Genealogy of the Harding
Family in the Eastern
Counties of North Carolina.

COMPILED AND EDITED BY
REV. JOHN R. HARDING, D. D.,
Rector Trinity Church,
UTICA, NEW YORK.

Preface.

THE idea of preparing and publishing a genealogy of the Harding family in the eastern counties of North Carolina, came to me during a visit to the home of my boyhood, Washington and Chocowinity, N. C., in January, 1908. The descendants of Stephen Harding, our first ancestor in North Carolina, are now living in many states of the Union, and I felt it would be a pleasure to collect the facts concerning them for the benefit of present and future generations. I wish to thank all my relatives who have so willingly and promptly answered my questions and enabled me to make the idea a reality.

Affectionately yours,

JOHN RAVENSCROFT HARDING.

Trinity Rectory, Utica, N. Y., December 1, 1908.

Introduction.

THE eastern counties of North Carolina were first settled by English families, or by those of English descent who, having first established themselves in the more northern colonies, at length emigrated to Carolina. It has been impossible to discover the full facts concerning the first Harding who settled in Beaufort County, N. C., the ancestor of the many who now bear his name. The family tradition is that he came from Providence, Rhode Island, in the early part of the eighteenth century, that he was a ship builder, and that his first residence was on Fork Point, Tar River, near Washington. The compiler of these records has sought in vain for the birthplace, parentage or marriage of this man. The only clue, in the absence of family tradition, is found in a genealogical register of the New England Hardings, compiled by the Rev. Abner Morse, A. M., and published in Boston, 1864. While in this volume there is no definite link binding the North Carolina family to those of New England, yet the similarity of Christian names in the two branches for several generations offers a probability that both are of the same original stock. These names are "Stephen," "Israel," "Nathaniel," "Benjamin" and "Thomas." If any dependence is to be placed on this coincidence, and there is strong reason to do so, then it is probable that our first North Carolina ancestor, Stephen Harding, is a descendant of the Stephen Harding who lived in Providence, Rhode Island, 1669, but who, tradition says, came originally from Weymouth Landing, Mass. From Mr. Morse's record it is learned that the Hardings were among the earliest English colonists of Massachusetts. There is no exact date known of their arrival, but circumstances indicate that they emigrated with Sir Robert Gorges in 1623, and settled at Weymouth Landing, near Braintree, Mass. Here for half a century was their home, from which they afterward moved to different sections of New England.

The name Harding is of Gothic origin, and signifies "bold," "courageous," "daring," stout-hearted.

Chapter I.

STEPHEN HARDING, the ancestor of the Eastern North Carolina Hardings, had three sons, Israel, Benjamin and Stephen.

ISRAEL HARDING, son of Stephen Harding, m. Annis Clark of Beaufort County, N. C. He was a farmer and lived at Chocowinity. Family traditions about him, as of all the earlier members of the family, are very meager. The Revolutionary records of N. C. show that he enlisted April 15, 1781, in the 10th Regiment, N. C. troops, Sharp's Company, became a sergeant and served 12 months. He was in General Green's army, and is said to have been in the battles of Cowpens, King's Mountain and Guilford Courthouse, but as all these battles occurred before the above recorded enlistment, it is probable that there was an enlistment of an earlier date. He had four children, Henry, Nathaniel, Israel and Frederic. He built the house on his farm, afterwards occupied by his son Nathaniel, which was burned about 1870.

HENRY HARDING, son of Israel and Annis Harding, was born at Chocowinity and lived there all his life, dying about 1853 or 1854. He m. Mary M. Grist, who died about 1850. He had several children, but raised only two, Benjamin Franklin and Wiley Grist.

WILEY GRIST HARDING, the second son of Henry and Mary M. Harding, emigrated to Tenn. and died there about 1875. Careful investigation has failed to discover anything further about him or his descendants.

ISRAEL and FREDERIC HARDING, the younger sons of Israel and Annis Harding, never married and died at Chocowinity.

STEPHEN HARDING, the third son of the original Stephen Harding in North Carolina, had two daughters, Polly and Dicey. Polly never married. Dicey married Riley Orrell of Durham's Creek, N. C. Her descendants are living around Blount's Creek, N. C., but it has been impossible to secure their names.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN HARDING, the first son of Henry and Mary M. Harding, was born in Beaufort Co., N. C., and spent his life there. He married Winnie Nelson, b. Oct. 9, 1827, d. June 4, 1883.

Chapter II.

NATHANIEL HARDING, son of Israel and Annis Harding, was born 1790 in the old Harding house occupied by his father, which was situated on the rear of the farm now owned by Frederick H. von Eberstein. Israel Harding built a new house on the present Eberstein lot about 1800, and in this house Nathaniel Harding lived from his 10th year. This building was burned about 1870, after which the present house was erected. Nathaniel Harding married about 1820-21, Elizabeth Ann Patrick, and died 1864. He was the first member of the family in North Carolina to become a member of the Episcopal Church, and for many years was an earnest supporter of Trinity Parish, Chocowinity.

Israel Harding was at first a farmer and carpenter, but through his interest in the church work at Tririnity Chapel, N. C., he began to look towards the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Studying privately under the direction of the Rev. N. C. Hughes, he was ordered deacon by Rt. Rev. Thomas Atkinson in St. James' Church, Wilmington, N. C., Dec. 21, 1856, and priest by the same bishop in Grace Church, Morganton, N. C., July 12, 1861. During his long ministry he served the parishes and missions at the following places, all in N.
