terminate this and any other existing contract between the Exhibitor and the Distributor by mailing notice by registered mail within two (2) weeks after such failure or refusal, and in addition the Distributor shall not be entitled to redress from such Board of Arbitration upon any claim or claims against any exhibitor until the Distributor shall have complied with such decision, and in the meanwhile the provisions of the first paragraph of this Article Eighteenth shall not apply to any such claim or claims.

Any such termination by either party, however, shall be without prejudice to any other right or remedy which the party so terminating may have by reason of any such breach of contract by the other party.

The provisions of this contract relating to arbitration shall be construed according to the law of the State of New York.

NINETEENTH: This Contract is complete and no promises or representations have been made by either party to the other except as set forth herein.

TWENTIETH: If the license herein granted shall apply to an entire group of photoplays offered by the Distributor to the Exhibitor at one time, and not otherwise, the Exhibitor shall have the right to exclude from this contract up to but not exceeding ten percent of the total number of such photoplays, but only if the Exhibitor shall give the Distributor written notice to such effect at any time not later than fourteen (14) days before the date fixed for the exhibition of any such photoplay is available for exhibition hereunder, and if at the same time the Exhibitor shall pay to the Distributor one-half of the license fee payable in respect of any such photoplay. In computing such ten percent, fractions of less than one-half shall be disregarded. If any such photoplay shall, because of such exclusion, be thereafter licensed by the Distributor for the same run as that specified in this contract, for exhibition at another theatre where such excluded photoplay would not have been exhibited if not so excluded; then one-half of the license fee (up to but not exceeding the amount paid by the Exhibitor to the Distributor as a condition of so excluding such photoplay) received by the Distributor for such re-license, shall be credited to the Exhibitor by the Distributor.

If the license fee for any such photoplay so excluded is to be computed either in whole or in part upon a percentage of gross receipts of the Exhibitor's theatre, then for the purpose of computing such one-half of such license fee payable hereunder in respect of such photoplay, such gross receipts for each day that any such photoplay is licensed hereunder for exhibition thereat shall be deemed to be the average daily gross receipts of such theatre during the period of thirty (30) operating days immediately prior to such date of availability of such photoplay.

TWENTY-FIRST: If the Exhibitor shall claim that the exhibition at the theatre hereinafter specified of any photoplay licensed hereunder will be offensive to the public in the place where such theatre is located, because of racial or religious subject matter, and if the Exhibitor shall give written notice to the Distributor of such claim within a reasonable time prior to the date fixed for the exhibition thereof hereunder such claim shall be immediately submitted to the Board of Arbitration herein specified. If such Board of Arbitration shall specifically determine that the exhibition of such photoplay at such theatre will be offensive to said public because of racial or religious subject matter, then such photoplay shall be excused from this contract, and not otherwise. The Distributor may exhibit or license the exhibition of any photoplay so excused when and where desired by the Distributor free from all claims of the Exhibitor.

If the Distributor shall be of the opinion that any photoplay licensed hereunder will be offensive because of racial or religious subject matter, to the public in the place where the Exhibitor's theatre is located, the Distributor shall have the right to except and exclude such photoplay from this contract, upon condition that such photoplay shall not thereafter be licensed for exhibition in such place unless such racial or religious subject matter is eliminated therefrom in which case such photoplay shall again be deemed licensed hereunder.

TWENTY-SECOND: This instrument shall be deemed an application for a license under copyright only and shall not become binding until accepted in writing without alteration or change by an officer of or any person duly authorized by the Distributor and notice of acceptance sent to the Exhibitor as herein provided. The deposit by the Distributor of any check or other consideration given by the Exhibitor at the time of application as payment on account of any sums payable hereunder or the delivery of a print of any of the photoplays or the furnishing of any advertising accessories shall not be deemed an acceptance hereof by the Distributor.

Unless notice of acceptance of this application by the Distributor is sent to the Exhibitor by mail or telegraph within the number of days after the date thereof hereinafter specified (immediately following the name of the city wherein is situated the exchange of the Distributor from which the Exhibitor is served, or if such city is not hereinafter named then within the number of days specified immediately following the city hereinafter named nearest thereto) said application shall be deemed withdrawn and the Distributor shall forthwith return any sums paid on account thereof by the Exhibitor. Albany 10; Atlanta 20; Boston 10; Buffalo 10; Charleston 10; Charlotte 15; Chicago 15; Cincinnati 20; Cleveland 15; Dallas 30; Denver 20; Des Moines 15; Detroit 15; Indianapolis 15; Jacksonville 15; Kansas City 15; Los Angeles 25; Little Rock 15; Louisville 15; Memphis 20; Milwaukee 15; Northern New Jersey 7; Minneapolis 20; Butte 30; New Haven 10; New Orleans 15; New York 7; Oklahoma City 20; Omaha 20; Peoria 15; Philadelphia 10; Pittsburgh 14; Portland, Ore., 30; St. Louis 15; Salt Lake City 30; San Francisco 20; Seattle 30; Washington, D. C., 14.

This application and any application for other photoplays of the Distributor executed by the Exhibitor at the same time shall, for the purpose of this Article only, be deemed one application unless an agreement to the contrary contained in the Schedule is specifically signed by the Exhibitor.

A copy of this application, signed by the Exhibitor, shall be left with the Exhibitor at the time of signing, and in the event of acceptance thereof as above provided, a duplicate copy, signed by the Distributor, shall be forwarded to the Exhibitor.

APPROVED ADDITIONAL CLAUSES

1. If this contract designates certain photoplays by title, it shall be non-cancellable as to such photoplays. If it embraces a series of photoplays not designated by title it may be cancelled as to such series by either party after two photoplays of such series have been exhibited and paid for, by notice in writing to the other party after playing the second of said photoplays, such cancellation to take effect after () additional photoplays shall have been exhibited and paid for.

2. *The Distributor's right to approve or reject this application or any other application signed by the Exhibitor at the same time, or any other time, is not dependent upon the approval or rejection by the Distributor of such other application or this application.

AGREED TO:

Exhibitor.

*(Note: This clause may be added to the Schedule only in respect of photoplays produced by a producer not controlled by the Distributor, and only if the Distributor's contract with such producer provides that such pictures shall be sold separately and apart from other pictures distributed by the Distributor, and shall be of no effect unless specifically agreed to in writing by the Exhibitor.)

3. The Distributor shall have the right to exhibit and/or cause to be exhibited as a "roadshow", at any time prior to the exhibition thereof hereunder, such of the photoplays licensed hereunder as the Distributor may from time to time select and determine, provided, however, that such roadshow exhibitions shall be at theatres at which admission prices for evening performances, during such exhibitions thereof, of not less than one dollar shall be charged for the majority of the orchestra seats, and further provided that except in the cities of New York and Los Angeles not more than two of such photoplays shall be so roadshown.

If any such roadshow exhibition shall be in the city of New York, N. Y., and if the Exhibitor's theatre be situated in a territory then served by the Distributor's exchange or exchanges located in said City, the Distributor shall have the right to except and exclude from this license any such photoplay (not exceeding in the aggregate two of such photoplays) so roadshown in said City upon sending written notice to that effect to the Exhibitor not later than eight weeks after the commencement of such roadshow exhibition in such City, provided the Distributor shall by like notice except and exclude such photoplay from all other contracts containing this clause and licensing the exhibition of such photoplay in such territory. Such exception and exclusion shall not be affected in case the Distributor shall inadvertently omit to send such notice to any of such other exhibitors.

If any such roadshow exhibition shall be in the city of Los Angeles, Cal., and if the Exhibitor's theatre be situated in the territory then served by the Distributor's exchange or exchanges located in said City, the Distributor shall have the right to except and exclude from this license any such photoplay (not exceeding in the aggregate two of such photoplays) so roadshown in said City, upon the same terms and conditions above provided for the exception and exclusion of photoplays roadshown in the city of New York.

If and when any such roadshow exhibition (except any roadshow exhibition in New York and/or Los Angeles) shall be in the territory served by the Distributor's exchange or exchanges serving the Exhibitor's theatre, such photoplay so roadshown in such territory shall forthwith be excepted and excluded from this license. The Distributor shall send written notice to that effect, to the Exhibitor within fourteen (14) days after such roadshow exhibition commences.

The Distributor may so exercise such right to except and exclude any such photoplay from time to time, in the respective territories, as above defined, in the United States. Any photoplay so roadshown in any place in the United States, and not excepted and excluded from this license as aforesaid, shall not be deemed available for exhibition hereunder until after the completion of such roadshowing of such photoplay in the United States, and such photoplay shall be exhibited hereunder as and when available.

For each photoplay that the Distributor shall except and exclude, as aforesaid, the Exhibitor is hereby granted the option to except and exclude from this license one of the other photoplays licensed hereunder, but only if the Exhibitor shall give to the Distributor written notice to that effect not later than fourteen days before the date fixed for the exhibition hereunder of such other photoplay. The Distributor may exhibit and/or license the exhibition of any and all photoplays excepted and excluded from this license by the Distributor and/or the Exhibitor, as aforesaid, when and where desired by it, free from all claims of the Exhibitor in respect thereof.

4. If this contract calls for payment or any part thereof computed upon the Exhibitor's gross receipts, such payment or any part thereof shall be made daily, together with a correct itemized statement of the gross receipts of said theatre for admission thereto upon the exhibition date or dates of each photoplay for which payment is so required to be made. Should the Distributor so require, such itemized statement shall be made upon forms furnished by the Distributor. Upon such date or dates an authorized representative of the Distributor is hereby given the right to verify the sale of all tickets of admission to said theatre, and the receipts therefrom; and for such purpose shall have access to the theatre, including the box office, and also the right to examine the Exhibitor's books and records in so far as they relate to such gross receipts. The Distributor, or its authorized representative, shall also have access for a period of sixty (60) days after the receipt by the Distributor of the final box office statement, to all of the Exhibitor's books and records for the purpose of verifying such box office statement. The Distributor agrees that any information obtained by it pursuant to the provisions of this Clause will be treated as confidential, except in any arbitration proceeding or litigation in respect of this contract. The Distributor agrees, unless such representative be a regular employee of the Distributor, not to employ as such representative any person a resident of or regularly employed in the place where the Exhibitor's theatre is located, excepting with the consent of the Exhibitor.

5. If the license fee of any photoplay licensed hereunder is to be computed either in whole or in part, upon a percentage of the gross submission receipts of said theatre, and if the Exhibitor fails or refuses to exhibit such photoplay as provided in this contract, the Exhibitor shall pay to the Distributor as liquidated damages for each day that the Exhibitor fails or refuses to exhibit such photoplay (in addition to any fixed sums payable hereunder in respect of such photoplay) a sum equal to such percentage of the average daily gross receipts of such theatre during the period of thirty (30) operating days immediately prior to the date or dates when such photoplay should have been so exhibited, provided, however, that if the Exhibitor shall exhibit such photoplay for less than the full number of days provided for in this contract, such sum equal to such percentage shall be computed, upon a sum equal to seventy-five per cent (75%) of the gross receipts of said theatre for the last day of the exhibition thereof of such photoplay.

On the same side of the contract upon which the Exhibitor is required to sign, there shall be printed the Schedule. In the Schedule there shall be specified the license fees of the photoplays; the number of days for which each is licensed; the run and protection period, if any, agreed upon; any provision in respect of the exhibition date or dates of the several photoplays; the description of the photoplays, which shall be identified by specific designation of a star or director, or as based upon specific literary material or described by an identifying description of the story, provided that in long term and/or franchise and/or service contracts providing for more than one year's "releases", the photoplays may be generally described as photoplays released by the Distributor or a like general description, and in such long term and/or franchise and/or service contracts the provisions of the Standard Exhibition Contract may be incorporated therein. Any "short subject" photoplay may be identified or described by brand or similar description.

All approved additional clauses, if any, added to the Standard Exhibition Contract and any provision permitted by the provisions of the numbered Articles shall be set forth in the Schedule.

No re-issues of photoplays or old negatives renamed shall be included in any group of new photoplays. No "short subjects" or "news reels" shall be included in any group of feature photoplays, and the licensing of "news reels" or "short subjects" groups shall not be made a condition of licensing the exhibition of feature photoplays or vice versa, provided that the Distributor may include in any long term, franchise and/or service contract, feature photoplays and/or "short subject" photoplays and/or "news reels."

Rules of Arbitration As Adopted

RULE I ELECTION OF BOARD OF ARBITRATION

1. The Board of Arbitration shall consist of six persons, three of whom shall be members of the Film Board of Trade (called Distributors' representatives) and three of whom shall be proprietors or managers of theatres in the territory where the Film Board of Trade is located (called Exhibitors' representatives) provided, however, that in no event shall such Exhibitors' representatives be managers of theatres owned or controlled by producers or distributors.

2. Each of the three Distributors' representatives and two alternate Distributors' representatives shall be appointed by the members of the Film Board of Trade. Each of the Exhibitors' representatives and two alternate Exhibitors' representatives shall be appointed by the local Exhibitors' Association or if such Association fails to appoint Exhibitors' representatives or alternates then the President of the Film Board of Trade shall request the President of the Chamber of Commerce of the City in which the Film Board of Trade is located or if there is no such Chamber of Commerce or if the President thereof fails to appoint then the Mayor or other chief executive of such city, to appoint the three Exhibitors' representatives and two alternate Exhibitors' representatives. Failing such appointment the designation of Exhibitors' representatives and alternates shall be made by the then President of the American Arbitration Association from among exhibitors operating theatres in the territory wherein such Board of Arbitration is located who shall not be managers of theatres owned or controlled by producers or distributors.

3. Each of the Exhibitors' representatives and alternates and each of the Distributors' representatives and alternates shall serve for one month and thereafter until their respective successors are appointed, provided that any Exhibitors' representative or alternate appointed otherwise than by the local Exhibitors' Association shall be replaced by an Exhibitors' representative or alternate appointed by such Exhibitors' association as soon as such appointment is made.

4. No member of the Board of Arbitration shall hear or determine any case or controversy in which he has an interest, direct or indirect.

5. Upon written notice given to the Secretary of the Board of Arbitration at least seven (7) days prior to the date fixed for the hearing of any controversy submitted for arbitration each of the parties to such controversy shall have the right to challenge not more than two members of the Board of Arbitration, in which case the Distributors' alternate representative or representatives or the Exhibitors' alternate representative or representatives, as the case may be, shall act as a member or members of the Board of Arbitration to hear and determine such controversy in place of the member or members thereof challenged.

6. In case of the refusal, disqualification, challenge or disability of any Exhibitor's representative to hear and determine any such controversy the remaining Distributor's representatives or representative shall appoint from the Distributor's alternate representatives a substitute for such Distributor's representative.

In case of the refusal, disqualification, challenge or disability of any Exhibitor's representative to hear and determine any such controversy the remaining Exhibitor's representatives or representative shall appoint from the Exhibitor's alternate representatives a substitute for such Exhibitor's representative.

7. In case of a tie vote a majority of the members of the Board of Arbitration shall appoint a seventh arbitrator, and if they are unable to so appoint a seventh arbitrator, then the Secretary of the Board of Arbitration shall request the President of the Chamber of Commerce of the city in which the Film Board of Trade is located, or if there is none or if he fails to appoint, then the Mayor or other chief executive of such city to appoint a seventh arbitrator, who shall be neither a distributor nor exhibitor nor interested in the motion picture business.

RULE II POWERS OF BOARD OF ARBITRATION

1. The members of the Board of Arbitration shall at each meeting thereof designate from among their number a chairman whose duty and authority as chairman shall be strictly limited to maintaining order to the end that all proceedings before the Board of Arbitration shall be conducted speedily and with decorum.

2. The Board of Arbitration shall have general power, after a thorough and impartial hearing of any dispute or controversy, (1) to determine such dispute or controversy, (2) to make findings thereon, (3) to direct what shall be done by either or both parties with respect to the matter in dispute, and shall fix the maximum amount (not exceeding that specified in the arbitration clause of the Standard Exhibition Contract) which each such distributor may demand as security pursuant to said arbitration clause in the event of the failure of the exhibitor to submit to arbitration or to comply with the award.

3. It shall adopt its own rules of procedure and practice, which shall provide for reasonable notice to the parties of the time and place of the hearing and of the nature of the dispute, afford the parties an opportunity to be heard in person or by counsel and to submit evidence.

4. The findings, determination and directions of the Board of Arbitration upon such controversy shall be conclusive and binding upon the parties thereto.

5. In any controversy submitted to a Board of Arbitration upon the complaint of a distributor which is determined in favor of the exhibitor the Board of Arbitration may in its discretion include in its decision or award an award of a sum to be paid by the distributor to the exhibitor not to exceed the cost to the exhibitor of railroad transportation from and return to the city or town in which the exhibitor's theatre is located and an additional sum not to exceed $10 provided the exhibitor has attended the hearing.

6. The Board of Arbitration shall not have power or authority to adopt or apply any rule which shall be at variance with any of the provisions of the Standard Exhibition Contract or the rights and obligations of the parties thereunder.

7. The Board of Arbitration shall not entertain a claim or controversy unless the same arises under any contract other than those mentioned in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of this Rule, excepting with the written consent of both parties to such claim or controversy.

8. Every dispute or controversy must be submitted for determination to the Board of Arbitration within nine (9) months after the date of the breach of contract or of the act of omission or commission out of which such dispute or controversy shall have arisen. A dispute or controversy shall be deemed submitted when a written statement thereof is delivered to the Secretary of the Board of Arbitration. A claim or controversy which cannot be submitted for arbitration because of the limitations of time prescribed in this paragraph may not be introduced as a counterclaim.

9. Members of the Film Board of Trade shall not proceed as provided in paragraph three of Rule IV of these Rules unless the decision or award of the Board of Arbitration determines a claim or controversy arising out of

(a.) A contract which contains or incorporates by reference all of the numbered articles of the Standard Exhibition Contract filed with the Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America, Inc., identified by the signature of its President on March 1, 1926, or

(b.) A contract bearing a date prior to the 1st day of April, 1926, the provisions of which are substantially in accord with the Uniform Exhibition Contract, or

(c.) A contract which contains or incorporates by reference all of the numbered articles of the Standard Exhibition Contract filed on May 1, 1928, with the American Arbitration Association, identified by the signatures of the Contract Committee appointed by the 1927 Motion Picture Trade Practice Conference.

RULE III

REFERENCE OF CONTROVERSIES TO BOARD OF ARBITRATION

1. Whenever possible distributors and exhibitors shall endeavor to settle claims without resorting to arbitration.

2. Whenever a member of the Film Board of Trade shall be unable to settle a claim or controversy with an exhibitor arising under a contract containing the arbitration clause, such member shall notify the Secretary of the Film Board of Trade (located in the city out of which such exhibitor is served) that such member desires to submit the claim or controversy to the Board of Arbitration having jurisdiction thereof, advising the Secretary of the name and address of the exhibitor and the nature of the controversy. The Secretary shall thereupon give written notice to the member, the exhibitor, the local Exhibitors' Association and the Board of Arbitration that the controversy has been referred to the Board of Arbitration at the request of such member and of the time and place of hearing.

3. Likewise upon receipt by the Secretary of the Film Board of Trade of a notice from any exhibitor that such exhibitor desires to submit to arbitration a controversy with a distributor arising under a contract containing the arbitration clause, the Secretary shall give written notice to the exhibitor, the distributor, the local Exhibitors' Association and the Board of Arbitration having jurisdiction, that the controversy has been referred to the Board of Arbitration at the request of the exhibitor.

4. In case either party to a controversy referred to the Board of Arbitration shall demand a hearing thereon in less than five days for reasons deemed by the Board of Arbitration sufficient, the notice provided for in paragraphs 2 and 3 hereof may be dispensed with and in such case twenty-four hours' written notice of the time and place of the hearing shall be given to the parties to the controversy, the local Exhibitors' Association, and the members of the Board of Arbitration.

5. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to prohibit the filing of claims or controversies by members or exhibitors directly with a Board of Arbitration having jurisdiction thereof, pursuant to the rules of procedure and practice adopted by such Board of Arbitration.

6. Each of the parties to a controversy submitted for arbitration shall have the right to one adjournment of the hearing thereof until the date of the next succeeding regular meeting of the Board of Arbitration by sending a written demand therefor at least three (3) days prior to the date fixed for the hearing of such controversy, addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Arbitration.

7. If either of the parties to a controversy submitted for arbitration fails to appear at the time fixed for the hearing thereof, the default of such party shall be noted. In case of a default in appearance of the complainant, the complaint shall be dismissed, and in case of a default in appearance of the respondent, the Board of Arbitration shall hear the evidence of the complainant and shall make an award to the same effect as if both parties had been present.

The Board of Arbitration may, in its discretion, upon application setting forth reasonable grounds, made within seven days after an award has been rendered open the default of either party upon such terms and conditions as may be deemed just.

RULE IV

ENFORCEMENT OF DECISIONS OF BOARD OF ARBITRATION

1. The Secretary of the Board of Arbitration shall from time to time notify in writing the Secretary of the Film Board of Trade located in each city out of which the exhibitor is served of (a) the name and address of each exhibitor who has been found by such Board of Arbitration (1) to have refused to submit to arbitration a controversy arising under a contract containing the Arbitration Clause, or (2) to have refused to comply with a decision of such Board of Arbitration; and (b) the maximum amount (not exceeding that specified in the arbitration clause) which each distributor may demand as security pursuant to such clause.

2. Upon receipt of such information, the Secretary of each such Film Board of Trade shall advise all members of such Film Board of Trade for their exclusive and confidential information (a) of the name and address of every exhibitor who shall have been found by a Board of Arbitration (1) to have refused to submit to arbitration a controversy arising under a contract containing the arbitration clause, or (2) to have refused to comply with a decision of such Board of Arbitration, and (b) of the sum which such Arbitration Board has fixed as the maximum amount which distributors may demand as security from such exhibitor.

3. Subject to the provision of Rule II, on receipt of any such notice, each member having a contract (or representing a distributor having a contract) containing the arbitration clause with any such exhibitor shall demand payment by such exhibitor of such sum as in the judgment of such member or distributor shall be sufficient to protect such member or distributor in the performance of each contract with such exhibitor. Said sum shall not exceed the actual value of any print thereafter to be delivered under each such contract plus the rental contracted to be paid therefor, and in no case shall exceed the maximum amount fixed by the Board of Arbitration as aforesaid. Thereafter each distributor (represented in the membership) to whom such exhibitor shall have failed within seven (7) days to pay the amount of security so demanded by such distributor shall proceed to suspend service under each such contract until such exhibitor shall have furnished such security or complied with the decision of such Arbitration Board. If service under any such contract shall be so suspended for a period of ten days such contract, at the option of the distributor, may then be cancelled. No member or distributor having so suspended service under any such contract with such exhibitor shall thereafter resume service under any such contract unless and until such exhibitor shall have furnished said security to such member or distributor or shall have complied with the decision of the Arbitration Board. Upon the happening of either of such events service under such contract shall be promptly resumed by such member or distributor.

4. In case either party to a dispute or a controversy arising under a Standard Exhibition Contract submitted to the Board of Arbitration shall claim that a right or liability, under the same or another Standard Exhibition Contract, exists or may exist (because of the facts involved in such controversy) against or in favor of some other party, not then a party to the controversy but a party to a Standard Exhibition Contract with the distributor a party to such dispute or controversy, the Board of Arbitration on application of either party shall, by written notice to such effect, make such other party a party to the controversy, and an award, if made in favor of or against such other party, may be enforced as provided in these Rules.

5. The Secretary of the Board of Arbitration shall from time to time notify the Secretaries of the Film Boards of Trade specified in paragraph 1 of this Rule IV in writing of the name and address of each exhibitor previously found by the Board of Arbitration to have committed one or more of the acts specified in paragraph 1 of this Rule IV, who shall thereafter have submitted to arbitration, or shall have complied with the decision of the Board of Arbitration. Upon receipt of any such information the Secretaries of the said Film Boards of Trade shall forthwith advise in writing all members of said Film Boards of Trade for their exclusive and confidential information of the name and address of every such exhibitor, and thereupon each member or distributor having suspended service under any such contract with such exhibitor (as provided in paragraph 3 of this Rule IV) shall resume service thereunder.

6. The Secretaries of the Board of Arbitration shall from time to time notify in writing the Secretary of the Film Board of Trade and the Secretary of the local Exhibitors' Association of the name of each member and distributor represented by a member found by the Board of Arbitration (1) to have refused to submit to arbitration a controversy with an exhibitor arising under a contract containing the Arbitration Clause, or (2) to have refused to comply with a decision of the Board of Arbitration. Upon receipt of such information the Secretary of the Film Board of Trade shall, from time to time, advise all members of the Film Board of Trade of the name of every member and distributor represented by a member found by the Board of Arbitration (a) to have refused to submit to arbitration a controversy arising under a contract containing the arbitration clause, or (b) to have refused to comply with a decision of the Board of Arbitration. Thereafter such member or distributor shall not be entitled to redress from the Board of Arbitration having made such a determination or finding upon any claim or controversy against any exhibitor until such member or distributor has submitted to arbitration or has complied with the decision or award of such Arbitration Board and there shall be added to the amount of such award a sum equal to ten per cent (10%) thereof for each thirty days after the time fixed for compliance therewith that such member or distributor fails or refuses to comply with such award, provided that demand for the payment of such award shall have been made by registered mail upon the home office of such distributor.

7. The Secretary of the Board of Arbitration shall from time to time notify the Secretary of the Film Board of Trade and the Secretary of the local Exhibitors' Association in writing of the name of each member or distributor represented by a member previously found to have committed one or more of the acts specified in paragraph 6 of this Rule IV, thereafter submitting to arbitration or having complied with a decision of the Board of Arbitration. Upon receipt of such information the Secretary of the Film Board of Trade shall advise in writing all members of the Film Board of Trade of the name of such member or distributor, and thereupon such member or distributor shall again be entitled to redress from such Board of Arbitration.

RULE V DAMAGES

1. The amount of damages which the Board of Arbitration shall award for "bicycling", "switching" or any other unauthorized exhibition of a photoplay shall be determined and limited as provided in Section 25 of the Copyright Law of the United States provided that if the Board of Arbitration shall find that any such act was not wilfully done then such damages shall be fixed at not less than one hundred dollars ($100).

2. If in a controversy in which a claim is made against a distributor for damages for failure or delay in delivering any photoplay, and the distributor's defense to such claim is that such failure or delay was caused by reason of the failure or delay of another exhibitor in returning the print of such photoplay, or in forwarding it to the complaining exhibitor as directed by the distributor the Board of Arbitration shall postpone the hearing of such controversy and shall direct that such other exhibitor be brought in and made a party thereto. If the Board of Arbitration shall find that the complaining exhibitor is entitled to damages on account of such claim the Board of Arbitration shall make an award in favor of such exhibitor against the distributor. If the Board of Arbitration shall find that such failure or delay was caused by such other exhibitor, the Board of Arbitration at the same time shall make an award in favor of the distributor against such other exhibitor for the same amount of damages awarded to the complaining exhibitor against the distributor.

RULE VI AMENDMENTS

These rules and regulations shall not be amended or repealed by the Boards of Arbitration or the Film Boards of Trade without the approval first obtained of the beforenamed Contract Committee.

BROADWAY

NEW YORK—Stop the press, boys, here's a bit of news from a gent who never ought to stay anonymous: "Columbia Pictures has signed up Allen Forrest and Otto Mathison, as the two muscular leads to support Betty Compson in 'The Desert Bride.' Forrest is cast as an officer in the Foreign Leghorn, and Mathison as a native." Well, Hortense Schorr had to go and spoil it. When she sent in the official notice from the Columbia office it read to the effect that they are to be no more than the familiar masculine leads, one of them in the Foreign Legion and t'other a native leader. Sufferin' cats! A muscle-wiggler in the Foreign Leghorn would have been some chicken fancier. . . . Bill Murphey has become a staff member of First Division Pictures. All right, what about it? . . . The A. M. P. A. "Naked Truth Dinner" will be held at the Hotel Astor on March the 31st. Ten pesos a seat, plus hat check. Do your shopping early. . . . Fields and Conklin have started Paramount's comedy, "Quick Lunch." Hoys Pictures Company have started making "The Dog Stand." And Warner Brothers' "Ham and Eggs" is in general release. Something for the hungry fans. . . . Senor de Alberich's "Film," which was being distributed by Metro, was to have been sold to a trade paper, but at the last minute the deal fell through and California interests took it over. The "Film" was in the wellknown Spanish language but while it was published by Metro it was not exactly a house organ. "Film" is now published by the Cina Landia interests of California and since the Senor has no contract with Metro it looks a bit as though he had been left at the post, with only memories of a lot of hard work. At any rate, he is in New York and "Films" has gone west. . . . The Astor Hotel tablecloths, if one can trust their diagrams, seem to figure it out as follows. Pathe was caught at short, Stanley to Fox to Keith-Albee to Orpheum Circuit to F B O. Does that make sense, or does it look like four out in one inning? There are still possibilities. Columbia might take over Universal, Metro, and the Sapiro Co-operatives. Who can tell? . . . Good old Lon Young has resigned from the Lumas Company and on March 5 starts for the Coast, to produce pictures for the Chesterfield Picture Company in Los Angeles. Good luck! . . . Jack and H. M. Warner are expected back from Europe within the next ten days. . . . Cholmondeley Goodtree of Melbourne, Australia, arrived in New York on the 22d via the Panama Canal. Mr. Goodtree is one of the largest picture exhibitors in Australia and he is going to the Coast to get a closeup of the production end of the picture business. . . . Harry Reichenbach is in again. He is to be the Simon Legree in the publicity department at Universal for "Uncle Tom's Cabin." . . . So many of the transatlantic liners are having projection machines installed on board these days that they are giving the chain theatres a run. However, this is the "anchor chain" and holding its own. . . . Bill Yearsley, who has been in California for the past year, is now in New York. Bill is visiting about a bit before sailing for England. He has been subpoenaed to appear in the English courts in the case of J. D. Williams against the British National Pictures which let J. D. out before he was able to fill his contract. Bill made one with Miss Gish and it had a run in the U. S. A., but the other promised pictures never hit the deck. . . . Jack Blain has been cast in a new picture called the "Stall" to play the part of Judson. Being cast in the stall seems like a very horsey situation, and dangerous.

The Grim Story of a Laugh

IN "The Man Who Laughs," Universal has filmed one of the great tragic tales inspired by Victor Hugo's repressed sentimentality. Disfigured as a boy through the malice of England's James II, Gwynplaine (Conrad Veidt) grows into a man with a horrible grin. Only Dea (Mary Philbin) brings him love, for she is blind. . . . Paul Leni directed.

Restored to his rightful title and wealth by a conspiring queen, the mutilated Gwynplaine offers a toast—to happiness!—for Dea, the sightless girl he loves.

"Gwynplaine dead? Gwynplaine dead?" Believing herself bereft of "the man who laughs," Dea gropes half-crazed through the streets, blind to the pity of the townspeople.

Fox Deal for Stanley Control Reported to be Well Under Way

Would Merge 635 Houses; Mean Domination of F-N

Botsford Calls Paramount-Fox Deal as Likely as King George Love-Feast with Kaiser

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Long and intricate negotiations between the Fox Film Corporation and the Stanley Company of America apparently are coming to a head. Unless unforeseen developments suddenly force a change in plans, the Fox interests will take over the 270 theatres owned and controlled by Stanley as an addition to its imposing string already stretching from Coast to Coast.

Will Control First National

A highly significant feature of the deal will be the fact that with control of Stanley, Fox also will gain control of First National. No verification could be had from the offices of the companies involved, for obvious reasons. At the same time there were no official denials.

A. M. Botsford, of Publix Theatres, denied vigorously recent rumors that an amalgamation or agreement was being reached between Paramount and Fox. Such an arrangement, he said, was about as likely as a love feast between King George and the Kaiser. Botsford said the rumors might be traced to the expected acquisition of Finkelstein & Ruben by Fox, inasmuch as F. & R. is a partner of Publix in some Western cities. Some crystal-gazers probably saw the prospect of close harmony between Paramount and Fox.

The Fox and Stanley deal would set at rest the generally accepted report that Fox and the Stanley Company of America were engaged in a race for control of First National. With papers reported to be practically ready for acquisition of the Finkelstein & Ruben chain in the Northwest by William Fox, it had been thought that the control of First National would go to either Fox or Stanley, according to which would be first to buy up the few individual shares which held the balance of power.

Now, if the Fox-Stanley deal goes through, William Fox will control First National by the direct route of gaining the 25 per cent which Stanley is supposed to hold in F-N. Fox gained 28 per cent by the Wesco deal. Thus the two deals would assure Fox of control, regardless of the F&R shares.

If all of Fox's recent plans reach maturity, and the opinion seems to be unanimous that they will, a new force of tremendous power will have arisen in the industry.

It is noted also that a number of changes now are being effected in the Stanley organization, bringing in new blood.

The Fox-Stanley deal would make William Fox the outstanding figure in theatre ownership, in the opinion of Wall Street leaders, not even second to Paramount or Loew's. The theatres under Fox control are said to total 365 through the acquisition of Wesco and affiliated chains a month ago, which brought 250 houses into the fold. Stanley theatre holdings are estimated at 270, making a total of 635 houses.

William Fox in South

William Fox was in the South and his visits to Atlanta, Augusta, Ga., and New Orleans have given rise to reports that he is planning additional theatres there. During his absence, other Fox officials would contribute no information regarding the negotiations with Stanley, but one trustworthy source declared that "some negotiations have been made in respect to Fox's acquisition of Stanley, although nothing definite has been arranged." Wall Street says the holdings that would be merged by the deal would total $300,000,000, one-third of which was brought in by the Wesco transaction.

Holding Company Seen

Reports also are current to the effect that a holding company will be organized to take over the operation of the Stanley houses and those of the Fox Theatres Corporation in the event the merger goes through. Fox would have both the Fox Film Corporation and First National as producing organizations for its theatres.

A number of construction projects are said to have been held up by both Fox and Stanley pending the outcome of the negotiations. The merger would give Fox theatre holdings in a hundred cities in ten to fifteen states, irrespective of the extensive projects already begun in several parts of the country.

Fabian Succeeds Boyd As Stanley Vice-President

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 28. — Foremost among changes made as part of a plan to reorganize the personnel of the Stanley Company of America, announced at a meeting of the board of directors Friday, was the stepping out of Alexander H. Boyd as vice-president and director of the company in favor of Simon H. Fabian, of the Fabian chain of theatres in Jersey, which was acquired by the Stanley Company a year or more ago.

Frank W. Buhler, managing director of the company, Louis Sablosky, at one time treasurer, Alfred W. Fleisher, real estate dealer and former partner of the late Jules E. Mastbaum, and Morris Wolf were dropped from the directorate of the board and were succeeded by Louis J. Kolb, Philadelphia capitalist; E. C. Jameson, president of the Globe & Rutgers Insurance Co.; Lessing J. Rosenwald, vice-president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Mrs. Jules E. Mastbaum. The Publication of the complete campaign of Youngclaus & Latta, which resulted in a victory for Sunday shows at Perry, Iowa, must be foregone for one week because of the necessarily large amount of space which is required in this issue for the printing of the new Standard Exhibition Contract and the Rules of Arbitration, which appear on Pages 16 to 19, inclusive.

Sunday Campaign In "Better Theatres"

The Sunday show campaign positively will be printed in full in the next issue of Better Theatres, which will appear as Section II of the March 17 issue.

F B O to Distribute Series of Tom Mix Argentine Pictures

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—F B O has acquired distribution of a series of productions to be made starring Tom Mix, according to announcements from Joseph P. Kennedy, president of F B O, who has just completed negotiations with Fred Kley and James S. Douglass, trustees of the Hollywood-Argentine Cinema company.

Tom Mix

The series, said to be planned on a more lavish scale than former Mix pictures, will be filmed in the Argentine against scenery never before used in motion pictures. The entire company, including the star, director, players and technical staff will leave for the Argentine the first of June, following a 10 weeks' tour of the Orpheum circuit. Headquarters of the company will be established in Buenos Aires.

Three Bandits Rob Manager of $127

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

GLOUCESTER, N. J., Feb. 28.—A. D. Koeneman, manager of the Apollo and Leader theatres, was held up by three men and robbed of $127, part of one night's receipts, as he was turning it over to Philip Kalikman, one of the owners of the theatres, in the latter's store. The bandits have not been captured.

Named Branch Manager

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Phil E. Meyers has been appointed branch manager of the Tiffany-Stahl New York exchange, filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dave Brill.

Business in Europe Increasing, M-G-M Sales Congress Told

Companies Handicapped by Paucity of Theatre Construction, Executives Declare—Wreath Placed on Marcus Loew's Grave

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Distribution of American motion pictures is steadily on the increase throughout Europe but companies are handicapped by the paucity of theatre construction, particularly in the rural districts, foreign sales chiefs of M-G-M agreed at a sales congress which closed Tuesday night with a farewell banquet at the Hotel Astor.

THE first two days of the convention, which opened February 15, were allotted to surveys of the foreign situation, after Arthur Loew had opened the meeting as chairman and Nicholas M. Schenck, head of M-G-M, had given the address of welcome.

Many Countries Represented

Among the leading foreign sales executives attending were: David Lake, Australia; Benjamin Fineberg, Brazil; George Forman, Chile; P. M. Gonzales, Porto Rico; Raoul LeMat, Sweden; Allen Byre, France; J. C. Squier, England; George Fatt, Guatemala; T. Neilson, Denmark; P. N. Brinch, Germany and central Europe; F. L. D. Strengholt, Holland; J. J. Letsch, Belgium and Switzerland; F. Curioni, Italy; David Lewis, Spain; Louis Goldstein, Cuba; A. L. Kalb, Mexico, and H. Gunderloch, France.

No theatres have been constructed in France since 1924, except a few in Paris, Byre declared. The increase of 75 per cent in M-G-M sales in France in 1926-27 he attributed in part to adoption of the percentage basis with minimum guarantee. F. Curioni, salesman in Rome, called the situation in Italy excellent, and presented an

Dietz Among Speakers

Other speakers included Howard Dietz, director of publicity, advertising and exploitation; W. F. Rodgers; David Blum; H. F. Frecke; J. Robert Rubin, vice-president and counsel; David Loew, of Loew's, Inc.; Fred C. Quimby, short features salesman; William Orr, on government co-operation; Major Edward Bowes, vice-president, on latest theatre methods.

Raoul LeMat, in charge of sales in the Scandinavian countries, spoke in tribute to the late Marcus Loew when delegates placed a wreath upon his grave at Maimonides Cemetery.

The foreign representatives made inspection tours of the Roxy, Paramount and Capitol theatres, saw "The Enemy" at the Astor, were guests at the Marcus Loew home, visited the factory of Consolidated Film Laboratories, and also witnessed "The Crowd" at the Capitol.

M-G-M Withdraws "Mare Nostrum" in England after Censors Suppress "Dawn"

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

LONDON, Feb. 28.—Following the suppression by British censors of the English picture, "Dawn," which depicts the career of Edith Cavell, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has withdrawn "Mare Nostrum," the war picture of submarine warfare, because it is alleged to have offended the Germans, according to press reports. "The Four Horsemen" is also being considered for withdrawal.

A stormy controversy preceded the suppression of "Dawn," relating to the manner in which Miss Cavell met death, various versions have been offered by German officials. Because of the controversy the German picture, "The World War as Seen Through German Spectacles," has been withheld from trade showings in England.

Associated Exhibitors of Indiana Show Growth

Charles R. Metzger, president of the Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana, calls attention to the fact that there is no such organization as the "M. P. T. O. of Indiana," referred to in connection with a cut of Frank J. Rembusch which appeared in the February 11th issue. Metzger announces that the association now includes between 80 and 90 per cent of the theatre owners in Indiana and has been highly successful in its operation.

Bergquist, Cameraman, Third to Die as Death Stalks Amid Fox Group

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—Death, for the third time, has entered the ranks of the company making "The Sport Girl," a Fox picture. R. J. Bergquist, cameraman, was mortally injured last Wednesday afternoon, while enroute to Ocean Park for a scene, when the auto in which he was riding struck another car on Santa Monica Avenue, Beverly Hills. Bergquist died three hours later at Good Samaritan Hospital.

Thomas Haggerty, an electrician, fell from a parallel to the studio a week ago while working with the company, and Reginald Morris, who prepared the script for the picture, was found dead in his apartment in Hollywood ten days ago.

Deal Follows Kennedy's Association with Pathe

Aid "in Reorganizing Certain Branches" with Which K-A Is Affiliated Is Called Aim

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

New York, Feb. 28.—Keith-Albee-Orpheum has acquired an interest in F B O. Official announcement of the deal yesterday adds that the arrangement "brings together on the board of directors of F B O the combined interests of four great organizations, Joseph P. Kennedy and his associates, the Keith-Albee-Orpheum group, representatives of the Radio Corporation of America, and the General Electric Company."

Provides F B O Big Outlet

Mr. Kennedy, frankly elated at the success of the negotiations, said, "The deal speaks for itself. It gives F B O a tremendous outlet for its product and provides the Keith-Albee-Orpheum interests with a product they can rely upon day in and day out." The K-A-O chain is estimated at 700 theatres, with a total daily seating capacity exceeding 2,000,000.

While Mr. Kennedy recently became associated with Pathe, which now is affiliated with K-A-O circuit, the new arrangement does not mean that F B O will unite with the Pathe-De Mille organization, which has been joined to K-A-O for some months. Mark A. Leuscher, spokesman for the vaudeville interests, said that both motion picture organizations will be allied with the vaudeville group, but not to each other, as each will retain its separate entity.

The announcement of the F B O—K-A-O deal states that the officials of Keith-Albee-Orpheum "no doubt had in mind Joseph P. Kennedy's ability and resourcefulness as being helpful in reorganizing certain branches of the industry with which they are affiliated." It adds that "it is expected that out of this combination will develop others of even far greater magnitude."

The official statement from the K-A-O offices is as follows:

"An announcement of extraordinary significance to the theatre and picture industry was made yesterday (Sunday) with the public statement that Keith-Albee-Orpheum officials had through Joseph P. Kennedy, acquired a substantial interest in the F B O Pictures Corporation, known generally as F B O. This arrangement brings together on the board of directors of F B O the combined interests of four great organizations, Joseph P. Kennedy and his associates, the Keith-Albee-Orpheum group, representatives of the Radio Corporation of America, and the General Electric Company. The Keith-Albee-Orpheum interests have recently merged the vaudeville and motion picture theatres and booking facilities of B. P. Keith-E. F. Albee in the East and the Orpheum Circuit in the West, into one of the most gigantic theatrical units in America. The new institution extends from one end of the country to the other, and controls or books, through ownership or affiliation, nearly 700 theatres in the United States and Canada, with a total daily seating capacity of over two million.

Cites Genius of Kennedy

"This new alliance with F B O, it is stated, is in keeping with Keith-Albee-Orpheum's policy toward future expansion and development, and no doubt its officials had in mind Joseph P. Kennedy's ability and resourcefulness as being helpful in re-organizing certain branches of the industry with which they are affiliated.

"It also adds another gesture to the sensational development of F B O under the astute and skillful guidance of Mr. Kennedy, its president. He had displayed a rare genius for both organization and re-organization of large interests. It is film history that he took over F B O when it was in a chaotic state, and through his executive ability and experience in re-organization has built it up until it is today one of the best paying companies in the picture business. No movie scenario is as rich in romance and adventure as the history of this organization since February of 1926 when Mr. Kennedy became its head. He came to the head of the motion picture field from the banking business with a general background in the steel industry.

"His comprehensive and constructive direction has done more for the motion picture industry than any other single feature in this country. His remarkable personality and his progressive accomplishments have made an impression on the entire screen field, and the latest association with Keith-Albee-Orpheum is singularly important to the industry as a whole. It is expected that out of this combination will develop others of even far greater magnitude."

Tracing the dynamic career of Mr. Kennedy through the R-C-A and General Electric deal, the statement says:

"With all these various influential and resourceful associations, the outlook for F B O would indicate that Joseph P. Kennedy has just started his real achievements and several other startling public announcements are promised in the near future.

"Its screen output is attracting world-wide attention and yesterday the announcement was made that negotiations were completed between this company and the trustees of the Hollywood-Argentine Cinema Company whereby F B O will distribute the forthcoming series of productions.

Call Wampas Frolic Best Staged; Some Balk at $10 Seats

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—The Seventh Annual Wampas Frolic and Ball, held at the Ambassador auditorium, Saturday night, was characterized as the greatest ever held by that organization. Scores of screen celebrities attended the annual feature, which marked the height of filmdom's social season, and thousands lined the walks leading to the auditorium to glimpse the stars as they passed in.

Thirty vaudeville acts and stage revue specialties gathered together by the Wampas committee, served to entertain the crowd between dance periods. The whole affair was the best managed of the frolics thus far held. Every act clicked and the program was disposed of with celerity. The sale of tickets was limited to 3,000, but the receipts this year did not come up to expectations. Many of the $10 seats were vacant, and also quite a few boxes. The auditorium was beautifully decorated, while a more comfortable seating arrangement was provided than in former years. Charlie Murray and Jackie Coogan served as master of ceremonies.

Among those present were Mayor Rolph of San Francisco, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Tom Mix, Milton Sills, Jack Mulhall, Estelle Taylor, Jack Dempsey, Thomas Meighan, Dolores Del Rio, Clara Bow, Florence Vidor, Bebe Daniels, Robert Edeson, Jacqueline Logan, Phyllis Haver, Marie Prevost, Robert Leonard, Lew Cody, George Hill and the 13 Wampas "stars" of 1928.

Dolores Del Rio was presented with the Don Lee trophy for the greatest achievement in 1926.

Re-Takes

WELL, another Wampas Frolic is now but a memory. A memory of a pleasant evening, however, with the boys in charge surpassing all former affairs. Everybody interested in pictures was there and the 3,000 guests got their money's worth for they could gaze to their heart's content at the headliners in picturedom.

And all the former Wampas stars, for several years back attended. There'll soon be enough of these to hold a little ball of their own. Let's see, 13 of them in 100 years will make 13,000. Quite a bunch.

The crowd outside the Auditorium was almost as large as that inside. They all wanted to get a glimpse of Charlie Chaplin, Tom Mix, Bebe Daniels, Colleen Moore, Billie Dove, Jack Mulhall, Bob. Edeson, Ronald Colman, Thomas Meighan, Richard Dix and a host of other celebs.

Rumor Hounds Busy

There are so many rumors floating around Hollywood these days a lot of folks don't know who their boss is going to be when they get back from lunch. Almost every executive in town has changed places with some other executive, according to rumor, and on top of the local crop we get oodles of rumors direct from Broadway, New York. Some lots are not making many pictures but they are turning out an awful lot of first-class rumors.

Laboring Classes Need Sunday Shows, Montreal Merchants Tell Government

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

MONTREAL, Feb. 28.—The battle over Sunday shows in Quebec took a sensational turn last week, when the Retail Merchants Association of Canada, representing thousands of organized retailers throughout the Dominion, came out with petitions in favor of the continuation of Sunday performances at theatres in Quebec. Thousands of petition blanks were circulated in Montreal by the association and a public statement was issued outlining the stand of the merchants in opposition to the proposal of the Quebec government to ban Sunday shows.

The association took the step, it was announced, "in order to protect and safeguard the commercial interests."

The arguments advanced were that patrons attending Sunday performances in Montreal represented 75 per cent of the laboring classes, that the workers considered attendance at Sunday shows as a privilege and as a rightful liberty after six days of laboring, that the closing of Quebec theatres would add to the privations and restrictions of the workers; and that the lack of Sunday shows would have a tendency to stir up pernicious agitations among the laboring classes.

If a decree ordering the closing of the theatres on Sundays be promulgated, it was asked that an exception be made in the case of Montreal, as a concession to the working classes there.

Brookhart Bill OK, Independents Hold At Seattle Session

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and

SEATTLE, Feb. 28.—A resolution endorsing the Brookhart bill was adopted at a special luncheon meeting of 60 exhibitors here last week, but affiliated exhibitors voted solidly against the measure and two unaffiliated exhibitors joined the opposition in protest against government control.

The meeting at the Gowman hotel was the outgrowth of a special meeting of trustees of the M. P. T. O. of Washington, at which it had been decided to place the issue squarely before the exhibitors, giving opportunity for full discussion and action thereon.

President Ray A. Grombacher was in the chair and James M. Hone, executive secretary, presented the business for the committee.

49 Perish in Fire and Collapse of Foreign Theatres

Forty-nine are known to have died in catastrophes that wrecked two motion picture theatres in foreign countries last week.

Thirty-five dead—possibly more—is the toll of a fire which destroyed the wooden barn that had been converted into a theatre at Moriago, Italy. The structure, with only one exit, burned like kindling, dispatches said.

Fourteen bodies have been dug from the wreckage of a theatre at Curytba, state of Parana, South America. The roof collapsed.

Exhibitor Has Little or No Choice, Witnesses State

Woman Championing Bill Before Senate Committee Refuses to Answer Pettijohn's Questions

[Special from Washington Bureau of Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—With more than 800 pictures produced annually, the theatre owner can show but a small percentage and has little or no choice, it was declared today by Sidney E. Samuelson, Newton, N. J., exhibitor, continuing his testimony before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee on the Brookhart bill.

Says Producers Allocated U. S.

Hearings began yesterday with independent exhibitors and affiliated producers facing each other before Senator Watson of Indiana, chairman; Metcalf of Rhode Island and Couzens of Michigan, of the Senate committee to fight out the merits of the Smith W. Brookhart measure prohibiting block booking, blind buying and discrimination in the sale of motion picture films.

Samuelson charged that the producers have practically allocated the United States between themselves.

Urges Films Ready Before Sale

Asked by Senator Watson what he deemed would cure the situation complained of, Leo Brecher, New York exhibitor, declared pictures should be sold after they are ready to be seen.

"I would sell them to the theatre best able to exploit them properly, the house able to pay the best price for the picture. I would have each picture sold on its own merit," he declared. "I would not tie up a group of poor pictures and compel a man to accept them in order to get the one, two or three good pictures which are included in that group."

The parents of the country are against the block booking system because it permits distributing of offensive pictures, the committee was told by Mrs. Moray V. Kerns of Philadelphia, representing the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. The organization has been interested in block booking since 1925, she said.

Refuses to Hear Pettijohn

Mrs. Kerns refused to permit questioning by Charles C. Pettijohn, attorney for the Hays organization, and confined herself to a statement that many pictures contained matter harmful to adolescent minds.

Twenty unaffiliated exhibitors were present when the hearing began yesterday, representing a dozen states and they quickly organized themselves and elected a steering committee of ten with Charles L. O'Reilly as chairman.

Under the leadership of Senator Brookhart, the exhibitors at once carried the fight into the "enemy territory," outlining some of the abuses under which they claim they are forced to operate. Legislation, and only legislation, declared Brookhart, will insure free and open competition in the distribution of films, at which his bill aims. It does not prohibit an exhibitor from booking in blocks or buying blindly, if he wants to, Brookhart explained, but would make impossible the use of the block by the producers to force the sale of poor films along with the good.

"Years of litigation will be required to settle the validity of the order issued last July by the Federal Trade Commission after six years of investigation, requiring Paramount to discontinue block booking," he said,

"and then will apply to one company only. All the companies can be reached, and at once, through the bill. There is no government control, price fixing or interference with the business planned by the bill. The Federal Trade Commission would administer it, but would not be empowered to arbitrate every dispute that might arise."

In brief, he explained, the commission would have power similar to that of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which can prescribe the safety devices to be used on the railroads.

"Compulsory arbitration will be included in the measure if it is approved by the committee," Brookhart said, declaring that as now framed the boards of arbitration are but "kangaroo courts" with the cards stacked against the exhibitor.

Brookhart's charges were denied by Charles C. Pettijohn, who asserted that arbitration has reduced the number of court cases by thousands and is working out fine.

"Many reforms have been brought about by the industry itself," he said, "including the elimination of the advance deposit, by which the companies formerly could make pictures with the fifteen to twenty million dollars contributed as advance payments by the exhibitors." The producers, he added, did not invade the exhibitors' field until after the latter, through First National, had entered production.

The larger producer-exhibitors are inter-related to a considerable degree, it was declared by Leo Brecher, independent operator of New York. His houses, booking Fox films, cannot get pictures until after they have been shown in nearby Fox controlled theatres, he said, contending that he should be given an opportunity to have the films if he paid as much as the Fox houses did. Answering questions propounded by Senator Couzens, he said the exhibitors have no objection to films being shown first and exclusively in houses owned by the producers, but do object to the system whereby favored treatment is given the houses of other producers to the disadvantage of the unaffiliated exhibitor.

The Film Trade Conference in New York last October held that the unaffiliated exhibitor should be able to buy on an even basis

Sees Harm to Small Theatres

Brookhart Bill Called Blow To Those It Aims to Assist

Federal Regulation by Commission Has Proved Poor Business, Says Martin P. Brown of Cleveland

He favored the Brookhart anti-block booking bill at first, thinking "it must be something good for the exhibitors." But after he had read the measure carefully he changed his mind and is "now convinced that it is a very dangerous bill."

Sees Harm to Small Exhibitor

That is the experience of Martin P. Brown of the New Lorain theatre, Cleveland. Writing in response to the request of Martin J. Quigley in the issue of January 28 for expressions of opinions from exhibitors regarding the Brookhart measure, on which hearings have just opened in Washington, Mr. Brown declares he is certain that the bill "will do great harm to those whom I believe Senator Brookhart most desires to help—the small exhibitor."

Mr. Brown's letter follows in full:

"To the Editor: In the issue of your publication of January 28, 1928, you invite exhibitors and producers to an open discussion of the merits and demerits of the proposed 'Brookhart bill.' When this bill was first introduced in the United States Senate, I was for it and so voiced my sentiments at a meeting of the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association. I thought, and so stated, that if the producers were fighting it, it must be something good for the exhibitors. But, after reading the bill over carefully several times I have changed my mind and am now convinced that it is a very dangerous bill and will do great harm to those whom I believe Senator Brookhart most desires to help—the small exhibitor.

"Most every moving picture theatre has opposition of one or more theatres which it wishes, and is necessary, to run pictures clear of; and a great many theatres that are owned by one man and operated by him as his very own, are in competition with a chain house. The chain house now has a great natural advantage over the single theatre owner, due to larger buying power, and if in addition to this the 'chain' is allowed to pick and choose from all pictures produced and take the 'cream' of all distributing companies, who will be compelled to sell them by Federal Law, what will be left for the single theatre who is in opposition?

"The 'Brookhart bill' will give the one who bids most for a single picture, the right to exhibit that picture and will compel the distributor to auction off each and every production singly, which will mean higher film rentals. 'Tis true, the first run houses can pick and choose now to a greater extent, especially from the independent distributor, but to extend this practice to the first run neighborhood houses, backed by Federal Law, will only aggravate the situation. I will set forth the following example:

"A—theatre is a chain house of 1,500 seats.

"B—theatre is privately owned and has 800 seats.

"They are in direct opposition.

"B theatre offers to buy Universal Complete Service Contract at $2,000 for one year, and is given the word of salesman or manager that he will get the specials released during that year at a fair rental.

"Now A theatre offers $1,000 for ten (10) 'Jewels' but will not use any other pictures on the Universal program. One hundred dollars per picture is more money than B theatre can pay and he will not take anything unless he gets the whole product.

"Would not Universal be violating the law if they advised A theatre they could sell their entire product to B theatre and unless they, A theatre, would take it all they would not sell them the ten 'Jewels'?

"This same rule would hold, only be more disastrous with the Independent exchange, for if the big opposition theatre could pick and choose five or six pictures and the Independent Exchange would be compelled to sell it by Federal Law, the smaller house would not take the other thirty and the Independent Exchange would lose a steady and consistent customer for an occasional buyer.

"I do not think the bill has a chance to pass, because if the Federal Government designates to whom I must sell my merchandise, it must see to it that I am paid for same, and that it cannot do.

"Federal Regulation Poor Business"

"Federal regulation, by commission, has proven very poor business where the rules are left to a department to make and remake to enforce an ever changing condition. No one in the industry will ever know just where they are at. Commissioner Meyer may be a very able, honest and good business man and fair in all his rulings, but where will he be tomorrow? Might not an incompetent dumb-bell get his place, or worse still, a special representative of a big company? Federal regulation should only come after all other means have failed, and when we don't care a damn what happens, for when it does come, we who brought it about will be in the same position of the man who threw the bear down. We will be praying to God to send someone to help us to let him up.

"I could write a book about the faults of this bill as I see them, but cannot see one good point in favor of the Independent theatre owner who has as opposition a big theatre or a chain theatre. Will you advise me if you can find one?

"You may use this letter or any part of it, just as you see fit, also my name and theatre if you care to.—Martin P. Brown, New Lorain theatre, Cleveland, O.

Made Pathe Manager

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Charles Strombaugh has become manager of the Pathe exchange in Albany, succeeding Edward Hayes. Strombaugh has been connected with Pathe for a number of years.

Block Booking Opponents Have Inning at Hearing on Brookhart Measure

with the affiliated house, he said, adding that the affiliated houses do not have to book in blocks, but get the pick of the pictures.

"Numerous efforts have been made to get the practice cured within the industry, but the situation is getting worse, so much so that each year sees a smaller number of independent producers and independent theatre owners," he said. "They are being put out of business or in one way or another forced into combinations which are strangling the business and reducing normal competition. In a short time, a few men will be in a position to dictate to the industry on every point of operation."

Rembusch Attacks Decision

A $60,000 fine assessed against Frank Rembusch of Indiana by a film board some years ago caused him no concern, but when a board last year cut off the supply of films to one of his houses he found it impossible to get films from any of the big producers, Rembusch told the committee. For five years he has endeavored to have the department of justice declare the arbitration system illegal, but only to see the attorney general issue an opinion upholding the film boards, he declared.

As a result of strong protests, however, the question has been reopened, and new investigations are now being made, from which, he said, he does not expect much. The attorney general's decision was rendered despite the fact that the reports of some of the investigations, according to information he had obtained, were decidedly unfavorable, Rembusch charged.

Charges "Gigantic Conspiracy"

The producers have a "gigantic conspiracy," Rembusch charged, and a super-government with powers more extensive than those of the Federal government or the courts, this being exemplified by the $60,000 fine levied upon him.

Samples of contracts he has been required to accept were shown by Samuelson. He explained some of the conditions under which he operates. Block booking, he told the committee, means "take all of a program or none," the injustice in this being that the exhibitor has no means of complying with the wishes of his patrons. The affiliated theatre can pick and choose, but if the customers of an independent do not like underworld pictures or Westerns he cannot cross them off the list. Samuelson declared blind booking means just that—the pictures are listed by the producer long before they are made, the name being given and some explanation of the story, but the producer reserves the right to change the title, the story, the cast and the director, and the picture as delivered frequently is not the same as ordered.

Forced to Double Price, He Says

As an illustration he cited "White Flannels," a Warner Brothers picture originally listed as a tennis story, which was delivered as a coal mining film. The producer can even dictate the admission to be charged by an exhibitor running his films, Samuelson said. In showing "Ben Hur" and "The Big Parade," he was forced under his contract to double his regular price, he declared.

Explaining to the committee how the exhibitor buys his films, Samuelson said, "The theatre owners are buying from the biggest bully, who carries the biggest stick and is most able to build a theatre. That is the one you buy your films from."

Arriving only to leave again. Irving Thalberg, M-G-M production supervisor, and Mrs. Thalberg (is it necessary to add Norma Shearer?) detrainning in New York, where they sailed for Europe.

Time was when photographers had all their subjects swell out proudly, almost always, of course, without reason. Above, however, old-fashioned posing is not amiss, since the picture is of Chester Conklin, Director Allan Dwan, and Bodil Rosing, makers of "The Big Noise" for First National. (The swelling of the megaphone is but indirectly associated with pride.)

Cecil B. De Mille, Will H. Hays, and a delegation of California women who, seeking to establish a model women's prison, were interested in the Pathe director's photographs of reformatories, compiled for "The Godless Girl." Left to right, Mesdames Ernest Wallace, John Buwalda, and I. B. Slocum; Hays, De Mille, and Mrs. C. H. Johnston.

New beauty for the screen has arrived in the persons of Frances Hamilton, above, and Doris Dawson, at right, whose talents have earned them contracts with First National.

Molly O'Day (above), who in one year with First National has risen to feminine leads. She is opposite Richard Barthelmess in "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come."

Vonceil Viking created these statistics: Miles, nearly 4,000; time, 120 days; states traversed, 16. And what mere channel swimmer could equal them? Her reward includes feminine leads in Ted Wells' Westerns. At left, Miss Viking is pictured with Wells and a cowboy escort riding to the Los Angeles city hall, and at right, being welcomed by Mayor George E. Cryer, with Wells and an interested throng looking on.

This camera-occasion was the visit of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Berlin to the Columbia studio in general and to Harry Cohn in particular, during their sojourn on the Coast. Cohn used to turn the themes of Berlin's songs into screen product some ten years ago. From left to right are pictured. Lois Wilson, Berlin, Cohn, Mrs. Berlin, Jack Holt, and Betty Compson.

Irene Rich, screen star, as a stage star of beauty and temper(ament). The former quality, of course, is a studio commonplace. As to the latter . . . Miss Rich appears as above in Warner Brothers' "Powder My Back."

Belle Bennett, whom Columbia has cast to star as a woman of the futile forties, seeking to recapture the romance of youth. The picture is entitled "The Sporting Age."

John Miljan, Warner Brothers character player, whose fame has been gradually, solidly built up out of brilliant impersonations. His next picture is "Tenderloin," which stars Dolores Costello.

KNOW YOUR SALES LEADERS

NED E. DEPINET, general manager of distribution and vice-president of First National Pictures, Inc., though only 37 years old has rounded out more than twenty years of experience in the motion picture business. And during all of these twenty years he has been directly associated with sales.

BORN in Erie, Pa., Sept. 9, 1890, Depinet attended the schools of that city. After being graduated from high school, he found his first job as booker and salesman with the Imported Film and Supply Company of New Orleans. Literally, it may be said that he has been a picture man throughout his business life. Step by step, as a result of proven capacity, he has risen to his present post of high responsibility.

In 1910, the Imported Film and Supply Company became a part of the General Film Company, giving Depinet a broader opportunity to familiarize himself with the marketing of pictures in the southern territory. His success was so pronounced that in 1911 the Universal Company offered him the place of Southern division manager, a position that he filled until 1924 when he was brought to the New York office as one of three sales directors. Along with his other duties, Depinet continued to be the righthand man of William Oldnow, who for many years held the Universal distributing franchise for the entire South.

In the fall of 1926, he came to First National as a member of the sales cabinet organized at that time with the country divided into three territories, East, South and West. Depinet took over the Southern territory and soon brought the sales in that part of the country up to a new high mark. When it was decided to appoint a general salesmanager with jurisdiction over all domestic distribution, he was chosen as the ideal man for the place.

Under the direction of Depinet, with A. W. Smith, Jr., Eastern salesmanager, Stanley W. Hatch, Western and W. E. Callaway, Southern, First National branches are going well above their allotted quotas on the new season's product.

Depinet was a distributor representative at the exhibitor-distributor-producer contract conference held recently in Chicago.—J. S. S. company announced the reduction of its regular dividend of $1 to 75 cents a share.

All these steps, it is understood, are in line with policies advocated by Irving D. Rossheim, newly elected president of the Stanley Company, who upon his election undertook to reduce the overhead expenses of the company by enforcing strict economies, through the elimination of unneeded employees and the cutting of unprofitable contracts. Rossheim also urged that the company build up a strong cash reserve, even at the expense of reducing the dividend. It is understood that these economies will save the company from $400,000 to $500,000 a year.

Another proposed change in policy, it is understood, will consolidate all buying under the direction of one individual. While the name of this individual has not been announced, it is believed that Fabian will undertake the task and that carefully supervised buying will not only result in savings to the company but will provide better attractions for patrons.

It was also announced that one of the largest girders ever made will soon be placed in the Mastbaum theatre which is being built at Twentieth and Market streets. The theatre is to seat 5,000 and cost $5,000,000. Steel will be the chief part of the structural work.

William Fox in South; New Projects Rumored

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

ATLANTA, Feb. 28.—William Fox spent several hours in Atlanta Wednesday afternoon and his visit gave rise to rumors that, in addition to the magnificent theatre which he contracted for here, he is planning other houses in the South. Mr. Fox came to Atlanta from Augusta, Ga., arriving late in the afternoon, but remained here only long enough to catch the Crescent Limited for New Orleans. He was met at the train by Paul C. Bryan, head of the Fox exchange in Atlanta.

4,000-Seat Stanley In Pittsburgh Has Premiere of Pomp

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 28.—Amid pomp and ceremony the long awaited opening of the new 4,000-seat Stanley theatre took place yesterday at 3 p. m., when the official dedication of the theatre by Mayor Charles H. Kline took place. At the opening performance scenes of this were shown as part of the Paramount News. A dinner at the William Penn for the officials of the company and other prominent people followed the dedication. The entire house was reserved, at $1.65 for orchestra seats and $1.10 for balcony.

The theatre itself is modern in every respect, with 4,000 seats on two floors. The foyer is not separated by doors from the auditorium but constructed to allow standees to see the show, as in some legitimate houses. With an elevating pit and organ and a medical room, besides being beautifully appointed, this house compares favorably with any in the country.

There was no confusion at all at the opening, and much credit is due James Balmer, the manager. Charles Raymond has prepared thorough exploitation for the premiere.

Concessions Made in New Standard Contract

specifying the number of days for acceptance of a contract, these periods of time have been revised in the case of several cities.

Considerable of the additional text in the new contract is devoted to percentage booking, and in the clauses affecting this it is specified that "if this contract calls for payment or any part thereof computed upon the exhibitor's gross receipts, such payment or any part thereof shall be made daily." Heretofore the contract has specified only that a daily itemized statement was required.

Woodhull Makes Statement

In making public the new contract, the following statement was issued by R. F. Woodhull, chairman of the unaffiliated exhibitor group, and R. H. Cochrane, chairman of the distributor group:

"We are more than pleased with the really fine work of the Contract Committee, the members of which gave unstintingly of their time at a great sacrifice of their personal interests to do a constructive piece of work for the motion picture industry at large.

Called "Great Improvement"

"It is the belief of the committee that the new Contract and Rules are a great improvement over those which they will supersede, beginning May 1, 1928,—and that the new provisions and those which were omitted from the old Contract and Rules, will do much to eliminate many points of trade differences between exhibitors and distributors of motion pictures."

Following were the members of the committee representing the Unaffiliated Exhibitors: Ben Berinstein of Los Angeles, Nathan Yamins of Fall River, Mass., R. R. Biechele of Kansas City, Mo., H. M. Richey of Detroit, Mich., secretary.

Representing the Affiliated Exhibitors: Fred Desberg of Cleveland, and Edward Schiller of New York.

Representing the Distributors: Felix F. Feist, Ned Depinet, Phil Reisman.

THE STUDIO

Incorporated in this department of Exhibitors Herald is the Moving Picture World department, "Hollywood."

Goldwyn Named U-A Director; Will Move Into Firm's Building

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—Samuel Goldwyn's name has been added to the directorate of the United Artists Corporation, and with Joseph M. Schenck, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, he becomes a joint owner of the studio property in Santa Monica boulevard.

Goldwyn's production activities will be transferred to United Artists studios as soon as new executive offices, now in course of construction, are completed. The studio is building a new office 180 feet long, facing on Santa Monica Boulevard, at an expenditure of $250,000. It will be completed about April 1.

Goldwyn, accompanied by Mrs. Goldwyn, left here Thursday for New York, where they sail March 3 for Europe.

Reed Finishes Work on "Hell's Angels"; to PFL

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—Luther Reed, who has completed directing the dramatic sequences of "Hell's Angels" for Caddo Productions, has returned to Paramount, where he is preparing "The Glory Girl." It will be a starring vehicle for Esther Ralston.

Jacqueline Logan in Film Directed by Windemere

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—Fred Windemere began the direction of "Broadway Daddies" last week for Columbia. In this starring roles are Jacqueline Logan, Rex Lease, and Alec B. Francis.

Griffith Names Next

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—D. W. Griffith, who returned from New York last week, has announced "The Battle of the Sexes" as his next United Artists picture. Belle Bennett has the lead, with Jean Hersholt playing an important role.

Six in Shooting on Fox Lot; F B O to Close Until June 1

31 Pictures in Production; Most Studios Normal; Willat Completes "Michigan Kid" at Universal; Korda Under Way with "Yellow Lily" Starring Billie Dove

By DOUGLAS HODGES

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—With six pictures shooting, Fox Film Corporation last week held the lead as the busiest lot in town. Stars working included Janet Gaynor, Dolores Del Rio, June Collyer, Madge Bellamy, and Doris Hill. In the same order, Murnau is directing "Four Devils," Walsh "Red Dancer," John Ford "Hangman's House," and Arthur Rosson "The Sport Girl," the John Stone comedy drama. Other films under way are "Wild West Romance" and "Thief in the Dark."

Other Studios on Curtailed Program

Numerous other studios are working, but upon a more or less curtailed program. Bebe Daniels is starring in a comedy as yet untitled. It is being directed by Clarence Badger at the Paramount lot.

Four pictures are being shot at First National. A few closing shots are being made by George Fitzmaurice for "Lilac Time," Colleen Moore's latest film. Al Santell is shooting "The Little Shepherd," and Mervyn Le Roy is shooting "Harold Teen."

One of the big pictures recently begun is "The Yellow Lily," which Alexander Korda is directing. Production experts and critics are eagerly watching the results, expecting Korda to bring Miss Dove to an even greater prestige than she already commands. It is from a script by Bess Meredyth.

F B O to Close Until June 1

F B O will close its studios within a few days, with no promise of further cinema activity before June 1. However, the television apparatus will soon be installed and that will prevent the studios from being entirely void of life.

With the ending of Irvin Willat's picture, "The Michigan Kid," Universal officially closed its plant last week for almost as long The U will begin action again in April with its Western unit. It will probably be May before the studio gets under full force again. Meantime several departments will continue to function.

The short feature studios are practically all closed. That includes Educational, Christie and Mack Sennett.

The Tec-Art studios have discontinued operation for a short length of time but will probably have companies working again within a few weeks.

U A Quiet Until April

The closing of the Barrymore picture next week will also mean the closing of United Artists studios until the beginning of Norma Talmadge's next opera. She will commence work in April.

In spite of these shutdowns there are 31 pictures in work in Hollywood. That is below normal of course but nevertheless it is far from being the panic pictured by a score of newspaper correspondents in their columns syndicated throughout the country.

Rumors Cause Industrial Scare

Announcements of shutdowns have been made by each of the aforementioned studios and many earnest scribes have allowed their imaginations to dwell on the subject to the extent that they have invented magnificent stories concerning the panic that Hollywood is encountering. They have overlooked the fact that the greatest source of any panic is the rumors that foster it. Subsequent to the written and spoken word there are many thousands in Hollywood who are preparing for a lean season and thereby planning one by senseless intrenchment.

Offices in 10 Cities Being Opened By Principal Theatres Chain

Lina Basquette Made Head of Wampas Baby Star Club—Edwin Carewe Enters Hospital—Directors' Society Names Officers

By RAY MURRAY

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—Joseph H. Skirboll, general manager of Principal Theatres of America, left here last week to establish offices for the country-wide chain of theatres in San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Denver, Kansas City, St. Louis, Louisville, Memphis, Cleveland and Philadelphia. With a nucleus of 35 houses, Principal Theatres Corporation expects to have 1,000 motion picture houses of 1,000 seating capacity each, within five years, according to a statement issued by Sol Lesser, president.

THIS is the first and only theatre-operating organization conducted on a national basis," Lesser said, "and the policy of establishing first-class theatres in towns of about 15,000 population will be carried out through the broadening program of this corporation.

"We have associated ourselves with architects and engineers who will provide theatres not only beautiful in design, but comfortable and well ventilated. Los Angeles will remain the national headquarters of the company," declared Mr. Lesser.

THE STUDIO PREVIEW

"Anybody Here Seen Kelly"

"Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly" is the latest of the old popular songs to be used for screen material. Universal has taken this title and built up an unusually amusing and interesting story. It is, I believe, William Wyler's initial production and is quite a break for this young director. Leigh Jason wrote the story and John Climber adapted it. Both have made a good job of it.

It is a story of France during the World War, and of New York following the great struggle, and concerns a pretty little French maiden who falls in love with a big, loveable Irishman, a member of the A. E. F. The war ends and he returns to America, to which country the French girl comes in belief that the soldier's proposal of marriage was sincere. She finds him working as a traffic cop, and he establishes her in his rooms. A jealous rival discovers Jeanette living with the policeman and swears out a warrant for her deportation. Of course she is rescued a moment before the ship sails and wedding bells ring out later.

Bessie Love is given an opportunity to display her real ability in "Has Anybody Seen Kelly" and gives one of the finest performances we have seen in many a day. Why isn't this actress playing bigger parts? Tom Moore was surprisingly good as Kelly. Kate Price played the boarding house keeper in her usual pleasant style. We must not overlook Dorothy Wolbert in an excellent bit either. The titles were delightful, the work of Walter Anthony, and drew many a laugh. Director Wyler should feel proud of "Kelly" and it will no doubt prove a hit on the Universal program, especially in and around New York. The Manhattan scenes were perfect, a delightful touch being that as Bessie Love, just arrived, stands and gazes at the Woolworth building from City Hall Square, and unintentionally draws a large crowd. —MURRAY.

"The Big Noise"

Ben Hecht's story, "The Headliner," a tale of New York newspaper life, comes to the screen as "The Big Noise." It is humorous and dramatic at times, but based upon a premise that is hardly convincing. The story is primarily a character study, with interest centered on Chester Conklin. As such it is very good and the various humorous touches are well handled by the comedian. But when we are asked to believe that 6,000,000 people are stirred to the highest pitch of excitement when a subway guard falls off a platform and bumps his head and then cast their votes for the mayoralty candidate who befriends him, it taxes one's credulity.

The story opens with long travel shots of Conklin going to work. Then the accident. A reporter covers the accident in four lines, but the city editor, seeking an issue for a political campaign, grabs the idea of exposing the subway corporation and in true tabloid form plays the story to the limit. Sob stories are written, Conklin is feted, and the new mayor is elected. Then the poor subway guard is forgotten and a new idol, a flagpole-sitter, is acclaimed. This was one of the cleverest bits in the picture but passed almost unnoticed at the preview. Allan Dwan directed and he "made" the most of the story. —MURRAY.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—The other day I met the youngest film executive in the world—Carl Laemmle, Jr. I found him in his bungalow, with his secretary and assistant, laying out plans for four big productions for Universal's next year's program which he will supervise. Carl, Jr., will be 20 years old next April, but his entrance into motion pictures dates back to the time of his birth, and he is the only motion picture executive today who has claim to this distinction. He made his first picture, called "My Father Is," at the age of seven. It showed the difficulty of breaking into a studio without the proper credentials. Junior directed it and played the leading part. Many times since his father and himself have been amused by it.

Junior was educated at Clark School in New York City and has traveled all over the world, at which times he was privately tutored. He is a great reader and is familiar with the world's best works. He is in constant touch with every Universal exchange manager in the country and has visited most of the foreign offices, and now corresponds with all foreign representatives.

During his short but active career at Universal City, he has originated and written two series of ten "Collegians" stories and supervised their production. —RAY MURRAY.

Curtiz Tells of Hardships Actors Encounter Touring Europe

Theatrical Experience Began in Hungary at Age of Eight; Says War Has Brought Renaissance in Pictures

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—Michael Curtiz, director of "Tenderloin," "Good Time Charley," and several other Warner Brothers pictures, has been chosen to direct a series of Vitaphone productions for this season. Curtiz, since arriving here from Europe several months ago, has become prominent as a forceful dramatic director.

CURTIZ often tells of his experiences as an actor in Europe when he traveled with a barnstorming troupe. Those days are recalled and contrasted to the lives of actors in Hollywood because of the hardships he encountered as a member of the wandering acting fraternity.

Enthusiasm for the work and enjoyment of acting caused them to prefer this life of poverty. Actors did everything, made bill posters, printed programs, set scenery, mended wardrobe, and arranged seats in the auditorium. The troupe traveled either on horseback, stagecoach, or trains. The show may have been given in a theatre, a restaurant, or out-of-doors.

His first theatre was in the cellar of his own home, when he was eight years old. There were four other children in that project. All have risen to heights in various professions. S. Major is now a noted cartoonist; Pete Eskanasy has become a noted violinist; Tunne Bekery has become a Viennese publisher of note; and Ludwig Gellert is now a famous Hungarian actor.

At 19, Curtiz, having finished college in Vienna, went to a theatre and asked for a job as an actor in a traveling company. He was engaged. Later he was principal pantomimist with a circus in an act called "The Hand." He acted in pictures and on the stage in Denmark and Germany.

"Four Sons" is a Notable Picture Says Wilford Beaton in "Spectator"

FOX has made another notable contribution to screen art. "FOUR SONS" is a noble picture: it is a glorious and impressive tribute to mother-love, a great, human masterpiece that will provoke the world's tears and smiles. Like its studio-mate, Seventh Heaven, it is a ten-reel heart-throb, and like its other studio-mate, Sunrise, it is a production that motion picture people can study with profit to themselves. John Ford previously had given us nothing to prepare us for the depth of feeling that he reveals in this picture, although he hinted at it in Three Bad Men.

John Ford Directs in Masterly Manner

"FOUR SONS" pays a greater compliment to audiences than any other picture ever made. Some of its strongest bits of business are little more than suggested, and unobtrusively, at that, in medium and long shots. And Ford does something else that I never saw done so effectively in any other picture: he keeps the camera for a long time on scenes in which the characters are almost static. One such scene shows the four boys gathered around their mother's chair. For several seconds the scene is held on the screen, with no one in it moving. Another scene shows the old woman, her last son gone, sitting in her rocking chair. She rocks back and forth, back and forth, with no movement except that of the chair, her face set and expressionless. In handling these scenes in this manner Ford gets right down to the fundamentals of the screen. Motion is not necessary to every scene in a motion picture. The only thing of importance in any scene is the reaction it causes.—Film Spectator.

LIVE NEWS FROM COAST TO COAST

Albany

ALBANY.—Gardner Hall in Troy, N. Y., which has been owned and operated for several years by the Rosewind Corporation of that city, was bought last week by Joseph H. Crouch of Rensselaer, and Harry W. Lamont of Troy. Ross Fayles secured the Columbia theatre in Rensselaer last week from Abe Stone of Albany and will operate it along with the Bright Spot. Jack Kaplan, who owns the Rialto in South Fallsburgh, has taken over the Lyceum in Woodridge. . . . The Avon theatre in Watertown, N. Y., is being used for noonday Lenten services on Six Fridays, with Rev. James W. Wilson as chairman. . . . Before Harry Goldstein left Albany last week to take up his new duties as manager of the Paramount exchange in Pittsburgh, he was tendered an elaborate dinner at the DeWitt Clinton hotel, by the Albany Film Board of Trade. His office force presented him with a set of pipes and a tobacco pouch. . . . Fire believed to have been caused by defective wiring, destroyed the Castle theatre at Olcott Beach, a well known summer resort on Lake Ontario, early one morning last week. A number of other buildings were also burned to the ground. The village has no water supply or fire protection and adjoining villages were called on for aid.

Cincinnati

CINCINNATI.—Andrew Hettesheimer, manager of the Orpheum theatre, has resigned to become manager with Keith-Albee. He has taken a suite of offices in the Palace Theatre Building. . . . Albert Irwin, manager of the Walnut Street theatre, has been named manager of the Terre Haute, Terre Haute, Ind., recently acquired by Isaac Libson of Cincinnati. . . . Carl Adams, motion picture editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer, has written a play which may be made into a moving picture. . . . Harold Priest and O. J. Welsch have purchased the Playhouse at Jackson, O. . . . The Eagle theatre, Hamilton, Ohio, is playing vaudeville Sundays, in addition to the regular program. . . . Danny McKapp has left the employ of the State theatre, Dayton, O., to assume management of the Keith in Cincinnati.

Ottawa

OTTAWA.—Aurelien Belanger of Ottawa. Liberal member in the Ontario legislature, has introduced legislation which provides for a considerable number of reforms in the laws governing the theatres of Ontario and in the film censorship. The bill calls for the appointment of an additional censor, whose duty it would be to revise all possible moving picture subjects for presentation to children under 16 years of age in theatres of Ontario. There is also a provision for additional matrons at theatres attended by children. . . . The Quebec government is considering a bill which would bar all children under 16 years of age from all moving picture theatres at all times in Quebec cities. . . . Lillian Franklin, beautiful and talented daughter of J. M. Franklin, manager of B. F. Keith's theatre, Ottawa, was one of the outstanding performers at the annual revue at the Lisgar Collegiate Institute in the Canadian capital. Miss Franklin, who is a fourth-year student, is prominent in Canadian musical circles as a violinist and her solo numbers at the high school performances were a hit. . . . Charlie Chaplin's "The Circus" closed a three weeks' engagement at the downtown Tivoli, Toronto, as its first Canadian run, on March 2, with the prices ranging from 60 to 25 cents. The comedy was followed by a special British production, "The Battles of Coronel and Falkland Islands," for its Canadian premiere, the picture being presented as a road show.

Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS—Plans for celebrating the opening of the Loew Palace theatre March 3 have been approved by members of the Pennsylvania Street Business Association. Isidor Kornblum, president of the club, presided. It was decided to carry on a publicity campaign to boost business at the theatre. W. A. Timney of Pittsburgh, district manager of Loew's, Inc., and C. L. Winston, publicity director of the theatre, were guests at the dinner meeting of the association. . . . V. U. Young of Gary, owner of four theatres in that city and also head of theatres in various parts of the Middle West was in Anderson, Ind., recently in conference with other partners of the Anderson Hotel and Theatre Company, which intends to build a seven story hotel and theatre building in the latter city. He announced that within 60 days construction will be under way and plans call for the completion of the building this year. Young stated that theatre would be called the Palace and will seat 2,000. George Challis of Muncie, Ind., will be the manager. . . . Work has been completed in making extensive changes in the Lyric theatre at Lafayette, Ind., under the direction of the new owners, A. W. Thompson and Son. In Ohio they operated a circuit of motion picture houses.

San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO.—O. L. Olsen, for ten years with Metro and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has joined the sales staff of Columbia and has been assigned the Sacramento Valley and North Coast territory. . . . A Vitaphone branch has been opened at the Warner Brothers Exchange, under the direction of Paul J. Swift, general manager of the Vitaphone Corporation, who spent a couple of weeks here. . . . Newton Levi and Gerald Hardy have qualified for the K. O. Club of First National, being among the leaders in the national sales contest. . . . Samuel H. Levin, San Francisco exhibitor, is home from a trip to New York. . . . T. C. Reavis, of the Cline theatre, Santa Rosa, is on a vacation trip to Honolulu. . . . *W. A. Jr. and will have charge of the new California theatre at Chico. . . . A Kilgen organ has been installed in the Unique theatre, Santa Cruz, Cal. Recent visitors on Film Row include Harry West of Greenville; W. J. Clark of Vacaville; H. F. Anderson, of Andy's theatre, Albion; George Roy, of Reno, Nev., and W. G. Hull, Ely theatre, Ely, Nev.

San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO.—Charles Karr, ad sales manager for Paramount in the Southwest section of Texas, has just returned from a trade trip into his territory. . . . Harold E. Pickett, branch manager for Paramount, is back at his desk after sickness lasting eight weeks. . . . As a special trailer stunt on "Sorrell and Son," the Texas theatre in San Antonio is going to use a novel idea in picture selling. The entire trailer will be shown on scrim. When the right time comes, the scrim will be spotted by two spots from the booth, the picture cut off simultaneously, and the scrim flied. Back of the scrim will be a little boy beside a mammoth reproduction of the book, showing the title page. The boy will turn the pages of the book, on which will be art work and selling copy, consisting of catch lines. At the arrival at the last page, the copy will read, "Now Watch the Screen for scenes from the photodrama you will see next week," and the scrim will be lowered to show the regular pictorial trailer.

Kansas City

KANSAS CITY.—In view of the belief that there is too much of a lack of strenuous exercise along Kansas City's movie row, an effort to organize a movie row basketball league has been launched. Names of members of prospective teams should be sent to Russell Borg, manager of the Educational branch. . . . The Colonial theatre, Pittsburg, Kas., was broken into Monday night by burglars, who escaped with $1,200, taken from a safe. . . . Steam shovels are breaking ground for the new $750,000 Country Club Plaza theatre, seating 2,500. The project is under the supervision of J. C. Nichols, realtor. The house will be of Spanish design. Noller Brothers and Edward W. Tanner, Kansas City, are the architects. Jack F. Truitt, of Los Angeles, formerly of Sedalia, Mo., will lease the theatre.

Boston

BOSTON.—Through a tie-up with Boston newspapers, the Publix Metropolitan theatre is receiving much publicity through the daily taking of a straw vote on presidential possibilities. In the first two days this week more than 11,000 ballots were cast, giving Al Smith over 6,000 and Herbert Hoover about 3,000 votes, besides scattering votes for numerous others. . . . Reorganization of the Pathe exchange has been effected here. District Manager L. J. Hacking goes to New Haven as branch manager. Salesmen W. Snyder, "Bean" Hartford, Thomas Conlon, and Ralph Quive; Timothy Douahue of the cashier's department; Gerald Swaabe, district non-theatrical manager; and Chester Sawin, district representative, have resigned. There are six salesmen now, instead of eleven. . . . The Strand theatre at Willimantic, Conn., has been sold by Louis Coriarty. The name of the new owner has not been announced. . . . Charles Franks, musical and stage director of the Worcester Capitol, has resigned to join Harry Lauders company. . . . Stage and film celebrities were out in force for the benefit to William DeWolf at the Quincy Strand.

THE SHORT FEATURE

Stern Official Sees Replacing of Long Comedies by Short

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—The picture market has become so super-saturated with comedy features during the last twelve months or so that a decided swing back to a greater percentage of dramatic pictures is now under way, is the belief of Max Alexander, eastern representative of the Stern Film Corporation, which releases through Universal. As a result of this condition, the market is slowly but surely opening up for short comedies, he points out.

"A study of exhibitor reports for the current season and advance announcements by feature producers for next season, clearly indicate that the percentage of feature comedies offered for release next season will be materially smaller," said Alexander.

Newsreel Between Acts Adopted At Greenwich Village, New York

The newsreel as a between-acts attraction at so-called legitimate theatres is now an established fact. The latest case to come to light is at the Greenwich Village theatre in the heart of New York City, where the newsreel has been adopted as the welcome diversion during the long and boring pauses between scenes.

Increased Usage Predicted

With the development at the Greenwich Village theatre we have the straight use of newsreels to fill out the intermissions, and from now on one can expect to learn of a steadily increasing number of instances of this policy.

The first outstanding instance was the application of the idea at the Garrick theatre in Fond du Lac, Wis., where the Fond du Lac Theatre Company, of which W. L. Ainsworth is president, put on newsreels as well as other short product in the nature of comedies in connection with the stage shows of a stock company, and a long feature in addition. But in this case the total running time of the performance was three and one-half hours, indeed "your money's worth."

Ideal Solution of Delays

Adoption of this policy at the Garrick in Fond du Lac came concurrently with a suggestion by Ashton Stevens, dramatic critic of the Chicago Herald-Examiner, that the newsreel would be the ideal agency for taking away the tedium of the long waits while settings and costumes are being changed.

The Stevens suggestion was commended by Martin J. Quigley in an editorial article.

Pathe News at "Legit"

Pathe News is the screen newspaper that has been adopted for regular use at the Greenwich Village theatre in New York and reports have it that the patrons have taken enthusiastically to the idea. Milton Kronacher was the Pathe salesman who won over the theatre management to the plan.

Incidentally, the use of the newsreel between acts has been a regular policy in European "legit" theatres for some time. The only recent adoption of the policy in this country seems to indicate that while American pictures and things of the theatre in general set the style of the theatres of the world, there are times when we can learn from the Old World. The use of the newsreel between acts seems to be a case in point.

FT. MYER, FLA.—Thomas A. Edison was given a gold pass good at all Universal theatres, at a celebration held here on his 81st birthday.

Half of His Advertising Allotted to Short Feature

Here's a mark to shoot at in the allotment of newspaper advertising by the exhibitor. George Conover of the Maroa theatre at Maroa, Ill., tells J. C. Jenkins, the field investigator than whom there is no whomer, that he believes 50 per cent of the advertising of his programs should be given to the short features.

Other instances of a similar nature have appeared in the returns from the "Jaysee" survey which have been appearing in this department from time to time. Conover is one of the many who have found that it pays to give the short feature proportionate space in the newspapers. In fact, he gives the short feature even more reel-for-reel prominence than the long picture.

60 Week Bandshow Circuit Formed

Managers Are Wise to Kick Back Deals

System of Accepting Large Sums for Booking Acts Is Hurting Artists and Theatres

One of the greatest evils that has cast its reflection on the presentation field today is that of the gyp booking agent and picture house booker representing individual artists playing deluxe picture houses. Since establishing a stage policy in picture houses more than three years ago, there have been a number of agencies forming in different parts of the country that strive more or less to supply talent to the theatres in their particular territory. Many of these agencies are very reliable and hold a high position as well as standing in the theatrical world due to their association with various members of the profession. However, there are many that are not.

The sad part of this new branch is the fact that the business is being infested with a number of unscrupulous men whose sole purpose is to secure talent under exclusive contracts if possible, sell them to a circuit or individual theatre at a certain stipulated salary and then compel that individual act or artist to refund a certain portion of this salary as personal representatives.

Agents Get a "Kick-Back"

A more common or better known term for this sort of dealing is the term "Kick-back" of which a number of these so-called representatives have been unusually successful up to date in procuring big commissions from the unfortunate artists.

Another sad part of this matter is the fact that the theatres booking these acts are beginning to feel the effects of the huge salaries paid and no real return for the particular name or services rendered by them to justify the big salaries. As a rule an artist in any particular branch of amusements establishes a standard salary and each year it increases according to the value of its name and drawing power which makes it possible for the particular circuits of theatres engaging them

Here's the Man!

Here's the man who was the first organist in the country to play an overture and music for an entire stage show by using his organ to supply all the orchestra effects—LEW WHITE is his name and he is at the world's largest de luxe motion picture theatre—Roxy—Lew recently opened a school for organists in New York to teach the art of photoplay music, again scoring by being the first one in the East to establish such an institution—If you want to spend a few interesting hours at home tune in Lew White on your radio or put on a few of his Brunswick records.

Bennie Krueger Stages Birthday Bandshow

Bennie Krueger, one of the most popular band leaders in Chicago, is back at the Balaban and Katz Theatres, this week, after a serious illness.

He is being featured this week in the anniversary show of the Tivoli Theatre in which Rae Samuels is one of the featured attractions.

Preston Sellers, well known organist, will also offer a birthday greeting solo as the guest organist. N. M. Platt, manager of the Tivoli, has decorated the front of the house and its lobby with some very attractive pendants to commemorate the occasion.

Coast to Coast Tour Offered to Players

Tie-up of Fanchon & Marco and Loew, Gives Publix Units Long Bookings

By A. RAYMOND GALLO

Starting this week "Arabian Nights" the bandshow unit now playing at the Oriental Theatre, Chicago, will be the last Publix Unit produced in Chicago that will tour the circuit. The above unit will play three more weeks in Chicago such as the Norshore, Senate and Harding and then take to the road for about thirty more weeks. "The Mikado of Jazz" which was produced also at the above theatre two weeks ago is the other unit that will play the same route. In spite of the fact that Publix and Loew theatres have now merged their booking activities on stage presentations in which they have from thirty to forty weeks work to offer presentation artists, the plans of production are still somewhat undecided as to whether the production center shall be New York or Chicago.

About a year ago most of the units that played Balaban and Katz and Lubliner and Trinz Theatres were produced in Chicago with an occasional unit coming out of the New York office. After considerable conferences it was decided that production activities should be carried on in New York and up until a few months ago, most of the stage bandshows came from there.

No More Chicago Units

Again after more conferences, it was then decided that the production office should be divided with the Eastern office supplying units for the Eastern territory and the Chicago office for the Southern-Middle-Western territory.

Even at this writing there is some talk going on that no more units will be produced for the road out of Chicago. According to the latest reports the Oriental Theatre, Chicago, will hereafter produce a bandshow that shall also play at the Norshore, Senate and Harding Theatres, Chicago, and by doing this they will be able to spend more money for better talent and more lavish settings.

All stageshows that will hereafter play the Chicago, Uptown and Tivoli Theatres, of Chicago, will in the future come out of the New York production office which after playing the Chicago run will immediately take to the road replacing the present units now leaving out of the Chicago production office that play about 35 weeks all told.

With the affiliation of Fanchon and Marco on the West Coast whose activities in the picture houses extend from San Diego to Vancouver and from Salt Lake City to San Francisco, a territory that covers more than 50 deluxe theatres, it is now possible for presentation acts as well as stageband units to play consecutively 60 weeks or more.

Booking Coast to Coast

The establishing of this affiliation and that of Loew's has created a coast to coast picture house circuit that has provided work for over 2,000 artists now playing in over 100 deluxe picture houses belonging to Publix, Loew and West Coast Theatre Circuits.

Publix now controls and operates more than 500 theatres all over the country of which more than 100 of them run a policy of pictures and stage presentation.

Publix Adds Three New Theatres

Two new deluxe picture houses will be added to the Publix chain this month when the new Seattle opens in Seattle, Washington, about March 5, and the New Portland in Portland, Oregon, about March 15.

Jules Buffano, formerly band leader for Balaban and Katz in their Chicago Theatre, Chicago, will open the Seattle and Jay Mills will probably be the new band leader at Portland.

Al Short, musical adviser for Publix in their Western territory, is now organizing the orchestras for these theatres and will supervise the opening.

Sometime the end of this month another house will open on the Publix Circuit in Minneapolis which will probably be called The Minnesota. All of these houses will offer stage presentation and pictures.

Harry Gourfain Keeps Busy, Producing Shows

Harry A. Gourfain, one of the most successful production managers for Balaban and Katz and Publix Western office, has just staged a band unit called "Hands Up." This unit had its premier at the Norshore Theatre, Chicago, this week, under the title of "Take It Easy."

In addition to the Gould Dancers, Jimmy Dunn, Dezzo Retter, Taps Clubo and Margaret Rickard are being featured. After playing the regular Chicago theatres, the show will go out on the road for 20 weeks.

Will J. Harris and Harry A. Gourfain are alternating stage productions at the new Regal Theatre, Chicago, a Lubliner and Trinz house. Each week a stage presentation is put on in the form of a band-show with the entire cast consisting of colored artists.

Ruth Etting Returns to Presentation

Ruth Etting, known as the "Sweetheart of Columbia Records," and one of the best liked presentation artists plays a return engagement at Balaban and Katz Chicago theatres starting next week.

Miss Etting has just completed a successful engagement in "Zeigfeld Follies" and comes direct from its New York run. She is one of the many artists who has gained entrance into the production shows through the doors of the presentation theatre.

Managers Are Wise to "Kick-Back" System to realize a certain return on their investment. When this return is not possible and the amount paid is more than that which they are able to draw for their theatre, it immediately establishes a loss for the theatre as well as for the circuit.

There have been a number of cases where certain artists were receiving $500 as a weekly salary but in reality were sold to the theatre for $750 of which $250 was kicked back to the agent or representative of the act.

Let's Clean Up the Business

This department as well as this publication is well aware of all these unethical business transactions and is quite familiar with the reliable agencies whom picture houses and exhibitors can receive the utmost co-operation with and we want to feel that if at any time there are any negotiations between you and a booking agency that does not seem legitimate or fair and square to please call on us for any advice and assistance that we are able to give in the matter.

Mark Fisher Makes His Concert Debut

Mark Fisher, who next to Paul Ash is probably the best liked and most popular band leader in Chicago, made his concert debut on Washington's birthday at the Covenant Club. This club is one of the most exclusive places in Chicago.

Fisher who is blessed with a golden voice of a tenor range has been training under the capable direction of Madame S. Lustgarten who admits that Fisher has one of the finest dramatic voices she ever heard, in presentation.

The program for the evening consisted of "Mama Mia," "The Faraway Bells" and "Il Pagliacci" sung in Italian. This is probably the first time in the history of picture house singers, that an artist has attempted such roles and succeeded with them. According to the report received from a witness of that evening, Mark Fisher's success in the concert or operatic field looks very promising.

Harding Happy Hour Club Resumed

The Harding Theatre, Chicago, a Lubliner and Trinz house has resumed its "Happy Hour Club." This entertainment is given for the benefit of the children and takes place each Saturday between the hours of 1 and 2 P. M.

Al Belasco, the featured band leader who alternates between this house and the Senate, acts as the toastmaster for the club and is assisted by Ed Meikel, the organist in the accompaniment of music.

Farley Replaces Parks at Chicago Roosevelt

Ruth Farley, formerly featured organist at the National Playhouses in Chicago, a chain of theatres operated by Cooney Brothers, has been appointed feature organist at the Roosevelt Theatre also of Chicago by Balaban and Katz.

Presentation LETTERS

In this open forum those interested in presentation may discuss important matters bearing upon this phase of theatre entertainment. Only signed letters will be published.

PRESENTATION ACTS—To the Editor: Will you be so kind as to provide me with the address of Robert A. King, author of "Beautiful Ohio." Thanks. Very truly yours.—Charles L. Drake, Araby theatre Corp., Fort Wayne, Ind.

PRESENTATION ACTS—To the Editor: I expect to be in Chicago the latter part of next week and will try to call at the office.

I am glad you are feeling better and hope you never get sick again.

The new organ that I opened recently is "going over" big.

Sincerely.—Ted Campbell, Organist, Tivoli theatre, Michigan City, Ind.

PRESENTATION ACTS—To the Editor: I am following with the utmost interest Presentations Dept. that you run with plenty of pep and journalistic ability. I am an American of French-Italian extraction with versatile experience in the field of our common interest, and I am writing sketches now for presentation purposes. I guess I have some good ideas, with original music, another of my hobbies, and I am looking for a friendly hand to get introduction with the high hats of our nice game. Suppose you hand me your hand? It would be wonderful. Hoping to hear from you at the above address, I am—Dr. Paul R. De Ville, 1029 Main Street, Room 26, Hartford, Conn.

PRESENTATION ACTS—To the Editor: Just a line or two about an item of mutual interest, namely, a community organ stunt.

Last week I used a Milton Weil stunt called "Stage-Struck." I've used stunts before that were excellent, but "Stage-Struck" simply outclassed anything I've ever had the good fortune to play in the past.

The gag slides are so clever and original that they were applauded repeatedly during the rendition of the stunt.

The featured songs, "Beautiful," "Gee, But I'm Lonesome To-night," and "Everywhere You Go," need no introduction, as each is a distinct hit, and ideal for community use. Previous to last week, I always boasted that my audience at the Buckingham could sing, but after the way they sang the "Stage-Struck" stunt, I am going to organize them and start a "roof-raiser's" union.

Milton Weil & Co., and Irwin Barg, the manager of the slide department, promise even better stunts to come.

Here's success to them.—Harold Daniels, Organist, Buckingham theatre, Chicago, Ill.

STAGE SHOWS

Chicago Chicago

Week Ending February 26

This week's stage presentation also celebrated the opening of Lou Kosloff as the new band leader here. "Russian Revels" was the title and that explains the whole thing. Briefly we give you below an idea of what the Revels were all about.

Opening: In beautiful full-stage set in flashy colors with everybody in Russian costumes as the Berkoff girls did a native routine while the Volga Four presented harmony singing all in Russian.

There is no doubt that they can harmonize but nobody knew what they were singing. It has been proven in picture houses that unless an artist uses strictly English, it is more difficult for them to go over with the audience unless the artist happens to be a name attraction and then that alone sells the routine.

This same troupe doing exactly what they do now but inserting a popular ballad in English will probably find more favor with future audiences.

They were followed by a Russian team comprised of man and woman and although they were not announced or programmed, we are under the impression that they were Stepanoff and Vodney. They did a typical folk song and native steps. The only thing we could understand of the routine was the word "Stoop Stoop." It was rather silly but we suppose that this sort of thing was necessary for the Russian atmosphere.

At the end of the routine the male member attempted to make a speech in broken English in which he announced and introduced Lou Kosloff.

Kosloff made his entrance with just a courteous bow and snapped right into a band number called "Just a Memory" played in a symphonic jazz arrangement style. We must say that we were somewhat disappointed that Kosloff was not given the opportunity to play one of his fine violin solos during this number.

A novelty dance routine was offered next when the eight Berkoff girls made their entrance from the orchestra pit as a man sang "The Russian Lullaby." The routine consisted of clever eccentric steps, rope jumping stunts and Russian steps, to the band's tune of "The Volga Boatman." The exit of this routine was the same as the entrance, with each girl disappearing one by one in the orchestra via a flight of steps.

The next band arrangement as announced by Kosloff was "Ice Creamski," which was also sung with many comedy lines by the various members of the band.

The Darling Twins were announced next in which they made their appearance in cute green taffeta dresses singing "What Do You Say," intermingled with a medley of popular songs. After this they offered their fast musical comedy dance routine to the band's tune of the "Doll Dance" and almost stopped the show.

Freda and Louis Berkoff followed next in a series of eccentric steps and Russian sensational dances that made them easily the hit of this unit. Without any doubt this couple are about the best Russian dancers we have ever seen in front of a band show. The Berkoff girls played some part in decorating some of their dance steps.

The Four Harmony Singers were back again as elaborate drapes and flashy ornaments began to form under a cleverly arranged lighting effect while the entire cast assembled around the band in native costumes while the band played an arrangement for the Finale.

Observation: Seems that Publix is falling back on the original idea of flashy units but no particular type of talent to carry through a show successfully to each audience. The idea may go over in some spots but is apt to fail in a great many more.

San Francisco Warfield Week Ending February 24

Rube Wolf took a vacation this week from the Warfield theatre and one of the saxophone players from his band filled the role of announcer. Instead of the usual specialty show, "Circus Days," a Fanchon and Marco act, was offered, and this proved one of the most elaborate and pretentious of any ever offered on this stage. There were lions, horses, dogs, acrobats, and all the circus trimmings, with the exception of the pink lemonade and the peanuts.

The band marched down the two main aisles in clown costume, playing circus music, and the circus was on. The musicians occupied the orchestra pit, as the stage was given over to the circus, with the saxophone player, clad in white trousers and red coat, and whip in hand, announcing the acts and declaring that spectators would see fierce African lions, Bengal tigers, mighty elephants and even a ground hog, the latter resembling a sausage.

The curtain went up on the interior of a big tent in which there was a large cage. Inside seven of the Fanchon and Marco beauties garbed in leopard skins went through a dance to the crack of the trainer's whip, as well as music. No sooner had they made their exit than three real lions came leaping into the cage and were made to go through their paces. Following this four clowns cavorted about, one dressed in a lion's skin.

Mr. Announcer then announced, "Gae's bouncing ballet beauties. Bring 'em on, boys, bring 'em on," and in trouped a bevy of dancing girls in costumes of brilliant colors, who offered a pretty dance.

Petite Marie was introduced as America's greatest contortionist and lived up to her reputation by tying herself into sundry and divers knots while performing on a trapeze.

The next act featured a group of lively dogs, named for movie stars, and including Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Dorothy Dalton, Theda Bara, Buster Keaton and Ben Turpin. Mary was dainty and adorable. Doug did a high dive from a ladder, Ben's eyes would not behave and Buster Keaton was mighty serious.

There was to have been an elephant act but the elephant had a flea and this had to be called off. Lillian St. Leon, famous equestrienne, did a bare-back riding act that was really fine and danced and jumped rope on the horse's back. Jerry, the only riding Alaskan Husky dog, did his stunt, and two boys from the audience gave a demonstration of how circus performers are trained.

The act included Gobel's African lions, Bernard's leaping dogs, the Maggioni Brothers, acrobats; Ettore and Umberto, clowns; Bernie Griggs, feature clown from Ringling Brothers circus; Petite Marie and Lillian St. Leon. The presentation was a costly one and quite out of the ordinary.

Atlanta Howard

Week Ending February 25

The Howard presentation this week proved a novelty success, "Flyin' High" it was.

Ray Teal and the Howard orchestra opened the program with a series of musical numbers representing Lindbergh's flight to Europe. Eight well trained chorines next performed in an aviator dance.

Joe Herbert, young singer, rendered "Cobblestones" and drew an encore which he gave as "Among My Souvenirs."

Ernee and Fisher, as two collegians, of slow motion, drew good applause. "St. Vitus" was entitled the dance, done in double slow time.

Lillian Bernard and Flo Henry, songsters, were popularly received. Jerrie, the dancing accordionist, brought a loud applause.

Band maestro Ray Teal gave a musical selection, "Make Believe You're Happy," assisted by the orchestra.

Especially colorful were the sets used for decoration and the aeroplane motif. Three machines were dropped from the loft with their paper propellers in swift turns. An unusually artistically designed back drop curtain showed "We" crossing the Atlantic, so lighted as to give a predominate contrast of hue.

The whole entertainment was interestingly offered and represented well balanced selections.

George Lee Hamrick presided at the organ.

Chicago Piccadilly

Week Ending February 25

Saturdays and Sundays this house offers stage band shows with Armin Hand directing. From the way he is received it seems they like him. This last half show ran as follows:

Opening in full stage setting as band played an arrangement of "Waiting for the Rainbow." This was followed by a pair of good dancers, Hahn and De Negri, man and girl who offered a fine Spanish routine.

The next artist was a youth named Larry, who was dressed like the theatre's usher and he was requested to come up on the stage to sing "There Must Be a Silver Lining." The kid really had a good voice and won an encore.

This was followed by a xylophone solo given by Billy Paulsen, the band's drummer. The songs played were "Morning, Noon and Night" and "Kitchen on the Keys." Some player this fellow is, and a favorite, too, with this crowd.

Hahn and De Negri came on again, this time doing a nifty adagio. They were followed by the College Four in a series of comedy songs. Not a bad combination, but nothing to write home about.

Montgomery and McDowell, two men in a fast routine of tap dancing, were next and they added the pep and punch for the next to closing spot.

A band arrangement of the "Missouri Squabble" was the finish of this show.

Philadelphia Fox

The surrounding bill at the Fox this week drew many favorable comments, with honors going to Bobby Clark and Paul McCullough, billed as America's foremost musical comedy humorists.

In honor of Washington's Birthday there was a beautiful arrangement of ferns, palms and potted plants surrounding an American flag at each side of the stage! There was a patriotic overture, Victor Herbert's "American Fantasy," with a realistically staged presentation of "The Spirit of '76," with bursting shells at the climax of the overture. The orchestra was conducted by William A. Krauth.

The bespectacled Clark and the plump, unsmiling McCullough with his fur coat, and his top hat which he converts into a drum, kept the audience in gales of laughter from start to finish. They gave an interview to a beautiful newspaper reporter which was packed full of merriment, but the gem of their repertoire was the original verses, "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue," ridiculing the workings of various American institutions. The only criticism of their act was that there were not enough encores.

The Three Meyakos presented a colorful review of Oriental dances and then surprisingly introduced a ukelele and a number of American songs, sung in perfect English. Against a background of a beautiful Japanese screen with lanterns suspended before it, two Japanese girls in crimson and white offered some unusual Oriental dances and gymnastic stunts. In the second number a smiling Jap youth strummed his ukelele and sang in true American style. He was later joined by the two girls in costumes of old gold and all three have a clever exhibition of tap dancing.

Wilson Sisters and Flo Washburn presented an act of which the less said the better. The only redeeming feature was the song sung by one of the sisters entitled "I'm Looking at the World Through Liquor Filled Glasses," with actions impersonating an inebriated flapper.

Week Ending February 25

Verne Buck the prince of pep and his orchestra presented for this week "A Day in a Chinese Laundry." The stage was arranged as a Chinese laundry with iron boards, wash tubs, etc. Verne Buck appeared on the stage with a Chinese costume and announced that they would play a popular song. The six Abbott girls went through a clever dance routine.

Buck introduced the Three Wonder Men from the Orient, who did a few juggling and acrobatic stunts of unusual interest. They ended up with some clever spins, hanging by their hair.

Dacy and McAvoy followed with "Keep Sweeping the Cobwebs Off the Moon." The two boys harmonize well together and received fair applause. McAvoy sang "Did You Mean It." For their next number they sang "I Scream, You Scream," Verne Buck's help, with the aid of the orchestra, put this song over big. The boys came out for an encore.

The orchestra next played "Together We Two"—and how. It was hard to keep your feet still. Buck also danced to this piece.

Alexander and Swanson gave a little dance routine that did not create much interest until the last. They followed with a hlack bottom, this time doing better.

Ross and Gilbert sang "St. Louis Blues." One of the boys helped a great deal in putting over the song with some clever singing. They were given a big applause. They followed with "Oh, I Adore." It was not as well done as the first.

An arrangement of a special scene. Nacy sang "I'll Be the Same" while the six Abbott girls did some of their fine dancing.

"Singapore Sorrow," played by the orchestra next, with Buck playing a tricky solo. Verne is well liked here and was given a nice hand.

Walter Vernon, announced as the best dressed man on the stage, was next. He turned out to be a silly looking fellow with the same kind of clothes. Some of his stories were rather old but, the way he put them over was worth hearing again. His impression of a five year old girl saying a piece was also received well. For his next number he did a snake dance. He came out for an encore.

The concluding number was "Shanghai Dreamland," with McAvoy singing the chorus. The six Abbotts did a novelty lantern dance, thus ending the performance. The whole show was good and the people were given quality and quantity.

San Francisco Granada

Week Ending February 24

The stage act at the Granada was the third in a series featuring well known stage stars and presented the four Marx Brothers in a lively skit, "Spanish Knights," with Margaret Dumont and a company of twenty.

Again Claude Sweeten and his orchestra were in the pit and the stage act was introduced by a contest for audience approval between the orchestra and the organ, played by Glen Goff. Both classical numbers and jazz were offered, following which the show was turned over to Marx Bros.

The curtain went up on a theatrical booking office scene in which all four came on seeking stage jobs but were turned down because their favorite acts were imitating Al Jolson.

The next scene had the setting of a Spanish patio, with a stringed orchestra of six, which was accorded an enthusiastic reception, and girls dressed in the colorful habiliments of Old Spain.

Groucho acted as master of ceremonies, Chico played the piano in a masterful manner not without its comedy side, while Harpo played the harp as only Harpo can. Zeppo was a scream in Spanish costume and displayed his skill in legerdemain by producing articles from thin air and by permitting a stream of stolen silverware to pour from his coat sleeve. The act came to a close with the singing of airs from "Carmen" to original words.

The stage act was roundly applauded, the four Marx Brothers having become very popular here through their recent appearance in "The Cocoanuts" in a legitimate theatre.

Los Angeles State

Week Ending March 2

Fanchon Marco Idea: Eddie Peabody and His Pals in this week's bandshow titled "In Holland." The show is very pleasing and was very well received.

Opening: Eddie Peabody and Gwen Evans, dressed in Dutch costumes, riding tricycles, and singing opening presentation number, going into full stage with His Pals playing special number, "Hurricane."

Hi-lee-Hi-lo Girls singing that song, and doing a very clever Dutch wooden shoe dance, followed by special number by Gwen Evans, accompanied by Eddie Peabody and one of His Pals on banjos.

Leonard St. Leo next appeared in a soft shoe acrobatic dance, which was very well received.

Girls of chorus, dressed as was Eddie Peabody in his presentation uniform, each with baton, leading the orchestra, doing a song and dance with Eddie Peabody, and going into a stunt very well received accompanying Eddie with hanjo ukuleles.

Harry Vernon, with a wonderful voice, next followed, singing, "Ray, It's Raining," his second number being an impersonation of Al Jolson in the number of "Four Walls." Very well received.

Eddie Peabody doing a request number, "Beautiful," at request of the entire audience.

Cook Sisters, Emily and Romaine, were next on the bill, in a very excellent presentation of hallet dancing, doing just the one number, and ending the show with grand ensemble of entire show in a song number.

Peabody and his banjo were well surrounded with a clever hill, and the excellent presentation rounds out an excellent stage show.

Observation: Noticed during the entire stagemat that regardless of the amount of applause accorded any particular act, that no encores were presented. The show ran off very smoothly and was 35 minutes of excellent entertainment.

Chicago Uptown

Week Ending February 26

With Frankie Masters and his band furnishing the music, the show at the Uptown is the same this week as at the Chicago last week. It is called "Highlights" and has as its feature, Rae Samuels, exponent of syncopation. This reporter happily concurs with the opinion of this department's report of the show at the Chicago last week.

Rae Samuels is ideal for motion picture theatre presentations. Her act is rollicky, good natured and clean cut, and the laughs from it are spontaneous and boisterous. Her songs are clever, sparkling, yet never smutty. She's a whirlwind of fun and rollicky good humor. It is to be hoped that B. & K. can find more acts like hers.

The first band number is a special arrangement of "Among My Souvenirs," which Masters and his hand have given before, but it is so good it can well be given again. Interpolated in the number are "Souvenir," "All Alone," and several other favorites. The number is rendered with feeling and skill and is given one of the most unique and pleasing endings heard in some time. Masters sings the song well, and after the number is over, for an encore, he and three members of the hand sing it in comedy vein.

The rest of the show is identical with last week's show at the Chicago, so there's no use repeating, except to say that "Highlights" is splendid entertainment.

next week from the Paramount, and Al will go back. We enjoyed our guest conductor.

The first number by Al and the band boys was a snappy jazz tune, with entrance of dancers in a classic scarf dance. Then Georges Dufranne of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, sang a tenor solo, "Invictus." The stage setting represented a Roman arena, and Dufranne and the members of the orchestra were all in Roman costume.

M. Senia Gluck's Roman Ballet was next, a comedy number, consisting of ballet dancing by men in white ballet costume. After they came back for a couple of encores, Al and the boys played Irving Berlin's latest hit, "Sunshine," with vocal refrain by Al himself.

Rita and Teske were next in a slave dance of old Rome that was a good exhibition of classic dancing.

The Lassiter Brothers, representing two sailors from the Roman navy, put across a good group of tap steps for several encores. Their comedy asides were particularly good.

For the finale a chariot race with real ponies was staged. Of course they ran on a regular stage platform, but the effect was just as thrilling. The costumes for this act were pretty, too.

Film: "The Secret Hour," with Pola Negri.

Chicago Terminal

Week Ending February 26

This house has a presentation policy every Friday. The seven piece pit orchestra is used on the stage as the stage band and Billy Claire serves this week as master of ceremonies.

The show opens with a short band number and Claire comes out to sing, "All Men Are Devils."

He then announced Mazie White who does a whistling number and then goes into a contortionist act. She does all sorts of contortions with a glass of water resting on her forehead throughout all the twistings. The girl has good ability and gets a fine hand.

The Wolf Brothers follow with a saxophone number, "Brown Eyes," which has nothing in particular to recommend it and then they do a number of soft shoe and tap dances, solo and together. They and their applause are just fair.

Claire next comes out to give a short monologue about the Dempsey-Tunney fight, for no reason at all, but he gets a good hand just the same. A trio of dancers follow with some novelty dance numbers. Their Indian number is best. One of the trio, a boy dressed like Buster West does a tap dance.

A young lady follows by singing, "What'll You Do," and next an imitation of Fannie Brice singing "My Man." Well, it's like most imitations.

Weldon Betts and company are next, the company being one other person. They render a number of selections on xylophones, and the act is the best on the program. Their imitation of a steam calliope is good. The act gets a good applause.

There follow two men doing a burlesque classic dance of some humor and talent and two women playing banjos with quite a little ability. Two members of the dance trio follow with an Apache dance that is rough enough to get a good applause.

The master of ceremonies follows with a bit of foolishness and a little harmonica playing one number of which is "St. Louis Blues," during which he does some good splits. He succeeds in getting a good laugh out of this. For the finale each act appears to do a bit from their act.

It is unfair to judge the presentations at this house by loop standards. The house cannot afford to put on stage shows of the large house type. The acts although not approaching deluxe house standards are probably very good for the money available for the presentation.

L. Carlos Meier is the featured organist here but did not present a solo at the time this show was reported.

St. Louis Ambassador

Week Ending February 24

Ed Lowry on the stage presented an entirely new production which he called "Treasure Ship." As may be surmised Treasure Ship had a piratical complex and the scenes were laid on the main deck of a Spanish galleon which Lowry and his band of pirates had just captured. But instead of being forced to walk the deck as was the fashion in vogue during the Sixteenth century the captives were compelled to put on a musical show while the pirates furnished the music.

Val and Ernie Stanton and their amusingly idiotic skit, "Won't You Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake?" were headliners of the week.

Charles Bennington and his sixteen harmonica synopators were also included on the musical bill of fare.

In addition there were Carlo and Norma, whirlwind steppers, and Mary Fabian, singer. Lowry, personally, sang his latest hit, "I'm Waiting for Ships That Never Come In."

Dave Silverman and his pit orchestra had a Washington Birthday Overture. It was entitled, "The Evolution of Yankee Doodle."

Salt Lake City Capitol

Week Ending February 25

The Capitol theatre of this city offers a most unique stage presentation in the form of Fanchon and Marco's "Back Stage Idea" this week, which was the only "short run" week ever held at the Capitol and which was due to the fact that the opening date for these presentations change this week from Thursday to Tuesday.

The "Back Stage Idea" takes the audience from in front of the footlights to a preliminary rehearsal for a musical revue.

The stage is first shown without the drapes and scenery to which the audiences are accustomed, and the orchestra, chorus girls, and performers are all shown rehearsing their various parts for the show which is to come.

As a finale the dress rehearsal of the production is presented, and thus the layman is allowed a chance to see just what work goes into producing a Fanchon and Marco "Idea."

The costumes are very attractive and this bill is exceptionally interesting. The feature picture shown in this connection was "Doomsday."

Week Ending February 24

Loew's Annual Revue constituted the stage program at Loew's Midland theatre this week, featuring Roy Cropper who was starred in the stage production, "The Student Prince." He sang, "The Song Is Ended" and "Among My Souvenirs," looking as handsome as ever. Sylvia and Clemence, a pair of energetic girls, do a clog dance to the "Poet and Peasant" overture, which proved no mean feat.

The Lime Brothers presented a very loose-jointed "Gollywog," who turned out, finally, to be another Lime. The Three Kemmys from England had a remarkable acrobatic and posing act. The Runaway Four, formerly of The Music Box Revue, pleased with their eccentric dances.

Jack Sidney, master of ceremonies, was heard in vocal numbers, while Arthur Hays rendered an organ solo, illustrated by slides. The Midland Concert Orchestra, under Director Corbonara, played a medley selection as the overture.

Pittsburgh Penn

Week Ending February 25

The overture Don Albert and the pit orchestra played this week is "Capprioccio Italien" and was finely rendered. Following the ncws came Dick Leibert organogue, this time it being "Palm Beach Nights," with both Dick and the organ in white. Formerly the organ was in gold.

The stage unit, "Jazz a la Carte," had some fine talent nicely blended, presenting a pleasing unit. The band opened with selections from "The Student Prince" with six singers doing the "Drinking Song" and others in back of the band.

Al and Ray Samuels, tap dancers with an unusual technique, followed with two routines. Then a so-

The Happy Go Lucky Boys, three singers of popular numbers, went over also. Charles Rozella was a comedy hit with his funny manipulations of trick instruments, but the biggest hit went to Paul Howard with his wonderful contortion work and his easy way of working.

The closing of the act was a sort of "Opera vs. Jazz" battle, six singing jazz and five opera, with both at the finale, making a great finish. Feature picture was "The Enemy."

Indianapolis Indiana

Week Ending February 24

An unusually good stagershow was offered this week, a fast-moving presentation devised by John Murray Anderson and entitled "Blue Plate."

The conception of old Dutch blue plate is carried through in every number, coming to an elaborate finale in which the Foster Girls perform an aerial ballet on wings of a large windmill.

Lorraine Tumber, the attractive prima donna, sings all the leading melodies. Gordon and King have some original and intricate dance steps.

Tom Long and Sally Small provide no little amusement with Indian clubs and dances, and Myers and Hanford, another pair of comedians, play some extraordinary tunes on a hand-saw. Koehler and Edith perform unusual feats on roller skates.

St. Louis Missouri

Week Ending February 24

"As You Like It" was the title of Brooke Johns' stage show for the week. It was a conglomeration of the best hits of his long stay at the Grand boulevard picture palace plus five other acts that did furnish good entertainment.

Cosci and Verdi, musical comedians, were very prominent in the show, as were the Lucille Sisters, doing a Topsy and Eva act. Babe Carter, a fast tap dancer, went across big. Anna Beckman, ballad singer, got a nice hand, but apparently John Payne, the bucolic Marylander who came to St. Louis to show us how the St. Louis Blues should be played, was the big hit of the week. He stopped the show many times during the run. By way of variety he played two pianos at the same time.

Washington's birthday provided the theme for Leonid Leonard's overture. It was entitled "A Tribute to Washington." As usual Milton Slosser was at the organ.

Johns in the stage show sang an old one that won much applause, "Swanee River Blues."

Omaha Riviera

Week Ending February 23

"Steppin' High" was Paul Spor's stagershow at the Riviera, featured by the fact that there was no chorus. Possibly the headliners were the four Carrs, parents, and son and daughter, dancers. The elder

Carrs demonstrated steps of two decades ago, while the second generation demonstrated the modern steps. Although this is heralded as a jazz age, the audiences accorded the dances of old equal, if not greater applause than those of today.

Two Vitaphone songsters, Hinds and Leonard, provided vocal music. The two girls were well received. Lew Fink as a comic dancer contributed largely to the show while the Kikutas Japs did almost unbelievable things in tumbling and other acrobatics.

Paul himself contributed a drum solo which demonstrated his ability along that line. The pit orchestra under Frederick Schmitt played "Zampa." The feature film was Emil Jannings in "The Last Command."

Chicago Oriental

Week Ending February 26

It was "Circus Days" at the Oriental this week, and the show was well done throughout. No one seemed sorry that he had paid honest cash at the wicket.

The entrance of the orchestra, Paul Ash and his gang dressed in the red and white of the circus band uniform, was from the front of the house, and this introductory brought a great hand.

Once on the stage the front curtain arose, and the a drop, in front of which were four cut-out elephants on which eight dancing girls performed while the members of the orchestra found resting places at each side of the stage.

With this specialty over the drop raised and the orchestra established itself on the interior of a big top set. Colman Getz took the stage with song and chatter. Getz is not on a par with the entertainment generally accorded the public at the Oriental. He vocalized with "Tiger Rag."

Gay Nell did a good job with her dancing. A very clever girl who brought an excellent hand.

The man who next vocalized started slowly, but he did, "Who Is Who and Which is Which" in great fashion, and the audience accorded him the applause he deserved.

Julia Garity, "the Midget," as Ash introduced her (and she weighs—well, you ask her) came on and it was lucky that the payees let her go. Before her fadeout she had warbled "Dream Kisses," "I Don't Love Nobody," "Salty Tears," "Weeping Willow," "My Ohio Home" and maybe another one or two. She was lucky then to bow out.

Deszo Retter, the comic dancer, did great by his public. His trick dancing, including his phantom wrestling match, are worth the price of admission.

Getz on again with "Four Walls" and "Souvenirs." The finale brought the dancing girls out in some calisthenics on ropes from the flies. It was a good show throughout, and don't let any one tell you differently.

Philadelphia Stanley

Week Ending February 25

The overture "Mississippi," by Ferdie Grofe, was an artistic interpretation of the course of the Mississippi river from its source to its mouth. It was played in four parts.

Introduction: "Father of Waters."

Scherzo: "Huckleberry Finn."

Andante: "Huckleberry Finn."

Finale: "Mardi Gras."

Gabriel Hines, conductor of the orchestra acted as master of ceremonies, and also introduced the Tivoli Girls.

The Tivoli Girls, as usual, drew rounds of applause and their dances were entirely too short to satisfy the audience. The background was a vermilion curtain hanging in straight folds across the entire stage. The girls attired in black dress suits with all the accessories, high hats, canes, white gloves and monocles stepped briskly on to the stage with that self satisfied, expectant, sheikish air. The combination of black and red was stunning and the girls made every move in perfect unison.

Bert Tucker, Sophie's son, gave his reasons in rhyme for following his mother around. He illustrated the Sugar Foot Strut and was generally enjoyed both on his own and his mother's account. Sophie was greeted with applause and frequently interrupted with applause. Her act was called "Hello! Sophie" and the group of songs which she sang included "I'm Not Taking Orders From No One," "Nobody Loves a Fat Girl," "I Still Love You," "Some of These Days," "Positively, Absolutely." Her "Bye, Bye, Greenberg," in Yiddish was a howling success, both figuratively and literally. She takes the audience into her confidence, pokes fun at herself and everybody else and seemed to be genuinely happy to get back to Philadelphia. Some of her jokes were not exactly refined but she has a way of telling them that makes everybody shout for more. As an encore she and Bert sang together "Sing Me a Little Baby Song." At the request of Gabriel Hines, she conducted the orchestra but had difficulty in remaining quiet for so long. When she finally tore herself away she was almost smothered with roses which had been presented to her.

Chicago Granada

Week Ending February 26

In reporting the Granada show, "Cabaret Follies," this week, there is little use to dwell upon anything or anyone but the colorfulness of the show itself and the comedy of James Barton, one of the cleverest comedians walking the boards today.

It seemed to be a favorite expression to advertise Barton as being a headliner with Ziegfeld for three or four successive seasons. Even if he had never been with Ziegfeld, this reporter contends that his comic still would be great.

The balance of the show, with the exception of the dancing girls, the Benny Meroff music and, as said before, the colorful setting, was negligible. It would have been almost a perfect show had the Mortons and two male singers, names unknown, been eliminated. It would have trimmed the show to logical length, leaving only the cream.

Barton has an act all his own. Even in his heyday, Leon Errol could not boast an act superior to the entertainment of Barton.

Our only suggestion to Barton would be that he realize that in playing the motion picture theatres he is amusing a larger audience than is possible in the intimate type of houses to which he is accustomed. Therefore, it requires a little louder speech.

Barton's "drunk," his dancing and his songs are prize packages. He knows how to time his stunts, and as a result he is never tiring. This reporter lost count on the number of encores. You might have thought that he was a neighborhood boy who had made good.

Barton is at the Marbro this week, and undoubtedly going over just as big.

Well, well, well, my partner Sam Coslow is going out on the road this week to do some work. . . . Organists, beware! he writes some mean slide versions. . . . Leaving New York City Thursday, February 23, he will pass through the following cities, so watch out: Baltimore, Washington, Columbus, Dayton, Indianapolis, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Des Moines, Omaha, Council Bluffs, Lincoln, St. Joseph, Kansas City, St. Louis, Louisville and Cincinnati.

Ernie Golden, for four years orchestra leader at the McAlpin Hotel here in New York City, has abandoned the hotel and today is one of the proud owners of the Knickerbocker Grill. . . . Besides having his band there, his interest in the cafe is quite substantial, and from early indications, Golden's big following has not deserted him.

Jan Garber, for years a stand-by of the Victor Talking Machine Company, is now connected with the Columbia, and to prove it, he was here in town last week and made eight tunes for them in his first recording dates. . . . Garber is still in vaudeville and next week finds him in Toronto and Montreal. . . . A worthy addition to Garber's orchestra is Humphry Muldowney, whose vocalizing is one of the big features.

Well, I know of one organist who should be mighty happy . . . that's Lester Huff, who goes back to his happy hunting grounds, Indianapolis. . . . He opens the new Loew theatre in that city, as premier organist. . . . Indianapolisites will be mighty glad to hear about this.

I could hardly believe my ears the other night, when I dropped into the Capitol theatre to catch Henry Murtagh at the organ. . . . THE AUDIENCE WAS SINGING along with him. . . . You out-of-towners don't realize what this actually means. . . . It hardly seems possible that a New York theatre audience would even as much hum, no less sing. . . . Well, more power to Murtagh, 'cause if he can keep them singing in this burg it will be a blessing to the music business.

And speaking about organists, I've recently heard a few big theatre managers here in New York speak of bringing Milton Slosser from St. Louis to their theatres. In fact you hear Slosser's name mentioned quite often up this way, and from all evidence, he must be making a name for himself which reaches all the way from St. Louis to New York.

To show that the music publishers today are willing to pay real good money for worthy talent, Irving Berlin, Inc., have taken on Jack Parker, recording artist and radio favorite, to sing with the various orchestras around town when they are broadcasting. Parker has an exceptionally fine voice, and should be a big favorite with the bandmen. . . . Another newcomer to these parts is Jack Irving, who has scored a big hit in the show at the Monterey Club, and will no doubt hook up with some big publisher soon as a representative.

Lew White, featured organist at the Roxy theatre, has undertaken to establish a school for organists at Broadway and 53rd Street. . . . I wandered in there the other day and was amazed at the sight that greeted my eyes. . . . What was once nothing else but an empty loft has been transformed into a Moorish castle. . . . Three mighty Kimball organs in three sound-proof rooms, with tapestry and drapes and furnishings of rare charm and distinction have really made this school a show place in the eyes of New York. . . . Four premier organists from Broadway theatres are employed as assistants to White, and membership and enrollment applications are pouring in from all parts of the country.

Well, next week I'll take a good long walk up the alley and let you know what's happening. In the meantime, Ta, Ta—

ORGAN SOLOS

Milton Charles (Chicago Chicago) offered only two songs this week in his solo, but used a medley of several others. The opening one was "Let a Smile Be Your Umbrella," first played in ballad manner and then syncopated in the typical Charles style. The next thing on the program was a novelty film cartoon called "Old Black Joe," in which the characters represented a brass band entering a theatre to render the old song. The lyrics were flashed, to which with the aid of a bouncing ball pointing at each word, the organ played the accompaniment in perfect time. The comedy situation throughout this film was very novel and due to Charles' clever manipulation of his instrument in a modern rendition of "Old Black Joe," the stunt went over very big.

Bob Billings (Chicago Crystal) used a solo called "A Song Convention" which used gag slides on Hoover, Mellon, Coolidge, King George and Bill Thompson. It was a community stunt that featured "My Ohio Home," "Let's Kiss and Make Up," "Baby Your Mother," "What'll You Do," "A Shady Tree," and "My Blue Heaven." "Blue Heaven" was drafted and unanimously elected.

Clark Fiers (Scranton West Side) used for last week Cliff Hess' special version of "Keep Sweeping the Cobwebs Off of the Moon," that served to introduce the old favorite "Smiles" and the latest "I Told Them All About You." The stunt was all in the form of community singing and as usual was well-liked.

Ken Widenor (Chicago Piccadilly). His solo consisted of all classical pieces. The offering was well done and well received. He started off with classical pieces and did not stop till his complete act was finished. The pieces he chose for his act were very hard and tricky, but were played with very much ease.

Eddie Meikel (Chicago Harding) played for his organ club a large group of songs, many of them old but yet always popular. He had a very clever stunt this week which could be classed under institutional advertising. By means of the slides he introduced every man and woman in the employ of the theatre, the slides carrying their pictures, their occupation and a clever little verse about them. It went over fine. Some of the songs he played were "Thinking of You," "Let's Kiss and Make Up," "Among My Souvenirs," and "Sundown." It was a very clever presentation.

Harold Daniels (Chicago Buckingham) reports that his solo last week was called "Stage Struck" and states it was the greatest novelty he ever played. The stunt consisted of the following songs: "Beautiful," "Gee, But I'm Lonesome Tonight," and "Everywhere You Go," to which the audience sang wholeheartedly.

Paul Esterely (Chicago Diversey). Used for Valentine week, a solo called "Vim, Vigor and Valentines." An arrangement of special slides was used. His first number was "Beautiful." No singing was heard and he followed with "After I've Called You Sweetheart." His next piece was a Valentine song played to the tune of "Highways Are Happyways." His next piece was very pretty, called "Gee But I'm Lonesome Tonight." The concluding number was entitled "Everywhere You Go." The slides did not work in time and it annoyed.

Henri A. Keates (Chicago Oriental) gave further evidence this week that the patrons of the Oriental want him. His "Ain't Love Grand" did the work this week. Such songs as "She's Beautiful," "Gee, But I'm Lonesome Tonight" and "Everywhere We Go," gave the songsters in the audience a lot of fun. Keates has them trained as no one else has.

Edward K. House (Chicago Granada) offered his audiences the week ending February 26, "The Legend of the Everglades," with the new song, "Chlo-E" as the theme. It was a very acceptable solo, "Chlo-E" being a beautiful theme. His introduction lacked the harmony so necessary in the theatre today, but once he was into the theme song, it proved very inviting.

Clark Fiers (Scranton West Side) used for his organ selection last week, a stunt called "A Musical Conflict" which is really a community stunt that featured Irving Berlin's latest numbers "The Song Is Ended" and "Together We Two." The audience were asked to show their preference but the response seemed to be equal for these numbers.

GOOD NEWS—(DeSylva, Brown & Henderson)—From "Good News." This show is full of hit tunes. After seeing the opening we feel sure it will be with us for a long while. This tuneful number is one of the many reasons for the success of the show. Words and music by B. G. DeSylva, Lew Brown and Ray Henderson.

PERSIAN RUG—(Villa Moret, Inc.)—An Oriental song that is beginning to take hold like a big number. A perfect lyric by the famous Gus Kahn and the melody by Neil Moret who will be best remembered by his "Moonlight and Roses."

I'M WAITING FOR SHIPS THAT NEVER COME IN—(Forster Music Pub. Co.)—This song copyrighted in 1919 is being revived by the publisher. The lyric is one of the greatest we have heard in a long while. This song should easily become a standard. Words by Jack Yellen, music by A. Olman.

TELL ME AGAIN (That You Love Me)—(Cal De Voll)—Frank Magine, who hasn't given us a song in quite a while has written an excellent tune that will be played extensively by the orchestras. The lyric tells a pretty story. Words by Ed Rose.

LET A SMILE BE YOUR UMBRELLA (On a Rainy Day)—(Henry Waterson)—The first of the year everybody published an optimistic song. This one, however, stepped away from the entire field and is the one outstanding song of that type. Words by Irving Kahal and Francis Wheeler, music by Sammy Fain.

WHEN YOU PLAYED THE ORGAN (And I Sang the Rosary)—(Leo Feist, Inc.)—A beautiful thought in song. Will no doubt be played by every organist in the country. The lyric writer has just recently given us that sensational smash, "Among My Souvenirs." Music by George Gilbert, words by Edgar Leslie.

WOB-A-LY WALK—(Shapiro Bernstein & Co.)—A new dance rhythm that is being featured by Waring's Pennsylvanians, those well known record artists. These versatile entertainers have started many a song in the past and should repeat with this one. Words by Bud Green, music by Harry Warren.

OH, DEM GOLDEN SLIPPERS—(Spier & Coslow, Inc.)—This writer will be remembered by his well known "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny." This is an old spiritual that has been revived and is already being sung extensively. By Jas. A. Bland.

STARLIGHT AND TULIPS—(Sam Fox Pub. Co.)—Jessie Crawford, the well known organist, has already started this song in the east. A beautiful tune that should be heard all over the country with this firm's exploitation. Words by Alfred Bryan, music by Pete Wendling.

I'M IN LOVE WITH YOU (You're in Love With Me)—(Harms, Inc.)—That makes it unanimous. The writers have just given us "Did You Mean It." They are stars of "Night in Spain" and should have no trouble starting this song through their own show. By J. Russell Robinson, Phil Baker and Sid Silvers.

YOU'RE THE FIRST THING I THINK OF IN THE MORNING (And the Last Thing I Think of at Night)—(Broadway Music Co.)—A great idea for those with lots of money but when one is in love why think of money. Well written as a fox trot. Words by Billy Tracy, music by Jack Stanley.

P. S. I enjoyed the Milton Weil banquet very much (All dressed up). Did you hear the master of ceremonies? If not it was your own fault.

Publishing the Theatre House Organ

By Joe Mayer

Editor, Palace Review, Palace Theatre, Hamilton, Ohio.

EDITING a house organ is a labor of love. Unless you are 100 per cent enthusiastic about the job, don't start it, for there is nothing that is quite as uninteresting as a house organ that is simply thrown together. You might be able to get away with clipping press book ads for your daily papers—for the boys down East are turning out some pretty good newspaper copy these days—but don't think for a minute that you can put a house organ together like you write a newspaper advertisement with shears and paste pot. As Mr. Hoyle might have remarked, "It isn't in the cards."

THE surest way to make a house organ uninteresting is to print nothing except news about pictures and stars. The best way to make it so interesting that people will wait for it every month with impatience—just like thousands of exhibitors each week wait for the appearance of EXHIBITORS HERALD AND MOVING PICTURE WORLD—is to get as much local news and breezy chatter as you can.

While I make it a point to have The Palace Review in the hands of readers not later than the last day of the month previous to the date of the issue, it happens once in a while that the post-office slips up, and the magazine is a day late reaching subscribers. This happened twice in two years, and on these occasions we received at least a dozen phone calls asking why the paper had not been delivered.

Get Local Writers on Staff

If I were going to start a new house organ in some other town, the first thing I would do would be to get two or three well known local writers on my staff. For the men I would endeavor to get one of the sporting editors. That our sport column is read is proven by the fact that a deluge of letters will follow if our sport writer steps on someone's toes. This happens once in a while.

We have added a new department, called, "Mom's Vox," with apologies to Liberty's "Vox Pop," in which readers can blow off steam, and we are encouraging them to contribute. For the ladies, I would have some well known local writer such as our own Stella Weiler Taylor. Mrs. Taylor's column has been one of the features of the Palace house organ for years, and it is one of the best, if not the best, in the magazine.

"Milady's Forum," a department for the exchange of ideas on fashions, household hints, and cooking recipes, is a very popular department. We receive on an average of 50 letters each month offering suggestions and competing for prizes offered for the best recipes.

A contest department is also a valuable adjunct; in fact, I would say it is almost indispensable. It is a strange, though absolutely true, psychological fact that men and women will work harder for a pass to a theatre than they would for a big cash prize. And the surprising part of it is that a big percentage of these people are men and women who can well afford to pay their admission to a theatre every night in the week.

Let me illustrate this: When I was writing the contest page for our Christmas edition I mentioned to one of the proprietors of the Palace, Harry Silver, that I was not satisfied with the number of replies received in answer to our November contest. (We had received only about 50 letters.)

"Make your contests easier next month," said Harry.

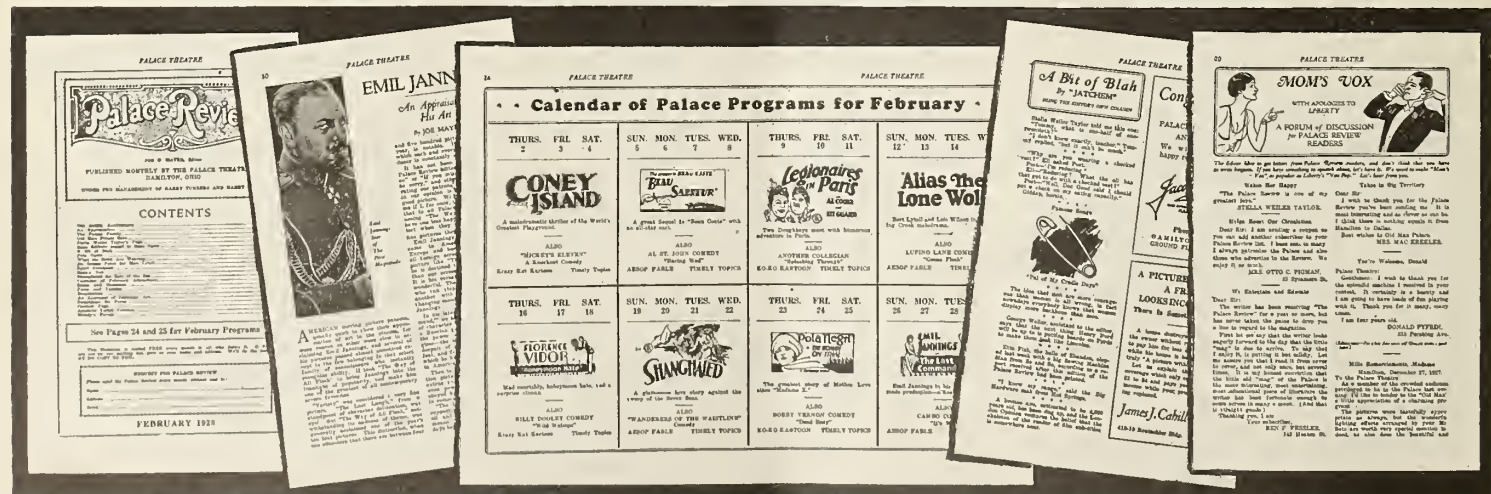

"Yes, and you will have your theatre filled with passes for a month," I replied.

"Damn the passes," he answered. "Let's see how many people really read the Contest page."

Receives 389 Correct Answers

I composed a charade and made it very simple of solution. Two tickets were offered for each correct answer, and the result was 389 correct answers were received, calling for 678 passes. It cost the theatre money, if you want to figure it that way, but it gave us a lot of prestige with advertisers, as we were in a position to convince the few skeptical ones that the magazine is read. Among those sending in replies to the charade were some Rough suggestion for changes in the ad of the Meserole theatre, Brooklyn, offered by "The Theatre." We believe this ad-size gives better display value to each program, and makes it easier for reader to connect programs with dates to be played. This is, in no way, meant to be a finished ad, and is merely a suggestion for changes. Read the comment on this ad on this page.

"The Theatre's" Advertising, Consultation Service

In response to a recent announcement in this department that "The Theatre" would be glad to offer suggestions upon theatre advertising, Sidney Larschan, manager of the Meserole theatre, Brooklyn, N. Y., has sent in several of his newspaper ads with the following letter:

Editor, "THE THEATRE,"
Dear Sir:

Here is a copy of our ad, clipped from the local weekly. In as much as we have but a weekly paper, we find it necessary to arrange our ad so that it serves the purpose of a bulletin.

This paper is published every Friday. The advertising rate—four cents a line—is very low.

Please be good enough to look over this ad and offer suggestions which you think will enable us to utilize our space to better advantage.

Yours very truly,
SIDNEY LARSCHAN.

We have reproduced the two-column ad of the Meserole, herewith, together with an effort on our part to show how we believe the ad might be improved in makeup. No effort was made to make a complete ad, the attempt being made merely to give an idea of how the ad may be changed.

In advertising in weekly papers, the chief problem is to announce the programs, together with the dates that they are to be played. We believe that by running the announcement of each program side by side, rather than vertically, a better display can be attained, at the same time making it easier to connect programs and dates in the minds of the reader.

The long, vertical ad is very often very effective, but we believe in this case the more nearly square ad is preferable. The case of a Chicago magazine might be mentioned here. This magazine used for a number of weeks one-column, full length ads in a Chicago newspaper. The returns from these ads were disappointing, so the ad size was changed to a three-column ad of one-third the height. The increase in returns was spontaneous and extremely gratifying.

In the ad used by Larschan, two-column mats furnished by the producers have been used. To change the ad size, as we have suggested, it would be necessary to use one-column mats, or original drawings.

Wedding on Stage

A public wedding was held on the stage of the Rivoli theatre, William R. McKenna, manager, when Miss Alice Simpson and Edwin Rodgers, both of Berkeley, exchanged vows. The event was arranged by Manager McKenna, together with Berkeley merchants.

Scanlon, M. B. I. No. 8, Uses Poems in Ads, Increases Theatre Patronage

A problem ever confronting the exhibitor, especially the small town exhibitor, is that of increasing the radius of his theatre patronage. The average city or town has as large or larger trading community outside the city limits than inside, and every exhibitor has the problem of making these rural people regular patrons of his theatre. John J. Scanlon, manager of the Palace theatre, Torrington, Connecticut, has been successful in solving this problem and also adding special interest to his newspaper ads in addition. Scanlon, who becomes M. B. I. number 8 this week, tells how he did it in his "My Best Idea," below.

"My Best Idea," No. 8

By John J. Scanlon

I have been following with interest your M.B.I. Club each week, and I note that some of the ideas printed are campaigns that require a lot of space to explain. However, I send mine in with short use of words and let the idea as it appears do its own explaining, with the exception of the results that were obtained from it.

I do not claim that this will pack 'em in on any attraction in particular, as it is a stunt that must run daily in the theatre news ad at the cost of an inch or two of space, and two complimentary tickets for each jingle used. I do not claim originality either, but here is how the stunt came about: A dentist in town is quite a poet, and when this house was remodeled and put in good shape he sent in a poem to me which sold me the idea of a contest; it was first called an advertising contest, and the paper carried his poem about the theatre as an example, so everyone sending in an idea sent in a jingle.

Now this house never had much of an outside trade, but with the advent of the Jingles people from farms and the small outlying towns began sending in jingles, and the result was that very much more attention was paid to our news ad than ever before by the outsiders. The idea here was to use as many of these from the outsiders as possible. Today we receive jingles from people who live as far as 40 miles away. And when we stand and watch our patrons today we can see a good number of outsiders present. If this little stunt is passed on I know it will be the means of calling the attention to theatre news ads.

How About It, Joe? It Looks as Though John Has the Goods

In the February 18 issue of EXHIBITORS HERALD and MOVING PICTURE WORLD, Joe Mayer, in his "My Best Idea," claims to have been the originator of the "This Is No Bull" advertising stunt, but this week "The Theatre" receives a letter from John W. Trehwela of the Fox Film Corporation, Kansas City, who claims knowledge of an earlier use. Here is Trehwela's letter:

Editor, "THE THEATRE."

Dear Sir:

On page 46 of your issue of February 18, credit is given a Mr. Joe Mayer for "originating" the "No Bull" advertising stunt, and if that gentleman cannot go back farther than 1919, I must take issue with him.

In August, 1915, Missoula, Montana, sent her crack minstrel performers to Lewistown, Montana, where the show was given the State prize during the State convention of Elks (the writer was, for years, publicity promoter for this organization—Missoula's annual minstrel show).

While in Lewistown, six of the members of the B. P. O. E. of Missoula rented a cow from a dairy, and on either side of the cow on banners was the inscription: "This is no bull; Lewistown has certainly shown Missoula a big time!"

The cow was paraded up and down the main street and occasionally was

of our biggest merchants and best known professional men and women in town.

Getting material for stories on moving picture stars and pictures is the easiest part of the job. I take stories from the press sheets and other literature sent out by the film companies, but rewrite practically everything that goes into the magazine. Biographical data can be secured from the publicity departments of the various film companies. Russell Holman, advertising manager of Famous-Lasky, Paul Gulick of Universal, Vic Shapiro of United Artists, or Gordon White of Educational will send me anything I want in the way of special stories. No doubt the others would do the same, but these are the companies with which we are dealing.

About 80 per cent of the advertising we carry is on contract for nine months. We suspend publication during June, July and August. We accept advertising only from concerns located in Hamilton. Our advertising rates are based on circulation and the cost of getting out the magazine. We print 5,000 copies each month, and of these nearly 4,000 are sent direct to the homes under one cent postage for regular editions, and two cents on special issues. The others are distributed at the theatre. We have two special editions every year—the Christmas and Anniversary numbers.

House Organ Best B. O. Medium

The Palace Review makes only a very nominal profit, but it is not the purpose of the magazine to make a profit on our advertising. It is our belief that no other medium of advertising pays better in returns at the box office than our little house organ, and the fact that each month we receive on an average of 50 requests for the magazine from new subscribers is proof convincing that it is desired.

Keeping our mailing list up to date is not a hard problem, as we guarantee return postage in case it is not delivered. Every month we have a few changes of addresses, and of course must have new addressograph plates made for these, but this expense is not great.

A final word about local interest. We are continually urging our patrons to patronize local merchants, and we point with pride to the fact that the Palace Review is 99 per cent local. The one per cent that keeps us from being purer than a well-known brand of soap is our cover cuts. We have no engraving plant in Hamilton, therefore must have our cover page plates made in Cincinnati or Chicago. Our covers are, however, designed by local artists.

Very truly yours,
JOHN W. TREWHELA.

How about it men; does the credit go to Missoula Elks, or do you know of an earlier use of this old stunt? Let's settle this thing, once for all. If you used it before August, 1915, or know of an earlier use, let's hear from you!

SERVICE TALKS

Incorporated in this department of Exhibitors Herald, which is a department containing news, information and gossip on current productions, is the Moving Picture World department, "Through the Box Office Window."

"THE CIRCUS"

WHAT a lot of blah is written about this fellow Chaplin. What a lot of bunk and hokum is spun about him and his pictures. I had read—breaking a good old rule to do so—a dozen or more reviews of "The Circus." The dozen or so of them were reviews, rather, of Charles Chaplin, or rather of a considerably mythological person created to be called by that name. I find, upon personal inspection, that Mr. Chaplin is, as I more than half suspected, the same good comedian he always was and "The Circus" is the good comedy that was to be expected of him. My only surprise is that "The Circus" should be so much better than any of its earlier observers said it was. As a matter of fact, it's great, by any and all standards.

I think there are pretty good reasons for saying that "The Circus" is a much greater picture, even, than it seemed to me to be. To explain—Mr. Chaplin's audiences, myself included, were more or less antagonized by the long wait for the picture. His audiences, myself again included, would have liked to find the picture a flop. They would rather have said—and I am still included—"the old master has slipped, as I thought he would." Coming, then, to this type of audience, "The Circus" had to be much better than good to be pronounced acceptable, it had to be great to be pronounced good, and it must be marvelous to incite me to such an expenditure of paragraphs as the present. It is, of course, a marvelous production.

To the Chaplin talent be it credited that the comedian has no more than appeared in the picture than his long absence is forgotten. To the same talent be it credited that his gags are as surefire as they always were, though in actual substance no more unique than the gags appearing in contemporary works. And to this same talent be it credited that the mechanical flaws, without which no Chaplin picture—nor no other long comedy—is complete, are as unimportant as they are conducive to entertainment, which is an awkward way of recording an awkward fact.

What I'm trying to say is that Mr. Chaplin's long absence from the screen, his prominence in the headlines during a portion of that absence and his frequently ill-advised utterances on various subjects roll like water from a duck's back when the Chaplin figure appears and the Chaplin talent goes into action.

By T. O. SERVICE

Before leaving the picture, I must add a purely personal paragraph to the effect that the sequence wherein Mr. Chaplin tries to be funny in rehearsal for the circus manager, and wherein the Chaplin makeup and antics that have made him Chaplin fail utterly to click for the boss, is my idea of a comic gem. Curiously, none of the early reporters on the picture seem to have esteemed this bit as worthy of mention. I think it is the best thing in the picture, the nearest approach to perfect comedy. Perhaps its perfection is the explanation of the general oversight.

"THE STUDENT PRINCE"

"THE Student Prince" is one of three stage-plays I have seen in the past three years. (I believe I have stated, previously, my belief that one who lives by his comments on motion pictures should not endanger his livelihood by learning to know stage plays well.) I feel, therefore, that my comments on it may be more or less cock-eyed. If so, however, they are prejudiced on the positive side, for the picture is a fine piece of work, in my estimation, and I did not expect that it would seem so.

I really didn't want to see "The Student Prince" I have had a heartache about this "Old Heidelberg" thing ever since I made its acquaintance in a now quite distant boyhood, when I raised what I considered a pretty good baritone in the chorus of the excellent barber-shop harmonies of the original ditty. The yarn has always bothered me, the futility of its telling, or something, standing between the story and my appreciation of it. I didn't want to see the stage-play, either, and so of course my intense liking for both the stage and film versions (which are identical) may be wholly understandable.

I pass, therefore, the story elements involved. To me it is a very sad narrative, its sadness entrenched by a personal retrospect, but it is also a very beautiful one. As it is told, with Ramon Novarro the incredibly youthful prince and Norma Shearer the incredibly ill-cast Kathie, it is a splendid film. Much of this splendor, this easy flow of narrative and polished delivery of detail, I attribute to the sure hand of Ernst Lubitsch. Herr Lubitsch makes the most of his moments, a minor item of action is gracefully amplified to a significance at once exaggerated and charming. The plain plot of "The Student Prince" is about enough for one reel; it is made plenty for seven or eight in the manner of its handling.

McVickers, long a favorite playhouse, departed from custom to the extent of employing a small chorus to sing the songs of "The Student Prince" and then had the good taste to keep them out of sight. I praise Balaban & Katz for this.

"WEST POINT"

THE old question as to the priority of hen and egg is a mere trifle as compared to my dilemma concerning "West Point" and "Dress Parade." I do not know which was first (in idea, that is, for the latter was first in point of local exhibition) but I feel sure there was a very definite connection. In "Dress Parade" William Boyd did, as I stated at the time, a direct impersonation of William Haines impersonating a West Point cadet. In "West Point" William Haines does the impersonation. Further, save that Mr. Boyd's cadet found his metal under cannon fire whereas Mr. Haines' cadet finds his on the football field, the stories are practically identical. And of course West Point is West Point in both instances, just as in both instances West Point is the chief attraction.

I believe it would be impossible to photograph any kind of a story against the West Point background without getting an interesting result. West Point, itself, is a better motion picture than Hollywood manufactures in a year of twelve full months. The discipline, the tradition, the cadets in training and the fine old buildings in their gloriously aged severity are good for six reels any day in the week. It does seem, however, that something ought to be done toward maintaining a properly respectful attitude with respect to this institution.

The Haines performance is, of course, the genuine. It was a bit unpleasant to see an upstanding young performer like William Boyd paraphrase the thing (not that he didn't do it capably enough). The Haines performance is also the wrong kind of thing to set into the West Point background and this is, in my opinion, the least of the Haines performances to date. (You will recall that I have hailed this boy loudly and repeatedly since his rocketish appearance on the horizon.) His humor is lower than usual, his gags more than usually slapstick, and in justice to the boy I throw in the hunch that he probably didn't think much of the job in the first place.

Altogether, confused as I am by the similarity of the pictures and by a pretty deep-heated admiration for West Point as an institution, I believe I'd better let the original conclusion stand: That any picture that shows West Point as West Point really is cannot be a very bad picture. (Which is another way of saying that West Point saves "West Point" is you ask me.)

"THE CRIMSON CITY"

I THINK the first job of the story-teller is to tell his story. I think neglect of this job is final explanation of the flop in "The Crimson City." To explain:

The story's about a fellow who has gone to the dogs and Singapore. It seems he has left home (which may be England or the United States, as you will) because of some crime or other, and the blood and thunder which makes up the picture (not very much blood and very little thunder) results in clearing him of the charge, winning back the girl and all that. But—and I think this is where the picture flops—the crime is never told and so an observer doesn't know what it's all about. (At least, I should add, such an observer as this one.)

Myrna Loy is the player whose name I recall, although the man in the case is a familiar figure and only my bad memory robs him (I think he'll not object) of mention. Anders Randolph is also in the picture, doing an inconspicuous and quite decent parent, but I imagine he isn't worried about being mentioned either. In fact, I shouldn't wonder if Warner Brothers by and large would just as soon have me forget to mention the picture at all.

Therefore, I shall speak instead of the musical accompaniment accorded the picture at Warner's Orpheum in Chicago, where pretty well selected records are shot through the Vitaphone apparatus with pretty successful results. The person or persons selecting and arranging the records has (or have) a rather good sense of musical values and the timing, unless it is very late in the evening or the crowd is very small, is first rate. Indeed, one forgets for two or three reels at a time that the whole thing is not a complete Vitaphone scoring.

"LADIES NIGHT, ETC."

I LIKE Jack Mulhall. I don't like Dorothy Mackail. I am strong for farce. I don't like titles like "Ladies Night in a Turkish Bath." I found the picture, therefore, excellent in spots, very had in others, and altogether a somewhat scattered but undeniably interesting stretch of celluloid.

It seems this thing was once a stage play of some kind or other, and made some history as such. That is creditable, for it has one or two situations that are good in themselves. It has some others that are made good by the players, and it has some others that could not be made good by these or any other actors on the stage or screen. It is, altogether spotty.

Youngest Exhibitor? Huh! Harry Needle Eyes Title Himself

WHOA! All ye who think you have copped the tiara-boom-deay in the youngest manager derby, hearken to the story of Harry A. Needle, who skips the Park West theatre at 103-105 West 99th street, New York City.

"Throughout the United States there comes pouring in each week names of the youngest showmen in each state," he writes. "As good Americans we should be proud of all our states but we must also consider the greatest of them all—my own New York.

"I feel mighty honored in having been the youngest showman for years in this big city. After I had finished a high school course at Commerce I immediately entered the picture field at the age of 16.

"I always look back with pride to that time when if one read the program of my theatre he would immediately notice the heading of 'Glorifying that better style of entertainment under the personal direction of America's youngest manager.'"

This youthful exhibitor says his real opportunity came when he was made manager of one of Marcus Loew's first theatres, the Lyric, from which "600-seat palace of splendor" he took over the Normandy, 1,800 seats. Thence he drifted with his father, M. Needle, into the Park West theatre.

Mr. Needle, who says some very nice things about EXHIBITORS HERALD AND MOVING PICTURE WORLD, adds that he hopes some day to be written of "not as America's youngest manager but as the world's greatest manager." In other words, if you'll forgive us, you won't have to hunt this Needle in a haystack.

Mr. Needle's claim has its points, but comment from any exhibitor who believes he can pin him down with even stronger claims—and make them stick—is welcome.

didn't catch, but who does the best stuff in the picture) on the fringe of things to interrupt at the precisely correct moments. The ladies finally go to a Turkish bath, the men to a cootch-dance place next door, and a raid sends Jack and the girl friend's father into the bath house while other circumstances send the mother out on the roof to be arrested as the principal cootcher. If this is a little off-center for the members of the Ladies Aid, none the less this is what the picture's all about when it's boiled down.

There are a lot of good wheezes in the thing, smart lines that occur with good reason and get their laughs. I think the T. O. Service Mythical Medal for this year will go to the writer of the line spoken by the enforcedly fasting father who, upon inspecting the bare cupboard in company with his likewise fasting fox terrier, says "If I had some mustard I'd eat you." There is this and a few other downright riotous gags to make the picture viewable to those who don't care for cootch-dance parties even in their comic significance. (And perhaps, for clarity, I should separate myself from this group.)

Jack is, as usual, on the job every minute and getting all there is in the job out of it. Dorothy is as usual, walking here and there about the picture with a dull expression and no visible interest in cause or effect.

"BEWARE OF MARRIED MEN"

IRENE RICH, whom I regard as one of the six best personalities in motion pictures, is murdered again in "Beware of Married Men." I do not mean, of course, that she dies in the picture, but that the picture kills her. I begin to wonder how many of these murders an actress can survive, and when I count on the fingers of both hands the number that have been visited upon Miss Rich I get a still higher opinion of her merit as a personality. (I say personality instead of actress because she hasn't had a chance to act in so long that she may have forgotten how, though I doubt it.)

"Beware of Married Men" has exactly two things in its favor, the sheer personality of Irene Rich and the comedy of Clyde Cook. The former gives the picture whatever claim it may have to tenuous interest, which isn't much, and Mr. Cook's comedy gives it an occasional laugh. It's all very unfortunate.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT

BEDSIDE news of the day is that the young lady with Whooping Cough seems to have the case well in hand. In fact she's getting so she whoops quite casually without so much as laying aside her Dad's wristwatch, the current curio, during the paroxysm. Her Mother, however, is weathering the attack less manfully, while her Aunt and the Old Man himself are total wrecks.

To the glory of science be it set down that one apportionment of vaccine plus one night-burning lamp of intricate and expensive pattern is responsible for this happy condition of affairs. We are assured, now, that the siege cannot exceed six more weeks in duration. (No wonder American Medicine maintains an Association.)

NEW PICTURES

In "New Pictures" the EXHIBITORS HERALD and MOVING PICTURE WORLD presents in concise form information on current and forthcoming attractions.

The facts as presented will serve exhibitors in booking and in the preparation of their advertising campaigns.

BLONDE FOR A NIGHT, A: Pathe comedy-drama, with Marie Prevost, Franklin Pangborn, Harrison Ford, T. Roy Barnes and Lucien Littlefield. Directed by E. Mason Hopper. Released Length

TYPE AND THEME: Farce promoted around a bride who has a negligent husband. Just married, they're in Paris, where Webster meets his old pal, Mason, and Marie her old friend, Hector, operator of a clothes shop. Dissatisfied with her husband because of his unexplainable negligence, Marie goes to Hector's shop, where she discovers that a dress he wants to give her looks better with blonde hair. She dons a blonde wig, and thus she is when Mason enters and flirts with her. Returning to her apartment, Marie finds Webster angry. They quarrel, and she takes the next suite, telling him that she is going to Berlin. Mason dissuades him from following, informing him of the beautiful blonde at Hector's. Marie overhears and going to the shop, bewitches them both as a blonde. Back at the apartment, however, Webster decides to go after his wife in Berlin, and after considerable farce between Webster, Mason, Hector and Marie, she suddenly appears as though just returning from Berlin, whereupon Webster is only too glad to vow eternal fidelity.

DEVIL'S TRADEMARK, THE: FBO drama, with Belle Bennett, William V. Mong, Marion Douglas, William Bakewell, William Desmond, Patrick Cuning and Olin Francis. Directed by Leo Meehan. Released May 28. Length

TYPE AND THEME: An uncommon sort of story. Nellie and Fred give up their lives of crime when their children are born, Fred enlisting Nellie's promise that if either the boy or the girl shows criminal tendencies, he should be allowed to return to the exciting life he craves. The children grow up. Young Gray, son of a millionaire at whose home Nellie once had worked, comes to lives with them, being a weakling disliked by his father. Nellie is happy except for the knowledge that her home was furnished by money stolen from the elder Gray. Nona, the daughter, hears of this and steals enough money from young Gray to permit her mother to pay for the furnishings. Then she tells Gray Sr., who condones the theft. And when a jealous suitor tells Gray Jr., he declares he gave Nona the money, much to the admiration of his father. Fred, however, takes Nona's conduct to mean that he can resume his criminal life. He goes to the factory where he works, intending to blow the safe, and Nellie, unhappily acquiescent, follows. But she meets him returning. He doesn't want the old life any more.

MAD HOUR: First National drama, with Sally O'Neil, Alice White, Donald Reed, Larry Kent, Lowell Sherman, Norman Trevor, Tully Marshall, Margaret Livingston, Kate Price and Rose Dione. Directed by Joseph C. Boyle. Released March 4. Length

TYPE AND THEME: A picture of tough breaks for a girl, and while Fate could easily have fixed things up much better for her in the finish, it didn't, and the poor thing kills herself. As a taxi driver's daughter, Cuddles knows poverty (!). But she endeavors to improve her condition by marrying wealthy Jack Hemingway when both are ginned up. Jack is disowned, whereupon Cuddles seeks money by returning stolen jewels for the reward. She is put in prison, where her child is born. Jack's folks take the child, have the marriage annulled, and get Jack to marry a girl of his own class. As the wedding proceeds, Cuddles arrives, is denied her baby and drives her car over a cliff.

RED HAIR: Paramount comedy-drama, with Clara Bow, Lane Chandler, Lawrence Grant, Claude King, William Austin and Jacqueline Gadsdon. Directed by Clarence Badger. Released March 3. Length

TYPE AND THEME: Clara Bow getting her man—and, before the picture is done, displaying a great deal of "It." Three middle-aged gay-boys are lured by the charms of the little manicurist to make more or less consummate asses of themselves. Bubbles permits them to buy her this and that but is careful to give nothing in return. By making believe that she can't swim, she gets herself rescued by a young fellow who has taken her eye, and meeting him later, a romance quickly ripens. But when she buys a coat, the circumstances indicating to Robert that a little "gold digging" has been indulged in, Bubbles removes all her gifts, including lingerie (from beneath the coat) and returns them in a huff. Then appears an officer, demanding the coat, which was stolen. Robert promises to fish her out of a pool if she'll resume affectionate relations. She does, of course.

SOMETHING ALWAYS HAPPENS: Paramount comedy-drama, with Esther Ralston, Neil Hamilton, Sojin, Charles Sellon, Roscoe Karns, Lawrence Grant and Mischa Auer. Directed by Frank Tuttle. Released March 24. Length

TYPE AND THEME: This one is not straight comedy-drama. It is farce, melodrama, mystery, or what have you? Diana goes to England to visit the home of her fiance, Roderick Hamilton, and soon tires of the quiet life there. There's a ruby (which Diana is to get after the wedding) to be taken to a safety deposit vault to secure it from Chang-Tzo, Chinese outlaw, and the two lovers start with it for London. Getting lost in the rain, Roderick enters a house. He doesn't come out. Diana goes in. Ensues much mystery, walking feet unseen, doors that open and lock automatically, ghosts, etc. Then Neil appears to explain that it was arranged to give her thrills. But the thrills end not. Chang-Tzo continues them. But the lovers escape, Diana has had thrills aplenty, and all's well.

STRIVING FOR FORTUNE: Excellent drama, with George Walsh, Beryl Roberts, Joe Burke, Louise Carter, Brian Donlevy, Dexter McReynolds and Tefft Johnson. Directed by Nat Ross. Released January 15. Length 5,337.

TYPE AND THEME: Story of ships and those who build them. Two loves has Tom Sheridan—ships and Hope Loring. His family and the Loring's have always loved ships. Tom works for the great Harrington ship works, under the foremanship of Lardner, a knave. One day, discovering that Lardner is trying to keep a vessel from being completed on time, Tom is made foreman. Lardner, in the secret employ of competitors, continues his sabotage, but is dramatically defeated by Tom. (Comedy relief is afforded by efforts of Reggie Smythe, millionaire, to convince Geraldine Harrington of his manhood by trying to be a shipbuilder.)

WAGON SHOW, THE: First National Western, with Ken Maynard, Marion Douglas, Maurice Costello, Fred Malatesta, George Davis, May Boley, Paul Weigel, and Henry Roquemore. Directed by Harry J. Brown. Released..... Length.....

TYPE AND THEME: This is a Western, but it's about a circus, not a ranch. However, the locale is Texas. Bob Mason saves Beldan's show a contract by doubling excellently for Vicarino, temperamental trick rider. To get even, Vicarino induces one of the wagon drivers to lead the caravan toward a rival circus, where most of the performers are then held prisoners. But Bob leads a group of Beldan's men to the rescue and by his trick riding, releases the imprisoned showfolk, thus saving Beldan and winning Beldan's daughter.

Well, here they are again —this time with the who's-who correct. (Note to make-up man: Please share our opinion in this.) This repetition of familiar faces is, we admit, morally incumbent upon us, inasmuch as in the issue of January 28, Mr. Left was, rather ambidextrously, called Mr. Right. Yet, would it not be hard to find two pictures more worthy of repetition? That, after all, is the whole basis of our apology.

Standing, David R. Hochreich, president of the Vocafilm Corporation; and Harry Williams, chairman of the board. Educational is producing Vocafilm presentations.

PRESS SHEETS

BEYOND LONDON'S LIGHTS (F B O melodrama): See if you can arrange with the chief of police to permit you to have a traffic officer dressed as a London Bobby at one of the street corners to handle traffic before or during the showing. Have small banners on either side of the traffic signal post reading: "See how London Bobbies handle traffic in 'Beyond London Lights,' picture of Drury Lane thrills at the.....theatre (Date)." Start a newspaper discussion on relative merits of London and local traffic handling.

BLONDE FOR A NIGHT, A (Pathe comedy-drama): Following is a letter for the people on your mailing list: "Dear Patron: We are glad to announce the forthcoming presentation at this theatre on (Date) of Marie Prevost's latest farce-comedy, 'A Blonde For A Night,' Franklin Pangborn, Harrison Ford, Roy Barnes, and Lucien Littlefield are featured. This is a captivating farce, the scenes of which are laid in gay Paris, and there are laughs galore. The story is one that we recommend to every motion picture fan. May we hope to see you at the showing of this picture? Sincerely, The Management." . . . Employ three or four blondes and a like number of brunettes and place them in a car with the title of the picture on both sides of the car, and have them circle the town. The following sign is suggested for the front of the car: "Gentlemen who prefer blondes and those who do not are invited to see 'A Blonde for a Night' at the.....theatre (Date)."

BROADWAY DRIFTER, THE (Excellent drama): Following is a letter for your mailing list: "Dear Patron: The feature attraction next..... will be 'The Broadway Drifter,' George Walsh is announced as the star, but the entire cast is so exceptional that it would not do to name him alone. There are also Dorothy Hall, about whom you have read so much lately—she is one of Broadway's most widely known actresses—Nellie Savage, Gladys Valerie, Arthur Donaldson, George Offerman, Jr., Paul Doucet and Bigelow Cooper. The story tells of a rich man's son, who renounces the White Lights and carves out a successful career. It is tremendously appealing in its telling. You will enjoy it. Very truly yours, (Manager's Name)."

CONEY ISLAND (F B O melo-drama): Have the following sign posted on all of the roads leading to your theatre, made in arrow design. "This way to 'Coney Island.'" Banner a truck and let it parade the town with the following sign: "See 'Coney Island,' all the bloodcurdling freaks from famous Coney Island. Strange beings are being presented. This picture is being shown at the..... (Date)." Tie-up with a red-hot stand and post the following sign on the stand: "Satisfy your hunger with Coney Island sandwiches and then satisfy your thirst for thrills by seeing 'Coney Island' at the.....theatre today." . . . Hire an old automobile and trim it up with colored decorations.

DEVIL'S TRADE MARK, THE (F B O drama): Following are some tie-up suggestions with the stores in your town. The first one is for Gold Medal flour. Have posters printed and scattered about the town with the following: "Two things that can't be beat! Gold Medal Flour and 'The Devil's Trade Mark.' You'll have to see it. Eventually, why not now? To be shown at the..... theatre (Date)." The second tie-up is for Maxwell House coffee. Posters with the following should be distributed: "Maxwell House Coffee, good to the last drop! 'The Devil's Trade Mark,' good to the last foot of film, starring Belle Bennett at the.....theatre (Date)." The third tie-up is with a cigar store. "Lucky Strikes, they're toasted and so is 'The Devil's Trade Mark,' now showing at the.....theatre."

DRESS PARADE (Pathe drama): Arrange to have a buglers' contest and invite all the buglers to the show. . . . Following are some suggestions for teasers to be thrown about the town: "Attention! Don't miss 'Dress Parade' at the..... theatre, a picture of West Point life." Another is, "Every cadet in town is urged to see 'Dress Parade' at the..... theatre. If you aim to go to West Point, this picture starring William Boyd will be a revelation to you." And another, "Don't miss 'Dress Parade,' a picture of cadet life at West Point, now showing at the.....theatre." . . . Arrange with the school cadets to parade the town in their suits with the following sign: "See 'Dress Parade' at the.....theatre (Date)." You can invite the boys to the showing as guests of the theatre.

DRIFTIN' SANDS (F B O): Have local printer run off some envelopes with the wording, "Lucky sand from San Jacinto Valley, scene of Bob Steele's latest Western triumph, 'Driftin' Sands.'" On back of envelope have the words, "Sprinkle this 'Lucky Sand' on your front doorstep." Place a few grains of clean white sand in the envelopes and distribute among patrons a few days before the showing of this picture.

KICK-OFF, THE (Excellent drama): Arrange with the high school football team or any other team to dress in football uniforms and march through the main thoroughfares with a banner which reads: "We are on our way to see 'The Kick-Off' at the.....theatre." . . . Run a contest to name the most popular football player in town. Invite the mothers of the boys playing on the local high school team to the showing. . . . A letter for the people on your mailing list is suggested as follows: "Dear Patron: Permit us to remind you that (Date) is the opening day of 'The Kick-Off,' starring George Walsh in an immensely entertaining collegiate drama. It will be a treat for the whole family. Sincerely yours, The Management." . . . Arrange with sporting goods stores to dress a dummy with a football uniform and display it in the window. Have a sign with the following: "See 'The Kick-Off' at the..... theatre (Date)."

LEGION OF THE CONDEMNED, THE (Paramount drama): If you have an aviation field in town try to get a flyer to throw announcements of the picture from the plane. On the announcement have the following printed: "This paper has flown a great distance to tell you that 'Legion of Condemned' is to be shown at the.....theatre (Date)." Arrange to have an airplane contest for boys. The best plane made can be exhibited on the stage or in the foyer of the theatre. Be sure to specify that difference in size or model will not affect the chances in the contest. . . . Run an essay contest open to children under 12 years or any age. For a subject you can take the life of some well known flyer, such as Lindbergh, Ruth Elder, or Chamberlin. Essays can be sent to the theatre, or arrange with your newspaper to receive them and print the best one in the paper.

NEST, THE (Excellent drama): Tie-up with a jewelry store to carry the following sign in his window: "A marriage ring is necessary to build up 'The Nest.' Let us help you start your career. See 'The Nest' at the.....theatre (Date)." . . . Send out an invitation reading: "You are cordially invited to witness the marriage of Susan Hamilton, a daughter of 'The Nest' at the.....theatre (Date)." Run an essay contest in your daily or weekly papers on the following: "Should a daughter marry against her mother's wishes?" Play this up and announce that the answer will be found in "The Nest," which will be showing at the.....theatre (Date). . . . Arrange a private screening in advance of playdate for clergymen in your vicinity. Then secure their endorsements for newspaper copy.

RED HAIR (Paramount comedy-drama): Invite all the redheaded couples to the showing as guests of the theater and have them sit in a certain part of the house. Run a "Red Head" dancing contest. Arrange to have a man and a woman dressed in summer costumes and wearing wigs of a brilliant red, parade the town, with the following sign: "We like 'Red Hair,' you will, too. See it at the..... theatre today." During the performance, this couple could be used effectively in the lobby of the theatre and as ushers, or might be used to escort red-haired couples to the special section reserved for them. . . . Effect a tie-up with a women's clothes shop for a style show with red-haired models, bringing out clothes especially suitable to red-haired women. . . . Arrange a beauty competition either by ballot or in a newspaper for red-haired girls, or have a style parade in the window of a store, or if possible in the theatre.

STREETS OF SHANGHAI (Tiffany-Stahl drama): During the playing of the picture, the lobby can be decorated in Chinese style to carry out the atmosphere of the production. Dress your lobby and the outside of your theatre with Chinese flags. In the lobby can also be placed Buddhas and incense burners. . . . Have a special matinee and admit all children under 12 free with their parents. Dress your ushers in Chinese costumes during the playing. . . . Secure a rickshaw, (a two-wheeled carriage) and have a pretty girl, dressed in either a Chinese costume or traveling outfit sit in it. Hire a Chinese man (or impersonator of one) to draw the wagon through the main streets of the town, with the following sign: "See 'Streets of Shanghai' at the.....theatre (Date)." Post a sign in front of your theatre with the following: "Special Matinee today for the marines who did duty in China. Your uniform or discharge paper is your pass."

STRIVING FOR FORTUNE (Excellent drama): If your theatre is located in a community which contains a factory, the following is a suggestion to draw patronage from the workers: If possible give a private showing to the personnel director or an executive of the firm. Have him tell the employees about the picture. Have the following poster put in the factory: "Do you want to make a fortune? Have you any idea how to go about making one? If you have or if you have not, see 'Striving for Fortune,' at the.....theatre (Date)."

TRAGEDY OF YOUTH, THE (Tiffany-Stahl drama): As bowling runs in the picture, try to arrange to have a bowling contest. Invite the winner to the theatre. Post a sign in front of the bowling hall announcing the contest and showing of the picture. . . . During the playing of the production get an old woman and have her stand on the busiest corners of your city with a music box or some other instrument with a sign as follows: "Don't pity me, see 'The Tragedy of Youth' and you'll know better. Now playing at the.....theatre." . . . Run a newspaper essay contest on "Should girls in their teens marry?"

Suggested lay-outs of newspaper advertisements for Paramount's "The Legion of the Condemned," which stars Fay Wray and Gary Cooper. They permit "revamping"—that is, all the cuts are adaptable to most any size and form of ad. The end ads are 2 columns wide; the middle, 3 columns; and the others one column.

Incorporated in this department of Moving Picture World is the Exhibitors Herald department, "Available Attractions."

The key to abbreviations used in denoting the type of picture:

- C—Comedy
- D—Drama
- R—Romance
- F—Farce
- M—Melodrama
- W—Western
- My—Mystery

Where the picture is a comedy-drama, comedy melodrama, etc., there is a combination of these abbreviations. Stars denote reissues.

The dates prior to January 7 published under the "Review" column are those of the issues of Moving Picture World in which the pictures were reviewed. The January 7 and subsequent dates are those of the issues of EXHIBITORS HERALD and MOVING PICTURE WORLD in which "Service Talks" have been published on pictures.

The dates prior to January 7 published under the "New Pictures" column are those of the issues of EXHIBITORS HERALD in which "New Pictures" information was printed. The January 7 and subsequent dates are those of the issues of EXHIBITORS HERALD and MOVING PICTURE WORLD in which this information will be printed.

LETTERS From Readers

A forum at which the exhibitor is invited to express his opinion on matters of current interest. Brevity adds forcefulness to any statement. Unsigned letters will not be printed.

From the Brothers to J. C.

TOMBSTONE, ARIZ.—TO THE EDITOR: We are glad to learn that Mr. Jenkins is coming back to Tombstone, the liveliest dead town in the world. We want to show him the three theatres here, the Schieffelin Hall where many of the old time stock and legitimate people like Frederick Ward and Charles B. Hanford tread the boards and the famous Bird Cage where Eddie Foy did his stuff when it was called "varety," and the theatre in which Lotta Crabtree sang.

And then we want to show him the new Crystal theatre which we modestly claim as a picture show is not equalled in America in towns many times the size of Tombstone. Then we want to show him the million dollar Stope, the Schieffelin monument and the world's most unique weekly, the Tompstone Epitaph.

But before Mr. Jenkins comes back we hope he will read "Tombstone," by Walter Noble Burns, which he will find to be an authentic historic record of what was the most noted mining camp ever known. And before we close we want to say that somebody is going to buy the picture rights of that book and put over some of the best pictures of their kind that the silver sheet has ever seen and, by the way, Walter Noble Burns lives in Chicago. TONY AND TIM GIACOMA, Crystal theatre, Tombstone, Ariz.—P. S.: We are also the smallest theatre in America with a real press agent, Mr. A. H. Gardner, former correspondent of the Dramatic Mirror and co-owner in a string of houses in the South managed by the firm of Clarke & Gardner, who were also the owners of the Quinlan and Wall Minstrels and the Columbia Opera Company. Mr. Gardner also gets under the hide of many Western stars because of their inconsistent presentation of supposed Westerns. He writes many of our reports for "What the Picture Did for Me."—G. B.

Objects to Dark Scenes

COLUMBIA CITY, IND.—TO THE EDITOR: I am writing you for information regarding the photography of some of the latter pictures. Some two weeks ago we used "The Thirteenth Hour" from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and the night scenes were so dark that they could not be accurately followed on the screen. Today Pathe's "Angel of Broadway" is the same. Subtitles and interiors come up and cut clear with the right amount of light but the exteriors which take place at supposed evening are very dark, so dark that 75 amperes on a G. E. outfit would not show them but faintly.

I think they are going to extremes for the effects. Audiences do not like it. They are not clear enough for accurately following the action. Art is effective in photography, but it seems to the writer that they should not go so far in carrying the effect of night as to not keep the picture clean cut and legible. Anyone else notice this trouble among your readers?—A. E. HANCOCK, Columbia theatre, Columbia City, Ind.

A Lesson in Cooperation

ASHLAND, KAN.—TO THE EDITOR: I am enclosing a few reports on pictures I have played recently. I have been falling down on the job for some time, and have not been sending in any reports on any of my pictures but have decided to turn over a new leaf and report more regularly.

You will find an enclosed report on "Ben Hur." I played this picture for four days beginning February 1 and smashed all records with it for gross business. In my estimation this outclasses anything that has ever appeared on the screen, and most of my patrons think the same as I do about it.

"Ben Hur" drew many patrons who have never been to my show before, and they drove many miles to get here. Some came 45 miles that I know of and probably others that lived farther away. I drew business from eight or nine towns, all of which have picture shows. I had one family of five people that were from another town 45 miles from here, and there were three children, the oldest being 13 years who had never seen a picture before.

I drove for about 150 miles putting up advertising on the show, and certainly was well paid for my trouble. I owe a great deal to my friend W. Clyde Pile of the Pastime theatre of Protection who advertised the picture for me on his screen and he did this when he knew it would be in direct competition with a special he had booked for the same dates that I played "Ben Hur." Believe me that is what I call cooperation, and any time that I can help that man out I will sure do it.—S. H. HIDE, Photoplay theatre, Ashland, Kan.

Are There Two Passion Plays?

SHEBOYGAN FALLS, WIS.—TO THE EDITOR: I would appreciate it, if you would give this article space in your next issue of the HERALD-WORLD, as I think it will help other exhibitors from making the same mistake I made.

In my estimation there is but one real "Passion Play," although there are two entirely different pictures being sold under the name of "The Passion Play."

One is the old revised Pathe "Passion Play," which should be called "The Life of Christ," or better still, be taken off the market entirely, rather than to be sold for the real "Passion Play."

Brother Exhibitors: I am not writing this article to knock any company who is selling the old Pathe revised picture, but rather to boost the one real "Passion Play" as first played at Freiburg, in the year 1264. It is a wonderful production, and well worthy to be shown in any house.

You men who buy your pictures from the Milwaukee exchanges, will be sure of the real "Passion Play" if you buy from C. W. Trampe of Midwest Film Exchange. Be ware of substitutes.—P. W. CAIN, Falls theatre, Sheboygan Falls, Wis.

Columbia

STAGE KISSES: Kenneth Harlan—10%. January 25. Good show from start to finish. First on the Columbia contract which was fairly received. Six reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

THE LONE WOLF RETURNS: Special cast—59%. February 6-7. A very, very entertaining picture with more nice comments from patrons than any program picture that I have used for quite a while. Seven reels.—Eugene Richards, Richards theatre, Fayette, Ala.—Small town patronage.

F B O

THE OUTLAW DOG: Ranger—35%. January 25. If your patrons like dog pictures give them this, it is sure to please. The best Ranger subject I have used and had many good comments. Five reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE FLYING U RANCH: Tom Tyler—60%. January 25. This is not one of his best, but a good Western shown. Five reels.—W. T. Biggs, Adair theatre, Adair, Ia.—General patronage.

THE FLYING U RANCH: Tom Tyler—50%. February 10-11. This is like J. C. Jenkins' report on "Under the Tonto Rim." The title brought the crowd and they were disappointed. Fine action of a bucking horse and I think one horse reared up on his hind legs once. Not even an old milch cow in the whole thing. Nothing like the book only the names of the actors. Five reels.—John Cosner, Sun theatre, Sargent, Neb.—Small town patronage.

THE BETTER MAN: Richard Talmadge—50%. February 3-4. Not as good as the general Talmadge pictures. Five reels.—V. Grichton, Regent theatre, Chapeau, Ont, Can.—General patronage.

NOT FOR PUBLICATION: Ralph Ince—35%. January 30. Very good picture. FBO is giving us good pictures so far this year and will treat you right. Six reels.—D. G. Jones, Joyland theatre, Booneville, Ark.—General patronage.

THE GREAT MAIL ROBBERY: Special cast—60%. January 28. If you want a good show with speed, action, thrills, etc., get this one as it has all of it and more too, a real good picture. Six reels.—W. T. Biggs, Adair theatre, Adair, Ia.—General patronage.

THE GREAT MAIL ROBBERY: Special cast—February 11. We thought this a splendid picture and drew well against school entertainment. Better than "The Harvester." Best FBO to date. Seven reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—General patronage.

THE HARVESTER: Natalie Kingston—100%. February 3-4. More people paid to see this than any Gene Stratton-Porter book to date which includes "Keeper of the Bees," "Laddie," "The Magic Garden." Follows the book closely until the last end. Had many good comments and all seemed pleased. Eight reels.—John Cosner, Sun theatre, Sargent, Neb.—Small town patronage.

THE HARVESTER: Special cast—Nothing to brag about. Drew fairly well on account of author. Patrons disappointed. Seven reels.—D. E. Fulton, Lyric theatre, Harrison, Ark.—Small town patronage.

THE GINGHAM GIRL: Lois Wilson—40%. Jan-

Editor's Note

Percentage ratings given by exhibitors in reports to this department are obtained in the following manner: Average daily gross of picture reported is divided by average daily gross of picture holding house record to determine relative box office value in terms of percentage.

EXAMPLE: $75 (average daily gross of picture reported) divided by $100 (average daily gross of picture holding house record) equals .75 (percentage rating given picture in report).

uary 24-25. Good. Had better crowd the second night which speaks well for the picture. Not a heavy picture, but full of comedy and a good little story. Six reels.—John Cosner, Sun theatre, Sargent, Neb.—Small town patronage.

BULL DOG PLUCK: Bob Guster—Bob should stick to the horse and quit trying to be a gambler. He looks good but picture very poor.—S. S. Seibert, Salina theatre, Salina, Okla.—Small town patronage.

FRECKLES: Special cast—When a picture draws them in and they come out smiling, and the second day you find them still coming you have to say it's a good picture and a real box office bet. This made money for me and pleased.—S. H. Rich, Rich theatre, Montpelier, Idaho.—General patronage.

LADIES BEWARE: George O'Hara—Good entertainment is about all except the print I had must have been run through a mangle machine at the laundry, it refused several times to stay in the machine, badly ripped close of last reel due to poor patching, lumpy.—S. S. Seibert, Salina theatre, Salina, Okla.—Small town patronage.

SPLITTING THE BREEZE: Tom Tyler—February 4. This opens up like a good show but develops into one of those "You are the Murderer" affairs. The Old Heiferdust. Whenever I have Tom I have good weather so I am for him. On this year's stuff the film hound said that Frankie Darrow and Beans, the dog, would be in all Tom's pictures. Well they better be, anything I hate is a lying film hound. Of course, he didn't know any more about it than I did, but I like to be sociable. Anyway, I celebrated the month of February with FBO. Five reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE GORILLA HUNT: Special cast—A very interesting and entertaining film of the educational line, that held the undivided attention of our patrons. Photography good and reels in fine shape. Five reels. Giacomina Bros., Crystal theatre, Tombstone, Ariz.—General patronage.

SILVER GOMES THROUGH: Fred Thomson—Very good. Just a bit over-drawn in spots, but pleased the majority. Six reels.—Lester N. Leek, Club House theatre, Jackson, Wyo.—General patronage.

First National

THE WHIP WOMAN: Estelle Taylor—50%. February 2. This one pleased my patrons, and is a good program show. Six reels.—W. T. Biggs, Adair theatre, Adair, Ia.—General patronage.

PARADISE: Special cast—100%. February 12. This is an extra good picture. In fact, my patrons say this is the real stuff for them and want more life it. All of them enjoyed it very much. I must say I have enjoyed the good pictures and service I have received from First National since I started with them about five months ago. Not one had picture. This is a pleasure and I appreciate it. Eight reels.—David Straszer, Lyceum theatre, Manchester, Mo.—General patronage.

THE CHASER: Harry Langdon—50%. February 4-5. This is much better than his last one, but he does not draw for me. It has some good comedy in it, and is a good show where they like his shows. Six reels.—W. T. Biggs, Adair theatre, Adair, Ia.—General patronage.

HARD BOILED HAGGERTY: Milton Sills—25%. Feb. 8. Like all of Sills pictures now, one scrap after another. Satisfaction to the hard boiled. Star always good. Cast fine.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

HARD BOILED HAGGERTY: Milton Sills—February 12. A good picture. Lots of favorable comments. Seven reels.—Mrs. G. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—General patronage.

THE LIFE OF RILEY: Charlie Murray—40%. February 6-7. One of the best comedies in many moons. Had small attendance due to heavy rain two days we played it, but it certainly made a hit with those who saw it. Suitable for Saturday. Seven reels.—E. F. Ingram, Ingram's theatre, Ashland, Ala.—Small town patronage.

THE LIFE OF RILEY: Special cast—Nearly as good as "McFadden's Flats," however it only did half the business. Eight reels.—Hollis H. Chase, Diamond theatre, Lake Odessa, Mich.—General patronage.

THE DEVIL'S SADDLE: Ken Maynard—20%. February 3-4. Well if you boys want Westerns buy Maynard and you'll have a real bet. They all satisfy and are good and are in a separate class. So you'd better give us more of this kind, Ken. Six reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

FRAMED: Milton Sills—10%. January 31. Good show but did not draw for us even with Sills in it. Too many basketball games for opposition, so no fault of the show. Six reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

FRAMED: Milton Sills—February 5-6. This is a very depressing affair. Very muddy, but not dirty. The first three reels are filled with mud and the last three with fever. Should be a knockout for the honky tonk dumps down in the flop house districts, or on your ruff nights when the unwashed boys like to throw peanut shells on the floor and spit against the walls. For your better class trade on Sunday night it will prove to be a lot of static. Anything I hate is a lying film hound. I hope all his off-spring are radio announcers. Six reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THREE HOURS: Corinne Griffith—50%. February 2-3. A good clean picture. Very sad. Seven reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

FOREVER AFTER: Special cast—50%. February 10-11. Nice picture, but not suitable for Friday and Saturday. Six reels.—V. Crichton, Regent theatre, Chapleau, Ont., Can.—General patronage.

IRENE: Colleen Moore—60%. February 8-9. Nice picture with excellent coloring in last two reels. Seven reels.—V. Crichton, Regent theatre, Chapleau, Ont., Can.—General patronage.

ELLA CINDERS: Colleen Moore—100%. February 5. This is a very good comedy, which took well with our patrons. Seven reels.—David Straszer, Lyceum theatre, Manchester, Mo.—General patronage.

THE AMATEUR GENTLEMAN: Richard Barthelmess—30%. February 5. We played this one late but it was good in our estimation, so nobody was hurt and business fair on a rainy night in February. Eight reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

VALLEY OF THE GIANTS: Milton Sills—Ran this on Friday and Saturday and it sure did extra business. I know because business has been rotten and I got a decided increase. Sills as a rule don't click here, but the title and story helped. The scenes in the red woods are great. Give Sills more of this type of story. Seven reels.—Hollis H. Chase, Diamond theatre, Lake Odessa, Mich.—General patronage.

VALLEY OF THE GIANTS: Milton Sills—The best Sills has done lately. Pleased our patrons. Seven reels.—J. M. Rinehart, Majestic theatre, Stuttgart, Ark.—General patronage.

GUN GOSPEL: Ken Maynard—In the same class with Metro's Westerns, well made, but the same old line of cattle rustling that people are getting fed up on. Put more comedy into your Westerns, First National and Metro. However there is considerable comedy in this one. Seven reels.—Hollis H. Chase, Diamond theatre, Lake Odessa, Mich.—General patronage.

CONY ISLAND: Special cast—Just a good fair program picture. No extra business. Seven reels.—Hollis H. Chase, Diamond theatre, Lake Odessa, Mich.—General patronage.

SAILORS' WIVES: Special cast—February 12. This pleased them and drew fairly well. Where did they get the name from? Not a sailor in it. Six reels.—Leslie Hables, Reel Joy theatre, King City, Calif.—Small town patronage.

THE NOOSE: Richard Barthelmess—Barthelmess at his best. One of his best roles since "Classmates."—Russell Armentrout, K. P. theatre, Pittsfield, Ill.—General patronage.

HER WILD OAT: Colleen Moore—Her poorest picture in my estimation. Did not click with her others either. Title poor, and my people didn't know what it was all about. Seven reels.—Hollis H. Chase, Diamond theatre, Lake Odessa, Mich.—General patronage.

FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE: Ben Lyon—February 12-13. This is a very good comedy, don't be afraid to book same. Print good. Photography good. Seven reels.—P. G. Held, Strand theatre, Griswold, Ia.—General patronage.

RED RAIDERS OF CANADA: Ken Maynard—January 28. A dandy Western, which shows that considerable money was spent on it under good direction. Maynard does some good acting, his horsemanship equals the best of them, aided by a well trained horse. If you like Westerns book it.—H. E. Gilman, Club theatre, Weed, Calif.—General patronage.

THE WAGON SHOW: Ken Maynard—February 4. A nice show of its kind. Should please the regular Saturday night patrons in a small town. Six reels.—Leslie Hables, Reel Joy theatre, King City, Calif.—Small town patronage.

THE PRIVATE LIFE OF HELEN OF TROY: Maria Corda—February 14-15. Titles very original. Patrons complained of no action. Rental too high. Eight reels.—Geo. E. Hall, Rialto theatre, Franklin, Neb.—General patronage.

SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS: Special cast—February 1-2. Good crowds that were pleased. Business good. Nine reels.—Geo. E. Hall, Rialto theatre, Franklin, Neb.—General patronage.

THE POOR NUT: Special cast—February 6-7. Good comedy. Took in five dollars and seventy cents above rental.—Geo. E. Hall, Rialto theatre, Franklin, Neb.—General patronage.

THE STOLEN BRIDE: Billie Dove—January 30. Very good. They like Billie. Business poor. Seven reels.—Geo. E. Hall, Rialto theatre, Franklin, Neb.—General patronage.

WHITE PANTS WILLIE: Johnny Hines—February 14-15. The best Hine's picture I ever played. I can't get 'em in to see this bird. One sub title and two or three scenes could have been deleted without any injury to the picture. Most of the last reel is in colors and is very beautiful. However, even in that they thought it necessary to have a drunk wobbling around in that. Seven reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE GORILLA: Charlie Murray—A flop. One of those kind that the people either thought was excellent or terrible. No half way about it. From the box office it failed to hit.—Russell Armentrout, K. P. theatre, Pittsfield, Ill.—General patronage.

THE CRYSTAL CUP: Special cast—February 9-10. This is an extra good program picture and had many favorable comments on it. Story is a little out of the ordinary and should please the adults. Seven reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

RANSON'S FOLLY: Richard Barthelmess—January 29. Fair seemed to be enjoyed by all. Eight reels.—David Straszer, Lyceum theatre, Manchester, Mo.—General patronage.

THE STRONG MAN: Harry Langdon—Good feature comedy. Drew lots of laughs. Nothing to it, but pleased the majority. Six reels.—F. E. Sabin, Majestic theatre, Eureka, Mt.—Small town patronage.

GRAUSTARK: Norma Talmadge—Norma drew a fine house. Of course, everyone liked it. Old, but good. Nine reels.—F. E. Sabin, Majestic theatre, Eureka, Mt.—Small town patronage.

Fox

THE SHARPSHOOTERS: George O'Brien—25%. February 9. One of the most satisfactory pictures to the roughnecks, but too strong for general satisfaction in a small town. O'Brien and Lois Moran great.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

PAID TO LOVE: George O'Brien—65%. February 1. Mighty good, step on it. Seven reels.—D. C. Jones, Joyland theatre, Booneville, Ark.—General patronage.

PAJAMAS: Olive Borden—60%. January 25. Here is one you need not be afraid of. Something doing all the time. Played this with "The Kangaroo's Kimona" and made a very good show. Seven reels.—D. C. Jones, Joyland theatre, Booneville, Ark.—General patronage.

SEVENTH HEAVEN: George Farrell—Will easily rate among the ten best pictures of the year in anyone's list. Personally thought it was in a class by itself. A picture you can give the limit in advertising. Twelve reels.—Russell Armentrout, K. P. theatre, Pittsfield, Ill.—General patronage.

BLACK JACK: Buck Jones—Good. Five reels.—D. E. Fulton, Lyric theatre, Harrison, Ark.—Small town patronage.

SILVER VALLEY: Tom Mix—As good a Mix picture as I have seen in a long time. A little different than the average Western. Drew some extra business. Six reels.—Hollis H. Chase, Diamond theatre, Lake Odessa, Mich.—General patronage.

THE GAY RETREAT: Special cast—Good entertainment. Better than many so-called specials. Six reels.—D. E. Fulton, Lyric theatre, Harrison, Ark.—Small town patronage.

THE JOY GIRL: Olive Borden—February 2-3. Another good program from Fox. I have been agreeably surprised with the Fox product this year. Fine. Seven reels.—Leslie Hables, Reel Joy theatre, King City, Calif.—Small town patronage.

DESERT VALLEY: Buck Jones—February 10-11. Good Western with plenty of action. Print good. Photography fair. Five reels.—P. G. Held, Strand theatre, Griswold, Ia.—General patronage.

THE GREAT K AND A TRAIN ROBBERY: Tom Mix—January 27-28. Very good Mix picture. Print good. Photography good. Five reels.—P. G. Held, Strand theatre, Griswold, Ia.—General patronage.

THE SECRET STUDIO: Olive Borden—February 13. Didn't make film rental on this. Just a very ordinary picture. Six reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—General patronage.

THE MUSIC MASTER: Alec B. Francis—February 12-13. A very fine picture for your high class trade. Had many of the seldom comers in to see it. Regardless of how fine it is a fellow would starve to death if he ran these as a steady diet for the regular fans. Eight reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE BLUE EAGLE: Special cast—February 11. By gar, but this is a ruff one. However, I stuck it in on a Saturday night and think it pleased the majority. Different than the ride 'em up hill and down Westerns. Seven reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

FOREIGN DEVILS: Tim McCoy—65%. February 15. We had many favorable comments on this. People said they didn't know what it was about. Five reels.—H. K. Allen, American Legion theatre, Broadlands, Ill.—Small town patronage.

AFTER MIDNIGHT: Norma Shearer—46%. January 24. Norma Shearer is a favorite here and this picture pleased, but it is not as good as "Waning Sex" and other older productions. It is a good picture and will please the majority. Seven reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE FAIR CO-ED: Marion Davies—60%. February 12-13. This is a splendid picture. Star great and cast good. Story fine, gave 100 per cent satisfaction.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.

TELL IT TO THE MARINES: Chaney-Haines—75%. February 15. We consider this very good. On account of bad weather attendance was not large.—H. K. Allen, American Legion theatre, Broadlands, Ill.—Small town patronage.

ROOKIES: Special cast—70%. February 1-2. Dandy comedy with lots of real humor. Seven reels.—V. Crichton, Regent theatre, Chapeau, Ont., Can.—General patronage.

ROOKIES: Dane-Arthur—70%. February 15. This is certainly real entertainment and 100 per cent at that. Bad weather held down attendance. If you haven't shown this, get it because it is easily one of the best ten pictures of the year. Seven reels.—H. K. Allen, American Legion theatre, Broadlands, Ill.—Small town patronage.

MR. WU: Lon Chaney—70%. February 6-7. Excellent picture that drew all classes especially ladies and people who do not patronize as a rule. Eight reels.—V. Crichton, Regent theatre, Chapeau, Ont., Can.—General patronage.

MR. WU: Special cast—Beautiful background. Chaney and Adoree extra good. Balance of cast weak. The two leads carried the picture to perfection. Ending may queer it with some, but it's good, notwithstanding.—F. E. Sabin, Majestic theatre, Eureka, Mt.—Small town patronage.

J. C. Jenkins—His Colyum

SHERMAN, TEX., FEBRUARY 19, 1928.

DEAR HERALD-WORLD:

We can plainly see the footprints of Eagle Eye Joe in the previous issue of The HERALD-WORLD. His formation of the "EXHIBITORS CLUB" and his selection of "Fishy" Phil as president marks him as a rising young man of excellent judgment, and if the staff will give him a private office and a typewriter and post a notice on the door "Blondes Not Admitted" you will see such an improvement in the HERALD-WORLD as you never dreamed of. Didja see that picture of Frances Lee in the pictorial section inscribed to Joe? Boy, if Frances could read the letter Joe wrote us once about her, an aeroplane wouldn't be half fast enough between Hollywood and Pork Center. Frances, you know, called at the editorial rooms of the HERALD-WORLD recently and met Joe and Joe wrote us about this meeting. We ought to keep this in confidence but he wound up his letter in such nice poetic sentiment we know Frances will rejoice to read it. It ran something like this—

*I cannot smile, I only frown
Since Frances went away,
This whole durn town is upside down
Since Frances went away.
My heart is sad and I'm feeling blue
And I'm putting this thing up to you
For I don't know whatthell to do
Since Frances went away.*

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

We are in receipt of a very nice letter from Mr. Russell Holman, advertising manager for Paramount thanking us for our comment on his advertising of "GENTLEMEN PREFER BLONDES" which appeared recently in the HERALD-WORLD. We didn't know that we said anything that would especially attract attention but we are certainly glad to know that one person at least, read our Colyum and we want to take this means of thanking Mr. Holman for his letter of appreciation. Usually they jump onto us and rip us up the back. We are always pleased to mention what appears to us to be a well written ad. We believe we detect the handiwork of Mr. Holman in Paramount's ad of "OLD IRONSIDES" in the previous issue of the HERALD-WORLD. Mr. Holman doesn't only know how to write a good ad but he knows what journal to place it in to get results.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

We are in receipt of another letter, this one presumably from Mrs. Sam Blair, and she tramps all over us with both moccasins for not stopping to see them when we were in Belleville, Kan. recently. We called at the theatre but it was closed (it being Sunday morning and snowing) so we left our card and hurried on. We knew if we stopped Sam would get to blowing on Kansas again and start another argument so we thought best to keep moving, but we are going to call there again sometime next fall if everything goes all right. Thanks, Mrs. Blair, for the invitation but keep it quiet from Sam.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

Here is another one. E. C. Potter of the Firemen's theatre at New Hampton, Ia., writes a very interesting letter on several important topics having to do with that Exhibitor Convention at Alexandria, Minn.

E. C. suggests that the convention be held sometime the latter part of June and offers some very sound reasons in favor of that season. We agree with E. C. and would like to have suggestions from others. It is quite likely that Gailey of Wayne, Neb., would prefer a later season, as bullheads never get warmed up and get in action until the water gets warm enough to go in swimmin', and Gailey always wades out in his bare feet, that's why he has clean feet once a year.

E. C. also suggests that Bill Rogers be invited to act as Master of Ceremonies. We don't know as we would agree to that. Bill, you know, was Mayor of the "Invisible Government" of Beverly Hills, and they say he clamped the lid on so tight that the boys had to have H 2 O stamped on every package. What would Mickey Larson do under such an administration? We'd be for Bill provided he'd agree to show some little consideration. Water is all right to run under bridges and for mules but when taken internally it might affect some of the boy's stomachs, not being used to it.

Brother Potter also suggests that the convention nominate candidates in another BEAUTY CONTEST. We'd be agin that proposition unless we had something to say as to who the judges are to be, for we've been bamfoozled out of three decisions already and b'gosh that's aplenty, but should we have another contest we want it understood right now that, since Marie hasn't written us a doggone line yet, Madge Bellamy is our candidate and we welcome

EXIT SMILING: Special cast—20%. February 10. This was so bad it was good. One of the many you get with a block of pictures.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

THE UNDERSTANDING HEART: Joan Crawford—46%. February 9-10. A very interesting picture with enough romance, action and comedy to please all. The prayer by drunks should be cut, otherwise splendid picture that you will be proud to show. Seven reels.—Eugene Richards, Richards theatre, Fayette, Ala.—Small town patronage.

TEA FOR THREE: Special cast—Good family night picture. Seven reels.—D. E. Fulton, Lyric theatre, Harrison, Ark.—Small town patronage.

TEA FOR THREE: Special cast—Did not appeal to our patrons. Seven reels.—J. M. Rinehart, Majestic theatre, Stuttgart, Ark.—General patronage.

LAW OF THE RANGE: Tim McCoy—Extra good Western. Six reels.—D. E. Fulton, Lyric theatre, Harrison, Ark.—Small town patronage.

BABY MINE: Special cast—Fellow exhibitors if you have this one booked to run for the love of the industry, screen it first, and have your scissors handy in order to cut out the smut. The Metro-Goldwyn corporation executives, Will Hayes, and the National Board of Review must have all been asleep when they let this by as it is the worst we have had in a long time, when it comes to plain unadulterated smut. I was ashamed to face some of our good customers when the show was over, so take heed and screen it—and I am no prude either. Six reels.—Elmer E. Gailey, Crystal theatre, Wayne, Neb.

THE LOVELORN: Sally O'Neil—Good. Six reels.—D. E. Fulton, Lyric theatre, Harrison, Ark.—Small town patronage.

ADAM AND EVIL: Special cast—February 11. This feature drew well, and was very favorably commented on by many of our patrons. Good for any theatre, large or small.—George Lodge, Green Lantern theatre, Claymont, Del.—General patronage.

ADAM AND EVIL: Lew Cody—Just a fair comedy. Have seen lot's better. Did no extra business. Seven reels.—Hollis H. Chase, Diamond theatre, Lake Odessa, Mich.—General patronage.

a fight to a finish, and if we don't mop up the whole premises then Heck's last litter are all dogs. Come on your habies and select your candidates, we are just itching for a fight.

We hope that H. J. Longaker will place E. C.'s name at the head of the list and assign him a place at the speaker's table, since he is the first to respond to the convention call, and now may we look for others to follow. Send your requests and suggestions to H. J. Longaker, Alexandria, Minn. We are going to push that boy into a real job.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

Did you notice the front cover ad of the previous issue of HERALD-WORLD? Five pictures are advertised, four of which show an all-day-sucker clinch. Cut off the titles and see which one of the five you would pick for your entertainment. Hollywood is too darn far from Reno.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

Our old friend, Thomas O. Service, is calling for a remedy for chilblains. We know nothing about chilblains, our life has been devoted to the removal of corns and bunions, but Uncle Leazer Biggs claims to have an infallible remedy. He says "chilblains is caused from standin' too long in the cold at the front door tryin' to find the keyhole. The remedy is to soak the chilblain in concentrated lye for two hours, then take the left kidney from a Shanghai rooster and ruh it over the chilblain from northeast to southwest and then walk around the house three times and hurry it at the northwest corner in the dark of the moon on Friday the 13th, and in three days the chilblain will be gone. Professional services $2." Remittance can be made to Uncle Leazer either by draft, postal order or certified check. P. S. Personal checks not accepted.

*When chilblains come to wreck your life
And all the world seems blue,
Don't take your spite out on your wife
She may have chilblains too.*

*But think of those who try to glean
Some sense from what we write,
And there will come a rosy beam
To cheer you day and night.*

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

We have met some delightful folks down here in the Lone Star state, among them being Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Krutilek of the Rex theatre, Kemp, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Stewart of the Plaza at Kaufman, E. B. Schneider of the Gem at Thorndale, A. N. Matsen of the Dixie at Rockdale, T. C. Kirksey of the Gem at Lott, Ahe Levy of the Strand at Waco, W. O. Rocket of the Queen at Ferris and Leman Marshall of the Iris at Terrell. These folks all have that Texas spirit of optimism that had crops and hard luck can't faze. They are bound to win no matter what happens.

The other exhibitors who gave us the glad hand and chained up the bulldog were H. H. Hoke of the Taylor Amusement Company, Taylor, George Chatmas of the Queen at Hearne, W. C. Allday of the Queen at Calvert, J. P. Harrison of the Hippodrome at Waco, W. F. Cornes of the Cornes at Farmersville, and Theodore Miller of the Palace at Whitewright.

We had a delightful visit from Mr. John S. Bomer of the Gem, Washington and Rialto theatres here in Sherman. Mr. Bomer manages these three houses for the R & R circuit and the R & R people are to be congratulated for having a man of the calibre of Mr. Bomer to handle their business.

Mr. Bomer's show experience dates back over a period of 22 years and his experiences would read like a legend from Jules Verne. We hope to meet many more like Mr. Bomer. May his kind increase and may we meet 'em all.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

We hold no grudge against New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado and we trust they hold none against us, for "When the Roses Bloom Again" we will wander hack through those states hack to the "Ole Swimm' Hole" on the Elkhorn and the hoys along the route might as well stick up the white flag and shout "KAMRAD." That will be the easiest way out of it.

*We fear you'll think that we're a fraud
And say we must be full of hop,
For we can hear Jay shout "My Gaud Ain't that bird ever going to stop."*

*We're going to cease this rambling lay
And trust that you'll forget the past,
For we can hear you joyfully say
"Thank God he's stopped at last."*

J. C. JENKINS,
The HERALD-WORLD Man.

BODY AND SOUL: Lionel Barrymore—My people do not like this type of picture and neither do I. Leaves a bad taste in their mouth. Hope Metro's stuff improves with age. The price I paid them they should all be specials, but most of them are poor programs. Seven reels.—Hollis H. Chase, Diamond theatre, Lake Odessa, Mich.—General patronage.

SPRING FEVER: William Haines—February 3-4. Only a fair picture. I can't see much to his pictures. They are no drawing card for me; too silly and not any too clean. Quite suggestive in the seventh reel. Six reels.—P. G. Held, Strand theatre, Griswold, Ia.—General patronage.

BEN HUR: Special cast—February 8-9. This marvelous spectacle in a class by itself. Great pictures of this type one of the greatest boosters of the motion picture industry. Brings people out that may be converted into regulars. Although it had been shown in a half dozen houses in the vicinity, people came from as far as thirty miles. Twelve reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

BEN HUR: Special cast—February 9-10-11. Our patrons said this was the biggest and best picture ever shown here. No complaints and people came that never had been seen in the place before. Surely a work of art with a wonderful lesson. Especially good comments from the young people. The only complaint is that too much rental is asked from towns of this size, and after the final count is over, you have given a good show with no profits.—Edwards & Case, Opera House, Paw Paw, Ill.—General patronage.

BEN HUR—THE BIG PARADE: Special casts—These are both splendid pictures. "Ben Hur" drew biggest crowd. We did not make any money on them.—H. K. Allen, American Legion theatre, Broadlands, Ill.—Small town patronage.

LOVERS: Special cast—February 10. This is a very good picture. In fact we find all of Metro-Goldwyn pictures very good, and very good box office pictures. Seven reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—General patronage.

THE BIG PARADE: Adoree-Gilbert—Very good. The greatest of all the war pictures. You notice I put Renee Adoree first. Having been over there about two years I could appreciate her as the French girl we all knew. Her portraying of this part is the greatest bit of individual acting I have ever seen. Would like an autographed photo. Metro not fair on the price of this one and "Ben Hur" for small towns. Thirteen reels.—Lester N. Leek, Club House theatre, Jackson, Wyo.—General patronage.

SPOILERS OF THE WEST: Tim McCoy—A good Western, but don't elick any better than some others. Thomas Mix has the other Western stars faded for drawing power yet. Seven reels.—Hollis H. Chase, Diamond theatre, Lake Odessa, Mich.—General patronage.

THE BUGLE CALL: Jackie Coogan—February 14. Drew well, especially the children. Didn't care for it myself. Six reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—General patronage.

THE BUGLE CALL: Jackie Coogan—February 7-8. Well liked picture with Jackie in a good part. When more come out the second night than on the first with the weather the same it must be the picture. Quite a little comedy, some pathos and thrills, enough to make it interesting. Six reels.—John Cosner, Sun theatre, Sargent, Neb.—Small town patronage.

Paramount

UNDERWORLD: Special cast—82%. February 9-10. An exceptionally good picture, perfectly directed. Held the audience spell-bound. Bancroft at his best in this one. The best picture of underworld life we have ever played. Eight reels.—E. F. Ingram, Ingram's theatre, Ashland, Ala.—Small town patronage.

ROLLED STOCKINGS: Special cast—50%. February 10-11. I suppose the idea of the name is to attract patrons but it worked the opposite with us. Good picture with boat race that is fine. Seven reels.—G. E. Wendel, Opera House, Smithland, Ia.—General patronage.

STRANDED IN PARIS: Bebe Daniels—70%. January 15-16. Nice picture that pleased all who saw it. Bebe is generally good. Six reels.—V. Crichton, Regent theatre, Chapleau, Ont., Can.—General patronage.

THE CANADIAN: Thomas Meighan—33%. January 26-27. One of Tom's good ones and the few who came enjoyed it, but he has lost his drawing here. Eight reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

LET IT RAIN: Douglas MacLean—February 9. Very good picture to small crowd, but no fault of the picture. Seven reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—General patronage.

THE WAY OF ALL FLESH: Emil Jannings—57%. February 9. A very good picture. Everyone commented on it. A few said they didn't care for it but the majority liked it. A picture like this is a treat after a lot of shows we have seen. Nine reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

SOFT CUSHIONS: Douglas MacLean—33%. February 5. A good comedy that is different. Sue Carol, a newcomer, is very beautiful and should make a hit everywhere. We're for her. Six reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

IT: Clara Bow—50%. January 29. Well, all we can do is just say what lots of others said: This is one of the best pictures of its kind and we think it satisfied 100 per cent. Seemed to us that they just couldn't make 'em any better than this one. So, if you haven't played it yet, do so as soon as you can and get the box office a-humming. Seven reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE: Douglas MacLean—40%. February 1. Pretty old but good print and good show, so we gave them plenty to satisfy them. Had this bought for two years and we finally got rid of it. Paid too much to make any dough. Seven reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

UNDER THE TONTO RIM: Special cast—February 10. Good Western. Six reels.—Geo. E. Hall, Rialto theatre, Franklin, Neb.—General patronage.

UNDER THE TONTO RIM: Richard Arlen—A good picture. By no means as big as the other Zane Grey pictures, but it will please.—Russell Armentrout, K. P. theatre, Pittsfield, Ill.—General patronage.

UNDER THE TONTO RIM: Special cast—Did not draw so good, but pleased majority of patrons. The story was very good. Six reels.—J. M. Rinehart, Majestic theatre, Stuttgart, Ark.—General patronage.

SHOOTING IRONS: Special cast—The poorest Paramount picture we ever ran. They would do better business to call this picture in.—N. R. Newman, Liberty theatre, Roanoke, Ala.—General patronage.

TWO FLAMING YOUTHS: Special cast—This is a pretty good comedy for older folks. Not much for the younger bunch. No drawing card. Fell flat at the box office. Poor title, I guess. Print No. 1. Photography good. Six reels.—P. G. Held, Strand theatre, Griswold, Ia.—General patronage.

GET YOUR MAN: Clara Bow—Very good little picture, and got me some extra business. Seven reels.—Hollis H. Chase, Diamond theatre, Lake Odessa, Mich.—General patronage.

GET YOUR MAN: Clara Bow—Fair picture but terrible business. Next to our Westerns, Clara Bow is our worst box office attraction.—R. J. Speck, Kenwood theatre, Chicago, Ill.—General patronage.

WIFE SAVERS: Beery-Hatton—February 2-3. Not as good as their previous pictures. Sold as a special and considered a fair program. Six reels.—D. E. Fulton, Lyric theatre, Harrison, Ark.—Small town patronage.

PEAKS OF DESTINY: Special cast—February 13. Shelve this if you can. Have never run a UFA yet that pleased our patrons. Some wanted to know if we charged for such shows.—D. E. Fulton, Lyric theatre, Harrison, Ark.—Small town patronage.

OPEN RANGE: Betty Bronson—February 11. Good Zane Grey picture. Photography and print exceptionally good. Chandler makes excellent impression. Don't blame them for pushing up out of Westerns. Six reels.—Henry Reeve, Mission theatre, Menard, Tex.—Small town patronage.

OPEN RANGE: Special cast—February 10-11. A Zane Grey story always gets the money here, and Paramount certainly knows how to put the class in Westerns. It makes me ashamed to show some of the other program Westerns after exhibiting one of theirs. Six reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

JESSE JAMES: Fred Thomson—I sent the cashier home at 8 o'clock on this picture, admitting all patrons free that came after 8 o'clock. After seeing the picture it was impossible for me to take their money. This was one of Paramount's specials. Be careful.—R. J. Speck, Kenwood theatre, Chicago, Ill.—General patronage.

THE GAY DEFENDER: Richard Dix—February 6. What ho! Richard, we had to go outside and look at the posters again to make sure it wasn't Doug himself. Almost like a grand opera burlesque to see Dix doing all that knife throwing and whip tossing. But, no kidding, it's a pretty good little bit of entertainment, full of action, well mounted. Fred Kohler teeths a mean villain. That boy certainly has a mouthful of menace. Seven reels.—Henry Reeve, Mission theatre, Menard, Tex.—Small town patronage.

TELL IT TO SWEENEY: Special cast—February 9-10. A fair program feature. Did not click at the box office. Nuf sed. Six reels.—Leslie Hables, Reel Joy theatre, King City, Calif.—Small town patronage.

WE'RE ALL GAMBLERS: Thomas Meighan—Good.—N. R. Newman, Liberty theatre, Roanoke, Ala.—General patronage.

SWIM, GIRL, SWIM: Bebe Daniels—A darn good picture. Drew extra business. Seven reels.—Hollis H. Chase, Diamond theatre, Lake Odessa, Mich.—General patronage.

SWIM, GIRL, SWIM: Bebe Daniels—February 9. As good as there is.—N. R. Newman, Liberty theatre, Roanoke, Ala.—General patronage.

NEVADA: Special cast—February 6-7. Good.—N. R. Newman, Liberty theatre, Roanoke, Ala.—General patronage.

LOVE 'EM AND LEAVE 'EM: Special cast—Good program. Six reels.—D. E. Fulton, Lyric theatre, Harrison, Ark.—Small town patronage.

BARBED WIRE: Pola Negri—Good. Failed to get patronage deserved.—N. R. Newman, Liberty theatre, Roanoke, Ala.—General patronage.

HOTEL IMPERIAL: Pola Negri—February 16. Good picture, but we are so tired of war pictures. They simply won't come in to see them. Eight reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—General patronage.

KNOCKOUT RILEY: Richard Dix—It makes an exhibitor feel good to play a picture like this. Brought them out of their seats. During fight scenes I thought they would tear the house down. Dix always good. Made a little money.—E. C. Bays, Globe theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

TEN MODERN COMMANDMENTS: Esther Ralston—February 16-17. A dandy little program picture, which will particularly please the women. Seven reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

Pathe-P D C

TURKISH DELIGHT: Rudolph Schildkraut—Terrible. By all means boys, be sure to shelf this one. Pathe certainly cops high honors for dishing out the sour grapes this season.—R. J. Speck, Kenwood theatre, Chicago, Ill.—General patronage.

ANGEL OF BROADWAY: Special cast—I can't rate this one very good; first, the photography is too dark and then the story lacks popular interest. It drags terribly, lacks the something that makes an audience picture. I was all hopped up over it too. I had seen some good criticisms on it, notably Mae Tinee for one, and I know after running it they were all wet. If the Brookhart bill gets the exhibitor out from under the duds like this one, he will have accomplished something at least. Too bad they had a real cast with joy. Varconi and the balance, usually we look for an outstanding picture with such names but it is poor audience entertainment.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia theatre, Columbia City, Ind.—General patronage.

THE RUSH HOUR: Marie Prevost—Another reason why the radio is so popular. Harrison Ford okay as usual, but the rest of the cast! Marie Prevost never did rate so strong when it came to cash customers. However, there are worse females getting bigger plugs.—R. J. Speck, Kenwood theatre, Chicago, Ill.—General patronage.

THE MAIN EVENT: Vera Reynolds—February 15-16. Fair program picture. Eight reels.—Geo. E. Hall, Rialto theatre, Franklin, Neb.—General patronage.

Tiffany

SNOW BOUND: Special cast—Would like to please my audience this well four times a week. My banker would also smile.—N. R. Newman, Liberty theatre, Roanoke, Ala.—General patronage.

THAT MODEL FROM PARIS: Special cast—As good as we have ever run. Audiences completely satisfied and box office too.—N. R. Newman, Liberty theatre, Roanoke, Ala.—General patronage.

United Artists

THE GENERAL: Buster Keaton—Did not draw so well but it pleased. Lots of laughs. Make it draw and it will please. Eight reels.—E. C. Bays, Globe theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

SALLY OF THE SAWDUST: Special cast—January 29-30. This is rather old. A pleasing picture full of entertainment. Print No. 1. One of the few United Artists pictures that made a little money for me. Ten reels.—P. G. Held, Strand theatre, Griswold, Ia.—General patronage.

THE MOLLYCODDLE: Douglas Fairbanks—A good picture but my folks don't know Douglas or that he's Mary's husband. I bill heavy and get a headache standing in a lobby straining my eyes looking up and down the street for customers. Doug, you're all right, but not here.—S. S. Selbert, Salina theatre, Salina, Okla.—Small town patronage.

Universal

DESERT DUST: Ted Wells—60%. February 11. This is a good Western picture. Will average up with most of them.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

HERO ON HORSEBACK: Hoot Gibson—82%. February 4. Hoot Gibson always draws for me and he is good in this one. However, would have been much better if he had left off the gambling. The mothers here never fail to tell me that they do not like to have their boys see the hero playing a part like this. Small children are the greatest drawing on all Westerns and they should be made clean and wholesome. Five reels.—Eugene Richards, Richards theatre, Fayette, Ala.—Small town patronage.

TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT: Reginald Denny—22%. February 7. Not as good as some of his others. Not very many people out. Seven reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greentree, Utah.—General patronage.

THE THIRTEENTH JUROR: Special cast—90%. February 8. Very good picture and most of our patrons were well pleased. Six reels.—David Straszer, Lyceum theatre, Manchester, Mo.—General patronage.

HER BIG NIGHT: Laura La Plante—60%. January 25-26. Excellent comedy drama. Laura is nearly always good. Six reels.—V. Crichton, Regent theatre, Chapleau, Ont., Can.—General patronage.

“IS YOUR DAUGHTER SAFE?”

Endorsed by Medical Fraternities, Welfare Societies and the Clergy. Now Playing Extended Run at LaSalle-Chicago to Capacity

It is not a re-hash or foreign picture, not an old time worn white slave picture, BUT A BRIGHT NEW LOS ANGELES PRODUCED 1927 PRODUCTION, RIGHT UP TO THE MINUTE IN THEME, COSTUMES AND PHOTOGRAPHY, backed by hundreds upon hundreds of endorsements by press, clergy and public authorities and by many hundreds more exhibitors.

Here's One of Last Week's Box Office Records—Capitol Theatre, Shreveport, La., Seating 400, Gross on Week, $8122.60—Thanks to Mgr. C. T. Thompson, Who Barred Every Sex Picture Ever Made Until "Is Your Daughter Safe?" Came Along and Then Went to Work.

NATIONAL DISTRIBUTOR—"PITFALLS OF PASSION" NOW IN PRERELEASE RUNS

THE FOUR FLUSHER: George Lewis—This is sure a fine little picture and will please 95 per cent. Six reels.—J. M. Rinehart, Majestic theatre, Stuttgart, Ark.—General patronage.

THE FOUR FLUSHER: George Lewis—A very pleasing picture. Will appeal and draw big business if you have used "The Collegians."—Russell Armstrong, K. P. theatre, Pittsfield, Ill.—General patronage.

A HERO FOR A NIGHT: Glen Tryon—Glen Tryon okay here and in two reels, but deserves better pictures, gags and titles. Poor business on this one because Universal has no big first run house here or volunteers no publicity in town about this young comedian.—R. J. Speck, Kenwood theatre, Chicago, Ill.—General patronage.

THE IRRESISTIBLE LOVER: Special cast—Good program picture. Seven reels.—D. E. Fulton, Lyric theatre, Harrison, Ark.—Small town patronage.

ON YOUR TOES: Reginald Denny—Fair. Played this on New Year's in a big blizzard so business was off. Don't know what it would have done. However I don't consider it his best. Seven reels.—Hollis H. Chase, Diamond theatre, Lake Odessa, Mich.—General patronage.

SET FREE: Art Acord—February 6-7. The usual program Western. Just about grossed the rental. Five reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

THE CAT AND CANARY: Laura LaPlante—A good mystery picture, but not a special. Many of my patrons expressed themselves that it was too spooky. My little boy, eight years old, had night mares all night, and heard others say the same thing. It's O. K. if you like that kind of stuff. Eight reels.—Hollis H. Chase, Diamond theatre, Lake Odessa, Mich.—General patronage.

THE PRAIRIE KING: Hoot Gibson—February 7-8. A very good Hoot picture, but the thinnest attendance on a Gibson picture since I don't know when. Maybe I am playing them too close together. Six reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE ICE FLOOD: Special cast—February 14. Some fine scenery. Acting good. The little crippled boy did his part well. Plenty of action; pleased our patrons.—George Lodge, Green Lantern theatre, Claymont, Del.—General patronage.

GALLOPING FURY: Hoot Gibson—Hoot usually fills my house, but he won't next time. No one ever dreamed of him trying to be a comedian. The poorest Gibson picture we ever ran. Charles Chaplin had just as well try to be a prince as for Hoot to be a comedian. We are for Hoot, but give us your natural talent pictures. No one can beat him when he does.—N. R. Newman, Liberty theatre, Roanoke, Ala.—General patronage.

MEN OF DARING: Jack Hoxie—February 11. This star is one of Saturday crowd's favorites and this one is much better than his others. If Westerns mean anything to you play this one. Played to a packed house. Six reels.—E. C. Bays, Globe theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

ONE GLORIOUS SCRAP: Fred Humes—Just a fair Western. Five reels.—D. E. Fulton, Lyric theatre, Harrison, Ark.—Small town patronage.

Warner Bros.

THE BUSH LEAGUER: Monte Blue—40%. January 23. A mighty good melodrama for any house. Monte sure does his stuff in this. Six reels.—D. C. Jones, Joyland theatre, Booneville, Ark.—General patronage.

THE BUSH LEAGUER: Monte Blue—This was a good program picture.—F. E. Sabin, Majestic theatre, Eureka, Mt.—Small town patronage.

HILLS OF KENTUCKY: Rin Tin Tin—60%. January 30-31. Nice picture that drew fairly well and seemed to satisfy those who saw it. Six reels.—V. Crichton, Regent theatre, Chapeau, Ont., Can.—General patronage.

THE COLLEGE WIDOW: Dolores Costello—36%. February 4. A dandy picture. First picture that we liked Dolores Costello in. William Collier, Jr., is 100 per cent better in this than in "Dearie." Seven reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW: Patsy Ruth Miller—34%. February 11. Just fair. Direction poor. Seven reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

DOG OF THE REGIMENT: Rin Tin Tin—February 11. A good Saturday night show. This dog always pleases. Six reels.—Leslie Hables, Reel Joy theatre, King City, Calif.—Small town patronage.

THE DESIRED WOMAN: Irene Rich—Desert story. Army post commander's wife. Two Lieutenants, goofy about her. One goes insane, the other condemned to life imprisonment. Lots of sand. Unpleasant story and background. Seven reels.—F. E.

Sabin, Majestic theatre, Eureka, Mt.—Small town patronage.

SLIGHTLY USED: Special cast—February 8. This was a substitute program and as such pleased as well as they do. It is a very good picture. Seven reels.—Leslie Hables, Reel Joy theatre, King City, Calif.—Small town patronage.

GINSBERG THE GREAT: George Jessel—They didn't finish the title on this one. It should have been called "Ginsberg the Great Flop." George Jessel must be great on the stage, otherwise he'd have been shot in this town long ago.—R. J. Speck, Kenwood theatre, Chicago, Ill.—General patronage.

DEARIE: Irene Rich—"Not much to worry over in this picture," they said as they passed out. We interpreted this to mean "Just another picture." Six reels.—Giacoma Bros., Crystal theatre, Tombstone, Ariz.—General patronage.

A SAILOR'S SWEETHEART: Special cast—Words fail. The most assinine comedy feature ever made. Ran it one night and long distanced for relief from a brother exhibitor. Had he failed me I sure would have had a dark house rather than show it again. Cancel it, by all means. Six reels.—F. E. Sabin, Majestic theatre, Eureka, Mt.—Small town patronage.

State Rights

THE PRICE OF HONOR: Special cast—A darn entertaining picture. Pleased well, but the comedy "Goofy Golf" about as funny as a crutch. Two reels of space ruined and left bad taste before the feature. The feature saved my life. Small town but they know their comedy.—S. S. Seibert, Salina theatre, Salina, Okla.—General patronage.

THE RETURN OF BOSTON BLACKIE: Special cast—Our patrons liked this. Several told me they liked Strongheart better than Rin Tin Tin. Raymond Glenn is better than when he played in Westerns under the name of Bob Custer.—E. C. Bays, Globe theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

SAY IT WITH DIAMONDS: Betty Compton—5%. February 7. Good little show and should satisfy almost any crowd, but no one came to see it here. Seven reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

Serials

CASEY ON THE COAST GUARD: Special cast—No. 6. After a slow start this serial is going and think it will go over big. Two reels.—Lester N. Leek, Club House theatre, Jackson, Wyo.—General patronage.

KING OF THE JUNGLE: Special cast—Very good serial. Now on fifth episode and still going strong. Different from the usual serial. Two reels.—E. F. Ingram, Ingram's theatre, Ashland, Ala.—Small town patronage.

THE TRAIL OF THE TIGER: (Universal) Jack Daugherty—Just finished this serial last night and it sure drew them in for me on Sunday night. It was exciting all the way through. Ten chapters.—David Straszer, Lyceum theatre, Manchester, Mo.—General patronage.

Short Subjects

EDUCATIONAL

ALL SET: You very seldom get a poor comedy from Educational. One reel.—Leslie Hables, Reel Joy theatre, King City, Cal.—Small town patronage.

ASK DAD: A fair one reel comedy. Print good. Photography good. One reel.—P. G. Held, Strand theatre, Griswold, Ia.—General patronage.

THE LITTLE RUBE: An extra good comedy with all kinds of good stuff. Two reels.—Leslie Hables, Reel Joy theatre, King City, Cal.—Small town patronage.

JOLLY TARS: Lloyd Hamilton—This was a good comedy and pleased, so we should worry. Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

JUNGLE HEAT: Very good comedy that made them laugh a-plenty. Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

MOVIELAND: Lupino Lane—Dandy comedy, and the laughs were proof of it. Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

MUCH MYSTERY: Fine comedy and made a good combination with our feature. Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

SOME SCOUT: Lupino Lane—A very funny comedy. Lane is an artist. Two reels.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

SURE CURE: How they do it is a mystery to me. These Mermaids get better and better. Our Saturday crowd is okay if we have a Mermaid and they all look for a "Jack White Production." Two reels.—E. F. Ingram, Ingram's theatre, Ashland, Ala.—Small town patronage.

YES, YES BABETTE: Bobby Vernon—A knock-out comedy, although quite old. Have my patrons guessing about Vernon now because we play both Paramount and Educational comedies and the Paramounts are not so good, although brand new. Two reels.—E. F. Ingram, Ingram's theatre, Ashland, Ala.—Small town patronage.

F B O

BEAUTY PARLOR SERIES: Cooke-Guard—Well, if they will be all as good as this one, we will have a good series coming. It is the first chapter and was very very good. Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

BEAUTY PARLOR SERIES: All these are good, but not as good as in previous series. Two reels.—V. Crichton, Regent theatre, Chapeau, Ont., Can.—General patronage.

FATAL FOOTSTEPS: Whirlwind—Just a comedy. A few laughs but outside of the dancing shoes. Not much. Two reels.—Lester N. Leek, Club House theatre, Jackson, Wyo.—General patronage.

MICKEY (Himself) McGuire:—These are pretty fair imitators of Our Gang but of the many followers of this type. Two reels.—Henry Reeve, Mission theatre, Menard, Tex.—Small town patronage.

MICKEY'S PALS: Best two reeler played this year. Better than "Yale vs. Harvard." Sure glad that I bought F B O comedies this year.—C. McDonough, Auditorium theatre, Libertyville, Ill.—General patronage.

THE WISECRACKERS: Cooke-Guard—Just had "Bo Guests" skit of this run of comedy and it went over with a bang. These boys are putting over nice clean stuff. Two reels.—Giacoma Brothers, Crystal theatre, Tombstone, Ariz.—General patronage.

FOX

CHILD PUPPIES: The Gang—Fox has always had good comedies. This is extra good. Two reels.—J. M. Rinehart, Majestic theatre, Stuttgart, Ark.—General patronage.

HOLD YOUR HAT: A very good comedy, lots of good hearty laughs in this one. Two reels.—Leslie Hables, Reel Joy theatre, King City, Cal.—Small town patronage.

THE KISS DOCTOR: As poor a comedy as ever had in my house I think. Terrible.—Leslie Hables, Reel Joy theatre, King City, Cal.—Small town patronage.

PARAMOUNT

FRENCH FRIED: Dandy good comedy with trained dogs and horses that are extra good. Two reels.—G. E. Wendel, Opera House, Smithland, Ia.—General patronage.

HOLY MACKERAL: Jimmie Adams—A very good comedy. However, Jimmie Adams does not go over like Dooley or Vernon. These Paramounts are not as good as the ones they made for Educational. Two reels.—E. F. Ingram, Ingram's theatre, Ashland, Ala.—Small town patronage.

HOLY MACKERAL: Jimmie Adams—So blame silly, people bated to look at it. No excuse for putting out rot like this. Two reels.—Henry Reeve, Mission theatre, Menard, Tex.—Small town patronage.

HOT PAPA: Jack Duffy—Dandy piece of entertainment and seems as if the old guys like Jack Duffy, Dan Mason and others make them come across with laughter, so you young fellows look out. Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

NIFTY NAGS: Jack Duffy—The best Paramount comedy we have played. This one is certainly good. Two reels.—E. F. Ingram, Ingram's theatre, Ashland, Ala.—Small town patronage.

TODDLES: A wonderful subject of its kind, not a comedy though. It's good. Two reels.—Leslie Hables, Reel Joy theatre, King City, Cal.—Small town patronage.

PATHE

EVE'S LOVE LETTERS: A very good comedy. Two reels.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

HOWDY DUKE: Lupino Lane—Lupino Lane is sure an acrobat and makes entertainment delightful. Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

PLUMBER'S DAUGHTER: Alice Day—An extra good comedy. Two reels.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

THE BOX OFFICE TICKER

A System for Determining the Definite Attraction Values of Motion Pictures

Exhibitors reporting to "What the Picture Did For Me" supply a percentage rating obtained by dividing average daily gross of house record attraction into average daily gross of picture being reported on. When 10 of these percentage ratings on a picture have been received, the average of these 10 percentage ratings is entered in "The Ticker." Each additional percentage-rating report received on pictures entered is combined with those previously received and the new average thus created is entered.

CHICAGO PERSONALITIES

By Whit

CECIL DeMILLE'S "King of Kings" opened last Sunday night at the Erlanger theatre (after having run many months in New York and been shown in many cities in the country) to a capacity house. Very little paper was present and the cash receipts exceeded the only other motion picture to have been shown in the theatre by more than $400, it is claimed.

To my mind the best tribute that could be paid the picture was offered by the audience, itself. As the picture came to a close the first nighters sat still in their seats for a long moment, then filed slowly and silently out of the theatre. Never have I seen such a silent and orderly egress from any theatre. The mighty scenes of the crucifixion and ascension seemed to have gripped and awed the heart of every beholder.

Another legitimate theatre will house a motion picture this week when "Simba," a Martin Johnson jungle film, opens at the Woods Friday night, and the LaSalle, sometimes legitimate house, is now packing in men with "Is Your Daughter Safe?" a men only show.

Tom Delaney, formerly with Pathe, left for Indianapolis last week to begin work as a Tiffany-Stahl salesman.

Dan Roche and Cecil Maberry have moved their offices to the offices of the Pathe exchange. Maberry left last week for Minneapolis where he will be in charge of that branch temporarily.

Mrs. Conrad Veidt passed through Chicago last Friday and was a visitor at the Universal exchange.

Clyde Eckhardt made a flying trip to Minneapolis and Milwaukee last week. It is rumored that he has been appointed supervisor of West Coast Theatres in the Midwest.

Automobile thieves happened along the row last week, and lifted a spare tire and wheel and other accessories from Irving Mack's new car.

Elmer Benesch of the Avon theatre, was host last Friday at the Congress to Flaherty, Grohe and Loeb of Fox for a luncheon. Benesch lost a bet with the Fox men on the return engagement of "7th Heaven" at this theatre.

"Honesty is the best policy." Such seems to be the motto of a certain checker in Chicago. And hurrah for the checker, we say.

Frank Wilson, New York film financier, was in town last week.

According to press reports from London, a young society man has made himself a hero by wearing a sport shirt, without necktie, with a dinner suit at a social affair. When this style innovation becomes popular many film men who don with pain an occasional soup and fish should render thanks to this young hero.

Ben Garrison, who used to handle publicity for Fox, is doing publicity for the Woods theatre and also for the broadcasting station WCFL.

Ralph Kettering, well known to all theatre men in Chicago, has a mystery play called "The Clutching Claw" running at the Forest theatre in New York. Press reports say the play has all the thrills that could be desired and that it ranks well with other current "who done it" shows.

It is rumored that Ted Myers, crack F B O salesman, is the heavy favorite for F B O short subject sales, since salesmen are now receiving two per cent on all short subject sales. Ted's motto is, "never leave a town until you get a short subject order." Ted will persist in calling them "orders."

The F B O salesmen are hitting the road again. They were out all last week on the spring cleanup drive. To stimulate their sales Washburn has "issued stock" to each pair of salesmen. At the beginning of the drive the stock is quoted at par, and the stock rises in proportion to sales. Myers and Johnson were issued Stutz stock; Ullrich and Gorelick, General Motors and Walter Brown and Joe Lyon Auburn stock.

The F B O picture, "Legionnaires in Paris," contains shots of the Kankakee Legion Fife and Drum Corps, which won first prize at the Paris convention.

E. L. Delaney has returned from Biloxi, Mississippi, where he spent two weeks recuperating from a very serious illness. Although he is still a bit weak, he says that in a few days he will be as well as ever.

Hank Peters, known to many men in Chicago, has been made West Coast representative for "Topics and Fables" and will have his offices in Los Angeles.

Mary Astor and Kenneth Hawkes, Fox Film official, spent Sunday in Chicago. They are on their honeymoon. Leaving Sunday night for New York, they will journey on to Cuba. They were married last Thursday in Hollywood. The young bride formerly attended the Kenwood Loring School for Girls here.

The filming of the travels of an air mail letter from New York to the Pacific coast was begun this week by Bert Ruthenberg, cameraman for National Air Transport, Inc. The cameraman will follow mail planes across the continent in another plane.

Fred Aiken, former Pathe man in Chicago, has taken up residence in Boca Roton, Florida. He is interested in real estate but says that he intends to take up farming.

Stanley Jacques, Midwest division manager for Pathe, held a sales meeting at the Chicago office Monday.

John C. Flinn of Pathe was in town over the weekend.

Well, Most of Them Were Looking for Heat, Anyway

Fire, smoke and the clamor of Chicago firemen were not enough to disturb the sleep of several score of Chicago's homeless men Sunday night at the Alcazar theatre, an all-night picture house on Madison street, where a patron pays a dime for rest or recreation, or both.

About 100 men were in the place at 5 a. m. when smoke began to seep up from the floor. One notified Claude Welcome, the manager, who in turn notified the police, and then went among the snoring patrons hoping to get them out without a disturbance.

When the firemen arrived Welcome was still trying to get his audience to leave the theatre, but a sharp wind was whistling up and down the street outside, and about half the audience preferred the warmth and danger to the chilly blast and safety. The fire caused the loss of sleep to the audience and $1,000 to the management.

Tom North was in bed for several days last week fighting off an attack of flu.

"Claude Welcome!" Isn't that just about the best name for a theatre manager you ever heard of.

Charles Darrell is now manager of the Regal theatre.

N. M. Platt, manager of the Tivoli theatre, has the theatre beautifully decorated this week in honor of the seventh anniversary of the house.

When the Paradise theatre opens on Labor Day, the Senate in all probability will become a vaudeville house.

Bessie Zeeman has come in for no end of attention at the M-G-M office for her discovery of a new way of chewing gum.

It is unofficially reported that Harry Graham has written a book entitled, "Auction Bridge and How to Play It," and that he is considering writing another to be called "Mashie Niblick and How to Use It."

It looks as if the gas tax is a thing of the past. This means that film salesmen can now travel more miles on less money to hunt up small town exhibitors who should be showing their product. And we are sorry now that we didn't buy that beautiful town car we picked out at the automobile show.

"PERFECTION!"

An Editorial by Herb Cruikshank in the New York Morning Telegraph

I have seen 'The Legion of the Condemned.' . . . Viewer of a thousand films, it was with difficulty that I refrained from leaping to cheer all the genius responsible for the creation of this masterpiece what a picture!

It is the living story of young men who live suddenly, swiftly, violently, and seek to die in the same manner

From its ingenious first flashes to its final whirlwind climax, the picture is superb in every department”

I congratulate the world. It has a treat in store for it when

'LEGION OF THE CONDEMNED' reaches the motion picture screen A mighty triumph for

The Screen Press

WHERE ARE THE PICTURES?

A GAIN this oft-repeated question; for without pictures—good pictures—the majority of theatres throughout the country are deprived of their one great attraction. The average motion picture house has no symphony orchestra, no glorified tabloid vaudeville with which to gloss over mediocre pictures. It must depend almost wholly upon the quality of its screen entertainment, so when this is poor the theatre's business must suffer.

At present there is a dearth of good pictures, the few in circulation coming from two or three sources only. Let us ask another question. Where would the unaffiliated exhibitors in particular be this season if it were not for the consistently good product of Fox?

Fox announcements for the future bespeak such a continuance of super product as merits the support of all exhibitors.

Good pictures can save the industry and good pictures alone. Pictures should not be used as "chasers," as at present is the case in many houses. There is no incentive to producers to improve when the picture is relegated to a secondary place. And the irony of the situation is that the worst offenders in this matter of burying pictures beneath presentations are those big companies making the most consistently mediocre pictures.

Let these companies now so committed to presentations, and so engrossed in the acquisition of theatres concentrate their best efforts upon the production of consistently worthwhile pictures. Then there will no longer be any need for the utterance of the exhibitor's plaintive and impatient query—WHERE ARE THE PICTURES?

"THE ONE GREAT INDEPENDENT"

WE wondered at the significance of the above designation which appeared in the Fox advertisements appearing in last week's trade papers, until we learned of his acquisition of West Coast Theatres; then we were enlightened.

We have frequently termed him a "great independent;" but being like all really "big" men, modest by nature and preferring to let others say the nice things—the real truth about him; he has been content to go along independently (and how!) making constantly improving pictures.

But now all is made clear; the significance of his announcement of a 100 million dollar production program for the next ten years becomes apparent; and his frank assertion of his position in the industry—that of being THE ONE GREAT INDEPENDENT—becomes understandable.

William Fox's record of successes in the past, dating back to his successful fight against the General Film Co., and his promise of still greater ones in the future, both as evidence by his announcement of next season's product, (and it must be borne in mind that these great box office pictures of his are given to the exhibitor before all the life has been drained from them) as well as by his latest theatre expansion, fully entitles him to this designation. This expansion, his acquisition of control of West Coast Theatres, which have been operated up to now by Paramount, United Artists and Metro-Goldwyn in which he already held 36% interest, was made necessary by the fact that his product was not given an adequate representation in these territories and might have been locked out later. And if he had not taken them, both on the coast and in Wisconsin, they would have been taken over lock, stock and barrel by United Artists, Paramount, Metro and the First National group, all fellow members of the same producers organization.

Now that he has taken these theatres over, perhaps the whole complexion of theatre building by producers will be changed. If this happens it will serve to encourage independent theatre owners in improving their theatres or building new ones in their territory. Not only would this help the independent theatre owner, but aid the producer by way of more customers for their product.

William Fox's success has not been attained at the expense of "small fry" ruthlessly crushed under foot in his progress; nor is it built upon a foundation of destroyed investments and shattered hopes.

William Fox is truly THE ONE GREAT INDEPENDENT, and it is our sincere hope that he may continue to bear and deserve this title for a long time to come. And it would be wonderful for the industry at large if there were a few more of its more prominent figures worthy of a similar designation.

Joining the LUPINNO

LIKE the bright flash of a comet has been the swift and steady rise of this new star in the comedy sky. The screen now offers another great comedian. Lupino Lane has joined that glorious little band of comedy immortals.

An artist to his finger tips, Lane is also the most consistent producer of sure-fire comedy in the business today. You can always count on him to deliver the laughs—and with each picture his name means more to your box-office.

 "THE SPICE OF THE PROGRAM"

comedy immortals— LANE

NO other comedian ever offered such versatility as this, or a more unbroken line of hits:

A Northwest "Mountry" in "Monty of the Mounted." A delightful comedy "kidding" the Northwest dramas, and beginning a series of character satires and burlesques that have opened up a whole new field of comedy.

A would-be hero fireman in "A Half-Pint Hero." With a display of comedy acrobatics that will set any house howling.

A comedy Daniel Boone in "Some Scout." You never knew the funny side of pioneer days could be as funny as this.

A sailor on shore leave, with a tough "buddy" and a sweetheart who has a twin sister, in "Hello Sailor." As the Film Daily says, you just "can't go wrong on this one."

A swashbuckling swordsman of Romantic France, in "Sword Points," over which the critics are all raving now. You've never played a greater two-reel comedy than this.

And a female impersonation in "Listen Sister." Brother, listen for the laughs. There'll be plenty.

Brookhart Bill Fades

WELL-INFORMED advices from Washington indicate that the Brookhart Bill will not be passed. The farther consideration of the measure has progressed the more clear it has become that it is not a sound, constructive or intelligent piece of proposed legislation. Its nature as a cure-all proposition has rapidly become more apparent from day to day, and it is being freely predicted that it will go the way into the discard, together with other cure-all legislative proposals which have been offered by Senator Smith W. Brookhart.

At no time did we believe that the Brookhart Bill had even a slight chance of enactment. Our reason for this was that the measure was so loosely drawn and indicated such a gross lack of understanding of the complex nature of the motion picture business that we believed any senatorial committee, after mature consideration of it, would cause its rejection.

We feel that the industry will escape a dangerous pitfall when the Brookhart Bill is finally disposed of. As we have repeatedly stated, the governmental interference which the measure would have brought about, if its enactment into law was effected, would have set in motion a great machine of harassment which would have been extremely costly and harmful to the business. The expense of the regulations proposed would have been placed upon the producer and distributor. But no intelligent person could imagine that the added expense would have remained there. The exhibitor is the industry's sole collector and it is to him that the industry must look for its revenues. Consequently, the added expense would have been supplied by the exhibitor either out of his own pocket or out of such added collections as he might have been able to make from the public.

The Brookhart Bill would amount to a revolutionary departure in the attitude of this government toward business and industry. This fact represented one of its chief handicaps from the first moment of its proposal.

The discussions which have been precipitated by the Brookhart Bill, together with the hearings at Washington, have clarified the trade's atmosphere on various important matters and have cleared the way for various adjustments and improvements in conditions which are certain to be brought about.

While we have never been convinced of the soundness of the Brookhart Bill, we are still fully cognizant of the fact that various matters with which the Brookhart Bill appeared to be concerned are matters which are not now in a correct or proper status. But defeat of the Brookhart Bill certainly does not mean that the chance of correcting existing evils and abuses in the business has been lost. In fact, the contrary is true: With the Bill out of the way it will be possible for the industry, within itself, to work out, sanely and constructively, its own destinies on the basis of real knowledge and information concerning its problems and difficulties.

The Kent Statement

THE testimony of Mr. S. R. Kent, general manager of Paramount, before the senatorial committee disclosed considerable valuable and pointed information from a man who has both a sound and a comprehensive grasp on the major problems of the industry in its several branches.

Several thousand small town exhibitors will be interested in Mr. Kent's observation to the effect that this type of theatre man is now carrying as much of the load as he can stand. Mr. Kent's idea of how a remedy may be supplied is that production and distribution costs must be curtailed.

Before the committee Mr. Kent again expressed confidence in the principle of percentage booking arrangements as a means for eliminating many of the existing ills of the business.

One of the most interesting features of Mr. Kent's statement to the committee consisted of the information that 1,240 large theatre concerns supplied $22,000,000 of Paramount's gross income during the previous year, and the remaining $8,000,000, making up the total domestic film sales of $30,000,000, came from the rest of the market. In other words, it would appear that $22,000,000 of the $30,000,000 collected in domestic rentals came from only about 10 per cent of the accounts. The number of 1,240 large theatre concerns does not, of course, mean simply this number of theatres because these concerns include all, or practically all, of the theatre circuits with from three to 300 individual theatres.

Nebraska Speaks

ONE of the most illuminating statements listened to by the senatorial committee which was conducting the hearing on the Brookhart Bill was offered by an exhibitor, Mr. C. E. Williams, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Nebraska and Western Iowa. Coming right from the neighborhood precincts of Senator Brookhart, Mr. Williams characterized the bill as "not worth a tinker's cuss." He did not say "damn," which he probably would explain on the grounds of senatorial courtesy.

Mr. Williams' testimony must have been generally painful to Senator Brookhart. Among other things he said, addressing Senator Brookhart:

"The trouble with you, Senator, is you don't know anything about the picture business."

The Nebraska exhibitor reflected the sentiment of several thousand exhibitors of the smaller towns when he declared that block booking was the only thing that enabled the small town exhibitor to get along.

There are, doubtlessly, exhibition situations in which the theatre owner could function much more satisfactorily to himself were he enabled to buy pictures singly, but the sentiment among the vast majority of theatre owners very obviously is that block booking has its economic advantages in connection with price matters, and that it eliminates a great many difficulties which would be present under any other system.

Full Harmony in Industry Seen As Result of Brookhart Hearing

Kent Testifies Pay Is $100,000 and 5 P. C. Net

WASHINGTON, March 6.—A salary of $100,000 and 5 per cent of the net earnings of Paramount after deduction of depreciation and reserves was testified to by Sidney R. Kent, general manager, at the Brookhart hearing. He said last year the figure was reduced to $75,000, but that this year it returned to $100,000.

Doubt Favorable Report; Bill Called Full of Flaws

Committeemen Indicate Belief Complete Relief Can Be Obtained Under Present Laws

[Washington Bureau of Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World]

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Both advocates and opponents of the Brookhart anti-block booking bill last week left Washington feeling that they had made an impression on the members of the senate interstate commerce committee and on each other which would go far toward bringing about a settlement of controversies which have been waged over full line forcing, distributor-theatre competition and compulsory arbitration.

Recommendation of Bill Doubted

To observers at the hearing, however, it did not appear that the committee would report the bill favorably. As written, it is full of flaws; if corrected, observers said, it would necessitate machinery of a most unwieldy measure. Furthermore, questions by members of the committee indicated their belief that full relief from any evils now existing can be obtained under the anti-trust laws.

Throughout the hearings Senator Smith W. Brookhart declared that the bill would be amended so as not to interfere with block booking or blind booking but to apply only to unfair practices. If this is done, it is indicated, there will be nothing covered by the bill which is not cared for by existing law.

New Arbitration Methods Seen

There was a feeling in the air following the hearing, however, that many of the evils brought before the committee will be dealt with by the industry itself.

It was indicated that the charge that chains are forcing independent competitors out of business would be further investigated.

Opening the defense against the measure, Charles C. Pettijohn, attorney for the Hays organization, declared enactment of the bill would mean the ruin of many small exhibitors, because it would permit the purchase of films by non-theatrical organizations which, having no overhead expense or investment, could show them free or at low admissions. "We do not think it is fair for people who are not in the theatre business to be placed in position to buy for the same amount of money motion picture films in competition with men engaged in the amusement," he declared.

Although arbitration was not covered in the bill, it was by far the most consistently discussed subject. It was declared by Pettijohn that 12,566 claims were brought in 1926, involving $2,712,495, of which 5,018 were settled before trial, 5,476 awards were made, 812 claims were withdrawn, 440 were dismissed and 1,007 were pending. Only one claim was litigated before the arbitration and 71 after, and 25 required the services of a seventh arbitrator.

At this point and steadily thereafter attack was made against the set-up of the arbitration boards, it being the contention of Senator Brookhart and his exhibitor-supporters that the present method, with three exhibitors and three distributors on the board, was not conducive to fair trial. They urged that it would be better if the exhibitor selected his arbitrator and the distributor his, and those two selected a third. "Personally," replied Pettijohn, "I favor the selection of arbitrators in this way in preference to the present method, but I cannot convince a lot of the exhibitors and distributors."

Later, exhibitors asserted that where an exhibitor loses his credit he is compelled to put up $500 for every picture he gets, although paying for them in advance, and that in all such cases all distributors are notified "for such action as they may see fit to take," it being agreed, it was charged, that all distributors would require the $500 deposit. This, it was declared by members of the committee, had all the appearance of boycotting, and should be dealt with by the Department of Justice.

Pettijohn Talks of Salaries

Although the committee never did learn what salary Will Hays gets from the organization, which they had asked about, Pettijohn said he received $16,000 a year from the organization and $18,000 from the Film Boards of Trade.

Oily work on the part of Pettijohn in obtaining a change of attitude by E. P. Smith, president of the Iowa exhibitors' organization, was charged by Brookhart, who read a letter from Smith, written previous to the February 13 meeting of the exhibitors, in which he was strongly in favor of the bill, and then referred to the fact that the association had passed resolutions condemning it. He also read a letter from Tom Arthur, another Iowa exhibitor, charging that Hays would use his political power to kill any legislation, which was denied by Pettijohn, who declared that Hays had never even read the bill. Hays was in town March 1 when he appeared before another group of the same committee which is investigating oil transac-

Union Theatre Goes on Rocks; Blue Sky Violation Charged

LOUISVILLE, March 6.—Union labor is beginning to learn in Louisville that everything is not profit for the theatre. Last fall the Temple Theatre Corporation, started operating a new theatre in the Union Labor Temple. With inexperienced management the capital stock was not fully paid in, and the company was unable to meet its bills for construction and equipment. The theatre closed and Dr. Leon Solomon was appointed receiver. A new board of directors was named. As against a capital of $100,000, considerable stock had not been sold, and there was about $20,000 due on stock that had been sold.

Shortly afterward a receiver was asked for the Union Labor Temple, owner of the theatre and labor building, it being alleged that stock of the theatre had been over-subscribed in violation of the blue sky laws, and that the property was being operated at a monthly deficit of $400. It was alleged that indebtedness was increased from $150,000 to $300,000, without consent of the majority of the stockholders. Other alleged irregularities were named.

Just before the theatre closed, a fire in the operators' booth destroyed two reels of a film and caused $800 damage, 500 filing out of the theatre without much excitement.

Brookhart Delays Any Move for Big Quiz While Committee Considers Bill

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Any sweeping inquiry into the film industry which may be contemplated by Senator S. W. Brookhart of Iowa will be held up until the senate interstate commerce committee concludes deliberations on the block booking bill, it was indicated at his office today.

When the hearings began it was rumored that Brookhart would use the evidence adduced by the independent exhibitors as a basis for a demand for a congressional inquiry into the whole industry. But the evidence hoped for apparently did not materialize, if the committee accepts statements of the distributors that they were doing everything possible to bring about an amicable settlement of controversies, which, they declared, did not represent nationwide conditions.

Idea of Film Monopoly Idiotic, Writes Brisbane

"Talking about a monopoly of moving pictures is idiotic," wrote Arthur Brisbane last week in his regular column in Hearst morning papers. "The most successful unit in moving pictures," he continued, "is one individual, Charles Chaplin, who writes, directs, and acts his own pictures. You may have a monopoly in steel, pork, or street cars, but not in brains."

tions, but did not attend the Brookhart hearings.

Block booking was never a subject of agitation in the film industry until it was condemned, at about the same time, by the Federal Trade Commission in its order against Paramount and by the British film quota bill, Pettijohn asserted.

Pettijohn and Brookhart got into a brief argument when the former expressed his opinion that the latter had not written the bill. The argument was stopped by Chairman Watson and it never was learned whether Brookhart, Leo Brecher, Trade Commissioner Abram F. Myers or anybody else was responsible for the measure.

Kent Calls Measure Unworkable

The chief witness for the opponents of the bill was Sidney R. Kent, general manager for Paramount. He was responsible, he told the committee, for a very unsuccessful experiment in single-picture selling a few years ago, which failed because the exhibitors displayed no interest in the method, and cost his company a lot of money. "I am perfectly willing to tear down block booking tomorrow if it has served its purpose," he added. "I am opposing the Brookhart bill because it is impractical in theory and would not be workable if passed."

Kent declared block booking has existed almost since the industry began and the steadily increasing prosperity proves that it does not retard progress.

There are some abuses in the industry, Kent admitted, but they are being dealt with as rapidly as possible. There is no monopoly, he maintained, pointing out that for some films he gets as low as 1,000 contracts and for others as high as 14,000; if there were a monopoly, he could get 14,000 contracts for every picture. As a matter of fact, only 5 per cent of the contracts are for full output, and they are chiefly from important exhibitors.

Blind booking is not bad, Kent told the committee, because the exhibitor knows the star who will be featured and can tell pretty well what kind of a picture it will be. Furthermore, these exhibitors have been dealing with the companies for years and have faith in them, he said. The best pictures are not always the most success-

Percentage Playing Is Cure, Says Kent

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Percentage playing of pictures is the cure for any evils under the block booking system, Sidney R. Kent, general manager of Paramount, told the Brookhart hearing committee. He said he is "perfectly willing to tear down block booking tomorrow if it has served its purpose as far as our company is concerned."

ful, and it is necessary that the producers at all times be exploring new fields in the effort to make new friends for the screen; the assistance of the exhibitor is essential, for the companies cannot bear the burden of the unprofitable picture alone, he explained.

Exhibitors can and have gone into production, the outstanding example being First National, the committee was informed. The company, he said, had the tightest block booking plan of all. An exhibitor had to buy stock before he could buy pictures, and had to agree to take every picture made at the price fixed upon it by the organization and could not cancel his contract for six years.

Touches on Sapiro Plan

Overseating and over-production comprise the biggest menace to the industry today, Kent declared. He condemned strongly the "insane form of competition" displayed by the distributors in building competitive theatres. On the other hand, the producer-owner theatre is meeting competition from exhibitors who are forming buying combines, one of which is being fostered in New York by Aaron Sapiro which will have $4,000,000 to spend for pictures each year. He told the committee that Sapiro was asking $100,000 a year for his services, which was the amount of his own salary.

The total turnover of Paramount is nearly $100,000,000 a year. Film sales total about $42,000,000, of which $30,000,000 is in this country. Of this, $22,000,000 comes from 1,240 large accounts and $8,000,000 comes from thousands of small exhibitors with whom it costs 50 cents on the dollar to do business while the big accounts are obtained at comparatively small expense.

Calls Percentage Playing Remedy

Percentage playing is the remedy for any evils now existing, Kent declared. Where a picture is played on percentage, the producer gets his reward automatically if it is successful and his penalty equally automatically if it is not. He personally favored this plan and some 50 per cent of Paramount business is now done on some form of percentage agreement, he declared.

C. E. Williams, of Omaha, whose theatre burned while he was at the hearings, came out strongly against the Brookhart bill and engaged in several verbal tilts with its author, in the course of which he informed Brookhart that he knew nothing about the motion picture industry and, again, that his bill was worthless as it stood, would be worse if amended and there would then be no reason for its enactment.

He declared that he is getting a full week's program from Universal for $9.50, and that thousands of exhibitors are using those programs, which have been a great boon to them. Block booking is the "salvation" of the small exhibitor, he said, and his territory knows nothing of the difficulties of the exhibitors in the East, but his fellow exhibitors "in the sticks" are getting pictures within 30 days of their first showing.

Williams also defended the arbitration system, meeting the criticism that the exhibitors would favor the distributors because they dealt with them and that the distributors would not vote against themselves by saying that the distributors were kept on the job because they could sell films and not because of the decisions they rendered and that they were more likely to favor the potential customer than the home office.

Cochrane Defends System

Universal could not operate under the Brookhart bill, it was declared by Robert H. Cochrane, vice-president of the company. Universal is turning out quantity production at low price, and must sell in blocks and blind because if it could not offer the pictures until they were finished it could not carry the financial burden and would go under, he said. The quickest way to create a monopoly is to force the independent producer out of business, he said.

The reformers see in the Brookhart bill an excellent opportunity to further their plan for Federal censorship, it was indicated by Canon William Sheafe Chase of Brooklyn, general secretary of the Federal Motion Picture Council in America and superintendent of the International Reform Federation. Canon Chase gave enthusiastic approval to the bill.

Attacks Film Productions

Promising Chairman Watson that he would not talk censorship, Canon Chase launched into a denunciation of the film productions of the day, charging the producers with appealing to the "gutter instincts" of their audiences rather than leading them to "higher, purer and better things."

He proposed two amendments to strengthen the bill, one of which would declare the production, distribution and exhibition of films a public utility, and as such subject to regulation, declaring that the public is interested in moving pictures and therefore the business becomes a public utility. The other amendment would limit the provi-

New Contract Erases Trouble, Says Eisner

KANSAS CITY, March 6.—The new contract will go a long way toward correcting exhibitor difficulties, in the opinion of Adolph Eisner. Following is comment from Eisner and R. R. Biechele:

Adolph Eisner, manager, Gillis theatre, Kansas City, and former president, M. P. T. O., Kansas City.—There is no question in my mind but that the changes in the rules of arbitration made by the contract committee will do away with many evils which have been figurative thorns in the side of the motion picture industry. Arbitration in the screen industry should be as methodical as the regulations of any city or state court and should be just as fair as the rulings of any court. I believe the changes made by the contract committee will go a long ways towards accomplishing that. The exhibition contract gradually is being improved upon until, I predict, the old handicaps we long have been laboring under will have disappeared.

R. R. Biechele, president, M. P. T. O. Kansas-Missouri and member of contract committee.—Each member of the contract committee agreed that there would be but one statement from them, and I naturally cannot violate that agreement, but you may rest assured that the joint statement represented my views wholly or I would not have agreed to it.

Gross of 37 Million in 1927 by Stanley Sets a New Record

PHILADELPHIA, March 6.—Gross income of the Stanley Company of America set a new high record of $37,060,024, contributed by 100,000,000 patrons in 1927. This compares with total income of $22,909,812 for 1926.

Net earnings of the company, before depreciation and United States taxes, totaled $5,479,668 and the balance available for dividends, after depreciation and taxes amounted to $3,293,582. After payment of $3,181,089 in dividends a surplus of $112,493 for the year remained.

The consolidated balance sheet of the company and subsidiaries as of December 31, 1927, shows current assets of $7,660,091, compared with current liabilities of $827,623.

Fischer Circuit to Expand To 85 Houses in 4 States

No Mergers Made and None Contemplated, Says President—Five Deluxe Theatres for Wisconsin

By WILL WHITMORE

An independent theatre chain of at least 85 houses in the Middlewest is in the making, with announcement of an extensive building and development plan in four states by F. W. Fischer, president and general manager of Fischer's Paramount Theatres. At the same time Fischer was emphatic in his declaration that the circuit, which already has more than a score of theatres, has not been a party to any mergers and none is being considered.

Five Deluxe Houses Start in Month

More than half a hundred theatres will have been added to the chain by January 1 in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, while in Wisconsin construction of five deluxe showplaces at a total outlay of $2,500,000 will start within 30 days, Fischer announced from the company's headquarters in Chicago.

"The announcement is made at this time," Fischer said, "to kill the many rumors of late which connect Fischer's Paramount Theatres with recent mergers and contemplated mergers. The huge development program that we have underway is positive proof that no mergers have been made and that none is contemplated."

Rumors of late have connected Fischer's Paramount Theatre chain with the formation of the Midwesco chain after the purchase of the Saxe chain by West Coast Theatres, the Fox-Wesco-Skouras transaction and the Fox-F. & R. deal which is reported to be ready for signing, but all rumors of alliance with any other organization are emphatically denied by Fischer.

Besides the construction of the five deluxe theatres in Wisconsin, another theatre is to be built in Watertown, Wis., and negotiations are underway for the construction of theatres in Merrill, West Bend, Wisconsin Rapids, Rhinelander and Fort Atkinson, all in Wisconsin.

Negotiations are proceeding for the building and purchase of theatres in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, and, according to Fischer, by the end of the year more than 50 theatres will have been purchased in these three states by Fischer's Paramount Theatres.

$2,400,000 in Bond Issues

To cover the building of the five Wisconsin theatres a $1,400,000 bond issue has been made through the George M. Foreman company, Chicago bankers, and in addition to this, another bond issue of $1,000,000 has been authorized to cover further developments.

The five deluxe theatres, for which contracts already have been let, will be built in the following cities: Beloit, 1,800-seat house in a seven-store and 18 apartment building, costing $700,000; Monroe, 1,000-seat theatre, one store, three apartments, cost, $300,000; Appleton, 1,800 seats, two stores, eight apartments, $725,000; Stevens Point, 1,500-seats, four stores, 10 apartments, $520,000, and Marshfield, 1,200 seats, three stores, eight apartments, $300,000.

Hooper and Janusch, Architects

Hooper and Janusch are the architects for these theatres and contracts have been let with Lorenz, Redding & Company, general contractors, for construction.

Fischer's Paramount Theatres was reorganized January 1 under the name of Fischer's Paramount Theatres Corporation of Delaware, with a capitalization of $2,500,000 class A stock and $750,000 class B stock.

First Division Releasing 3 Films in March, April

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 6.—Three pictures of varied themes are announced for release during the month of March and April by First Division Distributors. The first is "The Masked Angel," starring Betty Compson and produced by I. E. Chadwick; "Souls Aflame," produced by Robert S. Furst and directed by Raymond Wells in the Ozarks; and "Fagasa," a picture made on a little known United States possession in the Samoan group of the South Sea Islands.

Benefit Show for Children Prevented As Musicians Union Bars Free Playing

ATLANTA, March 6.—Atlanta's under-privileged children won't get the proceeds of a midnight benefit show at the Howard theatre. The reason for that is: there wasn't any show. And the reason for that is: the Musicians union refused to permit its members to play without charge.

The Howard, Loew's Grand, Keith's Georgia and the Grand had agreed to combine efforts in putting over the show to raise a fund for the Lions club work. Then C. B. Bearden, union business manager, protested that the show had been announced on Sunday, whereas the request for the musicians' services was not received until two days later. The managers stated they had spoken only for themselves and artists. Each interviewed member of the musicians' union said he gladly would have taken part.

BROADWAY

NEW YORK.—The barker is back on Broadway. Go past the new Paramount theatre just about the time a show starts and listen to the line of that rear-admiral out front: "The show's about to start, ladies and gentlemen, a great show and in five minutes there'll be seats." All he needs is to get a megaphone and dress up his line a bit: Ladeez and gentlemen, inside this magnificent palace, shaming the most grandiose temples of the wide world, you will see the most mellifluous, most gorgeous, most marvellous . . ." . . . Herman F. Jans has been out of the picture spotlight for a long time, but light or no light he can be seen at his swell office in 565 Fifth avenue most any afternoon. . . . The U. S. Department of Commerce report shows that South America was the biggest importer of American-made pictures last year. The footage, if you must know, was 82,822,376, but what does a little thing like that mean when one considers that J. R. Grainger has started for the Coast again, making his 50th trip. Now there's a bit of footage that totals up to (if our totaller knows his onions) no less than 792,000,000. Considering that he has to come back every time he goes out he has been to Mars just exactly $3\frac{7}{8}$ times, proving something about the pyramids. . . . The big wag and gag men are working on the big electric signs which tells Broadway that "Four Sons" is "Big as the Heart of Humanity." Bah, says the old cynic, must be a one-reeler. . . . The Film Renter, which comes all the way from London, has a neat break on the news. It tells all about Harry Warner's luncheon talk at the Trocadero, when Harry told the boys this: "The reason that Vitaphone was not being developed in this country was that it was impossible to secure sufficient machines to use for its presentation. The demand in the States was so great that it was difficult to keep pace with it. Warner Brothers were so confident about Vitaphone that they refused to promote it, and they put their own money into the device. They refused tempting offers for shares." . . . Ray Johnston, president of the Rayart Corp., is in the Far West making contacts with the exchanges and theatres. His office reports that sales are brisk, and prospects bright. Ray has a way of brightening things up wherever he goes. . . . Jesse J. Goldberg left for the Coast on Saturday. Mr. Jesse has signed up some big talent for his new productions. . . . Walter E. Green, president of Brenda Pictures Corp., has a fine picture in "The Port of Missing Girls." Lots of the girls know "The Port of Missing Men" up in Westchester County. It is an epicurian retreat par excellence. . . . Louis, the office oracle, pulled a fast one today. He said, "If the I. R. T. gets a seven cent fare, Jimmie won't be the only Walker." . . . Authentic report states that the signatures required to make the Sapiro Co-Operative organization a reality will be placed on the dotted line on Wednesday next. Sapiro is to devote part time to the picture co-operatives at the salary of \$100,000 per year. That's a good chunk of "green" for part time work, even for a potato and truck garden king. . . . The movie boys are still after the big guns. The latest report has it that they wanted Fritz Kreisler, the fiddler, for a week at \$15,000. Fritz said he couldn't do it; he liked the idea but couldn't afford to let his salary drop down to that figure.

Mining Films Available

WASHINGTON.—A series of educational films, depicting the processes employed in mining, are available for distribution in Massachusetts by the Division of University Extension, at Boston. These films were produced by the United States Bureau of Mines.

—from Pathe

PATHE has found a generous side to "hard-boiled" Chicago. After giving gladly from its store of lively elements the material for "Chicago," one of the season's fine photoplays, that city has just received Cecil B. DeMille's "The King of Kings" with enthusiasm.

Above and at left are pictured two scenes from "Chicago." In the upper one, Phyllis Haver, enacting the leading role of the publicity-mad murderess, indicates her fears to Victor Varconi as her husband. At left, she is shown awaiting the arrival of the police, following the crime. The picture is based on Maurine Watkins successful stage satire. Frank Urson directed.

Screen Influence for Good among Youth of Cities

THE MOTION PICTURE THEATRE as an influence for good among the youth of a community is the subject of a survey conducted by "Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World" among clubs of a nationwide organization that KNOWS Young America.

Results of the survey, which brings out a number of illuminating facts, will be published in the March 17th issue.

Six Held to Grand Jury in Louisville Stench Bomb Case

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

LOUISVILLE, MARCH 6.—Six persons charged with being implicated in dropping of stench bombs in the Keith-Albee theatres in Louisville during a strike of theatre employees were held over to the grand jury last week, charged with banding together to intimidate or disturb other persons. Judge Fred Starck of the police court set bonds at $300 each. The six are George P. Laffel, 50, president of the local chapter of the Musicians' Union; Mrs. Elizabeth Williams, Clarence Demaree, Leo Stovall, Harry Pulford, and Ancil Trammell, also known as Cecil Reid.

Similar charges against Evans S. Lamb and R. B. Hays were dismissed when they turned state's evidence.

Since the numerous arrests it is reported that the trouble at the theatres stopped. For several weeks the Mary Anderson and Rialto theatres had been the targets of bomb dropers.

Walter E. Greene Puts "Port of Missing Girls," 8-Reeler, on Open Mart

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 6.—Walter E. Greene, after an absence of several years, has re-entered the producing and distributing field and has announced his intention of disposing of his product on the open market. His initial offering carries the title of "The Port of Missing Girls," an elaborate production in eight reels.

Greene is one of the pioneers in motion pictures, having first become identified with the industry more than 20 years ago, and has been prominent as a film renter, theatre owner, and executive.

The picture was produced from the story and screen play by Howard Estabrook, and was directed by Irving Cummings.

Show Pictures in Season Depicted, Says Exhibitor

Can't Make Tieups Except When Public Interest Is Focused, Declares Ray Tubman of Ottawa

[By Special Correspondent of Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World]

OTTAWA, March 6.—Long features should be presented in their appropriate season, in the opinion of Ray Tubman, manager of the Regent and Imperial theatres, Ottawa, Ontario, and one of the most widely experienced exhibitors in the Dominion. Showing a snow picture in the summer is all wrong, he holds.

Wants Seasonal Films in Season

Presenting the Canadian point of view, Tubman declared that he preferred to have football pictures in the fall; baseball pictures in the baseball season; stories of the Frozen North in the winter; pictures depicting life in the South Sea Isles or in the tropics during the summer—generally, seasonal pictures in their proper season.

"One time, out in Calgary, Alberta, I tried running a winter picture in the summer," he explained. "It was called 'The White Desert' and it had plenty of ice and snow. I covered the entrance to the theatre with artificial icicles and sparkling white snow and played up the coolness of the theatre. It was all apple-sauce and didn't mean a thing. I decided right there and then that the people did not want ice and snow when the temperature was up around 100 degrees."

Depends on Public Interest

"I want a football picture during the football season when the attention of the people is focused on this sport," he continued. "I want it then also because of local tieup possibilities. You cannot put over a tieup with a football picture in the middle of April but you can do so in the middle of October when everybody is enthusiastic about the sport. Insofar as Ottawa is concerned, it would be foolish to run a skiing picture at any time except during the winter season because there are so many skiers in Ottawa and they all want to see the skiing on the screen when they are doing it themselves.

"It does not seem rational to me to walk in off a hot street and see a raging blizzard on the screen. In my opinion there is no mental effect because, even though the theatre patrons see the snowstorm in the picture, they still know that it is blazing hot outside and it does not mean a tinker's damn."

"How about 'The Collegians,' for example?" he was asked.

"They do a little bit of every thing in 'The Collegians,'" he replied, "and it does not matter so much in a series like that. There is a general theme running through pictures of that type that make them suitable for almost every season of the year, particularly when the schools are in session.

Even there, the seasonal idea crops up again.

"There are pictures which have general appeal, of course, and they are good any time. It does not matter in a big feature if there are some shots showing snow stuff because it all fits into the story and is accepted as such. But where there is a picture with a story dealing with a seasonal theme or appealing to one trend of thought give it to me when the situation is most appropriate and when I can obtain an advertising or stunt tieup."

Simmons Succeeds Young As Gotham Ad Director

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 6.—Michael L. Simmons has succeeded Lon Young as director of advertising and publicity of

Michael L. Simmons

Gotham Productions, producing firm for Lumas Pictures Corporation. Young left yesterday for the West Coast to become supervisor of production with another company.

Simmons is well known to motion picture circles of New York. He has been on the editorial staffs of The Film Daily and Exhibitors Daily Review, and also has been motion picture editor of the Morning Telegraph. At one time he was foreign representative for Universal. In addition, his weekly "Movie Chat" has been a feature of WPCB. Besides his other duties, Simmons is to read books, plays and manuscript for Gotham.

Steffes Sounds Need for Better Exhibitor Cooperation; Says Organization Threatened

"It is rather discouraging to have 200 or 300 theatre owners out in the smaller towns sit back continually and 'let George do it,'" says W. A. Steffes, in an article in a regional trade paper of Minneapolis, in which he calls for more exhibitor support for the Northwest Theatre Owners' Association, of which he is president.

In calling for money to establish a defense fund with which to fight for the rights of exhibitors, Steffes says in the article that unless more support is given the organization it will be in danger of disbanding.

Patrons' Verdicts Differ on Chain Theatre Effect on Programs

Some Complain Over Type of Pictures Received, Others Say They Get Fresher Films and More Entertainment

ALBANY, March 6.—There has been considerable discussion of late in various sections of New York state, both by the exhibitor and the patrons of motion picture theatres, as to whether chain houses are good for a community, or whether the residents of a community would be better pleased if the houses were individually owned. During the last year or so there has been a steady tendency toward chain ownership in New York state, with the result that today there are a half dozen or more chains, including the largest, operated by the Schine Brothers and including more than 120 theatres; the Smalley chain, of a dozen or more houses; another chain operated by Lewis Fischer, while William Benton, of Saratoga Springs, also owns a string of houses in northern New York.

THERE is no question but that residents in some of the cities and villages in which chain houses control the situation or have things pretty much their own way, have been inclined to kick this winter on the pictures they have been receiving. On the other hand, residents in some places say that the pictures being shown in the chain houses reach them far quicker than if the theatres were individually owned, and furthermore that these large chain houses are able to give more in the way of entertainment by buying at more advantageous prices.

Use of Acts Increases

There appears to be a strong tendency in the state to supplement the pictures with vaudeville, varying from three acts to as high as six or seven. Exhibitors who are using vaudeville say that it is working out very satisfactorily, although rather expensive.

More than one exhibitor recalls the days when he served as a house manager in an individually owned theatre and was allowed to use his initiative rather than be confined to making out elaborate reports that perhaps consume hours. Exhibitors also say that when the individual owns his own house he has a greater incentive to please the public, takes more pride in selecting the entertainment that he gives to his public, and draws a more personal interest from patrons.

Sharp Fight for Patronage

There are several chains in New York state which use their bigger pictures at the first-run houses, and then place the less acceptable product in the smaller houses, where a lower admission is charged.

In some cities there is a stiff fight going on for patronage between the chain theatre and the individually owned house, with the result that probably both houses are not making money. But what the chain house loses one place it makes up in another, with the result that the individual owner is the person who really suffers in the final analysis, the independent exhibitors say.

Federal Action Against Distributors Hinted as Echo of Chicago Strike

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Culmination of a long investigation into alleged boycotting during the strike in Chicago last summer is expected to be the filing of a suit charging conspiracy and restraint of trade against distributors by refusing to sell films to exhibitors who remained open.

It is understood that the Department of Justice, which has been investigating the matter for many months, will file such a suit soon. Officials refuse to comment on the matter, other than to admit an investigation was made. It is understood here that evidence was unearthed which will be made the basis of a suit, to be filed in the Federal Court in Chicago.

(Leaders in the industry refused to comment on the report from Washington that a federal suit was contemplated, but it was generally known that an investigation had been made.)

"Mother Machree" Opens; Third Fox Film on Broadway

By PETER VISCHER

NEW YORK, March 6.—William Fox now has two mother pictures on Broadway "Mother Machree" came to New York last night and moved into the Globe theatre, just a block from the Gaiety, where "Four Sons" is glorifying Mutterchen, German counterpart of the old Irish heroine.

Endorsed by Irish Societies

"Mother Machree" was generously received and the feeling seemed to be general that John Ford had accomplished something almost the equal of "Four Sons" in its direction. Apparently it will never embarrass the Fox bank account, for most students of motion pictures seem agreed that a good mother picture is bound to make money. Everybody, it seems, has a mother.

Some of the scenes taken in Ireland found hearty response, for they were placed with imagination and filmed with rare delicacy. Representatives of Irish societies, to whom the picture was shown before its New York opening, found them gentle and happy reminders of the old country. The Irish, it was announced, have given the picture hearty endorsement.

Gives Fox Three on Broadway

Belle Bennett, who first won fame as a screen mother in "Stella Dallas," played the title role in "Mother Machree." She was well supported by a strong cast, which included Victor McLaglen, Neil Hamilton, Ethel Clayton, Constance Howard, Pat Somerset and others.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of the "Mother Machree" opening from a trade standpoint lay in the fact that it gave Fox three big attractions along the Great White Way, "Sunrise" and the two pictures using mother-love as their theme.

Prosperity's Lone Foe Is Pessimism: Brisbane

"There is no more reason for expecting prosperity to stop than for expecting the Niagara river to stop flowing over the cliff," declares Arthur Brisbane, Hearst editorial writer. "Everything is promising in this country—wealth, high earning power, good wages. There is no danger except in foolish, unnecessary pessimism."

"Business is not going backward," Brisbane writes. He predicts that 1928 will be "one of our best years."

Paramount Report of Compliance Fails To Pass Commission

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The Federal Trade Commission yesterday disapproved the report of compliance sent to it by Paramount in response to an order to cease and desist issued to the company last July, and announced that it proposes to proceed immediately to enforce its order unless a satisfactory compliance is offered.

The order was issued July 9 prohibiting formation of a conspiracy in restraint of trade, block booking, and acquisition or threats of acquisition of theatres to enforce sale of the company's pictures.

Paramount announced in its report of compliance that it had caused to be prepared a set of instructions which were sent to the district and branch managers, it was stated at the Commission offices yesterday. The instructions stated that no adequate substitute for block booking had been proposed in the Trade Practice conference and that all branch and district managers were instructed to cooperate in enforcing the recommendations adopted at the conference.

"The present action of the Commission is the result of the failure of the Trade Practice conference to provide for a final elimination of block booking," it was declared.

It was indicated at the Commission that if Paramount fails promptly to indicate its compliance with the order, suit for its enforcement will be filed in the federal courts in New York.

E. F. Ingram Goes to Coast To See Pictures in Making

E. F. Ingram of Ingram's theatre at Ashland, Ala., is one of those exhibitors who believe that they can understand their own job better if they study at firsthand the problems faced by the producers of the pictures which they are to show later in their theatres.

Consequently, Ingram has taken his valise in hand and hid himself from the Sunny South to the Sunny West to visit the studios.

It's a long trail from the set to the screen, and a trail with which not too many exhibitors or producers are familiar.

Stanley Adds Five Haring-Blumenthal Houses to Circuit

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

PHILADELPHIA, March 6.—The Stanley Company has purchased the five Haring and Blumenthal theatres, the Central, Union, and Ritz in Jersey City, and the Lincoln and Roosevelt in Union City, N. J., according to Irving D. Rossheim, president. The strength of the Stanley-Fabian Corporation is especially indicated by the acquisition of those properties, it is thought, since Stanley-Fabian, of which Jacob Fabian is executive head, controls 65 theatres in New Jersey.

With the consummation of this transaction the Haring and Blumenthal circuit passes out of existence. Each of the acquired houses is a first-run, the Lincoln and Central presenting vaudeville with pictures; the Ritz and Roosevelt, straight pictures; and the National, pictures with Vitaphone.

The addition of these five theatres of the Haring-Blumenthal group gives to Stanley direction of more than 275 houses.

Griffith Names Lindeman As Special Representative

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 6.—D. W. Griffith has appointed Edward L. Lindeman as his personal representative and contact man with the United Artists Corporation. Lindeman's duties will include approval of all sales contracts made in behalf of Griffith and visits to the exchanges to maintain the producer's contacts with the managers of the branches.

Edward L. Lindeman

Lindeman was special sales representative of United Artists for several years and also acted in the same capacity for a time for the Harold Lloyd Corporation after the comedian became affiliated with Paramount.

Fox Athletic Club Annual Is Profusely Illustrated

Fox Athletic Club's annual, just issued in celebration of the organization's second year of activity, is an ornate volume of 96 pages with forewords by William Fox, Jack G. Leo and Joe G. Fine, editor, and a history of the club by Fred Bullock, Jr., its president.

The volume, which is profusely illustrated with cuts of the Fox organization's athletes, lays particular emphasis upon the Fox Film Frolic and "Cut It Out," stage panorama written by Roger Ferri.

Bill Against Lobbyists Passed by U. S. Senate

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Bluenose radicals, called the "bigotry lobby" in connection with the looming fight over the Lankford bill to cram showless Sundays down the throats of the citizens of the capital, were dealt a blow last week when the senate passed the Caraway bill requiring registration of all lobbyists. Violators would be subject to one to 12 months' imprisonment and a fine of $100 to $1,000.

What Rent Should Theatres Pay For Program Film, Royster Asks

Charges Are Exorbitant, Declares Official of North Carolina Exhibitors Association, Citing Cases of Two Towns—

47 Per Cent Average in One City

What rentals should a theatre pay for program pictures? N. L. Royster, secretary-treasurer of the Theatre Owners Association of North Carolina, asks this question in a letter to EXHIBITORS HERALD AND MOVING PICTURE WORLD. Royster traces the rentals paid in two towns of his state and charges that the rentals are exorbitant.

42 Per Cent His Lowest Rental

One theatre in a small town pays an average as high as 51 per cent to one company, with 42 per cent its lowest. The only other house in the town pays only 4 per cent less. In another town the three theatres, all capably managed, are paying 47 per cent on gross receipts, with a $50 daily overhead. And practically all the managers in the two towns, Royster says, have been exhibitors for years and should know how to buy pictures.

"Film companies have made a great mistake by cutting down trade paper advertising," Royster declares, while stating that production costs in his estimation are too high. His letter follows in full:

"I have been asked by several exhibitors of North and South Carolina to write relative to some facts I have in my possession which might prove of interest to other exhibitors in this country, and might be the means of bringing out comment which would prove beneficial to all exhibitors.

Asks Whose Fault It Is

"The subject, of course, will be what film rentals should a town pay for the program pictures, not counting the specials at all. I have had more grief, more kicks, and am seeing more hardships in the moving picture exhibiting business than ever before in my 22 years' experience. What causes it? Is it the fault of the exhibitors, the exchange, or general conditions?

"I have made a careful study of this question the past year as secretary-treasurer of the Theatre Owners Association of North Carolina, and as an exhibitor, and I am going to cite a few facts and figures which are true, but which will hurt some and probably help others.

"I am first going to take a town in our state of 7,000 population which has two small theatres. Both are very well kept, managed by their owners, who have had several years' experience in the business. This town is an average, prosperous little city, with no unemployment. One theatre, I find by looking at his books, pays Universal an average of 51 per cent film rental, Warner Brothers 43 per cent, Pathe 42 per cent and Metro 49½ per cent on his gross receipts. The second theatre pays only 4 per cent less than the other theatre. Now, whose fault is this? Can the exhibitors last very long at these rentals? They are hustling men, advertise very well, keep their theatres in good shape and are well thought of in their town. The different film companies know they are getting exorbitant film rentals, but they, of course, won't cut their contracts.

"Another town I investigated is a city of 15,000 population with three theatres, all in good condition, capably managed and well advertised and exploited. I find that these three theatres are paying an average of 47 per cent film rentals on their gross receipts, with an average daily overhead of $50.

Exhibitors of Years' Standing

"Practically all of the managers of these two towns which I investigated have been in the motion picture exhibiting business for years, and should know how to buy films. It does seem that they should know enough not to pay such exorbitant film rentals, but they are doing it. Now, why? Is it because the salesmen, or exchange managers, threaten them, wheedle them out of it, by luring promises of what their pictures will do, or is it because the production costs are so heavy they must have this rental? Certainly it is not the fault of financial conditions of the towns, because every factory is working, all people are employed, and the banks are loaded with money.

Calls Production Costs Too High

"Not having worked around studios for many years, or since the days of Tom Moore and Alice Joyce with Kalem, I am not versed enough to go into detail regarding production costs, but it seems to me that judging from what writers say, production costs are too high, by far.

"When I say production costs, I mean just this, and not what they spend for advertising, for my general belief is that film companies have made a great mistake by cutting down trade paper advertising. A great many of the film producers have cut down in trade journal advertising pages, but have made up for it unfairly with a lot of 'Bunk' about runs, and what the picture did in theatres, etc.

Organist's Cry That "This Fire is Part of the Show!" Quells Theatre Audience

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 6.—Possibility of a tragedy was avoided at the Colonial theatre Saturday night when the quick-witted organist arose to an emergency that might have brought disaster.

Three hundred persons leaped to their feet when flames shot out of the projection room. W. J. Nellis, the organist, sprang up and cried "Sit down! This fire is part of the show!" The patrons believed him.

Five thousand 24-sheets of this variety are to be posted throughout the country under the Universal tieup with Kellogg. These sheets are in brilliant reds with closeups of Reginald Denny and Laura LaPlante.

Universal in $500,000 Tieup with Kellogg Starting This Month

Reginald Denny and Laura LaPlante Will Be Featured on 5,000 Billboards, in 25,000 Stores, in Magazines and Newspapers
(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 6.—A half-million-dollar advertising tieup campaign between Universal and the Kellogg Company of Battle Creek, Mich., gets under way this month with Reginald Denny and Laura LaPlante featured in 24-sheets on 5,000 billboards, cards in the windows of 25,000 dealers, in street cars, and ads in six national magazines and several hundred newspapers, Universal announced last week.

THE exploitation will not be tied up with any particular picture, and thus, will permit adaptation to any community, Universal stated. Following are outstanding angles of the campaign:

Posters.—Five thousand 24-sheets will be posted. These are brilliant in reds and forceful color combinations, and carry closeups of Denny and LaPlante with their names in big type.

Newspaper Ads.—Twenty-inch ads will be run in 324 newspapers in 289 towns. Denny and LaPlante dominate them.

Magazine Ads.—As a new departure, Kellogg will carry the campaign into six national magazines, using full-page ads of four colors each. The total circulation is just short of five million, and accepted reader circulation of almost 20 millions. The magazine campaign will coincide with the billboard and newspaper campaign for three months beginning in April, but the April issues will appear the middle of March. The magazines are Liberty, Hollands, Boy's Life, Photoplay, Cosmopolitan and Physical Culture.

Car Cards.—In New York City and in Chicago, thousands of 21x22 brilliant card-end display cards will be carried in subway and elevated for four to six weeks.

Window Displays.—Thousands of thin-sheet posters, 9x12, a miniature edition of the 24-sheet posters, done in brilliant colors, are being turned out by Kelloggs for use by 25,000 dealers in arranging window displays and counter displays.

Kellogg will plant the newspaper ad on the exact day the exhibitor can get best results from it, Universal adds. Furthermore, they expect to plant their ads on the theatre pages of the newspapers.

Nat G. Rothstein, advertising and exploitation manager for Universal, and E. J. Freeman, advertising manager for Kellogg, have perfected co-operative plans whereby the 700 field men of the Kellogg company will be aided by the Universal exploitation men and other exchange men.

The complete list of towns where the Kellogg billboards and newspaper campaign will be waged is to be announced by Universal in the March 17 issue of the Universal Weekly. Any towns not covered in these two lists will be covered in person by the Kellogg field representatives.

Kellogg has his own sales organization in Australia, Great Britain, Mexico, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Belgium, Holland and Germany, and there are Kellogg representatives in 42 other foreign countries, to which the campaign will be extended.

Full-page ads in six national magazines, which are credited with almost 20 millions reader circulation, are in four colors each and again Reginald Denny and Laura LaPlante are prominently displayed.

Re-Takes

WELL, we've fully recovered from another opening. Yes, sir, "The Patent Leather Kid" hit town last week the day after a big fisticuff match at Mr. Wrigley's baseball field, and attracted more stars than whatnot.

All the producers of war plays were there, which made quite a mob in itself, and all the stars who have appeared in other war plays made up the balance of the audience. Harry Langdon liked the First National picture so much he's going to make a different kind of picture.

Out here, where boxing takes second place with golf and other sports, a good fast go in a picture is sure-fire stuff. One lady who sat next to me said she had seen the picture a long time ago back East, so long ago she thought it was a re-issue. But then that's the way us picture-folk have to wait for our first-runs.

Canon Popping

I see where Canon Chase is blazing away at the movies again. He probably doesn't know what the argument is all about but he isn't going to miss an opportunity to crowd into the limelight.

Dropping

You can ride a whole lot cheaper this week in an airplane to Arizona if you care to take the trip. They've reduced fares. But then it ought to be easy for an airplane to come down.

Hollywood's Full of 'Em

Flo Ziegfeld is seeking a new Follies star out here in the golden West. He'll probably pick one who just arrived last week from Broadway.

How Come?

By the way, didn't Flo say he was going to quit the beauty show business and take up some honest occupation?

What Price, Indeed

One of the claims against the late Valentino's estate was for $48,000, money advanced to make the picture "What Price Beauty."

Total Loss

My idea of a tough job, is a publicity man writing four stories a day about a studio that is shut down.

Famous Last Words

"Where'd you get that gag about Pat and Mike?"

Are you sure this is pre-war stuff, Meadows? Did the b. l. say it was?

Producers Sail March 17 to Build Argentine Studio for Series from Tom Mix

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 6.—Fred Kley and James S. Douglass of the Hollywood-Argentine Cinema Company will sail for Argentina March 17 with a technical staff to build a studio in Buenos Aires preparatory for the arrival of Tom Mix, who will follow them the second week in June, following his tour of the Keith-Albee-Orpheum circuit, which starts March 31. FBO will distribute a series from the Western star.

KNOW YOUR SALES LEADERS

GENERAL SALESMANAGER EDWIN J. SMITH, of Tiffany-Stahl Productions, was born in 1888 at Buffalo, N. Y., and lived there for the next 20 years. When entering the commercial world it was natural for him to join some company located in Buffalo; and he became associated with P. A. Powers of the Victor Phonograph and Picture Company.

FROM this time on all of his interests were wholly centered around motion pictures. Before long Mr. Smith joined the Universal Picture Company as a salesman in its Buffalo and Albany territories. His advancement with this company was rapid and he soon moved to the post of special representative for "Nep-tune's Daughter" and "Where Are My Children." Later he accepted the position as branch manager at the Cleveland office, and his next promotion made him Eastern division manager with headquarters in Philadelphia.

Mr. Smith seemed destined to climb still higher in the industry and his next promotion while still with Universal was to managing director in England and the continent, and finally to general salesmanager at the home office in the United States.

Shortly Warner Brothers became aware of Mr. Smith's ability and obtained him for their organization as Eastern division manager. Later he became general salesmanager for Associated Exhibitors.

In December, 1926, M. H. Hoffman, who at that time was vice-president of Tiffany Productions and responsible for placing Mr. Smith as branch manager at Cleveland for Universal, invited him to become connected with his organization in the capacity of general salesmanager.

Mr. Smith accepted the invitation and before long the results were far greater than expected. Recently, with the advent of John M. Stahl under the Tiffany banner, the company becoming Tiffany-Stahl Productions, Mr. Smith has more than once proved far beyond a doubt his ability in the proper handling of the sales destinies of this fast stepping, nationally known organization.

Mr. Smith is married and has a son at Princeton University.—J. S. S.

Keep Trade Channels Open; Sydney S. Cohen

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 6.—"The channels of trade and commerce should be kept open for all," Sydney S. Cohen declared in a brief filed with the senate committee on interstate commerce in connection with the Brookhart bill.

At the same time Cohen declared of the provision against block and blind booking that "in some localities, in some situations, voluntary buying en bloc is so preferable as to be almost a necessity." He held that the provision making it necessary for all films to be completed before being offered for sale would practically legislate the independent producer out of existence.

sions of the bill to unfair practices and would not cover wholesaling.

Rembusch in Rebuttal

Opening in rebuttal toward the end of the hearing, Frank J. Rembusch, Shelbyville, Ind., exhibitor, read a letter he had written to Senator Brookhart in which he declared there was a monopolistic scramble among producers. He also attacked arbitration, asserting that "voluntary arbitration and compulsory arbitration are as different as Clara Bow and Ben Turpin."

It was declared by Leo Brecher, New York exhibitor, that instead of being more than 800 productions a year, there were actually less than 700, of which last year 510 were made by the Hays producers and only 159 by independents.

The new contract does not correct any of the evils complained of, Brecher said, Pettijohn rejoicing that the exhibitors had selected their representatives to the Chicago meeting and an exhibitor official was secretary, and asking whether the exhibitors now were repudiating their own delegates.

A final witness was put on the stand by the proponents of the bill. Joseph Dondis, independent exhibitor of Rockland, Me., outlined his experience as a theatre owner, which has been laid before the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission. Promised before construction of his house that he could get films, he said, he was refused pictures by the big distributors at the behest of the Gray circuit, his competition, which he charged was owned by Paramount. The opposition dropped their prices in his town and succeeded in barring all pictures from him and he has shown "odds and ends" for several years.

Kent Answers Witness

Kent, in reply, declared that he knew nothing about the case, but that it was only one of a number which the company is trying to settle. Paramount owns stock in the Gray circuit, he explained, but has nothing to do with the operation of the houses. Similar cases have recently been brought to him and he has refused to sell pictures to chains which are trying to freeze out independent competition. If Dondis' story is true, Pettijohn interjected, somebody ought to go to jail.

The committee, the chairman promised, will take up the bill at the first opportunity.

Columbia Will Distribute Outstanding Foreign Films Throughout United States

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 6.—Columbia Pictures Corporation will distribute outstanding European productions in the United States, it is announced by Joe Brandt, president of Columbia. Arrangements are now being made for the distribution of a number of British, German and French films.

It is understood that Columbia is to handle these foreign pictures on some sort of reciprocal basis. Outstanding pictures produced by Columbia next season are to be booked generally into German, French and British theatres, in return for the distribution arrangements Columbia is able to offer the foreign producers for their films in the United States.

"One company has been advertising a certain picture for weeks on one page, stating that it is positively the best thing the two stars have ever done, and a lot of other high priced adjectives, but the picture, when a body of us viewed it, is just about the most putrid thing to be called a special, that I have ever seen. Then, when Von Stroheim, and some others, take to using up 200,000 feet of film making one picture, and spend thousands of dollars, taken from the pockets of exhibitors, to get a certain 'shot,' it, of course, makes the cost of films go sky high, and this cost is passed on to the exhibitor, who must pass it on to his public, and his public is getting pretty tired of 'specials' which are no more than average program pictures.

Calls Some Quotas Wrong

"Some of the quotas which are set on certain towns in our state are all wrong, and if the film concerns who set these quotas get them, some exhibitor will lose money, and I can show you more today that are losing money than are making it. Most all of the film concerns have an exalted idea that their pictures will set the public on their head and toes, will bring them out in flocks, and will pack theatres, when, in reality, those films are average program pictures.

"Whose fault is it? Certainly, it is not the salesmen, because they are told what they must get, and if they don't get it, they don't last long with their company. The exchange manager, of course, must get what his New York chief tells him to get, otherwise he is given the 'gate,' so whose fault is it? Some exhibitors, a great many, don't know how to buy films, and some let the salesmen and managers bull them into buying, not having any control over their own will powers, but after all, if there is waste in the making, it would seem to me that some one must get paid for that waste, and, of course, the exhibitor must pay it.

"Whose fault is it? What causes it, and who pays the bills?"—N. L. Royster, president, Circle Amusement Co., Inc., Charlotte, N. C.

Ads and Tieups Shaped to Attract Feminine Fandom

Club Planned for Band Leader at Texas—Survey Shows Women Most Consistent Patrons

This is the second of a series of special articles from correspondents of EXHIBITORS HERALD AND MOVING PICTURE WORLD on exhibitors' recognition of the important part played by women patrons, as shown in the preparation of exploitation and newspaper advertising copy.

SAN ANTONIO, March 6.—Just as Samson was powerless to defend himself after Delilah deprived him of his locks, so would theatres in the Southwest suffer a loss in box office revenue if the woman patron were not considered largely in the building of the theatre program, and in billing the units of the show. Woman has, in the last ten years at least, become the objective in the manager's planning, because it has become an established fact that women fans constitute the major percentage of patronage or at least cast the final vote in determining the majority patronage.

Texas Exhibitors Alive to Situation

Theatre owners in the Southwest, and especially in Texas, have all sorts of stunts for attracting the woman patron. Newspaper advertising, of course, is probably the most important factor to be considered. The manager who knows what the woman patrons want always makes it a point to include in his advertising copy an illustration, catchy copy, or announcement that is meant for the perusal of the general feminine patronage.

For instance, if a band leader, organist, or some institutional attraction of the house is extremely popular with the women patrons, that fact is given attention in the advertising.

Texas Theatre Club Planned

Such is the popularity of some personalities in various theatres in Texas, that hundreds of letters are received daily by them, requesting photos, etc. The managements of two houses where band leaders are used in Texas have made up a stock of beautiful engraved souvenir photos, on parchment, and use these as goodwill builders among the women.

A club is being planned by the Texas theatre, San Antonio, for its bandleader, Miguel Galvan, to consist of his women admirers. Weekly receptions are to be held on the mezzanine floor, with Galvan present to give a number of selections on his banjo. Celluloid buttons with the picture of the popular leader are to be made, and will be given to each member of the club, which will admit her to the informal reception each week—after she purchases a ticket to the theatre.

A monthly dance will be held at one of the hotels, and the member will be admitted upon flashing the button—but her male escort will have to dig down and pay his way in—thus making the dance self-supporting. The class of patronage this stunt will attract will be mostly of the younger class—the type of patron that talks most

A census recently taken of the entire city of San Antonio by the Texas showed that out of the average family of four, the two women members were the most consistent attendants of the theatre—and also showed that program-planning directed at the women was appreciated and remembered in most cases.

Women Most Consistent Patrons

Bargain matinees are for the sole benefit of the woman shopper, and are advertised as such. The theatre can stress the point that the woman, after her shopping, can take the 25 cents or 35 cents change in her pocketbook, and enjoy two hours of perfect entertainment—at a great saving over the regular admission prices.

The larger houses that can pick their pictures realize the importance of love and romance elements, and it is seldom that a picture is presented that does not contain this necessary attraction to a marked degree.

Everywhere on the program the woman is considered—the trailer, the lobby, the ads, the overture, organ, stage, picture—the window displays, commercial tieups.

When Unions Play Game of Picketing the Picket, Theatre Is Not the Goat

KANSAS CITY, March 6.—The unique spectacle of union men picketing against other union men was recently presented on the sidewalk in front of the Liberty theatre here, for several days and nights. One union supported the theatre, the other opposed it.

The fun began when the sign writers' union picketed the theatre because it hired a sign writer who had been dropped from the union for non-payment of dues. The sign writer had been refused readmittance to the union, and the union picketed the theatre when the manager refused to fire the man. The musicians and operators unions sided with the theatre and picketed the other union's pickets. The theatre won, the union being forced to accept the sign writer's membership.

He is just getting over an operation for appendicitis. . . . H. E. Murrin is the new owner of the Copeland, having taken charge this week. The former owner, William Gochis, reports that he is still undecided as to his future plans. . . . Constant Dourlain has taken over G. P. Daurelle's Liberty theatre at Bridgeville. . . . William Gray, theatre owner from Monongehela City, was in town last week film shopping. . . . Local friends of Oscar Bloom, former Pathe salesman, will no doubt be interested to learn of his appointment as manager of the Indianapolis branch of Pathe.

Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA.—James M. Graver, manager of the Liberty theatre, who is celebrating his 20th anniversary as resident manager of that house and his 28th year in the theatre business, is receiving the congratulations of the motion picture fraternity in Philadelphia. He is probably the only theatre man in the city who has been actively identified with one theatre for such a long term of years. Graver began his theatrical career at Rocky Springs Park, near Lancaster, in 1900, and after spending four years there, came to Philadelphia, where he opened the Arcade on Market Street. . . . Oscar Neufeld, one of the best known independent film men in this territory, who for the past four years has been associated with Sam Stiefel in the operation of the De Luxe Film Company, has announced that he will withdraw from that organization. It is rumored he will head another independent film exchange.

James M. Graver

Albany

ALBANY.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hellman, owning and operating the Paramount and Royal theatres, returned last week after several days spent in New York with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Little, the former a well known vaudeville star, and the latter their daughter. . . . M. H. Tormey will reopen his theatre in Cadyville in April. . . . Fenton Lawlor, Albany film salesman, lost his sister last week by death. . . . A brother of Al Barton of Ticonderoga, died last week after a short illness. . . . T. L. Fuller, of Otego, was on Film Row last week, as was Henry Frieder of Hudson. . . . Ned Kornbleit of Binghamton, has returned after several days in Atlantic City. . . . Mrs. Charles Stombaugh, wife of the new Pathe manager here, passed through the city last Friday on her way to Topeka, where she will spend several weeks with relatives. . . . The Schines are installing a Vitaphone at the Avon theatre at Watertown.

Salt Lake City

SALT LAKE CITY.—Former District Manager R. S. Ballantyne, of Pathe, is reported to have resigned his position. . . . Manager Al O'Keefe of Pathe is at Butte holding a conference with the Salt Lake and Butte salesmen. . . . Harry Lustig, division manager for Warner Brothers, and C. C. Ezell, special representative, have been at the Salt Lake office from Los Angeles. . . . Vitaphone has been installed at the Rilato at Butte. . . . A sales conference is being conducted at the First National exchange by Manager W. F. Gordon. . . . The Orpheum, owned by Don Curruthers, is to be re-equipped and remodeled. . . . Hal Roach comedies are being featured equally with the feature productions at the Louis Marcus Enterprises houses here, it is announced.

Kansas City

KANSAS CITY.—Dr. L. W. Shannon, exhibitor of Hiawatha, Kas., who recently won an injunction suit closing Hiawatha's $150,000 memorial auditorium to motion pictures, has filed an affidavit charging contempt of the injunction, declaring that William Schenkelberger, who had been barred from showing pictures in the memorial, had continued to book and advertise pictures as being shown under the management of the trustees. . . . More than 30,000 school children thus far have seen the Alaskan picture, "Top o' the World," which is being shown in Kansas City schools under the auspices of the Kansas City Star. . . . The Smith building in Conception Junction, Mo., has been rented by C. C. Reynolds and will be used as a motion picture theatre. . . . The Lindy theatre, Monette, Mo., held its opening the other night. . . . The Wetzel theatre, Tina, Mo., has become a Paramount house and will be managed by J. G. Wetzel. . . . The Globe theatre, Meade, Kas., has been sold by Morton Griggs to Edward Rowland of Texhoma, Okla. . . . The Jefferson, Springfield, Mo., has been sold by S. E. Wilohit to Ensley Barbour. . . . The Warsaw theatre, Warsaw, Mo., has been purchased by S. H. Yaffie of Springfield, Mo. . . . The new Grecian theatre, Neosho, Mo., is expected to open in a few days. . . . The new Lincoln theatre, Clay Center, Kas., has been opened under the management of Clyde Bomar. . . . The Odeon, Lyons, Kas., has been purchased by Hugh P. Hartley and J. A. Townsley. . . . W. C. Sears, former partner in the Sears theatrical circuit, has been made manager of the Royal, Orpheum and Colonial theatres, operated by Universal in St. Joseph, Mo.

Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE.—Fox and M-G-M have both taken ten year leases on the new Film Exchange Building, at Eighth and State streets, which will be ready for occupancy about April 1. . . . Owen McKivitt has sold his lease on the Orpheum theatre at Racine, to the Racine Investment Company, which owns the building. This company in turn has sold a one year lease, with the option to buy the theatre at the end of that time, to the Wisconsin Universal Theatres, Inc., headed by a Milwaukee man, Carl Yipman. . . . The theatre is being completely remodeled and will re-open about April 7 under the name of Lipman's Allen. . . . It will be managed by Victor Harlow. . . . Two theatre deals are pending at Beloit, Wis. One is a seven story theatre and hotel building to cost $525,000, with a seating capacity of 1,550. Universal will erect this structure. The other deal involves Fischer-Paramount, which plans to erect an 1,800 seat theatre. . . . Another theatre is being planned for Racine by the Parkway Investment Company, which has recently incorporated for $50,000. The incorporators are Frank P. Marino, Joseph Domanik, and John Rollo. . . . The Green Bay Elks Club is planning the erection of a six-story building which will house a theatre in addition to the club rooms. . . . Don Cordon, at one time organist at KYW Chicago, is now organist at the Orpheum theatre at Madison.

Von Stroheim Nears Fist Fight in Case of Fay Wray, Player

HOLLYWOOD, March 6.—Eric Von Stroheim threatened to settle his differences with Attorney Young with his fists last week in the contract case being heard in the new City Hall Tower. The suit had been brought by Fay Wray, Paramount player, against Edna Schley, agent.

Von Stroheim, who selected Miss Wray to play the role of Mitzi in "The Wedding March" two years ago and thus lead to her signing with Famous Players Lasky for five years, had been called to testify as to the date of his meeting with Miss Wray. His testimony differed in part from that of Patrick A. Powers, president of Celebrity Pictures. Attorney Young, presenting his questions to Von Stroheim, brought the following from the director:

"I don't like the way you are talking to me and if you say anything more to me like that I will have to invite you outside."

"Well come on out right now," snapped the attorney. But Judge Warne said:

"Wait a minute. Let us go on with the case. If I don't like the way attorneys are conducting the case I will take any action that may be necessary." The trial was resumed.

Colleen Moore and McCormick Stay at F-N Another Year

HOLLYWOOD, March 6.—Colleen Moore will remain with First National for at least one year after termination of her present contract. And John McCormick, who produces her pictures, also will be retained, according to announcement by Richard A. Rowland, general manager of First National.

Miss Moore will appear in four productions in addition to those already announced. With "Lilac Time" just completed, she will start next on "Heart to Heart," from Edmund Goulding's original, and then will make "Oh Kay," to be followed by the four under her new contract.

M-G-M Signs Rogell to Direct "Tide of Empire"

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and

HOLLYWOOD, March 6.—Al Rogell has signed to direct "The Tide of An Empire" for M-G-M. He is also under contract to direct another Ken Maynard picture for Charles Rogers at First National.

Neilan to Direct "Green Hat" for Al Woods as a Roadshow

Six Films Completed in Hollywood—Less Than Two Dozen in Shooting Stage—James Tinling Starts "Don't Marry,"

Starring Lois Moran

By DOUGLAS HODGES

HOLLYWOOD, March 6.—Marshall Neilan will direct "The Green Hat" for Al Woods in England, and Blanche Sweet, Neilan's wife, will have the role of Iris March, according to a cablegram received from Neilan here yesterday.

Neilan's announcement is a distinct surprise to the film colony because of the announcement many months ago of the American ban on the Michael Arlen novel by the Hays organization. At that time Fox had purchased domestic rights and was unable to make the picture because of the ban.

To Be Made by Americans in England

Producer, director, star, and cameraman on the picture will be Americans and the picture, although made in England, will be intended for American distribution as a straight roadshow in the Al Woods stage show houses.

Announcement of this agreement with Woods also says that "The Green Hat" will be followed by the screen production in England of several other of the producer's stage successes. Neilan is at present finishing an untitled film starring Gertrude Lawrence.

New Schedules to Start April 1

Less than two dozen pictures are shooting in Hollywood plants at present, with the prospect of April 1 being the time for a new schedule to get under way. Four pictures were begun this week and six were completed.

The pictures in the order of their magnitude, and probably their importance, are: "The Cop," for Pathe; "Don't Marry," for Fox; "The Eagle's Talons," for F B O; and "Pay As You Enter," for Warner Brothers.

James Tinling is the director of "Don't Marry," which stars Lois Moran. Robert De Lacy is the director of "Eagle's Talons," a Tom Tyler picture with Tom the hero of a good story that has the promise of true-ringing box office capabilities. William Boyd is starring in "The Cop," which is directed by Donald Crisp. The Warner picture is being directed by Lloyd Bacon and stars Louise Fazenda.

Stein Shooting Pathe Film

Paul Stein is in his second week of the direction of "Man Made Woman," a Pathe-De Mille picture which stars Leatrice Joy. It is the first one he has made since "The Forbidden Woman," which was completed for the same company prior to his recent journey to Europe. The "goodness" of "Forbidden Woman," incidentally, is as good a reason as any for Pathe's signing the good-natured, sharp-witted European director.

Leo Meehan has completed "The Little Yellow House" for F B O and is editing it. Martha Sleeper and Orville Caldwell have the big roles in the Gold Bond special.

F. N. Completes Two

First National ended camera work on two last week. They are "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" and "Harold Teen." The latter is the third to be directed by Mervyn Leroy. A young fellow called Arthur Lake plays the part of "Harold," who has been made famous by his doings with Dad Jenks and Lillums, Beezie and Lilacs, of comic strip repute.

F. W. Murnau is still shooting on "The Four Devils" for Fox and is already talking about his plans for making his next picture, which will be called "The Mud Turtle." "The Four Devils" is a circus story of some sort and is heralded as one of the big ones of the year. There is no way to tell whether it will be so, however, until the preview is over and the box office gives its opinion.

Bellamy in Story by Stone

Madge Bellamy's latest effort, "The Sport Girl," has been brought to an end and is ready for the preview. John Stone, author of the story, is already working on another story which may also star Miss Bellamy.

Swanson and Barthelmess Films Open in Big Style on Coast

Hughes to Get Two More Pictures Under Way—Boasberg Has Script Assignment of "Butter and Egg Man"

By RAY MURRAY

HOLLYWOOD, March 6.—Two pictures which are being shown for the first time in Los Angeles and which attracted unusual attention on the opening day last Wednesday, were "The Patent Leather Kid" at the Criterion and "Sadie Thompson" at the new United Artists theatre. A brilliant throng greeted the Richard Barthelmess picture. There were studio lights, flashing cameras, gawking crowds, and a drum corps outside the theatre, and cheers and hand clapping announced the entrance of one of prominence.

MILTON SILLS served as master of ceremonies and introduced Barthelmess, Mathew Betz, Molly O'Day, Alfred Santell, the director, and others. A splendid musical score by Bakaleinikoff accompanied the picture.

The United Artists picture starring Gloria Swanson received favorable comments in the dailies and is attracting unusual crowds to the U. A. house.

Howard Hughes, president of the Caddo Company, will soon have three companies shooting at Metropolitan studios, which will place him in the front rank of independent producers. He has just signed Raymond Griffith, former Paramount star, who is to make a series of feature comedies. Thomas Meighan is already under contract to Hughes and is to make the Broadway success, "The Racket," into a picture.

Lewis Milestone will direct Meighan. No director has been assigned to the Griffith unit. Howard Hughes is now personally directing the final sequences of "Hell's Angels," the spectacular air epic. Meighan's pictures will go through Paramount, while "Angels" is a United Artists release. No announcement of releasing arrangements for the Griffith pictures has been made.

Tom Opens Own Offices

That Tom Mix intends to keep in touch with the industry is evidenced, as he has opened offices at 6404 Sunset boulevard, in the same building with Bill Hart.

The receipts from sale of tickets to the recent Wampas Frolic and Ball amounted to $25,000, according to President Ray Coffin. While not as large as those of last year, the sum will net the organization a good profit. The boys are now planning a trip to Mexicali for their installation dinner.

Boasberg Does "Butter and Egg Man".

Al Boasberg, well known comedy scenarist and title writer, is doing the adaptation of "The Butter and Egg Man," which will serve as Jack Mulhall's next vehicle for

First National. Richard Wallace will direct the screen version of the New York stage success.

Brown Sends Print Abroad

Clarence Brown, who has just finished "The Trail of '98" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has sent a print of his picture to Robert W. Service, internationally famous poet and novelist. The initial print of the picture will be delivered to Service, now making his home on the Riviera, by Irving G. Thalberg, M-G-M executive, who sailed for Europe February 21.

D. W. Griffith has made a new ending for "The Drums of Love," with a happier denouement than the one now being shown at the Liberty theatre, New York. The picture will be released by United Artists some time in April.

Carpenters and plasterers are busy at the First National studios, adding additional offices and dressing rooms to the large plant.

Jerome Beatty, director of advertising and publicity for First National who has been visiting the Burbank plant, will return to New York City this week.

Langdon Starts New Film

Harry Langdon will start shooting on his new picture, as yet untitled, today. The comedian has been busy for ten days making screen tests of more than 65 applicants for the feminine leads. Arthur Ripley, who wrote the story, is just recovering from a serious illness.

Mrs. Edward Sedgwick, wife of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer director, is in St. Vincent's hospital, critically ill and an operation is said to be necessary to save her life. Work on Buster Keaton's picture, which Sedgwick is to direct, has been delayed owing to Mrs. Sedgwick's illness.

Howard Higgin has been assigned to direct "Celebrity," the new Pathe-DeMille production starring William Boyd. It is a stage satire on Gene Tunney's life.

Jacqueline Logan Rehearses with Chorus

Jacqueline Logan has been rehearsing with Fanchon and Marco chorus girls to perfect herself for her role in "Broadway Daddies," the Columbia production, in which she has the leading role.

Gladys McConnell has been signed by Ken Maynard to play the role of the heroine in his new production, "The Code of the Scarlet." She recently appeared in two Langdon productions. Harry J. Brown will direct the Charles R. Rogers production for First National.

65% Cut in Wages Reported by Stars; Obligated to Accept

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 6.—Information forthcoming from many players indicates that the big line companies are offering free lance players 35 per cent of the figure they offered the same players one year ago. It is said that they must take it or leave it. There is said to be no concerted move on the part of the players to oppose the producers' cut.

Sheehan Arrives; Fox People Trek Eastward

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 6. — Winfield Sheehan, general manager of Fox, returned to his home Saturday after a four weeks' stay in the East. Sol Wurtzel leaves this week for a trip to Europe.

Accompanying Wurtzel to New York are June Collyer, star of "Four Sons," Jack Ford production, and Frank Borzage, director.

Menjou Contract Ends; Hopes to Work Abroad

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 6.—Adolphe Menjou will leave Paramount this month and hopes to make a connection with a motion picture company in France. His contract with Lasky has ended and it is said the company's offer was not sufficiently tempting for his stay in America.

Holt Rejoins Paramount for Zane Grey Pictures

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 6.—Jack Holt has signed a contract to appear in Zane Grey productions for Paramount, according to a statement issued by Jesse L. Lasky. His first picture will be "The Vanishing Pioneer," for which John Goodrich is now preparing the continuity. John Waters will direct.

Joins Paramount Writing Staff

NEW YORK.—Ernest Howard Culbertson, former newspaper man and now a playwright and showman, is the latest addition to the Paramount studio scenario staff.

THE STUDIO PREVIEW

"Chinatown Charley"

Johnny Hines in "Chinatown Charley" has been shot, previewed and is ready for shipment to several thousand exhibitors whose box offices are in need of a laughing stimulant. That's not a bromide for a press sheet but is the honest reaction from the picture.

The story is a purchase from A. H. Woods who used it very successfully several seasons ago on the stage to the tune of many thousands of dollars, thrills and laughs. The life span is also in the picture and is staged by the same troupe who did it on Broadway.

Hines, Eddie Gribbon and Louise Lorraine make a curious trio throughout the story. Eddie's temptation to pick purses and lockets from pockets is a surefire gag that is followed by the heavier mechanics of a thrill story. The time lapse of the narrative is about four hours and into that time is packed a sightseeing tour through the Bowery, a visit to a Gotham mission, an hour at the restaurant, a visit to the wax works where Miss Lorraine is kidnapped, a plot to catch the Chinaman smugglers, an attack on the kidnappers and a few love scenes. If there are other highlights in it pardon me for omitting them while I get on with the story.

Scouter Lowry, that veteran Our Gang gentleman-of-five, makes life very unhappy for Johnny in the early stages of the motor-bus excursion. Scouter has a pinched kind of pan that gets laughs whether he acts or not.

Hines is one Hollywood comedian who attempts only to be a comedian in the picture rather than attempting to be the picture. He has employed several highly paid players for the cast and sensibly allows them to carry on the action of the picture. It reacts in the star's favor and his entrances are watched with greater attention than if he "hogged" the shots.

Eddie Gribbon is given three times the footage usually allowed a lesser star by the producer-star himself.

The titles are very creditably done and I regret very much that I don't recall the name of the man who receives screen honors for them. At any rate I hadn't seen any of them in Life.

—HODGES.

"Flying Fists"

"FLYING FISTS," the second picture to be made by Hoot Gibson under his recent unit arrangement with Universal, was previewed last week and proved excellent entertainment. It is the first picture I have ever seen previewed that did not need wholesale shortening and shearing. It needed none whatever.

"Cutting," in the Hollywood sense, may take in anything from the time the director completes his job until prints are received by the exhibitor.

I dare say Hoot, as anyone else would do, took his picture back to the studio Wednesday morning and fixed this and that and the other thing and classed it all as cutting.

Censors in the key cities enter into a picture's making to that extent.

An early preview never satisfies the director as to the picture's perfection. It is like pulling a galley proof of an editorial. There is always a correction to be made.

The picture moves rapidly from the star's entrance to the fadeout. In the meantime he engineers a score of good gags that not only pep up the audience but remove the picture from the class of a cut and dried Western.

In fact he uses much of the hokum that the old Westerns have, but when he uses it, he labels it hokum and asks no one to shudder and blanch. When the sombreroed young man hies the young woman off to the deserted shack and confronts her, it's a laugh because you know the s. m. is Hoot Gibson and it's all a joke.

When the gang holds up the stage coach the audience laughs because Hoot has let his audience in on the secret: The gang is not desperate, they're on a summer vacation.

There is, however, not much suspense in the real chase for the jewel thieves. The outcome is obvious but that can be forgiven because if there had been no such chase the picture would have been deprived of the ride that is one of the essentials of practical Western entertainment.

Along with this part of the entertainment Hoot offers his own display of broncho busting and bull throwing that makes a good reel whether in or out of a picture.

The picture allows Olive Hasbrouck considerable footage. She is a beautiful brunette who works well with Gibson and does excellently with her opportunities.

Taurog, Highest Paid Director of Comedies, Turns to Features

Would Take Fourth His Salary If Necessary to Direct Long Pictures; Completes Long Contract at Educational

By DOUGLAS HODGES

HOLLYWOOD, March 6.—Norman Taurog completed work on his last two reeler last week at the Educational studios and announced that he will enter the feature length field. His contract having ended, he will put into execution a plan he has had for himself for at least the past two years.

Taurog, said to be the highest paid director of short features in America, stated he would work for one-fourth his salary if necessary to direct feature length pictures. Directing is not only a means of making money with him; it is a thing in which he finds enjoyment.

DIRECTING short features has been an enjoyment for nine years, but the time has come when he can no longer confine himself to comics, he says.

Ideas that he could not use in shooting fast moving two-reel pictures have been accumulating in his mind to the extent that he declares he must discard them entirely or build pictures around them.

During the five years he has worked at Educational, he has directed about a hundred comedies, most of them starring Lloyd Hamilton. It is the three years that he made Hamilton comedies that he considers the source of his endorsement as an executive and as a box office showman. The stories in which Hamilton have appeared have largely been the product of Taurog's fertile imagination. The pictures placed the comedian in the front rank of the two-reel players. Hamilton's peculiar type of temperament regularly proved a handicap to the directors who handled his pictures, but it was given skilful treatment by Taurog. He has made as high as three of them in three weeks. Yet most all of them have been money makers.

Started as an "Extra"

He talked confidentially yesterday over a luncheon table at the Montmartre: "When a fellow leaves a place where he has been five years there's feeling of regret and . . . well, it's tough.

"Mr. Hammons and all the Educational people have been a wonderful bunch of men. I dislike to break away from a studio where my friends are such thoroughbreds.

Al Martin in the spectacled physog, Jack Duffy in the jockey cap. A pair of Christie witticists waiting to witness a Paramount comedy they have titled and enacted. Al, right, all right titer, titles while you wait.

There has always been the friendliest feeling and the same exists with my departure. No misunderstandings. Time for me to get out regardless of promotions, happiness, or wage cuts."

When Taurog came to Hollywood eleven years ago he had spent a few seasons in New York stage shows as an actor. He was an extra here for a while and later an assistant director and property man.

He has had many offers of many kinds since his departure was first decided upon. And he has had many worthwhile offers, one of which may or may not have been accepted by him when these lines are laid upon the big Chicago presses.

Garrett Fort's Among 3 Approaching Weddings

LOS ANGELES, March 6.—Three weddings involving people prominent in motion pictures are announced for the near future. Garrett Fort, Scenarist, and Mary Stuart, screen player, will be married at Santa Barbara on March 15, while two days later Gordon Cooper, director, and Consuelo Kirkpatrick will be wed.

Adolphe Menjou, Paramount star, and Kathryn Carver, his leading woman in several pictures, will be married May 7 in Paris, where Miss Carver will star in a series of French pictures. She and Menjou sail March 24.

Lindbergh History Traced in M-G-M 3-Reel Special

"Forty Thousand Miles with Lindbergh" is the title of a three-reel special being released this week by M-G-M. An opening shot shows the first flight of the first heavier-than-air plane by the Wright Brothers.

Then come the preparations for the flight to Paris, the hop-off, the reception in Paris, his return to America, his Goodwill Tour to Central America and the Caribbean republics, and finally his return to St. Louis from Havana.

Europe Offers Large Markets But Must be Taught Values

American companies producing short features will have a lucrative field in the European market provided a proper appreciation of the one and two-reel production is developed, says the Department of Commerce. The general attitude at present is that it is only a "filler," and yet at least three-fourths of those used are of American origin.

Low Rentals, High Taxes

Many factors have combined to produce this erroneous conception of the value of short product. Distributors for the time being are discouraged because of the low rental prices. The exhibitor does not advertise them because of the high taxation. Then there is the quota obstacle to be overcome.

Worst of all, however, is the European program practice of running double features, allowing little room for the shorter pictures. Then, too, European producers cannot command the capital to make them, and therefore cannot develop players, while advertising connections are the chief reason for their making them in the first place, with the result that they usually offer them free. The European type of short feature thus naturally is poorly made, the exception being the German educational pictures.

Reorganized Programs Urged

Cooperation between European exhibitors and American distributors is advised in reorganizing programs so as to eliminate the double feature difficulty and provide new short product. One hope for the change lies in the expressed intention of one American concern building a large theatre in London to run programs similar to those in the larger American houses. It is expected that other theatres will follow suit, once the ice is broken.

United Kingdom—This is regarded as the largest market for American short product, though only half the theatres show short films apart from newsreels. Two-reel comedies are preferred. There is little competition from English producers.

France—America supplies about 95 per cent of the annual requirement of 250 two-reel and 350 single-reel product. Each French program includes at least one short film. Sale of entire series under a separate contract has proved successful in the large cities. The theatres in the towns pay more for the short features than do those in the cities. Double features are extensively used.

Germany—American product, three-fourths of the total used, generally brings a higher price than the locally-made, and educational pictures are favored because of the 2½ per cent tax reduction to exhibitors showing this type.

Italy—Italy offers a poor market because of the operations of the governmental film-propaganda agency, the L. U. C. E., which compels exhibitors to show its product and therefore crowds out the American.

Turkey and Bulgaria—American product is 95 per cent of the total used but comedies, educational and newsreels are not popular.

Stage Prologues Draw Good B. O. Line

Detroit Strand Tries Three Way Policy

Billy Exton, Independent Exhibitor, Packs Them with Policy of Stock Burlesque, Vaudeville and Pictures

Stage presentations in motion picture houses have become quite a vogue, and theatres which combine feature photoplays and vaudeville have been doing business for some years. But it remained for Billy Exton, manager of the Broadway Strand theatre, Detroit, to inaugurate a policy of stock burlesque, vaudeville and films.

The new policy has, so far, been a success and large crowds have been attracted to the show house. The burlesque company which has been engaged is headed by Kay Norman, a singer and dancer who has appeared in stage presentations in many motion picture houses throughout the country, including the Paramount theatre in New York. The company is a resident one, and new shows are to be presented weekly.

The Broadway Strand when it was opened some years ago was operated strictly as a motion picture house. Later stage presentations and films made up the program, and then the house fell into a decline and was dark for some time. It was with the hope of reviving public interest in the playhouse that the present policy was introduced.

Johnny Perkins Playing Return Engagements

Johnny Perkins known as the "Ton of Fun" in picture houses and for the last three years one of the biggest drawing cards in the presentation field, is playing a return engagement over Balaban and Katz and Lubliner and Trinz Theatres, Chicago.

Perkins will be featured in a Publix unit going out on the road immediately after his Chicago engagements. He is one of the many artists who have won fame in picture houses as well as a long line of friends wherever they appear.

Bard Is New M. C.

Ben Bard, Fox player and former vaudevillian, is returning to the boards for a time as master of ceremonies in stage presentations over the Fox circuit of theatres featuring pictures and acts.

Bennie and His Sax

Not so long ago, theatregoers flocked to picture houses where BENNIE KRUEGER was playing his saxophone as a featured attraction—Bennie is now a popular band leader for B. & K. in Chicago and the crowd still flocks to see him at the theatres he has been appearing in for nearly two years.

Picture Houses State Film Themes Pay

Grauman and Roxy Fill Their Theatres with Clever Stage Productions to Introduce Photoplays

By A. RAYMOND GALLO

The possibilities of producing stage prologues to feature pictures are better now than ever. Sid Grauman really deserves credit for originating the idea on the West coast, and a few showmen have been able to duplicate his efforts elsewhere. However, when you take into consideration the number of de luxe picture houses that are presenting only motion pictures, it is really a shame not to take advantage of this opportunity even if only on a smaller scale.

The Roxy theatre in New York is probably the only other motion picture theatre in the country that is attempting to do the same thing in the East for the films as Grauman has been doing in the West. There are a number of photoplays produced and released each week that lend enough possibilities for the exhibitor or production manager to stage a theme prologue at a very small expense to the theatre.

Local Talent Can Be Used

In order to offer stage entertainment in the motion picture house it is not at all necessary to enter into the field on a lavish scale; that is, unless you feel absolutely sure that your theatre and neighborhood will cater to a bandshow policy, your next best step, then, is to only present scenes and bits that will in some way have a direct tie-up with the theme of the motion picture showing at your theatre that same week.

Of course, this venture will prove more successful in theatres running the full week policy. Nevertheless houses of split week engagement will find that local talent sometimes can make up a very entertaining program without running the overhead expense over the weekly appropriation. There are a number of neighborhood picture houses that have found the policy profitable.

Fanchon and Marco, who now occupy quite a high position on the West coast as presentation producers, really won their

ORGANISTS "CHLO-E" (Song of the Swamp)

Organists who have been fortunate enough to have used the slides on "CHLO-E" report that this song, with its beautiful melody and underlying "tom-tom" rhythm, holds audiences in a spell, grips and lifts them out of their seats, and finishes to genuine spontaneous applause—

There is a very beautiful version by Edward K. House entitled "THE LEGEND OF THE EVERGLADES"—and it is everything the title implies—

Villa Moret, Inc., also announces still another version in preparation, a very high-class composition, primarily for deluxe picture houses. This was written by Walter Hirsch. The song is by Gus Kahn and Neil Moret.

first big opportunity in this field by staging appropriate prologues in picture houses along the West coast.

Any intelligent theatre manager who is a live wire in his town can surround himself with capable talent that will enable him to stage such prologues at a very small expense if he is not able to hire professional talent such as de luxe picture theatres now do.

Stanley Grossman, an exhibitor from Milwaukee, has found this plan quite successful, and we highly recommend his procedure to other independent theatres and neighborhood exhibitors.

ORGAN SOLOS

Milton Charles (Chicago Chicago) honored a favorite writer of popular songs this week by devoting his solo to Walter Donaldson songs. It was a well chosen group of songs, including "Blue Heaven," "Mammy," "My Ohio Home," "There Must Be a Silver Lining" and "What Are You Waiting for Mary." It seemed as though the audience was somewhat disappointed when the likeness of Donaldson was not thrown on the screen, but that in no way detracted from the fine rendition of the selections.

Don Miller (Detroit Capitol) at the organ, put on "Sweethearts of the World," a song story of sweethearts in many lands. He was assisted by T. Stanley Perry, tenor, Ruth Durrell and Charles Mulcahey in the organ presentation.

Edmund C. Fitch (Chicago Sheridan) called his solo "Stage Struck," and enticed the audience to sing through slides announcing that Flo Ziegfeld had asked him to "discover" new talent for the Follies. The solo brought a lot of good laughs, and among the popular selections played were "Dream Kisses," "Together," "My Ohio Home," "Our Bungalow of Dreams," "Let's Kiss and Makeup" and others. It was a good community sing solo.

William Pond (Detroit State) introduced a novelty entitled "Foolish Questions." A series of slides carrying such questions as "Where was the Declaration of Independence Signed?" and the answer "At the Bottom" were used with effect and the offering was greeted with much laughter. The musical numbers used in the production were "Sunshine," "Four Walls" and "Together We Two." The audiences during the week joined in singing the various songs and were particularly vociferous in the singing of "Sunshine." Pond has been employed by the Kunsy Theatrical Enterprises for 10 years and has been here since last September. The audiences like him, join in singing the choruses of his song numbers with a will.

Earl Able (Chicago Congress) offered a community singing solo called "I'll Play, I'm Able, You Sing, You're Able." Quite an idea even though it was throwing bouquets at himself. The selections used were "Brokenhearted," "Forgive Me," "Varsity Drag" and "After the Sandman." It seems that this crowd likes to sing and they are not particular who is at the organ. It appeared to this reporter that if Able would play more harmony and use less concert gestures that he probably would win real favorites. In spite of all these handicaps he was compelled to take three encores after the curtain had closed and the film almost on the screen, another evidence that they like to sing here.

Grace R. Clarke (Chicago Crown) this week offered a pleasing community solo. She featured "Sweeping Cobwebs off the Moon" with parodies in nursery rhymes on "Smiles," for the audience to sing. She finished with "I Told Them All About You" and "Sweeping Cobwebs Off the Moon." This was very well received.

Herbert Lee Koch (Des Moines Capitol) together with Jacques Blumberg, director of the orchestra, put on an "Organ versus Orchestra" contest with the audiences as judges of the popularity of the two musical mediums. The jingles describing the contest were set to the music of "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean," and were so cleverly written that, in themselves, they furnished much amusement. Koch started the affair on the organ with "The Indian Love Song" from Rose Marie. Blumberg followed with the orchestra playing "Bits from the Operas." "Cobble Stones" was next on the organ and "Is She My Girl Friend" was the orchestras foil for this number. "The Song is Ended" via organ with "Dream Kisses" from the pit made the last pair of offerings. The two played "Dream Girl" together as the last number. The exaggerated politeness of the two leaders, a la the Gallagher and Shean method, made laughter as each insisted that the other had gained the honors. This was one of the most popular stunts put over in a long time.

Preston Sellers (Chicago Tivoli), as guest organist here for the anniversary week, played a stunt called "Singing the Highlight," using the following songs for community purposes: "Kiss and Make Up," "Sing Me a Baby Song," "My Ohio Home," "Dream Kisses" and "Among My Souvenirs." During this number chimes and harp effects were played. The slides were illustrated with special versions and, judging from the way the audience sang, the solo was a huge success. This chap is one of the best young organists in Chicago, and has made quite a following for his capable playing.

Arthur Martel (Boston Metropolitan) the weekly concert was an original version by Martel of "Four Walls," consisting of various popular tunes with different words, and ending with "Four Walls."

Don Isham (Chicago Embassy) this week offered one of his original organ community solos in which he used the following numbers: "Lovely Little Silhouette," "Kiss and Make Up," "Without You Sweetheart" and "Everywhere You Go." The audience always responds to Isham's solos by singing zestfully.

Cornelius Maffie (Houston Metropolitan) offered "The Battle of the Ages" this week, using the orchestra as the foe in which the band leader and organist engaged in a sort of a musical prize fight. The tunes used were "Unfinished Symphony," "Song of Love," "William Tell," "Midnight Waltz," and "Dizzy Fingers." The finale was played together with orchestra and organ offering the "Poet and Peasant Overture." It was an unusual thing at this house and received the biggest hand ever accorded a musical specialty.

Henri A. Keates (Chicago Oriental) offered "Birthdays" this week as the theme for his community solo. The songs used were "My Ohio Home," "Bungalow of Dreams," "What'll You Do?," "A Shady Tree" and "Kiss and Make Up." The gag slides with special lyrics engaged the balcony and the main-floor in a singing contest which requested everybody born in certain months to sing certain lines. The stunt was well liked and as usual the crowd was with Keates to a voice. In fact he was compelled to play another chorus of "Shady Tree" so those who hadn't exercised enough lung power, could get another try out.

W. Remington Welch (Chicago Tiffin) presented a community stunt this week called "Changing Moods." The songs used for singing purposes were as follows: "Beautiful," "After I've Called You Sweetheart" and "Everywhere You Go." The gag slides and special versions in between each song got the audience in a good mood to sing and they enjoyed the stunt.

Francis Kromar (Chicago Diversey), after a two weeks' vacation, is back at his organ and this week presented a fine stunt called "Four Walls," using the following songs: "I Want to Go Where You Go," "Chloe," "Four Walls" and a medley of other popular tunes intermingled with many comedy bits. This was played as a straight solo and received quite a hand.

Heller & Riley Are Still Going Strong

Helene Heller and George Riley, musical comedy favorites and for the last three years one of the most successful presentation acts in deluxe picture houses, are being featured in "The Arabian Night's Unit" which opened at the Oriental theatre, Chicago, last week.

This bandshow will take to the road after its Chicago engagement and will play the entire Publix Circuit. Heller and Riley are probably the only act of its kind to have played several return engagements over the Publix Circuits in the last three years and according to their managers' report they still have two more years to go.

Deitrich Stages First OKMNX Show

The Avalon Right Club a special Saturday matinee Frolic staged every Saturday at the Avalon theatre, Chicago, by Roy Deitrich its band leader, has over 2,000 kiddies as members.

Last week Deitrich presented the first Barney Google stagershow offered in Chicago featuring the idea of the "Billy Goats and Nanny Goats" daily cartoon under the title of "OKMNX." Someone impersonated Barney Google and Spark Plug and they were featured all week in the show.

STAGE SHOWS

San Francisco Granada

Week Ending March 2

This week's stage act at the Granada theatre brings smiling Owen Sweeten and his band back on the stage again, after several weeks in the pit. The curtain arose on a rich setting, with a huge multi-colored butterfly adorning the black velvet back drape, and the music stands likewise decorated with butterflies.

Master of ceremonies Sweeten introduced Arthur Smith, pianist with the orchestra, and the orchestra swung into a splendid reading of George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," the piano part of which was played with real feeling and beauty.

Popular Helene Hughes and Roy Smoot sang the "Miserere" from "Il Trovatore," Hughes being particularly effective. Then the synco-symphonists offered "Charmaine," with an original interpretation which instilled considerable comedy into the presentation, but which did not add to the beauty of the composition.

The stars of the act, Moss and Fry, originators of "How High Is Up?" strolled on in the costume of dining car cooks, offering fifteen minutes of nonsense patter that proved wonderfully droll and which pleased the house mightily. A song took these colored funsters off stage, but they were called back repeatedly and responded with "Honolulu Moon" and "I Want You to Want Me," together with some more jokes.

Irving Berlin's "Sunshine," written in honor of the climate of the Golden State, was offered by the orchestra and three members sang the chorus through megaphones.

"Diane" was the next musical number and as this was commenced the entire orchestra was raised high above stage level by Jack Partington's patented stage device, disclosing Helene Hughes, Vivian Fay, dainty dancer, and the Sunkissed Beauties. Fay offered a solo dance, distinguished by some very lovely pirouettes, and the act came to an end with a song by the ensemble.

Chicago Senate

Week Ending March 4

This week Mark Fisher was featured in a Happy-Go-Lucky Show with Johnny Perkins, Rotuno Brothers, Lamberti, and Mildred La Salle in the cast. It opened as follows:

Opening: Mildred La Salle in front of curtain singing "I'm Looking Over a Four-Leaf Clover" as scrim curtain rises and exposes band and the Gould girls all dressed in green clover outfits dancing a routine as the band played an arrangement of the same tune.

The full stage setting carried out the Happy-Go-Lucky idea with three huge horseshoes designed as entrances and clover background to match costume.

After this number Mark Fisher made his entrance and announced a band arrangement of "What Are You Waiting for, Mary?" and for a second chorus, he gave a vocal selection of same with the boys repeating a third chorus in harmony comedy style. Jack Peacock Kelly, the drummer of this band, did quite a few stunts with his sticks that put this number over with plenty of pep.

After quite a hand the Rotuno Brothers came on as Collegian steppers and offered quite a fast routine of eccentric and comedy dancing. Their finish was unique and almost stopped the show.

Mildred La Salle came out again and this time doing her specialty of blues singing, offering "I've Got to Get Somebody to Love" and "What'll You Do." If this young lady would select more songs like the last one, it would help put over her routine, as "What'll You Do" seems to be just the type of song she can sing. She does not possess extraordinary personality but seems to be able to put over a certain type of song. Due to the leader's help, she won an encore of "Kiss and Make-Up," done in somewhat a Peggy Bernier style. A little professional coaching would take all the rough-edges off of this girl, as she has laden possibilities.

Mark Fisher next gave a special recitation of "The Spider and the Fly" in which two young ladies later engage in a novelty dance representing these two characters. The idea was very novel and with the aid of the web dropped in the background made an unique scene. However, the girls could have been coached to offer some real character steps during this number that would have lent more genuine color to the routine.

The next artist on the program was Lamberti, a xylophone player, who intermingled comedy chatter with his splendid playing. This chap was reported before and again proved himself an artist and a comedian by stopping this show.

He was followed by the Gould Dancers in a novelty routine in white spangled costumes that sparkled in the footlights.

Johnny Perkins came next and immediately after his reception went into a song called "Keep Sweeping Cobwebs Off of the Moon," after which he and Mark Fisher engaged in exchanging smart chatter. His next number was "Everywhere You Go" first sung as a straight ballad and then in syncopated time.

As usual Perkins was a great hit and was compelled to come out again. This time he and Mark Fisher stepped down and sat close to the front row with spotlight centered on them and continued a line of smart chatter.

At the repeating of "Happy-Go-Lucky" the band behind the curtain struck up the tune of "This Is My Lucky Day" as the Gould girls assembled around band, each carrying a large white horse-shoe in parasol style, while three more descended from the fly gallery as the balance of the cast came on to decorate setting while Mark Fisher sang a chorus of "Lucky Day" for the final cutrain.

Greetings! . . . Have you all decided about our new club? Well, let's get together and nominate our officers. As chairman pro-tem I motion that we nominate Paul Ash as honorary president. What do you say? All right, let's all drop him a line that he has been elected to head our little "Friendly Chat Club." Now that we have our president, let's proceed to select a secretary and board of directors. Bernard Cowham makes a motion that Milton Charles be nominated to the post. Ray Turner seconds the motion. Whoopie! Milton is elected. Start looking for a pencil, Milton, you're going to earn your dollar a week job. Now let's organize for the board of directors. Larry Spier motions that he would like to appoint Rocco Vocco as one. Cliff Hess seconds the motion. All right, Vocco, you're in, take a seat with the rest. Ruth Etting says she would like to see Lou Kosloff in. Who seconds it? The Darling Twins second the motion. All right, Lou, put your baton down for the present. Jack Lavin and Charley Daniels send in their vote that Sid Berman and E. H. Marozick should be on the board. I'll tell the world they should. Thanks for the suggestion, boys. Let's all vote for the two music buyers, boys. Okay, now let's go on with the rest. Mark Fisher makes a motion that we put on a stage producer, a ballet master, a scenic artist and an act so that the board will be well represented. You're right, Mark, we'll do that. Who will second the motion to put on Harry Gourfain, Dave Gould, A. Coppick and Heller & Riley? Great, let's see now, have we forgotten any other branch? Oh, yes, two of the most important ones of any organization. That of treasurer and publicity director. Bill Pine suggests Dave Flam and Al Belasco suggests Hank Lustgarten. Well, that's done. Next week we will take up matters of new business. . . . By the way, before I forget, let me announce a new department in this section—that of a "letter box." I will print the names of those who have letters now waiting for them at this office. Each week we shall carry this listing in another part of this department. We are holding letters for the ones listed below and will be glad to forward upon receipt of address. . . . STAGE SHOWS

"Hula Blues," a Jack Partridge originality, was staged this week with the popular Felicia Sorel girls, Drena Beach, Tui Poi, and other stars. Gene Rodemich, just back from the New York Paramount, was most enthusiastically received, and led his boys through the musical selections with even more than his ordinarily great pep.

Chief Tui Poi and his Royal Samoans were the opening number. The stage setting here was unusually attractive, being a Samoan Island scene, with a volcano in action on the back drop, dim lights, and real Samoan costumes. "Hula Blues" was played by Gene and the boys, and the Royal Samoans did a typical "Hula" dance that was most effective.

Gene and the band next played an arrangement of "Among My Souvenirs" that Gene brought back with him from New York. It combined the jazz selection that is so popular today with the old favorite, "Souvenir," and was effective and unusual.

The next number was entitled "Crooning and Ballooning," and although this seemed a rather funny title, we soon found out that the act was well named, for the two comedians, Moore and Powell, not only gave us vocal selections, and played on the musical saw, the harmonica, and the accordion, but they even managed to get a real tune out of nothing more nor less than an ordinary balloon. Of course they made a big hit.

A dance interpretation of Walter Donaldson's number, "Borneo," was rendered by the Felicia Sorel girls. They were in their Hula costumes, and made a pretty picture.

"The Tiger Dance" was next interpreted by Drena Beach. She was dressed in a tiger skin, and had metal claws fastened on each fingernail. She really made a quite realistic tiger, and her dancing was excellent.

Fritz and Jean Hubert, a couple of swallow-tailed cocktails, put on a comedy acrobatic stunt that got a good laugh. They certainly know how to look drunk.

Anna Chang, a sweet little girl from the Occident, and quite the hit of the evening, gave us an interpretation of her idea of American popular music. Her soprano voice is unusually sweet, and her personality fascinating, so she had to come back for several encores.

The finale was "Under the Ukulele Tree." The setting was an effort to prove the saying that ukes grow on trees. A huge uke was lowered to the center from above, and others not quite so large surrounded it. Each uke had a girl sitting in it strumming a tune on a tiny uke, and the largest instrument had a girl inside doing a Hula dance in Samoan costume. Small branches hung down from above stage so that the whole looked like a great tree. Each branch and ukulele was brilliantly lighted by tiny colored lights, and the whole scene was one of the prettiest and most original that have been staged here for some time.

Detroit Grand Riviera Week Ending March 3

Lively fun was offered in "School Days," the stage presentation at this theatre in which "Monk" Watson did some clever clowning, aided and abetted by the Keystone Serenaders with some peppy new music. The entertainers in the show, which was produced by Lew Kane, were dressed as school "kids" and the presentation was original and amusing.

Assisting in the stage entertainment were a bunch of good vaudeville acts, including Maxine Hamilton, who sang and danced smartly; Burns and Foran with new songs, steps and smiles in a skit called "Scoring a Touchdown;" Telaak and Dean, with a line of pert patter, some songs and eccentric dances, and Merle Clark at the organ in a clever solo.

"Monk" Watson is back at the Riviera by popular request after an absence of some weeks, and is once more holding forth with his own unique ideas of entertainment. The crowds at this playhouse just couldn't get along without "Monk," and in response to the popular demand he was once more brought back by the management.

Chicago Sheridan Week Ending March 4

Verne Buck had a rather long show this week, but it held up in great fashion throughout. It was called "Paris Nights," with the setting a cafe in Gay Paree.

It opened with the Abbott Dancers—six of 'em—coming down from upper stage for some good stepping. The orchestra then played "What'll You Do," with Verne doing a turn on his saxophone.

The Bowery Dance by the Texas Redheads, two clever young people, brought a good hand. This brother and sister form a team of good steppers, and the audience like 'em.

Hughie Clark nearly worked off several pounds of avoidupois. The audience was insistent, and it appeared for a time that the balance of the bill was doomed. He sang a parody on "Everybody Loves My Girl," and then "Four Walls" and "The Whole World Says Hello." He has a personality and a tenor voice that seem to score.

Verne and His Gang came back with the hot number, "Wobbly Walk."

A novelty was the Apache dance by the Abbott girls, who were dressed in the costume of this Paris underworld character. Each carried as a dance partner a large sized rag doll. The dance brought a lot of laughs and good applause.

One of Verne's own men, Frank Wilson, next sang, "Strolling in the Moonlight," with the leader accompanying on the violin. No doubt of Frank's popularity at the Sheridan. Like Hughie Clark, he was lucky that the audience finally let him rest.

Oriole Craven took the house for several encores, and she deserved everything she got. Miss Craven, though she hasn't a powerful voice, has powerful personality, and puts over her songs in great shape. Among her selections were "C'est Vous," "I'm Walking On Air" and "It's Up to You Dear." Miss Craven's stunt of dancing while playing the violin is clever and holds her in good stead with the crowds. Through part of her act she and Verne teamed up in song and on the violins.

The Texas Redheads were on again to do the Varsity Drag. As said before, two clever people. Then followed the Abbott girls in the fast dance, Kink-a-Poo, and a good show endeth.

Pittsburgh Penn Week Ending March 3

The outstanding unit of this week's show is the overture which is a musical conflict between the orchestra and the organ. To the tune of "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean" Dick Leibert, who is at the organ, and Don Albert, directing the orchestra, read the lines and they get many laughs. The gist of the words is that both Dick and Don think that they can do the better overture and have a contest. Organ first with "Lucia" sextette and then orchestra playing a real hot number with trick choruses. Then Dick claims he can play it hotter than that and both combine for the finish.

Following the news Leibert again comes up for a solo with slides used and audience singing heartily for him.

Stage unit this week is John Murray Anderson's "Joy Bells" and shapes up as one of the best stage-shows yet seen in the house. Eva Mascagno and Ballet of six girls opened doing a classy routine that is really different from the usual stuff. Bass solo "Asleep in the Deep" as sung by Joseph Parsons scored.

Douglas Wright and Company followed, two men in horse skin dressed to look like Sparkplug of comic strip fame. Scotty Weston did a fast buck featuring difficult "wings."

John Maxwell, dressed half as a man and half as a woman, showed off his double voice effectively aided by clever makeup. The Roma Brothers with their acrobatic turn, stopped the show cold. A scenic flash closed the act.

The feature picture is "The Divine Woman" and a Felix Cartoon and M-G-M News also were included.

Chicago Chicago Week Ending March 4

"Treasure Ships" was the title of the unusually good show at the Chicago this week, and as the title suggests, there were pirates galore performing on the deck of a pirate ship. All in all it was a much better show than those of recent weeks.

Charles Bennington and his harmonica band of nine young fellows, featured the bill, with Lou Kosloff as master of ceremonies. Bennington, who does some fine stepping despite his one peg leg, has a neat act. His boys are adept with the harmonicas and are clever with their feet when the occasion demands it to tone off the act. The nine young men showed their skill when they came on for one dance, each sporting a peg leg.

The show was introduced by a pirate scene on the screen. With the raising of the screen six dancers came on for some fast work, leading into the fancy gyrations by Carlo and Norma. Their dancing brought a good hand.

Walter Smith, with an excellent bass voice, did the "Spanish Main," and was followed by Mary Fabian, soprano.

Val and Ernie Stanton brought a lot of laughs with their tomfoolery in song, dance and dialogue. And to prove that they are versatile, they tried their hands at musical instruments.

The orchestra then harmonized a bit with "Everywhere You Go." Smith's rendition of "Mandalay" was as pleasing as his first appearance.

The whole show moved along smoothly with no one monopolizing the spot. It made fine entertainment.

Atlanta Howard Week Ending March 3

"Dance Caprice," the Howard's presentation this week, constituted an enjoyable program for the theatre's patrons.

Headlining the bill were sixteen Albertina Rasch dancers, who proved themselves worthy of their wide renown.

Cy Landry, eccentric dancer, received a good applause. This is his second appearance on the Howard stage within a few months.

Lora Hoffman, soprano, possesses one of the finest voices Atlanta audiences have heard in a long time and the applause told her so.

Marley and Crandall, dancers, also proved popular numbers.

The Howard orchestra, the first part of the week, under the direction of Ray Teal, and the latter part, Tom McClusky. Teal was called suddenly to New York, Wednesday, and was succeeded by McClusky, who came from Kansas City, Mo.

George Lee Hamrick assisted at the organ.

Week Ending February 29

Ted Mack and his Monarch of Music surrounded by excellent Fanchon and Marco show. The show opened with Mack acting as master of ceremonies and orchestra playing "Cherie Berie Bee." First number was a chorus of Eight Sunkist Beauties in a waltz.

Peggy O'Day was next in a song number, "Oh, Look at That Baby." Her song is accompanied by a few dance steps and goes over well with the audience. Her number was quickly followed by—

Mack's Four Horsemen, who prove to be two genial members of the well trained orchestra and the leader himself, playing saxophone, clarinet, cornet and a piano rejoinder.

The Sunkist Beauties returned with Mack in their lineup to do a fast dance number.

Nelle and Lucille Cook, a number billed as the Cook Sisters, made their Western debut in a fashion that indicates much success on their 12 weeks tour of Coast houses. They are harmony singers and handle a euphonous ukulele for a turn or two. Their vocal presentation of "Four Walls" proved one of the biggest things in the show. Mack joined them with his clarinet for another big hand.

A Russian ballet of the octette preceded a specialty of Macks' own ingenuity called "It's Boloney." He gave clever impersonations of Ethel Barrymore, John Gilbert and Al Jolson in various versions of the song.

Chicago Oriental

Week Ending March 4

Paul Ash presented his version of "Arabian Nights" in this week's stage presentation. Heller and Riley were featured and the balance of the cast was headed by Zastro and White, and the Two Black Dots. The show opened as follows:

George Riley sitting on a small stool in front of a black curtain reading a large fairy story book and upon making a wish two large slaves appeared before him on one side with Paul Ash and two other slaves. Ash represented Alladin and his lamp and the scene was worked out as a black-out with the next setting in full-stage representing tent of an Arabian Prince.

A ballet of six girls came on to do a slave dance routine as Ash and Riley stood as witnesses. Immediately after this, the band struck up an arrangement of "Diane." We must say that for the first time in many shows, this band fell down on an arrangement. The first part of this song was arranged in a slow and unmusical style but came back to life towards the second part when the melody of the song itself was really played.

Paul Small, one of the permanent fixtures of this house, came out and sang a brand new song called "Sweetheart Where Can You Be." The hand extended to Paul proved that this chap is still an Oriental favorite. He next engaged in a comedy routine using Ash as a foil and singing a special version of "Nothing." This seemed rather silly with two men and although it might have been taken as comedy, it probably would have made a better impression if sung straight or with a girl as a duet. Nevertheless, Small got a very good hand, again proving that anything goes at this theatre.

Zastro and White were next in a routine of eccentric tap steps and musical comedy dancing that lent color and life to this show. They are without doubt a fine pair of steppers, and ought to be given a better opportunity to display their wares.

Helene Heller, the favorite of many bandshows, came on next and sang "Charmaine." This young lady has been reported many times before and it is needless to say that she possesses one of the sweetest voices in presentation. As an encore she offered "Sunshine." At this performance she did everything but stop the show.

The Two Black Dots followed next in a series of fast steps opening first in a slow manner and gradually warming up to an eccentric routine of taps. Without a doubt these boys are one of the finest dance teams ever to hoof in front of a band. There is one suggestion to offer and that is to eliminate the first part and snap right into the routine. They stopped the show cold at this performance.

George Riley was on again in an exchange of smart chatter with Ash which gradually led him into his routine. After his regular offering Helene Heller joined him and both sang "Kiss and Make Up" in their individual style. All we can say is they were the biggest hit on the bill and stopped the show. For further details look up back numbers of this publication.

The finale was artistically staged with a scrim curtain in background slowly rising to display a tabloid representing a slave market scene in Araby while the band played an oriental tune.

Omaha Riviera

"That act alone is a show in itself," says one of the dramatic critics of the city about the act of the Lime brothers and their "Goliwog" at the Riviera stagershow. The Goliwog appears limp and lifeless, carried on the stage by the Lime brothers and tossed about like one of the long legged, dangling French dolls. He appeared jointless. Finally he is hung up on a leg and wound up and puts on a dance like an automaton. Whoever he was who was masked behind the grotesque face of "Goliwog," he was a talented contortionist and actor.

The Three Kemmys constituted another feature of Paul Spor's entertainment for the week. They are recently from Paris, Paul announced, and their artistic poses and motions substantiated the statement. They pose in a strong man act against a setting in the back of the stage which had something of the silhouette effect.

The opening number of the entertainment was a particularly attractive setting, with nine windsome "Melodies" in period dresses descending from an elevated stage. Norma Maxam, dancer, and Ada Synajko, violinist, contribute to the success of the number.

Roy Cropper, tenor formerly with the "Student Prince," provided the music of the program, and of high grade it was. Sylvia and Clemence, chubby and youthful dancers, tap the floor to the tune of "Poet and Peasant." Paul Spor himself impersonated John Philip Sousa and Franz Liszt. The pit orchestra under Frederick Schmitt played its first "Symphonette" and arrangement of the popular piece, "Did You Mean It."

Des Moines Capitol

Week Ending March 2

"Rainbows," Boris Petroff production, made colorful entertainment for Capitol patrons all week. Jimmy Ellard and the orchestra supplemented the idea of the rainbow with a cleverly executed number, "Let a Smile Be Your Umbrella." At the chorus, each performer raised a tiny parasol and sang lustily and smiled broadly.

Jimmy made a hit with his "Tin Pan Parade," followed by request numbers from the audiences. This daily bombardment causes much amusement to the rest of the listeners as Jimmy's feminine admirers demand more and more. They shout out their shrill requests with utter abandon!

Jean Geddes sang, "I'm a Broken-hearted Bluebird" with the chorus of dainty dancers assisting. Geddes sang to Jimmy, "I Don't Believe You're in Love With Me." Freddie and Eddie, two nifty steppers, pleased with their skilled performance. Lyndon and Farman, did a smart burlesque of an Apache number. Affie Martin did an acrobatic dance with some marvelous contortions to top off his act.

Paul Mall, lately featured in Broadway musical shows, entertained with a black-face act including songs and clever chatter. "I'm Looking For a Rainbow," was his last number. The entire company came back for the finale, "I Have Found My Rainbow."

Chicago Central Park

Week Ending March 3

This is the last week of a stage band show policy here with Joie Lichter and his band. According to reports, hereafter the house will run pictures and music from the pit orchestras only. It seems a shame now that this audience was taken to Lichter and his style of shows, that they should discontinue same. This week's presentation ran as follows:

Opening: With band behind curtain as it parted Joie Lichter made his entrance and received quite a reception, another evidence that he is well-liked here. The band arrangement was "Bellhopping Blues," played in really-hot style.

A young chap called Don Adams took the role of master of ceremonies and announced for the first specialty act, Coster and Hewitt, a man and woman, who offered a novelty dance. The man wore a bear-skin costume, with a bear-head and all which made the routine a little different than the ordinary novelty offering.

The next one on the program was Audrey Christie, a cute little girl, who sang the blues, using "Walking on Air" and "Look at That Baby" as her songs. The audience evidently liked this for she was called back and did a few dance steps for an encore.

The next band arrangement was "St. Louis Blues" and oh how they played this number.

Stanley and Morton were next, just two men who offered a comedy routine of hat juggling into the audience which kept everybody in a merry mood. Aurdey Christie came on again this time singing "Didn't I Tell You?"

Following her was Don Adams who sang "Oh Eva" and "Topics of the Day," two special songs intermingled with smart chatter. Tommy Wonder followed him with his usual routine of sensational dancing which has been reported in these columns many times before.

The Finale had everybody on.

Philadelphia Carman

Week Ending March 3

Heading the surrounding program are Guy and Pearl Magley, whose dancing specialties are exceedingly well done. With them are their own string band "Strumming Serenaders," and the Melvin Sisters, a capable dance team.

Sharp and Kirk, acrobats, appear in a good tumbling act while Newhoff and Phelps, singing jesters, supplied songs that were somewhat timeworn.

The Carman Grand Orchestra, under the direction of Charles C. Verna, played Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," with David Pesetski playing the piano solo.

Chicago Avalon

Week Ending March 4

A wonderful stagershow, perfect arrangements, and a pleasing audience. Such was the Avalon theatre this week. Roy Detrich and his band presented through the courtesy of the Herald and Examiner "O K M N X." The stage was arranged on the order of a lodge or meeting place with the members of the orchestra dressed in Billy Goat hats.

The first number was "Horsefeathers," played by the orchestra with the Avalon girls kicking, jumping and what else that goes with a dance. Roy Detrich the well liked leader, appeared and introduced a member of the orchestra, Anthony Rizzo.

Rizzo plays the accordion and what don't come out of it isn't in there. He played a selection of songs and then was called back for an encore.

The Avalon girls, clad in Billy Goat uniforms, did another dance routine to the tune of "Barney Google." The girls were given a nice applause.

A special arrangement of the piece "Did You Mean It," was rendered by the orchestra in a very pleasing manner.

Detrich introduced Spark Plug's little brother, Hank, the mule, next. This act consists of two girls. One girl is dressed as a mule, and the other as an ordinary girl. The mule did a clever act by going through the audience and sitting on the people's laps. It was given big applause.

The next number was just what the people were waiting for, Roy Detrich, the golden voice tenor, sang "My Ohio Home," and was called back for more.

Jack and Kay Spangler, reported many times before, again presented their usual routine, which was well received here.

The finale was a band arrangement of "I Scream, You Scream" and Detrich introduced Barney Google himself. Barney entered with a baby goat and walked around the stage with the goat following him. A few of the boys in the orchestra sang a little solo in a comical manner. A tricky lighting effect and the accordion player chasing Detrich with a razor closed the pleasing performance.

Salt Lake City Capitol

Week Ending March 3

The Capitol theatre, under the management of Geo. E. Carpenter, offered an unusually colorful and appreciable stage presentation this past week in the form of Fanchon and Marco's "Harvest Time Idea," in which the famous Welsh Gleemen were presented. This group of 14 male choral artists is recognized as one of the finest of its kind in the world, and has just returned from a triumphant world tour.

Ranging from tenor to deep bass, these voices blend perfectly in their varied selection of numbers.

Featured with the Welsh Gleemen were another group of Sunkist Beauties, adding the touch of beauty, grace and loveliness to the presentation by their artistically arranged performance.

Jelly Bean Johnson, known as the black cloud of mirth, and who appeared here on the opening bill of the Capitol, was heard in an entirely new group of songs and dances.

Alberti and his band, with Alexander Schreiner at the organ, rounded out the program with a selection of especially fine musical offerings.

Chicago Norshore

Week Ending March 4

Al Kvale and his Jazz Collegians have a good show this week. The show opens with a sort of little sketch, wherein Al is forced to give up all his ideas on producing the show. Then he has to think up new ideas for the show, and this is carried out through the entire show. It makes a novel opening number.

Margaret is the first on the show and sings "Dream Kisses" and "I Told Them All About You." Her singing is quite good and she gets a good hand. She is followed by George Taps and Mae Lubo, tap dancers. The girl does a high kicking and hand spring dance and Tap follows with a good dance on his toes. The applause is good.

Then comes an unusually clever and capable routine dance by the Gould Girls. They are dressed in abbreviated police uniforms that are as smart as can be. Their routine is well timed and their tapping to the rhythm of the music with their billies gets a good hand from the audience.

Jimmie Dunn is next with whistling, singing and wise cracks. He gets a good hand for his fairly clever stuff.

Margaret Richard and a young man enact a very clever playlet using nothing but song titles for lines. It is comical, and snappy, getting a good hand.

Then comes the Chicago favorite, Milton Watson, back in the picture houses after a short time in "The Desert Song." He sings "Smile for Me," "Among My Souvenirs," and "The Lilac Tree." His reception is all that even Milton could have desired, and when he left they still wanted more.

Deszo Retter, a clown, is next with a lot of rough and comic falls. As an encore he poses as a wrestler and succeeds in wrestling himself quite effectively. He gets plenty of laughs and a good hand.

For the finale Margaret Richard comes out to sing "Moonlight in Balooa," a very pretty song, as the Gould Girls come out with steel guitars, and dressed in Balooa costumes. They really play their guitars and it makes a hit with the audience. Then the different acts come out to do short bits and as the curtain lowers the Gould Girls appear in beautiful green costumes that match the effective stage set.

A good show it is.

Detroit Michigan

Week Ending March 2

Comedy and fast and furious stepping coming by what might be termed "special delivery," featured the Publix-Frank Cambria presentation "The Fast Mail," with Del Delbridge and his Michigan Syncopators.

Mail from all over the world is the novel idea of the show. The Foster Girls, that is, one of the Foster troupes, were billed from England, and did some clockwork and exact stepping.

From France came a parcel post packet comprising the Lo Groh Trio, a group of acrobats that combine comedy with suppleness.

Two singers, Eva Thornton and Myrtle Gordon, won much applause as did an acrobatic dance by Roy Shelton. Keeping in mind the idea of letters and other mail, Eddie Hill was billed as "unclaimed." His antics and foolery were much appreciated and the audiences were delighted that he had been delivered at the Michigan theatre instead of the Dead Letter Office.

Eduard Werner, conducting the Michigan Symphony Orchestra, presented selections from "Firefly," and Arthur Gutow, at the organ, gave his impressions of "A Miniature Concert."

Chicago Tivoli

Week Ending March 4

This week the theatre celebrated with an anniversary show featuring Bennie Krueger and his band and Rae Samuels and many others in a huge stage presentation. In addition to a Publix Unit called "Highlights" there was a Birthday Greeting show. It ran as follows:

Opening: With band in the pit while slides were flashed on the screen announcing the anniversary as stage-lights went on. Two girls dressed as pages, took position on each side of proscenium with trumpets and as curtain parts a girl comes out to announce the affair in rhyme.

Behind is a scrim drop with huge cake design and a large candle which turns around and exposes the eight Morgan girls with Phyllis Crane, a little tot, who offered an acrobatic routine and cute baby song.

The next ballet number by the Morgan girls was a novelty one, with each girl holding a flower arch as a large design bearing the words "Birthday Greetings, 1928" descending from the fly.

This completed the first part of this show and as the second part was reported before, we will not repeat same here. We might add that at the opening of "Highlights," Bennie Krueger was accorded quite a reception and it was evident the crowd missed him during his absence and was more than happy to see him back.

Chicago Crown

Week Ending March 3

The stagershow at this theatre change every night, as Al Copeland, its band leader, announced.

Copeland introduced Alma West who sang, "Just Love Me," for a starter. She then sang "I Aint Taking Orders from No One," "Some Day, Sweet-heart," and "Who's That Knocking at My Door." This earned her an encore of a little dance and a chorus of her last number.

The band next played "Sobbing Blues," with Al playing a hot chorus on the piano, Al had to encore this number. A collegiate team, Bud and Bernice Foley, was next, who opened with a little telephone skit. They next offer a smart buck and wing dance. Bernice sang "Rickety, Rackety, Shack," to a good hand.

A sign then appeared on the side of stage which read "What Monkey Glands Will Do." Bud entered dressed as an old man and did a very good eccentric routine. Bernice next sang and danced an Irish song and jig. They were very well received and won two encores.

For a grand punch finale Al and the boys each play a hot chorus of a popular number in which they inject a lot of comedy. The presentation was well received.

Chicago Granada

Week Ending March 5

The show this week at the Granada is called "Hello Charlie," because Charles was supposed to have been in New York making a record. The show opens with the eight ballet girls singing a song which might have been called "Hello Charlie." Then a voice, supposed to be Kaley's answers from a large masque placed over the proscenium arch. The voice stops and the girls do a snappy routine.

With the first pianist, Wayne Allen, leading the band, in Kaley's absence, a band number, "I Can't Believe You're in Love With Me."

Mabel Hollis, a blues singer, sings capably "You've Got Nothing, I've Got Nothing," and "Here Comes that Showboat." This number is especially good, and the song gets a good reception.

De Winters and Henry follow with very good classic dancing. The act is further enhanced by being a bit different from the usual type. This act is followed by a band number, "Tomorrow," which has a very good and unusual arrangement.

Brown and Howe, colored man and woman, follow with a pleasing singing and dancing act. Both can dance with no little ability and the man's singing of "Miss Annabelle Lee" deserves good mention. Their dancing both singly and double is good.

Lee and Bergere follow with jazz singing and banjo playing. They sing "Ain't She Sweet" and "Good Bye Blues," and the act seems to please although there is nothing unusual in the act to mark it.

Al Rome, comic tap dancer, gets a big hand with his comedy dancing. He does a clever dance to "The Doll's Dance," for an encore.

This is followed with a band number in which each member of the band is featured. For the finale a girl comes out to sing a pretty Spanish song as the girls of the ballet promenade in gorgeous Spanish costumes.

As is always the case with the Kaley shows, the finale is the spec of the show, and this one is as pretty as most.

Sidare in a Show

Hal Sidare, a presentation dancer who created quite a success in Chicago picture houses last year is now being featured in a similar role in a musical production by the West coast producers of Broadway musical successes.

Sidare is one of the many picture house artists who has won fame that won them a place on Broadway.

The Great American Desert . . . such is the appearance of Broadway every morning until almost noon-time. . . . Hardly conceivable yet true. . . . Stores have not yet opened . . . restaurants are empty . . . and the music publishing firms are deserted.

But slowly and surely, with the coming of twelve o'clock, a marked increase in activities is discernible. . . . The various restaurants begin serving breakfast . . . shops assume the appearance of business . . . and employees of the music business reach their destinations.

From one-thirty in the afternoon, the activities of Broadway actually commence . . . actors are noticed going to their work (?) . . . musicians hustling to their various theatres . . . shoppers gazing in at window displays . . . matinee crowds bustling hither and thither.

Around three and four o'clock there seems to come a lull which covers the entire district, symbolizing the fact that everyone has reached his destination, and seems settled for the time being, at least.

Comes five o'clock . . . the theatres are letting out, and audiences, actors, musicians, shoppers, stenographers, and bootleggers (?) seem to make a grand dash for subways, taxicabs and other means of public conveyance which ultimately, I presume, takes them home.

Once more, until seven-thirty in the evening, there comes a lull over the Great White Way; but alas! 'tis not the end. . . . The rush starts all over again. . . . Ten times worse than in the afternoon. . . .

From the kiosks of the subways, from the stairs of the elevators, from the steps of the street cars, from the confines of taxicabs, pour countless thousands, bent on going to the many playhouses, for which, the Great White Way is so famous (you should see the "Great American Desert" now). . . . I can very well imagine this sight from an aeroplane. . . . It must look like millions of ants pouring out of a thousand ant hills. . . . At this time it is well-nigh impossible to travel the sidewalks any faster than at a snail's pace, for the throngs are so deep and in such a carefree mood, walking arm in arm, that were you in a hurry you would have to apologize twenty times for every block you travel.

At around eight-thirty, this tremendous throng seems to have dwindled and sort of melted away . . . and now the "late-comers" make their appearance. . . . They hurry from corner to corner, looking for a certain theatre, their tickets in their hands, and they care for no one as they try to reach the show, before the curtain arises.

And now the music business seems to come into its own. . . . Song-pluggers, band and orchestra men, act-getters, orchestra leaders, etc., have the freedom of the pavement . . . but not for long. . . .

At a few minutes before eleven o'clock, from side streets, both east and west, comes the onrush of the theatre-goers, to once more surge and overflow the "sidewalks of New York." . . . It is nearly one-thirty in the morning before they have entirely disappeared, leaving behind them in their places, bootleggers, gamblers, tramps, and hundreds of taxi drivers awaiting a stray call.

The end of a perfect day brings the "stay-outs," emerging from restaurants, cafes, and chop suey places. Some sober, and some otherwise, but all of them much lighter financially. . . . They have decided it is time to go home, so the hundreds of taxicabs are once more put into use, until daybreak; and again the most famous street in the world takes on the appearance of The Great American Desert.

Presentation LETTERS

In this open forum those interested in presentation may discuss important matters bearing upon this phase of theatre entertainment. Only signed letters will be published.

PRESENTATION ACTS—To the Editor: In the February issue of the Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World I note what you have to say about songs.

I was away from the game for twelve long years and only recently back at it again. Have the largest gang of Juveniles in America today. 143 in all. Each week take ten of them and put on a little playlet "On the musical comedy order" and introduce all the late and popular numbers.

The reason I'm writing you is that I note a lot of new publishers, and I'd like for you to get me on their mailing list. Lot's of those you mentioned in the issue of Feb 11th sound real good.

Am I asking too much to have you do this? Can't write to some of them because I haven't their addresses. Tell 'em too that I'll run slides and tell the public where they can get them. I'll appreciate it very much. Very truly yours.—Jimmie Renner, Theatrical Agency, Jerome, Ariz.

PRESENTATION ACTS—To the Editor: You will undoubtedly be surprised to know I'm at the Publix house in Houston, it's their largest house in Texas. Opened last Saturday and they say I got the biggest ovation of any organist that has ever been here, using a number called "At Your Service" including effects of different kinds it sure goes over great, the stage unit is Dixieland.

I will send you my Solo each week, write me soon. Best wishes for your many favors to me.—Cornelius Maffie, Organist, Metropolitan theatre, Houston, Tex.

PRESENTATION ACTS—To the Editor: "Vim, Vigor and Valentines" was the title of the special organ concert used by myself the week of February 12th, at the West Side. The solo was a community stunt, cleverly worded and arranged, and "Beautiful," "Everywhere You Go," "After I've Called You Sweetheart," "Gee But I'm Lonesome Tonight" were the featured songs. The solo proved very popular and it's effectiveness for Valentine week was demonstrated by the vocal response by the audiences. Thank you. Sincerely yours.—Clark Fiers, West Side theatre, Scranton, Pa.

Sophie Tilden Gets Fanchon & Marco Tour

This publication takes great pleasure in announcing a "Find" which was discovered by one of our presentation representatives last year. This find is none other than Sophie Tilden, a cute Chicago girl who made her first stage debut at the Embassy theatre, Chicago one year ago.

Since then Sophie has been appearing with Brook Johns, Paul Ash, Mark Fisher and many other well known bandleaders. A report from the West coast states that a recent engagement with Rube Wolfe at the Warfield theatre, San Francisco, won her a contract for a tour of the entire Fanchon and Marco Circuit.

Judging from the past performances and her cute mannerisms in singing blues, Sophie Tilden is slated to become another Peggy Bernier.

Clyde Hood Stages Plot Bandshow

Clyde Hood, production manager for the Capitol and Avalon Theatres, Chicago, is inaugurating a new policy at the Capitol this week in the form of a musical comedy bandshow.

Lee Barton Evans former Earl Carroll star and recently of presentation is being featured in the first production called "The Vagabond King" Maxine Hamilton, Ross and Edwards, and a number of other well-known picture houses artists will appear in the first plot story ever presented in this theatre.

Buffano Opens Publix House in Seattle

Word comes from Seattle, Washington that the new Publix theatre which opened last Saturday has made a tremendous hit with the audience.

One of the reasons for this is a splendid orchestra that Al Short, Western musical adviser for Publix has organized for this house featuring Jules Buffano as its band leader.

Mr. Short is now in Portland, Oregon, supervising the opening of a new Publix house which will also feature a policy of pictures and presentation.

FIVE BEST SELLERS

"Among My Souvenirs" (DeSylva-Brown & Henderson).

"Diane" (Sherman Clay)

"My Blue Heaven" (Leo Feist).

"My Ohio Home" (Leo Feist).

"Dream Kisses" (Ager-Yellen & Borstein).

I GOT TO GO WHERE YOU ARE CHLOE—Villa Moret, Inc.—Reminds one of "Can't You Hear Me Calling Caroline?" A new song that is already showing the ear marks of a big hit. Lyric by Gus Kahn, music by Neil Moret.

DOLORES—(Leo Feist, Inc.)—A collegiate fox trot. A very cute lyric with a sweet melody that will be great for the singing orchestras. By Art Kassel and Marty Bloom.

LIP STICK—(Harms, Inc.)—A piano solo that is different inasmuch as two writers put all the intricate stuff in this solo. By Charles Rosoff and Ted Murray.

WASHBOARD BLUES—(Jack Mills, Inc.)—This house, famous for its blues, has issued a new idea in blues and how the mechanicals will hop on this number. By Hoagy Carmichael and Fred B. Callahan.

HE'S TALL AND DARK AND HANDSOME—(Jack Mills, Inc.)—A marvelous description. Any girl should be glad to meet him. Wonder if he wears a moustache. A low down song written excellently. By Charles Tobias and Al Sherman.

LITTLE MOTHER (Mutterchen)—(Sherman Clay & Co.)—"What Price Glory" made "Charmaine," "Seventh Heaven" made "Diane." This new production will do its best to compete with its predecessors. By the same composers—Erno Rapee and Lew Pollack.

THAT WONDERFUL NIGHT (And You)—(Robbins Music Corporation)—A pretty waltz about the moon and the stars. The melody writer is one of New York's leading orchestra leaders. Very popular on the radio. Lyrics by Raymond Klages, melody by Fred Rich.

BELOVED—(Irving Berlin, Inc.)—Looks like another Gus Kahn hit. A beautiful melody by Joe Sanders of the Coon-Sanders combination. Already jumping to the front as a seller.

MEM'RIES (Golden Memory Days)—(M. Witmark & Sons)—A high class song that has become popular through the radio hour of the Philco Company. This song is starting a precedent by being the first song we have seen restricted exclusively to one radio combination. Lyric by Henry M. Neely, music by Harold Sanford.

ARMS OF LOVE—(Henry Waterson)—A very pretty waltz song that is being extensively played by orchestras and looks very commercial. By Bryan Wheeler and Wendling.

JUST ACROSS THE STREET FROM HEAVEN—(Foster Music Pub. Co.)—A home song by a combination of writers who are well known to the public and tells all about the roamer who returns to the fold. Words and music by Chas. Newman, Harry Harris and Larry Shay.

I MUST BE DREAMING—(Ted Brewne Music Co.)—The lover is taken off his feet when his sweetheart says yes. This song also has a piano solo by the famous Lee Sims which should certainly help its sales. Words and music by Al Dubin, Pat Flaherty and Al Sherman.

I JUST ROLL ALONG (Havin' My Ups and Downs)—(Irving Berlin, Inc.)—January brings forth many optimistic songs. Of course later on we lose some of this optimism. This classifies with the best of this type of song. By Joe Trent and Peter De Rose.

THE THEATRE

Incorporated in this department of practical showmanship of Exhibitors Herald are the Moving Picture World departments, "Selling the Picture to the Public," which was established September 23, 1911, by Epes Winthrop Sargent, and "Better Business Builders."

How Two Theatres Increased Patronage

Every theatre is confronted with the problem of finding new patrons and in increasing the number of patrons who attend the theatre regularly each week. The article below tells how the Garfield theatre, Milwaukee, increased the regular patronage of children for its Saturday matinees from an average of 45 to 750, and how the Uptown, Milwaukee, co-operates with women's club by giving tours through the theatre. The article offers information of importance to theatre managers.

SEVERAL of Midwesco's Milwaukee theatres have been meeting with success in catering to the women and children by featuring kiddies' clubs and matinee tours for women's clubs. J. William Deubach, while manager of the Garfield theatre, a Midwesco de luxe neighborhood house, inaugurated the Garfield Theatre Kiddies' club, which jumped the children's Saturday matinee business at this theatre from an average of 45 to more than 750 within three weeks.

The first step taken in the formation of the club was the running of the following trailer:

"We are organizing a Garfield Kiddies' club, and we want each and every good little boy and girl in this neighborhood to become a member of it.

"We meet every Saturday at 1 p. m., with special entertainment for the kiddies, followed by a complete de luxe performance.

"Members of the club will be given membership buttons and also an opportunity to take part in all contests, etc.

"All you have to do to join the club is to write your name and address and age on a membership card and leave it with us Saturday afternoons.

"Remember, that this is all for the price of admission—10 cents. And the membership is limited to 2,000!"

As the kiddies came in to sign up for membership Saturday, a member of the theatre staff filled in their cards, issued them a membership button with a number thereon, at the same time warning them not to lose the button and to wear it to all Saturday meetings, and also notified them that members of the club wearing their buttons would be entitled to free admission on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month when accompanied by an adult admission.

Introduce Theatre Staff

The actual entertainment of the kiddies is something rather difficult, which must be felt out by the individual managers. The way it is done at the Garfield is by close co-operation between the manager, organist, operator and stage hand. Deubach started out by introducing each one by their first name, because the kiddies seem to enjoy calling the organist "Jack" and operator "Paul" and the same with the rest of the staff.

The actual meetings then were opened at the Garfield by Deubach, who gave a little talk to the children. Then he introduced the organist, who the first two Saturdays told the children all about the organ. Next community singing with songs suitable for children was introduced, the words of which were thrown on the screen. Following this the management featured a singing contest, let-

Garfield Kiddies' Club Song

By

FREIDA RADTKE

(Sung to Tune of "John Brown's Body")

*The Kiddies are a-coming
And they're running very fast,
All laughing and hurrying
So not to be the last;
Today's the day of all the week
We like the very best,
GARFIELD KIDDIES' CLUB.
CHORUS—*

*Hurry, hurry to the Garfield,
Kiddies, Kiddies to the Garfield,
All of us sure like the Garfield
And the Garfield Kiddies' club.*

*Our Kiddies' club is growing fast
That's why we feel so gay,
That's why you hear us
Singing and so happy Saturday,
Now come on Kids, together,
Just as loud as you can say,

ting the right side of the house sing first, then the left, then, perhaps, the balcony, and finally all together. They found that this helps to pep up the children.

After this has been dispensed with, children are invited to come on the stage to perform. At the first meeting three or four came up, and the thing grew so large that in the latter weeks there were 50 and 60 children on the stage. Now the theatre has the children register at the box-office first, giving their name and what they intend to do. Then they are called upon the stage to perform, and after all the various contestants have finished they are all lined up on the stage. Then a dollar bill is held over the heads of the various contestants, and the child who received the greatest amount of applause is given the dollar.

Present Gifts to Children

In addition to all this, each child leaving the theatre is presented with a gift, which can consist of anything, including balloons, candy sticks, rubber balls, whistles, etc. These articles can be purchased at reasonable prices and the cost will not be in excess of $15. There is no set standard with which to put across a kiddies' club successfully, according to Deubach, but you must sense what they like. Also you must keep them in control so that they do not wreck your theatre, but if you give them what they like and remind them a number of times about their behavior you will make the affair a success and incidentally build up good will in the community.

The Garfield theatre has gone still further in this stunt by electing a president of the club, who will hold office for about two months. He was elected by popular choice in much the same manner in which the cash award is made. Another step taken by Deubach is the formation of a Kiddies' club orchestra, which is meeting with great success; and lastly the organist offered a cash prize of $10 to the child writing the best Kiddie club song. About 10 or 12 songs were received, which were printed on slips, put on the screen and voted upon by the children. The one receiving the most applause was adopted as the official song of the club, and it was then set to music by the organist.

Al Kvoool, manager of Midwesco's Uptown theatre, has been successful in staging matinee tours of women's club, which has built up much good will in the community. Kvoool started the ball rolling by running a special trailer calling attention to the fact that a ladies' matinee would be featured on Wednesdays. The theatre's public relations representative then got in touch with the heads of different women's clubs, inviting them to be the Uptown's guests on a tour of inspection of the theatre on Wednesday starting at 1 p. m. In the auditorium they were formally welcomed by the management and at the same time informed that the purpose of the affair was to better acquaint them with the operation of the theatre.

Women Shown Entire Theatre

The heads of the various departments—engineer, operator, electrician, stage prop man, organist—were in their respective positions. They were shown the lighting of the house and taken back stage. The electrician explained the switchboard and how the different lighting effects were obtained. The organist played for them and explained the different stops and the various combinations. They were then taken to the boiler room, where the engineer explained the whole ventilating system, describing the cooling system and stressing the point that the air was just as fresh inside the theatre as outside in the open.

The operator in the picture booth went through the routine of putting on a film, showing how he threaded the machine, worked slides, organ novelties, the spot light, etc. He showed them the different effects that could be obtained from the booth, and then attention was called to the fact that the booth was absolutely fireproof, and how the fire shutters

"My Best Idea" Doubles Business for Hal G. Olson, M. B. I. No. 9

That "The Theatre's" M. B. I. club is proving popular and helpful is attested by the number of fine letters from readers praising it, and "My Best Ideas" continue to come in. Hal G. Olson of the Adler theatre, Marshfield, Wisconsin, who becomes M. B. I. Number 9, says his "My Best Idea" doubled the volume of his business.

"My Best Idea" No. 9

By Hal G. Olson

NOTICING your "My Best Idea" column, the thought kept turning over in my mind and try as I might I couldn't think of any one outstanding stunt that I could call my best. However, in lieu of any one particular winner I am going to list just two of a great number of money makers, two that brought a sure return for me and can be used by other "exhibs" to equal advantage.

While working in a small Wisconsin town as manager, operator and sign artist, I was leading my competitor a fair but lively chase for what little business there was to be had. I wanted more and wanted a sure bet, so I sat down and worked out a plan whereby the baseball club, which was in a bad way for funds, would receive 20 per cent of a special ticket printed for it, good at any regular performance.

These tickets were placed by the thousands in every shop that boasted a clerk who had an interest in baseball. The results were obvious. My box office took an awful slump, but the tickets were bringing me twice the volume and under ordinary conditions would have continued for the entire baseball season had not my competitor finally succeeded in getting to a backer of the club, forcing them to stop the sale. However, not until I had disposed of a vast quantity of the tickets, many buying them in lots of 10, as they would a ticket book.

Another ticket idea that brought real results. I worked with the Brotherhood of Trainmen, who on past occasions, had taken on a picture for two nights and had oversold the house. This was not in accordance with my plans, so I conceived the idea of setting special attractions for a trainmen's week.

Having four changes at 25 cents, I set a railroad melodrama for the opening and closing program with two pleasing pictures for mid-week. I gave the trainmen one thousand pink tickets that sold for $1 each, good for four first nighters or a solo for each change. They plugged with these for two weeks and sold nearly as many as they could have at 25 cents.

However, the boys explained that some people would not fall for the four change racket, so I gave them another thousand blue tickets that sold for 25 cents. This created new interest and they started a new drive four days before the week opened, cleaning up on the smaller tickets. It was some week and if I ever hit a railroad town again, it will be a semi-annual affair.

I am now with the Adler Theatre company, which owns a circuit of five houses in central Wisconsin and have the great advantage of working with a man who is not only on the ground floor and close to his business, but knows the theatre game, including exploitation, and gives me unlimited cooperation and help in putting over and devising stunts.

would automatically drop down and there would be no chance of fire working into any part of the theatre.

They were then taken over the auditorium and were shown how the theatre was braced. According to Kvoool, this seemed to go very well, as some women were skeptical about the safety of the theatre on account of the large auditorium apparently having no braces. "At the opening show," Mr. Kvoool said, "we had a special film booked called 'Memories' with music cued by the organist. Just as this film came on the organist announced that this had been booked special for the women's club in recognition of their interest in better pictures, and the following week a special violin solo was booked in honor of the club, which went over big with the ladies."

When the tour of the theatre was finished the chairman made a short talk, the club giving a rising vote of thanks and pledging themselves to co-operate with the theatre to the utmost in the future. This stunt should be very effective in bringing people into theatres who would otherwise not visit the show-house and in building up good will.

Special Newspaper, Phone and Contest Used for "Chicago"

"Chicago," Pathe's melodrama with Phyllis Haver and Victor Varconi, was given a full line of effective exploitation for its run at the Eckel theatre in Syracuse.

On the day preceding the opening and the day of the first show, two girls sat in the office of the Eckel theatre calling names listed in the telephone directory. It was estimated that over 5,000 persons received this message: "Good morning, Mrs. Jones. I just wanted to remind you that 'Chicago' opens at the Eckel theatre Saturday, February 4th."

Manager Kaufman of the Eckel had a special electric sign erected with letters six feet high spelling out "Chicago." The house also brought out a special newspaper, "The Eckel News," with headlines in red ink and a flash of "Chicago" stills. Fifteen thousand copies were printed. Ten thousand copies were handed out by newsboys on the street, 4,700 copies were delivered to homes and 1,000 copies were distributed at the Syracuse Auto Show by the Nash automobile booth. Ads secured for the sheet brought the cost down to a minimum.

A tieup made with the Syracuse Herald made use of the limericks in the Pathe press book on the film. These limericks were run minus the last line, at the rate of one a day for five days. Thirty dollars in prizes were offered for best last lines on the set of verses, as follows: First, $15; second, $10; third, $5, and 20 pairs of tickets for the next best in line. The Herald played up the limerick in heavy display, with two column cuts and headlines.

As a special street ballyhoo, an automobile truck carrying two cut out banners of the "Chicago" 24-sheet was sent about the city. Two cloth banners reading: "Thrilling all Syracuse, the daring sensation of the season, 'Chicago,' now playing the Eckel theatre." The truck was used during the entire run.

Organize Club for Putting over Serial

The Standard theatre, Chicago, organized a Vanishing Rider club at the beginning of the Universal serial, "The Vanishing Rider." Five thousand circulars announcing the club and the playdate of the first chapter were distributed in the neighborhood. At the showing of the first episode each child received a membership card with ten numbers on it, corresponding to the ten episodes of the picture.

The youngsters were instructed to bring the card with them every Saturday, and each child who has a completely punched card at the close of the final episode will receive a free ticket for any performance at the Standard. The theatre reports fine results on the club idea, which is still in progress.

"Her Wild Oat" Idea

Here's a clever idea for those of you who have booked the Colleen Moore picture, "Her Wild Oat."

When Fred Young, manager of the Victory theatre, Salisbury, North Carolina, played the picture he placed a small table on the sidewalk under the marquee. On the table was a box of earth with oat shoots growing in it, with a sign on the box reading, "Coming Up, 'Her Wild Oat,' with Colleen Moore, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday."

At one side of the box was a poster cut with stills from the production pasted between the caricature figures of Colleen Moore and Larry Kent. Enslaves of stills and framed enlargements flanked the rest of the lobby features.

"Good morning, Mrs. So-and-so, I just wanted to remind you that 'Chicago' opens at the Eckel theatre Saturday," is what these girls are saying, and they said it 5,000 times when the Eckel theatre, Syracuse, N. Y., played the Pathe picture featuring Phyllis Haver and Victor Varconi.

Who Knows! Maybe Adam Was Creator of the "Bull" Stunt

Joe Mayer surely did start something when he claimed to be the originator of the "This Ain't No Bull" publicity stunt. Joe pulled it in 1919, and almost before the ink dried on Joe's claim as printed in his story in the February 18 issue, a letter came from John Trehwela, who claimed to have used the stunt in 1915.

But Trehwela's claim did not stand long, for now comes a letter from Joe Hewitt of the Strand theatre, Robinson, Illinois, who claims to have used the stunt in 1913 or 1914. Here is Hewitt's letter:

Editor, "THE THEATRE,"

Dear Sir:

The writer wishes to take issue with the article in your department, issue of February 18, in which our good friend and clever exploiter, Mr. Joe Mayer, claims credit of being the originator of "This Ain't No Bull" publicity which he claims to have originated in 1919.

The writer pulled this very stunt as early as 1913 or 1914 (exact date not recalled, but at least 13 or 14 years ago) in Mt. Carmel, Illinois, in exploiting a two reel comedy, "Joe Martin Turns 'Em Loose" (how old is that one?), and I can refer to the following present-day exhibitors as to the truth of this statement: Steve M. Farrar, Harrisburg; Oscar L. Turner, and Ted Coleman, Mt. Carmel.

The writer has always taken particular pride in this "bull" or "cow" stunt, and as far as we ever knew it was original with us. Still they say there is nothing new under the sun, and it might have been possible that the same stunt was pulled by some of the older boys in the days of P. T. Barnum.

It is not the intention to take any credit from Mr. Mayer, whom the writer has had the pleasure of watching for many years past, but in this instance I cannot see any justified claim for originality on this particular stunt as late as 1919, because the original cow used in our stunt had long since been dead and "this ain't no bull."

Yours very truly,

JOE HEWITT,
STRAND THEATRE,
ROBINSON, ILL.

Well, now that this thing has gone this far, we simply must settle it. Who used the idea before Hewitt did? We wouldn't be surprised if old Adam didn't use it in the garden of Eden. He was just the sort of guy to hang a sign on old Bossie reading, "This Ain't No Bull! Eve Made Us Eat the Apple." But let's get this thing settled. If anybody has a prior claim, let's hear from you.

Boys with Dads in Free to See "Sorrell"

Joe Gebracht put over a successful coupon stunt recently when "Sorrell and Son" was shown in Ames, Iowa, the Ames Daily Tribune and Evening Times co-operating.

The film was shown at the Ames on Wednesday and Thursday and at the Capitol on Friday and Saturday. Boys under 12, accompanied by their fathers, were guests of the paper and the theatre. An appeal was made to the youngsters from the standpoint of the exclusiveness of the offer. "For Boys Only" the coupon read, and the boys were quick to take advantage of this relief from petticoat domination. They went to the show with proud daddies trailing along.

Production Hints from Edward L. Hyman

Managing Director, Mark Strand Theatre, Brooklyn

In order to offer a stage presentation with Richard Barthelmess in "The Patent Leather Kid," it was necessary to let the length of the show run to 2 hours and 10 minutes. Although this is some 10 or 15 minutes longer than customary, it was deemed advisable in order to assure the patrons that they were getting a big show. It has been found no matter how big the photoplay production, and "The Patent Leather Kid" was very widely heralded in advance, the customers always like some sort of offering in conjunction with the screen entertainment.

Edward L. Hyman

"The Mark Strand Gaieties" was the stage production, running for 18 minutes. Jerry Sears and his stageband of 20 pieces furnished the melody and Arthur Ball, Ruth Watson, Williams & Ross and Locke, Harak and Locke supplied the entertainment.

The setting for this presentation was a backdrop French fabrics with silver leaves as borders. The musicians were arranged in two tiers, with gold and black shields in front of their music stands. They were dressed in tuxedos.

The routine was as follows: The band opened with "Let a Smile Be Your Umbrella." Side spots amber and violet; two white spots from bridges on Jerry Spears and two lemon floods from the dome on musicians; blue overhead borders, with four open box lamps blue. Ruth Watson, soprano, then came forward to sing "Among My Souvenirs." Deep blue floods from bridges, with a lemon spot on Miss Watson. Two comics, Williams & Ross, eccentric dancers, followed with a number that was well received. They were covered by white spots from dome. Arthur Ball then sang, "The Song Is Ended," and he, too, was covered by white spots. For the big finale, Locke, Harak and Locke, dressed as West Point cadets, did a very hard dance on the staircase.

Richard Barthelmess in "The Patent Leather Kid" went into the second week with no let up in attendance. After the third day of the second week it was almost a foregone conclusion that the box office receipt would total up to the figures of the first week.

The entire show, as was the case last week, was composed of three incidents, an overture by "The Famed Mark Strand Orchestra," followed by a stage presentation and the feature photoplay, all of which took 2 hours and 10 minutes, with "The Patent Leather Kid" taking 1 hour and 46 minutes, and it was due to this long footage that the musical portion of the program was somewhat curtailed.

The overture was Gomez' "Il Guarany," played by "The Famed Mark Strand Orchestra," Willy Stahl conducting. The lights for this included a flesh colored Mestrum flood from the dome on the musicians; foots and borders of large stage in blue; steel blue Mestrum floods from the dome on the purple spangled draw-curtains which were closed over the production stage; four steel blue arch spots on the pleats of the draw curtains.

Although the big stage presentation retained its previous title, "Mark Strand Gaieties," numerous changes were made in the cast of principals. The curtains opened disclosing the interior of a club, with the twenty-piece stage band seated. Jerry Sears, who has been a favorite fixture in this theatre for the last four weeks, wielded the baton, and the band struck into "Sunrise." Next came Ruth Watson, soprano, who sang "Among My Souvenirs." This was followed by Kameroff, a Russian who plays an accordion in unique fashion and blends it with hot Russian dancing. The next number was "The Song Is Ended," the Berlin ballad, sung by Arthur Ball, tenor, whose excellent voice has obtained for him his third successive engagement at this theatre. As a finish the Patterson Twins, two young ladies of pleasing personality, did a very pretty sister act. This presentation took 18 minutes.

Birthday Greetings and Tickets Pay in Building Good Will

H. V. Smoots of the Vine theatre, Mt. Vernon, Ohio, has found that birthday greetings and complimentary tickets to his patrons on their birthday pay well in building good will.

"We have been using the birthday greetings for three years and now have over three thousand birthdays on our list," says Mr. Smoots, "and we find them an excellent good will builder. Original lists were secured from lodges and other organizations' records. Last year we mailed a letter with our monthly programs openly soliciting dates of birthdays and met with a wonderful response.

"Every boy and girl attending our Saturday Kiddie Club matinee is registered and given a button, at the same time the date of birth is secured. Details are taken care of by the young lady in the office, who writes a very beautiful hand and lends dignity to the invitation."

The invitations sent out by Mr. Smoots are attractive folders, the inside of which carries a fitting birthday message (reproduced here). The complimentary tickets inclosed are arranged so that the proper date can be punched, there being a place for every day in the year on each ticket.

Permit us to share the Joys of this, your Birthday, by extending you an invitation to attend The Vine this evening. The Ticket enclosed will admit you and a Companion, with our Compliments. May each recurring Birthday find you rich in Health, Wealth and Happiness.

Incorporated in this department of Exhibitors Herald, which is a department containing news, information and gossip on current productions, is the Moving Picture World department, "Through the Box Office Window."

"THE KING OF KINGS"

HAVING seen "The King of Kings," I am in the market for a new job. Not—please understand—that I do not wish to write about Mr. DeMille's picture, but because trade and lay critics (with whom I perforce must permit myself to be classified so long as I occupy this chair) have made such asses of themselves in their comments concerning it. Since, obviously, I cannot endow these brethren with brains, taste nor intelligence, the next best thing for me to do is to desert the ranks. I repeat, I am in the market for a new job.

"The King of Kings" is, as you must be aware, a wholly sincere representation of the life of Christ. As you must be aware, too, it was manufactured without regard for expense and with every regard for accuracy. The research, alone, ran up an expense adequate to the production of three or four good movies. I do not recall the total cost of the picture, but I know that it is unimportant. The finished product is a tremendous thing, a celluloid transcription of a record that has endured through innumerable translations, interpretations and abridgements to stand, as it has always stood, as the most important document in the world.

My fellow-writers (I blush a little as I write it) have written pieces about the acting, the makeup of some of the players, the subtitled, the photography, even the continuity. It is even recorded, apparently with fact background, that someone is suing someone else for plagiarizing the plot! And—I expect—a time will come when the box office value of the creation is duly embalmed in precious percentages.

None of these things, of course, will have eventual bearing upon the importance of the work. Mr. DeMille, whose cream-pufferies I have ridiculed as merrily as the next writer when occasion seemed to demand, should not permit himself to be bothered by these barkings and bleatings. His should be the satisfaction of a worker whose life has been marked by at least one triumph, one all but super-human accomplishment. It may be decades before acknowledgement is freely given—indeed, it may never come—but the work is there, in all its tremendous simplicity and seriousness, for such as may be able to comprehend. Regrettable, but unimportant, if these be few.

I have written nothing, and I will write nothing, about "The King of Kings" as a picture. I would be as quick to complain that the sun is round instead of square or octagonal, that the Atlantic is green when I should prefer it blue or that Lindbergh's plane bore an advertising insignia. "The King of Kings" is, to me and very plainly to those who saw it when I did at the Erlanger, a complete and satisfying fulfillment of the titular promise.

By T. O. SERVICE

"FEEL MY PULSE"

THIS, to my way of thinking, is the last word in comedies. It is slapstick, farce, burlesque and straight humor in about the most pleasant combination of equal and unequal portions that I've laid weary eye to in months. Now, at my dusty typewriter with recuperating chillblains reminding me now and again of the sudden cold snap that has taken Chicago, I laugh again at the gyrations of the gyrating Bebe Daniels and the wisecracks given her by a wisecracking captionist. It's all a howl.

"Feel My Pulse" is one of those naturals which always make one wonder why nobody thought of making such a picture before. It starts with the familiar antiseptically reared daughter of wealth. It proceeds to place her in a supposed sanitarium that is really operated as a base for rum-runners. It continues by modernizing "Over the River Charlie" and a lot of other good old medicine show acts and finishes in a hand-to-hand battle by the entire company a la Sennett, Chaplin and the rest of the slapstickers.

Miss Daniels gets into action a little later than usual, perhaps because there is more good comic stuff than usual in the early part of the picture. It would not do, of course, to tell you what all this stuff is. That would spoil your enjoyment of it. And—though I'm not one to make predictions or build threats upon them—if you don't get a laugh out of this comedy you have no business looking for laughter in films.

I'm becoming tremendously fond of the Daniels pictures. Each one seems better, funnier, sprightlier and freer. I can barely recall that the star is the same one who used to do dramatic things—and weren't they terrible?—in a less enlightened era. Give her more liberty, say I, and by all means increase the pay check of the person who writes her captions. I don't know who deserves the greater credit, but there is enough for both and to spare.

"THE LATEST FROM PARIS"

IT'S good to see Norma Shearer back at work in "The Latest from Paris." (Which is another way of saying that she shouldn't have been put in "The Student Prince" in the first place). Back in the prominence to which her unquestioned ability entitles her, she makes a romping comedy out of a cloak-and-suit piece that has bits enough of this, that and the other thing to warrant the previously unanalyzed pronouncement "it has everything." That about says it.

Miss Shearer is, this time, a traveling saleslady for a ladies' wear concern that might as well be Potash & Perlmutter. As which she meets and defeats a rival drummer, with whom she promptly falls in love, and after that there is a Christmas Eve scene reminiscent of "Welcome Stranger" and a flock of other scenes reminiscent—but not importantly so—of various other successful plots. All of which adds up to total a wholly pleasing, humorous, human, sprightly, colorful, comic and consummate hour of entertainment.

I like Miss Shearer in this lighter mood. She doesn't seem to me to be constructed for drama. She fits exactly into the picture when the picture is built for amusement purposes. This one is—she does—and I vote for as many more of the same as they can find time to manufacture in the daily round of business at M G M.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT

J. C. JENKINS is hereby notified that his remedy for chillblains, which reads a bit intricately, will be given full and adequate trial when (and if) the formula submitted by my good friend, C. A. Miller, has been tried and found wanting. (At this writing—after three applications—Mr. Miller's panacea bids fair to accomplish the desired result. Thanks.)

PRINCESS PAT (otherwise the w. g. daughter) has practically forgotten the Whooping Cough business, but Pagaliacci (otherwise the family parrot) has picked up the knack of whooping and persists in reminding Pat how it's done. The Head of the House (slang for yours truly—and it really doesn't mean anything) is teaching the bird how to yodel (no admission during lessons) with a view to breaking the Princess of the whooping habit.

Woe, of course, is all of us.

NEW PICTURES

In "New Pictures" the EXHIBITORS HERALD and MOVING PICTURE WORLD presents in concise form information on current and forthcoming attractions.

The facts as presented will serve exhibitors in booking and in the preparation of their advertising campaigns.

BUCK PRIVATES: Universal comedy-drama, with Lya De Putti, Malcolm McGregor, Zasu Pitts, James Marcus, Eddie Gribbon, Ed Duncan, Bud Jamison and Les Bates. Directed by Melville Brown. Released June 17. Length.....

TYPE AND THEME: Proving that love needs no treaties—and that trouble ends not with an armistice. John Smith, buck private in the American Army of Occupation, and Anne, daughter of a German officer, fall in love. Then falls an edict banning all bi-sexual fraternizing between the late "Huns" and Yanks. The girls are to have their hair shorn if they violate the ban, whereupon Anne is caught in John's arms. John faces court martial, of course. But Anne accuses hard-boiled Sergeant Butts. Then it is agreed that if the offending soldier marries Anne the case will be dismissed. The sergeant being too willing to marry Anne, she and John have to work fast, which they do, so everything turns out all right.

BURNING DAYLIGHT: First National melodrama, with Milton Sills, Doris Kenyon, Arthur Stone, Big Boy Williams, Lawford Davidson, Jane Winton, Stuart Holmes, Edmund Breese and Howard Truesdale. Directed by Charles Brabin. Released March 11. Length.....

TYPE AND THEME: Burning Daylight is a man—a Milton Sills type of guy. First thing, up in Alaska, he wagers $2,000 he can make the 2,000 miles to Nome and back in 60 days. He does it, but loses the money in a poker game. Defending the Virgin, dance hall girl, from a drunken miner, he places her in a mission, then locates a claim on which Dawson is built. Rich, he goes to San Francisco for the high life and is "gypped" out of his wealth. But he applies a little violence and gets his money back, deciding then to settle down to quiet married life with the Virgin.

CROWD, THE: Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer drama, with Eleanor Boardman, James Murray, Bert Roach, Daniel G. Tomlinson, Del Henderson, Lucy Beaumont, Freddie Burke Frederick and Alice Mildred Puter. Directed by King Vidor. Released March 3. Length 8,548.

TYPE AND THEME: A story of life as, in the main, it is generally lived. The tale starts with John as a baby. He grows up. Meets a girl. They marry. They tire of each other. They quarrel. And they make up. Children are born. John struggles—in the Crowd. Tragedy comes when one of the children, crushed by a truck, dies. Discouraged, beaten, John gives up his position then goes from job to job. Disgusted, Mary's brothers urge her to leave him. John is at the point of suicide when he hears his young son say that he wants to be a man like daddy. John tries again. He gets a job. Arriving home, John finds that Mary's brothers have persuaded her to leave him. She does go out the door. But she returns—because she loves him. . . . In time they prosper.

ENEMY, THE: Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer drama, with Lillian Gish, Ralph Forbes, Ralph Emerson, Frank Currier, George Fawcett, Fritz Ridgeway, John S. Peters, Karl Dane, Polly Moran and Billy Kent Shaefer. Directed by Fred Niblo. Released February 18. Length 8,194.

TYPE AND THEME: The story of one man's passion for peace and of most men's passion for war. Professor Arndt of the University of Vienna has long advocated pacifism. The World War brings upon him the fruits of his unorthodox activities. He is suspended from the university and reduced to great poverty. Pauli, his daughter, suffers even more, for her fiance, Carl, has been reported killed. She joins her father in his hatred of war. But peace inevitably comes and Carl turns up. The old professor believes that strife among men has been banished forever. But even as these thoughts brighten his mind, the children in the streets are playing at the grim eternal game.

HEART OF A FOLLIES GIRL, THE: First National drama, with Billie Dove, Larry Kent, Lowell Sherman, Clarissa Selwynne and Mildred Harris. Directed by John Francis Dillon. Released March 18. Length.....

TYPE AND THEME: This one may tax the credulity of the cynical, but on the other hand it COULD happen. Teddy is a feminine stage person appearing in one of the music-girl productions loosely classified as Follies. Rogers Winthrop, rich and urbane, pays her court. One day, not being able to keep an appointment with her, he sends his secretary, Calhoun, with a necklace which he was to give her. Teddy and Calhoun have met before, under circumstances leading Teddy to believe him not a secretary, but a man of wealth. Presently, they fall in love, Teddy continuing to love him even upon learning his true station. To buy her a watch, Calhoun steals from Winthrop and is sent to prison. He escapes, but Teddy makes him go back to finish his sentence, promising to marry him when he has earned his liberty.

LOVE HUNGRY: Fox comedy-drama, with Lois Moran, Lawrence Gray, Marjorie Beebe, Edythe Chapman, James Neill and John Patrick. Directed by Victor Heerman. Released April 15. Length.....

TYPE AND THEME: The moral is: Love will find a way. Joan is the daughter of a man who has slaved his life away at a small wage, she earning her own living as a chorus girl. With them lives Tom, who works with Joan's father but makes a little money on the side writing articles giving advice to the love-lorn. It is plain that he and Joan love each other, and while he always advises his readers to marry in spite of poverty, he is afraid to take the step himself. In fact, he introduces Joan to a rich chap whom he thinks she should marry. Then Joan's mother shows him what she has saved, saying that he and Joan could do likewise. That night when Joan comes home with a ring on, ostensibly the rich chap's, Tom takes it and throws it out the window. The ring turns out to be a cheap affair of Joan's own purchase, anyway.

SMART SET, THE: Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer melodrama, with William Haines, Jack Holt, Alice Day, Hobart Bosworth, Coy Watson, Jr., Constance Howard, Paul Nicholson and Julia Swayne Gordon. Directed by Jack Conway. Released February 25. Length 6,476.

TYPE AND THEME: A sport story, bringing the lesser known game of polo into the-hero-winning-the-game-and-the-girl business so extensively indulged in by baseball, football, et cetera. Tommy, a rich man's son, naturally, since he plays polo, is so conceited that even the girl he loves gets sick of him. And on the eve of the International Cup match, he goes in for conduct that gets him suspended. Angry, his father disowns him and sells his ponies. But during the game, Captain Nelson is injured, whereupon Tommy is sent in, and bringing victory to his team, he wins back ponies, dad and girl.

STREETS OF SHANGHAI: Tiffany-Stahl melodrama, with Pauline Starke, Kenneth Harlan, Margaret Livingston, Eddie Gribbon, Jason Robards, Mathilde Comont, Sojin, Anna May Wong, Tetsu Komai, Toshiye Ichioka and Media Ichioka. Directed by Louis J. Gasnier. Released December 15. Length.....

TYPE AND THEME: With the Marines in China. Mary, looking for a child stolen from the mission, meets Lee, marine, in a street devoted to houses of prostitution. He and his buddies promise to find the child for her, and in the course of the search, Sadie attaches herself to Lee. Mary and Lee have fallen in love with each other, but Sadie estranges them by making Mary think Lee has attacked her. To explain, Lee goes to the mission just as it is besieged by Chinese revolutionists. Believing themselves facing death, Mary and Lee vow their love. Marines save them to the fulfilment of their promise.

BACK TO LIBERTY (Excellent mystery-drama): Arrange to have a private showing for the state prison or for the prisoners in your town. Get them to write a few lines on "What I would do to get 'Back to Liberty'" or "Does it pay to be a criminal?" Tie up the stories with your newspaper to have them printed. Following is a letter for your mailing list: "Dear Patron: You probably will wish to make a note for the date of for on that date we will have as our feature picture, 'Back to Liberty,' a thrilling mystery-drama. The cast of 'Back to Liberty' includes Edmund Breese, Gene Del Val, George Walsh, Dorothy Hall and Desacia Moores. They make of it a capital entertainment, one of the best we have been privileged to show. We hope you will be in our audience to see this picture. Sincerely yours, theatre."

BUCK PRIVATES (Universal comedy-drama): A gala opening night can feature a tie-up with the officers of the American Legion or distinguished members as your honored guest. The Legion band or the local guard band can furnish the music. Those who are still incapacitated should be brought to the theatre in automobiles furnished for this occasion. Arrange a parade of local Legion members to the theatre on your opening night. Dress a man in a soldier's uniform and a girl in a German girl's costume. They can walk through the streets of your town hand in hand and a sign on the man's back can announce the picture at your theatre. Promote a newspaper voting contest to decide the most popular member of the local Legion post. Arrange to have the newspaper print coupons in the paper, along with the names of the leading candidates. Call your stunt the "Buck Privates Popularity Contest" and make only buck privates eligible.

CHASER, THE (First National comedy): Have a man dressed like Harry Langdon mounted on a funny looking bicycle (one of the old high-wheel bikes would be all right if you can obtain one) peddling furiously down the street and carrying a sign "I am 'The Chaser'!" The bicycle should be altered so that the pedals go around at a high speed, while the machine itself moves very slowly, which will add to the ludicrous appearance and the effect. The same thought is adaptable to another "Chaser" street gag, such as having youngsters chase each other through the principal streets, etc. An old automobile of about 1904 vintage with an asthmatic engine would be another gag to use for a ballyhoo. Give your leading dealer in men's clothing some of the Langdon "stills" and get a window display with cards which you could have printed with the following inscription: "'The Chaser' made a great hit with the ladies. But Harry Langdon realized the value of appearances: he dressed up! Wear brand clothes and you'll be just as effective yourself."

CROWD, THE (M-G-M drama): A suggestion for teaser throwaways is as follows: On the outside of the throwaway, have printed "Go where 'The Crowd' goes, see inside." And in the inside of the throwaway, the following should be printed: "To the theatre for the best motion picture in town! Coming, another big feature, 'The Crowd,' at the theatre (Date). Following is a letter for your mailing list: "Dear Patron: King Vidor directed 'The Big Parade' and spent over one year in making 'The Crowd,' which is going to be shown at the theatre (Date). You have had the same struggles, the same fun, the same disappointments, and the same happiness that is in the 'The Crowd.' If you are looking for something different in the way of screen entertainment, don't miss 'The Crowd.' Yours sincerely, theatre."

FORBIDDEN HOURS (M-G-M drama): Following are some suggestions for place-cards that can be posted in front of the theatre and nearby: "Warning! You are forbidden to park, neck, or loiter around or in front of this theatre during the showing of 'Forbidden Hours'" or "Warning! You are forbidden to park, neck, or loiter here between the hours of 12 noon and midnight, during the showing of 'Forbidden Hours,' now at the theatre." In this picture Ramon Novarro smokes a pipe. Arrange a tie-up with a cigar store to have the following poster in his window: "Ramon Novarro says a pipe is his favorite smoke—his choice is (Name Dealer's Pipe). See him at the theatre in 'Forbidden Hours,' now showing at the theatre."

LOVE HUNGRY (Fox drama): For a ballyhoo you can use the following suggestion: Arrange to have a young, well dressed man and woman walk along the main thoroughfares of the town eating sandwiches. Each can have a sign on the back reading "Are you 'Love Hungry'?" If you are, follow us to the theatre." Tie up with your restaurant and pay half of the expense of the printing of the following menus: "Are you food hungry? If you are, you will be pleased at the (Restaurant). Are you 'Love Hungry'?" If you are, you will be sure to enjoy the picture at the theatre (Date)."

SMART SET, THE (M-G-M comedy-drama): Following is a letter for your mailing list: "Dear Patron: The Smart Aleck of the Screen—its irrepressible wisecracker—the star who breezes through his pictures leaving a trail of laughter and huge enjoyment—the star that men like and women adore—William Haines, is here again—and you're in for another evening of fine entertainment. This time you will see him in 'The Smart Set,' a picture based on the International Polo Matches with Great Britain. Confident, boyishly conceited and liking the ladies, he goes on a 'big bender' on the eve of the big game and is barred for breaking training. Eventually he gets his chance and comes through with flying colors. The polo games are exciting, thrilling and colorful. You'll fight and play with the riders and you'll enjoy Haines in this picture because he is even better than in 'Slide, Kelly, Slide,' 'West Point,' 'Spring Fever' and his other previous photo-plays. 'The Smart Set' will begin (Date) at the Strand theatre. Jack Holt, Alice Day and Hobart Bosworth have featured roles in the cast. Very truly yours, (Theatre Manager)."

STRONGER WILL, THE (Excellent drama): Following is a suggested letter for your mailing list: "Dear Patron: Please make a note on your engagement pad that on we will show 'The Stronger Will.' We feel sure you will wish to see it. Percy Marmont is the star; the supporting cast includes Rita Carewe, lovely and talented daughter of Edwin Carewe; also Erin La Bissioniere, William Morton Bailey, Howard Truesdell and Merle Ferriss. The story tells of frenzied love and finance as played by the Wall Street and Park Avenue set in New York. It is a very fine entertainment and quite the best picture in which Mr. Marmont has appeared. Sincerely yours, theatre."

THREE-RING MARRIAGE (First National drama): Prior to run of the picture, draw wedding rings, in groups of threes, on sidewalk in front of theatre, also on your display boards around town. Then after curiosity is aroused, break with your announcement. Another teaser stunt consists in having clowns go through the principal streets with bells, which they ring three times. Do this for a day or two. Announcement comes in forms of posters on his back, although he continues characteristic ringing three times. When distributing heralds in mailing boxes, ring the bell three times. Receivers will remember the odd ring and tie-up with the title when they read the herald. Merchants available for tie-ups with "Three Ring Marriage" are women's and men's shops specializing in wedding attire, and jewelers. Provide them with window cards for display. In cooperation with your newspaper, start a contest on the question, "Do you wear your wedding ring?" or "Should a husband wear a wedding ring if he demands his wife to wear one?"

TILLIE'S PUNCTURED ROMANCE (Paramount comedy-drama): Send out a broken down automobile with a comical looking chauffeur in Chester Conklin make-up. In the rear seat place a girl dressed as Louise Fazenda. Banners on the sides and front of the car can read, "'Tillie's Punctured Romance' at the theatre." Rent a very old car and put a couple of big bed springs between the chassis and the body so that, with each revolution of the wheels the body jumps up and down. Tie-up with an automobile dealer and have him send one of his new cars around the town with the following banners on both sides of the hood and the back: "For real enjoyment drive a (Name of Auto) and see 'Tillie's Punctured Romance' at the theatre (Date)." Arrange with your radio dealer to install a magnavox over your box office, with amplifiers inside the theatre, to bring the laughs inside to the people outside.

YOUR WIFE AND MINE (Excellent comedy-drama): Following is a letter for your mailing list: "Dear Patron: Please make a note on your calendar to see 'Your Wife and Mine,' which comes next theatre. It is a spirited farce-comedy of married life with a cast including Phyllis Haver, Stuart Holmes, Barbara Tennant, Wallace MacDonald, Katherine Lewis, and others. Their bad luck is your good fun. The whole picture is fun from the start to finish; good, clean, honest fun with not a blush in it. Come and enjoy it and bring all the members of your family, especially if they are interested in marriage. Sincerely yours, Theatre."

WHIP WOMEN, THE (First National drama): If you can get a team of oxen and an ox-cart, dress a girl in clothes similar to the ones worn by Estelle Taylor in this picture. Give her a whip and let her drive through the main streets of the town. Heralds can be thrown from the cart. If you have a mixture of foreign people in your town, a suggestion for post cards to be sent to them is as follows: "Dear Friend: Knowing that you are interested in seeing a picture that deals with the life in Hungary, we take this opportunity of informing you that beginning (Date) we will show 'The Whip Women.' Sincerely, The Management." Dress your ushers in the clothes of a Hungarian peasant with the bulging shoulders and wide dresses. . . Give a prize to the person who has the best costume in the Hungarian style. The people can judge by their applause.

The Brookhart Bill

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—TO THE EDITOR: With all the tumult and the shouting going on regarding the Brookhart bill, and all the corporation attorneys, producers, distributors, exhibitors and candy store men getting their opinions in print, I wonder if there is room to record how the whole business appears to a little showman out in the sticks.

The moving picture business has been dubbed "the business without brains" and it seems that while this is a rather sweeping statement, the business itself every so often has to go out of its way to do something which makes the statement appear true. Just now, instead of handling the thing from the inside we are confronted by long statements such as the one by Mr. Pettijohn endeavoring by a series of clever half truths to justify the methods which have been in force in the distributing end.

The Brookhart bill is simply an endeavor to right wrongs which have been in force a long time. Personally, I do not believe the measure will pass; nor, frankly, am I in favor of it as at present constituted. But I do get a sardonic kick out of hearing the big distributors and producers and chain men yelling "unfair" and running about trying to get their halos on straight and telling the little fellow how they have always loved him. If the agitation over the Brookhart measure does nothing else but that, it has been worth the price of admission. Let us consider some of the methods which the fair and holy distributor has employed in the past.

If a wholesale grocer stocking up a new retailer should charge him prices which would make it impossible for him to sell at a profit, the retailer relying on the wholesaler's word and knowing nothing of the business; if the wholesaler should fill him full of false information and promises and tie him up with a one-sided contract so the retailer wouldn't have a ghost of a chance to make good, you wouldn't be far wrong in calling him a rogue. Yet this case has its parallels every day in the film business. It is the only business I know in which the wholesaler does his best to put his retail customer in the bankruptcy court and kill the goose that lays the golden eggs.

Take the case of John Smith, for instance. Smith and his partner have built a small theatre and have their house under way and the furniture ordered. Then enter the film salesman. He spreads his wares, shrewdly judging Smith the while, and comes to the conclusion that he has a sucker as indeed he has. Smith has a 500 seat house and is running for 20 cents top, so the salesman sells him his pictures at a $15 average which seems all right to Smith until he analysis it later. Then he finds he has about a dozen pictures which amount to anything and for these he is paying $35. The balance are a lot of bum Westerns and truck of that type and these are costing him $10 to $12.50 each. He finds later on that he could have bought equally good for $5 to $7.50.

Smith opens his house. With his furniture payments and the like, his act averages $50 a day. Out of the 50 pictures he bought, 35 are rotten. The other 15 do him very little good, because the slick salesman after selling Smith went to the big chain house in the vicinity, told them that Smith had bought these and sold them first run. In the meantime, Smith flounders along making some money at week ends and losing it all during the week until in a few months he flops. He goes into bankruptcy, all his film contracts go blooey, the exchange loses all the balance of the contract money, and turns out to be the biggest sucker in the end. But the salesman? Sure, he sells the next guy just the same and the office congratulates him as usual. Where's the sense in it?

Suppose the salesman with his expert knowledge of the game had helped Smith instead of sticking him. Suppose he had sold him his product just as he himself would have bought it had he been in Smith's place. Suppose he had kept a watchful eye on Smith, helping him over the rough spots and giving him the benefit of his advice. Smith would have been a success, the firm would have had a permanent customer and year by year would have made their profit from him.

The truth is that the film business as a whole has not much use for the little fellow. The big chains try and crowd him out, the big distributors gyp him as much as possible and even the organizations supposed to protect him such as Film Boards, etc., look at him with a languid eye what time they can spare from doing the bidding of the chain theatres. I know one case where an arbitrary re-zoning was made so that a chain house, newly built, could beat the old established independent house getting pictures, thus driving the latter out of business which was, of course, the idea.

There is no denying that the methods of the trade have, for a long time, invited intervention from some source. Now that they are on the verge of getting it, it does seem that they should cease their whining and get busy and clean their own house. If the industry will do this they have nothing to fear from the Brookhart or any other similar measure. Just a half way decent break for the independent would do it, and after the beating he has been getting for years he's due that anyway. Why not take a chance and try it?—Ernest H. Barbour, Florencita theatre, Los Angeles, Cal.

What's Wrong With Pictures?

LENOIR, N. C.—TO THE EDITOR: Your editorial in the last issue is certainly to the point. For nearly two years I have been working among business men in several manufacturing towns. What they know about pictures would assuredly brand them as ignorant were it not for their information on other subjects. No time has been lost in ascertaining the facts concerning the new Ford, and the wealthiest man here ordered a new Ford and traded in his Pierce Arrow for a new model Arrow, because the new improvements and qualities of both appealed to him.

This man is a cotton mill owner, furniture manufacturer, hardware dealer, insurance man, banker, farmer, etc. He puts out the best styles and quality in furniture, and tries to improve the product each year.

The farmer is striving to improve his product.

The mills are bettering their last year's product.

The automobiles are fighting hard to get ahead.

All food products have greatly improved in quality.

Towns and states are improving and trying to make it known.

All of the above are appealing to better people, and toning up.

Pictures are the only thing I know of that appeals downward. "Give them what they want" program has hurt the industry. The business men referred to are indifferent to pictures for that very reason. They do not care to see life and business men portrayed in a lower life. And that is why teachers and preachers are against the movie industry.

I could tell you some observations I made on sex pictures and what I saw then, and afterwards, but you may have ladies to read the mail. The police and the courts are wise to it.

There is nothing wrong with the pictures except in character of the stories. The publicity departments think that only nude women attract attention. And now we see all of the women we are interested in in the homes, schools, automobiles, and on the streets, so why pay to see a shadow?

The "Quick Reference Picture Chart" will appear in a new style in the next issue of "Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World." The new form is for the purpose of performing an even greater service than at present for the exhibitor.

The stars were played to death in trashy pictures. Had each one been used in three or four offerings a year they would have remained popular a long time. Too much sugar ruins the appetite.

Boost story product! Clean paper! And stop publicity divorces!

Congratulations on the merger. You are, as I wrote you years ago, so far ahead that the rest are lonesome. Very truly yours.—JOSEPH J. ENLOE, Box 561, Lenoir, N. C.

Local Entertainment Hurts

SPEARVILLE, KAN.—TO THE EDITOR: I have been a reader of the HERALD for some years and find that it is always the preferred trade paper, that I always find myself looking over it first and if I find time then I look over the others. There is one thing that is not truly correct at all times and that is the release dates on all pictures. However, this department is of great value to me and I appreciate it at all times.

One thing that confronts us small town fellows and that is the continual increase in numbers of entertainments given by the schools at their auditoriums such as plays, basketball games, etc. It has become a problem in our town that is hard to overcome, as they always clean us on such nights that they have these entertainments and that is from one to four nights a week.

Some of our teachers claim that the school does no good on the days that such entertainments are to take place and that school might as well be dismissed on these days. That means the tax payers of our district are losing the cost of carrying on the school for that day, which is $250 a day in this district.

Last night a play was given by the faculty, can you beat that? Tonight is a basketball game, Friday another basketball game, also one on Saturday night. We believe in some sports for the schools but when they carry it as far as they are now doing, it is time to call a halt and I for one am ready to help start something. Have you and your paper force any suggestions along this line?—W. J. SHOUP, DeLuxe theatre, Spearville, Kan.

Let's Have Other Opinions

JACKSON, WYO.—TO THE EDITOR: I'll second "Pioneer Pete's" motion of the addition in reports of "photography." I would also add a space (so marked) on the new blanks for condition of film, this would also include reels. Think this might help us in determining which exchanges inspect their film and which don't.

And another thing, several reports lately haven't given a thing but the percentage. This doesn't mean a thing to me. There should be one word on the merits of a picture, "excellent," "good," "fair" or "poor." Here is my idea of a 100 per cent report on a 100 per cent picture.

Title—Volga Boatman; Stars, William

Boyd and Elinor Fair.

Producer, PDC; Length, 11 reels.

Percentage, 31; Clientele, General;

Date, January 21, 1928.

Film Condition, Excellent; Photography, Excellent; Paper, Good.

How about it?—LESTER N. LEEK, Club

House theatre, Jackson, Wyo.

FOR LADIES ONLY: Special cast—Story made up almost wholly of impossible situations, but even at that, the greater portion were enjoyably funny. If the whole of it had been a bit more plausible, it would have been a dandy. Poor house first night and only a slightly better one the second. Six reels.—Charles Storch, Casino theatre, Republic, Wash.—General patronage.

THE COLLEGE HERO: Special cast—Fine picture and a good drawing card. Play this one. Six reels.—A. L. Lighter, Orpheum theatre, Mellen, Wis.—General patronage.

F B O

THE FLYING U RANCH: Tom Tyler—60%. January 28. One of Tyler's best. Follows the story closely. Five reels.—J. P. Johnson, S. of N. theatre, Ambrose, N. D.—General patronage.

THE FLYING U RANCH: Tom Tyler—February 18. The first four reels altogether too slow to suit the Western fans. The last reel contains some action and helped to save the show. Played this and "Ginsberg the Great," a Warner Bros. release as a double feature program. Both pictures were hardly considered more than fair and failed to draw a normal Saturday crowd. Five reels.—Wm. Wiske, Community theatre, Red Granite, Wis.—Small town patronage.

LEGIONNAIRES IN PARIS: Special cast—15%. February 14. Good comedy, but don't promise too much, and don't pay for anything but program quality.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

THE BOY RIDER: Buzz Barton—70%. December 17. This was the first picture shown at our theatre from this star and it pleased all who saw it both young and old. Here is a young actor that is going to make a name for himself in the near future. Five reels.—J. P. Johnson, S. of N. theatre, Ambrose, N. D.—General patronage.

BREED OF COURAGE: Ranger—50%. December 31. A good dog picture. Good story that pleased the patrons. Five reels.—J. P. Johnson, S. of N. theatre, Ambrose, N. D.—General patronage.

YOURS TO COMMAND: Special cast—35%. November 19. A good audience picture. Good for small town patronage. Five reels.—J. P. Johnson, S. of N. theatre, Ambrose, N. D.—General patronage.

BRED IN OLD KENTUCKY: Viola Dana—60%. January 14. A good race horse story. Fair attendance. Six reels.—J. P. Johnson, S. of N. theatre, Ambrose, N. D.—General patronage.

THE MOJAVE KID: Bob Steele—50%. February 19-20. A good Western with beautiful scenery and will please. Five reels.—W. T. Biggs, Adair theatre, Adair, Ia.—General patronage.

THE MOJAVE KID: Special cast—30%. December 3. A good Western. Cold and stormy weather prevented our patrons from coming out to see this one. Five reels.—J. P. Johnson, S. of N. theatre, Ambrose, N. D.—General patronage.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION: Special cast—75%. January 3. This is one of FBO's Gold Bond specials. It has good audience appeal, and brought them in in spite of bad weather. Seven reels.—J. P. Johnson, S. of N. theatre, Ambrose, N. D.—General patronage.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION: Special cast—Two days to very good business. Will stand extra advertising.—W. L. Crouse Ideal theatre, Bloomer, Wis.—General patronage.

Editor's Note

Percentage ratings given by exhibitors in reports to this department are obtained in the following manner: Average daily gross of picture reported is divided by average daily gross of picture holding house record to determine relative box office value in terms of percentage.

EXAMPLE: $75 (average daily gross of picture reported) divided by $100 (average daily gross of picture holding house record) equals .75 (percentage rating given picture in report).

CLANCY'S KOSHER WEDDING: Special cast—75%. February 4. As good as any of the comedy dramas produced at this time. Had many good comments on this from our patrons. It kept them laughing all the way through the picture. A comedy feature we can safely recommend to any exhibitor. Six reels.—J. P. Johnson, S. of N. theatre, Ambrose, N. D.—General patronage.

NOT FOR PUBLICATION: Special cast—50%. November 26. This is one of FBO's best pictures. It has good audience appeal and follows the story. Our percentage on this picture is not what it should be on account of bad weather, but this is not the fault of the picture. Seven reels.—J. P. Johnson, S. of N. theatre, Ambrose, N. D.—General patronage.

NOT FOR PUBLICATION: Ralph Ince—February 4. Have seen some adverse reports on this one. Don't know why some exhibitors have panned it. This one drew well for us and from all reports, the picture pleased, which is all we expect of any picture. Seven reels.—Wm. Wiske, Community theatre, Red Granite, Wis.—Small town patronage.

HER FATHER SAID NO: Special cast—80%. January 7. Our patrons seemed to enjoy this one, judging from the laughs it created. In our estimation as good a comedy drama as can be shown by any small town theatre. Seven reels.—J. P. Johnson, S. of N. theatre, Ambrose, N. D.—General patronage.

MOULDERS OF MEN: Special cast—20%. December 10. This is one of the best pictures we have ever shown at this theatre. Thirty below zero weather prevented us from having a record audience. Those that saw it were well pleased and praised the picture very highly. Seven reels.—J. P. Johnson, S. of N. theatre, Ambrose, N. D.—General patronage.

LADDIE: Special cast—32%. February 7. If I could buy every other picture as good as this one, I'd be sitting on top of the world. I bought as a special and was glad of it.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

MOON OF ISRAEL: Maria Corda—100%. February 10-11. A wonderful picture. A splendid portrayal of the flight of the Israelites from Egypt. The kind of picture our patrons ask for. Seven reels.—K. D. Francis, Family theatre, Metamora, Mich.—Small town patronage.

KOSHER KITTY KELLY: Special cast—34%. November 26. A good comedy. Should please any audience. Very good for Saturday. Seven reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

THE TWO GUN MAN: Fred Thomson—60%. Extra good picture. Have played many a so-called Western special at raised prices that could not compare with this. A real Western story, fine plot, interesting and exciting. Silver King a wonder. Book this.—Phillip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

THE COWARD: Warner Baxter—41%. February 18. A very good program picture. Book it. We had very cold weather for this one. Five reels.—K. D. Francis, Family theatre, Metamora, Mich.—Small town patronage.

BIGGER THAN BARNUMS: Special cast—80%. January 21. A circus story, that appealed to our patrons. You can step on this one. Good for small town exhibitors. Six reels.—J. P. Johnson, S. of N. theatre, Ambrose, N. D.—General patronage.

CONY ISLAND: Lois Wilson—February 17. Very good. Plenty of comedy, action, suspense and good at the box office.—S. H. Rich, Rich theatre, Montpelier, Idaho.—General patronage.

CHICAGO AFTER MIDNIGHT: Ralph Ince—February 11. A very good and neat picture. Held everybody's interest throughout the show. Many favorable comments. No kicks. Seven reels.—Wm. Wiske, Community theatre, Red Granite, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE BANDIT'S SON: Bob Steele—A very good Western with a good moral. Will please Western fans.—Winton W. Lowery, Strand theatre, Atmore, Ala.—Small town patronage.

THE BANDIT'S SON: Bob Steele—Good Western for Saturdays. Five reels.—J. L. Seiter, Selma theatre, Selma, Cal.—General patronage.

HANDS ACROSS THE BORDER: Fred Thomson—January 24. A good Western on account of bad weather and other doings, I did not make anything but not the fault of the picture. Five reels.—H. W. Batchelder, Galt theatre, Galt, Cal.—Small town patronage.

SHANGHAIED: Special cast—February 17-18. Here is a picture that draws pretty fair but is one that tends nothing to the reputation of your house. It seems to drag in too much dirt down at "Crawleys." At least it becomes distasteful and some women walked out on it. Seven reels.—John L. Damm, Strand theatre, Wadsworth, O.—General patronage.

BREED OF THE SEA: Special cast—February 7. Good sea picture. Well acted and interesting from start to finish. Seven reels.—H. W. Batchelder, Galt theatre, Galt, Cal.—Small town patronage.

THE SONORA KID: Tom Tyler—Just fair. Needs good shorts to round out a program. Five reels.

G. C. Silverthorn, Liberty theatre, Harrisville, Mich.—Small town patronage.

THE HARVESTER: Special cast—Did not pull as well as the other Gene Stratton Porter's pictures but pleased those who came.—Geo. E. Fuller, Playhouse, Playhouse theatre, Fairhope, Ala.—General patronage.

THE MAGIC GARDEN: Special cast—Some very good acting in this picture. Seven reels.—Giacoma Bros., Crystal theatre, Tombstone, Ariz.—General patronage.

THE GINGHAM GIRL: Special cast—Not so good either in story or direction. Some utterly impossible situations and poor unity in handling theme. Did not draw.—Geo. E. Fuller, Playhouse theatre, Fairhope, Ala.—General patronage.

THE GORILLA: Charlie Murray—100%. February 10-11. This is a knockout. Full of thrills and drew good both nights. Folks laughed themselves sick at the comedy and screamed and yelled at the woody parts. Eight reels.—Robert K. Yancey, Bonny theatre, Mansfield, Mo.—General patronage.

THE NOOSE: Richard Barthelmess—60%. February 22-23. And it is some picture. I have been in the show business several years and this one tops them all for this type of picture. I don't care how hard they are, this one will make them think and they will like it. Any exhibitor that has this show booked should get back of it. It will also stand a raise in admissions, for it will please all classes of show-goers. This is not appalsauce for it did not make me any big money, but no fault of the picture. I just cannot say enough for this show, but buy, book and boost for it is there. Seven reels.—W. T. Biggs, Adair theatre, Adair, Ia.—General patronage.

THE NOOSE: Richard Barthelmess—50%. February 18. The best Barthelmess picture in a long time. Holds interest all the time. A good plot which is well acted by a good cast. If it could have been shortened one reel it would have been still better. Eight reels.—H. J. Eagan, American theatre, Wautoma, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE PRIVATE LIFE OF HELEN OF TROY: Special cast—50%. A disappointment.—Frank G. Kresler, Palace theatre, Rensselaer, Ind.—General patronage.

THE NOOSE: Richard Barthelmess—February 15-16. They all came out raving about this one but Barthelmess is hard to put over in this town so business was just fair. It will please those you can inveigle into coming. Eight reels.—John L. Damm, Strand theatre, Wadsworth, O.—General patronage.

THE TEXAS STEER: Will Rogers—50%. February 19-20. This is a funny picture. Will Rogers is all that makes it a special. The cast fine, the comedy over the heads of 50 per cent of our audience. To the appreciators of Rogers comedy it was great.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

THE PRIVATE LIFE OF HELEN OF TROY: Maria Corda—40%. February 15-16. Draws fair for first night but as a whole is poor. Crowds stay away in gangs after first showing.—S. Lex Shore, Princess theatre, Obion, Tenn.—General patronage.

THE PRIVATE LIFE OF HELEN OF TROY: Maria Corda—20%. February 10-11. A big dressed up show with big gorgeous sets, but for entertainment I can't say so much for it. Many did not like it and some did. About a 50-50 picture in a small town. Eight reels.—H. J. Eagan, American theatre, Wautoma, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE DROP KICK: Richard Barthelmess—We saw many reports on this picture that were not very good, but the picture pleased well here. Seven reels.—B. R. Parsons, State theatre, Springfield, Minn.—General patronage.

THE LIFE OF RILEY: Murray-Sidney—25%. February 15. A good program picture. Two of the best comedy stars in the business. Very funny.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS: Special cast—80%. Good.—Frank G. Kresler, Palace theatre, Rensselaer, Ind.—General patronage.

THE TEXAS STEER: Special cast—80%. Good.—Frank G. Kresler, Palace theatre, Rensselaer, Ind.—General patronage.

SEÑOR DAREDEVIL: Ken Maynard—60%. February 4. All of this star's pictures are good so far. Best Westerns we get. Had a big rain which makes the percentage low. Seven reels.—Robert K. Yancey, Bonny theatre, Mansfield, Mo.—General patronage.

SECRETS: Norma Talmadge—35%. Some liked it, majority did not.—Philip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

THE AMATEUR GENTLEMAN: Richard Bar-

thelmess—35%. The few who came said it was a good picture. Costume pictures won't draw.—Philip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

VALLEY OF THE GIANTS: Milton Sills—A sure hit. Will make any exhibitor money under average conditions.—S. Lex Shore, Princess theatre, Obion, Tenn.—General patronage.

BROADWAY NIGHTS: Lois Wilson—February 8. A good little program picture and which I believe pleased the few that came to see it. Seven reels.—Wm. Wiske, Community theatre, Red Granite, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE SUNSET DERBY: Special cast—February 19. A pleasing race track picture. It is clean, has heart interest, and some comedy. Ralph Lewis good as the stern father. Six reels.—Wm. Wiske, Community theatre, Red Granite, Wis.—Small town patronage.

BABE COMES HOME: Babe Ruth—January 22. Had this booked for the baseball season, but had to take it out on account of the flood. Getting old and had to play it at this time. Had we played it in season we are sure we would have made money on it. As it was we did not take in enough to pay expenses. However, the few who saw it enjoyed it judging from the very good comments and the laughs registered all through the screening. There is plenty of good comedy in this picture furnished by Louise Fazenda and Arthur Stone. Also some by Babe himself. Ladies will enjoy this picture just as much as men folks. It's a wonderful romance with beautiful Anna Q. Nilsson and you will find that Babe Ruth is a born actor. He makes ardent love to Anna Q. Nilsson and he demonstrates his ability as a star of the screen as well as the diamond. Film in first class condition.—J. S. Landry, Columbia theatre, Morganza, La.—General patronage.

THE DEVIL'S SADDLE: Ken Maynard—February 11. 100 per cent picture and one that our patrons like. This is our last under contract, and don't think we played one that registered under this. Right next to Tom Mix, and gaining all the time. Look out, Mr. Mix.—J. S. Landry, Columbia theatre, Morganza, La.—Small town patronage.

ROSE OF THE GOLDEN WEST: Special cast—February 13-14. Not a box office attraction and not such a wonderful picture. Paid too much in the beginning and did not take in film rental. Another two days wasted. When you buy First National have them mark this one off the list. Seven reels.—A. E. Andrews, Opera House, Emporium, Pa.—General patronage.

HER WILD OAT: Colleen Moore—February 5. "One of Miss Moore's best," "Miss Moore's best." These are the comments we got on this picture and we think they came from almost every person who saw "Her Wild Oat." Needless to tell you exhibitors to play this or any of Miss Moore's pictures, as you all know her percentage as to entertainment.—J. S. Landry, Columbia theatre, Morganza, La.—Small town patronage.

FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE: Special cast—February 10-11. A good program picture.—R. Pfeiffer, Princess theatre, Chilton, Wis.—Small town patronage.

McFADDEN'S FLATS: Charles Murray—Boys, here is a good one, will please all, if you can get them in. Seven reels.—A. J. Smith, Texan theatre, Roaring Springs, Tex.—General patronage.

WHITE PANTS WILLIE: Johnnie Hines—Pretty good comedy with one reel in colors that is mighty pretty. Shows class throughout. If your patrons like Johnnie too, should do well with this one. Eight reels.—C. A. Spainhour, Twilight theatre, Greensburg, Kan.—General patronage.

Fox

SEVENTH HEAVEN: Special cast—90%. Very good.—Frank G. Kresler, Palace theatre, Rensselaer, Ind.—General patronage.

SEVENTH HEAVEN: Special cast—56%. February 21-22. Farrell and Gaynor sure put this one over. Our patrons said "A mighty fine picture." Good print. Can't lose on this one if the weather man will help. Eleven reels.—K. D. Francis, Family theatre, Metamore, Mich.—Small town patronage.

SEVENTH HEAVEN: Special cast—February 19-20. In order to get the real lowdown on this picture, I took particular pains to ask a great number of those who attended for their opinions. I must say that everyone interviewed was loud in their praise of it and many told me that it was one of the finest pictures they had ever seen. It is bound to please the better element of your patronage, and there is plenty of action in it to please even the buck-hoot boys. I am not given to picking flaws in a picture just to be doing something, but there is one glaring inconsistency in this picture which, although I noticed it at once, did not necessarily spoil the picture for me, and which was called to my attention by several of my patrons, not in groups, but separately. The flaw in direction, as it must be called, appears in the last reel when Chico, totally blinded in the way, is seen rushing at a headlong speed through a street filled to the curbs by mobs celebrating, as we did here, the announcement of the signing of the Armistice, and finding, apparently without difficulty, the doorway to his humble quarters wherein he expected to find, and did find, Diane. This, to me, and many others, was the flaw in an otherwise perfect picture. Destructive criticism is easy, but as a constructive thought I would say that the picture could have been classed as a 100 per cent directorial effort if the director had shown Chico as being led through the mob by either his old friend the sewer rat, or by the fat taxi driver, even if only to the foot of the stairs in his abode which led to his "seventh heaven." However, the picture as a whole, is entitled to the rating of special, not only in its own right, but in comparison with specials from other producers which are nothing more or less than fair program pictures, extended a few extra reels. The first night I drew a blizzard, and the second night it was 18 degrees colder than old mother Finnegan's icebox, so no box office records were smashed, though no fault of the picture. Twelve reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE GAY RETREAT: Special cast—30%. Good Frank G. Kresler, Palace theatre, Rensselaer, Ind.—General patronage.

THE GAY RETREAT: Special cast—25%. February 10. Comments all good, often spoken of as the funniest comedy ever seen. Bad weather ruined attendance.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

THE GAY RETREAT: Special cast—This one was a riot. This comedy team (McNamara-Cohen) could not be beat. Book this one.—A. L. Lighter, Orpheum theatre, Mellen, Wis.—General patronage.

LOVES OF CARMEN: Dolores Del Rio—49%. February 2-3. No good for us country boys, we don't like this for the same reason we don't like ninety percent of National Broadcasting programs. We say it must be good, but not for me, so we don't go or spin our dials.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

WHAT PRICE GLORY: Special cast—81%. February 9-10-11. If this production is properly exploited, it will do business against the strongest kind of indoor amusements. I ran this production three days and had as opposition in a town of 2900 population, another picture show with Jackie Coogan in "The Bugle Call" also Universal's "The Ice Flood," married people's dance, basket ball games, card parties, church suppers and what not. I still came through with a nice profit after paying a stiff price for the picture and additional expense of a trap drummer and effect man from Pittsburgh which cost me plenty of dough. First print shipped was bad. Fox got another print out for my Saturday show. Twelve reels.—A. E. Andrews, Opera House, Emporium, Pa.—General patronage.

WHAT PRICE GLORY: Special cast—Good. Failed to draw, however.—A. L. Lighter, Orpheum theatre, Mellen, Wis.—General patronage.

LOVE MAKES THEM WILD: Special cast—85%. January 22. Very good, the young folks eat it up. Six reels.—A. J. Smith, Texan theatre, Roaring Springs, Tex.—General patronage.

THE JOY GIRL: Olive Borden—34%. January 13. Borden is good for expenses most any time but fails to draw big money.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

THE JOY GIRL: Olive Borden—A dandy little picture. However, I would not class it as a special as Fox does. Seven reels.—A. L. Lighter, Orpheum theatre, Mellen, Wis.—General patronage.

VERY CONFIDENTIAL: Madge Bellamy—40%. February 16. A very fine program picture. Pleased them all.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenfield, Mich.—General patronage.

HILLS OF PERIL: Buck Jones—49%. February 11. Good Western, but nothing new. Drew Jones fans only.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

HILLS OF PERIL: Buck Jones—40%. This is a good Western. Five reels.—A. J. Smith, Texan theatre, Roaring Springs, Tex.—General patronage.

EAST SIDE—WEST SIDE: Special cast—53%. January 26-27. Weather fair and cold. This picture should have broken my house record but didn't, have not shown a picture as good as this one in years.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

THE BRONCHO TWISTER: Tom Mix—52%. January 14. This just an average Mix picture, pleased Mix fans and drew well considering cold weather. Six reels.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

THIRTY BELOW ZERO: Buck Jones—70%. February 18. A real "Covered Wagon" condensed down to five reels. Pleased 100 per cent. Five reels.—A. K. Haynes, Community theatre, Razor, Tex.—General patronage.

WHISPERING SAGE: Buck Jones—48%. Jan. 28. As good as any Jones picture ever made, but fell down in cold weather at B. O.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

UPSTREAM: Earle Fox—Did not draw but pleased the few who came. Several laughs.—E. C. Bays, Globe theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

SILVER VALLEY: Tom Mix—A rip snorter, stunt, action offering. Good print and photography. Will please Mix fans. Five reels.—Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

CHAIN LIGHTNING: Buck Jones—February 15-16. Good average picture. Pulled just fair. Five reels.—Elmer E. Gailey, Crystal theatre, Wayne, Neb.—General patronage.

ARIZONA WILDCAT: Tom Mix—We are hardly capable of reporting on a Mix picture for he is our hobby. Whatever Mix does is okay with us but the way people turned out to see this one and the fine comments on it, would say it's a bear. Good story, good sets, good comedy, extra business. That's good enough. Six reels.—C. A. Spainhour, Twilight theatre, Greensburg, Kan. General patronage.

WOMAN WISE: Special cast—Good.—A. L. Lighter, Orpheum theatre, Mellen, Wis.—General patronage.

THE MUSIC MASTER: Alec B. Francis—Herald reports helped me land the Progress club and the ladies were sure pleased with "The Music Master" thanks to the Herald and the boys who keep us posted. Print fair, photography good. 10-25-30 cents. Eight reels.—Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

CRADLE SNATCHERS: Louise Fazenda—February 20. Very good comedy.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—Small town patronage.

OUTLAWS OF RED RIVER: Tom Mix—January 28. A very good Tom Mix picture. When this star fails to fill the house, which he hasn't been doing lately, business must be on the bum. We lost money on his last three pictures. However, no fault of the pictures; but conditions. Print in good condition.—J. S. Landry, Columbia theatre, Morganza, La.—Small town patronage.

OUTLAWS OF RED RIVER: Tom Mix—January 21. This is a good Mix Western. Perhaps he has made better but I would say good and what is to the point. I can get more to come out for Mix than any other Fox pictures that I have run. Six reels.—H. W. Batchelder, Galt theatre, Galt, Cal.—Small town patronage.

SLAVES OF BEAUTY: Special cast—February 4. Played this on Saturday. Should have played it Sunday. Good program picture. Good comedy in it.—J. S. Landry, Columbia theatre, Morganza, La.—Small town patronage.

SLAVES OF BEAUTY: Special cast—January 14. Just a fair picture, made me no money. Six reels.—H. W. Batchelder, Galt theatre, Galt, Cal.—Small town patronage.

THE FOOL: Special cast—February 23-24. I could not afford to buy this when it was new as such a title with an unknown cast and regardless of the fact that it was a Belasco stage success, would have meant a dud at the box office. When the price got within shooting distance I bought it and turned it over to one of the churches for a benefit and they did very well with it. It is a preachment and there is no entertainment in it, although a good picture of its kind. You will have to go around with a bass drum after the show to wake up your regular patrons. Ten reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

IZ ZAT SO?: Special cast—Feb. 4. This is very good comedy stuff. I would say play it. Seven reels.—H. W. Batchelder, Galt theatre, Galt, Cal.—Small town patronage.

THE CIRCUS AGE: Tom Mix—Pleased our crowd very much.—G. Carey, Strand theatre, Paris, Ark.—General patronage.

MARRIED ALIVE: Special cast—January 28. Good comedy stuff recounting the experience of a much married man. Not much of a title but the picture is worth running. Five reels.—H. W. Batchelder, Galt theatre, Galt, Cal.—Small town patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

WEST POINT: Special cast—80%. Good.—Frank G. Kresler, Palace theatre, Rensselaer, Ind.—General patronage.

WEST POINT: William Haines—February 22-23. Oh man, book it and boost it. It's there and then some. Business poor. Basket ball tournament.—Elmer E. Gailey, Crystal theatre, Wayne, Neb.—General patronage.

BEN HUR: Ramon Navarro—100%. January 5-6. No better entertainment made than this. It is a revelation indeed. Twelve reels.—J. R. Troxell, Lyric theatre, Rhome, Tex.—Rural patronage.

THE BIG PARADE: Special cast—95%. December 29-30. A splendid picture, worthy of being shown in any theatre, Twelve reels.—J. R. Troxell, Lyric theatre, Rhome, Tex.—Rural patronage.

THE BIG PARADE: Special cast—February 15-16. From an entertaining as well as from a production standpoint I can only emphasize the fact that all that has been said about this picture was true. On account of the fact that every other town in this vicinity had already shown it, business was only fair. Thirteen reels.—Wm. Wiske, Community theatre, Red Granite, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE BIG PARADE: Special cast—Wonderful, wonderful picture. King Vidor directs a masterpiece. It is intensely interesting every foot of it. The battle scenes are not far fung but you see them just as hero John Gilbert and his buddies saw them, close at hand and you live with these boys at every moment. Love scenes laughable, pathetic and beautiful. About one-half comedy of natural honest to goodness kind. Nothing vulgar anywhere. I saw it four times and enjoyed it more every time. Business good. Comments fine. Renee Adoree superb, Gilbert and Dane exceedingly fine. Print poor. Some scenes left out. End almost gone entirely. Percentage denied me a just profit. Metro took out more than I. A split of twice the initial payment is manifestly unfair. Three times the first price is none too good but twice, is highway robbery. Shylock is still with us.—Phillip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

THE ROAD TO ROMANCE: Ramon Navarro—30%. January 20. Good acting but this type picture is poor for me. They won't come out, and those that do want to leave but are too polite.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

ADAM AND EVIL: Cody-Pringle—22%. December 12-13. A good comedy that flopped at the box office. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's pictures are good but they sure flop at box office. Seven reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

THE BUGLE CALL: Jackie Coogan—29%. November 14-15. A fairly good picture but not near up to the standard of "Johnny Get Your Hair Cut." The kid seems to have lost his drawing power here. Six reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

SPRING FEVER: William Haines—60%. A mighty pleasing program here. We should have played it two days. Book it. Six reels.—G. Carey, Strand theatre, Paris, Ark.—General patronage.

SPRING FEVER: William Haines—27%. November 28-29. Good. Haines is sure there on the smart-aleck stuff. Should please anywhere. Failed to draw for me. Seven reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

TILLIE THE TOILER: Marion Davies—60%. February 8-9. Pleased all, everyone went out with a smile and that was all. Guess that is what they came for.—C. B. Burkhardt, Pastime theatre, Homer, Ill.—General patronage.

BECKY: Sally O'Neil—27%. November 21-22. A modern comedy-drama that is very entertaining, yet failed to draw any business. Sally O'Neil always good. Seven reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

FLESH AND THE DEVIL: Special cast—32%. January 6. Wonderful picture but fails to draw in small town, I suppose too sexy. Acting splendid.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

TWELVE MILES OUT: John Gilbert—65%. February 4. Rather a rough picture but seemed to please. Full of action. Some good scenes. Seven reels.—C. B. Burkhardt, Pastime theatre, Homer, Ill.—General patronage.

TEA FOR THREE: Cody-Pringle—February 12-13. This one isn't so hot. The ultimate consumer thought it was silly and weak entertainment. Our business was terrible. Seven reels.—John L. Damm, Strand theatre, Wadsworth, O.—General patronage.

VALLEY OF HELL: Special cast—January 17. Would have been a very good Western but copy all short. A shame to be compelled to run such junk. Supposed to be five reels but about three and one-half left.—H. W. Batchelder, Galt theatre, Galt, Cal.—Small town patronage.

FOREIGN DEVILS: Tim McCoy—February 18. A fair program picture. Very good Saturday night picture for small towns. Five reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—Small town patronage.

MOCKERY: Lon Chaney—February 13-14. Not as good as some and business not as good. But Chaney is an actor and should portray good character parts once in awhile like "Tell It to the Marines." Story on "Mockery" rather heavy. Seven reels.—Elmer E. Gailey, Crystal theatre, Wayne, Neb.—General patronage.

THE FAIR CO-ED: Marion Davies—This is a fine picture. Kept them laughing during entire show. Many favorable comments. Should draw and please anywhere. Play this.—E. C. Bays, Globe theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

THE LOVELORN: Special cast—February 14. Seemed to please most of the customers and the business was pretty good. Just a fair offering. Hit the women with this "Advice to the Lovelorn" stuff and they ought to respond. Seven reels.—John L. Damm, Strand theatre, Wadsworth, O.—General patronage.

ANNIE LAURIE: Lillian Gish—This is a good picture, notwithstanding unfavorable comments of other exhibitors. It pulled fairly well and gave satisfaction to a high class audience.—Geo. E. Fuller, Playhouse theatre, Fairhope, Ala.—General patronage.

IN OLD KENTUCKY: Special cast—Very good. Consider this much better than the one produced some years ago. The Negro team couple in this were great. Play it.—A. L. Lighter, Orpheum theatre, Mellen, Wis.—General patronage.

FRISCO SALLY LEVY: Special cast—Pleasing picture. We were stormed out and took a flop but was no fault of the picture. All who came were satisfied.—G. C. Silverthorn, Liberty theatre, Harrisville, Mich.—Small town patronage.

THE FLAMING FOREST: Special cast—Good audience picture. Ran it as a special to raised prices. Good crowd. Everyone pleased. Book it.—Philip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

Paramount

BEAU GESTE, BEAU SABREUR: Special casts—72%-52%. January 9-10-11 and February 13-14-15. These two pictures are so much alike, one being the answer to the other, they may be taken together. As box office values it is needless to add to the comments which have been made by others in these columns in regard to those pictures. They are too high priced for small places. But as productions they have high spectacular value. The acting in "Beau Geste" is splendid and the cast is well balanced. This is more than can be said for "Beau Sabreur" in which the leading stars are awkward and out of place. It almost appears that Paramount is intending to manufacture stars as well as productions. The difference between the cast and the acting in "Beau Geste" and "Beau Sabreur" is the difference between a rehearsal and a performance.—A. J. Gibbons, Illinois theatre, Metropolis, Ill.—General patronage.

BEAU SABREUR: Gary Cooper—February 3-4. Not as good as "Beau Geste" although a good picture. Just fair at the box office. Six reels.—Elmer E. Gailey, Crystal theatre, Wayne, Neb.—General patronage.

THE LAST WALTZ: Special cast—30%. February 11. Small towns lay off of this one. Some very bad scenes, not fit for the family to see. Bad for children.—C. B. Burkhardt, Pastime theatre, Homer, Ill.—General patronage.

THE LAST WALTZ: Special cast—Well produced and acted. Business only fair. Seven reels.—

DALLAS, TEX., February 25, 1928.

DEAR HERALD-WORLD:

We find considerable excitement here along film row over the results of an action brought by Charninsky and Stinnett, theatre operators here, against Paramount, wherein a judgment was rendered in favor of the plaintiffs and against the defendant corporation and the measure of damages fixed at $337,500.

As we understand it, this action was based on a Texas statute having to do with public service corporations and the claim being made that the defendant had consummated a tieup with other concerns which prevented the plaintiffs from obtaining first run pictures, thereby forcing them to sell their theatres at a loss.

The amount sued for was $450,000, but the jury fixed the measure of damages at $337,500. The case will most likely go to the higher court for hearing, and it is thought by many that should the judgment of the lower court be affirmed it will open the gates to a flood of similar actions against various producing concerns.

We are informed that this case is not subject to appeal to the federal courts and therefore the ruling of the state supreme court would be final, since the action was brought under a state statute. It is said that a number of witnesses were called who testified that they were unable to obtain first class service by reasons of the methods alleged to have been employed by the defendant corporation.

Dallas looks like some considerable city. She claims to have 280,000 live ones, and we judge from the traffic racket under our fifteenth story room in the Hilton that her claims are exceedingly modest. One would think he was in the "Loop" back in Pork Center, but we miss the fragrance from the Stock Yards, and this makes us lonesome for dear old Chicago. If Ft. Worth doesn't watch out, Dallas may try to incorporate her under the big top, where one admission will admit you to the whole show. She's built that way. Her slogan is, "Watch Dallas Grow," and we judge Ft. Worth is obeying the edict.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

At Paris we had the pleasure of meeting an old time friend in the person of Milton Overman, who manages the Dent theatres at that place.

Mr. Overman used to sell us Select service out of Omaha some years back, and it was a pleasure to meet him again and talk over old times back in the Bug Eater state. He says he likes Texas, and we don't blame him; we like her too. Our opinion is that Mr. Dent made a very wise selection when he placed Mr. Overman in charge of his interests at Paris.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

Had he not told us differently and had not resented the insinuation, we would have thought that Douglas Mitchell, who operates the Strand at Honey Grove, came from Nebraska, but he denied it most emphatically and we didn't argue the matter with him. He claims to be a Texan and he showed us what he based it on. He was right; it was 100 per cent proof, and so is Doug.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

We are certainly getting a kick out of these Texas folks. Not the kind Uncle Leazer used to give us when he caught us in his melon patch, but the kind that makes us want to see more of them and that makes us feel right at home and among friends.

*It's fun to drive along the street
Or stand upon the walk,
And see the darkies drag their feet
And hear these Long Horns talk.*

*Down here in Texas, rain or shine,
No matter where you roam,
You'll find these people mighty fine
And you'll feel you're right at home.*

*There is so much to think about
In this state so broad and grand
That you'll want to swing your hat and shout
HURRAH FOR DIXIE LAND.*

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

We wonder sometimes what would happen if Pennsylvania should go democratic and Texas republican (a thing clear beyond any range of hope) if possibly it might not wake up the two old parties to a realization of the fact that the public purse is not open to private plunder. We are not talking politics; we are just wondering. Anyhow, we hope to elect Art Weaver governor of Nebraska this fall and give the state a sound, sane and

GET YOUR MAN: Clara Bow—55%. February 17. A good clever title that drew them in. Not quite as good as her last two but she seems to please the young people immensely. Seven reels.—H. J. Eagan, American theatre, Wautoma, Wis.—Small town patronage.

GET YOUR MAN: Clara Bow—February 17-18. Story not for this kid, but Clara does good just the same. Some good comedy and did just fair at the box office. Six reels.—Elmer E. Gailey, Crystal theatre, Wayne, Neb.—General patronage.

DRUMS OF THE DESERT: Special cast—72%. February 15-16. Played two days during snow and cold and it pulled better than we expected. It is not a big special but will be a real good program offering. Six reels.—Paul B. Hoffman, Legion theatre, Holyrood, Kan.—Small town patronage.

DRUMS OF THE DESERT: Warner Baxter—60%. February 14. Another good Zane Grey and another good crowd. A Zane Grey will always bring them out and please. Six reels.—Robert K. Yancey, Bonny theatre, Mansfield, Mo.—General patronage.

A KISS IN A TAXI: Bebe Daniels—22%. February 7. Rain and cold weather again. People just won't come in bad weather. Picture pretty good. Fast moving and plenty of comedy. Lost money. Seven reels.—Robert K. Yancey, Bonny theatre, Mansfield, Mo.—General patronage.

RITZY: Betty Bronson—36%. November 19. A good story made into a good comedy-drama. A good cast. Elinor Glyn's name helps put this over. Six reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

TELL IT TO SWEENEY: Special cast—35%. November 17-18. A great comedy, just what the public wants. Should please anywhere at regular sensible administration before the army of useless office holders get the public teat chewed clear off. They have been working mighty hard on it for some years, but after all we guess that—

*It doesn't matter a particle to you or to us
Which one of them gets licked in the game
Or which comes victorious out of the fuss;
We'll get the harpoon just the same.*

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

We had two very delightful experiences at McKinney. We met Mr. R. L. Brockman, who manages the R. & R. theatres at that place and who didn't show any disposition to use violence when we made ourself known.

Mr. Brockman was a delightful gentleman to meet and we had a very pleasant visit with him. He was playing Will Rogers in "A TEXAS STEER" and we got in just in time to catch the last two reels. We don't know whether you think this picture is good comedy entertainment or not, but if the front end of "A TEXAS STEER" is as good as the hind end, then you boys who have not yet played it are in for a nice, thick, cornfed T-bone steak. The ridiculous situations and the subtitles (which bear the Rogers trademark) struck us as being exceedingly funny.

From what little we saw of the picture we gathered that Senator Maverick Brander from Texas (Will Rogers) had a bill in the senate carrying an appropriation for a bridge across Goose Creek, and when this bill came up for vote in the senate the enemies of the measure kidnaped Will and locked him up and took his pants away from him so he could not be present and defend his pet measure. The bill was called up and on vote was declared lost, but Will broke out of jail and jumped onto a cayuse in his B. V. D.'s and went tearing down Pennsylvania avenue at breakneck speed with a cop in hot pursuit, but he beat the cop to the senate chamber and rushed in just as the president declared the motion lost.

The Hon. Senator from Texas didn't lay down. He wasn't built that way, otherwise he wouldn't have been the senator from Texas, but he made a fight to have the measure taken up again and on second vote it was carried unanimously.

Just at this stage of the proceedings Louise Fazenda showed up on the scene, and when Louise breaks in you can always expect something to happen, and it always does. She rushed into the room waving Will's pants and shouted, "Pa, you come right here this minute and put on your pants; I'm ashamed of you." This brought the house down, and we went down with it. We will venture to say that there isn't another star on the Pacific Coast who can wave a pair of pants, either tailored or homemade, like Louise, and when Will said, "Never mind, Ma; when Texas learns we have carried this bill she won't care if I never wear pants," we laid our head on a fat lady's shoulder and wept. After that we didn't care what happened.

When they try to frame up a better comedy team than Will and Louise they are just wasting their time; it can't be done; for—

*When this comedy team get together and pull
It will throw you all into a trance
To see William get busy and peddle the bull
While Louise goes to waving his pants.*

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

Last Wednesday was George Washington's birthday. If George had waited six days longer we could have celebrated two important events together. That's what comes of being in such a helluva rush. If they had had moving pictures in those days we would have never heard of that "hatchet" and "cherry tree" stuff, for George would have been down to the show watching Hoot Gibson rope a band of bandits or Tom Mix riding Tony over a mountain cliff into the river, and then we would have lost that example of truthfulness that has guided the wayward footsteps of the youth of this country into the paths of truth and veracity; therefore, HURRAH for George.

*When George took his hatchet in hand
And chopped down the old cherry tree,
His dad grabbed him by the waistband
And dubbed him over his knee.*

*Just what happened to our little George
We may know in the sweet by and by,
But the hero of old Valley Forge
Said 'twas impossible for him to lie.*

Tomorrow morning, we are going to head for Central and West Texas for a time and then we expect to swing around through New Mexico and over to Tucson to see if our wife's goat has chewed up our summer B. V. D.'s and other impediments (see Webster or Joe Mayer of the Palace theatre of Hamilton, O.) and then up through Arizona and Colorado and back to old Nebraska, where we hope the polar breezes have given way to the warm zephyrs of the south-land that breathe life into the Russian thistle and dandelions, and, as Bill used to say, "We'll be in to see you."

admission. Six reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

TELL IT TO SWEENEY: Special cast—February 15-16. Absolutely the poorest picture ever released by Paramount. It's a shame for Mr. Bancroft to attempt anything of this sort, after making "Underworld." Lay off.—S. H. Rich, Rich theatre, Montpelier, Idaho.—General patronage.

HULA: Clara Bow—40%. December 5-6. A good one. Just the type for Clara for a change. Should draw extra business in any theatre. Six reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

HULA: Clara Bow—Just cleaning them up is all we need say about this girl, and it is not missing the mark when we say she is like wine, improves with age and we know all about wine because we live where we simply hop across the line and get the real thing without offending Mr. Volstead. They like her better and better. Six reels.—Giacoma Bros., Crystal theatre, Tombstone, Ariz.—General patronage.

BARBED WIRE: Pola Negri—42%. December 9-10. A great picture. One of the best ever produced. Pola Negri at her best. Some patrons said better than "The Big Parade." Eight reels.—E. J.

Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

FIREMEN SAVE MY CHILD: Special cast—80%. February 1. Full of hokum seemed to please. All went out with a smile. Souvenir night might perhaps had something to do with better attendance. Six reels.—C. B. Burkhardt, Pastime theatre, Homer, Ill.—General patronage.

TOO MANY CROOKS: Mildred Davis—21%. February 14. Fair. Light comedy and plot. El Brendel good. Seven reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

FASHIONS FOR WOMEN: Esther Ralston—30%. November 30-December 1. Good picture that went over nicely on bargain nights. Seven reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

IT: Clara Bow—100%. Most pleasing picture we have had this winter. Had good attendance and Clara sure registered satisfaction. Do not pass it up.—G. C. Silverthorn, Liberty theatre, Harrisville, Mich.—Small town patronage.

CABARET: Special cast—35%. Terribly disappointed. Arthur James, editor of Motion Pictures Today listed this as one of year's best, so I naturally stepped on the gas, but how brother James ranks this so highly is a mystery to me. The direction is, I confess, perfect but the melodrama does not appeal to many and Gilda Grey is too old to make a hit. "Cabaret" scenes lavish but that does not make entertainment. No one man's criticisms of picture goes with me any more. The "What the Picture Did For Me" is the most reliable guide after all.—Philip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

CABARET: Gilda Gray—18%. November 16. A good picture but Gilda just doesn't go over. Too old, I guess. Nice settings in this drama. Seven reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

THE NEW KLONDIKE: Thomas Meighan—A good star ruined in this kind of a picture. It is awful. Seven reels.—A. J. Smith, Texan theatre, Roaring Springs, Tex.—General patronage.

TEN MODERN COMMANDMENTS: Esther Ralston—69%. February 11. A very pleasing program offering that was well received. Many favorable comments. Has lots of good comedy with plenty of action. Seven reels.—Paul B. Hoffman, Legion theatre, Holyrood, Kan.—Small town patronage.

NEW YORK: Special cast—45%. A tin pan alley music song writer raised in a Bowery gang clique gets into society. Those who like melodrama will like this. Cortez and Lois Wilson save the picture.—Philip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

WE'RE ALL GAMBLERS: Thomas Meighan—35%. February 13-14. Fair program picture. Meighan does not draw. Cullen Landis gives good performance. Six reels.—E. F. Ingram, Ingram's theatre, Ashland, Ala.—Small town patronage.

RUNNING WILD: W. C. Field—41%. December 2-3. A good comedy drama that pleased all. Six reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

JESSE JAMES: Fred Thomson—Here's a pretty good picture although they should have brought more of his life into it. Eight reels.—B. R. Parsons, State theatre, Springfield, Minn.—General patronage.

SERENADE: Adolphe Menjou—Just can't put this fellow over, but he is a real actor. His pictures just won't pull for me. Story good. Six reels.—Elmer E. Gailley, Crystal theatre, Wayne, Neb.—General patronage.

UNDERWORLD: Clive Brooks—Very interesting and somewhat different, comments favorable. Will stand a boost in admission.—Winton W. Lowery, Strand theatre, Atmore, Ala.—Small town patronage.

THE ROUGH RIDERS: Special cast—Measured by the old standard, this is a big picture, but "The Big Parade" and "What Price Glory," so completely over-shadow it that it cannot be considered a big picture any more. Rainout may have something to do with my pessimistic comment. Ten reels.—Geo. E. Fuller, Playhouse theatre, Fairhope, Ala.—General patronage.

THE WAY OF ALL FLESH: Emil Jannings—February 22. The finest piece of work of the year. By all means book it. I doubt if ever better acting has been done. The story also is exceptionally good.—S. H. Rich, Rich theatre, Montpelier, Idaho.—General patronage.

THE WAY OF ALL FLESH: Emil Jannings—A picture that will please your audience. Had a few adverse comments as to ending. Will stand a little raise in price. Drawing power not so much for me.—Winton W. Lowery, Strand theatre, Atmore, Ala.—Small town patronage.

NOW WE'RE IN THE AIR: Special cast—Some-what better than "Firemen Save My Child." Will please the average fan and a good box-office attraction. And by the way Paramount is losing good money by not letting us have some with Miss Brooks heading the bill.—Winton W. Lowery, Strand theatre, Atmore, Ala.—Small town patronage.

FIGURES DON'T LIE: Esther Ralston—Here's by far the best Ralston we ever played. A good comedy-drama. Six reels.—B. R. Parsons, State theatre, Springfield, Minn.—General patronage.

HONEYMOON HATE: Florence Vidor—February 20-21. Good story, average picture. Poor business, due to title. Where do they get such titles? Six reels.—Elmer E. Gailey, Crystal theatre, Wayne, Neb.—General patronage.

SHE'S A SHEIK: Bebe Daniels—A good little picture that pleased all that saw it, but not the type for Daniels. Seven reels.—B. R. Parsons, State theatre, Springfield, Minn.—General patronage.

SHE'S A SHEIK: Bebe Daniels—February 6-7. Very good and good at the box office. Pleased all. Seven reels.—Elmer E. Gailey, Crystal theatre, Wayne, Neb.—General patronage.

BLIND ALLEYS: Thomas Meighan—February 19. Very good picture. Some favorable comments. Good for Sunday. Star well liked here. Six reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—Small town patronage.

BLIND ALLEYS: Special cast—February 18. We could find no fault with this picture, in fact we rather enjoyed it. You can't expect everyone to like rough stuff as Westerns. If you like a nice clean well acted photoplay, try this. Six reels.—Mayer Shayer, M. W. A. Opera House, Soldier, Kan.—Small town patronage.

STARK LOVE: Special cast—February 13-14. Proved an interesting picture. It is a true story of the people in the hills of Kentucky, and staged without movie stars. The natives did good work before the camera but most of the credit should go to the director and cameraman.—R. Pfeiffer, Princess theatre, Chilton, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE TELEPHONE GIRL: Madge Bellamy—February 19. A very good show. Played to satisfactory business on a very cold night. Six reels.—R. Pfeiffer, Princess theatre, Chilton, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE TELEPHONE GIRL: Madge Bellamy—February 11. A good entertaining picture that you will like. Six reels.—Mayer Shayer, M. W. A. Opera House, Soldier, Kan.—Small town patronage.

THE TELEPHONE GIRL: Special cast—Class as extra good program picture. Has fine story and well done. Should please in any size theatre.—G. C. Silverthorn, Liberty theatre, Harrisville, Mich.—Small town patronage.

SHANGHAI BOUND: Richard Dix—Good picture. Fine for small town exhibitor as well as large.—S. Lex Shore, Princess theatre, Obion, Tenn.—General patronage.

MAN OF THE FOREST: Jack Holt—Some of Holt's best work. Does not follow story well.—S. Lex Shore, Princess theatre, Obion, Tenn.—General patronage.

THE WOMAN ON TRIAL: Pola Negri—Pola Negri is slipping with us, she does not draw as of yore. We sometimes wonder if the people do not tire quicker of some players than others. The public is a fickle institution, you cannot guess its every whim. Six reels.—Giacoma Bros., Crystal theatre, Tombstone, Ariz.—General patronage.

CASEY AT THE BAT: Wallace Beery—February 17-18. A very good comedy of the early days of baseball. Everybody seemed to enjoy it. Sometime ago this picture was sold as a special at a big rental. I believe this picture is a long way from being a special. Played it two days to only 214 admissions at 10 and 25 cents.—R. Pfeiffer, Princess theatre, Chilton, Wis.—Small town patronage.

Pathe-P D C

HIGH HAND: Leo Maloney—35%. January 21. Maloney draws the kids but adults are at home with the radio. Picture, average. Six reels.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

THE INTERFERIN' GENT: Buffalo Bill, Jr.—40%. January 7. This is not the best Western but is good for Western fans if they are not too particular. Five reels.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

WHITE PEBBLES: Wally Wales—44%. February 4. Wally is good and so are his pictures. Give him time and let the kids get to know him.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

RIDE 'EM HIGH: Buddy Roosevelt—36%. February 18. Good picture but cold weather kept the percentage down.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

BORDER BLACKBIRDS: Leo Maloney—40%. February 18. A good Western. Much better than the ordinary cheap Western. Had poor business due to very cold weather. Six reels.—E. F. Ingram, Ingram's theatre, Ashland, Ala.—Small town patronage.

DRESS PARADE: William Boyd—February 5. A good one. A story of the West Point spirit with many beautiful scenic shots and in fact, almost the entire picture takes place at West Point. A picture that should please almost any kind of an audience. Good paper and a new print. Seven reels.—Wm. Wiske, Community theatre, Red Granite, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE RUSH HOUR: Marie Prevost—February 12. A comedy of fair action and many complications, quite suited and fitting to the star. Would consider it a good program picture. Six reels.—Wm. Wiske, Community theatre, Red Granite, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE YANKEE CLIPPER: William Boyd—This picture appeals to Americans it went over with much appreciation by the audience. Eight reels.—Giacoma Bros., Crystal theatre, Tombstone, Ariz.—General patronage.

HIS DOG: Special cast—Well done, but will not please usual dog fans because it does not have enough action.—Geo. E. Fuller, Playhouse theatre, Fairhope, Ala.—General patronage.

THE NIGHT BRIDE: Marie Prevost—Didn't see this one myself but other said it was good and business was fair. Had several favorable comments on it so it must have been good. Seven reels.—C. A. Spainhour, Twilight theatre, Greensburg, Kan.—General patronage.

MAN BAIT: Marie Prevost—February 17. Very good. Many favorable comments. Drew well. Star great favorite here. Six reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—Small town patronage.

THE COUNTRY DOCTOR: Rudolph Schildkraut—February 12. A very good picture and gave excellent satisfaction as it was entirely different from the usual run of pictures. Did a very big business both afternoon and night. Eight reels.—R. Pfeiffer, Princess theatre, Chilton, Wis.—Small town patronage.

Rayart

CASEY JONES: Special cast—90%. February 16-17. A good program picture, but not a special. Direction very poor in places. A million dollar title and will make you money. Do not charge more than 25 cents and the people will think it is great. Seven reels.—E. F. Ingram, Ingram's theatre, Ashland, Ala.—Small town patronage.

Tiffany

THE TIRED BUSINESS MAN: Special cast—I have played a lot of Tiffany's and found them all very good, except this one. Lay off of this one as it is a very poor picture. Six reels.—B. R. Parsons, State theatre, Springfield, Minn.—General patronage.

United Artists

THE CIRCUS: Charlie Chaplin—75%. If this is Chaplin's best I would hate to take a look at his worst, this is absolutely a lemon, the poorest thing I have seen in many a month. If you can buy it for thirty-five dollars and sell it for thirty-five cents to the public it might please. But don't play it as a big special because it isn't there.—B. R. Parsons, State theatre, Springfield, Minn.—General patronage.

THE BELOVED ROGUE: John Barrymore—February 17. Wonderful picture, fine acting but did not draw here. This kind of a picture is not for little towns.—E. C. Bays, Globe theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

Universal

PAINTING THE TOWN: Glenn Tryon—85%. A comedy-drama that must please any audience. Seven reels.—J. R. Troxell, Lyric theatre, Rhome, Tex.—Rural patronage.

PAINTING THE TOWN: Glenn Tryon—A new comedy star. A good audience picture. Did not pull particularly well but pleased.—Geo. E. Fuller, Playhouse theatre, Fairhope, Ala.—General patronage.

PAINTING THE TOWN: Glenn Tryon—A real picture. Don't pass this one up. Audience in continuous uproar. Six reels.—A. L. Lighter, Orpheum theatre, Mellen, Wis.—General patronage.

PAINTING THE TOWN: Glenn Tryon—February 16. You can't find a better picture to show than this one, if you like comedy. This boy will be another William Haines and that is saying something.

Six reels.—Mayer Shayer, M. W. A. Opera House, Soldier, Kan.—Small town patronage.

THE TEXAS STREAK: Special cast—50%. One of Hoot's poorer ones due to type of story. Hoot, an extra in the movies, finally becomes a star. It's a mistake to make burlesque of the profession or show inside workings of the business of making profits. People want live Western stories and live them.—Philip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

THE CAT AND THE CANARY: Special cast—75%. Good.—Frank G. Kresler, Palace theatre, Rensselaer, Ind.—General patronage.

THE CAT AND CANARY: Special cast—To my surprise this did not pay film rental. Fine weather and no competition, but it did not pull.—Geo. E. Fuller, Playhouse theatre, Fairhope, Ala.—General patronage.

THE CAT AND CANARY: Special cast—Very good picture. Business poor, due, I think, to very cold weather. Eight reels.—A. L. Lighter, Orpheum theatre, Mellen, Wis.—General patronage.

THE AIR PATROL: Al Wilson—25%. February 17. A good entertaining aeroplane picture.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

DOWN THE STRETCH: Special cast—27%. February 19. Good. Racing melodrama. Otis Harlan furnishes the comedy. Seven reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

THE ICE FLOOD: Special cast—26%. February 16. Action story in lumber camps. Fair. Six reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

HANDS OFF: Fred Humes—40%. One of those cheaper class pictures. Title poor, paper poor. No draw. I didn't see it. Children said okay, however. Don't know what adults thought. New stars springing up in Westerns don't help the show game a little bit.—Philip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

POKER FACES: Laura LaPlante—85%. February 18. Somewhat better, I think, than "Painting the Town." It will produce the laughs and that is what we all want. Eight reels.—J. R. Troxell, Lyric theatre, Rhome, Tex.—Rural patronage.

DOWN THE STRETCH: Special cast—50%. A good Jewel racing melodrama. Marion Nixon mighty appealing in this. Otis Harlan makes a fine colored character. Story a little far fetched. That of starving a jockey to death to make him get down to weight. This will generally please. Well produced.—Philip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

THE WHOLE TOWN'S TALKING: Special cast—45%. Well, well, well! If Uncle Carl isn't getting right up with the best of 'em. Paramount and First National before long will have to take a back seat if Carl keeps this up. Here we have a beautifully produced picture with stars by the trainload. The play too is good, perhaps not with as much audience appeal as in "Painting the Town" but it's a good comedy-farce. Horton is good, Virginia Lee Corbin, okay, Otis Harlan and Trixie Friganza fine, as are all the others. I thought the chasing around all over the house was overdone but patrons howled their heads off and children went generally loco. Would like to see Horton again. He has a peculiar style of quiet humor all his own. Keep up the good work, Carl!—Philip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

ALIAS THE DEACON: Jean Hersholt—A mighty clever picture. Hersholt steals the show throughout but the support is good. We call it far above the average program picture. Promise them plenty of entertainment on this one. Six reels.—C. A. Spainhour, Twilight theatre, Greensburg, Kan.—General patronage.

THE FIGHTING THREE: Jack Hoxie—February 18. Would have made a fair two-reeler. Five reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE LONE EAGLE: Special cast—Hey, J. C., break away from them old vampires and take a look at Barbara Kent. She sure won a home here with the fans. A dandy picture. Play it; print and photography good. Rain and bad roads hurt business. 10 and 25 cents. Six reels.—Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

THE LOVE THRILL: Laura La Plante—January 29. Thrill sure enough when you see and watch dainty dimpled Laura in this breezy comedy, and one of her best. Comedy of a girl whose wild adventures in an insurance deal ended in a love affair. A real heart-laugh comedy, with a cast that defies comparison. Tom Moore, Bryant Washburn and Jocelyn Lee. It is seldom that your patrons have the opportunity of seeing a farce comedy that can approach this one for sheer brilliance and originality. Tom getting dressed for dinner, Laura in the bathtub

The Big Parade

*"The Big Parade," "The Big Parade,"
The grandest picture ever made;
It makes you laugh, it makes you weep,
It makes you cheer, your pulses leap;
The battle scenes—with what a sweep!
"The Big Parade."
"The Big Parade," "The Big Parade,"
The doughboys come from hill and glade;
They sing their way through sunny France
They "Parleyvoo" with Rose and Nance,
And how they make the Heines dance!
"The Big Parade."
"The Big Parade," "The Big Parade,"
The awful Price our Soldiers paid!
The havoc wrought, no pen can Tell;
Heroic deeds make bosoms swell,
But the one great thought is, War Is Hell
"The Big Parade."*

trying to get thinner. Washburn waiting for the widow in her flat, when in comes her husband, what do you think of that. Think, you won't have time to think, you'll be so busy laughing at this merriest of farces that you won't stop to figure it all out.—J. S. Landry, Columbia theatre, Morganza, La.—Small town patronage.

MEN OF DARING: Jack Hoxie—February 15. A picture of the pioneer days, and good. Six reels.—Mayer Shayer, M. W. A. Opera House, Soldier, Kan.—Small town patronage.

OUT ALL NIGHT: Reginald Denny—Just an ordinary program picture and not worth any more. Six reels.—A. L. Lighter, Orpheum theatre, Mellen, Wis.—General patronage.

SENSATION SEEKERS: Special cast—A good punishment if your crowd likes such. Mine don't.—G. Carey, Strand theatre, Paris, Ark.—General patronage.

LES MISERABLES: Special cast—Very good production. Splendid acting. Business only fair. Eight reels.—J. L. Seiter, Selma theatre, Selma, Cal.—General patronage.

SILK STOCKINGS: Laura LaPlante—Best pantomime seen in pictures in many a day. Laura is not one of our favorites but this Wesley Ruggles direction put her over in this picture and made new friends for her. Seven reels.—Geo. E. Fuller, Playhouse theatre, Fairhope, Ala.—General patronage.

THE THIRTEENTH JUROR: Special cast—The courtroom scene of the first reel was too farcical for any court in any man's land. Judge and jury acted like a bunch of boobs. The defense made pleas that would have made the defunct dodo laugh, but after this bit of slapstick, action and story started to grip, and though a little far fetched in spots, held strongly to the happy end. The "13th" juror must have been left behind at the post; at any rate, he failed to put in an appearance in our copy. Maybe he just dropped off across the border and lingered to rest his feet on a brass rail once again. Second night gained 105 per cent on first. Six reels.—Charles Storch, Casino theatre, Republic, Wash.—General patronage.

RAMBLING RANGER: Jack Hoxie—Gets away from the usual Western bunk. Does good work, and the baby was great. Dorothy Gulliver easy to look at. Not a rambling shoot-'em-up, but it pleased the kids and the hard boiled fans. 10 and 25 cents. Five reels.—Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

Warner Bros.

THE COLLEGE WIDOW: Special cast—75%. Fair.—Frank G. Kresler, Palace theatre, Rensselaer, Ind.—General patronage.

TRACKED BY THE POLICE: Rin Tin Tin—51%. November 24-25. A good Rin Tin Tin that drew well and pleased. Six reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

HEART OF MARYLAND: Dolores Costello—20%. Good picture of the kind, but didn't draw. Young people said it was awful. No more like it for me.—G. Carey, Strand theatre, Paris, Ark.—General patronage.

THE BLACK DIAMOND EXPRESS: Monte Blue—17%. December 7-8. Just the type of story for Monte Blue. Should please any audience. Seven reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

SO THIS IS PARIS: Special cast—34%. February 18. Very good comedy. Late in running it, but it's good even now. Seven reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

SAILOR IZZY MURPHY: George Jessel—Pay for this and leave it at the exchange; hate to say this as it cost quite a bit to produce this picture.—Winton W. Lowery, Strand theatre, Atmore, Ala.—Small town patronage.

DEARIE: Special cast—Rain, sleet and snow, you know. Good print and photography. Very pleasing picture. Seven reels.—Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

THE CLIMBERS: Irene Rich—February 15-16. A good interesting picture with an historical background during the days when Spain was at its height.—R. Pfeiffer, Princess theatre, Chilton, Wis.—Small town patronage.

BELOW THE LINE: Rin Tin Tin—February 21-22. Another good meller from Rin Tin Tin. Plenty action and suspense. Seven reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE NIGHT CRY: Special cast—One of the best dog pictures we have ever played, and did good business for two days.—W. L. Crouse, Ideal theatre, Bloomer, Wis.—General patronage.

WHAT HAPPENED TO FATHER: Warner Orland—Just a program picture.—J. L. Seiter, Selma theatre, Selma, Cal.—General patronage.

State Rights

SWEET ADELIN: Charles Ray—41%. February 15-16. I tried my best to put this one across by putting another feature with it, "The High School Hero" from Fox exchange, but while both features were fair they did not stand up and consequently I lost plenty of jack. I don't know whether to blame conditions, opposition or the weather. Perhaps all factors enter into the result achieved. Six reels.—A. E. Andrews, Opera House, Emporium, Pa.—General patronage.

BLACK TO YELLOW JACKET: Special cast—18%. December 14-15. Of all the poor pictures I have seen this takes the berries. The Progress Pictures Company of Chicago and their salesmen are to be congratulated on selling this kind of stuff. The film was so bad we could hardly get it through the machine. Six reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

MAN AND WIFE: Norma Shearer—16%. Nov. 23. A terrible picture and a terrible film. I wish the arbitration board could see some of the stuff they are sending me. Where is the justice in this business? Five reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

THAT GIRL OKLAHOMA: Ruth Mix—A fair Western. Will draw if advertised right. Pleased the Western fans. Seven reels.—E. C. Bays, Globe theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

STRANDED: Shirley Mason—January 31. This is a picture of life on the rough side of Hollywood. It was well acted but did not draw enough to pay for lights the second night, so I at least can't boost it. Six reels.—H. W. Batchelder, Galt theatre, Galt, Cal.—Small town patronage.

CLOSED GATES: Johnnie Harron—Well handled and a credible story. Much better than it sounds in the press book.—Geo. E. Fuller, Playhouse theatre, Fairhope, Ala.—General patronage.

WHISPERING CANYON: Jane Novak—February 8. This was very good. In fact some of these Independent productions are better than the productions of the large companies, and their service is good. Six reels.—Mayer Shayer, M. W. A. Opera House, Soldier, Kan.—Small town patronage.

THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY: Special cast—I was surprised the way this pulled on a Friday night, and gave satisfaction, too.—Geo. E. Fuller, Playhouse theatre, Fairhope, Ala.—General patronage.

Serials

PERILS OF THE JUNGLE (State Rights): Special cast—I am now on the seventh episode of this serial and advise everyone who can use serials to advantage to grab it. I simply have had a wonderful following on it and the people tell me the reason they are here is to see this wonderful serial. Don't overlook this one. Twenty reels.—A. E. Andrews, Opera House, Emporium, Pa.—General patronage.

THE SILENT FLYER (Universal): Special cast—Sixth chapter. We are on the sixth chapter and going nicely. Have had adverse weather all winter and naturally is a draw-back to attendance, but this serial keeps most all enthused. Ten episodes.—G. C. Silverthorn, Liberty theatre, Harrisville, Mich.—Small town patronage.

Short Subjects

EDUCATIONAL

AT EASE: Lloyd Hamilton—This is a very funny comedy. Two reels.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

DUMB BELLS: Good for a few laughs, but not for exploitation. Two reels.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

FRESH FACES: Another good one from Educational. I consider these comedies better than many independent comedies and as good as any. Two reels.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

HIGH SPOTS: Al St. John—Good comedy, lots of laughs. Two reels.—J. L. Seiter, Selma theatre, Selma, Cal.—General patronage.

HIGH SPOTS: Al St. John—Same old story. Another good Mermaid comedy. St. John and Lupino Lane have them all beat when it comes to comedy. Two reels.—E. F. Ingram, Ingram's theatre, Ashland, Ala.—Small town patronage.

HOOKED: Lloyd Hamilton—Just fair as are most Educational comedies. A poor print. Two reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

THE IRON MULE: Good. Poor print. Two reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

KID TRICKS: Just another comedy. Two reels.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

KING COTTON: Lloyd Hamilton—Good. Two reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

LOW TIDE: Mermaid—Good. Poor print as usual. Two reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

NOTHING MATTERS: Lloyd Hamilton—Not even a good two reel comedy. While Educational demands extra money for his stuff, I am all set to dish these as soon as my contract expires. Two reels.—A. E. Andrews, Opera House, Emporium, Pa.—General patronage.

OPEN HOUSE: Johnnie Arthur—This is rather a novelty in comedies, has a new idea, and is highly amusing if not hilarious. Good, worth talking about. Two reels.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

PEACEFUL OSCAR: Lloyd Hamilton—Very good comedy. Two reels.—E. F. Ingram, Ingram's theatre, Ashland, Ala.—Small town patronage.

SIT TIGHT: Good. Two reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

SOUP TO NUTS: This comedy rather good, better than average. Two reels.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

F B O

BEAUTY PARLOR SERIES: Cooke-Guard—These are coming along in fine shape. Seem to please the crowd in fine shape. Two reels.—John L. Damm, Strand theatre, Wadsworth, O.—General patronage.

CRY AND GET IT: Cooke-Guard—These babies have nearly reached the limit and therefore cannot begin to create the interest they did in some of their earlier series like "Fighting Blood" or "The Telephone Girl." They are not as good as a good comedy should be to put your show over. Two reels.—A. E. Andrews, Opera House, Emporium, Pa.—General patronage.

FIGHTING HEARTS: Special cast—Good series. Hope Bill Grimm's Progress is as good. Two reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

HOW HIGH IS UP: Three Fat Men—These birds are not bad for slap stick. They get away with it and make the people laugh; that is what a comedy is for. However, some comedies would almost make an exhibitor cry. I get about one good one to every five poor ones. Two reels.—A. E. Andrews, Opera House, Emporium, Pa.—General patronage.

MICKEY'S GANG: Mickey McGuire—Mickey is some actor. The children liked him. A fair rival to "Our Gang." Two reels.—K. D. Francis, Family theatre, Metamora, Mich.—Small town patronage.

OLD TIN SIDES: Very good comedy. Two reels.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

FOX

A FOOL AND HIS HONEY: Slap stick, dressed up. There are some laughs. Two reels.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

FOX NEWS (No. 33): Extra good.—Dr. M. F. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

HER BLUE BLACK EYES: Indifferent comedy. Two reels.—T. W. Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

ROAMIN' GLADIATOR: Only fair comedy. Two reels.—J. L. Seiter, Selma theatre, Selma, Cal.—General patronage.

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER

BATTLE OF THE CENTURY: Stan Laurel—Very good comedy. Pie throwing in second reel gets the laughs. Two reels.—J. L. Seiter, Selma theatre, Selma, Cal.—General patronage.

DOG HEAVEN: Our Gang—This one is good. It works in some novel ideas and keeps the audience in good spirits. Two reels.—John L. Damm, Strand theatre, Wadsworth, O.—General patronage.

HEEBIE JEEBIES: Our Gang—A real comedy. Comedies are scarce. We have tried nearly all of them, too.—G. Carey, Strand theatre, Paris, Ark.—General patronage.

PARAMOUNT

AERO NUTS: Krazy Kat—Good. A nice filler for any program. One reel.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

CRAZY TO FLY: Bobby Vernon—Bobby Vernon goes up in an aeroplane, also he comes down, but not until the house has rocked itself fore and aft in violent laughter. It's good.—Philip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

FRENCH FRIED: Neal Burns—Good comedy. These Paramounts are proving okay so far. Two reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

KOKO HOPS OFF: Inkwell series—Good. One reel.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

KOKO'S KANE: Inkwell series—A good "Out of the Inkwell" cartoon comedy. Nice filler. One reel.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

KOKO PLAYS POOL: Inkwell series—Good cartoon comedy. One reel.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

MOONEY MARINER: Billy Dooley—Good. Dooley is sure there. Two reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

NO PUBLICITY: Edward Horton—Good. Something different in the comedy line. Two reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS: No. 25. Good. One reel.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS: No. 27. Good. One reel.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS: No. 29. Good newsreel. One reel.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS: No. 31. Poor. Nothing to it. One reel.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS: No. 33. Good. One reel.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

ROW, SAILOR, ROW: Billy Dooley—Good. Dooley is one of the best comedy stars in the business. Two reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

ROW, SAILOR, ROW: Good two reeler. Plenty of laughs. Well produced. Philip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

SHORT SOCKS: Bobby Vernon—Good comedy, better than Educational's Vernons. Two reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

WEBB FEET: Krazy Kat—Good. One reel.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

PATHE

BUMPING INTO BROADWAY: Harold Lloyd and Bebe Daniels re-issue. Very good. Far superior to Chaplin's re-issue "Sunnyside." Book it.—Philip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

DOZEN SOCKS: Fair comedy. Two reels.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

THE NICKLE HOPPER: Mabel Normand—Not enough comedy in these three reel Mabel Normands to hold attention. Be glad to see the last one. Three reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

THE PRODIGAL BRIDEGROOM: Ben Turpin—Good. Two reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

SMITH'S BABY: Very good. Two reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

SMITH'S KINDERGARTEN: Very good comedy. Two reels.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

WAR FEATHERS: Our Gang—Good. Two reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

UNIVERSAL

BUSTER'S FRAME-UP: How they whooped and yelled. Extra good Buster Brown comedy.—Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

CLOSE CALL: Andy Gump—Gump always a good bet. Use them and make friends.—Philip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

THE COLLEGIANS: Though these draw better than average, the second series is not as good as the first. However, they are worth while running.—Philip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

GEORGE RUNS WILD: Not so worse. This is one of the better ones of this series.—Philip Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.—General patronage.

KID GEORGE: Special cast—Fair. Two reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

TROLLEY TROUBLE: Oswald (the rabbit)—The kids ate it up. Good.—Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

AFRICA BEFORE DARK: Oswald the Rabbit—These are sure great cartoons. A great drawing card for kids especially. One reel.—J. M. Rinehart, Majestic theatre, Stuttgart, Ark.—General patronage.

ANDY NOES HIS ONIONS: Very strong and funny. Two reels.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

THE COLLEGIANS: All extra good. Many favorable comments on them. Two reels.—J. M. Rinehart, Majestic theatre, Stuttgart, Ark.—General patronage.

THE COLLEGIANS: George Lewis—Second series has failed to maintain the pace set by the first bunch. Too much stuff that didn't really belong in college life. Too bad, but they run out of ideas it seems. Two reels.—Henry Reeve, Mission theatre, Menard, Tex.—Small town patronage.

DISORDERLY ORDERLY: A good comedy. Two reels.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

JANE MISSED OUT: Good. Two reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

OCEAN BRUISES: Andy Gump—Very good, about the best we had of him. Two reels.—David Straszer, Lyceum theatre, Manchester, Mo.—General patronage.

PASSING THE JONES: Here is one series that I think will not set the laughs agoing and satisfy. Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

MISCELLANEOUS

HOT TIRES: Slapstick that has been done to death a thousand times. Have seen them worse, though. The kids seemed to like it. Two reels.—Charles Storch, Casino theatre, Republic, Wash.—General patronage.

THE RACERS: A fair kid comedy. Two reels.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

THE RINK: Charley Chaplin—A re-issue that kept them laughing. Personally, I think Chaplin is better in his old two-reelers than his newest pictures. Two reels.—E. C. Bays, Globe theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

EDDIE QUINLIN COMEDIES: Why don't we see more of him lately? He is a knockout with our audience. How about the rest of you? Same experience?—E. Hoefler, Rex theatre, Sheboygan, Wis.—General patronage.

THE BOX OFFICE TICKER

A System for Determining the Definite Attraction Values of Motion Pictures

Exhibitors reporting to "What the Picture Did For Me" supply a percentage rating obtained by dividing average daily gross of house record attraction into average daily gross of picture being reported on. When 10 of these percentage ratings on a picture have been received, the average of these 10 percentage ratings is entered in "The Ticker." Each additional percentage-rating report received on pictures entered is combined with those previously received and the new average thus created is entered.

CHICAGO PERSONALITIES

By Whit

FISCHER'S PARAMOUNT THEATRES has announced an extensive building and development program for this year. A $1,400,000 bond issue has been made and another $1,000,000 bond issue authorized. The construction of five deluxe theatres will be begun this month in Wisconsin and before the end of this year at least 50 theatres will have been purchased in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. Further details of the development will be found in the news section of this issue.

A. P. Giannini, one of the first bankers in the country to recognize the motion picture industry as a sound financial investment, passed through Chicago Sunday on his way to San Francisco. He was returning home from New York, where a $350,000,000 bank merger in connection with the Bank of Italy, of which he is the head, has been completed.

The Marquise de la Falaise et de la Coudray, more commonly known as Gloria Swanson, passed through Chicago Sunday. She was returning to Hollywood from New York where she had bid farewell to her marquis as he sailed for Europe.

Dave Goldman began work Monday for Filmack as city sales manager.

C. C. Wallace was visiting the Minneapolis office of United Artists last week.

Joe Pastor made an automobile trip to Madison, Wisconsin, last week, and with the exception of a little trouble with his Packard, he had a successful trip, he reports.

The office of Ascher Bros. is now closed and the circuit of theatres is in the hands of the Chicago Title and Trust Company.

Marie Pierson was in Pittsburgh last week demonstrating Orchestraphone.

Martin Solomon, of the home office of Red Seal, arrived in Chicago last week. He will be here for about 30 days in the interests of Red Seal sales.

Roy Alexander, co-manager of the Columbia exchange, left for Florida last week on a three weeks' vacation. Roy said he intended to get in a lot of fishing, but we'll be surprised if he doesn't get in quite a bit of golf, too.

Nat Wolf, of the Orpheum circuit, went to the Presbyterian hospital last week to undergo a minor operation.

Great States has taken over the Bijou theatre in Decatur and the LaSalle in LaSalle.

Sam Gorelick, out on the road last week for F B O, says he never saw so much mud in all his life and that the car was never in high the whole trip.

When we dropped in to see Joe Abramson at the Film Board last week, he was busy framing the new uniform contract as printed in last week's issue of this book. Joe says it was a fine thing to print the entire contract.

According to stories in the daily papers, the features of Jack Miller, business manager for the Exhibitors Association of Chicago, are to be immortalized in bronze or marble, and the statue or plaque to be placed in the headquarters of the operators' union. The story quotes Ralph O'Hara, union official, as saying, "officers of the operators' union believe the ornament will prove inspirational and inspire the movie operators to strive for advancement."

However, it seems there is a discrepancy between facts and the published story. When interviewed on the subject, Miller disclaimed all knowledge of the proposed tribute and added naively, "I think somebody's trying to kid me."

Likewise, when "O'Hara was interrogated his brief comment was, "Aw, that's a lot of hokum." Howsoever, it made an interesting story.

The boys at Universal already have their eyes on the $750 wager between the Chicago and New York offices made on the Anniversary drive. New York stands last on the list and Chicago is sixth.

Where for a short time the flickering drama cast its reflection from the stage of the Lawndale, there shortly will be flaunted the bare legs of burlesque girls, for the Lawndale has been sold to the Yankee Amusement company, producers of burlesque shows, one of which intrigues thrill seeking males at the State-Congress.

A short life the Lawndale enjoyed as a picture house, first with presentation policy and next with vaudeville. And now it bows to the demand for burlesque. The burlesque shows are enjoying great prosperity these days, chiefly because there seems not to be even a lid to clamp down, if anyone wanted to clamp one down. Sights are seen in Chicago's shimmy shaking shows today without even the least bit of thrill from the audience that a few years ago would have created a riot. Where once a local decree made necessary at least some sort of connecting link between brassiere and trunks, one now is a bit bored to see either adorning the fair figures of the chorus.

But such, it seems, is what the burlesque fans want. Go over to the Star and Garter for Saturday midnight show. With a $2.20 top the theatre turns 'em away every show. Go to the State-Congress. A front row seat, though highly desirable, is fairly unattainable. And when such a seat is vacated, the stampede from the standees is terrific. The burlesque shows are bound to be drawing a not inconsiderable revenue from the picture houses.

One of those sandwich shops in Chicago that gives you all the coffee you can drink for a dime is reported to have run altogether out of the beverage one day last week. It seems that a certain organization of Scotchmen held a convention there.

E. M. Saunders of the home office of M-G-M was in town last week.

The Karlov theatre, managed by H. C. Fricke, is installing a new pipe organ.

Frank Schaefer returned from California Thursday where he enjoyed a six weeks' vacation. While there Schaefer made an airplane visit to Catalina. He will return to the Coast in a month or two to accompany Mrs. Schaefer home.

Jack Steinson, formerly with the Pathe exchange, is now at the Fox exchange as a country salesman.

Charles Rutter has been transferred to the Milwaukee exchange of Pathe.

"Will there be another film ball this year?" The question is being asked quite often along the row these days, and numbers of people have already asked for another. It is rather generally conceded that the one last year was entirely successful, and that there is no reason why there shouldn't be another this year. A film ball staged on a big scale doubtless quickens the public's interest in moving pictures, at least momentarily. Why not air your opinion on the affair to the ones responsible for staging them?

Edward O'Donnell, who was manager of the Roosevelt and McVickers theatres, is now manager of the Senate.

Beginning next week, new shows will open at the Oriental theatre on Sundays rather than Mondays. This in turn necessitates a similar change at the Harding and Senate theatres. From now the presentation units playing at the Oriental will go in turn to the Norshore, Senate and Harding.

and a will of iron—she ruled her Jungle Cats—tamed them to outward submissiveness though their eyes slumbered dangerously. Her own primitive nature rejoiced in these fierce beasts—she gloried in her power over them!

But there was one she could not tame—A MAN—a wild Russian, a danger-loving Cossack, who knew what he wanted and was determined to get it at any price. Him she feared.

And then one day—at the crucial moment—her nerve failed. Instantly the sullen, snarling beasts sensed her lost control—turned on her.

And the Mad Cossack proved his daring and earned the right to demand the greatest of all prices from her.

Could she pay it?

AND FOR COMING WEEKS!

Hello box-office. Here are some more of those M-G-M babies!

NORMA SHEARER

NORMA SHEARER in THE LATEST FROM PARIS—An advance review in the Herald-World says: "One of best turned out of M-G-M studios in many months. 100 per cent in entertainment values."

JOAN CRAWFORD

ROSE-MARIE—A title worth a fortune in advance publicity. Everybody knows about this stage success of Love and the Northwest Mounted Police. A big M-G-M Special that's box-office sure-fire. Watch it!

TIM MCCOY

TIM MCCOY in WYOMING—McCoy's unusual personality has won him the greatest immediate success of his field. Playing in thousands of theatres. More every day!

MARCELINE DAY in THE BLACK EAGLE—Called by critics "The Big Parade of England," it will astonish American audiences. Romantic thriller! Spectacle! It's a real box-office property.

UNDER THE BLACK EAGLE—Intrigues of the secret service. A thrill-romance with Ralph Forbes, Marceline Day and a great cast revealing Flash the new dog wonder.

LON CHANEY

LON CHANEY in THE BIG CITY—Those who have seen it declare Chaney repeats his "Unholy Three" triumph in this gripping story of embattled crooks of the underworld.

MARION DAVIES

MARION DAVIES in THE PATSY—West Coast Theatres wired: "One of outstanding box-office attractions. Full of laughs. Audience ate it up. A knockout." You'll say so too.

ELEANOR BOARDMAN

KING VIDOR'S THE CROWD—His first Special since "Big Parade" means that millions are watching for this epic of modern life and love aptly called "Big Parade of Peace."

LON CHANEY

LON CHANEY in LAUGH, CLOWN, LAUGH—Advance estimates call it bigger than "He Who Gets Slapped." Chaney again plays on the heart-strings in a story that grips every minute! A Big One!

WILLIAM HAINES

WILLIAM HAINES in THE SMART SET—Thrills of the polo field dramatized in the romantic comedy-drama full of youth, pep and gayety. The folks will love it.

RAMON NOVARRO

RAMON NOVARRO in FORBIDDEN HOURS—Capitalize his great "Ben-Hur" fame. A worthy follow-up for this handsome star. A picture that will be talked about.

JOHN GILBERT

JOHN GILBERT in THE COSSACKS. Plus RENEE ADOREE. A perfect rôle to bring back the customers now packing in to see him in "Love" and "The Big Parade." A Gilbert Gold-Getting Special.

POLLY MORAN

BRINGING UP FATHER—The comic strip nationally syndicated to millions of newspaper readers every day. You'll cash in with one of the funniest comedies of the year. A money-winner to bet on!

LARRY

a smart crook

Louie: "Looka my mitts. I still got the needles."

Larry: "What are you sweatin' about? What's the matter with you?"

Louie: "I don't know, but I just got a load of that 'Dressed to Kill' flicker over at the Roxy Theatre and they got you and me and the mob down pat."

Larry: "Don't be a cluck. What mob, who, what, where?"

Louie: "I'm tellin' you that 'Dressed to Kill' is the darb, it's a moom pitcher and whoever put it together is wise to the racket. It shows how a mug like you and me can get crossed by a squaw who happens to have a pair of swell lookin' stems."

Larry: "Don't give me such a fast count. Take it easy, now, why should you get all hopped about a moving picture? What do those eggs know about the stickup industry. Don't be a muzzler and talk slower."

Louie: "I'm tellin' you Larry, this Fox outfit musta been coverin' us like a flatfoot. They show how a heel is given a ride when he talks too much and how in the end it all adds up hooley. The cops win and the dips get a mess of cannon in their ribs and all on account of a dizzy frail who happens to be honest. I'm tellin' you Larry, lay off those broads in the giggle water joints. It's lible to happen to you, too, bleev me."

Larry: "Don't be such a chump. Moving pictures are like dreams, they don't come true. Stop being a dope."

Louie: "Its oke by me, Larry, but I claim these flicker umphchays are wiseguys. They are tippin' off plenty. And I coulda dropped dead when in one scene they show a mug being given the works and how at his funeral the mob acted as the pallbearers. You know yourself that's what happened at Maxie's party. They pull a job at a fur store which woulda worked but for the skirt, who is got a load of S.A., and she's carryin' a torch for some sap. But she is a ham and can't go thru with it. The answer is that the mob is got to scam and scrow before the oppercays ankle along and in the end the big shot gets knocked off because the mob figures he crossed them on account of this femme, for whom he's got a letch."

Larry: "You talk like a big nance. No wonder you haven't got a rep."

Louie: "Is that so? Well, listen to me, big-timer. You take the rep. I don't want no reps. I done enough time and one more jam brings me the Baumes Law business and like they say in the picture You Can't Win. I'm tellin' you, Larry, you can't beat 'em. It's like tryin' to take away some coin from a dice-house—the cubes are loaded all the time and you know that them is those!"

Larry: "So what else?"

Louie: "So plenty else, I hope to never see my mother-in-law alive again if I'm crossin' you. This 'Dressed to Kill' which shows the dips in tall millinery is the cats. They got a scene of a laughing soup parlor, with a hot band playin' loud when the mob let a stool-pigeon have it right in his kisser and they carry him outa the dive as if he was fried, but he ain't oiled atall, Larry, he's stiffer than a starched shirt. Somebody's wisin' that moom pitcher crowd up to our gags which ain't so good for us, if you ast little Louie."

Larry: "Well, let's go over and knock some of those phonies off. Let them stick to their racket and let them let us stick to ours. They sure got plenty nerve. Get me a rod and as soon as I can get a stool to tip me off to whoever these mugs are I'll dress them up for a real killing and I'm not clowning, either. It'll be a pushover. Meet me at 50th Street and the main stem tomorrer and don't give me no run-around or I'll push this cannon down your mouth, see?"

Louie: "I'll be there, but I'm tellin' you, Larry, You Can't Win!"

Larry: "Don't make me bust out laughing. I always win! The only thing I ever lost was a sap wager I took down at the dog track when a Scotchman bet me a grand on the rabbit to cop the race."

The Life of Trade

THE author of the statement, "competition is the life of trade," did not have the motion picture business in mind, but if there is any business to which this statement applies, it is the business of attempting to attract people into a playhouse to be entertained by a motion picture.

One of the things which makes the motion picture business the tremendous industry it has grown to be is the fact that seeing pictures is a habit.

Surveys from time to time have indicated that the real "fan" averages three pictures a week. Remarkable cases have been recorded in small towns of persons who have not missed a performance in as much as seven years despite the fact that the bill at the local theatre changed as often as six times a week.

In the past year, competition which should be healthful has taken on a peculiar aspect. There is a distinct antagonism between the chain theatre and the independently operated theatre. And there is a distinct antagonism in some of the larger cities between the downtown theatre and the neighborhood house.

If this antagonism takes the form of attempting to give the public better picture entertainment under more pleasant circumstances than the opposition can provide, it is commendable. But, if this competition takes the form of attacking a competitor either directly or by innuendo in public print, in programs, or by word of mouth, it is a boomerang which, while it may injure the competitor, will surely damage the entire industry.

In one of the larger cities, a downtown theatre recently stated in its program: "Several weeks after these pictures are shown at this theatre you have to pay the same price or more to see them in the outlying theatres when the film is worn and different parts are missing. If you like new pictures and enjoy them in their entirety, go to this theatre."

The intention of the above paragraph is obvious. But the result upon theatre attendance in the community is not.

The present day theatres were made possible by the old nickelodeon, with its "funeral chairs," its cheap admissions, and its crude entertainment.

Today, the great new theatres are supported by picture "fans", who first were attracted to this form of entertainment by the neighborhood or the small town theatre. Just as the minor leagues furnish the major baseball leagues with their stars and the savings accounts supply the bank with the new clients which make the expansion and progress possible, so the outlying or small town theatre is the source of the rapidly increasing audiences at the larger motion picture theatres.

Any gesture toward reducing the drawing power of the outlying or small theatre, regardless of the provocation, is a mistake. People look to the motion picture for entertainment. Eventually they will seek the best entertainment offered at the most reasonable proportionate price.

If you offer the public the best bargain obtainable in entertainment, it is a mistake to attack your competitor. If you do not offer the best, you are apt to attract attention to your own weakness in attempting to call attention to the shortcomings of the competing house.

An Interesting Controversy

MR. THOMAS E. TALLMADGE, a noted Chicago architect, recently aroused national attention to theatre architecture by questioning the wisdom of what is generally referred to as the "ginger bread" type of house.

In this issue of "Better Theatres," which appears as the second section of the HERALD-WORLD this week, Mr. Tallmudge amplifies his criticisms which were published in his book, "The Story of Architecture in America." It is his belief that the motion picture is an art but before it can be ranked as such, it must be divorced from vaudeville, jazz and tawdry decoration. Until it is, he declares, it will not be patronized by thousands of potential patrons.

Though he recognizes the plausibility of the present plan of architecture in motion picture theatres and the present form of stage entertainment, Mr. Tallmudge is confident that, aggressive in its one phase of development, it is capable of developing a new phase—or distinct form of architecture. In this respect, he says, the business world has assumed the leadership.

There is much to say on both sides of this controversy. But the fact that the controversy actually exists is a proof that Mr. Tallmudge, right or wrong, has made a valuable contribution to the future development of the industry.

The Lesson in Japan

THE Japanese government has always been widely known as paternal in its interest in the industries of the country. Yet the motion picture industry in Japan, probably because it was considered unimportant, was left to work out its own salvation.

Five years ago, Japan imported 90 per cent of the motion pictures shown in the country. Today, not more than 50 per cent are imported.

An essential industry, intelligently conducted, does not need subsidies—or quotas.

The Super-Projectionist

IT has developed recently that the reflector arc lamp used in the projection of pictures has therapeutic qualities. In fact, one or two companies which have been manufacturing lamps of this kind have made a few improvements and modifications on their model and are doing a thriving business with physicians and hospitals.

The modern projectionists, bathed from time to time in this therapeutic ray, may develop into a species far beyond the contemplation of the most ardent eugenicist.

Trade Body Threatens Action Against All Booking in Blocks

Universal Announces Many Changes in Its Sales Organization

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and

NEW YORK, March 13.—Important shifting of the sales force of Universal has affected several high positions in the home office together with a number of the key cities, it has been announced by Lou B. Metzger, general sales manager.

Most important is the decision of Earl Kramer, Eastern sales manager, to confine himself to the New York territory and to take charge of it directly as general manager of the New York exchange. Morris Joseph, who has been serving in this capacity, goes back to New Haven as exchange manager there.

Ted Schlanger, recently advanced to the post of sales manager of short subjects, now becomes Eastern sales manager, and Ben, Y. Cammack, Atlanta branch manager, becomes short subjects sales manager. Leo Abrams, New Haven exchange manager, goes to St. Louis in the same capacity, on the resignation of M. Gottlieb. Harry Millstein, manager of the Salt Lake City exchange, is promoted to the larger exchange at Minneapolis, to replace Mark Ross, who has resigned. Millstein's position at Salt Lake City will be filled by A. W. Hartford, salesman at that exchange.

Writer Tries Satire to Sweeten His Disgust at Lankford Bluenose Bill

"The guinea pig of reform legislation" is the title bestowed by the Chicago Tribune editorially on the Lankford bill, which would prohibit all except necessary or charitable activities in Washington on Sunday. The legislation is intended to finally sweep the country, the editorial declares.

The article pointedly presents Congressman Howard of Nebraska as opposed to the bill because, having had a Quaker mother, he learned he must accord all people the right to religious observances of their own choice. "The intent of the bill," the editorial satirically continues, "is to compel uniform Sunday behavior by law and the reply of Congressman Howard will doubtless be regarded by the advocates of conformity by repression as evidence of lightness of character, thoughtlessness, or indifference to public good.

"They are pounding congress with vigor in the belief that their opportunity was never better."

Board Would Quiz Companies In Secret on Policies in Sales Commission Plans Move If Court Action Is Necessary to Enforce Paramount Order

[Washington Bureau of Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World]

WASHINGTON, March 13.—If the Federal Trade Commission finds it necessary to ask the Federal Courts to enforce the provisions of its order calling upon Paramount to discontinue block booking, it is planned to make the suit so comprehensive as to include as defendants all distributors practicing this method of selling so as to clear up the entire situation in the one proceeding.

Commission Prepares to Act

This became known when it was learned that the commission has under consideration plans for the carrying out of its order of July 9, 1927. Paramount is to be given "a reasonable time" in which to report its compliance with the order, failing which, the commission has announced, steps will immediately be taken to obtain its enforcement.

In order to bring other companies into the case it will be necessary to issue complaints against them. This will be done by calling them to appear before the commission's board of review in secret session, at which they will be questioned regarding their sales policies, and if it appears that they are block-booking they will be made defendants in any suit which may be instituted.

Block booking will be the backbone of the commission's suit, the other point on which originally it pinned its hopes, theatre ownership, having been knocked out by the Supreme Court decision in the Eastman Kodak Company case, which held that the commission was without authority to require a company to divest itself of its physical holdings. This means that the commission cannot require any the producer-exhibitors to give up their theatres.

Fires Destroy Two Theatres; Loss Is $20,000 to Others

Fire, originating in several cases in the projection booth, last week destroyed two theatres, resulted in a total loss of about $20,000 to others, and severely burned two operators. The theatres destroyed were the Crazy at Mineral Wells, Tex., and the Empire, El Dorado, Okla.

Ignition of the film caused a fire which severely burned J. Thomas, the operator, and caused a damage of $4,000 to the Colonial, Vancouver, B. C. Only the heroic action of Thomas in extinguishing the flames and that of William J. Nelligs, organist, in calming the audience with his music, averted a tragic disaster.

Joe Stiles, operator at the Beaver, Beaverton, Ore., was badly burned when the film caught on fire. The Princess, Hot Springs, Ark., was damaged by flames to the extent of $10,000. A projection room fire damaged the Palace, San Leandro, Cal., to the extent of $5,000.

Fire originating beneath the stage resulted in a loss of several hundred dollars to the Albany theatre, Schenectady. No performance was on at the time. Upper stories of an adjoining apartment house were badly damaged by fire starting in the projection room of the Dormont theatre, Pittsburgh. Seven reels of "The Student Prince" were burned.

Sapiro Closes Co-op Deal; Other Moves Are Expected Soon

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and

NEW YORK, March 13.—The actual signing of papers by which Aaron Sapiro became president of the new Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of New York was accomplished Friday of last week.

The first steps to be taken by Sapiro in his new capacity will be awaited with interest by the motion picture industry. Patterned after the organizations he constructed for farmers, whereby cooperative buying and marketing was provided for thousands of small dealers, the new organization may become a power in motion pictures.

According to reports, Sapiro intends to extend his organization to other cities, possibly merging the T. O. C. C. with his new association.

Bluenoses Triumph in Old Kentucky; Sunday Opening Bill Dies 26-6

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and

FRANKFORT, KY., March 13.—Bluenoses chalked up another triumph last week when the first bill before the Kentucky senate which provided for legalizing the operation of moving picture theatres on Sunday was killed by a vote of 26 to 6.

The blue laws of the state have been revamped to legalize Sunday baseball, but it was believed that theatres would offer too much competition to the churches. Even the man who introduced the bill voted against it when he heard the stirring talks of the opposition.

Theatre Is Influence for Good Among Youth, Say Kiwanians

Should Theatres Set Fixed Price?

Should theatres establish a fixed admission rate for all shows? Should they have a fixed higher prices for all Saturdays and Sundays? Should they charge more for the larger productions?

These questions, important to every theatremen, are answered by exhibitors in a survey by "Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World." The story will appear in the March 24 issue.

Give Lie to Baseless Charges That Pictures Promote Crime

Secretaries Declare Pictures Educate Young People, Keep Them off Streets, Eliminate Gangs

By ERNEST A. ROVELSTAD

The motion picture theatre is emphatically an influence for good among the youth of the community. That is the decision of executives of branches of the Kiwanis International in all parts of the country, clubs which have as one of their foremost objectives the wellbeing and advancement of the young people in their cities, and as all know have been of immeasurable service to those young people.

Give Lie to Biased Misstatements

Opinions expressed by the secretaries of these Kiwanis clubs in a survey by EXHIBITORS HERALD AND MOVING PICTURE WORLD give the direct lie to those self-appointed and biased individuals who spread misstatements to the effect that the motion picture is conducive to crime and immorality. In only one of the many replies does the writer flatly state his opinion that the motion picture is an influence for harm. On the other hand, a large number make no reservations whatever in their endorsements. "Cleaner" pictures are urged by others.

The question asked in the survey was: In what ways is the motion picture theatre an influence for good among the youth of your community? Following are some of the outstanding suggestions and comment offered by the secretaries:

The theatre has kept the minds of young people in a clean channel.

Substitutes wholesome entertainment for unfortunate recreations such as in pool halls and on the curb.

Enables youth to envision man and woman at their best and presents interesting studies of real life.

Permits realizing at home the educational advantages of travel.

Is a real asset in any community in developing character if clean, educational, entertaining pictures are shown.

Plays tremendous part in presentation of masterpieces of literature and makes history more interesting.

Eliminates street corner "gangs" and keeps youth out of mischief at a low expense.

Has done more to elevate the standard of living than most any one thing except education and the installment plan.

Furnishes clean, wholesome recreation for those unable to afford the more expensive pleasures.

Permits parents to know where their children are at night.

Furtheres desire to read more and stimulates youth to stay in high schools.

Teaches youth the moral problems faced in everyday life.

Suggestions offered include the following: Placing more emphasis on the play than upon the star might prevent stars from "grandstanding everything from marriage to divorce to get publicity;" Stressing sex problems and illogical and childish stories has done much to diminish the popularity of the motion picture; More intelligent management of studios and direction of pictures is needed; Glorifying the bandit is to be abhorred; More natural scenic, industrial and news reels are necessary; Eliminate the eternal triangle; Take out the blood and thunder scenes; Punishment of criminals must be clearly shown.

That participation in community events by the exhibitor has a definite effect in gaining the goodwill of civic organizations is evidenced in several of the replies.

The comment follows, the named individual being the secretary of the Kiwanis Club unless otherwise specified:

R. S. Weaver, Jr., Victoria Kiwanis Club, Va.

The motion picture theatre is an influence for good among the youth of our community:

First. Moving pictures enable our young people to see on the screen statesmen, foreign lands, interesting and important places the world over, the news of the day; in other words the educational advantages of travel are to a large extent realized at home.

Second. The youth is afforded an opportunity because of the superb acting of the screen stars of today to study human nature. The best pictures are interesting studies of real life.

Third. To some extent the motion picture house substitutes wholesome entertainment for the idle hours which might be spent in pool halls, on the curb, or at other unfortunate recreations.

Fourth. The screen enables youth to envision man and woman at their best.

Benj. Hinchman, Jr., Johnstown Kiwanis Club, Pennsylvania.

The Kiwanis Club of Johnstown considers the movies of sufficient importance to give a show every two weeks at our Kiwanis Orthopedic Ward for crippled children.

As for our community situation, that is a big item. In the main, most people love good movies and their influence is undoubtedly for better things.

Lester C. Nagley, Kiwanis Club of Indianapolis, Ind.

A motion picture theatre that shows clean, educational, entertaining films, which give proper ideals to youth and stimulation to the imagination, is a real asset in any community, particularly in developing character in the youth. We feel that the modern motion picture theatre has played a tremendous part in presentation of some of

Rules Ban on "King of Kings" Menaces Religious Freedom

MEMPHIS, March 13.—Permission to show "The King of Kings," in spite of an order of the censorship board barring the picture, was granted the Lyric theatre by Judge Pittman in Circuit court last week. The court ruled that the ban tended to give the state control of religion.

The board is backed by the city administration, and police interference was threatened if the picture was shown. Suit followed. Nor has the case ended, it seems, with Judge Pittman's ruling. It is being prepared for the State Supreme court, where it is expected the entire censorship question will be threshed out.

Trade Practice Code of Ethics to Be Announced by Federal Commission

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Having concluded its consideration of the report of the New York motion picture trade practice conference of last October, in relation to the reply of Paramount to the cease-and-desist order of last July, the Federal Trade Commission within a few days will make public the code of ethics adopted at the conference, it has been announced.

Details of the code have been kept confidential for the past five months because of the intimate tieup between its provisions and the offer of Paramount, which was rejected last week.

Price Cutting War Looms Among Seattle Theatres

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

SEATTLE, March 13.—Theatres here are gradually drifting into a price cutting war, and the condition threatens to become much worse. The cuts in admission, at present, have been confined chiefly in the loges and for the matinees.

the masterpieces of literature, such films as "Les Miserables," to the youth of our city and nation. The motion picture theatre has also made history more interesting to our youngsters, as evidenced in such films as "Old Ironsides," which was recently shown in this city to a large number of the school children.

Instead of the old-time street corner "gangs," which used to cause so much disturbance in the average city, the boys and girls frequent theatres and are kept out of much mischief through the motion picture theatres which offer wholesome recreation at a low cost.

C. H. Kaiser, Prairie du Chien Kiwanis Club, Wis.

The theatre has kept the minds of young people in a clean channel and is a great thing for the good of the community in all ways.

A. L. Berry, Tryon Kiwanis Club, N. C.

I believe that our boys would be more interested in local matters than they would be in Wild West shows, and certainly more benefited.

Chas. M. Sturkey, Lexington Kiwanis Club, N. C.

It is my personal belief that the motion picture has done more to change and elevate the standard of living than most any one thing, excepting, of course, education and the installment plan. We have been given an opportunity to see the "other half" live, and found that comforts could be had for the "middle class" people as well as the rich.

I want to commend the stand that some producers are taking that the play is more important than the star. Maybe if we put more emphasis upon the play, the stars would be content to live a more normal life, instead of grandstanding everything from marriage to divorce to get publicity. Let's have less sex, sensual and sensational pictures. I don't believe in a "bed room moral lesson," the lesson can be gotten over without such stuff.

Faber A. Bollinger, West Palm Beach Kiwanis Club, Fla.

Undoubtedly the better class of moving pictures have a great influence for good, not only with the youth of our community, but with the older folks. I particularly feel that pictures showing industrial development and travel pictures are exceptionally good. Probably much good is accomplished in putting over historical and Biblical events through pictures portraying such events.

Lyman C. Hedge, Burlington Kiwanis Club, Ia.

The motion picture is a powerful influence for good, furnishing clean, wholesome recreation for those unable to afford the more expensive pleasures. They stimulate the imagination and bring to the lives of many thoughts and scenes of other lands that they would never get if it was not for the motion picture.

While too much stress on sex problems, scandal in the lives of the motion picture players, and illogical and childish stories have done much to diminish the popularity of this form of entertainment, we cannot help but believe in it. We look forward with hope to the day, however, when a more intelligent class of people may manage the studios and direct the pictures.

Co-operation with our theatre managers has brought many local benefits.

Amusements Necessary To Life, Declares Pope

Wm. C. Henske, Chippewa Falls Kiwanis Club, Wis.

The motion picture theatre is an influence for good among the youth of our community in the following ways: 1. At night we know where our youths are. 2. Stimulates imagination and furthers the desire to read more. 3. Stimulates the youth to stay in high schools and gather further education as they wish to be as some of the heroes are. 4. The evil in pictures is, as a rule, overlooked, although dress and styles are copied, but a properly home-influenced child does not become influenced by the vamps, etc., any more than they would by the bad men.

Thorpe M. Langley, Superior Kiwanis Club, Wis.

The display of the bank robber and bandit in a glorified role is to be abhorred.

The proper display of good films, however, is of inestimable value in the education of the modern youth. It is clean recreation taking the place of the chores that were performed by the youth of yesterday.

Grant Urquhart, Oconto Kiwanis Club, Wis.

Inasmuch as there aren't many activities in Oconto for the younger folks, I believe the movies are a great benefit in that there they find recreation and diversion. As to the amount of influence for good or other ways I cannot say, but I believe they are good for the reasons stated above.

Its influence is not always good, depending on the class of pictures shown. Good, clean pictures, with less sex problems shown than at present, are an influence for good that is immeasurable. More natural scenic, industrial and news reels are needed.

The price charged in most medium sized towns is a little high for the boy or girl of high school age. For instance, local prices are 40 cents and never lower than 35 cents, without orchestra or other features.

J. L. Locklard, Salem Kiwanis Club, W. Va.

It is not an influence for good in our community. I doubt if it is in any community or city.

Take out the blood and thunder scenes, institute pictures of high ideals, and then it can be of an educational and moral influence.

John B. Larkin, Kiwanis Club of Coraopolis, Pa.

All morally clean people know that clean pictures that instruct rather than tear down morals are an influence for good among the youth of the present day.

I am strongly opposed to pictures bordering on the risqué and believe the ban should be put on midnight shows, even though the pictures are good, as this has a tendency to create a spirit of night life which will be hard to suppress once it gets a hold.

If the eternal triangle proposition were eliminated from every married couple it would mean a great relief.

Wm. W. Horner, Kiwanis Club of Philadelphia, Pa.

The motion picture theatre, in my opinion, may be an influence for good among the youth of our country when it exhibits clean educational and entertaining films that do not have a tendency to incite criminal or immoral ideas in the immature minds of American youth.

H. Merton Clark, Lansing Kiwanis Club, Mich.

George Reynolds, Millersburg Kiwanis Club, O.

The motion picture theatre is an influence for good among the youth of our community for education, recreation, pastime. I think it is a good thing. We only have one in town.

Re-Takes

WELL, things are pretty quiet around this bailiwick. Even the motion picture companies who use the streets of Hollywood are not very active of late. Only saw three movie companies blocking traffic this week.

And while we're on the subject of movies (most everybody talks pictures here, you know) I see where some bird has invented a "laugh meter," a device that automatically records the giggles in a comedy. Jack White tried it out the other night and it worked perfectly. The boys who count the laughs can't bribe this machine. It's got a heart of springs and only registers the genuine laughs, hearty laughs and guffaws.

Freeman Lang, the Los Angeles inventor of the "laugh meter", is working on another device now, it is said, that will hand long-winded radio announcers a "dirty look" whenever they talk over five minutes to tell you about the "next numbah will be."

Don't Like 'Em Fat

Did you see where one German actress ate herself out of a nice long contract? She wouldn't stick to the pineapple and lamb chop banquet and took on so much weight they couldn't get her into focus. So she's on her way back to Europe, where a few pounds more or less doesn't matter.

Too Much

Henry Ford wants to see the air full of airplanes. Hollywood had enough with one flying around overhead last week. It was equipped with a deafening siren and kept the motorists busy pulling into the curb and looking around for a police car.

We're Getting So Literary

Only two new screen magazines were launched here last week. Harry Carr says the rain delayed everything.

Oh My Yes

As Charlie Pyle's bunyon trotters get farther away from home the headlines shrink. I'll bet Chicago is sitting up nights waiting for coast-to-coast runners to dash through. Yes, they are.

Not Real Hootch

Saw a picture the other night ("The Escape") in which a bootlegger drank his own stuff. But then it was only a picture.

Famous Last Words

"Yes, Mr. Exhibitors, you can pick any film you want."

Turn on the radio, Meadows, I want to listen to ex-Senator Blah broadcast his two-hour speech tonight.

World Politics, Barring "Dawn," Upsets Production in England

Cavell Picture Banned by Sir Austen Chamberlain Without Even Seeing It When Germany Objects—Other Producers Panicky—Showing of Another War Film Delayed

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

BRUSSELS, March 13.—Prolonged applause greeted the showing here last week of "Dawn," English film centering on the execution of Edith Cavell, war nurse.

(By Special Correspondent of Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

LONDON, March 13.—The whole edifice of British film censorship is tottering on its foundations, with international political juggling succeeding in forcing the withdrawal of a war picture, "Dawn" at the demand of a British cabinet member who has not seen the production and even has refused to see it. The demand for withdrawal followed a protest from the German embassy before the production had been shown.

Other Producers "Panicky"

Leaders in the trade see possibilities of the effects of the decision spreading beyond the boundaries of the British Isles. Results already are apparent as far as British production is concerned. Other producers with war pictures in work or in prospect are becoming panicky. Wardour postponed the trade-showing of "The Great War Through German Spectacles," made in Germany and re-edited by Boyd Carpenter.

"Dawn" was made with a $250,000 expenditure, with no objections whatever from official quarters, and the censor admitted satisfaction with the treatment of the theme, but refused a permit after Sir Austen Chamberlain, in charge of the British Foreign Office, entered objections.

Months ago Herbert Wilcox, who has just floated a new company called British Dominions, announced his intention of making a film around the execution of Nurse Cavell, who was shot by a German firing squad for assisting English and Belgian soldiers to cross into Holland, and so escaping their captors. Officialdom raised no objections and the film was completed. Before it had been shown to anyone, the German Embassy approached the British Foreign Office, and exhorted the minister in charge, Sir Austen Chamberlain, to use his influence to get the film banned.

Chamberlain Refuses to See It

Sir Austen, invited by Wilcox to see the film, seemed so thoroughly charmed with the German point of view that he even refused to see the film, saying the theme was repugnant to him.

Then the bombshell burst when T. P. O'Connor, chief of the British Board of Film Censors, refused to grant "Dawn" a certificate, because it was inexpedient to treat such a theme. Wilcox was furious, and so were many in trade circles who had no special interest in the film.

Local authorities who can still grant a license to cover their districts are almost certain in most cases to be influenced by the decision of the censor, and so refuse to allow the film to be shown.

New System Proposed

Several questions are to be asked in Commons, one of which calls upon the home secretary to state whether in view of the unsatisfactory position of the film censorship, he will consider introduction of a bill to set up an official body, or delegate the matter to the lord chamberlain, who censors stage plays.

O'Connor, before sailing for America on a health visit, said he felt the government would abide by his ruling.

A. M. P. A. Promise All Kinds of Fun at Annual Banquet on March 31st

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 13.—Thrills, fun, music and all sorts of stunts are being promised by the A. M. P. A. for its annual banquet to be held at the Astor hotel on March 31. One of the main features will be the absence of all speeches. The affair is being billed under the name of "The Naked Truth."

Gotham Buys 4 Stories For 1928-29 Production

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 13.—Sam Sax, president of Gotham, has purchased four stories to be filmed for the 1928-29 program. They are "The Bowery," an underworld drama; "Law of the Blue Ridge," tale of a mountaineer who had to live down the reputation of cowardice; "The Flying Kestrel," by Captain Dingle; and "The Racing Fool," by Gerald Beaumont.

Looked Like Same Old Stuff—But It Wasn't

NEILLSVILLE, WIS., March 13.—Billy Tragsdorf, son of William E. Tragsdorf, local exhibitor, in January entered a contest conducted by the Fan Magazine. Recently he got a letter—that is, his dad got it for him. Only his dad didn't even notice that the letter was addressed to the son. The names are so much alike. Now, the elder William receives a lot of mail from motion picture people. A letter from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the company which was giving the prize, meant only some nice words about that producer's pictures or something like that, so the elder William was about to put it where he says he puts most of those letters—in the waste basket. Then, somehow, he noticed that this envelope looked a little different from the others. He opened it. There was $50 and a letter to his son. Out of all the thousands in the contest, Billy's contribution was deemed the best.

Is Summer Best Time To Exhibit Snow Film? Yes—and No

Run Pictures in Season, Says One Exhibitor—Fire Scene in Hot Months Makes Patrons Cross, Another Believes

(Should a snow picture be shown in the summer in order to draw the most patrons? Read the following and then send in your comment.)

WE started something. It was a perfectly innocent—yet important—question: Should a snow picture be shown in the summer in order to get the best box office return? To judge from the replies of exhibitors to correspondents of EXHIBITORS HERALD AND MOVING PICTURE WORLD, the answer is—yes, no, yes and no.

LAST week we had the verdict of Ray Tubman of Ottawa that "it does not seem rational to me to walk in off a hot street and see a raging blizzard on the street." This week we quote several theatre owners who agree with Tubman but others whose opinions might make Tubman gnash his teeth—if he were a teeth-gnasher and if they could stand it.

"Sees What It Thinks About"

"The public likes to see in a picture what it thinks about during the day," says Samuel Carver, manager of the Liberty at Kansas City. Carver explains that "there have been instances of football pictures going over good in July and pictures with snow scenes making money in the hot days of summer, but I believe that, generally, the trend of the public mind in the summer is towards baseball, swimming and similar activities, as well as being the opposite in the winter. There are columns of news pertaining to summer activities in newspapers during the hot months."

Here's Novel Theory

But Nate Frudenfelt, manager of the Capitol in Des Moines, believes that seasonal showing makes an immense amount of difference in the comfort and reaction of audiences in the summer, though not so much difference in the winter. Here is how Frudenfelt arrives at this novel theory: "People can stand the winter better than they can the summer, as a rule, and they react to the cooling effect of a snowy background on a hot summer day with great alacrity. Soothed by the psychological effect of the snow they enjoy the film with much more pleasure than they do a film that enhances the general discomfort of heat on a summer day.

Making Patron Irritable

"Now it makes little difference in the winter time. The audiences are comfortable and warm. The sight of the snow only adds to their indoor security and does not detract from their interest. A fire scene, however, shown in summer, makes for disturbances in attitude, it makes the patrons irritable and cross. The regular heat plus that suggested in picture brings the sum total of discomfort to an alarming and exaggerated amount. A manager should not risk upsetting any audience to this extent.

"A winter picture released in April had best be held for showing in June or July, all other things being equal."

"Timely Subjects Make Money"

Then there is the philosophy of Adolph Eisner, manager of the Gillis at Kansas City, that "timely subjects are the money-makers." Eisner deponeth:

"I cannot see the logic in showing off-season pictures unless they are conceded to be 'knockouts.' When everybody is either playing golf or going to baseball games, who gives a rap about a football or skiing picture. There is too much of a mental contrast for the public to accept readily. Timely subjects are the money makers, I believe."

Biechele Agrees with Eisner

R. R. Biechele, president of the M. P. T. O.—Kansas and Missouri, rather agrees with Eisner, saying that he "could not work up much enthusiasm over a winter scene and be sweating at the same time. It doesn't work." Read what Biechele says:

"The subject of off-season pictures is one which has been much discussed, but I believe that, as a rule, patrons like to have their pictures abreast with the season."

Picture's the Thing

But Jesse Day, manager of the Strand in Des Moines, disagrees with all of them. He holds that patrons don't care a rap whether the snow picture is shown in winter, summer, spring or autumn, provided it's a good picture. Says Day:

"What the fan wants is a corking good story and he doesn't care whether the scene is laid against the snow or against the green grass of a summer landscape if all turns out to suit his fancy. I don't believe that pictures need to be shown seasonably and I don't believe that exchange men plan to sell them that way particularly. It doesn't mean much to steer the wintry blasts to winter or to summer. If the theatre is the recreation the patron desires he will get the most out of it any time the film is shown."

F B O Issues New Line of Paper for Meehan's "Keeper of the Bees"

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 13.—F B O has issued a new line of posters, accessories, and an eight-page press book on "The Keeper of the Bees," leading box office picture of 1926 directed by Leo Meehan.

An increasing number of contracts for return engagements is said to be the reason for the new line of exploitation aids.

Believe it or Not

AFTER living 75 years without seeing a motion picture, T. L. Pullman, of Dallas, thinks he has missed a great thing after his experience of last week. Pullman was standing in front of the Rex theatre when the manager, Roy Singer, who knew Pullman, enticed him inside the theatre to see "The Lone Eagle."

Pullman was astonished at the reality of the film and could not believe it when airplanes started zooming back and forth across the screen.

"Jaydee" Williams Wins Suit Against British National

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

LONDON, March 13.—"Jaydee" Williams today stands the victor in his suit against British National Pictures after a four-day trial. The judgment was rendered last week and included a substantial amount in damages as well as the costs of the action, with the defendants consenting to the judgment.

In the case opening March 5, J. D. Williams claimed damages for breach of contract for ten years at $25,000 annual salary. The defense, with Stuart Bevan, K. C., as counsel, had charged that Williams had refused to obey reasonable orders and was extravagant. However, the defense unreservedly withdrew each allegation and Judge Horridge, presiding, concluded the action with an expression of his personal good wishes for the success which he declared Williams deserved.

It will be recalled that "Jaydee" effected American distribution of British National productions through Paramount and other companies.

U Names Pictures for Release During Coming Six Months

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 13.—Universal has announced the complete line-up of Universal releases for the second six months' period of the 1927-28 season, consisting of all feature releases from March to August, inclusive. The feature titles are as follows:

"Love Me and the World Is Mine," starring Mary Philbin and Norman Kerry; "We Americans," with George Sidney heading the cast; "Good Morning, Judge," starring Reginald Denny; four Hoot Gibsons; "Surrender," starring Mary Philbin and Ivan Mosjoukine; "Buck Privates," starring Lya de Putti; "Hot Heels," with Glen Tryon as the star; "Stop That Man," an all-star production; "Thanks for the Buggy Ride," Laura La Plante picture; "No. 13 Washington Square," all-star production; "The Count of Ten," with James Gleason and Charles Ray; and nine Westerns and Thrillers, featuring Ted Wells, Fred Humes, Al Wilson, and Dynamite, the dog.

In addition to these, Universal will release weekly its usual comedies, two-reel Westerns, and International Newsreel.

Uncle Sam to Be an Exhibitor at Spanish Fair

Washington Bureau of Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Uncle Sam is building a motion picture theatre in Sunny Spain. This announcement by John M. Denison, secretary of the United States commission to the Ibero-American Exposition, which is to be held in Seville from October 12 through June, 1929, may be indicative of the increasing value placed by the government on the educational value of motion pictures. The theatre is to be one of three buildings this country will erect to house the government exhibits during the exposition. It will have an auditorium 60 by 120 feet in which will be shown regular programs.

There may be someone on this continent who does not know that Will Hays is the head of the producers and distributors organization. But little Kenyon Clarence Sills isn't a bit interested in such facts, nor are the others for that matter, at present. What is important to them is that Hays was godfather at the christening. The company includes (left to right) Mrs. Sills, mother of Milton Sills, First National star, who stands next to her; Mrs. Sills (Doris Kenyon), Hays, Kenyon, Clarence Sills, Dr. Frank Dyer, who officiated, and Mrs. Kenyon.

A dainty bud for a towering plant which shelters Clara Bow, who has flowered into one of filmdom's outstanding stars. Her latest for Paramount is "Red Hair."

Two and two makes six—if one breaks through to stardom, but as these are children at their lessons on the DeMille lot where they are appearing in the cast of Pathe's "The Godless Girl," the answer still is four. Anyway, we wouldn't want to mix up their arithmetic while school is still in session.

KNOW YOUR SALES LEADERS

THE notably advantageous position in which Warner Brothers finds itself at this time is due in large part to the splendid sales organization built up and maintained through the efforts of its general manager of distribution, Sam E. Morris. It has been Mr. Morris' tireless service that has placed the Warner field force in the top rank in efficiency throughout the entire industry and this efficiency in its turn has created prosperity for the organization and faith with the exhibitor.

MR. MORRIS is a native of Oil City, Pa., but spent most of his boyhood in Cleveland, Ohio. When he finished his schooling he went with the American Tobacco Company and as foreign manager for that great concern travelled all over the world.

A little later, Mr. Morris settled in Pittsburgh. In that city he purchased the first slot machine franchise ever issued for the Pittsburgh territory but before long he sold out his interest in order to take on work that would be more to his liking by offering a wider scope for initiative. Joining forces with his brother-in-law, L. H. Wilk of Cleveland, he acquired the Home theatre and two or three other houses in the environs of the same city.

It was during this time that he was elected chairman of the film committee of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, and his work in this connection eventually developed the basic idea of Film Arbitration Boards now so successfully in operation throughout the country.

From exhibitor Sam Morris became an exchange manager in Cleveland for the World Film organization, then came to New York as vice-president and general manager of Select Pictures Corp.

When Warner Brothers underwent its first expansion seven years ago, Mr. Morris associated himself with the company as its general manager of distribution, a post which he still holds. It is particularly his achievements with Warner Brothers that have placed him among the most important executives in the film business.

One of his most notable accomplishments was that of the reorganization of the selling force when Warners acquired the Old Vitagraph Company. Under his lead the newest methods of film salesmanship were introduced into the revised exchange system until today the Warner product enjoys perfect distribution with faultless service to the exhibitor.

His chief interest at the present time is the selling of the 1928-29 program which Warner Brothers will offer as the greatest undertaking in their history. These pictures are to include many big specials with Vitaphone sound and it is this remarkable innovation that Sam E. Morris is popularizing with exhibitors as well as the public.—J. S. S.

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 13.—Columbia has exercised its option on Frank Capra's services and has signed the young comedy director to a long-term contract. A clause in the contract provides that every feature made by Capra is to be billed "A Frank Capra Production."

Phil Rosen is the latest name to be added to Columbia's roster of directors. He will wield the magaphone on one of the company's outstanding productions.

New F B O Service Gives Exploitation Help to Exhibitors

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 13.—FBO has organized an unusual department of service to exhibitors, called a Department of Showmanship. The publicity and exploitation department, under the supervision of J. I. Schnitzer, senior vice-president of FBO, will operate the new service, which is intended to provide advertising and exploitation usually accessible only to the large houses in the big cities.

FBO's Department of Showmanship has been organized, declares Schnitzer, to give "a broad, consistent, universal, and permanent service to exhibitors throughout the country." The department has copy writers, an exploitation man, and artists. Exhibitors may call on them for a complete service, from preparation of publicity to final and complete preparation of special cuts and mats for the picture the exhibitor is to run.

Korda X-Rays Prove Hip Injuries Slight; Returns to Billie Dove Picture

HOLLYWOOD, March 13.—Alexander Korda met with a serious accident last week while riding in his car. It suddenly overturned, throwing him out and injuring his hip. X-rays were taken when it was feared the bones had been broken. They proved that the injuries were of such a nature, however, that he could continue his work on the set of "The Yellow Lily," First National picture starring Billie Dove.

Jack White, Bride Go East via Panama Canal

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 13.—Jack White, producer of Educational's "Jack White Comedies," will leave a week from today for New York by way of the Panama Canal. Accompanying him will be his bride, Pauline Starke. It is his first vacation for many months and will also serve as a honeymoon for the couple, although they were married last autumn.

Schedules Tend to "Programs"; PFL Shooting Seven; M-G-M Six

Lasky Completes Three, Starts Four; Florence Vidor in "Magnificent Flirt"; Jack Ford Completes Shooting "Hangman's House" for Fox; Thomson Finishes Film

By DOUGLAS HODGES

HOLLYWOOD, March 13.—Of 32 pictures being shot here this week four are of the super de luxe class, 20 are of the program class and the remainder are unclassified product of various kinds.

Among Paramount's seven is the Lubitsch piece, "The Patriot," and six others offering such stars as Florence Vidor, Dix, Bebe Daniels, Beery and Bancroft.

Among M-G-M's six are films being directed by Sam Wood, Mal St. Claire, King Vidor, John McCarthy, Nick Grinde and Chester M. Franklin.

One of the "four super de luxe" films is "The Godless Girl," which Cecil B. DeMille is directing. Another is "Four Devils," Fox picture. They are obviously "supers" because they are running over the four week production period.

The tendency is to turn out program pictures; and Hollywood is turning most of them out in four weeks—and less time. No studio is taking exception to the rule.

Ford Completes "Hangman's House"

John Ford and Raoul Walsh completed pictures at the Fox lot last week. Ford's "Hangman's House" is regarded as out of the program class—because of story, budget, director and production values—and came to a close in seven weeks time. Walsh lost some time on account of the persistent illness of his star, Dolores Del Rio, but completed "Red Dancer of Moscow" within the four weeks period.

Thomson's Film Finished

Fred Thomson's picture was closed last week after a shooting period of six weeks. It is "Sunset Legion." Al Werker kept a part of the cast up to yesterday for scenes in which Fred does not appear. But the star himself left the set March 3 and set out for an excursion to Florida for a vacation.

Two other Paramount pictures completed are "Three Sinners," Pola Negri opera, and "A Date with the Duchess." The latter was shot in less than three weeks. It stars Adolphe Menjou. Both he and Negri are leaving Paramount now; Menjou will go to Europe while Negri is expected to sign a Fox contract.

Florence Vidor in New One

The four pictures begun by Paramount last week are "The Magnificent Flirt," in which Florence Vidor has the star part; "Knocking Them Over," starring Richard Dix; "The Drag Net," starring George Bancroft; and a Beery comedy directed by F. Richard Jones.

Showing Uncensored Films To Close French Theatres

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

PARIS, March 13.—Closing of theatres for 15 days to three months for showing of uncensored films was legalized by the chamber of deputies last week. Violators will be liable for fines up to $130. A tax of 15 centimes a meter on films also was voted.

Ozarkians Turn Actors

NEW YORK, March 13.—Helene Chadwick is to star in a new Excellent production called "Women Who Dare."

Ha! ha! ha! What a Comedy! $160 Stolen as He Laughs

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

KANSAS CITY, March 13.—Comedies sometimes are too funny. W. J. Shoemaker, a farmer living near Kansas City, believes. The other night he attended the Twelfth Street theatre, here, and a comedy was on the screen. A stranger sitting next to Shoemaker began laughing loudly and slapping Shoemaker on the back. That started Shoemaker laughing. Finally the stranger arose. "It's too much for me," he said, as he hurried out. A few minutes later Shoemaker discovered his purse, containing $160, was gone.

Keep in Mind

From "What the Picture Did for Me"
EXHIBITORS HERALD AND MOVING
PICTURE WORLD—February 4, 1928

THE PIONEER SCOUT: Fred Thomson—Boys, here's Fred at his best in his first regular Western under the Paramount banner, and he hits the bull's eye again. I consider this picture much better than F B O releases, and it cost me less money. I notice some of you boys have been lamenting the fact he is now releasing through Paramount on account of supposed increase in price, but I bought them for less than I paid for the F B O releases. The wagon race in this picture is a knockout, and so is the fight between Fred and old Tom Wilson (blackface deluxe who has turned villain here) in the final reel. Played without any advertising except slide and lobby photos, and on one of coldest days this winter, drew better than average. More action than Jesse James, and will please Fred's admirers better. Seven reels.—E. F. Ingram, Ingram's Theatre, Ashland, Ala.

All Warner Pictures of 1928 will Feature Vitaphone Process

Blanche Mehaffey Returns to Coast This Week; Betty Bronson to Return Next Week—Rowland, Burr and Beatty Eastbound

By RAY MURRAY

HOLLYWOOD, March 13.—Warner Brothers studio is arranging to incorporate Vitaphone scenes into every production made here this year. Certain scenes will be accentuated by the characters speaking their lines instead of the usual printed subtitles, according to Jack L. Warner, chief executive of the studio.

Mr. Warner has just returned from a two months' tour of Europe and has completed arrangements to lease studios in England and Germany, where additional Warner Brothers productions will be made.

THIS year's budget will be the largest in the history of the company, according to the producer. "The company contemplates the expenditure of $12,000,000 on pictures to be made in Hollywood this year," he says, and a world-wide distribution of the Warner Brothers product has been consummated by Jack and Harry Warner.

Mark Larkin was elected to the presidency of the Wampas at that organization's meeting at the Roosevelt Hotel, last Monday night. Other officers for 1928 elected the same evening were: Harold Hurlley, Barrett Keisling, vice-presidents; Charles West, secretary; George Thomas, treasurer. The following were elected as directors: Harry Hammond Beall, Hal Wallis, Oliver Garver, Hank Arnold, Joe Steele, Charles Kurtzman, and E. O. Van Pelt.

The program for the evening was in charge of Lincoln Quarberg, who had as guests of honor: Lina Basquette, Edwin Carewe, Dolores Del Rio, Harry Wilson, Jack Conway, Wilson Meisner, James R. Quirk and Edna May. Former President Pete Smith received an ovation when he appeared after five months illness.

Hoot Gibson has borrowed Henry MacRae from the Universal organization to direct his next independent picture "Doubling for Trouble." According to Jim Hum, chief executive for the Western star's organization, "Doubling for Trouble" promises to reveal Gibson in a new type of role in his next Universal release.

THE STUDIO PREVIEW

"We Americans"

THIS picture stirred a large audience to laughter and tears at a recent preview in Hollywood. And well it might. "We Americans" has all the elements of popular appeal, heart-interest, love-interest, pathos and legitimate comedy touches. It is the story of the Americanization of a group of people from foreign lands who have settled in America on the East Side of New York.

It is a cross-section of life as lived on Avenue A, picturing the hardships of a plodding Hebrew family, the rearing of their children who eventually become ashamed of the sordid surroundings, the attempt of the parents to grasp an education and learn American ways, and the final reunion following the war. Edward Sloman has made an excellent job of directing the adapted stage success of Milton Gropper and Max Siegel. He has not missed a detail of the home life of a little pants presser, who blusters and fumes but has a heart of gold. The scenes in the class room, the pinochle game, and other bits of life are faithfully shown and drew laughter and tears.

George Sidney has the outstanding role, that of the sweatshop worker who finally gains a shop of his own. Patsy Ruth Miller was pleasing as the Hebrew daughter and George Lewis as the son. Albert Gran contributed an excellent characterization as the old German and Beryl Mercer was a pathetic picture as the wife of Sidney. The adaptation and smooth continuity are the work of Al Cohn. A perfect set of titles graces the picture.

THE SHORT FEATURE

Incorporated in this department of Exhibitors Herald is the Moving Picture World department, "Little Pictures with the Big Punch," which has presented news, reviews and exploitation on short features and serials.

Local News Shots Play Big Role; Win New and Occasional Patron

Short features can be made a source of direct contact between exhibitor and public as well as the agency for bringing new patrons into the theatre, if the experience of T. H. Stevens, manager of the Oak Park theatre, a Lubliner & Trinz house at Oak Park, Chicago suburb, is indicative of conditions in other cities and towns. The newsreel is the medium for the success of Stevens.

Local News Shots Bring Patrons

We have had instances of patrons who attended the screen theatre solely to see the newsreels, as attested by exhibitors in surveys conducted in this department on the value of the short feature in the program. Another recent development has been the use of the newsreel to fill in the long pauses between acts of stage plays, the latest being the Greenwich Village theatre in New York.

Now comes the successful application of local shots concerning outstanding news events of the week in the city. These, used either separately or at the end of the regular news reel showing, mean more welcome work for the cashier of the theatre in the small community, in the opinion of Manager Stevens.

Here are some of the results he has found with the local newsreel:

Attracts new patrons.

Acts as box office insurance in bringing the occasional patron to the theatre on local news nights.

Provides excellent contact medium between theatre and community.

Draws patronage on the basis of being something new.

Assures theatre of regular news stories in the newspapers.

Requires very little expenditure.

Practically every individual gets a thrill from seeing himself or an acquaintance on the screen, Stevens said, in divulging the secret of the drawing power of the local newsreel. The result is a regular attendance on such nights by the occasional patrons "in the hope of seeing themselves as the cameraman might have caught them."

Manager Takes Pictures

Stevens takes the pictures himself and has the developing and printing done by a trailer company at very little expense. Among the subjects covered in the six weeks of "The Oak Park News" are the following. A local school class at recess, a prominent banking institution, a merchants' association meeting, the high school basketball team members and ladies' club activities.

There is this deft touch added to strengthen goodwill and community service thought. Stevens titles the news reel this way: "The Oak Park News—Filmed and Edited Weekly in the Interest of the Oak Park Community by the Oak Park Theatre."

This department will welcome comment from exhibitors on the Oak Park theatre innovation and other projects for developing patronage via the short feature.

Talley Goes Abroad To Change Fox News Staff, Direct Film

NEW YORK, March 13.—Reorganization of the Fox News camera forces overseas is the objective of Truman Talley, editor-in-chief of the Fox News and Fox Varieties, who is on his way to Europe aboard the SS. Roma.

News reel companies have extended to foreign fields the competition which has warmed recently in the United States. Talley, who is accompanied by Mrs. Talley, will visit the Fox Films offices in Rome, Vienna, Budapest, Berlin, Paris and London.

Talley is to direct a picture of Hungarian national life while he is in Budapest. A native cast will be employed and the facilities of Fox News in Hungary will be used. Talley expects to return to New York May 15.

Plot Stageshows Replacing Old Style

Use Your Own Material; It Pays

Infringing Hurts Your Standing with Theatres and Also Public Popularity

By EDMUND ANTHONY

It is surprising to see how many of the Presentation performers who are graduates from vaudeville theatres are up to the old tricks of infringing on other artists material. This problem has confronted the amusement world from the time that a theatre circuit was founded until the present day of the numerous powerful chains of theatres.

At one time it was the custom of certain vaudeville performers to catch stars playing in musical shows during an engagement in the town that the attraction was playing in and if the offering had any possible chatter, business or material of sure-fire and original nature, it would immediately be jotted down on paper and used in the very next performance at the two-a-day.

Infringing is a bad habit whether it is practiced by a smalltime actor or a star. It is something that robs those who practice it of the good-will of theatre managers as well as the entire theatrical profession. As a rule people of that type spoil what might otherwise be a successful career for them as entertainers.

It is not at all necessary for anyone earning their livelihood on the stage whether it be the vaudeville, burlesque, musical comedy or presentation field to steal from one another material that really belong to the first artist introducing it. It is also true that many of these gags cannot be copy-wrighted and therefore you will find it repeated from one end of the country to the other by various performers who even go as far as claiming the credit for the origination.

Artists who pay for special material and become recognized with a standard offering should enjoy the privilege of using their own property without having someone of mediocre ability and unscrupulous character to deliberately take the material that has been exploited as trade-marks for certain well-known performers.

Jules Buffano

How many of you know that this chap wrote that popular comedy song called "Thanks for the Buggy Ride"?—Yep, Jules is also a composer besides being one of the most popular band leaders—After a long engagement in Chicago, Jules was guest conductor at the opening of the Seattle Theatre in Washington, a new Publix house—at this time he is on his way to Los Angeles for Publix, as band leader at their theatres.

Johnson and King Join Herald-World

Paul Johnson, formerly of the Fox Film Exchange, Chicago and Los Angeles, is now on the editorial staff of Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World. Mr. Johnson, who is well known among the theatrical profession, will make his headquarters at the Los Angeles office in which he will take charge of the presentation department.

Robert H. King, formerly of "The Stage and Screen," a regional film trade paper of Boston, and recently of the Daily News of New York, has also joined the Herald-World staff and will make his headquarters in the New York office. King will look after the presentation interests of the book.

Presentation department, a featured section inaugurated in this publication more than three years ago, now has a national reputation.

New Story Form Bandshows Go Over

New Policy Staged at Capitol,
Chicago, by Clyde Hood Wins Public Favor

By A. RAYMOND GALLO

Chicago again scores another point in the betterment of Presentation, stagebandshow. Since the idea was first presented to Chicago by Paul Ash three and a half years ago, this publication has been constantly keeping tabs on the various picture house policies all over the country and is responsible for the many changes that have taken place since the original stage bandshow was put on at the Mc-Vickers theatre, Chicago.

More than a year ago this publication predicted plots or what is better known as bandshows in story form. To prove that our suggestion was not at all bad, Ascher Brothers tried the plan at the opening of the new Sheridan theatre, Chicago. Since then they went back to the bandshow idea again but at this writing there is talk going on that the Sheridan will again resume its original plan of plot bandshows.

A short time ago, Al Short, who is now music adviser for Publix on the West Coast, improved on this idea by bringing back to the Capitol theatre, Chicago, upon his return a musical comedy presentation with the band stationed in the orchestra pit.

Several weeks ago, Paul Ash improved even more on this idea by presenting "The Mikado of Jazz" adapted from the original but presented in story form in an up-to-date manner.

Now it is quite evident that our continuous hammering and tireless efforts in suggesting plots and continuity in stage presentation for deluxe picture houses, has really been accepted as sincere advice and from experience of these few experiments it is also quite evident that the policy will prove quite successful wherever it is presented providing that it is not overdone and launched on a concise basis.

After experimenting with a number of policies at the Capitol theatre, Chicago, Clyde Hood, the youthful producer, has finally struck an idea that if properly launched and produced will find favor with the motion picture theatre audience. The idea is the one that we have pounded so much in this book week after week, that is of plots or story form presentations with or without the band on the stage.

Clyde Hood inaugurated this policy at the Capitol this week, under the title of "Captain Kiddo" with the following cast playing the principal roles: Lee Barton Evans, Maxine Hamilton, Suzanne Franz, Ross and Edwards, and Piatove and Natalie, with a ballet of ten girls and a male chorus of 12. In addition to a symphony orchestra in the pit led by Caesar Linden several of these men were assembled on the stage as pirates who furnished the music for the presentation.

It is the intentions of this theatre as well as its producer according to the film trailer flashed on the screen before the performance that this sort of policy will hereafter take the place of the usual straight stage bandshow. Operatic pieces and musical comedy successes, will be produced in condensed form with elaborate setting and the proper talents.

There is no reason why exhibitors whether of independent theatres or on chain circuits, cannot establish permanent musical comedy stock companies at their theatres whereby each week a new stage presentation may be offered with local professional favorites. This enables you to bring back the same people at your theatre each week as the new policy will have something of interest that they may look forward to.

For further information regarding this policy and how it may be adapted to your theatre, will be furnished by this publication upon request.

New Song Hit By Piantadosi

Al Piantadosi, writer of "Pal of My Cradle Days," "When You Are Playing in the Game of Love" and many other popular song hits, announces that he has written a new ballad with George A. Kelly, called "I'm Tired of Making Believe." The song has already been offered $15,000 by another publisher and is a natural hit as a worthy successor to his "Curse of An Aching Heart."

Many Eastern bands and radio orchestras are now featuring this number which is expected to sweep the country as the greatest ballad ever written by this author-publisher.

Matney Studios Expand

Due to a great increase in business The Matney Studios of New York City find it necessary to expand their business in order to take care of their increased service to the motion picture theatre. Matney Studios for many years have supplied stage settings, draperies, and other facilities used for stage presentation in deluxe picture houses.

Sam Herman Is Still Discovering

The Jackson Park Theatre one of Chicago's neighborhood South Side Picture houses is now presenting stage entertainment with Meinke's band on the stage.

Sam Herman the novelty contest man also stages Discovery Nights at this theatre using his talent in front of the band as regular professional presentation acts.

Fanchon and Marco Conducting Talent Contest

Fanchon and Marco, western producers of stage presentations, are conducting a contest from San Diego to Vancouver and Salt Lake City to San Francisco in search of girls talented to perform in their presentations.

The contest sponsored with the aid of the newspaper in each city will enable each winner to be featured in an "idea" in her home town. The minimum contract offered will be 12 weeks with an option for more.

Comedy Club Sponsors Joe Lewis Benefit

The Chicago Comedy Club, through its president, Milton Weil, is launching a testimonial to Joe Lewis, one of the best liked entertainers in the country. Lewis recently met with an accident which has incapacitated him for life. The purpose of this benefit which is being sponsored by Paul Ash is to set him up in business and surround him with all the comforts of life.

The affair will take place on March 29 in a midnight performance at the Oriental theatre, Chicago. Many stage stars, cafe artists, and many presentation performers will donate their services in a huge testimonial show, of which the entire proceeds will go to Joe Lewis.

Lester Stepner, in charge of publicity for this occasion, is supervising the sale of tickets at the rate of $5.00 each.

Don't Infringe

The motion picture business is a new field which caters to a family audience that very seldom attend musical shows and for this reason the privilege of lifting material from other attractions is being freely exercised by these types of performers.

Vaudeville theatres have received quite a bad reputation for this practice and it is our desire and intention to guard the deluxe motion picture theatres catering to neighborhood audience against a repetition of this same feeling which now exists in other fields.

You are doing your audience an injustice whenever you, as the theatre manager, allow an actor or a routine of acts to appear on your stage with stolen material. With just a little extra effort on your part in the form of keeping tabs on the sort of material used from week to week, you will eliminate the possibility of hurting your business.

There is nothing more disgusting to an audience than to sit down to a stage performance and be compelled to witness and hear the same line of chatter that has been seen and heard before used by other artists. With your co-operation, we can eliminate this terrible practice which really will be a benefit to the profession and incidentally keep you in good terms with your audience.

STAGE SHOWS

New York Paramount

Week Ending March 17

Following the theme of the descriptive selection, "The Hunt in the Black Forest," the presentation at the Paramount this week, "Galloping On" has exceptional entertainment merit. The setting is in old English, and hunting costumes were of brilliant colors. Program of the show ran thus:

Overture, "Danse Poetique," played by the Paramount Orchestra with the inimitable Adolphe Dumont directing. Ann Douglas and Berinoff and Eulalie were ably accompanied by the Paramount Dance Ensemble, presenting an exceptional Egyptian acrobatic dance which went over big. This girl, Ann, is surely a wonder. Her contortionistic dance was a marvel.

Publix presented "Galloping On," devised and staged by Frank Cambria. Scene 1, "Before the Hunt"—the gathering of all the hunters and huntresses featuring a roudelay and offering a medley of hunting songs composed around "A Hunting We Will Go," and sung by the Bachlor Octet and the Equestrienne Quartette.

Scene 2, "The Hunt in Surrey Wood," featuring the Felicia Sorel Girls, accompanied by the singing ensemble. Miriam Lax, soprano, and Robert Cloy, tenor, offer "The Tryst," followed by the Paramount Orchestra and Ray Teal's arrangement of "Rain."

Next, what we had all been waiting for—to break it up a bit. Ben Blue in exceptional dancing, both funny and very clever. He went over big, too.

Then to follow more closely on the theme of the whole play, the scene of The Forest Blacksmith, the entire ensemble offering "The Jolly Blacksmiths" and "The Country Dance." Seventh, the hit of the show, Alfred Latell as "Bonzo" the dog. This is an old standard big-time vaudeville act, and never fails to draw the laughs.

Sylvan Dell is the doggie's mistress, and big clumsy "Bonzo" was sure-fire comedy. Ben Blue followed with another eccentric dance, which also pleased very well. Scene 3, the finale, "The Masque After the Hunt," by the entire company, closing with "Happy—Yes, We're Happy."

In all, this was an exceptional good show, reported on Saturday night, and was surprised to note the house was not crowded, as is usual.

San Francisco Granada

Week Ending March 9

The stage act offered here this week differed materially from those of recent weeks and was a Fanchon & Marco production entitled "Specialty Ideas," but a more fitting one would have been "Bounding Main," as it was nautical from start to finish.

The curtain went up on a scene representing the deck of a ship, with the orchestra dressed as sailors and making use of music stands simulating coils of rope. Members of the crew were scattered about with passengers lolling in deck chairs.

Conductor and master of ceremonies Owen Sweeten was real swanky in a captain's uniform and led the orchestra through a reading of a Victor Herbert medley, playing "Little Gypsy Sweetheart" as a trumpet solo.

Edith Flynn, who was Miss San Francisco in the 1925 beauty contest, made her stage debut, singing blue songs and made a hit with both beauty and voice. Four members of the orchestra followed by playing and singing "Is She My Girl Friend?", making their entry in a gondola.

Suzette and Jose, ship's guests, offered a tango, and seven jolly lassies clad in sailor clothes, swabbed the deck to the tune of the "Sailor's Hornpipe," and then presented the "Varsity Drag." An unannounced dancer offered a very clever dance and was called back repeatedly.

Helene Hughes and Roy Smoot sang "Sailing On," with good effect, and Victor Smith offered a comedy number, singing "Where Is My Meyer?", then playing it on the trombone, and ending by dancing.

Eight girls in costumes of sea green did a graceful dance and Helene Hughes and Roy Smoot sang "The Garden of My Heart."

The act closed with an ensemble singing of "Sailing On," with the good ship Gloria cutting through the water in a realistic manner.

New York Capitol

Week Ending March 17

"Northern Knights," featuring Walt Roesner and The Capitoliens, of radio fame, are offered this week at the Capitol. When I see the record-breaking attendance at the Capitol, and knowing that Major Edward Bowes has made his picture-house almost internationally famous through the "mike," I am sure that "Radio" has done little to mar the prosperity of theatrical business.

A Morris Harris production, "Northern Knights," with the ensemble dressed as Northwest Mounted Police, the girls having similar costumes especially designed to be attractive. The first time in a good many years I enjoyed a chorus of ten girls, with a leader, who were real, honest-to-goodness tap dancers.

Jerry followed this offering with his dancing-while-playing accordion bit. Jerry with his slow motion dancing, went over very big—almost stopped the show.

An extemporaneous song to the music "The Sweet Bye and Bye," followed, featuring Ernie and Fisher. The program was not arranged in consecutive order, and no announcements as to the names of each group of entertainers was given, so I do not know who to give credit to for that extremely comical dance, "The Spirit of St. Vitus," which was a dance of the clothing store dummies, by a girl and boy who deserved the applause which they received—and they went over very good.

Emile Boreo, the internationally famous artist, followed with his "different" French, Swedish and Hungarian songs, putting the audience in a uproar of laughter. This chap is a great comedian, knows his audience, and puts really very simple and easy stuff over with a "wow" because of his winning personality and feeling.

Presentation LETTERS

In this open forum those interested in presentation may discuss important matters bearing upon this phase of theatre entertainment. Only signed letters will be published.

PRESENTATION ACTS—To the Editor: Thank you for your letter of the 18th. I have just seen a copy of your last edition of "Better Theatres" and the write-up on "That Melody of Love," and wish to compliment you on the very clever way in which you have handled it.

Yes, I did read the article on the return of song slides, and I think it was very timely, and I hope it was appreciated by all of the publishers as much as it was appreciated by us.

I suppose you know by now that we have also got the theme song of "Ramona." Incidentally, it is something more than a theme song. It so happens it is written by Mabel Wayne, who was the writer of "In a Little Spanish Town." She brought the tune in and we had already accepted it as a great waltz song, and were going after it anyhow as a plug tune, when along came the "Ramona" picture idea, so we tied it up.

If you haven't already done so, I wish you would mention this in your next issue. With kind regards, I am—J. A. Decatur, Leo Feist, Inc., New York City, N. Y.

PRESENTATION ACTS—To the Editor: Had some wonderful publicity last week and things are going great.

Doing a community this week called "Listen to This," Once Again, Kiss and Make Up, Shady Tree, and Blue Heaven were used. And how they sing.

Just like summer down here, you'd be crazy about it. Say hello to Ed.—Cornelius Maffie, Metropolitan theatre, Houston, Tex.

PRESENTATION ACTS—To the Editor: Sirs, will you please let me know where I can get more information concerning "Borodkins Music Guide," you told of in the January 14th issue of Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World? Sincerely—Mrs. Eva Knopp, musical director, Palace theatre, Hoxie, Kans.

Los Angeles Metropolitan

Week Ending March 14

This week's stage presentation of Fanchon & Marco features "Madcap Nellie Kelly," the first "mistress" of ceremonies, and the 22 Ziegfeld Ingenues, who are rightly billed as being "glorified" by Florenz Ziegfeld. This musical show was brought across the entire country from New York for a two weeks' engagement at the Metropolitan.

Nellie Kelly opens the show with an announcement of the presentation of this excellent musical act, their opening number being "Moonlight and Roses," followed by one of the Ingenues in a whistling number.

The next number is 10 girls with saxophones, playing "When I Think of You," followed by a violin number by the entire orchestra playing violins, "The Spanish Dance."

The next was an accordion number, the entire orchestra playing these instruments, "You Don't Like It, Not Much." Very well received.

The harpist of the orchestra next played a medley of Southern songs, accompanied by the other girls, followed by an orchestra number from "The Student Prince."

The 22 Ingenues, all playing banjos, next played "Shaking the Blues," followed by them all shifting to harmonicas to play "Hallelujah," and the entire orchestra playing "Just a Memory."

The charming and peppy Miss Kelly was next on the bill, putting over a song and dance number in an excellent manner, and was well received.

For the closing number of the bill, Madcap Nellie Kelly led the 22 Ingenues in a blue number, "The St. Louis Blues," the various soloists of the orchestra doing their bits on their respective instruments.

Atlanta Howard

Week Ending March 10

The Howard's presentation, "Dixieland," was well received this week. Headlining the bill, Edith Griffith, a dainty miss who has sung before Atlanta audiences several times before, merited the good applause received.

Louella Lee, acrobatic dancer, in her attractive white satin overalls, drew a warm reception.

Joe Penner, the comedian of the show, was well greeted and enjoyed a good hand with his songs, although his appearance went over better than his subject matter.

Bob Morris and Phil Rapp, billed as the natty dance duo, received noteworthy hands for acrobatic dancers.

Larry Lamon, Howard usber, was the recipient of the heartiest encores with his new creation, "Lucky Lindy Strut," which dance is an original specialty.

Tom Mack, temporary Howard bandmaster, filling Ray Teal's place, the latter being called to New York suddenly the middle of last week, is being well received. The Howard orchestra, under his direction and assisted by George Lee Hamrick at the organ, rendered southern melodies.

A chorus of seven girls proved successful in their several numbers.

Dixieland setting, the watermelon, darkeys and et cetera suggestions, lent a charming background for the presentation.

Kansas City Pantages

Week Ending March 10

Ray Huling and Charlie, his trained seal, are featured in the stage program at the Pantages this week. Charlie shows more intelligence than the average run of trained seals, if the appreciation of audiences can be accepted as a barometer.

Charles Russell and Walter Hayes offer an acrobatic act, while Shriner and Gregory are a pair of fair comedians who weren't born yesterday.

Winfred and Mills are a Chinese blackface team and prove to be really funny. "The Spirit of Winter," with Chastine the Great, Zora and Salo offer a novelty act.

The Pantages orchestra, under Louis Charninsky, offered popular numbers as an overture.

Chicago Stratford

Week Ending March 7

Ted Leary, with his usual puns, was the only attraction on the program this week. He received tremendous applause for the best and last number in which he sang, "Keep Sweeping the Cobwebs Off the Moon."

The opening number was by the orchestra playing a selection of classical pieces, bringing in "Barcarole" for their concluding number. The number went over good.

Ted Leary appeared on the stage and introduced Bobby Joyce, who looked to be a collegiate dancer. Bobby gave some exceptionally good steps and was received well.

The two French sisters followed, singing for their first number, "Who's That Knocking at the Door." This number was very poorly sung; neither of them have much of a voice. The better of the two sisters played a clarinet solo. They concluded their act by singing a group of mother songs.

Next was a very beautifully-played piece by the orchestra called "The Beggar." It was very well played and was given an equal amount of applause.

Bobby Joyce followed with another of his trick dances. Leary broke in and introduced Frankie Le Plante and partner who were reported before in this department, and as usual, were given a fair hand.

Then came the best number on the program: Ted Leary sang "Keep Sweeping the Cobwebs Off the Moon." Ted was given a good hand, the orchestra finished the piece in a peppy manner.

Chicago Senate

Week Ending March 11

This week's stage presentation was called "Take It Easy." It featured Al Belasco and his Novelty Syncopators with a cast headed by Dezzo Retter, Jimmy Dunn, Taps and Lubo, Margaret Rickard, and the Gould Dancers. This show was also reported at another house, therefore this report will be brief.

It opened with Al Belasco being held up by Jimmy Dunn and forced to hand over all his ideas and manuscripts of the show. In order to carry on the entertainment he was forced to think up new ideas and this kept up through the entire show.

The next number was performed by the Gould Dancers in which they presented a very clever routine dressed as cops in abbreviated costumes. The music arrangement and various steps made this a novelty.

Al Belasco next stepped up to the footlights to sing a comedy version of "Dolores," a new song, in which he also did some fast eccentric steps to the band's tune of same. As usual Al was accorded a fine reception, proving that he is still very popular with this crowd.

Dezzo Retter was the next one up to the bat in a novelty routine which consisted of comedy talking and acrobatic stunts that occupied the best part of this program. This fellow has been a standard attraction in vaudeville and productions for many years and is a riot in picture houses.

He stopped the show cold at this performance with his comedy antics and pantomime pranks. Picture producers should keep an eye on this fellow, as he is excellent material for comedies.

The next scene had Margaret Rickard attired in beautiful costume, singing "Kaluka," a Hawaiian song, against a beautiful background representing a resort on a Hawaiian beach. During this number the Gould Dancers offered a native routine and also played Hawaiian steel guitars.

The various lighting effects and harmony playing and singing of the Hawaiian number made this a unique flash.

The finale had Taps and Lubo doing a fast routine, while the Gould girls change costumes to decorate level platform above band, forming a beautiful tableau as the balance of the cast was assembled on the stage for the last curtain.

Chicago Oriental Week Ending March 11

The show this week is called "Spring Fever," and opens with Paul Small singing "Then You'll Know That Spring Is Here," before what appears to be a high stone garden wall.

The Abbott Dancers appear on top of the wall, and then climb over to do a good routine. As the girls exit the wall parts in half, each half sliding off through the wings. This reveals the band surrounded by a beautiful garden set.

Ash comes on to lead the band through "Dolores," which is an unusually good number. The band sings it, then Paul Small and Ash sing it. It is a very good number.

Then Jeanne Houston comes on in the comic attire of a country lass, and her high kicking, contortions and dancing are just as good as anyone would want to see. From the huge applause she is forced to give a good encore.

Then, next is Milton Watson singing his songs and Paul Ash playing for him. He sings "I'm in Heaven When I See You Smile," "Among My Souvenirs," and "Dream Kisses." Watson appears to have retained every bit of his popularity, which is enough for anybody. Watson is followed with an unusually good band arrangement of "Did You Mean It When You Said I Love You."

The next number is built around Ginger Roger's act. First Small comes out singing "Tell Me Little Daisy," with Ginger following him out as the Abbott Dancers come on to give a good routine with Paul and Ginger leading. A nice number, it is, with a corking good exit. Ginger returns to sing "I Told Them All About You," and "It's All in the Game." Her patter with Ash brought down the house. She is a clever girl with all the ability to go far in presentations. She could have kept on indefinitely with her fun this night.

Then comes the juvenile Tommy Wonder, who is some dancing wonder. This little fellow almost stops the show. He opens with a good Russian, then a drunk dance, then a ballroom dance in which he uses a dummy girl fastened to his arms and feet. This boy can dance on a par with the best in the business, and with his youth he's a riot.

For the finale, Paul Small and Ginger Rogers and Watson and a young lady come out to sing a beautiful love song. The girls sit in swings and are drawn high above the stage. The others in the cast come out to do a turn as the Abbott Girls, in pretty costumes, mount the raised platform to stand on illuminated pedestals. A very beautiful finale for a fine show.

Chicago Chicago Week Ending March 11

This was truly a Ruth Etting week at the Chicago theatre, and surrounding her was a very meritorious show called "The Blue Plate." The settings and costumes presented a symphony in blue which was a delight to the eyes.

Show opened in front of a scrim with a soprano singing "Two Little Wooden Shoes." With the rising of the scrim, disclosing the orchestra arranged in front of a huge blue plate, the 12 Foster Girls, each carrying two baskets in Dutch fashion, performed a clever dance with a novelty ending that brought down the house. In each basket was an electric bell and the girls played a tune as they danced.

Gordon and King, tap steppers, were given a big hand, especially on their tricky stuff. They're a worthwhile team.

We'll skip a routine by the Foster Girls and get immediately to Miss Etting, who was always good, but is now better. Great, we might say. She handles "Back in Your Own Back Yard," "Way Down South in Heaven," "When You're with Somebody Else" and "Sunshine," like nobody else. She has a sweeter personality than Sophie Tucker and she didn't have to ask for a hand—it just naturally was waiting for her.

Koehler and Edith did some tricky turns on the roller skates. And the audience said "yes" to them in good applause.

For his overture, H. Leopold Spitalny chose the selections of living composers, especially those of Berlin, Gershwin, Friml, Paderewski and Rachmaninoff. Among the selections were "Indian Love Call," "The Melody Lingers On" and "Rhapsody in Blue." The audience thoroughly enjoyed this excellent program.

St. Louis State Week Ending March 9

Ray Mayer, piano comic, had charge of the stage show "Speed," as Teddy Joyce had been transferred to Indianapolis to inaugurate the stage show policy of a Loew house in the Hoosier metropolis. One of the main contributors to the show was Tyler Mason, blackface comedian, in "Smilin' Through Dark Moments," while Edith Evans, blues singer, also proved a prime favorite.

OKMNX! . . . in the Royal Order of our "Friendly Chat Club," that means Greetings! . . . First of all we shall have the roll call and those who are present need not say "yes . . ." but those not here please say so. . . Our secretary, Milton Charles, reports that due to five shows today he is not able to be present, therefore I shall call on Henri A. Keates to read the new membership list. . . Let's go, Henri, old boy. . . Brothers and Sisters on the main floor and in the balcony I am pleased to announce that our club has passed upon the following new members: . . . Ginger Rogers . . . Not bad for a starter, is it Henri? . . . Now, members, I wish to report that the following have sent in requests to join our club. . . Henri will you stand up again and read these letters? . . . You might get a good idea for a solo, too. . . Here goes the works, boys . . . Don Cordon . . . Harry Fink . . . Charles Gregory . . . Billy Pond . . . Charles Irwin . . . George F. Strandt . . . Billy Stevens . . . Hermie King . . . Ralph Hamilton . . . Bill Jacobs . . . Jack Waldron . . . Betty Gould . . . Abe Olman . . . Bernie Grossman . . . Chick Castle . . . Georgie Pincus and Clarence Black. . . Henri says that Harry Robinson approves of these requests. . . Shall we pass on them, folks? . . . All right, Sam Herman, please pass the black and white balls around for votes on these new members. . . While we are waiting for results let us say a few words in reference to the Joe Lewis Benefit to be given by the Chicago Comedy Club on March 29. . . You all know that Joe will never be able to work again, so I implore you as members of the Royal Order of the Friendly Chat Club to lend your help and support in making his future healthful and happy. . . Paul Ash, the sponsor of this testimonial, who will stage the show at the Oriental theatre, Chicago, sends us Lester Steppner to pass among you now with tickets at $5 each and all who wish one or more please hold up your hands. . . Sam Herman reports that there are 33 white balls against 7 black ones, so the new applicants will be considered for entry at our next meeting. . . This meeting is adjourned until next week.

Two well deserving vacationists are Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Crawford, who are leaving New York to spend two weeks in the South. I think, without exception, the Crawfords are the only combination, husband and wife, playing the organ jointly at the same theatre, and in view of this fact, they are well deserving of a heartily earned rest. They will be back in the Paramount theatre in New York after their two weeks' sojourn.

A young chap coming to the fore along Broadway is Charles Maxwell Smith. His arrangements are receiving considerable comment in regard to their merit. He is a stranger in these parts and quite a good deal more will be heard from Smith in the very near future.

Of unusual interest is Jerry Vogel's art gallery. If you don't know Jerry Vogel, you don't know anything about the music business, for Vogel has one of the most colorful personalities and is the buyer for the Plaza Music Jobbers, here in New York. His office is adorned with almost a thousand autographed pictures, among which is one of every notable person connected with the music and theatrical world. You can spend hours looking at these pictures and reading the very interesting autographs, "to Jerry Vogel." I personally would consider his office one of the "show places" in New York.

Another native son from California who has permanently settled himself into the hearts of New Yorkers with his interesting personality, his ability as a musician and his wonderful orchestra, is none other than Arnold Johnson. Playing at the Park Central Hotel, doubling in vaudeville, recording for Brunswick, broadcasting over station WEAF, and the hotel doing a wonderful business, Johnson is rapidly earning the plaudits he so justly deserves. By way of mention, I would add that every member of his thirteen-piece orchestra is gifted with a wonderful voice, and believe me, they use it to good advantage! Another orchestra with this unusual talent is that of Ray Miller's, playing at the Gibson hotel, Cincinnati.

Chicago invaded New York last week in the person of Ben Pollock and his orchestra, who opened up in splendid style at the Little Club, here in New York. Pollock's splendid orchestra and original style should quickly find a welcome here, as they are distinctly different and good. This is the first Chicago outfit to come East in quite a long time, and there is no doubt that Chicago has sent one of their best representatives in Ben Pollock and his orchestra. More power to them!

By far the best of individual musician in the broadcasting field today is Andy Sinella, versatile saxophonist. It is reported that Sinella makes an average of $1,000 per week between his broadcasting dates and his recordings with various orchestras. This, I presume, proves better than anything else the popularity and desire for Sinella as an artist.

Another, almost in as much demand, is Lou Raderman, the temperamental fiddler. Raderman is rather hard to handle, but Oh Boy! How he can play a violin!

One of the toughest assignments that I can possibly conceive of is that of young Eddie Weaver, organist at the Olympia theatre, New Haven. If any of you organists that may be reading this column would stop and consider how critical those Yale college boys are, I would suggest you multiply your consideration by ten, and you still would not be near it. They are the toughest audience in the country to please. For this reason, Eddie Weaver is deserving of the utmost praise, for the Yale students swear by him and treat him as though he were a fraternity brother.

Larry Spier

ORGAN SOLOS

Jim Thomas (Newark Branford) used a novel stunt called "Weather Profits," in which he used "Keep Sweeping the Cobwebs Off of the Moon" as a theme. Reports state that the novelty was one of the best ever presented by this organist as a community solo in which the house sang wholeheartedly. This chap is probably one of the best-liked organists in the East and is quite popular at this house.

Bill Bennett (Chicago Belpark) used a stunt called "Popular Melodies," featuring "Together" as the theme and the following songs, for community singing: "Moonlit Water," "Look at That Baby," "So Tired," "Beautiful," and "A Night in June." As usual, Bennett was highly received for his offering and was compelled to give an encore, which happened to be "An Old Guitar and an Old Refrain."

Henri Keates (Chicago Oriental) calls his organ presentation this week "A Friendly Debate," and plays "Way Down South in Heaven," "We All Scream for Ice Cream," "Souvenirs," "Did You Mean It," and "Dream Kisses." Keates is still popular at the Oriental, as is attested by the way his audience applauds and sings. The slides were unusually good on this one, and made clever use of responsive singing between the opposite sexes.

Edmund Fitch (Chicago Sheridan) calls his organ presentation "Mental Telepathy," and between slides plays for the audience "Did You Mean It," "Let's Kiss and Make Up," "Little Coquette," "There Must Be a Silver Lining" and "My Ohio Home." A Mr. Faxon lends his efforts to Fitch by singing the songs with the organ. His voice has nothing but strength to recommend it, and at times the organ and the singer were putting out all the volume each had. This battle for supremacy failed to lend any particular charm to the affair, but the audience seemed to enjoy it.

Dick Leibert (Pittsburgh Penn) did a descriptive number this week, using as a theme "Capriccio Italiano," which is heard throughout. First a hand organ is heard, the scene then being in Italy, it gets louder and finally full organ is heard, the scene being the children dancing to the hand organ. Vesuvius is erupting and Dick gives a fine imitation of this. The people of the village go to the church to pray, the mountain ceases to erupt, then the hand organ and children dancing again; all this is well described on the organ. A fine hand was received by Dick at the finale, proving that classic solos are appreciated if done properly.

Jesse Crawford (New York Paramount) again officiates at the magnificent Paramount organ, giving a medley of popular selections, among some his own compositions.

Chauncey Haines (Chicago Norshore). This chap inaugurated the organ club idea this week in which by means of slides he requested the audience to become members and to send their requests for any song they wish played. This program consisted of "Beautiful," "Dancing Tambourine," "She Don't Wanna," "Did You Mean It?" and "An Old Guitar and an Old Refrain." He also conducted a contest between Evanston and Rogers Park in which the members engaged in singing "I Gotta' Go Where You Are, Cloh-E," and was compelled to play an encore, which in this case happened to be "Among My Souvenirs."

Doc Webb (Chicago Marshall Square) used a very clever and novel idea as a solo, assisted by Dean Stevenson, the band leader here. The stunt was in the form of a monologue in which the leader tried to sell the organist liability insurance. The various answers lent much comedy to the solo. A number of popular pieces were played.

Milton Charles (Chicago Chicago) the week ending March 11, showed the patrons the versatility of the big Chicago organ. One moment you could imagine yourself in a great cathedral with its sacred music, then in the parlor back home with the little old wheezy organ, then the circus parade with its calliope and last the symphonic orchestra of today. The solo had it humorous moments, it solemn moments and its moments of gaiety. It was a thoroughly enjoyable solo. The numbers used for this program were "The Desert Song," "At Sundown," "Faust" and "Glory to God in the Highest." It was one of the best stunts ever presented by Charles at this theatre.

THE THEATRE

Incorporated in this department of practical showmanship of Exhibitors Herald are the Moving Picture World departments, "Selling the picture to the Public," and "Better Business Builders."

Have You Used Any of These Ideas?

By Will Whitmore

"The Theatre' Reviews Itself," might be a good head for this, for herewith we offer a short resume of the outstanding stories that have appeared in "The Theatre" since the first issue of 1928. Perhaps you have a picture that presents a difficult exploitation angle. Look over this resume, and perhaps you will find just the idea you have been looking for. Stunts used for one picture may give you an idea for use with another. "The Theatre" will from time to time carry such resumes to remind you of what other exhibitors have been doing.

THE January 7 issue stands out in a position all its own, for then it was "The Theatre" made the first announcement of its M. B. I. club. Since then 10 exhibitors have been made members, and their "My Best Ideas" have all been corking good ones. In the same issue there is a story telling how a theatre broke the house record with "Love," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, and another telling how Iowa exhibitors tie up with local newspapers to increase business.

The January 14 issue is second in importance, for it carries the first "My Best Idea," which so effectively started the M. B. I. club on its successful career. There is an idea in this for everyone. Better read it again. And if you haven't played "7th Heaven" yet, there's a good contest exploitation outlined in the same issue.

In the January 21 issue there is started a series of articles on advertising. One exhibitor missed one of these articles and wrote in for us to send him a special copy, saying that the series was so good he could not afford to miss a single article. It might freshen your ideas on advertising to read over the entire series all at once. Then there was a little story calling attention to the fact that Leap Year offers many angles for special exploitations. There might be an idea in this for you.

"Is Your Advertising Like Barnum's?" is the leading story in the January 28 issue. We were proud to carry this story, for it is by an advertising authority and, incidentally, agrees with our ideas on the subject. Also there are two good ads reprinted in the issue that come from the Brockton theatre, Brockton, Massachusetts. The ads are dignified, yet effective. Take a look at them.

Then in the February 4 issue there's a story telling how the Texas theatre increased box office receipts $1,500 a week. That one was a pippin, more than one exhibitor told us. "Los Angeles Ads Are Good Puzzles" is another story, and there is a reproduction of a newspaper page of Los Angeles theatre ads to back up the claim that the ads are more than anything else—good puzzles.

The February 11 issue carries a story about the scrap books of two exhibitors which show that these two men place a great deal of stress on keeping and increasing patrons' goodwill. The "My Best Idea" in this issue has since been copied in a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer press sheet, so it must have been a good one.

In the February 18 issue a pleasant subject was remembered when we carried a story about the way "The Student Prince" was exploited with an old beer wagon in Milwaukee. Even if Milwaukee is no longer loved for its foaming liquid, it is still respected for the good exploitations the theatres put over there. In the same issue there are some photographs of good billboards. And in this issue Joe Mayer started a great controversy that is still raging over who really originated the "No Bull" exploitation. This question promises to raise as much storm as the one as to whether or not Dempsey got a fair decision.

There's a story in the February 25 issue on home talent prologues that might be helpful for you. It tells how Henry Reeve of the Mission theatre, Menard, Texas, has been using prologues successfully for a number of years. Six good ads are also pictured in this issue.

"Publishing the Theatre House Organ," we believe, is one of the best stories "The Theatre" has carried in some time. It was written by Joe Mayer, veteran editor and theatreman. You can't go wrong on what Joe says about house organs. Also, "The Theatre's Advertising Consultation Service" offers a suggestion on layout for weekly ads.

Last week's issue contained a story on how two Milwaukee theatres made a successful drive for new patrons. One theatre increased its Saturday's matinee children's patronage from 45 to 750. There's also a letter from an exhibitor who gives proof of an early use of the "No Bull" stunt.

Now you can go ahead with this issue!

This lobby display helped to draw a two days' capacity business for the Washington theatre, Sherman, Texas, when the theatre played the First National picture, "A Texas Steer," starring Will Rogers. John S. Bonner is manager of the theatre.

Fred Putnam, M. B. I. No. 10, Packs Them in with His "My Best Idea"

This week "The Theatre" celebrates the appointment of its tenth member into the M. B. I. club. The names of the first 10 members are printed herewith. Fred Putnam, the Strand theatre, Port Arthur, Texas, who becomes M. B. I. Number 10, has one of the best "My Best Ideas" thus far published.

"My Best Idea" No. 10

By Fred Putnam

IN reading your latest issue I have come to like the new column introducing the "My Best Idea" club, and I would like to give you my best idea. When I was manager of the Colonial theatre in Richmond, Virginia, Richard Dix in "The Quarterback" was booked.

Well one month ahead I started planning how I could pack them in for one week, so I went first to the best college in town, asked for the Dean, told him that I was setting aside Monday night as Richmond college night and that I would like the student band and chanters to put on a program for me, and explained to him that it was a great football picture.

He had the director of publicity give me a hand and they announced at the assembly that Monday had been set aside as their night and everyone was to attend in a body. Of course I explained to him that I would reserve a section for the students and told him that I would lose money by this as I would have to hold this section vacant for two hours until they were to come at seven. He thought this was great for me to do this and I told him the students had the theatre for that night and they were to furnish the program.

They printed the programs, furnished the pennants and I was to furnish eight passes to the principal officers at the college, also the collegiate band to be admitted to see the picture after the program. Then I went ahead and advertised this in the newspapers and on the screen and front, also decorated front in Richmond college colors, had ushers wearing football suits with the local college colors, and doorman dressed as cheer leader, cashiers with college caps and colors, decorated lobby with footballs, and sporting goods.

On this night the theatre was packed to the doors and over 500 people were turned away on both shows, even some of the college boys who missed cars at the college grounds and got down town late were turned away. Well the program put on consisted of singing of the "Alma Mater," school song, then cheer practice, college tunes by the University band, closing with the football song, "Fight for Old Red and Blue," all standing during this number, then at finish cheers, then all seated and the picture started. This was one of the most awe-inspiring programs ever put on in a Richmond theatre by a college according to the Richmond Times-Dispatch, local morning paper which sent a reporter up to cover this program.

First 10 Members of M. B. I. Club

1. A. D. Baker, Baker theatre, Lockhart, Tex.
2. Louis E. Ramm, Wintergarden theatre, Jamestown, N. Y.
3. John T. O'Rourke, director of advertising and publicity for East Coast Theatres, Philadelphia.
4. Harry F. Storer, Leroy theatre, Pawtucket, R. I.
5. Hoxey C. Farley, city manager of Publix Theatres, Montgomery, Ala.
6. Joe Mayer, Palace theatre, Hamilton, O.
7. Henry Reeve, Mission theatre, Menard, Tex.
8. John J. Scanlon, Palace theatre, Torrington, Conn.
9. Hal G. Olson, director of advertising and publicity, Adler Theatres, Marshfield, Wis.
10. Fred W. Putnam, managing director of the Strand theatre, Port Arthur, Tex.

On the second night another program went on that I had arranged for, this was put on by the local medical students of the Medical College of Virginia. The theatre front, lobby and interior was decorated as on the first night with the student colors, also the theatre personnel, a special section was also reserved for these students, also many were turned away this night as the newspapers stories had helped the mouth to mouth publicity. The medical student program consisted of numbers by their collegiate jazz band and a nurse Charleston dancer in the center of the stage at the opening of this program while the orchestra played, "Barcelona." A dancing skeleton really got a big laugh, and this also got a big story in the afternoon paper which missed out on the other program.

Then Wednesday came the High School, this program included a jazz band, singers, and Charleston and Black Bottom dancers and singing of school songs by the students in the audience. Theatre was also decorated in High School colors on this night and big crowds were turned away.

Thursday was the hated rival of the High School, a Catholic school which was deter-

This Is No "Bull" But It's About the "Bull"

"Came the Dawn," but in this case the dawn is a long time in coming, for we are still in the dark as to who really did originate the "This Is No Bull" exploitation stunt. The controversy still rages, so to speak, for here is a letter from H. A. Chenoweth, Bijou theatre, Uxbridge, Massachusetts, in which use of the stunt is claimed to have been made in 1909.

Editor, "The Theatre."

Dear Sir:

Maybe someone else can beat it, but—well, when I was manager of the Scenic theatre at Quincy, Massachusetts, season of 1909-10, I used a two-year-old heifer to boost the show (not a bull and yet not a cow). And to get still better results we took up all the seats in the theatre and spread four bushels of cornmeal over the floor. We had an orchestra from Boston and held a dance until 4 a. m.

It proved a big turnover for the show and an extra turnover for the dance. My pianist at that time is now in one of the Boston theatres, and one of my ushers then is now one of "Quincy's finest policemen." I think Mr. Frank, the leader of the orchestra, is still in the game. Previous to its being a theatre, the building was a skating rink, so we had a fine floor for them to dance on. And oh, boy, didn't that cornmeal polish that floor.

Yours for sunshine,

H. A. CHENOWETH.

"Who's next?" this gentleman asks in a postscript to his letter, and we, too, are wondering just who will be next in this controversy about the "bull." Did any of you use the "bull" stunt before 1909? If so, let's hear from you.

mined to put on a better program than the High School had and the public knowing this also flocked in to see this program, which included songs, dances, playing music on a saw and cheer practice, theatre carrying out school colors also on this.

No school was obtainable for Friday night so a collegiate orchestra went on gratis for the publicity, knowing what a big help it would mean for them, this night was date night here so the house was also crowded, theatre decorated with all school and college colors.

Saturday night was the biggest night as the Randolph-Macon Glee club was to appear as this is one of the most noted glee clubs in the South under the direction of Mr. Busby. These boys paid their way into town as this college is 16 miles from Richmond, just to show up all the other colleges, and this program proved to be really the best liked of the lot as the Sunday papers were full of praises of this glee club, and this also pulled in another full house.

This best idea of mine that anyone could do just packed the house for one week and was all gratis just for publicity for the colleges and was worked up with the full co-operation of every college. Of course it was plenty hard work and worry for three whole weeks but I at least had the pleasure of knowing that I had at least a good idea that filled 2,200 seats for six nights at 50 cents a throw.

My outside campaign consisted of window displays in four sporting goods stores, 100 one-sheets, three 3-sheets, four 4-sheets, 15 24-sheets, and 100 window cards, also distributed 3,000 heralds at theatre in advance and at colleges, and 500 balloons at grade schools and girls schools.

I have worked lots of better ideas than this but will remember this as "My Best Idea."

Chicago's Latest and Greatest HIT

VERNE BUCK

Irresistible SUNDAE 25¢

Sold Exclusively at ALL ALLIED DRUG STORES

Poster used in an effective tieup by the Sheridan theatre in Chicago with over a hundred drug stores of the Allied Drug Stores. The Verne Buck Sundae is in honor of the popular band leader at the theatre. The posters were displayed in all the stores, and a large amount of publicity resulted. Dave Davidson, publicity director at the theatre, put over the tieup.

Good Tieup Admits All Red Heads Free to See "Red Hair"

When "Red Hair," the Paramount picture starring Clara Bow, was scheduled at the Des Moines theatre in Des Moines, a successful tieup was put on with the Tribune-Capital whereby any red haired girl or woman who would register at the paper and who would drop into the studio for a photograph, would be a guest of the theatre management at an afternoon performance during the showing. Dozens of titian haired women answered the call.

The day the film opened at the Des Moines, the newspaper published a full page of red haired girls' pictures headed by a two column picture of Clara Bow, red haired star. Monday was set as the day for the party. Wise-

Float used by the Palace theatre at the annual home coming festival at Hico, Texas. This festival has become an important event in central Texas, and the Palace, managed by E. H. crackers remarked that they hoped the management would see that there was no cause for the rise of the proverbial red haired temperament and temper! The Redhead club idea proved a winner. This is no new stunt, of course, but it makes a fine tieup for the picture.

Display of War Relics Helps "What Price Glory"

When Guy B. Amis, manager of the Princess theatre, Lexington, Tenn., played "What Price Glory," he secured a window display of war relics that did much to put over the picture. Amis has this to say:

"The display, consisting of such war relics as gas mask, helmet, bayonet, machine gun cartridges, small American and French shells, fragments of shrapnel, German belt buckles, buttons, a collection of old coins, both foreign and American, Kodak pictures made in Germany and France, each article or collection being described briefly on small cards, were placed under a small showcase in the window of the leading ice cream parlor and newsstand of the town. Inside the showcase was placed an amber bulb with flasher button which attracted much attention.

"This helped me to put over a high priced picture in the winter when there is not a mile of hard surface road in the county. In short, it created such interest in the town that many who were never seen in a show came and enjoyed it. Any kind of war relics can be employed in a similar way."

"Love"-Taxi Tieup

When the Valentine theatre, Toledo, Ohio, played the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Love," a tieup was made with the Knight Taxi-cab company whereby every taxi-cab of the company carried a strip on the windshield reading, "The Best Way to Love Is to Take a Knight Cab to Valentine Now." The strips were used a week in advance and during the week of the showing.

"Legionnaires" Tieup

When the Midland theatre, Carthage, Mo., played "Legionnaires in Paris," the mayor of Carthage, at the manager's suggestion, issued an official proclamation asking for new members for the Post. A recruiting office for new members was established in the lobby of the theatre, where Legion members were in attendance daily. The theatre front, lobby and interior were appropriately decked in national colors, six and three and one-sheet cut-outs.

Production Hints from Edward L. Hyman

Managing Director, Mark Strand Theatre, Brooklyn

The presentation feature of the show, which had "Shepherd of the Hills" as the feature photoplay, was "College Days," laid out to run 31 minutes and introducing some 30 people. The feature itself required 1 hour and 18 minutes, and the additional film subject was the Mark Strand Topical Review, which took up 11 minutes. Eight minutes was given to an overture by the Famed Mark Strand Orchestra.

Edward L. Hyman

Rimsky-Korsakow's "Capriccio Espagnole" was the overture, played by the Famed Mark Strand Orchestra, augmented by several instruments from the stage band. The lights were as follows: bridge 1 deep blue flood, full; dome, 2 amber floods on orchestra; white on cue; ceiling spots, 2 light blues and 2 light ambers, and blue borders.

Following the Topical Review came the full stage production, "College Days," with Jerry Sears and the College Band, Arthur Ball, held over from the week before; Miller and Mack, the Frolic Four, the Freshmen Five and Ten Dancing Girls. The stage band was seated on a platform with checkered music stands, and backed up by a silk cyclorama, in front of which were hung 15-foot pennants of various colleges. Borders of smaller pennants completed the setting. Band was dressed in collegiate manner and opened with a medley of college tunes to which the girls did a college dance, or parade, previous to the business of going through a football game. This game was a novelty dance arranged by the ballet mistress, Sonia Serova.

Then came the Freshmen Five wheeling out one of the toy pianos seen so frequently in presentations. These 5 boys did some close harmony and finished up by tugging their miniature music box off the stage at the end of a huge rope to strains of "The Volga Boatmen." The Frolic Four, young men in gray trousers and blue blazer coats, opened up with a novelty dance, in which walking sticks played an important part. Two of the boys then came back for a duet dance and they in turn gave way to the remaining two, who did a comedy eccentric. Then all four came back for a comedy dance as a closer.

Arthur Ball then came on to sing "The Best Things in Life," after which he announced that the dancing girls would give their impression of the orchestra leader conducting the stage band. Twelve girls, with their backs to the audience and batons in their hands, went through a novelty dance arranged by Johnnie Martin and which gave the impression that the girls were directing the band.

Then followed a medley of college airs by the orchestra, the selection being announced by means of the checkered stands, which opened to reveal the title. Selections included Yale, Harvard, Army, Navy, Princeton, Georgia Tech, Columbia and N. Y. U.

Miller and Mack, programmed as "The College Fashion Plate," then came on for their comedy dance and patter. Following them the ensemble did a college yell and closed with the "Varsity Drag."

"RED HAIR"

By T. O. Service

I HEREWITH give the little lady a big hand. The little lady being Clara Bow and the reason for the applause being "Red Hair." There's a picture!

What it's all about is more or less unimportant, but it's about the best little picture in recent months. It's at least the best picture Miss Bow has had, and I understand that her other things have been pretty well thought of. If "It" was a wow and "Hula" a knockout, "Red Hair" is a screech. Here's my vote.

It seems the little lady in the story has been manicuring the barber shop into the profit column for quite a spell—taking the customers for an occasional diamond pin, silk ensemble or riskwatch the while—when the real boy friend steps into the picture under auspices of three aging guardians who figure, unhappily, in the list of those who've been taken. What to do seems to be difficult enough for an ordinarily disposed young woman of manicuring tendencies but not difficult at all for the red-haired person in question. And so she pursues her taking ways, a sincere reformation being quite logically misinterpreted, and ends by taking the quartet not only completely but with the sanction of each and every member. All this without loss of a laugh and with a steadily increasing tempo toward the close of the cantata. Excellent stuff.

I'm glad to see Miss Bow in this sort of occupation. The story differs from most of her previous starts in that it really is a story. The people in it do things, and do them with reason. The little lady herself is such a manicurist as might be found in almost any barber shop and does the things such a manicurist might do. The three guardians are humanly ridiculous and the boy friend is a quite normal young fellow who might do about what he does. It's all very satisfying.

I get the idea that more than the accustomed amount of thought preceded the making of the picture and that more than accustomed care was exercised in its manufacture. I believe the result is the best possible argument for continuation of this policy.

"ROSE MARIE"

THERE is a tradition in Chicago which says that a picture placed in the Oriental theatre may be regarded with certain suspicions. The tradition has ground in old assertions that people who go to that place go there to see Paul Ash and not to see motion pictures. I've felt for some time that the tradition is phoney and now that I've seen "Rose Marie" at the Oriental I'm sure of it. For "Rose Marie" is as good a picture as I expect to see at this or any other theatre at this or any time.

"Rose Marie," is, as you know, a picturization of a musical show. (Perhaps operetta is a better description, but that's unimportant.) As you must know, also, picturizations of musical shows usually turn out rather badly. Most of these yarns lack the body required for picturization. Not so "Rose Marie." This story has plenty of body and it makes excellent pastime.

Joan Crawford is the girl in "Rose Marie" and the cast is a large and capable one. House Peters is the N. W. M. P., and it's good to see him back in uniform, Creighton Hale, a little heavier than I remember seeing him, George Cooper, with little chance for display of his characteristic humor, Polly Moran, briefly emphatic, James Murray, suavely competent, and Gibson Gowland, malevolently memorable, are active performers of the piece. The orchestra, if it's a good orchestra, does a lot for the story by playing the right numbers at the right time.

I should have said, had I been asked, that I had long since seen more than enough French-Canadian stories. Surely I've seen a million. But this is not one too many, for it is a good picture on its own and would be as good, I think, if it were laid in Samoa, Timbuctoo or Peru, Indiana. Locale is not important if there be more than locale to the picture in question.

"NAMELESS MEN"

THERE'S nothing like melodrama, as someone once said, for what ails you. I was ailing a bit on Saturday night when I went to see "Nameless Men" and I am happy to report that I was quite cured when the last shot had been fired (figuratively) and the various entanglements were all untangled and everybody had received their just deserts. That is the sort of picture "Nameless Men" is and Antonio Moreno is the forthright gentleman who keeps up full steam ahead from the first scene to the last.

It seems a bank has been robbed and the booty hidden, one of the robbers being safely penned up in a quite serviceable jail for a two year stretch. As a part of his job, Moreno is put in to share the robber's cell for the last six months of his sentence and comes out with the confidence of the gang. The next thing is to locate the hidden loot and get it. This involves plenty of difficulties and there are struggles, battles, fake fire alarms and what not. And I believe the money is recovered, too, although the love theme clicks at about the same time and I'm not quite sure on this point.

Anyway, "Nameless Men" is a melodrama, straightaway and lively, with the additional asset of humor here and there in its unreeling. Moreno, of course, is Moreno.

"CONEY ISLAND"

I HAVE always had a weakness for pictures about Coney Island. This one is very much about it, although it gets deeper into the life of the big playground than most of the stories about it do. In fact, it seems to do a pretty good job of telling the world what sort of people these are who keep a big playground like this running. That's a pretty important thing to tell.

Lois Wilson, the girl in the case, sell tickets for the Giant Dipper, owned and operated by Tammany something-or-other, who loses faith in Lois and interest in his battle with the opposition at about the same—and the wrong—time. It seems there's a scrap about concessions or something (it's never made very clear) and the party of the second part is not averse to wrecking the park or what have you. All, of course, very seriously and very importantly as concerns the welfare and happiness of the principals in the picture.

Miss Wilson is, of course, worth a picture any time. This is no exception. And the picture does tell the story it sets out to tell and did make me feel well satisfied with the hour I spent looking at it. Also, it makes me request that more pictures telling the behind-the-scenes story of Coney Island and its sister institutions be manufactured forthwith.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT

THE report for this week is different. The sun, missing since some time in January, has reappeared in Chicago and the various patients whose illnesses have dampened the aspect of this column these several weeks are all well and happy again. (So'm I.)

NEW PICTURES

In "New Pictures" the EXHIBITORS HERALD and MOVING PICTURE WORLD presents in concise form information on current and forthcoming attractions.

The facts as presented will serve exhibitors in booking and in the preparation of their advertising campaigns.

BRONCO STOMPER, THE: Pathe Western, with Don Coleman, Ben Corbett, Eugenia Gilbert, Frank Clark, Florence Lee, Tom London, Miles "Bud" Osborne, Frederick Dana and Whitehorse. Directed by Leo D. Maloney. Length, 5,410 feet.

TYPE AND THEME: Richard Thurston rides in to enter the rodeo contests. Riggs, rodeo chairman, and Slim Garvey, his confederate, and a rider plan to split the proceeds of betting on Slim. Slim and Dick catch bet $500, then Riggs rules Dick out of the contest. Dick rescues Daisy Hollister at a river fording and Slim steals the money Daisy is bringing to renew the lease on her father's land. Hollister gives Dick a job, making him eligible for the rodeo. Then Riggs plants Daisy's purse in Dick's room and brings the sheriff, but Dick escapes, wins the rodeo, turns up the crooks and wins Daisy.

FORBIDDEN HOURS: M-G-M drama, with Ramon Novarro, Renee Adoree, Shirley O'Hara, Roy D'Arcy, Edward Connelly, Dorothy Cumming and Alberta Vaughn. Directed by Harry Beaumont. Released January 7.

TYPE AND THEME: It is a colorful romance of a modern European court. Novarro has the role of a young king who is in love with Miss Adoree, but for reasons of state and because of court intrigues he is forced to marry Miss O'Hara, who has the part of a princess of another land. Highlights include a great royal wedding in a cathedral and replicas of elaborate court functions.

KICK-OFF, THE: An Excellent Pictures Corporation comedy-drama, with football—as you have guessed—as the real "kick." George Walsh is starred, with the support including Leila Hyams, Bee Amann, Earl Larimore, W. L. Thorne, Joe Burke and Jane Jennings. Written, produced and directed by Wesley Ruggles.

TYPE AND THEME: It's a story of rivals—rivals for the love of a girl and for the quarterback job on the college team. First George rescues her when his rival tries to press his suit with too much liquid reinforcements. Then at college George wins the quarterback berth, after which many things happen. Liquor is planted in his locker. Then a telegram stating his mother is ill lures him home on the eve of the game. But he gets back in time to save the game and get his mother's kiss—and the girl's, while the defeated rival confesses his duplicity.

MAD HOUR: First National drama, with Sally O'Neil, Alice White, Donald Reed, Larry Kent, Lowell Sherman, Norman Trevor, Eddie Clayton, James Farley, Rose Dione, Tully Marshall, Margaret Livingston, Jack Eagan, Kate Price, Mary Foy and Iona Holmes. Directed by Joseph C. Boyle.

TYPE AND THEME: Cuddles, a flapper, becomes married at a gin-party to Jack, who is immediately disinherited. They accept the hospitality of Joe Mack and Cuddles starts delivering jewels stolen by Mack's gang. Jack deserts her and she goes to prison where her child is born. Her marriage is annulled and the baby is taken away from her. She returns from prison in time to see Jack marry another. She hears the baby cry, but Jack's father convinces her she is unworthy to keep the child. She gets into the car and drives it headlong over a cliff.

MIDNIGHT MADNESS: Pathe-De Mille drama, with Jacqueline Logan, Clive Brook, Walter McGrail, James Bradbury, Oscar Smith, Vadim Uraneff, Louis Natheaux, Clarence Burton, Virginia Sayle, Frank Hagney and Emmett King. Directed by F. Harmon Weight. Length, 5,659 feet.

TYPE AND THEME: Action is the keynote. Norma, whose father is disolute, is employed by the Childers & Strong diamond brokerage firm. Childers, though married, takes unusual interest in Norma. He wants some important information regarding diamond mines of Bream, who proposes to her and is accepted. They wed. The next day Bream hears a remark from Childers to Norma which disillusiones him, though Childers does not know of the marriage. They sail for Africa in a state of estrangement and despite the squalid surroundings which are a nightmare to Norma, Bream succeeds in winning her love for him alone.

MIDNIGHT ROSE: Universal drama, with Lya de Putti, Kenneth Harlan, Henry Kolker, Lorrimer Johnston, George Larkin, "Gunboat" Smith, Wendell Phillip Franklin, and Frank Brownlee. Directed by James Young. Released February 26. Length 5,689 feet.

TYPE AND THEME: Tim Regan, gangster, reforms and wants his sweetheart, Midnight Rose, cabaret dancer in the place of Corbin, politician, to join him. Tim's pal, dying, asks him to take care of his son, and Tim convinces Rose to marry him so that the boy will have a mother. Rose in a fit of temper returns to the cabaret life, and then Tim goes back to the underworld. Corbin frames Tim into prison. Rose realizes her love for Tim and tries in vain to kill herself. Her child is born, but is taken away by the court. Then Corbin reforms and the family is reunited.

PHANTOM FLYER, THE: Universal thriller with Al Wilson, Lillian Gilmore, Buck Conners, Billy "Red" Jones, Don Fullen, Myrtis Crinley, Mary Cornwillis and Larry Steers. Directed by Bruce Mitchell. Released February 26. Length, 4,253 feet.

TYPE AND THEME: Julia Hart, cattle owner, causes trouble for James Crandall over water rights; Dick Staunton, border air patrol, becomes infatuated with Crandall's daughter Mary. Julia hires a gang to wipe out the Crandall ranch, but they are thwarted. Staunton fights Julia's foreman who decides to kidnap the entire Crandall family. He forces Crandall to sign a quit-claim deed. He escapes in Julia's airplane, forcing Mary to go with him. Dick follows and the pursuit is the biggest thrill of the picture.

SOMETHING ALWAYS HAPPENS: Paramount farce, with Esther Ralston, Neil Hamilton, Sojin, Charles Sellon, Roscoe Karns, Lawrence Grant and Mischa Auer. Director and author, Frank Tuttle. Released March 24.

TYPE AND THEME: Diana, American girl in England, is driven to desperation by the tedium at the home of Roderick, Lord Keswick, her fiance. Roderick's father shows her the Rochester ruby which is to be hers after the wedding. She learns that Chang-Tzo, Chinese outlaw, is after the ruby. Diana and Roderick start for London to place the ruby in safe-keeping. The car becomes lost in the rain. Roderick goes to a deserted house to ask for information, and when he fails to return she follows. She has excitement aplenty in the haunted house. She finds out that Roderick had staged this to give her thrills, but Roderick gets the surprise of his life as well when Chang-Tzo and his gang fail to call a halt. The fights and battle with ghosts end when the constables capture the bandit gang.

TRICK OF HEARTS, A: Universal Western, with Hoot Gibson, Georgia Hale, Joe Rickson, Rosa Gore, Howard Truesdale, Heinie Conklin, George Ovey, Nora Cecil, Dan Crimmins and Grace Cunard. Directed by Reaves Eason. Released March 18. Length, 5,495 feet.

TYPE AND THEME: The women of Manville manage to elect a feminine mayor and sheriff. Ben Tully, engaged to Connie Meade, niece of the woman sheriff, schemes to get the jobs back for the men by staging fake robberies. Carrie Patience, the sheriff, sees through them. Black Jack, a criminal, though Ben doesn't know it, is asked by the latter to help them in their fake holdups. Black Jack instead kidnaps Connie. Ben, dressed in woman's clothing, rescues her and frees all the women who have been taken by Black Jack's bandits.

YOUR WIFE AND MINE: Farce comedy by Excellent Pictures, with Phyllis Haver, Stuart Holmes, Wallace MacDonald, Katherine Lewis, Barbara Tennant, Blanche Upright, Jane Lufboro, Jay Emmet. Directed by Frank O'Connor. Released September 1. Length, 5,867 feet.

TYPE AND THEME: A married man is host to his brand-newly married attorney friend and tells the latter he has arranged a prison break for a girl who is to return him a big sum of money. He says the attorney must help him get it. The girl escapes, only to conceal herself in the host's mansion. There is a chase, with the police much in evidence, and the next day the two husbands go "to the big city" to collect the money. Their white lies fail to stick with the wives and the latter go to find out for themselves. They become involved as well in a faint intrigue and all wind up in a police court, with the girl-prisoner and her shifty husband. Finally the host clears them all.

This Week's Press Sheet

ALEX THE GREAT (F B O Comedy drama): Following is a suggested letter for your mailing list: "Dear Sir: Selling is the backbone of your business. The more you know about selling, the faster your business is bound to grow. Think of a novice selling 50 big auto trucks at one clip. In the movies they do it. Yes, they do it. At least that's what Alex does in 'Alex the Great.' This picture is due to romp across the screen of the theatre for days, beginning next For Skeets Gallagher as 'Alex the Great' has some brand new nifties on selling to show you. Wise-cracking Alex will have you on your ear, holding your sides with laughter, howling with glee as he treads the path of the dotted line to the buyer's signature. If he doesn't sell you a flock of laughs it will only be because you're not there. Can you afford to pass up this laugh-investment? Your doctor says 'No'—if he knows anything of what a tonic a good hearty laugh is. Yours truly, Manager."

Tie-up with your bookshops in town and have them make a window display of "The Book of Etiquette" as well as the works of H. C. Witwer and use the following cards for this stunt in the windows together with stills of "Alex the Great" and window cards: "Buy 'The Book of Etiquette' and don't make the error 'Alex the Great' makes in the uproarious comedy feature at the theatre (Date)."

Tie-up with your local department stores that deal in infants outfits. Advise them that "Alex the Great" is coming to town and that in connection with this picture you are going to invite all the mothers of new-born babies whose children are named "Alex" as guests of your theatre.

Tie-up with your men's clothing store, and following is the type of ad his solicitors can submit to the people: "'Alexander the Great' was the greatest military leader of history! 'Alex the Great' at the (Theatre) greatest laugh-leader on the screen. (Merchant's name) greatest style leader on men's clothing in (Name of Your Town)."

Incorporated in this department of Moving Picture World is the Exhibitors Herald department, "Available Attractions."

The key to abbreviations used in denoting the type of picture:

- C—Comedy
- D—Drama
- R—Romance
- F—Farce
- M—Melodrama
- W—Western

My—Mystery

Where the picture is a comedy-drama, comedy melodrama, etc., there is a combination of these abbreviations. Stars denote reissues.

The dates prior to January 7 published under the "Review" column are those of the issues of Moving Picture World in which the pictures were reviewed. LETTERS From Readers

A forum at which the exhibitor is invited to express his opinion on matters of current interest. Brevity adds forcefulness to any statement. Unsourced letters will not be printed.

Looks Like a Big Party

ALEXANDRIA, MINN.—TO THE EDITOR: I certainly was pleased to see the views of our lakes, etc., as published in the February 4 issue, and wish to state here that there have been several who became very much interested in the meet here this summer after reading the few lines beneath the views.

Among the many who are to be here, George A. Maloney of the Ritz, Kansas City, Mo., seems to be most enthused, but he knows what we have, and after the rest of the gang have been here once, you would have a hard time keeping them from coming back the next year. Also, they would bring others with them; the fish stories they could relate, and of course the snapshots of the catches to corroborate their statements, would convince them they have been missing a lot of life by not coming here.

We have over 200 lakes in this county with plenty of bass, pike, pickerel, crappies and various other species of the funny tribe, for all.

Among those to be present, from all indications now, we can list Crockett Brown, George A. Maloney, Benfield of Morris, Minn., Andy Anderson of Detroit Lakes, Minn., J. C. Jenkins, Sprague, the Rabbi, and Tragsdorf, undoubtedly, and say, if that gang doesn't look like the real thing I miss my guess.

This is just a starter, and when we get the balance of the letters, you'll no doubt find Will Rogers and many of the big stars registered and reservations made.

I can promise plenty of hotel room among the eight or 10 big hotels on the different lakes, if you will get your reservations in early.

I expect J. C. will be able to strum a Spanish Fandango for us after his roundup on the border, and with Phil, Meyers, Tom Foster and Mickey Larson doing the quartette harmony, we should not be short of entertainment.

Patiently I'll wait for further enrollments. Let's have some from the studios on each coast, stars, producers, directors, some from the HERALD-WORLD, the News, Brevity (by the way, let's entice those laugh getters), and maybe Pete Harrison will come. Nuff for this time. Yours truly.—H. J. LONGAKER, State theatre, Alexandria, Minn.

The Chautauqua Thing

GREENSBURG, KAN.—TO THE EDITOR: I just finished reading letters from readers in your HERALD AND WORLD of February 18 and there was something in each one of them that prompted me to write a line. First, Mrs. L. L. Netzer's letter concerning the advertising on the front cover of the HERALD of recent date. M-G-M putting over the idea that exhibitors could afford to get good and boiled, because they had a M-G-M contract. I heartily agree with Mrs. Netzer and others who have written on this matter, that we do not need that kind of advertising for our business. While that ad was just before the exhibitors and others interested in the business and not before the public in general, yet, that kind of stuff is what makes it sometimes hard for the exhibitor to get by and put over the idea that the show business is an honorable business and entitled to as much consideration as any other business. Yet I don't censure M-G-M for this ad in question. Some individual wrote the copy and thought it was a masterpiece, not knowing how few there were that would really think it clever. I differ with Mrs. Netzer in one way, I am a prohibitionist, but why bring that up.

I heartily agree with P. G. Held of Griswold, Ia. We do not need smut to put a picture over. The clean pictures are the ones that register the best with us. I like pictures with clever situations and some spice, but real smut is unnecessary. Let's have them clean.

Just a word to the exhibitor who is in trouble over the Chautauqua thing. Far be it from me to try to tell the other fellow how to run his business but I am going to tell the brother or sister how I manage it. We have a free Chautauqua each year, generally a six day thing. The people of the town and community dig up the necessary money to put the chautauqua over making it free to everyone to attend without any admission. Well, I just kick in my part, join up with the rest of the community of which I consider myself a part and we put it over with a bang. When it comes I cancel out pictures, close the house and take a week's vacation. When I come back I feel better and people are hungry for pictures and I more than make it up.

I always try to hit them with a big special just before the chautauqua, and one just after. It's free, they haven't spent any money to attend and if it isn't free they have bought their tickets in advance so they don't notice it so much. I have found the biggest thing in the world to buck is public opinion and I find the public want chautauquas no matter how rotten they are. By doing this I keep the good will of all and I think that is worth a great deal. Besides, one needs at least a week's rest in a year. By keeping the good will of the people in general I have been successful in keeping out tentshows as I have the support of the city council and I have the first local minister to knock the show yet, and I have been in the show here 12 years.

This is just a wide place in the road about 800 inhabitants, and 400 retired farmers if you know what that means to a town, yet I think it's the best town in he world.

In closing let me say I have just closed the best year I have ever had. I have a M-G-M contract which I think a whole lot of. Some others just as good perhaps, but I haven't got good and boiled yet. Don't think I shall.—C. A. SPAINHOUR, Twilight theatre, Greensburg, Kan.

On, Wisconsin!

NEILLSVILLE, WIS.—TO THE EDITOR: After the fine invitation which was extended to the entire HERALD-WORLD exhibitor family by H. J. Longaker of the State theatre of Alexandria, Minn., to convene at his place for an exhibitor confab some time next summer, and after viewing those pictures in the HERALD-WORLD of February 4, I thought that at least a coupla hundred exhibits would have enrolled before now, but they are probably busy thinking about their taxes and how many more tons of coal they will need before spring.

As an alibi for myself, I must confess that I conceived the dizzy idea of spending the winter in my old haunts down in Panama fishing Spanish mackerel, red snapper and tarpon, but at the last moment my plans went haywire, which accounts for me sitting here shoveling snow and coal and listening to the so-called conversations of the film hounds.

"J. C." has named quite a number of exhibitors at various times in his column who he expects to be at the meeting. However, the good exhibitors whose names were not mentioned should not take offense at that.

For a starter, we should set tentative dates. Our bass season does not open in Wisconsin until June 20, and as Minnesota's is probably the same, it would not do to have our convention before that date. How about the last week in June, say, from Tuesday the 26 to Friday the 29? That should give the exhibits from even the outermost fringes of the states plenty of time to make their preparations, as well as our friends across the sea down in Australia, as well as R. R. Temple of Ludlow over in Merrie Old England. These latter should, however, be cautioned that this grand and glorious country of ours is now as dry as bone and that the water which used to run under bridges, and was used to bathe in, row on and pull fish out of, is now used for drinking purposes only.

If that old Land Crab Jenkins doesn't stop picturing me as always running around looking for a corkscrew, I will crown him at the convention. I want him to understand that I give benefits for the W. C. T. U. and am president of the Society for the Prevention of Smut.

Well, boys, get your name in at once so the HERALD can list us and so Mr. Longaker will know how many of us to expect.—WM. E. TRAGSDORF, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.

P. S.—In this week's issue I see that Service thinks there is something wrong in the fact that he has nothing of Lindy in the News Reels. Well, well. There has hardly a week passed since Lindy jumped off from Washington last December that I have not shown him and his travels in the Pathe News (Odd Number). Tell "T. O." that if he patronized first class theatres that show the Pathe News he could keep up with current events, as depicted in a first class News Reel. Oh! Oh!

"Knee Deep in June"

SALMON, IDAHO.—TO THE EDITOR: Hello, you gay and festive boosters of that Alexandria, Minn., love feast, slated for "Knee deep in June" or thereabouts. What's the great idea in dragging me out of my hole, up over 10,000 feet of mountains across the bad lands of Dakota to shoot a little pill with a hickory club?

Can't you boys offer something wherein I can get a look. The last time I played golf was the day of Eagle Eye Joe's birth and it was out at Oconomowoc, Lake Forest, or some darned club on the North Side of Chicago that boasted of a pond. I drove, mashed, niblicked and did every other kind of a Scotch thing, trying to clear that peaceful little bit of water but some siren escaped from the Lorelei stronghold must have dwelt beneath, hypnotizing me every time I went to bat. I'll bet there are 50 balls with my initials on them down in the bottom. No sir—no golf in mine unless there is a bottle of Milwaukee's best Budweiser as a consolation prize—that, I think, might console me!

I will take on, though, any exhibitor my weight, age or size in tennis, though I haven't slashed an ace since I broke my back attempting same some 15 years ago; but if any of you fellows think you can lick me, step right up and plank down your money on the counter.

We might have a ball game and I speak for first base but Jay Shreck or Bill Weaver will have to run for me, my legs gave out long ago when I first came to Idaho and wandering in the hills met a band of painted Indians on the war path.

However, I have to know what the gang is going to do before I sign up, because if any exhibitor thinks that I'm going to any camp meeting doings and sing psalms, then his brain is missing in a couple of cylinders. So get your program going and let's see how it looks.

Do we take our wives or just a toothbrush? —PHILIP RAND, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

Verdicts on Films in Language of Exhibitor

Copyright, 1928

Incorporated in this original exhibitors report department of Exhibitors Herald, which was established October 14, 1916, is the Moving Picture World department, "Straight from the Shoulder Reports."

F B O

FRECKLES: Hobart Bosworth—90%. This is sure a fine little program picture. Hobart Bosworth and John Fox give some very fine acting. It will please. Seven reels.—J. Rinhart, Majestic theatre, Stuttgart, Ark.—General patronage.

THE GINGHAM GIRL: Lois Wilson—15%. February 15. Very good show for any audience and if all FBO's are as good as this one, there should be no trouble in business getting better as pictures like this send them home happy and thinking of coming back soon. Seven reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

RANGER OF THE NORTH: Ranger—50%. February 25. All the world loves a dog, and here is the greatest of them all. If this one don't make them stand on their tiptoes and cheer, I will eat your old hat. Five reels.—A. K. Haynes, Community theatre, Razor, Tex.—General patronage.

RACING ROMEO: Red Grange—90%. February 17-18. A good auto race. Many thrills, good acting, beautiful scenery. It is sold as a special, it will go over fine if your patrons like auto racing. I had to buck basket-ball tournament, but got by. Did not make any money. No fault of the picture. Seven reels.—B. A. Butler, Elite theatre, Arlington, S. D.—General patronage.

RACING ROMEO: Red Grange—February 7-8. School sure ate this up and second night showed fine increase at the box office. Six reels.—E. A. Emmert, Emmert theatre, Alcester, S. D.—General patronage.

DRIFTING SANDS: Bob Steele—15%. February 8. Very good Western and Bob sure is a good player, only the director made a mistake by letting him fight such a bunch of outlaws that one grab of the outlaw would just smash Bob. But he fought them all and came out a winner. He may be a good fighter but the big fellows on the opposite side make it impossible and that leaves a poor taste in patron's mouths when they leave the theatre. Five reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

BULLDOG PLUCK: Bob Chester—30%. This is a fair Western of the cheaper type. If Bob would only spend the money to make first-class Westerns he could be among the first rate stars. His acting always good but cheapness of production spoils everything. Five reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

SILVER COMES THROUGH: Fred Thomson—38%. December 23-24. A good Western with Fred and Silver doing their stuff as usual. Should be played in every small town theatre. Six reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

SILVER COMES THROUGH: Fred Thomson—35%. This is just fair with poor photography in a greater part of the picture due to using Agfa German stock film on which to print the film. It is a racing story and of course Silver wins the race, saving the ranch. Edna Murphy plays the feminine lead to advantage and would say it is pretty fair if your patrons like Thomson. Six reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

SILVER COMES THROUGH: Fred Thomson—One of the best Thomson's we have run. We are anxious to sample some of Fred's product which is being released by Paramount. We appreciate the clean type of Western pictures this star makes. Six reels.—J. D. Hall, Legion theatre, Gann Valley, S. D.—General patronage.

Editor's Note

Percentage ratings given by exhibitors in reports to this department are obtained in the following manner: Average daily gross of picture reported is divided by average daily gross of picture holding house record to determine relative box office value in terms of percentage.

EXAMPLE: $75 (average daily gross of picture reported) divided by $100 (average daily gross of picture holding house record) equals .75 (percentage rating given picture in report).

When a picture has received percentage ratings in 10 reports it is entered in THE BOX OFFICE TICKER column of "Quick Reference Picture Chart." This rating will appear in a forthcoming issue of the HERALD-WORLD.

MOULDERS OF MEN: Special cast—20%. This is well produced and is good entertainment. However does not draw well. FBO deals fairly and supplies good prints so we overlook quite a few shortcomings. Frankie does some good acting that will appeal to kids. Seven reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

ARIZONA NIGHTS: Fred Thomson—20%. February 10-11. This was a dandy Western and good all the way through. Well, it is the last one of FBO for me with Thomson. Next will be a Paramount and as we hear the reports are not very favorable. It's just too bad to see you go to those big producers to be killed, Fred, but I am with you if you make good. Six reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION: Special cast—30%. February 24. To anyone that could tell what it was all about it must have pleased them. It is big and fine and mysterious. Played as a program.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

SPLITTING THE BREEZE: Tom Tyler—40%. February 3-4. A very good Western but not up to the Tyler standard. Didn't please as well as others that we have played. Showed two nights to small houses, but at that came out a little to the good. Five reels.—W. C. Snyder, Cozy theatre, Lamont, Okla.—General patronage.

GALLOPING THUNDER: Bob Custer—30%. February 17-18. Another Custer picture that was good and satisfied the majority of Western fans. Played two nights to very small houses but came out a little to the good at that. This is our last one on contract, and will say that all have been very good. Five reels.—W. C. Snyder, Cozy theatre, Lamont, Okla.—General patronage.

THE MAGIC GARDEN: Margaret Morris—34%. February 20-21-22. This is a good picture and every exhibitor should show it. I was late in showing it as I should have shown it almost a year ago. Played three nights to very small houses, and didn't take in only about enough to pay film rental. It seems that people here are not interested in pictures of this class and can't get them out. Seven reels.—W. C. Snyder, Cozy theatre, Lamont, Okla.—General patronage.

THE MAGIC GARDEN: Special cast—This didn't do as much business as "Laddie" but it is well worth playing as it will send your patrons away satisfied. It is sure to please almost 100 per cent. Seven reels.—E. C. Bays, Globe theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

THE MAGIC GARDEN: Special cast—This picture went over very well. It has strong drawing power due to its national popularity. Pictures of this type shown at intervals add dignity to any theatre. Seven reels.—J. D. Hall, Legion theatre, Gann Valley, S. D.—General patronage.

CONY ISLAND: Lois Wilson—February 5. This picture is big. One of the best I ever ran. It starts with a bang and holds out the seven reels without a dull spot. And this girl with the black hair that does the big dance, you would like to take her out to supper. FBO has extra good pictures this year. Seven reels.—Milo Owens, Garrick theatre, Milan, Mich.—General patronage.

AFLAME IN THE SKY: Special cast—February 24-25. This is excellent and a decided novelty. It's a mixture of Western and aviation, packed with action and many unusual situations. The big climax is where the aviator calls for assistance by writing the word "help" in the sky with gas from his exhaust. Drew excellent business for this time of the year. Six reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

THAT MAN JACK: Bob Custer—The daredevil of the screen in his latest thriller and always brings the house down. Our fans like Bob and he gives them lots of action. Five reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

RED RIDERS OF CANADA: Patsy Ruth Miller—February 25-26. Well liked by all patrons. Seven reels.—D. J. Donovan, Donovan theatre, Hecla, S. D.—General patronage.

A COLLEGE BOOB: Lefty Flynn—A nice story of college life. Was well liked and well received. Paper on this is good. Five reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

LEGIONNAIRES IN PARIS: Cooke-Guard—February 17-18. We saw this picture and enjoyed it and it seemed like the audience did. We, therefore, stepped on it a little heavier than usual but got no big results. Generally at our place they didn't seem to care for it. We hardly know what they do want or like any more. They are getting extra critical. Six reels.—Chancellor Bros., Ritz theatre, Arcanum, O.—Neighborhood patronage.

LEGIONNAIRES IN PARIS: Special cast—February 26-27. A good comedy, clean and all right but not as good as painted. Despite of working with the Legion on it, business was rotten. Seven reels.—H. M. Face & Sons, Star theatre, Nashville, Mich.—Small town patronage.

WIZARD OF THE SADDLE: Buzz Barton—February 18. An excellent Western. Buzz draws the kids. Five reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

WIZARD OF THE SADDLE: Buzz Barton—February 24-25. If you want a good one, Buzz is a good bet. If you run more than one night, you will make good gain at the box office. Five reels.—E. A. Emmert, Emmert theatre, Alcester, S. D.—General patronage.

LONE HAND SAUNDERS: Fred Thomson—Strike another for Fred and Silver King. Thomson is a real Western star and can always be depended upon. Five reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

JAKE THE PLUMBER: Special cast—About as poor a length of celluloid as FBO has ever ground out of their mill. Lots of humor, yes, but not in the picture. The joke was on us. Vaudeville after the picture is all that kept them from walking out. Six reels.—H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U theatre, Melville, La.—General patronage.

THE OUTLAW DOG: Ranger—Good canine picture with the tail wagging star doing some things very unusual for a dog. Lots of comedy supplied by the negro made the house whoop. In fact, the colored man, Spencer Bell, saved the picture from falling into "just another dog feature." Rex Lease and the girl okay, too. Good photography all the way.—H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U theatre, Melville, La.—General patronage.

THE OUTLAW DOG: Ranger—February 11. This is one of the best dog pictures I ever saw. The dog and negro are the whole show. When they are so good, you don't need any more stars. Five reels.—Milo Owens, Garrick theatre, Milan, Mich.—General patronage.

THE TEXAS TORNADO: Tom Tyler—February 25. This boy has no wonder horse, but he is an actor and a scrapper and most generally in a strong story. Western folk like him fine. FBO has another one in Bob Steele. Play him in "The Mojave Kid" if you do not believe he is handsome and can't act.—W. E. Field, Liberty theatre, Greenwood, S. C.—General patronage.

DESERT PIRATE: Tom Tyler—February 10-11. Good. Better second night than first. Five reels.—E. A. Emmert, Emmert theatre, Alcester, S. D.—General patronage.

THE GREAT MAIL ROBBERY: Special cast—February 11-12. Don't be afraid of this one. Advertise big. Pleased patrons 100 per cent. Seven reels.

—D. J. Donovan, Donovan theatre, Hecla, S. D.—General patronage.

HOOK AND LADDER NO. 9: Special cast—February 17-18. Wonderful picture. Fire scene very good. Better second night than first. FBO has good pictures at a living rental. Six reels.—E. A. Emmert, Emmert theatre, Alcester, S. D.—General patronage.

THE BANDIT'S SON: Bob Steele—Fine show, good action. Well received and larger house second night. Five reels.—E. A. Emmert, Emmert theatre, Alcester, S. D.—General patronage.

THE TERROR OF BAR X: Bob Custer—Fine story and well cast. Made a good Saturday night program. Five reels.—S. C. Silverthorn, Liberty theatre, Harrisville, Mich.—General patronage.

JUDGMENT OF THE HILLS: Frankie Darro—February 24. Would consider this a good picture except the last reel. Too many drunken scenes. Six reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—General patronage.

HER FATHER SAID NO: Special cast—This picture fell down because of the fact that it followed "What Happened to Father," which was a better vehicle by far. However, the small boys enjoyed their favorites, Cooke and Guard, even if the old boys were disappointed in the first feature they had ever seen their favorites in. No the team of Cooke and Guard did not fail, but it was the impression of our patrons that they could have been featured in something far better than "Her Father Said No." Seven reels.—Giacoma Bros., Crystal theatre, Tombstone, Ariz.—General patronage.

MOON OF ISRAEL: Special cast—December 29-30. Put it in house runs one day a week, charged forty cents and did a nice business. The Biblical scenes are good. It has quite an appeal to church people. Eight reels.—W. E. Field, Liberty theatre, Greenwood, S. C.—General patronage.

THE COWBOY COP: Tom Tyler—Another good Western from Tom. Business only fair, account of being new star here. Five reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

TOM AND HIS PALS: Tom Tyler—What a blessing, a Western with a new twist. This is superior to the average Western. If you have to show Westerns, try this one.—Mrs. Wood L. Burns, Texline theatre, Texline, Tex.—General patronage.

BIGGER THAN BARNUMS: Viola Dana—Good picture of circus life. Viola is still a good drawing card for us.—Mrs. Woods L. Burns, Texline theatre, Texline, Tex.—General patronage.

WILD TO GO: Tom Tyler—A fairly good Western. Tyler is only new and can expect only fair business with his pictures for sometime. Five reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

FLAMING FURY: Special cast—The star of this picture is the dog, but unfortunately it had no supporting cast. But it pleased our audience and that's enough for us.—Mrs. Woods L. Burns, Texline theatre, Texline, Tex.—General patronage.

LADDIE: Special cast—Something new. Good old fashioned picture. No flashy scenes of follies beauties, no eternal triangles, just a plain good show. Our audience enjoyed it immensely. Good house.—Mrs. Wood L. Burns, Texline theatre, Texline, Tex.—General patronage.

First National

VALLEY OF THE GIANTS: Milton Sills—50%. February 16-17-18. Excellent small town show. Mr. Sills, why all the grimacing? Just be natural and you're great. Seven reels.—S. B. Kennedy, Central theatre, Selkirk, Man., Canada.—Small town patronage.

HOME MADE: Johnny Hines—50%. February 23-24. A cracking good comedy that afforded an evening of real entertainment. Johnny is well liked here, but extreme cold kept most everybody away. By the time this report is printed I hope to see Johnny in person, as I am leaving today for the "land of the stars" and hope to find out just how they make 'em. Seven reels.—E. F. Ingram, Ingram's theatre, Ashland, Ala.—Small town patronage.

FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE: Ben Lyon—40%. February 10-11. After reading so many adverse reports on this picture was almost afraid to show it, but it went over in good shape and had some good comments on the program. Didn't have the attendance that we expected, made a little money anyway. Seven reels.—W. C. Snyder, Cozy theatre, Lamont, Okla.—General patronage.

THE DEVIL'S SADDLE: Ken Maynard—22%. February 24-25. Just a fair picture and not quite up to the standard. Maynard's last pictures are not as good as some of the first ones, and he didn't have the pull at the box office. Six reels.—W. C. Snyder, Cozy theatre, Lamont, Okla.—General patronage.

ROSE OF THE GOLDEN WEST: Mary Astor—80%. February 24-25. Just a good program picture. Nothing to brag about. Seven reels.—Robert K. Yancey, Bonny theatre, Mansfield, Mo.—General patronage.

THE SEA TIGER: Milton Sills—35%. February 17. As usual, Milton draws them in here. Consider picture close to his previous efforts, and in class with "Sea Hawk."—L. M. Threet, Augus theatre, San Augustine, Tex.—Small town patronage.

THE SEA TIGER: Milton Sills—A South Sea story and good. Sills was good and the picture was well liked. Six reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

THE DROP KICK: Richard Barthelmess—36%. December 26-27. A good college drama with football as its feature. Barthelmess does some good acting in this. Seven reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

BABE COMES HOME: Special cast—90%. This is a good comedy and as Babe Ruth is well known here it pulled in almost a full house. Babe and Anna did some stunts but Louise Fazenda takes the bun.—D. Straszer, Lyceum theatre, Manchester, Mo.—General patronage.

THE TENDER HOUR: Billie Dove—50%. February 18. Extra good picture. Beauty, action, suspense and good comedy all through. Wouldn't want a better one. Didn't have our usual Saturday night crowd, for some reason. Cold night. Eight reels.—Robert K. Yancey, Bonny theatre, Mansfield, Mo.—General patronage.

THE WILDERNESS WOMAN: Special cast—100%. February 19. This is a dandy and it sure did please all our patrons. Step on it. Eight reels.—D. Straszler, Lyceum theatre, Manchester, Mo.—General patronage.

THE SUNSET DERBY: Mary Astor—42%. January 27-28. A very good program picture, and I believe pleased the most of my patrons who saw it. Played two nights to fair houses and made a little money. Six reels.—W. C. Snyder, Cozy theatre, Lamont, Okla.—General patronage.

SOMEWHERE IN SONORA: Ken Maynard—60%. Another good one from Ken with pretty scenery and plenty of action. Photography is always good in the Maynards, as Sol Polito turns a mean crank. Step on 'em Ken, and give Tarzan some sugar for his good work. Six or seven reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

QUO VADIS: Emil Jannings—60%. This is Italian made. However, very well done and good bet at the box office. Jannings acting is better than in some American produced pictures. If you play to better class patronage, this will have strong appeal. Paper is good. Print only fair.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

THE NOOSE: Richard Barthelmess—Best picture of the year. Pleased 100 per cent. Buy it and run for a special.—F. V. Fletcher, Lyric theatre, Hartington, Neb.—General patronage.

THE NOOSE: Richard Barthelmess—February 21. Barthelmess comes back 100 per cent and delivers one of the best pictures of the year. As big as the biggest and will please as well. Our advice to those who have not run it, is to exploit it heavily and promise everything. Advance prices if you have that policy on big ones. The picture will back you up in anything you promise to do. A real pleasure to recommend this one.—Cragin & Pike, Inc., Majestic theatre, Las Vegas, Nev.—General patronage.

THE GORILLA: Charley Murray—This picture got me the best Wednesday-Thursday business that I've enjoyed for sometime. However, my Wednesday-Thursdays have been very poor. "The Gorilla" is a pretty good picture but there just seems to be that certain something missing that makes a great picture. Believe it is a bit too long for one thing and believe it should have been melodrama instead of comedy-mystery. Seven reels.—P. G. Vaughan, Sun theatre, Kansas City, Mo.—Neighborhood patronage.

THE TEXAS STEER: Will Rogers—Fair picture. Rogers drew them in, but it was only about a 50-50 break.—R. V. Fletcher, Lyric theatre, Hartington, Neb.—General patronage.

A TEXAS STEER: Will Rogers—Not a small town picture. Just proof that Will should stay on the speaking stage and stay away from the movie lots. Action was slow, although the climax was good. But it takes more than a good climax to put a picture over. We are glad we played it for the simple reason that we won't have to play it again. Photography poor, too diffused in places.—H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U theatre, Melville, La.—General patronage.

GUN GOSPEL: Ken Maynard—This fellow with his horse is without a doubt the greatest Western star on the screen. Tarzan, his horse, is surely a wonder. Six reels.—W. E. Field, Liberty theatre, Greenwood, S. C.—General patronage.

HARD BOILED HAGGERTY: Milton Sills—This latest vehicle of Sills was very good and well liked by his fans. Six reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

HARD BOILED HAGGERTY: Milton Sills—Not much for small towns. What Milton Sills needs is another "Skin Deep." We failed to perceive the humor in seeing Milton Sills with a pettycoat around his neck.—Mrs. Wood L. Burns, Texline theatre, Texline, Tex.—General patronage.

MISMATES: Special cast—A heart gripping drama, well acted. All thought it fine. Doris Kenyon does some mighty fine acting. Seven reels.—Boom & Du Rand, Lyric theatre, Ellendale, N. D.—Small town patronage.

MAN CRAZY: Mackaill-Mulhall—A dandy program picture. The name is misleading. This young couple are "there" and are deservedly well-liked here. Seven reels.—Philip E. Tyas, Liberty theatre, Amherstburg, Ont., Canada.—Small town patronage.

THE LAND BEYOND THE LAW: Ken Maynard—Very big. Can this boy Maynard act? Can he ride? Can he fight? Can he love? Boy, I'll say he can! Business very good. Keep up the good work. Six reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

THE LAND BEYOND THE LAW: Ken Maynard—This one was good as are all of Ken's pictures. Ken, when you said it was your ambition to be the foremost Western star in pictures, you set your ambition high. May I say that I take my hat off to you along with my patrons. You certainly are at the top. Stay there and don't change the type of your stories and get effeminate. We want men. Seven reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

THE LAND BEYOND THE LAW: Ken Maynard—Good Western. Will please those that do not care.

Six reels.—A. J. Smith, Texan theatre, Roaring Springs, Tex.—General patronage.

CONVOY: Special cast—Don't like Dorothy Mackaill in these kind of parts. She seemed to drag out her part of it a little too much. Didn't seem to get the sympathy of the crowd as she should have. Story is good and some wonderful scenes of battle ships and navy battles. Acting by entire cast very good. We raised admission ten cents and got by with no kicks, but seems as if someone just missed making a wonderful picture out of this. Can't say where it failed but didn't seem to register as it should. Weather gave us terrible licking but picture is O. K., but wouldn't advise raising admission on it. Eight reels.—Crosby & Schwierske, Rex theatre, Colby, Wis.—Small town patronage.

HER WILD OAT: Colleen Moore—What a pleasure it is to show a picture with this star. No matter who or what the person is they cannot be offended by her actions or the actions of her fellow players. The whole family can come (and they most always do) and enjoy every bit of it, and go out and recommend it to their friends. When Colleen plays in a picture, the public knows that they will not be embarrassed in any way, shape or form. Directors that think the public wants long drawn mushy kissing fadeouts should see this ending. Beautifully done, and something left for the imagination. You can always depend on Colleen for clean, wholesome comedy, and pathos. Enough to satisfy everybody. Colleen, I would like to have your picture for my Hall of Fame.—Jack Greene, New Geneseo theatre, Geneseo, Ill.—General patronage.

HER WILD OAT: Colleen Moore—January 9-10. Very good entertainment and brought considerable business through the box office. I happened to strike nice weather and the two days' run showed a nice little profit.—W. E. Field, Liberty theatre, Greenwood, S. C.—General patronage.

HER WILD OAT: Colleen Moore—This is not up to Colleen's standard. I would say the fault lay in direction. To my mind Marshall Neilan should be changed for Alfred Santell as her director. The picture is clever at parts but the most is not made of comic opportunities. It pleased, however, and Colleen is always a drawing card, but I like to see her getting better instead of "so-so." Seven reels.—Philip E. Tyas, Liberty theatre, Amherstburg, Ont., Canada.—Small town patronage.

DANCE MAGIC: Ben Lyon—February 24. Business good with this one, with plenty strong competition. Did not see it myself but patrons say O. K.—L. M. Threet, Augus theatre, San Augustine, Tex.—Small town patronage.

BREAKFAST AT SUNRISE: Constance Talmadge—Fairly good entertainment. Constance is like several of the others that are hanging on, she is showing her age. Used "Camille" with Norma Talmadge on November 21-22 and Norma looked quite young and beautiful and a fine picture but the lobby comment was "They are both getting old." Seven reels.—W. E. Field, Liberty theatre, Greenwood, S. C.—General patronage.

JUST ANOTHER BLONDE: Special cast—A very cute comedy, pleasing in every respect. Six reels.—Boom & Du Rand, Lyric theatre, Ellendale, N. D.—Small town patronage.

ALL ABOARD: Johnny Hines—A laugh feast from Johnny. Somehow his pictures don't draw any too good. Six reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

THREE'S A CROWD: Harry Langdon—November 23. About as bum a picture as ever went into a machine.—W. E. Field, Liberty theatre, Greenwood, S. C.—General patronage.

NAUGHTY BUT NICE: Colleen Moore—February 22-23. No wonder Colleen won the popularity contest. She is there one hundred per cent. A dandy comedy packed with laughs, and good clean fun. What a relief after some of the smutty ones. Seven reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

NAUGHTY BUT NICE: Colleen Moore—Best Colleen Moore we have had and that is saying something. Colleen Moore hasn't made a dub yet. Very good crowd.—Mrs. Wood L. Burns, Texline theatre, Texline, Tex.—General patronage.

NAUGHTY BUT NICE: Colleen Moore—Very light comedy. The worst picture that Colleen has made in years. At that it's good. Give us something different, Colleen. Six reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

THE UNKNOWN CAVALIER: Ken Maynard—February 15. Pleased Western fans. Tarzan well trained. Play it. Seven reels.—Frank E. Sabin, Majestic theatre, Eureka, Mont.—Small town patronage.

THE UNKNOWN CAVALIER: Ken Maynard—We have shown three or four of these Maynards and he is getting quite a following in our town and his pictures are all very good. Wonderful riding and plenty of action, and good stories in all. The pro-

2 New Members for "Our Exhibitors Club"

This week's issue brings two more members to "Our Exhibitors Club." William E. Tragsdorf of Trags theatre, Neillville, Wis., joins as Member No. 2. Mr. Tragsdorf says: "My scrap book shows that I have reported four changes a week for the last five years. That's that!"

Member No. 3 is Frank E. Sabin of the Majestic theatre, Eureka, Mont. Mr. Sabin writes in the following: "Good old Phil Rand. He always was a hundred per center and always will be. I'd like to be a member of 'Our Exhibitors Club' and shall endeavor to report on every picture from now on. (If the hardware biz don't get me down)."

ducers seem to be trying to make some real pictures out of these Maynards and he is there to help put them across. Ken, we would like your photo to put in our lobby as we have several more of your pictures to run and if we get the photo we might be induced to buy the next group, thanks. Seven reels.—Crosby & Schwierske, Rex theatre, Colby, Wis.—Small town patronage.

VENUS OF VENICE: Constance Talmadge—February 28-29. Very good program picture. But on account of basketball, church entertainments and lodge meetings did not make film rental in two days run. Seven reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—General patronage.

THE PRINCE OF HEADWAITERS: Lewis Stone—January 2-3. It is above the average. Splendid plot and it pleased most all who saw it. Used Paramount picture January 30 "Service for Ladies" which was very much on the same line but it couldn't be compared with the former for entertainment.—W. E. Field, Liberty theatre, Greenwood, S. C.—General patronage.

KIKI: Norma Talmadge—An antique, but a great show. Slightly reminiscent of Colleen Moore, but a great comedy nevertheless. Drew only fair, but this is our first Norma.—Mrs. Wood L. Burns, Texline, theatre, Texline, Tex.—General patronage.

TWINKLETOES: Colleen Moore—Very cute picture to average box office returns. Bad weather.—L. M. Threet, Augus theatre, San Augustine, Tex.—Small town patronage.

Fox

THE BRANDED SOMBRERO: Buck Jones—75%. February 7-8. As I have not played very many of Jones' pictures will say Jones is a good bet for the small town exhibitors. If his pictures are as good as the ones that I have played I think he is a better bet than Tom Mix, Fox's headliner. Five reels.—B. A. Butler, Elite theatre, Arlington, S. D.—General patronage.

SILK LEGS: Madge Bellamy—39%. February 14. Fair comedy. Nothing new. Pleased about 50 per cent. Six reels.—L. W. Bagwell, Jr., Crystal theatre, Oakman, Ala.—General patronage.

THE RETURN OF PETER GRIMM: Special cast—50%. January 28. Put on a family night. Fifty cents paid for the whole family. We had a full house, but did not make any money. Still believe that it is a good way to advertise. This drama went over good with the parents, but the kids did not care for the show. Seven reels.—J. A. D. Engesather, Movies theatre, Brocket, N. D.—Small town patronage.

THE RETURN OF PETER GRIMM: Special cast—Very good. Six reels.—A. J. Smith, Texan theatre, Roaring Springs, Tex.—General patronage.

THE CIRCUS ACE: Tom Mix—60%. January 25-26. No comments. Not so good. Five reels.—C. P. Washman, Roxy theatre, Skellytown, Tex.—General patronage.

COME TO MY HOUSE: Special cast—February 22. This combination of stars very good draw in this community, especially Miss Borden. Consider the picture average, without anything to cash in on except the title.—L. M. Threet, Augus theatre, San Augustine, Tex.—Small town patronage.

SEVENTH HEAVEN: Special cast—February 20-22. A winner. Will appeal to every class of patron. Action, comedy, pathos, humor, climax, acting superb. Sends them all out feeling better. Beautiful story of hope, courage and faith that triumphs over all obstacles. The perfection of screen entertainment. Come again, Mr. Borzage. Twelve reels.

—G. G. Baiss, Capitol theatre, Duncan, B. C., Canada.—General patronage.

LOVES OF CARMEN: Dolores Del Rio—25%. February 8-9. This was a fair program picture that we paid a special price for. We consider that we did well to come out even.—L. M. Threet, Augus theatre, San Augustine, Tex.—Small town patronage.

PAID TO LOVE: O'Brien-Valli—February 20-21. Splendid picture and many people seem to like George O'Brien.—W. E. Field, Liberty theatre, Greenwood, S. C.—General patronage.

CHAIN LIGHTNING: Buck Jones—March 2. A fair Western. Six reels.—E. L. Wood, Coliseum theatre, Edmore, Mich.—General patronage.

THE LAST TRAIL: Tom Mix—Tom and Tony go through their act good and bring the house down. Well liked, well received and a good house. Six reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

SUMMER BACHELORS: Madge Bellamy—March 1-2. Just a program picture, sold to me as a special.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—General patronage.

THE FLYING HORSEMAN: Buck Jones—February 20. A real good Western picture. Buck Jones is a better actor than most Western stars. It would be a real treat to see him again in pictures like "The Eleventh Hour." Five reels.—E. C. Bays, Globe theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

THE FLYING HORSEMAN: Buck Jones—Good.—A. J. Smith, Texan theatre, Roaring Springs, Texas.—General patronage.

WINGS OF THE STORM: Thunder—Not as good as some dog pictures. Not much at the box office. Six reels.—A. J. Smith, Texan theatre, Roaring Springs, Tex.—General patronage.

WHISPERING SAGE: Buck Jones—Fast riding, plenty of fights and a good story makes this another hit for the cowboy ace. Jones is a big favorite and always brings the house down. Five reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S.—Canada.—General patronage.

THE WIZARD: Special cast—March 2. A picture similar to the picture First National made several years ago, "Go Get It." Will class it as a very good picture of the thrill mystery type. Seven reels.—E. L. Wood, Coliseum theatre, Edmore, Mich.—General patronage.

HILLS OF PERIL: Buck Jones—Another cracker-jack from Buck that made many new friends for himself and the theatre. Five reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

LONDON AFTER MIDNIGHT: Lon Chaney—60%. February 6. Lon Chaney's best for sometime. Chaney is "much better in this type than in a picture like "Mockery." The story is by Tod Browning and is also directed by Mr. Browning. Business was very ordinary in spite of the fact that we used heavy exploitation. However, the picture is not at fault. Seven reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

LONDON AFTER MIDNIGHT: Lon Chaney—60%. February 25. They came right in. Though not the largest receipts, it was four times the previous week's receipts. This is a dandy picture and wish there were more of them that would draw like this one. Seven reels.—J. A. D. Engesather, Movies theatre, Brocket, N. D.—Small town patronage.

LONDON AFTER MIDNIGHT: Lon Chaney—January 22-23. This is at least one of the best pictures Chaney ever made. Perhaps "The Unholy Three" was better. It wasn't so gruesome but that it could be enjoyed by all. We find the Metro-Goldwyn product is very good and really getting better all the time.—H. M. Face & Sons, Star theatre, Nashville, Mich.—Small town patronage.

SPRING FEVER: William Haines—90%. February 11. Biggest one night 10-35 cent show receipts in two years. Everybody laughed and told us what a good show it was. Seven reels.—J. A. D. Engesather, Movies theatre, Brocket, N. D.—Small town patronage.

SPRING FEVER: William Haines—Mighty clever little comedy. Pleased all.—R. V. Fletcher, Lyric theatre, Hartington, Neb.—General patronage.

MAN, WOMAN AND SIN: John Gilbert—40%. February 8. John plays a newspaper reporter in this one and murders the owner of the paper. The story isn't suited to John at all it seems, as the patrons express their dislike at John in this type of story. It isn't worth more than a program picture. However, worth playing as it has a good moral and shows a mother's love for her son to the very end. Seven reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

MAN, WOMAN AND SIN: John Gilbert—40%. February 5-6-7. An excellent argument against block booking. Big crowd first night but Oh! the two following. Everyone must have told their friends to stay away. Why waste Gilbert in such trash? Better hide if you are forced to play this. Wish I had. Had nothing but kicks and I don't blame them. Seven reels.—S. B. Kennedy, Central theatre, Selkirk, Man., Canada.—Small town patronage.

MAN, WOMAN AND SIN: John Gilbert—I did not hear a single person say a good word for this picture, but I did have several tell me that it was poor. I would not have run the picture had I seen it before showing it. I saw "Resurrection" in the city and immediately went down to the exchange and set a picture in place of it which I could have bought for less than one-third the price that I was to pay for "Resurrection." I would have done the same with this picture had I seen it. I had 50 children less at my Sunday matinee on the Sunday following the showing of this picture. Radio, bridge parties, basket ball, bowling and pictures like "Man, Woman and Sin" are making it awfully tough during the winter for small exhibitors. Still next fall the Metro salesman will come along and tell you that he has to have a 25 per cent increase on John Gilbert pictures. My advice is do not book this picture at any price. Seven reels.—O. G. Blakeslee, Cozy theatre, Medford, Wis.—General patronage.

MAN, WOMAN AND SIN: John Gilbert—February 29-31. It pleased all that came to see it but such a poor title for a small town scared them away. Seven reels.—John L. Damm, Strand theatre, Wadsworth, Ohio.—General patronage.

MAN, WOMAN AND SIN: Special cast—Another poor one of Metros. I had several walk out on this picture and not a single comment on it. It is some punishment to stand and see the people go out after seeing a picture like this one. I would much pay for a picture like this and not play it at all, for I think we damage our business much more than the picture costs, if you have it bought and haven't played it I would advise you to pay for it and not play it.—Guy Loudermilk, The Fairy theatre, Nappanee, Ind.—General patronage.

VALLEY OF HELL: Francis McDonald—20%. February 18. Good Western. Just so short that I don't think it was more than four reels as the reels were only about one half full and being it was so good and full of action, it still seemed shorter. Well the crowd was satisfied with everything, only there wasn't enough of it to give them their 25 cents worth. Four reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

ADAM AND EVIL: Cody-Pringle—25%. Kept our crowd laughing and very favorable comments. Only a program picture here.—G. Carey, Strand theatre, Paris, Ark.—General patronage.

ADAM AND EVIL: Cody-Pringle—20%. This is very good of the comedy-drama type and will please. Isn't a drawing card at all but worth program price. We hit a cold spell and for that reason can't say just what it is worth at box office. Paper fair, except six sheet. Seven reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

CALIFORNIA: Tim McCoy—30%. This is good but McCoy doesn't pull, being a comparatively new star. He's a likeable fellow and we hope he will succeed in making the Western fans like him. Tim, why not make some real high class Westerns instead of historical stuff? People get tired of this, they get enough when they are kids in school. Six reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

THE GARDEN OF ALLAH: Alice Terry—20%. Why oh why did I let 'em fool me again? I let 'em fool me on "The Magician" and said I would leave anything Alice Terry or Petrovitch made alone. This team wouldn't pull a greased toothpick half an inch if a ten ton truck helped them. Boys, this is a lemon and mark you they want to call it a special. Paper bad. Seven reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

THE GARDEN OF ALLAH: Alice Terry—December 4-5. If your patrons want the very best, we wish to recommend this. There is food for thought all the way through it. Of course, if your patrons only want light, foolish comedy, something that takes no brain power to absorb, then play it. Nine reels.—H. M. Face & Sons, Star theatre, Nashville, Mich.—Small town patronage.

ON ZE BOULEVARD: Renee Adoree—20%. December 21-22. Rotten, how do these producers expect a theatre in a small town to play such stuff. Absolutely nothing to it, not one good laugh. Six reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

SLIDE, KELLY, SLIDE: William Haines—30%. Only a satisfactory program. Did not draw here.—G. Carey, Strand theatre, Paris, Ark.—General patronage.

THE BIG PARADE: John Gilbert—75%. February 22-23. No use commenting on this picture as we are about the last to play it, but it is the biggest and best war picture we ever played. Satisfaction to all. Some had seen it three times before.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

THE BUGLE CALL: Jackie Coogan—30%. This isn't so good. Appeals to children, but will not hold up after first day on first run showing. No good for second run. Photography little dark in spots. Very fine acting and is sad in places. Worth program price. Six reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

THE BUGLE CALL: Jackie Coogan—A little deeper than the average run of Coogan pictures, but Jackie still draws them out and pleases them. This is well suited to his age and went over nicely. Six reels.—S. C. Silverthorn, Liberty theatre, Harrisville, Mich.—General patronage.

MR. WU: Lon Chaney—40%. February 12. Good show but the Chinese atmosphere is enough to kill any picture and it sure would have done it here. Glad we ran it only one night so they all came out to see it, but were disappointed and the next show night we played a real good picture and no one came to see it because of being mad about "Mr. Wu." Well so are we. Eight reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

TELL IT TO THE MARINES: Lon Chaney—75%. February 20-21. Good. I'll say okay. Went over with a bang. Everyone pleased. Best Chaney yet.—L. W. Bagwell, Jr., Crystal theatre, Oakman, Ala.—General patronage.

ANNIE LAURIE: Special cast—20%. This is a very well produced picture with good cast and acting. However, for a special at a special price, it's a mighty bad bet. Absolutely no good for a second run. Will please higher class patronage. Photography very ordinary and paper hopeless. Seven reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

ANNIE LAURIE: Lillian Gish—This is a splendid historical drama. Special praise is due Norman Kerry and really all are exceptionally well cast. We put on a program featuring a piper and dancers and it went over with a bang. Should do well anywhere, especially this side of the line, or in a Scotch or English community. Nine reels.—Philip E. Tyas, Liberty theatre, Amherstburg, Ont., Canada.—Small town patronage.

ANNIE LAURIE: Lillian Gish—January 20-21. This we consider very good. If "The Scarlet Letter" went over for you this should, although they are not alike as to story. But anyone who has read or attended school and taken up this phase of ancient history will greatly appreciate this. Acting and scenery wonderful with plenty of action. Saw where one brother exhibitor said Kerry wasn't fitted for his part. We have shown Norman Kerry in numerous pictures the past five years, and will say that for once he was cast in a part that he was fitted for to perfection. He actually seemed to live the part and just about stole the show from Miss Gish, although she was fine in her part. Nine reels.—Crosby & Schiwerske, Rex theatre, Colby, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE LATEST FROM PARIS: Norma Shearer—Best comedy I've run this year. Pleased 100 per cent. Buy it.—R. V. Fletcher, Lyric theatre, Hartington, Neb.—General patronage.

THE LATEST FROM PARIS: Norma Shearer—Very, very good comedy. The best in a long time. This is some picture and the people will like it. Can't say too much about it.—Virginia Pollard, Auditorium theatre, Nehawka, Neb.—Small town patronage.

QUALITY STREET: Marion Davies—March 4-5. Just a dandy picture. Beautiful and colorful. Personally we would rather see her in this type than in pictures of "Tillie the Toiler" kind. She roes to stardom in this kind, "Little Old New York,"

J. C. Jenkins—His Colyum

ABILENE, TEXAS, March 4, 1928.

DEAR HERALD-WORLD:

Just a year from today they will inaugurate a new President. We could tell you who it will be, but that would spoil all the fun, and, besides that, we never mix up in politics. Houston is making great preparations to entertain the followers of Thomas Jefferson (and other hallucinations) in June, and, all in all, it looks like a great year for Texas.

Everything is just lovely down here. The buds are coming out on the trees, the farmers are planting corn and cussing the boll weevil, Ma Ferguson has hung the rugs out on the line and ordered Pa Jim to get busy, Will Rogers has gone his Goose Creek dam bill passed in Congress and the girls have cut 'em an inch shorter at both ends, which places Texas in the forefront of the states of the nation. You can't hold these Long Horns down no way you can frame it up.

We are sending the HERALD-WORLD a picture of a Texas horn toad that has put Eastland on the front page of every paper in the country. It is claimed that this toad was placed in the cornerstone of the Eastland courthouse 31 years ago and that it was taken out alive last week when the courthouse was torn down to make room for a new one they are building. A lot of very nice people in Eastland testify that they saw this toad put in the stone alive 31 years ago; and far be it from us to question their veracity, but what we would like to know is, was Gulliver formerly a Texan? We always supposed that Nebraska had some pretty good talent. Now you take Elmer Gailey of Wayne, for instance, or Micky Larson of Oakland; but, then, they have never been able to establish more than a local reputation, while Texas gets the front pages from New York to Hollywood. Pass the prunes to Texas.

*They tell some great yarns here in Texas,
And we hope that New York won't annex us,
For when a Texan gets filled up on eight or ten beers
And says toads live in stones here for thirty-one years
It will cause the Producers to shed jealous tears
To see the championship belt come to Texas.*

*Everything is just fine here in Texas,
From Brownsville clear up to Collexus;
The robins are mating, and the mallard ducks too,
And this information we are slipping to you
That the boys are quite handy at making home brew;
So everything's fine here in Texas.*

*Yes, everything's lovely in Texas,
There's not a darn thing here to vex us;
The long horns are putting on fat in the pens,
The roosters are in soft with the Plymouth Rock hens,
And the girls have shed theirs and are now wearing men's;
So everything's Jake here in Texas.*

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

We see by the morning papers that they have put the price of gasoline up again. Must be that that Teapot Dome case is costing 'em more money than they expected.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

If anyone should offer to bet you that it is farther from Brownsville, Texas, to Texline, Texas, than it is from Ft. Worth, Texas, to Duluth, Minnesota, don't you bet him a nickel; you'll lose. If he should tell you that it is farther from El Paso, Texas, to Texarkana, Texas, than it is from Chicago to Buffalo, New York, agree with him. Take our advice and don't bet on any Texas proposition; it's too dangerous. Just remember that toad story; and they can prove up on it, too.

When a newly married couple start out to cover Texas, by the time they get over the entire state they send a picture of the three oldest back to grandma. We started out last week to go to Menard to visit that boy Reeves who is a constant contributor to "What The Picture Did For Me" department, and the nearest we got to him was farther than it is from Chicago to Oshkosh, Wisconsin, and we couldn't locate another theatre on the route. Just see what Reeves missed by locating away off down there by himself.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

Editorial duties must be weighing pretty heavily on Eagle Eye Joe; he didn't get our mail to us last week and we have received none so far this week, although it is now Sunday p. m., and as far as we have any personal knowledge there is nothing left of the United States but Texas. We wish Jay wouldn't unload all his work on Joe. His editorial duties, coupled with his social duties, are going to ruin that boy's health, and then were would Frances be?

*When the HERALD-WORLD comes out on full dress parade
It contains all the boys want to know,

"When Knighthood Was in Flower" and "Janice Meredith" will long be remembered after "The Fair Co-Ed" and others of that type are forgotten. Eight reels.—H. M. Face & Sons, Star theatre, Nashville, Mich.—Small town patronage.

QUALITY STREET: Marion Davies—This is a very sweet picture, beautifully set and acted. I certainly enjoy Marion in costume. Would not say it did much for the box office but it's the kind of picture you feel better for playing. Seven reels.—Philip E. Tyas, Liberty theatre, Amherstburg, Ont., Canada.—Small town patronage.

QUALITY STREET: Marion Davies—Personally I enjoyed this picture as it was out of the ordinary run. My patrons, however, were very much divided on it. Some praised it very highly and others panned it quite muchly. Seven reels.—O. G. Blakeslee, Cozy theatre, Medford, Wis.—General patronage.

QUALITY STREET: Marion Davies—Some liked it and some didn't but I thought it was good. Good comedy, pretty scenery and costumes. Marion Davies is sure a good actress.—Virginia Pollard, Auditorium theatre, Nehawka, Neb.—Small town patronage.

LAW OF THE RANGE: Tim McCoy—This is the second Tim McCoy we have run of this year's group, and will say it is better than some of last year's McCoy's. Personally we cannot see McCoy at all and would suggest that if M-G-M wants a handsome male star to grasp on to the fellow that played

*And it has all other journals pushed back in the shade,
For it bears the earmarks of Eagle Eye Joe.*

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

We want to pause here long enough to thank C. M. Cooper of the Alvarado theatre at Alvarado for the nice things he said about us in the HERALD-WORLD recently. Once in a while an exhibitor tells the truth about us, but it is of such rare occurrence that when they do we like to make mention of it. We don't wish to be personal (that's the farthest from our desire), but we know certain exhibitors in Nebraska and Idaho who, if they ever told the truth, would incline us to believe that Al Smith would carry Texas in spite of the vigorous protest that is going up from the women of the Lone Star state. We don't wish to mention any names, but how Wayne, Nebraska, and Salmon, Idaho (and we might include Nashwauk, Minnesota, and Neilsville, Wisconsin), have ever stood it as long as they have is beyond us. It just seems like some towns will put up with anything. Just see what Hollywood has to endure with Hodges and Murray, and Bill Rogers away the most of the time.

Yes, we thank Brother Cooper for setting an example for truth and veracity that other exhibitors would do well to follow, and this goes for Zimmerman of San Marcos and that rabbi at Elgin as well.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

We have a daughter and son-in-law and two grandchildren in Neligh, Nebraska, a son and daughter-in-law and two grandchildren in Kirby, Wyoming, and the balance of the tribe are in Tucson, Arizona, and we are here in Texas, and if you can imagine yourself enjoying your 36th birthday under those kind of conditions then you can eat enchilladas and say you like 'em. The only consolation we get out of being poorerhell is that we are honest and handsome, and that's more than a lot of you birds can say.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

We have missed the two last issues of the HERALD-WORLD (Joe, please wake up and stop snoring), and we haven't learned what our friend Thomas O. Service had to say in SERVICE TALKS. Whenever we miss SERVICE TALKS and try to find something else to read to take its place, it's like eating salt sowbelly and trying to make ourself believe it's huckleberry pie—there's nothing to it; it can't be done.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

The call of the North is upon us. It may seem strange to these Texans down here, but do you know we'd like to kiss a good Nebraska blizzard on the nose right now. We are getting lonesome for a snow shovel and a chance to cut a figure 8 on the ice on the old Elkhorn, and don't think we can't do it either.

Should we be properly persuaded, Texas might hold us for a week or two yet, but the chances are we will head for Tucson before the Governor is advised of our intended departure, and this is going to leave Texas in a deplorable condition. But, Texas, we can't help it; we are due in Nebraska April 15 and we will have a lot of boys to call on between Tucson and the old home state. So bear up as best you can under this crushing blow and be comforted with the thought that in your grief you will not be alone; there will be two of us. And be further consoled with the thought that, while Ma Ferguson did the best she could with what little support she had, yet she didn't turn quite all of 'em out.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

L. B. Brown of the Regal at Gatesville, M. E. Renfro of the Palace at Mullin, G. H. Boynton, Jr., of the Strand at Hamilton, M. D. Stuart of the Liberty at De Leon, E. F. Keith of the Strand at Gorman, K. N. Green of the Palace at Cisco and M. M. Wood of the Texas at Baird felt the necessity of having the help of the best trade journal on earth, and that's why we sold them the HERALD-WORLD. Among those old stand-bys whose faith cannot be shaken in the HERALD-WORLD we note the following: Carraway & Stinnett, Yale and Palace at Cleburne, L. M. Dunlap, Palace at Meridian, Caraway Bros. of the Cliflex at Clifton, H. E. Walters of the Ritz at Marlin, Will Pence of the Dixie at Goldthwait, C. E. Boyett of the Lyric at Brownwood, L. D. Brown of the Dixie at Brownwood, Caver & Tate of the Majestic at Comanche, E. H. Elkins of the Palace at Hico, Thos. Donnell, Majestic at Stephenville, J. Blivins of the Majestic at Dublin, H. F. Smith, Mgr. Dent theatres at Eastland, Geo. A. Smith, Palace theatre at Clyde and John Burke of the Palace and Mr. Wood of the Queen at Abilene.

As we have already intimated, we are going to leave Texas with a great deal of regrets. She has been very kind to us, and we will always have the kindest feeling for these Texas folks and their genial hospitality. We would have liked to have met every exhibitor in the state, but that is a physical impossibility; she's too big. So—

*Goodbye to sunny Texas land;
We dislike to leave a state so big and grand,
But we will have to go
Where the blizzards rage and blow;
So goodby to sunny Texas land.*

J. C. JENKINS,
The HERALD-WORLD Man.

opposite McCoy as his brother in this picture. He stole the show away from McCoy and our crowd wanted to know why they didn't let McCoy die off and save this handsome chap for the girl. Really, he is a striking looking prospect and took his part wonderful. We destroyed our press sheet so don't know his name. Show is good and little different from usual. Six reels.—Crosby & Schwierske, Rex theatre, Colby, Wis.—Small town patronage.

LAW OF THE RANGE: Special cast—Very fine Western picture. Pleased Saturday night crowd.—R. V. Fletcher, Lyric theatre, Hartington, Neb.—General patronage.

BABY MINE: Dane-Arthur—February 19-20. Just about the funniest comedy ever made. There is only one criticism—too much dirt in it. Metro-Goldwyn why did you do it? Some of the subtitles and scenes would almost shock the manager of a brothel. Better screen it. You may want to clip its wings.—H. M. Face & Sons, Star theatre, Nashville, Mich.—Small town patronage.

BABY MINE: Dane-Arthur—February 2. Not much to it, but full of comedy all the way through. Kept the house roaring all the time. Will someone please tell me how they made it look like Karl Dane's head was turned around?—Virginia Pollard, Auditorium theatre, Nehawka, Neb.—Small town patronage.

THE LOVELORN: Special cast—February 3-4. Sally, Sally why did you do it? You're a nice kid and we like you and we need you, and we want your photo to put in our lobby, and we need it now more than ever. But honest this was terrible. Your sister may be alright but she has an awful handicap to overcome in our town after this. The first part or first four reels seemed to be going over fine as long as it drifted along in a farce comedy strain, but when they brought the tragedy in, oh what a headache. Sitting in the audience we could feel the reaction of the crowd against it. We loved you in "Mike," "Slide, Kelly, Slide," "Frisco Sally Levy" and others. If you will send us that photo we will forgive you, but don't let them do it again. T. O. Service said this was different and good. We will agree it's different. Seven reels.—Crosby & Schwierske, Rex theatre, Colby, Wis.—Small town patronage.

WEST POINT: William Haines—Very good picture. Good lesson in it. Good acting, and enjoyed by all.—Virginia Pollard, Auditorium theatre, Nehawka, Neb.—Small town patronage.

THE FAIR CO-ED: Marion Davies—January 27-28. This is a box office Natural at this time of the year. We believe about the best thing Miss Davies has done and surely shows that she can do these kind of parts as well as the knighthood roles. The basketball game in this is a Wow and although you are not in a basketball town it should go over great any place. Seven reels.—Crosby & Schwierske, Rex theatre, Colby, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE FAIR CO-ED: Marion Davies—Grab it quick. This is the type that make you proud to be in sight when the show's over. Everybody passing out all smiles. We presented every girl in local basketball teams complimentary tickets and it brought people seldom seen at theatre before. Seven reels.—S. C. Silverthorn, Liberty theatre, Harrisville, Mich.—General patronage.

THE FAIR CO-ED: Marion Davies—A mighty fine production. Well received, used it the opening of school after Christmas vacation. Seven reels.—Boom & Du Rand, Lyric theatre, Ellendale, N. D.—Small town patronage.

TEA FOR THREE: Cody-Pringle—Just a fair program picture. My opinion and the opinion of my patrons were that it was not half as good as "Adam and Evil." Seven reels.—O. G. Blakeslee, Cozy theatre, Medford, Wis.—General patronage.

BUTTONS: Jackie Coogan—February 5-6. A very good Coogan picture. Not his best but good just the same. Seven reels.—H. M. Face & Sons, Star theatre, Nashville, Mich.—Small town patronage.

BUTTONS: Jackie Coogan—Fine Coogan picture. Pleased 100 per cent.—R. V. Fletcher, Lyric theatre, Hartington, Neb.—General patronage.

BUTTONS: Jackie Coogan—Jackie certainly gets a hand from us. He always makes us money. This picture is very good and I think it has about the best shipwreck I have ever seen on the screen. Lars Hanson is every inch a captain and Polly Moran is especially good. Seven reels.—Philip E. Tyas, Liberty theatre, Amherstburg, Ont., Canada.—Small town patronage.

BUTTONS: Jackie Coogan—A rather good picture. Like Jackie better since he has grown up.—Virginia Pollard, Auditorium theatre, Nehawka, Neb.—Small town patronage.

THE DIVINE WOMAN: Greta Garbo—Good picture but not a small town bet.—R. V. Fletcher, Lyric theatre, Hartington, Neb.—General patronage.

THE THIRTEENTH HOUR: Special cast—Our crowd ate this up. The dog is good, the story is better than average story of this kind. Acting is good, and there are plenty of thrills. They were gasping and shrieking, grownups as well as the kids. For a change it is good, don't be afraid of it. Six reels.—Crosby & Schwierske, Rex theatre, Colby, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE THIRTEENTH HOUR: Napoleon—Here's a real mystery detective story with a dog who is very good. Napoleon is young and full of pep like Rinty used to be a few years ago. Play it. Six reels.—P. G. Vaughan, Sun theatre, Kansas City, Mo.—Neighborhood patronage.

THE THIRTEENTH HOUR: Lionel Barrymore—Very good with plenty of suspense. We received a lot of good comments on the dog. We advertised it as a dog picture and if it is sold this way should go over well. Seven reels.—Philip E. Tyas, Liberty theatre, Amherstburg, Ont., Canada.—Small town patronage.

BECKY: Sally O'Neil—February 15-16. Light comedy drama that pleased fairly well.—H. M. Face & Sons, Star theatre, Nashville, Mich.—Small town patronage.

BECKY: Sally O'Neil—What I saw of it looked okay and had a very nice one day business. However, played it with "Amateurs" so can't judge as to its draw. Audience seemed to enjoy it and were very attentive all the way through it. Six reels.—P. G. Vaughan, Sun theatre, Kansas City, Mo.—Neighborhood patronage.

FRISCO SALLY LEVY: Sally O'Neil—A good St. Patrick's Day picture. Better than "Becky."—Virginia Pollard, Auditorium theatre, Nehawka, Neb.—Small town patronage.

FOREIGN DEVILS: Tim McCoy—January 5-6. This, we consider far better than most of the last year McCoy's with the exception of "War Paint." It deals with the Boxer uprising in China a few years back and dwells somewhat on actual facts and names companies that participated in this uprising with the name of officer in charge of United States troops in China at the time, and we had numerous favorable comments on it. Don't be afraid of it as McCoy will go over for us all. Five reels.—Crosby & Schwierske, Rex theatre, Colby, Wis.—Small town patronage.

BODY AND SOUL: Special cast—Jan. 7. Put this on at 25-50 cents with a strong man act, and the strong man pulled us in a record breaking house. The biggest house in five years for a single night show. The feature went over good. Six reels.—J. A. D. Engesather, Movies theatre, Brocket, N. D.—Small town patronage.

WAR PAINT: Tim McCoy—A crackerjack of a picture that had the fans on edge. Made a good hit here. Six reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

HEAVEN ON EARTH: Renee Adoree—Good show but a quiet one. Adoree and Nagel are a good team for this one.—Mrs. Wood L. Burns, Texline theatre, Texline, Tex.—General patronage.

SPOILERS OF THE WEST: Tim McCoy—Good. A fair comedy. The girl was good.—Virginia Pollard, Auditorium theatre, Nehawka, Neb.—Small town patronage.

WINNERS OF THE WILDERNESS: Tim McCoy—A thriller of thrillers! McCoy sure can make good pictures. Give us more like this. Six reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

CAPTAIN SALVATION: Special cast—Lars Hanson is one man who can emote without being sappy. This is a corking picture but a little heavy.—Mrs. Wood L. Burns, Texline theatre, Texline, Tex.—General patronage.

LA BOHEME: Lillian Gish—It takes the music of Puccini opera to put this over. If you don't have it, don't play this one. Very good picture.—Mrs. Wood L. Burns, Texline theatre, Texline, Tex.—General patronage.

THE MAGICIAN: Alice Terry—We don't care whether Alice Terry is a good actress or not for she is so good to look at. This is a good melodrama and our audience liked it.—Mrs. Wood L. Burns, Texline theatre, Texline, Tex.—General patronage.

Paramount

SHOTTIN' IRONS: Special cast—55%. This, in my estimation, is a good, clean Western and is not so cheaply hashed together as some of the Westerns of this type. Jack is making a good start if he will make Westerns his choice instead of society stuff. Good scenery, good photography, good paper. Pretty good business—check.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto, theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

SHOOTIN' IRONS: Jack Luden—13%. December 30-31. Nothing to it, just another Western. Awfully cold weather kept the people away, but they didn't miss anything. We lost money. Six reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

UNDER THE TONTO RIM: Arlen-Brien—75%. Another good Western from Paramount. Good story and good acting. Six reels.—J. Rinhart, Majestic theatre, Stuttgart, Ark.—General patronage.

SHANGHAI BOUND: Richard Dix—90%. January 30. Dix always good but think he is better in comedy type roles. However, my people said they liked this fine, so why worry? Seven reels.—W. U. Shelnut, City theatre, Lafayette, Ala.—General patronage.

SHANGHAI BOUND: Richard Dix—This is a very good story of Chinese river pirates with Dix acting at his best. Mary Brian does well and the picture draws better than the usual Dix offering. At a program price this should be a fair bet where Dix is liked. Six reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Tenn.—General patronage.

SHANGHAI BOUND: Richard Dix—February 2. Dix should be cast in better pictures. He is a very good actor and well liked by the public. Did a fair business but many were disappointed at the end of the show.—W. E. Field, Liberty theatre, Greenwood, S. C. General patronage.

JESSE JAMES: Fred Thomson—80%. February 6. This went over very good here. Fred always a favorite and the name "Jesse James" did the rest. Seven reels.—W. U. Shelnut, City theatre, Lafayette, Ala.—General patronage.

THE ROUGH RIDERS: Special cast—25%. February 16-17. Have read so many poor reports on this that I really was afraid of it. But oh how good it was. Anyone who knocks this picture must have it in for Paramount and so have I, but I wouldn't knock the picture because it is good and should go big in any town in the United States. If Paramount treats you wrong, don't take your spite out on knocking a good picture like this, "Blonde or Brunette" or other ones like it. Ten reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

NEVADA: Gary Cooper—50%. December 16-17. A good Zane Grey story that should do business anywhere. Six reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

NOW WE'RE IN THE AIR: Beery-Hatton—85%. February 20. This is a very good comedy. A little silly in spots but went over very good. The percentage here would have been higher only bad weather kept them away. Six reels.—W. U. Shelnut, City theatre, Lafayette, Ala.—General patronage.

NOW WE'RE IN THE AIR: Berry-Hatton—November 28-29. There was no sign of a plot and all gags and slapstick stuff has been in two reel comedies for the last three years. You could go into Pathe's stock room and get everything in the show. Six reels.—W. E. Field, Liberty theatre, Greenwood, S. C.—General patronage.

BEAU GESTE: Special cast—60%. We ran "Beau Geste" after it had roadshowed and then played first run a week. Did good business but rental was too high to make anything. As usual the producer is afraid the exhibitor might happen to make a few cents on something. Ten reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

HULA: Clara Bow—75%. February 14. This is without a doubt the best I have seen Clara Bow do. It has general appeal to both men and women due to title and Miss Bow's name. We used a South Sea island lobby with three sheet cutout of Miss Bow dancing in grass dress. If you go after this in the right way it should make you a little money. Don't pay over program price for it. Six reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

HULA: Clara Bow—Fair little comedy with a girl star that is quite likeable. Six reels.—W. E. Field, Liberty theatre, Greenwood, S. C.—General patronage.

THE WAY OF ALL FLESH: Emil Jannings—82%. February 20-21. Man, what a picture! Haven't played a better one this year. Jannings certainly turned in a fine performance, and even had the hard boiled ones with a lump in their throats. Made a special appeal to the ladies to bring their husbands and most of them did, and thanked me for personally endorsing the picture. Nine reels.—E. F. Ingram, Ingram's theatre, Ashland, Ala.—Small town patronage.

THE WAY OF ALL FLESH: Emil Jannings—25%. February 13-14. Business a little off on this one but no fault of the production. Consider this a real bet if exploited right. Consider we raised admission too much to make it a real draw.—L. M. Threet, Augus theatre, San Augustine, Tex.—Small town patronage.

THE WAY OF ALL FLESH: Emil Jannings—Wonderful acting, cast all good. Story too sad to draw here. Paid reasonable (apparently) figure and then lost money. All right for highbrow and reading public. Nine reels.—G. G. Bais, Capitol theatre, Duncan, B. C., Canada.—General patronage.

OPEN RANGE: Special cast—30%. This is way below the standard of Paramount Zane Grey Westerns. I can't understand why Paramount and Jack Holt couldn't come to some terms. These Zane Greys are worth showing without Jack in them. Photography not so good. Paper fine except six sheet. Six reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

BLIND ALLEYS: Thomas Meighan—20%. This is just about the same old Meighan offering. I haven't seen many that pleased. Tom is slow and draggy and always has poor story material to work with. Six reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

IT: Clara Bow—62%. February 12-13. Snow kept percentage down. A fine picture that everyone liked. Only one thing about this to leave a bad taste in your mouth and that was the following title: "He could not give birth to a suspicion." That was rotten and I hate to see a thing like that in such a fine picture.—C. P. Washman, Roxy theatre, Skellytown, Tex.—General patronage.

IT: Clara Bow—A smashing hit. And how she draws at the box office. Give us more Bow's and more money will be made. Six reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

IT: Clara Bow—Best of this type picture that I have ever run. Seven reels.—A. J. Smith, Texan theatre, Roaring Springs, Tex.—General patronage.

CHANG: Special cast—50%. February 8-9-10. Wonderful picture of its type, but did not draw for me. The ladies stayed away. Don't pay too much for it and you will be all right. Eight reels.—

S. B. Kennedy, Central theatre, Selkirk, Man., Canada.—Small town patronage.

WE'RE ALL GAMBLERS: Thomas Meighan—22%. December 19-20. Too slow, Meighan is flopping here even the old people seem to be passing him up. Seven reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

THE TELEPHONE GIRL: Special cast—24%. February 23. A very good picture. A small crowd out to a dandy picture. Six reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

THE TELEPHONE GIRL: Madge Bellamy—February 28. Good interesting picture but no drawing power. Jack made expenses. Six reels.—Robert K. Yancey, Bonny theatre, Mansfield, Mo.—General patronage.

SO'S YOUR OLD MAN: Special cast—30%. February 4. This one did not go over either. Even the small town audience wants a recent release, we cannot sell them the old ones any more. Six reels.—J. A. D. Engesather, Movies theatre, Brocket, N. D.—Small town patronage.

SO'S YOUR OLD MAN: Alice Joyce—Nothing big, but went over well. Seemed to please a Saturday night house. Six reels.—Boom & Du Rand, Lyric theatre, Ellendale, N. D.—Small town patronage.

THE KID BROTHER: Harold Lloyd—99%. February 5-6. This one is good. Sure had plenty complimentary remarks on it.—C. P. Washman, Roxy theatre, Skellytown, Tex.—General patronage.

EVERYBODY'S ACTING: Special cast—10%. February 18. Drew in twenty adults, and a few children. Hope this is the worst one on our contract. Seven reels.—J. A. D. Engesather, Movies theatre, Brocket, N. D.—Small town patronage.

THE COVERED WAGON: Special cast—97%. February 21. Still a big money maker. Ran this on our weakest night and very near broke the record. The picture is changed slightly from the original version but still good. Eight reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

UNDERWORLD: George Bancroft—February 26-27. This is a sure-enough picture. Played it at top prices here and not one complaint. Did fairly good business.—L. M. Threet, Augus theatre, San Augustine, Tex.—Small town patronage.

UNDERWORLD: George Bancroft—Personally think it's the best crook story I've run, but it failed to gross as much at the box office as Warner Bros. "The Girl from Chicago," which is very much on the same order and is sold as a program picture only. Eight reels.—P. G. Vaughan, Sun theatre, Kansas City, Mo.—Neighborhood patronage.

FEEL MY PULSE: Bebe Daniels—February 26-27. This picture, although it pleased a fair per cent of the patrons, is not quite up to the Daniels standard and it failed to draw as some of the others have. I think this chronic disease stuff scares them. Six reels.—John L. Damm, Strand theatre, Wadsworth, Ohio.—General patronage.

BEAU SABREUR: Gary Cooper—This is a great picture. Not a "Beau Geste" but unsung and unheralded, it will please as many people. It will stand a raise in admission and will please everyone. An adventure story and a romance in the same picture.—Charles Lee Hyde, Grand theatre, Pierre, S. D.—General patronage.

SHE'S A SHEIK: Bebe Daniels—Another knock-out audience picture almost as good as "Senorita" yet it failed to draw for me. Second night pitiful. But it certainly can't be the fault of the picture. I simply cannot sell Paramount pictures to my public. I wish someone would tell me why. Six reels.—P. G. Vaughan, Sun theatre, Kansas City, Mo.—Neighborhood patronage.

SHE'S A SHEIK: Bebe Daniels—February 17-18. Like all of her pictures it's excellent and drew well. However, the producers are overdoing the desert stuff this year. Have had six of them in eight weeks. Will be glad when they bring their stars back to the good old U. S. A., for the locales. Six reels.—E. M. Middle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

THE WOMAN ON TRIAL: Pola Negri—This is a good picture. This star has her following and they liked this picture. I regret that her following in my town is very small but the picture as a heavy society drama pleased the people that came to see it.—Charles Lee Hyde, Grand theatre, Pierre, S. D.—General patronage.

THE WOMAN ON TRIAL: Pola Negri—Here's another good one from Pola, just as good if not a little better than "Barbed Wire."—B. R. Parsons, State theatre, Springfield, Minn.—General patronage.

GENTLEMEN PREFER BLONDES: Ruth Taylor—February 16-17-18. Just too bad. Could have been one of the real big ones and it is just ordinary. Too bad, because we paid a big price. Too bad, because we believed the production's publicity and exploited it heavily and got in wrong with our patrons. First night attendance good, second night off 50 per cent and last night awful.—Cragin & Pike, Inc., Majestic theatre, Las Vegas, Nev.—General patronage.

SWIM, GIRL, SWIM: Special cast—My idea of a swell little picture. Consider Miss Daniels best for this type of entertainment. Miss Ederle was interesting in this, and we should see more of her. Box office O. K.—L. M. Threet, Augus theatre, San Augustine, Tex.—Small town patronage.

SWIM, GIRL, SWIM: Bebe Daniels—December 1-2. A fine little comedy and all seemed to like it. Six reels.—W. E. Field, Liberty theatre, Greenwood, S. C.—General patronage.

THE CITY GONE WILD: Thomas Meighan—February 24-25. The best thing Meighan has done in a long time. A drama of the underworld with a big climax. They liked it immensely. Six reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

THE CITY GONE WILD: Thomas Meighan—This was a good picture gone wrong. It started okay and worked up to a good point, then Jimmy Cruze must have got tired and wanted to finish it in a hurry because it all goes to pieces at the end and leaves one wondering why. A very ordinary program offering. Not enough action or pep. Six reels.—Philip E. Tyas, Liberty theatre, Amherstburg, Ont., Canada.—Small town patronage.

FIREMEN SAVE MY CHILD: Beery-Hatton—January 23-24. These stars are dead in my town. In fact, it seems that the producers have already overdone this type of picture and they are still grinding them out but a fellow must run them in order to get other pictures that the public care to see.—W. E. Field, Liberty theatre, Greenwood, S. C.—General patronage.

TELL IT TO SWEENEY: Special cast—March 1. Filled the house up, and consider it a great comedy.—L. M. Threet, Augus theatre, San Augustine, Tex.—Small town patronage.

TELL IT TO SWEENEY: Conklin-Bancroft—A dandy comedy. Bancroft and Conklin are great with the right amount of action and excitement. We had more comments on this one than any for a long time. Everyone came out joking about "Isobel." It did not make any money as the weather was bad, but if you can get them in they'll eat it up. Six reels.—Philip E. Tyas, Liberty theatre, Amherstburg, Ont., Canada.—Small town patronage.

TEN MODERN COMMANDMENTS: Esther Ralston—Very pleasing little comedy drama that is good for any theatre.—S. C. Silverthorn, Liberty theatre, Harrisville, Mich.—General patronage.

HOTEL IMPERIAL: Pola Negri—Very good. Somehow our fans didn't care much for it. Business fair. Eight reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE: Harold Lloyd—This is the first Lloyd picture that we have played and if they can be bought we shall run more of them. The next on our calendar is "The Kid Brother," which is reputed to be more popular than "For Heaven's Sake." Six reels.—J. D. Hall, Legion theatre, Gann Valley, S. D.—General patronage.

GOD GAVE ME TWENTY CENTS: Lois Moran—February 21. This picture either drew well or people just took a notion to come to the show as we had better than the usual Tuesday night crowd. It's an interesting picture, well acted by a fine cast. Seven reels.—Robert K. Yancey, Bonny theatre, Mansfield, Mo.—General patronage.

QUICKSANDS: Richard Dix—February 15-16. Somebody pulled a boner, when they re-issued this old timer. It must have been made seven or eight years ago, so you can guess how crude it is. Dix is a favorite here and when the crowd came out they kicked long and loud. It will take several good Dix pictures to restore him to his former popularity here. If you play this be sure to let your patrons know it's a ghost from long ago. It's a rough Western. Five reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

Pathe-P D C

THE LEOPARD LADY: Jacqueline Logan—75%. February 28. Good for small town exhibitor. It is a mystery story and well acted. Holds interest all the way through, it might have been better for me if I had not had a basketball game as competition. I did not get any advertising only in local newspaper, but did fair. Seven reels.—B. A. Butler, Elite theatre, Arlington, S. D.—General patronage.

THE MAIN EVENT: Special cast—One of the best prize fight pictures ever.—R. V. Fletcher, Lyric theatre, Hartington, Neb.—General patronage.

TURKISH DELIGHT: Special cast—Pleased about forty per cent. Good cast but story very weak, not much to it.—Roy E. Mitchell, Plainview theatre, Plainview, Tex.—General patronage.

THE COUNTRY DOCTOR: Special cast—January 29-30. One of the best pictures we ever played. I noticed a while ago some exhibs panned it. Mr. Exhibitor, if your patrons don't like this kind of a show then I certainly would not care to be living in your town. God help us when everyone gets so they can't enjoy a picture unless it is nothing but comedy. Eight reels.—H. M. Face & Sons, Star theatre, Nashville, Mich.—Small town patronage.

THE FORBIDDEN WOMAN: Jetta Goudal—Good picture, but not for a small town. Didn't go over so good.—R. V. Fletcher, Lyric theatre, Hartington, Neb.—General patronage.

THE FORBIDDEN WOMAN: Jetta Goudal—February 13. Very good picture. Mouth to mouth advertising brought most twice the business the second day. W. E. Field, Liberty theatre, Greenwood, S. C.—General patronage.

WRECK OF THE HESPERUS: Special cast—Mighty fine picture. The name drew them in and everyone well pleased. Variety knocked this but they don't know the sticks.—R. V. Fletcher, Lyric theatre, Hartington, Neb.—General patronage.

ALMOST HUMAN: Three dogs—February 23-24-25. Dandy program picture. Vera Reynolds is advertised as "the star" but they put one over on us. The stars are three dogs and they positively are the stars in this picture.—Clark & Edwards, Palace theatre, Ashland, O.—General patronage.

THE SEA WOLF: Special cast—Fairly good. Too many dark scenes in the picture and it hurt a good amount. Seven reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

LET 'ER GO GALLAGHER: Special cast—Very fine picture. Gave general satisfaction.—R. V. Fletcher, Lyric theatre, Hartington, Neb.—General patronage.

PRINCE OF PILSEN: Special cast—Very good picture, but brought us the smallest Monday night crowd in eighteen months. Lay off.—G. Carey, Strand theatre, Paris, Ark.—General patronage.

Rayart

WILD BORN: Tex Maynard—69%. February 25. A very good Western that pleased the usual Saturday crowd. All said much better than his two previous offerings. Much better than many of the cheaper Westerns. Five reels.—E. F. Ingram, Ingram's theatre, Ashland, Ala.—Small town patronage.

Tiffany

LIGHTNING: Lightning—This is one of the best Zane Grey pictures we have ever played. You can boost it as an extra good Western. Seven reels.—B. R. Parsons, State theatre, Springfield, Minn.—General patronage.

ONCE AND FOREVER: Patsy Ruth Miller—While it is nice to get a fine program picture, I cannot but think that with more snappy direction this picture need never to have stayed in the program class. Story is good, cast fine and acting excellent. Outside of a few draggy spots, it is exceedingly worthwhile.—Mrs. A. B. Woodyatt, Bio theatre, Moline, Ill.—General patronage.

NIGHT LIFE: Special cast—Tiffany has been making very good pictures. All consistent money makers and good entertainment; since advent of John M. Stahl as production supervisor the details of each release are perfect. Played "Night Life" week of February 18 as part of a double bill with Fox's "The Wizard." Big Saturday and Sunday and business still holding up. At rate am going would place this week's entertainment value at 75 per cent. Ritz theatre playing week stands. Catering to all classes and drawing from entire city. Running both these pictures second run in St. Louis following the Orpheum.—Ritz theatre, St. Louis, Mo.—General patronage.

THE PRINCESS FROM HOBOKEN: Special cast—Here is a very cleverly acted comedy drama. Well dressed and contains good entertainment. Played this an entire week as part of a double bill and had some very favorable comments. Have used quite a number of Tiffany's and find them very satisfactory. Rate this one at 70 per cent. Neighborhood theatre playing week stands catering to all classes. Played week of January 14 to good business. Ritz theatre, St. Louis, Mo.—General patronage.

Universal

SKY HIGH SAUNDERS: Al Wilson—70%. February 29. This is a very good program picture with lots of action. Pleased almost all our patrons. Five reels.—D. Straszer, Lyceum theatre, Manchester, Mo.—General patronage.

MEN OF DARING: Jack Hoxie—80%. February 15. A mighty nice picture, and I believe it pleased ninety per cent of our patrons. Six reels.—D. Straszer, Lyceum theatre, Manchester, Mo.—General patronage.

BLAZING DAYS: Fred Humes—33%. February 4. My people don't like Fred Humes. Five reels.—C. P. Washman, Roxy theatre, Skellytown, Tex.—General patronage.

THE RAWHIDE KID: Hoot Gibson—50%. February 25. This is a splendid Western program picture.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

A ONE MAN GAME: Fred Humes—February 14. A nice little program Western with some good comedy. Five reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

PAINTING THE TOWN: Glenn Tryon—70%. February 13-14-15. Dandy picture which pleased everyone and then some. Tryon is a riot in this. You can't go wrong on this one. Six reels.—S. B. Kennedy, Central theatre, Selkirk, Man., Canada.—Small town patronage.

PAINTING THE TOWN: Patsy Ruth Miller—22%. February 15-16. Bad weather. The craziest comedy drama we ever played, but good just the same.—C. P. Washman, Roxy theatre, Skellytown, Tex.—General patronage.

HEY HEY COWBOY: Hoot Gibson—84%. February 11. Only fair Gibson picture.—C. P. Washman, Roxy theatre, Skellytown, Tex.—General patronage.

THE CAT AND THE CANARY: Special cast—30%. This picture is absolutely zero at the box office. It does not do even as good as a program offering. The picture is well photographed, directed and produced. However, Universal robs you on rental and with no drawing power you come out in red ink. Use your own judgment.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

THE CAT AND THE CANARY: Laura LaPlante—A great thriller. Spiffy camera angles and everything. Even the operator got nervous. The best of its kind.—Mrs. Wood L. Burns, Texline theatre, Texline, Tex.—General patronage.

DOWN THE STRETCH: Special cast—78%. January 28. Good race track picture. Seven reels.—C. P. Washman, Roxy theatre, Skellytown, Tex.—General patronage.

THE MARRIAGE CLAUSE: Billie Dove—80%. March 1. This picture was very good. Our patrons were well pleased. Good acting, good story, good directing. It is as some supposed-to-be specials. It will please 95 per cent. Eight reels.—J. Rinhart, Majestic theatre, Stuttgart, Ark.—General patronage.

GRINNING GUNS: Jack Hoxie—40%. Rather weak but funny and makes up. But nothing could make up for the rotten treatment out of Memphis on Complete Service Contract.—G. Carey, Strand theatre, Paris, Ark.—General patronage.

THE BRONCHO BUSTER: Fred Humes—5%. February 13. A good Western and pleased the few that came. Hit the worst night so far this Winter, and took in the big sum of four dollars and fifteen cents, which accounts for the low percentage. Five reels.—W. C. Snyder, Cozy theatre, Lamont, Okla.—General patronage.

THE PRAIRIE KING: Hoot Gibson—50%. February 26. This is a good Western. More action in this than some of his others we have run lately. Six reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenvier, Utah.—General patronage.

ALIAS THE DEACON: Jean Hersholt—This picture was enjoyed by all our patrons. A good story and well directed. It was sponsored by the Woman's Club of Moline and had many favorable comments on it. Jean Hersholt was well liked.—Mrs. A. B. Woodyatt, Bio theatre, Moline, Ill.—General patronage.

OUT ALL NIGHT: Reginald Denny—A good comedy and while not as good as some of his other pictures, was liked to the extent that everyone spoke well of it, and what more can one ask?—Mrs. A. B. Woodyatt, Bio theatre, Moline, Ill.—General patronage.

FAST AND FURIOUS: Reginald Denny—February 18. Here's another good mark for Denny. He's a drawing card and supplies plenty of entertainment and action. Seven reels.—Frank E. Sabin, Majestic theatre, Eureka, Mont.—Small town patronage.

SILK STOCKINGS: Laura LaPlante—This is a fine picture. Light comedy type and the little Laura carries it along in great shape. She is the whole show. I can't give the supporting cast many flowers but she is good enough to put it over alone. I had many favorable comments on it from all six of the people who came to see it. Business is bad but the picture is good.—Charles Lee Hyde, Grand theatre, Pierre, S. D.—General patronage.

Feast of Shows Marks 1st Year of the Roxy, House of New Records

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 13.—Gala performances in celebration of the first anniversary of the opening of the Roxy theatre are being held this week. S. L. Rothafel has gathered together a number of world famous stars and a galaxy of leading performers for the week of big "birthday parties."

The first year of the Roxy made it a theatre of new records, in both attendance and receipts. The latest record is that for one year. In that time, about six and a half million people attended the theatre. The biggest gross for one week at any theatre is $144,267, the amount taken in at the Roxy during the showing of "What Price Glory." One hundred and seventy-six thousand paid that amount. The record day's receipts was established at the Roxy on Washington's Birthday, during the playing of "A Girl in Every Port," when $29,463 passed under the box office window.

The Roxy quickly won renown for its elaborate and high class stage presentations. Among noted artists who have appeared at the theatre are Margaret Matzenauer, Johanna Gadske, Percy Grainger and Titta Ruffo.

Books Columbia's "Siren" for Anniversary Shows

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 13.—"The Siren," one of Columbia's recent releases, was selected by the Lafayette theatre, first-run house in Buffalo, as the feature of the gala program to celebrate the theatre's sixth anniversary.

Shea's Hippodrome, an important first run house in Buffalo, has booked "The Tigress" for a week's run, according to Columbia. Loew's, in Montreal, and the Hippodrome, in Toronto, have also contracted "The Tigress." The Hippodrome will follow the Holt production with "The Opening Night," another Columbia feature.

The Chicago FBO cleanup squad in action. The Chicago and St. Louis exchanges are in a hot inter-exchange race in the Spring Cleanup drive, with Chicago leading at the end of the third week. (l. to r.) Ted Meyers, Tim the Porter, Henry Saulkins, Sam Gorelick, C. L. Dickerson, H. A. Washburn, manager, Len Ullrich, Walter Brown and Ed Johnson.

CHICAGO PERSONALITIES

By Whit

THE boys at FBO are in the midst of an exciting race with the St. Louis exchange in FBO's spring cleanup drive. A not inconsiderable amount of money has been wagered, and the Chicago boys are out for victory. At the end of the first three weeks, they are ahead, but the cleanup squad is working harder than ever. Everybody in both exchanges from managers, salesmen, operators and porters have challenged each other and excitement is at high pitch. It's going to be a good race.

Clyde Eckhardt left for New Orleans Thursday where he was to meet James R. Grainger, general sales manager for Fox. The motive for their meeting was Fox business.

Fred Meyers, of the Alhambra theatre in Milwaukee, was a visitor on the row last week.

Joe B. Koppel, formerly manager of the Village theatre in Wilmette is now manager of Universal theatres in the Chicago territory, it is understood. He succeeds Bruce Gottshaw.

Louis Laemmle returned to the Universal exchange Friday after being ill all week with tonsillitis.

Henry Herbel left this week on a short tour of several of the Midwest exchanges. A number of changes are to be made, it is understood, in the Universal exchanges.

Occasionally we look at a new picture down the row, and upon entering FBO's "little theatre" last week, we were surprised and gratified when we sat ourselves down to view a nice little Western. The surprise and gratification were caused by the comfort of the seat in which we sat, and when the lights came on, we counted 10 brand new wicker arm chairs with soft cushions.

We've come to the conclusion that the boys on film row are about the smartest dressers in town. No sooner had the Association of National Clothiers decreed that colors of the rainbow were to be duplicated in men's clothing this spring, than colors of brightest hue began to appear on the row, and outstanding among the color combinations are Joe Abramson's suspenders and Tom Giliam's necktie. If these suspenders and necktie ever come in contact, nothing short of a first page exposition will result.

Frank Ishmael, Jr., whose talents as a draftsman are known to the row by his excellent theatre map of Chicago, has a number of his drawings on exhibit at the Art Institute, and a number of his drawings won honorable mention at Armour Institute, where he is a student. And the senior Ishmael is not the only proud father at M-G-M, for there is Oscar Florine, whose 16-year-old daughter, Dorothy, wins just about every athletic trophy at Lake View high school. Miss Dorothy is an all-round champion at her school, but her aquatic prowess is especially noteworthy.

Margaret Mann, the star of "Four Sons," was in town last week, and while here, she gave a talk over the radio. Other Fox personages in town last week were June Collyer and Mr. and Mrs. Sol Wurtzel.

Claud Saunders has been made exploitation chief in the Chicago territory for Paramount, with headquarters here. He is one of the best known exploitation men in the industry.

Chicago Tribune Retracts Story That Fox Is Seeking Marks and Cooney Chains

Publication of a story in the Chicago Tribune, Monday, that Fox Films was negotiating for theatres of the National Playhouses (Cooney Brothers) and Marks Brothers circuits was followed by a "Beg Your Pardon" paragraph Tuesday that the Marks Brothers "state that, while they have received offers for these houses (the Marbro and Granada), they have not entered into any negotiation for their sale."

Survey Shows Business In Indiana on Increase

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

INDIANAPOLIS, March 13.—A survey of general business conditions in Indiana just completed shows that the general trend is toward increased prosperity, with a number of large factories beginning production again and new operations being planned. At Princeton, a new theatre and business building, to cost between $125,000 and $150,000, is to be erected by the recently formed Gibson Hotel and Realty Company.

Louisville Strike Ends; Started Last November

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

LOUISVILLE, March 13.—The strike of Keith employes has been settled. The strike started last November when stagehands walked out, over refusal of the management to employ an extra and unnecessary hand at one of the theatres. A couple of weeks later the musicians got into it.

Sunday Shows Barred

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

BLACKWELL, OKLA., March 13.—By a vote of 1,678 to 1,056, Blackwell has decided not to permit Sunday shows.

You Can Have It—

Washed Air

at SMALL COST , , ,

Want big crowds this summer?
 Want people to come flocking in even on the hottest nights?
 Then, make your theatre the coolest place in town, and the hotter the nights, the more business you'll have.
 You can do it—with the new Supreme Cooling and Air-washing System—

A Permanent Feature Attraction!

No other system comes near the Supreme in effectiveness or operating efficiency. Remember it actually washes the air—by means of a foggy mist. Gives the same results as the big expensive cooling systems used in the big city theatres. Yet, the cost is very moderate. It will more than pay for itself the first summer.

No noise, no drafts—but real, fresh and cooling breezes.

The Supreme System is quieter, more cooling, more efficient and less expensive (both in first cost and in operation) than any other cooling system on the market.

In the Supreme System, all of the air is first passed through a fine, foggy water mist, where it is Freshened and Cooled, then to the Blower, which discharges the Cooled air to the auditorium, at a 35 mile breeze and with such volume as to change the air completely 30 to 60 times per hour. Visualize such a performance and you'll realize why Supreme Systems are so positively successful.

Here It Is!

The Wonderful New Feature which Washes the Air!

The Supreme Turbo Air-Washing Unit—complete in itself—electrically driven and operates from any electric light socket. Can be installed with any cooling system now in use. Creates a dense foggy water-mist through which air must pass before entering blower.

The Blower is Absolutely Noiseless

Below is a phantom view of the new all steel 6-ft. cooling blower, showing the multiblade steel wheel. This blower is an engineering triumph—precisely balanced—running without any vibration or noise.

Horton Variable Speed Pulley

At a slight extra cost, the Supreme Cooling Blower can be furnished with the Horton Variable Speed Pulley—a time-tried product for 25 years and famed for its reliability. This pulley can be furnished with cables for remote control.

Here is the Outstanding System with 8 Big Profit Points and 10 Important Features of Design

VIII

- Cools in summer time.
- Helps heat in winter.
- Fresh air all seasons.
- Scientific air distribution to every part of interior.
- Stimulates business.
- Improves service and efficiency of employees.
- Protects health of patrons and employees.
- Strong advertising appeal.

Steel Construction—All-metal construction makes this system rugged, rigid and silent. It reduces vibration. It assures longer service life. Scientific bracing and reinforcements add to the strength and rigidity of this construction.

Multi-Belt Drive—This triple-traction drive is quiet, positive and safe. Flexing of round belts gives positive expansion grips against pulley grooves. Belts are less susceptible to stretching and wear, and cannot run off the pulleys.

Vari-Speed Hydraulic Control—This plunger applies oil pressure which maintains a corresponding steady pressure against the friction discs at the pulley, and so positively controls the blower speed. With any variation of blower speed available the system becomes a year-around asset, valuable in winter as in summer.

Automatic Safety Shut-Off—The safety switch can automatically release oil pressure when current is turned off. This motor always starts with minimum load, avoiding excess strains on motor and belts.

By-Pass Silencer—Exclusive throat construction that corrects roaring and whistling and assures quiet operation. Arctic Nu-Air Systems are so quiet they are used in funeral homes and broadcasting stations, and other places where silence is imperative.

Big Intake—No blower can deliver more air than it can take in. Look closely to blower intakes, and you'll find this one unusually large. It is precisely designed for the capacity of this blower.

Constant Speed Motor—This inexpensive type of motor is suitable because of the Hydraulic Vari-Speed Control, which gives any desired blower speed. Also this motor uses less current on low speeds, effecting important savings in current consumption.

Air-Flex Impeller Blades—Special design, cushioning the air and avoiding noise caused by impact under high pressures. These blades are highly efficient in load delivery.

Reinforced Construction—Ample reinforcing where needed, adding to rigidity of blower and silence in operation.

Rubber-Lined, Shock-Cushioned Bearings—Hyatt-equipped, self-aligning, noiseless.

Dual Deflector—Complete directional control of air currents. Has beautiful gridded appearance, to harmonize with interior decorations.

In This Issue—

THOMAS E. TALLMADGE, noted architect, points out in an exclusive article, a possible solution for an architectural problem which he believes is now confronting the motion picture theatre; Architects of country reply to his criticism of present-day theatre design.

THIS month "Better Theatres" presents in detail the campaign which won Sunday opening for two exhibitors in Iowa; This campaign, which presents policies and activities should be filed by theatre men who may in the future find themselves face to face with a similar problem.

F. H. RICHARDSON, "Better Theatres" projection authority, this month offers to readers solutions for many problems concerning the proper presentation of the motion picture; Mr. Richardson's analyses and projection hints are published monthly in this section of Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World.

SHOULD you incorporate your theatre? That is an important consideration, and this month Leo T. Parker, legal authority who is writing for "Better Theatres," answers that question for you; Attorney Parker dwells each month upon subjects of vital interest to the motion picture theatre owner.

THIS issue of "Better Theatres" presents pictures and details of many unusual theatres in this and foreign countries; The Cheltenham, The Welwyn, The Rialto and others are presented as examples of the unique and practical in theatre construction—"Better Theatres" Catalog Bureau in this issue.

A year ago this magnificent loge chair was an experiment. Today it is one of the outstanding successes of the theatre seating field.

The three styles of chairs installed in Roxy's 6,200 seat house have stood the test of capacity audiences for over a year. They have given maximum comfort to patrons and have been completely free from service trouble.

Is it any wonder then that Roxy is still enthusiastic over Heywood-Wakefield seating or that he still claims (and rightfully so) that the loge chair shown above is "the finest theatre chair ever built?"

On any seating problem you may have we will be pleased to offer practical suggestions without cost or obligation. A note to any of our sales offices will bring an experienced man.

The Screen, a New Art, Should Pave Road to a New Architecture

Says THOMAS E. TALLMADGE

Last month "Better Theatres" reprinted Mr. Tallmadge's severe criticism of motion picture theatre architecture and entertainment. This criticism was taken from his book, "The Story of Architecture in America." This month this noted architect and Fellow of the American Institute of Architects, amplifies his comments and in an article written exclusively for "Better Theatres" he offers what he considers a possible solution of the problem which he believes has been created by the present-day motion picture structures. Mr. Tallmadge's article for "Better Theatres" and the observations of other architects, prompted by his book, follow on this and subsequent pages.

IN my recent book, "The Story of Architecture in America," I have said some harsh things about the architecture of moving picture theatres.

I realize that there are two distinct points of view in the design of motion picture theatres—that of the architect and that of the owner. The first is actuated by an ideal of beauty; the second, naturally enough, by a determination to make the venture pay. The first optimistically believes that the public appreciates beauty and good taste. The second gives the public credit for no more discretion in such matters than a 14-year-old child. It is not a question of cost at all. Often the owner would spend more money than the architect. It is a question of aesthetic psychology. That is what makes it so interesting. Which is right?

Returning to my book. As I had never built a moving picture theatre and as I was deeply conscious of the truth of Voltaire's aphorism, "It is easier to criticise than to create," I wanted to be sure that my judgment of the usual motion picture house was at least concurred in by others. I, therefore, on every occasion asked my confreres in the architectural profession and my friends, in whose taste and judgment I had confidence, of their opinion in the matter. In almost every case the answer was "terrible," "rotten," "you can't put it too strong," etc. I am quite sure, therefore, that the general conviction exists among architects and many laymen that the architecture of the usual motion picture theatre is very bad.

In regard to the engineering of these buildings, the bold and brilliant solutions of the unprecedented problems of great spans and unusual live loads; of circulation which provides for the entrance and exit of vast crowds; of ventilation; of acoustics; of lighting, I heard and have myself nothing but praise.

It is in the aesthetic side alone that these theatres are regarded to have sinned. One great cause of the artistic debacle has been the introduction of vaudeville, the sandwiching in of slapstick comedy, bathing girls and jazz music between really beautiful and praiseworthy reels. This is just enough to keep me and, I believe, thousands of others away from the movies. That however is unimportant, as there seem to be plenty who do go, but the influence of this sort of thing on the architecture of the building is important. The old nickelodeons in the early days were narrow and long. They were also, it is true, dismal and ugly. But they were logical solutions of the problem. This logical development of the long room idea has been sidetracked for the broad shallow room where everyone can see and hear the comedians. The plan therefore of a modern motion picture auditorium, instead of being a room without a stage, primarily fitted for the purpose of seeing, is merely that of a legitimate theatre enlarged to tremendous proportions. The loss of the opportunity to develop something new and scientific in plan is followed by the loss of an equal opportunity to develop something new and beautiful in architecture.

Architecture, the noblest of the arts, has often been prostituted to do the work of advertising in many of these buildings "for it has been discovered that architecture if sufficiently tortured could be made to yell as loud as the electric signs or the jazz bands."

The most ornate and voluptuous of architectural styles are those of the late French Renaissance, Louis XIV and XV and those of the Spanish Renaissance. These are by all odds the favorites in the decoration of motion picture theatres. I appreciate that these buildings are built for enjoyment and even gaiety and that the decoration should reflect and enhance this is financial and not aesthetic. His solution of this problem is to make his theatre supply a greater thrill than that of any other and thereby attract the greater crowds. The result is a disastrous race to see which house will have the tallest Negro doorman, the brightest lights, the most fantastic architecture.

This situation is eloquently set forth in the Apollo theatre, Chicago, recently re-decorated and rededicated by United Artists. The original Apollo was one of the outstanding examples in America of good theatre design. I am speaking here of its decorative side. Its architects in a brilliant adoption of ancient Greek motives produced an interior not only in the best of taste but intimate and thoroughly "theatre." It made a perfect environment for any production. Its present transformation into an unbelievable Aladdin's cave detracts from the screen, raises your blood pressure and tires your eyes. Its only justification is the theory that the scenery has moved from the stage to the pit, and instead of an auditor you are part of the show itself. Perhaps this is the proper psychology. If so, then let's scrap the old-fashioned French, Spanish and Moorish forms and do something really new.

Let's abolish the old-fashioned ever loaded proscenium, the heavily decorated ceiling with its blind spot in the center, the garlands and cartouches, the corinthian columns and cornices, and all the other trappings of the Palace at Versailles.

Architecture is trembling on the threshold of a new world. The skyscrapers with their new forms are leading the way. In Europe in the new theatres they are using decorative forms, materials and craftsmanship that make our scagliola columns, cartouches and gilded garlands look childish.

Motion pictures are still something new. Why should they not be in the vanguard of the new art?

My prediction is that in 10 years these Louis XIV plush palaces will be as hopelessly old-fashioned as a nickelodeon with a pressed metal ceiling.

There are, of course, many beautiful houses of the silver screen in America. Of those in which an ideal of sheer beauty has been the goal, the Eastman theatre in Rochester is notable. So are some of the smaller theatres by J. H. Phillips, the Players Playhouse in Detroit is exquisite, and I have recently seen plans for a theatre in Lincoln, Neb., by Davis and Wilson which will score as a model, I'm sure, of good taste and practical ability. Of the second type where "thrill" is the ideal there is none comparable, in my opinion, to the two Grauman theatres in Hollywood.

Divorce the motion picture from vaudeville and jazz, from tawdry decoration and vulgar architecture and it will yet take its place not only among the educational and moral forces of this country, but with the arts as well.

purpose of the structure and that even the spirit of Romance should be inspired by the surroundings, but I think that the total effect should be restful rather than exciting; uplifting rather than degrading. The warm and reposeful intimacy of a beautiful home is to be sought rather than the blare and din of an architectural circus. It is not necessary for instance to have all of the surfaces broken and jumbled. An effect of beauty and even of Romance can be achieved by flat surfaces in color. Aside from the use of gilt the surface covered with plaster relief offers little opportunity for color.

Buildings that house, even for a brief time, so many immature minds in both immature and mature bodies have a grave responsibility. In short the goal of the architect and decorator should be beauty rather than sumptuousness, restraint rather than license.

This is not, however, the point of view of the builder-manager. His keenest problem is competition and his primal interest

Today's Jazzy Interiors of Theatres Short-Lived, Declare American Architects

Realizing the importance of the theatre structure itself to the success of the motion picture, "Better Theatres," following its publication last month of an article by Thomas E. Tallmadge, sought from theatre architects an opinion on the present-day type of interior design. With few exceptions these men held that the motion picture theatre, as designed today, could serve its purpose only 10, or not more than 20 years. These opinions follow.

Case Ably Stated, but—

By R. E. HALL

R. E. Hall & Company, New York City

Mr. Thomas E. Tallmadge in his article on the architecture of the motion picture theatre has most ably and bitterly stated the case from the viewpoint of the many people of education and refinement, who are bound to be offended by most of that which is to be found in the design and decoration of the present day motion picture palace. This same class of people would find the atmosphere of Coney Island equally offensive. To many hundreds of thousands, however, a day at Coney Island represents the acme of pleasure and a visit to the cinema palace gives them contact with the grandeur and splendor of their dreams.

It is probable that most of us who have been associated with this class of work in the past decade have had to do many things that were distasteful and the reasons for this are not hard to find.

It will be admitted that the motion picture exhibiting business has developed during this period to tremendous commercial proportions. This success could not have been achieved without appeal to the vast majority in numbers. Those who found themselves at the heads of these enterprises, in attempting to reach their customers, expressed themselves in a language which they understood and the facts seem to warrant the assumption that the appeal was heard and answered.

After all, the architect acts for the most part as an interpreter for the owner, and while often we can exercise considerable latitude in such interpretation, it would be suicide for him to try to direct his efforts contrary to the prescribed requirements of the business as defined by his employer. Unfortunately, there are many architects, and architects must live. In the earlier days of the growth of this industry, there were comparatively few architects with theatrical experience and it was the natural thing for owners to employ the same architect again and again until the idea became prevalent that there was a great deal of mystery about planning a theatre. The business was moving very rapidly and time could not be taken to experiment with an architect not familiar with the problem. Therefore, architects were employed not because they commanded the best designers and the finest artists but because they had designed some other theatre which had been an eminent financial success.

It may be stated also that the nature of the business itself and the general class of clients during this stage of development were not such as to attract architects of the highest standing in the profession.

To the charge that these gorgeous shrines of entertainment are vulgar, the plea must be "guilty." Of course, they are vulgar. Most of what is presented on the stage and screen is vulgar to the highly sensitive person and quite evidently it is not meant for him. It would not be good business to cater to him. To such may be offered one consolation, viz., that those who have invested their fortunes in these buildings fully realize that the probable life of such a building for that purpose is less than 20 years.

The charge of "malignant influence" appears to be attaching an unwarranted importance to something which is merely an adjunct of cheap entertainment. Persons of refinement can easily avoid any contamination and surely every child of theatre-going age looks for bunk and hokum in every phase of the performance and is surprisingly acute in discovering the fakes. We doubt that the masses take their entertainment so seriously.

Mr. Tallmadge very justly confined his criticism to the item of design and decoration and there is no harm in repeating the thought that the modern cinema theatre has done much for the safety and comfort of its patrons even to the point of extravagance.

It is interesting that in the same edition of the HERALD which carried the article by Mr. Tallmadge, appeared the story of the man who designed and built a theatre himself because he could not afford an architect, and it is evident that he has produced something which is very creditable and satisfactory for his purpose. Here, however, necessity and expediency confined him to simplicity which, at least, is not offensive. By the same token, the earlier moving picture theatres were plain and modest, but with rapidly acquired wealth came swank and vulgarity turned to commercial advantage, and we wonder if it is out of place.

The unfortunate angle, from the point of view of the architect, is that we are discussing a temporary building for frivolous purposes, while rarely would such large sums of money be available for permanent buildings of a more serious character.

Inclined to Agree

By GEORGE W. ABERNETHY
Architect, Columbus, O.

After reading Mr. T. E. Tallmadge's article in your issue of February 16, I must confess that I am inclined to rather agree with him.

I, personally, think the debased and jazzy interiors of motion picture theatres today are only the result of modern advertising methods which are used to appeal to the public.

Motion picture theatre operators are demanding just such settings as they are getting, and, as a rule, a sketch submitted which contains some degree of refinement and logic, is immediately rejected.

In other words, the average picture exhibited today demands a jazzy interior and is better patronized than a refined picture in a refined house.

There's Good News in the Ads

Advertising always has been and always will be the source of complete educational and informative news.

In advertising there is presented a knowledge of product which is of inestimable value to the one to whom it is directed.

"Better Theatres," through the advertisements which it publishes, as well as in its text, offers to the buying field an index to product which has a money value at the box office.

This month "Better Theatres" directs attention to news concerning every phase of theatre construction, administration, decoration and operation. It welcomes to its pages the following companies which, in the future, will present the news of their modern installations and product through these columns:

J. P. Seeburg Piano Company, 1510 Dayton street, Chicago.

A reproducing organ, which has been used by many organists, both in the rendition of feature solos and in novelty acts, is the product of the Seeburg Company. A catalog recently issued will be forwarded upon request.

American Seating Company, 14 East Jackson boulevard, Chicago.

An old reliable firm that needs no introduction. A catalog awaits your request.

Arctic Nu-Air Corporation, 500 South Fourth street, Minneapolis.

Summer is on. Only a few more days and spring is here. It is now an opportune time to think about your summer patrons. Among the ventilating and cooling systems is the one manufactured by Arctic Nu-Air. This system will be described for you in the firm's catalog.

The Filmusic Company, 6707 Santa Monica boulevard, Hollywood, Cal.

With your automatic instrument you need rolls. A catalog of the Filmusic Company will give you a complete library of the selections so popular with motion picture patrons. A letter will bring you a complete catalog of the library of Filmusic.

Guercio & Barthel, 1018 South Wabash avenue, Chicago.

This company has entered the motion picture field as the distributor of parts for motion picture projectors and as projection machine repair experts. The extent of this service to exhibitors is told in the company's catalog now available.

The Voigt Company, 1743 North 12th street, Philadelphia.

In the electrical fixture a theatre wants something which is artistic and at the same time a fixture which has showmanship value. The Voigt Company has available sketches of its product for placement in any part of your theatre.

Milwaukee Electric Switchboard Company, 154 Clinton street, Milwaukee.

To the theatre the electrical control of the house is as important almost as the picture itself. Light shadings and stage illumination are requisites of the modern theatre. The Milwaukee Company is in a position to offer this service to the theatre builder.

Crystal Movie Screen Corporation, 1721 East 27th street, Cleveland.

This screen manufacturing company is headed by Leo E. Dwyer, who formerly manufactured National Screens. The Crystal Company's "beaded screen" is a well known product. Complete information regarding this product of the company will be forwarded upon request.

There is good news in these and other advertisements published in this issue of "Better Theatres."

That Summer Heat

Summer heat is, generally speaking, more unbearable than winter cold. The peculiar thing is, however, that theatre men will take every precaution to maintain heat in their theatre during the severe cold spells, but will disregard comfort and health in summer.

The "summer bugaboo" is no longer something to fear in the larger theatres of the country. Summer business maintains an even standard because proper ventilating and cooling systems make an interior far more comfortable than natural air.

Exhibitors who look forward to 52 weeks of money making operation must take into consideration every comfort of their patrons, and not the least of these is the stimulation caused by proper and healthful air.

Better Projection

The Moving Picture Theatre Managers' Training Institute is devoting considerable time to the training of potential exhibitors in the proper and scientific projection of the motion picture.

This course in no way usurps the responsibilities of the skilled projectionist. Its purpose, fundamentally, is to train the potential exhibitor to sense projection values.

Inauguration of such a course is encouraging, for it shows a tendency toward the development of factors which are so vital to this industry. In this connection we wish to call your attention to the monthly features published in "Better Theatres" by F. H. Richardson, the dean of projectionists and an expert in this phase of the business.

A Futuristic Theatre in an English Small Town

Here is a theatre erected in Welwyn Garden City, a town of 6,000 near London. It is decorated principally in plywood, with futurism lending the motif. It seats 1,200.

Foyer of Welwyn Theatre

New Decorative Style Introduced in English Theatre

Highly polished plywood is used in the interior.

AT Welwyn Garden City, which is about 20 miles N. E. of London, a new cinema has just been opened, and will eventually be used chiefly as a "tryout" theatre for the films which British Instructional will be making at the new studios upon which building is about to commence on a nearby site in the Garden City.

The theatre is owned by the company responsible for the erection of the City, which is run almost entirely upon monopolist lines, with central stores, etc. Appreciating the need for a motion picture theatre in the scheme, the Welwyn Company, not caring to invite outside enterprise, were yet confronted with the difficulty of running up a hall which in artistic qualities would equal all other Welwyn undertakings, and which at the same time would not involve too great a capital outlay to ensure reasonable hope of a return from the exclusive, and rather restricted population of 6,000.

Loius de Soissons, the company's architect, hit upon the plan of introducing throughout the whole interior, a decorative scheme worked out in the artistic possibilities of plywood. Thus the cost of the whole structure was very considerably reduced, and at the same time a futuristic and entirely original effect secured. Acoustic properties were also much improved.

The walls consist of a somewhat thin structure of brick, stripped inside with battens, on which the plywood is mounted, leaving a hollow formation in between. At the rear of the hall, this space is filled with seaweed wads for the purpose of stopping the ingress of street sounds, and the echo of music, etc., thrown from the proscenium end. The surface of the plywood is highly polished, and panelling and beading, in multi color which gradually intensifies around the stage give a thoroughly warm sense, and suggest comfort and luxury, without in the least striking the eye as ornate.

A trifle Germanic in design, but an instance most certainly of how economy and artistry often go hand in hand. In the main vestibule of the theatre, the walls are treated in synthetic stone with a chequered design harmonizing with the plywood inside.

Breaking the continuity of the interior wood panelling, are some vertical columns of silvered glass panes, mounted in overlapping formation on thick wooden backers. Each column is surmounted by a canopy hung with a valance of green silk. The effect at a distance is rather like a window on which the sun rays happen to be playing. There is brilliance, though not tawdriness, and the otherwise monotonously straight panels of plywood are effectively broken. It is calculated that with this scheme of interior work, an economy of 25 per cent of the whole construction cost was effected.

The theatre seats 1,200 persons.

Ohio Theatre, Columbus, United Artists House, to Be Opened March 17

The Loew's and United Artists' Ohio theatre management announces that the new house will be opened March 17. A number of the executives of the Loew company were in Columbus recently making final arrangements for the opening.

While details have not yet been completed it is announced that the house will be opened at 11 a. m., although the formal opening ceremonies will not be held until 8 p. m. of that date. Arrangements are being made to make the dedication ceremonies one of the most magnificent affairs of its kind in Columbus. State, county and city officials will be invited to participate.

The house has a seating capacity of 3,000. The program will be patterned after that of the Capitol theatre in New York.

Gallagher Making New Mobile Stage Lift Contrivance

A new mobile stage lift platform, announced as compact and easily adaptable to stage sets, has just been placed on the market by Gallagher Orchestral Equipment & Manufacturing Company.

The device, says the Gallagher company, has been designed to meet the requirements of the present popular type of stage presentation. The platform is made up of individual units which can be bolted together to form a complete rigid platform or separated for stage sets. Each one of these carriages or units has three terraced platforms. The rear two can be raised and lowered individually, in groups or in unison and the entire stage propelled forward and back. Electric motors of ample power are provided for operations. For the control of these motors, a set of switches is installed in convenient location so that at all times the entire operation is under the control of the orchestra leader.

The control switchboard is so arranged that it can be placed anywhere on the mobile stage or main stage as desired. Furthermore, pre-arranged movements can be set and operated from any part of the house. The only thing necessary is to string one light cable to desired location but for the next operation it will be necessary to reset switches.

Each unit runs on four wheels directly on the stage floor without nails and is provided with self-aligning ball bearings mounted on a steel frame. This frame is made flexible so as to allow for any unevenness which may occur in the stage floor. Limit switches are provided to prevent over travel up or down on the lift platforms and to prevent over travel backward or forward, a solenoid brake is installed.

The lift platforms are suspended from four posts by means of four bands of spring steel, one at each corner. The steel bands are connected to a shaft mounted on self-aligning ball bearings operated by a specially built winch which raises and lowers the platform at the will of the operator. Power is obtained for this purpose from 1/3 h.p. motors whose speed is reduced in a compact specially designed winch, through a train of spur gears running in cast-iron housings on Timken roller bearings and provided with a mechanical brake of oversize design to hold the platforms in any position desired. This brake is similar to the one used in all cranes and hoists. A like unit is used for propelling the carriages back and forth. These units are mounted on soft rubber bushing.

In order to clear the main stage, ring bolts are installed in the front end of each section permitting the entire device to be hoisted up against the stage back wall.

Your Sunday Opening Campaign!

Each year the reform element of the country becomes active in its drive for regulatory legislation which will tie the hands and feet of the motion picture industry. Since its inception this publication has provided many exhibitors with material with which to offset this nuisance.

In this issue "Better Theatres" presents a complete campaign for those who are confronted by a blue Sunday situation. This campaign has been tested. It is clean-cut and is a credit to the men who planned and conducted it. The ideas presented herewith are worthy of consideration for—

Youngclaus & Latta Won and You, Too, Should Win Your Fight

In a recent issue the Herald-World published a news story of the successful campaign conducted by Youngclaus & Latta of Perry, Ia., to obtain Sunday opening.

Following publication of this story, these exhibitors received so many requests for their campaign that the demand was greater than the supply of material. In their desire to aid as many brother exhibitors as possible, the Perry theatre men offered to cooperate with "Better Theatres" and through this medium present their entire campaign. On this and the succeeding pages their campaign follows:

Sunday Opening Campaign

1. First call on members of your city council and see how they feel toward the opening of Sunday motion picture shows. No doubt they will agree to bring it to a special election if a large enough petition is presented, the exhibitor of course, to stand election costs.

2. Have city attorney draw up petitions, then circulate them among the people of your city. No one else should do this for you. Simply take your time, devoting so many hours each day. Do not fuss with any one, but display kindness to every one.

3. Lay your foundation well in advance by giving free "kid" parties and benefits for various organizations of the city, never failing of course to get big stories in the local papers. Give 50 per cent of all tickets sold and let these organizations make some real money. It pays in the long run. Do everything possible to build good will for your theatre and yourself.

4. The minute you start circulating your petition you may expect almost anything from your opposition, but don't get excited. Go right ahead regardless of what is said or done. Praise the churches to the sky and never take exception to anything that is said. Make no noise and keep the whole thing free from a fight as far as you are concerned. In fact, state that you are not making a fight, but are simply asking for an expression of the people and are perfectly willing to stand by their decision. Display the Christian spirit.

5. We were attacked from every angle and many times had to almost run into hiding to cool off, but we stuck with the ship and simply smiled regardless of what was said.

Yes

6. As stated before don't rush things. We spent six weeks gathering names for our petition. Be sure none but those qualified to vote sign your petition. Handle everything absolutely on the square. Canvass your business institutions first, then the factories and residences.

7. Before we started we gave free shows for the different laboring classes of the city. Does this help? Try it and see.

8. When you feel you have enough signers on your petition, present it to the council some time when it is least expected. Do not let anyone know when you are going to present your petition for the reason you will not encounter difficulties.

9. If the council grants you an election it is understood, of course, that in the event you win the election they will rescind the old ordinance and permit you to run.

10. Now that you have permission to call a special election, do not make the mistake of setting election date too soon. We would suggest that you make it not less than four weeks away. You want the opposition to fire all ammunition before you attack. You start shooting two days before election.

11. Continue working so quietly that even those on your side will feel you are not doing anything. The opposition will organize and start working the minute you start with your petition, but never let on or worry. You have all to gain and nothing to lose. Let them do all the fighting. The more that can be said about you, the more the sentiment is going to swing your way. People always flock to the underdog.

12. In presenting your argument always do it in a clean way. Do not antagonize anyone. You can win many over to your side by simply presenting facts in a straight forward manner. In getting signers for our petition we worked in all kinds of weather and went every place. From the store to the factory, to the shop, to the furnace room, to the home, every nook and corner. You could find us up on top of a coal car just as quickly as you could find us in the doctor's or lawyer's office. We did not intend to miss a soul.

13. By all means have it understood with your newspaper that you do not wish a fight. It should be no effort for the paper to remain more or less quiet, simply making mention of the election, but in no way taking sides.

14. Do not release any ads until about two days before election, then use a whole page as per our copy the last two days before election. Send each signer of your petition a letter similar to the letter we used and also enclose a copy of all the facts you can give why you should have permission to open on Sunday. This letter should reach your signers the night before election.

15. Have window cards printed showing the ballot and calling attention to the date of election. Be sure your ballot is made very plain to avoid mistakes in voting. Do not overlook securing all the absent votes you can. Also have plenty of small election cards printed for the day of election and see that there is some one near the polls all day handing out these cards asking the people to vote "Yes." Care should be exercised in having the right kind of people give these cards out. Have both women and men doing this.

Organization

16. It is very vital that you have a perfected organization and it is not going to be an easy matter to get an organization, but it can be done. Do not expect the merchant or the other fellow to fight your fight, because, after all, it is really your fight. The merchants as a whole are for you but they have to be very careful what they do.

Get your best politicians to work with you. Have all the ladies you can. Do not make any noise about this. If you can organize without anyone knowing about it, so much the better. Make your theatre headquarters and have plenty of cars lined up for work the morning the polls open. The minute the call comes in go after the voter regardless of how they vote. Keep smiling. Have a lady at your 'phone, too, not only to take calls, but to keep calling people she knows that will vote. Also have two or three ladies calling all day from the homes.

The minute anyone hears of a voter they should call headquarters. Do not let up for one minute until the polls close. Polls should be open from 8 a. m. until 7 p. m. Do not display any banners on your cars. The other side may, but that's all right. Just keep in mind you are not fighting. Let the other side fight you all they wish.

17. In the beginning, you should have a talk with your ministers and tell them what you are going to do and why you have to do it. They will try to discourage you, of course, but assure them it is purely a business proposition with you and that if you lose you will be a good sport and that you hope they will do the same if they lose. Assure them as well as everyone that if you win, you will show the very finest grade of product to be had. Make no promises, however, that you cannot keep.

18. With regard to organization, be very careful whom you have working for you. None but the very finest, and instruct everyone to display the kindest spirit to everyone.

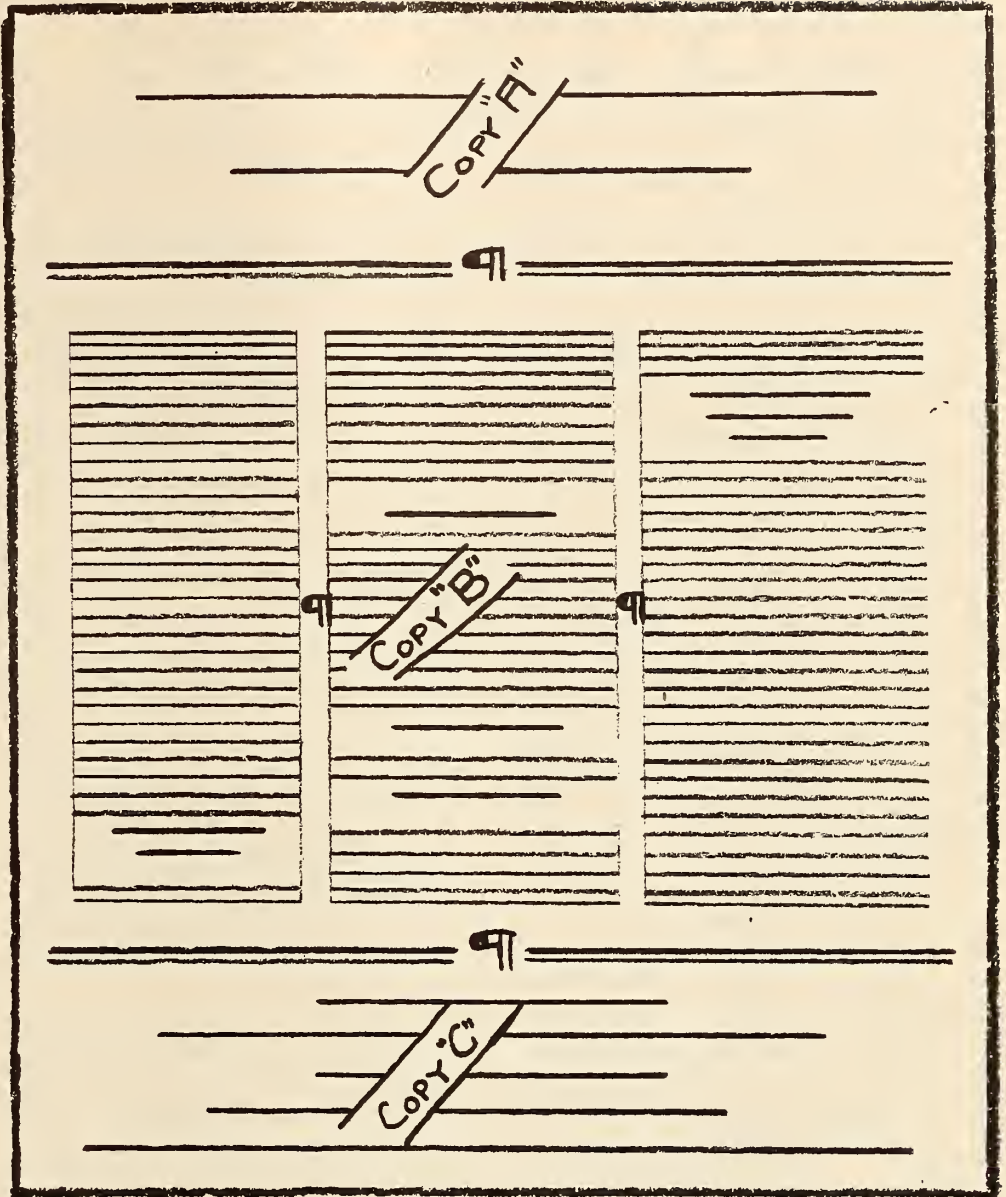

19. If you win your election, do not celebrate too freely, for you must remember your ordinance has not been passed yet. You will find plenty of excitement, but just pursue your same policy. Call the ministers and tell them you can only say, of course, that you are happy to have won, for it is great to be a winner. You are sorry they lost, but someone had to lose. Assure them of your friendship and your willingness to cooperate at all times.

20. We gave free matinees before the election and presented our side of the question to the people. We also gave a special matinee to the school children the day before election and asked them to carry into their homes the hand bills we had for them. This is a good stunt and you can count on 90 per cent of those bills reaching the homes.

21. The above is just an outline of our campaign and if it is followed in general with good hard efforts, we feel sure the majority will find it of benefit. It means work and plenty of it. For weeks we were working day and night, but we have been well rewarded.

Not only are we enjoying our Sunday business but we are enjoying the good will of the people of our community. The ministers and church people who were opposed have been good sports and we are still working hand in hand. We are still giving benefit programs and doing everything we can to prove our sincerity.

When the election was over it was said from every side that we put over one of the best and cleanest campaigns in the history of the city. We got out the largest vote ever cast in the history of the city, so there was no question but what the people of Perry wanted Sunday entertainment. Because of our clean campaign we created a lot of good will for ourselves. We realize the value of good will and did not care to win unless we

This article is not written so much with the thought of influencing the minds of the voters as it is to present our side of the question as to whether we shall or shall not be permitted to operate our theatres seven days instead of six days each week.

That we are vitally interested in the continued growth and prosperity of Perry is best evidenced by the fact that we have invested a great amount of money here. In fact, we have had money invested in Perry real estate for several years and have lately added greatly to our holdings here by buying and rebuilding another theatre.

As we have said before, we are anxious to keep Perry prosperous, and we have been, and always will be, boosters for any enterprise that looks good for the community progress. We take an active and interested part in the municipal, civic and commercial affairs and try to do our bit in the organizations striving for city betterment. We want Perry to be a good town, not only for business, but a good place in which to live. We have established our homes here, and intend to be here a long, long time. Naturally, we would do nothing that we thought was detrimental to the moral or financial interests of the city.

More and more the smaller towns are coming to realize that they must put forth every effort possible if they are to survive the encroachments made upon them by the larger cities. The great efforts being made by the city stores to bring business from the smaller towns and the country over wide territories, and the easy methods of transportation, have had a real effect on the smaller towns. Amusements play a large part in the bringing of people to a town. They come to see a show, and come back to buy. Not long ago the commercial interests in Des Moines decided on a campaign in the newspapers to interest people in Des Moines as a trading center. Most of the advertising was devoted to the shows and other things of amusement offered in Des Moines. Very little of the space was devoted to merchandise. Yet, the purpose was to sell merchandise. The stores in Des Moines recognized the drawing power of clean amusements, and in most of the advertising you will remember they named the different shows.

If a business man does not get people into his store he cannot sell his merchandise, and he cannot carry as large a stock, nor can he and the other men in the business be prosperous. This has its effects on the whole industrial prosperity. A town cannot be progressive or its real estate values high, unless the business men in the town are enjoying good business. If the town does not offer inducements to get the people to form the habit of coming there they will not get nearly as many into their stores to trade.

A Good Theatre Is A Community Asset

A good theatre is more than just a well built playhouse. It is a place where people go to enjoy their recreation and rest. It is a place for clean, wholesome entertainment. The people who go to a theatre that gives clean shows are good people. Good motion pictures, combined with good music in pleasant surroundings, make the best entertainment possible. Better business is always one of the rewards derived by the owners of a theatre offering such entertainment, and this increased business enables them to buy the best pictures. The reward to the theatregoer for a prosperous, well patronized showhouse is better shows.

A modern theatre is an indispensable factor in the social and business life of the present-day community, providing inspiration and incentive to the population. Business goes where people go. People go to the best shows. No modern theatre is opened today in any community without materially increasing the desirability and property values of that community.

Perfect Relaxation

Who has not said, "I'd like to go somewhere by myself and get away from all this work and worry until I am rested up." Modern existence drives a man. The sleeping period has been shortened materially in the last decade and the shortening process continues. Even in his recreation hours man is a hard worked animal these days. Perfect relaxation is not beyond his reach, however, and it is not necessary to retire to a mountain camp to find it. The relaxation offered by the theatre is perfect.

Within the theatre the man enjoys splendid isolation. Although surrounded by fellowmen the courtesy of silence protects him as a wall. Even the interruptions of his own mind running over and over the cares and problems of the day, do not break upon an interest held by good visual entertainment. Bodily comfort is his, mental comfort is his, he rests

Thank You

Dear Friend:

We take this opportunity and this method of thanking you for signing our petition asking the council to call an election on Sunday Movies, in Perry.

With your help and co-operation we have been given permission by the City Council of Perry to put this question before the people in an election. This election will be financed entirely by Youngclaus & Latta, a certified check having been placed in the hands of the City Clerk to pay all expenses of the election.

In order to make this election a success and that we may win the right to run moving pictures seven days a week, we feel that anything you can do to help us obtain our objective will not only benefit us but benefit the entire City of Perry in a business way, and from a moral standpoint, too.

We pledge you our word that should we win this election we will run nothing in either one of the theatres that would or could offend any one. We assure you further we will use all care and precaution in the selection of programs for not only Sundays but every day in the week.

We ask you to use your judgment in whatever manner you may see fit toward helping us. We might suggest that you take it upon yourself to assume a certain amount of responsibility by making it a point not only to vote yourself on this day but to interest anyone you might think of and see that they do vote on Friday, November 18.

It will be of interest to those owning real estate here, and to those hopeful for the prosperity of your city that if we are successful in obtaining this new ordinance and the increased business therefrom, it is our intention to remodel the Grand Theatre, thus giving Perry two model and up-to-date moving picture houses.

Thanking you for your co-operation and support, we remain,

*Very truly yours,
YOUNGCLAUS & LATTA.*

completely. He leaves the theatre revitalized, better able to resume the burden of existence.

Theatre Policy

We believe we have an unquestionable policy in conducting our theatres in view of the fact this policy has gained recognition all over the world. Yet we are always open to constructive criticism for the betterment of our institutions.

[Set this subhead in 30 point italics.]

Is It Wrong?

Is it any more wrong to visualize a story than to read a newspaper or a book on Sunday?

Is it any more wrong to go car riding for pleasure, or go visiting where there is laughter and amusement, or go to a picnic or many other things of the kind than it is to sit through a good clean picture being projected on the silver screen? Can you think of a more quiet, peaceful and instructive way to spend leisure hours?

We believe people should go to church at least once, and if possible twice on Sunday. We would not want our business to interfere in any way with the church or the church function, and we feel sure that it does not. There is nothing finer than the church, and nothing more necessary to the welfare and prosperity of the community. However, we do not feel that we conflict in any way with the churches nor with their services.

A Question

[Set this subhead in 30 point italics.]

For You to Decide Tomorrow

Shall we or shall we not be permitted to operate our theatres seven days a week?

That is for you to decide at our expense. There are many arguments "pro" and "con," but our story is very simple.

Almost every town around Perry is permitted to run, which makes it very difficult for us. We have not only invested several thousand dollars in the theatre business in Perry, but have been working hard to give you the very finest of entertainment, the kind of entertainment to which you are entitled. Such entertainment costs real money. We have no desire to present other than the very best, but at the same time we must show a profit.

Close the theatres all over the country and our story will be a different one, but to try and compete with others operating seven days a week makes it a very difficult problem.

We have been giving you many shows ahead of Des Moines and Omaha, we have put forth every effort to have none but the very finest. We have made a beautiful house of the Roxy and have elaborate plans for rebuilding the Grand, surely we are worthy of your whole hearted support.

With us this is not a FIGHT but merely a business proposition. Furthermore, we insist that those who may support the issue do nothing but what is fair. We are merely asking for an expression of the people and are perfectly willing to abide by the decision of the people. We further assure you of our good will and whole hearted support regardless of the outcome of the election.

It is your duty as a voter to cast your ballot, and regardless of how you may vote, we sincerely and earnestly urge you to go to the polls and vote according to your honest, sincere convictions. Regardless of how you wish to vote we will gladly furnish transportation to the polls.

All we ask is that you weigh the issue carefully and then cast your vote according to your own personal belief in the matter. If you can support the issue we thank you for your vote. If you are opposed we thank you just the same and assure you of our good will.

BETTER PROJECTION

By F. H. RICHARDSON

As to Vitaphone Instructions

Glenn R. King, Marion, Va., asks about Vitaphone instruction. Had friend King read the department regularly, as he should have done, he would have known that Vitaphone and Movietone instructions cannot be had except by those projectionists actually handling the apparatus. When Vitaphone-Movietone is installed, the projectionist receives ample instruction in its handling before the installation engineers leave; also he will have left with him a very complete loose-leaf instruction book which will be kept right up to date by the Western Electric Company.

Projectionists therefore need have no apprehension as to this apparatus, because if they be competent projectionists they will have no trouble at all.

If, however, they be men who have failed or refused to study the technical side of their profession—well, that may prove to be something else again, and it may be very difficult, if not impossible, for them to assimilate the instructions and handle the apparatus efficiently.

The obvious moral is: STUDY YOUR BUSINESS AND TREAT IT AS A PROFESSION. You then need have no fear, no matter what apparatus you are called upon to handle. The man who thoroughly understands the underlying principles which govern the various things allied with motion picture projection can quickly assimilate instruction in details of handling apparatus, whereas the one who has no such competent understanding will sooner or later find himself in very hot water.

Big Things in the Future

The projection pot boils merrily. Gradually errors of the past are cast up, out and off, and the sap settles slowly down to better syrup of procedure. Inadequate equipment gives place to improvement. The lenses of yesterday no longer are declared to be perfect. They give way to better lenses than those we but a while ago swore by Isis and Osiris were the very acme of perfection. We live to learn and work to improve. The machine operator of yesterday is the motion picture projectionist of today. He who will not advance with the procession will sooner or later find himself by the roadside watching the procession go by, roundly cursing his "luck" in all human probability.

Great theatre chains are forming. Great combinations of capital are combining the supply business into huge units. Theatres are becoming bigger and better. Even now many of them can only be justly described as palaces, while one, with just cause, terms itself a "Cathedral of the Motion Picture."

The orchestra in motion picture theatres has grown from a single and often tin-pany piano, played by a gum-chewing girl, to an aggregation of as many as 60 instruments, presided over by the best leaders obtainable at any price.

The picture itself has grown from 50 feet of film depicting the run of a fire department, to 8,000 feet which carries sufficient of dramatic or comedy interest to cause capacity audiences to pay two to two and a half dollars and sit in wrapt interest for full two hours. And now motion pictures are successfully combined with color and sound, so that the president of our country may actually make what amounts to, to all intents and purposes, a personal appearance in many towns and villages each day, and soon the Jenny Lind of future days, whoever she may be, will be able to appear "personally" and sing before audiences in every village in our great land.

But that was not what I had in mind when I started this oration. The particular thing that started me off was the fact that a few days ago I looked at one of the most pleasing and startling changes in projector design (taken as a whole, I mean) I have yet seen. I can't tell you just what it is, but maybe before this goes to press I will be able to. I don't know. Anyhow it is a projector with which you all are familiar, and believe you me it's nothing short of a beauty, as it will from now on appear.

Then, too, you just watch Movietone. We're working on things which may make you all set right smack up and take notice before the story is all told. Notice the "we." I'm on their staff, and mighty proud to be, too, permit me to advise you. Movietone is the real thing and it's coming strong with a great big capital S.

The Fulco Company advises me that they have something up their honorable sleeve in the way of a projector. Couldn't pry information as to just what it is out of C. H. Fulton, though he nearly ate me out of house and home down at the N. V. A. club. Every time he'd take a fresh bite I'd come in with: "What is that projector," whereupon he would start a conversation concerning the weather, the financial outlook or some darned thing I didn't care anything whatsoever about. Even after a whole lot was gone out of a bottle of—ginger ale, he refused to loosen up. Then I had friend daughter vamp him, but it was no go. On that projector "C. H." successfully staged a very wonderful clam act. I'll bet though, whatever it may be it'll be good, because Fulton knows his groceries exceedingly well and is not given to pulling flivvers.

And so I might continue at length, citing new things and bigger and better things which loom upon the horizon. Men, I've told you many times, and I tell you again, that you'd better study your business—the technical end, I mean. The time is now here, and the men in great theatres are beginning to realize it, when expert knowledge of technical matters connected with projection is necessary in large city theatres. THAT TIME WILL SOON COME IN SMALLER ONES TOO, make you no mistake about that.

The day when any man who can thread a projector, strike an arc or light a mazda, make a film splice of some sort and rewind film is a competent man, is passing and passing rapidly. Movietone will before long become a vital necessity for even the small village theatre, because of the fact that really splendid orchestral music will accompany the productions when Movietone is used, thus enabling the village theatre to stage its pictures with real music; moreover with Movietone our great ones, such as the President, for example, may appear to all intents and purposes personally in the village theatre.

And permit me to advise you that the "practical man" is going to find his "practice" won't be so satisfying to him when he finds that sort of equipment on his hands. He will then expend energy kicking himself around several city blocks because he turned his nose up at the idea of "studying books and projection departments," and I don't mean maybe either.

So I'm again saying to you men who refuse to study and read departments, for about the five hundredth time: you will do well to supplement your experience with some real study, and do it NOW. Even the most powerful union can't hold you in a job where there is equipment you cannot handle successfully because you lack knowledge, and so you will gradually drop down and finally OUT. Get yourself busily busy, brother, before it is too late.

Have Them Overhauled

From a projectionist I think it best not to name comes this letter: "I have subscribed to the 'WORLD' ever since 1909 because of its projection department. Am working on my first motion picture operating job since 1917. We have two second-hand Powers machines, 6B with 6A motor drives. They are equipped with Powerlite Reflector Arc light sources, which are a wow. They are fine!

"On one of the machines there is a slight circumferential movement to the intermittent movement. It is quite noticeable on some pictures, but on others everything is steady. There is a terrible travel ghost on both machines. All screws were loose on the front shutter when I came, as well as two that hold the spindle on the machine and three on the fan hub. Tightened them and it was much better, though there still is some travel ghost.

Correspondence for F. H. Richardson, editor of this department, should be addressed to South Lyme, Conn., Box 100.

"The machines need overhauling. It is seven years since they were fixed up, the old owner told me. Is there any way to get the circumferential movement out of the intermittent without taking the oil casing cover off. I took all end play out of the intermittent cam shaft."

I have printed this practically as written, for two reasons: First you who think nomenclature is unimportant try to see if you can be entirely certain as to what this man really means. Also, what sort of an "exhibitor" was the old owner, who let projector mechanisms go for SEVEN YEARS without an overhauling? What did he expect from a mechanism anyhow? Does he imagine a mechanism operating 20 times a second under pretty heavy strain is going to run SEVEN YEARS without replacements and repairs; without overhauling? The thing is utterly ridiculous.

In this case I can offer absolutely no advice other than to send those mechanisms in to the factory for overhauling. Cost? Certainly it will cost, but it will cost your new owner very much more at his box office if he don't. And I don't mean maybe either! The probability is that the gears are badly worn. If so, you cannot remove travel ghost without cutting altogether too much light. In other words you will have to make your rotating shutter blade too wide in order to compensate for the lost motion.

The International Projector Corporation will loan your new owner two projector mechanisms while the old ones (old ones is RIGHT) are being repaired, but the really correct thing to do, and the thing that would be far cheapest and best in the long run, would be to discard those projectors, all except the Powerlite equipment, and GET NEW ONES.

Cost? Again, certainly! BUT I say to your new owner that a bum picture doesn't tend to coax people to patronize his box office frequently. It KEEPS THEM AWAY! And again I don't mean maybe! It is not good business to pay rental for productions, and project them to the screen as a jumpy, streaky MESS. That sort of thing sets up eye strain, makes the picture unbeautiful and in the end COSTS THE EXHIBITOR A HUNDRED TIMES AS MUCH IN LOST BUSINESS AS IT WOULD HAVE COST TO HAVE KEPT THE PROJECTORS IN PERFECT REPAIR.

And now as to this good brother himself. He has been out of the business for 11 years. I would most earnestly advise him to send six dollars to the Chalmers Publishing Company and secure a copy of the Bluebook of Projection, which is the fifth edition of my handbook. It is in two volumes, limp leather bound, has about 1,100 pages and hundreds of illustrations. Then lie awake nights studying. Eleven years has meant a LOT in projection practice and he must catch up.

As to nomenclature, an intermittent movement cannot have a "slight circumferential movement," but the intermittent sprocket may have and that is undoubtedly what is meant. Removal of the oil casing cover has nothing to do with the matter. I cannot spare space for a description and the illustrations necessary to tell how to adjust the circumferential movement out, and anyhow it is entirely possible, if not probable, that the movement is so badly worn that it could not be done. All these things are explained in the instructions on the Powers projector, pages 667 to 704A, second volume of the Bluebook.

As to nomenclature, you call a projector a "machine." It is that, of course. So is a piano or a camera, but you don't call them "machines" do you? You say you are a "moving picture operator." We don't call them "operators" any more, but Motion Picture Projectionists.

You are located in a village and I want to help you, but real help does not consist in trying to assist you in continuing a thoroughly inefficient condition. Get new projectors or get new projector mechanisms. That is my advice. If your employer will not or cannot do that, then at the very least get loan mechanisms and send your old ones in for a thorough overhauling. Whether your employer will follow that advice or not, IT IS THOROUGHLY SOUND ADVICE.

Coming to New York

My friend, P. A. McGuire, advertising manager of International Projector Corporation, recently showed me his reply to a letter from a man in the Middle West who wished to come to New York. He wrote asking about the possibility of an opening, as many have written me in years past.

McGuire's reply was so excellent that I begged leave to print its salient paragraphs, without, of course, disclosing the name or location of the one to whom it is directed. Here it is:

"* * * I have given your letter much consideration. It really is an extremely difficult matter to locate out-of-town men in New York City. It is in fact almost as difficult as it would be in your own locality. It is quite true that men come to New York City and eventually get into something, but usually much time is consumed before it happens, and there may be considerable heartbreak, too.

"As you doubtless know, city regulations and union rules are very exacting in large cities. It would be very hard to get work as a motion picture projectionist. Although a native of New York City from birth, I never encourage men to come here, unless they have most excellent reasons for so doing. If men only would realize it, in the vast majority of cases they are very much better off in a small community than in a city such as New York."

To every word of which I say Amen! McGuire is entirely right, though it usually is impossible to make men see it. There is a glamor to great cities; especially to New York City. The cold facts however, are, that every line I know anything at all about not only is filled, but also almost invariably a surplus of men are seeking employment in it. That is true of every phase of the motion picture industry, so that the out-of-town man starts with a handicap, which in projection is made infinitely greater by the fact that he must have a city license, which he may get without much trouble if he is really capable of passing a fair examination, though not without weeks of delay. He also must belong to the union, and naturally the union won't admit even card men until it has no members of its own out of work.

McGuire is eminently correct! DON'T GO TO ANY GREAT CITY SEEKING AN OPENING UNLESS YOU HAVE SUFFICIENT CAPITAL TO KEEP YOU FOR AT LEAST TWO MONTHS. Two months I would regard as an absolute minimum, unless you are willing to take any old thing you can get—and believe you me, brother, there are, right now, THOUSANDS of men in this great city who would consider ANY kind of a job which paid a wage they could live on as in the nature of a Godsend. Chicago is, I understand, much the same. My advice to all men just now is to stay absolutely where they are if they are making a living.

Absolutely Correct

Down in Dallas, Tex., a regional publication devoted to motion picture affairs, and on its editorial page, by S. G. Howell, editor, this appeared in a recent issue: "The physical equipment of the theatre with organs, projectors, lighting, scenery, etc., brings to view another set of crafts based on sciences un-

No money buried here

C-H Dimmers bring out all the architectural beauty

MONEY invested in architectural beauty is buried—when that beauty is half hidden by darkness. Unseen, it pulls no crowds—returns no dividends.

But C-H "Simplicity" Dimmers bring out all the beauties of a theater. They are the final and all important touch to theater decoration.

Whether your theater is in the plan stage or has been opened for years it can be given crowd-pulling beauty with C-H Dimmers. The investment will pay surprising dividends in steadier and larger receipts.

Ask your architect or electrical contractor how easily C-H Dimmers can be installed. And in the meantime write for the booklet, "Illumination Control for the Modern Theater". It is full of valuable pointers.

known to the exhibitor, to the perfection of which mechanical genius has given its best."

That is absolutely true, but it is also true that many exhibitors seem to have small realization of the fact, if we may judge by their attitude when it comes to employing men to handle these things, and the indifference displayed regarding the results attained.

A great number of exhibitors seem to have small understanding of the enormous toil and expense men have put into the perfection of the things their theatre and they themselves benefit by. They accept finely built equipment and often actually assist in its shameful abuse by employing men with but slight knowledge to handle and care for it. Nor do they make any intelligent effort to determine the fitness of the men they place in charge of costly equipment.

It is no pleasure to say these things, but fact is fact. Not long since I was employed by a New York exhibitor to ascertain why his projector repair bills were so apparently excessive, and why bearings on a new motor generator set had to be replaced in a very short time.

I found the projectionist using 3-In-One oil for his projectors and something just a trifle heavier for his motor generator. His answer to my surprised protest was: "Why, 3-In-One is advertised everywhere as a high grade oil."

I asked the exhibitor what pains he had taken to ascertain the competency of the man before he was employed. His reply was: "Why, he seemed to be all right and he was a member of the union." And that seemed to cover the whole matter in the mind of that exhibitor, so far as concerned the matter of competency.

Well, he had to pay for his foolishness, but it does seem about time that such procedure be abandoned. That a man may "seem all right" is no proof that he really is all right, nor does the fact that a man belongs to the union mean that the employer should fail to

Reportorial Ignorance

E. E. Beattie, projectionist, Norwalk theatre, Norwalk, Cal., sends in a newspaper clipping in which the following paragraph occurs: "They were thrown into a panic by the fire and smoke which poured from the projection booth, following the explosion of a moving picture machine."

Beattie suggests that, in the interests of the theatre-going public, I ought to get into touch with projector manufacturers and see if they cannot arrange to produce a non-explosive "picture machine."

I don't think that is so much necessary, Brother Beattie, as it would be desirable to get into touch with newspapers and induce them to set reporters who presume to write daily upon subjects of which they know exactly nothing at all, on top of some real explosive (a full keg of it, by the way) and touch it off. Possibly that would not stop other dumbbell reporters from evolving "explosive picture machines" out of their imaginations and inflicting their mental invention upon us.

Personally, however, I would prefer to shut such free-hand writers up in a room with a black animal I know of, which has a bushy tail and a stripe down his dear li'l back, there to remain until such time as he has exploded one of those "picture machines" he writes so glibly about! The punishment would, methinks, fit the crime very well, since his writings upon such subjects certainly smell to high heaven of just, plain unadulterated ignorance of his subject.

make reasonable examination into the matter of his competency. The union which objected to such procedure would not be placing itself in a very good light, to say the least. It would, in fact, appear both unreasonable and rather foolish.

True, all union men are presumed to be competent. That is the theory, but you know gentlemen, fact and theory are not always in alignment. I most sincerely trust the time is not far distant when a union card will be a certificate of thorough competency, as it is in the Locomotive Engineers union for example, but you know, I know and we all know that time is not yet here, largely, let it be said in justice, because of the attitude of the exhibitor himself.

Exhibitors should begin to realize that the investment required to build and equip a modern theatre is now very large, and things must be handled in a business-like way if success is to come. They should demand thorough competency in theatre employes, especially those who will be in charge of costly mechanical and optical equipment. It is their right to do so and they ought to do it in self protection, BUT two facts must be recognized, viz: (a) high grade competency costs more than does incompetency; (b) It is much cheaper in the end. A union scale is really not a fixed scale at all, but merely a price to be paid for the poorest men in the grade supplied to the theatre.

New, Beautiful Wisconsin Theatre

James Hart, projectionist, Oshkosh, Wis., says: "Dear Mister Richardson: I now have charge of projection in the new Fischer theatre here (one of many theatres owned or operated by the Fischer Theatres Company, with general offices in Chicago.—Ed.) which is one of Wisconsin's most beautiful theatres, and one of the very few in which projection plays an important part.

"Have the largest projection suite in the Middle West, with up-to-the-minute equipment: Simplex projectors, Hertner transverters, Brenkert F3 effect projector, Chicago Cinema Automatic Rewind (geared down to seven minutes) Weaver Automatic Dousers, Ross lenses, forced ventilation, separate toilet and generator rooms and, best of all, I am not obliged to project at an unreasonable speed.

"The Fischer's Theatres management policy is to give the projectionist the best of equipment plus plenty of room and a reasonable amount of time to project the picture, and does this make for high class work? I'll say it does!"

And so will I! The Fischer's Theatres management must understand its business pretty thoroughly, including the fact that it is far from good business, from the box office viewpoint, to utterly ruin all artistic effect by jamming pictures through at race horse speed.

I congratulate brother Hart upon his equipment, and upon his ability to appreciate it and the PRIVILEGE of being able to put the productions before audiences at something like 100 per cent of their amusement and entertainment value.

The "Wise" Architect Again!

From a city in the West comes this letter: "Dear Mister Richardson: I have just leased an old but very nice theatre which has for many years been used for roadshows. It has a balcony and a gallery. I propose to remodel it thoroughly and convert it into a theatre for motion pictures, utilizing the stage for an occasional prologue. The latter I shall try to stage with local talent.

"I have a friend who is an architect of recognized ability. He has volunteered the advice that I should place the projection room, which he calls the 'booth' sometimes and sometimes the 'coop,' at the rear of the gallery, where there happens to be plenty of space of no use for anything else. I have told him this will make a very steep pitch in projection. I have shown him articles by you objecting to this; also the Bluebook, but he says that is all piffle. He says the audience won't know the difference and by putting the room up there I will be using space of no value for anything else, and avoid the fire hazard entirely.

"Will you be good enough to advise me about this? To place the projection room on the lower floor (it cannot be located in the balcony) would take up space which could be used for the highest priced seats. There is room at the rear of the main floor auditorium wall for a good room; but the front of the balcony is too low to permit of the light beam clearing the heads of those passing beneath it, as they would have to, and at the same time clear the balcony."

Again we have the architect who, however able as an architect, has little or no knowledge of optics and motion picture projection. Those gentlemen do inestimable harm to the motion picture industry, and I don't mean maybe either. It is quite correct to say the audience will, save for a possible few, know absolutely nothing is wrong if you place the projection room at the top of the gallery. However, will your "recognized ability" architect presume to say, or might I put it this way, have the nerve to say that a distorted picture, in which nothing therein bears a true, natural relation to anything else, will be as beautiful and satisfactory to audiences as an undistorted picture? And if the beauty of the general result is reduced won't that fact react to the reduction of box office receipts?

Piffle is it! Ask that architect for me if he has the GALL to arrogate to himself a greater knowledge of such matters than is possessed by the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, which body has, based upon what it considers good and sufficient reasons, condemned any projection angle greater than 15 degrees, which angle surely would be very greatly exceeded with the projection room located where he proposes it shall be.

As an ARCHITECT this man may have real ability, or even very high grade ability, but may I inquire just what part or parcel of an architect's education qualifies him to understand and pass upon motion picture projection optical problems? I would like extremely well to have that bit of information. It should be very interesting

I honor capable architects, but suggest that they stick a bit more closely to architecting. I am fairly well fed up with architects presuming to pass judgment upon projection problems concerning which they, if we may judge by results, have not even the most elementary knowledge.

I cannot, of course, form any opinion as to what you can do without first examining either a center elevation blueprint from the original plans from which the building was erected, or else a center elevation drawing with complete measurements marked thereon, plus a complete description of the type of balcony construction. If the projection angle is in excess of 15 degrees with the projection room in the gallery I would suggest that you make every effort to locate it either in the balcony—which you say cannot be done—or on the main floor. The fire hazard can be taken care of very thoroughly and in the end it will pay to follow my suggestion.

Well, Don't Run Dry

Ed. P. Winans, Transfer theatre, Ft. Wayne, Ind., writes thusly: "As the old poem goes, 'You never miss the water 'till the well runs dry.' The absence of your department in the last two issues of the HERALD-WORLD prompts this, my initial attempt at writing, just to inquire how come?"

"For six years I have been a department reader. Only recently renewed my subscription for three years in order that I might get it right along and its absence is 'not so good.'

I've gleaned many a help from it and believe you me it is missed. Have the third and fourth edition of your books, and hopes for the fifth. Surely the merger of the two greatest trade papers in the industry won't spoil what it has taken so many years to build up.

"Will say, in closing, I am projectionist in this theatre, where I have been for 10 out of the 15 years I have shot pictures at screens."

Well, Brother Winans, I would surmise (good word that) that you should be able to find the entrance to that projection room in the dark before long. No, the department is not dead. Instead of weekly, as formerly, it now is monthly, but will have quite a bit of space.

Incidentally, suppose in future you come to life more than once in six years. Suppose every one were like you and wrote next to never! What kind of a department would we have had, huh? Get busy occasionally, brother. Get busily busy! You need us, yes? Well, we need you!

Glare Spots and Damage They Do

G. L. Hodson, Minneapolis, Minn., has trouble. He says: "I have a small theatre near here, which I have successfully operated for several years. Have of course had troubles, but must pay tribute to handbooks and projection department, which have helped me over many a rough spot.

"I have struck a snag now though. My 'customers' are mostly regular patrons. Lately they have been complaining that the pictures in my theatre hurt their eyes and it is losing me business.

"Last fall I had the theatre redecorated inside and out, installed new lighting fixtures and a new organ. Also I put in one new Powers projector and changed from straight arcs to the new ones having a glass reflector, which seemed to give a whiter, much more satisfactory light, and at much less cost for current. Can it be that is the seat of the trouble?"

I wrote asking further particulars, including location of organ and power of light used on the music. Hodson's answer was THE answer. Here is its important part: " * * * I had the exit signs changed from red glass with black letters on it to plain ground glass with black lettering. The old signs did not suit the authorities. They said what they wanted and I, of course, gave it to them. There are two signs, located in the front wall, one on each side of the screen. The organ I had placed right under the center of the screen. I thought the people would like to watch the organist as she plays the solo before each show and between the pictures. She uses a 40 watt white Mazda lamp, but it is well covered by a metal shield upon which she has painted a very pretty spray of blossoms."

That is not all of Manager Hodson's answer, but gosh, it's plenty. I am afraid that while he may have read my books and department, as he says, still he has not done so very carefully. The cause of his trouble is obvious. See pages 237 Bluebook of Projection. His patrons would need eyes entirely impervious to abuse to withstand such treatment as that to which his exit signs and organ light subject them.

The red-glass-black-letter exit signs might not, and in fact doubtless did not show up very well, but, pardon me, Friend Hodson, the change made was not an intelligent one. Officials may know that a certain thing is not right, but it does not follow that they know what IS right.

You have established two highly objectionable and entirely unnecessary glare spots right beside your screen, especially if the lights behind that ground glass are not of very low power—say one or two candle power. My advice is to examine instructions, page 239 of Bluebook. You may make an effective cheap change by removing the letters from the ground glass and blocking out letters EXIT in black, painting all the glass except the letters black. Then get a sheet of not-too-dark ruby glass and slip it in behind the ground glass, so that you will have just EXIT in red letters showing. That should and will satisfy any official who understands such matters.

As to that organ light, it brought a smile. Certainly the lamp itself is well hidden, but HOW ABOUT THAT WHITE MUSIC? A 40 watt white light blazing on its surface right smack under the picture, in probably at least a fairly dark auditorium! Man, dear, that would "do things" to anything but a crockery eye! Your organist may have all the light her soul desires while playing solos in the lighted auditorium, but when the lights go off and the picture goes on, the light should be instantly reduced to low power and should be colored amber preferably. Probably the organist will kick like a female steer, and proclaim that she MUST have LOTS of light. She can get along without it very nicely just the same, and anyhow it is a choice between the comfort of your patrons or her own comfort; also it is losing you business. Don't overlook that li'l item!

Musicians right here in our great picture palaces in New York City for years proclaimed that they just plain MUST have 10 and often 20 times the amount of light they now get along with in a fair degree of comfort. They declaimed against any reduction of their 25, 40 and even 50 watt Mazdas. "Ruin my eyes," was their stock phrase!

Bunk was my answer to all that, and finally, after FIVE YEARS of agitation in the Projection Department and personally taking the matter up with great orchestra leaders such as Hugo Reisenfeld, they began to see the light—inversely. I could make absolutely no impres-

Efficiency Expert Enters Theatre Field

John H. W. Fenyvessy of Buffalo announces this week the inauguration of a theatre efficiency service, whereby he will investigate individual theatre problems and suggest remedies for ailing conditions.

Fenyvessy has had years of experience in the theatre field, having been the owner and operator of various houses.

sion on Dr. Reisenfeld until he himself became manager of great Broadway theatres. Then he began to think the matter over and concluded Richardson maybe was not just a foolish crank after all. Then he got busy and today Broadway theatre musicians use music stands after the type suggested in the Projection Department SIX OR SEVEN YEARS AGO, and lights of very low c. p., so that there is not even the semblance of objectionable glare to be found in theatres using 40 to 50 or more musicians. Richardson gets no credit for it, but he was the guy who started it just the same, as the files of this department will more than amply demonstrate.

To get back to our subject, high power white light on sheet music is, like many other things in this vale of sin and sorrier, largely a matter of habit. To a musician accustomed to a 40 watt white light, a low power (two or three candle power) seems like almost nothing at all. Moreover such a light would be inadequate to read unfamiliar music by. However, it must not be forgotten that musicians are seldom called upon to accompany pictures with unfamiliar music, and anyhow music not exactly suited to the action of the picture would be far preferable to suitable music which must be read with a high power light under conditions such as obtain in this theatre.

Those exit signs and that glare of light on the sheet music is nothing less than an OUTRAGE against the eyes of the patrons of the theatre in question. Reduce and color that organ light and do as I have suggested with the exit signs and all will be well.

Motor Generator Set Prices

Projectionists and theatre owners have asked me whether the prices quoted on motor generator sets include everything necessary for their use. You will find two different quotations, one including only the motor and generator, with base. The panel board, ballast resistance, etc., are not included in this quotation. Other prices quoted are for complete sets and naturally the price is in accordance.

From the Middle West

From a theatre manager in Missouri comes this: "I notice readers of the HERALD-WORLD may feel free to ask you concerning projection troubles. What I shall ask may seem to you simple, as doubtless it is. My operator never has as good light on the first show as on the second. Same carbons used on both. We use White A.C. Special, Powers projectors in good condition. Confidential, please."

If you really employ a machine operator instead of a motion picture projectionist, that might well be the answer, because the knowledge of machine operators presumably is confined to operating a machine. His knowledge goes little if any further. The motion picture Projectionist, however, is a man who understands motion picture projection in all its phases, which include electrical action, mechanics, an intricate and very difficult optical system, and auditorium lighting in so far as it affects what the audience sees upon the screen.

Your question is not simple at all. The trouble might be caused by any one of several things, the most likely of which is that on the first show your street mains are overloaded, whereas by the time the second show comes on, some of the load has been shut off. You have given no information as to whether you run a show only in the evening, or run one in daytime and one in evening. I am 1,500 miles away, you know, and cannot correctly and with certainty diagnose a trouble without full, complete information.

Your carbons indicate A.C. at the arc, and White A.C. Special are of the best. You cannot get anything better. Have you the surplus stored in a dry place, or in a damp basement. That is important. Damp carbons affect results. I think your trouble is voltage. Have your power company test the voltage AT YOUR MAIN SWITCH during both shows. If that doesn't reveal the trouble please send me full, complete data and I'll look further.

McGuire, Meyer Address Manager School Pupils

P. A. McGuire and A. E. Meyer, advertising manager and export manager respectively of International Projector Company, were speakers at the sessions of the Moving Picture Theatre Managers Institute on Friday, March 2.

Mr. McGuire dwelt at length on the creation of good-will between manager and projectionist, while Mr. Meyer discussed maintenance of equipment and common faults of projection. He stressed the practices of the more successful theatres and suggested additional rules to insure best results. Overspeeding, unsteady picture and loss of illumination were a few of the common faults that Mr. Meyer analyzed.

Your Screen Must Interpret the Picture as Well as Merely Reflect It —

Interpreting a picture means giving to the audience all the fine details of sharpness, brilliancy, definition, depth and color tones that the producers have put into the film. Only a scientifically built screen, exactly fitted to the specifications of your theatre, can do this for you.

The American Silversheet is the one screen you can rely upon to do these things to your entire satisfaction. Specification-built by the world's master screen maker, it is guaranteed to perform properly and delight your audience with its unsurpassed reproductions. Costs no more than other screens. Built by the American Silversheet Co., St. Louis. Sold in the United States through the National Theatre Supply Company.

Adequate electrical wiring is installed at cost of less than $6,000

THE Chelten theatre, Chicago, a thousand seat house built by the Cheltenham Theatre Building Corporation, an organization composed entirely of local business men, was the result of neighborhood organization and backing by these local business men.

Betts & Holcomb, who designed the Villard theatre, pictures and details of which were published in this magazine last month, were also the architects for the new Chelten, which differs from many theatres in that the designers, taking into consideration the fact that it is a neighborhood or repeat house to which the patrons constantly return, aimed at a conventional or modified scheme of ornament rather than one of ornate garishness so often seen in the modern theatre.

The style in general is Italian and the simple wall surfaces of the foyer and auditorium form an admirable foil for the rich plaster and stencil decoration of the frieze and ceilings.

Here again Betts & Holcomb, cooperating with Alphonso Iannelli, have designed a house of reasonable cost, that has all the joy and color of some of the more expensive downtown projects, and into which several interesting features have been incorporated. Among the features are a drinking fountain in the foyer, lined with imported Persian tile of brilliant colors, batik hangings and bold stencil designs in red, black and gold, recessed panels in the ceiling with trough lighting, instead of the conventional dome, and in the foyer a stairway leading to the women's rest rooms which will later be used as an entrance to a tunnel to serve a future balcony. This tunnel under the future balcony seats will be cut through as an arcade so that the patrons using same will be able to look down into the foyer.

The Chelten will be operated under the management of Joseph Stern and F. M. Brockell, operators of several other Chicago theatres. It is furnished with a three manual organ by Marr & Colton which will be played by L. A. Major.

The Chelten Box Office

The National Theatre Supply Company furnished all booth equipment consisting of two projectors, a spot and a double dissolver. The projectors are of the latest design with automatic change overs and all supplementary equipment such as generator and rheostats.

Betts & Holcomb, the architects, have constructed several theatres with the same principles in mind, namely a house of lavish appearance where the patron finds interest in his surroundings, but the cost of which is not above the range of the investment return necessary for a suburban or neighborhood house, and some idea of how this is obtained may be given by stating that the electric wiring for this theatre, though adequate in every respect, was a contract of less than $6,000.

Other houses by this firm of architects are: The Desplaines, Des Plaines, Ill., the Glen, Glen Ellyn, Ill., the Catlow, Barrington, Ill., and the Villard at Villa Park, Ill.

National Program of Chicago Grows; Opens N. Y. Plant

One of the first steps taken by National Program & Printing Company, of Chicago, in its campaign of expansion has been the opening of a branch plant in New York. The Eastern office, completely equipped for the printing of theatre programs, will be opened March 15 at 320 West 46th street.

With its New York plant in operation, National Program & Printing not only extends the scope of its activities but also places itself in a position to render more efficient service to Eastern exhibitors who heretofore have been served from the main plant in Chicago.

National is headed by A. Steinberg, former theatre and advertising executive.

This beautiful three manual Page DeLuxe Unit Organ console has been installed in the Pla-Mor Recreation Center of the Kansas City Hockey Club, Kansas City, Mo.

The Kansas City Hockey Club is the largest organization of its kind anywhere having pipe organ music. They recently installed a large Page DeLuxe Unit Organ with a three manual console in their Pla-Mor Recreation Center, in Kansas City, Mo.

The building which houses the Center is of a notable size; 300 feet long and 165 feet wide. The Page Unit Organ is placed in the balcony in one end of the auditorium, and is amply protected from the cold temperature of the ice rink.

It is interesting to note how this is done.

The organ is mounted in specially constructed chambers, which are evenly heated at all times. The console is entirely surrounded by plate glass.

The Pla-Mor Center is increasingly popular—and now there is the added attractiveness of wonderful music from the Page Unit Organ. The Page was chosen by the Club because of its record of dependable performance, fine tonal quality, and instant response—outstanding Page features. Let Page serve you, too. Tulsa organist constructs own console for use during presentation of novelty numbers

EVERY man has a hobby. In one respect at least Wade Hamilton is no different from every man. He, too, has a hobby.

Wade's vocation is playing an organ. He is feature organist at the Ritz theatre, Tulsa, Okla., and staff organist at radio station KVOO. However, when he is not practicing at his vocation and bringing forth beautiful strains from the four manuals of his Robert Morton organ, he may be found in his basement workshop performing the duties of a skilled mechanic; or, to use the more polite term, technician.

Hamilton, in his search for novelty entertainment, decided upon one course of action. He would build a three manual organ which, when connected with his Robert Morton instrument, would give the resources of seven manuals.

The idea of using two consoles is not new, but the idea of an organist, who is not supposed to know how to solder, use a saw, or junction out a cable, building one without the aid of skilled mechanics is rather unusual.

Hamilton searched music stores, second-hand stores and storage houses obtaining one Estey Reed organ of ancient vintage and two other keyboards that were devoid of action. With these purchases and with the assistance of his brother, H. B. Hamilton, also an organist, he set about to build his contraption.

Incorporated in the construction were scraps of lumber, copper strips, parts of an old electric sign flasher, piano wire used in making action springs and spring contacts,

Canaries Add Charm To the Miller's Theatre

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

ALBANY, March 13.—Five cages of singing canaries add to the attractiveness of the Orpheum theatre at Kingston, N. Y., run by Ike Miller. The house is one of the most beautiful in this part of the state. Miller announced last week that he had decided to do away with the vaudeville end of the program and will run his house with double features from now on.

hundreds of screws and a lot of beaver board used as a covering for the case. Fifty thousand feet of wire was used in making the cable that connects the two consoles; the pedalboard was made to standard measurements and three months were required to get everything together in the right manner.

When the cable was finally connected, everything worked as it was supposed to and there has been no trouble playing to date even under the strain of daily use. The keyboard action is light and fast, the pedals respond equally as well. The cable is 150 feet long, enabling the console to be placed on the stage, in the pit, and even in the balcony if so desired.

In introducing this novelty the surprise method was used and it caused the whole town to wonder what it was all about, how it was done and who did it. The regular trailer, "Wade Hamilton at the Ritz Organ," was first screened, then a white spot hit the pit console showing no one there. The spot was killed and a slide was run, "Mr. Hamilton Is Unavoidably Detained. Mr. Kelly Will Play the Organ Solo at This Performance." As Mr. Kelly is the drummer in the house orchestra this announcement drew great surprise.

The spot then hit the pit console again and Kelly walked to the organ, sat down, and "dummied" through one chorus of "Can't You Hear Me Say I Love You," which was really played by Hamilton on the stage console hidden behind the curtain on the stage. About eight bars before the end of the number, Kelly left the organ, which still continued to play, engaged in an argument with the orchestra leader about leaving before the solo was over, then made his exit.

At this time the curtains were opened and the stage console was discovered in a dim blue light. This was changed to red and then to white. These color changes caused the stage console to change colors as it is decorated in futuristic style and is a hodge-podge of color. This brought great applause, then Hamilton made a short talk about the building of the console and its many uses, after which he introduced La Verna Markey at the pit console. She then played with Hamilton his original arrangement for two consoles, "Air de Ballet," by Victor Herbert and they ended with two choruses of "A Night in June" to a big finish and a tremendous hand.

Regular Patrons Pay Regular Profits

Transient patrons are welcome, of course, but—the regular patrons pay your profit.

Regular patrons demand regular care, seats that allow easy comfort to tired backs, grateful relaxation to limbs and neck. No handsome foyer nor spacious lobby can sooth the patron who cramps in a poorly set chair.

A National Service expert will gladly inspect your seating arrangements—without obligation to you. He may discover some needed slight adjustment, a change of position or setting that will increase the comfort of your patrons many times.

As a matter of cold business logic, greater comfort to your patrons means greater profit to you.

National Service can also furnish every requirement of service, material, or equipment. From a paper date snipe to a pipe organ. Operating through, thirty-one points of vantage, we serve and service the American theatre industry.

YEARS ago, when Motion Pictures were still something of a novelty, patrons were satisfied with the music of a drum, piano, viola and cornet. Today, in first-class theatres, they demand a full symphonic orchestra.

They were satisfied, then, with almost any kind of a Pipe Organ. Far more critical today, they demand an artistic Orchestral Organ. Ascribe this change to what you will, the fact remains that outstanding Organ Music is now expected, and helps fill your House.

Nothing can so satisfactorily furnish it as The Kilgen Wonder Organ — the one distinctly Theatre Organ. Artistic in every detail, capable

Q "Better Theatres" wanted to find the relative importance between a modern organ and a five-piece orchestra. An extensive survey was made throughout the exhibitor ranks of the country. The aim of the survey was simply to find which form of musical entertainment is being preferred by exhibitors and their patrons. The exhibitors' answers might be a bit surprising to some.

Q The results of the survey show that exhibitors in all parts of the country are today strong in their belief that the day of the five piece orchestra is a thing of the past. The organ may be played and maintained at far less cost, and at the same time affords a far more pleasing type of music. The survey shows that the orchestra is being replaced in all quarters by the organ.

ORGAN vs. ORCHESTRA

THE organ triumphantly wins the decision in "Better Theatres'" extensive survey to determine which is preferable and more profitable to the exhibitor, a modern organ or a five-piece orchestra.

The consensus of the many exhibitors who answered the survey is that there is no comparison in desirability between the two. The survey shows that the five-piece orchestra is now regarded as a relic of the days of the nickelodeon, and that the organ has completely supplanted it in the modern theatre.

Furthermore the survey shows that the organ can do far more in the way of furnishing good music and at the same time at much less expense. A good five-piece orchestra, says one exhibitor, costs at least $300, yet an organ can be operated at less than half that sum, and more musical pieces can be duplicated upon the organ. Below are some of the reports made by correspondents:

PITTSBURGH.—A modern organ is worth more to the box office of a motion picture theatre than a five-piece orchestra, in the opinion of James Balmer, manager of the Grand, a deluxe house. Here are Balmer's arguments:

The organ will give the exhibitor the same instruments—and many more—at much less cost.

The orchestra will cost $300 a week, the organ 50 per cent less, including upkeep and a good organist.

The organist can be sold as a box office attraction, but the orchestra must compete with larger deluxe houses.

Finally, Balmer said, the picture is the thing, regardless of the orchestra.

Here is how this exhibitor answered the question whether an organ or a five-piece orchestra is the greater revenue-bringer for the theatre owner who cannot afford to have both:

"Assuming that the orchestra combination selected would be piano, violin, cello, bass and drums—and that is the best picture house combination, although some might prefer a cornet to a cello—the modern organ, when properly played, will give you the same instruments and many more at a lower cost," he declared.

"The orchestra will cost you $300 a week. The organ, less the installation and cost will be 50 per cent less, even including upkeep and paying more than the scale for a competent organist. Furthermore the organist can be sold as a box office power, if handled right, while the orchestra will have to compete with the larger de luxe houses that play attractions as well as having a 12-piece or more orchestra.

You who are selling straight pictures can do so successfully with the organ, providing you have the pictures."

"And it has been proved," Balmer added, "that though an orchestra playing in a straight picture house brings in a few, mostly musicians and music lovers, if the picture is the drawing power, orchestra or no, the picture fans will see it. After all we are selling pictures. The music, novelties, etc., are all extra."

ALBANY.—Not only has the organ replaced orchestras, both large and small, in many motion picture theatres in central and northern New York, but what is perhaps more to the point, it is keeping right on at such work. In other words, the exhibitors have found that while the initial cost of an organ, perhaps, is a pretty heavy bill to meet, that in the long run it is more profitable through attracting better satisfied patrons, than if the orchestra had been retained. Of course there are exceptions to this, as there are exceptions to all things. There are some exhibitors who continue to use the piano and the violin, and whose music is often a detriment rather than an attraction to the theatre.

At the Leland and the Clinton Square theatres in Albany, C. H. Buckley, one of the most progressive exhibitors in this locality, is using organs, and declares that he would never again go back to an orchestra. It was only a year or two ago that a two or three-piece orchestra fiddled away at the Clinton Square and frequently caused a patron to remark that while he enjoyed the picture, the music jarred on his nerves to such an extent that the evening was far from pleasant. Organs have replaced orchestras at the Pine Hills theatre, at the Albany theatre, the Hudson theatre, and many

And Now—a Ballroom in The Theatre

The Rialto theatre in Joliet, Ill., Chicago suburb, is the scene of the innovation. Nothing is shifted for the dancers. They do their fox-trotting in a huge foyer called the Rotunda.

The Rialto would be a magnificent theatre in any city. And Joliet has only 70,000 inhabitants. Erected at a cost of $3,000,000, the Rialto is huge. The Esplanade is a quarter of a city block square, while besides the large auditorium, there are lounges and corridors of spacious dimensions. The Rotunda is pictured above. The Esplanade leads to this great high chamber, where on some nights, hundreds of dancers may be seen fox-trotting between its 16 marble pillars. Here lavish draperies hang four stories down from a dome, from which is suspended a mammoth chandelier. At left is a front exterior view of this unusual playhouse.

They Dance in the Lobby of This Theatre

Middle West house presents one of the most unusual features of any theatre in the country

IN the city of Joliet, Ill., is a most unusual motion picture theatre. To discover such a large and elaborate theatre in a city of 70,000 inhabitants is to be amazed. A suburb of Chicago, Joliet has begun to awaken to the advantages in its location; and the $3,000,000 Rialto is one of the most interesting results.

And perhaps the most interesting feature of the Rialto (since it is so curious) is that it may be and is used for dances, without moving a carpet or a chair. But more about that in a moment. Let us walk, so to speak, through this playhouse.

Splendor—as shall be seen, splendor is the word—rivaling that of the largest and most ornate theatres in the country encounters the eye as one enters the Esplanade, or lobby. It is a quarter of a city block square and four stories in height. Great arches enriched with plastic figures of classic art and an array of massive mirrors reflecting myriad lights present a spectacle of magnitude and beauty—and also foreshadow what is to follow. Even here, in the midst of such bigness, the little luxuries begin. Toward the right side of the Esplanade, one notices a clock of fantastic design. It was imported, the management avows, from Paris. But even this clock has bigness. It is huge, measuring eight feet square at the base.

From the Esplanade, one enters the Rotunda. It is a foyer, but at the Rialto it has and deserves the name of Rotunda because it is round, towers to the roof four stories up, and is capped by a dome. The Rotunda is so large that it could hold almost all the patrons in the average auditorium. Sixteen variegated pillars enclose the central portion of this capacious chamber, while a balcony extends on two sides. Tapestries introduce a softening effect—and tracing them to their upper borders, the eye reaches ultimately the dome. Suspended there, is a huge chandelier of gorgeous intricacy, to set all this bigness aglow.

It is in the Rotunda that the dances are held. Hundreds of dancers may be accommodated in this massive chamber, while the beauty and airiness of it make it, if one may judge, an ideal ballroom.

Near the dome is located a feature more unusual than itself. It is a pipe organ, controlled from the main console. Or, if the management so elects, it may be played separately and thus are those who wait for seats entertained. In the Rotunda also are two large fountains, electrically lighted so that the arches of water are a maze of shifting rainbows.

Big and beautiful, the Rialto, of course, neglects not the 20th Century's craze for comfort. There are women's and men's lounges and a "cosmetic room" for (so far, exclusively) the former. These are located just off the Rotunda, on the main floor.

On either side of the foyer is a broad stairway leading to the mezzanine floor. Here the walls are hung with mirrors and rich draperies of silk brocade, while placed at seemingly casual intervals are many works of plastic art.

The auditorium is like the rest of the theatre, large and luxurious. Containing 3,000 plush theatre chairs, elaborately lighted, sometimes in changing colors, and decorated as elegantly as the sections just described, the auditorium of the Rialto during the most popular performances presents a spectacle that one would expect to find only in the largest cities.

Leo Terry, who is nationally known as an artist, a composer, and originator of his own organ solos, masters the intricacies of the endless tonal combinations with the utmost ease.

Terry opened this house, coming from the Capitol theatre in Chicago, with which firm he was employed as soloist for almost two years. His first eight months at the Rialto were so successful that he was commanding further recognition and was engaged to open the Piccadilly theatre in Chicago.

The following that he had created in Joliet demanded his return and in a short time he was back at the Rialto, where he has proven that an organist who studies his audiences and presents the right kind of solos can be a box office attraction. The orchestra is under the direction of James Nash.

Harmony in Theatre Decoration

By HAWLEY M. LASHER

Instructor in Interior Decorating, Illinois College of Painting and Decorating, Chicago

ALL of us have seen how the public is attracted to a new motion picture theatre by the beauty or splendor of its design and decorations. At first the theatre itself is a show—particularly in the case of the large theatres in the big cities. Even the advertisements stress the architecture and interior decoration. Clearly, then, the looks of a theatre form a highly important factor in its prosperity.

Does that importance diminish as the months go by, as the design of the building ceases to be a novelty? I do not think so. But I do think that in many cases there is a diminishing of what was at first attractiveness. Sometimes, perhaps, the public becomes even repelled by the design of a theatre. And the reason why the design loses its appeal is, I believe, that impressiveness, rather than true beauty, was the object sought by the designer.

What is true of the big theatre is true of the small theatre, so far as design is concerned. In both cases, the object should be to make the theatre permanently attractive. The means open to the promoters of a costly theatre in a large community are many, and because the big money is in that field, architects and decorators give plenty of effort to find more. It is the small theatres, and particularly those in the small cities and towns, which have not had the resources necessary for beauty.

It is for the benefit of this class of theatre that I have prepared a series of discussions on interior decorating to run in Better Theatres. There is, of course, more than interior decorating to the making of a beautiful small-community theatre.

BUT it seems to me that it is in the interior appearance that most of the smaller theatres are most often unattractive. And it is inside the theatre that patrons decide whether or not they like a theatre.

As we enter the theatre, our first impressions are gained from the entrance and lobby. What have the decorators given us here? Have they given us designs and color combinations which will pall on us in time? Or have they wrought something which will give us a feeling even though we are not always aware of it, of keen pleasure throughout the life of the building?

I know a neighborhood theatre which probably cost a great deal more than the average theatre. Everything looks clean, the employes are courteous and attentive, the floors are finely carpeted, the air is pure, and the music is good. But I am depressed when I enter this theatre.

What is wrong with this theatre? Well, briefly, the stage is sadly lacking in the first essentials of decoration. In other places, the designs and color combinations clash. Perhaps it was necessary to save money somewhere and so it was saved in the interior decorating. But even so, I know better results could have been achieved.

It is precisely the theatre wherein the money roll is none too thick, with which I am concerned in these articles. I hope to take the reader through the small, economically built theatre of the type best adapted to the smaller community, and show how artistry may be adapted to every department of the structure, to the end that the theatre may be truly—and that means permanently—beautiful.

In the next issue of Better Theatres I shall take up the lobby.

The Advantage of Incorporating a Theatre Business

By LEO T. PARKER

GENERALLY speaking, a theatre business is operated by an incorporated company, an individual, or a form of a partnership.

Therefore, the purpose of this article is to consider the legal advantages and disadvantages of conducting theatres under the various legal forms of ownership.

Incorporated Theatres

The important argument against incorporating a theatre business is that its original owner or founder must share the profits of the business with others. This is true because more than one stockholder is required to organize an incorporated company.

Also, certain formalities such as meetings of the directors, election of the officers, distribution of the profits and dividends, keeping accurate book accounts and the like, must be performed in strict accordance with the law. Furthermore, authorization of unusual expenditures must be made by the proper officers sometimes at considerable inconvenience.

The important advantage of incorporating a theatre business, however, is that the stockholders of the company ordinarily are not liable for the debts of the business in excess of the value of the stock which they own.

For instance, suppose a theatre business is incorporated for $10,000 and the company incurs debts or liabilities amounting to $15,000, the stockholders are not liable for a greater loss than the actual stock held by them, the total loss to all of the stockholders being $10,000. Moreover, their individual credit is not in the least affected, by reason of the company being unable to meet its financial obligations, as is the case where an individual encounters financial disaster.

For example, in the recent case of Belle City Malleable Company vs. Clark, 215 N. W. 855, the court said:

"It is the rule that the property and the rights of a corporation belong to it as a legal entity, distinct from its stockholders."

On the other hand, it is important to know that the stockholders may enter into a valid contract to personally bind themselves for the debts of a corporation. For illustration, in Thomas County Co-op. Business Association of Colby vs. Pearson, 260 Pac. 623, it was disclosed that a stockholder signed the guarantee, as follows:

"We, the undersigned, members of the Thomas County Co-operative Association of Colby, Kan., hereby agree to pay in cash upon demand the sum of money set opposite our names for the purpose of paying off the present indebtedness of said association, taking a certificate of indebtedness of said association in payment as evidenced by said certificate, and according to the terms embodied therein.

"Charles Pearson$1,000."

In holding the signer liable for payment of the debt of the corporation, this court said:

"It is a subscription to a corporation in which the defendant was a stockholder, and which was so deeply involved in debts guaranteed by the subscriber and others that it could not do business without more money. To help in furnishing that money, the defendant signed the contract. That contract is more nearly analogous to a subscription for stock in a corporation than it is to an agreement to loan money. Such subscriptions for stock are enforceable, not because they are agreements to loan money, but because they are agreements to furnish money in consideration of stock issued by the corporation. The money is furnished to enable a corporation to go in business. In the present action the defendant agreed to pay the money in order to enable the corporation in which he was financially interested to pay the debts guaranteed by him and to continue in business. He was agreeing to invest his money in a business enterprise."

Another common source of litigation is whether a corporation is liable for contracts made by its officers and employes. It is well established that incorporated companies are liable for all acts of its employes, which are performed within the scope of the employment, in exactly the same sense as individual employers and partnerships are liable. In other words, the fact that a theatre business is incorporated will not tend to decrease its liabilities for the injurious acts of its employes or contracts made by authorized agents. (139 Atl. 212.)

However, a corporation is not liable for unauthorized acts of its officers. For example, in the leading case of E. O. Painter Company. V. Boyd 144 So. 444, it was disclosed that without authority the secretary and treasurer of a corporation and its head bookkeeper entered into a contract of employment intending to bind the corporation which, however, was not benefitted by the act performed by the employe. In holding the company not liable, the court explained the law on this subject in the following language:

"It would seem to be a sound principle of law that wherever a corporation is acting within the scope of its legitimate purposes of its institution, all parol contracts made by its authorized agents are express promises of the corporation, and all benefits conferred (upon the corporation) at their (the authorized agents) request raise implied promises for the enforcement of which an action may well lie. . . . The evidence entirely fails to show that either Mr. Morrison, the secretary and treasurer of defendant corporation, or Mr. Lyman, its head bookkeeper, was properly authorized, it being the general rule that the burden rests upon one who seeks to hold a corporation liable for an act on a contract of his article is that in a great many instances Mr. Tallmudge is absolutely right. There are a great many theatres where motion pictures are being shown that in my opinion are not architecture in any sense of the word. However, in talking with representatives of one or two of the leading theatre syndicates, I find that their organizations are beginning to feel that this gaudy conglomerate mass of plaster, keene cement, polychrome and odd shaped lighting fixtures and weird arrangements in general are no longer attracting the people.

I know of a specific instance where two theatres are built directly across the street from each other. One is a legitimate, well-designed piece of architecture, the other a gaudy attempt to imitate everything from the Moorish and French and Biroque to the Temples of India and the South Sea Islands. The first few months saw the latter theatre easily in the lead as far as consistent attendance was concerned. People wanted to "see" the theatre and have their friends "see" it. That day is over. The other theatre in its more stately beauty is today attracting 50 per cent more people than its gaudy competitor and it seems to me five years will tell an even stranger story.

The American people are rapidly, through a number of channels, being educated to know that which is beautiful. Department stores are educating toward the beautiful in dress, in home furnishings, in pottery and bric-a-brac, etc. I believe that within the next 10 years the average American will know many things regarding proportion, color combination, etc., that he does not know today.

The legitimate theatre, being designed by a good architect, is beginning to come into its own, as the "atmosphere" theatres that are mostly a combination of paint and imitations have absolutely nobody to depend on for stability. (I do not mean all "atmosphere" theatres).

This, in a rambling way, is my opinion of the point Mr. Tallmudge is attempting to make in his article above referred to.

Criticising the Critic

By L. A. DESJARDINS

Architect, Denver, Col.

As to your request for comments upon the article of Mr. Tallmudge relating to motion picture theatres, writer would regard it hardly fair to criticise the critic except that such criticisms have been invited. Or, it may have been praise that is to be expected.

Writer will say that Mr. Tallmudge writes like an architect rather than a writer, attempting to paint dazzling word pictures with an architect's limited vocabulary and lack of literary technique. Writer himself is a poor author; therefore, should bear in mind in his comments that under the circumstances stones should not be thrown.

Being a Fellow of the American Institute may have had the effect of developing conceit, although it is in reality a meaningless distinction and should not affect anyone to cause them to consider themselves a superior being.

How motion picture theatres can thus be criticised is inconceivable. Of course, this branch of planning is comparatively novel and without voluminous precedent the ordinary architect can hardly be expected to produce buildings of remarkable appropriatness. Yet, it is the writer's opinion that in many instances wonders have been achieved. To compile a list of very successful motion picture theatres would waste your paper and the writer's time.

To crystalize such planning to set rules and regulations will preclude the freedom of art and make such buildings hard, rigid and cold as if designed by a warehouse architect. As it is now, the real artist with directness and freedom does somehow succeed. As Emerson said of Michael Angelo,

Unfortunately Too True

By A. D. HILL

Architect, Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. Tallmadge's article is unfortunately only too true, but with exceptions not all architects are "jazz artists" and we find that the owners can be convinced that it is better to decorate theatres in sober good taste, and strange to say, the people prefer it.

We, personally, abhor the term "Spanish." We use the argument that if they allow us to use classic decoration it will be in good taste 20 years hence, while all makes of "Indian," "Aztec," "Spanish," "Persian" and so forth will be redecorated in a few years.

Heartily in Accord

By L. E. BURKETT

Architect, Fort Wayne, Ind.

I heartily agree with Mr. Tallmadge, and welcome the opportunity to register my objection and criticism of the present tendency to vulgarize the construction of theatres.

The gaudy and blatant treatment of the interiors of our average theatres is rapidly destroying the sense of the beauty and harmony of the modest and ennobling qualities which should be the guiding spirit of the creative genius of the architects.

It seems to me that too many of our architects are allowing their minds to carry their imaginations into the realms of Bacchanalia, rather than into the beauties of natural things, as they approach the designing of theatres.

You cannot grow figs on thistles, and if we have gaudy, vulgar picture theatres, we must expect gaudy and vulgar pictures. The very fact that the vast majority of pictures now before the public are anything but modest and elevating is, in itself, a severe arraignment of the industry. This situation is up to the producers for correction. The educated public is tolerating it because they cannot help themselves, but all are looking forward to a return to decency and modesty in this great avenue of education.

—and, Mr. Tallmadge Wins

By ALFRED SHAW

Graham, Anderson, Probst & White,

Your letter and the enclosure of Mr. Tallmadge's comment about moving picture theatres, I have read with much interest. I must say that to go along any further on a subject in which I heartily agree with Mr. Tallmadge were to gild the well-known lily. It seems to me that tragedies are great directly in proportion to the number of people they affect, and the exuberant vulgarity of most of our moving picture houses is about the equal in mental nourishment as a diet of ice cream sodas would be to a child, especially marshmallow.

I would further be inclined to divorce this criticism from the operations of the architects, if architects have done all, and lay it at the feet of the owners, because there is no operation, however large or small, which does not reflect the original impulse of the controlling personalities.

These theatres are built at the cost of tremendous work and risk on the parts of their owners for the sake of making a profit. This profit is an honest and justifiable pursuit, but if the ingredients of fine building, charming color, and a distinctive, if not original style, were stirred up into the original mixture, I am sure that the moving picture theatres would be better for it. This original and great achievement in moving picture theatres is easy enough to hope for but not so easy to achieve. It will be the task of some sort of hero and we will be very glad to see him when he comes.

Underground Organ Is Designed by Kilgen Co.

An "underground" pipe organ is being built for an addition to the Actor's Chapel of St. Malachay's church, just off Broadway, in New York.

In order that all available floor space may be utilized for additional pews, the instrument, now being built by the Kilgen Organ Company, St. Louis, will be installed under the level of the sidewalk. Sound will be projected through grill work to be placed in the rear of the church. The underground installation was planned by Alfred Kilgen.

Expansion Program of E. E. Fulton Company Is Progressing Rapidly

Sales and distribution branches to be opened in metropolitan centers throughout country.

THE E. E. Fulton Company, equipment manufacturer and distributor, which recently was reorganized, announces that its program of expansion which will give it 16 branch offices, six additional service stations and sales representatives in 11 other cities throughout the country, is progressing rapidly.

As its plans of expansion develop, the company, which now has branches in St. Louis, Indianapolis, Milwaukee and New York City, in addition to the home office in Chicago, will open sales and display headquarters in San Francisco, Atlanta, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Boston, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Omaha, Jacksonville, Kansas City and Dallas.

Added service stations will be established at Washington, Denver, Seattle, Minneapolis, Los Angeles and New Orleans, while sales representatives will be located at Oklahoma City, Salt Lake City, Albany, Baltimore, Tampa, Des Moines, Portland, Buffalo, Charlotte, Memphis and Cincinnati.

Under the reorganization the following executives were elected:

PRESIDENT, C. H. Fulton.

VICE PRESIDENT AND SALES MANAGER, F. A. Van Husan.

SECRETARY, Frank Meyer.

TREASURER, A. G. Jarmin.

The officials and Charles C. Moskowitz form the directorate.

In announcing the reorganization, Mr. Fulton said:

"The tendency today in the world of commerce and industry is to build business organizations upon national lines, equipped with the most advanced facilities for efficient and economical distribution of commodities and for rendering service over far-flung areas.

"In harmony with the spirit of the times the E. E. Fulton Company recently effected reorganization upon a basis which realizes long cherished ideals of expanded activities and improved service.

"As a pioneer in the motion picture field we have enjoyed from the beginning a steady, consistent growth and it is our ambition to make the house of Fulton as intimately and favorably known to the most remotely placed exhibitor as it is and has been to our closest customers.

"It is not without full appreciation of the enlarged responsibilities entailed that we embark upon this program of expansion. We face the future with confidence born of a sound and carefully drawn plan for the expansion of business policies and practices, which years of experience have tested to the fullest satisfaction of the institution we are privileged to serve—the motion picture theatre.

"A background of experience and demonstrated capacity to undertake the entire detail and responsibility of equipping completely, or partially, the largest as well as the most modest theatre project to the complete satisfaction and financial advantage of clients we have served, is the basis of our solicitation to the many new clients an expanded organization now enables us to serve.

"Our various services will become promptly available to existing or prospective exhibitors everywhere through a series of branch offices and sales representatives to be established presently. Zone offices will soon be opened in Atlanta and San Francisco and to these regional headquarters will gradually be added numerous supplementary service stations and sales representatives in important cities following the creation of the zone offices mentioned.

"Our well equipped factory continues to supply the well known line of Fulco specialties, and is being enlarged to produce additional items of unusual interest and usefulness related to picture theatre outfitting.

"It is our aim and purpose to cater to the entire field, and to the end that we may serve all—the largest organizations and the smallest individual theatre operator—we have concentrated upon the development of a system which will realize our ideal of intimate contact and personal interest in the equipment needs of all, and to all we pledge personal, conscientious and dependable service."

Concerning an architectural cooperative service, Mr. Fulton said:

"It has long been a recognized need in the motion picture theatre field of greater cooperation between architects and equipment specialists. Often a theatre is built with no detail overlooked nor expense spared in its perfection excepting in one department, that being the matter of equipment.

"This oversight, however, is in no way due to lack of recognition given to the importance of equipment but rather to failure of cooperation between builder, architect and equipment specialist. It is encouraging to note that during the last two years a great amount of attention has been given to securing greater cooperation among the various parties responsible.

"In line with this new tendency the E. E. Fulton Company have organized an engineering staff of theatre specialists for the express purpose of offering services to theatre owners and architects. The service of this engineering organization covers the multitude of engineering phases of theatre equipment, such as illuminating engineering, projection room design, recognitions of decorations and stage equipment, etc.

"In connection with our engineering services to cooperate with architects, builders and theatre owners, we have not the slightest notion of endeavoring to function as architects, but simply to lend our endeavors to secure greater efficiency from the equipment installed in theatres. We do not undertake to furnish theatre plans nor to encroach in any way upon the architects' legitimate field. These services are offered in line with our policy of being an organization fully equipped to handle all the problems dealing with equipment of a theatre.

Herbert Lee Koch

“Phantom” Organist Stirs Patrons

WHEN Herbert Lee Koch, featured organist at the Capitol theatre in Des Moines, failed to appear at the console of the organ recently, he had his audiences on tip-toe wondering what had happened, for, in spite of his absence in the flesh, his spirit was evidently at the manuals for his regular organ solo came issuing from the pipes in the regular Koch style.

The stops were changed by unseen hands and the music brought out almost everything from the chimes to the full organ. In fact, “the melody lingered on” while the mystified fans yearned for the explanation. Still the spotlight showed no visible player.

At the close of the stunt, Paul Spor, master of ceremonies, pulled the blushing young player from behind the wings to prove his presence and promised that “next week,” Herbie would fully explain how he played the organ without being at the console.

What is believed to be one of the most original organ stunts ever put over in a motion picture house was partly explained to audiences the following week when Koch emerged from back stage playing a second keyboard strapped over his shoulders for support. This portable keyboard was wired to the regular organ console by a 50 foot cable so that the organist could not only play the organ by “remote control,” as it were, but he could walk up and down the aisles, as far as the wires permitted, while doing so.

The stunt affords many possibilities for novelties and brings in about as much audience comment as anything ever tried out in local houses. That it was successful in Des Moines is putting it mildly, for the performance, featured as part of the Publix show, “Listening In,” is being talked about by the whole town. And it brought the business.

Koch worked the idea out with the assistance of John Spottiswoode, formerly with the Wurlitzer company and now regularly employed on the Publix-A. H. Blank circuit as organ expert.

Koch, only 24 years old now, has had plenty of experience at the organ. He played at the Circle in Indianapolis, Rialto in Louisville, and the Palace in Dallas, before coming to Des Moines. This was preceded by excellent training as organ demonstrator with several of the best organ companies in the country. The youngster began his career at 15!

an officer or agent to show that the doing of the act or the execution of the contract was properly authorized or that it was properly ratified by the corporation."

On the other hand, the law is well founded that a corporation is liable for the unauthorized acts of any agent, employe or officer if the directors of the corporation ratify the agreement or, when knowing of its existence, permit the corporation to benefit by it.

Another important advantage of incorporating a theatre business is that the company's credit is firmly and quickly established because it is comparatively simple for credit associations to render dependable reports of the financial status of a corporation, since its books are open to the stockholders for inspection, and a detailed report of the profits and losses of the business is rendered at frequent intervals.

Generally speaking, where an individual incorporates his theatre by the proper procedure, reserving for himself the controlling interest in the company, he is able to control the management of the business. Moreover, careful investment of the additional capital obtained by the reorganization results in increased profits. Furthermore, persons who have received satisfactory financial returns from money which they have invested in a small theatre business, usually will not hesitate to invest additional capital to enlarge the scope of the business, by improving the present theatre or increasing the number of the theatre buildings in which the business is conducted. The importance of this latter mentioned advantage may be readily realized when it is considered that oftimes an individual owner is unable or unprepared to invest the additional capital required to materially enlarge the scope of the business.

Still another advantage of an incorporated business, over an individually conducted theatre, is that in the former several persons whose money is invested may be relied upon to suggest methods by which the profits of the business can be increased, but an individual is compelled to rely exclusively upon his own ability and the suggestions offered by his employes.

the opening of the New

 at 320 West 46th St., New York City . . . on March
 15th, 1928.

FOR the past ten years we have been supplying the exhibitors of Chicago and the western states with their weekly programs and such has been the advertising value of our printed matter that we are at the present time shipping programs to theatres as far east as Massachusetts, New Jersey and New York states.

The vast majority of exhibitors in the east who would like to use our printed matter are unable to do so due to the short advance time in which their bookings are set. We, therefore, are opening a completely equipped plant for the exhibitors of the east in New York City, where our advertising service will be yours to command.

and the other contribute his skill in salesmanship or other labor.

The generally established rule of the law, relating to partnership, is that each active partner is individually liable for all debts of the partnership incurred by any and all of the partners. Furthermore, in consideration of the numerous past controversies wherein this phase of the law has been involved, it is quite obvious there is great likelihood of litigation from this source.

And since a partnership may be implied by the law, with respect to creditors, persons other than active partners may be liable for obligations of the partnership.

In other words the law often implies that a partnership exists for the sole purpose of holding the members liable for the debts created by the legal members. On the other hand, if no debts or obligations are incurred and the members did not intend to form a partnership, there is no necessity of the law assuming that a true partnership is in existence. Therefore, when the courts interpret an agreement to determine whether a partnership exists between the parties themselves, the customary rules of the law relating to contracts prevails.

In the quite recently decided case, Chapin V Cherry, 147 S. W. 1084, the court, in announcing the established rule of the law on this subject, said:

"Before there could have been such a partnership contract, minds of all the parties must have agreed to the same thing in the same sense and at the same time. . . . The terms of the contract must fix the real status of the parties toward each other. . . . The intention is to be ascertained from the whole of the contract from the actual relation it creates, and not from the parties denominating it a partnership. Each is an agent for all the other partners, and if one has no capital invested, or has no business standing in the community, he might be a detriment, instead of a benefit, to the partnership. He could make unwise contracts in the name of the partnership and bankrupt it and its members without jeopardizing his own interest."

Yet, any person is liable as a partner who permits his name to be used in a business, irrespective of whether or not he is a partner.

For example, in Jansen V Jacobson, 128 N. W. 824, the court explained this phase of the law, and said:

"It is well settled that if one, by course of dealing with another, leads third parties to believe in the existence of a co-partnership, those dealing with the firm under such belief are entitled to hold responsible all the apparent members of the firm. But, even if no such partnership existed . . . it would be the employer's duty to protect innocent third persons dealing with his agent."

So, therefore, while the important advantage of an ordinary partnership theatre business is that two or more persons may unite their money, efforts and ability for the purpose of conducting the business, the great disadvantage is that each active partner is personally liable for the total debts or obligations of the partnership business.

For illustration, recently a partnership consisted of three partners, one of whom was wealthy and invested $10,000 the other his entire savings of $500, and the other who had no money had agreed to manage the business. The business became encumbered to the amount of $20,000 above its assets. The wealthy partner was held liable for the full amount of the liabilities and was compelled to pay the creditors, since neither of the other partners had money.

Also, any partner may bind the other partners to a contract obligation, irrespective of whether he was authorized to make the contract, provided the assumed obligation is within the scope of the partnership business.

Still another important phase of the law of partnership is that a partner who retires from a partnership business should be very careful to know that his name is removed from the firm's literature, signs and other indications of his continued partner relationship. Otherwise, he is termed an ostensible partner and is liable for the debts of the business to all persons who are not informed of his retirement from the business.

In other words, the law is well established that where one allows the continued use of his name as partner, after retiring from a particular business, and thereby induces another to deal with the business as a partnership, such ostensible partner is liable for the acts done within the ordinary scope of such business. But, in order to hold the ostensible partner liable, the contract involved in the litigation must be in relation to and in the scope of that particular business or adventure which the partner knowingly allowed.

On the other hand, where one permits the use of his name as a partner in a theatre business only, and this business, without the knowledge or consent of the ostensible partner is enlarged into another and different business, a person dealing with the partners in a business transaction pertaining to the latter business cannot hold the ostensible partner liable without showing that he consented to, acquiesced in, or ratified, the transaction.

However, members of a partnership never are liable for the unauthorized obligations of one of its members where the debt or liability is not incurred in the scope of the business.

For example, the partners of a theatre business would not be liable for the payment of a debt contracted by one of its members in the purchase of equipment foreign and not required in the conduction of a theatre.

It is important to be informed, however, that certain laws exist under which partners in a theatre business may form a limited partnership which limits the liability of each member of the firm to a stipulated amount. The existence of such laws is comparatively unknown to business persons. However, when for any reason organizing a corporation is undesirable the protection afforded by the special partnership laws is valuable in reducing the risks of financial loss assumed by the members.

Individual Ownership

An individual theatre owner is, of course, liable for all debts which he or his authorized employes incur.

Legally, theatre employes are of two classes, namely, general agents and special agents. A general agent is one who has general authority, such as the manager of the theatre. The employer is liable for all acts performed by a general agent in the scope of his general authority in managing the business.

A special agent is one who is authorized to perform a single act, or several acts relating to one special department of the business. The owner of the theatre is responsible for all of the acts of a special agent performed strictly within the actual and limited scope of the employment, but he is not liable for liabilities incurred by a special agent in the conduction of other departments of the business.

For instance, in the recent case of (141 N. Y. S. 220), the court clearly explained the established law as follows:

"One who deals with a special agent specially authorized for that transaction is put upon inquiry as to the extent of the agent's authority, and deals with him at the risk of his authority being exceeded. . . . Authority of an assumed agent to make a purchase will be implied where the alleged principal has repeatedly recognized and approved of similar acts; still a single act done under express authority is insufficient to justify the inference that the assumed agent has the apparent authority to subject the alleged principal to liability upon subsequent purchases made without actual authority."

Individual ownership of a theatre has its chief attribute in the fact that the proprietor

THEATRE STAFF AND SERVICE.—Staff Organization and Selection, General Service, Staff Duties, Staff Training, Fire Drills, Maintenance.

"The formation of the Moving Picture Theatre Managers Institute was brought about through the need of a school to train men in modern theatre methods," says Mr. Baltimore. "Previously," he declares, "it has required years of apprenticeship to barely pick-up a working knowledge of the theatre. However, certain necessary elements to successful theatre operation can not be developed in the theatre itself, among which may be included advertising, and many technical phases of theatre management. With these elements in mind, and the advent of the modern deluxe theatre where organized trained men are needed, the faculty of the Institute has been collecting data, material and text matter for the past two years to develop a course that would overcome this lack of organized training.

"On the staff of instructors, the Institute has selected men who have had schooled training in theatre management and who have had years of experience in the practical theatre field.

"The Institute has been designed as a combination theatre and classroom with the object in view of maintaining an atmosphere of the theatre. A stage faces the main classroom, where stage presentations, lighting effects and control may be studied. A workshop where "The curriculum of the Institute covers the following subjects: Production and Distribution, Management and Administration, Theatre Staff and Service, Advertising—Principles, Mechanics of Printing, Newspapers, Programs, Outdoor, Lobby Displays and Exploitation, Theatre Technics—Stage Presentations, Music, Projection for Managers and Physical Operation of Theatres. In dividing the course into these divisions, the subject matter is so arranged as to be of practical and beneficial nature to the student in the theatre field. Many of the lectures are illustrated with slides, drawings, photographs and motion pictures.

"Under Production and Distribution, the student takes up the first two of the elements of economic structure of the Motion Picture Industry. These subjects aid the student in forming a foundation of the studies that follow. Under this heading the student studies the historical background of production and distribution, studio organization, production of pictures, classification of pictures, players, directors and story material.

"Under distribution principles, the exchanges and their organization, buying, booking, the contract between exchange and the theatre, and arbitration.

"After the students have acquired the fundamentals of production and distribution, they next study theatre administration, in which is given practical instruction in program building, schedules, reports and accounting. They also study theatre organization, law of the theatre, theatre finance and good will building. In the modern theatre of today the manager must know the value of courtesy and service and how to handle patrons, which is taken up under the general heading of Theatre Service, which also includes staff organization, selection and duties, fire drills, staff training and house maintenance.

TESTING THE LENS

All but one of the aberrations described in the last issue may afflict the photographic lens with which the picture was made. In projecting film it is often difficult to determine whether the fault lies in the projection lens or in the photographic lens. Chromatic aberration is the exception; color fringes on the screen are due only to the projection lens.

In no moving picture does the film run through the film gate absolutely flat but always buckles and flutters more or less due to heat and other conditions, so that the quality of the screen image is constantly changing.

For these reasons it is much better to test the lens with a stationary target which because of the heat in the film gate best takes the form of a thin sheet of metal, perforated with small holes. This should be absolutely flat and if it has buckled, in time, due to heat, it must be flattened again. The metal being perfectly opaque and the holes being perfectly transparent yield a maximum degree of contrast which is constant for any test. It is only by means of a target, such as the one described, that a fair comparison can be made between several different lenses.

tre advertising. He is first given instruction in the fundamentals; he analyzes selling forces, points and elements. He is shown systematically step by step the how and why of selling pictures to the public. Hundreds of successful lines and advertisements are used as examples. Mechanics of printing follows, which provides the student with a knowledge of type, its measurement and type faces suitable for theatre advertising. He is also shown how to proofmark, correct and change copy. After the student has been well trained in the principles and mechanics of printing, he follows with newspaper advertising in which he is shown how to lay-out attention-arresting and selling newspaper advertisements. Instruction is next given in programs, outdoor advertising, lobby display design, and under exploitation, the student receives hundreds of classified examples of exploitation ideas, covering the lobby, interior, street and cooperation stunts.

"Stagecraft division of the course has been especially prepared for managers to design and prepare presentation and prologues. Under this heading the students study stage settings, curtain combinations, stage lighting—principles, psychology and symbolism of colored lighting, effects and control. To enable managers to enhance theatre entertainment with proper musical presentation, the student studies the various orchestra combinations, from a small orchestra to a large symphonic orchestra. How to cue and time music with the picture, the theatre musical library, its contents and classification.

"Projection is studied from the managers' viewpoint, so that he will have a thorough knowledge of the screen picture, know the language of the projectionist and the value of projection maintenance. The student is instructed in physical operation of the theatre, which includes heating, ventilation, lighting and maintenance of theatres and theatre equipment.

"Day and evening classes are offered by the Institute. The day course runs for 12 weeks. The evening sessions are so arranged, that students are admitted at each entrance period, which is usually every Monday night."

The Institute is located at 135 West 44th street, New York City, in the heart of the theatrical and moving picture center of the world.

Guercio & Barthel Form Projection Repair Company

William Barthel and James Guercio, formerly repairmen for Monarch Theatre Supply company of Chicago, have formed a business partnership to engage in motion picture projection machine repair work and the selling of machine parts.

Both men have had 15 years experience in their line, including factory experience. Barthel was connected with United Theatre Equipment company for a number of years and Guercio served a number of years with the Sam Kaplan company of New York. During their long connection with Monarch they did the repair work for approximately 80 percent of Chicago theatres.

Guercio and Barthel are located at 1018 S. Wabash avenue, Chicago.

receives the total profits earned by the business, less the salary of his employes and other necessary expenses. However, an important disadvantage in this latter form of ownership is that in case of financial disaster the sole owner must bear the total loss; whereas in an ordinary partnership business, the partners bear the loss equally to the extent of their financial worth; in a limited partnership, the partners bear the losses equally up to, but not exceeding, the amount specified in the registered partnership agreement; and in a corporation the owners of stock suffer financial loss equal to their respective investments, unless by contract they assume greater obligations to creditors of the theatre business.

Organ Protection

SAVE costly repairs, and insure perfect organ service the year round, by protecting your organ against cold and deterioration from dampness—with a PROMETHEUS Electric Organ Heater.

Especially designed for this purpose, it heats the air in the organ chamber to the desired temperature, keeping the pipes and chests dry and warm—always, regardless of weather or climatic conditions.

It is equipped with a simple, trouble-proof thermostat, which automatically maintains a uniformly even heat of any predetermined degree, and requires absolutely no attention.

A small investment in protection may save you many dollars in repairs. Mail the coupon.

OF SPECIAL INTEREST to organ owners is the fact that in the PROMETHEUS Heater the heat issues not from the top, but from small apertures on the sides, thus heating the air in the chamber from as near the bottom as possible.

OF FURTHER INTEREST is the fact that its heating elements are the same as those we make for the U. S. Navy, which has adopted them as standard, after having subjected them to the most rigorous tests.

Orchestra vs. Organ

other houses located both in the residential and the downtown districts.

At the Mark Strand, in Albany, where the highest admission price is charged in the city, there is an excellent orchestra directed by Julius Boxhorn, who was one time in charge of an orchestra that played at Buckingham Palace in London. Selections rendered by the orchestra are very frequently applauded, and there is no doubt but that this part of the program of entertainment attracts a great many people to the theatre. The same holds true with the Troy theatre, both houses being under the same management. Of course both houses have organs to supplement their orchestras.

It is noticeable, however, that when the Mark Ritz was opened in Albany, the latest addition locally, to the chain, that an organ was installed and no orchestra hired. In Troy, practically all of the houses have organs these days, houses such as the American, the Lincoln, and others that have come into existence during the last few years or where the organ has replaced the orchestra.

Len Garvey, who operates theatres at New Hartford as well as Clinton, and who was for several years musical director for a chain of houses in the South, prefers an organ, although admitting that the initial cost is heavy, and also that it is a pretty hard matter to find good organists.

"It sometimes happens," said Mr. Garvey, "that when you do get a really good organist, he gains the impression that he is running the theatre. And yet, on the other hand, an orchestra is pretty thin at certain times, and an organ is best fitted to bring out the emotional qualities of a picture."

Others exhibitors in this territory declared last week that it was a hard matter to locate a violinist these days who would stay on the job and that it was far harder to maintain an orchestra of several pieces and observe all the union rules, than it was to use an organist and one assistant. There is no question, however, but that the organ is filling the bill throughout this part of New York state and that sooner or later, the orchestra of from two to five pieces will be a thing of the past in the motion picture theatres.

At least one semi-residential theatre in Albany, is using a radio these nights, for its music. With the WGY broadcasting station only a few miles away, and its associated network of broadcasting stations it is a comparatively easy matter for this exhibitor to regulate his dials so that there will be continuous music. The only trouble with the arrangement lies in the fact that it sometimes happens that in the saddest part of a picture, some orchestra is broadcasting a jazz number, which even with the wildest stretch of imagination, can not be conceived to be just the proper thing.

DES MOINES.—Nate Frudenfelt, manager of the Capitol in Des Moines, didn't hesitate a second in naming the organ as the preferred music attraction in theatres forced to choose between orchestras and organ. The all around practical usefulness of the organ gave it first place in Frudenfelt's judgment.

"The organ," said Frudenfelt, "can produce about all the effects produced by the orchestra, if it is a five-piece orchestra, and it costs very much less to maintain than the orchestra. Continuous music is possible with the organ when it is possible to have a relief player. With the orchestra there must be many periods during the day when there is no note of music in the house. The men play an hour or so and then rest for a period. The organ is the best if one must choose."

"For a moderate priced house," said Jesse Day, manager of the Strand in Des Moines, "the organ meets the musical demands and saves money for the house. We have dispensed with an orchestra in this house since September and we have no bad effect on the box office receipts to report from this source. The people who come to these moderate priced houses, come to see the pictures and not for any special program of musical numbers. This does not mean, however, that the music is not important or that it is not carefully planned, because we make the matter of music and film coordination one of the most important of the week's jobs.

"It takes careful planning to place the 12-minute rest periods taken by the organist at the best time during the filming. We plan these periods during the feature and not during either the news reel or the comedy. Experience shows that the music is missed less while the feature is in full sway than when the short subjects are on the screen. Manager and organist work together to place the rest periods in the psychologically correct spots. Sometimes audiences are so intent on the film that they scarcely notice the loss of the music. By that time the organist is back and the music goes on."

Dynamic Machine Assures Balance in Stabilarc Set

To eliminate vibration and noise through almost perfect balance in the rotating element of its Stabilarc motor generator, Automatic Devices Company of Allentown, Pa., uses an accurate mechanism known as a dynamic balancing machine.

In announcing the process used, the Automatic company says:

"The armature is placed in this machine and rotated at full speed and the location and extent of unbalance is immediately indicated and corrected. Having thus duplicated the action of the rotating element as in actual service, the machine when shipped and installed is assured of practically noiseless operation.

"Contributing further to the lack of vibration in the Stabilarc set are the rubber pads incorporated in the feet of the generator making the use of other absorption material unnecessary."

Effects

A great variety of unusual lighting effects are obtained with very little effort by using Brenkert effect lighting devices. Brenkert equipment is used by leading theatres throughout the world, ranging from the largest theatres to small community houses. This universal preference for Brenkert products is ample proof of efficiency and reliability.

The fact that Brenkert devices set the standard of efficiency and ease of operation, becomes more important when you consider that a reduction of as much as 50% in operating cost is also achieved.

Better and More Colorful STAGE LIGHTING

NEW designs in Kliegl Footlights and Borderlights are a long step ahead in the march of progress. They answer the "demands of today" for still better and more modern stage lighting equipment.

Borderlight No. 603

Footlight No. 621

Each lamp receptacle is fitted with an individual aluminum reflector, permanently fixed in the correct position, and equipped with colored-glass diffusing roundels. A compact enclosed type of construction is used that is dust-proof, damage-proof, and provides the greatest strength with the least weight. The high-reflecting qualities of the reflectors are everlasting. Better light, true non-fading colors, attractive appearance, easily installed—are predominant features. Insist upon the best—Kliegl lighting specialties are always dependable.

Complete description in Kliegl-News Bulletin No. 2—write for a copy.

IN SOUTHERN THEATRES TOO!

Evenheeters Protect the Organ

ALL through the south—from Florida to Texas—theatre owners have installed Evenheeters. Not only because of sudden temperature changes there but because Evenheeters ward off deterioration caused by dampness as well. The largest theatre chains in the south have installed Evenheeters to protect their entire organ equipment.

IN the south proximity to the ocean, rains and seiges of wet, chilly weather plays havoc with the organ. The dampness causes the chests and pipes to warp; causes the valves and relays to stick and ruins the harmony of the organ. Maintenance expenses mount as a result. The organ chamber must be kept warm and dry!

IN the south changes of from 40 to 90 degrees will occur in the springtime. These sudden changes of temperature ruin your organ. There is but one way of combating this weather condition and that is by installing Evenheeters.

IT is well then, Mr. Theatre Owner, to take steps in organ protection by installing Evenheeters in your organ chamber. The initial cost is not great; the upkeep is surprisingly low and the results are longer organ life, perfect organ operation and guaranteed satisfaction to all concerned.

Noted Ad Writer Supplies Copy for National Program

National Program and Printing Company of Chicago has just announced a new feature for subscribers to its house organ service.

L. D. Herrold, professor of advertising at Northwestern university, has been engaged to prepare a series of 12 advertisements for seven different businesses—haberdasher, banks, electric shop, candy store, drug store, restaurant and radio music store.

Subscribers to the program service are supplied with these 84 advertisements, each one illustrated, with a proof sheet on which is published a sales argument to be used in presenting the program advertising proposition to the merchants.

National has issued a new pamphlet which will illustrate this new service.

Silversheet Executives in Chicago on Business

A business mission brought H. C. Wood, president, and A. M. Pollack, an executive, of American Silversheet Company, St. Louis, to Chicago the week of March 4.

The executives report numerous contracts just closed, a number of installations now being made and deals pending.

Zorn Named President of Channon Corporation

LeRoy J. Zorn has been elected president of J. H. Channon Corporation, manufacturer of theatrical hardware and rigging, Chicago, by the board of directors. At the same meeting N. C. Nussbaumer was named vice-president.

This does not mean any change in management, according to the announcement by the company, as both executives have been actively in charge for some time.

Levy District Manager for Wurlitzer Company

George A. Levy has been appointed district manager of the organ division of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Company. His headquarters will be at 329 South Wabash avenue, Chicago.

EDWARD K. HOUSE
CHICAGO'S FAMOUS ENTERTAINING ORGANIST
AT THE SEEBURG ORGAN

IF YOU, like so many others, have discovered the undeniable necessity of pipe organ music for the accompaniment of your cinema plays; if your house seats less than 1,200 persons; if you require an instrument that is economical both from a standpoint of money invested and operating cost; and if you appreciate superior tone quality and the utmost convenience in performance—then, you should buy a SEEBURG! FEATURES never before heard of in theatre pipe organs have been provided in this new SEEBURG model.

With the Remote Control device the organ can be operated completely from your office, projection room or other location. This includes stopping and starting motors, as well as regulating either music roll in addition to certain stop control effects.

The twin rolls which either provide continuous music or a quick change from sentimental to hurry music at the will of the operator are recorded by highly skilled solo artists and fully re-enact the technique and expression of the original master.

Gentlemen:

Just a few words on your wonderful projector. The theatre opened last Saturday and I can truthfully say I have never seen two projectors put up a better picture.

I have operated other projectors for the past ten years, naturally I would say I liked them, but after operating your Motiograph DeLuxe Projectors for only five days, will say I know I am going to like them better than the others.

What takes my eye with your projector is the coolness of the gate and aperture after the use of high powered light and the ease to the film in framing.

Very truly yours,

Projectionist, Gayety Theatre.

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST

March 24, 1928

"A Band of Men whose Sweetheart was Death!"

From every corner of the world they came, that valiant band of youths who had tried everything in life but Death! There were men from sunny Spain, from far Argentina, from Fifth Avenue mansions, from the plains of Texas, from the downs of England—and each one had a story to tell more thrilling than fiction. Fearful tragedies, smashed loves, lost fortunes had driven them to join that dared-devil band of war fliers—"The Legion of the Condemned". Day after day, high above the earth, they flirted with Death, or dove their roaring planes far behind the enemy lines to land spies—the most hazardous mission of the war. "Stepsons of Hell" they were, whose only honorable discharge was a death certificate!

FAY WRAY and GARY COOPER, Paramount's Glorious Young Lovers, in a scene from "The Legion of the Condemned", their first co-starring picture. Directed by a man who himself was an ace, William Wellman, the story by John Monk Saunders.

"The LEGION of the CONDEMNED"

Another of those great Paramount Pictures that are talked about by everyone and remembered for days and days! Popular approval, and critical opinion from coast to coast, placed Paramount 'way in the lead on all lists of the best pictures of 1927. 1928 hits are even greater! Because Paramount goes ever onward and upward, accelerating progress year by year. Ask your Theatre Manager when he is going to show "The Legion of the Condemned" and all the other great Paramount Pictures of 1928.

A TIP: If you've got "The Legion of the Condemned" coming along, count the day or days on which you show it as lucky days. If this is one which has slipped away from you, do what you can to nab it. For it is entertainment of the superior grade that will load your bank account down with good American dollars.

Paramount has a bell ringer in this. Here are some reasons why: a corking title, a first rate, gripping story, which contains romance, suspense, thrills, action and pathos; a splendid cast, which does its stuff mighty well and production values of real merit. Lordy, how the yarn grips—all the way, too! It's a very, very good picture.

Gentlemen— We Americans!

(No. 578 Straight from the Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation.)

THERE ARE SOME PICTURES WHICH ARE BEYOND DESCRIBING.

THEY GIVE YOU SUCH A FEELING OF FULLNESS, THEY INSPIRE YOU with something so close to reverence and awe that words seem rather puny things.

SUCH A PICTURE IS "WE AMERICANS."

I THINK IT IS ONE OF THE BIGGEST PICTURES EVER MADE. I DON'T mean the biggest sets and the biggest crowds of extras. I mean the biggest sentiment, the biggest theme, the biggest appeal to the heart and soul.

"WE AMERICANS" WAS A SUCCESSFUL STAGE PLAY, WRITTEN BY Milton Herbert Gropper and Max Siegel, but I never saw such startling proof of the superiority of the screen over the stage in the telling of a great story.

EDWARD SLOMAN DIRECTED IT. ALFRED COHN WROTE THE adaptation. Carl Laemmle, Jr. supervised the production.

EVERY MEMBER OF THE CAST IS A STERLING PERFORMER AND YET so mighty is the sweep of the story that each one is lifted up to heights he never reached before. Such stories are rare. IN A WHOLE SEASON'S OUTPUT OF PICTURES THROUGHOUT THE WORLD, YOU CAN COUNT STORIES OF THIS QUALITY ON THE FINGERS OF ONE HAND!

PLEASE NOTE THE CAST:—GEORGE SIDNEY, BERYL MERCER, PATSY Ruth Miller, George Lewis, Albert Gran, Daisy Belmore, Michael Visaroff, Rosita Marstini, Eddie Phillips, Andy De Vino, John Boles, Flora Bramley, Jake Bleifer, Kathlyn Williams, Edward Martindel and Josephine Dunn.

THE STORY IS SIMPLE! ALL TRULY GREAT STORIES ARE. THIS ONE deals with the foreigners who come to America, some to become Americans and some to remain foreign. The generations born in this country outstrip the generations born abroad and it is this difference of viewpoint which makes the story.

THE FAMILY LIVES OF THESE AMERICANS AND NEAR-AMERICANS—their loves—their hates—their prejudices—their habits of thought—their humors—all these are portrayed in a manner which will make you shed tears one moment and chuckle the next.

I AM PROUD TO PRESENT THIS GLORIOUS PICTURE TO THE WHOLE WORLD. I FEEL THAT IN DOING SO, I AM HELPING TO MAKE THE WORLD A BETTER PLACE, I AM HELPING TO SOFTEN MANY A HEART AND I AM ADDING LUSTRE AND QUALITY TO THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY.

AND (WHISPER) INCIDENTALLY, I AM RELEASING A PICTURE WHICH is going to give you the darndest dose of profit you ever had in all your born days.

"I am confident that everybody who sees the picture will want to see it again. It is blameless, compared with so-called Irish pictures put out in the past. There isn't the slightest suggestion of ridicule or disparagement of the Irish race in its make-up. The children will enjoy it most and it will have a great influence in developing an understanding of what sacrifices mothers are willing to make. We congratulate the Fox Film Corporation and we highly commend the director, John Ford, who has woven from Rida Johnson Young's immortal story a film portrayal which eclipses anything of its kind in history."

STATEMENT BY CHARLES A. McMAHON, DIRECTOR, N.C.W.C. MOTION PICTURE BUREAU, FOLLOWING A PREVIEW OF "MOTHER MACHREE" PHOTOPLAY AT THE FOX WASHINGTON THEATRE, FEBRUARY 20, 1928.

Personally I was extremely pleased with the Fox "Mother Machree" photoplay. It is excellent motion picture entertainment -- clean, appealing and charged with many dramatic situations that register strongly on the emotions. Its theme -- mother love and sacrifice -- has been capably and effectively served by author and director as well as by a competent acting cast.

In addition, and to me this was especially gratifying, the picture throughout does credit to the finer elements of the Irish character. Artistically and morally a notably high plane prevails throughout the production, which is free from offense, religious or racial, and is powerfully appealing in its stressing of the traditional qualities of the true Irish nature.

The movietone accompaniment has been arranged with fine musical discrimination and adds immensely to the enjoyment of this altogether unique motion picture. "Mother Machree" can be unreservedly recommended to every type of film audience -- juvenile, family and adult.

Rida Johnson Young, upon whose story the photoplay is based, Gertrude Orr, who is responsible for the scenario, John Ford, who directed the picture, as well as the Fox Production Department, all deserve credit for this remarkable film.

"I am not given to tears, but I succumbed to 'Mother Machree.' The pathos in this wonderful Fox production is irresistible. John Ford, an Irishman by birth, has been true to his colors in directing this greatest of all Irish photoplays. It is presented on a very high plane and is free from even the slightest suggestion of vulgarity or ridicule. With this picture 'the stage Irishman' passes into a deserved oblivion. We are unanimous in pronouncing it most acceptable to our race because it is dignified and inoffensive to race and creed."

THE grandest, most glorious of all the glittering galaxies of Short Features that have ever been screened. That sounds like a Barnum ballyhoo; but it's the truth about Educational Pictures. They offer as much variety as a three-ring circus—and more real entertainment. And now they're brighter than ever—better than ever. More laughs per comedy—more variety per novelty—and a news reel that's first by a mile.

Educational is the real "Big Top" of the Short Features field—the greatest organization in the world devoted exclusively to Short Features.

Educational Pictures are backed up by eight years of specialized experience—and supported for the benefit of your box-office by a constant parade of advertisements and publicity that are making the fans everywhere seek the theatres that show these Short Features.

Educational Pictures* always make a good show better.

SENSATIONAL
“DRESSED to KILL”

In choosing “Dressed to Kill” as the feature film for the week, Roxy did wisely. Eddie Lowe is always grand, as he certainly is in this one. Mary Astor acts instead of merely looking beautiful. —Irene Thirer in the Sunday News

One of the best films the Roxy Theatre has presented in some time is to be seen on the screen. It is in the direction and characterizations that it offers a cinema entertainment worth seeing. —Betty Colfax in the Evening Graphic

A record of crime is always fascinating, and the activities of Edmund Lowe and his gang provide an hour's interesting entertainment. We recommend “Dressed to Kill.” —Regina Cannon in the American

“Dressed to Kill” is the best crime melodrama to come this way since another good picture by another producer. It moves rapidly and dramatically, it is well acted and the direction of Irving Cummings is exceptionally fine. Mary Astor is not only more alluring than she has ever been, but also gives by far her best performance. As the bandit hero, Edmund Lowe is considerably better than usual. —Richard Watts, Jr., in the Herald Tribune

“Dressed to Kill” is an underworld drama that is underworld and is drama. It's a wow film which shouldn't be missed. If “Dressed to Kill” is indicative of the Roxy's second year picture program, they'll be hanging the surplus customers on the Roxy chandeliers. —Bland Johaneson in the Daily Mirror

"Dear Mr. Depinet—

"It is due you and First National to say to you that during the first eight weeks of this year, 1928, we have run consecutively six First National pictures, two of which were run two weeks each, and four were run one week each and all were run at advanced prices.

"During these eight weeks we played against the strongest attractions of United Artists, Paramount and Metro-Goldwyn and also against . . .

"In Toledo with a population of about 300,000 people, having seven first run picture houses down town, including two combination houses showing vaudeville and pictures, I can honestly say to you that with 'THE PATENT LEATHER KID', 'SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS', 'THE PRIVATE LIFE OF HELEN OF TROY', 'THE LOVE MART', 'LADIES' NIGHT IN A TURKISH BATH', and 'THE NOOSE', we have had the best business in Toledo during this period, and each and every week of these eight weeks has been a big winner and a huge success in every way, with records broken too numerous to mention. Strong opposition was not a factor with us at our box office.

"With kindest regards, I am

The Pittman Decision

A DECISION which may have an important effect upon the censorship of motion pictures throughout the United States was delivered by Judge A. B. Pittman of the Tennessee circuit court in dissolving an injunction which would have restrained Vincent Carlinc, manager of the Lyric theatre of Memphis, from showing De Mille's opus, "The King of Kings."

"Some things are too sacred for the law to lay its profane hands on," declared Judge Pittman in his impromptu decision. "Religion is. And we have the attitude here of law trying to interfere with a religious picture. Whenever the law steps in to decide between persons of different religious leanings, then trouble begins to rise, then the danger of riots and revolution must rise.

"To censor a picture of this character, to my mind, is simply out of the question," he stated. "To censor any picture is a matter that some folks might rush into where angels fear to tread.

"If you take this literally and carry it to its logical conclusion, the act of the Legislature which empowers the city to censor any picture and forbid it if inimical to public welfare, how far is that to go and where is it to stop? What is public welfare? I do not believe that the Legislature ever had in mind that it was intended they (the censors) could censor books and preachings and picture shows because the censors didn't believe that they were the best on that particular subject.

"Indeed, carried to its logical conclusion, the Baptists could censor the Presbyterians and the Presbyterians stop the Baptists from preaching because they did not agree. If the courts ever embroil themselves into such controversies, the very foundations, in my opinion, of our government are beginning to crack. We must keep religion and law separate and apart."

In Memphis, the fight has been between groups of religious organizations. Laying aside the merits of the contention of either faction, the probability is that all concerned will view the subject of censorship in a new and clearer light. When censorship touches a subject in which an individual is intensely interested, he is apt to regard it from an entirely different attitude than when it was simply an abstract proposition.

Of Interest to Publishers

ONE of the most amusing assertions which has appeared in the public print in many a day was made by Mr. R. E. Wright, of the First Wisconsin National Bank of Milwaukee, in speaking before the American Bankers' Association at Chicago recently. He is quoted as saying:

"In writing advertising for the newspapers, bear in mind that the average mental age of your readers is fourteen years."

Mr. Wright's address was given wide prominence in the newspapers, his keynote having been that the daily newspaper is the banker's best advertising medium.

Everyone in the motion picture industry should keenly enjoy Mr. Wright's conclusions. For years, the press of the nation has editorialized in a rather superior tone on the theory that motion picture producers must gauge their product for the fourteen-year-old mind.

According to Mr. Wright, the newspaper publisher and the motion picture producer appeal to the same audience.

A Valuable Ally

EXHIBITORS confronted with the persistent harpings of self-styled moralists who sacrifice fact for phrase in their unfounded accusations against the motion picture will do well to keep ready for use the last and the current issue of this publication. Secretaries of Kiwanis clubs throughout the nation expressed in no uncertain terms their conviction that the motion picture theatre is a positive influence for good among the youth of their communities.

No civic organization is better qualified than Kiwanis International to speak on moral influences among young people. Working among them and for their betterment is a cardinal duty of Kiwanis branches. And when the consensus of leading Kiwanians is that the motion picture theatre is a helpful factor in education, in eliminating "street corner gangs", and in teaching the young how to meet the moral problems of everyday life, the fact is brought home that there is no excuse for permitting sweeping accusations of the uninformed—or, worse still, the misinformed—to go unchallenged.

In fact, these Kiwanis secretaries—with no connection with the industry, except possibly as chairmen of motion picture committees—cite direct benefits conferred upon youth by the motion picture theatre which the theatre owner himself might fail to emphasize under fire of the so-called reformer. There is no justification for the exhibitor who supinely retreats into his office when the meddlers—fortunately few in number but unfortunately many in verbiage—undertake to tell him what is wrong with the theatre.

Summer Is On the Way

IN THE motion-picture industry, the real harbinger of Spring is the manufacturer of ventilating equipment. Even before the first robin is faithfully reported to the newspapers, the firms specializing in ventilation begin to apprise the theatre owner that summer is coming and something should be done about it.

The motion picture theatre in the larger cities is recognized as a year-around amusement center. In fact, the hotter the day the better business is apt to be.

It is only within the last two years that great numbers of small town theatre owners have realized the possibility of summer business if proper attention is given to the comfort of their patrons. Last year, hundreds of smaller theatres were equipped. This year should see an even larger number.

Million Protest to Congress Against Sunday Closing Bill

Bandits Get $14,000 From Theatre Men In Week of Thefts

Over $14,000 in cash and a quantity of jewelry were stolen the past week in burglaries and robberies of which film men were the victims. The largest amount, $8,400, was taken from the Mainstreet theatre, Kansas City, when three bandits entered the office of Manager Taylor F. Myers and forced him to open the safe. Carl Nasselo, 20 years old, was seized by the police for questioning.

Two masked and armed bandits got $4,500, the weekly payroll, when they held up Harvey M. Hobbe, assistant manager of Keith's theatre, Syracuse, last Saturday morning. Four armed men Sunday night forced the cashier of the Annetta theatre, Cicero, Chicago suburb, to hand $500 through the ticket window, while 1,000 were watching a performance.

In four Philadelphia burglaries in one night $300 was taken from the Kline Poster Company; $200 from Gibelli & Company, theatre decorators ($500 in gold leaf being overlooked); $50 from the Liberty exchange; and jewelry from the Reliance Printing Company, theatre printers. E. W. McFarland of the Pine Grove theatre, Port Huron, Mich., was the victim of burglary of his home. Receipts from the evening's performance, amounting to $145, a check for $39, and considerable jewelry were stolen while the family slept.

Sapiro's Entry in Trade to Be Marked by Dinner

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 20.—Aaron Sapiro, newly appointed head of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of New York, an organization of independent owners, will be the guest of honor at a dinner given by the T. O. C. C. at the Ritz-Carlton, April 16.

The dinner will serve as an introduction of Sapiro to the picture industry, as he has been associated with other trades, as an expert in cooperative marketing and buying.

"Store Nights" Called Lottery; Arrest Four

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

PORTLAND, Ore., March 20.—Four managers of motion picture theatres have been arrested here charged with operating lotteries as a result of Chief of Police Jenkins' edict that "country store" nights must be discontinued.

Those arrested were Art Hile, Bagdad theatre; Steven Parker, Granada theatre; I. Geller, manager Geller's theatre, and C. F. Yeager.

Woman Mayor Loses Office to Theatre Man

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

SEATTLE, MARCH 20.—Frank Edwards, former theatre owner, defeated Bertha K. Landes, incumbent, for the office of mayor of Seattle by a large majority in the election last week. Mayor Landes declared that her defeat merely indicated that men still hold the balance of voting power.

Lankford Asked to Hush Up Until After Fall Elections

Legislators, Impressed by Petitions, Turn Against Measure—Two Bluenose "Demonstrations" Fail

More than one million individuals already have protested to Congress over their signatures against the Lankford bill which, while specifically demanding Sunday closing for the District of Columbia, is being supported by bluenoses as a wedge for a nationwide shutdown of theatres on the Sabbath.

Ten Million Names Expected

The million names have been sent in by the International Religious Liberty Association of Washington, through its branches throughout the country, and it is hoped to swell the list to ten millions, Dr. C. S. Longacre, secretary, has written C. E. Holmes, secretary of the Progressive Civic League, Oak Park, Ill.

Two other developments of importance have just come to light. One is the complete blowup of a huge demonstration which had been planned by advocates of the blue legislation. The other is the report that Lankford has been requested by some of his fellow congressmen to refrain from pushing the bill until after the fall elections. Meantime the supporters of his measure are accumulating petitions in the hope that they can make a strong impression by presenting them all at once at some later date.

30,000 Protest in One Day

Names of individuals opposed to the bill are being registered in the Congressional Record from every state, as many as 30,000 having been received in one day.

The failure of the bluenoses to put over their demonstration meeting hearkens back to a session of the United Council, a committee composed of 20 religious organizations, in the Congress Hall hotel at the national capital. It was planned to tie up the demonstration meeting with a national prohibition rally of the day previous. The committee had hopes of wheeling a number of the prohibition delegates into the movement, and then, with a ponderous delegation, storming the House of Representatives and the White House with a demand for favorable consideration of the Lankford bill now before the House.

Only 30 Attend, Half Opposed

The plan failed. When the time for the great demonstration arrived, there were only 30 present, and half of these were opposed to the bill. Then the blue law proponents went into executive session, ejecting those who opposed the measure.

Another attempt that same night to drum up an imposing showing of the so-called reformers was equally unsuccessful. Lankford spoke at a church in Washington in defense of the bill, but only 70 heard him, and 50 per cent opposed his scheme. In contrast, 2,000 attended a meeting of champions of Sunday shows in the Arcadia Auditorium.

A number of congressmen have been so impressed by the thousands of petitions against the Lankford measure, according to Washington dispatches, that they have declared they will oppose the bill.

New York State Will Have Censorship Another Year; Assembly Kills Repeal Bill

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

ALBANY, March 20.—Censorship will remain in New York state at least another year. This became certain last week when the Assembly, the lower house of the Legislature, by a strict party vote, downed the censorship bill that had been introduced earlier in the session by Irwin Steingut of Brooklyn. The censorship question has entered into politics with the Republicans opposing it to a man.

Ban Hickman Picture

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

DALLAS, March 20.—The Texas M. P. T. O. has issued a proclamation to its members asking them to restrain the showing of the Hickman reel.

$350,000 Fire Destroys Two Theatre Buildings; Manager Hurt Saving Cash

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., March 20.—The Plattsburg Theatre Building, housing offices and a motion picture theatre operated by William Benton of Saratoga Springs, owner of a chain of houses in Northern New York, was totally destroyed by fire early Saturday morning. The Clinton theatre adjoining, which has been closed for the past three years and is owned by Benton, was also destroyed. The total loss is estimated at $350,000.

Ralph J. Henry, manager of the theatre, was severely cut about the wrist and hands while attempting to recover cash and records in the box office, when the windows were shattered by the heat. A detachment of 125 soldiers from the military barracks was summoned to assist the firemen and police, and four soldiers narrowly escaped death under a falling wall. Benton stated over the telephone that the fire had apparently started from defective wiring in the old Clinton theatre. He said that the loss was covered by insurance.

BROADWAY

NEW YORK—Sooner or later all the hot ones will be back in town and dear old Broadway will be taking a peek at "The Captive" on the so-called silver screen. We've just finished applauding Gloria Swanson in something that looked just the teentsiest little bit like that awful "Rain." And now there's a new one that couldn't possibly be motion picture version of that horrid "They Knew What They Wanted"—or could it . . . Further details of the great Harriette Underhill opus, for which she gleefully reported the receipt of enough dough from FBO for the purchase of a diamond bracelet, reveal that it's a comedy. What laughs for the boys! . . . Mark Luescher has done everything for the poloists of the N. V. A. but mount a nag and hit the ball himself. Where was Will Rogers—and that promising young feller from Long Island, Fred Stone? . . . Roxy had the front yard all done up in flags this week. And the stack of telegrams that arrived! Great fishhooks, doesn't anybody write letters any more? . . . Betty Bronson, the Peter Pan of the screen, is getting as close to her favorite character as possible. Her Fiance's initials are P. A. N. His last name is Eccleswood. . . Paul J. Smith, general sales manager for the Vitaphone, has returned to New York, from San Francisco, in which city he opened a Vitaphone branch. This is not the olive branch, at least so far as the Vocafilms are concerned. . . Press agent extraordinary and plenipotentiary "Randy" White says that Jack Noble is engaged in making permanent waves for the Vocafilms. Might be well to remark that Jack Noble is the only director living who was injured by the landing of Columbus. (Historic note) Columbus landed for Mutual at High Island, in 1909. . . Two companies seem to be on the verge of bringing Zaza out of the moth balls, and giving her an airing. She made her first visit to the screen in 1915, and Gloria Swanson put her over the jumps in 1923. Zaza is a tough baby, but she wears well. . . Wray Physioc, the well-known director, who has been making pictures throughout the West Indies for the past two years, has returned to New York, and opened one of the most up-to-date picture studios in the city. Physioc is also an artist in oils, as well as photography. . . Jack Keegan has recovered from an attack of la grippe, and is back at his desk as usual, somewhat thinner, but the mustache is now thick enough to be noticed. . . Harry Sherman is in town, and looking fine. Harry has joined forces with "Jimmie" Cruze and they expect to make and distribute 26 pictures a year on the open market. . . Harry Carey is at the Ambassador with his wife and family. Harry's ranch in California was swept away in the dam flood at San Francisquito. Harry worked hard for that ranch, and he has our sympathy. . . Timothy E. Leahy, mostly called "Tim," has been appointed advertising solicitor general, for moving pictures, by the Morning Telegraph. "Tim" knows picture people backwards, and calls 'em by the front name. Here's how, "Tim"! Trust you knock them over the fence. . . Charlie Burr is in New York, and we hope he will renew his contract with First National. Charlie made good pictures and it would be a shame to lose a good producer these days. . . James R. Cameron has just brought out the fourth edition of "Motion Picture Projection" and J. R. says it is selling like "hot cakes". It looks like a telephone directory, and is packed full of valuable information to the projectionist.

PETER STUYVESANT.

F B O Reissues 1926 Winner

FBO is reissuing "The Keeper of the Bees." This picture, it will be recalled, made more money for exhibitors in 1926 than any other production, according to the Herald-World "Ticker." Clara Bow is featured. Leo Meehan directed. Presented here are three scenes from this outstanding box office success.

Cecil Maberry Is Named Sales Head of Columbia Films

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 20.—Cecil E. Maberry, widely known executive in distribution and sales in the film industry, has been appointed sales manager of Columbia. Before joining Columbia, he was district manager and later special representative for Pathe in the Chicago territory.

Cecil E. Maberry

His initial motion picture affiliation was as a theatre owner in 1910, when he opened and managed several theatres in St. Louis. He was with Goldwyn Pictures for five years as branch manager in St. Louis and Chicago, district manager and vice-president in charge of sales.

Joe Goldberg, formerly booking manager of West Coast Theatres, will join Columbia April 1, as West Coast sales manager. John C. Ragland, formerly in charge of this territory, is leaving Columbia to devote himself to other interests.

Irish in San Francisco Hit Films Slurring Race

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20.—A definite campaign against moving pictures ridiculing the Irish race was launched last week at a convention of the United Irish Societies, at which Will Hays was criticised for permitting such films to be made and shown.

"The Callahans and Murphys" was mentioned specifically as an example. Supervisor Andrew J. Gallagher was appointed chairman of the campaign executive committee, with instructions to join committees in other cities and leaders of the Jewish people. The committee will protest to local exhibitors.

Eastman Escapes Death When Fire Razes Coach

George Eastman narrowly escaped death in Egypt when a fire swept two coaches, including the sleeping car in which the manufacturer and his party were returning from a hunting party in the heart of Africa, according to dispatches from Cairo. The loss of films was slight, all but two of the rolls having been shipped separately. Eastman fled from the blazing coach in his pajamas.

Nora Bayes Dies

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

BROOKLYN, March 20.—Nora Bayes, celebrated musical comedy and vaudeville actress, died here yesterday after a relapse from an operation. Nora Bayes, whose real name was Leonora Goldberg, was born in Chicago in 1880.

Law Must Not Interfere with Religious Film, Judge Decides

Censoring Production Like "King of Kings" Is Out of Question, Tennessee Jurist Holds—Herald-World Prints Text of Ruling on Censorship

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

MEMPHIS, March 20.—The law has no right to attempt to interfere with a religious picture, Judge A. B. Pittman of the circuit court ruled in the decision which dissolved an injunction against the showing of "The King of Kings" at the Lyric theatre, of which Vincent Carline is manager.

"Keep Religion and Law Separate"

"If the courts ever embroil themselves into such controversies, the very foundations, in my opinion, of our government are beginning to crack," Judge Pittman stated in his opinion. "We must keep religion and law separate and apart."

Judge Pittman declared that censoring such a production is "out of the question", and added that he did not believe the legislature ever intended that the censors "could censor books and preachings and picture shows because the censors didn't believe that they were the best on that particular subject."

See Nationwide Precedent

Exhibitors and others in the industry here saw the possibility of a nationwide effect upon censorship as a result of the precedent-setting decision, which, they agreed, clipped the wings of the local censor board.

Captain Walter Chandler, city attorney and counsel for the censor board, declared the validity of the opinion will be tested before the state supreme court.

Judge Pittman's opinion, in full, follows:

"I have listened to more intelligent witnesses in this case than I have heard in any one lawsuit before. I have listened to witnesses who, to my mind (and it is rather refreshing) have told the truth. I was particularly impressed with the frankness of the statement of Rabbi Ettelson in this case. His testimony and the other testimony that I have heard here convinces me that this is a religious question that has been brought into the law court.

Censorship Leads to Situation

"The appointment of a censor board by a government, carried logically to its conclusion, where motion pictures are censored, is most certain to lead to situations like the present.

"We have heard from a Lutheran minister, Baptist minister and a Jewish rabbi, on one side, and we have heard from representatives of the Catholics, the Methodists, the Presbyterians, the Episcopalians, and even a Unitarian, on the other side. And these men see this picture in a wholly different light. They see it through religious eyes. All of them look at it religiously. And then a court is called upon to determine this kind of a controversy.

Not for Government to Handle

"What Dr. Ettelson said I heartily agree with, and that is that nothing should be done that would tend to incite race or religious prejudice. Everything should be done, rather, to prevent that. And yet that is a religious thing. That is not a thing for government to handle. In all of the New Testament and the Four Gospels—and I have looked through them for a period of years carefully to find one piece in the Gospels where Jesus ever called upon Caesar to help him in anything he undertook to do—one of the witnesses here, I believe the Lutheran minister, referred to that part in the Bible where Jesus was asked if it was lawful to pay tribute unto Caesar and he replied: 'Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's.'

Law Must Not Interfere

"To my mind that meant that Caesar, which is but another name for government, should keep its hands strictly off of religious matters and, indeed, the very foundation of this government is that law must not interfere with religion. To my mind that is what was meant by this statement: 'Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's.'

"Too Sacred for Law"

"Some things are too sacred for law to lay its profane hand upon. Religion is.

"Now we have the attitude here of law undertaking to interfere in the religious picture and to say that it must stop because it does not please every one of the different religions in the world. Certainly if the picture was one that ridiculed or profaned religion, then, under the well settled authorities throughout the country, it could be stopped. But not one witness has testified that that is true of this picture. Dr. Ettelson himself says that the picture portrays fairly the life of Jesus insofar as it undertakes to do so. He says that the spirit of the Gospel is there but that his objection to it was that it would tend to bring sharply—challenge the attention sharply of those of the mob who are imbued with prejudice. Unfortunately, that is true. And there can not be a sermon preached in the pulpit in America today on the subject of the betrayal and the crucifixion of Jesus Christ, but what there is some comment on some question and feeling against the Jews might arise. But, as he frankly says, the broad-minded and liberal people of the world have gotten away from that.

Not an Immoral Picture

"Another minister objects to it on the ground that he is opposed to any portrayal of a human being of Jesus.

"Certainly that difference of opinion between these men as to the propriety of those things is not a question that the law should step in and deal with.

"This picture is evidently—it is impossible, from the testimony I have listened to in this court room, that it is an immoral picture. It is impossible that it is inimical to public safety. Indeed, it might be inimical to public safety if the law laid its profane hand upon a religious ceremony and undertook to stop it. Men are more tolerant of interference by men of other beliefs than they are tolerant of interference by government with their beliefs, and whenever the law steps in to decide between persons of different religious leanings, then trouble begins to arise, and then the danger of riots and revolutions must arise. Time and time again in this court we have been called upon to determine between members of a church but never before has it been presented here where members representing different churches were widely differing with each other about the propriety of a picture which is essentially religious and should be a sacred affair.

Highest Court to Decide

"It is simply unbelievable that the leading members of this community and of the religious life of Memphis would come into this court and testify that this picture was a beautiful and sacred and Christian making production when it was a thing that was inimical to public safety and immoral. It could not be. And the judgment of this court is unhesitatingly that the certiorari is granted and the supersedeas made permanent. And I think indeed it is fortunate that the question has arisen this early, that it may be settled by the highest court in this state and determined whether or not the judges of the court must be compelled to censor the pictures. To censor a picture of this character, to my mind, is simply out of the question. To censor any picture is a matter that some folks might rush into where angels fear to tread.

Sees Danger to Government

"If you take literally, and carry it to its logical conclusion, the act of the legislature which empowers the city to censor any picture and forbid it if it is inimical to public welfare, how far is that to go and where is it to stop? What is public welfare? I do not believe that the legislature ever had in mind that it was intended that they could censor books and preachings and picture shows because the censors didn't believe that they were the best on that particular subject. Indeed, carried to its logical conclusion, the Baptists could censor the Presbyterians, and the Presbyterians stop the Baptists from preaching because they are not altogether. And one of the witnesses testified that in his opinion it was inimical to public welfare to show at all a sacred picture of this kind undertaking to portray the life of Jesus and the activities of Jesus.

"And if the courts ever embroil themselves into such controversies of that kind, the very foundations, in my opinion, of our government are beginning to crack. And we must keep religion and law separate and apart.

Prejudice Held Meanest Thing

"But I want too, in conclusion, to concur with Dr. Ettelson in my opinion that we ought all do all that we can to prevent inciting race prejudice. To my mind it is the meanest and lightest thing in human nature, racial or religious prejudice.

"And with that statement, I grant the petition and make the supersedeas permanent, and hope that the city attorney will take the matter to the supreme court to the end that it may be determined if the circuit courts have got to censor pictures."

Who Began First Theatre Circuit? Mrs. M. M. Sloan Is Entry

Opened Initial Exclusive Picture House in Tacoma 31 Years Ago, With William McConahae as Associate

Who started the first motion picture theatre circuit? Here is a story of the first entry for the title, and she is 70 years old. This publication will welcome articles from any individuals who dispute Mrs. Sloan's right to the crown as oldest circuit exhibitor.

TACOMA, March 20.—Just 31 years ago, in 1897, Mrs. M. M. Sloan, who still makes this city her home, with her associate, Mr. William McConahae, opened here the first exclusive motion picture show, the Searchlight Moving Picture theatre, at 9th and Pacific avenue. Furthermore, it is claimed that the first real motion picture house and the first chain of motion picture theatres in the United States, and very likely in the world, were first established in the State of Washington.

MRS. SLOAN and Mr. McConahae opened their first theatre in Seattle. A few months later they established a circuit of motion picture show houses in Tacoma, Spokane, Portland and Victoria, B. C.

No Tickets Used Then

Tacoma's first picture theatre had a frontage of 25 feet on Pacific avenue. Rows of seats on a level floor gave the audience a view of the white canvas stretched close to the high ceiling upon which screen the pictures were projected. From the outside entrance, the Gramophone, Grand, talking machine, which cost $350 and was one of three in the State of Washington, provided the music, except when the piano was played for the singer of an illustrated song.

The moving picture operator, the girl who took the entrance fee (there were no tickets), a boy who distributed handbills, and Mrs. Sloane who had charge of the talking machine, were the working force of the theatre.

Operated by Hand Crank

Operated by hand crank, the moving picture machine of cinematograph, as it was called, was one perfected by M. Lemiere of Paris. The cinematograph, as well as the rolls of films, were imported from France and had to be purchased outright, each picture costing from $300 to $500. Programs were changed weekly; occasionally by request they ran an additional week. Later the Edison motion picture machines and films were used.

The nearest approach to the scenario as shown today was classed on the handbills as "The Astor Tramp." This picture, according to Mrs. Sloan, met with great approval.

Although 70 years of age, Mrs. Sloan is mentally and physically alert. She is keenly alive to the events of the day and to progress in the industry, but now spends most of her time taking care of her garden and lawn.

"Dawn" Called Artistic Picture; German Sees No Slur on His People

[By the London Correspondent of Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World]

LONDON, March 10.—I have seen the film "Dawn," and I can imagine no one who is opposed to war and all its damnable consequences, wishing to obstruct the exhibition of this film. It is a masterpiece of artistry and screen story telling.

Sitting beside me at the showing, which was a private one attended by only a few journalists, was a leading German journalist. He afterwards said that he could find nothing in the picture that would offend German feelings. On the contrary, he said, he felt it was done in a manner which showed that the Germans, like the Allies, were chained to the chariot and could not escape the stain of ordering Nurse Cavell's execution.

It is understood here that "Dawn" has been sold in America. There it will be shown to people happily free from stodgy national prejudices and the throttling influences of musty tradition. I believe America will like the film, simply because it is a good straightforward human story.

In spite of the censors' ban, the film is likely to be shown in this country. It is to be shown to a large party of journalists and politicians in Germany within a very short time.

Big Names Fail

To Lure Investors

Last week a new capital issue was made by the Welsh-Pearson-Elder company, and although the directorate includes such well known names as George Pearson, T. A. Welsh and T. A. Elder, the issue was practically turned down by the public.

Only a small fraction of the issue was taken up, leaving the underwriters with more than 75 per cent. This has left a bad taste in the mouths of the financiers, and will probably give British production a jar.

Arthur Maude, who came over here from Hollywood last year, is joining Edward Godal and others in forming a new British producing company.

Orpheum Publicity to Be Done by K-A-O in East

Consolidation of the Orpheum Publicity Department in Chicago with the New York publicity department of Keith-Albee-Orpheum, is now being effected. The single department will be located in New York, the Chicago office being discontinued.

William Burlock, who has been director of publicity for Orpheum, is remaining in Chicago to handle exploitation for the local K-A-O houses.

Standard Price Survey To Appear in Later Issue

So great has been the response to the survey among Kiwanis Clubs on the influence of the motion picture theatre on the youth of the community that another page is devoted in this issue to the replies from the secretaries. Considering the publication of that material of as great service to the theatre owner and others in the industry as the article on standard prices in theatres, the latter, which was to have appeared this week, is reserved for publication in a later issue. A number of revelations of value as well as interest will be brought out in the survey on theatre prices.

The Score Society

Exhibitors who have scored for a score or more years

WRITE down the name of H. E. Nelson as the first charter member of the new Score Society. Nelson, of the Star theatre at Quincy, Ill., is interested in knowing theatre owners who have been connected with the industry for twenty or more years, and in recalling the oldtimers. And that's what suggested "The Score Society."

Says Nelson:

"I started in June, 1907, at the Nickelodeon theatre, Ottumwa, Iowa. My first job was playing effects behind the picture curtain. I have been connected with and have had the Star theatre of this city nearly 19 years."

There's the challenge, oldtimers! Nelson isn't claiming any records, but he's the champion of "The Score Society" unless you can outscore him.

New England Exhibitors to Meet Soon in Boston

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

BOSTON, March 20.—Organization of the Allied Theatre Owners of New England is well under way and within a few weeks it is planned to hold the initial meeting at Boston.

Eddie Farrell has charge of organization plans and his work is meeting with widespread success throughout Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire and later will be extended into the other New England states.

Saleswoman Wins Prize of Paramount-Photoplay

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

LOS ANGELES, March 20.—Rena Vale, 28 years old, former saleswoman of hosiery in an office building here, is the winner of the $5,000 first prize of the Paramount-Photoplay magazine $15,000 Idea contest. Her story, "Swag," will be used as a starring vehicle for George Bancroft.

Actors Vote to Restrict Alien Stars on U. S. Stage

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 20.—Actors Equity Association has adopted restrictions on the appearance of alien stars on the American stage. Alden Gay, American actress, recently was barred from a play in England.

Theatres in South Ask For "Uncle Tom's Cabin"

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 20.—Many theatres throughout the South are asking for bookings on "Uncle Tom's Cabin," according to advice from the Universal home office. It has already played 18 weeks in New York.

"Speedy" Gets World Premiere on April 6

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 20.—Harold Lloyd's latest picture, "Speedy," will be given its world premiere at the annual benefit of the Theatrical Press Representatives Association of New York on April 6. The picture opens the following day at the Rivoli theatre for an extended run.

S. M. P. E. to Hold Spring Sessions in Hollywood, Apr. 9-14

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 20.—The spring meeting of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers will be held at the headquarters of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, Hollywood, April 9 to 14.

This is the first opportunity to be afforded the various technicians of the East and West to meet together. A preliminary program has already been prepared. Full reports of the proceedings of the meeting will be printed in the April 14 issue of Better Theatres.

World Looks to Screen For Guidance in Buying, Milliken Tells Ad Group

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

CLEVELAND, March 20.—Startling evidence of the motion picture's influence upon trade in American goods throughout the world was revealed here today by Carl E. Milliken, secretary of the M. P. P. D. A., in a speech before the Advertising Club of Cleveland.

"For every foot of film exported from this country," Governor Milliken said, "the department of commerce has determined that American business secures a return of at least one dollar in trade. The film has become an animated catalogue for American goods and people the world over are turning to the screen for direction in their purchase of goods, with the result that millions of dollars are being poured annually into the pockets of business men, whether they deal in soap, automobiles, harness, dressgoods, cosmetics, or what not."

Plan Stage Show for King; He Chooses Film

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

BERLIN, March 20.—Aman Ullah, king of Afghanistan, while a guest of the German Reich, visited the Gloria Palast with his attendants and saw Parufamet's "Special Delivery." Originally a visit to a stage theatre was planned, but the king voiced a preference for the picture house, according to Lichtbildbühne, trade paper.

British Company Now In Midst of Production

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

LONDON, March 20.—The new British producing company, British Filmcraft Productions, Ltd., has announced that it has already started production on a series of Sexton Blake films, and that production will soon start on several other pictures.

Fox Sends Hake to Tokio

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 20.—Clarence V. Hake, formerly manager in Japan for First National and recently connected with FBO, will sail for Tokio, March 30, to take over the Fox office there.

Hoyt Made Manager

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

ST. JOHNS, N. B., March 20.—Gerald M. Hoyt is the new manager of First National's branch here, succeeding W. A. Owens.

Rivals Start Building Houses; Limited Film Supply Halts One

E. H. Uhlhorn and Associates Drop Construction at Downers Grove, Ill.—Floyd M. Brockell and Joseph Stern, Connected with B & K Midwest, Will Lease Competing House

Convinced that they cannot compete against the opposition theatre with the limited product available to them, E. H. Uhlhorn and his associates have stopped building operations on their proposed new DuPage theatre at Downers Grove, Ill. Real estate purchased, work already performed and contracts placed will necessitate an expenditure of approximately $90,000 to finish the stores and offices which were to have been contained in the theatre block.

Competing New Theatre Will be Completed

The competing new theatre, the excavation for which was started a short time after the Uhlhorn group broke ground, will be completed by Downers Grove Investment Company and turned over on a twenty-year lease to Floyd M. Brockell and Joseph Stern, who are associated with the Balaban & Katz Midwest Theatres.

The story of the various promotional efforts to give this little suburb of Chicago with its 8,000 residents a modern new theatre culminating in two foundations being dug and one project being abandoned is an interesting one.

Uhlhorn Tells His Story

Uhlhorn, who has been a theatre owner in Downers Grove for the past eight years, came to the HERALD-WORLD office with his story. He said he would like it printed, not because he expected it would change the situation, but simply as information to other theatre owners who might be in the same situation. He says he believes that he has no legal remedy, yet he believes he has a grievance.

"I picked out the HERALD-WORLD because I believe it is for the theatre owner and is sane about it," he said.

Uhlhorn explained that he had operated the Curtis theatre in Downers Grove for eight years. Five years ago he entered a partnership with the opposition house, the Dicke, and managed both houses.

After several attempts to get backing for a new theatre, he interested Judge S. L. Rathje and Adam Dernbach, a theatre owner, both residents of Wheaton. He obtained the necessary property on Curtis street and ground was broken in October, 1927.

Gives Up the Dicke Theatre

September 1 he gave up the Dicke theatre but offered the owners $200 per month to let it remain dark. A short time later, the Dicke theatre was leased by Brockell and Stern. In November, they broke ground for a 1,200-seat house.

Brockell and Stern obtained Paramount, Metro, First National, Fox, Universal, United Artists and Pathe pictures for the Dicke, running an occasional double feature.

Booth Fire Brings Action for Safety Device

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—Prompt action on the part of the police prevented a stampede when fire broke out in the operating room of the Mammoth theatre. As a result, action is being taken by the fire marshal to force equipment of all motion picture projectors with a safety device. While H. Devlin, the operator, was trying to extinguish the flames, Policeman Hoffman summoned the fire department. In attempting to announce the fire was of small consequence, Manager George W. Holman was pushed through the cashier's booth in the rush to the exit and suffered severe laceration of the hand.

Uhlhorn stated that he had FBO pictures under contract and bought Columbia's features. He stated that upon attempting to purchase the product of the other companies, he found them sold to the competition.

"If I can't get more pictures, I can't compete, so work on the theatre has stopped and probably will not be resumed," he declared.

Effort at Compromise Fails

Uhlhorn stated that when it became apparent an opposition theatre was to be built, Adam Dernbach, his associate, urged him to go to the Illinois Exhibitors Association for assistance.

"I didn't like to as I feel it operates for the chain houses," he said. "I was formerly a director of the old exhibitor organization but it was impossible to get the downstate exhibitors to pay their dues. When I found out that only two of the fifteen directors I was associated with had paid their dues, I resigned."

Dernbach insisted, however, he said, and he prepared his version of the situation in letter form. He understood that Ludwig Seigel, an officer of the exhibitor organization, was to present the letter to the Federal Trade Commission at the New York hearing last fall. Upon Seigel's return, he was informed that the Commission was too busy and Seigel had shown the letter to Brockell. Uhlhorn shrugged his shoulders.

Later, Judge Rathje approached Brockell and sought a compromise. He offered Brockell $25,000 or one-half of the first year's gross to give up the opposition theatre project. As an alternate, he offered to accept the same proposition. Brockell declined.

Brockell Tells His Story

Floyd M. Brockell readily received a representative of the HERALD-WORLD at his office in the Balaban-Katz Midwest Theatre suite in the Butler building, Chicago.

He stated that the entire incident impressed him as a business deal and hardly a story, but that he was ready and willing to discuss any phase of it.

His interest in Downers Grove, he stated, went back fifteen years, when he and the older Dicke, the veteran exhibitor of the town, became warm friends. Brockell as manager for Paramount was able to make a rental adjustment for Dicke, when the latter showed that the rental he was paying was unreasonable in proportion to the amount of business he was doing.

Invited Into Downers Grove

Years passed and Brockell, after many positions in a number of cities, returned to Chicago and joined the Balaban-Katz Midwest organization. George Dicke, son of the other Dicke, dropped in often to confer with him.

Dicke was anxious to have Brockell or his organization take over the two theatres or at

Survey Shows Value to Exhibitor of Tying Up with Civic Clubs

Kiwanis Secretaries' Suggestions Offer Theatre Owner Opportunity to Cooperate with His Community's Leaders

By ERNEST A. ROVELSTAD

OPPORTUNITY for theatre owners to cooperate with the officials of civic organizations in their communities is evidenced in the comments elicited in the survey which EXHIBITORS HERALD AND MOVING PICTURE WORLD has been conducting among secretaries of Kiwanis clubs regarding the motion picture theatre and youth. So great has been the response that this page is devoted to replies which were received too late for inclusion in the article in last week's issue.

WHEREAS the following replies follow the trend of those received earlier, in which the secretaries brought out the fact that the theatre is an influence for good among the youth of the community, suggestions are offered which the wideawake exhibitor will utilize to cement goodwill, both in cooperation in civic events and in conducting his theatre, both in exploitation and in the shaping of programs.

One secretary emphasizes the value of matinees planned especially for school children. Another calls the newsreel "invaluable in their educational instruction." Several deplore suggestiveness in productions and one offers the interesting comment that the motion picture theatre is "neither an influence for good nor a detriment; it is purely entertainment." Another called the question unfair in not asking what bad influence the theatre might have.

The replies follow:

H. J. Berry, Chairman, Better Films Committee, Jacksonville, Kiwanis Club, Fla.

The raised level of the present day picture is an unquestionably valuable influence on youth in raising social and educational standards. Its technic has advanced faster than its artistic standard, however, lessening its importance as a vital cultural force.

A. B. Claypoole, Aberdeen Kiwanis Club, S. D.

Gives youth a world view in the news flashed on the screen. Provides wholesome entertainment for family parties where youth can go with parents. Keeps youth out of pool halls, dance halls and off the street. Invests youth with the penalty of the breaking of laws of land, laws of health, laws of society, etc. Intensifies in youth an interest in dramatic productions and gives them ideas of self expression.

V. L. Burton, Princeton Kiwanis Club, Ind.

Keeps them off the street. Furnishes wholesome amusement. Educational features. Suggestion: Censor closely. Allow no robbery or murder scenes to be shown. Under present conditions the danger of the motion picture almost outweighs its good effects on the young.

E. C. Henke, Baraboo Kiwanis Club, Wis.

The judgment of our president, who is also superintendent of schools, is that the movies produced here are above the average. The attendance at the theatre is not so large as the management could desire. The general feeling is that the movies can greatly help accordingly as they are of educational or clean quality.

L. Walker, Escanaba Kiwanis Club, Mich.

The majority of films revolve around trifling and insignificant events of human experience. Producers and actors as a rule are not occupied with big things in a big world. They apparently seek for something that will draw a crowd. In other words, the motion picture business is almost hopelessly commercialized.

Wm. C. Hansen, Neillville Kiwanis Club, Wis.

It presents entertainment less harmful than some they might participate in. It does occasionally present something really interesting.

Harry J. Gould, Troy Kiwanis Club, N. Y.

The right kind of pictures play a very important part, in not only entertaining our youth of today, but the educational and inspirational values are important fundamentals that contribute in making a better community.

George M. Rogers, Public Affairs Chairman, South Orange & Maplewood Kiwanis Club, N. J.

The above conditions that you refer to do not exist in our town. We have a first class motion picture theatre and the pictures are censored by a committee from the Woman's Club.

We also have motion pictures in all the schools once a week.

We never did have any of the conditions which you refer to so it would be hard to estimate to what extent the pictures have been an influence in preventing these conditions.

F. S. Leonard, Chairman of Public Affairs, Lake Placid Kiwanis Club, N. Y.

Management of our local theatre plans many matinee performances especially for the school children. This not only affords many hours of entertainment for our children who have no other amusement of

Stevens Quotes Tallmadge Sequel in "Better Theatres"

"Thomas E. Tallmadge certainly started something with his destructive criticism of the modern movie palace in his 'The Story of American Architecture,' says Ashton Stevens, dramatic critic of the Chicago Herald-Examiner. 'THE EXHIBITORS HERALD AND MOVING PICTURE WORLD, foremost trade journal of the screen, reprinted from the Tallmadge book even longer excerpts than were quoted in this column, and its issue for March 17 follows up with letters from representative architects, all the way from New York to Fort Wayne, but one of whom is not in accord with the Chicago author-architect.'

Stevens then quotes from Tallmadge's "spirited sequel," which also was published in the last issue of "Better Theatres."

C. E. Abegglen, Colfax, Kiwanis Club, Wash.

Your question, seems to me, was rather unfair, as it asked for some of the good things that the moving picture did for the boys, and did not imply that there might be some bad influence as well. About the only person that would have answered your question as the question was asked would be the moving picture operator himself. I was asked to answer this letter and will do it from an observer's viewpoint.

The moving picture might be made a great educator if there were always the high grade pictures, but too often there is not such and it may, therefore, have a bad influence. It does not appear to me that it causes anyone to save money, in fact it creates a desire to be at the show often and that takes a good deal of money. I know of families who can ill afford to spend as much time at the picture house as I see them. At times the entire family attend about three shows per week, it soon counts up.

N. L. Ramsey, Oil City Kiwanis Club, Pa.

We believe the motion picture could be an influence for good for boys and girls. However, as pictures are shown now I fear that if we honestly analysed the reactions we would find the influence to show up on the wrong side of the sheet. As a usual thing along with a good wholesome picture there is shown some suggestive stuff to drag the minds of our youth into the gutter—this to say nothing of the gunplay shown.

L. C. Simpson, Fairbury Kiwanis Club, Neb.

Moving pictures carry no more influence for good among the youth of the land than any other wholesome recreation or amusement. Personally, I am a theatre goer and enjoy such entertainment but I also feel that the youth who is inclined to enter into questionable activities will find time after the show to gang. It is my belief that the moving picture theatre is neither an influence for good nor a detriment to the youth of the land. It is purely entertainment for an hour and a half.

Charles H. Sloan, Las Vegas Kiwanis Club, N. Mex.

It usually shows that wrong carries with it a penalty and that right is rewarded.

E. C. Hoffman, Muskogee Kiwanis Club, Okla.

Heartily endorse moving pictures of the right kind as a means of entertainment for the youth of the country. Educational features and pictures calculated to inspire the young to a higher moral plane of living and a life of usefulness can and do wield an influence for good in my opinion. I believe that the motion picture has done much to decrease gang "devilment" in this community.

C. H. Dewall, Laramie Kiwanis Club, Wyo.

It all depends on the picture as to whether or not it appears more interesting than the pool hall, or the picture may be such that they would have been better off in the pool hall. This, of course, depends on the home influence as to the parents' attitude towards these things. My boys have been taught to pick out the good and bad features and they enjoy good shows, but they often reply when asked for a criticism that the picture had too much "mush and love stuff," but I suppose the moving pictures try to supply the demand and this must be taken into consideration.

Motion pictures can do a world of good for the young people, especially the so-

Recognize this young man? If not, you're excused, for it's Johnny Arthur, and serious portraits of this Educational comedy star aren't often published.

Clarence Brown presents the winners of the California whippet racing trophy and their proud master, Clarence Brown. M-G-M's big Alaskan picture, "The Trail of '98," which Brown directed, opened in New York last week.

Myrna Loy and Walter Pidgeon in a scene from Gotham's "Turn Back the Hours," a drama in which love redeems a coward.

What dandy romances used to hatch over garden walls! (Ask grand-dad, he knows!) Here are Johnnie Walker and Bessie Love as hero and maid of '61, before the era of midnight motoring and tea dance flirtations. Very quaint, are they not? The scene is from Columbia's not too serious drama, "The Matinee Idol."

Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky as "Two Lovers." This United Artists production opens at the Embassy, New York, March 22.

Vamping as done in the Golden Age of Pericles. Those were the days, eh, girls? Coupla shakes of a wand—and there the guy lay! Louise Fazenda is applying the method to Charlie Murray in this scene from First National's "Vamping Venus," a tale of Ancient Greece and modern America as demonstrated by New York.

Basement barber shops are not always ideal but they do have their advantages. And nowadays, what with modern feminine styles and all—but what we started out to say was that this is a scene from First National's "Ladies Night in a Turkish Bath." Big Boy Williams (right) is pointing out to Jack Mulhall various items of passing interest above them. Mulhall and Dorothy Mackaill are starred.

One of the tense moments in Paramount's new aviation story, "The Legion of the Condemned." The "condemned" are men who invite death above the battlefields of France, and in the telling of this tale of desperation, fear, courage, and love, two new lovers begin their careers as a team on the screen—Gary Cooper and Fay Wray. They are shown in the scene pictured above.

Verily, this is an Age of Films and Sports

Above—Milton Sills and Doris Kenyon playing the celebrated "love" game on the court at their home—and if the camera has reported accurately, Mrs. Sills was getting the best of First National's brawny star at this juncture. Since returning to the screen some months ago, Miss Kenyon has had several feminine leads opposite her husband.

A regular 6:30 a. m. ceremony at the home of Richard Arlen, youthful Paramount featured player. Arlen takes his golf pretty seriously, and on most any nice morning he may be seen with Mrs. Arlen (Jobyna Ralston) at a club near their home at Toluca Lake.

At right—Miss Hannah Washington, Paramount-Christie comedienne, "snapped" on the links with her favorite caddy, Billy Dooley, Paramount-Christie star. It was only recently that Miss Hannah succumbed to fashion and took up golf, but Sailor Dooley reports (and the picture bears him out) that already she has brought many a dark secret of the game to his amazed attention.

"Pow!"—as the tabloids say of Babe Ruth, and though this is Lina Basquette and the game is tennis, we'll stick to "pow" to describe her serve. Miss Basquette is doing well off the courts, too, being featured in Pathe's "The Godless Girl."

It takes more than pictures to uphold studio prestige, especially among studio-folks themselves. Above is the baseball team that brought the Winter League pennant home to First National, copping the league batting championship while doing it. The team is composed of fellows doing labor around the lot, many of whom are baseball players of considerable repute. For example, George Gottleiber (to the right of Manager Grover Hoskins) goes to the Pittsburgh Pirates. Billy Dove, F-N star, is delivering the trophy to Hoskins.

United Artists Starts 10th Year With Only 75 Films Made

Four Founders Have Released One a Year on Average—36 Produced from Originals—Three-Fourths Roadshown

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 20.—United Artists will start its tenth year April 5 with a record of only 75 pictures having been released for 29 producers, or an average of eight a year. The four founders—Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and D. W. Griffith—have released only nine pictures each in that time, averaging one production a year.

ONLY four owner-members have been added in the nine years—Joseph M. Schenck, Norma Talmadge, Gloria Swanson and Samuel Goldwyn. The largest increase in personnel has been made since March, 1925, when Joseph M. Schenck became chairman; 22 major stars, directors and producers becoming associated with United Artists.

36 Made From Originals

Thirty-six of the 75 pictures released in the nine years have been from originals, 29 from novels and short stories, nine from stage plays and one from a song, "Little Annie Rooney." Seventeen of the productions have been exhibited at $2 prices on Broadway and 40 others have played extended runs, so that three-fourths of the product has been in the road-show category.

Montreal Managers Hold Annual Frolic and Dance

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

MONTREAL, March 20.—The Montreal Theatre Managers' Association, Inc., held its third annual dance and frolic on March 8. More than 300 couples were present. Many professional performers contributed their services to make the affair an enjoyable one.

KNOW YOUR SALES LEADERS

J. REGINALD WILSON, domestic salesmanager for Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., grew up in the film industry with Educational, for his first job with a motion picture concern was as shipper at the New York branch of this company.

THAT was back in 1919 when the actual nationalizing of the present organization of Educational was in progress. It was Wilson's first position after leaving the Royal Air Force following many months of active service overseas as an aviator. And that he made good with this organization is attested by the fact that he rose in the ranks from a shipping clerk to head of the domestic sales department in less than nine years' time.

Wilson left his duties as shipper to try his hand at selling Educational's product in and around New York and Northern New Jersey. During the time that new exchanges were being organized in many cities throughout the country, he was periodically sent out to visit them as each one was formed.

His activity along these lines was so successful that Wilson was named as assistant to the salesmanager. He served in this capacity until December 1925 when he was appointed to the present position.

In 1913 and 1914, previous to the World war, Wilson was engaged in selling machinery and power transmission in Ontario and Quebec. He gave this up to serve with the British Forces, and he saw active service in Italy and Greece. Later he joined the Royal Air Force and did patrol duty over the English channel and along the coast of France and Belgium. Wilson next was appointed instructor at training camp and served in this capacity as lieutenant until 1919.

Wilson is a graduate of St. Andrew's College, Toronto. He was born at Belleville, Ont. He is married and has a son, Rex, who is 9 years old. The Wilsons live at Cos Cob, Conn., a short distance from New York City.

Theatrical Press Group to Give Benefit April 6

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 20.—The Theatrical Press Representatives of America has taken over the Rialto theatre for Friday night, April 6, for the annual benefit program, with a pre-release of Harold Lloyd's "Speedy" as the attraction.

Mark A. Luescher, of Keith-Albee, is a governor of the organization, which, through its sick and relief fund, gives much material help to members who have met with illness or other misfortune.

Educational Begins Work on 52 Vocafilm Releases

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 20.—A number of Vocafilm productions are already completed, and work is steadily progressing on the schedule of 52 releases in the studios here. These Vocafilm productions will be distributed exclusively by Educational Film Exchanges, Inc.

U-A will Stop Sale of Pictures 2 Years After Release Date

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 20.—United Artists Corporation has announced a new sales plan whereby all pictures will be withdrawn from sales circulation two years after their release dates.

The arrangement is retroactively effective on all pictures released after September 1, 1927, according to Al Lichtman, general manager. "The two-year releasing period means bigger grosses for showmen through quick playing-off," says Lichtman.

Egyptians Favor Stories of France for Pictures

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, March 20.—Pictures appealing to the French, particularly those based on stories by famous French authors, have the best chance of success in Egypt, a local survey shows. Through the schools, most of which are French or under French influences, the people have become familiar with French ideas and habit. Well dressed women in luxurious surroundings are popular picture subjects.

Pictures showing revolutions, riots, or any other forms of rebellion against constituted authority, are likely to be frowned upon by the censor. Crime pictures are also under suspicion, because of the growing murder rate in this country.

Dallas Board Meetings Will Be at Luncheons

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

DALLAS, March 20.—The Dallas Film Board of Trade has adopted a new plan for meetings. Once a month, or every other week it will have a luncheon attended by members and their guests. Speakers will be arranged for. At the first luncheon R. C. McIlhernan gave a talk upon the history of the film industry, and P. K. Johnston told about national air transport service.

Wellington Tours South

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

SAN ANTONIO, March 20.—Duke Wellington, art director for Publix theatres in this city, is making a tour of all the Publix theatres in the South, and is amassing material for use, in case, as it has been rumored, Publix establishes a central art director with offices in the Paramount building in New York.

Empire Buys Three

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 20.—Empire Productions has bought three novels for the 1928-29 program. "Say It with Flowers" will be made from "The Flower Shop"; "The Love Mystery" from "The Interpreter," and "The Lady from Nowhere" from "A Spinner of Webs."

Business Men Open House

ATLANTA, March 20.—The Empire theatre, owned by the Empire Operating Company, composed of a group of Atlanta business men heretofore not engaged in theatrical enterprises, had its formal opening last night.

Schenck Pledges Cooperation In Stars' Radio Hour Protest

Principals Will Appear on Dodge Program March 29—Exhibitors Object Following Slump of Patronage Caused by Victory Broadcast, Woodhull Declares

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 20.—Vigorous protest by R. F. Woodhull against an arrangement for participation of United Artists principals in a 55-station broadcast by Dodge Brothers, over the National Broadcasting Company's network March 29, has brought a reply from Joseph M. Schenck that the contracts have been signed but that stars of the company will take part in no more broadcasts if the exhibitors' consensus is that this is detrimental to their business.

Shows Cooperation Need: Woodhull

Woodhull, as president of the M. P. T. O. A., declared that while he regretted Schenck's position in the matter of having executed contracts, he was pleased to note the assurance that this important matter will be watched in the future, and added that he hoped all producers and distributors will investigate any radio tieups with great care before entering into any contracts without considering possible competition to their customers.

"This is just one more shining example of the necessity of a close cooperation at all times between the wholesalers and the retailers in the industry," Woodhull stated.

Exhibitors Protest Plan

The plans for the broadcast March 29, which will be during the theatre hours of 9 to 10 p. m. (Eastern standard time), are bringing what Woodhull called "an overwhelming expression from theatre owners objecting against stars participating." Woodhull wired Schenck as follows:

"Exhibitor opinion as expressed to our national office is opposed to any such move. Believe same will depreciate the value of stars in picture presentations, as their artistic merit is best expressed in screen productions and must fall below that established standard if used on the radio. Experience proves it will also reduce theatre attendance and such radio publicity is of no future value."

Contracts Signed: Schenck

In his reply Schenck telegraphed:

"Extremely sorry your communication arrived too late as the stars have signed contracts to appear on the air March 29. If it is the consensus of opinion of theatre owners that such a radio hookup is detrimental to the business I shall see that our stars do not in future take part in a national radio hookup. We thought it would be beneficial and stimulate the interest of the public in pictures."

Woodhull previously had announced that exhibitors in various parts of the country had reported a slump in attendance caused by the Victory hour of Dodge Brothers in which Al Jolson, Will Rogers, Fred and Dorothy Stone and Paul Whiteman appeared.

Fairbanks Chosen as M. C.

The United Artists principals who will broadcast on the "Dodge Film Stars Radio Hour" are Norma Talmadge, Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, D. W. Griffith, John Barrymore and Dolores Del Rio. The broadcasting will be done from Fairbanks' bungalow on the lot at Hollywood, with "Doug" as master of ceremonies.

Fairbanks will talk on "Keeping Fit." John Barrymore will render Hamlet's "Soliloquy." Norma Talmadge is to speak on "Women's Fashions in the Motion Picture World." D. W. Griffith will talk on "Love." Charlie Chaplin is to give impersonations, and also disclose inside stories of filming of a number of his pictures. Dolores Del Rio will sing a Spanish song. Paul Whiteman and his band, broadcasting from New York, are to be part of the program, synchronized with the coast by the telephone hook-up.

Bombers Make Third Attempt to Wreck Danz Theatre; Police Blame Labor War

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

SEATTLE, March 20.—Trouble with labor unions is believed by the police to be the cause of a third attempt to blow up theatre property of John Danz last week, when a bomb placed in the rear of his State theatre wrecked the rear wall, shattered windows, and blew wires from the poles.

Danz' Palace Hippodrome was twice damaged by bombs during the past few months. The police have not been thus far successful in apprehending the bombers.

THE STUDIO

MGM, PFL Operate at Capacity; Universal Starts Gibson Film

First National Continues at Steady Rate; Warner Brothers Gets Under Way with Dog Film Directed by Enright; James Tinling Plans to Complete Fox Picture Next Week

By DOUGLAS HODGES

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.—Two big Coast studios are operating at capacity, bringing the total number of productions up to 35, which is nearer to normal than at any time since last November. The lots are Paramount and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, each of which is shooting eight pictures.

Universal Resumes Shooting Schedule

Other studios which are operating at all are shooting a normal number of pictures. Universal is opening gradually with the beginning this week of a Hoot Gibson film, "Doubling for Trouble." FBO has no pictures in the shooting stage.

First National, which has not fallen below a quota of four during the past nine months or more, began work on "Roulette" last week under the direction of Al Santell. The preceding week Harry Langdon and Milton Sills had begun new pictures. Langdon's picture is as yet untitled.

Four pictures are in production at the De Mille lot. Cecil B. De Mille heads the list with "The Godless Girl," in which Lina Basquette and Marie Prevost appear.

Both that film and "Four Devils," which Fox is making, and "The Patriot" (Paramount) were begun January 3 and have been in production 11 weeks. As costs go these are figured to be the "big" pictures of the year as the schedule of the pictures being made nowadays is four weeks, with seldom an exception.

Tinling's Second Is Success

James Tinling is planning to finish work on his third picture next week at the Fox lot. Tinling is a director of the younger set, recently chosen by Winfield Sheehan and given a directorial opportunity. The second picture he ever directed has drawn praise from practically every theatre owner and newspaper reporter who has seen it. It is "Soft Living" and stars Madge Bellamy. Mr Sheehan assigned him to "Don't Marry" after having viewed the former and his results are being watched carefully by

U. S. Films Scaring German Officialdom

(By Mail to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

BERLIN, March 20.—German girls are copying Hollywood girls, and it isn't at all pleasing to the powers that be in the German Reich. Herr von Keudell, minister of the interior, is of the opinion that regulations should be imposed on the showing of films in this country, restricting the exhibition of foreign films. But it seems likely that even such measures would not prove effective. German screen players themselves are trying to copy the Hollywood stars.

Six Companies at Work at F B O; Studios Will Not Close as Reported

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.—Six companies are now at work in FBO studios and on locations, according to announcements from William Le Baron, and contrary to recent reports that the studios were to close until June 1.

"We will continue to operate with even greater activity this month and next," says Le Baron. "Stocks and Blondes," and another untitled picture on the new season's product have already been completed and we are working steadily with Tom Tyler, Bob Steele, Buzz Barton and Ranger, our dog star."

Mr. Sheehan announced last week that the next scenario to be written by is "None But the Brave" which will be directed by Richard Rosson for Fox

John Stone Gets Script for Rosson's Next Film

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.—John Stone began work on "None But the Brave" last week for Fox Film Corporation. His scenario will be used by Richard Rosson, director of the picture.

Curiously, Stone's latest scenario was for the brother of Dick Rosson—Arthur—who has directed pictures from many of the writer's scripts. Two of them were "The Last Outlaw" for Paramount and "The Sport Girl" for Fox Films.

Colleen Begins; Exhibitor Given Part in "Heart" Film

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.—Colleen Moore began shooting scenes for "Heart to Heart" at First National March 16. Earl F. Ingram of the Ingram theatre, Ashland, Ala., who was visiting in Hollywood played a bit in the picture upon the request of Miss Moore. He said he received a regular actor's paycheck from the First National accountant. When asked if he would frame it he said he'd like to but he'd rather donate it to the Santa Clara River victims.

Niblo Signs Greta Garbo for "War in the Dark"

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.—Fred Niblo announced yesterday by arrangement with Louis B. Mayer that Greta Garbo will head the cast of his forthcoming Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer special, "War in the Dark," by Ludwig Wolff.

He was director of "The Temptress" in which Garbo appeared some time ago. Shooting will begin April 9. Bess Meredith is preparing the scenario. John Gilbert will not be in the cast as rumored in Hollywood.

Fox and Carewe Sail for Mexico to Shoot Locale

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.—Edwin Carewe, Finis Fox, and a technical staff left last week on Carewe's yacht for Mexico, where they will make many shots of the country for "Revenge" which is to be Dolores Del Rio's next production. The star accompanied the party to Mexico and the trip marked her first visit to her native land since she entered motion pictures.

Semon Says "I'm Broke" to Court; Half Million Debts

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.—Larry Semon has $300. The comedian last week listed that figure as the amount of assets he has with which to pay bills amounting to $500,000 when he filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy. Municipal and Superior Court judgments amounting to $2,287.75 were listed as debts of the actor.

Cast Selected for Film Green, Thew Are Writing

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.—Donald Reed and Doris Dawson have been selected to play leading roles in "The Boss of Little Arcady" which Eddie Cline will direct for First National. The scenario is being prepared by Howard J. Green and Harvey Thew.

Film People Offering Thousands to Aid Victims of Flood

Wampas Postpones Big Mexicali Frolic As Result of Santa Paula Disaster; Anderson Converts "Film Food Plant" to Use of Valley Folk

By RAY MURRAY

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.—Motion picture people last week came to the aid of California with contributions amounting to a small fortune which is being spent to relieve the suffering in the Santa Clara River Valley. Players, directors, producers and writers responded readily to the plea for financial help following the flood which occurred with the breaking of the Saint Francis dam, 35 miles Northwest of here.

MANY volunteers from the ranks of the film people spent several days in the valley lending whatever aid they could.

West Coast Theatres is sponsoring a benefit show March 21 at the Metropolitan theatre. The program will feature Gloria Swanson, Charles Chaplin, Jack Dempsey, Tom Mix and Tony, Irving Berlin and other notables. Masters of Ceremonies will be Fred Niblo, Charley Murray, Lew Cody, Eddie Cantor and Eddie Peabody. The show is being personally staged by Sid Grauman. Equipment and assistants have been offered by Marco of Fanchon & Marco.

Ray Coffin, president of the Wampas, ordered a change in the installation meeting which was planned to be held at Mexicali on the night of March 16. Coffin asked that the rituals be postponed and that the customary celebration be called off in deference to the sadness prevailing throughout Southern California.

W. L. Anderson, motion picture location host and expert, was asked to board 1,000 of the flood victims until further notice. Anderson received instructions from city officials and had only five hours to prepare for the task which will no doubt continue three or four weeks. His entire "food plant" has been turned over to the task.

Sid Grauman's friends, Irish and other, bestowed upon him little green snakes, green handkerchiefs and shamrocks, for birthday gifts last week. His birthday occurred on St. Patrick's Day.

James R. Grainger, general sales manager of Fox Films, who arrived here last week, stated that the theatre business throughout the country is good. He said that "motion pictures will reach a new high point in production and quality before the current year has ended.

"While the Fox organization from the standpoint of production has been and is busier than at any time in years the fact that some studios have either closed temporarily or have cut production to the minimum means nothing other than it is necessary in order to make a readjustment—something that comes in all lines of work."

Authors' Denunciation of Industry Sour Grapes, Says Lasky

Motion Pictures Cater to Masses and Not to a Few So-Called Intelligentsia, Paramount Producer Tells Writers

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.—An author or playwright is only broadcasting his own shortcomings when he leaves Hollywood and writes articles denouncing the industry as ignorant and childish, Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president in charge of production, declared at a meeting of the production staff with seven new writers last week.

"THE motion picture business is unlike the stage in that we of the motion pictures cater to the masses and not to a certain few, not to the so-called intelligentsia," Lasky said. "We therefore must have screen stories that will appeal to shop girls, the merchant or the banker—and not to the reader of Freud or the man or woman with Bohemian ideas.

"Those authors have tried in vain to please us, submitting stories that are impossible for filming, stories that would bring the wrath of the censors down upon us, stories that would shock the morals of the world craving entertainment. They fail and go back home and tell the world how mismanaged the industry is, in their narrow minds."

The Biltmore meeting was declared by Lasky and B. P. Schulberg, his associate producer, to be the first sensational step to bring screen writing necessities to the attention of established authors. Owen Davis, dean of American playwrights, author of over 200 successful plays, denounced "sophisticated" writers and novelists, saying:

"Sophistication does not and never did exist commercially. Novelists and some playwrights suddenly overplayed it. Sophistication has no real meaning, for the final analysis of the generally successful play is simplicity. The day of mob confusion and spectacle is ended in pictures. In fewer characters and simplicity of theme is the strength of the motion picture plot. It takes a craftsman to weave simplicity into a screen play and make it mass entertainment."

The seven new authors, all having current successes on Broadway, are most anxious to co-operate with Lasky, Schulberg, and the executive producing staff of the Paramount studios in developing original stories for the screen. These men are Williard Keefe, author of "Celebrity;" Lester Cohen, who wrote "Sweepings" and "The Great Bear;" Samuel Ornitz, author of "Haunch, Paunch and Jowl" and "A Yankee Passional;" Harlan Thomson, whose successes are "Little Jesse James," "Merry Merry," "Twinkle Twinkle" and "My Girl;" Ernest Culbertson, author of "Goat Alley" and others; L. W. McLaren, former columnist of the New York American, and Wells Root, late of the World and one of the co-authors of "The Quarterback."

Boyce-Smith's Arrival on Coast Is Signal for Activities by Inspiration

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.—J. Boyce-Smith, vice president both of Inspiration Pictures, Inc., and Tec-Art studios, is enroute to Hollywood from New York City. Immediately upon his arrival here, he will begin production plans involving the activities of Victor and Edward Halperin, and other enterprises.

Smith's arrival in Hollywood will start the wheels of Inspiration moving at top speed in production. It is reported that three companies will be working soon on the Tec-Art lot and that only the biggest stories are being selected for filming.

President Alfred T. Hannon, of Tec-Art, has contracted with from four to six other producers who will invade his plant during the new season on independent production ventures. Edwin Carewe's United Artists unit will remain at Tec-Art to produce "Revenge," with Dolores Del Rio.

Warner Brothers Working

Warner Brothers has again resumed operations and is now making "Land of the Silver Fox." It is a dog opera and stars Rin-Tin-Tin. Ray Enright is again directing the big canine and has selected John Miljan, Tom Santschi and Leila Hyams for the supporting cast.

Two pictures are in the making at the Columbia studios with another to be started in the very near future. They are "Golf Widows" and "Modern Mothers." Phil Rosen is directing Helen Chadwick in the latter while stars of the former are Vera Reynolds and Harrison Ford.

Suggests Country-Wide Tieup on Langdon Film

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.—Don Eddy, general manager of the Langdon Corporation, last week announced that exhibitors between here and New York and located on the route of the Pyle Foot Derby will have an opportunity to tie up the cross country race with the First National film, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," a cross-country race picture.

Heavy Production Keeps Educational Studio Open Through Vacation Period

Instead of a complete shutdown for several weeks before starting on the work for the 1928-1929 series, the studio of Educational will be kept partly open straight through the usual vacation period. Although work is rapidly nearing a close on most of the comedy series at the Educational plant, it will require several more weeks to complete the present series of six two-reel Bowers comedies.

75 F B O Pictures will Include H. C. Witwer and "Polly" Series

Seventy-two short features will be released by F B O in the 1928-29 season, setting a record for distribution of this type of product by that company, the home office announced this week.

Witwer and "Polly" Series Added

New series will include twelve jockey stories by H. C. Witwer and a group under the title of "Polly and Her Pals," from the cartoon strip of that name by Cliff Sterrett, which are appearing in the Chicago Evening American, New York Evening Journal and other Hearst newspapers.

Al Cooke, comedian, has been selected for a featured role in the Witwer series, to be made from his stories now running in the Cosmopolitan. Alberta Vaughn may return to F B O for the part of Polly in the other series.

While many of the subjects in the program are still to be announced, it is known that there will be twelve Mickey McGuires, with Mickey Yale in the leading roles, and a series of Standard comedies with "Fat" Carr, "Tiny" Alexander and "Fatty" Ross.

All these short features will be made by Larry Darmour Productions for Standard Cinema Corporation.

Paramount News Sends

Santone to San Antonio

Urban Santone, of New York City, has been appointed staff cameraman for the San Antonio sector of the Southwest edition of the Paramount News, replacing Harry Deihl, who will go to Dallas and become trained in laboratory work for one year. Santone is classed by Paramount as one of their best men, having made some of the greatest New York shots ever recorded on the screen, it is claimed.

Short Comedies on All Bills Is Aim of Butterfield Circuit

Two-reel comedy has a definite part in arranging the show to best advantage, according to Ed C. Beatty, general manager of the Butterfield circuit in Michigan. Beatty, who is giving the new short comedies from Paramount-Christie a good showing in the deluxe theatres of the chain, includes two-reel comedies with all bills regardless of the number of presentation acts used.

"We present first the overture, then a two-reel comedy, then the stage shows which are usually three or more acts, then the news and close with the feature production," Beatty said. "The two-reel comedy starting, not only gets the audience in a good frame of mind for the acts and feature, but also serves a very useful purpose in pleasing the performers of the acts, who thus do not have to go on 'cold.' As a rule, the comedy can hold its own in the opening spot very nicely, and the people work-

Stanley Expands Presentation Policy

All Suggestive Business Out, Say Managers

Exhibitors and Booking Agencies Guard High Standing of Picture Theatres

By EDMUND ANTHONY

Theatre managers and production executives of deluxe picture houses have sent in numerous complaints to the various booking agencies who supply them talent for their stage presentation. Most of these complaints are objections received from their audiences relative to smut and suggestive movements used by various artists on the program. As most of the motion picture audiences are family people, these complaints should be given immediate attention.

As stated before in these columns it is our desire and interest to guide each exhibitor and theatre manager in the proper direction when it comes to launching any new policy or offering something to his public.

Since the stage bandshows have practically revolutionized the entertainment policy in de luxe picture houses, it is also wise that managers watch the particular type of entertainment offered to their audience. A motion picture theatre is conducted entirely different than a straight vaudeville house or a combination of stock, burlesque and musical tab shows.

The theatres as a rule draw a class of people that are particularly interested in the type of policy and entertainment offered in them. Therefore, if you are running a neighborhood house offering pictures and stage entertainment, you must know that clean cut amusement should be presented to your people.

This is very necessary if you expect to build up steady patronage consisting of mothers and fathers and children who bring in their weekly admission money to your box-office. Once you spoil the confidence of the parents and give them the least idea that your entertainment is not clean or fit for their children to witness you are right then and there headed for destruction.

In order to illimitate smut sayings and suggestive business in your theatre you

ORGANISTS "CHLO-E" (Song of the Swamp)

Organists who have been fortunate enough to have used the slides on "CHLO-E" report that this song, with its beautiful melody and underlying "tom-tom" rhythm, holds audiences in a spell, grips and lifts them out of their seats, and finishes to genuine spontaneous applause.—

There is a very beautiful version by Edward K. House entitled "THE LEGEND OF THE EVER-GLADES"—and it is everything the title implies.—

Villa Moret, Inc., also announces still another version in preparation, a very high-class composition, primarily for deluxe picture houses. This was written by Walter Hirsch. The song is by Gus Kahn and Nell Moret.

Eight Houses Now Offering Bandshow Act

Circuit Will Produce and Route a Unit Each Week from New York

By A. RAYMOND GALLO

At a recent meeting of the executive board of the Stanley Company of America, one of the largest operators of theatres in the East, it was decided that the circuit would immediately enter the presentation field in all its branches. This statement was made last week by Irving D. Rossheim, its president. This new move means that with the exception of one or two other theatre circuits nearly every other of any importance has succumbed to the policy of pictures and stage presentation.

Several weeks ago a statement came from the West Coast to the effect that Fanchon and Marco were considering a booking affiliation with Stanley. However, since then Stanley have realized the value of this new policy and now have embarked in the field with an organization of their own that will supply everything from the talent to the finished production.

This new department will enable the Stanley Company to engage stage talent through their own booking agency which has operated for a number of years under the name of Acme Booking Agency. The Employment Bureau of the Stanley Company is now being established with headquarters in New York through which scenery and costumes will be executed by a staff of artists and designers and in a separate studio, private auditions will be given for prospective talent.

Arrangements are now being made through a separate agency whereby each Stanley theatre presenting this new stage policy will be supplied with a ballet trained and capable for ensemble and specialty work.

According to President Rossheim's announcement there will be a complete stage unit produced each week built around modern revue themes with a cast of 25 entertainers including the ballet and each unit will rotate over the theatres utilizing the stage band master of ceremonies in each house.

At present there are eight theatres on the Stanley chain introducing this policy. They are: The Strand, New York; Strand, Brooklyn; Branford, Newark; Stanley, Philadelphia; Stanley, Baltimore; Stanley, Pittsburgh; Stanley, Jersey City; and the Earle, Washington, D. C. Within the next six months, it is hoped that a tour of 25 consecutive weeks will be available to stage talent by selecting the deluxe houses among the three hundred theatres operated by the firm.

The production department will be headed by Simon Fabian, with Mr. Silver as associate. The advisory board will consist of Abe Sablosky, Frank W. Buhler, Harry Crandall, and Charles Strakosch. The units will be produced under the direction of Joseph Plunkett, Edward L. Hyman, and Harry Crull, at their New York headquarters.

Before engaging in this new policy the Stanley Circuit offered featured pictures and concert talent, occasionally intermingled with a vaudeville program. This new policy puts them in the same limelight as Publix, Loew, and Fanchon and Marco, who are now extensively interested in this field.

No Suggestiveness

must take an interest in the type of talent booked and produced in your theatre. Comedy acts and hokum situations are all right if the hokum is presented in a clean-cut manner and does not offend the public.

Do not be misled by booking office agents and artist's representatives trying to sell you talent that have made a tremendous hit in some part of the show business and have very little to offer in the way of amusement in your theatre outside of a name.

The real value of a name or a trade-mark rests entirely upon the amount of confidence it has established. Creating this confidence with your audiences is the real purpose for you to remain in business and this fact alone is worth advertising.

Mark Fisher Stages Anniversary Show

Lubliner & Trinz will celebrate the eighth anniversary of their Senate Theatre, Chicago, starting next week, March 26. This celebration will be observed in the form of a giant anniversary stage show featuring Mark Fisher and his Merry Music Masters.

In addition to an all star presentation cast, Mark Fisher will sing and feature "My Stormy Weather Pal" Al Piantodosi's new number. Al is the famous writer of "Pal of My Cradle Days."

B & K and L & T Stage Annual Frolic

Balban and Katz and Lubliner and Trinz will have their annual employees frolic on Friday, March 23. This year's affair will take place at the Armory on Michigan and 16th street, Chicago.

Among the many sports there will be a basket ball match between the runners up, Chicago vs. Harding, and the champions, Tivoli vs. McVickers Theatres. All the employees of both theatre circuits will take part in the frolic which will consist of bowling, billiards, refreshments and many other interesting features.

Film Man Buys Club

Mort Goldberg, former managing director of the Admiral Theatre, Chicago, and at one time an independent film exchange man, has taken over the Valentino Inn of Chicago which hereafter will be known as The Russian Art Club. Associated with Goldberg are several other theatrical men and a real Russian Prince.

PRESENTATION ACTS—To the Editor: This week, during the showing of the feature picture, Chaplin's "The Circus," I am using a set of slides which I called "Under the Top." The numbers used are: "Sunshine," "Oh, Look at That Baby," "Chlo-E," "Ice Cream," "I Just Roll Along," and "Clap Hands, Here Comes Charley."

The introductory slides to each number pertain to a circus in some way or other, and the words to the last number were altered to fit. Also, on the last line of "Clap Hands" the signal was given the operator and he swung right into the film-title "The Circus" of the feature.

The set was not perfect by any means, as it was gotten up rather hurriedly, about six days before the showing, but seems to be going good.—Wm. J. Cowdry, Organist, Sherman theatre, Chillicothe, Ohio.

STAGE SHOWS

Los Angeles State

Week Ending March 8

Eddie Peabody and his Pals presented for this week a Fanchon & Marco Idea "In Venice." The stage represented a Venetian Carnival scene on the canal with high balconies, lanterns and gondola backstage.

Opening: Eddie Peabody, dressed as organ grinder with monkey, together with entire ensemble of artists make entrance from back of theatre, coming down each aisle, and going up gangways to the stage, with Gwen Evans and 8 girls going into tambourine dance, followed by orchestra playing "Ricketts."

Cook Sisters, Nellie and Lucille, were next, former radio stars from Chicago and the East, making their first tour over the circuit, put over a new number, "Stay Out of the South," following with a piano duet.

Gwen Evans, in a whistling number, was followed by the stage appearance of her Eight Girls in a clever pony dancing number. The orchestra next played "Melancholy Baby."

Klein Brothers, recently from The Passing Show, next gave the audience a fast line of ready-fire gags and hokum, and were easily the feature of the entire bill, outshining even Eddie and his "banjoy."

Eddie next does "Melody in F," with his protege, Jimmy Mazel, which was a very excellent number on the banjos, doing "Diane" for an encore, and as usual, Eddie does several audience request numbers, including "Dream Kisses." Eddie next led his orchestra and the entire ensemble of artists for the closing number.

Portland Portland

Week Ending March 19

"Highlights," Publix stage presentation featuring Alex Hyde and His Stage Band; Willie Solar, comedian; Sherry Louis, operatic soprano; Helen McFarland, xylophonist; and Masse and Dietrich, the dancing duo. Arthur Clauson directed the Grand orchestra. Ralph Hamilton gave original organ recital. All acts well received.

Chicago Oriental

Week Ending March 18

Paul Ash had almost everyone who's a favorite at the Oriental back on the boards this week, including Milton Watson, Paul Small and Ginger Rogers. And then to give full measure he added Will Cowan and Bob-Bob-Bobby to the bill.

The program, called "Northwest Mounted," moved along at a good pace, opening with the 12 dancers doing a modernized Indian dance to a good hand, followed by the orchestral number, "Get Your Man." Members of the orchestra sang the chorus, and were joined by Small. It was enjoyed by the audience.

Cowan then displayed the various steps in tap dancing, and the reception was great. He came back with his original dance, "The Spirit of '76." His exit left the audience crying for more. He is one of the smoothest tap dancers this reporter has ever seen.

Talbert and Fisher, two comics, came on for some vocalizing, among their selections being "Ice Cream, You Scream, etc." and "Get Up Garibaldi." Just fair entertainers.

The orchestra and Small next did "I'm Speaking of Love," with Watson following, while Ash accompanied on the piano. He sang two selections, "I Love You" and "Without You." Small joined him in an encore. Watson's voice is far better than when he left the Oriental some time ago, and there is evidence of considerable training in the interim.

The Bob-Bob-Bobby act started slow and gave evidence of being just another dumbbell throwing act. However, when the little white mongrel joined the two men the house sat up and took notice, and the act went over in fine shape.

Ginger Rogers was next in a new program of songs, such as "I, Myself and Me" and "I Can't Believe You're in Love with Me." The reception accorded her shows her popularity at the Oriental.

In the finale, Watson sang arias from "Rose Marie," selections which give his voice full play.

New York Strand

Week Ending March 23

Alois Reiser, Conductor of the Mark Strand Symphony Orchestra has more closely observed the holiday week, and in honor of St. Patrick has dressed his stage in beautiful varying tones of green. He opens the presentation with excerpts from "Eileen." Mark Strand Frolic, this week's attraction, is handled by Joseph Plunkett, and the first number of "Moonlight and Roses" with Margaret Schilling and Mascagno Ballet. The songs and ballet numbers presented here are a very high standard, and were very well received from out front.

The Four Aristocrats, the recording artists, presented a program of song and instrumental syncopation with Eddie Lewis on the steel guitar. They sang and played, and the popular renditions went over very good. These boys are well known artists, and they are the reasons popular songs become popular. They closed a well-arranged, though rather brief show.

Detroit Michigan

Week Ending March 16

Brilliant and colorful and gorgeous in setting, the stage show "Gems" at the Michigan this week gets under way with a flying start in an offering by Del Delbridge and his Michigan Syncopators.

Next was an octet of dancing girls, Ormonde's Sparking Gems, who went through a routine of unusual steps with grace and ease. Before the end of the show, the girls were given other opportunities to display their steps, and their costumes were colorful and well in keeping with the title of the production.

The headliner of the acts was David Rubinoff, a violinist par excellence. Besides his regular engagement at the Michigan, Rubinoff found time enough during his stay here to visit various of the public schools and play for the children.

Roy Schuster, Pauline Gaskin, Burns and Kissen and the Three Dennis Sisters were the other well liked individuals who took part in the riot of song, patter and dance which completed the show.

Mort Harris is responsible for the producing of this cleverly stage unit of the Public circuit, and showed his ingenuity in devising the gorgeous settings for the finale.

Philadelphia Carmen

Week Ending March 17

There was nothing particularly outstanding in the entertainment offered at the Carman this week, just a bill of light entertainment of sufficient variety.

Neville Fleeson, composer and pianist, and Bobby Folsom, musical comedy prima donna, were heard in a delightful musical offering, "The Song Painter," which went over well.

Tom Smith, with Harry Newman at the piano, sang, danced and got off a lot of wise cracks that brought him plenty of laughs.

Nellie Arnaut and Brothers gave a pleasing performance, combining violin numbers with acrobatics. They are not only graceful dancers, but skillful musicians.

David Pesetzki made his first appearance as guest conductor of the Carman Orchestra in a brilliant interpretation of the overture "Il Guarany."

Chicago Sheridan

Week Ending March 18

Roy C. McMullen and Verne Buck produced a very fine show this week, which they called "Buck's Black and White Revue."

This show opened in a full stage setting of black and white, with black and white streamers hanging in front of orchestra as they played "Somebody Else" for their opening number. Hal Hiatt played a hot chorus on a "Bassone" to a fine hand.

Lucille Sisters next offered their impression of the Duncan Sisters as Topsy and Eva, and were the hit of the bill. Besides giving a realistic impression of Topsy and Eva they also played a uke and sang very nicely. They took three encores.

The orchestra next offered their own arrangement of "Ice Cream," in which Sutten, Gernberg and Wilson, three boys in the band sing a chorus of same. The number was very well received and they were forced to repeat it.

Mills and Shea, two comedy sailors, that have been reported many times in these columns, again met with success.

The next number, a beautiful arrangement by Murray Cutter of "My Ohio Home," was then played by the boys with Buck playing a pleasing solo on his violin and Frank Wilson singing a chorus (as usual, Frank was forced to encore).

Ross and Edwards, two clever boys, next sang "I Don't Wanna" and "Dream Kisses" with comedy jokes, dancing and playing. They earned two encores.

Hal Hiatt then played a hot chorus of "Clarinet Marmalade Blues," with the orchestra as the back curtain rose exposing a scene with white trees, moon and stars dancing in front of a black background. This was a novel closing number and was very well received.

New Orleans Saenger

Week Ending March 23

Using as the theme "Moonlit Waters," with the haunting air of "Wonder When We Will Meet Again," Ben Black, who for the past twenty weeks has directed the stage band and vaudeville acts presented by the Publix shows at the New Saenger, entered upon his last week today with an excellent program, closing with a song written by himself entitled "Good-bye, New Orleans; Hello, Broadway," to which he will go at the close of the present week, being succeeded by Art Landry.

The stage was set in an extravagant style, the handiwork of Alloy in charge of the scenic effects of the Saenger Company's theatres in this city, and represented a barge, decorated with Chinese lanterns of various colors; in this, supposed to be slowly drifting down a stream, hung with southern moss, the stage band presented their program.

On the bill proper were Mario and Lazar, Fauntleroy and Van, Rose Marino, Janton Sisters, Dean Brothers, and Boris Petroff's Dancers. The wardrobe of all was extremely fine and the performances better than in many weeks.

John Hammond presided at the organ, assisted by Ray McNamara. The music for the picture was furnished by Castro Carazo and his orchestra of thirty-five pieces.

It is estimated that between the hours of 2 and 5 p. m. Saturday afternoon fully fifteen thousand people stormed the doors of the theatre seeking admission. The New Saenger seats four thousand people.

Chicago Congress

Week Ending March 14

This theatre changes program twice a week, Sunday and Wednesday. It has no stage orchestra, but has five acts of vaudeville. The stage show this week was reasonably good.

Warner and Cole, two clever comic dancers, gave funny, tricky and interesting steps, getting a fair applause.

Frank Shepherd, one of these trick card magicians, performed an interesting act with the aid of two boys from the audience. He went over in good shape.

Hogan Hancock, the hit of the program with his 10 piece orchestra, rendered some very fine music. The orchestra also contains comic singers which were well appreciated. The entire act was well received.

George and Aubrey, two comedians, were given the biggest applause on the program. The boys were good singers, harmonizing well together. They were called back for an encore.

The Parisian Four, consisting of the Mother, Father and two children, gave a routine of dancing, good tricks, cartoon drawing and a little singing. For an encore, another of the family, a girl about seven, sang a song. The act went over in a pleasing manner.

New York Paramount

Week Ending March 23

Reported on St. Patrick's Day, I took particular notice that the show this week opened with "A Bit of Erin" offered by the Paramount orchestra and two vocalists, a boy and a girl, who thrilled the hearts of lovers of Irish songs with their rendition of "The Little Country Town in the Old County Down" and "Irish Eyes." I wondered who the singers were, until later I saw the boy playing a baritone horn in the orchestra, and curiosity was appeased. The crashing, smashing finale was put over in true Irish style, and opened the presentation in great style.

"See-Saw" was devised and staged by John Murray Anderson, but—Yellow costumes and a yellow set, and on St. Patrick's Day. But even in view of this breach the show went over big, arranged in order of:

The Foster Girls offered "Swing High, Swing Low" a song and dance bit,—the picture dance being quite novel and most entertaining. In the same setting of Green and Gold, followed The Wainright Sisters late from the Music Box Revue who put over unique songs selected from their recent hits. Their ukelele number was received the best.

Max and His Gang (the gang being eight little fox-terriers) then went through a number of difficult and highly amusing comical antics—which perhaps proves that dogs are getting more tricky each year. This is entirely new and a well received offering. The Paramount Orchestra, accompanied by George Griffin and Rosette, rendered "A Dream Fantasy" set in full stage, with scrim drop. Their "Was It a Dream" was particularly pleasing, and Rosette is, besides a beautiful toe dancer, exceptionally good at difficult and thrilling steps.

The big attraction, the hit, the "ace in the hole" or what have you—followed, the much imitated, but never equalled artist, Joe Jackson in his pantomime bicycle act. This act was cut rather short, and the audience was very disappointed not to get more. The internationally famous artist went over big.

The finale was brought about this week in a very special way, with the entire company, stage orchestra and dance ensemble with Jesse Crawford at the organ, bringing in an Irish medley of songs, composed around "A Boquet of Roses" and featuring "Moonlight and Roses." The show was a trifle below Paramount standard, but that means an excellent show at that.

Chicago Senate

Week Ending March 18

"The Mikado of Jazz," a stageband presentation originally produced by Paul Ash, this week featured Mark Fisher with a cast headed by Bob La Salle. As this show was reported before, a brief report of the few changes follows:

Opening: With film trailer announcing the new story form show with the cast of characters after which Mark Fisher made his entrance and introduced each character in person.

After this the curtain rose to full stage setting and the principal characters immediately took to their parts. Mark Fisher as the Mikado won considerable laughs for his natural mannerisms and ad-libbing.

Milton Watson temporarily filled the role of Nanki-Poo originally played by Arch Cannon. Evelyn Vee was the new Yum-Yum originally played by Patricia Manners, and quite an improvement at that.

The Kimiwa Japs again proved a great bet in the show. As for Bob La Salle he was the chief fun-maker who walked away with the laurels.

The Darling Twins who with Evelyn Vee played the Three Little Maids from School were as cute as ever. Willard Andelin as the great Poo-bah was excellent in his role especially in the singing part.

The Finale was as picturesque as the first one with the Abbotts in typical Japanese bridesmaid outfits who helped decorate the setting during the wedding scene to which Mark Fisher sang "Oh What a Wonderful Wedding That Will Be," an appropriate ballad for this type of ending.

Pittsburgh Penn

Week Ending March 17

Dixieland," the stage unit this week, has some cast changes. Joe Penner is replaced by the Norman Thomas Quintette and Luella Lee and Ruth Stanley are out with the Gould Dancers replacing them.

The act opened with the Jubilee Quartette singing off stage. Then Don Albert introduces the Seven Gould Dancers who do a tap routine. Edith Griffith followed singing "Among My Souvenirs" in a dramatic manner following with a peppy rendition of "Love and Kisses." She stopped the show.

Then Don announces an usher wants to show the audience how he can dance and Henry La Mothe, in usher uniform, does a neat Charleston following with a tap dance.

Morris and Rapp, also dancers, did two single routines and a collegiate double together. The Jubilee Quartette sang one number after which came the Norman Thomas Quintette. A pianist, drummer, two dancers, and a single compose this act with the drummer doing trick stuff and the hit of the act. He outdoes Jack Powell, which is saying something, and scored the biggest hit the house has held outside of a well known name.

Chicago Avalon

Week Ending March 15

"Shanghai Dreams" was the name of this show, with Roy Dietrich, the popular leader, and his gang. The stage show was nothing very attractive and better shows have been seen here before.

Roy Dietrich's singing of the songs "Everywhere You Go" and "So Please Don't Say Goodby" were the outstanding numbers and was given a thunder of applause. No matter what song Roy sings, he puts it over with a bang.

The rest of the cast included Ned Miller, the singing composer; Natally and Darnell, fancy dancers; Hashy and O'Say, two Chinese trick actors; Anthony Rizzo, with his usual good accordion solos; Jean Shillings, a clever dancer and a good banjo player, and the Avalon Girls. The stage setting was very clever and pleasing to look at. It is evident that the big draw at this house is Roy Dietrich.

Dear Eddie:—

Here's a brand new idea. Write an organ solo imitating the instruments of the orchestra. Finish with "The Stars and Stripes" and have the ushers march down the aisle waving American flags. That alone will stop the show.

Rube Wolf and his musical merry-makers took Warfield Theatre audiences to London this week, the stage act being part of a musical journey around the world. When the front curtain went up it revealed the orchestra on the stage, with the Houses of Parliament and the Thames river in the background, visible through a gauze curtain. Rube announced that the scene is Piccadilly Square and that a number by Victor Herbert will be rendered. He played a solo part and directed with his usual vivacity.

The Gae Girls appear in a dance, dressed as London Bobbies and Rube says: "If you like policemen applaud the girls and if you don't like policemen applaud anyway." While the dance is on Rube disappears and returns wearing a Bobby coat and a helmet.

The musical hounds, Ted and Jack Dale, do a turn at a piano and xylophone. The pianist of the pair sang "Morning Glory Land" and then whistled the air effectively. The second offering was a novelty entitled "Bombay."

Rube then presented Jimmie Lyons as the best dressed man in the British Army and when Jimmie stepped forward he was seen to be wearing mismatched clothes, with his manly form plastered with medals. Instead of the Cockney brogue expected, he spoke with a German accent and dispensed a line of jokes which won favor from the start.

"Under the Bridge," with a water front setting, was E. J. Weisfeldt's well staged show this week. It opened with the orchestra playing "Down by the Viaduct" as Bebe Barri's Eight English Rockets in apache costumes stage a snappy dance.

Jay Mack, as a gob, does snappy harmonica playing and soft shoe dancing. Among his selections is "Dream Kisses." Cully and Claire accompany themselves on a banjo and uke respectively, singing and playing several popular songs including "It's a Long Time Since I've Been Home."

A comedy song and piano specialty number is put on by the band leader and Irene Havelock, one of the English Rockets. The number receives good applause.

A band selection by the Playboys includes a medley of popular selections including "Did You Mean It," "Among My Souvenirs," "My Blue Heaven," "Just Sing Me a Baby Song," "A Shady Tree" and "Anabelle Lee."

Billy Meyers then sings, accompanied by the piano, snatches from a number of popular selections including "When Day Is Done," "Just a Memory," "At Sundown," "Everywhere You Go," "My Blue Heaven," and "Barbara." The number then ends up with the band playing "Halleluja."

Lloyd and Brice keep the audience laughing with their slow motion acrobatic stunts. A dance by the English Rockets is followed by the Robin Family. First are a boy and girl in soft shoe dancing. Next is father and one of the sons with a bit of comedy. Then there is Hank who sings "School Days," followed by three boys and two girls who do all kinds of snappy stunts including back somersaults and the like. Lastly there is the baby of the family who turns a somersault and mamma who turns a hand spring. They all go over big.

The picture is Clara Bow in "Red Hair."

"Havana" is the stage show at the Chicago this week. It opens with the Petroff girls singing; their faces being illuminated by small lights held in their hands.

After a short routine they exit and the curtain rises to reveal Kosloff and his band in a beautiful patio setting quite in keeping with the name of the show. The Petroff girls come on again for a moment and then a Spaniard does a short song and dance, while playing a banjo.

Then Kosloff leads the band through a fine arrangement of "Way Down South in Heaven," and he plays his violin during the offering.

Then follows an unusually funny act by Clifton and Brent. They do a great deal of clowning and burlesquing, but the dance in which one of them is about the slimmest human ever seen is the feature of the act. It is clever and funny and gets a fine reception. This is followed by a very pretty castinet dance by the Petroff dancers.

Then comes George Dewey Washington, the colored singer. Seldom has this reporter seen a man work harder than he does. He puts everything he has into his songs, so much so that his voice is beginning to tell under the strain. He sings "Chloe," "Give the Blues a Chase," and "Laugh, Clown, Laugh." He gets and deserves a wonderful reception. His stage personality has just the right note for one of his race.

Then follows an unusually fine number called the cupid tango. The Petroff girls dressed in white Spanish costumes do a routine and then a tango couple, dressed altogether in white, do a beautiful tango. A chorus of voices is heard off stage during the dance. A beautiful number well staged.

Then follows a good number called "Underneath Your Skies of Blue," featuring Costner and Hewlett.

The finale is beautiful with the Petroff dancers in beautiful costumes, members of the show coming on for short turns, radium effects, and a beautiful Spanish shawl spreading out to cover the entire background.

"Araby," featuring Walt Roesner and The Capitoliens of radio fame, opened this week with a number "An Irish Rhapsody" by the Capitol Grand Orchestra. Setting and costumes in very green, and composition of Overture by William Axt. Broadway's versatile conductor, David Mendoza, swung the stick.

The show opened in full stage, and scrim drop, with a dance by the Albertina Rasch girls who have each and every one become inimitable artists of the dance. Arabian costumes and music lent atmosphere to this beautiful number.

Roy Smeck, with the banjo, harmonica, and uke, is billed as "Wizard of the Strings" and rightfully so. His numbers were very well liked. Rosemary offered two very beautiful songs, and she is a very beautiful girl. Her shadow song, her stage presence and winning personality brought her much applause.

Rita Owen, late of Ziegfeld's Follies, proves to us that the glorifier of the American Girl has scored another winner. Miss Owen does a "Sis Hopkins" eccentric dance which was the hit of the show. One of the boys in the stage orchestra, the announcement sounded like John Spurzil, then gave his impression of receiving radio entertainment on a busy evening on a two-tube set. This was given with the assistance of his brass horn, and was very good. Rita Owen comes back after a change of costume, and what a deception. She offers a buck and wing tap dance which went over big.

The next feature was Walt Roesner and his Capitoliens' impression of the original araby jazz number which he calls "Hot Sand." It surely was "hot" and was so received. Johnson and Hewitt, two "micks" were brave enough to wear yellow flowers with their Irish makeup. Their acrobatic eccentric dance was very well appreciated, and made a dandy closing number.

Three cheers for the Capitol and Caesar Linden for the way the show has picked up since Al Short's departure. This week's presentation was called "Kil-larney." - "My Melancholy Baby" (Joe Morris).
- "My Blue Heaven" (Leo Feist).
- "Sunshine" (Irving Berlin).

I'M TIRED OF MAKING BELIEVE—(Al Piantadosi)—Al Piantadosi, at one time one of America's leading writers, is both the writer and publisher of this song. Written as a waltz with a beautiful lyric. Has a good chance of reviving the name of this writer.

HUMORESKIMO—(Sam Fox Pub. Co.)—A novelty piano solo also arranged for saxophone with a lyric that is very clever. This number is great for pianists looking for trick melodies. Words by Alfred Bryan, music by Peter Wendling and Henri Berchman.

I FOUND A HORSESHOE—(Will It Bring Good Luck For Me)—(Jack Mills, Inc.)—This song by two local boys is well written as a fox trot and a suitable lyric. Words and music by Billy Meyers and Elmer Schoebel.

THE DANCE OF THE BLUE DANUBE—(Empire Music Co.)—The writer of "Dardanella" fame has written this number, which is being played extensively on the air. This composition is arranged both as a piano solo and with a lyric. With the start it has it no doubt get a quick bid from one of the large publishers.

BACK IN YOUR OWN BACK YARD—(Irving Berlin, Inc.)—This is the second write-up on this song. Al Jolson just opened up here in "A Night in Spain" and started this song off with a bang. By Al Jolson, Billy Rose and Dave Dreyer.

ONLY A DREAM—(Bibo, Bloedon & Lang)—One of the writers, Lew Pollack, has been exceptionally successful in the last year, particularly with "Charmaine" and "Diane." This waltz has a pretty melody and the lyrics sing well. Irving Bibo is the other composer.

OKMNX—(J. H. Remick & Co.)—Another song about the brotherhood of billy goats. This song is by the cartoonist of Barney Google (Billy Debeck). If the members of the order get back of this number they can put it over for a big hit. Co-writers are Phil Baker, J. Russel Robinson and Sid Silvers.

LILA—(DeSylva, Brown & Henderson)—This song reminds one of "Yes Sir, That's My Baby." Has all the ear marks of a hit song.

YOU'RE WHAT I NEED—(Harms, Inc.)—Lyrics by Lorenz Hart, music by Richard Rodgers. These writers in my opinion, are two of the greatest in the production field. This is the hit song from "She's My Baby," which is now playing in Chicago. Has as its star Beatrice Lillie, the famous English comedienne.

I'M AWAY FROM THE WORLD (When I'm Away From You)—M. Witmark & Sons)—The title tells the whole story. There is also a verse. A beautiful song on a par with the songs this house has published for many years.

MY BABY CAME HOME—(Milton Weil Music Co.)—Now that the testimonial given to this popular music publisher is over, this is one of the new songs Weil is starting and looks like ready money. By Buddy Fields, Charlie Newman and Jack Gardner.

P. S.—If you miss "Joe Lewis' Testimonial" show you'll miss one of the best ever staged. Don't forget the date, MARCH 29.

ORGAN SOLOS

Preston Sellers (Chicago Senate) offered a very entertaining community solo this week with the following songs, "Did You Mean It," "My Ohio Home," "Bungalow of Dreams" and a medley of several other popular tunes. The stunt had many catch lines which changed the tune by the color of the lyrics. At this performance the stunt stopped the show completely, and Sellers was forced to take an encore.

J. Otto Hinze (St. Joseph, Rivoli) as guest organist, at the new instrument here, was pronounced by the newspapers as a master of the organ by the style of playing and manner in which he cued the photoplay. This chap also broadcasts from Station KGBX.

Clark Fiers (Scranton West Side) used a stunt by Nelson Chon called "Stage Struck." This was a community version with the slides telling the audience that Ziegfeld was on the lookout for new talent, and by their singing would discover some. The songs used were "Beautiful," "Gee But I'm Lonesome Tonight," and "Everywhere You Go."

William J. Cowdrey (Chillicothe, Sherman) during the showing of Charlie Chaplin "The Circus" picture used a solo with slides called "Under the Top." The songs used were as follows: "Sunshine," "Oh, Look at That Baby," "Cloh-E," "Ice Cream," "I Just Roll Along," and "Clap Hands." It was a travesty operated in conjunction with the picture which served as a good advance trailer.

Dick Leibert (Pittsburgh Penn) does a straight solo this week. Announcing that he has had requests to play hits of former years he selects "Whispering," "Japanese Sandman" and "Remember" as the three he will play. Audience thoroughly enjoyed being reminded of these numbers with solo doing very well. In fact idea can be repeated again with other songs.

George Lee Hamrick (Atlanta Howard) at the organ rendered accompaniment to illustrated technicolor slides on the screen introducing the song, "A Trip to the Sunny South."

Arthur Richter (Milwaukee Wisconsin) offers for his number several of Walter Donaldson's latest hits, preceded by a trailer giving a bit of information about Donaldson, as well as the name of a number of the selections he has written. Richter offered, with the words flashed upon the screen, "What Are You Waiting for, Mary," "There Must Be a Silver Lining" and "My Ohio Home." As usual his numbers are well received.

John Hammond (New Orleans Saenger), solo organist, after a suspension of two months, has resumed his morning concert series. The week's program consisted of Wagner's "Tannhauser Overture," Johann Struss' "Artist Life Waltzes," Wagner's "Evening Star" and Schubert's "Marche Militaire."

Edmund Fitch (Chicago Sheridan) used many comedy slides in his "Just For Fun" solo in which he introduced "Sweeping Cobwebs Off the Moon," "I Told Them All About You," "Auf Wiedersehen" and comedy parodies on "I'll Think of You" and "A Night in June." He played other songs and the audience sang them. Eddie closed with "Cobwebs" and got a good hand.

Harold Daniels (Chicago Buckingham) used a clever novelty community stunt which was called "The Trouble Maker." This included many parodies on popular numbers which his audience sang very well. There was also a musical argument between the boys and girls that created much interest and when Daniels played his original "sneeze" chorus to the tune of "Sing Me a Baby Song," the audience were in hysterics between trying to sing, sneeze and laugh. His closing number was a parody on "It All Depends On You." Daniels was compelled to repeat two choruses of "Among My Souvenirs."

Milton Charles (Chicago Chicago) played for his organ presentation "Among My Souvenirs," "Beautiful," and "Dream Kisses." Slides carrying the lyrics of the songs are all that is used to accompany his playing, yet that is enough to make his presentation a pleasant one, for Charles' masterful playing is enough.

Alexander Schreiner (Salt Lake City Capitol) at the organ offered a solo number and most popular of all was his selection of popular numbers with which the audience was invited to sing, the words being flashed on the screen and an announcement being made that these numbers were being broadcast.

Get Your Patrons to Make Displays

By Will Whitmore

When R. B. Law, manager of the Orpheum theatre, Savanna, Illinois, played the Warner Bros. picture, "Old San Francisco," he made use of his own contact with the Orient for the basis of his exploitation, and it proved the very thing for putting over the picture. Mr. Law traveled through the Orient in 1923 and in his wanderings collected many souvenirs. These were put on display in connection with the picture.

Three fourths of the people in town saw the display and the picture played to capacity houses.

This shows what even an inexpensive exploitation will do for a picture. Similar exhibits can be used with any number of pictures produced every year. There is a strong attraction for any sort of relics, and there are always many relics and souvenirs in even the smallest town. When you have a picture with a locale in any foreign country, you should be able to find souvenirs from that country in your town, and you can rest assured that they will attract attention.

A good plan would be to analyze all the pictures you have booked and pick out the ones that can be exploited with souvenirs, relics, old costumes and the like. Then get out and find people who have such articles that would be appropriate. You can find them in any town if you look long enough.

Arrange Series of Exhibits

It might be a good idea to arrange for a series of such exhibits, tying up with a certain store or a group of stores to stage your exhibits. Then announce all these exhibits in advance, thereby creating advance interest in the whole series of exhibits and pictures. Stress the educational angle in your exhibits and this will appeal to the civic organizations and schools.

This idea can be worked in an endless variety of ways. Pick out a picture that lends itself well to this type of exploitation. Then go to several different organizations in your town and get each one of them to compete in an exhibit contest. You can also work it with several grades in your local school, and tie up with merchants to display the exhibits in their show windows. Offer a prize for the best exhibit or display.

Another idea would be to get several different organizations to put on a short prologue for the picture, one for each night that you play the picture. Appoint judges to select the best prologue of the group. You can do this with practically any good picture on your bookings.

Law's success in putting over "Old San Francisco" shows how easily such displays can be worked up, and how successful they will prove. Here is what Law says in regard to what he did:

How Law Did It

"Since the greater part of the picture was taken in the Chinatown of San Francisco, I used Oriental goods to decorate a window of a prominent dry goods store. All the articles used were brought from China and Japan by myself. (However, any exhibitor could collect enough foreign goods for a window display.)

"The goods were placed in the store a week before the picture was to run. The newspaper story told the people of the unique and unusual display. Phone calls were made to me to ask questions about the goods, the exact showing dates of the picture, etc.

"I feel sure in saying that three fourths of the people in the town saw the window display and a capacity house saw the picture. Due to the fact that we are limited in the amount of expense we can use to exploit a picture I do the painting of signs myself. The large one-sheet painting was conspicuous in colors and drew attention to the fact that an Oriental picture was to be shown at our theatre. Of course special Oriental music was played by our organist, for which we received many compliments."

Oh!--What a hit!

Institutional Copy Can Be of Value in Theatre Advertising

(This is the seventh of a series of articles on advertising which originally appeared in the Finkelstein & Ruben house organ. Others will follow.)

Number Seven

Until a few years ago institutional advertising was not looked upon by showmen with very kindly eyes. But get this straight—institutional advertising has a place in showmanship!

Care must be exercised at all times in appealing to movie audiences with institutional copy. At no time should direct selling be sacrificed to promote institutional ideas. Our chief advertising idea at all times is to advertise a certain attraction opening on a definite date in a specific theatre.

The general office attitude on institutional copy is that when we feel the need we do step into the institutional field. Just recently we broadcast 50,000 booklets through the circuit. The booklet was designed to inform the public on some of the problems we have to meet in entertaining a half million men, women and children every week.

As time goes on we will issue other booklets in the effort to acquaint the public with those aspects of our business that they should know. The writer doesn't believe in exposing the tricks of our trade. Rather we believe that the delightful illusions of the theatre should be sustained at all times. But there are certain things which will make movies more enjoyable if known to the public. These things we will reveal from time to time.

When you are convinced that you should talk to your people along institutional lines, by all means do so. Such advertising is extremely valuable but its use is limited in showmanship and it should be very, very carefully thought out. The booklets which were put out months ago are still doing fine work for Finkelstein & Ruben. During a series of talks to noon luncheon groups the writer has proved even more fully the value of the booklet, "What the Public Doesn't Know About the Movies." At every meeting the writer is asked at least part of the questions answered in the booklet.

Before leaving the subject of institutional advertising we wish to suggest that it can be conveyed very effectively by means of your screen and direct mail. It should always be tied up with a special attraction at your theatre. These attractions are in the class of "Alakan Adventures" and "Grass." Pictures of this type naturally appeal to a limited patronage. They can be most effectively stressed by direct mail. Direct mail should always be supplementary to your newspaper and poster campaign.

Now we come to goodwill advertising as distinguished from institutional copy. Goodwill advertising is valuable yes, but do not be misled by it. The general advertising department's ruling is that goodwill advertising can only be purchased when the manager is absolutely convinced of its value.

When you are approached by a solicitor for a program or booklet, don't buy space unless you are convinced that you are going to please possible patrons rather than the solicitor. There are times when it is necessary to break the rule. Good judgment must prevail at these times.

"My Best Idea" Builds Goodwill For Falkinburg, M. B. I. No. 11

R. E. Falkinburg, who operates the Majestic and Ralfal theatres, Lexington, Nebraska, gets real happiness out of his work. He has found that happiness comes in making others happy, and that it pays doubly, too, for it helps his theatres. He contributes much of the success of his theatres to his "My Best Idea" which makes him M. B. I. Number 11.

"My Best Idea" No. 11

By R. E. Falkinburg

MY best idea through 20 odd years of motion picture playing I firmly believe to be the one enclosed and described.

I secure the census each year from our county superintendent. It gives the date of birth of every child in school. From this list we can easily find the names of those having birthdays each week. We mail one of the enclosed birthday cards to each name.

It will admit them to either theatre. Our doormen return to me personally all cards received at the theatres and I know they are used almost 100 per cent. We have used this system several years and it does not grow old.

Perhaps in larger cities it would not prove practical, but even there I believe a suburban theatre could find a way to send them out through his territory with surprising results at his box office and I am convinced that smaller cities can use it to great gain.

We have countless telephone calls from people thanking us for remembering them; children stop me on the streets and personally thank me for the cards. Many ask how we knew their birthdays. We have many birthday parties phone for reservations that originate simply because the child receives the birthday card. Whole families often come to the show, telling us they just had to come along and help Mary or Johnnie celebrate the day.

We have lots of foolish questions and

Athletic Contests Feature "Gauchó" Run in Cleveland

During the first run of "Douglas Fairbanks as the Gauchó" at the Stillman theatre, Cleveland, the management and the Cleveland Press cooperated in an elaborate tieup which attracted city-wide attention. The newspaper sponsored a Douglas Fairbanks Jump Tournament which was also known as the "Gauchó" Contest.

Entries from all the local gyms were assembled by the Press to participate in these three typically Fairbanks events; running high jump, standing broad jump, and hop, skip and jump. Preliminaries were held at various gyms, and the finals were dated at a central location. A. A. U. rules governed the contests, and entries were limited to amateur athletes under 19 years of age. The trophies were silver loving cups to winners of the first, second and third places in all events; and, in the special Fairbanks trophy contest, silver cups to the athletes making the best averages in three events.

A supervisor was appointed for the tournament for each of seven groups, comprising community centers, settlements, municipal bath houses, Y. M. C. A.'s, etc.

During the engagement of "Douglas Fairbanks as the Gauchó" sporting goods stores featured the tournament in window displays and also replicas of the bolas used by Fairbanks in this United Artists Picture.

Birthday card, good for two admissions, used by Mr. Falkinburg at the Majestic and Ralfal theatres. The sending out of these cards to patrons, he calls "My Best Idea," for it creates that most valuable of assets, goodwill.

thoughtful ones asked a plenty, but that's advertising indeed. And it is always evident from the smiles and the joy displayed by these children over the birthday cards that goodwill is being built.

I believe it to be the most permanent and most pleasing idea we ever used for helping to build patronage. Just a little token, a pass, someone would call it, but with that personal touch that means so much more than the free Christmas show, free serial show, etc., that exhibitors use.

I believe it to be "institutional advertising" that's the heart of it all. Each year we change the design of the card. It costs me an average of $1 per week, but I feel like a real millionaire, indeed, with the hundreds of smiles, thank yous, and kind words I hear about our theatres. The "stars" pass on, as we all know from experience, but our theatres will live on just as long as we make them institutions worth while.

Here's hoping this idea may bring to others the joy it has to me.

is funniest yet!

A "Tickler" File Will Keep You in Ideas

Every publicity man and every manager who handles his own publicity, exploitation and advertising, should keep a tickler file if he does not already.

The importance of doing this cannot be overemphasized.

For the benefit of those who might not know just what a tickler file is, we are going to explain it in detail. And you will find after reading, that it is merely a common sense file, a file that is amazing in its simplicity and yet invaluable.

1. Mark a special folder in your file for each of all the holidays in the year, and also for all "special days" such as "Mother's Day," "Father's Day," etc., etc. Every bit of information, publicity and advertising material you get pertaining to these days, file under its proper heading, as fast as you collect it.

2. Mark special folders for each of the movie stars, Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Lon Chaney, Colleen Moore, Emil Jannings, etc., etc. Every bit of information and all art hunches that you get from time to time you file under its proper heading. This should include star stills and ad art hunches.

3. Prepare special folders for coming pictures, and in them file pertinent information, such as advance reviews, etc.

A flood of valuable material passes through your hands every day, which, unless carefully filed in this way, will lose most of its value. Almost every motion picture trade magazine, fan magazine, and popular periodical contains many things which you should clip and file away, including reviews, advance synopsis, casts of pictures and stage shows, and exploitation tips. A vast amount of valuable art hunches may thus be gleaned.

Every motion picture studio, moreover, publishes a house organ, and you should write asking that you be placed on the mailing list. In them you will find items of value.

In other words, a tickler file is simply the most complete file you possibly can keep on every single thing that might prove of value to you. You cannot make such a file too complete. Unceasing attention must be paid your file, if you would have it 100 per cent valuable. All material that passes before your eyes must be looked at—not alone with the idea of its immediate use, but for its potential future value. Soon you will get the habit of doing this—and you never will regret that habit.

(From F. & R. "Showmanship News")

Theatre Gives Baby Away; Gets Much Publicity, Goodwill

Working a stunt that is probably new in the repertoire of publicity annals, E. J. Bresendine, manager of the Princess theatre, San Antonio, practically owned the newspaper columns when he played "Motherhood," recently.

Bresendine tied up with the local association for finding homes for "homeless" babies, obtained a pretty blue-eyed boy, and in conjunction with the newspapers and a local department store, proceeded to find a home for the little one. He got pictures in the papers almost every day, together with ads from the store, which gave to the family that was selected to adopt the child a $100.00 layette, consisting of everything necessary to clothe the baby for six months.

A lobby display of baby clothes was worked with a display case, and the layette was shown. Four times during the week, the baby was taken to the lobby of the Princess, where hundreds of women gathered around to see him.

One hour and 1 minute of music and 1 hour and 11 minutes of film made up the program which had Victor McLaglen in "A Girl In Every Port" as the feature picture. This latter subject ran 1 hour and 2 minutes, and the Topical Review made up the balance of the film portion of the show, running 9 minutes.

There were four musical incidents, the chief of which was the production, "Cabaret," which was given 38 minutes. The other three presentations included an overture by the orchestra, a spot singer, and the Maryon Vadie Dancers in full stage.

Each of the deluxe shows opened with Wagner's "Tannhauser" as an 11 minute overture with the Famed Mark Strand Orchestra with Willy Stahl conducting. Lights for this were as follows: Lemon floods from the bridges, lemon floods from the dome; 2 spots from the sides hitting ceiling.

A film leader was thrown on the screen in-roducing Caesar Nesi, tenor and clarinetist of the orchestra, who was then spotted by a white light from the dome as he arose from his chair in the pit and stepped out to the apron of the big stage. He took up 4 minutes with 2 numbers, the first being "La Spanole" and finishing with "Little Log Cabin of Dreams."

The Six Maryon Vadie Dancers appeared in full stage, using 8 minutes with the routine which included "Rhythmic Games" as an opening. Emily Fitzgerald in a solo dance and "Furlana" by the six dancers. This act was backed up by a fabric cyclorama upon which were thrown vari-colored spots.

After the Topical Review came the stage production, "Cabaret," which opened with the stage band seated in front of a cyclorama which had painted on it palms and South Sea plants. The musicians picked up the opening of "When Loves Comes Stealing" and then Gene Vallian, soprano, came on from the left and sang a verse and chorus. At her exit the first violin of the band played the number as a solo, and then the trombonist did the same thing. Each was spotted in turn by a white light from the dome.

One of the boys from the orchestra stepped out and announced a surprise in the nature of a new master of ceremonies, Jack Pepper, whom he then introduced. Pepper, a fast-working and snappy youth with a pleasing personality took up the baton and first brought on Toots Novella, the "upside down dancer," who did his unique dance in clown costume. This was followed by the Six Night Club Girls in black and white costumes in a dance arranged by Johnny Martin, after which the stage band played an arrangement of "Thou Swell" from "The Connecticut Yankee" by Jerry Sears.

Next came Emily Fitzgerald in a dance, after which Gene Vallian was again introduced, this time singing, "Love Everlasting." Pepper then showed his versatility by picking up a ukelele and playing his own accompaniment to a couple of songs. Tom Brown and the Six Brown Brothers followed, doing their act about the same as they have been doing it throughout the country, featuring the bridal scene by Tom Brown. The finale by the entire company closed this production.

SERVICE TALKS

Incorporated in this department of Exhibitors Herald, which is a department containing news, information and gossip on current productions, is the Moving Picture World department, "Through the Box Office Window."

"THE SHOWDOWN"

PEOPLE seated near me in the Chicago theatre looking at "The Showdown" whispered that the thing suggested "Rain." I haven't a doubt of it. Neither have I a doubt that it is an excellent picture nor that I shall remember it after I have forgotten the dozen pictures seen immediately before and after. It is definite, strong, interesting. These are attributes enough for any picture.

George Bancroft is the chief performer in "The Showdown." Fred Kohler is the foe who battles him at intervals and with cause. Evelyn Brent is the good gal in the plot and Helen Lynch is the bad gal. The tropics, aided by an oil well, afford reason enough for the plentiful events with which the time of these people is occupied.

There is the rain that doesn't stop, the effect of the tropics upon men and women, emotionally speaking, and there is the oil well to keep them on in spite of this and that. There is the big scrap near the end of the picture, and after that there is a card game with angles, finally a phone call which fixes up all the loose ends nicely and makes the fadeout a satisfactory finish.

During the picture, the players indulge in carefully close-upped oral exercises which are at least as warm as Mr. MacLaglen's comments to Mr. Lowe in "What Price Glory." The ladies present seemed to react especially strongly to Miss Lynch's remark to Mr. Bancroft at the bedroom door. As I am no lip-reader (and as this is a family magazine), I shall not write it down, but the interpretations throughout the audience were unanimous.

"SQUARE CROOKS"

DOROTHY DWAN and three other sprightly young actors, none of them known to me by sight, make a great deal of good fun out of "Square Crooks," a new kind of crook comedy. The thing has possibilities. It is also very good entertainment.

"Square Crooks" opens like a regulation crook picture. The two young fellows who have been trying to go straight are boosted out of their jobs by the detective who recognizes them and tells their employer of their criminal record. That night the gentleman's house is robbed and of course the discharged employes are suspected. But at this time the thing turns into one of those who's-got-the-jewels farces and runs that way to the end.

By T. O. Service

The serious beginning is a big lift to the comic ending and a good time is had by all.

I know not how many times the recipe might be followed without dulling the edge of its effect, but I know it worked out very well in this case and afforded me a pleasant relief from the humdrum of all-comic or all-serious photoplays of the day.

"THE PATENT LEATHER KID"

I KNOW I'm late in seeing "The Patent Leather Kid," but better late—very much better in this case—than never. For "The Patent Leather Kid" is mighty well worth seeing now, tomorrow or next year. It is a great picture if "The Big Parade" or "What Price Glory" is a great picture, and I'm pretty sure that not one but both of them are. This makes a trio.

The startling thing about "The Patent Leather Kid," to me, is that I didn't know it had a war slant. I thought it was just a prize-ring picture and, to be frank, I couldn't see much in the prospect of Dick Barthelmess performing for several reels as a fistic hero. That's why I didn't go to see the picture when it was available as a roadshow. But the war element is there, and when I say it is there I mean there!

In the picture, Dick's a pug who doesn't go for the war thing until the last minute. After that he goes plenty, but it's pretty late. The rest, however, is not to be told if you're to see the picture—as you should.

I have grouped the picture with "What Price Glory" and "The Big Parade." I think it belongs there. I can see no reason for writing more about it, for there are no stronger words of praise in this writing machine.

"THE SECRET HOUR"

I AM quite sure I don't know what "The Secret Hour" is all about. I arrive at this conclusion after three days in which I have sought, at intervals, to figure out why Paramount produced it and why, if for some obscure reason they had to make the thing, they put Pola Negri into it. Failing in any and all attempts to obtain satisfactory answers for these questions, I come, naturally enough, to the afore-stated conviction—that I don't know what it's all about.

In view of this lack of comprehension on my part, I can only state that to my no doubt strained and warped vision, "The Secret Hour" is no more than a dull recital of uninteresting events leading up to the marriage of a waitress and a fruit gardener. It had Miss Negri for the waitress, which she has no business being, and it has Jean Hersholt as an Italian fruit farmer, as which he is as excellent as he is as anything else he is called upon to play. But there is, as the picture has been made, nothing of interest for either of them to do. There is, in short, nothing of interest in the story as it has been pictured.

I am told, in a hoarse whisper, that the picture is a modified version of "They Knew What They Wanted." If this be the case—and I am not at all sure of it—the modifications seem to have removed any point of interest there may have been in the original. I still do not know why they made the thing, and so of course I am not qualified to say that it is good, bad or indifferent. I am human enough to add, however, that I strongly suspect the worst.

ADDENDA

SPRING has come to the Middle West and, curiously enough, I feel a renewed interest in going to picture shows. Maybe the weather was keeping me away. Anyway, I hope the experience is widely shared by the populace, for its getting too easy to get into Chicago picture theatres.

NEW PICTURES

In "New Pictures" the EXHIBITORS HERALD and MOVING PICTURE WORLD presents in concise form information on current and forthcoming attractions.

The facts as presented will serve exhibitors in booking and in the preparation of their advertising campaigns.

BOWERY CINDERELLA, A: Excellent drama, with Gladys Hulette, Pat O'Malley, Pat Hartigan, Kate Bruce, Ernest Hilliard, Rosemary Theby, Pauline Parr, Howard Mitchell, Leo White and J. Webb Dillon. Directed by Burton King. Released November 1. Length, 6,805.

TYPE AND THEME: Virtue is put to the test in this one but wins riches in the end. Nora and Larry, sweethearts, live in hopes that they may get Nora's invalid mother out of the noisy Bowery, New York. Larry, who works on a newspaper, is writing a play, while Nora models dresses. Chandler, backer of a musical comedy, meets her at the dress shop, and though his wife is already watching him because of his liking for other women, he conceives designs on Nora. His plottings get her a job in his show and ultimately provide an apartment for her and her mother. Then his true intentions assert themselves, to Nora's horror. Larry comes to her rescue, however—and the tale closes with happiness assured the two lovers.

CANYON OF ADVENTURE, THE: First National Western, with Ken Maynard, Virginia Brown Faire, Eric Mayne, Theodore Lorch, Tyrone Brereton, Hal Salter, Billy Franey, Charles Witaker, and Tarzan. Directed by Albert Rogell. Released April 29. Length.....

TYPE AND THEME: Love and adventure against a background of Spanish California. Steven, a U. S. land-agent in the newly admitted state, warns Don Miguel to register his land. But Don Alfredo is against that, inasmuch as he is plotting to get hold of the land, as well as to acquire Don Miguel's daughter, Dolores, as a wife for his son. Stevens, however, likes Dolores pretty well, and learning that Don Alfredo has captured Don Miguel and Dolores, he and two buddies invite themselves to the wedding of Don Alfredo's son and Dolores. There they are extremely active, even to the point of violence, and succeed in releasing Dolores and Don Alfredo. The wedding continues, but Steven is the bridegroom this time.

CHORUS KID, THE: Gotham drama, with Virginia Brown Faire, Bryant Washburn, Thelma Hill, Hedda Hopper, John Batten, Tom O'Brien, and Sheldon Lewis. Directed by Howard Bretherton. Released April 1. Length, 6,000.

TYPE AND THEME: Beatrice, chorus girl, makes some money on oil stock and has a chance to be a kid again. She adopts Powell as her guardian. At his home, Mrs. Garrett, who would like to marry Powell, notices his interest in Beatrice, who he does not know is a chorus girl. Mrs. Garrett tells him, whereupon Powell, angry, follows her to his mountain lodge. There his passions are excited, but a tree falls on the house, injuring Beatrice. When she regains consciousness, he asks her forgiveness and proposes marriage. Beatrice confesses her love for him.

DEVIL'S SKIPPER, THE: Tiffany-Stahl melodrama, with Belle Bennett, Montagu Love, Cullen Landis, Mary McAlister, Gino Corrado, G. Raymond Nye, Pat Hartigan, Adolph Millar, Phillip Sleeman and Frank Leigh. Directed by John G. Adolfi. Released..... Length.....

TYPE AND THEME: We've had many a man-devil in charge of a ship, but this is the story of such a woman. She had married only to have her daughter killed (so she believes) and herself shanghaied by her husband. She has grown to be a hellion in charge of the ship, and learning of the whereabouts of the man who had wronged her, she has him taken with his daughter aboard the ship. To punish him, she tells the crew that the best man can have the girl. As a Greek proves his right to her, the devil skipper realizes that the girl is her own daughter. With the help of the second mate, the girl is rescued. The devil skipper has the man and her daughter put off the boat, that they may find happiness.

EASY COME, EASY GO: Paramount comedy-drama, with Richard Dix, Nancy Carroll, Charles Sellon, Frank Currier, Arnold Kent, Christian J. Frank, Joseph J. Franz, and Guy Oliver. Directed by Frank Tuttle. Released..... Length.....

TYPE AND THEME: In which a young man tries to do the right thing but is the victim of circumstances. However—but let's start at the beginning. Dix gets attached to a crook when the latter saves his life. Dix helps him catch a train, not knowing that in his bag is $100,000 recently taken from a bank. On the train they run into the president of the bank and his daughter. They are on the way to a sanitarium. Dix picks up an acquaintance with Nancy, while the crook does the same with the contents of the banker's pockets. Then Dix learns that his companion is a crook. He tries to return the money to the banker but is blocked (laughably) at every turn. Indeed, a suitor for Nancy's love throws suspicion on Dix. But detectives finally get the money, and Dix the girl.

HIS RISE TO FAME: Excellent drama, with George Walsh, Peggy Shaw, Bradley Barker, Mildred Reardon, Martha Petelle, William G. Nally, and Ivan Linow. Directed by Bernard McEveety. Released February 15. Length 5,792.

TYPE AND THEME: How fame, fortune, and love may be won in the prize ring. Jerry is a ne'er-do-well, good looking, decent sort of chap and all that, but he just can't get started right. One night in a cabaret he meets a girl to his liking. Laura is a dancer. But there's a fight promoter who likes Laura, and noticing that she warms up to Jerry, he gets one of his fighters to lay Jerry low. The bruising sets Jerry to thinking—and he gets a job in a gymnasium. In time he looks like a fighter, but in a match with the fellow who knocked him out, he loses through crooked work. But later, in a fight with the same pugilist, he wins—and wealth and Laura are his.

NEST, THE: Excellent Pictures drama starring Pauline Frederick, supported by Holmes Herbert, Thomas Holding, Ruth Dwyer, Reginald Sheffield, Rolland Flander, Jean Acker and Wilfred Lucas. Directed by William Nigh. Released August 1, 1927. Length, 7,393 feet.

TYPE AND THEME: Mother-love is the big thought, with Miss Frederick as the indulgent widowed mother who won't listen to the marriage pleading of the executor of the estate. Her daughter marries without consulting her. Her son is tricked into the clutches of a gambler through a ne'er-do-well woman. The mother adopts vigorous methods, becomes rejuvenated in Paris and returns as a flapper. The woman who has ensnared her son becomes jealous and traps the son into forging a check. The executor punishes the gambler with his fists, lays down the law to the son and daughter, and marries their mother.

SPORTING AGE, THE: Columbia drama, with Belle Bennett, Holmes Herbert, Carroll Nye, Josephine Borio, and Edwards Davis. Directed by Erle C. Kenton. Released March 2. Length.....

TYPE AND THEME: Middle-age tries to recapture the thrills of youthful love and finds that youth is meant only for youth. Miriam, annoyed by her husband's neglect, encourages the attentions of his young secretary, Phillip. The lad falls for her charms, and when Driscoll loses his sight in an accident, the affair is easily carried on. Suddenly recovering his sight, Driscoll sees that Miriam is lost to him, but his doctor advises him to try to win his wife back. Driscoll has a niece visit his home, and Phillip and she fall in love. Miriam is chagrined at this, but when she realizes that her husband still loves her, she is glad to face the winter of life with him.

SUNSET LEGION, THE: Paramount Western, with Fred Thomson, William Courtright, Edna Murphy, and Harry Woods. Directed by Lloyd Ingraham and Alfred L. Werker. Released..... Length.....

TYPE AND THEME: A "different" type of Western, with mystery, laughs, perils, and love woven together in an unusual manner. Old Bill, who has a daughter, Susan, is the victim of a robbery. A blackrobed stranger witnesses the hold-up. He's the same fellow whom Susan likes when she notices him whittling something. The sheriff is after the bandit, but it takes the detective work of the blackrobed stranger to hunt them down. He tries to cross the ravine in an ore bucket and is shot down, but he resumes the fight. There is a blow-up of the mine safe and some furious riding by Rangers. Susan learns what the cowboy was whittling. It proves to be a handkerchief clasp for her.

This Week's Press Sheet

BURNING DAYLIGHT (First National melodrama): Tie up with a firm selling electric light fixtures on the "burning daylight" angle. You can use window cards and special posters. For the lobby display, surround poster-frames with special white light bulbs, which the electrical goods dealer can supply you with for the advertising he will receive. He can make very attractive window displays with "stills" from the picture. Also his newspaper advertisements would have a timely appeal by incorporating ideas taken from the name of the picture. . . . You can decorate your lobby in Alaskan style. By an arrangement of color lights you can simulate the flashing Northern lights. Sprinkle imitation snow over your lobby frames and other display matter. Dress your ushers in Alaskan costumes. . . . Build a shadow-box for your lobby, with cut-out letters for the title of the picture. Illuminate them from within on a flash button, which will give the letters a flaming effect. Cut-out letters may be illuminated from below in red. The letters should be cut to resemble flames. . . . You might hire a street car and cover it with banners advertising the picture. During the rush hours run the car over the principle lines. If the car passes your theatre, sell tickets aboard it. . . . This picture was adapted from the popular book of the same title by Jack London, so you can arrange an effective tie-up, perhaps, with some book store. Besides a book-admission tie-up, you can have book-marks printed advertising the showing of the picture at your theatre and distribute them to book stores and libraries. Window displays in book stores, with cards announcing the showing of the picture, might stimulate business at both the store and at your theatre. . . . Jack London is known to most all types of readers and is one of the most popular authors in the average public library. Get your local librarian to make a display of his book, "Burning Daylight," in some prominent part of the main reading room. Or you can get the librarian to set copies of this novel on a special shelf, with a card in a prominent location urging patrons to read the book before seeing the picture at your theatre. Children patrons of the library might be invited to a matinee.

Discuss Kent on Percentage

NAPOLEONVILLE, La.—To THE EDITOR: In your last issue you quote Mr. Kent of Paramount Famous Lasky as being in favor of percentage booking. While the writer is in full accord with Mr. Kent in this, he is fully aware as is Mr. Kent, that the simple statement that percentage booking offers the best solution of this perplexing problem of how to buy and sell pictures at a profit, is vague indeed. Does he mean percentage with a guarantee? I mean a guarantee from the exhibitor or without a guarantee? If with a guarantee, percentage means very little, because this same guarantee can be made as high as flat rental and often is greater than any flat rental the exhibitor can afford to pay.

I very recently showed a special whose guarantee equalled 98 per cent of the gross intake and had advertising (compulsory), transportation and overhead to pay besides.

If, however, Mr. Kent has in mind a percentage from the ground up, what percentage of the gross would he suggest as a fair working basis for the small exhibitor? I presume his plan would be to have one percentage arrangement for program features and another for specials.

Speaking for exhibitors in small towns whose experience probably does not differ materially from mine, I can only say that the cost (rental) of the entire program should not exceed 33 1/3 per cent of the gross, which I should divide as follows: 28 per cent for special features and 5 1/3 for shorts. By this I mean to say that the rentals or percentages for the entire year should not exceed 33 1/3 per cent and this should include all specials that may have been shown.

While nearly everyone in a position to know with whom I have discussed this subject agrees or professes to agree with me, the "Board of Strategy" at the home office have never seen fit to okay, but have rather kayed any such plan. At least, while some of the exchange managers have expressed a desire to "help me out" (as if I weren't "out" enough already) they do not seem to be clothed with the authority to lighten my burden to any extent.

I am very much in favor of the percentage proposition if the distributor can get the right slant on this method of buying or booking, but before I can voice my unqualified approval to the plan or before any other exhibitor should commit himself or herself to it, we must of necessity know just what percentage of the gross would be satisfactory to the distributor.

I can easily understand that a great deal of discussion of the intelligent kind must take place and many wrinkles will have to be ironed out before this plan of booking will go into general practice.

Suppose, for instance, I sign a contract with some company on the percentage plan for a year's product of that company, a checker becomes a necessity or the distributor reserves the right to audit my books at any time he sees fit. Does Mr. Kent propose that the distributor shall pay for his services? Or is it his idea that this expense should be borne 50-50? Does Mr. Kent propose that by virtue of their equity in the picture or pictures, a clause stipulating the amount of advertising matter (differing, of course, according to the merits of said opus) shall be inserted or does he propose that, in view of the fact the distributor is so vitally interested in building up the gross that said distributor will go 50-50 on the advertising?

I take this opportunity to respectfully invite Mr. Kent or the executive of any producer or distributor to not only declare themselves as being either in favor or opposed to percentage booking, and how!

If in favor, on what basis; if opposed, why? I would also appreciate the views of exhibitors especially in small towns.

In conclusion, this question presents many angles. Let's look at it from all of them.—PETER BYLSMA, Victory theatre, Napoleonville, La.

What's Wrong

Mc GEHEE, Ark.—To THE EDITOR: During the last four weeks we have given our patrons "Shepherd of the Hills," "Annie Laurie," "A High School Hero," "For the Love of Mike," "Hook and Ladder," "Smile, Brother, Smile," "Publicity Madness," "Foreign Devils," "Black Jack," "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," "The Wagon Show," "White Pants Willie," "Spoilers of the West," "The Tender Hour," "Quality Street," "Arizona Nights," "The 13th Hour," "Body and Soul" and many others, total of which average up 19 1/2 per cent. Now what in — is the matter with pictures? Or is it that the country has gone broke over night?—T. A. SHEA, Palace theatre, McGehee, Ark.

Much can be said both for and against the moving picture theatre. Some people, both young and old, seem to think that they have got to attend a picture show every day, often neglecting their own duties and all church work; but on the whole, as I see it, a good, clean show is usually helpful and educational to our boys and girls. The main thing is to put on the proper kind of pictures.

From once to twice per month the motion picture theatre proprietors put on good, wholesome pictures for children at a nominal price, sometimes free.

In our community vaudeville acts presented in connection with the movies every Saturday afternoon and evening are the drawing cards for the young boys and girls. We are not troubled with the pool room menace to youth, as the children gather for exercise under competent instruction at the Y. M. C. A. building. There are clubs and classes for boys and girls interested in various lines of activity. The movies, however, are a source of enjoyment, and often of inspiration and education, to the youth of our city.

Henry F. Mason, Fall River Kiwanis Club, Mass. (Writing only as an individual).

Your question is hard to answer. The children of this day (through the showing of films strongly picturing sex problems, and others of the Tom Mix style where shooting is the main feature) have become educated where if neither of these problems exists there is nothing to the show.

CHATHAM, ONT., March 20.—Merchants of Chatham have laid a complaint with the police department because Manager A. P. Drohan of the Griffin theatre is getting too much business. would play to vacant houses in most of the cities that I have visited.

Some years ago in the city of Washington they were showing a picture, "Where Are My Children," while I was there, and no child was allowed to see it under the age of twelve years. I was amazed to find when I went to see it that more than half of the audience was girls between the ages of 12 and 15 years.

Had I my way in the moving picture shows there would be no pictures shown to young children (whether accompanied by parents or not) that were not fit for them to see, and I think the sooner that a law is passed stopping the children from seeing this kind of pictures the better our educational institutions will function.

S. J. Reynolds, (Chairman Underprivileged Child Committee), Plymouth Kiwanis Club, Pa.

The motion picture theatre still has a great duty to fill as an influence for the youth, by showing more educational pictures and less of the suggestive pictures, both as to moral acts or the showing of acts of crime. If this class of picture must be shown, the punishment given to those committing the crime should be shown very clearly so as to impress the youth as to the price to be paid if this kind of a life is followed.

Copyright, 1928

Incorporated in this original exhibitors report department of Exhibitors Herald, which was established October 14, 1916, is the Moving Picture World department, "Straight from the Shoulder Reports."

Columbia

COLLEGE HERO: Robert Agnew—30%. February 19. Good little picture with a football game in it and all was well received. Six reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

SALLY IN OUR ALLEY: Shirley Mason—81%. January 22-23. Everyone seemed pleased with this picture.—C. P. Washman, Roxy theatre, Skellytown, Tex.—General patronage.

THE BLOOD SHIP: Hobart Bosworth—A box office record breaker. Drew the biggest crowd in years. Any exhibitor should be able to clean up with it. Seven reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

F B O

HER FATHER SAID NO: Mary Brian—80%. February 25. Very good comedy. Little Frankie Darro walked away with the show. Seven reels.—S. S. Seibert, Salina theatre, Salina, Okla.—Small town patronage.

HER FATHER SAID NO: Special cast—The best comedy we have played this year. Patrons enjoyed this very much.—W. L. Crouse, Ideal theatre, Bloomer, Wis.—Small town patronage.

HER FATHER SAID NO: Special cast—Good.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

LEIONNAIRES IN PARIS: Cooke-Guard—85%. February 24-25. Average comedy by these two clowns.

Nothing unusual, nothing big. Actual shots from the Legion convention in Paris are in the film and help, of course. We piled up a good gross because John Aason (tallest man in the world, and former resident of this town) was in the cast. Six reels.—O. A. Fosse, Community theatre, Ridgeway, Ia.—Small town patronage.

THE BOY RIDER: Buzz Barton—85%. February 27. Buzz sure made a hit with the kids for his first appearance. He is good and if properly advertised will draw. Six reels.—S. S. Seibert, Salina theatre, Salina, Okla.—Small town patronage.

JUDGMENT OF THE HILLS: Special cast—24%. February 27. This picture is good; not a big special but is so human. Meases and whooping-cough kept the people away, hence the low percentage. That Darro boy is far ahead of any juvenile star I ever saw in my thirteen years as an exhibitor, and F B O will sell all or part that makes them good.—Tommy Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

AFLAME IN THE SKY: Special cast—40%. Good little picture. Western and aeroplane story combined. Pleased all who saw it. Six reels.—E. D. Luna, Cozy theatre, Wagoner, Okla.—Small town patronage.

THE WIZZARD OF THE SADDLE: Buzz Barton—8%. February 22. Nice little Western. Plenty of action for small towns. Five reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

THE OUTLAW DOG: Ranger—15%. February 29. Fine picture for small towns and should please the folks that look for entertainment, all well received. Five reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

MOON OF ISRAEL: Special cast—66%. February 10-11. Can't go wrong on this one. It will stand all the advertising you care to give it. Some of our patrons came back the second night. Seven reels.—K. D. Francis, Family theatre, Metamora, Mich.—General patronage.

MOON OF ISRAEL: Special cast—This picture is an exceedingly entertaining production, very spectacular; should be boosted by all exhibitors who play it. We used extra music which had a good effect on the presentation of the picture. The picture grossed a big business and did more business on the second night which is unusual in my town. F B O are selling the picture on a fair rental basis.—H. H. Daniels, Reel theatre, Oswego, Kan.—General patronage.

MOON OF ISRAEL: Special cast—A good production of its kind, but has no box office value in a small town. F B O should take notice of that fact and make their prices accordingly.—C. W. Becker, Electric theatre, Burwell, Nebr.—General patronage.

IN A MOMENT OF TEMPTATION: Charlotte Stevens—67%. March 3. A good program picture. Pushed this one hard and had fair house. Those who saw it, liked it.—K. D. Francis, Family theatre, Metamora, Mich.—General patronage.

NOT FOR PUBLICATION: Ralph Ince—60%. March 10. A picture that holds the interest all through and played by a superb actor. Five reels.—K. D. Francis, Family theatre, Metamora, Mich.—General patronage.

THE MAGIC GARDEN: Margaret Morris—65%. February 16-17. F B O substituted this for Laddie on a benefit night, but were they disappointed? Absolutely not, for they said it was the sweetest and cleanest story they had ever seen, and if you don't agree to this you're nursing a grudge. Book it and watch your patrons come out wiping away the tears but with a smile that you rarely see.—A. C. Phillips, Strand theatre, Walhalla, S. C.—General patronage.

THE MAGIC GARDEN: Special cast—38%. Had many patrons to say this was better than "Laddie," which was run two weeks before "Magic Garden." I consider it for a slight raise in admission price and this I did without any comments regarding increase.—Tommy Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

DON MIKE: Fred Thomson—31%. February 24-25. This did very good at the box office considering that Lenten season is on. While it did not register as strong as some of his previous efforts, nevertheless this star is a box office bet and will satisfy most of the lovers of outdoor motion pictures. Six reels.—A. E. Andrews, Opera House, Emporium, Pa.—General patronage.

THE BANDIT'S SON: Bob Steele—51%. February 25. A good Western, played by a rising star. Good print. Five reels.—K. D. Francis, Family theatre, Metamora, Mich.—General patronage.

HOOK AND LADDER No. 9: Special cast—February 29. A fair program picture with some action and suspense. Was received favorably and good enough for a change. Six reels.—Wm. Wiske, Community theatre, Red Granite, Wis.—Small town patronage.

SHANGHAIED: Patsy Ruth Miller—March 3. A sea melodrama. Should please any crowd that likes strong melodrama. Seven reels.—Wm. Wiske, Community theatre, Red Granite, Wis.—Small town patronage.

RANGER OF THE NORTH: Ranger—A dandy. Pleased 100 per cent. Five reels.—S. S. Seibert, Salina theatre, Salina, Okla.—Small town patronage.

THE CHEROKEE KID: Tom Tyler—February 25. Good Western for Saturdays.—J. L. Seiter, Selma theatre, Selma, Cal.—Small town patronage.

THE GORILLA HUNT: Special cast—March 6. Good picture of African customs and people. Interesting picture of the forest and the habits of gorillas.

Editor's Note

Percentage ratings given by exhibitors in reports to this department are obtained in the following manner: Average daily gross of picture reported is divided by average daily gross of picture holding house record to determine relative box office value in terms of percentage.

EXAMPLE: $75 (average daily gross of picture reported) divided by $100 (average daily gross of picture holding house record) equals .75 (percentage rating given picture in report).

CHINATOWN CHARLIE

A First National Picture

Good photography.—George Lodge, Green Lantern theatre, Claymont, Del.—General patronage.

JAKE THE PLUMBER: Special cast—March 7. Too funny to be anything. Would have made a better two-reel comedy. No comments to its credit and the title does not draw. Six reels.—Wm. Wiske, Community theatre, Red Granite, Wis.—Small town patronage.

TOM AND HIS PALS: Special cast—Good.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

SILVER COMES THROUGH: Special cast—This was very good. Six reels.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

RACING ROMEO: Red Grange—February 20-21. This was our first chance on Red, and naturally we couldn't expect a turn-out in a small town where Grange is not so well known. However, if yours is a football town where Grange is known, although this is not a football picture, you can step on it. Plenty of comedy and an auto race that thrills your spine. Seven reels.—A. C. Phillips, Strand theatre, Walthalla, S. C.—General patronage.

GALLOPING THUNDER: Bob Custer—February 25. A good action picture for Saturday night. Better than his last two or three. Five reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

BREED OF COURAGE: Ranger—February 24-25. A good dog picture which the three dogs carry out in fine shape. Five reels.—John Cosner, Sun theatre, Sargent, Neb.—General patronage.

MOULDERS OF MEN: Frankie Darro—A fine picture but a poor title. The acting of little Frankie Darro combined with a plot full of suspense and heart interest makes this one ideal benefit show.—Geo. E. Fuller, The Playhouse, Fairhope, Ala.—General patronage.

SWIFT SHADOW: Ranger—March 2-3. An excellent dog picture. All the Ranger pictures are good. Five reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

OUT OF THE WEST: Tom Tyler—Just the average Tyler. Five reels.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

MOTHER: Special cast—Good.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

MOTHER: Belle Bennett—A good kind of drama for a change, held interest, and Belle Bennett and cast handled the presentation in good shape. Film, and photography good, story within reason because every old rounder knows its true to life, both in past with the seniors and in the present with juniors. As a matter of fact the "flask on the hip" struck home right here in this town of present, past and future history in the booze line. Seven reels.—Giacomina Bros., Crystal theatre, Tombstone, Ariz.—General patronage.

THAT DEVIL QUEMADO: Fred Thomson—February 25. Not much. Fred is nothing as a drawing card here anymore. Maybe we killed him by playing him too often. Film condition poor.—A. T. Kincannon, Oneida theatre, Blue River, Wis.—Small town patronage.

First National

THE VALLEY OF THE GIANTS: Milton Sills—40%. Good program picture. Pleased about sixty per cent. Failed at the box office for us. Sills usually draws them in. Seven reels.—E. D. Luna, Cozy theatre, Wagoner, Okla.—Small town patronage.

THE VALLEY OF THE GIANTS: Milton Sills—28%. A good one that gave general satisfaction to the few who came. Nine reels.—T. A. Shea, Palace theatre, McGehee, Ark.—Neighborhood patronage.

GUN GOSPEL: Ken Maynard—60%. Better than "Red Raiders." Had some good comments on this one. Star very popular here. Seven reels.—E. D. Luna, Cozy theatre, Wagoner, Okla.—Small town patronage.

GUN GOSPEL: Ken Maynard—February 28-29. Another good Ken picture. This bird starts his riding and stunts where the others leave off. So far as I am concerned, they can make all his pictures in six reels, as there is no sense in dragging them into seven reels. Seven reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE TEXAS STEER: Special cast—10%. An ordinary picture sold as a special that failed to attract any business. Pleased a few. Personally we liked it very well. Will is a bust with our people. Seven reels.—E. W. McClelland, Rex theatre, Gilman City, Mo.—Small town patronage.

THE TEXAS STEER: Will Rogers—This is the best that Will Rogers has ever done. It dragged a little in the first part but made up in comedy later. Eight reels.—Whitney Burr, Orpheum theatre, Lancaster, Wis.—General patronage.

THE TEXAS STEER: Will Rogers—This is a good picture. Plenty of comedy which will please, and did at my theatre. Small town exhibitors should grab at it. Played around Washington, D. C. Played it three days to good house. Eight reels.—A. Goffinet, Pastime theatre, Rittman, Ohio.—Small town patronage.

THE TEXAS STEER: Will Rogers—February 28-29. It is a knockout, boys. Played to a good business. The last night was the big one. Good comments from patrons. Book it and play it up big, it will make you smile.—L. H. Ireland, Pastime theatre, Logan, Ia.—General patronage.

THE TEXAS STEER: Will Rogers—March 1-2. Some liked it very much; others only fair. Good picture but not a special. Business only fair. Rogers doesn't draw.—J. L. Selter, Selma theatre, Selma, Cal.—Small town patronage.

THE STOLEN BRIDE: Billie Dove—30%. February 29. This is a splendid program picture. The star fine.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

THE STOLEN BRIDE: Billie Dove—February 22-23. No better picture made than this one. Billie Dove is one of the greatest stars, to my notion, on the screen. Did fair business. If Billie Dove don't bring them in there isn't any use trying any other stars. That's what my patrons tell me. Seven reels.

"In comparison with all other works on the market this book stands in a class by itself. The price is not a criterion of its worth."

Exhibitors Daily Review:

"The best book ever written on the subject of Projection."

Film Daily:

"Motion Picture Projection lives up to its slogan as 'The Standard Authority.'"

Morning Telegraph:

"Written with the amateur in mind as well as the professional. Those using motion pictures in churches and schools will be especially interested."

American Photography:

"This . . . is a veritable encyclopedia and the most complete and accurate work on the subject. Over 1,200 pages of solid matter . . . and has not once failed to give satisfaction."

The Billboard:

"Motion picture projection by Cameron was badly needed."

Society of Motion Picture Engineers, Progress Committee:

"A notable publication—Motion Picture Projection by Cameron is extremely complete, covering all phases of motion picture engineering."

Bureau of Economics, Dept. of Public Instruction, Washington, D. C.:

"By far the most complete manual we know of. The most complete work of its kind."

Harry Rubin, Chief Projectionist, Paramount, Rialto, Rivoli and Criterion Theatres, N. Y. C.:

"The most complete and comprehensive book on projection published. Should be in every projection room in the country."

Ben Norton, Chief of Projection, Capitol Theatre, N. Y. C.:

"Authentic and complete. The data on Movietone and Vitaphone is alone worth the price of the book. I recommend the book to all projectionists and managers."

Art Smith, Chief Projectionist, Roxy Theatre, N. Y. C.:

"Will increase the earning capacity of every projectionist who reads it."

Ben Turner, Chief Projectionist, D. W. Griffith:

"Your book unquestionably the best on the market. We use it."

Smithsonian Institute, Washington, D. C.:

"We greatly appreciate what you have done to make the subject better understood."

—Guy Loudermilk, Fairy theatre, Nappanee, Ind.—General patronage.

HOME MADE: Johnny Hines—25%. March 1. This is a good funny program picture.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

SWEET DADDIES: Special cast—95%. March 11. If any one likes comedy this should take well, for if they don't laugh at this I don't think there is any laugh in them. Everyone of our patrons enjoyed this picture. Seven reels.—David Straszer, Lyceum theatre, Manchester, Mo.—General patronage.

SWEET DADDIES: Special cast—Very good. Seven reels.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

THE OVERLAND STAGE: Ken Maynard—32%. February 22. Why buy a covered wagon or any so-called special Western when you can buy Maynards that are better. If there are any of you small town exhibitors who haven't played this star you're passing up some Westerns that will be a knockout at the box-office after your people get acquainted with them. We have played two now and have no trouble getting them in in the middle of the week, which is going some under any conditions. Seven reels.—Pioneer Pete, Pioneer theatre, Amasa, Mich.—Small town patronage.

MAN CRAZY: Dorothy Mackaill—40%. February 29. Good little picture. Plenty of good comments on this one. Not much title to draw them in. Six reels.—E. D. Luna, Cozy theatre, Wagoner, Okla.—Small town patronage.

HER WILD OAT: Colleen Moore—70%. March 5. One of the best pictures Colleen ever gave us. Pleased all who saw it. Good story and well produced. Seven reels.—E. D. Luna, Cozy theatre, Wagoner, Okla.—Small town patronage.

THE CRYSTAL CUP: Special cast—25%. March 2. This is a good program picture.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

BREAKFAST AT SUNRISE: Constance Talmadge—50%. March 5-6. As good as most, from this star. But she has lost her following for me. I cannot see her as a box office bet. Six reels.—A. E. Andrews, Opera House, Emporium, Pa.—General patronage.

SEÑOR DAREDEVIL: Ken Maynard—24%. February 8. This is the first Maynard we have played and boys and girls, I want to tell you it's a wow! We may be behind the times so this report will serve only as a confirmation for many exhibitors. To those who have not booked any of the Maynards I want to say that you're cheating your patrons out of a real treat. Photography excellent. Backgrounds beautiful and magnificent and on top of this the first real Western plot that we have seen in months and months. Seven reels.—Pioneer Pete, Pioneer theatre, Amasa, Mich.—Small town patronage.

THE FLYING ROMEO: Sidney Murray—A good clean comedy just as good as previous pictures by these stars. Seven reels.—Whitney Burr, Orpheum theatre, Lancaster, Wis.—General patronage.

LADIES NIGHT IN A TURKISH BATH: Mulhall-Mackaill—Good comedy drama. Wasn't necessary to have the hoochy kooch dance, but it will get by all right. Seven reels.—Whitney Burr, Orpheum theatre, Lancaster, Wis.—General patronage.

THE WAGON SHOW: Ken Maynard—March 1. Not as good as "Gun Gospel." A little draggy all along. Ken doesn't get the business like Gibson or Mix. Seven reels.—P. J. Durkin, Majestic theatre, Perry, Ill.—Small town patronage.

THE LOVE MART: Billie Dove—February 26-27. Good picture but think patrons would rather see her in modern stories. Business fair.—J. L. Seiter, Selma theatre, Selma, Cal.—Small town patronage.

THE NOOSE: Richard Barthelmess—The best work that Barthelmess has done, and the picture is first rate from every angle and will please all classes. I would say the title is mighty poor for first run houses and should be changed.—W. H. Brenner, Cozy theatre, Winchester, Ind.—General patronage.

THE NOOSE: Richard Barthelmess—March 3. This would have been a very much better audience picture if they had made the sad part at least a reel shorter. The women who love to cry enjoyed it, but it was too long drawn out for the men, with no comedy relief. I am not speaking from experience but I always supposed the death march started from the cells nearest to the gallows instead of passing a lot of cells containing a lot of prisoners. A good picture which I would class a great picture if it were not so draggy in the last half. Eight reels.—O. G. Blakeslee, Cozy theatre, Medford, Wis.—General patronage.

THE WHIP WOMAN: Special cast—Another reason why people are not going to the movies, "The Whip Woman!" Estelle Taylor does not know where she's at half the time. Overacts; the story is foolish. There is not one atom of entertainment in the whole picture and the general expression of some that walked out on it, when I asked what the trouble was, just simply said "Nothing to it, a lot of hooey," whatever that is. But that must be what it is for it is not entertainment, and I would pay it rather than have run it only I didn't see it the first night. All they have to do to take a permanent vacation and shutdown at Hollywood is to make a few in between like this, one and they will get a permanent vacation along with the rest of we small town showmen. That's that.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia theatre, Columbia City, Ind.—General patronage.

SAILOR'S WIVES: Special cast—February 8. Very good, but a few didn't catch on. Poor crowd, bad weather.—P. J. Durkin, Majestic theatre, Perry, Ill.—Small town patronage.

SAILOR'S WIVES: Astor-Hughes—A fair program picture and two nice stars. A good evening's entertainment. Seven reels.—Whitney Burr, Orpheum theatre, Lancaster, Wis.—General patronage.

Fox

SEVENTH HEAVEN: Gaynor-Farrell—28%. February 21-22. A wonderful picture. Zero weather kept our patrons away. However, we have never played a better picture. Good print. Don't fail to play it. Eleven reels.—K. D. Francis, Family theatre, Metamora, Mich.—General patronage.

PAID TO LOVE: Special cast—22%. February 29-March 1. Was oversold on this one. Picture was very ordinary and the star is a weak sister for me. Fox film got about ten dollars more for it than I was able to take in at the box office in two days. Seven reels.—A. E. Andrews, Opera House, Emporium, Pa.—General patronage.

SILK LEGS: Madge Bellamy—80%. March 9. Oh, boy, let me tell you, get sold on this one, and then sell it to your customers for what it's really worth. The title will draw and the picture will deliver all you promise. Bellamy is always good looking but in this she is beautiful, such eyes on la la, give us some more like it and we'll all be happy. Six reels.—Tommy Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

THE WIZARD: Edmund Lowe—18%. March 2. A picture of "Go and Get It" type but quite a few say it is better and I agree. It is different from what we have been showing, and if you boost it it should make you money. Measles killed my percentage and Lowe is good as usual and entire cast one-hundred per cent. Seven reels.—Tommy Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

OUTLAWS OF RED RIVER: Tom Mix—45%. Considered by patrons to be up to Mix standard, but nothing unusual. Six reels.—Tommy Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

PUBLICITY MADNESS: Lois Moran—31%. February 29. Some said good, some bad. Nothing new, old stuff. Six reels.—L. W. Bagwell, Jr., Crystal theatre, Oakman, Ala.—General patronage.

BLOOD WILL TELL: Buck Jones—50%. Jones and Eagle register strong in this one. Though business is only fifty per cent of usual. Five reels.—T. A. Shea, Palace theatre, McGehee, Ark.—Neighborhood patronage.

THE GAY RETREAT: Special cast—28%. February 23. Good comedy. Just step in the door when they come out. They sure will compliment on it, for they are still laughing. Six reels.—L. W. Bagwell, Jr., Crystal theatre, Oakman, Ala.—General patronage.

GOOD AS GOLD: Buck Jones—54%. March 10. Not the best Jones but a very satisfactory Western. I believe the late product is better than last year's. The idea of a man falling from a high cliff and getting up and shaking himself, then walking away, is a little hard for some to understand. We want them more real. Five reels.—Tommy Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

LADIES MUST DRESS: Virginia Valli—22%. First-class program picture; as usual Valli fine. Too much charitable competition ruined business for me, otherwise my percentage would read different.—Tommy Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

ARIZONA WILD CAT: Tom Mix—50%. When they fail to come and see Mix, then business is poor, and that's what happened with this one. Picture O. K.; business rotten. Five reels.—T. A. Shea, Palace theatre, McGehee, Ark.—Neighborhood patronage.

HIGH SCHOOL HERO: Special cast—Hey, here's a knockout. Tied up with high school girls' society. They put on five acts of vaudeville that would make Roxy weep with jealousy. The cleanest, best doggoned comedy ever. Get behind this one. Get them out. It's nobody's fault but your own if you play to empty seats. 10 and 25 cents.—Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

THE SECRET STUDIO: Olive Borden—Not such a bad picture but very much drawing power. Six reels.—Colonial theatre, Moulton, Ia.—Small town patronage.

PAJAMAS: Olive Borden—Very good entertainment for adults. Some scenes entirely too suggestive for youngsters. Censors must have been asleep when this one was shown them. Six reels.—T. A. Shea, Palace theatre, McGehee, Ark.—Neighborhood patronage.

THE LAST TRAIL: Special cast—A good Zane Grey.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

HILLS OF PERIL: Buck Jones—Good Western. The horse is improving. Five reels.—Colonial theatre, Moulton, Ia.—Small town patronage.

THE HEART OF SALOME: Alma Rubens—March 1. Didn't draw so well, but it brought out a few who seldom come and I think it pleased. Six reels.—E. C. Bays, Glove theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

THE WAR HORSE: Special cast—Good.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

SUMMER BACHELORS: Madge Bellamy—February 26-27. A fair program picture filled with hooch, necking, wild come-ons and suggestiveness. Probably duck soup for the morons in the cities, but not so good out in the alfalfa districts. Six reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE RETURN OF PETER GRIMM: Alec B. Francis—March 1-2. One of the finest pictures I have shown for a long time, and I am not in the habit of picking any poor ones. From reports in the Herald I knew it was very good, but regardless of that information I could not get in the people who ought to see it, so I turned it over to the ladies of the Methodist Church and they packed the house. The preacher, among many others, told me it was the finest picture they had ever seen. Eight reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

CRADLE SNATCHERS: Special cast—This is a knockout of a comedy. It was sure hot, and some of the prudes thought it was wicked, but they will come and see it. The players are all great in their parts. Six reels.—E. W. McClelland, Rex theatre, Gilman City, Mo.—Small town patronage.

THREE BAD MEN: Special cast—They don't make Westerns any better than this. Eight reels.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

BERTHA, THE SEWING MACHINE GIRL: Madge Bellamy—Madge is certainly beautiful. Fashion show shots great, will please the ladies and the men will fall for it. J. Farrell MacDonald good, as usual. Basketball tournament hit business. 10 and 25 cents. Six reels.—Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

Gotham

THE CHEER LEADER: Special cast—75%. Very good little college story. Weather was very bad the second night therefore did not make any money.—W. U. Shelnut, City theatre, Lafayette, Ala.—General patronage.

It's as good as a trip through Chinatown—and a lot funnier

IT'S BIG!

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

THE LAW OF THE RANGE: Tim McCoy—60%. March 2-3. A nice clean picture with McCoy in a better role than some of his others. The cattle stampede not so good but the grass fire was a dandy. Played this with Our Gang comedy "Rainy Days" and Metro news which made a program which pleased them all. Six reels.—John Cosner, Sun theatre, Sargent, Neb.—General patronage.

WEST POINT: William Haines—80%. February 23. I am thinking they took quite a few liberties in this picture but at that it has many good points and seems to be entertaining.—C. B. Burkhardt, Pastime theatre, Homer, Ill.—Small town patronage.

WEST POINT: William Haines—60%. February 22. Good picture of the smart aleck type. West Point is a good place to tame 'em as you will see. Joan Crawford helps the picture and so do the settings. Nine reels.—O. A. Fosse, Community theatre, Ridgeway, Ia.—Small town patronage.

WEST POINT: William Haines—What a picture and who could put it over but Bill Haines? Don't miss this one. Seven reels.—Whitney Burr, Orpheum theatre, Lancaster, Wis.—General patronage.

IN OLD KENTUCKY: James Murray—55%. February 18. Best of the race horse pictures. James Murray gives a surprise performance as wayward son. Seven reels.—O. A. Fosse, Community theatre, Ridgeway, Ia.—Small town patronage.

IN OLD KENTUCKY: Special cast—December 26. Very good, of its kind. Not as good as the old Stahl version released a few years ago, but not the same story. Six reels.—P. J. Durkin, Majestic theatre, Perry, Ill.—Small town patronage.

MAN, WOMAN AND SIN: John Gilbert—23%. March 3. We were a little afraid of this one for the youngsters, and so encouraged them not, by fixing one price and suggesting that it would interest adults only. If this picture has not been trimmed it has a lot less zip in it than very many ordinary pictures. The press sheets lead you to believe that it is a terribly iniquitous subject and if you are looking for something sordid you're due for a disappointment. Just a fair picture. Photography excellent. Seven reels.—Pioneer Pete, Pioneer theatre, Amasa, Mich.—Small town patronage.

MAN, WOMAN AND SIN: John Gilbert—25%. January 23. This picture pleased about 50 per cent of the people that we got out to see it and that wasn't very many. Seven reels.—Harold Seaton, LeComte theatre, Sevierville, Tenn.—General patronage.

MAN, WOMAN AND SIN: John Gilbert—February 29-March 1. What I call poor. Had several walk outs on this one. John Gilbert is a very good star but had a rotten picture to work on here. I would much rather pay for one like this one and not play it than to fool my people with it. Seven reels.—Guy Loudermilk, Fairy theatre, Nappanee, Ind.—General patronage.

BABY MINE: Dane-Arthur—70%. March 9-10. Just as clean as the average comedy and a lot less liable to criticism than "Rookies." It is really funny, too, some scenes in its simply caused uproar. Do not be afraid to advertise it. Six reels.—Colonial theatre, Moulton, Ia.—Small town patronage.

BABY MINE: Special cast—68%. February 26-27. Very funny, pretty rich. Rough in spots, but Karl Dane and Geo. K. Arthur's innocence put it over O. K. Six reels.—Claud Thorp, Gem theatre, Ryan, Okla.—General patronage.

BABY MINE: Dane-Arthur—How did this picture ever pass the Board of Review? Worst we have had for a long time. Took it off the second night. Just plain, unadvertised smut. Screen it before showing. Six reels.—Whitney Burr, Orpheum theatre, Lancaster, Wis.—General patronage.

WICKEDNESS PREFERRED: Cody-Pringle—80%. February 22. My first one of this team. The wickedness is all in the title, nothing in the picture but what is clean. My people seem to like this one judging from the laughs.—C. B. Burkhardt, Pastime theatre, Homer, Ill.—Small town patronage.

LOVE: Gilbert-Garbo—72%. February 6-7. This picture is above the average and should please most of the people that you could get out to see it. We did not do very well on this one, due to a basketball game one night and bad weather the other, and that is enough to knock any box office flat. Eight reels.—Harold Seaton, LeComte theatre, Sevierville, Tenn.—General patronage.

BEN HUR: Special cast—100%. January 16-17-18. "This picture is the biggest and best picture that has ever played in this town, as my patrons said. And believe me it has the drawing power, too. It will bring people out to your theatre that have never been there before. It will even bring out those that are too tight to spend a penny. However, the rental is a little high on this picture, but we made a little money at that and we have nothing to kick about. Twelve reels.—Harold Seaton, LeComte theatre, Sevierville, Tenn.—General patronage.

LONDON AFTER MIDNIGHT: Lon Chaney—57%. Lon Chaney is a sure bet for our theatre and he always draws a good crowd. And most everyone that does come out to see him leaves with a smile, saying, "Chaney is good," and that they "enjoyed his picture very much." However, this picture is not above his average. We are expecting big things from Chaney in the near future. Seven reels.—Harold Seaton, LeComte theatre, Sevierville, Tenn.—General patronage.

LONDON AFTER MIDNIGHT: Lon Chaney—February 23-29. Very good mystery melodrama. Equals "The Bat." Will draw where Chaney is liked.—J. L. Seiter, Selma theatre, Selma, Cal.—Small town patronage.

THE GARDEN OF ALLAH: Alice Terry—30%. Well acted, well directed. Good story, but not the kind folks who keep us in business care for. Nine reels.—T. A. Shea, Palace theatre, McGhee, Ark.—Neighborhood patronage.

THE GARDEN OF ALLAH: Alice Terry—March 7-8. A very poor picture for this town. Not the kind my people want. One customer said when he went out, "When you have another one like this, let me know and I'll stay in the east end of town," and several other kicks along the same line. The ending is terrible, but I guess that comes before anything else with them. Nine reels.—Guy Loudermilk, Fairy theatre, Nappanee, Ind.—General patronage.

THE BUGLE CALL: Jackie Coogan—65%. February 25-26. Jackie Coogan seems to draw both old and young in this community. Everyone went out smiling and that's what I want to see. The end is very slow and draggy. Six reels.—Arnold Krueger, Pastime theatre, Stratford, S. D.—General patronage.

SPRING FEVER: William Haines—30%. February 23-29. Personally I liked this and had many good comments, but if not a golf town, they are hard to get in. If you can get them in they will enjoy it. Seven reels.—John Cosner, Sun theatre, Sargent, Neb.—General patronage.

THE ROAD TO ROMANCE: Ramon Novarro—50%. March 3-4. This picture did not draw them in, but not on account of the star—the title! All that saw it enjoyed it, but it is far from a special. Seven reels.—Arnold Krueger, Pastime theatre, Stratford, S. D.—General patronage.

THE ROAD TO ROMANCE: Ramon Novarro—35%. February 9-10. We see where this picture has been knocked a little, but it went over big here. Maybe the exhibitor was knocking Metro, and we can't blame him for that. This was one of three good ones out of the last ten.—A. C. Phillips, Strand theatre, Wallhalla, S. C.—General patronage.

ADAM AND EVIL: Special cast—36%. Above the average program picture. They will go out with a smile after seeing this one. Seven reels.—T. A. Shea, Palace theatre, McGhee, Ark.—Neighborhood patronage.

ROOKIES: Special cast—42%. February 13. We had "The Garden of Allah" pulled, and substituted this one, which we consider a better type for small towns. Needless to say it went over with a bang with a number of fans who had seen it three or four times. Photography good. Seven reels.—Pioneer Peter, Pioneer theatre, Amasa, Mich.—Small town patronage.

ROOKIES: Special cast—Very good, comedy drama. Seven reels.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Brees, Ill.—General patronage.

FAUST: Emil Jannings—20%. March 4. Good entertainment for the educated people, but no good for the roughnecks, as our clientele is most of the last class. It went over their heads, and when they don't understand it, it sure is not going to satisfy. And this one didn't satisfy or draw at all. Nine reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

ROSE MARIE: Joan Crawford—Here is a good picture. Romance, action and comedy to please all. Eight reels.—Whitney Burr, Orpheum theatre, Lancaster, Wis.—General patronage.

ROSE MARIE: Joan Crawford—It is a very good program and wonderfully screened in the outdoor shots. It sustains interest and is above the average.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia theatre, Columbia City, Ind.—General patronage.

Paramount

THE OPEN RANGE: Betty Bronson—50%. March 3. A good picture. Story fine and well directed. Gave satisfaction as a program picture.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

OPEN RANGE: Lane Chandler—February 13. Good Western for Saturdays.—J. L. Seiter, Selma theatre, Selma, Cal.—Small town patronage.

GENTLEMEN PREFER BLONDES: Special cast—54%. February 23-29. We were disappointed in this picture. We have seen a lot of pictures we like better than this and at a much lower price. We bought the picture at a high price and had to raise admission, and fell down at the box office. A lot of our patrons told us they did not like this, although it had been so highly advertised all over the country. Alice White and Ford Sterling are the best in this picture. Seven reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenviver, Utah.—General patronage.

SHANGHAI BOUND: Richard Dix—85%. February 29. Pretty fair Dix picture, rather slow at first part. The action all in the last two reels. Six reels.—C. B. Burkhardt, Pastime theatre, Homer, Ill.—Small town patronage.

JESSE JAMES: Fred Thomson—January 30-31. After running this picture to excellent box office returns, we sat down and thought over the film itself and the comments of our patrons. The result is an ever increasing wonder as to why it was ever made the way it was, and why Paramount and Fred Thomson wasted one of the most valuable pieces of screen property running around today. There have been several "cheap John" Jesse James pictures, never before has a representative company turned its hand to the story. The picture they made is a farce. A really great box office draw, with a splendid star, and a picture that is a joke from start to finish. A picture that hurts the exhibitor that runs it on account of the ridiculous handling of story and action. Jesse James was no romantic mis-treated gentleman. There was no reason to try and show this so-called American Robin Hood, to quote the press sheet. If they had made a straight Fred Thomson Western, called it anything they wanted to, and even mentioned that certain incidents were suggested by the career of Jesse James, the thing would have been O. K. but the ways of Hollywood are strange, and wonderful at times. This picture is hardly worth this amount of mention, but the situation as a whole rather interested me, hence this voluminous report. It remains one of those mysteries of the film business.—Henry Reeve, Mission theatre, Menard, Tex.—Small town patronage.

ADVENTURE MAD: Special cast—Another reason and this time for the higher quality of American films in comparison to the foreign product. It's generally admitted that this picture is too sour for words so when a salesman mumbles this title, steer clear!—R. J. Speck, Kenwood theatre, Chicago, Ill.—General patronage.

THE POPULAR SIN: Florence Vidor—46%. January 30. A fair program picture, but not up to Florence Vidor's other pictures. Seven reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

SPORTING GOODS: Richard Dix—February 9-10. A satisfactory two-day picture.—D. E. Fulton, Lyric theatre, Harrison, Ark.—Small town patronage.

ONE WOMAN TO ANOTHER: Florence Vidor—February 5-6. A dandy picture; just fine for Sunday. Clean and has a good moral. Print good. Photography good. Six reels.—P. G. Held, Strand theatre, Griswold, Ia.—General patronage.

FIGURES DON'T LIE: Esther Ralston—February 1. A very nice little program picture. Should please in any house. Six reels.—Leslie Hables, Reel Joy theatre, King City, Calif.—Small town patronage.

HULA: Clara Bow—February 3-4. Good, but not great. Some said it was almost raw in places. Fair business. Seven reels.—Geo. E. Hall, Rialto theatre, Franklin, Neb.—General patronage.

HULA: Clara Bow—Take it from us in all sincerity, this girl, Clara Bow, grows stronger each time she comes to town, with our patrons. Therefore, she is delivering the goods and that is what pleases us "hick town" exhibitors. You know it takes the dough to keep the little backwoods towns going just the same as the wise boys of the cities, so with a few more Colleen Moores and Clara Bows maybe we could keep the wolf away from our doors. But Colleen Moores and Clara Bows are few and far apart. When the producers get to doing business in a business-like way and cut their costs and then stop the wild orgy of theatre building and a lot of other things no other business people would follow, then and not 'til then will the movie game come into its own again. Six reels.—Giacoma Bros., Crystal theatre, Tombstone, Ariz.—General patronage.

Pathe-P D C

TWO GUN OF THE TUMBLEWEEDS: Leo Maloney—48%. March 3. This is a humdinger. Good story and direction, the hero is not too heroic and doesn't do so much impossible stuff; of course you won't get the cod-fish aristocracy in to see it, but a good Saturday offering. Six reels.—Tommy Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

GETTING GERTIE'S GARTER: Marie Prevost—31%. March 2-3. This feature was very well liked by those who came. Although both stars (Prevost-Ray) are not strong at the box office and quite a number stayed away on that account. Personally I like Ray, but others don't, so there you are. Six reels.—A. E. Andrews, Opera House, Emporium, Pa.—General patronage.

THE FORBIDDEN WOMAN: Jetta Goudal—65%. December 21-22. The best little program picture I have ever run. Holds one spellbound.—Claud Thorp, Gem theatre, Ryan, Okla.—General patronage.

THE GIRL FROM CHICAGO: Special cast—A fair picture. The suspense of who's who in the film is good. Some sidelights of Chicago's badlands and the work of Nagel and Myrna Loy saved it from mediocrity and that's about all.—A. E. Hancock, ronaage.

GOLD FROM WEEPAH: William Cody—March 3. Good little Western for Saturday night. Five reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE REJUVENATION OF AUNT MARY: May Robson—February 22-23. A very entertaining comedy drama. Six reels.—R. Pfeiffer, Princess theatre, Chilton, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE HEART THIEF: Joseph Schildkraut—February 15. Just an ordinary program picture. Will amuse for one evening. Six reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—General patronage.

FIGHTING LOVE: Jetta Goudal—Rotten. Too much foreign stuff, with some poor acting. Seven reels.—Hollis H. Chase, Diamond theatre, Lake Odessa, Mich.—General patronage.

Rayart

GUN HAND GARRISON: Tex Maynard—Good Western. Five reels.—Colonial theatre, Moulton, Ia.—General patronage.

Tiffany

NIGHT LIFE: Special cast—With Alice Day and Johnny Harron, just another pleasing picture from Tiffany-Stahl. We operate a second run house on a week stand policy, running a number of double programs because our competitors do. This show was very well accepted and we highly recommend it as a pleasing performance. Business very good. Played week of February 18.—Ritz theatre, St. Louis, Mo.—Small town patronage.

THE GIRL FROM GAY PAREE: Special cast—I have played all Tiffany pictures released to date and while I personally can't say very much for this one, the people seemed to like it very well, and after all, they are the ones to be pleased. A well selectd cast, some beautiful settings and photography put it over in nice shape in my house.—Criterion theatre, St. Louis, Mo.—General patronage.

WOMEN'S WARES: Special cast—Played this one two days and must say it was a very pleasing performance. Evelyn Brent and Bert Lytell can always be depended upon to make the rest of a cast work and you can be assured of a splendid picture with these two stars as headliners. Business not so good on this one the first day because of rainy weather, but we had a very big business the second day. Tiffany knows how to make pictures. Brothers, buy this one and get behind it. Prints and service out of St. Louis office splendid.—Criterion theatre, St. Louis, Mo.—General patronage.

ONCE AND FOREVER: Special cast—This is of the regular Tiffany standard. Patsy Ruth Miller gives a very pleasing performance in a story well told. Patsy is a good favorite in my house and as a result business very, very good. Brother exhibitors, grab this one.—Criterion theatre, St. Louis, Mo.—General patronage.

WILD GEESE: Special cast—We have just bought this picture after screening it, to be used second run in St. Louis. What a sweet one this is. Brother exhibitors, don't let this one get away.—Ritz theatre, St. Louis, Mo.—General patronage.

SNOWBOUND: Special cast—Played week of March 3 as a part of a double program. A very good feature length comedy that went over in nice style with our audience. Make no mistake about it, Tiffany-Stahl is the fastest coming organization in the business and we look for a spectacular announcement on their coming season's announcement.—Ritz theatre, St. Louis, Mo.—General patronage.

United Artists

DON Q: Douglas Fairbanks—February 27-28. Pleased the majority, but most too long for good entertainment. Not much business. Eleven reels.—E. C. Bays, Globe theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

SORREL AND SON: H. B. Warner—60%. February 26-27. This is a wonderful picture. Story and direction fine. The star wonderful, cast splendid. Gave 100 per cent satisfaction. Complimented by press and pulpit (what more could you ask). Great entertainment.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

COLLEGE: Buster Keaton—40%. February 21. This is funny. I call it Buster's best. Played as a program picture.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

THE BLACK PIRATE: Douglas Fairbanks—90%. We used this on Friday and Saturday and went over fine, to a pleased audience. Some people said gruesome, but how would Doug make his pictures consistent if he didn't show how these pirates really do. Of course, the white horse waiting for him on the deserted shore was inconsistent. This picture is worth running if you get a decent rental. Ten reels.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

THE CIRCUS: Charlie Chaplin—February 22-25. We can highly recommend this latest Chaplin picture. It is clean, has a good cast, direction good, continuity perfect. It gets the laughs. Bad weather and basketball tournament kept business down, but yet it was away above normal. A good many regulars stayed away so it will pay to advertise it at a distance. Revival meeting also got in its work. Seven reels.—Chancellor Bros., Ritz theatre, Arcanum, O.—Neighborhood patronage.

MY BEST GIRL: Mary Pickford—February 26-27. Mary dear, it's too bad you have to grow old. I mean some day—you're a mere child as yet. "My Best Girl" is the kind of picture that an exhibitor with an ounce of brains likes to show his patrons. I'm sorry to say that it failed to do any big business for me. But father, mother and the children certainly enjoyed themselves. Let's have about three a year just as good. Beware of costume stuff. Seven reels.—P. G. Vaughan, Sun theatre, Kansas City, Mo.—Neighborhood patronage.

WILD JUSTICE: Peter the Great—February 18-19. Just a fair dog picture. Not so good. Have seen some better.—D. J. Donovan, Donovan theatre, Hecla, S. D.—General patronage.

THE LOVES OF SUNYA: Gloria Swanson—A fine picture, full of interest. Good acting by Miss Swanson, as usual. Play this. It won't disappoint Gloria's fans.—E. C. Bays, Globe theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

THE MARK OF ZORRO: Douglas Fairbanks—This one pulled biggest Friday-Saturday business we have ever had on a repeat showing. These "Zorro" stories are sure fire box office. Doug never fails to draw a crowd and please them. This is old but will bring them in on Saturday and there is nothing in it to show age. Eight reels.—E. J. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

TUMBLEWEEDS: William S. Hart—February 4-5. A good picture but not Hart's best. Six reels.—D. J. Donovan, Donovan theatre, Hecla, S. D.—General patronage.

Now's the time to grab it!

JOHNNY HILLES IN CHINATOWN CHARLIE

A First National Picture

Universal

BACK TO GOD'S COUNTRY: Renee Adoree—55%. February 28. Good picture, but ends too sudden, leaves one guessing. Wonderful scenery. Six reels.—Claud Thorp, Gem theatre, Ryan, Okla.—General patronage.

BACK TO GOD'S COUNTRY: Renee Adoree—40%. Very good program picture. But not a special; failed to draw for me. Six reels.—E. D. Luna, Cozy theatre, Wagoner, Okla.—Small town patronage.

BACK TO GOD'S COUNTRY: Renee Adoree—January 18. A very good class of an outdoor production, but on account of bad weather did not draw. At any rate it was not the fault of the picture. Renee Adoree's work was very good. Seven reels.—M. Vallicha, The Capitol theatre, Karachi, India.—General patronage.

SILK STOCKINGS: Laura La Plante—5%. February 21. Just fair entertainment; should do well for you boys where they like Laura. She does not excite my people at all. Seven reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

THE LONE EAGLE: Special cast—30%. March 2-3. Very good entertainment of the air. It's different, and should please everyone except in German settlements. As it is the show of air forces of the World's War, and the Germans get pretty well licked, which would not leave a very good taste for the German settlement. Six reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

THE RAWHIDE KID: Hoot Gibson—60%. Not up to the Hoot standard. Very weak story and not much action. Snap out of it, Hoot, and give us some pep. Six reels.—E. D. Luna, Cozy theatre, Wagoner, Okla.—Small town patronage.

THE RAWHIDE KID: Hoot Gibson—50%. March 3. A good Saturday night picture. Not the best Hoot has made, but pleased my patrons very well. Six reels.—A. K. Haynes, Community theatre, Razor, Tex.—General patronage.

THE IRRESISTIBLE LOVER: Special cast—25%. February 28. This is a very good program picture. Gave satisfaction.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

THE RUNAWAY EXPRESS: Jack Daugherty—34%. March 4. A good railroad thriller. Some of the flood scenes are plainly miniature and it looks crude. Six Reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

FINDERS KEEPERS: Laura LaPlante—February 22. A much better picture than the title would imply. A comedy drama that pleased a small crowd. Played this one against great odds, the first day of the Lenten season (Ash Wednesday) and one of the worst snowstorms of the year. Film new but a bit foggy in spots. Play it up big, they will like it. Six reels.—Wm. Wiske, Community theatre, Red Granite, Wis.—Small town patronage.

A HERO ON HORSEBECK: Hoot Gibson—March 6-7. A fair Hoot picture, but not his best. Too much inside action. Better give him stories where he spends all his time outdoors. Six reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THAT'S MY DADDY: Reginald Denny—January 31. Oh boy! Wow, how they went for this one;

Even funnier than "The Brown Derby"

TOMBSTONE, ARIZ., March 9, 1928.

DEAR HERALD-WORLD:

We never would have felt just right about it had we gone through Arizona and not called on Giacoma Brothers, that's why we are here. To pass up Tombstone is to pass up the most important spot in the Southwest so far as wild and woolly history goes. Tombstone at one time had a population of 25,000 gun toters and was noted as the wildest town in the United States. When Giacoma Brothers opened the Crystal theatre civilization marched in and took possession of the town and just spoiled everything, and today the only way they can scrape up a thousand people is to play "SEVENTH HEAVEN."

In the old days the six-shooter started and ended everything. The nights were given over to target practice and the days were occupied in planting the crop of the night before. Boot Hill cemetery has 165 graves, all occupied by citizens who "died with their boots on," but now Tombstone is so quiet of nights that one can hear Tony Giacoma snore all over town. That's what civilization did for Tombstone.

Uncle Leazer Biggs says, "Some day civilization will hit Chicago and when she does there are a lotta fellers that will have to go to work," and this is proven by Tombstone's experience.

We are sending the HERALD-WORLD a picture of the famous "Bird Cage theatre" where Eddie Foy and Lottie Crabtree and many other famous characters used to play. This theatre had a capacity of about 200, not counting the room occupied by the bar, and $2 was the minimum for any seat in the house and it is said that at no performance was there a seat vacant and standing room was the rule.

Tony Giacoma (Jackomy) was confined to his room on account of an attack of the flu and he turned us over to Mr. A. H. Gardner, who took us in charge and showed us many of the famous places in and around this noted town. Mr. Gardner is an oldtime showman, having operated a string of theatres throughout the Southern states with headquarters at Natches. Mr. Gardner is now the superintendent and general manager of a water company that supplies Tombstone and other districts.

We are indebted to Mr. Gardner for many courtesies shown us and for recounting many of the early incidents connected with Tombstone's history. Mr. Gardner is well known to many of the oldtime Thespians, having played the most of them in his string of theatres and is therefore qualified to speak with authority on all matters theatrical. He has promised to send us a picture of the Schefflin Opera House at Tombstone and we hope he does, as it is another of the important things that helped to make Tombstone famous in her early history. In the days when this theatre was built it was considered the best theatre in the West, but now it would hardly take rank as a third-class house. The builder of this theatre was the first white man to settle in or near Tombstone, and his monument (a picture of which we are sending to the HERALD-WORLD) is located about three miles west of the town on the highway to Tucson, and marks the resting place of one of the characters who was foremost in the early history of Tombstone and the spot where Scheffelin made his first camp when he settled in that territory.

The Crystal theatre, operated by Giacoma Brothers, is a surprise to everybody who visits the town. It is equipped with all modern conveniences and has a capacity of 600, which is ample for the town. Above the theatre is a ballroom that has no equal in the Southwest and people from Phoenix, Bisby, Tucson and other towns come here many times a year to attend the dances put on by the Giacoma Brothers.

"The Kid" and "Johnnie Behind the Deuce" and many others of the gunmen made history fast for Tombstone in the early days, but they all "went west" by the short cut and today Tombstone is just like any other town of like dimensions, she is quiet, orderly and fairly well up to date, thanks to the refining influence of respectable people.

WILCOX, ARIZONA, March 10.

We met L. F. Long of the Mystic theatre at this place and thereby hangs a funny tale, the tale being that we took Long and J. A. Jacobson of the Safford theatre at Safford into a drug store to buy them a drink and after we had refreshed ourselves we lit our old hod and started to fumigate the place when Long walked over to the pipe case and selected a high grade pipe and stuck it in our pocket and said, "Now I don't want to seem personal, or anything like that, but that ——— old pipe of yours don't go in this town and as soon as you are three miles out I want you to ditch that soft coal burner and smoke a gentle-pleased hundred per cent. Took in as much on this at 10-30 cents as I did on "Ben Hur" at 25-50 cents, and pleased more people. They are talking about Denny and little La Verne yet. I play "On Your Toes" this week, and I'm most certain of a crowd. Denny beats Lloyd a mile for me.—P. J. Durkin, Majestic theatre, Perry, Ill.—Small town patronage.

A HERO FOR A NIGHT: Glenn Tryon—Another good picture for Tryon. If he sticks to his peanuts, automobile trick devices and genial personality, he will push Lloyd for king of comedy honors.—Geo. E. Fuller, The Playhouse, Fairhope, Ala.—General patronage.

PAINTED PONIES-GALLOPING FURY: Hoot Gibson—Hoot is always good. "Ponies" is a little better than "Fury." "Painted Ponies" holds my house record for 1927.—P. J. Durkin, Majestic theatre, Perry, Ill.—Small town patronage.

PAINTED PONIES: Hoot Gibson—March 10. Played this on matinee and kids thought it great. So did the adults. Six reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—Small town patronage.

PAINTED PONIES: Hoot Gibson—The basket ball tournament had nothing on Hoot. I advertised heavy and stunted with no particular hope, of only the usual loss on tournament dates. But believe me, sumpin' must a happened. We had our usual Hoot business and some. They wanted Hoot and Hoot got them; 10 and 25 cents.—Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

THE CHINESE PARROT: Marion Nixon—Pleased 90 per cent and what I mean, it pleased them, too. Marion Nixon is as popular here as five dollar bills now, and why not? And Eumond Burns didn't run any of the girl trade away either, in other words, he is all right. Brother, for a real mystery picture, don't miss this one.—Roy E. Mitchell, Plainview theatre, Plainview, Tex.—General patronage.

THE CHINESE PARROT: Marion Nixon—January 28. The poorest Universal Jewel seen in a long time. They called it a Super Jewel and we paid for it as such, yet in our opinion it is not of the standard of even ordinary Jewels. Really, these continental directors have no kick for us. Seven reels.—M. Vallicha, The Capitol theatre, Karachi, India.—General patronage.

LOCO LUCK: Art Acord—February 18. Better than the average Universal Western. A good picture for small town patronage. Five reels.—George Lodge, Green Lantern theatre, Claymont, Del.—General patronage.

man's pipe. I knew you was on your way here as soon as you left Lordsburg, I could smell that pipe." We always hate to stop to bury a man so we simply thanked him and let it go at that, he seemed like a kind-hearted sort of a cuss and we knew he had a family to support, as he invited us to stay over and take dinner with him. Sorry we couldn't do it, as we know we would have had a real dinner. Some day we hope to go back, but in the meantime we will remember Mr. Long every time we light up the old pipe, and if the pipe proves as good a friend as L. F. Long did we will be doubly glad we came to Arizona.

TUCSON, ARIZ., March 12.

We have always prided ourself on being the head and general superintendent of the Jenkins household, but this was all knocked out of us when we walked into our wife's hacienda and Geneve looked up and said, "Well, for John's sake, look what blew in! Who left that door open?" and then she went on, "Come here, Ma, and give this the once over, he hasnt had his suit cleaned and pressed since Paul Revere made his famous midnight ride." And Ruth said, "Now look here, Tony Spaghetti, you get right back across the Mexican border before the Immigration Bureau gets you," and our wife bawled out from the kitchen, "No, wee don't want any bananas today," and the only thing that showed any interest in us whatever was the Spitz pup, and he came up and licked us on the nose kinda sociable like just like we were one of the family.

*Things seem somewhat chilly in Tucson,
And we feel like a Hill Billy in Tucson.
Geneve looked us all over and said, "I'll give it up."
And Ruth said, "He looks just like something the Airedale dug up."
And our wife said, "My gosh, but you're a mangy old pup."
And that's our reception in Tucson.*

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

In taking an invoice of our wives livestock we find that there has been a 200 per cent increase since we were here before, and we call that pretty good. Mamma Goat's voice has improved wonderfully and the neighbors have become somewhat resigned and have stopped threatening violence.

Our wife stuffed her goat on hay
And also on chopped feed and oats,
And she went out the other day
And found she had three goats.

The only thing we have found that is longer than the road from Dallas, Tex., to Tucson, Ariz., is the new approved Uniform Contract. We have put in two days and three nights on it and have just finished the first chapter. There are only six more. We hope it is satisfactory.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

There, the boys have got to going over that "Bull" stuff. We note that our good friend Joe Hewitt of the Strand theatre at Robinson, Ill., claims authorship of the sentence, "This Ain't No Bull" and that he used this in an advertisement back in 1913. Joe claims that his use of this expression antedates its use by Joe Mayer of the Palace theatre at Hamilton, O., by several years.

This is interesting to us because we know both of these boys to be honest and sincere and we have them listed as two of our best friends, and we dislike to butt in and throw a wet blanket over their claims, but the fact is they are both wrong. Uncle 'Leazer Biggs is the man who started this "Bull" stuff, and it happened away back in 1873 and it came about in this way. We went over to visit Uncle 'Leazer and Aunt Polly and that evening Uncle 'Leazer told us to run down to the woods lot and drive up the Durham bull, and we did, but it proved to be the family bossy, and Uncle Leazer said, "Hell, this ain't no bull," and being just a boy we began to bawl and said, "Well how in thunder could I tell?" We referred this controversy to Uncle 'Leazer and he said, "Oh, well, that dont make any difference, it's all bull anyway."

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

Our wife threatens to cut us off on huckleberry pie and as soon as that happens we are going to head North for Nebraska, and those boys up there want to be on their good behavior, for you remember what Bill used to say, "He'll be in to see you."

J. C. JENKINS,
THE HERALD-WORLD MAN.

LOCO LUCK: Art Acord—March 5. Average program Western. No drawing power. Poor photography and fair print. Five reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

ROLLING HOME: Reginald Denny—January 14. One of the best which Denny has produced. Showed it a second time and still made money. Denny always draws with us. Seven reels.—M. Vallicha, The Capitol theatre, Karachi, India.—General patronage.

MEN OF DARING: Jack Hoxie—February 1. We fell absolutely flat on this one. My audience has no taste for Westerns. This may be good enough for America, but certainly not for this town. Did poor business. Six reels.—M. Vallicha, The Capitol theatre, Karachi, India.—General patronage.

PAINTING THE TOWN: Special cast—February 22-23. Excellent comedy that keeps them laughing all the way.—W. L. Crouse, Ideal theatre, Bloomer, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE OLD SOAK: Special cast—This one will please them all. Eight reels.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

Warner Bros.

OLD SAN FRANCISCO: Dolores Costello—45%. Very good picture but failed to draw for us. Ten reels.—J. Rinhart, Majestic theatre, Stuttgart, Ark.—General patronage.

THE HEART OF MARYLAND: Dolores Costello—80%. February 24-25. This is a real play, after seeing several poor reports on this one I was sorry I had it on contract. But boys, don't be afraid of it; it is not a special but it will please ninety per cent. Had many good comments as well as smiles. That looks good to me. Seven reels.—B. A. Butler, Elite theatre, Arlington, S. D.—General patronage.

THE GAY OLD BIRD: Louise Fazenda—39%. February 25. Not so good. An old plot that could have been told in one reel and this is dragged out to seven. Be glad to see the last one of Warner Bros.' pictures, which we run next week. Seven reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

THE BRUTE: Monte Blue—48%. February 16. Good picture for your Western fans. Seven reels.—

L. W. Bagwell, Jr., Crystal theatre, Oakman, Ala.—General patronage.

WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW: Patsy Ruth Miller—30%. February 15-16. Had quite a few comments from patrons as to good acting of star. She seems to draw here.—L. M. Threet, Augus theatre, San Augustine, Tex.—Small town patronage.

WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW: Patsy Ruth Miller—A better picture than the title suggests. Worth running.—E. L. Wood, Coliseum theatre, Edmore, Mich.—General patronage.

ONE ROUND HOGAN: Monte Blue—February 25. Boys, here's the best fight picture I've ever shown. A peach of a story, a smashing climax and clean as a whistle. Has "Knockout Riley" beat to a frazzle and costs only half as much. Play it. Seven reels.—P. G. Vaughan, Sun theatre, Kansas City, Mo.—Neighborhood patronage.

THE SILVER SLAVE: Irene Rich—February 27. Reports were favorable from patrons. It has tense dramatic moments. Seven reels.—Chancellor Bros., Ritz theatre, Arcanum, O.—Neighborhood patronage.

WHAT HAPPENED TO FATHER: Warner Oland—Warner Oland arrived for the first time as a star in Tombstone and he not only arrived but he registered, and the audience thoroughly enjoyed this comedy with the semblance of a plot that worked out with many a good clean cut laugh from our patrons. This is a good regular program picture. Six reels.—Giacoma Bros., Crystal theatre, Tombstone, Ariz.—General patronage.

THE COLLEGE WIDOW: Dolores Costello—February 26. Played this on Sunday and the young folks liked it fine. Very good. Seven reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—General patronage.

SLIGHTLY USED: McAvoy-Nagel—February 22. Pleased unanimously. Nice little comedy. Nagel does a swell piece of acting and puts over some rib-tickling comedy. Seven reels.—Frank E. Sabin, Majestic theatre, Eureka, Mont.—Small town patronage.

HILLS OF KENTUCKY: Rin Tin Tin—A very good box office picture, seems to draw extra business. A fair picture. Seven reels.—E. L. Wood, Coliseum theatre, Edmore, Mich.—General patronage.

THE SEA BEAST: John Barrymore—A wow! A real thriller that made us money and many new friends. 100 per cent picture. Ten reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

State Rights

DANGER QUEST: Reed Howes—Pleased our Saturday night crowd. Released out of Memphis by Liberty Specialty Film Company whose fair treatment of exhibitors is exceptional.—G. Carey, Strand theatre, Paris, Ark.—General patronage.

HIGH SPEED LEE: Reed Howes—13%. December 28-29. Rotten, the most terrible thing I ever put on in my theatre, film in unusual condition. Surely must have been made ten years ago. Stay away from my Progress Picture Co., or get stung. Five reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

CHARLIE

A First National Picture

THE LIFE OF AN ACTRESS: Barbara Bedford—Did very good business regardless of bad weather, and it pleased.—E. C. Bays, Globe theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

PLEASURE BEFORE BUSINESS: Max Davidson—February 10-11. Here is a very good Jewish comedy, good acting and nice little story and will go over as program any place. Seven reels.—Crosby & Schwierske, Rex theatre, Colby, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE SILENT AVENGER: Special cast—This is about as good a dog picture as we have run in a long time. This is very good, and entire cast do very well with a very likeable story well told. If you want a good dog picture grasp this and it can be bought right. Six reels.—Crosby & Schwierske, Rex theatre, Colby, Wis.—Small town patronage.

STREAK OF LUCK: Buffalo Bill, Jr.—68%. February 17-18. Just another Western. Better than usual. Five reels.—L. W. Bagwell, Jr., Crystal theatre, Oakman, Ala.—General patronage.

THEN CAME THE WOMAN: Special cast—5%. February 14. Here is the best picture any theatre could run, we just lost on it the first night, and as we had a different program for the next night we had to let it go at that. But we are glad we ran it because it was good and when they make a better one they have to get up before breakfast. Play it up strong as it will satisfy most everyone. Seven reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

THE WORLD WAR: February 16-17. A dandy war picture, and about the best that I have seen but people are getting tired of this class of pictures, so didn't do much with a two nights' run. Ran this picture for The American Legion and they didn't near make expenses. Nine reels.—W. C. Snyder, Cozy theatre, Lamont, Okla.—General patronage.

Serials

HAWK OF THE HILLS: (P.) Special cast—An exceptionally well made serial. It not only has good drawing power through its nice direction, but the production is put up like a big special. Good, exceptionally good photography on tinted film made it compare favorably with any other subject on the same program. Ten episodes.—H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U theatre, Melville, La.—General patronage.

KING OF THE JUNGLE: (State Rights) Special cast—Just finished. Very satisfactory as an animal serial. Elmo Lincoln did not take the part our crowds want him in.—G. Carey, Strand theatre, Paris, Ark.—General patronage.

TRAIL OF THE TIGER: (Universal) Jack Daugherty—A very good serial and one of the best ever made. Two reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

Short Subjects

COLUMBIA

THE RINK: Charley Chaplin—Good enough comedy but not good enough for the price we paid; so just watch your step when you buy these comedies. According to "The Rink" they are not worth any more than any other two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

EDUCATIONAL

BARN YARNS: Felix the cat—These are all good, but this one is especially funny. The children nearly tear down the house when we have a Felix comedy, and the grown folks like them about as well. One reel.—Robert K. Yancey, Bonny theatre, Mansfield, Mo.—General patronage.

BATTER UP: A very funny comedy. Two reels.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

DON'T PINCH: Bobby Vernon—Good. Two reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

DRAMA DE LUXE: Lupino Lane—This is another good one from this star. Two reels.—Philip E. Tyas, Liberty theatre, Amherstburg, Ont., Canada.—Small town patronage.

DUCK OUT: Bobby Vernon—The best Vernon I've ever seen and that goes for both Educational and Paramount Vernon comedies. Play it for the laughs you'll get. Two reels.—P. G. Vaughan, Sun theatre, Kansas City, Mo.—Neighborhood patronage.

DUCK OUT: Bobby Vernon—This is a scream. Very good. Two reels.—Philip E. Tyas, Liberty theatre, Amherstburg, Ont., Canada.—Small town patronage.

HATS OFF: Stan Laurel—They roared themselves sick. Wonderful climax. Two reels.—G. G. Blais, Capitol theatre, Duncan, B. C., Canada.—General patronage.

HELLO SAILOR: Lupino Lane—Consider this great comedy. Patrons sure liked it. Lane gets better with each new release. Two reels.—S. B. Kennedy, Central theatre, Selkirk, Man., Canada.—Small town patronage.

HIS HIGH HORSE: Lige Conley—Fair. Two reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

IT'S ME and AIN'T NATURE GRAND?: Cameo—Very good. Cameos are the only good one-reel comedies on the market and the new ones are extra good.—P. G. Vaughan, Sun theatre, Kansas City, Mo.—Neighborhood patronage.

JELLY FISH: Nothing to this; just two reels of film wasted.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

KID TRICKS: Big Boy—Here's a comedy that clicks as many laughs as any "Our Gang" I've played recently. I wish all comedies were as good. Two reels.—P. G. Vaughan, Sun theatre, Kansas City, Mo.—Neighborhood patronage.

OH WHAT A MAN: Larry Semon—Semon is done. This is far from good. Two reels.—Philip E. Tyas, Liberty theatre, Amherstburg, Ont., Canada.—Small town patronage.

PICTORIAL PROVERBS: Hodge Podge—Fair, no entertainment to these.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

RED HOT BULLETS: Eddie Quillan—This is sure a great war comedy. My patrons ate it up. Two reels.—S. B. Kennedy, Central theatre, Selkirk, Man., Canada.—Small town patronage.

SAILOR BEWARE!: Billy Dooley—A laugh riot.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

WAITING: Lloyd Hamilton—Fair; poor print. Two reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

WHO'S AFRAID: Lupino Lane—Laughs, gasps, thrills. Keep it up Lupino. Two reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

WILD CAT WILLIE: Kids—Good. Poor print as usual from Educational. Two reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

F B O

BEAUTY PARLOR SERIES: Special cast—Still clicking. Have run seven and no kick yet. Two reels.—John L. Damm, Strand theatre, Wadsworth, Ohio.—General patronage.

BOYS WILL BE GIRLS: Cooke-Guard—This series of "Beauty Parlor" comedies is a good bet and it pleases better than all others did before. Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

DON GO ON: Crazy Kat—This was a very good cartoon for the kiddies. One reel.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

HE DONE HIS BEST: Charley Bowers—Some good trick photography in second reel that is even better than his first one. Two reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenvier, Utah.—General patronage.

KRAZY KAT: With every show this sure gets the youngsters and none go to sleep on Krazy Kat.—E. A. Emmert, Emmert theatre, Alcester, S. D.—General patronage.

MICKEY PARADE: Mickey McGuire—Good. Took youngsters by storm. Two reels.—E. A. Emmert, Emmert theatre, Alcester, S. D.—General patronage.

THREE MISSING LINKS: Three Fat Boys—Lots of fun just to look at these boys' fatness, and that was good enough. Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

YOUR NEXT: Three Fat Men—Good. Two reels.—E. A. Emmert, Emmert theatre, Alcester, S. D.—General patronage.

FOX

DIZZY DAMES: A very good, clean comedy. Sure went well with the kids. Two reels.—J. A. D. Engesather, Movies theatre, Brocket, N. D.—Small town patronage.

FOX NEWS: These are good news reels but sometimes they are funny to the crowds as they are so old. The producers don't care whether they treat the small exhibitor right or not. We like new news reels as well as anybody and would like them a little younger than two months old.—Robert K. Yancey, Bonny theatre, Mansfield, Mo.—General patronage.

LOW NECKER: Fox used to have comedies that couldn't be beat. This is just fair. Van Bibbers are extra good. Two reels.—J. Rinhart, Majestic theatre, Stuttgart, Ark.—General patronage.

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER

BATTLE OF THE CENTURY: Hardy-Laurel—These boys are good, although the old pies are in evidence. It sure gets the laughs. Two reels.—Phillip

E. Tyas, Liberty theatre, Amherstburg, Ont., Canada.—Small town patronage.

BATTLE OF THE CENTURY: Special cast—Drew the laughs. Ended similar to "Hats Off," only they use pies in this one. Two reels.—John L. Damm, Strand theatre, Wadsworth, Ohio.—General patronage.

THE CALL OF THE CUCKOO: Just fair comedy. Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

FIGHT FOR LIFE: The best yet of the series of oddities. One reel.—J. A. D. Engesather, Movies theatre, Brocket, N. D.—Small town patronage.

HEEBIE JEEBIES: Our Gang—The first of the new Metro comedies we have played and it is the best we have run in years. Hope all are as good. The rascals are in a different type story than the average and this short was fully half my show. Two reels.—S. C. Silverthorn, Liberty theatre, Harrisville, Mich.—General patronage.

HEEBIE JEEBIES, OLD WALLOP, DOG HEAVEN: We have used the three above, new Our Gangs and will say that they are fifty per cent better than the last batch of Our Gangs we got from them when they were with Pathe. These three are knock-outs, all of them. Anyone that can't get a kick out of the above three comedies, needs fixing. Two reels.—Crosby & Schwierske, Rex theatre, Colby, Wis.—Small town patronage.

LEAVE 'EM LAUGHING: We can't remember a two-reel comedy in years as funny as this one. Used with "The Moose," Dick Barthelme's new knockout. It gave us the best show we have had in months. Two reels.—Cragin & Pike, Inc., Majestic theatre, Las Vegas, Nev.—General patronage.

THE LIGHTER THAT FAILED: Charlie Chase—This one didn't seem to go over for us. Several good stunts but lots of them thought it too silly. Would say about a fifty-fifty comedy. Two reels.—Crosby & Schwierske, Rex theatre, Colby, Wis.—Small town patronage.

LOVE 'EM AND FEED 'EM: Max Davidson—Knockout comedy. Davidson and Hardy great. One continual laugh. All I have to do is to tell my patrons it is a Hal Roach comedy. Keep it up, Hal, you have the right idea. Two reels.—S. B. Kennedy, Central theatre, Selkirk, Man., Canada.—Small town patronage.

METRO COMEDIES: Consider these comedies far superior to anything we have ever used. Prints good, photography excellent. If you do not use them give them a trial. You will not regret it.—J. E. Gillenwaters, Rialto theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.—General patronage.

THE OLD WALLOP: Our Gang—This comedy just set them wild from start to finish. That's as good as it was. Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

PLAYING HOOKEY: Our Gang—Just a fair Gang comedy. Why do producers keep kidding the movies? The crowd is wise enough now as to how things are done. Two reels.—S. B. Kennedy, Central theatre, Selkirk, Man., Canada.—Small town patronage.

RAINY DAYS: Our Gang—This is the best Our Gang from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer this year. More like when Pathe had them. Keep it up. Two reels.—Philip E. Tyas, Liberty theatre, Amherstburg, Ont., Canada.—Small town patronage.

SECOND HUNDRED YEARS: This is the first one of these we have had and only hope the rest of them are as good. These two boys are good and these new M-G-M comedies so far have been consistently very good. Two reels.—Crosby & Schwierske, Rex theatre, Colby, Wis.—Small town patronage.

STING OF STINGS: Charley Chase—Very much on the order of an "Our Gang" comedy. Plenty of slapstick and will tickle the kids. But not up to his usual high class comedies. Lord only knows where the title comes in at. Two reels.—P. G. Vaughan, Sun theatre, Kansas City, Mo.—Neighborhood patronage.

YALE VS. HARVARD: Our Gang—Good and plenty of laughs. Two reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

PARAMOUNT

CRAZY TO FLY: Bobby Vernon—Good. Two reels.—E. J. Williams, Tivoli theatre, Knoxville, Ill.—General patronage.

EASY CURVES: Billy Dooley—This boy is always good. Two reels.—Philip E. Tyas, Liberty theatre, Amherstburg, Ont., Canada.—Small town patronage.

FANTASY: Bobby Agnew—Not so good. However, it lacks a whole lot of being as bad as one exhibitor reported not so long ago. It's true, the numbskulls won't get it. Two reels.—P. G. Vaughan, Sun theatre, Kansas City, Mo.—Neighborhood patronage.

HOT PAPA: Very good. My people like slapstick.—W. U. Shelmutt, City theatre, Lafayette, Ala.—General patronage.

THE BOX OFFICE TICKER

A System for Determining the Definite Attraction Values of Motion Pictures

Exhibitors reporting to "What the Picture Did For Me" supply a percentage rating obtained by dividing average daily gross of house record attraction into average daily gross of picture being reported on. When 10 of these percentage ratings on a picture have been received, the average of these 10 percentage ratings is entered in "The Ticker." Each additional percentage-rating report received on pictures entered is combined with those previously received and the new average thus created is entered.

Incorporated in this department of Moving Picture World is the Exhibitors Herald department, "Available Attractions."

The key to abbreviations used in denoting the type of picture:

- C—Comedy
- D—Drama
- R—Romance
- F—Farce
- M—Melodrama
- W—Western
- My—Mystery

Where the picture is a comedy-drama, comedy melodrama, etc., there is a combination of these abbreviations. Stars denote reissues.

The dates prior to January 7 published under the "Review" column are those of the issues of Moving Picture World in which the pictures were reviewed. The January 7 and subsequent dates are those of the issues of EXHIBITORS HERALD and MOVING PICTURE WORLD in which "Service Talks" have been published on pictures.

The dates prior to January 7 published under the "New Pictures" column are those of the issues of EXHIBITORS HERALD in which "New Pictures" information was printed. The January 7 and subsequent dates are those of the issues of EXHIBITORS HERALD and MOVING PICTURE WORLD in which this information will be printed.

CHICAGO PERSONALITIES

By Whit

A NUMBER of changes are being made in the sales force at First National. Carl Lesserman will go to Cleveland as manager there, and "Grad" Sears, Cleveland manager, will take over the Chicago office. This change will be made around the first of the month. In the meantime, Lesserman will go on a vacation to Tampa, Florida. Ross Herman, George Taif and Jack Schwartz, country salesmen, have resigned. This leaves only three salesmen at the Chicago office, Ralph Bradford, J. N. Holland and Tom Giliam.

We saw Cecil Maberry in the Columbia office last Friday, and were happy to congratulate him upon his appointment as general sales manager of Columbia Pictures Corporation. Mr. Maberry is on a tour of his company's Middle West exchanges, but will return to New York around the first of the month. He is almost boiling over with enthusiasm for his new position and company.

"Roxy Medal" Created At Honor Dinner

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 20.—Creation of an annual award for the "greatest achievement of the year in the moving picture world," featured a dinner given in honor of S. L. Rothafel by the Roxy theatre organization last week. It will be called the "Roxy Medal." Rothafel received the first award, a ten-inch silver plaque bearing a likeness of his face and a legend referring to his establishment of the Roxy theatre as the greatest achievement in the industry in 1927. The dinner marked the end of the first year of the theatre. Among the 800 attending were directors of the William Fox organization and George W. McClelland of the National Broadcasting Company.

B. E. Spaulding, owner of the Opera House at St. Anne, Illinois, was an FBO visitor last week. He has contracted for the entire FBO product.

least book for them. The proposition was regarded as too small to take over and Brockell explained that Balaban-Katz Midwest book for no theatre, an interest in which is not owned by them or some individual closely associated.

The elder Dicke then suggested building a new theatre in Downers Grove and wanted to lease it to Brockell. The proposition was entertained, but the financing appeared difficult. Still another proposition was made but did not materialize. In this one, it was Brockell's recollection that Judge Rathje was interested.

Finally in the spring, G. H. Bunge of the Downers Grove Investment Company, wanted to erect a modern theatre and offered Brockell and his associates a twenty-year lease. Negotiations were undertaken. At the time, Brockell stated, there were rumors of Uhlhorn building but he heard no definite information.

Negotiations Are Completed

In August, negotiations for the leasing of the property were practically completed. In September, the Dicke family offered the Dicke theatre to him. They did not want it dark on account of other business property in the vicinity. He leased it partially as a favor to an old friend and partially because it made it possible to contract immediately for product, which could be turned into the new theatre when completed.

He agreed that he had the product of most of the leading film companies, but stated he understood that Uhlhorn had been offered First National product and declined it.

He stated that he listened to Judge Rathje's compromise proposition, in fact went out to Wheaton when told that the judge did not want to come to his office in Chicago. He said that it was too late to compromise; that he had asked Bunge if he wanted to release him from the lease, and Bunge had said he couldn't—that the money was raised, the contracts let and construction started.

Brockell stated that Adam Dernbach, one of the men interested in the proposition, had compromised with Vincent Lynch at Elmhurst and this would have militated against a compromise in Downers Grove. He said that it would be impossible to compromise on every theatre proposition. It would be too expensive.

Brockell Expresses Regret

"I am truly sorry that the other group have gone as far as they have," he said. "They are in an unfortunate situation. They know, however, if they go ahead, that we will lose even more than they will. The town will not support two theatres and our operating expense would undoubtedly be greater than theirs. It is unfortunate."

Uhlhorn, when asked about the one or two phases developed in the interview with Brockell, stated that First National product was offered him, if Dernbach would pay $15 more per picture for First National product at Wheaton and Naperville than he had been offered the pictures for previously and had declined.

"As far as the Elmhurst deal is concerned with Lynch, maybe they think Dernbach got too much. I think it was $20,000, but he had a theatre there, a good building and I don't think it was excessive as he gave up the town," Uhlhorn said, "But this is no bluff at Downers Grove. We have $40,000 in property and will have invested $90,000 before we get out of our contracts and complete the stores and offices. And without the theatre in the block, I don't know just how good the stores and offices will be for leasing purposes."

Exhibitor to Specialize On Synchronized Films

Pictures synchronized with music and sound effects will be emphasized in the programs of the 1,400-seat Embassy theatre at San Francisco, recently taken over by William Wagon.

Wagon, who flew to New York by plane, took in a demonstration of Vocafilm, conferred with E. W. Hammons, president of Educational, and attended the premiere of "Tenderloin," synchronized production of Warner Brothers.

M-G-M Film Wins Award

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

DALLAS, March 20.—The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "The Smart Set," has won the Texas M. P. T. O. "Blue Ribbon" award for the month of April. This is the third M-G-M picture to win the award.

Gentlemen:

We feel that a note of appreciation is due you for the wonderful organ that you installed in our theatre. The matter of selecting the proper instrument for this theatre was one of great concern to us and no time or money was spared in making our decision. That our judgment was correct in the selecting of the Wurlitzer organ is evident by the results that have been achieved.

We honestly believe something would be lacking in our theatre without this wonderful instrument.

THE illustrious son of the noted diva, Madame Schumann-Heink, world-famous and world-beloved... As a staff officer in "Four Sons," Ferdinand Schumann-Heink shows definite promise of winning for himself a share of the glory that has been bestowed upon his illustrious mother.

AUGUST TOLLAÏRE
(France)

HIS amusing portrayal of the Mayor in "What Price Glory" will never be forgotten... Again in "Four Sons" as a Mayor, he will make millions laugh and chuckle and add further lustre to his reputation as a fine actor with an unerring sense of comedy. M. Tollaïre was born in Paris.

ARCHDUKE LEOPOLD
(of Austria)

THE direct descendant of Franz Josef, late Emperor of Austria, and himself the holder of one of the highest titles of nobility in the old Austrian Empire... endows his role of an aide-de-camp in "Four Sons" with genuine reality and conviction... The Honest Truth About NEWS REELS

THE news reel is the brilliant jewel in your program of motion picture entertainment. It is more often remembered than your feature picture because it is more human, more alive, more pleasant and because—if it is the right news reel—it is possessed of a ton of personality.

This personality becomes a definite personal influence in your playhouse. If you choose wisely in picking from the six choices which the market now affords, you will do yourself an important business service that will continue to work for your prestige and profit every week in the year.

With six to pick from it would appear at first glance that you had a wide range of choice, but the facts as demonstrated by performance, show your choice is more restricted. And here's why:

A news reel first must have a scope that includes all the world as its field, with novelty, excitement, beauty, charm, human interest and natural comedy to choose from.

Then a news reel must have photographic clarity and beauty, perfect printing and eye soothing freshness.

These two elements are fundamental. These could almost be called the raw materials, and that narrows down your range of choice.

After these essentials you encounter the thing that makes the difference between the master product, the one with finish and drama, taste, intelligence and above all human interest, and the flat, dull, cut and dried offering.

This thing is handling!

Just as one newspaper is dull and another newspaper brilliant, so is a news reel, because of the brains, experience and enthusiasm of the men responsible.

This is the third element that narrows your range of choice and brings you closer to Kinograms as the one news reel essential.

The fourth is the fact that the makers of Kinograms make no other product whatever. All their time, energy and thought are centered on the production of the finest news reel on earth and it is this independence and this concentration on a specialty that have made the difference between Kinograms and all the rest.

Kinograms, by conscientious, painstaking and enthusiastic effort, has gained the premier place in the news reel field, and it has earned the unbiased praise of the most critical and most competent picture and attraction judges in the picture business.

Radio and Pictures

RADIO broadcasting is again in the limelight in the motion picture trade. This time it is brought forward as a result of arrangements which have been made for a national hook-up to carry broadcasts of a group of stars associated with the United Artists corporation.

To our mind the recurrence of this question, appearing in the same old light, reveals a basic fault of the motion picture industry: Namely, the failure to maintain a co-operative spirit and a willingness to consider the general interests of the industry. Also there appears to be a definite lack of decisive thought and action, or else such an obvious and recurring question as national radio broadcasting would long since have been settled in connection with the picture business.

As far as Mr. Joseph M. Schenck is concerned his good faith in the matter is amply demonstrated. Exhibitor protests reached him after arrangements for the broadcast were completed and when the attitude of the theatremen was made known he promptly announced that as far as his interests are concerned there would be no more broadcasting.

But the coming broadcast will be injurious to theatre business, and with conditions as they have been recently, another "off" night is not a pleasant prospect to look forward to. It is obvious from the action which has been taken by Mr. Schenck in offering assurances that there would be no more broadcasts from United Artists that had there been a trade-wide understanding on the effects of national broadcasts he would not have entered into any broadcasting arrangement.

In far too many cases in the industry there is little or no disposition evidenced to consider the effects of one's actions upon the interests of another and upon the trade at large. It is quite plain that a particular individual or group might gain some immediate advantage out of a national radio broadcast. But if the situation were fully understood it would be realized that an important program of stars on the air means a counter attraction operating against the motion picture theatres. And we assert that were the available channels of information being resorted to, everyone throughout the trade would be aware of the effect of a big, national broadcast program upon theatre attendance.

The radio problem has appeared in two distinct phases: One has to do with purely local and routine broadcasts. With respect to these there is a divided opinion. Some believe that in this usage the radio is an effective medium of publicity and that it serves to build interest in subsequent motion picture entertainment.

The other phase of the radio problem concerns national broadcasts which present great stars from one field or another and by means of nation-wide hook-ups may be listened to by many millions of people.

There is no divided opinion on the latter case. Theatremen everywhere can point to the records to show that upon every occasion when a great national broadcast was on the air, theatre attendance was materially curtailed.

The radio problem is in no sense a great or difficult one. It is susceptible to immediate and complete correction:

National broadcasts based upon radio appearance of motion picture personalities should be considered taboo.

Hoosier Assault

MR. FRANK J. REMBUSCH, Indiana exhibitor, has been in the eye of the trade for quite a long time. Those who have read in the daily press his recent bitter and unreasonable attack again Mr. Will H. Hays, a fellow Hoosier stater, will be inclined to say that has been too long.

Mr. Rembusch has at times appeared to be an earnest worker in organization affairs, but nothing in the way of definite accomplishment has ever appeared to follow his efforts. At various times he has occupied important positions in the exhibitors' association, but only a little time in each has been sufficient to convince those about him that nothing much could be expected other than forensic and not too-coherent declarations upon convention floors. Several years ago he was pushed into what appeared to be—and was hoped to be—effective retirement as far as the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America were concerned.

For some time he appeared to be inactive even in Indiana organization affairs, but eventually what seems to be an inordinate passion for publicity again led him into some activity. Since his reappearance he has succeeded in landing a few long statements in various publications where space seemingly was not scarce. Also he has attended a few unimportant meetings and at each of these, of course, his declamations filled the air.

It seems that Mr. Hays has made the error of attempting to conduct his affairs without leaning too heavily upon Mr. Rembusch's advice and counsel. Also it appears that Mr. C. C. Pettijohn, whose first appearance in the industry was as counsel for Mr. Rembusch, has drifted away. It probably remains a mystery to Mr. Rembusch why he and these other two Hoosiers do not get along better together.

At any rate, there has been but little harmony existing between Mr. Hays and Mr. Pettijohn on one side, and Mr. Rembusch on the other. The deflection of Mr. Hays and Mr. Pettijohn has received an answer from Mr. Rembusch in the form of several vitriolic statements, the latest of which is the charge that Mr. Hays is diverting the motion picture to political uses, principally for the purpose of promoting the candidacy of Mr. Herbert Hoover.

The charge having been issued to the daily press by Mr. Rembusch and consequently read by the general public, the regret is that Mr. Rembusch is not known to the public as he is known to the trade.

Hays Goes to Paris To Take Up French Quota Restriction

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 28.—Will H. Hays sailed for Europe Saturday, explaining that his mission was to negotiate with the French government regarding the new regulations which require American companies to distribute one French film for every four American productions exported to France.

Hays' departure left Carl C. Milliken, secretary of the M. P. P. D. A., temporarily in charge of affairs. C. C. Pettijohn is also in Europe. Hays and Pettijohn were not expected to meet overseas, as the latter at last reports was in Berlin arranging an early return to America.

The M. P. P. D. A. leader took time to deny that he was using the newsreels to further Herbert Hoover's presidential candidacy. F. J. Rembusch had made such a charge and had asked Senator Smith W. Brookhart to obtain a senatorial investigation. Hays declared the charge "isn't true" and "couldn't be true," and the half dozen leaders in the industry who were with him agreed.

Allowed to Cut Newsreels

Milliken, in a statement issued yesterday, said charges that newsreels are being used for political propaganda in behalf of any individual, party, or institution are not based upon the facts. It is a well recognized fact within the industry that the news reels to be successful must be absolutely impartial and this policy has been followed and is followed by the news reel editors."

Milliken also spiked a charge that exhibitors are not allowed to cut out parts of news reels and declared that in the new Standard Exhibition Contract it is specifically provided in Article 12 "that the exhibitor agrees to run photoplays (excepting news reels) as delivered without alterations."

Trade Restraint Is Charged After Inquiry on '27 Strike

Conspiracy to Withhold Pictures Alleged—Case Expected to Open in Fall—Violation Denied

By ERNEST A. ROVELSTAD

Hearing of a suit filed Saturday in the United States district court against eleven distributors, the Exhibitors Association of Chicago and a number of individuals, charging conspiracy in restraint of trade, is expected to come up in the fall.

Charges Pact to Withhold Films

The suit, which is an aftermath of the operators' strike in Chicago last summer, was filed by C. Stanley Thompson, special assistant to Attorney General Sargent, and follows a long investigation made by Department of Justice officials. The information charges that the Exhibitors Association members agreed to force nonmember theatres to close and that the association and the exchange managers reached an agreement to prevent all motion picture theatres from obtaining films.

"We do not consider that we have violated any law," Weymouth Kirkland, attorney for the exhibitors association, said Monday in commenting on the government action. "The decisions were made in consideration of the bombings and acts of violence which may occur under strike conditions. Nor was there any boycott. What was done was for the benefit of the public. The New York home offices of the distributing companies had advised their exchanges in Chicago to release films as far as consistent with public safety."

M. P. P. D. A. Issues Statement

A news story issued from New York by the M. P. P. D. A. states that Alfred S. Austrian, counsel for the distributors, and Kirkland said "that the public interest was in no way involved or affected, and that in their opinion the alleged acts were not in violation of the Sherman act; whatever action these branch managers are alleged to have taken was entirely without the knowledge of the home offices of the distributing companies in New York City."

Jack Miller, head of the exhibitors association, and exchange managers named in the information, refused to comment on the government's step.

Firms and Individuals Named

Of those named in the suit several of the managers are no longer in the official capacity they held at the time of the strike. The list follows:

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Felix Mendelssohn, manager; Paramount and Neal F.

Agnew, manager; First National and Carl Leserman, manager; Universal and W. W. Brumberg, then country salesmanager; United Artists and C. C. Wallace, manager; Fox Film Corporation and Clyde W. Eckhardt, manager; Pathe and James S. Gillick, then short subjects manager, and Harry S. Lorch, then long feature manager; F B O and J. J. Sampson, then manager; Vitagraph and Earl Silverman, manager; Columbia and Carl Harthill, then manager; Renown Pictures and Paul Bush, then manager. Also named were Jack Miller, president of the Exhibitors Association, and Edwin Silverman, secretary.

The information, after reciting the scope of authority of exchange managers (and appending a transcript of the Standard Exhibition Contract), charges that the alleged restraint of trade took place between Aug. 20, 1927, and Sept. 5, 1927, following the discharge of two operators by the Orpheum Circuit on the ground that their services were not necessary and the resultant strike called by the operators' union. The government then charges the association agreed August 27 to institute a lockout and adds:

Charges Refusal of Films

"Said defendant Exhibitors Association and the members thereof, for the purpose of making effective their said lockout, agreed to induce and to compel the closing of each and every motion picture theatre, whether operated by a member or nonmember.

"That thereupon, on or about August 30, (Continued on page 58)

Trade Commission Grants Paramount Time Extension to April 15 for Reply

[Washington Bureau of Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World]

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Extension of time until April 15 in which to file a reply to the order of March 5 with the Federal Trade Commission was last week given Paramount in order that the matter might be considered by the respondent's attorney, who was reported as being on a vacation.

The March 5 order of the commission rejected entirely the proposal of Paramount for compliance with the July order to cease and desist from block booking, etc. Full compliance with the original order was demanded with the assertion that unless this was forthcoming the commission would seek to secure enforcement through the courts.

BROADWAY

NEW YORK—The grand canyon of New York is pretty excited about the first warm weather of the spring; hard-boiled followers of the elusive cinema, and there are such, may be found hunting for robins and all that sort of thing.

David J. Mountain, president of Richmount Pictures, sailed for Europe on the Aquitania on the 21st. David is a good sailor and Noah's a thing or two about the water, so there is little fear of mal de mer. . . . The office oracle is in again. He says, "Casting directors are not all good trout fishermen." Put that in your flybox, and the next time you wade with P. A. Parsons you can think it over. . . . Paramount Pep Club Ball at the Astor was a great success. All hands retreated in good order, about dawn. The A. M. P. A. ball is just a few days off, and all the "Who's Who" in the industry is "rarin" to go. . . . Joseph J. McCarthy has had a verdict of one hundred thousand dollars handed down against him by the court, because his automobile hit a taxi in which was riding one Henrietta Voight. J. J. is now suing to have the verdict set aside. Henrietta contended that she had fits since the accident while Joseph has been having a fit since the verdict was handed down. . . . Charles C. Pettijohn, who has been taking the air on board Atlantic liners, is expected in New York before very much longer. C. C. having been in Germany about a week, will not be expected to have a Pilsener accent on his return or any other place. . . . Al Selig of Tiffany-Stahl Productions is busy as the proverbial bee on the matter of "Spring announcements." . . . TNT seems to have exploded in the sales force of the First National as salesmen are flying in every direction looking for cover. The spring house cleaning is national in scope, and scores of high pressure men have been released. . . . Nat Rothstein of Universal is all browned up since his vacation. Florida is the place to play the Scotch game, to the best advantage, and Nat has some interesting scores tucked away in his golf book. . . . E. W. Hammons, president of Educational Pictures, has the name of being the best dressed commuter out Westchester county, and we see no reason for disputing this. . . . Ed Hurley, oldtime publicity and advertising man, has joined Columbia Pictures, as assistant to Alex Moss. . . . Harry Sherman left on the Lake Shore Limited, on Friday, for Chicago, Cleveland, and points west, in the interest of Jimmie Cruze Pictures. . . . "Bill" Hays off on the Leviathan to look over France, Saturday. . . . A. P. Giannini to the same place April 9th. . . . "Jimmie" Grainger is going to put on a big Fox hunt the week of June tenth. All exhibitors are expected to sign up for it, but the brush goes to Grainger no matter who gets in first. . . . It is now open season for shooting golf, and as a result Paul Gulick, Lou Jacobson and the other dead shots of the industry are oiling up their shooting irons, for the kill. . . . Raymond Griffith took ship Friday for a turn over the briny and expects to take a rest in some quiet nook in France. . . . William "Bill" Atkinson was in town last week, and Bill said that he had retired from the picture industry, and was building a home in Virginia in which he expected to spend his time as a country gentleman. His last association in the industry was with the Roxy theatre. . . . Dr. William E. Shallenberger, president of Plaza Pictures, arrived in town on Saturday, after a six months stay in California. The Doctor brought back several negatives of new pictures for his company.

First National Nets $1,156,000 in Year; Is $49.22 a Share

NEW YORK, March 28.—Net profit of $1,156,665, equivalent to $49.22 a share on 23,500 shares of preferred, is reported by First National Pictures, Inc., and subsidiaries for the year ended Dec. 31, 1927. This compares with $1,032,655, or $42.58 a share, earned on 24,250 shares outstanding the year before. Total income for the year 1927 was $24,155,863.

"During the year your company merged its distributing subsidiary, First National Pictures, Ltd., with Pathe, Ltd.—an English company controlled by the same interests which operate Provincial Cinematograph theatres," Clifford B. Hawley, president, stated. "Production affiliations were also consummated with important German interests. It is thought this progress in the foreign field will prove very profitable over a period of time."

The company's balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1927, shows total assets of $18,415,169. Current assets totaled $13,256,933 against current liabilities of $4,875,780, a ratio of approximately 3 to 1. Unappropriated surplus amounted to $6,433,897.

Dropped from Film Board Atlanta Goes to Court to Force Reinstatement

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

ATLANTA, March 27.—Thomas A. Branon, doing business as the Eltabran Film company, has filed a petition in superior court here asking that the Film Board of Trade be enjoined from its action to expel him from membership in the board for servicing certain theatres. A temporary restraining order has been signed by Judge Moore, who set a hearing in the case for April 14.

January Film Export Drops 2,000,000 Feet

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

WASHINGTON, March 27.—A drop of more than 2,000,000 feet in exports of motion picture film was recorded in January, according to figures just made public by the Department of Commerce.

Shipments for the month totaled 24,811,794 feet, against 26,556,649 feet in December. The value, however, showed a slight increase, being $727,188 in January and $719,710 in the preceding month. All classes of films shared in the decrease, positive exports dropping from 19,011,897 feet valued at $479,833 in December to 18,573,524 feet valued at $466,401 in January; negatives from 967,807 feet valued at $118,714 to 925,302 feet valued at $115,524; raw stocks from 4,810,525 feet valued at $100,339 to 4,654,500 feet valued at $128,499; and shipments in non-contiguous territories from 1,766,420 feet valued at $20,825 to 658,468 feet valued at $16,764.

Organist Leads Children from Theatre on Fire

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

ALBANY, March 27.—Miss Marie Ruff, organist at the Eagle theatre, here, recently proved herself a heroine by leading a large number of children from the theatre when fire broke out in the projection room. Damage to the theatre was estimated at $2,500. At Amsterdam, N. Y., the Strand theatre and building suffered a $15,000 fire loss. A fire in the projection room of the Lyceum theatre, New Orleans, recently caused a loss of $1,000, and at Portland, Oregon, fire broke out in the operating room of the American theatre, causing a $250 loss.

Paramount Control Over F & R Chain of 130 Houses Reported

Publix Officials Take Complete Charge of Opening of New Minnesota Theatre—Katz Among Incorporators of New Northwest Company

(By Special Correspondent Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

MINNEAPOLIS, March 28.—William Hamm of F. & R. said today that eleven theatres will be operated by the Northwest Paramount Corporation, including the State, Strand, Garrick, Lyric, all in Minneapolis; Capitol, Aster, Tower, Garrick, and Princess, all in St. Paul. All these theatres were owned by the Twin City Amusement Estate and operated by F. & R.

Advertisements of these theatres today carried the Publix name as well as F. & R. The trailer at the State last night had the following: "State—another F. & R. Publix theatre."

MINNEAPOLIS, March 27.—Rumors were current here today that the Paramount and Publix organizations had acquired a controlling interest in the Finkelstein & Ruben chain of approximately 130 motion picture theatres in the Twin Cities and the Northwest.

Publix Handles Minnesota Opening

This rumor no doubt arose from the way in which the Publix officials took charge of the opening of the New Minnesota theatre in Minneapolis Friday night.

For several days members of the Publix national staff had been arriving in the city and they practically took over all details of the opening from the hands of the F. & R. management. The new Minnesota theatre, which was built by a corporation of Minneapolis business men at a cost of more than $1,250,000 and is called the fifth largest motion picture theatre in the United States, was to have been operated on a 50-50 basis by Publix and Finkelstein & Ruben. This lease with the builders of the theatre originally was signed by Publix, but later F. & R. announced the house would be operated jointly by the two corporations.

Manager Sent in by Publix

E. J. Smith, manager of the house, was sent in by Publix, and several men prominent in other Publix theatres took part in the introductory programs. Edwin Gallinagh, who had been with the F. & R. publicity department for a number of years, had been assigned to handle the publicity for the new house, but it is reported he resigned the position shortly after the arrival of the Publix officials, due to the fact that some of his promotional stunts were vetoed by the Publix publicity staff.

New Company Incorporated

The secretary of state announced yesterday that a company to be known as the Northwest Paramount Corporation had filed articles of incorporation, announcing a capitalization of $100,000. According to the announcement the company was to engage in the general theatrical business, including the building and operation of theatres and the operation of booking agencies. The incorporators were Sam Katz and F. L. Metzler, who are Publix officials, and William Hamm and M. L. Finkelstein, officers of the F. & R. organization.

It is also understood that F. & R. have entered into a booking contract with Paramount, whereby all the F. & R. theatres will use all the Paramount films sent them on a percentage basis.

J. Louis Rome Elected Head of Md. M. P. T. O.

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

BALTIMORE, March 27.—J. Louis Rome, formerly counsel of the Maryland M. P. T. O., was elected president at the annual meeting of the organization. Herman A. Blum, former president, declined the nomination. Other officers elected were Louis Garman, vice-president; Frank A. Hornig, treasurer; William E. Stumpf, secretary and business manager; and Frank Durkee, Dr. J. H. Whitehurst, William Kalb, Herbert Zimmerman, H. A. Blum, Charles E. Nolte, Louis Schneider and Phillip Miller, directors.

Urges No Heed Be Given U's Brookhart Message

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

COLUMBUS, O., March 27.—Attention of members has been brought by the M. P. T. O. of Ohio to a letter written by R. H. Cochrane, vice-president of Universal, in opposition to the Brookhart bill. The letter, sent to many exhibitors, says that it would be impossible to sell "Universal Complete Service" if the Brookhart bill is passed. Members of the Ohio organization have been urged in a message issued by P. J. Wood, business manager, to pay no attention to the Cochrane letter.

Bandit Fires One Shot; Kills Manager, Wounds Girl; Escapes without Receipts

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—A bullet fired by one of a trio of bandits passed through the head of Max T. Harrison, assistant manager of the Cross Keys theatre, killing him instantly and seriously wounded a 17-year-old girl patron. The attempted holdup occurred at 10:30 p. m. last Friday night when the three bandits attacked Harrison coming out of the cashier's cage with a sack containing $700. When Harrison fell dead the bandits fled without the money. They have not been captured.

Two Premieres of Unusual Merit Win Plaudits of Broadway

Clarence Brown's Fine Directorial Touch Seen in "The Trail of '98" at Astor—"Two Lovers" Welcomed at Embassy

By PETER VISCHER

NEW YORK, March 28.—Broadway had two openings of unusual interest during the past week and now there are that many more special pictures drawing crowds.

"THE Trail of '98," after the famous Klondyke poem by Robert W. Service, had a gala opening at the Astor theatre before an especially invited list of notables, including many of importance in the film industry. The picture, directed with a fine touch by Clarence Brown, was given an ovation and ought to have a long run.

"Phantom" Screen Well Received

A so-called "phantom" screen caught the eyes of New York critics, who were all friendly to the picture. They found its story thrilling, its pace keen, its acting vivid, its direction exhilarating. Dolores Del Rio, Ralph Forbes, and Karl Dane were among those given enthusiastic hands for their work in the picture.

Among those especially invited to the premiere were:

Will H. Hays, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Loew; Mr. and Mrs. David Loew; Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Schenck; Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Zukor; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Selwyn; Mr. and Mrs. David Bernstein; Irving Rosshelm, president of the Stan'ey Co. of America; Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Rubin; Major and Mrs. Edward Bowes; Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Hammons; Albert L. Grey; Mr. and Mrs. Hector Fuller; Mr. and Mrs. Sidney William; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McCarthy; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carey; Mr. and Mrs. John Cecil Graham; former United States Marshal Thomas D. McCarthy; Sidney R. Kent; Sam Katz; David Warfield.

"Two Lovers" Welcomed

The smaller Embassy theatre, once operated by Gloria Gould as a very exclusive house, was packed to the doors for the opening of "Two Lovers," which brought that popular pair, Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky, back to New York. They were welcomed with open arms.

A charming story, ably handled by Fred Niblo, turned the once-famous story, "Leatherface," by Baroness Orczy, into a thoroughly entertaining picture. Despite the fact that it treats of days gone by, it received none of the criticisms generally leveled at so-called "costume" dramas.

New York is apparently thoroughly sold on Colman and Banky. They are welcome many times over and deserved the applause they got all through the opening night of their picture.

Ten Take New Positions In First National Spring Shift in Sales Personnel

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 27.—First National, in preparation for the spring selling season, has made a number of changes in the sales force. D. P. Rathbone, manager at Memphis, has been promoted to manager at St. Louis. Fred M. Jack, assistant manager at Atlanta, has been made manager at Memphis. C. A. Clegg, traveling representative, has been promoted to manager at Atlanta. R. S. Wehrle, representative of the foreign department in Central Europe, has been transferred to the United States and appointed manager at the Albany exchange.

G. M. Hoyt, salesman in the St. John territory, has been promoted to the position of manager of the St. John branch; L. E. Davis, manager at Seattle, to be manager at Portland; L. O. Lukan, special field representative, to be manager at Seattle; R. C. Seery, former manager at Chicago, to be special home office representative, with headquarters at Los Angeles; Gradwell Sears, former manager at Cleveland, to be manager at Chicago; Carl Lesserman, assistant manager at Chicago, to be manager at Cleveland.

Elect First Officers for Sapiro's "Co-op"; Hold Dinner in His Honor

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 27.—At the first regular meeting of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association, Inc., Aaron Sapiro's "co-op" organization, the following officers were elected: Aaron Sapiro, president; J. Arthur Hirsch, vice-president; Lawrence Bolognino, treasurer, and Herbert R. Ebenstein, secretary. The executive committee includes Leo Brecher, Samuel Merman, Max Richter; board of directors, Leo Brecher, Samuel Berman, Bernard Grob, J. Arthur Hirsch, William A. Landau, Samuel Lesselbaum, Elias Mayer, Max Richter, Edward Rugoff, Henry Segal, Rudolph Sanders, Samuel Schwartz, Harry Suchman and Harman Yaffa.

On April 16 a dinner will be held in honor of Sapiro by the Theatre Owners' Chamber of Commerce of New York City. Guests invited will include Adolph Zukor, William Fox, E. F. Albee, Nicholas M. Schenck, Samuel Spring, Louis B. Mayer, Jesse L. Lasky, Sidney R. Kent, Joseph M. Schenck, J. J. Murdock, Will H. Hays, Joseph P. Kennedy and Dr. A. H. Giannini.

Fox Transfers Kendrick

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

DENVER, March 27.—H. M. S. Kendrick, manager of Fox theatres here, has been transferred to the New York office, where he will do special field work. R. V. Conner succeeds Kendrick as manager of the Denver theatres.

Producer Buys "Ringside"

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 27.—Hyatt Daab and Ted Paramore, Jr., of F B O, have sold a play, "Ringside," written by them, to Gene Buck, New York theatrical producer.

$6,500,000 Wasted in Film Venture by German Navy

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

BERLIN, March 27.—Germany's recent dabble in the motion picture producing business is in for a lot of serious discussion today. It has been definitely established by the reichstag ways and means committee that almost 26,000,000 marks (about $6,500,000) of government money was mis-spent by the naval department in film and other ventures. Much of the money is said to have gone toward financing the "Phoebus" film company. Asked by the reichstag for an explanation, Chancellor Marx declared that he did not know anything about the venture. Berlin newspapers declare that the disbursements had been going for five years.

F & R Opens Large Minneapolis House; 4,000 at Premiere

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

MINNEAPOLIS, March 27.—Minneapolis dedicated its newest and largest motion picture theatre, the Minnesota, last Friday night in gala style. More than 4,000 attended the opening performance, with state and city officials and leaders present. On Saturday the theatre was opened to the general public and showed to record crowds all day.

The Minnesota was erected at a cost exceeding $1,250,000. Built by a group of local business men, it is operated by Publix, under the direction of Finklestein & Ruben. Paramount's "Sporting Goods," starring Richard Dix, was the opening screen attraction, shown in conjunction with a Publix stage show.

New Projects and Openings To Add 6 Film Theatres

Plans for new motion picture theatres and approaching openings of others about completed will add six houses to the nation's list.

Bids have been received on the construction of the Capitol, a $300,000 theatre in Anderson, Ind., to seat 1,600. Work will begin soon on a 2,500 seat house in Marion, O., to be erected by the Young Amusement Company of Chicago. A $150,000 theatre is to be built at Princeton, Ind.

Approaching openings include those of the Park, Louisville, April 15; the Uptown, Louisville, April 7; and the Irvington, Irvington, Ky., at an indefinite date soon.

T. E. Goll, formerly of Fort Wayne, Ind., has leased the Grand and Colonial at Peru, Ind. The Apollo, Indianapolis, has been leased for ten years by the Fourth Avenue Amusement Company of Louisville. At New Haven, Ky., Leslie Ray has bought a theatre from Joe Foote, who has gone to Jasonville, Ind., to operate a theatre. R. G. Marchbank has sold the Liberty, Estacada, Ore., to W. C. Perry.

In Shanghai, China, a new theatre, called the Capitol, will be opened in the near future.

Columbia Reports Big Response to Campaign Which Closes April 7

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 27.—Columbia reports exhibitor interest reflected throughout the country in connection with its Victory Drive which closes April 7 after a seven weeks' campaign that started February 20.

To theatres which never have shown Columbia product the company offers six long features at a price which, the home office says, is worth while, the group including "The Blood Ship," "Alias the Lone Wolf," "Sally in Our Alley," "The Tigress," "The Opening Night" and "The Warning." All six have been used to open new theatres.

The company also announced that it has extended to exhibitors the privilege of making substitutions on the same basis as on other product, giving the theatreman his own choice of the 1927-28 product, already released.

Arrest Youth Charged With Dropping Tear Bomb

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

SEATTLE, March 27.—Arthur Campbell, 22, was arrested here charged with dropping a tear bomb in the Embassy theatre. C. C. Cohen, manager of the theatre, swore to the complaint and the prisoner was held in jail in lieu of $1,000 bail.

First National's growing production units in England and Germany will be inspected by Samuel Springer, vice-president and treasurer (at left), this summer. He sailed with E. Bruce Johnson, vice-president in charge of the foreign department (at right), who has been in America for a number of weeks. Before their departure, they were guests of honor at a dinner given by President Clifford B. Hawley and Mrs. Hawley.

Director Irvin Willat (standing with cap on) giving some thirty-minute eggs the low-down on a gambling scene for "The Michigan Kid," Universal "meller." The cove with steel in his eye wearing a black hat, is Conrad Nagel, who co-stars with Renee Adoree. She's the dame down front facing Willat. Heart's is trump. (Herald-World photo.)

Here are two popular English players with the British unit of First National, entrancingly photographed for American film folks. Mason and Miss Clark are working in "God's Clay," which is being filmed at the studio near London.

A new face among the featured players is Ann Page, whom M-G-M proudly asserts it discovered. Miss Page was given a featured role in support of William Haines, in "He Learned About Women."

Greeting "Miss New Zealand" upon completion of her 6,500 mile trip to Hollywood to appear in M-G-M productions. She is Dale Austen, who was the victor in a New Zealand "Film Star" contest. Paul Bern, M-G-M executive, is shown doing the honors.

Spring BRINGS These

Jazz, smashing traditions . . . American . . . new . . . and captivating the World! This is the theme of Universal's "Jazz Mad," which, perhaps, is epitomized in the scene pictured above. Jean Hersholt and Marian Nixon are featured in this drama, which is scheduled for release June 3.

The hokum that is Chinatown, especially that which the Sunday supplements used to say went on in New York's Chinatown—this makes a comic holiday for Johnny Hines in his latest First National laugh-film, "Chinatown Charlie." It's to be released April 15.

They learn their "detectiving" through the mail, do Wallace Beery (left) and Raymond Hatton in Paramount's "Partners in Crime." Mary Brian is the victim in this scene. The film was released March 3.

Between the Scenes

Above — Success rewards a little between-scene angling by Ernest Torrence. While on location for "Across to Singapore," M-G-M picture starring Ramon Navarro, Torrence found the fishing waters too handy to resist. And wasn't his weakness justified?

The dire consequence of Tom Moore's stepping out between scenes at Universal, thereby holding up the "shooting" of "Anybody Here Seen Kelly?" Tom is Kelly and very necessary. So (as per the picture) the song was revived on the spot by Leight Jacobson, who wrote the story (left); Bessie Love, the star; and Willy Wyler, the director.

The old and the new West, as it were. But this is indeed no tableau, just an informal between-scene grouping to accommodate the ubiquitous celebrity-"shooter." These are the principal members of Paramount's Fred Thomson unit, recorded during the filming of sequences for "The Sunset Legion." From left to right are pictured Al Werker, associated with Lloyd Ingraham in the direction; Fred Thomson, Edna Murphy, feminine lead; and Ingraham. (Herald-World photo.)

Preparedness? No, no. The automobile is deceiving. No, roller skating has been revived in dear old Hollywood as a sport, and here is May McAvoy, Warner Brothers' star, about to take a little exercise on borrowed power, while waiting for the next scene.

Lenten Shows Harvest Profit As Exhibitors Run Best Films

New York State Theatre Owners Chase Bugaboo and Patrons Respond When They Find Season Is Not Used to Work Off Poor Pictures

[By Special Correspondent of Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World]

ALBANY, March 27. — Now that the Lenten season is practically over, many exhibitors in central and northern New York are anxious to know how the season has affected exhibitors in other parts of the country, what they have done to overcome the effects of a season that had long been a bugaboo to the theatre owner and what, if any, success has marked innovations that have been tried in an effort to hold patronage.

Will Show Profit in New York

These exhibitors of central and northern New York are anxious to profit next year from the experience of fellow exhibitors. Exhibitors in Albany, however, have answered the problem in their own way this year, and with the result that when the Lenten season is over the first run houses will have been able to show a profit rather than a loss.

Some of the Albany exhibitors have found it to their advantage to use, during the last few weeks, some of the very best pictures they had booked for the year. These theatres have drawn heavy patronage and while there is no question but that Lenten devotions have made inroads in the business, the lost patronage from this cause has been far less this year than in past seasons.

Find Money Outlay Pays

It was only a year or two ago that the Albany exhibitors woke up to the fact that there was no need of being whipped to a frazzle by poor business during Lent, and that the fault rested entirely with themselves rather than with the general public. They decided to spend money during Lent, in using additional newspaper space, to call attention to pictures that ordinarily would be shown outside of the lenten season and which were surefire winners nine times out of ten.

The results surprised the exhibitors, for instead of playing to one-third or one-quarter houses, they discovered that there were a great many people who would attend the theatres provided they were not shown inferior product.

As the exhibitor had been living with the idea for many years that Lent was the time to work off his poor pictures, so had the patron been led to feel that this was what he had to expect during the Lenten season.

Some of the exhibitors in Albany have braced up business wonderfully through contests, or with fashion shows, or through the use of double features, or by adding two or three vaudeville acts to the bill.

Another thing that had escaped the notice of the exhibitors was that persons attending the early evening church services during Lent were inclined to take a walk perhaps afterward, and to drop in the motion picture theatre that presented a first class bill of entertainment.

Stage Notables Gather At Jewish Guild Benefit

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 27.—The benefit held by the Jewish Theatrical Guild Sunday night proved to be a brilliant gathering of theatrical celebrities. The affair was a huge success, not only in attendance, but in realization of its charitable purpose.

Among those present were Paul Whiteman and his orchestra; Joe Weber and Lew Fields; Mary Nash, Sigmund Romberg, Vincent Lopez, Tom Wise and many other famous stage people. War veterans were guests of the guild, under the chaperonage of Emma Frohman.

F-N to Hold Conventions in Atlantic City, Kansas City and San Francisco

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 27.—First National Pictures will hold conventions in three cities this spring to outline to the field forces the plans for selling the 1928-29 product. The cities and dates are: Atlantic City, April 27-29; Kansas City, May 1-3 and San Francisco, May 7-9.

A delegation from the home office and the studios, including Ned E. Depinet, Clifford B. Hawley and Richard A. Rowland, will be in attendance at each convention.

Rossheim Sees Stanley Doubling Income in 1928

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—Irving D. Rossheim, president of the Stanley Company of America, said that he looked forward confidently to the doubling in 1928 of the revenue of the Stanley company in 1927. The statement was made at a dinner given last week by 200 men prominent in the film and financial worlds, at which Rossheim was guest of honor.

Among those present were Harry A. Mackey, mayor of Philadelphia; Adolph Zukor, president of Paramount; Clifford D. Hawley, president of First National; Nicholas Schenck and Felix Feist of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; Sidney R. Kent of Paramount; Lee Shubert, and Albert L. Smith of the banking firm of F. B. Smith & Company.

Paramount Pep Club's Studio Party Visited By New York's Notables

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 27.—New York's array of stage and screen folk turned out in large numbers for the big studio party held by the Paramount Pep Club last Friday night at the Astor hotel. Specialty features, personal appearances of stage stars and a dinner at midnight were features of the affair.

Universal Club Elects Goldstein

NEW YORK.—The Universal club, composed of the entire staff of the home office, has elected E. H. Goldstein, treasurer of Universal Pictures Corporation, as president.

KNOW YOUR SALES LEADERS

FELIX F. FEIST, who is in complete charge of sales and distribution for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation, found his place in this industry through real honest-to-goodness work. In each position he undertook he worked with a zest until he grew bigger and broader than his talk and then found himself in a higher niche, again working with renewed interest. He is now one of the industry's leaders.

IN 1907, having completed a valuable training period in the advertising field, he became advertising manager for Kinemacolor Company of America. That was his first connection with motion pictures.

Once in the business there are few who ever have an inclination to leave. Mr. Feist was certainly not one of these few. In 1909 he assumed the presidency of the Celebrated Players Film Corporation at Chicago and left only when in 1913 he became general manager and secretary of the Equitable Pictures Corporation, which later merged with the World Film Corporation.

Acknowledging his splendid work, Goldwyn Distributing Corporation in 1917 appointed him vice-president and general manager of sales and distribution. Two years later he joined the Joseph M. Schenck Productions as supervisor of distribution of special features and continued until he rose in 1925 to his present place as general sales manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and in him this company has found a loyal and splendid worker and executive.

Born in New York, July 15, 1883, Mr. Feist is a resident of that city with his family of wife and two children.

Labor Chief Held In Hammond Film Theatre Bombing

Harry Ames and Dean Malloy are being held in $40,000 bond by the Crown Point, Ind., police, in connection with bombing last November of the State theatre at Hammond, Ind. Prosecutor Oliver Starr received the charges from Elmer Vroonian, deputy state fire marshal.

The bombing of the theatre, it is said, was due to the efforts of the union to get control of the construction work. Ames is business agent of the union.

NEW YORK, March 27.—According to Walter E. Greene, president of Brenda Pictures Corporation, "The Port of Missing Girls," the first of a series of pictures to be produced by the company, has been purchased on a states right basis by the Commonwealth Film Corporation, servicing the New York metropolitan section, and by the American Feature Film company, of Boston for the New England rights.

Film Photographing True Colors Cheaply Invented

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

PARIS, March 27.—Motion pictures in true colors will be possible in any screen theatre if practical application of a new invention bears out the results of tests made here. Special treatment of the negative adds but a small cost, and only a small attachment is necessary on the projector. Keller-Dorian, an engineer, is the inventor.

Censor Repeal in N. Y. Seems Lost for Years

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

ALBANY, March 27.—All motion picture legislation, with one exception, was knifed last week in the closing hours of the New York legislature. Censorship repeal remained in committee. With Governor Alfred E. Smith serving his last year, there is little hope in the future for a repeal of censorship.

Theatres Win Cooperation Of Pittsburgh Newspapers

Frequent Tieups Made with Motion Picture Houses—Special Exploitation Ideas Well Received—Contest Increases Circulation 10,000 in Day

(By Special Correspondent Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

PITTSBURGH, March 28.—The three papers in Pittsburgh, one morning and two afternoon publications, are firm believers in news of the motion picture industry, as the value of this news for reader interest and paper sales has been proved.

Circulation Jumps 10,000

When a marathon dance contest was held recently, the circulation of the afternoon papers increased 10,000 to 15,000 the day the contest ended, with many hundreds phoning in for word. All the three papers are part of a group, the Post Gazette, morning paper, one of the Paul Block group, the Sun-Telegraph (afternoon), a Hearst paper, and the Press, run by the Scripps-Howard interests.

The Hearst paper runs syndicate articles daily as well as a local column daily. A full page is set for the theatre and motion picture each day with six pages allotted on Sunday. Cuts and stories that have merit and reader interest can easily find their way on this page. In addition, many special exploitation ideas have been worked. Each time the paper starts a serial story it runs an eight-column layout of pictures and stories to advertise the story a week in advance. Talent playing the local theatres is used to illustrate these stories.

Passes for Classified Ad Letters

The classified ad department also recently offered passes to Loew's Aldine for the best letters on results obtained by advertisers. Then acts were photographed out at the miners' homes where they were giving them food, and so on. Other stunts find a receptive mood from the editors.

The Press, although not running a daily column, gives a full page of reviews on Tuesday with cartoon review of one show, this alternating, and gives four pages to its dramatic section on Sunday. During the week it will run in its news columns stories of local theatre interest.

Special Exploitation Welcomed

The Press also looks favorably on special exploitations. An idea recently applied was this: A four-column cut and story was allotted on the reaction of a reporter watching a blonde and her emotions during a love scene. This was a follow-up on a Ziegfeld blonde-brunette story, asking girls at Loew's Penn whom they would rather marry, Tunney, Lindbergh, or the Prince of Wales.

The Post-Gazette, the only morning paper, daily devotes two columns to motion pictures and stage news, mostly local. This paper does not publish on Sunday, but gives a full page on Saturday, featuring the stage attractions at all theatres, and on Monday a full page to pictures that open that day. As all the houses open on Monday, this has been very beneficial. All the picture houses run their Sunday copy for the paper in return for this full page of layouts and stories.

Articles Well Illustrated.

A peculiar angle is the fact that only the Sun-Telegraph sends a reviewer to the motion picture and vaudeville houses, the press representative providing the other two papers with reviews.

When any syndicate sends over a story concerning a star, the paper features the news with large cuts on page one, two or three. This includes all papers.

There's a Silver Lining To Blue Laws in Kansas

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

KANSAS CITY, March 27.—While the Midland theatre, Kansas City's largest house, was reducing its admission price from 60 to 50 cents this week, theatre owners of Topeka, Kan., were successfully combating a blue law code of ancient standing.

Kansas blue laws provide that benefits only, with no admission charged, can be staged Sundays. Therefore, the Princess, Cozy, Orpheum and Gem have established "silver offering" performances on Sundays. The patrons making their offering at the box office and receive a ticket which passes them through the door. This week the Novelty joined the group. There is no law under which the showmen can be prosecuted as long as no established admission price is charged.

Sunday Fight Obscures Mayoral Election; Wins

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

ALBANY, March 27.—Sunday motion pictures won out at the annual spring elections last week in Port Henry by a vote of 221 to 152. In Norwood by a vote of 309 to 286. The spirited Sunday drive caused more real campaigning than did the election of a mayor and trustees.

Struble Becomes Editor

KANSAS CITY, March 27.—C. D. Struble, formerly connected with National Theatre Supply Company, has joined the organization of Associated Publications, Inc., as vice-president and business manager. He will also act as associate editor.

Three Cheers for Girl! She Foils Bold Bandit

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

LONG BEACH, CAL., March 27.—To shoot or to run—that was the question a bandit had to face recently when he attempted to rob Miss Valerie Marion, cashier, of the $700 receipts of the West Coast theatre.

Unlike Coolidge, the bandit chose to run. It happened this way: The bandit stuck a gun in the cashier's cage and demanded $700 in receipts. But he failed to reckon with modern girls' courage. "Get out of here," Miss Marion demanded. "What do you think this is? You're not at a Wild West show now." It was either shoot or run for the bandit. He ran.

Players' Contract Awaiting Approval Of the Producers

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 27.—The standard contract for motion picture players, which has met many vicissitudes in the past twelve months, is today awaiting ratification of producers before it is returned to directors of the film academy for final approval.

It received thorough discussion Thursday night and two days later was formally ratified by the actors' branch of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

By the revamped phrasing of the contract, free lance players must be employed for a minimum of one week. Retakes must be given every consideration by players called for them, although otherwise employed at the time. Actors are required to observe only reasonable considerations, regulations and rules of the studios. Producers must pay all accrued earnings, plus one week's salary, on the cancellation of an actor's contract, and any dispute on the part of an actor and producer must be referred to the conciliation committee of the academy.

M. C. Levee is producer member and chairman of the committee; Conrad Nagel and Hallam Cooley, actor members; and B. P. Schulberg, a producer member. William De Mille represents the academy as a whole.

Fox's "Park Row" Staff Is Increased by Four Well Known Writers

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 27.—Four well-known writers have lately been added to the Fox staff quartered in the new "Park Row" building of the company. They are Wilson Mizner, well known playwright; Velva Darling, feminine humorist and author of "Hey, Hey, Henrietta," a syndicated comedy feature to be put in pictures; Charles Francis Coe, author of "Me—Gangster" and "The River Pirate," and Berthold Viertel, German author and playwright.

C. L. Yearsley, who was called to London as a witness for J. D. Williams in his suit against British National Pictures, visited with acquaintances in Chicago last week on his return to the Coast.

Five Big Companies on Normal Schedules; Seven Lots Quiet

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Finishes Four; Paul Stein Completes Leatrice Joy Film for Pathe; Dorothy Mackaill Starring in "The Whip" for First National

By DOUGLAS HODGES

HOLLYWOOD, March 27.—Although there has been no marked increase in activity at the studios there have been many shifts in the production situation recently. The bulk of the shooting is being done by a limited number of big studios. The busiest lots are the following:

First National	6 productions
Fox	5 productions
Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer	4 productions
Paramount	7 productions
De Mille	3 productions

Aside from these there are eight pictures being shot here and there around Hollywood.

Among the lots that are entirely inactive are Christie, Mack Sennett, Gotham, Tec Art and United Artists.

Pictures that will soon be shipped to exchanges include four made by M-G-M. One is "Iron Mike," which Sam Wood directed with Bill Haines in the star role. The second is "Detectives," directed by Chester Franklin. The featured team is Dane and Arthur. Another is Mal St. Clair's "Man About Town," with Aileen Pringle and Lew Cody. St. Clair, incidentally, will probably return to Paramount for his next film. The fourth finished at M-G-M is "Masked Ranger."

Eve Southern in Two Big Roles

Eve Southern, who is attracting widespread attention as a principal in "The Gaucho," last week finished her role in "Clothes Make the Woman" for Tiffany-Stahl and began immediately in "Stormy Waters" for the same company. Edgar Lewis, who is known by everyone in the trade, is directing her in the latter.

The only other picture completed last week was "Man Made Woman," which Paul Stein directed for Pathe-De Mille. Stein usually makes them well and, with Leatrice Joy in the star role, should have a great piece of entertainment here unless the story is weak. One never knows about a story until after it is screened.

Dorothy Mackaill in "The Whip"

There were few pictures of note to go into production last week. One was "The Whip," in which Dorothy Mackaill is starred. Charles Brabin is the director, and Ralph Forbes, he of "The Enemy," has trudded to First National at Burbank for a supporting role in the picture, as we understand it.

Columbia started a mother picture in which three great favorites appear. They are Helene Chadwick, Barbara Kent and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. It is called "Modern Mothers."

Tom Mix Quits Hollywood; Feted at Banquets and Luncheons

Christie Signs MacLean for Two—George Weeks Visits Coast—Bill Hart and Newhall Cowboys Build a Shrine—PFL Lot Stoned

By RAY MURRAY

HOLLYWOOD, March 27.—Tom Mix left here March 23 on a trip that will end in Buenos Aires, where he will soon begin production on a series of Mix films to be released by F B O.

Mix spent his last 48 hours as guest of honor at banquets and luncheons given by his many friends in the film colony.

The only mar on the festive departure was the discovery of a civil action brought against the actor last week by A. MacArthur, who charged him with breach of contract.

MacArthur named Mix defendant in a suit for an accounting and $25,000 damages, filed in Superior court. According to the plaintiff, he and Mix entered into an agreement in 1920, under which he was to act as Mix's professional agent at a salary of $350 a week and ten per cent of the compensation paid Mix on any new contracts obtained for the actor by MacArthur. The plaintiff declares he dropped negotiations for Mix when informed by the latter that Fox expected to exercise options held on the actor's services.

Al Christie last week signed Douglas MacLean to star in two feature productions to be made at the Christie studios for Paramount and to be released this season.

The deal was consummated by George W. Weeks, general Christie-Paramount representative, who was here last week conferring with the Christie brothers on the product for 1928-29.

Several stories are under consideration for MacLean by Christie and the titles will have been selected by the time the complete season program is announced May 1.

A simple white monument bearing the following inscription was placed on a hill near Santa Paula last week:

"To the Unknown Little Soldier of the Santa Clara River Flood, March 13, 1928. Erected by the Cowboys of Newhall."

The "unknown little soldier" is a three-year-old boy who lay unidentified since he was taken to the morgue in Newhall early last week with his yellow hair combed to cover a gash in his forehead. Hundreds viewed the little body but none knew him.

William S. Hart and cowboys of the valley subscribed to a burial fund. The cortege left the Masonic hall in Newhall Sunday and went to the Ruiz cemetery, two miles north of Harry Carey's ranch, where eight other flood victims are buried.

The Paramount studio was the target of a stoning bee one night last week, when 1,000 Russian extras were told there was no work and that they must "go away." The extras complained that they had been called by a casting office and that they were determined to collect their pay. A riot ensued after a few of the actors had been admitted to the lot. Police were called to quell the disturbance, but no arrests were made.

Mrs. Reid Making Gotham's "Hell Ship" to Star Howes

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 27.—"Hell Ship Bronson," a Gotham production, is being directed by Joseph Henabery. Mrs. Wallace Reid is in charge of production. Sam Sax, president of the company, has signed Reed Howes for the juvenile lead and Noah Beery is to play the heavy.

Rudy's Brother Protests

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 27.—Alberto Guglielmi, brother of the late Rudolph Valentino, has filed an objection to the first annual accounting of the estate of the film star. The complaint is filed against George Ullman, who was Valentino's attorney and confidential agent, and a hot contest is expected when the case is called next Tuesday.

Wood to Direct Shearer

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD, March 27.—Sam Wood will direct Norma Shearer's next picture for M-G-M, entitled "Ballyhoo." At the present time he is busy cutting and editing, "He Learned About Women." It is expected that "Ballyhoo" will go into production about June 1; with Johnny Mack Brown playing opposite Miss Shearer.

HOLLYWOOD, March 27.—Jean Hersholt will star in "Sutter's Gold," Carl Laemmle announced today.

"Greatest Civilizing Force," London Judge Calls Films

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

NEW YORK, March 27.—Motion pictures were called "the greatest civilizing force" and a deterrent to crime, by authorities in London and Edinburgh, England, according to reports received by the A. M. P. D. A. J. A. R. Cairns, police magistrate in the slum district of London, in a recent address declared, "I am certain the cinema is the greatest civilizing force among us. Childhood is introduced into a world of harmonies and beauty, and adolescence and middle age have consolations and vistas of a bigger world than that of work and toil." In Edinburgh, Rodney Ross, chief constable, in pointing out the remarkable diminution of crime in that city the past seven years, said that he "did not hesitate to name the cinema as one of the chief contributory causes."

Simple Rites Mark Burial of Mary Pickford's Mother

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

BEVERLY HILLS CAL., March 27.—Simple funeral rites marked the burial last Saturday of Mrs. Charlotte Hennessy Pickford, mother of Mary Pickford.

Mrs. Pickford has suffered from a lingering illness for the last three years and at her bedside at her death were all the members of her family, including her three children, Mary, Jack and Lottie Pickford.

The family name was Smith, but the family years ago adopted the stage name of Pickford. At the time of her death Mrs. Pickford was a full business partner in her daughter's film producing company.

Expect Reunion of Asher, Small, Rogers; Six Big Productions

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

HOLLYWOOD March 27.—Whatever it was that happened to the Asher, Small and Rogers combination a few months ago has obviously had its evolution. An unofficial but well grounded report reached EXHIBITORS HERALD AND MOVING PICTURE WORLD today that they are amicably working on a plan to produce six big pictures. The releases will be arranged for companies best suited to the particular productions rather than to be distributed by one company. First National will handle a number of the films while Warner Brothers, Pathe, and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer are mentioned as distributors of others.

The actual production supervision will most likely be in the hands of Edward Small. The first production will be Bayard Veiller's "The Painted Face," a new stage play.

Newsreel Airmen Brave Death To Cover California Dam Break

How newsreel photographers braved death in the air over the wreckage caused by the breaking of the St. Francis dam which cost 300 lives in the California valley, is exemplified in the experience of Sanford Greenwald, Paramount News cameraman.

Forced Landing Averted

Before the rescue workers had made their way through the havoc wrought by the stampeding waters, Greenwald was out over the flooded valley in an airplane with a pilot, snapping shots of the scenes of tragedy and sometimes swooping down to within a comparatively few feet of the water. At one time a forced landing seemed imminent, and any landing in that chaos would have meant death. Then the plane gathered momentum and height and rushed away to Los Angeles, where the pictures were picked up by air mail and sped to New York.

"We received the first flash on the disaster only a few minutes after the news reached Los Angeles," Greenwald said, "and Joseph Johnson, manager of Paramount's Los Angeles News bureau, had already mapped out our campaign. As a result, before daylight I took off in a plane and at the same time Johnson set out in a fast car with Irby Koverman, our other cameraman, to try and enter the flooded area for closeup scenes.

Roaring River of Mud

"From the sketchy facts that I had obtained before leaving, my pilot had trouble finding the San Francisco canyon but once over the valley there was no mistake as to what had happened. Ten billion gallons of water had wiped the valley clean of every sign of life. And as the sun came up nothing remained but one great fragment of the dam, a river of mud that roared down the canyon, and masses of rubbish and wreckage.

"It was a mean job to shoot from a plane. To show anything at all but mud and water you had to get down pretty close. So after making some general shots we started diving into the canyon for the closeups. In this way we worked our way right down the valley, from above the dam down to where the water had spread out for miles over the lowlands, dropping to within a few feet of the water when we saw a picture, and then climbing for altitude and safety.

Plane Lurches, Slips

"We had one really close shave. We were down close to the water at a place where the canyon was both narrow and deep. Something let go, probably part of the valley's wall having been undermined. At any rate an unusually heavy gust of air struck us. The plane gave a lurch and started slipping sideways. For a moment I was sure we were gone. But luck seemed to hold and we climbed away from the mud and water with inches to spare. One plane that followed us out of Los Angeles to make a survey for one of the power companies was not so lucky. It has not been heard from since it reached the valley."

FitzPatrick Directing Subject for Movietone

A special Movietone short feature of the life and music of Stephen Foster is being directed by James A. FitzPatrick under the title of "In a Music Shoppe." Erno Rapee is directing the orchestra, and in the cast are Consuelo Flowerton, Tom Morgan, Emily Francis and the Manhatters Male Quartet.

FitzPatrick has four years of experience in "musical pictures," having made such series as Famous Melodies, Famous Music Masters and the recently completed Schubert Centennial Series.

Newsreel Is Big Item to Australian Patrons

Ashton Stevens, Chicago Herald-Examiner theatre critic, quotes from his "old friend and deskmate, John Joseph," as follows regarding the newsreel's importance in Australia:

"You were writing about newsreels. I heard from an Australian theatre architect who went through town the other day that in Australia the newsreels are the big item. Only over there they call them gazettes.

"Clara Bow and Emil Jannings don't mean much. The big lights and signs are for the gazettes, and if there isn't a sign the Australian movie fans ask before purchasing a ticket: 'Is there a new gazette showing?' Either they have terrible newspapers or, as a race, they are like you and me in enjoying newsreels and travel pictures."

Jerry Drew Comedian of Highest Rank in His New Educational Film

Jerry Drew, say the so-called preview critics, certainly "clicked" in his new two-reel Educational comedy, "Ladies Preferred." And as a result, Drew steps up into the very front ranks of short-comedy stars.

This young comedian, who depends on neither queer clothes nor falls to get the laughs, is a protege of Jack White, Educational's director-in-chief. Bringing out comedy stars is, of course, a habit with White. Consider "Big Boy," Lloyd Hamilton, and Monty Collins. Now Drew is added to the list, even though it is only a short while back that he began acting.

Film Houses Need Not Fear Summer

Artists Should Change Routine Before Repeats

New Songs and Chatter Should Replace Old, When Playing Return Engagements

By EDMUND ANTHONY

It is advisable for presentation acts, touring the deluxe picture theatres all over the company, to keep a record of the various songs and chatter used at each house, so that in the event that they repeat an engagement, they will not be compelled to use the same routine. This happened in many cases during the past few years.

Masters of ceremonies, who are permanently stationed at some theatre, should be more careful in this instance for the simple reason that they have the same audience to play to every week.

If a certain artist is accustomed to a certain type of songs or special line of chatter, it is wise to use that particular type fitted for his or her ability. However, the same song or joke used more than once in the same house does not please the audience nor go over with a bang as a rule.

It's been our experience in conducting this department, to find that through our various visits at theatres, and through the numerous stage reports we receive from our out-of-town correspondents, to learn that some artists select a certain song and stick to it throughout the entire route of their engagement.

This is all right in some cases if the stage-show happens to be a unit that carries a story or plot that requires that particular type of song. But, it seems that these performers make a very big mistake by not changing their routine every once in a while by getting themselves up in new numbers.

In other words, operatic stars are noted not only for their voices and ability to play their roles, but also for the repertoire of songs they have in their mind. There is no great amount of trouble or work connected with a presentation artist playing picture houses to prepare and have a reasonable repertoire of songs that will entertain. Make it your business to have something different at every return date.

Some artists have also won fame and considerable drawing power through the use of special materials and songs. It pays to invest a little money in your own talent.

Meet Mr. Meikel

Members of his organ club at the Harding theatre, Chicago, just call him plain Eddie—if there is any doubt in your mind about community singing, visit the Harding on any night and you will be convinced that it all depends on the organist—Eddie is always doing some clever novelty and for that reason he has made himself a box-office attraction at this theatre.

Romano Starts Country Club for Performers

Founders of the Chicago Comedy Club have also become interested, with Carme Romano, the well-known Chicago theatrical real estate man, in the formation of the Comedy Country Club.

The purpose of this club is to give the performers and members of the theatrical profession an opportunity to enjoy outside sports when at leisure, such as boating, fishing and golfing.

The club has already purchased 213 acres of land in Winchester, Wisconsin, right close to the Turtle Lake Country Club and the Stuben Club. Next year about this time, a clubhouse will be erected on the property.

The officers of the club are as follows: Milton Weil, president; Al Beilin, vice-president; and Carme Romano, secretary and treasurer. The board of directors consists of the officers and following: Walter Donovan, Ez Keough, J. Fagan, George Riley, Hannibal Muscato, and Ted Leary.

The first hundred members will be admitted at $100 apiece as charter members. The membership will be limited to 1,000, and the dues for the balance will range from $125 to $200 a year. Most of the charter members have been secured at this writing.

Better Program And Comfort Draw Crowds

Cooling Systems and House Comforts Will Bring People into Your Theatre

By A. RAYMOND GALLO

With the approaching summer months not very far off every deluxe motion picture circuit and independent exhibitor is wondering whether or not the same type of stageshows will keep their patrons coming into their theatres, or if they will take to the parks and outdoor amusements.

It is true, that every summer many theatres are confronted with this problem, but it is also true, that with the exception of a few small neighborhood theatres and some vaudeville houses scattered here and there in various parts of the country, that the greatest portion of the theatres will remain open.

With the modern improvements and wonderful ventilating systems now in the picture houses, there is no cause to worry that summer will hurt the box office. As a matter of fact, there are thousands of people who have found out from past experience that a warm evening or a hot afternoon can be more comfortably spent seated quietly in a theatre than being out in the scorching sun.

If the proper motion pictures with the usual box office drawing power are booked, with some unusual stageshows properly produced and presenting good talent with box-office names now and then, we shall go as far as making the statement that summer business may be as good as fall and if the profits are not as large, you will at least be able to hold your own.

Don't let the summer alarm you and by all means do not make any attempt to cut down on your cost of entertainment program. The only way you will be able to entice the crowd into your theatres is by good shows at popular prices. Outside amusements offer inducements and so must you in order to get your share of the business.

A cool head in the summer time is a great asset to a theatre manager, and in the long run brings in the dollars at the box office. Let your patrons know how cool and comfortable your theatre is and if they are not misled by your statements, you will find that they will respond to your call.

Sam 'n' Henry, radio artists who became famous through their broadcasting on WGN, the Chicago Tribune station, are no longer with that publication and are now broadcasting through WMAQ, the Chicago Daily News station.

They are now known as Amos 'n' Andy, and broadcast every evening at 7:11 P. M. A cartoon strip also appears in the News daily by "Correl and Gosden" (Amos 'n' Andy), and the originators of Sam 'n' Henry.

Watson and Small Paging Leo Feist

Milton Watson and Paul Small both presentation artists may be the composers of a new song to be called "It's Your Move Now, I've Got My Man." This thought was inspired by a recent checker game in between shows at the Oriental theatre, Chicago. Incidentally Watson and Small have been singing in Chicago more than 80 weeks in which they sang over 10,000 new songs.

Sam Herman Starts New Novelty

Exhibitors of neighborhood theatres can always look to Sam Herman for novelties. Herman who is known from coast to coast as the novelty contest man will install a new stunt over the Lubliner and Trinz Circuit which will be called "Gallop and Pony Night." The idea consists of a Rocking pony which will be given away free to the boy or girl winning the race across the stage. Special toy ponies are now being manufactured and the stunt will be used to build up business on dull nights at the various neighborhood theatres.

Tom Terry Addressed St. Louis Organist Guild

Tom Terry, the versatile popular organist of the Loew's State theatre, St. Louis, Mo., on Monday March 26, was accorded the most unusual privilege for a motion picture theatre organist of addressing the American Guild of Organists at the Sheldon Memorial Hall, 3646 Washington boulevard.

Terry has long been recognized in the exclusive music circles of St. Louis and the Middle West as one of the outstanding proponents of high class organ music, whether classical or jazz, and his interpretation in a popular way of the masters of the ages has been accepted by leading teachers of music arts.

Presentation LETTERS

In this open forum those interested in presentation may discuss important matters bearing upon this phase of theatre entertainment. Only signed letters will be published.

PRESENTATION ACTS—To the Editor: The two page article that you spoke of in your letter of the 16th is wonderful, as I have just received a copy of the issue.

I am sure that the Great States Theatres Company appreciates this article as well as I do, and again thanking you and with very kindest regards, I am—Leo Terry, Rialto theatre, Joliet, Ill.

PRESENTATION ACTS—To the Editor: I was in Chicago last Friday and tried to see you. I made it a point to arrive at your office just at noon thinking I could promote you into taking me out to lunch, but the young lady behind the little window informed me you spent very little time around the place. I then dashed up to the music publishers, but by that time it was too late and they were all out at lunch, so I ended up by buying my own food, which ruined a perfectly good day.

The next time I plan on coming to Chicago I'll wire you ahead of time for an appointment so I can be assured of that lunch.—Bernard Cowham, organist, Milwaukee, Wis.

PRESENTATION ACTS—To the Editor: Did you know that we celebrated our 17th anniversary last week? It would look good in the "Gallo News," don't you think? Thank you.—Mrs. Roy Dieterich, Chicago.

PRESENTATION ACTS—To the Editor: My solos this week are: 1. A specialty on the number "Back in Your Own Back Yard." It is a clever little offering and was very well received. 2. The cartoon concert, a community sing number in which the cartoon folks of the daily papers "come into their own." In this solo I used the songs "The Beggar," "What Are You Waiting for, Mary," "Under the Moon," with special lyrics, "Let a Smile Be Your Umbrella" and "Kiss and Make Up." The solo went over wonderfully. In fact, I gave encores on every show I have a real singing audience, and they certainly try their best to drown out the organ.—Ramon Berry, Alamo theatre, Chicago, Ill.

REPRESENTS THE NEW ERA OF DE LUXE THEATRE ENTERTAINMENT

STAGE SHOWS

New York Paramount

Week Ending March 31

Publix Theatres presents for this week's attraction a peppy, spicy musical comedy offering entitled, "Hey! Hey!" which was devised and staged by Jack Partington. The Paramount Orchestra opens the show with a cycle of life called "Nevin Melodies"—a medley of old melodies composed around "Mighty Lak a Rose" and "The Rosary." On the stage, during each number, novelties were being enacted illustrating each piece in pantomime. The illustration for "The Rosary" was set in full, and exceptionally beautiful.

"Hey! Hey!" opens with the Gibson Sisters and John Boyle's Hey-Hey Girls who again treated with the almost forgotten chorus of tap dances, a most entertaining bit which went over strong.

Manny Baer, the stage orchestra conductor, besides having a winning personality and exceptional talent in putting his numbers across, puts something new into his selections this week, and his rendition, "I Love You," was very pleasing. His saxophone player does a specialty which draws fine applause.

The Gibson Sisters next present a "Dancing Delight" which consists of single numbers, and a double doll dance. They went over big, the best so far—but wait!

Jack Powell, the Rajah of Rhythm, is one of the very few entertainers in this country today who can hold an audience with a chair and a couple of drum sticks. He certainly knows his taps. The numbers played on the chair, all around the chair, and under the chair, with two drum sticks are entirely new and novel. He was called for an encore, and with the assistance of the stage orchestra, gave one smashing closing, which went over big. Jack stopped the show.

"Blue Baby," by the Hey-Hey Girls, in juvenile costumes, the little blue dolls doing the dances themselves. The little dolls are quite talented, while assisted by their beautiful owners. This unique bit hit the mark.

Frank DeVoe, with Eddie Willis at the piano, next offers some special songs, composed and arranged to fit his particular style, and this act was another hit. His "Spanish" song was the winner.

The Finale, "Hey! Hey!" was the best staged.

Chicago Uptown

Week Ending March 25

The presentation this week at the Uptown was the same as that reported at the Chicago last week. Bennie Krueger was back this week as master of ceremonies, and the good applause given him upon his entrance showed that the audience was glad to see him back.

Krueger opens the show with a fine number, "Let a Smile Be Your Umbrella," during which Jackie Heller, dressed in rain hat and coat, sings it. He gets a good hand.

The only other change in the presentation is another band number. This one was written and arranged by a member of Krueger's band and is called "Sweet Sue." Bennie plays his saxophone and Heller sings the chorus. The number is well played by the band, and although it is doubtful that it will prove a wow, it is a sprightly, snappy number.

The presentation as handled by Krueger is fine entertainment.

A "Style Show" was given at this theatre this week under the supervision of A. H. Stevens, the manager. The show was something different than the usual routine of a feature picture and a newsreel or comedy.

Local newsreels of the business stores in the town were taken and each featured with a poem shown on the screen with them.

Special music was used, which was composed by Dr. G. W. Ronfort, featured organist of this theatre.

The newsreel opened with a boy and girl buying one of the homes from the local real estate man, and then going into a merchant's store to buy clothes, and so on, until they have visited the entire list of merchants that participated in the play.

While the picture is being shown girl models walk up and down the stage displaying the gowns, cloaks and other wearing apparel of the merchants.

The entire revue lasted about twenty minutes and was very interesting. Credit must be given to Manager Stevens for the clever staging and poems, and to Dr. Ronfort, the organist, for the special music composed.

Fanchon and Marco's Idea for this week's stage-show presentation is in the form of a farewell to Eddie Peabody and His Pals, who complete their present engagement at this theatre and leave immediately for an extended engagement in Seattle.

As usual, Eddie and His Pals open the show with a band number using a new composition titled "Lila," followed by Gwen Evans and Her Girls, and the balance of the artists on the bill, in a song and dance number, using "Together" as the theme song for this number, which is also sung by Oscar Taylor.

Warren and Gill, two colored boys, a clever team, were next on the bill, singing "Blue Skies," and going into a soft shoe dancing number, well received, and returned for an encore.

Murray Beck, with a wonderful voice, next followed, singing "My Ohio Home." Gwen Evans and Girls next do a specialty dance, followed by Maurine and Brother, two very clever young dancers.

Eddie Peabody did several numbers on his "banjoy." For his first number he was accompanied by Johnny Mazel, who easily equals Peabody in the handling of the instrument. Peabody next played classical numbers on his famous banjo, and used "Rigo's Serenade," and "Schubert's Serenade" for his next two numbers. For his next solo number he used "Three O'Clock in the Morning," which he stated was one of the two pieces that he first learned to play on his banjo.

At the request of the audience he also played two numbers, "The Desert Song" and "Dream Kisses," and then said his farewell to his audience, followed by the entire cast of artists singing a song titled "Goodbye, Eddie" to the tune of "Dream Kisses."

"Splashes," the Playboys' offering this week, opens with Billy Meyers singing before the curtain, the words made for the occasion, a song to the tune of "By the Sycamore Tree." A scrim is then flashed on of Southern beach scenes and Bebe Barri's English Rockets are discernible, seemingly splashing in the waves.

The Stanley Sisters next give a song, and then Eddie Mathews steps a few snappy numbers for the opener.

The Stanley Sisters next give a song, and they then engage in some snappy steps, including head stands and walking on their hands. They are good and get good applause.

"My Ohio Home" is offered by the band in its usual good manner, with Meyers singing the song through, and both are applauded by a satisfied audience.

John Maxwell, versatile singer, was both tenor and soprano, and is made up as a woman on one side and as a man on the other. He changes his voice as he turns either side of himself to the audience and makes a big hit.

The English Rockets in white sailor uniforms, aided by Mathews as a gob, put on a snappy dance number which goes over big.

Harry Rose, with a fine voice, sings "Frankfurter Sandwiches" and "That's My Mammy," as well as engaging in a bit of fun with the band leader. He draws heavy applause, but refuses to appear for an encore.

The presentation closes with Meyers and Irene Havlak, one of the Rockets, singing and dancing a number, respectively, and joined by the other seven dancers, each in summer costumes and carrying parasols. They dance to "Rain" while plenty of water is falling back of the orchestra, giving the story effect. The act is well done and well staged.

New York Capitol

Week Ending March 31

"On Parade" is this week's offering at the Capitol, put across by Boris Petroff, and again featuring Walt Roesner, "Dr. Billy" of radio fame, and "The Capitoliens." The show was entirely military, with West Point cadet uniforms.

The opening number, following the Capitol Grand Orchestra who play "Cavalleria Rusticana," is Tom Nip's "Sixteen Dancing Cadets" who offer a tap, buck and wing dance chorus which was a real good introduction to the presentation.

The stage orchestra then offers a military march—this scene prompts this reporter to suggest that perhaps the plot was sponsored by the old Heidelberg play, as the banquet scene, and march, with cadets and "prom" girls bring back this play to mind. This offering draws much applause, although no title was given it.

Walt then announces the Fashion Plate, who we promptly find is none other than Charles Roselle—The Stars and Stripes is presented by the Albertina Rasch girls, who are really stars, and in this case dressed as zebras, are in stripes. Their animal dance was truly spirited, and the little zebras drew an encore.

The Sixteen Dancing Cadets then present a military tap dance, which without comment, could be pronounced as good.

Walt then announced the personal appearance of Generals Franklin and Stanley, who we immediately recognize as a standard big time act and as a particularly fitting one for presentation work. They give a burlesque on "The Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," followed by an eccentric dance, and again it is needless to say that the act was a "wow."

Walt Roesner, at this point, has a little difficulty with his sax player, who missed a few notes, more or less, and promptly fires him. The other orchestra members are a bit huffed over his action, and implore Walt to change his decision. An apology by the sax player, who is Kendall Capps, is made by a number, solo, on his instrument, which instantly wins the forgiveness of Walt and his audience. A dance by Mr. Capps followed, which clinches the matter. The show was above their standard, and their standard is very high.

Chicago Chicago

Week Ending March 25

The Chicago again this week had a name act, and when we tell you it was George Jessel, he of the stage production of "The Jazz Singer," "enuf" has been said. Though Jessel was the draw, the crowds were not flocking through the entrance. All of which means that those who didn't drop their coin at the wicket missed a good show.

A clever feature was the opening of the Jessel show, "Dancing Feet." In a black drop were 12 miniature stages and through these openings the Paul Oschard dancing girls, with only their faces appearing, and using their hands to control the legs and feet of puppets, performed a tap dance. The drop then was raised to the height of the girls' knees and they themselves took up the step.

With the drop out of the way, the orchestra tuned in on "My Ohio Home," with members and a good baritone joining in to sing a few bars. It went over in great fashion.

Vale and Stewart, two young men with agile feet and legs, followed, and what they did to the audience is nobody's business. Their tap dancing is perfectly timed, and their difficult steps are good for prolonged applause any time. The boys know what tap dancing means.

Martha Vaughn next was lowered from the flies in an oval frame. She sang, and likably, "An Old Fashioned Melody," and with the assistance of six dancing girls, she occasioned applause.

The audience got a kick out of Richard "Limer Legs" Edwards, the "it" boy whose eccentric dancing is good for a lot of laughs and hand work on the part of the crowds.

Sally Sweet, a personable girl, next sang "What'll You Say," with Lou Kosloff doing a little assistance. This all led up to the entrance of Jessel, who works hard and effectively. He's good in song and story telling, and his telephone talk with his mamma is a riot.

H. Leopold Spitalny's pit orchestra entertained with "Schubertiana," including such Schubert pieces as "The Unfinished Symphony" and others.

San Francisco Granada

This week's stage show featured the "Merry Widow Revue" and the curtain rose on the orchestra elevated on Jack Partington's patented stage, with four couples below dancing to the music of the "Merry Widow" waltz. The members of the orchestra wore red jackets with Director Owen Sweeten in white attire trimmed with red.

Eight girls in blue danced while colored lights played upon them and were followed by the Royal Quartette, offering selections from the "Merry Widow" and featuring, "Here's to the Day."

The Dancing Hussars, twelve girls in white trousers and coats with green and gold trimmings and huge hats of green topped with plumes, offered a novelty dance.

Joseph Griffin sang "Song of Songs," followed by Virginia Johnson, whose offering was "My Little Nest of Heavenly Blue." Accent and Jenescu danced the "Merry Widow" waltz in a style out of the ordinary.

Master of Ceremonies Owen Sweeten announced the offering of a medley of popular hits by the orchestra and offered "The Song Is Ended" as a trumpet solo.

The Runaway Four, announced as the four best dressed men in America appeared in tatters and three of them danced while a fourth played a harmonica.

New Orleans Saenger Week Ending March 30

Thousands greeted Art Landry, new leader of the Saenger theatre, this afternoon when the Public Edition of Jazz Grab Bag was presented supplemented by news reels and the "Legion of the Condemned." Art Landry was heavily advertised by the Saenger, to the detriment of the Public Acts and the film which received more appreciation on this particular occasion.

The leader is a new comer in this section with a decided Eastern dialect which made it impossible to understand his announcements but it is likely he will fall into the Southern "idea" ere many weeks. Besides directing he plays the violin and saxophone—jazz, of course—which is slightly out of place in a theatre where John Hammond at the organ, and Castro Carazo with his magnificent orchestra dispense the higher class of music.

The curtain rises on the band hidden in a tent of multi-colored material, from which, where the center pole should stand, issued the chorus, each dressed in different costume descending right and left on a stairway. After the usual march and dances the curtain of the tent ascends disclosing the band, dressed as Chinese of high degree with wonderful wardrobe, but to spoil the scene the leader was attired in a frock coat.

Peggy English sang several blues, followed by Jim Doyle and Frank Schirmer, two jazz yodeling cowboys, a novelty act.

The Dancing Dewees were really good and received several encores. But to Richey Craig, a comedian of the nut variety, went the honors of the day.

Special mention should be made of the Flipping Ferral Gould Girls, one of the best of the Master Edition dancing ensembles.

The act closed with the chorus, which by the way was exceptionally clever, building a practical love nest on the stage for the personality leader and Peggy English, and when completed sat themselves around the doors.

Chicago Granada Week Ending March 25

"Silver Skies" was the title of last week's presentation. Benny Meroff officiating as master of ceremonies and conductor of the stage band. The opening was full stage, with the band divided at the middle by a narrow black-out. Scenic staircases ascended at each side behind the band, while behind them hung a black drop bathed in green light. Purple footlights played upon the musicians, who otherwise were in darkness.

At the opening, Ned Miller, writer of popular songs, sang under a white spot at left the theme ballad of the production, "There Must Be a Silver Lining That's Shining for Me." And as the chorus waned, the black-out lifted, revealing prop stairs and seven silvery maidens descending them. They danced to a close, while silver clouds rolled by on a half-lowered front drop. Pretty stuff, well received.

Enters Maestro Meroff, taking the band into "The Man I Love." Harris and Clair followed with a mixture of classical and tap dancing. Weak. Then Dorothy Allen sang a couple of ballads out of the more recent past, readily yielding the stage to the seven dancing girls. Theirs was an eccentric "ghost dance," done in filmy costumes which had a ghastly glow under a white light against a black drop, in one. Seeming very much like seven semi-soused spirits, they immediately drew chuckles and finally hearty applause. The drop lifted for the band to jazzify the overture from "Tannhauser."

The hit of the show came next—a little mite named Baby Oxman. She's not much of a xylophonist or singer, but she has showmanship, and imitating her big sisters of the jazz stage, she sent this house into a laughing, adoring frenzy of applause. She stole the show from the headliner, Walter Vernon, who followed. However, his clowning and tap dancing earned him an encore and a half-dozen bows.

The production then reverted to the theme, as it opened. But near the close, several performers gave concluding samples of their wares, while at the grand finish, the lifted black-out revealed six silvery maidens descending the stairs bearing wands of stars, with a seventh girl being drawn up to a large star suspended against the back drop.

Thus closed the presentation for the picture, Fox's "A Girl in Every Port."

Seattle Seattle Week Ending March 26

Fourth big presentation, Harry Courfain's Hands Up. Jules Buffano offered piano recital and directed stage band. New York revue, Dezzo Retter and Gould Girls big spot. Arthur Clausen orchestra played overture of Carmen interpolation. Ballet six Cornish Girls. Ron and Don heavy on organ.

Chicago Oriental Week Ending March 24

The presentation this week is called "Bubbling Over," but it fails to bubble very much, it being evident that expenditure on the show had been cut down. The show is built around a race track atmosphere, although this idea is allowed to drop before the show ends. A drop shows a typical race track scene.

Paul Small comes out before the drop to sing "This Is My Lucky Day," then five of the Abbott dancers enter and sing "Give Us a Little Kiss," to Paul. Then the other five Abbott dancers, dressed as men, come out and the ten of them do a good dance routine, while Paul takes up "Lucky Day" again.

The drop rises revealing the band in jockey suits seated beneath a giant horse shoe. Ash enters and leads the band through a good band number, and Small comes out again to sing the chorus.

Bell and Coates, billed as The California Song Birds, are the first act. One plays a peripatetic piano and both sing "Here Comes My Sugar," "Just a Memory," and a comic song. They indulge in a bit of chatter with Ash. Their act is rather weak, neither one possessing much of a voice and less personality.

Then comes Ginger Rogers, whose popularity at the Oriental is growing daily. She and Ash indulge in a bit of the silliest, yet funniest, chatter heard lately. Ginger can do most anything and make you like it. Ginger exits to change and Paul Small comes on to sing "The Wobbly Walk," and the Abbott dancers enter to do the dance. Then Ginger comes on and sings the song, then going into the dance, and she certainly can shake two snappy feet. Then she and Small do a few steps of the dance. Ginger could have done a lot more to the delight of the audience but Ash announces a new band number of his, as yet unpublished. It is called "You're Wonderful," and it possesses quite a bit of charm. Small sings it, and then sings "I Still Love You."

Billie Carpenter, a ukulele player and "jazz-mouth singer," is next with a few songs, one of them being "Magnolia," popular some months ago. In spite of the fact that his work is nothing out of the ordinary, he gets a good hand.

The Midnight Trio, three young negro dancers, are next. These boys are good dancers, and because they know how to put over an act, get a fine reception. Their tap dancing, chair jumping, and eccentric dancing please the audience. They have a snappy finish to their act.

Then comes the finale with the band playing "Sunshine," with Ginger and Small singing it. Through the arrangement has been interpolated "California" for a good effect. The Abbott dancers, in beautiful costumes, parade and pose and a center piece is beautiful, representing the sun. It makes a pretty "spec." finale.

Second Successful Season
ALAMO THEATRE, CHICAGO

Well, now that St. Patrick's Day has come and gone, the music publishers can once more settle back to the steady grind of plugging. These Irish holidays, such as St. Patrick's Day, here in the east, have a tremendous tendency to keep the employees of the various music publishers away from their labors. Try and figure this out!

Signs of Spring! The Casa Lopez, featuring Vincent Lopez and his orchestra is closing next week, bringing to an end its winter season. Lopez and his orchestra have taken over the Woodmansten Inn, a very popular road house, within the boundaries of Greater New York. The opening date is set for Easter Sunday.

A few of the more intimate friends of Fred Waring and his orchestra, are giving them a stag dinner this Tuesday night, as a sort of "farewell." Waring and his boys leave for a 6 weeks engagement in Paris, starting the middle of April.

"Charmaine" and "Diane" have left a big open space in the waltz market today, and four waltzes are vainly trying to fill this spot. From early indications all four of them have a fairly good chance to succeed. I allude to "Romana," "I Can't Do Without You," "Together," and last but not least, "Was It a Dream?"

A youngster just breaking into the music business and making quite a name for himself is a chap named Murray Wizel. He has charge of the band and orchestra department for one of the junior music publishers, and is getting some very wonderful results.

A young lady who is creating quite a lot of talk in these parts is "Cookie" Cohen. "Cookie" has an original and unique style of singing on the radio, and is rapidly building up a very big following for herself. Incidentally she is private secretary to the well known and only Arthur Johnston (master harmonist).

My partner, Sam Coslow, returns to New York this week after a very successful trip throughout the middle west. Incidentally, I might add, that he is now making vocal records for the Columbia. Can you imagine what a break I would get, should he turn out to be another Gene Austin! Whoopee! Incidentally, I have another partner with a good voice and I don't mean maybe! He is the well known Jack Diamond, and is at present in Detroit "mopping" up.

Frank Winegar and his Pennsylvanians, now playing an engagement at Joe Yeoung's Restaurant in New York, are getting to be quite a feature on Radio Station WJZ. They have more time allotted on this wonderful station than any other dance orchestra in New York, and from early indications, they are making good.

Balaban and Katz, please notice! I. Jay Faggen, owner and managing director of the Savoy Ballroom in Chicago, is a young fellow with a thousand different, original, unique and showmanship ideas. Need I say more?

Received a letter from Hughie Barrett, now playing at the Seneca Hotel in Rochester, to the effect that he is making vocal records for the Columbia. Barrett should be a tremendous seller, as he has an original "crooning" style which is very much in demand.

Another chap who is making a good name for himself in St. Louis is Kirk Frederick, orchestra leader of Loew's State theatre. His original ideas and presentations on popular songs are quite the talk of the middle west.

Larry Spier

ORGAN SOLOS

Sigmund Krungold (New York Paramount) at Wurlitzer this week offered selections that proclaimed him a clever organist. His rendition of an old-time melody, played entirely with his feet, is certainly thrilling and drew much appreciation from his audience. Jesse Crawford, we hear, has sojourned for a few weeks vacation, to Europe.

Bernie Cowham (Milwaukee Oriental) made a big hit with the patrons last week by playing "A Whistler and His Dog." The novel part about the song was that Bernie's fox terrier came out from behind the curtain when Bernie called and sat on top of the organ cocking his ears this way and that while Bernie played a parody on "Among My Souvenirs," the words having to deal with the dog's experience in burying bones. The crowd liked it very much and Bernie got plenty of applause. Bernie, by the way, plays over WISN Wisconsin News station occasionally.

Milton Charles (Chicago Chicago) dropped below his usual standard this week in his plug of "Good News," musical comedy current in the Windy City. A plug is the essence of business, but in this instance it was far too obvious. Although he played the hits of the show, such as "Lucky in Love," "Good News," "The Best Things in Life" and "The Varsity Drag," they didn't seem to take. In addition to plugging the songs he brought in glaringly the names of the cast singing and playing the various selections. As we said, a plug's a plug, but—

Harold J. Lyon (Johnstown State) is offering original recitals and community stunts in addition to his broadcasting. This stunt is called "Hello, Everybody," featuring "Cloh-e," an aria from "Faust," "A Shady Tree," "Go Home and Tell Your Mother" and "Blue Heaven" for the finish. The solo was a sort of an introduction for the new organist at this house and displayed also the versatility of the player.

Eddie Meikel (Chicago Harding) devoted this week's solo to members of his organ club by taking them on a serenade tour to the tune of "Merrily We Roll Along." The songs used for the stunt were "In My Log Cabin of Dreams," "A Shady Tree," "Keep Sweeping the Cobwebs Off the Moon," "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree," "Beautiful" and "My Ohio Home." These numbers gave the members an opportunity to sing freely. This organist has won himself considerable fame by digging up original stunts on local color solos.

Clark Fiers (Scranton West Side) reports that Lester Santley's novelty version on "A Song Convention" brought down the house with singing. The stunt was a take-off on the National Republican Convention, which introduced the following songs: "My Ohio Home," "Kiss and Make Up," "A Shady Tree," "Baby Your Mother" and "My Blue Heaven."

Johnny Devine (Chicago Patio). This week's solo was called "Spring" and it looked as though the slides were made to order for the weather. It was a warm day and this solo undoubtedly was a success. Johnny played for his first number "Tiny Little Toes." He followed with "In My Ohio Home." A few gag slides were brought in that were clever. The next number was very pretty and played in a like manner, "Just Let a Smile Be Your Umbrella." The feature picture was flashed upon the screen but, Johnny was called back for an encore. He played "Kiss and Make Up" with everyone singing.

Eddie Hanson (Chicago Tivoli), for this week's community stunt offered a parody on "North Side vs. South Side" in which he conveyed the idea all in comedy vain how his two sets of audiences take to his solo. "An Old Guitar and an Old Refrain," "My Ohio Home," "Dream Kisses," "Kiss and Make Up" and "I Scream" were used. A medley of song titles was intermingled throughout the novelty with slides and a parody on "Souvenir," called "Cicero." This player is really becoming popular at this house and each week the percentage of singers increase.

Henri Keates (Chicago Oriental) calls his organ presentation "A Song Title Contest," and uses the contest in the Chicago Tribune for inspiration. He plays "Dream Kisses," "Is She My Girl Friend," "Tell Me You're Sorry," and "Let's Kiss and Make Up." It is an unusually good slide presentation. The audience sings with a vim, and gives Keates a good reception.

Preston Sellers (Chicago Uptown) plays this week for his organ presentation "Broken Hearted," "Among My Souvenirs," "Irish Rose," "Bungalow of Dreams," and a very funny song about the new Ford.

I GET THE BLUES WHEN IT RAINS—(Ford & Glenn)—Ford and Glenn, the well known radio stars, have branched out as publishers, with this philosophical song. With their angle on the radio they should be able to give this one a good start. By Maidie Weaver and Ford and Glenn.

GOD'S GREATEST GIFT—(Villa Moret, Inc.)—A high class song about "Mother" that is quite appropriate for the coming "Mother's Day." Both the lyric and melody are beautiful. This song looks like a typical concert number. By Merton H. Bories, Paul Corbell and Neil Moret.

RAG DOLL—(Sherman Clay & Co.)—The house that gave us the "Doll Dance" is following up same with this by the same writer. Should prove commercial. By Nacio Herb Brown.

HELLO MONTREAL—(Irving Berlin, Inc.)—A comedy song by these three well known writers which naturally refers to the liquor question and the lyric will make you thirsty. Words by Billy Rose and Mort Dixon. Music by Harry Warren.

I WANT A GOOD GIRL BAD—(Bibo Bloedon & Lang)—A trick title which develops into a snappy cute song. Written as a fox trot by Joe Darcy, Lou Herscher and Perry Alexander.

MY PET—(Ager, Yellen & Bornstein)—Reminds one of "Ain't She Sweet." These hit writers have produced another to add to their fame. Words by Jack Yellen, music by Milton Ager.

I'VE BEEN LONGING FOR A GIRL LIKE YOU (For a Long, Long Time)—(Irving Berlin)—The title tells the story. These boys have written some very big hits in the past and they need not be ashamed of this effort of theirs. By Howard Johnson, Charles Tobias and Al Sherman.

SALLY ROSE—(J. H. Remick Music Co.)—At last we have a new angle on Sally, we now know what became of her. She's a rose and according to the song one of the sweetest that ever grew. A well written fox trot by Cliff Friend and Ted Fiorito, who are responsible for many of our past successes.

BRIGHT SHERMAN VALLEY—(Shapiro, Bernstein & Co.)—A hilly billy song introduced by Vernon Dalhart, who is responsible for the "Prisoner's Song," which was also published by the same firm. Written by Robie Kingsley.

WHO WOULDN'T BE BLUE—(Henry Waterson)—A natural fox trot that all the orchestras will hop on. It has a lyric that is suitable. By Benny Davis and Joe Burke.

JUST A LITTLE KISS FROM A LITTLE MISS—(J. W. Jenkins Sons Co.)—This firm sticks one over every once in a while, and is concentrating on this one for a hit. A cute title, cute lyric, appropriate melody, what more is there to say. Words and music by Eddie Kuhn.

THERE OUGHT TO BE A LAW AGAINST THAT—(Leo Feist, Inc.)—A travesty on our various laws with a comedy twist. The melody is written as a fox trot. Lyric by Irving Caesar, music by Cliff Friend. P. S. Some weather we're getting this month.

THE THEATRE

Incorporated in this department of practical showmanship of Exhibitors Herald are the Moving Picture World departments, "Selling the picture to the Public," and "Better Business Builders."

M. B. I.s to Receive Certificates of Membership in M. B. I. Club

"The Theatre" is glad to announce that within a very short time every member of the M. B. I. club will receive a certificate of membership bearing his name and his "My Best Idea" as it originally appeared in "The Theatre."

These certificates of membership are now being prepared and as soon as they have been completed, they will be forwarded to all members. To date there are only 12 members, one member having been appointed each week since the inception of the M. B. I. Club. Each new member will receive a certificate of membership promptly after his "My Best Idea" appears in "The Theatre." Another announcement about the certificates will be made shortly.

"The Theatre" believes the members of the M. B. I. club will be proud of the certificates. When the first announcement was made regarding the beginning of the M. B. I. club, the certificates to be sent each member were described as follows:

"You will receive an attractive certificate of membership upon which is contained your 'My Best Idea' just as it appeared in 'The Theatre.' The certificate will make a fine appearance hanging on the wall of your office, and it will preserve in print forever your 'My Best Idea.' After you have become a member, you won't have to tell other exhibitors about your 'My Best Idea.' You can show it to them."

And that's just the way the certificates are to be made. They will carry your own "My Best Idea" just as it appeared in "The Theatre." If you haven't sent in your "My Best Idea" yet, send it in. We want to make the M. B. I. club as big as possible. Many fine ideas have already been submitted, and numbers of exhibitors have used these ideas in their own theatres. Your "My Best Idea" may help hundreds of exhibitors, and the "My Best Idea" of another member may help you, so shoot yours in right away. And remember, as soon as you become an M. B. I., you will receive a beautiful certificate of membership.

Broadcasts Laughs

When "The Cohens and Kellys in Paris" played the Strand theatre at Canton, Ohio, a big eight-foot clown made of beaver board was placed on the marquee. A loud speaker, placed behind the laughing mouth of the clown, was connected with the Vitaphone amplifier. A microphone in the stage pit picked up the laughter from the audience and the amplified laughter was broadcast in the street through the loud speaker. A sign on the clown read, "Hear them laugh at 'The Cohens and Kellys in Paris!'"

This puzzle intrigued 10,000 people in St. Paul. Can you solve it? Here's the problem: Add six of the above numbers to make a total of 21, each number cannot be used more than 3 times. (Remember, this is a puzzle, so act accordingly. It is worded to make the solution more difficult.)

Puzzle Ad Contest Brings 10,000 Replies, Capacity Business

How would you like to run an ad that brings in 10,000 replies and helps your theatre to do a capacity business all week?

This is what happened when manager Mike Mayen of the Tower theatre, St. Paul, Minnesota, used a puzzle contest in an ad in connection with the showing of "The Patent Leather Kid."

The ad appeared in one issue of one daily paper. Three days later almost 10,000 replies had been received, and only 165 were correct. Passes were issued to all those submitting correct answers. All post office requirements were complied with. The correct solution of the puzzle was posted in the lobby of the theatre the opening day of the run of the picture, and a steady stream of people passed through the lobby to see the answer. Mayen gives a large share of credit to the puzzle ad for the big success of the picture.

The puzzle will make a good stunt to use in your house organ or in connection with an ad as used by Mayen. The puzzle is reprinted here if you care to use it. In case you can't solve it, write to "The Theatre" and we will send you the correct solution.

Twelve thousand flowers were used to create this beautiful lobby display at the Kingsway theatre, Brooklyn, during the run of the Universal picture, "The Lone Eagle." The airplane was designed and executed by a floral shop in a tieup with the theatre.

Brothers Now Brother M. B. I.s as Ram Becomes M. B. I. No. 12

When Louis E. Ramm became M. B. I. No. 2, his brother Herbert B. Ram apparently did not want his brother to gain too many distinctions over himself, for he immediately sent in his own "My Best Idea." Herbert is not an exhibitor, being a checker for Paramount out of the Buffalo exchange, but his ideas are well worth the attention of exhibitors, and as a checker Ram knows how to help "ram" a picture along to a box office success.

"My Best Idea" No. 12

By Herbert B. Ram

NOTICE that my brother, Louis E. Ramm, is now M. B. I. No. 2 and, while I am not a theatre manager, but a checker with Paramount, out of the Buffalo exchange, I have used several ideas to assist various theatres in getting publicity both for the picture and the theatres.

Herbert B. Ram

When I traveled around Western New York state with Harold Lloyd's "Kid Brother," I traveled from town to town with my car. Around it I had a large "Kid Brother" banner with the name of the theatre at which it was playing painted on. On my arrival at the town where the picture played I immediately went up to the public school and made arrangements to take any crippled children to the show on passes and, after the show take them home—making sure that all the school children told their folks about it. Also passed heralds out, and without fail, I was sure to get some publicity in the papers for the theatre and picture.

When in Auburn, N. Y., the manager of the theatre told me that the papers there would not give any "readers" for any picture whatsoever. I immediately went to see the editor of the afternoon paper and, after a long chat with him over the merits of the pictures in general, exacted a promise from him to review the picture then playing, which happened to be "Beau Geste." Next day we had a long favorable review. The point I wish to bring forth is that managers of theatres should use the presence of the checkers for additional publicity such as when in Medina, N. Y., the editor had a special news note that the representative of Paramount was in town looking after the Lloyd picture.

Here is a stunt that I am going to use the coming Spring on Lloyd's next release, "Speedy." As we know by advance publicity, one of the scenes has Lloyd driving an old taxi. I am having an old Ford rebuilt as a taxi, a replica of Lloyd's taxi and will have all kinds of wise cracks painted on, including the title "Speedy" and I will travel from town to town with it making sure that the play-date of that particular theatre is painted thereon.

On my arrival at the town I will first see the newspapers and get them to have a news note published and, if possible, a photo also. I will then once more make arrangements to take all crippled children to the show and the resulting publicity, etc.

Milk Cows on Stage

Eight milkmaids and four live cows on the stage of the Griffin theatre, St. Catharines, Ontario, brought droves of people to the house, the occasion being a milking contest for a $25 prize. The contest proved to be a "roar."

Readers, Meet These Two New Contribs to "The Theatre"

"The Theatre" is happy to introduce two new contributors to its readers this week. They are Eddie Kidwell of the Burford Theatre company, Arkansas City, Kansas and Richard L. Moss, manager of Block's Hawthorne theatre, Hawthorne, New Jersey.

Kidwell writes to "The Theatre" saying, "I hope to become soon a regular contributor to 'The Theatre' and already have a number of items that I will send later." And he keeps his word by sending in the following contribution.

"Enclosed you will find full details as to the street stunt we used on 'The Big Parade' two days before it opened for a week's engagement here.

"Through the cooperation of the local National Guards we secured two cannon and the required number of men for each. The cannon were bannered in a colorful manner—all work being done by the house artist.

"The local Studebaker people were asked to participate in the parade and they furnished us with five of their latest model cars. These were also bannered.

"To lead the parade, we secured the high school band numbering 40 students. The only expense attached to this stunt was the passes for the big guns and a pass apiece for the members of the band. The Studebaker people offered to pay us for their share of the publicity when we first mentioned the idea to them, so I think we did very well."

That serves very nicely to introduce Eddie Kidwell to "The Theatre" readers. Here's a secret about Eddie. Although he is only 21, he is now preparing advertising copy and it is copy worthy of a veteran. But Eddie is a veteran after all, for he's been in this game for eight years, having worked in theatres since he was 13. We'll expect many more contributions from Eddie Kidwell in the future.

Richard L. Moss is another young exhibitor, and "The Theatre" is glad to know that he, too, intends to become a regular contributor. The more contributors we have, the better "The Theatre" will become. From what Moss is doing in his theatre we can assure you that there's no "moss" on his back. Here's what he has to say: "I'm a new exhibitor and would like to write in to you every once in a while and tell of some of the things which I am doing up in this town.

"For 'The Gay Retreat' I had a phonograph with a laughing record playing in front of the theatre and it attracted quite a bit of attention. Not only does the laughing record create attention, but it puts the patrons in a happy mood and they go in to see the picture in a joyful state of mind.

"For 'The Cat and the Canary' I staged a little mysterious prologue. Just before the picture, all lights went out and a small green spot played all around the walls and ceiling. The spot then centered on the stage and a hairy hand crept out of the curtain. When the hand was out to the elbow, a thud was heard, then a girl's shriek, backstage and then complete darkness. I am glad to say it worked pretty well.

"We have a small theatre up here but it's a nice new house and I'm sure we'll put it over. I am trying to create a home-like atmosphere by speaking to most of the patrons going out, asking how they like the show, etc. I also put a personal column in my program and I have most of the residents here calling me by my first name.

"Any time I do anything that I think is fairly interesting, I will write in to you. I am just a young chap and have lots to learn, so will appreciate any advice."

The simple lineup of these four ads into the combined ad of West Coast Theatres in San Francisco makes this ad a very effective one. Each ad stands out in about equal importance, and the name of each theatre and its program stand out well in this ad as a whole. The makeup of this ad could well be followed by other chains having a similar problem.

The small reproduction above shows an ad of the Meserole theatre, Brooklyn, and the ad as revamped by "The Theatre." This page appeared in the March 3 issue of this paper. "The Theatre's" Advertising, Consultation Service

In response to a recent announcement in this department that "The Theatre" would be glad to offer suggestions upon theatre advertising, Sydney Lassman, manager of the Meserole Theatre, Brooklyn, N. Y., has sent us several of his newspaper ads with the following letter:

"THE THEATRE."
Dear Sir:
Here is a copy of our ad, clipped from the local weekly. In so much as we have but a weekly paper, we had to advertise in a newspaper. We think it serves the purpose of a weekly paper.
This paper is published every Friday. The advertising rate—four cents a line per week—is very low. Please be good enough to look over this ad and offer suggestions which you think will enable us to make our ad more effective.
SYDNEY LASSMAN.
We have mentioned in this department of the Meserole Theatre, together with an offer to make a complete ad, the ad being made merely to give an idea of how we are getting on in our advertising. The ad is to announce the program, to

Ten Commandments for Exhibitors

1. Let dignity and courtesy be prominent at each performance.
 2. Keep your house scrupulously clean. The lobby must be kept as clean as the inside, and good taste and care exercised in the display of clean posters and photographs.
 3. Commence each day right "on the dot," not a minute too early or a minute too late. Your patrons will soon learn to be on time if you are always on time.
 4. Keep a careful watch on your operators, and see that the pictures are always "in frame," that sufficient light is used to insure a clear picture, and that your operators do not slow down or speed up without your orders.
 5. See that no loafers stand around your box office, and also that your ushers are neatly dressed and have clean hands, faces, and linens.
 6. Avoid extravagant terms in advertising; tell your patrons the truth.
 7. Be on the floor personally every day during the busy hours. Meet your patrons and in this way you can better ascertain their likes and dislikes. Your entire organization will function better if you set the proper example.
 8. See that the children and "Smart alecks" behave themselves while in your theatre, so that the others can enjoy the whole of the performance.
 9. Music in keeping with the picture is regarded as of great importance and is essential to an enduring success.
 10. Never cease taking pains; never cheapen your performance. As the crowds continue to come, rather show them your appreciation by putting forth even greater efforts to please.

Production Hints from Edward L. Hyman
Managing Director, Mark Strand Theatre, Brooklyn

A 30 minute production was put on with Gloria Swanson in "Sadie Thompson" and constituted the only musical presentation of the performance. The whole show ran 2 hours and 2 minutes, of which time the feature picture required 1 hour and 32 minutes. Even the Topical Review was eliminated for this week.

Edward L. Hyman

"Broadway Revels" was the programmed title of the production and opened on full stage showing the stage band seated on two platforms, the second about 3 feet higher than the first. Jack Pepper, who made his debut last week as master of ceremonies, was conducting as the band went into "Stay Out of the South" as the opening number. Pepper himself sang a chorus. The special arrangement was by Jerry Sears who was holding down the piano stool.

At the conclusion of this Pepper introduced Adele Angors, a winsome little brunette who came out and sang, "Is He My Boy Friend?" Novelty was added to her number by having the trumpet, trombone and banjoist help out with some humorous business, winding up with the bass player tearing up some of his music and throwing it into the air.

Pepper then announced that the management had gone to great expense to secure two of the best dressed artists in the business and announced them as Shean and Phillips. The band then took up a prelude to an impressive overture and then Shean and Phillips surprised the crowd by walking out in ill-fitting comedy suits. They had an unusual routine of eccentric dancing in which their walking sticks played a prominent part. Jack Pepper then introduced a young lady whom he called "Sugar," announcing that he had "discovered" her in Texas during a recent vacation. This little girl has quite a personality and made an instantaneous hit with her first number, "What a Wonderful Wedding." She then had some humorous business with the master of ceremonies, after which she sang her second and concluding number, "I Can't Believe That You're in Love With Me."

Pepper then announced the "biggest midget in the world," who turned out to be Bob Stickney, "the man on stilts. He did his stilt dance, using a flight of steps on which he danced up and down, closing his routine with a hand spring.

Jack Pepper's specialty came next, this being "Crazy Blues," sung with a very effective falsetto for a finish. Then Allan Prior, the Australian tenor, concluded the presentation with two numbers, "Mattinata" and Irving Berlin's ballad, "Can't Do Without You."

Restaurant Tieup for "The Circus"

Part of the widespread Los Angeles exploitation of Charlie Chaplin in "The Circus" was the use of waiters' checks in a well-known restaurant and delicatessen with a heavy display ad of the engagement of this United Artists picture at Grauman's Chinese. According to the practice of waiters, the check was laid face downward beside the patron's plate. Consequently, the ad was plainly in view while the check remained on the table.

SERVICE TALKS

Incorporated in this department of Exhibitors Herald, which is a department containing news, information and gossip on current productions, is the Moving Picture World department, "Through the Box Office Window."

"A GIRL IN EVERY PORT"

NOW and then an intelligent entertainment effort emanates from Hollywood. Of late, a number of these have borne the Fox trademark. The most recent that I have seen is called "A Girl in Every Port" and I'm somewhat at a loss as to how to begin telling you about it.

I suppose I might as well begin by saying that it is a story. That is, a story that might get itself printed in a good magazine if submitted in manuscript form. It apparently was written, however, with a megaphone, for Howard Hawks is down as both director and author. I herewith throw my tremendous influence into support of this production plan. I add, by way of argument, that I dare you to recall a picture written by its director that was not better than the majority of pictures otherwise assembled. Finally, I ask you to look at "A Girl in Every Port" both as story and picture. If you're not convinced, that groups you with the persons responsible for the increasingly costly stupidity of pictures in general.

Mr. Hawks is not, of course, the whole reason for the success of "A Girl in Every Port." Not by several. It has the lean and likeable Victor McLaglen as its chief figure. It has Robert Armstrong as a barely secondary personality and it has the none-such Louise Brooks as the girl in the ultimate port, where the voyage comes to an end and the dramatic element gets in its tightening touch. It has, also, a lot of other folks, who do the picture a lot of good, and a lot of excellent production, subtitles, stunts and so forth to round out the evening. It is, if you ask me, as nice an evening as I've spent in a theatre these many days.

Perhaps Aunt Minnie wouldn't agree with me in that last statement. She might object to seeing Sailor McLaglen trailing Sailor Armstrong from port to port, always finding that doughty heartsman's mark upon the girl in immediate consideration. She might say that sailors do not spend their portleave in this manner, but of course she would be wrong. She might not care, either, for the scene in which Sailor McLaglen asks the girl on his lap, "Have you been true to me, Baby?" and she replies "Si Senor—twice," after which he discovers Sailor Armstrong's trademark upon her garter and tosses her onto the bed and into the discard. But I am not talking about Aunt Minnie's likes and dislikes, for I know Aunt Minnie would really like the picture better than Uncle Jake.

So goes the picture, from port to port, until the battling buddies near a split when Salior

By T. O. Service

McLaglen falls in love with High Diver Brooks, whom Sailor Armstrong knew at Coney Island in the—if not good—old days. How this situation works out is none of your business, but it does not work out in the manner of the mushy didoes turned out most of the time by most of the studios. Instead, it turns out just about as it would turn out in actuality and the completed photostat of the lives and habits of sailors at sea and in port is a pretty satisfying thing.

As you know, I do not under any circumstances advise the hooking or non-hooking of pictures. But, as you know also, I do occasionally say that you should see a certain picture in order to know what's going on in the upper reaches of the picture business. This is one of those certain pictures and if you don't look at it you will not know your business so thoroughly as if you do.

"CHICAGO"

I SUPPOSE I'm warped in my opinion of a picture named after and frankly designed to represent the city in which it is my fortune—or misfortune, if you look at it that way—to reside. If this be the case, no doubt I should say nothing at all about "Chicago." On the chance that it may not be, however, and on the chance that my residence here gives me a better than common chance of seeing the thing without prejudice, I will assert briefly that the picture is a wow.

The Chicago shown in "Chicago" is not, of course, Chicago. But it is, to the life, the town which masquerades as Chicago in the newspaper headlines of this and other nations. That Chicago, as you know, is the most interesting town on the globe. I often wish the real Chicago were one-half so interesting as the newspapers of other cities represent it to be.

The Chicago of "Chicago" is such a place as would have brought joy to the hearts and gold to the pockets of Gilbert and Sullivan. In all their search for interesting places to depict in lyric and duty they never discovered a place to compare with this cinema Chicago. Here, in this cinema Chicago, the lady murderers are pampered in their gilded jails, the Chesterfieldian Darrow stages "East Lynne" for the jury and nobody but the ever so slightly Crowesque states attorney snickers; the newspapers all appear in closeups with nice small-town names and dumbly written headlines. The newspaper reporter is as funny as Roy Barnes and the girl, who croaks her hoy friend, is as snappy as Phyllis Haver. (Having inspected some of these gun gals at close—well, close enough—range, I am personally qualified to report, if it's of any personal interest to you, that in reality they're not so hot.)

The facts are that "Chicago" is a brightly humorous parody on the show that was, in its turn, a brightly humorous parody on the town that is, in its turn, a not at all humorous community where everybody works hut father and he's busy. This is, to my way of thinking, exactly what a picture called "Chicago" ought to be, for certainly "Underworld" and "The City Gone Wild" told the world enough half-truths about the serious side of homicide in the Illinois metropolis. That is why I had a good time looking at "Chicago."

Miss Haver, the lethal lady of the picture, is just as she should be for the purpose of the entertainment. Victor Varconi is a bit dull as the husband who didn't come home unexpectedly. Robert Edeson is a wow as counsel for the defense—although he recalls Mr. Darrow only by dissimilarity—and the rest of the folks are okay. The thing is handled as a goodnatured film travesty on a good natured stage travesty on a good natured city and I, for one ask no more than that for an evening.

"TILLIE'S PUNCTURED ROMANCE"

IF anyone tells you that the new "Tillie's Punctured Romance" is not the same story as the old "Tillie's Punctured Romance," agree with them. But if anyone tells you that it is not as funny as the original production, disagree and be sure of yourself. Compare Louise Fazenda with Trixie Friganza and you've made your point. A good idea, however, is to terminate the argument there, for the new picture, while it is without doubt much funnier than the old one, is brutally blunt in its double entendre and some of its gag sequences are at least long enough.

I saw the picture, perhaps it is well to state, at the Oriental theatre, where the average age of those present is probably 20 years and the average comprehension is sharper than anywhere else in America. At this place the shrewd young people sent up gales of laughter when Mack Swain told Louise Fazenda, handing her a girdle, "Your mother used to wear this on her main entrance." (Mother, of course, having been a circus lady accustomed to entering the ring aboard the broad back of a gray horse trained to such things.) And these same young folks yawned mightily after Mr. Fields had lost his hat the ninth or tenth time, just as they shrieked mightily when the dear old lions ran the doughboys out of the trenches.

So goes the picture, a laugh, a calm, a bit of soiled comedy, then a clean wisecrack. Whatever of comedy you like in pictures is in "Tillie's Punctured Romance." Whatever of comedy you do not like in pictures is in it also. Someone, who popularized the line, described it when he said, "You pays your money and you takes your choice." And for the first scene a positive answer is made to the ancient "Is that not the garden house?" although in fact the answer is quite plainly negative. All, of course, in fun.

"THE HEART OF A FOLLIES GIRL"

ONCE upon a time there was a very beautiful girl who became a motion picture player. Her name, it may as well be stated at the very beginning, was Billie Dove, or at least that is the name by which she became known to the people who become more and more favorably impressed with her as she appeared in more and more pictures. To this point there is nothing at all unusual about the story—but from this point on complications set in.

This very beautiful girl, whose profile was such as to challenge the sharpest lens and whose coloring was so perfect as to bring to her door those casting directors who had in contemplation the early Technicolor productions, became more and more beautiful as time went on. Those who had written extravagantly in praise of her early beauty were forced to the dictionary for new adjectives; later they despaired of the job and fell back upon such phrases as "Don't take my word for it—see the picture." And at this juncture in the narrative the very beautiful girl is just a little more beautiful than she has ever been before. Don't take my word for it—see "The Heart of a Follies Girl."

But not all has been a path of roses for the people who have had to devise vehicles for the unquestioned talents of this very beautiful girl. As she became more and more attractive—hence more and more beloved of the picturegoers—it was necessary to find better and better things for her to do. And better and better things for a phenomenally beautiful girl to do in pictures are not at all plentiful. I, as one of the picturegoers who ask nothing more of a Billie Dove picture than plenty of closeups of Billie Dove, have been bothered in my contemplation of these by most of her stories. Most of all have I been bothered by "The Heart of a Follies Girl."

"The Heart of a Follies Girl" is the plot that Edison used to use for Mary Fuller when she was not working in "What Happened to Mary." It was also a favorite with Thanhouser, who used it indiscriminately for either Marguerite Snow or Florence LaBadie. Lubin had frequent need of something for the usually nameless people who acted in his one-reelers and the imported Pathe's, distinguished by the snub-snooted automobiles and the frequent appearance of sewer-workers in the wrong street at the right time, sent variations of the theme to America in at least every second shipment. It is, as you must remember, the one about the boy who steals for a girl, goes to jail, escapes and comes back, then is persuaded by the girl to go back and finish his term. And it is, of course, as good as most of the veterans, but of course it isn't nearly good enough to engage the personality of the very beautiful girl who sends the boy back to jail in this version.

The early part of "The Heart of a Follies Girl" has some eminently eyeable backstage stuff. (The Follies seem to be playing a theatre about big enough for a High School class play—but no matter.) After that, there are some nice interiors of the home where Millionaire Lowell Sherman lives with a sister who drops out of the picture after one promising appearance. Toward the end there is a scene or two of a nice cold penitentiary and another of a particularly uncomfortable-looking apartment. And it is in this last scene—after at least 50,000 words of captional conversation—that Miss Dove and Mr. Kent are standing as they wearily await "The End."

I have only sympathy for those who have to find vehicles that will afford satisfactory settings for Miss Dove's all but super-human loveliness. I should not care to have the job myself. But—and this is in no sense an invitation—I will gladly write with my left hand on a postage stamp while enroute from my desk to the water-cooler a better reason for photographing the young lady than this picture is. Or perhaps I could be more helpful by simply saying that her beauty is a thing to be placed in support of any good story available, rather than a thing to which any old story that permits wearing of a bead gown should be appended. In elaboration of this last, I point out that Miss Dove cannot be lost in a good story, even though it disclose not a thigh, whereas her beauty is by no means a thing to be hidden under the bushel that is this very bad one.

When Jaysee Visits Arizona

TOMBSTONE, ARIZ.—TO THE EDITOR: J. C. Jenkins, your rambling correspondent, was here this week and we thoroughly enjoyed his visit—in fact, we believe he also enjoyed his visit to this historic burg—for he "ate" up the history connected with the Bird Cage theatres and the Schieffelin Hall, the first of "variety" fame, and the latter of old time, "stock" fame, and then he gave our new Crystal the "once-over." He visited the Tombstone Epitaph, Million Dollar Stope, Boot Hill Cemetery, Can Can restaurant, the Arcade rose bush—probably the largest in the United States—41 years old. Well, let him tell it. Yours for another visit from Jenks.—GIACOMA BROTHERS, Crystal theatre, Tombstone, Ariz.

Asks Reform in Paper

COLBY, WIS.—TO THE EDITOR: We have just finished showing Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Bringing Up Father" and although it doesn't seem to do any good for the exhibitor to make any squawk about rotten paper, we are going to make another holler anyway.

We ran this picture right hot after release date, March 17 and 18, and from the looks of all the advance dope we could get and all the paper we could get on it, we were actually ashamed to run it.

We believe there was a concentrated squawk made about a year ago about poor paper put out by the different distributors and there were several articles in the HERALD about what the boys had to say on paper about how they were going to make a big improvement in their paper. And, if we remember right, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer was one of them.

We will admit that their paper was plenty bad last year and we hoped and expected there was going to be a big improvement this year as we have a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract this year and were tickled to death about it. But, the boys who make up Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's paper again this year have nothing on their minds but naked women. With but very few exceptions, the paper they put out (even where there is absolutely no excuse for such scenes) they have some naked women or a few naked legs stuck in. If those boys think they know what constitutes clean, attractive paper, they better get out and travel around a little and get a few pointers from the general public that supports the moving picture theatres throughout the country.

Now in the case of "Bringing Up Father" there was a great possibility of making a very raw and suggestive picture out of this as you will admit, and from the looks of the scenes that were on the paper we felt that we were going to be run out of town after the showing; but will have to hand it to the producers for the way they edited and cut this so as to leave out all suggestive and obscene shots and still made a bangup show out of it. Then, why leave the job of putting out the paper to some one who thinks the only thing that attracts the public is a naked woman.

We hate to put anyone on the pan, but Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's paper on a good many of their pictures the last couple of years has been something terrible. The worst one in last year's group was "Frisco Sally Levy," a dandy comedy and a good clean show, with nothing but naked women on the paper for advertising.

We have run Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's entire product the last two and one-half years and have found their pictures very good as a whole, and their service 100 per cent plus and Sam Shurman, manager at the Milwaukee branch and his entire force A-1 to do business with, and have sure treated us fine and we are for them 100 per cent. But we wish that someone who has some say-so would put the force they have to get out their paper on the pension list, and hire some eighth grade school kid to put out some real paper for them and we will donate a little toward the pension.

In closing, will say that "Bringing Up Father" is a dandy picture and will not offend the most particular of your patrons.—CROSBY & SCHWIERSKE, Rex theatre, Colby, Wis.

"Jazz Singer" Plays 3 Times in Same Theatre

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

WASHINGTON, March 27.—For the first time in its history the Metropolitan theatre here will play the same picture for three different engagements. It is Warner Brothers' "The Jazz Singer." The run soon to begin will be the third in three months.

It has also broken a 15 year precedent in the Fox circuit in Greater New York, for it will play an entire week in each theatre of the circuit, breaking the 15 year old split week policy of the theatres.

NEW PICTURES

In "New Pictures" the EXHIBITORS HERALD and MOVING PICTURE WORLD presents in concise form information on current and forthcoming attractions.

The facts as presented will serve exhibitors in booking and in the preparation of their advertising campaign.

BRINGING UP FATHER: Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy, with J. Farrell MacDonald, Jules Cowles, Polly Moran, Marie Dressler, Gertrude Olmstead, Grant Withers, David Mir, and Tenen Holtz. Directed by Jack Conway. Released March 17. Length 6,344.

TYPE AND THEME: An adaptation of the famous comic strip, with the tale true to the main features of the McManus cartoon. The Jiggs family come to America, where Jiggs hits it rich. Maggie, his wife, gets social ambitions. Ellen, their daughter, meets a rich young man, Jerry, and the evening of her birthday party, which Jerry attends, Jiggs is denied the house. Jiggs fires a revolver into the air, pretending suicide. Hearing Maggie's cry of grief, he enters the house, but is met with a shower of vases, etc. This lands him in the hospital, where Maggie, now repentant, goes and forgives him.

DATE WITH A DUCHESS, A: Paramount comedy-drama, with Adolphe Menjou, Evelyn Brent, Rose Dione, Emil Chaitard, Mario Carillo, Leonardo de Vesa, and Jules Kancourt. Directed by Hobart Henley. Released..... Length.....

TYPE AND THEME: It's a comedy part for Menjou—almost straight farce. As Henri, he is a dub performer at the Folies Bergere, Paris, where in one act he has to sit on the back of an elephant, impersonating a Maharajah. A constant patron of the theatre is a princess, who adores beasts. Menjou falls in love with her, goes to see her attired as a Maharajah, and is told to bring her a glove that is in the tiger's cage at the zoo. Menjou does, and the princess rewards him with her love.

FIFTY FIFTY GIRL, THE: Paramount comedy-drama, with Bebe Daniels, James Hall, William Austin, George Kotsouaros, and Johnnie Morris. Directed by Clarence Badger. Released..... Length.....

TYPE AND THEME: In which the superiority of men over women is comically demonstrated. Bebe and Hall inherit a mine from their respective fathers, who were partners. Bebe, a feminist, declares that if she can't run the mine as well as a man, she'll give Hall her share. The bargain is made that the first one who calls for help loses his or her share to the other. They find the mine in the hands of Morgan, who owns the adjacent mine. Hall does the women's work, Bebe the man's. But when Morgan gets busy with his evil designs, she has to call for Hall's wits and fists. But what's the difference. They get married anyway.

NAMELESS MEN: Tiffany-Stahl melodrama, with Antonio Moreno, Claire Windsor, Ray Hallor, Eddie Gribbon, Sally Rand, Steppin Fetchit, Carolynne Snowden, and Charles Clary. Directed by Christy Cabanne. Released February 15. Length 5,708.

TYPE AND THEME: Bob is sent to prison, where a prisoner tells him that when he gets out, he should look up a man named Blackie. Bob does and thereby gets in with a group of crooks who have a big swag hidden. In the course of Bob's adventures with the crooks, he meets Mary, whom Blackie wants. He and Bob become enemies. Blackie tries to run away with Mary on a boat, but Bob pursues on a speed boat, overtaking Blackie, with whom he exchanges shots. Then a police boat arrives, and Bob turns out to be a detective. He and Mary embrace.

SKYSCRAPER: Pathe drama, with William Boyd, Alan Hale, Sue Carol, and Alberta Vaughn. Directed by Howard Higgins. Released..... Length 7,040.

TYPE AND THEME: The story of two structural steel workers, their affection for each other and their love for one girl. Blondy and Slim save Sally from a falling girder. Both love the girl, but do not let her come between them. The three have many good times together. Then tragedy comes to Blondy. In saving Slim from a falling timber, his legs are crushed. He tries to keep the truth from Sally. The two friends come to blows, however. But is Slim sore when Blondy socks him one? Not a bit. It shows that Blondy's legs are O. K. Sally acknowledges a preference for Blondy.

SQUARE CROOKS: Fox melodrama, with Robert Armstrong, John Mack Brown, Dorothy Dwan, Dorothy Appleby, Eddie Sturgis, Clarence Burton, Lydia Dickson, and Jackie Combs. Directed by Lew Seiler. Released March 4. Length.....

TYPE AND THEME: A crook play—but not too serious. Eddie and Larry, chums, have had a shady life, but they want to go straight. They get jobs as servants, but a detective has them discharged. Larry likes Jane. Eddie is married to Kay. They are not bad folks, they've only had a bum start and a few tough breaks. Larry helps an old friend out by hiding some stolen jewels for him, and that threatens to get them into trouble. But Larry takes the jewels back to their owner, who happens to be their former employer. They get their jobs back—and Jane promises to wed Larry.

TRAGEDY OF YOUTH, THE: Tiffany-Stahl drama, with Warner Baxter, Patsy Ruth Miller, Buster Collier, Claire McDowell, Harvey Clark, Margaret Quimby, Steppin Fetchit, and Billie Bennett. Directed by George Archinbaud. Released January 15. Length 6,361.

TYPE AND THEME: It ends like straight drama, but there's comedy in it—perhaps because youth and its problems seem comical to us octogenarians. The tale goes about thus: Paula and Dick, after a flapper-sheik courtship, get married, but on their honeymoon Paula falls for Gordon, a friend of Dick's. The result is, that later, when Dick becomes negligent toward his wife, Gordon successfully makes love to her. Dick feigns an attempt at suicide and Paula makes up with him. Gordon, heartbroken, takes a boat trip. The boat sinks and he is believed lost. But the list of survivors afterwards bears his name, sending Paula to the pier to meet him and be received into his arms.

UNDER THE BLACK EAGLE: Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer melodrama, with Ralph Forbes, Marceline Day, Bert Roach, William Fairbairn, Marc MacDermott, and Flash. Directed by W. S. VanDyke. Released March 31. Length 5,901.

TYPE AND THEME: Flash, the dog, is the hero of this one. Print he is called, and he is a German army dog, trained by Ullrich. Ullrich's cruelty to Print results in a quarrel between Karl and the trainer. War is declared. Margaretta tells Ullrich to look after Karl. Print follows them with another outfit to the Russian front, where he soon runs across Karl and Ullrich and is able to assist in the delivery of an important message. Ullrich is killed, Karl wounded. Margaretta nurses Karl back to health and they are married, making a pretty nice home for Print.

WON IN THE CLOUDS: Universal melodrama, with Al Wilson, Helen Foster, Frank Rice, George Fenck, Joe Bennett, Al Prisco, Myrtis Crinley, Frank Tommick, Roy Wilson, Ivan Unger, Red Sly, and Art Gobel. Directed by Bruce Mitchell. Released April 22. Length 4,348.

TYPE AND THEME: Airplanes, a fight in the air, and so on, one of the "thrill feature" series. In this one, Wilson, as Blake, is sent to Africa to hunt out a diamond mine owned by John James. He runs across Doctor Cecil James and his daughter, Grace, to whom he was once engaged. The doctor and Grace are prisoners of Portuguese Jack, but after many hazardous adventures, including a fight in the air, Blake rescues James and his daughter and in two planes they fly away to civilization and happiness.

WOMAN AGAINST THE WORLD, A: Tiffany-Stahl mystery-drama, with Harrison Ford, Georgia Hale, Lee Moran, Gertrude Olmstead, William Tooker, Ida Darling, Walter Hiers, Harvey Clark, Sally Rand, Rosemary Theby, Charles Clary, Jim Farley and Wade Boteler. Directed by George Archinbaud. Released January 1. Length.....

TYPE AND THEME: The newsroom—a girl reporter—and her lover saved from execution in the nick of time. Carol gets a job on a New York newspaper and longs for a good murder story, so that she can show the men reporters what's what. A murder story breaks—but she is sent to cover a wedding. There she notices a button missing from the groom's coat. Back at the office she learns that a button from a man's coat has been found in the chamber of the murdered woman. She adds two and two and gets four. But though the groom, Schuyler, is convicted and sentenced to die, Carol believes him innocent. She loves him, and he loves her. Working more as sweetheart than reporter, she gets evidence resulting in pursuit of the dead woman's chauffeur. And it is she who gets a confession from the man. Schuyler is saved at the last second, and his bride having got the marriage annulled, he is free to marry the girl reporter.

WOMAN'S WAY, A: Columbia melodrama, with Warner Baxter, Margaret Livingston, Armand Kaliz, Mathilde Comont, Ernie Adams and John St. Polis. Directed by Edmund Mortimer. Released February 18. Length.....

TYPE AND THEME: This one's Parisian, in the sense of the adjective most current on this side of the Atlantic. Liane dances at the Red Fox, beloved of Jean, whom she fears. A cold young woman, she warms toward Tony Durant, American, and thus is the dreadful enemy of Jean aroused toward them both. Caught as a thief, Jean is removed to Devil's Island, releasing Liane from her fears. Durant's influence gets her a position at the Opera, where she rapidly becomes a favorite. She has grown to love Durant dearly by the time Jean escapes from prison. The lovers, separately, are lured to an underworld den, where Liane saves Durant's life by taking the knife stab herself. Just then the police arrive, and with French astuteness, explain for Durant's benefit that Liane was with Jean as a secret operative for the police. Durant enfolds her in his arms.

This Week's Press Sheet

An attractive, comprehensive and very worth while press sheet, crammed with ideas on exploitation and advertising, has been issued on Harold Lloyd's new production, "Speedy."

This voluminous book is the work of Russell Holman, advertising manager of Paramount, his staff and Leslie Whelan of the Lloyd Eastern office.

The "Speedy" promotional guide offers so many suggestions for publicizing the comedy that it would be useless to review the exploitation possibilities as is done weekly in this department.

Many pages of this book were written by exhibitors themselves, who competed in the recent "Speedy" contest. Entire campaigns have been outlined by the men who are "on the job" at theatres throughout the country.

The Lloyd and Paramount departments have added much valuable material.—J. M. S.

Incorporated in this department of Moving Picture World is the Exhibitors Herald department, "Available Attractions."

The key to abbreviations used in denoting the type of picture:

C—Comedy
D—Drama
R—Romance
F—Farce
M—Melodrama
W—Western

My—Mystery

Where the picture is a comedy-drama, comedy melodrama, etc., there is a combination of these abbreviations. Stars denote reissues.

The dates prior to January 7 published under the "Review" column are those of the issues of Moving Picture World in which the pictures were reviewed. The January 7 and subsequent dates are those of the issues of EXHIBITORS HERALD and MOVING PICTURE WORLD in which "Service Talks" have been published on pictures.

The dates prior to January 7 published under the "New Pictures" column are those of the issues of EXHIBITORS HERALD in which "New Pictures" information was printed. The January 7 and subsequent dates are those of the issues of EXHIBITORS HERALD and MOVING PICTURE WORLD in which this information will be printed.

BACHELOR'S BABY: Special cast—80%. February 16. This is a scream, at least it was here. Our folks were in a roar all through it. If it does not make your people laugh, call the undertaker, for they must be dead. Six reels.—S. S. Seibert, Salina theatre, Salina, Okla.—Small town patronage.

PLEASURE BEFORE BUSINESS: Max Davidson—75%. February 23. Davidson is always funny and the program pleased. Six reels.—S. S. Seibert, Salina theatre, Salina, Okla.—Small town patronage.

FOR LADIES ONLY: Special cast—69%. March 2-3. Good comedy. Will please Saturday night crowd. Six reels.—L. W. Bagwell, Jr., Crystal theatre, Oakman, Ala.—General patronage.

THE BLOOD SHIP: Hobart Bosworth—50%. March 7. Played this one as a special but it failed to bring them in. People got the impression that it would be weird and gruesome, from the title, I suppose. A good clean picture with very few captions. It's worth pushing hard. Eight reels.—K. D. Francis, Family theatre, Metamora, Mich.—General patronage.

THE ROMANTIC AGE: Alberta Vaughn—The runaway staged on a staid livery nag, and the subsequent rescue in the good old Broncho Billy fashion inaugurated about 20 years ago and done to death a thousand times since by more able performers, were too ridiculous for words. The performance of the two stars during the fire scene was even more absurd. The hero goes into the roaring furnace of a building, the "shero" follows, they are trapped among the engulfing flames and rescued by firemen through a hole chopped in the roof and emerge without a blemish, scorched clothing, singed hair or eyebrows anywhere in evidence. Just a few smudges on their faces. If the director had ever come within 100 feet of such a conflagration, his sense of touch alone would have apprised him of the absurdity he produced. Such drivel may fascinate kitchen maids and scullery rags but has no charm for a discriminating public. Alberta Vaughn has been a prime favorite with us in the past, but any more of such direction and her name 'll be Dennis. Our attendance on the second night fell short 16 per cent of the first. Six reels.—Charles Storch, Casino theatre, Republic, Wash.—General patronage.

DEVIL DOGS: Special cast—Fair only. Did not draw like it should. Six reels.—S. S. Seibert, Salina theatre, Salina, Okla.—Small town patronage.

CHICAGO AFTER MIDNIGHT: Special cast—70%. March 4. This is another good one and it sure pulled at the box office. I don't know if the title or weather caused it, but they sure turned out to see it. Seven reels.—W. T. Biggs, Adair theatre, Adair, Ia.—General patronage.

CHICAGO AFTER MIDNIGHT: Special cast—70%. A real special. It pleased one hundred per cent with my crowd.—L. Deyo, Miers theatre, Schoharie, N. Y.—General patronage.

CHICAGO AFTER MIDNIGHT: Ralph Ince—March 7. A good picture of the Chicago underworld with plenty of suspense and thrills that seemed to please. Seven reels.—Guy B. Amis, Princess theatre, Lexington, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

DEAD MAN'S CURVE: Special cast—33%. February 17-18. Rapid action, jumpy story.—Roy W. Adams, Pastime theatre, Mason, Mich.—General patronage.

DEAD MAN'S CURVE: Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.—Nothing to this one and who ever told young Fair-

Editor's Note

Percentage ratings given by exhibitors in reports to this department are obtained in the following manner: Average daily gross of picture reported is divided by average daily gross of picture holding house record to determine relative box office value in terms of percentage.

EXAMPLE: $75 (average daily gross of picture reported) divided by $100 (average daily gross of picture holding house record) equals .75 (percentage rating given picture in report).

banks that he could act? He's got lots to learn.—Marion F. Bodwell, Paramount theatre, Wyoming, Ill.—General patronage.

CONEY ISLAND: Lois Wilson—February 8. One of FBO's best. Raised the admission price and they all seemed pleased.—Guy B. Amis, Princess theatre, Lexington, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

THE SLINGSHOT KID: Buzz Barton—75%. February 25. This was our second picture from this star, and it pleased them all. Keep up the good work, Buzz, and you will in time, give our old favorite, Fred Thomson a race for his money. Print good. Five reels.—J. P. Johnson, S. of N. theatre, Ambrose, N. D.—General patronage.

FRECKLES: Special cast—30%. March 7-8. This is a good program picture. Could not call it a special. The book very popular, and drew the business that we got. Satisfaction to them that had read the book.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

FRECKLES: Johnny Fox—A very good book picture, it is clean and the story follows the book. This type of picture will please most everyone.—Wilcox and Miller, Lakeview theatre, Lakeview, Ia.—General patronage.

IN A MOMENT OF TEMPTATION: Special cast—65%. February 18. A good program picture. Good for Saturday. Print in good condition. Seven reels.—J. P. Johnson, S. of N. theatre, Ambrose, N. D.—General patronage.

IN A MOMENT OF TEMPTATION: Special cast—February 21. This was a blank as a picture and at the box office as well. Six reels.—Dewey L. Kisor, Sterling theatre, Fairmont, Neb.—Small town patronage.

THE BANDIT'S SON: Bob Steele—60%. February 11. Our Western picture fans liked this one. Good story, good plot. One of Bob Steel's best. Five reels.—J. P. Johnson, S. of N. theatre, Ambrose, N. D.—General patronage.

THE BANDIT'S SON: Bob Steele—March 2. Just an ordinary Western. Not as good as "The Mojave" story, good plot. One of Bob Steele's best. Five reels.—Dewey L. Kisor, Sterling theatre, Fairmont, Neb.—Small town patronage.

LITTLE MICKEY GROGAN: Frankie Darro—60%. February 28. Good, they all liked this one. Six reels.—Aug. Berkholtz, Mermac theatre, West Bend, Wis.—General patronage.

LITTLE MICKEY GROGAN: Frankie Darro—February 28. Just a program picture that did not make expenses. Six reels.—Dewey L. Kisor, Sterling theatre, Fairmont, Neb.—Small town patronage.

AFLAME IN THE SKY: Special cast—36%. March 9-10. Plenty of thrills here for Saturday night.—Roy W. Adams, Pastime theatre, Mason, Mich.—General patronage.

First National

FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE: Ben Lyon—March 1. Not so bad. Would consider this a better comedy than the average. Many favorable comments. Seven reels.—Wm. Wiske, Community theatre, Red Granite, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE LIFE OF RILEY: Murray-Sidney—February 21-22. Good comedy. Will go over where this team is liked.—J. L. Seiter, Selma theatre, Selma, Cal.—Small town patronage.

THE DEVIL'S SADDLE: Ken Maynard—Pleased ninety per cent. Boys, I say that anybody that can't get their money's worth out of this one just ought to spend their money for poison because it is certainly one for the book. Played this on Saturday, and what I mean we were swamped. Ken, when I want the best Western there is, I will look over your list first.—Roy E. Mitchell, Plainview theatre, Plainview, Tex.—General patronage.

THE DEVIL'S SADDLE: Ken Maynard—A mighty fine picture that clicks at the small town box office. Keep it up Ken. Send me a photo and I will give it exclusive in my lobby.—C. W. Becker, Electric theatre, Burwell, Neb.—General patronage.

THE DEVIL'S SADDLE: Ken Maynard—March 2-3. A good Western to good business.—R. Pfeiffer, Princess theatre, Chilton, Wis.—Small town patronage.

WHITE PANTS WILLIE: Johnnie Hines—February 24-25. A very clever comedy drama, full of pep and clever titles but a miserable failure at the box-office, as all First Nationals are in this town. Hines good, but no drawing card. Six reels.—R. Pfeiffer, Princess theatre, Chilton, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE PRIVATE LIFE OF HELEN OF TROY: Maria Corda—This is a good picture of this type, and went over very well. Had blow up first night or would have had good business. Eight reels.—E. D.

Luna, Cozy theatre, Wagoner, Okla.—Small town patronage.

THE PRIVATE LIFE OF HELEN OF TROY: Maria Corda—March 8-9. Maria Corda, 25 per cent. A big dressed up show. Good scenes but no story for small towns. Too long drawn out. A special in price is all. Eight reels.—L. H. Ireland, Pastime theatre, Logan, Ia.—General patronage.

THE PRIVATE LIFE OF HELEN OF TROY: Maria Corda—February 23-24. Goes right over the heads of small town audiences. No business.—J. L. Seiter, Selma theatre, Selma, Cal.—Small town patronage.

THE GORILLA: (Special cast—January 28-29. Not very good and by no means a special. I guess I expected too much, however, I didn't raise the price and was glad of it. Eight reels.—P. J. Durkin, Majestic theatre, Perry, Ill.—Small town patronage.

THE GORILLA: Special cast—80%. March 2-3. This picture is a special and should bring the admission price charged for specials. But not having any open dates on Mondays and Tuesdays, we played on Friday and Saturday at program prices. This is a serio-comic production, superbly mounted and with a cast so well balanced as to be faultless in their acting. It is serious in the beginning and the mystery part is staged with good dramatic effect, gripping the interest of the spectator until some cowpuncher away over on one side breaks in with his "Haw! Haw!" only to have your rapt attention startled by some jackass at your shoulder with his "Haw, haw, haw!" Such people who have not a speck of art in their soul are an insufferable nuisance in a theatre but the author or director at this stage with a fine discernment turns it into comedy and from this one the "Haw, haws!" are not so much out of place, though just as unmusical. Another thing which detracts from the effect of high class subjects which run into seriousness is parodying them by producers of short subjects. In this case we had seen a comedy which is not only a plagiarism but a downright infringement of the rights of the producer of "The Gorilla."—A. J. Gibbons, Illinois-Kozy-Elite theatres, Metropolis, Ill.—General patronage.

THE SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS: Special cast—A wonderful picture of the hill folks and while it does not please the dumbbells it does please the so-called better thinking class. Seven reels.—W. H. Brenner, Cozy theatre, Winchester, Ind.—General patronage.

ROSE OF THE GOLDEN WEST: Special cast—This picture failed to draw and pleased only a few who came. Has some beautiful scenery. Sold as a special, but cannot class it as a good program. Lost plenty of Money. Seven reels.—E. W. McClelland, Rex theatre, Gilman City, Mo.—Small town patronage.

SYNCOATING SUE: Special cast—Very good.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

THE UNKNOWN CAVALIER: Ken Maynard—This is our first one from this boy and we believe he will be an attraction after we get him started. He can sure do his stuff. Seven reels.—E. W. McClelland, Rex theatre, Gilman City, Mo.—Small town patronage.

McFADDEN'S FLATS: Murray-Conklin—March 5-6. A fair comedy. Pleased most everyone. Seven reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—Small town patronage.

ORCHIDS AND ERMINE: Colleen Moore—March 4. Played this on Sunday and found it gave perfect satisfaction. Six reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—Small town patronage.

THE BLONDE SAINT: Special cast—March 7. We were very agreeably surprised in this picture. Much better than we had expected. Title poor draw. Six reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—Small town patronage.

SUBWAY SADIE: Mulhall-Mackaill—March 6. Very pleasing comedy drama to light business. Good photography and good print. Seven reels.—E. M. Bidder, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

CAMILLE: Norma Talmadge—January 21. The best received from First National in a long time, and incidentally the best Miss Norma has turned out since her "Eternal Flame." Gilbert Roland's work deserves praise also. Did very good business. Eight reels.—M. Vallicha, The Capitol theatre, Karachi, India.—General patronage.

JUST ANOTHER BLONDE: Special cast—Very good.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

ELLA CINDERS: Special cast—Good.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

EASY PICKINGS: Special cast—Good.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

OLD LOVES AND NEW: Special cast—Very good. Seven reels.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

IT MUST BE LOVE: Special cast—Very good. Eight reels.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

QUO VADIS: Emil Jannings—A wonderful historical production. Photography fine. Film condition good. Business good. Buy it right if you play it, as it pleases about 50 per cent. Too big for the average fan. 10 and 25 cents.—Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

THE DUCHESS OF BUFFALO: Constance Talmadge—March 8-9. Would call it a very neat little program picture. Has some very fine snow scenes which were well done. In fact, they looked better on the screen than did the real snow which hit me at show time. I note in this week's Herald that one of the exhibs contends that we ought to run Winter pictures in Winter and Summer pictures in Summer. That's good. I'll bet the natives were tickled pink last night after they had hoofed it through snow up to their ears to find they had come to see another snowstorm. Eight reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE AMATEUR GENTLEMAN: Richard Barthelmess—February 4. Nothing much in this one and perhaps a little dragging in some places. Yet, on account of the British element in the plot we did good business, playing it opposite "Les Miserables" with dancing acts. Eight reels.—M. Vallicha, The Capitol theatre, Karachi, India.—General patronage.

Fox

BLACK JACK: Buck Jones—33%. January 27-28. Good Western comedy.—Roy W. Adams, Pastime theatre, Mason, Mich.—General patronage.

DAREDEVIL'S REWARD: Tom Mix—43%. February 9-10. Fair Mix picture.—Roy W. Adams, Pastime theatre, Mason, Mich.—General patronage.

WOLF FANGS: Thunder—34%. March 6. Fair dog picture. Drew better than some have lately.—Roy W. Adams, Pastime theatre, Mason, Mich.—General patronage.

WOLF FANGS: Thunder—March 10. A very good dog picture. Six reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

WOLF FANGS: Thunder—January 29. It was a good picture for those who like dogs. Six reels.—Thomas Jisa, Opera House, Coal City, Ill.—General patronage.

THE BRANDED SOMBRERO: Buck Jones—22%. March 3. Rather weak for Jones. Five reels.—S. G. Inde, Photoplay theatre, Ashland, Kan.—Small town patronage.

LOVES OF CARMEN: Dolores del Rio—40%. Victor McLaglen a knockout of an actor. People like him immensely. If your organist plays "La Paloma" every few minutes during the showing of this picture you will actually live in Spain for an hour or so. Fox sold it a little too high, but picture is there with the goods and Dolores is not afraid to show her physique.—Charles V. Martina, Family theatre, Mt. Morris, N. Y.—General patronage.

ARIZONA WILDCAT: Tom Mix—47%. March 16-17. Lots of comedy, action and thrills in this, and a polo game for variety.—Roy W. Adams, Pastime theatre, Mason, Mich.—General patronage.

ARIZONA WILDCAT: Tom Mix—January 22. This picture is not like his other pictures. It is not such a Western as are his others. Five reels.—

Thomas Jisa, Opera House, Coal City, Ill.—General patronage.

WHAT PRICE GLORY: Special cast—75%. January 13-14. This is a good picture, but why all the filth? It leaves a bad taste in one's mouth. Everybody said it was too rough. I made some money with it. I bought it for $125 less than they wanted for "Ben Hur" and "The Big Parade," so I am going to let them parade on. I have quit giving my theatre away every time I play a so-called big picture. Nine reels.—Kenney Lloyd, Joy theatre, Foreman, Ark.—General patronage.

WHAT PRICE GLORY: Dolores del Rio—30%. Personally, I thought this a wonderful production, but severe weather for two nights kept my patrons away. Fox gave us a fair proposition on it, too, so thanks to them. Twelve reels.—Minnie M. Schnoor, Paramount theatre, Stapleton, Neb.—Small town patronage.

WHAT PRICE GLORY: Special cast—February 21-22-23. This is a good picture, but it just wouldn't draw for me. I spent more money advertising this than I did "Ben Hur" or "The Big Parade," but couldn't get them in. I think the reason is the public is so fed up on these 50-cent war pictures they just won't come. I lost money on this. Print good, photography good. Twelve reels.—P. G. Held, Strand theatre, Griswold, Ia.—Neighborhood patronage.

THE MIDNIGHT KISS: Special cast—38%. March 9-10. Just another fair picture. Nothing about it to make their talk either for or against it.—Wm. J. Hobbs, Hobbs theatre, Lashburn, Sask., Canada.—Small town patronage.

NO MAN'S GOLD: Tom Mix—81%. February 24-25. Better than average Western. Six reels.—Wm. J. Hobbs, Hobbs theatre, Lashburn, Sask., Canada.—Small town patronage.

THE RETURN OF PETER GRIMM: Alec B. Francis—42%. March 2-3. Fair program picture. Eight reels.—Wm. J. Hobbs, Hobbs theatre, Lashburn, Sask., Canada.—Small town patronage.

THE GATEWAY OF THE MOON: Dolores del Rio—March 8-9. A good picture, somewhat better than "Loves of Carmen." The scenes are laid in the Amazon Valley, and have some good photography and beautiful closeups of the star near the last. Seven reels.—Guy B. Amis, Princess theatre, Lexington, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

SEVENTH HEAVEN: Farrell-Gaynor—February 15-16-17. Pleased 100 per cent. In my opinion, it was one of the best productions Fox ever made. The stars did excellent work and are to be commended. Charles Farrell as "Chico" was excellently selected and in my estimation couldn't have been better played by any well known star. Bad weather kept me from getting a record at the box office. Twelve reels.—Roy E. Mitchell, Plainview theatre, Plainview, Tex.—General patronage.

SEVENTH HEAVEN: Gaynor-Farrell—March 1-2-3. This is a very fine picture, but a basketball tournament in competition all three nights was disastrous to business. I raised the price on this and it will stand it. Eleven reels.—Roy W. Adams, Pastime theatre, Mason, Mich.—General patronage.

SEVENTH HEAVEN: Gaynor-Farrell—March 14-15. I think this is one of the best pictures I have ever played. Yet I really had more complaints on it than I did on either "The Big Parade" or "Ben Hur." Did a very good business on it considering the way business has been and "The Cat and Canary" for competition. You sure can't go wrong in buying this picture. Wish I had more of them with the drawing power it has. Twelve reels.—Guy Loudermilk, Fairy theatre, Nappanee, Ind.—General patronage.

THE HIGH SCHOOL HERO: Special cast—February 1-2. This is certainly one perfect little comedy.—Roy W. Adams, Pastime theatre, Mason, Mich.—General patronage.

WAR HORSE: Buck Jones—March 9-10. Only a fair Jones picture. My patrons are so sick and tired of war scenes in pictures. I can't understand why the producer has to inject some war bunk in almost half of the pictures that are produced today. I wonder when they are going to cut the war bunk out of pictures. Print good. Five reels.—P. G. Held, elder, Galt theatre, Galt, Cal.—Small town patronage.

WAR HORSE: Buck Jones—February 11. Very good Jones type of picture and Jones pulls for me. So what more can I say? Five reels.—H. W. Batchelder, Galt theatre, Galt, Cal.—Small town patronage.

Gotham

THE SIGN OF THE CLAW: Peter the Great (Dog)—52%. March 12-13. Good dog picture, not as good as Rin Tin Tin though. Six reels.—L. W. Bagwell, Crystal theatre, Oakman, Ala.—General patronage.

Tucson, Arizona, St. Patrick's Day, 1928.

DEAR HERALD-WORLD:

Here it is St. Patrick's Day and we haven't a shamrock nor a green necktie to our name and we are 80 miles from the Mexican border. Isn't that just terrible? As we understand it, Pat was the boy who drove the snakes out of Ireland, and if so, we are for him. If Pat was located here in Arizona he'd sure have his hands full, for rattlers are as common here as silk hosiery on Michigan Avenue and the Bootleggers' Union has put the price of their antidote so high that everybody is trying to avoid being bitten.

We don't know very much about Arizona and therefore are not qualified to speak intelligently, but this much we will say, her climate during November, December, January, February and March is 100% plus and we will let the Arizonians do the rest of the talking, but our suspicions are that during the balance of the year Arizona is the place referred to in the Bible where His Nibs with the pitchfork and forked tail holds the position of "Master of Ceremonies." Maybe we don't know a thing about it, but this March sun suggests that conclusion. Our wife says we are crazy and we don't dare dispute it for fear she will prove it. Looks like she had become Arizonianized already.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

"Of course, boys, we're all honest but let's cut the cards." Did you see that caption on page ten of the March 3 issue of the HERALD-WORLD? You should turn to it and read the ad. It strikes us as about the keenest thing that has appeared in sometime. We can't

A Picture of what's left of the famous "Bird Cage theatre" at Tombstone, Ariz., where Eddie Foy, Lottie Crabtree, Murray and Mack and many others of the old school used to play. Those were the days when two dollars and a six-shooter was the price of admission, only they kept their six-shooters.—J. C. J.

quite figure out who is responsible for it. In some ways it sounds like Bill Weaver, then again it suggests Thomas O. Service as the author, and then again we are reminded of Jay Shreck, but maybe after all it was Eagle Eye Joe, anyhow the whole page is worth reading (we have read it five times) and you will get a kick out of it besides learning some truths that have become fixed facts insofar as valuable advertising space is concerned.

We have always been a firm believer in the importance of "cutting the cards" and our fifteen years experience as an exhibitor has warranted us in this belief. The rule has always been "cut to the right and deal to the left," but unfortunately we have always occupied a position at the left of the dealer while the Knight of the Brief Case sat at his right. "Of course, boys, we are all honest," but if we were going back into the exhibiting end of the game we would insist on a seat at the right of the gentleman who dealt the cards.

Illustrative of this, last night we sat in a little friendly game with our family. Geneve was the dealer and our wife sat on her right and we on her left and Ruth in the middle. Before the game started we said, "Of course, boys, we are all honest but let's cut the cards" and our wife cut 'em, and after the game we had to get a bill of sale for Marie before we could move her out of the garage. Kinda looks like the old man had been framed, since four queens wouldn't win a coca cola.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

As we are writing this Geneve is sitting at the table reading the reports of exhibitors in "What the Picture Did For Me" and all at once she broke out laughing and we said "What has struck you now?" and she replied, "Oh that doggone Tragsdorf of Neillsville, Wisconsin, he gives me an awful kick" and then she read from one of his reports, "If there is anything

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

THE STUDENT PRINCE: Ramon Novarro—A fairly big picture. Priced too high. We paid all it was worth and they demanded a split, but it did not have enough box office pull to reach the split. A small town lemon.—C. W. Becker, Electric theatre, Burwell, Nebr.—General patronage.

THE LATEST FROM PARIS: Norma Shearer—February 28-29. An excellent comedy drama. Eight reels.—Colonial theatre, Moulton, Ia.—Small town patronage.

THE LATEST FROM PARIS: Norma Shearer—This picture gave about as good satisfaction as any I have run this year. A picture for the whole family. Good pictures in bad weather seem to go hand in hand here this winter. I struck a blizzard with this one and twenty below zero weather with "The Noose" a few days ago. These conditions keep an exhibitor in these parts from getting hunch-backed carrying his money to the bank. Eight reels.—O. G. Blakeslee, Cozy theatre, Medford, Wis.—General patronage.

THE BIG CITY: Lon Chaney—A crook drama that holds the interest to the finish with a plot on

I hate it is a lying film hound." Geneve says she always looks for the reports from Trag and Phil Rand and Gailey especially, for they always give her a wallop, and we replied, there are two of us.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

Since coming to Tucson we have been swamped with letters from exhibitors from all over the country asking our advice on various matters and we are sorry that time and space will not admit of as full a reply as we would like to make, but we trust it will be satisfactory to make brief answers through this Colyum. Parties wishing expert advice may address us care HERALD-WORLD. Our advice is free to readers of this magazine.

Frank O'Hara, Community theatre, Elgin, Nebraska.
No, St. Patrick wasn't a Swede. He was a Dutchman that drove the snakes out of Ireland and the Irish have been on the Police Force ever since. That's why some cities always go democratic.

W. E. Tragsdorf, Trag's theatre, Neillsville, Wisconsin.

We wouldn't advise it. In fact we'd be strongly against it. Walking back home should always depend upon the condition of the roads.

Miss Thelma Castle, Castle theatre, Goose Creek, Texas.

Glad you wrote us Miss Thelma. Yes, ladies will be most welcome at that exhibitor convention at Alexandria, Minnesota. Hope to see you there. Yes, Phil will be there also. F. W. Zimmerman, Palace theatre, San Marcos, Texas.

You say she is twenty years old and very nervous. Perhaps she has adenoids. Ascertain if she snores in her sleep and then advise us more fully. Crockett Brown, Brown's Palace, Nashwauk, Minnesota.

From your description we would say that your hulfoundland has dogitis, a disease very prevalent among mongrels. No, don't feed him dog biscuits, feed him limburger cheese and put cold packs on his stomach and et cetera. No charge, our services are free. Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Iowa.

You say your audience seemed cold and indifferent and didn't respond to "The Midnight Kiss." Looks like a desperate case. Try Epsom salts. Mrs. Sam Blair, Blair Enterprises, Belleville, Kansas.

No, you have our age guessed too high. We were 27 on the 28th day of last month. Yes, our wife insists that we are married and she ought to know. No, our hair is red and very curly. Sure, we won't mention it to Sam.

Phil Rand, Rex theatre, Salmon, Idaho.

You have the Rahbi pegged entirely wrong. He doesn't get his from a hootlegger. He has "wine hees" in his cellar that make it. He also has bats in his belfry hut they don't make bats.

Miss Della Gulick, Fad theatre, Brookings, South Dakota.

Glad to hear from you Miss Gulick, it has been a long time since you wrote us. Shame on you for such negligence. Yes, "SEVENTH HEAVEN" is a masterpiece. Your audience will be delighted with it. See review by Thomas O. Service in a recent issue of the HERALD-WORLD.

A. F. Jenkins, Community theatre, David City, Nebraska.

You say you think you are a relative of ours. Maybe so. Did your ancestors ever monkey with cocoanuts? Guess we better not trace our family tree back too far.

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

Some years back there was a fellow by the name of George Larkum Scott who put his feet under our wife's table for a number of years regularly three times a day, and if he ever missed a meal history has been painfully silent on that point. In fact our wife raised him almost from a pup. He was at the head of the conservatory department of our schools at Neligh, but late years has been directing orchestras and a church choir or two at Spokane, Washington. George Larkum gave promise of developing into quite a student of music under our guiding influence and instructions, but if we were to go out to Spokane (which we hope to do, and may) and should find one of his orchestras playing a selection of shuffle Nigger jazz, we would concede, without argument, that Darwin only told half of it, and that our influence and council had been wasted on a hopeless case. George Larkum Scott, stand up and he sworn. Do you, or don't you?

—Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World Fills a Want None Others Do—

Everytime we read "SERVICE TALKS" we are glad Mark Twain wrote "ROUGHING IT" for it gives us something with which to make a comparison.

If you haven't been following Thomas O. in his wanderings you have been missing something that the whole family is entitled to. You will find that the next best thing is the reports on pictures by Tragsdorf and "Fishy" Phil. These boys have a unique way of expressing themselves that oftentimes causes near convulsions, and the only fault we can find with them is that they don't write more and oftener.

When that convention meets at Alexandria, Minnesota, next June and Thomas O., Tragsdorf, Phil, Gailey, The Rahhi, Crockett (and his hulfoundland), Eagle Eye Joe, Zimmerman and a lot more of the Great Unwashed get together, history will be made by reams.

Boys, excuse me from going any further with this letter, have just been handed a telegram from Morocco, Indiana, saying my brother passed away yesterday. This leaves hut two of us out of a family of ten.

J. C. JENKINS,
(The HERALD-WORLD man)

the order of the "Miracle Man." Seemed good to see Lon and Betty together again. Would rate this above the average program picture. Eight reels.—O. G. Blakeslee, Cozy theatre, Medford, Wis.—General patronage.

QUALITY STREET: Marion Davies—Too much costume for us. Too long, but has some clever situations.—Colonial theatre, Moulton, Ia.—General patronage.

QUALITY STREET: Marion Davies—Some liked

this, others didn't, but it proved to me that Marion Davies can act. "The Fair Co-Ed" went over better for the simple reason that it wasn't this "costume stuff." Eight reels.—Whitney Burr, Orpheum theatre, Lancaster, Wis.—General patronage.

BUTTONS: Jackie Coogan—Pleased one hundred percent, S. R. O. sign out all night. Record crowd on program picture. Boys, Jackie is right there when it comes to acting and drawing crowds to your little play-house. My opinion is that this is the best one he has ever made, it has heart interest and plenty of action, also plenty of good clean comedy and a little love romance combined; what more do they want? Seven reels.—Roy E. Mitchell, Plainview theatre, Plainview, Tex.—General patronage.

BUTTONS: Jackie Coogan—February 24-25. Very good. Jackie always draws well. Had plenty of good compliments on this one. Bought it so I made some money on it. Six reels.—Guy Loudermilk, Fairy theatre, Nappanee, Ind.—General patronage.

THE THIRTEENTH HOUR: Lionel Barrymore—February 11. A good mystery drama and a little spooky. The dog was good. Had a full house on Monday.—P. J. Durkin, Majestic theatre, Perry, Ill.—Small town patronage.

BODY AND SOUL: Lionel Barrymore—February 21. A melodrama that is above the average; acting of Lionel Barrymore, especially fine. Suitable for any theatre. Good appeal.—George Lodge, Green Lantern theatre, Claymont, Del.—General patronage.

ON ZE BOULEVARD: Lew Cody—February 27. Six reels of film wasted. Don't play it. But you expect such as this from MGM, the talk of the public, young blood, etc. Oh Geel How can they!—Majestic theatre, Perry, Ill.—Small town patronage.

UPSTAGE: Norma Shearer—March 10. Didn't care much for this one, although we find Metros very consistent pictures. Six reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—Small town patronage.

FOREIGN DEVILS: Tim McCoy—February 28. This one like all of McCoy's features was a good picture. Plenty of action and good action. A very good average production.—George Lodge, Green Lantern theatre, Claymont, Del.—General patronage.

THE FRONTIERSMAN: Special cast—February 25. Can't say much for this one. Drew a fair house, but they didn't go wild over it. Hope that the rest of them are better than this one was.—Paul B. Hoffman, Legion theatre, Holyrood, Kan.—Small town patronage.

Paramount

THE ROUGH RIDERS: Special cast—50%. March 4-5. This is a good picture and a big picture. The cast is splendid. Gave good satisfaction.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

THE ROUGH RIDERS: Special cast—One of the very best I've shown for some time. You can't bill too strong. It's in line with history and faithfully portrays the Spanish-American and Filipino War. A good one for two days. Many nice comments. Might add that many got the idea it was a Western, but when they saw it nearly everyone boosted it. Well directed and each player fits in perfectly. Many said, "The best I've seen for some time." Ten reels.—W. D. Tarkington, Realto theatre, Keota, Okla.—Small town patronage.

THE MYSTERIOUS RIDER: Jack Holt—12%. February 28. Good picture which failed to register very high for two nights. Well, we give them good pictures; they want still better ones; so that's the way they come and go here. Six reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

MAN POWER: Richard Dix—39%. January 19. A dandy picture. Six reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

BLIND ALLEYS: Thomas Meighan—50%. February 26. Very dandy show. Tom is always easy to look at and this picture was short, but excellent. Six reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

A GENTLEMAN FROM PARIS: Adolphe Menjou—75%. March 3. Not quite as good as most of Menjou's pictures, or perhaps they are getting tired of this actor in same roles. Six reels.—C. B. Burkhardt, Pastime theatre, Homer, Ill.—Small town patronage.

METROPOLIS: Special cast—25%. March 1. Went over the heads of the people here. Marvelous photography and settings. Eight reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

THE SECRET HOUR: Pola Negri—March 3. Brother Exhibitor, if you have any moral people in your town who you are depending on for your business, don't play "The Secret Hour." Absolutely the poorest picture we have ever played in my many years of experience in the picture business. I can't understand how the stars could have made this picture without showing a red face. "The Secret Hour" has made a hearty supporter of the Brookhart Bill. Let's have morality in our picture business for humanity's sake, Mr. Hays.—M. S. Freezer, Badin theatre, Badin, N. C.—General patronage.

THE SHOWDOWN: George Bancroft—Good story, good cast. Well directed picture. Patrons told me they liked this one. Eight reels.—Whitney Burr, Orpheum theatre, Lancaster, Wis.—General patronage.

WIFE SAVERS: Special cast—February 29 and March 1. An absolute riot here. The best thing they have done since "Behnd the Front." They have cut out the vulgarity and suggestive situations. Which goes to prove that it can be done. Business light, due to local industrial depression. Six reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

WIFE SAVERS: Hatton-Beery—If you like Hatton and Beery you will like this, but not as funny as "Now We're in the Air." Good, though. Six reels.—Whitney Burr, Orpheum theatre, Lancaster, Wis.—General patronage.

THE LAST WALTZ: Special cast—March 9-10. Another UFA production and outside of a couple of hot sexy scenes unnecessary to the development of the story, it's excellent. Ran this and FBO's "Legionnaires in Paris" on double program night to satisfactory business. Excellent photography and perfect print on both pictures. Seven reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

THE SPOTLIGHT: Esther Ralston—March 2-3. A very interesting story which Miss Ralston puts over in her usual charming style. Ran this and FBO's "The Swift Shadow" on double feature night to satisfactory business. Six reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

GET YOUR MAN: Clara Bow—Clara Bow, that's enough, and she has given us good pictures. "Get Your Man" is an evening well spent. Good for the whole family. Six reels.—Whitney Burr, Orpheum theatre, Lancaster, Wis.—General patronage.

THE CITY GONE WILD: Thomas Meighan—February 19-20. Tense underworld drama.—J. L. Seiter, Selma theatre, Selma, Cal.—Small town patronage.

JESSE JAMES: Fred Thomson—A sweet little box office bet. If your people like Westerns, book it. Paramount will take care of your box office receipts via the percentage system. What more could you ask? Eight reels.—C. W. Becker, Electric theatre, Burwell, Nebr.—General patronage.

ARIZONA BOUND: Gary Cooper—February 4. This was Cooper's initial appearance here. They say the first impression is lasting. If so, it looks like Gary has found a home here. Many thought the story was by Zane Grey, and therefore you can't go wrong. Six reels.—A. C. Phillips, Strand theatre, Walhalla, S. C.—General patronage.

SWIM, GIRL, SWIM: Bebe Daniels—Made a very good regular program picture. Six reels.—Giacoma Bros., Crystal theatre, Tombstone, Ariz.—General patronage.

LET IT RAIN: Douglas McLean—January 28. Good clean comedy. If they would make them all as clean as this one, we would never kick. You can play this one and not be ashamed to look the crowd square in the face.—A. T. Kincannon, Oneida theatre, Blue River, Wis.—Small town patronage.

FIREMEN, SAVE MY CHILD: Special cast—Feb-7-8. Full of elapstick, not much to this one. Wallace Beery runs away with picture. I have played "Now We're in the Air," and they are all alike.—L. H. Ireland, Pastime theatre, Logan, Ia.—General patronage.

SENIORITA: Bebe Daniels—February 29-March 1. Has plenty of action and Bebe does a Douglas Fairbanks to a dot. Basket ball killed the second night. It is not a big special, but is just a pleasing program offering. Six reels.—Paul B. Hoffman, Legion theatre, Holyrood, Kan.—Small town patronage.

THE WAY OF ALL FLESH: Emil Jannings—February 23-24. One of the best pictures I have shown for a long time. A good picture for any night. Will stand a little raise.—L. H. Ireland, Pastime theatre, Logan, Ia.—General patronage.

THE WAY OF ALL FLESH: Emil Jannings—Here's a marvelous picture, one of the finest we have ever played. Jannings' acting is wonderful, but why do they insist on putting in scenes of naked children? A scene like this one in this picture spoiled a wonderful picture. I think that it is poor judgment on the director's part to have such scenes put in any picture. If the directors don't use their common sense in leaving these scenes out, why don't the exchange managers cut them out. When the naked people are left out of pictures the motion picture industry will have more boosters and less knockers. Nine reels.—B. R. Parsons, State theatre, Springfield, Minn.—General patronage.

MAN OF THE FOREST: Jack Holt—March 3. Very good, just enough comedy to keep every one in good humor. Everybody left smiling. Sweed part very comical. This is different from most of Grey's stories. Play it.—A. T. Kincannon, Oneida theatre, Blue River, Wis.—Small town patronage.

MAN OF THE FOREST: Special cast—Good.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

THE POTTERS: Special cast—February 11. An average picture, nothing big, but ought to pass anywhere.—A. T. Kincannon, Oneida theatre, Blue River, Wis.—Small town patronage.

PADLOCKED: Special cast—Some said that this was the best picture that they had seen in a long time. However, it failed to draw for me. Due to title and program.—A. T. Kincannon, Oneida theatre, Blue River, Wis.—Small town patronage.

ROUGH HOUSE ROSIE: Clara Bow—February 26-27. A good comedy drama with Clara Bow. The prize fight is a big joke. Drew good business.—R. Pfeiffer, Princess theatre, Chilton, Wis.—Small town patronage.

BORN TO THE WEST: Jack Holt—Very good. Seven reels.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

THE BLIND GODDESS: Special cast—Good.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

AFRAID TO LOVE: Florence Vidor—March 4-5. An excellent program picture with a very good cast. Photography as clear as a crystal. It pleased. Seven reels.—Wm. E. Tragsdorf, Trags theatre, Neillsville, Wis.—Small town patronage.

FORLORN RIVER: Jack Holt—January 3. A very good Zane Grey story. Holt and Grey always draw good for me.—A. T. Kincannon, Oneida theatre, Blue River, Wis.—Small town patronage.

FORLORN RIVER: Special cast—Good.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

THE MANNEQUIN: Special cast—Good.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

THE GOOSE HANGS HIGH: Special cast—I played this Christmas and it's a good one for the family. Seven reels.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

TIME TO LOVE: Raymond Griffith—February 18. This one went over in pretty good shape. He has always drawn good for us. This pleased the majority of our patrons.—Paul B. Hoffman, Legion theatre, Holyrood, Kan.—Small town patronage.

QUICKSANDS: Richard Dix—March 3. If your patrons like Dix it might go over; don't bank too much on it, as it won't go over very good. It seems to lack something all the way through. Five reels.—Paul B. Hoffman, Legion theatre, Holyrood, Kan.—Small town patronage.

SPECIAL DELIVERY: Eddie Cantor—March 7-8. One of the best feature length comedies ever shown here. Very sorry Eddie quit the screen for Broadway. Lloyd or Chaplin are not one bit better than he. Excellent photography and perfect print. Six reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

THE KID BROTHER: Harold Lloyd—Lloyd is no drawing card here and this one has about 10 per cent of the laughs that "Baby Mine" has. Eight reels.—Colonial theatre, Moulton, Ia.—General patronage.

THE VANISHING AMERICAN: Special cast—Very good.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

Universal

SPANGLES: Special cast—Good, of its kind. Six reels.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

ONE MAN GAME: Fred Humes—March 3. This is called a Western, but it is really a nice little comedy. Quite interesting. Good for small town patronage.—George Lodge, Green Lantern theatre, Claymont, Del.—General patronage.

THE THIRTEENTH JUROR: Anna Q. Nilsson—February 26. Received many good comments on this one. It holds one's attention pretty well. It would seem as if Mr. Laemmle wanted to make another "Held By the Law." However, it is a good picture and I freely say that it may be played in small towns on any day of the week. Six reels.—Wm. Wiske, Community theatre, Red Granite, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE CAT AND CANARY: Laura La Plante—March 4-5. This is a very good picture and it pleased most of my patrons. Many came back to see it the second night and we had a full house. Eight reels.—David Straszler, Lyceum theatre, Manchester, Mo.—General patronage.

THE FOURTH COMMANDMENT: Special cast—March 3. Play it by all means. A fine picture of the mother love type, with Belle Bennett and Mary Carr. Not a scene that drags. Saturday crowds want action, but this had no walkouts. Seven reels.—E. C. Bays, Globe theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

THE ICE FLOOD: Special cast—Fair.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

THE SILENT RIDER: Special cast—Good.—J. W.

Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

THE PRAIRIE KING: Hoot Gibson—February 27-28. This pleased nicely, but Hoot don't click at the box office as in times gone by. Six reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

HER BIG NIGHT: Special cast—Very good.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

THE WHOLE TOWN'S TALKING: Special cast—Just fair. Six reels.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

THE MIDNIGHT SUN: Special cast—Good, but no special.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

WINE: Special cast—I am done with re-issues; no good.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

THE COHENS AND KELLYS: Sidney-Murray—Not a bit sorry to have played this. Old but excellent comedy-drama. Eight reels.—Colonial theatre, Moulton, Ia.—General patronage.

THE FLAMING FRONTIER: Special cast—Very good, but not a special. Ten reels.—J. W. Schmidt, Grand theatre, Breese, Ill.—General patronage.

THE FLAMING FRONTIER: Special cast—Failed to draw much of a house. Story good, cast adequate and film in good shape. Held interest, but failed to get up any enthusiasm, rather long. Hoot Gibson did very well. Photography excellent, but it costs too much money and we guess people are about fed up on this style of picture, because we had no opposition and failed at the box office. Nine reels.—Giacoma Bros., Crystal theatre, Tombstone, Ariz.—General patronage.

FIFTH AVENUE MODELS: Mary Philbin—January 13. Although it was a second run picture, but repeated after a long time, yet had good praise for this one. Seven reels.—M. Vallicha, The Capitol theatre, Karachi, India.—General patronage.

PAINTED PONIES: Hoot Gibson—This kept my Saturday crowd in an uproar. Hoot is as good a comedian as he is cowboy. One lady remarked she had laughed 'til she ached. Six reels.—E. C. Bays, Globe theatre, Buena Vista, Va.—General patronage.

LES MISERABLES: Special cast—Good and well liked by the few. Too much money. Lost me money in perfect weather. Eight reels.—G. G. Bais, Capitol theatre, Duncan, B. C., Canada.—General patronage.

A HERO ON HORSEBACK: Hoot Gibson—Very good Western with all the action in the last reel. Some good comedy that kept the house in a mirthful mood. It is not up to Hoot's best, but it will get by. Photography fair. Six reels.—H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U theatre, Melville, La.—General patronage.

THE SILENT RIDER: Hoot Gibson—Good as all his pictures are. Personally think Hoot is a wow. Six reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

BACK TO GOD'S COUNTRY: Renee Adoree—Just a Western sold as a special, worth half program class only. Six reels.—G. G. Bais, Capitol theatre, Duncan, B. C., Canada.—General patronage.

A HERO FOR A NIGHT: Glenn Tryon—This boy is a comer, watch out Lloyd, Chaplin, and all you clever comedians as Carl has a very clever boy. The picture is extra good. Worth showing in any house. Six reels.—E. L. Wood, Coliseum theatre, Edmore, Mich.—General patronage.

THE WESTERN WHIRLWIND: Jack Hoxie—February 19-20. Same old factory made Western. Same old villain robs same old bank, and same old hero saves the girl from runaway team on the edge of same old bluff. Wish they'd end to Buttericks and get a new pattern. It would be one big relief to yours truly and the long suffering fans. Five reels.—E. M. Biddle, Strand theatre, Paoli, Ind.—Small town patronage.

FIGHTING THREE: Jack Hoxie—This is a different kind of a Western from the usual run and was sure good. I really thought it wonderful. Five reels.—George Khattar, Khattar's theatre, Sydney, N. S., Canada.—General patronage.

Warner Bros.

HONEYMOON EXPRESS: Irene Rich—41%. March 3. Fair picture. Nothing in the picture to suggest the title. Seven reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

THE BLACK DIAMOND EXPRESS: Monte Blue—45%. March 3. Can't say much for this. Not up to expectations; railroading not so good. Seven reels.—O. A. Fosse, Community theatre, Ridgeway, Ia.—Small town patronage.

WHEN A MAN LOVES: John Barrymore—22%. February 20-21. This picture did not take in film rental for me, while it is not such a bad picture it is not a box office attraction, and anyone who pays a super special price for it will find out the same as I did. Lost plenty with it. Ten reels.—A. E. Andrews, Opera House, Emporium, Pa.—General patronage.

BELOW THE LINE: Rin Tin Tin—15%. February 24-25. Little late to play this, but good pictures like this never get old, and therefore I am glad of running it. Dog very good and should please any audience. Seven reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW: Patsy Ruth Miller—Good. Pleased, pulled. Photography and film condition good; 10 and 25 cents. Seven reels.—Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

DON'T TELL THE WIFE: Irene Rich—February 29-March 1. A good picture.—R. Pfeiffer, Princess theatre, Chilton, Wis.—Small town patronage.

IRISH HEARTS: May McAvoy—February 20-21. A good show. Six reels.—R. Pfeiffer, Princess theatre, Chilton, Wis.—Small town patronage.

THE THIRD DEGREE: Dolores Costello—March 8-9. We thought this a very good picture, but basket ball and social affairs took most of the crowd. Seven reels.—Mrs. C. Knox, Star theatre, Villa Grove, Ill.—Small town patronage.

THE NIGHT CRY: Rin Tin Tin—February 17-18. A good dog picture and Rin Tin Tin always draws some extra business here.—W. L. Crouse, Ideal theatre, Bloomer, Wis.—Small town patronage.

DEARIE: Irene Rich—Very good, and did big Sunday business.—R. Pfeiffer, Princess theatre, Chilton, Wis.—Small town percentage.

Serials

BLAKE OF SCOTLAND YARD (Universal): Special cast—Comment on this is good, but children are frightened rather than entertained. I would say it is above the average serial.—Geo. E. Fuller, The Playhouse theatre, Fairhope, Ala.—General patronage.

HEROES OF THE WILD (States Rights): Jack Hoxie—Have run four episodes, and is drawing better every week, with a bad start on account of measles and cold weather. Ten episodes.—Tommy Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

THE ISLE OF SUNKEN GOLD (State Rights): Anita Stewart—Only fair serial, did not hold up as well as some. Stewart didn't mean much to serial fans. Ten episodes.—Tommy Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

WHISPERING SMITH RIDES (Universal): Wallace MacDonald—This is one of the best serials we have played in the past twelve months. Everyone of our patrons seemed to enjoy it very much. It was exciting from start to finish, with a fight in every chapter. Ten chapters.—Harold Seaton, LeComte theatre, Sevierville, Tenn.—General patronage.

Short Subjects

EDUCATIONAL

DEWEY LOVE: Bobby Vernon—Good laughs aplenty and a few thrills along with the spills. Vernon has many friends here among my fans. Two reels.—Tommy Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

THE HUMDINGER: Johnny Arthur—Here's a comedy that should be featured fifty fifty with your long subject. It's the best of the Arthur comedies I've seen. Somehow it is different from the general run of comedies. Two reels.—Tommy Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

NEWLYWED'S MISTAKE: Snookums—Good, as usual.—Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

TEACHER, TEACHER: Lloyd Hamilton—Good, that's all we can say, but did not raise so many laughs as usual. Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

F B O

BEAUTY PARLOR SERIES: Special cast—Our first Cooke-Guard comedy. Two reels.—K. D. Francis, Family theatre, Metamora, Mich.—General patronage.

COLLEGIATE: Crazy Kat—Just fair cartoon, and they do not please, no matter how good they are. One reel.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

GALLOPING GHOSTS: Very good. Two reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

MICKEY'S CIRCUS: Mickey McGuire—A fund of pleasure for the kiddies. Two reels.—K. D. Francis, Family theatre, Metamora, Mich.—General patronage.

MICKEY'S PAL: Mickey—Good kid comedy.—Colonial theatre, Moulton, Ia.—General patronage.

MICKEY'S PARADE: Mickey Grogan—This comedy sure has plenty of rough stuff in it and a sure comedy from start to finish. The kid is a good looking old tough guy. Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

FOX

FRONTIER OF THE SKY: Varieties—Had many favorable comments and quite a few were from kids. Very beautiful scenes of German Alps. Three-fourths reel.—Tommy Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

MADAME DYNAMITE: Imperial—Fair mother-in-law comedy. Colonial theatre, Moulton, Ia.—General patronage.

TWENTY LEGS UNDER THE SEA: This comedy O. K. The best looking bunch of bathing girls I've seen in years. Some good loud laughs and all comments favorable. Two reels.—Tommy Cannon, Majestic theatre, Greenfield, Tenn.—Small town patronage.

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER

THE FLAG: One of those technicolor subjects for which Metro is becoming famous. Any audience, no matter how dumb and beautiful, homely and high-brow, will appreciate a short of this kind. It's one of those features that adds a fine touch to your program and should be used in the small town house as well as in a "pitcher" palace. Two reels.—Pioneer Pete, Pioneer theatre, Amasa, Mich.—Small town patronage.

LADY OF VICTORIES: Beautiful but sad.—Colonial theatre, Moulton, Ia.—General patronage.

METRO NEWS: All have been fine so far, and have received them at the age I paid for, not two weeks older than the contract calls for. One reel.—John Cosner, Sun theatre, Sargent, Neb.—General patronage.

PASS THE GRAVY: Max Davidson—This one had the crowd laughing and roaring from beginning to end. Worth more than ten of the best Crazy Kat comedies ever made. Two reels.—Arnold Krueger, Pastime theatre, Stratford, S. D.—General patronage.

RAINY DAYS: Our Gang—Absolutely the funniest comedy I ever saw. Comedies like this will pull out many a weak feature. The dog and kids are all good. Two reels.—John Cosner, Sun theatre, Sargent, Neb.—General patronage.

SECOND HUNDRED YEARS: Plenty of good laughs came over this one, and improved the program over the show, "Faust." Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

SPOOK SPOOFING: Our Gang—Funny and scary.—Colonial theatre, Moulton, Ia.—General patronage.

STING OF STINGS: Charley Chase—Not as good as "Pass the Gravy," but everyone was well pleased. Two reels.—Arnold Krueger, Pastime theatre, Stratford, S. D.—General patronage.

PARAMOUNT

DR. QUACK: A good funny comedy. Two reels.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

KOKO KICKS: Inkwell series—Seemed to please, judging from laughs. One reel.—C. B. Burkhardt, Pastime theatre, Homer, Ill.—Small town patronage.

NIFTY WOES: A better comedy than many. Had the patrons laughing. Two reels.—C. B. Burkhardt, Pastime theatre, Homer, Ill.—Small town patronage.

SAVE THE PIECES: Good comedy. Two reels.—Harold Seaton, LeComte theatre, Sevierville, Tenn.—General patronage.

PATHE

BIGGER AND BETTER BLONDES: Good funny comedy. Two reels.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

THE BIG REWARD: Aesop's Fables—This one is good and will make them laugh. One reel.—Harold Seaton, LeComte theatre, Sevierville, Tenn.—General patronage.

PEACHES AND PLUMBERS: Billy Bevan—Very good. Plenty laughs. Madeline Hurlock deserves stardom for her work in this. Two reels.—O. A. Fosse, Community theatre, Ridgeway, Ia.—Small town patronage.

SMITH'S FISHING TRIP: Yes, it is funny. Two reels.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

TELLING WHOPPERS: Our Gang—Good. Two reels.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

TURKISH DELIGHT: Rudolph Scbildkraut—Amateurish, crude production.—Geo. E. Fuller, The Playhouse, Fairhope, Ala.—General patronage.

TWO TIME MAMMA: Glenn Tryon—Some liked this and some didn't which holds good with any comedy. Not good enough to brace a weak feature, so write your own ticket. Two reels.—O. A. Fosse, Community theatre, Ridgeway, Ia.—Small town patronage.

TIFFANY

MEMORIES: Special cast—This is the first of the Tiffany-Stahl color classics we have used, and oh boys, what a treat! Based on the song, "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," this gem was the cause of considerable comment on the part of our patrons. Our organist and orchestra put this subject over in great shape. A pleasure to stand at the door when they came out. We paid for a short reel subject we had under contract with another concern to take this on upon the recommendation of the local branch manager and we are not sorry. Beautifully colored and a pleasing little story.—Ritz theatre, St. Louis, Mo.—General patronage.

UNIVERSAL

BUCKSKIN DAYS: A fine two-reel Western.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

BUSTER'S BIG CHANCE: This is an extra good comedy. Two reels.—Bert Silver, Silver Family theatre, Greenville, Mich.—General patronage.

BUSTER, COME ON: Arthur Trimble—This was one of the best of this series we have had to date. Buster looks like a dog, he has four feet like a dog, a tail and ears like a dog, but there ends the resemblance, the rest of him is human, intelligent human of a very fine grade. When one reflects upon the infinite patience it must take, both trainer and trained, to bring this paragon where it is today, it seems almost inconceivable, it certainly is wonderful. And it was comedy; comedy clean, untainted and of the highest order from start to finish. Two reels.—Charles Storch, Casino theatre, Republic, Wash.—General patronage.

THE COLLEGIANS: First series. Looks like a good bet.—Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

THE COLLEGIANS: These are the best liked comedies we have played to date. Sorry people were so slow waking up to them. First series just completed.—Geo. E. Fuller, The Playhouse, Fairhope, Ala.—General patronage.

THE COLLEGIANS: Second series. Played with "High School Hero." They ate it up.—Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

HOT STUFF: Benny Hall—Very good one-reeler that made 'em tear loose with laughter. One reel.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

INTERNATIONAL NEWSREEL: We get it so old that it's history. But it's good. One reel.—Mrs. Hulda J. Green, Gem theatre, Greenriver, Utah.—General patronage.

OCEAN BRUISES: A comedy that was not so very fast, but Andy got there, and sure made them laugh in spots. Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

OCEAN HOP: Oswald (the rabbit)—This series of comedies are very good. One reel.—Harold Seaton, LeComte theatre, Sevierville, Tenn.—General patronage.

OH! BABY: Little Billy—February 25. When I booked this picture, I could not get any line on it. No reports from other exhibitors were available. But was a scream, one of the best comedies in months. Any theatre that has not played it, has missed a big comedy picture.—George Lodge, Green Lantern theatre, Claymont, Del.—General patronage.

OLD WEST: Here's a "Covered Wagon" comedy that makes some of the big so-called covered wagon features look like two bits. Advertise this one, boys, it's a doodle.—Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy theatre, Villisca, Ia.—General patronage.

ON DECK: Fine comedy. Two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

TROLLEY TROUBLES: Oswald (the rabbit)—Nothing to this for us here; they just can't look at a cartoon. One reel.—Rudolf Duba, Royal theatre, Kimball, S. D.—General patronage.

MISCELLANEOUS

SORORITY MIXUP: Buddy Messinger—Rather a little broad in spots. Barely missing downright vulgarity by a breath, but it was pie for the youngsters and a good many of the oldsters, too. It sure was laughable and produced a goodly flock of screams of delight. Two reels.—Charles Storch, Casino theatre, Republic, Wash.—General patronage.

CHICAGO PERSONALITIES

By Whit

R. C. SEERY, district manager for First National in Chicago, will be transferred to the West Coast as home office representative for First National early in May. Ross Herman, who recently resigned as country salesman for First National here, is again with First National in the same capacity. He took up his old position Monday.

"Grad" Sears who on April 1 will become exchange manager for First National here, was in Chicago last Saturday and Sunday. Carl Lesserman, who will trade posts with Sears, says that business will keep him from taking the short vacation he had planned before taking over the Cleveland exchange.

* * *

The wedding bells are soon to ring in honor of Saul Goldman and Miss Gertrude Pearlman. They are to be married March 31. Saul, as everybody knows, is Jerry Abrams' right hand man at Gotham.

Nat Wolf of the Orpheum Circuit wishes to thank his many friends along the row and elsewhere for their many kindnesses tendered him at the time of his operation. He is now back at work with the confidence that his health has been completely restored.

* * *

We met Harry Hatfield of Whiting Friday on the row and, according to Harry, "Chicago Personalities" keeps him well informed about the doings along film row.

* * *

Max Alexander, production manager of Stern Brothers comedies, passed through last Tuesday on his way to the West Coast. And Mrs. Beno Rubel, wife of Carl Laemmle's personal representative, paused in Chicago Friday on her way to New York.

* * *

Mrs. James E. Best, whose husband operates the Blaine theatre, underwent an operation for appendicitis at the John B. Murphy hospital last week.

Ned Depinet of First National was in town Thursday and S. W. Hatch, Western division manager for First National, was in the city Friday.

Roy Alexander returned from his trip to Florida Thursday.

Steve Montgomery of the Daily News screen service returned to work this week after being away for several weeks because of an operation.

It looks as if every old gag in the business is being used these days to entice patrons into Chicago theatres. The Adelphi on the north side hands out a piece of silverware to every matinee patron. The North Center makes a bid to the housewives by giving away china to Thursday matinee visitors. The Vitagraph has reduced prices to 5 and 15 cents, and the Admiral goes them all one better in giving two features and five acts of vaudeville. At the Woods, where the African picture, "Simba," is being shown, coffee is served during the intermission, and at the Playhouse, Chicago sophisticated cinema house, coffee and cigarettes are offered with a lavish gesture of hospitality. Looks like the free luncheon counter will be revived next.

"You can't win," Irving Mack is sadly testifying these days. Last week he and Dave Goldman, Bill Michaelson, Jules Moss and Max Hellar motored to Milwaukee and succeeded in getting arrested for speeding going and coming.

Frank Ford is again manager of the Gold theatre after having served in that capacity a number of years ago.

The Schutter & Johnson Candy company is now making a Snookums candy bar, named after the Universal baby comedy star. Jack Baker of the Chicago exchange put over the tieup.

Bandits Rob Two Chicago Theatres; Snow Aids Escape

Receipts from two motion picture theatres in Chicago were seized by bandits yesterday in simultaneous daytime holdups. Two bandits entered the offices of the Central Park theatre on the West side, the original Balaban and Katz house, and forced I. Maynard Schwartz, manager to hand over $1,100. They escaped from the well filled house without attracting attention.

The other holdups occurred when two bandits assailed Joseph Ptacek, a retired policeman, as he left the Michigan theatre, on the South side, carrying $496 in cash and $150 check to the bank. One bandit struck Ptacek to the ground with the butt of his gun. As they fled down an alley with the money, Ptacek opened fire, but his aim was obscured by the heavy snow.

U. S. Sues Chicago Exhibitor Body and 11 Film Companies

1927, said defendant exchange managers, said defendant exhibitors association and said defendant exhibitors entered into an understanding and agreement to prevent all operators of motion picture theatres from securing films that said defendant exchange managers refused to release, supply and deliver films, and also refused to make new contracts."

The information stated that the Exhibitors Association had 175 members operating 300 theatres or 80 per cent of all theatres in Chicago.

Expect Many Theatres To Give Dodge Program; Great States to Do So

Many exhibitors are expected to install radio receiving equipment and loud speakers in their theatres for this Friday night, to present to their patrons the Dodge Brothers Film Stars Radio Hour, which will be broadcast from 55 stations between 9 and 10 o'clock, Eastern time.

Great States, Balaban & Katz subsidiary operating 57 theatres in Illinois, intends to give the broadcast in connection with the regular show, stopping the performance when the program begins. According to an official of Great States, this circuit's theatres suffered from the previous Dodge Brothers broadcast.

Six United Artists celebrities are to be heard over the network. Dodge Brothers has insured their appearance for $250,000, according to Henry Koch of the motor company.

Frackman Forms New Film Distributing Firm

(Special to Exhibitors Herald and Moving Picture World)

MILWAUKEE, March 27.—The Frackman Film Corporation is a new independent film exchange recently formed in Milwaukee. J. G. Frackman, who is associated with Progress, is president of the company.

Frackman started in the film business in Chicago 16 years ago, with the Feature Film Exchange, later becoming associated with Sol Lesser in California, and still later with Frank Zambreno, head of the Progress Pictures organization. He is handling Progress pictures in this territory, as well as Plaza pictures and several other products which will be announced later.

For your Protection

To insure exhibitors the highest possible screen quality, Eastman Positive Film is made identifiable. The words "Eastman Kodak" are stencilled in black letters at short intervals in the transparent film margin.

Specify prints on Eastman Film—look for the identifying words in the margin—and get the film that always carries quality through to the screen.
