SEC. 6. It shall be the duty of each of said jury commissioners to take upon himself and discharge the duties of said office, under a penalty of one hundred dollars for each and every neglect and refusal to attend the same, to be sued for and recovered before any justice of the peace of the proper county, as debts of like amount are now by law recoverable, the sum of which shall go to the person so suing, and the residue to be paid by the said justice to the treasurer of the county for the use of the same.

SEC. 7. In case of the inability of either or both of the said jury commissioners by sickness, death or other unavoidable causes, to discharge the duties of said office, it shall be the duty of the president judge of such county wherein said vacancy shall have occurred, to appoint a suitable person or persons, or to cause may be possessing the qualifications aforesaid, to perform the duties of said office during such vacancy, and such person or persons, after having complied with the requirements of the third section of this act, shall proceed to discharge the duties of said office, the same as if elected by the people.

SEC. 8. That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

The first section of the bill was read and Agreed to.

On the reading of the second section, Mr. MEYERS moved to amend the fourth line, after the word "thereupon," by inserting "the said commissioners and sheriff shall."

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend the amendment just offered by striking out the word "sheriff."

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Chairman, I hope that will not prevail. This bill was reported by the committee and returned to the House; I cannot see why the word "sheriff" should be stricken out.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Chairman, the reason for the amendment is this: the question came up in committee, and it leaves the act in precisely this shape. The object of this bill is, as the title states, a bill for the better selection of jurors, and to enable political parties to be equally represented in the selection of jurors. Now, if the sheriffs happen to be Democratic or Republican, there would be two of one party, and one of another. If, however, the commissioners are chosen, one from each party, and act alone in the selection of jurors, there will be no preponderance. As I understand this bill, its main object is to insure entire impartiality, politically, in the selection of jurors. And this cannot be secured if two-thirds of the jurors are selected by one party.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Chairman, the committee will perceive that the aim of the selection was that it should be alternative. It is not to be assumed that the commissioners will act on political grounds. There can be no objection to allowing this bill to stand as it is, because it allows the sheriff and commissioners to select jurors alternately. It cannot be supposed that in making the selection each member would draw all of his own party. In Northampton county the board of commissioners to select a jury, and the sheriff, are all Democrats. Does not that party that are Democrats are put in the jury wheel? Not at all. There are as many Republicans in the jury wheel in Northampton county, in proportion to the number of voters, as there are Democrats. In my county there is a Democratic majority of three thousand; the number of persons voting the Republican ticket is not large, and in many cases half the Republicans in the jury wheel are drawn.

I think this question ought not to be presented in the shape it has assumed; it conveys the idea that persons should act for political reasons, where they should have reference only to judicial matters for the purpose of obtaining justice between man and man.

I hope, therefore, the amendment will be voted down.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Chairman, the remedy sought does not appear in what has been proposed. The idea in getting up a bill of this description is equalization. In some counties (by this bill) Republicans will lose in representation; in other counties Democrats will lose. In Wyoming a bill of this description will not answer, since there is a difference of only fifty votes between the two parties.

I feel satisfied if a jury is equally drawn everything will pass off without difficulty.

With a one-third or two-third arrangement we shall not be able to remedy evils.

For that reason I am opposed to the bill in that shape.

Mr. MCCREARY. Mr. Chairman, my idea was that the main object of this bill was to settle the difficulties that arose in the selection of jurors. One objection to it has become a notorious fact that questions of a political character have been more or less mixed up in our courts. I presume there is no one in this House who supposes we can pass a bill satisfactory to all persons. We wish to do away with the difficulties that now exist in counties where majorities are strongly Republican, or strongly Democratic. There is too much favor shown to the dominant party in the jury box; sometimes there are not enough left of the minority to fill up the panel. One party can challenge the other in the jury box, we want to take these matters into their own hands. We will take York county, where the Democratic majority is very strong. If the Republicans have one-third in the jury-box, do you not see that one-third will be sufficient protection to the man who is being tried for a political offense? It thus becomes impossible for one party to challenge off the other. Look at Allegheny county—strongly Republican. If the Democrats have one-third of the jurors, do you not see that one-third is sufficient to protect them? Take, for instance, the county of Erie—strongly Republican. The Democrats have never raised a political objection to the selection of jurors. But suppose they had. Suppose some claim involving politics should come up. If the Democrats had one-third of the jury, would not that be sufficient to protect the accused? Would his rights necessarily be impaired? Let us go to the county of Schuylkill.

The Republicans have one-third of the jurors, and they are protected thereby. Therefore I say this bill is right. It gives to the different counties the preponderance of the jurors to the party holding the majority in that county. I know, in my own county, I can point to certain townships where there are not over twenty of one party to three hundred of the other.

Now, we would have these twenty men going to court as jurors as often as the three hundred Republicans. It would keep them attending court all the time, to keep up the proportion in the jury box. In York county, or Fayette county, where the Republicans are so scarce, they would be kept going to court all the year. As I said in the first place, the object of this bill is not to give each party one-half the jurors in all the counties in the State, but to give each party in its respective county enough to protect its liberties and its integrity. I am not willing that the Democrats of Erie county, should have as many jurors as Republicans, because that would be saying that one man is entitled to the same privileges and power that three men are. We have nearly four thousand majority, and it is right that Democrats should get the jury box represented equally with the Republicans? In the county of Berks, on the other hand, by this rule the Republicans must have as many persons as the Democrats. All I ask is that we shall have enough in the jury box to see that our rights are protected in all political cases.—The amendment the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS] proposes will insure at least one-third of the jurors to each political party. I trust then that the amendment will be adopted. It contains, certainly, the original object of this bill.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Chairman, as I understand it, the whole scope of this bill is to equalize the parties in the jury box. What is meant by the words "for the better and more impartial selection of jurors?" It means, in this instance, equality with reference to parties. Now, I ask where is the equality if two-thirds are selected from one party and one-third from another party? If equality be introduced by the selection of one-third of one particular party, I ask if equality will not be complete by the selection of one-third from each party? There can be no replying to that. If you come to equality, then I say, a fair and equal division.

Mr. MCCREARY. Mr. Chairman, I would like to inquire of the gentleman, if, in a county where there is a Republican majority of three thousand, he would be willing to give Democrats privileges equal with those of the opposite party?

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Chairman, that is where the shoe pinches—that is the difficulty with this bill. It was proposed last winter to extend the provisions of this law to certain counties. I opposed it, and obtained a reputation for being rather shy. I said I would support the measure if it was a general bill, having no other object than the better and more impartial selection of jurors. Now, in the gentleman's county, which is strongly Republican, it would be very well, probably, to have the sheriff and one Republican commissioner select the jurors. But in my county, which is Democratic, this would not do so well. There the Democrats would have two jurors to the one which we Republicans would have. Hence, I say this is partial. It is not a bill for the better and more impartial selection of jurors where there are two selected from one party and only one from the other. If we are honest in what we are doing let us carry this matter to its proper termination.

If we can make it a general bill, let it extend to every county in the State. If we are not sincere, let us postpone this bill indefinitely. I believe the bill would work well if it were passed in the manner in which it purports to come before the country. But I challenge a denial of the positions I have taken; that there cannot be impartiality, where there are two jurors of one party selected to but one of the other party. I care very little about this bill. In my county I have never had occasion to complain of the selection of jurors. At one time, since my residence in Lycoming county, a majority of the commissioners were Republican; but I heard no complaints from the Democrats. To this time I have never had occasion to complain of the selection of jurors there. Yet I will state this: at our last court, one of the most prominent Democrats of our bar complained seriously of the manner in which jurors were selected. He happened to be engaged in behalf of an American citizen of African descent, who had been most fully beaten. He had prosecuted his assailant; a bill had been found by the grand jury, and it came to be tried by the traverse jury. But the jury found the defendant not guilty, and compelled the prosecutor to pay costs, and this for no earthly reason than that his skin was black. The gentleman who was the attorney for this colored man, if I were to name him, would be recognized, perhaps, by some gentlemen on this floor as a highly respectable member of the bar, and an unflinching Democrat. He came and appealed to me to sustain a law for the better and more impartial selection of jurors.

In regard to the objection urged by my friend from Erie [Mr. MCCREARY], where one party is so sparse that they would be kept trotting to court all the year, I would like to see an act of a session that would require that a man shall be obliged to attend court only a certain number of times during the year. I have not felt any very great desire for the passage of this bill. What we want is a more impartial selection of jurors. I am opposed to the bill as it stands at present.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Chairman, I am somewhat astonished at the remarks of my friend from Lycoming [Mr. WINGARD]. He assumes that for the proper administration of justice there should be an equal number of both parties represented. If there are more than two parties, then more than two parties should be represented. It seems to me that the whole line of his argument goes on the assumption that the courts are based upon political matters, as if a question of murder, or a question of titles to lands, or a suit to recover money, or a question of the rights of widows and orphans, should come into courts of justice and be determined upon political grounds, and that if both parties are not equally represented in the jury-box the parties ligant cannot receive justice in this Commonwealth.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman allow me to ask him a question? Would he like to have his own mind on the meaning of this bill is to whether its object is not to exclude politics from the deliberations of the jury.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Chairman, I will come to that very soon. But I will answer it in this way now, that this bill has no reference at all to politics of its face. The very moment you introduce politics into the judiciary, that moment you destroy the virtue and honesty of that judiciary. The very moment you make questions of law subservient to political interests and political rights, then you destroy the rights of the people under the law.

The bill, by its title, says that it shall be an act for the better and more impartial selection of persons concerned as jurors in each of the counties of this Commonwealth. Now, what is required of a juror? He is required to be a sober, honest and intelligent citizen, with enough intelligence to be able to determine questions that come before him in the capacity of a juror, and that he shall have sufficient honesty and integrity to decide the question according to the law and evidence. The complaint that is urged against the present selection of jurors of this Commonwealth is because the selection is referred to commissioners and sheriffs who are not expressly selected for that purpose, but who are elected for other and independent purposes. The bill provides there shall be two sober and intelligent citizens elected with special reference to their capacity to select the proper kind of men in each county to serve as jurors. It is an effort more of honor than of profit; it is an office that has no appointment under it. They will merely be required to perform certain duties in reference to the rights of the people under the law, without much pay, but with some thanks from the people for the proper performance of their duties. The complaint against the selection of ignorant men is not a complaint against their politics. In my county there are a large number of persons who cannot speak the English language. There are others who cannot well understand the proceedings of a court. These are not the men for the jury box. Over and over again, in important trials, they are excluded from sitting upon a jury for the simple reason that they cannot understand the English language. When we ask for an impartial selection of a jury we ask for a selection of honest and intelligent men. We do not ask that they be selected, the one from this party and the other from that. It will give the court the best of both parties. Six of that party, then instead of being an impartial you make it a partial jury, and you defeat the very object contended for by the gentlemen who wish a more impartial selection of jurors. "Now, is it to enable an equal number of persons of each party to sit upon a jury, so that each will be entitled to receive the same amount of compensation during the year? Is it dollars and cents that is being advocated? Is it that there shall be so many Republicans and so many Democrats, and that they shall receive the same amount of money? That certainly cannot have reference to the performance of their duties. When a trial is begun in a court of justice the commissioners must sit down and strike off the list of jurors on account of their political principles, unless, perhaps, in some cases where there might be a political question growing out of the issue. But, how can you prevent it? By having half the jurors Democrats and half Republican? You would get a jury in the panel on political grounds, and you would never get a verdict. Must questions arising in the courts be decided on political grounds? Not at all. The jury must decide upon the evidence and upon the law. They must decide as honest and conscientious men. It takes twelve men to agree on a verdict, and if you systematically divide a jury for political reasons, one man, making up his verdict in a party view, might defeat the ends of justice. Now, my idea in introducing this amendment was not that the commissioners would, of course, select each a Republican and each a Democrat. The commissioners to be elected are named in the bill to be two sober and intelligent citizens. It may be in the nature of things that two Republicans or two Democrats possessing these qualifications would be elected. We do not select them as partisans, but as sober and intelligent citizens, and that is what you want in Pennsylvania in place of the commissioner era who are now selected, so we can have men who are especially fitted for the selection of jurors.

Now, if this bill passes, with the amendment proposed to section second, it prevents the putting in of persons entirely of one political persuasion, and that is all that is necessary. In the county of Northampton this is never done. The commissioners there are all Democratic, and the sheriff is always a Democrat. The majority is large, and in the nature of things, this is the happen—and it might happen in a Republican county. By this bill you prevent the majority from putting in the jury box persons of one political persuasion. It prevents the Republican party of Erie county from putting in the jury wheel all Republicans. It prevents the Democratic party of Berks county from putting in the jury wheel all Democrats. It regulates this all over the State. It brings down the commissioners to the necessity of putting in men who are honest, efficient and capable to discharge their high duties as jurors irrespective of political qualifications and considerations. I say, therefore, that this idea of a careful and impartial selection of a jury is not based upon political considerations. It is based upon the higher, purer and nobler idea of justice and right; which you can gain only when you put it in the hands of the people to elect persons who are to be especially qualified for the performance of the duty of selecting these kind of jurors.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Chairman, I cannot see the force of the gentleman's remark. If he wishes to make an impartial matter of this why can he not consent to dividing these jurors equally, rather than divide them two to one? I believe this is a question that ought to be decided, to a great extent, by counties where the political parties are nearly balanced. In Wyoming the Democracy are about fifty in majority; we are willing to give them half the jurors and take half ourselves. I think it would be giving the Democracy of this State as much power as is allowed to the Republicans if we divide the jurors half and half, politically. Were it not that matters of this kind in Wyoming are in their present shape, I would pay but little attention to this bill. As it is, for a number of terms, we (the Republicans) have had five jurors out of thirty-six, and two grand jurors out of the total number of jurors. That is the way selections have been made. Not long ago three or four liquor dealers were arrested for violating the license law. In each case the charges were made as clear as the light, but the grand jury ignored the bill. This is the manner in which we have been treated. I feel as though an equal division should be made. I presume there is not a person on this floor, unless he wants to retain the balance of power on his side, will object to such a division.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Chairman, I intend to take but very little part in the discussion of this bill, and that in favor of the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS]. I wish to make the suggestion to gentlemen desiring the passage of this bill, that it would be advisable for them to put it in such shape that it would be acceptable to both sides. I do not wish the bill at all. The county of Chester asks for no change. We have a large Republican majority, but no complaint has been made. We do not select jurors with reference to politics. But if we are to have a bill of this kind we want it in the least objectionable form, conceding, at the same time, advantages to the Democratic majorities equal to those possessed by ourselves. I, for one, will not vote upon this bill while it is in its present shape. I am, therefore, in favor of the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton.

Mr. KOON. Mr. Chairman, I am opposed to the whole bill. I think that instead of getting politics out of the jury box it is just calculated to introduce politics. It will be well known to a jury drawn under this bill that they have been drawn with respect to their politics, and each man will go into the jury box as a political juror. It is a sad day for us that this question is bandied about in this hall; Democratic jurors talked of "Republican jurors talked of." It is calculated to bring disgrace on the jury system of our State. Pennsylvania is the only State that has hatched up this subject, and it has now been brought so far to the attention of the people that they begin to look upon the jury box as a political institution. On principle, I am opposed to the whole thing. In my county the Democratic party preponderate, yet I have never heard the slightest complaint from the Republican gentlemen of the bar. In fact Republican jurors of our county have frequently expressed themselves in my hearing to the effect that the drawing of jurors was conducted with perfect impartiality. I have heard Republican gentlemen express themselves against any legislation on this subject. They view this thing in Luzerne county as a direct stab at the judiciary of Pennsylvania. This matter should never have come into this Hall; it never should have been mentioned anywhere. I repeat, instead of a board of non-political officers—instead of non-political jurors, it will be exactly the reverse; and when there is a disposition to enter into controversy, it will be impossible, at any time, to get a verdict.

I have no particular interest in this matter. In Luzerne county we always do justice. If the majority of this House desire to pass this general bill, myself and my colleagues will not oppose it. We will show, by our votes, that we are not afraid to do justice at all times and everywhere. Still we regret that politics have invaded the judiciary system of Pennsylvania; we regret that this matter has been bandied in this House and made light of. Still, if the Republican gentlemen of this House are honest in giving us a fair bill we shall say "amen" to it. If this bill is to pass I am in favor of the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS].

I could not help feeling sorry for my friend from Wyoming [Mr. KENNEDY], where the Democratic majority is only fifty. I believe he has a right to complain. I would advise him to go right home and lecture the people of the county of Wyoming, and overcome that fifty majority. I have no doubt if the gentleman will begin to make stump speeches, that fifty Democratic majority will vanish at once.

Mr. KURTZ. Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again.

The motion was put and

Not agreed to.

The question recurring on agreeing to the amendment of the gentleman from Lyeomng [Mr. WINGARD], to the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS], to strike out the word "sheriff" in the fourth line of the second section, it was put and

Not agreed to.

The question now being on the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS], to insert in the fourth line of the second section, after the word "thereupon," the words "the said commissioners and sheriffs shall," it was put and

Agreed to.

The question being on the section as amended,

Mr. BOYLE offered the following amendment, which was read: To insert the word "white" after the word "adult" in the fourth line.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, I only desire to see that it is not the intention of the Republicans here to provide by law that jurors may be selected from among the colored population.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Chairman, I do not think there is anything existing in the laws of the State of Pennsylvania having reference to the race or color of any individual who shall sit upon a jury. I hope the committee will not stultify itself by inserting any such amendment. The word "white" has never been placed in our laws.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] says there is nothing in the existing laws of the State to provide from what class jurors are to be selected. That is true, because heretofore it has been considered that this country belonged to white people. Under Democratic constructions only white people were citizens, and the selection of jurors has heretofore been confined to citizens. But a change has occurred, and new constructions have been given to the Constitution, and laws must be made in accordance therewith.

There is no doubt if the bill passes as it now reads, that is, that jurors shall be selected from the adult male taxable citizens, that under the Republican construction negroes will be included.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Chairman, the discussion on this bill has been entirely of a political character; and the object of the amendment of the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] is simply to acquire a little political capital.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman says the word "white" has never been introduced in any law or statute of the State. I wish to ask him if it was not introduced in the statute stating the qualification of voters?

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, I believe the gentleman from Beaver [Mr. QUAY] has offered a resolution calling a convention to amend the Constitution. I would ask him

Daily Legislative Record.

FOR THE SESSION OF 1867.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY OF THE LEGISLATURE OF PENNSYLVANIA. No. 46.

TERMS OF THE DAILY RECORD.

THE DAILY RECORD will be furnished to Members of the Legislature and others at the following rates:

Single copy for the session.....$2 00

whether one of the objects of that convention will have in view is not to strike the word "white" out of the statute books?

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Chairman, the bill to which the gentleman alludes is simply to authorize the people to vote at the next general election whether they desire the Constitution amended. The amendment proposed was not indicated.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Chairman, I have nothing further to say on this subject, except that I am opposed to ringing in such political capital on the question of the better selection of jurors. I hope the attempt will be promptly voted down.

Mr. KOON. Mr. Chairman, a day or two after the resolution of the gentleman from Beaver [Mr. QUAY] was offered, there was a commendatory article in the HARRISBURG TELEGRAPH on the subject, in which it was distinctly stated that it was proposed to strike out the word "white!"

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of order.

The question being on the amendment of the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE], to insert the word "white" after the word "adult," in the fourth line, it was put and

Not agreed to.

The question recurring on the section as amended, it was

Agreed to.

The third section was read.

And on the question,

Will the committee agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The fourth section was read.

And on the question,

Will the committee agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The fifth section was read.

Mr. EWING moved to amend by inserting "for each day necessarily employed in their duty."

Not agreed to.

The sixth section was read and

Agreed to.

The seventh section was read and

Agreed to.

The eighth section was read and

Agreed to.

In the House, the Speaker having resumed the chair,

Mr. GREGORY, chairman of committee of the whole, reported the bill as amended.

The bill was read as amended.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The second section was read.

On the motion of Mr. BOYLE to amend the section by inserting the word "white" after the word "adult" in the fourth line,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BOYLE and Mr. GREGORY, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Rouch, Satterthwait, Tharp and Westbrook—36.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, Day, Donoghue, Esry, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Mechling, Meily, Peters, Pillow, Quay, Routh, Seiler, Sharples, Steacy, Stuchman, Sulzers, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glase, Speaker—48.

So the question was determined in the negative.

Mr. KURTZ. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment.

The amendment was read as follows:

Provided, That none but the name of qualified voters, under the election laws of this Commonwealth, shall be placed in the jury wheel by said commissioners.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I think under the present law for the selection of jurors that the amendment is totally unnecessary; the law so provides at the present time. I can see no use in lumbering the bill with unnecessary matter.

The question on the amendment was put, and it was

Not agreed to.

The fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth sections were read and

Agreed to.

The question now being,

Will the House agree to the bill as amended? The yeas and nays were required by Mr. M'CREARY and Mr. COLVILLE, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Barrington, Barton, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Craig, Davis, Deise, Fogel, Freeborn, Gregory, Harner, Heltzel, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kerns, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Rhoads, Rouch, Satterthwait, Sharples, Snubers, Waddell, Webb, Westbrook and Wingard—47.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Day, Donoghue, Esry, Ewing, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kimmell, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, Marks, Mechling, Peters, Routh, Seiler, Watt, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glase, Speaker—34.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The House resumed the consideration of the bills and the public calendar.

House bill No. 150 was made the special order.

The bill was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That on the trial of any issue joined, or of any matter or question, or in any inquiry arising in any suit, action or other proceeding, in any court of this Commonwealth, or before any person, having by law, or by consent of parties, authority to hear, receive and examine evidence thereto, and the person in whose behalf any such action or other proceeding may be brought or defended, and any and all persons interested in the same, shall, except as hereinafter excepted, be competent to give evidence vis a vis on behalf of either or any of the parties to the said action or other proceeding, and by deposition, in questions where by the practice of the court the evidence on such question is required to be made by deposition: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall render any person who is charged with any criminal offense, in any criminal proceeding, competent or compellable to give evidence for or against himself or herself, or shall render any person competent to answer any question tending to criminate himself or herself, or shall, in any criminal proceeding, render any husband competent or compellable to give evidence for or against his wife, or any wife competent or compellable to give evidence for or against her husband, or in any proceeding instituted in consequence of adultery; nor shall any husband be competent to disclose any communication made to him by his wife during the marriage; nor shall any wife be competent to disclose any communication made to her by her husband during the marriage: And provided, Further, That if either of the parties to the original cause or owners of the subject matter of the action shall have died either before or after suit brought, whereby he, she or they, who prosecute, or defend the same, do so as legal representatives, heirs-at-law, or purchasers, or assignees of the right of such deceased owner, the rules of evidence shall not be affected by this act, but remain as heretofore.

SECTION 2. The testimony of the parties in any civil action, or proceeding authorized to testify by the provisions of the act of the twenty-seventh of March, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, shall not be conclusive, but the party calling for such examination may rebut it by other testimony.

Sec. 3. That the act entitled An act relative to the admission of parties to judicial proceedings as witnesses in certain cases, approved the twenty-seventh day of March, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty five, be and the same is hereby repealed.

The question was on the first section. Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by adding the following proviso.

The proviso was read as follows: "Provided, That nothing within the provisions of this act shall apply to any claim now existing, but that it shall be prospective in its character."

Agreed to. Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out all after the enacting clause and inserting the first section of bill No. 375.

The first section of bill No. 375 was read as follows:

That no person shall be disqualified as a witness, in any suit or proceedings at law or in equity, by reason of his or her interest in the event of the same, as a party or otherwise; but such interest may be shown for the purpose of affecting his or her credit: Provided, nevertheless, That no female shall be admitted as a witness for or against her husband, except when the suit or proceedings is between her and her husband, or shall any party be sworn in any case when the opposite party is prohibited, by any legal disability, from being sworn as a witness, or either of the parties in a cause sue or are sued in a representative capacity.

THE SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, this bill No. 150, which I think, the same one that was under consideration last winter, and passed this House notwithstanding some very serious objections made by some legal gentlemen upon this floor. It failed to pass the Senate, for what reason I am unable to say. This bill, No. 375 (the first section of which is the amendment I propose), was offered by myself, and I stated at the time that it was an exact transcript of a law of New Jersey passed in 1833 or 1834, which has stood the test there up to this time without any amendments whatever. In my opinion this bill, No. 375, is a briefer and more succinct than the other bill, and covers the entire ground. The objects and purpose of this law is to enable parties to be witnesses in their own causes. That is to say, the plaintiff can be a witness if he chooses to go upon the witness stand, and the defendant can be a witness, if he deem it proper and right. There is a provision in the law now in force in this State which authorizes both parties to call the adverse parties if they choose to do so. This law allows either party to be a witness in the case. There is a provision in this amendment which prohibits a female from being a witness for or against her husband except when the suit or proceeding is between her husband, nor shall any party be sworn in any case when the opposite party is prohibited by any legal disability from being sworn as a witness, or when either of the parties in a cause sue or are sued in a representative capacity. The latter part of that proviso is intended to cover the kind of cases where a suit is brought by a person in his own name against a person in a representative capacity; the party bringing the suit in his own name is not competent to be a witness in his own case, for the reason that the adverse party, acting in a representative ca-capacity, would not be aware of the facts upon which the suit was brought, and, therefore, could not testify knowingly, and, consequently, it would not be appropriate for the other party to be a witness. There is, however, a provision in this proviso which declares that in any case where the opposite party is prohibited by any legal disability from being sworn as a witness none of the parties shall testify. In such cases neither party ought to testify. Suppose the suit is brought in the name of a lunatic. Of course the lunatic is under a disability and could not be a witness. Or suppose one of the parties to be an infant of very tender years. The infant could not testify and that fact ought to prevent the other party from testifying. The general provision was put in that where one party, for any reason whatsoever, should not testify in his own case, the other party also should not be allowed to testify.

Upon a careful examination of this amendment, it seems to me that it covers all the ground contemplated by bill No. 150, taking all the sections together, with this difference, that the amendment is briefer, more succinct, more comprehensive, less difficult in its interpretation, and that there is less difficulty in applying it to cases which come before courts.

Upon the general question, whether this bill ought to pass, I shall not, at this time, say any thing, but I will make a suggestion which you cannot demonstrate like a mathematical proposition. You cannot prove that a man ought to be a witness in his own case. You can only determine that question by a series of experiences upon the question, and by looking at human nature in its different stages of civilization, intelligence and Christianity. Men come to courts of justice for the purpose of securing their rights in all the varied relations which grow out of society, whether to lands, or money, or to receive the rights of persons on property or character. They come to court, and as various as the stock of a manifold character, that it is almost impossible to give a detailed account of the variety. In all circumstances where there is a difficulty between two men, everybody is willing to hear the statements of the parties themselves. Nobody undertakes to judge any man unless you give him an opportunity to make an explanation himself of the matter. That is a consideration which enters into all our relations of life outside of the court house, and outside of judicial proceedings. No man, for a moment, pretends to deny any individual the right to make a statement, either in behalf of any claim that he may have, or in defense of a claim made by others in other matters that would not be brought into a court of justice. Why should a party be excluded then from making his statement under oath in a court of justice? Why should those parties, who, above all parties, know more about the case than strangers, be excluded from giving the facts they have in relation thereto? The answer to that demand, by the opponents of this bill, is that if you would open the gates to perjury, and you say that because a man in a court of justice, has a claim for five dollars, if you allow him to testify, he will perjure himself, and will condemn his soul to eternal damnation for five dollars. This is the judgment which the opponents of this bill pronounce upon humanity, and the judgment they pass upon our intelligence, advancement, civilization and Christianity. I cannot come to that conclusion—I have a better opinion of mankind—I have a better opinion of their desire to tell the truth. If a man would be so mean enough to perjure himself for the sake of a small amount of money, or for the sake of property, or for the sake of securing some rights, why, sir, he could go into a community and induce others to perjure themselves for the same end. As I said before, this is not a proposition which you can demonstrate—which you can prove. You cannot lay down any formula or premises and come to any definite conclusion. But you must look at human nature and judge from that whether it is right or wrong. By this measure you allow the parties themselves to go into court under oath and make a statement of the facts in the case. Neither party, however, is bound to be examined as a witness unless, under the press of law, the adverse party causes him. But, if he chooses to do so, he may make a statement of all the facts, so far as he knows them. This is a right he, and also the other party, ought to have. It would be very seldom that a case would be determined upon the evidence of the parties alone, because there are in every case, other circumstances, and other evidence which throws light upon the transaction. It would then be for the jury to say between the corroborative evidence furnished by the plaintiff and defendant which statement given by the parties was true—in other words, upon which side was the weight of evidence. In a great many transactions the plaintiff has forgotten some of the facts and the defendant others, and when you come to dove-tail them together, you have an entire and connected story. Now, by the practices of courts and the law of the land you give the parties the right to make an affidavit in suits in the district court of Philadelphia, and probably in every county in this Commonwealth, in a number of cases arising out of book accounts and out of bonds, notes, mortgages and other securities which are subject to book account. By the rules of the courts and by legislation you give the parties the opportunity to come into court and make their affidavits, and if the defendant fails to make a counter affidavit, the plaintiff is allowed to swear against him. What is that, in fact, but allowing the parties to testify in their own cases? In proceedings in equity the plaintiff brings his bill into court, sworn to, and the defendant comes in with his sworn answer, and what is not denied in the answer is considered true, and only in reference to that which is denied is the issue raised and the testimony taken. In the cases of book accounts, which are the more numerous of this class of litigations, the plaintiff comes into a court of justice, and swears to his original book of entries, and upon that evidence, and the evidence of the plaintiff himself, he can get his money. What is that but parties testifying in their own cases? It may be said that these are cases of necessity. But are the statements of the parties to be more relied upon in these transactions than in others? It is very seldom disputed that a party does not tell the truth. The only argument against this mode of procedure is that parties, because they are interested, to gain their case, would come into a court of justice and perjure themselves. Now, the law of evidence has undergone great changes during the last hundred years. I know that in England, regard to this doctrine was not tolerated. I know that the common law upon the subject did not allow any person who had the remotest interest in the issue in question to testify, but to-day even in monarchical England they are in advance of us, and allow all parties to testify. And the judgment of the judiciary of England is that more justice is obtained by that rule of law of allowing all parties to testify than previous to the abrogation of the old common law. In the United States, in Ohio, New York, New Jersey and other States have followed the plan of the English judiciary, and I have not heard one word against its operations in any of these States, but I have conversed with a number of gentlemen residing in these States, and they would not, under any consideration, have the law repealed from their statute books.

Whenever a case comes before a court and jury by the forms of law, by the machinery which is then put in force, and power, it is the object and design to get at the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, and every avenue ought to be opened for the purpose of getting the truth. Every person who can, ought to have the opportunity of throwing light upon the subject under consideration, and when you close the mouth of one man who knows anything about it you exclude just so much light from it. I take it that the time is not far distant when this principle will be extended to criminal cases, and a man who is upon trial for his life or liberty will be allowed to come into court and make his statement, under oath, as to the facts of the charge against him. But this bill does not contemplate going so far at this time. We are willing to take a grain of the common good, and leave to future legislation the abrogation of the monstrous doctrine that because a party is interested in the decision upon a criminal charge he cannot become a witness in his own case.

The object of all judicial proceedings is to get at the whole truth, and to do this you must allow every person to testify who has any knowledge of the facts in dispute; you must allow every fact to come before that court, either by record, or by parole evidence, or by any circumstance which will in any way throw light upon the question at issue. And I take it, sir, that in nineteenth of human transactions between man and man the parties interested, themselves know nine-tenths more of the facts at issue than outside parties possibly can, for the simple reason that the parties interested, have the matter stamped upon their minds by virtue of that very interest. Every third party who may have any knowledge of the facts have them very frequently by incidental conversation or overhearing, and they do not make that impression upon his mind as upon the parties themselves. In allowing each party to testify you set down the main facts of the case. You allow each party to give statement of the facts of the whole transaction, as he recollects them, and then, by allowing the corroborative evidence to come in, you can tell which side is the correct statement, which side this corroborative evidence will dove-tail in, and the jury will have less difficulty in arriving at the truth.

Again, Mr. Speaker, if you allow the interested parties to testify you will stop one-half the litigation in this Commonwealth, and through a lawyer by profession, and speaking against my own professional interest, I speak in the interest of peace and harmony, and against litigation. I say to you, and deliberately say it, that the introduction of this rule of evidence will cut down one-half the litigation in this Commonwealth, for the simple reason that in many cases parties bring their causes upon unjust claims for the reason that they cannot testify. In many cases parties refuse to pay just claims, and the other parties having no evidence against them except circumstantial evidence, they fail to bring suit, or in case they do, fail to establish their claims for the simple reason that they, as interested parties, cannot testify. It very often happens that a party will come to you and say, "The plaintiff has got no proof and I will not pay this claim." If you put the question, "Do you owe this money?" "O, yes, I owe the money;" or, "Did you do this injury?" "Yes, I did;" or, "Are you guilty of this nuisance?" "O, yes." But the plaintiff may have no evidence, and he may risk the chances of a trial. But when this rule is established by which you allow the plaintiff to come into court and testify, knowing full well that the plaintiff has the evidence in his own breast, and that he can make clear to the court and jury the justice of his cause, he will make peace with his enemy before he comes into a court of justice and will satisfy his just demands. In that way you prevent litigation, and enable the parties to let their rights by the mere operation of the law without enforcing it. In other cases a man may have an unjust claim against another, but knowing that the case is prima facie in his favor, he goes into court with the knowledge that the defendant has no evidence to meet it, and he then gets judgment and execution against him, and strips him of his house and home. But when he knows that the party can come into court and testify to losing the receipt, or make such other statement as will throw light upon his having discharged the debt, a man will hesitate before he brings an unjust claim into court. This matter might be discussed in various other ways. It might be argued upon the ground of the benefit that might flow out to individuals, to communities, and to States, but it is hardly necessary. The example of the other States, and the example of our own mother country, from which we draw nearly all our laws, speak in a voice that ought to be heeded; and the experiences they give us, and the lessons they teach us ought to be an argument in its favor. But it strikes me that the strongest and most potent argument is that it will prevent litigation to some extent; and the more you keep the doors of your court houses closed against litigation, which is the author of strife and social dissensions, to that extent we add peace and harmony to a community.

For these reasons I think this law ought to be passed. Although I am not particularly enamored, I am not, I say, that some law should be passed that will allow the parties in a cause to go into a court of justice, and themselves testify—not to testify merely in their own interest, but upon the facts of the case before the court and jury.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I am not at all tenacious as to which of these bills should pass. The lean of my mind is decidedly in favor of allowing parties to testify in cases of law and equity. And the lean of my mind is also in favor of the original act, No. 150. Yet I say I am not at all tenacious about the matter, so that we have the law allowing parties to testify in their own cases, only feel inclined to support the act, No. 150, for the reason that I know that it was prepared with a great deal of care. It was prepared by the Judiciary Committee last winter, over which I had the honor to preside, and upon which were several members of the present session. We prepared it after considerable correspondence with the bar in various sections of the State, and after learning their views, receiving their suggestions, and to some extent, embodying their views in the act itself. I therefore, say that it was prepared with a great deal of care and consideration; and I think it is as nearly right as we can well get a law of this kind. Undoubtedly it may need some alterations. Experience (if we should pass the act) would teach us that some alterations are necessary. But, so far as I now can see, it seems to me that the provisions of the act, No. 150, well cover the ground. I am aware, sir, that it is longer than the act which it is proposed to substitute for it, and appears to be verbose. But, sir, that arises from the necessity of having the act as clear and explicit as it can be; and to meet all the points that have been suggested, as far as possible.

Now, sir, as the law now stands, it seems to me that there is either a necessity for repealing the acts which we have, or passing a law of this character. We have upon the statute books an act which allows a party to call his adversary, and make a witness of him.

[The Clerk of the Senate was here introduced, and read a message from the Senate, which will be found elsewhere.]

Mr. WADDELL. I was saying, Mr. Speaker, that it seemed to me to be necessary either to repeal the laws which we have, or pass an act of this kind. We have upon the statute book an act passed in 1865, allowing a party to call his adversary.

Under decisions of the Supreme Court, a party thus calling his adversary, makes that adversary a good witness for himself; and for testifying upon the points to which he may be called by the adversary, who can order himself as a witness to testify in his own behalf.

The Supreme Court have, very particularly, said, that by calling your adversary, you remove the only objection that can be pressed to him, to wit: necessary credibility; and having put him upon the stand, you make him a competent witness for every point in the case. Therefore, I say, under that act, you are at the mercy of your adversary; and yet you cannot call your own client to make any testimony which he may offer himself.

Now, it strikes me that this is placing the parties in an unfair position, and that we ought either to exclude entirely every party in the case, or we ought to admit every party to testify even in his own behalf. This, sir, is one reason why I advocate the passage of an act of this kind.

There are other reasons which have been suggested by the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS]; but, as I said before, I do not feel at all tenacious in regard to which of these acts this House shall pass, so that we get one which will allow parties in a case to testify in their own behalf. It seems to me, however, that the act which we have under consideration (No. 150) is the better act of the two; and I, so far as I am personally concerned, would prefer to have the House pass it.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I move to modify my amendment by adding the word "civil" before the word "suit," in the fifth line; and in the eleventh line, before the word "either," insert the word "when."

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the amendment in the seventh line, by striking out the word "female," and inserting the word "woman."

Mr. MEYERS. I accept the amendment. Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I do not propose to occupy the time of this House in discussing these bills, as I am rather opposed to the passage of either of them. But if one is to pass, I desire that it shall be as nearly perfect as possible. I prefer bill No. 150 to the other one. It seems to me the better bill, and will be the better law in every particular. But I suggest that it might be amended and made better than it is on the file. I would only intimate that in case the amendment should be voted down, I will move to amend by inserting the word "civil" before "proceeding." That will confine the portion of this act to civil proceedings and exclude criminal proceedings, just as fully and clearly as defined in the proviso. Then I will move to strike out all after the word "shall" in the fourth line; down to and including the word "proceeding," in the eighth line. In my opinion that part of the bill will be supplied by the word "civil," to be inserted in the fifth line. Then I will move to strike out all after the word "Ans-band," in the twentieth line, down to and including the word "adultery," in the twenty-first line. One objection to bill No. 375 is, that it will allow parties, in any proceedings, to testify by deposition, and I take it that this is a very considerable objection. It is very desirable if parties are to be admitted at all, that they shall be brought into court, that they may be there cross-examined, and the jury allowed to see how they report themselves. If a man can testify by deposition taken, and be absent, for instance, from the county or State, at the time, you have no adequate safeguard against the crime of perjury.

I trust the substitute will be voted down, and that these amendments will be adopted.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I agree with the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] that it is a matter of not much consequence which of these bills pass. I only had bill No. 375 read in place and offered it as an amendment to bill No. 150, because I believed it to be more comprehensive in its provisions and better adapted to all the circumstances. It was drawn by one of the ablest lawyers in the State of New Jersey, and has been in operation in that State some thirty years without amendment. It is confined to civil proceedings, but it does not, like bill No. 150, specify the particular cases in which parties can testify. That is, in my opinion, a great objection to bill No. 150, because, by stipulating in what cases and under what circumstances the evidence of the parties shall be taken, you exclude possibly by interpretation all others not expressed in this bill. Bill No. 375 proposes simply to take away in one sweeping clause this disqualification. The law is now that a party having an interest in the question at issue, or being a party in the suit, is incompetent to testify. This amendment sweeps away the disqualification and says that every party, whether a party of the record or having any interest, is a competent witness, and makes only the exception contained in the proviso. These are my arguments in favor of bill No. 375, and the reasons for my preference for it rather than bill No. 150. The House, however, has the matter in charge and can adopt whichever it sees proper.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I presume the object of the two bills is precisely the same, and, if properly construed, will perhaps attain the same result. Our object should be, in choosing between these two bills (for it seems rather to be a choice of evils than the effect of any particular bill passed), to choose the bill which, in the fewest words, expresses what is desired in the best language. It seems to be that there is a comprehensiveness and explicitness about bill No. 375 that seems to say, in a few words, what is wanted, and nothing more. I notice that bill No. 150 (which, I believe, is a transcript of the bill which passed this House last winter) is cumbersome in its details. It says, over and over, things which seem to me to be unnecessary. The use of the word "compellable," in one or two places, seems to me, if not non-judicial, to be, at least, injudicious. I do not like the sound of the word as a judicial word. I know that an able member last winter, now a judge on the bench (a man of most excellent judicial mind, and an excellent judge), objected to the bill on account of that one word. I presume the object of both bills is precisely the same, to allow parties to a suit to testify; but I prefer bill No. 375, simply because, in a few well chosen words, it expresses exactly the meaning of the bill. Laws are sometimes like speeches—you lose the point of them by too many words, not by too few. I hope, therefore, the House will choose bill No. 375, instead of bill No. 150.

I presume there is but little difference of opinion as to the propriety of this House passing one of these bills. I think that the public sentiment throughout the State is decidedly in favor of such a measure. We are behind in this respect. Other States have passed this law and the universal opinion in these States is, that it works well and is diminishing litigation. It is well known that many parties defend a suit, not because they do not owe the debt, but because they think the opposite party cannot prove it. I have seen many a man remain silent when presented to him, and would take advantage of the legal difficulty that they could not prove it, and gain the suit. But you call that man to testify and he would not deny it.

The French system is to allow everything which has any connection with the case to be brought out, and to allow every person to tell everything, and then let the jury separate the truth from the mass of testimony given.

If an accident occurs on a railroad, to get the facts of that accident you go to one of the parties who saw it, or to one of the men who were injured. You do not go to a man to get somebody else's say so to get the facts, but to the parties themselves. So in a court of justice, the parties in a cause are the parties above all others who do know the facts. So far as committing perjury is concerned, I think if a man wishes to commit perjury he can procure persons to commit perjury for him, and such persons can be found.

I hope the House will pass bill No. 375, for the reasons that I have given.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I just wish to say a word. It is not the lawyers alone, and the judges, who have to do with the law; but this is a matter that will apply to several thousand magistrates throughout the Commonwealth, who are not generally versed in legal lore. And it is a matter of the greatest importance that laws of this kind should be as short and comprehensive as possible. Taking that view, I much prefer the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS]. I think it is entire and comprehensive, and will be much easier understood by those who are not well versed in legal learning.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I cannot say that I am favorable to either of these bills. I do not, however, feel like opposing either of them very decidedly. There seems to be a general desire to change the law of evidence.

If it can be changed for the better, I am satisfied. As we are about making that change it is well to change wisely, and of two laws to select the better one. On examining bill No. 150 and bill No. 375, I believe that bill No. 150, properly amended, is the better bill. I hope, therefore, the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton will not be agreed to. Bill No. 375 would seem to permit the testimony of a party to be taken by deposition and thus enable a party not interested, distant from the trial, to be heard. Now, I do not believe that to be a wise provision. We are to get at the truth, and we want to accomplish that, and we want all the advantages of a cross-examination, and we want to see the party on the stand. Very often we can tell by the manner of a person testifying whether he is telling the truth or not; but if his deposition is taken that advantage is removed. If we permit a party to testify, where we have the opportunity of cross-examining him before the judge and jury, they can tell by his manner whether his testimony is not entirely shaped by his interests. I therefore, think the provisions are too broad. The bill No. 150, provides against that evil. There is another defect in bill No. 875, which is remedied by bill No. 150. There are many others, but I confine myself now to one more. Bill No. 150 provides that no husband shall "be competent to disclose any communication made to him by his wife during the marriage, nor shall any wife be competent to disclose any communication made to her by her husband during the marriage." Bill No. 375 permits the husband or wife, after divorce, to detail confidential communications between them while they were united in marriage. This is against the policy of the law, and should not be permitted. I, therefore, oppose the amendment, and hope it will be voted down. If we should go into an extended analysis of these bills, we could show there are many things included in the general terms, in which bill No. 375 is couched, which ought to be qualified or excluded. This does not pertain to so great an extent to bill No. 150. I shall, therefore, vote against the amendment, and endeavor to make bill No. 150 as correct as possible.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, in accordance with the declaration of the gentleman from Jefferson [Mr. JENKS], I have no particular desire to change the law of evidence, for I see no special wish for it in our locality. Yet, I am not disposed to oppose a change, if it would be beneficial. I think I understood, in the remarks of the gentleman from Montgomery [Mr. SATTERTHWAIT], that he said he was in favor of bill No. 375, for the reason that it was so simple and plain that all who were not lawyers could easily understand it. But I must say that I consider the bill No. 150 much plainer, and much more easily understood than bill No. 375. The latter has its various ways of construction, and lawyers may construe it according to their particular views. Bill No. 150 is pointed and plain in its declarations. I think, therefore, that bill No. 150 should be adopted, as it is one that can be understood by all men, without reference to the various opinions given by lawyers. I shall, therefore, vote in favor of this bill.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the amendment of Mr. MEYERS?

It was

Not agreed to.

The question recurring on bill No. 150,

Mr. BOYLE. I now move to amend by inserting the word "civil" before the word "proceeding," in the fifth line; to strike out all after the word "shall," in the fourteenth line, down to and including the word "proceeding," in the eighteenth line; and all after the word "husband," in the twentieth line, down to and including the word "adultery," in the twenty-first line.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, the object of that amendment is, I suppose, to prevent this law from applying to criminal proceedings in all cases. I am opposed to that, and I hope the amendment will not be adopted. I think there are as good grounds, and in many cases better, for allowing a party to testify in his own case, in criminal proceedings, than there are in civil proceedings. There are many cases of great hardship, I know, in which defendants are not allowed to testify, and I can see no harm in letting them be heard in their own cases. Of course, the judge and jury will be competent to make all allowance; but I think it should apply to criminals as well as civil proceedings.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, there is one objection, I think, to the amendment of the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] which, perhaps, may not appear to the House at first view. There are a certain class of cases which are of a criminal nature, but the proceedings are rather civil than criminal. A case, for example, requiring money penalties, where you have a quasi civil suit before a court. I presume this bill, as framed, was to meet cases of this kind. There may be trouble if the amendment is adopted; but there can be no misconception, as the bill was reported from committee. I want to know whether, in case the amendment is adopted, a case coming before a justice of the peace, for a violation of law, the parties in the case are competent witnesses or not. There can be no doubt about it, in the bill as reported, but if we make this amendment it seems to me there may be a doubt. I therefore prefer the original bill without the amendment of the gentleman from Fayette.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I think there is not trouble in the point raised by the gentleman from Cambria [Mr. LINTON.] The kind of actions that he has referred to are considered to be civil actions. Cases where the parties are entitled to a part of the fine are also cases of that character. These certainly are cases of civil action, and the parties ought to be witnesses. There are many cases in which a party, present in a person for a crime, the prosecutor is entitled to half the fine, or a reward, and is, of course, interested, and is allowed to testify in the case. This word "civil" covers everything, I think, and there is no trouble about it.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, it strikes me that the word "competent" and the word "compellable," in the eighteenth and nineteenth lines, are inconsistent. If husbands and wives are not competent witnesses, how can you compel them? It seems to me that the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] ought to include in his amendment the striking out of the words "or compellable."

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I accept that as a part of my amendment. If a party is not competent, of course he is not compellable.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I hope the gentleman from Tioga [Mr. HUMPHREY] will withdraw his amendment providing that this act shall not apply to cases now pending. I would like to hear from the gentleman from Tioga why he desires that amendment.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. Speaker, I offered that amendment for the reason that my constituents are opposed to the bill. I was requested to attach that amendment by parties living near the State line. There being a law similar to that in New York, they would be satisfied with an amendment of that kind.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me if this would be a good law for subsequent cases, it would be a good law for cases now pending.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE.]

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The question recurring on the section as amended,

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, does not the question now recur on the amendment of the gentleman from Tioga [Mr. HUMPHREY]? As I understand it, the gentleman from Asaga offered an amendment. The gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS] then offered an amendment to the amendment. I may have been mistaken in that.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman from Berks [Mr. JONES] will permit me to explain, my amendment was the first one offered, and was agreed to before the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS] offered his amendment.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that the amendment of the gentleman from Tioga [Mr. HUMPHREY] got in there without the House having anything to say on the subject.

The SPEAKER. The amendment of the gentleman from Tioga was the first one offered. I think all the members understood it, and it was agreed to.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I am very much afraid that by the time we get through with this bill it will puzzle a dozen Philadelphia lawyers to understand it. Some persons seem to have a great desire to tangle up matters, and I believe there are certain persons who would amend the ten commandments if they had the privilege of doing so. Either of these bills was originally a very fair bill, but I preferred bill No. 375 to the other, for reasons I have stated.

Mr. JONES. I would like to ask when the gentleman speaks of amending the ten commandments whether he refers to such an amendment as would allow the cars to run on Sunday?

Mr. M'CREARY. I do refer to just that. But I think the more we work upon this bill the worse it gets. I understood it very well when we commenced, but we have now got it so mixed up that I would like to have it just as it was. I had a preference for bill No. 373, but I gave way to the preference of the House. But now, from the manner in which this bill is worked up, I have but little idea of what it is. I am afraid members are not paying much attention to it. They are doing as I have been doing a portion of the time, writing letters and attending to other matters while we are passing a very important bill. I mistrust that bill No. 375 would not have been voted down if members had been giving sufficient attention to the bill.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I do not see that there need be any difficulty about this matter. Let the bill proceed to a third reading, and if there is a majority of the House in favor of striking out this proviso it is very easily done. I do not see why we need waste any time about the matter. The question is now on the section as amended. If the House desire to pass this bill now they can do it immediately. It seems to me plain, and straightforward, and I hope the question will be taken now upon the section as amended.

The question being,
Will the House agree to the section as amended?

It was

Agreed to.

The second section was read and

Agreed to.

The third section was read and

Agreed to.

The title was read and

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended and the bill read a third time by its title.

On the question,

Shall it pass?

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House go into the committee of the whole, for the purpose of making a special amendment by striking out the proviso of the gentleman from Tioga [Mr. HUMPHREY].

The motion was

Agreed to.

The House went into committee of the whole, Mr. CHASE in the chair, for the purpose of making the special amendment.

The Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. CHASE, chairman of the committee, reported the bill amended, as directed by the vote of the House.

The question recurring, Shall the bill pass? Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, the remarks made by the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY] that proper attention has not been given to this bill, and my own impression in regard to the matter, I think indicate that it is doubtful as to which of these bills a majority of the House favors. I, therefore, move that the House go into the committee of the whole for the purpose of considering an amendment to strike out the first section of bill No. 150 and insert the first section of bill No. 375.

Mr. WADELLE. Mr. Speaker, before that question is put I hope it will be fully understood by the House. If they agree to the motion that necessarily inserts the amendment which the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS] asks to be inserted. It does not leave it open for discussion hereafter. If they vote to go into the committee of the whole they necessarily adopt bill No. 375. I want the House to understand what will be the effect of this vote and then do as they think proper.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to this question of order, that it is not in order to strike out this bill and insert another bill not before the House.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I do not insert another bill. I only change the bill by an amendment. I do this simply to direct the attention of the House to the import of this bill, and in accordance with the suggestions of the gentleman from Erie [Mr. CHASE] the House has not paid close attention to this matter. I am satisfied from indications and from remarks made by members upon this floor, that this House at one time preferred bill No. 375 to bill No. 150. And though I might have some personal pride in bill No. 150, having been on the Judiciary Committee of last year that prepared it, and this bill No. 375 having been prepared by the Legislature of New Jersey, yet I make this motion that the Legislature may have an opportunity to give it that consideration that it deserves.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I am a little surprised that the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS] should say here that this House is voting upon any measure without knowing what they are doing. I think gentlemen here are competent to understand what they have been doing, unless some reason to the contrary is given. I hope the House also understands that by voting for the motion of the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS] they are voting contrary to what this House decided by a vote a few moments ago.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I have made no assertion that the House is not competent to tell what it is doing. I, however, make the assertion that it is my recollection that not one half the members upon this floor voted; and I made this motion upon the suggestion of the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY], that the House, from inattention (as is often the case when bills in which most of the members have no particular interest are being passed), did not give the matter the consideration its importance demands.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, this is an important bill, and I am satisfied that not many votes were given, and that when the bill was up it did not receive the attention it ought.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Fayette insist on his point of order?

Mr. BOYLE. I will withdraw it.

On the question,

Will the House go into committee of the whole?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MEYERS and Mr. M'CREARY, and were as follow, viz:

YEs—Messrs. Barrington, Brennan, Chase, Gordon, Kimmel, Kinney, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Ke, Meity, Meyers, Mullin, Peters, Rhoads, Satterthwait, Watt, Webb, Weller and Wharton—18.

NAYs—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Barton, Boyle, Breen, Brown, Calvin, Cameron, Chidwick, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Davis, Day, De Haven, Deise, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Fegel, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gregory, Harrison, Harter,

So the question was determined in the negative.

The question recurring,

Shall the bill pass?

Mr. CHALFANT. Mr. Speaker, this is an important bill, relating to the law of evidence. I understand that the bill has been so mutilated by amendments that the probability is that not half the gentlemen on this floor understand it. The gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS] says we have not all paid attention, and there have been so many amendments that scarcely any man can tell how it is amended. For these reasons, and because not half the legal minds of this State have been consulted upon the question, I hope the House will vote down the bill.

Mr. WADELL. Mr. Speaker, the objection that the bill has been so amended that it is not understood can only be made by those who are opposed to the bill. I dare say that there is not a gentleman in this House who cannot, by five minutes' attention to the bill, understand the effect of these amendments. They are as plain as A B C, and I say the gentleman who demands the defeat of the bill because it is amended does so because he is opposed to the bill. I will not pretend to say that this bill has been submitted to half the legal minds in this State, but I will undertake to say that it has been sent to members of the profession in every county of this Commonwealth. The Judiciary Committee have received letters after letter in regard to it, and the decided opinion on the part of the profession, so far as the letters received show, was in favor of the bill. Several suggestions were made in those letters, which were considered, some of them adopted, and others rejected. The bill was carefully prepared, and carefully considered by a special committee of that committee, and, after taking months to consider and perfect it, the bill was submitted to the House.

Now, I have said before that I was not tenacious in regard to whether this bill No. 160 or bill No. 375 passed, therefore I have been careful and guarded in saying anything in regard to the merits of either bill. I have kept my seat and have not introduced any opposition to either one of the bills. But it does strike my mind that gentlemen who were in favor of bill No. 375, and proclaimed they were not tenacious about that bill passing, have shown a degree of spirit which has satisfied me that there was at least some tenaciousness as to which bill should pass.

Now, if gentlemen are honest in their convictions, I appeal to them to withdraw that point of opposition.

Mr. MEYERS. Does the gentleman refer to me as in opposition to that bill?

Mr. WADELL. I do, and I think from the remarks the gentleman has made, he was tenacious that bill No. 375 should pass.

Mr. MOREARY. Does the gentleman refer to me as in opposition to the bill?

Mr. WADELL. No, sir, I do not refer to the gentleman from Erie. I do not think the suggestion of the gentleman from Erie ought to warrant the motion that we go into committee of the whole and strike out bill No. 160 and insert bill No. 375. The suggestions of the gentleman from Erie were proper, and I have no fault to find with them, and I should have no fault to find with the motion of the gentleman from Northampton if he had not suggested at first that he was not tenacious as to which bill passed.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I am sorry that the remarks of the gentleman and the tenor of his arguments seem to indicate that I was opposed to the principle of the law contained in either of these bills. He knows better than that. I am in favor of a law of this kind.

Mr. WADELL. Mr. Speaker, I did not say that the gentleman was opposed to the passage of a bill of this kind; I only said that his course indicated that he was tenacious about bill No. 375, and that he had a pride in having that bill passed instead of bill No. 160.

I am satisfied that he is in favor of a change in the law of evidence.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I do not know, then, why the gentleman should direct his remarks to me when replying to the gentleman from Montour [Mr. CHALFANT], who demanded the defeat of this bill. He might have thought that I was a little tenacious on making my motion to go into committee of the whole. But I repeat that I did not do it from any opposition to the bill, but to convince myself and other members that the House was fully satisfied with their previous action on the bill. I am now perfectly convinced, and shall vote hand in hand with the gentleman from Chester, and do everything that I can to ensure the passage of this bill.

Mr. DEISE. Mr. Speaker, I have simply one word to say upon this question. While it always procures me a great deal of pleasure to listen to the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADELL], I consider that his remarks are, perhaps, misunderstood.

I intend to vote against this bill, and I intend to do so without saying anything upon the question; for the simple reason that the more we attempt to fix up the laws of evidence, instead of simply fixing them, the more we get into difficulty; and I want the House to understand that, although an attorney by profession, I am opposed to the passage of this law. I believe it will open up a system of litigation and a system of reckless swearing that will be injurious to the profession and to the entire people outside. It will be the means of increasing litigation; and I, therefore, intend to vote against this bill, or any other of a similar character.

I admit that if you leave the matter in the hands of attorneys, you will have a pretty mess before you get through, as has already been witnessed upon this floor. Our laws are good enough; all we need is to get good paying clients and good laws, and we will get along. The further we get away from the old land marks, the further we get from security. I say this bill, and all similar innovations, should be voted down.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I had not intended to say a word upon this bill, but, after the remarks of my friend from Clinton [Mr. DEISE], I cannot permit a vote to be taken without expressing a hope that the House will adopt the bill.

I think that all the remarks made, as to the way this bill has been amended and the attempts to amend it, are, to say the least, of no force. We have amended this bill just as we have amended all bills that come before us, that may not exactly coincide with the views of the House. Every amendment proposed has been a plain and simple one that any person, upon hearing it read, it seems to me, ought to have understood it.

The first amendment was apparently to make it apply to civil cases, without employing the numerous words used in the original bill; afterwards the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] introduced the word "civil," which seemed to make several lines of the bill unnecessary, and made the bill plainer than it was before. I can, therefore, see no possible propriety in this reference to the manner in which the bill has been amended.

Then, as to the statement of the gentleman from Clinton, that our laws are well enough as they are, I would ask, if that is so, what is the Legislature of Pennsylvania for? I suppose we come here for the purpose of inquiring into the defects of the law and endeavoring to amend them if we could. That is our business here.

This bill has been discussed and agitated and talked about for two sessions, more or less. It has been before two Judiciary Committees of this House and has received their attention, and has received the attention of the House; and it has now been perfected and amended to meet the demands of the people for progress in this respect; and it has arrived at that point where the vote of this House, so far as we are concerned, will make it the law of the State; and I hope we will now proceed to give it the finishing touch.

I assert that the people of Pennsylvania demand this law, and they are astonished that we did not give it to them a year ago.

I believe that copies of this law, as stated by the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADELL], went into every county in this State. Although not then a member of that Judiciary Committee, I sent them myself, as a representative, desiring to ascertain the will of the people, into a very large number of counties, and from every one that I received a reply the response was that the people wanted such a law. No gentleman has produced a single response to this bill except in its favor, and I infer from this that it is more acceptable to the people and more demanded by them than any other public bill which has been before the people since the first of January. It is unanimous with both the people and the profession, and there is not a judge who has expressed his opinion who has not been in favor of it. All the people are in its favor, and why should it not pass and pass now?

Mr. CHALFANT. Mr. Speaker, unlike the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN], I have just understood that the bill was sent to the bar of Northumberland county, and the most able mind of that bar, a member of the Republican party, and made their candidate for the Supreme bench, was decidedly opposed to it. I can say that the presiding judge of our judicial district is decidedly opposed to the bill, and I say that in reply to the remark that the legal mind of the State, are unanimously in favor of it, I merely speak for my own judicial district, for that is the proper one I should speak of. But I suppose if I was to inquire I would find that such would be the case in many other sections of the State. I am totally opposed to the bill, and I say this candidly in reply to the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WANDEL]. Besides that the bill has been amended so as not to apply to criminal proceedings, and that provision has not been sent to the people for their opinion.

Mr. WEBB. Mr. Speaker, I would just like to say, in reply to the gentleman from Meadour [Mr. CHALFANT], that the present judge of his district, Judge Elwood, wrote a very strong letter a year ago, a member of this House [Mr. Osterhout] in favor of this bill.

Mr. CHALFANT. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman does not understand the matter in our county. Judge Jordau is the president judge of our judicial district—that Judge Elwood's opinion is, I do not know.

The bill was read as amended as follows: An Act relating to the law of evidence.

SECTION 1. *Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That on the trial of any issue joined, or of any matter or question, or in any inquiry arising in any suit, action or other civil proceeding in any court of justice in this Commonwealth, or before any person having, by law or by consent of parties, authority to hear, receive and examine evidence to parties thereto; and the persons in whose behalf any such action or other proceeding may be brought or defended, and any and all persons interested in the same, shall, except as hereinafter excepted, be competent to give evidence, in voce, on behalf of either or any of the parties to the said action or other proceeding, and by deposition in questions where, by the practice of the court, the evidence on such question is required to be made by deposition: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall render any husband competent to give evidence for or against his wife, or any wife competent to give evidence for or against her husband; nor shall any husband be competent to disclose any communication made to him by his wife during the marriage, nor shall any wife be competent to disclose any communication made to her by her husband during the marriage: And provided further, That if either of the parties to the original cause, or owners of the subject matter of the action, shall have died, either before or after suit brought,* whereby he, she, or they, who prosecute or defend the same, do so as legal representatives of such deceased owner, the rules of evidence shall not be affected by this act, but remain as heretofore.

SEC. 2. The testimony of the parties to any civil action or proceeding, authorized to testify by the provisions of the act of the twenty-seventh of March, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, shall not be conclusive, but the party calling for such examination may rebut it by other testimony.

SEC. 3. That the act entitled An act relative to the admission of parties to judicial proceedings as witnesses in certain cases, approved the twenty-seventh day of March, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, be and the same is hereby repealed.

On the question,
Shall the bill pass?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. CHALFANT and Mr. MEYERS, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Barrington, Boyd, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Collins, Craig, Davis, Day, Dellavere, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Gregory, Harbison, Hood, Jones, Josephs, Kennebec, Kimball, Kinsler, Leach, Leach, Long, McCreary, McKeen, McPherrin, Maish, Mann, Markley, Marks, Meching, Meyers, Peters, Phelan, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Roath, Robinson, Rouch, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Wright and Glass, Speaker—65.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyle, Breen, Brown, Calvin, Chalfant, Deise, Goff, Harner, Headman, Humphrey, Hunt, Jenks, Kline, Knox, Linton, McEman, M'Henry, Rhoads, Tharp, Woodcock and Whelan—21.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the bill

Passed finally.

House bill No. 188, being next in order, was taken up.

The bill was on second reading.

The bill reads as follows:

AN ACT to extend to plank roads the provisions of the eighth and ninth sections of the act, approved April nineteenth, one thousand eight hundred forty-four, entitled An act concerning certain State and turnpike roads.

SECTION 1. *Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the provisions of the eighth and ninth sections of an act, approved April nineteenth, one thousand eight hundred and forty-four, entitled An act concerning certain State and turnpike roads, be, and the same are hereby, extended to plank roads: Provided, That whenever the charter of any turnpike or plank road company has been, or shall be, repealed, it shall not be necessary for supervisors of townships to keep an account of the expenses incurred upon the turnpike or plank road of such company.*

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill?

It was agreed to.
The title was read and

Agreed to.
The rules were suspended, the bill was read the third time by its title, and

Passed finally.
The House went into committee of the whole on House bill No. 248, Mr. ADAMS in the chair.

The bill was read as follows:

AN ACT for the relief of wives and children deserted by their husbands and fathers within this Commonwealth.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That in addition to the remedies now provided by law, if any husband or father, being within the limits of this Commonwealth, has, or hereafter shall, separate himself from his wife or from his children, or from wife and children, without reasonable cause, or shall neglect to maintain his wife or children, it shall be lawful for any alderman, justice of the peace, or magistrate of this Commonwealth, upon information made before him under oath or affirmation by his wife or children, or either of them, or by any other person or persons, to issue his warrant to the sheriff, or to any constable, for the arrest of the person against whom the information shall be made as aforesaid, and bind him over, with one sufficient surety, to appear at the next court of quarter sessions, there to answer the said charge of desertion.

SEC. 2. The warrant aforesaid shall be returned to the next court of quarter sessions, when it shall be lawful for said court, after hearing, to order the person against whom complaint has been made, to give sufficient ability to pay such sum as said court shall think reasonable and proper for the comfortable support and maintenance of the said wife or children, or both, not exceeding one hundred dollars per month, and to commit such person to the county jail, there to remain until he comply with such order or give security, by one or more sureties, to the Commonwealth, and in such sum as the court shall direct for the compliance therewith.

SEC. 3. That the cost of all proceeding by virtue of this act shall be the same as are now allowed by law in cases of surety of the peace, and in such manner, and proceedings shall be in the name of the Commonwealth, and that any wife so deserted shall be a competent witness on the part of the Commonwealth.

SEC. 4. That should any such person abscond, remove, or be found in any other county of the Commonwealth than the one in which said warrant issued, he may be backed thereon by the said warrant, being backed by any alderman or justice of the peace of the county in which such person may be found, as is now provided for backing warrants by the third section of the act of the thirty-first of March, one thousand eight hundred and sixty.

The first section was

Agreed to.

Mr. ROATH. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend in the second section, by inserting, after the word "aforesaid," in the first line, the words "information and proceedings therein."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend by adding, at the end of the second section, the following proviso:

Provided, That nothing in this act shall deprive any person of his right to be discharged, under the provisions of the insolvent law of this Commonwealth.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I hope that proviso will not be adopted. If it is adopted it will prevent the court from making persons comply with its decree. The benefits of the insolvent laws are never given in such cases, and why should they be in this one? If it bill, I suppose every person feels that if a man is able to labor and support himself, he should support his wife and children; but, under this proviso, if he chooses to take advantage of the insolvent laws, then the whole object of this section is defeated. It is making an exception in the case of a man who abandons his family, and providing that in such cases the decree of the court shall not apply.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Chairman, as the law now stands, if a man has property the courts can enforce the use of a certain part of it for the maintenance of his family. It strikes me that this section, unless amended, would be exceedingly harsh and place a man entirely at the mercy of some villain, who could put him in jail and keep him there. I think this law ought to come under the general provisions of the insolvent law, so that from the mere caprice of some worthless woman, a man should not be obliged to lie in jail, where he will be of no use to anybody and an expense to the county.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Chairman, I hope that proviso will not be adopted. By reading the section it will be found that sufficient provision is made for the discharge of any person who ought to be discharged. The court have it in their power to make such an order as will secure the ends of justice. It is, therefore, unnecessary to attach any such amendment.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Chairman, the effect of the second section in this act, as I understand it, is simply to authorize the courts of this Commonwealth, after they have made a decree, and the party against whom they have made the decree refuses to comply, to enforce that decree by imprisonment. I hope this Legislature will not undertake to interfere with a court that has made a decree, when it attempts to enforce that decree by an attachment for contempt, by allowing the party to get out by applying the benefits of the insolvent law. Such a course of proceeding is not known now in the statute books. These parties come before the courts, and their case is heard, and if, after the hearing, the court is satisfied he should protect and maintain his wife and children, they order him to do so, and to pay so much for their maintenance; and if the party refuses to obey the order of the court, they may punish him by imprisonment. They can enforce their order, because he is in contempt of court, and he can only relieve himself by obeying the decree of the court. If the court find that his circumstances will not warrant a decree, they make no decree. I, therefore, hope this Legislature will not undertake to say that a court cannot enforce their decree, and enable a party to get out in this way.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Chairman, the Legislature of Pennsylvania has already said, that where a man has been convicted of an offense, and has received the sentence of the court, and has been sent to prison, he may be discharged in certain cases under the insolvent law; that is much beyond the case of a mere decree which the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] has put. It might be possible that in some instances a court might make a decree and send him to jail, and he might remain there until the end of time. His hands would be tied, and he would be obliged to lie in prison at the expense of the county. I think the proviso is a proper one and it ought to be inserted.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the proviso? It was

Not agreed to.

Mr. ROATH. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend in the seventh line by striking out the word "jail," and inserting the word "prison."

The motion was

Agreed to.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The third section was read.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend the fourth line by striking out the words, "any wife so deserted," and inserting the words "either party."

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, one of the parties in that case is the Commonwealth.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Chairman, that is permitting a criminal to be a witness in his own defense, for I hold, sir, that a man who will take a woman from her home and then desert her, as contemplated in this act, is a criminal in the very highest sense. I will vote for such a one not being a witness, for were he a witness I would not believe him under oath; that is, if he deserts his wife under the circumstances contemplated by this act. I am in favor of making men, when they take to themselves wives, stand by these women and protect them and the children they bear.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Chairman, I do not understand this to be a criminal proceeding. This is, to the contemplation of the law, a civil proceeding before the court, and it is for the consideration of the court entirely. It seems to me that we have made one step further this morning in reference to the law of evidence, and that this amendment would be in proper harmony with that step we have taken.

I would not like to have, my friend from Jefferson [Mr. JENKS] a judge in any case in which I was concerned, if he was inclined to pre-judge every case, and suppose that every case that came up before him necessarily came under the provision of this act.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that the word "wife" ought not to be struck out. I would suggest that the words "provided that the husband shall also be a competent witness" be added to the end of the section.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Chairman, I do not know whether that is what the gentleman from Lycoming [Mr. WINGARD] intended or not, but that would seem to qualify the right of the wife being a witness, and that, should the husband refuse to be a witness, would prevent the wife from being a witness on the part of the Commonwealth. I have no objection to have all parties heard, and that is the custom in our court. The judge hears all parties and then uses his own discretion. I would suggest that the word "provided" be struck out and make the amendment read, "and that the husband shall also be a competent witness."

Mr. WINGARD. That is my desire, and I accept the suggestion.

Mr. ROATH. I hope the amendment will not pass. Both parties are generally heard in these cases. Such an amendment as that will destroy the features of the whole bill.

Mr. MCCREARY. Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that we are assuming here, at once, that the fault is always on the part of the husband. There is not a member, probably, who cannot call to mind cases where the fault is on the other side; but the woman can come up and testify and the husband must stand back and keep his mouth shut and say nothing. If we amend this amendment so as to allow both parties to make their statement, but the gentleman from Jefferson [Mr. JENKS] and others seem to assume that the husband is always to blame, and therefore has no right to say anything. I do say that both parties ought to make their statement, and if the statements are corroborated by the evidence, then justice will be done. It is really a simpler matter.

Mr. WADDELL. There is another matter. This is a proceeding before a judge and not before a jury. He hears the testimony and weighs the whole testimony. It is not like going before a jury of twelve men, but you go before a judge, who is better able to weigh and discriminate than a jury, and in nine cases out of ten, the courts will prefer, I think, hearing the testimony on both sides. It is not like opening up the door before a jury. Courts will exercise their own discretion, and it is a matter entirely for their discretion.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

Section four was read and

Agreed to.

The Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. ADAIRE, chairman of the committee of the whole, reported the bill with amendments.

The first section was read and Agreed to.

The second section was read.

The question was on the section.

The hour of one o'clock having arrived, the SPEAKER adjourned the House until three o'clock this afternoon.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The House met at 3 o'clock.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the further consideration of House bill No. 104, entitled An act to provide for the payment of gratuities and annuities to the soldiers of the war of 1812, and to their widows, and to repeal the present laws on that subject.

When the bill was last considered,

Mr. MANN offered the following amendment:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

"That hereafter all applications for gratuity and annuities on account of services rendered as a soldier of the war of one thousand eight hundred and twelve, or as the widow of such a soldier, shall be made to the Auditor General, who shall require the applicant to make an affidavit that he served at least two months as a soldier in said war beyond the limits of the State of Pennsylvania; that he was at the time, and now is, a citizen of Pennsylvania; that he voluntarily enlisted in a State organization, raised for the defense of the country; that during the term of his enlistment he did not desert from his company or regiment, but retired from the service honorably discharged; that he or she is in destitute circumstances, and that his or her earnings and income, from all sources, is not sufficient for his or her proper maintenance and comfort, and that he or she has no child, or children, living, who are in proper circumstances to support him or her; and in case the applicant is the widow of a soldier, the Auditor General shall further require, by affidavit of the applicant, that she was the wife of said soldier at the time of the services rendered, and lived with him as such until his death, but retired from the service honorably discharged; that he or she is now living in the State of Pennsylvania."

SEC. 2. That the Auditor General is authorized and required to examine these applications as to the services, and if he shall be satisfied, either from the affidavit, the records of the Auditor General's office, the records of the War Department at Washington, or such other testimony that he may require, that the services were rendered, he shall so certify to an associate judge of the city or county in which the applicant lives, and also give notice to the applicant that he shall cause to appear before said judge at least two credible and disinterested witnesses from his or her own neighborhood.

Sec. 3. That the said judge authorized and required to examine such witnesses, or such other witnesses he may think proper, as to the truth or falsity of the affidavit of the applicant, except as to the services, and after a full examination shall certify to the Auditor General whether or not the affidavit of the applicant has been fully sustained by certain witnesses, naming them.

Sec. 4. The Auditor General, upon receiving such certificate from a judge sustaining affidavit, is authorized and required to certify to the State Treasurer that the applicant therein named is entitled to the provisions of this act, and who shall thereupon cause to be paid to the applicant, by his city or county treasurer, out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, a gratuity of forty dollars, excepting to them who have already received the same, and thereafter an annuity of forty dollars, commencing on the first day of January preceding the application, which shall be paid semi-annually on the first day of January and the first day of July in each year, and shall continue during the natural life of said applicant.

Sec. 5. Should any person or persons swear falsely in regard to the facts required to be established by this act, he, she or they shall be guilty of perjury, and liable to prosecution the same as if the perjury had been committed in a legal proceeding.

Sec. 6. The Auditor General is hereby authorized to appoint one clerk, at a salary not to exceed fourteen hundred dollars per annum, to assist him in carrying out the provisions of this act.

Sec. 7. That the city or county treasurer shall receive one per centum upon the amount paid out under the provisions of this act for their services.

Sec. 8. That the act of the thirtieth day of March, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, entitled An act to provide for the payment of gratuities and annuities to the soldiers of the war of one thousand eight hundred and twelve, and to their widows, and all special laws granting annuities to soldiers of the war of one thousand eight hundred and twelve, or their widows, be, and the same are hereby, repealed.

Mr. STUMBAUGH moved to amend in the fifth line of the first section, by striking out the words "two months," and inserting in lieu thereof the words "twenty days."

The question was on the amendment of Mr. STUMBAUGH.

The amendment was agreed to.

The question recurring on the amendment of Mr. MANN.

Mr. ESPY moved to amend in the fifteenth and sixteenth lines, by striking out all after the word "soldier" in the fifteenth line up to and including the word "rendered" in the sixteenth line.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, it strikes me that this amendment ought to prevail in this House. There were of course many men soldiers in the war of 1812 who were at the time single men, and have married since, and their widows are now in necessitous circumstances. If we leave the bill as it now stands it will exclude them from its provisions.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I cannot see any particular merit in that a woman could acquire by having become the wife of a soldier when the war was all over. If she was his wife during the war, she suffered privations during the war thereby, and it would then, certainly, be a meritorious case. But if she was a single woman at the time of the war and afterwards became his wife—it may be several years after—I cannot see any claim that she would acquire by that act.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, it strikes me that a woman is not married at the time of the war it ought not to militate against his widow. I want this thing as though it naturally belonged to him, and at his death would go to his widow. Is she a widow of a soldier of the war of 1812 and did she live with him at the time of his death? I think should be the only questions in respect to that, without inquiring whether they were married or not during the war.

Mr. CHASE. Mr. Speaker, in recruiting men for the service a man is not asked whether he is married, or whether he is going to be married, or whether he is going to remain single during life. In paying these annuities and gratuities I think we should take the same ground. I, therefore, hope the amendment will prevail in this House.

Mr. HEADMAN. Mr. Speaker, there were a great many persons in the war of 1812 who were minors at the time—probably eighteen or twenty years of age, and perhaps not married until several years after the war. Unless this amendment is agreed to the widows of these men are excluded from the provision of this bill. I see no reason why they should be excluded, and therefore I hope the amendment will not be agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment of Mr. ESPY?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. HEADMAN and STUMBAUGH, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. A. daire, Armstrong, Boyle, Brennan, Brown, Calvin, Cameron, Chalfant, Chase, Craig, Davis, Day, Deise, Donohugh, Espy, Fogel, Freeborn, Gallagher, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Humphrey, Jenks, Jones, Joseph, Kennedy, Koros, Kimmel, Kingston, Leach, Linton, Loeg, McCann, M'Creary, M'Kea, M'Pherrin, Maish, Markley, Meclhing, Meily, Peters, Phelan, Pillow, Roth, Robinson, Ross, Sharples, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Taarp, Webb, Weller, Westbrook, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Seaver—60.

NAYS—Messrs. Ewing, Gordon, Mann, Satterthwait, Wingard and Woodward—6.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The question recurring on the amendment as amended.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by adding after the word "Pennsylvania," in the sixth line, the words "or within the limits of the county of Erie." I would state that I offer this amendment to cover troops who were called there and stationed there, and if anybody is to be paid, those who served there in the battles of the lake should be paid.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, the county of Erie, I believe, is the only county in the State in which any actual service was done during the war. From the harbor of Erie Perry's fleet was sent out, and it is the place to which it returned. The troops stationed there were kept on duty all the time to protect the fleet while building. I know of a number of companies that came from the centre of the State, and did service there, that would be cut off by this amendment.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I think the amendment is objectionable in this view. The object of the original substitute offered by the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] is to prevent the payment of all persons who were not in active service. This amendment would include the soldiers who entered the service in Erie county, whether they had seen actual service or not in Erie county, our outside the State.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, it was a point the troops were assembled, and the amendment would no more benefit those of Erie county than others.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, it would place the citizens of Erie county who entered the service, and saw no actual service, if they had been mustered in for twenty days, in a position by which they would be entitled to the annuities and gratuities under this bill, while those in other counties would not.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, those persons who were called out from Erie county all did serve.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I presume the gentleman does not know that. There were, doubtless, a great many persons who were enrolled and talked of entering the service, and who are no more entitled to the benefits of this bill than many other persons in other parts of the State who never saw any service.

Mr. HEADMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to this whole bill, as I believe it will do great injustice to the persons whom it is intended to relieve.

The question now before the House is, are we to repeal a law which was enacted for the purpose of relieving the wants or distresses of the old soldiers of the war of 1812, and their widows; or are we to substitute a new law whereby they will receive nothing to alleviate their sufferings?

The law asked to be repealed is one that was passed last winter by, I believe, the unanimous vote of the Legislature at that time. The object of that law was to save the State the expense of legislating on each application, and to give a gratuity of forty dollars and a pension of the same amount to each soldier of the war of 1812 having served two months, or to their widows in necessitous circumstances. These people have to make applications according to law, to get this money, and the law is very stringent. The Auditor General has everything in his favor, so that the State cannot be defrauded. I will read a portion of the law:

AN ACT to provide for the payment of gratuities and annuities to the soldiers of the war of one thousand eight hundred and twelve, and to their widows.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That hereafter all applicants for gratuities, annuities, or pensions, on account of services rendered as a soldier in the war of one thousand eight hundred and twelve, or as the widow of such soldier, shall be made to the Auditor General, who shall require the applicant to make an affidavit that he served, at least two months, as a soldier in said war, or that he was wounded or otherwise disabled, while in said service; that he was at the time, and now is, a citizen of Pennsylvania, and that he is, at the time of making application, in necessitous circumstances; the Auditor General shall also require additional proof, by one disinterested and credible witness, or by such other evidence as may be satisfactory to the Auditor General, that the facts set forth in the affidavit of the applicant are true and correct, and that the witness has no pecuniary interest in the prosecution of the claim; such proof being made, to the satisfaction of the Auditor General, he is hereby authorized and required to so certify to the State Treasurer, who thereupon may to any person, in his order, out of any moneys in the treasury, not otherwise appropriated, a gratuity of forty dollars, and thereafter an annuity of forty dollars, commencing on the first day of January preceding the said application; which annuity shall be paid semi-annually, on the first day of January and the first day of July, in each year, and shall continue during the natural life of said applicant.

Sec. 2. That in case the applicant is a widow of a soldier, the Auditor General shall require, before the granting of the said application, to the facts set forth in her claim, proof, by one credible witness, that he, or she, is personally acquainted with her, and that the witness knew her deceased husband, and that the witness knew that he did serve, at least two months, as a soldier, in the war of one thousand eight hundred and twelve, or that he was killed, wounded, or otherwise disabled, whilst in said service; that the applicant was his wife, and lived with him, as such, until his death; that she is now a widow, and in necessitous circumstances, or such other evidence as may be satisfactory to the Auditor General; when such proof is furnished, the Auditor General shall certify, to the State Treasurer, that the applicant is entitled to the benefits of the provisions of the first section of this act; Provided, however, That should said widow again marry, after making the application, the annuity shall thereafter cease.

Sec. 3. Should any person, or persons, swear falsely in regard to the facts, required to be established by this act, he, she, or they, shall be guilty of perjury, or libel, or prosecution, the same as if the perjury had been committed in a legal proceeding.

Is not that sufficient to protect the State Treasury? It is truly said that the oath is an iron-clad one.

But what are the arguments for the repeal of this law? The first is, that these poor people are the prey of sharks—that is, pension agents; and that they charge or take one-fifth of the whole amount to procure it. I cannot tell, in all cases, what is charged, but I do know some five or six cases where the charge was but five dollars, and though it was reasonable enough. That is the only charge they are subject to, and they appear satisfied with it. To get a separate law for each and every person so applying, passed by the Legislature, would not only subject them to at least that expense, but it would cost the State, for the time of legislating on these applications, thousands of dollars. The other objection to the bill is, that there are some receiving this bounty who are not entitled to it. Well, suppose they are not, and I have no doubt but it is so in some cases. In all things we have to take the evil with the good, and my views are, where the good is greater than the evil, to let the good prevail. It is further said that this law is taken advantage of. Probably it is; but, sir, Sodom and Gomorrah were offered to be saved if there were but ten righteous men in it. Now, why not save this bill, if there are but ten just and honorable applicants receiving relief from its provisions?

The State Treasurer, in a report so (as I have understood), says, that the entire revenue of the State, for the next forty years, will be required for the relief of these soldiers. What sane man could believe such a thing as that? Why, sir, five-sixths of these people living to-day are beyond seventy-five years of age. Now add forty years to that and you have one hundred and fifteen years. How many will be alive at that age to take the entire revenue of the State? The idea is preposterous. The new bill proposes to abolish the sharks as they are called. And, sir, in my opinion, this bill substitutes a winkle to receive a salary from the State treasury of fourteen hundred dollars per year. Therefore, instead of curtailing the expense to the State, it would be adding to it, and still not abolish the sharks. Of the one hundred and sixty thousand dollars expended last year, one hundred and twelve thousand dollars were for gratuities, which will never be required again by the two thousand eight hundred persons who have already received it. The additional applicants, I can safely venture to predict, will be very small, and in a few short years all of them will have found their homes in the silent city of the dead.

I believe I have shown pretty clearly that there will be no danger of the entire revenue of the State being exhausted during the next forty years, and that neither the repeal of the old act, or the passage of the new one, will abolish the offices of pension agents.

I will, therefore, close with that, and now appeal to the generosity of this House, in behalf of the old, gray-headed men and women entitled to this little relief from the State. I look upon it as an acknowledgment on the part of the people (through their representatives), that they appreciate true worth, and I think if this question was left to the people it would receive their almost unanimous vote. I have yet to see the first taxpayer that wishes the old act repealed; on the contrary, all I those I have spoken to on the subject say it would be an outrage.

These people become more sensitive the older they grow, and to stop this pension on those that are now receiving it, would be to hurry them to their graves. They feel as if it were an act of Providence ministering for their relief; and let me tell all of you, gentlemen, here-to-day, the soldiers of the late war are watching you with an eagle eye; they are looking to see who are the soldiers' friends. They think if the soldiers of 1812 are set aside, they, too, will share the same fate when they grow old. It is said that the soldiers of 1812 did no service. Now, let us look at this point, and ascertain the cause, and what induced these men to spring to arms. Our flag was trampled upon by an insolent foe. Our friends, brothers and neighbors were seized and taken from the decks of vessels bearing our flag, on the high seas. Yes, sir! not only on the high seas, but even in our harbors. The honor and dignity of our country and flag were scoffed at. England claimed to be mistress of the seas. Then it was, for the love of country and our country's honor, that the intrepid Lawrence nailed his flag to the mast, and cried out with his dying words, "Don't give up the ship!" Then it was, by his bravery, that Stewart gained the sobriquet of "Old Ironsides." Look at the valiant Decatur—the immortal Perry who said, "We have met the enemy, and they are ours." See Scott, Jackson, Johnson, and all those brave men of the army, who sacrificed their lives.

And now, Mr. Speaker, let me say to this House, that if it had not been for the very men who are at our doors praying for us not to take from them, in their declining years, the small pittance we have granted them, these brilliant victories would never have been achieved, and this country to-day would have been under British rule.

How can you turn a deaf ear and deny them this little boon? England, not satisfied with being the mistress of the seas, wanted to rule the land. Cast your eyes down the Chesapeake and see the enemy landed on our shores, and mark their progress. Towns were laid waste, villages and hamlets were sacked and burned. Their course was like the Monsoon of the desert; and, sir, it was only by the sacrifice of two noble lives, on the shores of this country, that the Koss was prevented from taking Baltimore. No doubt you all remember his words—"Tomorrow I will take my dinner in Baltimore or in h—!" The same spirit actuated those young men actuated these old pensioners of to-day at that time. Was there ever anything in ancient or modern history to equal the act of those two noble beardless youths of Maryland? They knew their fate whether they succeeded or not. Their bodies were riddled by British bullets and dragged in the dust. The sacrifice of their lives ended the war in that quarter. Can you forget that it was at this time that a British man-of-war was riding at anchor almost within range of the guns of Fort M'Henry, with a number of American soldiers on board as prisoners? It was on board this ship that Francis Key strained his eyes in the direction of the fort to see whether the old flag still waved over it, and was inspired with the poet's fire, and composed the song—which sends the heart's blood thrilling through every patriot's veins—the "Star Spangled Banner." That good old song has since become the property of the nation, and will be sung by millions of American freemen, yet unborn.

But the war was renewed with greater vigor in another section. Look Southward and see what the enemy was doing there—the men of the West, under Gen. Jackson, clothed in their native garb of deer skins, hunting shirts, leggings and moccasins, with their unerring rifles grasped, went forth determined to do or die. No railroad or steamboat transportation then. They had no Government clothing or rations; they marched over a thousand miles through a wild and almost unknown country, and fought the battle of New Orleans. Six thousand (6,000) of our country's enemies bit the dust. This was the greatest victory every yet achieved. That ended the war in that direction, and yet it is said these old soldiers of 1812 did nothing.

I will now relate a little incident that occurred a few days since. I met an old man of an adjoining county, whose gray hairs and weather-beaten countenance attracted my attention. In speaking of this bill, he said: "I was mustered into service one day, and started off the next. It was in the winter season, and we were compelled, by forced marches, to travel a dreary wilderness, and at night slept on the ground, without blankets or any other covering except the broad canopy of heaven. Our route was toward the lakes. We had no uniform or clothing furnished by the Government, and at one time we were four days without rations. We had several skirmishes, and wound up with the battle of Lundy's Lane. All this occurred within the short period of two months.—When we came home our clothes were in rags, and we had no shoes to our feet. We were then paid six dollars by the State, and the same amount by the general Government for the two months' service."

I must confess I never in my life had such feelings as when this old man took my hand in both of his and related to me what he had went through at that time, and what good the little relief he received from the State was now doing him, and then asked me to do what I could to prevent the repeal of this law. I thought then of the lines I was taught in my boyhood days:

"Pity the sorrows of a poor old man Whose trembling limbs have borne him to your door,
Whose days are dwindled to the shortest span,
Oh, give relief and heaven will bless your store."

You will bear in mind these men received no bounty. The volunteers provided their own uniforms, the officers their side-arms, and the militia their clothing at their own expense. I now entreat you, gentlemen, to not let this law be repealed. Let it remain as it is; it will not be long that these old men and women will need it. Let me say that you will be more than repaid for this act, if you should meet one of these old patriots, and he would recognize you as having voted against the repeal of this bill, he would grasp you by the hand, lift his eyes to Heaven, and utter that short but fervent prayer—"God bless you."

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman what book he quoted from when he referred to Sodom and Gomorrah?

Mr. HEADMAN. Not from "Helper."

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that this is a pretty long speech to make on the amendment I have offered. The amendment I offered is to include the soldiers of the county of Erie in the provisions of this bill. I supposed that was the subject under consideration; and I cannot see what has induced the gentleman to make this long speech, except it is from the prickings of conscience for having opposed the soldiers for years past so constantly and persistently, that he now wants to relieve himself by speaking in their favor.

I cannot see the connection between his speech and this amendment; and that is, I conceive, the only question now before the House. I think there is some force in the objection made by the gentleman from Fayette (Mr. BOYLE) to this amendment, yet I do not know very well how to provide for the payment of certain meritorious cases, without the introduction of this amendment, because, in Erie county was the point of danger at that time, and the soldiers were called there, and were in service there; and it did seem to me as though, if we are going to pay the soldiers of the war of 1812, we ought to pay those who had gone into the service there, and had been at the point of danger. It was for that reason I offered the amendment.

While upon this subject, I wish to say that there has been a great deal of unnecessary talk about not remunerating the soldiers of the war of 1812. Who, on this floor, has said a word against paying them? Who has the right to say that this bill is offered with the view of preventing them being paid? The very purpose of this substitute is to secure to the soldiers of the war of 1812 this gratuity and annuity; and who is so far fetched for gentlemen to stand upon this floor and argue, because we are for amending the laws, that we seek to deprive the soldiers of their annuity. I maintain that any person who says this bill is an attempt to deprive the soldiers of the war of 1812 of their just dues, who claim to see that in it is using sophistry, and is attempting to make political capital; and that is the object of this long speech, and nothing else—because there is nothing in the bill, from beginning to end, that warrants any such conclusions. It is based upon the idea that those who performed service shall be paid; but those who did not shall not receive anything. It does seek to guard the treasury against the frauds that have been notoriously committed under the act of last year. The gentleman conceded that, and that is all this amendment seeks to do, to guard the treasury against the improper withdrawing from the funds. I cannot conceive of a more imperative duty resting upon us. It is very easy to open the treasury of the State; but it is a very difficult matter to close it when it is once open. It is an easy matter to open it, so that the hands of various individuals can reach in there and withdraw from it the hard earnings of the people, but when once open, it seems that it is almost impossible to guard it against even the improper subtraction of money. I am astonished that gentlemen who claim to be in favor of economy and the rights of the people, and admitting that, under this bill, great frauds were committed, yet refuse to do anything to close up these loop-holes, and to prevent a further commission of these frauds. I hope the rest of this discussion will treat this bill upon its merits. If we do so, we shall do the State a great service; and we will secure the gratuities and annuities to those who performed service in the war of 1812, beside preventing those who did not from drawing money from the treasury. But if we are to treat this in the spirit of demagogism, appealing to the prejudices of the people and suggesting ideas in it that do not even come to a much more difficult matter to amend as it ought to be, and to secure to meritorious cases their dues and withhold from others what they ought not to receive. I hope, therefore, the amendment which I have offered will be adopted, and if it needs any additional amendments they will be suggested and agreed to. I desire only that we shall frame this bill so that meritorious persons shall receive what they ought, and others who are not meritorious receive nothing.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I have no desire to make any political capital out of this bill—none whatever. I was friendly to the passage of the bill last year. I admit that it has been subject to very great abuses, and that something of this kind is needed. Some check is needed to be put upon the prosecution of claims of this character. Many of the provisions of the substitute before us are wholesome, and will effect the purpose desired. I think, however, the present amendment ought not to be adopted. I am further of the opinion that the words "beyond the limits of the State of Pennsylvania" ought to be stricken out. If a person at that time, entered the service, and saw this requisite term of service, he ought to be allowed this pension, though he did not cross the State line. The mere fact of his crossing the State line, and having seen service somewhere else, has no particular merit in it.

I trust this amendment will be voted down, and that we shall strike out these words I have indicated, so that we shall put all men who entered the service, and served for twenty days, upon an equality. If they served twenty days, let them have the gratuity and annuity, wherever the service was rendered.

Mr. MCCREARY. Mr. Speaker, I think if the words indicated by the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] are stricken out, that the real object of the bill is defeated. It throws open the treasury to the same class of persons that came last year. I understand the object is to cut off the cases that were not meritorious last year. If you allow every person who saw service this gratuity and annuity, then it opens up the whole thing as before. It is a well known fact that no service was done in the State, to be called service, except that of the border and on the lake. Several attempts were made to land there, and destroy the fleet, which were repulsed by the troops there, and when the fleet was crossing the bar into the lake, the troops were called out to protect it. From the announcement of the building of the fleet, early in the spring, until September, when the battle was fought, which reflected so much honor and glory on American arms, and which was fought about a week after the fleet left the harbor, the troops there were constantly in service.

Some troops were called there from Cumberland county, and perhaps from Fayette county, and from all over the State. They were in actual service there, many of them for at least six months, and they certainly ought to be paid for their services, if any are paid. But if you give this gratuity and annuity to the men throughout the State, who served in all twenty days, you grant it to many who were never called upon, and who never submitted to any hardships. This does not affect the people of Erie county any more than any other county. There are very few cases there, that I know of, that would come under this bill. Therefore, I say that the men who went from Dauphin county, from Sullivan county, and from other counties, and who served three or six months there ought to be remunerated, rather than the men who served only twenty days outside of the State.

The objection being on the amendment to the amendment,

It was

Agreed to.

The question recurring on the amendment, Mr. LINTON. I move to amend, by striking out in the twelfth and thirteenth lines, the words "and that he or she has no child or children living who are in proper circumstances to support him or her." The object of this bill, as I understand it, is to give gratuities and annuities to a similar amount to the soldiers of the war of 1812, who are in destitute circumstances. Of course, the amount that the State would be able to give, and which it proposes to give, will not be sufficient to support them. Forty dollars a year in these days, and perhaps at no time, would support a man. He will still require assistance from other sources. But it strikes me, it would be improper to deprive him of this aid, simply because he has some children living, who manifest their filial feelings by assisting him in his old age.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out the words "voluntarily enlisted," and the seventh line, and insert the word "served."

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I would suggest that the gentleman had better modify that amendment by merely inserting, after "enlisted," the words "and served." It may be possible that a man may have been drafted at that time. I am not positive, however.

Mr. BOYLE. Yes! it is possible—nearly everybody was drafted.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Then, Mr. Speaker, I appeal to the soldiers in this House, that they not permit this bill to be killed in that way.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, I think, perhaps, the wording of the section would include a class of persons whom it is not designed this amendment should apply to. For instance, men who were only in the army as wagon-masters.

Mr. BOYLE. The gentleman will see, by reading the remainder of the line, that he must have served as a soldier.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. CHASE. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out, in the fifth and sixth lines, the words, "beyond the limits of the State of Pennsylvania."

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, my objection that amendment is, that it would then only give the gratuity and annuity to those who served in Erie county. If the gentleman strikes out those words he ought to strike out the words "Erie county" also.

Mr. CHASE. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my amendment.

Mr. BOYLE. I renew it, and include the words "Erie county."

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I hope the amendment will not be adopted. We have already amended this bill so much that it will very soon be worse than the bill of last year. It will take more money out of the treasury, and cause more fraud, than the bill now in force. The bill of last year requires two months' service, and now we have got it down to twenty days. If, in addition to that, we allow everybody who got up a company in any county, and simply served twenty days, at home, doing nothing, to obtain this gratuity, we have made a far worse bill than we ever tried to correct. I heard a very intelligent gentleman from Lancaster county (I do not speak from my own knowledge, but I would be said) say that the soldiers of the county of the year of 1812, in that county, were never beyond the county lines, and never served in the sense in which we term it. But if this amendment is carried under this bill, they would be entitled to be paid; and it will increase the number to be paid very largely. They are now coming in at the rate of five to six per day. These men will increase with astonishing rapidity; and there will be more next year than last, unless we do something to check the frauds. This amendment will throw open the door, and it will be impossible to say within a hundred thousand dollars of how much will be taken from the treasury under this bill during the next year. The Auditor General reports now the filing of five or six applications per day. A thousand dollars per day are now asked for under the bill of last year. Make this amendment, and it will double the amount, and it will require two thousand dollars per day for the coming year to meet the provisions of this bill. Certainly the best thing we can do is to say that we are helpless, having passed a bill that throws open the door of the treasury to fraud, if we are unable to remedy the difficulty.

Mr. WADELL. Mr. Speaker, the action of this House, it strikes me, should be somewhat consistent. When this bill was under consideration, a few days ago, the gentleman from Franklin [Mr. STUMBAUGH] moved that the bill should be amended so as to reduce the time which a man was required to serve, before receiving the benefit of this act, to twenty days. The objection made was, that many men went into service and raised a company at some tavern or cross road, and spent twenty days there without going away from home. At the time, I called the attention of the House to this fact, and it was remedied by requiring that they should have served beyond the limits of the State. That seemed satisfactory to the House then, and probably that time, inasmuch as they had to serve beyond the limits of the State, was satisfactory. Now, it is proposed to strike out of the bill the point which was then made, and enable those who enlisted at the taverns and cross roads, and spent the twenty days there, to receive the benefits of this act. Is it consistent and right, and proper, after agreeing to an amendment, that they should have served beyond the limits of the State, to then turn around and ask that that very provision be stricken out? If this bill is to be shorn of the protection, as suggested by the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN], which it endeavors to throw around the treasury, then we had better keep the old bill, without subjecting the parties to making their applications over again.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADELL], I would say that I am not in favor of the amendment of the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE], simply because this House has fixed the time of service at twenty days, and I am willing to let the bill stand as amended by the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN], to include the county of Erie.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, I did not intend, sir, to intrude myself upon the patience of this House, in discussing this bill, although I must say that I could rather see this bill defeated, and let the old bill stand as it is, for the very good reason just thrown out by the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADELL]. The great majority, if not all the applications in the State, have already been made. The papers are already on file in the proper office. The claims are established, and whatever loss or inconvenience those parties making the claims may have been subjected to by the sharks, which are said to exist throughout the length and breadth of the State, has been made. Those claims have been established, and those persons can draw, without further trouble, what rightly belongs to them. So far as I am acquainted with the working of that law, and the character of the applicants under it, I believe it to be in the main right and just, although it has been stated upon this floor that from the county I have the honor, in part, to represent (the county of Lancaster), that nine-tenths of the soldiers who are applicants for this benefit, never went outside this country. I do not know of a man there, nor the widow of a man, who has made an application for this bounty, unless the soldier had served outside the county. I do not know a solitary case where the service had not been rendered outside of the county. I care not how responsible the gentleman may be who gave to the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] that information, I believe I know as much about the county of Lancaster as either of them. I stand here to-day to vindicate the character of the old soldiers of the war of 1812—my constituents of the county of Lancaster hold in my hand a list of thirteen companies, that were raised during the war of 1812 within the limits of the county, and every man of them went out into the adjoining State of Maryland. Whether they were in action there or not, I am not prepared to say. I know, at least, they showed their willingness to serve.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Is the ex-President included in that list?

Mr. ROATH. Not in that list. He was on a separate list, by himself, and he stood by himself.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, I stand here to vindicate the character of the parties claiming pensions in the county of Lancaster; and from the fact that I know their standing, and speaking for them, I oppose this bill altogether and hope it will be voted down, and that such claims as are already established in the proper office, by the parties claiming their due, will not have to again establish their claims; and that they will be kept out of the hands of these miserable sharks who are spread over all the land. If I were to venture my own opinion, it would be that this new bill has been gotten up in the interest of those very men, to give them another chance to feed upon that which does not belong to them, and which should go into the pockets of those who are worthy of receiving pensions from the State of Pennsylvania.

I hope the whole bill will be voted down, and that the law will remain as it was last year.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment of Mr. BOYLE?

It was

Not agreed to.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment:

"And if a soldier, that he was permanently disabled, either from wounds or sickness incurred in the said service; or, if a widow, that her husband was so disabled."

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, of course I know that that amendment will not be adopted. But I offer it for the purpose of putting myself on the record in relation to this matter. That is in accordance with my idea of what should be done in this matter. I am willing to go as far as any one in this House to assist those who have been disabled in the service of their country. I must confess that I am not boiling over with patriotism, like my friend from Bucks [Mr. HAN-

MAN]. At least, it does not run in that direction. But I will go as far as the gentleman from Bucks, or any other man in this House to serve or support those who have been disabled in the service of their country. But, notwithstanding Quaker as I am, I am one of those who believe it is no more than my duty, and the duty of every able-bodied man in this Commonwealth, when his services are required, to defend his country, to go forth and defend it. He is doing nothing more than his duty.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I merely want to state, if I am properly informed on the subject, that those who were permanently disabled were provided with pensions by the United States Government.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. I know that; but my opinion is that the pension is very insufficient. Now, I am willing to give them this additional gratuity of the State, and am also willing to give it to anybody else who was disabled in the service of his country. We have, in this State, thousands upon thousands of persons who have been permanently disabled in the service of their country, who actually need assistance from the State. Are we to overlook all those, and give this gratuity and annuity to men who have never seen an enemy? I take it from the highest authority that not one in twenty, if not one in a hundred, of those to whom this bill applies ever saw the face of the enemy. I consider it to be perfectly ridiculous—this whole thing.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Montgomery [Mr. SATTERTHWAIT] where he finds anything that would prohibit a disabled soldier of the war of 1812 from receiving the benefits of this act?

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, those are the ones I desire to benefit, and I wish to prevent every one else from receiving the benefit of the act. I am willing to put myself on that record.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I suppose if they were permanently disabled they would all be dead.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I do not know as that necessarily follows. They may have been disabled for a long time and recovered for all that I know.

The amendment was

Not agreed to.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out in the fourth and fifth lines the words "at least twenty days."

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I desire to be as liberal as to time as anybody in this House, but I think this amendment would make it a little more liberal than the Legislature ought to agree to. It seems to me that if the gentleman's amendment prevails a man who served one day outside the limits of the Commonwealth would be entitled to the benefits of the bill. I hope the amendment will not pass.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment of Mr. ARMSTRONG, it was

Not agreed to.

The question recurring on the amendment of Mr. MANN,

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend in the fourth line by striking out the word "he;" and inserting the words "said soldier."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend in the sixth line by inserting, after the word "Erie," the words "or that he was engaged in actual battle with the enemy."

Mr. Speaker, my intention is not to cast off another class of persons, but to include another class. I wish to include that class who may not have been in service twenty days, but who have been engaged in battle. I think the men who went in and fought are entitled to as much benefit as those who were in twenty days and did not fight at all.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by inserting after the word "treasury," in the fifth line of the fourth section, the words "belonging to the State," so that it shall be clear that the money is to be paid out of the State funds and not from those belonging to the counties.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. LEECH. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out in the eighth section all after the word "widows," in the fourth line, down to and including the word "widows" in the eighth line.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I think that amendment ought not to be adopted. If the soldiers of 1812 are to have pensions let them all stand upon the same ground—all be under the same law.

Mr. LEECH. Mr. Speaker, there are many special laws that are necessary to reach cases that are not covered by this act at all, and if they are repealed it will subject these old soldiers to the necessity of coming here and making their application to the Legislature again. We have had such cases before us already this winter. I, therefore, hope this amendment will be adopted.

The amendment was

Not agreed to.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out the word "legal," in the fourth line of the fifth section and insert the word "judicial."

The motion was

Agreed to.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out the sixth section. Under this bill the duties of the Auditor General will not be near so onerous as under the present law. I have heard no complaint of a want of clerical force in the Auditor General's Department. If they can say that there are not enough clerks thereat this time, I shall then be willing to give them an additional one.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, the Auditor General informs me that, under the bill we passed last year, the business of that office has been so largely increased that it is impossible for the clerical force in his office to meet the demands upon it, and the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] will see that, under this bill, the demands are not calculated to decrease much from what they were under the old bill. These claims are to be investigated and they are continually increasing in number. This law has caused a vast amount of business, and not only the Auditor General, but the State Treasurer said that if the old bill was left without amendment it would require a bureau of itself. It was utterly impossible to go on with the business it created without organizing a bureau for it. I do think, from all I have seen of the business there, that this clerk is needed.

Mr. HEADMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move to indefinitely postpone this whole matter.

Mr. M'CREARY. I would inquire whether that motion, if agreed to, will carry the gentleman's speech along with it?

Mr. WINGARD. If the gentleman will explain what book he quoted from in reference to Solomon and Gomorrah I will support his motion. I shall vote against the bill anyway, for I think it is worse than the old one.

On the question,

Will the House agree to postpone the subject indefinitely?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr.

WINGARD and Mr. MANN, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Armstrong, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Craig, Deise, Donohugh, Fogel, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Jenks, Jones, Kline, Leech, Linton, Long, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Maish, Marks, Peters, Phelan, Pillow, Rhoads, Roath, Robinson, Steacy, Weller and Wingard—30.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Barton, Boyle, Brown, Chadwick, Chalfant, Chase, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, M'Camant, M'Creary, Mann, Markley, Meehling, Quay, Rouch, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Tharp, Waddell, Watt, Westbrook, Wharton, Wilson, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—44.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The question recurring on the amendment of Mr. BOYLE, to strike out the sixth section,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WINGARD and Mr. RHOADS, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Allen, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Harner, Headman, Jenks, Jones, Kline, Linton, Long, M'Pherrin, Maish, Marks, Meily, Peters, Phelan, Pillow, Rhoads, Roath, Robinson, Tharp, Watt and Westbrook—30.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Heltzel, Hoffman, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, Mann, Meehling, Rouch, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Weller, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—44.

So the question was determined in the negative.

During the call,

Mr. QUAY said: Mr. Speaker, I forgot until this moment that I am paired off with Mr. Hood. I, therefore, cannot vote.

Mr. STEHMAN. Mr. Speaker, I now move to strike out the whole of the seventh section. I do not see why this section was inserted at all. There is none of this money to go through the hands of the county treasurers, as I understand it.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, the law, I believe, provides that the county shall pay this money to the applicants in the particular counties in which they reside. It is asking a little too much that they shall go to all this trouble and get no compensation at all. I think the House does not understand it.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, it strikes me the county treasurer gets paid for handling the State funds any way, and I do not think he should be paid twice.

Mr. MECHLING. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman from Lancaster [Mr. STEHMAN] will refer to the fourth section of this bill, he will see that the county treasurer is authorized to receive and disburse this money.

The amendment of Mr. STEHMAN was

Not agreed to.

The question recurring on the amendment of Mr. MANN, as amended,

It was

Agreed to.

The question being on the bill as amended, Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask those gentlemen who have had this matter referred to in charge, what class of claimers are excluded by this bill which are included in the terms of the former bill, and what additional evidence is required now to what is required under the former bill. Unless there is some discrimination of importance it seems to me that we should not at this time adopt this bill as a substitute for the one passed last year. I think the gentleman from Lancaster [Mr. ARMSTRONG] is entirely right when he says that the effect of such a course will be to force the applicant under this bill to again submit to the extortions of agents in order to receive anything under this bill. I cannot think of a class included in the old bill which is not included in this one, and I do not know that any more stringent testimony is required than under the bill of last year. If I am right, I do not think it is proper for them to make these applications again. If I am not under a misapprehension, I think the House should vote down this bill, as in no way remedying the evil of the bill of last year.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, a very few words will show the difference between this bill and the present law. Additional evidence is required from those who make application. It has been proved before the disbursing officers of the State that a large number of the persons who received this money were not in necessitous circumstances, and a great many of them were made to perjure themselves, by swearing to papers of which they did not know the contents. The only evidence those who have received benefits under the present law will be required to furnish under this new bill is as to this point. No new evidence will be required. The Auditor General is to examine this, and it will be submitted to the judge in the county where the applicant resides. They will have to prove, before the judge, that they are entitled to the money under the former bill. In that way there will cease to be the misapprehension under the old bill. For instance, it is alleged that one claim agent presented claims to the State Treasurer to the amount of more than forty thousand dollars under the old bill—that the forms of applications were made in secret, and some of the applicants were astounded when they came to know what they had been made to swear to by the agent. Under this bill this will be remedied, because the evidence will be taken before the judge and they will be required to prove that they are in necessitous circumstances in the ordinary way, and there will be no misapprehensions as to what is being proved. That is one safeguard of the bill. And it seems to me that it has been sufficiently shown since this discussion commenced to satisfy any person who desires to guard the treasury that this bill ought to be passed.

Mr. CHALFANT. Mr. Speaker, as I understand this bill it requires every person receiving its benefits to make a second application. He has to incur the expense of making another application. I think this is very wrong, and I hope the friends of the old soldiers will vote down this bill if that is the case.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. Speaker, I hope the House will vote down this substitute. I have been waiting to hear why we should adopt this substitute for the old act, and we have had the explanation from the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN], and that is in reference to the evidence of the applicants for this gratuity and annuity. Why was the old act passed? You will recollect that applications were presented here almost every day in relation to this matter. Then it was thought proper that we should have a general act upon the subject. The House took the matter under consideration and passed the act. Why was the abuse under that act? The abuses are said to be that a large number of applications are granted by the Auditor General which should not have been paid. Now, if that is the case, it is an abuse which ought to be remedied. But the question is, "Is this bill a remedy?" If it does remedy it, I shall vote for it, because I am as willing as any man in this House to guard the treasury. Now, as I understand it from the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN], there is no difference as to the applications, but the simple difference is as to the evidence required. And what is that evidence—the evidence which is to be given before the associate judges of the different counties? If I read the original bill right, it seems to me that the old bill is ample for that purpose. And in what I say upon this subject I do not desire to reflect upon the Auditor General. Now, this is what the old act requires:

"The Auditor General shall also require additional proof, by one disinterested and credible witness, or by such other evidence as may be satisfactory to the Auditor General, that the facts set forth in the affidavit of the applicant, are true and correct."

Now, I say, under the old act, the Auditor General can require any additional evidence he requires in reference to any particular claim; therefore, I say this substitute does not, in any way, remedy the evil. The old act gives the Auditor General power to prescribe such regulations as will remedy any of the abuses and evils complained of. I shall, therefore, vote against this substitute for the simple reason, that I take it under the old act the Auditor General shall prescribe such rules and regulations in reference to substantiating the claims as will meet the abuses which are complained of.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, I shall vote against this bill, as I think, for good reasons. I have listened to the various speeches that have been made in its favor. I have waited patiently for the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] to clear up some doubts in my mind in regard to its utility and propriety, but I have waited in vain. The fact is that every argument that has been presented in favor of the bill itself, has only tended to strengthen my views as to its impropriety and to satisfy me that we ought to defeat it.

As I have already said, under the old act I presume the great majority—ninety-nine out of every hundred cases that will be presented—have been presented to the Auditor General and by him adjudicated. Their claims stand in that position in his office, and it will require the parties, to receive these benefits from the State, to go to no more expense than applying for and receiving that which is their due. So far as abuses are concerned, these abuses are already passed. If they are not, I conceive that the Auditor General has sufficient authority granted him under the old act to enable him to ferret out these frauds, and as a faithful public officer he should do it.

If any party is satisfied frauds are being committed they should use every means in their power to ferret out these frauds and the offenders. I would, for one, rather defeat this bill, and, if it be absolutely necessary, I would vote to give the Auditor General an additional clerk, and make it his special duty to ferret out these frauds, and punish the offenders. I am willing to defeat this bill and let the old bill stand, and if indeed necessary to guard the treasury of the State, I would vote for an amendment to that act, allowing the Auditor General an additional clerk at a salary of fourteen hundred dollars, to ferret out these frauds and punish the offenders. But save us, and save these old soldiers, and the widows of these old soldiers, from passing through this terrible ordeal another time before their gray hairs go down to the grave. We are told that these claims are increasing daily—that they are coming in by scores and hundreds. Now, I cannot, for the life of me, tell how this can be. I was under the impression that the old soldiers of the year of 1812 and their widows were passing away like the leaves in autumn. But we are told, upon this floor, that they are daily and hourly increasing. I have had no explanation of this declaration. We have been told that this is the fact, but how or why we have not been told.

Mr. MANN. I said that the Auditor General stated that these papers were coming in at the rate of five and six a day. That is on the authority of the Auditor General.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. That may be, sir. There must be a wrong. And we want that wrong stopped, and if it is necessary the old act should be amended to protect the treasury. I am ready and willing to amend it. But I am not willing to sweep away the act under which the parties are now receiving the benefits from the State, and subject them to another ordeal such as they have been compelled to pass through during the last year.

For these reasons I shall oppose this bill, and hope it will fall. Then, if necessary, let us attach an amendment to the old bill such as will guard the treasury against the frauds complained of. Ask me to vote an additional clerk whose business it shall be to attend exclusively to the detection of these frauds, and I will agree to it, but I will vote against this bill which will submit those old, tried soldiers' who are at this time on the verge of the grave, many unable to travel two or three miles even to a justice of the peace, and much less to the county seat, to another such ordeal as that through which they have passed during the last year.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I have no hesitation in saying that I feel considerable interest in this bill. I had the honor to be in the House last year when the bill was now trying to repeal was passed by this House. I then voted for that bill, but experience has taught me that it was very defective. First, because it did not guard the treasury as it ought to have done; and, secondly, because it discriminated between persons who ought to have participated in the benefits derived from the bill. I am not one, sir, who desires, by any act of mine, to deprive any one who has served his country at any time, from any benefits or emoluments that ought to accrue to him, and more especially to those who are in destitute circumstances. I take it that this bill guards the treasury, while it will amply provide for all those who are in necessitous circumstances; and when that is done it seems to me that is all that should be asked by the Legislature. I apprehend that the gentleman from Montour [Mr. CHALFANT] has misapprehended this, as I understand him, as well as the gentleman from Carbon [Mr. CRAIG], and the gentleman from Lancaster [Mr. ARMSTRONG]. They have fallen into error, that hereafter all these parties who have applied for gratuities and annuities will again have to make their applications, or else they will fail to receive anything. I do not understand that, by the terms of this bill, they will have to commence de novo their applications. Now, I say that it is not the terms of this bill, for it specially provides, in the first section, "that hereafter all applications for gratuities and annuities" shall be made under the provisions of this bill. I hold that in those cases where applications have been already made, there is no necessity for making application again for that which they have received. But, if they apply for the annuity, they may have to prove to the court that they are in necessitous circumstances, and it seem to me that is right and proper.

But, as they have already received the gratuity, there will be no necessity, of course, for their again making application for that, and commencing de novo. As I understand the terms of this bill that has been under discussion this afternoon, it simply provides that when these applications are made to the Auditor General he shall refer them to some judge of the court of the proper county, who shall make inquiry into the facts, and under the parties' inquiry into the facts, and under the parties' inquiry into the facts, and upon returning that fact to the Auditor General the annuity and gratuity will be paid. This seems to me fair, and I appeal to the friends of the soldiers to vote this bill right square through. Mr. CRAIG. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] whether it would be necessary for these persons to again make application for their annuity. The gratuity is, of course, paid.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, they will not have to make application for each annuity, but the applications already on file and passed by the Auditor General will be sent to the judge of the county where the applicant lives and they will there make their claims for annuity. That will be all the labor they will have to perform under this bill.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. Speaker, I do not understand this act in that way. If I understand this act it repeats the act of 1866. Now, when that is repealed of course the whole application will fall. Therefore, I take it that it will be necessary for that soldier who has obtained his bounty to make out his application again. I take that to be a fair construction of this law. If the act of 1866 is repealed, then the application under that act of course goes by the board.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill as amended?
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. HOFFMAN and Mr. ADAIRE, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Barton, Boyle, Chase, Davis, Day, De Haven, Espy, Evang, Freeborn, Harrison, Joseph, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmel, McCreary, McKee, Mann, Meehling, Satterthwait, Sharples, Shuman, Stumbaugh, Waddell, Wait, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward and Glass, Speaker—28.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Boyd, Breen, Brennan, Brown, Calvin, Chadwick, Chalfant, Craig, Deise, Donohugh, Fogel, Gallagher, Gordon, Harner, Headman, Hoffman, Jenks, Jones, Leech, Linton, Long, McCamant, McPherrin, Maish, Markley, Marks, Melly, Mullin, Peters, Phelan, Pillow, Rhoads, Reath, Robinson, Seiler, Steacy, Stehman, Waller, Westbrook, Wharton, Worrall and Wright—44.

So the question was determined in the negative.

No. 116, a supplement to an act to change the mode of criminal proceedings in Erie and Union counties, extending the same to the county of Warren.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House now concur.

The motion was
Agreed to.
House bill No. 246 was next in order.

The following is a copy of the bill:

AN ACT for the better and more impartial selection of persons to serve as jurors in each of the counties of this Commonwealth.

of two years: Provided, That each of said qualified electors shall vote for one person as jury commissioner, at any such election, and the persons having the greatest number of votes for jury commissioner, shall be duly elected.

SEC. 2. It shall be the duty of said jury commissioners to meet with the sheriff at the seat of justice of each county, respectively, at least twenty days before the first term of court of common pleas, in every year, and thereupon proceed, with due diligence, to select, alternately, from the adult male taxable citizens of the county at large, a sufficient number of sober, intelligent and judicious persons, to serve as jurors in the several courts of each county, during that year; and as soon as the said selection shall be completed, the said jury commissioners and sheriff shall, in the mode and manner directed by law, place the names of the persons so selected in the proper jury wheel.

SEC. 3. The said jury commissioners, and the sheriff of each county, respectively, or any two of them, shall draw from the proper jury wheel panels of jurors for the trial of issues in law; which may be taken in any number of cases, in the manner now practiced and allowed; but before the said jury commissioners and sheriff of each county, respectively, shall proceed to select or draw jurors, in the manner aforesaid, they shall severally take the oath or affirmation now prescribed by law, to be taken by the sheriff and county commissioners, before selecting and drawing jurors.

SEC. 4. That all acts and parts of acts of Assembly now in force in relation to the custody, sealing, unsealing, locking and opening of the jury wheel, and all acts and parts of acts of Assembly now in force, imposing any penalty or punishment on the sheriff and county commissioners, or either of them, for anything done or omitted by them, or either of them, in relation to the keeping, locking, opening, sealing or breaking the seal of any jury wheel, or in relation to the selecting or drawing of jurors, shall be taken, deemed and held to apply to the said jury commissioners and sheriff.

SEC. 5. Each of said jury commissioners shall be allowed and paid the same compensation per day as is paid to the county commissioners.

SEC. 6. It shall be the duty of each of said jury commissioners to take upon himself and discharge the duties of said office, under a penalty of one hundred dollars for each and every neglect and refusal to attend the same, to be sued for and recovered before any justice of the peace of the proper county, as debts of like amount are now by law recoverable, ten dollars of which shall go to the person suing, and the residue to be paid by the said justice to the treasurer of the county for the use of the same.

SEC. 7. In case of the inability of either or both of the said jury commissioners by sickness, death or other unavoidable causes, to discharge the duties of said office, it shall be the duty of the president judge of such county wherein said vacancy shall have occurred, to appoint a suitable person or persons, as the case may be, possessing the qualifications aforesaid, to perform the duties of said office during such vacancy, and such person or persons, after having complied with the requirements of the third section of this act, shall have the right to discharge the duties of said office, the same as if elected by the people.

SEC. 8. That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

The question was on the second section,
It was

Agreed to.

The third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh sections were read and

Agreed to.
Mr. MARKS. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment to come in at the end of the seventh section:

Provided, That the provisions of this act shall not apply to the county of Philadelphia.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I move to include the county of Warren in the amendment.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, we might just as well meet this matter right here.

I apprehend if this is to be a general law that we had better let it be a general law. I have been opposed to any change in the present system. No party in my county, so far as I am informed, ask for any change. I have consulted with the leading men of both parties, and there has not one of them signified his desire to me to have a change. Yet I have said here if this was to be a general bill I propose it shall apply to Chester county as well as to any other county in the State. But if any county is to be excepted my constituents will require me to have the count of Chester also excepted. I do not desire to be placed in that position. I do not know what the system is in Philadelphia. I know they have a different system there from what we have in the country in many things. If their system in Philadelphia is to all intents and purposes the same as in the country I am opposed to having it excepted. I know that their license laws differ, and that several other matters differ, and if their system of selecting jurors is radically different, perhaps it is right that should be excepted.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, my objections to the bill arise from any people are satisfied with what they have. There is no disposition nor necessity to change the system of selecting jurors. I do not know whether it is because our men are more honest or better men, but we have no necessity for the bill. All they ask is to be let alone and they will behave themselves. I do not think a majority of this Commonwealth desire a change. I think a majority of the counties, if they were to vote, would vote to retain the present system. I do not consider that our people desire a change at all. I think we are better off with the present system.

Mr. FREEBORN. Mr. Speaker, the reason why Philadelphia should be excepted, is that we have a system that works well. [The balance of the speaker's remarks were inaudible at the reporter's desk, owing to the distance of the speaker and the confusion in the Hall.]

Mr. SHUMAN. Mr. Speaker, in regard to the gentleman from Warren, I think if he was to ask his Democratic friends, I think he would find that they are perhaps not so well satisfied.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I speak for my Democratic friends. There is no disposition to find fault.

Mr. SHUMAN. Mr. Speaker, we have this jury commissioner bill in operation in our county. It has been in operation some four or five years and both parties are very well satisfied with it. It was put in operation while the county was Democratic. The bill was got through the House at the request of the Republicans. Now, the county is Republican and yet we are satisfied to leave it just as it is. The judge of our court has expressed himself that he finds a better class of jurors than he did before.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, we are perfectly satisfied in our county with the law we have got. We do not desire any change, and if there are any exceptions to be made, I would ask an exception for our county.

The SPEAKER. It is not in order to make a motion to that effect now.

Mr. WILSON. I merely wish to state that I am opposed to any county being excepted. I believe that a general law is the law we should pass if we pass any. I am, therefore, opposed to excepting in favor of any county whatever. I hope the law if passed will be a general law, and apply to every county in the State.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, the reasons, I suppose, that my colleague moved to strike out Philadelphia are very apparent to every person who has examined the law in regard to it. There is a special law in the city of Philadelphia which goes a great deal further than this general law. If the law for the city of Philadelphia was applied to the whole State in the selection of jurors, I think it would be a very good law. If this general law is adopted, it will not be half so stringent as the present law of the city of Philadelphia. We do not wish to be relieved from the provisions of the present law. At the same time we do not wish the restrictions that are thrown around the selection of jurors to be taken away. One of the sections of the law of the city of Philadelphia will show that the present law goes much further than this general law proposes. It says:

"82. The judges of the Supreme Court, when sitting in the city of Philadelphia, of the district court and the court of common pleas of the city of Philadelphia, with the sheriff thereof, shall constitute a board for superintending and managing the drawing and selecting jurors, to serve in the several courts of the said city; one member of any two of the said courts, with the said sheriff or his duly authorized deputy, shall be a quorum of said board for the transaction of business." So that the Supreme Court of the State of Pennsylvania presides over the selection of jurors. I do not think we need any further restrictions. The law you will find on page 586 of Pardon's Digest, and you will find that it goes a great deal further than this law. The restrictions are far more stringent than they can be under this law. I think this bill is an improvement upon the method of drawing jurors in the country, and in a few years they will probably come up to that of Philadelphia, but we do not wish to retrograde.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I will say in answer to the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS], that I think he takes a very singular position. He argues here against the amendment I have offered, for the simple reason that the bill ought to be general. He says that the bill ought to be general for the State, except Philadelphia, for the reason that Philadelphia is satisfied with the way the jurors are drawn there.

Mr. DAVIS. I did not use the word "satisfied." I said that the law for Philadelphia was a more stringent law.

Mr. ALLEN. The gentleman understands him that they are satisfied and do not desire anything else. I have the same reasons for desiring Warren county excepted. I think it is a very singular position for the gentleman from Philadelphia to take, that in measures of this kind the Philadelphia delegation shall act earnestly to the finishing up of a bill, and then at the last moment ask for the exclusion of Philadelphia. How, in justice, can they urge upon other counties in the State what they do not desire themselves? If the gentlemen desire Philadelphia to be excluded, why urge it upon others who do not desire it, why urge that their constituents are satisfied? Now, if there is justice in their position, I cannot see it. I say, sir, that if Philadelphia is to be excluded, I have got the same right to ask for the exclusion of my people, because they are satisfied with the manner in which they are working. It has been said here that other counties desire to be excepted also. I cannot say what justice there is in the gentleman from Philadelphia voting for the measure which they refuse to accept themselves. I do not see any improvement to the morals of the people of Philadelphia, or their representatives, or anything in them that respect different from those in the country. I think we all stand about on an equality, and I do not think the gentleman can insinuate that we are retrograding, and ask us to improve. I think we are all standing about on the same footing.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman from Warren [Mr. ALLEN] either intends to make a small speech for buncombe or else he entirely misunderstands the drift of my argument. I remarked distinctly that Philadelphia already had a special law, which not only contained provisions equal to those in this general law, but went further. They do not take the judges of the city of Philadelphia to select their jurors, but they bring the judges of the Supreme court of Pennsylvania for that purpose. The argument I wish to make is that they have to be so much more critical in Philadelphia than, as much of an improvement as I believe this law does go far enough to protect the jury boxes in Philadelphia. We require more. We require all the restrictions that can possibly be thrown around the jury boxes. I have said nothing about the gentleman's friends being dissatisfied, but they have no special law to protect the minority of the county from fraud if the majority do not see fit to protect it. I have never heard of any special law in the county of Warren, but we have a special law in the city of Philadelphia that goes a great deal further than this general law, and we do not desire to take away any of the restrictions that we now have.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker—
Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order; the gentleman from Warren [Mr. ALLEN] has already spoken twice on this subject.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of the opinion that the point of order is well taken.

Mr. MECHLING. Mr. Speaker, I suppose the gentlemen of this House who were here last winter, will remember the difficulty we had on this very question. A bill was offered to remedy the evil that was gotten up in Fayette county, and I believe the members of the committee attached Montgomery county and York county and other counties to it. We had a terrible fight over this, and the gentlemen who represented those counties, made great complaint that the thing was entirely unfair, to subject some counties to such a law, while others were left out. The thing was fought very hard and finally postponed. It was again brought up this session, and it was considered of much importance. A bill was reported by the members of the House and Senate had a caucus on this subject, and I believe this bill was reported by that caucus. We understood that it was to be a general bill, and that no county was to be exempted from it. Now, it will not do, if we wish to carry out his bill which we have argued before and taken up section by section, to permit the gentleman from Warren to have his county exempted; because his county is like every other county in the State—except in the city of Philadelphia—the jurors are drawn by the sheriff and county commissioners.

This bill is to remedy the evil that might arise on account of partisan feelings on the part of the officers who draw the jurors. We know that last winter a bill was passed by which the votes of deserters are to be rejected, which has caused many trials in the courts of this Commonwealth, and where there is this unfairness of drawing jurors in counties largely Democratic or largely Republican, there are so few left of the opposite party that they can be challenged off, and no fair trial can be had. The provisions of this bill is to remedy this evil and to provide that at least one-third of the opposite party can be called to act as jurors, so that every person can have a fair trial.

So far as the city of Philadelphia is concerned she has a different mode of drawing her jurors.

Mr. DEISE. I would like to ask the gentleman if he thinks a jury of twelve Republicans who hold this law to be constitutional would not be infit?

Mr. MECHLING. I do not know. I never knew twelve Republicans to vote together to do a dishonest act, and I say this is the very provision of this law that there cannot be twelve Republicans on any jury, but there must necessarily be at least one-third of them Democrats and vice versa. I do not speak of the law of Philadelphia. The gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] has fairly stated that it is a law, the provisions of which throw around the jury box every safeguard that can be well thought of. I say it would be proper to exempt Philadelphia, but no other county in the Commonwealth, because, if the gentleman from Warren is allowed to exclude his county, then I have a right, and perhaps will ask to have my county excluded, because there is no complaint in my county. I suppose, in case the county of Warren is excluded, there will be twenty gentlemen here who will get up and ask to have their counties excluded. That would merely destroy every consideration that this House could give it. It has been drawn up by the best legal minds in both Houses, and I ask that the Republican and Democratic members will vote for this bill in a body, for the protection of their respective counties.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to make an explanation in answer to the presumption of the gentleman from Philadelphia, that I was talking for buncombe. In feeling that his experience and knowledge of buncombe is much better than mine, I will allow him to judge of what it is.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, it has been stated that in the county of Chester we ask no change. We are willing, however, to take this bill if it is made general throughout the Commonwealth. But if gentlemen are to rise here and ask that their counties may be exempted, we shall want the county of Chester exempted also.

The gentleman from Armstrong [Mr. MECHLING] has labored under a mistake when he says that the bill was reported by a Republican caucus, as I understand it, as a general bill. I desire, if this bill pass, that it shall be passed for the good of the people of the State without respect to party. We wish to keep party politics out of the jury box as much as possible. If I am called to vote for this bill for the county of Chester, I shall do it on the ground that it is to be a general bill.

Mr. MECHLING. Mr. Speaker, I perhaps may have been mistaken in saying that the bill was reported by a Republican caucus, but it was reported by a caucus of the members of both Houses, because I was present, and Mr. SHOEMAKER, of the Senate, was the chairman. I know that we ran over the provisions of this act, and it was agreed upon.

Mr. WADDELL. The gentleman from Armstrong [Mr. MECHLING] is probably right in some particulars. This bill, if I recollect aright, was submitted to some of the members of the Judiciary Committees of the Senate and House. No conclusion was come to as to what should be done with it. They merely met in consultation to see if any improvement could be made, or whether this was satisfactory, and without attempting to recommend it for passage or defeat the bill was submitted to the House for consideration.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, as there seems to be some difference of opinion as to the action of that caucus, if I am in order I would call for the reading of the Journal of the caucus.

The question was on the amendment of Mr. ALLEN.

It was
Not agreed to.

The question recurring on the amendment of Mr. MARKS to exclude Philadelphia.

It was
Agreed to.

The question recurring on the seventh section, as amended,

It was
Agreed to.

The eighth section was read and
Agreed to.

The title was read and
Agreed to.

The rules were suspended and the bill read a third time by its title.

On the question,
Shall the bill pass?

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I only want to say, in reference to this bill, that there are many of its provisions that I desire. I am not, however, altogether in love with the system, but it is alleged that there is unfairness in some of the counties in the Commonwealth. Such is the charge in my own county, and I am willing to say to the gentlemen that I will meet them half-way, and take it in our country, if they will in theirs.

Mr. MAISH. Mr. Speaker, my own county is also among the number which is represented as being unfair in the drawing of jurors. I do not suppose I would ask a change myself, but I approve of this bill, because I believe in its provisions. It is calculated to select jurors more impartially than is now done.

One thing is manifest, that there is a growing dissatisfaction throughout the Commonwealth at the old system of selecting jurors; it exists in my own county; it exists in Danubio county, and in many counties in the Commonwealth. I believe this law will remedy many of the evils, and I shall vote for it. And I will say, as the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE], that I will meet the gentlemen on the other side half-way, and will vote for this bill.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, so far as Lancaster county is concerned, we are perfectly satisfied, and were I to consult my own feelings, and I think the sentiments of nine-tenths of the people of my county, I would ask that my county be exempted from the provisions of this bill. But, from the fact that there is a disposition to make the bill general, and if by so doing we will cure the evils that exist in some counties in this Commonwealth, I think that to exempt my own county is not sufficiently material to defeat the bill. We are in the habit of giving the opposition their full share of all that they are entitled to, and I think more, and I do not think they will get much more than they now do under the operations of this law. Therefore, I shall vote for the bill with a view of curing some of the evils and defects that exist in counties that do not act so fairly and impartially as old Lancaster county does.

matter that I have felt a good deal of interest in from the opening of the session. But it strikes me that we are not going to realize just what we desire. We shall probably get twelve out of thirty-six jurors—four of these may be set aside and the balance may be put upon some little trial, and we will lose all the strength that we want upon important matters and it will amount in reality to nothing. I would like it if this bill could be so arranged as to equally divide the jurors.

During the call of the yeas and nays on the final passage of the bill,

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say that I will vote in the affirmative now as a choice between two evils: I have no alternative but to take this general law or to pass special bills for certain counties.

The SPEAKER. If gentlemen desire to give their reasons for voting they can do so in writing, and they will be spread upon the Journal.

On the question,
Shall the bill pass?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MANN and Mr. ALLEN, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adair, Armstrong, Barton, Boyd, Boyle, Brown, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, DeLaven, Espy, Fogel, Freeborn, Gordon, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kline, Linton, Long, McCreary, McKee, Maish, Mann, Markley, Meehling, Mullin, Peters, Phelan, Quay, Roath, Robinson, Rouch, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Stehman, Stambaugh, Waddell, Watt, Weller, Whann, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall and Glass, Speaker—48.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Craig, Day, Deise, Donohue, Ewing, Gallagher, Harbison, Harner, Headman, Heltz, Hoffman, Jenks, Jones, Kimmell, Leech, M'Camant, M'Pherrin, Meily, Pillow, Rhoads, Steacy, Tharp, Westbrook, Wharton and Wright—30.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The bill
Passed finally.

REASONS FOR VOTE.

Mr. ESPY presented the following, which he desired to have entered on the Journal:

I desire to place upon the record my reasons for casting my vote in the affirmative.

I think my constituents will bear me out in saying that we need no such enactment, as the present mode of selecting jurors has thus far been satisfactory to the people of Crawford.

But in order that we may have a general system that will apply to the whole State, and in order that we may, if possible, cripple the bone of our Legislature—local enactments—and that we may remedy evils that do exist in different parts of our State, under the present code; and feeling willing to concede as much as my friend over the way, cede as much as Fayette [Mr. BOYLE], in meeting us half-way, and laying aside all personal feelings and preferences on the subject, for the general good of our Commonwealth, and believing that my vote will be sustained by all true philanthropists who desire to see the minorities protected, I heartily and willingly vote for the passage of the bill.

(Signed) J. BOYD ESPY.

On motion of Mr. KERNS,
The House adjourned until next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

SENATE.

TUESDAY, February 26, 1867.

The Senate met and was called to order at 11 o'clock, A. M., by the SPEAKER.

On motion of Mr. SCHALL, the recess was accordingly taken.

Resolved, That in view of the benefits heretofore derived by the widows and orphans of our fallen heroes from the "State agency" in this city, and in view of the necessities that still exist, and are likely to continue for such agency for some time to come, by the act of Congress providing bounties and pensions for the soldiers, their widows and orphans, we have learned with unfeigned regret of the contemplated abolition of that office by the Legislature, and we most earnestly deprecate such action, or indeed any action whatever that will tend to lessen in any degree the only facilities they had of obtaining promptly and without expense the benefits of the provisions made for them by the General Government.

Also, one from David Pooley and citizens of Germantown, praying for the passage of an act reducing the width of Lehman street.

Referred to the Committee on Roads, Bridges and Ferries.

Also, a memorial from twenty-one Baptist ministers of the city of Philadelphia, remonstrating against submitting the Sunday car question to popular vote, which was read as follows, and referred to the Committee on Vice and Immorality:

To the Senate and House of Representatives of Pennsylvania:

The memorial of the undersigned respectfully represents that they have noticed with great concern and solicitude that applications have been made to your honorable bodies for such a change of the laws of the Commonwealth, as will allow certain secular employments to be carried on, on the Sabbath day, and that, failing to obtain such a change, application is now made to submit the question to a vote of the people of Philadelphia. They allude to the application to permit passenger cars to run on the Sabbath day. They have noticed with much gratification that in one branch of the Legislature the question has been referred to the Committee on Vice and Immorality—a reference they think eminent-ly proper, as the subject so manifestly belongs to and refers to the moral and religious welfare of the community.

Your memorialists, in their judgment, believe that the commandments of the Decalogue are of equal force and validity, and that the command to observe the Sabbath day and keep it holy is as binding upon the conscience and conduct of all men as any other, and they respectfully submit that a proposition to submit either to a popular vote approximates, if it is not altogether a contempt of the authority of the Divine command.

Your memorialists think this Commonwealth was founded by Christian and God-fearing men, and that the act of 1701 by the immediate founders of the Commonwealth, and that of 1793 by their descendants—men of the same moral and religious character—have well expressed not only the reverence due to the Almighty, and the obedience due to his commands, but have represented and reflected the sentiments of a people who have been eminently prospered and grown in a great Commonwealth under the influence of such sentiments and the favor of the Almighty.

Your memorialists entertain the confident conviction that a question of so general a character and of such wide spreading influence, belongs not to a local population merely for its decision, but to the deliberate and careful and prayerful consideration of the people of the whole State, of which we are but a part or the representatives. They represent that a proposition to submit this question to a vote of the people of a particular locality is no more reasonable nor fair for the general interests, than would be a proposition to submit to a vote of a particular locality what they shall be permitted by law to practice a system of polygamy in opposition to the Christian institution of marriage, and that they cannot but regard that now pending before your honorable bodies as being specious, insidious and calculated to deceive.

This proposition apparently prevents the application of that portion of our local population who, engaged in their various occupations during the week, have no other day for recreation and visits to the suburbs than the Sabbath day, and that for their health and welfare, they shall be permitted by law for reaching the suburbs and rural parts would be a privilege and a boon.

But your petitioners believe that there are interested parties who present this argument, who believe they will gain largely in a pecuniary way by carrying the persons for whom they thus speak, and others also desire it who would expect to gain by obtaining great numbers of customers for beer gardens and other places of refreshment located in the rural sections of and near the terminations of such roads. And your memorialists apprehend that a combination of such interests of those who have the carrying of such passengers, and of those who have a profit from their entertainment at the places referred to, and of those whose appetites for drink exercise so great a control over their conduct, would produce such a combination of particular interests as would give to them a degree of influence and power in such a question beyond what they are justly entitled to or is consistent with the public good.

And your memorialists are also of the opinion that it would be far better for the health and welfare, in all particulars, of the portions of our population, as is professedly asked, if this temptation and lure were not placed in their way, and that it would be more conducive to their well-being and the good of society if they would spend their Sabbaths with their families at their homes, or at church, if they will, and thus save the expense of car fares and recreation, which it is asked they may be tempted with. They are persuaded that the religious and moral interests of our people would be much better promoted by the observance of the Lord's day under existing laws than by having it converted into a day of amusement and dissipation, with the attendant evils of frequent excesses in drink and consequent violations of the peace, which would almost certainly lead to an increase in the business of our criminal courts, and the number of inmates in our public prisons, and add also to our feeble burdens by increasing the expense of our civil institutions. Your memorialists have a deep conviction that the honor, welfare and future prosperity of our whole community will be better and more surely promoted by following the line of policy laid down by the founders of the Commonwealth in regard to the sanctity of the Sabbath, and all moral commands, than by allowing any new elements that may come among and intermix with our population, to alter our laws and customs to so conform them to those of other nations who do not the same reverence for God's holy day, and they respectfully ask that all application, from whatever source and under whatever pretence, for a change of our moral and religious institutions may meet with a constant and decided refusal.

And they will ever pray, &c.

REPORT OF A JOINT COMMITTEE.

Mr. SHOEMAKER, from the joint committee appointed to present to the authorities of the city of Philadelphia the table on which the Declaration of Independence was signed, and the chair in which John Hancock sat as President of Congress at that time, made a report, which was read as follows, viz:

That in pursuance of the duty assigned them they proceeded to Philadelphia in charge of the articles in question, accompanied by the Hon. Louis W. Hall, Speaker of the Senate, arriving there on Thursday evening, and being hospitably entertained by the municipal authorities of the city. On Friday morning, the 22d instant, being the anniversary of the birth-day of Washington, the committee and Speaker Hall met the committee of the Historical Society, the Mayor and City Councils at the City Hall and proceeded in a body to Independence Hall, the scene where the Declaration was signed, and where the chair and table were henceforth to find their appropriate resting place. At the Hall the concourse was joined by the judges of the supreme and local courts, General Meade and staff, and a delegation of the veteran soldiers of the war of 1812. The ceremonies of the occasion were opened with a prayer by the Rev. Robert D. Morris, a member of the Historical Society Committee. By request of your committee the Speaker of the Senate then, in a neat and appropriate speech, presented the chair and table to the municipal authorities of the city, to be by them carefully preserved as mementoes of a glorious past. On behalf of the city corporation these relics were accepted by the Mayor of the city, the Hon. Morton McMichel, in an eloquent speech. Col. J. Ross Snowden, Prothonotary of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, then in behalf of the Historical Society returned the thanks of that institution to the General Assembly of the Commonwealth for this precious gift. The chair and table were then placed in their ancient positions in the time honored Hall, by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the Commonwealth, Hon. Geo. W. Woodward, the president judge of the district court of Philadelphia, Hon. Judge Sharswood, the judge of the United States district court for Eastern Pennsylvania, Hon. John Cadwalader, who then formally delivered them to the city, Mayor M'Michael accepting them with a fervent trust that they might be guarded with scrupulous fidelity. The hall being then thrown open to the public not less than twenty thousand persons passed through it in procession to see the relics. The day was observed with unusual ceremony as a holiday all over the city. Your committee cannot refrain from making their acknowledgments to the Mayor and Councils of Philadelphia, for the handsome manner in which they were received and cared for during their brief sojourn, and to express their rejoicing that these invaluable relics are now in the places they occupied on the day rendered immortal by the Declaration.

Having discharged the duties entrusted to them, your committee respectfully beg to be discharged.

FULL PROCEEDINGS OF THE CEREMONIES. THE JOHN HANCOCK CHAIR.

The chair stood in the centre of the Hall, upon the table on which the Declaration of Independence was signed. It is a massive piece of furniture, of antique form, and ornamented with curious and grotesque carvings. It is made of Spanish mahogany, covered apparently with several coats of varnish. The back of the chair is about five feet high, and is ornamented at the top with a figure of the sun, in gilt, surmounted by a small gilt liberty pole and cap. The legs are very ponderous, being square, and about 3 inches in diameter. They are tipped with brass at their lower extremities. The covering of the seat is of red leather, of apparently modern manufacture, but the arms are covered with leather that was once of the same color, but is now bleached and stained with age and dirt. The chair would be considered decidedly uncomfortable in the modern days of luxurious sofas and spring cushions, but doubtless was once considered quite a triumph of the cabinet-maker's art.

THE TABLE.

The table upon which the chair stood is that upon which the Declaration of Independence was signed. It also is made of Spanish mahogany, and is of an antique pattern. It is a cabinet table, arranged so that the person who uses it can sit by the centre and have the drawers upon each side of him. There are six drawers in all. Three of them are furnished with old fashioned swinging handles made of brass, but those that were upon the right hand side have been torn off, probably from having been used more frequently. The table is supported by eight legs of that arch and ugly shape which is so common in old furniture. It is covered with black oil cloth of modern manufacture and very uncleanly appearance.

There was something peculiarly impressive and suggestive in the contemplation of these relics of antiquity. The table on which the Declaration was signed; the chair in which great Hancock sat, during the performance of that immortal deed; the old bed which many of the allied feelings to a people redeemed and disenthralled, were grouped together again after the lapse of nearly a century, while around them the portraits of mighty men of yore seemed to look out from the canvas and smile approval upon the men who had come to honor their memories and the memory of the immortal Washington.

CEREMONIES IN THE HALL.

After the procession had got into the Hall, and quiet had been restored, Col. J. Ross Snowden, Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, announced that the hour for the presentation of the valuable relics had arrived, and the proceedings would be opened with prayer.

PRAYER BY REV. DR. MORRIS.

Rev. Robert D. Morris, a member of the Pennsylvania Historical Society, then delivered the following prayer:

Almighty and most merciful God, we thank Thee for this day and for this day's service; and we implore Thy presence and blessings upon this occasion. Thou art the God of nations; Thou hast been the God of our father, and now we invoke Thee to be our God and the God of our nationality. Vouchsafe Thy blessing upon our President; upon the National Congress; upon all the Governors of States; upon all our magistrates, and upon all the people. Give us true religion; give us liberty and perpetuity as a nation among the nations of the earth. Inspire the people with wisdom, patriotism, justice, and with Thy salvation. Be with us and direct in the thoughts that may be inspired and the words that may be uttered. May Thy blessing fall upon the interesting services of this day, through Jesus Christ, our Redeemer. Amen.

ADDRESS OF SPEAKER HALL.

Hon. LOUIS W. HALL, Speaker of the State Senate, then said:

Honored and respected Sirs, Mayor of Philadelphia, Gentlemen of the Select and Common Council of the Corporation of Philadelphia—I have been requested by the General Assembly of the State of Pennsylvania, acting through a committee appointed by the Senate and House of Representatives, to present to the Corporation of the City of Philadelphia the chair in which John Hancock sat, and the table on which our venerated fathers so many years ago signed our Declaration of Independence.

The object of this presentation upon the part of the Legislature of Pennsylvania is that these venerated and holy relics may be deposited for safe keeping in old Independence Hall. It is not necessary, sir, that I should refer to the history; it is not necessary that I should more than refer to the fact that these relics were temporarily loaned by the Provincial Assembly of Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress, when they were holding their deliberations in Philadelphia; that the Provincial assembly resumed their possession when Congress removed to New York. When the capital of the State was removed to Harrisburg, these articles were taken along. There they have been from that time to this. That chair has been the seat, almost all the time, of the Speaker of the House of Representatives; and the table has occupied a conspicuous place in the Public Library of the State. The Legislature of Pennsylvania thought it well and proper that on this day, the anniversary of the birth of the father of our country, in this place, in this sacred room—this room more beloved by Americans than any one spot on the habitable globe—this room, with all its happy associations of the past, with all its holy associations of the present—that here and now, in Independence Hall, these articles should be placed in trust to remain forever. Is it necessary, Mr. Mayor, that I should refer to the hero of patriots who stood around John Hancock and who sat around this table? Is it necessary that I should refer to the Declaration they enacted and adopted? Is it necessary that I should refer to the struggle that followed—that struggle that tried men's souls—that struggle that ended in making America free? (Applause.) Hancock, the affluent citizen, the accomplished statesman and orator, and popular idol, as with bold hand he signed his name to that venerated document! His name is alone sufficient to recall to us his services to his country. Then a nation was born in a day, and the influence of that nation has been most happy from that day down to this. (Applause.) Philadelphia should have these holy relics; she should preserve them well, so that in the future, lovers of liberty in coming here may come as pilgrims to a sacred shrine, to pay homage to this holy place. (Applause.) May we not hope that as these relics are preserved, the principles they represent—the principles of religious and civil liberty—may be preserved and our nationality made perpetual! The city of Philadelphia! Fitting home for Independence Hall; fitting place to put such relics as these! What city in the United States has so honored herself and so aided in preserving this land, as the city of Philadelphia? (Applause.) What city and what public and private citizens of what city have contributed so largely of their means, and have raised so many regiments and supported them when in the field, as did Philadelphia during the trying time of the Republic? (Applause.) What city so kind to the soldiers in the field? What city established such places for their comfort as they passed to and from the battlefields of the Rebellion? Proud is the State of her city, as she is proud of this Hall. On behalf of the Legislature, in trust, we deposit these relics, well satisfied that this is the time and this the place they should be deposited. (Applause.)

REMARKS OF MAYOR M'MICHAEL.

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives—The city of Philadelphia accepts with thankfulness the Commission of the Pennsylvania confides to her. In view of the importance, she has assembled here, as participants and spectators, the honored dignitaries who administer justice within her borders; the favored citizens to whom she has delegated her authority to make and execute laws; the noble old men whom more than half a century ago she sent out to repel foreign invasion; the younger soldiers, chief among whom is her own gallant son, who recently perished there; lives in aiding to crush domestic treason; the learned expositors of her historic legends and traditions; and the members of the press, which daily records her progress and opinions. In this presence she makes public declaration that she esteems the custody of these precious relics a rare privilege, and offers a solemn pledge that she will guard them with scrupulous fidelity, and preserve them with assiduous care.

It is proper they should be here. It was here they were associated with the deeds which have given to these simple pieces of furniture a value beyond all price; it is here they can be best seen by the countless generations which the fame of this sacred edifice will attract hither so long as civilization and freedom survive. Memorials identified with striking epochs of their career are justly held in veneration by all nations. To the Italian, the iron crown of Charlemagne symbolizes a national unity that has inspired him with hope amid the degradation and disasters of centuries; to the Scotchman, the heart of the Bruce, in all climes and under all vicissitudes, is a cherished trophy of national renown; to the American, these humble emblems are significant, not only of a glorious past, but of a marvelous future, which will include the occupation of many lands, the dominion of many seas and the compact of many peoples, joined together by the all-embracing bonds of free institutions and individual rights.

Since these relics were separated from this hall, a period less than the scriptural limit of a man's life has intervened; but in that period the developments of science and the achievements of art have surpassed the wildest imagination of the wisest and noblest revolutions have taken place in which ancient dynasties have been shattered and scattered, and out of which radical changes of government have been evolved, and these developments and these achievements and these revolutions have co-operated, and are still co-operating, to produce on this continent an empire wider in territorial extent, stronger in physical power, richer in material wealth, higher in intellectual culture, and grander in patriotic aims than any the world has witnessed. The men who sat in this scene and wrote at this table, while engaged in the erection of a new Republic, had keen insight and profound wisdom, and as they intended the structure to be reared by their descendants should tower to the heavens, they laid their foundations as broad as the earth and as deep as the ocean. And, verily, they shall have their reward, for long after the votaries of the false prophet, whose throne is crumbling in the east, shall abandon their senseless pilgrimages to his fabled tomb, and his name shall only be remembered as a synonym of lust and crime; the followers of these true prophets shall gather round this living shrine, not in abject ignorance to adore, but with grateful recognition to bless the memories of those who first preached the evangel of universal liberty, and some of whom attested their faith through the ordeals of martyrdom and by the baptism of blood.

The time for this restoration has been well chosen. An act so blended with joyful feelings should be performed in the midst of festive surroundings. The booming cannon that shall greet the following day, the strains that float upon the air—the streaming flags that denote the presence of a holiday—these have rightly ushered in and illustrated the day set apart for such a service. But in the day itself there is even more essential fitness. What occasion so suitable as the birthday of Washington for depositing, among kindred objects, in this chamber, which his stately form has so often dignified and adorned, these memorials of an era with which his name is indissolubly connected? Especially is this so when we consider that the ends for which he prayed and labored and suffered are approaching towards consummation, and that the Union to which his great heart was dedicated, after being purged and purified in the alchemic of civil war, is brighter, purer, better and firmer than ever before. And, my friends, as we gaze on his serene and majestic features, pictured on yonder wall, may we not be permitted to indulge the fancy that his spirit hovers near us, and that if it could kindle in those eyes the light of life, and impart to those lips a human utterance, he would smile approvingly on this ceremonial, and proclaim his satisfaction that in all parts of the magnificent domain he so largely helped to establish—in the South as well as the North; in the West not less than the East—the cardinal doctrine of the Declaration of Independence—the sublime announcement that all men are created free and equal—has become a fixed and immutable fact.

SPEECH OF COL. SNOWDEN.

Col. J. Ross Snowden, Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, then said:

Before pronouncing the few words I have prepared for this occasion, I beg to say a word of explanation. The committee appointed by the Historical Society was raised for the purpose only of co-operating with the State and city authorities in such ceremonies as might be appropriate when the chair of Hancock and the table of Independence were replaced in this venerable Hall.

The committee addressed his honor the Mayor on the subject, and, by his request, the committee took the general charge of the arrangements. The Mayor suggested this day as an appropriate day, and in every step of our proceedings he has been consulted and his suggestions adopted.

The Historical Society of Pennsylvania regard with peculiar interest the return of the chair of Hancock and the table of Independence to this venerable Hall.

On behalf of the Society, and as Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, I am authorized to express its hearty thanks to the Legislature of Pennsylvania, for the well-considered and patriotic resolutions which authorized the replacement of those interesting historical relics in this sacred Hall where they so appropriately belong. In this hall the old Colonial Assembly convened, and this chair was occupied by the Speakers of the House of Representatives of this State.

And when the State government was removed to Lancaster in 1793, it was carried to that city with other property and archives of the State, where it remained until the year 1812, when the seat of government was established at Harrisburg, and up to the present time it has been occupied by the successive Speakers of the House of Representatives.

Its chief historical interest, however, is associated with the Continental Congress of 1776, and the Constitutional Convention of 1787. It is the chair of Washington, as well as of Hancock; and thus marks the two greatest events in our history.

And here, also, we have returned to this Hall, the Table of Independence, around which gathered Jefferson, Franklin, John Adams, Sherman and K. R. Livingston, when the immortal Declaration was reported to Congress, and upon which that memorable document was signed. The principles of liberty and independence thus announced were successfully maintained by the sword; and eleven years afterwards the fathers of the Republic, with Washington occupying this chair, again assembled in this Hall, and formed the Union of the States by adopting the Constitution of the United States, which was subsequently ratified by the several States. And here, on this table, that instrument of constitutional liberty and Union was signed.

The chair of Hancock and of Washington! The table of Jefferson and of Madison! What sublime emotions do not the enunciation of these names produce; and what glorious associations cluster around these sacred relics!

I have left to other and able hands upon this interesting occasion the pleasing task of enlarging upon those soul-stirring scenes and memorable events.

I beg to refer, however, to one incident which the representation on the back of this remarkable chair recalls to our recollection. It will be observed that it presents a picture of the Sun, with half its rise above the horizon. When the resolution for Independence was adopted by Congress, it is stated that Franklin remarked: "I have frequently, during the last session of Congress, regarded the representation on the back of the President's chair with deep solicitude and anxiety whether it were the rising or the setting sun; but now that Independence is declared I am confident it is the rising sun which will eventually illuminate the world." (Applause.)

A similar incident is related of Madison, in 1787, after the adoption of the Federal Constitution. Which of these incidents is the true one, or whether they are both true, I have not investigated. Certainly, one or the other, if not both, did actually occur. And whether the remarks were made by Franklin or Madison it is an interesting illustration of the picture upon this venerable chair, and exhibits the great confidence of our revolutionary patriots in the future destiny of our country. May we not hope that the grand edifice of constitutional liberty and union which they erected will stand the test of time, and be of perpetual duration?

PLACING THE RELICS IN POSITION.

The chair and table were then placed in position in the Hall by the Hon. Joseph R. Ingersoll, President, and Hon. John M. Read, Vice President Historical Society of Pennsylvania; Hon. George W. Woodward, Chief Justice of Pennsylvania; Hon. Geo. Sharswood, President Judge District Court of Philadelphia; Hon. Joseph Allison, President Judge Court Common Pleas of Philadelphia; Hon. John Cadwalader, Judge United States District Court; Gen. Geo. G. Meade, United States Army.

The table was placed near the centre of the hall, and the chair behind it.

Judge Woodward then conducted the Mayor to the chair and he sat down in it.

Mayor McMichael then remarked:

"On behalf of myself and all my successors, I renew the pledge that Philadelphia will never forget the solemn duty she has this day assumed."

CONCLUSION.

Col. Snowden then announced that the ceremonies had been concluded.

The guests of the occasion then filed out of the hall, while the band, stationed in the entry, performed a march, and Independence Hall soon assumed its usual quiet appearance.

Mr. MC CONAUGHY, a bill entitled An act to prevent and punish prize fighting, which was read as follows and Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary General.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That from and after the passage of this act, whoever shall engage or participate in any prize fight within this Commonwealth, or any fight or pugilistic contest, on the result of which any money or valuable thing is bet or wagered, shall be guilty of a high misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, and imprisoned in the penitentiary or the jail of the proper county for a period not exceeding two years; and every person being present at such fight, or laying any bet or wager upon the result thereof, whether present or not, shall be considered a participant therein, and as giving encouragement thereto, and may, at the discretion of the court, be punished in like manner.

In connection with this bill Mr. MC CONAUGHY submitted a communication from the Attorney General, which was read as follows:

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA,
OFFICE OF ATTORNEY GENERAL,
HARRISBURG, Feb. 23, 1867.

My Dear Sir—With this I send to you the draft of a bill proposed by Judge Pearson, and the adoption and passage of which I most cordially recommend.

The recent disgraceful prize fight in York county induced the Governor to direct me to call the attention of the judge of that district and the prosecuting officer, to the necessity of prompt and efficient action to punish the aiders, abettors and actors in that transaction. To that communication Judge Fisher promptly replied, assenting to the request of the Governor, and engaging to direct immediate action. The prosecuting officer wrote to me, and undertook to act without delay, and begin proceedings, so that the Governor might demand the delivery of all parties accused who were non-residents of the State. It was suggested in this correspondence that the law was deficient in this regard, and that while indictments for a riot, for the unlawful assembly for an affray, for a conspiracy to break the peace, and for assault and battery, would lie, that yet as to this especial offense no special act existed. In a recent conversation with Judge Pearson the same want was alluded to, and as the judge suggested the propriety of including those who wagered money, or are otherwise concerned in getting up such fights, I invited him to prepare an act to meet the views he expressed to me. This he has done, and it is the bill I send you. Its phraseology conforms to that of the penal code, and its provisions are eminently proper and necessary. I have submitted the matter to the Governor, and he cordially approves of it. It will deter all such projects for the future, and will punish with suitable severity all such violations of the public peace and of public morals.

I am, sir, with respect,

Truly your ob't servant,
BENJAMIN HARRIS BREWSTER,
Attorney General.

The Honorable DAVID MC CONAUGHY, Senator from the Nineteenth district, Senate, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Referred to the Judiciary General Committee, and ordered to be printed in the Record.

Mr. ROYER, a bill entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act in relation to the construction and repairs of roads and bridges in Lower Marion township, Montgomery county, approved March 2d, A. D. 1866.

Referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

Also, a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Dpwintown gas and water company.

IRREGULARITIES IN THE MAILS.

Mr. WHITE offered the following resolution, which was twice read:

WHEREAS, complaints are made from different parts of the Commonwealth, about the irregularities of the United States mails, in transmitting letters and public documents; therefore,

Resolved, That a committee of three members of the Senate be appointed to inquire and ascertain immediately, if possible, the cause of the irregularities and delays in the United States mails complained of, and report the same, together with a method of correcting the difficulty.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I would just state that I do not know upon what standing committee was devolved the duty indicated by this resolution; hence, I made it a special committee. The occasion for inquiring into this matter is very great and manifest. I have just returned from my constituents, and I know of several instances in which I have sent communications and public documents to them which have not arrived at their destination. The same kind of complaints are made all over the Commonwealth. There is some occasion for inquiry here; hence, I offered the resolution.

Mr. SCHALL. Mr. Speaker, I would state, in this connection, that the same complaint was made to me by the postmaster at Harrisburg. The difficulty seems to be that the documents are wrapped in such poor paper that the directions are torn off. In a great many cases the wrappers of the documents are torn off. I suppose it must be the fault of somebody here.

Mr. RIDGWAY said that he had great complaints from his constituents, as not receiving public documents.

Mr. DONOVAN said that he trusted there would be no more special committees, as they never amounted to anything, and never would.

Mr. LOWRY said he believed the committee was not empowered to send for persons and papers.

Mr. BIGHAM was understood to say that the postoffice department had made complaints against the officers of the Legislature for not properly securing documents.

Mr. SEARIGHT. Mr. Speaker, I am satisfied, sir, that this will result in no practical good, although I am willing that it should pass. The same state of things has existed here for years, and I am not sure that any remedy can be had.

The resolution was adopted.

AN AFTERNOON SESSION.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I move that when this Senate adjourn, it adjourn to meet at three o'clock this afternoon, for the purpose of proceeding with the regular orders.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I have just one thing to say. I was in the general railroad law disposed of, as much as the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM], or the Senator from Erie [Mr. LOWRY], or any other Senator. But I call attention to the fact that there is to be a State temperance convention to be in session this afternoon, which convention has been called, in part, at least, at the request of the Governor and members of the Legislature. Senators upon this floor will remember that they signed a petition requesting a meeting of this character. I observe many delegates here from all parts of the State, among whom are many of the constituents of members. I trust, therefore, that the motion for an afternoon session will not prevail.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE] has expressed his sentiments upon this question so fully that I need not say a single word. I hope the Senate will not hold an afternoon session.

Mr. BROWNE [Lawrence]. Mr. Speaker, the convention will probably be in session this evening as well as this afternoon. After traveling last night, I think one session is as much as we are fit for. I would much prefer not to have a session either this afternoon or evening.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I will modify my motion so as to read, that "when this Senate adjourns, it will adjourn to meet at ten o'clock to-morrow morning."

The motion as amended was agreed to.

RETURN OF A BILL FROM THE GOVERNOR.

Mr. LOWRY offered the following resolution, which was twice read:

Resolved, That (if the House of Representatives concur,) the Governor be requested to return to the Senate, for amendment, bill No. 201, entitled An act to incorporate the Erie City passenger railway company.

The resolution was adopted.

RECOMMITTAL OF A BILL.

Mr. BIGHAM moved that bill No. 89, on second reading, entitled An act for the better and more impartial selection of persons to serve as jurors in the several courts of this Commonwealth, be recommitted to the Committee on the Judiciary General.

The motion was agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, informed the Senate that the House of Representatives had concurred in the resolution from the Senate requesting the Governor to return to the Senate, for amendment, bill No. 201, entitled An act to incorporate the Erie City passenger railroad company.

BILLS PASSED.

On motion of Mr. ROYER, the Committee on Corporations was discharged from the further consideration of a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Downtown gas and water company.

And, the rules having been dispensed with, the bill was read a second third time, and Passed finally.

Mr. HAINES moved that the rules be dispensed with, and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of bill entitled An act to authorize the election of additional officers in the township of Madison, Perry county.

Mr. HAINES stated that this was a very important bill, and should be passed as soon as possible. He hoped the Senate would indulge him, and allow the bill to pass now.

The motion of Mr. HAINES was agreed to.

And the bill was read a second and third time, and Passed finally.

Mr. SCHALL moved that the Committee on Roads and Bridges be discharged from the further consideration of a bill entitled An act to repeal a certain act relative to the public roads in Meach Chunk township, Carbon county, approved 16th day of March, A. D. 1866, and that the Senate proceed to its consideration.

Mr. SCHALL. This bill was in charge of the Senator from Monroe [Mr. BURNETT], who is absent. He is desirous that it be passed at once, in order to dispense with the election of certain officers this spring.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, this day was set apart for the consideration of the general railroad bill. Whenever that subject has come up, gentlemen have uniformly a large number of pressing bills to pass, and the consideration of the subject has been crowded off. Now, Mr. Speaker, I object, for one, to the consideration of any bill whatever until that is taken up.

Mr. SCHALL. I wish to remind the Senator from Erie [Mr. LOWRY] that this is not a bill. I am doing this as a personal favor to the Senator from Monroe, and I hope the Senator will not put this to my account.

The SPEAKER. Does the Senator from Erie withdraw his objection?

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, if the objection is withdrawn in one case it must be in another. There are other Senators who have stated to me this morning that they desired to have bills passed; and if we break the rule in this case, we shall be bound to in every case.

The motion of Mr. SCHALL was agreed to.

And the rules having been dispensed with, the bill was read a second and third time, and Passed finally.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY moved that the Committee on Education be discharged from the further consideration of bill entitled A supplement to the act entitled An act for the erection of the Gettysburg gymnasium into a college, and for other purposes, approved the 7th of April, 1852, and that the Senate proceed to its consideration.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was given.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I have to leave town at noon, and it is very desirable that this bill should pass. It gives our college authority to borrow money for the purpose of erecting additional buildings. It is very brief, and I ask that the orders be suspended, and that it be passed. I ask that the committee be discharged.

The motion was agreed to.

And the rules having been dispensed with, the bill was read a second and third time, and Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. JAMES, the Committee on Railroads was discharged from the further consideration of the bill entitled An act to revise the charter of the New Hope, Doylestown and Norristown railroad company, passed the 23d day of March, 1856, and its several supplements.

And the rules having been dispensed with, the bill was read a second and third time, and Passed finally.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

No. 62, an act to vacate a portion of Spruce Alley, in the Ninth ward of the city of Pittsburg.

With information that the House of Representatives has passed the same without amendments.

THE GENERAL RAILROAD LAW.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to authorize the formation of railway corporations.

In committee of the whole (Mr. M'CONAUGHY in the chair), the first section was read as follows:

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That any number of citizens of Pennsylvania, not less than nine, may form a company for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating a railway, to be operated by steam power, for public use in the conveyance of persons and property, and for that purpose may make and sign articles of association, in which shall be stated the name of the company, the number of years the same is to continue, the places from and to which the railway is to be constructed or maintained and operated, the length of such railway, as near as may be, and the name of each county in this State, through or into which it is made, or intended to be made, the amount of the capital stock of the company, which shall not be less than fifteen thousand dollars for every mile of railway constructed, or proposed to be constructed, and the number of shares of which said capital stock shall consist, and the names and places of residence of a president, and not less than six nor more than twelve directors of the company, who shall manage its affairs for the first year and until others are chosen in their places; each subscriber to such articles of association shall subscribe thereto his name, place of residence and the number of shares of stock he agrees to take in said company, on compliance with the provisions of the second section of this act; such articles of association shall be acknowledged by at least three of the directors, before some officer competent to take acknowledgment of deeds in the county where the principal office is designed to be located, and filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, who shall endorse thereon the day they were filed, and record the same in a book to be provided by him for that purpose; and thereupon the said articles of association shall become and be a charter for the said company, and the persons who have so subscribed such articles of association, and all persons who shall become stockholders in such company, shall be a corporation by the name specified in such articles of association or charter, and shall possess the powers and privileges following, to wit:

First, To have succession, by its corporate name, for the period limited in its articles of association;

Second, To sue and be sued, complain and defend, in any court of law or equity;

Third, To make and use a common seal, and alter the same at pleasure.

Fourth, To hold, purchase and convey such real and personal estate, as the purposes of the corporation shall require, not exceeding the amount needful for the business thereof, and which shall be so limited in the articles of association;

Fifth, To appoint such subordinate officers and agents as the business of the corporation shall require, and to allow them a suitable compensation;

Sixth, To make by-laws, not inconsistent with any existing law, for the management of its property and regulation of its affairs, and for the transfer of its stock.

On the question,

Will the committee agree to the section?

Mr. BIGHAM moved to amend the same, by adding after the words "proposed to be constructed, and the number of shares," the words "at fifty dollars each."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. BIGHAM also moved to amend, by striking out the words "at least three," and inserting in lieu thereof the words "a majority," so that it would read "such articles of association, and shall be acknowledged by a majority of the directors."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. BIGHAM also moved to amend, by striking out, at the end of the fourth privilege, the words "and which shall be so limited in the articles of association."

The amendment was

Not agreed to.

On the question,

Will the committee agree to the section as amended?

Mr. COLEMAN moved to amend the same by striking out, at the commencement of the section, the words, "to be operated by steam power."

Mr. COLEMAN. In a general railroad law, it might be desired to have railroads where horse power could be used. I do not want this to reach the system of passenger railroads in our cities. We can remember when the State road was operated by horse power, and there is no knowing whether we may not some day use electricity.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

On the question,

Will the committee agree to the section as amended?

Mr. BIGHAM moved to amend the same by striking out the word "fifteen," and inserting, in lieu thereof, the word "ten," so that it would read, "ten thousand dollars for every mile of railway constructed."

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Chairman, I hope it will be altered to ten thousand; fifteen thousand is rather heavy. I hope to see the day when we can lay down tracks on our turnpikes and plank roads, for we can now overcome grades with very great facility. I have one on my own property, which runs at a grade of two hundred and twelve feet to the mile. It seems to me that ten thousand dollars a mile is very liberal.

Mr. RIDGWAY. Suppose parties think they can build a road at ten thousand dollars a mile, and then depend upon borrowing.—After they start, they often find that it will cost thirty thousand. They would then be tied up. But if they are at liberty to take ten thousand, with the privilege of borrowing fifteen thousand, they can make their road.

Mr. COLEMAN. I think the Senator will find that they have power to increase their stock, for necessary purposes, indicated in this bill.

Mr. BIGHAM. I suppose the leading object of going into committee of the whole is to perfect the bill. This bill will apply mainly to the building of local roads. While it is true that a first-class road may cost the price indicated by the Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. RIDGWAY], it is within my own knowledge that roads are built and operated very largely by private individuals, for the purpose of carrying coal, the whole expense of which does not exceed two thousand five hundred dollars a mile. There are cases in which high rates of speed are required, but for freight purposes a road can be built, which will answer the purposes at an expense of ten thousand dollars per mile. And remember that this amendment only says that it shall not be less than ten thousand; it may be made fifty thousand, if they please.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Chairman, the intent and purpose of this bill is to facilitate the construction of railroads through the Commonwealth. The locality in which a railroad could be the most cheaply constructed, would more likely be selected for its construction than a locality in which it would be more expensive to construct. Therefore, we should so frame the law that, in localities in which railroads can be cheaply constructed, the people may have the opportunity to build them. If we make the minimum fifteen thousand dollars, and there are localities where roads can be constructed for ten thousand per mile, we simply exclude those people from the benefits of the law; or you oblige them to pay a tax on a larger amount of capital than is necessary. Hence, it appears to me, that inasmuch as the bill purports to be a bill to facilitate the building of free railroads, we should make it as free as we possibly can, and do away with all restriction, not absolutely necessary; and I think that the proposition of the Senator should be adopted.

Mr. RIDGWAY. I would like to ask where they can build a railroad for less than fifteen thousand dollars per mile, anywhere. It costs, in Philadelphia, now, fifteen thousand dollars per mile.

Mr. COLEMAN. The prices of everything are excessively high. The present rate of labor and material is not going to last forever; we shall come down to the old prices again, when railroad iron has been sold for fifty dollars a ton. The object of the bill is to develop the interests of the State.

Mr. BIGHAM. I am told that the road from Connellville to Uniontown—some twelve miles long—which was built at the breaking out of the war, and which is run by steam—I am told that the cost of that road did not exceed ten thousand dollars per mile. Mr. WHITE. Just a word on this subject. I apprehend that all want to be practical in this matter, and this is simply a practical question. The question is, are there any roads in this Commonwealth which can be built at the rate of ten thousand dollars per mile, and if there are, then this provision ought to be in. Now, sir, I know of one road, the estimated cost of which was ten thousand dollars per mile; whether it was built for that, I do not know; but I can lay my hand upon the official report in a short time. It certainly did not exceed ten thousand dollars per mile. And furthermore, look at the laws of the Western States, which have been ripped over with railroads. In the States of Ohio and Indiana, you will find it ten thousand per mile, and I think the same in Illinois. In our sister State, New York, it is certainly ten thousand per mile. We should let trade protect itself.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Chairman, the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] has so well expressed my feelings in this matter, that I will not follow up the subject. If we intend to be practical, we will require more than ten thousand dollars per mile. If this bill is intended to facilitate the building of railroads, this Senate will not ask more than that. I know, Mr. Chairman, of many portions of this Commonwealth, where four thousand dollars will grade a road; and I, sir, would be willing to vote for a railroad law by which the stock subscribed should grade the road, and I repeat, sir, that I know of roads in Pennsylvania that have been graded for four thousand five hundred dollars a mile; and many of the roads yet to be built in Pennsylvania are of that character, and can be cheaply graded. They will pass over the surface of the earth by removing but little dirt.

Mr. WALLACE. I understand the bill to provide that mortgage may be made upon the road bed to an amount not exceeding twenty thousand dollars per mile. Now, sir, it seems to me that the purpose of the law should be to facilitate the construction of railroads. Ten thousand dollars per mile, in my own section, which is mountainous, is sufficient. Why must we make our capital stock be more than is necessary? Why not mortgage the road bed for enough to iron it? Here, it appears to me, is a liberal policy, fixing the amount at the minimum, and allowing a mortgage on the road for sufficient to iron it. Thus you encourage men to go upon the ground. If the trade and travel of the locality appear to demonstrate that it will be a paying road, the money can be obtained the mortgage taken, the road constructed, and the State benefited. It seems to me that we should adopt this amendment.

Mr. BROWN. (Lawrence). Mr. Chairman, let us contrast our policy with that of neighboring States. Suppose that in New York there are greater facilities for building roads than in Pennsylvania; the result will be that more roads will be built there. There are more roads in Ohio than in Pennsylvania. West of the Pennsylvania line, the country is covered with railroads. When you come to Pennsylvania they are comparatively few. In any law of this kind, we should see to it that we give our citizens an equality with other States. If we give facilities for railroad communication, east and west, we give facilities for all the resources of our State.—For this and other reasons, we should adopt a liberal policy.

Mr. SEARIGHT. Mr. Chairman, I wish merely to make a statement in regard to the construction of the Fayette County railroad. That road is twelve miles long, and the report shows that it cost one hundred and thirty thousand dollars. That is a little over ten thousand dollars per mile. I have a report of the president of the road, and he adds that if you include the grading, the cost would be greater. There is no tunneling upon it, and no cuts of any importance.

On the question,
Will the committee agree to the amendment offered by Mr. BIGHAM? It was

Agreed to.
And the question recurring,
Will the committee agree to the section as amended? It was

Agreed to.
The second section was read as follows: SEC. 2. Such articles of association shall not be filed and recorded in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth until at least ten thousand dollars of stock, for every mile of railway proposed to be made, is subscribed thereto, and ten per centum paid thereon in good faith and in cash to the directors named in said articles of association; nor until there is an affidavit sworn or annexed thereto, an affidavit, made by at least three of the directors named in said articles, that the amount of stock required by this section has been in good faith subscribed, and ten per centum paid in cash thereon, as aforesaid, and that it is intended in good faith to construct and to maintain and operate the railway mentioned in such articles of association; which affidavit shall be recorded with the articles of association, as aforesaid; and the stockholders of all corporations, organized under this act, shall be individually liable, to the amount of their stock, for the payment of wages, of labor, materials furnished, right of way, property used, and damages incurred in the construction, maintenance, and operation of their respective railways, that may be due and unpaid by the company for a period not exceeding six months: Provided, That demand for the same shall be made upon any stockholder, or stockholders, within the six months before mentioned.

On the question,
Will the committee agree to the section? Mr. FISHER moved to amend the same by adding to the end thereof the following:

"Provided, That in all cases where lands shall be taken for the use of any railroad, the company shall pay such sum as shall be awarded by appraisers, appointed under the provisions of the general railroad law, subject to appeal to the court of common pleas of the county in which such road may be located; and when such damages shall have been paid, that the railroad company shall hold the said land in fee simple; and,

Provided further, That in the event of an appeal from the award of damages of any such board of appraisers to the court of common pleas of the county in which such road may pass, and the landholder or landholders fail to recover a greater amount than was awarded by the said board of appraisers, that the said appellant shall pay all costs on account of such appeal."

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Chairman, my reason for offering that amendment is this: In all cases where railroads are located in this Commonwealth, where the company pays for the damages to the landholder, the landholder still has an interest in the property, and whenever they change the location of that road, that land reverts back to the original owner, who calls for a payment of the damages a second time. I think that in all cases where roads are built, and the highest damages paid, that the road should require a fee simple of the land. In cases of an appeal from the decisions of appraisers, it very often occurs that the person appeals to the courts, and no matter what the decision may be, the costs fall upon the railroad company, whether the same amount of damages is allowed or not. That I think is unfair. Hence, this second provision, that where parties appeal, they ought to pay the costs of the appeal.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Chairman, this involves some consideration, and I wish briefly to say a few words. The original idea of this bill was to provide the machinery by which companies should be organized, and to put them in the same condition that they were after coming here and getting a special act of the Legislature, and to see that the laws of the State, the act of 1849 and its supplements. Therefore, whether I think these laws are wise or unwise, I intend to endeavor to keep to that idea. I do not want two systems in Pennsylvania. Whenever we are satisfied that the law of 1849 and its supplements is unwise, I want the influence of every member who is interested in railroads to revise it.

This amendment adopts a radical change. From the days of William Penn to this time the practice in reference to all public roads has been, that the public has simply a right of way. The consequence is, that when a country or State road is vacated, it ceases. The public had simply a right of way, and that property reverts to the owner. The owner is willing to allow a road to go through his farm, but a fee simple is hostile to his views; he will not consent to it. Therefore, without reverting to whether this is the wisest system or not, I hope this amendment will be voted down; it changes the whole public road law of Pennsylvania, and introduces a new feature. If it is thought wise to change that law, very well.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Chairman, the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM] expresses my views very well in regard to the general subject. But let us suppose another case. In my section we have coal mines, and the fee extends indefinitely upwards as well as downwards. The owner now can dig indefinitely under the surface. But suppose you give the railroad company, by this process, the fee, and they go downward, and prevent the owner from going downward. You present an obstacle to the owner, if you change this law and give them the fee. It appears to me this would be an objection to the proposition.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Chairman, I think the Senator from Lancaster [Mr. FISHER] has not, probably, reflected upon this feature, or he would not have introduced it. My friend, the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM], has very well stated the constitutional power given to every man to protect his property. Every man has a right to his property, and cannot be deprived of it without proper compensation therefor; that is in the declaration of rights. Our Supreme Court has made decisions upon that principle, and the general railroad law of 1849 has provided for the assessment of damages where private property is taken for public purposes. It is made the duty of certain parties to agree with the propertyholder as to compensation. If they fail to do so, then juries are appointed to view the ground and make a calculation of the value of the land taken, and the amount of compensation necessary, and they make a report, taking into consideration the advantages and disadvantages resulting to the owner from the construction of the road. If the court confirms the report the matter stands. Upon payment the right of the company to ingress and egress from that ground is complete. But the Supreme Court have decided that it was not in the power of the Legislature to give the right to any railroad company to take the absolute fee. The reverting interest always remains in the propertyholder. I hope that this amendment will not prevail.

On motion of Mr. RIDGWAY, the committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again.

On the question,
Shall the committee of the whole have leave to sit again?

It was determined in the negative.
[As the committee of the whole failed to get leave to sit again, the amendments already adopted fell.]

Pending the question,
Will the Senate agree to the first section?
The hour of one o'clock having arrived,
The SPEAKER adjourned the Senate until ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

TUESDAY, February 26, 1867.

The House met at 10 o'clock, A. M.
Prayer was offered by the Rev. J. KENNEDY, member from Wyoming.

The SPEAKER announced a quorum of members present.

The Journal of Thursday of last week was read and approved.

On motion of Mr. STUMBAUGH, the further reading of the same was dispensed with.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, there was a bill upon the private calendar this day two weeks ago that was objected off. Last week there was a motion made and carried to refuse to lay it aside for a second reading.

This bill provided for the removal of the petroleum refineries in the city of Philadelphia.

All the parties immediately interested about the firm have petitioned that this bill should pass, and I understand that all the parties in this body that had any objections to it have withdrawn that opposition, at least they do not interpose, and are willing to be governed by the petitions that have been sent here. I therefore move that the orders of the day be suspended for the consideration of Senate bill No. 25.

Mr. JOSEPHS. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman is mistaken about all the objections being withdrawn. The majority of the Philadelphia delegation are against the bill. It is a very important bill, and ought not to pass this House.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, how does this discussion become in order now?

The SPEAKER. It is not in order. The gentleman from Philadelphia moves that the orders of the day be suspended for the purpose of considering Senate bill No. 25.

Mr. JOSEPHS. Mr. Speaker, I call for a division of the question.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my motion. I had no idea there was going to be any objection to it. The matter has been misrepresented to me.

PRIVATE CALENDAR.

Agreeably to order,
The House proceeded to the consideration of the bills on the private calendar.

The following bills were read the first time and laid aside for a second reading:

No. 491, an act to exempt the passengers of the Park Presbyterian congregation, in the city of Erie, Pennsylvania, from taxation.

Senate bill No. 225, an act to legalize a tax laid by the acting supervisor of Kingston township, Luzerne county, in 1864, for bounty purposes.

No. 494, an act to authorize the school board of North Heidelberg township, in the county of Berks, to levy and collect an additional bounty tax.

No. 495, an act authorizing the supervisors of Greene township, in the county of Berks, to collect a tax and pay certain bounties and refund money advanced for to pay bounties.

Amended by Mr. M'PHERLIN.

No. 496, a supplement to an act in relation to the payment of bounties to volunteers from the township of Farmington, Tioga county, during the late rebellion.

Amended by Mr. BOYLE, Mr. BOYLE, Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to object to this bill, but I want to call the attention of the gentleman who has charge of it to one of its provisions. In the fourth section there is a provision making the company subject to a tax on dividends. I do not know what the purpose of putting that provision in is, but there is a question now being considered in the Committee of Ways and Means and by the State Treasurer concerning these taxable dividends, and I am fearful that this may be put in for an improper purpose. The act of Assembly putting a tax on capital stock is thought by some to be a tax on dividends, but it is not so held by the Auditor General, the Treasurer and the courts. I would like to know what the provision was put in here for. The reason is probably the act of 1866 imposes a tax which lay on dividends and provides that companies which lay on dividends shall not pay a tax on net earnings, which makes a very great difference as to the tax to be levied.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, the bill was read in place by my colleague [Mr. SWERS], and he authorized me to say that he would not object to an amendment of that kind.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out in the tenth line of the fourth section the words "on dividends" and inserting the word "either" before the word "taxes" in the same line.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

No. 623, an act to authorize the election of additional officers in the township of Madison, Perry county.

With information that the Senate has passed the same without amendments.

He also informed that the Senate has concurred in the amendments made by the House of Representatives to Senate bill numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

Senate bill No. 121, an act to incorporate the M'Connell mineral company of Pennsylvania.

The hour of 10 o'clock having arrived, THE SPEAKER. The special order for this hour will now be taken up; it being the consideration of House bill No. 392, entitled an act for the relief of Elias Tomc, of York county.

Mr. MAISH. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted.

Mr. ROATH. Mr. Speaker, I hope that motion will not be carried. I think this bill should be passed. When this bill was passed by the committee, I had occasion to write to York county for some information in reference to this matter. I received a communication from the Hon. Thomas E. Cochran, and he makes the following statement:

"I can only add, that if Tomc is to be re-mitted to the committee, and the habeas corpus, he will never be discharged from imprisonment. He has already been in jail five years and three months; and under his present commitment will only be discharged by death.

"Yours respectfully,

(Signed,) THOS. E. COCHRAN.

"To E. D. ROATH, Esq."

This man has already been in jail five years and three months, and his present commitment will only be discharged by his death, unless some action is taken by this Legislature.

Now, I hope this bill will pass. This is an unjust commitment, and when a man is committed unjustly I think the Legislature should take some action in the premises, and have him released.

I hope the gentleman from York [Mr. MAISH] will withdraw his motion.

Mr. MAISH. Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to enter into a discussion of the merits or demerits of this bill. My purpose in making my motion is merely to give the parties who are interested an opportunity to be heard. The gentleman does not know whether this is an unjust imprisonment or not. He has received his information from parties who are employed as counsel to get him out of prison. Those are not the persons to whom we should go for information at all.

Mr. Tomc was imprisoned for contempt of court. Personally I have no enmity towards Mr. Tomc, and I should be rejoiced to see him released myself, but the heirs he has defrauded are anxious to have a hearing before the committee, and I think that the opportunity should be afforded. This matter was put through committee in a sort of clandestine manner. The parties interested did not have an opportunity to be heard; they did not have an opportunity to present their case to the committee, and they are anxious to do so. They are anxious to come up here and present their case to the committee, and they will be perfectly satisfied if that committee shall choose to release this man after they are heard. That is my motive for making this motion. They have written to me and urged me to have this matter recommitted, so that they can be heard before the committee. I do not believe that this bill will have the effect of releasing this man, even if it is passed. I do not believe that this Legislature has a right to interfere with the courts in this way, but he that as it may, it is perfectly proper that the heirs whom this man has defrauded, and whose money he has now in his possession, should be heard.

Mr. ROATH. Mr. Speaker, this man Tomc has suffered the penalty of his crime according to law, and has been relieved from the fine that was inflicted upon him for the error of the Commonwealth. He has served his time in prison, and it is also stated that the heirs have signified their willingness to have him released, but he was committed for alleged contempt of the orphans' court, and in the manner that he was committed, he should not have been held in prison over three months, as you will find by the Digest, and he has now been in prison over three years. The judge alone can issue a writ to have him released. If General M'CREARY was in his seat, he would have to maintain a record in his behalf, for which he is held thus, but he is not in his seat, and it is not to be got at. But everything I say is fair and proper.

In regard to this bill getting through committee clandestinely, I know that it is no such thing. The bill was laid over from time to time, in order to give an opportunity to parties to furnish information thus desired. The committee has acted fairly in the premises, and thus have reported this bill to the House. The gentleman from York [Mr. MAISH] objected it on the calendar last week. It was made the special order this morning, and there was plenty of time for all parties to be present, and I would like to see the bill passed.

Mr. BARTON. Mr. Speaker, in the absence of the chairman of the Judiciary Committee, the committee which had this bill before them for consideration, I would state, in reply to the gentleman from York [Mr.

MAISH], that this bill was fully and fairly considered, in my judgment, in the committee. It was considered upon one or two occasions, and was thoroughly discussed by the parties having the bill in charge, and also by some gentlemen who are opposed to the passage of the bill. I say this much, in reply to the gentleman from York, who asserted that this bill was put through the committee clandestinely.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, as there seems to be a sort of general discussion upon this bill, I need only say, in justification of the position of the gentleman from York, that the bill did not, perhaps, have a fair consideration in the hands of the committee. I did not understand the gentleman to say that the bill was put before the House clandestinely. The gentleman from Lancaster [Mr. ROATH] represented one party interested in the passage of this bill before the committee. He was there asked whether the judge of that court had any notice of these proceedings, and the committee was informed by the gentleman from Lancaster that it was not, to his knowledge, known to the judge. I suggested that the committee ought not to act upon it until the judge had been heard from; and upon that ground, I voted against the bill. I do not know what the merits of it are. I have no doubt that the gentleman from Lancaster fairly states what he believes to be the facts of the case.

But I think it would be very well, although I am aware that the committee have no wish to act upon it again, that we should recommend, in order that all parties may be heard; and if there is then no objection to the bill, the matter might be fully discussed. I do not know anything about the circumstances connected with the case.

The gentleman from Delaware [Mr. BARROW] made a statement of what passed in the committee, and I only know that it is proper that all the parties interested should be made acquainted with the matter and heard before the committee in case they desire to be.

Mr. ROATH. Mr. Speaker, as the gentleman from Eric [Mr. M'CREARY] is now in his seat, I would ask that the memorial from Mr. Tomc be read.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I have a memorial from Mr. Tomc in this case. I would state in regard to this matter that it presented a very curious case before the committee. Very few there had any knowledge of a case like it, yet it was evident to my mind that this man Tomc was suffering a great injustice, and I have seen a letter from Mr. Thomas E. Cochran, a gentleman well known to nearly all the citizens of this State, in which he gave it as a fact that it was utterly impossible for this man to be released unless the Legislature intervenes in his behalf. It seems that he was the administrator or executor or guardian of an estate, and held money in his hands belonging to the estate; that through some difficulties or mismanagement or otherwise, he expended this money and was unable to replace it when called upon to do so. I understand that he had been cited to file his account, and not wishing to set forth how he had expended the money, he failed to render his account, and was committed for contempt.

Mr. MAISH. I want this matter understood. I have been told that this man is committed, because he refuses to tell how he lost that money, what became of it. I want to ask if that is the case?

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, if I understand the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN], he gives as the cause for this man's being imprisoned that he refuses to tell how he spent this money. Now, I do not think a man could be put in that position. If an executor of an estate, when he comes to file his account, should not produce the money, the proper way to proceed is to compel him to pay it. He cannot be made to come and tell how he spent the money. It is sufficient for the court to know that he could not produce the money when called upon.

Mr. MANN. Will the gentleman from Erie permit me to ask him a question? I want to get at the facts, and the gentleman may argue the reasons for it afterwards. I want to know if the gentleman can tell for what this man is in contempt?

Mr. M'CREARY. As near as I can find out, when he was cited to file his account, he could not do so, and as a matter of course he would be in contempt; that is the order in all courts.

There was nothing very definite in reference to the matter before the committee. But the reason was not given, because he refused to tell for what he spent this money.

Mr. BOYLE. Will the gentleman allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. M'CREARY. Certainly.

Mr. BOYLE. May not this man be released at any time by filing his account according to this order of the court, if it is for that he is in contempt?

Mr. M'CREARY. I suppose he could if he could file his account, but I suppose he cannot well do that.

Mr. BOYLE. Is it not the duty of an executor or an administrator to file an account, and is it not customary, in case the executor or administrator refuses to obey the citation of the court, to commit him; and would not the court, at any time, have the right to release him?

Mr. M'CREARY. Yes, sir.

Mr. BOYLE. In reply to the statement of Mr. Cochran that this man can only be released by death, I would ask if he would not be released by purging himself of this contempt?

Mr. M'CREARY. I have no doubt of that; the way that he squandered the money, I presume, is in a way such that he does not desire to file his account.

He was committed for embezzlement for two years, and then was imprisoned for contempt, and has remained there three years longer.

Mr. MANN. I want to get at the facts. Is it true that this man is in jail simply because he refuses to file his account?

Mr. M'CREARY. We had so few facts before the committee that I had to infer in a great measure the truth of the facts. My inference is that he was cited to file an account and he refuses to put upon paper the way in which he squandered the money, and he was put into jail for contempt and the court cannot now well relieve him.

Mr. BOYLE. Did I understand the gentleman to say that he refuses to file his account because it would put him upon record as having squandered the money?

Mr. M'CREARY. I did not say that was the fact. I merely inferred that the man does not wish to put himself upon record as having squandered the money. I understand that the parties interested say will do not wish to be released, but the court do not wish to release him because it will be a falling back from his dignity to do so.

I do not see how the judge can do so without backing down. It is a question whether the judge shall back down or whether the man shall come up to put upon paper the evidence that he is a rascal. He was tried and imprisoned two years for embezzlement and has now been three years in prison for contempt. The party interested may desire to pay the money dollar for dollar, but I will let him out. The man was wrong in the first place, doubtless, but I submit, that in years of imprisonment is enough. It is, perhaps, through his fault that he became involved and squandered the money; and because he refuses to file his account, he was properly committed to jail. He has remained there years for that contempt, and I think it is time enough. It is a mere question of jail and court etiquette, as near as I can understand it.

Mr. MEYERS. I would like to know from the chairman of the committee, whether, upon the consideration of the reasons he has given to the House here, he has reported in favor of this bill, and if those were the only reasons?

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I believed from the statements made before the committee; and all the evidence I could gain upon the question, that this man had suffered imprisonment long enough. He was in there for no crime, except a refusal to render his accounts—it was merely for contempt of the court. He was not sentenced for a crime. He was sentenced two years for embezzlement, and the remaining three years he has remained in prison for contempt of court; and I say that is long enough for any man, and I would do everything to aid such a bill, after so long an imprisonment, any day that it came before me.

Mr. MEYERS. In my opinion, persons acting in the fiduciary capacity of executors of an estate, as guardians of minors, the court cannot be too stringent in requiring to perform their duty and their whole duty.

Mr. M'CREARY. If this man should not now be taken out of prison, will the gentleman tell me any time in his life that he could get out?

Mr. MEYERS. Yes, sir. He could get out to-morrow morning. As I said before, if there are any persons who should be held stringently, it is those who stand in the fiduciary capacity of the guardians of minors, or lunatics, or any similar class. This party, if I understand from the information before the House, was a guardian and was owing these minor children, and some of their friends presented a petition to the court, by which a citation was issued against this man and he failed to answer that citation. In that failure there are two things to be considered; first, what account has he failed to answer to the court? The court could not file an account on their own motion. They could not get exactly at the facts set forth as pro confesso, but they could appoint an auditor and file an account by reason of his failure to do so for the benefit of the court. If, upon the filing of that account by the auditor, this person fails to pay over the money which is contained in the account, they can proceed against him in a criminal court. I understand that proceedings were had against this man for embezzlement, that he was convicted, sentenced and punished.

He then failed to answer the citation of the court, and because he set himself up in opposition to the mandate of the court, and refuses to comply with their citation, he was again committed to the county jail, and was properly so committed. Now, what is the position of any person who fails to perform his duty to the court, if the money they can proceed against them in a criminal court. I understand that proceedings were had against this man for embezzlement, that he was convicted, sentenced and punished. If I understand the facts, all that is necessary is to render his accounts; in other words, must render to the court an account of the money which he has received, and how he received it, what amount of interest he got from that money, and how much he has necessarily spent in the proper discharge of his duties.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, the difficulty with the House, it seems to me, is to get at a clear understanding of the case. The House seemed to be under the impression that this man is committed there for contempt in not filing an account. The statement is also made that he was committed for contempt of court in not paying over the balance of the account in his hands to the heirs.

Mr. M'CREARY. I would like to ask the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL], whether a man could be put in jail for that contempt?

Mr. WADDELL. Yes sir, if a person, filing an account, shows a balance against him, the parties interested can ask for a writ of the court compelling him to pay it over, and if he refuses to do it, the court may commit him for contempt. That then becomes contempt, for the court has no other contempt. That I understand to be the position, and I would ask the memorial to be read for the information of the House.

The memorial was read as follows:

To the Honorable, the Senate and House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, in General Assembly met:

The petition of the undersigned would respectfully represent: That his aunt, Veronica Gable, late of the township of Manchester, county of York, died in the year 1857, leaving a will, in which she appointed him one of the executors of her estate; that the will was proven on the fourteenth day of October of the same year, and letters testamentary granted to your petitioner by the register of the county aforesaid; that, in pursuance of said trust he commenced the discharge of his duties, and, as he resided some twenty miles distant from the property, incurred heavy expenses in settling the same; that on the 31st day of August, 1861, the letters granted to your petitioner were vacated, and he was ordered to pay over the amount in his hands, of the estate of the said Veronica Gable, deceased; that not being able to do so, having sustained losses in various ways to a large sum or sums, at the January session of the court in 1862, a bill of indictment was found against your petitioner for embezzling the moneys in his hands belonging to said estate; that at the April session of the court, the said bill was tried and your petitioner convicted, and sentenced to pay a fine of one thousand dollars, and moreover to undergo an imprisonment in the jail of York county, for a period of two years, and costs of prosecution; that said term of imprisonment has long since expired, the fine has been remitted by the Governor of the Commonwealth, and the county commissioners are ready and willing to release the costs. But your deponent and petitioner would aver that notwithstanding he is still held in confinement and detained in prison by the orphans' court of the county of York, for an alleged contempt in not paying over the sum stated to be in his hands, and has been so held and detained since the expiration of the term of his imprisonment for an additional period of nearly three years for the contempt aforesaid. Your petitioner would aver that it never was his design to commit any contempt of court, that he has no portion of the estate of the said Veronica Gable in his hands, and that he is entirely unable to pay the same at present, and that he certainly never can pay the same, or any portion thereof, while kept in confinement; that of the moneys which came into his hands of the estate of the said Veronica Gable, he paid a portion of it to the heirs of the said Veronica, and the balance he lost in various ways, incurring heavy expenses in traveling, council fees, &c., of which he kept no correct account,

Your petitioner is anxious to do justice to the heirs of the said Veronica Gable and pay them off dollar for dollar, but such thing is impossible under his present imprisoned condition; that the said heirs have signed petitions for his release, but the court will not take any further action in the matter, and refuses to discharge your petitioner; that he has now been in confinement in the York county prison for a period of nearly five years. Your petitioner would, therefore, pray your honorable bodies to pass a law discharging him from the further custody of the jail keeper of the county of York; and he will ever pray, &c.

ELIAS TOME.

York County, ss:

Elias Tome, being duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that the facts set forth in the foregoing petition are true and correct.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 9th day of July, 1866.

LEBRECHT TRACER, J. P.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, whether the facts set forth in that memorial are true or not, it would appear from the remarks of the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY] that he has hardly read the memorial or had any evidence before him in reference to these facts at all. It seems to me, Mr. Speaker, that the orphans' court had authority to require this man to pay over the balance of the money in his hands; they had equal authority to commit him for that contempt. He could purge himself of that contempt, by answering that it was impossible, for want of means, to pay this money, and no court of justice, I hold, would hold any person in imprisonment for contempt, if he answered that he was unable to perform that which would purge him. If he has not the means in his power to meet that decree of the court, if he could not purge himself in the sense in which a man can purge himself, if he would say that he was unable to pay by reason of losses or any other reason, the court could not require him to make any statement that would criminate himself, even for the purpose of purging himself. Now, if the judge of York county refuses to issue a writ of habeas corpus, he cannot go to the Supreme Court and there be relieved, if by his sworn answer he states that he is unable to pay, and under oath he says that he cannot be purged in that manner. He can be relieved of this contempt just as all other persons, but he must be relieved directly by the court in which this contempt was perpetrated.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, it is very evident that this motion ought to prevail, because we do not know what we are acting about. It is very evident that we do not know for what this man is in contempt. If this memorial is true, then whatever facts were presented to the committee who had this matter in charge, the committee did not so understand them, for the chairman of that committee is a lawyer, and he would know the bearing of the points of evidence on this case, and would be able to say for what this man is in contempt. Now, here we have this bill offered to take this man out of the hands of a court without knowing for what he has been committed. Therefore, I say, the motion of the gentleman from York [Mr. MANN] is very proper. You do not know for what he is in contempt. Is he in contempt for disobeying the order of a court making him do a thing which he is unable to do? If so, I will vote to discharge him instantly, but if he is in contempt for refusing to obey an order that he can obey, I will let him stay in the jail of York county and not before I will take him out by my vote. If he can do it, it is his business to do it; and why should he not? This is the only question there is about this case.

Has the court required this man to do anything which he cannot do, or not? If he is in jail for refusing to do that which he cannot do, I am in favor of relieving him, but if he is in jail because he refuses to comply with the order of the court in requiring him to file an account (and he does not allege in his memorial that he has filed one, and the memorial corroborates the statements which have been made to me that he has not filed one), if that is so, so far as I am concerned, he will stay there until he does file one. It is monstrous that this Legislature should undertake to interfere with the decree of the orphans' court of this Commonwealth, and to say to this person that he shall file his account or not as he chooses.

If this is what he is in contempt for, this bill is a monstrous proposition. I do not know whether this is the reason or not. I want to know, and this is why I made my inquiry from the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY]. If he had the facts so that he could answer, I would be prepared at once. The memorial does not allege that any account was ever filed, and I am of the opinion that everything that this man is required to do to purge himself is to file his account. And furthermore, I am told that this matter has come to the Supreme Court of this State and they have refused to interfere. If they have referred to the case, I presume that they gave it a fair and just examination, and they decided this question in a proper manner.

It is to be presumed the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania would not require a man to do what he cannot do. It is the very thing the House ought to know, what this man is in contempt for. That is the question I asked the chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and I think, from the answer given, that he is not prepared to say, nor is the committee prepared to say for what that man is in contempt, and therefore I contend that this House is not prepared to vote upon this question.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask whether the committee have in their possession the certified record of these proceedings?

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, it would be supposed, by the indignation manifested here, that the committees of this House are fully supplied with all the evidence and information necessary in cases that come before them. One would also suppose, from the remarks made here, that the Judiciary Local Committee is an exception. I am, however, obliged to believe that many bills that are reported from their committees, come about as they do from the Judiciary Local. I am inclined to think that perhaps the Judiciary General Committee, at times, find some difficulty in getting full information on matters that are before it.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, with all respect to the chairman of the Judiciary Local Committee, my inquiry was not made with any disrespect to the chairman. I can appreciate the labors he has on his shoulders. I know that the labors are very arduous, perhaps more so than any other committee in the House, and perhaps they are as little appreciated as those of any other committee in the House.

I suppose, from the memorial, that this man was not committed for not paying over the balance which the account showed to be in his hands—but this point is not very clear. I think, however, from the reading of the memorial, that it shows that he has filed his account. It is merely from inference that I would draw that conclusion; yet, some courts will make a decree for parties to pay over a balance in their hands without filing an account; and if this is so, he ought certainly to pay over the balance in his hands, some way or other. It would be going back to the same result, if the court should compel him to file an account of the balance in his hands; and if he did so, again commit him for not being able to pay the balance under the decree of the court. This is a question, it is worth while for this House to send him back into the court of York county, where they may commit him again for contempt for not being able to pay over the money under the decree of the court?

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, as I have said before, the committee had not full and satisfactory information upon this bill as it came before them; and I presume there are other bills that come before the committees in this House without satisfactory information to enable the committee to act in all cases conscientiously and judiciously upon them. There seems to be some good reason, without being entirely apparent, why some bills that come before us should go through, and with the expectation that the members in the House who have an interest in the matter will be heard and furnish the information necessary, they are reported. That was the case with this bill. The impression that I received from the gentleman from Lancaster [Mr. ROATH] was that this man Tome had refused to file his account in compliance with the citation of the court, and that he was therefore committed for contempt. In looking over this memorial, it seems to me that he has stated distinctly enough that he has held his account, and then he is committed for contempt in not paying the money over. I believe that men should not be held in jail for contempt of this kind. Perhaps this Hall would suffer depopulation to a certain extent if men who did not pay the debts they owe are to be put in jail for contempt in not so doing. I read in this memorial:

"He is still held in confinement and detained in prison by the orphans' court of the county of York, for an alleged contempt, in not paying over the sum stated to be in his hands, and has been so held and detained since the expiration of his term of imprisonment, for an additional period of three years. for the contempt aforesaid."

Stated how? Why, stated by himself when he filed his account in court. He says he was committed for contempt in not paying over the sum stated to be in his hands. Who stated it to be in hands, if he did not state it, and state it in court? If somebody else stated it, they might have stated something they knew nothing about. And he further states that the heirs interested in this estate are anxious he should be released.

Mr. MAISH. Mr. Speaker, perhaps some of the heirs may have signed a petition for his release, but some certainly have not, and are very anxious to be heard before the committee.

Mr. M'CREARY. A gentleman who holds a high position in this Commonwealth for his unimpeachable integrity as well as a man of great ability, Thomas E. Cochran, says in reference to this case—

Mr. BOYD. Was not Mr. Cochran the attorney for this man?

Mr. M'CREARY. I do not think because he is his attorney he is compelled to say that which is wrong. He states:

"I can only add that if Tome is to be remitted to the committee, and the habeas corpus, he will never be discharged from imprisonment. He has already been in jail five years and three months; and under his present commitment, will only be discharged by death.

"Yours, respectfully,
(Signed) "THOMAS E. COCHRAN,
"TO E. D. ROATE, Esq."

Now, I am not willing to say that a man shall rot in jail because he does not comply with some technical order of the court.

Mr. MANN. I hope the gentleman does not mean that I said that. I say that if this man is required to do a thing which he cannot do, I will vote to let him out. But if he is required to do a thing which he can do, and he refuses to do it, I will vote to keep him in.

Mr. M'CREARY. It is stated that this man is in jail for contempt in not complying with the order of the court, requiring him to pay over the sum in his hands, and I presume that to be the facts of the case. The gentleman from York [Mr. MAISH] does not tell us that this man has committed some heinous crime. Any crime that would commit a man for five years would send him to the penitentiary at once. The very fact that he has been held in the county jail for this length of time, shows that he is held for some technical rule of the court.

Mr. BOYD. Will the chairman of the committee permit the prosecutors to be heard before that committee?

Mr. M'CREARY. I have no objection to that. I have heard no argument in reference to that. The arguments have been upon the merits of the case and some reflections upon the committee for reporting the bill. This bill has been postponed two or three times already, and at least one of the gentlemen from York have had information of these postponements. I think they will bear me out in saying this, and that it was held in our hands several weeks for the purpose of getting further information. I would call upon the gentleman from Northumberland [Mr. THARP] to state if such was not the case.

Mr. THARP. It is my recollection that this bill was laid over several times for the purpose of having all the parties heard before the committee.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, so far as I am concerned, sir, I knew nothing of this bill until it was reported to the House. Now, with regard to those statements and averments made in that memorial. Are you going to take these statements as true, and without question, when they come from the man who has defrauded the heirs out of some twelve or fourteen thousand dollars worth of property? If this is the fact, what are those statements worth coming from him? Are they sufficient to justify us in passing a bill of this kind in very opposition to law? For if that man is held there it is in accordance with law. If I am correctly informed, that committee had but one witness before it, and he is a gentleman who is not a resident of the county, and knows nothing about the case except from ex parte statements made to him. And, sir, are we going to act so indiscreetly and so precipitately in a matter of this kind? Has the judge of that court ever been charged with being unduly severe?

Mr. M'CREARY. Was not this bill up for two weeks for the purpose of allowing the parties to make their statements?

Mr. BOYLE. That was so, but why not allow this bill to again go before this committee that the parties may now be heard?

Mr. M'CREARY. Have you had any information since last week that would justify you in asking that this bill should again go before the committee?

Mr. BOYD. I have not, sir. I do not think witnesses can be heard before this House. All I ask is that this bill may be referred back to the committee that all parties may be heard.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, I do not consider myself capable of entering into an analytical view of the law in this matter, but it does strike me that the gentlemen who are opposing the passage of this bill can state their reasons here why that individual is held in jail by virtue of contempt. This bill has already passed the committee, and has come before the House and is waiting its action, and it does strike me that those who are opposing the passage of this bill can give their reasons why this person is held for contempt.

Mr. MAISH. Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to enter into a discussion of the merits of this bill at all. I think the proper place to hear the facts in this case is before the committee, and that there is no use in spending the time of the House at all with it. I do not wish to reflect upon this committee in the least. I should be sorry if I had done so. But this I will say, that I had no knowledge whatever that there was such a bill before the committee, and it certainly was not postponed on my account for the purpose of giving me or anybody else a hearing. I never had the slightest intimation that such a bill was before the committee, and I was amazed when the gentleman from Carbon [Mr. CRAIG] informed me that such a bill had passed the committee. Now, I think I had a right to know something about it. The parties interested are from my own county. Neither my colleague nor myself had any intimation that such a bill was here. I have always been on friendly terms with Mr. Tome, and I have nothing personally against him. I stand in precisely the same position as a gentleman who has spoken before me does. I do not know whether I shall vote for or against this bill. All I ask is that the parties concerned shall have a fair and impartial hearing. This case has been before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania and is lengthily reported in 14th Wright, and to have all the facts in the case it might be necessary to bring in that report and have it read before the House. But I do not wish to consume the time of this House with this matter, and therefore wish it referred back to the committee in order that they may hear the parties who are thoroughly informed in regard to the matter. I do not pretend to know all about it. In fact I know but very little about its merits, and it may be I will vote for his release. I do not want to see a man imprisoned, if he is imprisoned for contempt and cannot purge himself of that contempt at all. But I say that it is no more than right and just that this House shall give all the parties concerned a hearing before that committee. They cannot be heard before the House, and I am a very poor representative of them myself, for I know but very little about the case. I have received some information since last Tuesday, and the attorney for the heirs is very anxious to have a hearing. I hold a letter in my hand from him in which he makes that statement. He represents the heirs as Mr. Cochran represents Mr. Tome, and both are representative men.

Mr. ROATH. Mr. Speaker, I would state that Mr. Cochran is not the attorney for Mr. Tome at present. He has been his attorney, but has since withdrawn.

Mr. MAISH. I know that he has been his attorney and he is represented as his attorney at present. He certainly has been, and was, when this case was reported in the Supreme Court.

I say that it is just and proper that this House should give those parties a hearing in the only place that can be heard. Then, if the committee again report the bill favorably, I shall examine into the merits of the bill, and if I think this man is wrongly held I shall vote for his release.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I would like it very much if some of the gentlemen from York would tell us why this man is in jail. I am free to say that no man could spend three years for contempt in a jail in my county without my knowing why. The people would demand to know why. And I want to know why such a thing can be done in York county and the representatives come here without knowing why he is imprisoned. It seems to me the gentlemen from York would count a favor upon the House if they would state the reasons. To be in jail for contempt of court is a very unusual thing. It is but a very few years, I remember, since a gentleman was put in jail for contempt of court, and every man, woman and child throughout the State knew it. Imprisonment for contempt of court is something that perhaps does not happen in this State once in half a century. Yet, gentlemen come here from that county, after this man has been imprisoned these three years for contempt, and inquire for information why he is there. Mr. HODG. Mr. Speaker, I have heard the discussion on this subject on both sides. I have listened with considerable attention to understand the subject properly. I understand the matter before the House; this man was in the character of an executor of an estate. For some cause not explained, the letters testamentary were vacated. That is what I understand, and it is so admitted, I believe, by both sides. Subsequently, or about that time, this man was prosecuted by the criminal court of York county for embezzling the property of that estate, was convicted of the offense, sentenced, and served the term of this sentence. Therefore, in this eyes of the law, it would seem that the debt has been paid. After being discharged from prison, he was called upon by the orphans' court to pay over the money which had been due. A citation is issued and he is required to pay over the balance, after he has virtually paid it by his imprisonment. He is called upon by that court, and because he is unable to pay the money (I think that is conceded by both sides), the court then commits him for contempt.

Mr. MANN. How is that fact arrived at? That is what I want to know. That is the very question in dispute, what he was committed for.

Mr. HOOD. I believe both sides have conceded that. I say he was tried, convicted and imprisoned for embezzlement, and after he had served the term of his sentence he was called upon by the orphans' court of that county to pay over that money, and committed for contempt in not doing so. Now, there is no error in this proceeding and the Supreme Court cannot interfere. The orphans' court did right and proper in committing him for not refunding the money and thereby holding the decree of the court in contempt. It is a very plain question of law, and I cannot see any trouble at all in the matter. I am willing to accept the statements of both sides, and I am willing to say that I am firmly convinced that he has been in prison long enough, and I shall, therefore, vote for his liberation.

Mr. WADELL. Mr. Speaker, I think I have the key that will unlock the whole difficulty. From the suggestion of the gentleman from York [Mr. MANN] I have sent for 14th Wright, which contains the full report of the proceedings in this case in the Supreme Court, and I propose to read it to the House.

Mr. BOYLE. Does it take up half the book?

Mr. WADELL. Just about. I propose to read it as my speech.

Mr. BOYLE. It covers fifteen pages, and I rise to a point of order, that this discussion is out of order.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of the opinion that this discussion is entirely in order.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, with the permission of the gentlemen from Chester [Mr. WADELL], I would just say, that it has been suggested to me by a number, that if, we allow the lawyers of this House to much longer proceed in the way they have been doing for the last two or three hours, there will not be a man in the House who will understand the matter.

A citizen of this Commonwealth is incarcerated in jail for five years. The Local Judiciary report a bill to this House to release him from jail. I believe that if the subject is no more mystified by the lawyers, and no more lengthy discussion had upon it, that the House will pass the bill, and I do hope the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADELL] will not inflict forty-eight pages of Supreme Court upon us.

Mr. WADELL. It is only fifteen.

Mr. DAVIS. Fifteen then. Every speech that has been made has led us further from the subject, and more mystified it.

Mr. WADELL. I propose to brush away the cobwebs and make this case plain. I read the case, as reported in 14th Wright:

TOME'S APPEAL.

Dismissed executor, how compelled to deliver to his successor the effects of estate in his hands.

The Orphans' Court has power to enforce, against the person of a dismissed executor, by process of attachment a decree that he should pay and deliver over to his successor all the goods, chattels, and effects of the estate in his hands.

"Appeal from the Orphans' Court of York county.

"This was an appeal by Elias Tome from the decree of the Orphans' Court of York county, directing that he be recommitted to the county prison.

"The case was this:—

"Elias Tome, the appellant, who was one of the executors of Veronica Gable, deceased, filed his first separate account, which was presented to the Orphans' Court on the 18th day of March, 1859, and, after being referred to an auditor, the balance thereon was adjusted at $6,488 35, and, on the same day, a distribution of that balance among the legatees was decreed by the Orphans' Court. An appeal was taken to the Supreme Court at May Term, 1861, when the distribution was modified as to part, and, with that alteration and a recommendation indicated in the opinion of the Supreme Court, the decree was affirmed and the appeal dismissed at the cost of the appellants. See appeal of Gable's Executors, 4 Wright 231.

"The appellant filed his second account as executor, which was presented to the Orphans' Court on the 3d day of February, 1860, and on which the balance was fixed by the report of an auditor on exceptions made to said report on the 28th day of March, 1861, at $3,758 13.

"On the 26th day of April, 1861, on the petition of George Fox and others, claiming to be legatees under the will of Veronica Gable, deceased, a citation was issued on Elias Tome and his co-executor, requiring them to show cause why they should not give security for the performance of their trust, which matter was so proceeded in that on the 31st day of August, 1861, they were ordered to give security in twenty days after notice. At a special Orphans' Court, held on the 1st day of October, 1861, a decree or order was made by the court, reciting that 'proof was made before the said court, that a copy of the order and decree of the court, made on the 31st day of August, A. D. 1861, in the matter of the petition of certain legatees of Veronica Gable, deceased, complaining against Michael Gable and Elias Tome, executors of said testatrix, and praying that they may be required to give security, was duly served upon the said Michael Gable and Elias Tome, in the manner directed and required in and by the said order and decree; and, it appearing to the court that the said executors have neglected to give security as in and by the said decree they are directed and required to do, the court does therefore vacate the letters testatrix granted to the said Michael Gable and Elias Tome, on the estate of the said Veronica Gable, deceased, and award new letters to be granted by the register of wills of the said court; and the court does hereby further order and direct the said Michael Gable and Elias Tome, and each of them, to pay over and deliver to their successor all the goods, chattels, effects and estates of the said testatrix in their hands, or in the hands of either of them respectively.'

"On the 6th of November, 1861, a petition signed William L. Keech, and affirmed to by him, was presented to the Orphans' Court, setting forth that he was administrator de bonis non, with the will annexed of said Veronica Gable; that as administrator as aforesaid he had demanded severally of Elias Tome and Michael Gable, her former executors, who had been dismissed from the trust, and since the order of the court was made, the moneys and effects of the said Veronica Gable in their hands, since their dismissal as aforesaid, and that, they severally refused to comply with said request. On the same day, the court awarded a writ or writs of sequestration against said Tome and Gable, returnable December 12th, 1861. On the first of these writs, Tome's interest in a tract of land in Chanceford township was 'sequestered and levied' by the sheriff; on the second, allowed and awarded on the 29th of April, 1862, a leather trunk, containing about half a dozen paper writings and papers with calculations thereon was levied, attached, and sequestered by the sheriff, as already stated, 'which property,' he, in his return of the said last mentioned date, said, 'I detain and keep under sequestration in my hands.'

"At January Sessions, 1862, information previously made by said William L. Keech, an indictment was preferred against the appellant in the Court of Quarter Sessions of York county, for the offense of embezzlement, charging in the first count that the said Elias Tome, as executor of the said Veronica Gable, did receive and take into his possession a large part of the goods, effects and moneys of the estate of the said Veronica Gable, deceased, the same being property then and there held by him, for the greater part, for the benefit of Jacob Gable, John Gable, Elizabeth Gohu, and other persons, unknown, legatees of said testatrix, of great value, to wit, of the value of $12,000, and that the said Elias Tome, with intent to defraud these legatees, unlawfully and fraudulently converted and appropriated to his own use, a large portion thereof, to wit, of the value of $7,000, and did unlawfully and fraudulently secrete and dispose of the same with intent to appropriate and convert the same to his own use. The second count charged the defendant with having in his possession as executor a large sum of money, to wit, $10,000, part of the estate of said testatrix, the property in part of the persons above named, and with unlawfully and fraudulently appropriating and converting the same to his own use, and with secreting and disposing of the same with intent to appropriate and convert the same to his own use. The third count charged him with having the like sum of money as executor, and with unlawfully and fraudulently concealing, secreting, and disposing thereof with intent to defraud the said Jacob Gable and others. At April Term, 1862, to wit, on the 1st day of May, 1862, a trial was had on this indictment, and the defendant found guilty. On the 10th of May, 1862, the court sentenced the defendant to undergo an imprisonment in the county jail for the term of two years, pay a fine of $1,000, pay the costs of prosecution, and stand committed until the sentence be complied with.

"On the 26th of February, 1864, the court awarded an attias order on Elias Tome to pay over to William L. Keech, administrator with the will annexed of Veronica Gable, deceased, 'the amount of the moneys in his hands belonging to the estate of Veronica Gable, deceased, of which he was executor,' and the court ordered that the said money be paid within five days of the service of said notice. Endorsed on this order, is an affidavit subscribed and sworn to by Jacob Schelberger, saying, 'On this 26th day of February, A. D. 1864, he served the within order on Elias Tome therein named by reading the same to him, and leaving with him a copy thereof duly certified from the record.' This was marked 'filed April 5th, 1864.' On the last mentioned day an attachment was awarded against Elias Tome by the court, which was directed to the sheriff of the county, commanding him to 'attach the said Elias Tome, late executor, &c., so that you have him before the judges of our said Orphans' Court at a court to be held on the 29th of April, 1864, then and there to answer as well touching said contempt in not complying with the said order of our said court, as also such other matters as shall be then and there laid to his charge, and further to perform and abide such order as our said court shall make in this behalf." This writ was returned, "Attached Elias Tome, whose body is in custody in the jail of York county under sentence of the Court of Quarter Sessions for embezzlement, which has not yet expired."

"On the 29th day of April, 1864, an alias attachment was awarded against him, to which a return was made in the same words, with the sentence of the Court of Quarter Sessions of May 10th, 1862, above quoted, added at length. This alias attachment was returnable on the 31st day of May, 1864.

"On the 21st day of May, 1864, a pluries attachment was awarded, returnable on the 26th day of August, 1864, against the said Elias Tome, to which, under date of May 21st, 1864, the sheriff made the same return as on the alias.

"On the 29th day of August, 1864, the respondent moved to set aside and supersede the pluries writ of attachment in this case, for the following reasons:

"1st. The alias rule directing him to pay over to William L. Keech, administrator of Veronica Gable, deceased, contained no statement of the amount of moneys demanded or required to be paid.

"2d. The service of the said rule by Jacob Eichelberger was insufficient to found upon it a writ of attachment, said Eichelberger not being the person mentioned in the said rule, nor having any authority to do so.

"3d. No opportunity was afforded to the said Elias Tome to comply with the order of court in said alias rule made.

"4th. The said Elias Tome, being imprisoned in the jail of York county on a conviction for embezzlement by sentence of the Court of Quarter Sessions of said county, could not be guilty of contempt against the Orphans' Court in not paying over the moneys or delivering securities, papers, &c., to William L. Keech, who never demanded them under said rule, nor complied said Elias Tome any opportunity to do so therewith.

"5th. That the said Elias Tome is not subject to be arrested and taken in execution upon the pluries writ of attachment in this case.

"6th. That the writ of pluries attachment issued in this case is unauthorized by law, a writ of sequestration in the same matter having been previously sued out by William L. Keech, administrator de bonis non, &c., of Veronica Gable, deceased, for the same moneys mentioned in the said writ of attachment, and execution thereof made by the sheriff.

"On the same day, the court fixed Friday, the 9th day of September, 1864, at 10 A. M., for the hearing of the motion to quash the attachment, and remanded the respondent to the custody of the sheriff. On the said last mentioned day, the court overruled the objections to the writ, and ordered the respondent to answer in writing and under oath the contempt alleged against him on Friday, the 15th day of this same month, and stand committed in the meantime. On the same day, counsel for administrator and the legatees moved the court to order the recommitment of the defendant to the custody of the sheriff of the jail of York county, for not complying with the order and decree of the court against him in the premises. The order of the court of the same date was returned by the sheriff under date of September 10th, 1864, served on Elias Tome by reading it to him and handing him a duly certified copy made by the clerk of the Orphans' Court.

"On the 19th day of September, 1864 (to which time the case had been adjourned by the court from the 16th), a paper purporting to be an answer was filed by Elias Tome, duly affirmed to on the same day, in which, after protesting that he was not bound to answer as required by the order of the court of the 9th day of the same month, no interrogatories or other particulars, in writing or otherwise, being exhibited or specified as to which his answer was required, and saving and reserving to himself all and every manner of exceptions to the many deficiencies, irregularities and substantial defects of the proceedings had against him in the matter of said alleged contempt, and disclaiming all purpose or design whatever to resist the proper authority of said court, or to show contempt to, or disregard its orders and decrees, and showing to the court that by reason of his imprisonment in the common jail since the — day of November, 1861, he was unable to answer otherwise than from memory as to any of the matter objected or alleged against him, and being so imprisoned and held in dures, but desiring to be released, best of his ability with the order of the court in the premises, without surrendering any rights, advantages, exceptions, motions or reasons assigned why the attachment in this case should not be vacated or set aside, the benefit of which he expressly reserved, for answer to said order, said: 'That his aunt, Veronica Gable, died on the 9th day of October, 1857, leaving a last will and testament, of which he and one Michael Gable were appointed executors, who duly proved the same and assumed the trust; that when his aunt died he had scarcely any money, having expended his own and money he had borrowed on a visit he had recently made to Philadelphia, and he borrowed money to pay his expenses when he undertook the duties of executor; that he resided twenty miles from where the property of testatrix was, and incurred heavy expenses in traveling, boarding, and for clothing, in attending to the business; that the testatrix, who was blind, left a large personal estate, which was in great disorder, and he gave his whole time and attention to the business, having been engaged forty six days in preparing her property for appraisement and sale, and examining and arranging her securities and papers; that he worked earnestly to make the best possible returns of the assets, and collected considerable sums of money, regarded by testatrix as lost, many being barred by limitation and others owed by irresponsible parties; that difficulties arose in the settlement of the estate on account of a claim preferred by the heirs at law of Frederick Gable, deceased, to the real estate acquired by him after the date of the will, the litigation growing to such a point that when he filed his first administration account in January, 1859, exceptions were made, which caused more litigation, and postponed settlement; that he believed that he was acting in the line of his duty, both to himself and the interests committed to his care, in that litigation; that the compensation of counsel cost a great deal, of which he kept no account; that his health was impaired in traveling, and that he paid considerable sums to physicians, of which he had no account; that on one occasion he put money and papers, both private and belonging to the estate, in a desk of testatrix's lady, of which he locked and kept the key, but which he returned the desk was broken open and the contents gone; that he paid money to several of the legatees, and others were indebted on the vendue lists, but in his then present situation he could not specify the amounts; that during the long delay in the transaction of the business of the estate, and following the settlement of his accounts, he was frequently from home at different places to see and consult counsel and on other business, and on these journeys fell into company with individuals among whom he was the loser of large sums of money, which he regrets, but was then unable to replace them; that he was then unable to pay the money ordered by the court to be paid to Keech, having been imprisoned for nearly three years, and unable to attend to any business, and having incurred and suffered expenses and losses as before stated. He then never declared that he would pay the legatees, or any person legally entitled to receive it, the amount due to them, and the testimony given before the court as to this was erroneous and mistaken, but was desirous and anxious to do so, and would do so whenever he had the ability, but could do nothing on that behalf so long as he was confined in prison. And further averring that he never intended or designed to resist the process or commit any contempt against the authority of the court, he prayed that he might be discharged from imprisonment under said process of attachment.

"On the same day on which this answer was filed, the court issued its writ, directed to the sheriff of York county, in which, after reciting previous proceedings, and that the sum of $10,240 83, with interest, &c., was in the hands of said Elias Tome of moneys of the estate of said Veronica Gable, deceased, whereof $6,482 70 was the balance on his first account according to the decree of the court on the 21st day of March, 1860, on the exceptions to said account, and $3,753 13 on the 25th of March, 1861, on the same day, the decree of the court of that date on the auditor's report on exceptions to his second account, the writ proceeded: 'Now these are therefore to command you that you take the body of the said Elias Tome and him safely keep in your custody in the jail of said county until he shall pay the said aggregate sums of money, and interest as aforesaid, and shall abide by the orders and decrees of our court on the premises, or such other order or orders as may be made hereafter on the premises, or be otherwise duly discharged according to law.' On the same day, the following was endorsed on said writ by the court: 'September 19th, 1864, Elias Tome having filed his answer to the proceedings against him for a contempt, as ordered on the 9th of September, 1864, the court decree the same insufficient, and direct that he be recommitted to the prison of York county for the reasons set out in the within writ.'

"This appeal was then entered by defendant, for whom the following errors were assigned:

"1st. The Orphans' Court of York county erred in awarding a writ of attachment against the appellant in this case, founded on the alias order of said court issued the 26th day of February, 1864, commanding him to pay over to William L. Keech, administrator with the will annexed of Veronica Gable, deceased, the amount of the moneys in his hands belonging to the estate, and the return of service made thereon by Jacob Eichelberger.

"2d. The Orphans' Court erred in not setting aside and superseding the writ of pluries attachment issued in this case, for the reasons assigned in appellant's motion made August 29th, 1864, and overruled by said court on the 9th of September, 1864.

"3d. The Orphans' Court erred in issuing its writ or commitment on the 19th of September, 1864, directed to the sheriff of York county, commanding him to 'take the body of the said Elias Tome and him safely keep in your custody in the jail of the said county, until he shall pay the said aggregate sum of money and interest as aforesaid, and shall abide by the orders and decrees of our court in the premises, or such other order or orders as may be made hereafter on the premises, or be otherwise duly discharged according to law."

Cochran & Ivy, for appellant, argued that the Orphans' Court was a creature of the constitution and of the statute. No chancery powers are given to it by the former. Its authority to "grant relief in equity" is derived solely, under the constitution, from the power vested in it by the legislature, and the legislature has fixed bounds for it as to punishment by the summary process of attachment for contempt, by the Act of 1836. It can arrogate to itself no broader or greater powers than are possessed under that head by any other of the courts of the Commonwealth, by virtue of any inherent prerogative which sets it above and beyond the statute. That the law placed so much higher a value upon money than upon liberty, that it will not permit any citizen to be consigned to interminable imprisonment under the pretext of a technical contempt of the Orphans' Court, while it restrains the common-law tribunals in the enforcement of their judgments for money to the property of defendants.—That in the order and proceedings upon which the attachment in this case was founded —in the issuing and arrest under the attachment, and the decree of the court committing the appellant to the custody of the sheriff to be confined in jail without day, there was error; and that the appellant, who has already been the tenant of a cell for three years and a half, having served out the term of confinement to which he was sentenced, should be discharged by order of this court, leaving all the property which he now has, or may hereafter acquire, subject to be levied upon, sequestered, sold, or otherwise disposed of according to law in satisfaction of the decree of the Orphans' Court in the premises: citing and relying on United States v. Wayne, 1 Wall. Rep. 13; 2 Daniel's Ch. Pr. 707; Chew's Appeal, 8 Wright 247. 1 Chitt's Crim. Law 462; State v. Cooper, 1 Green (N. J.) 361; State v. Sheppard, 7 Conn. 7; *Fiddler v. E. V. Keesey, John Evans, and John L. Mayer, for appellees.—In view of the Act of 1832, relating to Orphans' Courts, § 23, and of June 16th 1836, § 19, Bright, 765, there is no room to question the ample jurisdiction of the Orphans' Court in this case, nor that the writ of attachment was an appropriate form of its power, as well as the writ of sequestration, nor that it had full discretion to determine what remedy the case required, as well as the manner of using it, until the end be fully attained.

"The order to pay and deliver to his successor is a part of the decree superseding a defaulting executor. No such decree can be made except upon full notice, and proof of the facts, and failure to give security: Cobey's Appeal, 2 Watts 175. The party against whom the decree is made is in court, and cannot complain of want of notice. No particular sum of money, chattels, or effects are specified in the decree. The dismissed executor is to 'deliver and pay to his successor and to every the goods, chattels, and estates in his hands the same,' &c."

"There is no analogy between this case and a suit in equity inter partes. There is no decree adjudging or ascertaining a sum of money to be due. 'In contemplation of law, the trust fund at all times remains in specie or invested as required by law, and the money or the proper securities are or should be in a situation to be delivered over at once': Leaman v. Duryea, 1 Kernan 330. The case is more analogous to an order in chancery on an executor or trustee to pay the funds, or to the accountants and general of the court, on which no demand is necessary: 2 Daniel's Ch. Prac. 1251; 1 Smith's Ch. Prac. 669.

"The appellant did not deny, in his affidavit before the court, on the 19th of September, when he came up to purge himself of the contempt, that there was due service of the writ and demand of the money."

"The writ of attachment in the first instance is in the nature of mesne process, 'the sole object of which is to bring the offender into court': State v. Matthews, 37 N. Hamp. 450; M'Creedy v. Senior, Paige 581; State v. Matthews, supra; Matter of Vanderbilt, 4 John. Ch. R. 57. 'The respondent may submit his contempt to the court upon his own answer in the form of an affidavit, or he may demand of the prosecutor to file interrogatories for him to answer': State v. Matthews, 37 N. Hamp. 450; Hummel & Bischoff, 9 Watts 416. In this case there was no demand for interrogatories.

"The pluries writ of attachment was merely the last in a series of mesne process, to bring the appellant before the court to answer to the contempt charged against him. To set aside the writ, if there had been ground for it, could not avail the appellant, if it appeared at the hearing that he was guilty of the contempt. The writ of attachment on which the defendant was committed contains all the substance necessary for the purpose: Leaman v. Duryea, 1 Kernan 330; People v. Nevins, 1 Hill 154. It embodies the particulars which the appellant complains were not in the pluries writ.

"It is argued that the Act of 1842, abolishing imprisonment for debt on contracts, taking away the power of attaching a sequestrated executor, who fails to pay over to his successor. There is no contract, however, to enforce between the dismissed executor and his successor in the trust. The case of Chew's Appeal, 8 Wright 247, has fully disposed of the question on this point. See also Patrick v. Warner, 4 Paige 397. The present is stronger than Chew's case, for there the trustee was not, as such, a party to the decree of distribution, any more than an executor would be. It is said that as he has been convicted of embezzling the funds of this estate he cannot be compelled to pay them over by the process of attachment, because it is a criminal proceeding as well as the indictment for embezzlement, and no man can be tried twice for the same offense. It is only necessary to state this proposition to see that it is no better in law than in morals. The offense of which he has been convicted is a misdemeanor, and the civil remedy never merged in such cases in the offense.—This principle has been extended to felonies by our criminal code. Act of 1860, § 71, (Balt. 362.)

"The proceeding as for contempt to enforce civil remedies, in the language of the exception in the Act of 1842 abolishing imprisonment for debt, recognizes the character of the process as very unlike an indictment for a criminal offense. It may be entitled in the original suit in chancery in which the contempt is alleged, or in the name of the people: The People v. Craft, 4 Paige 325.—The idea of pleading autrefois convict in such a case has perhaps never occurred before to a judicial mind. It is also said that because the writ of sequestration is a pluries writ, no attachment could be issued in the case. The Act of Assembly provides for writs of attachment with or without sequestration, and for execution and suits at law 'at the same time,' until the end be fully attained.' If the appellant had shown to the court, when he moved to set aside the pluries attachment, and resisted the motion to recommit, that the money had been or could be realized upon the writ of sequestration, it would have been important, and secured his discharge. The mere facts that writs of sequestration were issued and laid upon things of no value, amounts to nothing: Pontius v. Nesbit, 4 Wright 309.

Astothedidea that the 28d section of the Act of 1836, relative to the powers and jurisdiction of the courts, is a repeal of the Act of 29th of March, 1832, relative to the Orphans' Court, so far as respects the process of attachment, it is known that both these acts are parts of the code reported by commissioners appointed for that purpose; and it would be singular, if in the progress of their labors, they should undo their own work.

The appellant does not distinguish between the general power of all courts to punish for contempts in order to protect themselves from insult, disrespect, or other wrong done to the court, and those proceedings excepted out of the Non-imprisonment Act 'as for contempt, to enforce civil remedies': Commonwealth v. Newton, 1 Grant's Cases 456; Williamson's Case, 2 Case 18; Chew's Case, 5 Wright 247.

"The insolvent laws are still in force, and open to all debtors not directly relieved by the Non-imprisonment Act; and if the appellant chooses may not avail himself of them, and thus put an end to his imprisonment, unless he has forfeited his claim to their benefit? If he has, it must be his own fault, and not that of the law, or of those who administer it.

"The opinion of the court was delivered, May 24th, 1865, by

"AGNEW, J.—The distinguishing feature of this case, scarcely noticed in the argument of the appellant, is the nature of the original decree under which the proceedings complained of arose. Elias Tome, one of the executors of the will of Veronica Gable, had undertaken the performance of his trust, and thereby come into possession of the effects of the estate. Having failed to give the security required of him by the Orphans' Court for some breach of duty which we are now bound to believe that court found correctly had taken place, he was dismissed from his trust, new letters were directed to be issued, and in the same preservation of claims, the 28d section of the Act of 29th March, 1832, made it the duty of the Orphans' Court to make this order for delivery as well as payment, at the time of vacating his letters. The order is necessarily general in its terms and prospective in its operation. It became his duty, the moment his successor was appointed and qualified, to obey the order by delivering and paying over everything in his hands, so far as he was capable, whether he had settled an account or not. There was nothing to prevent the settlement of an account therefor, if not already done, nor to prevent him from coming in to make answer to the order, and to ask the intervention of the court, required him to hand over at once everything to his successor, or to obtain such qualification of the order as the court might deem necessary. Upon doing neither, he was clearly in contempt, and it became necessary for the court to enforce obedience to its order; not merely by way of punishment for his contempt, but as a means of reaching the purpose of the decree, and rescuing the effects of the estate held by him without sequestration.

"Now keeping the nature and purpose of the proceeding in view, all the objections raised to it will disappear. This being wholly dissimilar to the chancery decree for the payment of money, to which we are referred in 2 Daniel's Chancery Practice 705, it is unnecessary it should state a precise sum of money, or state to whom it should be paid, or that the party serving it should be authorized to receive the money. In the state of the case where the order is made, the court is necessarily uninformed of the amount to be paid over, and of the person who will be the successor in the administration; and the sum must, from the nature of the requirement, elapse from the service of the order before the dismissed executor can gather up all the effects to deliver them over. It is unlike an execution or order for money where payment can be made immediately to the bearer of the writ. For the same reasons there was nothing irregular in the alias order by the court, after administration had been granted to William L. Keach, directing Tome to pay over the moneys of the estate in his hands to Keach within five days after the service, or to the service, if it by a third party. The worst that can be affirmed of the alias order is, that it was unnecessary; but certainly Tome cannot complain that he was again warned to perform his duty, and allowed five days more to do it. But when we reach the attachment awarded against him for his disobedience, we find that it is founded not upon the alias order alone, but upon the original decree to which the alias is added as the evidence of still greater contumacy. Turning to the evidence of the service of the original order, we find that Keach himself, the successor and authorized party, made the demand and returns upon itself the refusal of Tome to comply. It is true, the alias was served by another, but it was unnecessary he should have authority to receive the money, for by the very terms of it five days were allowed for payment, and the command was to pay directly to Keach. The alias was therefore not the foundation of the attachment, but a very proper extension of the original decree, if the court deemed it necessary for the benefit and not to the prejudice of Tome.

"The objection to the attachment that it is criminal process, and Tome having been convicted and sentenced in the Quarter Sessions for embezzlement of the estate in his hands, imprisonment upon the attachment is a double punishment, is unfounded. Whatever may be the criminal nature of the disobedience which brought him into contempt, the attachment in this case partakes of the nature of a civil remedy to enforce obedience to the decree, not merely to punish for the contempt. The sentence of the Court of Quarter Sessions operates simply to punish for the fraud, but not to restore the estate to rightful hands. It is to the attachment alone we can look to operate upon the contumacious trustee, who, after dismissal and without visible property, refuses to discover the effects which he conceals.

"For this he has not already rendered satisfaction, or made atonement under the sentence of the criminal court. The purpose of the law and the necessity of its enforcement still remain. There is not that identity of charge in which a double conviction consists, and although he has suffered the penalty of his fraud, he must yet yield obedience to the command to surrender all that he withholds, which embraces everything he should deliver as well as pay.

"There is more show of argument, though not more real force, in the next objection, that the body of Tome cannot be imprisoned under the attachment. Were it even true that there can be no imprisonment upon an attachment founded solely on the decree for the payment of money, which involves no more than a debt, answer already given, as to the nature and purpose of the decree, would be sufficient. But if nothing remained for Tome to do but to pay over all moneys in his hands as required in the alias order, yet we think the nature of the proceeding exempts it from the operation of the Non-Imprisonment Law of 1842. That act excepts "proceedings as for contempt to enforce civil remedies." I cannot add anything to the force of reasoning of my Brother Strong in Chew's Appeal, page 247, which shows that the exception in the act necessarily left all such attachments untouched by the non-imprisonment clause; but the nature of the case now before brings into view other portions of the act, which strongly enforce his argument. In Chew's case, the order was simply to pay over a distributive portion or sum; but here the order is founded upon an abuse of the trust, and a fraudulent conversion of its funds: for an executor who refuses either to give security or pay over after he is dismissed, stands in the attitude of a speculator of the fund. Now, under the Act of 1842, in a case where provision is made the debtor is liable to imprisonment, yet if he has fraudulently contracted the debt or incurred the obligation respecting which suit is brought, or 'has property which he fraudulently conceals,' or 'unjustly refuses to apply to the payment of a judgment' his money or other property, he is liable to arrest and imprisonment until duly discharged by law. These provisions throw light upon the exception of attachments when used to force civil remedies, which embrace every variety of ground demanding such enforcement, including all these fraudulent cases, and therefore are liable to all kinds of derelictions of duty. It would be difficult to define with precision and exactness those attachments which would simply enforce the payment of a debt and no more, and therefore the Legislature left all to be governed by the law as it stood before the Non-Imprisonment Act was passed.

"The next objection is that a writ of sequestration had been issued and partially executed; and it is alleged that no attachment could be simultaneously issued and enforced. The argument is founded upon the analogy of a fi. fa. and ca. sa. taken out at the same time, but one of which only is to be executed. But this reasoning overlooks the difference between the mere common law rules governing execution process and the statutory power of the Orphans' Court, given to enforce obedience to its decrees. The latter is much wider in its reach and more comprehensive in its purpose requiring a greater liberality in its interpretation. An order to deliver overall effects, cannot be satisfied as mere execution process can be by a sale of property. It may be a just privilege of the debtor to demand that his property seized in execution shall first be applied to his debt, before he shall be called to satisfy it with his person. But where his default is not only that of a debtor, but that of an offender against authority, he stands in a different relation. There, if we examine the statute, we discover a purpose which requires more enlarged power in the tribunal administering this branch of the law. All known remedies at law and equity are given, and the Orphans' Court may afford relief by sequestration, attachment, and common law forms of execution. Its jurisdiction begins by petition and citation, yet in the very beginning and before disobedience to its orders, the 17th article of the 57th section of the Act of 20th March, 1832, provides in the case of absconding defendants, or those about to depart from their usual place of abode, that attachment or sequestration or both together may issue. Looking then to the provisions of the common law, appearance merely, and to the fact that no limitation has been imposed upon the court as to the time of issuing or return of its process, and no intimation of repugnancy between the different forms, we are not prepared to say the Orphans' Court may not award both sequestration and attachment at the same time, and order their execution simultaneously. It is the act of the court, and therefore governed by discretion. The law does not forbid it, and the ends of justice require it. We may refer also to the case of Tams v. Wardle, 5 W. & S. 222, and Poston v. Washburn, Wright 309, as furnishing analogies in practice.

"The last objection, that the imprisonment here is unlimited, and therefore contrary to the provisions of the Act of 16th June, 1836. But the restriction stated in the 23rd section is upon the power to inflict summary punishment for contempt of court. This is rendered still more clear by the 24th section, which restricts the punishment of imprisonment for contempts to those committed in open court. Attachments to enforce civil remedies are plainly not within the enactment, for the reason that they are not used as punishment, but as the means of remedy; and for the reason that, if within the law, they are wholly abolished. The contempts which are punished by imprisonment are those only which are committed in open court, and therefore all such attachments that operate upon a party for non-performance of a duty in pais, or which (as in all these cases) must be performed outside of the walls of the court room, necessarily cannot be executed by imprisonment. The power to detain the party in jail is gone, and he can be punished only with a fine which falls of the very object of the writ as a remedy by way of enforcement.

"The appellant having filed an answer altogether unsatisfactory, and setting forth losses of the funds of the estate which we can understand in no other way than to refer to losses by gambling, we see nothing in the final order of the court subjecting him to imprisonment, either so irregular or erroneous, as to require correction.

"The decree of the Orphans' Court is therefore affirmed."

"The Supreme Court says that the orphans' court had an undoubted right to do what was done in this case. Now, it is for this legislature to decide whether this man is to be kept longer in prison for this offense.

Mr. MAISH. Mr. Speaker, there were two executors in this estate. One relented and paid over the money he had in his hands, but this man Tome persistently refuses to do so. It is believed that he has this money in his possession still. He has offered to compromise by paying four thousand dollars, and be released, I am reliably informed. It is believed he will disgorge before long if he is held in prison. But if he is released, now that the session of this bill, these men will never get anything. I think it is proper that this bill be recommitted, and then the committee could act intelligently upon it, after all the parties had been heard.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, I know nothing, personally, about this man Tome. I only wish to act in such a way as to protect the heirs. I have been told, however, that so far as this man being liable to die in jail is concerned, that he does not live on prison fare, but that he subsists about as well as one could live at any of the hotels in town. From that I infer that he is paying his board there—perhaps with the interest on his four thousand dollars. I therefore do hope this Legislature will not take this matter out of the hands of the court.

Mr. THARP. Mr. Speaker, if gentlemen will give the parties interested an opportunity to be heard before the House I will vote for that. I am satisfied that the committee have got all the information that will be brought before them. I think this matter may now just as well be discussed in the House, and gentlemen may have an opportunity to bring before it all the facts in the case.

The question was,
Will the House agree to the motion to recommit?
It was

Not agreed to.
The question recurring on the bill,
Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I regret very much that this bill was not sent back to the committee as it should have been. From what took place here before the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] read the report of the case from 14th Wright, I am convinced that the case was but very superficially understood. The chairman of the committee that reported the bill knows nothing about it, because he said that he was committed for contempt in not filing his account.

Mr. M'CREARY. I said that I inferred that might be the case.

Mr. BOYLE. Then it was all from inference. He knows nothing about it one way or the other. I am opposed to voting to revise the decree of a court without knowing why I do it. I think I might probably have been able to vote for the bill had it been sent back to the committee, but I shall now vote against it and call for the yeas and nays on the question.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from York [Mr. MAISH] is certainly mistaken in reference to not being heard before the committee. He appeared before that committee and made a statement of the facts. I think he has perhaps overlooked that fact.

On the question
Will the House agree to the bill?
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BOYLE and Mr. KURTZ, and were as follows, viz:

YEA—Messrs. Adaire, Alich, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harbison, Hood, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, Meily, Penny-packer, Peters, Roath, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Tharp, Waddell, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wilson, Wingard, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—47.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Dease, Fogel, Gregory, Haven, Headman, Helzoll, Hunt, Jinks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Kurtz, Leach, Linton, Long, Maish, Mann, Marley, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Pillow, Quay, Rhoads, Robinson, Rouch, Satterlawait, Seiler, Sharples, Wallace and Westbrook—37.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

REASONS FOR A VOTE.

Mr. KENNEDY, presented to the Chair the following reasons for voting on bill No. 355:

My reasons for voting for the release of Elias Tome from confinement, who has already been held therein two years for the embezzlement of certain funds in his hands as an executor of a certain estate, and for contempt of court, are,

1. The heirs of said estate should have required bail of said executors in order to security.

2. In my judgment he has lain long enough in confinement to atone for any offense, not sufficient to send him to the penitentiary.

3. The opponents to his release seem very unwilling to give any tangible reasons against his release.

(Signed) J. KENNEDY.
Mr. MAISH. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a personal explanation.

Leave was granted.

Mr. MAISH. The gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY] has stated that I certainly appeared before that committee in regard to this bill. I am positive that I did not. I do not think my memory fails me in that respect. I think the gentleman has got a wrong impression. I appeared before that committee in regard to a mechanics' lien bill, and I think that must be the time the gentleman referred to, for that is the only time I have appeared before the committee.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I am very certain that I called the attention of the gentleman to the bill, and requested him to furnish information in regard to it, I am very certain now. The gentleman on my right [Mr. WEBB] recollects it.
Mr. MAISH. I called upon the gentleman after the bill had passed the committee and spoke to him in the House here about it in the evening. That was the first time I spoke about it.

SPEAKER'S TABLE.

The SPEAKER cleared his table of Senate bill numbered and entitled as follows:

Senate bill No. 373, an act to incorporate the Macgregor Savings Bank.

Referred to the Committee on Banks.
He also presented the following, which was read:

WASHINGTON, D. C.,
February 25, 1867.

SIR:—I have the honor to transmit herewith a copy of a resolution passed by a unanimous vote, at a meeting of Pennsylvanians, residents of this city, held on Saturday evening, the 23d instant, and would request that the same may be laid before the House of Representatives, or otherwise disposed of as you may, in your judgment, deem proper.

I have the honor to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

S. FRANK SCHWARTZ, Secretary.

HON. JOHN P. GLASS, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

Resolved, That in view of the benefits heretofore derived by the widows and orphans of our fallen heroes from the "State agency," in this city, and in view of the necessities that still exist, and are likely to continue for such "agency" for some time to come, by the acts of Congress, providing bounties and pensions for the soldiers, their widows and orphans, we have learned, with unfeigned regret, of the contemplated abolition of that office by the Legislature, and we most earnestly deprecate such action, or, indeed, any action whatever, that will tend to lessen, in any degree, the only facilities they have of obtaining promptly and without expense the benefits of the provisions made for them by the general government.

(Signed) CHARLES ROBB,

Chairman.

Attest:
S. FRANK SCHWARTZ, Secretary.
Laid on the table.

SENATE MESSAGE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented the following extract from the Journal:

IN THE SENATE, February 26, 1867.

Resolved (if the House concur), That the Governor be requested to return to the Senate, for amendment, bill No. 201, entitled An act to incorporate the Erie City passenger railroad company.

The resolution was concurred in.
The hour of 1 o'clock having arrived,
The SPEAKER adjourned the House until 5 o'clock this afternoon.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The House met at 3 o'clock, P. M.

WELLSBORO' and LAWRENCEVILLE RAILROAD COMPANY.

The SPEAKER. The special order for this hour is the consideration of House bill No. 433, entitled An act to incorporate the Wellsboro' and Lawrenceville railroad company.

The bill was laid aside on second reading. The question is on agreeing to the bill.

Mr. LEE. I dislike very much to oppose this bill; but there have been parties here to-day, who aver that if this bill passes, their interests, particularly in that railroad, are wholly destroyed. Now, I have said before that this man M'Gee, who owns this railroad, from the New York and Erie road to the State line, and who desires this road, owns the road from Brookville through to Goshoro' and Wellsboro', and that the construction of that road in conjunction with the construction of this road, utterly destroys the Corning route. It takes away its trade; and that, it seems to me, is clearly improper. The parties bought this road at an enormous expense, and relieved the Commonwealth from the payment of hundreds of thousands of dollars in guaranteed bonds.

Now, they are just beginning to realize, and I think it would be unfair in the extreme to subvert the interests of outside parties, and pass a bill that would break down this road most effectually. I trust this House will look at this matter. I trust they will not break down the interest of this people. I trust the interests of the holders of millions of stock in the city of Philadelphia will not be over-rid by this New York monopoly. I appeal to the people of the State, for the sake of their chief city, for the interests of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, that they will not do this great wrong. I do not think it is necessary to speak further on this subject, than merely to suggest the facts. If any one who has a map of Tioga county will open it, and look at Fallbrook, Goshoro', Wellsboro' and then at the direction that this new road proposes to take, down to Lawrenceville, he will see that this Tioga road is cut out, and its trade utterly destroyed. Are we going to do that wrong? I trust not. The gentleman having this matter in charge tells me that all these interests have been adjusted and arranged so as to be satisfactory all around. I do not know how that is. I am willing to take the gentleman's word and test that. I am willing that this bill shall lay over, in order that we may know that this is true, and that all parties are satisfied. I am willing that this bill shall go over and be made a special order for this day week at this hour; and that the private calendar may not be interfered with to-day. I make the motion that this bill be postponed, and that it be made a special order for this day week, at three o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. Speaker, I have it from good authority, that there are no interests now held by Philadelphians in this road. There has been a purchase made within in the last few days. I saw one of the parties yesterday myself, and he says that the Tioga railroad has been sold; and, hence, Mr. Calcott and his friends living in Philadelphia have no interest in the railroad. The objection of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE] the other day was, that those gentlemen, stockholders, living in Philadelphia, and owning this Tioga railroad, would be interfered with. That objection is removed. The company now owning that road lives in the State of New York—some of the stockholders living near the terminus of the Bloomsburg road at Corning. Now, the gentleman who was interested in this road, told me yesterday that they would have no objection, in his opinion, to having this charter go through—to having this bill pass.

After removing those objections, and these parties having no interests in the road, I claim, as I did the other day, it is purely a local question, and I desire the members on this floor to stand by and assist me in passing this bill.

As I said before, the objection is removed. If the gentleman has any friends from Philadelphia, who are here, I would like to know who they are. I would like to know if they are the parties whom it is claimed would be injured by the passage of this act. I disclaim anything of that kind. There are no parties there owning shares or interest in this road, unless I am wrongly informed.

Mr. LEE. Dr. Junkin met me in the vestibule of this House upon an hour and said if this bill passes, it would ruin his interests, and he asked me to do what I could to prevent it being passed by this body.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I would ask the gentleman if this Dr. Junkin has an interest in this road—if he is a stockholder?

Mr. LEE. Of course.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I would ask the gentleman if this stockholder did not inform him that he had sold his interest—that every stockholder had sold his interest in the Tioga railroad. I think I am not incorrect in my statement. The parties from whom I obtained my information are reliable. They informed me that the stockholders had certainly sold their interests in that road.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, if that were true, I cannot conceive why Dr. Junkin should meet me and press me to prevent the passage of this bill, if possible. I do not pretend to say that the gentleman from Tioga [Mr. HUMPHREY] says is untrue. I believe he is sincere in what he says on the subject. I believe he thinks these matters are settled. I do not think so, and have the reason that I gave. I trust the matter will go over until this day week. I promise him [Mr. HUMPHREY] if the interests of the people are not affected, if the vested rights of this road are not broken down, then I will vote for his bill most cheerfully.

The question being on agreeing to the motion of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE], that the further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present, and that it be made the special order for next Tuesday afternoon, February 5, at three o'clock.

It was put, and
Agreed to.

Laid aside.

OBJECTED BILL.

The following bill was objected to, and, under the rules, will be laid over until next week.

No. 595, an act relating to the duties of the treasurer of Lawrence county.

Objected to by Mr. PILLOW.

During the consideration of the private calendar, on first reading, the following remarks were made:

Mr. DONOUGH. Mr. Speaker, I wish to withdraw my objections to bill No. 581.

The bill was then read, and laid aside for second reading.

On bill No. 503:

Mr. MARKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the bill be indefinitely postponed. Our courts are now in session and I understand the case will be called up to-day for trial.

Mr. WATT. Mr. Speaker, I hope the bill will not be postponed. I am desirous that it pass to-day.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I hope the gentleman will give sufficient reasons why the bill should pass.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I have no feeling, whatever, in this matter, but my colleague [Mr. Hoop], who has the bill in charge, is not in his seat.

I trust the House will not postpone the bill indefinitely, until he can be heard. I have sent for him. I trust we will not take advantage of his absence.

On the question,
Shall the bill be laid aside? It was
Agreed to.

On bill No. 410:

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, as this bill in effect establishes a new judicial district, it seems to me that some reason should be given, before the House gives its consent. As it stands now I feel that the House ought to defeat it; but if there is any necessity for creating, in effect, a new judicial district in this Commonwealth, I shall vote for it.

Mr. TIARP. Mr. Speaker, I believe the entire delegation representing the counties in this proposed judicial district are in favor of this bill. There is not a dissenting voice. We are in favor of it because the people demand it. We have presented to this House a petition from the bar of this county, signed uniformly by gentlemen from Northumberland. The gentleman from Lycoming [Mr. WIGGARD] informs me he has had a petition signed by the bar of Lycoming county. The bar of Montour county are unanimously in favor of this bill, because the increase of business demands an additional law judge.

The trial list at Williamsport has doubled within the last eight or ten years; the trial list in Northumberland has doubled in some cases within the last eight years. The business in these two counties has so much increased that an additional law judge is imperatively demanded. I hope that no objection will be made to this bill. There can be no reasonable objection offered. The judge who presides in this district is a man of considerable age and eminent ability; he has given entire satisfaction to the people and to the bar. But his labors are so burdensome that it is impossible for him to discharge the duties devolving upon him, and for his relief this bill has been prepared and presented to this Legislature.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I had not the slightest idea of objecting to this bill. I was simply inquiring what necessity there was for its passage. I misconceived the district to which it applied. The necessity for this bill was explained so fully last year that I have no doubt it will be satisfactory to the House.

On the question,
Shall the bill be laid aside for a second reading?

It was

Agreed to.

SPECIAL ORDER.

The hour of 3 o'clock having arrived, Mr. BARTON called the special order for that hour, which was House bill No. 467.

Mr. FREEBORN. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the second section, in the fifth line, by striking out all after the word "hundred."

Agreed to.

Mr. BARTON. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the first section, in the fourth line, by striking out the letter "J" after the word "John" and inserting the letter "S."

Agreed to.

The question being,
Will the House agree to the bill as amended?

It was

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended, the bill read a third time, and Passed finally, as follows:

AN ACT to incorporate the Spruce Grove lumber and land company.

CALENDAR RESUMED.

On Bill No. 447:

Mr. STEHMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask consent to strike out all after the enacting clause and substitute Senate bill 346, which is exactly the same.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The bill was read.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend in the first section, after the word "act" to strike out the words "to continue;" also, in the third section and twenty-ninth line, to strike out "three months" and insert "six months," to correspond with the first section.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. STEHMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out of the first section, fourteenth line, the words "from the said day" and insert the words "from sunset."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, as the bill at present stands with this amendment, I cannot see necessity for it. I call attention to that part of the third section, in the twenty-eighth and thirty-fourth lines inclusive, after the word "provided." I move that all the third section after the word "direct" in the twenty-eighth line be stricken out.

Mr. BOYD. I object to the amendment.

On Senate bill No. 208:

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to amend section five in the sixth line, by adding the words "charged with felony, and in all other cases to make their returns to the district attorney."

Agreed to.

Mr. MARKS. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment to come in as an additional section:

SEC. 7. Whenever the board for drawing and selecting jurors in the said city and county of Philadelphia, or a quorum thereof, shall be of opinion that it will be necessary to place additional names in the wheel, the said board, or a quorum thereof, shall select from the lists of taxables from which selections were made prior to the preceding tenth day of December, as provided in the second section of the act of April 20th, 1855, relating to the mode of drawing and selecting jurors for the city of Philadelphia, the names of such number of sober, healthy and discreet citizens as may, in their judgment, be necessary to supply all the jurors that may be issued during the current year, which names, when so selected, shall be placed in the said wheel in the manner now provided by existing laws; and a list of the names, residences and occupations of the persons so selected and placed in said wheel, shall be certified by the members of the board then present, as required by existing laws, and the salary and the expenses of the clerks of said board shall be fixed by the said board, and paid by said city.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I do not think we are prepared to pass this bill. I am opposed to it entirely. It looks to me like a very big thing for two or three officeholders in Philadelphia.

Mr. MARKS. Mr. Speaker, the amendment I have offered was drawn under the direction of the court.

Mr. DAVIS. I have no objections to the amendment, but I am opposed to the bill.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, in reference to the amendment inserted in the fifth section, I will say that the amendment was made at the suggestion of the aldermen of the city of Philadelphia, in connection with the district attorney—the district attorney, himself, wrote the amendment.

Mr. DAVIS. That is part of my objection. I do not think they have any right to make the laws.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, they have a right to inform us what is necessary for that practice. So far as I am concerned, I am indifferent to the subject. But this is just such an amendment as is required to meet the circumstances of the case. As the case is all the felonies that are brought before a committing magistrate must be returned within forty-eight hours. That is just such an offense as aldermen have no jurisdiction over. [Owing to the confusion in the hall, the reporter was unable to hear some remarks at this point.]

I am sure my friend from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] does not understand this question. He will see that the amendment is right.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I reiterate, I have no objection to the amendment. I believe it an improvement to the bill, but I believe the whole bill to be entirely wrong. I presume that I know its object. I think I can see a very big thing for a few people. I move that the consideration of the bill be postponed for one week. If it is a fair and just bill, it can stand one week's criticism.

I believe this bill is one of those kind of anacronas that slimes itself through the Legislature.

The SPEAKER. As the bill is on first reading, the question is on laying the bill aside for a second reading.

It was laid aside.

On Senate bill No. 117:

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I hope that the bill will not be laid over. It relates entirely to our county, and the people here not asked for it.

Mr. WADELLE. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman from Montgomery [Mr. SATTERTHWAIT] whom he regards as his people? I understand a very large portion of the people of Montgomery county have assented for this bill. I do not understand to whom he refers when he says "our people." If he means a particular branch of the people of Montgomery county he may be right. If it is the people generally of Montgomery county, then he is wrong.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, if there have been any petitions presented to the Legislature, I have not heard of them. Perhaps the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADELLE] has, and if so, I wish he would inform me with regard to them. I presume if he represents the county he will know whether anything of the kind has been offered here. I have heard of none. I say what I know to be the truth—that a majority of the people of Montgomery county are opposed to it, and I defy the gentleman from Chester, or anybody else, to say to the contrary. This is an experiment that has been tried nowhere that I know of. And I submit to this House that if experiments are to be tried, they should be tried in counties only where the majority of the people are willing.

Mr. WADELLE. Mr. Speaker, I of course do not desire to interfere with any local legislation, in which the gentleman may be interested. But there are certain rights and interests that should be protected by the House, whether it belongs to that gentleman's county or mine. Now, this law has been tried in Montgomery county. It was in existence there at one time, and gave general satisfaction. But when a particular party came into power, it was repealed. Now, those who enjoyed the privileges under that law ask that it be re-enacted. It is possible that the large majority of people, who are opposed to it, depends entirely on the majority which the ballot-box may show. I think there is a large part of the people of Montgomery county in favor of the law, and who desire this House to pass it. But whether there is a majority to oppose it, may depend on some other question. Now, all that the minority (if gentlemen are pleased to so speak) ask is, that they shall have the law re-established. If that is done, it will be satisfactory, I believe, to three-fourths of the county.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me to be very kind in the gentleman to take so much interest in the affairs of Montgomery county. I would like to know if it is a good regulation that constables shall be tax collectors? Why do they not try it in Chester? It has never been tried in Montgomery, so far as my recollection goes. The law was passed one year, but the very next, or a short time afterwards, it was repealed, without having been put in practice. The people do not want it. If the people of Montgomery county were so anxious for this measure, there would have been petitions sent here. But, on the contrary, not a single petition has been received.

Mr. MARKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment.

The amendment was read as follows: To insert, after the word "Montgomery," the words "and the commissioners of Chester county."

Mr. LEE. I object to that amendment.

The question being on postponing to second reading,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MARKLEY and Mr. QUIGLEY, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harrison, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmel, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Case, M'Pherrin, Mann, Marks, Melly, Pennington, Peters, Pilow, Quay, Roath, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Stambaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Wharton, Wilson, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—52.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hoffman, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Rouch, Sattertwhait, Seilor, Tharp, Westbrook and Whann—65.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. WADELLE. Mr. Speaker, before we proceed to the consideration of the private calendar I desire to make a report from the committee on the contested election case in the city of Philadelphia.

The report was read as follows:

To the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

The select committee of the House to try the matter of the petition of the electors of the Thirteenth Representative district of the city of Philadelphia, complaining of an undue election, and false return of Michael Mullin as a member elect from said city, respectfully report:

That upon the return of said election Michael Mullin appears to have received, in said district, three thousand and thirty-eight votes (3,038), and Enos C. Renner received one thousand seven hundred and ninety-three votes (1,793), and the said Michael Mullin was declared to be elected by a majority of one thousand two hundred and forty-five (1,245). Under these circumstances the law would presume him entitled to a seat in this House. The Constitution, however, provides that no person shall be a representative who shall not have attained the age of twenty-one years and have been a citizen and an inhabitant of the State three years next preceding his election, and the contest in this case grew out of this provision of the Constitution. The contestants claim that Michael Mullin, the sitting member, is a foreigner by birth, and was not a citizen and inhabitant of the State three years next preceding his election. Mr. Mullin claims to have been born in the city of Philadelphia, and to be a citizen of the State, as is required by the provisions of the Constitution.

Under the circumstances of the case, the presumptions of the law are in his favor, and it is incumbent upon those who deny his eligibility to prove that fact beyond a doubt. In this particular, your committee think the contestants have failed, and a majority are satisfied that the testimony shows Philadelphia to have been the birth place of Mr. Mullin. This might be sufficient to entitle him to retain his seat as a member of this House; but he claimed, further, that if the contestants had shown to the satisfaction of the committee that he was of foreign birth, yet his citizenship had been established by the naturalization of his father during his minority. Your committee, with one exception, considers that the testimony shows his father to have been naturalized as far back as 1842 or 1843. At that time he voted upon naturalization papers, which were duly examined by competent election officers more than once, and pronounced regular. He appears to have voted for a number of years, and been an active man in his party. It is true the contestants alleged that these papers on which the father based his right to vote were fraudulent, and your committee was asked to declare them so; but we do not consider that the testimony in the case would warrant us in so finding.

After a careful examination of the whole case, your committee do decide and report that the said Michael Mullin is entitled to retain the seat now held by him as a member of this House.

February 26, A. D. 1867.

Mr. WADELLE. Mr. Speaker, in this connection I would ask the House to pass this resolution.

The resolution was entitled and read as follows:

No. 699, joint resolution to pay Wm. H. Jenkins, for services as clerk of the committee in the matter of the petition of the electors of the Thirteenth Representative district of the city of Philadelphia, complaining of an undue election and false return of Michael Mullin as a member from said city.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Mr. M'KEE. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement at this time. Leave was granted.

Mr. M'KEE. Some three weeks ago, this House had under consideration Senate bill No. 52, entitled an act to vacate a part of Spruce alley in the Ninth ward of the city of Pittsburgh.

The House proceeded to the consideration of the bill.

The bill was read.

Mr. WHANN. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by inserting the following, immediately after the enacting clause:

"That the stockholders of said company will agree that they will keep suitable persons for the collection of tolls; and that said toll agents shall be at all times in their places for the collection of tolls; and that whenever any person or persons shall attempt to evade,

During the consideration of the private calendar on second reading, the following remarks were made

On House bill No. 491:

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, I desire to amend the seventh line of the first section by striking out the word "school."

Agreed to.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, a number of bills of this character have been in Committee of Ways and Means, asking for an exemption of taxes upon societies for both religious and charitable purposes. They have all, so far as I have known, with the exception of this one, been returned with a negative recommendation. Inasmuch as this bill will come on the calendar, I do not see why it should be passed when the committee were almost unanimous in a negative recommendation of the other bills. To test the feeling of the House I move the indefinite postponement of this bill.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, the position of this bill, and the facts connected with it, are somewhat peculiar.

The gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS], I think, was not present when the bill was considered. As near as I can recollect the facts are these: Under the construction given to the general law a parsonage adjoining a church is exempt from taxation. Now, in this case, the building adjoining the church, being unsuitable for use as a parsonage, has been rented out for business purposes, and the church pays a tax upon it.

The church society has been compelled to rent a house a short distance from the church for the use of their minister. It is used as a parsonage in the same character in which it would be used if it was on the church grounds, and they ask that privilege be allowed it the same as though it adjoined the church, inasmuch as they pay taxes on the building, which, were it suitable, they would use and be free from taxation.

It was from a conviction that the State was losing by the operation that induced the committee to make the report they did.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my motion to postpone.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I understand that the school tax has been stricken out. I see no reason why it should be stricken out. This property, that would not have been taxed had the parsonage been on the back end of the church, now pays rather more school tax than would be paid where the parsonage is at present. Therefore, there is no use of making an exemption of the tax. I trust the gentleman from Chester [Mr. SNARLES] will withdraw his amendment, inasmuch as more school tax is derived from the building that would otherwise be exempt than is now paid by the parsonage.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, this seems to be a peculiar kind of a case. I have no desire, of course, to inflict any wrong upon the gentlemen who ask this bill. I am willing that the amendment shall be withdrawn.

The SPEAKER. Will the House give its unanimous consent to restore the word "school" in the first section?

Consent was given and the word restored.

The question being on agreeing to the bill, it was read a second and third time, and passed finally.

On Senate bill No. 225:

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker, as I was not in my seat on the first reading, I would like this bill to be postponed for the present, with a view to harmonizing the conflicting interests. I, therefore, move to postpone for the present.

The motion was

Agreed to.

On bill No. 521:

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I have no objection to this bill; but it does not say where the office of the company shall be. I hope the gentleman who has the bill in charge will amend it so as to fix the place at which the principal office shall be located.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, the bill should pass in its present shape. If the gentleman desires I will fix the office of the company at Easton.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by adding, "and that the principal office of the company shall be at the city of Philadelphia."

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I object to the amendment.

Mr. MEYERS. Then, Mr. Speaker, the bill ought not to pass. Insurers in this company have a right to know where its principal office is.

The question being on agreeing to the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton, [Mr. MEYERS], it was put, and the amendment was

Not agreed to.

On bill No. 547:

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, when this bill was introduced it was supposed an act was necessary for the appointment. I understand the Governor has, within a few days past, made that appointment. Hence there is no necessity for the bill. I hope, therefore, it will be voted down.

On bill No. 563:

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I trust that motion will not prevail. I am a little surprised that this innocent bill should have attracted attention to so great an extent as to have the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEZ] ask for its postponement. The object of this bill is to accomplish a very simple purpose. In order that I may bring the bill fairly to the attention of the House, I will give a short history of the way in which it came to be presented here.

This is a coal company, a majority of whose stock is held in my district. For the reason that I happen to be to some extent interested in this company I felt a delicacy in presenting it to the House, so I called the attention of the gentleman from Venango [Mr. WHANN] to the bill; in his district the lands of the company lie.

I feel, now, a delicacy in pressing this matter upon the House. But I know that little regard will be paid to my interest in the matter; and I feel it to be my duty, in justice to those of my constituents who are interested, to give, at least, a full explanation of the circumstances under which it is presented here, and ask the House to act accordingly.

This coal company was organized under the present manufacturing laws of 1832. In the following year as the lands lie about five miles from Oil City, and some difficulty was found in bringing the coal to market, a charter was granted by this body authorizing the Cranberry coal company to construct a railroad. The provisions of the act clearly show that its intention was to enable this company to carry its own coal to market. The language of the act is, "That the Cranberry coal company be and they are hereby authorized to construct a railroad from their coal mines in Cranberry township, in the county of Venango, to Oil City, in said county, subject to the several provisions of railroad law. The clear intent and meaning of that act, therefore, was that this company should be allowed to carry its own freights to market. There is no other freight along the line of the road to be carried to market.

There are but few coal mines that are not owned by this company, either directly or indirectly, that is either in fee simple or by lease. In the township adjoining this, there are coal lands, the proprietors of which had a bill passed through this Legislature authorizing them to construct a railroad with this concluding provision:

"The said road should said company not use steam as a motive power on said road, it shall not be subject to the second provision of the twentieth section of the general railroad law of this Commonwealth, approved, &c."

That twentieth section is the section which relates to tariffs to be charged upon railroads. Being so excepted from the provisions of that section they were enabled, by their charter, to charge whatever rates of freight they pleased. They proposed to have that railroad constructed over the same lands as our own is built; but from the failure of Mr. Culver to enter into the designs they did not succeed in the construction of their road. The Cranberry company had made repeated endeavors to have the proprietors of the other lands join with them in the construction of this road, but always without success. Finally, the Cranberry coal company was compelled to construct the road itself. It is a little horse railroad upon which it is proposed to lay the strap iron rails.

The cost of transportation for the amount of freight they have, will really make it cost them eight or nine cents a ton for all the coal they take over their road. They do not propose to charge any one else additional. The gentlemen who make the application for the postponement of this bill are the persons who own the other charter, which is subject to no rates of tariff, and which they have offered, on more than one occasion, to sell to the Cranberry company. They propose now to transport their freight at our expense. They propose to pay the Cranberry company three or four cents a ton to carry their freight; whereas it will cost the Cranberry company, themselves, six or seven cents. It is provided in the act that the Cranberry coal company shall be required to transport over their road any freight or merchandise not belonging to their company. The only object of this bill is, simply, that they shall not be required to transport the freight of other parties over their own road.

A postponement is proposed, with the sole object of defeating this bill. That is very clear, because the parties interested in this bill are here, upon the floor of this House, as I understand, urging the defeat of this bill. It is not to be postponed, therefore, with the object of obtaining further information. This is a very simple bill; it proposes to put the Cranberry company on an equality with its neighbor. The other company has a charter—let them build it. I submitted the bill to the gentleman from Venango [Mr. WHANN]; he presented it; it was referred to the appropriate committee, and reported without comment. Since then, one of the parties interested in the charter has arrived in Harrisburg; hence, this opposition. I trust the motion to postpone will not prevail.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I did not wish to argue this question. But the gentleman from Berks [Mr. JONES] assumes a great deal in his argument. He takes the whole responsibility on his own shoulders. Until this afternoon I never knew the gentleman from Berks had anything to do with this bill. It was read in place by the gentleman from Venango [Mr. WHANN]. He and I were talking about this morning. He considered it unfair as to my name, he said he had not looked up the provisions of the bill, and agreed with me that it should be postponed until all the parties interested could see what was its intention.

The gentleman from Berks [Mr. JONES] says the Cranberry company have finished their railroad—I was not aware of the fact.

Now, it seems to me that his own argument proves that there is some advantage sought to be taken.

I know nothing about the other charter, or the men who hold it, nor do I know of any man who is interested in it. I may know some who have an interest in the matter, because I know almost every person in Venango. Nor has any man spoken to me about his interest. I know this bill has some object. The argument of the gentleman shows it. The Cranberry company have not finished their road, to my knowledge. I am not prepared to debate this question, nor do I wish to put it in an embarrassing situation. The gentleman says my object is to defeat the bill. Well, now, if the bill is right I have no objection to its passage. If it is improper it will receive no harm by lying over a few days. The gentleman from Venango [Mr. WHANN] read the bill in place and, as he says, without knowing its effect, and without examination. The gentleman from Berks [Mr. JONES] urges his own interest instead of that of his constituents, and then he charges me with being interested in the rival company. I am not prepared to go on with this discussion to-day. I trust the House, out of courtesy to the gentleman from Venango and myself, will let this bill go over.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] says I have taken the responsibility entirely upon my own shoulder. It is true, so far as I have the responsibility of telling the facts of the case, and in undeceiving the House, and so far, as to an impression, which I would not have created, I have taken the responsibility. But I did not urge the passage of this bill on my own account. There are parties much more largely interested in this than I am. I thought it proper and due to the House not to urge it under false pretenses, but to confess the interest I had in it; and ask the House to disregard the interest I confessed, in justice to myself, ask to have this bill passed, without confessing that I had an interest in it myself, at the same time asking that that interest be wholly disregarded. I want that to be very distinctly understood.

But my constituents hold a majority, or nearly a majority of the stock of this company. And, without any discourtesy to the gentleman from Venango [Mr. WHANN], he will hear me out when I say, that before I made any move in this matter, I submitted the bill to his inspection; he read the bill, and with me, approved of its provisions. It was then referred to the committee. I told the members of that committee almost the same thing that I have stated to the House, in order that they might act advisedly; because I did not wish the bill to be adopted without a perfect understanding of all the circumstances of the case. It is not to defraud any one's rights; because I have read to the House the charter which was granted the other company the year after this charter was granted. They have only to build the railroad for themselves, just as this company did. I see no reason why this bill should be delayed, and in the end defeated, to aid another company to which this Legislature has granted precisely the same character of privileges. I am willing to submit this question to the House, and for it to make such disposition of the matter as it sees proper.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman one question. I believe he states the Cranberry coal company had finished their railroad.

Mr. JONES. I did.
Mr. DAVIS. Where is its terminus?
Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I will state that it is at Venango City. The Cranberry company has delivered coal in Venango City from those mines. All that is needed is to lay a strap rail. The cars are there, and the company is now in operation. I think the gentleman from Venango is advised of that fact. At all events, I know the fact, whether his attention has been called to it or not.

One word more with regard to the object of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS]. His proposition to postpone the bill, I did not understand that the motion originated with the gentleman himself. I believe, and in fact I was informed, that the suggestion was made to him by some one else. I had no idea until a moment ago, that the motion originated with himself.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman talked about his interest. I was not aware that he had any particular interest in the bill. The Cranberry coal company cannot reach Venango City without passing over property in which I own a large interest.

Now I cannot see the propriety of passing a bill of this kind. To-day is the first time that I knew there was such a bill, to take any notice of it. I am particularly interested, with a large portion of the people of Venango county, and many residing in the city of Philadelphia. The object, in my opinion, of this bill, is to prevent all other parties who own coal on that side of the river, from reaching market, unless they make terms with the Cranberry coal company, who do not own the one-hundredth part of the coal in the township.

Mr. JONES. I would like the gentleman to tell me how many acres of coal lands there are in that township.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I know that I sold the land on which the Cranberry coal company is located to parties in Philadelphia, and they sold it to the parties who own it now. I believe I state the truth when I say they do not own the one hundredth part of the coal that lies within ten miles around there. They wish to have an exclusive right in order to prevent all other parties who own coal lands from reaching market, unless they agree to their terms. I trust the House will see the necessity of putting this bill over for the present. If the Cranberry coal company have made the terminus of their road in Ve-nanago City, they have made it on my property and have never informed me of it.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman assumes a good deal. Venango City is quite a large town. I believe I am correct when I say the gentleman from Philadelphia does not know at all that that company have made the terminus of their railroad on his property. It is a mere statement of fact in contradiction of what I have said. I know the gentleman is largely interested in that county. I disclaim my own personal interest in this matter, and I hope the House will take no notice of the personal interest of the gentleman from Philadelphia.

Mr. WHANN. Mr. Speaker, I wish to place myself in a proper position on this subject.

The gentleman from Berks [Mr. JONES] came to me with this bill, and proposed that I should read it. I did so, not understanding that I was aiding its passage. The bill was to stand on its own merits. I was not aware that there was any charter conflicting with it. I was not aware there would be any objection to it.

To-day, I ascertained that one of the parties interested in the other charter was present.

If this bill could be laid aside to a certain time I think all parties could be satisfied.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I have no interest in this bill, but I would like to suggest to the gentleman from Berks the propriety of fixing a definite time.

[Owing to confusion and noise in the House the remainder of the remarks of the gentleman were wholly inaudible to the reporter.]

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I have no disposition to prevent proper examination of this bill. In fact, I would be glad to have it subjected to the very closest scrutiny. We know very well that if the bill goes over without being made the special order for some particular day, it will not be reached until near the end of this session, and perhaps not at all. I would call the attention of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] to this proposition. As the object is merely to have a proper examination into the merits of this bill, I would suggest that it be allowed to go to third reading; and then that it be made the special order for some particular day.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I will object to putting the bill in that situation; that is equivalent to passing it. I am also opposed to hurrying it through the House. If the House sees fit to pass this bill, over my head, I am satisfied. But I am opposed to the bill, because I think it takes advantage of the other company, and because I think it takes advantage of the people of that section.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say but one word. This bill was considered in the committee and laid over some two or three meetings. I do not know who the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DAVIS] could have passed it over without having heard of it until he came into the House to-day.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I will call to the recollection of the gentleman the fact that I was unwell and attended in the committee only two evenings. I certainly never heard of the bill before to-day.

The question being on postponing for the present the further consideration of the bill, it was put, and

Not agreed to.

The question then being on agreeing to the bill,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DAVIS, and Mr. WATT, and were as follows, viz:

THE LINCOLN MONUMENT.

The Deputy Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented the following message from the Governor, which was read and with the accompanying correspondence was Referred to the Committee on Finance:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,

HARRISBURG, February 26, 1867.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania: GENTLEMEN—I have the honor to submit herewith two communications from His Excellency, Richard J. Oglesby, Governor of the State of Illinois, upon the subject of an appropriation for the erection of a monument to Abraham Lincoln. I very respectfully refer the same to the consideration of the House.

JNO. W. GEARY.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,

SPRINGFIELD, February 1, 1867.

To His Excellency John W. Geary, Governor of Pennsylvania:

DEAR SIR—I am directed by the National Lincoln Monument association to address you upon this subject, and take the liberty respectfully to draw your attention to the enclosed memorial, and to request that you lay the same before the Legislature of your State, now in session, with such recommendations as you may feel the importance of the subject requires, and your own views may permit.

After nearly two years of continued efforts to secure the necessary means to build a monument over the remains of Mr. Lincoln by private subscriptions and donations, we feel satisfied that we have reached nearly the full amount that may be expected from these sources, and that a public duty next to our obligations to the memory of this great and good man, requires us to directly appeal to the several loyal States through their Legislatures, to aid the association in securing what is believed will be the necessary sum to build an appropriate and suitable monument over his remains.

The State of Illinois has responded to our memorials and petitions by granting an appropriation of fifty thousand dollars. We have, in the hands of our treasurer, invested interest-bearing national securities, denoted by private subscriptions, after the payment of all expenses, seventy-five thousand dollars. We believe we will hardly be justified in attempting to build a monument for the purpose stated that will cost us less than two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. We have at present but one-half of this amount. We are not without hope that the Legislature of your State may feel disposed to approve our arrival, and to aid our association by such an appropriation as shall encourage us to hope that the laudable object we have in view is not to fail, but is to be supported by that just and liberal public opinion which, during his administration, so cheerfully and steadily supported him.

I shall be most happy to afford you any information you may desire about the history of the organization, and action of our association, and shall be much pleased to receive, either from yourself or from the Legislature of your State, any suggestions in reference to this subject.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

R. J. OGLESBY.

MEMORIAL.

To the Honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Pennsylvania:

Your memorialists, members of the National Lincoln Monument Association, would most respectfully solicit your attention to the accompanying articles of association and memorial, which they have had the honor to submit to the General Assembly of the State of Illinois, now in session.

The Legislature of Illinois has appropriated the sum of fifty thousand dollars in furtherance of the objects of the association. But a much larger amount, in the opinion of your memorialists, and, as they believe, in the judgment of the great body of the loyal American people, will be required to build a monument commemorative with the dignity and grandeur of the object and aim contemplated by the association.

In order, therefore, to impart to this enterprise that truly national character which we think it ought to assume, we respectfully ask the aid of your great State in rearing such a monument to the memory of Abraham Lincoln as will be worthy of his public services and fame, and as shall truly represent the love and reverence of the American people for the immortal principles of liberty and justice which ever found in him so able and fearless an advocate, and for his fidelity to which he lost his life.

Mr. CONNELL moved that the further consideration of the bill be postponed for the present, in order to reach the general railroad bill.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. RANDALL moved that the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of the private calendar.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, the unfinished business of yesterday is the special order. I hope we will go on with the general railroad bill this morning, and hold an afternoon session for the consideration of the private calendar.

Mr. RANDALL withdrew his motion.

Mr. CONNELL then moved a reconsideration of his motion to postpone the further consideration of the bill called up by the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. GRAHAM], as his object was to reach the railroad bill.

Mr. RIDGWAY said he hoped that that motion would not prevail, and thought it better to go through with the private calendar.

Mr. GRAHAM. I followed the precedent of several gentlemen in calling up my bill. The motion of Mr. CONNELL to reconsider was

Agreed to.

And the rules having been dispensed with, the bill was read a second and third time, and Passed finally.

THE GENERAL RAILROAD BILL.

Agreeably to order, the Senate proceeded to the further consideration of bill entitled An act to authorize the formation of railroad companies.

The first section was read.

Mr. CONNELL. Mr. Speaker, I move that the further consideration of the bill be postponed until to-morrow morning, and made the special order for that day.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer). Mr. Speaker, I should like to hear some reason why this bill should be postponed.

Mr. CONNELL. We have on our files a private calendar, which we have been in the habit of taking up on Wednesday. We have some one hundred and seventy bills here, and, for the accommodation of the clerks, I think we should take up the calendar. I will agree to begin to-morrow morning, and sit all the week on the railroad bill.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer). Mr. Speaker, I have charge of some of the bills on that calendar, and I would rather that they would all fall than that this bill should be delayed longer. I regard this matter of far more importance than anything else.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, this is the same question which we pledged ourselves, last week, should come up on Tuesday, and I suppose we shall have the same game as before. I am in the same predicament as other Senators, and have a number of bills on that calendar, but I do think that the interests of the State are of more importance than these petty bills.

Mr. CONNELL. The temperance convention was in session yesterday, and it was the pleasure of the Senate to attend that. As I said before, I am willing to go on with this bill to-morrow morning, and consider it the rest of the week.

Mr. BIGHAM. As has been said, this was made the special order for last Tuesday morning, it was crowded off until Wednesday; it was then postponed again, and we were assured that there should be no objection to taking it up this week.

Mr. CONNELL said that the bill was postponed last week on account of the absence of one of its friends.

Mr. BIGHAM. Well, sir, yesterday we reached it but half an hour before adjournment. Now, I want to propose an afternoon session. We can run through this private calendar in the afternoon; I am in favor of an afternoon session for that purpose. We can go on this morning with this bill.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, as a matter of economy in time, I am in favor of the postponement of this bill, so as to work up this private calendar; let us get that out of the way.

Mr. SEARIGHT. Mr. Speaker, this bill was postponed and made the order for last Tuesday on my motion, but not for the reason alleged by the Senator from Allegheny, that the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] was absent. I stated on that occasion that the Senator from Clearfield was absent, and that I believed that he was an active friend of the bill, and that he had objected, on the day before, to its being taken up, because he had not had an opportunity of examining it. Now, I made no pledges on that occasion for any other member of the Senate than myself. I stated then that, so far as I was concerned, I would make no further objection, and I am perfectly willing to go on now and consider this bill, if it be the will of the Senate.

On the question.

Will the Senate agree to the motion of Mr. CONNELL to postpone the further consideration of the bill for the present?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. LOWRY and Mr. CONNELL, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Burnett, Connell, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, James, Landon, M'Candless, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Searight, Shoemaker, Stutzman and Walls—16.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Billington, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Davis, Lowry, Taylor, Wallace, White and Hall, Speaker—11.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

PRIVATE CALENDAR.

Agreeably to order, the Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of bills on the private calendar, numbered and entitled as follows, and said bills were dispersed as stated:

No. 448, an act to divide the borough of Port Carbon, Schuylkill county, into two wards.

Passed finally.

No. 444, a supplement to the act of March 19, 1860, making further provisions for the government of the city of Harrisburg.

The bill was read.

Mr. COLEMAN moved to amend the sixth section by inserting after the word "mayor," in the first line, the words "and president judge of this district," so as to confer the power of appointment equally on both the mayor and resident judge.

Mr. DONOVAN objected to the sixth section, as proposed to be amended. The chief magistrate of the city certainly ought to have the selection of all his officers, without the appointing power on the part of the judge.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, the county is put to the expense of a great portion of the police system, and the judge, being representative of the county, the power is divided, as it were, between the county and the mayor. The county pays the great bulk of the expense of the system. I do not want to meddle with the gentleman's legislation in the city of Philadelphia, and hope he will not interfere in this.

Mr. DONOVAN. I am not interfering with the gentleman's legislation, but I think it is a wrong system. It is upon a question of principle that I object to this.

Mr. DAVIS said that, as he found no reason for such an extraordinary change in the police system, he would vote for the amendment; that he disliked to interfere with the police of the city, but it would make an entire change in the system. The mayor is responsible for the good order and security of property in the city in which he resides, and, in the absence of any reason why the judge should have this privilege, he would feel obliged to vote for the amendment.

Mr. COLEMAN said that in large cities, like New York, for instance, the Mayor had no appointing power; and thought the same principle should apply to Harrisburg.

Mr. DAVIS said that the reason why the mayor of New York had no appointing power, was owing to the same enterprising gentlemen at Albany.

The amendment of Mr. COLEMAN was then

Agreed to.

And the question recurring.

Shall the bill pass?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DONOVAN and Mr. RIDGWAY, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Billington, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, Ridgway, Royer, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor and White—16.

NAYS—Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, M'Candless, Randall, Schall, Searight, Wallace and Walls—10.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The bill was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and

House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That from and after the passage of this act, it shall not be lawful to sell or expose for sale, in or upon any of the streets or highways, or upon any pavement which is intended for a public highway, in the city of Philadelphia; any meats, fish, or farm produce of any description, within six squares of any market house containing not less than two hundred stalls, which may or shall be held for the sale of meats or farm produce.

Sec. 2. Any person violating the provisions of this act shall be liable to a penalty of five dollars for each and every offense, to be sued for and recovered before any alderman of the said city of Philadelphia, in the name of the city and at the instance of any citizen, one-half of which penalty shall be paid into the city treasury, and one-half to the informer.

Mr. ROYER. Mr. Speaker, this bill was before the Senate a few days ago, and, on account of the absence of my colleague, the Senator from Chester [Mr. WASHINGTON], it was laid over. I regret to state that he is still prevented by his illness from being present to-day. I know, however, his anxiety for the passage of this law. And in his behalf, and with the information thus far afforded us in support of the bill, I ask the Senate to proceed to its consideration and pass it.

The Senator from Erie [Mr. LOWRY] has in his possession a letter from one of the ablest men in our district and State, the Hon. Joseph J. Lewis, reviewing, at length, the reasons why this law should be enacted. Will be be kind enough to send it to the Clerk's desk, that it may be read for the information of the Senate?

The letter was read as follows:

WEST CHESTER, February 14, 1867.

Hon. M. B. Lowry:

DEAR SIR—I write now for the purpose of asking your attention to a bill which interests the farmers of Chester and other neighboring counties. I do not know the title of the bill, but it relates to the market houses in the city of Philadelphia, and the object is to do away with what are commonly known as the curbstone markets in all parts of the city where convenient and comfortable market houses have been erected for the accommodation of the people. Farmers who were in the habit of attending market suffered in health from exposure in the open sheds on the middle of the streets, and many took stock in the companies that were formed to build houses in which they might sell the produce of their farms in some degree of comfort, with the understanding that the city councils would tear down the sheds and clear the streets, as soon as accommodations were procured elsewhere. This consummation has been prevented by an influence which was not anticipated. There is a tribe of men about the purlieus of the city called shiners and bucksters, who prefer to pay nothing for market stands, and to sell from carts and wagons backed up to the curbstone, to going into the commodious market houses and competing on equal terms with farmers who bring the produce of their farms from the surrounding counties of Chester, Delaware, Montgomery and Bucks. These shiners and bucksters are near to their homes, and the exposure to them for a few hours is not of so much consequence as to the farmer who has a longer distance to come and return. As the curbstone privilege is allowed to them, the street markets are maintained, for farmers cannot sell in the houses as long as persons are allowed to sell in the streets. The market house accommodations thus become, in some instances, of little use. One large and commodious house has been sold, as I learn, by the sheriff, and another is in danger of being. It is true that the privilege of street markets is specially reserved for the benefit of the farmers, but the shiners and hucksters claim and obtain the benefit of it. If he rents an acre of ground, he claims to be a farmer, and the law as it now stands is practically a dead letter. What is wanted is a law so general in its terms and so clear in its provisions that these curbstone markets shall not be allowed to interfere with the regular market houses, which have been generally built by companies duly incorporated for the specific purpose of furnishing Philadelphia with decent accommodations for a class of people whose wishes in this regard ought to be respected.

But besides these street markets are really a nuisance. They ought not to be allowed unless the need be urgent. They clog up the streets and impede the passage of travelers. The streets of the city are public highways, in which all the citizens of the Commonwealth have an interest, and they ought not to be used as public markets for the sale of meats or vegetables, more than for the sale of sugar, tea, hardware or broad cloth. I know of no other city that tolerates this practice. The bill in question, I believe, prohibits these markets, only within a certain number of squares of the market houses. To such a prohibition it appears to me unreasonable that any opposition should be made. All that is required is that these street markets shall not interfere with the established market houses. There is room enough for both, and those that like to sell at the curbstone and are too parsimonious to pay stall rent and taxes can be indulged, and the substantial farmer who sells good provisions and wishes to be accommodated can also be satisfied.

The regular markets in the market houses are inspected—the curbstone markets are not. A curious fact was brought to light some time ago in relation to these curbstone markets, by a revenue inspector whom I appointed when commissioner. He ascertained that in a district of country near Philadelphia in which the shiners bought up calves to be slaughtered for the market, no calves were to be found over a week old.

The citizens there like young veal ought to insist on maintaining the curbstone markets. If such a practice obtains as to veal, it would not be surprising if other, equally disgusting should be found to exist as to beef and mutton. I should prefer, for my part, not to dine with a family or to stop at a hotel that patronizes a curbstone market.

I have not contemplated writing an argument, but only to solicit a favor, if consistent with your public duty—and that is to give your aid to the passage of the bill in question, if there shall be found to be any obstruction in the Senate. No such obstruction is anticipated, but it may occur. One of the city Senators may be opposed to it. He may deem it his interest to speak for a class who have no claims on the sympathies of country members.

I am, very respectfully and truly, yours,
JOSEPH J. LEWIS,
MORROW B. LOWRY, Esq., Senate of Pennsylvania.

On the question,
The Senate agree to the first section of the bill.

Mr. McCANDLESS moved to amend the same, by inserting, after the words, "city of Philadelphia," the words, "north of Lombard street."

Mr. DONOVAN. Mr. Speaker, I have no reply to make to the letter which has been read; but I will ask the attention of the Senate for not over five or six minutes, to make a statement in reference to this bill. It may be of very little moment to Senators here; but it is of vital importance to me and to the people I represent. This bill has been defeated in the Senate of Pennsylvania—the city of Pennsylvania—for the last six years. The bill is entitled an act for the protection of farmers; but it ought to be entitled an act for the destruction of farmers. Mr. Speaker, if there can be found to-day in the city of Philadelphia six taxpayers who are in favor of the bill that we are asked to pass, I will vote for it. You cannot find a newspaper published in the city of Philadelphia of any class of politics, which has not spoken in thunder tones against this bill. It is monstrous. Mr. Speaker, this bill affects every poor man, woman or child in Philadelphia. In the dead of winter, when we have two or three feet of snow on the ground, the poor man or woman cannot, if this bill is passed, buy half a pound of meat at their own doors. By the provisions of this bill, you compel them to walk six squares.

Mr. Smedley, of Chester county, bought the Second Street market under the sheriff's hammer; he bought it for a song; it did not pay him; and he asks the Senate to put an extra price upon produce.

Now, Mr. Speaker, four years ago there was a bill that this bill might pass the Senate of Pennsylvania, when there was a combination of corporators here. The lobby of the Senate Chamber was flooded with people against this bill; every paper in Philadelphia wrote against it. Now, if this bill is postponed for one week, a horse and cart could not haul into this chamber the petitions that will come in against it. I will ask the Clerk to read an extract from a Philadelphia paper of last Wednesday. I have other papers, but they reflect upon Senators, and I will not ask to have them read.

The extract was read by the Clerk, as follows:

"AT IT AGAIN.—There is just now a committee of market house stockholders trying, for the sixth time, to drive the curbstone farmers into their buildings. The market houses are really very fine specimens of architecture, and we should like to see them duly supported; but the rents are high, and the lessees of stalls are, therefore, obliged to put a very heavy tariff on all the provisions they sell. The poorer classes of our citizens can buy what they want much cheaper from the curbstone farmers than from the butchers and hucksters in the palatial establishments which their owners are trying to force certain parties to occupy, by interrupting their sales on the street. This is a question which concerns thousands of worthy but indigent people, who should not be deprived of cheap food; and before the Legislature of the State consents to take that right or convenience away, it should take counsel of our poor, and not of our rich folks, and heed the Christian precept: 'Do unto others as you would have others do unto you.'"

Mr. DONOVAN. Mr. Speaker, I have no particular interest myself in this bill, but I lead for the people of my district, and I think the Senate for never passing this bill over my head. If ever I understood the wishes of my people, it is upon this thing. I have letters upon this subject which would fill my desk. For six years, when this lobby had been packed with a committee of corporators and market buildings of Philadelphia, we have defeated this bill, to the credit of the Senate, which will receive the thanks of every poor man, widow and orphan in the district I represent. You can search the Record, and search it in vain, to find a case where I have voted for a local bill over any Senator. I say, sir, that where party questions have not been concerned, if any Senator will show me where I have cast my voter over his head, for the past six years, this bill may pass over mine. If my colleague, Mr. CAMPBELL, wants it for his district, I will vote for it. I ask the Senate of Pennsylvania not to pass this bill over my head because I do not want it, and I know that there are not six taxpayers in my district who do want it.

The Senate will bear witness that I have asked very few favors here; but I ask this, sir, as a right, and not as a favor. I trust that Senators will not pass a bill so unanimously condemned by public opinion, and I hope it will not dare public opinion and the press of Philadelphia in this way. I ask the Senate to vote this bill down. It only applies to my district, and the Senator from Erie [Mr. LOWRY] ought to be the first man to vote against it, having a horror, as he does, against corporations. Here is a corporation against the poor man.

Mr. LOWRY said when he offered that letter he did not know how he should vote; but if the owners of market houses in his city should come here and endeavor to get an act passed over his head to prevent the sale of produce there, he should be opposed to it. Therefore he would vote with the Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. DONOVAN] against this bill.

Mr. RIDGWAY. Mr. Speaker, I represent one of the Senatorial districts of Philadelphia, and I am in favor of passing this bill. They have five market houses there, and better accommodations than in any Senatorial district in Philadelphia. In regard to these "shiners," they pay no license tax or rent. They will sit down right before a farmer who has to pay rent, and sometimes even right before a man's store, who pays five hundred dollars rent. They have no expenses to pay. I have seen them pull their wagons out of an open lot and drag them back at night. It is a customary thing.

Mr. DONOVAN. Will the Senator allow me to ask how many market houses in his district have two hundred stalls?

Mr. RIDGWAY. Only one. But I consider these hucksters a nuisance. We need the streets for the business of the city. There is one of these nuisances within one square of my house, which this bill will break up. It is a nuisance which I want to get got rid of.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to interfere with legislation of this kind. I believe I promised my friend, Mr. DONOVAN, some time ago, that I would oppose this bill; if they can procure their turnips better at the curbstone than at the market houses, I have no objection. As it is a family quarrel, I shall go with my friend, Mr. DONOVAN.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, my experience in Philadelphia is, that in going up to Richmond, to visit manufacturing establishments there, it has always struck me as a great nuisance to see Second street blocked up as it is by these market wagons, and it strikes me, if I were representing Philadelphia, I would be very anxious to get rid of these things. But I should like to hear from the very able chairman of the Agricultural Committee on this subject, and also from the Senator from Blair [Mr. HALL], who takes an interest in agricultural matters.

Mr. DONOVAN. Mr. Speaker, the Senator from Lebanon [Mr. COLEMAN] may treat this bill lightly; but if you pass it, the farmer cannot sell his produce over to the storekeeper. I do not want it for my district, and I am sustained by every paper published in the city; I am sustained by thousands of petitions sent in here four years ago. If any Senator wants it for his district, he can have it; but I do ask the Senate not to pass it for my district, because my constituents do not want it.

Mr. LANDON. Mr. Speaker, I wish to ask the Senator one question. Does this retail of agricultural produce along the streets bring provisions to the common people at a lower rate than they can get without it?

Mr. DONOVAN. Most undoubtedly. If you compel the people selling produce to go farther from the market, they certainly would have to put an extra price upon their produce.

Mr. LANDON. If a farmer can take a load of potatoes into the city, and sell them without having to pay the rent of a stall, of course he can sell them at a lower price than he could if he had to pay for a stall.

Mr. RIDGWAY. These persons are not farmers. Nine out of ten of the persons occupying curbstones are "shiners;" they are not farmers.

Mr. DONOVAN. Don't you know that produce can be bought by the poor man cheaper on Second street than in the market?

Mr. RIDGWAY. Perhaps he can obtain an inferior article cheaper.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. DONOVAN] another question. Can you not buy a bushel cheaper from a merchant who does not pay a license than one who does?

Mr. DONOVAN. Certainly; and that is an answer to the question of the other Senator.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Speaker, it appears to me that we are legislating for persons who do not ask it; this bill is not for the benefit of farmers, and they do not ask it. If they choose, they could go into the market houses without legislation. There are a great many people who have been selling on the streets for years, who are not "shiners," but persons extensively engaged in farming, and why take them into the market, and why legislate their will by legislation? Besides, the city authorities have control of the matter, and when, in their opinion, the curbstone market becomes a nuisance, they can regulate the matter themselves. For other reasons, I shall vote against the motion to postpone indefinitely.

Mr. HAINES. Mr. Speaker, as the Senator who has immediate charge of this bill is not here, I move that the further consideration of it be postponed for the present.

Mr. DONOVAN. Mr. Speaker, I trust the Senator from Perry [Mr. HAINES] will withdraw that motion. Let us meet this question here. There is no bill before this Senate in which the people of my district are more interested than in this one.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, the Senator from Chester [Mr. WORTHINGTON] has this bill very much at heart. I had a conversation with him last evening at his rooms. He was hopeful of its passage, and suggested that, if there was any extended debate on the bill, it be laid over until he should be in his seat, which he hoped would be next week, and it is due to him that it should be done. I trust the Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. DONOVAN] will appreciate this.

Mr. DONOVAN. Yes, sir, I do appreciate, and I have consented once before to let it lay over. I have voted with the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE] on his local bills.

Mr. WHITE. Does the Senator not appreciate that I have a right to extend an act of courtesy to a brother Senator, confined to his room by sickness?

Mr. DONOVAN. Certainly.

On the question.

Will the Senate agree to the motion of Mr. HAINES to postpone for the present?

Mr. DONOVAN moved to amend the same by striking out the words "for the present," and inserting, in lieu thereof, the word "indefinitely."

Mr. RIDGWAY. Mr. Speaker, I trust the Senate will not do that. I think the Senator from Chester [Mr. WORTHINGTON] should be here to see to this bill. He wants to protect farmers and the people also. But he does not want to be imposed upon by these "shiners."

On the question, Will the Senate agree so to amend the motion of Mr. HAINES?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DONOVAN and Mr. RIDGWAY, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Barnett, Donovan, Glatz, James, Mcandles, Randall, Schall, Senright, Wallace, Walls and Hall, Speaker—11.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Billington, Browne, (Lawrence), Coleman, Connell, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, McConaughy, Ridgway, Royer, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, and White—16.

So the question was determined in the negative.

During the call, Mr. McCONAUGHY said: Mr. Speaker, I do not know how I will vote when this bill comes up in final passage, but I do not wish to have it disposed of finally until the Senator from Chester [Mr. WORTHINGTON], who has this bill in charge, can be here. I vote "no."

Also, during the call.

Messrs. LANDON and WHITE said that, for the same reasons expressed by the Senator from Adams [Mr. McCONAUGHY] they would vote "no."

The motion to postpone for the present was then agreed to.

No. 397, an act appointing commissioners to lay out and open a State road in the counties of Cameron, Elk and Clearfield, from the Sinsenhoeing to the West Branch of the Susquehanna.

Amended, on motion of Mr. WALLACE. Passed finally.

No. 409, a further supplement to an act increasing the fees of the several county officers of this Commonwealth, except in the city of Philadelphia and counties of Allegheny, Bradford, Susquehanna and Sullivan, approved March 30, A. D. 1865.

Laid over.

No. 414, an act to prevent the burning of the woods in the counties of Clearfield and Elk.

Passed finally.

House bill No. 159, a supplement extending the provisions of an act, approved the 17th day of April, A. D. 1865, relative to the fees on unseated lands in the county of Centre.

Amended, on motion of Mr. HAINES.

Passed finally.

House bill No. 186, an act to divide the borough of Plymouth into two wards.

Passed finally.

House bill No. 212, a supplement to an act to incorporate the Cresheim turnpike and bridge company, approved the 16th day of March, A. D. 1866.

Laid over on third reading.

House bill No. 268, an act to incorporate the Kensington Mutual Co-operative association of the city of Philadelphia.

Passed finally.

BILL REFERRED.

Mr. GLATZ moved that bill No. 669, on the private calendar, which had been laid over, be committed to the Committee on the Judiciary General.

The motion was

Agreed to.

BILLS RECONSIDERED.

Mr. GRAHAM moved that the Senate reconsider the vote had on the final passage of a bill entitled An act regulating roads and bridges in Wayne county.

The motion was

Agreed to.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. Speaker, I have moved for a reconsideration of the vote on this bill not because I desire to interfere with the local system of any Senator, or for the reason that I have any personal knowledge of the propriety or impropriety of the provisions contained in it. There seems to be grave objections to its passage, however, judging from the communication I hold in my hand, forwarded to me by a gentleman familiar with all the circumstances, and acquainted with the palpable injustice that would or might result from its passage. Mr. Speaker, I ask that the Clerk may read the objections contained in this paper, and then I shall leave the matter to the action of the Senate.

The letter was read by the Clerk, as follows:

This bill is objectionable in its general features.

First. It creates at least seven additional officers in each township, at, of course, an additional expense. It does not do away with the present office of supervisor, because it makes no provision for the care of the poor.

Second. It gives to the officers the entire charge of laying out and building roads and bridges, assessing damages and making the ordinary repairs without making them responsible to any tribunal.

The very inadequate relief, that the commissioners of the different townships shall review one another's action in case questions arise, is no sufficient protection of the rights of citizens. [See section thirteen.]

Under this act a man's farm may be actually cut to pieces by vote of his township, and he have no relief.

Third. This act will virtually make all our road matters political questions—putting them all in control of elective officers.

Is this a better guarantee for rights of citizens than the ordinary course of appointing viewers by quarter sessions, with opportunity of review by the court on remonstrance filed?

Fourth. It is true there are many good provisions in the bill, but we have them all substantially in our existing law. All that is new in the bill is objectionable. Some of the townships in this county have been working under a law embodying the same general provisions of this bill; the law has created great difficulty, and the people are now discussing the question of its repeal.

We cannot see any possible advantage this bill possesses over the existing law.

Sec. 4. Where no subdivisions of townships into school districts, a township is itself a school district.

Sec. 11. Requires commissioners, whenever they have money unappropriated, to advertise for bids and contracts, and spend it.

Sec. 12. Makes no provision for notice to parties interested in the laying out of a road, or through whose land it may pass.

Sec. 13. Suppose a party does not find out for three months that a road has been laid out through his farm, as no notice to him is required.

This section makes no provision for filing annual report. It makes the commissioners of different townships the final arbiters of each other's difficulties.

The bill

Passed finally.

Mr. McCONAUGHY moved to reconsider the action had on bill No. 620, on the private calendar, entitled An act to incorporate the Meshannon land and lumber company.

Mr. FISHER said he was interested in the lumber question, and desired to have an opportunity of examining this bill before it passed.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. I assure the gentleman it does not touch the lumber question on the Susquehanna.

Mr. FISHER. I shall certainly object to the bill, and shall call the eyes and ears on suspending of the rules. I want to know something about it. Anything that affects lumber interests me.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. I assure the Senator from Lancaster [Mr. FISHER] that the bill touches only the constituents of the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE]. His attention has been called to it, and he is satisfied with it.

The bill was laid over on third reading.

BILLS PASSED.

On motion of Mr. LOWRY, the rule was dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to provide for the enlargement of the Erie canal, to authorize the mortgaging of the same and the issuing of bonds, and to increase the capital stock and regulate the tolls.

The bill was read a second and third time, and Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Superior iron company.

The bill was read a second and third time, and Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. FISHER, the Committee on Corporations was discharged from the further consideration of bill entitled An act to incorporate the Union transfer company.

And the rules having been dispensed with, The bill was read a second and third time, and Passed finally.

On leave given,

Mr. M'CANDELESS read in his place and presented to the Chair a bill entitled A further supplement to the act to incorporate the Pennsylvania fiscal agency, approved November 11th, 1856, empowering said company, now known as the Credit Mobilier of America, to provide for the completion of certain contracts.

Referred to the Committee on Corporations.

On motion of Mr. M'CANDELESS, the committee was discharged from the further consideration of said bill, and the rules having been dispensed with,

The bill was read a second and third time, and Passed finally.

The SPEAKER adjourned the Senate until to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

Passed finally. No. 580, an act to incorporate the Manchester of the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make a slight amendment to this bill. I move to strike out, in the first line of the section, the word "white."

I desire to say a single word in relation to this question. It seems to me to be entirely out of character to be constantly inserting in our acts of legislation words that indicate class. If the words had been inserted in there, every Caucasian, or every Irishman, or every German, it would have been equally offensive to me, because, I think, in putting into the statute books, we ought to make them general, instead of going back to the old feudal ages and legislating for classes. The word "white" occurs very few times in the legislation of Pennsylvania. There has been more effort made to insert it in bills during this session than any other session of which I have read the record. It is time we should be turning in the other direction, instead of going further in this way. Up to 1839, the word "white" was nowhere to be found upon the statute books of Pennsylvania, except possibly in relation to the laws abolishing slavery in Pennsylvania, and I am not sure that it occurs there. It is for this reason I wish this Legislature to go back to the good old days of the fathers, upon this question, and make our laws apply to all people without reference to special classes, and without putting such offensive terms in bills. I hope, therefore, this amendment will prevail.

Mr. BOYLE, Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] seems to have a horn in his hand "white" and he assails it wherever he finds it. It might be consistent for the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] on all political questions to insist that there should be no distinction between white men and black men. But here is a simple little bill incorporating a musical society, and the gentlemen who ask to have that society incorporated have seen proper to say that it ought to be composed of white men. Now, the gentleman from Potter says that it should not be—that the distinction between white men and black men shall nowhere be recognized. He asks us to go back to the earlier and better days of the Republic, when the word white nowhere appears. For one, I would be willing to go back with him to that time, because then a white man was a white man, and a black man was a black man, and when you talked about citizens it was everywhere understood that you meant white men, and it was not necessary to insert the word "white" to establish that idea.

But in the changes that have taken place in this country it has become necessary when we mean white men to say white men, and when a singing society desire that the society shall be composed of white men, they have to say, as they have here, that their association shall be composed of white men. I suppose, if they had said that their association should be composed only of males over the age of twenty-one, there would have been no objection to that. Ought not this association to have the right to say of whom it shall be composed? It has been frequently charged, and just as frequently denied, that the object of the dominant party at this time is to establish social equality between the white and black races. There are many persons who believe that, and on the contrary, there are many persons of the Republican party who do not believe it. But, sir, I hold that this motion of the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN], to strike out this word "white" in this bill (which is for the incorporation of a society of a purely social character), proves, beyond a doubt, that he, at least, is in favor of social equality between the white and the black races; and if his motion be sustained here by this House, it would make it equally clear that the majority here are in favor of that equality. With that understanding, I hope gentlemen will vote, and for that reason I call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. KERNS. Mr. Speaker, I believe I had the honor to introduce this bill, and I cannot see any use for the word white being in it at all. These German incorporators will certainly have a controlling influence in the society, and if they choose to admit colored persons all right. If they do not want any colored persons in their society they can reject them.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I supposed that the court had authority to incorporate this association, but upon a close examination of the act of Assembly I do not think it extends to this case. The amendment of the gentleman from Potter is to strike out the word "white," and he is indignant because that word white is introduced in this bill. But we hear no indignation expressed here because the word male is introduced, and that females, who are considered by all our good citizens to be the better half of creation, are excluded by the provision of this bill. This is a local and private organization, and if we are to have full liberty and independence in this country, are not the people of this Commonwealth, or are not a portion of the people of the city of Philadelphia, entitled to the right to organize a society which shall embrace only whites, if they choose to have it that way, or blacks and whites, if they choose it that way, or blacks alone, if they so choose? This bill was introduced with the word white in it, although the gentleman who introduced it says that he, himself, has no objection to having it stricken out. Now, as he is not the framer of this bill, I say that he has not the right to say that this word white shall be stricken out when the bill was placed in his hands by his constituents with the word white in it.

This is not a bill of a political character. The bill refers to a portion of the citizens of Philadelphia, who wish a charter of incorporation for personal matters—for matters of amusement—and if they had chosen to put in the word German, or the word Scotch, or the word Irish, the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] would have no right to make objection on that ground, because, in this country, if individuals choose to form themselves into a society of this kind upon a basis of nationality, they have a right to do so, and nobody has a right to object. The gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. KEAYS] says that if you strike out the word white, then if these Germans wish to admit blacks into their association they can do so, and if not they can reject them. Now, I will tell him that under the provisions of this bill, they are bound to receive them, and if they reject any black person who seeks admission into the association, he can go before a court and require them to receive him upon a writ of mandamus. Because the language of the bill is, "every male person of good character may become a member of this association." He may become a member if he chooses to make the application and comply with the provisions of their by-laws and charter, and the association is bound to receive him, and if they do not receive him they forfeit their charter.

Is this political question to be dragged in everywhere? Are we to have it upon every question? Cannot a church have an association of white people? Is a church association, or a religious society, or any society which desires to be incorporated by the courts or the Legislature of this Commonwealth, to be defeated because they choose to insert in their charter the word "white," and because the people who desire its organization wish to have a society which shall embrace only white male citizens? If you say no, then you strike at the root of liberty; you strike at the privileges I have a right to enjoy. If I wish to enjoy the association of a certain class of men, and if my prejudices and considerations are against joining in the company of the black man, you have not the right to take from me the privilege of carrying out my desire in that respect. If the gentleman from Potter thinks this association should not exist, and would be inconsistent with his own views and wishes, if the blacks are excluded, he interferes with my rights, for he says I cannot belong to this association unless the blacks are admitted. My rights, and my views, and my prejudices, and my considerations are all of as much moment as the views, prejudices and considerations of the gentleman from Potter. But, if we allow, in matters of this kind, every man to act according to his own opinions and views, then you do not trample upon my rights and liberties, nor upon those of the gentleman from Potter.

If there is a company of white men and black men who desire to go together into an association they have the liberty, and my friend from Potter has the liberty of joining them if he chooses. But if another portion of the community desire an association to consist entirely of white men, he has no right to interfere with their wishes and prejudices by forcing black men into that association. These considerations are not considerations based upon political grounds. They are based upon the right which every freeman of this Commonwealth has to have his rights, and to be protected in those rights. I do not want to interfere with the rights of the friends of the gentleman from Potter, but I do not wish to interfere with the rights of the friends of this bill, who put this word white in it. The gentleman from Philadelphia has no right to argue that the word white shall be stricken out of this bill unless he can bring evidence that the parties who desire the passage of this bill say so. For these reasons I hope the amendment will not prevail.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I do not think it worth while for this House to take up any more time in the discussion of this bill. If I were to say it, sir, to my mind, it is clearly unconstitutional. There is just as much power in the hands of the court to incorporate this institution as any other charitable or religious society. The act of 1846 gives to the court the power to incorporate certain societies and certain associations; the act of 1859 extends the provisions of the sections of that act to musical societies and associations. Now, if the court want any more power than to incorporate this institution, I do not think the court can give it to them, and if this Legislature passes this bill the Governor will certainly veto it, as he has vetoed the bills of the same kind passed during this session. It is hardly worth while to take up our time discussing whether we shall make it a white man's society, or a black man's society, or an amalgamation of it. It seems to me that we have no power to pass the bill, and that we should refuse to do it, on the ground that it is unconstitutional, without regard to color or sex.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I suppose we will have to take a vote on this amendment, whether it is to be passed or not; and I wish to ask the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] this question: Whether if an association of respectable colored people should come here and ask for an act of incorporation in which they put the word "colored" (there are such acts, I believe, in the statute books), whether he would object to that word being in, and would move to have it stricken out? Whether, if those people wish to exclude from their institution the white man, the gentleman would insist that the word "colored" should be stricken out.

Mr. MANN. Yes, sir!

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. It seems to me that we have come to a strange pass in this House, when even the colored people are not allowed to remain by themselves if they wish to do so. The gentleman says that he would strike out the word "colored," and would compel them to receive the white people among them; that he would not even allow colored people to remain by themselves, if they wish to do so, but we are to be forced into their society and they into ours, even against the wish of both.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is clearly of the opinion that it is out of order to consider this bill.

I will, therefore, declare it out of order.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, after the false position that the gentleman from Montgomery [Mr. SATTERTHWAIT] has put me in, I think I ought to have the privilege of saying that I advocated no such views here, nor have I said anything that could be so construed. I simply say that when people come to the Legislature of Pennsylvania and ask us to act upon their bills, they should bring them here without those offensive words, "white" or "black," or "Irish" or "Dutch," or anything of the kind. I have no desire to force any association between the whites and blacks. I desire only to go back to the old days, and pass bills as we passed them up to 1839. Whether black or white people shall associate together or not is a voluntary matter; it is a matter over which we have no control, and nobody seeks to control it, and nobody is afraid of including all in the same laws except those gentleman who seem to be afraid that the black man will become their equal in some way or other. I have no such fears. I propose to stand upon my merits and to allow the black man to stand upon his.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I desire—

Mr. DAVIS. I call the gentleman to order. There is no question before the House.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] was allowed to continue after the decision of the Chair that the consideration of the bill was out of order, and I hope the Chair will extend the same courtesy to the other side of the House.

Mr. DAVIS. I insist upon calling the gentleman to order. I think this thing has gone far enough.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of opinion that the gentleman from Potter was not in order when he made his remarks; but, as he has been allowed—

Mr. BOYLE. I wish to inquire whether it is not more too late for the Speaker to decide this subject out of order after it is in the possession of the House, and an amendment has been proposed to it. It is our bill now, and I think, with all respect for the Chair (and I entertain a very high respect for the Chair), that the House should be allowed to dispose of the bill.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, this whole thing was wrong, ab initio, and no subsequent action can make it right. It was always out of order, and after the declaration that a bill or anything else is out of order, no subsequent action can make it right. We cannot make this right that is wrong.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is clearly of the opinion that when the Chair discovers that a bill is unconstitutional and out of order, it is his duty to rule it out of order, no matter at what stage it may be considered. If the gentleman desires to raise a point of order, the Chair will take it into consideration.

Mr. BOYLE. Then we shall be in the control of the Chair, as to the disposition of a bill.

Mr. DAVIS. I rise to a point of order: that, after the Chair has made his decision, no remarks are in order except to make an appeal from the decision of the Chair.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of opinion that the point of order is well taken.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, one word. It seems to me that there is only one way to put this question at rest, and I only do it for the purpose of knowing whether the Chair has a right to decide a bill out of order after it is in the possession of the House. I appeal from the decision of the Chair.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I move to lay the appeal on the table.

The SPEAKER. The decision of the Chair is that the bill is not before the House, and therefore the motion of the gentleman from Philadelphia is not in order.

The following appeal, taken by the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS], and seconded by the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. JOSEPH], was read:

The House having under consideration House bill No. 580, entitled An act to incorporate the Maccanocher of the city of Philadelphia, and an amendment having been offered by Mr. MANN, of Potter, on which the Speaker ruled the bill out of order, on the ground that the same was unconstitutional, and that he was vested with power to make such decision—from which decision we respectfully appeal.

(Signed) O. H. MEYERS, SAMUEL JOSEPH.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read, for the information of the House, joint rule number 5.

The rule was read as follows:

Daily Legislative Record.

FOR THE SESSION OF 1867.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY OF THE LEGISLATURE OF PENNSYLVANIA. No. 53.

TERMS OF THE DAILY RECORD.

THE DAILY RECORD will be furnished to Members of the Legislature and others at the following rates:

Single copy for the session.....$2 00

Members desiring extra copies of the Record, will please leave their names and the number of copies wanted at the publication office. GEO. BERGNER.

RULE 5. No bill shall be passed by either House, granting any powers or privileges in any case where the authority to grant such powers or privileges has been conferred upon any of the courts of this Commonwealth.

THE SPEAKER. The Chair is clearly of the opinion that the bill before the House comes within the provisions of the Constitution giving the authority to the courts.

The Chair believes, also, that it is his duty to decide points of order. He decides in this case that the point of order taken by the gentleman from Northampton is not well taken. An appeal has been taken, and the Chair submits the appeal to the House.

MR. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I do not propose to debate this point of order, but I think it will save time to the House (and we have consumed nearly an hour upon a question which it is clear this House could not act upon). I, therefore, move that the appeal be laid upon the table, and upon that I call the previous question.

MR. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman cannot make any such motion as that. There is no such a rule in this House. There is a rule in the House of Representatives at Washington of this character, but not in this House.

MR. DAVIS. If the gentleman wants to be factious, he can rise to a point of order upon any question before the House. In the history of this House, there is no more common motion than to lay an appeal upon the table. If the gentleman was posted he would know that such was the case. He can easily find it in the Record. It must be apparent that the only object in this whole thing is either to create a little political capital or to delay the time of the House. The gentleman who has raised this point of order, and has debated this question on the other side of the House, have no interest in this association whatever. They seem to either desire to delay the time of the House or to make a little political capital out of it. I wish to save the time of the House and come to a vote directly upon this question.

MR. QUILLEY. I would suggest that we would save as much time by taking the vote on the appeal. We will have the yeas and nays on it.

MR. DAVIS. I will withdraw my motion if the gentlemen on the other side of the House will vote on it immediately.

MR. MEYERS. I rise to the point of order; that the motion of the gentleman from Philadelphia to lay the appeal on the table, is not in order. There is no rule of the House authorizing any such motion.

THE SPEAKER. The gentleman has with drawn his motion.

MR. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I merely wish to say a few words—

MR. MANN. Mr. Speaker, the motion will be withdrawn on the consideration that we should come to a vote without further discussion.

MR. MEYERS. I made no such agreement. This is a matter of importance.

MR. MANN. That was the understanding under which the motion was withdrawn. The gentleman from Philadelphia withdrew his motion with the understanding that we should come to a vote at once.

THE SPEAKER. The Chair is of the opinion that it is not binding upon the gentleman.

MR. MANN. It is, at least, dishonorable.

MR. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I did not withdraw the motion. I suggested that, if the gentleman desired to take a vote upon this question immediately, I would do so, without consuming the time of the House.

I insist upon my motion, and I call for the previous question.

MR. MEYERS. I rise to the point of order: that the gentleman cannot make a motion to lay an appeal on the table.

THE SPEAKER. The Chair would state that it has been the practice to entertain motions to lay an appeal from the decision of the Chair upon the table, and custom perhaps will prove that the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. Davis] is in order in making that motion.

The gentleman from Philadelphia moves that the appeal of the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. Meyers] be laid upon the table, and upon that motion he calls the previous question.

The call for the previous question was sustained by Messrs. Quay, Kinney, Sharples, Chase, Roth, Wilson, DeHaven, Wright, M'Camant, Mann and Allen.

On the question,

Shall the main question be now put?
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MEYERS and Mr. RHODAS, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chase, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmel, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Mann, Marks, Meily, Pennypacker, Peters, Pillow, Quay, Roth, Sharples, Shuman, Stacey, Stuchman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—55.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyd, Boyle, Breck, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Deise, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hood, Hunt, Jones, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Kurley, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Mairs, Markiz, Meyers, Mullin, Phelps, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Rouch, Sattorithwait, Sharp and Westbrook—85.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

THE SPEAKER. The question is, Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the House?

MR. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, this question was to lay this appeal on the table. The main question has been ordered. The question now is, whether it shall be laid on the table, and if it is, that is the end of it.

THE SPEAKER. The previous question cuts off all dilatory motions.

MR. BOYLE. We certainly have a right to vote upon this question some way.

MR. DAVIS. I rise to the point of order that there is no question in order now but the vote.

MR. BOYLE. The gentleman from Philadelphia moves to lay the appeal on the table, and on that calls the previous question. Cannot we come to a vote upon that question? That is a question before the House, and I doubt very much if, after we have disposed of that, it will carry us farther towards the vote. The gentleman can make dilatory motions, himself, if he wishes, for the purpose of calling the previous question.

THE SPEAKER. The House has already determined that. The House has already, by a vote, decided upon taking the vote upon the main question. That main question is on the decision of the Chair.

MR. MEYERS. How can that be? I would like to inquire what motion was pending at the time the previous question was called? What was the motion when the yeas and nays were taken.

MR. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to the point of order; that this discussion is not in order.

MR. MEYERS. It is in order when we want to know what is before the House.

THE SPEAKER. Debate is not in order, but inquiries for information are.

MR. MEYERS. I would like to ask, then, on what motion the yeas and nays were called?

MR. MANN. Mr. Speaker, that question has been answered over and over again, and now are we to be delayed from the vote by dilatory remarks?

MR. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, as the gentleman of the opposite seat determined to cut us off and give us no vote at all, I must appeal from the decision of the Chair as to the vote just had.

MR. DAVIS. I desire to make a few remarks, by permission of the House, if it will grant leave.

Leave was not granted.
THE SPEAKER. Remarks are clearly out of order. The Chair will permit gentlemen to make inquiries, but not to debate.

MR. DAVIS. The rules are plain. According to rule twenty-two:

"The object of a call for the previous question is to bring the House to a direct vote upon the main question, and before the adoption of Rule XXII, if the previous question was called and sustained, amendments, as well as amendments to amendments, and all other motions made in relation to the business in which the House was engaged, were cut off, and the House brought to a direct vote on the main question. For example, suppose the question before the House to be on the first section of the bill, and an amendment had been offered, to which, also, an amendment was submitted, and a motion made to postpone the farther consideration of the whole subject for the present, which was followed by a motion for indefinite postponement, and then the previous question was called and sustained, all these motions were cut off, and the House brought at once to a vote on the first section of the bill. But since the rule has been adopted, amendments and amendments to amendments have been excepted, and now when the previous question is called and sustained, the vote is had first upon the amendment to the amendment, then on the amendment, and then on the main question."

It will thus be seen that all dilatory motions are cut off. The decision of the Speaker is not right, as no objection can be interposed between the call for the previous question and the main question.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will direct the Clerk to read from the decisions of the House on page 127 of the Manual.

The Clerk read as follows:

"The SPEAKER decided that the previous question being called pending a motion to postpone indefinitely, the main question would be on the motion to postpone indefinitely. The House reversed the decision.—Journal House of Representatives, 1857, p. 493."

Mr. BOYLE. I admit that the call for the previous question does cut off all such questions, and the gentleman from Philadelphia rises to move to lay the appeal on the table, and in the same breath called for the previous question.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is clearly of the opinion that when the main question is ordered, it is ordered upon the subject matter before the House, that is upon the decision of the Chair.

The question is, Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the House?

On the question,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MEYERS and Mr. PENNYPACKER, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Esny, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffmann, Hood, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leach, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Mann, Marks, Meily, Pennypacker, Peters, Pillow, Quay, Quincy, Routh, Sharples, Shuman, Stacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wait, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall and Wright—56.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyd, Boyle, Calvin, Chalfant, Colville, Deise, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Holtz, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Linto, Long, M'Honor, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Rhoads, Robinson, Rouch and Westbrook—29.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would state now that whenever his attention is called to any bill which is clearly unconstitutional, over which the courts have jurisdiction, he will certainly rule it out of order. The Chair is clearly of the opinion that it is the right of the Chair to rule such bills out of order, and supported by the decision just given by the House he will decide. He is as clearly of the opinion that he has the right to do this as he has to withhold his name from any bill.

that he thinks out of order for similar reasons.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, this same question came up last winter in the House, and Speaker Kelley decided that when a question was raised as to the constitutionality of a bill the House should dispose of it by voting it down. That was the practice last winter, and I believe that has been the uniform practice ever since I have known anything about the proceedings of the House.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will not rule a bill out of order until he is clearly of the opinion that it is out of order, and he will not be likely to so decide until after taking the advice of gentlemen who are better versed in constitutional law than he himself is.

No. 581, an act to incorporate the Eagle Assembly of the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I am of the opinion that this is a bill of the same character.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the bill, that the House may understand it.

The bill was read by the Clerk, as follows:

AN ACT to incorporate the Eagle Assembly of the city of Philadelphia.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the members of the Eagle Assembly, of the city of Philadelphia, being desirous to perpetuate the same for the purpose of more effectually cementing the friendships, which have been formed, the following named persons: H. W. Buchanan, A. B. Frederick, James P. McCulloch, S. Shidey, S. C. Maloney, George W. Gowen, Samuel P. Story, F. J. Timmins, H. C. Crawford, P. Lavet, Thomas S. Clifton, M. Clifton, G. W. Godshall, John M. Bevans, F. Edwards, E. L. Leclure, C. Frederick, J. Jaggards, C. Andrade, B. W. Aveson, B. Bennett, John Crawford, Joseph Fell, John B. Merritt, William H. Stanton, Frederick Sands, Theodore Dubose, George W. Dennis, Jacob Aronson, L. Neubauer, Robert T. Cox, John H. Grear, A. G. Gebel, A. Kappas, Thomas Siddons, E. Blyler, C. Geiger and H. Wiechard, and such others as they shall hereafter associate with themselves, are hereby erected into a body politic and corporate, by the name, style and title of the Eagle Assembly, of the city of Philadelphia, and by the same name, style and title, shall have perpetual succession, and may purchase, take and hold, by gift, demise, bargain and sale, devise and bequest, or by any other mode of lawful conveyance, any lands, tenements, goods or chattels, real, personal or mixed estate, and the same or any part thereof, from time to time may sell, alien, convey and dispose of, and may have a common seal, which they may alter and renew at their pleasure: Provided always, nevertheless, That the clear yearly value or income of the messuages, houses, lands, tenements, rents, annuities, or other hereditaments, and real estate of the said corporation, and the interest of the moneys by them lent, shall not exceed the sum of one thousand dollars.

Sec. 2. That the officers of the said corporation shall be a president, one vice president, recording secretary, financial secretary, librarian and treasurer, and such other officers as the said corporation may deem needful; the said officers shall be elected at an annual meeting, to be held at such time as may be hereafter designated; if an election shall not take place on the day selected, the corporation, for that cause, shall not be dissolved, but an election shall be held as soon thereafter as possible, and until such election the officers in place shall continue to act.

Sec. 3. That the duties and rights of the members of the said corporation, the powers and functions of the officers thereof, hereinbefore mentioned, and of such others as may hereafter be added, the mode of supplying vacancies in office, the times of meeting of the said corporation, the number which shall constitute a quorum at such meetings, the mode of electing members, the terms of their admission, and the causes which shall justify their expulsion from the corporation, shall be regulated by the by-laws and ordinances of the said corporation hereafter to be made, which the said corporation is hereby authorized and empowered to make and alter in the manner which may be therein mentioned: Provided, That the said by-laws or ordinances shall not be repugnant to, or inconsistent with the Constitution or laws of the United States, or of this Commonwealth.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, now I would like to hear the gentleman who has this bill in charge tell us what it is, for I have failed to see the object of the association. It might be for a banking institution, or for building a railroad, or anything else.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I drew up that bill and introduced it myself. A bill of the same character—an act entitled an act to incorporate the Tincicum fishing company, passed here last winter. That bill is upon the statute books now as the law of the State. In order to make this bill as little objectionable as possible, I copied that bill, with only a few minor alterations, such as names and dates. If this is unconstitutional we have a great many unconstitutional acts upon our statute books.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, if the object of this bill is to establish a fishing association, it is inconsistent with that section of the Constitution which provides that no bill shall be passed containing more than one subject, and that shall be clearly expressed in the bill. This bill does not express its purpose in the title; on the contrary, no one will infer from the reading of it what its objects are. It is provided in the first section that they may purchase, hold and dispose of real estate, and may, as the gentleman from Philadelphia says, establish a banking association, or a company to build a railroad. If the object of the bill is simply to form a social association, let the bill be so worded as to confine them to that purpose. I do not wish to oppose the bill. I think it is a good thing for gentlemen of means to get up these social clubs. Only let the object be expressed, and if that is it, I will vote for the bill. But as the act stands now, I raise the point of order that it is unconstitutional—that it does not express the object of the bill in the title.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, so far as the objection to this bill in reference to selling real estate is concerned, there is a provision which says, "that the clear yearly value or income of the messuages, houses, lands, tenements, rents, annuities or other hereditaments and real estate of the said corporation, and the interests of the moneys by them lent, shall not exceed the sum of one thousand dollars."

Now, it cannot be a very extensive real estate business when the amount involved is only one thousand dollars. The bill of which this is a copy, with but a few alterations, is an act incorporating the Tincicum fishing company. The object of that association was not at all for the purpose of fishing as a business, but it was for the amusement of fishing, and for other amusements of an assembly of gentlemen who had a fishing club house in the lower section of Philadelphia. It no more expresses the object of the bill in the title than this section does.

Mr. MANN. It is very easy to amend this bill, if that is the purpose of it.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I do not know what they want to do; whether they wish to fish or gun, or what they want to do. There are a good many sorts of amusements in the city of Philadelphia, and some in New York, too. I have got a piece of poetry in my pocket, in reference to some of the amusements in New York.

Mr. GREGORY. I move to amend the title so as to read "to incorporate the Eagle fishing association of the city of Philadelphia."

Mr. KURTZ. I move to amend the amendment by inserting the word "white" before the word "fishing."

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is commencing at the wrong place; he is amending the title. He should amend the bill first, and then the title to correspond with it.

Mr. GREGORY. I think the object is set forth in the fourth and fifth lines of the first section, which says: "The members of the Eagle Assembly of the city of Philadelphia, being desirous to perpetuate the same for the purpose of more effectually cementing the friendships which have been formed," &c. This is the object, I think, and in order to carry out their course of amusement they wish to go a fishing occasionally in a boat for amusement, or something of that kind.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, being on the Committee of Vice and Immorality, I am somewhat interested in a bill of this kind. In bills of this nature I think the House ought to understand definitely the object of the association. I am informed by some gentlemen from the city of Philadelphia that it is quite customary to have corporations legalized in this body for the purpose of having a sort of bye-place for drinking and gambling on the Sabbath, and associating with ladies, and the like. Now, I would be very glad if the objects of this association could be drawn out.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Wyoming [Mr. KENNEDY] may know something more about such matters than I do. I do not pretend to be very well booked up in reference to them. They do not run in my mind so much, perhaps, as in his. As far as the morality of the case is concerned, this association consists of some young men who have been associated for some eight or ten years. They have a room where they have a library; and they do not admit any intoxicating liquors or any ladies, except as visitors occasionally, I believe, and have no doubt that if the gentleman from Wyoming visited them at any time, and brought a lady with him, they would be most happy to receive him.

I move to amend the bill, in the fifth line, so as to make it read "for the purpose of carrying on fishing and other amusements, and more effectually cementing," &c.

Mr. JOSEPHS. I would like to have the gentleman explain what he means by other amusements.

Mr. GREGORY. I think this amendment will meet the objection of the gentleman from Wyoming [Mr. MANN]. I would like to have the gentleman indicate an amendment that would meet with his views if this does not.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I dislike to suggest amendments to the gentleman's own bill. I had not the slightest intention of making any amendment to the bill, because I do not know what it is intended for. If the gentleman will make an amendment at the end of the first section restricting the powers of this corporation simply to the object expressed, that of more effectually cementing friendships, I will withdraw my objections at once. It seems by this bill that they would have very extensive powers, and it is very easy to restrict them to the object of social meetings if the gentleman wishes to do it.

Mr. GREGORY. If the gentleman will make such an amendment, I will agree to it.

Mr. MANN. I offer an amendment to insert in the fifth line of the first section, before the word "move," the words "carrying on fishing and other social amusements."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. GHEGAN. I move to further amend by proposing two additional corporators, Joseph H. Money and T. M. Apple.

Mr. JOSEPHS. I desire to add the name of Austin Fish.

Mr. GREGORY. I hope this amendment will not be adopted.

The amendment to the amendment was not

Agreed to.

The amendment of Mr. GHEGAN, was

Not agreed to.

The question recurring on the bill,

It was

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended, the bill read a third time, and

Passed finally.

No. 583, an act to incorporate the Pneumatic tube company, of the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. LEE. I would like to know what the bill proposes to do.

Philadelphia is already pretty considerably dug up, and we want to understand if this will continue that job further? I understand that parties, under this bill, can dig under every street in the city of Philadelphia, and put down this tube anywhere and at any time. If that is the object, I want to know it.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I regret exceedingly, that I must oppose the passage of this bill. The corporators are my personal friends, but I must take the same exception to it that has been taken by my colleague: that it would give a privilege that I believe Philadelphia are not prepared to give, in that of tearing open the streets of Philadelphia, and digging under the houses to drive their pipes wherever they desire, without regard to the wishes of the citizens. I am willing that the bill may be postponed, and that the people may be heard from upon the subject. So far as I am personally concerned, I am not opposed to it; but I am satisfied that my constituents are at least: I would like to have their views before giving my support to the bill.

Mr. GREGORY. If the gentleman from Philadelphia will show me the section of the bill that will give this company the power to undermine the houses of the city of Philadelphia, I will be very happy to be enlightened; but, from reading the bill, I do not see any such provision. It merely says "they shall have the right to lay out and construct, or cause to be laid out and constructed, a pneumatic tube in the city of Philadelphia, along or under such routes and streets as may be hereafter selected from time to time, as may be deemed most advantageous to the public."

Now, if it is not advantageous to the public to undermine the houses, I think an injunction of the court would stop any such undertaking as that. The public are supposed to be the people at large in the city of Philadelphia. If it is not advantageous to the public, I think upon application to the court for an injunction, they would be restrained at any time. The gentleman from Philadelphia seems to be very much exercised all at once about the rights of the people being invaded. I hope he will bear that in mind in reference to a bill which I know he is very anxious to have passed, when it comes up, and which I know the people of Philadelphia are protesting against. I hope he will be consistent in his acts during our legislation for the city of Philadelphia, during the entire session, and that he will bear these facts in mind. I see nothing here that will interfere or work for the disadvantage of the citizens of Philadelphia.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I have nothing to say in reply to my colleague. It is my intention, as a member of this House, to the best of my ability, to represent my constituents, and the people of Pennsylvania, and in doing so, I hope, on all questions, my vote shall be honestly given, wisely given, and do no harm to those I represent. I only ask the gentleman to define to me what he means by "routes and streets?" It seems to me that the term is very comprehensive, and may be construed so as to give the privilege of passing under any property in the city of Philadelphia.

I am, therefore, opposed to the bill as it now stands, but when the people of Philadelphia know exactly what it is, and if they do remonstrate against it, I will then not oppose it. I therefore ask that this bill be postponed until a week from Tuesday and made the special order for that day.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, my colleague from Philadelphia says that this bill does not provide that this is to be here or there. Why, sir, it provides in as express terms as can be made for that very thing. A man may come to my house and say: "Here I am going to run this tube through your premises," and if it is five feet in diameter I cannot prevent it. If a man comes and sticks his tube at me I want to know what right he has to do so. The bill reads: "They shall have the right to lay out and construct or cause to be laid out and constructed a pneumatic tube in the city of Philadelphia, along or under such routes and streets as may be deemed most advantageous to the public." If my house stands in the way of that route I cannot prevent them. Who is to determine whether it is most advantageous to the public? Who is to decide whether it is to the advantage of the public; whether they shall run a tube through my property or not to accommodate this company? The gentleman says I can get an injunction. Here comes a man and says, "I am going to run this tube through you." I am driven to the necessity of getting an injunction; every man is then driven to the necessity of getting an injunction to save himself from the encroachment of this company.

This bill provides that these men shall go anywhere and how they please, and they are to decide whether it is right and proper. I am not willing that such a bill as that shall pass. I am not willing that every street in the city of Philadelphia shall be turned up and buildings undermined, for the benefit of a private corporation, in this way. If you will make the proper restrictions in reference to this matter, I would have no objection to it.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by inserting in the thirteenth line, in the first section, after the word "streets," the words "without damage to any building in said city."

Mr. LEE. I would like to have the gentleman go a little further and strike out, in the thirteenth line, the word "route."

Mr. GREGORY. I accept that.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. FREEBORN. Mr. Speaker, I move to further amend by adding at end of the section the following:

Provided, That the same shall not be done without the consent of the select and common council.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I now move that this bill be postponed until a week from next Tuesday, and that it be made the special order at 10 o'clock, A.M.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I hope that motion will not prevail. It is not proposed to force this tube through the city without the people of Philadelphia saying where it may go. It is merely an experiment at the best. I see nothing objectionable in it, and no reason why it should be postponed.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I do hope the House will cease postponing bill that are of no particular importance to this House, and making a special session for their consideration. Our special sessions are interfering with the regular business of the House very much. Nearly every important bill to which there is any objection is made a special order.

Why cannot this question be decided now, or go over on the third reading as any other bill? I hope the House will vote down all such motions.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I understand this bill was so modified that there will probably be no objection to it. I therefore withdraw my motion.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the final passage of the bill.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. FREEBORN and WALLACE, and were as follow, viz:

YEA—Messrs. Adaire, Barton, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Brown, Calvin, Cameron, Chalfant, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Deise, Donohugh, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Gregory, Hæbison, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Humphrey, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kennedy, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Lee, Lintan, Long, M'Creary, M'Henry, M'Kee, Mullin, Pennypacker, Peters, Phelan, Roach, Robinson, Rouch, Satterthwait, Sharples, Sherman, Watt, Weller, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard and Glass, Speaker—54.

YEAS—Messrs. Armstrong, Chadwick, Freeborn, Hood, Kerns, Leech, M'Camant, M'Pherrin, Mann, Markley, Marks, Pillow, Quay, Rhoads, Steacy, Tharp, Waddell, Wallace, Webb, Westbrook and Wright—21.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

No. 585, an act to incorporate the Pennsylvania society for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

Passed finally.

No. 690, an act to incorporate the Teachers' institute of the city and county of Philadelphia.

Mr. WADELLE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call the attention of the House to this bill. I ask the Clerk to read the second section.

The second section was read by the Clerk as follows:

Sec. 2. The objects and designs of the said corporation shall be the improvement of the teachers of the public schools of the city and county of Philadelphia, by means of lectures, essays and discussions upon educational topics, practical illustrations of modes of teaching, the formation of a teachers' library, by readings and other elocutionary exercises, and by such other means as may, from time to time, be determined, either by the by-laws or resolutions of said corporation; and it shall also be lawful for the said corporation to receive any real or personal estate by gift, grant, bargain, sale, will or bequest, from any person or persons whomsoever, and to hold the same upon trust, to apply the income thereof to the relief of those who have been, are, or may be, teachers in the public schools of the said city and county of Philadelphia, whom infirmity of years, sickness, or other disability, may need relief, in such manner, and under such restrictions and provisions as the said by-laws may provide: Provided always, That the by-laws and resolutions aforesaid shall not be inconsistent with the charter, or with the Constitution of the United States, or the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth.

Mr. WADELLE. Now, the act of Assembly provides that "when any number of persons, citizens of the Commonwealth, are associated, or mean to associate, for any literary, charitable, or for any religious purpose, and shall be desirous to acquire and enjoy the immunities of a corporation, or body politic in law, it shall and may be lawful for such persons to prepare an instrument in writing, therein specifying the objects, articles, conditions and name, style or name, under which they have associated, or mean to associate, and the same to exhibit and present to the Attorney General of the Commonwealth for the time being, who is hereby required thereupon to peruse and examine the said instrument, and after such perusal and examination to transmit it, with a certificate thereon endorsed, testifying his opinion touching the lawfulness of the objects, articles and conditions therein set forth and contained, unto the Supreme Court of the Commonwealth; and the said court in writing, also required thereupon to peruse and examine said instrument, and to transmit it, with a certificate thereon endorsed, testifying also the opinion of the said court touching the lawfulness, objects, articles and conditions therein set forth and contained, unto the Governor of the Commonwealth; and if the said Attorney General and the said court shall certify their opinions as aforesaid to be, that the objects, articles and conditions in such instrument set forth are lawful, then the said Governor (and not otherwise) shall transmit the same (to the master of the rolls), with an order thereon endorsed, requiring him to enroll the same at the expense of the applicant; and upon the enrollment thereof, the persons so associated, or meaning to associate, shall, according to the objects, articles and conditions in the said instrument set forth and contained, become and be a corporation or body politic, in law and in fact, to have continuance by the name and title in such instrument provided and declared."

Mr. FREEBORN. Mr. Speaker, the president of this teachers' institute is a very distinguished lawyer of Philadelphia, and this bill was drawn up by him. If this bill is passed they also desire an appropriation out of the money for school purposes appropriated to the city of Philadelphia to carry out the object of this institute. I think this bill to be all proper and right, and there need be no difficulty.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to call the attention of the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADELLE] to the judicial definition of the word "association." It seems to me that the bill is not objectionable.

Mr. WADELLE. Mr. Speaker, I do not know what provisions may have been made in such cases as the gentleman probably refers to, that of medical colleges with power to confer degrees. I apprehend that no court could incorporate an association or college with powers to confer degrees. I merely take this bill upon the face of it, pointing out what its intentions are.

Now, if there is anything more than a literary association, for the benefit of those associated, they can act as a loss to see it. If that is the object it comes expressly within the terms of the provisions of the law, putting in the hands of the courts the power to incorporate literary associations. I do not wish to raise any technical objections to this bill, but it seems to me this is a plain case.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I merely called the attention of the gentleman to the judicial definition of the terms in order to get his views. I think the idea of this association is to perfect themselves in the art of teaching. If that be the intention I do not see that it is objectionable.

Mr. FREEBORN. Mr. Speaker, I would state that that is the intention. The association is for the purpose of discussing methods of teaching, agreeing upon a uniformity of text books, and other objects connected with their profession as teachers. It is also proposed, as will be seen by one portion of section second, to raise means to support old teachers. It will be recollected that a year ago this Legislature allowed some of these teachers an annuity. There are some four hundred teachers in the city of Philadelphia, and there seems to be a unity of opinion in regard to this matter.

Mr. WADELLE. Mr. Speaker, the House will not understand me as raising any objection to this bill. I have not a particle of objection to the objects which these parties have in view. They are very praiseworthy, and very commendatory, and I should be very far from objecting to their enjoying these privileges. I only make the suggestion at this time that it appears to me that the act of assembly covers the case. If the courts constitute this institute are willing to take their chances of a veto from the Governor, on constitutional grounds, they are the parties interested and not myself.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I do not feel quite like throwing the responsibility of passing this bill upon the friends of it. If it is unconstitutional I think the members of the House ought to take the responsibility. I think the suggestion of the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADELLE] is a correct one, and that it appears to me a authority to do just what this bill proposes. If the Legislature shall do. Therefore I think this bill ought not to pass. I believe the provision of the act of Assembly we have been discussing was enacted for the very purpose of preventing this Legislature exercising this power, which the courts can better exercise than we can. If this is not a literary association, then I want to know how a literary association is to be formed? It has been decided within the last six months that some of the dodges which it seems were put into bills a year ago, Christianizing companies, the main provisions of which the courts would have authority to grant, but putting in a provision or two that the courts could not grant; and therefore arguing that this Legislature ought to grant an incorporation, because there were provisions included that the courts could not give. I say the Supreme Court have decided that the provision of the Constitution cannot be avoided in this way.

And in all cases that have gone up to the Supreme Court, they have enforced this provision strictly, I believe. Why should we be sending bills to the Governor, throwing upon him the responsibility, when they clearly come within this provision of the Constitution giving the jurisdiction to the courts? That is the position I take, that if the members of this House believe the courts can grant this charter of incorporation as it is asked here, they ought to say no, and not throw it upon the friends of the bill to take the responsibility.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, I do not know what the object is of the matters of this kind, but I think this association is of a distinct professional character. It is not a literary institution in the ordinary sense of the word. All their discussions and all the lectures delivered before this association will, I presume, have direct reference to the profession of teaching. It is, I presume, intended to be professional in its character; as a medical or law school would be. Only such matters as have direct reference to teaching will be brought before the association. It also has a charitable purpose in view, that of making a provision for the support of old members. I suppose there is a law literature and a medical literature, but what I understand by a literary institution is one that has reference to cultivating a knowledge of biography, history, poetry, belle-lettres, and the like. If this association proposed to be incorporated by this bill is of a literary character, so would a medical college or a college in which the languages are taught be of a literary character. I, however, hold that this association is of a professional character and would not be considered of a literary character in the ordinary sense of the word.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I do not desire to occupy the time of the House unnecessarily. I desire, however, to refer the House to what is the intention of these persons in forming this association. The second section of this act, "the objects and designs of the said corporation shall be the improvement of the teachers of the public schools of the city and county of Philadelphia."

The improvement of the teachers of the public schools of Philadelphia is the object. This improvement is to be secured "by means of lectures, essays, discussions upon educational topics, practical illustrations of modes of teaching, the formation of a teachers' library, by readings and other elocutionary exercises, and by such other means as may, from time to time, be determined either by the by-laws or resolutions of said corporation." The object then is the improvement of the teachers, and those means which are said to be the usual means employed by persons engaged in literary pursuits are merely means for the attainment of the subsequent end controlling the whole matter. Now, I think that interest takes it out of the act of Assembly.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, it strikes my mind that the Legislature, in using the term "literary," intended to use the broadest term that they could apply to associations of this kind. If the term is to be circumscribed in its limits; if, because an association, literary in its character, is to be confined to a particular branch of literature, and thereby get out of the provisions of the law, which confers upon courts the power to incorporate literary associations, then there is no use in employing the broad term they have used. I apprehend that the object of this association is as has been suggested here, for the benefit of teachers. But they do not propose to turn this into a normal school and teach teachers. They propose to meet, and by an interchange of views, either by lectures, essays or discussions, to edify one another upon the avocations in which they are engaged, and no other literary subject.

Mr. BOYD. If their object is improvement in this particular branch, will not the effect be the same if they listen to instruction from one another as though they listened to some teacher?

Mr. WADDELL. It might or it might not. One might be a normal school and the other a literary association. Twenty or fifty persons might meet together and form an association for instruction in history and confine all their lectures and discussions to history, yet they would be a literary association, confining their investigations to one branch of literature. Another number of persons might come together and form an association for the purpose of learning civil engineering, or any other branch of learning. My idea is that the Legislature, in using the term "literary societies," intended to include all branches of literary societies, no matter what the lectures might be upon, whether this week upon history, next week upon civil engineering, and the next week upon the art of teaching, or whether every week upon one subject.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know what we are to understand by the position of this House. I understand that the Speaker was to decide hereafter when his attention was called to the subject, whether bills were to be considered constitutional or not. That is a point I want information upon in voting upon this question. Are we to take it that because the Speaker has not decided that this is unconstitutional that we are to consider it constitutional?

The SPEAKER. The Speaker did not undertake to say that he would decide upon all bills. He stated that when his attention was called to a bill, and he was clearly of the opinion that it was unconstitutional, he would so decide. In the matter of the bill now before the House he is not clearly of the opinion that the bill is unconstitutional, as gentlemen upon the floor have expressed doubt upon that point.

The question being,
Shall the bill pass?
It was

Agreed to.

No. 587, an act to incorporate the Greensburg Masonic fund.

Passed finally.
Senate bill No. 264, an act to incorporate the Pennsylvania boat house association of Philadelphia.

Passed finally.

No. 591, an act to annul the marriage contract between James Dewey and his wife.

Mr. WEBB. Mr. Speaker, I offer as an amendment, a preamble to the bill, setting forth the facts in the case.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, the only objection I have to this bill is that the courts have jurisdiction here. It seems to me the courts can grant a decree of divorce in this case.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I apprehend the gentleman misapprehends this case. This is something which occurred before marriage. I do not see how the courts would have jurisdiction for such an offense as that.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I understand from the gentleman who has this bill in charge that the question was raised before the court of that district and it was decided that the court had no jurisdiction.

Mr. WEBB. Mr. Speaker, I have a letter from a lawyer in our county in which he tells me that he presented the petition to the court in the very words that it is presented here, and the court ruled that if the facts as set forth were true, the courts had no jurisdiction. There was at first some little difference of opinion among the members of the bar, but they almost unanimously came to the conclusion, upon examination of the law, that the ruling of the court was correct. There is no disputing the facts, and if there is any question as to that I have the evidence that I suppose would be satisfactory to any one.

Senate bill No. 186, an act to regulate the rates of fare on certain passenger railroads in the county of Allegheny.

Passed finally.

No. 598, an act to incorporate the East and West Pittston Street Passenger and Freight railway company.

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to amend by changing the names of two additional corporators.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. FREEBORN. Mr. Speaker, I move to further amend by adding the words "Provided that the same shall not distinguish between passengers on account of race, nationality or color."

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that this amendment is not worth while.

There is no distinction there. There are no black people in our country. If the House sees fit to attach the amendment to the bill, I do not care much about it one way or the other.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I hope the gentleman will not encumber the bill in this manner. It seems as though every bill that comes up before this House must have some discussion upon this question of color. When the general question of colored people comes up let us then have a fair discussion upon it, but I trust this bill will not be amended in this manner.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I take it that this is a proper question, and that there is nothing unfair upon the passage of railroad bills to say that no person shall be excluded on account of race, color or nationality.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman if he did not particularly insist that it was unfair to insert such an amendment in the question relating to the running of cars on Sunday in the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, this is a different question altogether. We are here incorporating a company to carry freight and passengers. I consider it entirely legitimate to say what kind of passengers that road shall carry, or whether any shall be excluded. It is not a question like the one to which the gentleman refers. At the time we were discussing that question a few days ago, I gave notice that I was ready to vote at all times, for all persons, of all color, to ride in all cars.

Mr. KERNS. Mr. Speaker, inasmuch as within a few days we will have a general bill upon this subject, I think my colleague from Philadelphia had better withdraw his amendment. We will soon have a bill before us covering the whole State in reference to all railroad cars, and I think then will be the proper time to vote on this subject.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I agree with my colleague [Mr. KERNS] who has just taken his seat. A few days ago, when the Sunday car question came up for discussion in this House, an amendment of the same kind was offered by the gentleman from Allegheny [Mr. WILSON]. At that time, I believe every one of my colleagues from Philadelphia, except Mr. FREEBORN, voted against putting that clause in the bill. Now, if it has any effect at all it will have the effect of giving a number of votes on this side of the House against the bill. I know a number, sir, who will vote against it, who might otherwise favor it.

Inasmuch as we have a general bill before us, which has passed the Senate, I trust that the gentleman who voted against putting this clause in the Sunday car bill will see proper to vote against the clause being inserted in this one.

Mr. FREEBORN. Mr. Speaker, my reason for desiring this clause to be inserted is, that the general bill may not be reached this session. The bill was defeated last year, and it may not be touched this winter in the House. I think it is proper to ask all corporations that come before this House to have this clause inserted; when the general bill comes up they will have no right to complain of it.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, if this is the reason why the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. FREEBORN] desires this amendment, I think he may safely withdraw it. That general bill will certainly be brought up. It is on the public calendar, and we have made two special sessions in the week to consider the calendar, and I propose, if I have an opportunity, to ask the House to make another special session on Friday afternoon. If that is the reason it was offered, it may safely be withdrawn.

I shall vote for the amendment, if it is pressed, but I am inclined to think, myself, that we had better settle that question, once for all, in a separate bill.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, the gentlemen who have charge of this bill may certainly object to this unfair legislation. It is not fair to the friends of the bill to assail it in this manner, for we are to have a general bill, and if it does not pass this winter it will certainly pass next winter, before this road goes into operation. I think this is unfair. The members on this side of the House, at least some of them, are in favor of the bill; but, if this amendment is put on, I have no doubt it will imperil the passage of the bill. If the amendment is adopted, I, for one, shall certainly vote against the bill.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I desire simply to say that I hope my colleague on the opposite side of the House will have the good judgment to withdraw this amendment. The gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] gives the information that a general bill regulating the matter throughout the entire State will come up in a few days, and I think there is no necessity for attaching such a provision to this individual bill.

Mr. FREEBORN. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw the amendment.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I renew the amendment.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the amendment?
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. KURTZ and Mr. HOOD, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Colville, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kimmell, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Mann, Meily, Pennypacker, Peters, Roath, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Waddell, Wallace, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Woodward, Wright and Glass, Speaker—41.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Deise, Donohugh, Glog, Gregory, Gsener, Headman, Helzolt, Holliman, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kerns, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Lee, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Marks, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Rouch, Satterthwait, Seiler, Stumbaugh, Subers, Tharp, Webb, Westbrook, Wingard and Worrall—19.

So the question was determined in the negative.

REASONS FOR VOTE.

Mr. KINNEY. I vote against this amendment in the firm conviction that the object sought by it will be fully covered by a general bill.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I vote "no," only because I do not wish to imperil the passage of this bill. All that is sought by the amendment will be accomplished by a general bill, now pending in this Commonwealth.

No. 594, an act to authorize and empower the Governor to issue a commission to Thomas M'Neish.

Passed finally.

Senate bill No. 162, an act to incorporate the New Britain and Doylestown turnpike road company.

Passed finally.

Mr. BARTON. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House proceed to the consideration of House bill No. 170, entitled An act to increase the duties of the Citizens' Association of Pennsylvania.

This bill is on third reading, and the gentlemen who have objected to it have prepared their amendments, which are satisfactory to all parties. I, therefore, move that the bill be taken up at this time.

The motion was

Not agreed to.

OBJECTED BILLS OF LAST WEEK.

No. 363, an act to change the venue in the case of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania vs. John Sharpe, Moriety Leib, Chas. W. Everhart, Robert Aalop and Jonathan A. Waters, from the court of quarter sessions of the peace of Montgomery county, to the court of quarter sessions of the peace in and for the city and county of Philadelphia, was taken up.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass?

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, when this bill was read yesterday, I intended saying something upon it, but the gentleman from Philadelphia, who has charge, in part, of this bill, was not in his seat at the time. Now, I propose to say, in regard to the petition that was read, that, to the best of my knowledge and belief, it is nothing but a tissue of misrepresentation, and, therefore, I think the prayer of those petitioners should not be granted. There is one assertion in that petition which I know to be a deliberate and unmitigated falsehood, and that is, that it is necessary the change of venue should be made on account of political prejudices. These parties, as I understand, all belong to one political party. It is a question in which politics cannot be brought. Therefore, I say that the assertion is nothing but an unmitigated falsehood, and also that the charge that the juries in Montgomery county are selected, as that petition states, from one political party, that is not true, and I have no doubt the reasons for the selection of all the other statements in that petition are on a par with this gross misrepresentation of facts. There is no reason, so far as I can understand, why this trial should be taken from Montgomery county.

To make this change will cause a great deal of additional trouble and expense to parties interested, and will, most probably, defeat the ends of justice entirely. I have no doubt, sir, that the object of this bill is that these parties, by taking this matter to Philadelphia, expect by delaying to prevent the case from being brought to trial. This is my opinion in regard to the bill, and I say that it ought not to pass.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I think the only reason for bringing this matter of political prejudice into this petition was to influence the minds of the Republican side of the House. These parties, thinking that by making it appear a political question, would be the best way to attain their end in regard to changing the venue, and in that light the petition was gotten up. So far as the facts of the case are concerned, it is a matter that has nothing to do with political opinions at all. Some of these parties I know, and they stand in no enviable position in the city of Philadelphia, and I think they will stand just as little chance of escaping, by a trial in the city of Philadelphia, as the county of Montgomery. Political questions have no bearing on the case; but, to attain the end which they had in view, they put it in that shape in order to get the proclivities of the Republican members of this House in their favor. I think the question of politics had nothing to do with it. It is unwisely legislation on the part of the House to change the venue on the ground that they do not expect justice in a case of this kind from the hands of the jury in Montgomery county, or any other county where it happens to be.

Mr. HOOD. M. Speaker, I did not intend to make any remarks upon this subject. My friend from Montgomery has made the reference to my having this bill in charge. I desire to say that I am not interested in the matter. I also desire to say to my colleague from the city of Philadelphia, that I do not consider it a political question. The fear is of the local prejudices in a place like Norristown. The inhabitants are well known to each other. The parties aggrieved are of the county of Montgomery, and I suppose of the town of Norristown.

The opposite parties, at least some of them, are from Philadelphia. They have little hope of a fair trial, where the references are against them in the jury box, and I say that there is no case before this House where a change of venue is so much required as in this case. I want justice done to those parties, and they can have justice in the city of Philadelphia—a city of a population of over seven hundred thousand inhabitants, in which a jury can be selected from among them who have no prejudices, and who know none of the parties. I think that this question of politics has not yet been introduced in the jury box in the city of Philadelphia. I am sorry to see anything of that sort raised in this House this session.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I do not bring this matter of politics into this question at all. If the gentleman had been in his seat when this petition was read he would have seen that that was one reason set forth asking for the change of venue.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I say that these men are afraid that injustice will be done them on account of local prejudices. The parties who are the aggressors, at least two of them, are from the city of Philadelphia, and they dread the local prejudices of the people of Montgomery. It is very natural that the sympathies of the people should be with those who are best known to them.

Mr. MANN. I want to know if there are any more local prejudices against these men than in ordinary cases?

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I alleged, and I think it is a well demonstrated fact, that where parties are intimately acquainted, by daily intercourse with each other, that they are prejudiced in favor of those with whom they are acquainted and against strangers. The whole subject matter of this case, as I understand it, is that the society will back up by some gentleman from Philadelphia to certain citizens of Montgomery county. Those parties did not meet with the success in the speculation that they expected. They did not make a hundred thousand dollars out of one thousand dollars, consequently they seek redress through the law, and are endeavoring to compel the money to be refunded. They made the bargain and should abide by it.

These people in the city of Philadelphia have passed through the same ordeal, and no high-toned gentleman would be guilty of coming back upon a bargain of that kind. They are seeking to compel these men to refund this money. That is the whole secret. So far as my feeling is concerned, I am perfectly indifferent in regard to the case. All I ask is that justice shall be done. That they can get in Philadelphia, for the jury would know none of the parties and they can be tried without prejudice. I, therefore, say that this venue should be changed.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I cannot see that the gentleman has given any reason to show why these parties cannot be tried, and the end of justice obtained, just as well in Montgomery county as in Philadelphia. The people of Montgomery county, I take it, are intelligent enough to discriminate whether this is a proper prosecution or not. I do not know that they have anything to show to the contrary. If this is a matter of local prejudice, why I would have the gentleman know that the county of Montgomery is not all in the town of Norristown; that there are some seventy thousand inhabitants outside of the town, and that the juries are taken from the county at large. In case there should happen to be some three or four on the panel from that town, they can be challenged by the defendants in this case, and they would not have one on the jury from Norristown or vicinity.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman aware of the number the defendants are entitled to challenge from the panel? They are entitled to challenge but four.

Mr. SATERHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, in all probability there would not be that number from Norristown on the whole panel. I do not suppose there is that number. Two of these defendants, we are told, are from the city of Philadelphia. I suppose that is so, but three of them are not. Well, now, why should all these prosecutors be compelled to go to the city of Philadelphia, and leave all their witnesses taken there, to prosecute this case? If it is a case which should not be brought to the notice of the court, I presume that matter could be just as well decided and justice just as well obtained in Montgomery county as in Philadelphia.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. Hood] says this change of venue is asked for on account of local prejudices. That does not bear out the facts presented in the petition of the parties desiring the change. They ask it on the ground of political prejudices. Is local prejudice political prejudice? The parties in Norristown who bring this prosecution are the parties who think they have been swindled in this transaction. But I do not think that is a local prejudice, for those parties they have deceived, as a matter of course, have their feelings, but that any prejudice will be carried into the jury box and that the jurors will stultify themselves and disregard their oaths to render an unjust verdict for that reason, is, I think, a futile objection.

These parties, in their petition, state that it is on account of political prejudices, and I think, to be consistent, the gentleman from Philadelphia should take the same ground that they do; and I say that it is political prejudice, and not local prejudice.

But I think that, when this case is tried in the courts of Montgomery county, the jurors will not let the matter of politics so warp their feelings in favor of these men as to render a decision that will not meet the ends of justice.

SPEAKER'S TABLE.

The SPEAKER presented the following communications from the Governor, which were read :

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, February 26, 1867. }

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania :

GENTLEMEN—I have the honor to submit herewith, two communications from His Excellency, Richard J. Oglesby, Governor of the State of Illinois, upon the subject of an appropriation for the erection of a monument to Abraham Lincoln. I very respectfully refer the same to the consideration of the Legislature.

(Signed)

J. W. GEARY.

STATE OF ILLINOIS,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
SPRINGFIELD, February 29, 1867. }

To His Excellency John W. Geary, Governor of Pennsylvania :

DEAR SIR—I am directed by the National Lincoln Monument Association to address you upon this subject, and take the liberty respectfully to invite your attention to the enclosed memorial, and to request that you lay the same before the Legislature of your State, now in session, with such recommendations as you may feel the importance of the subject requires, and your own views may permit.

After nearly two years of continued efforts to secure the necessary means to build a monument over the remains of Mr. Lincoln by private subscriptions and donations, we feel satisfied that we have reached nearly the full amount that may be expected from these sources, and that a public duty, next to our obligations to the memory of this great and good-souled man, requires us to directly appeal to the several loyal States through their Legislatures, to aid the association in securing what is believed will be the necessary sum to build an appropriate and suitable national monument over his remains.

The State of Illinois has responded to our memorial and petition by granting an appropriation of fifty thousand dollars.

We have in the hands of our Treasurer, invested in interest bearing national securities, donated by private subscriptions, after the payment of all expenses, seventy-five thousand dollars. We believe we will hardly be justified in attempting to build a monument for the purpose stated that will cost less than two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. We have at present but one half of this amount. We are not without hope that the Legislature of your State may feel disposed to approve our action and the conclusions at which we have arrived, and to aid our association by such an appropriation as shall encourage us to hope that the laudable object we have in view is not to fail, but is to be supported by that just and liberal public opinion which during his administration so cheerfully and steadily supported him.

I shall be most happy to afford you any information you may desire about the history of the organization, and action of our association, and shall be much pleased to receive, either from yourself or from the Legislature of your State, any suggestions in reference to this subject.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
R. J. OGLESBY.

MEMORIAL.

To the Honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Pennsylvania :

Your memorialists, members of the National Lincoln Monument Association, would most respectfully solicit your attention to the accompanying articles of association and memorial, which they have had the honor to submit to the General Assembly of the State of Illinois, now in session.

The Legislature of Illinois has appropriated the sum of fifty thousand dollars in furtherance of the objects of the association. But a much larger amount, in the opinion of your memorialists, and, as they believe, in the judgment of the great body of the loyal American people, will be required to build a monument commemorative with the dignity and grandeur of the object and aim contemplated by the association.

In order, therefore, to impart to this enterprise that truly national character which we think it ought to assume, we respectfully ask the aid of your great State in rearing such a monument to the memory of Abraham Lincoln as will be worthy of his public services and fame, and as shall truly represent the love and reverence of the American people for the immortal principles of liberty and justice which ever found in him so able and fearless an advocate, and for his fidelity to which he lost his life.

Richard J. Oglesby, O. M. Hatch,

Newton Bateman, John Williams,

PURCHASE OF A RAILROAD MAP.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of joint resolution relative to the purchase of a railroad map to accompany the Auditor General's report.

The resolution was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

THE SENATORIAL CONTEST.

Mr. CONNELL. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer a resolution. Previous to the election of United States Senator in the early part of this session, and indeed down to the present time, the character and motives of a large number of Senators have been impugned without stint, for the course they conscientiously pursued in making their choice from the various candidates whose claims and qualifications were presented for our consideration for that honorable office.

The newspapers especially, in the interest of certain aspirants, teemed with falsehoods and indecent abuse of the friends of the successful candidate. For myself, I had neither the inclination nor the desire to enter into any refutation of these unmerited and baseless charges, nor into any defense of my own course in that contest. Having long ago and from the first, declared my decided preference for the "Old Chief" who will take his seat on Monday next as the United States Senator from Pennsylvania, I knew that time would do justice to his friends, and vindicate the purity of their motives and the wisdom of their choice.

Looking at all the various names presented to us for that high position, contrasting the character and services of each in the past history of the country, and in defense of the great and peculiar interests of our State, I recognize in him one whose name is identified with Pennsylvania's prosperity, and is already historic, forever imperishably associated with the war for the suppression of the rebellion, a statesman whose decision of character and firmness of purpose distinguish him above all his rivals and competitors as one "Conspicuous as the Northern star,

Of whose true-fixed and sterling quality,
There is no fellow in the firmament."

Finding the whole subject of the Senatorial contest, in all its bearings, ably reviewed by a recent address of the estimable and distinguished Senator (my friend, Mr. GRAHAM), published in the HARRISBURG TELEGRAPH, of the 19th instant, I desire that that address, brief, compact, fair in all its particulars, and true in all its statements, characteristic of its respected author, shall be published in the Legislative Record, and I therefore make that motion, that the address of the Hon. JAMES L. GRAHAM on the operations of the Lochiel Iron Works be printed in the Legislative Record.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, I take very great pleasure in seconding the motion of the Senator from Philadelphia (Mr. CONNELL). I regard, sir, the election of United States Senator, which occurred here this winter, as perhaps the greatest event in this State, in the nineteenth century. Nothing has occurred, since the signing of the Declaration of Independence, of so much importance to the people of Pennsylvania, and the people of this Union, as the election of the distinguished gentleman named in the remarks of the Senator from Philadelphia (Mr. CONNELL).

The motion of Mr. CONNELL was

Agreed to.

The following is the speech alluded to by the foregoing resolution:

GENTLEMEN, EMPLOYEES OF THE LOCHIEL IRON WORKS:—I thank you for having called me to preside at, and state the object of this meeting. You have convened for the purpose of bestowing upon the Hon. Simon Cameron a most beautiful and costly gift, as a testimonial of your affectionate regard for him as a man, and as an evidence of your appreciation of his distinguished services, for the promotion of the interests of the working classes, and the protection of the manufacturing interests of the country. This unsolicited demonstration is the more significant and valuable, because it springs spontaneously from the hearts of those who are his immediate neighbors and know him best. You will pardon me, gentlemen, if I allude briefly to the late contest for the United States Senate, out of which Gen. Cameron emerged so triumphantly, and my own position and action in connection with that, the most intensely interesting contest which has ever occurred in Pennsylvania.

You know, gentlemen, that I hail from the cloud canopied cities of Pittsburgh and Allegheny, where the hum of the spindle, the roar of the furnace and the clang of the hammer never cease, where not to be a laborer is not to be respected. For, gentlemen, we are eminently a manufacturing people. The healthful life current that courses through and gives vitality and wealth to every department of our business, receives its pulsations from our energy and manufacturing establishments, which stand forth and speak most eloquently of the genius, industry and enterprise of our people. When I became a Senator, five years since, I came to Harrisburg with my mind filled with prejudice against Simon Cameron. I had heard him denounced by the public press, and held up as a corrupt and unscrupulous man. Previous to that time I had no personal acquaintance with him.

Since I have become personally acquainted with him, since I have learned from his neighbors of his large hearted benevolence, of his generous and unselfish benefactions, of the purity of his private character, of his loyal devotion to the best interests of his country, those prejudices have been gradually removed, and a genuine admiration and respect for the man have taken their place.

In determining my action in the late contest I did not act hastily, or without due consideration. There were three gentlemen named prominently as candidates: Thaddeus

Stevens, Gov. A. G. Curtin and Gen. Simon Cameron.

Thaddeus Stevens I regarded as one of the greatest men of this or any other country, standing without a peer as a parliamentarian, one of the wonderful intellectual phenomena, that but rarely break upon and adorn the world. He was, indeed, regarded by me as the "great Commover"—radical, stern, inflexible—always standing up for the right and opposing the wrong; a man of whom I, as a Pennsylvanian, as an American, feel proud. "A man who, take him all in all, we'er shall look upon him like a god." But, gentlemen, I believed—I still believe, that he occupied the very position that "God and nature" intended him for—a position in which he could do more honor to himself, and more effectually promote the interests of the nation, than he could if transferred to the Senate. He was at the head of the most important committees, the acknowledged leader of the House, wielding an influence there which, in my judgment, he could not have exerted in any other position. And as for the honor, could any position grant and the more Thaddeus Stevens was with additional laurel?

Again, gentlemen, if elected to the Senate, I feared that his seat in the House might be filled by some inferior man. And then, again, his age; the young may die—the old must. Thaddeus Stevens has lived to a green old age, and, according to the inevitable laws of nature, must soon, very soon, pass to that silent house appointed for all the living—go, I trust, to have his head encircled with a wreath that will be incorruptible, undefiled, and shall never wither nor fall from the wearer's brow.

Gentlemen, a very few years work wondrous changes in the world—the political world especially. Elect Mr. Stevens to the Senate, and in the event of his decease (which Providence forbid), in two years the Democratic party might be in the ascendancy, and then we would have a Democratic United States Senator. Entertaining such views, and knowing as I thought I knew the impossibility of his election, I did not deem it to be my duty to vote for him.

I felt myself obliged, therefore, to choose between Gov. Curtin and Gen. Cameron. For myself I entertained none but the most kind and respectful feelings towards Governor Curtin; he had always treated me with great consideration. All acknowledged him to be a courteous, amiable and patriotic gentleman. I had been his friend and defender in Allegheny county, where he was assailed in some of our papers just as bitterly and unjustly as General Cameron has recently been attacked.

Yet, gentlemen, while none have been more honestly and unselfishly the friend of Andrew G. Curtin than myself, I could not vote for him for United States Senator, and why? Because my opportunities for studying his character, convinced me that the very amiability of his disposition, his want of firmness and decision, unfitted him at a time like this, when our country needs earnest, unyielding, radical men; men who will stand up like the surge repelling rock, unmoved by the warring elements; men whose party fealty has never been doubted. I will not say an unkind word of Governor Curtin. I have not uttered one against him. Yet I cannot refrain from assigning, as a reason for my not voting for him, his doubtful position, for a time at least, during the last Presidential contest, and his apparent adhesion to the man who, raised by the Republican party to the second office in the gift of the people, and then by the assassin's hand to the Presidency of the United States, basely betrayed those who had honored him, and is to-day using his position and patronage for their destruc-son. I say his apparent adhesion to President Johnson, after he had betrayed the Republican party, and that party had repudiated him. This adhesion may have been only in appearance, yet it was such as to cause many of his friends sincere regret.

On the other hand, my prepossessions on entering the Senate had been against General Cameron. I had heard the old charges against him, and I was disposed to judge him harshly. When, however, I came to know him better, to observe his life and conduct, and to ascertain what the people among whom he lived thought of him, I was compelled to disregard the slanders of his enemies and to form my own judgment of his character. My intercourse with him satisfied me that he was an upright and earnest statesman, thoroughly radical in his views, and devoted to the interests of Pennsylvania. Moreover I felt sure that he would be found reliable in any contingency, and that the Radicals of this State would never have cause to regret that they had chosen him to represent them in the Senate of the United States. And again, gentlemen, the constituency which I represent are vitally interested in a protective tariff. The material prosperity of our immense manufacturing interests are in a great measure dependent upon proper protection. I remembered the fact that Simon Cameron, when in the Senate, elected to it by the Democratic party—when this question of protection to American industry was before that body, rose superior to party trammels, and in opposition to his party, advocated it in various speeches of great power. And then, gentlemen, I looked at the record, since the breaking out of the late terrible rebellion. He seemed to have a more perfect conception of its magnitude, than any man in public position. With prophetic eye, he seemed to scan it in all its gigantic proportions, and urged the calling out of one million men to crush the rebel armies. And after the war had continued for a time, and our forces seemed inadequate to subdue the rebellion, General Cameron was the very first statesman who advocated the arming of the negro, which he did in his report as Secretary of War, in December, 1861. And yet, again, when he saw that slavery was a great element of strength to the rebels—when he saw four millions of human beings, trodden down under the iron heel of oppression until almost every lineament of God-head and humanity was obliterated—he was among the first who urged the issuing of the proclamation of emancipation, thus striking off the shackles of four millions of human beings, and obliterating that deep, dark, damning stain that rested upon the escutcheon of our country.

I knew that he was in favor of negro suffrage in Pennsylvania as well as in the South—that he was in favor of punishing traitors instead of rewarding them with offices—that he was a progressive man and would always go forward—never backward.

For these reasons I resolved to vote for General Cameron; if any of my friends think I ought to have done otherwise I am sorry I cannot agree with them. I believed then and I still believe that in voting as I did I represented the best interests of the loyal and patriotic people of the State.

I knew that personally I had nothing to gain by casting my vote for General Cameron. I never asked for or received a favor from him—neither expected or desired any present or prospective advantage to myself, but upon the contrary, knew that I might alienate many valuable friends. Yet with my own convictions of duty under the solemnities of my oath as Senator, I could not do otherwise than I have done. And, gentlemen, employees of the Lochiel Iron Works, and you, gentlemen, his friends and neighbors, who now, with upturned, beaming, earnest faces, stand around me—if I needed an additional argument for having cast my vote for Gen. Cameron, you have furnished it to me in the earnest, enthusiastic greeting you have this day given him; in the cordial, kindly, brotherly feeling which seems to exist between you; in the genuine affection which you manifest for him, and the evident interest you take in him. Gentlemen, no ordinary man, no bad man, could ever win the hearts or secure a place in the affections of men such as comprise this assembly.

In reviewing the whole subject, my conclusion is this: by voting for General Cameron, I contributed my influence to elevate to power and place a man of known and reliable antecedents, largely and intimately identified with the material interests of this great State, a man of bold and radical avowals, holding a large place in individual affection and public esteem, and whose wide influence will be consecrated to the good of the whole land.—Firmly believing this, I most cheerfully submit my action to the sober judgment of the wise, the discreet, and the patriotic. Again, gentlemen, I thank you for the unexpected honor you have conferred upon me in calling me to preside at your meeting.

BILLS PASSED.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY moved that the Committee on Corporations be discharged from the further consideration of a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Gettysburg Asylum for invalid soldiers and to raise funds therefor, and for the securing and preserving of that the battle ground of Gettysburg, and that the rules be suspended, and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the same.

Mr. RANDALL objected to bills being called up at this time, as the general railroad law was the special order.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, this bill is to establish an asylum for invalid soldiers.

Mr. RANDALL. I have no objection to the asylum, but I insist upon the orders.

On the question,
Will the Senate suspend the rules?
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. RANDALL and Mr. M'CONAUGHY, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Billingsfelt, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Fisher, Graham, Haines, James, Landon, M'Candless, M'Conaughy, Royer, Seairight, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace, Walls, White and Hall, Speaker—21.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Browne (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Jackson, Lowry, Randall and Ridgway—8.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

SESSIONS OF THE SENATE.

Mr. BIGHAM moved that the Senate will hold afternoon sessions on to-day and tomorrow, commencing at three o'clock.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the motion of Mr. BIGHAM?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. RANDALL and Mr. CONNELL, and were as follow, viz:

A QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE.

During the debate on the railroad bill, Mr. DONOVAN said: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a privileged question. I went into the other branch of the Legislature a few moments ago, to speak to my colleague [Mr. QUIGLEY] upon important business. I was prevented from doing so by the Sergeant-at-Arms of that body. He told me that, in doing so he was acting under the instructions of the Speaker of that body. I had an important message to deliver to him, but was not allowed to do so. This thing should be stopped. I would say that a Speaker who gave an order that a Senator should not go on to the floor of the House of Representatives and speak to his colleague, is, under the most charitable construction, a fool!

Mr. WALLACE (Speaker pro tem.) said that, as he was only a temporary incumbent of the chair, he would request the Senator to wait and state the case to the Speaker when he was in the chair.

Mr. DONOVAN. You are virtually the Speaker.

Laid on the table.

THE REYNOLDS MONUMENT.

On motion of Mr. FISHER, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of a bill entitled An act to authorize the Governor to transfer to the Reynolds Monument Committee unserviceable and condemned ordnance.

Mr. FISHER, Mr. Speaker, the State of Pennsylvania has neglected too long to do something to perpetuate the memory of the great and good Reynolds.

The bill was read.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY moved to amend the bill by adding to the end thereof the following proviso: "Provided, That the monument shall be erected on the spot where General Reynolds fell."

Mr. M'CANDESS. Mr. Speaker, several of the officers who were with General Reynolds at the time he fell, state that the place where he fell is no place to erect a monument, that it is a low, swampy place, and that they have selected a site upon which they desire the monument shall be erected, on the battle field.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, I am not particular as to where the monument is erected; but, if there is any one man who was in the service of the State of Pennsylvania, to whose memory the State owes something of that kind, it is General John F. Reynolds; and if the grounds upon which he fell are not suitable for the purpose, there ought to be some spot selected.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to explain. I desire that this bill shall pass; I desire that the State of Pennsylvania shall do honor to itself and honor to her illustrious son, General Reynolds. But, sir, I desire that when she does honor to that noble man, whose bravery will be identified with her most sacred history—I desire, sir, that she will still do honor to the men who fought under him; that she will do honor to the man who struck the bold blow on the first day of the battle of Gettysburg, which blow gave the assurance of victory. I believe that in no other period of that battle was there a bolder blow struck than that struck under the lead of General Reynolds. I desire that that fact shall be commemorated, and that the spot be so indicated that it shall be historically preserved forever, as long as those hills shall remain. Sir, I cannot understand why any man who fought under General Reynolds should not have the esprit du corps, the pride that all true soldiers have in the force that did the glorious act, to erect that monument just where it occurred, so that it will make honorable not only his name, but those of his soldiers.

Sir, I do him all honor; I would detract nothing from his memory, nor from the honorable act in which he lost his life. But it did not stop there. When he fell, and was utterly insensible, the men whom he was leading went to the charge, and met the enemy in front on both flanks, and they repelled one of the most splendid movements of the enemy in that battle. They were advancing a brigade in front and on either flank, and after he fell, and became insensible, the Iron Brigade went in and captured Archer; and afterwards went in on the right and captured Davis's brigade, thus consuming two blows which, in their moral force, were felt throughout the whole three days. Now, sir, why shall not this monument be erected there, forever to indicate the glorious act of General Reynolds, and the splendid, intrepid bravery of his men? In this matter I am controlled entirely by public, patriotic, historical considerations. I have no other motives whatever, and my judgment is entirely clear as to what is right and proper.

The action of the first day was on the west side of the town; the point at which this monument should be erected is accessible by an excellent turnpike, and is as near to the town as is the National Cemetery; it is on elevated ground, admirably adapted to the purpose. The very spot on which General Reynolds fell has been ascertained and identified by his own family, by his own personal family, and I am thoroughly convinced that that is the desire of his own sister, that this monument shall be erected just where he fell. It is not on low ground; it is on high ground. I know it as familiarly as I know my own house; I have been upon it again and again. I have conversed with his sisters in regard to it, and I know it is the desire of the family.

But, I was going to say, that the action of the first day was fought on the west side of the town; the action of the second and third days, in which that corps took no conspicuous part, was fought on the south side. I desire that this monument shall be erected where the action of the first day took place, and not on Cemetery Hill, where he did not fight, and with which his corps is not identified, but where the Eleventh corps was in position; I desire this for the truth of history; the knowledge of that first day's scene of action will pass from the memory of man. Leading gentlemen in my town, who, like myself, feel very deep interest in the preservation of this battle-field, know the danger which exists of that first day's battle passing into oblivion. I desire, sir, by those who have no considerations, that this monument shall be erected, so that it shall direct visitors to that field, forever, to the spot where General Reynolds and his corps fought, and where they triumphed on the first day of the battle.

Mr. M'CANDESS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make a statement in reference to the origin of this fund for the erection of a monument to General Reynolds. After his unfortunate death, a number of his comrades, officers and men, raised a fund by private subscription for the erection of this monument. A committee was formed from that body of men, to take charge of this fund. They desire to have an opportunity of selecting the spot where this monument shall be erected—as a matter of course, upon the field on which he fell. But since that time, there have been various endeavors made to obtain possession of the remains of Gen. Reynolds for other purposes than those for which they were originally intended. I would like to ask the Senator from Adams [Mr. M'CONAUGHY] how far it is from a grand hotel site to the proposed location for this monument. Now, sir, I do not desire to see the dust of my former comrade traded in for the advancement of any hotel. I desire that the men who did battle with him shall select the spot for a monument to perpetuate his memory.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. I would like to ask the Senator if I understand him as saying that the Senator from Adams desires the erection of this monument for the benefit of any hotel.

Mr. M'CANDESS. I have too much respect for the Senator to make any such allusion.

Mr. SEARIGHT. Mr. Speaker, this is a question about a certain spot. It is a classical subject, in view of the favored role of the present age. The late lamented Abraham Lincoln, as he has been termed, once made a speech in Congress on the subject of a spot. The question was, on which particular spot the first blood was shed in the Mexican war. He was solicitous to ascertain that particular spot, for the reason that he was desirous of proving to the country that that spot was upon Mexican soil, and that the first blood was spilt on the Mexican soil, by an unjustifiable war made by the United States government.

Now, in view of that remarkable historic fact, in view of the interest taken in reference to that particular spot, it is an important subject, and demands the serious consideration of the Senate. I am not certain whether Mr. Lincoln succeeded in ascertaining the particular spot, or not—whether he succeeded in satisfying the country whether the particular spot was in Mexico or in the United States of America. The gallant Senator from Philadelphia [Gen. M'CANDESS] alleges that at the very spot where General Reynolds fell there is no eligible place for erecting a monument to his memory. As that Senator has been on the ground, that may be true. But one of the clerks of this body has just handed me this stick, which I hold in my hand, which he alleges grew on that very spot where General Reynolds fell. If that spot can produce such sticks as this, I contend that it would be an eligible spot upon which to erect a monument.

It looks like the hickory stick, and nothing but good ground would produce such a stick of that size. I hope that our military friends in this body will be able to fix upon a suitable location for this monument. I do not design to show any disrespect for the memory of General Reynolds. I concede him to have been a patriotic, able and good man, as has been claimed for him by my distinguished friend and colleague, the Senator from Lancaster [Mr. FISHER]. As a Pennsylvanian, I participate fully in that pride which points to General Reynolds as one of our greatest soldiers. But, sir, I do not, in reference to the particular spot that I wish to speak, and my own inclination is that this monument ought to be erected on the particular spot where he fell. And if it be marshy, as has been suggested by the Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. M'CANDESS], let the foundation be made deep under the marshy ground, and put on more expense so as to have the monument right there, which, I think, is the proper place for it.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, I am not at all particular, sir, as to the precise spot where this monument shall be erected. I am solicitous, however, that some regard should be paid to the memory of one of the bravest men, one of the noblest and best men that this nation has ever seen. It was my fortune, sir, in connection with my friend, the Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. M'CANDESS], to be for a considerable time under the command of General Reynolds. I know that that Senator will agree with me in saying that God never made a truer, braver, or better man; he was a soldier and a gentleman. My friend from Fayette [Mr. SEARIGHT], may attempt as much as he pleases to cast ridicule and odium upon the name of that brave and gallant and good man, and I presume he would do so.

Mr. SEARIGHT. I said particularly that I did not desire to throw any disrespect upon the memory of General Reynolds. I esteem his memory as highly as any gentleman.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, I do not suppose this matter would take such a turn as it has. What has this to do, sir, with any remark made by the lamented Lincoln, the martyr, or any principles that he held? or who was made a martyr, too, by the men who held, and who now hold, the same sentiments and principles held by my friend from Fayette [Mr. SEARIGHT]. What has that to do with it, sir? General Reynolds was a son of Pennsylvania, and I am proud to say, sir, that he was from the county I represent here. He was not only a Pennsylvanian; he was a patriot, and he laid down his life, and yielded his blood to his principles of patriotism, in defense of this Union and of republican government. I suppose, sir, that if a proposition was made here to erect a monument over Barksdale's remains, my friend, the Senator from Fayette, would vote for it. But it so happened that General Reynolds was struggling against that breed of dogs.

Now, sir, I do not care where this monument is put. My friend from Adams [Mr. MC CONAUGHY] understands the locality better than I do. My friend from Philadelphia, Gen. M' CANDLESS, happened to be off on the left, where he met some of the friends of the Senator from Fayette [Mr. SEARIGHT], and we thrashed them most beautifully. Now, if this ground is not eligible, then put the monument somewhere else; but let us erect a monument to the memory of one of the bravest men that the history of the late war brought to the surface. For what little I know of military affairs, I am indebted, in a very large degree, to the lamented Reynolds. He was not only a true man, a gallant man, but a man of experience, a man of wisdom; and I saw him, sir, on many occasions, where some of these gentlemen, who talk about the jokes of the lamented Lincoln would have quailed, and where he stood up like a beaten avil to the stroke. I shall never forget that memorable day at Gaines' Hill, when he came to my own line and asked me to allow a few of my men to cease firing, so that he could take some observations. He rode at the front of the line, making calculations as to the point of attack, with the bullets flying like hailstones around his head, and coolly took a cracker from his pocket and ate it there. That, sir, was not the work for men who cast slurs upon the jokes of the sainted Lincoln. That was the work of a patriot, a soldier, a man who knew his duty, and had the manhood to do it; and, when we are talking about these precious relics of a great and good man, it is a sorry spectacle to me to hear odium and ridicule cast upon them. I do not care where you put it, but I want a monument erected, so that his name may go down to generations yet unborn.

Mr. SEARIGHT. My remarks were eminently in order, but I do not think that the remarks made by the Senator from Lancaster [Mr. FISHER] were germane to the subject under consideration. As I understand it, the subject before the Senate is in reference to the location of this monument.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, this seems to be a good occasion to make "Buncombe" speeches, but I simply want to make a few remarks. Now, there has been some difference of opinion as to who is entitled to the credit of first selecting the battle ground at Gettysburg. The man who first selected the ground for that battle is entitled to more credit for the victory than any other man in the army, and so far as I have been able to learn, I think it is very likely that that merit is due to General Reynolds, and if that is so, the proper place for the monument is upon the hills which he selected, and upon which the battle was fought, and Pennsylvania saved; and I shall vote for putting that monument upon the hills around Gettysburg.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, it is not my design to waste the valuable time of the Senate this morning, but this is no idle question. This is a business matter before this body. It is specific and direct, and, for its proper disposition, it is deemed necessary for the Senate to understand what the proposition is before this body. I do not rise, sir, for the purpose of pronouncing an eulogium upon the name or character of General John F. Reynolds; that name is dear to every Pennsylvanian, ay, and every patriot heart in this country, and I have listened with interest to the remarks of my friends, the gallant Senators from Lancaster and Philadelphia, who had the peculiar privilege here to pronounce eulogiums upon their late distinguished commander. They are eminently competent for the task, and to them will I trust its discharge. My friend, the Senator from Adams [Mr. MC CONAUGHY], also manifests good taste in matters of this kind, and has very properly and very plausibly demonstrated before this Senate the reason why this monument should be erected upon the specific spot upon which he fell; and allow me to remind him and the Senate that if that were the original proposition before this body, his remarks would be pertinent and proper. But what is the proposition before us? It is in the shape of a bill which has been referred to the Military Committee of this body, proposing to give authority to the Governor to examine and inspect certain unseizable ordnance, which, when condemised, he should be authorized to turn over to the committee appointed for the purpose of erecting a monument to the memory of Gen. J. F. Reynolds. Is this measure proper or improper?

The Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. M' CANDLESS] and other officers of the First corps, organized by my friend from Adams [Mr. MC CONAUGHY], have recently formed an organization for the specific purpose of erecting a monument to perpetuate the memory of Gen. John F. Reynolds; that organization has had under consideration the erection of this monument; they have devised ways and means for its erection; they have a president, a secretary and a treasurer, and a finance committee for the purpose of raising money. The president of that organization is a distinguished soldier of this Commonwealth, a constituent of the Senator from Fayette [Mr. SEARIGHT], a gentleman who has the success of this enterprise much at heart, who contributed much to the success of the army on that day, and whose gallantry no man in the Senate of Pennsylvania will question; I allude to General Richard Coulter, of Westmoreland county, the president of that organization. Before the Military Committee had finally disposed of this bill, they consulted with the members of this organization, and they reported, through their president, that they had made their selection for the purpose of the erection of that monument in the cemetery appropriated for the burial of the soldiers at Gettysburg; that they had appointed their committee for the purpose of erecting it there; they design expending their money there, and no act of the Senate or Legislature can control these gentlemen—these gallant soldiers—in their right to erect this monument wherever they see fit. I think the people of Pennsylvania could not confide that duty to any more worthy or suitable persons. They, after having determined the selection, come to the State of Pennsylvania and ask for a poor pittance, for the purpose of aiding them in the execution of their duty; and I do not care how many provisions you put in this bill, it will not compel them to change their purpose. I was authorized by their president to thus represent their wishes upon the floor of the Senate in connection with this bill. I have attempted to do so, and I trust that the Senate will have regard for their wishes.

Mr. MC CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, while this discussion has perhaps developed some things which had better not have transpired, it has developed much of interest in connection with the memory of General Reynolds. It is a most interesting fact, sir, that it was owing to the sagacity of General John F. Reynolds, that the battle was fought where it was. I believe that it is a historical fact that as the head of his column reached the ground on that day, he despatched to headquarters the man he would fight the enemy wherever he met him, in order to save the true position for the army in the rear. He fought him just upon this ground where he fell. Now, sir, that is where the monument to him and to his corps should be erected.

I cannot apprehend the remarks of the Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. M'CANDESS]. It was so foreign to my intention, that I cannot conceive what low mind could have insinuated to him such a thing as he happened to repeat.

Mr. M'CANDESS. I would like to ask a question. How near to this spot on which it is proposed to erect this monument is this proposed hotel?

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. I believe there is a proposition, which has not yet taken shape, to erect a hotel within a quarter of a mile of this place. What will result from it, I do not know. But I do know that what I have proposed here has no relation to that, and that it is foreign to the subject. Now, sir, General Reynolds has a funeral monument; his remains were taken to Lancaster, and a funeral monument erected over them. What we want now is a historical monument. I am hardly willing to give what is proposed in this bill for any other purpose than the erection of a historical monument to the memory of Reynolds and his corps, where they fought. I would not wish to erect a structure in the city of Philadelphia, or Pottsburg, or in any portion of the county of Adams, where General Reynolds did not fight. I propose to vote it, sir, for the purpose of erecting a proper historical structure where he fought and fell. Again, sir, the Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. M'CANDESS] has well said that the money which is to be used for this purpose was contributed by his corps. If that is so, why not use it for the erection of a monument for them as well as him? Why not use it for a monument to the men who fought with him, as well as for himself? Let both be done, sir. Let the structure be erected just where the battle raged, and let the money which shall be contributed go to perpetuate the memory of that battle, that general and that corps.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, as I understand this bill, it is a proposition to devote certain unserviceable guns in the possession of the State to assist an organization composed of the officers of the First army corps, commanded by the late General John F. Reynolds. This is the simple question, whether we shall assist them or not. Now, if the State of Pennsylvania is anxious to assist them, I should think they would vote for the bill just as it was reported by the Military Committee, as that was the way in which they desired it. I am just as anxious as any one to perpetuate the memory of General Reynolds, whom I knew for a long while; and I am perfectly willing to join with the Senator from Adams [Mr. M'CONAUGHY] in voting an appropriation for the erection of a monument commemorating the spot on which he fell in any appropriate manner; and if this is to be voted to the organization, I shall vote for the bill just as it comes here, without dictating to them how they shall commemorate the services of their commander.

Mr. M'CANDESS. Mr. Speaker, I have only to say, sir, in addition to what I have already said, that this is a very small boon that the officers of the First corps ask from the State of Pennsylvania, and if they cannot have the selection of the place where this monument shall be erected, the State of Pennsylvania can keep its unserviceable ordnance, and with our private means we will erect it without aid from the State.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I would appeal to the Senator from Adams [Mr. M'CONAUGHY], in view of the remarks from the Senator from Philadelphia [Mr. M'CANDESS], and the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE], who understand this matter, to withdraw this amendment. I do not think it is generous to enforce a particular spot; it would be ungracious for us to do so. I have no doubt this organization will make a wise selection than we can, and I hope the Senator will withdraw his amendment.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, the motives that prompted me in offering that amendment were considerations for historical truth, and interest in the cause, as well as for General Reynolds. Do I understand that General M'CANDESS represents the First corps?

Mr. M'CANDESS. I desire it to be understood, sir.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Then I withdraw my amendment.

The question was then agreed to, and the bill read a third time, and

Passed finally.

THE COMMON SCHOOL LAW.

Mr. WALLACE offered the following resolution, which was twice read:

WHEREAS, It is the duty of the law-making power of this Commonwealth to provide and maintain a system of common school education, equal in its benefits and equal in its burthens of taxation;

And whereas, Gross and manifest inequality now exists among the several counties of the Commonwealth, as well in reference to the number of months taught as to the amount of taxes paid, whereby great complaint is caused, and the system is rendered unpopular, and is, in many instances, really onerous; therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee on Education be, and they are hereby, directed forthwith to prepare and report to the Senate for action a bill embodying a system equal in its advantages and just and equitable in its taxation in every section of the Commonwealth.

Mr. WALLACE said that he had been looking over the report of the superintendent of schools, and found that in certain counties there was an unjust proportion of taxation, compared with the number of months when the schools were open, and thought it the duty of the Legislature to correct it.

Mr. WHITE said that he was glad the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] had called attention to the subject, as he represented one of the districts where this injustice and inequality existed.

The resolution was

Agreed to.

SALTING THE STREETS OF PHILADELPHIA.

Having asked and obtained leave to make a statement,

Mr. DONOVAN said: Mr. Speaker, last week I gave notice that I would call up a bill in reference to salting the streets in Philadelphia. I have received letters asking me why I do not call it up. The reason is, that I waited upon the mayor, in company with General M'CANDESS. He told me that he was opposed to the Legislature passing any law upon this subject, for this reason, that the Legislature did not meet until the first Tuesday in January, and some conflict might arise before that time, in which he and the council will have control. I do not wish to do anything to make a conflict with the council. If they yield the point, they will have to give up the control of the paving of the streets, &c. &c. But the councils, since that, have passed an ordinance imposing a fine of seventy-five dollars upon railroad companies for salting the streets, which I think is not stringent enough. I, therefore, give notice again that I shall call up the bill.

AN AFTERNOON SESSION.

Mr. WALLACE moved that the Senate will hold a session this afternoon, commencing at 3 o'clock and ending at 5, for the consideration of public bills.

The resolution was

Not agreed to.

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence) asked and obtained the unanimous consent of the Senate to amend the same by striking out all after the enacting clause and inserting in lieu thereof a new section.

The bill then

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. GLATZ, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of a bill entitled "An act to permit an appeal from the register of Lebanon county in behalf of the heirs of Robert W. Coleman, deceased."

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. COWLES, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of a bill entitled "An act to repair the Covanquesque river, in the county of Tioga."

In committee of the whole (Mr. COWLES in the chair), the bill was considered and reported to the Senate with amendments.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the title?

On motion of Mr. COWLES, it was amended so as to make it read "an act to change the bed of the Covanquesque river, in the county of Tioga."

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. DAVIS, the Senate resumed the second reading and consideration of a bill entitled A further supplement to an act entitled An act granting a pension to Jacob Hurst, approved March 27th, 1866.

And the rules having been dispensed with, The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

TEMPORARY ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. GRAHAM said he thought it would be better to change the hour of meeting on Tuesday next, so as to give members visiting Washington time to reach Harrisburg before the session.

Mr. BIGHAM moved that the Senate reconsider the vote on the final passage of the resolution fixing the time of meeting on Tuesday next at 3 o'clock, P. M.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The resolution being again before the Senate,

Mr. BIGHAM moved to amend the same by striking out "three o'clock," and inserting in lieu thereof, "seven-and-a-half o'clock."

JNO. W. GEARY.

Laid on the table.

The Deputy Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented a message from the Governor, which was read as follows, viz :

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, February 26, 1867.
To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania :

GENTLEMEN—I regret the necessity which compels me to return herewith, without my approval, to the House of Representatives, in which it originated, House bill No. 120, now pending in Northampton county, to appoint a trustee to make sale of certain real estate held in trust for A. Wollé and his family.

It is fair to presume the preamble of the bill contains a correct statement of the facts ; and if so, it presents a simple case of lands held in trust under a deed, where the trustee has died, and the beneficiaries desire the appointment of a new trustee, and a sale of the lands.

By the 23d section of the act of 14th June, 1836, the courts of common pleas of the several counties are authorized, on the application of any party in interest, to appoint another trustee where a preceding one may have died. By the 25th section of the same act, it is declared the trustee so appointed "shall be liable to the same duties, shall have the same powers and authorities in relation to the trust as his predecessor or predecessors."

By the first and second sections of the act of 18th April, 1853, full powers are given to the courts to sell real estate held in trust in all cases like that described in this bill ; and in the other sections of these acts a complete system is provided for the regulation of the whole subject in all its details.

Ample provision, therefore, having already been made by general laws for all such cases, it would be useless and improper to encumber the statute books with special laws for every case. For these reasons the bill cannot be approved.

I take this occasion to enter my protest against the use of the character "&c." and of the words "et cetera" in bills passed by the Legislature. Although not used in this bill they are found in a number of others presented for my approval. I regard them as wholly out of place whether the title or body of a bill, and discreditable to all in anywise responsible for the legislation of the State.

JNO. W. GEARY.

The Committee on Compare Bills also made the following report, which was read :

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE ON COMPARE BILLS.

Mr. BREEN, from the Committee appointed to Compare Bills, and present them to the Governor for his approbation, made report, which was read as follows, viz :

D. 1851.

WEDNESDAY, February 27, 1867.

During this morning's session the following messages from the Governor were received and read :

Mr. DeHAVEN asked the unanimous consent of the House to offer a resolution.

It was granted, and the resolution was read as follows:

WHEREAS, The Hon. Richard VAUX has accepted the invitation of a large majority of the members of the Senate and House of Representatives, to deliver an address on the science of prison discipline; therefore, be it Resolved, That the use of the Hall of this House be appropriated for that purpose, on Thursday evening, March 7th, 1867.

Agreed to.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make a statement and ask leave for that purpose.

Leave granted.

Mr. QUIGLEY. After consultation with a number of the opponents of the bill relating to Sunday travel in the city of Philadelphia, together with a number of the friends of the bill, I have agreed to appoint a certain evening for the discussion of that bill, desiring to give every gentleman, who chooses to accept it, an opportunity to speak upon the subject.

In this connection I beg leave to offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That this House will hold a session to-morrow (Thursday) evening, commencing at 7½ o'clock, for the purpose of considering House bill No. 926, relating to Sunday travel in the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I have no objection to the resolution if the friends of the bill will agree not to take a vote to-morrow night on the question.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, that is just what the friends of the bill desire. While wishing to give every gentleman who desires it, an opportunity to speak on the bill, I would remind the House that the day fixed for the election is the 5th of March. If we do not pass the bill immediately, it will amount to nothing at all. We only ask a fair chance for a vote on the bill. I trust the House will accept the resolution.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I have no objection to the bill being discussed and voted upon; I do not wish to impose any delay. But I protest against a special session which interferes with the necessary meeting of committees.

The committee over which I have the honor to preside has been able to meet but once upon its regular meeting night. Its next regular meeting night happens to be the evening upon which this resolution for the consideration of the Sunday car travel question. There is not a gentleman in the House who is not interested in this matter, either one way or the other. The committee is composed of twenty-one members, and it will be impossible to get them together, if the House propose to hold a session to-morrow night. It is exceedingly important just at this time that the committee should meet, because the bills they have in charge must be reported to this House within a specified time. If their meeting is interfered with this cannot be done.

If the friends of the measure will fix an hour to-morrow evening when the vote will be taken, so that the gentlemen of the committee can come in and vote, if they desire so to do, I have no objection to the resolution.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I have no objection at all. If gentlemen will designate the hour at which the debate shall cease and the vote be taken, the committee can be notified at that time.

Mr. WADDELL. If the friends of the bill will agree that the committee shall be notified, that is all we ask.

The question being on the adoption of the resolution, it was

Agreed to.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the special order of the afternoon be postponed until the orders of reports from committees and bills in place have been gone through with.

The SPEAKER. Will the House give its unanimous consent to postpone the special order of the afternoon as proposed indicated by the gentleman from Beaver?

The consent was not given.

The House went into committee of the whole on House bill No. 250, Mr. BOYLE in the chair.

The bill was read as follows:

AN ACT supplementary to an act to amend certain defects in the law for the more just and safe transmission and secure enjoyment of real and personal estate, approved April twenty-seventh, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and fifty-five, and to provide a mode for extinguishing mineral reservations in lands not owned by the Commonwealth.

WHEREAS, Many tracts of land, part of the lands called and known as proprietary tenements or manor, have been granted by the late proprietaries, or their heirs and legal representatives, subject to the charge of a certain portion of the ore or product of mines taken out of said lands;

And whereas, It is against the policy of this Commonwealth and the interest of her citizens, and preventive of the safe and just transmission of the title to lands, that real estate should be subject to incumbrances indefinite in their duration, and of no certain or ascertainable amount, without power in the owner of such real estate to relieve it therefrom:

Therefore, for remedy thereof,

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That when any lands shall have been, or may be, granted, reserving to the late proprietaries, their heirs or legal representatives, the right to receive or have any part of the ores or other minerals which may be taken therefrom, and the owner or owners of said lands cannot agree with owners of said mines for the proper compensation to be paid for the extinguishing thereof, of the court of common pleas of the proper county, on the petition of the owner or owners of said lands, or any one or more of them, or any one, in his or their behalf, shall appoint nine discreet and disinterested freeholders of said county, neither of whom shall be the owner of lands subject to similar rights, to view and examine said lands, and determine the amount of compensation to be paid for extinguishing said rights; and the said court shall also fix a time, not less than twenty nor more than thirty days thereafter, for the said freeholders to meet at and upon said land, of which time and place fifteen days' notice shall be given by the petitioner to the freeholders, and to the other party, or his or their duly authorized agent, attorney, or other lawful representative, and the said freeholders, or any six of them, having been first duly sworn or affirmed faithfully, justly and impartially to perform the duties committed to them, shall view and examine the premises, and estimate and determine the value of said rights to the persons owning the same, taking into consideration all the circumstances, and make a true report to the court of their proceedings, and the value of said rights.

Sec. 2. That the said "freeholders shall cause their said report to be filed in the office of the prothonotary of the proper court, within ten days after they shall have made the same; and it shall be the duty of the court, upon the application of any party interested, to appoint a time for the examination of said report, not less than thirty days after such application of which at least twenty days' notice shall be given, by weekly publication, as the court may direct, in one or more newspapers published in the county in which the land may lie, and in one or more newspapers published in the city of Philadelphia, and such further notice, personal or otherwise, as the court may deem necessary; and the court, after fully considering said report, shall confirm, recommit, modify, or set aside the same according to law and equity, and shall decree how much shall be paid by the owner or owners of said lands to the owner or owners of said rights as a compensation for the same, and shall also direct by whom and in what proportions the cost of the proceeding, including such compensation to said freeholders as the court shall fix, shall be paid, and payment of said costs may be enforced by execution or otherwise, as the court shall direct: Provided, That at any time before the day appointed for the examination of said report by the court as aforesaid, either party may appeal from the same to the said court, under the same regulations as are required in case of appeals from awards of arbitrators, subject, nevertheless, to the power of the court as to costs as above provided for, with the right of either party to a writ of error.

Sec. 3. That the sum ascertained and decreed to be paid as aforesaid, shall be deemed and held to be a ground rent in fee, as if the same had been reserved out of said lands at the time the aforesaid rights were originally reserved, with all the rights, means of enforcing payment, and other incidents, which belong to ground rents, and the original petitioner or petitioners for a view, shall be deemed and treated as the grantor or grantors of such ground rent.

Sec 4. That it shall be the duty of the court, on the application of any person interested, to order and decree that the said ground rent shall be substituted for and in the place of the aforesaid rights, and that the lands aforesaid, which shall be accurately described in such decree, shall be thereafter forever discharged and relieved therefrom, except as secured by said ground rent, as fully and entirely, to all intents and purposes, as if they had never existed, or as if they had been released and extinguished by the owner or owners of said lands; and said decree, duly certified by the prothonotary of the proper court, shall, at the request of any person interested, be recorded in the recorder's office of the proper county, upon the payment of the fees allowed by law for like services in other cases.

The bill was agreed to.

The House went into committee of the whole on House bill No. 25, Mr. BREFE in the chair.

The bill was read as follows:

AN ACT relating to evidence in actions of ejectment.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That in all actions of ejectment against two or more persons, any of the defendants shall be competent as a witness for either plaintiff or defendant, as effectually as if not made a party to the record: Provided, That it shall appear to the court, upon the trial, that the party so offered as a witness has disclaimed, upon the record, all title to the premises in controversy, and paid into court the costs already accrued, or given security for the payment thereof, at the discretion of the court.

The bill was

Agreed to.
In the House.

The Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. BROWN, chairman of the committee of the whole, reported the bill without amendment.

The bill was read.

On the question.

Will the House agree to the bill?

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, the House, a few days ago, having passed a bill to enable all parties, whether on record or not, to testify in their cases, it is unnecessary that this bill should pass. It does no more than allow any defendant to testify in the case, he being a party in interest. By the bill that passed the Senate, he would be allowed to testify anyhow. I think it would be improper to spread that act on the record, because it would interfere with some of the provisions of the bill passed a few days ago.

I, therefore, ask that this bill be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. PHELAN. Mr. Speaker, the other bill may not pass.

I hope, therefore, this bill will not be postponed.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw the motion to postpone.

I hope the House will vote down the bill.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I think the reason given by the gentleman from Greene [Mr. PHELAN] is sufficient for the passage of this bill. If the Senate should conclude to pass the other they may defeat this, and if the House act adversely to this bill and the Senate defeat the other, the gentleman who called up this bill [Mr. PHELAN] will not attain the object for which he is laboring.

The question recurring.

Will the House agree to the bill?

It was

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended and the bill read a third time by its title, and

Passed finally.

The House went into committee of the whole on House bill No. 252, Mr. CALVIN in the chair.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That whenever the board of directors or controllers of any school district in this Commonwealth shall be unable to procure such eligible sites for the erection of school houses thereon as they may deem expedient, by agreement with the owner or owners of the land it shall and may be lawful for the board of directors, in behalf of the district, to enter upon and occupy sufficient ground for the purpose, which they shall designate and mark off, not exceeding in any case one acre, and to use and occupy the same for the purpose of erecting thereon a school house with its necessary or convenient appurtenances, and for all damage done and suffered, or which shall accrue to the owner or owners of such lands, by reason of the taking of the same for the purposes aforesaid, the funds of the district which may be raised by taxation, shall be pledged and deemed as security; and it shall and may be lawful for the court of common pleas of the proper county, on application thereto by petition, either by the said school district, through the president and secretary of the board of directors, or by the owner or owners of said land, or any one of them in behalf of all, to appoint a jury of viewers, consisting of three discreet and disinterested citizens of said county, who shall view the owners of property or residents in the school district in which such land is taken as aforesaid, and appoint a time not less than twenty nor more than thirty days thereafter for said viewers to meet upon said land, of which time and place ten days' notice shall be given by the petitioners to the said viewers, and the other party and the said viewers, or any of them, having been first duly sworn or affirmed, faithfully, justly and impartially to decide, and a true report to make concerning all matters and things to be submitted to them; and having viewed the premises, they shall establish and determine the quantity and value of said land so taken to be used for the purposes aforesaid, and after having made a fair and just computation of the advantages and disadvantages, they shall estimate and determine whether any, and if any, what amount of damages has been, or may be sustained, and to whom payable, and make report thereof to said court; and if damages be awarded, and the report be confirmed by the said court, which shall be final, judgment shall be entered thereon, and if the amount thereof be not paid within the premises, after the entry of said judgment, execution in and for the collection thereof may be issued, as in other cases of judgment against school districts; and each viewer shall be entitled to one dollar and fifty cents per day, for every day necessarily employed in the performance of the duties herein prescribed, to be paid by such district.

II.—THE ESTABLISHMENT OF TEACHERS' INSTITUTES.

SEC. 2. That the county superintendent of each county in this Commonwealth is hereby authorized and required, once in each year, at such time and place as he or a properly authorized committee of teachers, acting with him, may deem most convenient, to call upon and invite the teachers of the common schools and other institutions of learning in his county to assemble together, and organize themselves into a teachers' institute, to be devoted to the improvement of teachers in the science and art of education, and to continue in session at least five days, including half a day for going to and half a day for returning from the place of meeting, said institute to be presided over by the county superintendent or by some one designated by him, and subject, in its general management, to his control.

SEC. 3. That each county superintendent, upon the assembling of the teachers' institute of his county, shall cause a roll of members to be prepared, which roll shall be called at least twice every day during the session of the institute, and all absences carefully marked, and from which, upon the adjournment of the institute, he shall ascertain the exact number of teachers who were in attendance, and the length of time each attended, and upon the presentation of a certificate, at the close of the session of each annual institute, setting forth these facts, and signed by the county superintendent, to the treasurer of the proper county, he is hereby authorized and required to pay immediately, out of any money in the county treasury not otherwise appropriated, to the county superintendent, one dollar for every three days spent by teachers of the county in attendance at the institute for that year, or as much of it as may be needed; such money to be expended by the county superintendent in procuring the services of lecturers and instructors for the institute, and in providing the necessary apparatus, books and stationery for carrying on its work: Provided, That the amount which may be drawn from the county treasury shall in no case be less than one hundred nor more than two hundred dollars: Provided further, That all boards of directors may allow the teachers in their employ the privilege of attending such institutes, without making any deduction from their salaries, and that any teacher who absents himself from the institute of his county without a good reason, may have his want of professional spirit and zeal indicated by a lower mark on his certificate in the practice of teaching than he would otherwise have received.

SEC. 4. That each county superintendent who may draw money from the county treasury for the purposes named in this act, shall file his account of all expenditures under the act, in the office of the county treasurer, with vouchers for the same, which shall be examined by the auditors of the county, in like manner as other county expenditures, and any misapplication of funds shall be punished in the same manner as collectors of State and county taxes for like offenses are now punished.

SEC. 5. That all county superintendents, upon the adjournment of the teachers' institutes held in their respective counties, are hereby required to report to the Superintendent of Common Schools the number of teachers in attendance, the names of the lecturers or instructors who officiated, the subjects upon which instruction was given, and the degree of popular interest awakened by the proceedings.

III.—TEXT BOOKS IN COUNTIES.

SEC. 6. That it shall be lawful for the school directors of any county in this Commonwealth, at any triennial convention held for the purpose of electing a county superintendent, to appoint several of their number, possessing the necessary qualifications, whose duty it shall be to agree upon and select a series of text-books adapted to the wants of the common schools of the county, and present them for adoption to the several boards of directors; this action, however, to be of no binding force unless confirmed at the annual meeting of directors and teachers held, as now provided by the twenty-third section of the act of May eighth, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four; but when so confirmed the books shall not be changed until after the action of the next tri-ennial convention as aforesaid: Provided, That a majority of the boards of directors of any county may at any time call a special meeting of the directors of the county for the purpose of appointing a county committee on text-books as above indicated, whose action shall be valid until the meeting of the tri-ennial convention in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine.

IV.—CITY AND BOROUGH SUPERINTENDENTS.

SEC. 7. The school directors of any city or borough in this Commonwealth, having a population of over ten thousand inhabitants, may on the first Tuesday of May, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, and every third year thereafter, elect vis voce, by a majority of the whole number of directors present, one person of literary and scientific acquirements, and skill and experience in the art of teaching, as city or borough superintendent, for the three succeeding school years, and the said school directors shall determine the amount of compensation for said city or borough superintendent, and shall pay the same by drafts on the treasurers of their respective school districts: Provided, That nothing in this act shall prevent the directors of any city or borough from electing a superintendent, to serve from the time of election, until the commencement of the school year, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, from filling a vacancy, should any occur, for the unexpired term of said office, nor from increasing the salary of a superintendent at any time.

SEC. 8. That it shall be the duty of the president and secretary of the meeting of the directors of any city or borough, at which a city or borough superintendent has been elected, to certify to the Superintendent of Common Schools the name and address of the person elected city or borough superintendent, in pursuance of the provisions of this act, and those of all other candidates, who received votes, together with the amount of compensation fixed upon by said directors, upon the receipt of such certificate; if no valid objection be received within thirty days after the day of election, the Superintendent of Common Schools shall commission the person so elected, for the term for which he was elected, but if objection to issuing such commission be made within thirty days, the Superintendent of Common Schools shall proceed with like power, and in like manner, as he is now required to do where objections are made against issuing commissions to persons claiming to be elected county superintendent.

SEC. 9. That from and after the appointment of a city or borough superintendent, in any city or borough in this Commonwealth, and the proper notification of the Superintendent of Common Schools of the fact, such city or borough shall not be subject to the authority and jurisdiction of the county superintendent of the county in which such city or borough is located, except that in the matter of holding the annual teachers' institute, as provided by sections second, third, fourth and fifth of this act, in which the city or borough superintendent shall co-operate; and the quota of the annual State appropriation to said city or borough shall not be diminished by reason of any contribution to the salaries of county superintendents, nor shall the directors of such city or borough vote at any election for county superintendents.

SEC. 10. It shall be the duty of all city or borough superintendents to take a similar oath or affirmation to that now required of county superintendents, to perform, within the limits of their several jurisdictions, all the duties now by law enjoined upon county superintendents, and to discharge such other duties as the by-laws, rules and regulations of the respective boards of directors may require; and it shall be their further duty, in addition to an annual report, to report monthly, to the Department of Common Schools, such facts relating to their work, and the condition of the schools under their charge, as may be required by the Superintendent of Common Schools, and to attend meetings of superintendents called by said Superintendent of Common Schools.

V.—TEACHERS' CERTIFICATES.

SEC. 11. That after the passage of this act, no teacher in this Commonwealth shall receive from a county, city or borough superintendent, a certificate as a teacher, who has not a fair knowledge of orthography, reading, writing, geography, grammar, mental and written arithmetic, history of the United States, and the theory of teaching; and all certificates given to teachers shall set forth the branches in which those holding them have been found proficient, and indicate by suitable remarks the degree of that proficiency.

SEC. 12. County, city or borough superintendents shall issue two grades of teachers' certificates, one of which shall be called a provisional certificate, and shall be given to applicants possessing a fair knowledge of the branches named in section ten, or to those who, possessing a thorough knowledge of the branches, have little or no experience in teaching, and shall license the holder to teach in the county where issued for one year, and which shall not be renewed without a re-examination; and the other shall be called a professional certificate, and shall be given only to those who possess a thorough knowledge of the branches above named, and who have had successful experience in teaching, and shall license the holder to teach in the county, where issued, during the official term of the county, city or borough superintendent issuing it, and for one year thereafter: Provided, That all so-called professional certificates, heretofore issued by any county, city or borough superintendent, shall cease to be valid on the first Monday of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, except those issued since the first Monday of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, which certificate shall be valid as long as others issued during the present term of the superintendency: Provided, That any professional certificate may be renewed by a county, city or borough superintendent without re-examination, after having fully satisfied himself, by personal observation in his or her school, of the competency and skill, as a teacher, of the person holding it.

Agreed to.

Mr. GLASS, Mr. Chairman, I move to amend the twelfth section by striking out the proviso.

Mr. SHARPLES, Mr. Chairman, I certainly do not desire to impose any legislation on any particular district, but I think, if the gentleman from Allegheny [Mr. GLASS] would take into consideration the fact that it is so notorious in many parts of the State, he would be willing to allow this provision to remain. The fact is that this provision was inserted for the purpose of elevating and advancing teachers. I know it is a source of complaint in many portions of this State that parties holding these professional certificates, granted several years ago, when there was not so much required of teachers as there is now—parties holding these certificates, in many instances, are not as well qualified to teach school as those who are examined every year. It is certainly desirable that teachers should advance, that they should be going on, upward, and this class of teachers holding these certificates cannot be reached in any other way than by some provision of this kind. You will find that it is provided after each examination and a personal observation of the skill and competency of the teacher the certificate may be granted without examination. The design of this provision was simply that these teachers might be reached and held liable in some degree in the same manner as those holding the other kind of certificates. I know that in many instances the county superintendent has no jurisdiction over these teachers because they have a certificate that is perpetual. This provision was introduced for the purpose of advancing the system, and I hope it will be retained.

Mr. GLASS, Mr. Chairman, I trust that this proviso will be stricken out. Whilst at home, last week, there were three different committees of teachers who called upon me for the purpose of protesting against the passage of this proviso. If gentlemen will read it they will observe that every veteran teacher in the State—those who have devoted their five, ten, fifteen or twenty years to teaching, under this proviso will be obliged to subject themselves to another examination before a county superintendent who is not, perhaps, as competent as the teacher himself. It might, just as well, be asked of any professional gentleman—any lawyer, doctor or preacher who may have a diploma that was granted to him when he graduated from college, that he should have his diploma taken from him and be obliged to go back to that college for a re-examination. Yet you require these veteran teachers to go before a county superintendent again for a re-examination. I think it is absurd. If gentlemen will look at it I think they will see that it is a regulation subjecting teachers to a re-examination where it is not needed.

Mr. WILSON, Mr. Chairman, I hope the amendment of the gentleman from Allegheny who has just sat down will prevail. Now, this section seems to me an absurdity. To require a teacher to come up to a certain standard, and when he comes up to that standard you ask him to surrender this certificate of the election of every county superintendent. You do not require this of any other professional man. If a gentleman studies law and he passes, he is never subjected to a second examination; if he studies medicine and gets a diploma, he is never asked to go through the same process again, and yet you require teachers to do this very thing. Every third year, on the election of a superintendent, you require teachers to pass an examination similar to examinations they have gone through before. I agree with the gentleman who has just said down that this is a gross outrage; it is an outrage on a portion of the community who have no voice in the legislation—the lady teachers of our common schools, who have no voice here. I think this fact should be considered.

I hope the amendment of the gentleman from Allegheny will prevail.

Another thing. There are no two of these superintendents who have the same standard. One may ask one series of questions, another may ask another series of questions. If the gentlemen were to know and see what I have seen in relation to this matter, they would agree with me that this section should not be passed. I have seen men and women study and toil day and night for years in order that they might secure one of those professional certificates.

Now, we are about to ask them to surrender those certificates to every superintendent who may be elected. I hope the amendment of the gentleman from Allegheny will prevail. I think it is so necessary, and fair and right that it should commend itself to the good judgment of every gentleman in this House.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Allegheny says we do not ask doctors and lawyers to be re-examined. We ask them to advance; if they do not advance they get behind the age and find that they are under a disadvantage. In relation to these teachers that he speaks so much about—these teachers that are so anxious to qualify themselves for teaching school—there will be no difficulty with them. All that is asked of them is that they should themselves be qualified. There is no attempt to injure a class of teachers. The question is, whether this provision in the law will advance the system of education?

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Chairman, the superintendent of Allegheny county is decidedly opposed to this measure. I had a conversation with him last month, and he is decidedly opposed to it; so are the teachers. I ask this House if it is right, after a party has qualified himself for the profession, that every two or three years he should be obliged to submit to a re-examination? The number of incompetent teachers will cure itself. I know, from actual experience, being a member of a school board for years, that we will very soon find out who is qualified or who is not. If a teacher is not qualified he is permitted to carry his certificate in his pocket, but he is not employed. And so it will go on; the evil will cure itself.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Chairman, we live in a progressive age. I think this provision is in accordance with the age in which we live. It is of a progressive character. The object of this bill and of this amendment is to advance the educational interests of our State. We can only do that effectually by advancing the qualifications of our teachers; and, so far as my experience goes in this matter—and I have been connected with school boards of the State for the last ten or fifteen years—I know that our good, efficient and well qualified teachers are willing at any and all times to meet the county superintendents, who they feel to teach, and submit to an examination. They are improving themselves while so doing. On the contrary, I know that teachers who have been in the harness for years past and who have in former times obtained professional certificates, now rely upon those certificates and have ceased to prosecute the studies they should pursue to qualify themselves for the proper discharge of their duties. I can see no good that can possibly result from the adoption of the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Allegheny [Mr. WILSON]. On the contrary, I can see that it will defeat, to a very great extent, the object of this bill. As I have already said, the object of the bill is to advance our teachers, to advance their qualifications, and thus advance the educational interests of the State. With this view of the question, I hope the House will see the impropriety of striking out this proviso and adopting the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Allegheny.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Chairman, I hope that the amendment of the gentleman from Allegheny will not prevail. For the sake of the profession, for the sake of the teachers themselves, I trust that the bill will be adopted as it stands. It is a notorious fact, that quite a large proportion of those holding certificates are not what they purport to be; that is, they are not held by those who have anything like the knowledge of the branches required to be taught in the public schools. I think it is the testimony of nine-tenths that there are many in possession of certificates who should not hold them. It is a very difficult matter to reach this class of individuals.

Now, as the proviso reads, we find that the holders of these certificates are permitted to hold them only one year after the time when the new superintendent assumes his office. So the superintendent will have one year in which to determine the capacity and qualification of the holders of these certificates. More than that, if the gentleman will read a little further in the second proviso he will find that the bill does not necessarily subject those holding certificates to a re-examination. The second proviso reads:

“Every person Provided, that all so-called professional certificates heretofore issued by any county, city or borough superintendent, shall cease to be valid on the first Monday of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, except those issued since the first Monday of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, which certificate shall be valid so long as others issued during the present term of the superintendent: Provided, That any professional certificate may be renewed by a county, city or borough superintendent without re-examination, after having fully satisfied himself by personal observation in his or her school, of the competency and skill, as a teacher, of the person holding it.”

Now, the superintendent has one year in which to do this, since the certificate will not terminate until one year after the commencement of the term of the new superintendent. I hope the bill will stand as it is. Another point: Our normal schools, only, have the right to grant professional certificates that are good all through the State and that entitle the holder to claim being a member of the profession—those certificates are free passes. Then he is relieved from further examination by county superintendents. He can go where he pleases, over any part of the State without being compelled to submit to a re-examination.

As I said before, many of those holding permanent certificates are not entitled to them, and who are not as far advanced in the branches requisite to be taught in these days as those teachers who now rank a number two. At our county convention a resolution was passed that all the certificates granted prior to 1864, should be annulled; for they stood in the way of progress. This bill, if adopted, does not subject the teachers necessarily to a re-examination. They have only to show that they are competent, and upon this the superintendent will have one year to determine. He may renew the certificate and not examine the holder at all.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman a question: whether those teachers are not compelled to surrender their certificates to every new superintendent? Mr. BOYD. They will not necessarily be examined again. Their old certificates, I admit, are of no effect whatever, but the teachers have one year in which to show the superintendent that they hold that certificate justly.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman has repeated several times that the teachers have one year. I would like to know what his authority is for saying that? My reading of the act is to the effect that their certificates are taken from them on the first of June next.

Mr. BOYD. Although the old certificates are dead, yet, according to the second proviso, those certificates may be renewed. The old certificates expire on the first day of June, I believe, but the new certificates that may be granted hereafter, will expire one year after the new superintendent comes in, so that the incoming superintendent will have one year in which to determine whether the holders of the certificates require a re-examination, or merely a renewal of their certificates.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, I would ask the gentleman again whether that does not apply exclusively to those issued previous to the first of June last?

Mr. BOYD. Not necessarily.

Mr. BOYLE. I think it does necessarily, because the act says so.

Mr. BOYD. I think not. The act says that the certificates may be renewed. Although the certificates in existence expire at the time specified, yet the county superintendent may renew them.

Mr. BOYLE. Suppose he does not renew them?

Mr. BOYD. If they are not renewed, it subjects the persons who hold them to an examination.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Chairman, I would like to know whether a school board in any district is bound to give a school to a gentleman holding a professional certificate? Mr. BOYD. No, sir.

As a teacher I have given this matter a good deal of thought. I think we should protect the profession and protect the children. Those who are worthy will, without doubt, have their certificates renewed, and of those who are incompetent, the sooner they are subjected to a re-examination the better.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Chairman, the whole tenor of the gentleman's argument is simply this: Because there are a few parties who are not worthy of those certificates all the rest, no matter how competent they may be, must be subjected to a second examination. I submit to the House whether this is a fair way of dealing. I take it, it is not right. The gentleman says they are not compelled to be re-examined, but we find that they are placed in the hands of the superintendent. No matter what his feelings towards them, they are compelled to surrender their certificates. They are clearly in his power, bound hand and foot; they have no other alternative; they must submit. Of course, if he is magnanimous and lets them pass, all right. If gentlemen seem to take a view of the case different from what they do of other cases. They seem to think teachers may not be progressive. I believe it is impossible for a man to follow the profession of teaching without progressing in knowledge. And men progress in that as well as anything else. If a teacher was competent a year ago, he will be much more competent a year hence; consequently, he should keep the certificate acquired by hard and patient study. He has toiled day and night to obtain it. You take away that certificate and he has nothing to encourage him, for he knows that every third year he will be put back where he commenced. I do hope this will be stricken out and the amendment of the gentleman from Allegheny prevail.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Chairman, I hope this amendment will not prevail. If these persons who hold professional certificates are entitled to them, they should not fear to undergo a re-examination. The point is this: These professional certificates have been granted to many who are not entitled to them, and it may be that many who have them, and were entitled to them at the time they were given, will not get them under this provision. The idea is to raise the standard of these professional certificates. If we make any progress we cannot go on under the standard as it was heretofore. Let us raise the standard of the certificates. Let the teachers be re-examined. I must say it comes with a bad grace from those who hold these certificates not to submit themselves to a re-examination. If they were entitled to them at first and have been engaged in teaching ever since, they ought to be prepared to undergo a re-examination. I regard this as one of the best features of the bill. If we do not intend to make any progress in this matter, we may as well vote down the whole bill. It used to be said, that if a man is fit for nothing else, put him to school teaching. Now we wish to do away with this practice.— We wish these professional certificates to have some character. There will be no harm done to those teachers if they submit to re-examination. Those who fail to receive professional certificates will receive such certificates as they are entitled to.

I hope this provision of the bill will not be stricken out.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. Chairman, a single idea suggests itself after listening to the remarks of the gentleman from Chester [Mr. SHARPLES], the gentleman from Lancaster [Mr. ARMSTRONG], the gentleman from York [Mr. BOYD], and the gentleman from Washington [Mr. EWING]. The idea is this: That it is necessary to retain this provision in order that the qualification of the teachers may be advanced.

Now, I ask the question of those gentlemen if it would be right and proper to require all lawyers to be subjected to a re-examination before they could be permitted to practice at the bar? The case is precisely parallel. Here are teachers who have been teaching fifteen or twenty years, who are asked to subject themselves to the humiliation of going before a county superintendent, who is not, perhaps, as competent as the teacher himself. I know, as the gentleman from Chester has said, that the county superintendents throughout the Commonwealth have generally recommended this thing. I know, too, how anxious many of the county superintendents throughout the Commonwealth are to get power in their hands; and I know, if they get that power to what use some of them would put it. I say to the House again, and I do not weaken the force of my argument at all, that it is subjecting veteran teachers to a humiliation to which they should not be, in order that they may be permitted to continue their teaching.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Chairman, I desire to say one word in reply to our Speaker. The argument he uses will be an argument against the whole system. What we desire is, that there shall not be a privileged class of teachers standing in the way of the advancement of the system; that is all. We do not require lawyers and doctors to be re-examined, but we do teachers that we may have good and finished instructors for our schools.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I have only one word.

I do not feel any particular interest in this bill, but it is very apparent that the second section, if not the whole bill, was drawn by some county superintendent, with the idea and object of creating himself a petty despot. It is to have every teacher within the district of the superintendent under his control, that he may put an end to their commissions whenever he may please. If the object is progress, if the object of the examination of these teachers is to qualify them the better for the position which they hold, the same argument will apply to all the superintendents.

If the amendment of the gentleman from Allegheny [Mr. GLASS] should not prevail, I wish to offer the following, which I will read now, as it is very brief, in order to convey the idea I have of making this bill equal in its provisions:

Provided, That the first business of the said teachers' institute shall be the examination, by the teachers assembled, of the county superintendent; and if, in the judgment of said teachers, members of the teachers' institute, he shall not be qualified to hold his office, the office of the county superintendent shall be thereby vacated.

I think it should apply to the superintendent as well as the teachers.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Chairman, I must confess I am somewhat astonished at the remarks that have just fallen from the gentleman from Berks [Mr. JONES]. I would be more so, however, if it came from any other locality in the State.

There appears to be, with certain parties, a detestation of all the county superintendents. They are looked upon as a set of tyrants by certain parties upon this floor, denounced as such, for what cause I do not know. The arguments that have been adduced, in my estimation, are lame. There is no man who has had any experience among teachers, who does not know that all good teachers are at any time willing to be examined.

My own experience, and I believe that of every man who has given attention to the subject, is that all good teachers unite in objecting to this very provision of this act should stand as it now does. There is no good teacher in the Commonwealth who does not know that the profession is lowered by the class of teachers who now are permitted to thrust themselves forward with their professional certificates, obtained many years back, when the standard of education was not as high as it is at the present day; and it is to screen themselves from this very class that all good teachers now unite in asking this body to pass the law as it is now framed.

The gentleman who framed this bill is one of the greatest educators we ever had in Pennsylvania. No man in the State has done more for education than the man who framed this bill and put this clause in that proviso. He is a gentleman who stands prominent and pre-eminent as an educator in Pennsylvania, having done as much or more for education than any other man. The very idea of submitting the county superintendents to an examination by the teachers in their institute! If I was opposed to education, I would have used the same argument as the gentleman from Berks; if I was opposed to the enlightenment of the community, I would use the argument he did; if I was in favor of keeping my constituency in darkness, I would use the argument he did; I would bring ruin in that way, if I possibly could, upon the public school system. But, in favor, as I am, of education, and in favor, as I am, of advancing the interests of education in the State of Pennsylvania, I hope this proviso will stand as it is, without the crossing of a "t" or the dotting of an "i." I hope, for the honor of this House, that they will see this matter in its proper light, and give to the people what they really desire, and what they should have, the best teachers that can be obtained.

As I have already said, there is no good teacher who will shrink from an examination. It has been said that our veteran teachers may be subjected to a re-examination by county superintendents who may not know as much as they themselves. So much the better for them. Where is the good teacher, where is the pre-eminently good teacher, who has held a certificate for years, who fears to come before a superintendent who does not know as much as himself? I believe that is all used for effect. If there is a difference of opinion between certain parties in the city of Pittsburg, or Allegheny county, let them settle it, but do not bring it in here and cripple this bill and destroy its influence.

I hope the amendment of the gentleman from Allegheny [Mr. GLASS] will be voted down, and that the bill as it is now before the House will pass.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Chairman, in the early part of my life, I had some little experience in teaching. I believe I know something about the ambition that generally characterizes teachers. I am satisfied that if a stand point can be taken at which a teacher shall aim, that it becomes a sort of stimulant, and when he has exerted himself reached that point, I do not know why he is not as much entitled to the honors growing out of that result as any man in a professional department of life. Now, it has been said here by the gentleman who has just taken his seat, that no good teacher is afraid to go before a superintendent and be examined at any time. That may be true; but that is not the point of the difficulty. The idea that he has reached a certain point and has a paper declaring what his attainments are, and which have heretofore been considered a permanent matter—the idea of having that taken away from him and be placed back indiscriminately among others who have not spent the time that he has, nor exerted the energy that he has, he has exerted himself to reach that point, is discouraging. I know of teachers having first class certificates who have sometimes gone voluntarily with classes before the superintendent and answered questions in common with others. At the same time they prize certificates of the first class which they have already obtained. It is not that they are unwilling to be examined, but they do not wish to be placed back among teachers who have not reached the point that they have, and I submit to be considered upon a par with them. I submit to this House that no professional man would be willing to be placed back in the class of students in law or any other profession after he has pursued his studies and received his diploma. It has been remarked here that there is no danger in coming before different superintendents. I know that superintendents are governed by the feelings of human nature, just as much as any other class of men, and if they prefer one teacher to another—it may not be because that one teacher is better qualified—he will get a better certificate, and that certificate will come from a feeling that is cherished on the part of the superintendent towards the teacher. I have seen this matter operate to quite an extent; I know teachers in my own district, in the second or third class, who are better qualified than some who hold first class certificates. Those changes, of course, are common with superintendents. The issue at one time may be one thing, and at another time something else. I submit to this body that teachers who have no reason points to qualify themselves are not willing to be subjected to a course of this description. If a teacher has reached a certain point where he is qualified to have a certificate of the first class, and has been engaged for some time in the business of instructing, the probability is that he will not go back, as has been remarked. I do not know why superintendents should not be subjected to an examination. Superintendents may deteriorate and go back as well as teachers. Indeed, they are more apt to do so, because they are not engaged as constantly in the business of education. I am in favor of the amendment of the gentleman from Allegheny.

It was remarked by one gentleman here that the right to give permanent certificates existed nowhere but with the normal schools. Then we may have teachers as competent as any in the land, who, because they have not attended the normal school, cannot have a certificate. I am opposed to anything of this character. Let teachers be put upon their merits and let the decision, with reference to them, be based upon their merits.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Chairman, one word more with regard to these certificates. Any teacher who has a knowledge of the branches required to be taught in the public schools can get a certificate by going to the normal school, without remaining there one day. The normal school is compelled to give him a certificate that will last through his lifetime and relieve him from examination in any county in the State. These county certificates are nothing more than permits for the time being. A large portion of the teachers who are bringing this pressure to bear upon the members for the purpose of defeating this bill are the least qualified to pass through an examination at the normal schools, or anywhere else. Show me a competent teacher who is thorough in the branches required to be taught, and I will show you one who is not afraid of an examination by a county superintendent.

I must reiterate that this bill does not necessarily subject any teacher who holds a certificate to a re-examination. It does not necessarily subject him to a re-examination by the county superintendent, who would much rather renew the certificate than refer to the trouble of re-examination. The county superintendent would have a year in which to determine, by visiting the schools, whether it was best to renew the certificate or subject the teacher to a re-examination.

Mr. BOYLE. I wish the gentleman from York [Mr. BOYD] would read that. I cannot find it and I would like to know where it is.

Mr. BOYD. It is contained in the proviso.

Mr. BOYLE. Well, then, I want to find it. Mr. BOYD. I say these teachers who hold certificates may have them renewed, that any certificate may be renewed.

Mr. BOYLE. But suppose they come to an end at some time?

Mr. BOYD. Of course they do come to an end.

Mr. BOYLE. I see they come to an end on the first of June.

Mr. BOYD. They do cease on the first of June, but they may be renewed, and a re-examination is not necessary.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman allow me to ask him a question?

It depends, therefore, altogether upon the caprice of the county superintendent; in other words, when the first of June arrives, the county superintendent may exempt his friends from this examination, but compel the attendance of those with whom he is displeased.

Mr. BOYD. Then I understand the gentleman to strike at the whole system of county superintendents. The teachers have it in their power to protect themselves. They have one year in which to show their qualifications. The superintendents have one year in which to visit the scholars and ascertain the capabilities of the teachers. There can be no advantage taken, and I hope the amendment will not be adopted.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the amendment of the gentleman from Allegheny?

A division of the House was called for, when the yeas were 44, and the yeas 20.

So it was.

Agreed to.

The question recurring on the section as amended, it was

Agreed to.

Mr. WEBB. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment as additional section:

SEC. 13. That the number of directors and controllers, mentioned in the first section of this act, be reduced to the number of three; and that they each be allowed the sum of one dollar for every day necessarily spent in the transaction of business, to be paid out of the funds of said school district.

The amendment was

Not agreed to.

The bill as amended was

Agreed to.

In the House,

The Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. CHADWICK, chairman of the committee of the whole, reported the bill with amendments.

The first section was read.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment, to come in at the end of the section:

Provided, That either party shall have the right to have reviewers appointed by said court.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The second section was read.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment, to be put at the end of the section.

The amendment was read as follows:

Provided, That the first business of the said teachers' institute shall be the examination by the teachers assembled of the county superintendent; and if, in the judgment of said teachers, members of the teachers' institute, he shall not be qualified to hold office, the office of the county superintendent shall be thereby vacated.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, I consider an amendment of that kind an insult to the directors who have elected the county superintendent. It is certainly a reflection upon the directors of the State.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, I doubt very much whether the amendment is in order; but granting that, if the gentleman really wishes the county superintendent to be examined, let him go before those who are qualified to examine him and I have no objection. The idea of requiring the superintendent to be examined by the teachers whom he himself is required to examine, I think is absurd, to say the least. I do not think those of the teachers who are laboring for the good of the profession will thank the gentleman for his amendment. I trust it will not be adopted. I am perfectly willing that every man who presumes to hold the position of county superintendent shall be subjected to a rigid examination by the proper authority, but where is the justice of having that examination by those who may not hold permanent certificates? I think the teachers of the State will not thank the gentleman for introducing this amendment.

Mr. GREGORY. As some of the gentlemen have spoken four or five times on this subject, and as it seems to have become a question of the qualifications and disqualifications of county superintendents, and there seems to be no probability of agreeing, I move that the further consideration of the bill be postponed.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was

Not agreed to.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, may I ask what is now the question?

The SPEAKER. The question is on the amendment of the gentleman from Berks.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, as there seems to be some disposition to think I was not in earnest when I offered that resolution, I will state that I was in earnest, and I hope it will be adopted. I have a very proper respect for county superintendents throughout this Commonwealth, but I have at the same time a very high respect for the teachers of our public schools. The fact of a man being chosen by the school directors of a district to be county superintendent is no evidence of his superior qualifications over the teachers.

They are just as fit to examine him as he is to examine them.

This section puts altogether too much power in his hands; it gives him the privilege of naming teachers of whom he pleases in his district. I think it unfair, and ought not to be adopted. But if it is adopted, its provisions should apply to county superintendents as well as teachers. The gentleman from Lancaster (Mr. ARMSTRONG), who took occasion a while ago to answer me (I suppose he answered, he spoke by innuendo, therefore I am not sure), alluded very forcibly to the darkness of his own district. As I live in a neighboring county, I can, to some extent, concur with him. I do not think his remarks were in order; therefore I will only reply to him so far as he alluded to me. Now, if the amendment—

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will allow me, I would like to inquire of him if the people of Berks county generally have adopted the free school system?

Mr. JONES. They have.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. How long since?

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, it is beyond my recollection. But in my opinion the number of teachers, the number of school houses and the number of pupils in Berks county exceeds those of the county of Lancaster.

There is one other point to which I wish to refer. I said this bill was probably drawn up by some county superintendent, who proposed to create himself a petty despot. At that time I did not know who drew the bill; I am glad I did not, because I meant no reflections upon any one personally. Since then I have learned who drew this bill. The gentleman was formerly a superintendent of common schools in Lancaster county. Therefore the eloquence of the gentleman representing that county upon this floor is easily accounted for. I have great respect for the gentleman who drew this bill. I believe he has the best interests of the community at heart; and what I have said of it, does not apply to him, because if he will not have it in his power to examine the teachers. But I do not think that the office of county superintendent is such an exalted one that it cannot be criticized in the House of Representatives. I take the liberty of saying what I please about county superintendents, and I do not recognize the right of any gentleman to question my earnestness or my credit with my constituents, or with the constituents of other people, in this regard. I have as much respect for the teachers of this Commonwealth, generally, as I have for the county superintendents. I think they are all entitled to the same consideration here. I think they should be put upon an equality, but the provision does not put them upon an equality. I hope, therefore, the amendment will be adopted.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, I really hope, for the credit of the House as well as that of the author of the amendment, that it will not be adopted.

Adopt this amendment, and I have no doubt that the learned gentleman from Berks (Mr. Jones) will next offer an amendment requiring the scholars of the school to examine the teacher before he commences to teach school in order that they may determine whether he is competent for the work before him.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman allow me to interrupt him? The gentleman is anticipating my course. He is not arguing the amendment before the House. He is arguing an amendment which he says may be offered. I promise not to offer such an amendment.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. I say with the same propriety, without anticipating anything about it—I say with the same propriety that attends the present amendment, he might offer the one I have mentioned. As well might he, but subject the judges of the court to an examination before they commence the duties of the week—examine the court to know whether it is competent for the position it occupies before they go into the trial of a cause. There is an absurdity in it that must strike any reasonable man at first sight. I say that any intelligent community that will look for one moment at the amendment offered by the gentleman from Berks, must feel astonished, perfectly astonished, that such an amendment can be entertained for a single instant, in any place outside of Berks county. I hope that the good sense of this House will vote down all such amendments, such quibbles and such stunts at the educational interests of our State.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I have taken no part in the discussion this afternoon; but, really I cannot see anything so absurd as the idea of requiring county superintendents to be examined. A county superintendent has it in his power to examine all applicants for schools; all persons who desire to act in the capacity of teachers must submit to an examination by a county superintendent.

Now, I say it is due to the public that a county superintendent should respond by an examination to some tribunal. I am not prepared to say that the one embraced by the amendment of the gentleman from Berks—

Mr. ARMSTRONG. I would merely ask whether it is not now the rule that county superintendents shall, or may be, examined before entering upon the duties of their office?

Mr. WINGARD. I have never heard of one being examined.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. The State Superintendent has a right to examine and does examine all county superintendents, before they enter on their duties.

Mr. WINGARD. I will ask the gentleman from Lancaster whether this bill does not provide some manner in which a county superintendent may be examined?

Mr. ARMSTRONG. It is already provided for by law.

Mr. WINGARD. I would refer me to it, for I am not cognizant of the fact.

But to return to the line of my remarks. I am not prepared to say that the tribunal embraced in the amendment of the gentleman from Berks would be the best one which could be selected for an examination of a county superintendent. But I do say it is the best that has been suggested. If any gentleman can suggest a better tribunal I will vote for that. I am not in favor of foisting upon the public a county superintendent who, by means of electioneering or otherwise, may succeed in obtaining that position. I am not in favor of allowing the public to be imposed upon when there is the means by which we can arrive at the qualifications of those who aspire to that position.

There is no analogy between the cases cited by the gentleman from Lancaster, in that of attorney and county superintendent. The office of a county superintendent is a salaried position—the office of an attorney is one which depends upon public patronage. An attorney responds to every man who employs him; a county superintendent is employed and paid a salary. If the Legislature of Pennsylvania will establish a salary for lawyers and make it large enough I will submit to an examination once a month.

I do not intend to consume the time of the House, but I cannot see anything so absurd in this amendment. Why should we place a county superintendent above all touch-stones and tests that apply to other persons who may be seeking a position in a salaried office?

I shall go for the amendment of the gentleman from Berks, unless something better is offered.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the amendment by striking out the words "shall be thereby vacated," and inserting the words "he shall report to the State Superintendent for examination."

Mr. JONES. I accept the amendment.

The question was on the amendment as amended.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, this amendment embraces about the same provision in substance. Now, I am afraid we have undertaken the same system of tinkering this bill as that by which I have tinkered to death two or three bills heretofore. It occurs to me that there is a disposition to kill this bill by amendment. I would much rather vote for or against the bill, than upon absurd amendments. By the time we get through there will be no one willing to own the bill.

Mr. JONES. Will the gentleman allow me to interrupt him?

The gentleman proposes to vote upon the merits of this bill. Now, it is a well known maxim that when argument ceases ridicule begins.

The gentleman wants to vote upon the merits of the bill. Now, I insist that not only the gentleman from Erie, but other gentleman who have entered into the discussion of this question, admit the weakness of their arguments by proclaiming the absurdity of these amendments. Why do not they discuss their merits? I protest against their characterizing these amendments as absurd.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I have not said the amendment of the gentleman is absurd. I will say, however, that his amendment, if not absurd, is a very impracticable one to say the least.

Now, I scarcely thought that the gentleman from Berks, when he offered this amendment, was in earnest. I rather thought it was by way of pleasantry, but he has been called in question so much for it that he is bound to put on a bold front and assume that he did intend it in earnest. Now, there is etiquette in school matters, as well as in other matters. You go into military life and rank is everything? What would be thought were the officers of a brigade to assemble together and examine their commander sent to them by the President of the United States? Such a thing would be no more absurd than that which is proposed in the gentleman's amendment. It is presumed that the directors who have charge of selecting the teachers are just as competent to select the superintendent. It ought to be presumed that the directors in selecting a superintendent, have selected a person fitted for the position. But this amendment contemplates that a superintendent so elected must come before the very persons that have come under his supervision. Is this not absurd? It would be no more extraordinary were a teacher to be examined by his pupils with regard to his fitness for their instruction.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment of the gentleman from Berks (Mr. Jones)?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. KIMMEL and Mr. GORDON, and were as follow, viz:

Senate bill No. 117, an act relative to the appointment of the collectors of taxes in Montgomery county.

Mr. MAKKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the first section by adding in the fifth line, after the word "Montgomery," the words "and Chester."

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, I do not know why the gentleman should make that amendment. I do not know why the county of Chester should be attached to that bill any more than any other county.

Mr. MARKLEY. That is the fix Montgomery county is in. We have not asked for this change, and I don't know as anybody ever has.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, the people of the county of Montgomery, or at least a portion of them, are asking for this change. I desire to say that the people of Chester county, of either political party, are not asking for this change. The question is not raised there. In the county of Montgomery there is some reason for the change, and, in fact, a large portion of the people of that county are now asking for it. I did not intend to make any remarks on the bill, but as it has been moved to attach Chester county to the provisions, I desire to say that I cannot see any more necessity for attaching Chester county than any other county now asking for it. I hope the amendment will not pass.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I move to indefinitely postpone the bill. Neither parties seem to want the passage of it.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I just wish to say a few words in reply to the gentleman from Chester [Mr. SHARPLES]. He asks why we have made this motion to amend and attach the county of Chester to the provisions of this bill. The gentleman certainly knows that this bill has been pressed upon the attention of this House entirely by the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL], who, I am sorry, is not in his seat at this time. The gentleman from Chester certainly knows that there is no reason why, if this experiment is to be tried, it should not be tried in the county of Chester as well as in the county of Montgomery.

The gentleman says that nobody in Chester county has asked for it. I say, from all that appears here, nobody in Montgomery county asks for it. There has not been a single petition sent here asking for it. Our constituents have not said anything to us about it. We have not asked for it. I will undertake to say, and the gentleman from Chester cannot deny it, that if there was a possibility of such a thing being done here as to make this change in Chester county, as many signers could be procured to a petition in favor of it as in Montgomery county. There is no reason why, if this experiment is to be tried, it should not be tried in Chester county as well as in Montgomery county. We would not have asked for this amendment had not the bill been pressed upon us by the gentleman from Chester. I say, sir, that no reason has been urged here for this change. The gentleman from Chester, with all the tact and all the ability he possesses, has not been able to show a single reason why this experiment should be tried in Montgomery county. He has not even attempted to do that. He has said that some persons in Montgomery county have asked for it. I will undertake to say, that if there was a probability of a proposal of this kind being passed here to apply to any Republican county, there would be some persons in the county who would ask for it. It is only because of the way Montgomery county is situated that this thing is pressed upon our county.

I am sorry, sir, to have to allude to things to which I do not wish to allude here, but I am forced to do it. It is well known that until the last apportionment we had from Montgomery county three representatives on this floor, and we had a member in the other House. When that apportionment was made the county of Montgomery returned as the basis of the apportionment eighteen thousand and eight taxable. The county of Chester (I take these statements from the official tables) returned sixteen thousand four hundred and thirty-five taxables—about sixteen hundred less than Montgomery county. In the face of these facts, Montgomery county was assigned but two representatives, and Chester county three. Not satisfied with that—

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order. The gentleman is not discussing the bill before the House. He is discussing the apportionment bill.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I am done with that. I did not want to allude to this, and I did not do it in this discussion with any intention of throwing any reflection upon any member of this House, or upon any person who has been a member at any time. I find no fault about it. I only mention this as one reason why I think Montgomery county should be treated, at any rate, with common fairness, and with a common degree of courtesy, as above all that we should not receive the discourtesy at the hands of the gentleman from Chester county. This is all I wish to say about that.

Now, sir, that is the reason why this thing is attempted to be forced upon Montgomery county, because we happen to be so unfortunately situated that the majority of the people of Montgomery county are not represented in the other branch of this Legislature. That is the way it has happened that this thing has been pressed upon us, and I do think we should be treated with common fairness and courtesy at any rate, as we have been treated most outrageously (as will be admitted) in the number of representatives we have been assigned in the apportionment.

I just wish here to say that in the three years I have been a member of this House, I do not know of a single attempt that has ever been made of that kind that has approached this in what I cannot characterize as anything else than malignant partisan action. I do not know of a single attempt that has been made to force a bill upon a county whose representatives were in a minority here that will compare with this in malignity. I am sorry to have to use such a term, but I cannot characterize this attempt in any other way. These changes of venue cannot be compared with it. There have been bills of that kind forced through against the protests of members representing the counties from which the change was to be made, but they are nothing to be compared with a bill of this kind, which attempts to establish a permanent law upon the people of a county against their express wishes. I say, sir, I am sorry to state that if this thing is to be—if it is to deliberate and settle the purpose of this House to force this thing upon us—the members from Montgomery county cannot regard it as anything but an indignity and discourtesy upon our county, and a personal indignity and discourtesy to the members from that county.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, so far as this apportionment argument goes, the only answer I have is that Philadelphia cannot be charged with unfairness, because Mr. Buckalew's constitutional amendment cuts them out of three Senators—

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order; that the apportionment bill has nothing to do with the matter before the House.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I made only an incidental allusion to it, and shall not say another word about it.

Now, it has been said that nobody wants this bill. You will remember, Mr. Speaker, that this is a Senate bill—passed by the Senate, and there urged by the representative from the gentleman's own district, for reasons that were sufficient to him, and it seems to me that the Senator's preferences and desires with reference to this matter should be regarded. There has not been a word of objection urged against this bill, except that it is casting an indignity upon the members from Montgomery county. It has not been said that it was improper to give to the people of that county who elect a certain officer the right to impose upon him certain duties—that has not been said at all. It has not been said of the constables of the districts in that county (the majority of whom belong, not to the party the gentleman belongs to, but to the other party) that it would be improper to give them this duty to perform. Nothing has been said about that. There has been no words uttered against the provisions of this bill, only that it is an indignity upon the members from Montgomery county.

I think, sir, unless they can show that the Senator from this district forces this matter through the Senate for improper purposes, and was actuated by improper considerations, they should hardly complain of its going through this House. I think it is a proper bill, and that the man to collect the taxes is the man that the people elected for that purpose, and not a man to be appointed. I ask why there should be any objection to giving that duty to the men whom the people elect and not to the men whom the commissioners appoint with special reference to their political proclivities? Now, it is not denied that a majority of the townships of Montgomery county are Republican; and yet, there is not a man in that whole county of that party who has, now, anything to do with this matter. If the gentlemen talk about fairness and about propriety let them show some fairness and propriety in that matter.

That was the plan in that county until the Democratic party changed it. The very year after they elected the commissioners they gave the commissioners of Montgomery county the right to appoint these tax collectors. Those taxes were collected before by the constables, who were elected by the people, and immediately responsible to the people. I think it is proper and fair, and right that the people of Montgomery county should have the liberty to say who shall collect their taxes. Where there is a Democratic majority they gain the collectors, and so with the converse, where there is a Republican majority they gain the collectors. Their Senator has recommended this change; the people have demanded it, and have told him that he is an inefficient representative if he could not get this bill through with all the advantages he has. I trust the bill will pass.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I had not thought to say anything upon this subject at all until the gentleman from Montgomery [Mr. MARLEY], in his goodness of soul, proposed this amendment. Of course, we can readily understand the object of this amendment. It is a flank movement. The proposition relates to Montgomery county, and as one of the members from Chester county favored the proposition, to call attention from the original question, the gentleman from Montgomery moved to make the provisions of the bill apply to Chester county. Now I have a high regard and high respect for the gentleman from Montgomery county. I appreciate them very highly, and I have no doubt they feel that they ought to try to get this bill defeated if they possibly can. But I do not like the manner of their attempt to defeat it. I do not see that because I choose to vote for or against a bill to apply to their county it shall apply to Chester county. I would like to hear some good, solid reason from the gentleman from Montgomery county why this bill should not be passed. I will say in this connection that Chester county is under the general act in this respect, and the Republicans of Montgomery county prefer, if they have a special act, to have this one apply to them. I should like to hear why this act should not apply to them. Give us some good reason why we should not vote for this bill. I have heard no reason why we should not, and until I do hear some valid reason I shall certainly vote for the measure, and ask the friends of this measure to vote against the amendment of the gentleman from Montgomery [Mr. MARLEY], because I believe it was not put in meaning that it should apply to Chester county, but merely to embarrass a bill which he does not wish passed. I ask the gentlemen of this House to sustain us in voting down this amendment and in passing the original bill.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Chester [Mr. PENNYPACKER] asks us to give some reasons why this bill should not be passed, as applying to Montgomery county. In reply I will ask the gentleman to give some reasons why, if it is good for Montgomery county, it is not good for Chester county?

Mr. PENNYPACKER. I would ask the gentleman whether Montgomery county is under the general act?

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Most undoubtedly it is. It is in the same position Chester county is, and if this experiment is to be tried, why not try it in both counties? If the people of Chester county seem to think it is such a good thing, why not try it themselves? But the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE] finds fault because I have not said anything against this bill. I have always thought that when a measure of this kind was introduced here, when a special act was made for one county in the Commonwealth differing from the general law under which all the other counties are, in regard to a matter of this kind or any other kind, that it was incumbent upon those asking for the measure to first show why it should be passed. Have they done that? Have they attempted to give a single reason for the passage of this bill? The practice has been for all that I know to the contrary, from time immemorial, that the tax collectors should be appointed by the proper officers of the county, who are responsible for the collection of taxes, and the presumption is that it is a good practice. I hold, therefore, that it is incumbent upon them to show first why this proposed change should be made, and then should they show that, I want them to show why it should be tried particularly in a county whose representatives upon this floor protest against it. Have they done that?

I ask the gentleman from Philadelphia to first show why this law should be enacted, and then we will attempt to show why it should not be. I could, sir, (but I do not desire to unnecessarily occupy the time of this House) give many and sufficient reasons why the constable should not in all cases be appointed tax collector. The gentleman from Philadelphia says that such was the custom formerly in Montgomery county. Such a law was passed and was in force some two or three years, and was then repealed. The gentleman says it was when our party got into power that it was repealed. I deny it, sir. I can show from the documents that it was when the Republican party was in power in both Houses, and had a Governor here, that it was repealed. It was over a year after that infamous apportionment bill was passed that it was repealed.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. I would like to ask the gentleman if it is not difficult to get constables to accept the office unless they can get the collection of taxes?

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. We have no trouble about it in our county. If the gentleman finds it difficult in his county, I have no objection to his having the change there. Our people do not make any complaint. I admit that there are some persons in our county who would like to have this matter apportioned among them. They would like to take the appointments out of the hands of the county officers, so that they could get some of them. We all know that it is so everywhere; in Republican counties they generally appoint Republicans, in Democratic counties they generally appoint Democrats. There is no man in this House who does not know that if there was a chance to have that change that there are a great many in every county who would come here and ask for it.

The gentleman from Philadelphia makes another statement which I believe is not correct. He says that there are a majority of Republican townships in Montgomery county. There may have been elections where a majority of one or two townships voted that way, but as a general thing it is not so.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, it is very evident that we are to take up nearly all the forenoon session if this bill is fully considered, and as it is very necessary that bills in place should be read and that committees that have their hands full of bills should have an opportunity to report, I, therefore, move that the further consideration of this bill be postponed, and that it be put upon the next private calendar, with the objected bills.

Mr. SEARLES. Mr. Speaker, I hope this motion will be voted down. I think this House has already discussed this matter sufficiently, and is ready for a vote. We might just as well settle it now as to defer it. It will only have the effect of taking up the time of the House nearer the close of the session, when business will be more pressing, and the discussion will all have to be gone over again. Let us do now what our hands find to do. I am willing that the vote should be taken at once, and I think the gentlemen on the other side of the House are willing. I think we are now nearer a vote than we would be at any other time if we put it off.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I do not know how the gentleman can say that we are ready to vote. I confess that I am not ready to vote. This is a very grave question, and if compelled to vote to-day I say distinctly that I shall vote against the bill. I shall vote against the amendment because the amendment is as objectionable as the original bill. The principles of this bill commend themselves to my mind, and we now give the collection of the taxes to the constables in our county without a law requiring it. I like the principles of this bill and I may vote for it as it stands, but I am not prepared to do it to-day, and if driven to vote I shall vote against it. I ask time to consider it.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN], to postpone the further consideration of the bill for the present, and that it be placed with the objected bills on the next private calendar.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MANN and Mr. BHOADS, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. OBJECTED BILLS ON PRIVATE CALENDAR RE-SUMED.

Senate bill No. 224, a supplement to an act authorizing the borough council of the borough of Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, to purchase the water works, real estate and improvements of the Bethlehem water company; also to make all such necessary improvements and extensions required, to borrow money, and appoint water commissioners to carry out said object, approved March 31, 1866.

Annoyed by Mr. MEYERS, and Passed finally.

No. 490, an act to incorporate the People's savings fund and safe deposit company.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, there are several very serious objections to this bill, it seems to me.

The title of this bill is "An act to incorporate the People's Savings fund and safe deposit company." Now, the second section of this bill contains banking privileges, and the Constitution provides in the twenty-fifth section of the first article, that "No corporate body shall be hereafter created, renewed or extended, with banking or discounting privileges, without six months' previous public notice of the intended application of the same, in such manner as shall be prescribed by law." There has been no notice given in this case, and the second section of the bill clearly confers the power upon this institution to establish a bank with banking privileges. It gives them the power "to purchase, collect, adjust, settle, sell and dispose of notes, bonds, obligations and accounts of Banks and of individuals," the very terms used in incorporating a bank. Although I have no experience in banking, and have never had much opportunity to show any skill in what could be done under acts of incorporation of this character, but from what little I have had, I think I could very soon establish a bank under the provisions of this second section. If so, it is very clear that the Constitution requires six months' notice to be given, which has not been done.

It is also liable to another objection, that of not complying with the provision of the Constitution, which says that no bill shall be passed by the Legislature containing more than one subject, which shall be clearly expressed in the title. Now, this bill contains in its provisions several subjects. In addition to these objectionable features it gives this corporation unusual power—the power to increase their capital stock to one million of dollars. We are to give this corporation banking privileges to the extent of one million of dollars under this bill. The Constitution provides that no bank shall be incorporated in any amount of capital stock—not even five thousand dollars—unless they give six months' previous notice.

I do not care to occupy the time of the House with this matter. I presented constitutional objections to a bill the other day which did not seem to meet with much attention on the part of the House, and I do not know as these will; but I acquit myself, and discharge my own duty and responsibility, when I speak out those provisions which clearly conflict with the provisions of the Constitution. I hope the bill will not pass, for the reasons that I have given.

Mr. M. CHEARY. Mr. Speaker, I have no particular interest in this bill, [but I think the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] is mistaken in regard to the notice required to be given. This notice is required in cases where banks discount paper and issue notes. I fail to see in the provisions of this bill that they claim this privilege. The gentleman will notice that there is this distinction, that they must publish six months' notice, provided they claim the privilege of issuing paper and discounting notes. I do not understand that this privilege is claimed in this bill. I therefore think the objection urged by the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] is not a good one.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I think the remarks of the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M. CHEARY] do not relieve this bill from the objections that I made. The Constitution says that "no corporate body shall be hereafter created, renewed or extended, with banking or discounting privileges, without six months' previous public notice of the intended application for the same." Now, this second section as clearly gives them discounting privileges as any provision could, and any man who reads it cannot be mistaken about it. That is the very purpose of it. It not only gives them discounting privileges, but incorporates these men, with a capital of a million of dollars, into an insurance company in violation of the provision of the Constitution which says that "no bill shall be passed by the Legislature containing more than one subject, which shall be clearly expressed in the title."

Now, the title does not express clearly any of the objects the bill seeks to accomplish. The title says it is a safety fund and deposit company, whereas it is a discounting body and insurance company. It contains two specific objects, and the title does not express either of them.

I am told, Mr. Speaker, that if the bill is allowed to get to a third reading, it shall go over on that reading. That is entirely satisfactory to me. I do not desire to oppose the bill myself, except it seems to me, that this provision allowing them a capital stock of a million dollars is certainly very objectionable.

Mr. ADAIRE. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment to be added at the end of the last section:

Provided, The said company shall pay to the State Treasurer, for the use of the State, a bonus of one-half of one per centum on the sum required to be paid in previous to the organization, in four equal annual instalments, the first payment to be made in one year after the payments of the capital stock shall be made, and also a like bonus on all subsequent payments on account of the capital stock of said company, or any increase thereof, payable in like manner; and in addition to such bonus, shall pay a like tax upon dividends, as is, or may be, imposed by law.

SPECIAL ORDER.

The SPEAKER. The hour of eleven o'clock having arrived, the special order for this time, House bill No. 193, will be taken up.

House bill No. 193, a supplement to an act appointing commissioners to lay out and open a State road in the counties of Potter and Clinton, approved the sixteenth day of March, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, was read.

Mr. MANN moved to amend by changing the names of some of the incorporators

The amendment was

Agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass?

Mr. DEISE. Mr. Speaker, when this bill was up before, I asked that it might be postponed for the purpose of allowing me an opportunity to hear from my constituents that are interested in its passage. Since that time I have taken pains to get an expression from the people of my county in this matter, and I find, without exception, that they are opposed to the bill. I believe I stated before that the original bill which passed the Legislature in 1865, resulted in a suit which was instituted in our county to determine the constitutionality of that act and that, after a full argument of the case by the parties, the court below decided that the act was unconstitutional.

I believe that this road is for the accommodation of a few parties who own land in this locality. I am informed that this road will be very expensive, and that it will require several years to construct it. I have, in my possession, four remonstrances against the passage of this act. They say that it is not only unnecessary, but that it will cause a burdensome and grievous tax on the citizens of that locality. I shall, therefore, with all deference to the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN], whom I should like to accommodate, be obliged to oppose the passage of this bill. If he can give any good reason why this entire length of road in Clinton county should be built by the townships of Chapman and Leidy, where the land is mostly owned by non-residents, I should like to hear it. This road will be of no use or interest to a large part of the owners of land in that township, and will be almost entirely for the accommodation of a few people in the county of Potter. I think, in all frankness, that our people have been taxed sufficiently for roads, when you take into consideration the fact that they have not a good road either in that or in Potter county. And if this bill is passed, they will not get a good road. This is not for the purpose of accommodating the people, but it is for the purpose of accommodating a few land speculators, who desire to pocket this money, and to increase the value of their lands. For these, and other reasons, I shall oppose the passage of this bill.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I confess a good deal of astonishment at the continued opposition made to this bill. I ask the House to note the objection that is made to it. The gentleman from Clinton [Mr. DEISE] objects that two townships shall make a road running through those townships. Why, I understand that to be the general law of the State—that all townships make the roads in their own townships. That is just what this bill proposes to do. It proposes that the taxes on the lands of those two townships shall make a road through them. But the gentleman is mistaken when he says that it takes all the taxes of these townships for this road. It only takes one-half of them.

That is the provision of the original act. There is but one other road in those townships which is traveled, and that is along the river. The people along the river do not want another road, and, therefore, ask that all those taxes on these lands shall be taken away and applied on the river road. But are the people of Potter county, who live back among the hills twenty-five or thirty miles from the railroads, to be kept from having a road to get out to the railroad because of the indisposition of those living along the river to allow them this road? This is all the gentleman's objections amount to, and that is all the objection of the gentleman's constituents here.

The gentleman makes a great mistake when he says there are no good roads in Potter county. When it was ascertained that the Philadelphia and Erie railroad was about to be completed, we had no road from Coudersport, our county seat, by which we could reach it. We were situated just as the people of Germania are now situated in regard to it. But we agitated this question, and this road bill was passed. Under that bill we have made a good road from Coudersport to the Pennsylvania railroad at Emporium. We made it at least a hundred per cent. cheaper than any other road in our county. The whole road was constructed under the supervision of three men whose characters were at stake, and they made the road in a short time, and at little expense compared with other roads. And, I presume, that if it had not been for one or two defects in this bill, by which the judge in Clinton county was able to block the way, the people at Germania would now have a good road to the railroad. This law secured a good road from Coudersport to Emporium, and I affirm by the same law the people of Germania can secure a good road to the railroad. The incorporators are good men, who are well known, and who have their reputations at stake. One of those was named by the gentleman from Clinton [Mr.

DEISE], and is a man known all over Clinton county and his character is at stake. I affirm that under this bill the funds will be properly and far more economically appropriated than if left to be expended in the ordinary way. I therefore ask that this bill pass.

Mr. DEISE. Mr. Speaker, I regret exceedingly to consume the time of this House in the discussion of this question, but it is one so vital to the interests of my constituents that I hope I will be indulged in an explanation. The gentleman is mistaken when he says that it was at my instance that one of the parties was named. If the gentleman will recollect, he came to me with three names that some of his friends in Potter county had selected and asked me which one I would prefer. Of course I selected the one I thought the best man—preferring the least objectionable one.

I would call the attention of the House to one practice in particular, in reference to this matter. For a number of years the unseated lands of our county, as unimproved, and iron-ore lands, have been assessed at enormous rates, and parties living in Philadelphia, and New York, owing these lands, have been imposed upon in the way of taxation. In some townships in my county, a tax of thirteen mills on the dollar has been assessed, and some of the smaller townships have returned every year some fifteen or eighteen hundred dollars from the tax on unseated lands alone. Yet I affirm here, that the gentleman cannot ride ten miles in either county without being thrown out of his buggy.—There is not a good road in that vicinity. Yet those assessors and supervisors make it a rule to select themselves there every year, and they pocket this money and do not build the roads. I desire to also call the attention of the gentleman to the act of 1865, by which certain lands, through which this road passes, are exempted from the operations of this law. So it will be seen that the intention is simply to tax non-residents and those living at a remote distance from this road, while those living along the line of the roads will not be taxed at all. I understand this to be a supplement to that act. That act of Assembly is now before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania for revision. All I desire is that the act of Assembly shall be reviewed in that court by which the clients have appealed. I say that this measure is gotten up for the benefit of a few people, and the gentleman from Potter cannot present a petition in favor of this act from a considerable number of citizens of either Potter or Clinton county. This comes from private individuals who desire to tax those lands for private uses. I hope, therefore, the bill will be voted down.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to correct the gentleman in one respect. This is a supplement to the original bill and it in no way affects any action of the court. The petition for the original bill did receive numerous signers in the townships of Abbott and Stewardson in the county which I represent.

Mr. Olmstead, the member from our county who passed this bill, told me that he also received petitions largely signed from the people of Clinton county asking for this original act. The opposition to this bill is merely an attempt to make capital here, and it has a very poor foundation when it is alleged that this road is for the benefit of a few individuals. It is for the benefit of all the people in the southwestern part of the county which I represent. This is the direct and only direct road they have to reach the railroad. They are at present obliged to go between forty and fifty miles to reach a railroad in New York State, whereas, by allowing them to build this road, they can reach the railroad in this State by going twenty-five miles. That is the only issue, whether you will compel them to go forty or fifty miles over a poor road to reach a railroad in New York State, or by making a road twenty-five miles you will let them out to a railroad in this State.

The question being on agreeing to the bill, The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DEISE and Mr. KURTZ, and were as follows, viz :

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Barton, Brown, Chadwick, Colville, Day, Donoghue, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Kee, Mann, Marks, Melly, Pillow, Quay, Satterthwait, Seller, Sharples, Shuman, Stehman, Subers, Wallace, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—44.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyle, Breen, Calvin, Chalfant, Collins, Deise, Fogel, Ghegan, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Pennypacker, Quigley, Rhoads, Roth, Robinson, Roush, Sharp and Watt—35.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The question being on the suspension of the rules to allow the bill to be read a third time by its title,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DEISE and Mr. FOGEL, and were as follows, viz :

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Barton, Cameron, Colville, Davis, Day, Donoghue, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmel, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, Mann, Marks, Melly, Pennypacker, Peters, Pillow, Quay, Roth, Satterthwait, Seller, Sharples, Shuman, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Wallace, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—51.

Two-thirds not voting in the affirmative, and the bill goes over on third reading.

REASONS FOR VOTE.

Mr. SHARPLES offered the following reasons for his vote on the final passage of the bill:

Mr. Speaker, in explanation of my vote and that I should not be considered inconsistent in my position with relation to this bill in its different stages, I desire to say that while I have always had doubts as to the propriety of running cars on this day, with the sale of liquor being tolerated at the same time, the results could not be anticipated, so certainly, for good, while this condition exists.

But, sir, while I do not endorse all the opposition to the bill have said or assumed, I think we should be satisfied that it is a necessity for the welfare and good of society, when we attempt such innovation upon long established law. A large number of my constituents have remonstrated against it, while not one of them has petitioned for it. This, alone, would require me to vote against this bill.

(Signed) N. J. SHARPLES.

Mr. PENNYPACKER presented the following reasons for his vote on the final passage of the bill:

Having received a large number of remonstrances from the citizens of Chester county against the bill, I am compelled, as their representative, to obey their wishes, and vote against the bill.

(Signed) N. A. PENNYPACKER.

Mr. KIMMELL presented the following reasons for his vote on the final passage of the bill:

Mr. Speaker, there appears to be a prevailing opinion among the Philadelphia members in this House, that western members should not oppose this bill, because it is local in its character.

I vote against this bill, not on account of its locality, but because I believe its direct tendency is to grant license to violate the Divine law with impunity, and that each in this House will be held to strict accountability for every vote he casts.

(Signed) A. W. KIMMELL.

Adjourned until to-morrow at 10 o'clock.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The House met at 10 o'clock, A. M.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. JACOB KENNEDY, member from Wyoming.

The SPEAKER announced a quorum of members present.

The Journal of yesterday was partly read, when,

On motion of Mr. DAVIS, the further reading of the same was dispensed with.

BILL PASSED.

Mr. LEECH. Mr. Speaker, I ask the indulgence of the House this morning, for an old soldier of the war of 1812. I move that the rules be suspended, for the purpose of taking up Senate bill No. 160, an act granting a pension to William W. Forland.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The bill taken up, passed through its several readings, and

Passed finally.

BILLS TAKEN FROM THE SPEAKER'S TABLE.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, on account of indisposition I was absent yesterday when the Chair cleared the table. There were then two bills laid on the table, which I desire to have taken from the table and referred to the proper committees. They are bills of incorporation, similar to bills that we have before the committee of which I have the honor to be chairman, and I therefore move that these bills be taken from the table and referred to the appropriate committees.

The motion was

Agreed to.

And the bills were taken from the Speaker's table and referred to the Committee on Iron and Coal Companies.

NOTION TO DISCHARGE A COMMITTEE FROM FURTHER CONSIDERATION OF A BILL.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I move to discharge the Judiciary Local Committee from the further consideration of House bill No. 730.

Mr. MECHLING. Mr. Speaker, I object to that, for the reason that in 1864 the Legislature, pending some action to be taken in Armstrong county—

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order, that this motion cannot be made except by a suspension of the order.

The SPEAKER. The Chairman is of the opinion that the motion to discharge the committee is not in order unless the rules are suspended.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I move a suspension of the rules.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, upon that I call for a division of the question.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw the motion.

NOTION TO SUSPEND THE RULES TO READ A BILL IN PLACE.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. EWING. A few days ago a bill was passed in relation to the road laws of Washington county and I omitted to insert a certain township in the bill. I, therefore, ask for a suspension of the rules that I may read a bill in place and have it considered now.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I ask if that will not be the order in a few moments if we proceed regularly?

The SPEAKER. It is one of the orders of the day.

Mr. EWING. I withdraw the motion.

SENATE BILL NO. 29.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a short statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. LEE. There is a bill on the Senate file, bill No. 29, which I would very much like to have disposed of this morning some way or other. There is a gentleman whose interests are very materially affected by this bill. The passage of this bill is absolutely necessary to save him the proceeds of a life of toil. If this bill is not passed, he will, for a while, at any rate, be ruined. I, therefore, ask that the rules be suspended, and that the House take up Senate bill No. 29, a farther supplement to an act entitled An act for the better security of the city of Philadelphia from dangers incident to the refining or improper and negligent storage of petroleum, benzine or naphtha, approved March, 1865.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I call for a division of the question.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I hope the motion for the suspension of the rules will carry, and that this bill may be put on its passage.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. MEYERS. I second the call.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my motion.

PERSONAL EXPLANATIONS.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a personal explanation. Last night, when the vote was taken on the Sunday car bill, it appeared as if I had paired off with two gentlemen, and I desire to set myself right in regard to the matter. In company with Mr. BARTON I told him that I was quite unwell. He said he would pair off with me if I was unable to attend. I told him that I thought I should attend the evening session of the House, and that is all. I remember about it, so I did not think I had paired off with him. Subsequently, when I found I could not well attend I paired off with Mr. MARKLEY. It was simply a misunderstanding.

ing between Mr. BARTON and myself, and I did not consider I was paired off with him.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a personal explanation. A few days ago, when the bill for the better and more impartial selection of jurors was before the House, I gave my reasons why I should vote for it. I find myself reported in the Record as having said "that there are many of its provisions that I desire."

Now, Mr. Speaker, what I said was just on the contrary, that there were none of the provisions of that bill that I desired, and that I was against it altogether. I said I was opposed to the system last winter as well as this, but that I intended to vote for it simply to avert special bills from Democratic counties. I stated that my county was threatened with a bill of this kind, that other Democratic counties were threatened in the same way, and that although I was opposed to the system and decidedly opposed to many of the provisions of this bill, yet I would meet the gentlemen on the other side half way, and vote to establish this system in Democratic counties, if they would vote to establish it in Republican counties. I deem it just to myself that I should make this explanation.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, while upon this subject, I also desire to say that I gave my reasons for voting on that bill in the affirmative, and I notice that the remarks in explanation of my vote are not in the Record at all. At that time I said I voted in favor of the passage of the bill as the better of two evils; because it appeared to me we had no other alternative, as between these two evils. Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman a question.

Did not the Speaker inform you that, if you would write out your reasons, they would be published?

Mr. LINTON. He did.

Mr. MANN. Did you write out your reasons?

Mr. LINTON. I did not.

Mr. MANN. You have no right, then, to complain.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would state in explanation, that the reporters frequently come to the Chair and ask him to preserve order, that they may hear the remarks of the members. The Chair can bear testimony to the faithfulness of the reports, and the great desire of the reporters to report the speakers correctly. The great marvel with the Chair is, that the reports are as correct as they are; for with the confusion that prevails at times in the House, it is almost impossible to hear the remarks of the members. The Chair would bear witness that the reports, generally, are very correct.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I deem it proper to say that I intended no reflection upon the reporters. It is a marvel that the reporters get anything correct that we say, and I only wonder that they understand what we say at all. I know that it was a mistake, and I desire to cast no reflections, whatever, on the reporters.

Mr. McCAMANT. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. McCAMANT. Mr. Speaker, a few days ago I read a bill in place to incorporate the town of Newry, in Blair county, into a borough. I am satisfied, after an examination of the law in the case, that the courts have full power to incorporate the town into a borough. The bill was referred to the Committee on Municipal Corporations, and I ask leave to withdraw it. The parties at Lomax, who wished its passage, desire to have it retraced.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me the proper way would be to request the committee to report the bill negatively.

The SPEAKER. It is not in order for the gentleman to withdraw the bill at present.

MOTION TO SUSPEND THE RULES.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, I move that the orders of the day be suspended for the purpose of offering a resolution.

The motion was not agreed to.

RESOLUTION IN REFERENCE TO THE SPEAKER'S KELLY.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to offer a resolution. I will send it up to be read by the Clerk and I think there will be no objection to it on the part of the House.

The SPEAKER. The resolution will be read for the information of the House.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows: Resolved, That the privilege of the floor of this House be extended to the Hon. James R. Kelley, Speaker of the last House, during the present session.

Resolved, That the privilege of the floor of this House be extended to the Hon. James R. Kelley, Speaker of the last House, during the present session.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I would inquire if ex-Speaker Kelley has not the privilege of the floor of this House now, by virtue of his former position in that House?

Mr. QUAY. He has not, sir. He was expelled from the floor last night.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, my understanding was also similar to that of the gentleman from Lycoming [Mr. WINGARD], but there seems to be some doubt about this matter as to who are entitled to the privileges of the floor. I would like it some gentlemen on the floor would tell us, exactly, who are entitled to that privilege, because I see a number of gentlemen on the floor of this House who have no right here if ex-Speaker Kelley has not.

Mr. QUAY. The rule is positive, as stated in rule 45.

The SPEAKER. That part of rule 45, having a bearing on the question, will be read by the Clerk.

It was read as follows: "None but members of the Senate, their officers, the Governor, Heads of departments, judges of the courts of this Commonwealth and former members of the Legislature shall be permitted to come within the bar of the House during its session, unless specially introduced by a member; and no person, not a member of the Legislature, shall be allowed to come upon the floor of the House, or sit in any seats appropriated for members, or interrupt a member by speaking to him in his seat while the House is in session; and it shall be the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms or Doorkeeper to give notice to any person offending against this rule."

Mr. SPEAKER. The rule simply is, that the persons enumerated in the first part of the rule are admitted inside the bar of the House, but can go no further.

The SPEAKER. There is a distinction between the bar of the House and the floor of the House. The Chair has given instructions to the officers of the House to permit no person, not a member of the House, to pass upon the floor by the main passage-way. The Chair is of the opinion that the officers have faithfully and courteously executed that order, and he expresses his obligations to them for so doing.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows: "The resolution was agreed to."

TEMPORARY ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. CHASE. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to offer a resolution in reference to the adjournment to-day.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I ask if that does not require a suspension of the rules?

The SPEAKER. It does require a suspension of the orders. The question is on a suspension of the rules to allow the gentleman from Crawford [Mr. CHASE] to offer a resolution.

It was

Agreed to.

Mr. CHASE. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That the members of the Senate and Representatives of this Commonwealth to visit Washington city to witness the out-going of the Thirty-ninth and in-coming of the Fortieth Congress of the United States; therefore, be it Resolved (if the Senate concur), That when the two Houses adjourn this day, they do so to meet again on Wednesday, March 6th, 1867, at 3¹/₂ o'clock P. M.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out the words "this day," and inserting "one o'clock."

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I have been entirely misled as to what this resolution was. I do not think it is hardly fair to get such a resolution before the House in that way. It was agreed last night that we would adjourn until Tuesday evening, and this resolution makes it until Wednesday evening. It was also agreed that we would hold a session this afternoon. I move to amend the resolution so that we shall hold a session this afternoon.

And that when we adjourn then we will meet again at seven and a half o'clock on next Tuesday evening. We can go through with the private calendar on Tuesday evening, and if we do not, it will carry the private calendar over out of its order, and thus confuse the orders all over the House.

Mr. CHASE. Mr. Speaker, I accept the amendment suggested by the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN].

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I have no doubt, sir, that the holding of a session this afternoon will be very convenient for the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN]. I apprehend that he will not go home, and it will therefore be particularly convenient for him. But to those who are desirous of returning to their homes this afternoon, it will be exceedingly inconvenient.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I will state the reasons why we should meet this afternoon. The Committee on Ways and Means have been working day and night to perfect the general appropriation bill, which ought to be ready to report to this House, and it is very necessary they should meet this afternoon and evening.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, the suggestion is, perhaps, a very proper one. If the Committee on Ways and Means desire to meet this afternoon, I have no objection. I am not on that committee, and it will not interfere with me. I am perfectly willing they should sit all the afternoon, and up to next Tuesday if they see fit. But I, with others, desire to leave on the afternoon train. If we fail to go on that train we are obliged to lie over until 2 o'clock at night. I think this is a harsh request to ask us to remain here this afternoon, and then adjourn over until Tuesday for the accommodation of those gentlemen who desire to go to Washington.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, is it fair to ask the Committee on Ways and Means to remain here and work and allow the other members to go home and enjoy themselves? The Committee on Ways and Means are compelled to meet this evening. We can have a meeting this afternoon, which will greatly facilitate the business of the House. There are important bills which can be reached by proceeding with business this afternoon. I will refer to one particularly—that is in relation to the rate of legal interest. We passed that bill here at so late a date last year that it did not come up for discussion in the Senate, and that is likely to be the case this session. It is but fair that the public bills should receive some attention as well as the private ones. Now, if the Committee on Ways and Means are compelled to remain here, is it fair for the other members to return to their homes? If the House adjourn at one o'clock there will be no meeting of the Committee of Ways and Means to-day, for a majority of that committee will say that they are not going to work if the other members are not.

The question being on the amendment of Mr. MEYERS.

It was

Not agreed to.

The question then recurring on the original resolution.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out all after word resolved, and inserting the following:

"(If the Senate concur, That when the two Houses adjourn this day, they do so to meet again on Wednesday, March 6th, 1867, at 2½ o'clock, p. m.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I think the original resolution is liberal enough. We will have but a small private calendar, and if we meet on Tuesday evening we can go through with it. I would say that I think this House has been extremely liberal in adjourning over from Friday at one o'clock, and it is now asking a little too much when they propose to adjourn until Tuesday evening to adjourn from one o'clock for the special accommodation of any gentleman who wishes to go to Philadelphia to attend to his business there.

Mr. CHASE. Mr. Speaker, when I offered this resolution for adjournment, I did not suppose its discussion would take up so much of the time of the House. The suggestion in reference to the adjournment came in such a way that I thought it necessary to have an adjournment until Wednesday. I am sorry that there has been so much discussion and feeling about the matter. It is of no interest to me to adjourn farther than until Monday evening, but there are many gentlemen who desire to go to Washington, and it was at their suggestion I accepted the amendment of the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN]. I think the Committee on Ways and Means have worked very hard, but in the absence of the House I would suggest that the Committee on Vice and Immorality be left in charge of the Committee on Ways and Means, and that they work together.

The question being on the amendment of Mr. MEYERS.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. KIMMELL and Mr. MANN, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Breen, Bronnan, Yeas, Collins, Donohugh, Ghegan, Hood, Josephs, Koon, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Meyers, Mullin and Quigley—15.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Boyd, Boyle, Brown, Calviu, Chadwick, Chalfaut, Chase, Colville, Craig, Davis, Day, DeHaen, Deise, Espy, Ewing, Fogel, Gallagher, Gordon, Harrison, Harner, Headman, Heltzer, Humphrey, Hunt, Jones, Kennedy, Kern, Kimmell, Kinney, Kline, Kurtz, Lee, Leach, Luton, Loug, M'Camant, M'Kee, Keck, Manu, Marks, Mechling, Mcily, Penypacker, Peters, Phelan, Pillow, Quay, Rhoads, Roth, Roush, Satterthwait, Seilor, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stumbaugh, Subers, Webb, Weller, Westbrook, Whaun, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall and Wright—70.

—So the question was determined in the negative.

The question recurring on the original resolution.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment.

The amendment was read as follows:

Strike out all after the word resolved and insert, "That when this House adjourn this morning, it will adjourn to meet on Tuesday next, at 3 o'clock, p. m.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, the object and purpose of offering this amendment is to make the resolution accord with the practice of the Legislature to adjourn on Friday afternoon. That has been the practice from the beginning of the session to the end, and I think has been departed from on but very few occasions.

The members of this House made their arrangements in reference to that state of facts—that there is to be no session on Friday afternoon; and inasmuch as this House has had an evening session and two afternoon sessions this week, and in view of the fact that a large number of bills were reported on Thursday which must go on the private calendar on Tuesday, it is no more than right and proper that the clerks and officers of this House should have an opportunity to get up with their business, and the members of this House should have an opportunity to look after their business and the interests of their constituents, which they cannot do if they are to be in session all the time or dancing attendance on committees. I am opposed to this kind of continual legislation. It is utterly impossible for members to look after the interests of their constituents or attend to any other business, if they are obliged to be in session all of the time. If I had the authority, I would require the House to sit only every other day, and thus give the members an opportunity to study the questions that come before them for their consideration. I think it is no more than right to the officers of this House and to the members on this floor, and that we ought to pay some respect to the customs of this House, of not meeting on Friday afternoon, especially as we have been sitting three times this week out of the four days. I hope, therefore, for these reasons, that this amendment will be agreed to. Gentlemen were very anxious for the first resolution to adjourn over until Tuesday—for what purpose? Simply for the purpose of giving some of the gentlemen upon this floor an opportunity to go to Washington to see Simon Cameron sworn in as Senator.

Where is the necessity, I ask, Mr. Speaker, that this House shall have an afternoon session, when it proposes to adjourn over until Tuesday evening, merely for the purpose of allowing the members to go to Washington? If that is the reason which urges gentlemen to favor this original resolution, I say that those gentlemen ought to sit here, instead of running off to Washington. It has been said by the Speaker that a general invitation is extended to the members and officers of this House to go to Washington to see the United States Senator sworn in, as if that was such an extraordinary proceeding that it required the presence of the Legislature of Pennsylvania.

I say that the officers and members of this House are not made entirely of bone and iron, and that they can stand and go to Washington as can be put upon them. I have, myself, been obliged to remain up, most of the time, until after midnight, much to the injury and detriment of my health, for the purpose of looking after my matters and preparing myself for the business that will come before this Legislature. I trust, therefore, that this amendment will carry, and that the custom of this Legislature will be carried out, and that we will not meet on Friday afternoon.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say that there is always some excuse for these long adjournments, and they are not generally favor them. But I am willing that this House shall have an opportunity to go to Washington, not merely to see Simon Cameron sworn in as United States Senator, but to consult with their representatives in reference to legislation. I shall not go solely for the purpose of seeing the Senator whom I have voted for, and whom I should vote for again if I had the opportunity, sworn into office. I think we ought to have a session this afternoon and then adjourn over until Tuesday evening.

Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. Maynard] misunderstands the object of my adjournment. It is not so much, as I understand it, to see Simon Cameron sworn into office as to attend a funeral. There is to be a great show on the 4th of March at Washington. The little renegade is about to die out and we wish to see him to his last home.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I think it is a good idea to give the gentlemen an opportunity to be present at that very solemn occasion, that they may regard well their latter end, which is approaching very rapidly. I shall vote against this adjournment at one o'clock. I do not want any of these long adjournments. I want to work all the time. I am compelled to stay here; I cannot go home; I must stay here from the time the session commences until the close, unless the House give me leave of absence. I shall, therefore, vote against this amendment and against the other resolution to adjourn until Tuesday evening.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. KIMMELL and Mr. MANN, and were as follow, viz :

YEAS—Messrs. Armstrong, Breen, Brennan, Brown, Cameron, Collins, Donohugh, Fogel, Ghegan, Heltzel, Hood, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Lee, Linton, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Maish, Marks, Meching, Meyers, Mullin, Pennypacker, Peters, Quigley, Roath, Robinson, Subers, Wharton, Worrall and Glass, Speaker—32.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Boyle, Calvin, Chalfant, Chase, Craig, Davis, Day, Deise, Esy, Ewing, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Harner, Humphrey, Hunt, Jenks, Kennedy, Kimmell, Kinney, Kurtz, Leech, Long, M'Camant, M'Kee, Mann, Phelan, Pillow, Quay, Rhoads, Roush, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stumbaugh, Tharp, Webb, Weller, Westbrook, Whann, Wilson, Woodward and Wright—43.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The question recurring on the original resolution.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out the words "Tuesday evening," and inserting the words "Monday evening," and on that question I call the yeas and nays.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, if the purpose of these amendments is to waste the time of this forenoon, it will probably be accomplished. I can see that these dilatory notions will consume the time of this House, and that may defeat the will of majority twice expressed, besides preventing our reaching bills on third reading. There are bills before this House of importance that received the sanction of the majority of the House, which can only be reached on third reading.

Since there seems to be a determination to consume the entire time of the House with these motions, I feel compelled to call the previous question.

The call for the previous question was sustained by Messrs. Mann, Day, Stumbaugh, Hood, Kurtz, Colville, Seiler, Woodward, Webb, Barton, Meching and Kennedy.

On the question,

Shall the main question be now put?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MEYERS and Mr. RHOADS, and were as follow, viz :

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Boyd, Brown, Cameron, Chase, Colville, Davis, Day, Esy, Ewing, Gordon, Harbison, Harner, Humphrey, Jenks, Josephs, Kennedy, Kimmell, Kinney, Kurtz, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Maish, Mann, Marks, Meching, Meily, Pennypacker, Peters, Pillow, Quigley, Roath, Robinson, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stumbaugh, Subers, Webb, Weller, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—55.

NAYS—Messrs. Breen, Calvin, Collins, Craig, Donohugh, Fogel, Gallagher, Ghegan, Heltzel, Hood, Kline, Koon, Linton, Meyers, Mullin, Quay, Rhoads, Tharp, Watt and Westbrook—30.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment of Mr. MERRERS?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MEYERS and Mr. KURTZ, and were as follow, viz :

YEAS—Messrs. Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Collins, Colville, Craig, Day, Deise, Ewing, Fogel, Gallagher, Ghegan, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Camant, M'Pherrin, Maish, Meyers, Mullin, Pennypacker, Phelan, Quay, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Watt, Westbrook, Wharton and Worrall—41.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, Donohugh, Esy, Gordon, Harbison, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Kee, Mann, Marks, Meching, Meily, Peters, Pillow, Quigley, Roath, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stumbaugh, Subers, Tharp, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Wright and Glass, Speaker—41.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The question recurring, Will the House agree to the original resolution?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MEYERS and Mr. DEISE, and were as follow, viz :

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brennan, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Collins, Davis, DeHaven, Donohugh, Esy, Gordon, Harbison, Headman, Humphrey, Hunt, Josephs, Kennedy, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, Long, M'Camant, M'Kee, Mann, Marks, Meching, Meily, Pennypacker, Peters, Pillow, Quigley, Roath, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stumbaugh, Subers, Tharp, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—53.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Calvin, Chalfant, Colville, Craig, Deise, Ewing, Fogel, Gallagher, Ghegan, Harner, Heltzel, Hood, Jenks, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Maish, Meyers, Mullin, Pillow, Quay, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Tharp, Westbrook and Wharton—34.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

REASONS FOR VOTE.

Mr. KINNEY presented, in writing, his reasons for vote, as follows:

Mr. KINNEY. A general anxiety, among the Republican members of this House, to visit Washington at the breaking up of the Thirty-ninth Congress and the heralding in of the Fortieth Congress, and especially to witness the swearing in and swearing out of the two antagonistic Senators from this State, induces me to vote to give sufficient time for such a purpose.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

Senate bill No. 196, an act regulating roads and bridges in Wayne county.

Senate bill No. 241, an act authorizing the Governor to incorporate a company to erect a bridge over the Youghiogheny river, at a point between the mouth of Dickerson's run and Taylor's fording, in the county of Fayette.

BILLS OF THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading of Senate bill No. 324, an act to repeal an act entitled "A further supplement to the act incorporating the Pennsylvania railroad company, authorizing the increase of capital stock and to borrow money, approved March 21, 1866, to authorize the Pennsylvania railroad company to increase its capital stock, to issue bonds and secure the same by mortgage."

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, it has been agreed generally by the friends of this bill, that it shall go over to-day. I move that it be postponed and made the special order for next Friday morning, at 11 o'clock.

The motion was

Agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading of House bill No. 284, an act to repeal an act of the General Assembly of the State of Pennsylvania, which became a law on the 19th day of August, 1864, entitled "An act relating to the Pittsburg and Connellsville railroad."

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, Mr. WELLER, who is interested in this bill, especially, has received a telegram that his father is very sick, and he has had to leave. He desires that this bill shall go over. I, therefore, move that it be postponed, and made the special order for next Friday morning, after the bill just made the special order for that day is disposed of.

The motion was

Agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading of Senate bill No. 26, an act to authorize the payment of State agents at Washington.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to have the bill read.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I would make a suggestion, which will probably avoid the necessity of having it read at this time.

The gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL], chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, took considerable interest in this bill, but he is now sick, and unable to be here. I would not like to have it defeated in his absence, and I do not know that it will; but I think that the best way would be to have the bill postponed for the present. It would certainly be discourteous to defeat the bill in the gentleman's absence.

Mr. M'CAMANT. Mr. Speaker, I think this bill is very thoroughly understood by this House, and that we are all ready to vote on it. I see no reason why it should be postponed any further.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I was obliged to be absent when this bill was discussed the other day, and for that reason ask for its reading. I am, however, perfectly willing that the bill should go over, from the fact that the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means is absent.

The SPEAKER. The bill will be read by the Clerk.

The bill was read as follows:

AN ACT to authorize the payment of State agents at Washington, to close said agency, and to abolish the office of assistant agent.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the State Treasurer is hereby authorized to pay, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, a sum not exceeding six thousand dollars, for the necessary expenses of the Pennsylvania agents at Washington, from the 1st day of December, 1866, to the 1st day of June, 1867, as authorized by the act of fourth May, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four; and that said agency be abolished from and after the said first day of June: Provided, That the office of assistant agent is hereby abolished, and the State agent is authorized, if necessary, to employ an additional clerk in the place of said assistant.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House go into committee of the whole for the purpose of general amendment.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the motion by making it special amendment. I propose to restore the original bill as reported to the Committee on Ways and Means, and strike out all the provisions added by the House except that of the assistant State agent.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I hope the amendment will not prevail. My object in making my motion is for the purpose of striking out that provision, and all the amendments made to the bill; and I hope the friends of the administration will see that this matter is carried through properly, and that the House will go into committee of the whole for the purpose of general amendment.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I claim to be as true a friend of the administration as stands upon this floor; and I hope the House will not do anything of the kind.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, I hope the House will do it. Since we have been discussing this bill, there has been a great deal of public opinion elucidated in reference to the matter, and it strikes me it is absolutely necessary this business should be attended to by a State agent. I hope the amendment of the gentleman from Franklin [Mr. STUMBAUGH] will prevail.

Mr. DEISE. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN], and the gentleman from Franklin [Mr. WILSON], what administration they had reference to?

Mr. STUMBAUGH. The present State administration.

Mr. DEISE. I did not know but that it had reference to the other administration.

Mr. MANN. By no means.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, some of the members of this House find themselves in a rather awkward position at this time. I would prefer to have this bill passed just as it stands, before any outside influences are brought to bear upon members. I prefer, however, the motion of the gentleman from Beaver [Mr. QUAY] to that of the gentleman from Franklin [Mr. STUMBAUGH], but I do not like either of them. I fear, however, that if I vote against the motion of the gentleman from Beaver, and should be defeated, then the opinion of the gentleman from Franklin might prevail; and we would be in a much worse condition than we would be if the other motion prevailed. I am compelled, therefore, to vote for the motion of the gentleman from Beaver.

Mr. MANN. I call for the yeas and nays on the question.

Mr. QUAY. I second the call.
Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, before this vote is taken, I wish to make an explanation in reference to an impression made upon some of the members of this House, by the remarks of the gentleman from Fayette (Mr. BOYLE), relative to the residence of the assistant agent. He declared, when this bill was under consideration before, that the assistant agent was a resident of the State of Iowa.

The assistant agent is a resident of Westmoreland county, and was a member of the Legislature from there in 1854. I think, if the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] would reflect, he would know, probably, in whose interests he then acted. He does not happen to be in the interest of the same party now. He lived, I believe, two years, or thereabout, in the State of Iowa, and afterwards returned to Greensburg, Westmoreland county. He then went to Washington, in the employ of the Government, about the first of April, 1861. I merely call the attention of the House to these facts for the purpose of correcting the impression that the remarks of the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] probably made.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman has not corrected that impression. I do not think he can correct it, because I believe it to be true. I know the reputation of Cook very well. I remember, in 1856, when he was a blatant Democrat. Afterwards, it suited his purpose to go to the other side, and he is now just the same kind of a Republican. He did formerly live in Westmoreland county, and he did remove to the State of Iowa; but I deny that he ever returned to Westmoreland county. He came from Iowa, and may have stopped a day or two for the purpose of seeing his friends in that county. But he went to Washington, and his last legal residence outside of the city of Washington was in the State of Iowa.

Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman aware or not, that he (the assistant State agent) still holds his residence in Westmoreland county? He has his law library, his furniture, &c., in Greensburg to-day.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, all I know about his residence is from information furnished me. My information is in effect what I here state. And I know that he has been practicing law in Washington city for some time past. I do not know what he has in Greensburg.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to correct another impression that, it seems to me, is wrong, and which a number of the members of this House seem to entertain. They are either mistaken or I am. I may be; but with my present information, I believe that this State agency at Washington is entirely useless. I believe it is useless for this reason, that the heads of the departments through which all these applications for pensions and gratuities pass, are courteous, business gentlemen, and they will reply promptly to letters from soldiers, and give them all the information asked for. In the district that I am acquainted with, there is no soldier in any part of it, who does not make his application directly to the department, or get some friend to do it for him; and I do not believe there can be found a single person who has made his application directly to the department, that has not received all the information he could have received. If he had directed his application to this State Agency.

Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to have the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] go to that agency and examine the letters on file, and there discover the grand mistake he is now laboring under.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I think my friend from Indiana [Mr. KIMMELL] is laboring under the mistake. I concede that a vast amount of business is done at the State agency. But what I want is, that it is sent to the wrong place. If it was sent to Auditor French, or the Commissioner of Pensions, it would be attended to just as promptly as when sent to this agency. Auditor French and the Commissioner of Pensions will send all the blanks asked for, whenever application is made. Since I have had the honor of occupying a seat on this floor, after making application to all the departments at Harrisburg, with a view of getting information, I have sent directly to the Auditor or the Commissioner of Pensions, at Washington, and have never failed to get all the information desired. And I believe every soldier in Pennsylvania can be secured in the payment of his bounty, with as little delay, without this agency as with it, for the reason that I have given. If any man will say that he has ever addressed a letter to Auditor French, or the Commissioner of Pensions, without getting a reply to his letter, and all the papers and blanks and information he needed to get his pay, I may change my opinion somewhat.

But until then I must feel that this agency is not needed; and I maintain that the true way to sustain the administration of Governor Geary is to lop off all useless offices. We have upon this bill too many officers that are drawing pay and doing no duty. I think that the friends of Governor Geary ought to appoint a commissioner to ascertain whom these are, and have them dismissed at once. That is the true way to sustain the administration. For that reason I shall vote against going into committee of the whole to change this bill, because I think it would be a credit to this Legislature, and a credit to the administration, to pass it as it now stands.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I did not intend to say very much on this subject when I made the motion to go into committee of the whole. But I deem it due to myself and those whom I have the honor in part to represent, to say that I disagree with a most amiable friend from Potter [Mr. MANN], and that one cannot get all the information, and obtain all the benefits of the provisions of the act of Congress, by applying directly to Auditor French or the Commissioner of Pensions at Washington. I want it understood that I am not in the claim business myself, but I have a man in my office who has been doing a good deal in that line during the past two or three years, and it has come to my knowledge, frequently, that persons who have applied directly to Auditor French, for their pensions, have had letters returned acknowledging the receipt of their applications, but after waiting a year or more he would send papers, and say, "You must furnish additional evidence," and thus keep them from their pay, in some instances, two or three years without giving them the information they desired. Those persons who have sent their applications to the State agency have obtained the information they required, and in a very short time thereafter received their bounties and pensions. I insist that there is as much necessity for that State agency now as at any time. I insist that this attempt to abolish it is a direct strike at the soldiers of this Commonwealth. It is an attempt to place in the hands of claim agents the pensions and bounties of those who have been fighting for their country. We sit here, to day, from the fact that these soldiers defended our country when it was in its hour of peril. We are in our places here by virtue of the fact that they saved this Commonwealth, and it is our bounden duty to stand by those soldiers, and see that they get that which their services entitle them, with the least expense and difficulty possible. I say that there is no way in which they can do so easily, and with so little expense, as through the State agency. It does seem to me that if it was right to keep this office in existence during the last administration, that we should not have it abolished during the present one, especially when we take into consideration the fact that Governor Geary is as true a friend to the soldier as can be found. For that reason, I made the motion to go into committee of the whole, for the purpose of general amendment, and I do hope that the friends of the soldiers will see to it that the amendment of my friend from Beaver [Mr. QUAY] will not prevail, and that my motion will.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I presume that I am as good a friend of the State agency as the gentleman from Franklin [Mr. STUMBAUGH] is. I am willing to vote for the continuance of the State agency; but would ask the gentleman, now that the war is over, if it is necessary to have more than one State agent—I think a clerk there, instead of an assistant, is not sufficient.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, There seems to me to be as much business now as during the first two or three years. If I am not misinformed, there seems to be as great a demand for this agency now as ever; and, so long as there is a necessity for it, I apprehend that no gentleman who is a friend of the soldiers, will desire to have it abolished.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I am in favor of the amendment of the gentleman from Beaver [Mr. QUAY], as I believe we can accomplish the record for the soldiers in the way as in any other. I am not willing to put myself upon the record as being opposed to the soldiers. I have as much at heart the interests of the soldiers as any one upon this floor, and I take the privilege of choosing the course in which I think I can say that I am so influenced for them.

Mr. BARTON. Mr. Speaker, it is difficult to understand the anomalous position of a part of the members of this House with reference to this agency. It certainly does seem to me, Mr. Speaker, that this is one of the most desirable institutions which the State has or can have. The General Government has appropriated bounties, gratuities and annuities to the soldiers who have served in the late rebellion to a large amount. We have an agency established at Washington, through which this money can reach the soldiers without any cost or expense to them; yet gentlemen, professing to be the friends of these soldiers, can get up on this floor and desire the abolishing or crippling of this agency, so as to make it less effective than it has been or is at the present time. As it has been stated heretofore in relation to this question, that it is a very small cost to the State of collecting so large an amount of money as the General Government has seen fit, in its beneficence, to give to the soldiers, I think, sir, that we should not grudge this small amount in order that we may collect it, free of charge, for those soldiers.

The gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] says that this can be done as easily through the head of the department at Washington as through this State agency. He says they can get all the information they desire, by writing to the head of the department. They may get answers to their letters and blanks with requests to have them filled up and sent back to the department, but, sir, this is generally the last of it. They get their letters and blanks and fill them up to send them back, and there they lie month after month, and year after year, unless some one else attends to them, until the soldier may grow gray with age and die. If we abolish or cripple this agency, we compel these one armed and one legged soldiers, and widows and orphans of soldiers, who have fought our battles through the great rebellion, to go to local claim agents and pay a large per centage of the bounties, gratuities and annuities which they receive from the General Government. I cannot understand the hostility to this measure. I hope the motion of the gentleman from Franklin [Mr. STUMBAUGH] will prevail.

Mr. CHALFANT. I would like to ask the gentleman a question. Is it not true that those soldiers and the widows of soldiers that he speaks about do not invariably apply to local agents who pass the claims over to the claim agency at Washington?

Mr. BAILEY. If this is continued they need not apply to any local agency.

Mr. CHALFANT. It is invariably done.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. It is not done in my county or some other counties.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, it was not my intention, when this question was first raised this morning, to say anything on this subject. I said the other day, when we had the bill before the House, all that I felt it necessary for me to say in order to justify my vote upon the question. But, in view of some of the remarks which have been made, I desire to say that I do not consider that voting to abolish this agency is voting against the interests of the soldiers of the late war or their widows and children. I do not believe that abolishing this agency will increase the expense which they would necessarily incur in order to receive from the Government what, in her beneficence, she has seen proper to allow them. Now, I think that the State, in supporting this agency, supports an institution by means of, and through which, the soldiers of the late war or their widows or children can get pensions and gratuities or annuities any more readily than in the way which the General Government has provided. I say that, so far as the prosecution of these claims is concerned, this is nothing more than an institution for the distribution of blanks to soldiers, and I say that not one in a hundred of those soldiers can fill up these blanks without assistance.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. I would like to ask the gentleman a question. How many men in the regiment that he had the honor of commanding could not write their names?

Mr. LINTON. I do not know that any of them could not. Notwithstanding they could sign their names, any notwithstanding they received blanks with instructions, men having no experience in filling these blanks up required the same professional assistance to enable them to do it.

Mr. KIMMELL. Will the gentleman allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. LINTON. Yes, sir.

Mr. KIMMELL. Have you seen the blanks used by the State agency?

Mr. LINTON. I have.

Mr. KIMMELL. Are they not as plain as A B C to the comprehension of any man?

Mr. LINTON. Any professional man can fill them up, but I claim that only a small portion of those who were engaged in the late war can do it. I have filled up for soldiers in many instances myself.

This State Agency at Washington is an institution for furnishing these blanks, but the soldiers must get a professional man to fill them up, and pay about what would be charged for prosecuting the claims from the beginning. In addition to that, I claim that they do not get their claims through so rapidly. If any additional evidence is required, they send back to the local agent and he immediately prepares it and sends it on. Now, here is a great drawback, so far as this State agency is concerned. It is imperfect, in this respect, in case additional evidence is required. When application is made through the State agency the department sends it back to the State agency and afterwards it is sent to the applicant, who is then generally required to call in the aid of a professional man to enable him to get this additional evidence. There is a want of directness. I contend, therefore, that those who vote for abolishing this institution are not voting against the interests of the soldiers. I contend that there is a disadvantage connected with its perpetuity. I contend that this is not giving to the soldier gratis the amount allowed by Government, but that it is in fact paying out of the State treasury some two or three thousand dollars per annum without any commensurate benefit. I know that the amount is small, but when there is no use in it we can economize in that as well as in any other direction. I shall, therefore, vote against its continuance.

Mr. KIMMELL. I desire to ask the gentleman another question. Do you practice the claim agency business yourself?

Mr. LINTON. I desire to say that for a long time I did business through this State agency, until convinced that it was impossible to transact it satisfactorily through that agency. I then took out a license as an agent, on account of being applied to frequently by men of my own regiment. I do their business very frequently gratis.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. I would like to ask the gentleman what he charges for his services?

Mr. LINTON. I have more frequently done it gratis for the men of my regiment than the reverse.

Mr. BAILEY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman says that he abandoned the doing of business through the State agency because he could not do it satisfactorily to himself. That is probably true, because the State agent has stated that he always refuses to do business with the local claim agents, and that whenever an application was made through a local agent, it was discontinued, because they wanted to protect the soldiers and relieve them from having to pay anything to the local agents. That is the reason, I presume, that the gentleman has failed in this respect. Whenever it is possible, the State agency has desired that the application should be made directly by soldiers themselves.

Mr. LINTON. I have corresponded with the State agency, and have done some business through it, and I did not charge for any business done through that agency. These blanks came back frequently to be returned to the State agency, and I found there was trouble about getting them through directly, and that it was better to transact the business with the department at once. The department, I found, would furnish blanks just as full and complete as the State agency would.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, I certainly feel an interest in this matter. I have heard this institution assailed by those professing to be warm and ardent friends of the soldiers and their widows and orphans, who have been made so during the late war through which we have passed. I have had considerable to do with this State agency in different ways. I have applied to the agency for assistance in recovering the remains of soldiers who have fallen in battle in the South. I have found them prompt in giving every information and assistance that was in their power. I have many friends who have received assistance in some manner from this agency. I have also made application for widows and orphans of the men who fell in the late rebellion, for pensions and arrears of pay and bounty, through this agency, and I stand here to-day to say that all the claims that I have had in the hands of that agency, have been promptly attended to and adjudicated. I know enough about the working of that agency to know that they have a preference to the department at Washington. I know that they have advantages in the department at Washington that no local claim agent can have. I have filled up gratuitously a dozen and a half or twenty claims in my own immediate neighborhood, and sent them on to Washington to that agency. Though not myself in the claim agency business, I have filled them up and have taken the parties to Lancaster frequently to obtain the requisite evidence, and paid the expense out of my own pocket, instead of having them pay it to these local agents, and they have received their money without expending one cent. In behalf of those soldiers who have to make application, in behalf of those who have the bodies of friends in the South, I stand here to defend that agency against the unjust charges that have been made against it on this floor. I hope, for the credit of the great State of Pennsylvania, that this institution will still be continued in full force and effect until every claim has been fully prosecuted, until the business is completely wound up, which cannot be done before this and until the 1st of June or the first of February. What I shall we, for the paltry five or six thousand dollars a year, abolish that agency, that institution which is so decided a credit to the State of Pennsylvania—that has stood first and foremost among all the States of the Union, in taking care of her soldiers and their widows and orphans—shall we now, for the paltry sum of five or six thousand dollars, say that this institution shall be abolished? Shall we stand here and squander hundreds and thousands of dollars monthly and daily squander it say uselessly, and yet refuse to sustain that agency that has been of so much advantage and of such unbounded credit to the State of Pennsylvania?

I will go as far for retrenchment and reform in the right direction as any man on this floor, but I tell you that if I know it I will not be guilty of a mean act. I will not be guilty of enacting a law that will stand in the way of the soldiers, and the widows and orphans of the soldiers of the late rebellion. The mained soldiers that we have all around us appeal to us, the widows and orphans of the soldiers of the late war appeal to us on every street corner, that we, in our efforts, shall act fairly and justly in their behalf.

I say that we should continue this agency for their protection against the sharks that would fleece them out of the trifling pittance that the Government is disposed to give them. I desire to protect them from those who would charge one dollar or three fourths of all that comes from the Government for their services. I say let us continue this institution through which every man, woman and child having anything to do with that department can do it easily and without expense. I have already said more on this subject than I intended to say. I will only add that I hope this agency will continue to stand as it is at present.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I think it is in exceedingly bad taste for members upon this floor to attempt to make out that they are the peculiar friends of the soldier, and that when any bill is to be carried, the claims of the soldier must always be brought up. I think that is in bad taste. Let us test this bill upon its merits. I have said that I was in favor of abolishing this agency because it does not benefit the soldiers. I am willing to go so far as any man can go in behalf of the soldiers. My constituents are nearly all soldiers. There was hardly a man between the ages of twenty-one and forty-five in my district, that was not in the army, and a great many above the age of forty-five. Am I likely to oppose the soldier? I resent the insinuation as an insult. I say show me that this does benefit them and I will vote for its continuance, whether it cost ten or a hundred thousand dollars. I do not care anything about the amount if it is to do good. I am willing to vote cheerfully any amount of money that is for the benefit of the soldiers or their widows or children, but I am not willing to vote a single dollar that is not needed. That is where I stand. I do not care if it is a dollar or ten thousand dollars if it is not needed it ought not to be voted; but, if this bill is to go through, I do believe that those who consider that it is to benefit the soldiers are entirely mistaken.

Mr. ABMSTRONG. I would like to ask the gentleman if he knows any instances in which a soldier has been wronged or has suffered any wrong through this institution?

Mr. MANN. No, sir, not at all. What I say is, that they are not benefited by it, that they are delayed in the prosecution of their claims. And I will say here that Auditor French told me himself, in his own office, that claims were delayed by the introduction of agents of any description, and that soldiers and the widows and orphans of soldiers, by applying directly to him, would be likely to get their claims sooner than through any of the agents.

Mr. KIMMEL. Did he specify the State agency in that declaration?

Mr. MANN. No, sir; nor did he specify any particular agent. He said "any agent." I say that the testimony of Auditor French was, that the soldier who made application directly to him, without the intervention of any agency, would get his claim more certainly, readily and quickly than through the intervention of any agency. That is what he said. I, therefore, say that his attempt to put this bill through, because it will be a benefit to the soldier, is unfair. There is nothing in it. It seems to me, since this bill has been introduced, it has been discussed very thoroughly.

I have said that all my constituents are soldiers, but I have not received a letter from one of them asking for a continuance of this agency; and I venture to say that there is not a member upon this floor who has not a member upon this floor who has. But we have a resolution from Washington in favor of this bill, a personal application from men in position who are not soldiers, in favor of his agency. I concede that a few soldiers may have asked for the continuance of this agency, but what I assert is that I believe the majority of the members upon this floor have had no application asking them to retain this agency.— This resolution which was read from the Speaker's desk the other day, had a very suspicious tone to my mind. I dislike this attempt at dictation from such sources as that. Men here, confessedly in office at Washington, attempting to instruct the Legislature what to do to keep them there. That is simply what it means. If there had not been anything else here that would have determined my vote against a bill, I do not look for support coming from Washington, or for desire such as comes from my constituents. I have not received a single letter from one of my constituents asking for the continuance of this agency. I think that it is out of place for this Legislature to be instructed in this way; and it is further out of place to attempt to put a bill of this kind through on the claim that it is to benefit the soldiers, when there is not a man upon this floor who is not willing and anxious to benefit the soldiers every way that he can. The only question is how it is that to be done, whether by retaining this agency in Washington, or by having the soldiers apply directly to the department where they can get all they desire, with less trouble.

The hour of one o'clock having arrived, the SPEAKER proceeded to clear the table.

SPEAKER'S TABLE.

The SPEAKER cleared his table of Senate bills numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

Senate bill No. 196, an act regulating roads and bridges in Wayne county.

Referred to the Committee on Roads, Bridges and Ferries.

Senate bill No. 341, an act authorizing the Governor to incorporate a company to erect a bridge over the Yonghiohway river, at a point between the mouth of Dickerson's run and Taylor's fording, in the county of Fayette.

Referred to the Committee on Roads, Bridges and Ferries.

The SPEAKER adjourned the House until three o'clock this afternoon.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The House met at 3 o'clock, P. M., pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. CHADWICK. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. CHADWICK. Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended, and that the House proceed to the consideration of House bill No. 223, entitled An act to authorize the auditors to allow the school directors of Elizabeth township, county of Allegheny, a compensation for attending to the bounty business of said township.

The committee to whom the bill was referred reported it negatively for the want of a petition. Since then a petition has been received. As the parties concerned in this bill are suffering for the want of its passage, I hope the House will proceed to its consideration.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The bill was read and

Agreed to.

On motion,

The rules were suspended, the bill read a second and third times, and

Passed finally.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the indulgence of the House to pass

Senate bill No. 719, entitled An act to incorporate the Gettysburg asylum for invalid soldiers and to raise funds therefor, and for the securing and preserving of the battle grounds of Gettysburg.

I move that the orders be suspended, and that the House proceed to the consideration of the bill.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The bill was read and

Agreed to.

On motion, the rules were suspended,

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

The SPEAKER announced the next business in order to be the consideration of the motion to go into the committee of the whole on the bill relating to the State agency at Washington.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I move to postpone the consideration of the bill now before the House, and make it the special order for next Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. BARTON. Mr. Speaker, I hope the motion will not prevail. I do not see why we cannot occupy this afternoon in the consideration of this bill. A certain amount of time must be consumed in the consideration of this bill. I would state that the clerks in the employ of that agency have not been paid for two or three months, and are suffering on account of this non-payment. It is desirable to have this matter considered at the earliest possible moment.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask a modification of the motion before the House, and that the consideration of the bill be postponed until Wednesday morning next at 10 o'clock. I am seeking information. I will endeavor to obtain such information between this and next Wednesday morning as will clear up my own mind.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I accept the amendment.

The question being on postponing the further consideration of the bill until Wednesday morning next at 10 o'clock, and making it a special order for that time.

It was agreed to.

Mr. BREEN, Mr. Speaker, I move that Senate bill No. 483, be referred back to the Committee on Election Districts.

Agreed to.

Mr. LEE, Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn.

On the motion,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MANN and Mr. JOSEPHS, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Allen, Armstrong, Breen, Brennan, Chalfant, Colville, Harner, Headman, Hunt, Jones, Josephs, Koon, Lee, Linton, Long, McCanant, McHenry, McKee, Quay, Rhoads, Roth, Satterthwait, Shuman, Tharp, Westbrook and Wharton—26.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Barton, Brown, Calvin, Cameron, Chadwick, Craig, Davis, Day, Donoghue, Ewing, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Keras, Kimmell, Kinney, Kurtz, Leech, M'Pherrin, Mann, Markley, Mechling, Peters, Phelan, Pillow, Sharples, Subers, Watt, Webb, Whann, Wilson, Wingard, Wright and Glass, Speaker—35.

So the question was determined in the negative.

Mr. EWING, Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. EWING, Mr. Speaker, this morning I read a bill in place which related to the road laws of a certain township in Washington county. It is necessary that the bill should pass before the spring election, which will be held in a few days.

I move the Committee on Roads, Bridges and Ferries be discharged from the further consideration of the bill.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. EWING, I now move that the orders be suspended, and that the House proceed to the consideration of the bill.

Agreed to.

The bill was read and

agreed to.

On motion, the rules were suspended.

The bill was read a third time, and

Passed finally.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

The bill in title was No. 392, an act for the relief of Elias Toner, of York county.

Mr. MANN, Mr. Speaker, I move that the further consideration of the bill be postponed.

Mr. ROATH, Mr. Speaker, I hope that motion will not prevail.

A division of the House being called, the motion to postpone was

Not agreed to.

The question being on the final passage of the bill,

Mr. JENKS, Mr. Speaker, I hope this bill will not pass.

I have examined the facts in the case, and it presents an attempt on the part of the Legislature to interfere with the jurisdiction of the courts in a most unjustifiable manner. This man's case was heard and decided; he was justly convicted of embezzlement and punished. The fine was remitted by the Governor.

He was then in contempt of court; and an attachment was issued for that contempt. He returns in his power substantially so to do, and return the money he has unjustly taken from others in violation of a trust.

Mr. BARTON, Mr. Speaker, I would inquire of the gentleman from Jefferson [Mr.

JENKS] if he has proof that Toner is able to pay over that money?

Mr. JENKS, Mr. Speaker, I have here a statement of his case. His answers to the questions propounded to him are evasive, and he creates the impression that he has under his control a large portion of the money in dispute. I have it from the parties who tried the case, there is every reason to believe that he has under his control, although not immediately in his possession, the money he was ordered to pay. For his refusal to obey this order he has been imprisoned.

I have it also from those same persons that if the Legislature does not interfere in his case he will yield, in all probability, and return the money he had under his control. I consider it an act of immorality for any legislative body to interfere, except for the strongest possible reason, in favor of any person who, in violation of a trust, has squandered money committed to his care. When it is manifest that the punishment for his crime has not superinduced a disposition on his part to be honest and return that which he has unlawfully in his hands, when he persists in his wrong, it is a high act of immorality for the Legislature to interfere and release him.

To the courts have been committed the execution of the laws. They act upon a knowledge of all the facts, and what they do they do knowingly.

This is no light matter. There is no evidence that the court acted from passion or prejudice. There is no evidence that this man has not been heard. There is no evidence that he has been deprived of a single right. On the contrary, the evidence shows that he persists in his wrong.

Now, he comes and asks, on an insufficient petition, to be released from imprisonment. Any man conversant with judicial affairs will find, upon reading the petition, that it entirely fails to set out a case that justifies an interference on the part of the Legislature.

He does not pretend to say that the court has not given him the full benefit of every doubt; he does not pretend to say that witnesses have not been heard in his behalf; he does not pretend to say that the court acted with passion or prejudice; he does not pretend to say that the judge has done wrong in imprisoning him. The petition tacitly admits that he is in the wrong.

Mr. CAMERON, Mr. Speaker, I would inquire the amount of money involved in this case, and to whom it is due?

Mr. JENKS, I believe there were about ten thousand dollars in his hands. I gather from the testimony that he has been living idly, and that the money has been squandered. It is supposed that a great part of it is under his control. It is said if the Legislature does not interfere in his case that he will compromise with the heirs and return the money.

Mr. STUMBAUGH, Mr. Speaker, I would like to know on what authority the gentleman presumes to say a compromise may be effected?

Mr. JENKS, On the statement of counsel.

Mr. ROATH, Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will permit me, I will make a short statement of this case:

There were two executors. One of them lives in my town. They kept no account of the interest on the heavy expenses incurred for counsel fees, as they should have done. Besides the heirs there was an old woman who would like to have the handling of this estate. A suit was brought against the executor for embezzlement. The executor, who lives in the town in which I reside, had friends to compromise his case. The executor, now in prison, is so unfortunate as not to be able to compromise. The executor who lives in my town says he has not a dollar of that money in his possession.

I did not expect this bill to bring out a discussion. I have an engagement this evening; yet I desire to be present when a vote is taken on this bill. I will agree to have the bill laid over.

Mr. JENKS, That will be satisfactory.

Mr. ROATH, Mr. Speaker, I move that the further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

The motion was

Agreed to.

Mr. STUMBAUGH, Mr. Speaker, ought not that bill to be made a special order?

The SPEAKER, It will come up in its order after bills on third reading have been gone through with on a subsequent day.

The next bill in order was House bill No. 103, a supplement to an act appointing commissioners to lay out and open a State road in the counties of Potter and Clinton, approved the 16th day of March, A. D. 1864.

The question being on the final passage of the bill,

It was agreed to,

And the bill

Passed finally.

Bill No. 490, an act to incorporate the People's saving fund and safe deposit company.

The question being on the final passage of the bill,

It was

Agreed to,

And the bill

Passed finally.

Bill No. 363, an act to change the venue in the case of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania vs. John Shupe, Moritz Leib, Charles W. Everhart, Robert Alsop and Jonathan A. Waters, from the court of quarter sessions of the peace of Montgomery county to the court of quarter sessions of the peace in and for the city and county of Philadelphia.

The question being on the final passage of the bill,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WATT and Mr. MARKLEY, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Day, Donoghue, Ewing, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Humphrey, Josephs, Kennedy, Keras, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, McKee, M'Pherrin, Mechling, Meily, Peters, Pillow, Quay, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Stumbaugh, Watt, Whann, Wilson, Wingard, Wright and Glass, Speaker—39.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyd, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Harner, Headman, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, McHenry, Meish, Mann, Markley, Phelan, Rhoads, Robinson, Satterthwait, Tharp, Webb and Westbrook—25.

So the question was determined in the affirmative,

And the bill

Passed finally.

Mr. MANN, Mr. Speaker, I move the House take up Senate bill No. 320, an act to pay Berry Lewis four hundred dollars.

Agreed to.

The bill was read and

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended, the bill read a second and third times, and

Passed finally.

Mr. SEILER, Mr. Speaker, I move that the orders be suspended for the purpose of considering Senate bill No. 444, a supplement to the act of March 19, 1860, making further provision for the government of the city of Harrisburg.

Mr. HIRSHON, Mr. Speaker, on that motion I call for a division of the question.

The bill, as I understand it, is objectionable.

ble to a portion of the inhabitants of the city of Harrisburg. This important bill ought not to be passed at this time, when so few of the members are present. It should be deliberately considered by the House.

The question being on the first division, which calls for a suspension of the rules generally,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. LINTON and Mr. RHOADS, and were as follows, viz :

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, Day, Donohugh, Ewing, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Mann, Mechling, Meily, Peters, Pillow, Quay, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stumbaugh, Subers, Watt, Webb, Whann, Wilson, Wingard, Wright and Glass, Speaker—42.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyd, Breen, Calvin, Chalfant, Craig, Harner, Hunt, Jenks, Joseph, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Markley, Phelan, Rhoads, Tharp and Westbrook—20.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The bill was read.

The first, second, third, fourth and fifth sections were

Agreed to.

In the sixth section Mr. LINTON moved to amend by striking out the words "president judge."

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, will any one who has the management of this bill, inform me why it is necessary to put in the power of the president judge to assist in the selection of constables?

By request of Mr. SEILER, the following extract from the auditor's report was read to show that police and constable fees were paid by the county of Dauphin :

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I am inquiring for information, because there are some things so unusual in the manner in which this bill was gotten up, something so exceedingly shrewd; something that looks so like cunning about it; something so innocent, so childlike, so lamblike on the part of the gentleman who represents Dauphin county, that I suspected there was something wrong about it. And that is the reason I ask this question. It is said by one of the old authors, "We fear the Greeks when they carry gifts," and whenever I see a gentleman come up before this body with an extraordinary affectation of integrity, all over smiles, and kind and gentle, and lamblike, and amiable in his disposition; and when I take into consideration that he happens to be in this condition because he imagines he has two-thirds of his party friends here, and that he can force on a measure, then, sir, I am ready to suppose there is something unfair in the transaction.

This is nothing less than an attempt to deprive the city of Harrisburg of the rights which it has in the law that created it into a city; an attempt to change the organic law of the city without a fair hearing, to change it hurriedly, to change it without permitting the citizens thereof to be heard—and fairly heard—to change the entire direction of municipal affairs, and place them in the hands of a new set of authorities, and in the hands of a president judge who is under no special obligations to perform the duties required of him towards Dauphin county.

In the whole history of jurisprudence in this Commonwealth there is nothing like this, nothing like an attempt to deprive a city of its just right to control its own affairs. I know very well we are in the hands of a majority here. I know you can do as you please, gentlemen, in this matter; you can do this great wrong if you wish to. You have the numbers to do it. By the forms of law you have the power; but you have not the right. There is a difference between power and right. What is proposed this afternoon is for no good and sufficient reasons; but merely because there happens to be a power to accomplish the purpose.

Mr. DONOHUGH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman whether the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania does not appoint local officers for Philadelphia?

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I do not know what relation this Supreme Court sustains to the city of Philadelphia in all respects.

Mr. DONOHUGH. They appoint one-fourth of the guardians for the poor, one-fourth of the board of prison inspectors and one-fourth of the board of health.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, if that be so, the city of Philadelphia requested their laws to be made in that manner. But that is not so with Harrisburg.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I understood the gentleman from Jefferson as desirous of avoiding an unnecessary consumption of the time of the House.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I do not intend to occupy the attention of this House unnecessarily, but I do intend by every possible means to prevent the passage of this bill at present.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I heard the gentleman say he was determined to talk this session out, and not to let this bill pass. If he did not mean that I am willing to forgive him for the indiscreet expression.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman did not hear correctly. I said I could do it; and I said this bill should not pass if I could prevent it.

There are others to be heard. I don't wish to keep the House unnecessarily occupied.

Mr. COLVILLE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

On the motion,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. LINTON and Mr. LONG, and were as follows, viz :

YEAS—Messrs. Boyd, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Colville, Craig, Gordon, Harner, Hunt, Jenks, Joseph, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Markley, Mechling, Phelan, Rhoads, Robinson, Satoriswazi, Tharp and Westbrook—26.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, Day, Donohugh, Ewing, Gallagher, Ghegan, Harbison, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Mann, Meily, Peters, Pillow, Quay, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stumbaugh, Subers, Watt, Webb, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Wright and Glass, Speaker—40.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The SPEAKER announced the question as being on the amendment of the gentleman from Cambria [Mr. LINTON], to strike out the words "president judge."

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I call the previous question.

The call for the previous question was sustained by Messrs. Quay, Pillow, Harbison, Allen, Seiler, Mann, Brown, Chase, Steacy, Subers, Kinney and Kerns.

The SPEAKER. The question is, Shall the main question be now put?

On the question,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. LINTON and Mr. MAISH, and were as follows, viz :

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Barton, Brown, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, Day, Donohugh, Ewing, Gallagher, Gordon, Harbison, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Kee, Mann, Mechling, Meily, Peters, Pillow, Quay, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Stacey, Subers, Watt, Webb, Wilson, Wingard, Wright and Glass, Speaker—37.

 NAYS—Messrs. Boyd, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Colville, Craig, Harner, Hunt, Jenks, Josephs, Koon, Kurts, Linton, Long, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Maish, Phelan, Rhoads, Satterthwait and Westbrook—22.
 So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The question being on the amendment of the gentleman from Cambria [Mr. LINTON] to strike out, in the sixth section, the words "president judge."

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. CHALFANT and Mr. MARKLEY, and were as follow, viz :

YEAS—Messrs. Boyd, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Colville, Craig, Harner, Hunt, Jenks, Josephs, Koon, Kurts, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Maish, Markley, Phelan, Rhoads, Satterthwait, Westbrook and Glass, Speaker—23.

YEAS—Messrs. Adair, Allen, Barton, Brown, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, Day, Donoghue, Ewing, Gallagher, Ghegan, Gordon, Harbison, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kiener, Lee, Leech, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Mann, Meehling, Meily, Peters, Pillow, Quay, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stambaugh, Subers, Watt, Webb, Whann, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward and Wright—41.

So the question was determined in the negative.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a personal explanation

I have been told that I used language imputing dishonesty on the part of the gentleman from Dauphin [Mr. SEILER]. If I used that language it was in an unguarded moment. I will not wilfully do wrong to any man, much less to a member of this body. If any insinuation of that kind was made it is withdrawn. I certainly do not wish to imply that the gentleman from Dauphin is dishonest, or controlled by improper motives.

The seventh, eighth and ninth sections of the bill were then read and

Agreed to.

The title was then read, the bill ordered to be transcribed and passed to third reading.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I ask the indulgence of the House to call up Senate bill No. 818, an act to reduce the capital stock of the Stroudsburg Bank, and ask that it be put upon its passage.

Mr. HARBISON. Mr. Speaker, I move that the Committee on Education be discharged from the further consideration of bill No. 838, an act to authorize the school directors of Taylor school district, in Lawrence county, to borrow money.

Agreed to.

On motion, the House proceeded to its consideration.

The rules being suspended, the bill was read a second and third time, and

Mr. CHASE. Mr. Speaker, I read in my place and present to the Chair a supplement to the act regulating the courts of the Sixth Judicial district, passed ———, 1867.

I move that the rules be suspended, and that the House proceed to its consideration.

Agreed to.

The bill was read and

The rules being dispensed with,

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Mr. WRIGHT. Mr. Speaker, yesterday I read in my place and presented to the Chair bill No. 841, an act to authorize the payment to Nicholas Simon, a soldier in the war to suppress the rebellion, a gratuity and annuity on account of the loss of one of his hands.

It has been referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

I move the committee be discharged from its further consideration.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, I understand this is the case of a soldier of the late war. It might, perhaps, be proper to grant him a gratuity, but it is conferring an annuity at a time when it should not be conferred, because so few of the members of the House are present. It is a subject that should properly be considered by the Committee of Ways and Means. They should reflect upon it; because if we establish this precedent, doubtless there are many other cases that have the same right to be heard. I submit that it would perhaps be improper to consider the bill at this time.

Mr. WRIGHT. Mr. Speaker, I think when the gentleman hears an explanation he will be satisfied. The facts of the case are simply these. Nicholas Simon enlisted in April, 1861, at the very outset of the rebellion. He went through the whole war, and was discharged in June, 1865, without having been home in the meanwhile.

Upon returning to Harrisburg he found he could not be mustered out until after July. He then obtained permission from his Lieutenant-Colonel to visit his home. It was on the way thither that the musket of one of his comrades was accidentally discharged, tearing away his hand.

He can get no pension from the United Government. He is a poor man, and has a family to maintain. Unless Pennsylvania takes care of him he must depend upon private charity.

I hope the bill will be allowed to come before the House. If any gentleman can see anything wrong in it I am willing that it shall lie over.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I would inquire the amount appropriated by this bill.

Mr. WRIGHT. It asks for a gratuity of one hundred dollars, and one hundred dollars annually thereafter. This is the only way this soldier can be provided for.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, this way of legislating is a little objectionable. This bill was referred to the committee but yesterday; of course it has been impossible to give it any attention. It is bringing the question upon the House in a way that is calculated, as has been remarked, to furnish a precedent.

Mr. WRIGHT. Mr. Speaker, I do not desire to rush anything of this kind through the House. But I fear the bill will probably not be reached this session. It is a meritorious case, and for that reason I have made my motion.

The committee having been discharged, the question was on the motion to proceed to the consideration of the bill.

It was

Agreed to.

The bill was read and

Agreed to.

The rules being suspended, the bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I move to discharge the Committee on Corporations from the further consideration of Bill No. 842, an act to incorporate the Home for the Friendless, in the city of Harrisburg, and county of Dauphin.

And that the House proceed to the consideration of the bill.

Agreed to.

The bill was read and

Agreed to.

The rules being suspended, the bill was read a second and a third time, and

Passed finally.

PETITIONS, REMONSTRANCES, &c.

Mr. RIDGWAY presented the petition of Lydia Longstreth, praying for the liberty of franchise for the freedmen.

The petition was read as follows:

To the Senate of Pennsylvania:

While the energies of the friends of freedmen are being directed to the liberty of franchise for the freedmen, the citizens of Pennsylvania might well show the example by giving to the colored people of this State the right to which they are justly entitled. How can we, with any degree of sincerity, ask the masters of slaves to give the freedmen this privilege, when Pennsylvania, foremost in all good settlements, withhold the boon that would at once insure the settlement of the States lately in rebellion?

The intelligence of so large number of the colored people demands that they should participate in a government that their orderly conduct and pecuniary means unite to support. We read that God made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth; then why deny a right to them which other nations, on certain limitation, are admitted to partake?

Believing the affairs of the country will never settle, until the inherent right is meted to all, I want a speedy action taken on this subject. It may be said thy brother's blood crieth to thee from the ground; lest that sin, that was aforetime, cling to us, let us hasten to do justice.

LYDIA LONGSTRETH.

Messrs. BIGHAM, WHITE, BILLINGFELT and COLEMAN, the memorialists of citizens of Pennsylvania, residing along the line of Pennsylvania railroad, complaining of the rates charged by said company on local freights, and asking for relief.

The petition was read as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Pennsylvania:

The memorial of the undersigned, inhabitants of the interior of the State, on the line of the Pennsylvania railroad, represents that they are seriously injured by the discriminating freight list that company against them, by their construction of the following paragraph in the act of Assembly of March 7, 1861:

"The local rates from Philadelphia to Pittsburg, to stations on line of Pennsylvania railroad, shall at no time exceed the gross rates charged between Philadelphia and Pittsburg. Nor shall local rates between any two stations on the road exceed the through rates."

The Pennsylvania railroad company assume, by their interpretation of these words, that they may charge full rates for any distance they please on the road. They now charge, by their freight list (which we append), full rates for half distance—and less than half distance.

We ask your honorable body to amend this act, and prevent the discriminations of this company against the State that confers their privileges, and fix the local rates per mile on the ratio of through rates.

This "freight list" shows that on going westward they charge an average of fifty per centum more for the fourteen miles from Harrisburg to Duncannon than for the one hundred and twelve miles from Philadelphia to Harrisburg, which is charging four times more, or four hundred per centum more per mile, for these fourteen miles, than for the one hundred and twelve. Nearly the same ratio extends up the valley of the Juniata, until the heavy fourth class freight reaches the maximum at Mapleton, two hundred and one miles. From thence this company carry the same goods one hundred and fifty-nine miles, to Pittsburg, for nothing—as per the freight list.

The same evil system obtains eastward. Heavy class goods are charged full freight for less than half distance.

We are borne to the earth by these discriminating charges of the Pennsylvania railroad company. No man can carry on a manufacturing business near the centre of the line of this railroad to advantage. He has to pay a full freight on the whole amount of his supplies from either end of the road. After he manufactures he has to pay a full freight again to the other end of the road. This system is like a two-edged sword—it cuts him both ways. No farmer's land is worth any more in the centre of this railroad than at its western terminus. It costs full rates to ship his produce, and there are no manufactures to consume it. Our immense water power is valueless—our coal and ores undeveloped, or shipped at no profit—our timber is rotting—our towns are lying dead or dormant, and the greater part of our young population are emigrating. We are crushed by these charges, and we appeal to you for relief.

We ask you to legislate for the interests of the State of Pennsylvania—the cities of Philadelphia and Pittsburg—and those of the Pennsylvania railroad company—which we assert are identical. We insist that no number of these can thrive so well, as by having a thriving "Interior." That if our manufactures and population are doubled, their interests are doubled also.

The Pennsylvania railroad company aver that the coal freights do not pay so well as other freights. We ask that you will give us regular ratio "per mile" rates. We can then erect works to smelt our ores with our coal, and instead of sending the raw material to "tide water," at no profit to us, can make such manufactures of iron and steel as the Pennsylvania railroad company can double their money by carrying, and Philadelphia shall become a much greater iron and steel shipping port than Liverpool—as the coal and ores of Pennsylvania exceed those of England.

When, by a system of manufacturing, we double our population, their passenger list will also double.

We also ask you to revise the passenger list, that there may be no discrimination in that.

We, of the interior, are charged, on this line, one dollar and forty-five cents more than the regular through rates for each passenger.

And we will ever pray, &c.

On motion of Mr. SHOEMAKER, the Senate reconsidered the vote on the final passage of bill No. 592, entitled An act to authorize the Lehigh coal and navigation company to build branch railroads.

And the title being again before the Senate, Mr. SHOEMAKER asked and obtained the unanimous consent of the Senate to amend the same by striking out the manuscript proviso.

The bill as amended was then Passed finally.

POWER OF COURTS TO CREATE CORPORATIONS.

On motion of Mr. WALLACE, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act vesting in the courts of common pleas of this Commonwealth increased powers in the creation of corporations.

In committee of the whole [Mr. RIDGWAY in the chair], the bill was read as follows:—
Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the provisions of the several acts of Assembly of this Commonwealth conferring on the respective courts of common pleas authority to incorporate literary, charitable, religious or beneficial associations, be, and they are hereby, extended to associations for the erection of market houses, public halls and buildings to be used for the purpose of beneficial associations; and such jurisdiction shall exist whether said buildings are to be used exclusively for such purposes or partly therefor, and partly for other lawful purposes.

The committee rose and reported the bill without amendments.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

COMMUTATION OF DEATH PUNISHMENT.

On motion of Mr. WALLACE, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of an act entitled An act authorizing the commutation of the death punishment in certain cases.

In committee of the whole, Mr. McCORMACK in the chair, the first section was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That in cases of conviction of, and sentence for, murder in the first degree, the Governor may, upon the petition of the person convicted, grant to such convict a pardon upon such conditions, with such restrictions, and upon such limitations, as he deems proper; and he may issue his warrant to all proper officers to carry such pardon into effect, which warrant shall be obeyed and executed instead of the sentence originally awarded, and the terms and conditions upon which such pardon is granted shall be specified and set forth in the warrant as aforesaid issued: Provided, That in all cases in which sentence of death shall hereafter be pronounced no conditional pardon shall be granted unless a majority of the judges of the court before whom the convict hath been tried, one of whom shall be a presiding or law judge, shall advise and recommend such conditional pardon.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Chairman, the reasons for introducing this bill, and putting it upon its passage, are, that there are now in the prisons of this Commonwealth some twelve or fifteen persons under sentence of death, for whom no death warrants have been issued. The Governor, now in office, and his predecessors, did not deem it their duty to issue them. These men cannot be sent to prison for life, nor can they be executed; nothing can be done for them but to keep them in the prison in the county in which they were convicted. This is a state of affairs disgraceful to our judicial system and inhuman in its effect upon the criminal, and we should remedy it in some way. All persons familiar with the operations of our higher criminal courts know that cases of conviction in which the evidence is not strong enough to satisfy the judicial mind, although it may satisfy the jury; and in such cases, upon full examination of the facts, it seems to me to be wise that the power given by this bill should be vested in the Governor, and that he should have the right to grant a conditional pardon when such is recommended and advised by the court before whom the convict hath been tried. A great many other States in the Union have provisions of this kind; the bill before us has been drawn mainly from the Massachusetts statute, the terms of their Constitution upon the subject of pardon being similar to those of our own.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Chairman, might this not result in abolishing capital punishment? Mr. LOWRY. I hope so.

Mr. HALL. I cannot say I do. I understand that there are, as the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] says, a certain number of persons in the prisons of the State who are under sentence of death, warrants never having been issued, and there they will remain forever, unless the Legislature does something. I think something should be done in these particular cases, and that the Legislature ought to take some action. But I understand this to go further. If the Governor happened to be opposed to capital punishment, and if the president judge, before whom the case was tried, happened to agree with the Governor, it would result in abolishing capital punishment as to the particular case. That may be right, as the Senator from Erie [Mr. LOWRY] thinks, and as the venerable editor of the New York Tribune has been preaching for a long time past, but she has not convinced me. Still, in these cases referred to, I agree, some power should be given.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Chairman, the purpose of the bill is not intended to produce the effect that the Senator from Blair [Mr. HALL] supposes it might have. When we have a general statute inflicting the death punishment, and there is no attempt made to repeal that statute, it seems scarcely possible that a judge, unless he has doubts as to the testimony, would agree to recommend that the death punishment should be commuted. It seems to me we can safely trust with the judiciary of this Commonwealth this power. I think that in the bill there are sufficient guards. I do not seek to abolish capital punishment, but simply to mitigate the rigors of the law, in cases where all feel that there might have been a lingering doubt. This is the whole purpose of the bill.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Chairman, our attention has been called by the late Governor, two or three times, to this matter. I think that we ought by all means to legislate in the form proposed. The operation of the Executive Department has been an exceedingly vexatious one, for the reason that the Executive is called upon each year to revise the whole thing. Where a person is under sentence of death by the court, the record of which has been submitted to the Governor then in office, unless he issues a death warrant, the succeeding Governor has in no case, so far as I am aware, issued a death warrant. Of course there are cases which occur shortly before he comes into office, in which the proceedings perhaps have not been submitted. Whenever the Executive in office has had the papers in regard to a murder in the first degree submitted to him, the incoming Governor, I believe, has never issued a death warrant.

This bill does not abolish the death penalty, by any means. The Governor, president judge, and at least one of the associates, must concur before this can go into effect at all. It strikes me that those who favor a general abolition of the death penalty ought to vote for this bill, as meeting the most pressing and necessary cases. I will support this bill very cordially; I think it will relieve the Executive, and enable him to make up his mind in cases of this kind. The last case was that of Cross, who was convicted, and is in the Philadelphia penitentiary.

Mr. CONNELL. No, sir; he is out.

Mr. BIGHAM. In that case a pardon was got on papers that were a forgery. He was taken to Washington, in charge of detectives; he was returned to the prison—a writ of habeas corpus having been taken out—and it was claimed that the pardon was absolute, and no conditions could be imposed; and I know that, in the opinion of Mr. Meredith, the right to grant conditional pardons, as suggested in this bill, is free from all doubt. Considering all these points, the concurrence of judicial authority, and the probable present phase of the public mind on this subject, I should be glad to see this bill pass.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the first section?

Mr. LOWRY moved to amend the same by striking out all after the word "provided," and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"That in all cases where persons are convicted of murder in the first degree, and the criminal is under sentence of death, the Governor shall have authority to commute the sentence to imprisonment for life."

Mr. HALL. That will abolish capital punishment.

Mr. LOWRY. Not necessarily; but it carries out, in my judgment, the ends of justice. We find, sir, by our experience, that men are convicted of murder, and the courts have power either to sign a death warrant or a pardon. I do think that it is not asking too much to give the Governor of the Commonwealth power to say whether he will sign the death warrant of a man, or commit him to imprisonment for life. I will make no lengthy remarks. It is my desire to test the feelings of the Senate in regard to this question.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Chairman, the amendment offered by the Senator from Erie [Mr. LOWRY] will perhaps vitiate and destroy the whole bill. It has been drawn in the form of a bill for conditional pardon. The Constitution provides that the Governor of the Commonwealth shall have power to remit fines and grant pardons. There is no express power given to commute; hence the bill has been drawn in its present form.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Chairman, I think that the Senator entirely misapprehends this case. He brings in a bill to allow the Governor to commute the sentence of death, as he may see proper, and yet he denies that the Legislature has the power to say that the Governor may have the right to commute the sentence from death to imprisonment for life. Now, sir, I cannot spin out the law that fine. If this Legislature has power over the subject at all, it has power to go as far as that amendment proposes. If the Legislature has power to say to the Governor that those already convicted shall have a conditional pardon, they have the power to say that those convicted hereafter shall have a conditional pardon. I think the Senator has not paid much attention to this amendment.

Mr. WALLACE. I have taken special pains not to use the word "commute" in any portion of the bill.

Mr. LOWRY. I will modify my amendment, then, so that it will read as follows:

"That in all criminal convictions for murder, and where the criminal is under sentence of death, the Governor may grant a conditional pardon from death to that of imprisonment for life."

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Chairman, the purpose of the Senator from Erie is to vest this power in the Governor. Now he had better be willing to take what this bill gives, than undertake to grasp more than he can perhaps get. He certainly does not wish to be impracticable. We do not know the temper of the Senate on this subject. Let us be satisfied with vesting this power in the Governor, with the assent of the majority of the court before whom the criminal is tried, to grant a conditional pardon. That is as far as it is advisable to go now, in my opinion. I think the Senate is not now prepared to enter upon the wide field, the debatable ground, of capital punishment. I do not intend to enter upon that at all. I desire the bill to pass as it is. In it I have used terms that are usual in such bills, and it seems to me that we should stand by words that have received a judicial construction, and not attempt to put upon the statute book words like these, that have not been well weighed and well considered.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Chairman, in Pennsylvania the law is, if a man is convicted of murder in the first degree, he shall be hung. That, of course, has to take place before a jury of his peers, and a judge learned in the law.

Now, the Senator from Erie [Mr. LOWRY] proposes an amendment, that, after all this is done, the Governor—one man—may come to the conclusion that the court and jury erred, and that he ought to have been convicted of murder in the second degree. In other words, he proposes to abolish the penalty altogether, or put it in the hands of one man, and that not the man who tried the case, and that this one man shall have the power to say: "This man shall not die, he cannot be was improperly convicted of murder in the first degree." I have perfect confidence in the Governor, but that is a power which I never will agree to give to any Governor in the world. I do not object to this bill going as far as the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] desires. If I had the same views of the Senator from Erie [Mr. LOWRY], I would go the whole length, and go for abolishing capital punishment altogether.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Chairman, where the Governor, whether from conviction after reviewing the testimony, or whether from newly discovered evidence, or from any cause whatever—even that of repentance—where the Governor finds mitigating circumstances, I would give him the power to say to the criminal that he can be imprisoned for life. I would go further if I could. I would abolish capital punishment altogether. But this Senate is not prepared for that. But I trust they are prepared to say to the Governor of this State that, after reviewing the whole case, and the circumstances attending it, he may commute the death penalty to imprisonment for life.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Chairman, there seems to be a conflict of opinion in this case. I desire simply to make a suggestion which may perhaps remove all difficulties. If I understand the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE], there are now sixteen persons in prison within this Commonwealth who have been found guilty of murder in the first degree. Bear that in mind, and also the number of persons having pardons that offense. It strikes me that life is not entirely secure in Pennsylvania, and, in view of that fact, might it not be well to apply to the authorities at Washington to have the State of Pennsylvania erected into a military department, and placed under a military despot, and in that way relieve the Governor from these troublesome questions? They would then have control, and could make such rules as to them seemed proper, and not be troubled by any constitutional questions, which seem to be growing out of fashion every day. We have to hear of great deal, a few years ago, as to the necessity of the institutions of this country becoming homogeneous, that the country could not exist half slave and half free, that it must be all the one thing or all the other, and perhaps it may be that this country cannot exist under a government half civil and half military. If there is no danger from that source, and we must believe, from the immense vote in favor of a military government, it may be well to consider the matter and ask ourselves whether we should not be doing the right thing to apply to the Congress of the United States to do what I have suggested.

Mr. LANDON. Mr. Chairman, I do not propose to discuss the question before us at all. I have sometimes had some doubts as to the mercy, not to say the justice and propriety of hanging. But really, after hearing the remarks of the Senator from Berks [Mr. DAVIS] upon this subject, I should not be prepared to-night to vote for the abolition of the death penalty by hanging. I think the rope should be kept in existence until some of the Democratic rebels in this country are disposed of.

Mr. DAVIS. I hope that when that time comes, I may meet the Senator from Bradford [Mr. LANDON].

Mr. LANDON. I should find myself in very bad company, that is all.

Mr. BIGHAM. If it is the intention to raise the whole question of abolishing capital punishment, I agree with the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE], that we had better take things as we find them. I do not think this amendment will meet the views of the Senator from Erie [Mr. LOWRY]. If he wants to test the question, he had better move to strike out the proviso altogether.

On the question,
Will the committee agree to the amendment offered by the Senator from Erie?

It was

Not agreed to.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. WALLACE moved to amend the same, by adding to the end thereof the following: "and provided further, That no right to expiate any convict shall exist by virtue hereof."

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Chairman, my reason for that amendment is to exact the conclusion that the Governor, in granting a pardon, shall not have power to send a person out of the country; otherwise, he might have that power.

The amendment

Was agreed to.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Chairman, I do not propose to discuss this question. I feel very much like the Senator from Berks [Mr. DAVIS] and the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE]. I have old-fashioned prejudices upon the subject, and, as long as this bill was designed to remedy some existing evil—as the first section is certainly designed to do, I would have no objection to it. But I confess that I am not altogether prepared to give this proviso my concurrence. I simply rise to ask the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] not to put the bill upon its final passage to-night.

Mr. WALLACE. I have no desire to press the bill; I wish a full deliberation.

Mr. WHITE. I understand from the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] that it is almost a transcript of the Massachusetts law. I merely wish to examine, and satisfy my own judgment in that regard.

The first section, as amended, was then

Agreed to.

The second section was read as follows:

SEC. 2. It shall be and it is hereby made the duty of the sheriffs, wardens, jailors and keepers of prisons, and each of them, to whom the custody of such would be committed, if the terms and conditions of such pardon had been the sentence of the court trying him, to receive the person of the convict under and in accordance with the terms, limitations and restrictions of the warrant of the Governor, and to do and perform those things in reference to his or her continued custody which it would be his or their duty to do if the terms and conditions of the said warrant had been the sentence of the court in which the convict was tried.

The section was

Agreed to.

The third section was read as follows:

SEC. 3. When a convict is pardoned upon conditions to be by him or her performed, or with restrictions and limitations, the officer to whom the warrant for that purpose is issued shall, as soon as may be, after executing the same, make return thereof, with his doings therein, to the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and shall also file, in the clerk's office of the court in which the offender was convicted, an attested copy of the warrant and return a brief abstract, whereof the clerk shall submit to the record of the conviction and sentence.

The section was

Agreed to.

The committee then rose and reported the bill as amended.

The bill was read a second time, and laid over for a third reading.

CODIFICATION OF THE LAWS OF THE STATE.

On motion of Mr. WALLACE, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled joint resolution relative to the revival of the civil laws of Pennsylvania.

In committee of the whole (Mr. FISHER in the chair),

The first section was read as follows:

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the Governor be, and he is hereby, authorized and required to appoint three persons, learned in the laws of this Commonwealth, as commissioners, to revise, collate and digest all such public acts and statutes of the civil code of this State as are general and permanent in their nature, excepting those statutes revised, codified and enacted under the resolution approved March twenty-third, one thousand eight hundred and thirty.

Mr. BIGHAM. It is proposed to again revise the penal code?

Mr. WALLACE. It is solely in reference to civil laws; they have become so voluminous that it has become necessary to have a codification.

Mr. WHITE. Do you intend to include the tax law?

Mr. WALLACE. No, sir; I do not intend

Daily Legislative Record.

FOR THE SESSION OF 1867.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY OF THE LEGISLATURE OF PENNSYLVANIA. No. 61.

TERMS OF THE DAILY RECORD.

THE DAILY RECORD will be furnished to Members of the Legislature and others at the following rates:

Members desiring extra copies of the Record, will please leave their names and the number of copies wanted at the publication office.

to include the tax laws; they are under another jurisdiction.

Mr. WHITE. Might I suggest the propriety of including them?

Mr. WALLACE. It seems to me it would not be wise; the same men who would collate the judicial system might not be capable of revising the tax laws.

Mr. COLEMAN. I would like to ask if it is not a fatal stab at my friend, Purdon?

Mr. WALLACE. I think it is, sir.

Mr. LOWRY. I am sorry to hear the Senator refuse to include the subject of taxation.

Mr. CONNELL. Mr. Chairman, the subject of taxation is totally foreign to that, and is as different as is the sun to the moon. It requires a totally different order of talent.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Chairman, the inquiry about taxation was not by my own motion. I contented it was suggested to me by the financial officer of the Commonwealth; and, as I understand it, this bill is for the purpose of collating the laws of the Commonwealth of general application, and I cannot see why the tax law should not be included. If it meets the approbation of the Senator who has this bill in charge, I would suggest that we increase this commission to five men, three of whom shall be learned in the law. That will authorize the Governor to appoint two persons of experience, who can give the legal gentlemen their suggestions.

Mr. WALLACE. I think it wise to have a separate commission for that purpose. It would be mingling the two things together, and create confusion. I have no doubt that there is as much necessity for a commission in that line as the other; but let three men be appointed who understand the subject.

Mr. WHITE. Very well, I do not make any motion.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Chairman, it may not be proper to include it in this bill, but I do say, if there is a subject in the Commonwealth that nobody understands, it is the tax laws of the State, and I think a reformation is wanted in that respect more than in any other; and I have just been reminded that it was some years ago proposed that the revenue law of the Commonwealth should be revised. Men were appointed for that purpose, but in consequence of the war coming on, the plan was never carried out.

Mr. CONNELL. The commission made a report.

Mr. COLEMAN. There was a commission appointed, who made a report, and afterwards there was a committee of the House appointed who reported a tax bill, and the Senate would not consider it.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Chairman, this discussion shows what difficulties we should get into by mixing these two matters. The one would interfere with the other.

Mr. McCONAUGHY. I think we had better let the bill stand just as it is. The tax laws embrace a very large department, calling for experience and knowledge. Let us have men learned in the law to codify the laws of the State, and let us have a separate commission in regard to the tax laws.

Mr. BIGHAM. My suggestion would be that the State Treasurer, Auditor General, and two or three others, be named in the bill to revise the tax laws, inasmuch as there is a constitutional difficulty in the way of the Governor's naming anybody connected with legislation. The Governor, in 1862, I think, appointed a commission, who made report upon that subject; but we had better take this in the form in which it is, and then provide that the financial officers shall revise the tax laws.

The first section was then

Agreed to.

The second section was read as follows:

SEC. 2. That it shall be the duty of the revisers to carefully collect and reduce into one act the different acts and parts of acts which, from similarity of subjects, ought to be so arranged and consolidated, to divest the said acts of all useless verbiage, to arrange the several acts under proper titles and sections, to omit all such acts or parts of acts as shall have been repealed or supplied, or which have expired, to suggest to the Legislature such contradictions, omissions or imperfections as may appear in the statutes, and the mode in which the same may be reconciled, supplied or amended, to designate the acts or parts of acts which ought to be repealed, and recommend the passage of such new acts as such repeal may render necessary, and generally to execute the duties hereby confided to them, in such a manner as to render the statute laws of Pennsylvania more simple, plain and perfect: Provided, That in such revision of the statutes no such change shall be made in their phraseology as will in anywise impair, alter or affect their true intent and meaning, except in those instances in which it shall be expressly proposed to amend or change the existing provisions of said statutes.

The section was

Agreed to.

The third section was read as follows:

SEC. 3. That the said revisers shall, immediately upon the completion of their labors upon each specific head or subject embraced in said statutes, make report thereof to the Legislature, with the necessary bill prepared and notes of the changes proposed, if any, and shall also revise, collate, and digest, in connection with the statutes revised and enacted under the resolution approved March twenty-third, one thousand eight hundred and thirty, all legislation enacted upon those subjects since the date of said enactment, in such form that the Legislature may, if it deem proper, re-enact the whole in one code; and upon the entire completion of their labors, they shall make a final report, embodying the whole of the duties by them performed.

The section was

Agreed to.

The fourth section was read as follows:

SEC. 4. That the said revisers shall be allowed the term of two years, if necessary, to complete the duties assigned to them in and by these resolutions, and in the execution thereof, they shall have free access to any public records or papers of the State, without fee or reward.

The section was

Agreed to.

The fifth section was read as follows:

SEC. 5. That the sum of five thousand dollars be and the same is hereby appropriated, to be expended under the direction of the Governor and Auditor General, in payment of the compensation to the revisers appointed under the provisions of these resolutions, and the manner of the expenditure thereof shall be by the Auditor General reported to the next Legislature.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the fifth section?

Mr. WALLACE moved to amend the same by striking out the word "five," in the first line, and inserting in lieu thereof the word "nine."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The committee rose and reported the bill as amended.

The bill was then read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

FLOUR INSPECTORS IN PHILADELPHIA.

On motion of Mr. CONNELL, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled A further supplement to an act relating to inspectors, approved April 15th, A. D. 1830, and the several supplements thereto.

The bill was read.

Mr. LOWRY inquired if flour could be sold in Philadelphia without inspection.

Mr. CONNELL. Yes, sir; and this does not require flour to be inspected. We simply want that when a man puts his brand upon flour he must have authority for doing it.

The bill was read a third time, and

On the question,

Shall the bill pass?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DONOVAN and Mr. BILLINGFELD, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Fisher, Graham, Haines, James, Landon, Lowry, McConaughy, Royer, Shoemaker, Taylor, Walls, White and Hall, Speaker—20.

NAYS—Messrs. Billingfeld and Spooner—2.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

So the bill

Passed finally.

BILLS PASSED.

On motion of Mr. ROYER, the Committee on Roads and Bridges was discharged, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act repealing the fifth section of an act entitled An act to enable the Governor to incorporate a company to make an artificial road from the east end of Pottkiemen bridge, in the county of Montgomery, passing through Pottsgrove, and passing by the White Horse tavern, in Amity township, in Berks county, to the borough of Reading, approved the 20th day of March, A. D. 1810.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. SCHALL, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to incorporate the city of Allentown.

In committee of the whole, the bill was read and reported with amendments.

And the rules having been dispensed with, the bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. ROYER, the Senate then adjourned until eleven o'clock to-morrow morning.

The SPEAKER. The preamble and resolution will be read for the information of the House.

The Clerk read the preamble and resolution as follows:

WHEREAS, The Hon. Simon Cameron, Senator elect from this State, did invite the Legislature to witness his "swearing in" on the 4th inst.; And whereas, A large portion of the members of this body did proceed to the National Capital in accordance with said invitation; And whereas, It is currently rumored that the United States Senate did refuse, by resolution, to admit said members to the floor of the Senate, and were thus deprived the privilege of witnessing the said interesting ceremony; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the members of this House who proceeded to Washington, in accordance with the aforesaid invitation, and did not witness the said "swearing in," are hereby requested to report to this House at their earliest convenience, and that they have power to send for persons and papers.

SPECIAL ORDER.

Senate bill No. 117, an act relative to the appointment of the collectors of taxes in Montgomery county, being the special order, was taken up.

On the question of agreeing to the amendment of Mr. MARLEY to include Chester county in the provisions of the bill,

Mr. SHARPES, Mr. Speaker, I desire to say, sir, that I am opposed to the amendment. I think that this House should consider the two questions separately. In Chester county we do not desire any change in our mode of appointing collectors, and I hope that the amendment will be voted down. I will submit the question as regards the county of Montgomery to the judgment of the House. The House have heard the argument both against and in favor of the passage of that bill, and have no doubt considered it and are prepared to act upon it. I submit that question to the House, but as regards the amendment to include the county of Chester, I do not see how any member can vote for it, inasmuch as nobody here has asked for it—not any party and any person—and I hope the House will vote it down.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT, Mr. Speaker, I think probably if my colleague [Mr. MARLEY] was here he would withdraw that amendment.

I am willing that the amendment shall be voted down, and I will then call for the yeas and nays on the bill.

No. 590, an act relative to drainage of certain lands in Point township and borough of Northumberland, Northumberland county.

Read the first time.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman from Northumberland [Mr. THARP] for some explanation of this bill. Some of my constituents, one especially, being a landholder in that particular locality, are interested in this matter. I would like to have an explanation of it.

Mr. THARP. Mr. Speaker, this law is required by a very large majority of the people of the township to which this act is to apply. I have a petition before this House signed by nearly every landholder in the township. There is a great deal of wet land in that county which the owners cannot improve on account of others contiguous refusing to drain. There is but one person in the whole district described by that bill who is opposed to it. It is designed for the improvement of those localities where there is a great deal of wet and soggy land. My constituents, with but a single exception, are decidedly in favor of it, and I ask for its passage. There is no reason for any objection to this bill. There is nothing in the bill itself that any gentleman has found fault with, and I can see no necessity for objecting to this bill, except to accommodate a very gentlemanly (?) individual who does not want to drain his land. Every other one, so far as I am aware, is willing to join in mutual improvement.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, I would state that the gentleman who opposes this bill does so on the ground that it will compel him to dig a ditch to drain the other man's land, when the other man has the same opportunity of draining his own land as the first one has. It will oblige him to dig a ditch about twice as long as is necessary for him to drain his land into the river. To compel a man to dig a ditch to drain another man's land, it seems to me is hardly in harmony with the Constitution of this Union.

The bill was laid aside for a second reading.

On motion of Mr. RICHARDS, the House adjourned until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

and for materials furnished, for or about their repair, alteration of, or addition to, any house or other building, in the same manner as liens may now be had and filed for debts contracted for work done and materials found for or about the erection or construction of any house, or other building, under the aforesaid act, approved the sixteenth day of June, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six, and the several supplements thereto: Provided, That nothing in this act shall render property liable to liens for repairs, alterations or additions where the same has been altered and repaired by any lessee or tenant without the written consent of the owner or owners, or his or her duly authorized agent, and that this act shall not apply to debts, such as aforesaid, where the same are for less amount than twenty dollars: And provided also, That this act shall apply only to the counties of Blair and Armstrong, and that the lien for repairs, authorized by this act, shall not have priority over any lien entered before the commencement of such repairs.

Mr. CHASE. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by making it a general bill.

Mr. MCCREARY. Mr. Speaker, I think we had better know what the bill is.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I would state for the information of the House what I understand this bill to be.

The law, as it now stands, does not enable a mechanic who makes repairs upon a building, no matter to what extent, to have a lien for those repairs upon the building. It only enables mechanics who build a building to have a lien. This bill provides that a mechanic who makes repairs to the amount of over twenty dollars, may file his lien upon the building for repairs.

If the members desire it to be a general bill, I am in favor of it myself.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I think it ought to be a general bill. A man may spend ten thousand dollars in improvements on a house, but if he leaves the house so that its general outline is not altered, the mechanic can have no lien upon it for those repairs. But if upon another part of his grounds he has a doghouse built, worth twenty-five dollars, the mechanic can have a lien upon that. There is no sense in this. I think that the labor and material furnished for one purpose is as valuable to the man who furnishes them as for another. The man who gives them, whether it be for building or for repairing, should have a lien upon the building. But, no matter how much a building may be improved under the present law, a mechanic can have a lien for that improvement.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that this ought to be a general law.

There was a case before our court very recently, in which extensive repairs were made to a dwelling house, but the evidence before the court established the fact that the general appearance of the house was not changed, and in pursuance of the decision of the Supreme Court the man who made these repairs, although of greater value than the original house, was deprived of his lien upon the building. I think that it is no more than just that a mechanic for repairs—no matter how much or how little they are—should have the benefit of the lien laws.

This is an important bill, and I think it is wise in its provisions, and it ought to be extended to the whole State.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, this is now the law in the county of Chester. We have had it there some two or three years, and so far as my experience goes, it works well and has given satisfaction to mechanics and everybody interested. But it strikes me that the whole proviso should be stricken out, because it does nothing more than the decision of the Supreme Court does now. Liens for repairs cannot affect liens that have been entered prior to the commencement of the building, or prior to the commencement of the repairs. The decision of the Supreme Court, if my recollection is correct, does not extend the lien of a mechanic to any time prior to the commencement of the work, and therefore the provisions of this proviso are not needed at all.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I apprehend that it will be safer to leave this proviso, all except the words making it apply to the counties of Blair and Armstrong. I think the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] would not have suggested striking out all this proviso if he had given this in the matter of liens through attention. It would certainly lead to litigation, and we should pass laws in much the way as to avoid that if possible. Let the bill stand with this proviso in it, that it shall not take priority of liens, and it will undoubtedly prevent litigation.

I hope, therefore, the modification making it a general law will be made, and that the House will see fit to retain this proviso.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, as this is to be made a general law, I desire to offer an amendment to it. The reason, as I understand, why repairs were hitherto excluded from mechanics' liens was from the fact that there was no notice to purchasers, that, from the very nature of the case, there could be no notice to purchasers. Under the law, as it stands, a man has six months to file his lien. If any person makes a purchase of the building within that time the mechanic can make a lien upon the property, of which the purchaser was not aware at the time he made the purchase, and constrain him to pay more than he bargained for when he made the purchase. Now, in the case of buildings when erected, this is not so. A man will know when an erection was made, and he is bound to inquire whether there is a lien upon the building or not, but repairs to a considerable extent may be made without anything being apparent, and the lien upon those repairs can be filed without the knowledge of the purchaser of its existence. I, therefore, offer an amendment, to add the following proviso:

And provided further, That the claim entered in pursuance of this act shall be a lien from the date of its entry on record.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I hope this amendment will not be adopted. If it is, it will defeat the whole object of this bill. This has no force in it that I can see. We may have as good notice of a lien for repairs upon a building as upon the building itself. The adoption of this amendment would clearly defeat the purposes of the bill, because the mechanic has to go on and complete his work before he can file his lien under the provisions of the bill, and he may have gone on and done ten thousand dollars worth of work, and a short time before he has completed his contract some man steps in and recovers judgment of, perhaps, the full value of the premises and he is defeated entirely in his claims. I knew a case of this kind, not in my own county, but in the county of Tioga, where a man furnished steam boilers for a steam mill. He put in the entire machinery of the mill, rigged it all over new, put in new gearing and everything of the kind, and everything new, and the court held because it was not a new building he had no lien upon it.

I desire to say that it is very apparent, I think, that this amendment which is offered will make it worse than no bill at all, because we shall hold out by the first provision of the bill an inducement that for all the repairs a mechanic makes to a building he shall have the right of his own lien, and he goes on with perfect confidence, feeling that the Legislature have enabled him to secure himself for all the work that he puts upon that building in repairs and all material that he furnishes; and if we now add this proviso, after he has done all this work and furnished all this material, another man steps in before him and secures a judgment covering the whole value of the property of the mechanic, perhaps, finds that he is ruined by this proviso. He can only enter his lien after he has done his work and furnished his material, and therefore the favored creditor has the right to come in and secure this property before he can file his lien. It makes it far worse than not to pass any bill at all.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I trust that this amendment will be defeated, for if it is carried you make a different rule in reference to liens for repairs than for the entire building. The laws indicate one subject, and it ought to be one, harmonious, but the effect of this amendment would operate injuriously upon persons making repairs. A building may be worth only five hundred dollars and the repairs increase its value to two thousand dollars, and if you allow other parties to obtain judgment against this property in the intervening time, of course you deprive the party making the repairs of all the benefit which this act confers upon him, and you might just as well have no law at all. Is not the fact that the repairs are about to be commenced and that the statute requires the party to file a lien, is not that notice that the purchaser shall not purchase this property until these repairs are finished and put upon record? I trust, therefore, that this amendment will not prevail. I would rather see the bill entirely defeated than to have its object and purpose defeated in this way.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, I am not at all tenacious about the adoption of this amendment, only that I believe it would be an advantage and protection to purchasers of real estate.

Now, I agree with the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS] that there will then be a difference between liens entered for erections, and liens under this act for repairs. I think this should be so for this reason: In case of an erection, or reconstruction, the change is so great that the purchaser is put upon his guard; but in case of repairs or alterations, there is nothing to put him on his guard—nothing to give him notice that there may be a dormant claim of this kind, and, therefore, nothing which will cause him to meet contingencies of this kind. There should be a difference, simply because there is a difference in the circumstances.

The amendment is designed to protect purchasers. If a man wishes to purchase property he will have no security against these liens, because he will have no knowledge of the fact that repairs are made. Now, if this amendment is adopted a man can enter his lien for repairs, but it will not have an antecedent effect. Purchasers, knowing this fact, will examine the record and will know from that what they will have to meet in purchasing the property.

Mr. MEYERS. I would like to ask the gentleman what benefit this law would be with this amendment to a person making an improvement?

Mr. LINTON. The benefit would be that immediately upon the completion of those repairs, he would enter a lien. Without this he would be constrained to bring suit and prosecute judgment, and in the meantime the property may be swept away. It will prevent its being swept away in that manner. Some person must suffer under those circumstances. The object of this amendment is to prevent the purchaser from suffering. Without it there is nothing to put him on his guard. I desire to further amend, at the suggestion of some gentleman, to make the amendment apply to purchases for a valuable consideration without notice.

Mr. WADELL. Mr. Speaker, I do not, sir, feel as if I could favor this character of an amendment; although I confess, sir, that there is a reason why the time should be limited, so far as repairs are concerned. Now, this bill will give the mechanic six months after he has completed his repairs, within which to enter up his lien, as has been suggested by the gentleman from Cambria [Mr. LINTON]. Within that time all the repairs made may be covered up, and there will be nothing apparent; there will be no evidence to the purchaser that such repairs have been made. Now, we must not consider that all repairs are to cost five or ten thousand dollars. In the majority of cases, they do not amount to more than one or two hundred dollars; and they are such repairs as the outside world never see. Repairs take place inside a building, and probably one or two or three hundred dollars is spent in these repairs, which a coat of paint in twenty-four hours will cover entirely up, and no purchaser could perceive if he examined the building from top to bottom. A carpet or a piece of paper on the wall may cover up, or a pot-ful of paint may destroy all evidence of it.

Now, the mechanic has six months, who has done that work, to enter up his lien. A purchaser might, within three months after the completion of those repairs, purchase that property, and within three months more, a lien of one or two or three hundred dollars would be entered upon the property for repairs. The difference in regard to new erections is that it gives every purchaser notice. There is a new building to be put up, and if there are mechanics' liens upon it, the purchaser will be able to ascertain that fact. He is put upon his guard. He can inquire and ascertain when the building was finished, and whether it has been within six months; if not so, then the liens, if any upon it, must be upon the record; and it seems to my mind that so far as repairs are concerned, there should be a less period of time within which a mechanic should be enabled to enter up his lien, say thirty days, or something of that kind. To my mind, I cannot see the reason that would give the mechanic six months after he has done his work, within which to make out his bill, and get it entered in the office of the court, in order to give him a lien. He can do it in six days as readily as in six months. He has done his work, and all he has got to do is to make out his bill, and file it. Now, a mechanic makes repairs which nobody can see, and you allow six months after he has done that, in which to enter up that lien, which may be against a subsequent purchaser. It seems to me that object would be attained if you confine them to a shorter time within which to enter up a lien—say twenty or thirty days. The same principle why a lien should revert to the commencement of an original erection, applies to repairs. The mechanic who makes the repairs, should have the same benefit of reverting to the time of commencing his repairs, as the mechanic in the other instance. Therefore, if he was required to enter up his lien within a short period of time, it would accomplish the same object, and put purchasers upon their guard in the same way.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, the provision in the mechanics' lien law which gives him six months' time in which to enter up his lien I consider to be a very wise provision. There is scarcely a mechanic who does a job of building or repairing, or anything of that sort, who does not feel persuaded in his own mind at the time that his employer is able and willing to pay for all the work he performs. He goes to work with that belief, and a mechanic is generally supposed to need his money about as fast as he earns it. If he waits six months he will then be able to ascertain pretty certainly whether it is the true intent of his employer to pay the money, or whether there is any thing about it. Hence, I have always thought that provision giving six months' time in which to enter up a lien was a most beneficial provision in favor of the mechanic, and I can see no reason why this should not be the case in matters of repair. I think there is great reason why six months' time should be given in which to enter up a lien, and that less time would abridge mechanics' rights to a great extent.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I consider the amendment offers a very desirable one for the city of Philadelphia. It is also very desirable for the city of Pittsburg. In a city such as Philadelphia, containing one hundred and twenty-five or one hundred and fifty thousand houses, it is a most difficult matter for purchasers to ascertain what repairs have been made to buildings within six months. Houses built within six months bear evidence of that fact, and it is a matter subject to inquiry when a building was completed. But when it comes down to a question of repairs, suppose you put inside a house costing one or two thousand dollars repairs to the amount of five or ten thousand dollars, the repairs are scarcely perceptible.

Now, if there are ten thousand dollars worth of repairs inside such a building, and it is impossible to ascertain whether there is a lien against the property or not, no one will consent to buy it. I have no objection, so far as I am individually concerned, that some time should be allowed in which to enter up a lien, say twenty days after the completion of repairs. The purchaser can then ascertain within whether any repairs have been completed within twenty days, and he can get information which will enable him to buy the premises with safety.

But if you allow six months in which to enter up liens for repair it will destroy the confidence which exists between the purchaser and seller in such cities as Philadelphia, and it would be far better in that case to have Philadelphia excluded from the provision of this act. I, for one, do not want it, if repairs in that respect are to be put upon a footing with new property. In a county town it is different, for there nearly every person knows of every house built within ten or fifteen years, and of every particle of repairs made. It is not difficult to ascertain these facts in the country, but it is in a city like Philadelphia. I do sincerely hope that the amendment offered by the gentleman from Cambria [Mr. LINTOS] will meet with the good sense and judgment of this House and will be adopted.

Mr. CHASE. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me we have said enough on this amendment. I think this bill should now go over on the third reading. I therefore move to postpone the bill and place it at the head of the calendar of public bills.

The motion was

Not agreed to.

The question recurring on the amendment of Mr. LINTOS,

It was

Not agreed to.

Mr. MAISH. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by inserting after the word "agent," in the seventeenth line, the words "a copy of which said written consent shall be filed with the said lien at the time of entering the same."

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I hope the House will adopt that amendment. Here we provide in the bill that when the lessee or tenant makes repairs, the mechanic shall not have the benefit of this law, unless he has the written consent of the landlord to make the repairs. Yet we provide no way by which that fact shall be generally known. If that consent is given in writing, and is necessary that the mechanic may enter his lien, why not give notice to the whole world of that fact by filing it along with this lien? I can see nothing unreasonable about it. It is done for the benefit of the mechanic himself. It seems to me that it is nothing unreasonable, and I hope the House will not object to this amendment.

The question being on the amendment of the gentleman from York [Mr. MAISH],

It was

Agreed to.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by adding to the section the following: And Provided, That all liens for repairs shall be filed within sixty days after such repairs are completed.

I offer this amendment to meet the force of the objections made by some gentlemen, that six months is too long a time in which to enter a lien for repairs. I think there is some force in that objection—especially when their liens are for a small amount. I therefore offer this amendment.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I hope that amendment will not prevail. I consider it a direct attack upon the rights of the mechanic. The mechanic ought to have some time in which to exercise his discretion as to whether he shall enter a lien or longer trust the man who employs him to make the repairs. I can see no reason for any difference between the time that he should have in which to enter his lien for repairs and for the original erection of a building.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, this is not an attack, either directly or indirectly, upon the rights of the mechanic.

Why, sir, before this bill came before the House, the mechanic had no relief at all in this respect. He could file no bill at all for repairs, and therefore, according to the reason of the gentleman from Lycoming [Mr.

WINGARD], the Legislature of 1836 made a direct attack upon the mechanic by not allowing him the right to file a lien for repairs. We go a step further, and entertaining the view that the law of 1836, and its supplements, were wrong in this particular, we give the mechanic the right to file his lien for repairs. I say that two months is long enough, and that there is some difference between repairs and the erection of a building. It is no attack at all upon the mechanic. If an attack at all, it is an attack on the original law.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, we extend this right now, because public policy and justice require it, but this is extending it in a higgledy and contracted way if we limit the time to sixty days.

On the question of agreeing to the amendment of Mr. MEYERS,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WINGARD and Mr. STUMBAUGH, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Cameron, Chadwick, Craig, Davis, DeHaven, Donohugh, Fogel, Freeborn, Gallagher, Headman, Heltzel, Hoffman, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Lee, Leech, Linton, Long, McCreary, McHenry, McKee, Mann, Markley, Mars, Mechling, Melby, Meyers, Mullin, Pennybacker, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Satterthwait, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Webb, Westbrock, Wilson and Worrall—54.

NAYS—Messrs. Barton, Boyd, Brown, Chaifant, Chase, Colville, Day, Deise, Espy, Ewing, Harbison, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kurtz, M'Pherrin, Maish, Peters, Pillow, Quay, Richards, Roath, Roush, Seiler, Stehman, Watt, Veller, Whann, Wharton, Wingard and Wright—30.

The affirmative question was determined in the affirmative.

The question being on agreeing to the bill as amended,

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend the title by striking out the words, "extending it to the counties of Blair and Armstrong."

The amendment to the title was

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I move to further amend the title by adding the words, "in this Commonwealth."

The amendment to the title was

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I move that the further consideration of this bill be postponed until Tuesday week. I make this motion because I do not feel disposed to take the responsibility of voting either for or against this bill without first consulting with my constituents of Philadelphia.

SPECIAL ORDER.

PRIVATE CALENDAR RESUMED.

No. 634, an act extending the auction law to the borough of Pottstown.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I hope the House will not agree to this bill. This bill was read by my colleague [Mr. MERKLEY], but we find, upon examination, that it is not a proper bill, and that the people of Pottstown do not desire it to pass.

On the question?

Will the House agree to the bill?

It was

Not agreed to.

No. 648, a supplement to an act to authorize the erection of a poor house in the county of Tioga, approved 12th day of March, 1866.

No. 653, an act relating to pawnbrokers in Allegheny county.

Amended by Messrs. DAVIS and COLLVILLE, and laid over for a third reading.

Senate bill No. 662, an act relating to the city and county of Philadelphia.

The question being on an agreeing to the bill,

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether I am correct in my impressions or not, but my impression is that there is a provision in that bill authorizing the coroner, in case of an inquest, to summon this whole Commonwealth if he wishes to do so, and this very materially increases his fees. I do not know how it is, but if such is the case, it might be a source of great annoyance to the people without any possible object, save that of increasing the fees of the office. Not that I have any objection to our coroner being liberally and properly paid, but I do not think he should have the right to summon the whole Commonwealth merely for the purpose of increasing his compensation.

Mr. MULLIN. Mr. Speaker, I move to indefinitely postpone the further consideration of this bill.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I hope that this bill will not be postponed. The bill passed the Senate, and has come over here. Several members of the House, however, objected to it, and in committee the objectionable features were stricken out; and so far as I know, it is now satisfactory to all concerned. The bill simply legalizes what the coroners have been doing for the past twenty years in the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. KERNS. Mr. Speaker, I think the bill is now perfectly satisfactory, and that there is no objection to it. I hope the bill will pass.

The question being,

Shall the bill be indefinitely postponed?

It was

Not agreed to.

OBJECTED BILLS OF LAST WEEK.

The following bills were read the second time and disposed of as stated:

No. 616, an act relating to the passage of fish in Middle creek, in the county of Snyder. Laid over for a third reading.

No. 623, an act extending to Allegheny county the laws regulating the granting of licenses to eating houses and taverns in the city of Philadelphia, and enforcing order therein.

An amendment was offered by Mr. PETERS.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, there is hardly a matter of purely local character that is exciting so much feeling in the county of Allegheny as is this matter of tavern licenses. This arises from the fact that while it is a local subject, yet the tendencies of such bills go far beyond the confines of any particular county, and reach out into the community. Bills of this character, if not properly restricted, open the flood-gates of vice and immorality to permeate and demoralize the entire community.

These safeguards we endeavored to put in this bill. There has been some diversity of opinion among the representatives from Allegheny county on this subject, but they have agreed on this amendment, and there is a unanimity of feeling in the Allegheny county delegation in favor of its passage. And I say here to my friends from Allegheny county, who are here in pretty large numbers, that we are entirely agreed on this subject. And we ask this House now, as a favor, to pass it, believing it to be the best bill for the largest number of people in that county, and that it will give as much satisfaction as any other bill possibly could.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

And the bill as amended

Passed finally.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

No. 589, an act to incorporate the Union Mutual fire insurance company of Northampton and Lehigh counties.

On motion of Mr. QUAY, indefinitely postponed.

No. 590, an act relative to drainage of certain lands in Point township and borough of Northumberland, Northumberland county.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill?

Mr. W. E. Speaker, a gentleman of that county waited upon me this morning, and presented me a diagram, and if it says truth about it, this is a very unjust proposition. There are a number of properties in this Point township intervening between the West Branch of the canal and the West Branch of the Susquehanna river. There is a leakage in that canal, and it makes it necessary that this land intervening should be drained. Now, there are a number of propertyholders that have trenched their property from the canal down to the river and got rid of this water from their own lands. The parties interested in this property and owning a portion of it come here to ask this Legislature to require other parties to dig a trench along the top or headland of this property to the southern or eastern boundary, whichever it may be, to this river, and thereby drain their land.

Now, they are not willing to dig a trench, as all the other propertyholders have done, from this canal down to the river and thereby have their land drained, but they want to require this gentleman, Mr. Kapp, to dig along his land from this point and down across his land to the river, thereby draining this other property. Now, I do not know, personally, anything about this location. The gentleman has given me a diagram, and if what he says is true and this diagram merits verity, then this bill ought not to pass. There is no reason why this gentleman should be forced to dig and drain across the top of his land down its whole length to get to the Susquehanna river, when he might drain it by digging straight down the Susquehanna, as all other propertyholders have done. I throw out these suggestions in order that justice may be done to these parties. If that is true it certainly would be exceedingly unfair, and there is no reason why this Mr. Biddesbach should not dig his own trench and drain his own land. There is no reason why he should force Mr. Kapp to drain his land and dig this trench of seven feet, or of any width, across the whole length of his property and then down to the river. Now, if he wants his land drained let him dig a trench, as Mr. Kapp is willing to do, across his own property, and thereby get rid of this nuisance of standing water.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, Chester county has some interest in this bill. Although it appears to be confined to Northumberland county in its provisions, yet I have the honor to represent, at least, one party residing in the county of Chester who has a deep interest in the provisions of this act. I hardly feel able, sir, to present my views upon the case to-day, but, inasmuch as the bill is reached, I hope it may be disposed of by the House, and that in a summary way. I think that, of all the bills that have been presented to the House this winter, this is the strangest that I have had the pleasure of reading. I desire to call the attention of the House to its provisions. It provides in the first section that certain parties shall be compelled to cut a canal through their lands—and for what reason? Why should they be compelled to do this, sir? It is because the land is otherwise rendered useless to the owners. They, therefore, should be compelled to ditch their lands because it is useless to them. Now, sir, it does strike my mind as if every owner of land, and every party in interest here, should at least be the judge of whether it is useless or not to them. I will read from the provisions of the bill itself:

It reads, "through which a wet drift passes, which, for want of draining, renders the land useless to the owners."

Now, it assumes that these owners do not know what is to their own benefit, what is good for them. It renders their land useless, and therefore the Legislature undertakes to say, "you shall make your land good and profitable to yourself, and we will require you to do what you do not consider is for your own interest." This is one reason why this land should be drained. Farther than that, there is another reason, and it is more important than the other one, and is the only reason, it seems to my mind, whereby the gentlemen advocating the bill can find any reason or propriety in calling upon this Legislature to interfere in this matter and what is it? Why, sir, by reason of the stagnant water standing on the same, it is very detrimental to health. Now, sir, I would like to know whether any man keeping stagnant water upon his land, making it detrimental to the health of his neighbors, cannot be compelled, by the courts of this Commonwealth, to remove that nuisance? Is it necessary for those people to come here to the Legislature of Pennsylvania, and ask us to compel the drainage of the lands whereby the health of the neighborhood may be benefited? Why, sir, it is not necessary, I apprehend, for any man to say more than to present the question to this Legislature, to have the response which every man knows, that the courts of this Commonwealth are vested with full power in the case. If I commit a nuisance upon my own land, is it necessary for my neighbor to come to this Legislature, and ask them to compel me to remove it by an act of Assembly? He steps into any court in this Commonwealth and presents his application there, and the court will compel me to remove that nuisance although standing upon my own land. It is a fundamental principle of law that I cannot use my own property so as to injure my neighbor. Every man in this Commonwealth has the right to enjoy his own property, his own proper personal enjoyments, if you please, but he must use it in such a way that he does not injure his neighbor; and whenever he does use it so as to injure his neighbor, then the courts of this Commonwealth step in and compel him to restrain his use. Now, these are some of the reasons that are here presented for this Legislature to pass this kind of a law, compelling me to ditch my land because it will be more valuable to me, or because I have it in such enjoyment as is injurious to my neighbor. Now, I ask any man on the floor of this House to give any other reasons that what I have suggested, which the bill itself suggests. Is this Legislature to permit any such folly as to pass an act of this kind, to compel A, B and C to drain their land because it is not in as good condition as might be for their benefit, and because its condition is to the injury of their neighbors? If this Legislature is to permit such an act of folly as that, I am one who desires to know it, and I hope that those gentlemen who undertake to ask this Legislature to commit this act of folly will not hesitate to put themselves upon the record, so that we may all know who they are.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I have no particular interest in the provisions of this bill. I supposed the object of this bill was intended to meet the decision of the Supreme Court, which prohibits any person from collecting any stagnant or standing water upon his land and throwing it upon his neighbor's land. The Supreme Court has decided to that effect in several cases that, where a man is owner of land and there are springs upon it and wet places, he has no right to collect the water in an artificial channel and throw it upon his neighbor's land; if he does so he subjects himself to an act of trespass. I would prefer very much if this was a general law instead of a local law, and that the objection made by the Supreme Court be set aside and rendered null and void, for the reason that, in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, wherever there is wet land, it is detrimental to the health of the community, or it requires drainage for the purpose of making that land arable.

I say the law of Pennsylvania ought to be to allow every party to drain land by artificial channels and pour the water upon his neighbor's land, and if he refuses to dig a channel for it he should suffer the consequences. Drainage in an agricultural community has become one of the sources by which they redeem land, and by which they throw into market additional soil for the purpose of raising cereals for supplying food for the community. It is no more than right, where land is situated as this is, that the law should require every person to drain his land, and allow every person who has wet land so to drain it; and if it is to the injury of his neighbors, then they should suffer the consequences of it. This bill provides by setting forth, first, the facts that this is wet land; that it is detrimental to the health of the community, and that by reason of this wetness a large portion of this land is deprived of cultivation, and that these things shall be remedied.

Now, is there anything wrong to anybody if you require those parties to drain this land, to do that which common sense dictates is right?

Here is a large drift of wet land of no earthly benefit to anybody. This bill requires that the owners shall dig a ditch across this wet land and pour this stagnant water into the natural courses. This is, to gain two things: first, the health of the community, and second to make an addition to the arable land for the purpose of raising cereals for the bread of the community. For these reasons I think the law is a good one and I hope it will pass.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I do not live contiguous to the county of Northumberland, that is to say my county is not contiguous to it, but I think I know about as much about Northumberland county and the special case provided for in this bill as the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS]. I cannot understand, sir, the language of the gentleman from Northampton; I cannot understand how stagnant water can be poured upon a man's neighbor.

Stagnant water conveys the idea of inertia, poured water conveys the idea of motion. What I have to say in regard to the remarks of the gentleman from Northampton is that I cannot understand the philosophy of his language. Neither can I see the force of his reasoning. He says that this bill states that this stagnant water is injurious to the neighborhood, and has a baleful and unhealthful influence. I contend, sir, that if such be the case it is the duty of the party upon whose land this stagnant water is to make the drainage.

Public policy and the common law of the land demand that he shall not maintain a nuisance. But, sir, what is the spirit of this bill? It comes here stating that there is certain standing water upon certain lands, and the owners of that land are the parties asking those whose lands have no stagnant water, who will not maintain a nuisance upon the community, to drain off the dirty, stinking and stagnant water on the land of the man who comes here and makes the complaint. We can understand a little of the reasons why the gentleman from Northampton is advocating the claims of this man Biddepass, against Mr. Kapp, whose name is mentioned here or anywhere to the admiration of his friends and the honor of his name.

I regret, sir, that I have to differ with my esteemed friend from Northumberland [Mr. THOMPSON] in regard to the passage of this bill. That gentleman is nearly always right in his convictions when not misled. I regret, sir, to differ with him, but, sir, that bill is presented here for certain purposes, which, for the sake of this bill, I will not mention at this time. And those who are advocating it on the floor of this House are, perhaps, the best indices of the motives for which this bill is brought here.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I call the gentleman from Lycoming to order. He talks about motives. I ask him to explain.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, I say that the gentleman from Northampton speaks without motives—that there is no motive in his speech.

I fully concur in what has been said by the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. LEE] and the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL], and I think it is a well settled principle, which has passed into a maxim of common law, that we shall use our own things so as not to be to the detriment of our neighbor. The parties who urge this bill are unwilling to dig a ditch to drain their own dirty, stinking land into the Susquehanna river, but they ask other parties to dig a ditch seven feet in width through the very best of land—land that belongs to these other parties—to accomplish their object. And I repeat, sir, in the language of the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL], in the original language of the motto sic tueri tu alienam non laedit.

The hour of one o'clock having arrived, the SPEAKER adjourned the House until three o'clock this afternoon.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. COLEMAN offered the following resolution, which was twice read:

WHEREAS, It is desirable to facilitate the development of the vast and various resources of Pennsylvania by the construction of railways, to be operated by steam power, and, in so doing, to protect the interests and property of the citizens, in any locality where railways may be constructed, from impositions in charges and fraud in the exercise of the corporate privileges to them granted; therefore,

Resolved, That the Railroad Committee be instructed to report no special charter without inserting the following provisions:

1. The capital stock shall be not less than fifteen thousand dollars per mile. Letters patent shall not be issued till ten thousand dollars per mile be subscribed, and ten per centum paid, in good faith, in cash; and the stockholders shall be individually liable to the amount of their stock for the payment of wages of labor, materials furnished, right of way, property used, and damages incurred in the construction, maintenance and operation of their respective railways, that may be due and unpaid by the company, for a period not exceeding six months: Provided, That demand for the same shall be made upon any stockholder or stockholders within the six months before mention.

2. The corporations shall begin the survey of the route, as set forth in their respective charters, within thirty days after the date thereof, and shall, within six months thereafter, file a complete map in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, showing the final location of their railways; and if any such corporation shall fail to do the work needful to construct the railway to bona fide and responsible parties, and proceed, with reasonable diligence, to complete the same, then the right of priority of such corporation to the location shall cease.

3. The Legislature reserves the right, by special or general act, to amend, change, modify or repeal the charter of the said corporation, as fully as the same was provided in the thirteenth section of the act regulating the construction of lateral railroads, approved the fifth day of May, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two.

Mr. RIDGWAY. Mr. Speaker, I am in favor of the passage of this resolution. As the Legislature is likely to pass a general railroad law, I think parties should operate under that law. If they can get no other law, I think they will operate under that.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, if the Railroad Committee will look at it, they will see that it will apply to all railroads hereafter, so that the Senate will show no favoritism to one road more than another.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, I hope the Senator will withdraw this resolution, and that we shall adopt no such policy. I shall certainly vote against the adoption of this resolution, and I shall vote as I have upon the bill during its discussion.

Mr. LOWRY. Because one bill is infamous, I do not think we should make those which are to be passed in the future of the same character.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, every Senator here knows my views perfectly on the subject of the general railroad law that we have passed to a third reading. I think it is a very improper bill, but the Senate seems to have decided that this is to be their policy, and my view is that we should not make any distinction between corporations in this matter, and treat all alike; and my idea is that we should pass a law that would be really servicable.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, we all know the sentiments of the Senator from Lebanon [Mr. COLEMAN], and we know that there is a no more liberal minded man in the Senate, but it must be apparent to him and to the Senate that the passage of this resolution would place many gentlemen here, if they vote for it, in a false position. Now, that embodies the obnoxious features of the general railroad law, which we shall be called to vote upon, for or against, to-day. With those features in the bill it is obnoxious; with those features out of the bill it is not obnoxious. An obnoxious proposition is presented to us, and we are asked to vote for it, merely to be consistent—merely because the majority of the Senate are going to pass this general railroad law with those features in it, and the effort of our friend from Lebanon is to have the same rule apply to all other railroads that shall ask for special charters. It is well to be consistent, but I cannot vote for this resolution. As has been remarked, I trust the people will rise to this question, and decide what is the necessary policy under the circumstances. Hence, while many will vote for this bill, because it secures the general spirit of a free railroad law, although it may have obnoxious features, yet, of course, they will vote against the obnoxious features, if presented alone; hence, I trust the Senator will not press this resolution.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer). Mr. Speaker, I desire to unite with the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE], and the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE], in asking the Senator to withdraw this resolution; I cannot vote for it. If any railroads are to be built hereafter, they will be built under special charters; there is no doubt about that. The people are not going to build railroads under this bill, called the "Free Railroad Law." I do not want to tie up the hands of the Legislature and prevent them from passing special charters. I have here a report of the chief engineer of the Bear Creek railroad, the grading of which is just finished, and the fact is revealed that the cost of the grading, masonry and ties, was eight thousand three hundred and thirty-three dollars. It is ready for the iron to-day at that cost. By their charter, they have the right to borrow money and equip their road. I do not want to tie up their hands.

Mr. HALL said he could not vote for any resolution of this kind, because it was entirely contrary to the expressed sentiment of the Senate since he had been here.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, as my friends, with whom I have been acting, seem to desire that I should not press this at this time, I will withdraw the resolution.

THE GENERAL RAILROAD BILL.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading of bill entitled An act to authorize the formation of railway corporations.

[The bill was read a third time, and passed finally—yeas, 27; nays, 4—substantially as reported from the Railroad Committee. The reasons of the various Senators for their votes on the final passage of the bill will appear in the Appendix, in connection with the preceding debate.]

COMMUTATION OF THE DEATH PUNISHMENT.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act authorizing the commutation of the death punishment in certain cases.

The bill was read as follows:

SECTION 1. *Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That in cases of convictions, and sentence for, murder in the first degree, the Governor may, upon the petition of the person convicted, grant to such convict a pardon, upon such conditions, with such restrictions, and upon such limitations, as he deems proper; and he may issue his warrant to all proper officers to carry such pardon into effect, which warrant shall be obeyed and executed instead of the sentence originally awarded; and the terms and conditions upon which such pardon is granted shall be specified and set forth in the warrant so as aforesaid issued: Provided, That in all cases in which sentence of death shall hereafter be pronounced no conditional pardon shall be granted, unless a majority of the judges of the court, upon whom the case was tried, one of whom shall be a presiding or law judge, shall advise and recommend such conditional pardon: And provided further, That no right to expatriate any convict shall arise by virtue hereof.*

Sec. 2. It shall be, and it is hereby, made the duty of the sheriffs, wardens, jailers and keepers of prisons, and each of them, to whom the custody of such convict would be committed, if the terms and conditions of such pardon had been the sentence of the court trying him, to receive the person of the convict, and to do so in accordance with the terms, limitations and restrictions of the warrant of the Governor, and to do and perform those things in reference to his or her continued custody, which it would be his or their duty to do, if the terms and conditions of the said warrant had been the sentence of the court in which said convict was tried.

Sec. 3. When a convict is pardoned upon conditions to be by him or her performed, and with restrictions and limitations, the officer to whom the warrant for that purpose is issued, shall, as soon as may be after executing the same, make return thereof, with his doings therein, to the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth; and he shall also file, in the clerk's office of the court in which the offender was convicted, an attested copy of the warrant and return, a brief abstract whereof the clerk shall subjoin to the record of the conviction and sentence.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I have no disposition to discuss this bill, but I am not in favor of the proviso. I suppose it might as well be disposed of now.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I should like to amend the first section by adding to the end of it the following amendment:

"Provided, That this act shall only apply to cases of persons convicted and now in confinement in this Commonwealth."

The SPEAKER said the amendment was not in order, as the bill was on its final passage.

Mr. WALLACE. That amendment would destroy the proviso in the bill.

Mr. WHITE. The Senator from Adams [Mr. M'CONAUGHY] can accomplish the same thing, perhaps, by striking out the proviso, which will only make it applicable to cases existing. I would move to amend the motion of the Senator from Adams, that we go into committee of the whole for the purpose of amending by striking out the proviso.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. My impression was that the operations of the bill were confined to the future. If not, I will acquiesce.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, I trust this motion will not prevail. I embrace in this bill two classes of cases: those now in prison for whom no death warrants have been issued, and whose cases are a disgrace to the judicial system of the State, and also that class of cases, in which, as we all know, there is a lingering doubt in the minds of the Executive and of the judicial tribunal by which they were tried, as to the premeditation and deliberation that is necessary to constitute the crime of murder in the first degree. Premeditation and deliberation are the essence of the crime, and there are, in this class of cases, hesitancy and doubt as to their presence. In such cases, I am convinced amelioration of the rule is necessary, and I am in favor of leaving it to be determined by the Executive and the court, whether murder in that degree has been proven. If so, let the law take its course. Certainly, in so grave and important a matter as this, whether a man has or has not been guilty of the premeditation and deliberation that is necessary to constitute the crime that has been taken from him his life, we may well intrust that to the honor and the court the power to review the evidence.

The Supreme Court cannot do it; they can only review the law. It seems to me that this power should exist in the Governor of the Commonwealth. Its object is to mitigate the rigors of the law. I trust the Senate will not go into committee of the whole, and I trust that the bill will be passed as it stands. No injury can be done to our judicial system by it, but to my mind the very reverse will happen.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I do not propose to reply to the argument of the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE], but in a matter of such vast importance as this, making a radical change in the criminal administration of the State, we should act with great deliberation. Let us go into committee of the whole for the purpose of considering this matter; let us carefully consider it and act. The discussion the other day was very hurried and brief, and I do not think it is the temper of this Senate to force this thing through without a careful discussion. I will reserve what I have to say on the main question until after we go into committee of the whole. I cannot believe the Senate will take this summary process upon this bill.

Mr. BIGHAM (Speaker pro tem.) I think it would be better to test the question on going into committee of the whole. The merits of the bill can be discussed on this motion. If the Senate refuse to go into committee of the whole it will be a virtual rejection of the amendment.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I will merely say that, whilst our State Constitution does not give the power to commute, this bill gives practical commutation, and it is commutation at the discretion of the Executive, with the concurrence of two of the judges, so far as regards cases arising in the future. It was conceded, the other day, by the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE], that it was possible, under this act, that the death penalty could be commuted to imprisonment, by the judges and Governors who were opposed to the death penalty. In that way you make the matter merely contingent, so that the administration of justice will not be equal throughout this Commonwealth. It will not be the same in 1868, possibly, as in 1866; it will not be the same in one judicial district in this State as it is in another. Now, sir, this is a matter of too vast importance to be left wholly dependent upon the individual judgment of the then Executive, and concurrent opinion of two of the judges presiding in the courts. There is a peculiar class of cases at this time. The situation is such that I am not disposed to relax the rule. The Executive in office at the time of the death sentence, having hesitated or postponed the execution, the question is thus devolved upon a new Executive. Some of these cases, I believe, are protracted, the prisoners having been held for years, and there may be such exceptionable cases as may call for departure from the general rule. But, sir, while I agree with the Senator from Clearfield to that extent, I cannot agree with him, that we are to depart from the old policy of the death penalty in this State; and that, in so departing, we are not to do it, as in other States, by a clear and distinct change in our law, but by an equivocal, variable provision, which will be wholly dependent upon the individual judgments of the Governor and judges as to the question of punishment by death or confinement. If done, let it be done distinctly. Why, sir, what is the most powerful argument for the death penalty? It is to hold up before the man influenced by diabolical passion, and by the controlling power of malice, the conviction that, assuredly as that passion is gratified by the death of a citizen, his death shall re-appear in the death of the man as certain as the death to the victim. Now, sir, change your law, so that there will be an uncertainty in the mind of the Executive, who is opposed to the death penalty, or in the minds of two or three of the judges opposed to the death penalty, and you practically break down the death penalty and gain nothing in its place.

Sir, I do not believe that in a time of profound peace there was a drifting of the public mind towards the abolition of that penalty. I do not believe that the judicial mind of this country or the convictions of the people are in favor of the abrogation of the death penalty. And to whatever the country may have been drifting on that question, in a time of profound peace, we have been under circumstances which have forced upon the public mind of the country the conviction that there are contingencies in which the safety of the body politic demands that the administration of justice shall have its way, and an irresistible conclusion that the life of him who stands in its way shall be sacrificed for the public good, in order that the vital interests of the whole people shall not be sacrificed to save the life of one man. The great law of morals, and the settled convictions of humanity, require it. And, sir, I do not believe, with that question so recently settled, to the conviction of every mind in the nation—I do not believe that the nation is prepared now to abrogate the death penalty in its judicial tribunals. I ask, then, that we hesitate and examine the subject carefully, before making this radical change.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I support the Senator from Adams [Mr. M'CONAUGHY] in the position he takes in behalf of this motion, so that this question may be brought before the Senate. I do not propose to launch out into the sea of discussion on the general principles involved in this bill. I concur in the main with the remarks of the Senator from Adams. I can see the necessity of providing relief for the existing evil, but where any change is made in the law, it is well for legislators to consider the old law, its mischief, and the remedy. Now, there is a mischief existing in the fact that there are certain convictions and sentences to death where the Governor has refused to sign the death warrant for reasons sufficient to satisfy his own conscience. That refusal has existed so long, and has been transmitted from Executive to Executive so many times, that there is no probability of the execution of these sentences. This fact has been called to the attention of the Legislature, from time to time, in the messages of the Governors. I do not know the exact number of these cases. I was informed this morning that your Excellency, the present Governor, had sent a letter of inquiry to the different counties to get the exact number, and that he had not received an answer, but intended to send in a message to-day specifying what he had received. Still, that does not affect the principle here. To remedy this mischief, we are called upon to act. To remedy any further mischief, I do not think we are called upon to act.

I do not think, sir, that every change is reform, and certainly a change in this respect is the very opposite from reform, inasmuch that, in any legislation here, we will not mar the elegant symmetry of our criminal system as to the punishment of criminal offenses, which has been sanctified by time. Every lawyer who has practiced in our criminal courts certainly respects the decisions made; and any interference now, will mar, to my mind, the symmetry of the system. Change the certainty of the death penalty, and you change that which has been successful in securing, to a greater extent than anything else, the peace of the Commonwealth, by holding out to the prisoner, that his execution will be exercised by the judge by refusing to execute the sentences. The power of pardon that exists in the Executive of the Commonwealth has been wisely put there; and, as it now stands, is an independent power over the judiciary, to be exercised only in proper cases. Let it remain; do not interfere with it. As we have it now, we have it certain; the man who commits a crime knows what he is to get, and the judge knows his duty. I hope and pray that the motion to go into committee of the whole for the purpose of striking out the first proviso will not prevail; that proviso reads as follows:

"Provided, That in all cases in which sentence of death shall be pronounced no conditional pardon shall be granted, unless a majority of the judges of the court before whom the convict has been tried, one of whom shall be a presiding or law judge, shall advise and recommend such conditional pardon."

Mr. WALLACE. Senators misapprehend my position on the main question when they assume that I am in favor of the abolition of the death penalty. I have had the same kind of education that the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE] has had. Senators set up a myth, it seems to me, and attempt to strike it down when they assert that this bill vests certain rights in indiscreet persons. Now, sir, let us see. They oppose this bill because there may be a power of commutation. Why, do not they know that, under the Constitution, the Governor can grant a conditional pardon? Do not they know that the right of pardon exists under the Constitution, and that the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania have expressly decided that a conditional pardon may be granted? Do not they know that it is simply to mould that provision, and give it legislative sanction, that this bill has been drawn? And certainly they will not deny that it were better that ninety-nine guilty men should escape, rather than that one innocent man should suffer. That the uncertainty that surrounds those now in prison is unjust, they do not dispute; but they do dispute that this bill recognizes in the Executive the right to commute or to grant a conditional pardon in cases in which there may be a doubt as to the essence of the crime of murder in the first degree.

Now, if the Governor may grant a conditional pardon, what does this bill do? Why, instead of giving him additional power, as they contend, it actually limits the power. Why? Because, before he can grant a conditional pardon, two of the judges of the court must consent to the commutation or the granting of a conditional pardon. This, sir, is the actual provision of the first section of the bill, and Senators are fighting a shadow. I believe that the power to mitigate the rigor of the law, as it now stands, should be vested in the Governor of the Commonwealth in special cases, and it is simply to recognize this right of the Governor that I have thus drafted this bill. Do they fear to vest in the Governor of the Commonwealth this power? I do not. I believe I am doing what is right. It vests no additional power. The reason why the Governor has not exercised the power is because there is no legislative provision moulding the conditions under which it shall be exercised. If there are doubtful cases, certainly the law can do no harm. It seems to me we should stand by the bill just as it is. We are not seeking to abolish capital punishment. It is simply allowing the Executive to do, by form of law, what the Constitution authorizes.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I am only constrained by strong feelings on the subject. I have no personal pride as to how this matter shall be, and I know that I am doing in this by the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE]. I do not wish to misapprehend him; nor do I desire to create any myth. What I propose now is this: I understand that there are a number of cases of convictions of murder in the first degree, in which the defendants have been for some time confined awaiting execution of sentence, and that execution has been delayed. There are cases in which it may be proper to grant a conditional pardon, so as to commute or avoid the death penalty. Now, I will join hands with the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] in that. I am willing to forego my own pride and unite with him, and therefore I move to go into committee of the whole so as to amend this bill. There is a proviso added to this bill which says that the bill is not designed to allude to that class of cases, but to all cases which may arise in the future. That proviso reads thus:

"Provided, That in all cases in which sentence of death shall hereafter be pronounced no pardon shall be granted, unless a majority of the judges of the court before whom the convict hath been tried, one of whom shall be a presiding or law judge, shall advise and recommend such additional pardon."

Now, I propose to amend so as to cover the special class of cases now under conviction and sentence, by inserting at the commencement of the first section, after the words, "that in cases of," the words, "prisoners now in confinement under." Also, to amend the proviso, so that it will read, "that in all such cases no conditional pardon shall be granted, unless a majority of the judges of the court before whom the convict hath been tried, one of whom shall be a presiding or law judge, shall advise and recommend such conditional pardon."

Mr. BIGHAM. The vote on going into committee of the whole can much better test this question than voting on the amendments. An affirmative vote would be in favor of the amendments, and a negative vote against them. I prefer the bill as it stands. I am not in favor of abolishing the death penalty. I am in favor of inflicting the death penalty in all cases where there are no doubts. But there is evidently a class of cases in which there are doubts. No judges are likely to give their consent to a commutation unless there are doubts as to the malice, or doubts as to the sanity of the party convicted. There is another reason which strongly confirms me in favor of the bill as it stands. Two years ago I prepared a bill to meet this class of cases, exactly as the Senator from Adams [Mr. M'CONAUGHY] proposes to amend this.

It was suggested to leave it to the Attorney General, Mr. Meredith, who made an objection that it did not go far enough; that there were a class of cases outside of these which had remained over from former Executives, which ought to be met. Therefore, this bill has the sanction of the late Attorney General, for whose opinion probably a large number of gentlemen here have a very profound respect on questions of this kind. I think that it permits this additional pardon wherever there are doubts. The Executive has the broad, absolute power to pardon. This does not extend the power to all.

It is a restriction; it limits him to a certain class of cases. It is clear from all constitutional difficulty. It meets the sentiment prevailing in the country that this death penalty is an extreme which should not be resorted to when there are doubts. And I think it will also satisfy the public that the death penalty should never be entirely abolished.

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence). Mr. Speaker, I am in favor of going into committee of the whole, for the purpose of amending this bill, because, on examining it, I find it is a bill authorizing the commutation of the death punishment in certain cases. It places the responsibility in the hands of the Chief Magistrate first, but ultimately in the hands of the judiciary, and it will amount to that, I am afraid, upon the statute book. It is a very delicate responsibility, which I think the Chief Magistrate of this Commonwealth and the justices of the courts would not desire to be invested with; and it would amount to practical abolition, except in marked cases. I am opposed to any abolition of the death penalty, after the experience of the past few years. I think the right with which the Governor is now invested to pardon, is a better guard against an unjust penalty, and a far greater safeguard for public life, than we could have under the present bill. We need these securities for life, sir; and if we pass such a commutation act as this, I think it is very probable that very few sentences of death will be inflicted, and, accordingly, we will not have these proper safeguards.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. The bill, as it now stands, as has been said, will leave the matter at the discretion of the Governor, so that, in every case, if this becomes a law, the Executive will be resorted to, and subjected to a re-hearing of the case, and to the cry for pardon. I think there should be no such additional responsibility thrown upon him.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the motion to go into the committee of the whole, for the purpose of amending the bill as indicated?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WHITE and Mr. WALLACE, and were as follows, viz:

YEA—Messrs. Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Graham, M'Conaughy, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—7.

NAY—Messrs. Bigham, Brown (Mercer), Burnett, Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Davis, Donovan, Haines, Jackson, James, Landon, Lowry, Sanders, Sandridge, Ridgway, Horner, Hall, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace and Walls—23.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The bill then
Passed finally.
The hour of 1 o'clock having arrived, the SPEAKER adjourned the Senate until this afternoon at 3 o'clock

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Senate reassembled at three o'clock, P. M.

The SPEAKER announced the public calendar as the order for the afternoon.
Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I think we are in better humor for general legislation in the afternoon. I move that we meet at ten o'clock to-morrow, for the consideration of the public calendar, and take up the private calendar for this afternoon.

The SPEAKER. I think we should be humoring the public by attending to public business.

The motion of Mr. BIGHAM was
Not agreed to.

PUBLIC CALENDAR.

Agreeably to order,
The rules were suspended, and the Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of bills on the public calendar, which were severally disposed of as follows:

An act for the better and more impartial selection of persons to serve as jurors in the several courts of this Commonwealth.

Laid over.

An act to authorize the Governor to appoint a person to visit prisons.

Laid over.
A supplement to an act entitled An act relating to the payment of bounties to veteran volunteers, approved the 1st day of May, A. D. 1866.

The bill was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the place of residence, named on the mustering-roll, shall be considered the place of credit to the said veteran volunteer, and conclusive evidence of the fact, and of sufficient authority to the officers, provided for in said act, to levy and raise the said tax, except in cases where the said veteran volunteer has been especially credited to some other locality.

Mr. SHOEMAKER said he had no objection to the bill. A number of soldiers who served faithfully, had been deprived of their bounty in consequence of a misdirection of papers.

The bill was laid over to a third reading.
An act to protect the rights of joint tenants and others.

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence) said this bill had been sent to him, but that he was satisfied with the law as it now stands.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the first section?

It was
Not agreed to.
So the bill fell.

A further supplement to an act, entitled An act to enable joint tenants, et cetera, approved the 21st day of April, A. D. 1864.

The bill was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That any company heretofore incorporated, or that may hereafter be incorporated, under the act to which this is a supplement, may increase or diminish its capital stock, either by increasing or diminishing the number of its shares, or by increasing or reducing the face or par value of each share of stock; and this increase or diminution of the capital stock of the said company may be made without any increase or diminution of the money capital, if any, of the said company, and without any reference to the money capital which may have been paid in or paid out by the said company; in all other respects, the proceedings for the increase or reduction of the capital stock of the company shall be governed and directed by the several sections of the act, approved on the tenth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, supplementary to the said act passed on the twenty-first day of April, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four; and after the filing of the certificate, as therein directed, all taxes, now or hereafter due to the Commonwealth, shall be computed on the amount to which said capital stock may have been so increased or reduced, and without reference to the amount of capital mentioned in the original certificate or act of incorporation of the said company.

SEC. 2. That all companies now incorporated, or that may hereafter be incorporated, under an act of the General Assembly of this Commonwealth, approved the twenty-first day of April, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four, and its several supplements, for the purpose of mining or boring, and preparing for market oil and other minerals, and selling or conveying the same, and the products thereof, shall not be required to pay any other or greater tax on the amount of the capital stock of such respective company, than such as is now required to be paid by companies incorporated or organized under and by virtue of an act approved on the eighteenth day of July, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, entitled An act relating to corporations for mechanical, mining and quarrying purposes.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the first section?
It was

Not agreed to.
So the bill fell.
An act relating to cemeteries was read as follows.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That every lot conveyed by the proper authorities of any cemetery incorporated, shall be held by the proprietor and his or her heirs or assigns, for the purpose of sepulture alone, transferable with the consent of a majority of the board of managers, and shall not be subject to attachment or execution, and the property of every cemetery shall be forever exempt from taxation.

SEC. 2. That a certificate under the seal of the corporation of the ownership of any lot or lots in any cemetery, shall in all respects have the effect as any conveyance of such lot or lots would have if executed, acknowledged and recorded as conveyances of real estate are required to be by the laws of this Commonwealth.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the first section?
It was

Not agreed to.
So the bill fell.

Join resolution to pay the expenses of the inauguration of Governor Geary.

Laid over to a third reading.

Joint resolution providing for the final adjournment of the Legislature.

The bill was read as follows:
Resolved, That (if the House concur) the Legislature will adjourn sine die at twelve o'clock, m., Thursday, March the twenty-first.

Mr. WALLACE moved to amend by striking out the words "twenty-first," and inserting in lieu thereof the words "twenty-eighth."

Mr. BIGHAM. I do not believe we can adjourn until a week later than that. The appropriation bill has not been reported yet.

Mr. WALLACE. The Chairman of the Committee on Finance agreed to the twenty-eighth.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I would like the Legislature to adjourn on the twenty-eighth, if possible, but I think it is manifest to every Senator that it would be impossible to do so. A large number of public and private bills are to be acted upon. The House has not touched the general railroad law or appropriation bill yet.

I move to amend by making it the fourth of April.

Mr. CONNELL. Mr. Speaker, I think that we are not in condition to consider the resolution at present, therefore I move that its consideration be postponed for the present.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. RIDGWAY and Mr. RANDALL, and were as follows, viz.:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfield, Browne (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Donovan, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughey, Shoemaker, Stutzman, Taylor, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—18.

NAYS—Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Glatz, Jackson, James, Randall, Ridgway, Schall, Wallace and Walls—10.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

An act relating to the law of evidence was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That in all civil actions or proceedings in law or equity there shall be no exclusion of any person, as a witness, by reason of his interest in the event of the same, or because he is a party on the record: Provided, This act shall not apply to actions by or against executors, administrators or guardians, nor where the assignor of the thing or contract in action may be dead.

Sec. 2. That a party to the record of any civil proceeding in law or equity, or a person for whose immediate benefit such proceeding is prosecuted, or defended, may be examined as if under cross examination, at the instance of the adverse party, or any of them, and for that purpose may be compelled, in the same manner and subject to the same rules for examination, as any other witness, to testify, but the party calling for such examination shall not be concluded thereby, but may re-but it by counter testimony.

Sec. 3. That the testimony of witnesses authorized by this act, may be had by deposition or commission, issued as the case may require, with such notice to the party to be examined, and to the adverse party, as is now, or may hereafter, be prescribed by the rules of the proper court, touching the taking of depositions and testimony on commission.

Mr. BIGHAM said he hoped the consideration of this bill would be postponed.

Mr. WALLACE. Every one knows how to vote upon it now. Why not dispose of it? I confess I have no sympathy with it.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, the Attorney General arrived in town this morning. I sent him a copy of the bill, and there are one or two amendments which he wishes to suggest, but he has not had time to prepare them yet. I therefore hope that the matter will be postponed until he can prepare them.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, the Senator from Clearfield (Mr. WALLACE) must be mistaken. The lawyers here may be prepared on this question, but certainly, for my part, I am not. I expected to be detained with lengthy debates between the legal gentlemen of the Senate, in order to convince me how to vote. I really do not understand the question, and have not made up my mind.

Mr. WHITE. I move that the whole subject be postponed for the present.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I hope the Senate will yield this morning. There are two or three members who take an interest in this subject, and who are not prepared to go into the matter. I speak for other persons, and not for myself. This is an important matter, and a week's time should be given to its friends to examine it.

Mr. WALLACE. I have no objections to an extension of time; I do not wish to be discourteous. But the bill has been before the Senate and on our files for the last four weeks. However, I assent that it may go over.

The bill was then laid over for the present. An act relating to evidence.

Laid over for the present.

A supplement to an act entitled An act amending the law of evidence in Pennsylvania, approved the 27th day of March, 1865.

Laid over for the present.

An act relating to dower was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That in case any person has died, or shall hereafter die, leaving a widow and last will and testament, and such widow has elected, or shall elect, not to take under the will, but claims dower at common law, and the same has not yet been fixed, it shall be lawful for the orphans' court of the county in which the land subject to such dower is situated, on petition of the widow and persons interested, to appoint seven men to appraise such real estate with its improvements.

Sec. 2. Or, on the petition of the widow or any one interested, to award an inquest to be held by the sheriff of the county, as is provided in cases of intestacy, to ascertain the value of the land, or such portions thereof as may be asked to be appraised.

Sec. 3. After such appraisal, whether by seven men or by sheriff's inquest, has been had and confirmed by the orphans' court, the lands, or the respective parts thereof thus appraised, shall be charged with and subject to the yearly interest accruing on the one-third of the valuation moneys, which shall be paid to the widow annually during her life, by the owner or occupier of the said land.

Sec. 4. The interest accruing as aforesaid may be recovered in the same manner as the interest of the widows of intestates when the land has been appraised and accepted by the heirs under the intestate laws, is now recoverable, and such interest accruing on the one-third of the valuations made as aforesaid shall be in lieu of dower at common law.

The bill was read a third time, and passed finally.

An act regulating the jurisdiction of courts in proceedings by bills for injunctions and other relief in equity, and the service of process.

The bill was read a second time and laid over to third reading at the request of Mr. WALLACE.

A supplement to an act granting the courts of this Commonwealth power to appoint viewers to view certain streets and alleys in this Commonwealth, approved April fifteenth, one thousand eight hundred and forty-five, extending its provisions to all public or private roads, streets, or alleys, or any plan of lots, was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the powers of the court of quarter sessions of this Commonwealth to vacate public and private roads, streets and alleys, in any unincorporated village, are hereby extended to all public and private roads, streets or alleys, in any plan of lots now, or which may be hereafter, laid out in this Commonwealth, and the proceedings to vacate any such street, road or alley, shall be according to the provisions of the act, to which this is a supplement, approved April fifteenth, one thousand eight hundred and forty-five, which is hereby extended to apply to all such public or private roads, streets or alleys laid out and opened in any plan of lots as aforesaid.

The bill was read a third time and Passed finally.

A supplement to an act entitled An act to prevent the sale of intoxicating liquors on the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, approved the 26th day of February, 1855.

The first and only section was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That all penalties, fines or forfeitures imposed, incurred or paid, under the act to which this is a supplement, except so far as part thereof is payable to the prosecutor, shall be paid over to the guardians, directors or other representatives of the poor of the city or county in which the offense was committed.

Mr. WALLACE inquired what was the necessity for the bill?

Mr. GRAHAM. In Allegheny county we have three poor districts. Under the existing laws, the district in which information is made against any person for selling liquor on the Sabbath day, the fine goes to the district in which the information is made. This bill provides that the fine shall go to the poor directors of the district in which the offense is committed.

Mr. WALLACE said he thought the act of 1855 did precisely what this act would do.

Mr. M'CANDESS. Will the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. GRAHAM] allow me to ask him a question? If this offense is committed in one of the districts adjoining the city, how will you get at it by this bill?

Mr. GRAHAM. Wherever the house is located in which the offense is committed.

Mr. M'CANDESS. As I understand, in the vicinity of Pittsburg there are certain neighborhoods located in districts, which are neither towns nor cities, but a portion of the suburbs of Pittsburg, not incorporated.

Mr. GRAHAM. They form poor districts, however. This makes the fine come into the district in which the offense is committed.

Mr. CONNELL moved to amend the section by adding, after the word "city," the word "district."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The section as amended was

The bill was then read a third time, and

SEC. 2. The court of common pleas sitting in equity, shall have power, upon application of any of the officers of any township, townships, or borough, interested by petition or bill in equity, to adjust the debts, expenses and taxes, between the old township, townships, or borough, and the new township or borough, and make decree accordingly; and such court shall have power, and they are hereby authorized to enforce payment by writs of execution and attachment, in like manner and with like effect as payment of judgments are enforced against townships.

Mr. MC'ONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I hope this bill will not pass in this form; I desire to amend it so that it shall apply only to the county of Allegheny. I am sure it is not necessary in my section.

Mr. CONNELL stated that Philadelphia should be exempted from the operations of the bill.

Mr. BIGHAM. Very well. I move to amend by inserting at the commencement of the section, after the words "plank road company," the words "in the county of Allegheny."

The amendment was

The section as amended was

The title being under consideration,

An act relative to certain foreign insurance companies.

An act to enable the State banks to settle and close up their affairs.

The bill was read a second and third time, and

Passed finally.

An act to regulate the carriage of baggage by railroad companies, and to prescribe the duties and obligations of carriers and passengers in relation thereto.

The bill was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That each passenger upon a railroad, who shall have paid fare, shall have the right to have carried in the car, or place provided for that purpose in the train, in which he or she may be a passenger, without additional charge, above passage fare, his or her personal clothing not exceeding, inclusive of the trunk or box in which it may be contained, one hundred pounds in weight and three hundred dollars in value.

SEC. 2. That no railroad company shall, under any circumstances, be liable for loss of or damage to any baggage or property belonging to any such passenger beyond the said sum of three hundred dollars, unless it shall be proven that the excess in value thereof, over that sum, was truly declared to the agents of the company at the time of its delivery for transportation, and the sum charged by the railroad company for such transportation, over and above passage fare, was paid: Provided, however, That the said declaration shall not relieve the claimant from proving the actual value of the articles alleged to have been lost or damaged, but in no event shall there be any recovery beyond the value thus declared.

SEC. 3. That no railroad company providing a car or other place for the deposit of passengers' baggage, shall, under any circumstances, be liable for loss of, or damage to, any article or property whatsoever, not there deposited by the passenger, or which are placed by him or her in the car in which he or she is to be transported.

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence). Mr. Speaker, I think this last section a rather hard one. A man may wish to carry something in his hand, and I do not see why the company should not be liable for its safety.

Mr. BIGHAM. They have a place for its safety, and a passenger, if he carries it into the cars, does so at his own risk.

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence). I have no objections to the law remaining, as it is.

The bill was read a third time, and

Passed finally.

A SUPPLEMENT to an act relating to the payment of bounties of veteran volunteers, approved the first day of May, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six.

The first and only section was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That all veteran volunteers who have been regularly re-enlisted and remustered under general order number one hundred and ninety-one, from the war Department, dated June twenty-fifth, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, and extending to April first, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, and who have been honorably discharged the service of the United States, and who have not received any local bounty nor given their credit to localities within or without this State, and who are credited to the State at large, shall each be paid a bounty of three hundred dollars by the State of Pennsylvania.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer) said he would like to ask the chairman of the Military Committee what caused them to report this bill with a negative recommendation. He thought this matter should not be overlooked by the Legislature.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, this is a bill to provide for the payment of bounties to veteran volunteers from the State Treasury. It is commencing, at this late day, after the war, a system of paying bounties by the State which was refused during the existence of the war. If we commence the system now, there will be no end to it.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer). Mr. Speaker, I understand that the class of soldiers referred to in this bill are not by any means large. It simply provides for the payment of a bounty of three hundred dollars to those veteran volunteers who were not credited to any special locality, but to the State at large. Now, we have legislated here for the payment of bounties in special localities, and require them by law to pay bounties. Now, it looks to me, if it was right to do that, it would be right to pay this bounty of three hundred dollars to those who are credited to the State, and who never received local bounties.

Mr. BIGHAM. There would be no equality in this thing now. Counties that filled their quota, and paid heavy bounties, would be sold upon by the lazy ones to pay theirs, too. I think this would be a premium for not doing it.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer). I cannot see it in that light at all. The bill recites that this is for those only who were credited to the State, and if the quota was made less, of course every county in the State was benefited by it. The thing was equal.

Mr. CONNELL. Mr. Speaker this question was discussed in various shapes during the war. It came once or twice in the shape of assuming the debts of various counties, and now we have it in a new shape. It is but the entering wedge to saddling the whole of the county bounties upon the Commonwealth.

Mr. RIDGWAY. Mr. Speaker, I would just say that Philadelphia has increased her taxation fifteen million dollars, by paying bounties to volunteers. If the State wants to pay that, I have no objection. If not, I would vote this bill down.

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence). It is simply to pay bounty to those credited to the State; of course, the State at large had the credit. They received no bounty, because they were not credited to any counties in which they volunteered.

Mr. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, it is well known that a number—I think not a very large number—of soldiers re-enlisted, who were not credited to any particular locality, but to the State at large. They received no local bounty. Now, sir, if they are entitled to local bounties, if they could not receive any credit to a particular locality, the question arises, from what source shall they receive it? I know of two Pennsylvania regiments who re-enlisted, and about one-quarter of them were not credited to any particular locality, but to the State at large. This bill, as I understand it, proposes to meet such cases, and I can see, for one, no injustice in it.

Mr. WHITE, Mr. Speaker, I have looked at this bill carefully; this matter was carefully examined by the committee, and there is no doubt, if this principle is adopted now, there will be more injury done to the finances of the Commonwealth than there will be justice done to individuals. There were no soldiers credited to the Commonwealth at large, especially. The Commonwealth adopted the system of crediting them to localities. It is hard to ascertain who were credited to the State at large. I think it is very unsafe, and I trust the Senate will not hastily adopt a policy of this kind, which may do great injustice to us as a State. And we cannot be insensible to the fact that the General Government has provided for the payment of a bounty, and these persons who have not received any, of course can get their bounty from the General Government. No man feels more for the soldier than myself; no man would go further to protect them in their rights. But it occurs to me that this bill is more in the interest of persons who collect claims than of men honestly entitled to it.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer). Mr. Speaker, I desire to say that, if no veteran volunteers were credited to the State, then there would be no money taken from the State treasury. So far as claim agents are concerned, I am opposed to them as much as my friend, the chairman of the Military Committee. I have never been in that business, and never expect to be. I do not refer to the Senator at all. I would ask that this bill be laid over for the next public calendar.

The bill was laid over.

An act repealing the first section of an act entitled An act to prevent the spread of Canada thistles, &c. et cetera, approved March, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two.

The first and only section was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the first section of an act entitled An act to provide for the destruction and to prevent the spread of Canada thistles, approved the twenty-second day of March, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, be, and the same is, hereby repealed.

Mr. LONDON. Mr. Speaker, the first section of the act of 1862 makes every person liable to a fine of fifty dollars who allows Canada thistles to grow on his premises. That opens a wide door to vexatious lawsuits. Seven suits grew out of it in our township last year. The second section of that act provides for their destruction. If a man sees thistles growing on a neighbor's land, and notifies him to cut them, if it is not done, he is authorized to cut them himself, and collect pay for it. The second section of that act is all that is needed in the case.

Mr. LOWRY. Will the gentleman be satisfied to have the law changed in his own county only?

Mr. LONDON. I am satisfied that, when Senators hear this bill of 1862 read, they will not want the first section of it to apply to their counties.

The act of 1862 was read by the Clerk as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That from and after the passage of this act, it shall be the duty of every person, or persons, and of every corporation holding lands in this Commonwealth, either by lease or otherwise, on which any Canada thistles, or weed commonly known as Canada thistle, may be growing, to cut the same, so as to prevent such weeds or thistles from going to seed, and the seed of the same from ripening; and any person or persons, or corporations as aforesaid, who shall or may have land as aforesaid, in the said counties, and who shall neglect or refuse to comply with the provisions of this act, shall forfeit and pay a fine of fifteen dollars, one-half to the county treasurer, and the other half to the use of the person suing for the same, who shall be a competent witness to prove the facts, to be recovered as other debts of the like amount before any justice of the peace, or in any court of record in said county.

Sec. 3. That if any person or persons, or corporations, so holding land as aforesaid, on which the Canada thistle, or the weed commonly known as such, shall be growing and likely to ripen seed thereon, shall neglect or refuse to cut and destroy the same, so as to prevent the seed thereof from ripening, it shall not be lawful for any person or persons, who may consider themselves aggrieved, or about to be injured, by such neglect or refusal, to give five days' notice, in writing, to such person or persons, or corporation, to cut and destroy such weeds or thistles; and on their neglect or refusal to cut and destroy the same at the end of five days, it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons so aggrieved, or believing themselves about to be injured thereby, to enter upon, or have other persons to enter upon such premises, and cut down and destroy such Canada thistles; and the person or persons so injured, shall be entitled to recover from such person or persons, or corporation, owning or holding such land, compensation at the rate of two dollars per day, to be sued for and recovered as debts of like amount, before any justice or court in said county.

Mr. LONDON. Mr. Speaker, you will observe, sir, that if Mr. A, whose farm we will suppose adjoins mine, sees thistles growing on my farm, the law authorizes him to notify me to cut them; if they are not cut, the law authorizes him to cut them, and bring suit and collect pay for it. Strike out the first section and there can be no vexatious lawsuits, and the second section secures the destruction of the weed.

Mr. WORTHINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I do not know but what the proposition of the Senator from Bradford [Mr. LONDON] may be right. I only know this, that this is one of the most noxious weeds in the State, or anywhere else. It is by no means a well settled fact that cutting off this thistle will prevent its propagation; it has an immense number of roots, which perforate the ground. So long as there is a root remaining in the ground, it will sprout; and although I know of no other way than to cut it off regularly, yet there are great doubts as to whether that will destroy it. But I think probably the second section of that law will be sufficient to prevent its spread, if that is possible. The seed will spread for a great distance. I shall not object to the repeal of that portion of the law, but the farmers ought to be on their guard against this thing. It monopolizes the ground wherever it takes root.

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence). Mr. Speaker, I think that if the second section is a proper section, the first is proper also. If it is a matter of so much importance to the public to have it kept in subjection, then there is more cause why it should be everybody's business to put it down. It should be the business of every person who owns a quarter of an acre of land to keep this weed from his neighbor's land, as well as his own. I think the second section is all right, but you will present the necessity of enforcing the second section if you leave the first as it is. You make it my duty to protect myself by going on to my neighbor's land.

Mr. LONDON. I certainly have no serious object in pressing the repeal of that section. Every man who is a practical farmer will endorse the statement made by the Senator from Chester [Mr. WORTHINGTON] in regard to this weed. The very fact which he states is one grand reason for repealing that section. In my section, a man having dislike to his neighbor brought suit, and his neighbor was fined fifteen dollars. The thistles remained there, and the next spring the man prosecuted his neighbor, who is fined another fifteen dollars. The thing is so difficult to dig out that it will subject him to fines every year. It is a fixed fact that the most efficient way to destroy it, is to cut it down. The second section requires it to be cut. By repealing the first section we get rid of vexatious lawsuits, as well as the noxious weed.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, I have no objection whatever that the Senator from Bradford [Mr. LONDON] shall change the law for his own county, or any other county, except in my district. I would rather not have that first section of the law of 1862 repealed so far as my district is concerned.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, unless the Agricultural Committee gives some good and sufficient reasons why this section should be repealed, I am in favor of letting it stand as it is. I have never heard of anybody suffering much from penalties that have been enforced under it. If they have, I have heard no complaint about it.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to request the agricultural chairman to perfect this bill, and give the plant its botanical name. Perhaps the chairman of the Railroad Committee would do it.

Mr. LONDON. I would suggest also that the Senator should ascertain what is the Latin for "dog."

Mr. CONNELL. Do I understand the Senator from Bradford [Mr. LONDON] to refuse to confine this repealing act to his own county?

Mr. LONDON. No, sir.

Mr. WHITE said that his neighbors did not want to be afflicted with lawsuits, and wanted to see the first section of the law of 1862 repealed.

Mr. LONDON. Mr. Speaker, I have only to say, sir, that during last summer seven suits grew out of that first section in my township, and there are just as many thistles now as ever.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer). Mr. Speaker as a member of the Agricultural Committee I desire to say that this bill was brought to my attention, but, being otherwise engaged, I did not give it much consideration, and was under the impression that it was a local bill. I would ask that my county should be excepted from its operations.

The bill was

Agreed to.

The title being under consideration, Mr. LONDON moved to amend the same by adding to the end the words "so far as relates to the county of Bradford."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The title as amended was

Agreed to.

And the bill was read a third time, and Passed finally.

An act regulating the rate of interest. The bill was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Common wealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same; That from and after the passage of this act, the legal rate of interest shall be seven per centum for the loan or use of money in all cases where no express contract shall have been made for a less rate.

Sec. 2. That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and are hereby repealed.

Mr. WHITE moved to amend the first section so that it would not apply to existing contracts, but subsequently withdrew the motion.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I was going to observe that I was induced to offer this bill at the instance of many business men of Pennsylvania. I was induced to offer it to accomplish what I consider is required by many business men of the State. I have not at hand the report of the Board of Trade of Philadelphia upon this subject. But I recently had the honor to receive from that board a very comprehensive and conclusive memorial on this subject. I understand that the business men of Philadelphia want this increase. I think that a majority of the business men of the rural district want it. I think that, if the increase is made, it will not be merely for the benefit of the rich man, but also for the benefit of the man struggling along in business, who desires to raise money for the purpose of establishing himself; and it will be for the interest of this class, as well as for the interest of the capitalist. That is what induced me to offer this bill. I will merely remark that the present rate of interest is not requisite. Men cannot borrow money for the pursuit of legitimate business, merely because the United States Government has set the precedent of a larger rate of interest. If a man has money to invest, he will invest it in United States securities, which, in the end, will increase his rate of interest to seven per centum or over. Then, again, the States of New York, Ohio and Maryland have a legal rate of interest of seven per centum, contingent upon a provision that contracts may be made for a certain amount. Since we have been in session here, the State of New Jersey have repealed their usury laws, and the rate of interest is seven per centum, and it is right and proper to put this State upon the same footing as our sisters around us. The effect of the present law is, that millions of dollars of capital go out of Pennsylvania for investment, and the consequence is that the business men of the State are not secure. I think that we ought to be equal to the necessities of the times, and make the change in question.

My friend, the Senator from Allegheny [Mr. BIGHAM] has taken the trouble to write to the Clerk of the Massachusetts Senate, and has received a copy of the bill passed there this winter, repealing the usury laws. I will read it:

AN ACT concerning the rate of interest.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives, in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows: When there is no agreement for a different rate of interest of money, the same shall continue to be at the rate of six dollars upon one hundred dollars for a year, and at the same rate for a greater or less sum, and for a longer or shorter time.

Sec. 2. It shall be lawful to contract to pay or reserve discount at any rate, and to contract for payment and receipt of any rate of interest; Provided, however, That no greater rate of interest than six per centum per annum shall be received in any action, except when the agreement to pay such greater rate of interest is in writing.

Sec. 3. Sections three, four and five of chapter fifty-three of the General Statutes, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent therewith are hereby repealed.

Sec. 4. This act shall not affect any existing contract or action pending, or existing right of action, and shall take effect on the first day of July next.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, Massachusetts has gone the whole length, and has wiped out of existence all the usury laws. I think we of Pennsylvania should be as progressive as our sister States.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, if the passage of this bill is to make us a progressive people, I am sorry to say that I am an "old fogey." I cannot assent to a change of the rate of interest at this time. A great many of the people of this Commonwealth are borrowers. It is a bad time to change the rate of interest, as I do not think the people of the Commonwealth wish it. Capitalists, who are making immense fortunes, and some business men may want an increase of the rate of interest; but I do not believe that the mass of the people desire it. If this bill was like the Massachusetts bill it might be more acceptable. I hope the bill will be voted down.

Mr. WHITE. The Senator will agree that the rate there is seven per cent.; does he not agree that a large amount of capital will go out of this State?

Mr. WALLACE. That has been the case for the last six years in regard to United States securities. I do not think the time needs any change.

Mr. McCONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I hope this bill will be voted down. The proposition is a simple one. It is not that of the Massachusetts statute, but it is to increase the legal rate of interest from six to seven per cent. There has been no demonstration of an existing popular necessity for that change. The Senator from Indiana [Mr. WARRICK] has failed to demonstrate it by facts. In my own county I know there is no occasion whatever for the increase. In the county that adjoins me on the east, where there is a large amount of money, loans at less than six per cent. have been very common. The proposition is a radical change throughout the entire Commonwealth. It will necessarily raise the rate of interest on loans by all the banks of the Commonwealth. It will, as a necessary consequence, require a cancellation of all the mortgages in the Commonwealth; it will result in the immediate calling in of all the immense amount of capital invested in mortgages, in order that it may be invested at an increased rate. These are among the many consequences that will result. As there is no public necessity existing for it, I think it would not only be impolitic, but exceedingly rash and disastrous legislation to adopt this proposition.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, it really does amuse me to hear these legal arguments with the idea that we can make laws here to regulate the price of money; the thing is absolutely impossible; you might as well try to regulate lawyers' fees. You cannot regulate the price of money by any act that you may pass. I do not favor this bill particularly, but I would like to wipe out the whole of our legislation here, and pass a law similar to the Massachusetts law that has been read here. That would show some progress. If in order, I move to strike out all after the enacting clause, and insert in lieu thereof this Massachusetts law, which has been read. That seems to me to reach the point. Practically speaking, any man who desires to get two per cent. for his money, and can find anybody willing to give it he can get it. You cannot regulate this thing. It only prevents parties getting money on bond and mortgage, from raising money at the ordinary rate of interest. It strikes me as folly in attempting to legislate upon it.

Mr. LOWRY. It appears to me, Mr. Speaker, that there is a great public necessity that the standard rate of interest in Pennsylvania should be seven per cent. When the law regulating the rate of interest was passed, the Government paid but six per cent.; it now pays seven and three-eighths per cent. The States of New York and Ohio pay seven per cent., and my locality, lying between the two, is crucified in consequence of the low rate of interest there. I can name many cases where money has been loaned in my locality, and where you can just go across the State line, and take a mortgage at seven per cent., when parties at home, who are suffering for money, would be glad to get it at this rate of interest. The action of the Legislature of Pennsylvania, in refusing to enact the same rate of interest in the State of Pennsylvania as in New York, is draining us of our money; we see that every day there. I do not know a money borrower in Erie or Crawford but who is in favor of the law being changed from six to seven per cent. Those who live in the interior, or in counties adjoining a State where the rate of interest is but six per cent., may not feel its inconvenience as we do. Hence, it is, sir, that I shall certainly vote to make the standard in Pennsylvania seven per cent. I agree with the Senator from Lebanon [Mr. COLEMAN] that we cannot regulate the price of money.

But still, sir, every well regulated community and State must have its standard, and Pennsylvania should not have a standard different from that of the States which surround her.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer). Mr. Speaker, I desire to say that I will vote for this bill, and will give my reasons. I find in the section of the State from which I come that the law regulating the rate of interest is a practical nullity. Invariably, in the bills of school directors, who borrow money, it is put in at seven per cent. It is well understood that seven per cent. can be got for money. Now, then, if the law is a nullity, I see no reason why it should remain as it is; I am in favor of changing it. Even the banks have succeeded in making arrangements by which they can get seven per cent. or more. In discounting paper, they will charge one and one-half per cent. for exchange. If seven per cent. is the legal rate, it seems to me money would be more plenty in our State, and that borrowers would be accommodated more freely.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I think that some time ought to be taken for considering this subject; I, therefore, move that the further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, March 6, 1867.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The House met at 3 o'clock P. M., pursuant to adjournment.

The SPEAKER announced the orders to be the consideration of the bills on the

PUBLIC CALENDAR.

The first bill in order was House bill No. 290, a further supplement to an act for the regulation and continuance of a system of education by common schools, approved the 8th day of May, A. D. 1854.

The question being on the second section of the bill,

Mr. WINGARD offered an amendment, which was read as follows:

Provided however, That every county superintendent, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall present himself before the State Superintendent within thirty days after his election, by the school directors of the proper county, for examination; and in case any person so elected be found incompetent, the State Superintendent shall refuse to commission such person, but shall summon the person having the next highest number of votes before him, and shall examine him, and if found competent, shall commission him; and if he prove to be incompetent, then the State Superintendent shall appoint and commission a competent person to fill the office of county superintendent until the next triennial election of county superintendents.

Question on agreeing to the amendment.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me the amendment is impracticable. It is hardly possible for every superintendent, within thirty days, to repair to Harrisburg for examination. The amendment simply requires him to do what the law does not require him to do now. I believe the law as it stands at the present says if any person is dissatisfied with the qualifications of the superintendent be can make known his objections to the State Superintendent, who, in person, or through another whom he may appoint, shall cause the superintendent to be examined. There are many cases where a whole community would at once assent that the person elected was competent, and there would be no necessity for his coming to Harrisburg to be examined. There are many cases also where there may be some doubt about the capability or qualifications of a superintendent; if any person objects to his competency the law already provides remedy. It seems to me that the necessity for the amendment, although the object of it is good, is obviated by the existing law. I think it would impose a most burdensome duty upon the State Superintendent.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, when the bill was last before the House it was pretty thoroughly discussed. And it was deemed desirable, at that time, that there should be some place designated for the examination of superior teachers. An amendment was offered then by the gentleman from Berks (Mr. JONES); but it did not seem to entirely meet the wishes of the House, inasmuch as the committee before whom the superintendent was to be examined was not thought to be sufficiently dignified or competent, or for some other reason. Certainly, there should be some place where superintendents are to be examined, and, it strikes me, that the very best place would be at headquarters.

This amendment provides that the county superintendents shall report to the general superintendent, and if he approve of them they shall then be appointed. One object now is to perfect this bill as far as we can, whatever may be the provisions of the law at this time. In my judgment, this amendment would be a step forward in the right direction, and tend still further to complete the school laws of the State. I had no particular tendency with regard to this amendment, but, it strikes me, as being the best that has yet been suggested.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, I am certainly as much in favor of having superintendents elected, who are thorough scholars and qualified for the duties of the office, as any man in this House. But I can see no necessity for this amendment.

I will read from the school laws to show that provisions have already been made.

"CL. That the school directors of the several counties of the Commonwealth shall meet in convention, at the seat of justice of the proper county, on the first Monday of June next, and the first Monday of May, in each third year thereafter, and select vice versa, by a majority of the whole number of directors present, one person of literary and scientific requirements, and of skill and experience in the art of teaching."

"271. The literary and scientific acquirements required by law, will be held, in all cases hereafter, to mean sufficient scholarship to enable the applicant to give sound and thorough instruction in all the studies taught in every common school of the county from the lowest to the highest, and consequently to examine teachers in any and all of the branches."

I am told it has been the practice, where objections have been made to a county superintendent, on account of disqualification, for three persons to be appointed to examine him. It is presumed, in every case, that a county superintendent is competent, if he has received a certificate.

With regard to the institutes, I wish say that they are gotten up for the purpose of affording instruction to those teachers who have not yet come up to the standard required by law.

On agreeing to the amendment,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WINGARD and Mr. DAY, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Allen, Colville, Craig, Gallagher, Gregory, Harlison, Josepha, M'Pherrin, Meching, Peters, Quay, Stumbaugh, Whann and Wingard—14

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barrington, Barton, Boyd, Breen, Brennan, Chadwick, Chalfant, Davis, Day, Donohugh, Ewing, Fogel, Freeborn, Ghegan, Harner, Hoffman, Hunt, Jones, Jones, Kennedy, Kears, Kimmel, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Lee, Leech, Linton, Long, M'Creary, M'Henry, M'Kea, Mann, Marks, Melly, Meyers, Mullin, Pennypacker, Phelan, Pilow, Rhoads, Richards, Roath, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Seiler Sharples, Shnman, Steacy, Stehman, Tharp, Waddell, Webb, Welser, Westbrook, Wharton, Wilson, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—65.

So the question was determined in the negative.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment:

The amendment was read as follows:

Provided, That the superintendent shall produce and cause the same to be read at the first meeting of such institute, after his election, a certificate of the State Superintendent, showing clearly that such superintendent is in every way well qualified to perform the duties of his office.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that this is the same thing as the other amendment. The words are changed and that is all. For how is the superintendent to obtain this certificate unless he complies with the provision as set forth in the amendment of the gentleman from Lycoming [Mr. WINGARD]?

The House has just voted down, by an extraordinarily large vote, an amendment requiring county superintendents to come here and get their certificates from the State Superintendent. Now, the gentleman from Franklin [Mr. STUMBAUGH], on the heels of that, offers an amendment that requires precisely the same thing. For how can they produce a certificate from the State Superintendent, unless they have been examined by him? And this requires that they shall proceed to Harrisburg for that purpose. The gentleman surely does not expect the State Superintendent to travel round and examine every county superintendent. It seems to me this is a mere change of words with the same object. It is a piece of strategy which, I presume, the gentleman from Franklin has availed himself of for the purpose of securing what he lost by the vote just taken. I hope, therefore, those who voted against the former amendment will vote against this.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I do not think that the gentleman is able to ascertain my motives correctly, without having heard me on the subject. I did not propose the amendment offered by the gentleman from Lycoming [Mr. WINGARD]. I voted for it, but it does not necessarily follow that I offer this amendment, because I failed to obtain what I desired to obtain in the other.

The amendments are not alike. I am surprised the gentleman from Lycoming should attempt to assert that this amendment means precisely what the other did. I take it that the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY], and others, who are trying to get this bill through—this bill, which is so perfect in itself that it cannot be altered or amended, because, if you dot an i or cross a t, then it will be wrong—I take it for granted that they mean to put this bill through, though superintendents are ignorammes, though they do not know anything, so long as they are elected by the people. I know in my own county, and in some other counties, men are elected who are totally unfit for the position of superintendent. I do not desire to put any impediment in the way of passing this bill, and I submit there is nothing in my amendment to which any honest man could object.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, it is not on account of the dishonesty of the amendment or of any improper motives on the part of the gentleman offering it that I have objected.

I said we had just voted down an amendment embodying the same idea precisely, but the gentleman fails to see it. The former amendment required a certificate from the State Superintendent to each county superintendent. The objection was raised that the law already provided a method by which county superintendents could be declared incompetent.

If anybody objected to the qualifications of a person elected county superintendent, the State Superintendent was then required to take the matter in hand, and see whether he was qualified or not. The amendment offered by the gentleman from Franklin [Mr. STUMBAUGH] says that he must produce a certificate from the State Superintendent, therefore, he must go to the State Superintendent to be examined. That is just what we have voted down. I regret that the citizens of Franklin have been so unfortunate in the selection of their superintendents.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I do not want to interrupt the gentleman, but if he will go to the Auditor General's office, he will find there a written document sent by one of the superintendents, who commences and ends his name with small letters—with a little "t."

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I have shown that the law provides that such a man cannot draw warrants from the treasury, if anybody sees fit to raise an objection. If they are as unfortunate in Franklin county as has been represented, the citizens of that county have themselves alone to blame. They have their remedy.

It is not the object of the friends of the bill to drive it through. I never saw the bill until it came before the House. But I do say it will be with this as with all other good bills, it will be tinkered to death by trifling amendments. The most trifling objections are raised to a bill because one word may suit a gentleman better than another word. Good bills have been lost in this House by being tinkered. It may be that some gentleman desires to kill this bill by this process of tinkering. I think the main design of the bill is good. There may be some features in it not just what we would want. I presume there is not a bill passed by this Legislature that is just as it should be in all particulars. There are faults in all bills. Whatever faults may exist in this bill can be remedied by future legislation.

I do not think the friends of the bill are trying to force it through, because the county superintendents ask it. I say the general desire is that a bill should be passed to promote the interests of the common schools throughout the Commonwealth, and that this bill has received a good deal of care and attention.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I am in favor of a provision in this or some other law which will require county superintendents to be examined for the purpose of ascertaining whether they have the requisite qualifications. If teachers require an examination and a certificate from a county superintendent, to enable them to obtain district schools, why should not the superior officer in the county be subject to the same rules? While I am not particular how the law is framed for the purpose of meeting this difficulty, I have an amendment which I wish to offer after the amendment of the gentleman from Franklin is voted upon—an amendment which I think will cover the entire ground.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I do not think the remarks of the gentleman from Erie applied to me particularly, when he said we were throwing impediments in the way of the bill. I have not said a word upon the passage of the bill from the time it came up until this hour. I am not opposed to the bill. I only desire to get it as perfect as possible. I do not desire to reflect upon any gentleman who holds the position of superintendent, but I do desire to protect the people and the teachers from having men to preside over them who are not competent so to do. This section provides that the superintendent shall have power to convene the school teachers of the county for the purpose of forming an institute of learning. Now, suppose he is not competent to instruct the teachers, for he produces no certificate, he is examined nowhere. He must call a meeting five days, and draw the public funds without having given a particle of instruction to the teachers.

Mr. CHALFANT. I would like to ask the gentleman a question. Are not one-fifth of the directors competent to form an opinion whether a superintendent is qualified?

Mr. STUMBAUGH. I will say to the gentleman that it so happens in my county that a majority of his party get the school board, and I am satisfied that four-fifths of them are not much more than able to read. They have no education. They manage to get control of the county and elect a superintendent, and they do it by attending the elections in the spring, while my party stays at home.

Mr. CHALFANT. I suppose one-half of the gentleman's party must be particularly ignorant. One-fifth of the board of directors of a county have the power to send a petition to the State Superintendent preferring charges as to the incompetency of a county superintendent. That was done in my own county.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know how this proviso will prevent them from resorting to that measure. It is only to protect the teachers. Suppose that to be true, it does not protect the teachers in the institute from being taught by a man totally incompetent. That is no answer to my argument.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, the lack which the gentleman from Erie [Mr. M'CREARY] says is made up by the gentleman from Erie to meet my idea of what is required. I believe I am as anxious to promote the interests of the common schools of this State as any member upon this floor. I am in favor of some of the provisions of this bill—of most of them; I am not very clear that I am in favor of the amendment of the gentleman from Franklin, but I am clear in my own mind that there is, just here, in relation to this section, a difficulty in the school law, and a difficulty in this bill which is not supplied by the features of the law referred to by the gentleman from Erie; because under the law as it stands, when a man is elected by the directors of the county to the office of county superintendent, if any objection to him is made, it comes in the shape of a prosecution—that is its meaning, its purport and its spirit. Men very frequently, out of good feeling towards a superintendent, abstain from making any such prosecution because it is an odious business; hence prosecutions against those who have received the suffrages of a majority of the school board are very rare.

I know a number of county superintendents in Pennsylvania who, I think, would be improved by just such an examination as is contemplated by the amendment of the gentleman from Franklin. The present law does not secure that examination, for the reason, as I have stated, that any proceedings against a man, after he is elected under the present law, seem like prosecutions, and an odium attaches to them. When it is resorted to ill feeling is begotten, and that is injurious to the interests of the common schools. That, I believe, is the testimony of every State Superintendent who has had anything to do with counties under that provision. We should frame an act that will work harmoniously and smoothly, one which will not be continually creating disturbances. I think the amendment of the gentleman from Franklin is much preferable to the existing provisions, though I am not prepared to say it is what it ought to be. What I do say is, that I think the friends of this bill should ask for its postponement, and present something to the House that will embody the idea of this amendment, something which shall secure the competence of the party who holds the office of county superintendent.

The gentleman from Franklin is not particular in regard to his amendment, but he feels there is a difficulty in this bill, as do many others, and as I have felt. I do say we ought to make the school system an harmonious system; and to make it complete there should be as much necessity upon the part of the county superintendents to produce a certificate of his qualifications before the directors who are to elect him, as there is that the teacher should produce before the directors who hire him a certificate of his qualifications. I never could understand why there was this exemption on the part of candidates for county superintendents. I cannot understand why such suggestions as these should interfere with the passage of this bill. It seems to me that, under this section, is where such suggestions should come up. I deem it an important matter, and one that deserves a fair and candid consideration. Arguments in favor of it, to my mind, cannot very well be answered.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, if I understood the remark made by the gentleman, he would require that before any person can be elected to the office of county superintendent, he must produce a certificate from the State Superintendent. Now, it seems to me this would create a great deal of confusion.—It would devolve upon the State Superintendent an immense amount of labor; moreover, school directors, when they meet, do not always select from the persons named; or they may look elsewhere, and a man in some other calling in life, and conclude he was just the one for the position, and they would urge and entreat him to accept the office. He might not desire it, yet, the school directors, and the whole county, believing him to be the best fitted for the position, he might, from a sense of duty, accept the offer. But under this provision, he cannot be chosen, because he has no certificate from the State Superintendent.

Mr. MANN. Would there be any more hardship in that than there is in the fact that school directors, when they meet and look around for some person who, in their opinion, is the best within their reach for the position of teacher, they may not be permitted to hire him unless he has a certificate?

Mr. M'CREARY. It is not necessary for a teacher to have a certificate when he is employed, nor, indeed, until he assumes his duties, but the county superintendent must have a certificate before he can be voted for.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, I am authorized to say that a bill is in course of preparation providing for the difficulties which the gentleman has just mentioned, or an additional section may be introduced providing for a board of examiners or something of that nature in each normal school district.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Did I understand the gentleman from Chester to say that the friends of the bill will offer another section which will cover the grounds now in dispute?

Mr. SHARPLES. Yes sir; or a new bill.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. A new bill may not answer the purpose, because it will not, probably, be passed this session.

Mr. MANN. I would suggest that we let this bill go to third reading, and then we can consider what will be offered.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. With the understanding that the bill goes to third reading I will withdraw my amendment, and with the understanding also that a new section will be introduced at the instance of the general superintendent and friends of the bill that will cover the whole ground in some way.

Mr. EWING. I object to that understanding; if this bill is postponed two or three times more, it will be killed sure.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman is mistaken. We propose to let it go over on third reading to-day; it can then be disposed of at any time.

Mr. SHARPLES. I believe the friends of the bill are in favor of some action of this kind.

The motion of the gentleman from Franklin, having been withdrawn, The question recurred on the second section of the bill.

It was

Agreed to.

The third section was read.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend in the seventeenth line by striking out "one hundred" and inserting "fifty dollars."

The object I have is that the commissioners of counties having a small population shall not be required to pay more than fifty dollars. This amount, in some counties, is equal to one thousand dollars in other counties. This bill only makes a difference of one half between the very wealthy counties and the very poor counties, whereas there is now a difference of more than ten to one. This amendment is intended simply to be more favorable to counties with a small population and small means.

Mr. DEISE. Mr. Speaker, I move further to amend by striking out after the word "superintendent" in the eighth line down to the word "dollars" in the eighteenth line.

The question was on the amendment to the amendment.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I suppose the object of this is to prevent any appropriation whatever. I trust the friends of this bill will give it a trial. It has already been brought before the public in a number of counties in this Commonwealth. The amount appropriated for the holding of the institutes designated in this bill is very small. In order that these meetings may be beneficial to teachers there must necessarily be some expense, and a competent person must be secured to lecture; apparatus must be had, then there are little expenses for stationery, &c., so that unless an appropriation of this kind is made, it would be a great burden upon the teachers to meet at the institute. I hope, therefore, the amendment of the gentleman from Clinton [Mr. DEISE] will not be adopted. I think the gentleman from Potter makes a mistake, for the reason that the cost is as much to hold a meeting in sparsely settled counties as in districts more densely populated.

Mr. DEISE. Mr. Speaker, I only wish to state here that my objection to this part of the section is because I believe it to be against the interests of education in the different counties of this Commonwealth.

It permits the county superintendent, with a few teachers, to control the workings of these institutes, for which they are to be paid at the rate of two hundred dollars, which money is to come from the taxpayers of the county. I think it is the experience of nearly every member on this floor that these institutes are not conducted as they should be; in nine cases out of ten they are the medium through which a new series of books are to be introduced; lecturers are invited who are nothing more than the agents of book concerns. These men take up the time of the teachers. It is left with the county superintendent and a few teachers to invite such lecturers as they see fit. And what lecturers are they? Why, the agents of Philadelphia and New York book concerns. I have attended these institutes; they are not teachers' conventions, but more like panoramas.

Mr. BOYD. Will the gentleman state on what authority he makes that assertion?

Mr. DEISE. I make it on self-knowledge.

Mr. BOYD. I deny the assertion.

Mr. DEISE. I do not know whether the gentleman has any little panoramas in his county, but I know whereof I speak. In our own borough we have thirteen scholars and thirteen teachers. We pay them seventy-five dollars a month. We give them a week to attend the institutes in the county; but we are not prepared, nor are we willing to say to these thirteen teachers that they may send to some fancy lecturer in New York, and divide the profits and the per centage on the sale of books. In many counties these teachers have become agents for the introduction of books in the common schools. I am in favor of a vigorous system of education. I am here to give the most liberal ground to the teachers of the Commonwealth. I am here to place the most power in the hands of the State Superintendent; but I say to the teachers, and I say to the county superintendents, that they shall not take money from our treasury to squander week after week in having fancy lecturers to introduce certain new books. If the teachers, as a class, are to be a profession, their own works should bring them before the Commonwealth. I am in favor of paying a good teacher a liberal salary; but what are the teachers asking by the provisions of this section? They are asking from the county treasury money that has been raised by taxes upon people who are to-day groaning beneath the burden of oppressive taxation; and where is that money to go? It is to be expended by the county superintendents in procuring the services of lecturers and instructors in these institutes. Cannot the teachers instruct themselves? Must we bring up men to teach them? If they are not fit to conduct a school they had better quit and take up some other kind of business. Why bring lecturers to advertise the books of concerns asking too large a fee, and then to bring their wares before the public by means of the daily and weekly papers of the Commonwealth? Why bring them up here and pay them two hundred dollars to learn teachers how to introduce books? I will vote against any section that will give a county superintendent such power as this. I suppose soon we will hear that Horace Greeley or James Buchanan has been invited to lecture at the expense of the county. I suppose the gentleman from Franklin [Mr. STUMBAUGH] will invite Horace Greeley, and I know in my county they will invite James Buchanan.

I want no such nonsense as this. The education of the poor is an important subject; it is a subject that lies near to my heart, and near to the heart of every member on this floor. But give us plain sailing and plan dealing. If our teachers are not competent without holding these institutes at our expense—and I say it in no unkindness to the gentleman from York [Mr. BOYD]—if we must get men to instruct our teachers we had better quit. What is the use of this section? Two hundred dollars may not be true, but two hundred dollars will educate many a poor boy in this Commonwealth, and give him the benefits of our common school system. And how are these two hundred dollars to be expended? Why, by having some white cravated gentleman ride up in the cars at our expense to lecture. Go into the counties of the Commonwealth, and you will find carload after carload of school books. Before a boy has been to school three months he has to change his books, and his daddy must walk very fast to and fro from the bookstore if he would keep up with the times. I say do not squander the poor people's money. I am totally opposed to this section.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that the gentleman's lines have not fallen in pleasant places so far as teachers are concerned. I believe the teachers in Pennsylvania are quite as correct in their habits as any other class of men in the State.

Now, with regard to the objects of this bill, we start out with the assumption that the teachers of the State are not sufficiently qualified for their duties. Will the gentleman who last addressed the House, or any other gentleman, deny the assertion? Assuming that they are not sufficiently qualified and that it is impossible, or at least inconvenient, for them to attend the normal schools—since many of them have families—provision has been made for holding county institutes; and for what purpose? For the purpose of improving those teachers who are not so well qualified as they should be for the duties of their office. The object of these institutes is to benefit the scholars of the State by providing better instructors. I believe in every county in the State they now hold institutes, and in a majority of these counties the teachers are allowed time to attend the institutes. They are sent to the institute at the expense of the county, and we should by all means provide the very best instruction for them. Economy would so dictate.

I admit that these institutes will be controlled by, perhaps, a few, who have not as much to say for themselves as they should; have they so incorrect an idea of their duties to themselves and their pupils that they will squander the money and time allotted for their benefit?

This bill goes on to say that such money shall be expended by the county superintendent in securing the services of lecturers. Now, who are those lecturers? In nine cases out of ten they will be men of standing in the profession of teaching; not politicians, not lawyers particularly, or doctors; but men who have worked their way up to their profession. Our colleges will provide a very large majority of the instructors for our teachers. I think I can speak from my experience in this matter. We have had a special law for our county, giving to our teachers' institute annually the sum of two hundred dollars to be expended as this bill provides. I can only say that, so far as my knowledge extends, no gentleman of intelligence, of any party, sect or creed has offered the slightest objection to that law.

It has worked well. We make it a point to secure the very best instructors. The gentleman seems to start out with the idea that book agents and demagogues will alone have control; that they will lecture our teachers. With regard to book agents in my county, we are so strict that we very seldom invite an agent to lecture at all; and when he does lecture it is generally without compensation. We allow no man with a sinister object in view to lecture in our county. I do hold that it is important we should provide our teachers with the very best instructors. If our teachers were graduates of normal schools they would be better qualified than these institutes, except, probably, to provide ways and means for the enhancement of the interests of education.

The institutes are intended to be little normal schools gotten up in each county for a week or two, and they follow the design of normal schools as nearly as possible. I can see no objection to these institutes, provided counties can afford to pay for them. I am sure, if the teachers return from these institutes better qualified to teach, the benefit will result, and be carried out to the children, and operate upon them just as in any other profession. Those of you on this floor who have studied law have done so really at the expense of your clients. Those gentlemen who studied medicine did so really, in the end, at the expense of those they have attended. It is so in every kind of business. The great point here is, in the absence of thorough teachers, to get successful teachers; and, in the absence of a sufficient number of normal schools, to make good teachers. The object is to develop the qualifications of the teachers. The great drawback with many of our institutes lies in the fact that they have not the proper instructors to lead the classes. The reason why the instructors in many of these institutes are men who come there as book agents is because the county superintendent has not had the wherewith to employ the proper person. I hope the amendment will not prevail, and that you will provide your teachers throughout the State with the means of self-improvement. Those institutes will do a great deal of good where they are well managed, but they cannot be successful without funds.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the amendment of the gentleman from Clinton?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DEISE and Mr. MARKLEY, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Allen, Barrington, Brennan, Chalfant, Collins, Colville, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Gregory, Harrison, Harmer, Headman, Heltzel, Johnson, Jones, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Linton, Long, McHenry, M'Pherrin, Markley, Meyers, Pheasant, Rhoads, Roush, Shuman, Tharp, Weller, Westbrook and Wingard—35.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barton, Boyd, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, Day, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Kennedy, Kinnell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Creary, M'Keel, Mann, Marks, Meily, Pennypacker, Pillow, Richards, Roth, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Waddell, Watt, Welch, Whelan, Wharton, Wilson, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Snyder—40.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The question recurred on the amendment of the gentleman from Potter, to strike out "one hundred" and insert "fifty" in the seventeenth line of the third section.

Mr. JENKS moved to amend in the seventeenth line, by striking out the words "less than one hundred nor."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The question then recurred on the amendment as amended.

Mr. RHOADS. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out the word "two" in the seventeenth line, and insert the word "one," so that the line will read "nor more than one hundred dollars."

Question on the amendment.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, I hope, at least, the amendment to the amendment will not prevail. I am satisfied that the gentleman from Berks [Mr. RHOADS], or from other counties, shall put themselves down to one hundred, or fifty, or even ten dollars, if they see proper, but I ask that those who feel disposed to pay more liberally, may have permission to go to the extent of two hundred dollars at least. In the county I have the honor, in part, to represent, we have been in the habit of holding county institutes; we have been in the habit of procuring lecturers to attend upon these institutes, not for the purpose of introducing books or any other school furniture, but for the purpose of enlightening the minds of the teachers who are to take charge of our children in the public schools. We have found it highly beneficial, eminently so. Gentlemen from other parts may amend the act so as to give them an opportunity of paying as little as they please, or nothing at all; what we ask, and what the friends of education upon this floor ask, is that our hands be not tied—that we be left free to promote, in our own way, the interests of education in our respective districts. For this reason, I hope that the amendment to the amendment will be voted down.

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker, I, in common with the gentleman from Lancaster [Mr. ARMSTRONG], agree that every county should have the power to regulate the matter according to its own liking. I am opposed to the entire features of the bill. I am satisfied that the people of my county would ask its delegation here to oppose any such measure. I would, therefore, suggest an amendment to the effect that this section be inoperative in such counties as gentlemen here may ask.

I move that this section do not apply to Luzerne county.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to the point of order: That two amendments are already before the House, and, therefore, the gentleman cannot offer another.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of the opinion that the point of order is well taken. The question being on agreeing to the amendment of the gentleman from Berks, to strike out "two hundred" and insert "one hundred," it was

Not agreed to.

The amendment of the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN], as amended by the gentleman from Jefferson [Mr. JENKS], was then

Agreed to.

The question recurring on the section as amended, it was

Agreed to.

The fourth and fifth sections were then read and

Agreed to.

The sixth section was read.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out all after the word "convention" in the eleventh line to the end of the section.

My object is simply this: The section, as it reads now, requires that a convention shall select text books, which are to be good for three years; that is, until the next triennial convention. If we adopt this last proviso, it strikes me this provision is destroyed. It puts in operation a system of book peddling. I think this section would be very proper without the last proviso. Every one who knows anything about common school business is aware that, if they are bored by any thing, it is this continual changing of books.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say one word in explanation. That provision was adopted in order that the benefits of this system might be available before the triennial convention of 1869. It is simply a provision allowing the directors to avail themselves of this privilege before the convention meets. As regards book peddling, it will be prevented by just some such system as this. If the directors of a county meet to appoint a committee to examine the different books and systems, and that committee report a system, after careful examination, it shuts out book peddling. This provision is simply that the directors may avail themselves of certain privileges before the next triennial convention, if they desire. There is nothing compulsory in the act.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, if it were only made to apply to the present time, as the gentleman from Chester [Mr. SHARPLES] strikes, I would have no objection, but it strikes me there is an ambiguity in its terms; it may apply to this or any other time. If the gentleman will amend so as to make it apply to the present, I have no objection.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the amendment of the gentleman from Allegheny?

It was

Not agreed to.

The question recurring on the section,

It was

Agreed to.

The seventh section was read.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out in the ninth line, from and including the word "and," to and including the word "districts," in the tenth line, and insert the following: "to be paid by the same officers as pay the salaries of teachers in such school districts, and in the same manner as such salaries are now paid."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, a further amendment, to come in at the end of the seventh section.

The amendment was read as follows:

Provided, That the president of the board of directors or controllers of any city or borough in this Commonwealth, shall, at any time after the passage of this act, if so requested in writing by seven directors or controllers, call a convention, giving at least five days notice thereof, of all the directors of said city or borough, to determine whether they will elect a city or borough superintendent in accordance with the provisions of this act; and if, at such meeting, it shall be decided to hold such an election, the said directors shall again convene, at the time appointed by this section of the act, or any other time in accordance with its provisions, and at a place fixed upon by themselves, when they shall proceed to carry their determination into effect in the same manner as is done by conventions held for the election of county superintendents; and all subsequent conventions for carrying into effect the purposes of this act shall be called in the same manner by said president of the board of directors or controllers of such city or borough.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. CHALFANT. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out, in the second line, the word "ten" and insert the word "twelve."

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me the section is much better without this amendment. There are not many towns in this State that contain over ten thousand inhabitants. It occurs to me that a population of ten thousand should be allowed the privilege of electing the superintendents of their schools. Why the gentleman from Montour asks this amendment I cannot say. The State Superintendent has given this matter a careful consideration. It seems to me a town of ten thousand inhabitants is large enough to have a superintendent.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, I hope the amendment will not prevail. The language of the act is that where the population amounts to ten thousand they may elect, if they so prefer. It is not absolute. It is optional.

The amendment was

Not agreed to.

The question recurring on the section as amended,

It was

Agreed to.

The eighth, ninth and tenth sections were then read and

Agreed to.

The eleventh section was read.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment, to come in in the fifth line after the word "teaching":

"Nor shall such certificate be given to any person who is in the habit of using, as a beverage, any intoxicating drinks."

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker, I hardly see how we can ascertain whether any person is in the habit of using intoxicating drinks. Such an amendment as this will give rise to backbiting and slander. It strikes me it is a very dangerous as well as a very useless amendment. I ask how it is to be determined whether a person uses intoxicating liquors? A man who is notoriously given to the use of intoxicating liquors has not the slightest opportunity of entering our schools in any official capacity. I think the public sentiment will guard this point sufficiently well.

The amendment of the gentleman from Potter is exceedingly mischievous.

Mr. M'CREARY. Mr. Speaker, I claim to stand among those who are opposed to drinking liquor as a beverage; but, sir, I do not think it right that this Legislature should place restrictions upon any man, whatever may be his association, while, at the same time, they legalize the right to sell that beverage. Why should we give power to parties to sell liquor and then say to those following a certain occupation you shall not drink it? I think we would be stultifying ourselves. While I, as a member of a school board, would oppose the employing of any teacher who would drink intoxicating liquors to excess; while I would place over children a man who is free from this one vice, at least, I think it entirely wrong that this Legislature should legalize the selling of liquors and then forbid persons of a certain calling from using the same. I know that the feeling in Pennsylvania—yes, in the United States—is growing in favor of temperance, and in opposition to wholesaling alcoholic drinks. But, I know, also, that the good sense of the directors in different localities prevents their employing men who are in the habit of becoming intoxicated. Therefore, on this very ground, I oppose this amendment.

Mr. SHARPLES. Mr. Speaker, I desire to amend the amendment by inserting the word "notoriously."

I desire to say further that at present the superintendents have the power to dismiss a teacher or refuse his application on the ground of intemperance.

"Intemperance, dishonesty, or other immorality, is sufficient to justify the annual certificate by a county superintendent. He is not merely to annul for want of professional knowledge. Propriety of character is as much a requisite of the teacher as literary attainments."

Mr. KINNEY. Mr. Speaker, it strikes me our friend from Potter [Mr. MANN] is traveling a little out of the way to introduce some favorite theory. I did expect the word "white" to be dragged in, but I hope such an amendment as this will not pass, nor the amendment of the gentleman from Chester. I think the section is better without either.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I do not propose to occupy much of the time of the House in advocating this amendment; but when this question as to the qualifications of a teacher, as to what he shall be required to do and know, arose, I could not, in justice to my own convictions, permit the occasion to pass without attempting to correct an evil that I have noticed for many years. On no other occasion I have observed that persons employed as teachers in schools have not only used intoxicating drinks, but they have used them to such an extent that they have been seen intoxicated in the presence of their scholars. I submit to any person what influence can such a teacher have? After the information that has been spread abroad upon this question of the use of intoxicating drinks, I ask what influence can a teacher, addicted to liquor, have upon his scholars? There is no child large enough to go to school who does not know that the use of intoxicating drinks is an injury to those who indulge in it, and that it leads to bad habits in those directed by such a teacher must, of necessity, be lessened in the estimation of his scholars if he is given to this habit. It unfitting him for the discharge of the duties devolving upon him.

A teacher is, necessarily, to some extent, in the position of a parent. The law places him there properly, and it requires that he shall be possessed of a good moral character, and I am merely attempting to add that he shall also be a person who abstains from the use of intoxicating drinks. I believe the one requisite is as necessary as the other. I think it is quite time the Legislature of Pennsylvania marked such people as unfit to teach schools.

I deem this amendment, if adopted, as the most important portion of the bill. I believe it will have a most salutary influence upon the schools of the State. I do not propose to dilate upon the evils of intemperance. I submit to my friend from Bradford [Mr. KINNEY] that, whatever my views may be on this question, I have occupied but very little time in laying them before this House, and I only do it now because we are legislating on the interests of the children of the State. I feel called upon to do all I can to preserve them from the evil influences that are bearing down upon the grown up people of the community.

As I have remarked, the teacher is necessarily placed in the position of a parent, and the children look up to him as such. I ask you if you are willing to send your children to a teacher whose influence is that of a person who uses intoxicating drinks? Many people, who themselves occasionally indulge in stimulants, would be exceedingly annoyed and disturbed to find their children following their example. I ask gentlemen on this floor if they can expect their children to refrain from using intoxicating drinks, if they have the example of their teacher to the contrary before them? The child has a perfect right to believe that what is permissible for his teacher is permissible for him. You have no right to say that the child shall not do what his teacher may do.

I hope this amendment will prevail. As to the word "notorious," I fail to see its effect. I think the amendment is much better without it; but, as the gentleman who offered it is chairman of the Committee on Education, and is presumed to know more about such things than I do, I am not very tenacious.

Mr. KINNEY. Mr. Speaker, the existing laws already provide so amply for the examination of applicants for the position of teacher, that it seemed to me somewhat useless to introduce the amendment. It is a very plain proposition, that no drinking man can retain a good moral character, especially is it so with regard to teachers; hence, it seems to me unnecessary to "lug in" that peculiar phraseology. I consider one of the best grounds for the frequent re-examination of the teachers, is the necessity of learning their moral character and standing. A man may pass an examination, and his moral character may stand high; but, perhaps, in six months or a year, he will be completely prostrated by the very evil which our friend from Potter has suggested. It seems to me the law provides for such cases, and such an amendment is unnecessary.

Mr. DEISE. Mr. Speaker, it occurs to me that upon this question we are bringing in very fine points. I do not care how much we legislate upon temperance, so long as we do not take the power out of the hands of the people, and put it in the hands of one man. The law, as it stands, requires the directors of the district to employ the teacher, and it specifically says no teacher shall be employed who does not possess a certificate. You will find one of the qualifications required is a good moral character. Now, it occurs to me that a man who will get notoriously drunk is not a moral man. It is desired to increase the restrictions so that a county superintendent must dismiss or refuse to give a certificate to any man who, he believes, takes occasionally a glass of whisky. The same principles applied still further will make it incumbent upon the superintendent to smell the man's breath. I admit if a man takes a drink of whisky in the neighborhood of Potter county he is not likely to get out of it—it will kill him before he reaches the next county. Under the law as it is proposed to make it, the superintendent may refuse the application of a teacher, not only for incompetency and other disqualifications, but because he drinks a little too much, in the opinion of that superintendent. I say if the directors have a man who is qualified, it is none of the superintendent's business whether he drinks Rhine wine or lager beer; all that is required is that a man has a good moral character. Do you suppose that the directors would stultify themselves by employing a man who is a notorious drunkard? Does the gentleman intend to insult the intelligence of the people of Pennsylvania? By-and-by the gentleman will say that a man cannot be county superintendent unless he has a revenue stamp pasted on his back.

We are legislating against the interests of the people. I believe power belongs to the people, and that every attempt to take it from them is despotism.

It occurs to me that we have agitated this whisky question long enough; the more you touch it the more people will drink.

In Potter county and that section of country, they have female teachers employed to ferret out who drinks whisky, and sometimes they are obliged to kiss you to tell how your breath smells. Besides that you are saying to a man that he must confine himself to the Spa Wit of the county superintendent. The gentleman does not pretend to say that a man who takes a glass of sparkling wine is not fit to teach school.

Mr. MANN. I do.
Mr. DEISE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman where he would put Daniel Webster. He not fit to teach school? Then who is fit to teach the schools of Potter county? To assert that a drink of whisky makes a man incompetent to teach school is an insult to the intelligence of the age. Why, some of our ablest physicians, some of our most eloquent lawyers, some of the best efforts, know the most and feel the best when they are inspired by a glass of good Monongahela. If you go into Potter county and convict a man for selling liquor that will kill a "nigger" within forty eight hours after he drinks it, I am with you. But if we go on in the road we are traveling, we will soon have it that a man can drink nothing stronger than coffee made out of pumpkin seeds. If we intend to legislate for the good of the country, let us not take the power from the people.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I have been much amused at the efforts of the gentleman from Clinton [Mr. DEISE]. Now the gentleman's rhapsodies about whisky did not touch this point. He did not pretend to say that a man under the influence of intoxicating drinks was in no way qualified to teach school. He did not pretend to say that such an influence was not demoralizing. He did not pretend to say that the very worst possible example that a man could set was not when he was under the influence of intoxicating liquors. He did not pretend to say that a man who would give himself to such indulgences ought not to be a teacher. But we understand the gentleman's theory; we understand his purpose. His speech exhibits his animus. It is opposition to this school system; his opposition to education; his opposition to all that can elevate and reform a man. He asks us if some of the brightest minds of our country have not been inspired by liquor? I answer: yes—to the discredit of mankind some of the brightest minds that ever lived in this or any other country (Daniel Webster was one of them) have gone down to their graves through the influence of this accursed thing. The brightest minds of the bar of this State have gone down in the same way. This vice has invaded not only the rostrum but the pulpit.

Mr. DEISE. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will allow me I would like to ask him what was the first miracle that was performed upon the earth.

To answer the question for him I will state it was turning water into wine.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I have heard enough to-day to convince me that the gentleman does not believe that miracle ever was performed. Show me the wine made by our Saviour and I will show you something very different from that upon which I think the gentleman has been regaling himself. Christ never turned water into wine to make mankind drunkards. He did not turn it into the splendid Monongahela that the gentleman has been lauding this afternoon. His whole speech was an excuse for the use of intoxicating drinks.

I am opposed to sending my children to a man who is in the habit of using intoxicating liquors, because it is wonderful how quick scholars learn to imitate. We should get our teachers, those channels from whence the education of our children emanates, as pure as possible. And I am very certain you cannot get them pure if you permit them to be contaminated by this most corroding of all corroding streams.

The question being on the amendment to the amendment,

It was

Not agreed to.

The question recurring on the amendment to insert, after the word "teaching," the words "no such certificate shall be given to any person who is in the habit of using, as a beverage, intoxicating drinks."

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. MANN and Mr. EWING, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Cameron, Chadwick, Day, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Jenks, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Lee, Leach, M'Creary, M'Pherrin, Mann, Marks, Meehling, Meyers, Pillow, Richards, Roush, Satterthwait, Schler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbanger, Subers, Waddell, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wright and Glass, Speaker —45.

NAYS—Messrs. Barrington, Barton, Breen, Chalfant, Chase, Colville, Craig, Davis, Deise, Fogal, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hunt, Jones, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, M'Kea, Markley, Mullin, Pennypacker, Peters, Quigley, Rhoads, Roath, Robinson, Sharp, Westbrook, and Worrall—25.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The question being on the section as amended,

It was

Agreed to.

The twelfth section was read.

Mr. SHAPIRES moved to amend by restoring the last proviso to the twelfth section. The motion was

Agreed to.

And the proviso was restored.

The question being on the section as amended,

It was

Agreed to.

Mr. CHADWICK. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following as an additional section:

Sec. —. That the school directors in each county in this Commonwealth shall, at the triennial convention for the election of county superintendent, elect three qualified and competent persons, who shall be known as a board of appeal; and it shall be the duty of said board of appeal to meet in the month of September, in each year, at a convenient place within said county, having previously given ten days' notice, by advertisement, of the time and place of meeting, for the purpose of re-examining applicants for certificates as teachers, who may have been refused certificates by the county superintendent; and if, in the opinion of a majority of said board of appeal, after due examination, that said applicant is fully qualified as a teacher, then said board shall issue to such applicant or applicants certificates as teacher or teachers. The necessary expenses attending the session of said board of appeal, including a per diem pay of three dollars to each member for each day actually employed in the performance of their duty, shall not exceed one hundred and fifty dollars in any one county or school district, having power to elect a superintendent; and it shall be paid out of the county treasury, upon orders properly certified by the president of said board of appeal.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, I hope the section will not be adopted. What is our experience with regard to the conduct of superintendents? So far from withholding certificates from those entitled to them, I think they have been too liberal. I think those who elect a superintendent are certainly able to distinguish his qualifications. I am willing to vote for an amendment that will require a superintendent to be examined before he enters on the duties of his profession. At the same time I am just as willing to preserve every guard that is necessary to secure the honor and integrity of the profession.

Mr. CHADWICK. Mr. Speaker, without intending to make a speech, I desire to say it is well known in the county I have the honor in part to represent, that complaints are constantly being made by school teachers of the partiality of county superintendents. It is a well known fact there is no appeal, at the present time, from the award of a county superintendent. There are in Allegheny county some school teachers who are at the mercy of one man.

There is no parallel to this in our government. We have in church and State an opportunity of appeal. But in our public schools we have from five to six hundred individuals whose interests are carried in the hands of one individual. We hear, every day, complaints that unfairness is used. Now, I do not pretend to cast any reflection on county superintendents. I believe the school directors of the different counties are, perhaps, as intelligent men as can be found, and that in the exercise of their duties in electing county superintendents, they select the very best incumbent. But, unfortunately, county superintendents are men with the passions of men. They are given no prejudice at times; hence these complaints.

This provision is not intended to cast any reflection upon county superintendents. It strikes me it is designed for their protection as much as the teachers. Hence, I hope this section will be adopted.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, after looking this subject fairly and squarely in the face I cannot but fear that, instead of this higher court of the gentleman's being a pacificator, it will tend to create confusion. My view of the matter is that it will only open the door for a few dissatisfied cavillers to begot disturbances. I take it that where the county superintendent holds his regular examination in each end every county and district within his jurisdiction in the presence of the directors and of the neighbors who may come in to witness the examination, it is not likely he will use harsh measures, or that he will set aside the plain rules laid down for him in the conducting of that examination.

I take it that the gentlemen who are elected to the high position of county superintendent are men of character. I have been pained to hear them assailed as they have been upon the floor of this House during the discussion on the various sections of this bill. A stranger who might have come in among us and heard the remarks of gentlemen on this floor would be induced to believe that we employed all our powers to find a set of felons to place in the position of county superintendents. Instead of selecting the best men, men of morals, men of character, men of understanding, men of acquirements, it would be found that we had just the worst men that could be found in our respective counties and districts. I take it for granted that other counties will compare favorably with my own. Still I know there are some who would foist themselves upon the community as teachers, and feel aggrieved because they cannot.

But, sir, I know in our county the superintendent has been pre-eminently successful. I will go with the gentleman from Allegheny, or any other gentleman on this floor, for any measure whatever that will advance the educational interests of our country, and elevate the standard of our teachers and county superintendents, but until I am satisfied of the utility of a measure, I will not join in the request that it be established. It is the nature of our institutions that they must have a head; there must be a supreme head in all the departments of our Government. While the teachers are under the immediate supervision of a county superintendent, who has better opportunity than he to judge of the qualification of the parties whom he is to commission as teachers in his district? With these views I cannot but oppose the amendment of the gentleman from Allegheny. I do sincerely hope it will be voted down.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the HOUSE do now adjourn.

A division of the House being called, and 32 voting in the affirmative to 36 in the negative,

It was

Not agreed to.

The question being on the section,

It was

The thirteenth section was then read and

The bill was then

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Barrington, Broen, Brennan, Cameron, Chalfant, Colville, Craig, Fogel, Gregory, Harbison, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Humphrey, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Lee, Linton, M'Henry, Mann, Meyers, Mullin, Pielan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Shuman, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Waddell, Westbrook, Whann and Glass, Speaker—40.

NAYS—Messrs. Armstrong, Boyd, Chadwick, Day, Deise, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Hoffman, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kurtz, Leech, M'Creary, M'Kea, M'Pherrin, Marks, Mechling, Meily, Pennypacker, Peters, Pellow, Richards, Roath, Seiler, Sharples, Steacy, Subers, Webb, Weller, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Worrall and Wright—37.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the SPEAKER adjourned the House until to-morrow (Thursday) morning at 10 o'clock.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, March 7, 1867.

The House met at 10 o'clock, A. M.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. J. KENNEDY, member from Wyoming.

The SPEAKER announced a quorum of members present.

The Journal of yesterday was partly read, when,

On motion, the further reading of the same was dispensed with.

BILL PASSED.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Mr. Speaker, I ask to have House bill No. 710, a supplement to an act relative to the election of supervisors in the township of Salem, in the county of Westmoreland, taken up. The election takes place on the 17th of March. This act changes the number of supervisors, and it is necessary it should pass the House to-day, in order to go to the Senate in time to be of any use. I therefore move a suspension of the rules for the consideration of this bill at the present time.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The bill was taken up, passed through its several readings, and

Passed finally.

NOTION TO SUSPEND THE RULES.

Mr. FOGEL. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. FOGEL. Mr. Speaker, Senate bill No. 665, an act to incorporate the city of Allentown, passed the Senate day before yesterday, and in order to give the proper notice of the election of the officers provided for by that bill, it is necessary it should be passed at once, as the election is to be held on the third Friday in March. I therefore move a suspension of the rules to allow the bill to pass at this time.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I hope that motion will not prevail. If we proceed with the orders regularly—

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman object?

Mr. MANN. Yes, sir.

The SPEAKER. It will require unanimous consent to suspend the rules.

BILL LAID ON THE TABLE.

Mr. RICHARDS. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. RICHARDS. Mr. Speaker, the school house in Harrison township, Fulton county, in which elections were held, was burned down on the first day of March. The court does not meet in that county until the 15th of March, and the election comes off on the 15th of March, therefore the people have no place in which to hold their election. I ask for a suspension of the rules for the purpose of passing an act fixing the place of holding elections in Harrison township.

Objection was made.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, this being a case of absolute necessity I hope the gentleman will not insist on objecting.

Mr. MANN. The bill can be reached to-morrow. One day can make but little difference.

Mr. RICHARDS. Mr. Speaker, as the bill cannot be passed to-day I ask that it be laid on the table.

Agreed to.

SPECIAL ORDER.

The hour of 11 o'clock having arrived, the SPEAKER announced the special order for that time to be the consideration of Senate bill No. 26, an act to authorize the payment of State agents at Washington.

The bill was taken up.

When the bill was last under consideration Mr. STUMBAUGH moved to go into committee of the whole for general amendment.

Mr. QUAY moved to amend by going into the committee of the whole for special amendment, to strike out all the House amendments and restore the bill as it came from the Committee on Ways and Means, except the proviso abolishing the office of assistant State agent and creating an additional clerk.

The question being on agreeing to the motion of Mr. QUAY,

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the farther consideration of this bill be postponed until Tuesday a week. The gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] desires to be present when this bill is considered, and it is at his request I move its postponement.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, I hope not. The gentleman referred to has paired off on that question with my friend on the left here, and there is an absolute necessity that this bill should be passed in some shape or other.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, it strikes me, since the gentleman from Fayette has taken considerable interest in this bill, and that the application for postponement is made in his behalf, it is but common courtesy that it should be postponed. I do not think the State agents would starve between this and this day a week.

Mr. MECHLING. Mr. Speaker, I hope that this motion of the gentleman from Jefferson [Mr. JENKS] will not prevail. It is very important this bill should pass as soon as possible. I am aware that these State agents at Washington have been nearly two years without one single dollar of pay. They have been living upon their own money, and have had nothing to support themselves except what they take out of their private funds. I hope this bill will pass now, for there is an immediate necessity for it. The gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] has paired off on this question, and it is his duty to be here if he wants to take part in the action on this matter. There are other gentlemen absent, who take an interest in this bill, who have not been waited upon, and there are those present as able as he is to take his side of the question. I hope this House will not allow this bill to go over another week.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, I have been informed that the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] is in the city. I do not know how true it is.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] is now in his seat.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my motion.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, the last day this bill was up, I made the motion that we go into the committee of the whole for the purpose of general amendment. The gentleman from Beaver [Mr. QUAY] moved to amend that we go into the committee of the whole for the purpose of special amendment. I raise the point of order, that that amendment to my motion cannot be made, because all that could be accomplished by special amendment is merged in the motion of my own. The lesser is merged in the greater.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of the opinion that if the point of order had been raised at the time the motion to amend was made, the Chair would have regarded it well taken; but the House having taken action before the point was raised, the Chair is of the opinion that it is not in order to raise that point of order now.

On the question of agreeing to the motion to go into the committee of the whole for special amendment,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. QUAY and Mr. M'CAMANT, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Broen, Brennan, Chalfant, Craig, Davis, Day, Deise, Ewing, Fogel, Freeborn, Harbison, Harber, Hunt, Jenks, Josephs, Kerns, Koon, Kurtz, Lee, Linton, Long, M'Pherrin, Maish, Mann, Meyers, Mullin, Pielan, Pellow, Quay, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Satterthwait, Shuman, Wallace, Webb and Westbrook—41.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Espy, Gallagher, Gregory, Headman, Hoffman, Humphrey, Jones, Kimmell, Kinney, Kline, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kea, Marks, Mechling, Meily, Pennypacker, Peters, Richards, Roush, Seiler, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—44.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The SPEAKER. The question recurs on the motion of the gentleman from Franklin [Mr. STUMBAUGH], to go into the committee of the whole for general amendment.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I understand that the motion is to go into committee of the whole for the purpose of general amendment.

If that is carried the bill will then be open to be placed in such position as the House may direct. I think the bill is in a good position now, and I shall therefore vote against the motion.

The question being on the motion to go into the committee of the whole for general amendment,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. QUAY and Mr. DAY, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Day, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Gallagher, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Jones, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, McCann, McCreey, McKee, Marks, Meckling, Moley, Pennypacker, Peters, Richards, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—43.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Davis, Deiso, Fogel, Freeborn, Ghegan, Gregory, Harner, Heltzel, Hunt, Jenks, Josephs, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Malish, Mann, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Pheban, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Rhoads, Rhoadson, Wallace, Webb and Westbrook—41.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

Mr. COLVILLE in the chair.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend by striking out all after the words "sixty-four" in the seventh line, so as to restore the bill as it originally came to the House.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend the motion of the gentleman from Franklin [Mr. STUMBAUGH] so as to make the motion to restore the bill as originally reported from the Committee on Ways and Means except the proviso striking out the assistant State agency.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Chairman, I hope the amendment will not prevail. The House has already decided that they would not go into the committee of the whole for that special amendment. I think it should not prevail and hope it will not.

The question being on the motion of Mr. QUAY,

It was

Not agreed to.

The question recurring on the motion of Mr. STUMBAUGH.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, when these amendments were proposed in the House, I voted for them, and as I propose now to vote for the bill as it came from the Senate, I wish to say a few words in explanation of my position. I voted for the amendments, and for the abolition of the State agency, because I believed that it did not answer the purpose for which it was established. I thought that to be a good and sufficient reason. It was a question upon which I thought my constituents had no opinion (at least I had heard them express none), and I believe it is a matter of indifference to them now.

During the last recess, when at home, I was called upon by a number of soldiers of my district, who requested me to vote for this bill as it originally came from the Senate. I asked them whether the continuance of the agency would be an advantage to them, and they said that in their opinion it would, and in casting my vote upon this question, I am guided altogether by their opinion. I do not know as I am the best judge myself, as to whether it has answered the purpose for which it was established or not. I rather think I am not. But these men, who are deserving the benefits of the agency, were of a different opinion from myself, and they believed that if the agency were continued it would inure to their benefit, and requested me to vote for it as it came from the Senate. As the appropriation is not large, I believe my constituents would have me vote for the bill, for the reasons that I have given.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, the constituents of the gentleman have probably made a mistake. It is according to the opinion of the men he has mentioned that he is voting, his constituents had better have sent those persons here instead of the gentleman.

Mr. JONES. The gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] has made a very excellent suggestion, but I suppose the people of Berks, who are my constituents, are the best judges of what they ought to do.

Mr. BOYLE. I have great confidence in them.

Mr. JONES. I have no doubt of that, and I believe that it is proper and right that every member on this floor has the right to vote just as he judges is the best, and I think he is the best judge of what his constituents will approve. When it was proposed to go into the committee of the whole for general amendment, I overheard it suggested by someone that the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] did not have this House well drilled.

Mr. BOYLE. Does the gentleman say that I made a remark of that kind?

Mr. JONES. I did not. I say it was suggested by some one else that the gentleman from Fayette did not have this House well drilled.

Mr. BOYLE. I do not pretend to drill this House or any part of it.

Mr. JONES. When the question was raised to-day to go into committee of the whole for amending the bill, the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] said that it was very well as it stood, and he should therefore vote against the amendment. Now, as he has made a suggestion for me in behalf of my constituents, I will repeat that I am probably the best judge of that, and believing that I am acting in their interests, I shall vote for the bill.

Mr. BOYLE. The gentleman says that he is acting according to the best of his judgment, and I understood him to say a few moments ago that he left all judgment in the matter entirely to two or three soldiers.

Mr. JONES. I said I should vote according to my best judgment of the wishes of my constituents, and I think that it is not at all inconsistent with what I said in the first place, that I should vote upon this question in accordance with the wishes of a number of soldiers. And I may say for the benefit of any one that all those soldiers who spoke to me are Democrats. During the last campaign we had a soldiers' club organized in the city of Reading. It was a very influential body, and during that campaign every consideration was shown them, and a very great preference was shown to them by my own party. It was some of the members of that club who requested me to cast my vote in favor of the bill as it came from the Senate. Now, I do not believe that those soldiers are the best judges of the wishes of my constituents, nor did they say that if I voted in this way my constituents would approve of it. They requested me to vote for the bill because it would inure to the benefit of the soldiers, and as this is a small appropriation, I believe that in voting for it I am voting in accordance with the wishes of my constituents.

Mr. QUAY. I desire to ask the gentleman if those soldiers understood what the bill was that came from the Senate, and if so what they stated it to be?

Mr. JONES. I do not know. We did not go into any discussion of the subject. They merely expressed their wishes as I have stated, and I suppose they understood what it was.

Mr. QUAY. Did they not merely say they desired the State agency should be continued?

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Berks [Mr. JONES] has seen proper to disclose to the House a private remark made this morning, and now I want to know when it was that he obtained this information from his constituents?

Mr. JONES. It was on Saturday last, in the afternoon.

Mr. BOYLE. That was what I wanted to know, whether the gentleman had not made up his mind on Friday to vote for reinstating this bill as it came from the Senate.

Mr. JONES. I had not.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Chairman, rise to a point of order. I consider that this discussion (with all respect to the gentlemen whose carrying it on) as entirely out of order. The gentleman from Berks [Mr. JONES] has given his reasons why he desires to vote for the bill. If that is not satisfactory, I presume he will answer all questions on any other occasion. I desire to keep the House down to the business which has been before it. I raise that point of order, that this discussion has nothing to do with the question before the House.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, one word more in explanation. I have given my reasons for my vote upon this bill, and I think those reasons are sufficient. I do not think myself that this is the proper place for a controversy of this sort; nevertheless, I wish it to be understood that I have no objection to being catechised here. I am perfectly willing to answer in detail and to give the most minute particulars. I have no objection to being asked any question which I can answer. Mr. MCCREARY. Will the gentleman say he has no objection, the House has.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Chairman, when this bill first came before the House, I voted in favor of striking out the provision for the assistant State agency at Washington. I did so because I deemed it possible that the services there could be done at less expense, and fully as satisfactory, by a clerk, as to have an assistant State agent. I voted that way, feeling that I was doing justice to the soldiers and to my constituents. But since the various considerations which have been had upon this bill before the House, I am fully satisfied that the opposition to the bill, and the disposition to kill it, is not upon any principle of justice to the soldier.

The gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] has shown his great tact and ability before in cross-questioning a member upon this floor because he was acting in accordance with the wishes of his constituents. I am pleased to see every man attend to his own business thoroughly, but I do not desire to see any man presume to attend to the business of every man in this House. I think other gentlemen have rights here as well as the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE], and I think when a gentleman upon this floor gives a sufficient reason for his vote, that should satisfy any reasonable man, and any man who is actuated by any principle of right or justice. The evidence in this case is clear that the opposition of the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] is not on account of a desire to save money, nor on account of a disposition to benefit the soldier. That gentleman has never shown any sympathy for the soldier on any issue before the House during the present session or the past. His opposition has always been of the same frivolous technical nature—not a disposition to do what he feels is right, but a disposition to obstruct and defeat legislation before this House. I think gentlemen here have had enough of this. I simply desire to to my duty and take the responsibility, and I ask the gentleman from Fayette to do the same.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, I think the gentleman from Warren [Mr. ALLEN] has traveled outside of what was possibly his duty to assail me on the question of supporting the soldier. Now, if that gentleman says I have factiously opposed any measure that was calculated to benefit the soldiers, I say he says what is not true, because I never have.

Mr. ALLEN. I will only refer the gentleman to his record.

The CHAIRMAN. Gentlemen will please confine themselves in their remarks to the question before the House.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, I do not think anything is required to vindicate myself against the charges of the gentleman from Warren [Mr. ALLEN], because it has become quite common slander in years past for a person having a weak cause to cover it with this soldiers' cloak for some ulterior purposes. I charge the gentleman from Warren that he has not changed his vote upon this subject from conviction, and he knows that I know it.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Chairman, I think in this case the gentleman from Fayette knows what he always seems to know about other men's convictions, nothing at all. I changed my vote upon this subject because I think by so doing justice will be done to the soldier.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Chairman, I understood the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] to say that the people of Berks county ought to have sent a soldier to this House. I desire to say that the gentleman from Berks [Mr. JONES] was a soldier and had a commission.

Mr. BOYLE. I did not say any such thing.

The question being on the motion of Mr. STUMBAUGH.

It was

Agreed to.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Chairman, I now move to further amend the bill by adding the proviso in relation to the State agent.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of order, that this amendment cannot be made. That proviso has already been stricken out.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, I submit that the point is not well taken, because it was stricken out with other things.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chairman is of the opinion that that question has already been determined. The bill has been gone through with.

IN THE HOUSE.

Mr. COLVILLE, chairman of the committee of the whole, reported the bill to the House with amendment.

The question being on agreeing to the amendment of the committee of the whole.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. GREGORY and Mr. QUAY, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Gallagher, Ghegan, Harbison, Headman, Hoffman, Humphrey, Jones, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, Markley, Marks, Mechlning, Pennypacker, Peters, Richards, Roath, Roush, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Watt, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—55.

NAYS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Brown, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Freeborn, Gregory, Har-ner, Heltzel, Hunt, Jenks, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, McHenry, M'Pherrin, Mann, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Wallace, Webb and Westbrook—38.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The question being on agreeing to the title of the bill,

It was

Agreed to.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I move now that the House go into the committee of the whole for the purpose of special amendment, to provide that the assistant State agent shall cease from and after this date, and that the State agent is authorized and empowered to employ an additional clerk, at a salary of fifteen hundred dollars a year.

On the question of agreeing to the motion, The yeas and nays were required by Mr. STUMBAUGH and Mr. M'CAMANT, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Brown, Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Day, Deise, Ewing, Fogel, Freeborn, Ghegan, Gregory, Harner, Heltzel, Hunt, Jenks, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Pherrin, M'Phelan, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Pillow, Quay, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Tharp, Wallace, Webb and Westbrook—41.

So the question was determined in the negative.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I now move to go into the committee of the whole for the purpose of special amendment, making the State agency terminate on the first of February, 1868.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order, that this amendment is a part of the bill reported from the committee, and which this House has stricken out by its action this morning.

Mr. QUAY. It was a part, but not the whole.

The SPEAKER. The House has already decided that point. The Chair is clearly of the opinion that it is not in order to go into the committee of the whole for the purpose of making that amendment.

The question being on the final passage of the bill,

Mr. STUMBAUGH. I call for the previous question.

The call for the previous question was seconded by Messrs. Stumbaugh, Colville, Wharton, Worrall, Weller, Chadwick, Leech, M'Kee, Kerns, Woodward, M'Creary, Armstrong, Richards and Espy.

On the question

Shall the main question be now put?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. GREGORY and Mr. KURTZ, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, Day, Espy, Ewing, Gallagher, Harbison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, Marks, Mechlning, Pennypacker, Peters, Quigley, Richards, Roath, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall and Glass, Speaker—50.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Barrington, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Brown, Chalfant, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Freeborn, Ghegan, Gregory, Harner, Heltzel, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, M'Pherrin, Marsh, Markley, Meyers, Mullin, Phelan, Pillow, Quay, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Shuman, Wallace, Westbrook and Wright—39.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The question recurring on the final passage of the bill,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. GREGORY and Mr. RICHARDS, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, Day, Donohugh, Espy, Ewing, Gallagher, Ghegan, Harbison, Headman, Hoffman, Humphrey, Jones, Josephs, Kennedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Markley, Marks, Mechlning, Meily, Pennypacker, Peters, Pillow, Richards, Roath, Roush, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Watt, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—60.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the bill

Passed finally.

SUSPENSION OF THE ORDERS.

Mr. QUAY, Mr. Speaker, I move that the orders of the morning be postponed until reports from committees are received and bills in place are read.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, if the House will first consider a resolution I have to hold a special session to-morrow afternoon, I will make no objection to that motion. I ask to have it read for information.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, That this House will hold a session to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock, for the special purpose of considering House bill No. 606, and act to ascertain and appoint a fee to be received by the several officers of this Commonwealth.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Beaver [Mr. QUAY], that the orders of the day be suspended until reports from committees are received and bills in place are read.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I ask for a division of the question. I said if the House would permit this resolution to be introduced and read, I would make objection to this motion, and Mr. Speaker, I move to this point of order: that the gentleman from Beaver cannot make this motion to postpone the calendar. He cannot avoid asking for a suspension of the rules.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I have as good a right to move to postpone the whole calendar as to move to postpone any bill upon it. Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, it is true the gentleman may move that the bills are not before the House at present.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of the opinion that the public calendar being now the order of the day, it will be necessary to first suspend the orders before the House can consider the motion of the gentleman from Beaver [Mr. QUAY].

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, the object of the gentleman from Beaver is, I suppose, to get in reports from committees to-day that the bills may be placed on the private calendar for Tuesday. Unless we get reports from committees this morning it will be impossible to have any to-day, and if two thirds will suspend the orders I hope it will be done.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would state that on Thursday last, bills were reported from committees that were to go to the printer on Friday morning, but owing to the lateness of the day when the bills were handed to the public printer it was impossible to have them printed on Tuesday. In fact some of them are not printed yet. The Chair would further state that unless bills are reported this forenoon, it is questionable whether any of the bills that the committees now hold and have agreed to report can be placed in the hands of the printer in time to appear on the private calendar for Tuesday.

The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Beaver to enable him to make a motion to present reports from committees and read bills in place.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer no opposition to getting bills reported to-day. What I do desire is to facilitate the passage of that in which we are all interested, and which is quite as important as private bills. If the House would assent to my resolution, all difficulty would be avoided. It does seem to me that bills that all are interested in, should not be put aside for private bills. If the gentleman will so amend his motion as to suspend the orders only for the purpose of making reports from committees, I will withdraw my motion.

Mr. QUAY. I agree to that modification.

Mr. MANN. I withdraw my objection.

The motion to suspend the orders to receive reports from committees was

Agreed to.

PUBLIC CALENDER.

The SPEAKER announced the first bill in order to be House bill No. 290, a further supplement to an act for the regulation and continuance of a system of education by common schools, approved the eighth day of May, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four.

Mr. SHARLES. Mr. Speaker, it was understood, yesterday, when the bill was under consideration, that a new section would be prepared to meet the desires of gentlemen here, with reference to the examination of county superintendents. That section has been prepared. I, therefore, move that the House go into committee of the whole, for purpose of special amendment.

The motion was

Agreed to.

And the amendment was inserted as follows:

IV. ELECTION OF COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS.

Sec. 13. That no person shall hereafter be eligible to the office of county, city or borough superintendent in any county of this Commonwealth, who does not possess a diploma from a college legally empowered to grant literary degrees, a diploma or State certificate, issued according to law, by the authorities of a State normal school, a professional certificate from a county, city or borough superintendent of good standing, issued at least one year prior to the election, or a certificate of competency from the State Superintendent of Common Schools; nor shall such person be eligible unless he have a sound moral character, and has had successful experience in teaching within three years of the time of his election, and for a period altogether of not less than three years: Provided, That serving as county, city or borough superintendent three years, shall be deemed equivalent to three years' teaching; and the president and secretary of each convention of school directors held in any county, city or borough to elect a county, city or borough superintendent, when certifying to the Superintendent of Common Schools the name and address of the person elected county, city or borough superintendent, shall at the same time state the kind and character of the evidence upon which said convention relied for proof of the eligibility of the person so elected; and the said Superintendent of Common Schools, if, upon examination of the evidence presented, it shall prove to be such as is required by this act, and no objection being made in accordance with section fourth of the act approved April seventeenth, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, he shall issue a commission to the person, elected as aforesaid, as now required by law; but if, upon examination of said evidence of competency, it shall not prove to be such as is required by this act, or if objection be made in accordance with said section of the act approved April seventeenth, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, the said Superintendent of Common Schools shall appoint two competent persons, himself being the third, to examine the person so elected county, city or borough superintendent, and if, upon examination, he be found duly qualified for the office, the said Superintendent of Common Schools shall issue to him the usual commission; but if not, the said Superintendent of Common Schools shall proceed in like manner in respect to the person receiving the next highest number of votes in the convention of directors, who, if found qualified, shall receive the commission as aforesaid as county, city or borough superintendent; but, if his qualifications are also found insufficient, the said Superintendent of Common Schools shall appoint, with the advice and consent of the Governor of the Commonwealth, some other person, with the required qualifications, county, city or borough superintendent for the ensuing term of such office.

The bill having been gone through with in the House, the SPEAKER resumed the Chair.

Mr. CRAIG, chairman of the committee of the whole, reported the bill with an amendment.

The report was Adopted.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. CHALFANT and Mr. FOGEL, and were as follow, vide

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barrington, Barton, Boyd, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Craig, Davis, Day, Donoghue, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Harbison, Humphrey, Josephs, Kennedy, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Creary, M'Kee, M'Pherrin, Maish, Mann, Markley, Marks, Mechling, Mello, Meyers, Penny-packer, Peters, Pelly, Richards, Roath, Seiler, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Webb, Weller, Whelan, Wharton, Wilson, Wingard, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—59.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Chalfant, Collins, Deise, Fogel, Harer, Headman, Hoffman, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Kline, Koon, Kartz, Linton, Long, M'Henry, Mullin, Phelan, Rhoads, Roush, Satterthwait, Thall and Westbrook—26.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the bill

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. MANN, the House proceeded to the consideration of bill

No. 316, an act further to regulate the granting of licenses to hotels and eating houses.

In committee of the whole the bill was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That when an application is made to any court of quarter sessions of this Commonwealth, for license to sell intoxicating drinks, under existing laws, it shall be lawful for said court to hear petitions, in addition to that of the applicant, in favor of, and remonstrances against the application for such license, and the reason to refuse the same whenever, in the opinion of said court, such license is not necessary for the accommodation of the public and entertainment of strangers and travelers, and all laws inconsistent with this section are hereby repealed.

Sec. 2. That applications for license to keep an eating-house, authorizing the sale of domestic wines, malt and brewed liquors, shall hereafter be made in the same manner and to the same authority as application for license to keep a hotel. Provided, That the regulation in relation to bed-rooms and beds shall not apply to applicants for an eating-house license, and the tenth section of the act of twentieth April, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight, authorizing county treasurers to grant an eating-house or retail brewery license is hereby repealed.

Sec. 3. No license to keep an eating-house under the provisions of the second section of this act shall be granted in any incorporated city, for a less sum than fifty dollars, nor elsewhere for a less sum than twenty dollars.

Sec. 4. If any person, after the passage of this act, shall sell domestic wines, malt or brewed liquors, in a house kept open to the public, without having obtained a license to keep an eating-house, such person shall, on conviction in the court of quarter sessions, be fined, for the first offense, in any sum not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars, and for the second or any subsequent offense, such person shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars, and be imprisoned in the county jail not less than thirty nor more than ninety days.

Sec. 5. That the provisions of this act shall not apply to the city of Philadelphia.

The question was on agreeing to the first section.

Mr. MECHLING. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend in the tenth line by inserting after the word "travelers," the words "and upon sufficient cause being shown, the said court shall have power to revoke any license granted by them."

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, I suggest that is the law now. The courts can revoke a license now.

Mr. MECHLING. They can for certain offenses. But not for selling liquor on Sundays, or to persons of intemperate habits, or to minors. I know this has been the case, and is now, in Armstrong county, where convictions have been had in court after court for infringements of the license law, but the court had not the power to revoke a license after it had once been granted.

I hope this amendment will pass.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the fifth line, the words "under existing laws." I think they serve no good purpose, and tend to mislead. They do not affect the bill in any way. If these words are stricken out, and there come a change in the license law, this bill can refer to the act that may be passed as well as the laws now existing.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, I move to insert the words "the house for which," before the word "such," in the ninth line.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I hope that amendment will not be adopted. It is the license that is to be granted, and not the house. Whether a license shall be granted is the only question before the court.

I certainly see no propriety in making a reference to the house—besides the word "house" has confused the minds of this people long enough. There is an attempt, always, to get up the idea that the license is to affect the house; and if there is no license granted there is to be no house. This has been argued ever since I was old enough to hear anything said on this subject. But it has no foundation in truth. If there is any demand for a public house it will continue to exist whether a license is granted or not. A delusion has been running through the license laws of this State ever since licenses were granted. Any man who complies with the requirements of the law has a perfect right to keep a public house. But it is a question, and one which the courts have to determine, whether he shall sell intoxicating drinks in that house. This is the only question this act seeks to regulate, and the only one we ought to regulate.

I hope, therefore, the amendment will not be adopted.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, I offer this amendment with no desire other than to perfect the bill. I think it has been the policy of the law to license houses that were considered necessary for the accommodation of the traveling public. And whenever it would be necessary to accommodate strangers and travelers, the law designed that the proprietor should have the right to sell liquors under the restrictions imposed by the law. Now, if this bill is passed in its present shape it will be nothing more than a deception. If it happens that a judge is upon the bench who is opposed to the selling of liquor he may decide, in every case, that it is wholly unnecessary for a hotel keeper to sell liquor—that the sale of liquor is not necessary for the accommodation of the traveling public. I know that it could be said that the sale of liquor was, in any case, absolutely necessary for the accommodation of the public. But it is the design of the law as it stands now that public licenses, where they are necessary, shall have the right to sell liquors. I do not understand that this bill is intended to be any departure from the present law, except in the matter of granting licenses. I think, therefore, this amendment should prevail.

The amendment was

Not agreed to.

The question recurring on the section as amended,

It was

Agreed to.

The second section was read.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend in the first line by inserting, between the words "eating house" and the word "authorizing," the words "beer house and restaurant." Also, in the fifth line to insert the same words "eating house."

It has been decided in our court recently that a restaurant is not a beer house; that a man can sell all under license, without keeping oysters on tables, and not come within the granting of licenses by the court.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The question recurring on the section as amended,

It was

Agreed to.

The third section was read and

Agreed to.

The fourth section was read.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend the seventh line by inserting, after the word "and," the words "in the discretion of the court."

The object of this amendment is to leave it a question with the court where this would not be too severe a punishment for the second offense.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend in the third line by striking out the words, "to keep an eating house," and inserting the words, "authorizing him so to do."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, I desire to call attention to the fact that this bill imposes a penalty for selling domestic wines and malt liquors, for the first offense a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars. While by the existing law the penalty for selling whisky and other spirituous liquors is not less than twenty-five dollars (as I am informed—I thought it was not less than ten), nor more than one hundred dollars. The penalty imposed for selling ale will be twice that imposed for selling whisky. This cannot be the intention of the gentlemen who framed the bill. I therefore move to strike out the words "fifty" and "two hundred" in the fifth line, and insert the words "ten" and "fifty" in their stead.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I hope that amendment will not prevail. My experience is, that more harm is done in this class of houses than in hotels where a regularly established and open business is carried on. A public house is for the accommodation of the traveling public. If they violate the law, at present, they are fined twenty-five dollars.—These houses that are open for the express purpose of inducing the townspeople to come in and idle away their time, so far as is shown by the testimony I have been able to gather on this subject, are doing far more injury in Pennsylvania than the hotels. Let the gentleman would impose a fine of only ten dollars! I hope the good sense of the House will preserve this section as it is. If that is the judgment of the House, I propose to do away with the inconsistency to which the gentleman refers, by increasing the fine upon hotels to fifty dollars. I think we should make these laws more stringent, rather than less so. The law we are now living under is no terror to evil-doers.

It was not intended, when it was passed, to be a terror to evil-doers. It was prepared in the interest of the men who are engaged in the business of liquor selling. There is no man engaged in the sale of intoxicating drinks who cannot afford to pay a fine of twenty-five dollars every court. There is not a restaurant in any town of the size of Harrisburg that could not afford to set this law at defiance if we make the fine ten dollars, as is proposed. I hope the good sense of the House will leave this section in this respect as it now stands.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. MANN] cannot go further than I will to prevent intemperance, but I cannot consent to have this incongruity in the laws. I find I was correct in my belief that the penalty now for selling whisky is not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars. Here we are proposing to impose five times as much penalty for selling a glass of ale. This is not at all consistent. Laws are not more effective because of excessive punishments. If punishments are moderate and frequently inflicted, it will be found that the end is attained much more effectually.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend by striking out the word "twenty-five" and inserting the word "ten," and by striking out the word "one hundred" and inserting "fifty."

The amendment was not

Agreed to.

The question being on the amendment of the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] it was not

Agreed to.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend the fourth section in the first line by inserting after the word "sell" the words "spirituous and vinous liquors."

The amendment was

Agreed to.
Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Chairman, I move to insert after the word "liquors" the words "as a beverage."

The amendment was not

Agreed to.

The question being on the section as amended, it was

Agreed to.

The fifth section was read.

Mr. COLVILLE, Mr. Chairman, I move to amend this section by adding, after the word "Philadelphia," the words, "or county of Allegheny."

The House is well aware that yesterday we passed a license law for the county of Allegheny; it was local in its character. We would be stultifying our former action by allowing this bill to pass.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment? A division was called, when thirty-six voting in the affirmative and twenty-three in the negative.

The amendment was

Agreed to.
Mr. GALLAGHER. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend the fifth section by adding the words, "or the counties of Westmoreland and Indiana."

We have a special law in our county, and that of Indiana, which was passed last winter, comprehending the licensing of houses in such county. As I understand this act the second section allows such houses to open in our county as well as others.

I ask, as a favor, the exemption of these counties.

Mr. KOON. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend by adding, "the county of Luzerne."

Not agreed to.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend by adding, "or the county of Berks."

Not agreed to.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Chairman, I hope the gentleman from Westmoreland [Mr. GALLAGHER] will withdraw his amendment. This act will not compel courts to grant licenses where there is a law forbidding it.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will allow me I will offer an amendment which I think will cover the ground of his objection.

After the words, "Philadelphia and Allegheny," I move to insert the following: "Nor shall this act apply to any county, township or borough, where the courts have been prohibited by law from granting such licenses."

The amendment was accepted and

Agreed to.

The question being on the section as amended, it was

Agreed to.

The bill having been gone through with, In the House, the SPEAKER having resumed the Chair.

Mr. DONOHUGH, chairman of the committee of the whole, reported the bill with amendments.

The report was Adopted.

The question was on agreeing to the first section.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inquire wherein this bill differs from the act of 1859. It seems to me to be word for word with that act, without the proviso it contains.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, that is a very important proviso.

The bill is plain and straightforward, and shows upon its face precisely what authority the court has. The law, as it is now, is not plain. As evidence of that, some judges interpret it in one way, and some in another. Under this section I contend there will be no mistake. The courts everywhere interpret it in the same way.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask further whether that difficulty arises in the section?

Mr. MANN. In part it does.

Mr. WADDELL. Except this provision the law we are considering is word for word with the old law. I believe there is not a single change.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, there is just the change which the gentleman from Fayette [Mr. BOYLE] sought to have put in this section, and which was left out intentionally. This section says: whenever the court shall be satisfied that such license is not necessary, whereas the old bill says: "Such house." I affirm that word "house" has misled the people of the State for fifty years or more.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I have another inquiry to make. Whether or not the friends of the bill (I believe all of us are its friends) intend to confine the discretion of the courts in cases where there are remonstrances filed against an application, or whether they propose to make the discretion of the court broad enough to meet all cases; whether the reading of this section would restrict the discretion of the court to cases only where remonstrances are filed? It strikes my mind that some courts might construe this section to mean that where no remonstrances are filed against an application they would be bound to grant it. I do not know what views the courts have taken in other districts, but in the district which I have the honor to represent they have construed the act of 1859 and the act of 1860, as if they were enough to allow them to act as they please. They have refused to grant a license wherever, in their opinion, a license is not necessary. I think the same power should be given to all the courts of the Commonwealth. The courts should have full discretionary power that they may act intelligibly. I would like to hear from the gentleman who has the bill in charge upon this point.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that this bill is about as clear and plain as it can well be made. I have looked over this bill frequently—thought on the subject great deal. The gentleman from Bradford did not do me much injustice when he said this was one of my cotrothets. I have all my life been deeply interested on the subject of the sale of intoxicating drinks. I came to this Legislature with the firm resolve that, so far as I could, I would so vote and so act as to elevate the laws in this regard. I think this law will be quite a step in advance. I believe under this bill the courts will have all the power that the people are asking for. I would suggest, if no objection is made to the granting of licenses, it is hardly worth while to inquire whether the court has power to object. If, after twenty years education on this subject, there is no person in a town or place where an hotel is to be licensed who will object to it, I for one will say let the license be granted.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that the word "thereupon," in the eighth line, would refer to cases where objection was presented or remonstrances filed against any application. I therefore move to amend by striking out the word "thereupon" in the eighth line of the first section and insert the words "in all cases."

The amendment was

Mr. BRENN moved to amend by striking out the word "fifty" and inserting the word "forty-five," and in the same line striking out the word "twenty" and inserting the word "fifteen."

Mr. STUMBAUGH moved to amend by inserting the words "beer house or restaurant" between the words "eating house" and "under."

The fourth section was read.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MYERS] moved to amend the bill by inserting the words "in the discretion of the court" after the word "and." It seems to me that does not cover the idea. I have my impression that imprisonment was a necessary part of the sentence; and it was to be in the discretion of the court whether the imprisonment should be for a longer or shorter period.

I move to amend by striking out the words "in the discretion of the court," and the word "and," inserting in its place the word "or," so the section shall read, "shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail."

I move further to amend by inserting at the end of the line the words, "or both, in the discretion of the court."

The question being on the amendment,

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I hope that the amendment will not be adopted. It strikes at one of the efficient modes of enforcing this law; it would put in the power of any two associate judges to leave out this fine entirely. It seems to me that it is not doing justice. The judges would be besieged by the friends of every person convicted under this act, asking for a remission of the fine. It seems to me, the court should be exempt from any such annoyance and temptation; besides, the act itself ought not to be shorn of its strength. A fine imposed upon conviction for an offense is the only way the courts and the people have of securing indemnity for a violation of the law. Where persons openly and notoriously defy public opinion, what inducement is there to maintain the majesty of the law? If you go into court and convict an offender, what inducement have you for a similar prosecution at another time, if the fine which ought to be imposed to prevent the commission of a like offense is omitted? I have had this experience, and I desire, so far as I can, to relieve all others from the same diffidence and annoyances which my friends and myself have experienced in this respect. I have seen men attempt to secure respect for the law by prosecuting its violators; I have seen them with their witnesses prove a violation of the law, and, after all, the court has imposed a fine of the paltry sum of one dollar. Offenses under this law are precisely of that character. Such a contingency ought not to be in doubt. Here is a class of men making money out of the violation of the law.

There is scarcely a restaurant in any town in the State that would not have made twice as much money that they would be fined by this section as it stands. It is a money making violation of law, and always has been. This bill, if enforced at every court against every one of the men who violate the law in this respect, would not take from their pockets a tithe of what they have taken from the pocket ets of the idlers of the community for years past.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Potter [Mr. MANN] says the effect of this bill as it at present stands may be to fritter away time and laudable efforts by the remission of fines. Whereas the section the gentleman drew imposes a minimum fine of one hundred dollars. It occurred to me that the bill might be made more explicit; and the object I had in presenting this amendment was to make the punishment follow as a certainty. I know very well that if this section is passed proposing a heavy fine and imprisonment, that in all minor cases it will go for naught. cases differ in magnitude. Wherever there is an offense for which the community would consider imprisonment an unreasonable punishment, you could not find a jury to convict a man if such a penalty was to be imposed upon him. I think to leave the matter in the discretion of the court is the best way to secure the punishment of all cases, both small and great. It was with that object that I proposed to amend the section.

I know men frequently escape punishment simply because the penalties attached to a small offense are greater than the community believe they deserve. I think the effect of the section will, perhaps, be lost in all minor cases, if this amendment should not be adopted.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I think if there is an offense which should be punished by the law with severity, it is the offense of a man who deliberately, and with malice aforethought, if you please, sells intoxicating liquors. Now, the only man who can be punished under the provisions of this section is the man who makes up his mind to wilfully and deliberately violate the law. He cannot infringe the law through any mistake or misunderstanding; he cannot do it because he has never read the law. There is not a man in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania who does not know as well to-day as he will to-morrow, that it is a violation of law to sell liquor without a license. The man who deliberately sets himself up to violate the law by opening his door and dealing out liquor stealthily, attempting to evade the law, ought to be punished with the extremest penalty.

Now, I have some commiseration sometimes for a criminal, who, through necessity, as it were, is compelled to violate the law of the land; who, to keep body and soul together, is compelled to pilfer, in order to satisfy the claims of hunger, or to cover the nakedness of his necessity; but, I think no punishment is too great for a man who makes up his mind to violate the law as a law as this. If he wants to deal out intoxicating liquors let him apply to the court, obtain his license, and then present his claims to the public for support and encouragement. We punish the man even who has a license to sell; we punish the man who sells to an intoxicated person by fine and imprisonment; we punish the man who opens his house on Sunday, and deals out intoxicating drinks by fine and imprisonment; we punish the man who sells to a minor; who sells after notice has been given not to furnish a particular class of people—we punish him by fine and imprisonment; and yet the man who stealthily deals out the very same commodity without a license, him we propose to let go by a fine or imprisonment. Is there any reason for these distinctions? They are all dealing in the same commodity; if it is wrong for a man with a license to sell under certain circumstances, it is wrong for a man to sell at all, who is not authorized so to do by the law. Therefore, I hope this House will enforce the stringent provisions of the section, and require these men, if they want to deal in intoxicating liquors, to present their application to the proper tribunal and receive the authority of that tribunal for so doing. In this way they can avoid the penalty provided. If they do not take the requisite precaution let them bear the consequences, be they what they may.

Mr. DEISE. Mr. Speaker, I am entirely opposed to this section. I think it is intended for one of two reasons; either for the benefit of lawyers or else to drive a man into carrying whisky in his own pocket.

It occurs to me we are drifting along very rapidly on this question of selling intoxicating liquors. I am here to say that I am in favor of a law that will protect the public; but the more we legislate on this subject and attempt to get up despotic laws, the further we get from the main object in view. I protest here against and call the attention of the House to the section; that "no person after the passage of this act shall sell domestic wine, malt or brewed liquors, in a house kept open for that purpose, without having obtained a license." It does not say if a man intends to violate the law; it does not provide for a wilful violation of the law; but, if any person, "after the passage of this act, shall sell domestic wine, malt or brewed liquors." It occurs to me that is all wrong. I, therefore, will favor the amendment of the gentleman from Berks [Mr. JONES]. Because that leaves it in the hands of the court. Where else shall we leave it? Is it to be charged here that three judges, chosen at the court of quarter sessions, have not sufficient discretion to visit a proper infiction on a violator of the law? Do you, gentlemen of the House, intend to say that the courts must punish? That they shall not be the judges of whether parties shall be visited with imprisonment or simply a fine? Look at your present law on the subject of violating the Sabbath. Take the records of our courts where convictions have followed. The Governor of Pennsylvania has pardoned them as fast as they have been convicted. Why? From the recommendations of the courts themselves, because they believed the penalties were too severe. Here you are re-enacting the same clause. You are giving the court no chance to discriminate. You are not saying that three judges, coming from different parts of the county, shall be permitted to judge this question fairly.

Mr. MANN. The section can be amended so as to give the court discretion in the matter of imprisonment; and that is the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEXAS].

Mr. DEISE. It will not admit of that construction. You talk about the evils of intemperance, but I say the greatest possible evils are those places where aristocratic, long coat-tailed chaps go and drink the best kind of whisky and get it for nothing.

I am in favor of this amendment, because it leaves it in the hands of the court, where it properly belongs.

The gentleman from Potter seems very much afraid lest offenders against the law may make some arrangements with associate judges. Why? If a man is not properly convicted, I hold it to be the duty of a Christian court to sentence him in accordance with the dictates of justice; and I hold it to be improper for this Legislature to pass laws leaving the court without discretion where a man may have offended the law, but not wilfully. I hold where there is no intention to violate the law there should be no moral guilt. I think we are diverging from the stand-point of the friends of temperance on this floor. I think the more we attempt to create stringent laws the more difficulty will ensue. You destroy more men, you create more sinners, if I may use the expression, more criminals, by these severe punishments, than you are aware of.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I understood the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] to say that because this was an offense against the law it should be punished with the greatest severity. The experience of the law has been that penalties should be graduated to offenses. I believe that is admitted throughout the civilized world. If there is to be no difference between the punishment of great offenses and small offenses, it would be as well for us at once to enact the Draconian code and punish every offense against the law with death, simply because there is no excuse for its commission. There is no excuse for the commission of any crime; every man is presumed to know the law—he is obliged to know the law. If he violates it he does it deliberately, no matter what his necessities may be; therefore, if a man is to be punished with such severity as to prevent the commission of this crime altogether, why not insert the penalty of death, and thus put an end to it forever?

The object I had in view was to bring the smaller offenders to punishment, and nothing else; because this law will be disobeyed and transgressed, as every other law has been. I think it is only proper that the courts should have discretion, so far as to be able to determine between the greater and the lesser offenders; and unless there is some such provision put in this act, I am sure that many small offenders will go without any punishment whatever; because grand juries will ignore their bills. Where offenders against the law have not yet disturbed the peace, where they have not done much harm yet, where they still may come within the provisions of this section, I believe grand juries will ignore their bills, and I believe that men will continue to violate this law in the confidence that they cannot be convicted, so long as the penalty attached is as small as the severity. It was this view that I proposed the amendment. I think it will make the law more effective; I think the object of the measure will be better answered in this way than if the bill remains as originally presented.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I understood the object of the gentleman from Berks, and I appreciated his motives, but there is just that difference, probably, between his conceptions of crime and my own. Some men might consider larceny of a man's sustenance, larceny of a man's life, or cover his nakedness, as a small offense; probably it would be yet in the eye of the law it is a great one. It is larceny.

Now, I am aware that public sentiment is rather inclined to cavil at the selling of liquor without a license; I know the disposition of the community is to regard a man as a moral criminal who deals out to his fellow man intoxicating liquors without having a license for so doing; and it is desired to some extent to correct this erroneous impression. If this Legislature considers it a crime to sell liquor without a license, then the people should understand that they cannot go scot free, or cannot go clear with a small fine, which they take up in a month's time or less.

What is this provision? It is not to take advantage of a man who has innocently committed an offense for the first time. It rather overlooks that commission. It subjects him to what?—to a fine of fifty dollars probably—a sum not less than fifty nor more than a hundred dollars. It is a warning to him; it is the law with your eyes open, probably. This time we will impose a penalty of fifty dollars upon you, but do not do it again. If you do—if you commit this offense a second time—what? fine you fifty dollars again? Not at all. We will imprison you. You cannot say the second time that you did not know what the law was, and that you sinned ignorantly. Here is a warning; you have been before us; you have been convicted of a crime against the penal laws of the Commonwealth, but we let you escape this time with a fine of fifty or one hundred dollars. I am at a loss to know how a man can commit a crime a second time and not do it willfully, not do it with eyes open. What does "willfully" mean?

It means simply a premeditated determination to evade the law, a premeditated determination to do that which the law prohibits; and can a man violate the penal laws of this Commonwealth the second time and not do it willfully—not do it with premeditated determination, knowing what the law is?

Now, gentlemen, whatever the law designed for the first offense, if it says that imprisonment shall be imposed for the second offense, and if a man comes into court the second time charged with the same crime, if he is subjected to this imprisonment, is it too great for the offense he has committed? Yet that is the position taken by the gentleman from Berks—that a second commission of an offense against the laws of the land is not such as should be subject a man to imprisonment. There is where I take issue with him.

If the Legislature thinks that a man who has deliberately violated the law a second time should be punished by imprisonment, let them sustain the section as it is; if they think it is not such an offense, let them take the amendment that has been offered.

The question being on the amendment of the gentleman from Berks [Mr. JONES], a division was called; when, 32 voting in the affirmative and 36 in the negative, it was

Not agreed to.

The question recurring on the section, Mr. MEYERS moved to further amend by inserting, in the first line, after the word "sell," the words, "other than for medicinal purposes."

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I hope that amendment will not be adopted. The law already provides for druggists selling for medicinal purposes, and defines how it shall be done. If the law is violated, it will be very easy for a man to prove by the person to whom he sold the liquor that it was sold for medicinal purposes.—There is nothing harsh in the law as it stands; any person who needs liquor for medicine can be supplied.

The question being on the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS], it was

Not agreed to.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, it strikes me that the penalties inflicted by this section are too stringent when we compare them with the penalty of selling liquor on Sunday in violation of the law.

I therefore move to amend by striking out in the fifth line the word "fifty," and inserting "and" and striking out the words "two hundred" and inserting "one hundred;" in the seventh line to strike out "one hundred" and insert "fifty;" also, to amend by striking out "thirty" and inserting "ten," by striking out "ninety" and inserting "sixty."

Question on the amendment.

Mr. MECHLING. Mr. Speaker, I hope the amendment will not carry. I think it is the experience of every gentleman in this House, the result of his observation, that the penalties in this regard heretofore have been too lenient; that it is impossible to preserve the observance of the laws of the State, by the penalties which have, hitherto, been imposed. I know in western Pennsylvania a man can violate this law and be brought up every term of the court and still make money by the transactions of the law. If the Legislature desires to prevent the illegal and abusive sale of liquors, they can do it only by inflicting such fines and such imprisonments as will deter men who are disposed to violate the law in this regard. There is no use in putting a fine of ten dollars upon a man. I know, by actual observation, that in the smallest village in the county of Armstrong they make more than that every day. We might as well not pass a law as to make a fine and imprisonment in the alternative discretionary with the court. Legislatures have been too lenient in this matter. It has been the complaint of the people that because this law is not strict enough, and the penalties inflicted have not been heavy enough, it has been continually violated. If the penalty was such that a man would be imprisoned for selling liquor without a license, then we might calculate on an observance of the laws. There is no use in passing a law, if we cannot have it carried into force and effect. I object to the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS], because I consider it entirely too lenient, if it is our desire to even have this law carried out according to its provisions.

Mr. MEYERS. Mr. Speaker, there is a mistaken opinion held by some gentlemen on this floor with regard to the punishment of this offense. They seem to think if a man is brought up before the court of quarter sessions and indicted for a violation of this law, he can be fined only once at that court. This is a mistaken notion. Every time a man sells in violation of the law he has committed a separate and distinct offense, and can be fined and punished for each infringement of the law. Where the period of three months intervenes between the terms of the court, a man may violate the law a number of times. Half a dozen indictments could be presented against him and he be convicted and sentenced upon each.

Gentlemen insist that for the purpose of preventing offenses, we must make punishment severe. Now, is it not well known that some States have gone so far as to abolish even the death penalty for murder, and why? For the very purpose of preventing that offense. The death penalty is a worse punishment than a mere imprisonment for life, yet in those States where they have adopted imprisonment for life, murders have been less frequent in those States where punishment is the death penalty. But the true rule is that we make punishment certain; or, in other words, we make it correspond with the aggravation of the offense. Punishments should be imposed always and certain. We never should deviate from that. When we have a criminal in our clutches, we should hold him and mete out that which the law imposes. Make your punishments certain. Grade them according to the offenses, and when you have an offender, inflict that punishment upon him. If you make the punishment high, then parties will refuse to prosecute a man for small offenses. The danger is where punishment is of an aggravated character that men will escape conviction.

If you allow this bill to pass in its present shape you make a distinction between commissions of the same offense. For a violation of the law upon the Sabbath day you inflict only a small punishment; for a mere violation of the license law you inflict a punishment that is three or four times greater. There is an inconsistency and a contradiction in this that is neither fair nor proper. I hope, therefore, this amendment will not carry. I hope, also, to see done away with the idea that this selling of liquor is such a monstrous thing that it requires stringent and extraordinary punishment different from all other offenses. Why, the very fact that we license a man to sell liquors is a violation of the law. It is a license to do evil. For the paltry sum of twenty dollars, or fifty dollars, we allow a man to sell liquor wholesale or retail to every man, woman and child in the Commonwealth; yet, if any person sells without a license you must put upon him a punishment three or four times greater than would be imposed upon a man who has a license to sell liquor for the whole year. I am in favor of sobriety and temperance. I am in favor of a stringent license law.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment of the gentleman from Northampton [Mr. MEYERS]?

It was

Not agreed to.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment—to add at the end of the section the words:

"Provided, That nothing in this act shall prevent the sale of liquors by druggists and apothecaries under the provisions of the act of Assembly, passed the 31st of March, 1856."

That act reads in this way:

"6. The provisions of this act shall not extend to druggists and apothecaries, who shall sell unmixed alcohol, or compound or sell any admixtures of wine, alcohol, spirituous or brewed liquors, in the preparation of medicines, or upon the written prescription of a regular practicing physician: Provided, That no druggist or apothecary shall sell, or keep for sale, under any name or pretense, any preparation or admixtures as aforesaid, that may be used as a beverage; and any violation of this section shall be punished in the manner prescribed in the twenty-eighth section of this act."

I fear, unless some provision of this kind is put into this bill, it will be impossible to get liquor for either medicinal or sacramental purposes.

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The fifth section was read.

Mr. MECHLING. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment:

"Nor in any locality where the sale of brewed, malt, spirituous or vinous liquors is restricted to hotel keepers."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

The question recurring on the section as amended, it was

Agreed to.

Mr. STUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to insert the words "beer house and restaurant" between the words "eating house" and "under," in the fifth line of the second section.

Consent was given, and

The amendment was

Agreed to.

Mr. BOYLE moved to go into committee of the whole for general amendments.

The motion was

Not agreed to.

The title of the bill was then read, and

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended, and the bill was read a second and a third time.

The question being on the final passage of the bill,

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. RHODES and Mr. KLINE, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adair, Armstrong, Barton, Boyle, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Colville, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Donegan, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Gough, Harrison, Hoffman, Humphrey, Jenks, Kea-pedy, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Kurtz, Lee, Leech, M'Creary, M'Henry, M'Kee, M'Pherin, Mann, Marks, Mechling, Meyers, Pennypacker, Phelan, Pillow, Richards, Roath, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Snbers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Webb, Weller, Wharton, Woodward, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—60.

Yates—Messrs. Barrington, Breen, Brennan, Calvin Chalfant, Collins, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Helzelt, Jones, Kline, Koon, Linton, Maish, Mullin, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Sharp and Westbrook—24.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the bill

Passed finally.

The next bill in order was

No. 341, an act to exempt market companies from the payment of tax on their capital stock.

The House went into committee of the whole, Mr. DAY in the chair.

The bill was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That from and after the passage of this act, all market companies, whose capital stock is wholly invested in real estate, and pays a tax upon such real estate, shall be exempt from the payment of tax upon their capital stock.

And not

Agreed to.

The bill having been gone through with, in the House,

The Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. DAY, chairman of the committee of the whole, reported the bill negatively.

The question then was on agreeing to the report of the committee.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, I wish to say on that bill, before the House takes any action upon it, that it was read by me, and on the suggestion of a number of my constituents and others.

The complaint of these market houses is that they are assessed the same as other real estate, and pay all the taxes that other real estate pays. The companies have no other income than the rental of this real estate. In addition to that, these companies, merely for the sake of the privileges of the act of incorporation, the privilege to sue and be sued—pay, in addition to taxes on real estate, a tax upon their net income of five per cent. In addition to that, in some counties their capital stock is taxed for township purposes. One reason why this bill was introduced, is that the different counties construe the law on this subject differently. In some counties the stock of these market houses is taxed; in other counties it is not taxed, for the reason, as it is said, that the property is taxed the same as other property. There is no reason why its stock should be assessed. If there is great objection to exempting capital stock from State tax, I will so amend it that it will not apply to the capital stock at all. Surely if the counties that are immediately interested are willing to do that, there should be no objection from any other quarter. Now, I will offer that amendment to say, "except the State tax." Then it will affect nobody but the counties interested—the counties of Montgomery, Delaware and Chester. I think they are agreed to this. It can do no injury to any other part of the State and will settle the difficulty that exists there in regard to this question.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that it is not in order now for the gentleman to make that motion. The question is on agreeing to the report of the committee of the whole. If the bill properly comes before the House, then the motion is in order.

Mr. KERNS. Mr. Speaker, I trust the House will agree to the report.

As far as Philadelphia is concerned, the market house is a mere matter of speculation. Large revenues are derived from the rental of these market houses.

Mr. BARTON. Mr. Speaker, I would not concur with the majority of the committee when they agree to report this bill negatively. Nor do I think that the gentleman from Philadelphia should agree to accept the report of the committee of the whole. He states that these market houses are simply a matter of speculation. I think they were built for the benefit of the citizens of Philadelphia, as much as for the protection of persons carrying produce to market, and so far as speculation is concerned, every stall in the market house is taxed ten dollars. Many of them have four or five hundred stalls, making a very neat revenue from that source alone.

Now, I ask why we should impose this tax upon the capital stock when that capital stock is invested in real estate? I do not see why these companies should be made to pay a double tax upon the amount of their capital stock. They are taxed once upon their real estate. I think it is imposing a burden too heavy to require them to pay again on the capital stock. I think it should satisfy the gentleman from Philadelphia that each and every one of these stalls is required to pay a tax of ten dollars, which is the license fee; and from that source alone a revenue of four or five thousand dollars is derived.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. KERNS] is under a mistake when he supposes that these market houses were built for speculation. The farmers who formerly stood along the curb stones in the streets were driven therefrom by an act of Assembly. They had to go somewhere or quit going to market altogether. They built these market houses, from necessity. They were a necessity to the farmers and a necessity to the citizens of Philadelphia. They are alike beneficial to both.

The passage of this act can do possible in jury to Philadelphia. They pay the full tax on real estate the same as other property, and there is no reason why Philadelphia should be oppressed.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I hope the House will not agree to the report of the committee. I think, if the House does not agree and we do not amend the report of the gentleman from Montgomery to except the State tax, the bill will be acceptable.

As the gentleman remarked, the stock is held in the counties, and in many parts it is not taxed at all. I am opposed to exempting property from State tax where it will take a revenue from the State; but, if this amendment is adopted, I think it will be entirely satisfactory to this House.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the report of the committee of the whole?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. ADAIRE and Mr. FREEBORN, and were as follow, viz:

Yates—Messrs. Armstrong, Boyle, Brown, Chadwick, Colville, Davis, Day, Deise, Epp, Ewing, Fogel, Freeborn, Gregory, Humphrey, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Koon, Lee, Leech, Linton, M'Creary, M'Henry, M'Kee, M'Pherin, Mann, Marks, Melly, Phelan, Pillow, Richards, Roath, Roush, Shuman, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Waddell, Wallace, Watt, Weller, Westbrook, Wharton, Woodward, Worrall and Wright—48.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Barrington, Barton, Cameron, Chalfant, Chase, Craig, De Haven, Donohugh, Hedges, Harner, Headman, Hoffman, Hunt, Jones, Josephs, Kennedy, Kline, Long, Maish, Markley, Mechling, Meyers, Mullin, Pennypacker, Peters, Rhoads, Satterthwait, Seiler, Sharples and Webb—51.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the bill fell.

The House went into committee of the whole on Senate bill No. 97.

Mr. GREGORY in the Chair.

The bill was read as follows:

AN ACT authorizing tender of money to be made after suit brought.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That in all actions for the recovery of money hereafter brought in any of the courts of this Commonwealth, or before any of the justices of the peace or aldermen thereof, the defendant, or defendants therein, shall have the right, at any time, to make to the plaintiff, or plaintiffs, or to his or their attorney, a tender of lawful money, equal to the amount he or they shall admit to be due, with all lawful costs incurred in said action, up to the date of making such tender; and if the party to whom such tender shall be made refuses to accept the same, then, in the event of the plaintiff or plaintiffs failing to recover more than the principal sum, so as aforesaid tendered, with legal interest thereon, he or they shall pay all the costs legally incurred in the said action, after the time of the tender aforesaid: Provided, That the said defendant or defendants shall be required to keep up said tender at every trial of the action aforesaid.

On the question,

Will the committee agree to the first section?

Mr. WADELL. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend, in the fourth line, by inserting after the word "money," the words, "founded on contract," and in the seventh line, after the word "time," by inserting the words, "before trial."

The amendment was

Agreed to.

In the House,

The Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. GREGORY, chairman of the committee of the whole, reported the bill with amendments.

The bill was read as amended.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill?

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, I did not realize, at first, the effect of the second amendment proposed by the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADELL.]

As I understand, he proposes to have inserted the words, "before trial."

Now, the purpose of this bill is to permit a tender to be made after a trial more especially. The trial goes on before a justice, the evidence is there developed, and it is then understood what is due the defendant from the plaintiff. It is proposed, in this bill, that the defendant may make a tender of what is actually due after the trial, and so save himself from subsequent cost. The rule is just the same in the case of a trial before arbitrators. There defendants may tender the amount which the plaintiff can recover, and so save any costs that may accrue.

If the amendment is adopted, then after the suit has been brought to a close before some inferior tribunal, the defendant may tender the amount actually due, and in that way avoid costs. I take it that the purpose of this bill cannot be accomplished if the gentleman's amendment remains.

I, therefore, move to strike out the words "before trial."

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, it strikes me that the difficulty in the way of the gentleman from Cambria [Mr. LINTON] is met by adding to the words which I have inserted the words "in court," so it will read "before trial in court."

I, therefore, offer that amendment to his amendment.

Mr. LINTON. That is satisfactory; I accept the amendment.

House bill No. 563, a further supplement to an act to authorize the Cranberry coal company to construct a railroad.

This bill being first laid over at the request of Mr. BROWN (Mercer), was reconsidered after the calendar had been gone through with at his request.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer) then explained that they were authorized by the act of 1864 to build a railroad from the coal mines to Oil City, and by the terms of that act they were compelled to be common carriers. So far as that railroad was concerned they were not to charge a greater toll than customary on other roads. This act proposes to relieve that company from the responsibility of common carriers. That is the gist of the bill. He would content himself with calling the yeas and nays on its final passage.

Mr. RIDGWAY said there was nothing wrong in the bill. The railroad was five miles in length, with a very heavy grade. It costs them seven cents a ton to carry, and they do not want to be forced to carry at the present rates, as it caused them to sustain a loss of about one-half.

On the final passage of the bill, The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BROWN (Mercer) and Mr. RIDGWAY, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Burnett, Connell, Davis, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Graham, Haines, James, Landon, Lowry, McCandless, McCaughy, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Taylor, Wallace, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—24.

No. 769, an act for the relief of Mrs. Mary Ann Gordon, widow and executrix of Hiram B. Gordon, deceased, late register of wills, recorder of deeds, and clerk of the orphans' court of the county of Venango.

The bill was read.

An explanation being desired,

Mr. BROWN (Mercer) said that the bill on its face sets forth many facts relative to the case. Mrs. Gordon is the widow of the late register and recorder of the county of Venango. At the time of the death of her husband the amount named in this bill was due the Commonwealth from him, and owing to the failure of Culver, Penn & Co., and of other failures which followed in consequence thereof, not only this amount, but an amount ten times as great, was swept away.

Mrs. Gordon is the owner of a little house, probably worth one thousand five hundred dollars or two thousand dollars, in which she now resides, and if the Commonwealth enforces the collection of this amount it will sweep from her her last dollar, leaving her with a large family of small, helpless children to fight her way through the world, without means and without a place of shelter. The whole matter was presented to the Finance Committee, and after three or four weeks of deliberation, it was resolved to report this bill with an affirmative recommendation. I am prepared to vote for it, believing that it is right.

The bill

ACT TO INCREASE REVENUE OF COMMONWEALTH.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the unanimous consent of the House to introduce and pass an important bill relative to the revenue of the Commonwealth. It is a bill in which the State auditor is much interested, and is exceedingly anxious it should be considered at once and disposed of.

Consent was given.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I introduce and ask the House to consider at this time bill No. 1055, an act to increase the revenue of the Commonwealth.

The following is a copy of the bill:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same. That from and after the passage of this act, every railroad, canal or transportation company which possesses the right to mine coal, or purchase, or lease and sell the same, shall, quarterly, on the first days of January, April, July and October, make a report, under oath or affirmation, stating the amount of coal mined by them, and from property owned and leased by them, and also the amount of coal purchased by them, or mined from property owned by them, that may be leased to other parties during the preceding three months, and shall pay the Commonwealth, within thirty days thereafter, a tax of ten cents per ton upon each and every ton so purchased or mined, the accounts to be settled by the Auditor General and State Treasurer; and in case of default in payment, to be recoverable as other taxes due the Commonwealth are now by law recoverable: Provided, That the amount of coal consumed in the ordinary transportation of their business shall not be included in their return.

Sec. 2. If any such company or corporation shall fail to make return, provided for in the preceding section, for a period of thirty days, after the date therein fixed for the same, such company shall be liable to a penalty of twenty-five per centum for the gross amount of the tax which shall be ascertained to be due to the Commonwealth.

Sec. 3. If any such company or corporation shall neglect or refuse to pay the amount of tax due the Commonwealth, under the first section of this act, together with any penalty they may be liable for, under the second section, for a period of thirty days after the settlement of their accounts, by the Auditor General and State Treasurer, the said company or corporation shall forfeit and pay to the Commonwealth a penalty of twenty-five per centum upon the amount of said account, as settled, with such interest upon the entire amount due thereon as it or may be provided by law: Provided, That any corporation failing to make the return required by the first section of this act within the specified time, and also failing to make payment on the settlement as provided for in this section, shall be liable to both penalties, viz: Twenty-five per centum for neglect to return, and twenty-five per centum and interest for neglect or refusal to pay the same.

Going into the committee of the whole, by consent, being in this case dispensed with, the several sections of the bill were separately taken up, considered and agreed to.

The question being,
Will the House agree to the title?
Mr. MECHLING, in the chair.
Mr. HOFFMAN. Mr. Speaker, this is a bill of great importance, particularly to the mining districts of Pennsylvania, and they are heavily taxed already. I am opposed to passing this bill. I am in favor of having it laid over.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. Speaker, this is a bill certainly of most extraordinary provisions and affects my constituents very much. Involving, as it does, so many great financial considerations, I ask the House to allow the bill to go over for the present.

Mr. KOON. Mr. Speaker, I join the gentleman from Allegheny [Mr. GLASS] and the gentleman from Dauphin [Mr. HOFFMAN] in that request. I think this bill will operate very harshly on some of the mining portions of our country, and that it should not be passed without proper consideration. I want an opportunity to see and examine the bill.

Mr. BARTON. Mr. Speaker, this bill also affects my constituents very much. They are very much interested in having the revenue of the State properly maintained and supported, and it seems to me that these companies are as well and perhaps better able to pay this small per centum than many other corporations and individuals that have been heavily taxed. I think it is nothing more than right that these companies so abundantly able should be so taxed.

Mr. HARBISON. Mr. Speaker, I trust that this bill will not be rushed through in this rapid manner. It is a bill that affects my constituents very materially. I hope that it will be printed and that we will have time to consider it before acting upon it finally.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. Speaker, I have the honor of representing one of the most wealthy coal districts perhaps in the State. I believe, sir, that I do not exaggerate when I say that there is no industry in the county of Allegheny which, if mined and at the stipple, would pay the entire debt of the General Government. Now, the State of Ohio and the State of Virginia, bordering upon Pennsylvania, have their coal beds also. Those States do not inflict any tax upon coal mined from the beds of those States, and if the coal beds of Pennsylvania are to be taxed, I ask what hope will there be for the coal interests of Pennsylvania? I say that this is one of the most outrageous and villainous propositions that has been submitted to the Legislature of the State of Pennsylvania. I do not know how it may affect the coal interests in the northern and eastern part of Pennsylvania, but I tell you it will destroy the coal interests of Western Pennsylvania. Why the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL], representing the Committee on Ways and Means, should lend himself to introduce a bill so villainous in its consequences, is more than I can comprehend.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I am sorry, sir, that my actions should be impugned in a matter of this kind. I am satisfied that the House do not understand the character of this bill. It is an extraordinarily tenacious about it, and I do not desire to snub the bill through. There are but three or four companies in the Commonwealth that this bill will reach, and these are only those companies which have the power to mine and transport. Under the recent decision of the courts in regard to the laws in reference to tonnage these companies escape every dollar of tonnage tax and go scot free. They are companies that mine coal here and run it off to New York, and escape the provisions of the law as it now stands. This bill is intended to reach those companies and none others, and will not affect a company in the county of Allegheny. It will not affect a company in that section of the State. It will only reach three or four, and those companies run their coal into the State of New York. I do not want gentlemen to suggest here that the bill is villainous without understanding the character of it.

The bill was drawn up by Government officials, and was submitted to a gentleman who has reviewed the laws in a legal capacity as they now stand, and who has made a decision under them and through the department, and this is the only way in which those companies can be reached, as he has been compelled to adjudicate the law as it exists. If there is anything villainous in this, I am satisfied that the bill should fall. If this House considered that, as chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, I have lent myself to introduce a villainous measure, then I want it to be condemned by the House, but I would like to have the House understand before doing that what the character of this bill is.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] in what quarter of the State these companies are located?

Mr. WADDELL. They are located in the northern tier of the counties of the State, within five and ten miles of the State of New York, and all the coal that is mined there runs over roads into New York without paying any tonnage tax, and no tax at all to the State.

Mr. QUAY. These companies are located in the Anthracite coal fields, are they?

Mr. WADDELL. Yes, sir; they are located in the Anthracite coal fields.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I then move to amend by inserting the word "Anthracite" before the word "coal."

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that amendments are not now in order. The bill having been gone through with, the question is on agreeing to the bill.

It was

Agreed to.

The question being on the final passage of the bill,

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I ask that by general consent the word "Anthracite" may go into the bill before the word "coal."

Objection was made.

Mr. WADDELL. Mr. Speaker, I only meant to say this further to what I have said, that the difficulty which suggests itself to the minds of gentlemen here, is that they do not draw the distinction that the bill provides. Its provisions apply only to companies that have the power of mining and transporting. Now, there is not a company in Schuylkill county, or in any of the many mining districts in this State, that by its charter has the power of mining and transporting. They have the power of mining, but they have not the power of transporting their coal. That is done by other corporations, and this bill will not reach them. I am assured by the State Treasurer that from the returns made from these various companies and by their charters, there are but four companies in the Commonwealth that this bill will reach, and these escape every dollar of taxation under the laws as they now exist.

Mr. WINGARD. Mr. Speaker, this bill may be all right, sir. It may be endorsed by the Government officials. The Government officials are not the law-making power, and if this bill is only to affect some three or four companies, I cannot see why these companies should not be named in this bill, so that they may be patent to all. For one I am unwilling that a bill of such importance as this one should be granted a hasty passage. I think it should receive further consideration before being acted upon, and therefore move that it be referred to the Committee on Ways and Means and printed.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, with due respect to all others, I wish to suggest a word. When this bill was first read it struck me as being of the same objectionable character as it has appeared to others on this floor. But after hearing the explanation of the chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, I am satisfied that this is a very just and proper bill. We all understand that within the last two years the people of this State have not been paying any direct State tax at all upon the very principle embodied in this bill; that we have been raising the fund that would otherwise have to be raised by a State tax from other sources, such as taxes on corporations. We are told by the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, who ought to be posted upon the subject, and the House knows that he is, that there are but four corporations that escape the provisions of the statute by which the farmers and citizens generally of the State are relieved from the State tax, and these four are mining and transportation companies. They should have a right to mine coal and carry it out of this State without paying any tax at all. I submit that the railroad companies and other corporations of this State are bound to pay sufficient tax, without levying one mill of State tax. It is not right that four companies of this kind should escape all taxes.

Mr. HOFFMAN. I would like to have the gentleman name those companies.

Mr. DAVIS. I take the statement of the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means. I knew nothing about the matter until it was introduced this morning.

Mr. McCAMANT. Mr. Speaker, I understand the gentleman from Allegheny [Mr. GLASS] in his remarks to reflect upon the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means for reporting that bill as chairman of that committee. I have no knowledge that the Committee of Ways and Means have ever seen that bill. I understand that the gentleman from Chester [Mr. WADDELL] introduced the bill on his own responsibility.

Mr. LEE. If the gentleman from Blair [Mr. McCAMANT] had been at the meeting of the committee last night he would have known better than that.

The question being on the motion of Mr. WINGARD to re-commit the bill to the Committee on Ways and Means, and have it printed,

It was

Agreed to.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MONDAY, March 11, 1867.

The House met at 7½ o'clock, P. M.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. J. KENNEDY, member from Wyoming.

THE SPEAKER announced a quorum of members present.

The Journal of yesterday was partly read, when,

On motion of Mr. RHOADS, the further reading of the same was dispensed with.

Mr. DEHAVEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a privileged question. I move to reconsider the vote on concurring in the Senate amendment to Senate bill No. 143, an act to divide the Twenty-first ward of the city of Philadelphia.

This is a Senate bill: it passed the Senate and came over to this House. It was amended here, sent back to the Senate, amended there, again came back here, and the House concurred in the amendments. The bill as it now stands is not worth the paper it is written on. I therefore move to reconsider the vote by which the House concurred in the amendment of the Senate.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The question then recurring,

Will the House concur in the amendment of the Senate?

It was

Not agreed to.

Mr. DEHAVEN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House insist upon non-concurring, and that a committee of conference be appointed.

The motion was

Agreed to.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a privileged question. I renew my motion of the other day, to consider the vote negating Senate bill No. 117, an act relative to the appointment of collectors of taxes in Montgomery county.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. SATTERTHWAIT and Mr. MARKLEY, and were as follow, viz:

Yeas—Messrs. Adair, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Day, DeHaven, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Harbison, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kimbell, Kinney, Lee, Leach, Marks, Meily, Quay, Richards, Sharples, Shuman, Steacy, Webb, Weller, Wharton and Wright—80.

Nays—Messrs. Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Bronnan, Calvin, Chalfant, Chase, Collins, Colville, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Harner, Headman, Heltzel, Hoffman, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Klue, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, McCreary, Maish, Mann, Markley, Mechling, Meyers, Pichler, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Sciler, Tharp, Westbrook and Woodward—41.

So the question was determined in the negative.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, last Friday I was necessarily absent from this House, on professional business, in Philadelphia. During my absence, that day, House bill No. 821, in reference to the running of steam engines in the built-up portions of Philadelphia, was referred to Committee on Railroads. It is a bill which I, as chairman of a special committee, reported to this House. I cannot see the object in referring it to the Committee on Railroads. It was reported by a special committee and was so recognized when reported. I cannot see any other object in this than delay. Let us deal fairly with this matter. I say that it is unfair to refer it in this way for the sake of delay. I, therefore, move that the Railroad Committee be discharged from the further consideration of the bill.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to make an inquiry of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. Hood] before that question is put, and that is this: How does it occur that while the Philadelphia and Trenton railroad company run their cars in a portion of the city where they do not pass probably more than twenty houses on the line of their street—certainly they do not pass anything like one-fourth the built-up portions of the city that the Germantown and Norristown railroad or the Reading railroad do—how is it that that road is singled out, and made the special object of that gentleman's care and solicitude? I would like to be satisfied upon that point. I do not know why that is. I do not express any opinion one way or the other with reference to the propriety of the bill, but I—

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I would say in reply to the gentleman that we intend to report a bill to-night in reference to the Norristown railroad, and that we will probably report a bill concentrating all the roads at one depot in one part of the city. We do not intend to look over any one of them.

Mr. BOYLE. Mr. Speaker, the orders have not been suspensory, allow an motion to be made, and I raise the point of order that the motion of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. Hood] is not in order.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of the opinion that the point of order is well taken. Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I then move that the orders of the day be suspended for the purpose of enabling me to make a motion.

The motion was

Not agreed to.

The SPEAKER then announced the special order to be the consideration of Senate bill No. 665, an act to incorporate the city of Allentown.

The question was on agreeing to the seventh section.

It was

Agreed to.

The eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh, twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth, seventeenth, eighteenth, nineteenth, twentieth, twenty-first, twenty-second, twenty-third, twenty-fourth, twenty-fifth, twenty-sixth, twenty-seventh and twenty-eighth sections were read, and

Agreed to.

On motion of Mr. FOGEL, the twenty-third section was amended by inserting the words "four dollars" in place of "one dollar."

The section as amended was

Agreed to.

The bill was

Agreed to.

On the question?

Will the House suspend the rules and read the bill a third time by its title?

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, this is an important bill. I think the provisions should be inquired into. I, therefore, suggest that the House do not suspend the rules, but let the bill go over on third reading, and upon the question of suspending the rules I call the yeas and nays.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I hope the gentleman from Chester [Mr. PENNYPACKER] will state, for the information of the House, what objection, if any, there is to suspending the rules on this bill. I hope the gentleman will state whether the mere fact that the bill applies to a Democratic county makes it objectionable.

I think that is the only objection I have heard.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, nearly every time there is a question raised upon a certain point I find some gentlemen on the other side of the House who are crying upon us politics. They are dragging politics into every subject. I submit to this House that this is a bill to incorporate a city—a bill too important to be passed under a suspension of the rules. The other evening when we were in great commotion, and members were leaving the House, at a very late hour indeed, this bill was introduced under a suspension of the rules. I believe we had a special session that evening.

Small bills of no particular importance except to the immediate locality to which they apply have to go upon the calendar to be printed and passed through their regular routine. Here is a bill to incorporate a city which we are about to pass without any of these preliminaries which uniformly attach to bills of minor importance.

This is a bill into which we should look carefully that the interests of not merely Republicans but Democrats should be taken care of. I do not make this a political matter. I have no particular objections to the bill, but I am opposed to passing a matter of this importance under a suspension of the rules.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker that is just the very reason why I asked the gentleman from Chester his reason for wanting this bill to lay over. It is well known the bill was up for consideration last week. It was postponed and made the special order for this evening—for what purpose? Simply in order to give the gentleman from Chester, and every other gentleman, an opportunity to examine it. The gentleman has had time to do so, but has he done it? If he has examined the bill let him point out his objection.

Mr. FOGEL. Mr. Speaker, the bill was drawn by a Republican council of Allentown.

Mr. PENNYPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I should like to insist that I make no political objection to this bill. If this was from my own county I would not ask a suspension of the rules.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman if he has not had time to examine the bill since its postponement?

Mr. PENNYPACKER. I have not.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I am told that the election is to be held on Friday next, and if this bill should not be passed under a suspension of the rules it cannot be passed at all. The object for which it is presented will be defeated. I understand the people of Allentown have made no objection to it at all. It has passed the Senate, and I believe it is the general desire of the people of Allentown that they be incorporated into a city.

I am informed this bill was drawn by the Republican council of Allentown, therefore, there can be no political objection.

The only necessity for having this bill passed now, arises from the fact that the election in Allentown is to be held on Friday next. If the House does not agree to suspend the rules and pass the bill now, it will put both parties to a very great inconvenience. I trust, therefore, the gentleman will either withdraw his call, or else that the House will grant this indulgence to the people of Allentown, as it is a matter to them of very great importance.

The call for the yeas and nays was withdrawn.

The question recurring, Will the House suspend the rules?

It was

Agreed to.

The bill was read a third time, and

Passed finally.

CONNELLSVILLE RAILROAD BILL MADE A SPECIAL ORDER.

Mr. QUAY. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to be allowed to make a motion.

Consent was given.

Mr. QUAY. I move to make Senate bill No. 284, with reference to the Connelleville railroad, a special order for Wednesday morning next at 10 o'clock.

The motion was

Agreed to.

BILL RECOMMENDED.

On motion of Mr. SUBERS, House bill No. 916, an act relative to widening Delaware avenue in the city of Philadelphia, was recommended to the Committee on Municipal Corporations.

PRIVATE CALENDAR.

The SPEAKER announced that the next order of business was the further consideration of the private calendar.

The first bill in order was House bill No. 590, an act relative to drainage of certain lands in Point township and borough, Northumberland county.

The bill was Postponed for the present.

The next bill in order was House bill No. 595, an act relating to the duties of the treasurer of Lawrence county.

The bill was Laid over on third reading.

The next bill in order was House bill No. 665, an act to provide for the election of Burgess and town council in the borough of Danville, Montour county.

The bill was read.

Mr. CHALFANT moved to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert a new bill.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The bill as amended was

Agreed to.

The title was read and

Agreed to.

The rules were suspended, and the bill read a third time by its title.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass?

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, I hope the bill will not pass. I think it is a new mode to obtain a charter for a borough without first submitting it to a committee. The bill, of which this proposes to be an amendment, was before the proper committee. By them it was considered and reported.

The gentleman has taken advantage of circumstances, in my opinion, to strike out all after the title and insert an entirely new bill. He springs upon this House and asks it to pass a bill incorporating a borough without allowing time for the consideration of its provisions. Under the circumstances, I hope the House will not agree to the motion.

If in order, I would move that the bill be referred to the appropriate committee; that it be there considered, and by them reported to this House.

Mr. CHALFANT. Mr. Speaker, I would state to the gentleman that I do not propose to get a new charter for the town of Danville. It is already chartered. This is a bill providing merely for two additional wards to that borough. It has received the consent of nearly every inhabitant of Danville.

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman's statement is correct, and I believe it is, I suppose the courts have jurisdiction in this matter. I believe the court would have authority to grant a charter for the borough of Danville. Why it is that this matter is brought in, in this way, I cannot understand. I hope the motion to recommit the bill will prevail.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman from Lancaster [Mr. ARMSTRONG] has made the point now that should prevail. I will read the provisions of the law on this subject.

"§6." The courts of quarter sessions aforesaid shall also have power, with the concurrence of the grand jury of the county, and upon the application in writing of two-thirds of the taxable inhabitants of any borough now incorporated, or that may hereafter be incorporated, to annul or alter the charter of the same, and similar proceedings shall be had on such application, as in the case of incorporating a borough."

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I think this an important question to decide.

I hope the bill will be suspended for the present.

I think this House is manifesting but very little judgment in matters of this sort, if they persist in passing bills that the Governor must necessarily veto.

I do not know what pressing necessity there may be for the passage of this bill; but, if the courts have power to do this thing it will come back to us vetoed; affording another case of a charter for not appreciating what has been so thoroughly, ably and fully set forth.

Mr. CHALFANT. Have the courts the power?

Mr. LEE. If they have the right to create a borough, they have the right to create its wards, designate how many wards the borough shall have, and alter them at any time.

I am not opposed to the gentleman's bill, but I am opposed to passing laws that will come back to us vetoed, because we have no right to act upon them. I think we should exercise our judgment and common sense.

Mr. LINTON. Mr. Speaker, I think if the gentleman will further examine the law, he will find the courts have not authority to divide a borough into wards. They have authority to incorporate boroughs and extend the limits of boroughs; but there is no provision in the law which authorizes the courts to divide a borough into wards.

I understand the provisions of this bill are simply to divide the borough there designated into wards. I feel confident in making the assertion that the courts have not that authority. They can incorporate a borough, and they can extend its limits, but no more. It is not an unusual thing for boroughs to be divided into wards by act of Assembly. The borough in which I reside was thus divided, as also was the borough of York. So I am informed by the gentleman representing that county.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I think this general bill providing for the manner of chartering boroughs and for their government was intended to govern boroughs, and that its purpose was to take that subject out of the hands of the Legislature. I think this attempt to evade the provisions of that act of Assembly by dividing boroughs into wards is an evasion, and that this bill will come back vetoed, if we pass it. I can think of no reason why the Legislature should have taken the pains to elaborate a bill so carefully as they have this one, defining the powers and duties of a borough, giving the courts full power to charter them, with authority to change their charter on application, if year after year they are to be called upon to change the very borough laws. I undertake to say the object of this general bill was to prevent just such legislation as that which is now asked for. It could have had no other purpose. They have taken great pains with this bill; they have determined what officers shall be in a borough; what powers they shall have, and what powers the courts shall have.

It is said, because this bill proposes to divide a borough into wards, therefore it does not come within the law. I believe it was intended that boroughs should be as defined by this act of Assembly. That is my conviction. It may be mistaken, but that is the way the law reads.

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, I read in section nine, article eleven, of the Constitution, which provides as follows:

"Sec. IX. No bill shall be passed by the Legislature granting any powers or privileges, in any case, where the authority to grant such powers or privileges has been, or may hereafter be, conferred upon the courts of this Commonwealth."

Now, the powers and privileges proposed to be conferred by this act are not such powers and privileges as the courts have authority to confer, therefore, there is no constitutional objection to the passage of the bill.

I read further:

"Every borough within this Commonwealth that hereafter may be incorporated by an act of the General Assembly, or by the court of quarter sessions of any county, shall have power," &c.

This gave concurrent jurisdiction to the courts with the Legislature.

Now, considering the provisions of the Constitution and in construing the act of Assembly, you must give that reasonable, common sense construction which leads to something like truthfulness. In some cases the courts have exclusive authority. Now, this act proposes to create two additional wards and further enlarge the corporate powers of the borough. The power has not been given by the Legislature, as I understand, to the courts, and hence the necessity of this act.

Hence the objection to it was not well-founded. It is not to incorporate a town—that has been done already. It is to create new relations that the court itself has no power to create. I think, therefore, that the objection of the gentleman is not well founded.

Mr. LEE. Was not the right to grant divorces, before the passage of the constitutional amendment, concurrent with the Legislature and with the court; and if so, why may we not pass divorce bills now, where we have not acted hitherto?

Mr. JENKS. In answer to the question, I would state that the right to grant divorces was, in some measure, concurrent. By the act of Assembly, the right of the court to grant divorces was founded upon willful desertion, and cases of such hard treatment and cruelty by either of the parties that made the life of the other unendurable, and to cases of incompetency. These are all now think of. There are cases, outside of these, that the Legislature have power to act upon, and hence applications before this Legislature for divorces for causes outside of those which have been specified by act of Assembly. So in cases of the incorporation of boroughs.

Mr. LEE. Where the courts and the Legislature had concurrent rights in this matter, concurrent jurisdiction, I ask whether that concurrent jurisdiction has not been taken away by the recent amendments to the Constitution; and if so, has it not destroyed the concurrent jurisdiction of the courts with this Legislature everywhere?

Mr. JENKS. When I use the term concurrent I use it in this sense: to suggest the distinction which arises between the creation of a corporation and such modification of a corporate power as has not been provided for already by act of Assembly. The act proposes to modify the corporate power and give it a new direction. This modification has not been, as I apprehend, vested in the courts. Remember this is not an act to incorporate, but an act to change the corporate authority—the matter of exercising corporate power—an act to create new wards, to change certain relations therein. I do not think that is included in the power which authorizes the courts to incorporate.

Mr. WEBB. Mr. Speaker, on the 986th page of Pardon I find this section:

"14. The courts of quarter sessions shall have authority, within their respective counties, to divide any borough, ward or township, into two or more election districts; to alter the bounds of any election district, or to form an election district out of parts of two or more adjoining townships, so as to suit the convenience of the inhabitants thereof, and to fix the place of holding elections, and appoint the election officers, pursuant to the provisions of section second of this act."

Mr. JENKS. Mr. Speaker, on change the case; that is not what is proposed here.

Mr. WEBB. What is proposed?

Mr. JENKS. To create two wards.

Mr. WEBB. Does not that make election districts necessarily?

Mr. LEE. I simply desire to say that one of the most eminent jurists in this State, Judge Taylor, has fully examined this subject. He said the courts had full power, and he would get the borough divided as this bill provides.

Mr. MCGREARY. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that this House is taking up time discussing a question that should have been examined before we came here; and for that reason I think the motion of the gentleman from Lancaster is a very proper one. This question can be examined before a committee; they can have the law before them—examine it carefully. Time that should be devoted to reading bills in place and going through with the private calendar would not then be inter-ferred with. I think, whether the courts have power or not, bills of this kind should go before a committee for the purpose of ascertaining that particular fact whether they have that power.

I was not here when the bill was read, but I am told that it is for the purpose of dividing the town of Danville into wards. Now, there are eleven sections in that substitute. I would like to inquire how many wards are to be constructed in the town of Danville in order to make it necessary to have eleven sections?

It seems to me there must be more in this bill than the division of the town of Danville into wards. I cannot understand how it is necessary to have eleven sections to divide a town into two wards.

This bill should go before a committee. If the Governor vetoes all these bills it is his duty to do so, and it is our duty just as much not to pass these bills as it is his duty to veto them.

Therefore we should examine them in committee, where all those little points that determine the character of a bill can be examined.

I hope we will come to a vote on the motion at once.

Mr. THARP. Mr. Speaker, I have a bill now before this House to divide a borough into wards. That bill was prepared by eminent counsel, whose opinion it was that the courts had no jurisdiction.

[Owing to confusion in the House it was impossible to hear the conclusion of the gentleman's remarks.]

Mr. CHALFANT. Mr. Speaker, my anxiety to get this bill passed to-night is because the people of the town are very anxious for these additional wards. I thought if the House would pass it this evening, the Senate would get it to-morrow to take a vote on it. If the bill is unconstitutional, I suppose the Governor will veto it. I am no lawyer myself, but I am told that this bill was drawn by the ablest legal minds at the bar of Montour county, and I suppose the gentlemen who drew the bill had examined the question fully beforehand.

I hope the House will agree to let the bill pass.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I have in my hand the opinion of the ablest lawyer in the State, who says this:

"The act of 1863 only applies to cases where the court has made corporate, and does not recognize the right of a court where the borough owes its existence to the Legislature."

On the question,
Will the House agree to the motion to recommit the bill?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. CHALFANT and Mr. FOGEL, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Chadwick, Day, DeHaven, Espy, Ewing, Freedborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Hoffman, Humphrey, Kennedy, Kimmell, Lee, Leech, McCamant, M'Creary, Mann, Marks, Mechling, Melly, Pennypacker, Richards, Sharples, Steacy, Stumbaugh, Subers, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—36.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Boyd, Boyle, Breen, Brennan, Calvin, Chalfant, Colville, Craig, Deise, Fogel, Harner, Headman, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Keros, Kinney, Kline, Koon, Kurtz, Linton, Long, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Satterthwait, Shoman, Tharp, Westbrook and Wingard—37.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The question recurring on the final passage of the bill.

The bill
Passed finally.

In agreeing to the bill.
On motion, the House proceeded to the consideration of the bill.
The bill was read and
Agreed to.
The rules being suspended, the bill was read a second and third time, and
Passed finally.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.
The first bill in order was Senate bill No. 44, entitled A supplement to the act of March 19, 1866, making further provision for the government of the city of Harrisburg.
The question being on the final passage of the bill,

Mr. BOYLE, Mr. Speaker, I move this House do now adjourn.

On the motion,
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. KERNS and Mr. COLVILLE, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Boyd, Boyle, Eresen, Chadwick, Chalfant, Colville, Craig, Fogel, Harner, Headman, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Koon, Linton, Long, Maish, Meyers, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush, Westbrook, Whann and Wharton—28.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chase, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Hoffman, Kenned, Kerns, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, Mann, Markley, Marks, Mechling, Pennyacker, Quay, Richards, Satterthwait, Selzer, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Watt, Webb, Weller, Wingard, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—43.

So the question was determined in the negative.

Mr. HOFFMAN, Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by adding the following to the end of the sixth section:

"It shall be the duty of all such police officers and such constables appointed, as aforesaid, to make return to the court of quarter session of Dauphin county, in the same manner and at the same time as now required of the ward and township constables."

Also, to strike out the eighth section and insert the following, and insert an entirely new section as section eight:

SEC. 8. That the fees to be received by the mayor and aldermen of the city of Harrisburg, where the same has to be paid by the county of Dauphin, shall be as follows: Information on behalf of the Commonwealth, for every ten words, 2 cents; docket entry on behalf of the Commonwealth, 10 cents; warrants or writs on behalf of the Commonwealth, 25 cents; taking a recognizance and returning the same to court, 25 cents; entering judgment on conviction for fine, 15 cents; warrant and levy fine or forfeiture, 25 cents; discharge to jailor, 15 cents; committing any person for drunkenness, disorderly conduct or as a vagrant, 25 cents. But no person shall be committed as a vagrant on their own voluntary application for lodgings, but said officers shall give the party a note to the jailor to receive them, for which the officer shall be warrant, 25 cents; when the costs have to be paid by the parties, or either of them, or have not been altered by this act, the fees shall be as heretofore. The fees to be received by the police officers or constables within the city, where the same has to be paid by the county, shall be as follows: For executing warrants on behalf of the Commonwealth, 40 cents; conveying to jail on mittimus or warrant, 25 cents; arresting a vagrant or disorderly person or other offender against the law, without a warrant, and bringing before the mayor or alderman, 25 cents; laying a fine or forfeiture on warrant, 25 cents; taking the body into custody on mittimus, where bail is afterwards ordered before delivery of the prisoner to the jailor, 25 cents. Where the costs have to be paid by the parties, or either of them, the fees have not been altered by this act; they shall remain as heretofore, and this act shall only apply to the execution of process or the arrest of parties within the city limits.

In this connection I move that the House dispense with going into committee of the whole for the purpose of considering these amendments.

Mr. BOYLE, Mr. Speaker, I have felt disposed to oppose the passage of this bill, and I certainly should do so if I thought it advisable to prevent its passage. I do not know that anything more can be done than, perhaps, to remain here for purposes of delay. It is something of a party measure, and of course, there are sufficient votes to carry it. It is useless today.

The motion to dispense with going into committee of the whole was

Agreed to.
And the amendments were inserted.
The question recurred on the final passage of the bill as amended.

Mr. LINTON, Mr. Speaker, I move to go into committee of the whole for the purpose of special amendment, to strike out the word "free-holders" in the first section, and insert instead the words "qualified electors."

On agreeing to the motion,
The yeas and nays were required by Mr. LINTON and Mr. MAISH, and were as follows, viz:
YEAS—Messrs. Boyd, Boyle, Eresen, Chalfant, Craig, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Kline, Linton, Long, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Quay, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush and Westbrook—26.

NAYS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Hoffman, Kenned, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, Mann, Marks, Mechling, Pennyacker, Richards, Satterthwait, Selzer, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wingard, Wright and Glass, Speaker—44.

So the question was determined in the negative.

The question recurred on the final passage of the bill.

Mr. JENKS, Mr. Speaker, if gentlemen would consider the word "freeholder" I think they would consent to the amendment. I would ask the meaning of this expression.

"The city of Harrisburg shall have a select council, which shall consist of seven members, who shall be elected as hereinafter provided, and this select council shall be freeholders of the city and inhabitants of the wards," * * &c. The term "propertyholder" or its equivalent, would avoid any question that might arise. I call attention to that, because it is important.

Mr. HOFFMAN, I have no objection to such an amendment.

Mr. JENKS, Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out the word "freeholder" from the fifth line and insert the words "owners of real estate."

I ask the unanimous consent of the House to make this amendment.

Agreed to.
The amendment was
Agreed to.

The question being on the final passage of the bill as amended.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. LINTON and Mr. MAISH, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Adaire, Allen, Armstrong, Barton, Brown, Cameron, Chadwick, Chase, Davis, Day, DeHaven, Espy, Ewing, Freeborn, Gallagher, Ghegan, Hoffman, Kenned, Kerns, Kimmell, Kinney, Lee, Leech, M'Camant, Mann, Marks, Mechling, Pennyacker, Quay, Richards, Satterthwait, Selzer, Sharples, Steacy, Stehman, Stumbaugh, Subers, Watt, Webb, Weller, Whann, Wharton, Wingard, Worrall, Wright and Glass, Speaker—46.

NAYS—Messrs. Boyd, Boyle, Eresen, Chalfant, Colville, Craig, Fogel, Gregory, Harner, Headman, Hood, Hunt, Jenks, Jones, Josephs, Koon, Linton, Long, Maish, Markley, Meyers, Phelan, Quigley, Rhoads, Robinson, Roush and Westbrook—26.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The bill as finally passed reads as follows
A. SUPPLEMENT to the act of March nineteen, one thousand eight hundred and sixty, making further provision for the government of the city of Harrisburg.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted, &c. That the city of Harrisburg shall have a select council, consisting of seven members, who shall be elected as hereinafter provided, and who shall be owners of real estate of the city, and inhabitants of the wards from which they shall be respectively elected, and qualified to serve as members of the Senate of this Commonwealth.

Sec. 3. That the said select councilmen elect shall meet at the county court house in said city, until otherwise provided for, between the hours of the ten and twelve o'clock in the afternoon, on the Friday next, following each and every election of select councilmen to be held in pursuance of the provisions of this act, and shall then and there proceed as provided in sections five, six and seven of the act of March 19, 1860, that the power of the said corporation of the said city shall be vested in the select council, the common council, or a quorum thereof, and the mayor and the select and common council respectively assembled shall have all and singular the powers and authorities, rights and privileges incident to the corporation and to the well governing thereof, which were formerly vested in the common council by the act of March 19, 1860.

It shall be the duty of all of said police officers and city constables appointed, as aforesaid, to make returns to the court of quarter sessions of Dauphin county in the same manner, and at the same time now required of the ward and township constables.

Sec. 7. That a full and correct report of the doings of the select and common council shall be published within three days after they occur in at least two English daily newspapers having the largest circulation, and no ordinance, public account, proclamation, or other matter, now required to be published, shall be legal and of binding effect until the same has been published three times in at least two English daily papers having the largest circulation.

Sec. 8. That the fees to be received by the mayor and aldermen of the city of Harrisburg, where the same has to be paid by the county of Dauphin, shall be as follows: Information on behalf of the Commonwealth, for every ten words, 2 cents; docket entry on behalf of the Commonwealth, 10 cents; warrants or witness on behalf of the Commonwealth, 25 cents; taking a recognizance and returning the same to court, 25 cents; entering judgment on conviction for fine, 15 cents; and the same for fine or forfeiture, 25 cents; discharge of a jailor, 15 cents; conveying any person for drunkenness, disorderly conduct or as a vagrant, 25 cents. Where the costs have to be paid by the parties, or either of them, the fees shall not be altered by this act; they shall remain as heretofore, and this act shall only apply to the execution of process or the arrest of parties within the city limits.

Sec. 9. All provisions in the act of March 10th, 1860, inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

REASONS FOR VOTE.

Mr. COLVILLE presented the following, which he desired to have entered upon the Journal, viz:

My reasons for voting against the bill under consideration are as follows:

It has always been the boast and pride of the Republican party that they never discriminate against any man on account of his means, whereas in this case you deprive every man who is not a propertyholder, it matters not how well qualified he may be for the position. If this is not discriminating against the man of limited means with a vengeance, then I am not aware of what constitutes discriminating; therefore I cannot act with my Republican friends on this bill for the reasons set forth.

R. A. COLVILLE.
 Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to read a bill in place.

Granted.
 Mr. HOOD. I read in my place and presented to the Chair an act with reference to the prohibiting of the running of steam engines south of Lehigh avenue, after the 1st day of November, 1867.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, that is not a bill in place; that is a report from a special committee; it must go through the order the same as any bill reported from committee.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I move it be referred to the Committee on Railroads.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I think this House will stultify itself by such action. This committee was appointed for a special purpose; they have been meeting for several weeks, and have reported this bill unanimously.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I inquire for information. This being a report from a committee, the same as any other report, how does it come in order when we have refused to suspend the orders?

THE SPEAKER. The Chair put the question to the House, understanding that the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. Hood] had a bill to read in place.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I understood after bills were read in place then came reports from committees.

THE SPEAKER. Reports from committees came first; they were called for this evening.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, how is the present motion in order?

THE SPEAKER. The motion was made by the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. Gregory] to refer the bill to the Committee on Railroads.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I raise the point of order that he was not competent to make the motion without having first obtained leave.

Mr. GREGORY. Under the decision of the Chair it was a general suspension of the rules, for how else could a report be received? The understanding was that bills should be read in place. If it had been reported as a bill from a committee, I should have objected to it, but it came in the nature of a bill in place—that was the understanding.

Mr. DAVIS. The gentleman read it as a bill in place.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, reports from committees were in order to-night and the committee had a right to report, but not making that report in order, it could not afterwards report without leave of the House.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I asked if it would not require the unanimous consent of the House to open the regular order agenda. Reports from committees had been gone through with. I raise the point of order that it would require the unanimous consent of the House to admit this report at the present time.

Mr. SPEAKER. The Chair would repeat, when the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. Hood] rose in his place, the Chair regarded him as making a motion to read a bill in place.

Mr. MANN. He asked leave to make a report.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is mistaken. The gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. Hood], asked leave to read a bill in place.

THE SPEAKER. No objections were made at the time.

Mr. SATTERTHWAIT. Mr. Speaker, the House understood the matter as the Chair did, else objections would have been made.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Philadelphia [Mr. GREGORY], that the bill be referred to the Committee on Railroads.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, this bill was referred to a committee, considered by them and unanimously reported upon. It is now pending before this House. If my colleague wishes to oppose it, let him do so on this floor, and give his reasons therefor. I take exception to this manner of proceeding. A committee is appointed for the special purpose of considering a bill. The moment that committee makes a report, some gentleman gets up and moves to refer it to another committee. It is patent to every man on this floor that this is done for the purpose of killing the bill. It can be for no other purpose. The gentleman has not seen the bill, has not read a word of it. This committee having devoted time and labor and personal attention to this matter, I can do no better by this bill should be referred to a committee that has paid no attention to it. I trust the House will not stultify itself in this manner.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman tells me when the bill comes up on its merits, then I can improve the opportunity to give my reasons for opposing it. At the same time he tells me my reasons are the defeat of the bill. I am the best judge of what my reasons are. Let the gentleman attend to this reasons and I will attend to mine. When this was offered I thought it much better to frame a general bill, and raising it by bills by piece-meal, first for the Trenton road, then for the Norristown road, then for the Pennsylvania road, and then for the Baltimore road.

Mr. SUBERS. Mr. Speaker, I hope the bill will be referred to a committee; it is not particular to me what committee, so long as this corporation will have a chance to be heard from. It interferes with my district more than any other in the city.

In the case of the New York railroad company, they published for two weeks that such a bill was to be drawn and presented to the House. In the case of the Norristown railroad company no notice has been given.

I do hope it will go to a committee.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I do not know much about the merits of this question, but I am anxious that this House should pay some regard to the action of its own committees. We are discussing a motion which is out of order now.

There is something about this matter that is not upon the surface. I think the House should refuse to refer this resolution to another committee. We have had half a dozen of these special committees appointed this winter. Are all their reports to go for nothing, or to be referred to other committees?

I thought from the beginning that we were appointing more of these special committees than there was any use for, and now we are going to say so by paying regard to no reports which they make. A committee of intelligent gentlemen was appointed for the special purpose of examining into the question. They have made a report. No member knows what the report is except those who made it. I submit there is no good reason why this motion should carry.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I wish to understand this question. I have no feeling on the subject whether it be referred to the Railroad Committee, the Committee on Ways and Means, or any other, but if I understood the object of that committee, it was to inquire into and examine concerning all railroads that run their locomotives through the paved streets of Philadelphia.

Now, I know there is one railroad that runs more than a mile through my district, and kills somebody every week, that is the great est nuisance in the whole city of Philadelphia. There is in the whole State of Pennsylvania no such nuisance as the Reading railroad, that runs through my district; and yet this committee, getting up bills for little railroads that I never heard of, are completely blind to this monster corporation that cares nothing for the rights of the people, nor for the property over and through it passes. I desire to ask the chairman of that committee, if they are going to report a bill prohibiting the Reading company from running their cars more than a mile through the richest parts of the city?

Mr. SUBERS. I would like to state, for the information of the House, that this road has two branches, one in Germantown, which is about two miles distant, the other runs about the same distance. If you drive this road from its present limits you might as well revoke its charter. On this road nine-tenths of the people are in favor of it. It is a short road. I hope the House will allow the bill to go before a committee.

Mr. HOOD. Mr. Speaker, I do not intend to become excited on this bill, nor do I intend to cast any reflections upon the opposition to this question.

I have simply this to say: that this committee has, week after week, met in Philadelphia, and has taken a large amount of testimony, and ten times as much testimony against this road as any other road in the city of Philadelphia.

They have brought an innumerable number of witnesses against the road and as great a number in favor of it. We have come to the conclusion to report these roads and feel the pulse of our Philadelphia friends on the subject.

With regard to the Philadelphia railroad company it is more than half a foreign corporation. They have made no defense whatever.

There has been a large number of petitions sent to us, asking to have it removed north of Lehigh avenue. We have reported accordingly.

The Norristown railroad company, of which my friend from Philadelphia speaks, runs sixty-two passenger trains daily; the Reading railroad company runs, perhaps, eight or ten. In this matter, I have no object; I wish every one to have an opportunity to think and act for the interest of the constituency he represents.

By request of Mr. WORRALL, House bill No. 507, an act to authorize the board of military claims to settle the claim of F. B. Nelson, first lieutenant battery A, third artillery, was recommitted to the Military Committee.

Mr. COLVILLE. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn.

The motion was seconded and the question put.

Before announcing the result, the Speaker cleared his table as follows:

That bill passed both Houses, was sent to the Governor, but the Attorney General, Mr. Meredith, had objections to it, and I recalled it, for the purpose of having it amended to conform to his ideas. As the bill has been lost, I desire to pass it over again. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill.

The motion was agreed to.

The bill was read a second and third times, and

Passed finally.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. LANDON offered the following resolution, which was twice read:

Resolved, That the Committee on Pensions and Gratuities be and hereby are instructed to examine into the propriety of amending or repealing an act passed in 1866, entitled An act to provide for the payment of annuities and gratuities to the soldiers of 1812, and to report on or before Tuesday next, by bill or otherwise.

Mr. LANDON, Mr. Speaker, a desire to say a word in explanation of that resolution. We are all disposed to afford every possible relief and benefaction to the really meritorious soldier, but no one is willing that any undeserving person should receive benefactions under false assumption or disguise. In times past, it was the custom for individual soldiers of the war of 1812 to make application to the Legislature for relief, and individual acts were passed, from time to time, granting an annuity or gratuity. Last year, to avoid the necessity of these acts, a general act was passed, granting a gratuity of forty dollars to the meritorious soldiers of 1812, and also an annuity of forty dollars, to run during their lifetime. This bill was carefully drawn and guarded; but, carefully as it was drawn and guarded, either through misrepresentation, deception, perjury, or all combined, the list of recipients now amounts to three thousand five hundred, and that list is increasing every day, and it will take one hundred and forty thousand dollars this year to pay the annuities, with a very fine prospect that it will take two hundred thousand dollars. Now, sir, no man who voted for the act of 1866 dreamed of such a thing, that the number would reach three thousand five hundred, and be constantly expanding, and that we should be called upon to pay one hundred and forty thousand dollars this year. Hence, I have drawn up a resolution, instructing the Committee on Pensions and Gratuites to consider the matter, and either amend the act, as they see fit, or report in favor of its repeal before next Tuesday.

The resolution was adopted.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled A supplement to an act entitled An act relating to the payment of bounties to veteran volunteers, approved May first, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six.

The supplement reads as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the place of residence named on the mustering-in roll shall be considered the place of credit in the said veteran volunteer, and conclusive evidence of the fact, and of sufficient authority to the officers provided for in said act to levy and raise the tax, except in cases where the said veteran volunteer has been especially credited to some other locality.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, when this bill was up for consideration the other day, the Military Committee was called upon for some information in the matter. My attention having been called to the matter, I examined it quite carefully. This is a supplement to the act approved on the first day of May, 1866, relating to the payment of bounties to veteran volunteers. I do not think the supplement is necessary. I observe in the second section of that act the following provision:

"Transcripts from the records in the Auditor General's office of this State, certified to by the Adjutant General, as well as general orders from the War Department, shall be received in evidence; and the place of residence named in the enlistment and muster rolls, shall, in the absence of other evidence, be considered the place of credit."

Thus, you will observe, Mr. Speaker, that this section makes the place mentioned in the enlistment and muster-in rolls prima facie the place of credit; and if that is the place of credit, of course that is an end to the matter. The supplement in view provides that the entry upon the muster-roll shall be conclusive evidence. I do not think that rule should be adopted, hence I trust this supplement will not pass, and that the act will be left as it is.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, I think this supplement may be very useful in some localities to meet special cases, but that it should be confined to them. I think it wrong to change the provisions of the general law. There are cases in which, perhaps, it would be just and proper that the rule contemplated by this supplement should be administered; but when we attempt to change the general rule, I think we are attempting to do that which should receive a little more consideration and investigation before we make any alteration. I think this bill should lie over, and be amended to suit special cases.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, in view of what the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] has said, I move that the further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

The motion was

Agreed to.

Agreeably to order, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled A joint resolution to pay the expenses of the inauguration of Governor Geary.

The bill was read a third time, and

Passed finally.

Agreeably to order, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled

An act relating to the jurisdiction of courts in proceedings by bills for injunctions, and other relief in equity, and the service of process.

The first and only section was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same. That all bills for injunctions, and other relief in equity, shall be filed and applied for in the courts of the county where the subject matter in controversy may exist; and should there be no one in said county on whom the service of a writ, regularly issued, can be made, according to existing laws, the same may be served on the proper person, in any other county of the State, by the sheriff or other officer to whom the writ is directed, or by his deputy; and if there should be no person within the State, the court, if in session, or a judge thereof, in vacation, may order and direct publication of notice, in such manner as may best serve to bring home notice to the respondent or respondents, and the sheriff or other officer shall make return thereof, under oath, and so much of any law or laws of this State, as is hereby altered or modified, is hereby repealed.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, I raised some objections to the bill when it was up before, which I feel somewhat like insisting upon. It restricts the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in equity. A corporation that has its office and principal place of business in one county, cannot go to the Supreme Court sitting in any other district and seek for an injunction there. Its application must be made to the judge of the court in which it is located. It seems me bad policy to restrict the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in such cases.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I do not propose to discuss this bill, but I hope it will pass. My reasons for that hope are obvious. In the legislation of 1844 this change was made in the law, and this just places the jurisdiction in equity cases where it is in cases at common law. It requires the proceedings originating in the county in which the cause of action arises to go by appeal to the Supreme Court.

I think it is precisely right, and I hope the bill will pass. I can conceive of no reason why the jurisdiction of originating proceedings should not be the same as in cases at common law.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WALLACE and Mr. M'CONAUGHY, and were as follows, viz:

Yeas—Messrs. Billingsfelt, Browne (Lawrence), Cowles, Fisher, Graham, Haines, Landon, Lowry, M'Conaughy, Royer, Stutzman, Taylor, White, Worthington and Hall, Speaker—16.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigham, Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Glatz, Jackson, James, M'Candless, Randall, Ridgway, Schall, Wallace and Walls—18.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

So the bill

Passed finally.

Agreeably to order, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled A supplement to an act incorporating the Cresheim turpentine and bidge company, approved the sixteenth day of March, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six.

The bill was read a third time, and

Agreeably to order, the Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of a bill entitled An act relating to fish and game in the county of Lawrence.

Mr. BROWNE (Lawrence) moved that the further consideration of the bill be postponed for the present.

The motion was

Agreed to.

Agreeably to order, the Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of a bill entitled An act to incorporate the Wilkesbarre transportation company.

Mr. RANDALL moved to postpone the further consideration of the bill for the present.

The motion was

Agreed to.

PAUPERISM AND CRIME.

On motion of Mr. WALLACE, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled An act to increase the duties of the Citizens' association of Pennsylvania.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, the general purpose of this bill is to increase the duties of an association of benevolent gentlemen, who seek to enter into a field which is a very wide one in our Commonwealth. We have no statistics on the subject of pauperism and crime, and these gentlemen propose through the association, to furnish it. This bill makes no appropriation of money; it is a commendable object, and it seems to me we should pass it, and allow them to enter into this field.

The bill was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the Citizens' association of Pennsylvania shall make an annual report to the Legislature, on the dependent, depraved and criminal population of the Commonwealth, and on all matters relating to the causes of and remedies for pauperism, vagrancy and crime; and for this purpose said association is hereby empowered to visit and examine into all organizations and institutions which have charge, either in whole or in part, of said population, provided said organizations and institutions are maintained or assisted by the Commonwealth, or by the counties, townships or municipalities thereof.

SEC. 2. The committee of any habitual drunkard, duly found to be such by inquiry, according to the act of Assembly relating to lunatics and habitual drunkards, approved June 18, 1836, may make application in writing to the president of the Citizens' association for the admission of said habitual drunkards to the custody of said association, and upon the receipt of such application by the president aforesaid, he shall make inquiry into the history and nature of the case, and if he be of opinion that the person in whose behalf the application is made, is a proper subject for admission, his certificate of approval, together with the application, may be submitted to the court of the county where the committee of said habitual drunkard may reside, either in open court or to the president judge, or at chambers; and if, in the judgment of the court, the said habitual drunkard shall be deemed a proper subject for treatment, with a view to his reformation, the said court is hereby empowered to commit him to the custody of the Citizens' association of Pennsylvania for a term of not less than nine months or more than two years: Provided, That the relations, by blood or marriage, of said habitual drunkard, shall have access to him at all times, subject to the rules and regulations of said association: And provided further, That said habitual drunkard may be released by the court making the commitment, before the expiration of said term, if after a full hearing, the said court shall deem his release advisable: And provided further, That nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prevent the Citizens' association from receiving into their custody any person, upon his own application, without due process of law.

The bill was read a third time, and

Passed finally.

ASSOCIATE LAW JUDGE FOR THE TWENTY-FIRST DISTRICT.

On motion of Mr. RANDALL, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled,

An act to provide an associate law judge of the several courts in the Twenty-first Judicial district.

The first and only section was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the qualified electors of the Twenty-first Judicial district shall, at the next general election, in the manner prescribed by law for the election of the president judge, elect one person, learned in the law, to serve as an associate law judge of the several courts in said district; the said associate law judge shall possess the same qualifications which are required by the Constitution and laws for president judge, and shall be commissioned by the Governor, and shall hold his office by the same tenure as other judges of courts of record, required to be learned in the law; the said associate law judge shall have the same power, authority and jurisdiction, and be subject to the same duties, provisions and penalties, as the president judge, and shall receive the same compensation for his services as the president judge of said district is now entitled by law to receive.

Mr. RANDALL. Mr. Speaker, the reasons why there should be an additional law judge are these:

The common pleas of Schuylkill county, in the years 1864, 1865 and 1864, was occupied principally in trying causes that were commenced several years before. Many of the causes tried in these three years were begun in 1855, 1856 and 1858, and some of them as early as 1849. These old suits are chiefly ejectments. To try one of them generally occupies a week, and some of them take ten days. Causes are placed on the lists according to the date of their commencement. From the accumulated business on the dockets, it is almost impossible to get a cause tried sooner than two or three years after the time of entering it.

In 1866 there was but one suit tried in the common pleas that was begun in that year, and that, for special reason, was ordered at the head of the list.

In 1866 there were but two suits that were begun in 1865, and one of these, too, for special reason, was ordered by the court at the head of the list.

In 1866 there were but three suits tried that were begun in 1864.

In the year 1865, there was not a single cause tried that was begun within that year.

In 1865 there was not one suit tried that was commenced in 1864.

In 1865 there were eight suits tried which were begun in 1863.

In 1864 there was only one suit tried that was begun in that year.

In 1864 there were but seven suits tried that were begun in the year 1863, and two of these, for special reasons, were placed at the head of the lists.

In 1864 there were but three cases tried that were begun in 1862.

By the 22d section of the act of 1806, Pamphlet Laws 343, it will be seen that it is intended by the Legislature that the suitors in the courts of common pleas shall have fair opportunity to have their causes tried at longest within a year after the time their suits are commenced.

The equity business of the court is large. From the varied and valuable interests involved in mining the coal, disputes of great importance are raised. Applications for injunctions are frequent, and from their nature demand the immediate action of the court. Much time of the court is taken up with this important branch of its duties.

The courts of oyer and terminer and quarter sessions claim a great portion of the time of the court. In the year 1866 there were over eight hundred returns of criminal prosecutions from the justices of the peace made to the district attorney. The court, in the trial of these prosecutions, was occupied ten weeks in that year; and criminal business to employ the court more three weeks was continued into 1867. The business of 1866 in the criminal court was in excess of former years. But that it will always be large in a county where the population is so dense, and composed of so many different nationalities, there can be no doubt. In the district, from the increasing population, and its inevitable commercial growth, there is no future period at which it can be estimated that the business of the courts can be less than it is at present.

By the census of 1860 it appears that the value of the manufactures of Schuylkill county exceeded that of any other county in the State, except Philadelphia and Allegheny, and that the value of the manufactures of the Twenty-first Judicial district (Schuylkill) exceeded that of any other Judicial district in the State, except the first, fifth and fifteenth; the first being Philadelphia, the fifth Allegheny, and the fifteenth Delaware and Chester. The business of Delaware and Chester, it will not be denied, occasions less litigation than the business of the people of Schuylkill county. A great portion of the people of Delaware and Chester are engaged in agricultural pursuits, and in Schuylkill in the mining and shipping of coal. The people of Delaware and Chester are stand and settled; those of Schuylkill, while ever increasing in number, are fluctuating and unsettled. The estimated value of the manufactures in 1860, in Schuylkill county, has since that period nearly doubled. The value of the manufactures of Schuylkill will, in 1866, reach seventeen millions of dollars.

The average number of suits entered on the appearance dockets in the common pleas, during the last ten years, is annually twenty-four hundred and forty-one (2,441). Many of these are merely the entry of judgments on bonds and notes, while others are of trifling importance. But a great portion of them involve large sums of money, and others call in question the title to the most valuable tracts of land in the country. The fact that the court is, for the last few years, largely engaged in the trial of causes brought over six and seven and eight years ago, demonstrates that the present accumulated business of the courts is not a sudden increase that the future might diminish.

No reflection can be made on the present judges of the court, for it is known to all the lawyers and the public, that the efforts of the court that the judges are untiring in their efforts to dispose of the arrearages, sitting almost every week in the year for the hearing of causes of one kind or another.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I do not desire to go into general discussion upon this subject, but I desire to ask of the Speaker in the chair if it was not unanimously agreed in the General Judiciary Committee, that they would negative all bills proposing additional law judges.

Mr. W. LACE (Speaker pro tempore). In answer to the Senator, I have to say that that was the general policy agreed upon, yet it reserved for the Senate the question whether there was an actual necessity for an additional law judge.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to give a reason why I shall not vote for this bill. In half a dozen districts similar cases exist; cases where judges may be old or slow, and where it is desired to get rid of them by creating an additional law judge. If that policy is to be adopted, it ought to be adopted in all districts. The judgment of the General Judiciary Committee was that it was not a good policy; and that the same course should be adopted in regard to all districts that apply. For that reason this bill, with others, was reported negatively. I do not think it should prevail. If it does, there will be inequality, and it will be against the general policy adopted; and I think, if it is extended to this district, it should be extended all the others, which cannot be done at this time.

Mr. RANDALL. Mr. Speaker, I think the reasons given by the Senator from Adams [Mr. M'CONAUGHY], against the passage of this bill, are the weakest that I have heard given in the Senate in regard to any subject. After the statement I have made, I cannot see how any one can doubt the necessity for an additional law judge in this district.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. I know nothing of the necessity arising there; we have not had the facts before us, as a committee, to judge.

Mr. RANDALL. Mr. Speaker, there is a petition certified by the prothonotary and district attorney, in relation to getting rid of an old judge. I would state that the judge in this district is a young man, and the business is expedited as well as in any other district. The court has been in session without intermission for the last eight weeks, with the probability of remaining in session longer. The number of civil suits annually for the last ten years have averaged over two thousand four hundred, and I think the business of the district is equal to that of Allegheny, which has four law judges. I see no reason why this bill should not pass, and I trust it will pass.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am sorry to meddle with legislation that does not concern my district, but I have been solicited so earnestly, in that county, to oppose the passage of this bill, that I feel it my duty to do so. From the information I can get from that county, I have come to the conclusion that the remedy there is to have a judge capable of doing business.

Mr. RAY. Does the gentleman mean to vote upon the present judge?

Mr. COLEMAN. I do, sir.

Mr. RANDALL. It is very remarkable; the gentleman's party in the district think him capable.

Mr. COLEMAN. I think he is utterly incompetent to go through the business, as a presiding judge. I am informed by parties there who are competent to know, that if they had a judge who was like many others in the State, there would be no such accumulation of business as there is there, and the likelihood is that they would not elect one who would get through with the business any more rapidly. I have here a petition, presented to the House of Representatives, signed by a number of lawyers of the county of Schuylkill, which I ask the Clerk to read.

The petition was read as follows:
To the Honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in General Assembly met: The petition of the undersigned, Republican members of the bar of Schuylkill county, respectfully represents:

That they have recently learned that a petition has been presented to your honorable bodies, praying for an additional law judge of the courts of Schuylkill county, and that a bill for that purpose has been presented to the Senate.

Your petitioners further represent that the effort to procure such an act has been made without consultation with the Republican members of the bar of said county; that the subject has not been in any manner brought before the people of the county who are vitally interested in the measure, in order to obtain their views as to the best plan to be adopted; that while we agree with those who propose the election of an additional law judge, that our courts are insufficient and inadequate to hear and determine the large amount of legal business brought before them, and which is constantly increasing, yet your petitioners are of opinion that the organization of a district court, either for Schuylkill county alone or in connection with one or more adjoining counties, would be preferable and better adapted to dispose of the numerous cases on the dockets.

Your petitioners would further represent that various plans and measures have been suggested, but the time has been too brief to develop and mature any measure to effect the desired end.

Your petitioners further represent that the subject is one of great importance to the people of said county, who ought to be informed of the proposed act. They, therefore, pray and protest against hasty action on the part of your honorable bodies, and that the subject be delayed until some plan may be devised and agreed on which will accomplish the object proposed, and be satisfactory to the members of the bar as well also to the people.

Signed by John Eannan and thirteen others.

Mr. RANDALL. Mr. Roseberry's signature asking for the appointment of a judge, is signed to a petition asking for the passage of this bill.

Mr. COLEMAN. There is no question as to many of the facts presented in that petition. That there is an accumulation of business there seems to be conceded. But how shall we remedy the thing, without removing the present judge. I do not see. If the Senator from Schuylkill [Mr. RANDALL] will promise that the present judge will resign, so that one competent can be appointed, I will not object. I believe he is competent in cases where there is no political aspect. But, from my information, he is not a man to get through with the business, and will sit for a week upon a case that a competent judge would decide in half a day. He allows business to accumulate there, and I hope the Senate will reject this bill, and let the legal gentlemen of the county agree to some plan which will give them relief.

Mr. RANDALL. Mr. Speaker, I would state that the present judge was the unanimous choice of the people in that county at the time of his nomination, and the people seem to be perfectly satisfied with him.

Mr. COLEMAN. I suppose they had the choice of evils; they took him because he was better than some others.

Mr. RANDALL. Mr. Speaker, if this thing is to be turned into a purely political question, as the Senator from Lebanon [Mr. COLEMAN] is endeavoring to make it, there is no use in trying to get justice in the district. It is impossible to elect a judge of opposite politics there, and the necessity for this judge is acknowledged by every one. One of the signers of the petition presented by the Senator from Lebanon told me that he knew that the bill ought to pass, but they forced him to sign a petition against it as a political question.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, I do not like to interfere in matters of this kind, and I do not get up to say anything about Judge Ryan. I know him, and do not regard him as the ablest lawyer in Pennsylvania, by any means; but the people of Schuylkill have selected him as their judge and that is a question for themselves, and I have nothing to say about it. If this was a party question I suppose the party lines would be drawn upon me, and I should vote with my party. But when it comes to adjudicating a question in a judicial district, I lay party aside. I think party should have nothing to do with the judiciary of the country or the jury box. That there is a necessity for an additional law judge in that county, I have no doubt. I know that the courts in that county have about as much business as any in the State—with the exception, perhaps, of Allegheny.

In looking over the business of the regular courts for the present year, I find they were in session for thirty-four weeks, besides the adjourned courts. Is it reasonable to suppose that the presiding judge of any district is willing to sit for thirty-four weeks in the year, including the adjourned courts as business at his chambers? I know that the business in Schuylkill county is fully up to ours; hence I think that there is a necessity for an additional law judge. If the present judge is incompetent—but I know nothing about that—so much the more reason why they should have an additional law judge. I think it is but reasonable and right, and I hope that Senators upon this floor will lay aside party, and not soil the judicial ermine with the slime of party.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I do not desire to launch out into the sea of discussion upon this bill. It is a matter affecting the dispensation of justice in this Commonwealth, and I do not think we should take any hasty action. I have listened to the statement of my friend from Lebanon [Mr. COLEMAN], who lives in the adjoining county, and knows something of the affairs there. I have heard the statement of the Senator from Adams [Mr. M'CONAUGHY], from the Judiciary Committee, and I confess that in the conflict which has arisen here as to whether the judge is too small for the business, or the business too large for the judge, I see a necessity for an investigation, and for that purpose I move that the whole subject be recommended to the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. RANDALL. I hope not.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I was surprised and pained, upon coming into the Senate chamber, to hear the Senator from Lebanon [Mr. COLEMAN] casting reflections upon the judge of Schuylkill county, and charging incompetency upon him. I think, from what I know of that gentleman, and from what I have heard from lawyers who are certainly capable of forming a correct opinion on the matter, that the Senator from Lebanon is entirely mistaken in supposing that it is owing to any incompetency of Judge Ryan, that they suffer from incomplete business. He is considered a sound and able lawyer, and a sound, conscientious judge. I am credibly informed that he gave general satisfaction to the bar of Schuylkill county, and whatever may be thought of him by his political opponents, I have not heard anything against him as a judge. I am sorry that the subject has been introduced as it has in this Chamber. I do not think anybody here intends to do him injustice, and I am satisfied, from what I have heard from men of the highest character, that the remarks made by the Senator from Lebanon [Mr. COLEMAN], I have no doubt unintentionally do him gross injustice.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I did not intend to say anything personal in regard to Judge Ryan. He may be a very good lawyer. But it is a talent to get rid of business in a rapid manner, and, according to my information, that is a talent which he lacks—that he is not able to expedite business. I do not say anything about his soundness.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I am glad to hear the explanation made by the Senator from Lebanon. I feel satisfied that he did not wish to cast anything upon Judge Ryan. In regard to the peculiar talent of expediting business, it is very well when a judge possesses that talent; but, in looking for that talent, we must not lose sight of more important qualities in the long run. A judge should be a sound lawyer; and if, in addition to that, he can expedite business, that is a benefit to him and not to the people of the county. But, because an honest, conscientious judge is not able to get through a certain amount of business as rapidly as other men, it is no reason why he should not be entitled to the same relief which the people of other counties have from time to time received in this matter at the hands of the Legislature. Now, in regard to Judge Ryan's inability to expedite business, I believe he has tried cases as quick as those who are ranked as the best judges in Pennsylvania. And, I think, as the bar of that county wish to be relieved, that we should pass this bill, and I hope that it will not be recommitted.

Mr. LOWRY. Mr. Speaker, there has scarcely been a subject before the Senate that I have listened to with more interest than to this discussion. I have done so because I do not know how to vote upon this question. There is in Schuylkill county a fearful state of things, not only in the courts, but in society.

Mr. RANDALL. Is the gentleman speaking from experience?

Mr. LOWRY. No, sir; from information. I believe that the people there need and require relief. Whether this bill would give them that relief, or not, I am not sure. I trust, sir, that the bill will be recommitted to the committee, and that they will give the subject that consideration which its importance demands.

It may be that they will conclude to change the bill, and give to the Executive of the Commonwealth the authority to appoint an additional law judge for a given period. This has not been suggested to me, but I make the suggestion myself. The lawlessness, disorder, drunkenness and debauchery that exist there require it.

Mr. BURNETT asked if such an appointment would be constitutional.

Mr. LOWRY. I am not a constitutional lawyer. I desire a remedy for the evils in that county, and I appeal to public men to do something for the protection of the people there, and of their legal rights. This may be an exaggeration. I believe it, however; and, believing it, I have not known how to vote on this question, and I trust the subject will go back to the committee, and that they will give it a full examination, so that we can vote with our eyes open.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, as a member of the Judiciary Committee, I will say that, in our action upon this bill, we were governed by a general principle. There appears to be a practice growing up in the State by which it is considered right and just and proper to pension a judge, when he becomes incompetent or unable to perform his duties. I am opposed to the adoption of such a practice. I will not agree that, in a country like this, we should pension our judges. With a distinct understanding on this subject, we agreed to negative every bill of this kind, and send them back for the Senate to decide whether there is a necessity for an additional law judge in that special case. We do not wish to be put in the position of deciding the question. There are two or three cases where we have pensioned upon the Commonwealth men who have become unable to perform their duties. In places of their resigning, or being turned out of office, they are pensioned on the Commonwealth. But, sir, when there comes before the Senate a case in which the wants and necessities of the community in which a judge presides are so great that he cannot perform the duties of his situation; when he is a young man, as in this case—an active young lawyer—who has the countenance of a majority of the members of the bar, against whom no man has a word to say, except as to his ability to drive the business rapidly, it seems to me the question to decide is, does the condition of the business there require an additional law judge? If it does, we should grant it. If the judges are not sufficient there, let us give them an additional law judge.

But look at the population of this county. In Allegheny county, with a population of one hundred and eighty thousand, they have four law judges; and Schuylkill county, with a population of ninety thousand, has but one law judge. The cities of Pittsburg and Allegheny are, perhaps, entitled to two additional law judges. But the county of Lancaster, with a population of one hundred and sixteen thousand, has two law judges, with no large mining or manufacturing districts in the county and almost entirely agricultural in its character. In the district represented by the Senator from Erie [Mr. LOWRY] they have two law judges with a population of one hundred and eighteen thousand. Investigate these figures and facts, and consider the business of Schuylkill county, and then look at the statements that the officers thereof have given to us. In the past five years there have been but nine civil cases tried in the county of Schuylkill.

The SPEAKER asked how many weeks the courts were in session in Schuylkill county.

Mr. WALLACE. We did not investigate that question at all; but we attempted to lay down a general rule and to negative all bills of this character.

The SPEAKER asked if it was necessary to have this changed in order to get cases tried there.

Mr. WALLACE. Precisely; and I am willing to vote for an additional law judge, because their business cannot be transacted without. The documents read here demonstrate clearly that the business cannot be carried on there. With questions of title that involve a research of the records for years back, it is very different from those coming up in common courts. Cases of ejectment cannot be tried in Allegheny. Many judges may have more in than Judge Ryan, but, as a rule, there are very few judges that can accomplish their business more efficiently than he does. This class of cases requires examination. The principal reason why I shall support this is, that it is a different case from those that the committee concluded to throw out. Judge Ryan cannot do the business there, or any other judge, and perform his duties as a judge. There should be, therefore, an additional law judge created.

The SPEAKER asked the Senator from Schuylkill to state how many weeks of court there are last year.

Mr. RANDALL. There were thirty-five weeks of court, at all events.

The SPEAKER. I cannot see how a man is to understand whether there is a necessity for this or not.

Mr. RANDALL. Last year there were thirty-five weeks of court.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I think the whole of this discussion has proved one thing, and that is, that we are not prepared to vote to-day upon this subject. The Judiciary Committee have informed us that they have not examined the subject at all. On the broad principle of refusing to pension judges on the Commonwealth, they have negatived this class of bills. Thinking that this thing would not be pushed, they have not given it sufficient attention. Now, I ask that the Senate refer this bill back to the Judiciary Committee; let them invite the members of the bar, and the citizens of Schuylkill county, and let them hear the argument on both sides. The petition which I presented this morning acknowledges that relief is required; and the committee hear both sides, and then decide whether the bill will give the required relief, or whether some other mode of relief is required.

Mr. M'CANDESS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know by what method this can be reached, suppose we do recommit this bill. Certainly no other method than the one proposed would give them an additional judge. It is granted, upon all hands, that there is a necessity for an additional power in the county. The argument of the Senator from Erie [Mr. LOWRY] would strengthen that. I think the committee should have additional power there to try those who break the law, and it is conceded that there is a necessity for an additional law judge in the district. Now, the petition presented by the Senator from Lebanon [Mr. COLEMAN] is a purely political one, headed by a statement from the Republican members of the bar of that county. Now, sir, it is to be very much deprecated that any question of that kind should be raised in a matter of this nature; and I think, sir, that the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] has clearly stated the diverse interests there, and the necessity of having those old cases tried.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am no lawyer, and do not know the difference between these courts; but these gentlemen say there are no other means of relief. Perhaps the organization of a district court would be preferable; there are different plans. I ask that they have a hearing before the Judiciary Committee. I am not competent to represent them here, because I do not know the difference between these courts.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Mr. Speaker, I state that I was not prepared for this bill. I have desired to keep my mind unprejudiced on its merits. I am not prepared, and I do not think the members of this Senate are prepared, to vote intelligently on this question. I differ somewhat with the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] as to the action of the Judiciary Committee. The proposition was to negative all those that came before that committee, so as to get rid of superannuated judges. But it was never contemplated that this should be sprung upon the Senate without a proper understanding; and as it is alleged that this case has real merit, let it go before the committee and be investigated. There are some singular things connected with it. I understand the Senator from Schuylkill [Mr. RANDALL] to state on this floor that the usual period for holding courts in that district is thirty-five weeks a year. I understand the Senator from Clearfield [Mr. WALLACE] to assert that in 1866 but nine civil cases were tried; and I understand Senators to assert that the judge is a competent judge. I cannot conceive how, with the courts open for thirty-five weeks, they could not try two civil cases in a year.

Mr. RANDALL. I would state to the Senator that one case tried there occupied two weeks.

Mr. M'CONAUGHY. I have no doubt there may be exceptional cases. Was that a civil case?

Mr. RANDALL. Yes, sir.
Mr. M'CONAUGHY. Then there is more time for civil cases than that. I find here one case occupying two weeks. I had supposed there was no time for civil cases. I repeat, if there is real merit in this case, and it calls for an additional judge, let that fact appear; do not let it be precipitated; do not let it be passed through hastily and without a careful consideration of the matter. Something has been said on the other side of the Chamber about political feeling. Now, sir, I should have to shut my eyes in order to say that there was no political sympathy in this question, and a manifest operation of political considerations. I think that should have no effect, for the bill or against it, but I desire that it should be investigated. If it be a claim of merit, I shall vote for it cheerfully.

Mr. RANDALL. Mr. Speaker, every Senator knows that if the motion of the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE], to refer back to the committee, is carried, the bill is defeated.

Mr. BIGHAM. The document read here is not an official paper; it has never come before the committee; we had only the bill in this case.

Mr. RANDALL. The papers in the case were offered to the chairman of the General Judiciary Committee; he said they intended to report negatively all these bills, and that I had better bring them up before the Senate.

Mr. BIGHAM. Until this morning I have never seen these papers. They certainly were not before the Judiciary Committee; we did not act upon them; our action was solely upon the bill, and if it is designed that the committee should investigate these facts, then we should have them.

Mr. COLEMAN. I did not receive the petition which has been read until some time after the bill had been negatived because the petitioners supposed, after a negative report, that the bill was dead; but, finding the Senator from Schuylkill was pressing it, they forwarded that petition, and I thought I ought to keep it until the subject was brought before the Senate.

Mr. RANDALL. The Senator took good care to notify them that it would be called up. If the bill goes back to the committee, there will be no more trouble with it.

Mr. FISHER. Mr. Speaker, it strikes me the Judiciary Committee have a very light way of doing business. They do not act upon bills according to their merits.—They take them up by the wholesale, and report or negative them all. There may be districts in which they ought, or ought not to have, additional law judges. The committee ought not to be governed by any particular rule in the matter, but examine the different cases. Trust, if this bill does go back, the committee will give it a careful consideration and make a report. I think the bill ought to pass, because, if they have thirty-five weeks of court there, they need an additional judge. We have two law judges in our district, and we have thirty-four weeks of court, besides adjourned courts and business at chambers. Is it reasonable to suppose that any one law judge can sit for thirty-four weeks in the year? I suppose they have as much business there as in my district; the criminal calendar there is much larger than in Lancaster.

Mr. M'CONAUGHEY. I desire to ask the Senator from Lancaster [Mr. FISHER] if for years Judge Lewis did not dispatch all the business of the county and keep it promptly up when on the bench?

Mr. FISHER. He did not, sir. The same state of affairs existed then as now exists in Schuylkill. I thank the Senator for asking the question. As I understand the question, it is not whether they tried two or three cases last year, but two or three cases that originated during the last year. They have been occupied in trying cases that originated in 1866, and away back there.

Mr. BIGHAM. Mr. Speaker, permit me to say that the Judiciary Committee must act on general rules in regard to particular measures. We have not had an opportunity of being enlightened in regard to this case; therefore we have been obliged to act upon the general rule. The appropriation bill will shortly come in, and, from my experience, we shall have considerable debate on this subject of increasing salaries. Our expenses for the last year exceed two hundred and fourteen thousand dollars already, and every additional judge adds something like four thousand dollars.

Mr. RANDALL. Have you all the judges you require in Allegheny county?

Mr. BIGHAM. We are not legislating upon that subject now.

Mr. RANDALL. You have four there, and no more business than we have.

Mr. FISHER. I have known one hundred and fifty cases to be entered for trial in our county, and I have no doubt it is the case in Schuylkill.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer). Mr. Speaker, I am sorry to hear the Senator from Schuylkill [Mr. RANDALL] declare in his place that if this bill is referred back, he will regard it as killed. I am not sufficiently posted upon this bill, but I am willing that it should go back to the committee, but not for the purpose of killing it. I would ask if that is the course intended?

Mr. WHITE. That was not the intention. I heard a conflict of opinion here as to facts. It seems that memorials were presented here that have not been passed upon by the Judiciary Committee. I desire to put all the facts before that committee.

Mr. RANDALL. All the facts have been laid before the Senate now. Nothing additional can go before the committee, and I am willing to rest the case here.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I will merely reply that there has been a very serious allegation made. The Senator from Lebanon [Mr. COLEMAN] has made the remark, upon his responsibility as a Senator, that the facts are in his possession that the presiding judge there is not competent to do his duties. The committee has not passed upon that, and in view of that fact I would like it to go back.

Mr. BROWN (Mercer). Mr. Speaker, I am disposed to give them an additional law judge in Schuylkill county, if one is not sufficient. I do not wish my vote to refer back to be interpreted as the Senator says he will interpret it. I believe the bill should receive attention, and be reported at an early day.

Mr. M'CONAUGHEY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to know from the Senator from Schuylkill his reasons for the assertion which he has made that, if this bill is referred back, it will be killed?

Mr. RANDALL. It is very near the end of the session now, and if it is not passed this week there is no use in trying to pass it.

Mr. M'CONAUGHEY. The chairman of the General Judiciary is absent, and I know there is a disposition on this side to examine this thing. I have no predilections against it.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the Senator from Schuylkill [Mr. RANDALL], who says he should consider this as defeating the bill, my opinion is that we have not had a fair hearing. I consider myself perfectly competent to decide upon this question; and I ask that the members of the bar in Schuylkill county, who protest against this, shall have an opportunity to present their views before the committee. I do not think this would be defeating it.

Mr. RANDALL. Mr. Speaker, when this bill was up three weeks ago, the Senator came to me and pledged his word that if I would withdraw the bill and give him an opportunity to consult with the members of his party in Schuylkill, and they did not provide another bill the next week, he would make no further opposition to the bill. I have allowed three weeks to pass, and no proposition has been made by the Senator from Lebanon providing for an additional judge in that district, and I do not think that his argument, as to want of time, is good.

Mr. RIDGWAY. Mr. Speaker, I do not think this is a question for lawyers alone; it is a question as to whether, there is more business there than one judge can do. I think the lawyers are entitled to this judge, and I shall therefore vote for it, if this bill is postponed there will be no possibility of getting it through.

Mr. LOWRY. I would ask the Senator whether there was not a proposition from certain other judges—from Berks—to hold courts there for a certain number of weeks in the year, so as to relieve them?

Mr. RANDALL. That is for the people to say; I cannot make any pledges.

Mr. LOWRY. There has been a suggestion lower down in that direction.

Mr. RANDALL. That is the first I have heard of.

Mr. LOWRY. That is one reason why I am anxious to have it go to the committee. I do not wish to destroy the gentleman's bill. That county needs relief. Let the subject be referred, and a bill prepared, that certain judges of the Commonwealth who have time to hold courts there, shall do so, and relief comes to them from a pure fountain, and one that would give them great pleasure. I think the Senator from Schuylkill ought to vote for this proposition.

Mr. DAVIS. One word in relation to that proposition. I protest against putting any additional labor upon the judge in my district, and I think the same objection would be made by others.

Mr. LOWRY. I wish you had one of the judges of Erie county in your district; it would be good for them. I know there are judges who could not be objected to, who would have time to hold courts there.

Mr. DAVIS. One word in reply to the Senator. I used to think that persons who can see no good outside of their own party lines were confined to the freshman class in our colleges.

Mr. LOWRY. I would ask the Senator if the judge he named is a Republican or Democrat?

Mr. DAVIS. He is neither a Republican nor a Democrat; he is an honest judge.

Mr. LOWRY. Very well; you can have no objection to his going there.

Mr. DAVIS. He has no time to spare, and I presume that is the case with all the judges.

Mr. BIGHAM. In reference to sending this back to the committee, I will say that last year, the bill to create the Twenty-eighth Judicial district, I think, got out of my hands, as chairman of the Local Judiciary Committee, three days before the final adjournment, and yet it was passed and became a law.

Mr. RANDALL. We must take those chances.

Mr. DONOVAN. Mr. Speaker, I trust that if they are to have another judge in Schuylkill county, that he will not be sent from Erie county. They are the best judges in the State, as they necessarily have to be, in consequence of the desperate character of the people with whom they have to deal.

Mr. BILLINGFELT said, for the reasons given, he thought the bill ought to be re-committed.

On the question, Will the Senate agree to the motion to re-commit the bill?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. RANDALL and Mr. WHITE, and were as follow, viz:

YEAS—Messrs. Bigham, Billingsfelt, Browns (Lawrence), Brown (Mercer), Coleman, Connell, Cowles, Graham, Haines, Landow, Lowry, M'Conaughy, White and Worthington—14.

NAYS—Messrs. Burnett, Davis, Donovan, Fisher, Glatz, Jackson, James, S' Candless, Randall, Ridgway, Royer, Schall, Stutzman, Taylor, Wallace, Walls and Hall, Speaker—17.

So the question was determined in the negative.

During the call,

Mr. BURNETT said he did not desire to take any part in the action upon this bill, and would vote against the motion of the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WHITE].

Also, during the call,

Mr. LANDON said he did not know how he should vote on the bill when it came up on final passage, but it could do no harm for the Judiciary Committee to look it over carefully. He voted "aye."

The question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the first section?

It was

Agreed to.

The bill was then laid over for a third reading.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, presented for concurrence bills numbered and entitled as follows, viz:

No. 865, an act to provide for the election of burgess and town council in the borough of Danville, Montour county, Pa.

Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary Local.

BILLS CONSIDERED AND PASSED.

On motion of Mr. WALLS, the rules were dispensed with, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of bill entitled A supplement to an act to entitle the stockholders of any railroad company incorporated by the laws of this Commonwealth, accepting this act, to one vote for each share of stock, approved the 20th day of May, A. D. 1865, extending the same to bridge companies and hall associations.

The bill was read a second and third times, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. DAVIS, the Committee on Judiciary Local was discharged from the further consideration of a bill entitled An act authorizing and requiring the assessor of Caernarvon township, Berks county, to discharge the duties of constable.

And the rules having been dispensed with,

The bill was read a second and third times, and

Passed finally.

On motion of Mr. JACKSON, the Committee on Judiciary Local was discharged from further consideration of a bill entitled An act to provide for the election of burgesses and town council in the borough of Davulie, Montour county, Pennsylvania.

And the rules having been dispensed with, the bill was read a second and third times, and

Passed finally.

Mr. BIGHAM moved that when the Senate adjourns it will adjourn to meet to-morrow morning at ten o'clock, and that ten o'clock be the standing hour of meeting, until otherwise ordered.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The hour of one o'clock having arrived, the SPEAKER adjourned the Senate till ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

TUESDAY, March 12, 1867.

The House met at 10 o'clock, A. M.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. JACOB KENNEDY, member from Wyoming.

The SPEAKER announced a quorum of members present.

The Journal of yesterday was partly read, when,

On motion of Mr. MEYERS, the further reading of the same was dispensed with.

BILL PASSED.

Mr. HARBISON. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. HARBISON. Mr. Speaker, owing to a peculiar condition of things in Lawrence county, our people are very anxious to have a bill passed to enable notaries public to hold the office of burgess and justices of the peace. The election comes off on Friday next, and it is important the bill making this provision should be passed before that time. I therefore move that Senate bill No. 840, an act relative to justices of the peace, burgesses and notaries public in the county of Lawrence, be taken from the table and now considered.

The motion was

Agreed to.

The bill was read a second and third times, and

Passed finally.

MOTION TO SUSPEND THE RULES.

Mr. WRIGHT. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to make a statement.

Leave was granted.

Mr. WRIGHT. Mr. Speaker, some time ago I was instrumental in having a bill passed changing the boundary line between Montoursville and Fairfield townships in Lycoming county. It was represented to me in good faith that the citizens of those two districts wanted that bill passed. I am now informed that they almost unanimously do not want it. The bill has passed both branches of the Legislature and has been signed by the Governor. I have a very short bill repealing that act, and I hope the House will judge me in having it passed at this time. I, therefore, move a suspension of the rules to allow me to read a bill in place.

Mr. JOSEPHS. Mr. Speaker, I call for a division of the question. We have a very long private calendar to-day, and it will be almost impossible to get through with it even if we proceed to its consideration at once.

Mr. WRIGHT. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my motion.

Mr. PHELAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask for a suspension of the rules to take up House bill No. 1052, an act relative to tavern licenses in Greene county. The court by which these licenses are to be granted sits the last of this week, and unless this bill passes this week it will be of no avail.

Mr. KIMMELL. Mr. Speaker, I call for a division of the question.

The question being on suspending the orders generally, it was

Not agreed to.

JNO. W. GEARY.

The Deputy Secretary of the Commonwealth also presented a message from the Governor, which was read as follows:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, Pa., March 9, 1867.
To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

GENTLEMEN—Herewith is returned to the House of Representatives, in which it originated, bill No. 412, entitled An act supplementary to an act incorporating the town of Lawrenceville, in the county of Allegheny, into a borough, approved the 13th day of February, 1864, with my objections to the same.

The acts of 1st April, 1834, and of 3d April, 1861, confer upon the courts of quarter sessions of the several counties the power to incorporate boroughs, and also to alter and amend the charters of boroughs heretofore incorporated.

The act of 1851 was carefully prepared and creates a complete and detailed system of borough laws, and provides that any borough, on application to the court, may have the full benefits of the system thereby established.

The bill under consideration merely provides for a lock-up house for the imprisonment of violators of the laws and ordinances of the courts, and for their imprisonment for any period not exceeding twenty-four hours. By the first section of the act of 1851, boroughs have the right "to hold, purchase and convey such real and personal estate as the purposes of the borough shall require."

By the twenty-first section of the same act, it is further provided that boroughs have power "to impose fines and penalties, incurring partial or total forfeitures, to remit the same, to provide or erect a lock-up house for the temporary detention of persons committed by the proper corporate officers, or by justices of the peace within the borough," "for any period not longer than forty-eight hours at any one time."

It thus appears the courts have already conferred upon them ample powers to grant everything which is claimed in the bill herewith returned. The ninth section of the eleventh article of the Constitution declares that "No bill shall be passed by the Legislature, in any case, where the authority to grant such powers or privileges has been, or may hereafter be, conferred upon the courts of this Commonwealth."

This bill is manifestly in conflict with this plain provision of the Constitution, and cannot be approved. If the borough of Lawrenceville is under the provisions of said general borough law, it has already everything it now asks. If not, it has only to apply to the courts, as provided in the thirty-third section, and the desired privileges will be conferred in the manner provided by law. The Legislature has no power in the premises, by reason of the constitutional prohibition already cited.

JNO. W. GEARY.

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the House proceeded to the reconsideration of said bill; and

On the question,

Shall the bill pass, notwithstanding the objections of the Governor?

Agreeably to the rules, the further consideration of the same was postponed for the present.
