is directly in conflict, but not inconsistent. The resolution alleges that Mr. Cowan has done what is wrong; the amendment, that he has done what is right. The amendment is not inconsistent with the original proposition, and it is in order.

Mr. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, a gentleman on the other side of the Hall asked me why the Republican party were, at the time of the election of Mr. Cowan to the Senate of the United States, in favor of negro suffrage. I am not able, sir, to answer the gentleman in regard to Mr. Cowan's position, who was at that time a leader, and one of the most radical leaders in the Republican party. I do not know, sir, whether Mr. Cowan had declared himself in favor of negro suffrage or not. I do not know, however, that this is an age of progress, a favor that remains. The changes have taken place in the condition of this country since that time; and that the Republican party, which carried the nation through the war of treason, has progressed and made mighty strides, while some men in the party have stood still, or gone back. I shall vote to denounce Mr. Cowan, because I think he has turned his back upon the principles of the party which elevated him to power. I do not say he has no right to change his opinions, but he had no right to desert his principles and have the manhood to resign the position which he had gained by professing such principles, if he could no longer act with his party. I shall vote, then, for these resolutions, because I think Edgar Cowan has deserted the principles of the great Union party of the country, and would not be a representative man if sent abroad.

Mr. BURNETT. Mr. Speaker, party spirit, when well curbed and regulated, I regard as the very life-blood of the Republic; but party spirit that has no curb or trammel, that attacks, in order to subservise a party purpose, men high in official position, and only to reach the Chief Executive of the nation, but the Supreme Court and Senators occupying high positions in the Senate of the United States, upon the mere paltry ground that they do not entertain political sentiments that tally with the sentiments of the party that placed them in power, is exceedingly reprehensible. I should like Senators on the other side of this chamber, before they vote for the resolutions now pending, to show to us and to the public some reason for that vote. I deny that this Legislature has the right to instruct, pre-emptorily, our United States Senators, as to their course upon any given public question, much less to censure or follow with a spirit of unrelentless persecution he who has acted conscientiously and patriotically in the discharge of his official duty.

Now, I would ask Senators upon the other side of this chamber whether United States Senators are mere automatons, or whether, when they are elected and take their seats in the United States Senate, they are to be controlled in the discharge of their official duties by the dictates of their own judgment and in obedience to the sanction of their official oaths, or whether they are mere pliant tools in the hands of their State Legislatures. Now I believe, sir, that where a United States Senator, in the discharge of his duties, has acted corruptly, fraudulently or venally, then I will grant to this Legislature the power and the authority to censure, but I do deny that this Legislature has the power and the right to censure a member of the United States Senate upon the mere fact that his political views may not accord with the views of the Legislature of the State which he represents. Why, sir, take the example set by England. When the British Cabinet inaugurates a governmental policy that is distasteful to the British people, the Cabinet passes out of political power and a new Cabinet is called into existence. But the British Parliament does not censure and attack the retiring Cabinet for a mere difference of political sentiments upon public questions. Never!

But where an officer, while in official position, is guilty of corruption, fraud or venality, then it is the duty of the Parliament to censure. I would ask the gentlemen on the other side of this Chamber whether Senator Cowan has been guilty of any dereliction of political duty to his party? Lay your finger on a single line where he has repudiated any recognized doctrine of your party at the time of his election. He has stood by Andrew Johnson, your President; he has stood by your Cabinet; he stands by the side of William H. Seward, the Premier of the Government. And since he has had a seat in the United States Senate, without disparaging the merits of others, I believe that he has proven himself the peer of any man on that floor in the advocacy, the eloquent advocacy, of the great principles of constitutional law. I would ask Senators to point out a single speech or a single vote that has not been in accordance and in entire accordance with the policy, the political maxims, the political predilections that you entertained at the time of the election of Senator Cowan. On the question of negro suffrage you did not dare at that day to open your lips, and down to the day on which the convention met that nominated General Geary, you did not dare to broach the doctrine of negro suffrage. John W. Forney, the owner of two papers, "both daily," when it was charged that the Republican party did not dare to broach the subject of negro suffrage in that convention, said that the only excuse they could offer was that they do not urge that subject legitimately until 1870, when it would be proper to add another amendment to the Constitution of Pennsylvania. But that was a specious argument. It was because the delegates of the Republican party in that convention did not dare to touch the subject as you have in this Senate—as it is advocated in the leading newspapers of your party in the country. Furthermore, I declare that Senator Cowan, in the discharge of his official duties, stood by the side of Mr. Cameron when he was Secretary of War. I assert, further, that you cannot lay your finger upon a single argument of Senator Cowan upon any leading question that has absorbed the attention of the United States Senate during the rebellion, that did not and does not exactly dovetail into the views and sentiments of Mr. Cameron upon the great questions of the day, when he held the portfolio of the War Department. And I will do Mr. Cameron the justice to say that he had a clear idea of the magnitude of the rebellion, and a more comprehensive view of the tremendous effort that would be required for its suppression, than either Mr. Lincoln or any other man connected with the Government at the time.

I would ask Senators whether they are consistent in striking down Mr. Cowan with one hand and elevating Mr. Cameron with the other? "Consistency, thou art a jewel."

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, I would have been willing to vote on these resolutions without a word, but I hope they will not be pressed to a vote to-day; as the door has been opened for discussion, I desire to pay my respects to the late Democratic party before this question is disposed of.

Mr. BIGHAM. As this matter is not to be disposed of to-day, and as the resolutions are not in the form that some of us would like them, I move that the resolutions, together with the amendments, be re-committed to the Committee on Federal Relations.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. RANDALL and M'CANDESS, and were as follows:

Yeas—Messrs. Bigham, Billingfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Davis, Glatz, Haines, Jackson, James, M' Candless, Randall, Schall and Seagrath—14.

NAYS—Messrs. Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Lowry, Royer, Shoemaker, Statzman, Taylor, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—13.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, informed the Senate that the House of Representatives had concurred in the resolution of the Senate providing for an adjournment of the two Houses until Tuesday, the 29th inst., striking out 3 p. m. and inserting 11 A. M.

On motion of Mr. RIDGWAY, said amendment was twice read, considered and concurred in.

Ordered, that the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

The hour of one o'clock having arrived, the SPEAKER adjourned the Senate until Tuesday next at 11 A. M.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, January 24, 1867.

The House met at 11 o'clock, A. M.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. JACOB KENNEDY, member from Wyoming.

The SPEAKER announced a quorum of members present.

The Journal of yesterday was partly read, when,

On motion of Mr. CHASE, the further reading of the same was dispensed with.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

Senate bill No. 21, an act to incorporate the Sisters of Mercy in the city of Philadelphia.

Senate bill No. 70, An act to establish a ferry over the Youghiogheny river near Perryopolis.

SPEAKER'S TABLE.

The SPEAKER presented to the House the annual report of the managers of the Children's Home for the borough and county of York.

Laid on the table.

The SPEAKER proceeded to clear the table.

IN THE SENATE, January 23, 1867.

WHEREAS, The State Treasurer, in his annual report, calls the attention of the Legislature to the present tax on personal property, operating, as he alleges, unequally and unjustly, on various districts, and recommends its repeal, and the apportionment of three hundred thousand dollars in lieu thereof, upon more equitable principles; therefore, be it

Resolved, That, if the House concur, the State Treasurer be requested to communicate to both branches of the Legislature such an apportionment as will, in his judgment, do equal justice to all portions of the State, the same to be based on the returns in his office; and to state the amount of the three hundred thousand dollars which he believes ought to be charged upon the city of Philadelphia and upon each county in the State.

The resolution was

Agreed to.

Senate bill No. 64, a further supplement to an act to incorporate the Girard life insurance, annuity and trust company, of Philadelphia, passed March 17th, 1836.

Referred to the Committee on Corporations.

Senate bill No. 60, an act changing the time of holding courts in the Sixteenth Judicial district.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

BILL PASSED.

Senate bill No. 69, a supplement to an act to incorporate the Peoples' Savings Bank, of Pittsburgh, approved April 17, 1866, authorising said company to increase its capital stock. Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, I understand that there is a pressing necessity for the passage of that bill, from the fact that after Monday next they will not be able to get a suitable building for their business. They are compelled to give an answer by Monday next. This House is about to adjourn until next week, and I, therefore, move a suspension of the rules that the bill may pass to-day.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Senate bill No. 71, an act to divide the Northwest ward, in the city of Lancaster, into election precincts and separate election districts.

Referred to the Committee on Election Districts.

Senate bill No. 82, an act to consolidate the Union coal company and the Howard coal and iron company.

Referred to the Committee on Iron and Coal.

Senate bill No. 106, an act to exempt from taxation certain property devoted to Masonic uses in the city of Reading.

Senate bill No. 107, an act to incorporate the Myiugs iron company.

Referred to the Committee on Iron and Coal.

BILL PASSED.

Senate bill No. 108, an act to incorporate the Safe Deposit company of Pittsburgh.

Mr. M'KEE. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. M'KEE. Mr. Speaker, I understand that the parties interested in this Safe Deposit association have the refusal of the property which they expect to occupy until next Monday. I therefore ask a suspension of the rules in order that the bill may pass to-day.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The bill was read a second and third times, and

Passed finally.

SENATE AMENDMENTS CONCURRED IN.

House bill No. 71, entitled An act changing the venue of certain cases from the county of Juniata to the county of Snyder.

Returned with amendments.

The question being, Will the House concur? it was

Agreed to.

RESOLUTIONS OFFERED ON LEAVE.

Mr. KERN'S. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to offer a resolution.

Leave was granted.

Mr. KERN'S. I offer the following resolution:

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That the Military Committee, in conjunction with the Adjutant General and His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, be, and they are hereby instructed to report to this House a bill for the regulation of the militia of the State.

Resolved, That the said committee are hereby authorized to call to their aid such persons as they may desire, having knowledge of the subject hereby submitted to its consideration; and that before presenting any bill for the consideration of the Legislature, the same shall be referred to the Attorney General for his opinion of its legal preparation and construction.

The resolution was read a second time.

The question was on agreeing to the first resolution.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that it would be more respectful to say "requested" than "instructed." I think it would be hardly proper to instruct officers outside of the Legislature.

Mr. KERN'S. Mr. Speaker, I accept the amendment suggested.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I will also suggest another amendment. I am informed that some of the members of the Senate feel a little sensitive in regard to the action taken in this House on some resolutions. I know that no member intended any slight. In fact, for myself, I am willing to put it entirely upon ignorance. We have passed a resolution in which it seems, upon reflection, that the Senate should have been consulted. Now, this is a subject of vast importance, and I suggest that it would be better to make this a joint resolution, asking the Senate to concur with us in making this request. I therefore move, with the approbation of the gentleman who offered this resolution, that it be made a joint one.

The question was on the amendment.

Mr. BOYLE. I do not design to offer any opposition to this resolution. I am in favor, in fact, of remodeling the militia law of the Commonwealth. But it does seem to me a most singular proceeding that the two Houses of the Legislature should unite in framing a bill in the first instance. The introduction of a bill, or the framing of a bill, should be confined to one House. We should proceed regularly. That is one objection, but there is another objection that far transcends that, and it is the calling in of the Governor and the Adjutant General, and, for that matter, all the people of the State, for the committee has the right to call upon anybody to help get up this bill. Under the Constitution the Governor is required to perform certain legislative duties. When the bill has passed both Houses, and comes before him, then would be the proper time for him to approve and sign it, or to veto it. It is a breach of the privileges of this Legislature for the Governor or Adjutant General, or anybody else, outside of it, to prepare bills and present them here for our consideration. This is a departure from the general course of original bills, and I wish to particularly call the attention of the House to it. Let us pass the bill without requiring the Governor's opinions or the opinions of anybody else, and then send it to the Governor, in the regular way, for his approval or rejection.

Mr. KERN'S. Mr. Speaker, at the request of a number of military men in the city of Philadelphia, this resolution has been prepared. No one here will attempt to deny that the militia law of our Commonwealth is defective. We have in Philadelphia the nucleus of a number of regiments, and, for the want of a proper enactment to enforce the fines and penalties passed upon those who do not serve, they are, in fact, able to do nothing. I think that to call in the Governor in reference to this bill is but right and proper. He is commander-in-chief of the forces of the State, and, in connection with the Adjutant General of the State, should be allowed to assist in framing a law that will give him power to call out such persons as they may think proper. A short time since we passed a militia law, which we can do nothing with. We might as well not have it on the statute books. For that reason, this resolution has been prepared, and I think, with the aid of the parties named, such a bill can be prepared that will give some effectiveness to the militia of the Commonwealth.

The question being on the amendment of Mr. MANN, it was

Agreed to.

GEO. BERGNER.

The resolution, as amended, was

Agreed to.

The second resolution being before the House, it was

Agreed to.

Mr. M'CREARY, Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to offer the following resolution.

Leave was granted.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That the committee in the contested election case of Mr. ROVEN have leave to proceed to Williamsport, in the further discharge of their duties as said committee.

The resolution was read a second time.

Mr. M'CREARY, Mr. Speaker, in the investigation of this case we have ascertained that there may be an immense number of witnesses examined. We have already examined quite a number of witnesses and, as the case develops, it seems very evident, that one or two hundred witnesses will be examined. It is very difficult to get all the witnesses here just as we want to. As the parties and witnesses are all in the neighborhood of Williamsport, it would diminish the expense and also facilitate the discharge of the duties of the committee to go there. The committee are very anxious to get through with the duties that have been imposed upon them, and think it would be to the advantage of all concerned to go to Williamsport. The question being, Will the House agree to the resolution?

It was agreed to.

Mr. SHARPLES, Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to offer the following resolution.

Leave was granted.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That the use of this hall be tendered to General John Frazier, on Wednesday evening next, for the delivery of a lecture—subject: "The Education of the Industrial Classes."

The resolution was read a second time.

The question being, Will the House agree to the resolution?

It was agreed to.

Mr. STUMBAUGH, Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to offer the following resolution.

Leave was granted.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That the committee on the contested election case of Marshal against Rouch be, and they are hereby, authorized to employ a phonographic reporter.

The resolution was read a second time.

Mr. STUMBAUGH, Mr. Speaker, I only desire to say, as has been already stated, that there are a great many witnesses to be examined, and the employment of a phonographic reporter will facilitate the business of the committee very much.

The question being, Will the House agree to the resolutions? it was Agreed to.

PUBLIC CALENDAR.

This being the day for the consideration of bills on the public calendar,

Mr. DAVIS took the chair in committee of the whole, on House bill No. 100, which reads as follows:

No. 100, joint resolution instructing our Senators and requesting our Representatives in Congress to procure a reduction of tax on petroleum.

WHEREAS, Petroleum has become one of the great staples of Pennsylvania, and of vast national importance, and as such deserving encouragement, not only by the people of this Commonwealth, but of the General Government;

And whereas, This great staple, which is now recognized as a national necessity, and has become one of our most important exports, is burdened with excessive taxation on each barrel of oil (refined), amounting to eight dollars, while the price of oil (unrefined) is less than two dollars per barrel;

And whereas, The present enormous taxation, amounting to one hundred per centum, is not only oppressive, but destructive of this great interest; therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it resolved, &c., That our Senators in Congress be instructed, and our Representatives requested, to use all honorable means to procure the reduction or removal of the tax on refined petroleum.

Resolved, That the Governor be, and he is hereby, requested to furnish to each Senator and Representative in Congress a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolutions.

The bill was read, and

Agreed to.

THE SPEAKER having resumed the chair, Mr. DAVIS, chairman of the committee of the whole, reported the bill without amendment.

The bill was again read, and

Agreed to.

Will the House agree to the bill?
Mr. WADDELL, Mr. Speaker, I would suggest to the gentleman from Venango [Mr. WHANN], that there is one phrase that would perhaps look like a reflection upon Congress: "Instead of receiving the fostering care of Congress, it is burdened with taxation." Would it not be better to leave out the words, "Instead of receiving the fostering care of Congress?"
Mr. WHANN, Mr. Speaker, the suggestion is a good one, and I accept the amendment.

The title was read.

Mr. DAVIS, Mr. Speaker, I would like to amend the title so as to make it conform with the bill. The bill reads: "Instruct our Senators and request our members." The title reads, "instruct" both. That is not the usual mode of expression, and I would move to amend so as to read: "Instruct our Senators and request our members."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The title as amended, was

Agreed to.

The rules were then suspended, the bill was read a second and third time, and
Passed finally.

Mr. QUIGLEY took the chair in committee of the whole on House bill No. 103, which reads as follows:

No. 103, an act to regulate the salary of the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That from and after the passage of this act the salary of the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall be thirty-five hundred dollars.

The bill was read, and

Agreed to.

THE SPEAKER having resumed the chair, Mr. QUIGLEY, chairman of the committee of the whole, reported the bill without amendment.

The bill was again read.

The question being,

Will the House agree to the bill?

It was agreed to.

On motion, the rules were suspended, the bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Mr. QUAY took the chair, in committee of the whole, on House bill No. 104, which reads as follows:

AN ACT to repeal an act of the thirtieth of March, A. D. one thousand, eight hundred and sixty-six, to provide for the payment of gratuities and annuities, to the soldiers of the war of 1812, and to their widows.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the act of the 30th day of March, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, entitled An act to provide for the payment of gratuities and annuities to the soldiers of the war of one thousand eight hundred and twelve, and to their widows, be and the same is hereby repealed.

The bill was read and

Agreed to.

THE SPEAKER having resumed the chair, Mr. QUAY, chairman of the committee of the whole, reported the bill without amendment.

The bill was again read.

The question being, Will the House agree to the bill?

Mr. QUIGLEY, Mr. Speaker, I would like to hear some reason from the gentleman who has charge of this bill why we should pass it.

Mr. FREEBORN, Mr. Speaker, I would state that I was chairman of the Committee on Pensions and Gratuities last session. The applications were so numerous, and the names of these applicants for gratuities so numerous, and as amount to some eight or ten thousand dollars; therefore, the committee thought it best to get up a general bill. The gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN], I believe, drew up the bill, and the result has been that, up to the present time, there has been upwards of one hundred and sixty-eight thousand dollars paid out of the treasury to meet these applications. Some of the parties who have drawn this annuity through their agents are very wealthy. Previous to the passage of this act, the expense of the State to meet applications from this source amounted to only eight or ten thousand dollars. Thirty or forty thousand dollars more will probably be required to meet the applications now under consideration. Therefore, the Committee of Ways and Means were unanimous in reporting this bill, thinking it much better that each case should come before the Legislature separately, and be acted upon separately, than to thus leave the treasury open to possible fraud.

Mr. HEADMAN. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that this bill is gotten up to take away from these persons what little the State has granted them for a subsistence. The bill which it is proposed to repeal, was gotten up for the purpose of taking further legislation on this matter out of the Legislature. Therefore, we are bound to death by these applications for gratuities. As the law now stands, a person has to go before a magistrate, and swear that he is in such necessitous circumstances as to be entitled to this pension. And there is scarcely a man in this Commonwealth who is willing to swear he is in "necessitous circumstances." According to Webster, a man in "necessitous circumstances" is nothing more than a pauper. There are many soldiers and widows of soldiers of the war of 1812, and the dependent upon their families for support. Yet they have that feeling in them that they will not go and swear that they are in "necessitous circumstances," although they have nothing on which to live. If these persons are actually destitute and obliged to go into the poor house, they go and are supported by the public authorities. If a man is in the poor house and is a pauper he is not then in necessitous circumstances? Yet he must go before the proper officer and swear that he is in necessitous circumstances in order to get forty dollars per year. If he is maintained in the poor house it is at the public expense, and yet many are so sensitive that they will not go before a magistrate and certify to being in what is termed "necessitous circumstances." The way that I look at this thing is that a man, no matter what his circumstances are, no matter what his standing in society is, I say that if he has performed certain duties for his country he is entitled to all that is allowed in the way of pension and gratuity. I shall therefore go against this bill, and I hope ever so soon on this floor will go against it for the simple fact that the amount of legislation that would be required to get these bills through separately would cost more than is granted by this. The Auditor General says that he supposes thirty thousand would cover the entire number of survivors of the soldiers of 1812, and there is scarcely a man living, who was in that war, who has not arrived at an age of between seventy and eighty years. I would like to see how long these men are going to live. They cannot survive many years longer, and they will soon have entirely passed away.

Mr. MECHEM. Mr. Speaker, I hope this bill will not be repealed. It was passed last winter with the understanding that all the applications made were to be sent to the Auditor General. The law has been made, and if it is now repealed many worthy persons, who are entitled to a gratuity, will have to have a special bill presented before this Legislature, in order to receive any further aid from the State Treasury. I presented two bills here last winter granting aid to persons of that character. If this law is repealed it will prevent these persons from receiving any further aid, and it is a good and just law, and I hope it will not be repealed.

Mr. DAVIS. I think, sir, Mr. Speaker, that the subject of pensions to soldiers belongs to the General Government, and not to the citizens; and if the law that is proposed to be repealed is carried out to its legitimate conclusions, there is no State that would be able to furnish sufficient money to pay the claims that would be presented. For the same reason that you take in the soldiers of the war of 1812, you would take in the soldiers of the last war. This is just treatment, and they would be entitled to a pension also. I believe that every person who was entitled to a pension under the laws of the United States has received it. All soldiers of the war of 1812 have already been provided for by the United States Government. The statement made that already two hundred thousand dollars had been paid out of the treasury after the passage of this bill, is sufficient to show that the finances of this State alone will not stand such a pressure.

It is not only so, other reasons. During the war of 1812 there were probably not more than one-half the number of States that there are at present. If the States that furnished the soldiers during the war of 1812 granted pensions, all of the new and wealthy States in the Western part of our country would have to pay nothing, while the States that furnished the soldiers would have to continue to pay these pensions. These men are scattered everywhere throughout all the States, and it is nothing but justice to all the States that they should be paid by the General Government, believe that about half of this money that has been paid out of the treasury since the passage of this act has gone to pension agents and speculators, and that the soldiers themselves do not get the benefit of it at all.

I just wish to read one article from the report of the State Treasurer upon this very subject, and it will probably present the facts in a clearer light than anything that I can say:

"The act granting pensions to soldiers of the war of 1812, approved March 30, 1856, has cost the State far more than its friends could have anticipated. The number of applicants already exceed twenty-eight hundred (2,800); and the amount paid, over one hundred and sixty thousand dollars ($160,000).

"I regard the passage of this act as a very unfortunate example for the future Legislatures. The granting of pensions is a duty belonging to the General Government. To compel the States, by whom the men of 1812 were furnished, to pension them from their own resources, is to entail the total expense upon the State, and depriving the Union, and allow the balance entire exemption. This is unfair, and the Legislature, by passing this bill, has set an example, which, if followed to its legitimate conclusion, would require the entire revenue of the State for the next forty years. It should be forthwith repealed. If there are individual cases of particular merit, they should go before the Legislature and ask for special legislation, where their claims can be properly examined, and testimony taken from persons personally acquainted with each applicant."

Now, sir, I think this act, as it was reported unanimously by the Committee of Ways and Means, should be passed.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, I think that the gentleman from Philadelphia (Mr. DAVIS) is mistaken, when he says that any provision has been made by the General Government for paying the soldiers of 1812—any pension or gratuity. My information upon this subject is different. Bills have been presented in Congress to that effect, but, heretofore, they have not been passed. When such an act shall have been passed, it will then be the proper time to repeal this law. But if Congress shall have passed some law, unless we desire that the soldiers of the war of 1812 shall eke out their existence in the alms houses of the country, we must provide some gratuity for them by State legislation. I believe that it is the duty of Congress to make this provision, but as they have not done so, unless, in most of the cases that have come to my knowledge, this gratuity is continued, they will probably have to give the alms houses to be supported by the precarious charity of the community in which they may happen to reside. And I desire to call attention to the fact that, under the terms of the act of Assembly by which these persons can receive this annuity, it must be made to appear that they are in necessitous circumstances; and the Auditor General, in consideration of this provision, has required, what we may well call an "iron clad" oath, by which the parties themselves are not only to swear to this, but they must prove the same by witnesses. No person can have this gratuity, unless he is in necessitous circumstances, and certain we will not, at this time, take from men under such circumstances the only gratuity they now receive.

Mr. BARTON. Mr. Speaker, the object for which this bill was passed has my sympathy. I think we should take every possible care of those who have defended our country, not only during the war of 1812, but in every other war. But, sir, I think this has proven an uncalled for expense; and I can see no reason why we should discriminate, especially in favor of the soldiers of the war of 1812. There are many needy persons, even of our late war, who demand the sympathy and the care of this State. But if we carry out this project to its legitimate extent, we must make such provisions as will burden the treasury of our State. Now, Mr. Speaker, it appears that, prior to the passage of this act, it required but from eight to ten thousand dollars to meet the cases which came before this Legislature; but during the eight months since this act was passed it has taken something like one hundred and sixty thousand dollars, with an estimate from forty thousand to fifty thousand more. It does seem to me that this is a very expensive way of legislating for these soldiers. There is either this fact, that the bill has called out a great many needy persons, or else a great many persons have been induced to apply, since its passage, from mercenary considerations.

Now, the difference between eight thousand and two hundred thousand dollars is sufficient to make this House feel its way to this question. It was stated to the Committee of Ways and Means—and I have little doubt of its truth—that a great portion of the money went into the hands of agents, and it was also stated and facts furnished to prove that many persons made affidavit that they were in necessitous circumstances when, in fact, they were worth a considerable amount of money. I think, with my friend from Philadelphia, that the subject of pensions should be entirely controlled by the National Government. When States take it out of the National Government it is liable to another abuse—the State and the National Governments would be paying these gratuities at the same time, and thus create a great burden upon the treasury. Still, my sympathies are in favor of a project to alleviate the distresses of those soldiers, and widows of soldiers, of the war of 1812; and, in fact, of all others who have stood up manfully and protected and defended their country. Yet, I think the repeal of this act is desirable.

on account of the abuses which are constantly occurring in reference to it.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, this abuse has been allowed to creep into the operation of this law, and it imparts all the objections indicated by the gentleman from Bucks [Mr. HEADMAN], that no matter what a man's circumstances may be, he is considered entitled to this gratuity and annuity, and this mistake, that it is regarded in the light of a pension, while it can in no sense be so looked upon. Every man of the war of 1812 who was entitled to a pension from the General Government received that pension.

Some of these parties who are making application for this support now, were never beyond the confines of their counties, or were not out more than twenty days, for which services they received one month's pay and one hundred and sixty acres of land. Therefore, they are clearly not entitled to a pension.—Sir, if the provisions of this bill are intended to be carried out, I have no earthly objection to it.

But the idea that a man worth a million of dollars, is entitled to a gratuity of forty dollars to be himself an immediate distress, is absurd and ridiculous.

Mr. HEADMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to explain. I never said any such thing. I said that I was in favor of giving this gratuity to every man. I say if a man was worth one hundred thousand dollars, and fought for his country, he is just as much entitled to it as the man who is not worth a dollar.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I say that a man worth a hundred thousand dollars is not entitled to a gratuity and annuity from this Legislature to save him from want and necessity.

That is what I say. It is merely a question between the ipse dixit of the gentleman from Bucks and myself, and I think I have the advantage. I know if I had a hundred thousand dollars I would take the risk of my personal right and would not grumble about it either.

I say that a great many of the parties who have been receiving these gratuities and annuities are persons not entitled to it under the law. Let the gentleman who holds such an idea pass a law that every man shall come up and get a gratuity of forty dollars to be paid under the provisions of this act; let him make that amendment and try it awhile; let him aver that every man, no matter whether he has a hundred thousand dollars, or is not worth enough to keep him out of necessity, is entitled to a gratuity and annuity under the provisions of this bill; let him sweep away the barriers that surround the treasury and allow these cormorants to have their share. There is a gentleman not two miles from this House who consulted a lawyer in this town and said to him, I want you to look after this matter of mine before the Legislature. The lawyer replied: "Well, if you will swear that you are in necessary circumstances you can get it. He knew this person had at interest, at that time, a number of thousand dollars. The individual studied a moment and then asked if there was not some "way of getting around it." That is the effect this law has. These vampires fatten and feed upon these poor old people. The relief never gets to those who are really in want. If you circumvent these vampires in some way, I shall have no objection to the continuance of the bill. Why are not the soldiers of the Mexican war equally entitled to a gratuity? Why are not the soldiers of the present war equally entitled to the same gratuity? There is no advantage in granting these gratuities when we have soldiers' wives leading their children about this Hall begging for pennies. Make it so that every one who is entitled, clearly and fairly, to this gratuity shall base his claim upon presented personal reasons and then it will be more equitable. Unless you do that you must have the mines of Golconda and two or three pension bureaus to dispose of all these claims. You must create a bureau in this State for the purpose of granting annuities to the soldiers and the widows of soldiers of the war of 1812. It is utterly impossible for the present officers, in addition to their other duties, to perform these services.

I am in favor of this bill, although it will press hard upon some people; but unless you can protect the treasury of the State against those parties who are not entitled to this gratuity or make a law such as is suggested by the gentleman from Bucks [Mr. HEADMAN], that everybody, no matter what his circumstances, is entitled to a gratuity of forty dollars I shall vote for this bill.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, inasmuch as I propose to vote for the repeal of this law, I desire to make a statement. Last year when this act was passed, this House, I believe, thought it best to give meritorious persons who had served in the war of 1812, or their wives or orphans, a gratuity. The county that I had the honor in part to represent, by the report of the Adjutant General, had a total of five hundred and forty dollars; yet I know that in that county most of the cases that made application for gratuities came through the hands of an agent who had served in the rebel army, and the most of these claims were for men not in necessitous circumstances, but rather men of property. Now, there are men who are worthy of obtaining this gratuity who are not excluded in this law, as it provides only for those who have served sixty days. It seems to me, therefore, that it would be better to repeal the law, and let men to let men live in different circumstances receive this gratuity, and, at the same time deprive those who are most deserving of its privileges.

Mr. HEADMAN. I do not see why this should be an argument for having this law repealed. The Adjutant General has the law on his side, and can prosecute any person making false claims.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I have been personally cognizant of a number of parties that ought to be reached by criminal prosecution, who having effected this wrong, have placed themselves outside the pale of the law, and the parties that are involved ought not to be prosecuted, because they are innocent. Now this case will illustrate:

An affidavit is drawn up and a claim agent comes to a man and says, "Mr. A—, you are entitled to a gratuity of sixty dollars, and you have only to sign a paper that you were in the war of 1812, in order to receive it." He signs his name to the paper without any knowledge of the oath he has subscribed to. I grant that it is not right for a man to sign his name to a paper that he does not read, but when he signs, supposing that the explanation given to him is the resumption of the facts in the case. This has occurred in half a dozen instances to my knowledge, where the men have returned the money to the State Treasury, which they knew they were not entitled to, after learning the true facts. These agents then go to others, because it requires two witnesses to the facts. They go to an old man in the township, who can perhaps hardly write his name at all, and say to him, "Do you remember that A— was in the army during the war of 1812?" "Oh, yes, he was," says the same company who were asleep in the same tent, and messed with me." "Will you be so kind as to sign a paper to that effect?" "Yes," and down goes his name. And this is but one of the ways taken to procure affidavits of "personally appeared before," &c., when the oath was never administered. Thus affidavits are obtained that the parties are in "necessitous circumstances," when the persons whose names are affixed to the affidavits have no more conception of the statements therein contained than of taking a fight to the moon. Will you bring these men up for perjury, while the men who were agents in the affair are outside the pale of the law, where they can stand and laugh at their victims? Would you institute a proceeding of that kind against men, high-toned and honorable, favoring high regard for honesty, and send them to State prison for perjury? I am not in favor of any such proposition. I do not think a law can be made much more expressive or stronger than this law, as it provides that when one of the parties testifies to that which is untrue in the body of the application, he shall be subject to the pains and penalties of perjury. I know of three or four persons in my own town, men who are deserving in every respect and above any applications of that sort, who would have to go to State prison if this law was enforced against them.

Mr. HEADMAN. Mr. Speaker, I agree with the gentleman so far as to the fact, he mentions your concerns, and I have no doubt cases of that kind occur daily. But a case also came to my attention this week. I received a letter from a gentleman eighty years of age, who resides in Philadelphia, making inquiries in reference to this matter. Soon after I met him in the streets of that city, and he told me that he was actually destitute. He scarcely had shoes to his feet. His coat was nothing but a thin one, not sufficient to protect him from the inclemency of the weather. When I returned to this city, I went into the Auditor General's office myself, and made inquiries. The Auditor General told me that his case, with a number of others, had not been laid aside, as the applications had not met the requirements of the law. The law requires additional proof to that certified by the applicant, that he is in necessitous circumstances. On Saturday morning I called on this person and stated that I wished to talk with him freely and frankly in reference to the matter. Said he, "I am actually dependant upon my sisters for my support—and were they to die, I should be obliged to go to the poor house at once." I asked him, "Have you no sworn affidavit to that effect?" He said, "I would not ask any one to swear to that. I do not want my actual circumstances known to my acquaintances." I then came up here myself and swore to the facts, and got his pensions and gratuities. Any gentleman who will take the trouble to inquire into the matter, will find claim upon claim laid aside for want of additional proof.

For my part I do not see why this law should be repealed. I am in favor of a law granting a pension to every man who fought for our country and our freedom. I was a soldier of the 21st of the soldiers of the Mexican war, and the men who fought on the Union side in the late war, to get it. I want all to get it. I want the country to recognize their services and hold them up before the country as men who battled for their rights and for their freedom.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, having been a member of this House when the act was passed, and taking an interest in it at that time, thinking it was about to benefit a great many people in this State, I supported it. But, sir, finding the provisions extending much farther than was expected, seeing that a great deal of this money does not go to the persons whom it is intended to benefit, and seeing that there are a great many leeches taking the money directly from these necessitous persons—I mean claim agents, by leeches, and they are the soldier's enemies, I assure you—I am therefore in favor of repealing the law.—But I would not be in favor of repealing this law if it cut out all persons from the benefits of gratuities and annuities. We can act, sir, and have acted for several years in individual cases, and, where proper cases are brought to this Legislature, I have never seen one refused. And they will not be refused. This Legislature, sir, is not ungenerous. It is not unmindful of the interests of these people.

But, sir, we must guard the treasury and we must place this money in the hands of those who need it, and not in the hands of agents who are not in necessitous circumstances, and who have never done anything but to absorb this money that should belong to needy persons. I am in favor of extending the benefits of this law to all who have served their country. It does very well to talk this way to make these men who have been in service believe we have a deep interest in them. But, is it proper? Can we do it? Dare we do it? And I would here say that the gentleman on the other side of the House has changed his tune within three or four years. I think I remember when he was not so much of a soldier's friend as he is today. I am glad that he has claimed to be the soldiers' friend that we may know what his speech means.

But I do not speak for Buncombe on this matter. I do not want to say to my constituents what I do not believe. I do not want to say that if those who are entitled to their gratuity will have their claims presented here, and if this Legislature is magnanimous and just, and if the parties can bring proper evidence here that their claims are just, their requests will be granted. Yet I do say that men who own farms and are in affluent circumstances come in under this law as persons in necessitous circumstances. They take the iron-clad oath with a mental reservation, like some of the rebels; and, therefore, I am opposed to a continuance of this law. I want it wiped out, and I will give you a great deal of money to the treasury which would otherwise go into the hands of sharpers and men who are in newise in necessitous circumstances.

While I am speaking on this subject I will just say that this is not the only place where money could be saved to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. I am disgusted when I look over the extensive expenditures of the public funds. I am disgusted, sir, if I were worth millions, and should run the machine as the affairs of this Commonwealth are run, I would become bankrupt in a very short time. Whose fault is it, sir? It is not the fault of individuals, perhaps, but it is the fault of all of us. We do not effectually guard this matter. This is a very little matter in individual cases, but in the aggregate it is a great matter, and I raise my voice of warning to the people of Pennsylvania and to the Republican members of this House. The gentlemen on the other side of this House will help us to be as extravagant as possible, and then turn around and say the Republican majority did it. This is a pretty difficult procedure I know, but I like to tell the truth once in a while, because it comes with such a relish. I will therefore raise my voice now against extravagance in any particular. The repeal of this law will be a saving to the Commonwealth, and persons in necessitous circumstances can come here and receive the benefits of the law in individual cases.

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker, I am exceedingly pleased to hear the gentleman from Chester [Mr. PENNYPACKER] give utterance to the such sentiments as he has, especially in the latter part of his speech. I will go with him heartily in that respect, and be one of the bull dogs of the treasury to guard its portals; but when the gentleman from Chester [Mr. PENNYPACKER] talks about extravagant appropriations he must not point to this side of the House. It is true that the Republican majority of this House are guilty and are the means of these extravagant appropriations. It is not from this side of the House that bills come to increase salaries and to make worthless offices, and we may protest in vain against it. All we can do is to put on record our negative, and that is all the good it does.

I am opposed to the repeal of this act. I think every objection can be met by a proper amendment. If the bill does not provide proper safe-guards around the Treasury they can be supplied. I do have respect, Mr. Speaker, for the veterans of 1812, and I have respect for all soldiers that have done their duty. But the soldiers of the late war have received very generous bounties from the general government, and in many cases local, county, township and city bounty. I do not think that soldiers of 1812 should be cased down into mother earth at the public expense. I am willing to continue this act, and if there is any objection to the bill, it can be met by amendment. Last year, I recollect, this bill was passed with great unanimity. It was thought by this House that it was but an act of justice to those old soldiers of the war of 1812. I voted for this bill myself, and I have as neighbors three or four worthy gentlemen who served in the war of 1812, who have never received any gratuity under this act, to my knowledge, because it is only intended to relieve persons in indigent circumstances. In a population of one hundred thousand and upwards, in my county, I know of but one single application made. I think this Legislature will be in poor business, indeed, to make this the special object now of reform, while we can touch that matter in so many other places. We may reform, and ought to reform, and I will go as far as the gentleman from Chester, when the general appropriation bill is reported to this House, in cutting down expenses.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I move to postpone the further consideration of this bill until a week from next Friday, and that it be made the special order for that time.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The SPEAKER proceeded to clear the table.

IN THE SENATE, January 24, 1867.

Resolved, If the House of Representatives concur, that when the Legislature adjourns this day, it will adjourn to meet on Tuesday next, at 9 o'clock, P. M.

The resolution was read a second time.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by inserting after the word "day" the words "at one o'clock," so as to dispense with the special session ordered for this afternoon.

The question being on agreeing to the amendment,

It was not

Agreed to.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I move the indefinite postponement of the resolution.

On agreeing to the motion,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. ROATH and Mr. CHASE, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Barton, Boyle, Ewing, Brown, Calvin, Cameron, Chalfant, Colville, Davis, Day, Deise, Ewing, Fogel, Gallagher, Headman, Hoffman, Hunt, Jenks, Kimmell, Kline, Linton, M'Camant, M'Kee, Mann, Marks, Pennypacker, Peters, Phelan, Rhoads, Richards, Roath, Robinson, Satterthwait, Sharples, Waddell, Watt, Westbrook and Wright—22.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barrington, Boyd, Chadwick, Chase, Collins, Craig, Donough, Espy, Freeborn, Gordon, Harbison, Harner, Hetzel, Hood, Jones, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kinney, Koon, Lee, Leech, Long, Maish, Mechling, Meyers, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Rouch, Shuman, Steacy, Stumbaugh, Subers, Tharp, Wallace, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall and Glass, Speakers—47.

So the question was determined in the negative.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Now, Mr. Speaker, I call the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was sustained by Messrs. Quigley, Hood, Craig, Long, Headman, Meyers, Shuman, Chase, Wallace, Freeborn, Jones and Tharp.

On the question,

Shall the main question be now put?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MANN and Mr. ———, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Allen, Barrington, Breen, Chadwick, Chase, Collins, Craig, Donough, Espy, Freeborn, Harbison, Headman, Hetzel, Hood, Hunt, Jones, Josephs, Kennedy, Kinney, Koon, Lee, Leech, Long, Mechling, Meyers, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Rouch, Shuman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Tharp, Wallace, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Worrall and Glass, Speakers—42.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barton, Boyd, Boyle, Brown, Calvin, Cameron, Chalfant, Colville, Davis, Day, Deise, Ewing, Fogel, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harner, Hoffman, Jenks, Kerns, Kimmell, Kline, Linton, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, Maish, Mann, Marks, Pennypacker, Peters, Phelan, Rhoads, Richards, Roath, Robinson, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Steacy, Waddell, Watt, Westbrook and Wright—46.

So the question was determined in the negative.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the resolution so as to provide for a session on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The question recurring on the resolution as amended,

It was agreed to.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That the special order fixed for 8 o'clock this afternoon be postponed until 8 o'clock on Tuesday next.

The resolution was read a second time.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, on agreeing to the resolution, I call the previous question.

The call for the previous question was sustained by Messrs. Meyers, Josephs, Koon, Hood, Quigley, Craig, Wingard, Headman, Calvin, Long, Tharp and Boyd.

On the question,

Shall the main question now be put?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DAVIS and Mr. DEISE, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barrington, Breen, Brown, Calvin, Chadwick, Chase, Craig, Donough, Fogel, Gallagher, Harbison, Headman, Hetzel, Hood, Jones, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kinney, Kline, Kees, Koon, Lee, Leech, Linton, Long, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, Maish, Mechling, Meyers, Pennypacker, Quay, Quigley, Robinson, Satterthwait, Shuman, Steacy, Tharp, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Whann, Wharton, Wingard and Worrall—50.

NAYS—Messrs. Barton, Boyd, Boyle, Cameron, Chalfant, Davis, Day, Deise, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Ghegan, Gordon, Harner, Hoffman, Hunt, Jenks, Kimmell, Mann, Marks, Peters, Phelan, Pillow, Rhoads, Richards, Roath, Seiler, Sharples, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Westbrook, Wilson, Wright and Glass, Speakers—33.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The question recurring on the resolution, It was Agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed

That Senate has concurred in the amendment made by the House of Representatives to the resolution pending for an adjournment of the two Houses until Tuesday next.

The SPEAKER proceeded to clear the table:

Special report of the inspector of the State penitentiary for the Eastern district of Pennsylvania.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

Also, the petition of a number of citizens of Pennsylvania, in favor of the repeal of the landlord and tenant act, which was read as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met:

The petition of the subscribers, citizens of the State of Pennsylvania, respectfully pray your honorable body to repeal a certain act of Assembly, or supplement thereto, known as "the landlord and tenant act."

WHEREAS, It appears from the pamphlet laws of A. D. 1865, that a supplement to the act became a law, by reason of the Governor not returning the same supplement, or act, to the place of its origination, thereby becoming a law, passed the 4th day of December, A. D. 1865, and presented to the Governor on the 24th day of February, A. D. 1865, and was not returned in the prescribed time by law (viz. ten days), thereby becoming a law. Its bearings and requirements upon all persons coming under its arbitrary sway, are odious and despotic, and will be so viewed by all liberal minded men. We, therefore, pray that your honorable body repeal said act and supplement, which is burdensome to non-property holders, and so unjust in its provisions when used by unprincipled men, and we do ever pray, &c.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary General.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. COLEMAN offered the following resolution, which was twice read:

Resolved, That the General Judiciary Committee be instructed to inquire into the power of this Legislature to control railroad corporations of this State by direct legislation on the subject of charges for passengers and freight, to secure the private citizens of the State from inordinate and extortionate demands, to assert the sovereignty of the people of the State over all such corporations within its limits for the general good, and that said committees have power to send for persons and papers, and to compel testimony under oath; that said committee is instructed to report to the Senate at the earliest possible period, by bill or otherwise.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, there is some question as to what power the Legislature have over the present corporate companies in this State, and I would like the simple question decided by a report from the committee as to what power they have to regulate with regard to freight, etc. It is very important, before we enter into any railroad legislation, that we should be informed as to our power. I cannot see that there can be any objection to it.

The resolution was adopted.

Mr. LOWRY offered the following resolution, which was twice read:

Resolved, That the Committee on Military Affairs is requested to examine and report to the Senate whether any money is equitably due from the Commonwealth to the representatives of Col. John M'Clane, who fell at the head of the Eighty-third Pennsylvania volunteers, and make report thereon, and bring in a bill for relief, if in their judgment the cause of justice demands it.

The resolution was adopted.

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence) offered the following resolution, which was twice read:

Resolved, That the Senate will hold a special session at 3 P. M. to-day, to consider the resolution regarding the confirmation of Edgar Cowan as Minister to Austria.

Mr. LOWRY moved to amend by adding, "and also an evening session, if necessary."

The amendment was agreed to.

And the resolution, as amended, was Adopted.

CHANGE OF COMMITTEE.

Mr. LOWRY moved that the Committee on Corporations be discharged from the further consideration of a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Marine Hospital of Pennsylvania, in the county of Erie, to fix location of hospital in Erie city, and to grant real estate to said hospital, and that the bill be referred to the Committee on Finance.

The motion was

Agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, presented the following extract from the Journal of the House of Representatives,

Which was read as follows, viz:

IS THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, }
January 24th, 1867.

Resolved, That (if the Senate concur) the Military Committee of both Houses, in conjunction with the Adjutant General, and his Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, be and they are hereby requested to report to this House a bill for the regulation of the militia of the State.

Resolved, That the said committee are hereby authorized to call to their aid such persons as they may desire having knowledge of the subject hereby submitted to its consideration, and that before presenting any bill for the consideration of the Legislature, the same shall be referred to the Attorney General for his opinion of its legal preparation and construction.

Mr. CONNELL moved to amend the resolution by adding, before the words "Adjutant General," the words "Auditor General."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The resolution as amended was adopted.

BILL ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order, the Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Brokers' beneficial association of Philadelphia.

Mr. DONOVAN. Mr. Speaker, when this bill was before the Senate, the other day, I asked the courtesy of the Senate to have it postponed. I had no personal objection to the bill, and for the purpose of setting myself right, I ask that the following letter be read:

PHILADELPHIA BOARD OF BROKERS,
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25, 1867.
Hon. C. M. Donovan, Pennsylvania State Senator:

DEAR SIR—Your action in causing a temporary postponement of the bill incorporating the Board of Brokers as a beneficial association, etc., was very well, as you did not appear to be apprised at the time that it had received the approval of this body. By some means or other, the letter of Mr. Biddle to you, informing you of this fact, had not reached you. Your zeal, therefore, for the interest of the Board was very commendable.

In answer to your telegram of the 23d, I advised you that the bill referred to met our unanimous approval. We, therefore, shall rely on your exertions and influence to aid in carrying through a measure which will enable this Board, without any legal embarrassment, to receive contributions, hold property, and dispense charity to deserving objects.

Yours truly,

GEORGE W. COMBES,
President.

The title was amended by adding thereto the words, "changing the fees to be paid witnesses in the county of Franklin."

The bill was read a second and third time, and Passed finally. On motion of Mr. CONNELL the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of a bill entitled An act to authorize the appointment of five additional notaries public for the city of Philadelphia.

The bill was read a second time.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the bill was amended by striking out the word "five" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "six."

The section, as amended, was agreed to, and

The bill Passed finally.

REDEMPTION OF OVER DUE BONDS OF THE COMMONWEALTH.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to create a loan for the redemption of the over due bonds of the Commonwealth.

Mr. CONNELL. Mr. Speaker, to show the object of this bill, I desire the Clerk to read a dozen lines from the report of the State Treasurer, as follows:

"With such an income as this, it is not high time that Pennsylvania had removed the disgrace of having twenty-three million dollars of her liabilities over due and unpaid? Should we not at once proceed to negotiate a new loan and redeem the old, so far as it may be due? I think we should. We ought also to repeal the law taxing our own loans. Most of the original debt was created at a time when it was not the custom of the State to tax her own loans, and subscribers had a fair right to suppose that the laws then existing were those by which the State would thereafter be guided in the treatment of her loan-holders. Moreover, since the passage of the act taxing her loans, every dollar borrowed has been exempted from taxation, except a loan of four hundred thousand dollars, and that bears an interest of six per cent. per annum, showing that the law was so clearly unjust that no more money could be borrowed, except under a distinct agreement that it would not be taxed."

In compliance of the whole (Mr. LOWRY in the chair) the bill was read and reported with amendments.

The committee rose and the bill, as amended, was read, as follows:

WHEREAS, The bonds of the Commonwealth and certain certificates of indebtedness, amounting to twenty-three millions of dollars ($23,000,000), have been over due and unpaid for some time past;

And whereas, It is desirable that the same should be paid and withdrawn from the markets therefore;

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the Governor, State Treasurer and Auditor General be and are hereby authorized and empowered to borrow, on the faith of the Commonwealth, in such amounts and with such notice (not less than forty days) as they may deem most expedient for the interest of the State, twenty-three millions of dollars, and issue certificates of loan or bonds of the Commonwealth for the same, bearing interest not exceeding six per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, on the first of February and first of August, in the city of Philadelphia, which certificates of loan or bonds shall not be subject to any taxation whatever, for State, municipal or local purposes, and shall be payable as follows, namely: Five millions of dollars ($5,000,000), payable at any time after five years and within ten years, eight millions of dollars ($8,000,000), payable at any time after ten years and within fifteen years, and ten millions of dollars ($10,000,000) at any time after fifteen years and within twenty-five years, and shall be signed by the Governor and State Treasurer, and countersigned by the Auditor General, and to be transferable on the books of the Commonwealth at the Farmer's and Mechanics' National Bank of Philadelphia, the proceeds of the whole of which loan, including premiums, et cetera, received on the same, shall be applied to the payment of the bonds and certificates of indebtedness of the Commonwealth.

SEC. 2. The bids for the said loan shall be opened in the presence of the Governor, Auditor General and State Treasurer, and awarded to the highest bidder. Provided, That no certificate hereby authorized to be issued shall be negotiated for less than its par value.

SEC. 3. The bonds of the State and certificates of indebtedness, now over due, shall be receivable in payment of the said loan, under such regulations as the Governor, Auditor General and State Treasurer may prescribe, and every bid for the loan now authorized to be issued, shall state in his bid whether the same is payable in cash, or in the bonds or certificates of indebtedness of the Commonwealth.

SEC. 4. That all trustees, executors, administrators, guardians, agents, treasurers, committees, or other persons holding a fiduciary capacity bonds or certificates of indebtedness of the State, or moneys, are hereby authorized to bid for the loan hereby authorized to be issued, and to surrender the bonds or certificates of loan held by them at the time of making such bid, and to receive the bonds authorized to be issued by this act.

SEC. 5. Any person or persons standing in the fiduciary capacity stated in the fourth section of this act, who may desire to invest money in their hands for the benefit of the trust, may, without any order of court, invest the same in the bonds authorized to be issued by this act, at a rate of premium not exceeding twenty per centum.

SECTION 6. That from and after the passage of this act, all the bonds of this Commonwealth shall be paid off in the order of their maturity.

SECTION 7. That all loans of this Commonwealth not yet due shall be exempt from State, municipal or local taxation after the interest due February 1st, 1867, shall have been paid.

SEC. 8. That all existing laws or portions thereof inconsistent herewith, are hereby repealed.

The bill was read a third time and Passed finally. The hour of one o'clock having arrived, the SPEAKER adjourned the Senate until three o'clock this afternoon.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 29, 1867.

The Senate reassembled at 3 P. M.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, returned bill from the Senate numbered and entitled as follows, viz :

No. 130, an act to incorporate the Dauphin County Soldiers' Monument association.

With information that the House of Representatives passed the same without amendment.

JOINT RESOLUTIONS RELATIVE TO EDGAR COWAN.

The bill entitled joint resolutions of the Legislature of Pennsylvania, protesting against the confirmation of Edgar Cowan as Minister to Austria, being the special order, the Senate resumed the second reading and consideration of the same.

Speeches were made by MESSRS. BURNETT, FISHER, M'CADLSE, DAVIS, SEARIGHT, M'CONAUGHY, WALLACE and LANDON, which are withheld for revision, and will appear in the Appendix.

Mr. DONOVAN moved to amend the resolutions by striking out all after the enacting clause and inserting, in lieu thereof, the following:

WHEREAS, The Senate of the United States expelled the Hon. Jesse D. Bright, Senator from the State of Indiana, for asserting that States could secede, and that the President was not the Government;

And whereas, The Republican party have since changed their views, now declaring that secession is right, and that the President of the United States is not the Government; therefore,

Resolved, That our Senators in Congress be instructed to vote for the confirmation of the Hon. Edgar Cowan, as Minister to Austria, and that the country may be represented abroad by at least one consistent statesman.

Mr. WHITE raised a point of order, that the amendment was out of order, as not germane to the subject before the Senate.

The SPEAKER decided the point of order was not well taken.

The question being on the amendment of Mr. DONOVAN, it was not agreed to.

The resolution was read a third time, and On the question, Shall the resolution pass?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. JACKSON and Mr. LOWRY, and were as follows, viz :

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Rorer, Stutzman, Taylor, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—18.

NAYS—Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, Jackson, James, M'CADLSE, Schall, Searight, Wallace and Walls—11.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

PAIRED—MESSRS. RANDALL and RIDGWAY,

On motion of Mr. LOWRY, the Senate then adjourned until to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

TUESDAY, January 29, 1867.

The House met at 11 o'clock, A. M. Prayer was offered by the Rev. P. J. Haut, of Morrisville, Bucks county.

The SPEAKER announced that there was a quorum of members present. The Journal of Thursday was read, and, there being no objection, was approved.

SPEAKER'S TABLE.

The SPEAKER presented to the House the annual report of the Monongahela navigation company.

Laid on the table.

PRIVATE CALENDAR.

The regular order of business being the consideration of the private calendar,

The following bills were severally read, and laid aside for a second reading:

No. 55, an act to vacate certain lanes and alleys in the plan of lots of the borough of Beaver, in the county of Beaver.

No. 57, a further supplement to an act to incorporate the city of Philadelphia, approved February 2, 1854.

No. 58, an act to change and amend the charter of the borough of Emporium, in the county of Cameron.

No. 59, an act authorizing the assessment of railroad taxes in the borough of Kittanning, Armstrong county.

No. 60, an act authorizing a special election in the borough of Highspire.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out, in the first line of the second section, the words "the taxable inhabitants" and inserting "persons qualified to vote for members of the most numerous branch of the General Assembly."

It seems to me, sir, that this action is a little premature. After the convention for amending the Constitution, which my friend from Beaver [Mr. QUAY] has put in train, shall have assembled, and shall have stricken the word write from that instrument, as he is reported to desire, it may then be time to provide for negroes to vote in the State; but I submit, that at this time it would be in violation of the Constitution of the State. The term "taxable inhabitants" includes negroes, women and minors who have property that is assessed and on which they pay taxes. I do not think it would be much to the benefit of the borough of Highspire to provide for an election of this kind.

The SPEAKER. There being no objection, the amendment will be inserted.

No. 61, an act limiting the burgess and town council of the borough of Oil City, Venango county, in the levying and collection of taxes.

No. 62, an act to authorize the borough of Troy to increase the taxation for borough purposes.

OBJECTED BILLS.

The following bills were objected to and laid over, under the rules, until next week.

No. 122, an act to regulate the term of the several courts in the Sixth Judicial district.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I simply wish to say that I would like to have the gentleman from Erie [Mr. McCREARY] give some reason why this bill should be passed. This bill is entirely unadvised so far as I am informed. Mr. McCREARY. Mr. Speaker, Judge

Johnson, living in the gentleman's own town, and Judge Vincent, of Erie, prepared this bill and desired it should be presented. I am very certain that every attorney in his place is in favor of having it passed immediately.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I know nothing about the bill, and ask that it be postponed for the present.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman objects to the bill, and it will be laid over for the present.

By Mr. ROATH,

No. 131, an act to enable the board of directors of common schools of East Lampeter township, Lancaster county, to apply surplus of bounty funds to common school purposes.

OBJECTED BILLS OF LAST WEEK.

No. 52, an act relating to soliciting passengers in Allegheny county.

Mr. McKEE moved to amend the bill so as to make its provisions apply to the city of Pittsburg only.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be postponed for the present. It is a most extraordinary bill, and I cannot properly understand it. Not being able now to comprehend it, and having seen it for the first time to-day, I move that it be postponed for the present.

The SPEAKER. The question is on laying the bill aside for a second reading.

On the question,

Will the House lay the bill aside? it was not

Agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows:

Senate bill No. 67, an act to incorporate the Brokers' Beneficial association of Philadelphia.

Senate bill No. 110, an act to create a loan for the redemption of the over due bonds of the Commonwealth.

Senate bill No. 132, an act relating to a certain highway in the Twenty-second ward in the city of Philadelphia, requiring the removal of a toll house and gate in Germantown.

He also returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

No. 87, an act to incorporate the Brady's Bend bridge company.

With information that the Senate has passed the same without amendment.

The Clerk of the Senate also returned resolutions as follows, viz:

Resolved, That, if the Senate concur, the military committees of both Houses, in conjunction with the Adjutant General and his Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, be, and they are hereby, requested to report to this House a bill for the regulation of the militia of this State.

Resolved, That said committee are hereby authorized to call to their aid such persons as they may desire, having knowledge of the subject hereby submitted to its consideration, and that before presenting any bill for the consideration of the Legislature, the same shall be referred to the Attorney General for his opinion of its legal preparation and construction.

With information that the Senate has concurred in the same, with an amendment inserting the words "Auditor General" before "Adjutant," in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER cleared the table of bills numbered and entitled as follows:

Senate bill No. 67, an act to incorporate the Brokers' Beneficial association of Philadelphia.

Referred to the Committee on Corporations.

Senate bill No. 110, an act to create a loan for the redemption of the over due bonds of the Commonwealth.

Referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Senate bill No. 132, an act relating to a certain highway in the Twenty-second ward of the city of Philadelphia, requiring the removal of a toll-house and gate in Germantown.

Referred to the Committee on Roads, Bridges and Ferries.

PRIVATE CALENDAR.

The SPEAKER. The next thing in order is the second reading and consideration of the bills on the private calendar.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the further consideration of the private calendar be postponed until to-morrow morning at ten o'clock, and that we then commence our session at ten o'clock. We can facilitate business by so doing. We have wasted a good deal of time, and it seems to me we should make up an hour by commencing at ten o'clock.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, I hope the motion of the gentleman will not prevail. It seems to me that the proper way to facilitate business is to proceed with the private calendar immediately.

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not regard the motion of the gentleman from Potter (Mr. MANN) altogether proper, as it includes both the question to postpone and to establish a different hour for the meeting of the House.

Mr. MANN. I withdraw my motion. The following bills were then read a second and third times:

No. 55, an act to vacate certain lanes and alleys in the plan of outlets of the borough of Beaver, in the county of Beaver.

Passed finally.

Passed finally.
Senate bill No. 73, an act to validate and confirm a certain mortgage or deed of trust, executed under the corporate seal of the Philadelphia coal, iron and oil company, and to authorize the transfer of the railroad of the said company to any other railroad company owning a railroad connecting therewith, and to increase the number in the board of directors.

Passed finally.
Senate bill No. 83, an act to incorporate the Hollin Knitting machine company of Indiana county.

Passed finally.
No. 57, a bill supplementary to an act to incorporate the city of Philadelphia, approved February 2, 1854.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out the word "seven;" in the fifth line, and inserting "eight."

Mr. FREEBORN. Mr. Speaker, I hope that amendment will not be agreed to. The bill has already been amended in committee, making the hour seven instead of six.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, my object in offering this amendment was to make it convenient for the working classes of Philadelphia to be assessed at the proper time and place. I do not want the working men to be obliged to lose two hours of time in order to be assessed.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I do not think it is very material whether the assessments close at seven or eight o'clock; but the reasons given I think are very good ones. As the law now stands they do not close until ten o'clock. The object, as I understand, in making this change, is to prevent fighting at the place when these extra assessments are made. This occurs only in the lower portions of the city, and not in any other of the gentlemen's. There are good reasons, I think, why these assessments should remain open until eight o'clock.

There are a great many men who live a considerable distance from the place of assessment, and I think they should not be obliged to lose several hours from their day's work in order that the time may be limited to six or seven o'clock. I have no personal feeling in the matter, but I think eight o'clock is much better than seven.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I do not think the objections urged by either of my colleagues are valid ones. In the first place these extra assessments are not made upon men who are working in the district. The men in the district are always found, are always assessed, and there is no occasion for any extra assessments for them. It is the drifting, floating population for whom this extra assessment is made. There is another objection. I think seven o'clock is a fair compromise between the parties presenting this bill and those who desire the time fixed at eight o'clock. The time originally fixed in the bill was six o'clock, and it seems to me the hour of seven is a fair compromise between the two parties.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the amendment to strike out "seven" and insert "eight."

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I call for the yeas and nays on the question. I desire that the members from Philadelphia shall put themselves on record in reference to this matter.

Mr. FREEBORN. Mr. Speaker, I second the call.

On agreeing to the amendment,
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. HOOD and Mr. FREEBORN, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hood, Jenks, Jones, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, M'Henry, Markley, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Tharp and Westbrook—30.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, Day, DeFlaven, Donehugh, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Josephs, Kimmel, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Lee, Mann, Marks, Mechling, Mely, Pennypacker, Peter, Pillow, Quay, Richards, Roath, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—53.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The question recurring on the bill, it was Agreed to, and

The bill Passed finally.

No. 65, An act to authorize the school directors of the borough of Phoenixville to borrow money for the purpose of purchasing lands and building school houses.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say that I have received a remonstrance against the passage of this bill, which I have not before had an opportunity to present. I now present the remonstrance, but will say that I desire the bill should pass. I have received a large number of letters from my constituents in regard to it which have convinced me that it is proper.

The bill Passed finally.

No. 67, an act to annex Davis S. Walker, Francis Cunningham and Wesley Smith, of Jefferson township, Washington county, to Cross Creek township, in the said county, for school purposes of the same thing.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to make any particular opposition to this bill, but I apprehend that this and several other bills we have passed are clearly unnecessary and I believe unconstitutional. The courts have power to do precisely what this bill provides for, as I understand it, and the courts have decided that what the Constitution provides in cases of this kind, this Legislature shall not provide. A year ago the Governor complained that we were passing bills of this character constantly, and the present Governor, I am told, complains of the same thing. I find that the existing law gives the courts power to do this very thing, and, as it can do no injury to delay its passage, I move that it be postponed in order to give members an opportunity of inquiring into the law. The law gives the courts power to establish independent districts and to choose the boundary lines of districts. I do not, however, speak positively as to the authority the courts have in this matter, as I do not examine this bill until it came up, and have not had an opportunity to look up the law. I would be glad if the House would postpone the bill for the present.

The question being on postponing the bill, it was Agreed to.

No. 75, an act to repeal the act to change the venue in the case of John Lenox, from the county of Washington to the county of Beaver, approved April 12, A. D. 1866.

The question being on the final passage of the bill,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. CHALFANT, and Mr. COLLINS, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Craig, Davis, Day, DeFlaven, Donehugh, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kimmel, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Kee, Mann, Marks, Pennypacker, Peters, Phelan, Pillow, Quay, Rhoads, Richards, Roath, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Westbrook, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—56.

NAYS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Collins, Deise, Fogel, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hood, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, M'Creary, M'Henry, Markley, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait and Tharp—25.

So the question was determined in the affirmative, and

The bill Passed finally.

During the call.
Mr. KINNEY. Mr. Speaker, last winter I voted for the change of venue in this case. Having heard no reasons why it should not remain as ordered I vote for it to remain changed.

Mr. CHALFANT. Mr. Speaker, I made a mistake in the bill; I would like to withdraw the call for the yeas and nays.

No. 77, an act relating to the compensation of the commissioners of Chester county, and was amended by Mr. SHARPLES, and Passed finally.

Senate bill No. 82, a supplement to an act relative to the fees of district attorneys of certain counties of this Commonwealth, was amended by Messrs. JONES and WINGARD so as to extend the provisions of the bill to Berks and Lycoming counties.

The bill Passed finally.

No. 81, an act to authorize and relating to the appointment of auctioneer in the city of Erie, in the county of Erie, and his powers and duties, was amended by Mr. M'CREARY, and Passed finally.

No. 91, an act to incorporate the Granite insurance company.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I do not feel satisfied with this bill. In Philadelphia we have a large number of insurance companies, sufficient for all practical purposes, and I wish to examine this bill before voting upon it. I therefore move that this bill be postponed for the present.

The motion was Agreed to.

No. 93, an act relative to the several issues and other liabilities of the Mauch Chunk Bank.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I hope this bill will not be passed. It is the same bill, it seems to me, that we had up last year. I understood that there was a sort of compromise made about that bill, and that it would be put in a different shape. But this comes up with the same objectionable features of the one of last year. This bill authorizes this bank to give notice that all men all over this country having claims upon it, after having received notice to present their claims at a proper time, shall be compelled to bring suit, or be debarred from collecting their claims. There is already a statute of limitation, and I see no reason why it should be changed in favor of this bank. Let all persons having claims against this bank have the benefit of the statute laws of the Commonwealth, and do not attempt to give this corporation special privileges and special exemption from the payment of its debts. That is what this bill seems to do—to give the bank a special privilege with regard to its indebtedness, and to legislate with regard to its indebtedness, and to legislate that after such a time within the coming year, all debts against it shall be outlawed. I hope, therefore, the bill will not be passed.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. Speaker, this bill was introduced by myself, and refers entirely to a bank in my locality. The gentleman from Potter (Mr. MANN) is mistaken as to the character of the bill. I did introduce a bill of the kind he mentions last winter; but it was of a general character and did not refer to this bank in particular. As to the time, I am willing that any limitation shall be made that is reasonable, and I do trust this House will pass it, or some bill similar to it.

The condition of the bank is this: It is one of the old State banks that has gone into the national organization. The officers are about winding up the affairs of the concern, and all the parties connected with it are anxious to pay off the claims against it. It has now about five thousand dollars outstanding in issue, and it is probable that a great share of that will never be found. Now this bill proposes to give notice in the newspapers in Carbon county, Philadelphia and Pittsburg for a certain time, that at a certain place in Philadelphia those issues will be redeemed; and if those issues are not presented within the advertised time, this bank can wind up its concerns. Unless this bank can settle its business, it will be obliged to lock a large amount of money on deposit to meet these outstanding issues.

It seems to me that the time is sufficient for bringing in all this issue, or all that will ever be presented. The idea is not to give this corporation any special privileges. It is anxious to meet all its liabilities, and I trust the House will pass this bill, so as to enable them to do it in the shortest possible time, and bring their business to a close.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask whether the provisions of the national banking law are not such as will enable the old bank to wind up its affairs? I understand that this bank was organized under the general banking law. My recollection of that law is, that it provides that whereby State banks, becoming National banks, shall wind up their affairs. They shall redeem their notes as they come in, keeping an account certifying to that fact. It seems to me that this bank is in no worse condition than other National banks in the Commonwealth that have changed from State banks to National banks.

For this reason, it strikes me that it would be better to make a general law, and extend to every bank of this character the same facilities. I confess that it strikes my mind that this bill is giving this bank a larger privilege than any other bank in the Commonwealth. I do not see that this bank is laboring under any greater disadvantage than similar institutions all over the Commonwealth.

Mr. BARTON. Mr. Speaker, I should be strongly in favor of a general law something to this effect. I think it is necessary that we should have some enabling law, giving the old State banks an opportunity to wind up their affairs.

The gentleman [Mr. WADDELL] is mistaken, I apprehend, in stating that there is anything in the new national banking system that will enable the old State banks to wind up their affairs. I think there is nothing in the national banking system making any provisions of that character, and I think the Legislature of Pennsylvania should pass some enabling act to allow these old State banks to go out of existence. I, therefore, move that this bill be referred to the Committee on Banks, with instructions to report a general enabling act.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. Speaker, I trust that this motion will not prevail. In answer to the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL], I would say, that I was mistaken in remarking that this bank had been changed to a national one. It has gone out of existence, entirely; but the persons who were interested in that bank have substituted for it a national organization, and they now desire to close up the affairs of the old institution.

Mr. McCREARY. Mr. Speaker, the objection that I give to this bill is, more particularly, that it gives too short a time to those who hold claims to present them for payment. I think the gentleman presented a bill last winter, a general bill, in regard to all banks in the State publishing a notice that within a certain time they would wind up their affairs; and the objection was then made by myself that the time was too short, and I offered an amendment to that extending it to six years.

Now, by the first section of this act, unless persons bring in their bill or claims against the bank by the first of September next, they will lose them. It is very easy to see that persons may hold bills against this bank, and never see this notice at all. It is not every man who reads notices of this kind in the newspapers; and further, a man may be in California or Europe, where he cannot get notice within six months' time, even if sent to him. It would be a strange proceeding if a bank, after having been in operation for some time, could give notice that, unless all claims against it were presented within sixty days, they would not be paid. Suppose that an individual should ask for the passage of a bill providing that unless claims against him were presented within six months, he would not need to pay them. It seems to me that the one case would be about as appropriate as the other. This bill simply provides that notice shall be published in two daily papers published in Philadelphia and Pittsburg. How many persons take Philadelphia or Pittsburg papers throughout the country, where the notes of this bank have circulated? I venture to say that not more than one in twenty, and that the nineteen men who do not take the paper may be holding bills or claims against this bank on the shortness of the time. I think sufficient time should be given, that everybody will hear of it, even if they do not take the newspapers—that common rumor will convey the intelligence to every person who holds notes or claims against it.

The second section of the bill says: Sec. 2. That all and every person, or persons, having or holding any note, bill, claim, or demand against said bank, shall be, and are hereby, required to present the same for payment, at the places to be specified in the notices to be given, on or before the first day of September, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, and that if suit, action or prosecution shall be commenced or brought against said bank for the recovery of any moneys due on any such note, bill, claim or demand, which shall not have been presented for payment at either of the places aforesaid within the time above specified.

Now, it does strike me that this is a very sweeping act. A man may have hold of these notes and put them away, believing that they were as good as gold and silver, and wake up some morning, and find that they are not worth anything, simply because he did not take one of the daily papers published in Philadelphia or Pittsburg, and read all the notices published in reference to banks. I do not like this thing of relieving men from the payment of their debts by an act of the Legislature. I think the time given is too small, and the number of papers in which the notice is to be published too few; and that great injury might be done by passing the bill in its present shape.

Mr. LEEL. Mr. Speaker, I had purposed to amend this bill so as to make it obligatory upon the bank to notify all persons who hold claims against it that they must come forward time. The bank must show that the parties and present them for payment within a certain were notified, and I think that if the bill was amended in that way it would be acceptable. With such a provision, all those parties mentioned by my friend from Erie [Mr. McCREARY], who hold claims in California or Europe, would have an opportunity to forward their claims and have them paid. I do not suppose the gentleman from Carbon [Mr. CRAIG] is serious in asking that this bill be passed in its present shape, that after six months' notice parties shall be debarred recovering from this bank what it justly owes them. If he is sincere about it I do not think he has reflected sufficiently upon the subject. I am, however, willing to say that after the bank has secured the parties this notice, if they do not come forward within a reasonable time, let them lose their claims.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, my friend from Erie [Mr. McCREARY] is generally so clear in his arguments, and correct in his judgment, that I feel a little disappointed at his conceding so much in this case. I am opposed entirely to this bill. I object to giving to a bank any privileges we do not give to a private citizen. I think, too, this is entirely an innovation upon the banking laws of this State. I know of a number of banks that went out of existence years ago, but whose bills are still paid upon presentation to the proper authorities. I know of a man, a friend of mine, who had in his wallet an old twenty-dollar bill, which he supposed was worthless, sent it down to where the bank was located, and received his money for it. And why should he not? The men who got up this bank have received dollar for dollar for every bill they have issued, and why should they not be required to redeem all they have sent out? Why should special laws be made for their benefit? I am surprised that any one should concede that a special law should be made in this respect for a bank that desires to go out of existence. If they do so, why should they be required to go out of existence in a proper and honorable way. I hope no limit will be specified. This bill is gotten up on a wrong principle—on the principle that banks are to have special privileges, and that, after a certain time, all the debts that they owe shall be wiped out by an act of the Legislature. I protest against such legislation as this.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. Speaker, I am willing to accept any amendment that is reasonable. I am willing to accept an amendment to extend the time to any length suggested, the idea being to give some time to the friend of this bank who will be able to wind up its concerns. If six months is not sufficient time, I am willing to have it extended to eight or nine months, or any reasonable time that gentlemen may wish.

I think the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] is laboring under a false impression. The object of this bill is not to enable this bank to get rid of paying its debts, but to get persons to bring in their claims, so that the bank may close up its business. If the principle contended for by the gentleman from Potter is correct, the bank will be obliged to keep open a place to redeem its bills for all time to come, for no doubt a large number of its bills have been lost. I know of one case personally where a person was drowned during the freshet of 1862, who had some fifteen hundred dollars of this money in his pocket that was never recovered. If the gentleman will indicate any reasonable amendment in regard to the time, I will be willing to accept it.

Mr. McCREARY. Mr. Speaker, I am as anxious as any one can be that the persons who hold claims against this bank, or any other bank, shall be protected in their rights. But I think the principle the gentleman from Potter contends for might be instrumental in preventing them from obtaining their rights.

The charters of many of the State banks expire by limitation. If there is no way of winding up their affairs the officers, after the expiration of their charter, cease to be officers. And again, these persons are not liable to be sued. They are liable to be removed by death, or they may take up a residence in other parts of the country, and when persons come to represent their claims no one is found who is authorized to pay them. The gentleman seems to think that, like Rip Van Winkle, the holders of these claims and bills could sleep for a century and then wake up and find some one to redeem them. But they will find that banks pass away as well as other things, and to their sorrow discover that they have slept too long. The officers of a bank, after their charter has expired, are not going to keep ten or twenty years. I think that, if the time was fixed so far ahead that any man who goes out in the world at all would be sure to hear that claims, unless presented within a specified time, would not be paid, men would be more certain to have their affairs with the bank settled. I know of men in the State of Pennsylvania who have had old State bank bills in their possession for fifteen years, believing them to be as good as gold. These men may find a time when there is no one to redeem their bills, the charter of the bank having expired and officers having either died or resigned away. I ask the gentleman from Potter if he wishes to require these officers to keep open an office and sit there for fifteen years? Within that time all the officers may die, go away, or become insolvent and no one be left to redeem the bills. Let there be a time named and published, far enough ahead, during which their claims will be paid, and then let the bank wind up its business. There is some consideration due to the owners of these banks as well as their creditors. Unless there is some limitation made, some of these parties may find unexpectedly, in years to come, outstanding debts of thousands of dollars coming against them which they will be unable to meet. It is but just that they should be secured from harassing embarrassments of this kind. I therefore move to amend so as to fix the time six years from and after the passage of this act.

The question being on the motion of Mr. BARTON to recommitt the bill,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. CRAIG and Mr. HEADMAN; and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barton, Brennan, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, DeChavez, Donohoe, Espy, Ghegan, Hoffman, Hood, Humphrey, Kimball, Kinney, Koon, Leech, M'Camant, M'Henry, M'Kee, Mechling, Melly, Pennypacker, Richards, Roath, Shuman, Steacy, Waddell, Wilson, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—36.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Barrington, Boyle, Breen, Calvin, Collins, Colville, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Freeborn, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Lee, Linton, M'Creary, Maun, Markley, Marks, Phelan, Pillow, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Ross, Saterhawk, Sharples, Sherman, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Westbrook, Wharton and Wingard—39.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The question being on the motion of the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY],

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. Speaker, I accept the amendment of the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY].

Mr. BARTON. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend further by making the time two instead of six years.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I think it would be advisable, perhaps, to make the time three years. I think the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY], in his amendment, has made the time too long. It seems to be a needless necessity to wind up the affairs of this bank, and I am willing to do anything that is fair. I would propose three years for the time.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I accept the suggestion of three years for the time as my amendment.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by making the time six years.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I would call the attention of the House to the fact that this bank went out of existence in July, 1865, and I think three years from that time is sufficient to enable them to close up their affairs.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN], to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY].

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, before the call for the yeas and nays is seconded, I move to postpone this question for the present. I do not understand the bill and I should like to have an opportunity to consider it. So far as I do understand it I agree with the gentleman from Delaware [Mr. BARSTOW] that there should be general banking act passed. I would move to postpone the further consideration of the bill to some certain day.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I confess I have had some difficulty in making up my mind as to the course I, at least, should pursue in regard to this bill. It has been a grave question in my mind since the bill has been under discussion whether this Legislature have power to do what is here asked of them—whether such an act is constitutional. What is it that is here asked? The bank of Mauch Chunk is liable to certain promises to pay certain obligations to the people of this Commonwealth—promising that, upon having these bills presented at their counter, they will receive the money for them. This, in one sense, a contract between the bank and the citizens of the entire Commonwealth. Now, after that contract has been made they come here and ask that it shall cease at the expiration of a specified time. The question is, have we a right to interfere with such a contract? I confess that, in the limited time which I have considered it, I am not prepared to say whether we have that power or not. I think the question should at least receive careful consideration, and it, therefore, strikes my mind that some time should be given for reflection upon this bill or any one of a similar character.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, the constitutionality of this question has suggested itself to me, but, upon reflection, I have come to the conclusion that the bill is entirely constitutional. Bank bills are promissory notes payable on demand. This bill proposes to provide that, after a limited time, these notes shall not be payable. If you hold my promissory note for a certain amount, and do not present it for payment until several years have elapsed since the note was due, the statute of limitation would deprive you of the power of collecting it. The contract then would cease by virtue of the statute of limitation, and that law has been pronounced over and over to be constitutional. I cannot see as this bill does anything more than to establish a statute of limitation in this case. It is nothing different in its nature from the statute of limitation now in existence, in reference to the notes of individuals. I do not propose, however, to throw anything in the way of a full investigation, but merely make these suggestions as they have been presented to my mind.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I have considered the suggestions thrown out by the gentleman, but the question still strikes me somewhat differently. Every contract made between individuals is made with the statute of limitation starting them in the face, and in accordance with a law already existing. But at the time this bank made their contracts, no such act was starting them in the face. If we pass this bill, we might just as well pass a law saying that all contracts shall be barred at the expiration of three years. That might be constitutional or it might not. I merely throw out the suggestion to show that there is ground for doubt, at least. The difference is just here: that every contract now made comes at once under the existing statute of limitation; whereas, in this case, the statute of limitation is fixed after the contract is made. It is in its nature an ex post facto law, differing, however, in not being applied to a criminal case. These suggestions I have made, not with a view of destroying a general bill of this character, or injuring this one, but simply to show that it is a question that should be carefully considered by the members of this House, and time should be given them to examine it.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House hold a session to-night, commencing at 7 o'clock, for the purpose of finishing this calendar. I am assuming the consideration of the constitutional amendment. Unless we do so we will certainly fail to get this amendment acted upon this week. One of the committees on contested election cases expect to go to Williamsport to-morrow night, and unless we hold a night session the members of that committee will not have an opportunity to vote on the amendment.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I suppose that motion is not in order now.

The SPEAKER. The motion is not in order until after the motion of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] has been put.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I ask the gentleman from Philadelphia to modify his motion so that the bill will be postponed and put upon the calendar for next Tuesday and Friday.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I accept the amendment.

The SPEAKER. The bill is now upon its second reading, and cannot go upon the regular calendar again. The Chair is unable to determine in what position this bill would appear upon the calendar.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, to solve the difficulty of the Chair, I move that it be placed on the calendar at the head of objected bills.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I would now renew my motion in regard to holding a night session.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY] moves that a special session be held to-night, at 7 o'clock, and that the further consideration of the private calendar be postponed in order to make that motion.
