RUSSIAN ARMIES ARE DRIVING FORWARD

LUTSK RETAKEN AND ENEMY LINE BROKEN BY RUSSIAN TROOPS

Officially Announced at Petrograd Fortress Near Border of Galicia and Number of Strongly Organized Austrian Positions in Hands of Russians; 11,000 Men Taken Yesterday

Petrograd, June 8.—The re-capture of the fortress of Lutsk, in Volhynia, and also of a series of powerfully organized Austrian positions is announced in an official communication given out here to-day.

In addition to the Austrians previously captured in the offensive movement recently inaugurated, the statement says there were captured in the fighting yesterday 58 officers and 11,000 men. A large amount of war material also was taken.

London, June 8.—The Austrians have evacuated Lutsk, one of the triangle of fortresses in Volhynia near the frontier of Galicia, according to information received at the Russian embassy in Rome, says a Central News dispatch from that city.

Several brigades of Austrians are reported in advices to have been captured with the fortresses.

It is stated that the Austrian lines have been broken in Volhynia and that they have been withdrawn nearly 20 miles throughout the Lutsk sector.

These successes are results of the big offensive inaugurated a few days ago by the Russian armies between the Pripet marshes and the Rumanian border under the leadership of Gen. Brusiloff, one of the ablest of the Czar's generals.

The Russians had been making thorough preparations for months with the full determination that the enemy must withdraw from Russian territory. With the Austrians pre-occupied with their effort on the Italian front and the Germans as busy as they could be in the region of Verdun, the time was judged opportune to start the offensive.

The official statement issued at Petrograd last night leaves no doubt that the Russian armies are equipped with weapons and supplies to carry out their comprehensive plans.

The fortress of Lutsk lies on the Styra river, in Volhynia, only 25 miles from the border of Galicia. It is 84 miles northeast of Lemberg and is one of the three Russian fortresses near the border of Galicia, the others being Rowno, 46 miles east-southeast of it, and Dubno, 28 miles southeast of it, Dubno being only 25 miles from the Galician border.

Lutsk was evacuated by the Russian troops when the Germans and Austrians made the great drive which carried them across Poland and into Volhynia.

FORT VAUX IS ONLY PILE OF RUINS NOW

Battered to Pieces Before French Garrison Gave Up Possession

Paris, June 8.—It was a heap of ruins that changed hands when the brave garrison of Fort Vaux, east of the Meuse, gave up the position it had been fighting so doggedly to retain through seven days of ferocious bombardment. The defence offered by the garrison was magnificent, but at length, with the position battered out of all semblance to its former configuration and with the ground before it carpeted with German dead, the French force, to use the words of the war office, "reached the limit of its strength and was not able to prevent the enemy from occupying this position." The fort itself, or at least what originally was the fort, was all that was surrendered, as the French continue to hold the trenches to the right and left of it.

The defence of Fort Vaux is another fine page in the history of the defence of Verdun. All the heroism, all the apparent contempt of death and all the resources shown in former particular operations of the French forces on the Verdun front which shine out above the operations in general, since the battle began, were displayed to as great a degree.

In exchange for their thousands of dead and wounded the Germans have got a pile of ruins.

What was Fort Vaux stands on a height between 5 and 5½ miles north-east of Verdun.

ELEVEN TO ONE FOR CONVICTION

Jury in Gosden Case Fail to Agree on Verdict Because of One Man

STUBBORNLY STICKS OUT; REFUSES REASON

All Counts of Indictment Traversed to Fall Assizes and Accused is Allowed Bail

The jurors in the Gosden case announced this morning that they could not agree on a verdict. It is understood that they stood eleven to one for the conviction of the accused and, according to the foreman's statement to his lordship, Mr. Justice Murphy, the twelfth man stood out stubbornly against the others and refused to be convinced, at the same time refusing to give any reasons for that stand.

As the case has had a political tinge, the only charitable supposition is that the man was animated by political opinions to hold out for an acquittal, quite irrespective of what the evidence disclosed or what the other jurors had to advance in the way of argument in support of their attitude.

The charge of perjury alleged to have been committed by the accused in the course of the Vancouver election investigation by the legislative committee, in swearing that M. A. Macdonald met him twice on April 25 at the post office here and paid him $50 on the second occasion, is traversed to the fall assizes. The other count of the indictment, that he committed perjury in swearing that John T. Scott had stated that Ashworth Anderson had "swiped" $2,000 of the campaign funds and had not done "a darned thing" for it, also goes over. A stated case is granted to the court of appeal on a technical objection of H. W. R. Moore, counsel for the defence.

Gosden has been granted bail to appear for trial at the next assizes, himself in $1,000 and two sureties in $500 each. The bailsmen on his former bonds were George A. Fraser, a prominent Conservative, of this city and a former member of the legislature, and H. W. R. Moore. Mr. Moore, by the way, occupies a trifling position to the accused. On the documentary evidence of the bail bonds he has been bailsmen for him. On his own statement to the court, he is acting as counsel for him without fee. On Gosden's oath in the witness-box he is, or has been, providing him with subsistence of late.

The case has lasted six days, and has attracted a great deal of interest, not only here but all over the province. Many people waited about the courthouse until midnight last night in the expectation of a verdict being arrived at, and at eleven o'clock to-day the chamber was crowded in every part to hear the decision of the jury.

Foreman Margison, when the jury came into court at 11.10, stated that the jurors desired to know what constituted corroborative evidence in regard to the alleged meeting at the post office at 6 o'clock. Did the evidence of Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald constitute such corroboration? Mr. Justice Murphy—Yes, if you believe that.

HOLD ALL GROUND SAVE FORT SITE

French Broke All Attacks Except Where Fort Vaux Stood

GERMANS FORCED TO RE-FORM THEIR UNITS

Artillery Active at Hartmannsweilerkopf, on Front in Vosges

Paris, June 8.—Heavy fighting continues in the vicinity of Fort Vaux, northeast of Verdun. The war office report of this afternoon says French troops still occupy the outskirts of the fort, as well as trenches to the right and left of the works.

The loss of the fort itself, of which an intimation was given in last night's report, is conceded. The fort was abandoned by the garrison after it had been reduced to a heap of ruins by an incessant bombardment of seven days. German attacks on the adjacent positions have been unsuccessful.

West of the Meuse intermittent cannonading was carried on last night.

The text of the statement follows: "In the Argonne a German mine exploded this morning at Hill 285 at Haute Chevauchee, but without causing us any damage. We occupied the southern tip of the crater thereby created."

"On the left bank of the Meuse there has been an intermittent bombardment of our second line positions."

"On the right bank there has been intense artillery fighting in the region of Thiaumont and Douaumont."

Fort Vaux. "After seven days of ferocious fighting against assaulting forces whose numbers were constantly renewed, the French garrison at Fort Vaux reached the limit of its strength and was not able to prevent the enemy from occupying this position, which has been completely ruined by the furious bombardment. We hold the immediate surroundings of the fort, as well as the trenches to the right and to the left of it. In front of these every attack delivered by the enemy has been broken by our fire."

"The night passed in relative quiet on the remainder of the front, except at Hartmannsweilerkopf, where the artillery fighting continues with activity."

AVIATORS OF ALLIES BOMBARDED WHARVES AT HOBOKEN, BELGIUM

London, June 8.—An allied air squadron has successfully bombed the wharves at Hoboken, near Antwerp, according to a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Maastricht, Holland. The Germans are said to have been building destroyers at Hoboken. The squadron was fired on by German batteries, but returned to its base safely.

GERMAN ADMIRALTY AT LAST ANNOUNCES BATTLE-CRUISER LUTZOW IS AT THE BOTTOM

LUTZOW WAS ONE OF GERMANY'S FINEST LARGE WAR VESSELS

The German battle-cruiser Lutzow, which was completed in 1915, displaced 28,000 tons and was armed with eight 12-inch guns, twelve 6-inch guns and twelve 24-pounders and was fitted with five submerged torpedo tubes. She is thought to have been between 675 and 700 feet in length and to have had a speed of about 27 knots. Her complement must have been about 1,100. She was a sister to the Derfflinger and the Ersatz Hertha.

Admits to People of Germany They Lost Big Warship in Battle of Jutland, Which Was Fought May 31; Also Admits Cruiser Rostock Sent Down

Says Military Reasons Prompted Concealment of Facts Until Now; Sinking of Lutzow Extremely Serious Loss to Enemy Navy; Carried Eight 12-Inch Guns

London, June 8.—The German admiralty at last has admitted the loss of the battle-cruiser Lutzow, which was completed in 1915, displaced 28,000 tons and carried eight 12-inch guns, and the light cruiser Rostock, which was completed in 1912, displaced 4,900 tons, and carried twelve 4.1-inch guns, in the battle of Jutland, thus confirming to that extent the statements made by the British admiralty and officers and seamen of the grand fleet, regarding the losses suffered by Germany.

The Berlin officials state that they did not make public the loss of the Lutzow and the Rostock until to-day because of military considerations, but it is impossible to determine what military considerations have been served by delaying the announcement, which could have been made just as well on the day following the fight.

FRENCH TROOPS AND BULGARIANS FOUGHT; LATTER DRIVEN BACK

Salonica, June 8.—French and Bulgarian forces have engaged in a violent encounter at Kupa Hill, in Greek Macedonia, according to a message received here. The Bulgarians are said to have withdrawn.

Seydlitz Went Down While Being Towed, Unofficially Stated

London, June 8.—The German battle-cruiser Seydlitz, one of the big enemy warships which engaged in the battle of Jutland, sank off the coast of Denmark while being towed southward by destroyers, according to a dispatch received from Copenhagen to-day.

Berlin, June 8.—An official statement issued to-day gives the total losses of the German high seas forces during the battle of Jutland and up to the present time as one battle-cruiser, one ship of the line of older construction, four small cruisers and five torpedo boats. The statement says:

"Of these losses the battleship Pommern was launched in 1905. The loss of the cruisers Wiesbaden, Elbing, Frauenlob and five torpedo boats already has been reported in official statements. For military reasons we refrained until now from making public the loss of the battle-cruiser Lutzow and the cruiser Rostock."

MALAYA ACCOUNTED FOR HINDENBURG

Sailor Says British Super-Dreadnought Had Been Given Special Orders

London, June 8.—Official messages from New Zealand and the Malay States indicate the enthusiasm aroused by the gallant fighting of their ships in the Jutland battle, when the fate of the whole empire was so completely involved. The admiralty sent special cables recording in warmest terms the mother country's debt to both dominions "for their generosity, which enabled the navy to place so valuable a unit in the fighting line."

A member of the crew of the Malaya, the super-dreadnought which was presented to the imperial navy by the Malay States, says: "The Malaya was selected because of her superior speed, and we got into the thick of the fighting. The Malaya made splendid use of her powerful guns and it enabled her to put 'paid to account' for the Hindenburg."

"There is not the slightest doubt about it, for we were nearer the Hindenburg than any German ship and could distinguish all her lines. She was firing an admiral's flag. We put shell after shell into her, and saw her turn over and sink. We sank nearer 30 than 18 German ships, and the Hindenburg certainly was amongst them. We had special orders, and we did not leave her until we had carried them out."

The Hindenburg was the newest of the big German battle-cruisers.

The Malaya is a sister of the Queen Elizabeth. She carries eight 15-inch guns.

ALLIES WILL TAKE STRONGER MEASURES AT GREEK PORTS

London, June 8.—It is announced officially that restrictive measures affecting Greek ports are being considered to prevent supplies from reaching the enemy.

HEAVY BLOW

London, June 8.—The sinking of the battle-cruiser Lutzow is an extremely serious loss to the German High Seas Fleet. She was one of the newest and most powerful battle-cruisers the Germans possessed, having been completed only last year. The Germans must find the loss of this ship infinitely more serious than the British find the loss of the Invincible, for instance, or the indefatigable or even the mighty Queen Mary.

She was one of the ships of their navy in which the Germans took the greatest pride, and was one of their most formidable battle-cruisers, for, although she carried only 12-inch guns, she was one of the first three battle-cruisers in the German navy to be armed with guns of that calibre, the other two being the Derfflinger and the Ersatz Hertha. The four battle-cruisers which were built before her by the Germans, the Seydlitz, Moltke, Goeben and Von Der Tann, were armed with only 11-inch guns, and even of those one, the Goeben, was lost to the German navy through being chased to the Dardanelles by the British following the outbreak of the war, where she was taken over by the Turks. As only the Lutzow and her two sisters and those battle-cruisers which Germany is said to have completed since the war began were fitted with 12-inch guns of larger calibre, the proportion of the loss suffered by the enemy in the sinking of the Lutzow may be gauged.

The light cruiser Rostock, completed in 1912, displaced 4,900 tons, was 456 feet in length, with a beam of 45 feet and a mean draught of 17 feet, and was armed with twelve 4.1-inch guns and two torpedo tubes. Her designed speed was 25 knots. The Karlsruhe, which disappeared many months ago and undoubtedly lies at the bottom, was a sister, as was also the Regensburg, Graudenz, Ersatz Goeben, Ersatz Hele, Ersatz Gassell and Ersatz Niobe.

KITCHENER'S DEATH HELPED RECRUITING

London, June 8.—A marked stimulus to recruiting yesterday—the last day under voluntary group system—and a general demand for the instrument of all enemy aliens in Great Britain—were the immediate results of the death of Lord Kitchener.

COLLISION IN NEW YORK

New York, June 8.—Two elevated trains on the Third Avenue line were in collision this afternoon. Fire broke out in the wreckage. First reports had it that at least a dozen were dead and 40 injured.

LUTZOW SUNK BY BRITISH

Owing to the fact that she was completed in 1915, during the course of the war, no pictures of the German battle-cruiser Lutzow reached the outside world through the channels they would have followed in peace times. The above, which is from a photo of the German battle-cruiser Moltke, gives an excellent impression of the ship, however, as the Lutzow was almost identical in a general appearance with the Moltke. In place of the single pair of forward 11-inch guns on the Moltke, the Lutzow had two turrets with a pair of 12-inch guns each in them. That was one of the few features in which the Lutzow differed from the Moltke in appearance.

RUSSIAN EMPEROR THANKS HIS TROOPS

Great Successes Over the Austrians Prove Supplies
Have Increased

Petrograd, June 8.—In telling of the capture of 40,900 Austrians between the Pripet Marches and the Roumanian frontier up to noon on Tuesday, the war office said last night:

"A number of batteries were captured intact by our infantry, with all their guns and limbers. In the recent fighting the enemy had actual proof of the increase in our war material. The actions have strengthened our confidence that, as this material develops, the enemy's fortified lines will be more effectively destroyed.

"The valor and dash of our troops was proved by the result achieved in only three days' fighting. His majesty, the supreme commander, at 10 o'clock last night telegraphed from headquarters the following to the troops:

"Transmit to my well beloved troops on the front under your command (Gen. Brusiloff) the news that I am following with satisfaction their brave deeds, and that I appreciate their bravery. Express to them my gratitude. May the good God assist us in driving our enemies from our territory. I am convinced that all will hold firmly together and fight until the glorious end for Russian arms.

(Signed) "NICHOLAS."

"Prudence does not permit us at present to divulge the names of the valiant battalions, which fought sometimes with the loss of all their officers. It is equally impossible to publish the names of our brave men and officers killed or wounded, or the localities where the combats occurred—Asia Minor.

"Caucasian front.—In the direction of Erzincan our artillery stopped an offensive movement by large bodies of Turks. In the direction of Bagdad, in the Khanikin region, we occupied strongly fortified Turkish positions after a fight, and our cavalry attacked the Turkish trenches there, sabring several battalions of the enemy."

REV. DR. BAIRD IS CHOSEN MODERATOR

Honored at Opening Session of Presbyterian General Assembly at Winnipeg

Winnipeg, June 8.—Rev. Dr. Baird was chosen moderator of the Presbyterian church at the initial session of the general assembly, which opened here yesterday.

Rev. M. A. McKinnon, of Regina, who nominated Rev. Dr. Baird for the position of moderator, was the recipient of many congratulations on his most happy and felicitous address. Rev. Dr. Turnbull, of Ottawa, who nominated Rev. Dr. John Neil, of Toronto, gave notice, amid much laughter, that he would consent to the withdrawal of the name of Dr. Neil this year, but that he would press for his election next year in Montreal, where it is believed the assembly of 1917 will be held.

Rev. Dr. Baird, in his opening address as moderator, referred at some length to the church union issue, and suggested that whatever the decision might be the traditions of the assembly might be maintained in the debate. Great interest.

The extraordinary interest in the general assembly was indicated by the unprecedented large gathering of the forenoon. Prior to the opening a dozen committee meetings were in progress considering various phases of church work. All the leaders of the denomination were present at one or other of these gatherings, the list including a number of well-known laymen. Hon. Edward Brown, of the Manitoba government, and Hon. W. R. Motherwell, of Saskatchewan, are among those taking part in the work of the assembly.

Business to-day commenced at 11 a. m. following devotional services of one hour, which were conducted by the new moderator, Rev. Dr. Baird. The business done during the brief business session was chiefly of a routine character. Two committees reported, the committee on business and the committee on bills and overtures.

An interesting matter which formed a topic of conversation to-day was the possible retirement of Rev. Dr. Campbell, who has been clerk of assembly since 1892. It is said that if the motion favoring union be carried in the assembly, Dr. Campbell will move at once that all those who voted in favor of the union retire immediately, and that the minority must carry forward the work, as they actually constitute the Presbyterian assembly and the majority will have voluntarily excluded themselves. The majority, of course, will not agree, and Dr. Campbell probably will refuse to continue to serve in a church which, according to his view, has taken action to dissolve itself.

CANADIAN FIRMS WERE NEGLECTED

Carvell Asks Commission to Report Kyte Charges
Fully Proved

Ottawa, June 8.—Continuing his argument before the Meredith-Duff commission yesterday afternoon, F. B. Carvell, Liberal M. P. for Carleton, N. B., said that Col. Carnegie's explanation of his reasons for giving the contract for the graze fuses to the American Ammunition Company and the time fuses to the International Arms Company, demonstrated that he was the possessor of a nimble mind. As an illustration of mental skating over thin ice, it was one of the finest demonstrations to be found in the English language. Col. Carnegie had explained that the shell committee was under obligation to the American Ammunition Company, and that the company had options on a number of contracts. Contracts had been let without consulting the British war office.

Col. Carnegie's negligence, he said, was so palpable that it amounted to legal fraud if nothing else. The contract was vicious, Col. Carnegie himself had said that contracts had been let in the United States for $1.75, compared with $4 paid to the American Ammunition Company, and Cadwell, one of the parties to the contract, had at the time completed a contract with the British government for graze fuses at $2.40. There had been worse than negligence in connection with the contract.

Question of Urgency.

Commissioner Duff asked Mr. Carvell to express an opinion as to the question of urgency, and Mr. Carvell said he would gladly do so. He went on to say that the Russell Motor Car Company, of Toronto, had been standing at the door of the shell committee. Col. Carnegie could have told it that it could not make time fuses, but that he had a contract for graze fuses which it could take. The contracts had been let in New York because Allison and his friends were to have commissions. They had been let on instructions from Maj.-Gen. Sam Hughes because the minister wanted Allison and his friends, to have commissions.

Chairman Sir William Meredith interrupted to ask if Col. Carnegie would still be called with the imperial munitions board if D. A. (now Baron) Thomas had had a shadow of suspicion as to his actions.

Mr. Carvell said that his present position is a different one. Besides, Baron Thomas did not know anything about these fuse contracts.

Sir Sam Hughes had told Col. Allison not to take commissions in Canada because he knew there was a public commission which would find it out. If Sir Sam was so proud of Allison it was a matter for his conscience, and that of his friends.

"Now you are getting into politics," remarked Commissioner Duff.

Sir Sam Hughes.

"I am willing to withdraw it," said Mr. Carvell, who then referred to the statement made by Sir Sam Hughes during the parliamentary inquiry when the minister said that Allison had written a letter to all firms in the United States stating that they were not to add anything to the cost of production to provide a commission for him. It had been shown that Sir Sam had advised Allison to take commissions. This showed what manner of man the minister of militia was.

Then Sir Sam had declared that he had never used his influence in connection with the granting of contracts. Mr. Johnson, Liberal counsel, had produced six letters showing the contrary to be the case. Among the people whom he had recommended to the shell committee for contracts was John McAlpitt, his own brother-in-law. The minister did not seem to realize that these letters were exactly contrary to what he had sworn to. In view of these things it behooved the commission to look closely into this matter.

Nothing Done.

Absolutely no evidence had been produced to indicate that Allison and Youkam had done anything to bring down the prices of fuses. Even the letter which Allison had written in regard to commissions and which would have reduced prices had not been addressed to his friend Youkam, of the American Ammunition Company. Youkam had paid Allison the sum of $10,000 even when the negotiations were going on. Cadwell, Youkam and Barsick had banded together and divided up nearly a million dollars of British money. This had been done with the approbation of Sir Sam Hughes.

Both commissioners objected to this statement, and Mr. Carvell consented to make it "subsequent approbation."

Referring to the division of Allison's share of the profits, Mr. Carvell said that Miss Edwards had got $105,000, and is sick. This was a misfortune of the Allison family. Col. Allison had been sick. But the evidence showed that the big share of the money had gone to the Allison.

Allison's Evidence.

He urged the commission to dismiss all the evidence given by Col. Allison except that backed by documentary evidence. Allison had not remembered anything that he did not want to remember. His memory had been good or bad to suit his own purpose and his testimony should be disregarded.

Touching upon Maj.-Gen. Hughes's reference to Sir Courtenay Bennett, British consul-general at New York, and the Dowler-Forbes company, of New York, Mr. Carvell said it was beyond his comprehension how a man could make such statements without producing evidence to back them up.

Canadians Neglected.

While a nefarious ring in New York had been allowed to divide up $1,000,000, Canadian business interests had been neglected by the shell committee. He reviewed the story of the efforts made by Lloyd Harris and T. A. Russell, of Toronto, to secure a contract, declaring that the pressure from above to close with the American companies had come from Sir Sam Hughes, the only man who could have applied it. He did not believe that Brig.-Gen. Bertram had been responsible for this. He was too good a Canadian for that. Mr. Carvell regretted in this connection that the Flavell-Hughes correspondence had not been admitted. It would have thrown much light on this phase of the matter.

Dastardly Blow.

Canada, it had been claimed, was the only country in the world where fuses could not be made. It was all piffle. Fuses were being made in Canada to-day and a loading plant would be in operation in Montreal in the course of a few weeks. All the Canadian manufacturers had been elbowed out. Evidently it had been the intention never to allow the manufacture of fuses in Canada, but to allow this work to be done by the companies in which Allison was interested. It was a dastardly blow directed at Canadian industries with malice aforethought.

Mr. Carvell was convinced that the Kyte charges as interpreted by Sir Robert Borden in his cable to the minister of militia had been established. He asked the commission to find that the charges had been justified to the hilt. He regretted that Barsick and Liguanti had not appeared. They had divided their profits with other people or else they would have been present to give evidence.

When Mr. Carvell had closed the chairman asked E. F. B. Johnston, K. C., Liberal counsel, if he had anything to say.

Mr. Johnston said he was not ready. He had understood he would be allowed to speak later. The commission agreed that counsel representing the defendants should have the right to speak last. It was decided to adjourn until this forenoon, when Mr. Johnston would be heard. J. S. Ewart, K. C., counsel for Major-General Sir Sam Hughes, to follow.

"She's her own chaperon." "How's that?" "You ought to see her face." Gargoyles.

THREE OF EDMONTON OFFICERS WERE KILLED

Edmonton, June 8.—Edmonton is in mourning for three of her best known citizens, whose deaths have been reported in the officers' casualty lists.

Capt. Peter McNaughton, of the 49th Battalion, formerly city commissioner, was in charge of the machine gun section of the unit. A mechanic, a scientist, a soldier, he was a typical type of all-round Canadian. In former years he took a great interest in athletics and was the best boxer at McGill. In Edmonton he was a member of various societies, including the Masonic order.

Lieut. C. A. Wilson, of the 49th Battalion, was the son of the late Dr. H. C. Wilson, speaker of the northwest council at Regina. He was born in Edmonton. He enlisted in the 15th Alberta Dragoons in August, 1914, and afterward was given a commission as lieutenant in the 49th Battalion. He was a member of the law firm of Harrison & Wilson.

Lieut. Gordon S. Fife, of the Princess Patricia, was the son of James A. Fife, of Edmonton, one of the best known school instructors in the province. At the time he volunteered for active service he was a lecturer in history at the University of Alberta. He was a Rhodes scholar from Queen's University and studied at Oxford for three years before being appointed to the university staff.

RUINS OF FORT VAUX HAVE CHANGED HANDS

Paris, June 8.—The official statement issued last night said:

"The Germans announce to-day that Fort Vaux fell into their hands on the evening of June 6. On June 7 at 2.50 o'clock in the morning Fort Vaux was still in our hands. Since that hour, by reason of the violence of the bombardment, it has not been possible to effect any communication with the fort."

ARTIFICIAL HANDS.

Zurich, June 8.—Three professors of Zurich University have been experimenting in the hope of training the muscles in the stumps of amputated arms to connect with artificial hands in such a way as to open and close the fingers. Professor Sauerbach, one of the professors, states that the anatomical difficulties have been overcome so effectively that all that now is required for complete success is a somewhat better artificial hand, and he expresses expectation that this soon will be invented.

PIANOS IN GERMANY.

Danzig, June 8.—Danzig has decreed that the owners of pianos shall pay an annual assessment of 12 marks on each ordinary upright piano, and one of 20 marks on each grand. Only such instruments as are used commercially are exempted.

COURTENAY ALDERMAN JOINS THE COLORS

Courtenay, June 8.—Alderman Fred Kerton has resigned his seat in the city council to join the colors. He has attached himself to the 13th Field Ambulance Corps at Work Point barracks, Victoria.

The young ladies of Courtenay gave a farewell dance to the 102nd Battalion. Although about half the battalion are away on leave, the affair was a great success, the opera house being comfortably filled. The well-known Harmony orchestra supplied the music and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

Provincial Constables Hannay and McDonald made another successful raid on a Chinese opium joint in Cumberland. They had hard work to get into the building, as the doors were heavily barred. Seven Chinamen were captured and a quantity of pipes, opium, etc., was confiscated and destroyed. The prisoners appeared before Magistrate Bickle. All pleaded guilty and were fined accordingly.

Forced to Leave School, Had St. Vitus' Dance

Astonishing Cure of This Nervous Trouble Effected by Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Here is a case where life-long gratitude will be felt for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. As a school girl and in later life Dr. Chase's Nerve Food came to the rescue when the nerves gave out. Now a healthy, robust woman happily gives the credit to this great food cure for restoring her to health and strength.

Miss Sadie M. White, 38 Waterloo street, Fredericton, N. B., writes:

"When ten years of age a friend of mine had St. Vitus' Dance and she had to leave school and go under a doctor's care. Instead of benefiting by the treatment she appeared to get worse. Her tonsils and tongue became so swollen that she could scarcely take any nourishment. For two weeks she was in this way and then took convulsions and nearly choked to death. She was ordered to the hospital, but soon got worse again. I recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to her and she used nine boxes, steadily growing better. Three years later a severe fright brought on the nervous trouble again, and she suffered ever; thing a human being could endure. Her mother bought a dozen boxes of the Nerve Food, and with this treatment she was fully restored. I wish you could see her now, a strong, healthy, robust woman with two lovely babies. She still uses the Nerve Food when she feels out of sorts, but has had no return of the old nervous trouble."

For weak, puny, nervous children there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to enrich the blood, restore the starved nerves and start them on the way to health. When they fail to get proper nourishment from the food they eat, this food cure presents the necessary ingredients in condensed and easily assimilated form, and strength and vigor is restored. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Limited, Toronto.

REPUBLICANS WILL NOMINATE HUGHES

Chicago, June 8.—Justice Charles Evans Hughes, of the supreme court of the United States, is slated to be nominated for the presidency by the Republican national convention probably to-morrow, unless George von L. Meyer and William Joseph, Jr., agree to-day on a Republican who will command the support of Col. Theodore Roosevelt.

WORK OF MUSICIANS AT THE BATTLE LINE

French Bands Have Been Called Upon to Display Great Bravery

Paris, June 8.—Since the beating of the drums that called France to arms, comparatively little martial music has been heard at the rear. Those who have been allowed in the zone of the armies have occasionally met a regimental band with drums and brass instruments slung over their shoulders, plodding along the road toward the first line; musicians go with the combatants and are subject to all the dangers of the war.

ROOSEVELT'S TRIBUTE TO EARL KITCHENER

Great Figure in Work of Spreading Civilization; Egypt and India

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 8.—Colonel Roosevelt made the following statement concerning Lord Kitchener: "Six years I passed through the Sudan and was more deeply impressed than I can well express by the extraordinary benefit secured to the natives of the country by Lord Kitchener's conquest and the administration of himself and of his lieutenant and successor, General Wingate.

BELGIAN BABIES IN NEED OF MILK

Supply Nearly Exhausted; Belgian Relief Committee Appeals to Canadians

Montreal, June 8.—While the appeal is going out to Canadians again to help in feeding the starving multitudes in Belgium there comes another and heart-rending plea for the babies of the stricken land. According to word received by an official of Belgium who is now on this side of the Atlantic, thousands of those babies are in want because of the scarcity of milk.

THE RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE AND OTHER PHASES.

The Russian offensive on the east front holds the centre of the stage in the great world-drama by right of its marked successes. Although it only began on Sunday, Petrograd announced yesterday that up to Tuesday General Brusiloff's army had captured 900 Austrian officers, 40,000 men, 77 guns, 134 machine guns and 49 trench mortars.

Lutsk is an important fortress on the Styr river in Volhynia about forty miles north of Galicia. It guards the northwestern angle of a triangular fortified system completed by Rovno and Dubno. Rovno, forty miles east of Lutsk, has been in Russian hands for months. Dubno, a similar distance south-west of Lutsk, is still held by the Austrians, as far as we can remember. These fortresses were captured by the Germans in their great drive last summer. If Lutsk has fallen the Austrian line at Dubno or in the neighborhood of it will be forced westward.

In co-ordination with the Russian effort the Italians are now counter-attacking furiously in the Tyrol. The purpose of this is to prevent the Austrians diverting troops from the sector to the Russian front.

Germany likewise will endeavor to meet the situation by reinforcing reinforcements from Courland, but this will be the signal for a Russian onslaught in that region. Moreover, von Hindenburg's army has been weakened considerably by the demands of the great struggle at Verdun. There are still several German and Austrian corps in Serbia, Bulgaria and Albania.

It would not be surprising if the Russian offensive developed into a general attack by the allies on all fronts. The time must be near at hand when Joffre will give the signal for the movement which would immediately relieve the pressure at Verdun.

mans might record at Verdun could be worth half the price that has been paid already. The Huns were willing to sacrifice 250,000 men to capture the fortress; they have lost 400,000. Any salient can be flattened if the aggressors have no regard for losses and are allowed to devote their undivided attention to it, but in this unprecedented war defeat is registered by the number of men lost, not by the sacrifice of a few miles of battered terrain.

The Germans evidently expect a British offensive shortly and are endeavoring to anticipate it by pegging away at the Ypres salient. They have captured some first-line British trenches at Hooge, following their attack upon the Canadian front south of that point. The allies will welcome these activities of the enemy in the west, for they are sure signs that he is becoming very nervous over the outlook. Besides, the more men he engages in Flanders and France the less he will be able to send to the east.

WHY NOT FIND OUT?

Yesterday we reproduced a letter sent by Mr. Brewster's counsel to the Premier offering an arrangement by which the opinion of the courts might be obtained without delay in respect of the various questions raised in the action recently entered by the opposition leader. If Mr. Bowser were as much concerned with the public interest as he is with his political fortunes he would co-operate with Mr. Brewster in obtaining a decision on these important points.

We know that the law in regard to payments to the Pacific Great Eastern was treated as if it did not exist. It is because this was typical of the government's general attitude towards the laws it is sworn to administer faithfully that Mr. Bowser not only did not take steps to ascertain whether a large part of the last legislative programme was valid but he and his supporters resent anybody else doing so?

WOMEN IN THE WAR.

In her inspiring address yesterday evening Mrs. Pankhurst pointedly emphasized the fact that this was a woman's war no less than a man's war. All that her sex held dear was at stake. Women were as vitally concerned as men in the determination of the issue of whether freedom and justice or the brutalizing theory that might makes right shall prevail.

We in Canada, thousands of miles from the main theatre of war, can realize only dimly the extent to which the women of Great Britain and her allies are devoting themselves to the cause for which their fathers, sons and brothers are fighting in the trenches. When the story of the struggle has been told the record of this phase of it will be one of its most moving chapters.

It is the same in Russia, France, Belgium, Serbia and Italy. In France women have reached the very summit of noble achievement. They furnish the answer to a question which many people on this side of the Atlantic have asked themselves regarding the extraordinary efforts of that country; how it is that a nation of less than forty million people, with nearly 3,000,000 casualties, with its chief industrial district in the hands of the enemy, is able to produce such an amazing supply of the implements and materials of war, and at the same time maintain the normal activities of trade, commerce and industry so successfully. It is because the women have filled the gaps created by the withdrawal of men to the army.

This war has topsy-turved the world of our former conception. It has disclosed the striking fact that nations have been laboring for generations on not more than half the strength of their human resources; that a vast field of skill, devotion, energy and courage has been lying unused. The ancients knew better, because they had to know to survive. The lesson will not be lost in the period of reconstruction which will follow the war. It is harder to build up than to pull down.

Boston Transcript: The German government has taken charge of the whole meat supply of the country, and already the supply is so low that the nation, outside the soldiers, is virtually on a vegetarian basis. It remains to be seen whether a robust and normally carnivorous population, like the German, can maintain its health and strength on a vegetable diet.

And still they come. The German admiralty now admits the loss of the battle-cruiser Lutzow. We expected that to-day, because yesterday Berlin "discovered" that the British battle-cruiser Princess Royal had also been sunk. To-morrow the German authorities will announce the fictitious loss of one or two more British capital ships which they will follow with the admission that the Seydlitz "has not returned to her base." This process will go on until the German people learn what happened to their navy. We observe that the German recapitulation of losses to-day includes the words "up to the present." Are we to infer from this that Germany is yet unable to account for all her units?

The Colonist asks people to stand by the "business government." A business government! Spending two dollars for every dollar of revenue in time of war with diminishing income and mounting debt. If a man did that in his own private business he would be sold out by the sheriff in a few months. Would Mr. Bowser's law firm do it? Would Hon. Lorne Campbell do it in the business conducted by him? Not much. But they are doing it with-out restraint with other people's money and credit.

So it is the loyal Comrade who proved a friend in need to the McBride government and was principally instrumental in perpetuating the rule which has all but caused the ruin of British Columbia who is directing the campaign for the salvation of Bowser. Comrade Hawthornthwaite did not go without his reward for services faithfully rendered in the past and doubtless he looks forward hopefully for further favors.

That great German naval victory over which American newspapers from the east even to the west have had difficulty in restraining a disposition to "chortle" has assumed a new aspect. A good many editorial expressions of opinion are doubtless now undergoing revision. A path has not been prepared for "invasion of England" after all.

The Toronto Star claims to have discovered the worst poet in the world. He is "London Bill," who writes verses for the advertiser of that city. The Star might revise its opinion if it saw some of the "poems" the Times receives, coupled with demands that they be given prominence on the front page.

A week ago there was great rejoicing in New York Hunnish quarters over the Kaiser's naval victory. The Staats Zeitung had clear visions of an "invasion of England." But as yet the fleet of German ships tied up in the North River are not being put in readiness to take advantage of "freedom of the seas."

Care sits so heavily upon the brow of the All-Highest these days that his tongue refuses to obey its office. He has not a word to say about Germany's "place in the sun." What would he not give for an assurance of the place Germany had "in the sun"?

The Huns give military reasons as an excuse for suppression of the truth respecting the results of the naval battle. There may have been internal as well as military reasons for the publication of lies. All the truth has not yet been told.

We are told that no premier ever appealed to the electorate of British Columbia on a better record than Mr. W. J. Bowser! Wow! What a libel upon some at least of Bowser's predecessors.

The Colonist is irritated. It accuses the Times of misrepresenting its statements "even to the extent of wilful and deliberate falsehood." But we really do shrink from the crime of forgery.

Eleven to one. And that exactly expresses the relative standing of Malcolm Macdonald and William John Bowser in the opinion of the electorate.

The game is the game of Bowser, but the hand is the hand of Hawthornthwaite! For proof of this assertion, wait for further political developments.

In a very short time now the world will understand why Germany was so desperately anxious for peace.

When Bowser and Hawthornthwaite enter into a political partnership, let the public beware.

Truth to the mind of the Hun is just as precious, as so many "scraps of paper."

THE OLD GRAY WALL.

Time out of mind I have stood Fronting the frost and the sun, That the dream of the world might endure And the goodly will be done.

Did the hand of the builder grieve, As he laid me stone by stone, A heart in the granite lurked, Patient and fond as his own?

Lovers have leaned on me Under the summer moon, And mowers laughed in my shade In the harvest heat at noon.

Children playing the fields With early flowers in spring, Old men turning to look When they heard a bluebird sing.

And travellers along the road, From rising to setting sun, Have seen, yet imagined not The kindness they gazed upon.

Ah, when will ye understand, Mortals—how deem it odd— Who rests on this old gray wall Lays a hand on the shoulder of God! —Bliss Carman.

FRENCH TROOPS AT PEKING; U. S. MEN READY. London, June 8.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Tien Tsin, China, says that the United States troops at that place have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to proceed to Peking. The dispatch also says the French authorities already have dispatched a strong force of native troops from the French protectorate of Anam to Peking. A delegation of officers of the body-guard of the new president, Lal Yuen Hung, has assured him of the fealty of the guard. The reports of movements of foreign troops in China indicates apprehension of disturbances following the death of Yuan Shi Kai. Direct dispatches from China and Japan, however, have given the impression that notwithstanding the unsettled conditions of the last few months, no serious disorders were expected. Tien Tsin is a treaty port about 70 miles southeast of Peking. Washington, June 8.—Twelve hundred men of the 15th Infantry, under Col. Harry C. Hale, stationed in Tien Tsin and along the railroad between Tientsin and Peking, and a legion guard of 450 marines, constitute the American military forces in China. It was said at the war department that Col. Hale might take any part of this force to Peking in an emergency without instructions. He probably prepared to act as soon as he had heard of President Yuan Shi Kai's death. State department advices from Peking have indicated that the Chinese public was in a remarkably quiescent state. The foreign military commanders of the international guards in Peking have been in conference, however, regarding necessary military measures to deal with possible disorder in connection with the influx into the legation quarter of large numbers of Chinese seeking refuge. GIRL HOBO HURT. San Bernardino, Cal., June 8.—Discovered lying on the Santa Fe railroad tracks in the Cajon Pass with both feet crushed off, Miss Elizabeth Huber, aged 23, who had "hobbed" her way to California from her home in Massachusetts, was brought here to-day, and it is stated she may die. The girl fell from a freight train on which she was stealing a ride. She was dressed as a man. In her pockets she had a letter from Harry Edhell, of Compton, which said: "I wish I had money enough to send for you." The old gentleman's wife was getting into a carriage, and he neglected to assist her. "You are not so gallant, John, as when I was a gal," she exclaimed, in gentle rebuke. "No," was his ready response "and you are not so buoyant as when I was a boy."

INSURANCE APPEAL

E. P. Davis Closes Address and is Followed by Sir Charles H. Tupper.

In the appeal court this morning E. P. Davis, K. C., closed his address in the case of the Dominion Trust Company against the New York and other life insurance companies. Mr. Davis had spoken for two days in behalf of the appellants. Yesterday afternoon he concluded that portion of the appeal dealing with the defence set up that Arnold had committed suicide. At the time of his death W. B. Arnold had applied for insurance in various companies amounting to $70,000. The premiums on this would be, Mr. Davis said, at the least $18,000 per annum, and Arnold's salary was $14,000 per annum. He was hopelessly involved and almost facing prosecution. He borrowed the gun with which he was killed and bought cartridges for it. He was unfamiliar with guns, never having used one to any extent, in fact the evidence showed that only on a single occasion had he used one, and that was in his youth. Mr. Davis contended that all these facts went to show that Arnold could not face the future with the impending financial collapse, and preferred to die rather than go to prison.

This morning Mr. Davis dealt with the several applications that had been made for insurance and the incorrect answers that had been made in these. Arnold had said there were no other applications pending, and had given wrong answers to the medical examiner of the company in regard to the death of his father.

Sir Charles H. Tupper, representing the Sovereign and Mutual Life companies, began his address on the point of consolidation. He said the judge in the lower court was wrong in ordering the actions to be consolidated. Such an order should give some one charge of the whole case, but the judge had, in an oral statement, said he would leave each of the counsel to look after their own defences. These defences were, he said, different and should be treated differently. He then went on to refer to the question of suicide as defined in the insurance policies, and was still addressing the court on this point at the lunch adjournment.

RETURNING TO FRONT

Pte. Cecil Milloy, One of First Canadian Soldiers Wounded, Rejoins for Active Service.

Pte. Cecil Milloy, who was probably the first Canadian soldier to be wounded in the war, and who returned to his home in Victoria last November after leaving the hospital has rejoined for active service, this time with the American Legion.

Pte. Milloy is well known in Victoria.

PTE. CECIL MILLOY.

his home being at 1512 Jubilee avenue. He attended the city schools, enlisting with the 30th Battalion while he was still a student in the High school. He was hit in the arm by a German sniper before the Canadians were through any of their big actions, and was taken to hospital in England early in the spring of 1915. He has been keen to return to the front ever since he came back to Victoria, and his fine spirit and pluck are cause of much admiration. Pte. Milloy expects to leave Victoria next week to join the battalion now in barracks at Calgary.

TO INTEREST TOURISTS

Development Association Getting Out Bulletins on How to Enjoy Victoria.

Believing that the proper policy in regard to tourists is not only to get them here, but to look after them when they are in the city so that they may become admirers of Victoria's beautiful scenery and the advantages of a holiday here, the commissioner of the Victoria Daily Tourist Programme, covering a stay of eight days, with something different to do every morning and every afternoon. On the back of the bulletin there will be a two color map of the city showing the street car lines and places of interest, and how they may be found by the tourist. These bulletins will be printed on Tuesday and are to be distributed to the hotel and the tally-men, who will be requested to give them to all tourists coming in.

The association also is issuing a large map of Vancouver Island, from Victoria to Campbell river, with a new road map of the peninsula and the Georgian circuit.

A letter was received this morning from the minister of mines promising a conference on the iron and steel proposal and the smelter opening that has been taken up by the association. In connection with the latter, the commissioner has received some letters promising that there will be a large supply of ore if the Ladysmith smelter is reopened.

Flags at Half Mast.—A student of the subject has offered through the Times an explanation of "Half Mast," in view of the fact that many people take the expression literally in lowering a flag to that position as a sign of mourning, as in the present instance for the late Earl Kitchener. The flag should be just a flag-width from the top of the mast, he explained. The idea is that room must be left at the top for the flag of the conqueror, which, in this instance, is Death. This explains better than anything else why flags should not be lowered actually to "half mast."

BRITAIN'S FLEET BULWARK OF EMPIRE

Part Played by Navy in War Referred to at "Britain Prepared" Pictures

The graphic display of Britain's might on land and sea depicted in "Britain Prepared," continues to attract large audiences to the Royal Victoria theatre, where these stirring pictures are being shown twice daily throughout the week. Last night the theatre was crowded by an enthusiastic audience, and intense interest was evinced in the wonderful films which from an educational point of view have never been surpassed.

The principal speaker at last evening's presentation was W. W. Blakemore, president of the Navy League. Col. Duff Stuart, D.O.C., was to have made a short address, but it was explained by Manager Denham that owing to pressing engagements it was impossible for him to appear. Mr. Blakemore therefore kindly consenting to fill in the breach.

In a short talk Mr. Blakemore referred more particularly to the great part the British navy had played, and is still playing, in this momentous struggle—the greatest conflict ever waged between nations. The "allent navy" it was sometimes called, the floating bulwark of the empire.

He pointed out that the remarkably realistic set of pictures exhibited gave one a splendid conception of what was being done at this time by the navy. He referred to the manner the fleet had acquitted itself in the recent engagement off the Jutland coast, in which, when the truth became known, it would be found that the German losses were heavier than the British, "not merely relatively, but absolutely."

Mr. Blakemore emphasized the fact that no people were more deeply interested in the work of the navy than the people of Canada, and more particularly the people of British Columbia. He enlarged on the development of the mercantile marine on the ocean lying to the westward, and by way of illustration spoke of the tremendous strides made by Japan in this direction. The Nippon Yusen Kaisha, the premier Japanese steamship concern, had recently announced total receipts of over fourteen million dollars for six months trading, which was but an indication of the tremendous business being done by our allies across the Pacific. Japan guaranteed protection for her shipping by the maintenance of an adequate navy. Japan's navy stood sixth or seventh at the beginning of the war, and now it was the third largest in the world. On the other hand, the United States navy had dropped from third to sixth place.

British Columbia was destined to play a very important part in the trade of the Pacific and naval protection would be required on this ocean just as much as on the Atlantic. The matinee audience at the "Britain Prepared" show was addressed by Bishop Macdonald.

AT THE THEATRES

DOMINION THEATRE.

The love of a Spanish maid for a handsome American is told in the Pallas picture, "The Heart of Paula," released on the Paramount programme and to be seen at the Dominion theatre to-day, to-morrow and Saturday. Lenore Ulrich, who is entrancingly beautiful as the high-born Castilian made poor by the unsettled times, take the leading part.

The substitution of Bruce McLean for Stephen Paghmann on a business trip to Mexico led to the trouble. Stephen, a young mining engineer, receives a commission to examine a mine in Mexico. His young wife is very apprehensive and her fears are shared by her brother, Bruce McLean. When Stephen is about to cross the border, Bruce overtakes him in a frontier hotel. There Bruce persuades Stephen, for the sake of his young wife, to turn the undertaking over to him. Bruce on arriving at Piedro Blanco, a small Mexican town poses as Stephen, using his name and passport. As he stands talking to the American consul, a beautiful Spanish girl passes and captivates Bruce with the fascination of her glance. Bruce's attentions to Paula awaken the intense jealousy of Emiliano Pacheco, the guerrilla leader, who also is madly in love with Paula. Paula loathes him. Pacheco "fixes"

Bruce's guide and by treachery Bruce is captured on the trail to the mine and is held for ransom. Stephen's wife hurries south with the money, but before her arduous journey Paula that Bruce has a wife and that she is coming. Watching as the supposed wife kisses her brother, Paula's plans revenge and she betrays her plot to release Bruce. Recaptured as he breaks for liberty, Bruce is condemned to death. How Paula saves his life is told in a manner which holds the interest of the audience to the end.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

"The Makers of Dreams," a special three-part Broadway feature, with Hal Ford in the leading role, is the principal film at the Majestic theatre. It is Mrs. Merwin's desire that her son, Harold, marry Rina, an heiress. To this end she gives a week-end party in the heiress' honor. Harold, of a studious nature, finds himself unable to stand the chatter of the guests and strikes out toward the woods. Attracted by the music, Lorna approaches the mansion. Harold is amazed to see the girl break into a dance, beautiful in its wildness. Discovering her audience Lorna flees. Harold overtakes the girl in the woods just as she reaches her cabin. In the days which follow, the two fall deeply in love with each other. Mrs. Merwin is horrified when she learns what has occurred. Meeting Lorna, she succeeds in making the girl believe that Harold's future absolutely demands that he marry Rina. Unaware of her interview with his mother, Harold is amazed when Lorna breaks their engagement. Filled with rage and pique, the boy makes Rina his bride. The shock drives Lorna insane. The ignorant settlers gradually come to regard her as a witch-woman. Neal, Harold's son, bears a remarkable resemblance to his father. The latter has never forgotten Lorna and when Neal announces his intention of marrying Josie, a poor girl, Harold endears ore to help the boy win Rena's consent. Neil and Josie elope, going to the old Merwin Mansion to spend their honeymoon. Lorna, a withered hag, sees Neil and mistaking him for Harold, she frantically tells him that she has loved him all along. Neil, however, spurns her. Wild with rage, Lorna later captures Josie and is about to kill her when Neil saves his bride's life. Harold and Rena follow Neil to the mansion. Thus the old sweethearts again meet. It restores Lorna's mind but the shock of all she had endured is too great for the old woman, and she dies in the arms of the man she loves.

Walters Employed on G. T. P. Steamer Walk Off Ship in a Body

Because of the refusal of the company to grant demands for an increase in wages of $10 per month, the entire squad of stewards employed aboard the G. T. P. steamer Prince Rupert have walked off the ship.

The companies concerned compromised by formulating the following scale of wages: Quartermasters and waiters, $55 per month; able seamen, $50 and coal firemen $40, and these conditions were apparently accepted.

MAKURA DEPARTS; NIAGARA RETURNING

Light Cabin List for Australia by Outbound Canadian-Australian Liner

At 8 o'clock last night the Canadian-Australian liner Makura, Captain J. D. S. Phillips, slipped her mooring lines at the outer docks and headed to sea on her return trip to Auckland and Sydney.

She took out 24 saloon and 50 second-class, also a number of third-class passengers, while in her hold were stowed approximately 3,000 tons of general cargo.

Six additional cabin passengers are booked to board the liner at Honolulu. Among the Makura's first-class passengers sailing last night were: Miss H. C. Brand, W. B. Carmichael, M. J. Craig, Guy C. DeLamar, Mr. and Mrs. R. Dickenson, F. O. Davis, H. R. Evans, Mrs. Evans, W. W. Forward, E. N. Grimwade, Rev. J. Q. A. Henry, D. D. G. Jeffrey, Mr. and Mrs. A. Longland, Miss A. B. Longland, Miss S. DOLLAR LINE LEASES VANCOUVER TERMINAL

Vancouver, June 8.—Announcement is made by the Robert Dollar Steamship Company that this shipping concern has leased the Great Northern dock for handling trans-Pacific steamers. The Dollar line has been using the Great Northern dock for some months for its vessels plying to China, Japan and Vladivostok, but the company has now leased the terminal, which is the eastern section of the Balfour, Guthrie dock, and it will be known as the Dollar dock. The steamer Bessie Dollar, Capt. Abernethy, is at this pier discharging cargo from the Orient.

MORE POWERFUL LIGHT FOR BALLENAS ISLAND

Changes are to be made in the light at Ballenas Island, 20 miles north of Nanaimo, according to an announcement made at the marine department to-day. A flashing light of more powerful radius will be installed to replace the present revolving light at this point. The characteristics of the new light will be three flashes every minute. The government plans to gradually eliminate all the steady lights on the coast in favor of the flashing type.

RUSSIA IS FUMIGATED.

The C.P.R. liner Empress of Russia, which is scheduled to sail for the Orient next Thursday, has been thoroughly fumigated during her stay at Vancouver. She will take out a large list of saloon passengers and a capacity cargo.

RETURNING IN BLUE FUNNEL SERVICE

BRITISH STEAMER TEUCER

WERE BIG FACTOR IN ATLANTIC TRADE

Only One of Original Canadian-Northern Fleet Remains Afloat

The Canadian Northern Steamships, Ltd., which recently disposed of its interests to the Cunard Steamship Co., was incorporated in October, 1909, with an authorized capital of $2,000,000. Early in 1910 three steamships were acquired, the Heliopolis, Cairo and Voltorno. The two first named were built at Glasgow for the Egyptian Mail Steamship Co., and had been operated between Marseilles and Alexandria. They were sister vessels of 11,900 tons each, equipped luxuriously, and each driven by three sets of Parsons compound steam turbines. After some alterations, to make them suitable for the Atlantic passenger trade, they were renamed Royal George and Royal Edward respectively. The Voltorno, 3,581 tons, was purchased from the North-west Transport Line, a concern in which Sir William Mackenzie was interested. This vessel had been operated under charter by the Uranium Steamship Co., between Halifax, New York and Rotterdam.

BIG DROP EXPECTED IN OCEAN FREIGHTS

Release of Ships by Admiralty Results in Large Movement of Wheat

Winnipeg, June 7.—According to a well-informed shipping owner ocean freights between Canada and Great Britain will soon drop thirty per cent. from what they were three months ago. A large quantity of wheat is now being moved in consequence. He stated the reason for reduction is the release of many ships by the admiralty for commercial purposes.

The imperial authorities favor having all army cantons supplied with Canadian canned goods instead of American. Arrangements are being made to supply British Columbia salmon, also to supply canned fruit instead of the California product. It is hoped to introduce eastern brands of tinned haddock and Canadian bully beef instead of the Chicago product.

KENKON MARU WAS RAISED FROM ROCKS

Vessel Bumped So Badly in Gale That Salvage Operations Were Suspended

K. Inui, one of the owners of the stranded Japanese steamer Kenkon Maru, No. 3, which has been ashore on Belle Chain Reef since January 12 last, was in Victoria yesterday from Mayne Island. For about two months past Mr. Inui has been superintending salvage operations carried on by Japanese wreckers who were brought over from Japan for the purpose of salvaging the steamer.

But for a heavy blow during the week-end it is possible that the Kenkon might now be afloat. Mr. Inui stated yesterday that the salvage operations had reached such a stage that on June 3 the vessel was raised slightly from the bottom and the chances of getting her off were exceptionally bright, when the gale broke and upset all calculations. As the vessel was lifted she began to bump so badly on the rocks that it was dangerous to proceed and the vessel was settled again in her original position. The vessel was raised by pumping operations. The Japanese divers have succeeded in building cofferdams in the interior of the ship, covering the hole in the hull. After the unsuccessful attempt to float the steamer Mr. Inui decided to suspend salvage operations until a more favorable opportunity presented itself. He expects to make another effort to float the ship about the middle of the month.

MAQUINNA TOUCHED BOTTOM IN SKEENA

C. P. R. Steamer Declared Seaworthy After Survey at Vancouver and Proceeded North

Upon arrival at Vancouver from the north on Tuesday the C. P. R. steamer Princess Maquinna reported having struck bottom on Friday last while the North Skeena passage, known as "The Slue," one of the shallow waterways at the entrance to the Skeena river.

The obstruction touched by the Princess Maquinna is believed to be the rock which almost blocks the fairway to vessels bound for the Dominion wharf, a menace to navigation feared by all coast skippers whose itinerary takes them to those particular waters. It was stated at the B. C. Coast offices to-day that the Maquinna had sustained some damage, the full extent of which was not easy to determine until the vessel had been hauled out. A survey of the hull was made while the Maquinna was at Vancouver and she was declared to be seaworthy, the steel plates not having been punctured.

PRINCE ALBERT CALLS; OFFICERS TRANSFERRED

Making her first call here in many months, the G. T. P. steamer Prince Albert, which has been operating in the Vancouver-Queen Charlotte service, reached Victoria about midnight en route to the west coast. While the Prince Albert was here, Second Officer Niel McLean was transferred to the steamer Prince Rupert, while Third Officer Mabbis, of the latter vessel, went second on the Albert. Early this morning the Prince Albert proceeded to the west coast of Vancouver Island to take aboard 200 Indians at Clayoquot and other points for the northern canneries.

PROMINENT MEN ARE COMING ON NIAGARA

Dispatches from Australia state that among the saloon passengers coming on to this coast by the Canadian-Australian Royal Mail liner Niagara, which leaves Sydney to-day for Victoria, are Sir Rider Haggard, the famous novelist, and Sir David Mills, of the Union Steamship Company, of New Zealand.

HAWSER FOULED PROPELLOR.

Vancouver, June 8.—The C.P.R. steamer Princess Ena, from Vancouver for Skagway, with the barge Will W. Case in tow, got into trouble in the gulf this morning when the towing hawser fouled her propeller. She cast the barge adrift and the Case was picked up by the C.P.R. tug Nitinat, which was bound for the island with a transfer barge. The Nitinat let her tow go and picked up the Case, towing inshore until she could find anchorage. The Ena cleared her wheel, picked up the Case and proceeded.

SPORTING NEWS

AL. DAVIES READY FOR HARD BATTLE

145-Pound Class Should Produce Some Fast Milling

Everything is in readiness for tonight's big boxing tournament at the V.I.A.A. Club rooms, Victoria West, and a large crowd is expected to turn out. The draw as announced today by Billy Davies should provide some slam-bang battles, most of the entries being mixers.

At Davies goes on with Stoker Yeates, of the Rainbow, and it looks as if the local favorite will have to score a k.o. to win from his heavier opponent. Although he has had no sparring partner, Al has worked hard for this battle, and is in the pink of condition. In the 145-lb. class Petty Officer Curzon and Geo. Corke have been drawn together in the preliminary bout, and this should become one of the best fights of the evening. Curzon will have the advantage of experience over the V. I. boy and also packs a hard kick, but in the youngster he will meet a mixer who will fight all the way. In this same class Alex. McKay will be seen in action again, his opponent being Smith, of the C.M.R. Following is the draw:

108 lbs.—H.M.C.S. Rainbow entry, a bye; Bugler E. Rivers, 103rd Battalion, v. Drummer A. Earl, 103rd Battalion.

115 lbs.—Battling Pica, V.I.A.A.A., v. Pte. Marino, B. C. Bantams; Pte. Henshaw, B. C. Bantams, a bye.

125 lbs.—Stoker Sinclair, H.M.C.S. Rainbow, v. Pte. S. Edmann, B. C. Bantams.

135 lbs.—Stoker Slinger Woods, H.M.C.S. Rainbow, v. Pte. Fulton, 11th C.M.R.

145 lbs.—Petty Officer Curzon, H.M.C.S. Rainbow, v. Geo. Corke, V.I.A.A. A.; Alex. McKay, V.I.A.A.A., v. Pte. Smith, 11th C.M.R.

155 lbs.—Lee-Cpl. McKinnie, 11th C.M.R., v. Stoker McDonough, H.M.C.S. Rainbow; Lee-Cpl. Stanton, a bye.

Light-heavyweight—Lee-Cpl. Stanton, 11th C.M.R., v. Lee-Cpl. McKinnie, 11th C.M.R.

Special main event—Al. Davies, V.I.A.A.A., v. Stoker Teddy Yeates, H.M.S. Newcastle.

This looks like the best bill that Billy Davies has put on since the organization of the V.I.A.A.A., and the local promoter is to be complimented on being able to give the fans such a high-class bill under the present conditions. The bouts will be open at 7.45 p.m. and the bouts will start at 8.15 p.m. The following will act as officials: Referee, W. H. Davies; Judges, Mr. Tilley and Lieut. Ross; announcer, G. I. Warren; timekeeper, L. Oliver.

Two added entries were received this morning for tonight's boxing tournament and have been accepted by Billy Davies. They are the entries of Ptes. Clarkson and Hutchison, of the B. C. Bantams. Clarkson is a 108-pounder and will be drawn against the Rainbow entry in that class. Clarkson will fight in the 125-lb. class and will draw a bye.

YACHT RACE CALLED OFF.

Portland, Ore., June 8.—According to a letter received by Robert H. Ellis from Hertram E. Bowler, secretary of the San Diego Yacht Club, it has been found necessary to call off the big San Diego to Honolulu yacht race, which was to have been held during the early part of June. Bowler's letter states that the Honolulu Yacht Club, for several reasons, was not in a position to stage the event this year, and that the San Diego Yacht Club was also unable to go through with the programme, without the assistance of the Honolulu organization. Hopes of a race next year were contained in the communication.

Eddie Plank pitched in a world series in 1906 and 1914—nine years apart. This will stand as a record unless Christy Mathewson gets a shot at the world series of 1916. Eleven years between brass away at for a number of fleeting decades.

FRENCH PUGILIST NOW A WAR AVIATOR

Carpentier Says He Still Has His Eyes on Big Jess Willard

According to a Paris correspondent of the New York World, George Carpentier, sergeant in the French Flying Corps and champion de boxe of France, has no intention of giving up pugilism for aviation. At present flying is both his business and his pleasure. In the future—in that dim future when the war will have ceased—it will become merely his avocation. The prize ring must remain, he says, his only true vocation.

"Whoever started that story about my giving up boxing was very badly informed," Carpentier told the correspondent. "Why, just to show how false it is, I don't mind letting you know that the first thing I'm going to do after we've put the Germans out for the count is to jump across the Atlantic and have a go at Jess Willard—that is, if he's still champion. Whether it's Willard or somebody else, it's pretty certain to be an American. We on this side of the water haven't got time to be going after championships nowadays."

Carpentier was in Paris on a few days' leave from the front when I met him. In his well-fitted blue tunic, upon the breast of which there hung the bronze Croix de Guerre for gallantry under fire, the young Frenchman looked fit to clamber over the ropes at a minute's notice.

After he had so emphatically disposed of the report of his retirement from the squared circle I asked him whether he found time to follow the fighting news from America.

"Well," he replied with a smile, "I confess to having a very much keener interest in the European fighting news as related in our official communiques. Still, I'm not altogether unfamiliar with Mr. Jess Willard's career. Although I've never seen him in action, I've read of his chances against him."

"Yes, occasionally, but perhaps not as often as I should—at least so far as training for boxing pure and simple is concerned. But I'm continually taking exercises to keep me fit in the general sense. And an aviator's job is very effective in preventing idleness. You don't get very fat skipping about over the German lines, and, candidly speaking, I find dodging shrapnel from anti-aircraft guns a whole lot more exciting than the hardest ring fight I was ever in. Landing on the right spots of your opponent's anatomy isn't half as hard as keeping your machine right side up in a sudden gale, particularly when you pilot a heavy going biplane, like my Farman. Yes, sir, there's no sport like flying. Just as for me there's no business equal to boxing."

"Have you ever done any glove fighting at the front?"

"No," Carpentier replied regretfully. "I'm sorry to say I haven't. One time it looked as if I were going to get a chance at a bit of sparring. There were some English chaps attached to the Royal Army Medical Corps in my sector, and one of them, who had quite a reputation as an amateur, was keen to have a go with me—of course under amateur conditions. We had the match all arranged when I was suddenly ordered to another sector, and so it fell through. Don't get the idea from that that the French authorities were afraid I might do one of our allies some harm and so had me transferred. They had no objection to the bout whatever, and it may still be arranged. The conditions were to be six rounds of two minutes each with six-ounce gloves. I never saw anybody so disappointed as that English doctor when I had to tell him it was all off."

Carpentier has been proposed for commissioned rank and is likely to be gazetted a second lieutenant at any time.

MAY EMPLOY WOMEN ON GOLF COURSES

London, June 8.—The war has made great inroads on the membership and income of most of the golf clubs in England, and the result has been that for a long time the labor employed has been reduced to a minimum. Some clubs have disbanded and the land broken up and turned to agricultural use. Most of the professionals, their assistants and the male staff have either gone to the front or are ineligible for military service. Caddies, as far as many clubs are concerned have ceased to exist. It is expected that the experiment will be made of employing women as green keepers, and for indoor work in the club houses.

San Francisco, Cal., June 8.—William is going after the world's unpeaced record of 1.56%, is the word that comes from the east. "Doc" Tanner, trainer of C. K. Billings' string of champions, is pointing the sensational pacer at North Randall to make this wonderful speed attempt. It was Doc Tanner who drove Hibian to his trotting mark, and William has shown speed enough to

GREAT FALLS LOSES HARD FOUGHT GAME

NO MORE GOLF.

"No more golf for me while I'm in baseball. I believe it interferes with my pitching."

"McGraw's got the best team he's had since he's been manager of the Giants."

"We can make about five runs a game and will. With any sort of pitching, we'll win in that hitting."

These statements from the lips of Christy Mathewson, the New York Giant's pitcher.

Matty still has "stiff," according to other Giants, not according to Matty, who does not talk much about his own equipment. He isn't giving up golf, a game which he loves, for any other reason than a hunch that the swing of a golf club has a tendency to hurt his left shoulder, the one which pained him so much late last season.

OFFICERS TO WEAR MOURNING FOR WEEK

Order Issued in Connection With Death of Field Marshal Lord Kitchener

In the last military orders issued there is the announcement that the army will be in mourning for one week on account of the death of Field Marshal Lord Kitchener. The order reads: "In accordance with instructions received from militia headquarters, it is notified, for the information of all concerned, that officers will wear mourning, and flags on all armories, military buildings and camps will be half-masted for a period of one week from to-day in memory of the late Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, secretary of state for war, Great Britain."

A military order issued from Ottawa states that men who are wearing uniforms without authority will be prosecuted. The order has been made because in some cities men have been found masquerading in uniforms. Those when apprehended can be prosecuted under the War Relief Act.

Major J. R. Roaf, commanding the Nanaimo tunnelling company, has recruited 60 men. He needs 225 more. Lieutenant Gamble is in Victoria seeking recruits. Those desiring to join can apply at 22 Arcade building, or by telephone 3391R.

G. D. H. Lucas, 222 Russell street, has received information that his son, Pioneer John S. Lucas, who left here Christmas Day, is in No. 1 Canadian General Hospital with a wound in the right arm. Formerly he was in the 5th Gordons. He transferred to the 62nd Battalion and thence to the Pioners. He was wounded about the end of last month.

News has been received at the forestry department of the death on June 2 of Russell J. Chamberlain as the result of an aeroplane accident at Reading, where he was training. Mr. Russell left the provincial service in December. His parents reside in Toronto.

Pte. J. Graham Simpson, who has been disabled by a gunshot wound in the head during the recent action in which the 3rd Canadian Pioneers suffered so heavily, left Victoria with the 48th Battalion, and has been wounded twice since he reached the firing line. His mother, who lives at 214 Cook street, received a telegram from Ottawa yesterday saying that he had been admitted to hospital on May 30. Pte. Simpson was wounded the first time during April, when he nearly suffered the loss of two fingers. He was born at Winnipeg, and celebrated his twentieth birthday on May 19 this year. He was a pupil for some years at South Park school, but just prior to enlisting was working for the Mutrie Shoe Company.

CITY SCHOOL BOARD

Number of Matters Will Be Before Trustees at Regular Monthly Meeting.

The June meeting of the city school board, to be held on Wednesday, will bring a considerable number of changes, as the resignations of teachers at the end of this term and the possible appointment of their successors will be before the meeting. The minimum number of teachers necessary will probably be appointed, as the committee on reorganization is still engaged in preparing for the removal of classes and rearrangement of schools, in order that as little change as possible may take place. While it will be impossible to know how many pupils are passing out of the graded schools into the High school this summer until late in July when the pass list is available, the board will have a pretty good idea soon of the probable situation after the summer vacation. The committee has already reported on certain changes which will modify the status of a large number of the schools. The report of the judges on the stinging competitions last month will be to hand, giving comments on the result of their examinations. Several routine matters are awaiting attention.

ORPET TRIAL

Waukegan, Ill. June 8.—With the jury in the trial of Will Orpet finally completed after the examination of more than 1,200 witnesses, the actual trial of the University of Wisconsin student charged with the murder of his sweetheart, Marion Lambert, was begun to-day. Frank Lambert, father of the dead girl, took the stand as the first witness for the state. State Attorney Ralph Dady is said to have 125 witnesses, and the defence is reported to have but 25. According to estimates of attorneys in the case, the trial probably will occupy another month.

WINNIPEG BANK CLEARINGS.

Winnipeg, June 8.—The bank clearings here for the week ended to-day were $38,492,174. For the corresponding week last year the clearings were $23,815,221, and in the previous year $27,689,234.

DIED.

OHREN—On the 8th inst., at the Tourist Rooms, Aubrey Lambert Ohren, aged 22 years, a native of St. Louis, Mo. A resident of this city for the past twenty years. Deceased leaves to mourn his loss, besides his wife and three children. This city, two brothers and one sister. The funeral will take place on Saturday, 10th inst., 8:45 o'clock, from the Seale Funeral Chapel, and 15 minutes later at St. Andrew's Cathedral, where Mass will be said. Interment Rose B. Cemetery.

CAME THROUGH AN INFERNO; STILL WITH THE GRAND FLEET

H. M. S. TIGER

Describing the part played by the British battle-cruiser in the battle of Jutland, the Scotsman, of Edinburgh, said: "Once there was a concentrated fire upon the Tiger—such a volume of fire as few vessels have experienced and survived. The sudden alteration of the course of the German ships as their struggle to escape began threw the Tiger under the fire of more than a score of ships. The ordeal lasted for ten minutes, and the marvel is that the Tiger should have steamed back to port."

PATRIOTIC CRICKET ON DOMINION DAY

Inter-City Game Being Arranged on Holiday for Benefit of Red Cross

Percy C. Payne, president of the Victoria and District Cricket League, in a letter addressed to the Times, makes an appeal to the sports-loving public on behalf of the patriotic cricket game to be played on the Jubilee Hospital grounds on Dominion Day, between teams representing Victoria and Vancouver. The letter follows:

"May I enlist, through the valuable medium of your columns, the sympathy and support of the sports-loving public of Victoria with the endeavors of the Victoria and District Cricket League, to make a big success of the inter-city cricket game which is to take place at the Jubilee Hospital grounds on July 1 (Dominion Day) between teams representing Victoria and Vancouver. This game, which is being played under the auspices and for the benefit of the Victoria branch of the Red Cross Society, is the first game of the second annual series of matches which are being played wholly and solely for the benefit of the Red Cross Society; and the whole of the proceeds, with the exception of actual expenses (which are not likely to be heavy) will be given entirely to the Red Cross Society."

SPOKE OF WOMEN'S PART

Mrs. Pankhurst Addressed Big Meeting at Victoria Club Yesterday Afternoon

Women of Victoria showed the greatest possible interest in what women in the old world had been doing since the war by attending, in numbers which taxed its utmost capacity, the hall of the Victoria Club, the address given yesterday afternoon at that place by Mrs. Pankhurst. The event was semi-social in character, tea being served.

The subject was treated with great skill and forcefulness, the speaker touching on the general principles of women's service to the empire at the present time and pointing out some of the special duties which they have assumed. Her address on the main subject only commenced after a very feeling tribute to the late Earl Kitchener, in the course of which she called on the assembly to stand as an expression of regret at his untimely passing.

Women's achievements, she sketched in rapid review, pointing out how they were to be found in social and industrial work of all kinds. By old standards the work which they were now doing was not women's work at all. But all honest work should by rights be open to women as well as to men, and in this sense they were accomplishing much in aid of the empire. Mrs. Pankhurst refuted a widely-spread report that drunkenness among women was on the increase since the war. The statement had caused great indignation among women, who knew better. As a result an organization had been formed amongst soldiers' wives, centres where such women could find some relief from the monotony of their lives. Among these a great educational work was being done. The women who were interperate before were probably interperate still. But the other women were better off; they had more money to spend than they had before the homes were better furnished, the children better clothed, and better fed. Beside the allowance

ADVISES DEVELOPING IRON ORE INDUSTRY

William Blakemore Addresses Rotary Club; Says B. C. Should Begin

Argus Carrying Ore to Tacoma Smelter, Founders After Striking Log

Speaking before the Rotary Club at lunch to-day on the "Mineral Production of Vancouver Island and the Industrial Possibilities Connected With It," William Blakemore referred to the coal and ore deposits of Vancouver and adjacent islands, and expressed the hope that they should be developed and the huge resources utilized at once.

BARGE GOES DOWN OFF FRASER RIVER

The Argus, Carrying Ore to Tacoma Smelter, Founders After Striking Log

At 2 o'clock this morning the barge Argus, laden with a cargo of ore from Britannia Mines, Howe Sound, for Tacoma smelter, struck a log or some other obstacle which struck the mouth of the Fraser river. In less than an hour the barge foundered, going down stern first, and the air compression blowing out the bows. The two men on board the Argus, who were standing watch and waiting for steaming purposes, were saved by the Vancouver tug Clayburn, which had the barge in tow. It is reported from Tacoma, where the barge was owned by the Coastwise Tug & Barge Company, that the cargo of ore was valued at $20,000 and the barge at $5,000.

CHILDREN GIVE CONCERT

Big Audience Attends Patriotic Entertainment at Empress Hotel Yesterday

A charming entertainment took place yesterday afternoon at the Empress hotel. Despite the heat of the day, there was a big attendance. The occasion was the programme given under the auspices of the Navy League Chapter, I. O. D. E. in the handsome ballroom of the hotel, which was beautifully decorated with bunting and flowers and emblems of a patriotic character. Nearly four hundred spectators were present, including Mrs. F. S. Barnard.

OBITUARY RECORD

The death occurred at the Jubilee Hospital yesterday of Thomas T. Collins, aged 26 years, a native of England. The deceased had been employed at the Empress hotel for the last two years, and had many friends who are grieved to hear of his demise. He is survived by his mother, living in England. The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Thomson Funeral Chapel. Interment will be at Ross Bay cemetery.

FOR RED CROSS

Rotary Club Able to Give Society $497.50 as Result of Old Goods Collection.

The result of the Rotary Club collection of second-hand goods on behalf of the Red Cross Society funds was made known at the Rotary Club lunch to-day by James Hunter, president of the club. Mr. Hunter said there had been 70 loads of goods collected, but 30 of these had been of no use to the dealers who purchased the stuff. The other loads had been sorted and priced to the satisfaction of the Rotary Club committee, who had charge of the collection, and the result was that to-day the club was handing to the Red Cross a cheque for $477.50, which with another $20 to be collected, would make a total of $497.50. The total amount received had been $554.50, the difference being used in cartage of the things from the districts to a central location, for the employment of a watchman and for advertising, the latter cost being $2.

Nabob Girl Finds Increasing Number of Users of Nabob Products.

It is getting to be very little trouble for the Nabob girl to give away money. While early last week the people were not obeying the impulse to stock Nabob goods in order to be prepared when the Nabob girl called, they are taking no chances this week. Almost every place the Nabob girl goes she finds a user of Nabob goods waiting for her, ready to win the money and thereby to ahead a one or two dollar bill.

Through a typographical error in yesterday's paper, the list of Tuesday's winners was listed on Monday's. Monday's list was published in Tuesday's paper. A long list of Wednesday's winners will be found in another column.

The Nabob girl reports that almost everyone now understands that Nabob dollars are real dollars, and the most gratifying part of her report is that the people find Nabob goods to be the real thing, being high grade pure food products. Of course the manufacturers of Nabob goods have known this for a long time. A great many people suspected it and became constant users of Nabob goods and found that they were fully justified in their choice. The few people who have not used Nabob goods, but are getting ready for the Nabob girl by purchasing a full line of Nabob products, will find whether the Nabob girl chances to call on them or not, that the goods they have purchased represent value for the money paid, and are of the highest grade of quality.

WOUNDED IN ACTION

Lieut. E. G. Scott, Who Lived Here With 48th Battalion, Ranched in Okanagan.

According to a message received this morning by Mrs. Scott, 1336 Minto street, Fairfield, her husband, Lieut. E. G. Scott, who left here with the 48th Battalion, is suffering with a severe gunshot wound sustained in service at the front.

Lieut. Scott was ranching near Armstrong, B. C., when the war broke out, and very shortly afterwards joined at Kamloops for active service. He was given a commission in the 48th Battalion, which went to the front as part of the 3rd Pioneer Battalion. He was in hospital in England when the unit went to the front, and joined them as soon as he was able to leave, having been at the front since some time in March.

An Englishman by birth, Lieut. Scott came out to the Okanagan about eleven years ago. His mother lives at Ashford, England, and besides his wife there are three children here, all living at Minto street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Carr, of 132 Joseph street, have returned from Kamloops, where they have spent several months.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated at Endiang, Alta., on June 1, when A. Honor Gregory-Allen, daughter of Mrs. Gregory-Allen, 1243 Oscar street, late of Victoria, Ontario, was united in marriage to Mr. E. Hunt, of Richtons ranch, Endiang. The bride looked pretty in old lace over white, trimmed with orange blossoms, and a wreath of orange blossoms on her hair. She was given away by her brother, R. F. Gregory-Allen.

The marriage was quietly celebrated on Tuesday morning at Annie Eugene, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Longpre, of Victoria, and niece of Archbishop Illiveaux, of St. Boniface, and Mr. W. J. Sullivan. The rite, which took place at the St. Andrew's cathedral, was performed by Mgr. Leternie, V.G. The bride wore a becoming traveling suit of navy blue and a big white hat. She was attended by her sister, Miss Pauline Longpre, as bridesmaid, and the best man was Pte. Max Longpre, of the 103rd Battalion, a brother of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan are spending their honeymoon touring the Sound cities, and will afterwards take up their residence in Victoria.

The following are among recent guests at Strathcona Lodge, Shawigan Lake: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Phipps Ross, Boston, Mass.; Chas. Kelly, St. Andrews, N. B.; E. A. Mott-Smith, Robert Mott-Smith, and E. S. Wright, Honolulu; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Nettleton and Miss Ruth Nettleton, Seattle; J. Kennedy and T. S. Bayley, Esquimaux; Mr. and Mrs. W. Summers, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Brophy, H. Cook, Mrs. A. S. Barton, Miss F. Barton, Capt. Walter Barton, Miss N. Heyland, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Rowley, Capt. and Mrs. Whyte, Mrs. A. T. Goward, Miss Whyte, Mr. and Mrs. Montzambert, Miss Montzambert, W. Bannatyne, H. E. Ried, A. E. Taylor, E. Percival, Miss Vaudin, C. Noel Wyde, H. S. Ferguson, F. Svedstrom, T. S. Patterson, and Mr. and Mrs. Mariott and daughter, Victoria; Mrs. Edwin-Fretwell, San Francisco.

A young woman with a notebook and a pencil entered the store of Jonathan Driggs, in a small Connecticut town, and said to the proprietor: "Good morning, Mr. Driggs. I'm looking up records of the early settlers of the town. Could you give me any information?" The old fellow turned to the desk, thumbed the ledger, and checked, "Well, the earliest settler I've got is Doc Talcott, an' his best record is three months."

STRIKE IN CALIFORNIA.

Martinez, Cal., June 8.—Pipemen and pipe linemen here employed by the Shell Oil Company of California went on strike to-day for an 8-hour day, a uniform wage and time and a half for overtime. The strikers said 125 men were out.

A Chertsey pig-breeder has been granted total exemption. The pen, it seems, is still mightier than the sword.

HOME MISSIONS AND SOCIAL SERVICE

Important Report Presented to Presbyterian General Assembly at Winnipeg

Winnipeg, June 8.—The important report of the committee on home missions and social service was presented for consideration at the meeting of the Presbyterian general assembly here this afternoon. This is the first year these two branches of the work have been presented together, the two committees having been formerly united during the year. The financing of the work of this board came in for consideration and will be dealt with more fully at a later time.

Owing to the depression which set in in 1912 and the further confusion created by the war, a considerable deficit has been created. At the close of 1914 there was a deficit in the home mission work of $37,000, and in the social service work of $38,000, and in the total service work of $75,000. At the beginning of 1915 a policy of retrenchment was adopted. In spite of this fact there was a further deficit in that year of $24,000 in home mission work, with no deficit in the social service work. The reserve fund was called on to the extent of $20,000 and the total indebtedness now stands at $137,000.

The report refers at length to the spread of prohibition and the great changes in this regard which have occurred in recent years. Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Manitoba and Saskatchewan are now dry. New Brunswick is dry in nine counties out of 15 and two cities out of three. A popular vote on prohibition soon is to be taken. Ontario will be dry in September. Alberta on July 1 and British Columbia will vote this year on the question.

TORONTO'S FINANCES EVEN FOR YEAR 1915

Toronto, June 8.—Toronto's receipts and disbursements for 1915 balanced at $46,874,948, according to a statement issued by Assistant City Treasurer Blackford yesterday. In the appended summaries it is pointed out that the city at the end of December had paid out $245,400 to the next of kin of Toronto soldiers who had given their lives for the empire in Europe. The financial transactions totalled $10,200,896, and the capital account expenditures were $10,875,649. Sums of $6,898,241 and $5,947,497 were deposited in banks. The receipts from taxation were $13,141,458. The financial receipts totalled $21,229,451.

MAJ. GAULT'S CONDITION.

London, June 8.—Major Hamilton Gault's condition is very critical. He is in the officers' hospital on Park Lane, London, with gunshot wounds in both thighs and also a less serious wound in the shoulder.

94TH INSPECTED.

Port Arthur, June 8.—Brigadier-General Ruttan inspected the 94th Battalion to-day.

Referendum Weekly Half Holiday Act

Whereas the Legislature of the Province of British Columbia has by the "Weekly Half Holiday Act" imposed a duty on the Municipal Council of the City of Victoria to submit a vote to the Mayor, the following questions: (A) Are you in favor of a weekly Wednesday half holiday? (B) Are you in favor of a weekly Saturday half holiday? Which vote is required to be taken on Wednesday, the 14th day of June, 1916, between the hours of 9 o'clock in the forenoon and 7 o'clock in the afternoon. And whereas the Municipal Council of the City of Victoria has resolved that the vote and opinion of the Municipal Electors of the said City of Victoria, qualified to vote for Mayor, be taken on the said questions upon the said date and between the said hours. Public notice is hereby given to the said Electors of the City of Victoria, pursuant to the above resolution and legislation, that their presence is desired at the Pottery Building (so called), No. 228 Pandora street, on Wednesday, the 8th day of June, 1916, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 7 p. m., of such of the Electors as are entitled to vote at an election for Mayor, to cast their vote for or against the questions voted above and marked (A) and (B), viz:

SCHEDULE B.
WEEKLY HALF HOLIDAY ACT.
(A) Are you in favor of a weekly Wednesday half holiday?
(B) Are you in favor of a weekly Saturday half holiday?
Place a cross (thus X) opposite the day you favor for half holiday, and the vote will be taken by ballot, and will be conducted in the same manner as an election for Mayor.
Of which every person is requested to take notice and to govern himself accordingly.
Given under my hand at Victoria, B. C., this 4th day of June, 1916.
WM. W. NORTHCOTT
Returning Officer.

ALLISON'S RELATIONS WITH MAJ.-GEN. HUGHES

Other Point for Commission is Expenditures in States, Says Johnston

Ottawa, June 8.—Before the Meredith-Duff commission this forenoon E. F. B. Johnston, K. C., counsel for the Liberals, made his argument. He did not agree with the interpretation given by L. F. Hellmuth, K. C., government counsel, of the order in council appointing the commission. It had not been intended that only corrupt acts involving personal misconduct or dishonesty should be investigated. If it had been intended that the commission should inquire into corrupt acts only the government would have said so. It had not been intended that wrong business matters in commercial acts should be excluded. Some acts had been referred to in Mr. Kite's speech in the Commons as nefarious, "but Mr. Kite's speech is no part of this commission. It can be looked at only for the purpose of explaining or throwing some light on the commission." If it had been intended to limit the scope of the inquiry to personal wrong-doing the word "corrupt" would have been inserted.

Answer Wanted. A question which would have to be answered in a definite way is why Canadians did not get the $22,000,000 spent in the United States. The shell committee originally had been a meeting of Canadian manufacturers asked to come together by Maj.-Gen. Hughes for the purpose of making munitions in this country. He had never thought he was forming a committee to make fuses in the United States and was entitled to credit for the position he had taken and the advice he had given. There was nothing to indicate that the shell committee had given Canadians proper encouragement. They had been left to their own devices while large orders were placed in the United States. The shell committee had acted contrary to the avowed purpose and determination of the minister.

CONSCRIPTION NOT TO BE CONSIDERED

Major-Gen. Hughes is Pleased With Voluntary Enlistment in Canada

Toronto, June 8.—Maj.-Gen. Sir Sam Hughes is greatly pleased with voluntary enlistment in Canada to date, and the possibility of conscription here, or even national registration, is not being considered by the militia council. This is the news brought back from Ottawa by Major Williams, chief recruiting officer for this district, who laid before Sir Sam the views of the Toronto regimental commanders recommending a registration. Sir Sam said the matter of registration was one of public policy for the Dominion cabinet to decide, if it should be considered necessary. Canada was the only part of the empire raising soldiers exclusively by voluntary enlistment, and she would live in history as a result of it.

MEDIATOR APPOINTED TO SETTLE STRIKE

San Francisco, June 8.—As representatives of the union longshoremen and employing shipowners were gathered to-day to meet with Henry A. White, federal mediator, to try to effect a settlement, the announcement came that at 10 a. m. to-day strike-breakers were put to work unloading the American-Hawaiian steamship Mexican at pier 30, the first genuine attempt, it was said, to break the back of the strike here.

BODIES FROM HAMPSHIRE.

Thurso, Scotland, June 8.—Several bodies from the cruiser Hampshire, on which Earl Kitchener and members of his staff were lost, are being brought here. Among them is that of Lieut.-Col. O. A. Fitzgerald, who was private military secretary to Earl Kitchener. There is no confirmation of rumors that some survivors of the Hampshire have been found.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

Chicago, June 8.—At 1.31 o'clock the Republican national convention recessed until 4 o'clock to await the report of the resolutions committee, which still was working on the platform.

WILL ASK CANADA.

Los Angeles, June 8.—Mrs. Mary Peabody, who told the police on Tuesday that her 14-year-old daughter, Victoria, had been kidnapped from Richmond, Cal., and taken to Ottawa, Ont., by agents of her husband, Francis E. Peabody, will appeal to both the federal authorities and the Canadian government for the return of the child, according to a statement here.

U. S. SUBMARINE GROUNDS.

Washington, June 8.—The grounding of submarine L-4 off Block Island, near Newport, R. I., was reported to the navy department to-day by her commander, Lieut. Hannock, who said he hoped to get her off at high tide.

WHERE RUSSIAN ARMIES ARE DRIVING FORWARD

Lutsk (Lutsk) the fortress which the Russians have recaptured from the Austrians, is just north of the frontier of Galicia. The map gives an impression of the relation of that region to the remainder of the battle-line in Russia, which extends from the region of Pinsk north to the Baltic just west of Riga.

KITCHENER'S SISTER VICTORIA RESIDENT

London, June 8.—The successor to Earl Kitchener's title is his eldest brother, Col. Henry Elliott Chevallier Kitchener, who, notwithstanding the fact that he is nearly 70 years of age, has been serving in the campaign in German Southwest Africa. He is now on his way home.

INDIAN WOMAN WILL BE SENTENCED AT VANCOUVER

Vancouver, June 8.—Mary Cagle, the Indian woman charged with the murder of her sister, Rosie, in a shack near Powell street on April 29, yesterday was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury in the assizes. The woman was remanded by Mr. Justice Gregory until the end of the assizes for sentence.

COLD AND WET NOT AIDFUL TO GROWTH

Chicago, June 8.—Northwestern advisers say that climatic conditions are unfavorable on account of cold and rains, which are giving weeds the advantage. A much better demand is noted for wheat in the Northwest and a better inquiry was advised from the seaboard. Crop reports were principally unchanged. The Price Current says the government report is expected to confirm the general deterioration of the winter wheat crop. The market held firm then reached new high figures on the recent advance. The statistical position of wheat is the bearish factor of note.

AUSTRALIA WILL TAX WAR PROFITS

Sydney, N. S. W., June 8.—The federal government has announced that it will bring in a bill providing for a tax of 50 per cent on all war profits. It also is announced that no conscription bill will be introduced, and that pensions for private soldiers will be increased from $5 to $5.50 a week.

GERMANY ATTACKED AGAIN BY HARDEN

Berlin Govt. Has Seized Latest Issue of Die Zukunft, His Paper

Paris, June 8.—The German government has seized the latest number of Die Zukunft, in which Maximilian Harden wrote: "Germany is responsible for the war. She should have helped Lord Haldane and come to an agreement with England. The chancellor is unreasonable to expect the allies to make peace, based on the 'situation on the map.' They will not do that until they are convinced that their cause is lost, and such a moment cannot be foreseen. 'All the belligerents must agree to an organized peace, guaranteeing absolute sovereignty to everyone, with an international agreement on military questions and the establishment of an international tribunal, with the power to make unity-nations respect their decisions. Let Germany beware if she discontinuances such a solution. 'The allies continue the war only because they fear that if peace be made now the German armaments would force them to continue competition. Organized peace may be possible now, but the opportunity soon will go forever.'"

CASUALTIES AMONG CANADIAN SOLDIERS

Ottawa, June 8.—The following casualty list was issued this afternoon: Infantry. Killed in action—Pte. Dan Barlow, Pte. John Thos. Jones, Pte. Chas. Coombridge, Pte. James Winton. Died of wounds—Pte. Edw. Albert Gilbert. Wounded—Pte. Thomas Craig, Pte. Edward Henry Eagling, Pte. Owen Charles Fisher, Pte. Henry Gertoch, Pte. George William Golly, Pte. Edwin William James Hardcastle, Pte. Charles Albert Ruttle-Lawrence, Pte. Wm. Ewart Maynard, Pte. Arthur Mayer, Pte. Alexander McIntyre, Pte. Frank Peterson, Sweden, Pte. Charles Wilfrid Reynolds, Pte. James Robinson, Pte. Robert Smith, Pte. Robert Henry Sparks, Pte. James Grimshaw Jack Stone, Pte. Arthur Randall Taylor, Pte. Hugh Gonyers White, Pte. Ernest Whitfield, Pte. David Edward Willcock, Pte. William Wolf, Pte. Thomas Horace Wright.

TROUBLE IN CHINA.

New York, June 8.—Indications of trouble in China were given to-day when the Commercial Cable Company announced here that communication over its lines to Auechow, China, and to Formosa had been severed.

TORONTO BANK CLEARINGS.

Toronto, June 8.—The bank clearings here for the week ended to-day were $31,892,187. In the corresponding week last year the clearings were $46,854,009, and in 1914, $47,492,730.

TO-DAY'S TRADING ON THE WINNIPEG MARKET

Winnipeg, June 8.—After a big broad trade which covered considerable export and nearly all forms of spreading, Winnipeg market closed one cent higher for July and December and one-half cent higher for October. Ocean freight rates are down to 28 from Montreal. This is against 31 at the high point this season.

LOYALTY OF INDIAN.

Port Arthur, June 8.—Paul Fazezkonak, an Indian, paddled 60 miles across Lake Nipigon to join the 141st Bull Moose Battalion along with his brother.

STANDARD RAILS IN BEST DEMAND TO-DAY

Reading Favorite in Group and Motors Higher; Coppers Act Begrudgingly

(By F. W. Stevenson & Co.) New York, June 8.—The market showed good strength, despite the lower prices in London. Motor issues were in good demand on declines. The coppers failed to reflect the strength which was expected of them on the increased dividends. Buying of the standard rails was excellent. The street was full of unconfirmed rumors, which for a time affected the market, but after several were denied, little attention was afterwards shown. Reading was again the favorite in the rail list and closed at almost its best price.

ADDRESSING JURY IN GOSDEN CASE

Fair and Impartial Summing-up by Mr. Justice Murphy in Notable Trial

CROWN PROSECUTOR ANALYZES EVIDENCE

Points Out Discrepancies in Defence Stories; Asserts Frame-up on Macdonald

The jury which is trying R. R. Gosden on charges of perjury listened to three addresses yesterday, aggregating four hours and forty minutes, and retired to consider their verdict at a quarter to seven o'clock.

Crown prosecutor followed the counsel for the defence, H. W. R. Moore, and went very carefully into the evidence, weighing the probabilities and pointing out the inconsistencies and the discrepancies in the stories told by the prisoner and his witnesses.

The charge of Mr. Justice Murphy to the jury was a very fair and impartial deliverance, and reviewed all the phases of the evidence and all the theories of the case. It afforded the jurors a number of lines of consideration, but leaned neither to the one side nor to the other.

Mr. Moore resumed his address to the jury when the court opened for the afternoon. He argued that if the alibi set up for Mr. Macdonald failed, then the case for the prosecution failed. His client had been used by Liberals and Conservatives; had got the worst of it from both ends, and now came to the jury for justice. There were politics in the case, and this feature of it must be ignored by the jurors. Discussing the evidence of young Planta, whom he described as a "fresh" youth, counsel defended that youth's action in asking his father how he should testify on the ground that it was because he did not want to be confused in court.

Counsel intimated that the crown must have had a spy in the witness room to have learned what took place between father and son. As a matter of fact, their conversation took place in an open hearing, in a corridor, within earshot of several people.

Mr. Moore, who had assailed the veracity of a woman in the earlier part of his address, attacked with virulent invective the Times' reports of the trial in the latter part. He appealed to the jury to set Gosden free, and sat down after speaking for an hour and thirty-five minutes.

Crown Prosecutor Moresby said the case for the crown in brief was that Mr. Macdonald was not at the post office corner at either of the hours mentioned by Gosden. The prisoner was the only person who swore that Mr. Macdonald did meet him, and was not corroborated by anyone. It was sought to corroborate him to some degree by three witnesses of remarkable memory.

"I do not quarrel with my learned friend, Mr. Moore," said counsel, "when he says that the evidence of a poor man is as likely to be truthful as that of any other man. But when you get a poor man of the type and character of Gosden, when you get a poor man of the type and character of Fraser—you can only judge a man by his associates and Fraser associates with Gosden—then that kind of evidence is evidence I do quarrel with, and it is not evidence that can be believed."

Counsel spoke of the money which Gosden claimed to have got from Scott by the hundreds of dollars; his efforts to get more, and continued: "When he could not get it he determined to get money somehow and started to frame up something. We have not got all the details, but something was framed up."

"Coming to the conversation which Gosden had with Mr. Macdonald in Vancouver on Easter Monday night, and the man Grey whom he had brought with him, Mr. Moresby said: "Who is Grey? He is a friend who lives in the same house. You heard Gosden, Grey and Williams, you heard the woman, and you can infer what you like as to the circumstances under which they live; whether it is a nice little select party or not."

"These men went to see Mr. Macdonald," the crown prosecutor continued, "and it looks to me as if it was another case of what was attempted on Mr. Fullerton at Gordon Head. Mr. Macdonald refused to have anything to do with him and at once prudence was thrown to the winds. Did you see his demeanor in the box, and the way he pounded it? Did you see his eyes glaze? There you have a man who admits that he would not stop at murder if he formed an opinion that a person was tyrannical—and he was to be the judge himself of whether tyranny existed. Can you wonder then that he would make up his mind to follow up some scheme of obtaining money?"

"Has he the capacity and ability to do so? You saw him in the witness box. I will give him this credit, that he is one of the most skilful witnesses I ever saw. He was the greatest fence in the witness box I have come in contact with. When he came to a point in the cross-examination he always tried to turn my attention to something else."

Mr. Moresby dealt with the money which Gosden had when he returned to Vancouver and suggested that it came from the same source where he had got so much more of late. He emphasized the late advent of Fraser into the scene. When first before the committee Gosden had not a word to say about Fraser, but after his arrest for perjury Fraser suddenly came in; Fraser, a man of the same organization as prisoner, prepared to commit blackmail, as the Fullerton receipt showed, and prepared to swear with Gosden anything they framed up. Gosden's explanation for the failure to mention Fraser at first was a weak one, that he had not been volunteering evidence. It was open to a great deal of question whether Gosden had come over here to testify before the committee in order to help it to get at the truth or himself to "get" Macdonald.

Gosden was not at all candid in his evidence, either in this trial or before the committee, and this was in marked contrast to the manner in which Mr. Macdonald had acted. Impulsively, without any thought as to what corroborative evidence he would be able to get, Mr. Macdonald had acted the moment he heard Gosden perjure himself and went out to lay an information.

"Who is Gosden?" counsel asked. "Almost as soon as he lands in Canada he takes part in labor troubles that attracted notoriety at Glace Bay. He then gets to San Diego and is found in trouble and in jail for attempting free speech. You can infer what else you like as to his activities there. Men are not kept in jail for nine months in a civilized country unless they have done something wrong. You have a right to draw that inference. Then you have him in jail in Prince Rupert. One would have thought that by this time he had had enough of trouble with the law. He tells you, though he had no interest in the strike and was not a miner, that he took part in the Nanaimo strike. He is in the kind of man who thinks he ought to get in there to the extent of leading a mob. Then there is the reference made in a hall in Vancouver in reference to putting poison in the coffee of the premier of this province. You heard what he said when pressed on it. The last thing we have been able to trace to him is his method of obtaining a cheque from Mr. Fullerton as disclosed by that receipt. How much reliance can you place on these two men, who had time to get together and frame up a story?"

Counsel pointed out the discrepancy between Gosden and Fraser as to their meeting. Gosden swore that Fraser had come up Government street from the south; Fraser swore that he had come from the Victoria Machinery Depot, from the north. Rooke, the sergeant from Grand Forks, was the first witness who developed a remarkable memory. His excuse for having a better memory, on being recalled was that counsel had rattled him. If a man was telling the truth he would not rattle so easily. Mr. Rooke may have been rattled in the witness box; it was quite apparent that he had been rattled not only there but somewhere else about having to give evidence. Rooke several times asserted that he had been dragged here to give evidence, but he must have volunteered his evidence in the first place or he would not have been subpoenaed. Counsel asked the jury to infer from this that the witness was not a disinterested party in giving his evidence.

Planta, senior, of the defective memory, had been mistaken about the presence of N. E. Mackay in the group to which he first told his story. Why might he not, then, have been mistaken about the identity of the man whom he saw on Government street? Could the jury believe him? Was his a probable story? He could not tell what door he and his son came out of the Empress at, nor how they left the Empress grounds, but he professed to be very certain that he had seen Macdonald. The jurors all knew the distance the post office corner was from any point, the nearest point, of the Empress grounds, and how impossible it was to swear to anyone's identity at that distance at night. What did the jury think of young Planta's evidence? What of his question: "Father, what shall I say?"

"If ever there was an incident that shows an effort being made to make evidence coincide it is that remark he made to his father," said counsel. "You do not have to stretch your imagination very far as to what you are to infer from that. I do not think I have ever known a case where you get an answer like that where there has not been an effort to get the evidence to work in together, and when you do find that, be very careful. If that boy was coming in here to tell the truth what reason had he to prepare? Even if I had a reputation as a searching cross-examiner what need anyone fear who is telling the truth? How could I confuse a truthful witness? And yet we have this boy asking: 'Father, what shall I say?'"

Counsel exposed the many discrepancies in the evidence as to the hat and clothes Mr. Macdonald wore, the hesitations in Rooke's answers under cross-examination, the absurdity of supposing that had Mr. Macdonald been making an illegitimate payment, he would have gone to such a public place as the post office, reminded the jury of Mr. Macdonald's explanation of the $50 loan and emphasized the fact that the moment he had heard Gosden perjure himself he went out and laid an information, strong in the justice of his charge.

"I have political leanings," said Mr. Moresby in closing, "but I have not allowed them to influence me in this case. When counsel for the defence says that Scott should be here he reflects on me. I have conducted this case, not Mr. Macdonald nor Mr. Hall. They have not suggested anything to me as to how I should conduct it. Scott could not have given any evidence as to the main facts. He had taken part in some political affairs in Vancouver and had engaged these two men, Gosden and Robertson. It was not necessary to corroborate their story. I take full responsibility for his not being called, because I never made any effort to get him. If I thought he would be a material witness he would be here. I ask you, on the evidence, to convict the prisoner."

Counsel spoke for one hour and twenty minutes.

His lordship began his summing up at 5 o'clock, and explained the legal definition of perjury. He then demanded an assertion of fact, made by the prisoner as a witness before a committee of the legislature, which was a judicial proceeding, under oath, and it mattered not whether it was a material fact to the inquiry or not. These elements all being present, and admitted by the defence, it was for the jury to find whether these further elements were present, that the assertion was known by the prisoner to be false and whether it was intended by him to deceive those who heard him. They could only judge of a man's intent by what he did or said, and the circumstances under which he spoke or acted. The jury should not allow themselves to stray into metaphysics, but act on common sense. In all Canadian courts a man was held to be innocent until the crown proved him guilty, but the crown was not bound to show absolute certainty. There was the right of a prisoner to have the benefit of any reasonable doubt, but the jury should not allow themselves to "side-step" their duty in any idea that they were giving this benefit.

As a preface to a review of the evidence, his lordship warned the jury that they should remember that before he was elevated to the bench he had been an active politician. That applied also to themselves. Every intelligent man took an interest in politics and had some political leanings. They must not approach the case with any wish that something would be true, but look the facts as sworn to and proven in the face and draw their conclusions from the facts, not from preconceived notions or political affiliations which might lead them to desire that the verdict should go one way or the other.

The vital, crucial point, his lordship said, was, who paid that money, if it was paid. It was quite possible, though hardly probable, that all the witnesses were right and that Gosden got money while in Victoria, but it did not follow that he got it from Macdonald. In the Vancouver end of the story there was slight variance between Macdonald and Robertson as to the content of a letter from Scott, and between Macdonald and Grey as to the greeting between the former and Gosden outside Macdonald's houses. There was no question that Gosden had come to Victoria and was seen here by several people, one of whom, Silvene, took him to his room.

The crown case here, the only crown case probably—and here his lordship, with apologies, dropped into the evidence—was that this was all a frame-up, that Gosden was "out" to "get" Macdonald. On the one hand here was what looked like corroboration of Gosden's statement that Macdonald asked him to telephone about a quarter to nine. On the other hand this fitted in with the theory of a frame-up. Here was a chance to make a little evidence in the future, by marking the telephone directory so that Silvene would know what was being done and the book would be there with the line drawn under the Empress hotel number for proof. All the evidence might be true and yet the defence be false. The marking of the book was a peculiar thing; it might be either to make a place or to make evidence, and the court could not see what case the crown had here except that this was a deliberate attempt to "get" Macdonald.

The clerk of the hotel told of a telephone call outwards from Silvene's room. This fitted in with Gosden's story, and also with the other, as Gosden might very well have called up any place, even the Empress hotel, as a part of his frame-up.

There was evidence that Macdonald wanted money badly that afternoon and applied in two quarters for it. He got it from the cashier of the Empress hotel, and it fitted in with Gosden's story in providing Macdonald with money and to the identical amount of $50 that Gosden had mentioned. If it stood unexplained it would be a strong piece of evidence in support of Gosden's story. Macdonald's explanation of the purposes for which he wanted the money did away with the probative force of the evidence of Miss Allen and Courtney. The fact, too, that he had this sum of money early in the afternoon did not agree with Gosden's story of the six o'clock meeting, when, according to Gosden, Macdonald said he had to borrow money but, according to Miss Allen, he had it in his pocket then.

There were three sources of error in the giving of evidence: that human knowledge is derived through the senses—philosophers might say otherwise but the commonsense, human idea was good enough for the courts—that men had to rely on memory to retain knowledge, and that people deliberately, knowing what they said to be not true, testified to its truth. When the evidence of the Macdonalds was reached there was no reconciling it with that of Gosden; there was lying on one side or other. His lordship went into the evidence of Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald and examined it from all sides as to its probability or otherwise. What made a trial of this sort difficult, he remarked, was that generally the truth was being told; lies were introduced only where necessary.

"Most men, even if they do not believe in a hereafter and an accounting—and there are a great many people who do not believe, or say they do not—have a standard of honor and morality which they strive to live up to," observed his lordship. "A man does not perjure himself but lives up to some rough code of honor unless he has what seem to him very good reasons for violating it."

Of the younger Planta's evidence his lordship remarked that his question to his father was a serious matter, because it would lead to the conclusion that his evidence was manufactured, and manufactured by his father, and if that was so it was a good reason for questioning the evidence of Planta, senior.

Dealing with Gosden's evidence, the judge said that if people followed along certain lines they could not quarrel when the country took them at their own valuation. It was fair that a man's character should be taken into consideration, and his peculiar conceptions of right and wrong, if he had any, had to be judged by present standards. Whatever changes might come in future centuries the demands of self-protection today demanded that no man should be judge of his own actions, neither could he be allowed to administer poison to any man whom he chose to consider a tyrant.

"Sooner or later the tyrant will come to each one of us to lay us down to die," said his lordship in concluding his charge, "and whether you believe in any accounting in a hereafter or not your conscience will tell you that you will pass through the ordeal with much less stress of mind if you feel that you have dealt with your fellow-man fairly, to the best of your ability, and given every man a square deal."

"You are asked here to do your duty under circumstances that are peculiarly difficult, and this is why I speak thus to you."

The jury went out at a quarter to seven o'clock, and a little later were taken out to the Dominion hotel to dinner, returning to the court-house at half-past eight. They remained in debate without having to return to court for further directions or for the reading of evidence until a quarter to twelve. At that hour they sent word to the judge through Sheriff Richards that they could not reach an agreement, and they were locked up over night.

Mrs. Pankhurst Delivers Splendid Address Before Big Audience at Victoria Theatre

"You can measure a nation by the position of its women," said Mrs. Pankhurst in the course of a wonderful address which she delivered last evening at the Old Victoria theatre. Her subject, "Ideals of National Service," gave the opportunity for a statement of the claims of women "not for rights but for responsibilities," as Dr. Scott afterwards said in seconding the resolution of thanks. The theme of her lecture was dealt with lucidly, the earnestness of the speaker serving to fire the otherwise quietly and simply stated facts and appeals. There was not a vacant seat in the house, and on the full tide of an approval which she greeted with her first few sentences Mrs. Pankhurst spoke without interruption, save that of applause to the end.

Tribute to Kitchener. H. C. Brewster occupied the chair. His introduction of the speaker was brief, and was coupled with a request that the audience stand as a unanimous tribute to the memory of the late Earl Kitchener, "that gigantic figure who had given his all, even to life, that his country might be saved in this crisis."

Mrs. Pankhurst's first words were of the same great soldier. She had been in Oregon on Tuesday when the news of his death came. There, in a neutral nation, she had heard only one expression: sympathy with the nation who had lost so great a leader, so towering a figure. The trust of the common people of the old land, confidently reposed even when Kitchener was meeting with the severest criticism in some other circles, had not been misplaced. Time had proved how splendidly he was able to justify the confidence of the masses. He had made an army out of nothing in a country where the people were accustomed to think that it was no particular person's business to supervise "preparedness." And more than that, he had had the courage to tell the truth at the very beginning where other statesmen held back from fear or ignorance. He had said it would be a very severe, serious and long war. And he was right.

Two Great Acts. There were two great acts for which the women should and would hold the great soldier in special esteem. First, that at the very outset of the war he had given instructions to the army as to what its attitude was to be with respect to women. In the midst of his duties he had foreseen how much the country's honor depended on the relations of the army, to the other sex. Never before had any other army been brought under moral influence as had the British army been in this great and unprecedented war.

A second reason why women were indebted to Kitchener was because of his stand in the matter of prohibition, said Mrs. Pankhurst. The king had been the first to declare a pledge not to use intoxicant liquors during the war. Kitchener immediately stood forth and did likewise.

"Together, to-night, we pay tribute to the memory of the great soldier," the speaker continued with suppressed feeling. "The fact that he has lost his life through a stab in the back and not through a bullet in the breast, is a thing which will only serve the more to nerve the heart and mind of those who are fighting."

Deep Issues.

"It is not merely the material existence of the empire, nor the question of the preservation of our national independence," Mrs. Pankhurst urged. "It goes deeper. There are great spiritual issues at stake in this war. This is not only a man's war. It is a woman's war. It is of the woman's point of view I want to speak now. All that we women have hoped and longed for is in the balance. If we lose this war the things spiritual and unseen, which we women prize before all else, will be lost to the race; civilization based on justice and right rather than on force will disappear; progress will be pushed back. In the first months of the war we heard of the Germans' treatment of the civil part of the population in Belgium and France. I was one of those people who hesitated to believe that any army could be capable of such things. But since then I have seen both in England and France people who have told me at first hand that they are true. The Germans have been saying since the war began that they have a divine mission to the world. If what they have done is a type of what they consider civilization, then there is a gulf between their civilization and ours which can never be bridged."

Too Trustful. Mrs. Pankhurst pleaded for sterner measures being taken to safeguard the nation from betrayal by enemies in its midst. The British were a trustful race, and too easily let spies pass detection. She had been reminded of this in coming back from the United States to Canada. Instead of a rigid cross-examination by the immigration authorities in Victoria she was casually and pleasantly welcomed. "We have been paying for this over-trustfulness ever since the beginning of the war," she declared. "Ireland would not have given us the recent trouble if we had been less trustful. Our English coast would not have suffered as it has if we had been less confiding. If this last terrible disaster is to teach us the lesson it will not have been altogether without its compensations."

"I want to make you feel what we at home feel about the possibility of an inconclusive peace. We in England are prepared to fight, and fight, and fight as long as there are any of us left to fight. The men and women of to-day will not betray the trust handed down to them by their forefathers. I have heard people say that they think Britain has done her part in the war when she provides the great navy. I do not agree. The responsibility is on us today a great deal more than on any of the other allied nations if we are to maintain our place. If little Belgium and Serbia can make the gallant sacrifice they have, we, the British people, the greatest empire on earth, are fully prepared to die for our cause as well."

Woman's War.

"It is a woman's war as well as a man's. You can measure a nation by the position of its women. If women are protected and cherished, then that is a great nation. No matter how rich a nation is, if the women are degraded and coarsened then that is not a great nation. Germany, with all her great organization, cannot meet the test as well as Britain. There is no civilized country where the women's movement has made so little progress as in Germany. It is true that German women in the present war are playing a great part. But it is not a voluntary part. They thought they ought to do all the fighting. But in Germany the women were part of that perfect organization—very efficiently and automatically organized from the top down. It is a very different matter to organize nations on democratic lines. All the organization you get from democracy is worth having, because it comes from the bottom instead of being forced down from the top. The women in Germany came in under compulsion, five hundred thousand of them engaged in making munitions. The women of Britain asserted their right to work for their country, and they were the right for themselves. They determined to take a part, even if they met with opposition—which they have.

"Autocratic organization from the top down and democratic organization from the bottom up are very different things. Because systematic organization is wrong and brutalizing in Germany, it does not prove, however, that systematic organization is wrong. Nobody can say that systematic organization has been brutalizing in France, where it is every man's duty to have military training. If it were not so there would be no British empire today. The Germans would have walked through France as through a garden. France is a great democracy. The people have voluntarily chosen to have military training."

Mrs. Pankhurst went on to speak of the effect of a voluntarily adopted system in Australia, the most democratic country in the empire. There, where women as well as men have the vote, the men must bear arms and have military training. The people themselves have chosen this. Home defence is compulsory. But there is no compulsion with respect to defending the mother country. When hostilities broke out the men rushed as a matter of course to defend the motherland.

Compulsory Training.

"Women of Britain stated their conclusions, before politicians had the courage to do it, approving of compulsory military training—including the women," said this leading representative of British women. There was a great deal beside actual fighting required to make an army successful—making of munitions, guns, clothes for the soldiers, food to keep the army going. Women who understood organization had suffered watching the waste of money that went on early in the war owing to lack of system. They had forced their way into the national register opened by act of parliament. There were thousands and thousands of them, a great reserve force. They had concluded since then that in future they were going to have a great and trained and prepared nation. There was one way only for a democratic nation to organize: by some form of compulsory training, or, as she preferred to call it, training by voluntary compulsion.

There were two kinds of war—one where the aggressor ravaged the weak, debasing; the other, where a nation went to war to fight for freedom or independence either for itself or for another, which lifted men to their sublimest heights. Although women hated war, knowing as they did the value of human life, yet there were some things of more value than life itself. This was a righteous war.

Women's Part.

Very rapidly Mrs. Pankhurst rehearsed something of what the women of England are doing in connection with the war. First attention was given to the women doctors, who, as a profession, had been active women suffragists for many years. It was only in recent years that they had won the consent of the authorities to be allowed to practice. Two of the women doctors, Dr. Garrett Anderson, Jr. and Dr. Flora having its reward. Canada would have to face an emergency of the same kind if the war went on. She hoped there were no men here still prejudiced against women entering the industrial world. It was something like treachery to the country to cherish such feelings at such a time when the arm of every citizen was needed in the fight.

"We may be losing our charm, so much boasted but so difficult to fix. But we are remembering the homes and thinking of the children."

War Babies.

Here Mrs. Pankhurst launched into a description of one of the finest and biggest works undertaken by the women since the war began—the care of the "war babies." Actual statistics, she was glad to say, demonstrated that the number of illegitimate births were on the decrease rather than on the increase since the war. But the question still remained a very serious and very terrible problem. There were in England annually born, by the law as legal outcasts, had a very terrible fate ahead. The militants in England had decided to take the first step in the solution of the problem. The dictum that "the sins of the fathers are visited on the children" was a statement of fact. Not an incontrovertible decree, a necessity. The W. S. P. U. babies, "Mrs. Pankhurst's Babies," as they were popularly called, were being brought up on a farm, under the most favorable conditions, and with every regard to the budding talent which was already apparent in some of the children. They were to be trained in whatever way their capacity called for. Even these unwanted ones, were to be made into as good and useful citizens as possible.

Antagonisms Lost.

In conclusion Mrs. Pankhurst expressed her deep pleasure at being back once more on British soil, where she could speak freely, breathe deeply. It was wonderful how the war had drawn the nation together. All criticism and condemnation was submerged in the remembrance that they were just one family fighting for the great traditions of their race. When the war was won they were going on as an undivided empire, to be greater and nobler, a better example to the world, than ever before.

Votes of Thanks.

There was a short period for questions, one of the chief having to do with the opposition met by women when they attempted to enter the industries after the war. This opposition had been from employers and trades unions alike. The latter had the same sort of prejudice against women as they declared the so-called superior classes had against them. Also, very justly, they objected to competition from cheaper labor. But the women were more than willing to receive the same wages. Another question was as to whether there had been in England anything comparable to the spiritual uplift which had taken place in France since the war. Mrs. Pankhurst admitted that France realized at the beginning, as England perhaps even now failed to do, the true significance of the war. But there had been a diminution in crime in England. Even with the country in darkness, the streets at night practically without light. This was a demonstration of the response being made by the nation to the appeal to its best sentiments. In Wales, where the W. S. P. U. had gone to talk to the strikers in the coal mines, they had found the response to their reasoning immediate. Once the men understood the significance of the war, his individual responsibility as a "soldier not in the trenches," he went back to work.

The resolution of thanks, endorsed by the whole audience, who stood up after very heavy applause, was moved by Very Rev. Dean Schofield, seconded by Dr. Scott, and Mr. Bowser presented a bouquet of red carnations to the speaker of the evening. The singing of the National Anthem brought the proceedings to a close.

During the evening a collection for the War Babies fund was taken, and the proceeds at the door are being divided equally between the same fund and the War Emergency Association.
