A FICIAL GAZETTE OF THE STATE AND CITY.

"THE UNION must be preserved," MONDAY MORNING, JUNE 29 1826. The gentlemen compoung the committee to collect sub scriptions for the sufferers by fire in Charleston, are request ed to meet at Banks' Arcade on Monday evening the 29th rat, at 8 o'clock, to turn over the amounts received by them to the committee appointed to transmit the same. Leglise has confessed that he was present at or after the murder of Marquette and his assistant; but he says the nurder was committed by a man whom he does not know Inthy sight. Despite this evasion, the mayor thinks he has sufficient proof to commit Leglise for trial.

We had occasion to witness the gentlementy demirran the natioceasion to witness the gentlemanly department, the constant attention and the exqueite politicess of Captain Wilker of steamhost Watchmas, towards the passengers in board of his vessel. For our part we own him a debt of grat tude for his behaviour towards us all in the short trip to St Louis Bay and Reloxi. We hope that all persons who were with us on hostd of that steamboat will acknowledge the kindness of Capt Walker.

The new church at Lafayette square was yesterday conned for divine service-the Rev. Joel Parker, pastor .-It is a fine specimen of architectural beauty; and besides being an ornament to the city, is a credit to those instrumental in its crection.

Our city - With almost as much anger as sorrew do'w perceive the reiterated cries in some of the eastern and western papers that the cho'era exists in New Orleans. Rereuted y have we (with other journalists here) denied the fact: and we ourselves accounted fairly and fully for the ruther. The negligence with regard to health and habits of our voyagers on the western rivers, had engendered disease resembling the cholera among them; but to such voyagers thatly if not wholly were those symptoms of disease confired; and that they had the diarrhess or premonitory sympms of cholers was freely admitted. But if visitors under ruch circumstances to New Orleans had had the choleracan the chalera be therefore said to prevail in New Orleans No-again we assert that no cholera exists in New Orleans. Respectfully but earnestly do we entreat our eastern brethren to undeceive their readers in this respect; and to inform them that New Orleans enjoys as good health as any othe, cary in the un on. No doubt we (in common with other editors here) have remonetrated against the filthy state of our streets, in order to means of preserving the health now enjoyed: but in what city in the union are there not filthy streets, where similar complain's might be made? Not certainly New York, Batt more or Philadelphia.

The types Farsoung has frequently clamored for the funds of the corporation for improvements, alleged to be necosenry for the aggrandizement of its trade, etc; and has often made many persons smile at those outcries who did not scorn them. The inhabitants and owners of real estate when others wanted their sid for improvements elsewhere they silently fly off in a tangent.

There is no improvement of late projected more calculate to improve the salubrity-and consequently the prosper tyof New Orleans than the draining of the cypress awamp But as this is believed to be calculated more immediately for the improvement of the central part of the city, our very ex ellent and enterprizing-yes, that is the word so often bestowed by their eulogists-our 'enterprizing' citizens of the f uboneg St Mary, have very characteristically refused any nasimance. In a subscription of 571 shares or 857,000 by the Orleans Draining Company, we do not perceive the names of any of those clamorers or lions of that faubourg.

We transcribe the names of the subscribers for the benefit of our fellow citizens, that they may see who are really friends to internal improvements in New Orleans. If the Draming Company has been chartered with banking privileges-as contemplated at the next session of the legislature no doubt many of the apparent friends of public welfare, promptly have subscribed. Breedleve could not have found a worse advocate than advertise in the Daily News-Towhen that journal came out against colonel Johnson; precisely as he advertised in morning journals that had advocated the pretensions of judge White. As a Tennessean, Breedlove may individually prefer judge White to the present candidates of the democratic party, and we ce do not wish coercion of opinions or principles; but neither do we wish that he should proscribe others for not agreeing with him. As an officer of the general government, and having been appointed as a real or supposed friend of the present administration, he should not have preferred journals that opyose the administration; and say, "that if not the first, he was in the first line." Yet even that injury we might have patiently borne,

Here are crimes and coachie.

Here are crimes and penalties sufficiently specified for the principals and accessories in an actual or contemplated due'; but unfortunately none are disposed to enforce the law Yet an excellent opportunity has now occurred for making the attempt, in consequence of the death of Dunn, who was undone on Friday last. Why do not his relatives act as osecutors on behalf of their deceased friend?

But perhaps it would be well to establish a society of some of our most respectable citizens for the suppression of vice call the attention of the city authorities to the subject as a and the prosecution of criminals in all matters of this kind-Such a a society if energetic and active could greatly meliorate the manners and habits of the community. And if any case of dueling presented favorable circumstances for the auspicious action and control of a prosecuting society of this kind, that case is the present—if we have been correctly informed of the particulars of that unfortunate and infamous affray. We but give a 'local habitation' to the recital which we heard publicly made at the Lafayette festive of the surface of of the su ble auditors; and by a gentleman who asserted that the facts would be deposed on oath whenever required.

On Thursday night Dunn (the deceased) had been drinking with McMahon and others, at a cabaret in the vicinity of our office: when McM in paying for the refreelment laid a picaillon (6 cont piece) on the counter, which Dunn, in the gaiety of unanspecting freedom took up and gave for two cigars, offering then one of them to McMahon. The act passed unnoticed at the time. But McMahon having following the open pine the etect demanded the picaillon. But McMahon having followpassed unnoticed at the time. But McMahon having followed Dunn into the street, demanded the picaillon. D. laughed at first; but the other was in no merry mood. Dunn per ceiving this, offered his supposed friend a coln out of his pocket. 'No (said M), give me my own preaillon.' Back went Dunn to the cabaret; but it was closed. This was expected perhaps by McM, who immediately commanded scurples of the proper cause, and compression the principles when it is a surpression of the proper cause, and compression the principles when it is a surpression, and compression the principles when it is a surpression of the principles who "fills the measure of his country's glory." have been made transport to the tender mercies of an opposition who "fills the measure of his country's glory." have been made transport to the tender mercies of an opposition principle who "fills the measure of his country's glory." have been made transport to the tender mercies of an opposition principle who "fills the measure of his country's glory." have been made transport to the tender mercies of an opposition who "fills the measure of his country's glory." have been made transport to the tender mercies of an opposition who "fills the measure of his country's glory." have been made transport to the tender mercies of an opposition who "fills the measure of his country's glory." have been made transport to the tender mercies of an opposition who "fills the measure of his country's glory." have been made transport to the tender mercies of an opposition who "fills the measure of his country's glory." have been made to the measure of his country's glory." have been made to the measure of his country's glory." have been made to the measure of his country's glory." have been made to the measure of his country's glory." have been made to the measure of his country is glory." have been made to the measure of his country is gl others. Berry interfered, and the disputs between him and Dunn praceeded to blows.

Then McMahon changed his mode of attack on Dunn; reassumed the appearance of friendefur; and aware that Berry (who kept a shooting gallery for some time) was a dead shot, he drew Dunn asile, and instigated him to challenge his antagonist for t) ablow inflicted. Poor Dunn was Bacchi planus; asked a respite till next morning, when he should have recover and he more collected but Row could be secontable to the great mass of the community, who but the actual friends of their own private interests, would should have recover and he more collected; but McM would not wait. Hehimself wrote the challenge, and having made Dunn then eign it, he immediately brought it to Berry. The rendezvous was settled for next morning.

Matters were then sought to be amicably adjusted; but this McMahon imperiously refused : for his friend | forecoth must have satisfaction !- and this satisfaction poor Dunn had instantly,

We have heard other particulars of this infamous affair, but we forbear giving them for the present, as our object is nerely to induce investigation.
