Indian History Along the Penobscot

The story of the Indian in the State of Maine is ever interesting. Especially is that true of the region of the Penobscot Valley. This race of men—children of nature—reared to a life in the forest, and ending their days as they began them, is the subject of pity as well as of hatred; hated for their cruelty and pitied for their misfortunes at the hands of their more civilized fellows, the Anglo-Saxons.

We of a later day can look upon this race in a spirit of greater fairness than could our ancestors whose view of the red man was obscured by his late acts of rapine and plunder. As we read their history let us remember that they were struggling to retain their own domain, to defend their "Fatherland" against the acts of the aggressive pale face whose deeds of power we delight to honor.

TRIBES OF THE PENOBSCOT

In our brief sketch we cannot attempt to trace in full, the descent of the Indian tribes of this region. It is unnecessary. We will begin by stating that the Indians of the State of Maine generally were divided into tribes as fellows: The Sokokis, of the Saco river region; the Anasagunticooks or Abenakis, of the Androscoggin and lower Kennebec region; the Canibas, of the Norridgewoek region; and the Warenocks, of the eastern part of Maine as now known. Of these the latter are to us the most interesting. Another almost synonymous name for this tribe is the Etchemin tribe. This tribe however included the Indians to the extreme head waters of the Penobscot and the St. John river. This tribe is usually divided into three divisions, viz: those on the St. John, those on the Passamaquoddy and the Tarratines of the Penobscot, of whom we are most concerned.

It is undoubtedly true that this tribe is the ancestor of the present remnant known as the Penobscot tribe. This tribe claimed dominion over the entire Penobscot valley from the headwaters to the sea. Concerning the Indians we here quote Mr. Williamson as follows: "They were a numerous, powerful and warlike people, more hardy and brave than their western enemies, whom they often plundered and killed, and according to Hubbard and Price, kept the Seyamores between the Piscataqua and the Mistic in perpetual fear. After the conquests and glory achieved in their battles with Bashaba and his allies, they were not like their enemies, wasted by disease and famine. They retained their valor, animated by success and strengthened by the early use and supply of firearms, with which they were furnished by the French. Less disturbed than the western tribes in the employment of their possessions, and also more discreet, they were reluctant to plunge into hostilities against the English.

*The Tarratines ever manifested the greatest satisfaction in their intercourse with the French. No fortifications upon the peninsula of Maj. Biguyduee, or buildings in the vicinity, excited either fear or jealousy in them; for no rising plantations of the French threatened them with the loss of their lands or privileges. A barter of their furs for guns, ammunition and trinkets was managed with a freedom and a directness which won and secured their attachment. Their companionable manners and volatile turn all made the bonds strong and lasting. The Tarritines have probably at different periods shifted the situation of their principal village. At the mouth of the Kenduskeag they had a common resting place when the white people first settled in that vicinity, a place to which they were from habit strongly attached. Here the mouldering relics of human bodies, also flint spears, stone impliments of labor, and Indians paint-dust have been accidentally disinterred after a burial of an unknown period of time. The Tarratines were neutral in the war of the Revolution. In return Massachusetts, of which this region was a part at that time, protected them and prohibited all trespass upon their lands, six miles in width, on each side of the Penobscot from the Head of Tide upwards. The State from time to time bought large tracts of land from them till their territory was greatly diminished in size."

These Indians when they were first seen by the whites, dwelt on both sides of the river, and in conjunction with the other tribes roamed the whole district of Maine to the westward of this region. That they wandered far from their Penobscot home is evident. One historian asserts that the chief, Samoset, who met the English at Plymouth with the words "Welcome Englishman" in their own tongue was a Tarratine, and came from the Island, Monhegan.

TARRATINE CHIEFS

The name Bashaba, is a famous one among the Indian tribes of the New England States. Much has been written to prove that their name designated simply the head of the tribe, or tribes, as applied only to those who attained supreme hardships among the tribes in this part of the country. However, we feel that it is reasonably certain that the name was borne by a great chief, and that he was a very powerful leader among the red men of this part of the country. Good authority places his residence among the uplands at the mouth of the Penobscot river, although it is stated by many other writers that he dwelt "on the banks of the Penobscot." However that may have been, he seems to have been a potentate of much renown, and holds a place in the mention of all early writers on Indian history. When the Popham expedition arrived at Sagadahoc, in 1697, the natives welcomed it in the name of Bashaba, and urged the men who made up the exploring party, to visit the great chief, who "ruled all the Sachems from the Penobscot to the Piscataqua." Governor Popham at once proceeded along the coast to visit Bashaba's capital, but was driven back by a storm. The chief sent his son to repay the intended visit, and also requested an opening of trade in furs and peltry. The last of the chiefs to be known by this name, if, indeed, there were more than one, died in 1617, which ever ended disastrously, a war that had been conducted fiercely for two years, between the Indians of the western and those of the eastern parts of the State.

Among other Tarratine chiefs was Madockawando, who was renowned for enduring many hardships, also for giving his daughter in marriage to Baron Castine. Another chief was Wenemouett, whose signature to a treaty was secured in 1726, at Falmouth, by Governor Dummer. A treaty bearing the date 1749, was signed on behalf of the Tarratines, by Eger Emmet, and other chiefs. In 1752, "Colonel Louis" signed a treaty as a chief of the tribe.

Probably the most noted among the tribes, and also the best known to the white man, was Joseph Orono. We quote Williamson upon this interesting red man, as follows: "Joseph Orono was for a long time chief of the Tarratine Indians on the Penobscot river. But though he was only an Indian Sagamore, his name, for the merits of his character, is worthy of remembrance and respect. His ancestry, as well as the exact number of his years, is involved in some doubt, for there are no family names among the natives by which the lineage of an individual can be traced, as a son inherits no name of his father. There has been a story that he was a native of York, in this State, born about the year 1688, that his paternal name was Donmel, and that he was one of the captive children taken in the winter of 1692, when that place was raided by the Indians." Mr. Williamson, however, immediately proceeds to cast doubt upon this statement. In fact, he almost discredits it altogether, presenting satisfactory proof of its improbability. Another story, little more than that, we fear, has been affirmed that Orono was a grandson of Baron Castine, heretofore mentioned. It is reported that Castine had three or four Indian wives, among the number being a daughter of the Tarratine chief, Madockawando. It is stated that one child of Castine's, was a very beautiful daughter, who married a frenchman, and was, with her children, taken captive in 1704. Orono is said to have been one of the children, but this story is also discredited in many quarters. But whatever may have been his descent, the fact is apparent that he was possessed of white blood, being half breed, or more. He is said to have stated to a white officer, that his father was a Frenchman, and that his mother was half French, but did not give their names. He was not at all like the Indians in physical makeup, but was large and well formed, hair brown, eyes blue, and skin very light. He was a devoted Catholic, and an incident of him in this connection, is handed down to this day. Rev. Daniel Little of "Kennebeck," was appointed a Protestant missionary to the tribe, and is said to have asked of chief Orono three times in succession, the question, "In what language do you pray?" Finally the grave, sedate chief made answer as follows: "No matter what: * * * Great Spirit knows all languages." Because of his very strenuous efforts in behalf of peace, and because of his very highly humane treatment of all men and matters, we shall treat to some extent, this peculiarly interesting man.

At the opening of the French and Indian War, in 1754, Orono raised his voice, as usual, in behalf of peace. He was past sixty years of age at that time. We quote his speech in behalf of peace as follows: "To kill the living, will not bring the dead to life.

The crimes of few never sprinkle blood on all. Strike the murderers. Let the rest be quit. Peace is the voice of the Great Spirit. Everyone is blessed under its wings. Everything withers in war. Indians are killed, squaws starve. Nothing is gained; not plunder, not glory. Englishmen are now too many. Let the hatchet lay buried. Smoke the calumet once more. Strive for peace. Exact a recompence by treaty, for wrongs done us. None! aye! then fight 'em." But the young Indians refused to listen, and the war began with the well known result.

About the opening of the Revolution Orono became chief at the death of Ossan and being strongly Pro-Whig he exerted a strong influence on the whole Indian body, both in and out of his tribe, for the patriot cause. He personally performed great services for them on many instances, and was extended special thanks for his valor and trustworthiness. He continued his even cause in political affairs down to the day of his death on February 5, 1802, at the great age of one hundred and thirteen years. The town of Orono was named for him by his enthusiastic and appreciative white neighbors when they incorporated their town. One hundred years later at their centennial the following poem entitled "The Old Chief" was sung by the assemblage:

We sing the chiefs of auld lang syne,
 Madockawando grave;
 The Tarratine in Phillip's time,
 Megone the friend and knave.
 Wenamuet with kingly face,
 All braves who bent the bow
 In autumn's hunt or winter's chase.
 But most, great Orono.

Madockawando's Royal hand,
 In nature's temple green;
 His squaw child gave in marriage bond
 To lone and proud Castine.
 But from the mountains to the seas,
 Where gleams Penobscot's fall;
 Best praised the white born chief shall be.
 The blue eyed Orono.

In modern days of Atteon,
 Or Neptune's later reign,
 No tales are told of brave deeds done,
 Or sung in noble strain:
 Our thoughts are turned to other days,
 To days of strife and woe;
 Relieved by calm, pacific ways,
 Of pale faced Orono.

We sing the chief, the grand old chief,
 The chief of auld lang syne;
 Those years of rule on Memory's leaf,
 Those years of bloodless line:
 We sing the chief, the grand old chief,
 The chief of long ago;
 The corn still sounds in memory's sheaf,
 The high browed Orono.

The above sketch of these chieftains covers a little of the story of the principal leaders of the tribes along the Penobscot. Atteon was a more recent chief and was their leader for forty years following 1816. His reign was closed by dissension and difficulties in the tribe, which resulted in his being deposed, and the state legislature taking a hand in the difficulties; finally proscribing a biennial election of a chief by the tribe, who is now known as the Governor.

WARS OF THE TARRATINES

The Indian seemed to be fated to be the opponent of the Englishman in religion. The personal make up of the Englishman was at a serious disadvantage as compared with the Frenchman with his vivacious ways, and his attractive and impressive religious services. It is probable that most of the English had serious intentions and an honest purpose to deal justly with the red man. Their charters called for religious training, forbade the sale of liquors to them, and in every way enjoined their training in the channels of civilization. But the Frenchman did all in his power to engender the spirit of animosity, which was early started in the breast of the savage. Only one result could possibly be, and that was war. But though the Indians were gradually drifting to hostilities they were hurled headlong into an open conflict by Weymouth's infamous seizure of five of their tribe in 1605. In 1631 or 1632 there was an outbreak between the Tarratines and their rivals, but the conflict was not long prolonged nor bloody. The great war with the Mohawks about 1663 greatly discomforted the Tarratines, their dreaded enemies following them even to the banks of the Penobscot, burning their dwellings and doing them great harm in accordance with the Indians warfare. Soon small pox devastated the tribe till it was almost exterminated.

No further action in warfare was participated in by these Indians till the coming of Major Church in 1694, who laid waste their fields and killed several of the natives. In 1722 Lovewell's War opened and lasted three years. The war was thus named from Capt. Lovewell of Dunstable, the hero of the battle of Pequaket. The warfare was carried to the Penobscot Valley, and began with the arrival of Col. Thomas Westbrook in 1723. This expedition was made up of two hundred and thirty. They scoured the coast of Mr. Desert in whaling boats and small vessels, and then proceeded up the Penobscot, anchoring at Marsh Island, it is stated on March 4, of that year. Here they left their boats and began a few days march through the forests near the river. At the old Indian Fort, which they found deserted, they destroyed every thing of value. It is stated that this fort was situated in Orono about six miles above Kenduskeag. After the destruction of the buildings about the Fort, the whites returned.

About two years later, when the Tarratines had rebuilt the village, Capt. Joseph Heath with his company crossed the country and attacked the village, laying it in ashes. No Indians were found. The village was never rebuilt, Old Town being the place finally settled upon as their further abode.

In October, 1723, a vessel landing at Mr. Desert, Capt. Cogswell, commanding, was attacked by the Indians, the whole crew being captured. The wars being over, the Indians returned to their usual custom, hunting and fishing. Gradually, by treaty and by other courses, the English came into possession of the lands along the Penobscot. The Indians were greatly cheated in these deals, but managed to retain possession of certain tracts, and to this day have control of a large number of islands in the Penobscot. They also have a large sum in the hands of the state which is holden as a perpetual fund for their support on which the state pays interest annually. In all, this Indian tribe receives not far from $8,000 per year from different sources. The treatment of the Indians on the Penobscot by the State of Maine, is in marked contrast with that of Massschusetts, when this whole region was a part of that Commonwealth. Everything of practical value to them is done for their protection and benefit.

Early Settlement

LOCATION

The town of Dexter, in Penobscot county, is six miles square, situated in latitude 45 degrees, 1 minute 48 seconds, north, and longitude 69 degrees, 16 minutes, 33 seconds, west. It occupies a position on the height of land between the valley of the Kennebec on the west, and that of the Penobscot on the east. Its natural scenery is rugged but beautiful. In the western portion of the town lies Lake Wassookeag, 420 feet above sea level, fed by never failing springs, and drained by the stream which furnishes excellent power for manufacturing interests. Main Stream valley crosses the northwestern part of the town, where it also furnishes power for manufacturing. The lakes and streams abound in fish; the hillsides are covered with valuable forests of hard wood, except where the land has been cleared for tillage, and its valleys furnish good tillage soil or forests of soft wood. No more beautiful scenery can be found in the State than the eye looks upon from many of Dexter's lofty hills, especially Bryant's Hill, giving, as they do, an extended view in all directions.

SURVEY AND EARLY PROPRIETORS

In 1792 Ephraim Ballard and John Weston of Hallowell, were employed by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, to survey a section of the land belonging to the Commonwealth in the Province of Maine, and to establish township lines for the same. On October 20, 1792, they made a plan of twenty-one townships, one of which became the town of Dexter. This town is designated on the plan as Number 4, in 5th. range north of the Walo Patent. Two years afterward James Bridge of Augusta, purchased this township of the Commonwealth, as a matter of speculation. The contract was assigned from James Bridge to Charles Vaughn, from Charles Vaughn to Rufus Amory, and from R. Amory to Andrew Cragie of Cambridge, Mass., before it was assigned to Amos Bond, Esq., and seven others for the consideration of $6180.99. They also received a grant of the township from the Court of Massachusetts in 1804, excepting and reserving four lots of 320 acres each, viz: one lot for the first settled minister, one lot for the use of the ministry, one lot for the use of schools, and one lot for future disposition of the General Court; all under the condition, that James Bridge should settle within the township, fifteen families within four years, twenty-five families within six years, and complete the number of forty families, within eight years, or before 1812.

EARLY SETTLERS

In the summer of 1800, Samuel Elkins was sent from his home in Cornville, by Andrew Cragie, for the purpose of looking out a suitable site on which to locate a mill, that the township might offer greater inducements to settlers. He selected the outlet of the lake, cleared a tract of land and built a camp. He then prepared timber for the mill and returned to Cornville. Ebenezer Small also came the same summer from Alton, N. H., and after falling trees on the spot where the late Josiah Crosby's garden now is, he erected a rude cabin for his family, which he intended bringing from Athens the next year.

John Tucker also came in 1800, and cleared a spot on Zion's Hill, where his son Samuel, used to reside. These men came into the township by way of Harmony, and found their way by spotted trees. None remained during the winter. In the spring of 1801, Mr. Small returned to his cabin, drawing Mrs. Small and his few household effects on a handsled over the crust. This was the first permanent settlement in the town of Dexter. On February 4, 1802, a daughter, Johannah, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Small, which was the first white child born in the township. In the fall of 1802, Mr. Small built a comfortable log cabin on Zion's Hill, just west of the present site of Mrs. Ellen Derry's residence, and set out an orchard of apple trees. Mr. Elkins commenced to build a saw mill and grist mill in 1801, but his health failed and he died soon after at his home in Cornville. His brother finished the mill the following year. The location was at the west end of the present Abbott Mill, on Grove

Street. In 1802 Mr. Tucker returned with his family.

In 1803, Seba French, William Mitchell and John Safford settled in town. Squire French came in the spring of the same year and slept on a sled for several weeks. The first framed house in the village was built by Mr. Snow in 1804, and stood where Mr. J. P. Abbott's house now stands.

That year the settlers were visited by sickness and death. On the 16th of December, two of Mr. Small's and one of Mr. Tucker's children, died within two hours. They were buried in a field of Mr. Tucker's, set apart as a burial place. After the first settlement, until the time of incorporation, there are no records, other than fragments, that shed light upon this interesting period of the town's growth. We learn that in 1807 a schoolhouse was built on the Bachelder farm, and the school was kept that summer by Hannah Mitchell. There were not enough women in town to surround a quilt when some good housewife had a "quilting," nor enough men to "raise" a building, but they obtained help from Garland. The township was earliest known as Elkintown Plantation. On June 17th, 1816, the town was incorporated under the name of Dexter, the name being selected in honor of Honorable Samuel Dexter, a man well known and respected, a lawyer and public servant in Massachusetts.

Industrial Account

As we have already noticed, Mr. Elkins began building the first saw and grist mill, which was in fact, the first building in town. This was completed and operated by his brother. The year the town was incorporated, a tannery was built by Mr. Russell, who afterwards sold to Elijah Severance. James C Hill also located a carding mill here. In 1818 another grist mill was built by Mr. Farrar, and two years later saw the arrival of Jeremias and Amos Abbott, who came on foot from Massachusetts, seeking a mill privilege, which they found satisfactory at the outlet of Wassookeag. In 1822 they were joined by a brother, John Abbott. We will now mention the separate water privileges and give a brief account of the development of each.

Dexter is well supplied with water power. Within $\frac{3}{4}$ of a mile from the lake, there are eight mill privileges on the same stream. These we will mention in order, beginning near the lake:

1. This is the site where Mr. Elkins built his saw mill. He sold to a Mr. Morse, who put in a grist mill and carding machinery. It was then sold to Mr. Farrar when he came to Dexter in 1817; to Jere and Amos Abbott, about 1820. It has since remained the property of, and under the direction of the Abbott family, the present manager, Arthur Abbott, being the third generation. This has, doubtless, contributed more to the prosperity of Dexter than has any other.

2. The next privilege was first claimed by Mr. Hill on the west side, and Mr. Morrill, a blacksmith, on the east. Mr. Curtis soon bought our Morrill, and Hill sold to a Mr. Eaton, who put in cloth drying and coloring machinery. Mr. Martin was the next owner.

He sold to a Mr. Buzzell. Mr Curtis gained control of the whole privilege and put in a sash and blind factory. This he sold to Samuel Eldridge, the present owner, about 1860.

3. The third privilege was first used to run a grist mill built by J. Farrar, but sold to Mr. Wetherly. Later Farrar and Cutler bought the right which was a part of their estate when they failed in business in 1857. This finally became the property of Samuel Small, in about 1884-5.

4. John Bates built a blacksmith shop near the site in 1836, but the privilege was held by Farrar & Cutler when they failed. After several changes the property came into the possession of David Campbell, and is known as the Dunbarton Woolen Mill.

5. On the next mill privilege, Mr. Baker built a wood working mill on the east side, and Mr. Farrar a tannery on the west. The tannery passed through the hands of Mr. Wyman, then Mr. Shaw, and was part of the bankrupt estate of Farrar & Cutler. On this site is now located one of Morrison's woolen mills, which was the old tannery until about 1898-9.

6. Jere. & Amos Abbott built a grist mill on the next water power, but Farrar & Cutler bought it and converted it into a woolen mill about 1835. January 25, 1844, this mill was burned. This is now the site of one of Mr. Morrison's woolen mills, he having taken possession about 1897.

7. The next privilege is owned by Foss & Conant, who constructed a brick mill for the manufacture of woolen goods, in 1848. They purchased the right of Mr. L. Knowles, who had bought it of Mr. Small, the first settler, who had a saw mill there.

8. The eighth privilege on this stream is where Calvin Copeland built his woolen mill in 1846. This was burned, and Fay & Scott bought the right and established extensive machine works.

9. The last right in the village on this stream, is the site of the electric light plant. Mr. McLellan first built a sawmill here, but sold to Messrs. Libbey, who were bought out by the lighting company.

There is also a woolen mill and saw mill at North Dexter, on Main stream, which furnishes power at two localities in town. The woolen mill is under the management of the Dews Woolen Company, and E. A. Flanders is agent for the lumber mill. At Silver's mill, C. B. Silver has a saw mill.

Educational Notes

The first school house built in Dexter was erected in 1807 on the Batchelder farm now known as the Whitcomb place. This house also was used as the first town house. Later a house was built in the village located a little south of the present site of Mr.

Crosby's law office. On April 7, 1817, the town was divided into five school districts, and later, the same year, No. 6, known as the center district, was carved from district No. 2.

This community, like other Maine towns gave liberally of its hard earned funds to the support of its schools. The amount raised the first year after incorporation was $150.00, and in 1820, $400.00 was raised for this purpose, while but $100.00 was raised to defray town charges. In 1835 a large school building was erected on Pleasant street. The lower story of this building contained two schoolrooms, a primary and a grammar, while the upper story was used for a town hall. This served until the floor gave way March 17, 1856, while town meeting was being held. It is worthy of note that although over three hundred people were pitched into the cellar, no one was killed and no bones broken.

Immediate action was taken and a fine new town hall as well as a new high school building was erected. The latter cost $3000. Primary and Intermediate schools were held in the new town hall. In 1868 the scholars became too numerous to be accommodated in these apartments, and the present Free street school house was erected. The high school building was burned, and in 1888 the present high school building on Spring street was erected.

The school houses in the village in use today are as follows: The Brown house, so called, was erected in 1860; the Free street school house, 1868; one situated on town lot, 1880; high school, 1888.

The grading system was introduced into the schools of Dexter during the fourth decade through the efforts of Mr. Lysander Cutler, who for many years was a live supporter and promoter of our public schools.

With its present excellent facilities and efficient management Dexter enjoys one of the best school systems in the State. The local high school enables her young men and women to fit for college, or complete their Normal and English courses without leaving town.

Church Account

Few towns in the State, the size of Dexter, can exhibit so many and so beautiful church edifices. There are now seven societies in town with a total membership of seven hundred, and a Sunday School attendance of about that number. We shall mention these societies separately in the order of their respective times of organization.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL

In 1818, Rev. Benjamin Jones organized the Exeter Circuit, comprising Exeter, Stetson, Corinna, Palmyra, Dexter, Harmony, Ripley, Garland, Corinth and Bradford. The year following Sullivan Bray was appointed to the Circuit receiving in return the sum of $57.00 for his year's salary. He was succeeded by True Page and Peter Burgess.

In 1822 the M. E. society of Dexter was organized by M. B. Cox, who served as the first pastor. In 1834 the Methodists and Baptists built a Union church which became the property of the Methodists in 1846. In 1849 the society withdrew from the Exeter Circuit, after which it employed its regular pastors. The church was repaired and enlarged in 1870 during the pastorate of Rev. C. E. Springer and served until it was taken down to be replaced by the present $13,000 structure, which was dedicated in January 1900. The new edifice has a seating capacity of six hundred. The society numbers about one hundred and fifty, with an Epworth League of sixty members.

BAPTIST

The Baptist church in Parkman was originally the strongest Baptist church in this vicinity. From this mother church the churches in Dexter, Cambridge and Blanchard owe their existence. Through the zealous efforts of Elder Z. Hall, a branch church connected with the Parkman church was organized in Dexter on March 16, 1825.

On December 28, 1825, the thirteen persons who had formed the branch church were with seven others reorganized as members of an independent church. Elder Jacob Hatch was the first pastor, Calvin Copeland was the first clerk, and Levi Morrell was the first deacon.

The present meeting house was built in the year 1839. A vestry was built and the interior of the house renovated in 1888. Through the generosity of Mrs. Susan Copeland the church was able to build a parsonage in 1895. During the year 1903 extensive repairs were made on the interior of both the meeting house and the parsonage.

In the early days of the church's history the ministers gave only a portion of the year to this church. The following men have served as ministers: Jacob Hatch, 1826; Walter Marshall, 1830; Enoch Hunting, 1832; C. T. Norcross, 1836; D. Bartlett, 1837; Alfred Lothrop, 1838; Isaac S. Membership about one hundred and fifty.

FIRST UNIVERSALIST

This society was founded September 22, 1828, with Rev. William Frost, pastor. In 1829, a church edifice, the first in the town, was erected on church street on a lot given by one of its parishoners, Jonathan Farrar. The structure was remodeled in 1869 at an expense of $10,000, and in 1897 further improvements were made. In 1891 a beautiful parsonage was erected on Maple street. This church has ever enjoyed the patronage and support of many of Dexter's most influential business men. Connected with the church is a Y. P. C. U. Church membership about ninty.

The following pastors have served William Frost, 1828-33; Gibson Smith, 1835-40; F. A. Hodsdon, 1840-44; William S. Cilley, 1845-52; Giles Bailey, 1853-57; F. A. Hodsdon, a few months; William W. Lovejoy, 1858-63; J. C. Lansing, 1865-67; Rev. M. Chaffee, 1868; M. Gunnison, 1868-71; Costello Weston, 1871-73; A. Battles, 1873-78; J. E. Clark, 1878-82; H. S. Whitman, 1882-86; H. K. White, 1886-90; W. H. Gould, 1890 to present time.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL

The first Congregational church was organized by Ecclesiastical Council, July 22, 1834. The society worshiped in other churches, especially the M. E. chapel, until 1846, when the society erected its own chapel. The society was incorporated in 1847. The present modern edifice was completed and dedicated July 7, 1886, free from debt, as the Barron Memorial Church.

The regular pastors are as follows, much of the time the pulpit has been filled by students from the Bangor Theological Seminary. Joshua Eaton is the first recorded preacher to the denomination; then came E. G. Carpenter, 1846-51; Phillip Titcomb, 1852-54; Daniel Sewell, 1859-61; Ebenezer Bean, 1862-65; W. S. Kimball, 1867-69; J. S. Richards, Jr., 1877-79; W. F. Stowe, 1889-90; E. C. Brown, 1890-92; W. E. Mann, 1893-97; H. B. Long, a few months; W.

EPISCOPAL

The Episcopal Church, otherwise known as the Church of the Messiah, was organized in 1866, Rev. N. I. Briggs serving as the first pastor. In 1869 the present church on Spring street was erected, but was not opened until March 1872. The building, together with the pipe organ which was placed in it in 1877, cost $10,000.

The Rectors of this church have been: N. I. Briggs, 1865; Charles T. Ogden, A. M. Lewis, Richard Price, 1871-75; Thomas Marsden, 1875-82; William D. Martin, 1883-85; George S. Hill, 1885-86; Joseph S. Carlton, 1887-90; LeB. W. Fowler, 1890-95; W. D. Dale, 1896, he remained sometime; there is no local pastor at present, the pulpit being filled by the Rector from Exeter.

FREE BAPTIST

This society was organized May 3, 1869, by an Ecclesiastical Council. A. P. Tracy, a member of the Council, becoming the first pastor. There were fifteen charter members. For four years this society worshiped in the Congregational church, but in 1871 the present structure on Spring street was completed at a cost of $8000. The church became free from debt in 1888. The society has a membership of about ninety. The church work is sustained by the aid of several societies connected.

ST. ANNE'S CATHOLIC

Until 1893 this society was embraced within the jurisdiction of Waterville, Fairfield and Skowhegan. Services were held at stated periods by several fathers in the church on High street, erected in 1876. In the year named above, the Dexter parish was erected and Rev. Fr. T. E. Bradley, became pastor. In 1895, the present pastor, Rev. Fr. John W. Houlihan, assumed charge of the parish, together with those in Dover, Sangerville and Monson. Under the present pastorate the parish has wonderfully increased in prosperity and membership. In 1902 the beautiful structure on the corner of French and Center streets was erected and adds much to the beauty of the village.

ADVENT

The last existing society to be organized is the Advent, other services were held under the name as early as 1874. In 1884, the Life and Union Advents took charge of the services and continued until about 1894, when the work came under the direction of the present section, The Triune Immersion Advents. No organization of this denomination was made until 1903, when they organized under the name of the "Israel of God", with Mr. Helme as pastor. It was through his efforts that the church edifice was procured and fitted for a convenient home for worship.

Grange

Dexter Grange was organized April 15, 1875 in Central Hall, with thirty-seven charter members, twenty gentlemen and seventeen ladies. The first officers elected were: Master, John Martin; overseer, Richard Nutter; lecturer, Charles Crockett; steward, Hiram Bement; assistant steward, C. C. Hatch; chaplain, M. L. Heseltine; treasurer, T. O. Additon; secretary, A. C. Libby; gate-keeper, C. L. Additon; ceres, Mrs. Charles Crockett; pomona, Mrs. L. W. Jose; flora, Miss Etta Bement. Grand Master, Ham, of Lewiston, organizer.

J. L. Russell, although not a charter member joined soon after its organization and was elected secretary, which office he honorably filled for twenty-five years until his death. The membership January 7, 1904, numbered four hundred and seventy. The Grange is one of the most prosperous in the State, and in its work, one of the most influential and far reaching in the community. Officers for 1904: Master, G. H. Knowles; overseer, Irving Shorey; lecturer, E. M. Atkins; steward, J. G. Jewett; chaplain, L. M. Haseltine; treasurer, J. H. Lane; secretary, Mrs. J. H. Lane; chorister, Mrs. Vina Brawn.

Military Matters

The first recorded account of any movement in Military matters in town, that we are able to find is of the organization of the Dexter Rifle company in May 1835, with Lysander Cutler, Stephen Leighton and Joseph Copeland, as the commissioned officers; Isaiah Beals, Hiram Stafford and Reuben Flanders as sergeants; Asa Spooner, Franklin Coolidge, Dennis Pullen, Rufus Crowell as corporals; Henry S. Wetherby, Seba Wetherbe, J. P. Tenney, Samuel Baker, Hiram Carr as musicians. There were thirty privates which number was soon increased to about fifty. The uniforms adopted by the company were of drab woolen cloth, trimmed with black velvet, with conspicuous shoulder pieces; their caps were of black velvet, and they were armed with the old fashioned muzzle-loading rifles, which, at the time, were considered the best war weapons to be had.

In 1838, the company purchased a large marquee, large enough to shelter the whole company, which it was agreed, should be given to that man, who should have been with the company longest when the company should be disbanded. The marquee fell to Thomas Wetherby.

This company at the time of the Aroostook War was considered the best trained and equipped of any in the State. The only men now living, who were members of this protective band are Daniel Howard and V. A. Sprague.

Upon the breaking out of the Civil War, a company of volunteers was formed to join the Sixth Maine Regiment, but was disbanded, as the regiment had its quota and more troops were considered unnecessary. How little did they, so far removed from the region of dispute and the scene of conflict, realize the magnitude of the struggle then begun.

During the four years following many men, two hundred and thirty-eight from Dexter, we are told, (population 2365) enlisted to fight for the Union and the liberty of mankind, and many an honorable record was made by those sent out from Dexter. These men had never before seen active service, but who shall say that they were not disciplined and enthused by their fortunes in the earlier company of militia, even though they were not yet born into the world. However that may be, Dexter's list of heroes is a long and a glorious one. We will only mention two cases: Capt. Otis O. Roberts received a gold medal from the United States for capturing, alone a rebel flag at Rappahannock and H. A. Johnson, with the aid of only three horses saved, a large gun at Cedar Mountain where shot and shell from the enemy's guns were flying all around him. Many other equally brave and timely deeds might be mentioned here but space does not permit.

The G. A. R. Post in Dexter was organized October 16, 1871 under the name of the H. F. Stafford Post, No. 8, with H. L. Wood, commander. At the present time Llewellyn Copeland is commander; J. Crowell, senior; E. French, junior; C. E. Spencer, adjutant. The Post now numbers 32 members. On their Roll of Honor are the names of one hundred and fifty-two veterans. At one time the membership of the Post numbered eighty. The names of the charter members were Henry L. Wood, James D. Maxfield, D. D. Flynt, I. S. Campbell, Thomas Withee, Abner Shepherd, Alton P. Fossett, W. H. Durgin, G. W. Sturtevant, E. W. Clark, Sumner Warner, Samuel Morrill, H. A. Johnson, Otis O. Roberts, Daniel Dolloff, Jr.

Eleven sons of Dexter are said to have taken part in the Spanish American War.

Early Traders and Professional Men

Jonathan Farrar opened the first store here in 1816 keeping his goods in his dwelling house. Two years later the post office was established and kept by Mr. Farrar in his store. In 1820, Deacon Benjamin Greene opened a tavern on the Bangor road east from the village. Mr. Farrar with Mr. Cutler gained control of a great deal of property in town, and these men took a very active interest in all town affairs. John Bates was the first blacksmith, he came in 1836. Mr. McCrillis early opened a store on the spot where the post office now stands. Since then some member of his family has been in trade somewhere in the village. Other early merchants were John Bates, Jonathan Greene, Hosea McCrillis, Palaski McCrillis, Josiah Chandler, E. A. Ayer, L. D. Hayes, George Cutler, E. S. French and George Hamilton.

The first druggist was N. B. Folsom. Then came Dr. Morrell, John Springall, Gilman Clough, Levi Bridgam and David Mudgett.

PHYSICIANS

Benjamin Clement was the first physician who located here in 1816. Two years after Dr. G. M. Burleigh moved into town and became very prominent.

Later came Messrs Burgess, Morrell and Clough. For those now in practice see business directory.

LAWYERS

About 1820 a young lawyer named Samuel Warren opened a law office here, and did not remain long probably because his services were not in great demand. Later Gustavus Cushman located here, then Charles Cushman, Mr. McLellan and Hon. Josiah Crosby, who was a member of the House in 1856-63-65, and of the Senate in 1867-68 serving as president of that body. George R. Sewall and Abner Knowles have practiced law here.

Facts of Interest

About a century ago the only thoroughfares in this section were one from Skowhegan to Harmony; one from Harmony northward through Cambridge and Parkman; one from Harmony through what is now Dexter to Garland and on to Bangor. This was first traveled as a footpath and followed by its spotted trees through the unbroken forest. Later it developed into a horsepath, and finally made passable for wagons. This served as the mail route which was established about 1820. The earliest mails were carried on horseback, one man arriving here at noon from Skowhegan, where another took the mail and proceeded on to Bangor returning the next day at noon, and the first carrier returned to Skowhegan. In 1830 we are told that John Favor went to New York to purchase a coach which he afterward drove on this route.

RAILROAD

These methods were followed until 1868-9 when the Railroad was opened between Dexter and Newport, thus connecting Dexter with the Commercial world and opening up to her manufacturers new and readier markets, and to her business men new opportunities to get closer in touch with the world of affairs. It was through the efforts of Dexter's leading men together with those of Corinna that the project was completed. Messrs. Charles Shaw, Josiah Crosby, George Abbott, the Dustins, Cryus Foss, and others investigated the loaning of the credit of Corinna and Dexter as security and obtained the money for the project. George Hamilton was an able assistant to these men. The line was at once leased by the Maine Central railroad for $18,000 a year, and at the end of thirty years, bought it for assuming the debts, bonds and stock of the same. For many years the road paid its stockholders six per cent interest. When the B. & A. R. R. was put through to Guilford the line was extended from Dexter to that point, giving to Dexter excellent connections with all parts of the State.

FIRE DEPARTMENT

Josiah Cutler was one of the few men who think to prepare for danger before danger comes to them as a warning. He induced the town to purchase a fire pump and to organize a company in 1836. This company has done credit to the town and to itself as not more than two buildings have ever burned at one time within the town. The fire department now consists of a hook and ladder, three hand tubs, five hose companies, with a chief, Leslie Curtis, and about one hundred and forty men.

ABBOTT MEMORIAL LIBRARY

This beautiful stone structure, erected at an expense of $30,000, is situated on Zion's Hill near the Universalist church and the town hall in the central part of the city. It is the gift of the late George A. Abbott, who agreed to furnish the necessary funds if the town would raise by subscription, $1000, which was promptly done. He also left a fund of $6000, the interest on which is to be used for the support of the library. The library is beautifully finished in hard wood and is stocked with a good selection of nearly 7000 volumes.

BANKS

The first bank established in the town of Dexter was the Dexter Savings Bank, incorporated in 1867.

It was opened where Mrs. Curtis is now located but about 1870 built the present brick block, where it is very well and comfortably located. The first officers were E. H. Bradford, president; J. Wilson Barron, treasurer. Mr. Barron acted as cashier until he was found dead in the bank, evidently murdered. George Hamilton was the next cashier, then A. F. Bradbury, and Wesley Judkins, the present cashier.

The First National Bank of Dexter was incorporated in 1875 with a capital stock of $100,000. They first did business in what is known as Carr's hardware store, with Charles Curtis, cashier. He was succeeded by Mr. Sawyer. In 1892 the capital stock of this company was reduced to $50,000. The bank is now located in Bank block near the Savings Bank.

The Waterville Trust Co., opened a branch here about 1898, and is located in Ireland block. Stanford Leighton is cashier.

NEWSPAPERS

The first newspaper was published here in about 1850 and was known as "The Isonomia." This was 5x6 inches four page paper published by Elder Witherell. He later published "The Gem." In about 1870 the Dexter Gazette was first published. We find Holman F. Day and Edwin Bunker among its editors. About 1880 Oren Fitzgerald started the Eastern State with lawyer Pierce of this place as editor. In the early ninties these two papers were consolidated under the name of the Eastern Gazette. Under Mr. Furber, the editor, it has become an up-to-date local newspaper that is a welcome weekly visitor in hundreds of families throughout Dexter and all of her surrounding towns.

DO'S AND DONT'S DONT'S

- DON'T buy your Clothing of a house that always advertises to give something for nothing. It can't be done.
- DON'T buy your Clothing of a house that has a different price for every customer. Some one is going to pay too much. Likely to be you as anyone.
- DON'T buy a Suit of a house that advertises $15 Suits reduced to $3.98. It's a delusion and a snare.

DO'S

- DO buy your Clothing of a house that always does business in a straightforward manner, with no misrepresentations of any kind.
- DO trade with a house that always says to you: "Bring back your purchases and get your money if you are not satisfied." No risk then.
- DO buy of a concern that never gives you disappointment in any way—durability, style or price. That's the kind of a house to tie to.

Census, 1904

The population of the town of Dexter has been arranged herewith in families where that arrangement has been possible. In these families, in addition to the resident living members, the names of the non-resident members are included. It should be borne in mind that this plan does not include the names of all former residents of this town as the names of the non-residents appear only when one or both the parents are still living in the town. At the end of the Census will be found the names of non-residents with their present addresses, when such addresses have been given to us. The non-residents are indicated by the (*).

Following the names of the population is the occupation. To designate the occupations we have used the more common abbreviations and contractions. Some of these follow: Farmer—far; carpenter—car; railroad service—R R ser; student, a member of an advanced institution of learning—stu; pupil, a member of a lower grade of schools—pl; housework—ho; laborer—lab; physician and surgeon—phy & sur; clergyman—clerg; merchant—mer; teacher—tr; blacksmith—blk; clerk—cl; book-keeper—bk kpr; lawyer—law; mechanic—mech; engineer—eng; insurance—ins; maker—mkr; worker—wkr; work—wk; shoe shop work—s s wk.

This Census was taken during May and June, 1904, expressly for this work by R. H. Remick, Kent's Hill, Me.
