

LD
152
.6
1895c

Decennial Class Book
Amherst College
1895

Class	No.
Amherst College Library. Res. by W. S. Tyler, 1895 MEMORABILIA COLLECTION

Class LJ 152

Book '6

PRESENTED BY

1895e

Amherst college, Class of 1875.

DECENNIAL CLASS BOOK

*Eighteen Hundred
Ninety-five*

Amherst College

EDITED BY THE SECRETARY

3
3
3
3
3

1906

L1152
.6
1895c

PRINTED BY THE SOUTHGATE PRESS
T. W. RIPLEY CO., BOSTON, U. S. A.

• • •
• • •
• • •
• • •
• • •

P O E M S

READ AT THE CLASS DINNER

JUNE 26, 1905

“ Then in youth’s fervor and passion you promised “ Steadfast for truth and for justice to strive.
 “ What have ye done with the talents I lent ye?
 “ Render accounting, oh Ninety and Five !”

Much with misgiving the children make answer.
 Meagre the increase their talents have earned.
 Scanty the laurels that press on their foreheads.
 Little remains of the lore that they learned.

Logic, Latinity sleep sound forever.
 German and Greek are of little repute.
 Calculus fled o’er the Pons Asinorum.
 Dead is the ablative absolute.

Angles and acids reverted to chaos ;
 Malthus and Carpenter no more extant.
 Even the man of priori cognitions.
 Tell you his name? To save them they can’t.

Yet tho’ the rules and the sums be forgotten,
 Never to trouble their slumber again,
 Hold thy head high, thou art blest in thy children,
 Mother of scholars and mother of men !

See them unnoted performing their task work,
 Firm in the faith that thou gavest their youth.
 Bearing thy message, wearing thy emblem,
 Purple for nobleness, white for the truth.

Earnest, straightforward, clear-eyed, uncorrupted,
 Shirking no service, but giving their best,
 Careless of fame, and fearing but failure,
 Ranked with the right when it comes to the test.

Amherst, thy sons fail not of their promise.
 Through them the hopes of thy heart shall survive.
 Well hast thou sown, fear not for the harvest,
 This is the answer of Ninety and Five.

WILLIAM J. BOARDMAN.

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH

THE graduate of Amherst who returns to its scenes of beauty drinks from the true fountain of youth. The views of mountain and of valley inspire him with new life, while the familiar surroundings remind him constantly of the time when he, as a student, first became deeply conscious of the central facts of history, literature, and philosophy. To see Amherst is to renew one's loyalty to the dear old college.

I.

'Tis long since the courtly Spaniard came
In his garb of steel and lace,
With his ancient name and his puissant fame,
And his subtle, languid grace.

With many a knight in armor bright
He sought in the land of flowers
A fountain with sands of crystal white
Enmeshed in the woodland bowers.

He dared to dream that its sparkling stream
Would freshen his blood with youth
Till all the varied world would seem Enshrined in beauty and truth.

II.

Today, delighted, we bend the knee
In a place where the magic grace
Of youth is found eternally,—
And we gaze with reverent face

At silent and dim blue hills that rise
On every side, and mount
And melt in blue, blue depth of skies
That grace the mystic fount.

The circled mountains weave their spell
 With serried peaks of blue,
 And ever in green-clad field and dell
 Are voices calling you,—

The pleasant voice of the wind that comes
 With its balmy odor of pine
 And its hint of the place where the partridge drums
 In a tangle of bramble and vine;

The sob and sigh of the bending grass,
 The purl of the willowed stream,
 The varied insect voices that pass
 And come and go as a gleam

Of light comes and dances and flees,—
 The voice of the hidden bird,
 And the restless, droning hum of the bees,—
 Like far-off music heard.

Spread far about this magic place
 The buttercup lifts its head;
 A thousand grasses give their grace
 To petals of varied red.

III.

We live the life of long ago
 When the whole wide world was new;
 We are young with the Greeks who heard the flow
 Of Demosthenes' speech and grew

To be lovers and patient makers of art;
 We feel New Learning sweep
 From the conquered East and stir the heart
 Of a darkened world to leap

Beyond the forms of an ancient past;
We see old systems turn
To new, and thought in nobler cast
Grow more and more and yearn

With Hegel and Kant for the mountain height
Of loftiest, noblest man
Illumined with pure, eternal light
That speaks of time nor span.

IV.

Again old voices,—again old dreams,—
Again old hopes we know,—
Reflected far from glorious gleams
That came in the long ago.

Yet still the eternal hills remain
Blue and misty and far;
And we bless the mountain and valley and plain
Where youth and its secrets are.

FREDERICK HOUK LAW.

THE DECENNIAL REUNION

THE PREPARATIONS FOR THE DECENNIAL.

THE first steps toward getting the Class back to the Decennial Reunion were taken by Belden, the president of the Class, in the fall of 1904. An enthusiastic mid-winter dinner was held at the Café des Beaux Arts in New York City, on Saturday, the 14th day of January, 1905. About thirty men attended. A committee, consisting of Belden, Burnett, Lawson, Morrow and H. L. Pratt, was appointed to take charge of the coming Reunion. The Committee began work at once. Under its direction, three numbers of the Ninety-Five Bulletin were published and sent to all the members of the Class. At the same time a systematic effort was made to reach each member of the Class with personal letters from his most intimate friends.

So many men assisted the Committee in its work that it is difficult to mention one without doing injustice to others. Kimball, however, deserves special credit for rounding up the splendid Western delegation that was present. His Round Robin letters travelled up into Minnesota, down into Arizona, and out to the Pacific Coast, coming back to him safely with valuable data about men who had not been heard from for a long time.

The Committee felt unanimously that the expense of the Reunion to the men who came back should be made as light as possible. Inasmuch as the members of the Class are widely scattered, the travelling expenses of some men would be much greater than others. It therefore seemed wise to ask the members of the Class to subscribe sufficient money to make it possible to say that those who came back would be put to no expense except their expense for meals while in Amherst. The response to the call for subscriptions was very gratifying.

Almost $1,400 was raised without any trouble. The expenses of the Reunion were about $800, and there therefore remains in the treasury of the Class about $600 to be used for some college purpose to be determined by the Committee appointed by the Class at the meeting held June 26th, 1905.

The whole Class labored to make the Reunion a success and every man who was fortunate enough to be there realizes that it was a success.

Entirely apart from the large attendance at the Decennial Reunion, the work done in preparing for the Reunion has already shown itself in a strong revival of class spirit.

THE OCCASION

It is seemly that a narrative touching on the Decennial of Ninety-five should be written, yet the preparation thereof is an unenviable task for the reason that the most golden words must be as tarnished brass beside the aureole which crowns that event in the memory of its participants. Furthermore, the chronicle should not follow "total recall" (a thousand pardons!), but should dwell upon the more noteworthy events. But at the Reunion, everything that was said or seen, heard or done, was a desideratum per se. Therefore, in the nature of things, the journal of the Decennial must be either very incomplete, or as bald as the poll of perfect pilosity.

Priority of arrival from the outer world is claimed by Lane of waning strength and Barnes of waxing girth. Both reached Amherst on Thursday, but neither will commit himself as to the hour through fear of giving the other an advantage in the argument.

According to the program, the colors were formally raised Friday evening. The item is correct if "colors" means hulla-baloo. Every fifteen minutes a newcomer would appear through the dark, and the trees turned green with envy of the barks that greeted him. Threescore repetitions did not stale the enjoyment of welcoming a chap that had been beyond the horizon for years.

Saturday morning it rained Ninety-five. They came in by every means of locomotion, except wings, and when we marched to Pratt Field with Wes Burnham in the van, the front ranks couldn't tell whether the rear guard were singing "Three Cheers for the Irish" or "The Banks of the Old Freshman." The game was between Williams and Amherst, and served as a curtain-raiser to the heroic struggle of Monday afternoon with the well-preserved Elder Statesmen of Eighty-five, which was lost because Pratt and Belden batted all the air away from the home-plate, leaving no atmospheric pressure to make Bridgman's pitching curly.

That Saturday had an evening. It was brilliant. It was also long. It was not inaudible. "Let 'em all come" was the watchword, and none failed to be there. "Tight-wad" was not breathed until later. Above, around, beneath and sideways were sunlit clouds of joy. I was inter pocula, though I did not poculate, yet my memories of the evening are shadowy with prismatic splendors. A lull came about two o'clock, when Gusie Post put his Jim Hyde out of the window of the violent ward and spoke with weird words. Then five hundred members of Oughty-five, with the whole Faculty and Board of Trustees, headed by an African with ivory-barred face and fluttering feet came up the winding stair and whispered, like three thunder-claps, "Aren't you thirsty?"

Sunday was a day of rest.

Only the laity and sinners had arrived at this time. I realized this fact as I peered around from my point of vantage during the Baccalaureate service in vain endeavor to catch a glimpse of some of my mates. George Olds found a seat for Mrs. Olds, and sidled toward the entrance, and I saw him no more. Doubtless the absentees hold that fifty-one times a year is often enough to go to church.

The only sad hour of the whole week was the afternoon memorial service for Lyall, Penny, and Warren.

Monday morning the clergy arrived, and as I looked at them and talked with them, my best wish for the ministry of America was that it might never fall short of the sincerity and broad humanity which marks the clerical wing of Ninety-five.

The dinner was the climax of the Reunion. The food was so good and so abundant that you wished the Norwood might cater for all banquets. Judge John Percival Deering presided and set a high example of tact, spontaneity and humor for all other toastmasters to emulate. I have been at many feasts where after wagging of teeth came waning of tongues, but I have never heard a better set of after-dinner speeches than those which were prima facie evidence of the freedom and grasp of Ninety-five's maturing mind.

After Monday there were very few programized events. The Competitive Gym Drill did not happen because '55 found a technical fault in the challenge. Still we shied the dumb-bells, hit the punching bag and dropped bowling-balls on our toes after the ancient and orthodox manner.

The receptions at the homes of Professor and Mrs. Olds and Professor and Mrs. Garman were affairs to be remembered. We wish that they happened to us oftener.

The Alumni Dinner was remarkably like previous ones, and abounded with noise, wit, eloquence, and over-eating.

A summary of the more prominent events depicts only the skeleton of the Reunion. To breathe Amherst air again, to gaze on her unrivalled horizon, to sit at Hitchcock Hall and look at your fellows, to converse with them, casually to praise them or, peradventure, amicably to insult them, to swap sere and yellow jokes, to go trolley-riding, to visit the Fraternity House, to peek into class-rooms where once you suffered, to clamber up Chapel Tower, to be glad generally, to feel as though, for once, you had got behind the looking-glass, these and other all-important and unforgettable nothings were what made up the real Reunion, for it was all things to all men. There were other doings, of course; but the specific affairs did not really amount to much, compared with the abstract condition of being alive at that particular time and in that particular place. Mention should not be omitted, however, of the little back room where the married and engaged men did funny things with red and white buttons, chanting intermittently a quaint recitative about "every time they do something or other, it costs a quarter."

Mention of the married men calls to mind a brilliant and delightful fact. Without question the greatest advance that Ninety-five has made since graduation is its broad-minded acceptance of the principle of co-education in its post-graduate course. Aforetime I had wondered if worthy successors to the perfect women among my elderly friends could be found in these days of slangy and sophisticated Amazons. All apprehensions were set at rest by the wives of Ninety-five. Nothing did more to raise my esteem of my class-mates than their selection (it was really predestination, of course, but "selection" is a shorter word) of wives. Pessimism must be silent before so abundant, living proof that true womanhood shows no sign of perishing from the earth.

The Reunion was the most successful of all successes. It was pleasure unalloyed. It was stimulus to honorable achievement. It was food and drink to optimism. It brought together a company of men that are of the kind the world needs. Some have made their mark, and we are proud of them. But eminence is not the greatest thing a man can have. It is only relative and only a few may gain it. The thing that really counts is a shoulder at the wheel, pushing in the right direction. That is vital. That is absolute. That is the image which stands out most prominently in the composite picture of the impressions received at Ninety-five's Decennial.

WILLIAM J. BOARDMAN.

AMHERST
'95
TENTH REUNION

NORWOOD HOTEL : NORTHAMPTON
MASSACHUSETTS : JUNE TWENTY-SIXTH
NINETEEN HUNDRED AND FIVE

T O A S T S

Toastmaster His Honor, PERCY DEERING

"O wise and upright judge!
How much more elder art thou than thy looks!"

— Shakespeare

Choregus HOWARD D. FRENCH

Amherst CHARLES T. BURNETT

"God gives all men all earth to love,
But since man's heart is small,
Ordains for each one spot shall prove Beloved over all."

— Kipling

Congress CHARLES B. LAW, M. C.

"God save this land of ours,— Congress is in session."

— Senate Chaplain

The Decennial EDWIN J. BISHOP

"Fill me with the old familiar juice, Methinks I may recover by and by."

— Omar Khayyam

Ninety-five in Medicine CUPID OSGOOD, M. D.

"Asa was diseased in his feet, yet in his disease he sought not to Jehovah, but to the physicians. And Asa slept with his fathers."— 11 Chron., XVI, 12.

T O A S T S

The Lawyer

CHARLES G. LITTLE

“Council may, in the discretion of the court, be permitted to lie down on the floor and hollo at the top of his voice.”

— Owens v. Com (Ky. 1900) 58 SW. Rep. 422

Ninety-five's Parsons

REV. J. T. STOCKING

“Famous preachers that have been and be,
But never was one so convincing as he.”

— Lowell

Twenty-six Broadway

BERT PRATT, Captain of Industry

“Cradle of the serpent brood of trusts now coiled around the necks of the American people, choking their aspirations and strangling their liberties.”

— Lawson, (Tom, not Jimmy!)

The World at Large

WRIGHT C. SAMPSON

“This little speech of Wisdom Great
It pleases Jo to dedicate
To that Rampageous Reprobate
The World at Large.
Yet as we mark his Stony Phiz
And see him whoop and whirl and whiz,
We can but cry — O Lord why IS
The World at Large.”

— Oliver Herford

Poems

WILLIAM J. BOARDMAN, FREDERICK H. LAW

“No! be it an epic, or be it a line,
The Boys will all love it because it is mine.”

— Holmes

Our Wives

ERNEST W. HARDY

“To marry is to domesticate the Recording Angel.”

— Stevenson

Ninety-five

CLINTON E. BELL

“Yet we'll end as we've begun,
For though scattered, we are one.”

The world hasn't heard of them much; but you wait—

Leave that to Ninety-five.

Their training will show when they once strike their gait,—

Room then for Ninety-five!

What men have done, they will do and improve.

Barriers that hold them have got to remove.

They'll never stop, short of top.

Bumpers to Ninety-five!

WILLIAM J. BOARDMAN.

SPEECHES
AT THE
MEMORIAL MEETING FOR DEAD CLASSMATES
JUNE 25, 1905

This meeting was in charge of Haven, assisted by Fiske

SPEECHES

AMASA JAMES LYALL

WHATEVER is said in memory of Amasa Lyall must be done simply or it will be exceedingly inappropriate. And there is only too little to say, as he died about three years after graduation, on October 3, 1898. The disease of which he died was consumption; and during most of the intervening time after he left college he was a very sick man.

In the fall of '95 Lyall entered the architectural course at Boston Tech. But he overworked, and his health could not stand the strain, so he left Boston early in the year and came back to his home in New York, where he did some light work in an architect's office.

During the following year he undertook to design and build two cottages in Twilight Park, in the Catskill Mountains for his father and a friend, and in connection with this work spent much of his time at Hunter, N. Y., which is in the Catskills. The winter of '97, however, found him so much weakened that a trip to Phoenix, Arizona, was decided upon as a last hope. Perhaps he was unfortunate in the weather there, at any rate the trip was a failure. He returned to New York, spent the summer at the house he had built for his father in Twilight Park, and died there in the fall. Clinton Bell and myself attended the funeral, which was held in that same house that he had built.

So the career of Amasa Lyall terminated at its start; and the two houses in Twilight Park are the only pieces of his work that stand to attest his talent and ability. These, however, are remarkably tasteful and have repeatedly been called the handsomest houses in the Catskills. Especially that built for his father is a marvel of good taste, conscientiously designed and beautifully finished. I cannot adequately describe how excellently he has taken advantage of the romantic location and charming view, but I love to believe that it shows that had he been spared to this life, he would have won for himself a prominent place as an architect.

Yet, while now his hand and brain can do no more work, his real lifework is still going on. For our achievements are in part his achievements. The generous sympathy he gave us, the ennobling influence of his character, and the intercourse we each of us had with him in these halls, have in part made us the men we are, and fitted us for our careers. But I find it a mighty consolation, when I grieve for this dear friend, with such great promise for success in life, who has been taken away at the very beginning of his work when he was making the first use of the attainments of the years of study we passed here together with him—it is a great consolation to feel that the influence of his virtue still lives and places upon us, as upon all who knew him, the duty to extend it by our own lives and achievements and so to be the instruments of his immortality.

ALFRED ROELKER, JR.

LYALL had a nature that loved beauty, whether of form, or of color, or of deed. His room in college was an expression of self, for it bore witness to the harmony of his nature. Under his advice certain changes made in his fraternity house gave to his fraternity a lasting expression of his artistic gift. He hated the harsh notes of the voice, the boisterous roughness that is not akin to harmony of life, and, in equal measure, he loved quiet gentlemanliness. He was retiring in nature, and yet always ready to give kindly advice when his words might add to the beauty of other lives. He died, as was fitting, in a place of remarkable beauty. In him there was much that was akin to the melancholy but lovable natures of poets like Keats and Shelley. Like them, he did not live to put his beautiful ideals into many deeds. But deeds are not necessary. It is the ideal, the longing for something better, that counts. And just as Shelley and Keats have left upon the world their lasting impressions of the beautiful, so has Lyall left upon all who knew him that which makes their lives better.

FREDERICK H. LAW.

THEODORE ATWATER PENNY

OF Penny it is extremely difficult to speak. He came to Amherst from the West, from Idaho and Utah where his early life had been spent. Why he came I do not know, only that he desired an education. He was not naturally a scholar; but somewhere, in some way, his ambition had been aroused and would not be satisfied short of an academic course. He had to work his way through college, as we know. He toiled on, however, though it was severe, trying to overcome the disadvantages of his early years. Not many of us could or would have done it.

Few of us knew Penny. Of his early life I know nothing. He came, raw, awkward, uncouth, yet with the heart and spirit of a man. Perhaps this very ignorance carries my imagination too far. But in his name, Theodore Atwater Penny, do I not see a trace of his lineage? Atwater, it sounds to me like good old New England stock, the kind that in the early days went out and created upon the frontier the new states of the Union. Maybe I am wrong, but I can not help imagining that this is why he came to Amherst, so far from all friends and early surroundings.

The quality that those of us who knew him best think of in connection with him is that of comradeship. He was one of us, always good natured, quiet, unobtrusive. He enjoyed sitting down with a group of men who were talking over athletic, college or fraternity affairs, or telling stories and passing a jolly hour. There he seemed to be at home. We are glad to remember him because he helped men by his genial spirit, his atmosphere of friendliness, his willingness to lend a hand when it was possible for him to do so.

While he was in college he did good, faithful work. His habits were good. I never heard anything against him. And when he left college, from what I have been able to learn, he continued the same honest work as before, and gained the esteem and praise of those with whom he labored. Not only was the quality of his work good, but the influence that he exerted during the years of his teaching was spoken of, at his death, as of the best.

HENRY W. LANE.

LIFE is more eloquent than words in a mature man that is a man. But some men die in the making. So it was with Penny. He must be judged by his promise, not by his accomplishment.

The few facts that I know about his life after college have come to me indirectly from people that saw him during that time. The external situation was the following: He went from college into a position as substitute in a school at Sing-Sing, N. Y. This position was regarded as an excellent one. He was next heard of at Dudley, Mass., where he became an assistant in Nichols Academy. Here he did work of the first order, especially in mathematics. Literature, too, he did not neglect, for he organized a weekly Shakespeare Club. He was a regular attendant at church, being present indeed on the very day in 1899 on which he was drowned while swimming. A lonely funeral service, at which not a relative was present, took place in the church at Dudley; and the body, taken in charge by Mr. Benner, a former instructor of Penny, but at this time teacher in a boys' school at Wellesley, Mass., was buried in the latter town.

As to his life from within, his old instructor speaks in warm praise of its trait of perseverance. He was regarded in Dudley as a man of reserve, but a pleasant neighbor. Few felt that they knew him. Eastman, who saw him toward the end of his life, thought he showed marked signs of discouragement.

You remember how Penny, the bell-ringer, summoned us month after month to our collegiate duties. So Penny, our early-lost classmate, is still summoning us to our duty toward his long line of successors in discouragement and loneliness, that need the friendly hand.

CHARLES T. BURNETT.

HERBERT LAKIN WARREN

WARREN died on October 25, 1901, after an illness of two days, of Bright's disease.

His life since graduation from Amherst had been just like his life in college,—quiet, unostentatious, kind, full of good results. He never had learned to live otherwise than he had been taught by his mother and father in a home cultured, refined, preserving the best of New England ideals.

The year after leaving Amherst was spent at that home in Holden, Massachusetts, and the fall of 1896 Warren entered the Law School of Harvard University, desiring to know something of the principles of the law as affecting business. For Warren always expected to enter business, for which he was by nature and by training eminently fitted. In the spring of '97 the opportunity came, and he established the Westboro Underwear Co., located in Westboro, Massachusetts. In this business he continued as long as he lived, increasing it in size and establishing it upon a sound and successful basis.

In April, 1899, Warren was married to Katherine Sweet, of Canton, Pennsylvania, and his married life was singularly happy, spent for the most part at the beautiful home Warren and his wife made in Westboro.

Those qualities of fair-mindedness and charity towards others, which we saw in him in our college life, increased as he saw life in its broader aspects, and he constantly lived upon the principle that others who differed from him were, nevertheless, as honest and as conscientious as he. This characteristic brought the inevitable result of many friends and few or no enemies.

Whatever perplexities or anxieties Warren may have had they were never evident to others. This was true because Warren believed that the way to live was with an unruffled exterior, seeking to be contented after the best effort had been made, and never distressing others with those things which were a personal burden. The extreme proof of this belief of Warren's is found in the fact that though he knew for some three years that his health was far from robust, yet at his request neither his parents nor his wife were told of that fact. For, as he said, "They could be of no help, and it would trouble them."

Warren is buried in his native town, Holden. It has been the good fortune of the writer to go frequently to the Warren home in Holden. There he always finds a kind and strong interest in the affairs of Amherst, and especially in the members and in the doings of the Class of Ninety-five. Recently Warren's mother asked especially about the plans for the Reunion, about those whom we expected to have back, expressing a cordial interest in it all, and in us who had known and loved her son.

CHARLES A. ANDREWS.

HARRY LEMUEL TWICHELL

SINCE the Decennial Reunion one member of our Class has been taken away, Harry Lemuel Twichell, or "Twich," as he was more intimately known to us all. He died of typhoid fever in New York City, December 2, 1905, after an illness of three weeks. At the time of his death he was associated in the practice of law, as he had been for four years, with R. S. Rounds, Amherst '87. The following extract is from an appreciation by Mr. Rounds, published in March, 1906, in the "Purple and Gold," the organ of the Chi Psi Fraternity.

"Brother Twichell was still young, not in spirit only, but in years, having been born in 1873, at Burdette, Schuyler County, New York, where his father was pastor of the Presbyterian Church. His boyhood was that of any bright, active, and mischievous country boy, and the turning point in his life came in 1891, when he entered Amherst College, was initiated into Chi Psi and formed his friendship with Brother Frink, then professor of rhetoric, who was a father to the boys of Alpha Chi and to whom Brother Twichell became greatly attached. Indeed, it was Brother Frink who, at the end of young Twichell's course, gave him a fixed purpose by helping him to choose the law as a profession, and Brother Frink's insight is shown by his reference, in graduation week, to the 'energy, enthusiasm, self-reliance and hearty sympathy' which have been so strikingly shown in Brother Twichell's later life.

"Immediately after commencement the young graduate came to New York City, where he took his LL.B. at the New York Law School, paying his way during his course by teaching mathematics in the evening.

"His admission to the bar followed in 1897, and after that came two or three years of practice and preparation and then he started his own practice.

"This is no place to speak of Brother Twichell's skill as a lawyer, his enviable standing in his profession, and the good fight that he made to win his success, nor of his bright prospects of future honors. It is hardly the place to describe his personal charm and character, his geniality and sympathy that gave him hosts of friends; and the loyalty, unselfishness and sincerity that bound his friends so closely to him; and his cheerful courage, high ideals and steadfastness of purpose that so impressed all who met him."

A memorial meeting in honor of Twichell was held at the Chi Psi Club in New York City, December 18, 1905, by the Chi Psi Club and the Chi Psi Alumni Society of New York City, acting jointly. Twichell had been for a considerable period secretary and treasurer of the fraternity, a member of the board of governors, and one of the founders of the Club, and for some years secretary and treasurer of the Chi Psi Alumni Society of New York City.

The burial service was held at the cemetery chapel of Auburn, N. Y.

COMMENCEMENT MISCELLANY

The class of '80 won over the class of '95 by only one per cent. The figures of the classes holding reunions this year are as follows:—

	Class	Membership	Attendance	Percentage
1	1880	76	53	69.73
2	1895	88	60	68.18
3	1902	115	55	47.1
4	1885	86	40	46.5
5	1899	99	39	39.3
6	1904	125	38	30.4
7	1875	45	10	22.2
8	1890	78	18	21.7

It is interesting to note that save for the very exceptional record made last year by 1894, the classes of '80 and '95 have broken all other records. The beautiful cup is entitled to its meed of credit for the showing, but back of this jocular rivalry is plainly the feeling that Amherst is in good hands and deserves well of her sons.

BEST RECORDS

	Class	Date	Reunion	Percentage
1	'94	June, 1904	10th	83.5
2	'80	June, 1905	25th	69.73
3	'95	June, 1905	10th	68.18
4	'84	June, 1904	20th	62.2
5	'78	June, 1903	25th	61.3

THE COMMENCEMENT DINNER

[From The (Springfield, Mass.) Republican, June 29, 1905]

It was plain long before "Old Doc's" son had summoned the waiting classes to table that the "gym" wouldn't hold them all. As it was, some of the cub alumni of 1905 had to go somewhere else to eat, though they squeezed in afterward to hear the speaking and to help in the singing and yelling that was kept up through the dinner and speaking hour. A suggestion that next year the gallery might have to be cleared of their fair spectators to make room was met with a chorus of noes from the diners. Rev. Dr. George Washburn, formerly president of Robert College, Constantinople, now of Chelsea, said grace, and after dinner James L. Bishop, '65, of New York City, president of the alumni association, acted as toastmaster. President Harris was warmly greeted, and was in especially "good form" as he proceeded with the account of his stewardship. The year's progress, much as you have had it, was reviewed briefly, the president speaking with much cordiality of the personality and work of Professor Esty, who retires after long service as head of the department of mathematics. A welcome announcement by the president was that William R. Mead, '67, of the well-known New York architectural firm of McKim, Mead & White, who has personally directed the restoration of College Hall, has promised a new bell for the chapel. It has been cracked for some time, and the church bell has had to be turned to secular uses. The president also spoke feelingly of the deaths of Rev. Dr. Donald and Rev. Dr. Burnham, trustees of the college, and announced that their places had been filled by the election of Rev. Dr. Cornelius H. Patton, '83, formerly of St. Louis, and now secretary of the American Board, and Rev. Dr. Wilford L. Robbins, '81, of New York. There are about thirty more applicants for admission to the college than there were a year ago at this time.

President Harris returned the toastmaster's compliment by explaining the service that the latter had rendered as counsel for Amherst in the Fayerweather will case, which had been finally settled, unless it should be appealed to the Hague tribunal. Mr. Bishop, in responding, paid a warm tribute to Mr. Fayerweather, who had benefited so many institutions of learning without the thought of attaching his name to a building or a scholarship in connection therewith. Congressman George P. Lawrence gave a witty and eloquent speech for the 25-year class. Incidentally he called attention to the fact that President Roosevelt is a member of the class of 1880, though in another college. He suggested that the President may have feared that there wouldn't be enough strenuous life here, but he testified from a memory of twenty-five years back that hunting mountain lions would have been a peaceful pastime compared to reciting in chemistry to Professor Harris. And there were more "cracks" of the same sort and a glowing tribute to the college that was warmly applauded. Rev. Dr. Robbins, one of the new trustees, spoke briefly and forcefully of the value of Amherst's work as a small and not very rich college. The pursuit of mere bigness was a danger of the times to be avoided. Sir Chentung Liang Cheng, the Chinese minister, introduced as a naturalized member of the class of '85, was received with enthusiasm by the alumni rising. He addressed the gathering as "fellow alumni," much to their delight, and in a brief and witty speech paid tribute to Amherst and especially to the "unequalled class of '85." It should be said that a good deal of the fun of the afternoon was made in the course of exaggerated eulogy of the classes of which the speakers chanced to be members. Sir Chentung was only loyal to his own. He aroused another burst of applause when he declared that he had joined the University Club in Washington, D. C., by virtue of his honorary degree received from Amherst two years ago. He thought it would add another Amherst man to the membership, and he believed in doing a good turn for "his alma mater" in little as well as great things when he got a chance. He spoke only as "one of the alumni" and not as a diplomat, for the good diplomat is the one who knows how to keep his mouth shut.

Dwight W. Morrow, '95, of New York made a decided hit with his speech for the 10-year class. It abounded in clever hits, chiefly for Amherst consumption. He declared that the class had grown from the 74 who graduated by the addition of 56 wives and 64 children, and of the latter 30 were born before the consulate of Theodore Roosevelt. The class had a captain in the regular army, a real live congressman and a real captain of industry, who spent half of his time dodging the missiles of that distinguished altruist of Boston and the other half in trying to find a Congregational clergyman in New England who, when he offered him bread, wouldn't look for a stone. In closing he spoke of the value of the alumnus in returning now and then for new inspiration to where his castles in Spain looked as clear as when he first started in their quest. Grosvenor H. Backus of Brooklyn, N. Y., president of the class of 1894, holder of the alumni trophy, then turned it over to the class of 1880 in a witty speech.

HINTS FROM THE FACULTY FOR THE CALLOW ALUMNUS

TO ANY ALUMNUS,

Or Man Who Has Been a Member of Amherst College a Full Year in Course, and is Attending Commencement This--1905--Year.

Be sure and register at Alumni Headquarters, get your class button and dinner ticket. Then let the clerk know if your address is right on the published list and correct any error you see on the address list.

Be sure you have voted for ALUMNI TRUSTEE.

The new Astronomical Observatory is open through the day and every pleasant evening.

Ask Mr. Fletcher to show you Dr. Herrick's superb collection of Memorabilia in the memorabilia alcoves.

Go and see the New Tennis Courts on Pratt Field.

Take a copy of Thomas Johnson's Will from the table in the clerk's office; a gift of F. W. STEARNS, '78.

Mrs. Walker's history of Distinguished Amherst Families is for sale by the clerk. Price, $1.00.

"Prof." Charlie Thompson's Book is on sale by the clerk. Every copy sold helps the oldest living man connected with college. He needs aid.

In Appleton Cabinet see the Rare Fossils collected and mounted by Professor Loomis. Especially see the big skeleton, named after our Professor J. M. Tyler. There are also additions to the Gilbert Museum.

Take a walk to Pratt Cottage and call on Miss Thompson, the matron.

If you have any Athletic Memorabilia go to the Trophy Room and see if there is not something you can contribute.

Go to Hitchcock Hall and see our growth in the music line.

To complete the set we very much want Class Albums of '78, '79, '82, '83, '84, '90, '96. We have the rest.

Take a copy of Professor Crowell's revised list of Alumni in the Civil War.

Take the program and pictures of '84 College Hall Opening on June 15, 1905. Also take a copy of the Diagram of Pratt Field, Blake Field and Athletic Grounds. Given by FRANK L. BABBOTT, '78.

Don't fail to go to Professor Cowles' Room in Williston Hall and see what has been done in the Latin Department.

See the substructure of our Swimming Tank, south of the Pratt Gymnasium, a gift of HAROLD I. PRATT, '02.

DECENNIAL BUSINESS

SPECIAL BUSINESS

THE following items of special business were accomplished at the regular business meeting held just before the banquet on Monday evening. These officers were elected for the ensuing five years: President, Belden; Vice-president, Professor Olds; Secretary, Burnett; Treasurer, Tyler. A committee was elected to raise from the class a sum of money to be used in the interest of the college, the special disposition of the fund so raised to be left to this committee. Its members are Morrow, Boardman, Burnett, and President Belden, ex-officio.

It was voted also that the Secretary be authorized to publish a class book, as a record of the Decennial; that each member be assessed not more than two dollars for each copy desired; and that the Secretary be authorized to call upon members for assistance in compilation of material for the book.

At the direction of the Class, the Secretary sent a cablegram of greeting to Nichols in Porto Rico.

These further items of business were accomplished formally or informally during the Reunion. The Secretary was directed to send letters to the wife and the mother of Warren, and the mother of Lyall, telling them of the memorial meeting held for the dead members of the Class. A very appreciative letter has since been received from Mrs. Lyall. Two large bouquets of American Beauty roses were sent to Mrs. Olds in acknowledgment of the special hospitality extended by her to the wives. Boardman was appointed a collector to raise one hundred dollars in two-dollar subscriptions for the running expenses of the next five years. The thanks of the Class were sent to Professor and Mrs. Garman and to Professor and Mrs. Olds for their hospitality.

REUNION EXPENSES

THE Executive Committee has made its report to the Class Treasurer of the receipts and expenses in connection with our Decennial Reunion, and has turned in the approved vouchers for all money expended, with a check for $304.80, surplus.

Below I give a brief summary of this report:

TOTAL SUBSCRIPTIONS, PAID AND UNPAID

1 at $250	$250.00
3 " 100	300.00
5 " 50	250.00
1 " 35	35.00
8 " 25	200.00
1 " 23	23.00
7 " 20	140.00
1 " 18	18.00
2 " 15	30.00
9 " 10	90.00
1 " 8	8.00
5 " 5	25.00
44 men subscribed	$1,369.00

EXPENSES

Rent of Hitchcock Hall, Hardy House, and Miller House	$237.50
Attendance at Hitchcock	54.00
Class Supper	170.50
Printing, including Bulletins	72.50
Decorations	50.00
Rent of Cots	53.50
Fireworks	38.35
Trophy Cup Assessment	15.00
Sundry Expenses, including Hat Bands, Megaphones, and Cup won by "Mike" Kelley	40.12
Committee Expenses as per Bills rendered by Burnett, Morrow, and Belden	57.73
Total	$789.20
Total Subscriptions	$1,369.00
Expenses	789.20
Balance	$579.80

This surplus will be turned over to the Class Treasurer to be used as the nucleus of the Class Fund, in accordance with the vote passed at our Decennial Class meeting.

In addition to the above, $82.00 was collected and has been forwarded to the Class Treasurer for defraying the current expenses of the Class Secretary.

There was also a special subscription, amounting to $45.70, which amount was expended in supplies at Amherst.

(Signed)

F. M. BELDEN.

CLASS ENTERPRISES

THE PROFESSOR OLDS' FUND

AT the Triennial Reunion in 1898 the Class appointed a committee, consisting of Herbert L. Pratt, Robert B. Osgood, and Dwight W. Morrow, to collect money from the members of the Class for some college purpose. As Professor Olds had always been closely identified with the Class, it seemed peculiarly fitting to use the money for his department. Subscriptions were sought from every man in the Class. Forty men subscribed. Each subscription ran for a term of five years, the amount of the subscriptions ranging from $1.00 annually to $10.00 annually. The total sum of money collected has been $379.61, of which $250.00 has been paid to Professor Olds, leaving a balance of $129.61 in the hands of the Treasurer of the fund.

The use that Professor Olds has made of the money is shown by the following extract from one of his letters:

“This year, for instance, I have bought a set of compact logarithmic tables, which can be used in all tests. I have also paid for the materials to make a Plancellier Cell (to draw a straight line). Now and then we can buy a portrait of some famous old fellow to hang on our walls—again, some duplicates of library books to accommodate advanced students, as Garman, you remember, does with his class fund.”

How much “Georgie” has appreciated our small gift is best told in his own words:

“It’s the faith of you ’95 fellows in me, your ‘class boy,’ that has been again and again the fairest reward of my college work.”

HELP FOR CHARLES THOMPSON

IN the summer of 1902 the Secretary received a letter from Professor Thompson of the College, asking whether the Class would be willing to contribute ten dollars annually for the support of "Old Charlie," the immemorial janitor of the old dormitories, now forced out of all work by the disabilities of old age. The case was such as to make a strong appeal to Amherst men. Other classes too were asked to join in this work. The Secretary has, on his own responsibility, undertaken to gather annually since then the sum mentioned, by soliciting subscriptions of one dollar from different members. He has so far not been completely successful, only thirty-three dollars having been collected.

THE PENNY MEMORIAL

IT seemed fitting to certain members of the Class, about the time of our Quinquennial Reunion, that steps should be taken toward marking with a simple stone the grave of Penny in the cemetery at Wellesley. A circular letter was accordingly sent out to the members of the Class by the Secretary, stating the object in view and inviting small subscriptions. A sum of thirty dollars was thus raised. The execution of the project was left in the hands of the president, who appointed Eastman to take charge of the matter.

The latter wrote to Penny's old home for permission to place a stone upon the grave. He received the following letter in reply:

WALLACE, IDAHO, August 8, 1902.

LUCIUS R. EASTMAN, JR.,
10 Tremont Street, Boston.

Dear Sir,— We have received your kind letter, and I assure you that we appreciate your respect and friendship for our loved one.

We would not think of refusing you permission to erect the monument according to your own plans, for it gives us joy to know that Theo's class have such deep respect and lasting friendship for him.

Very truly yours,

GERTRUDE PENNY.

The enterprise was completed by the placing of the stone about the end of the year 1902. Penny is buried in a triangular lot just large enough for one burial. The grave is marked by a simple block of gray, Westerly granite, about eighteen inches in height and width and six inches in depth, with a sloping top. On the front of the stone is this inscription:

THEODORE ATWATER PENNY

1866-1899

Placed by his Class

Amherst 1895

The character of the spot is described thus by Eastman:
"Yesterday I visited the cemetery and looked at the grave. The cemetery is about a mile from the village of Wellesley, in the hills. It is a quiet spot, far away from houses and factories, and Penny's grave is near the top of a little knoll, under a tree which later should become a magnificent one. As I stood near the tree I had a splendid sweep of country spread before me. While it cannot be said that it is Amherst scenery, or like the stretches of country to which Penny must have been accustomed in Idaho, yet I could not help feeling that here, perhaps, was a spot which Penny would have liked as much as any in Eastern Massachusetts.

"The cemetery is not an old one, but it is under splendid management; and everything about the grave showed the best of care."

CLASS BIOGRAPHIES

HISTORY OF MEMBERS

ANDREWS, CHARLES AMOS: A.B. Amherst 1895. Instructor in Holyoke (Mass.) High School 1895-8. With Penn Mutual Life Ins. Co. 1898—. Member of Mass. House of Representatives 1904, 1905. Married Jan. 1, 1901 Helen M. Slade (Vassar) of Quincy, Mass. Two boys. All reunions. All commencements. Address: 219 Elm St., Holyoke, Mass.

ARMSTRONG, LANDERGREN: five terms in Amherst. With the New York News Bureau, 54-56 Broad St., N. Y. City. Married Nov. 1, 1897 Cora Stockwell of Fitchburg, Mass. One girl. Decennial. Address: as above.

BANGS, CHARLES ROY: A.B. Amherst 1895; LL.B. New York Law School 1898. Since 1898 practicing law in the office of Stetson, Jennings and Russell. Triennial, Decennial. Commencement 1897. Address: 9 Monroe Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BARNES, AUBREY TRULL: B.S. Amherst 1895. Manufacturer. Vice-Pres. W. F. and Jno. Barnes Co., Rockford, Ill. Married in 1897 Katharine Keeler. One girl. Decennial. Address: as above.

BELDEN, FRANK MILTON: B.S. Amherst 1895. With M. B. Belden, Paper and Paper Bags, 320 Broadway, N. Y. All reunions. Commencements 1897, 1904. Address: as above.

BELL, CLINTON EDWARD: A.B. Amherst 1895; LL.B. Columbia 1898. Law practice in New York City 1898-1901; Springfield, Mass., 1901—. Married Feb. 14, 1900 Charlotte Webber. One girl. Decennial. Address: 25 Harrison Ave., Springfield, Mass.

BILL, FREDERICK LEDYARD: A.B. Amherst 1895. Instructor 1895-6. Student in Harvard Law School during parts of the years 1896-9. Seriously hampered since graduation by illness. Married May 15, 1906 Georgina Helen Daniel of Hyannis, Mass. Address: Osterville, Mass.

BISHOP, EDWIN JUDSON: B.S. Amherst 1895; LL.B. St. Paul College of Law 1903. Cashier St. Paul Trust Co. 1895-8; real estate agent of same company 1898-1902; auditing clerk city comptroller's office 1902—. Attorney-at-law 1903—. Officer in local Democratic organizations. Triennial, Decennial. Address: 193 Mackubin St., St. Paul, Minn.

BLAIR, ULYSSES JEFFERSON: A.B. Amherst 1895. Student of chemistry for more than a year at Chicago University. In 1899 an advertising expert in same city. Married June 23, 1897 Pelagie S. Thomas of Alton, Ill. Address: 6538 Vincennes Ave., Chicago.

BLISS, EDWARD H.: two years in Amherst. Civil engineer for City of Boston 1895-1900. Real estate and insurance 1900-1902. Merchant 1902-3. Stock farmer 1903—. Decennial. Address: Barre, Mass.

BOARDMAN, WILLIAM JOSEPH: A.B. Amherst 1895. Instructor in English and French Montclair (N. J.) Military Academy 1895-6; advertising expert in New York and Philadelphia, 1896—. Decennial. Address: 4821 Warrington Ave., Philadelphia.

BOOTH, OLIN ROYAL: A. B. Amherst 1895. Private and corporal troop E, 7th Cavalry, 1895-8; private in general service 1898-9; 2d lieut. 11th Inf. 1899-1901; 1st lieut. 1901—. Service in Arizona, including an expedition into Mexico after renegade Indians 1895-8; service in Spanish-American War in Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands; took part in General Smith's campaign in Samar. Address: Fort Bayard, New Mexico.

BRECK, WALTER WILLIAM: A.B. Amherst 1895. Book-keeper in the Bell Telephone Co., Boston, since 1900. Decennial. Address: 79 Thurston St., Somerville, Mass.

BRIDGMAN, ROBERT: A.B. Amherst 1895. N. Y. Sun 1895-6; N. Y. Tribune 1896-7; N. Y. Times 1897—. Married June 19, 1901 Marion Elise Klapproth. One boy and one girl. All reunions. Commencement 1899. Address: 208 Arlington Ave., Jersey City Heights, N. J.

BRYANT, EMMONS: A.B. Amherst 1895. Teacher one year each in Bridgeport, Conn., Staten Island, and Cornwall-on-Hudson; at Newark, N. J., 1898-1903; since 1903 with the By Products Paper Co., Niagara Falls, N. Y., holding in succession the positions of treasurer, receiver, and special agent. Married June 21, 1899 Dorothy W. Lyon (Bryn Mawr). One girl. Reunion of 1896, Decennial. Address: Box 20, Niagara Falls, N. Y.

BURNETT, CHARLES THEODORE: A.B. Amherst 1895; A.M. Harvard 1900; Ph.D. Harvard 1903. Thesis in psychology; subject: Some Influences Modifying the Judgment of Number. Instructor Tome Institute, Port Deposit, Md., 1895-6; The Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., 1896-8; student at Harvard 1898-1904; assistant in philosophy 1900-2; instructor in philosophy at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1904-6; assistant professor of psychology 1906—; college registrar 1905—. Publications in scientific journals. All reunions except Triennial. Commencement 1897, 1899, 1901, 1903. Address: Brunswick, Me.

BURNHAM, REUBEN WESLEY: A.B. Amherst 1895. Submaster and instructor in science Gloucester (Mass.) High School 1895-9; instructor in physics Erasmus Hall High School, Brooklyn, N. Y., 1899—. Married June 29, 1897 Alice C. Ford of Gloucester. One boy. Decennial. Commencement 1899. Address: Erasmus Hall High School, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BURR, WILLIAM: B.S. Amherst 1895. Principal of public schools in West Shokan and Sloatsburg, N. Y., 1895-9; at present engaged in iron manufacturing at Mahwah, N. J. Reunion of 1896, Triennial. Address: Suffern, N. Y.

COLBY, KIMBALL GLEASON: A. B. Amherst 1895. Student Harvard Law School 1895-6; instructor Lakewood, N. J., 1896-7; Globe Worsted Mills, Lawrence, Mass., 1897-1900; manager and treasurer Lawrence Telegram, 1900—. Member of Methuen School Board, 1899-1905. Reunion of 1896, Decennial. Address: Methuen, Mass.

COMPTON, ISAAC MAYHEW: A.B. Amherst 1895. Student in Newton Theological Seminary (Baptist) 1895-6; pastor Brookline, Vt., 1896-1900; Shaftesbury, Vt., 1900-1903; merchant and postmaster Staffordville, N. J., 1903—. Married July, 1896 Elizabeth E. M'Galliard of Bridgton, N. J. Two boys, one girl. Address: as above.

COOLIDGE, CALVIN: A.B. Amherst 1895. Admitted to the bar after reading law in Northampton, Mass. Councilman Northampton (Mass.) 1899; city solicitor 1900-1; clerk of the courts, Hampshire Co., 1903; Chairman Rep. City Committee, 1904. Won gold medal given by Sons of Am. Rev. in 1895, in competition with all American colleges for best essay on Principles Fought for in American Revolution. Married Oct. 4, 1905 Grace A. Goodhue of Burlington, Vt. All commencements and reunions. Address: Northampton, Mass.

CRITCHLOW, GEORGE READ: A.B. Amherst 1895; M.D. Hahnemann Medical College, Philadelphia, 1898. One year in Buffalo Homœopathic Hospital; attending physician and pathologist to Buffalo Homœopathic Hospital; attending physician to Erie County Hospital. Vice-President N. Y. State Homœopathic Med. Society. Married Dec. 27, 1904 Kate Bell Buell of Burlington, Vt. Quinquennial, Decennial. Address: 505 Norwood Ave., Buffalo, N. Y.

DANA, RICHARD FALLS: A.B. Amherst 1895. Attorney-at-law. Decennial. Address: New Castle, Pa.

DAY, MOSES TAGGART: two terms in Amherst. Williams College 1893-4. LL.B. New York University Law School 1896. Married Sept. 12, 1900 Pauline Town Millener. Three boys. Address: 1204 Prudential Building, Buffalo, N. Y.

DAVIS, FRANK CURTIS: B.S. Amherst 1895; A.M. Amherst 1903; M.D. Johns Hopkins 1899. In hospitals in U. S. and Europe 1899-1904; practicing surgeon 1904—. Publications in medical journals. Reunion of 1896. Address: 416 Bradbury Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

DEERING, JOHN PERCIVAL: A.B. Amherst 1895. Instructor in New York Military Academy, Cornwall-on-Hudson, N. Y. 1895-6. Admitted to Maine bar 1898. City solicitor of Saco, 1900; member of Maine Legislature from Saco, and sec. R. R. Committee 1901-2; judge of municipal court, Saco, 1905—.

Married Oct. 18, 1904 Lucy F. Bryant of Biddeford, Me. Decennial. Address: Saco, Me.

DUNBAR, ROBERT WAYLAND: A.B. Amherst 1895; B.D. Andover 1898. Pastor at North Chelmsford, Mass., and Haverhill, Mass. Married June 21, 1899 Selina A. Cook of Portland, Me. Three girls. Decennial. Commencement 1904. Address: 730 Broadway, Haverhill, Mass.

EASTMAN, LUCIUS ROOT, JR.: A.B. Amherst 1895; LL.B. Boston University 1898. Instructor Brooklyn Polytechnic and private school in N. Y. City 1895-7, studying law meanwhile; student in B. U. Law School 1897-8; law practice in Boston 1898-1906. With firm of Choate, Hall and Stewart for several years. Lecturer three years on Corporations and Bills and Notes, Boston Evening Law School. Member of various town committees, Framingham, Mass. In business with Hills Brothers Company, importing grocers, N. Y. City 1906—. Married June 14, 1905 Eva L. Hills (Smith 1896) of Brooklyn. All reunions except Quinquennial. Commencement 1902. Address: Washington and Beach Streets, N. Y. City.

ELLIOTT, WARNER WARREN: A.B. Amherst 1895; LL.B. Western Reserve 1900. Supt. of Schools, Seville, O., 1895-7; manager Penn Mutual Life Ins. Co., Akron, O., 1897-8; student Western Reserve Law School 1898-1900; practicing law Cleveland 1900—. Married Oct. 21, 1903 Hannah Selby. Decennial. Address: 605 Society for Savings Bldg., Cleveland, O.

FAIRBANKS, GEORGE STEVENS: A.B. Amherst 1895; A.M. Amherst 1898. Principal of High School, Naugatuck, Ct., 1895-6; instructor in English Boys' High School, Brooklyn, 1896-8; for a time head of English Department Columbia Preparatory School, N. Y. City. At present in business in Philadelphia. Married in 1898. One girl. Address: 404 W. Stafford St., Philadelphia.

FISKE, GEORGE WALTER: A.B. Amherst 1895; B.D. Hartford 1898 (Commencement speaker); A.M. Amherst 1898. Thesis on "The Original Gospel." Pastor at Huntington and South Hadley Falls, Mass., 1898-1903; High St. Cong. Church, Auburn, Me., 1903—. Author of "The Simple Truths of Our Christian Faith," a brief manual for instruction; used in many churches with young people. Married Aug. 1, 1898 Alice M. Stewart (Mt. Holyoke) of Hopkinton, Mass. Decennial. Commencements 1899, 1901, 1902. Address: 102 Pleasant St., Auburn, Me.

FRENCH, HOWARD DEAN: A.B. Amherst 1895; B.D. Yale 1898. Student Chicago University Divinity School, 1895-7, Yale Divinity School 1897-8. Assistant pastor Lake Forest, Ill. Pres. Church 1898-1900; pastor Cong. Church, Wyoming, Ill., 1901-4; pastor Cong. Church Canton, Ill., 1904—. Married Oct. 3, 1901 Helen Gray Cornell (Smith 1898) of Chicago. One boy. Triennial, Quinquennial. Commencement 1899. Address: as above.

GRAY, FRED J.: A.B. Amherst 1895. Attorney-at-law. U. S. Commissioner 1898-1905. Address: 65 Ford St., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

GRISWOLD, TRACY BEADLE: A.B. Amherst 1895; B.D. Auburn 1898. Pastor Westminster Pres. Church, Auburn, N. Y. 1898-1903; pastor First Pres. Church, Albany, Oregon, 1903—. Married Aug. 30, 1899 Mary L. Carrier of Elmira, N. Y. Two boys. Address: 516 Broadalbin St., Albany, Oregon.

HANFORD, SAXE HENRY: A.B. Amherst 1895. Journalism in Rochester, N. Y. 1895-8; truck farming and advertising 1898—. For several years with Eastman Kodak Co. as advertising manager. Now of the firm of Lyddon and Hauford, general advertising, Rochester, N. Y. Married Nov. 22, 1898 Grace G. Gordon. One girl. Address: Irondequoit, N. Y.

HARDY, ERNEST WEAVER: A.B. Amherst 1895. Attorney-at-law 1897—. Married April 26, 1905 Marion L. Sparks of New Haven, Ct. All reunions and nearly all commencements. Address: Northampton, Mass.

HAVEN, SHERMAN WILLARD: A.B. Amherst 1895; B.D. Auburn 1898. Instructor of special class at Auburn Theological Sem. in psychology and ethics one year. Editor "Auburn Seminary Review" two years. Commencement speaker. Pastor Congregational Church, Wellsville, N. Y. 1898-1902, and at Patchogue, N. Y. 1902—. Married Aug. 24, 1898 Edna Hall Costa of Auburn. One boy, one girl. Reunion of 1896, Quinquennial, Decennial. Address: 72 Main St., Patchogue, N. Y.

HENNESSY, THOMAS F.: B.S. Amherst 1895. General agent King, Richardson Co. (Home Correspondence School) 1895-1903; travelling salesman P. F. Collier & Son, N. Y., 1903—. Decennial. Commencement, 1897. Address: Spencer, Mass.

HOWARD, ARTHUR FISKE: B.S. Amherst 1895. Student for several years at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Since then with Portsmouth Electric Railway Co. Married. Triennial, Decennial. Address: Room 5, Congress Block, Portsmouth, N. H.

JENKINS, THORNTON: seven terms at Amherst. A.B. Harvard 1895; A.M. Harvard 1897. Graduate work at Harvard 1896-7; teacher of Latin Cascadilla School, Ithaca, N. Y.

1898-1900; Passaic, N. J., 1900-1901; Malden, Mass., High School 1901—. Married 1901 Kate Pineo Chase. One boy, one girl. Address: 34 Spring St., Malden, Mass.

KELLEY, CARLETON AUGUSTINE: A.B. Amherst 1895; LL.B. Kent College of Law (Chicago) 1897. Practicing law in Denver 1897—. Appointed colonel and assistant adjutant general of Colorado, April, 1903. Quinquennial, Decennial. Address: State House, Denver, Colo.

KIMBALL, MARK REES: A.B. Amherst 1895. Harvard Law School 1895-6; secretary and treasurer Junaluska Leather Co., Waynesville, N. C. 1896-9; real estate, Chicago 1899—. Married Dec. 31, 1896 Jessie M. Bingham. Two girls. Decennial. Address: 145 La Salle St., Chicago.

KINGSLAND, NELSON: B.S. Amherst 1895. Reporter N. Y. Tribune 1895-6; Evening Journal 1896; Times 1897-8. Private 22d. N. Y. Volunteer Infantry May-Nov., 1898. Reporter Denver (Col.) Republican 1898-9; Los Angeles Record 1899-1900; press agent Pressed Steel Car Co., Pittsburg 1901; night editor Pittsburg Despatch 1902-4; Los Angeles Examiner 1904—. Married June 11, 1896 Jessie Kingman of South Deerfield, Mass. One girl. Address: Editorial Rooms, Examiner, Los Angeles, Cal.

LANE, HENRY WILDER: A.B. Amherst 1895. Clerk Keene (N. H.) National Bank and physical director Y. M. C. A. 1895-6; treasurer bicycle co., Worcester, Mass., 1896; educational director and assistant treasurer Y. M. C. A., Fitchburg, Mass., 1898-9; real estate, Keene, 1900—. Member Common Council, Keene, 1902; board of education 1902—. Married Oct. 9, 1900 Bessie Luella Howard. One boy. All reunions. Commencement 1897. Address: 410 Main St., Keene, N. H.

LAW, CHARLES BLAKESLEE: B.S. Amherst 1895. Attorney-at-law. Elected to Congress in 1904 from 4th. District of New York. Married Nov. 20, 1901 Ilma J. Best. Decennial. Address: 16 Court St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

LAW, FREDERICK HOUK: A.B. Amherst 1895; A.M. Columbia 1896. Student at Columbia and at Teachers' College 1895-7; instructor in English and French, Center College, Ky., 1897-8; teacher of English, Pawtucket (R. I.) High School, 1898-1900; sub-master (do.) 1900-4; principal Pawtucket Evening H. S. 1899-1904; assistant in English Stuyvesant H. S., N. Y. City, 1904—. Advanced study in English, literature and education. Thesis on "Versification of Chaucer's Lyrics." Publications: novel, "The Heart of Sindhra"; poems, "The Life of the World," "An Idyll of the King and Other Poems"; prose, "The History of Old St. Paul's," various magazine and newspaper articles. Member of National Geographic Society. Member of legislative committee, R. I. Institute, successful in causing passage of several laws designed to prevent child labor and to advance education in Rhode Island. Fourteenth degree Mason. Lecturer in N. Y. City Free Lecture System. Married June 1896 Mary Kenniston Thorp (Smith 1895). One boy (Class Boy). Triennial, Decennial. Commencement 1900. Address: 495 Argyle Road, Brooklyn, N. Y.

LAWSON, JAMES STUART: A. B. Amherst 1895; LL.B. New York Law School 1897. Practicing law in N. Y. City 1897—. Married June 25, 1902 Blanche Suits. Two boys. Decennial. Address: 192 Broadway, N. Y.

LITTLE, CHARLES GEORGE: B.S. Amherst 1895; LL.B. Northwestern University 1897. General practice 1898—; associate professor of law in the Northwestern University Law School. Examiner of Titles for Cook County under the Torrens System of land registration. Married Oct. 2, 1900 Myra Wilson of Evanston, Ill. One girl, one boy. Decennial. Address: 321 Greenwood Boulevard, Evanston, Ill.

MCARTHUR, WILLIAM JOHN: A.B. Amherst 1895; LL.B. New York Law School 1897. Counsel for Nassau Electric R. R. Co., Brooklyn, 1897-1900; general practice in Brooklyn, 1900—. Married Nov. 6, 1902 Maude McNeill of Brooklyn. One boy, one girl. Decennial. Commencement 1897. Address: 375 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

MAINZER, ROBERT HENRY: A. B. Amherst 1895. With Hallgarten & Co., Bankers, New York City, 1895—. Married July 1905 Iola Powell. Decennial. Address: 5 Nassau St., New York City.

METCALF, GUIDO CONTI SLEEPER: two years in Amherst. Address: Englewood, Ill.

(The Secretary has never been able to establish communication with this member.)

MILLER, BENJAMIN LEON: two years in Amherst. Salesman iron, 1893; salesman dyestuffs and chemicals with Kuthoff, Pickhardt & Co., N. Y. (Chicago office) 1894—. Married Dec. 27, 1894 Louise Redfield. Decennial. Address: Evanston, Ill.

MORROW, DWIGHT WHITNEY: A.B. Amherst 1895; LL.B. Columbia 1899. Studied law in Pittsburgh 1895-6; Columbia Law School 1896-9. General practice with firm of Simpson, Thacher, Barnum and Bartlett, New York, 1899—; member of the firm 1905—. Married June 16, 1903 Elizabeth Reeve Cutter (Smith 1896) of Cleveland, O. Two girls. All reunions. Commencements 1897, 1899. Address: 62 Cedar St., New York City.

MUNDY, EDWARD KENDALL: A.B. Amherst 1895. Clerk Solvay Process Co., Syracuse, N. Y., 1895—. Married June 23, 1903 Maude Goodyear Mundy. One girl. Reunion of 1896. Address: Solvay Process Co., Syracuse, N. Y.

NEWTON, ELMER SLAYTON: A.B. Amherst 1895; M.D. George Washington University 1905. Instructor in chemistry State University of Iowa 1895-6; similar position Amherst College 1896-8; and in Western High School, Washington, D. C. 1898-1902; director of instruction in chemistry Washington High Schools 1902—. Student medical department George Washington University 1902-5; in Graduate School of same 1904—. Married June 16, 1902 Edna Daisy Town. Decennial. Commencements 1897, 1899. Address: The Brunswick, Washington, D. C.

NICHOLS, RANSOM PROCTOR: A.B. Amherst 1895. Submaster Southbridge (Mass.) High School 1895-8; advertising manager "Spirit of '76," N. Y. 1898-9; clerk quartermaster's office, Ponce, P. R. 1899-1900; clerk Treasury Department, San Juan, P. R. 1900—. Served in Spanish-American War with 14th. Regiment N. Y. Volunteers. Married Dec. 19, 1900 Harriett Emmeline Brigham. One girl, one boy. Reunion 1896. Commencement 1897. Address: San Juan, Porto Rico.

NOYES, HENRY RADCLIFFE: B.S. Amherst 1895. LL.B. New York Law School 1902. Studied violin at Berlin Conservatory 1895-7; journalism 1897-1900; law student 1900-2. Spanish-American War, Porto Rican campaign, in N. Y. Cavalry. Married Dec. 7, 1900 Charlotte Overbury. Decennial. Address: 280 Broadway, N. Y.

OLDS, GEORGE DANIEL: honorary member of the Class. Professor of Mathematics Amherst College. Married 1886 Marion E. Olds. Two boys, two girls. Triennial, Quinquennial, Decennial. All commencements except 1901. Address: Amherst, Mass.

OSGOOD, ROBERT BAYLEY: A.B. Amherst 1895; M.D. Harvard 1899. House officer Mass. General Hospital 1899-1900. Private practice, specialty orthopedics, Boston, 1900—. Publications in the scientific journals. Married April 29, 1902 Margaret Chapin of Brookline, Mass. Triennial, Decennial. Commencement 1897. Address: 372 Marlborough St., Boston.

OTIS, CHARLES RAY: two years in Amherst. Student Columbia Medical School 1893-6. Physician, Dundee, N. Y., 1896—. Address: as above.

PHILLIPS, HALBERT CRESSY: A.B. Amherst 1895. Business, N. Y. City, 1895-7; teacher, Turners Falls (Mass.) High School 1897-1900; teacher of mathematics, Stamford (Ct.) H. S. 1900-5; mathematics Allegheny Preparatory School, Allegheny, Pa., 1905—. Married Dec. 23, 1901 Persis Coy of Turners Falls. One boy. Address: Ben Avon, Allegheny, Pa.

POST, AUGUSTUS THOMAS: A.B. Amherst 1895. Banking in New York City 1895—, at present with E. D. Shepard & Co. Married in 1897 Emma Thacker Kaye. Decennial. Address: 31 Nassau St., New York City.

POTTER, PALMER AUGUSTUS: B.S. Amherst 1895; M.D. Columbia 1899. House surgeon N. Y. City Hospital 1899-1901; house physician Nursery and Child's Hospital, N. Y. 1901-2; private practice, specialty infants and children, East Orange, N. J., 1902—. Publications in scientific journals. Quinquennial. Address: 469 Main St., East Orange, N. J.

POWELL, JOSEPH ANDREWS: A. B. Amherst 1895. Read law for a while in the office of the late Austin Abbott, N. Y.; later he was with the Stanley Rule and Level Co. of New Britain, Conn.; now with the Gem Mfg. Co., Pittsburg, Pa. Quinquennial. Address: Gem Mfg. Co., Pittsburg, Pa.

PRATT, HERBERT LEE: A.B. Amherst 1895. With Bergenport Chemical Co. 1895-6; with Standard Oil Co. 1896—, and since 1902 manager of three factories. Married in April, 1897 Florence Gibb of Brooklyn. Three girls, one boy. All reunions. Commencement 1897. Address: 26 Broadway, New York City.

PRATT, WILLIAM BEACH: seven terms in Amherst. Student University of Penn. Medical School 1895-7; in the business of stone quarrying for a time after Jan. 1898; manager of the Jovite Mfg. Co., manufacturers of explosives. Married June 8, 1898 Annette Harris of Amherst. Two girls, one boy. Triennial, Decennial. Address: Cranford, N. J.

PRENTISS, RUSSELL EDWARDS: A.B. Amherst 1895. Stock broker, N. Y. City 1895—. Married Dec. 1, 1897 Mary Adella Carman of Brooklyn. Decennial. Address: 51 Willow St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

RAWSON, JONATHAN ANSEL, JR.: A.B. Amherst 1895. N. Y. Tribune 1895-9; trade and export publishing business 1899—; export business as representative of manufacturers 1902—. Published in 1898, in collaboration with F. S. Crawford, Amherst 1897, a book, "Our Army and Navy." Quinquennial, Decennial. Commencements 1897, 1902. Address: 130 Pearl St., N. Y. City.

RAY, BENJAMIN EASTWOOD: A.B. Amherst 1895. S. T. B. Andover 1898. Pastor Cong. Church, Nekoosa, Wis., 1898-1903; Deerfield, Mass. 1904-5; Genoa Junction, Wis. 1905—.

Married Oct. 3, 1899 Ada M. Peers of Rockford, Ill. One boy. Triennial, Decennial. All commencements except 1900-2. Address: Genoa Junction, Wis.

RHODES, HARRY OTTO: A.B. Amherst 1895. Attorney-at-law. Address: 902 East Costella St., Colorado Springs, Colo. (The Secretary has never been able to establish communication with this member.)

ROELKER, ALFRED, JR.: A.B. Amherst 1895; LL.B. Columbia 1898. Practice N. Y. City 1898—. Now in firm of Roelker, Bailey and Curtis. Married Jan. 12, 1905 Millicent W. Turle. Triennial, Decennial. Commencement 1904. Address 55 William St., N. Y. City.

ROWLEY, ALFRED MERRIMAN: two terms in Amherst. M.D. University of Vermont 1897. Graduated from Hartford (Conn.) Hospital, 1899. Private practice Hartford, 1899—. Assisting visiting surgeon Hartford Hospital. Medical Inspector Hartford Board of Health 1903—. Married 1902 Carlotta Munõz. Address: 280 Main St., Hartford, Conn.

SAMPSON, WRIGHT COOLIDGE: B.S. Amherst 1895. For a time in the business of coffee brokerage; now with the Globe-Wernicke Co., office furniture. Married Oct. 17, 1899 Alice G. Elliott. Two boys. Decennial. Address: 418 Main St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

SCHUYLER, ALBERT LEWIS: one year in Amherst. M.D. Bellevue Hospital Medical College 1895. Studied at Baltimore Medical College also. Married Dec. 24, 1896 Lillie B. Powell of Baltimore. Four boys. Address: Newtown, Conn.

SEARS, FREDERICK EDMUND: one year in Amherst. A.B. Harvard 1895. Instructor in physics, St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H. Published a pamphlet for use of students in preparatory schools taking a course in physics for entrance to college. Married July 28, 1903 Mary Ellen Balch. One boy. Address: as above.

SEELYE, WALTER CLARK: A.B. Amherst 1895; M.D. Harvard 1899. House officer Mass. General Hospital 1899-1900. Private practice Worcester, Mass. 1901—. Visiting surgeon Memorial Hospital, Worcester 1904—. Married June 14, 1904 Anne Ide Barrows (Smith 1898). One boy. Triennial, Decennial. Commencement 1899. Address: 49 Pearl St., Worcester, Mass.

SMITH, MAURICE BILLINGS: A.B. Amherst 1895. Principal Holliston (Mass.) High School 1896-1901; sub-master Quincy (Mass.) H. S. 1901-3; master William Penn Charter School 1903-4; master Salem (Mass.) H. S. 1904—. All reunions except Quinquennial. Address: Salem, Mass.

STOCKING, JAY THOMAS: A.B. Amherst 1895; B.D. Yale 1901. Thesis: "Cotton Mather." Instructor in English and elocution, Lawrenceville (N. J.) School, 1895-8; divinity student Yale 1898-1901; assistant pastor Church of the Redeemer, New Haven, Conn., 1901-3; student at Marburg and Berlin 1902-3 on a travelling fellowship from Yale; pastor First Congregational Church, Bellows Falls, Vt. 1903-5; pastor Central Congregational Church, Newtonville, Mass. 1905—. Married Oct. 21, 1903 Grace Cordelia Porter of New Haven. One girl. All reunions. Address: 93 Central Avenue, Newtonville, Mass.

STONE, GEORGE WARNER: A.B. Amherst 1895. Principal Gorham (N. H.) High School 1895-7; principal Mansfield (Mass.) H. S. 1897-1903; Latin Department Newark (N. J.) H. S. 1903—. Married June 15, 1897 Ruby M. Hall of Amherst. One girl. Decennial. Commencement 1897. Address: 153 Delavan Ave., Newark, N. J.

STONE, WALTER ROBINSON: three years in Amherst. Wholesale and Retail Dry Goods 1895—. Member Board of Directors Syracuse Chamber of Commerce and chairman of Finance Committee of same. Married March 11, 1897 Alice Meade Palmer. Two girls. Address: 341-3 South Salina St., Syracuse, N. Y.

THOMPSON, MAYNARD RUFUS: two years in Amherst. B.D. Colgate Seminary 1898. Pastor Baptist Church Eatontown, N. J. 1898-9; Jermyn, Pa. 1899-1902; Charleroi, Pa. 1902-4; Connellsville, Pa. 1904-5; Bellingham, Wash. 1905—. Married Dec. 1899 Elizabeth E. Bradley of Buffalo, N. Y. One girl. Address: 1117 17th St., Bellingham, Wash.

TIBBETTS, ALBERT MURRAY: A.B. Amherst 1895. Private tutor Philadelphia 1895-8; principal Salisbury (Conn.) High School 1899-1902; principal Newtown (Conn.) H. S. 1902-3; principal Wallingford (Conn.) H. S. 1903—. Married April 26, 1900 Mary Alice Barton. One girl. Address: Wallingford, Conn.

TRUESDELL, LYNN GEORGE: one year in Amherst. A.B. University of Minn. 1895. In grain commission business 1896-1901; sec. and treas. Winter and Ames Co. Elevator Line, So. Minneapolis, Minn. 1901—. Married June 20, 1899 Ellen A. Brann of Cumberland, Md. Address: 1904 Dupont Ave., So. Minneapolis, Minn.

TYLER, WILLIAM SEYMOUR: A.B. Amherst 1895; LL.B. Columbia 1899. Student at Gottingen 1895-6; at Columbia Law School 1896-9; law practice in New York City 1899—; since 1903 member of the firm of Tyler and Tyler. Member Common Council Plainfield, N. J. 1903—; president Board of Police 1905—. Married Nov. 23, 1899 Ethel Van Boskerck of Plainfield. Two girls, one boy. All reunions and every commencement except 1896. Address: 32 Liberty St., New York City.

VAN SANT, GRANT: one year in Amherst. B.S. University of Minnesota 1895; LL.B. (do.) 1896. Student one year at Harvard Law School. Law practice Morris, Minn. 1896-1900; Winona, Minn. 1900 to (?); now in St. Paul, Minn. Married May 11, 1904 Marion E. Sanborn. One girl. Address: 513 Pioneer Press Building, St. Paul, Minn.

WARD, CLINTON HIRAM: two years in Amherst. Manager of a general store at Moretown, Vt., in connection with the lumber business 1893—. Quinquennial, Decennial. Address: as above.

WASHBURN, GEORGE BARROWS: one year in Amherst. Journalism. Assistant night editor Lowell (Mass.) Morning Citizen; at present with the Courier-Citizen of Lowell. Married Oct. 15, 1898 Ella Gertrude Jenness of Haverhill, Mass. Two girls, one boy. Decennial. Address: Courier-Citizen, Lowell, Mass.

WHITE, HERBERT OTIS: A.B. Amherst 1895. Instructor Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland, Ohio 1895-6; Cleveland manager for Norcross Bros. Co. of Worcester, Mass. 1896-1902; associated with his brother in the Empire Laundry Machinery Co. of Boston (N. Y. office) 1903-6; president Leader Weaving Co., manufacturers of silk fabrics 1906—. Married Oct. 12, 1904 Mary Dickinson Cowles. All reunions except Quinquennial. Address: 216 Waterman St., Providence, R. I.

WILLISTON, HARRY STODDARD: A.B. Amherst 1895; E. E. Princeton 1899; General Electric Co., Lynn, Mass. 1899-1901; Penn. R. R. Co. 1901-3; Peerless Electric Co. 1903-5; Magnet Wire Co. 1905—. All reunions and all commencements except 1901-4. Address: 42 Broadway, N. Y.

WINSLOW, CHARLES GARDNER: two years in Amherst. A.B. University of Vermont 1895; B.S. (do.) 1896. Electrical engineer with Brooklyn Rapid Transit Co.; now in same capacity with N. Y. C. and H. R. R. Married Feb. 18, 1902 Ella C. Beebe. One son. Address: 155 West Second St., Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

WOLFF, FRANK CARVER: one term in Amherst. Bookkeeper Du Pont Powder Co. 1895-6; commission clerk Singer Mfg. Co. Denver, Colo. 1896-1900; local manager of same La Junta, Colo. 1900—. Married Jan. 29, 1896 Hattie M. Hipple of Denver. One child. Address: La Junta, Colo.

The following men, once members of the Class, were graduated with the Class of 1896:

WILLIAM BUNTON CHASE.

GEORGE JONES.

EDWARD FRANKLIN PERRY.

The following men feel that all connection with the Class has been severed:

EDWARD PAYSON BULLARD.

WILLIAM MCKIBBEN EWART.

H. T. Noyes, Jr., was graduated with the Class, but desires to be enrolled with the Class of 1894.

NECROLOGY

LEWIS HENRY GOODRICH, died January 28, 1894.
 HENRY BEER, died February 22, 1894.
 JOHN PICKETT TRASK, died November 9, 1894.
 AMASA JAMES LYALL, died October 3, 1898.
 THEODORE ATWATER PENNY, died August 13, 1899.
 HERBERT LAKIN WARREN, died October 25, 1901.
 HARRY LEMUEL TWICHELL, died December 2, 1905.

CLASS STATISTICS

Total Enrolment	103
Graduated in 1895	75
Graduated in 1895, but enrolled in another class	1
Graduated in other years	3
Obtaining the bachelor's degree from other institutions	5
Considering themselves no longer members	2
Dead	7
Total living members	90
Honorary members	1
Married	66

(Statistics lacking from METCALF and RHODES.)

Children — Boys	36
Girls	38
Sex not reported (Wolff)	1
Total	75
Professor Olds — Boys	2
Girls	2
Grand Total	79

(Statistics lacking from BLAIR, METCALF, RHODES, TRUESDELL.)

Occupations—

Trade	31
(Insurance, real estate, banking, manufacturing, transportation, advertising, retail trade, brokerage, commercial travelling.)
Lawyers	22	Journalists	4
Teachers	10	Electrical engineers	2
Clergymen	9	Government clerk	1
Physicians	8	Army officer	1

(Statistics lacking from BLAIR and METCALF.)

GEOGRAPHICAL DISTRIBUTION

Maine	3	Ohio	2
New Hampshire	3	Illinois	7
Vermont	1	Wisconsin	1
Massachusetts	17	Minnesota	3
Rhode Island	1	Colorado	3
Connecticut	3	New Mexico	1
New York	28	Washington	1
New Jersey	6	Oregon	1
Pennsylvania	5	California	2
District of Columbia	1	Porto Rico	1

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

0 019 629 447 8