I have shown, in the first place, that this bill proposes to give to some half dozen individuals who are named, the extraordinary and unprecedented privilege of having the business of inspecting all the cattle, sheep, hogs and calves that are sold in the city of Philadelphia for slaughter—to have the privilege of inspecting them and to have the profits arising therefrom. I never before heard of such a law giving the privilege of inspection to a corporation. I ask, gentlemen, if the inspection of cattle is necessary, why not place it on the same footing as other inspections? Why not let the inspector be appointed, and let the inspection be done as other inspections? Why place it all in the hands of a corporation—in the hands of irresponsible parties?

I have shown that the profits to this corporation cannot be less than one hundred thousand dollars a year, clear of all expenses. They only propose to invest a hundred thousand dollars in this concern, and I am satisfied that it will not cost them a hundred thousand dollars to get up all the necessary fixtures to carry on this business. I have shown that their annual profits cannot be less than the whole amount of capital invested. Now, I ask why such an extraordinary thing as that should be done? Why not let the profits go into the treasury of the State or of the city of Philadelphia? And that, sir, I should suppose was an insurmountable objection to the bill. I should suppose it would be unnecessary to say anything more than that.

But there are many other objections. It will subject parties taking their cattle to market to the most vexatious inconvenience. Since this was first before us there have been parties up here who are engaged in the business, and they have declared here that the cost to them in many instances will be three or four dollars per head—just the additional expense of having to send their cattle to this yard. These gentlemen have sold here that there is not the slightest necessity for a law of this kind, that nobody is asking for it, and that the people of Philadelphia do not want it. Sir, since we first had this matter under discussion this question has been before the councils of the city of Philadelphia, and both branches voted unanimously that if this bill passed the Legislature they requested the Governor to veto it.—Now, in the face of that will the gentleman who introduced this bill tell me that the people of the city of Philadelphia ask for it? I suppose the councils of the city of Philadelphia know something about what the people of that city want. They have stated unanimously that they do not want it. Who, then, is asking for it? Nobody is asking for it but this corporation. It is nothing but an injury to everybody but the parties named in this bill and those connected with them.

One gentleman talked about this making meat cheaper. Now, this is one of the most absurd ideas that I have heard of, that subjecting parties to this additional expense and inconvenience would have a tendency to make meat cheaper! This, sir, is like the bill we had yesterday, requiring that all lumber that comes to Philadelphia should be inspected. Why, the gentleman from Lycoming [Mr. WINGARD] argued very eloquently against that bill, that it was calculated to enhance the price of lumber. Now, I would like to know how he can vote for a bill of this kind? How can he reconcile his vote on this bill with the argument he made use of with reference to this noxious regulation in regard to lumber? Does not this same argument apply to the inspection of cattle and everything else?

This is the most barefaced and outrageous attempt at legislation, I must say, that I have ever heard of. Here is a bill that proposes to put into the hands of a corporation a privilege with not less than one million of dollars, and which proposes to tax the people of the Commonwealth to the amount of at least one hundred thousand dollars annually, and it cannot be shown that it will result in one article of benefit whatever.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, in reply I say to the gentleman that I am no judge of a hog, or a pig, or a calf—I cannot tell whether I am buying a good or a poor one—because that is live-stock. But when I look at a board I can tell whether it is derd wood or what it is.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I know nothing about lumber. I cannot tell a good board or a bad one. The gentleman from Lycoming [Mr. WINGARD] happens to be in the business, and he is therefore a judge. But ninety-nine out of a hundred that are not in the business are not judges of lumber.

Mr. WINGARD. I think I can judge of a basket of strawberries, or anything of that sort, but I cannot tell what is inside a cow.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Nor anybody else. Nobody can tell anything about these cattle until after they are killed. That is just exactly the point. If meat that is improper and unfit for food is killed and sent to market, it has nothing at all to do with this question. Cattle cannot be inspected in most cases until they are killed. There are several regulations to prevent unwholesome food being sold in the market. There is the only place where it can be inspected, and there is not a gentleman in this House who does not know that. Meat may be the best in the world when it is killed, and it can be kept there in the market until it is unfit for food, and it is the duty of this person appointed for this purpose to examine into this matter, and that is the only way in which it can be effectually done.

It is claimed that this present cattle yard is a nuisance, and that it is in the bill, or motion, of the city. All that I deny. Even if it was, there is nothing to hinder these parties from setting up as many cattle yards as they please. But I object particularly to this, that if this bill was necessary, if the people of Philadelphia were asking for a measure of this kind that they should have come up here in time with this bill. It should have been read in place early in the session and sent to a committee, so that these parties whose business will be utterly ruined by the passage of this bill should have an opportunity of being heard before the committee. If it should be shown that there was a necessity for the removal of this yard there would be no difficulty about it. In that case I would vote for it myself.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I wish to call the attention of the House to a few figures connected with this subject. Persons well informed upon the subject have stated that there are driven into the Philadelphia market for slaughter about one hundred and four thousand cattle. The yardage opened there according to the provisions of this bill would amount to fifteen thousand six hundred dollars. There are also driven into the Philadelphia market five hundred and twenty thousand sheep. The yardage upon those would amount to twenty-six thousand dollars. There are also one hundred and four thousand hogs driven into the same market, the yardage upon which would amount to five thousand two hundred dollars. There are also thirty-one thousand and two hundred calves, the yardage upon which would amount to one thousand five hundred and fifty dollars, making in all forty-eight thousand three hundred and fifty dollars. Besides that the inspection upon one hundred and four thousand cattle would amount to thirteen thousand dollars, upon five hundred and twenty thousand sheep ten thousand and four hundred dollars, upon one hundred and four thousand hogs twenty-five thousand one hundred and forty dollars, and upon thirty-one thousand two hundred calves six hundred and twenty-four dollars, making in all (adding the expense for yardage) the sum of seventy-six thousand five hundred and fourteen dollars. Now, this sum must be added by the butcher to the price of this meat, and the people purchasing must pay this additional sum for yardage and inspection. More than this, the cattle driven to this yard that it is proposed to erect would have in their value one dollar per head, making one hundred and four thousand dollars; the sheep twenty-five cents each, making the sum of one hundred and thirty thousand dollars, the hogs the same amount per head, making the sum of twenty-six thousand dollars. This, added to the amount for yardage and inspection, would make the sum of three hundred and thirty-six thousand five hundred and fourteen dollars, that must be assessed upon the meat that is sold to the citizens of the city of Philadelphia. In other words, they must pay this large additional tax for the erection of this yard. If this sum is not paid by the citizens of Philadelphia, it must be paid by those who drive their cattle there. This increased price must be borne by some one—either by the producer or the consumer. If the consumer does not pay it, then the farmers and others who drive their cattle there must pay it. I ask, in this point of view, whether there is anything in this bill which commands the approbation of this House? Certainly, if the citizens of Philadelphia have to pay this tax, they are opposed to it. Certainly, there is nothing in it to recommend it to the people of the country, if this tax must be paid by them. The whole question is: Merely to advance the interests and prosperity of one company.

Mr. HEADMAN. Mr. Speaker, when this bill was first before the House I opposed it. I thought at that time it would interfere with the rights of a great class of the people of this Commonwealth—the farmers—but, sir, after examining the bill, and reading it over several times, I am satisfied it does not, but, on the contrary, for their benefit. I think I am wrong. It would have been more appropriate to have the one of the bill advocated by the gentleman from Chester, in regard to a market house in the city of Philadelphia. That was for the better protection of farmers. The gentleman from Lancaster [Mr. ARMSTRONG] made a long speech when this bill was first before us, and introduced some great arguments in opposition to this bill. Among them he says it is a great monopoly. I would like to know who else would have the right to sell to the same individuals in the city, and farmers in the country, and that not a hoof could be sold without first going through the yards belonging to this company. Now, sir, I deny any assertion of that kind. All stock cattle can be sold to farmers to be fattened, and it will be the means of giving to the people of the city good, wholesome meat. All cattle unfit for slaughter will be rejected, and, of course, will have to be sold to farmers to be fattened. The only persons interfered with are those who do business between the producer and the trader; that is between the farmer and the butcher. And it must be conceded that as a general thing it is always these middle parties that are benefited or make all the money. For example, who is it that makes all the money on coal? Not the miners, nor the retailers in your cities, but the middle parties—those that purchase from the mines and sell to the city dealers. Just so it is with every kind of business. The only way to avoid high prices is to have as few of these persons as possible come between the producer and consumer. Yet, I believe this bill will be the means of bringing better cattle to market, and it provides for their protection and comfort and convenience at a nominal charge. Another feature in this bill is, it increases the revenue of the State; and as the people are now oppressed with taxation it will relieve them to a certain extent by paying into the State Treasury (according to the gentleman from Montgomery's calculation) from ten to fifteen thousand dollars per annum. That is certainly something in its favor.

The inspector is not appointed by the company, but the appointment is placed in the hands of the Governor. The company is obliged to pay the inspector out of their earnings. I have said before I think this bill will be a benefit to farmers, and as I represent that class, I will vote for it. I cannot see how any member from the country can go against it, unless his constituents are of the class that deal between the farmer and the butcher.

I think the farmers and the people will be greatly benefited by this act for the reasons that I have given, and I shall, therefore, vote for it.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, I move to go into committee of the whole for the purpose of special amendment, to add the following:

"Nothing in the provisions of this act shall prevent any person or company from establishing and maintaining similar yards to those provided in this bill: Provided, The person or companies establishing the same shall provide for the inspection, at their said yards, of all cattle, calves, sheep and hogs offered for sale therein, upon the same terms, and in the same manner, and subject to the payment of the same amount to the State provided in this bill, to be paid by the Philadelphia Cattle Market company."

I believe that the gentleman who introduced this bill urged its passage principally upon the ground that it provided for the inspection of cattle in the city of Philadelphia, and thereby prevented the sale of unwholesome meat to the city. Now, if this is the great purpose, if it is not designed to form a monopoly merely to put money into the hands of this corporation, I trust those gentlemen who desire the passage of this bill will unite with me in voting for this amendment. I trust, therefore, the House will agree to go into committee of the whole for the purpose of adopting this amendment. If they do not, it will show that they are not so anxious for the inspection of cattle as to put money into the pockets of this corporation by giving them the exclusive monopoly of all this business.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, the amendment proposed would be important, but I am opposed to the whole thing. There is no necessity for an inspector whatever. No man can show me how an inspector of living cattle can perform that office to anybody's advantage. He cannot tell whether a bullock is sick, unless he is really drooping, and if he is in that condition, he will not be sent to Philadelphia for slaughter. The estimate made by the gentleman from Jefferson [Mr. JENKS] of one dollar on each herd of cattle is a very moderate one. In many cases they will have to be driven eight or ten miles out of their way to get to these yards, and then be driven back, and which would lessen their value at least three dollars per head. I have that estimate from men who have been engaged all their lives in the business. Of course the amendment is important, but there is no need of any cattle inspector at all in Philadelphia.

Mr. LEE. I rise to a point of order. I make the point that the amendment of the gentleman from Cambria, [Mr. LINTON] is out of order because it incorporates another company. That cannot be done by this bill.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, I think that an examination of the amendment will show that it does not incorporate another company.

The SPEAKER. This amendment of the gentleman from Cambria confers the same power on other companies that is conferred on the one incorporated by this bill. The Chair is, therefore, of the opinion that the amendments is not a proper one.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker I desire to say upon that point, that if the Speaker will notice the amendment, he will see that it does not provide for the incorporation of another company; it merely provides that the provisions of this bill shall not prevent other corporations being formed.

The SPEAKER. It confers precisely the same power upon other persons as is conferred upon those named in this bill. The Chair is of the opinion that the point of order is well taken and therefore rules the amendment out of order.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker I rise to a point of order; that this bill provides for two separate and distinct things. I do not know how many things are provided for in this bill, but here are two that are certain.

In the first place, it creates the office of inspector, and in the next place incorporates a company—two things as separate and distinct as any two things can be. I, therefore, hold that the bill is unconstitutional and out of order under our joint rules and under the rules of the House.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, upon that point I desire to say that this bill simply creates an officer to carry out the provisions of the bill: that is all it does.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I want to call attention to the fact that there is still another subject matter connected with this bill. It provides for the payment of and a certain sum into the State Treasury, and is, therefore, a bill providing for revenue.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of the opinion that the point of order taken by the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] is not well taken for this reason, that the same point of order might be raised upon any bill introduced here for the purpose of chartering a coal or iron company, with the privilege of transporting to market.

The Chair regards the point equivalent to one that might be raised in the cases cited, and, therefore, does not consider it well taken.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I appeal from the decision of the Chair.

By request of the Speaker, the appeal of the gentleman from Fayette was reduced to writing and read by the Clerk, as follows:

On the question,

Shall the bill pass?

Mr. BOYLE rose to a point of order, as follows:

That the bill being in violation of the eighth section of the eleventh article of the Constitution, it is therefore not in order for this House to consider it.

The SPEAKER decided the point of order to be not well taken,

When the following appeal from the decision of the Chair was submitted, viz:

The undersigned respectfully appeal from the decision of the Chair deciding the said bill to be constitutional.

(Signed)

CHARLES E. BOYLE,

JOHN S. MANN.

The SPEAKER. The reason that the Chair has decided the point of order not well taken is that the bill embraces but one subject, and that subject is expressed in the title.

The question is,

Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the House?

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, the first, second, third, fourth and fifth sections of this bill provide for the incorporation and regulation of a cattle-yard company, clearly expressed, defining its powers, privileges and duties, and having reference solely and exclusively to a cattle-yard company. The sixth and seventh sections of this bill refer to an entirely different subject, to wit: the creation of a new office, to be filled by the Governor. If it was simply an inspector appointed by the company incorporated by this act, then the decision of the Chairman would be well made. But it as clearly creates the office and provides for the appointment of an inspector, as the act creating an inspector of wharves and messengers, an inspector of whisky, or any other inspector in this Commonwealth, defining his duties, requiring him to give bond, to be filed with the Auditor General of the Commonwealth. Clearly here is a new office to be filled by the Governor of the Commonwealth; an act fixing his salary and requiring him, before entering upon the duties of his office, to file his bond with the Auditor General. It is as clear as an act of Assembly providing for the appointment of an inspector of lumber; there can be no mistake about it.

These are briefly the reasons I have for signing this appeal.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, the sections of this bill referred to by the gentleman from Potter do just exactly what he says—establish a cattle yard; and the bill goes on to define the object of establishing that yard. It does not simply make a yard. There is some object in making that yard, some purpose in establishing that yard, and the purpose is to receive cattle there for inspection.

Now, the gentleman said that if this bill provided that the inspector should be an officer of this company, then the Speaker's ruling would be correct. But the office of inspector is created in the same way without making an effort to define the difference between the official position, no matter how created. I say the point taken by the Speaker is well taken. This yard is for a purpose and for an object, and that purpose and that object is to receive cattle for inspection.

Jellison has laid it down in his manual that a legislature may provide the instrumentalities for carrying out any bill that they pass, and this all this bill does. It is simply for the purpose of establishing a cattle yard for the inspection of cattle and providing the instrument to carry out that inspection.

I think the point of order is well and properly ruled by the Speaker.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, everybody understands what it is to create a corporation. Any office created by the Legislature without the sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth and eleventh sections, which provide for the appointment of an inspector. I say this bill would stand for the purpose of providing for a cattle yard without providing for an inspector. In order to comply with what is alleged as necessary for the protection of the people of the city of Philadelphia, merely to create the office of inspector of cattle, it would be necessary to do that under a separate and independent statute.

If by law the office is created, it would be in which the appointment was placed in the hands of the Governor. It would be an office the duties of which would be defined, and the compensation would be defined, and the officer would be required to file his bond or not, and would be required to make oath or not, for the performance of the duties of his office; but he would stand exactly in the same condition as any other officer appointed by the Governor, at the instance of a statute, or in pursuance of the provisions set forth in a bill.

If that is the effect, then clearly this bill as it stands upon our file now, is a bill providing for two separate and distinct things, such as antagonistic to each other, as the poles north and south. It provides for the incorporation of a company for the yardage of cattle, and it becoming necessary for the purpose of having this bill passed, to insert within it some provision of a character which would tend to be of some benefit to the public, this provision was inserted. They knew well enough that if the appointment of an inspector was left with the company there would be no protection to the people at all. Therefore, these sections were introduced to make it palatable, a sort of sugar coating over the bill, by which they seek without a separate and distinct law to create an inspector.

Now, if there ever was a point more clearly than in reference to legislation than this then I have not seen it. This bill clearly provides for two distinct and separate things; it creates the office of inspector of cattle, and in that respect it is a provision which the Legislature have a right to make in reference to the protection of the lives and health of their citizens. But this is only done in that way for the purpose of concealing the objectionable features of this bill, which also creates a corporation of individuals for the purpose of having the exclusive monopoly of a certain business in the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. GHEGAN. Mr. Speaker, I call the previous question. The call for the previous question was seconded by Messrs. Josephs, Humphrey, Lee, Kinney, Chase, Kerns, Mechling, Watt, Cameron, M'Kea, and Harbison.

The question being,

Shall the main question now be put?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. SATTERTHWAIT and Mr. MEYERS, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire Breen, Cameron, Chase, Davis, Ghegan, Harbison, Headman, Humphrey, Josephs, Kerns, Kinney, Koon, Lee, M'Kea, Mechling, Meily, Pillow, Robinson, Seiler, Shuman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Watt, Webb, Whann, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall and Wright—31.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Armstrong, Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Chadwick, Chalfant, Day, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Harner, Jenks, Kimmel, Leech, Linton, M'Henry, Maish, Mann, Meyers, Rhoads, Richards, Satterthwait, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman and Tharp—29.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The question recurring,

Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the House?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. SATTERTHWAIT and Mr. ARMSTRONG, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Cameron, Chadwick, Collins, Davis, Ghegan, Harbison, Headman, Humphrey, Josephs, Kerns, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Lee, Leech, Long, M'Henry, M'Kea, Mechling, Meily, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Seiler, Shuman, Stumbaugh, Webb, Westbrook, Whann, Wilson, Woodward, Worrall and Wright—33.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Armstrong, Barrington, Boyle, Chalfant, Day, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Jenks, Linton, Maish, Mann, Meyers, Richards, Satterthwait, Steacy, Stehman, Subers, Tharp—22.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The question recurring on the final passage of the bill.

Mr. JOSEPHS. I call the previous question.

The call for the previous question was seconded by Messrs. Lee, Woodward, Humphrey, Kinney, Shuman, Wingard, Harbison, Mechling, M'Kea, Ghegan and Cameron.

The question being,

Shall the main question now be put?

It was

Agreed to.

The question recurring on the final passage of the bill.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. ARMSTRONG and Mr. RICHARDS, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Breen, Cameron, Collins, Davis, Fogel, Ghegan, Harbison, Headman, Humphrey, Josephs, Kerns, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Lee, Long, M'Kea, Mechling, Pillow, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Seiler, Shuman, Stumbaugh, Webb, Westbrook, Woodward, Wright and Glass, Speaker—30.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Armstrong, Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Brennan, Chadwick, Chalfant, Day, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Jenks, Leech, Linton, M'Henry, Maish, Mann, Meyers, Richards, Satterthwait, Steacy, Stehman, Subers, Tharp, Weller, Whann and Worrall—30.

So the question was determined in the negative.

SPEAKER'S REASONS FOR VOTE.

Mr. JOHN P. GLASS (Speaker) stated that he would vote for this bill, because a large majority of the Philadelphia members favored it, and not because he thought favorably of its provisions. If a bill similar in its provisions should be presented for the city of Pittsburg, he would oppose it in every possible manner.

Mr. MAISH. Mr. Speaker, I move to reconsider the vote by which the House refused to agree to House bill No. 1960, an act providing for the consolidation of the Cranberry coal company and the Clarion coal company.

On the motion to reconsider,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. JONES and Mr. CHASE, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Brennan, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Craig, Espy, Fogel, Harner, Jenks, Jones, Kinney, Kline, Lee, Linton, LONG, M'Henry, Maish, Myers, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Seiler, Shuman, Tharp and Woodward—31.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Breen, Brown, Cameron, Davis, Day, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Harbison, Humphrey, Kimmell, Mano, Mechling, Pillow, Stehman, Subers, Webb, Whann, Wingard, Wright and Glass, Speaker—23.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The bill being again before the House, and the question on agreeing to the bill,

Mr. WHANN. Mr. Speaker, I have a very few remarks to make in regard to this bill, and they will be in part a repetition of what I have before said.

One reason that I am opposed to this bill is, that there is an iniquity in it, which, if fully known, would be sufficient reason why this consolidation should not be made, and the bill passed. The bill incorporating one of these companies, if read, would gain but few votes in favor of the measure; and if the gentleman who is urging the passage of this bill is not ashamed of it, he will have it read for the information of the House. Now, sir, with regard to the manner in which this first bill was gotten up, and the reason why the House has passed such a bill. The bill, as I understand, was not read in the Senate. The bill was never printed. The bill came to this House and was passed by this House; and those who were interested in it were not aware that it was before the House at all. The bill was passed clandestinely, and became a law, because those interested in the bill were not aware that such a measure was before the House. This is the reason why I oppose the consolidation so far as that company is concerned. Then comes up another bill, a bill to consolidate this company with another.

This bill likewise, I believe, has never been printed, at least it has never been upon our calendar. A member comes here from another district, comes to my district, reads a bill in place, gets up, I believe, and asks to have it laid upon the table; gets the bill before the House, and urges its passage. This bill is not one that my constituency desire. I do not desire to take up the time of this House, and I would only further remark that I am emphatically opposed to the passage of this bill, and I hope that it will not pass.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman who has just spoken, it is true, represents the county of Venango. Nevertheless, we know that perhaps ninety-nine one hundredths of the property of Venango county is owned in the other parts of the State. Now, it would be, I apprehend, a strange rule to establish here, for the legislation for Venango county, which is to affect, directly or indirectly, all the people of this State, to a more or less extent, which is to affect the interests of others to the extent of hundreds of millions of dollars, invested in that county, I say it would be a strange principle to establish, that the legislation of that whole interest, extending throughout the State, should depend upon the caprice of the members from Venango.

In presenting this bill to the House, I intended no discourtesy to the gentleman from Venango (Mr. WHANN), and I have distinctly so explained it to him. In the early part of this session, there was a bill before the House affecting the Cranberry coal company. Upon that occasion, I explained the history of the bill and the history of the company to the gentleman from Venango, and at my request he read the bill in place. He knows that not one share of that company is held in Venango county. The other bill originated in the Senate, came here and passed, and was signed by the Governor. We know that the Governor has exercised extraordinary care in examining bills of that kind with great scrutiny. And as it met with his approbation, it is evident that it is not of that extraordinary and outrageous character that the gentleman from Venango (Mr. WHANN) would have us believe.

The point of fact is this: I did not make obeisance to the gentleman from Venango; it is true, before reading this bill in place, by which I meant no discourtesy to him. But there is not one picayune to his interest in either one of these companies held in Venango county, and if I chose to read a bill in place, affecting my constituents exclusively, I believe I have that privilege without consulting the gentleman from Venango, or any other gentleman. I believe that it is my right, as a member of this General Assembly, to read a bill in place upon any subject that I please. Yet it is a mere matter of courtesy; and there is no gentleman, perhaps, more jealous of that matter of courtesy than myself. No gentleman has interfered to a less extent with the business of other gentlemen than myself. The gentleman's principal objection is simply because I did not make obeisance to him, and ask his permission to present a bill which affects my own constituents wholly, and with which he has nothing to do, and with which none of his constituents have anything to do. I repeat, that I did not intend it as an act of discourtesy to him; nevertheless, if he raises that question, I submit it as a matter of right that I can present any bill that I choose, so far as this bill is concerned. It cannot affect the interests of his constituents. It provides simply for the consolidation of two companies. Their charters have been granted, and if the stockholders choose, and the stockholders of both companies are the same—the shares of stock are owned by the same persons, so that, by an indirect method they can, at all events, come together.

This act of Assembly is simply to provide for the consolidation of two companies, owned by the same parties, or to make one corporation out of two corporations, not to extend the privileges of either; and cannot affect the constituents of any gentleman upon this floor. I was astonished to know that, in my absence this morning, this bill was opposed. I believed there could be no objection to it. I went home on business, with the utmost confidence that this just and proper bill would not be destroyed. Upon my return I found that it had been defeated.

This bill is for the purpose that I have expressed, for the consolidation of two companies already in existence, and not to confer additional powers upon one or the other. I submit that there is no just reason why the bill should not pass, and the gentleman from Venango (Mr. WHANN) has not made any substantial or reasonable objection to it. I trust the House will pass the bill.

Mr. WADELLE. Mr. Speaker, I think if this is the object of the gentleman from Berks (Mr. JONES), I do not think that the Legislature has anything to do with this bill. The Legislature, in 1865, passed a general law giving all railroad companies the power to consolidate.

Mr. JONES. That is true; but these are both coal companies, and I believe there is no general law which provides for their consolidation.

Mr. WADELLE. I understood it to be stated that they are railroad companies.

Mr. JONES. No, sir, they are both coal companies. They have the privilege of building railroads, and one has constructed a railroad to Venango City. I have examined the act to which the gentleman refers, and if this came within the provisions of that law, I would certainly not ask for an act of this sort. This act is copied almost entirely after the provisions of the general railroad law, which does not apply to coal companies.

Mr. WHANN. Mr. Speaker I would like to make one or two more statements. If this bill is to be carried by sophistry, I presume the gentleman from Berks (Mr. JONES) has made his arguments very conclusive. But I am aware that this House cannot be affected by any such remarks. In regard to the representation of the gentleman from Berks (Mr. JONES), that on a former occasion I had read a bill in place for him. That is true. His case then had some merit. Then there were some advantages in it which I favored, and I therefore read it in place, and aided him to effect its passage. But, sir, when he comes with this iniquitous thing, in which there is no right, he well knew that he dared not show it to me with any prospect of success in obtaining my sanction of it. The idea that he advocates, that because he has some constituents in Venango county, he therefore has the right to legislate for them, is one that ought not to obtain with this Legislature.

Now, he represents that ninety-nine one hundredths of the property in Venango county is owned elsewhere. Well, there is about as much correctness in his statement in regard to that as in regard to everything else. Every one here knows that it is false. That is a mild expression in which to put it.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, if it is to be understood that we may deal in personalities of that sort, I will accept the position of the gentleman from Venango [Mr. WHANN], and submit that, if he cannot argue this question before the House in good temper, it simply verifies the reason that I gave to this House for his objection to this bill.

Mr. WHANN. Mr. Speaker, in regard to this claim of the gentleman from Berks [Mr. JONES] that I am out of temper, that I think he cannot substantiate. I speak earnestly, but I speak truthfully and soberly. In regard to the position which I take, it is one which I have not heard controverted upon this floor—that every man represents his own district, and it is supposed that he knows better what his constituents want than any other gentleman. I have heard nothing in contradiction of that since I have been here. But this gentleman from Berks [Mr. JONES] would represent that every man who had an interest in any of my constituents, had properly the right to legislate for those constituents. Is that the principle we are to adopt here? Will the gentleman answer that this would be a correct principle? In case that should be adopted as a principle, what confusion would reign throughout our legislation! But this I need not dwell upon, because every one is aware that that courtesy should be extended to every member of this House, that he should be permitted to attend to his own legislation, that his own views should be regarded, and that he should read his own bills in place.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker will the gentleman allow himself to be questioned?

Mr. WHANN. Yes, sir.

Mr. WADDELL. As the gentleman from Venango knows the location of the country better than I do, and knows, perhaps, the location of these respective roads, I would like to inquire how this consolidation may effect these roads.

Mr. WHANN. Mr. Speaker, this consolidation would give them control of five thousand acres of land in Clarion, or in adjoining counties, and it would be uncertain how far these roads would have to run to meet. This is so worded that they can run almost any place. That is one of the principal objections, that it gives them a general license to run any place that they may see proper.

The question being on agreeing to the bill, The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WHANN and Mr. HUMPHREY, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Armstrong, Boyd, Boyle, Brennan, Chase, Colville, Craig, Fogel, Harner, Headman, Jenks, Jones, Kline, Koon, Lee, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Meyers, Quigley, Rhoads, Roush, Seiler, Tharp, Watt, Westbrook and Glass, Speaker—27.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn.

The question being on the motion of Mr. QUIGLEY that the House do now adjourn.

It was

Not agreed to.

Senate bill No. 275, an act to establish criminal courts for Dauphin, Lebanon and Schuylkill counties.

The question being on the final passage of the bill,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. QUIGLEY and Mr. MANN, and were as follows, viz:

YEA—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, Day, Espy, Ewing, Freehorn, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Humphrey, Kimmell, Kenney, Lee, Leech, Mann, Mechling, Pillow, Richards, Seiler, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wilson, Wingard, Wright and Glass, Speaker.—41.

NAY—Messrs. Boyd, Boyle, Jenks, Linton and Meyers.—5.

So the question remained undetermined.

The SPEAKER. There is not a quorum of members voting. The officers will at once close the doors and permit no member to pass outside the bar of the House. The Clerk will call the roll of members.

The roll of members being called by the Clerk, the following answered to their names:

Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Boyle, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Craig, Davis, Day, Espy, Ewing, Freehorn, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Humphrey, Jenks, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, Mann, Mechling, Mealy, Meyers, Pillow, Quigley, Rhoads, Richards, Roush, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wilson, Wingard, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker.—49.

The SPEAKER. There are forty-nine gentlemen present—not a quorum.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, is it in order to move to adjourn?

The SPEAKER. There is but one of two things that the House can do—either to adjourn or to send for the absentees.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, in consideration of an arrangement made between some of the gentlemen to vote upon the free railroad bill, I think the House had better adjourn. This bill can be passed just as well on Monday morning as to-night. If gentlemen were kept here under the assurance that the House would adjourn after passing the free railroad bill, it seems to me unjustive would he do them to compel their attendance now?

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I have no such understanding as the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] speaks of. We have been sitting here upon the regular call of the yeas and nays to this time. There were a sufficient number of gentlemen present at the time the vote was called to constitute a quorum, had they answered to their names. It shows the pertinacity with which gentlemen are adhering to their opposition to this question in the face of a clear majority against them, and I appeal to the House whether we should submit to it.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me we should submit something to decency. I know that fifteen or twenty members upon this floor—myself among the number—are here for the purpose of voting upon the free railroad bill, with the understanding that when that was passed, the House would adjourn. I think we should carry out in good faith our understanding in regard to that matter. For my part, I would not have remained here in the absence of that understanding.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I wish to add one word. I did say to a number of gentlemen, and among them the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS], when they were urging an adjournment, that the friends of the free railroad bill had it in their power to pass that bill, and that after it passed I was willing that the House should adjourn. I had no idea there would be any trouble in any way, and as there is no necessity for it I hope there will not be any.

Mr. COLVILLE. Mr. Speaker, so far as I am concerned I gave a personal pledge—and that only—to vote for an adjournment after the passage of the free railroad law. That I have carried out in good faith by voting every time for an adjournment since and shall so continue to do.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, this is Saturday and we have now been here all day. This bill can be passed on Monday, and will be just as good a law if passed on Monday as if passed now. Although these gentlemen may have done wrong in absenting themselves from the House, I do not see the necessity of bringing them back at this time.

Mr. COLVILLE. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn.

The question being on the motion of Mr. COLVILLE that the House do now adjourn,
It was

Agreed to.

And the SPEAKER declared the House adjourned until 10 o'clock, A. M., on Monday.

SENATE.

MONDAY, April 8, 1867.

The Senate met and was called to order at 10 o'clock, A. M., by the SPEAKER.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Bailey, of HARRIARBURG.

The reading of the Journal of Saturday was dispensed with.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

At the suggestion of the SPEAKER, it was agreed, by unanimous consent, that the order of business for the day should be, first, the presentation of reports from committees; second, the consideration of the general appropriation bill, and third, the consideration, on call, of Senate bills not heretofore considered.

BILLS RECALLED FROM THE GOVERNOR.

Mr. RANDALL offered the following resolution, which was twice read and adopted, viz:

Resolved, If the House concur, the Governor be requested to return Senate bill No. 812, entitled An act to repeal an act to lay out a State road in Schuylkill and Columbia counties, approved April 4th, 1866.

The resolution was adopted.

Mr. BIGHAM offered the following resolution, which was twice read:

Resolved, That (if the House of Representatives concur) the Governor be requested to return to the Senate for amendment. Senate bills numbered and entitled as follows:

No. 792, entitled An act authorizing the sale of the Allegheny city poor farm.

No. 697, entitled An act to incorporate the Monongahela inclined plane company.

The resolution was adopted.

GENERAL APPROPRIATION BILL.

Agreed to and ordered.

The Senate resumed the second reading and consideration of House bill No. 828, entitled An act to provide for the ordinary expenses of the Government and other general and specific appropriations.

The fifty-eighth, fifty-ninth, sixtieth, sixty-first, sixty-second, sixty-third, sixty-fourth, sixty-fifth and sixty-sixth sections were read and

Agreed to.

The sixty-seventh section was read as follows:

Sec. 67. That the sum of two hundred dollars is hereby appropriated to each of the four reporters employed on the Legislative Record in the House of Representatives, and to Henry J. Mason, T. B. Cochran, R. McDevitt and H. G. Sedman, reporters of the Senate.

Mr. WALLACE. I move to amend this section by adding at the end the following:

Provided, That the Clerk of the Senate and House shall employ the necessary corps of photographers to report the proceedings of the Legislature at the next and subsequent sessions thereof, so as to provide for the prompt and complete report thereof, and that the contract for publishing legislative proceedings be made with reference to this arrangement.

Mr. Chairman, my reason for offering this amendment is, that I think we have not now a prompt and continuous report of the proceedings of the Legislature. The present mode of publishing the Record makes the publication comparatively useless. If the Senate and the House should take charge of the reporting, as the amendment proposes, provide by their own corps of reporters the matter for the press, there would be nothing for the publisher of the Record to do but the printing of it. We would then have the matter under our own control. I offer this amendment for the purpose of testing the sense of the Senate on this question.

Mr. CONNELL. The Senate and the House would make a beautiful business of it, if they attempted to superintend the employment of the reporters! I think every man must see at once the difficulties connected with the matter. How would we do it?

Mr. WALLACE. Certainly the Clerk of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives could employ the necessary number of competent photographers. Whatever goes on here could be prepared under the direction of the Clerk. This amendment does not propose to affect in any way the contract. All that it proposes is that the Clerks of the Senate and House shall see that the reports are made at the earliest moment, providing a sufficient corps of reporters for that purpose. The manuscript prepared under the direction of the Clerk will be furnished to the publisher of the Record.

The form in which our debates are at present published and sent to the people is simply ridiculous. Their publication is no advantage to us or anybody else. If the reporters were under the control of our own Clerks, this thing would be done promptly and efficiently; the report of our proceedings would be laid on our desks the next day after they took place. That is what we ought to have. This proposition does not affect the amount that would be paid to the printer. It does affect the contract in any way. It simply provides that this matter shall be placed under our own control.

Mr. CONNELL. Has the Senator made any calculation as to the cost of this new arrangement?

Mr. WALLACE. I have not made any estimate of the cost. I do care what the cost may be. Either we ought to have a Record that is a Record, or we ought to have none at all. If we have photographic reports we ought to have them published promptly, so that there may be laid on our desks each day the proceedings of the day before.

THE SPEAKER. How do they do in Washington?

Mr. WALLACE. I do not know.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer). The fact that a particular gentleman is Clerk of the House or Senate one year is no evidence that he will be clerk the next year. Suppose that the present Clerk of the Senate, before the meeting of the next Legislature, should enter into an arrangement with reporters for the next session, that on the day of the meeting of the Legislature we elect a new clerk, and that he is not willing to ratify the arrangement made by the retiring clerk in regard to the reporting; we have at once a practical difficulty. It seems to me that we had better let the matter remain in its present position.

Mr. CONNELL. I have no doubt that the arrangement now proposed would increase the present expense ten times over. Therefore I am opposed to it.

Mr. WALLACE. I call for the yeas and nays on the amendment. I want to know whether we are to have a Record deserving of the name, or whether we are to have a lot of stuff.

Mr. WHITE. I want to understand this proposition. As I understand, the Senator from Clearfield proposes that we shall require the clerks of the respective Houses to employ the necessary corps of photographic reporters to keep up our reports; and then the contract for the printing of the Record is to be made with reference to this arrangement.

Mr. WALLACE. Certainly.

Mr. WHITE. So that we can have laid on our desks each day the proceedings of the day previous. Now, this, it seems to me, is an eminently fair and proper arrangement. It is not intended to strike at any one. I do not regard it as a stroke at the printer of the Record, or any one else. But every one who has observed the course of our proceedings, knows that those who report the proceedings of the Senate are worked to the utmost. I have been in this Senate chamber as late as any other person, and I have observed our reporters taxed to the utmost. More than that; I have seen them working during Sunday—a day on which they ought to have rest. It has frequently occurred to me that we have not a sufficient reporting force; and the people of the Commonwealth will, I think, sanction any more efficient arrangement which we may make in this matter. They desire that the reports of our proceedings shall be printed. They want to see them, and it is right they should see them. I am satisfied that the present reporting force is not sufficient to enable us to have what we ought to have and what the people want—the publication of our proceedings the day after they transpire.

Mr. GLATZ. There is a single point on which I differ with the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE]. I do not think the people are half so much interested in seeing the publication of our debates as our Senators themselves. [Laughter.]

Mr. WHITE. I do not know about that. On the amendment of Mr. WALLACE,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr.

WALLACE and Mr. DONOVAN, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS.—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Burnett, Coleman, Davis, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Graham, Jackson, James, Landon, M' Candless, Schall, Seagrish, Shoemaker, Taylor, Wallace, White and Worthington.—21.

NAYS.—Brown (Mercer), Connell, Haines, Stutzman and Hall, Speaker.—5.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

During the roll-call the following remarks were made:

Mr. BILLINGSFELT. I have no fault to find with either the reporters or the publishers of the Record; I vote aye.

Mr. COLEMAN. I am inclined to think we ought to have some change to get our reports out earlier than we do. I am willing to make the experiment. I therefore vote aye.

Mr. WHITE. As I stated a few moments ago, I think every one admits we ought to have our proceedings published more promptly, and that we ought to have a larger reporting force for the purpose. I therefore vote aye.

The result of the vote was announced as above stated.

The section as amended, was

Agreed to.

The sixty-eighth section was read and

Agreed to.

The sixty-ninth section was read as follows:

For the erection and completion of an addition to the Governor's mansion, according to the plan and specification furnished by L. M. Simon, architect, the sum of twenty thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended under the direction of the Governor.

Mr. WALLACE. I move to amend by adding at the end of the section the following:

And no portion of this money shall be paid over to the contractor for such work until he shall have filed in the office of the Auditor General his bond, with two sureties in twenty thousand dollars, to be approved by the Auditor General, conditioned for the faithful performance of his contract in erecting and completing such addition.

Mr. CONNELL. I understood the Governor to say that he was not going to give out this work to any one man; that he intended to contract with different parties to furnish the material and do the work, and that he would superintend the work himself.

Mr. COLEMAN. I think that the amount of the bonds is rather heavy, considering the sum involved.

If I had charge of this work, I would not give it all out to one man, because it includes heating, steam pipes, and all that sort of thing.

Mr. WALLACE. We have had a little experience in matters of this kind. During the last four years we have had in course of erection and completion a new wing to this capitol. The cost originally contemplated was fifty thousand dollars. We have already spent one hundred and twenty-eight thousand dollars upon it; and we are now called upon to appropriate fifteen thousand dollars in this bill. That is the result of this mode of building. Now, I do not believe in asking the Governor to regulate and manage the making of this addition to the Executive mansion. Let him get a defined plan from an architect, and let contracts be entered into according to that plan. Let us proceed as business men proceed in the erection of their own houses. When we undertake to erect a building, it is our business to require the contractor to erect it according to a contract previously agreed upon. Let us not have parties coming here year after year, as they have done in regard to the wing of the capitol, asking more and more appropriations, until the Committee on Finance admit, as they have done this session, that they are ashamed to put into the appropriation bill additional appropriations for this purpose.

I say that if we go on with this addition to the Governor's mansion in the manner contemplated in the section, we shall simply have a repetition of what has occurred in regard to the erection of the addition to the capitol. When we give a contract for the erection of this addition to the Governor's mansion, we should give it for a specific amount to a man who is responsible, or who will give sureties for the faithful performance of the contract according to the specifications.

Let this contractor be held to his contract, just as individuals hold contractors to their contracts. If we do not do this, when shall we be done unloosing the purse-strings of the Commonwealth? If we do right in the outset, we shall be right in the outcome; but if we fail to make proper provisions now in reference to the performance of this work, we shall be called on from year to year to make additional appropriations to complete the work.

The SPEAKER. Does this appropriation propose that the money shall be expended according to the contract of this man Simon?

Mr. CONNELL. Yes, sir.

The SPEAKER. I think that is wrong. I trust the Senate will not agree to anything of the kind. I have been assured by a great many people, quite as good as Mr. Simon, that his estimates are out of all kind of character.

Mr. CONNELL. Nothing is said about estimates.

The SPEAKER. Another man would not want to do the work according to his plan, if the Governor should think it best not to give the work to Simon.

Mr. CONNELL. The Governor does not intend to give it to Mr. Simon. His idea is to employ his own men all the way through.

Mr. COLEMAN. This is a plan adopted upon consultation.

The SPEAKER. Mr. Simon wants to be the contractor, does he not?

Mr. COLEMAN. I do not know.

The SPEAKER. I was told that he did.

Mr. COLEMAN. It may be that he will put in a bid. But his estimate was for one hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars. It is believed the work can be done for less, and I am inclined to think it can.

The SPEAKER. I do not believe in spending twenty thousand dollars to put up a house here which could be put up in Philadelphia or Pittsburg for five thousand dollars. I think things have got to be pretty "rough" when the Committee on Finance say that they cannot make an estimate of what the money is to be expended for.

Mr. CONNELL. I never said that.

Mr. WALLACE. I said it.

The SPEAKER. Can the Senator make an estimate of how all this money is to be expended?

Mr. CONNELL. I could take Mr. Edward G. Lee, a carpenter of Philadelphia and a member of the other House, and he could account for nearly the whole of it.

The SPEAKER. Well, the present State Treasurer told me that the bills which had been sent in over and over again were perfectly good; that it costs as much to paint a house in the district and among the constituents of the Senator from Lebanon [Mr. CLEMAN] as it costs to build a house in Philadelphia.

Mr. McCANDLESS. I am credibly informed that from some of the bills presented fifty per centum was stricken off.

The SPEAKER. Yes, and it was done voluntarily by the men themselves.

Mr. COLEMAN. I am just as anxious that my constituents should be watched as that any others should be. I have no doubt that some of them need watching. I agree with the general principle embraced in the amendment of the Senator from Clearfield; but I think, as has been suggested by the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. CONNELL], that if this matter is left subject to the control of the Governor, he can contract with one man for the shell, with another man for the carpenter work, and so on. The proposition, as it now stands, would compel the Governor to give the whole job to one man.

Mr. WALLACE. I cannot believe that the Governor, with the presence of his official duties upon him, will undertake to direct the building of this addition to his house, or do anything beyond the merest supervision of the work.

Now, sir, when any private gentleman desires to erect a house and is engaged in other business, how does he proceed? He gets estimates as to the different branches of work that are to be done. In the first place, he learns for how much the shell can be put up; then he learns the cost of the heating apparatus, the gas apparatus, the furnishing, etc. In a business-like way he ascertains from persons engaged in the different branches of business the cost of each kind of work required. This is the manner in which we should proceed when work for the State is required to be done.

I think that the Governor would be the proper person in whose hands to place the supervision of this matter, and I do not desire to cumber him. Let him make the contract with some one individual, or if he deems it best, three or four individuals, for the completion of this building in every particular, including the heating apparatus, the gas apparatus, the plastering, everything connected with the building. Let the contractor or contractors be required to finish the work in accordance with the specifications furnished. Let a bond be filed so that the Commonwealth may have some security that she will not be required to pay more than she bargains to pay, and that the Governor may not be cheated of his fair fame and reputation as a business man attacked in the outcome of this matter.

This, it seems to me, is the manner in which, as a business man, guarding the interests of the Commonwealth, should manage this matter. If we leave it open, we shall have a repetition of the farce which has attended the building of the extension of the Capitol. I do not wish this to happen. I desire to see no obstacles put in the way of the erection of the addition to the Governor's Mansion; but I wish that the transaction may be guarded as completely as possible in reference to expense. The building of such a house should not cost us much more than one-third more than it would cost a private individual. I think that my amendment will effect the desired object.

The SPEAKER. A bond of the Commonwealth may be given; but the Legislature can do it as it pleases in regard to holding the parties to their bond. I have no doubt that they will come here seeking relief.

Mr. WALLACE. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." Let the next Legislature take the responsibility of its own action.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The question being on agreeing to the section as amended,

Mr. BURNETT. This may be a foregone conclusion; but I simply desire to say that I am opposed to this whole arrangement. So far as I am concerned, I would like to see the sale of the present Executive Mansion and the purchase of an eligible site and the erection of a mansion that would be in keeping with the dignity of the Governorial office, and that would do credit to the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. I think that would be the most judicious course to pursue in this matter.

Mr. McCANDLESS. I understand that there was a proposition to convert the arsenal on the capitol grounds into an Executive Mansion, and a committee, I believe, was appointed to examine into the matter, it being manifest that the present arsenal building is becoming unfit for the purposes of an arsenal. I think it would be well enough to take no action in this matter just now. The Governor has a very comfortable house at present; and I think there is no doubt that, in a year or two the location of the Executive Mansion will be changed. My idea is that the mansion should be on the capitol grounds. With proper alterations and improvements, the arsenal building would make an excellent Governor's house.

Mr. COLEMAN. I desire to call the attention of the gentleman from Philadelphia

[Mr. M'CANDESS] to the fact that this extension of the present building is to be made with a view to the fact that the building may before long be abandoned as a Governor's mansion. The plans are so arranged that the building when completed can at any time be converted at a small expense into two houses, so that they can be sold separately. This could be done with comparatively little loss. As a matter of course, the State never comes out entirely whole in such transactions.

I would also call attention to the fact that these additions are made with a view to the comfort of members of the Legislature, rather than of the Governor and his family. The latter have plenty of room in the present building. The extension is designed for the comfort of members of the Legislature when they call to see the Governor.

Mr. DONOVAN. The house was large enough at the Governor's reception the other evening, because there was nothing there to make the members "swing."— [Laughter.]

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The seventeenth section was read as follows: For finishing and furnishing the new Library room and removing the books thereto, fifteen thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended by the Librarian, with the approval of the Governor, the Auditor General and the State Treasurer, the accounts to be audited and settled by the Auditor General in the usual manner.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, we had considerable discussion on this subject last year, and whilst I do not desire to oppose this appropriation, it is due to common honesty, it is due to common justice, it is due to the taxpayers of the Commonwealth, that this subject should be somewhat commented on.

Last year, after a great deal of discussion, we consented to appropriate thirty-nine thousand dollars toward the completion of the extension of the Capitol and toward the furnishing of the Library. I then opposed the additional twenty-eight thousand dollars; I did not think it was necessary. The Committee on Finance, however, asserted that that would complete the work; and the appropriation was put in. Now, it is proposed to put fifteen thousand dollars more into this same bottomless hole; for experience has shown it to be such. Since 1864, when this thing was commenced, we have year by year been appropriating money toward the completion of this extension. The first question which I desire to ask of the chairman of the Committee on Finance [Mr. CONNELL] is, where is the contract under which this building has been erected?

Mr. CONNELL. I presume it is in the hands of the officers of the Commonwealth who had charge of the work. The Auditor General, the State Treasurer, and Governor Curtin were, I believe, the parties who made the original contract.

Mr. WALLACE. Was this contract under which this extension was erected ever before the Committee on Finance?

Mr. CONNELL. We have never seen it.

Mr. WALLACE. Was any bond filed by the contractor?

Mr. CONNELL. I am not able to answer as to that.

Mr. WALLACE. Is he a responsible man for the completion of the contract?

Mr. CONNELL. Indeed I do not know. I did not make the contract, and am not responsible for it. I beg the Senator not to hold the Committee on Finance responsible for the acts of the Governor, the Auditor General and the State Treasurer.

Mr. WALLACE. Certainly not; but I do hold the Committee on Finance responsible for recommending appropriations without knowing what has become of the money which has been put into this hole before. If, as business men, conducting their own affairs, they entered into a contract for the erection of a building, they would know beforehand what that contract was.

Mr. CONNELL. The Committee on Finance knew very well that the original contract was fifty thousand dollars for a building not fire-proof. They knew well enough that to make that building fire-proof thirty-five thousand dollars more was necessary. That far we were satisfied it was all right—up to eighty-five thousand dollars.

Mr. WALLACE. Last year thirty-nine thousand dollars were appropriated, in these terms:

"That thirty-nine thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, be appropriated to finish and furnish the Library room in the Capitol extension, to be expended by the Librarian, with the approval of the Governor, the Auditor General and the State Treasurer."

Now, I do find fault with the Committee on Finance that they have not given us the data on which they base their recommendation.

Mr. CONNELL. We have the items here.

Mr. WALLACE. But what I want to know is, where are the necessary facts upon which a man would put his hand into his own pocket, and make additional expenditures in the finishing of his own house, when he had a contractor who had agreed to finish that house for a specific sum? Those are the facts which I ask at the hands of the Committee on Finance. If they do not know whether any bond was filed, if they cannot give us the reason why this additional amount of money must be appropriated, I ask what kind of guardianship of the interests of the Commonwealth is this?

Mr. CONNELL. I am compelled to speak thus plainly, but I do say, Mr. Speaker, that it is our duty, as the guardians of the interests of the taxpayers of the Commonwealth, to investigate this matter. I affirm that, until this Senate knows what has become of the money already appropriated, and knows it through the avenues provided for the purpose of giving such information, we should not consent to vote more money for this object. If it be demonstrated, as I have no doubt it will be when we get the facts, that more money has been appropriated for this purpose than should have been appropriated—that there has been a sink, a hole, in which this money has gone unnecessarily—if we recognize the fact that we have been literally cheated, then I will agree to vote this additional fifteen thousand dollars toward the completion of the capitol, because the money is lost, and we must have the capitol completed. But let us place the responsibility where it properly belongs. Let us do what ordinary business men do in conducting their affairs. Let us investigate this matter, and hold the contractor responsible for it; and if we cannot do that, then let us put our hands in our pockets and finish the building.

Mr. CONNELL. As for holding the contractor responsible in this case, that is all moonshine. The contractor did not make these alterations of the original plan; they were made by the gentlemen who had this matter in charge; they were made with the approval of the Governor, the Auditor General and the State Treasurer. These gentlemen are the parties responsible for the changes; they permitted them to be made. I might tell you when they were made and what they amounted to. When the building had reached a certain stage, the architect said that additional iron girders were necessary to support the gallery. This, somehow or other, had escaped his attention in the first place. Those were put in, and it became necessary to cut down the iron columns.

The SPEAKER. Who was the architect?

Mr. CONNELL. Mr. Simon, I believe.

The SPEAKER. I hope they will not get that man to do any more work.

Mr. CONNELL. The alteration was not made on the contractor's own responsibility; it must have been made at the instance or with the sanction of the Governor and the other officers having charge of the matter. Mr. Wren Forney, the Librarian, testifies that this alteration cost an additional four thousand dollars and detained the work about two months.

Then there were two spiral stair-cases put up, the original estimate contemplating but one. This addition cost one thousand eight hundred dollars. Besides that, the estimate furnished us last year did not include glass, glazing or painting. Then there was the central case, writing desk, skylight, glass, etc., which exceeded the estimated cost about one thousand dollars. The alteration in the ventilation of the attic cost eight hundred dollars. Thus a very large increase in the expense was incurred with the approbation of the Auditor General, the State Treasurer, and the Governor. The contractor is not responsible at all for this. The Senator from Clearfield must take the proper officials to task, not the contractor, not the Committee on Finance. If the Senator wishes the building to stand unfinished and without furniture, and can persuade the Senate to sanction that, very well.

Mr. WALLACE. I have no such wish. But, Mr. Speaker, we have already appropriated one hundred and twenty-seven thousand dollars prior to the present year for the completion of this building; and we are now asked to appropriate fifteen thousand dollars more for finishing and furnishing it, when the Senate's expenditure was all it should cost us, but fifty thousand dollars. That amount was appropriated in 1864.

Mr. CONNELL. That was not for a fire proof building.

Mr. WALLACE. And in 1865, thirty-five thousand dollars was appropriated for the purpose of making the building fire proof. In 1866, something else was said to be necessary, and thirty-nine thousand dollars was appropriated. Now it is proposed to appropriate fifteen thousand dollars more.

Let me read from the Record of 1866 what the Senate's expenditure was. It should cost us, but fifty thousand dollars. That amount was appropriated in 1864.

Mr. CONNELL. Mr. Speaker, I would say, in explanation of that section, that the House instructed Mr. LEE and one of the members from Allegheny, both practical builders, to examine this matter, and they were satisfied that it would be necessary to finish and furnish it throughout, and put in a skylight. I presume there will be no opposition here on that part of the appropriation. "The Librarian has furnished us with a statement, which was printed and laid upon our desks, giving his estimate for the furnishing."

Mr. DONOVAN. Does any Senator believe that it would cost thirty-nine thousand dollars to put in new furniture?

Mr. CONNELL. It is not for furniture; it is to finish the building. The amount estimated for furnishing the library was eleven thousand dollars.

Mr. CONNELL. The Senator forgets that since that time we have made alterations tions. Mr. LEE, when he made that estimate, did not know anything about those necessary alterations. Alterations have actually been made, and, of course, the expense has been increased by that much.

Mr. WALLACE. The Senator from Chester [Mr. WORTHINGTON] at that time went over the matter in detail, and said:

"In addition to the cost of the finishing the room, it is estimated that it will cost eleven thousand dollars to furnish it. The room is one hundred and four feet long, and fifty-four feet in width. Supposing twenty-eight inches to be the width of the carpet, it will require twelve hundred yards to cover the floor. The cost of carpeting, alone, will therefore amount to at least four thousand dollars. The cost of putting down the carpet and upholstering will amount to two thousand more. It is estimated by those who put in the gas fixtures that it will cost from a eighteen hundred to two thousand more. Then the cost of office furniture and two glass partitioned rooms for the offices will be about two thousand. It will take two or three men three or four months to remove the library and arrange the books, the expense of which will be about two thousand dollars more. So the sum total of these estimates for furnishing the library will not be less than ten thousand four hundred dollars.

"Now, I ask the Senate whether this is an extravagant expenditure of money. We have put up a building at a cost of eighty-eight thousand dollars; we have not finished it, and it will take thirty-eight thousand dollars more to complete that room as it should be done. And when that is done, will you leave the library room without furniture?"

"I am sure that there is no Senator here who is unwilling to appropriate all the money that is necessary for this object."

The Senator from Chester thus pointed out to us the necessity for the appropriation of last year; and the appropriation was voted in accordance with the specific items pointed out by him. I find no fault with that that was done then, because we had pointed out to us specifically what was necessary. But now we have "Monsieur Tonson come again!" The same old song is repeated. How are we to have any guarantee that this thing is not to be continued from year to year?

I rose to put some inquiries to the Committee on Finance, to ascertain whether, in view of this continued expense to the Commonwealth, they are doing what business men should do—whether they should not have a guarantee that when they first put down the stakes—whether there has not been a leak somewhere. It is very easy to get estimates after the work is done; but had we taken proper precautions in the beginning, there would have been none of these difficulties. In the absence of any information as to the contract, in the absence of details in regard to the actual cost of the building, it seems to me we should hesitate to vote this additional appropriation.

Mr. WORTHINGTON. Mr. Speaker, we have had a great deal of discussion on this subject last year as well as this. The Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] seems incapable of comprehending why it is that we are asking an additional appropriation this year, when the appropriations last year were to complete the work. Now, I think the chairman of the Committee on Finance has shown by the statement of the Librarian the exact cause of these increased expenses. As has been stated, when it was first proposed to erect this extension fifty thousand dollars was appropriated; and it was provided that an amount of ten thousand dollars should be levied on every private bill, to pay for this outlay. We have thus been accumulating a special fund to pay for this work. This was a part of the proposition of Mr. CLYMER, then the Senator from Berks, to whom we owe the origination of this project. That tax will in time pay every dollar of the expense of the extension of this capital.

Fifty thousand dollars was at that time appropriated; and the original contract was made on that basis. It was afterward found necessary to make the building fire-proof, which had not been contemplated in the original contract. The commissioners appointed to superintend the erection of the building—the Governor, the Auditor General and the State Treasurer—took it upon themselves to authorize this alteration in the original plan; and they did perfectly right. The Senator from Clearfield will not deny that the building ought to be fire-proof. Hence an additional appropriation of thirty-five thousand dollars became necessary the next year, and was advocated by the Senator who introduced the original proposition into this chamber. Last year it became necessary to put in a skylight and a gallery, which were not included in the original proposition. The appropriation of last year, it was supposed, would be sufficient to pay for these additions, and also to provide for furnishing the Library. We agreed to the appropriation with this idea. Undoubtedly that is the fact. But in the estimates made last year, which were made by two gentlemen of the other House, Mr. Lee and Mr. Slack, both practical mechanics, a number of items were omitted. Mr. Lee told me the other day that in their estimate a number of items were entirely overlooked.

Mr. GLATZ. They were not very "practical" mechanics.

Mr. WORTHINGTON. That may or may not. At any rate, sir, they were not responsible for the changes which became necessary in the original plan.

When the joists were cut for the purpose of putting in the skylight, it was found necessary to put in an girder below to support the gallery. This caused an additional expense of four thousand dollars, which had been entirely overlooked. Then it was found necessary to have two spiral stair cases. The first plan was to put in the corner of the room a single small stair-case, not a spiral stair-case, but a simple passage up into the galleries. This, it was afterward thought, would not look well; hence these two spiral stair-cases were put in, causing another addition to the expense. Besides, that room is better and more expensively finished than was contemplated in the beginning.

Thus the necessity for this additional appropriation is easily accounted for. Mr. Lee—who I believe is regarded as a very good mechanic, although he may have overlooked some items in making the estimate last year—told me in conversation the other day, that the cost of the various items embraced in the finishing of that library room had not been extravagant. There is no finer, neater, better arranged library room in any State in the country. The construction and furnishing of such room must cost money. We now ask this appropriation of fifteen thousand dollars, which is to complete the whole work and furnish the room, with carpeting and the necessary chairs. You do not want to put down in that room a common carpet costing about a dollar a yard; you do not want to put there ordinary Windsor chairs. You want the room fitted up and furnished in such a manner as to be a credit to the Commonwealth, not a disgrace.

I think that the appropriation now asked is entirely warranted, and is reasonable. It is not an extravagant, what must be the consequence? That room must remain in its present unfinished condition, and must be closed up. Your library must continue in its present location, with fifteen thousand volumes stored away in the attic, for want of room.

These are the facts. They are very simple and easy to be comprehended. I do not see how it is possible for any Senator to misapprehend the state of the case. The experience of the Commonwealth in this matter is nothing more than occurs to every one who builds a house under contract. I have built two houses in this way, and I know what it is. I have bound down the contractors as closely as it was possible for a lawyer to bind them. Yet I wanted to make changes as I went along; and a house which according to the estimate was to cost me four thousand two hundred dollars cost me five thousand five hundred dollars.

Mr. CONNELL. That is every man's experience.

Mr. WORTHINGTON. It is the experience of every man who builds.

Mr. LANDON. I wish to state merely one single fact. In a conversation with the Librarian, Mr. Forney, I told him that there were some misgivings and fault-findings on the part of members of the Legislature in regard to the expenditure of the money already appropriated. He remarked that he regretted very much the necessity for asking the Legislature for fifteen thousand dollars more; "but," said he, "in expending the last year's appropriation, the men receiving money for work done have been required, before drawing the money, to make oath before the Auditor General that they did the work for the prices specified, and that they paid no man a farthing for getting the work; and," said he, "I do not know what more we could do."

I merely desired to state this fact. I agree with the Senator from Clearfield that we should guard very rigidly the expenditure of the public money.

Mr. CONNELL. If any additional guard can be thrown around the expenditure of the public money, I am in favor of it, but I think the Senator from Clearfield requires an impossibility—that numerous and important changes should be made in this building, and should cost nothing. No reasonable man can expect that. I have built six or seven houses, costing from ten thousand to twenty thousand dollars apiece, besides a great many smaller ones; and my experience has been what I think has been the experience of every man who has built houses; in every instance I have found it necessary to make some change in the original plan, and the building has cost me much more than I expected.

Mr. DONOVAN. When the original appropriation was made two or three years ago for the erection of this extension, I then declared that it would cost us one hundred and fifty thousand dollars before it was finished. I think that we have now pretty nearly reached those figures.

Mr. COLEMAN. It appears, Mr. Speaker, that the commissioners who had charge of this work made changes of their own in the original plan; and when you once open a contract of this kind by requiring to be done what is not embraced in the original plan, you are pretty much at the mercy of the contractor. I cannot understand why the commissioners could not see in the beginning that a skylight, a gallery, or cotera, would be necessary. It seems to me that they have bungled the matter.

Mr. CONNELL. They are the responsible parties.

Mr. DONOVAN. In the estimate two thousand dollars is charged for removing the books. Now two hundred dollars would certainly pay the expense of removing all the books.

Mr. CONNELL. And re-classifying them? Mr. DONOVAN, No, sir.

Mr. CONNELL. Oh, the gentleman means the mere carrying.

Mr. COLEMAN. I see that it is proposed to spend four or five thousand dollars for a carpet for the Library. Now, it may be a matter of taste; but so far as I am concerned, I would not have a carpet there. I do not know that I ever saw a carpet in any public library. Certainly the old Philadelphia library, a much more extensive establishment, has no carpet upon the floor. It appears to me that the carpet would simply collect dust, causing an additional expense every year for taking up the carpet and shaking it.

Mr. CONNELL. Suppose the gentleman moves to strike out the amount required for the carpet, making the appropriation eleven thousand instead of fifteen thousand. I agree with the Senator in regard to this matter.

The SPEAKER. I think we ought to have a carpet. No doubt it will be of American manufacture.

Mr. COLEMAN. Did any gentleman ever see a carpet in any public library? It seems to me ridiculous to put a carpet in that room.

Mr. TAYLOR. I move to amend by striking out fifteen thousand dollars and inserting eleven thousand dollars, so as to strike out the amount estimated for the carpet.

Mr. WORTHINGTON. If that floor had been laid down with the view of dispensing with a carpet, the suggestion of the Senator from Lebanon [Mr. COLEMAN] would be very proper; but it would cost a good deal of money now to take up the present floor and put down such a one as there should be if the floor is not to be carpeted.

Mr. CONNELL. I understand that the carpet has already been contracted for in Philadelphia.

Mr. WALLACE. Contracted for before the money is appropriated!

Mr. BIGHAM. I understand that this is shutting the stable door after the horse is stolen. The carpet, I understand, is ordered, and cut, and ready to be put down.

Mr. RANDALL. By whose authority? Mr. BIGHAM. So far as the summer season is concerned, I suppose there ought to be no carpet, and that the carpet would at any rate be taken up in summer and put down in the winter. But the carpet is ordered and made, and I suppose we have to take it anyhow.

The SPEAKER. Is the motion to strike out the four thousand dollars withdrawn?

Mr. WALLACE. I hope not. I hope that motion will be insisted on. Any man who contracts for a carpet when there is no appropriation to pay for it, ought to pay for it himself.

Mr. BIGHAM. By the estimates of last year, which the Senator read, there was an appropriation for a carpet.

Mr. WALLACE. True; but that appropriation has been exhausted; and because it has been exhausted, without the purchase of this carpet, we are now asked to make an appropriation for this specific purpose. It was known that this appropriation had been exhausted, that this carpet could not be purchased without a new appropriation. Yet, in the teeth of this, some one contracts for a carpet. I say that that man ought to pay for it himself.

Mr. M'CANDESS. If we have this carpet in the Library, there will be an expense of two thousand dollars every year for taking it up and relaying it. According to the statement of the gentleman from Chester, two thousand dollars of this appropriation is for laying the carpet.

Mr. WORTHINGTON. For cutting, sewing, laying, and some other items.

Mr. M'CANDESS. At any rate the carpet would have to be taken up and shaken every year, and this would be a continual expense.

Mr. M'CONAUGHEY. I am opposed to striking out the appropriation for the carpet. Either we must have a carpet, or we must have a floor specially adapted to be without a carpet. If the building had been constructed with the latter view, we might get rid of this expense for a carpet. I am sorry that a suitable floor was not put down in the first place.

Mr. SEARIGHT. Mr. Speaker, this practice of officers contracting for expensive articles in anticipation of legislation sanctioning such expenditures, is in my opinion very mischievous and ought to be broken up. It strikes me that this is as good a time as any other to put a stop to it. We have now presented a suitable opportunity; and I think our duty, as legislators faithful to the interests of the people, is to lay down now the rule that hereafter no articles shall be bought for the use of the Commonwealth, unless the purchase is previously authorized by law.

It has been urged by several Senators, as an apology for the unexpected expenditures which have been required for the completion of the capitol extension, that in almost every case the actual expense of building exceeds the estimated cost. This is no doubt true; but in the case mentioned by the Senator from Chester [Mr. WORTHINGTON], there was a difference of but fifteen hundred dollars, while in the case before the Senate there is a difference of seventy-five thousand dollars. In my view, there can be no excuse for so great an excess over the estimated cost.

Mr. M'CANDESS. Should not six thousand dollars instead of four thousand dollars be deducted from this appropriation, if we are to dispense with the carpet? Two thousand dollars I believe is estimated for cutting and laying the carpet.

Mr. CONNELL. That two thousand dollars includes a great many other items—rugs, spittoons, &c.

Mr. BIGHAM. I am satisfied that the floor of the Library is not adapted to do without a carpet. As to all this talk about the contractor, I understand that the contract for furnishing this room was not given to the old contractor, and he has now nothing to do with it. It is a different man altogether.

The SPEAKER. Who is he?

Mr. BIGHAM. I do not know even his name; but it is not the man who had charge of erecting the building.

Mr. CONNELL. Mr. Simon has had nothing to do with it whatever.

Mr. BIGHAM. No, sir; Mr. Simon, I understand, is the man who has talked around and got up this difficulty.

Mr. M'CANDESS. Nobody has talked to me about this matter. I think this money has already been appropriated.

On the amendment of Mr. TAYLOR, The yeas and nays were required by Mr. GLATZ and Mr. TAYLOR, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Burnett, Coleman, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, Haines, Jackson, James, Landon, M' Candless, Randall, Schall, Searight, Shoemaker, Taylor, Wallace and White—18.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Browne (Lawence), Brown (Merces), Connell, Fisher, Lorry, M'Conaughy, Stutzman, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—40.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. COLEMAN (when his name was called). I have been up stairs to look at the floor of the Library; but I found the door locked. So far, however, as I could see through the key-hole, I do not think it requires a carpet. [Laughter.] I therefore vote aye.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The eleventh section was read as follows:

That the sum of five thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, be placed at the disposal of the Governor, as a contingent fund, to be used at his discretion, if any circumstances shall, in his opinion, make it necessary.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to the principle involved in this section. I do not think it is right. I do not care who may be the Governor, we have no right to appropriate money except for specific objects. The Constitution provides that no money shall be drawn from the treasury except upon appropriations made by the Legislature. This is not an appropriation; it is simply a declaration that the treasury shall be open to the Governor to the amount of five thousand dollars, if in his judgment he shall see fit to use the money. During all the hooey that through which we have recently passed, no such principle was embodied in our appropriation laws. Neither Governor Curtin nor any other official ever asked anything of this kind heretofore. The statute book will be searched in vain for such a provision. I have carefully examined the laws passed since 1860, and I find nothing of this kind.

Mr. CONNELL. I think there was such a provision in the act of 1861.

Mr. WALLACE. I do not find it in the appropriation bill of that year. In no appropriation bill heretofore has any money been given to the Governor to take money from the treasury except for specific purposes. If the chairman of the Committee of Finance will specify the purpose to which this five thousand dollars is to be devoted, I may vote for the section. But I cannot sanction the principle here involved.

Mr. CONNELL. It is to provide for possible contingencies.

Mr. WALLACE. What "possible contingencies"?

Mr. CONNELL. We don't know what a day may bring forth. Things are happening now that never happened before.

Mr. WALLACE. I am opposed to the principle. I do not think it right. We, the Legislature of Pennsylvania, are the body that should appropriate the money of the people; and we have no right to authorize any officer of the Commonwealth to take from the treasury upon his mere ipse dixit the money of the people. If it is necessary that the Governor should have a certain amount of money at his disposal for any purpose, we should appropriate the money for that specific object, giving him the right to draw it when he deems it necessary. I have no objection to such a provision. But I do affirm that the principle involved in this section is a dangerous one, and one which will in the future return to plague us. During the last five years we have got along without any such legislation, and certainly we can do so in the future.

Mr. CONNELL. I remember very well that in the act of 1861, a section similar to this was inserted, placing a certain fund at the disposal of the Governor, to be used at his option in cases he deemed proper.

Mr. WALLACE. The Senator may be right. But, sir, the condition was very different from that which exists now.

Mr. CONNELL. This is a matter of opinion.

Mr. WALLACE. In 1861, it was apparent to all that we were trembling upon the brink of war. I affirm that in the midst of profound peace no such principle ought to be introduced into our legislation. I do not care who may be the officer to be entrusted with this power; he may be the purest man that ever lived. I say the principle is wrong, and I protest against it, in the name of the people of the State. No officer of the Commonwealth, be he high or low, should be permitted to get the treasury and say, "My judgment is that I need money for a purpose which I will not declare; and I take it."

Mr. CONNELL. The section requires the Governor, if he draws any of this money, to report the fact to the next Legislature, stating for what purpose the money has been used.

The SPEAKER. The section does not so provide.

Mr. CONNELL. We will add such a provision. I move to amend by adding, "and the Governor shall submit a detailed statement of the manner in which any money so drawn has been expended."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. BIGHAM. As to the principle involved in this section, I confess that I do not like it. It is a new principle, except in cases arising during war. I believe that to a limited extent, our Governors have exercised this power of drawing money from the treasury during the recess of the Legislature, without specific appropriations, but always relying on the next Legislature to ratify their acts. Should the Governor report to the next Legislature that, in consequence of unexpected emergencies he has been compelled to draw money from the treasury without a specific appropriation, I should, if a member of that Legislature, cheerfully vote to ratify his acts.

Mr. WALLACE. So should I.

Mr. BIGHAM. I confess that I do not like the principle of authorizing such a thing in advance.

Mr. FISHER. I frankly confess, Mr. Speaker, that I regard this section as an innovation upon the principles which have heretofore governed our legislation. Great as is my confidence in the present Executive of the State, I shall hesitate long before sanctioning with my vote a principle of this kind.

Mr. CONNELL. Gentlemen are not willing to vote for the section, but are willing to allow the Governor to take money from the treasury without authority of law.

Mr. BIGHAM. To a very limited extent and under pressing emergency.

Mr. CONNELL. I would rather give authority in advance. That is just the difference between us.

Mr. SHOEMAKER. It strikes me, Mr. Speaker, that the adoption of this section would establish a very wrong precedent. If there arises any emergency, in consequence of which the Governor requires money not specifically appropriated, he can always raise it for any proper object through the Auditor General and State Treasurer. I am opposed to setting any precedent of this kind. If we grant such authority to the Governor this year, we shall have to do it next year; and every Legislature will be called upon to place a portion of the funds in the treasury at the absolute disposal of the Governor. For this reason I object to beginning this kind of legislation.

Mr. LOWRY. What is the amount which this section proposes to place at the disposal of the Governor?

Mr. CONNELL. Five thousand dollars.

Mr. LOWRY. I do not think the Commonwealth will be endangered by the adoption of this section. The principle involved in it is one which, in my judgment, we should adopt and should long since have adopted. If it does not comport with the previous practice in Pennsylvania, we should establish the precedent now. Heretofore, it has been the practice in Pennsylvania for Governors to take money from the treasury without authority of law. We now propose to give the Governor legal authority to draw money from the treasury in case of necessity, requiring him to report the facts to the next Legislature. I can see nothing dangerous in this. Gentlemen, by holding up their hands in horror, cannot scare me. I believe that this section is right, and I will vote for it, if I vote alone.

Mr. SHOEMAKER. If any emergency can be conceived of by which it may be rendered necessary that the Governor should have this power, I will vote for the section. But I cannot imagine any such emergency.

Mr. LOWRY. We do not know what emergency may arise. Now, why should not the Governor have power to raise five thousand dollars, if he needs it, on the condition that he shall make report of his action to the next Legislature? I think he should have this power. I am willing to give it to him. I am not afraid that it will be abused. I am not afraid of the precedent we shall establish. I think that the precedent will be a good, a wholesome one—a precedent to be approved, not to be condemned.

Mr. WALLACE. So far as regards his duty to execute the laws, the Governor has at his command the whole power of the Commonwealth, civil and military; and when the necessity requires it, he can in the execution of his duty, wield the whole power of the treasury as an auxiliary for the enforcement of the laws. No Legislature true to its duty would dare to deny him this right. When there arises a contingency demanding extraordinary proceedings, the Governor cannot act except in pursuance of law, save through his executive functions. He must call together the Legislature, who will vote him both money and power.

The ground of my objection to this section is the principle involved in it. It proposes to put the purse-strings of the Commonwealth at the command of one of its officers. Why should we appropriate money without knowing for what purpose it is to be expended, thus innovating upon recognized principle, a principle from which we did not depart even during the late war and amid the pressure of the stern necessity of maintaining the Government? The principle, it seems to me, is wrong at any time; but it is especially wrong at present, when the cessation of the war has removed all excuse for the increase of extraordinary powers.

Mr. LOWRY. Suppose a riot should occur in the gentleman's own county?

Mr. WALLACE. Very well; to suppress that riot the Governor can use the whole power of the Commonwealth.

Mr. LOWRY. That is true, but suppose he has no funds at his command?

Mr. WALLACE. He can order out all the forces of the Commonwealth, at the expense of the State treasury, to execute the laws; we must pay the expense.

Mr. LOWRY. But he is obliged to take that money from the treasury without any authority of law. Suppose, again, that there should be a riot or a breach of the peace among the miners in the county of Luzerne.

Mr. SHOEMAKER. Five thousand dollars is but a small sum to provide for such emergencies.

Mr. LOWRY. It is but small; yet I would be willing to make it larger.

Mr. WALLACE. In executing the laws

the Governor has at his command the civil power, the military power and the financial power; he can wield the treasury as he can wield the civil power and the military power. And the Legislature, when it meets, will not refuse to endorse all his acts rendered necessary in the execution of the laws. But let us not now, without the slightest justification in the circumstances of the times, adopt a principle heretofore unrecognized and unprecedented.

Mr. MCQUAUGHY. The argument of the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] has convinced me that I ought to vote for this section. He has asserted in the broadest terms the right of the Governor, in case of emergency, to use the whole power of the Commonwealth, including the resources of the treasury. This section, as I understand, simply authorizes the Governor to use five thousand dollars for extraordinary purposes. The argument of the Senator goes far beyond this.

In agreeing to the section as amended, the yeas and nays were required by Mr. WORTHINGTON and Mr. M'CANDLESS, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughey, Sutzman, Taylor, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—15.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Jackson, James, M' Candless, Randall, Schalls Seagriff, Shoemaker and Wallace—14.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer), when his name was called, said: I am willing to trust the Governor with five thousand dollars. I vote aye.

The seventy-second section was read and Agreed to.

The seventy-third section was read as follows:

Five thousand dollars to the Polytechnic college of the State of Pennsylvania, for the purpose of establishing in said college five State scholarships.

Mr. BIGHAM. If our State educational system were matured, I am disposed to think we should do something for the colleges of the State; but, under the circumstances, I hardly think we ought to adopt this section.

Mr. M'CANDLESS. I beg leave to call the attention of the Senator to the second section of the seventh article of the Constitution of the State.

"The arts and sciences shall be promoted in one or more seminaries of learning."

If it is for the purpose of carrying out this provision of our Constitution that I have asked for this appropriation for the Polytechnic college.

Mr. BIGHAM. I do not doubt the constitutional power to make the appropriation, although Governor Packer, about ten years ago, vetoed a bill making an appropriation for an institution in Lawrence county, on the ground that any revenues of the Commonwealth devoted to educational purposes should be expended upon the common school system of the State. I am disposed, however, to think that we owe support to the cause of higher education as well as to our common school system. But whether we shall make an appropriation for a single institution, overlooking others equally deserving of support, is another question. I have some knowledge of this Polytechnic college. Its principal, Dr. Kennedy, is an indefatigable man, who has done a great deal for the dissemination of knowledge in his particular branches. But whether we shall make an appropriation to one institution alone is a new question, to which I call the attention of the Senate.

Mr. CONNELL. This is the only institution of the kind in the State. In it mining and engineering are made a specialty. The object of this appropriation is to diffuse the benefits of the institution throughout the State. These scholarships are designed for the benefit exclusively of pupils outside of the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I consider it a disgrace to our State that it has never yet made any provision for the education of mining and mechanical engineers. Our great wealth consists in our mineral resources and is dependent on the necessary mechanical skill for the development of those resources. We should now make a start in the direction by adopting this appropriation for the establishment of five State scholarships in the Polytechnic college. We have expended thousands, if not millions, of dollars upon an institution in Centre county, called, I believe, the farm school—an institution in which, I confess, I have very little faith. So I understand, it is out of the range of the mechanical and mining portions of the State as well as the farming regions, that section having, I understand, scarcely a drop of flowing water. After expending money upon an institution of that kind, it is possible that this Legislature will refuse the small appropriation to the Polytechnic college, a well managed institution for the education of young men in the mining and mechanical branches? I cannot believe.

On agreeing to the section,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WHITE and Mr. WORTHINGTON, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfeld, Browne (Lawrence), Davis (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Council, Brawn, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Haines, Jackson, James, Lowry, M' Candless, Randall, Schell, Seargent, Stutzman, Wallace, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—28.

NAYS—Messrs. Graham, Landon, Shoemaker and White—4.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

During the call of the roll, the following remarks were made:

Mr. BIGHAM. After the earnest argument of the Senator from Lebanon [Mr. COLEMAN], I believe I must vote aye.

Mr. BILLINGFELT. I vote aye for the same reason.

Mr. WHITE. I would like to oblige my friends from Philadelphia by voting for this section. But the State has not for many years made any appropriation of this kind, and at present there are too many draughts on the treasury of a more important character to allow me to vote for such a appropriation. I vote no.

The result of the vote was announced as above stated.

Mr. CONNELL. I move to amend by adding the following as a new section:

For the preparation of a general index of the private laws of this Commonwealth from the year 1812, the sum of twelve hundred dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be done under the direction and approval of the Attorney General.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence). I move to amend by adding the following as a new section:

That the State Librarian, with the approbation of the Committee on the Library, be authorized to expend one thousand five hundred dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to purchase a collection of two thousand five hundred works relating to the late rebellion, as recommended in a communication of Charles H. Hart.

Mr. Speaker, I desire to say that Mr. Chas. H. Hart, formerly of the firm of Carey, Lea & Hart, of Philadelphia, recommends this purchase, and considers the terms very reasonable. The books are valuable, having been carefully selected and arranged. I think we should authorize this expenditure. Let that much less money be spent in the purchase of light literature, by which the Library has been converted into a circulating library for the benefit of the young people of Harrisburg. I cannot imagine how we could expend one thousand five hundred dollars more wisely than in this plan, in the Library of the State a collection of books consisting of a history of the rebellion.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. What number of these books are bound volumes?

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence). That is not stated. But Mr. Hart says that in his view the price is reasonable. The books are valuable, not only for the intrinsic worth of each, but because they constitute a unique collection, made undoubtedly with great care.

Mr. WALLACE. Are we going to initiate the policy of purchasing from Long, Dick and Harry, my collection of books which they want to sell? I would rather trust the State Librarian to buy the books which he thinks are needed. The works purchased for the Library should be those of standard value. In purchasing a collection of this kind, we must necessarily get many books which are utterly worthless.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Hart, the gentleman who wrote the letter that was read here the other day, is undoubtedly one of the best men in Pennsylvania, as to matters of this kind. He has interest in the purchase of this collection. If we are to have a military history of the rebellion, it appears to me that a collection of this kind contains precisely the materials which the historian needs.

The SPEAKER. The Legislature never intended to authorize anybody to write the history of the rebellion.

Mr. BIGHAM. These materials will be highly useful to any one who may undertake such a history, whether under the authority of the State or not.

Mr. GRAHAM. I hope that this amendment will not be adopted. I trust we shall not establish any such precedent. A majority of the Senators here have, I presume, served at some time in the capacity of school directors, and hence must be aware of the persistency with which these dealers in books, from year to year, besiege the school directors for the purpose of inducing them to adopt and purchase their publications. I do hope the Senate will, in self-protection, reject every proposition of this kind. Let us, if it be deemed proper, appoint a committee to audit the library with whatever books may be deemed necessary; but let us not, by the adoption of this amendment, encourage persons to come here from all sections of the country urging the purchase of books of which they are the authors, or publishers, or owners, and which they deem it important the State should possess.

Mr. WORTHINGTON. The law, as it stands, gives the Library Committee no authority to purchase books. That matter is entirely under the control of the Librarian. This amendment, I believe, authorizes the Librarian to make this purchase with the approbation of the Committee on the Library. We have never been consulted in regard to the purchase of any books. If we were, I, for my part, should be very much opposed to the purchase of some of the books that are sought.

Mr. CONNELL. My friend from Allegheny [Mr. GRAHAM] is mistaken as to the nature of this application. It does not come from the owner of these books; I do not know who he is; but it comes from a gentleman in Philadelphia of as high a character as any Senator on this floor. He writes that he has recently discovered this collection, and thinks the State should possess it. He has no interest in the purchase. There can be no "job" in the matter. I am entirely willing to submit the question of the purchase to the judgment of the Senator from Chester [Mr. WORTHINGTON], the Chairman of the Committee on the Library.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Who is Charles H. Hart?

Mr. CONNELL. A Philadelphia gentleman, formerly of the firm of Carey, Lea & Hart, publishers.

Mr. BIGHAM. He is not now in the book business, I believe.

Mr. CONNELL. No, sir; he is a gentleman of means, retired from business.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Hart, in his letter, says:

"There is now in this city a collection of about two thousand five hundred works on the late rebellion, for sale at the I think, reasonable price of fifteen hundred dollars, and which it would be most desirable for our State to possess. They would be of particular service to the State Historian, Mr. Bates, in the preparation of his forthcoming works. I would suggest the immediate purchase of them by the Legislature, as such a collection could never again be brought together. It includes works from all parts of the world. An offer has been made for them from a foreign country; and I think it would be a shame to allow them to go out of this State when they can be obtained so reasonably."

Now, sir, the first inquiry with me was, whether this proposition came from an interested party.

Mr. CONNELL. It does not.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. If you thought it did, I would give the matter no consideration.

Mr. CONNELL. I should as soon suspect the Senator himself as this gentleman.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Another inquiry that suggested itself to me was, how many of these "works" are pamphlets?

Mr. CONNELL. Some must be, of course.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. The subject of the collection is of high historical interest; and nowhere ought there to be a better collection on this subject than in our State Library. For two thousand five hundred valuable works on this interesting subject, one thousand five hundred is certainly a reasonable price.

These books would doubtless cost much more if bought separately. Even so, conceivably if guard is provided, so that the State shall not be imposed upon. The purchase requires first the approbation of the State Librarian, and second that of the Committee on the Library. I shall heartily vote for the proposition.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, a well selected collection of books relating to the recent rebellion must be very valuable, and it is certainly desirable that the Library of the State should contain such a collection. I hope the Legislature will authorize this purchase. It cannot be consummated without the approval of the Librarian and the Committee on the Library. They will not sanction the purchase of a worthless collection of books. I would be willing to trust the matter to the judgment of the Senator from Chester alone.

Mr. DAVIS. I hope this amendment will not be agreed to, unless we are furnished with some details in regard to the character of these works.

Mr. BIGHAM. I am willing to trust this matter to the sound judgment of the Committee on the Library.

The amendment was Agreed to.

Mr. BIGHAM. I move to amend by adding the following as a new section:

For the Surveyor General, for the expenses of surveying and determining the exact position of the stone that marks the line on the shore of Lake Erie between the States of Pennsylvania and New York, and the erection of a more durable monument further inland, the sum of two hundred dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. WORTHINGTON. I move to reconsider the vote by which the forty-eighth section was adopted. I desire to move an amendment.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The question recurred on agreeing to the section.

Mr. WORTHINGTON. I move to amend the section by striking out the following:

"And said hospital shall hereafter be authorized to charge not exceeding three dollars per week for the medical attendance and boarding of all insane persons who are, or may be, committed to said institution, and that any part of any act of Assembly, inconsistent herewith, be, and the same is hereby, repealed."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The section as amended was Adopted.

Mr. DAVIS. I move to reconsider the vote by which the Senate adopted the amendment of the Senator from Lawrence [Mr. BROWN] providing for the purchase of two thousand five hundred works relating to the collection. I do not believe that two thousand five hundred works worthy of preservation have been written on this subject.

On the question to reconsider.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DAVIS and Mr. COLEMAN, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, Jackson, M'Canless, Randall, Schall and Seaight—9.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigbam, Billingsfield, Browne (Lawrence), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaghy, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—17.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The rules being suspended,

The bill was ordered to a third reading, and read the third time.

The question being,

Shall the bill pass?

Mr. CONNELL said: I trust the Senate will per mit the bill to lie over for the present. I desire to offer a further amendment at the instance of the State Treasurer, with whom I desire to consult, but who will not be in the city till this afternoon.

The hour of one o'clock, P. M., having arrived, the SPEAKER adjourned the Senate till 3 o'clock, P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Senate met at 3 o'clock.

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follow, viz.:

He also returned bill from the Senate numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 377, an act granting an increase of capital to literary or charitable institutions becoming Soldiers' Orphan Schools,

With information that the House of Representatives has passed the same without amendment.

He also returned bills from the Senate numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 275, an act to provide an associate law judge of the several courts in the Twenty first judicial district.

No. 1077, an act explanatory of the provisions of the fifth section of the act to incorporate the Bennet Branch improvement company.

With information that the House of Representatives has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

On motion of Mr. WALLACE, the amendments to bill No. 1077 were read a second time, considered, and Concurred in.

He also informed that the House of Representatives has concurred in resolution requesting the Governor to return for amendment Senate bills numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 792, an act authorizing the sale of the Allegheny city poor farm.

No. 697, an act to incorporate the Monongahela inclined plane company.

He also informed that the House of Representatives non-concurred in resolution from the Senate requesting the Governor to return to Senate, for amendment, Senate bill No. 312, entitled An act to repeal an act to lay out a State road in Schuylkill and Columbia counties, approved April 4, 1866.

He also informed that the House of Representatives has receded from its amendments non concurred in by the Senate to bill from the Senate No. 984, entitled An act to authorize the Southwark railroad company to renew their road on Swanson street.

He also informed that the House of Representatives has adopted the report of the committee of conference appointed to confer upon the subject of the difference existing between the two Houses on Senate bill No. 617, entitled Joint resolution relative to the revival of the civil laws of Pennsylvania.

He also informed that the House of Representative has adopted the report of the committee of conference appointed to confer upon the subject of the difference existing between the two Houses on House bill No. 290, entitled A further supplement to an act for the regulation and co-ordination of a system of education by common schools, approved the 8th day of May, A. D. 1854.

He also returned bill from the Senate numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 413, an act to regulate the carriage of baggage by railroad companies, and to prescribe the duties and obligations of carriers and passengers thereto,

With information that the House of Representatives has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

Mr. EDGWAY moved that the Senate non-concur in said amendments.

The motion was

Agreed to.

THE APPROPRIATION BILL.

The Senate then resumed the third reading and consideration of bill entitled An act to provide for the ordinary expenses of the government and other general and specific appropriations.

Mr. CONNELL moved that the Senate resolve itself into committee of the whole for the purpose of amending the bill by adding a new section, to be called section seventy-nine, as follows:

That hereafter all moneys received by the State Treasurer for licenses and from foreign insurance agents shall be applied to the ordinary expenses of the Government, and not to the sinking fund, as heretofore, and that so much of the first section of the act of the 22d April, 1858, as is inconsistent herewith, be and the same is hereby repealed.

Mr. CONNELL. Mr. Speaker, the appropriations are so large that there will not be moneys enough to meet them. There is a necessity for cutting off so much from the sinking fund and applying it to this.

Mr. WALLACE. I would like to inquire if we can do this thing.

Mr. CONNELL. Yes, sir.

Mr. BIGHAM. The Constitution allows us to take a million out.

Mr. WALLACE. The Constitution says:

"To provide for the payment of the present debt, and any additional debt contracted as aforesaid, the Legislature shall, at its first session after the adoption of this amendment, create a sinking fund, which shall be sufficient to pay the accruing interest on such debt, and annually to reduce the principal thereof by a sum not less than two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; which sinking fund shall consist of the net annual income of the public works, from time to time owned by the State, or the proceeds of the sale of the same, or any part thereof, and of the income or proceeds of the sale of stocks owned by the State, together with other funds or resources that may be designated by law. The said sinking fund may be increased from time to time, by assigning to it any part of the taxes, or other revenues of the State not required for the ordinary and current expenses of the government, and unless in cases of war, invasion or insurrection, no part of the said sinking fund shall be used or applied otherwise than in extinguishment of the public debt, until the amount of such debt is reduced below the sum of five millions of dollars."

Mr. CONNELL. This is discretionary with the Legislature.

Mr. WALLACE. If that construction is put upon it, all right. When the Legislature appropriates a specific fund to pay the State debt, their power over it is gone.

Mr. RIDGWAY. It seems to me that if this money never goes into the sinking fund, it can never be taken from it. It will never be a part of the sinking fund.

Mr. BIGHAM. I was aware that we are required to sink a quarter of a million; last year we sunk almost two million; that is faster than it is desirable to sink it, if we need it for the ordinary expenses of the government. My attention has not been drawn to it as a lawyer, but that is the construction I put upon it.

Mr. FISHER. Under that feature of the Constitution which says that such funds as may from time to time be applied to that source, does not that mean such funds as may be voted annually by the Legislature? I think that is the fair construction of that article, and I think this Legislature has a right to say whether they will or will not appropriate a certain fund; hence, I think the amendment entirely proper. When a specific sum has been voted in the sinking fund, I do not think we are bound to continue that always; but these appropriations may be made from year to year, as the circumstances of the case may require. I do not think there is any conflict.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I think the position taken by the Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. CONNELL] is so just and right that there can be no doubt. The Constitution says that the fund shall not be reduced. This proposition is that other funds or resources that may be designated by law, which have hitherto been applied to raising money to go into the sinking fund, shall not be so applied now. But that does not come within the innovation that you shall not take any out of the sinking fund, because it is not in it. Under the Constitution, the sinking fund shall consist of the net annual income of the public works from time to time owned by the State, or the proceeds of the sale of the same, or any part thereof, and of the income or proceeds of sale of stocks owned by the State, together with other funds or resources that may be designated by law. But that is just as you designate them. One year you may designate the fund from one source, and the next year you may provide that funds from other sources shall be added. There is nothing in the language itself which prevents you from designating it except as to taking it out of the fund. That fund must be sacred.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, the first part of the following sentence largely confirms me in that my restriction of the proper reading of the Constitution. The whole of the sentence is this:

"The said sinking fund may be increased from time to time, by assigning to it any part of the taxes, or other revenues of the State, not required for the ordinary and current expenses of the government, and unless in case of war, invasion, or insurrection, no part of the said sinking fund shall be used or applied otherwise than in extinguishment of the public debt, until the amount of such debt is reduced below the sum of five millions of dollars."

It is recognized there that the ordinary current expenses of the Government, of which the Legislature is the judge, are to be paid. Otherwise, if one Legislature should have appropriated the whole revenue, it would be beyond the control of any subsequent Legislature to pay their ordinary expenses. Our Government itself would come to a standstill. The interest on the public debt and the ordinary current expenses of the Government are all to be paid; they are all within the contemplation of the Constitution; and, after that, comes the other restriction in regard to war or insurrection. Now, in case of war, when the question is whether the State shall live or die, your Constitution gives way, your sinking fund gives way; but unless that is the case, you shall continue to pay the interest on the public debt, sinking two hundred and fifty thousand dollars a year, pay the expenses of government, and after that the balance goes in. That has always been the popular construction. This matter has been repeatedly canvassed by those who ought to understand it.

The SPEAKER. When was the law passed designating this fund?

Mr. BIGHAM. In 1858 we interpreted constitutionally in a little different way from what the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] would apply to a strict technical construction of a statute. You have to give a construction consistent with the life and operations of the Government; and I think that that fairly warrants what I say. You first sink a quarter of a million, pay the ordinary expenses of the Government, and then the surplus goes in. That, it seems to me, is the common sense view of it.

Mr. WALLACE. What the common sense view may be, does not affect the idea that the words of the document are against the proposition. Common sense may be very good argument among some gentlemen when arguing certain propositions. I have been taught in a different school. This provision was placed in the sinking fund after this amendment to the Constitution. What was the purpose of the adoption of that amendment? It was to relieve the people from the debt which was weighing them down to the ground; it was to provide funds for paying off that debt; it was not to provide for the expenses of the government, but the prime object was to provide a gradual and certain mode by which this debt should be wiped out. What is the sinking fund? This very section which I have read prescribes what it is. Now, what are these funds derived from licenses and foreign insurance agents? They are seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars designated by law, and yet you wish to wipe out the very words of the Constitution. I cannot consent to any such construction; and Senators who arise in their places, and assume by fancy distinctions to wipe out of existence these great beneficial purposes, are doing violence to their own reputations and the wishes of the Commonwealth. If the Legislature of 1858, by the provisions of this act, did set apart specific funds which should go into the sinking fund, you are not take out of the Treasury funds thus appropriated. The Legislature must tax the people before they take that out of the sinking fund. The sinking fund is not an amount of money, but certain specific resources pointed out by law; they are revenues which are to remain there, and you dare not take them away. There is no war or invasion in this case. During the past six years, when the Commonwealth was struggling with a war debt upon her, we have had no effort of this kind to take away this fund; but now the effort is made, for what purpose I do not know, and I rise to protest, in the name of the people, against it.

Mr. RIDGWAY. Mr. Speaker, there seem to be doubts upon this question, and I think it is better to go to work and reduce the appropriations to an amount that the ordinary income will pay.

Mr. WALLACE. I am willing to do so; you will find my position as it was before.

Mr. RIDGWAY. I would rather keep within the income, than do a thing of this kind.

Mr. M'CANDESS. Mr. Speaker, I think the policy of the side of the Chamber is to follow the Constitution, and not to make any side popular or unpopular. According to my reading of this section creating the sinking fund, I think the Senator from Adams [Mr. M'CONAUGHY] is entirely mistaken. When that gives power to increase a certain fund, the converse of that proposition is not sound law. This new section, which is proposed, takes a certain portion of that fund out, and is certainly decreasing it. The gentleman must agree with me that, in point of law, and this money coming under this act, is already, to all intents, in the sinking fund, and until you repeal this act, no gentleman will say you can put it to any other purpose than that designated.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I entirely differ with the Senator. What is the object of this provision of the Constitution? It is to accomplish two objects. It was to create a fund which would pay the accruing interest of the debt, and annually reduce the principal of the debt by a sum not less than two hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

There is a provision there that you may increase it; but it certainly does not design that you are to take the revenues required for the ordinary expenses of the Government.

Suppose the first Legislature after the adoption of this section had applied all the revenues to the sinking fund, will the gentleman take the position that no future Legislature could interpose, and that all revenues would have to go into that sinking fund?

Mr. M'CANDESS. I would like to answer that question by asking the Senator another.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. That's Yankee; I desire an answer to the question.

Mr. M'CANDESS. I am happy to say I am not a Yankee. The question is not admissible of any answer. I would like to ask the gentleman whether he suggests that there is any legal right to put that section in the appropriation bill, while the clause is in the bill creating the sinking fund; and whether, in point of law, the money arising from it is not, in a real sense, in the sinking fund?

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. The manifest purpose of this section of the Constitution was to constitute a fund which would be enough to pay the interest on the State debt, and reduce the principal two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. It was not the purpose to allow the Legislature to apply all the reve-ness of the State to that fund. So I construe the section. Any other construction would be absurd. Suppose the first Legislature, after the adoption of this, should have appropriated all the revenues of the State to the sinking fund; it would have worked a stoppage of the wheels of Government. Such is not the intention of this section. The purpose was, that you first pay the ordinary and current expenses of the Government, and that over and above that you create a fund which will pay the interest on the existing debt, and reduce the principal two hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. The gentleman does not appear to understand my position, which is, unless that section creating the sinking fund is repealed, this money is bound to go into the sinking fund. I do not think there is any absurdity about that. Unless you repeal this section of the sinking fund act which sends this money into it, you cannot use it for the expenses of the Government.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. I understood the gentleman to make a constitutional objection; I also understood the proposition of the Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. CONNELL] to be to repeal that portion of the law.

Mr. BIGHAM. I would suggest an amendment to meet that view: "and that so much of the act of April 22, 1858, as is inconsistent herewith is hereby repealed."

Mr. WALLACE. That is not the point. Senators may talk as much as they please about the law. I have raised the point that the Legislature in 1858 were compelled by the Constitution to do certain things. They did not put in all the revenues of the Commonwealth. Why? Because they had too much sense to do it. That disposes of the argument of the Senator from Adams [Mr. M'CONAUGHY]. In pursuance of the Constitution, they had to put some in.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Suppose that the Legislature of 1858 had put in all the revenues of the Commonwealth, except that derived from the tax upon real estate, which has been repealed since, would it have been possible for the Legislature to get at any of these revenues?

Mr. WALLACE. It would undoubtedly have been impossible, and they would have to tax the people to pay the expenses.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. That is the position I want to bring the Senator to.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, the Senator comes back now, and says we have exhausted those revenues that you left outside; we are bankrupt; we must go back, and take from the sinking fund, or we cannot pay the debt.

That is the actual position of Senators on the other side. They say that, although the Legislature in 1858 did leave enough to pay the ordinary expenses, and although the Commonwealth has gone through a war, and has not had to tend upon that fund, to meet the interest on the State debt; although that is true, the day has come upon us when we must take out of this sinking fund several hundred and fifty thousand dollars, in order to meet the extravagance heaped upon the people. Why do you ask to take this money out? Because you cannot meet the expenses of the government. One reason for that is, you have taken the tax off real estate. The current expenses of the government are swollen immensely; but it is remarkable that just now, after the war is over, for the first time, we must have the question pressed upon us that the sinking fund must be treaded upon. There is no use in disguising this thing; it is simply taking out of the sinking fund moneys placed there to pay the debt. That is the question; are you willing to meet it?

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the Senator, I desire to press the point that I made a while ago. The Senator has attempted to avoid it by what I regard as mere cunning and superficial subterfuge, in saying that the Legislature of 1858 had too good sense to put all the revenues into this fund. That is not good argument. I can suppose a case which would have been entirely in good sense in the Legislature of 1858. I suppose that Legislature had found the revenue raised by taxes on real estate adequate for the ordinary expenses of the Government; suppose that that Legislature had appropriated all other revenues to this sinking fund; suppose that the Legislature of 1865 had repealed the tax upon real estate. Then the gentleman's argument comes to that absurdity.

There would be no revenues for the ordinary and current expenses of the government, and, under the Senator's construction, they would not dare take a dollar of these funds for that purpose. That is the absurd position he is driven to by his attitude. I am not arguing whether it is to make this appropriation bill larger; one cause, I think, of its being larger, is that a former Legislature advised the policy of paying these pensions to the soldiers of 1812; and the number having swelled to that amount which Senators never imagined it would, it goes to make a large item. I voted for another item in that bill which goes to the support of common school education in the State, and for another which goes to support the orphans of the soldiers. Perhaps this bill can be retrenched; but I am dealing with a constitutional question, and that question, I say, is so squarely met, that the Senator has not maintained his position. That section does not give the absolute idea that if any one Legislature happened to appropriate all the revenues, that therefore they cannot trench upon the revenues of those specific sources that had been appropriated. I say that the current expenses of the government apply to the whole section.

Mr. CONNELL. I am not at all surprised at the hair-splitting construction put upon this article of the Constitution. The Senator let out one word which is the key to the whole mystery. He thinks he will have to resort again to taxation. His idea is that, if this amendment should fail, we should have to reconsider our policy.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, I have made no attempt to disguise my position upon this question. What I have maintained, I still assert, that it would have been better for this country not to have inflated our currency. Those that dance must pay the fiddler; and if the Republican party has the advantage of having wiped out the taxation upon real estate in the Commonwealth, it is returning now to plague us. The revenues are not sufficient to pay the current expenses; and because we did dance then, we must pay the fiddler out of the sinking fund. That is the logic of the gentleman. You have the credit due for relieving the people from paying taxes upon real estate, and now, when you see the consequences of it, and reach the bottom of an empty treasury, you come back and take away from this fund, appropriated to pay the enormous debt of the Commonwealth. I repeat that this assumes the form of a political discussion. The Senator makes charges upon me. I sincerely believe that these funds were intended for the payment of the interest on the State debt; that they are there, and that you cannot and dare not take them away; that the ordinary expenses of the Government can be met from some other source than that. Your real remedy is to impose a tax upon something else, to pay the current expenses of the Government. Do not attempt to take away these moneys, appropriated for a specific purpose.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I think that the Legislature ought to be required to do sensible things. Look at the practical operation of this. Our State debt is, in round numbers, thirty-five millions of dollars at the close of the war, and the State debts of many other States are almost double ours. Ours is lower than it was when the war commenced. Last year we paid one million eight hundred and fifty-four thousand dollars, and we have almost twelve millions in the sinking fund. The bonds of the Pennsylvania railroad run through a period of more than fifty-five years; the bonds of the Philadelphia and Erie railroad are not paying interest until about 1872. Neither of these twelve millions are in a shape to render them available to throw into market and sell; otherwise, our State debt would be greatly reduced. At the end of ten years it may be that the State debt will be but five millions of dollars. What must we do in the meantime? We must either assess taxes or incur another debt. We must direct the State Treasurer to go into the market during the present year and borrow money, because we have lost perhaps one million and a half by repealing the taxes on real estate and personal property. Now, it is certainly not wise to direct the State Treasurer to go into the money market and borrow all the time, when you have the money; and, for one, I content that we are sinking this State debt faster than the people want it; they prefer that it should remain. I do not want to adopt a rule which forces upon us anything which any intelligent financier will say we are not forced to do. Our people are taxed severely. We have ample revenues to sink the public debt a million and a quarter, and it will be paid off in twenty-three years if we sink but a million and a quarter a year; that is as fast as I desire it to be paid.

THE SPEAKER. What is the difference between the appropriation bill this year and that of last year?

MR. CONNELL. Some five hundred and fifty thousand dollars. When we made the appropriations last year, we had no idea of the amount to be paid out for pensions. The one per cent. imposed upon the capital of the banks we lose, in consequence of the decisions of the courts. The appropriations have been kept down to a reasonable amount.

MR. BIGHAM. The intended policy is to give this thing a liberal interpretation. I am not afraid of the courts giving it any different interpretation, if the question is ever raised.

MR. CONNELL. Who would raise the question?—not the bondholders.

MR. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, if we pay a million a year, it is as fast, in my judgment, as our people desire it. That is seen, from the way the late loan has been taken; it is taken by our own people, with the exception of two millions. We do not have to go outside at all. I do not intend to say that a State debt is a blessing as some persons have maintained, but whenever you get a State debt that is held by your own people, and not abroad, it is to a great extent nominal. The Pennsylvania debt, with a small exception, is held by our own people. Many of those bondholders who took the loan the other day do not want it paid off inside of ten years. They took the loan, some of them for twenty years, and now you would enforce a policy to require it to be paid off in five years.

MR. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that the sinking fund should be reduced gradually, as the principal of the debt is reduced. I cannot see the necessity of keeping as large a sinking fund on hand when the debt is only thirty-five millions, as when it is forty millions. I do not pretend to discuss the point as to the constitutionality; let these legal gentlemen discuss that; I cannot, however, see any objection. The Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] I think brings forward an unfair argument in regard to increasing our burdens hereafter. It will be remembered that during the war the bulk of the expense was borne by the localities; the State bore a very small proportion of the war debt; our cities, boroughs, school districts and wards were taxed. I think we did wisely. Now, the burden of the war is just beginning to be felt by the State; we have to take charge of the orphans and widows, and they will continue to be a burden which we did not feel during the war; therefore, it is an unfair argument for the Senator to bring that forward. We have relieved the people from the burden on real estate, and the bank system is changed so that the State derives no revenue from them. Therefore can see no impropriety in this section. It seems to me eminently proper that this proposition should be either put on the appropriation bill or wherever it is right to put it.

MR. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I am very sorry to see Senators upon the other side opposing the policy of the Governor upon this point, as announced in his inaugural. I think he has given us some old fashioned advice. Speaking of the finances, he says:

"The flattering prospect of the speedy extinguishment of the debt which has been hanging, for so many years, like a dark cloud over the prospects of our State, combined with the hope that a reasonable reduction will be made in our habitual annual expenditures, will cheer the people onward in the pathway of duty.

"Among the most delicate and important obligations required of those in official positions, is a strict and faithful management of the public revenues and expenditures of the Commonwealth. Taxation should be applied where its burdens may be least felt, and where it is most just that it should be borne. Every resource should be carefully husbanded, and the strictest economy practiced, so that the credit of the State shall be maintained on a firm and enduring basis, and the debt surely and steadily diminished, until its final extinguishment. Unnecessary delay in this would, in my opinion, be incompatible with the interests."

Yet the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM] thinks this State debt is being extinguished too rapidly.

I would like to know if the amount I have calculated to be taken out if correct; I reckon it at about a quarter of a million. I suppose some calculation has been made by others. I may be incorrect; I made a hasty calculation.

MR. CONNELL. Eight hundred and fifty-five thousand.

MR. SCHOEMAKER. Mr. Speaker, in regard to the expediency of diverting these sources of revenue from the sinking fund, I have nothing to say; the expediency of the matter I will leave to the Treasurer. But it does seem to me, Mr. Speaker, that, under the Constitution, we have no right to take one dollar out of the sinking fund. If you can take one dollar, you can take every dollar. The same necessity urged for taking one million from it this year will be urged next year for taking out five millions.

MR. BIGHAM. You must put in a quarter of a million.

MR. SCHOEMAKER. The same ground of necessity which you give for diverting a portion of that fund now will be introduced hereafter, until you will strip the creditors of the whole fund.

Now, this sinking fund has been formed, and I contend that under this document there is no power by which that fund can be lessened, except during war or invasion. There is a provision by which it may be increased, but there is no provision in this act by which that fund can be decreased, and I defy the supporters of this measure to show me a line which says that this can be done. It shows that it may be increased, but not how it may be diminished. That is the view I take—that there is nothing in the Constitution which gives us authority to lessen this fund, and it is wisely so inserted. I shall, therefore, not only in this instance, but in all other instances, vote to keep this fund as a sacred fund devoted to the payment of our State interest.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion to go into committee of the whole, for the purpose of adding the section indicated?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. GLAZY and Mr. CONNELL and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingfeldt, Coleman, Connell, Fisher, Graham, Landon, Lowry, Mr. Conanghy and Worthington—10.

NAYS—Messrs. Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Glaz, Haines, Jackson, James, M' Candless, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Seaight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace and Hall, Speaker—21.

So the question was determined in the negative.

During the call,

MR. BROWN (Mercer) said: Mr. Speaker, I did not trouble the Senate with a speech while this section was under discussion, nor do I intend to now; but I desire to give my reasons for voting against the section under consideration.

I will vote against the section because I am not afraid of paying our State debt too rapidly, and hence am opposed to using any of the revenues of the Commonwealth for the payment of the ordinary expenses of the Government which have heretofore been devoted to the sinking fund, for the purpose of rendering certain the gradual extinguishment of the public debt. If an amount of our State securities proportional to the amount of taxable property owned, were held by each taxable of our Commonwealth, then, indeed, it would matter but little whether our indebtedness were discharged at an early or late day; but such is not the case. Most of our securities are in the hands of a few citizens of the State, and the people generally being required annually to pay the interest thereon, are certainly interested in discharging that indebtedness as rapidly as at all convenient, and without reference to the desire of those who hold these securities.

Again, I will vote against the section because we have but recently succeeded in negotiating a loan of twenty-three million dollars, for the purpose of retiring our over-bonds; and when that loan was taken I doubt many of those who submitted bids were influenced more or less in those bids, by a knowledge of the fact that not only the interest upon our securities was made certain, but that the Constitution of the State itself had ordained and set apart a sinking fund through the operations of which a portion of our debt, not less than two hundred and fifty thousand dollars per year, must be cancelled. I am opposed to interfering with that fund. I believe it would be bad policy to do so, and I am not at all convinced that such a thing is necessary. Either we must make our proposition consistent with our revenues which are not devoted to the sinking fund, or else let us find new objects of taxation from which to replenish the treasury. I vote "no."

Also, during the call,

MR. BURNETT said: Mr. Speaker, believing that this proposition is in conflict with the express provision of the Constitution, I vote "no."

Also, during the call,

MR. COLEMAN said: Believing it is in accordance with the Constitution, I vote "aye."

Also, during the call,

MR. DAVIS said: Believing it is not in accordance with the Constitution, I vote "no."

Also, during the call,

MR. LANDON said: Mr. Speaker, under existing circumstances, I would like to take a look into the matter; but I cannot; and, with some misgivings, I vote "aye."

Also, during the call,

MR. LOWRY said: Mr. Speaker, with no misgivings, I shall vote in favor of this provision. The Constitution requires that we shall keep a quarter of a million for our State debt; this we are doing. And the absurdity that we must tax ourselves to pay our own interest, when the money is in the treasury, is an absurdity that I will not vote for.

MR. LANDON. Mr. Speaker, it was manifest, when we had this bill under consideration before, that there was an indisposition to strike off the enormously large appropriations. When the proposition was introduced to cut off possibly two hundred thousand dollars, which must be drawn under the act for the payment of pensions to the soldiers of 1812, that proposition was voted down.

My idea is that we had better recommit this bill, and let them systematize it, and cut down the improper appropriations.

The SPEAKER. The question is whether we have got the money.

Mr. LONDON. If we have not the money, then cut them off, and the education of the children also.

Mr. RIDGWAY. I move that the Senate go into committee of the whole for general amendment.

Mr. CONNELL. I cannot vote intelligently upon an amendment unless I look at it first; I do not like this promiscuous slashing at the bill.

Mr. RIDGWAY. I want to be in a committee where I can have something to say. This thing of a committee making up a bill to suit themselves, and then having the whole ground to fight over again, I am opposed to. I have known a committee of conference to put things into a bill that were never in before.

Mr. WALLACE. It seems to me, the Committee of Finance is the proper committee to send it to.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. I move, as an amendment, that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Finance, to report at tomorrow morning's session.

Mr. BIGHAM. In justice to the committee I do not think you ought to impose this upon them. When the bill comes back, every man will vote in the appropriations.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. I desire to say a single word in reference to my amendment. What I expect to gain by submitting this bill to the committee is a reduction of a number of these large items proportionally. When they do that, I believe it will be accepted as a whole. Now, when we go to work to reduce an item, everybody votes against it, because they do not know how others will vote.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion to recommit the bill to the Committee on Finance?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. RIDGWAY and Mr. CONNELL, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Donovan, Fisher, Graham, Haines, M'Conaughy, Wallace, White and Hall, Speaker—13.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Burnett, Davis, Glatz, Jackson, Lowry, M'Candless, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Seairight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor and Worthington—18.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion to go into committee of the whole for the purpose of general amendment?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. RIDGWAY and Mr. RANDALL, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Brown (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Davis, Donovan, Graham, Haines, Jackson, James, London, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Seairight, Shoemaker, Taylor, Wallace, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—22.

NAYS—Messrs. Burnett, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Glatz, Lowry, M'Candless, M'Conaughy, Schall and Stutzman—10.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The Senate then went into committee of the whole (Mr. GRAHAM in the chair).

On motion of Mr. RANDALL, speeches were limited to five minutes.

Mr. RIDGWAY. Mr. Chairman, I want to be consistent, and restore every appropriation that was in last year; then I want to cut down the large appropriations to the same figures; and I want an opportunity to vote against these increased salaries. I think every officer is as much interested in keeping down the State debt as I am.

The first section was read and

Agreed to.

The second section being under consideration,

Mr. BIGHAM said: I hope there will be no reduction in the salary of the Auditor General; that is the office through which all the revenues of the Commonwealth come; the responsibilities are immensely beyond those of any other department. I hope it will be left. This officer is an exceedingly honest man and gallant soldier.

Mr. RIDGWAY. I am satisfied he should submit to this, in order to have the bill reduced all the way through.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer). Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask a question, which may have some influence upon the minds of gentlemen in their votes hereafter on this bill. I desire to ask the chairman of the Committee on Finance what will be the probable deficit, taking the bill as passed, and making an estimate of the revenues of the Commonwealth for the current year?

I think the bill will have to be cut down at least eight hundred thousand dollars; if the act for the payment of gratuities stands, we can cut it down six hundred thousand dollars.

The salary of the Auditor General was left at two thousand dollars.

On motion of Mr. M'CONAUGHY, the salary of the Adjutant General was reduced to two thousand three hundred dollars.

The salary of the Superintendent of Common Schools was reduced to one thousand eight hundred dollars.

The second section as amended was

Agreed to.

The several sections to the tenth were

Agreed to.

The tenth section being under consideration, the disbursements of the ex-officio Paymaster General of the State were reduced to ten thousand dollars.

Costs of the transportation department were reduced to fifteen thousand dollars.

The tenth and eleventh sections as amended were

Agreed to.

The twelfth section being under consideration, the clause repealing the act of 1866, relative to the payment of bounties and gratuities to the soldiers of the war of 1812, was reinstated, and the proviso added by Mr. WARRER was stricken off.

The twelfth section as amended was

Agreed to.

The thirteenth section was read.

The two hundred dollars additional for the Deputy Superintendent of the Common Schools was stricken off.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The fourteenth section was read.

The appropriation for soldiers' orphans was reduced to three hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

The salary of the Superintendent of Soldiers' Orphans was reduced to one thousand eight hundred dollars, and his traveling expenses to five hundred dollars.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The fifteenth section was read.

Mr. CONNELL moved to amend by reducing the appropriation for common schools to three hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The amount for normal schools was reduced to ten thousand dollars.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The sixteenth section was

Agreed to.

The seventeenth section was read.

The salaries of the Supreme Court judges were reduced to the sum stated in the original bill.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The various sections to the twenty-eighth were

Agreed to.

The twenty-eighth section was read and amended so as to read as follows:

SEC. 28. For the superintendent of the public buildings and grounds, the sum of three dollars and fifty cents per day during the period of his appointment, and also for one assistant watchman, the sum of nine hundred dollars, to be computed from January 15 last passed, to be paid monthly; for the necessary repairs to public buildings and grounds, wages of laborers employed on the same, four thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended by the superintendent, the accounts to be settled by the Auditor General, in the usual manner, and the superintendent is hereby required to make a detailed statement of his expenses to the next Legislature; and that the Clerks of the two Houses be and they are hereby authorized to have a new slate and roof placed upon the capitol, at a cost not exceeding three thousand dollars, make all necessary repairs to the capitol building, except the new library rooms, the amounts to be settled in the usual manner by the Auditor General and paid upon the joint order of said Clerks: Provided, That the sum expended by said Clerks for such necessary repairs shall not exceed four thousand dollars.

The twenty-eighth section as amended was

Agreed to.

The various sections to the forty-third were

Agreed to.

The two following sections were stricken out:

SEC. 43. For the Soldiers' Home in the city of Philadelphia, the sum of ten thousand dollars.

SEC. 44. For the Pittsburg Sanitary Soldiers' Home, the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, inclusive of six thousand dollars expended out of their invested funds, four thousand dollars for introducing gas into their buildings and re-setting their boilers, two thousand dollars for repairs and three thousand dollars for extra diet.

The forty-fifth and forty-sixth sections were

Agreed to.

The forty-seventh section was read.

The appropriation for extension of Western Pennsylvania hospital was reduced to fifty thousand dollars.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The forty-eighth section was amended by striking out all after the word "dollars" in fortieth line.

The various sections to the fifty-second were

Agreed to.

The fifty-second section was amended by reducing the appropriation to the House of Refuge in Philadelphia to twenty-five thousand dollars.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The fifty-third section was amended by reducing the appropriation for the House of Refuge of Western Pennsylvania to twenty-seven thousand dollars.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The fifty-fourth section was read.

On motion of Mr. LANDON, the appropriation for the Northern Home for Friendless Children was reduced to five thousand dollars, the same as last year, and the fifty-fifth section was stricken out.

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence) moved to reconsider the vote by which the fifty-fifth section was stricken out.

Not agreed to.

The fifty-sixth section was read as follows: Sec. 56. For the Gettysburg Battle-field Memorial Association, the sum of five thousand dollars, to be applied to the purchase of portions of the battle-grounds and the general purposes for which said association was incorporated.

Mr. COWLES moved to strike out the entire section.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. I hope that will not be done. This effort has been made for three years. Last winter the appropriation of five thousand dollars was lost in committee of the whole.

Mr. FISHER. If there is any glory attached to the battle-field of Gettysburg, the men who gave it that glory care little about it.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. That is a mistake. Generals Meade and Hancock and others have a deep and abiding interest in it.

Mr. COWLES. I would inquire whether this is not the same battle-field we have been subscribing for? A great many of us have given for it.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. All that is asked of the State is five thousand dollars.

The motion of Mr. Cowles to strike out the entire section was

Agreed to.

The fifty-seventh section was read.

The section was amended by restricting the expenses of the board of military claims to not more than twenty-five thousand dollars per year.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The fifty-eighth section was read as follows:

Sec. 58. For the expenses of the Pennsylvania State Agency, at Washington, the sum of twelve thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, and the compensation of the State Agent shall be at the rate of three thousand dollars, and the compensation of the Assistant State Agent at the rate of two thousand five hundred dollars per year.

Mr. SEARIGHT moved to strike out the section.

Mr. HALL (Speaker). This is two thousand dollars less than last year. I cannot imagine what reason there can be for striking it out. There is no more necessity for it than ever before. This is an establishment for the purpose of collecting claims at Washington, for soldiers, for nothing. That is a good work. There was a misapprehension in the public mind as to what the object of it was; a great many people thought they had to pay for getting their claims.

Mr. SEARIGHT. What would it cost a soldier to have his claim collected in the ordinary way?

Mr. HALL (Speaker). That depends upon what sort of man got hold of him.

Mr. CONNELL. A friend of mine placed a claim in the hands of a man, and paid ten dollars to start with, and he never got his claim or ten dollars back again.

Mr. HALL (Speaker). I desire simply to say this. This agency at Washington collects these claims for nothing. I trust Senators will let this go as it is.

Mr. RIDGWAY. I think it should be reduced. The agency was useful in the war, but I don't think that, at the present time, it is of much use; it is merely the agency now, as we understand it, of the military brokers.

Mr. HALL (Speaker). Not at all.

Mr. DAVIS. I believe claim agents are limited to a charge of ten dollars, by act of Congress. I think, when a man gets one or two hundred dollars bounty, he will be willing to pay ten dollars for getting it.

Mr. HALL (Speaker). This agency is not connected with any brokers. They are high-minded, honorable men; it is an agency which every broker wants to see abolished, for the reason that they would then get the business to do themselves; and they do not confine themselves to either five or ten dollars; they take all that they can get.

Mr. SEARIGHT. Does this agency recover claims for the soldiers of 1812?

Mr. HALL (Speaker). If there are any. Since Colonel Jordan left Washington city, Congress has passed the bill giving the additional one hundred dollars. He collected a few hundred claims under that; the whole of the expenses have been materially reduced.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Chairman, the head of this bureau is a constituent of mine; he was no applicant—he was urged to accept it. He is a business man of high capacity. If he has known there would have been any trouble about this, he never would have gone there; he is a gentleman equal to Senators upon this floor.

Mr. BURNETT. Mr. Speaker, in my region of country—and I presume that is the case throughout the Commonwealth—there are persons who have claims for collection at Washington, who would rather employ the services of a local agent, in whose integrity they have confidence, than send their claims to Washington, to those agents. I do not believe that one-quarter of the applicants send their claims to Washington for collection; they do so through their local agents—men who will prosecute their claims. I do not believe there is any necessity for this agency at Washington now; but if the Senate does not see proper to strike out the entire section, I do think that one agent is sufficient.

The motion of Mr. SEARIGHT, to strike out the section, was

Not agreed to.

Mr. BURNETT moved to amend, by striking out the words "twelve thousand dollars," and inserting in lieu thereof "three thousand dollars."

Mr. GRAHAM. That would be a virtual abolishment of the office there; it is a highly important office; there is as much business as four clerks are able to attend to.

Mr. SEARIGHT. Mr. Chairman, if this office at Washington is crowded with business, is it not at the expense of gentlemen all over the Commonwealth, who are engaged in the business of collecting claims? And why should not this business be left to competition, and not be monopolized by these men, under the authority of the State? If it be right and proper to establish an agency to collect these claims, would it not be just as right and proper to establish an agency to collect all other kinds of claims? Why should this Commonwealth establish a monopoly for one or two men? We have an Attorney General, and if this business could pertain to his office, I do not see the necessity of creating two new officers to attend to this business of collecting claims, and take it out of the hands of men in whom all will have confidence.

Mr. HALL (Speaker). I rise to a point of order. The amendment makes nonsense of the balance of the section.

Mr. BURNETT. I move to amend by making it eight thousand.

Mr. HALL (Speaker). I raise the point of order that you cannot strike out any part of the section which does not leave the balance of the section standing as a sensible proposition.

Mr. WALLACE (Chairman) ruled the point of order not well taken, and that the amendment was not inconsistent with the remainder of the section.

Mr. HALL (Speaker). I desire to say that the statement that this agency is used by the brokers is not correct at all. The agency at Washington have published a card to which they state that they will not collect claims for these brokers. They do not do anything of the kind, and it is not, as the Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. RINOWAY] says, the creation of two new officers. They are the same officers as at the beginning of the war for the purpose of accommodating the soldiers, and there is no reason now why they should be abolished, because there has never been so many claims collected as during the last thirty days. It is reasonable that this should be so, as Congress has opened the door wider than it ever was before.

Therefore I say with the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. GRAHAM] that you had better abolish it altogether than adopt this amendment.

Mr. RIDGWAY. Was this agency established for the purpose of collecting claims?

Mr. HALL (Speaker). Undoubtedly.

Mr. RIDGWAY. I thought it was for the purpose of taking care of soldiers.

Mr. SEARIGHT. I desire to ask the Senator from Blair [Mr. HALL] whether, if a soldier in his county, with whom he has a personal acquaintance, had a claim against the Government for one hundred dollars, he would not undertake to collect that claim for a reasonable amount?

Mr. HALL (Speaker). I have never collected any. I had a notice put up in my office that they could get it done for nothing, and if they do not understand that in the district represented by my friend, the Senator from Monroe [Mr. BURNETT], they will soon, because it is published in all the newspapers, and Governor Geary has announced that they will do it for nothing.

The amendment of Mr. BURNETT was

Not agreed to.

The section was then

Agreed to.

The fifty-ninth section was read as follows: Sec. 59. For the Sankin Park's orphan asylum of the city of Pittsburgh, the sum of two thousand dollars, in full satisfaction of all claim which said asylum may have against the State for supporting soldiers' orphans.

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence). Mr. Chairman, as we have cut down all these large charities I think the Senate should be liberal with the smaller institutions like this.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Chairman, I am willing to go before my constituents when I vote on charity. My objection is not to the two thousand dollars appropriated here, but it is to the claim being audited by the Auditor General for this institution for taking care of soldiers' orphans. There, sir, we are opening the door to a million of money. If you let it go out to the country that the Legislature of Pennsylvania recognizes, directly or indirectly, the legality of institutions to take care of the children of the soldiers, you open the door to a million of dollars. I desire the last part of the section to be cut off. If we recognize the principle at all that the institutions of the Commonwealth have a claim upon the State for the support of the soldier's children, I want you to put me down upon that Record as saying that you have opened the door to a million of claims. Why, take the case of the Sisters of Charity of my own town. They have as good a right to their pay as you have to pay this; they are poor and this institution is comparatively wealthy.

Mr. FISHER. I desire to say to Senators that notwithstanding the rough treatment I have received here, I will go for this upon the golden rule—as you would men would do unto you do ye so unto them.

Mr. LOWRY. I am willing to vote for the appropriation, but I am not willing to recognize that the institutions of this State have a legal claim. I move to amend by striking out all after the word "dollars."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The various sections to the sixty-fifth were

Agreed to.
The sixty-fifth section being under consideration, the appropriation to the Antietam National cemetery was, on motion, reduced to three thousand dollars.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The various sections to the sixty-eighth were

Agreed to.

The sixty-eighth section was read as follows:

Sec. 68. For the Marine hospital at Erie, the sum of ten thousand dollars, for the purpose of erecting hospital buildings: Provided, That the citizens of Erie raise an equal amount for the same purpose.

A motion was made to strike out the words "ten thousand" and insert in lieu thereof the words "five thousand."

Mr. LOWRY. Senators, hear me before you strike me. You have stricken down every charity that was new—you have sustained every charity that was old—save this one; and in after life it will cover your names with blessings, and will somewhat atone for the wrong that you have done the new-born charities of Pennsylvania. There is a necessity for the building of this hospital on the shores of the Lake. We have a commerce larger than the seas; we have a population larger than the salt water. That commerce was built up upon the fresh waters in a day. Yesterday the commerce of the Lakes was done by a canoe. Milwaukee has her Wisconsin at her back, Chicago has Illinois to feed her, and the General Government to sustain her seamen in the hour of their sickness and their death; Detroit has her Michigan; Cleveland has her Ohio; and Buffalo has her New York; all to sustain them in taking care of their sick seaman, and the sunburned mariner. Will Pennsylvania stand by and see Erie longer shiver upon the shores of the lake? Shall we say of the State of Pennsylvania that she has refused to do for Erie, and for humanity, that which all other States have done for their lake cities? Erie has always been badly abused. She has been treated by Philadelphia like the son of a wicked stepfather, and Pittsburg has always stood by and saw Erie chastised. Shall this policy be continued? Will you baptize this charity in the virgin waters of Lake Erie, or will you break the pitcher at the fountain of our hopes? The sailors upon the new waters have not that protection that the sailors upon the salt waters have. The fresh water of the lake is a new born babe; the salt water of the sea is as old as time. Old laws protect them in their hospital laws, and bottomry and hospital laws. This does not apply to the lakes; it will be applied as a man grows older, and the wants of seamen on the inland seas shall be more generally felt and universally acknowledged. This new child we should take into our arms, baptize with our affections; make a home for the mariner where he will be cared for when sick; and here he will be warmed when cold; and after he has made his last cold bath in death, and his spirit has sailed over Jordan's river, that we may return his body to the earth from which we were all made.

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence). Mr. Chairman, this is a matter of such importance that I think the appropriation should be made. I think Pennsylvania should give twenty thousand dollars rather than ten thousand.

Mr. RIDGWAY. Mr. Chairman, was there ever such a thing as an appropriation to a marine hospital? I think this is the first time that the State has been asked to make an appropriation of this kind. I know that every sailor on the Delaware river is taxed so much for the hospital fund. I think the same system exists upon the lakes.

Mr. LOWRY. On the seas they have this kind of tax. It is not so upon the lakes; they are sustained by charity.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Chairman, marine hospitals are built by the United States Government, managed by the United States Government, and officered and supported by it. I would simply state a fact in history. I do not say whether this should be granted or not. I repeat it, that marine hospitals on the lake shores, along the rivers, and on the Atlantic coast were built by the United States Government, officered by the United States Government, and supported by it, and every seaman upon the lakes and upon the ocean is taxed for it.

Mr. RIDGWAY. I would inquire who it was that gave Erie this land to construct that hospital on, and what it was worth?

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, who gave the State of Pennsylvania the land, and who gave the hospital? Was it not the early settler, and was our father merely placed in the hands of the State as trustee for humanity? And Senators here want her to violate that trust and sell humanity's inheritance on the Lake for a sixpence, and put the money in the treasury of the State? I am told by the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM], very roughly, that I do not understand the law regulating the usage and customs of marine hospitals. This much I do understand, that I am glad that he is chained like a bull dog upon charity's wagon, or I would be torn to pieces. This much I do understand, that since my day as a public man, the county of Allegheny has received, in the holy name of charity, six hundred and thirty thousand dollars, over which Erie county had to sweat. This much I understand, and the world shall understand it too, that Philadelphia, since I first entered the legislative halls in Pennsylvania, in 1842, has received from charity's strong box in the Treasury building of the Commonwealth, a million and a half of the sweat of the people. This much I also understand, that Philadelphia charity came here and demanded that my father and my district should pay tribute to charity before I was born, and they did pay it. For that I never complained, but I do denounce as unholy and as hell-born the spirit which makes charity a close corporation for Philadelphia and Allegheny. I call upon the junior Senator from Allegheny [Mr. GRAHAM] to be just.

I call upon all the Senators from Philadelphia, except the Senator from the Second District [Mr. RIDGWAY], to be just. I call upon all Senators who hear me, to be just in their hearts for my cause; for the sake of humanity's sake; for God's sake. I did not expect an assault upon me, such as I have received—not so much in matter as in manner—by the senior Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM]. Is charity—Philadelphia charity—Allegheny charity—a wild beast that she requires such a keeper; one who dashes at me because I am pleading for a young charity? The Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BROWNE] shakes his head like a mad bull, like a heifer in a buckwheat field, or a steer in the corn. Is charity a monster whose head is in Philadelphia, whose bowels are in Delaware, and whose tail is in Allegheny? A monster that is unable to propagate her own species? If this is charity then my ten thousand dollars will be voted down; if it is not charity it will be voted up.

The motion to strike out "ten thousand" and insert "five thousand" was

Not agreed to.

Mr. LONDON. Mr. Chairman, I made the motion to strike out ten thousand and make it five thousand; the statement of the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BROWNE] is a convincing argument with me; I now move to amend by striking out the whole section.

The amendment was

Not agreed to.

Mr. LONDON again moved to amend by striking out "ten thousand," and inserting "five thousand."

The amendment was

Not agreed to.

The section was then

Agreed to.

The sixty-ninth section was

Agreed to.

The seventieth section was read as follows:

Sec. 70. That the Auditor General and State Treasurer be, and are hereby, authorized and directed to examine into the claim of L. M. Simon, of Harrisburg, for furnishing plans, elevations, sections and specifications for the extension to the capitol, and also for furnishing plans and specifications for the extension of the Governor's mansion, and allow him such compensation as, after consultation with qualified architects, they may deem just and equitable.

The section was

Agreed to.

The seventy-first section was read as follows:

Sec. 71. For the erection and completion of an addition to the Governor's mansion, according to the plan and specification furnished by L. M. Simon, architect, the sum of twenty thousand dollars, or so much as may be necessary, to be expended under the direction of the Governor. And no portion of this money shall be paid over to the contractor for such work, until he shall have filed in the office of the Auditor General his bond, with two securities, in two thousand dollars, to be approved by the Auditor General, conditioned for the faithful performance of his contract in erecting and completing such addition.

A motion was made to strike out the section.

Mr. LONDON. Mr. Chairman, when the present residence of the Governor was purchased, it was considered a very fit and commodious residence; it is none the worse now. It was stated upon this floor that the object of this enlargement was not for the convenience of the Governor; that his present house was large enough, and sufficiently commodious for all the wants of his family; that the object for the enlargement was for the accommodation of the Legislature, when the Governor had legislative receptions. That being the fact, are you and I prepared to put an addition there for our own accommodation? I am not, sir. I favor the motion to strike out.

Mr. BIGHAM. It is an act of kindness to Governor Geary to strike this out. If he was a man who could afford to spend thousands besides his salary, this would be very well. I do not think he is a man of large wealth at all.

Mr. COLEMAN. With regard to this matter, I suppose the Senator from Bradford [Mr. Landon], to a certain extent, quotes from me, as I made a remark similar to that. To a certain extent, it is true. But any gentleman who was at the Governor's house the other evening must have observed that all the bedrooms in the house were given up. The Governor's family was driven away into the garret or into the cellar. His whole house was taken up. It seemed to me that there was great inconvenience. In justice to what I said this morning, I must make this statement. I do think the Governor is entitled to a larger house. He cannot receive his friends in the present house. The Governor desires this enlargement for that purpose; not for the accommodation of his family.

Mr. HALL (Speaker). Governor Geary desires this because the house is not suitable for him to live in. I speak from personal knowledge. It does not make any difference who is Governor; I am sure if my friend Clymer had been elected I would have been quite as willing to vote for this. I trust this will be done. The Governor does not need to spend any more than is necessary. Although it will add to the convenience of the Legislature in the future, it is for the purpose of making it something like the Governor's houses in other States. I respectfully suggest to the Legislature that they let this alone, and I guarantee that the Governor will not allow any more money to be spent than is necessary.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Chirman, we were invited to the Governor's the other evening, but before we went he had to pack away all the beds in the house. That is a pretty state of affairs, and not creditable at all. Talk, sir, about Pennsylvania being poor; she is rich—rich in everything. I will vote for this appropriation.

Mr. CONNELL. We should recollect that the present mansion did not cost the State but a trifle; the greater part of the expense was paid by the people of Harrisburg.

Mr. LANDON. Mr. Chairman, no man will claim that there is a necessity for the appropriation of this twenty thousand dollars. We have been striking down appropriations that appear to be necessary, on account of the condition of the State finances. We have taken bread from the orphans, and the crutch from the lame soldier. Now we are asked for twenty thousand dollars for the Governor's mansion. Now, sir, shall we vote it in or vote it out? I say vote it out and be consistent.

The motion to strike out the section was Agreed to.

The seventy-second section was read as follows:

Sec. 72. For finishing and furnishing the new library room and removing the books hereto, the sum of eleven thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended by the Librarian, with the approval of the Governor, the Auditor General and the State Treasurer, the accounts for which to be audited and settled by the Auditor General in the usual manner.

Mr. COLEMAN moved that the whole section be stricken out.

The motion was

Not agreed to.

The section was

Agreed to.

The following new sections were read and Agreed to:

Sec. 73. To Hon. Samuel P. Johnson, of Warren county, forty-five dollars, for unpaid balance due upon monument erected by the Commonwealth to Cow Planter.

Sec. 74. Five thousand dollars to the Polytechnic college of the State of Pennsylvania, for the purpose of establishing in said college five State scholarships.

Sec. 75. For the preparation of a general index of the private laws of this Commonwealth from the year one thousand eight hundred and twelve, the sum of twelve hundred dollars, or so much as may be necessary, to be done under the direction and approval of the Attorney General.

Sec. 76. The State Librarian, with the approval of the Committee on the Library, be authorized to expend fifteen hundred dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to purchase a collection of twenty-five hundred works relating to the late rebellion, as recommended in communication of Charles H. Hart.

Sec. 77. For the Surveyor General, for the expenses of surveying and determining the exact position of the stone that marks the line on the shore of Lake Erie, between the States of Pennsylvania and New York, and the erection of a more durable monument further inland, the sum of two hundred dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary. But if the committee on the subject reconsider the vote in striking out the appropriation for the extension of the Governor's residence.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The section being again before the committee,

Mr. RIDGWAY moved to amend by striking out "twenty thousand dollars" and insert in lieu thereof "fifteen thousand dollars."

Mr. LANDON. Mr. Chairman, I have this to say, sir:

That if we begin so speedily to reconsider, before the committee has risen, I expect that about half we have done will be undone. I really think that the restoration of this section, of all those we have cut out, is the least necessary. I say to Senators if they have not got nerve enough to stand by their own action five minutes, then in twenty-four hours we shall get back into the swirl that we were in when we went into committee of the whole. I trust that this appropriation will not be reinstated.

Mr. CONNELL. Mr. Chairman, I desire to say why I wish them retained. Ever since I have been in the Senate, I have heard a great deal of complaint from legislators who wish to spend their evenings outside. The citizens of Harrisburg are not social; this is a general complaint. The Governor said he intended to give receptions every week, if he had accommodations there. I presume it would promote the cause of morality if the members of this Legislature had some respectable place to go to. With that view, I am going to vote for this twenty thousand dollars.

Mr. LANDON. Mr. Chairman, if we have reduced the appropriations to such an extent that there is no necessity for reducing them any further, let the Senator from Blair [Mr. Hall], or any other Senator, answer me this: Which is the best thing to do now—to reduce the appropriation to the orphans, and put twenty thousand dollars into these brick walls, or strike out these twenty thousand dollars, and give them to the orphans or schools? If there is no necessity for reducing the appropriation, then, I say, forego this, and re-instate partially one of the appropriations for those orphans or the common school.

Mr. HALL (Speaker). The appropriation for orphans' and common schools is increased fifty thousand dollars over what it was last year.

Mr. LANDON. The committee of the whole reduced the orphan appropriation fifty thousand dollars. Now, I say, if you have twenty thousand dollars surplus, put it into one of these schools, and leave the brick walls unbuilt, and let us do without this rendezvous.

The motion to strike out "twenty thousand dollars" and insert "fifteen thousand dollars" was

Agreed to.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The committee then rose and reported the bill as amended.

The report of the chairman of the committee was adopted.

And the bill was read a third time, and

Passed finally,

As follows:

AN ACT to provide for the ordinary expenses of the Government, and other general and specific appropriations.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the following sums, and the same are hereby, specifically appropriated to the several objects hereinafter named, for the year commencing on the first day of June, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, to be paid out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

SEC. 2. For the salary of the Governor of the Commonwealth, five thousand dollars for the year commencing June first, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, and the further sum of four hundred dollars for the proportion of the year prior to one first, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven.

For the salary of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, three thousand five hundred dollars for the year commencing June first, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, and the further sum of six hundred dollars for the proportion of the year prior to June first, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven.

For the salary of the Deputy Secretary of the Commonwealth, two thousand dollars, to be computed from June eleven, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, for the year commencing June first, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, and the further sum of one hundred and sixty-seven dollars, for the proportion of the year prior to June first, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven.

For the salary of the Auditor General, two thousand dollars, and a further sum of three hundred dollars, out of the surplus fund in the treasury on the thirteenth day of November, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, from receipts under the free banking system, after paying expenses thereof, for his services in connection with said system.

For the salary of the Surveyor General, one thousand six hundred dollars, and for the present Surveyor General, the further sum of five hundred dollars, for his services in the sale of the agricultural college land scrip, under the act of April eleven, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six.

For the salary of the Attorney General, three thousand dollars.

For the salary of the Adjutant General, two thousand three hundred dollars, in full for all services as Adjutant General and member of the board of claims.

For the salary of the State Treasurer, one thousand seven hundred dollars.

For the salary of the Superintendent of Common Schools, eighteen hundred dollars.

For the salary of the State Librarian, one thousand dollars.

For the salary of the Superintendent of Public Printing, eight hundred dollars, and for office rent, ninety dollars, or so much thereof as may be expended therefor.

Sec. 3. For the salary of the private secretary of the Governor, two thousand dollars, and for the salary of a temporary clerk, at the rate of one hundred and twenty-five dollars per month, so long as employed by the Governor.

For messenger in the executive department, nine hundred dollars.

For postage, telegrams, stationery and other incidental expenses, the sum of seven hundred dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary.

Sec. 4. For the salary of the chief clerk in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, one thousand six hundred dollars, and the further sum of two hundred dollars to be computed from the fifteenth day of January, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven.

Sec. 67. To the trustees of the Saint Paul Methodist Episcopal church, of the city of Philadelphia, the sum of twelve hundred and fifty dollars, or so much thereof as may be found due said church by the Board of Military Claims of this Commonwealth, for tents belonging to said church and used by the State during the rebellion, and said board is hereby authorized and required to examine and pass upon the claim of said church for the use and loss of said tents.

Sec. 68. That the State Treasurer is hereby authorized to pay the necessary expenses, including clerk hire, of the select committees appointed by the House and Senate at the present session, upon accounts to be certified by the respective chairmen, and approved by the Auditor General; and that the pay of witnesses before said committees shall be two dollars per day, and of clerks five dollars per day, for every day actually employed, and usual mileage; Provided, That this section shall not be construed to authorize the payment of any witness not regularly subpoenaed before the committee, or the payment of any sum of money to any member of the committee for his services, or of any expense accruing after the adjournment of the Legislature; and to John C. Sturtevant, for extra services as clerk on committee for investigation of alleged bribery and corruption in regard to election of United States Senator, the sum of one hundred dollars.

Sec. 69. For re-erecting the meridian line of Dauphin county, which was displaced by the extension of the Capitol, one hundred and sixty dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be paid upon the certificate of the Surveyor General.

Sec. 70. For repairs to the dwelling house occupied by the keeper of the powder magazine in the Twenty-sixth ward of the city of Philadelphia, the sum of four hundred dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary.

Sec. 61. To the Antietam National cemetery, the sum of three thousand dollars, to be drawn on the warrant of the Governor in such instalments as, in his judgment, may be required in the progress of enclosing the grounds and of raising and re-interring the remains of Pennsylvania soldiers in the same.

Sec. 62. That all the institutions, to which appropriations are made by this act, not now required by law to report and account for appropriations, shall make a detailed report, specifying the items, under oath of one or more of its principal officers, of the expenditures of said appropriations, to the Legislature, before the first day of February, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight.

Sec. 63. That the sum of five hundred dollars is hereby appropriated for the purchase of a portrait of the present Governor, to be placed in the Executive Department, to be expended under the direction of the chairman of the Senate Committee on the Library.

Sec. 64. For the Marine hospital of Pennsylvania, at Erie, the sum of ten thousand dollars, for the purpose of erecting hospital buildings: Provided, That the citizens of Erie raise an equal amount for the same purpose.

Sec. 65. That the sum of two hundred dollars is hereby appropriated to each of the four reporters employed on the Legislative Record in the House of Representatives, and to Henry J. Mason, T. B. Cochran, K. McDevitt and H. C. Sedman, reporters of the Senate; Provided, That the clerks of the Senate and House shall employ the necessary corps of phonographers to report the proceedings of the Legislature, at the next and subsequent sessions thereof, so as to provide for the prompt and continuous report thereof, and that the contract for publication of legislative proceedings be made with reference to this arrangement.

Sec. 66. That the Auditor General and the State Treasurer be, and they are hereby, authorized and directed to examine into the claim of L. M. Simon for furnishing plans, elevations, sections, and specifications for the extension of the capitol, and also for furnishing plans and specifications for the extension of the Governor's mansion; and allow him such compensation therefor as, after consultation with other architects, they may deem just and equitable.

Sec. 67. For the erection and completion of an addition to the Governor's mansion, according to the plan and specification furnished by L. M. Simon, architect, the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended under the direction of the Governor; and no portion of this money shall be paid over to the contractor for such work until he shall have filed, in the office of the Auditor General, his bond, with two sureties in twenty thousand dollars, to be approved by the Auditor General, conditioned for the faithful performance of his contract in erecting and completing such addition.

Sec. 68. For finishing and furnishing the new library room and removing the books thereto, fifteen thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended by the Librarian, with the approval of the Governor and the State Treasurer, the accounts to be audited and settled by the Auditor General, in the usual manner.

Sec. 69. To Hon. Samuel P. Johnson, of Warren county, forty-five dollars for unpaid balance due upon monument erected by the Commonwealth to Corporal.

Sec. 70. Five thousand dollars to the Polytechnic college of the State of Pennsylvania, for the purpose of establishing in said college five State scholarships.

Sec. 71. For the preparation of a general index of the private laws of this Commonwealth, from the year one thousand eight hundred and twelve, the sum of twelve hundred dollars, or so much as may be necessary, to be done under the direction and approval of the Attorney General.

Sec. 72. The State Librarian, with the approval of the Committee on the Library, be authorized to expend fifteen hundred dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to purchase a collection of twenty-five hundred works relating to the late rebellion, as recommended in communication of Charles H. Hart.

Sec. 73. For the Surveyor General, for the expenses of surveying and determining the exact position of the stone that marks the line, on the shore of Lake Erie, between the States of Pennsylvania and New York, and the erection of a more durable monument further inland, the sum of two hundred dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary. On motion of Mr. RIDGWAY, the Senate then adjourned until eight o'clock this evening.

EVENING SESSION.

The Senate reassembled at 7 1/2 o'clock, P. M.

MILL CREEK TOWNSHIP, ERIE COUNTY.

On motion of Mr. LOWRY, the Senate resumed the third reading and consideration of bill entitled An act to authorize the road commissioners of Mill Creek township, Erie county, to compel the owners of land fronting on ridge road to make sidewalks and to straighten an open said road.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass?

Mr. LOWRY asked and obtained the unanimous consent of the Senate to amend the bill by adding to the end thereof a proviso as follows, viz:

Provided, That no portions of this act shall take effect until its provisions shall be approved by the court of common pleas of Erie county, and the said court shall have power and authority to make such orders thereon as they may deem necessary to protect the owners of property on each side of said ridge road and make such orders as will, in their judgment, advance the public weal in the premises, and protect the parties in interest.

The question again recurring,

Shall the bill pass?

It was determined in the affirmative.

LAW JUDGE, TWENTY-FIRST DISTRICT.

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of the amendments made by the House of Representatives to bill entitled An act to provide an associate law judge of the several courts in the Twenty-first Judicial district.

The question being,

Will the Senate concur in the amendments of the House?

The amendments to the bill were read as follows:

Sec. 1. That the counties of Dauphin, Lebanon and Schuylkill are hereby erected into a judicial district, under the name and style of the First District of Criminal Jurisdiction, and that in each county within the said district there shall be established a court of record, with criminal jurisdiction, under the name and style following: In Dauphin county the name and style of the court shall be the criminal court of Dauphin county; in Lebanon county the name and style of the court shall be the criminal court of Lebanon county; and in Schuylkill county the name and style of the court shall be the criminal court of Schuylkill county. The said court, in each of the said counties, shall consist of one judge, learned in the law, who shall be the president judge of the district created by this act, and who shall, in all criminal matters and cases within the said district, have the like powers, jurisdiction and authority as the president judge of any judicial district of this Commonwealth, as well upon holding a court of quarter sessions of the peace, and court of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, and in vacation in any county within his proper districts, and shall at all times have the like power to great writ of habeas corpus, and give relief thereupon in all cases as fully as any other president judge of any judicial district may or can do in similar cases.

Each of the courts created by this act shall have, and they are hereby vested with, full powers and authority to inquire of, hear, try and determine, according to the laws and customs of this Commonwealth, all murders, rapes, robberies, arson, felonies, misdemeanors, and all other offenses which have been or may be committed within the county for which such court is created, and which would be cognizable in any court of quarter sessions of the peace and court of oyer and terminer within this Commonwealth, if committed within their jurisdiction, and to hear, try and determine all presentments and judgments for this and all offenses against the laws of this Commonwealth committed within such counties, and to punish and punish all persons who shall be convicted of the said offenses, or any of them, agreeably to the laws of this Commonwealth; and generally to do all such matters and things as any court of general quarter sessions of the peace or oyer and terminer and general jail delivery may or can do within the county for which such court is created by this act; and each of the said courts shall have a seal, with the arm of the Commonwealth engraved thereon, and the name of the court.

After the passage of this act, all recognizances taken within the county of Schuylkill shall be taken for the appearance of the prosecutors, defendants and witnesses at the court created by this act for said county, and not to the court of quarter sessions of Schuylkill county; and from and after the first Monday of June next, the jurisdiction of the court of quarter sessions of the peace, and court of oyer and terminer of Schuylkill county, over felonies and misdemeanors, shall cease and determine, and the whole of the said jurisdiction now vested in the said court shall be, and the same is hereby vested, from that date, in the court for the said county, created by this act, and all indictments, presentments and recognizances taken, in the court of quarter sessions of the peace and the court of oyer and terminer, in Schuylkill county, shall be then transferred to, and be heard, tried, proceeded and determined, in the last court created by this act, in the same manner, and with the same effect, as if the indictment had originally been found in the recognizance taken therein; Provided, That in all cases where convictions have been had, and the sentences have not been passed, the said court of quarter sessions and oyer and terminer shall proceed therein according to law, in the same manner, and with like effect, as if this act had not been passed.

That the sessions of the court created by this bill be held as follows:

In Schuylkill county, on the first Monday of January, April, July and October, and to continue four weeks if the business shall require it; in the county of Lebanon, on the first Monday of February, May and November, to continue one week if the business shall require it; and in Dauphin county on the first Monday of March, June, September and December, and to continue two weeks if the business of the court shall require it, with power to hold adjourned sessions of the said courts; and whenever, in the opinion of president judge of the districts created by this act, the public interests shall require it, he may order extra sessions of the courts of said counties, to be held at such times as he may appoint; and he shall have power, and he is hereby authorized, to dispense with jury courts in any county at such sessions as, in his opinion, jury courts may be dispensed with, without prejudice to the public interests: Provided, That in Schuylkill county, in addition to the sessions above mentioned, the first session of the court created by this act for that county, shall be held on the first Tuesday of June next, to continue until the close of that week, if the business shall require it.

It shall be the duty of the Governor of the Commonwealth, pursuant to the provisions of the Constitution, to appoint a gentleman of integrity, learned in the law, to be the president judge of the districts created by this act, who shall hold his office until the first Monday of December next, and the qualified electors of the said counties of Dauphin, Lebanon and Schuylkill shall, on the second Tuesday of October next, elect a president judge for the said districts, according to the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth; and the said judge, so appointed or elected, shall receive for his services a salary or compensation as the president judge of court of common pleas of Schuylkill county.

The clerks of the courts of quarter sessions and oyer and terminer in the several counties in the district created by this act shall, for the time being, be the clerks of the courts created by this act, in the counties for which they are, or may be elected, and shall receive the like fees for the like services rendered, done and performed in the courts created by this act, as if rendered, done or performed in the courts of quarter sessions or of oyer and terminer, in the respective counties; and the sheriffs, coroners, constables and marshal of police affairs shall obey and execute all lawful orders of the courts created by this act, and be subject to the like penalties for neglect or disobedience, as if the said orders or writs had been made or issued by the courts of quarter sessions; or courts of oyer and terminer of the several counties within the district created by this act, and shall, in all cases, receive a like compensation for similar services, and all reports and returns that are now required by law or custom to be made to the courts of quarter sessions of Schuylkill county relating to selling liquor by less measure than one quart, tipping houses, disturbances at elections and matters relating to roads, highways or offenses of any kind, shall be made to the courts created by this act in Schuylkill county, at each and every regular session thereof, and the said court shall take such action thereon as any court of quarter sessions may or can do in similar cases.

All laws relating to the issuing of venirets for the summoning of grand and petit jurors that are now or may be hereafter in force within the said district, are hereby extended to the courts created by this act, and the jurors shall be drawn and summoned in such numbers and like manner as for courts of oyer and terminer and courts of quarter sessions, and as may from time to time be ordered by the said courts created by this act.

The district attorneys in Dauphin and Lebanon counties shall have the power to direct recognizances to be taken for the appearance of prosecutors, defendants and witnesses in the courts created by this act, or in the quarter sessions of the peace of the said counties, as they may think best for the public interests.

It shall not be lawful to summon a grand jury in the present court of oyer and terminer, or quarter sessions, as now held in Schuylkill county, after the establishment of the criminal court under this act, but the grand jury shall be selected for and summoned to attend the criminal courts in said county only, and in the counties of Dauphin and Lebanon, no grand jury shall be summoned in the criminal court established by this act, but all bills shall be found in the present courts of oyer and terminer and quarter sessions, after which they may, on the written order of the district attorney for the proper county, be removed into the criminal court for trial, or may be tried in the courts now existing in said counties, at the option; and if no bills have been moved into said criminal court for trial, no traverse jury shall be summoned to attend said court. It shall be lawful for the return judges in the counties of Schuylkill, Dauphin and Lebanon, to appoint one of their number in each of said counties to meet at the borough of Lebanon on the first Tuesday after the general election in October next, and make return of and cast up the number of votes given for the respective candidates for judges of the criminal court hereby established, and make return thereof to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, in the manner now prescribed as to the election of president judge.

The act entitled An act for the better and more impartial selection of persons to serve as jurors in the several courts of Somerset and other counties of the State, approved the 27th day of March, 1865, be and the same is hereby extended to Schuylkill county.

Immediately after the passage of this act the Governor of this Commonwealth shall appoint two sober, intelligent and judicious persons, taking one from each of the political parties, to serve as jury commissioners for Schuylkill county, who shall remain in office until jury commissioners for said county shall be elected as provided in said act hereby extended to Schuylkill county, and who shall be subject to all the provisions of said act; and the said jury commissioners so appointed by the Governor shall forthwith proceed to select and draw jurors for the courts in Schuylkill county, in the manner directed by the said act for the courts in Schuylkill county, for the current year, and the names of the persons now in the jury wheel in Schuylkill county be withdrawn, and others substituted, as directed, by this act.

Mr. COLEMAN. I hope that the Senate will concur.

Mr. WALLACE. I hope that the Senate will not concur. By the bill as amended the jurisdiction of the court of common pleas of Schuylkill county is completely ousted. It seems to me most remarkable that we should undertake to drive out of existence a court already in existence there and having jurisdiction by virtue of the Constitution, which provides:

"The judges of the court of common pleas in each county shall, by virtue of their offices, be justices of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, for the trial of capital and other offenders therein."

This bill is in the teeth of that plain provision of the Constitution. It attempts to deny to the judges of the court of common pleas within the county of Schuylkill this jurisdiction as justices of oyer and terminer, distinctly conferred upon them by the Constitution.

Mr. COLEMAN. I am not enough of a constitutional lawyer to decide such a question as that raised by the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE]; but I am satisfied that this bill has been carefully prepared by gentlemen as competent to decide such questions as the Senator from Clearfield. If the bill should be unconstitutional, the remedy is with the Supreme Court. The necessity for a bill of this kind must, I think, be admitted by almost every one familiar with the facts.

Mr. BIGHAM. The Senator from Clearfield, I presume, must be aware that the doctrine of constitutional law now laid down by him is not authoritative. The Supreme Court of the State—higher authority than the Senator—in a decision many years ago relative to the organization of the criminal court in Philadelphia, affirmed the power of the Legislature to do exactly what is proposed to be done in this case.

Mr. COLEMAN. If there has been a party question before us this winter, I consider this such a question, and I would like to see the Republican who is going to vote against this measure.

Mr. RANDALL. I want to see on the record the name of any Republican who will vote for such a bill.

Mr. DONOVAN. Mr. Speaker, some time ago there came a delegation from Schuylkill county, asking the passage of a bill for the appointment of a police force in that county. That question was fully discussed in this body, and the Senate granted to those people what they asked. That bill being sent to the other House, they now send here a new and entirely different bill. We are asked to act on that bill at once and pass it to-night, after merely hearing it read at the Clerk's desk.

I trust that the Senate will non-concur and send the matter to a committee of conference. I hope this will not be made a party question. In my judgment it cannot properly be so considered. If the citizens of Schuylkill require protection, they ought to have it irrespective of party.

Mr. COLEMAN. The Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. DONOVAN] says that by the bill already passed, we have granted to the Republicans of Schuylkill county all that they asked. I deny that we have done anything of the kind. The gentleman says that we passed a police bill—

Mr. RANDALL. I deny that the Republicans of Schuylkill county are asking for anything. There is not a man running round here begging legislation. That is a lie.

Mr. COLEMAN. A great many Republicans have spoken to me here about this matter. A delegation of more than fifty, appointed by a meeting in Schuylkill county, came here soliciting the passage of a measure of this kind; and a similar application has come from fifty citizens of Philadelphia, representing large interests in the county of Schuylkill. I would like to know what the jury bill and the police bill will be worth to the citizens of that county, if they have not a court disposed to carry out those measures properly. The present court, if matters are left to its control, would put every one of these policemen in jail before thirty days.

Mr. RANDALL. A committee of conference can agree upon a bill which will be perfectly satisfactory.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, I am not going to debate this question. I did that fully when it was up before. But I would remind Senators of this fact: the Republican members of this body and the other branch, in caucus assembled, assured the people of Schuylkill county that they would have guaranteed to him by this Legislature a "republican form of government." They have not such a government there now. They ask this legislation to secure it to them, and I for one will vote to grant the application.

On the question,

Will the Senate concur in the amendments of the House?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. RANDALL and Mr. COLEMAN, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Shoemaker, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—15.

NAYS—Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Jackson, James, Landon, M'Cauley, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Seagriff, Stutzman, Taylor and Wallace—16.

So the question was determined in the negative.

Mr. CONNELL, when his name was called, said: On all votes upon this bill I am paired with Judge WALLS.

Mr. LONDON, when his name was called, said: Mr. Speaker, I never was in a greater quandary in my life as to how I ought to vote. I generally know how to vote.

A SENATOR. Vote with your friends.

Mr. LONDON. We were assured of the existence of peculiar trouble in Schuylkill county, and we acknowledged the fact. We were asked to pass a police bill; and for that I voted. I was asked to pass a special jury bill. I took the position that, if we could have a general jury bill, I would vote against all special jury bills. A majority of the Senate concurred with me in that view. We passed a general jury bill, irrespective of party lines. They were asked for an additional law judge. I voted to grant that request. We have given the people of that county a police force armed to the teeth; we have given them a jury bill, putting all parties upon the same footing; we have given them an additional law judge that the law might be more fairly administered. Our bill providing for an additional law judge has been amended in the House by substituting this prolix bill, of which I never heard or saw a line until within the last ten minutes. It proposes to establish a criminal court in Schuylkill, Lebanon and Dauphin counties. It proposes to create for Schuylkill county a special jury system—a thing which I have declared upon this floor I would not vote for, provided our friends on the other side would vote for a general jury bill, which they did. My idea is this: Let the people of Schuylkill county put in force the police bill, the jury bill and the bill for an additional law judge, and then, if peace be not established, I would, if necessary, vote them an army of devils to maintain the peace. But my impression is that they should first try the remedies which we have already provided. I understand that if the amendments of the House be not concurred in, the question will go to a committee of conference, who can doubtless agree upon the provisions of a satisfactory bill. Sir, I vote "no."

The result of the vote was announced as above stated, and the amendments of the House were not concurred in.

CHANGE OF VENUE.

Mr. CONNELL moved that the Senate resume the consideration of Senate bill No. 1532, entitled An act to change the venue in a certain case from Schuylkill county to Lebanon county.

On the question,

That the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. RANDALL and Mr. CONNELL, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Ridgway, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor and Worthington—18.

NAYS—Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Jackson, James, M'Cauley, Randall, Schall, Seagriff, Wallace and White—11. So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the question again recurring,

Shall the bill pass?

Mr. RANDALL asked and obtained the unanimous consent of the Senate to amend the bill by striking out the word "Lebanon" wherever it occurs in the bill and title, and by inserting in lieu thereof the word "Berks."

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass?

It was determined in the affirmative.

BILLS PASSED.

Mr. QUAY asked and obtained leave to read in place and present to the Chair an act to perfect the title of Remben Watt to certain lands in South Beaver township, Beaver county.

The bill was read and

Agreed to.

The rules having been dispensed with, the bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Mr. STUMBAUGH asked and obtained leave to call up Senate bill No. 1077, an act explanatory of the provisions of the fifth section of the act to incorporate the Bennett's Branch improvement company.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I am told that this bill is to pass, and my efforts to defeat it will be abortive. I am satisfied, after canvassing members of the House, that two-thirds, at least, of them are committed to the passage of the bill. All I can do, therefore, is to endeavor to amend the bill so as to give those concerned some protection, and I offer the following amendment:

First section—Strike out "ten," in the first line and insert at the end of the section:

And provided further, That twenty days' notice of the time and place of said sale, and a description of said logs, with the marks or owners thereof, shall be published in one newspaper printed in Muncy, one in Williamsport, one in Jersey Shore, in the county of Lycoming, and one in Lock Haven, in the county of Clinton."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The bill as amended was

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Senate bill No. 275, an act to establish criminal courts for Dauphin, Lebanon and Schuylkill county.

The question on the final passage of the bill.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House go into committee of the whole for the purpose of special amendment.

The House will remember that when the bill was before us on another occasion I called attention to the fact that it was a bill where the district was to be composed of three counties, but that there was a very large difference in the application of the bill to those several counties. The courts created were to have power in one county which they were not to have in another. This appears to me so manifestly unjust and unfair that I cannot think that any gentleman here will insist upon passing the bill in that shape. I put it to the House plainly: there is a necessity for passing this bill for Dauphin and Lebanon counties or there is not, and either an honest or a dishonest purpose in passing this bill for these counties. If the purpose be an honest one then let us give it an honest appearance; let us make the bill applicable to all the counties alike; if the evils exist that require the establishment of a new court in these two counties, then let us establish the court in fact and give it the same power here it is to have elsewhere. With that view I have prepared a special amendment, making the bill uniform and giving the courts of Dauphin county, established by this bill, the same powers that the courts of Schuylkill county will have, and also the court of Lebanon county the same powers the court of Schuylkill will have.

If the purpose is an honest one, if there is any need of a court in Dauphin or Lebanon counties at all, let us make it appear so by the bill. If we do not do so, and if we do not give these courts the same power in these two counties that it has in Schuylkill, then let it stand confessed that the two counties, Dauphin and Lebanon, are put in the bill for purely partisan purposes.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I hope the House will refuse to go into committee of the whole for the reason that this bill has been prepared by the ablest legal minds of the State. It has received their approval; it has been passed upon and approved by the men who are oppressed and injured, or who allege they are; it has received their endorsement, and it has received the scrutiny of men able to give this bill all the attention it could possibly have.

Mr. COLLINS. I would like to know if the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] is interested in getting up this bill, or whether Mr. Bennett has any interest in its getting up.

Mr. MANN. I say distinctly I have nothing to do with the getting up of this bill, and so far as I know, neither did Mr. Bennett. It came into my hands from a gentleman in whom I have the utmost confidence, not only as a lawyer, but as a good and faithful citizen. The bill is now on third reading; we are on the last day of the session, in which probably we can pass this bill. I hope, therefore, under the circumstances, the House will refuse to go into committee of the whole for amendment.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I was always of the opinion that our constituents sent members to make laws for them, but I now learn for the first time that when a bill of importance, a bill like this in character is presented, one entirely different from any that has been offered for the consideration of this or any other Legislature, that it is not the Legislature of Pennsylvania which is to scrutinize and criticize and examine the propriety of this law, but some outside legal gentleman whose name was not mentioned upon this floor—a self-constituted judge. He shall examine and prepare and pass upon laws. Now, I invoke him to reflect before he attempts to perpetrate such a wrong upon the people of Pennsylvania.

I will remind gentlemen of the manly language of Senator Trustbull, in a celebrated speech at Chicago, when the Government undertook to suppress the printing, publishing and circulation of the Chicago Times. He told them that they must stop these proceedings; if they did not they would be setting a precedent. The Democrats would ultimately come in power and that the same bitter chalice would be put to their lips.

Now, I say, let us pause. Let us stop and reflect whether it is right and just and proper that a bill of this character should be passed to-day. I am astonished that the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] has become an agent and an instrument of those men who are about to thrust it upon us. He, above all other men, should have been the last one to have presented anything of this character, an amendment which no other living person has seen, except a self-constituted caucus, outside of this Legislature. The gentleman from Potter has rung the changes on us. He has used arguments which were appropriate and pertinent and direct upon various measures which have been presented upon this floor, and in which he denounced in fitting terms, and fitting phrases, the men who have brought bills before this House, and attempted to pass them without a reference to committees. But he has led the van in the infancy which has been practiced upon this House, in changing the criminal laws of Pennsylvania in reference to three counties; and in subverting the time honored principles of the common law, of the practice and precedents of legislation in this Commonwealth, by bringing in a bill which no Democratic member on this side has ever read; a bill which the Senator representing the counties affected never saw; which never went into the committee room, and which no man interested in this question has ever seen. He comes in here and introduces an amendment upon a bill providing for an additional law judge in the Twenty-first Judicial district of Pennsylvania, and the very next moment rises in his place and demands the previous question.

Now, in the name of the Commonwealth, in the name of propriety, in the name of decency, I would like to know how he can reconcile his conduct upon this matter with his vote, his voice, his conduct and his denunciations of such measures and such principles heretofore. He has repeatedly denounced such acts, and his denunciations appear over and over again upon the Record of this House.

Now, as a Democrat, I am the first one always, now and forevermore, to throw aside party trammels for the public good; and if there are any measures anywhere for the peace of Schuylkill county, and the protection of her citizens, I am the first man to pass the law. If the criminal jurisprudence of this Commonwealth, if the way in which judges are constituted in that county is not proper nor sufficient to protect them, if nobody else, I, as a Democrat, will go to the furthest for the purpose of changing those laws; but before attempting to do anything of that kind, I desire to lay my eyes upon this bill. I desire to read it, and study it, and to let it get before a committee, that an honest man may act honestly upon the question. I cannot believe that the safety of our institutions can be subserved by such acts as these. I believe we are fast tending to anarchy and ruin, if some one does not rise in his place and denounce, in fitting terms, practices that have lately obtained. I regret that my learned friend from Potter [Mr. MANN] has placed himself in such an unenviable position. If this bill had been presented in the early part of the session; if it had been put upon our files, and received the attention of committees, and if the facts as alleged in regard to Schuylkill county were true, I am satisfied that the Democratic side of this House would have joined hands with the gentleman from Potter in the fullest and strongest efforts for the purpose of vindicating right and putting down wrong. I know the people of Pennsylvania are a law abiding people, and they will not suffer injustice.

But how are we to meet the secret conspiracy against some of the people of Schuylkill? Shall it be by the same means? On the contrary, we would stand before this House, before the world, and meet it openly and in a manly spirit, so that every man can see for himself and judge of the truth; and then, without fear or favor, without partisan feelings (at least so far as I am concerned), we would pass an act just, and stringent, and satisfactory, against these injustices and wrongs. If the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] would reflect one moment, he would agree with the principle which he has so often laid down, that this law ought not to be acted upon and passed until it is placed upon our files and printed, and an opportunity given for it to be read. I hope he will rise in his seat and confer that favor upon this House, and demand those rights which he has so repeatedly and successfully demanded in other cases.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I wish to call attention to one or two of the provisions of this bill. Every gentleman in the House will agree that it is not improper that the House should know something of the character of this bill. Gentlemen will learn hereafter, if not now, its great importance. It starts out, for the first three or four sections, fairly and candidly enough, establishing a district court and court of criminal jurisdiction in three several counties. The first sections of the bill are alike applicable to all the counties in the district; but you will find, when you come to the third section, that this bill strikes off upon Schuylkill county and its purpose becomes apparent. It directs that after the passage of this act, "all recognizances dated within the county of Schuylkill for the appearance of witnesses shall be taken at the court created by this act."

But there is no provision of this kind applicable to the other counties. The same section provides that after the passage of this act, the jurisdiction of the courts of oyer and terminer and quarter sessions of Schuylkill county over criminal offenses shall cease and determine. But there is no provision of a similar character for the other counties. The point of that provision is this: That it will destroy the courts of quarter sessions and oyer and terminer in Schuylkill county in that particular. I doubt the constitutionality of this bill for this reason: That the Constitution itself provides for the establishment of a court of quarter sessions and a court of oyer and terminer for every county in the Commonwealth. This bill destroys the two courts thus provided for by the Constitution, and leaves Schuylkill county with neither oyer and terminer nor quarter sessions.

When we reach the sixth section, the purpose of this bill again becomes apparent, in requiring all returns made by constables, all tipping houses, &c., and of elections, relating to roads and highways in Schuylkill county be made to this court; while in Lebanon and Dauphin no such provision is made to apply.

But here is an objection that certainly must be made available; and it will strike the gentleman from Potter, I know. It is contained in the eighth section. It requires that in Schuylkill county all recognizances shall be taken and made returnable by the court created by this act. It is further provided that in Dauphin and Lebanon the district attorneys shall have discretion in directing where these recognizances shall be taken. Now, I submit that is impossible. Recognizances in criminal matters are taken by justices of the peace. You go into one of your most remote townships, and if a justice of the peace has information laid before him, and the party is made to appear, he takes bail. He enters into a recognizance. But, now it is proposed that the district attorney shall direct to what court these recognizances shall be made returnable. What shall the justice of the peace do? How shall he comply with the provisions of this act? It leaves no established law; it does not say, in one case or the other, recognizances shall be made returnable to the ordinary court of quarter sessions; but that the district attorney shall direct.

I submit to the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MAXN], and any man on this floor, whether this provision of the bill can be complied with. I hope, therefore, it will be stricken out.

Then, in the ninth section, the purpose is still apparent in providing that there shall be no grand jury summoned to attend the court of quarter sessions of Schuylkill county, and that in Dauphin and Lebanon no grand or petit jury shall be summoned to attend sessions of this court, and that all bills shall be found in the quarter sessions. Two directly opposite provisions in the same bill. In Schuylkill, you strip the ordinary courts of their ordinary jurisdiction. You strip them of their ordinary machinery. Now, the purpose is too apparent, as a partisan proposition, to receive the sanction of fair men.

And so in the eleventh section we find, in a very few words, the jury law of Somerset county established in Schuylkill county, and not in the other counties in the district.

Now, as I have before said, if there is any need of this bill in the three counties, let it so appear. If there is a state of facts existing in Dauphin and Lebanon, requiring legislation of this character, then let it appear, and let us legislate accordingly. But let us not put these two counties in this bill for no other purpose than to vote down Schuylkill county, and give them a judge not of their own selection. The people of this Commonwealth, by the Constitution, have the right to select their judges. No man can preside over them without their consent. I trust that no member here is going to violate the Constitution, in placing over the affairs of Schuylkill county a set of judges that the people of the county have not selected. I have pointed out some of the objections to this bill, and they are to me insurmountable in character.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, there is something extraordinary in the provisions of this bill. It provides for the creation of a new district. It provides that the judge elected to preside over that district shall exercise criminal jurisdiction in the counties of Dauphin and Lebanon, in cases where the district attorneys of these counties certify the case into his court. It provides, if I have read the bill right, that the jurisdiction of the judge of the court of common pleas and oyer and terminer and quarter sessions in the county of Schuylkill shall cease, and determine upon the appointment of a judge over this new district.

Now, I raise this question, that such an act does not correspond with the requirements of the Constitution. I particularly call the attention of my learned friend from Potter [Mr. MAXN] to the provisions to which I intend to refer, and I wish his opinion. I am satisfied that this bill does not correspond with the opinion of the law. I am satisfied that it had not been referred to the Committee on Judiciary, and if it had been, I think, it would not have met his approbation. In article five, section five, I read as follows:

"The judges of the court of common pleas in each county shall, by virtue of their offices, be justices of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, for the trial of capital and other offenders therein."

In view of that provision, I ask whether an act which takes from the justices of any of the districts the right of holding court of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery corresponds with the Constitution, and I ask the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MAXN] to give an answer to that question. Here is a plain provision, declaring that these judges shall, by virtue of their office, be justices of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery. Here is an act which says that the judges in a particular county shall not be justices of the court of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery. Here is the Constitution, declaring that the judges shall exercise this power. Here is an act that says the judges shall not exercise this power.

It is said that this act has been submitted to the people of the county. But if I refer to the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MAXN] to reconcile these differences. I repeat it again, this act says the judges of the court of common pleas in the county of Schuylkill shall not be justices of the courts of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery. It says so, if not in terms, by an irresistible inference drawn from the language. It takes from these judges the right to do what the Constitution says they shall do.

Now, I put it to my Republican friends, whether they can so far forget themselves; whether their party feelings have so completely beclouded their judgment that they are determined to pass an act which seems to controvert the plainest principles of the Constitution. If they do so, they must take the responsibility. I shall vote against the bill.

The question being on agreeing to the motion of the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE], to go into committee of the whole for the purpose of special amendment.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BOYLE and Mr. KLINE, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Quigley, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Tharp and Westbrook—32.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Donough, Epp, Ewing, Freeborn, Ghegan, Gordon, Harison, Hoffmann, Humphrey, Kimmel, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Creary, M'Kee, Mann, Meehling, Mely, Peter, Pillow, Quary, Richards, Shuman, Stumbaugh, Subers Waddell, Webb, Weller Whann, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—45.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The question recurring on the final passage of the bill,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. COLLINS and Mr. BREEN, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, Day, Donough, Epp, Ewing, Freeborn, Gordon, Harison, Hoffmann, Humphrey, Kimmel, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Creary, M'Kee, Mann, Meehling, Mely, Peter, Pillow, Richards, Shuman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—45.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Quigley, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Tharp and Westbrook—32.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the bill

Passed finally.

The bill, as passed finally, is as follows, viz: Sec. 1. That the counties of Dauphin, Lebanon and Schuylkill are hereby erected into a judicial district, under the name and style of the First District of Criminal Jurisdiction, and that in each county within the said district there shall be established a court of record, with criminal jurisdiction, under the name and style following: In Dauphin county the name and style of the court shall be the criminal court of Dauphin county; in Lebanon county the name and style of the court shall be the criminal court of Lebanon county; and in Schuylkill county the name and style of the court shall be the criminal court of Schuylkill county. The said courts, in each of the said counties, shall consist of one judge, learned in the law, who shall be the president judge of the district created by this act, and who shall, in all criminal matters and cases within the said district, have the like powers, jurisdiction and authority as the president judge of any judicial district of this Commonwealth, as well upon holding a court of quarter sessions of the peace, and court of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, and in vacation in any county within his proper jurisdiction, and shall at all times have the like power to grant writs of habeas corpus, and give relief thereupon in all cases as fully as any other president judge of any judicial district may or can do in similar cases.

Each of the courts created by this act shall have, and they are hereby vested with, full powers and authority to inquire of, hear, try and determine, agreeably to the laws and customs of this Commonwealth, all murders, rapes, robberies, arsenes, felonies, misdemeanors, and all other offenses which have been or may be committed within the county for which such court is created, and which would be cognizable in any court of quarter sessions of the peace and court of oyer and terminer within this Commonwealth, if committed within their jurisdiction, and to hear, try, and determine all presentments and indictments for any and all offenses against the laws of this Commonwealth committed within such county, and to sentence and punish all persons who shall be convicted of the said offenses, or any of them, agreeably to the laws of this Commonwealth; and generally to do all such matters and things as any court of general quarter sessions of the peace or oyer and terminer and general jail delivery may or can do within the county for which such court is created by this act; and each of the said courts shall have a seal, with the arms of the Commonwealth engraved thereon, and the name of the court.

After the passage of this act, all recognizances taken within the county of Schuylkill shall be taken for the appearance of the prosecutors, defendants and witnesses at the court created by this act for said county, and not to the court of quarter sessions of Schuylkill county; and from and after the first Monday of June next, the jurisdiction of the court of quarter sessions of the peace, and court of oyer and terminer of Schuylkill county, over felonies and misdemeanors, shall cease and determine, and the whole of the said jurisdiction now vested in the said court shall be, and the same is hereby vested, from that date, in the court for the said county, created by this act; and all indictments pending and recognizances taken, in the court of quarter sessions of the peace and the court of oyer and terminer, in Schuylkill county, shall be then transferred to, and be heard, tried, proceeded and determined, in the last court created by this act, in the same manner, and with the same effect, as if the indictment had originally been found in the recognizance taken therein; Provided, That in all cases where recognizances have been had, and the sentences have not been passed, the said court of quarter sessions and oyer and terminer shall proceed therein according to law, in the same manner, and with like effect, as if this act had not been passed.

That the sessions of the court created by this shall be held as follows:

In Schuylkill county, on the first Monday of January, April, July and October, and to continue four weeks if the business shall require it; in the county of Lebanon, on the first Monday of February, May and November; to continue one week if the business shall require it; and in Dauphin county on the first Monday of March, June, September and December, and to continue two weeks if the business of the court shall require it, with power to hold adjourned sessions of the said courts; and whenever, in the opinion of president judge of the districts created by this act, the public interests shall require it, he may order extra sessions of the courts in any of the counties, to be held at such times as he may appoint; and he shall have power, and he is hereby authorized, to dispense with jury courts in any county at such sessions as, in his opinion, jury courts may be dispensed with, without prejudice to the public interests; Provided, That in Schuylkill county, in addition to the sessions above mentioned, the first session of the court created by this act for that county, shall be held on the first Tuesday of June next, to continue until the close of that week, if the business shall require it.

It shall be the duty of the Governor of the Commonwealth, pursuant to the provisions of the Constitution, to appoint a gentleman of integrity, learned in the law, to be the president judge of the districts created by this act, who shall hold his office until the first Monday of December, next, and the qualified electors of the said counties of Dauphin, Lebanon and Schuylkill shall, on the second Tuesday of October next, elect a president judge for the said districts according to the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth; and the said judge, so appointed or elected, shall receive for his services a like salary or compensation as the president judge of court of common pleas of Schuylkill county.

The clerks of the courts of quarter sessions and oyer and terminer in the several counties in the district created by this act shall, for the time being, be the clerks of the courts created by this act, in the counties for which they are, or may be elected, and shall receive for their fees for the like business rendered, done and performed in the courts created by this act, as if rendered, done or performed in the courts of quarter sessions or of oyer and terminer, in the respective counties; and the sheriffs, coroners, constables and marshal of police affairs shall obey and execute all lawful orders of the courts created by this act, and be subject to the like penalties for neglect or disobedience, as if the said orders or writs had been made or issued by the courts of quarter sessions, or courts of oyer and terminer of the several counties within the district created by this act, and shall, in all cases, receive a like compensation for similar services, and all reports and returns that are now required by law or custom to be made to the courts of quarter sessions of Schuylkill county relating to selling liquor by less measure than one quart, tipping houses, disturbances at elections and matters relating to roads, highways or offenses of any kind, shall be made to the courts created by this act in Schuylkill county, at each and every regular session thereof, and the said court shall take such action thereon as any court of quarter sessions may or can do in similar cases.

All laws relating to the issuing of venires for the summoning of grand and petit jurors that are now or may be hereafter in force within the said district, are hereby extended to the courts created by this act, and the jurors shall be drawn and summoned in such numbers and like manner as for courts of oyer and terminer and courts of quarter sessions, and as may from time to time be ordered by the said courts created by this act.

The district attorneys in Dauphin and Lebanon counties shall have the power to direct recognizances to be taken for the appearance of prosecutors, defendants and witnesses in the courts created by this act, or in the quarter sessions of the peace of the said counties, as they may think best for the public interests.

It shall not be lawful to summon a grand jury in the present court of oyer and terminer, or quarter sessions, as now held in Schuylkill county, after the establishment of the criminal courts under the act, but the grand jury shall be selected for and summoned to attend the criminal courts in said county only, and in the counties of Dauphin and Lebanon, no grand jury shall be summoned in the criminal court established by this act, but all bills shall be found in the present courts of oyer and terminer and quarter sessions, after which they may, on the written order of the district attorney for the proper county, be removed into the criminal court for trial, or may be tried in the courts now existing in said counties, and this option, if no court have been removed into the criminal court for trial, no traverse jury shall be summoned to attend said court. It shall be lawful for the return judges in the counties of Schuylkill, Dauphin and Lebanon, to appoint one of their number in each of said counties to meet at the borough of Lebanon on the first Tuesday after the general election in October next, and make return of and cast up the number of votes given for the respective candidates for judge of the criminal courts hereby established, and make return thereof to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, in the manner now prescribed as to the election of president judges.

The act entitled An act for the better and more impartial selection of persons to serve as jurors in the several courts of Somerset and other counties of the State, approved the 27th day of March, 1865, be and the same is hereby extended to Schuylkill county.

Immediately after the passage of this act the Governor of this Commonwealth shall appoint two sober, intelligent and judicious persons, taking one from each of the political parties, to serve as jury commissioners for Schuylkill county, who shall remain in office until jury commissioners for said county shall be elected as provided in said act hereby extended to Schuylkill county, and who shall be subject to all the provisions of said act; and the said jury commissioners so appointed by the Governor shall forthwith proceed to select and draw jurors for the courts in Schuylkill county, in the manner directed by the said act for the courts in Schuylkill county, for the current year, and the names of the persons now in the jury wheel in Schuylkill county be withdrawn and others substituted, as directed by this act.

Mr. KOON, Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of privilege.

I move to reconsider the action of the House of House bill No. 1469, a further supplement to an act consolidating the city of Philadelphia, and extending the term of office of the chief engineer of the water department.

On the motion to reconsider, the yeas and nays were required by Mr. GREGORY and Mr. DEHAVEN, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Brown, Chalfant, Deise, Donohugh, Fogel, Ghegan, Gregg, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Jenks, Jones, Joseph, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Lee, Linton, Long, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Quigley, Roush, Satterthwait, Shuman, Stehman, Subers, Tharp, Westbrook, Woodward and Wright—40.
NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kerns, Kimmell, Leech, M'Creary, M'Kee, Mann, Meily, Peter, Richards, Quay, Stumbaugh, Waddell, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wingard, Worrall and Glass, Speaker—36.

So the question was determined in the affirmative, and the bill was again before the House.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I move to indefinitely postpone the further consideration of the bill.

Mr. KERNS. We have voted on that question.

Mr. COLVILLE. Mr. Speaker, I hope that motion will not prevail. There has been too much time consumed in the consideration of the bill.

The question recurring on the final passage of the bill.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. GREGORY and Mr. KERNS, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, DeHaven, Espy, Freeborn, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Josephs, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Loech, M'Creary, M'Kee, Mann, Mealy, Peter, Quay, Richards, Shuman, Stambaugh, Waddell, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wingard, Woodward, Worral, Wright and Glass, Speaker—33.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Chalmers, Collins, Deise, Donohue, Fogg, Ghegan, Gregory, Harney, Headman, Healy, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Koon, Kurtz, Lee, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Markey, Meyers, Mullin, M'Quigley, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Subers, Tharp and Westbrook—34.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the bill

Passed finally.

The next bill in order on third reading was No. 1768, an act to change the Boundary line of Lebanon borough.

Not agreed to.

Senate bill No. 1117, a supplement to the act to incorporate the Norris Park mining company, approved March 14, 1865, authorizing said company to borrow money.

Passed finally.

No. 1260, an act to reduce the number of school directors in the several school districts in the county of Bradford, and to pay the same.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, if you pay the directors in Bradford county and no other, I contend you have done a great injury to the school system. Now, our school system has been established on a free basis. I contend that the moment you establish a precedent to pay school directors, that moment you strike a fatal blow at the whole system. You render it necessary to levy a tax in every township to pay school directors, and the moment you do that, people inquire, "for what is this tax?" And to that extent you render this school system obnoxious. Moreover, I contend you will not have as good men for school directors as we have now. We are able to obtain the services of liberal, high-minded men to take charge of this matter, who do it as a matter of pride. But the moment you establish the system of paying school directors, you get politicians of every kind, and men who strive for the office for the sake of the emoluments, and not for the good of the school. As long as we can get good men to attend to these duties without pay, I think this House would be establishing a very bad precedent by paying school directors in Bradford or any other county.

I hope this bill will not pass. I therefore move its indefinite postponement.

Mr. WEBB. Mr. Speaker, I am surprised at the remarks of the gentleman from Allegheny (Mr. Wilson). I would like to hear the merits of this bill. It strikes me, if I had experience in one of the rural districts of this State, he would look upon this question in an entirely different view. Take the township in which I reside, in the county of Bradford, a township six miles square. The board of directors are scattered all over the township, and it is with great difficulty that four men can be got together as the law requires, in order to transact the necessary business. The gentleman entirely mistakes the fact, when he says we obtain a better class of men than we would if we adopted the system of paying our directors. We ask this as a local matter entirely. We have not the charge of the legislation of Allegheny, nor have we the charge of the legislation of Lancaster, nor of the legislation of Chester. And I cannot understand why these gentlemen should take upon themselves the responsibility of representing the county of Bradford. We propose to let the three men do what six men are required to do. We propose to compensate those men ourselves. It is not a matter of the slightest consequence to any of the gentlemen who have opposed this bill. I think the truth of the story is this—that the school department have taken a little snuff, and it is necessary that the gentleman from Allegheny should sneeze. This matter belongs to us. If the people of our county are united upon any one question, it is that of reducing the number of school directors, and providing for their compensation.

But it is said that this is an innovation on the school system. It is no more of an innovation that it would be to reduce the number of members on this floor.

I ask the House to stand by us, and pass this bill, because our people desire it, and because it does not interfere with the schools of any other county.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I introduced a bill of similar character, which went to the Committee on Education, and was negative. This bill was favorably returned by that committee. I inserted a township, in my county, to which I was desirous of applying the law. The people of that township are desirous to be included within the provisions of this bill. They will be subject to its effects, and they alone. I trust the House will pass this bill.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, I have one word to say against the passage of this bill. The thought has occurred to me, while the gentlemen have been contending, that the very parties who come with this bill, asking for its passage, and the reduction of the number of school directors, with a compensation for their labors, are the very men who come and ask us for a State tax for school purposes. Now, here is an inconsistency that I cannot comprehend. The system, as it now exists, works well, and I argue that, instead of decreasing the number of directors, it would be, generally, advantageous to increase the number. We want school directors scattered all over every township, that they may be in the vicinity of sub-districts, and take charge of the schools in their neighborhood. If we reduce the number to three, the labors of the directors will be onerous. It is the duty of the directors, we all know, to visit the school at least once a month. They should be visited once a month, to make the system efficient. Now, if you cut down the number to one-half, and continue the same duties, you increase the labors of those three directors just one hundred fold; and the result will be, your schools will not be visited or attended to at all.

Again, as has been already remarked, we are getting up an office that will be worth a dollar and a half a day, and certain parties will be onerous. I, independent of the regard of the schools or of the school system; and to just that extent you take money out of the treasury that should go to pay teachers and keep your schools open. These gentlemen complained that they are taxed from eighteen to thirty mills on the dollar, for the purpose of keeping schools open four months in the year. And yet they come here and ask us to increase their burden by paying the directors who at present perform their duties without pay. I see an inconsistency here that I cannot explain. In view of that, I must vote against the bill.

Mr. WEBB. Mr. Speaker, I will say, in reply to the remarks of the gentleman, in reference to the duties of the directors of district schools, that in our section of the country, the secretary of the board is authorized, by resolution, to visit the schools, instead of apportioning the sub-districts among the directors without pay. The secretary is paid for visiting the schools; the duties are all discharged by one person.

We can now understand the position of the gentleman from Lancaster (Mr. Armstrong). He is afraid that his county will be obliged to pay a tax of ten mills, to pay the school directors. We do not ask that he or his constituents shall maintain and educate our children. But we put ourselves upon the broad doctrine that the wealthy of the State should educate its youth.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I have always endeavored to avoid interfering with local legislation; yet I have always endeavored to see whether that local legislation would directly or indirectly, remotely or immediately, affect my own interest. I think it is best to fix up the banks before the water gets too high; and so in this case. I am satisfied that, although this is now a local matter, it will eventually become general; or at least an attempt will be made to make it general, whether it is right or not. For, why should the school directors of one county in this State draw pay, while the others do not? The school law is a great public benevolence, and we should guard it from all these little things that may tend to impair it. We have little money enough to keep up our schools, without paying men for acting as directors. I never heard a director complain—I never heard any one complain that school directors were not paid. It is not universal felt in this State that school directors should receive pay. It is foolish to say that because teachers receive pay for teaching schools, that directors should receive pay for looking after the interests of the schools.

Mr. CHALFANT. Mr. Speaker, the secretaries of the boards receive pay.

Mr. M'CREARY. Simply because the secretary has labor to perform that no other person can.

As to limiting the number of school directors, the only objection I have to that is this: not that I am unwilling that Bradford county should get along without school directors; but that it is a breaking in upon the general system now in operation all over the State.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, why is there not just as much reason for paying school directors for services rendered as for paying any other officer for the services he performs?

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I say the school law and the appropriation for the schools is a great public benevolence. It is not one of those absolute necessities, like taxes raised to pay members for coming here and making laws.

Mr. MANN. What I desire to know is, why should the school directors perform services for the public without being allowed to claim compensation?

Mr. M'CREARY. Because the school fund law is not so much a necessity. It is a great public benevolence. Every dollar you put into the pockets of directors is taken out of the school fund for the education of children. This is a new matter, and it is too late in the session to undertake to make such a radical change in the school law.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I would ask whether the proposed change in the law is any more radical, or any more important, than the change which has been made in the judiciary system of the State?

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, if the schools are to have a condition in Bradford county as the laws are in Schuylkill county, I will vote to make the change.

Mr. COLVILLE. Mr. Speaker, I believe the greatest reason assigned for the passage of this bill, is the very best reason that could be offered why it should not pass. It has been stated that, as the system now prevails in Bradford county, many of the school directors cannot write their own names. Now, what guarantee have the people of Bradford county, that such men will not present themselves for re-election. They will receive a salary for their services, and I consider this one of the best reasons why we should not pass this bill.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me there is a great deal of discussion over a small matter. The townships who ask for this bill desire to be taxed for their own benefit. They simply petition this Legislature to be allowed to pay their own taxes for their own benefit. I do not see why they should not be allowed to do so. I think the school director is just as much entitled to pay for his services as I am for coming here.

Mr. KINNEY. Mr. Speaker, I expressed my views so fully on this bill that I should not take any part in the discussion. But the gentleman from Pottsburg started out by asking what good reason there was why this bill should be passed. I will give him one: It is, that the people of Bradford are unanimous in asking for its passage. It is local in its character and provisions; it in no wise affects the school system throughout the State. I consider that one of the best reasons why we should pass this bill for Bradford county.—The time is not far off when we will come to this system of paying school directors.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, I have opposed this measure not because it was a local measure. If it were local I would be, perhaps, one of the last men in this House to oppose it. I have never sought to interfere with local legislation, nor do I intend to interfere with such matters. But I contend that this is not a local measure exclusively. It is a precedent, an alarming precedent; a precedent that, in my opinion, will extend all over the State. I contend that the moment you establish this principle of paying school directors, that moment you render the school system liable to the evils of local legislation.

Mr. MAISH. Mr. Speaker, I am not willing to be silent on this question. I am opposed to this bill. I think it is setting a very bad precedent. The common school system is not a local matter, by any means. It belongs to the State. Every son of Adam in this Commonwealth ought to be proud of that system, as the system of Pennsylvania. It has become notorious as being one of the best school systems in the United States. It has been copied by most of the New England States, and a great many of the Western States. If we allow the gentleman from Bradford to invade this system, inroads upon it will be made until we have no system at all. I trust we will stop this matter at the beginning. We should preserve our common school system intact. I hope this bill will not pass.

On the question, Shall the bill pass?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DAY and Mr. MCCREARY, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Allen, Boyle, Brennan, Cameron, Chalant, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Harbison, Harner, Heitzel, Hoffman, Humphrey, Jenks, Jones, Kerns, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Kuriz, McHenry, McPherrin, Mann, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Roush, Satterthwait, Webb, Whann, Wingard, Woodward and Wright—36.

NAYS—Messrs. So the question was determined in the negative.

And the bill was not agreed to.

On motion of Mr. HUMPHREY, the House proceeded to the consideration of Senate bill No. 377, an act granting an increase of capital to literary or charitable institutions becoming soldiers' orphans' schools.

The bill was read and

Agreed to, and

Passed finally.

The House then adjourned till 2 o'clock this afternoon.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The House met at three o'clock, P. M.

The SPEAKER announced a quorum of members present.

Mr. WORRALL. Mr. Speaker, I move that the orders of the day be suspended for the purpose of considering House bill No. 1979, joint resolution relative to the military history of the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps.

The question being on the motion of Mr. WORRALL,

It was

Agreed to.

The bill being before the House and the question being on agreeing to the bill,

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. Speaker, I wish the House would consider this bill a little carefully before they pass upon it. That bill was before the committee of which I am chairman, and it was there negative for several good reasons.

Now, sir, that history professes to treat especially of the history of fifteen Pennsylvania regiments. I accord to the Pennsylvania Reserves all honor and all credit. That history goes into the minute details of the marches, skirmishes and encampments of the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps. It begins with the political history out of which grew the war. It also gives a somewhat detailed statement of the operations of the army in the Northwest, where the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps never were, and to all intents and purposes it is a history that takes in all the collateral points necessary to make it a complete history in itself. That is all right and proper.

The State is going to get up a history to be a history of all the Pennsylvania troops. Now, if we give to every fifteen regiments the same space and the same consideration this history does these fifteen regiments, I venture to say that one-half million of dollars will not pay the expense of the history. Here is a book of five or six hundred pages devoted to the history of but fifteen regiments. Now, I do not think that it is anticipated that the State historian will get up a history that would include twenty-five or thirty volumes of the size of this history. Not only this, but the State is to distribute three thousand volumes of this work. Will there be any justice in that? I will state that I had the fortune to have command of a regiment myself. I was connected with that regiment from its organization until the fall of 1864. In that regiment we had about three thousand men. In that single regiment there died of wounds and casualties between seven and eight hundred men.

Now, if the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps did all that is claimed for them, you will have in those fifteen regiments six or seven thousand men who died from the effects of disease and wounds received in the service. Yet it is proposed to distribute but three thousand copies. There can be no justice in that. Who shall say to what particular persons those volumes shall be sent? As I understand the matter, it is not contemplated that the State shall distribute the State history. If we do, and place it upon the same footing as it is proposed to put this history by the passage of this bill, then an expenditure of two or three millions of dollars will not do historical justice to all the Pennsylvania regiments. Any gentleman can draw up a schedule that will establish that fact conclusively. What I protest against as a member of a regiment not connected with the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps is this: that it places these fifteen regiments on a higher level than the two hundred and ten or fifteen regiments not incorporated in that corps. I could come here with as good a grace, and ask the State to distribute three thousand copies of the history of my regiment, which is already published. But I have not the brass to do that, and I do not think that any gentleman would say I have the right to do that. But that is what the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps propose to do by the passage of this bill. All I claim, as a friend of every regiment, is that they shall be placed upon the same footing, and that if the State is going to distribute this history, it shall also distribute the history now being prepared by the State historian.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, it is with a great deal of diffidence I rise to reply to some remarks by the gentleman who has just taken his seat, because I had the honor to serve in one of the regiments of the Reserve Corps for three years. I do not wish to be here as an advocate of the merits of that corps. It is not necessary for me to do so. The history of that Division is well known. There are some gentlemen in this House to-day, who perhaps are better acquainted with the organization of that regiment than I am. But I can only say, sir, in answer to the gentleman, that this is the only Pennsylvania Division that was ever organized by the State of Pennsylvania. This is a peculiar corps of men. The Pennsylvania Reserves were mustered into the State service, they were on duty in the State, they were drilled in the State, and when the call was made, just before the battle of Bull Run, this Division was sent forward fully equipped. This division was gotten up as a Pennsylvania State Division. The men were mustered into the service by Pennsylvania officers; they were fully and completely a Pennsylvania Division, and were held as reserves to fill any call that might be made. I will say further that the Pennsylvania Reserves were considered a distinct division throughout the whole war.

Now, as this work embraces the full history of the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps, as a member of that division, all I ask is that this history be taken as the history of these fifteen regiments. I do not care anything about the distribution of the three thousand copies. I would prefer myself to have that part stricken out of the bill. I only ask that, as this Pennsylvania Reserve Corps was the creature of the Legislature of Pennsylvania, as they were organized under a special act of Assembly, that this history be adopted and accepted by the State historian who is to write the history of all the other regiments, as the history of these fifteen regiments.

Mr. ROATH. Will the gentleman allow himself to be interrogated?

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Yes, sir.

Mr. ROATH. Do you believe that this history is correct?

Mr. PENNYPACKER. I believe that it is as nearly correct as perhaps any history that can be written.

Mr. ROATH. Do you believe the author of this work is the best man to write a history of the Reserve Corps?

Mr. PENNYPACKER. That is another question. I only know the result. So far as my personal knowledge goes, I wish to say that this history is as complete a history as can well be written of any fifteen regiments. Some rolls, perhaps, have not been published because they were not sent in time. But that can be remedied by a revival of the work. All I ask of this Legislature is to accept this history of this Division, as it was a distinct division from any other that went into the field. Other divisions were sent into the field, but they were organized as divisions after they were in the field. And a special act was not passed to raise those regiments, they were not raised.

Mr. WOODWARD. Was not the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps recruited, to a great extent, under the idea that they could not go out of the State?

Mr. PENNYPACKER. No, sir; it was emphatically, no, sir!

My understanding is that the Pennsylvania Reserves were raised to fill the first call that was made upon the State. After the call for the seventy-five thousand three months' men was filled there were more men recruited than possibly could enter the service, and from the surplus this Pennsylvania Division was made up. It was a special act. This was in accordance with the policy of this unfortunated Governor of Pennsylvania, that more men would be needed at that time, and that Pennsylvania should be among the foremost in having men ready to be put right into the service when called for.

I say without hesitation, and without asking that this thing may reflect honor more than is due to the Pennsylvania Reserves, that they are the troops that protected Washington after the first battle of Bull Run. We all know what a defeat that was for our army. We all know that our army was then driven back into Washington in confusion and in disorder, and that if the rebel army had moved forward immediately, they would have captured Washington. But these Pennsylvania Reserves moved forward immediately at the call and were there when needed, and formed the nucleus of the Army of the Potomac.

I do not claim for the Pennsylvania Reserves more than they achieved in the field. All did service and we are not asking to be placed above other regiments, but we are only asking that this history be adopted by the State as the history of the Pennsylvania Reserves and be placed with the history of the other State troops.

Mr. M'CREEARY. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman from Chester [Mr. PENNYPACKER] does not fully understand the question before the House. The question before this House does not involve the services and character of the Pennsylvania Reserves at all. It is simply whether a certain book which has been written by some person that this House knows nothing about—whether that shall be adopted as the military history of the Pennsylvania Reserves, and made a part of the military history of the Pennsylvania troops. Therefore I think the remarks of the gentleman from Chester have nothing to do with the question before the House.

The question is to determine whether we will authorize our State historian to exclude these fifteen regiments from the history he is to write of the Pennsylvania troops, and to give official sanction to this large history of the Reserve Corps. If there is anything that soldiers dislike, it is a distinction made against an individual without just cause. The fact that these troops were organized in the State, and were called reserves, is no reason why they should have a larger space in the State history than any other organization in the State. I look with pride upon the achievements and exploits of that corps, but the mere fact of their being a distinct organization does not justify an unjust discrimination in their favor. I know of some camps where three months' regiments were doing service long before these corps went into service, and I know that that the most of those three months' regiments enlisted again into three years' regiments.

I do protest that men who were in the service only three years shall have a position before those others in the State military history. I say that this is not such a history that the State should stamp with its authority and send it out over the State. I am told by those who know that there are in this work histories of certain officers of that Reserve Corps that were only a year in the service large enough to give a history of General Grant. If we adopt this history, what is there to prevent other regiments from employing persons to write the history of their regiments and have it go into the military history of the State?

I suppose the object of this military history is to give some of the main points connected with the organization—not to write elaborate biographies of all the principal officers—but simply to refer to them and to give such facts as will enable our posterity to see what part those regiments took in the service. But why should fifteen regiments, simply because they were organized in the State as State troops, claim pre-eminence in this matter? The gentleman from Chester has given the very best reason to show why they should not. They were organized, uniformed, equipped and drilled in this State, and those were advantages as every person knows. I know of regiments that within six days after leaving home were on the battle-field. They had no time to be drilled before going into the service. We always felt in the service that this Reserve Corps had advantages over the others.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Do I understand the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREEARY] to say that the Pennsylvania Reserves were recruited and organized under the same act, and by the same authority as the other regiments of the State?

Mr. M'CREEARY. I do not so understand it, but I do not see why the regiments organized under one law should be treated differently from those organized under another law.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. The Pennsylvania Reserves were gotten up by the State of Pennsylvania, and as such should be recognized, and when they ask that a certain history written, not for the purpose of having it adopted as the history written by the State, but when it is written, the Pennsylvania Reserves, recognizing it to be a true history, ask the Pennsylvania Legislature to adopt that history.

Mr. M'CREEARY. When the military historian comes to write out the history of this Reserve Corps, let him give them the same benefits as other regiments, and say, by way of distinction, that they were organized as Pennsylvania troops. Let them have the benefit of that, but do not bring in a book as big as Purdon's Digest and ask us to adopt it as the history of the Reserve Corps. I know that there is a fulsome man about that history that the Legislature ought not to sanction in a military history of the Pennsylvania troops. The act under which they were organized, reads:

"The said regiments shall severally be composed of companies of like number, and to be armed and equipped, clothed, disciplined, governed and officered, as similar troops in the service of the United States, and shall be enlisted in the service of the State for a period not exceeding three years or for the war, unless sooner discharged, and shall be liable to be called into the service of this State at such time as the commander-in-chief may deem their services necessary, for the purpose of suppressing insurrections or to repel invasions; and further, to be liable to be mustered into the service of the United States at such times as requisition may be made by the President of the United States."

Now, is there anything different in that from other regiments? The State authorized the formation of other regiments; but in this instance, instead of taking them up one at a time, if at one time authorized the formation of fifteen regiments. There was General Hartranft's whole Division, composed of Pennsylvania regiments, and General Humphreys' whole Division, also composed of Pennsylvania regiments, that achieved so much honor on the battle-field of Fredericksburg. Why, then, this unjust distinction?

Why, Mr. Speaker, it is absurd! Do they pretend to say that they did more service than other Pennsylvania regiments? The other Pennsylvania regiments marched with them, went into battle with them, and no one denies that they fought just as well.

The history of the Eighty-third Pennsylvania regiment has been written. But we do not ask that it shall be adopted as the State military history. I hope the members of this House will see that this injustice is not done. Let the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps have their history written, just as other regiments have theirs, and if they have done more service than others the readers will not fail to discover it. I hope the House will see that no such unjust distinction is made—that fifteen regiments should have a special history written, and other regiments should be content with a few words in the back leaves of the Pennsylvania military history.

Mr. HUBBARD. Mr. Speaker, this is not a question of honor or valor. It is simply for the purpose of this State subscribing for a certain number of copies of this work and acknowledging it as the history of the great Pennsylvania Reserves. I am free to say that the Pennsylvania Reserves should have no more credit for the deeds than the One Hundred and Fourth Regiment from Bucks county. The history of that regiment has been written by Col. W. W. Davis. Now, if this bill is passed, I might with consistency move an amendment that the work of Col. Davis should be recognized as the history of the One Hundred and Fourth Regiment. I shall vote against this bill, and I trust it will be defeated.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the resolution by striking out that portion of it requiring the Adjutant General to circulate a certain number of the work, and let it stand merely as adopting the work as the State military history of the Pennsylvania Reserves.

Mr. M'CREEARY. Mr. Speaker, I am not complaining of that. It is this distinction that I complain of. That amendment does not do away with this distinction. Here is a book of between seven and eight hundred pages, and I make the estimate that if all the regiments got the same notice, the history would make some twelve or fifteen thousand pages. This work goes on to give the history of secession; treats of matters away down in New Orleans; it gives a long history of the different generals, and one-half of the book is taken up with matters that do not pertain to the organization of any particular regiment. Also, a gentleman who ought to know, has told me that there are statements in the work in regard to other officers that are not true in fact.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, we do not wish to reflect upon other officers, and upon other regiments of other organizations. We do not wish to detract a particle from the honor due to the gentleman from Erie. We would not object to having his name written in gold, and circulated all over the country. We do not want to place the Reserve Corps above other organizations.

We merely wish this Legislature to say that this history of the Pennsylvania Reserves written, as we believe, faithfully shall be adopted as the military history of that corps. It gives, to be sure, extraneous matter that might have been omitted, but all we ask is that the labor of writing this history be taken from the State historian, and that this history be adopted instead. The regiment to which the gentleman from Erie belonged was not one of these peculiar organizations, and he has failed to show to the House that his regiment was organized for the same purpose that these Pennsylvania Reserves were organized, or organized under the same act. I say that this Pennsylvania Reserve Corps was organized by the Pennsylvania Legislature, and was a distinct organization from other organizations.

Mr. MANN. I notice that this resolution provides that there shall be ten per cent. discount on the subscription price of the book. How much is the subscription price of the book?

Mr. PENNYPACKER. My motion is to strike out that portion of the resolution.

Mr. MANN. Then we are to pay the full price, are we?

Mr. PENNYPACKER. You do not pay any price at all. The resolution merely adopts the history. It does not propose to distribute a single volume.

Mr. MANN. Is there any limit to the expense it puts the treasury to?

Mr. PENNYPACKER. My motion is to strike out all that portion of the resolution, with the appropriations that have been made out of the treasury. I think the treasury is not in a position, to-day, to pay out this money for this purpose. That is the reason why I made the motion to strike that part out. It merely adopts this history of the Pennsylvania Reserves as the history that should be written by the State historian. There is no expense about it at all. And I want to make it emphatic that we do not want to have ourselves placed above other organizations. We do not wish to cast any reflection upon other gentlemen. If they wish to have the histories of their regiments written let them have them written. I may say that this history of the State historian will not be written for a long while. We wish to have this as our history, and have it now—not a hundred years hence.

Mr. MANN. What is to prevent your taking it if you want it?

Mr. PENNYPACKER. The gentleman from Potter seems to be becoming very obstinate why we want it adopted is because we want it adopted in the history that is to be written by the State historian of the other regiments. We do not want another history of that Corps written by the State historian—we do not want to put the extra expense upon the State.

Mr. MANN. I would suggest that the State historian be requested not to write the history of the Pennsylvania Reserves.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. I knew this resolution would not be perfect unless the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] had something to say on it or some amendment to propose to it. This does not take any money out of the treasury, and does not elevate the officers or privates above those of other regiments.—It merely adopts this history as the history to be written by the State historian.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I move the indefinite postponement of the bill.

Mr. DAY. Mr. Speaker, I hope this motion to indefinitely postpone will prevail. The resolution, as originally introduced, I think, lacks merit. I think the friends of it in the House see that it lacks merit, from the fact that they have offered an amendment that takes away at least half the original purpose. This House has only to look for a moment at the nature of this resolution, I think, to vote it down. This resolution, as introduced, was before the Military Committee very nearly all winter, and they were almost unanimously against it. The opposition to the bill was decided, and the friends of the bill failed to show any reason why the committee should adopt the bill and report it affirmatively.

The gentleman from Chester [Mr. PENNYPACKER] says he does not wish to put the Pennsylvania Reserves above any other regiments. I ask him if such will not be the effect if this resolution prevails, to elevate them above any other organization of this State? Any man with half a grain of common sense will see that that will be the effect. If Pennsylvania had furnished no other troops than these fifteen regiments, I would say endorse this book by the Legislature, but I say there are hundreds of other regiments just as meritorious, and this is throwing them into the shade. I belonged to a regiment which I consider as meritorious as any regiment that ever went out from this State, and I say, as a member of the Sixteenth Pennsylvania cavalry, that I consider that that regiment is thrown into the shade if this bill is passed. I hope the House will support the motion to indefinitely postpone this resolution.

The question being on the motion of Mr. EWING to indefinitely postpone the resolution, it was

Agreed to.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE.

Mr. SHARPLES, from the committee of conference, to which was committed the differences existing between the two Houses in relation to bill No. 290, of the House file, entitled A further supplement to an act for the regulation and continuance of a system of education by common schools, approved the eighth day of May, A. D. 1854, made a report, which was read, as follows, viz:

That the committee had agreed to amend the bill in the twenty-eighth line of the twelfth section, by inserting after the word "terms" the words "which shall be," and to recommend that the amendments, as thus amended, be concurred in by both Houses.

(Signed) WILMER WORTHINGTON,
KIRK HAINES,
GEO. D. JACKSON,
Senate Committee.
N. J. SHARPLES,
GEO. WILSON,
RICHMOND L. JONES,
House Committee.

On motion,
Said report was twice read, considered and adopted, and

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate of the same.

The bill, as passed finally, is as follows, viz: A FURTHER SUPPLEMENT to an act for the regulation and continuance of a system of education by common schools, approved the eighth day of May, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four.

1.—The Selection of Sites for School Houses.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That whenever the board of directors or controllers of any school district in this Commonwealth shall be unable to procure such eligible sites for the erection of school houses thereon as they may deem expedient, by agreement with the owner or owners of the land, it shall and may be lawful for the directors, in behalf of the district, to enter upon and occupy sufficient ground for the purpose, which they shall designate and mark off, not exceeding in any case one acre, and to use and occupy the same for the purpose of erecting thereon a school house, with its necessary and convenient appurtenances, and for all damages done and suffered, or which shall accrue to the owner or owners of such land by reason of the taking of the same for the purposes aforesaid, the funds of the district, which may be raised by taxation, shall be pledged and deemed as security; and it shall and may be lawful for the court of common pleas of the proper county, on application thereto, by petition, either by the said school district, through the president and secretary of the board of directors, or by the owner or owners of said land, or any one of them, in behalf of all, to appoint a jury of viewers, consisting of three discreet and disinterested citizens of said county, who shall not be the owners of property or residents in the school district in which such land is taken, as aforesaid, and appoint a time, not less than twenty nor more than thirty days thereafter, for said viewers to meet upon said land, of which time and place ten days' notice shall be given by the petitioners, to the said viewers, and the other party; and the said viewers, or any of them, having been first duly sworn or affirmed faithfully, justly and impartially to decide, and a true report to make, concerning all matters and things to be submitted to them, and having viewed the premises, they shall establish and determine the quantity and value of said land so taken to be used for the purposes aforesaid, and after having made a fair and just computation of the advantages and disadvantages, they shall estimate and determine whether any, and if any, what amount of damages has been or may be sustained, and to whom payable, and make report thereof to said court; and if it shall be awarded that the report be confirmed by the said court, judgment shall be entered thereon, and if the amount thereof be not paid within thirty days after the entry of said judgment, execution to enforce the collection thereof may be issued, as in other cases of judgment against school districts; and each viewer shall be entitled to one dollar and fifty cents per day for every day necessarily employed in the performance of the duties herein prescribed, to be paid by such district: Provided, That either party shall have the right to have reviewers appointed by said court.

II.—The Establishment of Teachers' Institutes.

SEC. 2. That the county superintendent of each county in this Commonwealth is hereby authorized and required, once in each year, at such time and place as he, or a properly authorized committee of teachers, acting with him, may deem most convenient, to call upon and invite the teachers of the common schools and other institutions of learning in his county to assemble together and organize themselves into a teachers' institute, to be devoted to the improvement of teachers in the science and art of education, and to continue in session at least five days, including a half a day for going to, and a half a day for returning from, the place of meeting, said institute to be presided over by the county superintendent, or by some one designated by him, and subject, in its general management, to his control.

SEC. 3. That each county superintendent, upon the assembling of the teachers' institute of his county, shall cause a roll of members to be prepared, which roll shall be called at least twice every day during the session of the institute, and all absentees carefully marked, and from which, upon the adjournment of the institute, he shall ascertain the exact number of teachers who were in attendance, and the length of time each attended, and upon the presentation of a certificate, at the close of the session of each annual institute, setting forth these facts, and signed by the county superintendent, to the treasurer of the proper county, he is hereby authorized and required to pay immediately, out of any money in the county treasury not otherwise appropriated, to the county superintendent, one dollar for every three days spent by teachers of the county in attendance at the institute for that year, or as much of it as may be needed, such money to be expended by the county superintendent, in procuring the services of lecturers and instructors for the institute, and in providing the necessary apparatus, books and stationery for carrying on its work: Provided, That the amount which may be drawn from the county treasury shall, in no case, be more than two hundred dollars, but may, in all cases, be sixty dollars, if it shall appear, from the vouchers presented by the county superintendent to the county auditors as required by the fourth section of this act, that this sum has been actually expended for the purposes herein specified: Provided further, That all boards of directors may allow the teachers in their employ the privilege of attending such institutes, without making any deduction from their salaries, and that any teacher who absents himself from the institute of his county, without a good reason, may have his want of professional spirit and zeal indicated by a lower mark on his certificate in the practice of teaching, than he would otherwise have received.

Sec. 4. That each county superintendent who may draw money from the county treasury for the purposes named in this act, shall file his statement of all expenditures under the act in the office of the county treasurer, with vouchers for the same, which shall be examined by the auditors of the county, in like manner as other county expenditures, and any misapplication of funds shall be punished in the same manner as collectors of State and county taxes for like offenses are now punished.

Sec. 5. That all county superintendents, upon the adjournment of the teachers' institutes held in their respective counties, are hereby required to report to the Superintendent of Common Schools the number of teachers in attendance, the names of the lecturers or instructors who officiated, the subjects upon which the instruction was given, and the degree of popular interest awakened by the proceedings.

III.—Text Books in Counties.

Sec. 6. That it shall be lawful for the school directors of any county in this Commonwealth, at any tri-ennial convention held for the purpose of electing a county superintendent, to appoint seven of their number possessing the necessary qualifications, whose duty it shall be to agree upon and select a series of text books adapted to the wants of the common schools of the county, and present them for adoption to the several boards of directors: this action, however, to be of no binding force unless confirmed at the annual meeting of directors and teachers held as now provided by the twenty-third section of the act of May eighth, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four, but when so confirmed the books shall not be changed until after the action of the next tri-ennial convention as aforesaid: Provided, That a majority of the board of directors of any county may at any time call a special meeting of the directors of the county for the purpose of appointing a county committee on text books as above provided, whose action shall be valid until the meeting of the tri-ennial convention in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine.

IV.—City and Borough Superintendents.

Sec. 7. The school directors of any city or borough in this Commonwealth, having a population of over ten thousand inhabitants, may, on the first Tuesday of May, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, and every third year thereafter, elect, viva voce, by a majority of the whole number of directors present, one person of literary and scientific acquirements, and skill and experience in the art of teaching, as city or borough superintendent for the three succeeding school years; and the said school directors shall determine the amount of compensation for said city or borough superintendent, which compensation shall be paid by the same officers as pay the salaries of teachers in such school district, and in the same manner as such salaries are now paid: Provided, That nothing in this act shall prevent the directors of any city or borough from electing a superintendent to serve from the time of election until the commencement of the school year, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, in filling a vacancy, should any occur, for the unexpired term of said office, nor from increasing the salary of a superintendent at any time: Provided also, That the president of the board of directors or controllers of any city or borough in this Commonwealth shall, at any time after the passage of this act, if so requested, in writing, by seven directors or controllers, call a convention, giving at least five days' notice thereof, of all the directors of said city or borough, to determine whether they will elect a city or borough superintendent, and with the purpose with the view of this act, and if, at such meeting, it shall be decided to hold such an election, the said directors shall again convene at the time appointed by this section of this act, or any other time, in accordance with its provisions, and at a place fixed upon by themselves, when they shall proceed to carry their determination into effect in the same manner as is done by conventions held for the election of county superintendents, and all subsequent conventions for carrying into effect the purposes of this act shall be called in the same manner by said president of the board of directors or controllers of such city or borough.

Sec. 8. That it shall be the duty of the president and secretary of the meeting of the directors of any city or borough, at which a city or borough superintendent has been elected, to certify to the Superintendent of Common Schools, the name and address of the person elected city or borough superintendent, in pursuance of the provisions of this act, and those of all other candidates who received votes, together with the amount of compensation fixed upon by said directors; upon the receipt of such certificate, if no valid objection be received, within thirty days after the day of election, the Superintendent of Common Schools shall commission the person so elected for the term for which he was elected, but if objection to issuing such commission be made within thirty days, the Superintendent of Common Schools shall proceed, with like power and in like manner as he is now required to do, where objections are made against issuing commissions to persons claiming to be elected county superintendent.

Sec. 9. That from and after the appointment of a city or borough superintendent, in any city or borough in this Commonwealth, and the proper notification of the Superintendent of Common Schools of the fact, such city or borough shall not be subject to the authority and jurisdiction of the county superintendent, in which such city or borough is located, except that, in the matter of holding the annual teachers' institutes, as provided by sections second, third, fourth and fifth of this act, in which the city or borough superintendent shall cooperate, and the quota of the annual State appropriation to said city or borough shall not be diminished, by reason of any contribution to the salaries of county superintendents, nor shall the directors of such city or borough vote in any election for county superintendents.

Sec. 10. It shall be the duty of all city or borough superintendents to take, in addition to that now required of county superintendents, to perform, within the limits of their several jurisdictions, all the duties now by law enjoined upon county superintendents, and to discharge such other duties as the bye-laws, rules and regulations of the respective boards of directors may require; and it shall be their further duty, in addition to an annual report, to report monthly to the Department of Common Schools such facts relating to their work, and the condition of the schools under their charge, as may be required by the Superintendent of Common Schools, and to attend meetings of superintendents called by said Superintendent of Common Schools.

V.—Teachers' Certificates.

Sec. 11. That after the passage of this act no teacher in this Commonwealth shall receive from a county, city or borough superintendent a certificate as a teacher, who has not a fair knowledge of reading, writing, geography, English, grammar, mental and written arithmetic, history of the United States, and the theory of teaching; nor shall such certificate be given to any person who is in the habit of using as a beverage any intoxicating drinks, and all certificates given to teachers shall set forth the branches in which those holding them have been found proficient, and indicate by suitable marks the degree of that proficiency.

Sec. 12. County, city or borough superintendents shall issue two grades of teachers' certificates, one of which shall be called a provisional certificate, and shall be given to applicants possessing a fair knowledge of the branches named in section eleven, or to those who, possessing a thorough knowledge of the branches, have little or no experience in teaching, and shall license the holder to teach in the county, city or borough where issued for one year, and which shall not be renewed without a re-examination; and the other shall be called a professional certificate, and shall be given only to those who possess a thorough knowledge of the branches above named, and who have had successful experience in teaching, and shall license the holder to teach in the county, city or borough where issued during the official term of the county, city or borough superintendent issuing it, and for one year thereafter: Provided, That all so called professional certificates heretofore issued by any county, city or borough superintendent, shall cease to be valid on the first Monday of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight, except those issued since the first Monday of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, which certificate shall be valid as long as others issued during the present term of the superintendency: Provided, That any professional certificate may be renewed by a county, city or borough superintendent without re-examination, after having fully satisfied himself, by personal observation in his or her school, of the competency and skill as a teacher of the person holding it: And provided further, That the State Superintendent of Common Schools shall cause to be prepared a new grade of teachers' certificates, to be called a permanent certificate, which shall be granted by him to practical teachers holding professional certificates, upon the recommendation of the board or boards of directors in whose employment the applicant shall have taught for the three preceding annual school terms, which shall be countersigned by the proper county, city or borough superintendent, in office when the application shall be made and approved, after examination, if they deem it necessary, by a committee of five teachers, a part of whom may be females holding permanent certificates, if there be that many holding such certificates; but if there be none, or not a sufficient number of those kinds of teachers, the committee shall be constituted wholly, or in part, as the case may be, of teachers holding professional certificates, said committee to be elected by ballot by the members of the teachers' institute, at its annual session, from the county, city or borough in which the applicant resides at the time of making the application; and such permanent certificate shall continue to be valid in such county, city or borough unless forfeited, according to the provisions of this act, and shall also entitle the holder to teach one year in any other county, city or borough, in this Commonwealth, without a re-examination, at the end of which time it may be endorsed by the proper county, city or borough superintendent, if from personal knowledge he deem it worthy held, and shall then confer upon the holder the same rank and privileges as in the county where issued; and such permanent certificate shall only be annulled upon complaint, duly proven, of incompetency, cruelty, negligence or immorality, made to the State Superintendent of Common Schools by a county, city or borough superintendent, and a committee of teachers elected and constituted as aforesaid.

6—Election of County Superintendents.

Sec. 13. That no person shall hereafter be eligible to the office of county, city or borough superintendent, in any county of this Commonwealth, who does not possess a diploma from a college legally empowered to grant literary degrees, a diploma or State certificate, issued according to law, by the authorities of a State normal school, a professional certificate from a county, city or borough superintendent of good standing, issued at least one year prior to the election, or a certificate of competency from the State Superintendent of Common Schools; nor shall such person be eligible unless he has a sound moral character, and has had successful experience in teaching within three years of the time of his election; Provided, That serving as county, city or borough superintendent shall be deemed a sufficient test of qualification; and the president and secretary of each convention of school directors held in any county, city or borough, to elect a county, city or borough superintendent, when certifying to the Superintendent of Common Schools the name and address of the person elected county, city or borough superintendent, shall at the same time state the kind and character of the evidence upon which said convention relied for proof of the eligibility of the person so elected; and the said Superintendent of Common Schools, if, upon examination of the evidence presented, it shall prove to be such as is required by this act, and no objection be made in accordance with section fourth, of the act approved April seventeenth, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, shall issue a commission to the person elected as aforesaid, as now required by law; but if, upon examination of said evidence of competency, it shall not prove to be such as is required by this act, or if objection be made in accordance with said section of the act approved April seventeenth, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, the said Superintendent of Common Schools shall appoint two competent persons, himself being the third, to examine the person so elected county, city or borough superintendent; and if upon examination, he be found duly qualified for the office, the said Superintendent of Common Schools shall issue to him the usual commission; but if not, the said Superintendent of Common Schools shall proceed in like manner in respect to the person receiving the next highest number of votes in the convention of directors, who, if found qualified, shall receive the commission aforesaid as county, city, or borough superintendent; but, if his qualifications are also found insufficient, the said Superintendent of Common Schools shall appoint, with the advice and consent of the Governor of the Commonwealth, some other person, with the required qualifications, county, city or borough superintendent for the ensuing term of such office.

VII—Repealing Section.

Sec. 14. That all acts or parts of acts, in opposition to or consistent with this act, are hereby repealed: Provided, That this act shall not apply to the city or county of Philadelphia.

BILLS ON SECOND READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration of bills on the second reading. The following were taken up and acted upon as stated: Senate bill No. 199, a further supplement to an act to incorporate the Kensington and Oxford turnpike road company, approved the 17th day of March, 1842.

The question being on agreeing to an amendment by Mr. LEE to restore the second section stricken out by committee, that in almost all these turnpike charters tolls for wagons that have wheels over a certain width are less than those that are narrow, and there cannot be a more unwise provision in a bill than that. These wagons that go over this road with these broad wheels haul twice as much, and turnpike men tell me that they do more injury in dragging out and tearing up a pike than any other vehicles. I do not know how that is myself, but I believe it is true, for the reason that they carry heavier loads. Now, all this company wants to do is to compel those vehicles that do their road more injury than any other vehicles, to pay the same amount of toll that others do. I travel up and down a pike with my market wagon, and I have to pay a certain rate of toll. Another man, with a broader wheeled wagon, that does the pike more harm in a day than I do in a month, yet he pays less than I do. All we ask is to charge them the same amount that anybody else has to pay.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, it is known, sir,

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I have something to say why broad-wheeled wagons should not pay so much toll as narrow-wheeled ones. This is a main thoroughfare for a large number of my constituents to the city of Philadelphia, and I will tell the gentleman why this company should not be allowed to raise their toll as high on broad wheels as on narrow ones. This road procured a charter of incorporation with this provision, that the rates of toll should be so much on narrow wheels and that they should be half those rates on broad wheels. Now, broad-wheeled wagons cost nearly twice as much as narrow-wheeled, do not last half as long, and cost double the amount to be kept in repair; but under the inditement held out by this company, people procured broad-wheeled wagons. I ask, would it be right now, that they should have the privilege of raising the tolls on broad-wheeled wagons as high as it is on narrow-wheeled ones?

There is also another reason, and that is that narrow wheels do not wear out the tire half as fast as broad wheels. If they had no broad wheels to haul their heavy loads they would have narrow wheels to haul them, and they would wear out the pike much faster. I think this is sufficient to say on this point.

When this bill was up, some time ago, I showed that the provisions of it give this company the privilege of increasing the rate of toll five times what is allowed in the general turnpike law, and I showed that it would be a most outrageous thing to inflict upon my people, and I do hope the good sense of this House will vote it down. I have no objection to this company being allowed to charge a rate of toll above what is allowed by the general turnpike law, and I have an amendment which I will propose. It is to the effect that they shall have the right to charge fifty per centum more than what is allowed under the general turnpike law, and with that amendment I am willing that the bill should pass. This is the amount most turnpikes are now allowed in my neighborhood.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I think it would be unfair to measure the judgment of the gentleman from Montgomery [Mr. SATTERTHWAIT] THWAIT) upon all points in his speech by what he says about broad-wheeled wagons. He says that broad-wheeled wagons cost twice as much as narrow-wheeled ones do.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. The wheels do. Mr. LEE. No, sir, the wheels do not, because there is all about a narrow wheel that there is about a broad wheel, except the fellos and the axle alone.

Mr. HEADMAN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE] says that there is the same work about a broad wheel as about a narrow wheel, with the exception of the tire and the felloe. I ask him if the tire does not cost about twice as much?

Mr. LEE. I pretend to say that it does not.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I think I was wrong in saying that the first cost was twice as much, but in the long run, broad-wheeled wagons cost twice as much. From the manner in which they are made, the fellos have to be very thin, or else they would be so monstrous heavy that they would be very cumbersome. I know, from experience, that they do not last half so long.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I know nothing about this matter, further than what turnpike men tell me, and it is the universal experience of men having charge of turnpikes that these broad-wheeled wagons wear out a turnpike faster than lighter ones. I do not pretend to say that if you put the same load on a light wagon that it would not wear out the pike so fast, but I do pretend to say that in consequence of the enormous loads they put on their wagon, such is the result, and it would be much more profitable if these broad wheels did not go on this turnpike at all, at present rates of toll.

This company simply ask what will enable them to keep up their road to accommodate the constituents of my friend from Bucks and my friend from Montgomery. They do not want a cent of dividend; they spend every dollar they get on the road, and they want this increased rate simply so that they can keep the road in decent traveling order.

Mr. HEADMAN. Mr. Speaker, from the first foundation of turnpike companies it has always been conceded that broad wheels do more good on a pike than anything else. They break up the stones and are otherwise a special benefit to them.

Mr. LEE. Does not the gentleman know that any wagon that crushes and breaks up stones on a turnpike is a disadvantage to it?

Mr. HEADMAN. No, sir.

Mr. LEE. Well, I do.

Mr. HEADMAN. The provision that has been inserted in every turnpike charter that broad wheels should be allowed to go over a turnpike for less toll than narrow wheels, from the simple fact that they do less injury.

If the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE] is willing, I am, with the gentleman from Montgomery [Mr. SATTERTHWAIT], willing that this company shall be allowed to increase their rate of toll fifty per cent. over that allowed by the general turnpike law. This turnpike was gotten up for the special benefit of those living along the line of the road, and the property along this road is now owned almost entirely by the citizens of Philadelphia. When this road was first built it was done by the subscription of farmers along the line of the road, and now I do not see why these men who have bought up this stock at mere nominal price should now ask for an increase of toll on the road.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment to the amendment to provide that this company shall be authorized to raise their rates of toll to fifty per cent. above what is allowed by the general turnpike law of 1849.

I remember a few weeks ago a bill came in from the Senate, regulating the rate of toll on a turnpike in Allegheny county that had made no dividend in three years, allowing them to make this increase of fifty per cent. over the rate established by the general turnpike law, and the members from Allegheny should now allow this bill to pass in that way.

The effect, if this bill passes, allowing the rate of toll proposed by the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE], the charge for a four horse wagon will be sixty-four cents, which will amount to one dollar and twenty-eight cents both ways, just over this eight miles of road. Now, I ask the members from Philadelphia if they are willing that this additional tax should be put on the citizens of Philadelphia? For they will have to pay that much for the produce that is brought over that road. This bill would be very unjust, not only to the people of my neighborhood, but it would be a very serious injury to other turnpikes connected with this road. It would have the effect of driving all travel away. It would be, in fact, utter ruin to other turnpikes connected with this road.

The bill being again before the House, and the question on the bill.

It was

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended, the bill read a third time by its title, and the question being,

Shall the bill pass?

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call the attention of the House to the fact, that this makes an innovation upon the general school system that ought not to be. I do not consider this a question that is to be taken in the light of a personal favor to any member upon this floor. If it were, I would vote for the bill. But if the members of this House are ready to introduce such an anomaly into the present school system, thereby interrupting the general harmony, I think it is a matter of serious moment. We are not voting upon his question merely as a matter of personal friendship to those that desire the bill; but as a question that is much higher, and one that affects the entire common school system.

Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speakers, I have no opposition to this bill as a bill for Bradford county; but I do oppose the inauguration of this way of legislating in reference to the school system. As this would establish a precedent for action in the future, I do hope that it will be voted down.

Mr. WEBB. Mr. Speaker, those who are opposed to the passage of this bill have a very strange way of expressing themselves. This is a local matter, and I hope it will be agreed to.

Mr. DAY. Mr. Speaker, I shall be compelled to give my vote against this bill. By the amendment of the gentleman from Beaver [Mr. QUAY] some of my constituents become interested in it. I would be exceedingly gratified to vote for it, if I could do it with any degree of consistency. But it seems to me that this bill is an unjustifiable innovation upon our school system, and its friends have not shown that the proposed change were an improvement. It is at best but mere experiment, and I fear the principle will prove dangerous.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I have only to say that the citizens of Ohio township have asked that a bill of this kind shall be passed. They think that it will be for the interest of the schools in that township. The gentleman from Washington [Mr. DAY], in voting against this bill, will, therefore, indirectly vote in opposition to the interests of his constituents.

Mr. DAY. Mr. Speaker, I consider that my constituents are the citizens of this State on this question.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, the school law is something of a new thing, and it has not attained such perfection yet that it is out of character altogether to alter it in any respect. I think the danger the opponents to this bill apprehend will not be found to be true, unless it works well; and if it does work well, I do not see how it will be to the disadvantage of the general school law.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I did not intend to say a word on this subject, but from the evident disposition of the House, I think it is due to myself to at least call their attention to the importance of the bill which is now before them. It strikes my mind, sir, as a very important step, which this House is about to take. I have no objection to Bradford county having what they desire; but, sir, I would rather vote for the proposition to have it extend all over the State, than to vote for it for Bradford county, simply because I believe it is a question which interests the whole Commonwealth, and not Bradford county alone.

Now, sir, I presume every gentleman here has experienced the annoyance of this local legislation. We are called upon here, day after day, to pass local bills; and this is just the opening wedge, and it is just such bills as this that has produced about half this local legislation. If we once commence here, we will soon have half a dozen counties here asking that they shall be treated in the same way; and another year it will be followed up by others. It is the opening wedge to open up the school law in this manner. I ask this House to pause and consider what they are here attempting to do.

I apprehend that there is not a school district in this Commonwealth that cannot find some fault with the school law. I know in my own county it does not satisfy every district, and they have just as much right to come here and ask that the general law shall be changed in the particular that does not please them, as the people of Bradford county to ask that it shall be changed in this particular. We must bear in mind that this school system is a general system, intended for the benefit of the whole State; and while it may act oppressively, and it will, in certain sections, they must abide by it, and not ask each particular locality to be relieved from the operations of that particular portion which is somewhat oppressive upon them. Therefore, I do not consider that in objecting to this bill, I am objecting to the local legislation of the gentleman from Bradford.

It strikes my mind that it is upon precisely the same principle as those bills that have been here, asking that particular crimes shall be punished in particular counties, differently from what they are punished all over the Commonwealth. There is a general law in reference to larceny all over the Commonwealth, and every man who commits it within the borders should be punished in the same way. So it is in reference to this question; and common schools should be subject to the same system from the east to the west, and from the north to the south. This is the only danger that I see in it. It is a general principle. I do not know that I would be in favor of it, if it was proposed as a general principle to extend all over the State. But the danger I see is in commencing here in this manner. If we want to change the school system, let us change it so as to have the system operate alike all over the State.

Mr. WEBB. Mr. Speaker, we do not desire to change the school system. We are not asking that the system shall work differ-ently in one section than in another. We are only asking that a lesser number of men shall discharge the duties of directors. Take a little borough, and it has got to have six directors. Take a township of five or six miles square, and it has but six directors. All we ask is, that three persons shall do this work through the same machinery—through its president and secretary—that the very same machinery shall be kept in existence and operation; but the duty is to be performed by three, and not by six men. There is not a particle of innovation upon the system. We ask the privilege of paying the men that perform this labor for us. Now, gentlemen here say: You come here and ask for larger appropriations—ask that we should pass an appropriation of six hundred thousand dollars for the common schools of this State. Apply that to the township in which I live. Suppose that the appropriation should be made, and we would get out of that about three hundred dollars. We have then got to lay a local tax sufficient to make up the sum of two hundred dollars to go to keep up seventeen schools in the township. Now, cannot we pay directors out of our pockets, and still not be charged with an innovation upon the system? The innovation is, that we do not change its direction, but its operations. It is no more a change of the system than it would be to reduce the number of members of this House to forty and the number in the other branch to seventeen. The principle of representation would still be the same.

Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, does not the general school law provide that each school district shall have six directors; and does not the general school law provide that they shall not be paid for their services?

Mr. WEBB. Mr. Speaker, it provides that the secretary may be paid; and it states here that this thing is done in our township, that the secretary is paid, and that he is an officer that cannot possibly be dispensed with by the board. Visiting the schools, and everything of that kind, is done by this one man. What we ask, then, is, that the number be reduced to three, and that we shall have the privilege of paying them for their services.

There is not a man in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania who is a stronger and more ardent supporter of the school law than our county superintendent. He has written several letters here on this question, and he says that if the school system has arrived at a state of perfection, do not amend it; but, if not, let us make some improvements in it.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, I am sorry to take up the time of the House with any remarks; but I feel that I would not be doing my duty as a representative here, if I did not raise my voice against this kind of legislation. I will say, sir, that this bill was long and carefully considered in the Committee on Education. It was considered in all its details and bearings by that committee, with the strongest desire on the part of the committee to accommodate the gentleman representing that particular county, if it had been in our power so to do. It was only at the earnest solicitation of gentlemen on that committee asking that it be reported to the House, in order that it might be discussed, and acted upon, that it was reported. It was before this House, and was fairly, openly and ably discussed upon this floor, and the decision of the House condemned it. It received, I supposed, its just quies at the hands of this House this morning. I had no idea that this House would be set up to reconsider this bill after the blow it received this morning.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman allow himself to be interrupted? Mr. ARMSTRONG. Yes, sir.

Mr. COLLINS. I would like to know if the gentleman meant any personal reflections?

Mr. ARMSTRONG. No, sir; I merely stated what are the facts. When the bill was in committee, it was there discussed at length, and it was permitted to come into the House merely with the understanding that it was to be laid before the House for discussion. It received that discussion this forenoon, and it was laid aside by a very decided vote of this House. It was defeated, and I had no idea that it was to be brought up again this afternoon, in this manner, and I should be doing myself and my constituents an injustice if I did not raise my voice against this manner of doing business. I oppose this as I would oppose a general bill. I must protest against this innovation upon a general system. Allow this bill to pass, next year they may come and ask us to do away with the system in their county altogether. We know not what the next step may be, and it becomes us as guardians of the educational interests of the State to guard well against all these encroachments that are attempted to be made upon it. I feel that I should be unjust to the people of this Commonwealth, as a representative, if I failed to raise my voice against this innovation upon what I conceive to be the noblest institution of this great State.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I hope, if the people of those districts desire this measure, that it will be granted to them. I consider the objection made to it the most frivolous I have ever heard. The gentleman from Chester [Mr. Collins] accuses as though we had no special laws at all, when we are making special laws of this kind every day. The gentleman from Chester, only a short time since, went out of his way I think a good deal to advocate the passage of a special law to make our county an exception from the general law for the collection of taxes—a matter just as important to be general in its operations as this matter. I do not see why there is not just as good a reason in this case to allow these people who want this special act to have it. I have long been of the opinion that there should be a salary change—that the number of school directors should be reduced, and that they should be paid for their services. I know that the system is not perfect, and I was glad when I heard these people were asking for this, so that it might be tried, and the people might see whether it would be of real benefit or not. I hope they will be allowed to try the experiment.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman from Chester did wrong in asking for Montgomery that it is alleged he did, this House very properly should have a salary change—that the number of school directors should be reduced, and that they should be paid for their services. I know that the system is not perfect, and I was glad when I heard these people were asking for this, so that it might be tried, and the people might see whether it would be of real benefit or not. I hope they will be allowed to try the experiment.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. In that case our people did not ask for it, whereas the people to be affected in this case do ask for it, which makes all the difference in the world.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, I dislike very much to consume the time of this House, but I have a word or two to say on this question. I think, Mr. Speaker, that this bill does strike at our school system—that it is an innovation, if we attempt to experiment in this way. Because, it is merely for the sake of experiment, and very little good will result from it. I do not know the condition of the school system in that county; but if it is not well carried out, I do not think it can be attributed to the fact that there are too many directors. In most townships there are at least six schools, which makes a director to each school, and I think, sir, that six directors are not too many for any township in this State.

Mr. KENNEY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say a few words, rather as a personal explanation than as an argument. The gentleman from Lancaster [Mr. AGASSHOFF] stated that this matter occupied a long time before the committee, and received its serious consideration; which, I think, is not quite so. It occupied but a short space of time. There was a request made by a member of that committee, that it should come before the House; and it was not discussed before that committee very earnestly or ardently. It was permitted to come before the House, where it has occupied more time than I had desired.

One word in regard to the remarks of the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL]. He has made us to think that, if this bill is passed in another year the people would be clamorous for changes in other counties. In reply, I would ask, what is our business here but to legislate for the people? If they come here asking for changes, it is our duty to give them those changes; and if we should do no business but what the people ask for, I apprehend we would be all right. I apprehend that we are making some changes that the people have been asking for.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, if these is any reason why this changeshould be made in Bradford county, or in any other county, I would like to hear it. Suppose the gentleman from Bradford should come here and ask that at our general election there should be only one judge and one inspector, and that they should be paid double what they are now paid. Would this Legislature consider any such proposition? No, sir. Would it not be just as just to ask for a change in the one case as in the other? They say that it will not interfere with the general law. But the history of legislation shows that whenever you commence to attack a general law in one respect, that the whole law will go to pieces. If the school directors of Bradford county receive no pay, what are the school directors of all other counties are entitled to pay, and the final result will be, that we will have to pay them, and I do say that if you pay school directors, you will find a set of men asking for the position merely for the pay.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know of the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY] whether that argument would not apply to the members of the Legislature as well as to school directors?

Mr. M'CREARY. If the gentleman from Bradford should come here and ask that they should have no school directors as Erie should have, and that they should receive no such pay, I would oppose any such proposition. The gentlemen from Bradford do not say that they cannot get men to perform the services of school directors without paying them. If they cannot, it is the fault of the people, and not of the law. They say that the law is defective. If it is, let us cure the defect in a general, and not in a partial manner. Let us not attempt to cure a sore on one side, and let the balance go without any attention at all. I do object to this bill, because it looks upon it as breaking open a general system. If there are defects, let us correct them, so far as we can, as a whole. If you make the office of school director a salaried office, you will find a set of men all over the country who will seek the office for the sole purpose of receiving the pay.

As the law now stands the most intelligent and enterprising citizens are the men that strive for the position of directors, while the office of constable and other offices may go begging. I hope this bill will not receive the sanction of this House.

Mr. KINNEY. Mr. Speaker, every year

we have proposed changes in our school system, and I consider that very proper, because it is an evidence of the principle of progress. But generally these changes originated in the department, and now, because this originates in the ranks of the people, it is considered wrong. That is the plain difference.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the gentleman from Bradford [Mr. KINNEY], I would say that I have never witnessed any change in the school system that is local in its application, that was asked for by the department. This is one of the many objections to this bill, that it is local in its nature. I think this kind of local legislation is very improper and should not receive the sanction of this House.

The question being on the final passage of the bill, The yeas and nays were required by Mr. ARMSTRONG and Mr. RICHARDS, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Allen, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Cameron, Chalfant, Chase, Collins, Craig, Davis, Donohugh, Fogel, Harrison, Harner, Heltzel, Hoffman, Hood, Humphrey, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Markley, Marks, Mullin, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Rhoads, Ronsh, Satterthwait, Sabers, Webb, Whann, Wharton, Wingard, Woodgard and Wright—46.

NAYS—Messrs. Armstrong, Barrington, Bacon, Boyd, Brown, Calvin, Chadwick, Colville, Day, De Haven, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gordon, Headman, Kimmell, Lee, Leech, Linton, M'Creary, Maish, Mann, Meclung, Meily, Meyers, Pennypacker, Peter, Richards, Roath, Robinson, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Waddell, Weller, Wilson, Worrall and Glass, Speaker—88.

So the question was determined in the affirmative, and the bill

Passed finally.

The next bill was House bill No. 1611, a further supplement to an act entitled An act for regulating the measurement of corn and salt, imported into the port of Philadelphia, approved on the 22d day of September, 1785.

The question being on the bill,

It was

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended, the bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.

The next bill was

House bill No. 584, a supplement to an act for incorporating the German Reform Congregation in the borough of Reading, in the county of Berks, enacted the 20th day of August, in the year of our Lord 1786.

The question being on agreeing to the bill, Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I understand that there are a large number of people who have their friends interred in that ground that are very much opposed to any disturbance of them. If that be so, I think this bill ought not to pass.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, this is a matter in which I have no personal interest at all. I will simply make a statement of facts to the House, and then ask the House to exercise its own intelligent judgment on this question. In the early part of the session a bill was sent to me to authorize the sale of this graveyard. I knew there would be objections to it, and I, therefore, kept the bill in my possession, in order to give those opposed to it an opportunity to remonstrate against its passage. The bill was reported from the Committee on Corporations before the parties opposed to it seemed to have received notice of its presentation here, and the members from Berks agreed that it should be re-committed, in order that all parties interested might have an opportunity of being heard.

As the members of the congregation were divided in sentiment in regard to this question, some in favor and others opposed to the sale of the graveyard, I proposed an amendment which referred the question back to the congregation for them to decide themselves. With that amendment I conceive the bill to be in the right. It was reported back to the House from the Judiciary Committee, and reached a second reading, and has been for a whole month in that condition. As I said before, the congregation is divided in opinion on this subject; and the amendment that I proposed provides that after the bill passed, the question shall be referred back to the congregation for them to decide. I have no interest in the passage or defeat of the bill, and I do not wish to say anything that will influence a decision of the House one way or the other. I believe that both parties have been here, that the measure has been privately discussed, and that many of the members are familiar with its provisions. I wish the bill to stand upon its own merits, and I hope the house will exercise its own intelligent judgment in reference to passing it.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman from Berks [Mr. JONES] if there is not a controversy now going on in the courts of that county in reference to this measure?

Mr. JONES. I believe that there is not a controversy any longer in the courts. The consistency of this congregation authorized the removal of these bodies. The opponents of the sale of the church-yard applied for an injunction. An injunction was granted; and I believe, after a more careful examination of their charter, that they deemed they had no right, under that charter, to sell the graveyard, and they, therefore, ask this Legislature to pass a bill authorizing them to do so.

Mr. WADDELL. Has that proceeding in court been prosecuted to the end, or is it lying dormant?

Mr. JONES. It is lying dormant, I believe. But, I believe all the parties are satisfied that they have no authority to sell, without an act of Assembly conferring that right.

Mr. BARTON. Mr. Speaker, I have but a word or two to say in reference to this bill. I held in my hand a large number of remonstrances from the members of the German Reformed church, of Reading, against the passage of this act. There was a committee appeared before the Local Judiciary Committee objecting to the passage of this bill, now under consideration; and they earnestly urged the committee to negative the bill. They brought remonstrances, signed, I believe, to the number of two hundred and sixty or seventy against the bill. The object in selling this graveyard, belonging to the church there, it is alleged, is for the purpose of raising money to enable them to build an additional church. It was stated by the gentleman who appeared before the Committee of Local Judiciary that there can be a sufficient amount of money raised to build the church without selling this graveyard. This is an old graveyard. People have been buried there for more than a century, and there is a strong feeling, the committee was informed, against the removal of the bodies from this burial ground. The committee, I think, more from the representation of the gentleman from Berks [Mr. JONES] than anything else, reported the bill with the amendment proposed; and with the favorable feeling which I have toward the gentleman himself, and which the committee felt towards him, we agreed to attach the amendment. But we did not commit ourselves to the support of the bill; and I feel compelled at this time to vote against the bill, upon the ground that the members of the congregation are seriously opposed to it.

Mr. RHOADS. Mr. Speaker, when this bill was read in place by my colleague [Mr. JONES], it was referred, by the Speaker, to the Committee on Corporations, of which I am a member. We had the bill up before the committee and reported it to the House without amendment. After the people in Reading found it out, they sent a committee here, and we were asked to have it recommended in order that they might be heard. I made the motion and it was recommitted to the Committee on Local Judiciary, with the understanding that in case they reported the bill favorably it should be in a way that would be satisfactory.

The committee sent up from Reading went before the committee with their remonstrances, and the committee agreed to report the bill with this amendment, and I think with this amendment it ought to pass. I shall, therefore, vote for the bill with the amendment.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I said all I intended to say on this bill the other day. I hope the bill will not pass. Some of my constituents are interested in it, having buried some of their ancestors three years ago; and they desire that the graveyard shall remain as it is.

The question being on agreeing to the bill, The yeas and nays were required Mr. JONES and Mr. PENNYPACKER, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyle, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Davis, Fogel, Harner, Jones, Linton, Long, M'Pherrin, Markley, Meyers, Pillow, Rhoads, Tharp and Westbrook—18.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barton, Boyd, Calvin, Chadwick, Colville, Day, DeHaven, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Harbison, Hoffman, Hood, Humphrey, Hunt, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Koon, Lee, M'Creary, M'Kee, Mann, Marks, Meily, Mullin, Pennypacker, Quay, Richards, Roath, Sharples, Shuman, Stacey, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—50.

So the question was determined in the negative.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE.

Mr. WADDELL, from the committee appointed to consider the differences between the two Houses upon House bill No. 533, entitled An act regulating interest on public accounts, have agreed to recommend that the Senate recede from its amendments.

(Signed)

WM. B. WADDELL,
JOHN S. MARK,
W. P. JENKS,
House Committee.
GEO. CONNELL,
JAMES L. GRAHAM,
Senate Committee.

Said report was twice read, considered and Agreed to, and Ordered, that the Clerk inform the Senate of the same.

The next bill was House bill No. 860, an act relating to the publication of local, general and private laws, and legal advertisements in the several counties of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The question being on agreeing to the fourth section,

Mr. KURTZ. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by inserting in the fifth line, before the words "in one newspaper," the words "not less than," and by adding the following: "And advertise in one German newspaper, if such there be printed."

The question being on the amendment of Mr. KURTZ,
It was

Agreed to.
Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by inserting the following: "And in the two German newspapers having the largest circulation in the county of Berks."

The question being on the amendment of Mr. JONES,

It was

Agreed to.
The question recurring on the section as amended,

It was

Agreed to.
The fifth section was read.

The question being on the section,
Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to hear some gentleman explain why the general appropriation bill should not be printed.

There is no other bill of so much interest to the people as this one.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, the object of this bill is to let the people of the State have some knowledge of the laws we are passing at as little expense as possible.

The general appropriation bill is a bill of immense length, and it would cost a good deal to have it printed according to the provisions of this bill. It would require two or three issues of some papers to print it. They doubtless would give a synopsis of the bill and print in full the portions pertaining to their particular locality as a matter of news. But what we want is that the people shall have a knowledge of the laws under which they are acting.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by excepting Philadelphia county from the provisions of the bill. I am not aware of any person that wants to put on Philadelphia this additional expense. The laws that are of interest to the people of Philadelphia are generally published in the city papers. This bill would add a tax of probably fifty thousand dollars that is unnecessary.

Mr. HARBISON. Mr. Speaker, I move to have Lawrence county excepted from the provisions of the bill.

Mr. ROATH. Mr. Speaker, I move to have Lancaster county excepted from the provisions of the bill.

Mr. CHADWICK. Mr. Speaker, I move that Allegheny county be excepted from the provisions of the bill.

Mr. MECHLING. Mr. Speaker, I move to have Armstrong county excepted from the provisions of the bill.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I move the indefinite postponement of the further consideration of the bill.

The question being on the motion of Mr. DAVIS to indefinitely postpone the further consideration of the bill,

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I trust this bill may pass, so that we will not make laws and keep the people in ignorance of them.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I have been informed that if these general laws are published as this act requires, it will cost a hundred thousand dollars. I have made no estimate myself, but such it has been informed would be the expense.

The question being on the motion of Mr. DAVIS to indefinitely postpone the further consideration of the bill,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. CHALFANT and Mr. M'CREARY, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Brennan, Cameron, Chadwick, Colville, Davis, DeHaven, Donohugh, Freeborn, Harbison, Hood, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Koon, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Markley, Marks, Mechling, Mullin, Pennypacker, Peter, Pillow, Richards, Roath, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Webb, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Worrall and Glass, Speaker—39.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Barrington, Barton, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brown, Calvin, Chalfant, Chase, Collins, Craig, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hoffman, Humphrey, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Kinney, Kline, Kurtz, Lee, Leech, Linton, Long, M'Creary, Mann, Meily, Meyers, Quay, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Shuman, Wallace, Weller, Westbrook, Wingard, Woodward and Wright—46.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The question recurring on the amendment to except the counties of Philadelphia, Allegheny, Lawrence, Lancaster and Armstrong from the provisions of the bill,

Mr. W'ANN moved that Venango county be excepted.

Mr. STUMBAUGH moved that Franklin county be excepted.

Mr. ALLEN moved that Warren county be excepted.

Mr. BARTON moved that Delaware county be excepted.

Mr. KINNEY moved that Bradford county be excepted.

Mr. CAMERON moved that Susquehanna county be excepted.

Mr. MEILY moved that Lebanon county be excepted.

Mr. KENNEDY moved that Wyoming county be excepted.

Mr. PENNYPACKER moved that Chester county be excepted.

Mr. COLLINS moved that Schuylkill county be excepted.

Mr. KLING moved that Lehigh county be excepted.

Mr. LONG moved that Cumberland county be excepted.

Mr. LINTON moved that Cambria county be excepted.

Mr. HEADMAN moved that Bucks county be excepted.

The question being on the amendment to except the several counties mentioned,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. JONES and Mr. COLLINS, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barrington, Barton, Calvin, Cameron, Chadwick, Colville, Davis, DeHaven, Donohugh, Espy, Fogel, Freeborn, Harbison, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kline, Koon, Lee, M'Henry, Mann, Marks, Mechling, Meily, Mullin, Pennypacker, Peter, Quigley, Roath, Satterthwait, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Whann, Wharton, Wingard, Worrall and Glass, Speaker—47.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Brown, Chalfant, Chase, Collins, Craig, Day, Ewing, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hoffman, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Kinney, Kurtz, Leech, Linton, Long, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Markley, Meyers, Pillow, Quay, Rhoads, Richards, Robinson, Roush, Shuman, Tharp, Weller, Westbrook, Woodward and Wright—40.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The question recurring on the section as amended,

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by adding the following proviso:

"Provided further, That no part of the cost of publishing such laws shall be paid by the Commonwealth."

The question being on the amendment of Mr. WADDELL,

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, gentlemen who have not had their counties exempt from the provisions of this bill will observe the necessity of sustaining this amendment, for the reason that many counties are exempt from the publication of these laws, but if the Commonwealth is to pay the expense those counties exempted will have to pay their share of the expense the same as the others.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I hope the amendment will be adopted. I would like it if the House could be informed what the expense of carrying out the provisions of this bill would be. I have been very credibly informed that the Senate has just discovered that the general appropriation bill will take more money out of the treasury than there is in it, without taking a portion of the sinking fund. I believe they are now reconsidering the bill so as to cut it down that it may come within the amount in the treasury. Now, without going to the sinking fund, we will not have the money to pay the expense of carrying out this bill. We cannot afford it, I say; and I therefore hope the amendment will be adopted.

The question being on the amendment of Mr. WADDELL,

It was

Agreed to.

The question recurring on the section as amended,

It was

Not agreed to.

The question being on the title,

It was

Not agreed to.

The question being, Shall the bill be transcribed for a third reading?

It was

Not agreed to.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker I move a suspension of the rules for the purpose of considering Senate Bill No. 413, an act to regulate the carriage of baggage by railroad companies, and to prescribe the duties and obligations of companies and passengers thereto.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The bill being before the House, and the question on agreeing to the first section.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker I move to amend by striking out all after the word "railroad" to the word "shall" in the fourth line, i. e. strike out the words "who shall have paid fare;" and in the seventh line by striking out the words "without additional charge above passage fare."

The question being on the amendment of Mr. BOYLE,

It was

Agreed to.

The question being on the section as amended,

It was

Agreed to.

The remaining sections of the bill were agreed to without amendment.

The rules were suspended, the bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I move a suspension of the rules for the purpose of considering Senate bill No. 817, an act to authorize the Coal Mill and Upper St. Clair turnpike and plank road company to increase their tolls.

The question being on the motion of Mr. WADDELL,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. QUIGLEY and Mr. MULLIN, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adair, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Clark, Davis, Day, De Haven, Denning, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerna, Kimmel, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Creary, M'Kee, Mann, Mechling, Meily, Pennypacker, Peter, Pillow, Quay Richards, Reath, Sharples, Shuman, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall and Glass, Speaker—58.

NAYS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Heitzel, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Joseph, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Maiah, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Tharp and Westbrook—37.

So the question was determined in the negative—two-thirds not having voted in the affirmative.

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker, I move that the orders of the day be suspended, for the purpose of considering,

Senate Bill No. 674, an act to transfer the counties of Monroe, Pike Wayne, Susannah, Bradford, Wyoming, Luzerne and Carbon, and add the same to the Northern District of the Supreme Court.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I call for a division of the question.

The question being on the first division, which involved a suspension of the rules generally,

It was

Not agreed to.

Mr. RHOADS. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to proceed to the consideration of Senate bill No. 858, a further supplement to an act relating to the elections of the Commonwealth, approved July 2, 1859.

Objection was made.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn.

The question being on the motion of Mr. GREGORY,

It was Agreed to, and

The SPEAKER declared the House adjourned until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

SENATE.

TEUESDAY, April 9, 1867.

The Senate met and was called to order at 10 A. M. by the SPEAKER.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. Mr. Bailey. On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the reading of the Journal of yesterday was dispensed with.

SPEAKER'S TABLE.

The SPEAKER presented the remonstrance of the preachers' meeting of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of the city of Philadelphia, against the passage of an act proposing to tax churches whose income exceeds two thousand five hundred dollars.

Laid on the table.

The SPEAKER also presented the memorial of the rector, wardens and vestrymen of Grace Church (Protestant Episcopal), of Philadelphia, in opposition to the passage of the same bill.

Laid on the table.

RESOLUTION.

Mr. CONNELL offered the following resolution, which was twice read:

Resolved, if the House of Representatives concur, that the ninth joint rule be suspended so far as regards the transmission of Senate bills passed at the session of the 8th instant.

The resolution was adopted.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, returned bill from the Senate numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 1117, a supplement to the act to incorporate the Norris Park mining company, approved March 14th, 1865, authorizing said company to borrow money.

With information that the House of Representatives has passed the same without amendments.

He also returned bill from the Senate numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 199, a further supplement to an act, entitled An act to incorporate the Kensington and Oxford turnpike road company, approved the 17th day of March, 1842.

With information that the House of Representatives has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the Senate is required.

On motion of Mr. ROYER,

Said amendments were twice read and concurred in.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, informed that the House of Representatives has non-concurred in the amendments made the Senate to bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 828, an act to provide for the ordinary expenses of the Government, and other general and special appropriations.

And has appointed Messrs. WADELL, M'KEE and JOSEPHS a committee of conference to confer with a similar committee on the part of the Senate (should the Senate appoint such a committee), upon the subject of the differences existing between the two Houses on said bill.

Mr. CONNELL moved that the Senate insist upon its amendments, non-concurred in by the House of Representatives, and that a committee of conference be appointed to confer with a similar committee already appointed by the House of Representatives.

The motion was

Agreed to.

Ordered, That Messrs. CONNELL, GRAHAM and M'CANDBLESS be the committee on the part of the Senate.

He also informed that the House of Representatives insists upon its amendments non-concurred in by the Senate to bill from the Senate numbered and entitled as follows, viz: No. 413, an act to regulate the carriage of baggage by railroad companies, and to prescribe the duties and obligations of carriers and passengers in relation thereto.

And has appointed Messrs. LEE, WESTBROOK and WATT a committee of conference to confer with a similar committee from the Senate (should the Senate appoint such a committee), upon the subject of the differences existing between the two Houses on said bill.

Said amendments having been again read, Mr. RIDGWAY moved that the Senate insist upon its non-concurrence in the amendments of the House of Representatives to said bill, and that a committee of conference be appointed to confer with a similar committee of the House of Representatives, already appointed, upon the subject.

The motion was

Agreed to.

Ordered, That Messrs. RIDGWAY, WORTHINGTON and DONOVAN be the committee on the part of the Senate.

He also informed that the House of Representatives adheres to its amendments, non-concurred in by the Senate, to bill from the Senate No. 275, entitled An act to provide an associate law judge of the several courts in the Twenty-first judicial district.

He also returned bills from the Senate numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

Senate bill No. 1654, a supplement to an act incorporating the Caledonia iron, lead and railroad company, approved March 23d, A. D. 1867.

No. 1151, a further supplement to an act to incorporate the Pennsylvania railroad company, approved April thirteenth, Anno Domini one thousand eight and forty-six, authorizing the Pennsylvania railroad company to construct additional railroad tracks, sidings, depots, workshops, and other appendances, along, adjoining or contiguous to their own line of railroad, and the railroads now owned and leased, or hereafter to be owned and leased by them, and to straighten and improve the same, and to acquire the property upon which to construct the same, paying therefor the value of property to be used or occupied.

With information that the House of Representatives has passed the same without amendment.

He also returned bills numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 1118, an act to authorize the Warren and Franklin railroad company to construct branch roads, and to provide means for moving oil intended for transportation.

With information that the House of Representatives has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

On motion of Mr. BROWN (Mercer), said amendments were twice read and concurred in.

TWENTY-FIRST JUDICIAL DISTRICT.

The House, having adhered to its amendments non-concurred in by the Senate to bill entitled An act to provide an associate law judge of the several courts the Twenty-first judicial district,

Mr. FISHER moved that the Senate recede from its non-concurrence.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. RIDGWAY and Mr. FISHER, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingfeld, Brown (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, M'Conaghy, Ridgway, Royer, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—20.

NAYS—Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Donovan,

Glatz, James, M' Candless, Randall, Schall, Seairight, Wallace and Walls—11.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

During the call, Mr. LAXDON said: Mr. Speaker, allow me one word in explanation of my vote. A man who is prepared to make laws that must necessarily regulate the conduct of other men should always have a mind of his own, and act understandingly. Last evening, when this bill was read, I directed my attention to it; I had never seen it before, and knew nothing of its provisions. I confess it appeared to me to be rough; I said nothing and consequently voted against it. But since that I have looked into it and I still think it to be rough. But there seems to be a desire to pass this bill and that an extreme case demands an extreme remedy, and to some extent it yield my own convictions to men around me and vote "aye."

Passed finally.

No. 1410, an act for the payment of Enos C. Renner, contestant for the seat of Michael Mullin.

Mr. DONOVAN. Mr. Speaker, I hope this bill will not pass. The sitting member here was compelled to bring his mother here, who is sixty or seventy years of age, in the dead of winter. The gentleman contested the election of the sitting member, on the ground that he was not a citizen.

Mr. M'CANDESS said he hoped the bill would not pass; that there was no reason for contesting the seat of the sitting member.

Mr. CONNELL. Mr. Speaker, I hope this bill will pass. Mr. Benn was induced to contest this seat, and after having an investigation in the House, it was decided against him. He was advised by counsel to contest it, and that he failed was his misfortune, and not his fault. Why my Democratic friends do not want to compensate this man I do not know, but they voted four hundred dollars to the gentleman who was ousted by Mr. M'CONAUGHY. When Democrats have contested seats, on good grounds, we have always voted the compensation.

Mr. DONOVAN. His counsel asked for a postponement of the case, in order to produce other testimony, which was never produced. If we pass this, we will have gentle men, here contesting seats every year, for the purpose of getting this money.

Mr. CONNELL. After the very decided expression of opinion in that district, it was his duty to come here and insist upon the contest. He could not have done less; I say he should be paid.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, there is a principle in this thing. Supposing that it was a contested seat in the Senate, and we should pass a bill in the Senate for payment, and the other House should refuse, the other House is made the exclusive judge of its own elections, and we ought to defer to them.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me this is a private calendar, and this is a bill to take money out of the Treasury, and I hope it will be laid over.

Mr. CONNELL. There are fifty bills on the calendar that take money out of the Treasury.

Mr. BIGHAM. It is too late now to raise that question.

Mr. M'CANDESS. Mr. Speaker, if this is not to be defeated upon a technicality, I think it should be defeated upon its merits. My colleagues, Messrs. RIDGWAY and CONNELL, occupied the entire day yesterday in trying to save money to the Treasury, and now, without a particle of right of any kind, they insist upon thrusting the hands of this man into the Treasury, and taking three or four hundred dollars out of it.

Mr. CONNELL. Well, we think he is entitled to it.

Mr. DONOVAN. If this was an act of charity I would put my hands into my pockets as deep as any one. He has put the sitting member to great inconvenience by bringing his mother here to prove where he was born, and now asks us to pay him four hundred dollars for that. It will be a bad precedent, and you will have to pay more of them next winter.

Mr. RIDGWAY. Mr. Speaker, Mr. Renner was engaged in a very good work, and in a work in which I am willing to expend money. He was engaged in spending money to keep Democrats out of the Legislature.

Mr. WORTHINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I have no doubts about the propriety of this bill. One of the committee told me it was a fair case which should be paid; it was really a question whether this person was a citizen or not; therefore it was a question worthy of investigation, and it was very narrowly proved that he was a citizen. Even his mother was in doubt at first whether he was born here or on the seas.

Mr. DONOVAN. The gentleman is certainly misinformed. I heard every particle of the evidence.

Mr. M'CANDESS. I move to amend by adding three hundred dollars for MICHAEL MULLIN, the sitting member.

The SPEAKER. That is not in order; Mr. MULLIN did not contest the election.

Mr. M'CANDESS. He had expenses growing out of this contest.

Mr. CONNELL. The House, in order to remunerate Mr. MULLIN, fixed the salary of the members at fifteen hundred dollars, and that will pay him—when he gets it.

Mr. M'CANDESS. I do not want the time to come when decayed politicians can come to the Legislature and take money out of the public treasury.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I think the argument of the Senate from Philadelphia [Mr. RIDGWAY] should decide this question without any further talk.

The bill was read a third time and Passed finally.

No. 1320, an act for the relief of Dr. Herman B. Linton, a surgeon of the Thirty-eighth regiment, Pennsylvania infantry volunteers.

pany to hold additional land and construct branch railroads.

With information that the House of Representatives has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

Said amendments were read the first time.

He also informed that the House of Representatives has adopted the report of the committee of conference appointed to confer upon the subject of the differences existing between the two Houses on Senate bill No. 190, entitled An act incorporating the Township Line road company, fixing the terminus and regulating tolls on said road.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE.

Mr. SHOEMAKER, from the committee of conference appointed by the Senate and House of Representatives, upon the differences existing between the two Houses in relation to House bill No. 246, entitled An act for the better and more impartial selections of persons to serve as jurors in each of the counties of the Commonwealth, make report that they have agreed to recommend to their respective Houses the following, viz:

That the bill be amended by inserting after the word "commissioners," in the first line, second section, the words "president judge or additional law judge of the respective district, or a majority of them;" and in the fourth line, same section, after the word "select" insert the word "alternately;" also, in the same line, strike out the words "male taxable citizens," and insert in lieu thereof the words "qualified electors;" and also, by striking out all after the word "year," in the eighth line of the second section, so as to include the words "jurors" in the fifteenth line of the section; also, in the fifteenth line, same section, after the word "commissioners," insert the words "president judge or additional law judge, or a majority of them;" and that the two Houses concur in the bill as amended by the Senate with the above amendments.

On motion of Mr. SHOEMAKER, the resolution was read a second time, and

Passed finally.

The bill, as passed finally, reads as follows: AS ACT for the better and more impartial selection of persons to serve as jurors in each of the counties of this Commonwealth.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That at the general election to be held on the second Tuesday of October, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, and triennially thereafter, at such election, the qualified electors of the several counties of the Commonwealth shall select, in the manner now provided by law for the election of other county officers, two sober, intelligent and judicious persons to serve as jury commissioners in each of said counties, for the period of three years ensuing their election, but the same person or persons shall not be eligible for re-election more than once in any period of six years: Provided, That each of said qualified electors shall vote for one person only as jury commissioner, and the two persons having the greatest number of votes for jury commissioner shall be duly elected jury commissioners for such county.

SEC. 2. It shall be the duty of said jury commissioners, president judge, or additional law judge of the respective district, or a majority of them, to meet at the seat of justice of the respective counties, at least thirty days before the first term of the court of common pleas in every year, and thereupon proceed, with due diligence, to select alternately from the whole qualified electors of the respective county at large a number, such as at the term of the court please next preceding shall, by the said court, be designated, of sober, intelligent and judicious persons to serve as jurors in the several counties of such county during that year; and the said jury commissioners, president judge, or additional law judge, or a majority of them, shall, in the mode and manner now directed by law, place the names of persons so selected in the proper jury wheel, and the said jury wheel locked, as now required by law, shall remain in the custody of the said jury commissioners, and the keys thereof in the custody of the sheriff of said county.

SEC. 3. The said jury commissioners and the sheriff of the respective county, or any two of them, shall draw, from the proper jury wheel, panels of jurors as grand jurors of the proper county, and as petit and traverse jurors for the trial of issues in fact which may be taken in any action, in any of the courts, civil and criminal, of the several counties aforesaid, in the manner now practiced and allowed; but before the said jury commissioners and sheriff shall proceed to select or draw jurors in the manner aforesaid they shall severally take the oath or affirmation now prescribed by law to be taken by the sheriff and county commissioners before selecting and drawing jurors.

SEC. 4. That so much of any act or acts of Assembly of this Commonwealth, as makes it the duty of the sheriff and county commissioners of any of said counties to select and draw jurors shall be repealed, and cease to have any force or effect, from and after the first day of December next, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven: Provided, That all acts and parts of acts of Assembly, now in force in relation to the custody, sealing and unsealing, locking and opening of the jury wheel of the respective county, and all acts and parts of acts of Assembly, now in force, imposing any penalty or punishment on the sheriff and county commissioners, or either of them, for anything done or omitted by them, in relation to the keeping, locking, opening, sealing or breaking the seal of any jury wheel, or in relation to the selecting or drawing of jurors, shall be taken, deemed and held to apply to the said jury commissioners and sheriff.

SEC. 5. Each of said jury commissioners shall be allowed and paid, out of the respective county treasury, two dollars and fifty cents per day, and four cents per mile, circular, from the residence of the commissioners to the court house.

SEC. 6. It shall be the duty of each of said jury commissioners to take upon himself and discharge the duties of the said office, under the penalty of one hundred dollars for each and every neglect or refusal to attend the same, to be sued for and recovered before any justice of the peace of the proper county, as debts of like amount are now by law recoverable, ten dollars of which shall go to the person suing, and the residue to be paid by the said justice to the treasurer of the respective county, for the use of the same.

SEC. 7. In case of the inability of either or all of the said jury commissioners, by sickness, death or other unavoidable causes, to discharge the duties of said office, or in case of neglect or refusal to serve thereon, it shall be the duty of the president judge in such county wherein said vacancy may have occurred, to appoint a suitable person or persons, as the case may be, possessing the qualifications aforesaid, to perform the duties of said office, during such vacancy, and such person or persons, after having complied with the requirements of the third section of this act, shall proceed to discharge the duties of said office, during the remainder of the time so vacated: Provided, That the provisions of this act shall not apply to the city of Philadelphia.

Passed finally.

ADJOURNMENT.
Mr. BROWN (Mercer) moved that the Senate do now adjourn.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the motion?
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. CONNELL and Mr. RANDALL, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Lowry, Searight, Shoemaker, Wallace, Walls, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—17.

NAYS—Messrs. Barnett, Connell, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, James, Landon, M'Candless, M'Conaghy, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Stutzman and Taylor—15.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the Senate then adjourned until to-morrow morning at 10 A. M.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

TUESDAY, April 9, 1867.

The House met at 10 o'clock, A. M., pursuant to adjournment.

The reading of the Journal of the previous day was dispensed with.

On motion of Mr. QUAY, the House proceeded to the consideration of Senate bill No. 1085, an act to repeal an act regulating the jurisdiction of courts in proceedings by bills for injunctions, and other relief in equity, and the service of process.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I hope that act will not pass. This is to repeal an act passed at this session of the Legislature, which received the approval of the Judiciary Committee of this House, and of the Senate, and the approval of all to whom it has been shown. This repeal is called for by no person I know of except a few lawyers in Philadelphia, who wish to monopolize all the proceedings in that court. This is simply a law to benefit the profession in Philadelphia at the expense of the profession in the country. I hope the bill will not pass.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I have only to say that the subject was brought to my attention by a legal gentleman, not of Philadelphia, but of Harrisburg. The act that this bill proposes to repeal is, he assures me, an act that strips the Supreme Court of its jurisdiction in cases in equity, and confers such authority upon the different counties of the Commonwealth, putting it in the power of an associate judge in the Commonwealth to stop a public improvement. Last the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] if that is not the case?

Mr. MANN. It is not the case. The bill which this seeks to repeal simply gives to the courts of common pleas of the different counties exclusive and original jurisdiction of offenses arising in those counties.

Mr. QUAY. The result of which is that any associate judge can stop any public improvement by issuing an injunction. The bill proposes to restore this jurisdiction to the Supreme Court.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I wish to say in relation to this bill that the gentleman from Beaver [Mr. QUAY] is evidently mistaken as to the character of the bill he proposes to repeal. The bill which it is proposed to repeal was made a public necessity by this fact: that from time to time persons from other States would come into different counties in this Commonwealth and make contracts. They would then place themselves without the jurisdiction of the court, no process could be served upon them, and thus they have a good opportunity to defraud those with whom they made the contract. This bill in some measure provides for service of process in such cases. Persons frequently come from large cities into adjoining counties, then return and compel the parties with whom they have made a contract to go to the city to institute proceedings at a ruinous cost, when every consideration of justice requires that the case should be tried where the contract was made. The bill which this proposes to repeal was the result of a public necessity. It ought not to be repealed, and it will not be repealed if it is considered by the members of this House.

I hope, therefore, the proposition to repeal this law will be rejected.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I hope the House will not repeal this act. As has been said, it was a matter of public necessity.

The bill was drawn by a very distinguished judge of this State to meet necessities that long existed. As the law at present stands it often says that the citizen of my town must go to Philadelphia to obtain process in the Supreme Court. We wish the court of common pleas to have the same authority, so we will not be compelled to travel four hundred or five hundred miles to do that which we could as well do at home. I do not think the Supreme Court is anxious to have the sole control of this business. If I wish to get out an injunction or any process in my own town I see no reason why I should not be able to do so. I see no reason why such process cannot be issued on the ground where the facts are known.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I wish to say to the gentleman from Beaver [Mr. QUAY], that the original act which this bill seeks to repeal did not increase the authority of any judge in this Commonwealth. It gave the associate judges no power; it simply compelled a man who sought equity relief to go to the county where the injury occurred. If this bill is repealed it will simply, in effect, be saying that a majority of all the suits in the Commonwealth may be brought in Philadelphia. As the law stood before the act of 1857, every man in the Commonwealth was liable to be sued by injunction, and compelled to go to Philadelphia to make a defense.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I will state that the judges of the Supreme Court are now compelled to do more labor than they can well perform.

The bill which passed the House was drawn by one of the ablest judges in the State. It was drawn with care, and after much reflection. Forty years of practice had pointed out to him the defect in the law. He presented the bill to the House, it was referred to the Judiciary Committee, and not a single voice opposed it. I hope this act will not be repealed.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I have only to say, in reference to this bill, that I believe it passed the other branch of this body without any special attention being paid to its provisions. But, when the attention of the Senate was called to the practical operation of the bill, it was defeated by a nearly unanimous vote. The bill we are acting upon is a Senate bill; it has passed that body by an almost unanimous vote. As to gentlemen being compelled to go to Philadelphia, if the Supreme Court has jurisdiction in these cases, they will be compelled to go wherever the Supreme Court may be—not to Philadelphia only, but to Williamsport or Pittsburg.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. QUAY and Mr. HOOD, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Cameron, Chase, Colville, DeHaven, Donohugh, Frechorn, Gregory, Harbison, Hoffman, Hood, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Koon, Lee, M'Henry, Markley, Mullin, Peter, Quay, Quigley, Robinson, Roush, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Wallace, Watt, Westbrook, Worrall and Glass, Speaker—32.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Armstrong, Barrington, Barton, Boyd, Boyle, Brown, Calvin, Chadwick, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Day, Espy, Ewing, Ghegan, Gordon, Harner, Heltzel, Humphrey, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Kimmel, Kinney, Kline, Kurtz, Leach, Linton, Long, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Pherrin, Mann, Meyers, Pennyacker, Phelan, Pillow, Rhoads, Richards, Roath, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sifers, Tharp, Waddell, Webb, Weller, Wharton, Wingard, Woodward and Wright—62.

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the bill was

Not agreed to.

On motion of Mr. WADELL, the House proceeded to the consideration of bill No. 2054, an act to increase the revenue of the Commonwealth by taxation of shares of stock of the National banks.

The first section was read and

Agreed to.

The question recurring on agreeing to the second section.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, will the chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means inform the House what amount of revenue is expected to be derived from the taxation of these bank stocks?

Mr. WADELL. Mr. Speaker, my recollection is that the estimate was in the neighborhood of one hundred thousand dollars. This estimate, by the act passed last winter, which the Supreme Court has, within a month, decided as unconstitutional, and the defects of which this bill is intended to meet, was about three hundred thousand dollars. This decision has, in some cases, removed the tax where it before existed, and the recent estimate of the State Treasurer, as I understand, is about one hundred thousand dollars.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I understand this act is not expected to reach all the bank stocks. The act of last year would have reached them all, and last year would have given the State a revenue of three hundred thousand dollars. The revenue now will be but one hundred thousand dollars. Therefore this act is expected to reach only one-third of the banks to which the former act applied.

Mr. WADELL. Mr. Speaker, there were matters taxed in that bill which the Supreme court decided we could not reach, and the difference, as I understand it, will be about two hundred thousand dollars.

The Supreme Court declared that act unconstitutional for several reasons: One was that we were taxing matters we had no right to tax, another was the mode in which the tax was imposed.

In the present act we have endeavored to remove their objections by taxing what they thought was legal to be taxed, and change the manner of collecting it.

Mr. BOYLE. What I want to get at is this: The officers appointed to ascertain what stocks is taxable are to receive ten per centum of the whole amount of the tax, so that, if one hundred thousand dollars be derived from the tax on these stocks, the officer who ascertains the taxable stock receives ten thousand dollars. In addition to this, there are the fees of assessors and collectors. It will not cost ten thousand dollars to go to the several National banks of this State and ascertain what amount of their stock is taxable.

I move, therefore, to strike out "ten" and insert "five."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The bill was then

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended, and the bill Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. SHARPLES, the House proceeded to the consideration of Senate bill No. 1777, an act to provide means for establishing soldiers' orphans' schools in each State normal school district of this Commonwealth now destitute thereof.

The bill was read and

Agreed to.

The rules being suspended, the bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

JNO. W. GEARY.

During the consideration of the private calendar the following remarks were made on bills entitled as follows:

Senate bill No. 948, a further supplement to the act to incorporate the Union School and Children's Home asylum, to provide for the taxation of non-resident vendors of merchandise in the city and county of Philadelphia, and for the relief of Edwin Hutchinson, approved April 12, 1857.

Question,

Will the House agree to the bill?

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, this is a supplement to one of the omnibus bills of the session of 1851. I hope it will not pass. It permits any person not a resident of this Commonwealth to come into the city of Philadelphia and sell goods by sample without paying any tax for the privilege. It will work very disadvantageously to the merchants and manufacturers of Philadelphia.

I hope this bill will not pass.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I trust the bill will pass. Its object is not to permit every person to sell goods without a license; it restricts people to selling their own manufactures. I have a petition signed by every wholesale hardware merchant in the city of Philadelphia in favor of this repeal. Any person having an article of his own manufacture has the right to exhibit it for sale without taking out a license. Every merchant of standing in this branch of business in the city of Philadelphia has signed the petition that is now in this House.

Mr. MANN. This bill provides that the supplement shall be repealed so far as it refers to persons selling their own or their employer's goods. Now, what is to prevent a man selling in Philadelphia the goods of his employer in New York?

Mr. DAVENPORT. Strike out the word "employer" and the object of the bill is for the manufacturer to sell his own goods.

Mr. MANN. Goods manufactured in Massachusetts may be sold under this bill.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, it is simply desired that manufacturers should have the right to sell their own goods.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. I do not see why foreign manufacturers should have that privilege without a license.

Mr. DAVIS. Our cities are just that much behind other cities.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I will call the gentleman's attention to the fact that the city of Baltimore requires a license; so do Louisville and Cincinnati.

Mr. DAVIS. In the petition of which I have spoken, it is stated that the manufacturers of the city of Philadelphia can go to New York and sell their goods by sample without a license. The country merchants of Pennsylvania, and the hardware merchants in particular, can go to New York and buy their goods cheaper than they can purchase them in this State. This policy is drawing trade out of our State.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say, if we pass this bill, we might as well repeal all the laws relating to peddlers and hawkers in the county of Philadelphia. The laws on this subject, as they stand now, are a protection to our citizens. This bill proposes to repeal all licenses relating to peddlers and hawkers. There is not a county in the Commonwealth where these laws do not exist; there is scarcely a State in the Union where they do not exist. I am not entirely unacquainted with this matter, and I know we can manufacture hardware in the city of Philadelphia cheaper than can be done in New York or any other city save Pittsburg. I trust this bill will not pass. What is it? This bill does not affect hardware dealers; it does not specify any trade, or any class of goods; it includes all.

I trust the House will not pass such a bill. Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to detain the House; but I will take the time to say I am not apt to make a statement to this House or any other place that I cannot fully support. This bill does not refer in the slightest degree to hawkers and peddlers. I desire the Clerk to read this petition.

The petition was read as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Pennsylvania:

The undersigned citizens of Philadelphia, and engaged in business in said city, pray your honorable bodies to pass an act repealing so much of the act approved the 12th day of April, 1851, and the supplement thereto, approved the 12th day of April, 1864, as relates to the vending of goods in the city of Philadelphia by persons who are the manufacturers thereof, or their agents, and who are residents of other States.

(Signed, &c.)

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I have heard, with some surprise, the remarks of my colleague. I consider the clause in this bill to mean manufacturers in the East or any other part of the world. I hold that the law we now have was passed for the protection of the mercantile community. The names I have heard read as affixed to that petition, I apprehend, are foreign to the State or are agents of Eastern manufacturers. I hope this bill will not pass. I feel it my duty to record my vote against it.

Mr. KERNS. Mr. Speaker, I do not think this bill is understood by my friend on the other side of the House.

I will illustrate. A manufacturer in the city of Philadelphia sends his agent to me with samples of goods free of tax. The New York merchants thus make their purchases without coming to Philadelphia. But the New York merchant or manufacturer coming to Philadelphia is taxed. Hence he refuses to come to Philadelphia and lose both his time and his money.

Mr. HOOD. Under the working of this bill what is to prevent the agent of any house in New York, or England or elsewhere, coming to Philadelphia, taking a room at a hotel or private house, and then bringing in parties, exhibiting his samples, and thus retaining said goods? That can be done; and it will destroy the business of Philadelphia. It will open a store, to all intents and purposes, in every private room. The merchants in Philadelphia who pay twenty or thirty thousand dollars a year rent, would have to compete with peddlers from other sections.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I did not expect any opposition to this bill. I do not see how any opposition can arise. But I am perfectly satisfied to let the bill go as it may. Some statements have been made that must be refuted. One is, that the gentlemen signing this petition are non-residents of the city of Philadelphia. Three of them live in the same ward with myself. They are highly honorable men, doing business in Philadelphia. This system of levying taxes, and discriminating against our own merchants, is driving all our trade into the State of New York. If you talk with any old merchant in Philadelphia, he will tell you that for the last twenty years the laws of Pennsylvania have been studiously and consistently ruining her business, and driving it to New York. I have done my duty to my constituents; if the bill falls, it is a matter of no consequence to me. But I will say that every respectable hardware merchant in the city of Philadelphia is in favor of this bill.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, if this bill is passed, will it not permit men to do a very large amount of business anywhere in Pennsylvania and not pay a cent of tax in any shape?

Mr. DAVIS. It will permit manufacturers to sell at wholesale by sample; and store-keepers can make their selections without going east.

Mr. COLVILLE. Mr. Speaker, I have no desire that the time of this House should be occupied in the discussion of this bill. I shall move the previous question.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend so as to prohibit the selling to any except wholesale merchants within the State of Pennsylvania.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I do not think that this House will pass a bill of this kind in every country in the State, so far as I know, men selling by sample, or otherwise, must pay a license. I do not think this Legislature will, for a moment, entertain the thought of discriminating in favor of non-residents.

I move to indefinitely postpone the further consideration of the bill.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. GREGORY and Mr. HOOD, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Boyd, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chadwick, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Day, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hoffman, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Koon, Linton, Long, Maish, Markley, Mullin, Pennypacker, Pelton, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait and Westbrook—33.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Breen, Cameron, Chase, Davis, DeHaven, Donough, Espy, Freeborn, Ghagan, Gordon, Karlson, Humphrey, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Kerns, M'Caman, M'Creary, Mann, Mechling, Meily, Peter, Pillow, Quay, Richards, Roath, Shuman, Steady, Stumbaugh, Sobers, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson and Wright—40.

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the motion was

Not agreed to.

The question recurring on the amendment of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS],

It was

Agreed to.

Mr. QUIGLEY moved to further amend by striking out "the city and county of Philadelphia," and inserting "the State of Pennsylvania," so as to make it a general bill.

Not agreed to.

The bill as amended was then

Agreed to.

The bill was then transcribed and passed to third reading.

NOTION TO RECONSIDER.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I move to reconsider the vote taken on House bill No. 1157, a further supplement to an act incorporating the Pennsylvania railroad company. Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I trust that this bill will not be reconsidered.

It was passed by the Senate, and all it asks is that the company may be enabled between this point, and some point a short distance above, to straighten its road, and thereby secure greater safety in traveling. No gentleman who has passed up and down this road but what has felt the necessity that it should be straightened.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, all I wish to say is this, the bill on the calendar is numbered 1157. Now, 1157 is not so very objectionable; but when we look at the matter closely we find that we are acting upon bill No. 1151, which gives great power, power that should not be granted without an urgent necessity therefor. The House has been deceived.

On the motion to reconsider,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. KERNS and Mr. DEHAVEN, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Chase, Craig, Day, Espy, Fogel, Harner, Jenks, Jones, Linton, M'Creary, Matsh, Mann, Markley, Meyers, Peter, Phelan, Quay, Richards, Sharp, Weller, Woodard and Glass, Speaker—25.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barton, Breen, Calvin, Cameron, Chadwick, Colville, Davis, DeHaven, Donough, Freeborn, Ghagan, Gordon, Gregory, Harbison, Headman, Hoffman, Hood, Humphrey, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Koon, Kurtz, Lee, Long, M'Caman, M'Henry, M'Keegan, Mechling, Meily, Mullin, Pennypacker, Quigley, Roath, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Slocum, Stelman, Stumbaugh, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Westbrook, Whann, Wilson, Wingard, Worrall and Wright—56.

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the motion was

Not agreed to.

Senate bill No. 1595, an act to preserve the water of the river Schuylkill, used by the citizens of Philadelphia, from impurities.

Mr. SATERTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, that appears to be precisely the same bill that we had the other day. If this bill is to be passed, I shall have to offer the same amendment that I did to the House bill. I hope it will be read down.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, this bill was drawn up by the authorities of the city of Philadelphia. We want the bill passed as it is. I trust the House will pass it without amendment.

Mr. JONES. How far up the river Schuylkill is this bill intended to apply?

Mr. QUIGLEY. To Norristown.

Mr. SATERTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment:

Resolved, That this act shall not apply to any cotton, woolen, paper, iron or glass factory.

I desire to say that this bill, if it is passed (as the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. QUIGLEY] says the authorities wish it passed without amendment), will destroy the value of many millions of property. It will turn out of employment several thousands of persons, who are dependent for their support and livelihood upon these factories, which it is proposed to break up. I hope that it will not be done. A matter so important as this, affecting such an amount of property, and such a number of persons, whose livelihood is dependent upon these factories, should not have been brought here in this manner. It should have come before us in the early part of the session, and gone to its appropriate committee, so all the parties interested might have been heard.

This bill provides that no factory of any kind shall allow its refuse to go into the Schuylkill river from the borough of Norristown to the city of Philadelphia, a distance of more than sixteen miles. I do not believe that the refuse from some of the factories, at any rate, thrown into the water at that distance from Philadelphia, will injure it in the least. This matter should be investigated deliberately and thoroughly. The city of Philadelphia should appoint a scientific commission to investigate the subject and determine what substances are deleterious to the water, and at what distance from the city it is necessary to prohibit being thrown into the river, and not, in this summary manner, without any notice to these parties—without giving them an opportunity to be heard—at one sweeping blow, to take away all their property, and turn all those persons out of employment. I hope it will not be done. There is no necessity for summary action in this matter. I say let the city authorities make a scientific investigation and determine what is necessary. Let us have no such summary action as this.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, it is very unfortunate that Norristown is sixteen miles above Philadelphia. I suppose Norristown has a population of sixteen thousand inhabitants; Philadelphia has a population of between seven hundred thousand and eight hundred thousand. I do not think this great city should have its health endangered for the accommodation of the factories on the river Schuylkill.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman know how many factories there are on the river Schuylkill and its tributaries? If he does not, I will inform him that they amount in value to twenty-five or thirty millions of dollars.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, that is a small matter in comparison with the health of seven hundred thousand people. Therefore, I say if this amendment is adopted, the bill is nullified. What is this dye stuff that is spoken of as inoffensive in its character, but the most poisonous of all stuffs of that kind? There is not one single factory upon the river Schuylkill but what carries sewers built at a reasonable expense to carry away their refuse matter.

Mr. WALLACE. Where are the sewers to be carried?

Mr. HOOD. If necessary, they can be carried to the other side of the river.

Mr. WALLACE. Where?

Mr. HOOD. Anywhere, so that they do not go into the river. It would be better for the city of Philadelphia to buy these factories and pay for them, than to allow them to remain where they are.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. Hood] another question. I would like to ask him whether he considers the water thrown from dye houses and factories more noxious than the offal of the gas works?

Mr. HOOD. The gas works are below Fairmount.

Mr. WALLACE. The Manayunk gas works are above.

Mr. HOOD. Their worst material is carried off by a sewer, and does not go into the river.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Where does the sewer empty?

Mr. HOOD. Into the Delaware river.

Mr. SPEAKER. I hope this House will protect the health of seven hundred thousand people, by obliging these factories to adopt some other means for carrying off their refuse stuff.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I do not know of anything being done that is necessary in this matter; but do object to such a sweeping blow as this, without its being duly considered.

Now, the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. Hood] misrepresents me. I did not state that the refuse from all these factories was not deleterious to the city of Philadelphia. But I do not believe that the refuse from paper manufactories, and glass and iron works is at all deleterious to the water, at a distance of sixteen miles from where it is thrown into the river. Yet, this bill proposes to sweep out of existence the whole of these factories, without discrimination. That is what I object to. I say, let this matter be thoroughly investigated by a properly qualified commission.

Mr. FREEBORN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Montgomery [Mr. SATTERTHWAIT] whether there is any factory on the Schuylkill river that cannot dig a well?

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I assert that that cannot be done. Is it an utter impossibility.

Yes, it is impossible, at any reasonable expense, for the factories to build an aqueduct?

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. I do not know how it is possible; but what I want to come at is this: this matter should be thoroughly investigated and all the facts ascertained. For instance, there has been a paper factory built at Norristown recently, with a capital of a million of dollars, for the purpose of manufacturing paper out of wood. It has a great many persons employed. I do not suppose that the refuse from that factory is at all deleterious to the water.

Yet, that factory would be prohibited from having its refuse go into the river. Then, there are glass factories and iron factories, and others. Some of them, no doubt, are deleterious—others are not. Now, what I say is, let this thing be thoroughly investigated. Let it be ascertained what substances are deleterious. Then, let the parties owning such factories be notified that they must find some other outlet for their refuse. I ask to give them a little time. But this bill proposes, at one sweeping blow, and without notice, to prevent these parties from carrying on their business. There is no necessity for it. This bill could have been brought here early in the session, as it should have been, that parties interested might have been heard before a committee in their own defense.

I hope the House will pass this amendment. This matter has not sprung up within one year. The water of the Schuylkill is about the same as it has been for a great many years. Let these parties have another year, that they may come here prepared, and that this matter may be considered properly.

Mr. QUILLEY. Mr. Speaker, the argument of the gentleman from Montgomery [Mr. SATTERTHWAIT] amounts to nothing whatever. Now, in the city of Philadelphia we have a large number of factories of all kinds; and we have an ordinance of council that prevents the refuse of these factories from going into our common sewers; and I wish to call the attention of the gentleman from Montgomery to one fact. In the city of Philadelphia our manufacturers dig wells below the water line; they have grates on the wells for the purpose of stopping all the filth; and this they are compelled to remove about once every six months.

Now, this bill has been prepared by the chief engineer of the water works, and I trust the House will pass it without any amendment. Let the manufacturers on the line of the Schuylkill do what the manufacturers of the city of Philadelphia are compelled to do by ordinance, dig wells and have their filth removed and deposited at some other place. We do not wish them to have an opportunity of poisoning the water we drink. I trust the amendment will be voted down.

Mr. HEADMAN. Mr. Speaker, if I understand this matter, I think the argument of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. QUILLEY] is against the interests of that city. That city depends entirely upon its manufacturing interests.

If this bill passes, it will destroy the factories along the line of the Schuylkill river. I simply desire to say this: that the factories the gentleman speaks of as being in the city of Philadelphia are, every one, below the Fairmount dam, with the exception of those on the Delaware river, and their refuse runs into the Delaware.

Now, the gentleman spoke about sewerage from Manayunk and Norristown to the Delaware river. The expense of this would fall on a few private individuals, who have erected mills and employed a great portion of the community in that section of the country. It would incur an expense that they could not feel warranted in undertaking. They would have to build an aqueduct, at the least calculation, for a distance of nine to sixteen miles, through the roughest kind of a country, mountains and rocks, and the undertaking would be a gigantic one.

It has been in contemplation for the city of Philadelphia to get a supply of pure water from another source, by building an aqueduct some fourteen miles. What would be the expense to a population of seven hundred thousand in comparison with the loss which would be sustained by the destruction of the factories on the Schuylkill, gotten up principally, as they are, by individual enterprise?

In looking over the Evening Bulletin, I find the following editorial:

"THE WATER SUPPLY.—A move in the right direction was made in city councils yesterday. The committee on water works was instructed to report an ordinance providing for the appointment of a commission of persons of eminent abilities as civil engineers, who, in connection with the chief engineer of the water works, shall investigate plans for providing an abundance of pure water for the use of the city. The preservation of the purity of the Schuylkill water seems to be almost a hopeless task, and in spite of city ordinances and State laws the crowded population along the banks of the river will continue to pollute the stream. In respect both to quantity and quality the Schuylkill seems to have outlived its usefulness as a source of water supply for a great city. When the present water works were constructed, the population of the city was about one hundred and twenty thousand souls; at present it is more than six times that number. Besides the enlargement of the population, which of course causes the proportionate increase in the consumption of water, the advance in the manufacturing interests of the city and the more general use of baths, water closets, &c., have greatly augmented the consumption of water. Without looking forward to the wants of posterity in respect to the needful element, the demands for the present generation are becoming increasingly pressing, and the proposed scientific commission will doubtless take an enlarged and comprehensive view of the situation, and propose a plan such as will secure to the Philadelphia of A. D. 1867, as well as to the present city, a full supply of pure water."

This bill will be the means of destroying a great manufacturing interest; and I do hope, for that one simple reason, it will not pass.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say a word in reply to the gentleman from Philadelphia, who says that the factories in that city dig wells. I deny that that is the case. The principal portion of the refuse of these factories goes off into the sewers.

I move, Mr. Speaker, that this bill be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to correct the gentleman. I stated by ordinance of councils they were obliged to dig wells below the water mark, and the refuse is caught in grates, and carried off.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, it is only the solid substance that is caught in that way. All the liquid portion escapes into the sewers.

It has been said, that this bill was carefully prepared. I deny that it has been carefully prepared; because it makes no distinction whatever. And I appeal to this House, if a bill to preserve the purity of the water of the river Schuylkill is carefully prepared, when it makes no distinction between factories that do injure the water, and those that do not. If this bill had been carefully prepared, it would have gone to the committee, and parties interested would have had an opportunity to be heard.

Mr. DONOHUGH. Mr. Speaker, I trust this bill will be passed in the shape in which it was presented. I regard it as one of the most important measures that has been presented to the Legislature. The health of seven hundred thousand people depends upon the passage of this bill. The Schuylkill furnishes drinking water to the citizens of Philadelphia, and the idea that members should come here and ask that the lives and health of seven hundred thousand people shall be jeopardized for the interests of a few manufacturers is preposterous. I hope this amendment will not be adopted.

The gentleman from Bucks [Mr. HEADMAN] comes here and reads an article from a paper stating that it is impossible to keep the Schuylkill water pure. That is to our disgrace. I think we are in duty bound to protect the citizens of Philadelphia and keep their drinking water from impurities.

He says, also, that the idea is conceived of having another means of supplying the city. That would cost us millions of dollars; and shall the interests of a few individuals on the river Schuylkill draw the city of Philadelphia into an expense of that kind? I think that idea preposterous. We have our water works built, and we are satisfied with the Schuylkill water, provided we can get it pure. I hope the amendment will not be agreed to.

On the question, —
Will the House agree to the amendment?
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MARKLEY and Mr. HOOD, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyle, Breun, Cameron, Chadwick, Craig, Day, Ewing, Harner, Headman, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Koon, Linton, Long, M'Creary, M'Henry, M'Keen, Malish, Mann, Markley, Meyers, Pennypacker, Phelan, Rhoads, Richards, Roush, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Wallace, Webb, Weller and Wharton—35.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Barton, Boyd, Brown, Calvin, Chase, Davis, DeHaven, Donohugh, Espy, Freeborn, Ghegan, Gordon, Gregory, Hartison, Hood, Humphrey, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kinney, Kurtz, Lee, Leach, Meehling, Meily, Mullin, Pillow, Quigley, Westbro, Shuman, Stumbaugh, Tharp, Watt, Westbrook, Wilson, Wingard and Glass, Speaker—39.

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the amendment was
Not agreed to.

The House then adjourned till 3 o'clock this P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The House met at 3 o'clock, P. M.
The SPEAKER announced a quorum of members present.

Mr. STEHMAN, chairman of the Committee on Corporations, asked and obtained leave to report from said committee, as committed, Senate bill No. 1603, an act to authorize the Heno oil and land company to acquire, hold and dispose of property.

Mr. WHIANN. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to proceed to the consideration of the bill at this time.
Consent was given.

The bill being before the House,
And the question,

Will the House agree to the bill?

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the bill by providing that the privilege granted under this act shall be extended to, and conferred upon, every other private corporation in this Commonwealth—so that if any such privileges are to be extended to the Heno oil and land company, other corporations may have the same right to hold property without limit and without restriction anywhere in this Commonwealth, and to make such use of it as they please. I think the bill ought not to pass; but if it does pass, every corporation should have the same rights as this one in this respect.

Mr. WHIANN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Berks [Mr. JONES] is evidently laboring under the impression that he can legislate for Venango county.

The real intent of this bill is, I believe, to enable this company to more advantageously adjust these claims. It is to enable them to gather up the wrecks and adjust them in the best possible manner. I think that is the entire extent of the intent of this bill, and I trust it will pass.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, this is not legislating for Venango county on my part. But the gentleman from Venango [Mr. WHIANN] has assumed previously, in this House, that he had the right to legislate for Venango county, although my impression always was that nobody individually had a right to legislate, but that the two branches of the Legislature passed laws. However, this is not a Venango county bill, but a bill which gives this company the right to exercise such extraordinary privileges throughout this Commonwealth, that if passed for this company, there is no reason why every other corporation in the Commonwealth should not have the same rights and privileges.

The question being on the amendment of Mr. JONES,

It was
Not agreed to.

The question recurring on the bill,
It was

Not agreed to.

Mr. RHOADS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the Committee on Corporations be discharged from the further consideration of Senate bill No. 1306, an act to incorporate the Ryan and Reading slate company.

The motion was

Agreed to.

Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, I move that the Committee on Corporations be discharged from the further consideration of Senate bill No. 1431, an act to authorize and empower William Howe to erect and maintain on Two Lick creek, in Cherry Hill township, Indiana county, at his mill in said creek, a boom for saw logs.

The motion was

Agreed to.

PRIVATE CALENDAR.

Agreeably to order,
The House resumed the consideration of the bills on the private calendar.

The following bills were considered and acted upon as stated:

Senate bill No. 1595, an act to preserve the water of the river Schuylkill used by the citizens of Philadelphia from impurities.

The question being on agreeing to the bill.
Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I just wish to say, as the House has refused to insert the amendment that I proposed, that I ask that they shall vote down this whole bill.

In reply to the gentleman from Philadelphia, who says that this bill has been carefully prepared, I just ask the House to look at the bill, and see if it has been carefully prepared. It is a paragraph cut out of a newspaper. That is the shape of the bill. That is the shape in which this bill comes before this House, which he alleges is so carefully prepared. It is not printed in our files; it has not been before a committee of the House or the Senate; and there has been no proper opportunity presented to us to amend it.

As the gentlemen who have it in charge have refused to allow us to amend it, so as not to be so obnoxious to our constituents, I ask that it may be voted down. If there is this great difficulty that these parties pretend, they can have a remedy. Let them get out an injunction against these parties that they claim are committing this nuisance, and have it come before the courts, and be properly investigated, as it would be, and let them determine what substances are hurtful; and not, by this one blow, throw thousands of people out of employment.

Mr. DeHAVEN. Mr. Speaker, that bill has been carefully prepared by citizens of Philadelphia, and has been before the committee. I ask and hope that the bill may pass.

Mr. MARKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I think it is wrong to force a bill of this kind through this House. By the passage of this bill, works to the value of fifteen or eighteen millions of dollars will be stopped, and no provision made for the employees. To-day is the first that I have heard that the water of the Schuylkill has been poisoned to the extent of creating an epidemic.

I hope that this bill will be voted down, and that, in its stead, a committee will be appointed, either by the courts or the Legislature, to investigate this matter in a proper manner.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, the statements made by my friend from Montgomery [Mr. MARKLEY] that there are fifteen or eighteen millions of dollars invested in these factories is certainly a strange one. I admit that they are valuable factories. But they never cost one-tenth of that amount. One gentleman says that the proper course is to obtain an injunction. I have practiced law for fifteen years, and I cannot see how it can be effected by an injunction. I would like to know how we are going to get the people of Montgomery to complain against their own neighbors for the benefit of the people of Philadelphia. I hope the House will pass this bill.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, without any discourtesy to the gentlemen who are discussing this question, I submit that it is taking up the entire time of the day, and I therefore call the previous question.

The call for the previous question was seconded by Messrs. Harbison, Shuman, Webb, Kerns, DeHaven, Peter, Cameron, Freeborn, Worrall, Humphrey and Whann.

The question being,
Shall the main question be now put?
It was

Agreed to.

The question recurring on agreeing to the bill.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MARKLEY and Mr. WALLACE, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barton, Calvin, Cameron, Davis, DeHaven, Donough, Ewing, Freeborn, Ghegan, Gregory, Hood, Humphrey, Josephs, Kerns, Kinney, Lee, Leech, Meily, Mullin, Peter, Roath, Subers, Watt, Webb, Wilson and Worrall—28.

NAYS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Brennan, Brown, Chalfant, Chase, Collins, Colville, Craig, Day, Diese, Espy, Fogel, Gordon, Harbison, Harner, Headman, Heitzel, Hoffman, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Kennedy, Kimmell, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, McCreary, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Maish, Mann, Markley, Meyers, Pennypacker, Pheban, Quay, Rhoads, Richards, Roush, Satterthwait, Sharples, Shuman, Tharp, Wallace, Weller, Westbrook, Wharton, Wingard, Woodward and Glass, Speaker—53.

So the question was determined in the negative.

Senate bill No. 556, an act to refund John

Martin, administrator, amount collateral inheritance tax paid in error.

Passed finally.

Senate bill No. 725, a supplement to the act incorporating the Jackson mining company.

Passed finally.

Senate bill No. 1295, an act authorizing the Saucou iron company to construct branch railroads to certain ore beds.

Passed finally.

Senate bill No. 895, an act to levy a tax upon horses kept for pleasure or hire in the city of Philadelphia.

Indefinitely postponed.

No. 1601, an act to authorize the removal of certain cases from the court of common pleas in Cambria county to the court of common pleas of Centre county.

The question being on agreeing to the bill,
Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out Centre county and inserting Somerset county.

Mr. BARTON. Mr. Speaker, I hope the amendment will not prevail. This bill was considered in committee, and various amendments suggested. But the committee thought this a suitable county in which to try this case, and I therefore trust the amendment will not prevail.

Mr. COLVILLE. Mr. Speaker, the secret of this matter is this: There are several suits pending in Cambria county, which resulted from the accident that occurred at the Pennsylvania railroad platform at Johnstown, when Andy Johnson was "swinging around the circle" at that point. Suit has been brought against the Pennsylvania railroad company, and the suit has been decided against them; and their object is to take it out of Cambria county now into Centre county, where they think they can be exonerated from further blame.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, if any man will look at the map, he will discover that parties to this case, Centre county from Cambria county, must pass through two other counties, at great expense. I have no doubt that if the cases were tried there, they would be fairly tried; but it would be subjecting the parties to an unnecessary expense. Somerset county is contiguous to Cambria county, and I see no reason why the cases should not go there. The railroad does not pass through that county, and no improper influences could be brought to bear to warp the trial. This bill, even if Somerset county is substituted, will be objectionable to the plaintiffs in this case. They see no necessity for taking it out of the county where the case originated, and where the expense of the trial will be greatly reduced; but if taken out of the county at all, it is desirable that it should go to a county immediately contiguous, where the expense will not be so greatly enhanced.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the amendment by striking out Somerset and inserting Blair.

Mr. M'CAMANT. Mr. Speaker, I hope that the amendment to the amendment will be voted down. We have as much to do in our county with that kind of cases as we care about. We already have all their business placed upon us that we desire, without bringing it from abroad.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, in reference to Blair county, I would state that the plaintiffs in this case are afraid that in that county they would not get a fair trial. I confess, personally, I scarcely regard their objections as tenable. But they say, that because the railroad company has great influence in that county, they could not receive a fair trial.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, if that objection is made, it is no reason why it should not be tried there. Somerset county is quite as suitable on the other side as Cambria county.

Everybody understands that this accident was from a palpable indiscretion in overloading a superstructure which was not expected to be used for such an occasion. Everybody ought to know that the foot bridge across a canal was not a suitable one to be overloaded as it was at that time. All they ask is to have this case removed to a place where there will be a fair trial.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, I hope this discussion will not be prolonged. I understand it was discussed at length in the Senate, and that Centre county was agreed upon as a fair compromise, and I think we ought to settle upon that county.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, this is a matter in which my constituents are deeply interested; and I desire to say that Centre county was taken by our Senator in preference to Blair county, after every other county in that vicinity had been voted down. It was agreed upon, for the reason that it was taking the best of the two evils which were presented.

The question being on the amendment of Mr. LEE to the amendment of Mr. LINTON,

It was

Not agreed to.

The question recurring on the amendment of Mr. LINTON,

It was

Agreed to.

The question recurring on the bill as amended,

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, I wish to say that I see no necessity for the removal of this case at all. I know, as every gentleman who knows anything about this case, that it is simply a legal question. The judge in Cambria county who will preside over this trial, has no superior in the State for his thorough knowledge of law, and his impartiality in the administration of it. I trust, therefore, the House will vote down this bill.

Now these sufferers are, almost all of them, poor, laboring men at the mill, and it will be almost impossible to follow the case out of the county if it is changed as this bill proposes. I therefore trust the House will permit the case to be tried in the county where it can be tried with the least expense, and where justice can and will be meted out to both parties.

The question being on agreeing to the bill as amended,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. LEE and Mr. DeHAVEN, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Brown, Calvin, Cameron, Chadwick, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Donough, Ewing, Freeborn, Ghegan, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kinney, Koon, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, Meching, Meily, Mullin, Pennypacker, Fillow, Quay, Roath, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Wingard, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—45.

NAYS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Chalfant, Chase, Collins, Colville, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Gordon, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Kimmell, Kline, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Maish, Mann, Markley, Meyers, Peter, Pheban, Rhoads, Richards, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Tharp, Weller, Westbrook, Wharton and Wilson—42.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the bill was laid over on third reading.

Senate bill No. 1252, an act in relation to the appointment of an auctioneer for the borough of Tarentum, Allegheny county.

Passed finally.

RECONSIDERATION OF VOTE.

Mr. BARTON. Mr. Speaker, I move to reconsider the vote had this morning on agreeing to the resolution in the extract from the Senate Journal this morning.

Mr. GHEGAN. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I would say to the gentleman from Delaware [Mr. Barton], that if this resolution is allowed to lie over until to-morrow, there will probably be no objection to reconsidering it then. It was the intention of this side of the House, I believe, to move its reconsideration to-morrow. If it should be reconsidered now, it is probable that we should vote it down again.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I hope this motion will be pressed and carried. I understood, when the resolution was up this morning, that if the House would allow the gentleman from Schuylkill to except a certain bill they would consider the resolution favorably. That amendment was agreed to, but the resolution was defeated. Now I hope the gentlemen on the other side of the House will consider this case as I put it, that we excepted the bill that they asked should be excepted, and that they promised if that was done that they would vote with us on the rest of the resolution. We excepted that bill, and I hope they will now stand up to their promise and reconsider the vote on this resolution.

The question being on reconsidering the vote on the resolution,

It was
Agreed to.

Mr. WADELLE. Mr. Speaker, I now move to reconsider the vote by which this Schuylkill county bill was excepted. It is the only bill that I have any particular interest in. It passed the Senate last year, and I think it is ungracious that the House should have excepted this one bill from the operation of that resolution.

Now, sir, as I understand it, this bill does not involve a particle of political interest. The bill was amended in the Senate on the suggestion of the Senator from Schuylkill himself, and his amendment was perfectly satisfactory to the gentlemen I represent. I was in hopes that the gentlemen in this House from Schuylkill county would be satisfied to have the case removed from Schuylkill county to Berks county, where it would be tried before a judge against whom nothing can be said, and who is entirely satisfactory to the gentlemen whom I represent. The questions involved in this case are those which affect the judge himself, who would be called upon to try this case in Schuylkill county. I hope the House will refuse to make an exception of this, the only bill in which I have any interest at all, and which has been passed by the Senate.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, we have been victimized all winter by the other side of the House in reference to these changes of venue. It appears that the onslaught of this House is in Schuylkill county. I am going to stand by and insist upon the orders unless some chance is given us in this bill. I do not feel disposed to be browbeaten on this question any more.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. Speaker, I understand that this change of venue does not involve any political question. It is a bill that applies to the gentlemen from Schuylkill, and they are the gentlemen who should have charge of it.

Now, as there is no politics involved in this bill, I am going to vote in regard to it according to the wishes of the gentlemen from Schuylkill. I say that is the reason that there are other bills that ought not to be destroyed on account of that bill. Some of these bills are of great importance. Some are very important to my constituents, and the constituents of other gentlemen who are interested in them. There is one bill in which I am specially interested. It interests my constituents very greatly, and also those of other gentlemen on the Republican side of the House. It is a bill to repeal an act giving the Allegheny Valley railroad company unlimited privileges in the issue of its capital stock, in order to conform with the wishes of the Governor.

Mr. WADELLE. Mr. Speaker, that is one of the most ungracious speeches I have heard this morning—that because politics is not in this question, justice should not be done between man and man. I say there are the best of reasons why this bill should be passed.

The very judge who would be called upon in Schuylkill county to try this case has already expressed his opinion publicly in regard to the character of the case. And because there is no politics involved in it, therefore this House is to make an exception to this rule, and my bill is to be discarded and the bill of the gentleman from Allegheny is to be considered. Now, it strikes me that the representatives from Allegheny county are very late in the day in complying with the request of the Governor of the Commonwealth. A message from the Governor in reference to the matter was sent in here a month ago, and yet a bill to comply with the request of that message did not come from the Senate until last night. It does strike me as coming with little grace from the Speaker of the House to present this case in this way.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the remarks of the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] in reference to the judge in Schuylkill county, I need only say that he is too much of a gentleman and understanding his duty as a judge too well to make any such expressions of opinion before the case is tried.

Mr. DEISE. Mr. Speaker, I think, sir, that among the honest declarations that have been made upon the floor of this House this winter, the distinguished gentleman from Allegheny has made one just now. And it is something queer to me that for the first time in the proceedings of the House, the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADELLE] has been so much disposed. He denies that politics has anything to do in controlling the action of the gentleman from Chester in upon the matter as voting with his party regardless of the merits of the case. I say that I endorse the statement, and believe the gentleman from Allegheny [Mr. GLASS] was honest when he said if there was no politics in this he would support it. I admire a man that honestly differs with another. I am not here to charge the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADELLE] with anything improper, but say that from the beginning of this session to the present time he has voted square up to par with his opinion. More than that, he has been the forerunner and leader of the Republican party upon this floor. His word has come like the language of a senator to the members of his party upon this floor. I say that that distinguished gentleman occupies the position of leader of the Republican party on the floor of this House, and is so acknowledged here and elsewhere. The gentleman from Allegheny is willing to meet the bill on its merits. But, Mr. Speaker, I ask you to look over the record of this House and you will find that without cause, without petition, without anything even but an ex parte affidavit of the petitioner, the gentleman from Chester stands as having voted for changes of venue. I remember that in one case the only reason given was that the judge was a Democrat.

Mr. DAVIS. That was reason enough.

Mr. DEISE. Reason enough to the man who was once a Democrat and went back on the party. I tell you, Mr. Speaker, that I am a Democrat. I was born and raised in the faith, and I assert here that whenever a political question is before this House you can count me on the minority side all day, and I hope the gentleman from Chester will have manliness enough to admit the same here in regard to himself, and not measure swords with the gentleman from Allegheny because he admits the truth. The gentleman from Chester, much as I admire him for the part that he has taken in this House, for the manner in which he is leading the Republican party, and as I thought and hoped he would lead them on and on in this direction, I do not want him to disgrace himself by his remarks here, for I know his constituents in Chester county will support him in his onward march.

Mr. WADELLE. Mr. Speaker, I confess I have listened to the gentleman's remarks, and I have not apprehended them. It has either been through my dullness of conception, or from the want of point that he has made, or from much obliged to him for the appellation he has put upon me, and the position he has been kind enough to place me in this House, but I confess I am at a loss to know what I have said in regard to politics, whom I have attacked, and where I have said that I was not a Republican, did not vote with the Republican party, or where I have said I should not vote with this side of the House, whenever a political question was presented to us. I have done so as a matter of duty, and I propose to continue to do so. I do not say that the other side of the House has always voted solid, whether it was a political question or not. They have not stopped to consider the merits of a bill if it was on the other side of the House. It was voted for solid. If the leader of that side of the House got up and said it should be voted for it was voted for; and if it was said it was not to be voted for it was not voted for.

I said at the outset, that there was no political question involved in the case, and I again reiterate it. I have not made a word of objection against Judge Ryan, on account of his political views. I do not know what they are. I said that it was ungracious on the part of the Speaker of this House to say that because politics were not involved in this change of venue, but because we believe that justice was, therefore this side of the House should not go with me, but that it should be left entirely to the gentleman from Schuylkill, because they were opposed to the bill. I ask the House not to consider this as a political question, but to consider it on its merits; and if the merits of the case will not authorize them to give their votes for the bill, it is fit that they should not sustain me in this request. I only ask that it shall have the same favor that is accorded to the other bills named in the resolution. I have said before, and I say it again, that Judge Ryan has expressed his opinion in regard to some of the merits in this case, and I place my statement upon the sworn affidavit of a gentleman interested in the case, as well as that his affidavit will stand in time against the statement of the gentleman from Schuylkill. He said that he was not in his right mind when he made this conveyance, and that is the point in the case. When a judge himself has openly declared that a man was not sane at the time that he made a conveyance, it is expressing an opinion that no judge should express under the circumstances. I simply ask that this bill shall come over with the bills from the Senate, and if we have not strength enough to pass it, let it fall along with the others. Do I ask anything unreasonable? Will the gentlemen on the other side of the House say that my request is unreasonable? If they say so, they have only to vote as their consciences require.

Mr. DEISE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to correct a declaration that the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] has made. He asserted that this side of the House vote en masse against a bill without reference to its merits. I am here, in behalf of the few Democrats on this side of the House, to deny that in point of fact. I assert that the other side of the House are responsible for that very thing. We have not asked that a political measure, during this session, should be passed. I defy the gentleman to refer me to the Record of this House, and show where this side of the House has asked, during this session, the passage of a bill on the other side of the House, while the other side of the House has forced through here change after change of venue, on political grounds. Yet, the Democratic party run this government for seventy-five years, and I challenge him to point out where the Democratic party asked for any change of venue for political reasons, that to-day disgrace the records of Pennsylvania. The gentleman, when he makes the declaration I refer to, either does it unadvisedly or unintentionally.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. Speaker, I am unwilling to be placed in a wrong attitude before the House in regard to the impetus on legislation that has come from the Senate this morning, in reference to the remarks I have made. What I said, sir, was that there were no politics involved in this question that the gentlemen from Schuylkill were interested in, and that, as there were no politics involved in it, I was willing to go with them. The understanding this morning was, when that portion of the resolution was voted upon, that it was not political.

My idea was to dissuade the House of that impression. The other bill ought not to fall on account of that. I do not take the position that the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] does. I say, if this House is unwilling, by a two-thirds vote, to proceed to the consideration of this Schuylkill bill, it is no reason why the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] should insist that these other bills should not be considered. I think that is not the policy that the gentleman from Chester ought to pursue. If the House is willing, by a two-thirds vote, to take up other bills, which the Senate has acted upon, I say that we ought to act upon them, and that we ought not to refuse to consider these bills, for the simple reason that the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] has a bill that the House will not consider. So far as partisanship is concerned, I am, perhaps, as much a stickler for party as any member of this House. I have not deviated, as I know of, from my political position. If I take different views on local questions from those of the gentleman from Chester, I trust my opinions are quite as honest as his.

The question being on the motion of Mr. WADDELL, The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WADDELL and Mr. M'CAMANT, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Donohugh, Espy, Freeborn, Ghegan, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmel, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, Mann, Meehling, Pennypacker, Peter, Pellow, Quay, Richards, Roath, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Stency, Subers, Waddell, Wal-

Passed finally.

Senate bill No. 1469, an act for the better protection of person, property and life in the mining regions of this Commonwealth.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order—that this is a public bill. THE SPEAKER. This bill simply relates to mining districts.

Mr. GREGORY. To what counties? It refers to the mining districts in all the counties, I think. They may be either east of the Allegheny mountains or west of them.

THE SPEAKER. The first section will be read.

The first section was read by the Clerk.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, that is a public bill, clearly. Allegheny, Clarion, Jefferson and Armstrong counties are all mining counties.

Mr. CHALFANT. There is not a county in the State that is not.

Mr. JONES. Berks and Lebanon counties are mining counties, and would be included under this act.

Mr. COLLINS. Schuylkill county is a mining county.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, upon that point, I desire to call attention to House bill No. 29, in which certain counties were named, and it has never been transferred to the private calendar. Certainly, if that is a public bill, this is, and this refers to more counties.

The SPEAKER. The preamble to the bill reads, "WHEREAS, it is alleged that in certain counties in the mining regions;" and the second section makes it apply to the county of Schuylkill.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, the provisions are general and will apply to any mining county in the State. It only refers to Schuylkill county for one provision in it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not regard it as a public bill.

The question being on the first section, it was Agreed to. The second, third and fourth sections were considered and agreed to without discussion. The question being on agreeing to the fifth section,

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I think that section ought not to be adopted. These police commissioners and police officers are given certain powers defined by law—the police sheriff equal to a sheriff, and the police officer equal to a constable. It seems to me a departure from the law to put it in the breast of the Governor to say what this officer may do or may not do. Another objection is, that it allows the Governor to fix the compensation of these policemen. For one, I am unwilling that the treasury of Schuylkill county, or any other county, shall be put into the hands of the Governor of the Commonwealth or any other man. The law has fixed proper guards for the county treasury, and I cannot conceive how there can be two opinions on this subject. I think it very unwise to open the vaults of any county treasury, and say to the Governor, "You may take as much money from this as you may see proper for the men you appoint to these places."

There are other objections, but I think these two ought to be sufficient to cause the House to vote the section down.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I think the objections of the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] are answered, in part at least, by the additional provisions of this bill. I think they are wholly answered so far as relates to the powers these men have. The bill provides that "they shall make no arrests except upon warrants issued," &c. It makes it explicit. And as to the expense, it provides that a tax shall be levied upon persons mining and transporting coal to pay this expense. I therefore do not see how the treasury of Schuylkill county is to be affected by it one way or the other. The estimate is that the tax will much more than pay all the expense.

It is not expected that the provisions of this bill shall be enforced in any other county, except upon extraordinary occasions. Occasions may arise in other counties where it will be necessary to enforce them. There was, in fact, a statement made the other day that in Luzerne county there were riots that the local authorities could not suppress. It, however, proved to be a mistake—they were suppressed and no outside force needed. It is not at all probable that any such force will be needed—except, perhaps, temporarily—in any other county. It simply places it in the hands of the Governor, on application of the citizens, to provide for paying the expenses otherwise than out of the treasury of the county.

I therefore think the objections of the gentleman from Fayette have scarcely any force against this section. I hope it will be adopted as read.

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker, I agree with the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE], that this section of the bill should be voted down. It confers, it seems to me, a rather unconstitutional power. In fact I think the bill is unconstitutional, and the officers now have power to see that the peace is kept, and have the right to call out a posse comitatus at any time to the extent necessary. I trust, therefore, this House will not agree to this section of the bill in any shape. There is sufficient power in the courts, as now constituted, to suppress disturbances.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment, to add the following proviso:

"Provided, That no person employed under the provisions of this act, except the marshals of police, shall, under any circumstances, be paid more than five hundred dollars for his services in any one year."

The question being on the amendment of Mr. BOYLE,

It was Not agreed to.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by adding the following proviso: "Provided that said expense shall not exceed the tax provided for in the first section of this act."

The language of the section as now before the House is rather doubtful as to whether or not it will require the treasurer of the county to pay all the expenses without reference to the amount collected by the special tax. The object of this bill is that all the expense shall be paid by this tax, and I think it is nothing more than fair that it should be so expressed in the bill.

The question being on the amendment of Mr. MEYERS,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BREN and Mr. COLLINS, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Collins, Colville, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Gordon, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, and Westbrook—38.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Casey, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Fresh, Ghegan, Harrison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmel, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kea, Mann, Meily, Pennypacker, Peter, Pillow, Roath, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Wright and Glass, Speaker—51.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The question recurring on the section, it was Agreed to. The remaining sections of the bill, were agreed to without discussion, and the bill as laid over on third reading, reads as follows, viz:

AN ACT for the better protection of person, property and life in the mining regions of the Commonwealth.

WHEREAS, it is alleged that in certain counties in the mining regions of this Commonwealth many acts of violence have been committed on the persons and property of peaceful citizens, causing great insecurity and frequent destruction of life, and the perpetrators of such outrages and murders have not been brought to punishment:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That it shall be lawful for the Governor of this Commonwealth, on the petition of one or more of the officers of any county in the mining regions of this State, verified by the affidavits of at least twenty such citizens, and other satisfactory proofs, showing that the local authorities of such county are inadequate and insufficient for the protection of person, property and life within such county, or any township, or portion thereof, the Governor is hereby authorized to appoint a marshal of police, and a sufficient number of officers of police, to give adequate protection to the persons and property of the inhabitants of said county, who shall be paid for their services out of the treasury of said county: Provided, That the number of said police for any county shall not exceed one hundred: Provided further, That the commissioners of Schuylkill county are hereby authorized and required to levy and collect a tax, not exceeding one cent per ton, on all coal mined in said county, the proceeds arising from such levy and collection to be paid into the general fund of the county: Provided further, That this tax shall only be collected in the event of the appointment of the police force provided by this act.

SEC. 2. That for the preservation of the peace, the protection of person and property from unlawful acts, the arrest of offenders, and the execution of warrants in all criminal cases, the marshal of police shall have all the like powers, jurisdiction and authority that is vested in the sheriff of said county, and with like powers to summon the posse comitatus in all cases when in his judgment the exigencies of the case may require it, and the said marshal shall receive for his services a salary not exceeding two thousand dollars per year.

SEC. 3. The police officers appointed by this act shall have the like powers and authority as constables for the preservation of the peace, and the arrest of offenders against the laws, and vagrants and persons suspected of crimes or offenses against the law, and also for the execution of criminal process when directed by the marshal of police, by endorsement on the warrant; and the said police officers shall in all cases be subject to the orders of the marshal of police, and shall, when acting under his orders, have the same powers and authority as a deputy sheriff or constable, and any police officer who shall neglect or refuse to obey the command of the marshal of police may at any time be suspended or discharged.

SEC. 4. The marshal of police, or any of the police officers, may at any time be removed by the Governor and others appointed whenever he may think necessary to do so.

SEC. 5. The Governor may make such rules and regulations for the government of the police force authorized by this act as he may think best adapted to make the force efficient, and may create distinctions in rank inferior to the marshal, and the officers holding such rank shall be obeyed and respected as directed by such rules and regulations; and the Governor shall, from time to time, fix and determine the rate of compensation, according to their rank, to be paid to the police officers authorized to be appointed by this act, and any director appointed by the Governor shall be employed as a detective of police, and shall have the power to direct that the said force shall be armed and equipped in such a manner as to render them the most efficient in carrying into full effect the intentions of this act; and the expenses of such arming and equipping shall be paid by said county out of its treasury.

Sec. 6. This act shall continue in force for two years, and the Governor may at any time discharge the whole or any part of the police force, and discharge the marshal from office, when in the opinion of the Governor the police force, or any such part thereof, shall be no longer required for the protection of the inhabitants of said county.

Sec. 7. It shall be lawful for the police appointed under this act, in the execution of their duties, to enter any county adjoining the county in which the commission of the offense may occur in pursuit of the offender, and to make the arrest in such adjoining county with the same power and authority as in the county in which the offense was committed.

Sec. 8. Every person arrested by the said marshal or police, or any of them, shall be delivered to the civil authorities, and be dealt with in accordance with the laws of this Commonwealth.

REPORT FROM A COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE.

MR. MANN, from the committee of conference appointed by the Senate and House of Representatives upon the differences existing between the two Houses in relation to House bill No. 246, entitled An act for the better and more impartial selection of persons to serve as jurors in each of the counties of this Commonwealth, made report that they have agreed to recommend to their respective Houses, the following, viz:

"That the bill be amended by inserting after the word "commissioners," in the first line, second section, the words "president judge, or additional law judge of the respective district, or a majority of them," and in the fourth line, same section, after the word "select" insert the word "alternately;" also, in same line, strike out the words "male taxable citizens," and insert, in lieu thereof, the words "qualified electors;" and also by striking out all after the word "year," in the eighth line of the second section, to, and including the word "jurors," in the fifteenth line of the section; also, in the fifteenth line, same section, after the word "commissioners," insert the words "president judge or additional law judge, or a majority of them," and that the two Houses concur in the bill as amended by the Senate, with the above amendments.

L. D. SHOEMAKER,
WARREN COWLES,
WM. A. WALLACE,
Committee of the Senate.
JOHN S. MANN,
T. D. BARRINGTON,
J. F. CHASE,
Committee of the House.

The question being on agreeing to the report of the committee,

MR. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, as I understand it, this simply substitutes the president judge for the sheriff.

MR. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, the impression seems to be that the president judge has been substituted for the sheriff in this bill, and that the president judge is to have a part in the selection of jurors in the several counties of this Commonwealth. Now, I have been informed by other gentlemen that the part which the president judge is to have in the selection of jurors is merely supervisory.

MR. SHUMAN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know how we are to accomplish that, when the president judge has three or four counties to preside over. We do not want the president judge in this bill at all, it seems to me.

MR. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I want to say in reference to the bill before us, that it seems to me that it makes matters worse than they are now. I never, for a moment, conceived that the president judge presiding over a court should have any such power as this given to him.

This bill was intended to remedy an evil in some parts of the Commonwealth. But, as an illustration, if the Houses take the district of the gentleman from Potter [MR. MANN], for instance, which is composed of five counties, and two or three of those counties might be Democratic. The president judge is Republican. He goes into one of these Democratic counties and selects the jurors; and being a Republican, selects two-thirds Republican jurors. It works, of course, the same the other way. Take the district of the gentleman from Jefferson [MR. JENKS]. There the president judge, being a Democrat, will go into a Republican county, and give them two-thirds Democratic jurors. And, I may say further, that I believe there is scarcely a president judge in this State who will thank us for passing such a bill as this. They are not acquainted with the people at large, except in the county where they live; and, therefore, have not the necessary knowledge to make a proper selection of jurors.

Now, sir, if the bill had passed as it originally passed the House, it might, perhaps, have somewhat remedied the evil complained of; but this merely aggravates it.

MR. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I simply wish to say as the reason why the committee of conference have reported this bill, that it could not report any other. We could not agree upon any other. I believe that this bill may not be perfect; but it is the very best bill we can now pass. I was not in favor of this substitution of the president judge. But it is the only compromise that could be effected, and be acceptable to all.

MR. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, I want to inquire if it is made obligatory upon the president judge to be present in the selection of jurors, or is it left optional with him?

MR. MANN. It is obligatory; but if he does not attend, the two commissioners can discharge that duty.

MR. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, I would be in favor of amending the bill so as to leave it optional with the judge. I do not think there is a judge in the State that wants to be drawn into that duty.

THE SPEAKER. The Chair would state that the bill must be taken as it comes from the committee. The question is on adopting the report of the committee.

MR. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, it strikes me that the labor of this committee has amounted to little or nothing. I do not think that ever remedied the evil; and I would as soon the bill should go over the bay as not. It is a sort of an excuse, and that is all.

MR. MC CREARY. Mr. Speaker, so far as I am concerned, we do not ask any bill. We do not want it. But I was willing to listen to the complaints that came up from my political friends in some parts of the Commonwealth, who claimed that they were not properly represented. I was, therefore, unwilling to vote for any bill that did not accomplish the object sought.

As with all the deference to the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MAXX], I must beg leave to dissent from the conclusion that the committee have come to in this matter.—

I cannot convince my conscience that the difficulty is to be obviated in the manner suggested by the report of this committee, and the gentleman Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] has well stated some of the difficulties. Suppose to the county of York were attached one or two other counties that were Republican, and a Democratic judge should be elected in that district. He goes into the Republican counties and there draws the jurors for them. Therefore, these Republican counties are not as well off as they were before. Wherever you find one Democratic county attached to Republican counties the Democrats will have a majority of the jurors; and the opposite will be true. I cannot see that the difficulty is obviated at all. As has been stated, the judge living off in a remote corner of a district, knows nothing about the inhabitants in other counties. I cannot convince myself that it is proper that the judge should have the right of selecting the jurors. The very men who need this bill are the ones who have thrown the difficulty in the way. I cannot see that anything is to be gained by this bill.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I am very glad that this bill has got into this shape, for I think it is making a matter political that ought not to be. I am opposed to the whole bill, and I think, as it has got into this shape, by voting against the committee of conference we may stand some chance of defeating the bill.

The question being on agreeing to the report of the committee,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MEYERS and Mr. HUMPHREY, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chase, Colville, Davis, DeHaven, Donohugh, Espy, Fegorbra, Ghegan, Harbison, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kinney, Lee, McKee, Mann, Mechling, Peter, Quay, Richards, Roath, Sharp, Stacey, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Sners, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Wright and Glass, Speaker—40.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Day, Deise, Ewing, Fogel, Gordon, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Heitzel, Hoffman, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kimmell, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Leech, Linton, Long, McCannet, McGregory, McHenry, Maish, Maisey, Meilly, Meyers, Mullin, Pennypacker, Phelan, Quincy, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Seiler, Shuman, Westbrook, Whann and Woodward—51.

So the question was determined in the negative.

REASON FOR VOTE.

I vote nay, because I am opposed to any change whatever in the manner of selecting jurors. I wish to leave the system as it now stands, trusting that time will prove the best correction of any abuses that may exist. It looks like the legislating police into the jury box to adopt this report of the conference committee, and I shall vote against it, believing that my convictions are well founded, and I am quite certain they coincide with the sentiments of my constituents upon this question. J. R. DAY.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has receded from its non-concurrence to amendments made by the House of Representatives to Senate bill No. 275, entitled An act to provide an associate law judge of the several courts in the Twenty first Judicial district.

He also informed that the Senate has concurred in the amendments made by the House of Representatives to Senate bills numbered and entitled as follows:

Senate bill No. 1118, an act to authorize the Warren and Franklin railway company to construct branch roads, and to provide means for moving oil intended for transportation.

Senate bill No. 199, a further supplement to an act to incorporate the Kensington and Oxford turnpike road company, approved the 17th day of March, 1842.

He also informed that the Senate has insisted upon its non-concurrence in the amendments made and insisted upon by the House of Representatives to Senate bill numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 413, an act to regulate the carriage of baggage by railroad companies, and to prescribe the duties and obligations of carriers and passengers in relation thereto.

And has appointed Messrs. RIDGWAY, WORTHINGTON and DONOVAN a committee of conference on the part of the Senate, to confer with a similar committee, already appointed by the House of Representatives, on the subject of the differences existing between the two Houses in relation to said bill.

He also informed that the Senate has insisted on its amendments, not concurred in by the House of Representatives, to House bill numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 823, an act to provide for the ordinary expenses of the government, and other general and specific appropriations.

And has appointed Messrs. CONNELL, GRAHAM and McCANDLESS a committee of conference to confer with a similar committee on the part of the House of Representatives (if the House of Representatives shall appoint such committee), on the subject of the difference existing between the two Houses in relation to said bill.

On motion, the amendments made by the Senate to said bill were twice read, considered and non-concurred in, and

Ordered, That Messrs. WADDELL, McKEE and JOSEPHS be a committee on the part of the House to confer with a similar committee on the part of the Senate, already appointed by the Senate, on the subject of the differences existing between the two Houses in relation to said bill, and Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate of the same.

On motion of Mr. STUMBAUGH, the House took a recess until 7½ o'clock, P. M.

EVENTING SESSION.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

REPORT FROM A COMMITTEE.

Mr. MARKLEY, from the Committee on Counties and Townships, to whom was committed Senate bill No. 1001, entitled An act to amend that part of the act of William Nickle which is situated in East Mahoning township, Indiana county, to South Mahoning township, in said county.

Reported the same as committed.

The bill was read and Laid on the table.

REPORT FROM A SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

Mr. HOOD, chairman of the special committee on prohibiting steam engines running through and over the paved streets and built up portions of Philadelphia, asked and obtained leave to submit the following report:

The undersigned, special committee appointed by your Honorable body to inquire into the running of steam locomotives over the paved streets of the city of Philadelphia, have the honor to report that on the 19th day of January, A. D. 1867, they entered upon the duties of their appointment, and held their first meeting on that day, at the office No. 249 South Sixth street, in the city of Philadelphia, and sixteen subsequent meetings, by adjournments, to all of which parties interested were invited by public advertisement. A large number of witnesses were examined by your committee and their evidence reduced to writing, which testimony is contained in the accompanying documents, and herewith submitted.

Your committee, before closing this report, would say, that from the evidence received by them, and herewith submitted, that they are warranted in recommending such legislation in the premises that will compel all steam passenger railroad companies to locate their depots at one central place in the city of Philadelphia, and thereby obviate the great inconvenience that now exists to the traveling public, in passing from one depot to another. This, your committee suggests, can be attained without inconvenience or danger to the inhabitants of the city, by the railroad companies tunneling under the paved streets and built up parts of said city. All of which is respectfully reported.

(Signed)

WM. B. HOOD,
Chairman.
Geo. A. QUIGLEY,
Geo. W. GHEGAN,
Geo. DELAVER, JR.,
Wm. J. DONOHUGH.

During the consideration of bills on private calendar the following remarks were made on Senate bill No. 1253, an act to change the venue in certain cases from Allegheny to Jefferson county:

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, I don't know that it will do much good to talk on this subject; but I cannot refrain from expressing my surprise that there should be found any gentleman in this House who would undertake to advocate a measure of this kind. Not, sir, that I would charge that there is any objection in the bill, or anything of the kind, or the actual perversion of the law. There has been considerable legislation here this winter on this question of changing venues; and, sir, I contend that this bill, for absurdity, goes farther than the very farthest that has been presented this winter.

'This wise and salutary provision of the law was intended for a good purpose, or it was intended for no purpose at all. It was intended, Mr. Speaker, if I understand it, that where there is undue excitement in a community, or where the judges are prejudiced—that in cases of this kind it was to apply. But I contend in this case there are none of these influences, and the law for a change of venue cannot apply at all. There is no excitement in Allegheny county over this subject; and I say, without fear of contradiction, that there is not one man in five hundred—no, not one man in one thousand outside of the bar of Allegheny county who knows anything of this matter. There is some excitement in the bar—no, excitement is not the word! There is indignation! because they have understood that this measure has been brought here for the purpose of running it through without notice being given to the parties. Why change this venue? Are not our judges as competent to try this case as the judges in Jefferson county? Are not the people of Allegheny fully as honest and fair as the people in Jefferson? I hope this House is not prepared to change the venue in this case. I appeal to the members on this floor—I ask them, Are you satisfied there is any excitement in Allegheny county on this question? If not, can you vote for this bill? Are you satisfied that the witnesses have been tampered with? If not, how can you vote for this bill? Are you satisfied that the judges are prejudiced, and not competent to try this case? If not, why vote for this bill? I hope gentlemen will reflect on this matter and not do so great an injustice, commit so great a wrong, as is proposed to be done in this case.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I do not think the reason from Allegheny [Mr. Wilson] has given this House any reason why the bill should not pass. The parties who desire the passage of this bill do not charge undue excitement in Allegheny county. That is not the reason for which they desire a change of venue. The reason is this: The business transaction was in Jefferson county. The witnesses all reside in Jefferson county, and it would put the defendant in this case to a great deal of expense to have the case tried in any other than Jefferson county. There cannot possibly be many witnesses in Pittsburg, for the reason, as I said before, that the transaction occurred in Jefferson. At the time it took place, both parties resided in Jefferson county. One of them has since removed to Allegheny. I think I am correct in this statement.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is not correct. Two of the parties live in Allegheny and one in Jefferson.

Mr. QUIGLEY. But all the witnesses live in Jefferson county.

Now, the parties who wish this change of venue are poor, and all the parties who are opposing it are wealthy. The gentleman has given this House no reason why the bill should not pass. The parties who are interested were certainly notified of this bill in the other Chamber. Two Senators from Allegheny opposed the bill bitterly, notwithstanding the bill passed. I believe it to be fair and proper and just, and I trust the House will pass it.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, if I gave no reason why the bill should not pass, the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. QUIGLEY] has certainly given no reason why the bill should pass. The parties were not aware of this bill; they have been taken by surprise.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Did not the two Senators from Allegheny oppose this in the other chamber?

Mr. WILSON. I don't know; but that is no reason why we should pass it here. I hope the House will not agree to change the venue in this case.

Mr. MECHLING. Mr. Speaker, as it appears to be the rule of this House to change venues, I am very willing to fall into the rule in the present instance. I believe there is some merit in the application of the gentleman who has asked for a change of the venue. At least it comes under the same principle as did the case for which I asked a change of venue the other evening.

Now, I am credibly informed that there is but one witness in this suit, who lives in Allegheny county; all the rest of them live some eighty or one hundred miles from Pittsburg. I know nothing particularly of the case. But the gentleman, in his affidavit, assents that he cannot get justice in Allegheny county, and he cannot possibly get his necessities here. I believe, if there are any merits in all changing venues, that there is merit in this case. I am acquainted with the gentleman who has made application, and I know him to be a very fair, honest and upright man; he is in moderate circumstances in life, and not able to go to Allegheny to prosecute this party, who has done him, as he says, a great injury.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call the attention of this House to the facts in this case. No man in the House understands it so well as myself. The gentleman from Allegheny asked the question, when he started out, whether there was any corruption in this bill.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to correct the gentleman from Jefferson; I said I could not say there was any corruption.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, the reason for the change of venue is founded on this state of facts: The party who applies for it, entered into a contract with Samuel Lewis and Nelson about 1863. Lewis and Nelson had purchased certain lands. They agreed with a superintendent to erect certain mills, and they agreed to allow him a certain commission for manufacturing and delivering lumber at Pittsburg, and they agreed they would give him a portion of this land when he had delivered a certain amount of lumber. He went on, under the contract, and performed it, so far as to deliver a large quantity of lumber.

A controversy arose between the parties as to who was entitled to the ownership of the lumber. An action of replevin was brought, and the court held that Lewis was entitled to the lumber. He recovered judgment in the sum of nineteen thousand dollars. That judgment was paid off, but the controversy was not settled. The question of agreeing to the accounts between the parties remained. The contracts concerning that land were made in Jefferson county, in the presence of Jefferson county witnesses, and the performance or non-performance of this contract can be proven by witnesses in Jefferson county, and may further state, that Mr. Lewis, in order to evade being brought to justice in this matter, has gone out of that county. He left it about two years ago. He compelled Corbett to file a bill in equity against him, and to take his witnesses down there at an immense cost.

Then, as to another branch of the case, I may state that Samuel Lewis was a resident of Jefferson county—was born there—has resided with his family—he has friends living there now. Corbett was born there—resided there—has his friends living in this county—so there can be no excitement whatever.—The simple question is, whether the Legislature will compel Lewis to go, and have the case tried where the cause of difficulty occurred, or whether they will help him to evade the law, by remaining out of the jurisdiction of the court, to which he is properly amenable. That is the point in the case.—Now, if the matter had taken place in Allegheny county, it would have been different. But here is a man evading process of the court, compelling a man whom he has wronged—whom we all know he has wronged, to follow him at a ruinous cost, where every advantage is on the side of Lewis, and against Corbett. These are the facts of the case.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, if this is a specimen of the feeling that prevails in Jefferson county, I want to know how this gentleman is to get justice there? It is a singular fact (and gentlemen may have noticed it), that in every case where a change of venue has been asked, the plea of poverty has been made. It has been made over and over again, and upon all occasions. I ask this House if they are not satisfied that these parties will receive justice better in Allegheny than they can in Jefferson; particularly, if we have just seen a specimen of the feeling that prevails in Jefferson? It seems to me a trivial thing to be asking this House for a change of venue in this and many similar cases that have been brought before us this winter. As I said before, a change of venue should never come up in ordinary cases.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, the reason of my remarks was that the House might understand, and that it might know the facts, as it was entitled to know them. I do not come here to take advantage of this House.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know whether the gentleman from Jefferson [Mr. JENKS] is not an attorney in the case? Mr. JENKS. I am not.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I desire simply to say that I have voted on several of these questions against a change of venue. But I voted in every case against the removal, while the party asking for it did not give what seemed to me good grounds for the change. I hold that when a party comes to the Legislature and asks a change of venue, he is bound to show the necessity for such change; and I think that was the position the gentleman from Jefferson [Mr. JENKS] took on a former occasion. Now, what necessity is shown in this case? No shadow of necessity except the convenience of the parties.

It seems to me that there is an entire change of front, this evening, on the part of the gentleman on this side of the House. They have insisted, strenuously, heretofore, that the change of venues was a grave question; and that an application for a removal should not be granted, unless it was shown clearly, and beyond all question, that a necessity for it existed; yet, here is a case where no necessity is shown, except the mere convenience of the parties. There is no pretense that justice will not be done in the county of Allegheny, under the law, and the evidence; not a shadow of pretense that the court is prejudiced, or that there is an excitement, and that a fair jury cannot be drawn. We have merely a plea of convenience, and such a plea might be made in every case.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill?
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MECHLING and Mr. QUIGLEY, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Barrington, Barton, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Brown, Calvin, Chalfant, Chase, Collins, DeHaven, Ewing, Fogel, Freeborn, Gordon, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Hood, Hunt, Jones, Kimmell, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Long, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Maish, Markley, Mechling, Meyers, Pennypacker, Quay, Quigley, Rhoads, Richards, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Shuman, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Weller, Westbrook and Wharton—50.

NAYS—Messrs. Armstrong, Cameron, Colville, Day, Donohugh, Espy, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Joseph, Kennedy, Kerns, Kinney, Lee, M'Camant, M'Keay, Mann, Melly, Roath, Seiler, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Subers, Webb, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Wright and Glass, Speaker—21.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

So the bill
Passed finally.
The question recurring,

Will the House suspend the rules and read the bill a third time?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr.

M'KEE and Mr. CAMERON, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Barrington, Barton, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Brown, Calvin, Cameron, Chalfant, Chase, Collins, DeHaven, Ewing, Fogel, Freeborn, Gordon, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hood, Hunt, Jones, Kimmell, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Leech, Long, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Maish, Markley, Mechling, Meyers, Mullin, Pennypacker, Phelan, Quay, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Shuman, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Weller, Westbrook and Wharton—54.

NAYS—Messrs. Armstrong, Colville, Davis, Day, Donohugh, Espy, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kinney, Lee, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Keay, Mann, Melly, Richards, Roath, Seiler, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Subers, Webb, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Wright and Glass, Speaker—32.

So the question was determined in the negative.

Two thirds not having voted in the affirmative, the bill went over to third reading.

BILL RECONSIDERED.

On motion of Mr. KINNEY, the House proceeded to reconsider the vote had on Senate bill No. 1805, entitled An act regulating proceedings in the courts of equity.

Question on agreeing to the first section of the bill.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I trust the House will not go back upon its action this forenoon. This bill was fully argued this morning. Since it is now upon its reconsideration, I trust the members of the House will pay attention to it, and know what bill it is. This bill is to compel parties, in whatever part of the State they may live, to go to Philadelphia. This bill was drawn up by one of the ablest jurists in this State, to meet the wants of all in the State.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, this bill, which it is now proposed to repeal, compels all parties in injunction suits to bring their actions in the county where the injury is alleged to have been sustained. What argument has been given for the repeal of this bill? None whatever. There must be some unperceived reason. No cause has been shown to this House.

On agreeing to the bill,
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MANN and Mr. LEE, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barton, Cameron, Collins, Davis, DeHaven, Donohugh, Freeborn, Ghegan, Gregory, Harbison, Headman, Hoffman, Hood, Humphrey, Josephs, Kinney, Kerns, Kinney, Koon, Kurtz, Lee, Long, M'Henry, M'Keay, Mechling, Mullin, Quay, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Watt, Westbrook, Wharton, Wingard and Wright—46.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyd, Breen, Brown, Calvin, Chalfant, Colville, Craik, Day, Espy, Ewing, Gordon, Harner, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Leech, M'Creary, M'Pherrin, Maish, Mann, Markley, Melly, Meyers, Pennypacker, Phelan, Richards, Roath, Waddell, Webb, Weller, Woodward and Glass, Speaker—32.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the bill was
Agreed to.
The House refused to suspend the rules and read the bill a third time.

So the bill went over to third reading.
Senate bill No. 1593, a supplement to the Erie and Allegheny railroad company, authorizing connections with their road, of the east line of the township of North-East, with any railroad from the State of New York, and the west line with any railroad constructed, or to be constructed, in the State of Ohio, and, also, authorized said Erie and Allegheny railroad company to connect their road, within the county of Crawford, with the Atlantic and Great Western railroad company, with the same legal effect as though the connection was made within the county of Erie.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I trust the House will not pass this bill; it is the most perfect anachronism presented this evening.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, it might be argued enough for me to say I trust the House will pass this bill.

If the gentleman has any objection to the bill, let him state it. It is presumed that the bill is all right. If he has any objection to it, I think the House has a right to demand that he rise in his place, and state what his objections are.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, this bill authorizes Ohio and New York to run riot all over our State. It connects with the Atlantic and Great Western road, and with all the other roads that cross our State, and make it the medium of transit for foreign corporations. If this Legislature is willing to pass such a bill, let it do so. But I trust the bill will not pass.

It has been before us in some shape or another for several years.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I do not know why the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE] should object to this bill. It does not propose to interfere with railroads in his district. I was quite amused some time ago; while incidentally looking over some private calendars I discovered this bill had various marks upon it; some had the words "knock it;" some had the words "kill it," as if it had been a mad dog.

Now, I am free to say, if the members of this House understood this bill not one man would vote against, unless he violated his own conscience.

The gentleman says it is going to allow New York and Ohio to run riot over our State. Why, it was but a few years ago that this Legislature granted to the Atlantic and Great Western company the privilege of coming from New York, running across the corner of Pennsylvania and Ohio, and leaving Erie out in the corner. Two or three years since a charter was granted to a road running south; charters have been granted to roads running to Pittsburgh and Cleveland. We propose to connect a road running south with Erie. New York has a road running down to the State line, but we have no right to meet it. Our city, if it is allowed the advantages and opportunities it desires, will grow up to be one of the first cities in the State, aiding the Commonwealth with its vast revenue. What objection can be raised to a local bill of this character. I trust the members of this House will discard all these little trifling notions of political economy, and pass a law that will benefit our city and the State.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I do not know what harm the passage of this act will do. I can conceive that it will do good. Why it should be opposed, I am at a loss to determine; and why a note should be written on this bill, on the files of the members of this House, indicating that this is a bill upon which they feel bound to exercise their vengeance, I cannot see. It seems to me that it would be a very good thing for us to understand the relations sustained by the corporations of this Commonwealth. Now, if it was but known to the people of the country generally that every bill opposed to the ideas of certain parties, who manage a great company, called the Pennsylvania Central railroad company, was to be defeated, I think we would have such an expression as would settle such business forever. There seems a disposition common here. Where a man is about to leave the realm, and it was supposed his services might be required by the kingdom, the axiom "ne exeat" (let him not depart) was applied. Now, so long as the railroads of this State centre towards the Pennsylvania Central, no opposition is made; but as soon as it is attempted to run a road to a different direction, and perhaps connect with some other road, carrying trade to another point, then the whole power of the company is brought to bear against it.

Now, I am in favor of this bill. I say it is time we should bring this narrow policy to a close. It is time we should know whether, every time we propose a railroad in the western part of the State, it is to be met with objections unless it meets with the approbation of the members of the Philadelphia company. We want to know whether we are longer to be enslaved in this way. We want to know whether we have not the privilege of trading where we please, whether we are to have the writ of ne exeat served upon us, unless we first consult the persons in charge of that company. I have it from the Senator from Erie [Mr. LEE] that this road will go to a close. It is time that it is required by his county. It is the only bill he proposed this session, and he asks, as a personal favor, that it shall pass. I hope the House will pass the bill.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, I do not know why the gentleman from Jefferson [Mr. JENKS] has a right to assume that the Pennsylvania railroad, or anybody else, is opposing this bill. For my own part, I cannot see anything in the bill, and I shall be very willing, if it were simply to gratify the Senator from Erie, to allow him this road. I do not know that there is anybody making opposition to this bill, not the men who would like to injure any one. It may do good for that portion of the State. I think we may as well have a vote on the bill.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I was very glad to hear the announcement of the gentleman from Chester [Mr. SHARPLES], that he saw no objection to this bill. It shows he thinks it will pass. I hope he is correct. For myself, I think the marks the gentleman from Erie Mr. M'CREARY saw around this bill, is a pretty sure indication it will not pass.

I believe, Mr. Speaker, that I can take the yeas and nays on the bill for the Connellsville railroad, and name the men who will vote for, and those who will vote against this bill. I may be mistaken, but that is what I believe. I stand up here now, to announce before the community that I believe the same agency that killed the Connellsville railroad is attempting to kill this bill; and I do not know why it should not succeed, for it is usually pretty successful in all its attempts on this floor. It chose, a few moments ago, to kill an innocent bill compelling parties to bring their suits in this Commonwealth where the injury was sustained, and the very men who voted to repeal that bill, killed the Connellsville railroad, the very same men; and I believe it has become notorious that the agents of this power go around the floor, and mark up bills that are to be "put through." I do not believe that an angel from Heaven—much less the honored Senator from Erie—could pass this bill in opposition to this unseen power. The gentleman from Chester [Mr. SHARPLES] has said there is no harm in this bill, and that is the simple truth. I am very much afraid that he spoke unwittingly, and without leave of the authorities that control this Legislature.

The gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE], who leads that interest on this floor, has been unable to point out a single objection to this bill, except that it is against the interest of a single corporation. I think the gentleman from Chester [Mr. SHARPLES] was mistaken in the belief that he seemed to entertain, that this bill would pass.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I simply desire to say, in reply to my friend from Potter [Mr. MANN], that his own proposition is true; that this is a bill contrary to the interests of the greatest enterprise in this State, an enterprise that has done more to develop the resources of the State than any other.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill?
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. COLVILLE and Mr. M'CREARY, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Allen, Barton, Boyd, Boyle, Chalfant, Chase, Collins, Colville, Craig, Davis, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gordon, Harner, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Kimmell, Kurtz, Leech, Linton, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Maish, Mann, Mackley, Meyers, Phelan, Quay, Richards, Roush, Satterthwait, Sharples, Shuman, Wallace, Weller, Wilson, Wingard and Woodward—44.

NAYS—Messrs. ADAIRE, Armstrong, Brown, Calvin, Cameron, De Haven, Ghegan, Gregory, Harbison, Hoffman, Hood, Joseph, Kennedy, Kerne, Kinney, Koon, Lee, Long, M'Camant, M'Henry, Meily, Mullin, Quigley, Rhoads, Seiler, Steacy, Stehman, Subers, Waddell, Watt, Webb, Westbrook and Wright—34.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The bill then went over to third reading.

GENERAL JURY BILL.

Mr. GORDON moved to reconsider the vote had in committee of conference on bill No. 216, the general jury bill.

Mr. BOYLE moved to definitely postpone the motion to reconsider.

On agreeing to the motion to postpone,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MANN and Mr. DeHAVEN, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Ewing, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Hoffman, Hood, Hunt, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Leech, Linton, Long, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Maish, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush and Westbrook—32.

NAYS—Messrs. ADAIRE, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, DeHaven, Espy, Freeborn, Ghegan, Gordon, Harbison, Humphrey, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, M'Creary, M'Kee, Mann, Meehling, Meily, Quay, Richards, Roush, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward and Wright—44.

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the motion was

Not agreed to.
The question recurring on the motion to reconsider,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BOYLE and COLLINS, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. ADAIRE, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, DeHaven, Espy, Freeborn, Gordon, Harbison, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Mann, Meehling, Meily, Quay, Richards, Roush, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Wright and Glass, Speaker—45.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brenan, Calvin, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Ewing, Fogel, Gregory Harner, Headman, Hoffman, Hood, Hunt, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Leech, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Westbrook and Whann—34.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the report was again before the House. The question recurring on the adoption of the report of the committee of conference.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. HUMPHREY and Mr. MEYERS, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Obadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, DeHaven, Epsy, Fceehorn, Gordon, Harbison, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, M'Creary, M'Kee, Mann, Meehling, Meily, Quay, Richards, Roath, Satterthwait, Sharples, Shuman, Stacy, Stehman, Stiers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Wright and Glass, Speaker—44.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Ewing, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Hoffman; Hood, Hunt, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Leech, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Seiler and Westbrook—34.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

So the report was

Agreed to.

Senate bill No. 1242, a supplement to an act providing for the sale of the house of employment and support of the poor of Bedford county, and the appointment of commissioners, by the court of quarter sessions, to purchase land and erect buildings, and to authorize the levying of taxes, and borrowing money for said purposes.

Mr. RICHARDS. Mr. Speaker, I sent a copy of this bill, a few days ago, to Bedford, where the bill is intended to apply. And I have just received a dispatch stating that the bill is not what the people want, and asking me to prevent its passage. I therefore desire that the bill be voted down.

The bill was

Not agreed to.

No. 1637, an act to change the venue in the case of Alexander Gold, William Ackison and Henry Meeker to Dauphin county.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. Speaker, this is a bill that affects the district I represent. I should like to hear from the gentleman who has it in charge.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, this is a bill, also, which affects one of my constituents. I am not in the habit of interfering with the local legislation of any gentleman of this floor. Since I have been a member of the Legislature, I have persistently abstained from interfering with any man's local bill, except where my own constituency were directly interested. But it is always the case, that a bill for a change of venue must conflict with different constituencies—the very nature of it requires that it should conflict. For example: If I desire to change the venue from my county, I must conflict with the representatives of that district. In this case, where it is desired to have a change of venue from the county of Monroe to the county of Northampton, there must necessarily be a conflict between the representatives of those two constituencies.

Now, I do not propose to allude to the facts in this case, nor do I presume my friend, the gentleman from Carbon [Mr. CRAIG], will allude to them: It will be utterly useless and idle to do so. This House is not a jury empaneled to try the case, and allegations on the one side, of innocence, and allegations on the other side, of guilt, will amount to nothing in influencing the judgment of the House, in regard to the change of venue. The reason assigned for the change of venue, so far as I have been able to ascertain, is the existence of an unconquerable prejudice, which renders it impossible for the defendants to get a fair trial. This is not a case involving politics—the issues of life and death are involved. There was a trial had upon the merits of this case in the county of Carbon. The defendants were indicted for murder in the first degree—each man separately. The jury brought in a verdict of manslaughter, but the judge, a fair and impartial man, as every one will admit, set aside the verdict without argument—at all events the verdict was set aside.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, is not the gentleman from Lycoming [Mr. WINGARD] aware that the crime was committed in Carbon county, and therefore the court had no jurisdiction?

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I understand that was the ground upon which a motion for a new trial was predicated—that there could be no legal conviction. But the jury, notwithstanding the court had no jurisdiction, brought in a verdict of manslaughter. Now, it is proposed to take this case to Monroe county, where the death took place.

Let me say, further, this case required a post mortem examination. The examination was made at a subsequent time. The defendant desired another examination of the body. Dr. Gross, and several other surgeons, proceeded with the defendant's father and others to the cemetery, for the purpose of disintering the body, and proceeding with the examination. Upon arriving at the vault, they discovered it had been locked. They were refused admittance, and at last driven off. They were not allowed to disinter the body.

Now, it is proposed to take the case to the county of Northampton.

This case was tried before a Democratic judge, in a Democratic county, and it is proposed to take it to Northampton, which is also a Democratic county. So we do not ask anything on the ground of political consideration.

Furthermore, in order to go to the county of Monroe, I am told the defendant would have to travel over a road, some thirty miles, by hired conveyances; and convey a large number of witnesses who have been summoned, and who will be summoned again, when the trial takes place. To go from Carbon to Northampton, persons have a railroad, and witnesses can be transported with much less cost, and much less inconvenience to all parties.

Now, I ask what reason is there why this venue should not be changed to Northampton, and I expect to hear from the gentleman from Carbon [Mr. CRAIG] in this regard. I trust he will not go into an allegation of the facts in regard to this case; because I can allege facts as well as he; and I do not desire the time of the House to be taken up with a sort of discussion. The presumption of innocence lies in favor of every man accused, until he is proven guilty; and the law further declares that if any doubt exists as to the guilt of the prisoner, that doubt shall be cast in his favor; and I take it that this is a case of precisely this character. If there be a doubt weighing in the mind of any gentleman in this House as to this man, and his co-defendants, who are to be tried for their lives, getting a fair trial in the county of Monroe, should vote in favor of this change of venue. As I said before, this is not a political question. It is a question whether this man, now in prison, and who has been in prison with his co-defendants ever since the day he was arrested, shall have a fair and impartial trial.

Now, I have taken it upon myself to defend the change of venue, for the simple reason that I know the father of this boy, who has lived for years in the city of Williamsport; who has brought up his family there, and established his character as a man of integrity. His tall form is already bent with grief. His face, scarcely less white than the hoary hairs of his head, by reason of the terrible blow he has received in the unfortunate situation of his son. I ask this House if, in the case of life and death, they will grant this poor privilege? I trust the House will grant this change of venue.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. Speaker, I must ask the indulgence of the House, if I am a little prolix. I desire to give to the House a fair statement of the case.

Mr. WINGARD. I said when I commenced my remarks, that I would not go into the facts of the case. I based my remarks on the ground that there was such a prejudice existing that the prisoner could not get a fair trial.

Now, if the gentleman from Carbon [Mr. CRAIG] alleges a certain state of facts, I shall deny the existence of those facts.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. Speaker, I understand the gentleman from Lycoming [Mr. WINGARD] perfectly. He made his speech in his way; I desire to make mine in my way. This is a case that concerns my district entirely; yet I do not deny the gentleman from Lycoming the privilege of advocating his cause.

Now, what are the facts of the case? This is a bill asking for a change of venue for three persons who have been indicted in the county of Carbon for a murder which occurred in the commission of a rape. But the change of venue is not asked in the indictment for murder alone, but also in the charge of rape, and for assault and battery with intent, &c. The indictment for murder was found in the county of Carbon, and the case was brought to trial there about a month ago. Each defendant asked a separate trial, and this first defendant was placed upon his trial in the county of Carbon. After the jury had brought in a verdict of guilty of manslaughter, it was suddenly discovered the girl had died in the county of Monroe, although the deed was committed in the county of Carbon. The judge granted a new trial upon the ground that he had no jurisdiction. The new trial was granted on the ground of unfairness or prejudice.

Both the defendants ask for a change of venue from Monroe to Northampton. The gentleman from Lycoming alleges there is a prejudice in the county of Carbon against these three defendants. I take it upon myself, as a member of this House, to deny that in toto. I was in Carbon where the offense was committed, and I know what the sentiments of the people were. It was talked about as an outrage of the kind would naturally be talked of. There was no excitement in the matter, no unfairness, or prejudice manifested against either of these three defendants. I tell the gentlemen of this House that the young man had a fair trial in the county of Carbon. The men who sat upon the jury were as respectable and intelligent as any we have in the county. They were men of the same political predilections as the prisoners. Some of the most prominent Republicans in our county were upon the jury.

The body of the young girl was twice disinterred for purposes of medical examination. But after she had lain in her grave three months the defendants sent another delegation to disinter her for the third time. Then it was that her parents refused to allow her remains to be again disturbed. There was no undue prejudice in the matter.

I will call the attention of the gentleman from Lycoming to another fact: the Dr. Pancoast mentioned in connection with this affair is not Professor Pancoast, but a "Dr. Pancoast" who advertises, as I understand, in the newspapers for his business.

This young man can receive a fair trial without a change of venue. There is no reason why this application should be granted. The gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] stated no venue should be granted unless a proper reason were given; and I agree with him.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, why should not this case go to Northampton county, where transportation can be had by railroad, rather than to Monroe, where there must be some thirty miles of wagon traveling?

In regard to Dr. Pancoast, I desire to say that he is one of the most eminent physicians in Philadelphia.

The bill being amended by Mr. CRAIG,

The question was,

Will the House agree to the bill as amended?

On this

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WINGARD and Mr. MARKLEY, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Fairless, Cameron, Chase, Davis, De Haven, Gordon, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kinney, Lee, Mann, Meehling, Roath, Ronsb, Seiler, Steacy, Stumbaugh, Subers, Watt, Webb, Whancy, Wingard, Wright and Glass, Speaker—25.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Armstrong, Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Calvin, Chadwick, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Espy, Fogel, Freeborn, Gregory, Harner, Hood, Hunt, Jones, Kimmell, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Mullis, Quay, Quigley, Rhoads, Richards, Satterthwaite, Shuman, Sharp, Wallace, Weller and Westbrook—40.

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the bill was

Not agreed to.

The House then adjourned till to-morrow (Wednesday) morning at 9 o'clock, A. M.

SENATE.

The bill was read.

Mr. MCANDLESS. Mr. Speaker, I do not think there is a necessity for this. Nearly all the data required can be found in the muster-in and muster out rolls of the different companies. Every gentleman on the floor here, who has been in the army, is familiar with the subject, and knows that this is a work of supererogation.

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence.) Mr. Speaker, the work is in progress at this time, and if this Senate shall detain its progress it will place itself in rather an embarrassing position with those organizations by which the late war against the rebellion was prosecuted. Those officers and men are expecting this history to be published. Circulars have been sent to every commander of a regiment in the State, and to very many other persons now thoroughly interested in furnishing the facts. This Legislature will place itself in an unfortunate position if it endeavors to practice economy at the expense of the records of those brave men who fought her battles.

I would ask the gentleman if all the facts desirable to be treasured up are to be found in these records which he speaks of? I say that the desirable facts are not in those muster rolls; they are a very barren record. They are not the details contemplated to be obtained relative to the history of the brave men who have fallen in the charges upon the works of the enemy. It is contemplated to give at least each man that served his country a line, with some special facts connected with that history, more than you will find in any muster roll on the records of the Adjutant General, and I hope that we will not now treat this matter so badly as to suspend operations on this history.

Mr. MCANDLESS. Mr. Speaker, there is no man here who will go farther to perpetuate the memory of the dead and the living, who have served in the late war, than I will; but any man who has been in the army knows that there is a most complete record of every man who was attached to the army. I desire this history to be written, and I desire a contract to be entered into with the gentleman who proposes to do it, containing some fixed sum which shall be compensation for his services.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, this record is being written by a man abundantly competent to perform the work. It is under the supervision of the Governor of the Commonwealth, and, as has been stated by the Senator from Lawrence (Mr. BROWNE), the material is being collected all over the Commonwealth, and if the Senator knew the condition of that work as I know it he would not vote against this proposition. I trust the Senate will pass this bill.

The bill was read a third time, and

The bill was read.

Mr. HAINES, Mr. Speaker, my friend, the Senator from Union, is interested in this bill, and all the members in the other branch, from both his and my district, are in favor of it, and he can see no reason why it should not pass. It merely gives them the privilege of selecting their terminus at the end of the route, and can affect no one, and I hope it will pass.

Mr. WALLS. It cannot affect the Senator's district at all, but when they come down to our district, they divide the line, and it will do as a serious injury.

The bill was laid over on a third reading.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House Representatives being introduced, informed that the House of Representatives has concurred in the resolution from the Senate requesting the suspension of the joint rule, so far as relates to the transmission of Senate bills Nos. 1532, 144, 1847, 1649, 1658, 1659, 1718, 1752, 1799, 1942, 1948, 1949, 1950, 1951, 1952, 1953, 1954, 1955,

With an amendment, adding House bills numbered and entitled as follows:

No. 2186, an act requiring the North Pennsylvania railroad and the Frankford and Southward railroad company to appoint a watchman on the crossing of Berks and America streets.

No. 1720, an act transferring the farm of Augustine Walters from Allegheny township, Cambria county, to Loretto borough, in same county, for school purposes.

To which amendment the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

On motion of Mr. BIGHAM, the amendment was twice read and Concurred in.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives also informed that the House of Representatives has concurred in the resolution from the Senate requesting the suspension of the joint rule, so far as it relates to the transmission of Senate bill entitled An act for the relief of John Canbey, of Beaver county.

He also informed that the House of Representatives has adopted the report of the committee on the petition appointed to confer upon the subject of the differences existing between the two Houses on Senate bill numbered and entitled as follows:

No. 413, an act entitled An act to regulate the carriage of baggage by railroad companies, and to prescribe the duties and obligations of carriers and passengers in relation thereto.

He also informed that the House of Representatives has non-concurred in the amendments made by the Senate to bill from the House numbered and entitled as follows:

No. 697, an act to incorporate the Monongahela in the plane company.
No. 792, an act authorizing the sale of the Allegheny City poor farm, and to purchase another for the same purpose.
Said bills having been returned by the Governor in pursuance of joint resolution requesting the same.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives also informed that the House of Representatives has non-concurred in the amendments made by the Senate to bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

No. 1327, an act to vacate part of Buck road in the Twenty-sixth ward of the city of Philadelphia.
Said amendment having been again read.

Mr. M'CANDESS moved that the Senate insist upon its amendments non-concurred in by the House of Representatives, and that a committee of conference be appointed to confer with a similar committee of the House of Representatives (if the House of Representatives appoint such committee), on the subject of the differences between the two Houses in relation to said bill.

The motion was

Agreed to,
And Messrs. M'CANDESS, DONOVAN and RIDGWAY were appointed the committee.

THE ISSUING OF LICENSES IN CERTAIN TOWNSHIPS.

The House having non-concurred in the amendment of the Senate to bill entitled An act to extend the provisions of an act to prohibit the issuing of licenses within certain boroughs in the counties of Armstrong, Potter, Indiana and Perry, or within two miles of the same in the counties in which such boroughs are located, approved 27th day of March, 1866, to the boroughs of West Newton and Mount Pleasant, in the county of Westmoreland.

Mr. BIGHAM moved that the Senate recede from its amendments.

Mr. SEARIGHT. I do want the Senate to understand that this matter refers to my district alone.

Mr. BIGHAM. I have something to say about this. Two of the members of the other branch came over here this morning and asked me that we should recede in this matter; the immediate members from that county asked that the Senate recede.

Mr. SEARIGHT. Mr. Speaker, to show how much at fault the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM] is, and how apt to mislead the Senate on this question, he has stated that the members—more than one of the members of the immediate representatives from Westmoreland—have told him that they desire this to pass without the Senate amendment. Now, when I tell you that there is but one member from Westmoreland county, the Senate will see how he has misrepresented.

Mr. RANDALL. The Senate seems to have a right to interfere with my district; I do not see why not with Westmoreland.

Mr. SEARIGHT. The town I want exempted is on the line, and nearer to me than any other; and I insist that there is but one member.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I do not care about interfering, except to say this: Indiana and Westmoreland elected their representatives; Colonel Gallagher is the representative from Westmoreland county; I represent his wishes here. The bill was passed over there with West Newton and Mount Pleasant in. It came here, and at the instance of the Senator from Fayette [Mr. SEARIGHT] Mount Pleasant was stricken out. When it went over there again, Colonel Gallagher refused to concur, and now the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM] asks the Senate to stand by the representative from Westmoreland. I am going to vote with Colonel Gallagher.

Mr. SEARIGHT. And the Senator has voted that way all winter—to take away the legislation of my district and place it in the hands of somebody else. I ask the Senator if I do not live nearer this place than Colonel Gallagher? The reason I ask to have it stricken out is because I am so instructed by the people. I am also instructed to let it go to West Newton. The people ask to let it go.

On the final passage of the bill, Mr. SEARIGHT and Mr. WHITE, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigbam, Billingfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Donovan, Fisher, Graham, Landon, M'Conaughy, Royer, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, White and Worthington—18.

NAYS—Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Glatz, James, Lowry, M'Canless, Randall, Ridgway, Schall, Searight, Wallace, Walls and Hall, Speaker—13.

So the bill

Passed finally.
During the call,
Mr. COWLES said: Mr. Speaker, Colonel Gallagher came in here some time since and appealed to me to vote for this measure. It was the appeal of a gallant soldier, one who has worn the uniform. I shall stand by him. I vote "aye."

Also, during the call,

Mr. FISHER said: From the fact that General Gallagher came over here and intimated that they did not want this stricken out of the bill, I vote "aye."

Also, during the call,
Mr. GLATZ said: As Colonel Gallagher did not come to see me, I vote "no."

Also, during the call,
Mr. STUTZMAN said: As Colonel Gallagher did come to see me, I vote "aye."

BILLS PASSED.

On motion of Mr. TAYLOR, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of a bill entitled An act for the relief of John Caughey, of Beaver county.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. COLEMAN the Committee on Roads and Bridges was discharged from the further consideration of a bill entitled An act to grade and pave certain streets in Hummelstown, Dauphin county.

And the rules having been dispensed with, The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of a bill entitled

An act to increase the revenues of the Commonwealth by taxation of the shares on stock of the national banks.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

CONCURRENCE IN HOUSE AMENDMENTS.

On motion of Mr. STUTZMAN, the amendments made by the House of Representatives to bill entitled A further supplement to a further supplement to an act incorporating the Bedford iron company, approved the 1st day of May, 1861, was read a second time, and concurred in.

The hour of one o'clock having arrived, the SPEAKER adjourned the Senate until this afternoon at three o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Senate reassembled at 3 P. M.

BILL ON THIRD READING.

On motion of Mr. FISHER, the Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of a bill entitled An act to provide for the improvement of the inspection laws in regard to the inspection of whisky in the county of Philadelphia.

The bill

Passed finally.

BILL PASSED.

On leave Mr. SHOEMAKER read in place and presented to the Chair a bill entitled An act to repeal an act to incorporate the Citizens' turnpike and macadamized road company, approved April 10, 1867.

Referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

On motion of Mr. SHOEMAKER, the Committee on Reads and Bridges was discharged from the further consideration of said bill.

And the rules having been dispensed with, The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Mr. SHOEMAKER offered the following resolution, which was twice read:

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur) That the ninth joint rule be suspended so far as relates to the transmission of the above bill.

The resolution was adopted.

THE CUMBERLAND VALLEY RAILROAD.

On motion of Mr. GLATZ, the Committee on Railroads was discharged from the further consideration of a bill entitled a further supplement to the act entitled An act to incorporate the Cumberland Valley railroad company, approved April 2, 1861, and the Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of said bill.

On the motion to suspend the rules to read the bill a third time,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. LANDON and Mr. COLEMAN, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bingham, Billingsfield, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Davis, Fisher, Glatz, Graham, Haines, James, Lowry, M' Candless, M' Conaughy, Searight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace, Walls, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—24.

NAYS—Messrs. Connell, Donovan, Landon, Randall, Ridgway, Royer—6.

So the bill was read a third time and

Passed finally.

THE FREE RAILROAD LAW.

Mr. BIGHAM moved that the committee on railroads be discharged from the further consideration of a bill from the House of Representatives entitled An act to authorize the formation of railroad corporations, and that the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of the same.

Mr. BIGHAM, Mr. Speaker, I do not want to occupy time in discussion. This is the House bill which passed that body without a call of the yeas and nays. I want to bring the Senate to it direct.

Mr. LANDON. Mr. Speaker, I only wish to say a word, and perhaps it is not worth while to say it. It will be remembered that we passed a bill which we thought covered the ground in this question, which bill went to the House. The House did not act upon the Senate bill, but took up what was known as Mr. Brown's bill, and amended it.

That bill has come back into this Senate, and the motion is to discharge the committee. If the committee is discharged, of course the bill comes up and you will have business for the remainder of the afternoon. I do not ask the Senate to vote one way or the other.

Mr. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I am satisfied that the bill as passed by the House is the bill that the people of this Commonwealth want—a bill under which railroads can be built. Therefore if it should take up the time of the Senate for the whole afternoon and evening, I am in favor of discharging the committee; I hope it will be done.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer). Mr. Speaker, the Senator from Bradford [Mr. LANDON] intimates that this bill has been largely amended. It is the bill called the BIGHAM bill. I understand that there are but two amendments of importance—one authorizing a connection with railroads out of the State, the other authorizing the crossing of other roads at grade. I believe these are the only two amendments made to the BIGHAM bill which amount to much. It seems to me if it should take up this entire afternoon to consider and pass this bill, we could not possibly spend our time better. I am prepared to sit here until twelve o'clock to-night or until daylight to-morrow if we can agree to this bill as it comes from the House. Now, I trust Senators will not be misled and take it for granted that this bill is a new thing entirely. It is simply the BIGHAM bill with these amendments, and it does not seem to me that we could close up a session in doing a better thing than by giving to the people of Pennsylvania this free railroad bill. The people demand it. In the western portions of the State their expectations have been excited to a high pitch by the action of the House. They are encouraged to think that they are to get a free railroad law; and shall they be disappointed by the failure on the part of the Senate to do what the House has already done? I hope not.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, I do say that we have got to pass this bill; and if we would do more for mankind, more for our State, more for ourselves and more for our children than we do this winter or than we have done in the past, we would drive out this legislative corruption, build up commerce, promote the interests of every thing that is good by passing this bill. We have abundance of time to pass it, and can do it if we choose to do it.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion to discharge the Committee on Railroads from the further consideration of the bill?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BIGHAM and Mr. LANDON, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bingham, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Cowles, Davis, Graham, Lowry, Taylor, Wallace, White and Hall, Speaker—12.

NAYS—Messrs. Burnett, Connell, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Haines, James, Landon, M' Candless, M' Conaughy, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Searight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Walls and Worthington—19.

So the question was determined in the negative.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, returned bills from the Senate numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 1183, joint resolution relative to revising, collecting and digesting the tax laws of Pennsylvania.

ship, Cambria county, to Loreto borough, in said county, for school purposes.

Referred to the Committee on Education.

COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON THE APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. CONNELL, from the committee of conference on the points of difference between the two Houses on House Bill No. 823, entitled An act to provide for the ordinary expenses of the Government, and other general and specific appropriations, report that they had agreed to recommend to their respective Houses the adoption of the following amendments to said bill, viz:

That the House concur in Senate amendments in the twelfth and twenty-ninth lines of the second section, and in Senate amendments to third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, tenth, eleventh, fourteenth, fifteenth, twenty-first, twenty-sixth, thirty-eighth, forty-first, forty-second, forty-seventh, fifty-second, fifty-third, fifty-fourth, fifty-fifth, fifty-seventh, fifty-eighth, sixty-second, sixty-fifth, seventieth, seventy-first, seventy-fourth, seventy-fifth, seventy-sixth and seventy-eighth section.

That the Senate recede from their amendments in the twenty-sixth line of the first section, in second, third and fourth lines of the thirteenth section, to the forty-eighth section, from the manuscript proviso to sixteenth section, and also to the seventy-seventh section, and also the forty-fourth section, and that the words "two hundred and fifty" be inserted before the word "dollars," in the twelfth line of the second section; and the words "five hundred" be inserted in the twenty-fifth line of the second section; and that the Senate recede from their amendments in the twenty-sixth line of the second section; and that the House concur in Senate amendment in the twenty-ninth line of second section.

That the House concur in Senate amendments in the third, fourth, tenth and eleventh lines of tenth section—and that the twenty-fifth line be amended so as to read "fifteen thousand."

That the Senate recede from their amendments in the first paragraph of the thirteenth section, and that the House concur in the manuscript amendment of the Senate to the thirteenth section.

That the third line of the seventy-eighth section be amended by inserting the word "three" in lieu of "four" in the original bill, and the word "six" in the sixth line of same section in place of "eight" in original bill, and that the House concur in the other Senate amendments to same section.

That the words "Sergeant-at-Arms" and "his Assistants," "Doorkeepers," "Messenger to committee rooms of the House of Representatives" be inserted after the word "Senate" in the third line of the manuscript amendment to the fourth section.

That the forty-third section be amended by inserting "five thousand dollars," and that the fifty-sixth section be amended by inserting "three thousand" in the second line in lieu of five. That the fifty-ninth section be amended by inserting "eight thousand" in lieu of "fifteen thousand."

That the thirty-ninth section be amended by adding the words, "and the same rate per day for three months after the close of the session."

That the following words be added to the forty-first section, "and the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars to Charles Looker, for similar services in the House of Representatives."

Mr. WALLACE moved to amend the report by adding the proviso stricken off of the sixty-ninth section to another section of the bill.

The SPEAKER ruled that the report of the committee must be adopted as a whole, or rejected; it could not be amended.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the report was read a second time and adopted, as follows, viz:

witness not regularly subpoenaed before the committee, or the payment of any sum of money to any member of the committee for his services, or of any expense accruing after the adjournment of the Legislature; and to John C. Sturtevant, for extra services as clerk of the committee of investigation on the alleged bribery and corruption in regard to election of United States Senator, the sum of one hundred dollars.

Sec. 62. For renewing the meridian line of Dauphin county, which was displaced by the extension of the Capitol, one hundred and fifty dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be paid upon the certificate of the Surveyor General.

Sec. 63. For repairs to the dwelling house occupied by the keeper of the powder magazine in the Twenty-sixth ward of the city of Philadelphia, the sum of four hundred dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary.

Sec. 64. To the Antietam National cemetery, the sum of three thousand dollars, to be drawn on the warrant of the Governor in such instalments as, in his judgment, may be required in the progress of enclosing the grounds and of building and re-interring the remains of Pennsylvania soldiers in the same.

Sec. 65. That all the institutions, to which appropriations are made by this act, not now required by law to report and account for appropriations, shall make a detailed report, specifying the items, under oath of one or more of its principal officers, of the expenditures of said appropriations, to the Legislature, before the first day of February, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight.

Sec. 66. That the sum of five hundred dollars is hereby appropriated for the purchase of a portrait of the present Governor, to be placed in the Executive Department, to be expended under the direction of the chairman of the Senate Committee on the Library.

Sec. 67. For the Marine hospital of Pennsylvania, at Erie, the sum of ten thousand dollars, for the purpose of erecting hospital buildings: Provided, That the citizens of Erie raise an equal amount for the same purpose.

Sec. 68. That the sum of two hundred dollars is hereby appropriated to each of the four reporters employed on the Legislative Record in the House of Representatives, and also to Henry J. Mason, Thomas B. Cochran, R. McDevitt and H. G. Lednum, reporters of the Senate.

Sec. 69. That the Auditor General and the State Treasurer be, and they are hereby, authorized and directed to examine into the claim of L. M. Simon for furnishing plans, elevations, sections and specifications for the extension to the capitol, and also for furnishing plans and specifications for the extension of the Governor's mansion; and allow him such compensation as, after consultation with other architects, they may deem just and equitable.

Sec. 70. For the erection and completion of an addition to the Governor's mansion, according to the plan and specification furnished by L. M. Simon, architect, the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended under the direction of the Governor; and no portion of this money shall be paid over to the contractor for such work until he shall have filed, in the office of the Auditor General, his bond, with two sureties in fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000), to be approved by the Auditor General, conditioned for the faithful performance of his contract in erecting and completing such addition.

Sec. 71. For finishing and furnishing the new library room and removing the books thereof, the sum of fifteen thousand dollars; or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended by the Librarian, with the approval of the Auditor General and State Treasurer, the accounts for which to be audited and settled by the Auditor General, in the usual manner.

Sec. 72. To Hon. Samuel P. Johnson, of Warren county, forty-five dollars for unpaid balance due upon monument erected by the Commonwealth to the memory of Cornplanter.

Sec. 73. To the Polytechnic college of the State of Pennsylvania five thousand dollars, for the purpose of establishing in said college five State scholarships.

Sec. 74. For the preparation of a general index of the private laws of this Commonwealth, from the year one thousand eight hundred and twelve, the sum of twelve hundred dollars, or so much as may be necessary, to be done under the direction and approval of the Attorney General.

Sec. 75. For the Surveyor General, for the expenses of surveying and determining the exact position of the stone that marks the line, on the shore of Lake Erie, between the States of Pennsylvania and New York, and the erection of a more durable monument further inland, the sum of two hundred dollars, ($200) or so much thereof as may be necessary.

AN EVENING SESSION.

Mr. CONNELL moved that when the Senate adjourns it will adjourn to meet this evening at eight o'clock.

The motion was

Agreed to.

ESTATE OF ELIZA HOWARD BURD, DECEASED.

On motion of Mr. M'GANDLESS, the rule was dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act relative to the estate of Eliza Howard Burd.

The bill was read a second time.

Mr. BILLINGFELT. Mr. Speaker, I hope the Senate will not agree to the passage of this bill, at least not before they have examined into its provisions. The objects of this bill are not at all stated in the title. It proposes to take thirteen thousand two hundred and seventy-one dollars out of the State Treasury, under pretext of refunding said money as collateral inheritance tax paid over into the State Treasury by the executors of Eliza Howard Burd, deceased, over six years ago. Now, according to the amount of said tax, Mrs. Burd must have bequeathed to the Saint Stephen's church in Philadelphia over two hundred and sixty thousand dollars. Not satisfied with that, they come here now and ask the State an additional appropriation of thirteen thousand dollars more.

If that rich institution is entitled to it, why was it not incorporated in the appropriation bill? Why should we pass this bill under cover of such a title, to benefit one of the richest churches in the State, whilst we have denied small pittances to other deserving but poor institutions, such as Homes for friendless children and other similar institutions?

Mr. CONNELL. Mr. Speaker, Mrs. Burd, in her lifetime, gave sixty or seventy thousand dollars for an orphan asylum. If she had put that property in the hands of the St. Stephen's church in her lifetime, of course this thirteen thousand dollars would never have come into the treasury at all; but on her death bed she was not in a condition to make a legal transfer, and was contented with making her will, by which the State got this money. It was a tax upon a charity, and if the Legislature had been in session, and the executors had applied for a remission, no doubt it would have been done. She never should have paid it, and it is a matter of justice that we should return it.

Mr. LANDON. Mr. Speaker, the first fact in this case is this: the thirteen thousand dollars was paid into the State Treasury according to law, and is there now according to law. The second fact is that this same subject was before the Finance Committee. They did not deem it advisable to report the measure. The third fact is this: the bill simply amounts to a request that we make an appropriation to this asylum of thirteen thousand dollars.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I look upon this question in this manner: Mrs. Burd made an endowment for an orphan's home, which was established, and is in successful operation, and has some forty orphans of the soldiers of the late war under its care. At the time that money was about to be paid over, if the executors of Mrs. Burd had applied to the Legislature to relieve that charity fund from the inheritance tax, I have no doubt it would have been done, because the principle involved in the collateral inheritance law certainly ought not to tax charitable funds. But that was not done.

Now, they ask us to refund an amount equal to the collateral inheritance tax. If we do not pay it now, it will be brought here from year to year.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, this bill is so manifestly just that I can hardly think any gentleman will vote against it. Any party dying and leaving their property to their own children, it would be exempt from the tax. Now, this party died without children of her own, and she adopted the poor children of the Commonwealth, and the Commonwealth came forward and taxed the estate five per cent. after she had adopted the children of the Commonwealth. The State should be ashamed to accept such a tax. I can hardly think that the Senate will hesitate one moment to pass this bill.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, everybody knows that I am careful about taking money out of the treasury; I sit here and vote against it continually. In not voting this a meritorious appropriation, I would not vote for it. I was a member of the Committee on Estates and Escheats; this question was before them, and was considered and discussed, and since that time much information has been given to me upon the subject, and the more information I get the stronger I think the application is. Now, as has been remarked, when a man dies of course no collateral inheritance tax is paid. When any person dies and dedicates his property to the creation of a public institution of this kind, which is carried on as successfully and as properly as this institution is carried on, which is a handmaid and help-mate to the State in the education and maintenance of the orphans of soldiers, the State should extend that kindness and generosity to the institution which it deserves. And I trust that this Senate, in view of these facts, will not fail to do, not this act of generosity, but this act of justice. The largest item in the appropriation bill is for the education of soldiers' orphans, yet this institution has seen fit to extend its hands for the purpose of protecting some of the orphans of those soldiers. And if the Commonwealth does this act of justice to this institution—this charitable, liberal, proper institution—it will probably be able to open its doors wider, and take more of these orphans to its bosom. I trust the Senate of Pennsylvania will immediately pass this bill.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I have been conversant for many years with the history of this Burd estate. It is estimated to the leading men of Philadelphia. Whatever might have been the question when this was originally submitted, it has now assumed a different form. Pennsylvania has adopted the policy recently of educating the orphans of the soldiers who fell in the great struggle for maintaining the national Union. In accordance with that policy, the appropriation bill, which we have passed, has appropriated a large amount. One specific item in that bill appropriates to an orphan institution in my own city eight thousand dollars.

All of the daughters of this lady having preceded her to the grave, she left her estate in trust to the vestrymen of the congregation with which she was connected. The dying request of that sainted spirit, who consecrated her all to the education of the daughters of Pennsylvania, was that this Legislature should remit the collateral tax upon the property devoted to said charity. Now, Mr. Speaker, that occurred some twelve or fifteen years ago. The other branch of the Legislature listened to the prayer of Mrs. Burd—for the prayers of the righteous avail much—and this bill passed the House by a unanimous vote, without even a call for the yeas and nays; and shall it be said after what we are doing for the soldiers' orphans of Pennsylvania, that this institution, which has already the machinery to educate these soldiers' orphans—shall it be said, after that prayer of Mrs. Burd, uttered some twelve years since, after she has reposed in her grave, and after you have passed an appropriation bill, recognizing your obligation to support the soldiers' orphans of Pennsylvania—shall it be said that you refuse to listen to the dying prayer of the sainted Mrs. Burd? And shall these gentlemen, who have been up here, go back and say that the House of Representatives unanimously passed this bill, but that the sticklers in the Senate refused to refund the money which for years you have had the use of, notwithstanding the prayer of Mrs. Burd? I think that Pennsylvania expects no such thing from her Senators. I hope that this bill will pass this branch, as it did the other, unanimously. I do not think that we could sleep soundly, or feel comfortable, or go home to our constituents, if we refuse this application.

Mr. BILLINGFELT. Mr. Speaker, I am not surprised that the House passed this bill unanimously; for the manner in which we have been passing bills this morning, without their being read, except by the title. Bills have gone through without any one knowing what they were. The title of this bill is defective; it is plain that there is something in the bill which they did not dare to have brought to the light. I do not claim to be a constitutional lawyer, but it seems to me that the object of the bill should be clearly expressed in the title, as the Constitution requires. When the appropriation bill was up, my colleague offered an amendment asking for the appropriation of some three thousand dollars for a Home for Friendless Children at Lancaster; that was refused. He cut it down to two thousand dollars afterwards, which was also refused, and the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BROWN] did not use one-tenth of the eloquence then which he is now making in favor of a church corporation which may be worth a million. We have an institution at Lancaster, taking care of one hundred and seventy children, all orphans, picked up in the streets, and all supported by private contribution. We had not a Senator to take the floor, and make an eloquent speech in their behalf. If Mrs. Burd had died a year ago, and her estate was now being settled, and this inheritance tax was being imposed upon it, it might be proper to consider the question; but since it was paid six years ago, it now belongs to the State.

Mr. DONOVAN. Did I understand the Senator to say that he was not a constitutional lawyer?

Mr. BILLINGFELT. I did say so; but it is my duty, as a Senator, at least, to read the Constitution. I have read it, and found a provision in it which requires that the object of a bill shall be clearly stated in the title, and this bill does not come up to that provision. This fund was paid into the treasury six years ago, in accordance with the laws of Pennsylvania, and it is not there on deposit. It might have been expended years ago. The question is solely whether we shall take this money out of the treasury, and appropriate it to an institution in Philadelphia, that is worth perhaps a million of dollars, just because they are taking care of some fifty orphan children, and denying a thousand dollars to a poor institution, which is a hundred times more entitled to it than this rich institution. Let charity begin with the poor, and not with the rich.

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence). Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask if this title is defective, and shall be willing to submit it to the Senate from Allegheny [Mr. BROWN]. Undoubtedly the objection of the Senator from Lancaster is against the bill. I have voted for all charitable appropriations in the Senate. What we do to educate the orphan and support the homeless is so much done to promote good morals, and I shall vote for this appropriation, probably; but I am not certain that the parties who ask this appropriation have the right to ask it in this way. That collateral tax belongs to the State, as the Senator from Lancaster [Mr. BILLINGFELT] has argued. Now it is asked to restore this tax, as though it belonged to another party. I deny that. I do object to the method in which it is proposed to take this money out of the treasury, by a bill which simply bears the title, "an act relative to the estate of Eliza Howard Burd."

Mr. BIGHAM. The Committee of Ways and Means understood this whole matter, and, when the bill is reached, I shall propose to amend it.

The first and only section of the bill was then

Agreed to.

The title being under consideration, Mr. BIGHAM moved to amend by making it read "an act remitting to the estate of Eliza Howard Burd a certain collateral inheritance tax."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The title as amended was

Agreed to.

The rule was dispensed with and the bill was read a third time.

On the final passage of the bill, The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BILLINGFELT and Mr. COLEMAN, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, Haines, James, Lowry, McCandless, M'Conaughy, Randall, Royer, Schall, Seagriff, Stutzman, Wallace, Walls, White and Worthington—23.

NAYS—Messrs. Billington, Browne (Lawrence), Fisher, Grabam, Landon, Ridgway, Shoemaker and Taylor—8.

So the bill

Passed finally.

THE LAW OF EVIDENCE.

On motion of Mr. WHITE, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act relating to the law of evidence. The bill was read a second time. Mr. SEARIGHT moved that the further consideration of the bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. WHITE. I move to amend by postponing it indefinitely. I merely do that, Mr. Speaker, in order to bring the question to the attention of the Senate. This is a question which interests every Senator here, and we should have had it disposed of long ago, had it not been for the press of private bills; the question was passed over also at the instance of my friend, the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE]. I do not want to annoy the Senate now with a bill of this kind, but merely call the attention of the Senate to this fact: that they are called upon indirectly to kill a bill which seems to be demanded by a majority of the profession in the State, and in the United States. This question of evidence has been before the Legislature for a number of years. This bill has passed the lower House, and it comes to us in the closing days of the session, and I trust we will meet it as its merits demand. It requires a careful consideration. If the motion to indefinitely postpone is voted down, I desire to offer an amendment to the pending Senate bill 168 on this subject, and which, if passed here, I am sure will be concurred in by the House. That bill is more comprehensive than the House bill.

This question of evidence—this manner of trying actions at law in this way—requires the attention of every Pennsylvania lawyer. The old common law rule of evidence every lawyer knows is singularly arbitrary in this respect. The rule is that where a party is upon the record, or where a party is in interest in the result of the proceeding on trial, he cannot be examined as a witness. That is the rule in Pennsylvania to-day. To change that rule the bill before you is offered. There is every reason in the world, sir, why, at this momentary of the Christian era, this change should be made. The old, stubborn, arbitrary rule which obtains now in Pennsylvania is a relic of the past; it has about it cobwebs which should be thrown aside by every earnest-hearted friend of progress.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I want to vote with the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE], and I hope the motions to postpone will be withdrawn, and that we will vote on the merits of the bill. If the Senator keeps on he will kill the bill.

Mr. WHITE. Very well; it is not my intention to occupy much time. I withdraw my motion to indefinitely postpone. I merely wish to call attention to the fact that Pennsylvania occupies a different attitude than any other State; many other States about us have made this change in the law. I do not wish to make a speech upon this subject, but desire merely to call the attention of the Senate to the fact that this change is asked for. I desire also to call attention to the following letters on the subject, which I have received:

PHILADELPHIA, January 26, 1867.

1119 Chestnut street.

DEAR SIR—I would refer to the pamphlet I gave you for the general arguments and facts on the subject of rendering parties and persons interested competent witnesses in all civil proceedings, a practice always resorted to where disputes are settled out of courts of justice; and why, adding the sanctity of an oath, to what he says should disqualify him, I am unable to comprehend. In England this has been the rule for the last fifteen years, and has been met with the unanimous voice of the bench, the bar, and the people. If they can trust these people as witnesses, whether they are parties interested or not, cannot we show a like confidence, in our own people, who are certainly as moral and religious and truth-telling as those of any other country or nation? Many of our sister States, as Massachusetta, Connecticut, New York and Ohio, have adopted a similar rule; and the Ohio acts, which became, by act of Congress, the rule in the courts of the United States, forced Congress to pass the proviso to the third section of the act of 2d July, 1864 (18 stat. 351), making the rule general in all the courts of the United States. This will be seen by referring to the cases of Vance vs. Campbell and Hausknecht vs. Claypool, 1 Black, 11 S. R. 427 and 432, and Twight vs. Bales, 2 Black, 525.

Our present rule, fortified by decisions partaking of the wisdom of the dark ages, excludes truth and promotes litigation, and leaves Pennsylvania far behind her sister States in the march of judicial improvement. It produces this strange anomaly in courts of a similar character, separated by a few hundred feet—in one the person is a witness, and can testify—in the other he cannot be a witness, and cannot testify, although he may be the only individual that knows the whole truth.

I would adopt the English rule as the wisest and best, and as tending to stop litigation. My brother Thompson agrees with me, and will sign this letter as a mark of his approval.

I am, very truly, yours,

JOHN M. READ.

I fully concur in the foregoing views.

JAMES THOMPSON.

General HARRY WHITE,
Senate Pennsylvania, Harrisburg, Pa.

ALBANY, March 12, 1867.

H. C. Johns, Esq.,

DEAR SIR—In answer to your letter of 9th instant, I state that experience has justified the wisdom of the law by which parties are admitted as witnesses for themselves in this State; and so well is the change received, that it is quite probable a law will be passed this winter extending the same rule to criminal cases, or, at least, to cases of misdemeanor.

I was in England thirteen years ago when the experiment was being tried there under "Lord Denman's act," and I took great pains to look into the workings of the new practice. The result was a most favorable impression of the change, and I found the judges and bar there all, with a single exception, approved it. The exception was Sir Thos. Morris Talford, who seemed opposed to all progress and all change.

On my return home, I advised a like change in this State. It was made with some hesitation, and not till it had been discussed two years in the Legislature. But I know of no one now who would be willing to return to the old practice.

Of course the object of all trials of parties is to get at the truth, and the parties generally know more about the matters in issue than any other persons. If they swear differently, the jury can generally decide from the appearance of the witnesses which tells the truth. It may be said it leads to the commission of perjury. If that objection is a good one, it would exclude all human testimony.

Parties have always been sworn, in equity proceedings or motions involving large amounts. And if a party may make an affidavit when he cannot be cross-examined and is the more likely to swear to an untruth, why may he not be examined orally?

I have no doubt the change made here will, in due time, be made in every State of the Union. It is only a question of time. It takes some time to overcome established prejudices. Very truly, AMASA J. PARKER.

WASHINGTON, March 10, 1867.

MY DEAR SIR—Your letter of the 9th instant has just reached me by way of Albany. When the law allowing parties to be witnesses on their own behalf was first proposed

I opposed it. I was afraid of its effects. But after a very large experience under it, I am convinced it is wise and useful. In some cases—such as involve feeling, prejudice, passion—parties are not much to be relied on. Sometimes I have found in trying an action for assault and battery that the parties would each swear to a state of facts entirely opposed to the other, and to get at the truth it would be necessary to disregard their testimony, except so far as it might be supported by other witnesses. But such cases—especially actions before contracts, it generally facilitates the investigation of facts to hear the statements of the parties themselves. I would not, by any means, have the law repealed. I have never seen a person who had seen its operation who would be willing to go back to the common law rule.

Yours, sincerely,

IRA HARRIS.

H. C. Johns, Esq.,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion of Mr. SEARIGHT to postpone for the present?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WHITE and Mr. SEARIGHT, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Burnett, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, James, Landon, M'Conaughy, Randall, Schall, Searight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace and Walls—16.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne Lawrence, Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Lowry, Ridgway, Royer, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—15.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

During the call,

Mr. COWLES said: "Mr. Speaker, I am not prepared at this time to vote for this bill, and I do not think we have time to discuss it; I therefore vote aye on the motion to postpone."

BILL RECONSIDERED.

Mr. DONOVAN moved that the Senate reconsider the vote on the final passage of a bill entitled A further supplement to the act entitled An act to incorporate the Cumberland Valley railroad company, approved April 2, 1861.

Mr. FISHER, Mr. Speaker, when this bill was up before, I paid no attention to it, and do not know its merits now. In order to allow the Senate to understand it, I shall vote for the reconsideration.

Mr. GLATZ, Mr. Speaker, this bill is entirely for the protection of a class of my constituents, and they demand at my hands that it shall be passed.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion of Mr. DONOVAN?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. LANDON, and Mr. GLATZ, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Burnett, Connell, Donovan, Fisher, Haines, James, Landon, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Searight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Walls and Worthington—16.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne Lawrence, Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Cowles, Davis, Glatz, Graham, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Wallace and White—13.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

During the call,

Mr. RIDGWAY said: Mr. Speaker, as this is the only railroad that has the courage to refuse passes to members of the Legislature, it looks to me as though this was a punishment for not giving them passes. I vote "aye."

The bill being again before the Senate,

Mr. LANDON said: Mr. Speaker, we are likely to require a great deal of time in considering the appropriation bill, as it has failed to pass the House. I move that this bill be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. COLEMAN, I hope not; I know that this is an eminently just and proper bill. The chairman of the Railroad Committee cannot produce a single reason why this is not founded in justice and truth.

Mr. LANDON, Mr. Speaker, allusion has been made to me two or three times. A short time since that bill came into the hands of the Railroad Committee; it was read over; it repeats some laws, and enacts some laws, and I say I did not understand it at the time, and laid it aside for consideration. We have not given it that consideration. We were discharged, and I find Senators all around me do not understand it; the fact that they are enacting laws that they do not understand, is my reason for moving to postpone it indefinitely.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion to postpone indefinitely?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. GLATZ and Mr. DONOVAN, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Connell, Donovan, Fisher, Haines, James, Landon, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Stutzman, Walls and Worthington—12.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne Lawrence, Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Cowles, Davis, Glatz, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Wallace, White and Hall, Speaker—13. So the question was determined in the negative.

Mr. RANDALL moved that the further consideration of the bill be postponed for the present.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

On that question

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. GLATZ and Mr. DONOVAN, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Burnett, Connell, Donovan, Fisher, Haines, James, Landon, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Searight, Stutzman, Walls and Worthington—14.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne Lawrence, Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Cowles, Davis, Glatz, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Wallace, White and Hall, Speaker—13.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

No. 1340, an act to incorporate the York and Chanceford turnpike road company, in the county of York.

No. 1559, an act to incorporate the Sharon Savings Bank.

No. 1434, an act to increase the fees of the commissioners of Crawford county as directors of the poor.

No. 1198, an act to authorize the Ashland iron company of Baltimore county, in the State of Maryland, to hold land in the State of Pennsylvania.

No. 1863, an act authorizing the supervisors of Salem township, in Luzerne county, to collect, in money, the tax levied for road purposes in said township.

No. 1886, an act for the appointment of two additional assessors of the Fifteenth ward of the city of Philadelphia.

No. 1203, an act to incorporate the Shippenburg iron manufacturing and mining company.

No. 1874, an act relating to taxation for school purposes in the school district of Cannonsburg, in the county of Washington.

CHANGING THE RATE OF INTEREST FROM SIX TO SEVEN PER CENTUM.

Mr. CONNELL moved that the Senate proceed to the consideration of House bill No. 359, entitled An act to change the rate of interest from six to seven per centum.

Mr. CONNELL. That is the same as we give to corporations every day. We allow corporations to do this every day, and why not individuals? Certainly you will give individuals the same privileges as corporations.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. The answer is that this is practically a change in the rate of interest in the State.

Mr. CONNELL. Not at all.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. It provides that parties may pay seven per centum by agreement; a bank, for instance, has money to loan, and says, "we will not loan unless we get seven per centum!"—and the community must submit, because the parties holding the means, which the necessities of business now require, would dictate terms and lord it over the community. I would infinitely rather meet the question squarely. If the necessities of the business men of the State require that seven per centum be made the rate of interest, let us make it so, but I do not believe it can be demonstrated. But do not let us do in mere pretense, substantially what is sought to be done on the main question.

A SENATOR. How many bills have you voted for this session authorizing corporations to pay seven per centum? At least two or three hundred.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. A practice has grown up to allow them to pay it, but it has not entered into business currents. Whose convictions are in favor of this change? I believe, sir, that the convictions of most of the people throughout the State are not in favor of this change, and I do not desire to do indirectly what cannot, I think, be done directly upon a fair test of the question.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, during my experience upon this question, I have never met a sensible man, outside of the Legislature of Pennsylvania, but who was in favor of changing the rate of interest from six to seven per centum. The Government pays seven and three-tenth interest; Ohio and New York pay seven per centum, and your business is driven from Philadelphia to the greater commercial mart of the country. Commerce will go, sir, where it is for its interest to go. I hold that the Board of Trade of Philadelphia has as much knowledge as any Senator who has spoken against this bill, and they call for this measure. They are men of common sense, and the convictions of the commercial world are in favor of changing the rate of interest in Pennsylvania from six to seven per centum. It is a mere question of time; you must come to it.

The Legislature can no more practically regulate and define by law the rate of interest, than they can regulate and define by act of the Legislature the price of gold, or repeal the law of God. The law of commerce is the higher law of the civilized world. You can injure yourselves by giving it nostrums and taking pills prescribed by legislative quacks, but you can no more regulate the practical price of money than you can regulate by law the price of bread or the smell of butter. Pennsylvania is a blind ass that is holding back in the breeching. They can damage their harness, but they cannot stop the necessities of commerce. They will be run under and crushed beneath the great wheel of events that is progressing. Pennsylvania stands still, like a barrel of sauer kraut; her wise law makers will not bow to necessities or common sense. They cannot see that their cabbage smells to such an extent that commerce has left Philadelphia, and is seeking permanent location in New York. Pennsylvania cannot sell her money cheaper or dearer, even to her own children, than her neighboring States, and her effort to do so is as futile as it would be to sell Merrimac prints a penny higher in Philadelphia than in New York; as ridiculous as it would be for Pennsylvania to undertake to sell her own coal in New York, rather than at the mouth pits of her mountains. Pennsylvania cannot sell her oil, her wine, her money, above or below that for which others furnish the same article. The law of six per centum in Pennsylvania does not make money plentier within the Commonwealth, for it takes it out of the State to where it brings seven per centum. The law of six per centum in Pennsylvania is the poor man's enemy for the penny given in circulation that is required within the State. The six per centum law in Pennsylvania is an enemy to the borrower, for the lender lends his money where he can legally obtain seven per centum. There is a commercial necessity that every State should have a law designating the rate of interest; but the Commonwealth that underbids her neighbor in offering money to loan, will soon have no money left to loan at any price. Money will go where it fetches its highest rate, as inevitably as that water will run down hill, or that brains and common sense will be appreciated by the people. Can you regulate the price of a bushel of wheat by act of the Legislature? Can you regulate the value of a hog, or ascertain the height of a horse by act of Assembly?

I recognize the Pennsylvanian as narrow between the eyes, that contends for a doctrine that Pennsylvania can, with interest to herself, and justice to her people maintain the legal rate of interest at six per centum.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, this is old fight of the many against the few; the old fight of the corporation against the individual; the old fight of the grasping; and sorry I am that my friend the Senator from Erie (Mr. Lowry), in the expiring hour of his Senatorial career, can decide against the poor man and in favor of the banks.

Mr. LOWRY. I was in favor of changing the law the first year I was here.

Mr. WALLACE. That does not relieve the Senator's position in the least. The great question is have we any one here demanding this change? If we have, who are they? They are banks and corporations, who are wringing their thousands from the hard earnings of the poor.

Mr. CONNELL. The Board of Trade petition for this.

Mr. WALLACE. I have no doubt the Board of Trade, and the Board of Directors in every bank, and every corporation, would come here and ask this change. But it is not upon those men that this will fall; it will fall upon the poor men who are compelled to borrow money on bond and mortgage. These are the men in whose behalf I stand here to resist this change in the rate of interest.

We concede that Senators represent boards of trade and corporations of great interest, but there are many more human souls in this Commonwealth than these directors; and there are corporations who have no souls, and no aspirations for anything except piling up wealth. I say that the returns demonstrate that banks are making enough money; your corporations are making enough money; your corporations are making enough money; and if you allow contracts to be made at seven per centum, every judgment bond and every note held in the Commonwealth must be renewed, perhaps, at the expense of the turning out of the poor man, houseless, in order that the rich man may reap his additional one per centum. For my part, I protest against this, and am here to resist it.

Mr. BIGHAM said that there was already a law on the statute book which allowed a higher rate of interest than seven per centum.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am willing to go thus far, and a great deal farther. Abolish all usury laws, which are the burden of the poor man. Throw the door open for them to make bargains, as they see proper, and that brings the rates down. It is idle to talk about six and seven per centum banks; if the banks can get more by putting their money into seven-thirty bonds, they will do it. I know very well that during the crisis of 1857 and 1860, I was compelled to pay thirty per centum, and have done it willingly; whereas, if these usury laws were repealed, and banks allowed to charge ten per centum, I could have had access to all the moneys of the banks, and they would have gladly loaned it at ten per centum. These usury laws are not a kindness to the poor man; they are a folly of the dark ages.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. I would like to inquire of the Senator who of his people have petitioned for this change in the law?

Mr. COLEMAN. I am not aware that anybody has. I speak from common sense. Mr. M'CONAUGHY. I do not wish to substitute common sense for the wishes of my people. If I represent a constituency whose means are small, their intelligence is large. I believe I represent a community which compares favorably with any community in the State; it compares favorably, at least, in intelligence, with the immediate constituency of my friend, the Senator from Lebanon [Mr. COLEMAN]; but I desire to represent the wishes of the people, and I ask the Senator from Lebanon, and other Senators upon this floor from the rural districts, how will you go home and answer to your people in regard to this increase of the rate of interest, which they did not want? I agree that it is a question of poverty upon the one hand and wealth upon the other. I happen to be a member of the board of directors of a bank, but I do not let that interfere with the interests of my constituents. I believe my constituents are not to be benefited by this change; therefore, I desire that it may be defeated.

Mr. GRAHAM. I would like to ask the Senator if he has any objection of which he is a member desirous this increase?

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. I do not know, sir, but I think it probable that they do. I think that in the city represented by my friend from Allegheny [Mr. GRAHAM], the banks are now charging eight and ten per centum, in disregard of the existing law.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. Speaker, it has been asserted by the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] that this change of the rate of interest was desired by the banks and capitalists only. Now, sir, I happen to know something about banking institutions, and I do not believe there is a single bank in Western Pennsylvania that desires this change in the usury laws. It would be greatly to their disadvantage. The banks there are in the habit of allowing five, and, some of them, six per centum interest on deposits. That money is loaned out at eight, nine and ten per centum. Now, sir, pass this bill, making the legal interest seven per centum, and these persons who have five hundred or a thousand dollars to loan, will loan it to their neighbors at seven per centum, instead of depositing it in the vaults of the banks and drawing six per centum. The banks do not desire this change.

On the question, Will the Senate proceed with the second reading and consideration of the bill?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WHITE and Mr. CONNELL, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Donovan, Graham, Lowry and White—9.

NAYS—Messrs. Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Burnett, Davis, Fisher, Glatz, Haines, James, Landon, M'Candless, M'Conaughy, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Searith, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Wallace, Walls, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—22.

So the question was determined in the negative.

During the call,

Mr. WHITE said: I am in favor of repealing the usury laws, but inasmuch as this is extending in the right direction, I vote "aye."

MILITARY RECORDS AS EVIDENCE.

Agreeably to order, The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of a bill entitled An act authorizing courts to receive certified copies of military records as evidence.

The bill Passed finally.

THE FEE BILL.

Agreeably to order, the Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of a bill entitled An act to ascertain and appoint the fees to be received by the several officers of this Commonwealth.

Mr. BILLINGFELT. Mr. Speaker, I merely wish to call the attention of the Senate once more to the enormous increase of the fees here. The Senator from Mercer [Mr. BROWN] differed with me some time ago; but after I showed him the comparison he admitted that the increase was at least thirty per centum.

On the question, Will the Senate suspend the rules and read the bill a third time?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. SCHALL and Mr. HAINES, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Landon, Lowry, Randall, Royer, Searith, Shoemaker, Wallace, Walls, White and Hall, Speaker—19.

NAYS—Messrs. Billingsfelt, Fisher, Glatz, Graham, Haines, James, M'Conaughy, Schall, Stutzman and Worthington—11.

Two-thirds not voting in the affirmative, the bill fell.

RELIEF FOR THE BORDER COUNTIES.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY moved that the Senate proceed to the consideration of House bill No. 1416, entitled An act for the relief of citizens of the counties of Adams, Franklin, Fulton, Bedford, Perry, York and Cumberland, whose property was destroyed, damaged or appropriated for the public service such as in the common defense in the war to suppress rebellion.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I desire simply to say that it has been my earnest desire to have a consideration of this bill; I have given to it every effort which I could personally. It passed the House—fifty to thirty-five. On coming to the Senate, I moved its immediate reference, and obtained from the committee its report. I have sought at every moment to get its consideration. It has been impossible to reach it until to-day. I now appeal to the Senate to give us an opportunity to be heard on the merits of this bill.

On the question, Will the Senate agree to the motion? The yeas and nays were required by Mr. M'CONAUGHY and Mr. GLATZ, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Fisher, Glatz, Haines, M'Conaughy and Wallace—5.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Graham, James, Landon, Lowry, M'Candless, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Searith, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Walls, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—26.

So the question was determined in the negative.

Mr. LOWRY. Selah!

MEETINGS OF THE PHILADELPHIA GAS TRUST.

Mr. DONOVAN moved that the Committee on Corporations be discharged from the further consideration of a bill entitled An act authorizing the gas committee of the counties of Philadelphia to attend all meetings of the Philadelphia gas trust, and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of said bill.

On the question, Will the Senate agree to the motion? The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DONOVAN and Mr. RIDGWAY, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Davis, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Graham, James, M'Candless, Schall, Searith, Wallace and Walls—14.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Cowles, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Shoemaker, Stutzman, White and Worthington—15.

So the question was determined in the negative.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, returned bill from the Senate numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 1805, an act to repeal an act regulating the jurisdiction of courts in proceedings by bill for injunction and other relief in equity and the service of process, with information that the House of Representatives has passed the same without amendment.

Also informed that the House of Representatives has non-concurred in the resolution of the Senate relative to the suspension of joint rule to allow the transmission of Senate bill No. 2041, entitled An act to repeal an act to incorporate the Citizens' turnpike and macadamized road company, approved April 10th, 1867.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE.

Mr. M'CANDLESS, from the committee of conference to whom was referred the question of difference between the two Houses in reference to House bill No. 1337, entitled An act to vacate a part of Buck road, in the Twenty-sixth ward of the city of Philadelphia, respectfully represent that they have agreed to recommend that the Senate recede from its amendments non-concurred in by the House of Representatives.

On motion of Mr. M'CANDLESS, said report was read a second time and concurred in.

BILL RECONSIDERED.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY moved that the Senec reconsider the vote on the fec bill. On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion? The yeas and nays were required by Mr. M'CONAUGHY and Mr. GRAHAM, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS.—Messrs. Bigham, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Cowles, Davis, Graham, Landon, Lowry, Randall, Royer, Searight, Shoemaker, Taylor, Wallace, White and Hall, Speaker—18.

NAYS.—Messrs. Billingslet, Fisher, Glatz, Haines, James, M'Caules, M'Conaughy, Ridgway, Schall, Stutzman and Worthington—11.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

On suspending the rules to read the bill a third time.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. HAINES and Mr. GLATZ, and were as follows, viz.:

YEAS.—Messrs. Bigham, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Graham, Landon, Lowry, Randall, Royer, Searight, Shoemaker, Taylor, Wallace, White and Hall, Speaker—20.

NAYS.—Messrs. Billingslet, Fisher, Glatz, Haines, James, M'Caules, M'Conaughy, Ridgway, Schall, Stutzman and Worthington—11.

Two-thirds not having voted in the affirmative, the bill fell.

BILL PASSED.

On motion of Mr. SHOEMAKER, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of a bill entitled An act to incorporate the North Meantain coal company.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

The Senate then adjourned until this evening at 8 o'clock.

EVENING SESSION.

The Senate reassembled at eight o'clock.

No. 1875, an act to ratify and confirm the charter of incorporation of the Atlantic petroleum storage company, to confer additional powers on said corporation.

No. 1965, a further supplement to an act incorporating the Wilkesbarre and Pittston railroad company, approved April 16th, 1859, to increase the capital stock, make branches and hold lands.

WIDOWS' DOWER.

On motion of Mr. WHITE, the Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of the amendments made by the House of Representatives to bill No. 790, entitled An act relating to dower.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, the provisions of this bill were considered by the committee, and we negatived the bill. It asks a radical change; the widow, instead of taking under the common law, is compelled here to take as though her husband died without a will. It is right, if the principle established by the Senate; but I am opposed to the principle; I am not progressive in that direction. I am for sticking to the law on this subject, and therefore I am opposed to this bill.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I find on the files of the Senate, No. 170, an act relative to dower. This bill was in the early part of the session referred to the Judiciary Committee, and reported therefrom as committed, passed the Senate and went over to the House. A very respectable gentleman in the profession in the town in which I live had his attention called to this subject, and requested to know what the legislation was upon this subject. He took the trouble to very carefully prepare a bill embodying the same principle, but relieved of the constitutional objection which that bill had. I have this bill before me; that is the original bill, to which this is an amendment.

Now, Mr. Speaker, you will observe that, by the provisions of this bill, where a man dies after having made his will, and his wife refuses to take under that will, she takes dower at common law, which is one-third of his real estate; that is set apart for her use. The effect of that now, practically, is to tie up a great many estates where it is not the desire of the parties. Where a man dies intestate, without making a will, the party can go into court, and one-third of the valuation of the property is set apart. The interest of one-third is paid to the widow during her life, and the principal is distributed among the heirs at her death. Now, the proposition in this bill is to bring all this class of cases under the intestate laws of the Commonwealth. The bill, as it originally passed the Senate, provided for a class of cases where there was a vested right, provided that in those cases where a man had already died, certain proceedings should be had. That was thought unconstitutional, because it affected vested rights. This bill makes it prospective in its operation. This, it occurs to me, is eminently fair, and my friends upon the committee are the fact, and I regret very much that I am not able to see the bill as it is committed. The second section of the bill provides that where a man has died after having made his last will and testament, and the widow and all parties agree, any one of the parties can come into court and present the petition for a partition. There is a proviso added to that bill, affecting proceedings already commenced. I trust the Senate will agree to the amendment.

Mr. BURNETT. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to this bill upon very much the same grounds as alleged by the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE]. I regret very much to see a spirit of innovation creeping into the Legislature of Pennsylvania. In other States they have undermined the great common law principles obtaining in this country ever since the organization of the country. The spirit of innovation has gone on to such an extent in New York, that the best lawyers in the State declare that it will require fifty years to settle property under their new code; the same spirit is creeping in here; we see it in the proposition to change the law of evidence, which has controlled the government of this State, before which the experience of ages has shown to be founded in wisdom, and best calculated to subserve the interest of all parties. Why, sir, this spirit of innovation in Maine has been carried so far, with reference to the fundamental law of evidence, that even criminals charged with the highest crimes, know to the law, have been admitted to the witness-stand in their own favor. Now, sir, I am opposed to this spirit of innovation; I adhere to the old landmarks. I would like to see the Legislature of Pennsylvania true to the principles of their ancestors in regard to this spirit of innovation.

Now, this bill may be right or not; but we are overturning an old principle of the law. Why, the Legislature of Pennsylvania have been legislating so much relative to the rights of married women that there is hardly a lawyer in the land that fully understands the principles of common law that govern the relationship of man and wife; and the Supreme Court at every session overturns what they have decided upon at the prior term. Now, this is another effort to overturn and nullify a principle of law that has governed the people of this State for so long a period of time. As I said before, the practical operation might not be injurious, but, objecting to the principle, I shall vote against it.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I hope this will not prevail; it is a subject which received very careful consideration in the Judiciary Committee. The original Senate bill was unobjectionable; it simply provided for an inquisition; it did not disturb the relation of the widow and the heirs, as at common law. It left the status of the widow and heirs just as at common law, which experience has shown to be right. As the bill passed the Senate, the attitude of the widow, in regard to dower in the main, was not changed; but in the bill which has been substituted in the House, in relation to the heirs, as at common law, she is put under the intestate, and the fact is, instead of the widow having her dower, she may come in and occupy almost the attitude of the heir. I do not think, sir, that it is wise that this radical change should be made. It will give rise to a large amount of litigation.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, my understanding, so far as I can get at it, is this: that a widow in place of taking a dower on one-third of the real estate, has one-third set apart for her, which she enjoys during her life under this law.

Mr. WHITE. No; it does not alter the course of distribution under the present laws of the Commonwealth, but applies them to all classes. The widow can come into court personally, or petition, and have a valuation and recognizances given. This does not alter the course of distribution.

Mr. COLEMAN. What is the programme where a man dies and leave a will and the widow refuses to accept under the will?

Mr. WHITE. It just leaves her as if he had died without making any will at all.

Mr. COLEMAN. And she can take a dower of one-third of the whole estate?

Mr. WHITE. Yes, sir; one-third of the real estate.

Mr. COLEMAN. I want to understand this thing. Suppose I should die, and leave a widow and children; and that I own three farms of equal value. My understanding of this bill is, that in place of the widow having the dower of three of these farms, they can be separated, and she can enjoy one of those farms during her life-time, the other two farms going to the other heirs.

Mr. WALLACE. That can be done by bequest.

Mr. COLEMAN. If that view is the correct one; I am in favor of this bill, for this reason—this subject of dower is one that is giving a great deal of trouble in the settlement of estates. It seems to me that a law of this kind, without doing any injustice to the widow, would be a very proper law.

Mr. M'CANDESS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. WHITE] whether the widow of a man dying intestate would have power to compel partition and sale under an inquest of the realty, under this bill.

Mr. WHITE. Yes, probably she would. The amendment which has been incorporated in the House was carefully prepared.

The Senator from Monroe [Mr. BURNETT] is mistaken in his idea that it has long been a settled opinion of the profession that a woman refusing to take under the will, there can be no partition of the property. There has been a difference of opinion upon that subject.

Mr. BURNETT. The widow may elect whether she will take under the will of her deceased husband, or take her dower at common law, and, so far as the real estate is concerned, she is entitled to have one third. I would like to ask the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE] what mischief there is under the old law, which he seeks to remedy by this bill.

Mr. WHITE. I will tell the Senator promptly. In many parts of the Commonwealth men die after having made their wills, seized of timber land, if you please, which can only be made available by cutting the timber. Where he makes his will devising that property, and the widow refuses to take under that will, she gets a third of that property set apart to her, which, in that shape, is often unavailable. If he had died intestate, she, or any of his heirs, could have come into court and presented their petition, and had their partition of real estate, and she would have had her one-third of the valuation thereof during life; whereas, if it had been left as at common law, she would have received nothing whatever out of it. I have in my mind's eye a case where a man died, and the widow was not satisfied with the provision that the husband had made, and of course she came in and voided the will, so far as regards herself; and then she is turned over to the provision which the common law makes. She refuses to take under this will; the common law says she is entitled to one-third of the rents, issues, et cetera, of this property; it cannot be set aside well; it has no rents, issues, et cetera; the result is that it is embarrassed. This bill says that in that kind of cases the widow comes into court, presents her petition, and, if it is divided, and if the heirs come in and accept it, they give their recognizances to the widow for her third. If they do not take it, it is put up at orphans' court sale, and she is paid her one third.

Mr. BURNETT. I desire to ask the Senator one question. Suppose a man should make his will, and die, and his widow elected not to take. Supposing by that will he should will his real estate to three sons and his widow. Now, if this should become a law, she would go into the courts. She is entitled to one-third of that farm. I ask how much of that farm you would sell in order to adjust the claims of the widow under the intestate law.

Mr. WHITE. You would sell the whole property, and she would get the interest of the valuation on the one-third during her life.

Mr. BURNETT. Suppose the heirs say they do not want the property sold? The property is theirs; they take it under the will of Mr. father.

Mr. WHITE. That is a matter under the jurisdiction of the court.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, if this bill is passed, it will make a great change in the law; it may be for the better, but I think such changes should not be made in this hasty manner; and in order to give time for the profession to examine this, I move that its further consideration be postponed for the present.

Mr. COLEMAN. Does not this commission, called to codify the laws, take up all these questions, in accordance with the decisions of the Supreme Court? If this is the case, I do not feel sufficiently enlightened to vote either way.

The motion of Mr. DAVIS was

Agreed to.

The Senate took a recess for twenty minutes.

On reassembling, the Senate, on motion, proceeded to the consideration of the House amendment to bill relating to dower.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WALLACE and Mr. WHITE, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Brown (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Graham, Haines, Lowry, Taylor, White and Worthington—13.

NAYS—Messrs. Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, James, Landon, M'Canless, M'Conaughy, Royer, Schall, Searchlight, Shoemaker, Wallace, Walls and Hall, Speaker—15.

So the question was determined in the negative.

RETURN OF BILL TO THE SENATE.

Mr. RIDGWAY offered the following resolution, which was twice read :

Resolved, That the Governor be requested to return to the Senate bill No. 1677 of the House of Representatives, entitled An act for the protection of that branch of the legal profession in the city of Philadelphia known as conveyancers and scribes, said bill having been presented to the Governor in mistake.

The resolution was adopted.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. BIGHAM, chairman of the Senate committee to inform the Governor of the readiness of the Legislature to adjourn, reported that the committee had waited on the Governor, and was requested by him to inform the Senate that he had no further communications to make, and desired him to return to the members of each branch, individually and collectively, his best wishes for their future welfare, and for their safe return to their families.

On motion, the committee was then discharged.

Mr. WHITE, chairman of the committee to inform the House of Representatives that the Senate was ready to adjourn at twelve meridian, reported that they had discharged their duty.

On motion, the committee was then discharged.

REMARKS OF SPEAKER HALL.

Mr. HALL, Gentlemen of the Senate of Pennsylvania—Called to the discharge of the duties of your presiding officer at the opening of the Senate, I esteemed a high honor. In the discharge of those duties I have been supported by you all with uniform courtesy and kindness. I thank you for this. My highest aim was to administer the rules as, whilst no charge could be made against me for infidelity to principle, so none could be made for partiality shown toward any one, as against any other. I trust I have succeeded in performing the duties of my office to your satisfaction. You are about to close the labors of a very laborious session, and to return to your homes. You are about to separate, in no human probability ever to meet again as a body—all of you, I mean, together. At this sad time I return you all my sincere thanks, and I trust that your journey through life may be as pleasant and as happy as each of you could possibly desire.

You will be pleased now, Senators, to elect a successor, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the State.

ELECTION OF SPEAKER.

The Senate then proceeded to the election of Speaker, the Clerks acting as tellers.

Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne, (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Fisher, Haines, Hall, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Ridgway, Royer, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace, White and Worthington—21, voted for the Hon. JAMES L. GRAHAM, Senator from Allegheny.

Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, Graham, James, M' Candless, Randall, Schall, Searight and Walls—11, voted for Hon. WILLIAM A. WALLACE, Senator from Clearfield.

Hon. JAMES L. GRAHAM, of Allegheny county, having received the majority of the votes cast, was duly declared Speaker by the Clerk.

REMARKS OF SPEAKER GRAHAM.

Mr. GRAHAM was then escorted to the Chair by Mr. WALLACE, and made the following remarks :

Mr. GRAHAM, Senators: In assuming the duties of the position to which your partiality has assigned me, I should be false to every emotion of my heart if I did not say that I am profoundly grateful for the distinguished honor you have conferred upon me. I am not unaware, Senators, that I have been selected, not because of any special qualification which I possess for the discharge of the duties of this position; I know that there are many Senators in this Chamber much more familiar with parliamentary usage and much better qualified than myself, to discharge the duties of your presiding office. I am, therefore, the more highly flattered, because I look upon your selection of me, after an acquaintance and association in the Senate Chamber of five years, as a mark of personal friendship and confidence. I shall endeavor, by an impartial and faithful discharge of duty, to justify the confidence you have reposed in me; and if, when I shall pass the gavel over to my successor, the Senate of Pennsylvania shall say to me, as I now say to our honored retiring Speaker, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant," I shall have attained my highest ambition.

Once more, Senators, allow me to say I thank you. I desire the Senate to indicate a Senator to administer the oath.

Mr. BIGHAM. Let the Speaker name one.

Mr. GRAHAM. I would indicate the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE.]

The oath of office was then administered to the newly elected Speaker, by Mr. WALLACE.

THANKS TO THE RETIRING OFFICERS.

Mr. SCHALL offered the following resolution, which was twice read :

Resolved, That the thanks of the Senate are hereby tendered to the Hon. LOUIS W. HALL, late Speaker, for the ability and courtesy with which he has discharged the duties of the chair.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to said resolution?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. SCHALL and Mr. CONNELL, and were as follows, viz :

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Haines, James, Landon, Lowry, M' Candless, M'Conaughy, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Searight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace, Walls, White, Worthington and Graham, Speaker—31.

NAYS—None.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

During the call,

Mr. DONOVAN said: Mr. Speaker, I would say, in justice to the retiring Speaker of the Senate, that I believe he has been the only Speaker for six years whom I feel justified in voting thanks to. I vote "aye."

Mr. WALLACE offered the following resolution, which was twice read,

Resolved, That the thanks of the Senate are hereby tendered to Mr. George W. Hammersly, Chief Clerk of the Senate, for the ability and efficiency with which he has discharged the duties of the office during the present session.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to said resolution,
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WALLACE and Mr. WORTHINGTON, and were as follows, viz :

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Haines, Hall, James, Landon, Lowry, M' Candless, M'Conaughy, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Searight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace, Walls White, Worthington and Graham, Speaker—32.

NAYS—None.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. CONNELL offered the following resolution, which was twice read :

Resolved, That the thanks of the Senate are hereby tendered to Lucius Rodgers and Frederick L. Hitchcock, Assistant Clerks, and to the Transcribing Clerks, and other officers of the Senate, for their uniform courtesy in the discharge of their respective duties.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. CONNELL and Mr. BURNETT, and were as follows, viz :

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Haines, Hall, James, Landon, Lowry, M' Candless, M'Conaughy, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Searight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace, Walls, White, Worthington and Graham, Speaker—32.

NAYS—None.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. DAVIS offered the following resolution, which was twice read as follows :

Resolved, That the thanks of the Senate be and they are hereby tendered to the Rev. E. L. Bailey, for the very acceptable and truly Christian manner in which he has discharged the duties of chaplain of this body.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to said resolution?
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DAVIS and Mr. LANDON, and were as follows, viz :

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Haines, Hall, James, Landon, Lowry, M' Candless, M'Conaughy, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Searight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace, Walls, White, Worthington and Graham, Speaker —32.

NAYS—None.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

PRESENTATION TO THE RETIRING SPEAKER.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, I have, sir, what is to myself a pleasant duty to perform, one that I ask the indulgence of the Senate whilst I am engaged in doing it. On behalf of the Chief Clerk of the Senate [Mr. Hammersly] I tender to the retiring Speaker [Mr. HALL], as a testimonial of the regard of the Clerk of the Senate to the retiring Speaker, for his qualities as a man and for his administration as the Speaker of the Senate, and for the uniform courtesy and kindness with which he has treated him, this beautiful gavel. The gavel of the presiding officer, wielded by the retiring Speaker, has always been wielded with courtesy, with kindness, with impartiality, and it becomes as upon this side of the Chamber, entertaining well founded feelings of respect and regard for that officer, thus to say to him that we appreciate how well he merits this testimonial thus tendered to him. We feel that in guarding our rights, the rights of a minority, he, the representative of the majority on this floor, has uniformly exhibited those qualities which should distinguish the presiding officer of a deliberative body.

This, sir, is the symbol of authority and of power, of representative power, composed of pure and beautiful materials, represents the incorrupt and unsullied spirit in which that authority should always be wielded. Representative power should ever be exercised with impartiality, courtesy and kindness; and, sir, because you, during the session just closing, have, upon all occasions, aided the Chief Clerk in the performance of the arduous duties devolved upon him; because you have exhibited toward him, toward the members on this side of the chamber and toward all within it, courtesy and kindness, we heartily unite in according to you this testimonial. Accept, sir, from the Chief Clerk, this small token of his kind regards for you.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker and honored Senator from Clearfield, these little episodes in life are pleasant indeed, and it is especially pleasant for me on this occasion to receive this mark of respect in the esteem from the Chief Clerk of the Senate—a gentleman distinguished within this State and beyond it as an efficient and faithful officer. In the remarks of the Senator from Clearfield and in the resolution unanimously adopted by the Senate, the members of this body have manifested to me their respect for the manner in which I have, as presiding officer, discharged my duty. I deem it due to the Chief Clerk to say that any ability which I may have displayed in the chair has been largely due to the experience he brought to bear on the duties of his position.

It is, Mr. Speaker, the happiest moment of a man's life when he lays down power, as I have laid it down to-day, to receive at the hands of his friends of two great political organizations, evidence that he has administered that power impartially. One of the ablest parliamentarians and most eloquent speakers that America has produced, said once that he deemed it the distinguishing characteristic of an efficient presiding officer, while rigidly and even sternly adhering to the rules, to do it always in good temper and always impartially. Such has been my aim. The reflection that I have given satisfaction to my brother Senators of both political persuasions makes this indeed the happiest moment of my life. I thank you, Senator WALLACE; I thank you, Mr. Clerk; I thank you, brother Senators, one and all.

In closing these remarks, it would be improper for me to omit to say that my much of any success I may have had as presiding officer, has been due to the great efficiency, the thorough fidelity, and the exceedingly gentlemanly demeanor of the subordinate officers of the Senate. Every one of them has discharged his duties with faithfulness. I thank them one and all for the important aid they have thus rendered me.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, the saddest scene upon earth is the death-bed scene of a State Legislature.

ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. FISHER. I move that the Senate now adjourn.

On the motion,

The yeas and nays were ordered and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connel, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Haines, Hall, James, Landon, Lowry, M' Candless, M'Conaughy, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Searight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace, Walls, White, Worthington and Graham, Speaker—82.

NAYS—None.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The SPEAKER. The motion is agreed to; and the hour of 12 o'clock, M., having arrived, I declare the Senate adjourned sine die.

AN ACT for the better and more impartial selection of persons to serve as jurors in each of the counties of this Commonwealth.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That at the general election to be held on the second Tuesday of October, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, and triennially thereafter, at each election, the qualified electors of the several counties of this Commonwealth shall elect, in the manner now provided by law for the election of other county officers, two sober, intelligent and judicious persons to serve as jury commissioners in each of said counties, for the period of three years, ending their election, but the same person or persons shall not be eligible for re-election more than one in any period of six years: Provided, That each of said qualified electors shall vote for one person only as jury commissioner, and the two persons having the greatest number of votes for jury commissioner shall be duly elected jury commissioners for such county.

SEC. 2. It shall be the duty of said jury commissioners, president judge, or additional law judge of the respective district, or a majority of them, to meet at the seat of justice of the respective counties, at least thirty days before the first term of the court of common pleas in every year, and thereupon proceed, with due diligence, to select alternately from the whole qualified electors of the respective county at large a number, such as at the term of the court of pleas next preceding shall, by the said court, be designated, of sober, intelligent and judicious persons to serve as jurors in the several courts of such county during that year; and the said jury commissioners, president judge, or additional judge, or a majority of them, shall, in the mode and manner now directed by law, place the names of persons so selected in the proper jury wheel, and the said jury wheel locked, as now required by law, shall remain in the custody of the said jury commissioners, and the keys thereof in the custody of the sheriff of said county.

SEC. 3. The said jury commissioners and the sheriff of the respective county, or any two of them, shall draw from the proper jury wheel panels of jurors as grand jurors of the proper county, and as petit and traverse jurors for the trial of issues in fact which may be taken in any action, in any of the courts, civil and criminal, of the several counties aforesaid, in the manner now practiced and allowed; but before the said jury commissioners and sheriff shall proceed to select or draw jurors in the manner aforesaid they shall severally take the oath or affirmation now prescribed by law to be taken by the sheriff and county commissioners before selecting and serving jurors.

SEC. 4. That so much of any act or acts of Assembly of this Commonwealth, as makes it the duty of the sheriff and county commissioners of any of said counties to select and draw jurors shall be repealed, and cease to have any force or effect, from and after the first day of December next, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven: Provided, That all acts and parts of acts of Assembly, now in force in relation to the custody, sealing and unsealing, locking and opening of the jury wheel of the respective county, and all acts and parts of acts of Assembly, now in force, imposing any penalty or punishment on the sheriff and county commissioners, or either of them, for anything done or omitted by them, in relation to the keeping, locking, opening, sealing or breaking the seal of any jury wheel, or in relation to the selecting or drawing of jurors, shall be taken, deemed and held to apply to the said jury commissioners and sheriff.

SEC. 5. Each of said jury commissioners shall be allowed and paid, out of the respective county treasury, two dollars and fifty cents per day, and four cents per mile, circular, from the residence of the commissioners to the court house.

SEC. 6. It shall be the duty of each of said jury commissioners to take upon himself and discharge the duties of the said office, under the penalty of one hundred dollars for each and every neglect or refusal to attend the same, to be sued for and recovered before any justice of the peace of the proper county, as debts of like amount are now by law recoverable, ten dollars of which shall go to the person suing, and the residue to be paid by the said justice to the treasurer of the respective county, for the use of the same.

SEC. 7. In case of the inability of either or all of the said jury commissioners, by sickness, death or other unavoidable causes, to discharge the duties of said office, or in case of neglect or refusal to serve thereon, it shall be the duty of the president judge in such county wherein said vacancy may have occurred, to appoint a suitable person or persons, as he shall see fit, possessing the qualifications aforesaid, to perform the duties of said office, during such vacancy, and such person or persons, after having complied with the requirements of the third section of this act, shall proceed to discharge the duties of said office, during the remainder of the time so vacated: Provided, That the provisions of this act shall not apply to the city of Philadelphia.

LOUIS W. HALL,
Speaker of the Senate.

JOHN P. FISHER,

Speaker of the House of Representatives.

APPROVED—The tenth day of April, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate of the same.

He also informed that the Senate has adopted the report of the committee of conference, on the subject of the differences existing between the two Houses in relation to the amendments to House bill numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 246, an act for the better and more impartial selection of persons to serve as jurors in each of the counties of the Commonwealth.

He also informed that the Senate has concurred in the amendments made by the House of Representatives to Senate bills numbered and entitled as follows:

No. 724, an act to authorize the merger or consolidation of oil and other mining companies.

No. 948, a further supplement to the act to incorporate the Union School and Children's Home asylum, to provide for the taxation of non-resident vendors of merchandise in the city and county of Philadelphia, and for the relief of Edward Hutchinson, approved April 12th, 1861.

No. 1942, a supplement to an act entitled An act authorizing the school directors of Latimer township, Adams county, to levy a tax and issue bonds to pay money raised to pay bounties to volunteers, approved the 11th day of April, 1867.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE.

The committee of conference, to whom was referred Senate bill No. 413, to wit: an act to regulate the carriage of baggage by railroad companies, and to prescribe the duties and obligations of carriers and passengers in relation thereto, respectfully report that they have agreed to recommend that the House shall recede from its amendments, now concurred in by the Senate, and thus restore the bill as passed by the Senate.

(Signed) JACOB E. RIDGWAY, WILMER WORTHINGTON,
C. M. DONOVAN,
EDWARD G. LEE,
W. W. WATT,
L. W. WESTBROOK.

On motion,
Said report was twice read and agreed to; and

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate of the same.

SPECIAL ORDER.

The SPEAKER announced the hour for the consideration of the special order, Senate joint resolution to suspend the ninth joint rule in reference to the transmission of certain bills from the Senate, had arrived.

On motion of Mr. LEE, the resolution was so amended as to include

No. 2186, an act requiring the North Pennsylvania railroad company and the Frankford and Southwark railway company to appoint a watchman on the crossing at Berks and America street.

On motion of Mr. LINTON, the following was also added:

No. 1720, an act transferring the farm of Augustine Walters from Allegheny township, Cambria county, to Loretto borough, in the same county, for school purposes.

The question recurring on the resolution as amended,

It was

Agreed to.
Mr. CAMERON. Mr. Speaker, I move that the Committee on Coal and Iron be discharged from the further consideration of Senate bill No. 1408, an act to consolidate the Steuben coal company and the Scranton coal company.

The question being on the motion of Mr. CAMERON,

It was

Agreed to.
The bill was taken up, considered and

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended, the bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I move to reconsider the vote by which the House defeated House bill No. 1788, an act to change the venue in the case of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania vs. Louis S. Boner and Sylvester Hoffman from the court of quarter sessions of the peace of Dauphin county.

The question being on the motion of Mr. MANN,

It was

Agreed to.

The bill being again before the House, and the question on its final passage,

It was

Agreed to.

And the bill

Passed finally.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the orders of the day be suspended for the purpose of considering Senate bill No. 1722, joint resolution instructing our Senators and requesting our Representatives in Congress to vote for an appropriation to open a communication between Lake Erie and the Ohio river.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I call for a division of the question.

The question being on the first division, which involved a suspension of the orders generally,

It was

Not agreed to.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I call up the resolution in regard to the pay of the officers of the House.

The resolution was taken up and read.

The question being on the resolution,
Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I move the indefinite postponement of the resolution.

The question being on agreeing to the motion of Mr. STUMBAUGH,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. STUMBAUGH and Mr. FREEBORN, and were as follow, viz:

Yeas—Messrs. Adaire, Barton, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Donohugh, Ewing, Ghegan, Gregory, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creery, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Markley, Meching, Meily, Mullin, Peter, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Watt, Wilson, Wingard, Wright and Glass, Speaker—41.

Nays—Messrs. Allen, Armstrong, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Calvin, Collins, Craig, Day, Espy, Ewing, Fogel, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Harner, Heltzel, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Kimball, Kline, Leech, Linton, Long, M'Creary, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Mann, Markley, Meyers, Pennypacker, Phelan, Rhoads, Richards, Roath, Roush, Satterthwait, Sharples, Waddell, Wallace, Webb, Weller, Woodward, Worrall and Wright—45.

Nays—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, DeHaven, Donohugh, Ghegan, Gregory, Harbison, Hoffman, Hood, Humphrey, Josephs, Kennedy, M'Kee, Kinney, Koon, Lee, M'Camant, M'Kee, Meching, Meily, Mullin, Peter, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Robinson, Sells, Shuman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Tharp, Watt, Wilson, Wingard and Glass, Speaker—41.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The question recurring on agreeing to the resolution,

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I think this resolution ought to be amended. There is not a gentleman in the House who does not know that four transcribers are utterly insufficient to do the work required. We have six now, and they are worked almost to death. When that law was passed providing for four transcribers, we had a volume of laws about an inch thick, and now they make as much as a man can carry. The transcribers are now up almost all night, and I say that to ask four men to do what six men can barely get through with now is asking an impossibility. All the wants of the House are greater than they have been hitherto. Here is the House file. Last year we had it up two stories; this year they have piled it up in one. Yet we are asking that four transcribers shall do all this work. I hope the resolution will be amended in some way.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE] either misapprehends this resolution, or else I do. It does not propose to pay only four transcribers. It simply proposes to stop the pay upon those officers who have not been on duty.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to occupy the attention of the House, but there are some things connected with this matter that probably the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] does not understand. Now, I know that the labor performed by the officers of this House is now more than three times what it was six years ago. They have that much more to do. There is a great increase in the labor to be performed, in the folding department especially.

There is another thing to which I would call the attention of the House, and that is that the House of Representatives has created so many special committees this session to attend to business, either legitimate or otherwise, that several times there were four sergeants-at-arms absent from this House at a time on business connected with those committees. Now, I ask you how you would do with two sergeants-at-arms? The work for the offices of this House is at least four times what it was at the time this law was passed that limited that number. I hope this House will vote this whole thing down.

The question being on agreeing to the resolution,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MANN and Mr. RHoads, and were as follow, viz:

Yeas—Messrs. Armstrong, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Calvin, Collins, Craig, Day, Espy, Ewing, Fogel, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Harner, Heltzel, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Kimball, Kline, Leech, Linton, Long, M'Creary, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Mann, Markley, Meyers, Pennypacker, Phelan, Rhoads, Richards, Roath, Roush, Satterthwait, Sharples, Waddell, Wallace, Webb, Weller, Woodward, Worrall and Wright—45.

Nays—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, DeHaven, Donohugh, Ghegan, Gregory, Harbison, Hoffman, Hood, Humphrey, Josephs, Kennedy, M'Kee, Kinney, Koon, Lee, M'Camant, M'Kee, Meching, Meily, Mullin, Peter, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Robinson, Sells, Shuman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Tharp, Watt, Wilson, Wingard and Glass, Speaker—41.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. ADAIRE. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to offer a resolution.

Consent was granted.

Mr. ADAIRE. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Clerk of the House be authorized to have the Legislative Hand-Book revised during the recess, and that there be ordered for the use of the next House the same number of said Hand-books that was ordered for the use of the present session.

The question being on agreeing to the resolution,

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I hope that resolution will be amended. This Hand-Book is a very useful and necessary book, but three thousand copies are not necessary. The Senate, when this matter was under consideration, ordered the publication, for themselves, of but one hundred copies. We took three thousand copies. I have no objection to the resolution, but I hope it will be amended so as to limit the number to five hundred copies, and I move that amendment.

Mr. ADAIRE. Mr. Speaker, I hope that amendment will not prevail. This book has been sought after more than any other book that has been published by this Legislature. There is not a man on this floor who has not been written to time and again for it.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, this, to my mind, is a resolution like the one we have just passed—one with which we have nothing to do. We might make the provision cortained in the first part of this resolution, that the Hand-Book should be revised, but it is for the next Legislature to say what books they shall order.

The question being on the amendment of Mr. MANN,

It was Not agreed to.

The question recurring on the resolution, On motion of Mr. ADAIRE, the resolution was amended by striking out the latter part of the resolution ordering three thousand copies of the Hand-Books for the use of the next House.

The resolution was amended was Agreed to.

JOS. F. KNIFE, P. M.

The committee report that they have examined the foregoing bill and find it correct, and recommend the passage of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Speaker of the House of Representatives be directed to draw a warrant in favor of Joseph F. Knife, Postmaster, for the sum of three thousand seven hundred and thirty-six dollars and seventy-three cents ($3,736 73), being the amount due for postage on letters and documents sent and received during the month of March, 1867.

DAVID WALLACE,
H. J. WHEATON,
FREDERICK HARNER,
JOHN M. SZEIMAN,
J. SEILER,
GEO. A. SHUMAN,
F. W. HEADMAN.

Mr. STUMBAUGH, chairman of the Committee on Coal and Iron, reported, as committed, Senate bill No. 1407, an act to incorporate the Granby coal company.

Mr. QUIGLEY (Corporations), as committed, Senate bill No. 961, an act to incorporate the Peoples' Brewer association of Philadelphia.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Spenser, I move to discharge the Committee on Agriculture from the further consideration of Senate bill No. 1268, an act relative to the Schuylkill County park association, and that it be placed on the Senate file for this afternoon.

The motion was

Agreed to.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to proceed to the consideration of Senate bill No. 1775, a supplement to an act relating to corporations for mechanical, manufacturing, mining and quarrying purposes, approved the 18th day of July, 1863, repealing section thirty-three of the same so far as it affects certain counties.

Consent was granted.

The bill was read and

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended, the bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration of bills on third reading. The following were acted upon as stated:

Senate bill No. 1601, an act to authorize the removal of certain cases from the court of common pleas of Cambria county to the court of common pleas of Centre county.

The question being on the final passage of the bill,

It was

Agreed to.

And the bill

Passed finally.

The next bill was

Senate bill No. 1469, an act for the better protection of person, property and life in the mining regions of this Commonwealth. The question being on the final passage of the bill,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. COLLINS and Mr. GREGORY, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Mann, Mechling, Melly, Pennypacker, Peter, Pillow, Quay, Richards, Roth, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wall, Webb, Westbrock and Wright—41.

Wharton, Wilson, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—50.

NAYS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Calvin, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hood, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Tharp and Westbrook—33.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the bill

Passed finally.

The next bill was Senate bill No. 948, a further supplement to the act to incorporate the Union School and Children's Home asylum, to provide for the taxation of non-resident vendors of merchandise in the city and county of Philadelphia, and for the relief of Edward Hutchinson, approved April 12, 1851.

The question being on the final passage of the bill,

It was

Agreed to,

And the bill

Passed finally.

The next bill was Senate bill No. 1264, an act to annul the marriage contract between Henry Warren Roth and Isabella, his wife.

The question being on the final passage of the bill,

It was

Agreed to,

And the bill

Passed finally.

The next bill was, Senate bill No. 1253, an act to change the venue in certain cases from Allegheny to Jefferson county.

The question being on the final passage of the bill,

It was

Agreed to,

And the bill

Passed finally.

The next bill was, Senate bill No. 1599, a supplement to the Erie and Allegheny railroad company, authorizing connections with their road on the east line of the township of Northeast with any railroad from the State of New York.

The question being on the final passage of the bill,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. JOSEPHS and Mr. PETER, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Allen, Barrington, Barton, Boyd, Boyle, Chadwick, Chalfant, Collins, Colville, Day, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Leech, Linton, M'Creary, M'Kee, Maish, Mann, Markley, Mechling, Meyers, Peter, Phelan, Quay, Richards, Robinson, Tharp, Wallace, Weller, Whann, Wilson and Woodward—38.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Breen, Brown, Calvin, Cameron, DeHaven, Fogel, Ghegan, Gregory, Headman, Heltzel, Hoffman, Hood, Humphrey, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Lee, Long, M'Henry, Melly, Mullin, Quigley, Rhoads, Roth, Robinson, Seiler, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wall, Webb, Westbrock and Wright—41.

So the question was determined in the negative. The next bill was Senate bill No. 1805, an act to repeal an act regulating the jurisdiction of courts in proceedings by bills for injunctions and other relief in equity and the service of process.

The question being on the final passage of the bill,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr.

QUAY and Mr. MANN, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barton, Calvin, Cameron, Davis, DeHaven, Donohugh, Ghegan, Gregory, Harbison, Headman, Hoffman, Hood, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kinney, Koon, Lee, Meehling, Melly, Mullin, Pitter, Quay, Quigley, Roach, Robinson, Satterthwait, Seiler, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Suhers, Wallace, Watt, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Worrall and Wright—41.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Chadwick, Chalfant, Chase, Collins, Colville, Craig, Day, Eging, Fwing, Fogel, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Harner, Humphrey, Jenks, Jones, Kline, Karts, Leech, Linton, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Henry, M'Kea, Maish, Mann, Markley, Meyers, Pennypacker, Phean, Richards, Roush, Tharp, Waddell, Webb, Weller, Westbrook, Whann and Woodward—45.

So the question was determined in the negative.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE.

Mr. QUAY presented the following report:

The committee to whom was referred the questions of difference between the two Houses in reference to House bill No. 1661, entitled An act relating to the Western Pennsylvania railroad company, and for other purposes, respectfully report that they recommend that the Senate recede from its amendments.

(Signed,) ROBT' ADLEY BROWN,
WM. M. RANDALL,
A. W. TAYLOR,
Senate Committee.
M. S. QUAY,
W. C. HARBISON,
C. W. THARP,
House Committee.

On motion, said report was twice read and Agreed to; and

Ordered, that the Clerk inform the Senate of the same.

REPORT FROM SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

Mr. JOSEPHS presented the following report, which was read and

Agreed to:

Mr. JOSEPHS, from the committee to whom was referred the resolution of the House of Representatives of January 30th, 1867, requiring them to investigate charges against the Atlantic and Great Western railroad company, respectfully report that they met on the 30th day of January, and organized by electing George H. Bemus, of Crawford county, clerk. Mr. M'CAMANT having by his own request been discharged from said committee, and Mr. ADAIRE substituted in his place, the committee, by vote, selected Mr. JOSEPHS as chairman.

Your committee represent that the Atlantic and Great Western railroad passes through the counties of Erie, Crawford and Mercer, in this State, connecting with the New York and Erie, at Salamanca, in the State of New York, and the Ohio and Mississippi, at Dayton, in the State of Ohio, with branches from Meadville to Oil City, and Leavittsville to Cleveland. The charges which your committee were required to investigate were that the Atlantic and Great Western railroad company discriminated in freights in favor of the citizens of other States, against citizens of this Commonwealth.

Your committee, in order to ascertain the truth or falsity of the charges contained in the resolution, found it necessary to proceed to New York to inquire the tariff of prices charged by the New York and Erie railroad, and on freights delivered to them by the Atlantic and Great Western railroad company.

They, therefore, proceeded to the city of New York, where every facility for acquiring the desired information was afforded by the officers of the New York and Erie railroad company.

As the resolution evidently contemplated a special investigation as to the transportation of petroleum, your committee limited their inquiries to that subject. It was found that by an arrangement between the Atlantic and Great Western and New York and Erie railroad companies, that the New York and Erie railroad company delivered oil at Jersey City, from Salamanca, the point of intersection, at seventy-two cents per one hundred pounds, rated as second class freight, the distance being about _____ miles, while the amount charged by the Atlantic and Great Western railroad company, from Oil City to Salamanca, a distance of about _____ miles, was forty-five cents per one hundred pounds. It was also ascertained that the Atlantic and Great Western railroad company carried oil from Oil City to Cleveland, in the State of Ohio, a distance of _____ miles, at twenty cents per one hundred pounds, while a pro rata charge of forty-five cents from Oil City to Corry was made on local freights. Thus, oil was delivered at Cleveland, a distance of one hundred and thirty-five miles, at as low or less charge for transportation as at Meadville, a distance of thirty _____ miles. It will be seen at once that refiners at Cleveland, obtaining crude oil at the same price at which it can be had in the oil regions, possess a great advantage over refiners of our own State, from the fact that they can ship by lake and canal to tidewater, a much cheaper mode of transportation than by rail. The excuse made (and which, perhaps, is a good one) for the excessive local charges, is found in a lease or contract made between the Atlantic and Great Western railroad company and the Oil Creek railroad company, by which the first named company became possessed of the franchises of so much of the Oil-Creek railroad company's charter as allows them to build a railroad from Oil City to Franklin, and which said lease or contract is dated the fourteenth day of January, A. D. 1864, the following being an extract therefrom: "Said party of the second part (the Atlantic and Great Western railroad company) shall pay to the party of the first part the annual rental of one dollar, and shall have the right to fix and regulate from time to time the tariff of freight for passengers and freights, except that they shall so far be made so low as to enable the Atlantic and Great Western railroad company to deliver oil, by way of Meadville, at Corry at lower prices than those charged by the Oil Creek railroad company from the Tarr Farm to that point, nor at Union at less prices than by the Oil Creek and Atlantic and Great Western railroad to that point."

It will be seen by the above contract that not the Atlantic and Great Western railroad company, but the Oil Creek railroad company control the price of transporting petroleum from Oil City to Corry. Whether this contract is void in law, as being against public policy or not, your committee do not undertake to determine, but that some legislation is necessary to protect producers and shippers of this peculiar commodity, they are well satisfied. All of which is respectfully submitted.

SAMUEL JOSEPHS,
ALEX. ADAIRE,
GEO. Y. M'KEE,
J. S. CHASE,
A. D. MARKLEY.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented the following extract from the Journal:

IN SENATE, April 10, 1867.

Resolved, If the House of Representatives concur, that the ninth joint rule be suspended so far as related to the transmission of Senate bill No. 1688, entitled An act for the relief of John Ganthey, of Beaver county.

Consent was granted.

The bill was taken up, considered and Agreed to.

The rules were suspended,
The bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the General Judiciary Committee be discharged from the further consideration of Senate bill No. 167, a supplement to an act amending the law of evidence in Pennsylvania, approved March 27th, 1865.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The bill was taken up, considered and Agreed to.

The question being on suspending the rules to read the bill a third time by its title,

APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. WADELLE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to present to the House the report of the committee of conference on House bill No. 828, called the appropriation bill.

That the House concur in Senate amendments to the twelfth and twenty-ninth lines of the second section, and in Senate amendments to third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, tenth, eleventh, fourteenth, fifteenth, twenty-first, twenty-sixth, thirty-eighth, forty-first, forty-second, forty-seventh, fifty-second, fifty-third, fifty-fourth, fifty-fifth, fifty-seventh, fifty-eighth, sixty-second, sixty-fifth, seventh, seventy-first, seventy-fourth, seventy-fifth, seventy-sixth and seventy-eighth section.

That the Senate recede from their amendments in the twenty-sixth line of the first section, in second, third and fourth lines of the thirteenth section, to the forty-eighth section, from the manuscript proviso to sixty-ninth section, and also to the seventy-seventh section, and also the forty-fourth section, and that the words "two hundred and fifty" be inserted before the word "dollars," in the twelfth line of the second section; and the words "five hundred" be inserted in the twenty-fifth line of the second section; and that the Senate recede from their amendments in the twenty-sixth line of the second section; and that the House concur in Senate amendment in the twenty-ninth line of second section.

That the House concur in Senate amendments in the third, fourth, tenth and eleventh lines of tenth section—and that the twenty-fifth line be amended so as to read "fifteen thousand."

That the Senate recede from their amendments in the first paragraph of the thirteenth section, and that the House concur in the manuscript amendment of the Senate to the thirteenth section.

That the third line of the seventy-eighth section be amended by inserting the word "three" in lieu of "four" in the original bill, "three thousand" in the sixth line of same section in place of "eight" in original bill, and that the House concur in the other Senate amendments to same section.

That the words "Sergeant-at-Arms" and his Assistants, "Doorkeeper," "Messenger to committee rooms of the House of Representatives" be inserted after the word "Senate" in the third line of the manuscript amendment to the fortieth section.

That the forty-third section be amended by inserting "five thousand dollars," and that the fifty-third section be amended by inserting "three thousand" in the second line in lieu of five. That the fifty-ninth section be amended by inserting "eight thousand" in lieu of "fifteen thousand."

That the thirty-ninth section be amended by adding the words, "and the same rate per day for three months after the close of the session."

That the following words be added to the forty-first section, "and the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars to Charles Looker, for similar services in the House of Representatives."

Question, Will the House adopt the report of the committee?

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, no man can have a conception of how this bill stands, from this report, until it is printed.

The chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means can, no doubt, tell us a few things which will perhaps be sufficient to govern the votes of a large number of members.

Mr. WADELLE. Mr. Speaker, there is one important matter disposed of in which which the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] will feel some interest. It repeals the law of last winter paying annuities and gratuities to the widows of soldiers. It reduces the school appropriation to what it was last winter. It reduces the appropriation to the children of soldiers about fifty thousand dollars.

These are the main features of the changes which will be made in the bill.

Mr. DAVIS. I understand it increases the salary of some of the officers of the Senate and the House.

Mr. WADELLE. The Senate amended the bill by increasing the compensation of a portion of their officers. Some of the House committee insisted upon striking out the amendment. This they were unable to do. They then determined, as the next best thing to be done, to bring the same class of officers in the House within the amendment.

Mr. WOODWARD. I would like to know if the Marine hospital at Erie still lives.

Mr. WADELLE. The Marine hospital at Erie still lives.

Mr. BOYLE. Did I understand the chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means to say that the law giving annuities and gratuities to the old soldiers of 1812 was repealed?

Mr. WADELLE. Yes, sir.

Mr. BOYLE. I would like to inquire if the appropriation to the Washington State agency is still in the bill.

Mr. WADELLE. My impression is that the appropriation remains.

Mr. BOYLE. I would like to inquire whether twenty thousand dollars is not allowed the Adjutant General?

Mr. WADELLE. That was reduced to ten or fifteen thousand dollars.

Mr. BOYLE. Does the appropriation to the State library remain?

Mr. WADELLE. Yes, sir.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I think of all reports ever heard of this excels as decidedly the meanest thing ever done by this Legislature. The State is said to be groaning under financial difficulties; there are no means to support the Government. Now, what have this conference committee done? In the first place, they take from the old soldiers, who served their country gallantly and well in the war of 1812, the little pittance granted them last year. But do they carry out these principles of extreme economy? No, sir. They appropriate twelve thousand dollars to keep on two pensioners, who are able to support themselves, in the city of Washington—twelve thousand dollars for a mere political machine, kept up for the purpose of talking up his Excellency the Governor.

Mr. WADELLE. Mr. Speaker, if that gentleman will permit me I will inform him it was impossible for the committee to strike out anything that both branches of the Legislature had left in the bill. In regard to this one appropriation the House passed it at twenty thousand dollars; the Senate itself made the change, and the committee of conference being called upon to pass on the bill acquiesced in the amendment.

The Senate also amended the bill striking out the law of last winter in regard to the soldiers. The committee were called upon to pass upon that. There was a difference in the committee as to the propriety of this.

Mr. BOYLE. Then the chairman of the committee will allow me to say over that subject the committee had sole power.

Mr. Speaker, I say this committee has not done its duty to the people of the State in striking out the appropriation to the old soldiers and retaining the pension to the State agent and his assistant at Washington. Again, there are five thousand dollars given to the Governor. For what? I would like to know, if any gentleman here can inform me, what there is to make it necessary to place five thousand dollars in the hands of the Governor to be used as he sees proper.

Mr. WADELLE. My impression is this five thousand dollars is not in the bill.

Mr. BOYLE. Then there is an appropriation of fifteen thousand dollars to the State arsenal. The whole thing is not worth twenty thousand dollars. Yet here is a needless appropriation, while we take the bread out of the mouths of the old soldiers who have saved their country. Again, the pay of some of the officers of this House has been increased. Some of them are very worthy gentlemen. I take it they are not overworked; they appear to have been fed well, and were anxious enough to get their situations at the regular pay. Yet we show our liberality to them while we take away a small pittance for the soldiers. The controlling object seems to have been the talking up of the party.

Mr. STUBBS. Mr. Speaker, there is a question about the State agency; the House passed upon it long ago. It is not necessary the House should be rebuked or abused for having acted in the premises as it saw proper.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I have agreed so often with the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] that I regret very much that he has seen fit to object to this report of the conference committee. I regret it exceedingly; it sounds very much as if he was prone anxious to make a little party capital than to get through this House a bill that is comparatively unimportant, but this is the impression which his remarks make upon me.

He commenced with an attack upon that portion of the report which repealed the act of last year, providing a pension for the soldiers of the war of 1812.

I say it has been shown by the statement of the Auditor General, that there was so much abuse, fraud and perjury connected with the execution of that law, that it is entitled to some little candor from the gentleman from Fayette. Grant it, that the committee made a mistake in retreating it is notorious fact, established to the satisfaction of this House, as well as any fact is established, that there has been connected with that bill from its passage to the present time, fraud and perjury upon the part of those who have been getting funds out of the treasury, under its provisions. Now, an attempt to amend that bill to guard the treasury, so that none but old soldiers should be paid under its provisions, was resisted nearly unanimously by every man belonging to the party with which the gentleman from Fayette is connected. I think the committee of conference did the only thing they could to remedy the evil which existed under this law. The soldiers of 1812 will not suffer by this action. There has never been an objection from any source to paying the soldiers of the war of 1812. The only objection that has been made was against paying these vamps. Although the soldiers of 1812 may have to wait a few months (and nine months is the farthest that any of them will be obliged to wait), in order to guard the treasury from such open frauds, they will have their honest claims attended to, and in due time. Before this act was passed, the sum paid to the soldiers of 1812 was from twelve to fourteen thousand dollars annually. But immediately after the passage of this act, it ran up to one hundred and sixty-nine thousand dollars.

Mr. HEADMAN. Mr. Speaker I would ask the gentleman if he did not draw up that bill?

Mr. MANN. I did; I did it at the suggestion of the guardians of the treasury of this State, believing that it had been drawn in such a way, that all honest claims would be easily procured, and dishonest claims kept out. But I confess to have made a great blunder in that matter; I did not know at that time that men would perjure themselves for the sake of forty dollars. I had not the slightest idea that men who paid into the State Treasury a thousand dollars of tax would come here and swear that they were in indigent circumstances, and, therefore, ought to have forty dollars out of the Treasury. I had not the slightest idea that men crawled on the surface of Pennsylvania such mean creatures, or I would never have introduced such a bill. It is simply to guard the Treasury of this State, that the repeal of this act is called for. It is a very easy matter to remedy the slight inconvenience that will be felt from the repeal of this act. I am, therefore, exceedingly glad that it comes to us in this shape.

I believe that I ought to be as much opposed to this report as any man upon this floor. It strikes at a joint where I have been exceedingly interested. It strikes down an appropriation to the common schools nearly one-half. I believe this appropriation was the most meritorious one in the whole bill. I believe every dollar appropriated to the common schools does more good than each ten dollars in any other part of this appropriation bill; that, in fact, it is the only money appropriated in this bill that will be of any real benefit to this Commonwealth. I believe that every dollar of this appropriation was needed—that it would have given life and vitality to the common schools of the State; yet that has been stricken out, and we are left to go on in the old way, lagging for the want of means to keep up the vitality of the school system. Much as I regret this, much as I feel this will be a loss to the people of the State, I am content with this report, and I hope the House will affirm it.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I regret, too, that it has been found necessary to reduce an appropriation to the common schools. I go as far as the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] in this matter. I was anxious that the whole amount of six hundred thousand dollars should be appropriated, that a new life should be infused into our schools, and I was as anxious as any gentleman on this floor to reduce the expenses of the Government to the lowest possible point. I opposed every appropriation that was of a questionable character. But I never, for a moment, thought of striking out the provision for the old soldiers; and I may say, further, that if I had found it necessary to reduce the appropriation of the old soldiers—to deprive them of it, in fact—I would not, like the gentleman from Potter, have added insult to injury. I would not have come here and said that I had taken it from them, because they had degraded themselves lower than anything that crawls on this earth.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I said nothing of the kind. I said there were men who were mean enough to degrade themselves for the purpose of drawing this money. I do not believe any old soldier has done anything as mean as that.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman would strip the old soldier of this small pittance—these old men who have served their country—because a few outsiders (or a great many if you please) have sworn falsely and obtained money under this appropriation. Because that abuse has grown up in the system, he strikes at the system itself. The abuse might have been erased; but there was no need to set aside the real soldier in order to deprive the impostor of an opportunity of palming himself off upon the State.

Now, I believe it has been denied that there is an appropriation in the bill for the Governor's mansion; but I am informed that the bill does contain an appropriation of fifteen thousand dollars for his residence. Now, it was the case, a few years ago, that the Governor rented his house and lived in it; a common house, and like ordinary mortals. The State, in its generosity, increased the Governor's salary, and at the same time, or about the same time, it gave him a house to live in. After a while, that was not found to be quite good enough, and another house, on Front street, was obtained; and that was thought sufficient for all purposes during the war, when Governor Curtin was as much annoyed by callers and parties as any other Governor. He found that mansion sufficient to accommodate all. No man ever called there, and was turned away for want of room. But when Governor Geary takes possession, the first thing we hear is, that the house is not big enough. The Governor cannot spread himself; the Governor cannot give the parties he wants to give; and then, while the State is groaning under its present debt, while the bread is taken from the mouths of the old soldiers, you give fifteen thousand dollars to the Governor for the extending and fitting up of his residence. Now, I say that no party in this country can stand up under that. The gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] may say I am making political capital or otherwise, as he sees proper. I am making political capital, and I know the people of this State will take a proper view of this thing. They will inquire whether pensions are to be taken from all soldiers who have fought for their country, while we keep up two fat, proud pensioners in the State agency at Washington. This may sound, now, as if merely for political purposes. I admit I have something of that kind in view. I admit that I have it in view to try to break down this Republican party, because of its many iniquities. But I have another purpose. It is our duty to see that there are no improper expenditures of the people's money, and, I repeat, when you put your hand into the treasury and take out twelve thousand dollars (and I am informed it will be twenty thousand) to keep up the agency at Washington—

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I submit the gentleman cannot speak on the State agency. The gentleman has fought that measure as long as any honest man—

Mr. BOYLE. I suppose I am out of order to speak on the Senate agency, but it is such an abomination that I cannot keep from talking about it. But the Governor's mansion is a legitimate subject of comment. I say it is a useless and unwarranted expenditure of the people's money.

I say, further than that, to increase the pay of the officers of this Legislature is inexpedient, because they are well paid now. I say, further, to continue the quartermaster's department is an inexcusable expense, because the affair of this department could be administered by another department of the government, without costing a solitary dime. But all these things are left on, with the addition of fifteen thousand dollars, to build the Governor's mansion.

Mr. DAVIS. My opinion is, Mr. Speaker, that the gentleman has made as good a speech for his party as anybody could make. I have always remarked, in my experience, that the very worst managers of their own affairs are very apt to be always able to tell other people how to manage their business. Six years ago, when the Republican party took control of the State of Pennsylvania, her debt was three millions more than it is now. During that time we had five years of war. Steadily we paid that debt, although we appropriated more money in five years than the Democratic party did in twenty-five, showing that we had the capacity to govern, and that we knew how to do it.

Now, there are some things in the report made by the honorable chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means to which I object; but it is not those parts objected to by the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE]. The report is a fair and conscientious one, the result of much labor. We cannot all be pleased. There will, of necessity, be matters which will meet the disapprobation of some one of us; but that is no reason why we should strike at the whole bill. The session is drawing near its close; we have scarcely a day in which to consider this matter. I am satisfied with it as it is, and I trust thereport will be adopted by this House.

Mr. HEADMAN. Mr. Speaker, I had no idea that the question of the old soldiers of the war of 1812 would come up in this manner. I thought it was settled when it was decided in this House, almost unanimously, some time ago, not to repeal the law. But now we have an appropriation bill striking upon that the House had before granted a pension to the old soldiers. I am opposed to this portion of the appropriation bill. The soldiers of 1812 are justly entitled to the aid of the law. It is absurd to say that this repeal was a necessity to guard the old soldiers. No man can draw money under this law unless he proves himself entitled to it. I hope the appropriation bill, so far as that is concerned, will be voted down.

The gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. Davis] says the Republican party has relieved the State of taxation. If that is true, how have they done it? They have increased the legal interest of the State, and thereby compelled people to pay, in interest, double the amount they would have had to pay in taxes. And they have created a loan of twenty-three millions of dollars under the present administration. When the Republican party took control of this Government, the debt was scarcely anything in comparison with what it is now. The Democratic party carried this Government through seventy years and three wars. They added more territory to this country during their administration than was embraced within its boundaries when they began the direction of its affairs, without running themselves into debt.

I am not going to detain the House much longer. But I will take time enough to say that this is one of the most iniquitous bills that ever came before the House. This idea of increasing the salaries of every officer of this House and then taking the pension from the soldiers of the war of 1812! The men who fought gallantly through that war are justly entitled to every dollar that they may get from us. It is but a mere pittance to them; yet it relieves their wants.

Mr. HUPHREY. Mr. Speaker, I call the previous question.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I think this is the first time since I have been a member of this House that the previous question has been called in a matter so important as this.

The discussion has taken a very wide angle, but I do not see why politics should have been introduced. I do not look upon it as a political question. I look upon it as a question in which all the citizens of this Commonwealth are interested.

I think the committee of conference of the House have taken upon themselves the responsibility of passing upon that with which they had no right to interfere. They have assumed the right to introduce an appropriation bill a repealing act that had not been introduced by this House. They have attempted to do indirectly what they dared not do directly. They have inserted in this bill a clause repealing the act of last year, granting a gratuity and annuity to the soldiers of the war of 1812. There need be no attempt to fasten the responsibility on the Senate committee. The clause would have never been inserted had it not been consented to by the committee appointed on the part of the House. I trust that these gentlemen will have all the credit—if credit there be in curtailing the expenses of the State at the expense of the soldiers.

This is not a political question; nor do I wish to make a political question out of it. If there was no reason, other than this one clause, I would vote to defeat the bill.

The gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. Davis], I am sorry to say, has dragged politics into this discussion. He has grown eloquent over the success of the Republican party in relieving the State of debt. We may grant his premises for the sake of argument. But the State is not yet free of debt,

And I have too high a regard for the Republicans of this House to think for a moment that they would pay off a portion of the State debt with the money stolen from the soldiers of the war of 1812.

Now, do trust this bill will not pass if this clause is not removed and retained.

Mr. WADELL (chairman Committee Ways and Means). Mr. Speaker, I regret that the committee of conference was not superhuman. After listening to the discussions in this House and seeing the difficulties with which the bill was surrounded; after listening to the diversity of opinion that existed in the minds of the members of this House in regard to it; after watching its progress in the other chamber, and seeing the difficulties and change of opinion that existed in the minds of Senators; after finding the bill torn to pieces when it came into the hands of the conference committee, I have now to regret that that committee was not superhuman, and that it could not so arrange every matter that it might meet the approval of each individual in this House and in the Senate Chamber. I would have been glad could every gentleman upon that conference committee have succeeded in obtaining the provisions he desired. I met this committee in conference and I found that was impossible. I found there were six gentlemen who differed in opinion upon matters, and strange to say it was impossible that each should have the same way. I, as a member of the committee, desired to harmonize these various elements, and I, as a member of this House and General Assembly, must yield some of my wishes in order to meet my colleagues half way. Now, if there is any man in this House who has persistently objected to the repeal of the law which has been spoken of this afternoon, I think I am that man. Upon all occasions I resisted it upon the floor of the House; I resisted it in committee. But, sir, I found I was unable to accomplish what I desired, and I feel it my duty to yield to what seemed to be the desire of the majority. In that I believe I was as democratic as any member in the House.

The bill left this chamber without the provision which has occasioned so much comment this afternoon. This repealing clause was inserted in the Senate, and when the committee met they were compelled to pass upon the question. If, in the opinion of this House, we should have reported on disagreement, and so detained us until a new bill could be prepared, then we did not do our duty. But, knowing that to-morrow was the day which this General Assembly had fixed for its own dissolution we felt obliged to reconvene and present a report. This we have done. If the House choose not to adopt the report no personal pride of mine will be injured. I have submitted to this House what I believe to be the best action we could take under the circumstances. If this House disagrees with the report, I hope it will have the manliness to say so without regard to who may have been on the committee. I say to the members of this House: You have the matter in your own hands; if your judgment differs from that of those whom you commissioned to act for you, say so by your votes, and not alone by your voices. I think, Mr. Speaker, I speak for my colleagues; and I know I speak for myself. I say again, if this House, after calm, cool judgment, thinks the committee could have done better, then let them vote the report down, and afford others an opportunity of presenting a more satisfactory report.

If, however, they think the committee did what was best under the circumstances, let them pass it, and offer the Governor an opportunity to act upon it.

The question being,

Will the House adopt the report of the committee?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MULLIN and Mr. HOOD, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Allen, Barton, Cameron, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Ewing, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffman, Hambreys, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmel, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Pherrin, Mann; Mechling, Mcily, Pennyacker, Richards, Roath, Satterthwait, Seiler, Steacy, Stehman, Stambaugh, Subers, Watt, Webb, Whann, Wingard, Woodward, Wright and Glass, Speaker—41.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Brown, Calvin, Craig, Chalfant, Chase, Colville, Chad, Deise, Donoghue, Esqy, Fogel, Freeborn, Glezan, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Beltzel, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Kline, Koon, Kurta, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Mais, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Peter, Phelan, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Rhoads, Roub, Shuman, Tharp, Well, Westbrook, Wharton and Wilson—49.

So the question was determined in the negative.

So the report was

Not agreed to.

On motion of Mr. ROUSH, the House proceeded to the consideration of Senate bill No. 1649, an act regulating the assessment of city taxes in the city of Pittsburgh.

Being objected to by Mr. WILSON, as uncalled for, the bill was
Not agreed to.

APPROPRIATION BILL.

On motion of Mr. WILSON, the House proceeded to reconsider its action on bill No. 828, called the appropriation bill.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that the members of this House, if they were to think one moment before they act, would adopt the report of this committee.

If I am correctly informed, it has reduced the appropriation bill some six hundred thousand or seven hundred thousand dollars.

Gentlemen must remember if they desire to serve their constituents they can best do so by economy. They cannot well serve their constituents if they vote against the report of this committee, because then they oppose retrenchment, in their position if they vote against the report.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, I voted against the adoption of the report for various reasons; but my principal reason was that the salaries of certain positions were raised.

I appreciate, as much as any man on this floor, the motives that actuated the parties having charge of this bill, in reducing the expenses of the Government. No man rejoices more than I at the cutting down of the expenses for the coming year some six hundred or seven hundred thousand dollars. But when the old soldiers are deprived of their small pittance, and every charitable institution in the Commonwealth is cut down or entirely stricken out of the bill, I say it comes with very bad grace to add one penny to the salaries of any man in the House or about the House. When the committee were reducing the expenses of the Commonwealth, and guarding the treasury, I would have been still better satisfied if they had cut down the pay of the members of this Legislature to seven hundred dollars. I object to unfair discrimination. I feel outraged when I find every charitable institution, and schools of all kinds, cut out of the bill or reduced in their appropriations, while the salaries of certain parties are elevated. I think this is unjust, and for that reason I opposed the bill. We know that the very parties who have succeeded in getting their salaries raised, were very anxious to obtain their positions at the compensation then provided.

I shall vote to recommit this bill, and to strike out of it much more than has been already stricken out.

Mr. QUIGLEY. I move to refer the bill to the conference committee, with instructions that they report the bill this evening.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I hope that motion will not carry. In all probability we will not make one step of progress towards agreement. We are probably nearer agreement now than we will be after recommitting it. I believe a majority of the House now desire to vote in favor of the report. I hope the House will be permitted to come to a square vote upon the question. Therefore I have the motion of recommitment will not prevail.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] mistakes. This House, but a few moments ago, voted down the report by a large majority. It is evident the report of the committee does not meet their approbation. The committee will now understand in what particular the House desire the bill amended. I have no doubt they will reveal the act granting annuities and gratuities to the old soldiers was stricken out the House would agree to the bill without a dissenting voice. In the first place, the committee had no right to insert in the appropriation bill a subject that was defeated in the House.

Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman if the Senate did not insert the repealing clause. If so, why blame the committee?

Mr. QUIGLEY. I am aware that the amendment was inserted in the Senate. But the bill, with the same provision, was before the House, and was almost unanimously voted down. Therefore, having the temper of the House on this question, they should have carried out the wishes of the House. I have no feeling in this matter, but I must say it is a shameful outrage to reduce the expenses of this Government at the expense of the old soldiers of the war of 1812.

I hope the House will recommit the bill to the conference committee with instructions that that portion be stricken out.

Mr. MEXTERS. Mr. Speaker, I apprehend that the only difficulty in the report of the committee is the unjust discrimination between two classes of claims. One is the appropriation to the public schools, which is a charity, or rather an appropriation of such a character that it ought not to be touched carelessly or lightly. The other is the repealing, in effect, in word and letter, the statute which gives to the soldiers of 1812 annuities and gratuities.

While we are thus sticking for retrenchment and reform, we add to this appropriation bill fifteen thousand dollars for increasing the accommodations of the Governor's Library. Appropriations which were just meritorious and proper have been stricken out, and others, which had no merit in them, have been placed in the bill.

Last winter, the Legislature passed a law granting bounties and gratuities to the soldiers, by a decided vote. It was alleged by the officers of the Commonwealth that under that law fraud existed, and that by fraud large sums of money were drawn out of the Treasury in an improper way. Now, let me say that, in consultation with the Auditor General on various occasions, he informed me that they had reduced this matter of the payment of pensions and gratuities to the soldiers and widows of the soldiers of 1812 to such a system that it will hereafter be impossible for money to be drawn out of the treasury in a fraudulent way. Therefore the amendment against that enactment is highly unjust and improper, because the treasury can protect itself. I have been informed that such steps and measures have been taken that hereafter no claim will be paid until some person, in whom the department has confidence, vouches that the applicant is entitled to the money. Under the belief that money was improperly drawn from the treasury under the provision for the old soldiers, a bill was introduced in the House to repeal that law. It met with very decided condemnation. But we find the Senate not only refused to grant the appropriation under the provisions of the statute, but they went to work and amended that section of the bill by striking out the status to which it related, which, in my judgment, was improper and unconstitutional. Now, if such is the fact I think we can soon reach an understanding by allowing the bill to go back to the Senate. Let them concur in the action of the House. Let a new committee be appointed in the Senate and a new committee in the House, and have the bill referred to them. Then let the committee strike out the obnoxious part which relates to the law giving gratuities and annuities to the soldiers, which is stricken out. I believe this appropriation bill will pass.

Mr. KERNS. Mr. Speaker, I think this House now fully understand the nature of this appropriation bill.

It will be utterly impossible for us to adjourn to-morrow if gentlemen persist debating it before the House. I trust the House will come to an understanding in the matter if they wish to adjourn to-morrow.

On the question,

Will the House recommit the bill to the committee of conference?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. QUAY and Mr. ADAIRE, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brown, Cladwick, Chalfant, Chase, Clevin, Davis, Deise, Donohugh, Fogal, Freshorn, Ghegan, Gregory, Harbison, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hood, Hnat, Jenks, Jones, Kennedy, Kline, Koon, Linton, M'Camant, M'Henry, M'Pherren, Meyers, Mullin, Peter, Phelan, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Rhoads, Roath, Robinson, Roush, Shuman Steacy, Subers, Wallace, Westbrook, Wharton, Wingard and Wright—52.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Barton, Cameron, Day, DeHaven, Espy, Ewing, Gallagher, Gordon, Hoffman, Humphrey, Josephs, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Kurtz, Lee, Joseph, M'Crear, M'Keen, Maish, Mans, Markley, Meching, Meily, Pennypacker, Richards, Satterthwait, Seiler, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whinn, Wilson, Woodward and Glass, Speaker—38.

So the question was determined in the affirmative, and the bill was recommitted.

BILLS PASSED.

On motion of Mr. WHARTON, the House proceeded to the consideration of Senate bill No. 1948, an act to incorporate the Keystone elevating and warehousing company.

The bill was read and agreed to.
The rules were suspended.
The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.
On motion of Mr. STUMBAUGH, the House proceeded to the consideration of Senate bill No. 1950, an act to incorporate the Philadelphia iron and steel company.

The bill was read and agreed to.
The rules being suspended,
The bill was read a second and a third time, and

Passed finally.
On motion of Mr. COLLINS, the House proceeded to the consideration of Senate bill No. 1952, an act to authorize the Coal Ridge improvement company to sell their bonds on certain terms.

The bill was read and agreed to.
The rules being suspended,
The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.
The House then considered Senate bill No. 1954, a supplement to an act to incorporate the Presbyterian Historical society, approved April 8th, A. D. 1857.

The bill was read and agreed to.
The rules being suspended,
The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.
The House then considered Senate bill No. 1955, an act to authorize the commissioners of Erie county, and the proper officer or officers of municipal or other corporations in said county, and individuals, to contract with the Marine hospital at Erie for the future support and attendance of patients, and to make payment therefor.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented the following extract from the Journal:

IN THE SENATE.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That the ninth joint rule be suspended in relation to the transmission of Senate bill No. 2041, entitled An act to repeal an act to incorporate the Citizens' turnpike and macadamized road company, approved April 10, 1867.

Which was
Agreed to.
The bill was taken up, considered, and

Agreed to.
The rules were suspended, the bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.
Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House bill No. 855, an act to enable the prothonotary to collect fees in suits on forfeited recognizances, &c.

The bill was taken up,
And the question being on agreeing to the bill,

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I cannot see the necessity of this bill.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, I would just state that there are certain cases in which the sheriff and prothonotary cannot collect fees. I will further state that by some mistake this bill was placed on the public calendar. It was introduced as, and was intended to be, a local bill, but there was a mistake in the title which made it apparently a public bill.

The question being on the bill,
It was

Agreed to.
The rules were suspended,
The bill was read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.
Mr. MAISH. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to proceed to the consideration of Senate bill No. 1147, a supplement to an act to incorporate the Pennsylvania Mutual company, thief detecting and insurance company, approved April 22, 1854.

Consent was given.
The bill taken up, considered and

Agreed to.
The rules were suspended, the bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.
Mr. CHASE. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to proceed to the consideration of House bill No. 724, an act authorizing the merging or consolidation of oil and other mining companies.

Consent was given.
The bill was taken up, considered and

Agreed to.
The rules were suspended, the bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.
Mr. CAMERON. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to take up Senate bill No. —, an act to incorporate the Granby coal company.

Consent was given.
The bill was taken up, considered and

Agreed to.
The rules were suspended, the bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.
Mr. CHALFANT. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of privilege. I move that the House reconsider the vote by which it occurred in the Senate amendment to House bill No. 1965, a further supplement to an act incorporating the Wilkesbarre and Pittston railroad company, approved April the 15th, 1859, to increase the capital stock, make branches and hold lands.

The motion was
Agreed to.

Mr. CHALFANT. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House non-concur in the amendment of the Senate.

This bill relates altogether to one one of the counties in my district, and I say, as a matter of courtesy, I, at least, ought to have been consulted in regard to it. It is a private bill that affects my district alone. This is nothing more than any gentleman on this floor would ask if a man should come and run a matter of importance like that over his head without his knowing it.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, this bill originated in the House, and passed the House, and the gentleman from Montour [Mr. CHALFANT] made no objection to it at all. The effect of the non-concurrence in this amendment will be to defeat the bill.

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker, I cannot consent to anything that will prejudice the final passage of the bill.

Mr. CHALFANT. Mr. Speaker, I want the House to understand that the gentlemen from Luzerne have taken charge of this thing all through, and they got up and moved that their county be stricken out and my county put in. If they did not want it in their own county, they ought not to attempt to thrust it on a county in my district.

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker, this company will certainly go into more counties than one, and because the name of Columbia county is in the bill, I do not know that the gentleman who represents that county has exclusive control of the bill. I understand the Senate has refused to receive any more bills from the House, and to non-concur in this amendment would virtually defeat the bill.

Mr. CHALFANT. Mr. Speaker, why the gentleman from Luzerne [Mr. KOON] should take charge of my district, I cannot understand. This bill affects my county alone, as I understand. If the bill is so fair on its face, why was Luzerne county stricken out and Columbia county inserted in its stead? If the bill is so inoffensive why did the gentleman from Luzerne strike out his own county and insert mine?

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, as it is probable that the Senate will not act upon it if we non-concur in this amendment, the effect will be to defeat the bill. Now, if the Senate amendment is not proper, so far as it relates to the gentleman from Montour [Mr. CHALFANT], and the House is satisfied that such is the case, then they should non-concur, and throw the responsibility on the Senate. But let us not shrink a duty, and non-concur in an amendment which we believe to be just.

Mr. CHALFANT. Mr. Speaker, I want the House to understand that I have no desire to kill the bill. The Senator from Luzerne told me a few moments ago that if I could get a committee of conference appointed that the amendment could be stricken out and the bill would pass. But I have no desire that the gentlemen should come on this floor and run a snake right through without giving me any information, as I take this to be. I do not ask any indulgence of the House, but in this case I think they will see the fairness I ask.

The question being on concurring in the amendment of the Senate,

It was

Not agreed to.

Mr. CHALFANT. Mr. Speaker, I move that a committee of conference be appointed.

The motion was

Agreed to.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to proceed to the consideration of House bill No. 2186, an act relating to the North Pennsylvania railroad company and the Southwick railroad company to appoint a watchman on the crossing at Berks and America stations.

Consent was given.

The bill was taken up, considered and

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended,

The bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.

Mr. ROUSH. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to proceed to the consideration of Senate bill No. 1167, a further supplement to an act relating to corporations for mechanical, manufacturing, mining and quarrying purposes, approved the 18th day of July, A. D. 1853, authorizing companies to sell and lease real estate and to issue coupon bonds.

The bill was taken up, considered and

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended,

The bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I move that the Committee of General Judiciary be discharged from the further consideration of Senate bill No. 207, a supplement to the act of 15th March, 1852, entitled "An act relating to registers and registers' courts."

The motion was

Agreed to.

The bill was taken up, considered and

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended, the bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.

Mr. HOFFMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to take up Senate bill No. 686, joint resolution relative to the purchase of a railroad map to accompany the Auditor General's report.

Objection was made.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to take up Senate bill No. 616, an act to confer upon the courts of quarter sessions of this Commonwealth power to annex the land, or parts thereof, of persons resident in one district to another district for school purposes.

Consent was given.

The bill was taken up, considered and

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended, the bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.

Mr. ADAIRE. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to proceed to the consideration of Senate bill No. 1947, an act to prevent the fraudulent voting of stock in oil and mining companies of this Commonwealth.

The bill was given,

The bill was taken up, considered and

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended,

The bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to proceed to the consideration of Senate bill No. 686, joint resolution relative to the purchase of a railroad map to accompany the Auditor General's report.

The bill was given,

The bill was taken up, considered and

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended,

The bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.

Mr. CHASE. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to proceed to the consideration of Senate bill No. 757, an act to authorize the appointment of photographic reporters for the several courts of common pleas of this Commonwealth.

Consent was given,

The bill was taken up, considered and

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended,

The bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.

Mr. PHELAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to proceed to the consideration of Senate bill No. 1473, a supplement to an act approved the 17th day of April, 1866, authorizing the courts to fix and change the places for holding general elections in certain cases.

Consent was given.

The bill was taken up, considered and

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended, the bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the Committee on Banks be discharged from the further consideration of Senate bill No. 1248, a supplement to the act entitled "An act regulating banks," approved April 16th, 1850.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The bill was taken up, considered and

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended, the bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.

No. had appointed Messrs. WALLACE, SHOENAKER and COWLES a committee of conference on the part of the Senate, to confer with a similar committee already appointed by the House of Representatives, on the subject of the differences existing between the two Houses in relation to said bill.

He also informed that the Senate has adopted the report of the committee of conference, on the subject of the differences existing between the two Houses in relation to the amendments to House bill numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 1965, a further supplement to an act incorporating the Wilkesbarre and Pittston railroad company, approved April 15th, 1859, to increase the capital stock, make branches, and hold lands.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, the report of the committee of conference on the general appropriation bill was referred back to the committee this afternoon. I have made inquiry of the Speaker of the Senate, and have learned from him that there is no Senate committee for us to meet with. I do not know what else I can do but to report the bill back as it was referred, which I therefore do.

The question being on agreeing to the report of the committee,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. GREGORY and Mr. QUAY, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Bartod, Calvin, Cameron, Chadwick, Craig, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Espy, Ewing, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harbison, Harner, Hoffman, Humphrey, Hunt, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmel, Kinney, Koon, Kurtz, Lee, Leech, Long, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Maish, Mann, Mechling, Meily, Mullin, Pennypacker, Rhoads, Richards, Roath, Roush, Satterthwait, Seiler, Steacy, Stelman, Stumbaugh, Tharp, Watt, Webb, Weller, Westrook, Wherry, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward and Glass, Speaker—59.

NAYS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brown, Chalfant, Chase, Collins, Colville, Deise, Donohugh, Fogel, Freeborn, Gregory, Headman, Helzel, Hood, Jones, Kline, Linton, Markley, Marks, Meyers, Phelan, Quay, Quigley, Subers, Wallace, Wharton, Worrall and Wright—31.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

REASONS FOR VOTE.

Our reasons for voting aye upon agreeing to the report of the conference committee are chiefly to avoid an extra session of the Legislature, and not that we agree to the bill. We have steadfastly voted against the objectionable sections in committee of the whole upon the appropriation bill, as the yeas and nays will show in the Record, and also voted against the first proposition to agree to the committee of conference. We deem the present appropriation bill very objectionable, as it raises the pay of the employees of both Houses; it strikes out the soldiers of 1812, and continues the State agency at Washington, against which, in voting aye, we here enter our protest, as among some of the objectionable features of this bill, and only constrained to vote aye in order to prevent the expense of an extra session of the Legislature.

F. KURTZ,
ALLEN CRAIG,
LEVI MAISH.

We voted finally for the general appropriation bill to avoid the necessity of an extra session, with the objectionable feature depriving the soldiers of 1812 of their pittance, which we vigorously opposed at Washington, as a preparatory measure. Sundry extravagant appropriations remain, against which we protest.

(Signed) D. S. KOON,
JAMES M'HENRY.

The bill as adopted was read as follows, viz:

AN ACT to provide for the ordinary expenses of the Government, and other general and specific appropriations.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the following sums be, and the same are hereby, specifically appropriated to the several objects hereinafter named, for the year commencing on the first day of June, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, to be paid out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Sec. 2. For the salary of the Governor of the Commonwealth, five thousand dollars for the year commencing June first, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, and the further sum of four hundred dollars, for the proportion of the year prior to June first, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven.

JOS. F. KNIFE, P. M.

The committee report that they have examined the above account, and find it correct, and recommend, the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Speaker draw his warrant on the State Treasurer in favor of Jos. F. Knife, Postmaster, for the sum of thirty-six hundred and twenty dollars and four cents in settlement of the same.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I am directed by the clerk of the committee appointed to investigate the interest which it is alleged that officers and directors of railroads have in transportation companies, to ask leave from the House to file their report on or before the first day of June next. We have closed the investigation, and there will be no further expense, but the committee, upon getting together yesterday, were unable to agree upon the report that should be made. There is a good deal of diversity of opinion, and it will require a large number of papers to be examined before a satisfactory conclusion can be arrived at by the members. They desire to have that opportunity to investigate the papers, and to file their report on or before the first day of June, with the Clerk. It will not entail any expense upon the House, or upon the Commonwealth.

I therefore desire to offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That the committee appointed to investigate the interest which it is alleged that officers and directors of railroads have in the transportation companies, have leave to file their report or reports, and accompanying documents, with the Clerk of the House, on or before the first day of June next.

The resolution was twice read, considered and

Agreed to.

Mr. KERNS offered the following resolution, which was

Agreed to:

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That a committee of three members of each House be appointed to wait upon the Governor and inform him that the General Assembly will be ready to adjourn this day, at 12 o'clock, m., and to inquire whether he has any further communication to make.

The SPEAKER appointed Messrs. KERNS, MARLEY and WADDELL.

Mr. M'KEE offered the following resolution, which was

Agreed to:

Resolved, That a committee of two members be appointed to wait upon the Senate, and inform the Speaker and members thereof that the House of Representatives will be ready to adjourn this day, at 12 o'clock, m.

The SPEAKER appointed Messrs. M'KEE and GREGORY.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence a bill numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 2044, joint resolution authorizing the Governor to appoint commissioners to investigate the expenditures of moneys appropriated in certain cemeteries.

Laid on the table.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to proceed to the consideration of Senate bill No. 2044, joint resolution authorizing the Governor to appoint commissioners to investigate the expenditures of moneys appropriated to certain cemeteries.

Consent was given.

The bill was taken up, and the question being on agreeing to the bill,

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to have some gentleman explain the necessity for this bill, whether there are any allegations that the money appropriated to these cemeteries has been improperly expended. I presume, sir, that the appointment of these commissioners will entail an additional expense upon the State. The State has already given this money to these cemeteries, and it is gone, perhaps it would be better to let it go, instead of throwing other money after it in this way.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, it is not intended that the appointment of these commissioners shall entail any expense upon the State. I apprehend that any man appointed on that committee will be willing to perform the duties without charge. It is simply for the purpose of ascertaining whether the money which has been appropriated has been applied to the purpose for which it was intended.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I have confidence in the gentleman from Franklin [Mr. STUMBAUGH], that he would perform this duty without charging the State anything for it. But I must say that I have not confidence generally in men who are appointed to public places. I therefore move to amend by adding the following: Provided That no expense shall be hereby incurred to the State.

The question being on the amendment of Mr. BOYLE,

It was

Agreed to.

The question recurring on the resolution as amended,

It was

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended, the bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.

PRESENTATIONS.

Mr. Benedict, the Chief Clerk, presented to the Speaker a splendid ivory gavel, mounted with gold bands, and inscribed, "Presented to the Hon. J. P. GLASS, Speaker of the House of Representatives, by the Chief Clerk, A. W. BENEDICT, Session 1867.

SPEECH OF MR. WADDELL.

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—Our labors are about ending. Three months have passed since we met to assume our duties as the Representatives of this Commonwealth. How that duty has been performed it is not for me to say; the people we represent must be the judges. If we have striven to do the best we could, then our only feeling of recititude will be our reward. That we should have pleased everybody is not to be expected. Representing, as we do, communities differing in wealth, interests and resources, we have had to yield local wishes to harmonize the public wants; and entertaining, as we do, different views upon questions of governmental policy, we have had to give up our personal opinions to accomplish a practical result. And, in so doing, our constituents may sometimes have felt that we were unmindful of their demands, and reckless of the trust confided to us. But (as I have often feelingly said) if we have attempted to do our duty, solely with a view to the public good, our own feeling of right will be our sufficient reward, and enable us to look back with pride to the days we have spent within these walls. And we should feel proud to-day, sir, in being the representatives of Pennsylvania—proud personally for the confidence which our constituents have manifested in sending us here, and proud collectively of the Commonwealth for which we legislate—proud of her wealth, her resources, and her influence—proud of her loyalty, and her rebellion, through the rebellion and since the rebellion, and proud of what we believe is yet in future store for her, and of the position which she is destined yet to occupy among her sister States of this Union. In this pride we can all justly join, let our local habitation be where it may, our local interests be whatthey may, or our political views differ as they may. This, however, is not a day for exultation or pride, but rather of regret and sadness. Our work here is finished, and we are about to separate. We gave and had our day of pleasure, and now comes the hour of sorrow.

Yesterday we were contending among ourselves; to-day we are anxious to forget our differences; to-morrow will find us again vying with our fellows. We vary with our circumstances, and thus portray the varied changes going on in the world around us. Death conquers life, and life springs from death. The strong man dies and his ashes lie buried among us. The green grass flourishes over his grave, and his weak children draw their nourishment from his deceiving limbs. The oak grows in strength and is a mighty monarch, but it has stolen its strength and gathered its might from the sighs and groans of many a troubled spirit. The gentle zephyr cools our cheeks to-day, but rages in violent contest to-morrow. Conquest, prosperity, revolution and decay embody the substance of every nation's history. Here is told the fall of one person, and there is chronicled the rise of another. The ruins of empires, like the playthings of childhood, lie scattered, broken and dismembered all over the face of the globe. So with man. Hope, joy, disappointment and death mark the varied stages of his existence.

But no more of these generalities. I have been selected, sir, by my colleagues upon this side of the House to present you with this elegant set of china, as a testimonial of their respect. It is not done as a matter of form, but out of regard for the manner in which you have discharged your official duties. This session has entailed particularly arduous duties upon the Chair. Our meetings have been more frequent and lengthy than any House I have ever been a member than any House I have ever been a member of, and yet the Speaker has been unremitting in his attendance. We can all bear testimony to your impartiality and courtesy. Your cool judgment and firm bearing has frequently brought order out of confusion, and restored calmness to an excited house. We have, no doubt, sometimes differed in opinion, but those differences have been but momentary, and are now forgotten.

It would be strange, if among the great diversity of sentiment that has sometimes been manifested on this floor, and in the excitement of debate, some gentleman did not feel himself aggrieved. But if there may have been any such, I am sure it is now forgotten, and we all join in wishing you future health and prosperity.

Accept, then, this testimonial, as a thank offering from your friends and well wishers, and as in after years you gather your friends around your fireside and festive board, may this memento remind you of the kind faces and loving hearts of your fellow members in this House.

In all human probability some of us may never meet you again, but we trust you will bear with you while life lasts the recollections of this session as hallowed memories of the past.

This present consisted of a magnificent set of table service of the finest French china, composed of over two hundred pieces. On one of the largest was inscribed, "Presented by the Republican Members of the House of Representatives, 1867, to JOHN P. GLASS, Speaker.

SPEECH OF MR. JONES.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Chester, I am sure, has expressed not only his own sentiments, not only the sentiment of his own side of the House, but I am sure, sir, that he has expressed the sentiment of every member of this body. So far as our general associations have gone, I am sure that they have been much more agreeable than I anticipated. It is true that in political matters we have differed—and in them we have differed conscientiously. Yet, almost without an exception, in matters affecting our personal and local interests, I think that the record of this House will show that political differences have been laid aside, and that there has been a spirit ever of conciliation and mutual forbearance and concession, characterizing members of this House, as men well worthy to represent the people of this Commonwealth.

But, I propose, sir, to address myself more particularly to yourself. The members of the minority of this House have been pleased to direct me to present to you, in their name, a little token of our regard, and of the high appreciation of the just, equitable and impartial manner in which you have performed the responsible duties of the office of Speaker of this House, throughout the entire session, which is just about closing.

I confess, sir, that I am extremely gratified to have the privilege of expressing this sentiment of the minority of the House, because I feel that there is no gentleman upon this floor who has had more indulgence than myself, and I regard it as ever a pleasing task to do justice always to every one, but more especially I regard it as a privilege to render me I insist on our behalf, a just and fitting tribute to him who, in the occupation of the trying and vexatious position of the Speaker of this House, has performed his duties with so much honor to himself, with so much credit to the people who sent him here, and with so much honor, indeed, to all the people of this Commonwealth. And the minority, indeed, Mr. Speaker, can form the most capable judgment of the fitness of the Speaker of this House. The rules of the House are established and ordained for the protection of the minority, and the Speaker of this House, as well as of every deliberative body, is necessarily clothed with large discretion and with much arbitrary power, and I believe that I am correct in saying, sir, that you, in no one single instance, have exercised that power unlawfully, unnecessarily, or ungenerously, and I know that I am correct in saying that we are not wanting in appreciation of such fairness. The session through which we have just passed has been trying, and has threatened at times to be a turbulent one. The harmony and happy accord and good fellowship in which it has ended is, I believe, owing more to the manly course of our Speaker, in the performance of his duties, than to any one single and separate cause. In view of this, sir, we, the minority, have thought it proper not only to express our appreciation—of services which we value so highly, not to express our appreciation of your fairness and impartiality, but sir, we have thought it proper to go farther and to beg you to regard this little token as an evidence of our regard and of the estimation in which we hold you; of our appreciation of your services, and in the hope, sir, that it may serve to call to your mind from time to time, the days that you passed here together so happily, and I assure you, sir, that forever your kindness and courtesy will not be forgotten by the Democratic members of the House of Representatives of the session of 1867.

Allow me then, sir, again in the name of Democratic members of this House, to present to you this beautiful token which is before us, as an evidence of our confidence and esteem.

This present was a very fine silver set, one of the pieces, a large silver salver, was inscribed, "Presented to Hon. JNO. P. GLASS, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Session of 1867, by the Democratic Members of the House, as a testimonial of respect for the uniform courtesy and impartial manner in which he discharged his duties as Speaker."

SPEECH OF MR. DAVIS.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, after what we have just listened to from the distinguished gentleman who has addressed you, I feel considerable diffidence in attempting to make any remarks; and sir, I would have preferred that the officers of this House had selected a more worthy person than myself to do justice to the magnificent token of their regard for the presiding officer of this House which they are about, through me, to present. I cordially endorse everything that has been said by the distinguished gentleman, the leader of this side of the House, and Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, and the gifted and learned gentleman who addressed you upon the other side of this House. I understand, as well as any gentleman on this floor, the arduous position in which you have been placed. I take occasion to say that in my experience of seven years in this body I have never known any Speaker to have so uniformly merited the approbation of both sides of the House.

Reminiscences force themselves upon us. Seven years ago I entered this Hall. Well do I recollect the gifted, eloquent and competent gentleman who then occupied your position. He has been called away to the Great Unknown.

You all know to whom I refer—I mean William C. A. Lawrence, who may have had an equal, but never a superior, in that chair.

The members of the House of Representatives, in some respects, are your peers. But the officers of this House are immediately under your control. They desire to express, in this magnificent present, their approbation and regard. I believe it to be a higher testimonial than any that could be offered under these or other circumstances. They have tested your kindness and generosity, and they have authorized me, in their name and in their behalf, to present you with this magnificent watch. Like yourself, it has been selected from among the choicest of its kind; it is truly and purely American.

Every time you look upon its beautiful face, may you reflect that not only the members of the House, your peers on this floor, regard you with esteem and affection, but likewise the officers who are under your supervision.

I shall only say further that I feel deeply the solemnity of the occasion.

The present was an elegant gold watch, enclosed in a fine ebony case, inlaid with pearl, presented by the officers of the House.

On the inner case of the watch were engraved the words: "From the Officers of the House of Representatives of the Pennsylvania Legislature, to Hon. JOHN P. GLASS, Speaker, Session of 1867.

RESOLUTION.

Mr. MARKLEY offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the thanks of this House be tendered to the Honorable JOHN P. GLASS, for the efficient and impartial manner in which he has discharged his duties as Speaker of this House.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the resolution? The yeas and nays were required by Mr. FRÉYBOHN and Mr. WALLACE, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barrington, Barton, Boyd, Boyle, Brennan, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Deise, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Gregory, Harbison, Harner, Heltzel, Hoffman, Hood, Humphrey, Hunt, Jones, Jones, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Koon, Kutz, Lee, Leech, Linton, Long, McCamant, McCreary, McHenry, McKeel, McPherrin, Masiah, Mann, Markley, Marks, MeChling, Miller, Mullin, Pennsylvaniaer, Peter, Henson, Pillow, Quigley, Richards, Roth, Robinson, Roush, Seiler, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Sabers, Waddell, Watt, Webb, Weller, Westbrook, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall and Wright—81.

NAYS—Mr. Wallace—1.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

SPEECH OF MR. MANN.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, no person can become a successful legislator who does not learn the value of time. Nor can he be efficient and useful as such unless his own conduct is in keeping with the knowledge thus acquired. No person who fails to mark the time as it passes can become a useful member of any legislative body.

Mr. Clerk, for example you have in your con-dut, since this House was called together, shown that you estimated this value, and that you marked your course accordingly, and that when the Speaker's gavel fell, you were thrice at your post—it is a token of your possession of this inestimable quality, that I have been called upon, and I accept it as a graceful honor, on the part of the members of both sides of this House, to present you with an emblem, which, I think, of all others, is characteristic, and speaks volumes in your favor. I am the last one to utter a single word of commendation that is not deserved. I cheerfully endorse all that has been said in praise of the Speaker of this House; but I feel if it had not been for your untiring industry our labors would come. As time is passing, and the fingers upon the dial warn me that I must bring these remarks to a close, I beg you to accept, as a gift on behalf of the members on both sides of this House, this beautiful time-piece. If it had been given to me, I would have regarded it as the most applicable memento that could have been suggested.

The members of this House ask you to accept, in their name, this beautiful and appropriate gift.

This present was a fine clock, very handsome and ornate.

Mr. BENEDICT replied as follows:

Mr. BENEDICT. Words cannot express my gratitude for this manifestation of your kindness and good will, and this is neither the time nor place for deeds. If my oonduct has won for me this assurance that you appreciate my honest purposes at this desk, I trust that no revelations of the future shall change your good opinion. It is my pride to treasure the memories of the kind deeds of those with whom I have been associated. I love to turn over the pages of the past, that I may gather from their recollections the lovely and long lessons of a life. Good thoughts and good deeds are the guardian angels who, if their companionship be cultivated, are ever with us, continually whispering in our ears, in all the gloomy valleys of life, as they point to a brighter path—this is the way, walk ye there in it.

But you have surprised and humbled me. I had almost hoped that I should have once been permitted to retire from this desk at the end of the session without any display of respect and gratitude other than the silent tear which moistens the memories of kind and happy partings.

There has been my pleasant lot in life to meet in this hall through many years, very many of the great and antagonistic minds of our State. Here in this quasi political forum the jarring elements of political strife have often met in fierce and bitter encounter. In such conflicts, combatants have learned that, no matter how wise and adroit they were, blows were to be received as well as given; and I trust that they have learned, also, that he loses most in all strife who loses self command and self respect. As a partisan, I rejoiced at the trials, and was sad at the defeat of my friends; but it has always been a gratification to know that their adversaries were worthy of the steel.

Here I have met many of the earnest, honest men of the State who came here to serve their people and the State, and who too often have been fretted and chafed by the delay and often defeat of great public interests by the little follies of little men. As the Clerk of this House, it has been my highest aim to rouse all incentives to active, but inflexible duty. I know that true manhood and true Christianity have created no peerage but worth, and the humblest that bravely and faithfully wars under her banner will earn and wear her badge of knighthood, and true manhood, like true Christianity, welcomes with a brother's love every open hand and faithful heart.

I have met many who did, and many who did not belong to my political party. They were, and are, and I pray may remain my friends. The close of every session has been the occasion of some demonstration of the kind feeling of the Democratic members toward me. I feel that they were not ostentatious displays of form. I value them as marks of esteem, and shall keep them, that my children's children may know how I prized my friends in this hall. We separate again, and I can only say:

Farewell to all, on life's rude main,
Perhaps we never shall meet again,
I thank the great street of stormy weather;
But summoned by the board above,
Well harbored in that court of love,
May all be moor'd together.

Mr. MANN offered the following resolution, which was unanimously agreed to:

Resolved, That the thanks of the House are hereby tendered to the Chief Clerk, the Hon. A. W. Benedict, for the faithful, impartial and efficient manner in which he has discharged his trying and most important duties.

Mr. KERNS, from the committee appointed to wait upon the Governor, reported that they had performed the duty assigned them, and that the Governor would communicate with the House in writing before the hour for adjournment.

SPEECH OF MR. QUIGLEY.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I have been called upon by the members of both sides of this House to present to our resident Clerk, Mr. John A. Small, the service that is on my mind. I do not know, sir, why they have called upon me, but it is probably owing to the fact that I have served a good deal of service in this House. But I say this, and I do not wish to detain the House very long at this hour, that it affords me a gratifying pleasure to have the honor on this, which is perhaps the last occasion on which my voice will be heard in this hall, to present to one of my earliest friends a token, coming as it does from both sides of this House.

I have had the honor, Mr. Speaker, to occupy a seat upon this floor for the period of six years, and I think every person who has been associated with me during that time will bear me out when I say that there never has been, and never could be, a more efficient officer of the House than the gentleman to whom we are now about to present this token. While I endorse every word that has been said on behalf of the Speaker and the Chief Clerk, I will say for myself, and I think for every member who has had any business at all with the Clerks of this House, that the very effective services of John A. Small deserve, and I know will receive the thanks of every member of this floor. He has always, Mr. Speaker, been ready, kind, industrious, the first at his seat, and the very last to leave it. And, sir, frequently after business hours I have had occasion to call upon him, and I have always met with a kind reception and has always served me as I know he would every member on this floor.

On behalf of the members of this House, Mr. Small, I have the honor to present you this token on your desk.

The present consisted of a very fine silver set.

COMMITTEE FROM THE SENATE.

Messrs. WHITE and DAVIS, a committee from the Senate, announced to the House that the Senate would adjourn at twelve o'clock, M.

Mr. QUIGLEY offered the following resolution, which was twice read:

Resolved, That the thanks of this House be, and they are hereby, tendered to John A. Small, for his efficient services as Resident Clerk of this House.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

Mr. DEISE. Mr. Speaker, this to all present, is an hour of sorrow, mingled with pleasure. During the past three months, this House has, on different occasions, presented a scene of commotion. It was not strange. Coming from different portions of this State, identified with different interests, holding different principles, it is not to be wondered that there were hours of anxiety. It is a sad thing, when we come to realize the fact that this hour closes our pleasant association perhaps forever; that the friendly relations which have been formed, and which are emblazoned on memory's brightest tablets, and the social immunities which have been cultivated during the past three months, are, perhaps, to be severed forever. Time, the great precursor of evil, is upon us, and soon the dial will tell us that the hour which we must all meet in the hereafter has arrived.

While we pass from these pleasant relations to meet the little ones at home, may we ever cherish the bright thought that here we were men, and that although the angry billows of political excitement did at times encompass us, and the angry waves of fanaticism, I had almost said "malice," did for the moment tempt us, yet in our better and calmer moments we simply apologized to each other for our little indiscretions. There is not a member of this House whom I do not consider my peer, and, I trust, my sincere friend.

Here, Mr. Speaker, is a lesson for future Legislatures. After the close of a civil war, after a heated political canvass, and at the close of an important session of the Legislature, the dissenting voices to resolutions and expressions of sympathy, good will and accord. I thank my God that the human heart is so constituted—that when reason resumes her sway, we follow the example of the Great Being who died for us—FORGIVE.

Mr. Speaker, I have done. I trust that no regret, no ill feeling will pass with any member from this Hall. If in the providence of God we are permitted to return, may we strike glad hands; may we resume our peaceful relations, and work harmoniously together for the good of this great State, and the happiness of the loved ones at home.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, it seems, after the remarks of the gentleman from Clinton, an appropriate time for me to say a single word personal to myself. I have, on various occasions, during this session, seemed to have come in contact with the interests of various individuals on this floor. I have only to say that I have done nothing in relation to any bill whatever, in any unkind feelings to any member. I have acted under a sense of duty. Mistaken, very likely, I have been, but towards no individual upon this floor have I ever entertained a single unkind feeling. And I desire to say that although I have seemed to interfere with the will and ideas of members on both sides occasionally, I bear testimony that I have always been treated personally with the greatest kindness, and that I am glad to depart from this hall believing that I treasure no unkindness towards any individual, and I testify to the kindness and courtesy of all the members towards myself and towards each other.

The resolution was unanimously agreed to.

REMARKS OF MR. M'CREARY.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I have been requested by the members of this House to present to our most excellent assistant clerk, Mr. M'Affee, as a testimony of our regard, the articles now on the desk before him. We have witnessed with much satisfaction the patience and the fidelity he has manifested in the discharge of the trying duties of his position.

Be pleased, therefore, Mr. Clerk, to accept these articles as a slight token of our sincere regard.

This present consisted of a fine silver pitcher, salver, goblet and castor.

REMARKS OF MR. M'AFFEE.

Mr. M'AFFEE. Members of the House of Representatives, I can truly say that I am taken by surprise at this manifestation of your kindness and good will. I accept this as a token of your kindness, and will preserve as a memento of the pleasant associations which have prevailed between the members of the House of Representatives and myself.

Mr. M'CREARY offered the following resolution, which was twice read and unanimously

Agreed to:

Resolved, That the thanks of this House are hereby presented to J. R. M'Affee, for the courteous and faithful manner in which he has performed his duties as Assistant Clerk.

Mr. MECHLING offered the following resolution, which was twice read, considered and unanimously

Agreed to:

Resolved, That the thanks of this House be extended to all the officers of the same to whom a resolution of thanks has not already been given, for their efficiency and faithfulness in the performance of their several duties.

REMARKS OF MR. JENKS.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I had not intended to say anything on this occasion. I do not think it necessary to add to what has already been said. I feel, however, under obligations to the members of this House, and the Speaker who has presided over our deliberations, to say a word. It is due to them, and I shall not feel that I had discharged my full duty without uttering the sentiments that I am about to express. I came here an entire stranger. The Speaker honored me by appointing me on some of the most important committees of the House. I have felt that it is due to him to tender my thanks for the honor conferred. To the members of this House I would say that I have always been treated with great respect. No person has uttered an unkind word of me in debate, and I have never heard of an unkind word uttered of me outside of this House. For this I feel under obligations to the members of the House. I have this further observation to make. It is well for us to remember that, as members of two great political parties, we have but one end to attain, and that is the safety and prosperity of a common country. As legislators, we meet to pass such laws as will secure that safety and prosperity. We differ, not in the end, but we differ as to the means by which that end should be attained. Though laboring for a common good, it is not given to men to see alike. The members of the other side of the House imagine that the best interests of the country can be secured by the use of one set of means. The members of this side of the House believe that the best interests of the country can be secured by a different set of means. We meet, then, as friends, having a common object; as friends who differ in the means, and, therefore, it always has seemed to me to be reasonable, in the discussion of those means; to permit feelings of estrangement, which sometimes make friends enemies.

A common country, common interest, common honor, common laws, common language, and a religion in common, should bind us together by the strongest bonds of friendship. When we differ—only as to means—there is no reason why persons should feel as enemies to each other, because in those means they cannot see alike. Governed by these considerations, doubtless, it is the deliberations of the House have been so marked with friendship and kindly feeling. All felt under obligations to their country. All felt that obligation could be best discharged by submitting where a measure had been regularly approved of by the majority. All felt, in that submission, they could do more for their country than they could by encouraging a spirit of factious resistance.

Then, Mr. Speaker, as members of a great Commonwealth, having common interests, hopes, fears and desires, as citizens, that I cannot but believe are laboring for the same great ends, divided into parties because they cannot agree upon the means by which those ends should be attained, there is no cause for feelings of animosity. We have legislated here as friends. Our intercourse has been the intercourse of friends. Our diversity of sentiments has been the diversity of the sentiments of those who, while they respected the feelings of each other, wished well to the country.

For three months we have been acting under the impulse of those feelings, and now, in parting, I trust that we part with the feelings, and that, under the influence of those feelings we will remember each other in all time to come as those who labored for the good of this Commonwealth, and who, when they did differ, did not differ because they did not wish the honor and prosperity of this Commonwealth to be accomplished, but who differed because they could not agree upon the means by which those ends could be attained.

SPEECH OF SPEAKER GLASS.

Gentlemen of the House of Representatives: The hour of our separation has at length arrived. After much of earnest, and sometimes vexatious toil, we close the session of 1867.

A sneer on the lips of the censorious or ignorant not unfrequently expresses the contempt which some persons wish to manifest at any assumption that the business of legislation is one of labor—aye, absolute toil. An experience of four years has taught me that the earnest, honest man, who comes to these halls as the representative and guardian of the people's interests, has no idle task. Neither pleasure nor rest are permitted to tempt him from his stern duty. Even the comforts and necessities of life must be abandoned for the fretting cares of his high trust; and I cannot let this opportunity pass without saying one word to correct such a false and absurd assumption. I affirm, without fear of contradiction by any one who knows that the faithful legislator, having spent his strength with his best ability, is the least esteemed and the best abused man in the State. It is alleged that the ignorant, the idle and the corrupt bring discredit, and sometimes disgrace, upon our good old Commonwealth. If the allegation be true, those who select such men as their representatives should remember that it is always fair to assume that the representative is not only from, but of the people,

It is my pride to say, without fear of being charged with egotism by any one who knows, that the Legislature of 1867 will be long remembered for its great and faithful labors.

When your kindness called me to this chair, I promised strict impartiality, and to use my best ability to maintain not only the rules of the House, but those more general rules, which govern the courtesies of social life, and with a knowledge of myself I besought your aid. That I have received. If I have failed to give you the promised return, it has been a failure of judgment, not of will. I have tried to escape even the suspicion of the zealous and jealous partisan. It has been my interest to do right. I could not, therefore, willingly do wrong. To have willfully erred would have cost me my self-respect. I know that I meant to be true to you all. The reflection that I had purposely injured or wounded the feelings of any gentleman, would cause me to blush with shame for all time to come.

Universal kindness and regard manifested by you have sustained me on occasions of excitement and sharp discussion. Upon that kindness and regard I did not rely in vain. The confidence so frankly exhibited has been my support in every difficulty. Without it I might have been driven from propriety. Assured you would not doubt my purpose, my judgment was undisturbed and unbiased by any fear, and all my wisdom and discretion was free to act. If I erred, it was my misfortune, not my fault. Accept my thanks for your confidence and assistance.

A session of unequalled toil has closed. This House has at least maintained its distinguishing character as the popular branch. It has obeyed the popular will. A free railroad law has been matured and passed with great unanimity in every constituency. Without it I might have been driven from propriety. Assured you would not doubt my purpose, my judgment was undisturbed and unbiased by any fear, and all my wisdom and discretion was free to act. If I erred, it was my misfortune, not my fault. Accept my thanks for your confidence and assistance.

It is a gratifying thought to know that while we have been toiling here for the interests of our people, the National councils were devoting their time and energies to secure the right; and do I say too much when I say that loyalty and right have finally triumphed over disloyalty and wrong. Traitors to the Nation and to truth are odious. Power and place used their corrupting appliances to one end only. Their infamy has been made apparent, and their disgrace overwhelming. It may now be affirmed that, once at least, the voice of the people was the voice of God.

In conclusion, gentlemen, again I return you my thanks for the great kindness and favor shown to me by all. Words cannot tell how much I thank you. I shall not forget the honor you have done me, nor the aid you have given me while memory lives.

My last official duty only remains to be done.

My hour of twelve o'clock having arrived, in obedience to a joint resolution, this House is adjourned without day.

AN ACT to provide for the continuance of the education and maintenance of the destitute orphans of the deceased soldiers and sailors and the destitute children of permanently disabled soldiers and sailors of the State.

WHEREAS, Several considerable appropriations have been expended for the proper education and maintenance of the destitute children of the men of Pennsylvania who died in defense of the Union during the late rebellion; And whereas, It is incumbent upon the State to continue this provision for those children who are now hers; And whereas, The experience thus far acquired in the performance of this duty now enables the Legislature to regulate, by statute, the large discretionary powers heretofore exercised in the premises; and therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the Governor of the Commonwealth is hereby authorized and required to employ, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, a State Superintendent of soldiers' orphans, for three years from and after the date of said appointment, to be subject to removal for cause as other officers appointed in like manner are now, whose office shall be at Harrisburg, whose salary shall be the same as that of the State Superintendent of Common Schools, and necessary traveling expenses, and who shall give bonds with three sureties, to be approved by the Auditor General and filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, in the sum of twenty thousand dollars, for the faithful performance of his duties. The superintendent shall have power to appoint one clerk, and the Governor one male inspector and examiner, and one female assistant, each at a salary not exceeding one hundred dollars per month, and necessary traveling expenses, to inspect and examine the soldiers' orphan school hereinafter provided for: Provided, That said superintendent shall not, during the period of his superintendency, have any pecuniary interest in any of the said orphan schools.

Sec. 2. That the State superintendent of soldiers' orphans is hereby authorized and empowered to contract with the trustees, proprietors, or principals of institutions now employed as soldiers' orphans' homes and schools possessing such good and sufficient accommodations as said superintendent may approve, and of such other like institutions as may be necessary for the proper care and maintenance and education, at the expense of the State, and until the age of sixteen years, of the destitute orphan children of all such deceased soldiers and sailors, citizens of Pennsylvania, and soldiers who have served in Pennsylvania regiments, as have died in the service of the United States in the late war to suppress the rebellion: Provided, That the superintendent may require that institutions receiving soldiers' orphans over ten years of age shall have not less than twenty acres of tillable land, and accommodations for not less than one hundred and fifty soldiers' orphans, except the Lincoln Institution, in the city of Philadelphia: And provided further, That said superintendent of soldiers' orphans shall establish at least one such institution for the reception of soldiers' orphans over the age of sixteen years, within one year after the passage of this act in each of the twelve normal school districts now provided for by law, if in the opinion of said superintendent, the Governor concurring, the same shall be required: And provided further, That in no case shall the State become liable in any manner for the cost of erecting, repairing, or furnishing any of the institutions employed as soldiers' orphan schools.

Sec. 3. That the State superintendent of soldiers' orphans is hereby authorized to receive conveyances and transfers of the custody, care and control, for all the purposes of education and maintenance, until their arrival at the age of sixteen years, of said destitute soldiers' orphans from their respective mothers, guardians, or next friends; and all such conveyances and transfers heretofore made, or that may hereafter be made, to the State superintendent of soldiers' orphans, shall be valid and binding upon said mothers, guardians, and next friends, and also upon said orphans till their arrival at the age of sixteen years; and if said orphans abscond or be withdrawn without his consent from the custody of the superintendent, or from the institutions in which he shall place them, they and all persons withdrawing or harboring them shall thereupon become liable to the provisions of the acts of Assembly relating to absconding apprentices.

Sec. 4. That the superintendent of soldiers' orphans shall, by and with the advice and approval of the Governor, prescribe the rules and regulations for the government of institutions becoming soldiers' orphan schools, designate the minimum number and grade of employees necessary, specify the character and quality of food and clothing that shall be furnished, and which shall be similar for all institutions of similar grade in the State, and decide upon a course of study to be pursued, which course shall embrace at least the usual branches of a good common school education, together with instruction in vocal music, military tactics, and callisthenics, and the greatest variety of useful and domestic arts and trades, and mechanical and agricultural employments, consistent with the respective sexes and ages of said orphan children and their school-room studies; he shall visit each soldiers' orphan school at least once each quarter, either in person or deputy, remaining at least twenty-four hours in each.

Sec. 5. Application for the admission of soldiers' orphans, entitled to the benefits of this act, into the institutions established for their education and maintenance, shall be made by conveyances and transfers to the superintendent of soldiers' orphans, in accordance with the provisions of section third of this act, executed under oath by the mother, if living, and by the guardian or next friend if the mother be dead or has abandoned said orphans; but all applications must be approved by the board of school directors or controllers, or superintending committee of the district, ward or city in which the mother resides, if she makes the application, or in which the orphans reside, in other cases; and the superintendent may require such other certificate from a superintending committee, which committee shall be appointed and held office at the discretion of the superintendent, and by and with the consent of the Governor, or from such other source as he may deem necessary.

Sec. 6. That the said superintendent be and is hereby authorized and directed to procure a school or schools or home or homes for the children of the colored soldiers and sailors who fell in the recent rebellion, subject to the same regulations and restrictions provided in relation to the education and maintenance of the orphans of our white soldiers and sailors.

Sec. 7. That all contracts made by said superintendent shall be characterized alike by a wise economy and a just regard for services rendered, and that no contract shall be made for a longer period than one year, unless with the sanction of the Governor, and in cases in which it is clearly the interest of the State to contract for a longer period, such period in no case, however, to exceed five years: Provided, That all contracts made under this act may be annulled at any time for failure to fulfill the conditions of such contracts on the part of any contractor, of which failure the Governor and superintendent shall be the judges, and that every such contract shall be made upon the condition of the continuance of said soldiers' orphan schools by the Legislature of the State.

Sec. 8. That the said superintendent may, with the consent of the Governor, afford partial relief in kind, not exceeding thirty dollars per annum, for each orphan, in cases where, in his judgment, it is proper to suffer the orphans to remain with their surviving parents or relatives or guardians, and to receive instructions in the public schools of the Commonwealth.

Sec. 9. That all bills for the maintenance and education of soldiers' orphans shall be paid quarterly, by warrant drawn directly upon the State Treasurer, signed by the Superintendent of Soldiers' Orphans, who shall file a receipted bill for the same in the Auditor General's office before issuing the next quarterly warrant, which the State Treasurer is hereby forbidden to pay until such receipted bill is thus filed: Provided, That all amounts appropriated for the purchase of clothing and the payment of partial relief, salaries, and incidental expenses, may be drawn by the State superintendent of soldiers' orphans upon the warrants of the Governor, and the bills for the same settled semi-annually at the Auditor General's office, in the usual manner.

Sec. 10. That the superintendent of soldiers' orphans shall require monthly, quarterly and annual reports, according to such form as he shall prescribe, from each institution receiving soldiers' orphans at the expense of the State; and that said superintendent shall, not later than the first day of December, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, and annually thereafter, make a detailed report to the Governor of this Commonwealth of all the soldiers' orphans under his charge, their condition and progress, the numbers of each respective age, from four to sixteen years, and such other information as he may deem expedient, together with a statement of receipts and disbursements, by item and estimate, for ensuing years.

Sec. 11. That when any of said orphans shall have arrived at the age of sixteen, or sooner, if deemed expedient, said superintendent shall, at the written request of said orphan, and of his or her mother, guardian, or next friend, put or bind him or her out to such trade and employment, and to such master, or mistress, or employer, as shall thus be requested, and for such term as shall thus expire, if a male, at or before the age of twenty-one, and if a female, at or before the age of eighteen years; in which indenture of apprenticeship there shall be inserted such covenants for the further education of the orphan as said superintendent may prescribe, and such apprenticeship shall be, in all other respects not herein provided for, subject to the provisions of the act of Assembly relating to masters and apprentices, and the supplements thereto.

Sec. 12. That upon arrival at the age of sixteen years, each of said orphans who shall not desire to be apprenticed to a trade or employment shall be restored to the mother, guardian, or next friend, with a full outfit of clothes, and a certificate signed by said superintendent and the principal of the proper school, showing his or her moral standing, and literary and industrial attainments and qualifications.

Sec. 13. That the year for all operations under this act shall begin on the first Monday of June in each year, and on the day preceding the first Monday of June of the year next succeeding, and all appropriations hereafter made shall be for the year as herein determined, and made in like manner, and at the same time as appropriations are made for the general expenses of the Government.

Sec. 14. That all acts and parts of acts heretofore passed, and inconsistent with this act, be, and they are hereby, repealed.

JOHN P. GLASS,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

AN Act to establish criminal courts for Dauphin, Lebanon and Schuylkill counties.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the counties of Dauphin, Lebanon and Schuylkill are hereby erected into a judicial district, under the name and style of the First District of Criminal Jurisdiction, and that in each county within the said district there shall be established a court of record, with criminal jurisdiction, under the name and style following: In Dauphin county the name and style of the court shall be the criminal court of Dauphin county; in Lebanon county the name and style of the court shall be the criminal court of Lebanon county; and in Schuylkill county the name and style of the court shall be the criminal court of Schuylkill county. The said court, in each of the said counties, shall consist of one judge, learned in the law, who shall be the president judge of the district created by this act, and who shall, in all criminal matters and cases within the said district, have the like powers, jurisdiction and authority as the president judge of any judicial district of this Commonwealth, as well upon holding a court of quarter sessions of the peace, and court of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, and in vacation in any county within his proper districts, and shall at all times have the like power to grant writs of habeas corpus, and give relief thereupon in all cases as fully as any other president judge of any judicial district may or can do in similar cases.

Each of the courts created by this act shall have, and they are hereby vested with, full powers and authority to inquire of, hear, try and determine, agreeably to the laws and customs of this Commonwealth, all murders, rapes, robberies, arsons, felonies, misdemeanors, and all other offenses which have been or may be committed within the county for which such court is created, and which would be cognizable in any court of quarter sessions of the peace and court of oyer and terminer within this Commonwealth, if committed within their jurisdiction, and to hear, try and determine all presentments and indictments for any and all offenses against laws of this Commonwealth committed within such county, and to sentence and punish all persons who shall be convicted of the said offenses, or any of them, agreeably to the laws of this Commonwealth; and generally to do all such matters and things as any court of general quarter sessions of the peace or oyer and terminer and general jail delivery may or can do within the county for which such court is created by this act; and each of the said courts shall have a seal, with the arm of the Commonwealth engraved thereon, and the name of the court.

After the passage of this act, all recognizances taken within the county of Schuylkill shall be taken for the appearance of the prosecutors, defendants and witnesses at the court created by this act for said county, and not to the court of quarter sessions of Schuylkill county; and from and after the first Monday of June next, the jurisdiction of the court of quarter sessions of the peace, and court of oyer and terminer of Schuylkill county, over felonies and misdemeanors, shall cease and determine, and the whole of the said jurisdiction now vested in the said court shall be, and the same is hereby vested, from that date, in the court for the said county, created by this act; and all indictments pending and recognizances taken, in the court of quarter sessions of the peace and the court of oyer and terminer, in Schuylkill county, shall be then transferred to, and be heard, tried, proceeded and determined, in the last court created by this act, in the same manner, and with the same effect, as if the indictment had originally been found in the recognizance taken therein; Provided, That in all cases where convictions have been had, and the sentences hereon not been passed, the said court of quarter sessions and oyer and terminer shall proceed therein according to law, in the same manner, and with like effect, as if this act had not been passed.

That the sessions of the court created by this shall be held as follows:

In Schuylkill county, on the first Monday of January, April, July and October, and to continue four weeks if the business shall require it; in the county of Lebanon, on the first Monday of February, May and November, to continue one week if the business shall require it; and in Dauphin county on the first Monday of March, June, September and December, and to continue two weeks if the business of the court shall require it, with power to hold adjourned sessions of the said courts; and whenever, in the opinion of president judge of the districts created by this act, the public interests shall require it, he may order extra sessions of the courts in any of said counties, to be held at such times as he may appoint; and he shall have power, and he is hereby authorized, to dispense with jury courts in any county at such sessions as, in his opinion, jury courts may be dispensed with, without prejudice to the public interests: Provided, That in Schuylkill county, in addition to the sessions above mentioned, the first session of the court created by this act for that county, shall be held on the first Tuesday of June next, to continue until the close of that week, if the business shall require it.

It shall be the duty of the Governor of the Commonwealth, pursuant to the provisions of the Constitution, to appoint a gentleman of integrity, learned in the law, to be the president judge of the districts created by this act, who shall hold his office until the first Monday of December next, and the qualified electors of the said counties of Dauphin, Lebanon and Schuylkill shall, on the second Tuesday of October next, elect a president judge for the said districts, according to the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth; and the said judge, so appointed or elected, shall receive for his services a like salary or compensation as the president-judge of court of common pleas of Schuylkill county.

The clerks of the courts of quarter sessions and oyer and terminer in the several counties in the district created by this act shall, for the time being, be the clerks of the courts created by this act, in the counties for which they are, or may be elected, and shall receive the like fees for the like services rendered, done and performed in the courts created by this act, as if rendered, done or performed in the courts of quarter sessions or of oyer and terminer, in the respective counties; and the sheriffs, coroners, constables and marshals of police affairs shall obey and execute all lawful orders of the courts created by this act, and be subject to the like penalties for neglect or disobedience, as if the said orders or writs had been made or issued by the courts of quarter sessions, or courts of oyer and terminer of the several counties within the district created by this act, and shall, in all cases, receive a like compensation for similar services, and all reports and returns that are now required by law or custom to be made to the courts of quarter sessions of Schuylkill county relating to selling liquor by less measure than one quart, tipping houses, disturbances at elections and matters relating to roads, highways or offenses of any kind, shall be made to the courts created by this act in Schuylkill county, at each and every regular session thereof, and the said court shall take such action thereon as in any court of quarter sessions may or can do in similar cases.

All laws relating to the issuing of venire for the summoning of grand and petit jurors that are now or may be hereafter in force within the said district, are hereby extended to the courts created by this act, and the jurors shall be drawn and summoned in such numbers and like manner as for courts of oyer and terminer and courts of quarter sessions, and as may from time to time be ordered by the said courts created by this act.

The district attorneys in Dauphin and Lebanon counties shall have the power to direct recognizances to be taken for the appearance of prosecutors, defendants and witnesses in the courts created by this act, or in the quarter sessions of the peace of the said counties, as they may think best for the public interests.

It shall not be lawful to summon a grand jury in the present court of oyer and terminer, or quarter sessions, as now held in Schuylkill county, after the establishment of the criminal court under this act, but the grand jury shall be selected for and summoned to attend the criminal courts in said county only, and in the counties of Dauphin and Lebanon, no grand jury shall be summoned in the criminal court established by this act, but all bills shall be found in the present courts of oyer and terminer and quarter sessions, after which they may, on the written order of the district attorney for the proper county, be removed into the criminal court for trial, or may be tried in the courts now existing in said counties, at this option; and if no cause have been removed into said criminal court for trial, no grand jury shall be summoned to attend said court. It shall be lawful for the return judges in the counties of Schuylkill, Dauphin and Lebanon, to appoint one of their number in each of said counties to meet at the borough of Lebanon on the first Tuesday after the general election in October next, and make return of and cast up the number of votes given for the respective candidates for judge of the criminal court hereby established, and make return thereof to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, in the manner now prescribed as to the election of president judges.

The act entitled An act for the better and more impartial selection of persons to serve as jurors in the several courts of Somerset and other counties of the State, approved the 27th day of March, 1865, be and the same is hereby extended to Schuylkill county.

Immediately after the passage of this act the Governor of this Commonwealth shall appoint two sober, intelligent and judicious persons, taking one from each of the political parties, to serve as jury commissioners for Schuylkill county, who shall remain in office until jury commissioners for said county shall be elected as provided in said act hereby extended to Schuylkill county, and who shall be subject to all the provisions of said act; and the said jury commissioners so appointed by the Governor shall forthwith proceed to select and draw jurors for the courts in Schuylkill county, in the manner directed by the said act for the courts in Schuylkill county for the current year, and the names of the persons now in the jury wheel in Schuylkill county be withdrawn and others substituted, as directed by this act.

AN ACT to increase the Revenue of the Commonwealth by taxation of the shares or stock of the National Banks.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That all the shares or stock held by any person, in any bank incorporated by or in pursuance of any law of the Government of the United States, are hereby declared subject to taxation in the hands of the holders of such shares, at the same rate as the shares or stock of banks incorporated by, or under any law of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, are now taxable, in the hands of the individual holders of such shares, and at no other or greater rate; that is to say, a tax of three mills upon every dollar of the value of such shares or stock, shall annually be assessed and collected in the manner hereinafter provided.

SEC. 2. That the Auditor General and State Treasurer are hereby authorized and directed, to immediately upon the passage of this act, to appoint an adequate number of suitable persons, citizens of this Commonwealth, to ascertain the residence and assess the value of the shares of stock aforesaid; said assessors, so appointed, shall proceed, as soon as possible after their appointment, and after having taken and subscribed an oath in due form of law to execute the duties imposed upon them with fidelity and impartiality, to visit all the banks incorporated by the United States, and located within the county or district for which the assessor is appointed, and obtain from the officers of said banks a full and complete list of the shareholders of each bank, with their residence, and the number and par value of shares of stock held by each person respectively, whereupon the assessor shall proceed to assess all of the stockholders resident within the county or district for which he is appointed, and the actual value of the shares or stock held by each, and make a complete list of the same, which list shall be returned to the commissioners of the city or county in which said bank is located; and the amount of taxes due the Commonwealth, upon such assessments, shall be collected in the manner in which taxes upon other personal property are now collectable; each assessor, appointed as aforesaid, shall receive a commission of (7) seven per cent. upon every dollar of tax due the Commonwealth upon the assessment made by him; which commission shall be adjusted and allowed by the Auditor General and paid by the State Treasurer upon the warrant of the Auditor General.

SEC. 3. That the assessors aforesaid, after they shall have completed the assessment and return of the said shares of stock held by persons resident within their proper county or district respectively, shall immediately proceed to make a complete list of the names, residence and number of shares of stock held in the capital of each bank, as aforesaid, by persons resident without their proper districts, with the assessed value of such shares, and transmit the same to the Auditor General, properly certified; and upon the receipt of said lists, the Auditor General shall cause the names and assessed value of the shares of the shareholders, so resident without the county or district in which the bank is located, to be transmitted to the assessors of the county or district in which the stockholders reside, respectively; and upon the receipt of said lists, the assessor of the proper county or district shall proceed to make return to the commissioners; and the tax so assessed and returned shall be levied, and collected as in the case of residents of the city or county in which the bank is located.

SEC. 4. That after performing the duties hereinbefore specified, the powers and duties of the assessors aforesaid shall cease and determine; and the Auditor General and State Treasurer shall, annually, in the month of January, appoint said assessors and assign their respective districts or counties; and the assessors shall make return to the commissioners aforesaid within sixty days after their appointment, and be removable at the pleasure of the Auditor General and State Treasurer.

SEC. 5. That should any National or State bank of this Commonwealth pay to the State Treasurer a tax of one per centum per annum, upon the par value of the capital stock thereof, the shareholders of said bank shall be exempt from all other taxation on the value of said shares.

SEC. 6. That the first section of the act entitled An act to amend the revenue laws of the Commonwealth, approved the twenty-third day of February, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, so far as the same refers to banks incorporated by the United States, be and the same is hereby repealed.

JOHN P. GLASS,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

L. W. HALL,
Speaker of the Senate.

APPROVED—The twelfth day of April, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven.

JNO. W. GEARY.

AN ACT to extend the time for the payment of the enrollment tax upon an act entitled An act to authorize the Western Maryland railroad company to locate a portion of their road through Adams and Franklin counties, Pennsylvania, approved the twenty-third day of March, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, and relating to the location of the said railroad and a connection of the Gettysburg railroad therewith.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the time for the payment of the enrollment tax upon an act entitled An act authorizing the Western Maryland railroad company to locate a portion of their road through the counties of Adams and Franklin, approved the twenty-third day of March, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, be extended for a period of six months from the passage of this act, and that upon the payment of such enrollment tax within said period the said act shall have the same force and effect in all respects as if the said tax had been paid within one year from the passage of said act, and to that end the said act is hereby re-enacted.

SEC. 2. That the said Western Maryland railroad company, in locating and constructing their said line, shall locate and construct the same by the route surveyed by way of Emmitsburg and Friends Creek Gap, and so as to cross the line dividing the said States of Pennsylvania and Maryland at a point not more than one hundred feet west of the public road leading from the Waynesborough turnpike, at Liberty Mills, to Mechanistown, Maryland, and so that the grade of said road, at the crossing of said State line, shall not exceed twenty feet in elevation above the road bed of said public road; and so much of the original act to which this is a supplementary as is inconsistent herewith is hereby repealed.

SEC. 3. That the Gettysburg railroad company is hereby authorized to connect its road with the said Western Maryland railroad at any point within the counties of Adams and Franklin.

AN ACT to permit disabled soldiers to peddle without charge, by procuring a license thereto.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That every honorably discharged soldier who is a resident of this State, and who, from wounds, or on account of disease contracted, while in the military or naval service of the United States, and on account of such disability is unable to procure a livelihood by manual labor, shall have the right to hawk, peddle, and vend any goods, wares or merchandise within this Commonwealth, by procuring a license for that purpose, to be issued without cost: Provided, That before any such soldier shall be entitled to the benefits of this act, he shall obtain a certificate from an examining surgeon of the United States, that he is unable to procure his living by manual labor, and shall also procure a certificate from the prothonotary of any county in this State, that he has filed in the office of said prothonotary his affidavit, setting forth that he is the bona fide owner, in his own right, of all the goods, wares and merchandise which he proposes to hawk, peddle and vend, and that he will not engage to sell the same for any other person or persons whatever: And provided further, That the aforesaid certificates, together with such person's discharge from the military service, or an exemplified copy thereof, shall be full and conclusive evidence of each person's right to the benefits of this act.

A SUPPLEMENT to an act for the better securing the payment of the wages of labor in certain counties of this Commonwealth, approved the thirtieth March, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and fifty-nine.

WHEREAS, It frequently occurs that irresponsible parties take contracts from persons, or chartered companies, engaged in the mining of coal, and in the event of a failure of such persons, or companies, the employes of the contractors are excluded from the benefits of an act, entitled An act for the better securing the payment of wages of labor in certain counties of this Commonwealth; therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the provisions of the fifth and sixth sections of the act, entitled An act for the better securing the payment of wages of labor in certain counties of this Commonwealth, approved March thirtieth, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and fifty-nine, be, and the same is hereby, extended to the employes of the contractors of such persons, or companies, engaged in the mining of coal, and they shall have the same benefits, under the provisions of said act, as persons directly employed by such persons, or companies: Provided, That this supplement shall only extend to the county of Schuylkill.
