R E P O R T
OF THE
SCHOOL COMMITTEE
OF
WESTHAMPTON, MASS.,
FOR THE YEAR ENDING MARCH 1, 1883.

---

Your Committee think that the past school year has been a very profitable one to those scholars who have attended the schools for the purpose for which they are maintained, viz., to fit them for the best performance of the duties that will devolve upon them in the future, when they will be compelled to assume them. We are glad to know that there are some such scholars in our schools, and they will succeed, for the old adage holds good here, "Where there is a will there is a way." There are others, however, who seem to care little about improvement, but spend their time for naught, and these not only injure their own prospects but hinder and do great harm to those who are nobly trying to improve. We would emphatically suggest to the parents that they fail not to impress upon the minds of the children that it is as necessary that they should attend school regularly and promptly, be as careful and diligent while there, as that their own duties at home are properly attended to. Promptness is not the least important lesson that should be taught our children; if not taught they will be like John B. Gough's "three handed man; with a right hand, a left hand and a little behind hand." These present opportunities are golden and will soon pass out of their reach; they will soon be called to manage affairs and we shall be laid aside. If we would do the most for our comfort, as well as for theirs and the community, let us not scrimp in our appropriation for schools. Our expenses have been unusually light in some instances and our resources larger than common the past year. The expenses will be greater for repairs the coming year and we shall have to pay teachers more. We ought to raise more money for schools. One thousand dollars is none too much. The South school house was broken into and injured by outside parties, last winter, and the Center school house has been greatly damaged by the scholars. All such should suffer for their lawlessness. They are possibly not aware that they make themselves liable to a penalty of not more than five hundred dollars, or imprisonment for one year, (Gen. Stat., Chap. 203, Sect. 78.) Every tax payer and every lover of good order is interested in this matter of injury to public buildings. We have not been able to obtain and retain such teachers in some of the schools as we thought desirable on account of the smallness of the salaries we were able to offer. We endeavor to keep the parents and friends at home informed of the progress of their children through the weekly report of the teachers. In this way if any item of the report is not understood it may be explained by application to the teacher, and this is desired. We notice, however, that in some instances these cards are not returned or are destroyed, showing plainly that the scholar or the parents, or both, are ashamed of the record, thus showing the actual character fully as plainly as if fairly and honestly handled. Such make their mark and are not worthy of confidence. The North West school has always shown a good record of attendance. We wish the others would follow their example in this respect. In the South there may be some excuse on account of the long distance for small children to travel, but we think some of the scholars could do better. In the Hill school there must have been great carelessness on the part of some. In the Center the record is especially bad in the winter, and without the above excuse, and the past has been a very favorable winter.

The Clark Scholarship Prize was awarded to Mary Whalen as the best reader and speller in the senior class in the Center school at the close of the Winter term, amounting to $8.59.

On the first day of May 1882 there were 116 children between the ages of 5 and 15 years. Of these 108 have attended our schools, aside from those attending the school at Loudville.

The Truant Officers, having had no official duties to perform, we have no further report to make for them.

In the following table fractions are discarded :
